It is the Board's position that Mrs. Bell reports to the building principal, Mr. Idarolla. The petitioner cites Lippincott v. Board of Education of Watchung Hills Regional High School Districts, OAL Docket O. EDU 5339-92, Agency Docket No. 248-6/92, 94 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* (EDU) 311, aff'd., 94 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* (DU 315 Comm'r. Ed.) aff'd., 94 N.J.A.R. (EDU) 430 (St. Bd.), aff'd., App. Div. Docket No. A-5592-92T5, 95 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* (EDU) 304, certif. den. 142 N.J. 518, (1995) and attempts to distinguish the facts from the within case. The Board states that while the facts are somewhat different in Lippincott, the findings in regard to the authority of the principal or vice principal over a library's functions are most pertinent. The Watchung Hills Library had a certificated educational media specialist in their library. The library also had several employees in clerical positions. The Board had the assistant principal supervise these employees rather than the educational media specialist. The petitioner argued that this was improper and that the vice principal did not hold an educational media specialist endorsement. Petitioner argued that the educational media specialist endorsement was required of anyone supervising the library and its personnel under N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.17.

The argument of petitioner was rejected by the Administrative Law Judge, the Commissioner of Education, the State Board of Education and the Superior Court, Appellate Division. The Administrative Law Judge found N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3 to be dispositive.

> The petitioner's assertion that there is no merit to the argument that N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(b) give authority to the vice principal to develop and coordinate educational media services itself without merit. . .

> By failing to read the language concerning school medial personnel in the larger context, she has lost sight of the fact that certain certificates subsume the powers, duties, and authorities of other certificates. Reading the certification rules in their entirety, I FIND that a person holding a principal endorsement on an administrative certificate is authorized, among other things, to perform the duties involved in supervising a media center and the persons attached to a media center. At ¶314, 315.

The Appellate Division affirmed this decision is Lippincott, 95 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* (EDU) 304. The Court stated:

> The ALJ rejected petitioner's legal contentions, and concluded that the vice principal, who holds a principal endorsement on a school administrator's certificate, could be assigned to supervise the Media Center and its personnel, and could be given authority to develop and coordinate the educational media services program (emphasis added).

It is clear from this language that a vice principal or in this case, the principal, Mr. Idarolla, under his principal's endorsement had the authority to develop and coordinate the educational media services program. Therefore, in the within case, it is entirely proper under the Administrative Code and Case Law for Anne Marie Bell to perform the clerical functions in the library and for Mr. Idarolla to be responsible for her supervision and for him to develop and coordinate the educational media services program at the Pennsville Township Middle School.

II. The Board Proved that it Obtained Approval of the Librarian Aide Position from the County Superintendent

Respondent agrees that Dr. Peddle testified at the hearing that he wrote to the County Superintendent and requested approval of the position. He further testified that the County Superintendent did in fact approve the creation of this position. Petitioner claims that this testimony was unsubstantiated hearsay testimony. Respondent would note that if this position is correct that petitioner did not object to this hearsay testimony being presented by Dr. Peddle at the hearing and, therefore, did not preserve any right to object to same at a later date.

Petitioner states that the only evidence of record that the County Superintendent approved the creation of the position of librarian aide is the testimony of Dr. Peddle and, therefore, this claim is unsubstantiated and, therefore, should not be accepted as evidence by the Court. It should be noted that petitioner's original petition for declaratory ruling pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1 contained Exhibit B which as part of their pleading is contained within the record of this case. Exhibit B is a letter dated February 20, 1998, from Michael Elwell, Salem County Superintendent to Mr. Thomas G. Myers of the NJEA which states:

> In response to your letter of February 4, 1998 regarding the use of a library aide at the Pennsville Middle School I have reviewed the Board of Education approved job description and spoken with the Superintendent of the School District. Based upon my review of the job description and the conference with the Superintendent of the School District, I am satisfied that the library aide is performing her duties based on the application for approval of school aide position approved by the County Superintendent of Schools on October 14, 1997.

This exhibit is sufficient evidence to substantiate the testimony of Dr. Peddle at the hearing in regard to this issue.

The petitioner argues in the alternative that if the Court accepts the evidence that the County Superintendent approved this position, that the County Superintendent was in error in doing so. Petitioner argues that that Board is using an aide to perform job functions which the State Board has determined are professional in nature. The petitioner cites Scrupinski v. Bd. of Ed. of Warren Township, 1977 S.L.D. 1051 to support petitioner's argument. In this case, the local Board eliminated two nursing positions and created five school health aide positions. One important distinction between that case and this is that each board of education is required to employ one or more school nurses pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:40-1. There is no statutory requirement that a Board employ an educational media specialist in a school library. In addition, the nurse's aides were required to be registered nurses. This requirement was the deciding factor for the Commissioner in deciding that this move by the Board was an attempt to provide nursing services through the use of less than full trained school nurses who met the State Board of Education's Academic Requirements as set forth in the regulations.

In this case only additional requirement for the library aide over that of a teacher's aide is that the person have a County Substitute Certificate. The sole reason for this requirement is to be able to permit students to go to the library during their study hall or at other appropriate times without the need for the presence of a teacher. If the library aide did not hold a County Substitute Certificate, the library use by students would be curtailed to those times that a teacher is present with their class. This is also the reason that the library aide is paid at a higher rate than a teacher's aide which position does not require a County Substitute Certificate.

Petitioner finds further fault with the present arrangement, arguing that the Board is in violation of N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.5. The regulations state in pertinent part that the holder of a substitute teaching certificate cannot substitute teach for more than 20 consecutive days in the same position in one school district during the school year. This argument fails because Anne Marie Bell is not a substitute teacher. The substitute teacher certificate is a requirement for her position as library aide so that students can utilize the resources of the library without the need to have a teacher present. This is merely an additional requirement over that of a teacher's aide for this sole purpose. Therefore the 20 day consecutive day limit for substitute teaching in the same position is inapplicable.

III. The Board is not Required to have a Professional Librarian in the Middle School Library

Petitioner argues that under N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.6 that because Pennsville Township has a population gre[illegible]10,000 that they are required to have a professional librarian in the Middle School Library. Respondent would agree that if a librarian were employed in the Middle School Library that said person would have to hold a professional librarian certificate. However, respondent disagrees that there is a requirement that a librarian be employed in the Middle School Library.

IV. If it is found that the Principal of the Middle School is not Authorized to Develop and Coordinate the Education Media Services in the Middle School Library without having an Educational Media Specialist Employed, the Board takes the Position that the Educational Media Services in the Middle School Library are not being Developed and Coordinated as that Term is Defined in N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.7

In the event that the Court finds Lippincott, supra. can be distinguished from this case in that that Board employed an educational media specialist in their library, then respondent adopts an alternate position. Respondent is not aware of any authority that requires an ongoing development and coordination of educational media services in a public school library. In fact, the Board is not required to even have a library for the Pennsville Middle School. As agreed by all parties, under the ideal situation, every school library would have a certificated librarian and educational media specialist. Such a library would have the advantage of a professional who could supervise class research for students on their study period and in conjunction with teachers who have brought their class to the library for research. Such an individual would be able to make a professional analysis and evaluation of the current collection and determine what media services should be added.

Respondent is of the opinion that there exists a middle ground between the permitted parameters of no library and a library operated by an individual with all of the applicable endorsements. The library aide in the Pennsville Middle School is a clerical position. The extent of the development and coordination of educational media services in this library, if that term is appropriate in this context, are as follows:

1. Old books which have not been used in the last 5 to 10 years are placed in the discard pile.

2. New Books are ordered based on the following:

A. Teacher request;

B. Student request for particular authors or sorts of books;

C. Newberry Medal winners;

D. American Library Association recommendations.

The only supervision of class research in the Middle School Library is provided by the student's teacher as verified by the testimony at the hearing. The cataloging and classifying of books is no longer required since most books are precatalogued and those that are not can be assigned a catalogue number by the payment of 95 cents. Respondent submits that their current operation of their library by a librarian aide or library aide, supervised by the Principal meets of the statutory, regulatory and case law requirements of New Jersey law and should be permitted to continue.

Conclusion

The Pennsville Township Middle School Library functions with the help of a librarian aide or library aide who performs clerical duties. She has a County Substitute Teacher certificate which permits students to come to the library on study hall without the necessity of a teacher. due to this additional requirement, she is paid at a level higher than that of a teacher's aide. This position reports to the Middle School Principal who has overall supervisory responsibility for the educational media services in the Middle School. Mrs. Bell is not performing professional services and, therefore, the Board has not replaced a professional with an aide as alleged. It is respectfully submitted that the action of the Board in creating and filling this position is proper and petitioner respectfully requests that this Court confirm the current operation of the Pennsville Middle School as being proper and lawful.

DISCUSSIONS AND CONCLUSIONS

The sole issue for determination by this administrative tribunal, as set forth in petitioner's Petition of Appeal and as agreed upon by the parties, pursuant to the Prehearing Order dated October 8, 1998, is whether the Board is in violation of the regulations at N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.6? That regulation is entitled Professional Librarian and provides as follows:

> (a) This certificate is required for employment as a professional librarian in libraries supported in whole or in part by public funds, serving communities of 10,000 population and above.
> (b) The requirements include a master's degree in library or information science in an approved library program.

The PEA alleges and asserts, among other things, that the first four duties set forth in the Job Description (J-2) are predominantly professional in nature and are reserved for the holder of a professional librarian/educational media specialist certificate or endorsement. Petitioner contends that: (1) supervising class research; (2) evaluating collection when necessary; (3) selecting and ordering books; and (4) cataloging and classifying books when indicated are professional duties which requires the exercise of professional judgment and must be performed by a properly-certificated educational media specialist. Petitioner contends that Ms. Ann Marie Bell, Librarian Aide, lacks the certification required to perform those duties described above, among other duties.

Ms. Bell, testified, credibly, that she does not perform the four duties as set forth in the Job Description. Rather, the classroom teacher, who is assigned with her class for library on a given day, assists the pupils with research. The classroom teacher assists the pupils in locating the needed materials in books; magazines and other print material. Ms. Bell asserted that the extent of her involvement with the pupils research was to direct the pupils to the library card catalog. Ms. Bell asserted that she was clearly advised that she was not to supervise class research nor provide direct pupil instruction.

Mr. Joseph Visalli, seventh and eighth grade Social Studies teacher in the Board's employ, testified as petitioner's witness and asserted, among other things, that he, and not Ms. Bell, gave his pupils specific instructions as to what research resources to use. Mr. Visalli asserted, credibly, that he was in charge of his pupils when visiting the library and gave his pupils instruction about research. He testified that Ms. Bell performed clerical duties while he had his social studies pupils were in the library.

With regard to the evaluation of the library collection, Ms. Bell stated that there was a standard rule of thumb that any resource more than 10 years old and not utilized, was discarded. The discard was done after a check of the card file was completed to determine the materials use and after consultation with teachers who used the type of materials to be discarded.

With regard to the selection of books for the library, Ms. Bell testified that she took the recommendations of the teaching staff members as well as pupils requests. She also used the Newberry winners of children's fiction and the recommendations published by the American Library Association (ALA), of the best books for children. After the book selections are made, Ms. Bell presents the list to the building principal for approval.

As to the cataloging of the materials when they arrive at the library, Ms. Bell testified that the books are precatalogued and she only needs to enter the selection into the library's inventory, a clerical function. There is also a service provided for those books which are not precatalogued.

The testimony of Superintendent Peddle demonstrated that the building principal was totally responsible for the supervision of the library and the Librarian Aide. He asserted, credibly, that Ms. Bell only coordinate the library services.

Having carefully reviewed the relevant testimony, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the testimony of witnesses Ann Marie Bell, Joseph Visalli and Superintendent Robert Peddle was credible and to believed with respect to the work performed by Ms. Bell, pursuant to the Board's Job Description. In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950).

As for petitioner's argument that the County Substitute Certificate limits Ms. Bell's service in the performance of her duties as the Board's librarian aide to no more than 20 consecutive days in the same position in one school district during the school year, the herein record demonstrates that prior to his approval, the Salem County Superintendent was supplied a copy of the Board's Job Description for the position which included, among other things, the requirement of a County Substitute Certificate. The County Superintendent was fully aware of the scope of the position of librarian's aide and the Board's specifications with regard to the work to be performed and certification it required prior to his approval of the position.

With respect to the supervision of the school library, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the middle school building principal is responsible for the supervision. Ms. Bell neither supervises the library nor conducts instruction while there. Rather, Ms. Bell performs clerical and custodian functions under her Board adopted Job Description.

Having so concluded, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Superior Court, Appellate Division, decision in Lippincott v. Board of Education of Watchung Hills Regional High School, supra. is dispositive here. There, the Appellate Division upheld the Commissioner and the State Board that, under a principal's certificate, the principal has the authority to develop and coordinate the educational media services of a school. That is precisely the situation here.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner, PEA, has failed to carry its burden of proof, by a preponderance of the reliable and credible evidence, that the Board was or is in any way in violation of N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.6 or any other statute or regulation with respect to its middle school library. I CONCLUDE that the Board's action is creating and filling the position of Librarian Aide was and is proper and in accordance with the law. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the herein Petition of Appeal should be dismissed.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the herein Petition of Appeal be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PENNSVILLE EDUCATION ASSOCIATION,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PENNSVILLE, SALEM COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner excepts to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) determination that an aide and a principal, who both lack an educational services certificate with an educational media services (EMS) endorsement, may legally run a library, particularly in light of his finding that Ms. Bell "coordinate[s] the library services" (Initial Decision at p. 28) and engages in the selection and removal of books. (Id.) Petitioner underscores that Ms. Bell is performing curatorial functions for the library, exercising considerable discretion in so doing (Petitioner's Exceptions at pp. 3-5), and is independently coordinating the use of library services on a day-to-day basis. (Id. at p. 5)

Petitioner also reasserts that Lippincott, supra, is distinguishable from the within matter, in that it dealt with questions of a principal's ability to supervise an educational media specialist and media center staff. Petitioner avers that the decision "does not stand for the proposition for which the Initial Decision cites it," (Id. at p. 7), that is, that educational media service functions may actually be performed by a principal or vice-principal without the requisite EMS endorsement. Finally, petitioner argues that the Initial Decision errs in concluding that the County Superintendent may approve a job description in plain contravention of regulations promulgated by the Department of Education. (Id.)

In response, the Board affirms that the Lippincott decision is dispositive of the matter herein, inasmuch as "the Appellate Division upheld the Commissioner and the State Board that under a principal's certification, the principal has the authority to develop and coordinate the educational media services of a school." (Board's Reply at p. 1) Moreover, the Board argues that petitioner has failed to prove by a preponderance of credible evidence that the educational media services in the middle school are performed illegally. The Board proposes that > [a]s the brief of Respondent suggested, even Mr. Blocksom on cross examination agreed that the job description's numbers one through four could be clerical.

> The principal or even a vice principal has the authority to develop and coordinate the educational media services program. (Id. at p. 2)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, and even accepting the ALJ's credibility assessments, the Commissioner determines to reverse the Initial Decision, for the reasons set forth below.[1] Initially, the Commissioner affirms that the Board is not compelled to employ the services of an individual with a standard educational services

[1] In so doing, the Commissioner specifically disavows the ALJ's reliance on the County Superintendent's apparent approval of the aide's position in this matter. By letter decision dated July 17, 1998, the County Superintendent was severed as a party in this matter, because, to the extent he was involved in the Board's decision to employ the aide, it was, ultimately, the Commissioner who would determine whether the issues raised in the petition were meritorious.

certificate and endorsement in EMS (N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.17) or an endorsement as an Associate EMS (N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.18) in order to operate its middle school media center. However, even assuming, arguendo, that the Lippincott decision stands for the proposition which the Board suggests, the Board may not, in devising an appropriate mechanism to deliver educational media services, and in allocating the functions attendant to that mechanism, assign duties which are professional in nature to a paraprofessional aide. By regulation, the purpose of a school or classroom aide is to assist "in the supervision of pupil activities under the direction of a principal, teacher or other designated certified professional personnel." N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.6. The Commissioner is persuaded by the record before him that petitioner has demonstrated by a preponderance of credible evidence that Ms. Bell is not performing as an aide to a properly certified professional, but is acting, instead, in a capacity which calls for independent initiative, (Glen Rock Education Association, Sarah Brown and N. Miles Leonard v. Glen Rock Board of Education, State Board of Education May 1, 1985, aff'd May 22, 1986, N.J. Superior Court, Appellate Division, A-4576-84T1), thereby effectively nullifying the Board's plan to develop and coordinate EMS services through its middle school principal, with the auxiliary services of an aide.

On its face, the duties enumerated in the Board's job description for the Librarian Aide, particularly duties one through four, are not those of an aide, as they describe independent professional functions and there is no indication that Ms. Bell is expected to assist a properly certified person who is ultimately responsible for developing and coordinating educational media services.[2]

[2] Distinguish, Rossi v. Board of Education of the Township of Willingboro, Agency Dkt. No. 294-8/78 (September 24, 1980), adopted Commissioner of Education November 7, 1980, aff'd August 5, 1981 (slip. op. at p. 6) where the job responsibilities of the Learning Resource Center aide provided that, under the supervision of a certified librarian and teachers, the aide's duties were: "1. To assist with processing books, supplies, materials,

The regulations found at N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.17 and 6:11-11.18 set forth the requirements for EMS and Associate EMS endorsements. The EMS endorsement >  is required for any person who is assigned to develop and coordinate educational media services in the public schools. Educational media are defined as all print and nonprint resources and the equipment needed for their use.  N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.17 > is required for any person assigned to perform the educational media services in the public schools under the supervision of a qualified supervisor. Educational media are defined as all print and nonprint resources and the equipment needed for their use.  N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.18.

In Glen Rock Education Association et al., supra, the local board therein employed a single, certified Library Media Manager who assumed responsibility for the management of both its junior and high school facilities, with the assistance of two noncertified employees, an Assistant to the Librarian and a Media Technician. In analyzing whether the services performed by the noncertified Assistant to the Librarian could be performed only by an individual certified as an EMS or an Associate EMS, the State Board directed:

> While the definition of educational media clearly applies to the library material with which the Assistant to the Librarian is involved, the relevant inquiry is whether she either is assigned to develop and coordinate educational media services or "performs educational media services ... under the supervision of a qualified supervisor. . .", here the Library Media Manager. Based on her job description and analysis of the duties she performs, the State Board concludes that the Assistant to the Librarian neither is assigned to develop and coordinate educational media services nor does she pe[illegible]ducational media services. magazines, journals, newspapers in the Resource Center. 2. To assist with preparation of displays to motivate student interest and to provide supplementary instructional information. 3. To assist in checking out and retrieving of materials. 4. To assist instructional staff with preparation of special bibliographies and reading lists. 5. To care for the housekeeping duties of the Resource Center. 6. To assist with roll taking. 7. To assist with general typing. 8. To assist with collecting and filing of free materials. 9. To assist with cataloguing and care of audio visual materials in the Resource Center. 10. To assist pupils with locating books and materials applicable to their individual needs."

According to her job description, , and the findings of fact set forth in the initial decision, the position in question requires that the Assistant to the Librarian assist the Library Media Manager in ordering, cataloguing, covering, displaying, lending and collecting books, in preparing the budget, and by suggesting needs for books and equipment.  The actual acquisition, organization, physical processing, classification and circulation of library materials and preparation of the budget is the responsibility of the Library Media Manager.  While the Assistant to the Librarian assists teaching staff members in locating and reserving library materials and in preparing bibliographies and reading lists, the ultimate responsibility for these tasks lies with the Library Media Manager.  The Assistant to the Librarian assists in creating exhibits and displays.  She organizes library materials, maintains the periodical and pamphlet collections for the senior high school library, supervises the circulation desk and maintains a schedule of library use for the senior high school library, although all library scheduling is the ultimate responsibility of the Library Media manager.  In addition to the tasks specifically enumerated in the job description, the Assistant to the Librarian also checks the books to ascertain balances in the book and periodical accounts.  While the Assistant to the Librarian may participate in discussions concerning reorganization, long and short term planning, and new programs or projects, any decisions in these areas are made exclusively by the Library Media manager. ***

The Assistant to the Librarian assists the Library Media Manager in the annual library orientation of ninth grade students by advising each class as to available materials, library hours and overdue policies.  However, the instructional component of the orientation -- teaching students research skills -- is the responsibility of the Library Media Manager.  In fact, when students are present, the senior high school library is never attended by the Assistant to the Librarian alone, without the presence of the Library Media Manager or a certified teacher.  Further, the Assistant to the Librarian has no responsibility for the instruction of pupils nor does she teach pupils.  Such instruction is the sole province of the Library Media Manager  whose ultimate responsibility is to formulate and implement library policy and to operate the library program in the junior and senior high school. ***

We find that in virtually every area in which she performs, the Assistant to the Librarian merely assists the Library Media Manager in the performance of her duties or performs tasks at the manager's direction. To borrow the language of the County > Superintendent, "there is nothing self-generating by way of initiative" involved in the position of Assistant to the Librarian.  Thus, both in theory and in practice, the Assistant to the Librarian does not perform educational media services, but merely aids in the delivery of such services. Since she merely aids in the delivery of educational media service, the Assistant to the Librarian clearly is not charged with the greater responsibility of developing media services. We conclude that a position such as this, which requires that the employee merely aids in the delivery of media services, does not require either an Educational Media Specialist Certificate or an Associate Educational Media Specialist Certificate. (emphasis added) (Glen Rock, supra, slip op. at pp. 4-7*)*

In the present matter, even looking beyond the four corners of the job description to the credible testimony adduced herein, there is little dispute about what Ms. Bell is actually doing; it is the characterization of her work that is in dispute. Moreover, the dispute arises within a context where crucial functions can, as recognized by all parties herein, legitimately involve both professional and clerical aspects. In examining the work performed by Ms. Bell, the Commissioner finds that, in each of the four central functions at issue in this matter, Ms. Bell is clearly performing at least some duties which cannot be considered clerical. With regard to instruction, it is clear that she is not acting merely as a study hall monitor, but is providing some minimal level of assistance to students; indeed, it is for this very reason that the Board required her to hold a county substitute certificate. With regard to selection and removal of materials, notwithstanding that she generally applies "rules of thumb" of unspecified origin rather than making case-by-case judgments, the fact remains that Ms. Bell is making the ultimate determinations in these critical curatorial processes; the record is devoid of even a claim that there is any meaningful review or oversight of her determinations. Finally, with regard to cataloging, it is clear that Ms. Bell retains the discretion, if a book is not pre-catalogued, to engage a cataloging service or dispose of the book by arranging for its use elsewhere, as in the collection of an individual classroom teacher. Thus, there is ample evidence to support the conclusion that Ms. Bell is, for all practical purposes, operating independently, undertaking self-generating tasks and performing educational media services which do not involve the genuine, consistent involvement of a properly certified individual, contrary to Glen Rock, supra.[3] Concomitantly, there is a dearth of evidence on the record to support the Board's contention that Ms. Bell is merely assisting the principal who is primarily responsible for developing and coordinating the educational media services.[4]

Finally, the Commissioner finds, as petitioner correctly observes, that notwithstanding her possession of a substitute certificate, Ms. Bell substitutes for no one. Contrary to the Board's urging, persons who hold substitute certificates are to be employed only in the manner prescribed by N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.5. The Board may not simply employ a paraprofessional holding a substitute certificate and then assign to her tasks which are reserved for professional staff.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is reversed, as set forth above. The Board is hereby directed to modify, within 90 days of the issuance of this decision, its job description for "Librarian Aide" to conform with applicable regulations, as well as the parameters of this decision. A copy of the revised job description shall be submitted to the county superintendent for review and approval in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.6. Additionally, the Board is directed to append to its proposed job description for the Librarian Aide the job description for the position of Principal which shall appropriately evidence that

[3] The Commissioner herein notes that, although the within record does not include transcripts of the hearing conducted at OAL, the Board does not rebut petitioner's summary of the testimony provided by Ms. Bell and Mr. Blocksom in its exceptions.

[4] Moreover, the Commissioner notes that to the extent the Board repeatedly attests that the aide's duties are, in fact, "clerical" in nature rather than plainly supportive of, and supplemental to, a certified professional, it invites an ambiguity in job assignment which may later give rise, inter alia, to a tenure claim. v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NEPTUNE, MONMOUTH COUNTY,

Respondent.

Michael B. Berman, Esq., for petitioner (Collins & Berman, attorneys)

James T. Hundley, Esq., for respondent (Hundley and Parry, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 28, 1999 Decided: July 28, 1999

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

In this matter, petitioner asserts that the Board of Education failed to pay her full salary without loss of sick time for an injury sustained in the course of employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. It should be noted that this matter was originally the subject of a petition of appeal filed on October 29, 1996, but that matter was withdrawn as settled by attorney for petitioner on October 30, 1996 (Exhibit A). However, by a letter dated November 7, 1997, attorney for petitioner indicated that respondent has failed and refused to fulfill its obligation under the terms of the settlement and requested that the matter be transmitted to the OAL. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 7, 1998, for hearing as a contested case.

The matter was assigned to the undersigned on January 26, 1998, and was scheduled for a telephone prehearing conference to be held on March 3, 1998. This telephone prehearing conference was adjourned at the request of attorney for petitioner due to a court conflict and was rescheduled to March 11, 1998. The telephone prehearing conference scheduled for March 11, 1998, was adjourned to March 12, 1998, and on March 12, 1998, a conference was held between the attorneys and the ALJ wherein it was indicated that the matter was likely to be settled. The telephone prehearing conference was continued to April 22, 1998, but this was adjourned at the request of attorney for respondent based on the possible settlement and because of his inability to be prepared to discuss the issues in the matter. The matter was rescheduled for telephone prehearing conference to be held on June 3, 1998. The telephone prehearing conference scheduled for June 3, 1998, was adjourned at the request of attorney for respondent due to his unavailability and was rescheduled for July 9, 1998. The telephone prehearing conference scheduled for July 9, 1998, was held and at that time the attorneys represented that the matter was settled and that the attorneys were to finalize the computations and would be sending a consent order within approximately thirty days.

Commencing on August 14, 1998, attempts to contact the attorneys in order to obtain the consent order were unsuccessful. This was followed by a letter from attorney for petitioner dated October 9, 1998 (Exhibit B) which indicates that respondent Board of Education has failed to effectuate a proposed settlement which attorney for petitioner believed had been agreed upon by counsel. The matter was then scheduled for telephone status conference to be held on October 20, 1998. Because of attorney for respondent's unavailability, the matter was rescheduled for a telephone conference to be held on October 27, 1998. Because of attorney for petitioner's illness and hospitalization, this conference was adjourned and on October 27, 1998, the undersigned ALJ directed a letter to counsel indicating that the representation of counsel was that this matter had been settled and that a motion to establish the terms of the settlement was expected to be received (Exhibit C).

By letter dated November 25, 1998, attorney for petitioner submitted an original and three copies of a proposed consent order (Exhibit D) which had been initially forwarded to attorney for respondent on June 4, 1998. The order was submitted under the five-day rule. It is noted that attorney for respondent filed no objection to nor any disagreement with the terms of the within consent order.

Based upon the record before me, I FIND that the attorneys represented to me that this matter had been settled between the parties subject only to the finalization of computations with respect to the salary to which petitioner was entitled. Based upon this undisputed representation, I FIND that this matter was, in fact, settled and that all that was necessary was to finalize the computations as previously indicated. I FIND that the consent order submitted in the within matter was submitted pursuant to New Jersey Court Rule 4:42-1(c) on notice to the attorney for respondent. I FIND that attorney for respondent has not objected or otherwise indicated his disagreement with the contents thereof. I FIND that the within consent order contains the computations necessary to finalize this matter. Accordingly, I FIND that this matter has been settled between the parties, and that the consent order embodies both the terms of the settlement as well as the necessary computations in order to effectuate the settlement. I therefore CONCLUDE that this matter is settled and ORDER that the parties comply with the terms of the consent order which is annexed hereto as Exhibit D.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Dear Judge Martone:

For reasons best known to the Neptune Township Board of Education, the Board has failed to effectuate a proposed settlement which I thought had been agreed upon by counsel. Therefore, I ask that this matter be restored to the active list of cases and be set for hearing on an expedited basis. There are several matters that have been consolidated or that are parallel matters and which can be heard simultaneously.

RE: BARBARA DODD v. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF TOWNSHIP OF NEPTUNE, MONMOUTH COUNTY; OAL DKT. NO. EDU 82-98

Dear Counsel:

On July 9, 1998, it was represented to me that the above-captioned matter had been settled between the parties, and that the only issue delaying the submission of a Consent Order was the making of certain computations. On this basis, further proceedings in this matter were adjourned and the Consent Order was being awaited.

On October 9, 1998, I received a letter from Mr. Berman indicating that the Neptune Township Board of Education has failed to effectuate a proposed settlement which he thought had been agreed upon by counsel. Mr. Berman requested that this matter be restored to the active list of cases and be set down for hearing on an expedited basis.

This is to advise counsel that if this matter has been settled and one party or the other is refusing to effectuate the terms of this settlement, I expect to receive a motion to establish the terms of the settlement within the next ten days.

Exhibit C.

New Jersey is an Equal Opportunity Employer

If, on the other hand, this matter was not settled, then I have serious concerns about the representations made to me by counsel. If this is the case I may be required to consider the imposition of sanctions because of the resulting delay in the hearing and resolution of this matter. I hope this is not the case and will eagerly await a motion to establish the terms of the settlement between the parties in order that I may issue an initial decision approving these terms.

Very truly yours,

Joseph F. Martone

CONSENT ORDER

Michael B. Berman, Esq., for the Petitioner (Collins & Berman, P.A., attorneys)

James T. Hundley, Esq., for the Respondent (Hundley & Parry, attorneys)

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, A.L.J.

This matter concerns the assertion of the petitioner, BARBARA DODD, that the Board of Education of the Township of Neptune, Monmouth County [Board] has failed to pay her full salary without the loss of sick time for the time she was absent due to an injury sustained arising out of and during the course of her employment. The petitioner requested a hearing, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on January 7, 1998, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14 B-1 to -13.

On April 22, 1998, I conducted a telephone status conference with the parties. During the conference, we discussed the entry of a Consent Order wherein the Board would be ordered to pay the petitioner the sum of $3,834.50 representing the pay on sick days and personal days for the school year 1996-1997 with a like amount for the 1997-1998 subject to the finalization of the 1997-1998 salary schedule between the Neptune Township Education Association and the Board. The parties agreed to such a Consent Order and agreed that the petitioner would prepare the Order and the Board, after appropriate review, note its approval and consent thereto.

Having reviewed the presentations made by the parties, I FIND that just cause exists for the entry of a Consent Order directing the Board to pay to the petitioner the sum of $3,834.50 for each of the school years 1996-1997 and 1997-1998 within ten (10) days of the entry of this Consent Order. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that a Consent Order be entered memorializing the agreement of the parties.

I hereby ORDER the Board to pay to the petitioner the sum of $7,699.00 within ten (10) days of the entry of this Consent Order representing the payment of $3,834.50 for the payment of unused sick days and personal days for the 1996-1997 and 1997-1998 school years, the 1997-1998 school year payment being subject to adjustment upon the finalization of the salary guide for that school year by the Neptune Township Education Association and the Board.

This Consent Order may be reviewed by the Commissioner of the Department of Education either upon interlocutory review, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10 or at the end of the contested case, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent challenged Board's residency determination.

At the OAL counsel for respondent Board advised the ALJ that K.G. and K.G. had moved to Laurel Springs, New Jersey, and the children were enrolled in that district. Receiving no response from his letter to petitioner requesting notification if she objected to dismissal of this matter, the ALJ concluded that the issues in the petition are moot and dismissed the matter with prejudice.

The Commissioner affirmed the initial decision of the OAL and dismissed the Petition of Appeal.

Record Closed: July 1, 1999 Decided: July 27, 1999

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter concerns the appeal of D.H. on behalf of her minor children, K.G. and K.G., (hereinafter petitioner) from the determination of the Board of Education of the Borough of Hi-Nella (hereinafter respondent) that the minor children were not entitled to attend the public schools in respondent's district free of charge pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. The petition of appeal was received by the Commissioner of Education on March 22, 1999. An answer was filed on behalf of respondent on April 15, 1999, and on April 27, 1999, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A hearing was scheduled for July 22, 1999 at the Trenton office of the Office of Administrative Law. Prior to that time, however, by letter dated June 4, 1999, counsel for respondent wrote to the undersigned with a copy to petitioner, as follows:

> Please be advised that I represent the Board of Education of the Borough of Hi-Nella. In that capacity, I was advised of the filing of this matter by the Board Secretary at the time when the Board itself had taken on itself the filing.
> In the meanwhile, the matter has become moot in that, the two children involved, K. G. and K. G., have been transferred and are now residing in Laurel Springs, attending the Laurel Springs Elementary School. In view of this, I believe it is pointless for the matter to continue
> I would appreciate confirmation inasmuch I am advising Ms. D. H. by copy of this letter.

By letter dated June 8, 1999, the undersigned replied to counsel for respondent with a copy to petitioner, as follows:

> Before I received your letter dated June 4, 1999, I had scheduled the hearing in the above-captioned matter for 9:00 a.m., July 22, 1999, at the Trenton office of the Office of Administrative Law. It appears from the enclosure in your letter that the family has moved to Laurel Springs, New Jersey, and the two children in question have been transferred out of respondent's district. I see no cross-petition in the file from the Board seeking tuition payments for any period of ineligible attendance, so I agree with you that the matter is moot. Unless I hear from Ms. H. in writing on or before July 1, 1999 that she disagrees, I will enter an order dismissing the case as moot and I will adjourn the July 22, 1999 hearing date.
> By copy of this letter I am advising Ms. H. to notify me in writing if she wishes to withdraw her request for a hearing; if she objects to dismissal, she should set forth her reasons in writing and forward to reach me by July 1, 1999.

The letter to petitioner has not been returned by the post office as undeliverable, and to date no response has been received from petitioner. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the issues raised in the petition of appeal are moot and this matter is therefore hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner challenged the State Board of Examiners' denial of his application for permanent certification as a teacher of skilled trades in New Jersey's public schools based on his conviction for felony murder for a homicide which occurred during the course of a robbery.

At the OAL respondent filed an application for summary decision which was unopposed by petitioner. The ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to sustain his burden of proving the Board abused its discretion in denying petitioner's application for a teaching certificate and granted respondent's application for summary decision.

The Commissioner agreed with the ALJ that summary decision is appropriately granted to respondent in this matter.

(John J. Farmer, Jr., attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: June 14, 1999 Decided: July 23, 1999

BEFORE MARIA MANCINI LA FIANDRA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner is challenging the denial of his application for permanent certification as a teacher of skilled trades in New Jersey's public schools, based on his conviction for homicide, by the State Board of Examiners.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case on June 24, 1996, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Initially, a hearing was scheduled for April 23, 1997. An adjournment was requested and granted. The matter was rescheduled for June 6, 1997 and subsequently adjourned once again. Petitioner requested and Respondent agreed to an Order placing the matter on the Inactive List. The Order was reviewed at the expiration of two six month periods as provided by N.J.A.C. 1:1-

The matter was scheduled for hearing on June 18, 1999.

Respondent filed a application for summary decision; once again, the hearing was adjourned to give the Petitioner an opportunity to respond. To date, no response has been received.[1]

Accordingly, I deem the application to be unopposed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I incorporate the following uncontroverted assertions of fact in Respondent's application for summary decision as factual determinations in this matter.

1. In 1992, Petitioner applied for and received a substandard teaching certificate, an emergency Skilled Trades/Carpentry license, to teacher the carpentry trade only in the Department of Corrections (Corrections). This license did not authorize him to teach in the public schools of New Jersey.

2. Corrections then enrolled him in the Provisional Teacher Program/Alternate Route as a Teacher of Skilled Trades/Carpentry.

[1] Respondent established a return date of June 14, 1999, in the moving papers.

3. At the completion of the professional component, Petitioner submitted his application for permanent certification. This certification would authorize him to teach in any public school in New Jersey.

4. On his application Petitioner advised, as he was required to do by statute, that he had been convicted of felony murder. He also provided additional information regarding the conviction requested by the Board for its review.

5. Petitioner had been convicted in 1973 for a homicide which occurred during the course of a robbery.

6. Petitioner received a life sentence, but was paroled in 1987.

7. By letter dated January 31, 1996, Ida Graham, the Board Secretary advised Petitioner that the State Board was denying his application for certification.

8. Petitioner then filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education challenging the denial.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

A contested matter before an ALJ may be disposed of by summary decision using the same standard applied in Superior Court for summary judgment. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Recently, the New Jersey Supreme Court adopted the federal standard of review which encourages "trial courts not to refrain from granting summary judgment when the proper circumstances present themselves." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 541 (1995). As a result of this ruling, the party opposing the motion for summary judgment must present a prima facie case in keeping with his burden of proof in order to thwart the motion. When, however, the evidence is so one sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law, summary judgment is appropriate. Id. at 540 (citation omitted).

In the instant case, the allegations contained in the pleadings are supported by documentary evidence and were disclosed by Petitioner on his application for a permanent certificate. Consequently, with respect to the basis for the denial, the facts are uncontroverted. Petitioner, as the party opposing this motion, had the obligation to present a prima facie case that the determination of the State Board was inappropriate.

It is well established that the standard of review in cases such as this, i.e., where the Board has denied an application for a teaching certificate, is whether the Board has properly exercised its discretion or acted in an arbitrary, capricious manner.

Accordingly, as the party opposing the application, Petitioner bore the burden of demonstrating that, in denying his application on account of a conviction for homicide, the Board abused its discretion. Petitioner has failed even to respond to the application for summary decision.

Consequently, I CONCLUDE that Petitioner has failed to sustain his burden of proving the Board abused its discretion. The Board, on the other hand, has presented a reasonable basis for its determination, its concern with the protection of children in school as well as the acknowledgment that a higher standard of conduct is expected from teachers, who are in a unique position in our society. Accordingly, I further CONCLUDE that summary decision is appropriate.[2]

ORDER

It is, therefore, hereby ORDERED that the application for summary decision be and hereby is GRANTED. It is further ORDERED that the determination of Respondent be and hereby is AFFIRMED; it is further ORDERED that this petition be and hereby is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

[2] It should be noted that, subsequent to the filing of this petition, the controlling statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, was amended to bar anyone with a conviction for homicide from employment in the public schools of New Jersey. L. 1998, c 153, June 30, 1998.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

1999 JUL 29 A 10:47

This Stipulation of Settlement is between John O'Neill ("Petitioner"), the Cherry Hill Board of Education ("Respondent") and Michael Callaghan ("Intervenor Callaghan") (Petitioner Respondent and Intervenor Callaghan are referred to jointly as "the Parties" and sometimes severally as a "Party").

WHEREAS, on November 12, 1998, Petitioner filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") in the above-captioned matter alleging that Respondent's retention and assignment of less senior teachers in positions for which Petitioner possesses the necessary certification and experience violated Petitioner's tenure and seniority rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:5-1 et seq.;

WHEREAS, on or about November 30, 1998, Respondent filed an Answer July 30, 1998, denying the material allegations of the Petition and setting forth affirmative defenses;

WHEREAS, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") and assigned to Administrative Law Judge Bruce R. Campbell for hearing, discovery was conducted and concluded and the matter scheduled for hearing on June 9 and 10, 1999;

WHEREAS, Petitioner identified Caryn Lipkowitz ("Lipkowitz") and Intervenor Callaghan as teaching staff members whose employment could have been adversely affected by the Petition if successful. Lipkowitz and Intervenor Callaghan were duly noticed of the pendir litigation and Intervenor Callaghan alone moved to intervene, which motion was unopposed and remains pending;

WHEREAS, neither Respondent nor Intervenor Callaghan admits that any violation of Petitioner's tenure and seniority rights occurred;

WHEREAS, the Parties having agreed to a means of resolving this dispute in a manner consonant with the public interest; and

WHEREAS the Parties have entered into this stipulation with a full understanding of their rights, recognizing that this stipulation and their agreement is subject to the review and approval of the Commissioner;

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises set forth below, the parties stipulate and agree as follows:

1. The above recitals are repeated and made a part of this Stipulation.

2. Petitioner, for and in consideration of the undertakings of Respondent set forth in Paragraph 4 herein, and intending to be legally bound, does hereby remise, release and forever discharge Respondent and its officers, members (in their official and individual capacities), employees and agents, its and their respective successors and assigns, heirs, executors and administrators, of and from any and all manner of actions and causes of actions, suits, debts, claims and demands whatsoever in law or in equity, which he ever had, now has, or hereafter may have, or which his heirs, executors or administrators hereafter may have by reason of any matter, cause or thing whatsoever, from the beginning of his employment with Respondent to the date of these presents, and particularly, but without limitation, of the foregoing general terms, any claims arising from or relating in any way to his employment relationship and/or the termination of his employment relationship and/or affiliation with Respondent, including but not limited to, any claims which have been asserted or could have been asserted or could be asserted now or in the future under any and all federal, state or local laws and any common law claims now or hereafter recognized, and any and all claims arising out of his employment with Respondent, with the following exceptions: claims arising under the Worker's Compensation Act, N.J.S.A. 34:15-1 et seq., the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:66-1 et seq. and pension claims arising out of any 403(b) or other pension, retirement or annuity plan. Petitioner represents that as of the date of the execution of this Stipulation there are no such claims pending or presently contemplated.

3. Respondent, for and in consideration of the undertakings of Petitioner set forth herein, and intending to be legally bound does hereby remise, release and forever discharge Petitioner and his heirs, executors and administrators, of and from any and all manner of actions and causes of actions, suits, debts, claims and demands whatsoever in law or in equity, which it ever had, now has, or hereafter may have, or which its officers, members, employees and/or agents, its and their respective successors and assigns, heirs, executors or administrators hereafter may have by reason of any matter, cause or thing whatsoever, from the beginning of his employment with Respondent to the date of these presents, and particularly, but without limitation, of the foregoing general terms, any claims arising from or relating in any way to his employment relationship and/or the termination of his employment relationship and/or affiliation with Respondent, including but not limited to, any claims which have been asserted or could have been asserted or could be asserted now or in the future under any and all federal, state or local laws and any common law claims now or hereafter recognized, and any and all claims arising out of his employment with Respondent.

4. Subject to Respondent's making full and final payment as set forth in Paragraph 5 below, Petitioner agrees that: (a) he shall no longer be employed by Respondent as of July 1, 1999, and (b) that his signature on this Stipulation constitutes his resignation and an acknowledgement that he is relinquishing all present and future rights to employment and reemployment wit Respondent as of that date, including but not limited to any preferred eligible recall rights or any seniority, tenure or recall claims as to the positions currently held by Intervenor Callaghan and Lipkowitz.

5. (a) Respondent agrees to pay Petitioner $60,000.00 in full, final and complete settlement of Petitioner's claims in this matter. Respondent will pay the settlement proceeds to Petitioner in two payments of $30,000 each. The first payment is due on September 1, 1999 or within 10 days of the Commissioner's adoption of the OAL's Initial Decision approving settlement, in the event that the Commissioner's adoption of same does not take place before August 20, 1999. The second payment is due on September 1, 2000. Respondent will make these payments less ordinary and customary payroll deductions. Respondent will not deduct union dues or agency fees, premiums for health, medical or other insurance or pension contributions from the settlement proceeds. Petitioner represents that he has paid dues and pension contributions for the 1998-99 school year as an employee of the Florence Township Board of Education. Attached hereto as Exhibit A is a letter from the NJEA indicating that the NJEA and its affiliates release any claim to the deduction and payment of dues from the payments as provided in this paragraph. Petitioner agrees to indemnify and hold Respondent harmless from any claim by the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund that any pension contributions are due and owing c account of the payments as provided in this paragraph. Subject to the specific exceptions noted in paragraph 2 above, Petitioner waives any claims to any payments that might be due to him from Respondent. In the event of Mr. O'Neill's untimely death, payment shall be made to his estate.

(b) Respondent also agrees to provide Petitioner with a letter verifying his service as an employee of Respondent's, which shall include such information as the period of Petitioner's employment by Respondent, his salary history, positions held, and date of his resignation.

6. The Parties agree that they and their officers, agents, and administrators will be bound by a covenant of good faith and fair dealing with respect to performance under this Stipulation.

7. The Parties agree to waive exceptions.

8. The Parties agree that this document constitutes their full understanding. It is agreed that there are no other understandings or agreements (either written or oral) which would have any impact upon the present action.

9. By signing this Stipulation, the Parties certify that they have had the opportunity to discuss this Stipulation with counsel. They are fully satisfied with the services of their counsel with respect to both this Stipulation and all other aspects of this case and they enter into this Stipulation knowingly, willingly and without any coercion or improper inducements.

10. The Parties further agree that this Stipulation is contingent upon approval by the OAL and the Commissioner. No Party will take any legal action whatsoever that is inconsistent with this Stipulation before the OAL or any other forum.

11. By signing this Stipulation, each signatory represents that she or he is a Party or has been duly authorized by a Party to sign on that Party's behalf. A copy of the minutes reflecting action taken by Respondent at a duly-noticed meeting, held in accordance with law, ratifying this Stipulation is annexed hereto as Exhibit B.

12. The Parties agree that this Stipulation may be signed in counterparts and that facsimiles of signatures will have the sar force and effect as original signatures.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 3738-98
AGENCY DKT. NO. 65-3/98

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF MARY TYSON,	:
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) in the form of a Voluntary Settlement Agreement, Waiver and Release have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner is compelled to reject the agreement as it is currently structured since he cannot be satisfied by the present record that the proposed settlement meets the Cardonick standards for settlement of tenure matters.[1] (In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846.)

It is well established that, having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, the Board may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges can no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue them. (In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenneth Smith, School District of the City of Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner March 22, 1982, decision on

[1] The Commissioner notes that although the within matter was apparently consolidated with the matter entitled Mary Tyson v. State-operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, OAL Dkt. No. 11500-96, Agency Dkt. No. 409-11/97, the matter bearing the OAL Dkt. No. 11500-97 has been withdrawn, notwithstanding remand June 16, 1983, aff'd with modification by the State Board of Education November 2, 1983, aff'd Superior Court January 30, 1986.) Not only is such an explanation absent from the agreement itself, but the record contains no copies of the tenure charges which were initially certified to the Commissioner, and, further, indicates that such charges were based upon allegations of physical abuse.[2] Based on the record before him, together with the terms of the agreement, the Commissioner cannot be assured that a settlement in this matter is in the public's interest.

Accordingly, the proposed settlement is rejected for the reasons expressed herein. While the Commissioner does not preclude the possibility of settlement in this matter, he stresses that in order for him to meet his own obligation to the schools and children of this State, he must be assured that any settlement is consistent with appropriate standards for setting aside tenure matters as expressed in Cardonick, supra. The Commissioner, therefore, remands this matter to the OAL for such further proceedings as are necessary to address the concerns set forth herein. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to a hearing on the merits.[3] that the within agreement suggests that the withdrawal would take place upon execution of the settlement. Accordingly, these matters are no longer considered consolidated.

[2] The record of this matter includes a Motion to Intervene filed by the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS) on February 5, 1999. As the record does not indicate the disposition of such motion, the Commissioner directs that, on remand, as set forth below, this motion either be reflected in the record as granted or denied, or decided as a threshold matter, prior to any further proceedings on settlement or hearing.

[3] This decision may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

BEFORE KATHRYN A. CLARK, ALJ:

This matter arises on a motion for emergent relief. It was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing and determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, on June 22, 1999. A hearing was held on June 25, 1999. During the hearing, the parties agreed to pursue avenues for settlement or a mutually acceptable resolution of their dispute.

In a letter, dated June 29, 1999 from counsel to petitioner petitioner agreed to the conferences to resolve this matter so that S.K. may return to school in September, 1999. Petitioner's counsel asked for time to check with S.K.'s mother, who was not present at the hearing.

Upon checking with the mother, H.K., consent to the conferences and also to the dismissal of the petition was given.

Both parties have indicated that they agree to a dismissal with prejudice. This bench does not think it necessary to dismiss with prejudice, so a DISMISSAL is GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on July 7, 1997, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was conducted on June 4, 1998, at which time the following were identified as the issues for determination at hearing:

1. Do petitioner's tenure/seniority rights entitle her to the position Teacher-Librarian clerk for 1997-98 school year?

2. If the answer to the previous question is yes, what are the appropriate remedies?

The hearing was scheduled for October 15, 1998, at the Trenton office of the Office of Administrative Law. That date was adjourned and rescheduled a number of times at the request of one or the other party. On March 24, 1999, the last rescheduled date for the hearing, prior to commencement of testimony, the parties advised that they had reached a settlement agreement. Thereafter they prepared a written settlement agreement which was received by the undersigned on August 4, 1999, whereupon the record closed.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The parties to the within matter hereby agree to settle and resolve the claims which were asserted by petitioner in the Petition of Appeal with the above docket number, based upon the following terms:

1. The parties recognize that petitioner filed a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education which asserts that the termination of her employment at the end of the 1996-97 school year and retention and/or employment of other teaching staff members violated petitioner's tenure and seniority rights.

2. The parties recognize that this agreement resolves petitioner's claim for a remedy for the alleged violation of her rights, and that the acceptance and implementation of all of the terms of this agreement shall result in the termination of an rights that petitioner may have or have had to reinstatement or re-employment with respondent, whether based upon tenure, seniority, or otherwise, and that the termination of petitioner's tenure and seniority rights and of any other re-employment rights is contingent upon the approval of this agreement in its entirety by the Commissioner of Education, the effectuation of all of its terms by respondent, and its acceptance and implementation by the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund.

3. The parties agree that this settlement agreement shall not apply to any claims which are based upon facts not presently known to petitioner. Nor shall it apply to any claims based upon any facts which may arise or occur after the date that petitioner signs this agreement. The parties also agree that any such claim are neither waived nor abandoned by this agreement, and this agreement shall only extinguish those claims which petitioner is aware of as of the date of signing this agreement.

4. The parties agree that this settlement agreement must be approved by the Commissioner of Education, and that if the Commissioner of Education rejects any provision of this settlement agreement, if respondent does not fully implement the terms of this agreement, or if the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund does not accept and implement this agreement, all provisions of this agreement shall be deemed null, void, and of no effect, and that the Petition of Appeal, in its entirety, shall be deemed active and shall be remanded to the Administrative Law Judge and the Commissioner of Education for proceedings as a contested case, and that in such event, the parties shall retain all legal rights that they had prior to their entering into this agreement.

5. The parties recognize that during the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years, petitioner was employed as a teaching staff member by the Lebanon Board of Education and had substantial earnings which mitigated her losses, and that such mitigation must be taken into account together with unemployment benefits received in determining the backpay and benefits that the petitioner shall receive. Accordingly, the parties agree that respondent shall pay to petitioner, as back pay, after consideration of mitigation, the sum of $30.000.00 for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years, subject to usual and customary deductions. The parties specifically agree and recognize that these payments constitute back pay minus mitigation and are paid as full compensation after deduction for mitigation for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years, which sum, together with petitioner's other earnings and unemployment benefits, is substantially the amount petitioner would have earned if employed by the respondent for those school years.

6. Because respondent did not budget for such additional expenditures, the parties agree that the payment shall be made in equal installments, each in the sum of $10,000.00. The first payment shall be due within 30 days of the Commissioner's approval of the settlement agreement. The second payment shall be due on or before January 20, 2000. The third payment shall be due on or before January 20, 2001.

7. The parties agree that petitioner shall receive pension credit for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years as if she had been employed on a full time basis by respondent. The parties recognize that petitioner has already received partial pension credit as a result of her employment with the Lebanon Board of Education. To provide the additional pension credit required by this agreement, respondent shall deduct from petitioner's backpay the additional employee's share of contributions on those portions of the full salaries that petitioner would have earned for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years if employed by respondent (which was not previously remitted to the Division of Pensions) and shall remit those contributions to the Teachers Pension and Annuity Fund. Respondent shall also inform the Division of Pensions o the basis for the deductions, i.e., that said deductions are the additional deductions due based upon the salary petitioner would have earned as if employed full-time by respondent for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years, but that pension contributions have already been paid on the portion of salaries for those years, so that the additional pension contributions should be taken only on the amount necessary to result in pension credit being provided for the salaries petitioner would have earned if employed full-time for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school year.

8. Respondent shall request that the Division of Pensions contribute the employer's share of petitioner's pension contributions for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years, but if required by the Division of Pensions, respondent shall pay the employer's share of additional pension contributions for petitioner's pension credit for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years.

9. The parties agree that if the Division of Pensions refuses to grant or recognize the pension credit required by this agreement, this settlement shall be null and void, petitioner shall not be deemed to have waived, abandoned, or surrendered any tenure, seniority, or other re-employment rights, and petitioner's case shall be returned to active status for determination by the Office of Administrative Law.

10. This agreement constitutes the entire understanding of the parties and may not be altered, amended, modified or otherwise changed except by an instrument in writing executed by the parties.

The record, Settlement Agreement and Stipulation of Settlement, and initial decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner is compelled to remand the settlement agreement to the OAL. On its face, the agreement is expressly contingent upon the Division of Pensions and Benefits' recognition of additional pension credit to be attributed to petitioner for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years, as if she had been employed full time by the Board for those years. The agreement provides that:

> if the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund does not accept and implement this agreement, all provision of this agreement shall be deemed null, void, and of no effect, and  the Petition of Appeal, in its entirety, shall be deemed active . (Settlement Agreement and Stipulation of Settlement at paragraph 4, page 2)

The Commissioner recognizes that any settlement agreement effectuated by parties to a dispute shall, upon his approval, be deemed a final decision. N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1(d).

Therefore, although he does not find objectionable the terms of the agreement which are within his jurisdiction, the Commissioner cannot sanction a settlement which is clearly contingent upon the satisfaction of conditions by another agency, namely the Department of Treasury, Division of Pensions and Benefits, and which further provides that if such conditions are not met, the agreement shall be deemed null and void, thereby reactivating the within matter.

Accordingly, the within settlement is rejected. The Commissioner directs that this matter be remanded to the OAL and held in abeyance, pending review by the Division of Pensions and Benefits of the parties' proposal to credit petitioner with additional pension contributions. If the parties obtain the necessary endorsement from the Division of Pensions and Benefits, the within agreement may be modified to so reflect that approval, and may be resubmitted to the Commissioner for review. If, however, the parties cannot obtain from the Division of Pensions and Benefits the cooperation they seek, and they are unable to agree on revised settlement terms, this matter shall proceed to a determination on petitioner's claims.*

The record and notice of withdrawal transmitted to the Commissioner by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.2 have been reviewed.[1] The Assistant Commissioner, to whom this responsibility has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34c, is unable to approve the withdrawal because it is predicated upon the Commissioner's approval of the proposed settlement in a tenure hearing matter pending against petitioner.[2] The proposed settlement in the tenure matter was rejected by the Commissioner on September 17, 1999 and remanded to the OAL. Consequently, the instant matter is also remanded to the OAL until such time as it is withdrawn upon the Commissioner's approval of a settlement in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Tyson, supra, or for further proceedings, should an approved settlement not be reached in that matter.[3]

Record Closed: September 9, 1999 Decided: September 10, 1999

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner, a non-tenured teacher released in 1999, challenged the Atlantic City Board of Education's (Board) determination not to offer him a contract for the school year 1999/2000. He moved for emergent relief on the grounds that he required chemotherapy and the loss of his job meant the loss of his benefits. He alleged he could not afford the Cobra Plan. The Board denied it was responsible for petitioner's medical benefits.

The petitioner requested emergent relief pursuant to N.J.A.R. 1:1-2.6. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to the Administrative Procedures Act N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, and the act creating the OAL N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

THE RELIEF REQUESTED

At the emergent hearing the Board was not prepared to file an Answer because the petitioner's motion took a shotgun approach requesting everything from medical relief to Orders sanctioning the Board for discrimination against students, to investigation of teachers and Board members.

At the hearing the petitioner was asked what was the primary basis of his motion. Petitioner replied that medical benefits were his primary interest. He alleged that he was entitled to re-employment and therefore benefits because he was not evaluated pursuant to Rule (N.J.A.R. 6:3-4.1).

Unfortunately, petitioner had no medical records to establish that he had cancer or was required to be treated with chemotherapy. It was also unclear from his remarks whether he had filed his request in a timely manner.

Because successful applications for emergent relief require at minimum a finding of irreparable harm and be based on the likelihood that the moving party will prevail, this application cannot succeed because the proofs are deficient in both regards. N.J.A.R. 1:1-12.6.

I hereby DENY the motion for emergent relief.

I FURTHER ORDER the parties to file affidavits reciting the history of this matter with briefs. The Board has ten days to file its Answer, Affidavit and Brief and the petitioner has five days from receipt of the Board's Answer , Affidavit and Brief to respond.

At that time determination shall be made on the merits of the matter, if possible, or a plenary hearing will be ordered.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE HOPEWELL VALLEY REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent sought order from the Commissioner requiring the Board to permit her children, C.B. and E.B., to continue to attend the Board's public schools free of charge even though her lease on a house in the District had expired and she was evicted, effective February 1, 1998, was homeless and living in a motel in February, and, in March, was allegedly forced to return to the house she owned in Montgomery Township. Petitioner requested an exemption to Board Policy No. 5100 – Enrollment Admission and Eligibility for Free Public Education, which required payment of tuition when domiciliary residence in the District is lost. Board sought payment of tuition for periods of ineligible attendance, the months of April, May and June 1998.

ALJ found that domicile has two elements, both of which are required in order to establish a legal entitlement: a physical residence and the intent to remain there. ALJ found that after petitioner left the Hopewell/Pennington area, she never signed a contract to lease, buy, etc., any residence in the District and, accordingly, her children never qualified to attend free of charge as future residents. Also, the fact that other districts may have a different policy concerning free tuition for students whose parents moved out of the district during the school year, does not make the Board's policy arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Commissioner may not substitute his judgment for the Board's. Thus, neither of petitioner's children had a right to attend the District's schools free of charge. ALJ ordered petitioner to reimburse the Board for the period of ineligible attendance in accordance with tuition rates calculated pursuant to the formula established by the New Jersey Department of Education for a total of $5,160.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter commenced on May 4, 1998, when the J.B., mother of minor children C.B. and E.B., (hereinafter petitioner) filed a petition of appeal seeking an order from the

* Extensions of time for issuing the initial decision were requested and granted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

Commissioner of Education requiring the Board of Education of the Hopewell Valley Regional School District (hereinafter respondent) to permit C.B. and E.B. to continue to attend the public schools in respondent's district free of charge. An answer and counter-claim seeking an order requiring petitioner to pay tuition for periods of ineligible attendance were filed on behalf of respondent on May 14, 1998 and on May 27, 1998, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was conducted on July 23, 1998, at which time the following were identified as the issues for determination at hearing:

1. Are C.B. and E.B. entitled to attend the schools in respondent's district free of charge pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, 18A:38-3 or otherwise?

2. If the answer to question number one is no, what is the amount of tuition payments owed by petitioner to respondent for the time of the students' ineligible attendance?

The hearing was scheduled for September 11, 1998 at the Trenton office of the Office of Administrative Law. On August 10, 1998 respondent filed a motion for summary decision together with supporting papers, including a certification of John Nemeth, Business Administrator and Board Secretary for respondent. The hearing date was adjourned at petitioner's request in order to permit additional time for her to prepare responding papers since at the time she was representing herself in this matter. In addition, both children had been enrolled in September 1998, in the Montgomery Township public schools, and accordingly, the issue in the within matter had become a question of what tuition payments, if any, were owed by petitioner to respondent. On November 12, 1998, petitioner filed responding papers to the motion for summary decision and her own cross-motion for an order granting her children a tuition-free education in respondent's district. Respondent filed a reply and a response to petitioner's cross-motion on November 17, 1998, and petitioner filed a reply on November 24, 1998. By letter order entered January 7, 1999, the undersigned granted respondent's motion in part and scheduled a hearing to receive evidence on the limited issues articulated in the letter order. The January 7, 1999 letter order is attached hereto and made a part hereof as if set forth herein at length. Thereafter, petitioner sought interlocutory review of the January 7, 1999 letter order and on February 4, 1999, Leo Klagholz, then the Commissioner of Education, issued an order reversing the January 7, 1999 order and remanding the matter for a plenary hearing. Commissioner Klagholz's February 4, 1999 order is also attached hereto. On February 26, 1999, I issued another order indicating the issues which would be addressed with testimony and/or admissible documentary evidence on March 12, 1999:

1) What educational services, if any, did respondent provide to petitioner's older child between April 1 and June 30, 1982;

2) What period of time did petitioner and her children live in a motel or hotel and where was the motel or hotel located;

3) Did petitioner ever qualify during the time period here in issue as "homeless" under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(f) and N.J.A.C. 6:3-8.1 to 8.10; if so when and for how long; and

4) Does petitioner intend to return to Pennington/Hopewell and if so, does that intent establish her as a domiciliary of the district entitling her children to a free appropriate education at respondent's expense notwithstanding the fact that she currently resides in Montgomery.

Prior to the scheduled hearing date petitioner retained the services of counsel as indicated hereinabove and the hearing date was adjourned to April 6, 1999 in order to permit counsel time to become familiar with the case. The hearing was conducted on April 6, 1999, at the Trenton office of the Office of Administrative Law, whereupon the record closed.

Most of the facts relevant to a determination of this matter are not in dispute; they appear as uncontested facts from the verified petition of appeal, certifications submitted in support of the motion for summary decision and testimony on the record on April 6, 1999. Accordingly, I FIND the following as uncontested facts.

Commencing in 1985, petitioner and her family resided at 28 M. Avenue, Belle Mead, New Jersey. Sometime after petitioner and her husband were divorced in 1993, petitioner left the home in Montgomery in order to rent it out, and she moved with her two sons to a rental property in Hopewell. The children attended elementary school in the Hopewell Valley Regional School District and during the 1997-98 school year the older boy attended the middle school in the district. In early 1998, the house petitioner was renting in Hopewell was sold by the owner. Petitioner's lease on that house had expired, and she was evicted, effective February 1, 1998. Petitioner searched for alternative housing in the Hopewell/Pennington area, but her efforts were unsuccessful. Although she did not wish to return to the house which she owned in Montgomery Township, when she was unsuccessful in finding housing in respondent's district, she notified her tenants in Montgomery that she required the use of the property herself and requested that they vacate the premises prior to the expiration of their lease in September 1998.

There are conflicting statements in the record concerning when exactly petitioner's tenants vacated the house at 28 M. Avenue. In her March 8, 1998 letter to the members of the Hopewell Valley Regional School Board (attached to the verified petition of appeal), petitioner wrote:

> The home in Belle Mead was our home since 1985. After the divorce in 1993, I left the home in Montgomery to rent it, in order to save it from foreclosure and this year, the sale of the home was to commence April 1, 1998, but the renters occupying the property moved out March 1, forcing my family and me to return to Montgomery, once again, or face foreclosure. The costs involved in two moves, costs of care for my children in a temporary setting in Hopewell, and yet a third move to come, have been prohibitive, and all this stress while maintaining a new position, and raising two children, has cost me in my own set of physical problems.
> Our mandatory force out of Hopewell/Pennington, the existing home in Belle Mead, the termination of a lease prematurely by my > tenants have all contributed to an involuntary situation that was not mine to make. If it were my choosing, the home in Belle Mead Montgomery would have been sold while I remained in the home in Hopewell until I could sell it and buy a home in Pennington. Apart from the force out of the home in Hopewell and the desire to return to our neighborhood in Pennington, I now turn to the "best interests of the children" scenario and perhaps the most important issue of all. . . .

A letter from petitioner's tenants, Drs. Gheuens and Snoeks, dated February 15, 1998, which was marked into evidence as exhibit P-2 at the hearing, reads:

Dear Ms. B.:

> We have received your letter in which you inform us that you want to prematurely terminate the rental lease which ends on August 31, 1998.
> We can commit to vacate the house by March 31, 1998.
> We hope this will accommodate your needs so that we can solve this problem in mutual agreement.

A note (R-2 in evidence) which was given to C's classroom teacher at the middle school sometime before April 1998 states:

> Regarding the B. family (E. and C.)
> Our new numbers as of Monday March 2, 1998 will be > Home: 908 904 ----
> Work: 609 987 ---- (Princeton)
> Cellular: will keep on in car on weekends for emergencies is:
> 609 558 ----
> Our new address based on a force move out of our Hopewell home will be:
> 28 M. Ave.
> Belle Mead,
> New Jersey
> 08502
> If I remain in this home, I want the children regardless of our years there, to remain at the Hopewell schools. This is for consistency which is important for > their welfare at this time. If I relocate a distance and for a job, then there I have no choice but to take them out of the school system but I want them to remain constant in a very significant area while so much is going on around them that never ceases to be dynamic.

The parties stipulated at the commencement of the April 6, 1999 hearing that petitioner and her sons resided at the Stage Depot Motel, which is located in Pennington, within respondent's school district, from February 1, 1998 to March 2, 1998. Petitioner testified that they did not move into the home at 28 M. Avenue in Belle Mead until the very end of March 1998 or the beginning of April 1998. She testified that from the time she was forced by the manager of the Stage Depot Motel to remove her family and her possessions at the beginning of March, she did not remember exactly where she stayed during the month of March, perhaps with one friend or another and possibly even in her car for periods of time. Commencing April 1, 1998, however, and continuing to date, she and the boys resided at 28 M. Avenue, Belle Mead, New Jersey. In any event, the cross-petition filed by respondent seeks tuition only for the months of April, May and June 1998, so it really does not matter for purposes of the within action where petitioner resided during March 1998.

During March 1998, petitioner appeared before respondent's Board of Education and requested an exemption to Board Policy Number 5100-Enrollment Admission and Eligibility for Free Public Education. That policy provides in pertinent part:

> b. Eligibility of Former Residents
>
> Regularly enrolled students whose parents or legal guardians move out of the school district may be permitted to complete their schooling in the Hopewell Valley Regional Schools with payment of tuition, which payment shall commence upon the date domiciliary residence in the district is lost.
> Students who are required to relocate outside the district as a result of a call to active duty of a parent member of the National Guard of New Jersey or of a reserve unit of the United States Armed Forces > in time of war or National Emergency shall be eligible to continue as a student in the district on a tuition free basis until the end of the current school year following the return of the military parent, although the district in such situation shall not be obligated for transportation costs.

> No former resident will be required to pay tuition for any period during which he/she pays school taxes on his/her unoccupied former residence.

Respondent declined petitioner's request for an exemption to the policy and formally advised petitioner of its determination by letter dated April 2, 1998. The within matter followed.

Petitioner's older child, who was not well during the last few months of school, was ultimately diagnosed with neurologic Lyme Disease. The parties stipulate that he was in attendance at school in respondent's district as follows:

15 days in April 1998

15 days in May 1998

2 days in June 1998.

This concludes the recitation of the uncontested facts.

At the hearing in the within matter, petitioner testified that commencing with her eviction from her house in Hopewell in February 1998, it was her intention to remain in the Hopewell/Pennington area. She testified that it was important to her to have her children remain in the school system for their emotional health and for consistency of learning, especially since their lives outside of school were in such a state of disruption, with the eviction, the move to the motel, the move to Montgomery, etc. She testified that the family maintains strong ties to Pennington/Hopewell: both her sons were in Pennington Cub Scouts and Boy Scout troops; they attended St. James Church on Sunday in Pennington and St. Alfonsus in Hopewell. Both boys played in the Hopewell Valley Baseball Association League. In an effort to find another rental property, petitioner looked in the local newspapers and consulted real estate agents; she consulted friends and made every effort to find housing in Hopewell or Pennington, she testified. At the same time she was trying to sell her residence in Montgomery so that she would then be able to purchase a home in Pennington or Hopewell. She testified that in April when she moved in she put a for-sale-by-owner sign on the Montgomery house and advertised the house for sale in the local newspaper. Most of the family's belongings remained in boxes in the garage. Only the bare necessities were moved into the Belle Mead house, she testified, because they hoped to sell the house soon and move back to Pennington/Hopewell. Starting in June 1998, she listed the house for sale with a real estate broker. The listing shows an asking price of $429,000 for the five-bedroom house. Sometime after September 1998, after she had enrolled her children in the Montgomery Township schools, it ceased to be her intention to return the children to respondent's school district, in part because of the animosity she felt the within action was generating. She also testified that the boys were adjusting to the schools in Montgomery and were making new friends.

Based upon petitioner's testimony, I FIND that it was her intention, at least until September 1998, to return to Pennington/Hopewell as soon as she could find an affordable property to lease or purchase in the district.

EXPERT'S OPINION

Connie Mercer Myers, the Executive Director of Home Front, an organization which works with homeless families in Mercer County and which Ms. Mercer founded nine years ago, testified on petitioner's behalf as an expert in the area of homelessness. Ms. Mercer testified that although her organization does not use a formal legal definition of homelessness, in general, someone is considered to be homeless if they are without a fixed, regular and adequate night-time shelter. Ms. Mercer testified that in her opinion petitioner and her family were homeless for a period of time after they were evicted from their home in Hopewell in February 1998. It was also Ms. Mercer's opinion that petitioner's children should have continued attendance at school in respondent's district, the district of their last residence, during the time period when they were homeless. Ms. Mercer specifically testified that she was not offering any opinion about any time period after petitioner had moved into her house in Belle Mead. She testified that if petitioner had said to her on April 15, 1998, "I'm homeless," "I would say no you're not." She repeated that if petitioner and her children were currently homeless at the times in question, her recommendation would have been for the children to remain in the district where they had been attending school. She acknowledged that her recommendations were not binding on anybody and that her organization has no legal authority. Finally, she offered that it was her understanding of the policies of the Lawrence Township Public Schools, the Washington Township Public Schools and the West Windsor Public Schools that if a student moved out of the district after February 1 of a school year, they were permitted to remain for the rest of the year.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, the statute relevant to a determination of this matter, provides in pertinent part, as follows:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under 20 years of age:
>
> a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district.
>
> f. Any person whose parent or guardian moves from one school district to another school district as a result of being homeless and whose district of residence is determined pursuant to section 19 of P.L. 1979, c.207 (C. 18A:7B-12).

The concept of "domicile" was discussed at length in an Appellate Division opinion in Matter of Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374-376 (App. Div. 1991):

> "In a strict legal sense, the domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving." . . . This identification of domicile with the concept of home continues to have vitality in New > Jersey. . . . "Home is the place where a person dwells and which is the center of his domestic, social and civil life." . . . In that case[Citizens Bank & Trust Co. v. Glaser, 70 N.J. at 81], the court stated that "the overwhelming proportion of the indicia as to what the decedent regarded as her real, principal and permanent home . . . as well as the central fulcrum of her life must here be found to converage . . ." in that location found to be her domicile. . . . Thus, the concepts of home and domicile mean more than physical residence. They also embody the subject's objective and subjective relationship to that residence.

> A person may establish a domicile in one place and then acquire a second residence. This does not lead to multiple domiciles, for it "is everywhere conceded that a person can have only one true domicile, which is synonymous with the common understanding of the word 'home'". . . . If a person maintains multiple residences it may become necessary to determine which one is the true domicile. Various approaches to this problem have been used by New Jersey courts.
>
> Establishing a domicile involves an act of volition. "A person has the right to choose his own domicil, and his motive in doing so is immaterial." . . . In accordance with this principle it has been held that one does not relinquish his domicile by having another residence based on reasons of health, society, business or employment. . . . Additionally, it has been held that a change of domicile "may be made to avoid taxation . . . [or some other motive], so long as the necessary ingredients for establishment of the new domicil are present." . . . Even a change of domicile predicated on a desire to avoid a forced heirship statute has been upheld when the change was supported by other indicia of a new domicile. . . .
> It is clear, therefore, that a choice of domicile by a person, irrespective of his motive, will be honored by the court, provided there are sufficient objective indicia, by way of proofs, supporting the actual existence of that domicile.
> Thus, a person may not arbitrarily designate a given residence as his domicile. It is necessary that the requisite > subjective intent be present since domicile is "very much a matter of the mind - of intention." "Where there are multiple residences . . . domicile is that place which the subject regards as his true and permanent home." (Emphasis added) [Citations omitted].

It is clear from the evidence presented in this matter that petitioner considered Hopewell to be her home. Although she owned a large, relatively expensive home in Montgomery, she did not wish to live there. A combination of circumstances in early 1998, however, forced petitioner out of the house she had been renting in Hopewell when her lease expired and the owner sold the property. She could find no affordable substitute rental property and her financial situation left her no option but to move back into the Montgomery house until such time as it was sold. Even after she moved back into the Montgomery residence in April 1998, she intended to return to the Pennington/Hopewell area. Acting upon her intention, however, was conditioned upon the sale of the Montgomery residence, a condition precedent which has yet to be accomplished. The unfortunate but absolute impediment to a conclusion that petitioner remained domiciled in Hopewell after April 1, 1998, is the total absence of any physical residence, abode, dwelling or real property interest at all. The lease on the house which petitioner had occupied in Hopewell had expired and petitioner was thereafter evicted. The Stage Depot refused to allow petitioner to stay there after the end of February 1998. Domicile has two elements, both of which are required in order to establish a legal entitlement: a physical residence and the intent to remain there. Intent is only relevant to the determination when there are multiple residences. Here there was always only one residence at a time. After April 1, 1998, petitioner intended to maintain her home in Hopewell. However, there was no residence in Hopewell (or Pennington) in which petitioner held any interest to which her intent could attach. Neither petitioner's attorney nor Commissioner Klagholz has cited any case where domicile was found to exist without some sort of a physical residence, abode or dwelling. Although not every residence is a domicile, every domicile, by definition, is a residence. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that during the time period here in issue, April, May and June 1998, petitioner's children were not domiciled within the district and therefore were not entitled to attend respondent's schools free of charge pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a).

With respect to what rights petitioner's children might have to continue to attend the schools in respondent's district free of charge under statutory and regulatory provisions for the education of homeless children, N.J.A.C. 6:3-8.3 provides in pertinent part:

> (a) A child or youth shall be considered homeless for purposes of this program if he or she resides in any of the following:
> 1. A supervised publicly or privately operated shelter designed to provide temporary living accommodations, including:
>
> i. Welfare hotels:
>
> ii. Congregate shelters:
>
> iii. Transitional housing for families; and
>
> iv. Transitional housing for the mentally ill;
>
> 2. An institution that provides a temporary residence for individuals intended to be institutionalized; or
> 3. A public or private place not designed for or ordinarily used as a regular sleeping accommodation for human beings.
>
> (b) Additionally, a child or youth shall be considered homeless if he or she is:
>
> 1. Living with a parent in a domestic violence shelter;
>
> 2. A runaway living in a shelter;
>
> 3. A school-age mother residing in a home for adolescent mothers;
>
> 4. Sick or abandoned and residing in a hospital and would otherwise be released if he or she had a permanent residence:
> 5. Abandoned and therefore has no permanent residence;

6. The child of a homeless family which is out of necessity living with relatives or friends; or

7. The child of a migrant family which lacks adequate housing.

The definition section of the same regulatory provisions, N.J.A.C. 6:3-8.2, defines "homeless" child or youth to mean "one who lacks a fixed, regular, and adequate residence." I CONCLUDE that, under these definitions, petitioner's children qualified as homeless during the period of time that she and the children resided at the Stage Depot Motel. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12.1 specifies that "the district of residence" is responsible for the education of a homeless child. The district of residence for children whose parent temporarily moves from one school district to another as the result of being homeless is the district in which the parent last resided prior to becoming homeless. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(c). Under these provisions respondent was responsible for the education, tuition free, of petitioner's children as long as they remained "homeless." In fact, the Stage Depot Motel is located physically within the confines of respondent's district. Even if that had not been the case, however, so long as petitioner's children were deemed "homeless," respondent's district would have been responsible for their education. Once petitioner and her children moved back into the home which petitioner owns at 28 M. Avenue in Belle Mead, New Jersey, however, there is no way the family could be considered to remain "homeless." Try as she might, petitioner's attorney could not get the expert witness to say that petitioner's children should continue to attend the schools in respondent's district free of charge after April 1, 1998, because they were "homeless." After April 1, 1998, petitioner and her children were living in their own five-bedroom house which was listed for sale at $429,000; it was petitioner's desire to sell the house quickly so that she could use the proceeds to purchase a residence in respondent's district. Despite petitioner's efforts, however, that desire remained unfulfilled; she and her children currently remain in the house, unsold, and petitioner even acknowledges that at some point after September 1998 her desire to move back to respondent's district ceased. It would be clearly absurd to condition respondent's obligation to provide a tuition-free education solely upon any petitioner's desire or intention to move back into the district.* During the time the children were "homeless," respondent was required to consider what was in the "best interest of the child" (N.J.A.C. 6:3-8.6) and to provide accordingly. Even after petitioner and the children relocated to Montgomery in April 1998 and were no longer "homeless," it probably was, as petitioner has repeatedly argued, in the best interest of the children to finish the school year in the familiar surroundings of respondent's district; that proposition, standing alone, however, does not place a legal obligation upon respondent to pay for that education.

* Respondent's written policy concerning those who plan to move into the district provides:

> a. Eligibility of Future Residents
> Students whose parents or legal guardians have signed a contract to buy, build, rent, or lease a residence in the school district, with the intent to occupy the same as their domicile, may be enrolled during the period of 60 calendar days prior to moving into the district.
> If the written proof of intent to establish a domicile in the district indicates that the residence will not be occupied within the 60 day grace period, the parents may enroll the students by paying tuition in advance for the length of time between the date of enrollment and the start of the anticipated 60 calendar day grace period.
> If the family's move is delayed beyond the 60 calendar day grace period, tuition shall be charged for the 61st day to the date on which domiciliary residence is established.
>
> However, no future resident will be required to pay tuition for any attendance period during which full school taxes on his/her unoccupied future residence are paid by the future resident.
> Acceptable written proof, such as a copy of the building contract or lease, must be provided at the time of registration for school enrollment.

After petitioner left the Hopewell/Pennington area she never signed a contract to lease, buy, etc., any residence in the district and accordingly, her children never qualified to attend free of charge as future residents.

I have already expressed my opinion concerning whether the district's policy on tuition could be considered arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable in my January 7, 1999 letter order attached hereto and made a part hereof, and I hereby reiterate that same opinion. The fact that some other school districts may have a different policy concerning free tuition for students whose parents moved out of the district during the school year, if that is in fact the case as Ms. Mercer testified, does not make respondent's policy arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The Commissioner may not substitute his judgment for respondent's. For all of the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that after April 1, 1998, neither of petitioner's children had a right to attend the schools in the district free of charge, and since they continued to be enrolled in respondent's district and to attend class (even though the older child attended only two days during June because of his illness) it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner reimburse respondent in accordance with tuition rates calculated pursuant to the formula as established by the New Jersey Department of Education and as set forth in the certification of John Nemeth, Business Administrator and Board Secretary for the district, i.e., $850 per month for E.B. and $870 per month for C.B. for a total amount of $5,160.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P. O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE HOPEWELL VALLEY REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY.	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner submitted exceptions[1] which were duly considered by the Commissioner in rendering the within decision.[2]

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that for April, May and June of 1998, petitioner and her children were not domiciled within respondent's District and, therefore, her children were not entitled to a free education in the District for that time period.[3]

[1] Although petitioner was represented by an attorney at the OAL, N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.1, said counsel withdrew her appearance on behalf of petitioner as of August 23, 1999. Accordingly, petitioner submitted exception arguments on her own behalf.

[2] To the extent petitioner raises allegations in her exceptions concerning respondent's failure to develop an Individualized Education Program (IEP) for her son during the 1997-98 school year, the Commissioner notes that this issue was not included in the Petition of Appeal, and does not appear to have been presented at the hearing. N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(c). Further, the Commissioner is without jurisdiction to hear and determine such a claim, and, therefore, he does not address this issue in his decision.

[3] In so affirming, the Commissioner adds only that, with respect to the ALJ's observation that "every domicile, by definition, is a residence" (Initial Decision at p. 11), such a residence, must be actual and accompanied by an intention to remain, but "[i]t may be a nursing home, a hotel [or] a boarding house; a home in a particular building is not necessary. " (O'Hara v. Glaser, 60 N.J. 239, 248)

The Commissioner further agrees that the record supports the conclusion that petitioner was homeless as of February 1, 1998; "[o]nce petitioner and her children moved back into the home which petitioner owns at 28 M. Avenue in Belle Mead, New Jersey [as of April 1, 1998], however, there is no way the family could be considered to remain 'homeless.'" (Initial Decision at p. 13) Although petitioner argues in her exceptions that the Board failed to act in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-8.1 et seq. to ensure that her children had access to a free public education for the two-month period of their homelessness,[4] the Board specifically disputes that it had timely notice of her homelessness. As Toni Simzak, Vice Principal of the Timberlane Middle School, affirmed:

> I initially learned that Petitioner and her children were residing at the State Depot Motel from Ms. Sonnie Kane, a teacher at the Timberlane Middle School. Ms. Kane advised me that she had learned that Petitioner was residing at the motel from student C.B., Petitioner's oldest child, not from Petitioner herself.
> At no point during the 1997-1998 school year did Petitioner advise me that she considered herself to be homeless, nor did it appear to me at any point in the 1997-1998 school year that Petitioner and her children were homeless. (Certification of Toni Simzak, January 25, 1999 at pp. 1, 2)

Additionally, the Business Administrator/Board Secretary averred:

> Petitioner notified the Respondent that she and her two children would be moving back to Montgomery Township as of April 1, 1998. During the 1997-98 school year, one of Petitioner's children was enrolled in second grade and her other child was enrolled in sixth grade. (Certification of John Nemeth at p. 3)

[4] Although petitioner testified that she resided at the Stage Depot Motel in Pennington from February 1, 1998 until March 2, 1998, and indicated that "she did not remember exactly where she stayed during the month of March" (Initial Decision at p. 6), in her exceptions, petitioner affirms that she "was able to remain in the hotel searching for rentals until the second week of March " and she "stayed with friends who did not want to be identified during the remaining week in March." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 9) In any event, as the ALJ indicated, determining where petitioner lived in March of 1998 is not necessary to the resolution of this matter, since the Board does not seek tuition for this period of time.

This issue was not, according to the Prehearing Order, before the ALJ; therefore, the record is insufficient to make findings or conclusions in this regard. However, notwithstanding petitioner's contention, the Commissioner notes that petitioner's children were not denied admittance to the very district she desired them to attend during their period of homelessness, and the Board does not seek reimbursement of tuition for this period. Moreover, although petitioner protests the Board's failure, in its letter of April 2, 1998, to advise her of "mediation procedures or the possibility of working with a homeless liaison," (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 7), she does not dispute that, as of April 1, 1998, she was no longer homeless.[5]

Accordingly, the initial decision is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. The Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed and petitioner is directed to reimburse the Board for $5,160.[6]

IT IS SO ORDERED.[7]

[5] Petitioner avers, "There was never any dispute that I was not homeless while living in Montgomery under a roof of my own." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 12)

[6] It is noted that petitioner's children have been enrolled in the Montgomery Township schools since September of 1998. The assessment of tuition covers the children's admission to respondent's District April, May and June of 1998.

[7] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

(Purificacion V. Flores, Esq., of Counsel)

On September 23, 1999, the Commissioner of Education determined that the petitioner's children had not been entitled to a free public education in the Hopewell Valley Regional School District. He therefore directed the petitioner to reimburse the Hopewell Valley Regional Board for tuition in the amount of $5,160 for the period of her children's ineligible attendance.

The petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board of Education.

On February 7, 2001, the parties submitted a proposed settlement agreement in which the Regional Board agreed to accept $2,500 from the petitioner in full satisfaction of the tuition assessed against her by the Commissioner and the petitioner agreed to pay $25 per month in 100 monthly installments.

We have reviewed the proposed settlement and find it to be in accord with the principles expressed in In re Cardonick, decided by the State Board of Education, April 6, 1983. We therefore approve the settlement in this matter.

Record Closed: August 11, 1999 Decided: August 11, 1999

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter was initially transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 10, 1998, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties agreed to a settlement and prepared a written stipulation of settlement. I incorporated this settlement into an initial decision dated March 3, 1999.

The Commissioner of Education remanded the matter to the OAL by final decision dated April 19, 1999.

I had a telephone conference call with the parties on May 5, 1999. The parties resumed settlement discussions and agreed to an addendum to the original settlement agreement. This signed addendum and the original settlement agreement are attached and incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF CYNTHIA PULLIN, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF CAMDEN CAMDEN COUNTY.	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY DOCKET NO. 208-6/98 ADDENDUM TO SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

1. (This section replaces Section 1 of the original settlement.) PULLIN tenders her resignation effective March 1, 1999. A copy of the letter of resignation is attached as Exhibit A to this Stipulation. The BOARD accepts PULLIN'S resignation effective on the resignation date. The BOARD will pay PULLIN h salary and all customary benefits and emoluments of employment from November 19, 1998 until the resignation date.

2. (This section replaces the Section 2 of the original settlement). In consideration of this resignation the BOARD will withdraw the tenure charges that it has filed against PULLIN. This settlement best serves the BOARD's interest while being consonant with the public interest for the following reasons: (a) Such settlement causes the least disruption to the Camden School District in that employees who were scheduled to testify as witnesses, such as the Building Principal, various teachers, and administrators, will not have to be away from their normal responsibilities within the district providing teaching and/or educational support;

(b) Such settlement avoids a lengthy, expensive hearing at the Office of Administrative Law and possible appeals taken thereafter while accomplishing the goal of terminating the employee's status within the district; (c) If tenure charges were to proceed, the crux of the issue to be presented at such hearing would be the viability of Ms. Pullin's drug rehabilitation. In order to prevail, the BOARD would be required to hire an expert[s] in this area (thus incurring further expense), make a determination as to whether such rehabilitation was successful on a long term basis, and then assume the risk at the hearing that the BOARD'S expert would be more credible than Respondent's expert. Since Respondent is seeking to put this aspect of her life behind her and move forward in a positive fashion, a lengthy hearing would only serve to delay and make more difficult her continuing rehabilitation.

5. (This section replaces section 5 of the original agreement.) The Parties further agree that this Agreement is contingent upon approval by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. Nothing in this Agreement is intended to discourage or prevent the Commissioner of Education from executing his exclusive authority to decide tenure matters and his corresponding duty to refer such determination to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of respondent's certification. Nor is this Agreement intended to thwart the State Board of Examiners' responsibility to make a determination as to revocation of a teaching certification. Finally, this Agreement is not intended to avoid the obligation of the Camden

Board of Education to cooperate in any proceedings or action which may be initiated by the Commissioner of Education.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF CYNTHIA PULLIN, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY.	STATE OF NEW JERSEY OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW OAL DOCKET NO. EDUOTH 06660-98S AGENCY REF. NO. 208-6/98 STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

THIS STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT is entered into by and between the Petitioner, Board of Education of the City of Camden (hereinafter "BOARD") and Respondent, CYNTHIA PULLIN (hereinafter referred as "PULLIN") (the BOARD and PULLIN are hereinafter referred to jointly as the "Parties" and each may be referred to severally as a "Party");

WHEREAS, PULLIN has been continuously employed by the Board as a teaching staff member since September 1, 1985;

WHEREAS, on or about June 22, 1998, the BOARD certified to the Commissioner of Education charges against PULLIN which it felt under the circumstances, if true, were sufficient to warrant her dismissal;

WHEREAS, on or about July 30, 1998, PULLIN filed an Answer to the charges denying the allegations as stated;

WHEREAS, this matter was listed for hearing before the Honorable Jeff Masin, ALJ, on February 23, 1999 and March 2, 1999 and the Parties having agreed to a means of resolving this dispute in a manner consonant with the public interest; and

WHEREAS PULLIN and the BOARD have entered into this stipulation with ıll understanding of their rights, recognizing that this stipulation and their agreement is subject to the review and approval of the Commissioner of Education, and with PULLIN's further understanding that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)1 any determination made by the Commissioner resulting in a loss of tenure or dismissal may be referred to the State Board of Examiners for determination of possible revocation or suspension of teaching certificate;

NOW, THEREFORE, the matter in difference having been amicably adjusted by and between the parties,

IT IS HEREBY STIPULATED AND AGREED AS FOLLOWS:

1. PULLIN tenders her resignation effective the date that this agreement is fully executed. A copy of the letter of resignation is attached as Exhibit A to this stipulation. The BOARD accepts PULLIN's resignation effective on the resignation date and hereby agrees that all of its official records shall reflect that the reason for PULLIN's leaving the BOARD's employ was that she resigned "in good standing." The BOARD will pay PULLIN her salary and all customary benefits and emoluments of employment from November 19, 1998 until the resignation date. The BOARD hereby withdraws with prejudice the tenure charges that it has filed against PULLIN.

2. The BOARD will immediately provide PULLIN with a neutral letter of reference setting forth her dates of employment, the job titles held by her and noting that PULLIN resigned from the Camden schools in good standing. The letter will be in the form attached hereto as Exhibit B. The Board agrees that all inquiries it receives regarding PULLIN will be directed to the Department of Human Resources and parties with such inquiries will be informed that PULLIN resigned as an employee in good standing.

3. The BOARD will provide PULLIN with all salary, benefits and emoluments to which she would otherwise be entitled under the collectively negotiated agreement, federal law and/or state law from November 19, 1998 to the resignation date.

4. The Parties enter into this agreement with the mutual understanding that a formal record will be made of PULLIN's acceptance of the terms of this settlement at the Office of Administrative Law and that, as part of that record, she will have an opportunity to present proofs as to: (a) the knowing and voluntary waiver of her tenure rights; (b) her capacity to make such a waiver and (c) the efforts she has made to rehabilitate herself.

5. The Order adopting this Stipulation: (a) may, in the Administrative Law Judge's discretion, make findings with respect to those proofs and (b) will provide that the BOARD will not refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners for revocation of PULLIN's teaching certificate. The Parties further agree that this agreement is contingent upon approval by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. Neither party will take any legal action whatsoever that is inconsistent with this Agreement before the Office of Administrative Law or any other forum. Provided, however, that nothing in this agreement is intended to restrict the State Board of Examiners from taking any action it deems appropriate.

6. In consideration of the savings of time, effort and legal expense that this settlement will create, the BOARD agrees to immediately take all steps necessary to convert PULLIN's suspension from June 19, 1998 to November 19, 1998 to an approved leave of absence without pay. The Board will not be responsible for making any contribution to the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund ("TPAF") for this leave period, but Pullin is free to do so should TPAF permit her to.

7. PULLIN agrees that she will not hereafter apply to the BOARD for employment.

8. The BOARD will allow PULLIN to remove personal items from the Cream Elementary School and will not interfere with or impede her from doing so.

9. The Parties agree that they and their officers, agents, and administrators will be bound by a covenant of good faith and fair dealing with respect to performance under this Stipulation.

10. This Stipulation constitutes a full release of any and all claims of either Party against the other. Specifically, PULLIN forever releases the BOARD from any and all complaints, charges, liabilities, demands, debts, accounts, obligations, promises, suits, actions, causes of action, demands in law or equity, including claims for damages (including but not limited to back pay and front pay), equitable relief, and attorney fees or costs, which PULLIN now has, or claims to have, or which PULLIN at any time hereafter may have, or claim to have, whether presently known or unknown, arising at any time, up to and including the date on which she signs the document. PULLIN specifically releases the BOARD from any claims she has or may have had under New Jersey Law Against Discrimination or the federal Americans with Disabilities Act. Nothing in this paragraph is intended to operate as a release, waiver, or forfeiture of PULLIN's rights, and the BOARD's obligations under: (a) any state worker's compensation act or statute, or (b) any State of New Jersey retirement, pension, savings, or 401(k) plan in which PULLIN is a participant;

11. The PARTIES forever releases each other from any and all complaints, charges, liabilities, demands, debts, accounts, obligations, promises, suits, actions, causes of action, demands in law or equity, including, but not limited to, claims for damages, equitable relief, attorney fees or costs, which the BOARD now has, or claims to have, or which the BOARD at any time may have had or claimed to have had, or which the BOARD at any time hereafter may have, or claim to have, whether presently known or unknown, arising at any time, up to and including the date on which this document is signed on its behalf.

13. The Parties agree to waive exceptions.

14. The Parties agree that this document constitutes their full understanding. It is agreed that there are no other understandings or agreements (either written or oral) which would have any impact upon the present action.

15. By signing this agreement, the Parties certify that they have had the opportunity to discuss this Stipulation with counsel. They are fully satisfied with the services of their counsel with respect to both this Stipulation and all other aspects of this case and they enter into this Stipulation knowingly, willingly and without any coercion or improper inducements.

16. The Parties further agree that this agreement is contingent upon approval by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner. Neither Party will take any legal action whatsoever that is inconsistent with this agreement before the Office of Administrative Law or any other forum.

17. By signing this agreement, each signatory represents that she or he is a ' ty or has been duly authorized by a Party to sign on that Party's behalf.

18. The Parties agree that this Stipulation may be signed in counterparts and that facsimiles of signatures will have the same force and effect as original signatures.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PISCATAWAY, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioning parents challenged the Board's decision, in accordance with its revised policy, to deny subscription busing to their daughter, A.K.D., who attended a nonpublic school. Petitioners sought subscription busing and a safe and reasonable bus stop. Board's revised policy limited subscription busing to its public school students.

ALJ found that the Board amended its subscription busing policy by resolution and that this action was within the sound discretion of the Board. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 gives boards of education the option of offering courtesy busing to nonpublic pupils. Thus, the Board opted to drop the subscription busing for nonpublic school pupils. Petitioners were not treated differently from other parents of nonpublic pupils; therefore, the Board did not misapply the statute. ALJ found no violation of Article I, Section 1 of the New Jersey Constitution, of the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, of the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, of the Equal Protection Clause, of the school laws or any failure to provide safe and adequate transportation. ALJ granted Board's motion for summary judgment. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

INITIAL DECISION

SUMMARY DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 661-99

AGENCY DKT. NO. 6-1/99

M.J.K.D. AND A.W.D. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, A.K.D.,

Petitioners,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PISCATAWAY,

Respondent.

M.J.K.D. and A.W.D., petitioners, pro se

David B. Rubin, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: June 28, 1999 Decided: August 11, 1999

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

In this matter, the petitioners claim the respondent Board should provide subscription busing to all pupils and should be required to provide their daughter with a safe and reasonable bus stop. The petitioners allege that the Board's failure to do so constitutes violation of Article I, ¶1 of the New Jersey Constitution, the First Amendment of the United States Constitution proscription against interference with freedom of religion, the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, the equal protection clauses of the federal and State constitutions, and New Jersey school law. A sixth count alleges failure to provide safe and adequate transportation.

The Board generally denies the allegations, says it has acted lawfully herein and that the petitioners are not now and never have been entitled to the transportation arrangements sought.

The matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. After notice, a prehearing conference was held by telephone. Among other things, it was determined that the matter would proceed on cross-motions for summary judgment.

THE ARGUMENTS

Petitioners

The petitioners assert the Board's recently amended policy limiting subscription busing to public school students, while not offering the same to students attending not for profit non-public schools violates N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.1, constitutional equal protection clauses and due process.

The petitioners believe that the Board's position, demonstrated in its October 9, 1998 policy on subscription busing, is that the statute provides it with the discretion to offer subscription busing to public school pupils and not to similarly situated pupils attending not for profit non-public schools.

The petitioners concede there is no single reported determination on the issue. However, principles of constitutional law and related case law demonstrate that N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.1 and -1.3 require the Board to provide subscription busing to all pupils if it is going to provide subscription busing to any. The Board may not exclude non-public school pupils. Its interpretation and application of the statute violates the State Constitution, the State and federal constitutional right to equal protection and the right to due process of law.

Article VIII, §4, ¶3 of the New Jersey Constitution of 1947 provides

> The Legislature may, within reasonable limitations as to distance to be prescribed, provide for the transportation of children within the ages of five to eighteen years inclusive to and from any school.

This constitutional provisions continued statutes already enacted. The New Jersey Supreme Court and the United States Supreme Court had already determined that the policy of transportation of pupils, regardless of the public or non-public nature of their schools, was not prohibited by constitutional principles of anti-establishment and freedom of religion.

Despite the fact that the statute authorizes public funds to be used to transport pupils attending religious-based schools of choice, in the landmark case of Everson v. Board of Education of Ewing Tp., 133 N.J.L. 350 (E.&A. 1945), aff'd 330 U.S. 1, 18 (1947), the U.S. Supreme Court observed that the precursor to New Jersey's transportation statute, "as applied, does no more than provide a general program to help parents get their children, regardless of their religion, safely and expeditiously to and from accredited schools." Accord, Board of Ed. of Central Regional High School Dist. of Ocean County v. State Bd. of Ed., 27 N.J. 76, 78-79 (1958).

The legislation was intended to extend to the private school pupil a right to transportation on the same basis upon which that transportation would be available if he attended a public school in his district, that is, remoteness from the school. In that way, the public and parochial pupil within a district are dealt with evenly. West Morris Reg. Bd. of Ed. v. Sills, 58 N.J. 464, 479 (1971).

Similar pronouncements have come from all levels of the system in the intervening years. The petitioners point out that N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.1 clearly authorizes districts where transportation is not mandated nevertheless to provide transportation and the statute makes no distinction between public and non-public school pupils.

While the present issue is not that A.K.D. lives remote from her school, the mandatory transportation statute and cases examining the Legislature's policy requiring equal treatment among students in the same district demonstrates that the Board's actions implementing a subscription busing policy under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 is impermissible because it fails to acknowledge the State constitutional and legislative policy of dealing with students in the same district evenly.

The Legislature has enacted N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 authorizing district boards of education to charge parents for the cost of busing pupils who live less than two miles from elementary schools. The statute does not distinguish between public and non-public schools. It merely states that if a board of education must provide transportation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, then it may provide transportation to elementary pupils who live less than two miles from school. The statute also provides that a board may enter into a contract for the transportation of pupils who live less than the prescribed distances and who attend a not for profit school within the maximum distance requirement in N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1. If the board elects to do this, it may require that if the parent, guardian or other person having legal custody of the child elects to have the pupil transported, then the parent, guardian or other person having legal custody of the child shall pay all or part of the costs of that transportation.

In West Morris Regional, above, the plaintiffs sought a declaration that N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 was unconstitutional because it provided free transportation of children to private schools. A central attack, accepted by the trial court and rejected by the New Jersey Supreme Court, was that the statute discriminated arbitrarily among pupils attending private schools, in violation of the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment because not all private school pupils were treated equally. In a thorough analysis, the West Morris Court recognized that N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.1 allows that "a school district may, but need not, provide transportation to pupils who do not live 'remote' from a school house, but the cost is not included in calculating the amount of State aid for transportation of pupils." Id. at 475. This statute, with minor modifications, is still effective and must be considered in conjunction with N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 and 39-1. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 was not adopted until 1995, more than twenty-five years after West Morris Regional was decided.

The important difference between the two is that the Legislature in the latter statute has given authorization for the local school board to charge the parents of pupils who do live under two miles with all or part of the transportation cost. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.1 did not authorize districts to seek payment from parents for "courtesy busing" and made it quite clear that there would be no State reimbursement for costs associated with transportation pursuant to the statute. Nonetheless, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.1 does not enable a district to distinguish between public and non-public school pupils and is in accordance with the long held policy the Legislature has employed regarding the issue of school transportation for pupils, the State Constitution and the cases interpreting the statutes.

Further, in West Morris Regional, above, the Court wrote, "Here the Legislature chose to extend to the private school student a right to transportation on the same basis upon which transportation would have been available if he attended public school in his district, i.e., remoteness from the school, and in that way to deal evenly with him and the public school student within that district. We see nothing irrational or invidious in this legislative concept and the legislative choice is not made intolerable merely because another choice might also be reasonable." Id. at 479.

The Piscataway Board's actions in this matter, in enacting a policy of subscription busing that denies the non-public school pupil the same right to transportation within the district as her public school peers is irrational and invidious.

It has been noted that A.K.D. attends a Catholic school and the petitioners, in their choice of that school, are asserting their fundamental right to the free exercise of religion. As such, the statute as applied and interpreted by the Board impinges on the petitioners' fundamental rights and must be examined using strict judicial scrutiny. See, San Antonio School District v. Rodriguez, 411 U.S. 1, 17 (1973) and Sanchez v. Dept. of Human Services, 314 N.J. Super. 11, 18 (App. Div. 1998). Where a fundamental right is involved, the statute is subject to strict scrutiny. Barone v. Dept. of Human Services, 107 N.J. 355, 364-65 (1987). Under strict scrutiny, the statute must be found to further a compelling State interest and there must be no less restrictive means of accomplishing that objective. Id. at 365.

New Jersey courts have viewed State constitutional challenges in a different manner, yet one that still yields a finding that the Board's application and interpretation of the subscription busing statute is unconstitutional. New Jersey courts favor a balancing test. Greenberg v. Kimmelman, 99 N.J. 552, 567 (1985). The factors to be considered include "the nature of the affected right, the extent to which the governmental restriction intrudes upon it, and the public need for the restriction." Id. at 567.

The Board's interpretation and application of the statute impinges on the petitioners' right to free exercise of religion. However, there is a permissible interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 that does not impinge on any fundamental rights and that interpretation must be used.

Under New Jersey law, a challenged statute will be construed to avoid constitutional defects if the statute is "reasonably susceptible" of such construction. New Jersey State Bd. of Higher Educ. v. Board of Directors of Shelton College, 90 N.J. 470, 478 (1982). Even though a statute may be open to a construction that would render it unconstitutional or permit its unconstitutional application, it is the duty of this tribunal to construe the statute so as to render it constitutional if it is reasonably susceptible of such interpretation. State v. Profaci, 56 N.J. 346, 350 (1970).

The Board had a policy that provided subscription busing to all pupils, including those who attend non-public not for profit schools. The petitioners took advantage of this policy and relied upon the availability of such busing when they enrolled A.K.D. in her present school. The Board's current policy was adopted specifically to remove the provisions permitting non-public pupils to avail themselves of the subscription busing program. The Board's actions, misinterpreting N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 and avoiding N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.1, violate not only the statute, but the petitioners' fundamental rights.

The Board urges that the narrow issue presented is whether subscription busing may be offered exclusively to public school pupils without infringing the petitioners' constitutional right to free exercise of religion or equal protection of the laws. The Board argues that the answer is yes.

N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 provides that a board of education transporting pupils "may" provide subscription busing for "pupils" not living remote enough to qualify for State-mandated transportation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, and "may also" provide it to "pupils" attending "any not for profit non-public school." By addressing private school pupils in a separate sentence and using the phrase "may also," the Legislature by its plain language intended to allow school districts discretion as to whether to include private school pupils in subscription busing programs. This interpretation is inescapable when one compares N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 with N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, which provides that school districts "shall" provide transportation to private school pupils living remote from their schools whenever it provides such transportation to public school pupils. Because the statute on its face plainly allows what petitioners are challenging, they may only prevail by establishing that the statute itself is unconstitutional.

Preliminarily, the respondent expresses doubt as to the Commissioner's jurisdiction to adjudicate such a claim. The Commissioner may decide controversies and disputes arising under Title 18A requiring application of educational expertise, even the resolution of those issues implicates constitutional claims. Desilets on behalf of Desilets v. Clearview Regional Bd. of Educ., 137 N.J. 585, 595-96 (1994). The respondent is unaware of any case holding that the Commissioner may declare a statute unconstitutional on its face, especially when disposition of the abstract constitutional issues involved does not require educational expertise. Cf., Abbott v. Burke, 100 N.J. 269, 301 (1985).

Here, the petitioners seek a ruling that N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 is unconstitutional on its face. They do not merely seek a limiting construction of the statute, but one that is at odds with its plain meaning. The Commissioner is without jurisdiction to decide the question and any relief on that ground must be pursued in another forum.

On the merits, the petitioners contend that the exclusion of private school pupils from the Board's subscription busing program violates their rights of free exercise of religion under the First Amendment, equal protection under the Fourteenth Amendment, and corresponding provisions of the New Jersey Constitution.

Free exercise claims are governed by Employment Div. v. Smith, 494 U.S. 872, 885 (1990). In that case, the United States Supreme Court discarded the compelling State interest test of Sherbert v. Verner, 374 U.S. 398 (1963) and held that a generally applicable and otherwise valid regulatory law which is not specifically intended to regulate religious conduct or belief and which incidentally burdens the free exercise of religion does not violate the Free Exercise clause. 494 U.S. at 878. The Court retained the compelling interest test, however, for instances in which the regulatory law affects the Free Exercise clause in conjunction with another constitutional protection, such as freedom of speech and of the press, or the right of parents to direct the education of their children. 494 U.S. at 881-82. The standard of review under Equal Protection is somewhat similar: strict scrutiny when an act involves a fundamental right or a suspect class, intermediate scrutiny when an act involves a semi-suspect class, and minimal rational-basis scrutiny in all other cases. Drew Associates of N.J., L.P. v. Travisano, 122 N.J. 249, 258-59 (1991).

The Board's subscription busing policy is a generally applicable and otherwise valid regulation not specifically intended to regulate religious conduct or belief. It applies to all private schools, religious and secular, and was promoted by legitimate budgetary and operational concerns. As noted in the certification of the Transportation Supervisor for the Board, subscription busing was intended as an affordable service-for-fee alternative to courtesy busing. Taking into account the economics of the pupil transportation industry and the New Jersey Department of Education's reimbursement and other regulatory standards, the modest cost per family was maintainable only so long as the routes and stops previously in place for courtesy busing remained intact. By expanding the user base beyond the population previously served by courtesy busing, limited to public school pupils, or tinkering with bus stops, the cost per family would be driven up to an unacceptable level.

While the petitioners' situation was admittedly a factor in the Board's decision to amend the policy when it did, the insertion of the phrase "public school" merely clarified the policy's original intent to limit the program to the same non-remote public school population previously served by courtesy busing, to avoid unjustified expectations on the part of private school parents such as the petitioners unfamiliar with the policy's history. The fact that only three private school families had requested subscription busing over a three-year period in this sprawling municipality demonstrates that the intended limitation to public school pupils was widely known among those living in town when the program was initiated. Thus, it is clear that the policy is sufficiently related to a legitimate government objective to pass rational-basis scrutiny under the Equal Protection rubric, and is sufficiently religion-neutral not to trigger the Free Exercise compelling State interest analysis under Smith.

The petitioners' arguments reflect a basic misconception of the U.S. Supreme Court's jurisprudence in this area. There is no contention in this case that the Board is interfering with the petitioners' right to follow the dictates of their religion or depriving them of their right to educate their child in a secular or religious private school of their choosing. Instead, the petitioners seek a government subsidy in the form of transportation to more conveniently enjoy these rights.

What the petitioners fail to appreciate is that the Bill of Rights is not a government entitlement program. The various rights set forth in the First Amendment in particular are freedoms from government interference--in essence, the right to be left alone. "The Free Exercise Clause is written in terms of what the government cannot do to the individual, not in terms of what the individual can expect from the government." Sherbert, above, 374 U.S. 398, 412 (Douglas, J., concurring). That the Legislature has chosen to subsidize free public education has never been held to infringe on the constitutional right of parents to send their children to schools of their choice, or to require government to subsidize the individual's election to attend the chosen school. To translate the First Amendment's limitation on governmental power into an affirmative obligation to provide benefits is an unprecedented result. See, Maher v. Roe, 432 U.S.

467 (1977). It is well settled that the government's decision not to subsidize the exercise even of fundamental rights does not infringe those rights. Regan v. Taxation Without Representation of Wash., 461 U.S. 540, 549 (1983).

Nor can the petitioners trigger application of the compelling State interest test under Smith merely by mentioning their constitutional right to direct their child's education at a private school, a right recognized since Pierce v. Society of Sisters, 268 U.S. 510 (1925) and codified in New Jersey at N.J.S.A. 18A:38-25. The Supreme Court has been extremely hesitant to suggest that private school pupils have a constitutional entitlement to the same benefits that are given to public school pupils by government. Peter v. Wedl, 155 *F.*3rd 992, 1002 (8th Cir. 1998).

The petitioners rely heavily on West Morris Regional Bd. of Ed. v. Sills, 58 N.J. 464 (1971), although for what proposition, the respondent is not sure. The issue in that case was whether the Establishment Clause and Equal Protection were violated by N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1's requirement of transportation to certain private schools including religious schools, but not others. Unlike our case, the question before the court there was not whether transportation must be provided to private school pupils, but whether it may be provided. In rejecting the plaintiffs' challenge, the Court stated:

> Plaintiffs contend that if the legislative purpose [of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1] is to aid the child by getting him to school, on time, and safely . . . then there is no rational basis for conferring that benefit upon some students and not others. Plaintiffs do not go to the length of suggesting that this benefit could not be conferred solely upon public school students. Rather their aim is to bar transportation of all private school students[.] 58 N.J. at 475.

Since it appears that the Court, and even the plaintiffs in that case, saw no constitutional problem with excluding private schools from State-mandated transportation entirely, nothing in that decision can be said to disapprove of the Legislature's election to give school districts the choice of providing, or not, subscription busing to private school pupils under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3.

The respondent stresses the Court's observation that > the Equal Protection clause does not require that a State must choose between attacking every aspect of a program or not attacking the problem at all. . . .

> The area within which the State may act to advance the public welfare is vast. The Legislature must have leeway in deciding whether to act, and if so, how far to go. It would disserve the public interest to say that the Legislature may take no step unless it goes the whole distance which constitutionally could be traveled. Especially is this true when the subject involves the expenditure of public moneys. The competing demands are such that modest objectives must be allowed even though more pervasive ones would be welcome. So long as the limited objective is not invidious in design or effect, a statute may not be invalidated merely because it would also be reasonable to do more. 58 N.J. at 480-81.

Given the budgetary, operational and administrative concerns implicated by including private school pupils in a subscription busing program, the Legislature was surely within its rights to give local school districts the option.

The Board's subscription busing policy in this case is explicitly authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 and the petitioners have failed to establish any constitutional infirmity in the statute or in the Board's application of it.

DETERMINATION

The Board submitted a certification of its Transportation Supervisor giving background of its transportation policies, particularly as they relate to transportation of pupils less than remote. Among other things, the Supervisor states that there is typically only one bus route to each non-public school because non-public school transportation route costs may not exceed the number of pupils multiplied by an annual amount fixed by the State, which is currently $702. No such limitation is imposed for public school pupils. Second, the New Jersey Department of Education, Bureau of Pupil Transportation, imposes a maximum time limit on bus routes, currently ninety minutes. The combination of cost and time limits has created enormous pressures on school districts to maximize efficiency in non-public school transportation.

In the case of Piscataway, these rules have made it virtually impossible to add additional routes to the non-public schools, thereby limiting the number of additional stops that the route can absorb and remain within the Department's time constraints. Further and importantly, applications for pupils not eligible to receive transportation to their non-public schools cannot be considered when approving a contract for a bus route, since N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.1 clearly states that only eligible pupils are used to determine route costs.

Although Piscataway, like many districts in New Jersey, provided so-called courtesy busing at no cost, that busing was provided exclusively to pupils enrolled in the Piscataway School District. Courtesy busing was never extended to private school pupils. Faced with the same sort of budgetary constraints every district faces, Piscataway eliminated courtesy busing entirely and put in its place subscription busing to be paid for by the families who benefited from the service. Subscription busing was allowed by the Legislature in 1995 in *L.*1995, *c.*106, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3.

The Board adopted a policy in 1997 authorizing the Business Administrator to establish subscription busing guidelines for eligibility, bus stops, deadlines for applications and related matters. These guidelines explicitly stated that pupils would be assigned to the "closest existing bus stop" on an "existing route (No additional routes will be added)." The Piscataway busing program, like the courtesy busing program before it, was intended to serve only public school pupils.

Because N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 states that a school district may enter into a contract to provide services to public and non-public schools, Piscataway exercised its option and decided not to provide services to non-public pupils. In Piscataway, contracts are entered into through bidding of all public school routes for three or more years at a time. The current three-year contract allows for public school subscription busing only. This is because routes and stops that were used for courtesy busing of district public school pupils were already in place when subscription busing was substituted. The district has never provided courtesy busing for private school pupils and, therefore, these routes were never designed with private schools or their pupils in mind.

Nevertheless, even though subscription busing did not officially contemplate use by private school pupils until the 1998-99 school year, on two occasions, private school pupils were allowed to register for reasons of hardship, provided they were picked up at the closest existing bus stop as stated in the guidelines.

The petitioner contacted the Supervisor to request an application for subscription busing for her daughter in June 1998. She did not at that time inform the staff that her daughter attended a private school. The Supervisor was on vacation at the time. Unaware that the pupil was a private school pupil, a staff member sent the petitioners an application which the Supervisor received on June 19. Once it was determined that the child was enrolled at a private school, the petitioners were made aware of the policy on existing bus routes and stops and advised that the nearest existing stop was 425 Patton Avenue.

Correspondence between Mrs. W. and the School Business Administrator ensued. There were many similar requests from parents over that summer. On August 19, 1998, the Supervisor wrote a memorandum to the Administrator advising that over thirty applications had been received and advising the Administrator of the budgetary and equitable implications of granting these. At the beginning of the 1998-99 school year, the number of requests had grown to over one hundred. If these requests had been granted, the Board would have faced an added cost of approximately $32,000 from adding two new route packages to accommodate the increased time of making over one hundred new stops while maintaining the ability to arrived at school on time.

Mrs. W. was advised in a letter dated September 11, 1998 that the matter of changing bus stops and bus routes for subscription pupils had been referred to the Board's Policy Committee for consideration. The Policy Committee meeting took place on October 5, 1998 where the issue of what to do about the numerous requests was discussed. The subscription busing program was initially intended as a pay-as-you-go replacement for courtesy busing, a program limited to public school pupils, using the same routes and stops. In an attempt to accommodate private school parents, the Supervisor's office had allowed them on two occasions to register on the theory that it would not cost the district any extra money or limit the district's flexibility. If there were empty seats on a subscription bus and the routes and stops remained unchanged, there seemed to be no reason why the district should not help these Piscataway residents, even though the program was not designed for them. This accommodation was made administratively, with no formal consideration by the Board. Once Mrs. W., as well as other parents, started applying pressure to change routes and stops, thus driving up the cost to the district and limiting its flexibility to re-route those buses in the future, the district had to step back and re-evaluate the essential nature of the program.

As a result of those deliberations, it was determined not to change the existing routes or stops for any pupil, public or private, and because of a misunderstanding on Mrs. W.'s part, to clarify district policy going forward so that there would be no question that subscription busing was limited to public school pupils. On October 9, 1998, the Business Administrator advised Mrs. W. of the Policy Committee's deliberations.

The petitioners submit a certification that differs on some points with that of the Transportation Supervisor. Initially, the petitioners point out that the policy, before they ever inquired about subscription busing, stated explicitly, "Children whose parents have opted for a school of choice may be eligible for the subscription bussing program based on available space on an existing route after all other riders have been assigned." Respondent's Exhibit 1, attached to certification of Patricia Bye. To the petitioners, this language makes it obvious that the subscription busing program was not intended to serve only public school pupils. The petitioners emphatically deny they are seeking any form of government subsidy. Nor did they fail to disclose that their child was attending a parochial school. To the contrary, Mrs. W. claims she gave full information to the person answering her first telephone call.

The petitioners are not content with the location of the existing designated bus stop. They believe it to be between .8 and .9 miles from their home and would require the child to walk "through several intersections without any sidewalks." Petitioner's certification, ¶7.

Approximately thirty other pupils were assigned bus stops unacceptable to parents. These parents, including the petitioners, called and then wrote to express concern and to request a change in the bus stop. Mrs. W. also appeared at a Board meeting and spoke during the public portion of the meeting about the situation.

Mrs. W. states she asked for a change in the location of the bus stop. Mrs. W. also states that the other parents who asked for a change in their children's bus stops were told that the bus stops would remain where they were. However, Mrs. W. not only received a negative reply to the request for a bus stop relocation, but revocation of bus privileges altogether.

The petitioners assert there is no additional cost to the Board for their child to ride what they assert is a half-empty bus to her school. They also claim there would be no extra cost if the bus picked up the child on the same street as her home.

The petitioners agreed that they do not have a handicapped child. They do, however, have after-school care issues. The family will live in Piscataway for at least two more years and both parents will continue to be employed in full-time positions during that time. They assert they relied on the respondent's subscription busing program when they enrolled their child in a parochial school.

Having carefully read the well-craft arguments of each party, I observe that administrative agencies have only the power to pass upon certain constitutional questions. Facial attacks, for example, are generally beyond the purview of administrative agencies and, therefore, the Office of Administrative Law. According to the New Jersey Supreme Court in Abbott v. Burke, above, "facial constitutional challenges to statutes should be judicially resolved, even where an as-applied challenge to a statute may strongly suggest initial agency adjudication." 100 N.J. at 299. However, it is appropriate for an administrative tribunal to review a constitutional issue "to develop a fully informed factual record and maximize the soundness of determinations through the agency's expertise." Ibid. An agency may therefore "base its decision on constitutional considerations." Id. at 298-99.

Administrative agencies can hear challenges to statutes and rules "as applied" so long as the constitutional issue is "relevant and necessary to the resolution of a question concededly within [its] . . . jurisdiction." Christian Bros. Inst. v. N.J. Interscholastic League, 86 N.J. 409, 415 (1981).

In addition, cases in which the constitutionality of a statute or other rule of law is not at stake, an administrative agency "does not exceed its jurisdiction merely because it applies relevant law," even if that law is the United States Constitution. Hunterdon Central High School Board of Education v. Hunterdon Central Teachers' Association, 174 N.J. Super. 468, 475 (App. Div. 1980), aff'd per curiam, 86 N.J. 43 (1981). "Administrative agencies are competent to pass upon constitutional issues germane to proceedings before them." Ibid.

In general, the equal protection clause requires that similarly situated individuals be treated alike. Salem Blue Collar Workers' Ass'n v. City of Salem, 33 *F.*3rd 265 (1994). The outcomes of cases brought under the equal protection clause, however, hinge largely on what level of scrutiny they trigger: strict scrutiny, intermediate scrutiny, or rational basis. Barone v. Dept. of Human Services, 107 N.J. 355, 364-65 (1987). For purposes of equal protection, the petitioners' status as parents of a non-public school pupil does not render them a member of a suspect or quasi-suspect class thereby triggering strict or intermediate scrutiny. State v. Fernandez, 209 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1986).

Only classifications based on "immutable human attributes" trigger a more exacting standard than rational basis. Id. at 48, citing Parham v. Hughes, 405 U.S. 330, 335 (1972).

However, the resolution of today's matter rests on much more simple and less controversial grounds. The statute in question, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3, is two sentences long, albeit the sentences are long. The first says

> Any board of education which transports pupils to and from school pursuant to N.J.S. 18A:39-1 may enter into a contract for the transportation of elementary school pupils who live less than two > miles from school and secondary school pupils who live less than two and a half miles from school, and may require that if the parent, guardian or other person having legal custody of the child elects to have the pupil transported pursuant to the contract, then the parent, guardian or other person having legal custody of the child shall pay all or a part of the cost of that transportation, including but not limited to the cost of fuel, driver salaries and insurance.

In one long but clear sentence, the Legislature has stated what it allows boards to do, if they chose. They may enter into a contract for that transportation. The second sentence states

> A board of education may also enter into a contract for the transportation of elementary school pupils who live less than two miles and secondary school pupils who live less than two and a half miles from any not for profit nonpublic school which satisfies the maximum distance requirements set forth in N.J.S. 18A:39-1 and may require that if the parent, guardian or other person having legal custody of the child elects to have the pupil transported pursuant to the contract, then the parent, guardian or other person having legal custody of the child shall pay all or a part of the cost of that transportation, including but not limited to the cost of fuel, driver salaries and insurance.

The rest of the statute provides that the local board of education may determine the time and manner of payment and shall notify the Department of Education when it elects to provide transportation for pupils under the provisions of the statute.

The words may and shall are, perhaps, the two most important words in statutory construction. It is well settled that may is permissive and shall is mandatory. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 invests in local boards of education the discretion to provide subscription busing to non-public school pupils, or not. If a local board of education decides not to offer such busing, it is not offered and will not be offered until and unless the board acts by appropriate resolution to initiate it. What a board has done, a board may undo. The same board could, at a later date, decide to discontinue such busing.

The Board concedes that, even though its subscription busing program did not initially contemplate use by private school pupils, until the 1998-99 school year, on only two occasions were private school pupils allowed to register for reasons of hardship, provided they were picked up at the closest existing stop. One of these cases involved a seriously handicapped pupil who probably would have been entitled to certain accommodations under laws addressing accommodation of the handicapped. In the other case, the system accommodated what seemed to be a legitimate request by a family to coordinate after-school child care. Thus, the door was opened.

The parties seemed to agree that Mrs. W. contacted the transportation office in or about June 1998 and requested an application for subscription busing. The parties differ as to what information was offered and received. However, it seems clear that the Transportation Supervisor did advise Mrs. W. that the nearest existing stop was at 425 Patton Avenue. On July 7, 1998, Mrs. W. wrote to the district's Business Administrator complaining that 425 Patton Avenue was .9 miles from their home and expressing concern that the walking route to the stop was unsafe. Mrs. W. requested that a new bus stop be created closer to her home. The district disputes the distance between Mrs. W.'s home and the bus stop.

Importantly, Mrs. W.'s request was one of many received during the summer of 1998. By August 19, there were more than thirty applications and the Supervisor became concerned with budgetary and other implications. At the start of the 1998-99 school year, the requests had grown to over one hundred. In her certification, the Transportation Supervisor states that this would have added approximately $32,000 to transportation costs.

In early September 1998, Mrs. W. and, presumably, others who had applied were advised that the matter of changing bus stops and bus routes for subscription busing pupils had been referred to the Board's Policy Committee. A Policy Committee meeting took place on October 5 and the issue appears to have been discussed thoroughly.

The district considered, among other things, that the subscription busing program was intended to be a pay-as-you-go replacement for courtesy busing, that it was intended to be limited to public school pupils and was intended to use existing bus routes and bus stops. The Board considered the fact that it had accommodated two private school pupils in the belief that it would not cost the district any extra money or limit its flexibility. This accommodation was made administratively, and no formal Board of Education action is recorded that touches upon it. The Policy Committee also considered the growing calls to change routes and stops to accommodate courtesy-bussed pupils. This, in turn, led to consideration of costs to the district and limits on its flexibility to re-route those buses in the future.

As a result of the Policy Committee's deliberations, it was determined not to change existing routes or stops for any pupil, public or private, and to clarify Board policy from that point forward so that there would be no question that subscription busing was limited to public school pupils. On October 9, 1998, the Business Administrator wrote to Mrs. W., saying

> After deliberation on the evening of October 5, 1998, the Policy Committee determined that it was never the intent of the Piscataway Board of Education in establishing its subscription busing program to provide subscription busing services to private and parochial school students. In order to clarify the intent of this policy, the wording was changed to specifically include public school students only. The Board of Education unanimously approved this amendment at its Board meeting on October 8, 1998.
> In its deliberation, however, the Policy Committee did concur that you may receive subscription busing services for the balance of the current school year in accordance with previously established regulations with your bus stop being 425 Patton Avenue. Should you not be satisfied with this arrangement, I have been authorized to grant you a full refund of any moneys you have paid for this service. Respondent's Exhibit 8.

In consideration of the foregoing, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Piscataway Board of Education amended its subscription busing policy by resolution of October 8, 1998. I further FIND and CONCLUDE that this was an action within the sound discretion of the Board. A political subdivision of the State may do no more than the Legislature authorizes it to do. Here, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 gives to boards of education the option of offering courtesy busing to nonpublic school pupils. Option means precisely that. It is the power or right to choose. In short, the Board got out of the non-public school pupil subscription busing business.

The petitioners have not been treated differently from other parents of non-public school pupils. Therefore, the Board has not misapplied the statute.

I am offered no compelling argument that either the Board's action or the statute under which it was taken suffers a constitutional infirmity. I FIND no violation of Article I, ¶1 of the New Jersey Constitution, of the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, of the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, of the Equal Protection Clause, of the school laws or any failure to provide safe and adequate transportation. Having carefully balanced all arguments, I CONCLUDE that the motion for summary judgment of the Piscataway Board of Education must be GRANTED and the petition of appeal DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PISCATAWAY, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon independent and careful review of the record, the Commissioner agrees with and adopts the recommendation of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) to deny petitioners' motion for summary decision and dismiss the Petition of Appeal. Initially, the Commissioner emphasizes that the ALJ is correct in determining at page 15 of the Initial Decision that while administrative agencies may base their decisions on constitutional considerations, they have only the power to pass upon certain constitutional questions. Of this, the ALJ states:

> According to the New Jersey Supreme Court in Abbott v. Burke, above, "facial constitutional challenges to statutes should be judicially resolved, even where an as-applied challenge to a statute may strongly suggest initial agency jurisdiction." 100 N.J. at 299. However, it is appropriate for an administrative tribunal to review a constitutional issue "to develop a fully informed factual record and maximize the soundness of determinations through the agency's expertise." Ibid. ***

Secondly, the Commissioner is in full agreement with the ALJ that resolution of the instant matter essentially rests upon the clear wording of the statute which permits subscription busing of pupils who are not remote from school. The portion of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 relevant to the controversy herein unequivocally states that a board of education "may also enter into a contract for the transportation of pupils who live less than two and a half miles from any not for profit nonpublic schooland may require that [the individual] having legal custody of the child shall pay all or a part of the costs of that transportation." (emphasis supplied) As recognized by the ALJ,

> [t]he words may and shall are, perhaps, the two most important words in statutory construction. It is well settled that may is permissive and shall is mandatory. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.3 invests in local boards of education the discretion to provide subscription busing to non-public school pupils, or not. If a local board of education decides not to offer such busing, it is not offered and will not be offered until and unless the board acts by appropriate resolution to initiate it. What a board has done, a board may undo. The same board could, at a later date, decide to discontinue such busing. (Initial Decision at p. 17)

Review of this matter persuades the Commissioner that the ALJ carefully balanced the arguments of the parties and that his findings and conclusions are supported by the record. Further, the Commissioner believes that the holding in this matter is consistent with the decisions of the State Board of Education and the New Jersey Superior Court in Parents for Student Safety, Inc. v. Board of Education of Morris School District, Morris County, decided by the Commissioner August 24, 1984, rev'd State Board, February 5, 1986, aff'd Appellate Division, unreported opinion Docket No. A-3257–T7, decided February 17, 1987, cert. denied 108 N.J. 180 (1987), a case which challenged the action of the Morris Board of Education to provide courtesy busing only to public school students. Like the statute being challenged herein, the statute authorizing courtesy busing of students who do not live remote from school,

N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.1, is permissive. The State Board and court holdings in Parents for Student Safety, supra, determined that N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.1 permits, but does not require, a board of education to provide courtesy busing to private school students even when it provides such transportation to public school students. The same conclusion, the Commissioner believes, results from examination of the record and legal arguments of the parties in this matter.

Accordingly for the reasons well expressed in the initial decision, the Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

In consolidated matter, petitioning Association and two school nurses asserted the Board terminated their employment pursuant to a RIF and retained other nursing professionals who were noncertified and/or nontenured. Petitioners alleged these individuals were hired under unlawful contract arrangements. The Board sought summary decision on the grounds that 1) it performed a lawful RIF to eliminate the school nurse positions held by petitioners, and 2) it entered into a contract with the Department of Health of Montclair (DOH) for the provision of certain nursing services to the school district which was legal pursuant to both N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1 and the Interlocal Services Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 40:8A-1 et seq. Petitioners likewise moved for summary decision.

ALJ concluded that petitioners suffered no injury by virtue of the Board's action and they were entitled to no relief in this matter. The Board could legally abolish their positions as part of a reduction in force and legally contract out those services that are not restricted to certificated nurses to the DOH. Moreover, the ALJ concluded that the Association is not entitled to compel the Board to provide all health-related services in the school district through the employment of certificated nurses, and that the Board's contract comports with the Interlocal Services Act. Since petitioners only raised the general issue that no school nursing duties could be contracted out and since the contracts in question have already been performed, the ALJ concluded that no relief may be granted to the Association as a result of this appeal. ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision and denied petitioners' motion for summary decision. ALJ ordered petitioners' appeals dismissed with prejudice.

Commissioner affirmed finding that, although the DOH contract did not violate school laws or the Interlocal Services Act, the Board's assignment of duties to these contracted nurses, as evidenced by the contract, did not appear to consistently comport with the holdings in Old Bridge and Dover. To the extent that a contract exists for the current school year, the Commissioner ordered the Board to review such contract to ensure that the duties performed by the contracted nurses do not conflict with the duties specifically reserved for certificated school nurses who must be employed by the District, to make revisions as necessary, and to submit results of the revisions, within 120 days, to the Essex County Superintendent of Schools for review and approval.

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

On July 23, 1997, petitioners Montclair Education Association and Moira Palisits filed a petition with the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, seeking relief from the action of respondent Montclair Board of Education (Board). Petitioners allege that the Board abolished the position of Palisits as a school nurse and contracted with respondents Department of Health of Montclair and the Township of Montclair for the provision of certain nursing services in violation of the tenure rights of petitioner Palisits. On July 29, 1997, petitioner Cynthia Samuel filed a petition alleging the same violation of her tenure rights. On October 1, 1997, both appeals were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as contested cases pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matters were consolidated at the request of the parties.

On June 5, 1998, an order was issued by the undersigned dismissing both petitions with respect to the Department of Health of the Township of Montclair because the Commissioner of Education has no jurisdiction to grant relief against this respondent. The order failed to mention that the appeals were also dismissed against the Township of Montclair for the same reason. This omission is corrected at this time, and it is ORDERED that the consolidated appeals are hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE with respect to the Township.

Following a series of conference calls with the parties, it was determined that the material facts in this matter could be stipulated and the appeals heard upon the papers in the form of cross-motions for summary decision. The parties prepared a joint stipulation of facts and a briefing schedule was established. The record closed on May 18, 1999, when the final submission was received from the parties.

JOINT STIPULATION OF FACTS

1. Petitioner Montclair Education Association is the majority representative of all certified non-administrative staff employed by respondent Board of Education of the Township of Montclair (Board).

2. The Board is obligated to provide school nursing services in accordance with the laws and regulations of the State of New Jersey.

3. A job description issued by the Board for the position of School Nurse exists (J-1).

4. Petitioner Moira Roberts Palisits began employment as a school nurse in the Montclair School District (District) on February 1, 1992. Palisits holds an Educational Services Certificate with an Endorsement as a School Nurse (J-2).

5. Petitioner Cynthia Samuel began employment as a school nurse in the District on September 8, 1992. Samuel holds an Educational Services Certificate with an Endorsement as a School Nurse (J-3).

6. By resolution passed on June 3, 1996, the Board resolved to authorize the Board President and the Board Secretary to execute a contract with the Township of Montclair Department of Health (DOH) to provide health services to certain schools within the District (J-4).

7. The Board entered into a contract with the DOH, effective September 1, 1996 through June 30, 1997, for the provision of nursing services (96-97 Agreement, J-5).

8. In accordance with the terms of the 96-97 Agreement, the Board agreed to engage the DOH for the provision of registered nurses to fill the equivalent of three and one-half (3.5) nursing positions at the following schools: Bradford, .5; Edgemont, 1.0; Northeast, 1.0; Rand, .5; and Watchung, .5.

9. Each of the nurses who serviced the various schools identified in the 96-97 Agreement were fully licensed and registered in accordance with the guidelines set forth by the State of New Jersey, Board of Nursing.

10. A job description exists for the nurses retained by the DOH and who have been assigned to the District (J-6).

11. In or about April 1997, the Board of School Estimate (BSE) decreased the District budget by $700,000.

12. In anticipation of discussion concerning Palisits' employment with the District and as required by the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 et seq. (OPMA), the Board notified Palisits of a public meeting scheduled for May 5, 1997 (J-7).

13. In anticipation of discussion concerning Samuel's employment with the District and as required by the OPMA, the Board notified Samuel of a public meeting scheduled for May 5, 1997 (J-8).

14. For reasons of economy, the Board abolished two school nursing positions effective following June 30, 1997. Although petitioners stipulate to this fact, petitioners do not stipulate that respondent had or has the legal authority to provide school health-related services through a contract with the DOH.

15. Because Palisits and Samuel had the least amount of seniority among the tenured school nurses at the time the reduction in force was effectuated, their employment in the District was terminated effective following June 30, 1997.

16. By resolution passed on June 23, 1997, the Board resolved to authorize the Board President and the Board Secretary to execute a new contract with the DOH to continue providing health services to certain schools within the District (J-9).

17. The Board entered into a new contract with the DOH, effective September 1, 1997 through June 30, 1998, for the provision of nursing services (the 97-98 Agreement, J-10).

18. In accordance with the terms of the 97-98 Agreement, the Board agreed to engage the DOH for the provision of registered nurses to fill the equivalent of eight (8) nursing positions at the following schools: Bradford, Edgemont, Hillside, Mount Hebron, Northeast, Rand, Watchung, George Inness and Immaculate Conception/St. James.

19. Each of the nurses who serviced the various schools identified in the 97-98 Agreement were fully licensed and registered in accordance with the guidelines set forth by the State of New Jersey Board of Nursing.

20. By resolution passed on June 1, 1998, the Board resolved to authorize the Board President and the Board Secretary to execute a new contract with the DOH to continue providing health services to certain schools within the District (J-11).

21. The Board entered into a new contract with the DOH, effective September 1, 1998 through June 30, 1999, for the provision of nursing services (98-99 Agreement, J-12).

22. In accordance with the terms of the 98-99 Agreement, the Board agreed to engage the DOH for the provision of registered nurses to fill the equivalent of eight (8) nursing positions at the following schools: Bradford, Edgemont, Hillside, Mount Hebron, Northeast, Rand, Watchung, George Inness and Renaissance.

23. Each of the nurses who serviced the various schools identified in the 98-99 Agreement are fully licensed and registered in accordance with the guidelines set forth by the State of New Jersey Board of Nursing.

24. The following individuals were employed by the DOH for the 1997-98 school year to provide nursing services to the school district.

36. On September 11, 1997, the Board filed an Answer to Petition of Appeal.

37. On or about October 1, 1997, the matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested matter.

38. On June 5, 1998, the Honorable Edith Klinger, ALJ, sua sponte dismissed the Township of Montclair and the DOH as parties to this matter.

THE POSITIONS OF THE PARTIES

The parties agree that the central question in this matter is whether a school board may provide for school nursing services required by N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1 through a contract with a local governmental agency, in this case the Montclair DOH.

Petitioners argue that the agreement between the Board and the DOH is illegal because N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1 mandates that the Board must employ and manage its own school nurses. They further argue that the contract is also illegal because it is in violation of the Interlocal Services Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 40:8A-1 et seq. Consequently, the implementation of the contract with the DOH violates the tenure and seniority rights of Palisits and Samuel.

The Board seeks summary decision on the grounds that (1) it performed a lawful reduction in force to eliminate the school nurse positions held by Palisits and Samuel; and (2) it entered into a contract with the DOH for the provision of certain nursing services to the school district which was legal pursuant to both N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1 and the Act. As a result, the tenure and seniority rights of Palisits and Samuel were not violated and the petitioners are entitled to no relief in this matter.

THE APPLICABLE LAW

In their brief and in the joint stipulation of facts, petitioners did not challenge the authority of the Board to effectuate a reduction in force for reasons of economy and efficiency, whether or not the employees who are affected by the reduction are tenured. They also do not claim that there must be a certificated nurse employed for each school in the district since that was not the case even before the positions of Palisits and Samuel were abolished. Rather, they argue that the rights of Palisits and Samuel were violated because the two tenured employees were replaced by "school nurses" supplied by the DOH under an illegal contract with the Board. Moreover, the alleged school nurse positions were filled by contract nurses who are not necessarily qualified to hold them under the education statutes and regulations.

The two reasons given by petitioners for declaring the contract illegal are interrelated. The first part of the question to be addressed will be the claim that the contract is in violation of the Interlocal Services Act, N.J.S.A. 40:8A-1 et seq.

This Act was designed to > facilitate and promote interlocal and regional service agreements, and therefore the grant of power under this act is intended to be as broad as is consistent with general law relating to local government.

N.J.S.A. 40:8A-3 permits any local unit of the State to enter into a contract with any other local unit or units to provide any services jointly which "any party to the agreement is empowered to render within its own jurisdiction." Since both a school district and a municipality are "local units" as defined by N.J.S.A. 40:8A-2(a), I CONCLUDE that any purported illegality in the present contract can only be based upon the nature of the services to be provided under the contract.

Within N.J.S.A. 18A, and the regulations promulgated pursuant to it, specifically N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.7, school nurses must be certificated and the requirements for certification are set forth therein. In order to avoid confusion, for the remainder of this initial decision, these nurses will henceforth be referred to as certificated nurses. Duly licensed but noncertificated nurses will be referred to simply as contract nurses or DOH nurses.

Petitioners argue that the DOH nurses cannot legally provide any nursing services to the District, not just those services that by law can only be provided by certificated nurses. Consequently, the DOH cannot enter into a contract with the school district to provide such services. N.J.S.A. 40:8A-5. In support of this argument, they rely upon United Water Resources v. North Jersey Water Supply Commission, 295 N.J. Super. 305 (App. Div. 1996), aff'd, 151 N.J. 497 (1997).

In United Water Resources, 295 N.J. Super. at 317, the Appellate Division determined that North Jersey Water, a regional supply commission, did not have the authority pursuant to its enabling legislation to provide retail municipal water service and, therefore, could not enter into a contract with the City of Bayonne to operate its municipal water system. North Jersey only had statutory authorization for the wholesale provision and transmission of water. As a result, the court held that its contract with Bayonne was in violation of the Act, since North Jersey was not empowered to render the contracted services within its own jurisdiction, N.J.S.A. 40:8A-3, and could not legally perform them for itself, N.J.S.A. 40:8A-5.

In the present matter, petitioners do not dispute that the DOH is authorized to provide nursing services. Petitioners' argument is that the DOH cannot provide the school district with services that must be provided by certificated nurses who must be > appointed by the board of education having charge of the school or schools in which the services are to be rendered and shall be under the direction of said board or an officer or employee of the board designated by it and the salary of such person shall be fixed by, and paid from the funds of said board . . . .

> [N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1.]

Petitioners, citing Dover Education Association v. Board of Education of Dover, EDU 11164-96 (Oct. 24, 1997) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/>, modified, Comm'r of Educ. # 637-97 (Dec. 12, 1997) <http://www.state.nj.us/njded/legal/>, interpret this statute to mean that any contracting out of nursing services performed for school districts is violative of N.J.S.A. 18A:40-1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1.

This interpretation is contrary to the Commissioner's final decision in Dover. He recognized that each school district is required to employ at least one school nurse who > must be appropriately certified by the State Board of Examiners and who is considered a teaching staff member for purposes of salary, tenure and evaluation and to perform duties expressly reserved to school nurses.

However, he relied upon the prior Commissioner's decision in Old Bridge Township Education Association v. Board of Education of the Township of Old Bridge, Middlesex County, Comm'r of Educ. # 621-97 (Nov. 26, 1997), clarified, State Bd. of Educ. # 101-97 (April 1, 1998) <http://www.state.nj.us/njded/legal/>, to rule that nothing can prevent a Board from determining for reasons of economy and efficiency that duly licensed health professionals may provide those nursing services that do not require educational certification.

> Additionally, so long as noncertificated nurses do not perform nursing functions requiring a certificate except as delegated by the school nurse, and so long as professionals practicing under authority of a license are supervised in accordance with any conditions specified by the terms of that license, there is nothing to prevent duly qualified persons from assisting certificated school nurses in the performance of duties reserved by law to such nurses.

He concluded that > nothing in the controlling statute would act to preclude a board from contracting for the services of noncertificated nurses, performing duties consistent with the dictates of Old Bridge, supra.

The Commissioner deemed this to be a matter of managerial prerogative, limited only where the board's action conflicts with specific rights established under the school law. He then ordered the Dover Board of Education to > review its assignments to determine whether the duties performed by the noncertificated nurses employed by contract conflict with duties specifically reserved for certificated nurses and to adjust its staffing as necessary.

The State Board, in Old Bridge, clarified the Commissioner's decision to stress that > duties which may be performed only by a staff member possessing certification as a school nurse, N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.7, may not be delegated to an individual who does not possess such certification.

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that Montclair can legally contract to have nurses performing duties not reserved for certificated nurses as long as the contract nurses are duly licensed and the duties are ones that are delegable under the education statutes and regulations. I CONCLUDE that such contracts are not in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:40-1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1.

Petitioners nowhere deny that DOH is able to provide the services of duly licensed, noncertificated nurses for itself in its own jurisdiction. See also N.J.S.A. 26:3-1, -19; N.J.A.C. 8:52-2.3(a), -7.8(a). The education laws and regulations require only that certain nursing functions that require certification be performed by certificated nurses. Other functions, not reserved for certificated nurses, may legally be performed by "duly qualified persons," such as the contract nurses provided by the DOH (Dover, supra, C # 637-97 at 10 <http://www.state.nj.us/njded/legal/>).

Consequently, as long as the nurses provided by the DOH render services to the District that are not restricted to certificated nurses and as long as the DOH is empowered to render the contracted services within its own jurisdiction, N.J.S.A. 40:8A-3, and can legally perform them for itself, N.J.S.A. 40:8A-5, I CONCLUDE that the contract between the Board and the DOH was not in violation of the Interlocal Services Act. United Water Resources, supra, 295 N.J. Super. 305.

I FIND no evidence in the contract between the Board and the DOH that some duties to be assumed by the contract nurses are restricted to certificated nurses. Petitioners' argument that there is overlap between items in the job description of a "school nurse" and the nursing services enumerated in the contract is not persuasive. Not all items listed in the job description are restricted duties. Screening for scoliosis may be performed by physical education teachers, N.J.S.A. 18A:40-4.3, and audiometric screening of students may be performed by other licensed medical and health care personnel, N.J.S.A. 18A:40-4.3; N.J.A.C. 6:29-5.1. Nothing precludes a contract nurse from carrying them out.

For all of the reasons mentioned above, I CONCLUDE that petitioners Palisits and Samuel have suffered no injury by virtue of the Board's action and they are entitled to no relief in this matter. The Board could legally abolish their positions as part of a reduction in force, and legally contract out those services that are not restricted to certificated nurses to the DOH.

With respect to petitioner Montclair Education Association, I CONCLUDE that it is not entitled to compel the Board to provide all health-related services in the school district through the employment of certificated nurses. I further CONCLUDE that the Association is only entitled to ensure for the future, if there is no change in the law, that contract nurses are not performing duties reserved to certificated nurses under the school laws and regulations.

Petitioners only raised the general issue that no school nursing duties could be contracted out and did not point to any specific duties assigned to contract nurses that should have been reserved for certificated nurses. In addition, the contracts in question were in effect for the 1996-97, 1997-98, and 1998-99 schools years and have already been performed. As a result, I CONCLUDE that no relief may be granted to the Association as a result of this appeal.

ORDER

Based upon the above, I ORDER that the motion of the Board for summary decision is hereby GRANTED. It is further ORDERED that the motion of petitioners for summary decision is hereby DENIED.

Since I FIND that this decision disposes of all matters in issue, it is ORDERED that the appeals of petitioners are hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this consolidated matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioners' exceptions and the Board's reply thereto are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and were considered by the Commissioner in rendering the within decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner determines to affirm in part, and modify in part, the Initial Decision of the Administrative Law Judge

(ALJ). Initially, the Commissioner notes that the parties stipulate that, "[f]or reasons of economy, the Board abolished two school nursing positions [belonging to Petitioners Palisits and Samuel] effective following June 30, 1997." (Joint Stipulation of Facts at paragraph 14) Thus, while they do not challenge the propriety of the RIF, petitioners do contend that the Board is without the legal authority to provide school health-related services through a contract with the Montclair Township Department of Health (DOH), which it established prior to the RIF, and has maintained since then. (Id.) They argue that N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1 mandates that the Board "employ and manage" its own school nurses, and, therefore, the contract between the Board and the DOH is unlawful. (Petitioners' Brief in Support of Motion for Summary Decision at p. 5) Petitioners further assert that the Interlocal Services Act, N.J.S.A. 40:8A-1 et seq., "does not permit the DOH to provide to the Board services which it is otherwise unauthorized to provide to itself, namely school nursing services." (Id.)

With regard to the first argument, the Commissioner observes that N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1 does not mandate, as petitioners claim, that all nurses performing services in the District be employees of the Board. That statute provides, in pertinent part, that > [e]very person employed as a school nurse, school nurse supervisor, head school nurse, chief school nurse or school nurse coordinator, or performing any school nursing service, in the public schools of this state shall be appointed by the board of education having charge of the school or schools in which the services are to be rendered and shall be under the direction of said board. N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1.

This law has now been read to require each school district to employ at least one school nurse, who must be appropriately certified by the State Board of Examiners and who is considered a teaching staff member for purposes of salary, tenure and evaluation, to perform duties expressly reserved to school nurses, and to oblige a local board to employ a sufficient number of school nurses to ensure the adequate provision of the duties specifically reserved for certified school nurses. Dover, supra, at pp. 9, 10.

In Old Bridge, supra, the Commissioner held that while "school nursing services" must be provided by certificated school nurses, other nursing services in the school setting may be provided by any qualified person, licensed and supervised, where the duties so require, in accordance with nursing law. N.J.S.A. 45:11-23. In Dover, the Commissioner found that although school nurses must be employees of the district, there is nothing in the controlling statute that would preclude a board from contracting for the services of noncertificated nurses, to perform other health-related services, consistent with the dictates of Old Bridge, supra.[1] Dover, supra, at p. 10. To the extent the parties weigh the effect of a recently enacted statute, P.L. 1999, c. 168, on the provision of health services in this matter, the Commissioner notes that this law is explicitly applicable only to persons "who are initially employed to provide nursing services on and after the effective date of [the] act," which was July 1, 1999. (emphasis supplied) Therefore, this statute does not control the outcome of the present matter.

The Board herein has contracted with the DOH, a governmental agency, for nursing services. Each of the nurses identified in the Board's 1998-99 contract is fully licensed and registered in accordance with the guidelines set forth by the State of New Jersey Board of Nursing. (Joint Stipulation of Facts at paragraph 23) Accordingly, each of those contracted nurses may perform services other than "school nursing services." Additionally, although they may not perform school nursing functions requiring a standard certificate, as long as they are duly licensed professionals who are supervised in accordance with any conditions specified by the terms of that license, these contracted nurses may assist certificated school nurses in the performance of duties reserved by law to such nurses. Dover, supra, at p. 10; Old Bridge, supra, State Board of Education, April 1, 1998.

Further, the Board's 1998-99 contract with the DOH specifically states that the services to be provided by the contracted nurses will include, but not be limited to, the following: "1. Maintaining student health records. 2. Assisting with medical examination, including dental screening. 3. Conducting hearing screenings. 4. Conducting scoliosis screenings of pupils between the ages of 10 and 18." (Id. at Exhibit J-12) Given the provisions of the Board's contract with the DOH, as well as other documents on

[1] "[W]here education law is silent on the provision of specific nursing services and support functions related to them, and such services do not otherwise require educational certification, there is nothing to prevent a board of education from duly determining, for reasons of economy or efficiency, that these nursing services will be provided by health professionals who hold the requisite license from, and are supervised in accordance with the requirements of, the Board of Nursing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 45:11-23 et. seq." (Old Bridge, supra, at p. 14*)*

record which indicate an overlap in functions between the District's "school nurses" (Exhibit J-1) and the contracted nurses (Exhibit J-6), the strictures of Old Bridge, supra, bear repeating:

> [t]he duties expressly reserved to "school nurses" are recognized as "school nursing services" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1, and include lecturing to teachers on recognition and prevention of communicable disease and other health concerns (N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3; N.J.A.C. 6:29-1.2(b)1vi), maintaining pupil health records and assisting the medical inspector with physical examinations, including vision and hearing exams (N.J.S.A. 18A:40-4; N.J.A.C. 6:29-1.2(b)1i, 6:29-1.2(b)1iv, 6:29-2.1), examining pupils for the presence of scoliosis (18A:40-4.3; N.J.A.C. 6:29-1.2(b)1ii), recommending exclusion from school due to illness or exposure to disease (18A:40-7/8; N.J.A.C. 6:29-1.2(b)1v), reporting, receipt of reports and examinations in instances of suspected substance abuse (18A:40A-12, N.J.A.C. 6:29-6.5), vision screenings, health appraisals and various consultative functions with respect to evaluation for and provision of special education services (N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.2 et seq., 6:28-11.3 et seq.), audiometric screening (N.J.S.A. 18A:40-4; N.J.A.C. 6:29-1.2(b)iii, 6:29-5.1), maintaining awareness of safe procedures for handling of body fluids (N.J.A.C. 6:29-2.5), accessing employee health records when permitted by the employee (N.J.A.C. 6:29-7.4), serving as liaison to the local board of health on issues relating to pregnancy and prenatal health (N.J.A.C. 8:52-5.3), administration of Snellen vision screenings for special learner's permits for obtaining a driver's license (N.J.A.C. 13:21-7.1 et seq.), testing for tuberculosis infection (N.J.A.C. 6:29-2.3), and completion or approval, as designated thereon, of health forms required to be submitted to the State. Additionally, where so assigned, the school nurse will provide instruction to students within the limitations of the school nurse endorsement (N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2; N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.7, 6:29-4.2).[2] Old Bridge, supra, at pp. 13, 14, emphasis added.

The within matter differs from the circumstances in Dover, supra, insofar as two of the nurses employed by the DOH hold a standard educational services certificate with a school nurse endorsement. (Joint Stipulation of Facts at paragraph 31) However, given the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1, and the holding in Dover, those contracted nurses holding educational services certificates with endorsements as school nurses may not perform the above-delineated school nurse services. Nor may contract nurses holding county substitute's certificates substitute for certified school nurses; any such substitutes must be employed by the District.

[2]It is noted that noncertificated nurses may serve as resource persons for family life programs pursuant to *N.J.A.C.*6:29-4.2(h), but may not actually instruct pupils.

Therefore, because the Board is permitted to contract for nursing services within the limitations set forth by the Dover and Old Bridge decisions, having an agreement with the DOH is not, in itself, violative of applicable school law. However, the Board may not have noncertificated and/or certificated contracted nurses independently performing functions reserved to the school nurse and then simply have the school nurse review and approve the results; the role of noncertificated and contract nurses in such functions must be clearly limited to provision of assistance. Old Bridge, supra, at p. 16; Dover, supra, at pp. 10, 11.

With regard to petitioners' second argument, that the Interlocal Services Act permits local government agencies which share like responsibilities to provide joint services, but precludes a local agency which lacks experience and power in a particular field from providing those services to another local unit (Petitioners' Exceptions at p. 4), the Commissioner finds that so long as contract nurses are not providing school nursing services as set forth in Old Bridge, supra, and Dover, supra, there is nothing in the Act that would prevent local entities which are not school districts from providing other types of nursing services to a school district. Therefore, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that no violation of the Interlocal Services Act occurs as a result of the respondent Board's contracting with DOH consistent with the parameters of Old Bridge, supra, and Dover, supra.

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the Initial Decision of the ALJ for the reasons expressed therein as amplified above. However, although the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioners are entitled to no relief based on the within claim, the Commissioner does direct that the Board, to the extent that it may have a contract with DOH in place for the current school year, review such contract and its attendant job descriptions to ensure that the nursing duties performed pursuant to that contract do not conflict with duties specifically reserved for certificated school nurses employed by the District, supra; to make such revisions as may be necessary in these documents and in District staffing patterns; and, within 120 days of the date of this decision, to submit the results of its revisions to the Essex County Superintendent of Schools for review and approval. Finally, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(j), the Commissioner affirms the ALJ's Interlocutory Order of June 5, 1998, as modified in her Initial Decision on page two, dismissing with prejudice these consolidated matters with respect to respondents Department of Health of the Township of Montclair, Essex County, and the Township of Montclair.[3] A copy of this decision shall be forwarded to the Essex County Superintendent of Schools.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[3] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

Petitioner, teacher/guidance counselor, alleged the Board violated her tenure and seniority rights when it removed her from her guidance position and employed her full time as a teacher for the 1998-99 school year. Petitioner sought reinstatement with compensation.

The ALJ determined that petitioner was entitled to relief. The ALJ noted that adoption of the Board's position would be tantamount to not recognizing separate tenure rights under Educational Service Certificates and Instructional Certificates, a principle upheld in Childs. Citing Kartan, the ALJ stated even a partial diminution of tenured guidance service and its replacement with teaching service triggers the right to assert tenure. ALJ concluded that the Board's action assigning petitioner as a teacher during the 1998-99 school year violated her tenure rights as a guidance counselor. ALJ ordered the Board to credit petitioner with seniority as a guidance counselor for her teaching assignment during the 1998-99 school year and to provide her with a calculation of her seniority in that title at the current time.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in Initial Decision as his own. Commissioner directed the Board to credit petitioner as a guidance counselor for the period of her teaching assignment during the 1998-99 school year.

BEFORE DIANA C. SUKOVICH, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Mary McAleer (McAleer or petitioner) filed a petition with the New Jersey Department of Education (DOE) on June 29, 1998, seeking relief from the Board of Education of the Town of Boonton (Board or respondent). Respondent filed an answer on August 20, 1998, and the DOE transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on September 3, 1998 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

Telephone conferences were conducted on November 19, 1998 and March 2, 1999. The parties agreed that the matter could be resolved based upon stipulated facts and documents.

Stipulations and initial and reply briefs were filed in April and May 1999. The parties thereafter filed copies of subsequently issued decisions and supplemental letter memoranda. The record was closed on July 7, 1999, the date of receipt of the last document.

NATURE OF THE CASE

Petitioner is a tenured employee of respondent. Prior to the 1995/96 school year, she was assigned full-time as a teacher in the district's high school. (High School). During the 1995-96, 1996-97, and 1997-98 school years, she was assigned as both a teacher and guidance counselor at the High School and the district's middle school (Middle School) and elementary school (Elementary School). She was subsequently advised by respondent that she would be employed full-time as a teacher for the 1998-99 school year.

McAleer avered in her petition that she had achieved tenure as a guidance counselor in September 1997; respondent would employ less senior and non-tenured guidance counselors for the 1998-99 school year; and its action in "removing" her from her guidance position violated her tenure and seniority rights. (Petition, p.3.) McAleer requested that the Commissioner of the DOE (Commissioner) order that respondent "reinstate" her to a guidance position, commensurate with her tenure and seniority rights, effective September 1, 1998; retroactively compensate her for any salary, benefits, or emoluments lost to her by virtue of respondent's actions; and "acknowledge" petitioner's tenure as a guidance counselor and provide her with a list regarding her accumulated seniority. (Ibid.) [1] The issue, broadly, is whether petitioner has demonstrated, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that she is entitled to the relief.

5. By letter of May 4, 1998, petitioner was informed that she would be employed as a full-time teacher for 1998-99. Subsequently, petitioner was reassigned to her current schedule, including services as a Guidance Counselor and as a Teacher for 1998-99.

6. Johanne DeFilippo (DeFilippo) is an employee of the Board whose employment history in the district is as follows:

8. Exhibit 10 is a true copy of respondent's job description for High School Guidance Counselor. It was adopted as of October 30, 1984 and remains in present effect.

9. Exhibit 11 is a true copy of respondent's current job description for Primary School Guidance Counselor.

10. Exhibit 12 is an historical summary of teaching/guidance assignments in the district as to individuals employed to perform guidance work during the 1997-98 and/or 1998-99 school years.

11. In the Spring of 1998, the Board's budget was overwhelmingly defeated by the voters of Boonton. A total of $1,051,578 was then cut from the $9,691,999 tax levy. Shortly thereafter, Richard Kaplan (Kaplan) began his tenure as Superintendent of Schools. Kaplan, with the approval of the Board, made the final decision as to how to utilize the Board's guidance counselors. His reasoning is set forth in Certifications in Lieu of Affidavit dated September 29, 1998 and April 20, 1999.

12. Petitioner suffered no loss in salary as a result of her mixed guidance/teaching assignment for 1998-99 and claims no monetary damages.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Petitioner did not stipulate to the accuracy of the contents of Kaplan's certifications. However, there is nothing in the record discrediting Kaplan's certifications. I therefore accept them at face value.

Based upon a review of the entire record, I FIND the following to be additional facts.

The defeated tax levy amount for respondent's budget for the 1998-99 school year was $9,681,999. That amount was reduced by the Town Alderman to $8,640,421, resulting in a reduction of $1,051,578, 10.8%, of the tax levy amount.

The percentage of the $1,051,578 reduction, compared to the defeated total general fund budget, without grant revenue included, constituted a 7.8% reduction. The percentage of the pertinent reduction compared to the defeated total operating budget, including grant revenue, constituted a 7.5% reduction.

Kaplan assumed the position of respondent's Superintendent of Schools approximately seven months prior to September 1998. At that time, he considered questions regarding organization of respondent's educational services during the 1998-99 school year, because of a "financial crisis", i.e., a "loss" of the Board's budget and a subsequent decrease of more than $1 million in the 1998-99 school year operating budget (Kaplan's Certification, p.2.) Kaplan's goal was to insure " . . . that the necessary programs and services offered our students district-wide should not be compromised." (Ibid.)

Kaplan recommended that all guidance counselors also teach. Such was consistent with past practices in the district as early as 1960. Kaplan's recommendation reflected his beliefs that such a system is efficient and also results in the benefits of "direct interaction between guidance counselors and pupils." (Ibid.)

Respondent's entire staff was reduced in force; the Board utilized and paid less staff members during the 1998-99 school year than it did during the 1997-98 school year. More specifically, respondent utilized one less guidance counselor, "Mr. Schleinger". (Shleinger). (Kaplan's Supplemental Certification, p.1.)

If guidance counselors had not been required to teach during the 1998-99 school year, teachers already on staff would have had to teach an additional period, at a cost of approximately $2500 per period. Alternatively, the Board would have had to hire a full-time teacher, at a total cost, including benefits, of approximately $40,000 to $45,000. A requirement that guidance counselors also teach courses was " . . . the least costly alternative." (Id. at 2.)

Every guidance counselor in respondent's district, including petitioner, serves simultaneously as a teacher and counselor. Seven individuals were assigned to guidance during the 1997-98 school year. They served a total of 33 years as guidance counselors/teachers. Most of those years accrued after they had achieved tenure.

However, guidance counselors have not always simultaneously taught courses. Employee "Branch" was exclusively assigned to guidance duties during the periods 1966-1973 and 1982 to the current time; Schleinger was exclusively assigned to guidance duties from 1989 until 1998; employee "Krouse" performed only guidance functions from 1989 until 1992; employee "Kacur" served as a guidance counselor exclusively from 1991 to 1998; and petitioner served exclusively as a guidance counselor from 1996 through 1998. (Exh. 12.)

The April 21, 1998 letter was sent to petitioner by Maryann C. Peifly, then respondent's interim Superintendent of Schools. The letter advised McAleer that she would not be "recommended for renewal for the 1998-1999 School Year, as a Guidance Counselor" and informed her of her rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2 and 4.1 (Exh. 6.) The May 4, 1998 letter, from Peifly, read as follows:

> The Boonton Board of Education recognizes its obligation to maintain certain educational standards to meet the needs of the pupils.
> The Board has requested the best utilization of certified staff, therefore you will be placed back in the classroom sector. (Exh. 7.)

During the 1998-99 school year, petitioner, on an "A Day", was assigned, during all four "blocks", as a guidance counselor; and on a "B Day", to three "blocks" as a guidance counselor and one "block" as a Social Studies teacher. (Exh. 1.) Such is the schedule to which she was subsequently reassigned during the school year.

The job description for a High School Guidance Counselor in respondent's district requires a State Student Personnel Services Certificate. The stated major duties and responsibilities include the performance of other duties which may be within the scope of the individual's employment and certifications as may be assigned by supervisors. The job description for a Primary School Guidance Counselor requires a Masters Degree in Student Personnel Services.

DISCUSSION

The Commissioner of the DOE (Commissioner) generally has jurisdiction to hear and determine all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 (Supp. 1999).

No teaching staff member shall be employed in the public schools unless he/she is the holder of a valid certificate. N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2. The requirement of certification applies to any individual employed by a local board of education to perform duties that are regulated through certification regulations. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.1(a). Every newly employed or reassigned teaching staff member shall have an appropriate certificate before such member assumes responsibility for the performance of regulated duties. Id. at § (b).

Applicable regulations provide for three types of regular certificates; Instructional, Administrative, and Educational Services. Id. at §2.3. A standard certificate is a permanent certificate issued to candidates who have met all requirements for certification. Id. at §4.1. Teaching staff members holding Educational Services and/or Instructional certifications are authorized and qualified to serve in assignments and positions for which they hold the requisite endorsements. A teaching staff member asserting a tenure right under a certification must obtain the pertinent endorsement. Ellicott v. Bd. of Educ., 251 N.J. Super. 342 (App. Div. 1991).

The services of teaching staff members, as well as other employees in positions requiring appropriate certificates issued by the State Board of Examiners, shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 (Supp. 1999). Tenure attaches after employment in a district by a local board for three consecutive calendar years, or any shorter period which may be affixed by the employing board for such purpose; three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or the equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive years. Ibid. All teaching staff members who work in positions for which a certificate is required, who hold valid certificates, and who have worked the required number of years are eligible for tenure unless they fall within an explicit statutory exception. Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987), certif. denied, 110 N.J. 512 (1988) (Bednar). Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63 (1982). (Spiewak). Even individuals reimbursed on an hourly basis are afforded tenure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Spiewak, supra.

Teaching staff members having tenure shall not be dismissed nor reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other good cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 (Supp. 1999). However, a local board of education can reduce the number of teaching staff members employed in a district whenever, in its judgment, it is advisable to abolish such positions for reasons of economy, a reduction in the number of pupils or a change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the district, or other good cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. Any such reduction in force (RIF) shall be made on the basis of seniority, Id. at § 10, which shall be determined by the local board of education, Id. at § 11.

Seniority is determined according to the number of academic or calendar years of employment, or a fraction thereof, in a school district in specific categories. N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(b). Full recognition shall be given to previous years of service within a district. Id. at § (c). Whenever a person holds employment simultaneously under two or more subject area endorsements, or in two or more categories, seniority shall be counted in all subject area endorsements and categories in which he/she is or has been employed. For purposes of calculating seniority entitlement, there are no distinctions between academic and calendar years. Id. at § (f).

However, seniority cannot limit a tenured employee's rights over non-tenured individuals. Seniority does not create employment rights for non-tenured employees and cannot justify retaining a non-tenured teacher in a position within the certificate of a dismissed tenured teacher. Seniority does not create employment rights. Bednar, supra. A tenured teacher seeking reinstatement within the endorsement of his/her certificate is entitled to preference in a RIF vis-à-vis a non-tenured applicant with the same certification. Capodilupo v. W. Orange Tp. Ed. Bd., 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987), certif. denied, 109 N.J. 514 (1987) (Capodilupo).

An individual dismissed as a result of a RIF shall remain on a preferred eligibility list in the order of seniority for reemployment whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which he/she is qualified. Such individual shall be reemployed only if and when such vacancy occurs. In determining seniority and computing length of service for reemployment, full recognition shall be given to prior years of service. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. (Supp. 1999). A tenured individual has the ultimate burden, when contesting an action by a board of education, of demonstrating that his/her seniority rights were violated and that he/she suffered harm so as to entitle him/her to redress. James

Whenever an individual's particular employment is abolished in a category, he/she shall be given that employment in the same category to which he/she is entitled by seniority. N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(I). If the individual has insufficient seniority for employment in the same category, he/she shall revert to the category in which employment was held prior to employment in the same category and shall be placed, and remain, upon a preferred eligibility list of the category from which he/she reverted until a vacancy occurs in such category to which the individual's seniority entitles him/her. (Ibid.) See also, N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(j) & (k).

Although tenure and seniority rights are protected by statute, local boards of education also have managerial discretion regarding the assignment of staff members. A local board of education can appoint, transfer, or remove a certificated or non-certificated employee, or renew the employment contract of a certificated or non-certificated employee, upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and by a recorded roll-call majority vote of the full membership of the board. The board shall not withhold its approval because of "arbitrary and capricious reasons". N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(a) & (b). (Supp. 1999). A teaching staff member receiving notice that a teaching contract for the next school year shall not be offered may, within fifteen days thereafter, request a written statement of the reasons for such non-employment. Such statement shall be provided within thirty days after the request. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2.

Petitioner argues that in the absence of a "legitimate seniority-based" RIF, she was entitled to remain as a full-time Guidance Counselor. (Initial brief, p.3.) McAleer also argues, more specifically, that the fact that respondent continued to employ DeFilippo, a non-tenured Guidance Counselor, for the 1998-99 school year, demonstrates that there was guidance work being performed by a less senior individual, which work could have been reassigned to McAleer, instead of a teaching assignment. Respondent argues that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 does not apply when a teaching staff member is neither reduced in compensation nor dismissed. The Board characterizes the current case as a "direct attack" on the ability of public schools to "efficiently operate." (Initial brief, p.4.)

The Commissioner has previously held that seniority only applies to certain rights of tenured personnel and has meaning only when a RIF is necessary. Philip Howley and Dewey Bookhold v. Ewing Twp. Bd. of Ed., 1982 S.L.D. 1328 aff'd 1983 S.L.D. 1954 (Howley); Mueller v. Hunterdon Central Regional High School Dist. Bd. of Ed., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d. (Vol. 4A) (419) Dept. of Ed. (Mueller). Respondent relies, in that respect in part, on the Appellate Division's decision in Stegmann v. Board of Education of the Twp. of Union, 1980 S.L.D. 303 (App. Div. 1980) 1980 S.L.D. 307 (Comm'r 1980); 1980 S.L.D. 309 (St. Bd. 1980); 1981 S.L.D. 1499 (App. Div. 1981), certif. den. 89 N.J. 437 (1982) (Stegmann). Respondent also cites Dallmeyer v. Union Board of Education, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU 125) (1992) (Dallmeyer) and Gargano v. Union Twp. Board of Education, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU 670) (1993) (Gargano). The Board argues that those cases, consistent with Stegmann, hold that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 does not apply when a teaching staff member's compensation is not reduced and he/she is not dismissed.

Stegmann had been properly certified as a Teacher of Industrial Arts since July 1967; and as a Coordinator of Cooperative Industrial Education (CIE), since May 1973. He was employed continuously by the local board as a Teacher of Industrial Arts from September 1997; and as a CIE Coordinator, from September 1974 through June 1979. No additional compensation was associated with his responsibilities and assignment as CIE Coordinator. The position of CIE Coordinator continued to be an existing one in the school district and continued to exist subsequent to petitioner's transfer. Stegmann alleged that he was improperly transferred from the position of CIE Coordinator to a teacher of Industrial Arts and also argued that he had tenure in his former position. The CIE Coordinator position remained an existing position. 1980 S.L.D. at 303-304.

The presiding Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), finding that Stegmann had tenure as Coordinator of CIE, concluded that, although financial security was not at issue, ". . . the protection of rank or status of a tenured professional employee . . ." had to be considered pursuant to applicable statutory provisions. The judge concluded that Stegmann was improperly transferred from his position as CIE Coordinator because he " . . . was stripped of his responsibilities to coordinate the program of Cooperative Industrial Education by his transfer from his position that carried with it the status of one which required a special certificate." Id. at 306. The Commissioner affirmed the ALJ's decision; and the State Board of Education (State Board), that of the Commissioner. Id at 307-309.

However, the Appellate Division reversed the State Board's holding. The court held that the transfer of Stegmann was not a dismissal nor a reduction in compensation because it resulted in no change in his compensation. The transfer therefore did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. 1981 S.L.D. 1499 (App. Div. 1981), certif. denied 89 N.J. 439.

Dallmeyer was a tenured employee of the local board of education, having been employed by it since 1967. She was certified as a teacher of English (grades 7 through 12) and Speech (grades K through 12) and held Supervisor's and Principal's certificates. Dallmeyer had been employed as a Supervisor of English for grades 10 through 12, exclusively, since the 1982-83 school year, and she received her Supervisor's Certificate during the prior school year. In June 1991, Dallmeyer was advised that she would teach two English classes during the next school year. In early September 1991, her assignment was changed. Dallmeyer was required to teach two English classes and to supervise all English teachers for grades 9 through 12. The supervisor assignment increased the number of teachers Dallmeyer supervised because of a reorganization of the local high school to also include grade 9. Dallmeyer was given the choice of teaching two classes of high school English or proctoring an SAT review program, in addition to supervising English at the high school for grades 9 through 12. No other supervisor was added to the high school English staff. Another employee of the local district, Barbara Lombardi, had six years seniority as a supervisor as of the 1991-92 school year; petitioner had ten years of seniority as a supervisor. Lombardi, in addition to other supervisors, was not given a teaching assignment in the 1991-92 academic year. (Dallmeyer at 126.)

Dallmeyer initially claimed a violation of her seniority and tenure rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to 14. However, it was subsequently determined that the case was not a "classic seniority case" because no RIF occurred. Dallmeyer argued that it was inequitable, even considering the local school board's prerogative to make assignments, for Lombardi, who had less seniority, to not have been the one assigned to teach the two classes. Id. at 127.

The ALJ concluded that Dallmeyer's tenure and seniority rights had not been violated and that there was no equitable basis for relief. The ALJ set forth her reasoning in that regard with specificity:

> . . . The proposition standing alone without a RIF or other violation of seniority or tenure rights may have some appeal on a purely human level. Notwithstanding this, however, the logic of it would make assignment of supervisors to teaching positions dependent solely and exclusively on the amount of seniority which they possessed and not upon considerations such as ease and convenience in delivering services as well as continuity of program and other integral facts which go into a determination of whom should be assigned to what appropriate task. This of course may not extend beyond those situations where the individual is asked to perform in a capacity which may be assigned to them rightfully under their contract. In this case it is clear that the petitioner was not treated in a manner inferior to that of Lombardi but in a manner different from that of Lombardi. That difference is credibly accounted for by the considerations which Bergen enunciated at the time of the hearing. While the two individuals' certificates made them interchangeable for this assignment their physical location as well as their responsibilities did not make them identical. A good faith determination was made that it would be most useful to assign the teaching positions to Dallmeyer based upon all the facts and circumstances.
> It is clear that no specific violation of the petitioner's seniority and tenure rights have occurred in this case by the respondent. It is also clear that while petitioner wishes she were extended the courtesy of having been given a choice of the assignments offered, or the position of Lombardi in the alternative, there is no statutory obligation upon the respondent to do this. Beyond the question of whether or not a statutory obligation existed comes the question of equity. In this case the petitioner was not treated in a manner inferior to that of an identically situated teacher with less seniority, and therefore no inequity is > found to exist. While Dallmeyer's reaction to being assigned the teaching classes instead of someone with less seniority is understandable it is within managerial prerogative to do so and it was done in good faith by the respondent. Ibid.

The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's findings and conclusions. Id. at 127-128.

Gargano involved a similar situation. Gargano had initially been employed by the local school district in 1959 as a Mathematics Teacher. The next year, he became a Department Supervisor of Mathematics and served as a Supervisor/Teacher until March 1988, when he was appointed as 'Supervisor of Mathematics, grades K-9.' He thereby became responsible, for the first time, for supervising mathematics teachers in the district's two junior high schools. Previously, he had been Department Supervisor for only one school. Gargano had no teaching assignments in addition to his supervisory duties during the 1988-89 and 1989-90 school years. In early June 1990, he was advised that he would be assigned three daily teaching periods, in addition to his supervisory duties, for the next school year. Except for the 1988-89 and 1989-90 school years, Gargano previously had one or two teaching periods, in addition to his supervisory duties, but never three. Gargano alleged that as a tenured Supervisor of Mathematics employed by the district for more than thirty years, his assignment in the 1990-91 school year to teach three mathematics classes daily, in addition to his supervisory responsibilities in two junior high schools, violated his seniority rights as a tenured Supervisor and/or was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Gargano at 671.

Citing Dallmeyer, the ALJ held that the action in question regarding Gargano for the 1990-91 school year was not a RIF in the 'classic', "or any other sense", because Gargano retained his employment for that school year at his full rate of pay and because he also received full seniority credit for that service. Id. at 672. Relying in part on Dallmeyer, as well as the principle that assignment of teaching staff members is a matter traditionally vested in the managerial discretion of boards of education, the ALJ also held that the local board's determination to assign Gargano to three teaching periods, in addition to his supervisory duties, was not 'unfair', and therefore not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. Ibid. The ALJ concluded that no cause of action existed and dismissed Gargano's petition. The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's findings and conclusions. Ibid.

Edward Carpenito v. Board of Education of the Borough of Rumson, A-3731-973, (Carpenito) addressed the issue of a tenured teacher's seniority and tenure rights when a local board of education hires a non-tenured teacher to fill a position previously held by the tenured teacher before the position was abolished. Carpenito was a tenured teaching staff member employed by the local board of education since January 22, 1974. He had an Instructional Certificate with endorsements to hold a position as a principal and to teach English, Social Studies, and Sciences from kindergarten through grade twelve. In the 1981-86 school years, Carpenito taught Social Studies and Computers for grades six through eight. In the 1987-1993 school years, he taught seventh grade Social Studies. Carpenito also taught English in the 1989-90 school year and Health in the 1992-93 school year. In the 1987-1993 school years, he taught seventh grade Social Studies. Prior to commencement of the 1993-94 school year, his seventh grade Social Studies position was eliminated because of declining enrollment. Carpenito was assigned to teach Computer Applications to seventh and eighth grade students, in addition to Health and Basic Skills courses, on a full-time basis during the 1993-94 school years. During the 1994-95 and 1995-96 school years, Carpenito was assigned to teach Computer Applications to grades four through eight and a Basic Skills course. He suffered no loss of salary nor reduction of "tangible employment benefits". In April 1995, the board posted a number of positions, including a reinstated seventh-grade Social Studies teaching position, for which Carpenito applied. In May 1995, a non-tenured teacher from outside the district was appointed to the position. Carpenito alleged that his seniority rights had been violated when the board failed to assign him to the reinstated Social Studies teaching position. Carpenito at 2.

The Commissioner held that because Carpenito's employment was not terminated, he did not suffer a reduction in salary, and because he was transferred to a teaching position for which he was properly certified, a RIF did not occur and seniority regulations pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 were not implicated. The Commissioner found that the board had acted pursuant to "managerial prerogatives" to transfer teaching staff members and that Carpenito had failed to establish that the transfer was "otherwise improper." Ibid.

On appeal by Carpenito to the State Board, the State Board's Legal Committee (Committee) issued a decision initially disagreeing with the Commissioner's decision that Carpenito had not been subject to a RIF but agreeing with the Commissioner's ultimate determination to dismiss the petition. The Committee concluded that Carpenito was not entitled to the re-created position vis-à-vis the non-tenured teacher because, even in the absence of a RIF, the local board could have reassigned him without his consent from his Social Studies assignment to any other teaching assignment within the scope of his Instructional Certificate. The Committee subsequently recommended that the Commissioner's decision be reversed, reasoning that the local board could not appoint a tenured teacher to the position who had less seniority that Carpenito in the applicable category and could not "delete" Carpenito's tenure rights by affording a non-tenured teacher's 'seniority' in the position. (Ibid.)

The State Board agreed with the Committee's revised report and reversed the decision of the Commissioner, directing the local board to reassign Carpenito to the position of seventh-grade Social Studies teacher. The State Board determined that a RIF occurred when the local board eliminated Carpenito's seventh-grade Social Studies teaching position prior to the 1993-94 school year. The State Board noted that the case was not one in which the local board 'simply transferred [petitioner] from one teaching position to another teaching position . . .' but that the board acted to eliminate one Social Studies teacher, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, prior to the commencement of the school year.' The fact that Carpenito's employment was ultimately continued in another full-time assignment without a reduction in compensation did not "nullify" the action, although it might affect the relief to which he was entitled. Id. at 2-3. The State Board concluded that the local board's failure to place Carpenito on a preferred eligibility list in the order of seniority and reassign him to the reinstated Social Studies position violated his tenure and seniority rights and that the board could not appoint a tenured teacher, who had less seniority than Carpenito, to a position in the applicable category. Id. at 3.

The Appellate Division held that, in the absence of allegations of bad faith, a tenured teacher's security rights are not "triggered" when a board of education abolishes the teacher's position and assigns him/her to teach different subjects within his or her certification without reducing the teacher's salary or other employment benefits. Ibid. Noting that a transfer refers to a Board's right to assign a teacher to a position within the scope of his/her certification, the court held that a tenured teacher may be involuntarily transferred to another position within his or her certification if there is no loss of salary nor other reduction in employment " . . . and the teacher is not singled out for the transfer on a prohibited basis." Id. at 3-4. (citations omitted). The transfer of Carpenito to teach Computer Applications was within the scope of his certification. Id. at 4.

The court also held that seniority is applicable only if tenure rights are reduced by way of a dismissal or reduction in "tangible employment benefits." Ibid. The reason for the elimination of Carpenito's position was declining enrollment, a permissible one, pursuant to applicable statutory provisions. Ibid. The court referenced, in that respect, N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1. Id. at 5. The court determined that the triggering of the seniority regulations should occur when the tenured teaching staff member is transferred to another position and also suffers a loss of tangible employment benefits, for example, a loss of salary or reduction in work hours, even if the actual number of teachers employed in the district is not reduced. In addition, the triggering event for preference based on seniority is a dismissal or transfer with a loss of a tangible employment benefits. Ibid.

The court distinguished the facts in Carpenito from those of Bednar and Capodilupo, noting that in those cases, tenured teachers suffered a loss of employment as a result of a RIF. Carpenito's seniority, relative to non-tenured or tenured employees teaching Social Studies, was irrelevant because his employment was continued in other subjects within the scope of his certification. (Id. at 5-6.) The court noted in that respect, in part, that:

> Seniority rights are not triggered when a school board merely transfers or assigns its tenured teaching staff members to other positions within the teacher's appropriate certification. Id. at 6.

The local board's decision, otherwise lawful, should not be overturned because of the order in which the district exercised its authority. (Ibid.)

As the parties recognize, there is conflicting authority on the issue. Madeline Childs had been employed by the local board of education since November 1971. She worked as a teacher and was tenured as such. In 1974, Childs qualified for, and obtained, a Student Personnel Services certificate entitling her to be appointed as a guidance counselor. She was employed by the board for five years as a guidance counselor, with no teaching duties, until May 1979, when she was transferred to a teaching position. The transfer created a vacancy in the guidance counselor position, which the board sought to fill with another counselor. Madeline Childs v. Union Twp. Board of Education, 1982 S.L.D. 1456 (App. Div. 1082), certif. denied 91 N.J. 550 (1982) (Childs).

The presiding ALJ held that the transfer constituted a "demotion" to a job of lesser tank, which could not be accomplished without Childs' consent, a RIF, or a tenure hearing. The Commissioner affirmed the initial decision, but rejected the view that the position of guidance counselor was of superior rank to that of teacher. The State Board affirmed the Commissioner's decision. Id. at 1456-1457.

The Appellate Division preliminarily found that Childs had gained tenure as a guidance counselor. Id. at 457. Referencing N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6, the court rejected the board's arguments that Childs had not been 'dismissed' because she was still employed as a teacher, that the board had a right to 'transfer' her pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:25-1, and that Childs could "only complain if she were 'dismissed' or 'reduced in compensation.' " Id. at 1458. The court held that Childs had attained tenure as a guidance counselor and could not, without proof of the grounds set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and 6-10, or N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, be unilaterally dismissed from that position without a hearing required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. Id. at 1459. In the circumstances, it was "pure sophistry" to argue that Childs' 'transfer' was " . . . anything less than dismissal from her clearly tenured position. Such a view would render her statutory tenure in her 'new position' meaningless." Id. at 1460. The court noted in that respect:

> . . . The applicable legislation, particularly N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 contemplates that a tenured 'teaching staff member,' or one eligible for tenure, may be transferred to a different certificated position and, upon meeting the statutory requirements, obtain tenure in that new position. What is important is that the certifications for teachers and for guidance counselors are based upon different qualifications.* This case does not present . . . a transfer back to a position where 'the certification required is the same'. . . Childs earned her right to tenure in her separately certified position as guidance counselor. She cannot, without proper statutory grounds established at a statutory hearing, be removed or dismissed from that position. Id. at 1461 (citations and footnote omitted).

In reaching that decision, the court rejected arguments by the board relying on the Appellate Division's decision in Stegmann. The court noted that the decision in Stegmann did not reference the fact that Stegmann was separately certificated as a Coordinator of CIE and had held that position for five years prior to his termination and did not discuss the effect of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. The court in Childs held that to the extent that Stegmann might be regarded as espousing a view contrary to the decision in Childs, the court was "compelled to disagree" with the determination in Stegmann. Id at 1461. (See footnote)

The Commissioner subsequently applied Childs in Ayoub v. South Plainfield Board of Ed., 1988 S.L.D., 941 (Ayoub). As of January 1, 1987, Ayoub held the position of Teacher of Industrial Education and the title of CIE at the local high school. He had held the position of teacher since 1956 and the position of Teacher of Industrial Arts since 1966 and had worked as CIE Coordinator since 1972. He received a permanent Teacher's Certification in Industrial Arts in 1970 and a certification as CIE Coordinator in 1972. He was a tenured teaching staff member. In June 1987, Ayoub was notified by the high school principal that he would not be assigned as CIE Coordinator during the 1987-88 school year but would be assigned as Teacher of Industrial Arts. Ayoub's pay scale was not altered. The board did not adopt a resolution regarding the change of assignment. In addition, Ayoub's prior annual assignment to the position of CIE Coordinator was not made pursuant to a resolution of the local board each year in question, but was pursuant to a letter to him each year from the Assistant Superintendent of Personnel. The only exception was that Ayoub received a Special Service Contract for the summers of 1972, 1973 and 1974. Since 1972, the high school principal had designated certain individuals as CIE Coordinators. The number of coordinators changed during those school years. From January 1 to June 1, 1987 there were two. As of June 1, 1987, two staff members, one of whom was Ayoub, were employed as CIE Coordinators at the high school; the other was a Dierdre Falato. Subsequent to the reassignments announced in June 1987, there was one CIE Coordinator at the high school, Falato. Falato received her certification as a CIE Coordinator in 1979 and had been hired by the local board in 1987 in that title. As of June 1987, there was only one available teaching staff member at the high school qualified to teach one of the course offerings in Industrial Arts, i.e., Ayoub. Ayoub at 942-943.

Ayoub argued that the local board violated his tenure rights as a CIE Coordinator when it involuntarily transferred him to the position of Teacher of Industrial Arts, relying, in part, on Childs. Id. at 944. The board of education argued that Ayoub did not have tenure as a CIE Coordinator and that if he did, his assignment as a teacher did not violate his tenured status under Stegmann. Id. at 944.

As a preliminary matter, the ALJ determined that Ayoub had not acquired tenure as a CIE Coordinator. The ALJ therefore held that his assignment as a teacher for the 1987-88 school year was proper. Id. at 946.

The Commissioner reversed the ALJ's determination that Ayoub had not acquired tenure as a CIE Coordinator. More importantly for this case, the Commissioner also held:

> In light of the above case law, the Commissioner rejects the Board's argument that even if petitioner were tenured as CIE Coordinator, a reassignment to full-time duties as teacher was appropriate based on Stegmann v. Bd. of Ed. of the Twp. of Union . . . The Appellate Court in Childs, supra, expressly disagreed with the court's decision in Stegmann and since that time the Commissioner, State Board and the courts have consistently relied upon Childs as appropriate law on the issue. Id. at 950 (citation omitted.)

The Commissioner therefore held that Ayoub's removal from his tenured CIE Coordinator position was improper and that he should be reinstated "forthwith" to that position. Id. at 951.

McAleer relies, in part, on the State Board's decision in a more recent case, Kartan v. Board of Education of the Borough of North Arlington, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU 435) 1997 (Kartan). Kartan had been employed by the local district for 32 years prior to the 1995-96 school year, having commenced employment as a Teacher of Mathematics, for which he was properly certified. Kartan was employed as a full-time mathematics teacher for the 1963-64 through 1971-72 and the 1972-1973 school years and in a guidance position for the 1972-73 school year. He gained tenure in a teaching position. He was employed for the 1977-78 through 1994-95 school years as a full-time high school guidance counselor, for which he was properly certified. Kartan gained tenure as a guidance counselor. The local board, in June 1995, adopted a resolution approving staff transfers for the 1995-96 school year, including the assignment of Kartan to the middle school for one period daily as a mathematics teacher. The board did not abolish any guidance counselor positions. In June 1996, the local board acted to transfer Kartan to the middle school to teach mathematics for the 1996-97 school year. The board abolished an elementary guidance counselor position. Kartan's compensation was not reduced. He was to teach mathematics one period daily. Kartan's transfer resulted from a consolidation of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades at a newly expanded middle school, a change which took two years of planning. Kartan's total number of working hours were not changed. Financial constraints caused the board to reduce teaching staff in the 1996-97 school year. Kartan, at 436-437. Kartan argued that his assignment to teach one class of mathematics daily violated his tenure rights as a guidance counselor acquired under his Educational Services Certificate. Id. at 436.

The ALJ concluded that Kartan's tenure rights were not violated, holding that the board properly exercised its managerial prerogative. Id. at 437. Referencing N.J.S.A. 18A:25-1 and 11-1(d), the ALJ noted that " . . . transfers and reassignments are not mandatorily negotiable terms and conditions of employment." Id. at 437. The ALJ stressed that Kartan was not 'dismissed' from his guidance counselor position "in any meaningful sense" and did not incur a reduction in compensation. To the contrary, the local board exercised "its inherent managerial prerogative to utilize its existing staff most efficiently and effectively." It was " . . . based on valid educational reasons, notably curriculum needs and staffing conflicts in the district. It was not designed as a subterfuge to circumvent the tenure law . . . nor did it have the incidental effect of eroding 'tenure rights which appear plain on the face of the statute . . .' " Id. at 438 (citations omitted).

The Commissioner affirmed the ALJ's decision, with clarification. The Commissioner held that Kartan's assignment to teach one algebra period per day, while maintaining his position as a guidance counselor, did not constitute a 'transfer' from one position to another in the manner contemplated by the school laws. The Commissioner noted in that respect that Kartan had suffered no loss in status or pay. The board's action, "notwithstanding the choice of wording in its resolution, constituted nothing more than a revision of petitioner's duties to require that he teach one class period per day." Citing Gargano, the Commissioner also noted that the assignment was "a good faith exercise of the Board's managerial discretion and resulted in no loss to petitioner." The Commissioner therefore concluded that Kartan's tenure rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 were not violated. Id. at 439.

The State Board held that the local district's action constituted an improper transfer violating Kartan's tenure rights. Citing Howley and Childs, the State Board noted that a local board can reassign a tenured staff member to any other assignment within the scope of his/her certificate but cannot transfer the individual to another separately tenurable position without his/her consent. Frank Kartan v. Board of Education of the Borough of North Arlington (EDU 11371-95), decision dated May 8, 1998, p.3. The State Board also concluded that although Kartan was only transferred in part, the board's action constituted an improper diminution of the statutory tenure rights he had achieved under his Educational Services Certificate. The action in question constituted a "partial transfer" from one tenured position to another which, if allowed to stand, would 'erode tenure rights'. Id. at 4. Citing N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 and 6-10 et seq., the State Board emphasized that even a partial dismissal from a tenured position constitutes a RIF, "triggering the affected staff member's tenure rights." Id. at 5. The fact that Kartan had previously achieved tenure under his Instructional Certificate, and the fact that he did not suffer a reduction in compensation, were not determinative, although the latter could affect his relief. Id. at 5.

The court held that the State Board's interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 was reasonable. The court noted that it was not within its "review jurisdiction to chose between these conflicting views" and the principle that an administrative agency's interpretation of the statute it is empowered to interpret is entitled to deference. Frank Kartan v. Board of Education of the Borough of North Arlington, A-5978-97T1 (June 16, 1999), p.3.

The court's decision in Stegmann and the ALJs' reasoning in Dallmeyer and Gargano, as well as the Board's arguments, have appeal based on practical considerations. It is clear that respondent faced budgetary difficulties, and its action regarding McAleer was cost-effective. There is nothing in the record to suggest improper motivations. Notwithstanding, I am persuaded that petitioner's position is more consistent with applicable school law than that of respondent. In the absence of a contrary decision by the State Supreme Court, any changes in that respect must come from the Legislature.

I am not persuaded by the Board's arguments regarding its past practices of assigning guidance counselors simultaneously to teaching assignments. Not all guidance counselors in the district previously served simultaneously as teachers. In any event, the Board's practices, which might arguably be related to its motivations, are not relevant to the legal issues presented in this case.

As petitioner argues, Dallmeyer, Gargano, and Carpenito can be distinguished from the current matter. Petitioner gained tenure as a Guidance Counselor. Dallmeyer involved a claim between two tenured supervisors, while petitioner asserts tenured status vis-à-vis DeFilippo, who was non-tenured. The statutory claim arising in the former situation therefore would be, as McAleer notes, which individual has the most seniority. Supervisors earn separate seniority in each specific job title. N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(1)(10)(I). Dallmeyer arguably had no seniority rights to assert since her job title was separate from that of DeFilippo. In the instant matter, in contrast, seniority is not implicated because petitioner raises a tenure claim against a non-tenured individual. In addition, seniority for guidance counselors is not controlled by titles, as it is for supervisors. Gargano focused on the fact that Gargano did not suffer a RIF when he was assigned to teach in addition to supervisory responsibilities. In this case, respondent asserts that a RIF occurred, as reflected in Kaplan's certification of April 20, 1992. Such stance is also consistent with the April 21, 1998 letter. The instant case, contrary to Carpenito, involves a transfer from one certification to another, a situation expressly addressed in Kartan.

This case is more analogous to Kartan and Ayhoub, than to those cases relied upon by respondent. Two different certifications are implicated, the Board reduced the number of counselors and treated the matter as a RIF, and petitioner asserts rights vis-à-vis a non-tenured individual. For the reasons articulated by the court in Childs, I give more weight to that decision than to Stegmann. As petitioner argues, the State Board found that a RIF occurred in Kartan, although the local board did not contend there was a RIF. Respondent, similar to the local board in Kartan, argues that its action in making a partial reassignment was for sound educational reasons, a position rejected by the State Board in Kartan, as was Kartan's argument that the change in question was de minimis. As petitioner argues, DeFilippo was not tenured because she had not yet served three years and a day and, in addition, the Board arguably could have assigned DeFilippo to teach Social Studies.

I am persuaded by McAleer's argument that adoption of respondent's position would be tantamount to not recognizing the separate tenure rights under Educational Service Certificates and Instructional Certificates, a principle upheld in Childs. The fact that tenure accrues separately in each of the certificate categories as petitioner argues was also recognized in Kartan. As recognized in that case, even a partial diminution of tenured guidance service and its replacement with teaching service triggers the right to assert tenure.

I am also not persuaded by the Board's arguments regarding the fact that petitioner has less tenure as a guidance counselor than other individuals. As McAleer argues, because she was the only counselor who apparently asserted her right to a full-time guidance position, she is entitled to that remedy. Finally, I am not persuaded by respondent's argument that petitioner waived any right to challenge any Board policy simultaneously assigning individuals as Guidance Counselors and teaching several courses.

As found, McAleer did not suffer any diminution in compensation, nor employment emoluments. Petitioner's initial request that an order directing respondent to reinstate her to a full-time guidance position is moot. I am persuaded that McAleer should be granted seniority as a guidance counselor for her teaching assignment during the 1989-90 school year, during which she should have held a guidance position vis-à-vis DeFilippo. Petitioner's seniority as a Guidance Counselor would be relevant if she is subsequently again affected by a RIF.

CONCLUSIONS

I CONCLUDE that the Board's action assigning petitioner as a teacher during the 1988-99 school year violated her tenure rights as a Guidance Counselor and that respondent should credit McAleer with seniority as a Guidance Counselor for her teaching assignment during the 1998-99 school year.

ORDERS

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent credit petitioner with seniority as a Guidance Counselor for her teaching assignment during the 1998-99 school year and provide her with a calculation of her seniority in that title at the current time.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of the Board and petitioner's reply thereto were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and were duly considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

The Board's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate its arguments advanced below which the Commissioner determines were fully addressed and resolved by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in her Initial Decision and will not, therefore, be revisited herein.

Upon his careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs, for the reasons advanced in the ALJ's cogent decision, that the within Board's assignment of petitioner as a teacher for the 1998-99 school year was violative of her tenure rights as a guidance counselor and, as such, the Board must credit petitioner with seniority as a guidance counselor for the period of such teaching assignment during that school year.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is affirmed. The Board is hereby directed to credit petitioner with seniority as a guidance counselor for the period of her teaching assignment during the 1998-99 school year.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: July 22, 1999 Decided: August 13, 1999

BEFORE DIANA C. SUKOVICH, ALJ:

NATURE OF CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On March 12, 1996, the Acting Assistant Executive Superintendent of the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark (petitioner) filed tenure charges against Elmena Jean (respondent), a tenured teacher employed in the district. The State district Superintendent of petitioner issued a Certification of Determination in support of the tenure charges on August 30, 1996. Respondent filed a response to the charges on July 26, 1996. The State Department of Education (DOE) transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 23, 1996 for a determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties reached a resolution of the matter. This judge issued an Initial Decision approving a stipulation of settlement on December 15, 1997.

On January 23, 1998, the Commissioner of the DOE (Commissioner) issued a decision remanding the matter to the OAL.

The DOE transmitted the matter on remand to the OAL on February 4, 1998 for a determination as a contested case. Telephone conferences were conducted throughout the proceeding and an in-person conference was conducted on June 24, 1999. In the interim, the parties reached a revised resolution of the matter. Counsel stated the rationale for the settlement on the record on the latter date. An executed stipulation of settlement was filed on July 22, 1999, on which date the record was closed. Attached herewith is a copy of the stipulation.

DISCUSSION

The Commissioner remanded the matter for consideration of whether the initial settlement met the standards articulated in Frank Cardonick v. Board of Education of the Borough of Brooklawn, 1990 SLD 842 (Cardonick). The State Board of Education (State Board) held in Cardonick that a settlement or withdrawal in a tenure matter should not be approved unless circumstances justifying the action are apparent, that is, the employee entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his/her rights, the agreement is consistent with the public interest, and the employee is advised of the Commissioner's duty, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.7, to refer tenure determinations to the State Board for possible revocation of his/her certificate.

As reflected in the Stipulation of Settlement in the current matter, approval of the Settlement will result in the uncertainty and prevention of litigation. In addition, in light of the fact that respondent agrees to submit her resignation, the settlement would not present any risk of harm to students and/or the safe operation of the district. I also note in that respect, parenthetically, that the tenure charges did not allege any risk to the safety of students. As reflected in the Stipulation, petitioner acknowledges the issue of possible revocation of her teaching certificate may be considered by the State Board, notwithstanding approval of the Stipulation of Settlement. Finally, as the parties stated on the record, it is equitable for petitioner to pay all required pension contributions to ensure that respondent, a long-standing employee, can be credited with 25 years of pension contributions, and the payment of such contributions would be substantially less than the payment of back pay, if petitioner did not prevail in the instant matter.

FINDINGS

For these reasons, I am persuaded that the Stipulation complies with the Cardonick standards and should be approved.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and should be approved. I approve the Stipulation of Settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the agreement.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF ELMENA JEAN,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE- OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	DECISION ON REMAND
OF THE CITY OF NEWARK ESSEX,	:
COUNTY.	:

The record, Stipulation of Settlement, and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner is compelled to once again remand the settlement agreement to the OAL. On its face, the agreement is expressly contingent upon not only approval of the Commissioner, but the Division of Pensions and Benefits as well. The agreement provides that

> 1. The district shall pay all required pension contributions to insure that Jean is credited with twenty-five (25) years of pension contributions as a teacher in the Newark School District.
> 2. Jean agrees to submit to the District, in writing and upon approval of this agreement by the Commissioner of Education and the Division of Pensions, a resignation from her employment.
> 3. Jean shall be placed on administrative leave pending approval of this agreement by the Commissioner of Education and the Division of Pensions. (emphasis supplied)

Any settlement agreement effectuated by parties to an administrative dispute shall, upon the agency head's approval, be deemed a final decision. N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1(d). Therefore, the Commissioner cannot approve a settlement which is clearly contingent upon the satisfaction of conditions by an agency which is neither a party to the matter nor the reviewing agency, namely the Department of Treasury, Division of Pensions and Benefits.

Further, upon review of those terms of the agreement, which are within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner, the Commissioner notes two points which must also be addressed on remand. First, with respect to the settlement term concerning responses to inquiries about respondent's employment, the Commissioner cautions the parties that the District must comply with the requirements of Executive Order No. 11 when responding to such inquiries. Secondly, the Commissioner is unclear what term 3 means when it states respondent will be placed on administrative leave pending approval of the agreement by him and the Division of Pensions and Benefits. The Certificate of Determination, which accompanied the original filing of tenure charges in this matter in September 1996, stated that respondent had been suspended without pay. Consequently, the Initial Decision on Remand must explicate exactly what meaning "administrative leave" has within the context of the specific factual circumstances of this matter and why placing respondent on such leave is consistent with the Cardonick standards.

Lastly, upon review of the Initial Decision, the Commissioner is constrained to comment on respondent's resignation vis-à-vis the standards for approving the settlement of tenure charges pursuant to Cardonick, supra. The ALJ states in pertinent part that "in light of the fact that respondent agrees to submit her resignation, the settlement would not present any risk of harm to students and/or the safe operation of the district." (Initial Decision at p. 3) While this statement certainly reflects a legitimate consideration in applying the Cardonick standards to assess whether or not the public interest is served by the settlement of tenure charges, and, while the Commissioner does not preclude the possibility of settlement in this matter, he stresses that when applying the Cardonick standards, concern for the public interest extends beyond the boundaries of the particular district certifying the charges. Thus, the mere fact that a respondent's resignation from a district may be one of the terms incorporated into a proposed settlement does not in and of itself signify that the public interest in this State has been met. See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Wende Stuart, Board of Education of the Township of Irvington, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner, March 26, 1998.

Accordingly, the Commissioner directs that this matter be remanded to the OAL for reconsideration of, and revision to the terms of the settlement agreement, as necessary, to address the concerns noted above. It is further ordered that, if the parties wish to continue settlement proceedings, the matter be held in abeyance pending final disposition by the Division of Pensions and Benefits relative to respondent's retirement and the District's payment of pension contributions. If the parties obtain the necessary approval from the Division of Pensions and Benefits, the within agreement may be modified to so reflect that approval, and it then, at that point, may be resubmitted to the Commissioner for review. If, however, the parties cannot obtain from the Division of Pensions and Benefits the cooperation they seek, or they are unable to agree on revised settlement terms, this matter shall proceed to a determination on the tenure charges.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning aunt challenged Board's residency determination concerning her nephew, T.N. She contended she was supporting T.N. gratis since he was unable to live with his mother and stepfather in California due to marital discord there.

ALJ concluded petitioner did not meet the burden of demonstrating incapacity on the part of T.N.'s mother to support him. Therefore, the ALJ concluded T.N. was not eligible for a free education from the West Orange School District. ALJ ordered petitioner to pay the Board $7,198, representing tuition for that part of the 1998-99 school year during which T.N. attended West Orange High School.

Commissioner, noting that the record in this matter indicates that petitioner applied to Superior Court for custody of T.N., concluded that, under the unique circumstances existing in this case, and, in the interests of justice, this matter should be returned to the OAL for expansion of the record with respect to petitioner's custody application, and reanalyzation, as dictated by the resultant findings.

Stephen J. Christiano, Esq., for Respondent

Record Closed: August 12, 1999 Decided: August 16, 1999

BEFORE THOMAS R. VENA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter commenced on November 20, 1998, when D.W., on behalf of T.N. (hereinafter "Petitioner") filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education contesting the determination of the Board of Education of the Township of West Orange (hereinafter "Respondent") that T.N. was not permitted to attend the public schools of the district free of charge. An answer was filed on behalf of the Respondent on December 15, 1998, and on January 12, 1999, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A motion for summary disposition was filed by the Respondent and denied by the undersigned via letter opinion dated June 15, 1999. On that date, the parties agreed that the issues to be resolved were:

1. Whether T.N. is entitled to a free education from Respondent as an affidavit student within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b).

2. If not, in what amount should tuition be assessed?

Respondent stipulated that (a) D.W. is domiciled in West Orange and (b) is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child. Respondent further stipulated, at the commencement of the hearing, that the child "is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district."

A hearing was scheduled for August 12, 1999 and took place as scheduled. D.W. and T.N. testified on behalf of the Petitioner and in support of the petition and Assistant Superintendent of Schools, Joseph DelGuercio, testified on behalf of the Respondent. At the conclusion of testimony the record was closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The facts relevant to a disposition of this matter are not in dispute and I, therefore, FIND the following as uncontested FACTS:

Prior to November of 1998, T.N. resided with his mother, Donna W., in Los Angeles, California, with his mother's husband, a full-time plumber, and his now six-year-old half sister. T.N.'s mother works in the brokerage industry and earns $40,000 per year. That household income is supplemented by T.N.'s stepfather's full-time income as a plumber. T.N.'s biological father resides in New York City and works for the Long Island Railroad.

T.N.'s mother and his stepfather have periodically separated and returned to cohabitation. Life in the Los Angeles home was sometimes difficult. T.N. had difficulty getting along with his stepfather, was unable to "bond" with him and he asked whether or not he could live with his aunt, D.W., in West Orange, New Jersey. Never close to his stepfather, his home in Los Angeles was "full of argument" and he was not happy. Since moving to West Orange to live with his aunt, he feels more wanted and is no longer residing in an argumentative household.

D.W. is a resident and homeowner in West Orange and is supporting T.N. gratis. She has assumed all personal obligations for him and intends to do so indefinitely. In fact, she has applied for custody (P-3).

The annual cost for maintaining a student at West Orange High School is $10,124 per year. T.N. has been educated at West Orange High School in the junior year class from December 1, 1998 for a period of 128 days. The daily cost of educating T.N. from December 1, 1998 to the end of the school year was $56.24 ($10,124 divided by 180 school days) for a total cost during the 1998/1999 school year of $7,198.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, certain proofs must be presented to the Board in order for an individual child to receive a free and public education in the district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1) provides, in pertinent part:

> Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the > board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term . . . and upon filing by the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district.

Petitioners have filed the required sworn affidavit and Respondent has stipulated that T.N. is kept in the home of D.W. who is domiciled in the school district, that she is supporting T.N. gratis, assuming all personal obligations, and intends to do so indefinitely. Respondent further stipulates that T.N. is not residing with D.W. solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education from West Orange.

What is clear, however, is that no evidence has been provided by Petitioner to substantiate any claim that T.N.'s mother "is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship." The thrust of Petitioner's argument is that his life at home in Los Angeles was not a happy one. He did not get along with his stepfather and much prefers the company of his aunt and cousins. There is no question that his mother is capable of supporting him, at least financially, in light of her income. T.N. acknowledges that if his mother divorced his stepfather, he would return home forthwith.

Thus, the hardship claim cannot be sustained. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) provides a two-part test for establishing hardship. "Under the statute, there must not only be a 'family or economic hardship,' but the child's parent or guardian must also be 'incapable of supporting or providing care for the child due to [that] hardship.'" J.B. o/b/o her Guardian R.H. v. Board of Education of the Township of Ocean, Monmouth County, State Board of Education Decision No. 26-97, September 3, 1997.

While the hardship need not necessarily be financial, the "family or economic hardship must be real and demonstrable, evincing a current incapability on the part of [T.N.'s] parents to support him or provide care as a result of that hardship." J.B. Ibid. at pg. 6. It may well be that T.N. has a better life or is better off in West Orange with his aunt. However, the statute requires much more before a district can be required to fund a child's education.

Having had an opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses, consider their testimony and review the documentary evidence submitted, I CONCLUDE that Petitioners have not met their burden established pursuant to statute in that no real and demonstrable evidence has been presented evincing an incapacity on the part of T.N.'s mother to support him.

I, therefore, CONCLUDE that Petitioner's petition for a free education from the West Orange School District be DENIED.

For the foregoing reasons, it is hereby ORDERED that the Petitioner compensate Respondent in the amount of $7,198 representing tuition for that part of the 1998-99 school year during which T.N. attended West Orange High School.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.[1]

Upon his careful and independent review, the Commissioner finds that the record before him is insufficient to enable him to make a reasoned decision at this time. Specifically, such record indicates that subsequent to T.N.'s arrival from California, the within petitioner sought information from Family Court in Newark on obtaining legal custody of him. Petitioner states that "[she] was told that [her] nephew would have to reside with [her] in [her] home for six months before [she] could file for custody of him," (Petitioner's June 1, 1999 Letter to ALJ Thomas R. Vena), a fact which is confirmed by a form document from Superior Court of New Jersey – Essex Vicinage, Family Division, Non-Dissolution Unit, which at No. 1. states "the child for whom custody is sought must have resided in State of New Jersey for at least six

[1] It is noted that by letter dated August 31, 1999, petitioner submitted what purported to be exceptions to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) initial decision. Since there is no indication that copies of this submission were provided to the Board and the ALJ, it was not considered by the Commissioner in making his determination herein.

(6) months." (See attachment to petitioner's letter to ALJ Vena dated June 15, 1999.) Petitioner reports, in a letter dated June 1, 1999, that this six-month period concluded at the end of May. Petitioner's June 1 letter further states that "[s]ince my nephew will be eighteen in six months, I don't see the need for me to go through the time and expense of filing for custody of him[, b]y the time the paperwork is signed, he will be of legal age" (id. at p. 2). However, the within record also contains a copy of a custody application made by petitioner to the Superior Court of New Jersey, Chancery Division, Family Part, Essex County, on June 17, 1999. (See P-3.)

Under the unique circumstances existing in this case, the Commissioner concludes that, in the interest of justice, this matter should be returned to the OAL for expansion of the record, and for such further analysis as may be necessary, with respect to the status of petitioner's custody application and its effect on the within dispute.

Accordingly, the recommended initial decision is set aside and this matter is hereby returned to the OAL for further proceedings as set forth above.[2]

PETITIONER-RESPONDENT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, October 4, 1999

For the Petitioner-Respondent, D.W., pro se

For the Respondent-Appellant, Stephen J. Christiano, Esq.

On November 23, 1998, D.W. (hereinafter "petitioner") filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, challenging the determination by the Board of Education of the Township of West Orange (hereinafter "Board") that her nephew, T.N., who had recently begun to live with her in West Orange, was not entitled to a free public education in that district.[1] T.N. had previously lived with his mother and stepfather in Los Angeles. In an affidavit submitted to the Board by T.N.'s mother, she indicated that she was having marital problems, would be filing for a divorce, and felt that the petitioner, her sister, would be "able to provide the stability and support that my son needs at this time." Affidavit of Parent, at ¶4.

[1] We note that T.N. began to attend public school in West Orange on December 1, 1998, following the filing of the petition in this matter, as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1).

On August 16, 1999, an administrative law judge ("ALJ") recommended dismissing the petition, finding that the petitioner had provided no evidence to substantiate her claim that T.N.'s mother was not capable of supporting or providing care for him due to a family or economic hardship, as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b).[2] The ALJ recommended that the petitioner be directed to compensate the Board in the amount of $7,198, representing tuition for the period of T.N.'s attendance at West Orange High School.

On October 4, 1999, the Commissioner concluded that the record was insufficient to enable him to determine this matter, observing that the petitioner had filed an application for custody of T.N. with the Superior Court, Chancery Division on June 17, 1999. Accordingly, the Commissioner directed that the case be returned to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") "for expansion of the record, and for such further analysis as may be necessary, with respect to the status of petitioner's custody application and its effect on the within dispute." Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 9.

The Board filed the instant appeal to the State Board. The Board acknowledges that the petitioner was awarded custody of T.N. on September 15, 1999,[3] and it concedes that T.N. was thereafter entitled to a free public education in West Orange.

[2] N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 provides, in pertinent part:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under 20 years of age:
> a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district;
> b.(1) Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child...and upon filing by the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship....

[3] We note that the petitioner apparently did not inform the Commissioner of the fact that she had been awarded legal custody of T.N.

Consequently, the Board limits its argument on appeal to the period prior to September 15, 1999, contending that a remand to determine the effect of the petitioner's application for custody was unnecessary since the only relevant issue for the period prior to issuance of the custody order was whether the petitioner had demonstrated hardship under the standard set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b).

After a careful review of the record, including the papers submitted on appeal, we find that it is unnecessary to remand this matter to OAL in order to resolve it. Under the circumstances, we conclude that T.N. was entitled to a free public education in West Orange during the period of his attendance in the district.

As previously noted, public school is free to any person over five and under 20 "who is domiciled within the school district." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1a. In this instance, T.N. moved from Los Angeles to live with the petitioner, his aunt, in West Orange in November 1998. The petitioner, however, could not apply for legal custody until T.N. had lived in New Jersey for six consecutive months. N.J.S.A. 2A:34-31. [The Superior Court has jurisdiction to make a child custody determination if New Jersey "is the home state of the child at the time of commencement of the proceeding...." "Home state" is defined as "the state in which the child immediately preceding the time involved lived with his parents, a parent, or a person acting as parent, for at least 6 consecutive months...." N.J.S.A. 2A:34-30(e).] On June 17, 1999, shortly after expiration of the six-month period, the petitioner filed an application for custody, which was granted by the Court.

Given that the Court did not have jurisdiction to award custody of T.N. to the petitioner until after the six-month waiting period had expired, that the petitioner applied for and was awarded legal custody of T.N. shortly after the expiration of that period, and that a condition for the Court having jurisdiction to issue such an order was that T.N. had been domiciled in New Jersey with "his parents, a parent, or a person acting as parent, for at least 6 consecutive months," N.J.S.A. 2A:34-30(e) (emphasis added), we conclude that the custody order should relate back to the waiting period for purposes of T.N.'s entitlement to a free public education in West Orange.

We note in that regard that if T.N. had resided in New Jersey with his mother for six months prior to his moving to West Orange to live with the petitioner, the petitioner could have applied for legal custody immediately. T.N.'s entitlement to a free public education in West Orange should not be altered by the happenstance that he had lived in another state prior to moving to that district.

Thus, under the particular circumstances presented by this case, we conclude that T.N. was entitled to a free public education in West Orange during the entire period of his attendance in that district.[4] In view of our determination, further proceedings are unnecessary and we set aside the Commissioner's decision to remand this matter to the Office of Administrative Law.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

Date of mailing AUG 04 2000

[4] We find that the interpretation urged by the Board in its exceptions to the report of our Legal Committee, i.e., that a custody order under these circumstances should not relate back to the waiting period for purposes of the educational entitlement of the children involved, is inconsistent with our obligation to assure continuity of education for those children and contrary to their best interests.

HUNTERDON CENTRAL REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT,
HUNTERDON COUNTY,

Respondent.

Steven M. Latimer, Esq., ACLU of New Jersey, for petitioner (Loughlin & Latimer, attorneys)

James P. Granello, Esq., for respondent

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner J.K. seeks an order on behalf of her son, L.K., a 17-year-old senior at respondent high school, staying the imposition of certain penalties upon L.K. based on an allegation by the respondent school district that L.K. possessed drug paraphernalia.

Petitioner filed a petition in this matter with the Commissioner of the Department of Education on September 1, 1999 (P-1). Petitioner also filed a Notice of Motion for Stay and for Interim Relief on September 3, 1999 (P-2). The matter was then transmitted by the Commissioner of the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 7, 1999, for hearing as a contested case. An emergent relief hearing was scheduled to be heard on September 13, 1999, with respect to petitioner's motion for a stay and for interim relief, but this was adjourned at the request of attorney for petitioner because he had been newly retained, and the matter was rescheduled for an emergent relief hearing on September 21, 1999. On September 21, 1999, oral argument on the application for emergent relief was held and concluded.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

For purposes of the ruling with respect to petitioner's application for emergent relief, I make the following Findings of Fact:

L.K. is 17 years old and is presently entering his senior year at Hunterdon Central Regional High School, Flemington, New Jersey. At the time of the alleged incident giving rise to this petition L.K. was 16 years old and in his junior year at the same high school.

On April 27, 1999, L.K. was attending a ceramics class. During this class he molded an object in soft clay which was apparently designed to hold material which could be lighted and burned. L.K. presented this soft clay object to the teacher for firing in a kiln for the purpose of hardening the object. The object was placed on the shelf to dry prior to firing.

At some time between the conclusion of this class and the next day, school authorities were given opinions from various individuals that the object molded by L.K. was a "hash pipe" and was drug paraphernalia (R-2, attachments 1, 2, 3 and 4). On April 28, 1999, L.K. was absent and on his return to school on April 29, 1999, he was informed that he needed to be drug tested based on the school's Student Handbook policies (P-1, Exhibit A, P-2 attachment 1). A urine drug screening was administered on May 2, 1999, and on May 4, 1999, a negative result was issued (P-1, Exhibit B).

On May 5, 1999, J.K. and her attorneys met with the school principal, vice-principal and attorney (P-1, Exhibit C) and the vice-principal indicated that two police officers confirmed that the object molded by L.K. was a hash pipe (R-2, attachment 2). J.K. disputed this and demonstrated that the object was to be used as an incense holder, it did not have an opening that pierced through it by which smoke could pass it could not be used as a pipe, and since it was unfinished soft clay it could not have been used for "hash" (P-1, paragraph 8). Subsequent to this meeting attempts were made to arrange for an appeal hearing before the Superintendent, but this could not be arranged in a timely manner. As a result, by notices dated May 28, 1999, petitioners were notified that L.K. had been assigned an in-school suspension for three days and that he had been assigned to Saturday detention and was to attend five drug education prevention programs on dates which would be assigned in September 1999 (P-1, paragraph 9 and 10, and R-1, attachments 1 and 2).

At the emergent relief hearing, it was determined that three areas which were the subject of this request for a stay involve L.K.'s loss of parking privileges for his entire senior year, his exclusion from extra-curricular activities for 60 days, and the requirement that he report to Saturday detentions for five Saturdays commencing in October 1999, where he is to be provided with drug counseling or a drug education prevention program. It is presumed that the five Saturday detentions and attendance at a drug counseling/education program will commence on October 2, 1999. It is not disputed that L.K. has served the three-day in-school suspension dates and two days out of school suspension. It was revealed by attorney for respondent and not disputed by petitioner, that the 60-day period of ineligibility for L.K.'s participation in extra-curricular activities has expired and this penalty is no longer applicable. Therefore, it is the penalties involving the loss of parking privileges which is currently in effect and will remain in effect for L.K.'s entire senior year, and the five Saturday detentions during which L.K. is to attend a drug counseling/education program scheduled to commence on October 2, 1999, which are the subject of this application for a stay.

DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

Emergency relief is authorized by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5 and N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6. The standards applicable to a request for emergency relief in administrative proceedings are analogous to those applied in courts of law and equity. The most recent statement of these standards is found in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-34 (1982), and may be summarized as follows:

1. The relief should not be granted except when necessary to prevent irreparable harm, or harm for which there is no adequate legal remedy.

2. The relief should not be granted when the legal right underlying the applicant's claim is unsettled.

3. The applicant for relief must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits.

4. The relative hardship to the parties in granting or denying relief must be considered.

In the present matter, in addition to their written submissions, the attorneys for the respective parties made certain oral arguments.

Attorney for petitioner pointed out that respondent no longer has the alleged hash pipe in its possession so that, in the event there is a plenary hearing in this matter, the item cannot be examined in order to determine its true nature. He argues that respondent violated its own established policies by requiring L.K. to submit to a drug screening when there was absolutely no evidence that L.K. may have been under the influence of a drug or alcohol. It was argued that by imposing the punishment of requiring L.K. to attend five Saturday detentions where he will attend a drug prevention and education program causes irreparable harm in that L.K. is being singled out and treated differently than any other student in the high school and that he is not attending these sessions on a voluntary basis. It is argued that this attendance is clearly punitive in nature and that, if a stay is not granted, there will be no remedy for the imposition of this punishment.

Attorney for respondent argued that if there is any emergency in this matter it was caused by petitioner's failure to take immediate steps to challenge the May 5, 1999 decision of the school district to enforce the district's drug policy. He pointed out that the school principal, by letter of May 5, 1999 (Exhibit D, attached P-1) made the decision to enforce the policy and that petitioner failed to appeal that determination on an immediate basis. Rather, petitioner waited until the beginning of September 1999, after school had started, to challenge that action.

In addition, attorney for respondent argued that the clay object in question was clearly identified by school district officials and by two police officers as being drug paraphernalia. He urged that no stay be imposed in this matter because it is within the authority of the school district to protect students against the dissemination of drug paraphernalia. He argues that having L.K. attend five Saturday drug counseling sessions and loss of student parking does not constitute irreparable harm and that the sanctions have no impact whatsoever on L.K.'s academic program. He indicates that it was through petitioner's inaction that respondent believed that there would be no challenge to the sanctions imposed and the alleged drug paraphernalia was lost or misplaced.

As it was stated in Crowe v. DeGioia, Id at 132-133, harm is generally considered irreparable if it cannot be addressed adequately by monetary damages and, in certain circumstances, severe personal inconvenience can constitute irreparable injury. In the present matter, I am unaware of any statutory or regulatory provision or any case law which would permit petitioner to seek monetary damages for his attendance at five Saturday detentions in the event that it is determined that the clay object is not an item of drug paraphernalia. I agree with attorney for petitioner that L.K. is being singled out as violating the drug policies and regulations and by being subjected to the imposition of a penalty consisting of five Saturday detentions. This is a sufficient basis for a determination that this is an irreparable injury in view of the fact that there is no way of redressing the imposition of these detention periods in any adequate manner by monetary damages if it is determined that L.K. is not guilty of the infraction. Therefore, I FIND that the injury is irreparable.

If the clay object is not drug paraphernalia, the school district has no right to impose any type of sanction. Therefore, I FIND that the legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled as a matter of law.

Petitioner must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits. On the one hand, I have the certification of Linda Batz, the Principal at Hunterdon Central High School who indicated that a representative of Hunterdon Drug Awareness examined the object and indicated that the object was drug paraphernalia. Richard Schneebeli indicates in his certification that two local police officers offered the same opinion that the ceramic object was drug related paraphernalia. Lisa A. Brady, Vice-Principal at Hunterdon Central Regional High School, in her certification, offered the opinion that the object appeared to be a hash pipe traditionally used to smoke controlled dangerous substances. The same opinion was offered by Jan Block, Student Assistance Coordinator at the high school in his certification.

On the other hand, petitioner, in paragraph 8 of her petition, indicates that the object was to be used as an incense holder and she pointed out that L.K.'s alleged pipe did not even have an opening that pierced through it by which smoke could pass, thus, it was not even be useful as a pipe. In addition, since the item was unfinished soft clay, it could not have been used for "hash" and was, therefore, not paraphernalia. Unfortunately, as indicated in the certification of Mr. Schneebeli, the ceramic object which is the subject of this matter was either lost of destroyed over the summer months and can no longer be examined to determine if it could be used as a hash pipe.

In assessing whether petitioners have made a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits, it is not necessary that I conclude that the petitioners have proven their case, but merely that there is a rational basis for their contentions which are likely to be proven. It is noted in the Crowe v. DiGioia, that this requirement is tempered by the principal that mere doubt as to the validity of the claim is not an adequate basis for refusing to maintain the status quo. The point of temporary relief is to maintain the parties in substantially the same condition when the final determination is made as they were when the litigation began. Keeping these principles in mind, I FIND that petitioners have made a preliminary showing of some reasonable probability of ultimately succeeding on the merits. In addition, the granting of temporary relief will clearly have the effect of maintaining the status quo while denying the relief will have the opposite effect.

The final consideration is the relative hardship to the parties in granting or denying the relief. Clearly, the burden of attending Saturday detentions and being stripped of parking privileges is much more significant of any hardship which may be suffered by the school district if a stay is granted. In fact, I am not aware of any hardship which the school district will face if a stay is granted in this matter.

Based upon the foregoing analysis, I CONCLUDE that all of the circumstances in this matter are such as to warrant a stay against the imposition of any further penalties against L.K. until the final determination in this matter.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's request for emergent relief seeking a stay is hereby GRANTED, and respondent is hereby ORDERED to stay the imposition of the penalties of removing L.K.'s parking privileges for the year, and requiring that L.K. attend five Saturday detentions where he will receive either drug counseling or be required to attend a drug prevention and education program.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the Commissioner of the Department of Education who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this emergent matter, which included an audiotape of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law on September 21, 1999, along with the Initial Decision and Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. By letter dated September 24, 1999, the parties were accorded an opportunity to file exceptions and reply exceptions to the ALJ's recommended order. Such submissions by the Board and petitioner, respectively, were timely filed and fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

Upon his independent and careful review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has satisfied the requisite standards for the granting of emergent relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) and, as such, the Board's imposition of both five Saturday detentions where L.K. will either receive drug counseling or be required to attend a drug prevention and education program, and removal of his parking privileges for the year as a result of the incident at issue in this matter must be stayed pending a final determination of this case on its merits.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision and Order of the ALJ granting emergent relief is affirmed for the reasons stated therein. This matter shall move forward, consistent with the recommendation of the ALJ, to an expedited plenary hearing on the merits.*

Louis Greco, for respondent

Record Closed: September 3, 1999 Decided: September 10, 1999

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent Board of Education, Greater Egg Harbor Regional School District (Board), expelled petitioner from Oakcrest High School after it adjudged her guilty of having perpetrated an unprovoked assault upon a fellow student on school property and during school hours. The petitioner requested a fair hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to the Administrative Procedures Act N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, and the act creating the OAL N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The petitioner, I.B., has two friends, K.W. and L.D., all girls, who ride the same school bus. None of the three girls have a good relationship with a girl named J.L. I. B. and K.W. report that she "bumps" them in the hallways. L.D. claims that J.L. pointed her out to her friends as someone whom they would "get."

The three girls obviously discussed their mutual adversary with each other. On or about March 10, 1999, Lovey Lilly, a Vice Principal at Oakcrest High School received a telephone call from the mother of K.W. alerting Ms. Lilly that there might be an incident between K.W and J.L. Ms. Lilly questioned K.W. and K.W. denied that any incident would occur.

The very next day, March 11, 1999, the three girls got on the bus dressed for action, jeans, boots, shirt, hair pulled back and no jewelry. When they arrived at school they went first to K.W.'s locker. They claim that J.L. glared at K.W. Just in case J.L. was going to hit K.W., K.W. punched J.L. in the face. The two of them fell into L.D. who joined the action by kicking J.L. as she was down on the floor where she and K.W. were pulling each other's hair. K.W. actually described the two kicks she gave to J.L. as "stomping." In other words, she lifted her leg over J.L. and stomped down on her as though she was killing a bug. She did this twice by her own admission.

In the meantime, K.W. shouted "get this B. off of me" and I.B. punched J.L., kicked her and pulled her hair.

The assault broke up when a male student stopped the action and teachers arrived on the scene. All three girls admitted to fighting with J.L. including kicking and stomping her, but refused to take any responsibility for starting the action or planning it in advance. They were all expelled. This was a planned attack carried out with a vicious "stomping" by three girls against one. The only good news was that J.L. was not badly hurt.

It is presumed as a matter of law that the Board's decision in this matter is valid and the petitioner must show that the action was arbitrary and unreasonable in order to prevail. Thomas v. Board of Ed. of Morris Twp., 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965); Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

Physical assault upon another pupil constitutes cause for suspension or expulsion of any pupil. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2. Neither remedy abrogates a student's constitutional rights to attend public school because the right is related to obedience to school rules. G.F. v. Washington Twp. BOE, 1 N.J.A.R. 55 (1979).

The statute permits some discretion between suspension and expulsion. The gravity of the offense, the students prior record of discipline and similar considerations furnish the BOE with the distinguishing criteria as they do in other disciplinary hearings.

This case was properly brought. It was three students against one in a premeditated attack. However, no serious injury occurred. The victim suffered only abrasions on her face and arms. No weapons were used or even brought to school. The three offenders did not resist when others came on the scene to break it up. All the offenders admitted that they hit, kicked and pulled the victim's hair. They only refused to admit that the act was premeditated. This was a very serious incident and supports the Board's determination to hold a hearing. The petitioner was afforded a fair hearing. She had the benefit of discovery, legal counsel and was permitted to cross examine freely. The hearing was conducted in a fair and impartial manner.

The Board also reviewed the petitioner's prior disciplinary record and her academic standing. Petitioner is a good student and is college bound. She has the support of her family which appeared on her behalf and who conducted themselves and their portion of the hearing in a polite, intelligent and reserved fashion. The petitioner also has a good reputation at Oakcrest High School. Two Vice Principals indicated that this incident, while gravely serious, was out of character for this petitioner who was always polite and well groomed and dressed, except on this one occasion. If it was possible to wipe the slate clean of this single event, both Vice Principals said they would expect to have no problems with I.B. Both also indicated that violence had no place in their school. Everyone agrees I.B. is not a candidate for an evaluation by the Child Study Team (CST).

I FIND the action of the Board to be unreasonable only insofar as it determined that I.B. should be expelled. All other actions by the Board were reasonable. Because of I.B.'s prior good record, because of her grades and desire to go on to college, and because the incident, while very serious, did not include either weapons or serious injury, alcohol or drugs, I.B. should have an opportunity to receive an education appropriate to her ability, but with safeguards for other students and so that it can be seen that the Board is consistent in the administration of its school discipline policy. The district has such an option open to it; an alternative school at the Atlantic County Community College where she may graduate early and if qualified, and an opening exists, take college courses in lieu of high school courses and get credit for both. The district agreed to provide the petitioner with tuition and transportation to the Atlantic County Community College school pending the outcome this hearing.

I ORDER the Board to continue this program for the petitioner for the balance of the academic year 1999/2000 or until the petitioner graduates whichever first occurs.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE GREATER EGG HARBOR REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, ATLANTIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION

The Petition of Appeal, Motion for Emergent Relief, audio cassette tapes of the emergent hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 3, 1999, and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Both parties filed exceptions.

In its exceptions, the Board underscored that its offer to pay for the cost of tuition for I.B. at the alternative school located on the campus of the Atlantic County Community College (ACCC) was, indeed, temporary, and urged that the Commissioner uphold its determination to expel I.B. Additionally, the Board informed the Commissioner that "on September 9, 1999 the parents of I.B. signed her out of the schools of the Greater Egg Harbor Regional High School District indicating that they have moved." (Board's Exceptions at p. 1) The Board attached a withdrawal form for I.B.

Petitioners except to the ALJ's finding that I.B.'s involvement in the assault on March 11, 1999 was premeditated, and, based on I.B.'s testimony, they deny that I.B. ever discussed fighting J.L. with K.W. prior to that date. Moreover, petitioners note that I.B. presented a plausible reason for the way she was dressed on that day, in that she explained that "she always dresses nice at the start of the week, but by the end of the week she usually wears jeans or sweats. March 11, 1999 was a Thursday and she was in sweats and she had coordinated her out fit (sic) and thought she looked very nice." (Petitioners' Exceptions at p. 1) Further, although the Board has agreed to temporarily place I.B. in the alternative school at the ACCC, petitioners are not satisfied with this result. They argue, inter alia, that by attending the alternative program, I.B. will not be able to go to her prom and will not have a graduation. Therefore, although petitioners are maintaining their efforts to have I.B. eventually reinstated in the Board's high school, they note that they "have been forced to give [c]ustody of [I.B.] to a relative so she can finish school with honor, so she can go to college like she deserves." (Id. at p. 2)

At the very outset, based on exception submissions, the Commissioner holds that the fact that I.B. may no longer be attending the alternative education program at the ACCC does not necessarily render this matter moot, since I.B. is still, at this juncture, expelled from the Board's District and remains unable to return to the District's high school, as her parents apparently wish.

Turning to the substance of the application, the Commissioner initially underscores that this matter is presently before him pursuant to a request for emergent relief, where, in accordance with State Board regulations found at N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5, the standard for granting such relief is established by Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). However, although a Crowe analysis would ordinarily ensue, here, the Commissioner notes the Board's offer made at the outset of the emergent hearing to pay for the cost of tuition for I.B. at the alternative school located on the campus of the ACCC on an temporary basis, pending outcome of the appeal on the merits. Under the particular circumstances of this matter, the Commissioner accepts this interim arrangement as fair and appropriate, and it is his final order with respect to emergent relief.

As to further proceedings, this matter shall continue at the OAL for a plenary hearing where petitioners must demonstrate that the Board's expulsion of I.B. was arbitrary, capricious or otherwise contrary to law. In so directing, the Commissioner notes that the ALJ's findings in the recommended Order on Motion for Emergent Relief are of no binding effect, such findings having been made without benefit of plenary proceedings on the merits.

Accordingly, the Board is directed to resume payment of both tuition and transportation costs for I.B.'s attendance at the alternative education program located at the ACCC, should petitioners elect to avail themselves of this option, pending final decision in this matter. This matter is returned to the OAL for further proceedings as may be necessary to conclude this case on its merits.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning taxpayer contended the Board violated the law by disseminating misleading and inaccurate school bond election information to the public in order to promote a position favoring financing for building a new school rather than expanding an existing school facility.

Having reviewed all of the Board's mailings, the ALJ determined that the Board fairly presented the public with the facts of the bond issue in question. ALJ was not persuaded that the distribution of the flyer, with use of public funds, contained inaccurate and misleading information which was intended to exhort voters to vote one way or another. Moreover, the ALJ determined that none of the testimony at the hearing by any of the witnesses in any way, either inadvertently or intentionally, indicated that the presentation of the flyer was for the purpose of persuading voters to cast their ballots one way or another. Rather, the Board intended to present facts to the voters to exhort them to either ask questions or attend meetings where the bond was discussed. ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to establish, by a preponderance of credible evidence, any violation of N.J.S.A 18A or existing applicable case law on the part of the Board in connection with the bond referendum at issue herein. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in Initial Decision as his own.

Record Closed: May 22, 1999 Decided: August 19, 1999

BEFORE JEFFREY A. GERSON, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about March 20, 1998, James J. Adams, a taxpayer living in Stewartsville, New Jersey, a town whose children are educated by the Greenwich Board of Education, filed a petition before the Commissioner of Education requesting him to consider a controversy which arose as a result of what Mr. Adams contends is the dissemination of misleading and inaccurate school bond election information to the public. On or about April 14, 1998, the Board of Education of the Township of Greenwich filed its answer basically denying all of the contentions found in Mr. Adams' petition.

On or about June 1, 1998, the Commissioner of Education, having reviewed submissions from both sides in connection with the Board's motion to dismiss Mr. Adams' case, denied that motion and forwarded this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing.

STATEMENT OF CASE

In his petition, Mr. Adams' contends that inaccurate and misleading information was distributed on December 6, 1997 to the residents of Greenwich Township. The inaccurate and misleading information dealt with the upcoming referendum to secure financing by way of a bond issue intended to build a new school.

A second contention made by Mr. Adams is that publicly funded written documents circulated by the Board of Education must fairly present both sides of the issue and must not favor or discourage any position. In addition, it is alleged that the ballot question was inaccurately worded because it did not distinguish between the cost of a new school and the cost of upgrading an existing school.

Mr. Adams' third contention is that the school board compared the cost of expanding an existing school facility to the building of a new school, cost comparisons which were misleading.

The balance of Mr. Adams' petition suggests the remedies he thinks would satisfy him if his claims were found to be correct.

DISCUSSION

Mr. Adams' first contention relates to a community relations information book mailed to residents of Greenwich Township on or about December 6, 1997 (paid by public funds) which states in part:

> "In the absence of a new school, it is anticipated that the costs of sending the expected 300 students to another school district by way of tuition will cost over two million dollars a year ($660 per $100,000 of assess property value). This cost will grow annually. It is anticipated that in the absence of a new school the tax impact faced by the taxpayer in Greenwich will be even greater". (See P-1, in evidence.)

The above language, according to Mr. Adams, "clearly promotes and favors the new school over the stated alternative". The Board indicated that building a new school would costs $485 per $100,000 valuation. If State aid had been computed into the calculation for the cost of sending 300 students out of District, the tax impact would be reduced by approximately 36 per cent changing the $660 dollar figure to $422. (There was no corroborating proof of the percentage of 36 which was used by Mr. Adams because it was quoted by the Superintendent. For purposes of this analysis, I will accept this contention as fact).

It is Mr. Adams' contention that the distribution of inaccurate and misleading information to the residents of Greenwich Township was a violation of N.J.S.A.18A:42-4 which reads as follows:

> No literature which in any manner and in any part thereof promotes, favors or opposes the candidacy of any candidate for election at any annual school election, or the adoption of any bond issue, proposal, or any public question submitted at any general, municipal or school election shall be given to any public school pupil in any public school building or on the rounds thereof for the purpose of having such pupil take the same to his home or distribute it to any person outside of said building or grounds, nor shall any pupil be requested or directed by any official or employee of the public schools to engage in any activity which tends to promote, favor or oppose any such candidacy, bond issue, proposal, or public questions. The board of education of each school district shall prescribe necessary rules to carry out the purposes of this section.

It is clear that this statute prohibits the distribution of literature that promotes favors or opposes the adoption of any bond issue to any public school pupil in any public school building or on the grounds thereof. There was no proof, nor was there any allegation, that the community relations information bulletin of December 6, 1997 was distributed to any pupil It was, in fact, conceded that the December 6, 1997 bulletin was mailed to the Greenwich Township residents.

Mr. Adams cited the matter of Citizens to Protect Public Funds v. The Board of Education of the Township of Parsippany-Troy Hills, 13 N.J. 172, S.Ct. 1953 to support the proposition that public funds cannot be used by the Board to favor one side of an issue over the other.

The Citizens case was an action for declaratory judgment to render a school bond election invalid. Public money was used for distribution of booklets and for advocating a favorable vote at Election and school children were exposed, pre-election, to a radio broadcast by the Township Board of Education. According to Justice Brennan:

> "There is no expressed statutory provision authorizing the expenditure by Boards of Education of public funds in the manner done by defendant Board for the printing and distribution of the booklet. The power, however, within the limit hereafter stated, is to be found by necessary or fair implication in the powers expressly conferred by R.S. 18:7-77.1 which enumerates the permissible items which might be included in the annual budget, and more particularly as incident to (b) the building, enlarging, repairing or furnishing of the schoolhouse or schoolhouses.
> The power so implicit plainly embraces the making of reasonable expenditures for the purpose of giving voters relevant facts to aid them in reaching an informed judgment when voting upon the proposal."

Thus, Justice Brennan reasons that the need for full disclosure of relevant facts is obvious but there must be a fair presentation of the facts. If the presentation is fair, Mr. Justice Brennan concludes:

> "the power to make reasonable expenditures for the purpose may fairly be implied as within the purview of the power, indeed duty, of the Board of Education to formulate the construction program in the first instant. And the choice of the media of communication to give such facts, whether by use of a booklet, as in this case, radio broadcast, newspaper advertising, or other means, is within the discretion of reasonable exercise of the Board of Education."

In the Citizens case, the booklet in question exhorted a yes vote on three of its 18 pages. It was accompanied by a paragraph of dire consequences that would result if there was a failure to pass the bond issue. Though Mr. Justice Brennan concludes that the exhortation to "vote yes" by the Board made use of public funds to advocate one side only of the controversial question, he goes on to state:

> We do not mean that the public body formulating the program is otherwise restrained from advocating and espousing its adoption by the voters. Indeed, as in the instant case, when the program represents the bodies judgment of what is required and the affect of the discharge of its responsibility, it is no longer the right but the duty of the body to endeavor to secure the assent of the voters thereto. The question we are considering is simply the extent to and the manner in which the funds may with justice to the rights of dissenters be expended for espousal of the voters approval of the bodies judgment. Even this the body may do in fair limits. The reasonable expense, for example, of the conduct of a public forum at which all may appear and freely express their views pro and con would not be improper.

A closer look at all of the mailings (P1, P2, P3 and P4) firmly discloses an effort by the Board to fairly present the public with the facts of the bond issue in question.

The one sentence to which Mr. Adams points to in P-1 is simply not enough to convince me, even by a preponderance of the evidence, that the distribution of the flyer, with use of public funds, contained inaccurate and misleading information which was intended to exhort voters to vote one way or another. None of the testimony at the hearing by any of the witnesses in any way, either inadvertently or intentionally, indicated that the presentation of the flyer was for the purpose of persuading voters to cast their ballots one way or another. Reading the four flyers pari materia it appears clear the Board intended to present facts to the voters, and more importantly to exhort them to either ask questions or attend meetings where the bond issue would be discussed. The issue to be resolved here is whether the Board of Education or the Superintendent of Schools acting on behalf of the Board of Education expended funds to unfairly promote their own position on the bond issue. I find from a review of P1, P2, P3 and P4, in evidence in combination with the testimony of the witnesses at the hearing, that neither the Board of Education nor the Superintendent unfairly advocated any position with respect to the bond issue.

Attached hereto is a copy of the Proposal as it appeared on the ballot on January 15, 1998. The Proposal states, in what I find to be very clear and fair language, that the purpose of the bond issue is to construct a new school and renovate an older section of the Stewartsville Elementary School. The amount to be spent would not exceed $11,965,000. And, if passed all of the statutory borrowing margin of $5,775,343 would be gone.

According to Mr. Adams, the cost of the new school should have been separated from the cost of the renovation of the old school. Mr. Adams is apparently of the opinion that if a breakdown of the cost of new construction and the cost of renovating the old building were presented it would have been a fairer presentation of what the bond issue encompassed. I disagree, and find specifically that the Proposal as it appeared was a fair and accurate representation of the bond issue to be voted on.

Mr. Adams' last contention is that when the School Board compared the cost of just expanding an existing school facility to the cost of building a new school, the cost comparisons were misleading. Put simply, the Board has the exclusive discretion to determine what proposal is going to be presented to the public when seeking funding by way of a bond issue. What Mr. Adams complains of when focusing on the price of a new school as compared to the price of renovating an old school is not an issue that was presented in the bond issue but rather an issue that was disposed of by the Board when they determined that a new school was preferable to just renovating an old school.

CONCLUSION

At the hearing, Mr. Adams conceded that he did not want the result of the bond issue overturned. What he sought from the Commissioner, in essence, is what amounts to an advisory opinion in which he requested that the Commissioner chastise the Board for what Mr. Adams contended were their misdoings. The remedies suggested by Mr. Adams are simply not remedies which the Commissioner should be examining but rather Legislative remedies which should be submitted to legislators.

Though I find that the remedies requested by Mr. Adams are simply not cognizable before the Commissioner, I more specifically find that there has been no statutory violations by the Board nor have they violated any case law as it stands today.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the Petition filed by James J. Adams is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

JAMES J. ADAMS,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF GREENWICH, WARREN COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions initially charge that the Initial Decision is untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.1(d), which requires that an initial decision be issued no later than 45 days subsequent to the conclusion of the hearing in the matter. Here, petitioner contends, the within record closed on May 22, 1999, and the case was decided on August 19, 1999, a period in excess of the allotted timeframe. He further asserts, the Initial Decision was infirm in that it did not include a list of exhibits admitted into evidence as required by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.3(c). As such, petitioner requests that the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) decision be dismissed as null and void and this matter remanded to the OAL for a new hearing. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 1)

In the alternative, petitioner urges that the Initial Decision be reversed based on his exceptions. In this regard, he excepts to the ALJ's conclusion, on page 5 of the Initial Decision, that a closer look at all of the mailings in connection with the bond referendum (P-1, P-2, P-3, and P-4) "firmly discloses an effort by the Board to fairly present the public with the facts of the bond issue in question." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 2) Rather, petitioner avers, such a conclusion is misplaced given the testimony and evidence advanced at the hearing which, he claims, demonstrate "that the Board presented intentionally inaccurate and misleading 'relevant facts,' regarding the tax impact of the 'Cost of Doing Nothing,' at meetings that the flyers exhorted them to attend[, and] [t]his presentation of intentionally inaccurate and misleading relevant facts unfairly promoted their position." (emphasis in text) (Id.) In this regard, he presents "specific facts" which he alleges were elicited from testimony at hearing claiming these show that the Board was aware that State aid was not factored into the cost of "doing nothing" but was calculated in the cost of a new facility and it subsequently took no action to alter the "doing nothing" computation, which, petitioner advances, evidences that the inaccuracies were "intentional."[1] (Id. at p. 3) Petitioner maintains that "[p]ublic funds have been used throughout the Board's campaign process in the development of presentation materials, public meetings held at the school, public mailing , and professional fees" and he alleges that the Board's responsibility to provide "honest and accurate" information to the public that it can rely on in making its decision was compromised by the Board's "intentional actions." (Id. at p. 4)

The Board's reply exceptions initially charge that petitioner's exceptions fail to comply with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(d) in that "[he] failed to specify the findings of fact, conclusions of law or dispositions to which exception is taken." (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 1) It further avers that although petitioner alleges that specific hearing testimony demonstrates "that the Board presented intentionally inaccurate and misleading 'relevant facts' regarding the tax impact of the 'Cost of Doing Nothing' at meetings[,] [he] identified no documentary or other evidence to support this allegation." (Id. at p. 2) The Board urges that the documents it presented in conjunction with the testimony of its witnesses evidence that such "documents were not misleading, let alone intentionally misleading." (emphasis in text) (Id.) The Board discounts the "specific facts," which petitioner avers were adduced at the hearing, categorizing these as "fabrications and inaccuracies," which represent nothing more than petitioner's own interpretation of testimony and resultant conclusions, none of which are substantiated by the record. (Id. at p. 3) The Board urges that inasmuch as petitioner has failed to advance any information or evidence which could call into question the findings and conclusions of the ALJ in his Initial Decision, such decision should be affirmed. (Id. at pp. 3-4)

[1] Here, petitioner is again arguing, as he did below, that the Board's cost computation for sending students out of district (Doing Nothing) failed to include State aid which, petitioner alleges, would have significantly reduced the tax impact of this option vis-a-vis construction of a new facility. The Commissioner finds, as did the ALJ in his initial decision discussion, that the record contains no corroborating proof as to the extent of any such reduction. (See Initial Decision at p. 3.) Notwithstanding this, it is further noted that, for purposes of his analysis, the ALJ accepted such a contention as fact. (Id.)

Upon his careful and independent review, the Commissioner, finding petitioner's exceptions unpersuasive, agrees with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to establish, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, any violation of N.J.S.A. 18A or existing applicable case law on the part of the Board in connection with the bond referendum at issue herein. In so concluding, he finds that even accepting, arguendo, the factual allegations as advanced by petitioner as true, the existence of such "facts" does not rise to the level of substantiating his claim that the Board's actions were violative of law.[2]

[2]It is noted that petitioner's exceptions challenge conclusions of the ALJ based on testimony, he avers, was adduced at hearing below. However, the record before the Commissioner does not include a transcript of such hearing. Challenges to the factual findings of an ALJ predicated upon specific testimony require the charging party to supply the Commissioner with the relevant and necessary portion of the transcript. See In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (App. Div. 1987). Notwithstanding that the Commissioner's review persuades him that the presence of transcripts would not, under the circumstances here, have altered the ultimate determination in this matter, the parties are reminded of this necessary requirement.

Moving to petitioner's contentions with respect to technical infirmities with the Initial Decision, the Commissioner finds and determines that even assuming he had the ability to grant the relief sought, justice would not be served by the conduct of a new hearing, since there is no indication that petitioner was prejudiced by the apparent delay of the Initial Decision or the lack of a specific listing of exhibits admitted into evidence in the decision itself.[3]

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is affirmed and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.[4]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

[3]All exhibits contained in the record were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination in this matter.

[4] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Association and former head custodians alleged Board's actions terminating their employment or transferring them to regular custodian positions and reducing their salaries accordingly, was violative of their tenure and seniority rights. Board contended they had no tenure as "head custodians," and it acted for reasons of economy.

Citing Spiewak, the ALJ determined that petitioners acquired a tenured status in the Board's employ in the position of custodian (janitor). N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, 17-4. ALJ determined that the position of chief (head) janitor denotes a special assignment within the general classification of janitorial services and, therefore, it comes within the scope of the tenure statute. The Board's attempt to create a "supervisory subclass of Head Custodians" who do not have tenure must fail. Thus, the ALJ found that Petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood had more years of service than several employees who were retained, fell under the tenure protection of custodians and were to be afforded all the benefits and emoluments attached thereto. ALJ ordered that they be immediately restored to their rightful positions with all of the lost wages and other emoluments withheld from them for the 1997-98 school year. ALJ further ordered that the compensation of all other petitioners be returned to the level they would have earned during the 1997-98 school year pursuant to the Appellate Decision in Bassett (compensation of a tenured teacher cannot be reduced following his/her transfer from one teaching position to another). To the extent the Board's contract appears to create the opportunity to reduce the compensation of petitioners, the contract "contravene[s] a specific term or condition of employment set by a statute." (Spiewak) ALJ granted summary decision to petitioners and dismissed the Board's motion for summary decision.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioners were entitled to the relief they sought. Commissioner directed Board to reinstate Petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood and, should there be an ensuing RIF, to provide each with preference over less senior staff. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4 . Moreover, the Commissioner directed the Board to compensate them with lost wages and emoluments, less mitigation, if any, from the date of their respective terminations to the date of their reappointments. The Board was directed to restore each of the remaining petitioners to the salary level each enjoyed during the 1997-98 school year and to reimburse them for the amount, less mitigation, if any, representing the difference between what each should have received in the 1998-99 school year and up to the date of restoration, as per this decision, and what each was actually paid by the Board, after being relieved from assignment as head custodian.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners, all former Head Custodians in the employ of the Board of Education of the City of Atlantic City (Board), alleges that the Board's action to transfer the Head Custodians to regular custodian positions and reducing their salaries violates their tenure rights.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held on January 28, 1999, at which the issues to be determined by this administrative tribunal were agreed upon and set forth in the Prehearing Order. Hearing dates were also established. However, subsequent to the completion of discovery, the parties were granted leave to cross-move for summary decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.1 to -12.5. The last submission was received by the undersigned on July 26, 1999, which constitutes the close of the hearing record.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined, as set forth in the Prehearing Order are as follows:

1. Whether or not the named petitioners have acquired tenure status with the Board?

2. If so, whether their individual tenure rights were violated by the Board's action to change their respective employment positions?

3. Whether the Board's action to reduce their respective salaries also violated their individual tenure rights?

Having carefully reviewed and considered the entire record before me, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the criteria for summary disposition of the instant matter has been established, pursuant to our Supreme Court's determination in Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Company of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954). Accordingly, the matter is ripe for summary disposition.

LEGAL ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

Petitioners' Argument

Point One

Respondent Violated the Tenure Rights of Petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood When it Terminated Their Employment

It is undisputed that all of the individual petitioners obtained tenure in their employment positions with respondent under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, which specifically provides that janitorial employees who have obtained tenure "shall not be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation except as the result of the reduction in the number of janitors in the district made in accordance with the provisions of this title or except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense" and then only in the manner set forth under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 et seq. Reductions in the number of janitorial employees in a district are thus governed by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4 which requires that any such reductions must be performed in accordance with the seniority of the respective janitorial employees. Specifically, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4 states that:

> . . . when any janitor, janitor engineer, custodian or janitorial employee under tenure is dismissed by reason of reduction in the number of such employees, the one having the least number of years to his credit shall be dismissed in preference to any other having a longer term of service . . . (emphasis added)

Thus, although respondent may have had a right to reduce the number of its custodial employees, it was required by law to do so in a manner which acknowledged the seniority rights of these tenured custodial employees.

The undisputed facts reveal that petitioner Richard Johnson was employed by respondent as a custodial employee in the position of head custodian from February 1, 1991 until June 30, 1998, when respondent abolished that particular position. Thus, petitioner Johnson had accrued approximately seven years and five months of service as a custodial employee at the time that respondent determined to terminate his employment pursuant to a reduction in force. Petitioner Jorge Cosme was employed by respondent as a custodial employee in the positions of custodian and stockroom worker from September 1989 until July 6, 1998, when respondent abolished the stockroom worker position. Thus, Cosme had accrued approximately eight years and ten months of service as custodial employee at the time that respondent determined to terminate his employment pursuant to a reduction in force. Finally, petitioner William Smallwood was employed by respondent as a custodial employee in the position of stockroom worker from December 1987 until July 6, 1998, when respondent abolished the stockroom worker position. Thus, petitioner Smallwood had accrued approximately ten years and seven months of service as a custodial employee at the time that respondent determined to terminate his employment pursuant to a reduction in force.

In early July 1998, respondent notified each of these petitioner's that he had not accrued enough years in service as a custodial employee to be transferred to another custodial position following the abolishment of his current position. The facts, however, reveal that this conclusion was incorrect. Exhibit J-2 to the Stipulation of Facts contains a listing of the custodial employees who were employed by respondent prior to its determination in June/July of 1998 to effectuate a reduction in force; this listing actually ranks these employees, based upon their dates of hire. Exhibit J-4 to the Stipulation of Facts contain a listing of the custodial employees who were retained/employed by respondent for the subsequent school year (1998-99). In reviewing both of these listings it is evident that respondent retained several employees who has less years of seniority than did petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood in custodial positions to which they were entitled by virtue of their tenure and seniority rights. For example, respondent retained Kevin Gilbert (hired on November 12, 1996), Aladine Marcus (hired on January 24, 1996), and Wayne King (hired on December 14, 1995). All three of these individuals, as well as more than a dozen others, had fewer years of service with respondent than did these petitioners. Thus, when respondent determined to reduce its custodial force, it was required under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4 to dismiss these less senior custodial employees before it dismissed petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood.

Respondent may argue that it did not have an obligation to place petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood in other custodial positions when it abolished their previous positions of head custodian and stockroom worker, claiming that they only acquired tenure rights in those particular positions. The law, however, had made it clear that the statutory coverage of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 and N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4 extends to all types of janitorial and custodial positions. More than 30 years ago, the Appellate Division addressed the issue of the scope of these tenure statutes (previously codified at N.J.S.A. 18:5-66.1 and 18:5-67) in Barnes v. Bd. of Ed. of Jersey City, 85 N.J. Super. 42 (1964). There the Court refuted the Board's argument that these statutes were intended to provide tenure protection only to the positions specified (i.e., janitor, janitor engineer, custodian or janitorial engineer). Stating that "[o]ur consideration of the statutes in light of the principle of liberal construction satisfies us that the Legislature used the terms janitor, custodian, etc., in a generic sense with the intent to include all janitorial and custodial employees," the Court determined that other types of custodial positions such as utility men and groundskeeper are also included. Barnes, 85 N.J. Super. at 46.

The Commissioner of Education thereafter ruled that the position of chief janitor (comparable to the position of head custodian in the instant situation) also falls within the statutory protection of the janitors' tenure statutes. In Brunner v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Camden, 1960 S.L.D. 155, the Commissioner rejected the Board's argument that the petitioner, whose position as chief janitor was abolished, did not have tenure rights to another janitorial position, since "chief janitor" is not a specifically enumerated position in those tenure statutes. Maintaining that the intent of the tenure acts is to extend employment protection to a general category of employees, the Commissioner noted that "the position of chief janitor denotes a special assignment within the general classification of janitorial services and, therefore, it comes within the scope of the tenure statute." Brunner, 1960 S.L.D. at 157.

The Brunner and Barnes decisions were followed by the Commissioner of Education in a decision rendered about 20 years later in determining that tenure rights acquired under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 in one janitorial position are transferable to any other individual who had attained tenure under that statute as a result of service in the position of maintenance man, and who later transferred to a position as custodian, was deemed to carry his tenure status to any janitorial/custodial position. "Since his tenure status did not attach to a specific position (maintenance man), but instead to a category or class of employment (i.e, janitorial), petitioner's tenure remained with him when he was rehired as a custodian. As is clear from Brunner, the acceptance of the position of custodian did not serve as a relinquishment of tenure since it is clearly a position for which tenure as a janitor may accrue." Lauffer, 1984 S.L.D. at 1294.

Respondent has acknowledged that petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood all acquired tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 (Stipulation of Facts ¶¶31, 35 and 37). It is therefore axiomatic that the tenure status they acquired based upon their service in the head custodian, custodian and stockroom worker positions transfers over to any other janitorial/custodial position maintained by the Board.[1] Thus, when respondent abolished the positions of head custodian and stockroom worker, it was required under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 and N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4 to reassign them to other custodial positions since they had more seniority than at least a dozen other custodial employees who were retained in such positions. Petitioners, therefore, respectfully, request that this Court issue an order compelling the Board to immediately reinstate petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood to custodial positions and provide them with backpay retroactive to the date of their termination, together with all pension credit and other benefits attendant to those positions.

[1] The parties have previously acknowledged that the stockroom worker position is an assignment within the custodial category, as the salary schedule for the parties 1994-97 collective bargaining agreement (Exhibit J-9) groups stock, maintenance and shop employees together and also identifies these employees as custodial employees or custodians in the "recognition" provision of the contract. (Exhibit J-8).

Point Two

Respondent Violated the Tenure Rights of All Petitioners When it Reduced Their Compensation Following Their Reassignment from Head Custodian to Custodian Positions

As noted above, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, specifically provides that janitorial employees who have obtained tenure "shall not be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation except as the result of the reduction in the number of janitors in the district made in accordance with the provisions of this title or except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense" and then only in the manner set forth under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 et seq. (emphasis added). Since the law clearly provides that, for purposes of tenure acquisition and tenure rights, the positions of head custodian and custodian are merely different assignments within the same tenure position, a reduction in a tenured employee's compensation following his/her transfer from one custodial position to another clearly violates the prohibition set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 against reduction in compensation unless same is the result of actions taken against the employee for neglect, misbehavior or other offense pursuant to the Tenure Hearing Act.

Relying upon these basic tenants of law, the Commissioner held in Reinertsen v. Bd. of Ed. of the Twsp. of East Brunswick, OAL Dkt No. EDU 10328-97 (May 27, 1998), adopted Comm'r of Ed. (July 8, 1998) that the reassignment of a tenured custodial employee from a head custodian position to a custodian position was permitted by law, but held that the Board could not reduce his salary without violating the tenure laws. This comports with decisions which provide that the compensation of a tenured teacher cannot be reduced following his/her transfer from one teaching position to another. Bassett v. Board of Education of Oakland, OAL Dkt No. EDU 8061-83 (January 31, 1984), Commr's Decision (March 19, 1984), aff'd in part State Board of Education (February 4, 1987), aff'd 223 N.J. Super. 136 (App. Div. 1988), and those which provide that the compensation of a tenured secretarial/clerical employee cannot be reduced following his/her transfer to another secretarial/clerical position, Casey v. Board of Education of the Township of Cinnaminson, Burlington County, State Bd. Dkt. No. 1-94 (October 5, 1995). In Casey, where the petitioner was reassigned from one clerical position to another clerical position following a reduction in force, the State Board of Education declared that a tenured employee who is reassigned within the same tenure position cannot be reduced in compensation, even if the reassignment resulted from a reduction in force. Since petitioners had all acquired tenure status pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, respondent was not permitted to reduce their compensation when it reassigned them from one janitorial/custodian position (head custodian) to another janitorial/custodial position (custodian).

It is, in addition, irrelevant that the compensation for the custodian position may have been established in the applicable collective bargaining agreement, since the law clearly holds that contract terms may not contravene or supersede a specific term or condition of employment which is set by statute, and in particular, the Tenure Act. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed. 90 N.J. 63, 76 (1982); State v. State Supervisory Employees Association, 78 N.J. 55 (1978); Belen v. Woodbridge Twsp. Bd. of Ed. 142 N.J. Super. 487 (App. Div. 1976). Indeed, in Belen, the court suggested that a negotiated salary provision resulting in the reduction of a tenured employee's salary, even if not violative of the PERC Act, would violate the Tenure Act. Since the tenure provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 provide that petitioners may not suffer a reduction in compensation in their tenured positions, respondent was not permitted to reduce their compensation when it transferred them from the head custodian positions to the custodian positions, which are the same positions for tenure purposes, regardless of any contrary provision in the collective bargaining agreement.

In sum, the law clearly prohibits the Board from reducing the compensation of petitioners, tenured employees who were transferred from one position to another in the same tenure category. Petitioners, thus, respectfully request that the Court issue an order compelling the Board to restore their salaries to the amount they received during the 1997-98 school year and to reimburse them for lost compensation, including but not limited to pension credit and other such benefits.

The Board's Arguments

Statement of Facts

The within petition brought in the name of the Atlantic City Education Association (ACEA) and twelve ex-Head Custodians alleges in Count One that:

> 20. The positions of custodian and head custodian are the same tenure positions under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. Petitioners are therefore entitled to continue to be compensated at the same salaries they received in their positions of head custodian.
> 31. Said salary reductions occurred without proceedings under the Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq., and in violation of petitioners' tenure rights as secured by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3.

Counts Two and Three allege violation of seniority rights of two employees, Richard Johnson and Jorge Cosme. These Counts allege that the retention of less senior individuals violated their tenure and seniority rights.

A. The Collective Negotiations Agreements (CNA)

The Individual petitioners were members of the Atlantic City Head Custodians' Association. The CNA of the Head Custodians' Union at Article 8.1 provided:

> All newly hired employees shall be required to serve a probationary period of no more than ninety consecutive calendar days, during which they may be discharged at the sole discretion of the Board (no grievance may be filed.) During the probationary period, employees shall be paid a hiring rate to be set by the Board. During probation, the Board agrees to provide health benefits pursuant to the carrier's regulations, but no other contractual benefits will be provided; however, the Board will abide by N.J.S.A. 18A with respect to sick leave benefits. Upon satisfactory completion of said probationary period, an employee shall be issued an employment contract, and all time worked from initial date of hire shall be counted towards seniority, increment credit and for pension purposes. Any head custodian or cafeteria manager who, just prior to their appointment as head custodian or cafeteria manager, was a custodian or food services worker in the Atlantic City school system shall not be required to serve a formal probationary period; however, the Board retains the right to revert such an employee back to the custodian or food service worker position for appropriate reasons.

> Prior to any custodian being assigned to a school, the head custodian of the school shall have the opportunity to interview said custodian and offer his input as to the custodian's qualifications and abilities.
> Ra10.

The CN provides for no "bumping rights" other than those provided for by the Education Laws.

The CNA that the petitioner ACEA was a party to does not recognize "head custodians" as members. See, Article 1.1 and 1.2.4.; Ra13-Ra14.

Job security for custodians is provided for in Article 25.1 that states:

> After three years of uninterrupted continuous service, each custodian employee shall be appointed for an unfixed term so as to provide the tenure protection available to such employees under the provisions of Chapter 137, Public Laws of 1960 (N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 and N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4).

"Bumping rights" are governed by Article 28.6. it states:

> Any reduction in force and subsequent recall shall be in accordance with the prevailing law of the State of New Jersey and applicable guidelines, rules and regulations of the Board of Education of the State of New Jersey. Consultation when the Association shall take place in advance of effectuating any reduction in force.
> Ra16-Ra17.

B. The Reduction in Force

The individual petitioners were notified on January 30, 1998, of a reduction in force (RIF) by way of correspondence. Ra18.

Discussion by the School District concerning the RIF occurred in February of 1997. In a memo prepared by the Director of Facilities, the Plan was outlined and projected a $752,000 cost savings. Ra19-Ra24.

A January 27, 1998, memo reiterated substantially the same RIF plan. Ra25-Ra26.

Based upon the RIF, the total re-deployment of the custodial function occurred. A cost savings was again projected. Ra26.

C. The Job Descriptions

The custodial job description reflects responsibilities of cleaning, sweeping, vacuuming, dusting, washing and performing "other work related duties as assigned by the head custodian." Ra31-Ra32.

Unlike the custodial responsibilities, the Head Custodial job description reflects an essential supervisory function. The duties are:

1. Assigns and schedules tasks to workers and inspects completed work for conformance to standards;

2. Issues supplies and equipment;

3. Trains new workers, recommends discharge of incompetent workers and performs other supervisory duties as required;

4. Submits requests for repair of cleaning equipment;

5. May requisition or purchase cleaning supplies and equipment;

6. Perform cleaning duties during staffing shortages or as needed;

7. Supervises, trains and evaluates staff; and

8. Performs other work related duties as assigned by the immediate supervisor.

Ra27-Ra30.

The petitioner ACHCA consistently maintained its supervisory function. In June of 1998, it argued, in the context of a CNA arbitration:

> The Association has demonstrated beyond any doubt that Head Custodians supervise and are required by the Board to supervise any custodians, including evening custodians, assigned to their building. A supervisor, defined in Black's Law Dictionary, is one having authority over others, to superintend and direct. The testimony and documents submitted by the Association substantiate that the Head Custodians do supervise the evening custodians and as such are entitled to received the stipend for each of those contracted employees pursuant to the terms of the Agreement.

Obviously the distinctive feature of its membership was a routine position asserted when it served its interest.

By the time the RIF was put in place, the financial stress of the District was well established.

In a November 26, 1997, memorandum to the Atlantic County Superintendent of Schools, it was reported that:

> Please be advised that at least evening's meeting of the Atlantic City Board of Education, upon the recommendation of the Board secretary, the Board voted not to certify the budget. A copy of the certified resolution is attached. The Board recognized that there were insufficient funds in the 1997-98 budget to complete the fiscal year without going into a deficit status.
> Ra33.

The Board submits that the within petition is frivolous in that the bona fide RIF does not in any way implicate the tenure laws. The Board also submits there is no seniority issue inasmuch as the "bumping rights" of all affected employees was observed in strict accordance with the job titles and actual duties of the employees.

Point One

The Tenure Laws Do Not Apply to the within Reduction in Force

Petitioners are seeking to use the Tenure Laws as a means to accomplish a result that would do violence to both the Tenure Laws and the virtually unlimited right of a school district to reduce costs through bona fide reduction in its work force. The Board will demonstrate, that as a matter of law, the Tenure Protection Act does not apply and that the RIF prerogative would be destroyed if salary levels were maintained at the inflated supervisory levels.

Tenure protection for "janitorial employees" is found in N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 that states in full:

> Every public school janitor of a school district shall, unless he is appointed for fixed term, hold his office, position or employment under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and shall not be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation, except as the result of the reduction of the number of janitors in the district made in accordance with the provisions of this title or except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense and only in the manner prescribed by subarticle B of article 2 of chapter 6 of this title. (emphasis supplied).

N.J.S.A. 18:17-4 provides for seniority rights.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 states:

> No person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation,
>
> (a) If he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency in the public school system of the state, or > just cause, and then only after a hearing held pursuant to this subarticle, by the commissioner, or a person appointed by him to act in his behalf, after a written charge or charges, of the cause or causes of complaint, shall have been preferred against such person, signed by the person or persons making the same, who may or may not be a member or members of a board of education, and filed and proceeded upon as in this subarticle provided.

> Nothing in this section shall prevent the reduction of the number of any such persons holding such offices; positions or employments under the conditions and with the effect provided by law.

The CNA of the petitioner of ACEA recognizes the job security in Article 25.1. Ra15.

It is quite clear that the literal reading of the statutes excepts a bona fide RIF from the application of the mandate. In short, compensation can be reduced where there is a reduction in force. Impey v. Shrewsbury Board of Education, 142 N.J. 388 (1995).

In the case at bar, the Head Custodian CNA does not allow for tenure protection for the supervisory subclass. The individual petitioners are afforded tenure protection as custodians and were given their bumping rights in accordance with the Education Laws.

In interpreting this statute, the Supreme Court has opined that:

> N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 does not speak in the imperative. Rather, the statute grants the Board discretion to determine which custodians, if any, are to receive the benefits of tenure.
>
> Every public school janitor of a school district shall [receive tenure] unless he is appointed for a fixed term. It is clear from the statute that a janitor employed without a fixed term contract will gain tenure immediately upon beginning employment. On the other hand, the statute allows an employing board to deny tenure to all custodians, as an appointment for a fixed term is an appointment without statutory mandated tenure.
> Yet even though the statute provides mechanisms for immediate tenure and complete denial of tenure, these are only the alternatives contemplated by the statute. By using the word unless to modify the word shall, the Legislature has signaled its intention to leave > employing boards with some flexibility. Accordingly, boards may, without contravening the terms of the statute, permissibly pick and choose between the statutory minimum of no tenure for any custodial employee and the statutory maximum of instant tenure for all custodians.

Wright v. East Orange Board, 99 N.J. 112, 119 (1985).

The facts in the case at bar demonstrate a bargain struck by the individual petitioners through a collective negotiations organization that did not create a subspecies of tenure protection. It expressly reserved the Board's right to revert them to a custodial position. See Article 8.1 Ra9. Only custodians receive tenure involving their CNA.

In this case, the Board bargained for and attained no tenure for the supervisory subclass of Head Custodians and tenure for custodians as members of the ACEA.

This tribunal has summarized the controlling legal authority:

> A long line of school law decisions has interpreted this reduction in compensation language as prohibiting a local board from reducing a tenured employee's salary, unless the board successfully brings tenure charges or the employee is laid off or demoted as the result of a reduction in force. See, e.g., Kalapos v. Trenton Bd. of Educ., 93 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* (EDU) 430 (Comm'r June 2, 1993) (overpayment due to clerical error); Galop v. Hanover Twp. Bd. of Educ., 1975 S.L.D. 358 (Comm'r May 16) (inadvertent placement on wrong step of salary guide); Anson vs. Bridgeton Bd. of Educ., 1972 S.L.D. 638 (Comm'r Dec. 5) (administrative error in placement on salary guide); Docherty v. West Paterson Bd. of Educ. 1967 S.L.D. 297 (Comm'r Oct. 23) (miscalculation of graduate credits)

DeLyon v. Old Tappan Bd. of Ed., 97 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* (EDU) 499 (1997).

A custodian and a Head Custodian are radically different positions that require a separation of bargaining units in order to separate the supervisory and non-supervisory classes. This was accomplished by mutual consent. To now suggest or imply that they are identical positions for Tenure Act purposes defies logic and the law.

The text of the janitor tenure statutes recognizes an adverse employment result where there is a RIF.

Petitioners assert that the unreported Commissioner's ruling in Reinersten vs. East Brunswick Board, OAL Dkt No. EDU 10328-97 controls this case. It does not. In Reinertsen the facts were different. The East Brunswick Board had an express policy that extended tenure to all janitors. Thus, that critical fact distinguishes the case. Moreover, at the time of the RIF in this case (January 30, 1998), the law was not as set forth in Reinertsen so that no retroactive application should be applied in this case.

In short, there is no tenure claim available because the tenure rights of petitioners are those of a non-supervisory custodian and those rights were respected. No separate tenurable right as Head Custodian exists, and even if it did, the Tenure Laws allow a RIF to be implemented without reference to a tenure proceeding. Those tenured petitioners were "bumped" by virtue of their seniority in terms of actual service as a non-supervisory custodians.

Point Two

No Viable Claim to Superior Seniority Has Been Stated.

Reductions in force are controlled by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4 which provides:

> No board of education shall reduce the number of janitors, janitor engineers, custodians or janitorial employees in any district by reason of residence, age, sex, race, religion or political affiliation and when any janitor, janitor engineer, custodian or janitorial employee under tenure is dismissed by reason of reduction in number of such employees, the one have the least number of years to his credit shall be dismissed in preference to any other having a longer term of service and the person so dismissed shall be and remain upon a preferred eligibility list, in the order of years of service, for re-employment whenever vacancies occur and shall be re-employed by the board in such order and upon re-employment shall be given full recognition for previous years of service in his respective positions and employments.

There is no reference in the statute to a "head custodian."

Seniority must be determined strictly in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1. The concept of "categories" is at the heart of the determination.

> N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(g) states:
> > Where the title of any employment is not properly descriptive of the duties performed, the holder thereof shall be placed in a category in accordance with the duties performed and not by title. Whenever the title of any employment shall not be found in the certification rules or in these rules, the holder of the employment shall be classified as nearly as may be according to the duties performed, pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3.

Likewise, N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(i.)states:

> > Whenever any person's particular employment shall be abolished in a category, he or she shall be given that employment in the same category to which he or she is entitled by seniority. If he or she shall have insufficient seniority for employment in the same category, he or she shall revert to the category in which he or she held employment prior to his or her employment in the same category and shall be placed and remain upon the preferred eligible list or the category from which he or she reverted until a vacancy shall occur in such category to which his or her seniority entitles him or her.

Unquestionably there is no Head Custodian title in the rules. Consequently, classification for seniority must be governed by the title or the actual duties performed. See, N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(g).

In this case, the petitioners were classified based upon the actual performance of their duties as Head Custodians that supervised custodians. The custodians were classified based upon the performance of their duties. The job description for each title reflects those duties.

Accordingly, there is no viable claim for a superior seniority. The petitioner's as a matter of law, are not entitled to bootstrap their service as a supervisory Head Custodians to that of custodians. The length of the actual service in the specific position is the essential criteria. Nelson v. Old Bridge Board of Education, 146 N.J. 499 (1996).

Point Three

Assuming Arguendo that this Tribunal Rules that Tenure Proceedings are Required, then Leave Shall be given to File Charges

---

Although the Board submits that no tenure proceedings should be filed the facts demonstrate that "good cause" is present in order to effectuate a reduction in compensation because of the bona fide RIF. Tenure protection is essentially a procedural protection bottomed on a just cause analysis.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 states:

> No person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation.
>
> (a) If he is or shall be under tenure of office, position of employment during good behavior and efficiency in the public school system of the state, or
> (b) If he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency as a supervisor, teaching or in any other teaching capacity in the Marie H. Katzenbach school for the deaf, or in any other educational institution conducted under the supervision of the commissioner; except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after a hearing held pursuant to this subarticle, by the commissioner, or a person appointed by him to act, in his behalf, after a written charge or charges, of the cause or causes of complaint, shall have been preferred against such person, signed by the person or persons making the same, who may or may not be a member of members of a board of education, and filed and proceeded upon as in this subarticle provided.

> Nothing in this section shall prevent the reduction of the number of any such persons holding such offices, positions or employments under the conditions and with the effect provided by law.

Clearly a RIF, by express statutory exception does not apply. However, if this tribunal is somehow persuaded that a tenure charge proceeding should be brought, then the Board should be given leave to institute such proceedings for each individual in order to rectify a procedural defect. At that stage then, the same proofs, as in the case at bar, would serve as the basis to cure the technical attack of the respondent.

Petitioners' Response

In response to petitioners' claims that it violated their statutory tenure and seniority rights as custodial employees when it reduced their compensation following their reassignments as head custodians to assignment from assignments as head custodians to assignments as custodians, respondent first acknowledges that tenure and seniority are statutorily granted to custodial employees by N.J.S.A. 18A:1-3 and N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4.[2] Respondent, nevertheless, claims that petitioners were not afforded tenure protection in their positions as head custodians because their collective bargaining agreement did not allow for same and because the aforementioned statutes do not specifically reference the position of "head custodian.[3] This argument fails on several levels. First and foremost, this position clearly contravenes the numerous rulings made by the New Jersey Supreme Court which hold that terms set forth in a collective bargaining agreement may not supersede a specific term or condition of employment which is set forth by statute. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63, 76 (1982); State v. Supervisory Employees Association, 78 N.J. 55 (1978). Thus, the fact that the collective bargaining agreement covering head custodians did not contain a specific provisions granting them tenure does not, and cannot,

[2] The Stipulation of Facts agreed upon by the parties prior to the submission of the cross motions for summary decision recognizes that the petitioners all obtained tenure as custodial employees pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. This Stipulation of Facts was prepared in final form by petitioners' counsel and forwarded to counsel for the respondent for execution; a fully executed copy has not yet been returned.

[3] In Point Two of its brief, respondent states that seniority must be determined in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:3.5-1. This regulation, however, is applicable to certificated school employees only and no relevance to non-certified personnel such as custodial employees who are granted statutory seniority rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4. This law provides that dismissals following a reduction in force be made on the basis of total years of service as a custodial employee not according to the various custodial assignments in which they served.

negate the tenure protection afforded by the law. As discussed in detail in petitioners' brief in support of summary decision, the Appellate Division as well as the Commissioner of Education have clearly extended tenure protection under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 to all types of custodial positions, including that of chief or head custodian. Barnes v. Bd. of Ed. of Jersey City, 85 N.J. Super. 42 (1964); Brunner v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Camden, 1960 S.L.D. 155; Lauffer v. Bd. of Ed. of the Borough of Leonia, 1984 S.L.D. 1290. These cases clearly demonstrate that the position of head custodian, although not specifically identified in the tenure and seniority statutes, is merely a particular assignment within the general classification of janitorial employee and thus falls within the scope of those statutes. This is also comparable to the tenure protection afforded an individual who holds the position of "teacher" regardless of the particular teaching assignment of position which he/she holds. Although respondent opines that such a conclusion defies logic and the law, it fails to address the well-reasoned arguments in the aforementioned decisions which provide for same.

When petitioners obtained tenure as custodial employees under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, they also acquired certain protections against dismissal, suspension and reduction in compensation. In filing this petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, petitioners have never maintained that the Board could not effectuate a reduction in force to alleviate financial difficulties. This is clearly permitted by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 and N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4, which specifically allow for a reduction in the number of janitors in the district. However, the only way in which the compensation of a tenured custodial employee can be reduced as if his/her position is reduced from full-time to part-time or from twelve months to ten months or some other comparable reduction in work time, and even then his/her rate of compensation may not be reduced. See Casey v Board of Education of the Township of Cinnaminson, Burlington County, State Bd., Dkt. No. 1-94 (October 5, 1995), discussed in more detail in petitioners' brief in support of summary decision. Moreover, in reducing the number of janitorial employees in the district, respondent was statutorily obligated to dismiss those employees with the least number of years of service in the district. Contrary to respondent's assertions, Exhibit J-4 (and J-) clearly reveal that several employees with less seniority than petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood were retained while they were terminated.

For the foregoing reasons, as well as those set forth in their brief in support of summary decision, petitioners respectfully request that this court issue an order for the reinstatement of petitioners' Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood to custodial positions and the restoration of all lost wages and benefits suffered by them, as well as for the restoration of the salaries earned by all petitioners, including Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood to that which they earned during the 1997-98 school year, without an appropriate ward for backpay and lost benefits.

There is neither question nor doubt that a board of education is authorized, by statute, to terminate janitors in its employ who possess a tenure status for reasons other than "neglect, misbehavior or other offenses." N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. Janitorial positions may be abolished for reasons of economy. Impey, supra. In exercising its authority to effectuate a RIF, the board must, moreover, comply with the statutory provisions, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4, which provides that:

> No board of education shall reduce the number of janitors, janitor engineers, custodians or janitorial employees in any district by reason of residence, age, sex, race, religion or political affiliation and when any janitor, janitor engineer, custodian or janitorial employee under tenure is dismissed by reason of reduction in the number of such employees, the one having the least number of years to his credit shall be dismissed in preference to any other having a longer term of service and the person so dismissed shall be and remain upon a preferred eligibility list, in the order of years of service, for reemployment whenever vacancies occur and shall be reemployed by the board in such order and upon reemployment shall be given full recognition for previous years of service in his respective positions and employments. (emphasis supplied).

In the instant matter, the Board contends, among other things, that the "Tenure Protection Act does not apply and that the reduction in force prerogative would be destroyed if salary levels were maintained at the inflated supervisory levels." (Board's brief, at Point One). The Board relies, in great measure, upon the collective bargaining agreement between it and petitioners.

With respect to the Board's reliance upon the agreement entered into between it and the petitioners, our Supreme Court has clearly stated that:

> It is now well settled that public employees and employers may not agree to contractual terms that contravene a specific term or condition of employment set by a statute. "If the Legislature establishes a specific term or condition of employment that leaves no room for discretionary action, then negotiation on that term is fully preempted." In re IFPTE Local 195 vs. State, 88 N.J. at 403. We have specifically stated that the tenure provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 constitute a mandatory contractual term that may not be waived or bargained away. Spiewak, supra. at 76.

This same principle holds true for janitors as it does for teachers. Thus, the contract or agreement between the Board and the members of the Atlantic City Head Custodian's Association is of no moment in the instant matter. Notwithstanding the Board's arguments to the contrary, the Spiewak Court, without question, holds that any negotiated term which contravenes the statutory provisions of the Tenure Act "is fully preempted." Spiewak at 76. The Court, in Spiewak, continued to state that tenure is a "statutory right imposed upon a teacher's contractual employment," quoting from its holding in Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Ed. 38 N.J. 65, 72 (1962). The Court further stated that tenure may not be forfeited or waived. Spiewak at 77. Thus, the herein petitioners' have acquired a tenure status in the Board's employ in the position of custodian (janitor) N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, *N.J.S.A.*18A:17-4.

The Board continues to argue, at Point One, that "A Custodian and Head Custodian are radically different positions that requires a separation of bargaining units in order to separate the supervisory and non-supervisory units." This is true for purposes under the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act, N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 to -21. The Board, however, argues that "head custodian" is not mentioned in the statute which protects janitors with tenure and, therefore, petitioners, are not protected by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. The Commissioner has held otherwise in the matter of Brunner v. Bd of Ed. of Camden, 1960 S.L.D. 155 where he said at 157 that:

> In the opinion of the Commissioner, petitioner is protected in his position as chief janitor under the janitors' tenure statute. While it is true that the specific title "chief janitor" is not mentioned in the > law, the intent of the act is to extend protection in their employment to a general category of employees. This reasoning is supported by the language of R.S. 18:5-66.1, enacted subsequent to the earlier statutes, which enumerates "janitors, janitor-engineers, custodians or janitorial employees." It is obviously impracticable to list in a statute by specific title every individual employee to whom the act applies. It seem significant that the legislature in its later enactment enlarged upon the single title "janitor" to include several others, thereby indicating that the scope of the statute embraced the general classification of janitorial employees. In the Commissioner's judgment, the position of chief janitor denotes a special assignment within the general classification of janitorial services and, therefore, it comes within the scope of the tenure statute.

Thus, petitioners and especially petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood, fall under the tenure protection of custodian and are to be afforded all of the benefits and emoluments attached thereto. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, petitioners have acquired tenure in the Board's employ as janitors (custodians). I FURTHER CONCLUDE that under the statutory provisions at N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4, petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood have acquired seniority in their respective positions and shall be provided preference over those custodians with less seniority.

Petitioners are correct in their assertion that the law clearly holds that a reduction in a tenured employees' compensation following a transfer from one custodial position to another violates the prohibition set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 against reduction in compensation unless the reduction is the result of action taken against the employee for "neglect, misbehavior or other offense and only in the manner prescribed," pursuant to the Tenure Hearing Act. As petitioners observed, the Commissioner in Reinertsen, supra. held that the reassignment of a tenured custodial employee from a head custodian position to a custodian position was permitted by law, however, the board of education could not reduced the salary of the employee without violation of the tenure laws. See also, Bassett, supra.; Casey, supra.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that while the Board herein may engage in a RIF action, it may not reduce the compensation of those tenured employees who have acquired a tenure status in its employ.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood be immediately restored to their rightful positions with all of the lost wages and other emoluments withheld from them for the 1997-98 school year.

It is FURTHER ORDERED that the compensation of all other petitioners be returned to the level they would have earned during the 1997-98 school year pursuant to the Appellate Decision at Bassett, supra.

It is ORDERED, therefore, that Summary Decision be and is hereby ENTERED ON BEHALF OF PETITIONERS and the Board's Motion for SUMMARY DECISION IS DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

ATLANTIC CITY EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, on behalf of itself and the members named herein, REVEREND DAVID BELL, LUIS CARMONA, MICHAEL DAVIS, RALPH MONAGAS, MICHAEL MOODY, JAMES PALIN, RAY RODRIGUEZ, SANTOS VERGARA, KENNETH WHITE, RICHARD JOHNSON, JORGE COSME AND WILLIAM SMALLWOOD,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ATLANTIC CITY, ATLANTIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions were filed by petitioners and the Board, and a reply was filed by petitioners in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.[1] All submissions were considered by the Commissioner in reaching his decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioners are entitled to the relief they seek. The Supreme Court has provided direction regarding the options local boards enjoy when employing custodians. That is, a local board may, "without contravening the terms of the statute,

[1] Petitioners disagreed only with the relief ordered by the ALJ in his recommended decision. Specifically, Petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood seek, not only to be reinstated, but to be compensated with all lost wages and emoluments withheld from them during the 1998-99 school year, and up to the date of reappointment. The remaining petitioners seek an amended order providing not only that their salaries return to that which they earned in the 1997-98 school year, but that they be awarded back pay equal to the difference between the amount they earned during the 1997-98 school year and the reduced amount they earned during the 1998-99 school year, and permissibly pick and choose between the statutory minimum of no tenure for any custodial employee and the statutory maximum of instant tenure for all custodians." Wright, supra, at 119. As the Court instructs:

> teachers' tenure statute is fundamentally different from the janitors' statutory tenure provision, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. The teachers' tenure statute speaks in the imperative, providing that all teachers shall have tenure after three years of employment. A teacher's statutory right to tenure cannot be altered by contract and boards have no discretion to deny a teacher tenure if he is reemployed after three years of service. Conversely,  N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 grants an employing board discretion in determining whether to grant tenure to custodians. Therefore, negotiation of custodians' tenure rights must be permitted. Wright, supra, at 122.

In Wright, the Court upheld a collective bargaining agreement which provided that custodians would receive tenure after three years of employment. Similarly, the collective negotiations agreement between the Board herein and the Atlantic City Education Association (ACEA) provided that

> After three (3) years of uninterrupted continuous service, each custodial employee shall be appointed for an unfixed term so as to provide the tenure protection available to such employees under the provisions of Chapter 137, Public Laws of 1960 (N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 and N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4). (Board's Appendix at p. 15)[2]

There can be no dispute that each of the petitioners acquired tenure as a custodian; indeed, the parties stipulated to this fact. "Once tenure accrues in a designated category of employment, it is not nullified by the title given to a particular position." Brunner, supra, at 157. (emphasis added) Thus, despite the Board's efforts to distinguish the classes of custodians and head custodians, up to the date of restoration of their proper compensation. (Petitioners' Exceptions at p. 2) The Board's exceptions reiterated the arguments in its post-hearing brief, as recounted in full by the ALJ.

[2] The record indicates that the ACEA is the majority representative of all custodians in the District. (Petition of Appeal at p. 2) However, its collective bargaining agreement does not recognize "head custodians" as members. (Initial Decision at p. 15) Respondent argues that the petitioning head custodians were members of the Atlantic City Head Custodians' Association (ACHCA) and were governed by a different agreement, see infra, which recognized the supervisory nature of the head custodial position.

arguing they are "radically different positions that require a separation of bargaining units in order to separate the supervisory and non-supervisory classes" (Board's Exceptions at p. 8), the Commissioner has recognized that

> [t]he title "head custodian" merely denotes a special assignment within the general classification of janitorial services and, therefore, it comes within the scope of the tenure statute. [Therefore,] [p]etitioner's title can be changed without violation of the statute, but as long as he remains within this category/class of employment he is afforded the protections of a tenured janitor. Reinertsen, supra, at slip. op. pp. 5-6. (emphasis added)

Therefore, the Board's attempt to create a "supervisory subclass of Head Custodians" who do not have tenure must fail. (Initial Decision at p. 21)

With respect to petitioning Head Custodians Bell, Carmona, Davis, Monagas, Moody, Palin, Rodriguez, Vergara and White, since they had all acquired tenure as custodians, the Board was not permitted to reduce their compensation when it abolished their respective positions as head custodian and reassigned them to another janitorial/custodial position. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. As petitioners correctly observe, this principle, which was central to the outcome in Reinertsen, > comports with decisions which provide that the compensation of a tenured teacher cannot be reduced following his/her transfer from one teaching position to another. Bassett v. Board of Education of Oakland,  223 N.J. Super. 136 (App. Div. 1988), and those which provide that the compensation of a tenured secretarial/clerical employee cannot be reduced following his/her transfer to another secretarial/clerical position, Casey v. Board of Education of the Township of Cinnaminson, Burlington County, [95 N.J.A.R. 2d EDU 585] . (Initial Decision at pp. 12-13, citing to Petitioners' Brief in Support of Summary Decision at pp. 8-9)

To the extent the Board's contract appears to create the opportunity to reduce the compensation of petitioners, the contract "contravene[s] a specific term or condition of employment set by a statute." Spiewak, supra, at 76. In this respect, as the ALJ correctly observes, the agreement of

Atlantic City Head Custodians' Association (ACHCA) "is of no moment in the instant matter." (Initial Decision at p. 28)

Turning to Petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood, the Commissioner concurs that, pursuant to Barnes, supra, Brunner, supra, and Lauffer, supra, each acquired tenure in the category of "custodian," and, as such, enjoyed the protections of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 and 18A:17-4.[3] As the ALJ properly noted:

> There is neither question nor doubt that a board of education is authorized, by statute, to terminate janitors in its employ who possess a tenure status for reasons other than "neglect, misbehavior or other offenses." N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. Janitorial positions may be abolished for reasons of economy. Impey, supra. [However,] [i]n exercising its authority to effectuate a RIF, the board must  comply with the statutory provisions, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4 . (Initial Decision at p. 27)

When the Board determined on June 23, 1998 to eliminate the custodial positions held by tenured employees, Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood, for reasons of economy, they were obliged to respect the seniority rights of each. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4. In that the record clearly demonstrates that Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood were not the least senior custodians at the time of the RIF, their termination was contrary to the statutory mandate.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted for the reasons expressed therein and amplified above. The Board is directed to reinstate Petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood and, should there be an ensuing RIF, provide each with preference over less senior staff. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4. The Board is further directed to compensate Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood with lost wages and emoluments, less mitigation, if any, from the date of their respective terminations to the date of their reappointments. With respect to the remaining petitioners, the Board is directed to restore each of them to the salary level each enjoyed during the 1997-98

school year, and to reimburse each for the amount, less mitigation, if any, representing the difference between what each should have received in the 1998-99 school year and up to the date of restoration, as per this decision, and what each was actually paid by the Board, after being relieved from assignment as head custodian. Mindful of the Board's "financial stress" (Initial Decision at p. 18), the Commissioner reiterates that this decision in no way precludes the Board from prospectively implementing a reduction in force in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 and 17-4.[4]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON REMAND

This matter was severed from the tenure case wherein the Commissioner dismissed respondent from his tenured employment for unbecoming conduct and, at the request of the ALJ, remanded the matter to OAL on the outstanding issue of monies which may be due and owing respondent.

On remand, the ALJ denied respondent's claim for the salary withheld from September 17, 1996 through May 12, 1997, while he was under indictment in Ocean County Superior Court for criminal charges. Based upon considerations of fundamental fairness and equity, the ALJ concluded that where a tenured employee seeks to recover salary which was withheld after an indictment from which the employee obtained a favorable disposition, but where the employee has subsequently been proven in a tenure proceeding to have committed the same misconduct, which was the essential subject of the criminal charges, the employee may not recover the salary withheld during the pendency of the indictment. ALJ, however, concluded that the Board did owe respondent his full salary for the period from the 121st day following certification of tenure charges, January 14, 1998, until the date of the initial decision, January 15, 1999, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. ALJ noted that the award of post 120-day back pay shall be reduced by any monies respondent received by way of salary from substituted employment assumed during the 120-day period.

Commissioner affirmed the Initial Decision with modification. Commissioner denied respondent's claim for salary payment for the period of his suspension while under indictment. Commissioner concurred that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, the Board must pay respondent his salary for the period from the 121st day following certification of tenure charges against him, less set-off for substituted employment. Commissioner, however, clarified that, although the Initial Decision specified that respondent's entitlement to compensation terminated with the determination of the ALJ in his Initial Decision on the tenure charge matter, such entitlement concluded on March 1, 1999, the date of the Commissioner's final decision in the tenure matter. Commissioner remanded matter to the OAL solely for expansion of the record and resolution of the exact amount of set-off, if any, the Board may deduct from these monies owed for compensation respondent received from substituted employment.

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

This matter was previously before the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") in a contested case which led to a determination that Mr. Yatauro, who had been employed as a teacher in the Lacey Township School District, had engaged in sexual relations with a student and had thereby violated his tenure. The details of that matter are related in an initial decision, Board of Education of the Township of Lacey, Ocean County v. Brian Yatauro, EDU 8619-97S, initial decision, January 14, 1998, adopted by Commissioner, March 1, 1999, In The Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Brian Yatauro, School District of the Township of Lacey, Ocean Township, http:www.state.nj.us/njded/legal, (51-99). As a result of the findings in the tenure proceeding, Mr. Yatauro was stripped of his tenure. In the current matter, he seeks to recover salary withheld from him during two periods. First, he seeks the salary withheld from September 17, 1996, through May 12, 1997, while he was under indictment in Ocean County Superior Court for criminal charges which directly related to the inappropriate sexual relationship which was ultimately determined in the tenure hearing to have existed. Mr. Yatauro was acquitted of the criminal charges after a trial. The acquittal occurred before the filing of the Board's tenure charges. Second, he seeks to recover salary not paid to him following the expiration of the statutory 120-day period following the certification of the tenure charges to the Commissioner up through the date of the Initial Decision rendered on January 14, 1998. In each instance, the Board of Education ("Board") opposes Yatauro's claim.

Mr. Yatauro was suspended with pay on March 27, 1996, pending the resolution of a criminal allegation relating to his purported sexual misconduct with student E.K. He was subsequently indicted and his suspension was modified to a suspension without pay. He was later acquitted following a jury trial in 1997. On September, 18, 1997, the Board filed its tenure charge with the Commissioner. After the tenure case was determined the Commissioner remanded these salary claims for determination in a separate docket. Counsel have filed supplemental briefs addressing these issues which were originally the object of briefs filed during the hearings on the underlying tenure charge. In addition, the parties have stipulated facts regarding the specific salary amounts and periods in which pay was received or withheld, as documented in a Certification of James G. Savage, Jr., Business Administrator for the Board, J-1 in evidence.

The Claim for Salary Withheld While Yatauro Was Under Indictment

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 provides that

> Any employee or officer of a board of education in this State who is suspended from his employment, office or position, other than by reason of indictment, pending any investigation, hearing to trial or any appeal therefrom, shall receive his full pay or salary during such period of suspension, except that in the event of charges against such employee or officer brought before the board of education or the Commissioner of Education pursuant to law, such suspension may be with or without pay or salary as provided in chapter 6 of which this section is a supplement.

This enactment, while authorizing a suspension without pay for an employee who is indicted, does not specify whether such employee is entitled to receive his or her withheld salary after the disposition of the indictment. Prior to the enactment of this specific statutory authority for the suspension of an employee without pay during the pendency of an indictment, the Appellate Division had determined in Romanowski v. Board of Education of Jersey City, 89 N.J. Super. 38 (App. Div. 1965) that the board had the inherent power to suspend while an indictment was pending, and added that if Romanowski were acquitted he would "be entitled to compensation for the period of his temporary suspension." Id. at 41.

Both Beatty v. Newton Board of Education, 1991 S.L.D. 1001 and Griffin v. Paterson Board of Education, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d 882 (Dept. of Education), considered the claim of an employee suspended during the pendency of an indictment for his withheld pay. Beatty was suspended with pay upon the filing of criminal complaints of aggravated sexual assault and endangering the welfare of a child in regard to his stepdaughter. He was later suspended without pay when an indictment was returned alleging sexual conduct with several minors, including his stepdaughter. After a criminal trial in which he was acquitted of all charges, he requested reinstatement and back pay. The Board rejected the claim for back pay pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 and filed tenure charges. The Commissioner termed the case one of "first impression." He agreed that there was no specific statutory language governing the claim. Therefore, he weighed "the equities of this matter." At the time of his decision, Beatty had been found not guilty of any wrongdoing and the indictment had been disposed of in his favor. The Commissioner concluded that considerations of "fundamental fairness . . . as a matter of equity" entitled Beatty to his back pay, the pendency of then unresolved tenure charges notwithstanding. "If petitioner is found guilty of the tenure charges, an appropriate penalty shall be fashioned by the Commissioner, which could include but is not limited to reduction in salary or dismissal." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. Beatty, at 9-10.

In Griffin, a school custodian was arrested and charged with sexual offenses involving young female students at the school to which he was assigned. The Board suspended him without pay on the date an indictment was returned against him. He was later acquitted and restored to the payroll. No tenure charges were filed against him by the Board. He filed a petition with the Commissioner seeking to recover back pay and legal fees. An ALJ ordered that he receive back pay. The Commissioner affirmed.

In neither Beatty nor in Griffin was the ALJ or Commissioner faced with the situation presented in Board of Education of the City of Camden, Camden County v. John Hovington, EDU 6675-97 (Hovington II). Mr. Hovington, a teacher and track coach at Woodrow Wilson High School, had been indicted on charges of sexual misconduct with a female student whom he had coached. After a series of three criminal trials he was finally acquitted of the charges. The Board then filed tenure charges related to the very same alleged sexual misconduct. In a prior initial decision, Hovington I, adopted by the Commissioner, this ALJ determined that Hovington had indeed violated his tenure by sexual escapades with the very same student who was the alleged victim of the matters for which an indictment had been returned, as well as a second student who was not an alleged victim of the offenses charged in the indictment. In Hovington II, Hovington sought to recover the pay withheld from him during the pendency of the indictment. After reviewing Romanowski, Beatty and Griffin, I concluded that a weighing of the equities and of fundamental fairness led to the conclusion that Hovington, who by the time his claim for back pay was determined had been proven to have engaged in the very same sexual misconduct with the very same student whom the indictment had charged was the victim of his misdeed, could not validly assert an equitable claim which outweighed the substantial countervailing equities which argued that the taxpayers of the City of Camden should not be required to pay him a salary for a period when he did not render service and was under a suspension which while based directly upon an indictment ultimately was grounded upon misconduct in which he had in fact engaged and which was of such a character as to demonstrate that he had violated some of the most basic responsibilities and values of an educator. Unlike Beatty and Griffin, he did not stand before the Commissioner as a proven innocent, or even as one presumed innocent. He was instead a proven sexual predator[1], albeit the proof was by a preponderance of the credible evidence rather than by a reasonable doubt. As a person whose hands were most assuredly unclean, as a supplicant to equity who could hardly claim that the indictment, whatever its outcome in the criminal proceeding, had been without factual and legal foundation, he was hardly in any position to obtain recovery of moneys withheld, absent a clear statutory right. Therefore, his claim was denied. The parties apparently settled their dispute prior to the Commissioner's issuance of a final decision and the Commissioner wrote in his final decision that he "finds no need to reach the substantive merits of respondent's claims. Accordingly the order of the ALJ is entered as the final decision in this matter for the reasons expressed herein." Hovington, Commissioner of Education Decision on Remand, March 30, 1998.

In further support of its position, the Board cites Nicholas A. Ciufi v. Board of Education of the Township of Irvington, EDU 7548-94, Initial Decision, March 30, 1998, adopted by Commissioner, May 15, 1998, http://www.rutgers.edu/oal. Ciufi involved a claim for indemnification of defense costs under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 by an assistant vice principal who had been accused in a criminal complaint of sexual misconduct with a student. The Grand Jury declined to indict and dismissed the complaint. The Board filed tenure charges. An ALJ determined that Ciufi had indeed engaged in improper sexual conduct with the very student who was the alleged victim in the criminal complaint and found him guilty of unbecoming conduct. The Commissioner sustained the findings and ordered that Ciufi be dismissed from his tenured position. When Ciufi then sought indemnification before Administrative Law Judge Ken R. Springer, Judge Springer analyzed the statute and concluded that while the dismissal of the criminal complaint by the Grand Jury satisfied the first prong of the statutory test for indemnification, namely, that "the charges must either be dismissed or result in a final disposition favorable to the employee," nevertheless, Ciufi could not satisfy the second prong, which required that "any act or omission on which the criminal charges are based must arise 'out of and in the course of performance of the duties' of the position held by the employee." The judge considered Ciufi's claim in light of the then very recent New Jersey Supreme Court decision in Bower v. East Orange Board of Education, 149 N.J. 416 (1997). In Bower, a tenured school employee was charged with sexual abuse of students. Ultimately, after a "convoluted procedural path," Ciufi, Initial Decision at page 4, a trial court judge dismissed a second indictment which had been returned in place of a first indictment which had been dismissed "without prejudice." The Commissioner determined that the second dismissal was a final favorable disposition, a view which the Supreme Court endorsed. As for the second prong, no administrative proceedings were ever instituted to remove Bower. In concluding that the dismissal of the indictment "requires the assumption that Bower committed no acts other than to perform his duties as a kindergarten teacher," 149 N.J. at 431, the majority of the Court determined that Bower had satisfied his burden of proof under the statute. However, the majority then explained

> No proceedings were instituted to dismiss Bower, a tenured teacher, on the basis of his alleged misconduct. See N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. Had the local board seen fit to institute such dismissal proceedings, we assume that any evidence adduced at the hearing addressing those charges would have been material to the proceeding instituted by Bower for indemnification of his legal expenses. Id. at 433. (emphasis added).

Judge Springer concluded that Ciufi's case was precisely the situation which the Supreme Court had adverted to its explanation. The Board in Ciufi filed a tenure charge and then proved to the Commissioner's satisfaction that Ciufi had committed a sexual assault against a student. This necessarily "determined that Ciufi's improper conduct occurred outside the regular course of his teaching duties." Ciufi, supra. at 6. As such, Ciufi could not recover the legal expenses. The Judge noted

> It would clearly be incongruous for the Commissioner to uphold the Board's dismissal of Ciufi for unbecoming conduct, while ordering the Board to pay his counsel fees for defense of criminal charges arising out of the same transaction. Rather, as the Supreme Court anticipated, the evidence adduced at the tenure hearing must be regarded as "material" to the indemnification proceeding. Id.

Counsel for the Board contends that the Ciufi case is highly relevant here, even though there the decision concerned the application of a specific statutory standard for indemnification and here in the Board's view the issue is one of equity. Just as in the case of Ciufi, who unlike Bower came before the Commissioner burdened by the fact that he had been found to have sexually assaulted the student, here Yatauro arrives with the same burden. The "material" fact of a proven event of sexual misconduct committed against a student is just as "material" in the weighing of equities as the Supreme Court considered that it would be in the determination of an indemnification claim. While in the case of indemnification, it established that a statutory standard was not met, in this case it establishes that Yatauro has no grounds to seek to have equity done for him.

Counsel for Mr. Yatauro disputes the relevance of Ciufi, rejects the analysis in Hovington II and contends that Romanowski is still the guidepost. Since N.J.S.A. 6:18A-6-8.3 is "unclear on its face" as to an employee's right to recover pay withheld following acquittal of criminal charges in an indictment, it does not change the "common law" determination announced in Romanowski as, "[T]he law infers that a statute does not intend to make any alteration in the common law other than is unambiguously expressed." Green v. Auerbach Chevrolet Corp., 248 N.J. Super. 128, 133-34 (App. Div. 1991), aff'd 127 N.J. 591 (1992). Such an employee therefore is still "entitled to compensation for the period of his temporary suspension." Romanowski, supra., at 40-41. As for the Beatty and Griffin cases, even if the right to repayment is equitable, in Beatty the Commissioner did not wait for the determination of a tenure case, but decided the backpay issue prior to such determination, when only the favorable resolution of the criminal matter was before him. Counsel writes

> The equities that the Beatty case reviewed were limited to the fundamental fairness of not paying Beatty for the period of his suspension by reason of indictment when a jury of his peers had acquitted Beatty, in essence, finding that the indictment was without adequate factual basis. In making this determination of fundamental fairness, Beatty did not consider the merits of the tenure charges. By deciding the motion for backpay while the tenure case remained pending, the Commissioner implicitly recognized that the merits of the tenure charges would be relevant to the determination of the 120-day suspension pending tenure hearing under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, not the indefinite suspension pending indictment under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3.

The determination of a claim for back pay withheld pending the disposition of an indictment which is ultimately determined favorably for the suspended employee would be a simple matter if the Legislature had chosen to speak on the subject. When it provided in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 for suspensions without pay in the case of indictments, it did not find it appropriate to say what if any claim the employee would have for recovering the moneys withheld. The Romanowski decision dealt with a situation where there had been a favorable disposition and at the time when that court was called upon to decide the claim, no finding had yet been made which determined that Romanowski had acted improperly. The court recognized that if the administrative proceeding resulted in a determination that he had acted in violation of his tenure obligations the Commissioner could remove him or withhold pay.

It is true that the Legislature did not directly address the Romanowski ruling, which was rendered in a case in which there appears not to have been a tenure charge pending when the court wrote its decision. Since that time, no appellate court has addressed the issue and the Commissioner has only addressed it in the context of matters in which the administrative proceeding had either not been completed, or had never even been invoked against the employee. In the absence of Legislative direction, in Beatty the Commissioner saw fit to consider fundamental fairness and equity as the basis for deciding the claim. In Hovington II and here in Yatauro, the decision as to whether the now-former employee should recover the pay withheld from him during the pendency of the indictment is made in a markedly different factual setting than existed in Romanowski, Beatty, or Griffin. The application of equity principles to decide this issue is in keeping with the Commissioner's view of the law expressed in Beatty, and in the absence of express Legislative direction, affords a reasonable means of considering all of the material information now available to decide if an employee who did not work for the Board while suspended and was ultimately determined guilty of serious tenure charges which mirror the criminal charges should nevertheless be allowed to collect this withheld pay.

Ciufi and Bower, while not directly on point, are instructive. The Bower court, dealing with a case where there had been no tenure proceedings instituted, acknowledged that had there been such proceedings, the information generated therein would have been "material" to the decision on indemnification.[2] In Ciufi, the tenure case determined that Ciufi had engaged in misconduct. The tenure findings led Judge Springer to deny the indemnity claim, pointing out the incongruity of an order to the Board to pay for defense costs when the same transaction which was the subject of that defense was ultimately proven to have occurred. Similarly here, the suspension was because of an indictment for engaging in the very same misconduct later proven in the tenure case. While it is of course true that Bower and Ciufi involved a specific statutory standard, the same incongruity exists. While an employee acquitted of a criminal indictment can recover withheld salary, if the very charges are proven to have been true before he does so, ordering a board of education to pay him the salary he would not have received had he been convicted for engaging in those very same actions is both incongruous and inequitable. Indeed, the very findings in the tenure case established that while the criminal case jury could not be convinced of the criminal guilt of the defendant, the factual basis for the charges most assuredly did exist.

Based upon considerations of fundamental fairness and equity, I CONCLUDE that where a tenured employee seeks to recover salary which was withheld after an indictment from which the employee has obtained a favorable disposition, but where the employee has subsequently been proven in a tenure proceeding to have committed the same misconduct which was the essential subject of the criminal charges, the employee may not recover salary withheld during the pendency of the indictment. Therefore, Mr. Yatauro's claim for these moneys is DENIED.

The Post-120 Day Claim

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 provides that a board may suspend any person against whom it has certified tenure charges and further mandates that

> . . . if the determination of the charge by the Commissioner of Education is not made within 120 calendar days after certification of the charges, excluding all delays which are granted at the request of such person, then the full salary (except for said 120 days) of such person shall be paid beginning on the one hundred twenty-first day until such determination is made. . . .

This statute contains mandatory language which requires that a board commence payment of salary on the 121st day after certification. It does not authorize a board to withhold such money until some later date, such as the conclusion of a tenure proceeding. The only reason why the salary payments would not begin would be an intervening indictment, or the prompt disposition of the tenure charge prior to the 121st day. Unlike the situation which exists regarding payment of moneys withheld during a period of indictment, where the statute does not indicate when, if at all, such moneys are to be paid to the employee, here the Legislature left no doubt that the salary was to commence on the 121st day. The statute cannot be read to authorize a board to hold the money aside, to keep a running tab of salary owed to the employee. Instead, it directs that the full salary "shall be paid." Equity is not an issue here.

It is admittedly troubling that an employee such as Yatauro, who conducted himself so improperly and in doing so risked not only his own professional and financial future but the interests of a young student as well, should receive any salary payments for periods when he did not work. If the statute were not mandatory, it would be fully in accord with the equitable analysis applied to the post-indictment period to similarly deny this claim. However, here the Legislature has spoken with clear voice and intent.

It is interesting to note that in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-18.1 the Legislature has provided that in the case of college professors and instructors, the full salary of the employee must be paid beginning on the 181st day from the first day of suspension. However, the statute also provides that "[I]f the charges are sustained, the employer may recover any salary which was paid to the employee during the period of suspension." Thus, while this statute also mandates that payment begin and does not allow for withholding after 181 days in order to await the outcome of the administrative charges, it does provide for possible recovery of the sums paid by the employer. N.J.S.A. 18A6-14 has no such recovery provision. If one could argue that the ability to seek recovery of a college professor's salary payments after the charges are sustained in some way could justify the employer in withholding post-180 day payments pending the outcome of the charges (admittedly a highly dubious argument), in the case of a public school employee under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 not even such a weak contention can be ventured.

Counsel for the Board cites cases in which the Commissioner has imposed financial penalties instead of tenure removal in support of the argument that there is nothing sacrosanct about the post-120 payments. It is of course true that the statute allows for salary related penalties in which an employee found to have violated some aspect of the responsibilities of a tenured employee keeps his or her position. That a penalty may require that an employee pay money to the board, or lose some money not yet paid, does not suggest that the board was not obligated to pay the employee in a timely fashion after the passage of 120 days from the certification of the charges. If it were determined that boards could blithely withhold post-120 day salary until the resolution of the pending tenure case, it is doubtful that any board would ever voluntarily pay such salary when it became due. This would surely be in derogation of the clearly stated legislative intent.

I CONCLUDE that the law as it currently exists does not permit a board of education to refuse to pay to an employee the employee's full pay once the 120-day initial period has concluded. Where a board fails to do so, it cannot invoke equitable considerations to support a refusal to pay the moneys owed to the now ex-employee following his or her removal on substantiated tenure charges. The Ciufi/material facts concept, while applicable to the equitable milieu of the post-indictment salary decision, does not apply here where the Legislature has mandated that the salary be paid and has not provided any discretion to a board to wait to pay the money. Therefore, the Lacey Township Board of Education must pay Mr. Yatauro his full salary for the period from the 121st day following certification of tenure charges, January 14, 1998, until the date of the initial decision, January 15, 1999.

The Board argues that if any backpay is required for the post-120 day period it should nevertheless be denied for that period of time when Yatauro, in its view, delayed the completion of the tenure hearing by first requesting time after the July 8 hearing to consult a handwriting expert and then, just prior to the hearing dates scheduled during the last week of July, 1998 which were expected to conclude the hearing, filing his motion seeking to end the case on grounds of mootness due to his attempt to resign and his offer to tender his teaching certificates to the State Board of Examiners. While that motion was pending an additional issue arose due to the filing of a motion by the Division of Youth and Family Services in which it sought to intervene in the tenure case. The briefing period for these motions was extended due to several pre-scheduled vacations during the month of August. The motions were both rejected in an interlocutory ruling issued on September 29, 1998. The hearing then resumed in accordance with the availability of the judge and counsel on November 25 and concluded on November 30, 1998. Yatauro never did produce a handwriting expert to testify. The initial decision was issued on January 14, 1999.

I cannot find that Yatauro's request for a delay to consult with a handwriting expert was a delay which was unwarranted by the circumstances of discovery, in which the Board did not supply certain discovery until very late in the discovery process, due perhaps to no fault of its own. That Yatauro never called a handwriting expert does not suggest that the time from July 8 until the final week of July should be deducted from his post-120 day pay. As for his motion, while I determined that the attempt to end the case could not be permitted under the specific circumstances, I cannot find that Yatauro acted in bad faith in suggesting that his resignation and proposed tender of certificates would eliminate the necessity of further hearings and an initial and final decision on the tenure charges. The delay caused by his motion is not, in my view, akin to a delay requested by a respondent in a tenure action due to scheduling conflicts, unreadiness, and the like. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Board cannot deduct any portion of the post-120 day salary.

The award of post-120 day back pay shall be reduced by any moneys Yatauro received by way of salary from substituted employment assumed during the 120 period. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, which provides for such a mitigation credit against moneys due to the suspended employee, does not provide for a deduction for "potential earnings."

Any money due to Mr. Yatauro pursuant to this decision shall be paid to him within 15 days of the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, unless a stay is issued.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DECISION ON REMAND

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision on Remand of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of the Board and respondent's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board's extensive exceptions concur with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) determination that respondent was not entitled to back pay withheld during the period of his suspension while under indictment, but vigorously oppose the ALJ's conclusion granting the respondent pay for the period of suspension subsequent to the 120th day from certification of the tenure charges against him. In this connection, the Board advances that the initial decision did not correctly frame and address the issues to be resolved here. Had respondent made an application to the Court for payment "when the tenure charges were filed or sometime before the trial began," it avers, the Board concedes that it would have been obligated to pay him his salary less set off for mitigation. But, it advances, at issue in this matter is "(1) whether the Board is entitled to reimbursement of the salary paid following the 120th day after certification of tenure charges where the tenure charges are sustained and (2) whether the Board is entitled to calculate the amount of mitigation resulting from substitute employment before making payment to Yatauro," which, it contends, the Initial Decision, at best, addressed only in a conclusory manner.[1] (Board's Exceptions at p. 6) With respect to its position that respondent is not entitled to payment for the period after the expiration of the 120-day suspension period stipulated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, the Board advances, and respondent replies to, five exception arguments:

1. The Board excepts to the failure of the ALJ to harmonize two education statutes which he should have done "to avoid absurd or inconsistent results."

It posits that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, which is silent as to whether a board may recover salary paid to a teacher during this suspension period must be harmonized with another education statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-18 (dealing with procedures applicable when tenure charges are filed against a higher education professional), which specifically provides for recoupment of salary paid to such higher education employee if the tenure charges are ultimately sustained. (Board's Exceptions at p. 7) Buttressing this assertion, the Board cites Accardi v. Mayor and Council of the City of North Wildwood, 145 N.J. Super. 532, 545 (Law Div. 1976) where, in addressing harmonization of statutes, the Court stated:

> A statute should not be construed to permit its purpose to be defeated by evasion. . . . If statutory expression is susceptible of two meanings, that meaning will be adopted which comports with the general public policy of the State as manifested by its legislation rather than that which runs counter to such policy....Statutes in pari materia are construed as one act and the whole harmonized if possible. Different statutes in pari materia,

[1]The Board additionally charges that, in reaching his determination, the ALJ failed to consider all of the arguments advanced in its Letter Brief dated September 15, 1998 and in its "sur-reply" to respondent's reply brief on salary issues. It argues that such a contention is supported by the fact that the Initial Decision fails to discuss some of the cases advanced by the Board in support of its position, and the fact that these particular briefs are not listed as exhibits or documents considered on Page 14 of the Initial Decision. The Commissioner's review of this allegation in light of the Initial Decision and the record leads him to the conclusion advanced by respondent in his reply exceptions, "[w]hile the Initial Decision's Exhibit List does not list each of the briefs submitted by each of the parties, the Decision clearly discusses the arguments raised in each brief. The Board fails to point to a single argument that was not considered below and also neglects to show that it was prejudiced in any way by this purely clerical error." (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at p. 13)

> though enacted at different times, and not referring to each other, should be construed together as one system and as explanatory of each other.... (Emphasis in text);

State v. DiCarlo, 67 N.J. 321, 325 (1975) for the proposition that "... it is identity or similarity of purpose or object that most convincingly justifies resort to the rule of in pari materia as an aid in statutory construction"; and finally, the Court's statement in Accardi, supra, at 545 that "statutory interpretations which lead to absurd or unreasonable results are to be avoided." (Id.)

The appropriateness of harmonizing N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-18.1, "two education statutes," is readily apparent, the Board proffers, when considering the legislative history of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-18.1 which, it avers, indicates that this provision "was initially drafted as almost a mirror image of the high school teacher tenure statute," (Board's Exceptions at p. 9) but was substantially modified after the then Governor's review and comments. The Board quotes one such modification contained in "Paragraph 4 of the Governor's statement to the General Assembly" wherein it is stated that the provision as drafted > permits an employee against whom a determination of guilt has been made to continue to draw salary throughout a lengthy appeal process, and encourages the practice of filing spurious appeals. There should be a provision in this bill providing for the reimbursement by an employee against whom charges have been sustained for all salary payments made after the 181st day of suspension. (emphasis in text) (Id.)[2]

The Board, therefore, advances that, notwithstanding that N.J.S.A. 6:14 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-18.1 "were enacted at different times and do not refer to each other," legislative construction and the public policy concern that a teacher who has not worked due to his own unbecoming conduct

[2]The Board further notes that in paragraph 5 of this statement the Governor stated that the 120-day period during which a deliberation should be made is "inadequate and unrealistic" as a consequence of administrative delays and due process requirements, advancing that 180 days was a "more realistic and attainable figure." (Board's Exceptions at pp. 9-10) should not be rewarded with a gift of public money require that these two provisions be construed together to ensure conformity of application throughout the education law statutes, thereby precluding "absurd and unreasonable results." (Board's Exceptions at p. 9)

Moreover, the Board asserts, the Commissioner has previously, in the name of "equity," harmonized two statutes which not only dealt with separate and distinct subject matter but were also located in different chapters of the New Jersey Statutes. It cites Beatty v. Board of Education of the Township of Newton, 1991 S.L.D. 1001, wherein it asserts the petitioner, who was seeking back pay for the period of his suspension while under indictment, argued that, while N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 was silent as to his entitlement to such compensation subsequent to his acquittal on the charges, N.J.S.A. 40A:14-149.2 authorizes police officers to such remuneration under these circumstances. The Board asserts that "the Commissioner held that since the petitioner was not then found guilty of any wrong doing and '[n]otwithstanding the absence of specific statutory language, the Commissioner believes that in weighing the equities of this matter, fundamental fairness dictates that the petitioner be granted back pay....' Id. at 1009 (Emphasis added)." (Board's Exceptions at p. 8) As such, it argues, the Commissioner effectively "created a statutory right on the basis of 'equitable' principles by borrowing a statutory right for police officers." (Id.)

In reply, respondent charges that each of the Board's arguments in this regard is intended to obfuscate the relevant concern here, the plain language of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 which unambiguously provides, in pertinent part:

> if the determination of the charge by the Commissioner of Education is not made within 120 calendar days after certification of the charges, excluding all delays which are granted at the request of such person, then the full salary (except for said 120 days) of such person shall be paid beginning on the one hundred > *twenty-first day until such determination is made. (emphasis in text) (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at p. 2)

He proffers that the mandatory nature of this directive is undeniable. Respondent further points to the historical note accompanying N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 which indicates that this provision, as originally written, did not provide for automatic resumption of salary beginning on the 121st day. Such [provision], he asserts, was specifically added by the Legislature in the 1971 statutory amendment. (Id.) Moreover, respondent underscores that it is evident from the recently enacted P.L. 1998, c. 42 that the Legislature remains mindful of the 121st day statutory requirement. He contends that P.L. 1998, c. 42, enacted in an effort to expedite the tenure hearing process in light of the salary resumption provision, "balances the goal of preventing economic hardship to teachers during the pendency of tenure charges against the public need for prompt determination of charges and the avoidance of the payment of back pay for an inordinately long period of time." (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at p. 3)

With regard to the Board's argument for the "harmonization" of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-18.1 which, respondent maintains, on its face, is applicable only to college professors and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, dealing with primary and secondary school teachers, to allow for "recoupment," respondent maintains such a request is clearly without merit. He avers:

> N.J.S.A. 18A:6-18.1 provides in pertinent part "[i]f the charges are sustained, the employer may recover any salary which was paid to the employee during the period of the suspension." As a result, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-18.1 demonstrates that the Legislature clearly knew how to provide for recoupment of salary in cases where charges against an educator are sustained but chose not to do so for elementary and secondary school teachers when it enacted P.L. 1983 c. 347. This reading of the statute is consistent with the established rule of statutory construction that "where the Legislature has carefully employed a term in one place and excluded it in another, it should not be implied where excluded." GE Solid State, Inc. v. Director, Taxation Div., 132 N.J. 298, 308 (1993).

> There is no requirement under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 that where tenure charges are sustained, the employer may recover any salary which was paid to the employee during the period of the suspension. In construing statutes, the court must assume that the Legislature is thoroughly conversant with its own enactments and with judicial construction placed upon them. Yacenda Food Management Corp. v. New Jersey Highway Auth., 203 N.J. Super. 264 (App. Div. 1985). Such a provision should not be implied where the Legislature has chosen to exclude it. (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at p. 4)

Respondent, therefore, advances that because these two statutory provisions deal with discrete subjects, college professors as opposed to elementary and secondary school teachers, and because at the time it enacted N.J.S.A. 18A:6-18.1 it must be presumed that the Legislature was aware of the contrary language in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 and chose not to alter it, it is obvious that these provisions cannot be read in pari materia. (Id.)

2. Yatauro Must Have Clean Hands to be Entitled to Back Pay.

The Board's exceptions advance that, in making his initial decision determination that respondent was entitled to payment for the period following the 120th day after the certification of tenure charges against him, the ALJ failed to properly weigh the equities existing in this case. It cites two New Jersey Supreme Court cases for the proposition that it is well established that "a person seeking relief from a forum exercising equitable principles must come with clean hands," and that a "court exercising equitable principles will refuse relief to the wrongdoer." (citations omitted) (Board's Exceptions at p. 12) As respondent has been found guilty of "substantial" unbecoming conduct, it avers, he has unclean hands and should, therefore, be barred from equitable relief. (Id.)

In reply, respondent advances that the Board's appeal to equity on this issue is out of line, as it is a well "established maxim of equity that equity follows the law and will not divest rights that have been legally acquired." Dunkin' Donuts of America, Inc. v. Middletown Donut Corp., 100 N.J. 166 (1985). (emphasis in text) (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at p. 5) Here, he argues, the Board deliberately ignored the clear dictate of the statute by refusing to pay respondent his salary after the expiration of the 120-day period and "is now attempting to cull the record and the final decision at the conclusion of the case for facts which would justify its improper failure and refusal to pay him in the first place." (Id. at p. 6) As was recognized by the ALJ in his Initial Decision at pp. 9-10, because the applicable statute directs that the full salary shall be paid, equity is not an issue here. (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at p. 5)

3. Public policy demands that Yatauro should not be paid for periods of suspension without pay resulting from his own acts committed outside the scope of his teaching duties.

The Board urges that the "public interest and logic" mandate that respondent not be compensated for the period of his suspension at issue here. (Board's Exceptions at p. 15) To do otherwise, it contends, "would amount to nothing more than a gift of public monies to an individual who the Commissioner has found was not available to perform his duties by virtue of his own improper, inappropriate and unbecoming activities." (Id.)

Respondent counters by pointing out that the Legislature has clearly spoken in this regard mandating that boards of education are required to resume salary payment to teaching staff members facing tenure charges beginning with the 121st day and continuing until such charges are ultimately resolved. (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at p. 6) Citing Munoz v. N.J. Auto. Full Ins. Underwriting Ass'n., 145 N.J. 377 (1996) and Gauntt v. Mayor and Council of City of Bridgeton, 194 N.J. Super. 468 (App. Div. 1984), respondent maintains "[w]here the Legislature has clearly spoken and has enacted legislation which plainly demonstrates and codifies its determination of public policy, it is improper for either administrative agencies or the courts to attempt to substitute their judgment for that of the Legislature and to attempt to construe the legislation according to some unexpressed legislative intent." (Id.)

4. No absolute right exists to salary following the 120th day after certification of tenure charges.

Contrary to the determination of the ALJ, the Board argues, the Commissioner and the State Board have made it clear that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 creates no absolute right to salary payment. In support of this contention it cites the related cases of In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Fred Engel, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Pasquale Raimondo, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Philip Maraviglia, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Terese Capriglione, and In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Gregory Palumbo, decided by the Commissioner April 22, 1998, where, it avers, the Commissioner imposed a penalty of "seven month[s] unpaid suspension, which period included the 120-day unpaid suspension already served." (emphasis in text) By fashioning such a penalty, the Board reasons, "the Commissioner destroyed any idea that there is an entitlement to salary that would start on the 121st day." (Board's Exceptions at pp. 16-17) Likewise, it proffers, the State Board in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Mary Ellen DiPillo, School District of the Township of Randolph, Morris County, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 206, wherein it modified the penalty imposed by the Commissioner to include the forfeiture of six months salary, stated "...since the petitioner did not prevail on the merits of the tenure charges, she has no entitlement to such relief as is necessary to make her whole, including back pay for the period of her initial suspension." (Id. at pp. 17-18) It is therefore clear, the Board attests, that both the Commissioner and the State Board have established that N.J.S.A.

18A:6-14 creates no absolute right to back pay but, rather, the right to such compensation "is very elastic" and awarded at the discretion of the Commissioner and State Board. (Id. at p. 19)

In response, respondent posits that the cases cited by the Board are wholly inapplicable to the situation existing in the instant matter. In each of these cases, in lieu of ordering the removal of the individuals from their tenured positions, the Commissioner, instead, imposed periods of suspensions without pay. Here, respondent was removed from his position. A contention that such cases provide authority for "a board to continue a suspension without pay for more than 120 days and the withholding of salary pendente lite in addition to the penalty of removal," is preposterous. (emphasis in text) (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at pp. 7-8)

5. Acceding to Yatauro's salary demands will have a chilling effect on future similarly situated boards.

Finally, on this issue, the Board urges that the Commissioner reject the ALJ's determination that it must compensate respondent for the time period in contention on the basis that upholding this ruling will serve to discourage boards from vigorously pursuing tenure charges which require them to expend significant amounts of money for legal fees; require the commitment of a substantial amount of time and effort on the part of its administrators and staff; and require that they pay a replacement teaching staff member while also being required to pay the salary of the individual against whom the charges are lodged. (Board's Exceptions at p. 24) It advances that requiring the Board to pay respondent "these monies under these circumstances is punishing the Board for simply carrying out its moral and legal duties required by statute and the standards established in Cardonick." (Id. at p. 25)

In reply, respondent avers that such an argument is untenable. He posits that, given the recent legislative changes to the tenure hearing process which provide for an expedited hearing process and significantly minimize potential delays in the entire procedure, which he points out was not yet effective when this matter was in process, boards of education will be less, not more, reluctant to institute tenure charges based on such considerations. (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at p. 9)

Turning to the Board's remaining exception arguments, it next challenges the ALJ's conclusion that it cannot deduct potential earnings from any back pay award to respondent. Such a conclusion, it argues, is "against public policy," as it is clear that respondent had a duty to mitigate. (Board's Exceptions at p. 32) It cites Miele v. McGuire, 31 N.J. 339, 350 (1960) for the proposition that "a public employee's claim for back pay may justly be subjected to mitigation in the amount the employee actually earned or could have earned." (emphasis in text) (Id.) Therefore, the Board argues that if the Commissioner determines to award back pay for the period of respondent's suspension, the Board should be allowed to withhold from such sum "any monies received by Yatauro as a result of substituted employment during such period of suspension including a reasonable amount for services he could have performed because he had a duty to make a diligent and responsible effort to procure substituted employment." (Id. at p. 33)[3]

Respondent replies that the Board's argument that his award must be reduced by "potential" rather than "actual" earnings in mitigation evidences a misunderstanding of the concept of mitigation as it applies in this matter. (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at p. 9) He avers that the plain language of the relevant portion of the applicable statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, provides:

[3]The Board's exceptions also renewed its arguments, advanced below, that should respondent be awarded back salary in this matter, such an award should be reduced for the period July 8, 1998 through November 30, 1998, due to delays in the proceedings which it avers were solely attributable to respondent. A full review of the record > the board of education shall deduct from said full pay or salary any sums received by such employee or officers by way of pay or salary from any substituted employment assumed during such period of suspension.

As such, he contends, on its face, the statute provides only for deduction of sums received, not sums which could have potentially been received. (Id.) Respondent further argues that, even if the statute could be interpreted to allow a reduction for potential earnings, mitigation is an affirmative defense on which the Board bears the burden of proof, a burden which it has failed to satisfy here. Citing Goodman v. London Metals Exchange, Inc., 86 N.J. 19 (1981) as authority, he avers that in order to prevail on this particular defense, the Board is required to "establish that comparable employment opportunities were available." (Id.) In making an evaluation with respect to "comparable employment," respondent points out that the Supreme Court in Goodman held that "the following factors, among others, are considered: the particular requirements, responsibilities and skills of the job plaintiff was denied, job location and rate of compensation. 85 N.J. at 36-37." (Id.) Respondent avers that the Board in this matter has not provided any proof whatsoever that there were comparable employment opportunities available to respondent. Consequently, he argues, even assuming, arguendo, that respondent's duty to mitigate could be extended to include potential earnings, the Board has not satisfied its burden to establish a prima facie case for such mitigation. (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at p. 10)

Finally, the Board objects to the ALJ's directive that money due respondent pursuant to the Initial Decision be paid to him within 15 days of the Commissioner's final determination in this matter. It asserts that while the ALJ's decision allows the Board to withhold from monies which may be due respondent, those sums which he received during the period of his suspension for substituted employment, it avers that "[a]s of this date, the Board has persuades the Commissioner that the ALJ's review and discussion of this claim on pp. 11-12 of his Initial Decision not received any information from Yatauro to calculate the mitigation for the tenure suspension." (Board's Exceptions at p. 30) The Board requests that the Commissioner's decision direct that any payment which may be owed respondent will be due and owing "within a reasonable period of time after production of proof of full and complete mitigation to allow its analysis and processing by the Board." (Id. at p. 31)

Upon his careful and independent review of the full record in this matter, the Commissioner, finding the Board's exception arguments without merit, affirms the recommended decision of the OAL as modified below.

Initially, the Commissioner fully concurs with the ALJ, for the reasons well expressed in the Initial Decision, that respondent is not entitled to compensation for the period of his suspension while under indictment.

The Commissioner, likewise, agrees with the ALJ's conclusion that respondent is entitled to remuneration for the period beginning with the 121st day after the Board's certification of tenure charges against him. While fully concurring with the observation of the ALJ that "[i]t is admittedly troubling that an employee such as Yatauro, who conducted himself so improperly and in doing so risked not only his own professional and financial future but the interests of a young student as well, should receive any salary payments for periods when he did not work," (Initial Decision at p. 10), the Commissioner also must remain cognizant that the statutory directive governing this matter unmistakably mandates on its face:

> if the determination of the charge by the Commissioner of Education is not made within 120 calendar days after certification of the charges, excluding all delays which are granted at the request of such person, then the full salary (except for said 120 days) of such person shall be paid beginning on the one hundred twenty-first day until such determination is made." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.

fully address and correctly resolve this issue and it will, therefore, not be readdressed herein.

As such, respondent's right to compensation is grounded in law and, therefore, considerations based on equitable principles, public policy, or the Commissioner's aversion to payment under circumstances such as are present herein, can be of no import. Unless and until the Legislature acts to change or modify this statutory provision, respondents in tenure matters before the Commissioner are entitled to restoration of salary beginning with the 121st day after certification of tenure charges against them. To the extent that the Board's exceptions attempt to charge or imply that prior decisions of the Commissioner and the State Board, imposing suspensions without pay at the conclusion of adjudication of tenure charges where the respondent was not dismissed from employment, in any way compromises or circumvents the clear directive of the statute, such a contention is misguided. In each of these cited cases, the penalty imposed had no impact or effect whatsoever upon respondents' entitlement to compensation from the expiration of the 120-day period up to the time of the Commissioner's ultimate resolution of the tenure charges but, rather, was prospective from the date of the respective decision.

Consequently, the Commissioner affirms the ALJ's Initial Decision conclusion that the Board must pay respondent his salary for the period from the 121st day following certification of tenure charges against him. The Commissioner does, however, clarify that, although the Initial Decision specifies that respondent's entitlement to compensation terminated with the determination of the ALJ in his Initial Decision on the tenure charge matter, such entitlement, rather, concluded on March 1, 1999, the date of the Commissioner's final decision in the tenure matter, as it is the Commissioner's determination, rather than the Initial Decision by the Administrative Law Judge, that is controlling in this administrative matter. (See Peitrunti v. Bd. of Ed. of Brick Twp., 128 N.J. Super. 149 (App. Div. 1974), certif. den., 65 N.J. 573 (1974), cert. den., 419 U.S. 1057 (1974); In re Uniform Adm. Procedures Rules, 90 N.J. 85, 96 (1982; Also see N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.

Turning to the issue of how principles of mitigation affect this matter, the Commissioner finds meritless, as did the ALJ, the Board's position that it is entitled to deduct mitigation for prospective earnings from the compensation due respondent. The "set off" a board may appropriately make to monies due respondents in matters of this nature is specifically delineated by the governing statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, as "pay or salary received from any substituted employment." Therefore, the Board may not seek to expand such statutory entitlement by invoking general common law concepts of mitigation of damages which are inapplicable here.[4] The Commissioner finds that existing case law provides guidance as to the intendment of the term "substituted employment" as employed in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of John Martz, 1976 S.L.D. 773, aff'd State Board at 791; In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Ernest E. Gilbert, 1982 S.L.D. 674, aff'd State Board at 686; Patrick Caporaso v. Board of Education of Belleville Township, 1987 S.L.D. 1005. In that the Commissioner's review persuades him that the existing record is insufficient to determine whether employment respondent engaged in during the course of his suspension was "substituted employment" as contemplated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, which would entitle the Board to set off a portion of the monies owed respondent, this matter will be returned to the OAL for further proceedings to address and resolve this limited issue and determine the amount, if any, of the Board's set-off.[5]

[4]The Commissioner does observe, however that even if this matter were subject to common law principles of mitigation, under which a respondent would be under a duty to mitigate his damages during this period by making reasonable efforts to secure alternative employment, respondent's Reply Exceptions correctly point out that the burden of proof of this affirmative defense lies with the Board. (See Goodman v. London Metals Exchange, Inc., 86 N.J. 19 (1981).) To sustain such burden, the Board would be required, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, to establish that, during the relevant period, comparable employment opportunities were available to respondent and he failed to take advantage of those opportunities.

In considering the Board's request that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 be harmonized with the higher education provision, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-18.1, to allow for recoupment of salary paid to a suspended respondent during the pendency of tenure charges should such charges ultimately be sustained, the Commissioner is compelled to deny the Board's request. Consideration of the legislative history surrounding each of these acts persuades the Commissioner that strong evidence against legislative intent for harmonization is readily apparent. In so determining, with respect to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, the Commissioner found the Court's discussion in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Paula M. Grossman, A/K/A Paul M. Grossman, School District of the Township of Bernards, Somerset County, 127 N.J. Super. 13 (App. Div. 1974), both enlightening and instructive. Therein it was noted that, prior to February 10, 1972, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 provided

> Upon certification of any charge to the commissioner, the board may suspend the person against whom such charge is made, with or without pay, pending final determination of the same, and if the charge is dismissed, the person shall be reinstated immediately with full pay as of the time of such suspension. (emphasis added) (at 34)

As such, at this point in time, compensation for a person suspended without pay pending the adjudication of tenure charges was conditioned upon that individual ultimately prevailing on the charges. The Grossman Court further noted that, effective February 10, 1972, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 was amended by L. 1971, c. 435 to provide, in pertinent part:

[5]The Commissioner clarifies that once the precise amount of the monies due and owing respondent has been determined by the Commissioner, such payment shall be made to him by the Board within a reasonable amount of time. The Commissioner finds the 15-day time period suggested by the ALJ unduly restrictive, but reminds the parties that respondent may invoke the regulations requiring the payment of post-hearing interest, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16, should the Board fail to satisfy its payment obligation within 60 days of the Commissioner's ultimate decision.

> [I]f the determination of the charge is not made within 120 calendar days after certification of the chargesthen the full salary (except for said 120 days)shall be paiduntil such determination is made.  Should the charge be dismissed and the suspension be continued during an appeal therefrom, then the full pay or salary of such person shall continue until the determination of the appeal.  Should the charge be sustained on the original hearing or an appeal therefrom, then the suspension may be continued unless and until such determination is reversed, in which event he shall be reinstated immediately with full pay as of the time of such suspension. (at 35)

Moreover, in discussing the reasons for the legislative amendment, the *Grossman C*ourt stated:

> It seems clear that in enacting it the Legislature must have had in mind the economic hardship endured by teachers and other board of education employees suspended without pay pending the outcome of charges filed against them and certified for hearing to the Commissioner of Education. We are certain, moreover, of the Legislature's awareness that in many instances, because of the volume of matters awaiting hearing, a prompt disposition of charges is not feasible. Thus, the obvious intent and purpose of the amendment was to alleviate the financial plight of those affected by providing for the payment of their full salary (less sums received from other employment during suspension) from the 121st day following the certification of charges until the determination thereof by the Commissioner, or in the case of an appeal by a board from a decision adverse to it, until the determination of the appeal. (at 35-36)

As such, the Commissioner finds that the Legislature's specific elimination of the requirement that resumption of salary for persons suspended pursuant to the imposition of tenure charges against them be conditioned on the ultimate outcome of such charges is unmistakable in its 1971 amendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, and evidences its intent to effect a change in policy on this issue with respect to the individuals affected by this provision. Further support for the Legislature's intent in this regard is found, as was pointed out by respondent in his reply exceptions, in the recently enacted P.L. 1998, c. 42, designed to expedite the tenure hearing process.

In sharp contrast, the legislative history of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-18.1, manifests a totally different situation. As the Board, itself, recognized in its exceptions, this legislation was initially proposed as a "mirror image" of the existing N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, but was ultimately enacted by the Legislature with a significant number of modifications in response to the recommendations of Governor Kean. (See Governor's Recommendations to the General Assembly dated March 14, 1983.) The necessary implication here is that this statute was passed with full knowledge of the existing legislation in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 and, as there was no discussion or action taken to resolve the differences between the conflicting provisions of these statutes, it affirmatively appears that it was the intent of the Legislature to differentiate salary resumption provisions for higher education professionals from those available to individuals governed by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. The Commissioner, therefore, finds and determines that, contrary to the urging of the Board, the two statutory provisions should not be read in pari materia as it is apparent that, in enacting N.J.S.A. 18A:6-18.1, the legislative design was to depart from the general purpose policy surrounding the previous enactment, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.

The Commissioner can, additionally, find no justification whatsoever for considering the Board's argument that he should, on equitable principles, conclude that the Board, having prevailed on tenure charges against respondent, is entitled to recoupment of monies owed respondent for the period of his suspension. Given the legally established nature of the right, and because equity follows the law, Dunkin' Donuts, supra, equitable principles may not be invoked here to divest respondent of the legal right to resumption of his salary. Moreover, in the Commissioner's view, the within Board acted improperly and in contravention of the clear directive of the law by refusing to resume respondent's salary payments subsequent to the expiration of the initial 120 days of his unpaid suspension. The Commissioner could not, as a matter of equity, consider condoning and rewarding such conduct.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as modified herein. The respondent's claim for salary payment for the period of his suspension while under indictment is denied. Respondent is entitled to salary payments, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, for the period of his suspension during the pendency of tenure charges against him, up to March 1, 1999, the date of the Commissioner's decision on the tenure matter, less set off for substituted employment and less the 120-day suspension period without pay. This matter shall be returned to the OAL solely for expansion of the record to resolve the exact amount of set off, if any, the Board may deduct from these monies owed for compensation respondent received from substituted employment.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent alleged the Board's action denying her minor child, K.M., credits for ninth-grade courses, which would have allowed her to move to tenth grade, was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable.

ALJ found that petitioner failed to establish that the Board acted arbitrarily, capriciously and unreasonably in denying K.M. credits for classes in which she had absences which exceeded the maximum permitted. ALJ found that petitioner had not established "unforeseen factors that may have created hardships" which were sufficient so as to entitle her to credits for classes in which she had absences ranging from 24 to 28 days. ALJ concluded the Board's action denying K.M. credits due to said absences was proper. Thus, petition seeking to have K.M. given credits for ninth-grade courses to allow her to move to tenth grade was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in Initial Decision as his own.

P.D.M. ON BEHALF OF A MINOR CHILD, K.M.,

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF SOMERVILLE, SOMERSET COUNTY,

Respondent.

P.D.M., petitioner, pro se

Michael J. Rogers, Esq., for respondent (McDonald, Rogers & Rizzolo, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 27, 1999 Decided: August 27, 1999

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In this matter, petitioner contends that the action of respondent denying to her daughter, K.M., credits for ninth-grade courses which would allow her to move to tenth grade was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Petitioner's petition was filed on July 30, 1998, together with a request for emergent relief, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 13, 1998, for a hearing as a contested case. A hearing on the emergent relief application was held on August 19, 1998, and by an order entered on August 20, 1998, petitioner's request for emergency relief to have K.M. given credit for ninth-grade courses to allow her to move to tenth grade was denied on the basis that petitioner failed to establish the likelihood of prevailing on the merits and failed to establish irreparable harm. The matter was then scheduled for hearing and a hearing was held and concluded and the record closed on July 27, 1999.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The essential facts in this matter are not disputed and the following factual discussion sets forth my FINDINGS OF FACT with regard to this matter. These findings are based on facts which were not disputed at the emergent relief hearing as well as based on the testimony given at the plenary hearing in this matter.

Until recently, petitioner, P.D.M., and her daughter, K.M., lived in Somerville, New Jersey. K.M. attended ninth grade at Somerville High School during the 1997-98 school year and attended a repeat of her ninth grade year also at Somerville High School and at Somerset County Vocational Technical School during the 1998-99 school year.

Petitioner testified that K.M. was a "Renaissance" pupil in her ninth-grade year. She explained that this is similar to being on the honor roll, and that she attained this honor during the third marking period in her ninth-grade year. The school year consists of four marking periods. Petitioner indicated that K.M. was never late for any of her classes during the 1997-98 school year.

The petition as well as the testimony of petitioner was to the effect that K.M. had a very difficult freshman year during the 1997-98 school year. K.M.'s father was diagnosed with AIDS and K.M.'s experimentation led to an unwanted pregnancy. The petition indicates that a significant number of K.M.'s fourth marking period absences were the result of K.M.'s pregnancy. In addition, K.M. suffers from asthma and her asthma was extremely difficult during the 1997-98 school year. P.D.M. acknowledged that K.M.'s report card, a copy of which she provided at the emergent hearing,, is accurate with respect to K.M.'s attendance. Under Attendance, absences for the fourth marking period as well as total absences for the year are shown. She also acknowledged that the total absences ranging from 24 to 28 days, is accurate.

P.D.M. testified that K.M. provided all necessary doctor's notes whenever she went to the doctor for her asthma and her pregnancy, and petitioner explained that K.M. completed all required paperwork upon her return to classes after being absent. This paperwork consisted of forms which are volunteered by the student explaining the basis or reason for the absence. P.D.M. also indicated that K.M. performed make-up work for all of the time that she missed from her classes. K.M. has no disciplinary problems and is a very pleasant child. P.D.M. indicated that she was aware that the policy of the school district is that if a student misses more than fifteen days the student will not be given credit for that year and must repeat the year.

P.D.M. provided a note from K.M.'s doctor dated July 17, 1998 (P-3) in which the doctor indicated that K.M. has asthma which can be exacerbated by allergies and viral infections, and, as an African American female, her asthma may be worsened more than usual by conditions. P.D.M. explained that K.M.'s asthma sometimes resulted in her constantly coughing during the night resulting in her inability to sleep. As a result, because she did not get enough sleep she would either not go to school or when she did go the school, her attitude was negatively affected. In addition, when her father was diagnosed with AIDS it was a very trying time and it was very difficult for all of her children. Finally, K.M.'s pregnancy caused her not only to be physically ill, but to be greatly troubled.

P.D.M. testified that the difficulty she had with respondent's appeal committee was that she attended an appeal hearing and presented evidence why the credits should be given for K.M.'s ninth-grade school year. She referred to the policy adopted by the school district concerning attendance (R-2). She pointed out that under Board of Education Regulation R5200.4I.3c. (R-2), the attendance review committee is required to decide the appeal and inform the pupil in writing within five days of the meeting. However, she indicated that in her daughter's situation, the committee did not issue a written decision until July 16, 1998, over one month after the hearing (P-2).

On cross-examination, P.D.M. admitted that her daughter missed eight days of school in October 1997 because of a planned family vacation in Florida. She also admitted that her daughter cut class on senior day in June 1998. P.D.M. denied that K.M. was verbally informed of the decision of the appeals committee on June 19, 1998, although she did acknowledge that K.M.'s guidance counselor may have told K.M. prior to the close of school in June 1998, that she would not receive credit for the courses involved. However, she wanted to receive something in writing. She explained that K.M. was told that it was necessary for her to take her final exams in order to be considered for summer school to make up these courses. K.M. did take the final exams and passed all but one (P-1).

K.M. testified that during the most recent school year, 1998-99, she was assigned to a ninth grade homeroom and attended two freshman classes. These consisted of English II, Science and Sophomore Gym in which she received Bs and Cs. She also attended Vocational Technical School in health occupations where she got a B and a C. She indicated that at the end of sixth period every day she would take a bus to the Vocational Technical School and attend those classes. She indicated that her attendance has been good and that as a result of her grades during the most recent school year she has been promoted to tenth grade. She indicated that she simply wants to get her credits for ninth grade so that she can graduate with her class.

William M. Roesch, testified that he is the Assistant Principal of the Somerville High School and has held that position for the past six years. He is familiar with the attendance appeal process. He also indicated that no more than two courses or a total of ten credits may be taken in summer school. He testified that the total number of absences by K.M. during the 1997-98 school year amounted to approximately 23 days. With respect to H.S.P.T. math, K.M. started that class in March 1998. However, because she has less than 15 absences, and where there is some question the benefit the doubt is always given to the student, K.M.'s transcript will be corrected to reflect that she passed H.S.P.T. math in her ninth-grade year and she will be given credit for passing this course.

Mr. Roesch, testified that no more than 15 unexcused absences are permitted in any school year. An attendance review committee is established to determine whether there is some hardship caused by this policy and that committee heard K.M.'s appeal and denied it. He indicated that if K.M. did not take the days for a family vacation in October 1997 and if her senior cut day had not been taken, the attendance committee would have given her credit for any of the ninth-grade classes which she passed. He indicated that there was one course where she did not obtain a passing grade and she would not have received credit for that course in any event.

Mr. Roesch read into the record the student absence reports or "pink slips" filled out by K.M. during her 1997-98 school year (R-3). They are as follows:

September 25, 1997	Stomach ache
October 10-14, 1997	Back aches - in pain
October 16, 1997	I had to go to my cousin's funeral
October 21, 1997	Woke up late
October 22, 1997	Left school early
October 23-31, 1997	Had to go out of the State
January 20, 1998	Had bad stomach pains
May 1 and 2, 1998	Pink eye
April 20, 1998	Had very bad cramps
May 6, 1998	Was nauseous
May 12, 1998	Left early for illness
May 18, 1998	Doctor appointment
May 27 and 28, 1998	Surgery
June 5, 1998	Not well

Mr. Roesch testified that during the year, the student and the parent were given four warning letters concerning excessive absences (R-3). The first is dated November 11, 1997, indicating seven or eight absences through October 24, 1997. The second is dated November 19, 1997 and indicates 12 to 13 absences up to November 7, 1997. The next is dated December 18, 1997, and relates to the same 12 or 13 absences through December 5, 1997. The fourth is dated February 17, 1998, and relates to 12 and 13 absences in certain classes. The final one is a letter dated May 12, 1998, sent to P.D.M. by certified mail indicating that K.M.'s absences exceeded the attendance policy requirements for course attendance and indicating that an appeal from the proposed grade of incomplete can be had by appealing to the appeals committee based upon "unforeseen factors that may have created hardships.".

Mr. Roesch testified that the appeals committee heard K.M.'s appeal and that at the conclusion of the hearing and after the parent and child were excused, the committee discussed the matter. A factor considered was K.M.'s absences because of a family vacation and her absence on senior cut day. He explained that if these absences had not occurred, K.M. would have had less than the number of absences and would have been qualified for passing grades. Her absences on these occasions were a factor considered by the appeals committee.

Mr. Roesch explained the procedure that is followed. The decision of the committee is given to Mr. Roesch as Assistant Principal and to Mr. Roy Woodten, C.M.'s guidance counselor, and it was Mr. Woodten who informed K.M. of the decision to deny her appeal before the end of the school year.

Mr. Roesch identified K.M.'s 1997-98 report card and her 1998-99 report card (R-4). She acquired 35 credits in the most recent academic year together with five credits for HSPT math so she presently has a total of 40 credits. She needs 120 credits to graduate.

On rebuttal, P.D.M. testified that her daughter is powerless over her vacations. P.D.M. has no one to baby-sit for her children when she takes a vacation and that is why she took her children with her in October 1997. She also indicated that if the appeals committee had rendered its decision within five days as it was required to do so, K.M. could have taken summer school classes during summer of 1998 and been able to attend tenth grade in the 1998-99 school year.

It is not disputed that K.M. signed that she received a copy of the Somerset High School Student Booklet (R-1) in September 1997. P.D.M. acknowledged that K.M. was given a copy of the Booklet (R-1).

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

Local boards of education are authorized to adopt policies and procedures for pupil promotion and remediation, notification to parents of policies and procedures for student promotion and remediation and procedures for parents and adult pupils to appeal promotion/retention decisions. N.J.S.A. 18A:35-4.9(a), (b) and (d). It is required by N.J.A.C. 6:8-7.1(a) that district boards of education adopt policies and procedures for pupil promotion and for such appeals.

In the present matter, it is undisputed that respondent Board has adopted policies and procedures for pupil promotion and remediation and procedures for appeals from such decisions pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:35-4.9 and N.J.A.C. 6:8-7.1. (R-2). These policies and procedures have the force and effect of law and govern the decision in this matter.

Somerville School District Regulation R 5200.4 regarding Attendance at Somerville High School provides at section E.2. that a secondary pupil will be denied course credit, when he or she has been absent fifteen days for full year courses. This same section goes on to provide that a secondary pupil denied course credit may attend a credit completion session to regain the denied credit, provided the pupil has not been absent from the class more than twenty times. This Regulation provide for appeals procedures at section I. Section I.2. provides that a pupil who has been retained at grade level for excessive absences may appeal that action in accordance with Policy No. 5410. Somerville School District Policy No. 5410 provides that pupils should be placed in the educational setting most appropriate to their social, physical and educational needs, and each pupil enrolled in the district is to be moved forward in a continuous program of learning in harmony with his or her own development. It further provides that the standard for promotion shall be related to district goals and objectives and to the accomplishments of pupils. High school pupils are to be promoted to the next grade when he or she has completed, in the current school year, the number of credits required for that grade as indicated in the current high school student handbook. The policy goes on to provide that school attendance shall be a factor in the determination of a pupil's promotion or retention.

The Somerset High School Student Booklet (R-1) also sets forth the attendance policy of the Somerville Board of Education, and indicates in paragraph 3 that students missing over eight classes in a semester course or 15 class periods in a full year course will not receive credit for that course. Paragraph 10 provides that the student must stay in class to receive a final grade of "Incomplete". If the student does not remain in the class, the final grade is "F". The Student Booklet also provides for a permanent five member Attendance Appeals Committee established to review cases involving pupils having extenuating circumstances for excessive absences. Decisions made by the Attendance Appeals Committee are final.

The purpose of any attendance policy is to establish requirements for passing of courses and graduating. It is not to punish a pupil or to retaliate against the pupil, but is to impose clear, uniform standards applicable to all pupils. Of significance is the Board's Policy 5200 which requires that the pupils enrolled in the schools of the district attend school regularly in accordance with the laws of the State. It further provides that the educational program offered by the district is predicated upon the presence of the pupil and requires continuity of instruction and classroom participation. The regular contact of pupils with one another in the classroom and their participation in a well-planned instructional activity under the tutelage of a competent teacher are vital to this purpose. The policy goes on to provide that prolonged or repeated absences, excused or unexcited, deprive the pupil of the classroom experience deemed essential to learning and may result in retention at grade level or loss of credit toward the high school diploma in accordance with policies of the Board.

As is indicated in the Student Handbook, it is necessary for a pupil seeking relief by way of appeal to the Attendance Appeals Committee to show extenuating circumstances for excessive absences.

In the present matter, K.M. had total absences for the 1997-98 school year ranging from a low of 24 to a high of 28 (P-1). It is significant that during the fourth marking period alone, K.M.'s absences ranged from 10 in English to 14 in World Cultures. It also appears that between the first and third marking periods, K.M. had a total of 14 absences in most of her classes and her total number of absences for the school year essentially doubled as a result of her absences during the fourth marking period.

Petitioner explained the extenuating circumstances in this matter as involving K.M.'s father being diagnosed with AIDS, K.M. suffering from asthma, and an unwanted pregnancy which impacted on K.M.'s attendance during the fourth marking period. An additional factor was a family vacation in October, 1997.

As difficult as these circumstances may have been for K.M., it is clear that a pupil who has been absent excessively is deprived of the classroom experience and class participation, and such absences interfere with the efforts of the teacher to provide proper instruction. In the present matter, K.M.'s absences in virtually all of her classes exceeded not only the 15 absence limitation for obtaining credit for the class, but also the 20 absence limitation for attending a credit completion session to regain the denied credit.

Under all of the circumstances in this matter, I FIND that petitioner has failed to establish that the respondent acted arbitrarily, capriciously and unreasonably in denying her credits for classes in which she had absences which exceeded the maximum permitted. I FIND that petitioner has not established "unforeseen factors that may have created hardships" which are sufficient so as to entitle her to credit for classes in which she has absences ranging from 24 to 28 days. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the action of respondent denying to K.M., credits for ninth-grade courses in which she had these absences so as to allow her to move to tenth grade was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's petition of appeal seeking to have her daughter, K.M., given credit for ninth grade courses to allow her to move to tenth grade is hereby DENIED and DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon his careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the determination of the Administrative Law Judge that the within petitioner has failed to establish that the Board's denial of credits for ninth grade to K.M, as a result of her absences exceeding the maximum number permitted, was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is affirmed for the reasons stated therein and the instant Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.*

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the tenure charges brought against the respondent, Eileen Brogan, by the petitioner, School District of Belmar, Monmouth County. The respondent requested a hearing, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 1, 1999, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

THIS AGREEMENT is made and entered into on this 24th day of June, 1999 by and between the Belmar Board of Education, having offices located at 1101 Main Street, Belmar, New Jersey 07719 ("Board") and

EILEEN BROGAN, residing at 881-C Balmoral Court, Lakewood, New Jersey 08701 (hereinafter "Ms. Brogan")

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, Ms. Brogan is a tenured school nurse employed by the Board since September 1, 1983; and

WHEREAS, on October 16, 1998, the Board certified tenure dismissal charges against Ms. Brogan to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 ("Charges"); and

WHEREAS, the Commissioner transmitted the Charges to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing; and

WHEREAS, on October 8, 1998, the Belmar Police Department filed a criminal charge against Ms. Brogan in which it alleged that she was "guilty" of theft by deception; and

WHEREAS, the Board suspended Ms. Brogan without pay for the 120-day period permitted by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 based upon the filing of said criminal charges; and

WHEREAS, the Monmouth County Prosecutor presented the matter to a Monmouth County Grand Jury on February 22, 1999; and

WHEREAS, the Monmouth County Grand Jury on February 22, 199 proved a "no bill" and determined not to indict Ms. Brogan; and

WHEREAS, the Board has determined that it is in the best interest of the Belmar School District to withdraw the Charges and enter into this Settlement Agreement with Ms. Brogan because this Agreement will help ensure the continued delivery of adequate and appropriate educational services to students under the Board's supervision, without the necessity of significant consumption of the time and energies of Board employees who must be called to testify in support of the Charges at any hearing conducted on the Charges, and who would thereby be taken away from their duties in the schools of the Belmar School District; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Brogan understands that N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 states, in part, that upon the decision of the Commissioner, cases contested before the Commissioner resulting in loss of tenure or dismissal of a teacher or teaching staff member for inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming a teacher, or other just cause, shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for determination of possible revocation or suspension; and

WHEREAS, the within contested case has not resulted in loss of Ms. Brogan's tenure as the parties have agreed to settle this matter without a hearing; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Brogan further understands that, although the Commissioner is not required by the express language of N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 to forward this matter to the State Board of Examiners for determination of possible revocation or suspension, the Commissioner has the discretion to do so; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Brogan and the Board believe that this is not an appropriate matter for the exercise of the Commissioner's discretion as stated above because the Charges are based upon activity that the Board believed to be criminal in nature, but the Monmouth County Grand Jury determined not to indict Ms. Brogan on related criminal charges;

NOW, THEREFORE, the Board and Ms. Brogan, for the consideration herein specified, agree as follows:

1. The parties stipulate to the dismissal of the tenure charges brought by the Board against Ms. Brogan (Agency Reference No. 565-12/98) upon the execution of this Agreement by both parties.

2. The Board shall pay Ms. Brogan the amount of salary withheld from her subsequent to the filing of the Charges as described above.

3. The Board shall, upon the approval of the Commissioner of Education, immediately pay to Ms. Brogan the salary withheld for one hundred twenty (120) days, but shall deduct one thousand dollars ($1,000) therefrom as partial reimbursement to the Board for overpayments made to Ms. Brogan. This repayment shall not be part of Ms. Brogan's gross salary.

4. The Board shall deduct five hundred dollars ($500) from Ms. Brogan's salary each month between September and December 1999, to be applied toward reimbursing overpayments made to her. These repayments each month shall not be part of Ms. Brogan's gross salary.

5. The Board shall deduct two thousand nine hundred twelve dollars ($2,912) in equal semi-monthly amounts during the month of January, 2000, to be applied toward reimbursing overpayments made to Ms. Brogan. These repayment amounts shall not be part of Ms. Brogan's gross salary.

6. Upon the execution of this Agreement by both parties, Ms. Brogan shall be placed on medical leave of absence from her duties as school nurse in the Belmar School District, with pay, in accordance with the terms and conditions of the Agreement between the Board and the Belmar Education Association, for the period from September 1, 1999 through January 31, 2000, and with all benefits and emoluments Ms. Brogan is currently receiving in that capacity, for the remainder of the 1999-2000 school year until her retirement on January 31, 2000.

7. Ms. Brogan shall submit her written resignation from employment by the Board effective January 31, 2000; that is, said written resignation shall note that Ms. Brogan's last day of employment by the Board shall be January 31, 2000. The Board shall accept Ms. Brogan's resignation at its next scheduled regular action meeting subsequent to the Board's receipt of Ms. Brogan's written resignation. Ms. Brogan shall no longer be entitled to any payments or benefits and emoluments from the Board as of January 31, 2000, subject to the U.S. Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (COBRA). The Board shall provide any prospective employer of Ms. Brogan only with such information about her employment with the Board as is designated "public" information by New Jersey Executive Order No. 11 (November 15, 1974, Gov. Brendan Byrne).

8. Upon the execution of this Agreement, the parties shall exchange general releases.

9. The Board shall cooperate and assist in Ms. Brogan's application for a disability pension. Failure to obtain a disability pension by Ms. Brogan shall not void this Settlement Agreement.

WHEREAS this Agreement has been approved by a vote of the members of the Belmar Board of Education at its meeting on June 24, 1999 and has been made a part of the minutes of that meeting; and

WHEREAS, the Board has authorized its President and Secretary to execute this Agreement; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Brogan has had the opportunity to consult with her own independent counsel as to this Agreement and has consulted with counsel as to same; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Brogan has approved the terms and conditions of this Agreement;

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned set their hands, and the Board has set its seal, to this Agreement, effective on the day and year first above written.

Record Closed: August 11, 1999 Decided: August 23, 1999

BEFORE: ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On November 6, 1997, petitioner, Maria Lazzaro, filed a verified petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education alleging that respondent restore petitioner's sick days deducted from her sick leave bank for the period of October 1, 1997 through October 6, 1997. On November 19, 1997, respondent filed an answer alleging that petitioner was not entitled to sick leave benefits pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 for her absences on October 1, 2 and 3, 1997 since those absences were not due to an accident which arose out of and in the course of petitioner's employment. The matter was transmitted by the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and disputes on December 15, 1997 to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on January 8, 1998 and a prehearing conference held on February 10, 1998. During the conference, the parties requested that the matter be placed on the inactive list pending final hearing of petitioner's workers' compensation claim and a determination by the Division of Workers' Compensation as to the length of petitioner's temporary disability due to the accident in question. The request was granted by order dated March 17, 1998. As a result of the ruling of the Division of Workers' Compensation on the length of petitioner's temporary disability, the parties have agreed to a settlement. The parties filed the attached Consent Order on August 11, 1999, indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to a settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:

SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY	:	DECISION
OF ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter, the settlement agreement and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner is compelled to reject the agreement as it is currently structured since he cannot be satisfied by the present record that the proposed settlement meets the Cardonick standards for settlement of tenure matters. In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846. Specifically, there is no indication that the within teaching staff member was advised of the Commissioner's duty, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, to refer tenure determinations for possible revocation of certificate.

While the Commissioner does not preclude the possibility of settlement in this matter, he stresses that in order for him to meet his own obligation to the schools and children of this state, he must be assured that any settlement is consistent with appropriate standards for setting aside tenure matters as expressed in Cardonick, supra.

Accordingly, the proposed settlement is rejected for the reasons expressed herein. The Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the OAL for revision of the documents, consistent with the concerns set forth above. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to a hearing on the merits.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning unsuccessful bidder challenged Board's revised specifications regarding 1999-2000 contract to provide custodial services.

ALJ found that petitioner did not meet the requirements for bidders since bidders had to have three comparably sized school districts under contract. In addition, petitioner was not the lowest qualified bidder. Finding no genuine issue of material fact, the ALJ granted summary judgment to the Board.

Assistant Commissioner adopted findings and determination in Initial Decision as his own. Petition was dismissed.

Record Closed: July 12, 1999 Decided: September 1, 1999

BEFORE: KATHRYN A. CLARK, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Originally, this matter was opened by the petitioner, Alaska Services, Inc. ("Alaska") on an application for an order granting emergent relief, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5. The relief requested was for a stay in the awarding and/or commencement of a contract for custodial services by respondent, East Brunswick Board of Education ("the Board").

The application was denied. The Commissioner of Education concurred. The present cross-motions for summary decision followed.

FACTUAL STATEMENT

The facts are substantially as presented on the application for emergent relief, and are herein restated.

On May 7, 1998, the Board issued an advertisement for bids to provide custodial services for its 9 schools and administration building, which were due May 29, 1998 (1998 bid). The advertisement for bids contained the following paragraph:

> B. QUALIFICATIONS FOR BIDDERS
>
> The following are the minimum requirements to qualify for bidding:
>
> 8. Bidder must be doing business in a minimum of three (3) public school districts of equal or greater volume performing custodial services.

This contract (1998 contract) was awarded to Alaska, for the period July 1, 1998 through June 30, 1999.

On May 13, 1999, the Board issued an advertisement for bids to provide custodial services for its 9 schools and administration building, which were due May 28, 1999 (1999 bid). The 1999 bid specification contained the same language regarding qualifications for bidders as the 1998 bid specification:

B. QUALIFICATIONS FOR BIDDERS

The following are the minimum requirements to qualify for bidding:

* * * * *

8. Bidder must be doing business in a minimum of three (3) public school districts of equal or greater volume performing custodial services.

No contract was awarded, the bids were canceled, and the Board issued a revised advertisement for bids on June 4, 1999 (1999 rebid). The 1999 rebid specifications were revised:

B. QUALIFICATIONS FOR BIDDERS

The following are the minimum requirements to qualify for bidding:

* * * * *

8. Bidder must submit evidence at time of bid of currently being under contract to provide custodial services in a minimum of 2 public school districts equal or greater in size than the East Brunswick School District in number of buildings and square feet.

Only one bidder was qualified. This bidder was not petitioner, Alaska.

Alaska asks that the revised specifications be declared null and void, that the Board be required to readvertise the bid without the revised specification, and that it be awarded attorney's fees and such other relief as is just and proper.

Alaska's president, Kevin Fay, said at the emergent hearing that Alaska had responsibly performed the 1998 contract, and Fay alleges that he had been informed by Don Hewins that Alaska's contract would be renewed for 1999-2000, with an increase in the contract fee. Despite this, the Board advertised for bids, and Alaska entered a bid, which Fay believes was the lowest qualified and/or responsible bid. The bids were canceled, and Fay states that he was told by Mr. Hewins that the Board wanted to intentionally eliminate some bidders ("the riff raff"), but Fay claims he was told that Alaska would be eligible under the revised specifications. Alaska was not eligible under the revised specifications, and Fay said that Alaska did not bid under the revised specifications.

Fay claims that Alaska will be forced to terminate the services of their 18 employees who presently service the East Brunswick School District. The petitioner claims respondent intentionally violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15e, in that it knowingly revised the specification to exclude all but one company, and the revision was not directly related to the purpose, function or activity for which the contract was made.

The Board's witness, Donald Hewins, Director of Support Services, in his certification o ht emergent application stated that he had discussed a possible extension of Alaska's contract into 1999-2000 with Fay, and a possible price increase (per N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-42h), but that the District's Buildings and Grounds Committee decided that the 1999-2000 contract should be bid. Accordingly, the bid was advertised and 6 companies responded. One bidder showed more than 3 comparably sized districts under contract, and its bid was well over the amount budgeted for custodial services.. Another bidder showed 2 comparably sized districts under contract. Alaska showed only its contract with respondent East Brunswick as a contract of comparable size[1]. The other bidders could not show any comparable size contracts. All bids were rejected for failure to meet qualifications and price.

Hewins testified that the Buildings and Grounds Committee revised the specification in order to attract additional qualified bidders[2]. Hewins said that he had assured Fay that he would discuss Alaska's situation with them. However, the Buildings and Grounds Committee decided that, while it was comfortable with reducing the requirement to 2 comparably sized districts, it would not reduce its requirement to only 1.

[1] Alaska had lost its other two contracts of school districts of comparable size before the 1999 bid was advertised.

[2] In his certification, Hewins denied saying that the specifications were revised to eliminate "riff raff" or any potential bidders. He stated that the revision took place to expand the potential pool of qualified bidders. As the question of any violation of rights of the two lowest bidders is not before me (Alaska was the third lowest bidder), I make no findings regarding this question.

Hewins said that the change in the specifications were meant to clarify the specification, and to expand the number of qualified applicants, and to attempt to define "comparable size" in a meaningful way. Despite this effort, only one qualified bidder submitted a bid on the "rebid". This bidder's price is still in excess of the budgeted allocation for, custodial services. All bids were again rejected, and negotiations continued pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5(16)d.

DISCUSSION

The material facts are not in dispute. Alaska was not able to meet the original requirement in the May 13 advertisement for bids. Its situation was only alleviated by the revision to the Qualification for Bidders specification. The only issue that could possibly be in dispute is whether Hewins told Fay that the revised bid specifications would be such that Alaska could bid successfully. Even if (for purposes of this summary decision motion) Hewins did make such a statement (and I do not make any finding that he did), but giving every possible inference to Alaska, the Board would not be bound by such a statement, and Alaska could not rely on this to require that the Board tailor its bid so that Alaska could meet its specifications.

Alaska cannot demand that the Board reduce its requirement to 1 comparably sized school district. The Board had a right to ask to see at least 2 comparably sized school districts, to assure itself that the bidder had a likelihood of being able, not only do the job, but to be fiscally sound enough to be able to complete the contract.

The school district has a right to have a responsible, qualified bidder as its contractor. Alaska had no valid claim to the 1999-2000 contract.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND the following as FACT by a preponderance of the credible evidence:

1. Alaska entered a bid for the 1999-2000 contract even though it did not meet the requirements for bidders, which were the same requirements for bidders as were in its earlier

1998-1999 contract. Alaska did not challenge the requirement for bidders of having 3 comparably sized school districts under contract.

2. Alaska was not the lowest qualified bidder for the 1999-2000 contract.

3. The revision of the Qualification for Bidders specification took place on the orders of the Buildings and Grounds Committee, and was approved by the School Board.

4. The Buildings and Grounds Committee consists of 3 School Board members, the President of the School Board (on an Ad Hoc basis), the School District Superintendent, and Donald Hewins, as Director of Support Services.

5. The revision of the Qualification for Bidders specification was intended to attract additional qualified bidders, clarified the specification, and tried to define "comparable size" in a meaningful way.

6. Respondent did not revised the Qualification for Bidders specification to exclude all but one company. That revision was directly related to the purpose, function or activity for which the contract was made.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Summary decision is granted if, after considering the evidence presented in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, there exists no genuine issue of material fact. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995). The essential question is "whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require [a hearing] or whether it is so one sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law" Id. at 533. The Court recognized that this necessarily involves the judge in the process of weighing the evidence presented. Id. When determining whether a genuine issue of material fact exists, "the court should be guided by the same evidentiary standard of proof . . . that would apply" at a hearing. Id. This weighing differs from the weighing the judge would perform after a hearing in that "on a motion for summary [decision] the court must grant all the favorable inferences to the non-movant." Id. at 536.

"When a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). "If an adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered." Id.

CONCLUSION

The Board of Education of the Township of East Brunswick, Middlesex County, is entitled to summary decision.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that respondent's motion for summary judgment be GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties filed no exceptions to the initial decision.

Upon his independent review of the record in this matter, which has been delegated to him for review, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, the Assistant Commissioner concurs with the determination of the Administrative Law Judge that Petitioner Alaska had no valid claim to the 1999-2000 contract for custodial services with the within Board and, consequently, summary decision is appropriately granted to the Board.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parents alleged the Board impermissibly restricted the First Amendment rights of their son, T.H.L., and denied him procedural due process in its consideration of their appeal of a grade of zero for his biology assignment.

In light of the record and testimony of witnesses, the ALJ found that T.H.L. was given an opportunity to revise his assignment to remove all references to illegal drug use, but he refused to make the revisions. ALJ found that the assignment of a zero grade was an academic and not a disciplinary action. The teacher's direction to delete references normally associated with drug use and the drug culture was not inconsistent with the Board's antidrug program. Citing Hazelwood, the ALJ determined that the school is a nonpublic forum and that the gravamen of this case rests within the area of pedagogical control traditionally accorded to schools. ALJ found that the Board did not exceed the compass of its lawful authority nor did it violate any constitutional rights or substantive or procedural due process rights of T.H.L. Having put aside petitioners' First Amendment arguments, arbitrary and capricious treatment arguments, due process arguments and the use of grades as discipline arguments, the ALJ found the petition to be without merit. Petition was dismissed.

Citing Hazelwood and Desilets, among other cases, the Assistant Commissioner adopted findings and determination in Initial Decision as his own.

Record Closed: August 10, 1999 Decided: September 2, 1999

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

This is a grading dispute between the parents of a pupil and a district board of education. This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. After notice, a prehearing conference was held by telephone on June 17, 1999. The matter was heard on July 27, 1999 at the Office of Administrative Law, Trenton. Post-hearing submissions were timely filed by both parties and the record closed on August 10, 1999.

The factual background of the dispute is uncontroverted. T.L. was a student in an honors biology class at Hopewell Valley Central High School in the 1997-98 school year. In early February 1998, the teacher assigned the creation of a "project kingdom" brochure due on the following Monday. Each pupil was assigned a kingdom from which the pupil was free to select an organism. T.L.'s assigned kingdom was fungi.

Each pupil was provided an assignment sheet (J-1a). The student was directed to play the role of an advertising agency and design a "creative, neat and well-organized brochure that catches the eye" for the organism the pupil had chosen. Among other things, the assignment sheet directed that the brochure include discussion of prey/predators and the use of at least three resources, of which two were to be periodicals and one a text. A bibliography had to be provided.

T.L. selected the Psilocybe mushroom as the subject for his brochure, completed the assignment and submitted it on time.

On or about Tuesday, February 17, 1998, the teacher directed T.L. to redo his brochure without "any references to illegal activity" and notified T.L. that pending a revision, the brochure was given a grade of zero out of seventy possible points.

T.L.'s brochure was not displayed in class. On February 17, T.L.'s mother telephoned the school office and left a request that the teacher call her and her husband at home that evening. T.L. discussed the situation with his mother and father and they agreed that unless the teacher could justify his decision, the brochure would not be redone.

T.L.'s parents did not hear from the teacher on February 17. On the next day, J.L., T.L.'s father, wrote to the teacher (J-3) stating that T.L. would not revise the brochure. The letter requested that the teacher assign the brochure a grade and suggested that the teacher consider apologizing to T.L. T.L. delivered the letter to the school office on the morning of February 18.

The teacher telephoned the parents that morning. He explained that, although the brochure was creative and well written, T.L.'s references to illegal drug use were inappropriate. T.L.'s parents pointed out that high school students do not live in a vacuum and that references had to be judged in context. They insisted that the brochure made clear that T.L. was not advocating use of illegal drugs. Rather, he was mocking drug use.

On Thursday, February 19, the science supervisor telephoned T.L.'s father to suggest that he and his wife come to the school to discuss the situation. T.L.'s father stated he was unwilling to do so because the teacher's decision to give the brochure a grade of zero was unacceptable. The situation required prompt rectification, not discussion. The petitioner's father further stated that when the petitioner's parents had spoken to the teacher, the teacher had been unable to justify himself and that if the supervisor thought his actions could be defended, she should do so in writing. If she chose to do so, T.L.'s father would provide her with his written response.

On March 1, 1998, J.L. wrote a letter to the school principal (J-4) appealing the teacher's and supervisor's decisions. J.L. supplied the principal with "background to assist his review of the situation." Petitioner's brief at 4.

On March 3, the principal wrote to J.L. (J-5). The principal supported the teacher. He further reported that on February 23, 1998, he had met with the superintendent who also supported the teacher. The principal's letter, among other things, noted that the district and community had done much to discourage drug and alcohol use among students and had taken a firm stand against clothing that advertised or highlighted drug, tobacco or alcohol use. A school-wide, community-based educational program that began in ninth grade and extended through high school had been implemented.

T.L.'s father, J.L., wrote again to the superintendent on March 8 (J-6) because the superintendent "had made his February 23rd decision without benefit of the March 1st letter from Petitioner's Father." Petitioner's brief at 5. Shortly thereafter, and unrelated to this case, the superintendent resigned.

On March 24, J.L. wrote a letter to the Board of Education (J-7) requesting the Board to overrule the school administration. He received a reply from the Interim Superintendent under date of May 11 (J-11). The Interim Superintendent said that, at the request of the Board, she had reviewed the matter and agreed with the former superintendent's decision not to overrule the teacher. She stated that T.L. enjoyed no constitutional right to freedom of expression under the circumstances, that the teacher's decision was not arbitrary or capricious, that denying credit until work is revised is not an unusual procedure and that such an approach was reasonable and appropriate under the circumstances in view of the fact that the work in question could be construed as promoting drug use. The letter concluded stating the Interim Superintendent would refer the matter to the Board's Curriculum Committee for review.

J.L. again wrote to the Board on May 16 (J-12). He repeated his perceived violation of T.L.'s right to freedom of expression by the school district and stated that no one had identified how T.L.'s project did not satisfy "completely and masterfully" the requirements of the assignment. Petitioner's brief at 6. The Board, after the Curriculum Committee review, scheduled a hearing on the matter (J-13).

T.L.'s father then gave the Board written notice, to "correct the record," that he did not request a hearing nor did he have anything to bring to the Board's attention except that which he had already submitted in writing (J-14). He offered to "attend and assist" the Board upon certain conditions. The Board did not accept his conditions. J.L. did not attend the scheduled hearing and the Board proceeded to make a determination without J.L.'s assistance. See, Exhibit J-15. The Board considered the matter and rendered a written decision, fully dispositive of the issues (J-17).

PAROL AND DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE

T.L. testified in his own behalf. He identified the assignment he was given (J-1a) approximately one week before the due date of February 9, 1998. He visited a library on the following Saturday to accomplish the necessary research. He wrote his paper using sources he had found. His brochure was designed to capture the eye. He applied "advertising" technique. It was a creative presentation and poked fun at drug use. The witness stated that the only predators the Psilocybe has are humans not smart enough to not eat it. He also discussed the organism's reproduction and indigenous area. He made references to Alice in Wonderland and indirectly referred to illegal status in the United States. There was no intent to promote use of this or any drug. T.L. stated he learned a lot about the mushroom.

T.L. said his teacher was upset about references to illegal activity. The teacher told him to redo the assignment and stated that credit would be withheld until it was redone. Student brochures were displayed in class and a question and answer period dealing with the brochures was held. T.L.'s brochure was not displayed. T.L. eventually received a zero for the assignment which, in turn, lowered his marking period grade from ninety-two to eighty-three. It affected his biology course grade and his grade point average.

The witness spoke with the teacher when the paper was returned. The teacher seemed upset and perhaps embarrassed, but not angry. The teacher made clear that credit would be given if the assignment was redone and references to illegal activity removed. T.L. understood what the teacher wanted. Later that day, he deemed the teacher's demands "absurd." T.L. told his parents and they called and wrote to the teacher.

T.L. later spoke to the teacher again. The teacher asked if T.L. were comfortable with what his parents were doing and T.L. said that he was. T.L. told his guidance counselor of the incident, completed the course and had no other problems. The same teacher graded other assignments and T.L. had no problems.

The teacher testified. Upon reading T.L.'s submission, he decided not to give a grade. Extraneous references to illegality are inappropriate. T.L. was assigned the kingdom fungi and could have used any organism in the kingdom. He chose Psilocybe.

The witness identified T.L.'s brochure (J-2). Aztec Indians arguably were predators of the mushroom and the last paragraph suggests that humans today are predators of the Psilocybe. The witness stated he objected more to the tone of the brochure than anything else.

The brochure could be read as suggesting drug use or at least not disapproving it. Some sections did have academic merit. The witness conceded he did not display this brochure. He considered its effect on younger pupils, thirteen-and-fourteen-year-olds. In general, the witness had several considerations in mind. The brochure was nonscientific, it could be considered by younger pupils as not disapproving of drug use, it appeared to be outside normal school work guidelines and the witness was aware of his responsibility as a teacher to uphold drug use policies of the school and district. The brochure could be read as winking at the use of the Psilocybe mushroom and, therefore, was inappropriate.

On the first page, T.L. discussed the effects on the central nervous system by using the word "high." The teacher saw attempts at humor, but did not view the biology classroom as a forum for dissemination of drug information younger pupils might not already know. The teacher did not discuss this assignment with the principal before grading.

He met with T.L. and went over the assignment. All pupils received the instruction sheet (J-1) and were told it was to be handed in with the assignment. T.L. seemed clear on what the witness said and T.L. asked no questions.

The witness received J.L.'s letter of February 18 to him on or about February 18. He may have spoken to J.L. or J.E.H. before he received the letter. They told him he should have had their letter by that time.

The witness stated he often helps pupils rewrite work. This is often accomplished through dialogue. He gives his reasons for editing and holds this to be a teaching responsibility. T.L.'s grade was not punitive because he had the chance to bring his work up to standard. The teacher expected the work to be rewritten and he hoped T.L. would realize what he expected. The tone of T.L.'s work simply was not scientific.

After receiving T.L.'s parents' letter of February 18, the teacher told T.L. that he still could resubmit the work if he wanted to, provided he omitted the references to drug use. T.L. responded that his father was dealing with it now and said, "It's not my issue," or words to that effect. The witness had several conversations with administrators including the science coordinator and the principal.

T.L. could have looked more deeply and found other predators. It would have involved some work, but not much, to eliminate sections mentioning illegal activity. T.L.'s approach to the assignment was creative and interesting, but the material was inappropriate in part.

The letter the teacher received (J-3), made the following points:

1. Not one word of this assignment will be redone.

2. You are to send his brochure home with [T.] with a grade commensurate with the exceptional quality of work embodied in it no later than this Friday, February 20th. (I also think an apology to [T.] would be the decent thing to do, although this is optional rather than mandatory. Let your conscience be your guide.) [sic]

3. If you fail to satisfy point 2 above, I will immediately appeal your behavior as far as necessary within the school system, and if this process does not promptly result in appropriate redress, I will sue, in a court of competent jurisdiction, you and everyone within the school system who supports you.

The science supervisor testified. Upon being aware of the situation, she discussed it with the teacher and with the principal. She also spoke to the parents and asked for a meeting. J.L. refused to meet. He wanted the teacher simply to regrade the paper; there was nothing to discuss. T.L.'s responses were curt.

The witness is the next step, after the teacher, in disputes such as this. She read over Exhibit J-2, T.L.'s brochure and agreed with the teacher. The principal, as next in the chain of command, had to be advised. J.L. told her that T.L.'s parents had spoken with the teacher and had gone over the points in Exhibit J-3. The witness met with the teacher and the principal early on in order to bring the matter to the principal's attention. After J.L. refused a conference, the principal was again advised.

The witness identified Exhibit R-1, the Honors Biology Curriculum Guide in effect at the time for the course involved.

J.E.H., mother of T.L., testified. She stated she had a telephone conversation with the teacher and asked his logic and rationale for the decision to give no credit unless the work was redone. The teacher repeated what he had told T.L. The parents' response was that the piece could not be rewritten because humans do consume the mushrooms. She and the teacher discussed the references J.L. cited. They were appropriate in her opinion. The parents raised the issue of using humor. They did not understand why, if humans are using this mushroom, this could not be mentioned.

The witness also called the Mercer County Superintendent of Schools in March 1998. By that time, the matter had gone to the principal and the decision to support the teacher had been made. The witness inquired of the County Superintendent what the administrative appeal procedure was.

The high school principal for the 1997-98 school year testified. He learned of the matter when the teacher came to him on February 19, 1998 with the February 18 letter (J-3). The teacher recounted his conversation with the parents. The witness asked the teacher for the assignment sheet and asked about the demand to delete references to the psychedelic properties of the mushroom.

The witness also contacted the science supervisor and discussed the matter with her. The witness thought that the brochure was clever and sought a meeting with T.L.'s parents. He believed the references to head shops and air heads to be superfluous. They did not add to the presentation, but detracted from it. What T.L. may have seen as tongue-in-cheek was inappropriate.

The witness identified Board Policy 6214, Controversial Subject Matter, adopted November 4, 1996 (P-1). Teachers are responsible for classroom discussions. The policy advises teachers to go up the chain of command if they are concerned, need guidance or have questions about the maturity level of pupils. Time consumption is also mentioned. The witness did not apply this in the 1998 incident. After he discussed the matter with the supervisor and the parents refused a meeting, the witness called the superintendent and gave him the assignment (J-1) and the February 18 letter (J-3). It was decided the principal would respond if T.L. wrote again.

The principal received a letter dated March 1 from J.L. (J-4). J.L. expected the matter to be resolved as he said it should be resolved. On March 3, the witness wrote to J.L. (J-5). Among other things, the witness suggested a meeting, but J.L. refused. At this point, the principal again advised the superintendent.

The witness also testified about a school- and community-based program, including a dress code, directed at certain problems perceived in the district. Much of the information collected before the policy was written was taken from a questionnaire filled out by former pupils. The dress code now forbids clothing that advertises, promotes or glorifies drugs, drug use, alcohol, alcohol use, tobacco or tobacco use. T.L.'s brochure was not appropriate for reading by other pupils. In fact, the mere presentation could be considered as school sanction of its contents. In response to a question whether there were other instances where an assignment fulfilled all qualifications but received a mark of zero, the answer was that it happened only where the assignments were submitted exceedingly late.

The witness discussed Exhibit J-4, the four-page letter to him by J.L. dated March 1. He received it on March 3 and considered it in writing his response, J-5, under date of March 3. Among other things, the witness stated that he found the assignment to be an excellent one in that it gave pupils a certain latitude of exploration and allowed for a great degree of creativity. He agreed with the teacher and supervisor that references to "head shops," "conscious raising high," and "Alice in Wonderland" were inappropriate. The letter also stated, "As a school district and community, we have been doing a great deal to discourage drug and alcohol use among our students and have taken a firm stand against clothing that highlights drug, tobacco, and alcohol use. Mr. [H.] is perfectly willing to accept and grant full credit for [T.'s] work, with appropriate revisions." The witness then recited the 1994 initiative based on a pupil survey, community meetings and much Board study. The witness stated clearly that all of this was in mind when the present case arose. The direction to T.L. to delete references to drugs was consistent with district policy. Drug references were superfluous, although the quality of the brochure was good. T.L. was not disciplined because of this.

The brochure met the requirements of the assignment and would have been so graded if the objectionable material were removed. The policy on drugs and alcohol and tobacco are zero tolerance policies. There is no acceptance of use, possession or influence. Classroom teachers were involved and the entire curriculum was examined and, where necessary, supplemented.

The former principal believes the brochure was not humorous. It was not the same as a T-shirt featuring a beer can, but the witness still had concern about the effect of the brochure. T.L.'s intent may not have been to advocate the use of psychedelic substances. The influence of the brochure, however, could have been less than positive.

It would have been virtually impossible to teach from the brochure as submitted and not identify the writer. Honors students are competitive and would certainly look at the grade the brochure had received. They might also look to see what someone had got away with.

The acting superintendent at the time of this matter testified. She had been the assistant superintendent prior to being named interim superintendent. She identified a letter she wrote to J.L. under date of May 11, 1998 (J-11). The second paragraph states

> Asking a student to revise work and to deny credit until the work is revised is not an unusual academic procedure. In this instance, where [T.'s] project could be construed as promoting drug use, I believe Mr. [H.'s] decision to use this approach was reasonable and appropriate.

It is not at all unusual for a teacher to return work to a pupil for rewriting. The work may require editing, expansion or removal of superfluous material. T.L.'s brochure could have described effects more scientifically. As presented, the witness did not believe J-2 was a creative presentation. So far as the witness knows, Board Policy 6241 was not applied. The witness did not believe the policy was related to the circumstances at the time. It was not a question of a controversial subject, it was a matter of a teacher's right to return pupil work for rewriting.

This assignment was returned to a pupil to delete certain references. This is clearly a teacher's right. Certain content in T.L.'s submission could be construed as promoting drug use. The witness agreed with the teacher because the teacher was working within his prerogatives. If the student deleted references to human consumption, the witness could not say with certainty that the submission would have addressed predators. The piece was not footnoted and the witness could not say what part of the brochure came from which reference.

The witness identified a letter from the Chair of the Curriculum Committee to J.L. under date of June 4, 1998. The letter carefully lays out what has happened, the fact of Committee review and what the Committee considered. In the Committee's view, the requested edits did not interfere with T.L.'s First Amendment rights. In short, the Board Committee found that the teacher acted within his authority.

Judith R. Gordon testified. She was a member of the Board of Education at the time pertinent here. She wrote a two-page letter to other Board members on June 1, 1998 (J-24). She disagrees with the findings and determinations of other Board members. Significantly, she suggests further discussion as amelioration. The document contains other tangents not directly pertinent.

The witness stated that, although she read a photocopy of the assignment, her general recall of the document after more than a year is not clear. She believed she had a point of view for the Board to consider. The parents were not present when her thoughts were presented. In the witness' view, the issue is not the intent or creativity of the brochure. The issue is discouraging discussion of issues in a public school. The topic of the psychedelic drug was possibly more appropriate to a social studies or English class. The witness saw the role of the Board and Board members as balancing competing interests. She believes she engaged in a process that did that. It is always perilous to overturn staff decisions and the Board needs a very good reason to do that. There is a tendency of many to challenge a school decision too abruptly. The witness did not believe that Board Policy 6214 was relevant to this question.

In the paragraph beginning at the bottom of the first page of her letter, she mentions that the assignment does not indicate that papers must be free from irony or that references to illegal use of drugs or other illegal practices would not be tolerated. At hearing, she stated that no assignment can list all that is out of bounds. Something must be expected of the student.

The witness still favors establishing a process for working out disagreements. While no credit for an assignment that a pupil refuses to amend is harsh, she cannot say that it is never appropriate. The witness also stated that her initial view was that the teacher was right. She suggested that the parents and school authorities meet and confer. She now understands that that avenue was cut off by the family in this case.

DETERMINATION

The petitioner argues that the Board's grade of zero for T.L.'s brochure is arbitrary, capricious and in violation of due process. The petitioner also asserts that the Board's grade of zero illegally misrepresents T.L.'s academic achievement. Further, the Board impermissibly infringed T.L.'s right to free of speech under the Constitutions of the United States and of New Jersey. Finally, the Board's grade of zero for T.L.'s brochure punished him academically for a nonacademic reason. This was a disciplinary procedure requiring a due process hearing that the Board did not provide.

The Board asserts that its treatment of T.L. was reasonable, not arbitrary and capricious and did not offend the requirements of substantive due process. Further, the Board asserts that the petitioner challenges the substance of the Board's decision making. This involves questions of substantive due process, not procedural due process.

The grade given to T.L. does not misrepresent his academic achievement, but was a consequence of a determination to abandon the academic process in favor of litigation. The Board has not impermissibly infringed T.L.'s First Amendment rights. The petitioner relies on inapposite cases. Most importantly, the Board's actions satisfied the requirements of due process.

The short answer is that the Board and its agents have not exceeded the compass of their lawful authority nor have they violated any constitutional rights or substantive or procedural due process rights of the petitioner.

In support of his first argument, the petitioner puts forward Lucia v. Duggan, 303 F. Supp. 201 (D.C. Ma. 1969), Ochsner v. Board of Trustees of Washington Community College District No. 17, 811 *P.*2nd 985 (Wash. App. 1991) and Sylvester v. Texas Southern University, 957 F. Supp. 944 (S.D. Tex. 1997). As the Board correctly points out, these authorities arise in a higher education or employment setting, involve questions of procedural due process and arise in foreign jurisdictions. Although there is obviously overlap, courts nation-wide distinguish between the college student on one hand and the elementary or secondary pupil on the other.

The Commissioner of Education has, since at least 1903, had the first word in education cases, even those having a constitutional dimension. Desilets v. Clearview Regional Board of Education, 137 N.J. 585, 594-597 (1994). N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 provides that all controversies arising under the school laws shall be tried first to the Commissioner of Education.

The analysis begins with the determination that the matter simply is not in the posture the petitioner suggests. Unlike the expression of a political belief, the gravamen of this case rests squarely within the area of pedagogical control traditionally accorded to school corporations. Even if this matter had arisen from the context of a journalism class, Hazelwood School Dist. v. Kuhlmeyer, 489 U.S. 260 (1988), makes clear that school officials may, indeed, exert strict control over the content of class work. Justice White, for the majority, held that the school is a nonpublic forum and, further, that there is no protection for curricular speech. The no protection holding springs from Bethel School Dist. No. 403 v. Fraser, 478 U.S. 675 (1986). Fraser dealt with a seventeen-year-old high school senior who delivered a nominating speech on behalf of a classmate running for a student government office. Fraser used humorous sexual innuendos in his speech. The curricular speech doctrine extended in Hazelwood raises further questions. Most fundamentally, when is student expression part of the educational program. At least one of the criteria is whether or not credit is awarded for the work or activity. In today's case, the answer is clearly yes.

This judge concedes that Fraser and Hazelwood have moved the United States Supreme Court considerably away from the path indicated by Tinker v. Des Moines Independent Community School Dist., 393 U.S. 503 (1969). Whether one chooses to explain this in terms of appointments of more conservative justices or a disenchantment with student activity and social upheavals of the 1960s, the fact remains that it exists. Before leaving this part of the discussion, however, it must be noted that the shift in United States Supreme Court holdings may simply reflect the tension that exists in reconciling the mission of the schools to inculcate social values in young persons with the need to avoid the strictures of orthodoxy and the suppression of legitimate debate in the classroom.

A grading dispute, which is all that the present matter is, is strictly a local matter and is left to the administration and the policy making elements of the local board of education. "The school law vests the management of the public schools in each district in the local boards of education, and unless they violate the law, or act in bad faith, the exercise of their discretion in the performance of the duties imposed on them is not subject to interference or reversal." Kenney v. Board of Education of Montclair, 1938 S.L.D. 647 (1935), aff'd State Board of Education, 1938 S.L.D. 649, 653 (1935).

The context in which this matter arose includes a district and community rededication to what has been called a Healthy Community Program. The direction to T.L. to delete references normally associated with drug use and the drug culture was not inconsistent with the antidrug program. Nor was the ultimate grade given a punishment. The key to academic credit lay in T.L.'s hands at all times. T.L.'s intent may not have been to advocate the use of psychedelic substances. The teacher could have included the brochure in the class discussion that addressed other brochures. However, this would have required disagreement with the approach that T.L. took. That, in turn, would open the door to other possible arguments--and even litigation--based on disparate treatment or making an example of a pupil. It would have been virtually impossible to teach from the brochure and not identify the writer.

The school was faced with a delicate balance. The issue is how to appear not to promote or even condone drug use while preserving open debate. In fact, this is a question faced to a greater or lesser extent in every public school every day. The majority of the decisions teachers make will be correct, as in this case. But no assignment can list all that is out of bounds. The petitioner states he was not told that the brochure had to be free of irony. That is a true statement, but not on point. Irony is not what was objectionable in the finished product.

Having considered the record and the arguments, I FIND that the assignment of a zero grade to T.L.'s brochure was an academic and not a disciplinary action. This, together with the fact that the petitioner has mistakenly argued procedural due process abuse where he has asserted substantive due process abuse, puts to rest the due process arguments.

Although student choice in courses, curriculum materials, assignments, teachers and even schools is increasing in some school districts, these are matters of educational policy and not constitutional rights. No court has ruled that students have a right to determine courses, texts, or teaching methods. The United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit has held that students have no constitutional right to challenge a school board's decision to eliminate a popular course. Zykan v. Warsaw Community School Corp., 631 *F.*2d 1300 (C.A. 7 1980). Students do not have a right to academic freedom as that term is contemplated in academia. Academic freedom, to the extent it exists in the public schools inheres to teachers, not pupils.

In the present case, the petitioner at most asserts a difference of opinion about a matter that lies within the sound discretion of a teacher. The Board's brief discusses this point well, but is not necessary to determination of the question. The assignment and the treatment of T.L.'s brochure were both legitimate pedagogical concerns. If the petitioner's argument were accepted, use of any creative element would have obliged the teacher to accept the product whether or not relevant to the subject. The Board argues, and I agree, that however ironic, humorous, clever or entertaining T.L.'s material may have been, the teacher was charged with authority to make, and correctly made, the judgment that the presentation was not sufficiently scientific and required reworking. Board's brief at 13.

The petitioner also urges that the grade given misrepresents his academic achievement. The Board counters that the grade does not misrepresent academic achievement, but is a result of abandoning the usual route of a school dispute through the chain of command for the more confrontational arena of litigation. The petitioner cites two cases, one from Pennsylvania and one from Indiana, that dealt with grade reduction. They are inapposite in that in those cases, grades were reduced for disciplinary reasons, not academic performance. Further, the pupils in those cases were not given the opportunity to make up missed work. That opportunity was offered to T.L. more than once.

Having considered and put aside the petitioner's First Amendment arguments, arbitrary and capricious treatment arguments, due process arguments and use of grades as discipline arguments, I FIND the petition of appeal to be without merit. The petitioner was a freshmen enrolled in an honors biology class at Hopewell Valley Central High School in the 1997-98 school year. In response to an assignment requiring description of a selected organism including kingdom, metabolism, mobility, habitat, predators, feeding habits and reproduction, T.L. submitted a work product entitled "Conscious Dreams." His teacher, after reviewing the paper, spoke with T.L. and directed him to rewrite his submission without references to illegal activity. The teacher believed that the paper, as submitted, was grade level inappropriate, did not meet the teacher's expectations for a scientific presentation and went beyond the limits of the intended assignment. Further, it ran against the district's policies and broad efforts to discourage messages about illegal drug use. These extended even to clothing that pupils were permitted to wear to school.

The teacher anticipated that T.L. would resubmit the assignment. However, the teacher received a written communication from T.L.'s father. The language in the letter (J-3), to be generous, is imperious. Efforts by persons above the teacher in the hierarchy to discuss the situation with the parents were rebuffed. A series of letters, described above, ensued. The matter eventually reached the Board level. The tone of later letters (J-7, J-12 and J-13) cannot be described as generously as J-3. The Board of Education fully considered the matter, which consideration included the expression of dissenting and differing views, and rendered a written decision that addressed the issues on June 4, 1998 (J-17). This appeal followed.

The petitioner having failed to carry the burden of proof on any of the issues implicated, I CONCLUDE that a decision must be entered in favor of the Board of Education. Accordingly, the petition of appeal is DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

J.L. AND J.E.H., on behalf of minor child, T.H.L.,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE HOPEWELL VALLEY REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and were considered by the Assistant Commissioner in rendering the within decision.

Upon careful and independent consideration of the record in this matter, which has been delegated to him for review, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, the Assistant Commissioner concurs that the within matter may fairly be considered a grading dispute, and, contrary to petitioners' continued assertion, the Board's decision to uphold the teacher's assignment of a zero was not intended to "serve disciplinary purposes." (Gustave M. Wermuth and Sylvia Wermuth v. Julius C. Bernstein, Principal of Livingston High School, and Board of Education of the Township of Livingston, Essex County, 1965 S.L.D. 121) This is not a case where a student who "cut" his honors Biology class was, consequently, penalized with a zero on an assignment. (See, for example, J.B. on behalf of W.B. v. Board of Education of the Township of Pequannock, Passaic County, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 664, where the Commissioner held that a grading policy which automatically reduced a high school senior's grade to failing for cutting physical education class on the last day of school was arbitrary.) Rather, this case concerns a student whose work product, although perhaps technically complete, contained superfluous material which was, in content and tone, inappropriate for the high school setting.[1] Such a determination was well within the purview of T.L.'s teacher, Mr. Harrison. Notwithstanding repeated opportunities to revise his assignment in order to obtain a grade, T.L. declined to address his teacher's concerns. As the ALJ noted, "[t]he key to academic credit lay in T.L.'s hands at all times." (Initial Decision at p. 14) Moreover, like the ALJ, the Assistant Commissioner finds that petitioners' due process arguments are without merit.

Further, the Assistant Commissioner concurs that the Board's action in this instance did not offend First Amendment principles. The Hazelwood Court determined that the school is a nonpublic forum, and distinguished between a school's need to tolerate a student's personal expression, which happens to take place on school premises, as in Tinker, supra, and a school's obligation to promote particular student speech. The Court found that, in the latter instance, educators are entitled to exercise greater control "over school-sponsored publications, theatrical productions, and other expressive activities that students, parents, and members of the public might reasonably perceive to bear the imprimatur of the school." Hazelwood, supra, at 270, 271. The Court recognized that such control was necessary "to assure that participants learn whatever lessons the activity is designed to teach, that readers or listeners are not exposed to material that may be inappropriate for their level of maturity, and that the views of the individual speaker are not erroneously attributed to the school." (Id.) The Court further noted that:

> A school must also retain the authority to refuse to sponsor student speech that might reasonably be perceived to advocate drug or alcohol use, irresponsible sex, or conduct otherwise inconsistent > with 'the shared values of a civilized social order,' Fraser, supra, at 683, or to associate the school with any position other than neutrality on matters of political controversy. (Id. at 272)

Thus, the Hazelwood Court held that "educators do not offend the First Amendment by exercising editorial control over the style and content of student speech in school-sponsored expressive activities so long as their actions are reasonably related to legitimate pedagogical concerns."[2] (Id. at 273)

Here, petitioners do not deny that the dispute arises within the context of curricular speech, rather than personal, political expression. Further, the Board's pedagogical concern is that the District, attentive to student substance use/abuse, is committed to its prevention:

> Mr. Oliver [the Superintendent of Schools] in particular noted [in his testimony] that the district and high school policy strongly discouraged messages that treated illegal drug use lightly or frivolously. As a basis for that policy, he cited a recent study conducted in his building by the Search Institute, an independent research organization, indicating that over 49% of high school seniors in the Hopewell Valley Regional School District were "at risk" for serious drug or alcohol abuse problems or both. He further testified that these and similar startling statistical returns for the lower secondary grades had resulted in a community-wide effort to counter a casual attitude toward the illegal use of substances.  Mr. Oliver noted that as part of this community-wide response to a documented problem, the school district substantially revised its drug and alcohol policies and building practices, to the point of undertaking such initiatives as eliminating drug messages displayed on clothing. Mr. Oliver saw Mr. Harrison's decision as both appropriate pedagogically and consistent with the high school's anti-substance abuse initiative. (Board's Post-Hearing Brief at pp. 6-7)

[2] To the extent petitioners object to the ALJ's observation that Hazelwood stands for the proposition that "there is no protection for curricular speech," (Initial Decision at p. 13), the Assistant Commissioner acknowledges this deviation and does not affirm any principle which is contrary to the Court's holding in Hazelwood.

The Assistant Commissioner agrees with the Board. Whether T.L. intended to advocate illegal drug use is irrelevant; the Board need only be concerned that the text of T.L's brochure "might reasonably be perceived" by anyone to advance a position contrary to its interest in preventing substance use among students. Hazelwood, supra. Its position is consistent with its legal obligation to develop a policy and related programs to combat substance abuse among students. (N.J.S.A. 18A:40A-10) In this nonpublic forum, the Board may reasonably limit activities and expression to those which are "compatible with the intended purpose of the property," Perry Ed. Assn. v. Perry Local Educators' Assn., 460 U.S. 37, 49 (1983). In this respect, the instant matter is readily distinguishable from Desilets, supra, where the New Jersey Supreme Court held that the exclusion of a student's reviews of R-rated movies from a junior high school newspaper violated the First Amendment, since the district's policy concerning such material was found to be "vaguely defined and loosely applied and that its underlying educational concerns remained essentially undefined and speculative." Desilets, supra, at 593.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the ALJ is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein and amplified above. The within Petition of Appeal is dismissed.[3]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dear Counsel:

Having received the papers filed pursuant to the Board's request for interlocutory review in the matter entitled, In The Matter of The Tenure Hearing of Joseph Graceffo, School District of the Township of Wayne, Passaic County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5519-99, Agency Dkt. No. 113-5/99, and having determined to review the transcript of the oral order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) as issued on October 5, 1999, pursuant to my discretion under N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(c), I hereby set aside said order, for the reasons set forth below.

In the course of the tenure hearing currently in progress in connection with the above-noted matter, counsel for respondent objected to questions asked by the Board's counsel in the direct examination of Gary P. Hall, Human Resource Specialist for the Board. These questions concerned respondent's alleged "pattern of conduct of not drug testing students at Wayne Valley High School prior to the 1995-1996 school year." (Fogarty Certification at p. 2) Respondent argued that such evidence is outside the scope of the tenure charges; the ALJ sustained respondent's objection, thereby precluding the Board from bringing to the record any evidence of those prior incidents. The Board, however, asserts that although the incidents in question took place in 1991 and 1994, and the captions of the tenure charges allege that respondent is guilty of unbecoming conduct by virtue of events which transpired in the 1995-96, 1996-97 and 1998-99 school years, the content of its charges contained references to these two prior incidents, albeit without specific student names and dates, and the documentation accompanying the charges placed respondent on notice that the Board was aware of the incidents prior to the 1995-96 school year. (Id. at p. 5)

Upon review of the papers submitted, I find that the questions to which respondent's counsel raised objections involve incidents which are set forth in the Board's tenure charges and accompanying statements of evidence in a manner sufficient to apprise respondent of the charges against him so as to enable him to prepare his defense. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of James Andrews, School District of the City of Newark, 1991 S.L.D. 1286, 1298. Indeed, as the Board has demonstrated, in addition to the charges and accompanying documentation filed before me, respondent and his counsel were fairly notified in the course of proceedings before the Office of Administrative Law of the Board's intent to bring into evidence the two incidents in question, and were, prior to the hearing, made aware of the precise dates of the incidents and the students involved.

In determining to set aside the ALJ's order, I recognize that > the Commissioner will not automatically dismiss tenure charges on procedural grounds, and has declined to do so where the defect at issue did not prejudice respondent's rights or represent an egregious and unwarranted disregard of tenure proceeding law.  In re Andrews, supra, at 1298. (Citations omitted)

Under these circumstances, where respondent cannot credibly claim that he has been prejudiced by the Board's introduction of this evidence, I find that no purpose would be served by placing form over substance. Accordingly, I hereby set aside the ALJ's order issued on October 5, 1999 dismissing from the within tenure charges the 1991 and 1994 incidents, as identified herein.*

David C. Hespe

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the papers filed in connection with respondent's Motion to Dismiss in the matter entitled In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Daniel McHarris, School District of the Township of North Brunswick, Middlesex County, Agency Dkt. No. 283-9/99, wherein respondent moves for dismissal of the tenure charges due to procedural deficiencies with respect to the Board's certification of such charges. Respondent further requests payment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3, of salary withheld by the Board since the beginning of the 1999-2000 school year. For the reasons set forth below, I determine that the Board's action to approve certification of the instant charges prior to the expiration of the 15-day period afforded by law to respond to such charges constituted a substantial failure to comply with the procedural mandates governing the institution of tenure charges, necessitating the dismissal, without prejudice, of these charges.

I initially note that the procedural requirements with respect to tenure charges are set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1 and, in pertinent part, specify: Any charges made against a tenured employee shall be filed with the secretary of the board of education in writing and accompanied by a written statement of evidence under oath. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1(b)1; The board of education shall provide the employee with a copy of the charges and the statement of evidence. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11; The employee must be given an opportunity to submit a written statement of evidence under oath with respect to the charges. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11; The employee has 15 days from receipt of the tenure charges to make the submission. N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1(b)3; Upon expiration of the 15-day period, the board of education submission. N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1(b)3; Upon expiration of the 15-day period, the board of education shall determine whether there is probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charges and whether such charges, if credited, are sufficient to warrant the dismissal or reduction of salary. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1(b)4.

The within Board does not dispute that respondent was entitled to 15 days from his receipt of the tenure charges on August 27, 1999 to file an Answer to such charges, nor does it deny that its action to consider the charges on September 7, 1999 occurred prior to the expiration of the period allotted for respondent's Answer. Rather, the Board defends the propriety of its action by virtue of the fact that respondent's former attorney, subsequent to her receipt of the charges, advised the Board, by letter dated August 25, 1999, that respondent would not be filing a reply to the tenure charges, pursuant to the rights granted him under Ott v. Hamilton Twp. Bd. of Ed., 160 N.J. Super. 333 (App. Div. 1978), cert. den. 78 N.J. 336 (1978). Subsequent to receipt of this notice, Board consideration of the charges was scheduled for September 7, 1999. The Board, therefore, takes the position that respondent's waiver, upon which it reasonably relied, legally binds respondent to his position and he is estopped from attempting to alter his waiver.

I find such a defense wholly unpersuasive under the circumstances of the within matter. The record evidences, and the Board does not dispute, that on or before August 31, 1999, the law firm of Wilbert & Montenegro was officially substituted as respondent's counsel in this matter and, no later than September 2, 1999, the Board's attorney was advised of this substitution, advised that respondent's new counsel would not waive respondent's right to respond to the charges, and further advised that if the Board moved forward on this matter on September 7, 1999, prior to the expiration of the response period, it would be in contravention of respondent's rights. Having been clearly placed on notice, well in advance of the Board's scheduled meeting, that respondent intended to exercise his right to respond to the charges, the Board was obligated to postpone consideration of the tenure charges to a date subsequent to the expiration of the response period.[1]

I note that the within tenure charges, alleging 6 counts of unbecoming conduct on the part of the respondent, are serious in nature. I am further cognizant that dismissal of tenure charges is not required for technical, unsubstantial failure to follow statutory and regulatory procedural requirements. In the Matter of Tenure Hearing of Cowan, 224 N.J. Super. 737 (App. Div. 1988). However, it is well established that failure to provide a respondent with the time accorded him to answer tenure charges is a fatal procedural defect requiring dismissal of the charges. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Marilyn Feitel, 1977 S.L.D. 451, aff'd State Board 458; In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Carol Beam, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 320; In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of William Wenisch, decided by the Commissioner January 15, 1998, aff'd State Board July 1, 1998. Notwithstanding, although I have no alternative but to dismiss the instant charges as procedurally defective, this determination does not serve to preclude the Board from reconsidering them following proper compliance with the applicable statutory and regulatory mandates.

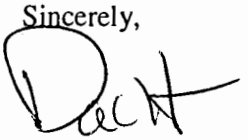
[1]Respondent advances other procedural deficiencies in the Board's certification process, which are disputed by the Board. In light of the mandated result herein, I find it unnecessary to consider or address these additional allegations.

Finally, addressing respondent's claim that he has not received salary since the beginning of the school year, the Board is reminded that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3, absent an indictment or validly certified tenure charges, a board may not suspend a tenured employee without pay. As the within respondent has not, at this point in time, been indicted nor has the Board validly certified tenure charges against him, he is entitled to full salary and emoluments for the school year until such time as either of these events may occur.

Accordingly, the within tenure charges are hereby dismissed, without prejudice, and the Board is directed to compensate respondent in accordance with this decision.[2]

Sincerely,



David C. Hespe

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF DANIEL McHARRIS,	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE	:	DECISION
TOWNSHIP OF NORTH BRUNSWICK,	:
MIDDLESEX COUNTY.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, October 21, 1999

Decision on motion by the Commissioner of Education, November 18, 1999

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Borrus, Goldin, Foley, Vignuolo, Hyman, Stahl & Clarkin (Anthony B. Vignuolo, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Wilbert & Montenegro (Ben Montenegro, Esq., of Counsel)

On or about August 16, 1999, Daniel McHarris (hereinafter "respondent"), a tenured teaching staff member employed by the Board of Education of the Township of North Brunswick (hereinafter "Board"), was arrested and charged with criminal sexual contact involving two female students and official misconduct. Shortly thereafter, the Board filed tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against the respondent, which were mailed to him on August 24, 1999. The Assistant Superintendent/Board Secretary advised the respondent in a letter accompanying the charges that he had 15 days from receipt of those charges to submit a written response to the Board.

Apr. 5, 2000

In a second letter dated August 24, 1999, the Superintendent of Schools notified the respondent that the Board would be meeting on September 7 to consider suspending him without pay "based upon the fact that you have been charged with indictable criminal offenses which may result in the forfeiture of your public office." The Superintendent requested that the respondent advise the Board if he wished to have that matter discussed in an open session.

By letter dated August 25, 1999, the counsel for the Board sent a copy of the tenure charges to Gidian R. Mellk, Esq., then the counsel for the respondent, and requested that Ms. Mellk advise "as to your client's position on filing a response to the enclosed initial charge." In a response dated August 25, Ms. Mellk advised the counsel for the Board that she had received a copy of the tenure charges and that the respondent "will not be responding to the Board's charges, without prejudice, as provided for in Ott v. Hamilton Township Board of Education, 160 N.J. Super. 333 (App. Div. 1978), cert. den. 78 N.J. 336 (1978)."

By letter dated August 26, counsel for the Board notified Ms. Mellk that the tenure charges would be considered by the Board on September 7. He further indicated that "[b]ased upon your letter of August 25, 1999 it is our understanding that no response will be received from Mr. McHarris and the Board will proceed based upon the record before it at that time."

By letter dated August 31, 1999, Ben Montenegro, Esq., the current counsel for the respondent, notified the counsel for the Board that he had been retained to represent the respondent in this matter. In response to the Superintendent's letter of August 24, Mr. Montenegro stated that any action by the Board on September 7 to suspend the respondent without pay would violate N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3, which provides that a board employee suspended other than by reason of indictment or certification of tenure charges is entitled to full pay during the period of such suspension. In that regard, Mr. Montenegro pointed out that the respondent had not been indicted and that tenure charges had not yet been certified against him.

At a special meeting held on September 7, 1999, the Board voted to certify the tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education and to suspend the respondent without pay. Those charges were transmitted to the Commissioner on September 20 and received by the Commissioner on September 21.

On or about September 29, 1999, the respondent filed a motion with the Commissioner to dismiss the tenure charges for procedural defects or, in the alternative, to stay the tenure proceedings. The respondent argued that the Board had not provided him with 15 days to submit a written response to the charges as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, alleging that Mr. Montenegro had advised the counsel for the Board on September 2, 1999 that he would not waive his right to respond during the 15-day period. The respondent further alleged that the Superintendent had failed to submit the charges to the Board under oath as required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1(b) and that the Board had failed to determine by a majority vote of its full membership whether there was probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charges as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11.

In the event that the tenure charges were not dismissed for the reasons set forth above, the respondent requested that his "right to respond to the charges and statement of evidence pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1 be stayed pending completion of the criminal case" pursuant to Ott, supra.

In briefs filed in response to the respondent's motion, the Board argued that the respondent had waived his right to respond to the tenure charges and had not rescinded that waiver. The counsel for the Board averred in a certification that Mr. Montenegro had "never provided me with any written statement from Mr. McHarris regarding...his rescission of his earlier waiver. He further failed to advise that it was his intention to file any document with the Board in opposition to the Charges to be considered on September 7, 1999." The Board "requested that the applications of the Respondent, except his request for a stay of the proceeding pending the outcome of the criminal charges against him, be denied in their entirety."

In a letter decision dated October 21, 1999, the Commissioner granted the respondent's motion and dismissed the tenure charges without prejudice. Stressing that the Board's failure to provide respondent with 15 days to respond to the tenure charges was a fatal defect requiring dismissal of the charges, the Commissioner found that:

> [t]he record evidences, and the Board does not dispute, that on or before August 31, 1999, the law firm of Wilbert & Montenegro was officially substituted as respondent's counsel in this matter and, no later than September 2, 1999, the Board's attorney was advised of this substitution, advised that respondent's new counsel would not waive respondent's right to respond to the charges, and further advised that if the Board moved forward on this matter on September 7, 1999, prior to expiration of the response period, it would be in contravention of respondent's rights. Having been clearly placed on notice, well in advance of the Board's scheduled meeting, that respondent intended to exercise his right to respond to the charges, the Board was > obligated to postpone consideration of the tenure charges to a date subsequent to the expiration of the response period.

Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 2.

The Commissioner added that the respondent was entitled to his full salary until such time as he was indicted or tenure charges were properly certified against him.

On November 1, the Board filed the instant appeal to the State Board.

In light of the Commissioner's decision to dismiss the tenure charges, the Board served the respondent with a second set of charges, and on November 17, 1999, after giving the respondent 15 days to respond, the Board certified those charges to the Commissioner and once again suspended the respondent without pay.

On November 18, 1999, the Commissioner denied the Board's motion for a stay of his decision of October 21. On November 30, the Board filed a motion for a stay of the Commissioner's decision with the State Board.

After a careful review of the record, we reverse the Commissioner's determination to dismiss the August 1999 tenure charges, but, as more fully detailed herein, we restrain the Board from completing certification of those charges pending disposition of the criminal charges filed against the respondent.

In Ott, supra, a tenured teacher was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana and hashish. The district board thereupon filed tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against the teacher, who sought a court order restraining the board from acting to certify the charges to the Commissioner while the criminal charges were still pending. A trial judge granted the teacher's request, and the Appellate Division affirmed the imposition of such a restraint. Noting the teacher's dilemma in having to choose between filing a sworn statement which might be used to incriminate him in connection with the pending criminal charges and jeopardizing his tenured position by failing to file such a statement, the Court found that there was:

> a sufficient showing of inequity and unfairness if the disciplinary proceeding is permitted to continue, because of the potential prejudice to plaintiff from the dilemma of foregoing his defense therein or risking self-incrimination. Thus the relief granted by the court by way of restraint is warranted within its equitable powers. Such relief is appropriate not because of the violation of any constitutional or fundamental rights but simply as an equitable solution to an intolerable situation.
> Nevertheless, it does not follow that such a reasonable resolution of plaintiff's dilemma should result in an order that he be paid his salary during the period of suspension.
>
> Under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, the board may suspend an employee with or without pay upon certification of a charge to the Commissioner. And such suspension, whether with or without pay, continues for a maximum of 120 days to permit a determination by the Commissioner. If the latter delays his decision beyond the period of 120 days, the employee is to be paid his salary thereafter, until disposition of the charge.
>
> Significantly, the provision for reinstatement of salary after 120 days excludes in the time computation "all delays which are granted at the request of such person."
> In view of this expression of legislative intent and the application of basic equitable principles, we conclude that plaintiff's application for the restraint of the disciplinary process for his own purposes and protection bars him from entitlement to the continued receipt of his salary in the meantime. Since his action has produced the delay the board should not be compelled to continue to pay his salary while unemployed. A contrary conclusion would reward him with receipt of salary without service during the pendency of the criminal charge and the potential extensive delay in its disposition. In the absence of such criminal involvement, on the other hand, the board could suspend his salary for 120 days within which the Commissioner would be able to dispose of the charge. Plaintiff should not be in a better position because the infraction involves a crime than that > which would obtain if the charge were non-criminal. Since the delay is brought about by him and his interest, the board should not be burdened with interim salary payments. Of course, in the ultimate, if plaintiff is cleared of the disciplinary charges, he will be entitled to reinstatement with full back salary.

Ott, supra, at 341-42.

In the matter now before us, the respondent asserted his rights under Ott on August 25, 1999 when Ms. Mellk, his counsel at that time, indicated that the respondent would "not be responding to the Board's charges, without prejudice, as provided for in Ott...." Although Ms. Mellk did not explicitly request that the Board restrain from transmitting the tenure charges to the Commissioner pending disposition of the criminal charges, it is evident from her letter–and particularly from her citation to Ott–that she was asserting such a right on respondent's behalf. There is nothing in the subsequent correspondence from Mr. Montenegro, who replaced Ms. Mellk as the respondent's counsel, that would evince a waiver of that judicially-created right. We therefore restrain the Board from transmitting the tenure charges to the Commissioner for further action until such time as the criminal proceedings against the respondent are concluded.[1]

In so doing, we reject the respondent's contention that the Board failed to comply with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1(a)1, which provides that tenure charges and the supporting statement of evidence must be executed under oath by the individual instituting the charges. When the Superintendent of Schools instituted the charges which are now before us, he included a sworn statement. We reject the respondent's contention that the inclusion of a single sworn statement for both the charges and the statement of evidence requires dismissal of the charges. Nor do we find any merit in the respondent's argument that the charges were rendered fatally defective by virtue of the fact that the statement was notarized by the Assistant Superintendent/Board Secretary. Accordingly, we reject the respondent's contention that the charges were invalid.[2]

As a further consequence of the respondent's assertion of his rights under Ott, the Board did not act improperly when it suspended him without pay pending disposition of the criminal charges. As the Court explained in Ott, supra, at 342, "plaintiff's application for the restraint of the disciplinary process for his own purposes and protection bars him from entitlement to the continued receipt of his salary in the meantime. Since his action has produced the delay the board should not be compelled to continue to pay his salary while unemployed." The Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq., provides that a district board may suspend a staff member with or without pay "[u]pon certification of any charge to the commissioner...." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 (emphasis added). In Ott, certification of the tenure charges was not completed since the district board had not yet transmitted those charges to the Commissioner when the trial judge restrained the board from so acting. Nonetheless, in upholding that restraint, the Appellate Division firmly held that the staff member could be suspended without pay pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 during the pendency of the criminal charges.

In the instant matter, the Board took formal action to certify the tenure charges on September 7, 1999 and to suspend the respondent without pay. It subsequently

[2] Given our determination that the Board should not have completed certification of the tenure charges once the respondent asserted his rights under Ott, we need not address the respondent's allegations that the Board failed give him 15 days to respond to the charges or that the Board, in certifying the charges, transmitted those charges to the Commissioner. In view of the respondent's assertion of his Ott rights, the Board should have restrained from completing certification of the charges. However, it is also clear from Ott that, during the period of such restraint, the respondent could properly have been suspended without pay. He would, of course, be entitled to "reinstatement with full back salary" if he ultimately is cleared of the tenure charges. Ott, supra, at 342.

We therefore reverse the Commissioner's decision to dismiss the August 1999 tenure charges, but restrain the Board from completing certification of those charges until the criminal proceedings against respondent have been concluded. Given the respondent's assertion of his Ott rights, we also uphold his suspension without pay as of September 7, 1999. We stress in that regard that the Board must provide the respondent with the opportunity to respond to the tenure charges following the conclusion of the criminal proceedings. After consideration of the respondent's response, the Board may then determine to complete certification of the charges by transmitting them to the Commissioner.

In view of our determination, we need not address the Board's motion for a stay of the Commissioner's decision.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF BARBARA DIRK,	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION/OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
MANCHESTER REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT BOARD OF EDUCATION, PASSAIC COUNTY	O.A.L. DOCKET NO.: EDU 5169- AGENCY REF. NO.: 78-4/99

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

WHEREAS, the respondent, Barbara Dirk (hereinafter referred to as "Dirk"), has been employed by the petitioner, Manchester Regional High School District Board of Education (hereinafter referred to as the "Board") as a secretary since 1983 and has obtained tenure in that position; and

WHEREAS, on or about December 11, 1998, the Board served Dirk with charges of inefficiency together with a written statement of evidence in support thereof; and

WHEREAS, the Board informed Dirk in writing that, unless the inefficiencies were corrected within ninety (90) days, the Board intended to certify the charges of inefficiency to the Commissioner of Education; and

WHEREAS, on or about March 23, 1999, the administrator responsible for bringing the charges of inefficiency to the attention of the Board notified the Board in writing that Dirk had not corrected the charges of inefficiency. Furthermore, as a courtesy to Dirk, the administrator also notified Dirk on March 23, 1999 that she had failed to correct said inefficiencies; and

WHEREAS, on or about March 26, 1999, the Board formally served Dirk with the tenure charges of inefficiency, written statement of evidence and affidavits in support thereof; and

WHEREAS, the Board advised Dirk that she had fifteen (1 days in which to file with the Board a written response to the charges of inefficiency; and

WHEREAS, on or about April 8, 1999, Dirk notified the Board that she would not be responding to the tenure charges; and

WHEREAS, on or about April 15, 1999, the Board voted to certify the tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education and suspended Dirk without pay effective April 16, 1999; and

WHEREAS, said charges of inefficiency were filed by petition with the Commissioner of Education on April 16, 1999; and

WHEREAS, on or about April 22, 1999, the Manchester Regional High School District Educational Secretaries Association (hereinafter referred to as the "Association"), on behalf of Dirk, filed an Unfair Practice Charge with the Public Employment Relations Commission (hereinafter referred to as "P.E.R.C."), Docket No. CO-99-325, alleging that the certification of tenure charges and related suspension were undertaken to discriminate against Dirk and to discourage her from exercising the rights guaranteed under the Employer-Employee Relations Act, N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 et seq.; and

WHEREAS, on or about May 4, 1999, the Board notified Dirk that she would not receive her salary increment increase for the 1999-2000 school year on the same bases described in the tenure charges; and

WHEREAS, on or about May 14, 1999, the Association amended the Unfair Practice Charge to include the Board's action in withholding Dirk's salary increment for the 1999-2000 school year; and

WHEREAS, on or about May 17, 1999, the Association filed a Verified Petition, appealing the increment withholding, with the Commissioner of Education (Agency Dkt. No. 119-5/99); and

WHEREAS, on or about June 9, 1999, the Association again amended the Unfair Practice Charges to include various actions which Dirk undertook as president of the Association and which the Association alleged created the impetus for the Board to seek the withholding of Dirk's salary increment for the 1999-2000 school year; and

WHEREAS, on or about June 14, 1999, the Association moved to consolidate the three proceedings (Tenure Charges, Appeal of Salary Withholding, and Unfair Practice Charge) and have P.E.R.C. declared the agency with the predominant interest; and

WHEREAS, the Board concurred with the request to consolidate but requested that the Department of Education be declared the agency with the predominant interest; and

WHEREAS, by Order dated July 7, 1999, Judge Vena denied the motion to consolidate and, accordingly, declined to consider which agency holds the predominant interest; and

WHEREAS, on or about July 15, 1999, the Association filed an interlocutory appeal of this decision before P.E.R.C. and the Commissioner of Education; and

WHEREAS, on or about July 19, 1999, the Board filed exceptions of this decision before the Commissioner of Educati and P.E.R.C.; and

WHEREAS, on or about July 28, 1999, the Commissioner of Education informed the Board and the Association that the Order denying consolidation is being reviewed by P.E.R.C. and the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.7 and that the parties' moving papers are deemed as exceptions to the Judge Vena's Order; and

WHEREAS, further litigation of these charges would necessitate the disruption of the Board's educational program due to the necessary absence of administrators, and others who would be called to testify at the hearing, said hearing expected to require at least four days to conclude; and

WHEREAS, the Board would incur substantial financial costs

by continuing this litigation that would significantly exceed the cost of this settlement; and

WHEREAS, the parties agree that a settlement would be in the best interests of the Manchester Regional High School District Board of Education and, therefore, the public; and

WHEREAS, the parties wish to amicably resolve their differences without the need to resort to any further litigation;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the aforementioned mutual premises and promises and in exchange for the consideration more particularly set forth below, the parties hereby agree as follows:

1. Dirk hereby resigns her position of employment with the Board, together with all tenure and seniority rights, effective June 30, 2000, or the effective date she commences alternative employment, whichever date occurs first, subject only to approval of this Agreement by the Board, the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. Dirk submits her resignation knowingly, voluntarily and irrevocably, free of coercion or duress, after consulting with counsel and receiving advice as to its ramifications. Dirk will sign an irrevocable letter of resignation from all employment with the Board. The form of Dirk's irrevocable letter of resignation is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

2. The Board, by resolution, will publically approve and accept the resignation of Dirk at its next regularly scheduled

4. The Board, by resolution, will publically approve and accept Dirk's requested leave of absence with pay beginning July 1, 1999 and ending June 30, 2000, or the effective date she begins alternative employment, whichever date is sooner. The form of the Board's resolution is attached hereto as Exhibit

5. The Board agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, its tenure charges in the above-captioned matter bearing O.A.L. Docket No. EDU-5169-99 and Agency Ref. No. 78-4/99, subject to the approval of this Agreement by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

6. Dirk agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, the Unfair Practice Charge, as amended, bearing Docket No. CO-99-325.

7. Dirk agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, the Verified Petition before the Commissioner of Education, bearing Agency Docket No. 119-5/99, regarding her increment withholding.

8. In consideration for Dirk's resignation effective June 30, 2000 or the effective date she commences alternative employment, whichever date occurs first, the Board agrees to pay

Dirk the following compensation during her leave of absence with pay:

(a) $37,741.13 less the usual and customary deductions for withholding taxes and charges, which represents salary between July 1, 1999 and June 30, 2000, inclusive of Dirk's $900.00 longevity payment to which she is legally entitled under Section "J" of the parties' collective negotiations agreement, payable upon the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

(b) $1701.18 less the usual and customary deductions for withholding taxes and charges, which represents payment for ten (10) days of vacation and three (3) floating holidays earned during the 1998-1999 school year, to which Dirk is legally entitled regardless of whether or not her separation from the Board's employ is voluntary or involuntary, payable upon the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

If Dirk subsequently secures alternative employment in the public sector prior to June 30, 2000, the Board will pay in a lump sum the remaining balance of the salary which is still owed to her.

Education.

9. The Board will continue to provide Dirk with health, medical, prescription and dental insurance in accordance with the parties' negotiated contract through June 30, 2000, saubject to the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. If, however, Dirk secures alternative employment which provides health and medical insurance benefits, the Board will have no further obligation to provide health, medical, prescription and dental benefits to Dirk after the conclusion of any eligibility waiting period.

10. During Dirk's leave of absence with pay, between July 1, 1999 and June 30, 2000, no benefits (such as sick days, personal days, and bereavement days that would accrue during the life of this agreement), other than those specifically addressed in paragraphs 8 and 9 above, shall accrue to Dirk or become an obligation of the Board.

14. Neither Dirk nor the Board shall make any statements about the other which would tend to disparage or defame the other. Neither party shall undertake any act constituting a reprisal against the other for having instituted or defended the subject matter of these actions.

15. In response to any inquiries from Dirk's prospective employers, the Board agrees to the release onlly that which is authorized as public information by Executive Order No. 11; specifically, Dirk's name, title, position, salary, payroll record, length of service, date of separation from service and the reason therefore, and the amount and type of pension she is receiving.

Dirk shall execute a General Release in favor of the Board releasing the Board, its officers, agents, servants, attorneys or employees or any one of them, from all claims, liabilities or expenses to which it may be subject, arising from any claims or rights of Dirk. The form of the General Release is attached hereto as Exhibit D. Nothing in this Agreement or the documents referenced herein shall preclude either party from bringing an action to enforce performance of any term of this Agreement should there be a default in performance.

17. The Board and John Petrelli, Superintendent of Schools, Manchester Regional High School District Board of Education; Hank Sinatra, Principal of Manchester Regional High School, Diane White, Supervisor of Guidance and Special Services at Manchester Regional High School shall execute a General Release in favor of Dirk releasing her from all claims, liabilities, or expenses to which she may be subject, arising from any claims or rights of any of them. The form of Gener RElease is attached hereto as Exhibit E.

18. Dirk may return to Board property for legitimate purposes consistent with the rights of any other member of the public subject to the policies and regulations of the Board.

19. The parties acknowledge that this Agreement shall be submitted to the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education for review and approval, and that the terms of this Agreement are expressly made subject to and contingent upon such review and approval. In the event that either agency disapproves and/or rejects any of the terms contained herein, this Agreement shall be null and void and the parties shall return to the same positions which they held prior to this Agreement.

20. The parties acknowledge that each has consulted with an attorney or a representative of their own choosing prior to signing this Agreement and that each sign this Agreement as their own voluntary act and deed, and that they fully understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein.

21. This Agreement shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

22. The undersigned representatives of the Board hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized by the Board to sign this Agreement and bind the Board to its terms.

23. Dirk hereby declares that she is of sufficient physical, mental and emotional capacities to understand and agree to all of the terms and conditions of this Agreement and agrees that she is and will continue to be bound by these terms and conditions in the future.

The record, settlement agreement and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed in these matters which were consolidated in August 1999 by joint order of the Commissioner of Education and the Chair of the Public Employment Relations Commission.

Upon consultation with the Chair of the Public Employment Relations Commission, the Commissioner approves the settlement on behalf of both agencies having jurisdiction in this consolidated matter since the terms of the settlement comport with the Cardonick standards for review of settlements in tenure matters. In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846. The settlement is, therefore, adopted as the final decision in this consolidated matter which is, accordingly, dismissed, subject to the parties' compliance with the terms of the settlement.* A copy of this final decision shall be forwarded to the Chair of the Public Employment Relations Commission.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* Term 7 of the settlement agreement indicates that Ms. Dirk has agreed to withdraw a related matter entitled *Barbara Dirk v. OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10213-98S

AGENCY DKT. NO. 51-2/97

(On Remand From EDU 2446-97S)

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF BENJAMIN SEABROOK and THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY.

Thomas W. Sumners, Jr., Esq., for petitioner (Sumners, George & Dortch, attorneys)

Arnold M. Mellk, Esq., for respondent (Wills, O'Neill & Mellk, attorneys)

Record Closed: September 8, 1999 Decided: September 16, 1999

BEFORE BARBARA A. HARNED, CHIEF ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on November 12, 1998, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The transmittal was from the Commissioner of the Department of Education who rejected a previous settlement agreement between the parties and remanded the matter to the OAL for further proceedings.

The parties have negotiated another settlement agreement which they submit addresses the concerns raised by the Commissioner in his decision rejecting the prior agreement. I have reviewed the agreement and CONCLUDE that this agreement addresses the concerns raised by the Commissioner.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

3. The settlement is in the public interest in light of the Board's lack of credible evidence to prove the charges against respondent and its desire to avoid the costs of further litigation. See, In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 850/

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE CHARGES AGAINST BENJAMIN SEABROOK, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF TRENTON, COUNTY OF MERCER.	:	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION Agency Docket No. 51-2/97 OAL Docket No. EDU 2446-97S
	:	AMENDED SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This Amended Settlement Agreement is made between the Petitioner, Board of Education of the City of Trenton ("Board"), and Respondent, Benjamin Seabrook.

WHEREAS, the Board filed tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education, Agency Docket No. 51-2/97, OAL Docket No. EDU 2446-97S; and

WHEREAS, the charges allege that some time in December, 1994 at Stokes Elementary School, in the City of Trenton, Respondent committed a sexual assault upon student, P.F., which resulted in an indictment by a Mercer County Grand Jury, Indictment No. 96-09-1055I; and

WHEREAS, the charges allege that some time during the 1994-95 school year, the Respondent committed a sexual assault upon a student, R.M., at Washington Elementary School, City of Trenton, resulting in an indictment by a Mercer County Grand Jury, Indictment No. 96-09-1055I; and

WHEREAS, the tenure charges against the Respondent were based solely on the criminal indictments against him; and

WHEREAS, in an Order dated December 11, 1997, Superior Court Judge Andrew J. Smithson, dismissed all criminal charges against Respondent arising out of the indictments, based upon alleged sexual assaults against students, P.F. and R.M., due to insufficient evidence as a result of his determination that P.F. was not legally competent to testify; and

WHEREAS, the parties acknowledge that there is good cause which is relevant to and warrants this Settlement Agreement, in particular that:

1. The tenure charges against the Respondent were based solely upon the criminal indictment against Respondent and the evidence gathered thereto;

2. The Petitioner has insufficient evidence to sustain the charges against Respondent.

3. The only alleged eyewitness of any alleged sexual assaults against students P.F. and R.M. is Rose Cowell. However, Petitioner feels that Ms. Cowell's testimony has significant credibility problems. Investigation has revealed that there are conflicting statements between Ms. Cowell and Barbara Beaston, the teacher who Ms. Cowell allegedly informed of Respondent's alleged inappropriate conduct. Ms. Cowell did not fill out a Board required form regarding the alleged incident. Ms. Cowell never told anyone other than Ms. Beaston about alleged incident. Ms. Cowell indicated that she feared for her safety but never filed a report or informed anyone, including the police. Ms. Cowell's allegation that students had previously been "scared" of Respondent is not credible because she never reported it or made any note of it in an investigation by the City of Trenton Police Department. Moreover, Ms. Beaston has stated that students never expressed any fear of Respondent and she was almost always in the classroom when Respondent was teaching music. Lastly, in reaching its decision to pursue the criminal charges against the Respondent, the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office also determined that Ms. Cowell's alleged observations caused some credibility concerns and allegations against the Respondent could not be established through her testimony alone. Despite the different standard of proof, the Petitioner has concluded likewise.

4. Respondent has been employed by the Board since January 27, 1986 and prior to the allegations of sexual assault against Respondent, there were no such allegations of inappropriate conduct towards or dealing with students;

5. Respondent denies the above charges;

6. Respondent understands that the Commissioner has the authority pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 to refer tenure decisions to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of his certificate; and

7. The expeditious resolution of this matter will save both parties the cost and uncertainty of continued litigation.

THEREFORE, in consideration of the foregoing, the parties agree that the matter should be resolved based upon the following terms:

1. Petitioner agrees to dismiss the tenure charges against Respondent.

2. Respondent shall be returned to employment with all back pay and emoluments since October 29, 1996 when the Petitioner suspended Respondent without pay as a result of the criminal indictments.

3. Petitioner is entitled to receive a credit towards unpaid wages for unemployment benefits which Respondent received during his suspension without pay.

4. The parties agree and covenant that neither party, nor any person, organization, or other entity on their behalf will file any charge, claim, lawsuit against either party based upon the fact that Petitioner filed tenure charges or that Respondent defended those charges.

5. The parties recognize that each of them had input into drafting this Agreement and agree that if there should arise a dispute as to its terms, this Agreement shall not be construed against either party based upon the identity of its drafter(s).

6. The parties understand that this Agreement is contingent upon the approval of Administrative Law Judge Barbara A. Harned and the Commissioner of Education, and if such approval is denied, the terms and contents of this Agreement shall not be admissible in any legal or administrative proceedings of any nature, and will be without prejudice to their positions in such proceedings, and that in such event the parties may again attempt to settle the matter in a manner which is satisfactory to the Commissioner of Education.

7. Respondent requests that the tenure hearing be held in abeyance in order to obtain approval of this Settlement Agreement by Administrative Law Judge Barbara A. Harned and the Commissioner of Education.

8. The parties warrant that this Agreement is entered into voluntarily, without any duress, or without any other promises or agreement not expressed herein, and with the understanding that neither party is compelled to do so, and that by entering into this Agreement each party waives their right to a hearing and disposition on the merits of the charges.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF ROXBURY, MORRIS COUNTY,

Respondent.

Edward J. Bilinkas, Esq., for petitioner (Lorber, Schneider, Nuzzi, Bilinkas & Mason, attorneys)

Vito A. Gagliardi, Jr., Esq. for respondent (Ravin, Sarasohn, Cook, Baumgarten, Fisch & Rosen, attorneys)

Record Closed: August 30, 1999 Decided: September 13, 1999

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

On August 4, 1997, the petitioner, Ronnie Standridge, filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of Education challenging the respondent Board of Education's decision not to renew his contract as Athletic Director for the 1997-98 school year. The petitioner was not tenured.

The respondent filed an answer on August 26, 1997 denying the substantive allegations of the petition and asserting various affirmative defenses. On September 19, 1997, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13. After several adjournments and conferences relating to procedural matters, such as discovery, a hearing was scheduled for April 5, 1999. The parties appeared at that time, but the plenary hearing did not proceed because some procedural difficulties had arisen. After considerable discussion, on the record, the period of permissible discovery was extended for thirty days, and the hearing was rescheduled for two days in August and two days in October, 1999.

On the first hearing day, August 30, 1999, the parties and counsel appeared and engaged in settlement discussions before any testimony was taken, and a mutually satisfactory agreement was reached. A written agreement, containing the settlement terms in full, was signed by the parties and by their attorneys. A copy of the Agreement, along with Exhibit A, referred to therein, was filed with the OAL on September 7, 1999.

A copy of the Settlement Agreement, along with Exhibit A, is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

Having reviewed and considered the issues involved in this dispute, it is CONCLUDED that the parties have voluntarily and knowingly agreed to the settlement, as evidenced by the attached document. It is further CONCLUDED that the settlement is fair and fully dispositive of all issues in controversy.

It is therefore ORDERED that the withdrawal of the petition of appeal, with prejudice, based on the Settlement Agreement attached hereto, be approved, subject to approval of the Commissioner of Education.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

JOINT STATEMENT

When the Roxbury Township Board of Education decided over two years ago not to renew the contract of untenured Athletic Director Ron Standridge, he filed suit before the Commissioner of Education seeking to have that decision declared "arbitrary and capricious" and to be returned to his position. Additionally, he commenced a civil suit against a number of parties in Superior Court, which included a defamation claim against former Superintendent of Schools Angela Krass. The Board and Mr. Standridge are pleased to announce that they have reached a settlement in which Mr. Standridge has agreed to dismiss his suit before the Commissioner of Education and drop his defamation claim against Mrs. Krass. Mr. Standridge no longer seeks to become reemployed by the Roxbury Township Board of Education and will pursue his career elsewhere.

As evidenced by its public vote, the Board will be paying Mr. Standridge $25,000 in connection with his dismissal of his suit seeking reinstatement from the Commissioner and of his defamation claim against Mrs. Krass.

The Board is making this settlement, and Mr. Standridge is accepting this settlement, because both parties wish to move beyond the acrimony which marked this dispute. The Board has maintained that its decision was not "arbitrary and capricious." Of course, Mr. Standridge disagrees. The issue at this point is not who was right or wrong; it is time to resolve this dispute and focus instead on the future.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH BERGEN, HUDSON COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning clerk, along with her union, contested the withholding of her increment for the 1997-98 school year.

ALJ found Petitioner Wende to be a credible witness and the Board's witness to be less credible. Moreover, based on the fact that Wende's records do not show a record of excessive absenteeism and that her work that was criticized as poor was work she had been rarely required to do, the ALJ concluded that the Board's determination not to give Petitioner Wende an increment in 1997-98 was patently arbitrary and capricious. ALJ concluded that the Board's determination was not for good cause and must not be upheld. ALJ ordered the Board's denial reversed and directed the Board to reinstate the increment retroactive to the proper date.

Commissioner set aside the Initial Decision since the gravamen of the challenge at the OAL ultimately concerned the Board's discretionary authority to withhold pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. Given the established case law in this area, and mindful of the amendments to N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 et seq., the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act, which appear to provide for binding arbitration of disputes over withheld increments for noncertified employees within a bargaining unit, the Commissioner was not persuaded that he has the jurisdiction to hear and determine this matter. Therefore, the Commissioner remanded this matter to OAL for briefing and argument on the issue of jurisdiction, and for additional fact-finding, as may be necessary upon the exploration of such jurisdictional issues, in order to resolve this matter.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner Eileen Wende (petitioner) is a tenured employee of the Board of Education of the Township of North Bergen (Board). On June 27, 1997, the Board passed a formal resolution withholding petitioner's increment. Petitioner here appeals the Board's action.

Petitioner, along with her union, filed a Verified Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education on August 6, 1997. The Board filed an Answer on October 3, 1997. On October 21, 1997, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing on the issue of the withholding of the increment[1] as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:14-1 to -13. The OAL held a hearing on September 16, 1998; February 22, March 24 and June 8, 1999. The record remained open to allow the parties to submit findings of fact and legal briefs. The final brief was received on July 22, 1999, at which time the record was closed.

DISCUSSION OF EVIDENCE AND TESTIMONY

Undisputed Facts

Certain facts are undisputed and I FIND them as follows.

Petitioner Eileen Wende, who has worked in the school District since 1984, has been one of two clerks in the main office at Horace Mann School in the District since 1994. Eileen Wende first began to work for the Board in September 1984 as a Data Control Operator where she was responsible for data concerning budgeting and financing. In September 1987 she was promoted to Data Entry Supervisor where she remained until July 1991 when she was terminated. In September 1992, she was reinstated but she was transferred from the central office to work at Horace Mann as a clerk. At that time Ms. Wende had no typing skills, which was known to the central office as well as to the principal. As part of the reinstatement, arrangements were made for her to do non-typing work.

The collective bargaining agreement between the Board and the North Bergen Federation of Teachers Local 1060 provided for vacations for support staff according to seniority as well as four absences per year for personal days and 11 days of absence for sick leave. Ms. Wende received 23 vacation days per year. In the event that a full-time clerk's absences exceed 10 days more than their accumulated sick leave they are fined pursuant to the collective bargaining agreement. Any employee absent for 10 or more consecutive work days is required to submit medical evidence substantiating the illness. No deduction are made from the salary for absences for death in the immediate family, including parents, not exceeding five days.

Ms. Wende had accumulated 34 sick and personal days as of July 1, 1996, the beginning of the school year. According to Ms. Wende's attendance record for the 1995-96 school year, she used six sick days, four personal days and 23 vacation days. For the 1996-97 school year, Ms. Wende used 11.5 sick days, three personal days and 22 vacation days. On January 17, 1997, Ms. Wende's father became gravely ill and was rushed to the hospital. Ms. Wende went to the hospital to be by his side and remained there for the next week, at which time he passed away. Ms. Wende then took off five days for the funeral and because of her emotional reaction to the sudden illness and death of her father she took another week off for what her doctor diagnosed as anxiety state crisis and adjustment stress reaction. Thus, Ms. Wende was absent from January 17 until February 10 due to the illness and death of her father. Out of the 11.5 sick days, Ms. Wende has doctor's notes for eight and a half of those days.

Contested Facts

Jorge Prado

Jorge Prado, the principal of Horace Mann since November 1996, began supervising Ms. Wende at that time. When he starting working there Ms. Wende had a poor attendance record with frequent absences. The typing had to be done by the other clerk in the office because Ms. Wende had difficulty typing. He noted that Ms. Wende lacked initiative and she did not stay at her desk. Ms. Wende extensively used the telephone for personal reasons.

On February 5, 1997, Mr. Prado sent a memorandum to Leo C. Gattoni, Jr., the Superintendent of the Board. He noted that Ms. Wende's

> "extremely poor attendance is causing tremendous problems for a school this size. The current enrollment of this school demands a minimum of two full-time clerks. I have review Ms. Wende's attendance and find that her absences for the current year will total 21.5 days as of this Friday, February 7, 1997.

> In reviewing her past attendance record I find that Ms. Wende appears to have a pattern of excessive absences.

On March 20, 1997, Mr. Prado again sent a memorandum to Mr. Gattoni concerning Ms. Wende. The memo related that a training session had been scheduled to assist Ms. Wende in the daily operations of the computer and that she was aware of the time, date and importance of the training. The training session began approximately 11:00 a.m. and at 12:02 Ms. Wende punched out and left for the day because she was not feeling well. "Ms. Wende's poor attendance jeopardizes the daily function of the school this size. It has become increasingly difficult to fulfill the daily clerical duties, registration and reports with basically one clerk. Mr. Prado asked the Board to review Ms. Wende's attendance.

On April 24, 1997, Mr. Prado sent a memo to Mr. Gattoni concerning the quality of Ms. Wende's work. He enclosed drafts of two memos which he had given Ms. Wende to type on April 22, 1997. Ms. Wende took an hour and a half in the morning to produce an unacceptable memo; it took her two hours in the afternoon to produce a second version still containing errors . Mr. Prado stated in the memo that Ms. Wende's poor job performance made it increasingly difficult to run the daily operations of the office.

On April 23, 1997, Mr. Prado evaluated Ms. Wende, rating her unsatisfactory in work quality, filing, attendance, dependability, judgment, initiative and attitude, needs improvement under computer skills and appearance and satisfactory as far as punctuality. He noted that Ms. Wende put little effort into her work and she takes more time than required to complete a task, and was highly uncooperative. On May 1, 1997, there was an evaluation conference with Ms. Wende. Mr. Prado stated in the interview memo that she needed additional training and additional supervision. Ms. Wende had previously been evaluated by the previous principal, Joanne M. Colello-Harrington, who found that Ms. Wende needed improvement in everything except for attendance and punctuality, which were unsatisfactory.

On June 24, 1997, Mr. Prado wrote to Mr. Gattoni concerning Ms. Wende's work quality, requesting that the Board withhold a pay increment for Ms. Wende and prepare a Notice of Discipline for her because of her excessive absenteeism and poor and unacceptable job performance. Mr. Gattoni recommended to the members of the Board of Education based on this memo that they withhold the increment. The Board by resolution dated June 27, 1997, resolved that the employment and adjustment increments for the 1997-98 school year be withheld from Eileen Wende.

In the beginning of June, the union requested a meeting with Mr. Prado and members of the central office because Ms. Wende and Terry Schroeder, the other clerk in the main office, claimed that Mr. Prado was harassing them. At the meeting both employees stated their grievances and Mr. Prado denied that he was harassing them.

On cross-examination Mr. Prado testified that when he wrote the memo to the superintendent concerning Ms. Wende's absenteeism on February 5, 1997, he did not know that Ms. Wende's father had become gravely ill and passed away. He only recalled a vague conversation with Ms. Wende that she was using some vacation days because her father was dying. In typing the memos in April, Ms. Wende only used the typewriter and refused to use a word processor even though her typewriting skills were not good and there were two computers fully functioning in the main office at all times. He agreed that the final written memos that were produced by petitioner were business-like form but he did not remember who typed the final memo for him. Generally, the initials e.w. at the bottom of a memo indicated Ms. Wende typed it.

As far as Mr. Prado was concerned, both clerks who worked in the main office were responsible for all duties including typing even though he was told Ms. Wende did not do typing. Ms. Schroeder was transferred and now there is a new clerk. Ms. Wende has been doing minimal typing due to the new clerk's need to learn office procedures. Although Ms. Wende's typing skills were not good, she did fine with the registration. After the computer training session in April when Ms. Wende left Mr. Prado asked her what had happen. Ms. Wende told him that she had become very ill and also submitted an appropriate medical form.

Mr. Prado evaluated Ms. Wende's appearance as needing improvement because she violated the dress code by wearing very tight spandex pants at least once and maybe up to three times. He spoke to her about the problem the first time Ms. Wende wore the spandex clothes and gave her a copy of the dress code but she wore them again.

Ms. Wende never asked for personal or vacation days prior to taking them. He had only found out after the fact why she was absent. Before taking a personal or vacation day, an employee puts a written request to the Board but he would have liked as a courtesy to have been informed by her. He felt her attendance record was totally unacceptable and interfered with her job.

Victor M. Continere

Victor M. Continere, the Vice Principal at Horace Mann since April 1994, had supervised Ms. Wende since that time. When Mr. Prado began working Mr. Continere informed him that Ms. Wende did not type as that had been the arrangement with the former principal. Mr. Continere had only asked Ms. Wende to type one time late April or May 1996 because the other clerk was bogged down. He gave her a memo which took her several days to type.

Mr. Continere had observed that Ms. Wende had a tendency to wander away from her desk especially in the morning. When he spoke to Mr. Prado about it, they changed the break procedure so that clerks had set break times. He felt that Ms. Wende's attendance prior to the increment denial was unsatisfactory. On cross examination he reviewed a letter dated April 30, 1996, which was basically the same content as the draft memo Ms. Wende typed for him in May 1996 but in final professional business-like form. The memo had Ms. Wende's initials on it but he was not aware that this was the memo that went out. He was aware that subsequent to the increment withholding against Ms. Wende she took a typing course. He has given her some memos at the end of the next year which were acceptable. Mr. Continere had performed Ms. Wende's evaluation in 1998, which was satisfactory.

Since she began working in the main office, Ms. Wende's duties essentially consisted of being in charge of registration and reports, keeping the attendance records, answering telephones, and assisting parents and children who come into the office. When he supervised her work the registration was satisfactory as well as her preparation of reports. She put all of the attendance records into the computer in a satisfactory manner. Her telephone skills were also satisfactory.

Eileen Wende

Ms. Wende testified that according to the Board's policy concerning vacation days, she had to make a request in writing which had to be approved by the Board Secretary and the principal. An employee did not have to put a personal day request in writing but when possible had to notify Mr. Prado a few days before hand. All of her vacation and personal days in 1996-97 had been approved. When her father became gravely ill and was rushed to the hospital on January 16, 1997, she took off a half a day and when he was fighting for his life in the hospital she called Mr. Prado and asked if she could take vacation days to be with him, and Mr. Prado agreed. She also informed the office about her father's death and the subsequent absence. When she returned on February 10, 1997 no one complained to her about the time she had taken off when her father died. She never saw the memo of February 5, 1997 complaining about her attendance until after the increment denial.

In March 1997, a training session on how to use the attendance software was given by a person from the software company. The training was scheduled to assist her and a clerk from another school. On that day, Ms. Wende woke up very sick but she came to work anyway. The training started at 8:30 a.m. and had run all morning. Ms. Wende found that as she had already been using the software she knew a lot about what was going on although the software was totally new for the clerk from the other school. Ms. Wende stayed at the training until noon although she was very sick but finally left after reporting her illness to Mr. Continere. She then went immediately to the doctor, who, after examining her told her to stay out of work for at least the next two days. When Ms. Wende came back to work she brought a doctor's note and nothing was said about her absence.

At the end of April 1997, Ms. Wende received an evaluation from Mr. Prado. This was the second evaluation she had ever had since she had been employed, the first being the previous June. Ms. Wende asked Mr. Prado to explain the evaluation and to give examples of her poor work quality and attitude but he refused. For instance, she asked him to give her examples of why her computer skills needed improvement. She had an IBM computer on her desk which had a special software program and where she was a test site for this absenteeism software. Her job was to feed information into the computer, although she did not do word processing. Mr. Prado had never commented on her lack of ability to operate the computer and he refused to tell why he said that it was unsatisfactory. He had never spoken to her about her appearance and she has never worn or ever owned anything that was made of spandex. She had no reason to believe and did not believe that she had ever violated the dress code.

Ms. Wende did not believe that she used the phones a lot for personal reasons. Mr. Prado had never spoken to her about it. In fact she did not have time during the day to use the phone for personal business as she was busy performing her work.

Ms. Wende felt that Mr. Prado for some reason since he came there has had it in for her. For instance, two time Mr. Prado had followed her and waited outside the ladies' room to tell her he had something for her to do. It is common practice for people to be able to go to the restroom and he did not explain why he had to wait outside of it. No one had ever complained that she did not get her work out. From 1992 on, the main office had been set up that Terri Schroeder did all of the typing and Ms. Wende did all of the registrations and attendance work as well as other tasks. At no time was she ever told that being able to type memos was a requirement of her job. Neither prior principal had ever asked her to type. No one ever asked her to take a typing course or to acquire typing skills.

Ms. Wende was only asked once by Mr. Continere to type something in April 1996. When he gave it to her he told her he knew she had no typing experience but to do the best that she could. When she gave the final product back to Mr. Continere it was not in the draft form that was shown to the Superintendent and Board as an example of her work but rather it was in final form, which was introduced into evidence at the hearing.

In April 1997, Mr. Prado gave her two memo to type. It was the only time he ever asked her to type anything. When Mr. Prado gave Ms. Wende the memo she could have them typed them in 10 to 15 minutes with no interruptions but the typing was in addition to all of the other work that she was doing in the busy office so it did take her most of the morning. Ultimately, Ms. Wende did final drafts which were business-like and presentable.

The April 23, 1997 evaluation from Mr. Prado stated that she needed additional training and supervision. He would not tell her what she needed nor was she ever given any additional training or supervision. As a result of the criticism, however, Ms. Wende decided to take a basic typing course. In the Fall of 1997 for three months she went two nights a week for two hours so that she would have basic typing skills. Since that time, she has not been asked to do any typing.

Phillip Steinberg

Phillip Steinberg, the President of Local 1060, testified that sometime in April 1997 both Ms. Wende and Schroeder complained to him they felt that they were being harassed by Mr. Prado. The women gave examples of facetious remarks that Mr.

Prado made about them. They also complained that Mr. Prado eavesdropped on their conversation. After having several conversations with Ms. Wende and Schroeder concerning Mr. Prado, Steinberg spoke to Mr. Prado who denied that he was harassing the employees. Shortly thereafter the union president spoke to Mr. Gattoni, the superintendent at the time, and asked for a meeting to discuss the matter. The meeting lasted for about an hour in a half to two hours where the women gave examples of how they were being harassed and discussed their negative evaluations. Steinberg felt that management was very cavalier with the complaints and laughed at the women's comments. There were no resolutions to any of the complaints at the meeting nor was there any follow-up.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

A Board of Education may withhold a teacher's salary increment for inefficient or other good cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. Salary increments are not rights but rather rewards for meritorious service. See Probst v. Haddonfield Board of Education, 127 N.J. 518 (1992). Decision to withhold an increment is a matter of management prerogative which the Legislature has delegated to the local school Board. See North Plainfield Education Association v. North Plainfield Board of Education, 96 N.J. 587 (1984).

The scope of review on an appeal from the denial of the salary increment is limited to whether there exist a reasonable basis for the Board's decision. It is well settled that the local Board's exercise of discretionary power may not be upset unless it is patently arbitrary, capricious or induced by improper motive. See Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1975).

The Board may consider the absences of the teachers to be excessive on a case by case basis inquiring into both the reason for the absences and the impact of the absences on the continuity of instructions. See Kochman v. Board of Education of Keansburg, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 141. Even where the employee has the time and has legitimate excuses, the Board may consider absences excessive in certain circumstances. Id.

Here the Board had no evidence before it that Ms. Wende's absence interfered with continuity of the students' education as if Ms. Wende was a teacher who had these absences. A review of the record of absences shows that Ms. Wende took a 15-day vacation from July 29 to August 16 and then another vacation day on August 23. Ms. Wende took two vacation days on December 16 and 17, 1996. Ms. Wende took four vacation days when her father was ill as well as five days off for his funeral. In February, Ms. Wende took the week after her father's funeral off as a sick day with a medical excuse. She became sick at work and took two and a half day off in March, one day off sick in May. Subtracting the five days Ms. Wende took off sick for her father she was out sick six and a half days. Ms. Wende testified without dispute that she have received clearance for vacation from the central office except for the emergency vacation she took during her father's illness and she got permission from Mr. Prado. Mr. Prado also had a vague recollection of her asking him for vacation days while her father was ill.

When deciding to withhold an increment due to excessive absences it is necessary for a Board to inquire as to the reason for the excessive absences. Mr. Prado's memo of February 5, 1997, to the superintendent reported that since the beginning of school in September 1996 Ms. Wende had been absent 21.5 days as of February 7, 1997. No where did Mr. Prado say that all but six of those days the absence was for a one time event, Ms. Wende's father's sudden illness and death. In April 1997 after Ms. Wende had been out ill for two and a half more days Mr. Prado counted the total absence as 24 days without once again noting the nature of one time event, which amounted to over half the absences. Nor was the nature of the absences reported to the Board nor did the Board inquire as to the reason for the absences.

The Board apparently has no policy defining "excessive" absences. The collective bargaining agreement for support staff puts covered staff on notice that using 10 days more than accumulated sick leave subjects them to a fine, which might be argued provides notice of what the Board considers excessive absences for support staff. The Board argues that for two years, 1995-96 and 1996-97 the petitioner had a total of 24.5 sick and personal days but does not explain why this amount of absences was excessive when under the collective bargaining agreement. Ms. Wende was entitled to 22 sick and eight personal days for that period. Many of the cases supporting the fact that salary increment can be denied for excessive absences involve massive long-term absences 10 and 20 time the amount involved here. (See e.g. Kochman, supra at 143).

Based upon the above, I FIND that once Ms. Wende's absences for the father's illness and funeral is subtracted, Ms. Wende did not have an extraordinary or even unusual number of absences. I FIND no evidence of a pattern of absences such as taking off days before or after a weekend or holiday. I further FIND that to hold a three week period of absence against an employee when her father is suddenly takes ill and dies is arbitrary and unreasonable. I further FIND that her six sick days and four personal days in 1995-96 do not show a pattern of excessive absences. Moreover, I FIND for Mr. Prado to write to the superintendent about this alleged pattern of excessive absences in 1997 and not mention that over half of it was due to this one time tragic event undermines Mr. Prado's credibility.

Another major factor in the increment withholding, according to Mr. Prado's memo of June 24, 1997, was the poor quality of Ms. Wende's work as evidenced by drafts of three memos, one for Mr. Continere and two for Mr. Prado. Yet the final product on letterhead with the office signature as well as Ms. Wende's initials indicating she typed it were shown to be perfectly acceptable business letters. Moreover, these drafts, the product of sudden demands for Ms. Wende to type when her job responsibilities to date had never call for her to type, were an inappropriate measurement to use to evaluate the overall quality of her work. It was totally arbitrary to evaluate the quality of what she was not required to do in the regular performance of her duties rather than she had been required to do for many years. If her job duties were to change, since Mr. Prado and Mr. Continere both knew that she could not type, a request for her to get typing skills would seem a fair way to go about the filling the need of the office for another typist. Furthermore, Mr. Prado gave no specific criticism or examples of poor performance as to Ms. Wende's performance of her regular duties, i.e., the registration, reports, attendance, handling phone calls and dealing with parents and students. Indeed, Mr. Continere stated that when he was supervising her she performed satisfactorily in all of those areas.

Where the facts are contested, the trier of fact must weigh the credibility of the witnesses in order to make factual findings concerning the disputed facts. Credibility is the value that a fact finder gives to a witness's testimony, requiring an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency, and manner in which it hangs together with other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 *F.*2d 718 (9th Cir. 1963). Credible testimony must proceed from the mouth of a credible witness and must be such as common experience, knowledge, and common observation can accept as probable under the circumstances. State v. Taylor, 38 N.J. Super. 6, 24 (App. Div. 1955). A fact finder is expected to base credibility decisions on common sense, which is also referred to as intuition or experience. Barnes v. United States, 412 U.S. 837, 93 S. Ct. 2357, 37 L. Ed. 2d 380 (1973).

Having had an opportunity to observe the witnesses and hear their testimony, I FIND Ms. Wende to be a very believable witness. Additionally, I FIND the witnesses for the Board, particularly Mr. Prado, to be less credible, especially in light of the lack of candor that Mr. Prado showed to the Board by not explaining reason for the absenteeism between January 16 and February 7, 1997 and not explaining that the poor quality of work he complained about was not part of Ms. Wende's regular duties.

Thus, I credit Ms. Wende when she stated she was never told that there was anything wrong with her appearance and that the first time she heard that her clothes were too tight was at this hearing. Although Mr. Prado had checked on the evaluation that her appearance was unsatisfactory, nothing in any of the memos to the superintendent complained about her violating the dress code. The other comments about her attitude and lack of initiative are very vague and not specified at the hearing. For instance, Mr. Prado stated that Ms. Wende did not take any initiative. However, Ms. Wende's willingness to contribute to the office is demonstrated by the fact that she paid typing course and studied two times a week for three months even though her job duties had never included typing. Nor at any time was she ever written up, disciplined, giving any written warnings, for any thing for which she was told in her evaluation was unsatisfactory.

I also FIND Ms. Wende more credible when she stated that she did not receive the memos of February 5 and April 24, 1997 concerning her attendance and work performance until after the increment denial. Although Mr. Prado's June memo to Mr. Gattoni stated that he had reviewed these memos with Ms. Wende, neither earlier memo showed that she was sent a copy. Nor did the text of either memo appear to address an employee but rather appeared to be addressed to and for management.

Based on the facts that her records does not show a record of excessive absenteeism and the poor quality work that was criticized was work that she had very rarely been required to do, I CONCLUDE that the determination not to give Ms. Wende an increment in 1997-98 was patently arbitrary and capricious. I CONCLUDE that the determination of the Board to deny her increment in 1996-97 was not for good cause and must not be upheld.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I ORDER that the decision of the Board denying an increment to Eileen Wende is hereby REVERSED. The Board is directed to reinstate the 1996-97 increment retroactive to the proper date.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 290-8/97

NORTH BERGEN FEDERATION OF TEACHERS, LOCAL 1060, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF TEACHERS, AFL-CIO, AND EILEEN WENDE,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
PETITIONERS,	:	DECISION
V.	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH BERGEN, HUDSON COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and were considered by the Commissioner in rendering the within decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner is compelled, for the reasons set forth below, to set aside the Initial Decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ). The within matter concerns a tenured clerk whose increment was withheld by the Board for the 1997-98 school year upon the Board's determination that Petitioner Wende's absences were excessive and were negatively impacting the District, and because the Board found Petitioner Wende's job performance to be unsatisfactory. In this connection, although Wende, along with Petitioner North Bergen Federation of Teachers, her bargaining agent, initially asserted broad bases for their claim that the Board's action was improper, the gravamen of the challenge at the OAL ultimately concerned the Board's discretionary authority pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.

Within the context of a statute addressing compensation issues pertaining to "teaching staff members," N.J.S.A. 18A:29-1 et seq., local boards are authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 to withhold, for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment or adjustment increment, or both, of any "member" in any year. That "member" may appeal from such action to the Commissioner of Education. Prior decisional law has established that N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1, the statute permitting local boards to adopt salary policies for one, two or three years and schedules for all full-time "teaching staff members" concerns only those persons required to be licensed to hold their positions. (See Bd. of Ed. of Tp. of Neptune v. Neptune Tp. Ed., 144 N.J. 16, 34 (1996).) This statute is to be read in pari materia with N.J.S.A 18A:29-14, the statute allowing school boards to withhold increments from members in a given school year because of inefficiency or other just cause; "they are part of a common statutory enactment and should be reconciled to the extent possible." Probst v. Board of Educ. of the Borough of Haddonfield, Camden County, 249 N.J. Super. 222, 228 (App. Div. 1991) (emphasis added).

Given the established case law in this area, and mindful of the amendments to N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 et seq., the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act, which appear to provide for binding arbitration of disputes over withheld increments for noncertified employees within a bargaining unit, the Commissioner is not persuaded that he has the jurisdiction to hear and determine the within matter. However, since this threshold issue was not raised at the OAL and was not, therefore, briefed before the ALJ, the Commissioner finds it necessary to remand this matter for briefing and argument on the issue of jurisdiction, and for additional fact-finding, as may be necessary upon the exploration of such jurisdictional issues, in order to resolve this matter.

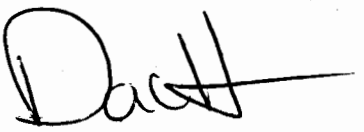
Accordingly, the initial decision is set aside and this matter is remanded to the OAL consistent with the within parameters.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.



COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF FORT LEE, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION

Petitioning aunt challenged Board's residency determination concerning her nephew, J.W.Y.

In light of credible testimony of petitioner, the ALJ concluded that petitioner satisfied the residency requirements pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1) in that petitioner was domiciled within the District; petitioner was supporting J.W.Y. gratis; the parents were presently not capable of supporting him due to family hardship; and J.W.Y. was not residing with petitioner solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in the District. Thus, the ALJ concluded that petitioner was not liable for tuition to the Board during the period of time that J.W.Y. attended school in the District. ALJ ~~ordered~~ granted the petition allowing J.W.Y. to attend school in the District and dismissed the District's counterclaim for payment of tuition.

Commissioner concurred with the decision of the ALJ so long as there is no change in petitioner's circumstances that would alter J.W.Y.'s entitlement.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 3958-99

U.S.K. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD J.W.Y.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION FORT LEE,

BERGEN COUNTY,

Respondent.

Stephen M. Latimer, Esq., appearing for petitioner
(Loughlin & Latimer, attorneys)

Robert T. Tessaro, Esq., appearing for respondent

Record Closed: July 27, 1999 Decided: September 10, 1999

BEFORE MARGARET M. HAYDEN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner appeals the determination of the respondent Board of Education of Fort Lee that minor child, J.W.Y., was not entitled to a free public education in the Fort Lee School District (District). Petitioner claimed that the minor child was entitled to a free public education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)1 as he was living in the home of the person domiciled within the District and was supported by that person. Respondent claimed that the minor child does not meet the requirements of the statute and filed a counterclaim for payment of tuition.

On or about March 22, 1999, the District informed petitioner that the Board of Education had reviewed the evidence submitted on behalf of J.W.Y. to support the application to attend school in the District and rejected that application. On or about April 7, 1999, the petitioner filed a petition and request for a hearing. On April 28, 1999, the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The OAL held a hearing on July 27, 1999.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Having had an opportunity to observe the witnesses and consider the documentary evidence, I FIND the following FACTS in this case.

Dr. Gerard DiGiovanni, the assistant superintendent for the District, testified that after the application was filed by petitioner it was reviewed by a subcommittee of the Board. The denial was recommended because the answer to one question was not filled out, the father had signed the affidavit but did not give his address, and the affidavit itself did not state any economic hardship. No one in the office reviewed the application with the applicant or inquired as to any inconsistencies or any blank spaces. The Board had noticed a conflict in the information provided because the mother said that she would not be claiming the son as a dependent for taxes and the petitioner said that the mother would be. No one asked petitioner or the mother about this conflict.

Petitioner U.S.K. testified that she lived in Fort Lee with her husband and her two children. Since March 1999, J.W.Y., the son of petitioner's sister and hence her nephew, resided there with her. Formerly J.W.Y., who is eight years old, had been residing in Los Angeles, California for approximately four to five years with his mother and father.

Petitioner's nephew came to live in Fort Lee because petitioner's sister was in the process of a bitter separation and divorce. About a year before J.W.Y. came to live with petitioner, her sister had found out that her husband had become involved with another woman. The pupil's father had begun to living with his new girlfriend and rarely stayed in the family home. The mother was not employed at the time that the husband essentially left her although the separation did not become final until sometime in April 1999 when the mother left the family residence. The father was providing no support to his son and his wife and the extended family was helping them with food. Since April 1999, the mother had begun to work in a restaurant, first as a waitress and then as a cook. She made very little of money and worked very long hours. Initially, the mother sent the son to Fort Lee to her sister with the hopes of moving there soon herself. Since beginning training as a cook, the mother does not plan to move to Fort Lee until she has enough skills to have a job.

When petitioner and her family took in her nephew they knew that it was for indefinite period of time. Only petitioner and her husband had been providing support for J.W.Y. Her sister sends no money nor does the father. J.W.Y. has had no contact whatsoever with his father since coming to New Jersey.

Petitioner has no first hand knowledge of the family difficulties but heard about them from the sister. Petitioner knew before her nephew came to New Jersey that his father had become violent against the mother. In addition to hearing this fact from her sister, once a few months before J.W.Y. came to New Jersey, a neighbor of the mother in Los Angeles called petitioner and told petitioner that the sister's husband was abusing the sister at that very moment and asked the petitioner whether to call the police. The petitioner instead called the husband at the family home and got him to cease his violence and leave the premises. Additionally, when petitioner's nephew came out to live with the family he often expressed hatred for his father because the fact that he had seen his father beat his mother. He had also told petitioner that he does not want to go back to Los Angeles because of the situation. The nephew also told her that his father had a new girlfriend. The petitioner feels that the child seems to be very shocked by the situation because his father's affair was with his best friend's mother.

The petitioner took the nephew to live with her family because the mother pleaded with the sister to take the child for his own well-being. The mother told petitioner that she desperately wanted the child out of the situation because he was becoming unstabled due to the unfortunate circumstances in the home. Even after the separation, the mother did not feel that she could provide him the stability and nurturing he needed, nor could she support him financially.

ISSUE

The issue to be determined is does the petitioner meet the entitlement to a free public education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A-38.1(b)1. If not, what is the amount of tuition owed to date?

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION OF LAW

The applicable statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)1, reads in pertinent part:

> Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board > of education of the District, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled in the District and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligation for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term, and a copy of his lease if a tenant, or a sworn statement by his landlord acknowledging his tenancy if residing as a tenant without a written lease, and upon filing by the child's parents or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economical hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the District solely for the purposes of receiving a free public education in the District. The statement shall be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statement, information from or about which shall be supplied only to the board and only to the extent that it directly pertains to the support or nonsupport of the child. If in the judgment of the board of education the evidence does not support the validity of the claim by the resident, the board may deny admission to the child.

Thus, the proofs in this matter must show that: 1) petitioner is domiciled within the District; 2) petitioner is supporting J.W.Y. gratis; 3) J.W.Y.'s parents are not capable of supporting or caring for him due to family or economic hardship; and 4) J.W.Y. is not residing with petitioner solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in the District.

Where the facts are contested, the trier of fact must weigh the credibility of the witnesses in order to make factual findings concerning the disputed facts. Credibility is the value that a fact finder gives to a witness's testimony, requiring an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency, and manner in which it hangs together with other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 *F.*2d 718 (9th Cir. 1963). Credible testimony must proceed from the mouth of a credible witness and must be such as common experience, knowledge, and common observation can accept as probable under the circumstances. State v. Taylor, 38 N.J. Super. 6, 24 (App. Div. 1955). A fact finder is expected to base credibility decisions on common sense, which is also referred to as intuition or experience. Barnes v. United States, 412 U.S. 837, 93 S. Ct. 2357, 37 L. Ed. 2d 380 (1973).

I FIND petitioner to be a very credible witness and thus, I FIND her testimony believable. Based on her testimony, I FIND that petitioner is domiciled within the District and that she is supporting J.W.Y. gratis.

The District argued that the testimony concerning hardship as well as the purposes of residing in the District is based solely on hearsay without any residuum of competent evidence and hence that petitioner has not borne her burden of proof in this matter. In administrative proceedings, hearsay is admissible subject to the residuum rule. N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5(b). Under residuum rule some legally competent evidence must exist to support each ultimate finding of fact to an extent sufficient to provide assurances of reliability and to avoid the fact or appearances of arbitrariness. Id. While this tribunal does not need to a determine if the father was having an affair, the mother's psychological state about what she thinks is happening as told to her sister is relevant and it is not inadmissible hearsay. See Spragg v. Shore Care, 293 N.J. Super. 33, 56 (App. Div. 1996). The testimony of the petitioner that the parent's neighbor in Los Angeles called petitioner during an incident of domestic violence concerning whether to call the police is admissible as an exception to the hearsay rule as it was an observation of an event made while the declarant was perceiving the event without opportunity to deliberate or fabricate. See N.J.R.E. 803(c)(1). Moreover, the minor child's statements that he hated his father because he had seen his father beat his mother and that he did not want to go back to Los Angeles were admissible to show the state of mind of the child.

I FIND that the credible facts show that the petitioner took the child into her home to stay for an extended period of time for purposes of supporting and caring for the child during the crisis in his mother's life. I FIND that the situation described by the petitioner of acrimony, violence and abandonment in the home as well as financial hardship would make it very difficult for the mother to properly provide care and stability for the child. I FIND that there is sufficient legally competent evidence to support each ultimate fact here.

The District's argument that the petitioner must prove that it would be impossible for the mother to raise the child is a misreading of the law. It is important to note that hardship under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)1 need not be merely financial. Indeed, family discord of a much milder degree has been found to constitute hardship entitling the student to public education under the statute. R.H. v. Ocean Co. Bd. Of Ed., 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 628. It follows that the circumstances in this case rise to at least the same level of family hardship as did the circumstances in R.H. and thus meets the standard of the statute. "To hold otherwise harms a party the Legislature never meant to penalize . . . and overlooks the substantial State interest in ensuring the education of all its children . . . ." Gundersen v. Bd. Of Ed. of the City of Brigantine, Atlantic Co., 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 39, 42. In finding compelling circumstances that rise to the level of family hardship in a child's reaction to serious marital and parental conflict, the Commissioner, overruling the ALJ, quoted his previous decision with approval:

> In interpreting a statute, the Commissioner must look to the fundamental purpose for which the legislation was enacted, and where a literal reading will not accord with that purpose, the spirit of the law will control over its letter . . . . Moreover, the meaning of a statute is to be gathered from the mischief sought to be eliminated as well as the proposed remedy . . . .
> The amendments to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 . . . were intended to ease the burden on local boards of education attempting to remove illegally enrolled students, specifically those living with a parent or guardian who claims to be, but is not, domiciled within the district, and those living with a person other than the parent or guardian in order to obtain the benefit of a free public education in a district other than that of their entitlement by parental domicile . . . .
>
> The intent of the "affidavit student" law is not now, and never has been, to deny an education to a child whose living > arrangements may not be as contemplated by the statutory scheme. . . .

R.H. v. Ocean Co. Bd. of Ed. at 632, citing Gundersen, supra.

I FIND that the competent evidence amply demonstrates that petitioner took her nephew into her home to provide him the care that his mother was unable to give him during this family hardship and to prevent him from having to see more physical violence. I FIND that there is no evidence that the petitioner took the nephew into her home for the sole purpose of attending school in the District.

Based on the above, I CONCLUDE that petitioners satisfied the residency requirements pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)1 in that the petitioners are domiciled within the District, the petitioners are supporting J.W.Y. gratis, the parents are presently not capable of supporting him due to family hardship, and J.W.Y. is not residing with petitioner solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in the District. Consistent with the above, I CONCLUDE that petitioners are not liable for tuition to the Board during the period of time that J.W.Y. attended school in the District.

ORDER

I ORDER that the petitioner's petition to allow J.W.Y. to attend school in the District is hereby GRANTED. I ORDER that the District's counterclaim for payment of tuition is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties filed no exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon his independent and careful review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that, under the circumstances existing in this matter, petitioner satisfies the criteria set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1) and, as such, minor child, J.W.Y., is entitled to a free public education in the Fort Lee School District.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is affirmed for the reasons stated therein. The Board is ordered to permit J.W.Y.'s attendance in its school system free of charge so long as there is no change in petitioner's circumstances that would alter his entitlement. The Board's counterclaim for tuition is hereby dismissed.*

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This Agreement made this day of , 1999, by and between Petitioner, Board of Education of the Lenape Regional High School District, Burlington County ("Lenape Board"), and Respondent,

Background

WHEREAS, on October 8, 1997, Daniel F. Hicks, Ph.D., Superintendent of the Lenape Regional High School District (" Lenape District") filed tenure charges with the Lenape Board against Bruce VanDyke , alleging that Bruce VanDyke engaged in various acts of conduct unbecoming a teacher within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et. seq.

WHEREAS, on October 23, 1997, Bruce VanDyke submitted his opposition to these tenure charges with the Lenape Board; and

WHEREAS, at a closed session at a special meeting held on October 28, 1997, the Lenape Board duly certified these tenure charges; and

WHEREAS, on November 6, 1997, the Lenape Board filed these tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"); and

WHEREAS, Bruce VanDyke acknowledges that he has entered into this settlement willingly and voluntarily, and with a full and complete understanding of his rights;

WHEREAS, Bruce VanDyke acknowledges that he was expressly advised of the Commissioner's duty, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, to refer tenure determinations to the New Jersey State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of his teaching certificate, and having been so advised, still wishes to settle this matter on the terms set forth below;

WHEREAS, the Lenape Board acknowledges that it has agreed to settle this matter because, as a result of such settlement, Bruce VanDyke is removed from his position as teacher within the Lenape Regional High School District, and the Lenape Board has conserved a significant amount of public funds in so doing;

WHEREAS, the Lenape Board acknowledges and understood that, as a result of the settlement, Bruce VanDyke will be removed from his position as teacher within the Lenape Regional High School District, i.e., the maximum penalty which could have been imposed under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, even after a full hearing;

WHEREAS, the Lenape Board acknowledges and understands that the Commissioner still has the authority to refer the matter to the New Jersey State Board of Examiners if he felt the matter warranted such referral; and

WHEREAS, the parties have agreed to settle this matter on the terms forth below:

1. Bruce VanDyke shall resign from the Lenape District immediately, effective upon execution of this Agreement. Bruce VanDyke further agrees not to seek reinstatement and/or reemployment in any capacity with the Lenape District.

2. In response to reference requests and/or requests for information concerning Bruce VanDyke's separation from employment with the Lenape District, the Lenape Board agrees that Bruce VanDyke's date of hire, the effective date of his resignation from the Lenape District, and that he resigned during the pendency of tenure charges that were filed against him will be disclosed. Any further information will be supplied by Bruce VanDyke.

3. The parties acknowledge that this Settlement Agreement is being entered into as a means of terminating the above-captioned matter, and is not an admission, and shall not be construed to be an admission on the part of Bruce VanDyke of any liability.

4. Bruce VanDyke will pay the Lenape District $6,500.00 in restitution as follows:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF LOWER CAMDEN COUNTY REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT NUMBER ONE, CAMDEN COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

Petitioning parents challenged the Board's decision denying their son, A.B., participation in the District's gifted and talented program.

Based on the testimony and evidence presented, the ALJ found that the Board complied with the Department of Education's policy to make provisions for identifying pupils with gifted and talented abilities; that said policy is set forth in writing; that the selection procedure clearly establishes the requirements for entry into the program; that these requirements have a rational basis in that they are designed to identify those students who will attain success in the program; and that these requirements were correctly applied to A.B. Thus, the ALJ concluded that the Board's denial of selection of A.B. to the gifted and talented program was proper. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in Initial Decision as his own.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners, D.B. and J.B., challenge the decision of respondent Board of Education of the Lower Camden County Regional High School District Number One (LCCR) denying the participation of their son, A.B., in the school district's Academically Gifted and Talented Enrichment Class at Overbrook Junior High School. Petitioners' petition was filed on December 9, 1998. Respondent's answer was filed on January 7, 1999, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 1, 1999, for hearing as a contested case. The matter was scheduled for hearing on August 4 and 5, 1999. On those dates, a hearing was held and concluded and the record closed on August 5, 1999.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Most of the essential facts in this matter are not disputed. It should be recognized that the following is not intended to be a verbatim recitation of the testimony, but is intended to summarize that portion of the testimony found to be relevant to the issues in this matter.

A.B. is 13 years of age and attends Overbrook Junior High School where he has successfully completed seventh grade. A.B.'s mother, J.B., testified that A.B. did not develop language skills like other children and that by the time he was three he had suffered from colic, chronic ear infections, a hernia operation, and tubes being inserted into his ears. At age three, A.B. was evaluated by the Berlin Township Schools child study team (CST) and was classified as preschool handicapped. He attended a full-time preschool program in Pine Hill. He was provided with maximum assistance for language skills, fine motor skills and speech. At age 5, A.B. was reevaluated and reclassified as perceptually impaired because of his language-based difficulties which included difficulties with short term memory, sequential organization, below normal socialization, and fine and visual motor skills. He attended a half-day regular program and half-day in a language-based, multi-sensory class. He also received speech therapy.

A.B. attended regular first and second grade classes, receiving help with language skills as well as speech and handwriting therapy. These skills were reinforced at home with speech practice, handwriting and reading.

J.B. testified that A.B. was reevaluated at the end of the school year in 1994 and was declassified because of his high I.Q., his high achievement test scores and his ability to perform at grade level. J.B. indicated that the parents were not informed of the ramifications of this declassification.

J.B. testified that from the beginning of third grade through sixth grade, A.B. was placed in the Berlin Township Schools gifted and talented program on the advice of the CST, as a result of his very superior I.Q. In these school years, he had difficulty with handwriting and had writing problems. He was given tutoring and also received speech therapy until sixth grade. However, Berlin Township identified A.B. as gifted and treated him in this way, resulting in an increase in his self-esteem. He graduated from the Berlin Township Elementary School with an A average and received a special academic award. He was a candidate for the gifted and talented program at Overbrook Junior High School for seventh grade and passed the first requirement for selection by scoring a 120 on the Riverside Cognitive Test. However, he was denied entry into the Overbrook gifted and talented program in August 1998.

J.B. provided a letter from Richard Selznick, Ph.D. of The Children's Regional Hospital at Cooper Hospital/University Medical Center, dated July 12, 1999 (P-2). This letter indicated that the parents had consulted with Dr. Selznick on June 28, 1999, regarding A.B.'s status as a gifted and talented youngster. It reflected that there appers to be some question as to A.B.'s status, as some assessments have found him to be gifted while others have not. Dr. Selznick offered to evaluate A.B. independently by giving him certain tests in order to give a fairly good indication of A.B.'s eligibility for a gifted and talented program.

J.B. also identified a psychological assessment performed by Steven A. Levick, School Psychologist, in February 1999 (P-3), in which Mr. Levick describes A.B. in the Summary as in the average range of cognitive functioning. J.B. disputed this conclusion because the testing of A.B. reported by Mr. Levick reflected a high average range bordering on superior.

J.B. testified as to what she felt was the bias of the LCCR CST in evaluating A.B. She cited the example that Mr. Levick was scheduled to test A.B. at the end of January 1999. The parents requested that this testing be rescheduled because it was to be held the day after the Super Bowl in 1999. She indicated that A.B. is very interested in football and that they promised him the opportunity to see the Super Bowl game which usually ends late Sunday night. However, Mr. Levick declined this request and tested A.B. on the day after the Super Bowl because he said there was no other available time in his schedule. In addition, A.B. is best tested in the morning, but Mr. Levick gave him tests in the afternoon.

J.B. testified that in the Learning Assessment of January 1999 (P-4), A.B. has a "well developed fund of knowledge" and a reading comprehension level at grade 11.3, and A.B. is well above grade level in everything except spelling, indicating that he is not just an average child. She indicated that A.B. shows "dual exceptionality" in that he is both gifted and learning disabled. When A.B. received assistance with language skills, speech and handwriting therapy in the 1991-92, 1992-93 and 1993-94 school years under §504, he progressed on his California Achievement Test scores and his Iowa test scores; however, after this assistance ceased, he has been steadily declining in these test scores (P-5). When he was screened for reading and writing using the Woodcock Reading Mastery Test in July 1999, it showed that A.B. is not writing at his level and commensurate with his high vocabulary.

When A.B. was not accepted into the Overbrook gifted and talented enrichment class, the parents appealed the decision to the Board of Education and a hearing was scheduled to consider this issue (P-14). A meeting was also scheduled by the Guidance Director to determine A.B.'s eligibility for §504 accommodations for administration of standardized tests for the following 1998-99 school year (P-15). An evaluation of A.B. was made on September 30, 1999, and it was determined that A.B. does not have a handicap so as to qualify him for §504 accommodations (P-16). J.B. testified that she received this letter on October 3, 1998, indicating that a §504 evaluation had taken place. She had been promised that she would be notified and included in such a meeting, but the parents were not included in this meeting or any discussion.

On October 13, 1998, J.B. filed a complaint with the Office of Civil Rights, and in December 1998, the School District was required to conduct a full §504 evaluation with parental participation. As a result, a CST meeting took place on February 12, 1999. On that date the parent attended a classification eligibility determination. A.B. was again rejected as disabled. The parents then took their son for further evaluations to the Learning Enrichment and Assessment Program (LEAP).

On cross-examination, J.B. testified that A.B. is a good student and his grades are all As and Bs. He is introverted and has very few friends. He was assessed for emotional difficulties and went to counseling while he was at the Berlin Township Schools. However, he is not being provided with counseling by LCCR. He gets along well with his teachers and there are no disciplinary problems. He is in some honors classes. His attendance is good and he missed approximately ten days during the past school year. J.B. testified that A.B. is bored in school at the present time. He does not do any homework in order to attain his A and B grades.

J.B. testified that it was after A.B. was declassified that he was placed in the gifted and talented program in the Berlin Township School. He performed at the level of the class and got good grades. A.B.'s disability is language-based. Her son is getting a lot of A's and B's but she spends a great deal of time with him helping him with his studies. He is bored in his Study Skills, English and Science classes. He is not challenged in any of his classes and he is also bored at home.

A.B.'s father, D.B. testified that both he and his wife asked for copies of all relevant information, including copies of A.B.'s 1998-99 application for admission to the Overbrook gifted and talented enrichment class and for the teachers' evaluations of A.B. However, they were denied access to this information. It has not yet been provided.

A.B.'s parents called Ruth Marino as a witness in this matter. Dr. Marino testified that she has a Ph.D. degree and is a certified school psychologist. She testified to her educational background, and her experience. She is an Adjunct Professor at Holy Family College in Philadelphia, and she helped formulate the Educational Testing Service licensure examination for a national certification. She testified as an unpaid witness as a favor to the parents. She is employed as a school psychologist at Berlin Township and is certified both in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

A.B. was first evaluated in August 1989. Dr. Marino's first evaluation of A.B. as a member of the Berlin Township CST was in 1991 (P-19) and her second evaluation was in 1994. A.B. was diagnosed with Apraxia in 1989. This involves difficulties with motor coordination, speech and language and fine motor skills. Dr. Marino testified that when A.B. was tested his verbal score was in the bright average range of 110-120, but his performance score was in the average range of ability. Her report (P-19) indicates that there is a large, though nonsignificant difference between the verbal and performance I.Q. scores. She indicated that there was a great deal of motor involvement. As a result, A.B. was provided with speech and language therapy and occupational therapy dealing with his deficits in speech and language and in motor coordination. He also had a great deal of trouble converting his thoughts into written language. Eventually, in 1994 A.B. was declassified because he was competing in average classes. He has a learning disability but was able to compete in average classes.

Dr. Marino testified that when A.B. was declassified his teachers did not recommend him for the gifted and talented program. However, in his regular classes he was not challenged although he had a low tolerance for frustration. She explained that anxiety interfered with his learning and he had a low tolerance for frustration and was too anxious. His scores varied more than the standard deviation. However, it was concluded that A.B. was capable of performing better than his I.Q. showed. She concluded that A.B. has a physical disability which interferes with his performance. He has difficulty with his writing and language skills. The Berlin Township CST recommended that A.B. be included in the gifted and talented program if his I.Q. is above 130.

Dr. Marino testified that it sounds as if A.B. still has the disability in speech and language and motor coordination. He is gifted with a subtle learning disability. She feels that having him in the Overbrook gifted and talented program would help him by giving him mental challenges. It would get him to think and to solve problems. It would help him get past his frustrations. His potential is higher than he demonstrates. His inclusion in the gifted and talented program would enhance his strengths.

On cross-examination Dr. Marino indicated that she has had no discussions with anyone at the LCCR School District. She does not know anything about the Overbrook Junior High School gifted and talented program. She admitted that if A.B. entered and failed the Overbrook program it would be detrimental to him. She indicated that A.B., has a physical disability although she admitted that she could not find any statement in her psychological report of May 1991 (P-19) stating this. She admitted that the Berlin Township CST declassified A.B. and she was a member of that CST. However, Dr. Marino explained that it was the learning evaluation which resulted in A.B.'s declassification. She also stated that the CST of which she was a member never recommended a §504 determination. She indicated that A.B. has trouble with keyboarding, but that a low A or high B average is not a problem. However, she feels that he belongs in top courses. She admitted that the 130 I.Q. test result may be an anomaly since it is not consistent with test scores either prior or subsequent to that date. She also admitted that she has not tested A.B. since 1994.

Roseanne Simonelli Vivolo testified that she has been employed by LCCR as a Learning Disability Teacher/Consultant (LDT/C) since August 1992. She testified to her educational background and experience. One of her functions is the identification of children with learning disabilities. She indicated that she is not familiar with §504 evaluations.

Ms. Vivolo testified that she sat in on a meeting on September 21, 1998, involving a §504 evaluation. She was present for the sole purpose of interpreting the learning assessment scores and determinations. A.B.'s mother wanted A.B. in the gifted and talented program and had some documents supporting her position. Ms. Vivolo explained that there must be a severe discrepancy between a child's cognitive ability and his achievement in order to support a determination that there is a disability. In a 1996 Iowa test A.B. attained an average to high average range in cognitive ability and as a result it was found that there was no learning disability as it is known in the educational field. Ms. Vivolo identified A.B.'s report cards (R-2) which reveal A or B level grades in his classes and she indicated that this is consistent with the assessment. As a result there is no indication of the existence of a learning disability.

On cross-examination, Ms. Vivolo indicated that there are some learning disabled students in the gifted and talented program. However, these students must pass the same criteria as nondisabled students in order to get into the program. She indicated that in situations where there is a severe discrepancy of 22 points or more between cognitive functioning and academic testing, it is concluded that a child is learning disabled. She indicated that the Iowa test is not used as a criteria and that the WIOT test is used. However, A.B.'s 1994 Iowa scores are consistent with his grades.

Wallace F. Hussong, testified for respondent. He holds New Jersey teaching certificates as a grade K-8 teacher and as a grade 7-12 Biology teacher. He has been employed by respondent LCCR since 1973 and is in charge of the District's seventh and eight grade gifted and talented program. This position was part-time from 1979 and has been full-time since 1985. He testified as to his educational background and experience. He teaches two or three gifted and talented seventh grade classes and two or three eight grade classes. He is also directly involved in determining who is chosen for this class. He is also involved in the gifted and talented curriculum. He indicated that the LCCR gifted and talented program is much different than the Berlin Township sixth grade gifted and talented program. The Berlin Township program is a pull out program, whereas the LCCR program is an academic enrichment class consisting of one period per day in addition to the regular curriculum. It is a graded course which involves a great deal of writing, an extensive amount of math including discrete mathematics, as well as projects involving cameras, videos and television. The class proceeds at a very rapid pace.

Mr. Hussong testified to the selection process for the gifted and talented enrichment class. The assessment of eligibility takes 5 to 6 months. Students are chosen based on testing and academic performance and it is designed so as to comply with the guideline of including three to five percent of the school population. Mr. Hussong testified that he is the only gifted and talented teacher. They attempt to keep the classes at no more than 12 students per class, although, he has had up to 16 in a particular class. However, he indicated that where there are no more than 12 students in a class they interact better. In November or December of their sixth grade year, the students are given the Riverside Cognitive Abilities Test – Level D (CogAT). These tests are computer scored and if students achieve a 120 in one of three areas, they become candidates for the program. Out of 500 original candidates, the selection pool is reduced to approximatly 100. A list is generated and parent questionnaires and teacher evaluation forms are issued. He requests two or three teacher evaluations per student. He then waits for the achievement test scores. He then makes up a spread sheet, and the cut off for the year is based on a particular number. The "Baldwin Matrix" score, which has been in use since 1979, is used to determine eligibility for the gifted and talented enrichment class. He identified A.B.'s sixth grade gifted and talented identification score sheet (R-3). He testified that A.B. received a total of 16 points based on the Baldwin Matrix score. The CogAT is broken into a verbal I.Q., quantitative I.Q., and a nonverbal

I.Q. and point values are assigned to the ranges achieved by a student. The California Achievement Test scores are also used and point values are assigned to various ranges of scores. There are also scores given based on teacher evaluations and parent questionnaires.

Mr. Hussong testified that the teacher evaluations used to determine A.B.'s score are no longer in existence. After the determination is made to accept or not to accept the student, these evaluations are discarded because of space limitations. He testified that he was completely unaware of the pendency of this proceeding until recently, otherwise he would have retained A.B.'s teacher evaluations. Mr. Hussong testified that he personally reviewed the teacher evaluations of A.B. and he placed the score on the score sheet (R-3). The teachers are asked to grade students from one to four in a number of areas and he recalls that A.B. was evaluated by three different teachers. He also identified a parent questionnaire (R-7) and he indicated that he does not see the highest possible score of 32 very often, but in this case the parents gave A.B. the highest score. Everything is then placed on a computer spread sheet (R-4). In the case of the 1998-99 gifted and talented class, the last student selected had a score of 23 and anything below that was not accepted. He indicated that 33 students intervened between A.B. and the last student accepted into the class and A.B. was not close to qualifying.

Mr. Hussong also indicated that he would be very concerned if A.B. is entered into the Overbrook gifted and talented enrichment class because he might be easily frustrated. The extensive writing, the pace of the class, and the keyboarding skills which are required would be a problem for A.B. He is not sure that A.B. would function very well in the class.

On cross-examination, Mr. Hussong testified that he had the teacher evaluation questionnaires in his possession on August 31, 1998. He indicated that students in the gifted and talented program are required to both read and write at the eleventh or twelfth grade level. He indicated that if A.B. truly has a 130 I.Q. he feels that he would be able to function in the gifted and talented program.

Mr. Hussong admitted that he has never met A.B. There are no gifted learning disabled students in the class at present. He testified that he has had 18 hours of graduate credits and attends annual work shops in the gifted and talented program but there is no special certification or training required for teaching such a class. There have never been any exceptions made to the requirements for entry into the gifted and talented program. Some of the students that have been accepted into the program have opted not to enter the class. A score of 21 is a minimum and if students scores less than 21 they are not permitted to enter the class. There have been no substitution of tests for entry into the program in accordance with the policy of the Board of Education. He testified that the Wechsler Intelligence Scale returns only one score where the CogAT scores give three separate scores in verbal, math and overall. He has found over the years that the CogAT test scores are good indicators whether a student will succeed in the gifted and talented class. He feels that this is a more valid measure because it measures those areas that are needed in order to succeed in the class. He also testified that the criteria for entry into the program is exactly the same from year to year. Once students are admitted into the seventh grade gifted and talented class, they are back in for the eighth grade. The same admission criteria applied for the 1999-2000 school year class.

A.B. again applied for entry into the gifted and talented program for the 1999-2000 school year and he attained a score of 21 points. However, the cut off for his group was 23. Mr. Hussong repeated that a learning disabled child must meet the same criteria as a non-disabled student for entry into the class. Students that enter the school who have been in another school's gifted and talented program are not admitted, but they are tested for the next year. He testified that I.Q. test scores fluctuate, but the CogAT scores do not change significantly from year to year. I.Q. scores are never used as a measure for entry into the program. He felt that A.B.'s 130 I.Q. score is from four years prior and there should be a more current score.

Finally, Mr. Hussong indicated that in determining admission to the gifted and talented enrichment class, A.B. is compared with the rest of the students in his group, and the score of 23 is the cut off for the group.

Steven A. Levick testified that he is employed by respondent as a school psychologist and a behavioral specialist. He has been so employed since September 1989. He testified as to his educational background and experience. He holds a national certificate as a school psychologist and is a certified school psychologist in New Jersey. He participates in CST evaluations and has participated in several hundred of them. He evaluated A.B. and was involved in constructing an independent CST in performing this evaluation. He was the psychologist assigned to this evaluation. He testified that the CST was constructed to perform an independent evaluation in order to determine if A.B. is eligible for special education services. He indicated that the team followed the guidelines and requirements for such an evaluation to the letter.

Mr. Levick testified that he administered two tests, the Wechsler Intelligence Scale for Children-Third Edition and the Kauffman Brief Intelligence Test. In the Wechsler, A.B.'s verbal score was 123, his performance score was 106 and his full scale score was 116. This places him in the high average range of cognitive functioning. Mr. Levick indicated that his psychological assessment of February 1999, (P-3) contains an error in the summary where it indicated that A.B.'s cognitive testing places him the average range of cognitive functioning. It should state that A.B. is in the high average range. The Kauffman Brief Intelligence Test resulted in a composite score of 109, which is in the same range as A.B.'s Wechsler scores. The Iowa and CogAT test scores achieved by A.B. were cross-checked and Mr. Levick indicated that he felt he got a good sampling of A.B.'s abilities. He detected no apparent anxiety or apprehension and A.B. seemed eager to take the tests. He attempted to determine A.B.'s true potential. He concluded that there are no severe discrepancies in A.B.'s cognitive functioning and his performance. There must be a severe discrepancy in order to support a finding of a learning disability, but A.B. does not have the required 22 point spread. As a result, he felt that there is no specified learning disability. He also indicated that no one in the school district felt that A.B. rose to the level of a §504 qualification.

On cross-examination, Mr. Levick testified that there was no significant drop from the Wechsler and the Kauffman Brief Intelligence Test. A.B. was not anxious and was very relaxed when he took these tests. He does not recall if he administered these tests in the afternoon. He indicated that there are no anomalies in his report and that A.B. is in the average to high average range of intelligence.

The final witness to testify was Dr. Dennis Grimmett, Assistant Superintendent of respondent. He testified to his educational background and work experience. He has been with the LCCR Board of Education for 21 years and is the only Assistant Superintendent. The Guidance Department falls under his aegis, and the §504 coordinator reports to him.

Dr. Grimmett testified that a §504 determination was made in this matter on September 21, 1998. The parents were offered a CST evaluation or a §504 determination at that time. He explained that a §504 determination requires a finding that a student is substantially limited or impaired in a major life function. The team considered A.B.'s test scores and teacher assessments and concluded that A.B. was not limited or impaired in a major life function. He also agrees with the decision and the policy of the Board of Education with respect to the standards adopted for entry into the LCCR Gifted and Talented Enrichment Class. There is merit is setting standards and sticking by them.

On cross-examination, Dr. Grimmett was questioned why the parents are not involved in the §504 determination process, and he indicated that he is not aware of any district that allows parental involvement in that determination. He admitted that he has never met A.B., although he has knowledge of A.B. through his test scores. He indicated that it is common practice not to have a LTD/C present at a §504 meeting. However, Ms. Vivolo was present in order to interpret the learning assessment scores and determinations. The guidance counselor is present at a §504 and the parents still have input as to the options. He testified that dual exceptionality is not a widely adhered to realm and he personally does not adhere to it.

There is no law or regulation which prescribes the substantive content of a gifted and talented program or imposes any particular regimen for such a program on the local school district. See, Kanter v. Mountain Lakes Board of Education, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 454, 456.

N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-10 authorizes the Commissioner with the approval of the State board to develop and administer a uniform Statewide system for evaluating the performance of each school in order to determine pupil status and needs, ensure pupil progress and assess the degree to which the thoroughness and efficiency standards established pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-4 are being achieved. It should be noted that the Public School Education Act of 1975 provided at N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-5(d) (now repealed) that a major element of a thorough and efficient education is "a breadth of program offerings designed to develop the individual talents and abilities of pupils."

Pursuant to the foregoing authority, regulations found at N.J.A.C. 6:8-2.5(a)4 provide as follows:

> (a) The curriculum and instruction element shall be rated acceptable upon demonstration of performance in the following four indicators:
>
> * * *
>
> 4. Gifted and talented programs and services:
>
> i. The district shall make provisions for identifying pupils with gifted and talented abilities and for providing them with an educational program and services.
>
> ii. The documentation/activities for Group 1 school districts shall be:
>
> (1) The written identification process; and
> (2) A sample lesson plan.
>
> iii. The documentation/activities for Group 2 school district shall be:
>
> (1) The written identification process:
> (2) Lesson plans;
> (3) Classroom observations; and
> (4) Staff interviews.

In the Kanter case cited above, Judge Springer refers to a prior decision of the Commissioner, Humcke v. Tinton Falls Bd. of Educ., 1981 S.L.D. 165 (Comm'r Dec. 12, 1980), wherein the Commissioner, quoting approvingly from an internal Department of Education memorandum, set forth that,

> . . . While some schools may wish to provide the gifted and talented with a program, it would be unrealistic to expect schools to offer separate programs for each and every exceptionally gifted and talented pupil. However, it is realistic to expect schools to provide opportunities for these pupils.
> Humcke, at 170.

The current regulations appear to continue the prior policy of the Department of Education which imposes the burden on each school district to make provisions for identifying pupils with gifted and talented abilities and providing them with an educational program and services while at the same time not establishing specific requirements for such programs. Thus, if a local school district has adopted policies and procedures which have the effect of making provisions for identifying pupils with gifted and talented abilities and providing them with an educational program and services, it has conformed with the requirements of State law and regulations.

In the present matter, respondent has applied clear requirements for selection into its Gifted and Talented Enrichment Class. The procedure is set forth in writing (P-21) and makes it clear that the Riverside Cognitive Abilities Test – Level D will be administered and scored for selection of students both to be entered into the selection pool and as a part of the overall selection process. Those students with a composite CogAT score of 120 or above are entered into the selection pool and a "Baldwin-Matrix" is started for each student. Results of the sixth grade achievement tests total reading and total mathematics scores are also entered into the Baldwin-Matrix as are the results of teacher evaluations and parent questionnaires. Any student who attains a weighted score above thirty points on the Baldwin-Matrix is automatically included in the class and any student who attains a weighted score below twenty-one points will not be considered for selection. The class is intended to comprise three to five percent of the incoming seventh grade enrollment and the cut off score is adjusted each year in order to conform to this percentage.

The testimony of Mr. Wallace Hussong is the effect that these procedures and requirements were fully complied with in the selection of 1998-99 participants in the LCCR gifted and talented program. He described in detail the procedures used and I FIND that these procedures conformed with the requirements of respondent's Gifted and Talented Selection Procedure (P-21).

In particular, Mr. Hussong identified A.B.'s sixth grade gifted and talented identification score sheet (R-3) and he showed how the point values which were assigned to A.B.'s test scores, were consistent with the final overall score of sixteen achieved by A.B. Unfortunately, the teacher evaluations are no longer available, but Mr. Hussong testified from personal knowledge that he reviewed these teacher evaluations and he personally placed a score on A.B.'s score sheet.

Mr. Hussong testified that the LCCR gifted and talented enrichment classes are taught at a rapid pace and involve a great deal of reading, writing and special projects. Students who are learning disabled must comply with the same criteria as non-disabled students. Implicit in Mr. Hussong's testimony is that the reason for this is that students with learning disabilities may not be able to maintain the rapid pace of the class and may become frustrated and suffer more harm than benefit from being permitted to enter based on lower standards. Mr. Hussong also testified based on his twenty years experience in the LCCR gifted and talented program that the achievement test scores utilized by the School District in selecting students for the class are good indicators whether a student will succeed in the class. He felt that these were more valid measures because they measure those areas that are needed in order to succeed in the class.

In the present matter, in order for the parents challenge to the exclusion of their child from the school district's gifted and talented program to succeed, they must show that the actions of the school district were arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable or that the school district has failed to comply with the requirements of the Department of Education with respect to this program.

A.B. is a good student who is getting A's and B's in his classes, including some honors classes. He gets along well with his teachers, his attendance is good and there are no disciplinary problems. His mother indicated that he is bored in school and does not do any homework in order to attain his A and B grades, although she also testified that she spends a great deal of time helping him with his studies.

The parent's expert, Dr. Marino, opined that A.B. is gifted with a potential higher than he demonstrates but with a subtle learning disability in speech and language and motor coordination. She feels that having him in the Overbrook gifted and talented program would help him by giving him mental challenges and enhancing his strengths, by getting him to think and to solve problems, and it would help him get past his frustrations. However, Mr. Hussong, the school district's gifted and talented program teacher explained that the Overbrook program is a graded academic enrichment course consisting of one period per day in addition to the regular curriculum. It involves a great deal of writing, an extensive amount of math including discrete mathematics, as well as special projects. Mr. Hussong expressed concern that if A.B. is entered into the Overbrook gifted and talented program he might be easily frustrated by the extensive writing, the rapid pace of the class, and the keyboarding skills which are required. He is not sure that A.B. would function very well in the class.

Most of the standard achievement tests given to A.B. show that he is in the average to high average range of intelligence. It is in the area of A.B.'s weaknesses in speech and language and motor coordination that the program requires prospective participants to be most able. Therefore, it appears clear based on the testimony of Mr. Hussong, that the Overbrook gifted and talented program is not designed to enhance the self esteem of students if they are otherwise unable to do the work to keep up with the class.

I know that the parents will be distressed and disappointed with my decision in this matter. They have gone to great lengths to obtain for their son the best possible education, and they are to be commended for their efforts. However, based on the testimony and evidence presented in this matter, I FIND that the respondent, LCCR has complied with the policy of the Department of Education to make provisions for identifying pupils with gifted and talented abilities. I FIND that respondent has further complied with this policy by providing to such children a gifted and talented educational program and services. I FIND that respondent has adopted policies and procedures which have the effect of making provisions for identifying pupils with gifted and talented abilities and providing them with an educational program and services. Therefore, I FIND that the school district has fully conformed with requirements of State law and regulations in this regard.

With respect to the question whether the school district was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable in denying petitioner's child, A.B., enrollment in the LCCR gifted and talented program, I make the following findings. I FIND that the procedure for selection to the gifted and talented program is set forth in writing (P-21). I FIND that the selection procedure clearly establishes the requirements for entry into the program. Based on the testimony of Wallace Hussong, who is, in effect, the Gift and Talented Program coordinator, I FIND that these procedures have a rational basis in that they are designed to identify those students who will attain success in the Gifted and Talented Program. I FIND that these requirements were correctly applied to A.B. and I CONCLUDE that respondent's denial of selection of A.B. to the Gifted and Talented Program was proper.

INTERLOCUTORY ORDER
DENYING EMERGENT RELIEF
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 08614-99S
AGENCY DKT. NO. 309-10/99

C.J. AND M.J. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD C.M.J.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LAKEWOOD, OCEAN COUNTY,

Respondent.

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

This matter was opened to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on an application for emergent relief first filed with the Commissioner of Education. C.J. and M.J., the parents of a 16-year-old female, C.M.J., requested emergency relief permitting their daughter to attend Toms River High School or Brick Memorial High School or alternatively to be continued on home instruction which she has been receiving since spring 1999. The petitioners' representations, contained in a letter of October 6, 1999, filed with the Department of Controversies and Disputes and also in the statements of C.J. at the hearing, reflect that their daughter was raped by a fellow student at Lakewood High School in March of 1999. The petitioners' daughter was at that time in tenth grade. She is now in eleventh grade and is sixteen years old. Shortly after the incident the accused student returned to the high school to attend classes. It is unclear as to the state of charges pending against that student, except that the father represents his understanding that there are some juvenile charges which are still pending. The board's counsel indicated that the board is unaware of the status of any possible charges.

According to Mr. J., the sexual assault occurred on a Thursday. His daughter was out of school on Friday and returned to school on Monday, when she was confronted by fellow students. It was after this confrontation that she revealed the sexual assault to her parents. Since that time she has not attended school and the board has been providing home instruction. The girl has received anonymous phone calls on a number of occasions and in one call a female indicated that there was an intention that Ms. J. be harmed if she returned to school. According to her father, Ms. J. is intent on not returning to Lakewood High School and would drop out of school rather than return if her return were mandated.

At the hearing, board counsel was queried as to the board's intentions. He advised that the board has not yet begun any process to seek to have the parents of this minor student return her to attendance at the high school. The board has however determined that she should return to the school and counsel represented that the board would shortly be instituting appropriate municipal court proceedings if she did not return on her own. It is anticipated by counsel that the process of obtaining the necessary municipal court determination would probably take 30 to 60 days. Counsel also indicated that until such time as the board had obtained the appropriate judicial determination instructing the parents to return the child to Lakewood High School, the board would continue to provide home instruction.

Upon consideration of the information provided by the parties, and considering the standards for emergent relief, this administrative law judge first observes that it is unclear that there is in fact any emergency at this time. The board has now agreed to provide home instruction as it has been doing since last spring and to do so until such time as it has obtained the appropriate order directing that the parents return their minor child to the high school, which event is apparently a month or two in the future. In addition, the parties discussed the need to have a plenary resolution of the J.s' application for schooling in another high school resolved as quickly as possible. Even if emergent relief were granted in this case, the appropriately narrow relief which would be given would only involve either an order that the child be allowed to attend another high school pending a plenary determination or that home instruction continue pending a plenary determination. A decision on an emergency basis, without the benefit of testimony and other appropriate evidence, could not involve any determination as to the appropriate school setting for this child in the long term. She has approximately one and three-quarters years of high school remaining. Thus it was agreed that scheduling a plenary hearing within a short time was most appropriate and could lead to a resolution of the petitioner's application for relief against the board within the time frame of the board's processing of proceedings seeking to have the child returned to Lakewood High School. Counsel for the board has agreed to consider the appropriateness of filing a petition with the Commissioner seeking an order that the child return to school at Lakewood, while also taking into account the possibility that the more appropriate and perhaps preferred path would be through the municipal court process.

Based on all of the above comments, and a consideration of the standards for emergent relief, I FIND that the limited information provided by the parent as to the possibility of threats and danger to their child should she return to Lakewood High School is insufficient to suggest by itself that there is a reasonable likelihood of success on the merits. At the same time, there are issues to be considered with respect to the appropriateness of the educational setting for this child given her experience and the potential discomfort and emotional stress upon her in returning to the school even in the absence of any serious threat of bodily harm. These issues need to be explored in the context of a full hearing, but the evidence such as it is, which consisted almost entirely of hearsay and which did not include any testimony, affidavits or certifications by the child, who is sixteen years old and presumably capable of providing evidence, falls short of establishing a reasonable likelihood of success on the merits. At the same time, since the board has agreed to the continuation of home instruction pending a plenary hearing, it appears that, without the necessity of granting emergent relief, the situation which will exist pending the outcome of the plenary hearing mirrors the narrow relief that would be likely even if emergent relief were granted. It seems more likely that the appropriate temporary relief would be to continue home instruction rather than to undertake transfer of the student to an out of district high school for what might be a limited period of time should the plenary hearing result in a determination that the petitioners have failed to establish that an order assigning the child to an out of district high school on a long term basis is appropriate. For the reasons expressed, and the Board's representation of its intentions regarding continued home instruction, the application for emergent relief is DENIED. Based upon Mr. J.'s indicating that he wishes the matter to proceed to plenary hearing on the merits of his application, the case will be scheduled for plenary hearing.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this emergent matter, which included an audiotape of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 19, 1999, and the Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ, for the reasons well stated in his Initial Decision, that the within application for emergent relief must be denied as petitioners have not satisfied the standards necessary for the granting of such extraordinary relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). In so finding, the Commissioner is mindful, as was the ALJ, that the evidence advanced in this matter did not include any testimony, affidavits, or even a certification by the minor child, rendering it, at this point, merely speculative and, therefore, insufficient to establish a reasonable likelihood of success on the merits. Additionally, the Commissioner fully concurs with the ALJ that the nature of the relief requested by petitioners is not amenable to determination in an emergent proceeding but, rather, is more appropriately fashioned subsequent to a hearing on the merits which, due to the circumstances of this matter, should be conducted on a expedited basis.

Accordingly, the Order of the ALJ denying emergent relief is affirmed. This matter shall proceed to an expedited hearing on the merits in the event that petitioners desire to pursue their claim or to such proceedings as are necessary to bring it to closure.[1] [2]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

[1]It is noted that a letter to the parties from the ALJ, dated October 20, 1999, accompanied the return of this emergent application to the Commissioner. Such letter appended a facsimile from petitioners and their child, addressed to the ALJ, dated October 19, 1999, transmitted to the OAL on October 20, 1999, which stated "[t]his letter is to inform you that my wife, my daughter [C.J.] and myself have come to the conclusion that any further action on our part against the Lakewood schoolboard would just be futile and therefore we have decided that [C.J.] should drop out of Lakewood High School. We have also decided that [C.J.] would be better off continuing her education outside of the Lakewood education system."

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, November 3, 1999

For the Petitioners-Appellants, Bernard Weiss, Esq.

For the Respondent-Respondent, Rand, Algeier, Tosti & Woodruff (Ellen S. Bass, Esq., of Counsel)

On November 3, 1999, the Commissioner of Education granted the Madison Board's motion to dismiss "the outstanding issues in this matter, in that they are not justiciable before me." Commissioner's Decision, slip op at 1. He therefore dismissed the petition, in which the petitioners had challenged their son's suspension from school, along with the petitioners' request for emergent relief.

On December 3, 1999, the petitioners filed a notice of appeal with the State Board of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.11(a), the petitioners' brief in support of their appeal was due on December 23, 1999, 20 days after they filed their notice of appeal. The petitioners, however, failed to file a brief by that date. By letter dated December 28, 1999, the Director of the State Board Appeals Office notified the petitioners of their failure to file a brief and informed them that this matter was being referred to the Legal Committee of the State Board for consideration of their failure to perfect the appeal.

The petitioners have still failed to file a brief in support of their appeal, six weeks after the deadline for such filing. Nor have they offered any explanation for their failure to file or requested an extension of time for such filing. As a result, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to perfect. FLORENCE ADLER, PETITIONER, V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SHAMONG, BURLINGTON COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

Petitioner, tenured teaching staff member holding instructional certification with endorsement as music teacher (K-12), claimed tenure and seniority rights to positions awarded by the Board to other individuals.

ALJ concluded that petitioner did not have the necessary seniority to oust Ms. Tavani from the full-time music teacher position. ALJ noted since the key issue in regard to seniority is not formal appointment but actual service in the particular position for which one is certified (Lichtman), Ms. Tavani, who was certified as a music teacher, was entitled to seniority because of her performance of the duties of a music teacher in 1967-68 and 1968-69 school years, when the administrative principal asked her to teach music for classes other than her own. In regard to the computer course position, the ALJ noted that case law has established the principle that in most instances no specific instructional endorsement is required to teach a computer course. Citing Lewis and Skawinski, the ALJ concluded that based upon current law, tenured petitioner was entitled to one of the computer teacher positions for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years over nontenured teachers and was, therefore, entitled to the difference in salary between what she earned and what she would have earned had she been properly assigned.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in Initial Decision as his own and directed the Board to compensate petitioner for lost wages and emoluments, including the additional pension credit commensurate with her salary loss. Commissioner clarified that Ms. Tavani had superior seniority as a teacher of music by virtue of her music instruction during the 1967-68 and 1968-69 school years not because he found that Ms. Tavani "brought to her task as teacher of music for these other students some element of educational background which others not so certified cannot be presumed to have," but because the record supported the conclusion that Ms. Tavani was asked to teach the additional classes since the administrative principal was aware of her dual certification.

FLORENCE ADLER,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SHAMONG, BURLINGTON COUNTY,
Respondent.

Kathleen A. Naprstek, Esq., for petitioner (Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella, and Nowak, attorneys)

John T. Barbour, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: July 14, 1999 Decided: September 21, 1999

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

Florence Adler filed a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") on June 25, 1997, asserting that the respondent Board of Education of the Township of Shamong ("Board") had violated her rights as a tenured employee and had violated her rights of seniority in connection with the Board's alleged retention of non-tenured teachers in full-time positions which the petitioner asserts are properly positions to which she has tenure and seniority rights superior to those holding said positions. The Board filed an answer to the petition on July 16, 1997. The Commissioner transferred the matter as a contested case to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on July 25, 1997. An amended answer to the petition was filed on August 13, 1997. A prehearing conference was conducted on September 24, 1997. At that time the parties indicated that notice of the pending contested case needed to be supplied to other employees of the District who might be affected by the outcome of the dispute. A further conference was held on November, 19, 1997. As a result of her direct interest in the outcome of the case, another member of the staff of the respondent, Florence Tavani, was granted intervenor status. She filed a motion for summary decision which was denied on September 15, 1998. Thereafter, the case was scheduled for hearing in January 1999, but was adjourned due to the need to determine if there were yet other employees who might be affected by the case. A hearing was scheduled for May 24, 25 and 26, 1999. On May 14, 1999, counsel for intervenor Tavani advised that his client was retiring effective July 1, 1999, and desired to withdraw from the case. A letter of May 21, 1999, confirmed this information and Ms. Tavani was permitted to withdraw. The hearing was held on May 24 and concluded on that date. Counsel then filed briefs and reply briefs and the record closed on July 14, 1999. However, because the judge was involved in a number of expedited and emergent hearings and had other decisions which were required to be completed, he requested an extension of the 45-day decision period and the Director and Chief Administrative Law Judge and the Commissioner granted an extension of the time for the decision to be filed.

In her petition Ms. Adler contends that she holds an instructional certificate with an endorsement as a music teacher (K-12) and that, after having commenced her employment with the respondent as a part-time music teacher in November 1983, and working as part-time music teacher through the end of the 1986-87 school year, she became a full-time music teacher on September 1, 1987, and remained so, acquiring tenure which she asserts extended to all assignments which she is authorized to fill by virtue of her certification. Thereafter, on May 8, 1997, she was informed that her full-time position as a music teacher was to be abolished upon the respondent's recommendation and that a part-time music teacher position was to be created in place of the full-time position. The Board then voted on May 20, 1997, to abolish the full-time position and create the part-time position and to appoint the petitioner to that part-time position. Despite this action, the petitioner alleges that effective September 1, 1997, the respondent has retained non-tenured teachers in full-time positions which require or to which the petitioner's instructional certification is appropriate. Ms. Adler claims that by virtue of her tenure she is entitled to fill such full-time positions and the Board's retention of non-tenured persons in these full-time positions is in violation of her tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:25-5, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 et seq., and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

In addition to her tenure claims, Ms. Adler also claims in her petition that as a consequence of her service with the respondent, she has acquired seniority under her instructional certificate and that this seniority extends to the positions created by the Board. As such, she asserts that the Board's retention and assignment of less senior personnel violates her seniority rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1 et seq.

The parties have entered into a stipulation of facts, which is incorporated herein. In addition to stipulating to much of the factual information which Adler asserted in her petition, the parties have also stipulated regarding Florence Tavani's employment history with the Board, which commenced on September 1, 1967, when she was employed as a full-time elementary school teacher, and the employment history of Ron Heil and Alan Taylor, two other employees of the District who commenced employment on September 1, 1997; Heil as an elementary school Computers/Technology teacher and Taylor as an elementary school teacher.

The Board asserts that Florence Tavani has greater seniority under her Teacher of Music endorsement than does Florence Adler. It also asserts that it has no other positions in the district for which Adler was qualified and to which she could be assigned. The stipulation provides that Adler holds a certificate which states that she is authorized to teach music in grades K-12 and has been so certified since April 1981. She was first hired by the Board on November 8, 1983, to complete the 1983-84 school year as an hourly employee to teach music part-time, and later became a full-time music teacher in the Indian Mills School for K-8 and later in 1992 was assigned to grades 4-8 as a full-time music teacher at the Indian Mills Memorial School. The stipulation further provides that Ms. Tavani holds a certificate which authorizes her to serve as a teacher of music K-12 and as an elementary school teacher. Tavani has been so certified since June 25, 1965.

Florence Tavani testified that in 1967 she taught music to classes which the principal of the then only school in the Shamong District asked her to cover. A third grade teacher had very little free time and Principal Andelora requested Tavani to teach music to this teacher's class while the teacher ate her lunch. Tavani did so, every day of the 1967-68 school year. Tavani was herself assigned at that time to two first grade classes as an elementary school teacher. In 1968-69 she taught music to Mrs. Marshall's fourth grade class, while also assigned as an elementary school teacher to two first grade classes. Once again, she claims that she taught music to Marshall's class every day of the school year. During that year the principal was Mr. Ben Fogletto. She considered that she performed this teaching of music under her endorsement as a music teacher grades K-12. After 1968-69 she only taught music to her own classes.

The witness explained that in 1967-68 the school district was so small that Mr. Andelora was given blanket permission by the Board to move teachers around in assignments as he believed warranted. There was no superintendent of schools at that time, no business administrator or teacher's union. The principal sat in on negotiations with the teachers.

Karen Morgan, a kindergarten teacher in Shamong since 1968, and Anna Marshall, who retired in 1983 after working in the District since 1967, each testified. Ms. Morgan taught first grade in a room next door to Ms. Tavani's. She held an elementary, K-8 certification. In 1968-69 she was aware that Tavani was working in a third grade classroom teaching music during the third grade teachers lunch break. She and Tavani talked about what each was doing during lunch periods and they had to cover for each other. Morgan had a music background and Principal Fogletto knew it so he asked her to form a chorus of 6th to 8th graders which met after school. Ms. Marshall explained that Tavani taught Marshall's class music each day for the whole school year so that Marshall could go to lunch. Tavani would bring her guitar. Marshall never sat in on the class while Tavani taught. This arrangement stopped after the 1968-69 term.

Roger Ward Wagner retired from the principalship of Indian Mills Memorial School in 1996. Mr. Wagner explained that Memorial was built in 1991, before that time Indian Mills School was a K-8 school. After Memorial was built, Mills School became K-3 and Memorial was grades 4 through 8. Before he became the principal of Indian Mills School in 1978, Wagner taught at the school beginning in 1968, when he was a 6th grade teacher and then a 6th, 7th and 8th grade teacher. The school was very small, only about 120-130 students and one class for each grade. There were no special teachers for music, art, or physical education. Instead, each teacher taught these subjects to his or her own class, unless teachers switched for "special projects." The same situation existed in the 1969-70 school year. "Special project" teachers were not employed at the school until the early 1970's, with a music teacher or a physical education teacher first hired in about 1973-74.

Wagner knew Ms. Tavani, who taught either 1st or 2nd grade at that time. Ms. Morgan also taught one of these grades. Wagner did not recall any specific authorization being issued for teachers to teach "specially," however, the procedures then in place were "less formal" than now. As Wagner recalled, Tavani taught in an older building, he taught on the other side of a breezeway. No teachers had free time. They each taught art, music and physical education and had lunch duty. There was no reason why the administration at that time would have discussed other teachers' assignments with him, and he had no opportunity to observe what went on in Tavani's classroom. Wagner did not dispute that Tavani did teach music to classes other than her own at times. He had not seen either Morgan or Marshall's statements.

In addition to the testimony regarding Ms. Tavani's music instruction in the late 1960's, additional testimony was presented regarding a computer course and its content, this in regard to the Board's assertion that it had no position available for Adler after she was "riffed" despite her tenure and seniority status. She testified that she is currently a music teacher in Shamong. In 1996-97, the school year during which she filed the petition in this case, she has not taught computers, although she has monitored students using them and has worked with them. Special area teachers monitored the computer room and there was a computer teacher at the time. She took no technology or computer courses in college, from which she graduated in 1981. She has not taken any computer courses since college, other than attending one workshop for computers which lasted a day and a keyboard (musical) technology course which involved computer usage. She has a computer at home, but does not know which operating systems it has.

Ronald C. Heil, a computer teacher for Shamong is a certified K-8 elementary school teacher. He has taught in the district for two years, teaching a computer technology course full-time for fourth to sixth graders. The course is initially exploratory and touches upon the keyboard, slide shows, the internet, CD Rom and other applications. In the fifth grade course the approach is in greater depth, including databases and hyperstudio. In sixth grade the course is entirely hyperstudio, involving a multimedia presentation on a particular topic. The course curriculum was entered in evidence.

Heil works with teachers and suggests to them things which they can have their students work on with the computers.

Dr. Joseph H. Webb, the Superintendent of Schools for Shamong, testified that he discussed the County Technology Plan with County Superintendent Douglass Groff to determine what certification a teacher needed in order to teach a computer course. He was told that a teacher needed only an elementary education certificate. The County Superintendent only referred to the Administrative Code regarding this issue.

Webb was "generally" familiar with the content of the curriculum for the computer course and believed that it was geared to the core curriculum.

Eileen Maria Senior, Director for Curriculum, Instruction and Planning for the District, has been a teacher, administrator and principal in the District for twenty-two years before assuming her present position, which she has held for one year. She is familiar with the course curriculum for the computer course. It involves the core curriculum content and is integrated therewith in all content areas. The "expert" teacher of technology is expected to and in fact does work with the regular classroom teachers to integrate and infuse technology into the core curriculum.

DISCUSSION

Tenure is acquired by serving the requisite period of time established in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 under the authority of an instructional certificate and the tenure extends to all endorsements held on that certificate. Capodilupo v. West Orange Board of Education, 218 N.J. Super. 512 (App. Div. 1987), cert. denied, 109 N.J. 514 (1987). Where a teacher has acquired tenure and is then subject to a reduction in force ("RIF"), the teacher retains certain rights, such that the Board must reduce positions only in accordance with seniority, and all tenured staff who suffer loss due to a RIF must be recalled to fill positions for which they are qualified and which may become vacant in order of seniority. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10. If a tenured teacher is subject to a RIF, if another position is available, a tenured teacher has a right to that position over a non-tenured teacher or any individual with less seniority, so long as the tenured teacher has the appropriate certification for the position. Bednar v. Westwood Board of Education, 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1988). N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(i).

In this case, the primary issue in regard to Ms. Adler's rights relates to Ms. Tavani's service as a music teacher and the date at which she first began to acquire seniority in that capacity. Ms. Adler started as a full-time music teacher in September 1987, and therefore she had more than ten years of seniority. Ms. Tavani became a teacher in the District long before Adler first began her part-time employment in 1983-84. Tavani started with the District in 1965. The key question is what if any significance her activities in 1967-68 and 1968-69 have to do with her acquisition of seniority as a music teacher. Adler disputes that Tavani acquired any seniority from that time, and contends that since Tavani only became a full-time music teacher in the District about five years ago Adler has a clear seniority advantage over her and was therefore entitled to the position filled by Tavani.

The evidence presented by the Board from Ms. Tavani, Ms. Marshall and Ms. Morgan is convincing to the effect that in the 1967-68 and 1968-69 school years Tavani was asked by the school principal at Indian Mills School, who was then the highest level employee of the Board, to undertake music instruction for the students in classrooms other than her own, in order to assist in providing lunch breaks for other teachers in what was apparently a very busy schedule in this small school. There is no evidence of any formal Board appointment to the position of teacher of music at that time, indeed, the evidence is clear that the Board did not begin to hire teachers for specific art, music and physical education roles until much later. Instead, Tavani's assignment to teach music to other classes was all accomplished informally in accordance with the formal authority granted by the Board to the administrative principal to "shift the teaching staff around in order to fulfill educational needs." Ms. Adler's witness Mr. Wagner did not present any evidence to refute the testimony of the three women.

In considering whether Tavani's actual performance of music education in these years is deserving of the accumulation of seniority, it is noted that as a teacher of elementary students in Shamong in the late 1960's any teacher, including Tavani, Morgan or Marshall, was apparently expected to teach their students music, art and physical education as a regular part of their duty as an elementary school teacher. As such, the administrative principal could presumably have asked that Morgan or Marshall teach music to students in other classrooms while the teachers in those rooms were at lunch, and this despite the fact that perhaps Morgan or Marshall did not have the music certification which Tavani possessed. While the Board could not have hired a teacher to serve specifically as a music teacher who did not possess the proper certification as a teacher of music, it could hire a certified elementary school teacher to teach all of the subjects taught in an elementary classroom, including music, and in fact that is what the Shamong Board did. The question then is whether when the administrative principal asked Tavani to act as a music teacher for classes other than her own, her service in that capacity should be viewed any differently than the music instruction she provided to her own class of students, for which it is not claimed that her service while teaching music caused her to acquire any seniority rights.

Since the key issue in regard to seniority is not formal appointment but actual service in the particular position for which one is certified, Lichtman v. Ridgewood Board of Education, 93 N.J. 362, 369 (1983), Ms. Tavani is entitled to seniority as of the performance of the duties of a music teacher in 1967-68. While she served as a regular elementary education classroom teacher that year for the students in her own classroom, she worked concurrently as a music teacher for other students for whom she did not fulfill, indeed was neither assigned nor asked to fulfill, the role of a regular classroom teacher. While others may have fulfilled a similar function while not certified as a music teacher, Tavani held the proper certification, and as such, the assumption must be that she brought to her task as teacher of music for these other students some element of educational background which others not so certified cannot be presumed to have. Since Tavani's sole designated function for the students in Marshall and Morgan's classes was music teacher, she should receive the benefit of her specialized service and therefore gain seniority from 1967-68. This being the case, she had seniority over Ms. Adler, as the seniority first acquired in 1967-68 continued to accrue over the following continuous years of service whether she taught music under her certification in those ensuing years or not. I CONCLUDE therefore that Ms Adler did not have the necessary seniority to oust Ms. Tavani from the full-time music teacher position after Adler was riffed.

In regard to the computer course, case law has established the principle that in most instances no specific instructional endorsement is required to teach a computer course. Taxman v. Piscataway Board of Education, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 189; Lewis and Skawinski v. State-Operated School District of Paterson, Passaic County, EDU 9743-94 & EDU 9745-94, Final Decision by Commissioner of Education, March 24, 1997, affirmed by State Board, October 1, 1997. While in Morgan v. Board of Education of the Township of Wayne, 1991 S.L.D. 2578, the State Board did find that there could be exceptions to that general rule, such as where the courses involved older students (in Morgan junior high school students) and the curriculum dealt with data base and spreadsheets in a business context, the evidence here is that the course involved is more in line with the course of study considered by the Commissioner in Lewis and Skawinski, Supra., where the Commissioner found that the computer instruction was "viewed as a mechanism to learn the various content subjects, and the instruction is wholly driven by the lesson plans of the classroom elementary teachers." Id. at 15-16. While there is a specific "Computer Curriculum" in Shamong, approved in October 1995, it appears to be largely an adjunct to the instruction in core curriculum, and indeed one of its stated goals is to "provide problem-solving learning experiences and computer assisted instruction to reinforce skills in the content areas through technology." This curriculum is not so similar in nature to the business oriented course work in Morgan as to suggest that the exception to the general rule identified there should apply here. While it is possible and perhaps even appropriate that the Commissioner and the State Board rethink the appropriate qualifications necessary for teaching computer courses in light of the ever expanding technological advances and the central place which computers are assuming in society, until they determine to do so, I must CONCLUDE that based upon current law Ms. Adler has seniority such that she was entitled to one of the computer teacher positions for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years and is therefore entitled to the difference in salary between what she earned and what she would have earned had she been properly assigned.

Ms. Adler's counsel shall advise counsel for the Board of the specific amount of money which is due to her client under this ruling and shall present a certification to that effect to counsel and to the Commissioner within ten days.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

FLORENCE ADLER, PETITIONER, V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SHAMONG, BURLINGTON COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	: : : : :	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Both petitioner's and the Board's exceptions were submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, as was petitioner's reply.

Although petitioner indicates that she concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) conclusion that she was entitled, by virtue of her tenure and seniority rights, to one of the full-time computer teaching positions for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years, she nevertheless contends that the ALJ misinterpreted the law in his analysis of her claim to the full-time teaching position held by Ms. Tavani. That is, petitioner maintains that Tavani did not legally begin to accrue seniority as a music teacher until she was assigned by the Board in September of 1992 to serve under her music teacher endorsement to her instructional certificate. (Petitioner's Post-hearing Brief at p. 10) Petitioner underscores that the testimony confirmed that, during the early years of Ms. Tavani's employment, the Board did not employ teachers for special subjects, such as music, art and physical education. Rather, these subjects were taught by the elementary teachers under their elementary endorsements of their certificates, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.1(b), and Ms. Tavani merely volunteered to accommodate her colleagues and/or the principal by providing music instruction to elementary classes other than her own. (Id.) As petitioner observes, there is nothing in the record to demonstrate that Ms. Tavani was assigned by the Board to serve under her music endorsement. To the contrary, the record shows that Ms. Tavani was employed as a "teacher," not as a "music teacher." As she argued before the ALJ, petitioner finds it significant that the Board failed to appoint Ms. Tavani as music teacher.

Additionally, although petitioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that she is entitled to back pay equal to the difference in salary between what she earned in her part-time position during the aforementioned school years and what she should have earned if she had been properly placed in a full-time position, petitioner contends that she is also entitled to have the Board make necessary payments to the Division of Pensions to provide her with the additional pension credit which she should have had for that full-time service at the higher salary. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 2)

The Board excepts to that portion of the Initial Decision where the ALJ concludes that petitioner was entitled to hold one of the elementary computer teaching positions, maintaining that petitioner was not qualified to teach such courses. (Board's Exceptions at p. 2) Here, the Board renews its argument as raised before the ALJ that:

> The curriculum for the district's elementary school Computers/Technology course is in evidence as J-14. Respondent's witnesses, Ron Heil an [e]lementary [t]eacher who teach[es] the Computers/Technology course and Eileen Senior, Director of Curriculum, both testified without contradiction as to the extensive integration of the full elementary school core curriculum content into the district's elementary school Computers/Technology course. The course curriculum, J-14, could not be more explicit in establishing that this course  is not merely "computers" but has all aspects of the elementary core > curriculum subjects fully integrated therein. (Board's Exceptions at p. 3)

The Board reasons, therefore, that an elementary teaching endorsement was a necessary credential for teaching the Computers/Technology course in its District. (Id. at p. 5) In support of its position, it cites to the State Board of Education's caution that, pursuant to Morgan v. Board of Education of the Township of Wayne, 1991 S.L.D. 2578, it has "rejected the broad general principle that the duties attending a course involving computers can never be of such character as to require possession of a particular instructional endorsement." Lewis and Skawinski State Board decision, supra, Slip Opinion at p. 5) (emphasis in text) (Board's Exceptions at pp. 8-9) Moreover, the Board finds the circumstances in Lewis and Skawinski to be distinguishable, in that matter "there was not a showing of the extensive intertwining of the core curriculum standards and the district's elementary academic curriculum into the district's computer curriculum ." (Id. at p. 9)

In reply to the Board's exceptions, petitioner argues:

> Although respondent obviously feels that some special skills should be needed to teach a general computer course and although respondent and others may desire a change in the current state of the law, the fact remains that until such time as the State Board of Education enacts such changes, and possibly creates a specific computer endorsement to the instructional certificate, any holder of an instructional certificate is qualified to teach basic computer courses. (Petitioner's Reply at p. 2)

Additionally, as per the directive of the ALJ in his Initial Decision, petitioner certifies that her gross salary loss for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years was $42,552. (Certification of Florence Adler, September 30, 1999)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner determines to affirm the Initial Decision, with clarification. Initially, the Commissioner notes that he is compelled to concur with the ALJ's conclusion that Ms. Tavani had superior seniority as a teacher of music by virtue of her music instruction during the 1967-68 and 1968-69 school years, not because he finds that Ms. Tavani "brought to her task as teacher of music for these other students some element of educational background which others not so certified cannot be presumed to have," (Initial Decision at p. 11), but, rather, because the record supports the conclusion that Ms. Tavani was asked to teach the additional classes because the administrative principal was aware of her dual certification. Ms. Tavani claims, without dispute or rebuttal by the Board, that:

> In September, 1967, I was hired to teach at Indian Mills School. Since the Principal was aware of my dual certification in both Elementary Education and Music Education, I was assigned to teach a first grade and also, a third and fourth grade music period. This assignment continued throughout the years from 1967 to 1969. (Statement by Florence Tavani, November 5, 1997, Supplemental Certification of Kathleen A. Naprstek, at Exhibit B, emphasis supplied)[1]

Although petitioner maintains that Ms. Tavani's assignment could have no legal effect in that she was never formally appointed by the Board of Education, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that, under the particular circumstances operative in this matter, where the administrative principal was the chief school administrator,[2] and where he was granted complete authority to effectuate assignments of teachers,[3] the Commissioner finds petitioner's position to be unpersuasive.

[1] Petitioner's Post-hearing Brief so affirms in its summary of the testimony: "This comports with Ms. Tavani's testimony at [the] hearing, in which she indicated that because she also held a teacher of music certification, the principal of Indian Mills School asked her to teach music to the 3rd grade students during the 1967-68 school year while the 3rd grade teacher took a lunch break. She stated that she performed a similar task for the 4th grade class during the 1968-69 school year." (Petitioner's Post-hearing Brief at p. 5)

[2] Board's Post-hearing Brief at p. 2

[3] Exhibit J-6, Board minutes from the meeting where the Board approved the application of Ms. Tavani and her consequent hiring as a teacher state: "Mr. Andalaro reported of the need to shift the teaching staff around in order to fulfill educational needs. The board unanimously agreed that he should take such action as he feels is necessary."

Additionally, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that, based on a review of the record and, in particular, the summary of testimony offered by Mr. Heil and the curriculum for the Computers/Technology course, the actual skills taught by the computer teachers are primarily technical in nature, notwithstanding that these skills are carefully integrated throughout the elementary subject areas, with the cooperation of the classroom teachers.[4] As such, the Commissioner does not agree with the Board that an elementary endorsement was required to teach the courses in question.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the ALJ is affirmed, with clarification. The Board is directed to compensate petitioner for lost wages in the amount of $42,552, and emoluments, including the additional pension credit commensurate with her salary loss.[5]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[4] It is noted that Mr. Heil testified that "The course is initially exploratory and touches upon the keyboard, slide shows, the internet, CD Rom and other applications. In the fifth grade course the approach is in greater depth, including databases and hyperstudio. In sixth grade the course is entirely hyperstudio, involving a multimedia presentation on a particular topic. " (Initial Decision at p. 8) The ALJ further noted that "[Mr.] Heil works with teachers and suggests to them things which they can have their students work on with the computers." (Id.)

[5] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

PETITIONER-RESPONDENT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SHAMONG, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, November 3, 1999

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak
(Kathleen A. Naprstek, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, John T. Barbour, Esq., of Counsel

Petitioner Florence Adler was a music teacher employed by the Board of Education of the Township of Shamong (hereinafter "Board") whose full-time position was reduced to part-time effective in the 1997-98 school year. By petition filed in June 1997, the petitioner challenged her reduction to part-time status, alleging that the Board had retained non-tenured and less senior teachers in full-time positions for which she was qualified.[1] Petitioner, who had achieved tenure as a result of her employment and who possessed certification only as a teacher of music, asserted claims to two [1] We note that the petitioner served as a music teacher on a part-time basis during the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years. On July 1, 1999, a staff retirement resulted in a vacancy for a full-time music teacher. The petitioner was advised that she would be employed in that assignment for the 1999-2000 school year.

July 5, 2000

positions–one as a music teacher and the other as a teacher of Computers/Technology to elementary school classes. The music position was held by Florence Tavani. The Computers/Technology assignments were filled by two non-tenured teachers who possessed elementary certification.

The Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") found that Tavani, an elementary teacher who also possessed a music endorsement, had acquired seniority as a music teacher by virtue of her assignment to teach music in 1967-68 and 1968-69 while the regular classroom teacher took her lunch break. As a result, Tavani had accrued more seniority as a music teacher than the petitioner, who had not begun her employment in the district until 1983. The ALJ therefore rejected the petitioner's claim to that position. However, the ALJ found that the petitioner had been entitled to retention as a Computers/Technology teacher over the non-tenured teachers serving in that assignment, concluding that such assignment required only instructional certification rather than elementary certification.

The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's determination with the clarification that Ms. Tavani's superior seniority as a music teacher resulted from the fact that she was asked to teach the additional classes because the principal was aware that she possessed certification as both an elementary teacher and a music teacher. Agreeing with the ALJ that an elementary endorsement was not required to teach the Computers/Technology courses, the Commissioner directed the Board to compensate the petitioner for lost salary and emoluments.

The Board appealed the Commissioner's decision, arguing that elementary certification is required to teach the Computers/Technology course because that course integrates the core curriculum content standards.

Ms. Adler did not appeal the Commissioner's determination that Ms. Tavani had more seniority as a music teacher.

After careful review of the record in this case, we reverse the Commissioner's determination that an elementary endorsement is not required to teach the Computers/Technology courses at issue. In this respect, we stress that the State Board of Education is the ultimate administrative decision-maker and fact-finder in school matters. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Tyler, 236 N.J. Super. 478, 485 (App. Div. 1989), certif. den., 121 N.J. 615 (1990); Dore v. Bedminister Tp. Bd. of Ed., 185 N.J. Super. 447, 452 (App. Div. 1982).

In South River Education Association et al. v. Board of Education of the Borough of South River, decided by the State Board November 4, 1987, aff'd by the Appellate Division, Docket #A-1695-87T8, April 16, 1990, the State Board considered the question of whether a district board could impose additional qualifications beyond those set forth in the certification regulations so as to permit it to hire an individual with nine credits in computer classes to teach a computer literacy course rather then select one of the certified elementary teachers on its preferred eligibility list. In deciding that question in the negative, the State Board found that, in the absence of a separate endorsement authorizing the holder to teach computer literacy, elementary certification was the appropriate certification. South River, supra, State Board's decision, slip op. at 8, n.3. Stressing that the State Board was the ultimate decision-maker in controversies arising under the school laws and that the State Board's expertise was entitled to deference, the Appellate Division affirmed our determination that elementary certification was appropriate. Id., Appellate Division's decision, slip op. at 4-6.

Similarly, examination of the "Computer Curriculum" developed by the district's Computer Curriculum Committee (hereinafter "curriculum guide") settles that elementary certification was appropriate in the case now before us. Exhibit J-4, in evidence. The curriculum guide was intended to be functional in both the computer lab and the classroom, and it was intended to be expanded upon by the use of "individual teaching techniques and resources." Id. The curriculum guide was designed to be a "comprehensive guide of content standards, learning environments, related curriculum areas, and assessments for teachers to use in the computer lab as well as in classrooms from kindergarten to eighth grade." Id. The guide therefore focused on providing problem-solving learning experiences and employing computer assisted instruction, as well as the fundamental characteristics of technological systems.

Related curriculum areas are keyed to each computer content standard, and resource strategies are geared to the substantive curriculum areas such as language arts and social studies. The bibliography also reflects the district's intent to use the computer course as a vehicle for teaching the core curriculum standards. Given the character of the computer course designed by the district, elementary certification was appropriate for this assignment. In so concluding, we stress that the fact that there is no specific endorsement for computer courses does not mean that any instructional certification will qualify an individual to teach such courses in all cases. Rather, individuals must possess certification that is appropriate to the assignment and, as here, that certification must be determined by careful reference to the particular curriculum that the district has adopted in a given case.

Thus, for the reasons set forth herein, we conclude that the petitioner was not qualified to teach Computers/Technology by virtue of her music certification, and we reverse the decision of the Commissioner on that issue.

Attorney exceptions are noted.[2]

Arnold G. Hyndman abstained.

Date of mailing JUL 07 2000

[2] We note that our Legal Committee granted the Board's request for leave to file exceptions to the Committee's report in this matter beyond the ten day period established by N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.17, and that we have therefore considered the exceptions filed by the Board on June 7, 2000 in determining this case.

hereinafter referred to as "DRISCOLL"

W I T N E S S E T H:

RECITALS

(A) DRISCOLL is a tenured teacher employed by the DISTRICT. DRISCOLL was suspended, without pay, by the BOARD OF EDUCATION on July 16, 1997 as a result of his Indictment by the Cape May County Grand Jury on June 3, 1997. DRISCOLL challenged that action by the DISTRICT and filed a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education.

(B) Subsequently, on September 24, 1997, the Superintendent filed Certified Tenure Charges with the Secretary of the Board of Education seeking DRISCOLL'S removal for unbecoming conduct as a tenured teacher. Those tenure charges were, as required by law, submitted to the Commissioner of Education.

(C) The Commissioner has elected to refer DRISCOLL'S Petition of Appeal, as well as the Certified Tenure Charges, to the Office of Administrative Law for a plenary hearing. Both matters were consolidated by Order dated December 17, 1997. Both matters remain open and unadjudicated as of the date hereof.

(D) The DISTRICT and DRISCOLL have agreed to a Statement of Procedural History and a Stipulation of Facts, a copy of whi is annexed hereto as Exhibit "A" and incorporated herein by reference as if set forth at length and the same is made a part hereof.

(E) The Statement of Procedural History and the Stipulation of Facts has been, or is about to be, filed with the Office of Administrative Law and will ultimately be submitted by the Office of Administrative Law to the Commissioner of Education of the State of New Jersey.

(F) DRISCOLL contends that he is fit, capable and a suitable candidate to resume his tenured teaching duties within the DISTRICT. The DISTRICT contends that because of his Indictment on one (1) charge and Waiver of Indictment and agreement to be charged under a Prosecutor's Accusation with respect to a second charge and his ultimate plea of guilty thereto, establishes unbecoming conduct on the part of a tenured teacher, which is sufficient in nature and context to justify DRISCOLL'S dismissal from his position as a tenured teacher.

(G) Both parties acknowledge that DRISCOLL'S Indictment and Prosecutor's Accusation charged the violation of a fourth (4th) degree crime. DRISCOLL'S ultimate plea of guilty and conviction to a charge does not operate as a matter of law to require a forfeiture of his teaching position. Rather, such conviction requires a plenary hearing before an Administrative Law Judge at the conclusion of which, the Administrative Law Judge issues an initial finding, which is thereupon submitted to the Commissioner of Education, who may affirm, modify or reverse the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge.

(H) While the facts giving rise to the Indictment and Prosecutor's Accusation, which resulted in DRISCOLL'S suspension without pay, are not in dispute, the affect of that conduct and whether or not it constitutes unbecoming conduct, justifying DRISCOLL'S removal from his tenured position, is very much in dispute and the subject of considerable controversy between the parties.

(I) In recognition of the expense, delay and uncerta outcome of any litigation, and in further recognition of the serious issues in dispute, the parties have agreed to enter into this Settlement Agreement for the purpose of resolving all issues in dispute and for the purpose of terminating the litigation. In doing so, the parties acknowledge that this Settlement Agreement, together with the Statement of Procedural History and Stipulation of Facts, must be submitted to the Administrative Law Judge for initial review and approval and the Administrative Law Judge must thereafter submit the Settlement Agreement and other documents to the Commissioner of Education for final review and approval. It is further acknowledged that the terms of this settlement cannot be implemented until such time as the terms of the settlement are reviewed and approved by the Commissioner of Education.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the recitals set forth above and the mutual promises hereinafter set forth and for other good and valuable consideration, and subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Education, the parties mutually agree as follows:

1. FINDINGS AND DETERMINATIONS: The Procedural History and Stipulation of Facts attached hereto as Exhibit "A" is incorporated herein by reference and made a part hereof.

2. TERMS: The litigation referred to herein is hereby agreed to be settled upon the following terms and conditions:

(A) DRISCOLL shall immediately submit a letter of resignation from his position with the CAPE MAY COUNTY TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT.

(B) DRISCOLL will continue to be relieved of all duties in accordance with the terms of this settlement.

(C) The DISTRICT will pay the following sums to DRISCOLL:

(1) Full salary and benefits retroactive to his date of suspension without pay, but subject to all normal and customary withholding deductions, including deductions for Federal and State taxes, Social Security and pension. That payment will include payments through the end of the 1997-1998 school year. Said payment, less the deductions, will be made in a lump sum as hereinafter provided.

(2) DRISCOLL will receive full salary and benefits for the 1998-1999 school year. Payment will be made in a lump sum covering the period September, 1998 to the date when the Commissioner of Education grants approval and the lump sum payment shall be made as hereinafter provided.

(3) The lump sum payments referred to in (1) and (2) above, less all normal and customary payroll and pension deductions, shall be made to DRISCOLL in a lump sum to be payable within THIRTY (30) DAYS of the Commissioner's final decision approving the within settlement.

(4) Commencing on the date of the Commissioner's decision granting approval to the settlement between the parties, DRISCOLL will be paid the normal salary for his position, plus benefits, less normal and customary payroll deductions, in accordance with the usual and customary pay periods in effect at the CAPE MAY COUNTY TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT. These payments, together with all retroactive payments to the date of DRISCOLL'S suspension without pay, shall cumulatively continue for so long as is required for DRISCOLL to accrue TWENTY (20) YEARS of service credit with the Teacher's Pension and Annuity Fund (TPAF) of which DRISCOLL is a member. The TWENTY (20) YEAR period shall commence with DRISCOLL'S initial employment with the CAPE MAY COUNTY TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, formerly known as the CAPE MAY COUNTY VOCATIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT. Once

DRISCOLL has obtained TWENTY (20) YEARS of service credit with TPAF, the payments from the CAPE MAY COUNTY TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT to DRISCOLL shall cease and terminate. It is the intention of the parties through this settlement that DRISCOLL will become eligible to receive a pension through TPAF for TWENTY (20) YEARS of continuous employment with the CAPE MAY COUNTY TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT. The parties contemplate that, in no event, shall the payments extend beyond THREE (3) YEARS from the date of DRISCOLL'S suspension on July 16, 1997.

(5) During such time as DRISCOLL is receiving payments from the CAPE MAY COUNTY TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, he shall have no obligation to perform any duties for or on behalf of the CAPE MAY COUNTY TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT and is completely free to seek and hold any other employment of his choice. Income from such outside employment shall not effect the payments to be made to DRISCOLL by the CAPE MAY COUNTY TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT as outlined herein.

(6) The term "benefits" as used herein shall mean salary, group health and hospitalization insurance, including group life insurance a pension contribution by employer, but shall exclude any reimbursement for any courses which teachers are entitled to receive as specified by the Collective Bargaining Agreement between the DISTRICT and the teachers.

(D) DRISCOLL agrees that he will not, at any future time, attend any school activity or event, nor will he have any involvement, direct or indirect, with any school function or activity, whether the same is conducted on the school property or campus or at any other location.

(E) The DISTRICT shall have no obligation to p DRISCOLL all or any portion of his counsel fees. In lieu of payment of counsel fees incurred by DRISCOLL, the CAPE MAY COUNTY TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT will waive its entitlement to a credit for wages earned by DRISCOLL during the period of his suspension.

(F) In addition to other payments specified above, DRISCOLL shall also be entitled to be reimbursed for all health and medical insurance expenses which he has incurred since his suspension and pursuant to the COBRA regulations. It is estimated that the amount due from the DISTRICT to DRISCOLL is Five Thousand Seven Hundred Thirty Eight Dollars and Fifty Six Cents ($5,738.56), as more particularly identified in a statement attached hereto as Exhibit "B". Prior to making such reimbursement, the DISTRICT shall receive reasonable proof that such expenses were actually incurred and paid by DRISCOLL. Once verified, said amount shall be payable in a lump sum in such manner and at such time as other lump sum payments specified in this Agreement are made.

(G) The pending appeals before the Commissioner of Education and the Office of Administrative Law shall be dismissed, with prejudice, subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Education.

(H) DISTRICT and DRISCOLL acknowledge that the controversy between them is an "Employee Personnel Matter" which ordinarily is privileged and not subject to public disclosure without the consent and approval of the employee. The parties further acknowledge that the confidentiality normally associated with such matters has, by necessity, been eroded by reason of DRISCOLL'S Indictment and the resulting litigation between the parties pending in the Office of Administrative Law, all of which is a matter of public record. Notwithstanding, however, the parties agree that this matter shall, to the extent permitted by law, remain confidential. Specifically, the DISTRICT agrees not to release any information to the public or press except to the extent required by law.

3. ENTIRE AGREEMENT: The within Agreement constitutes the entire and only Agreement between the parties. No amendment of this Agreement shall be effective unless in writing, signed by the parties and executed with the same formality as this Agreement.

4. CONTINGENCY: This Settlement Agreement is expressly contingent upon the approval of the Commissioner of Education of the State of New Jersey. The parties acknowledge that counsel for the parties and DRISCOLL appeared before the Office of Administrative Law, Administrative Law Judge Lillard Law, on February 4, 1999, at which time the aforesaid terms of settlement were made a part of the record, subject to and conditioned upon express approval and ratification thereof by the BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CAPE MAY COUNTY TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT and further subject to the express approval of the Commissioner of Education as herein above indicated.

5. CONTROLLING LAW: This Agreement shall be construed in accordance with the law of the State of New Jersey.

6. ENFORCEMENT: Upon approval of the within terms by the Commissioner of Education, the terms of the within settlement shall be specifically enforceable by a Court of competent jurisdiction. In the event that it becomes necessary to resort to a Court of competent jurisdiction for the enforcement of all or a portion of this Settlement Agreement, the prevailing party shall be entitled to recover from the other party all reasonable attorney's fees, expert fees and litigation costs.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have caused these presents to be signed the day and year first above indicated.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ROBERT BARNES DRISCOLL	:	OAL DOCKET NO. EDU 10241-97 AGENCY DOCKET NO. 402-10/97

MATTERS CONSOLIDATED BY ORDER DATED 12/18/97

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In these consolidated matters, Robert Barnes Driscoll will be referred to as "Driscoll" and the Cape May County Technical School District will be referred to as "District".

1. On March 28, 1997, a Criminal Complaint was filed against Driscoll in the Upper Township Municipal Court, Cape May County, for criminal trespass (Peeping Tom). The victim/complainant in that matter was Robert Jones.

2. On May 1, 1997, a second Criminal Complaint was filed against Driscoll in the same Court for a series of events alleged to have occurred between January 1, 1997 through March 27, 199..

3. On or about April 3, 1997, the District became aware of the first charges and the District then placed Driscoll on a paid leave of absence until the end of the 1996-1997 school year. While Driscoll was relieved of his classroom assignments, he was given a special assignment by the Superintendent and his salary and benefits were continued without interruption.

4. On or about June 3, 1997, Driscoll was indicted on charges arising out of his arrest on March 28, 1997.

5. On July 16, 1997, the Board of Education voted to suspend Driscoll, without pay, based upon his Indictment on June 3, 1997, under Indictment No. 97-06-00302-I; Docket No. 97000314.

6. On July 17, 1997, Driscoll waived Indictment on a second charge and requested to proceed by way of Prosecutor's Accusation for the charges allegedly occurring between January 1, 1997 and March 27, 1997 involving criminal trespass, a fourth degree crime, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:18-3c. The victims in the accusation were Robert and Susan Rimpato. The Prosecutor's Accusation No. 97-07-00441-A; Docket No. 97000441.

7. On or about September 8, 1997, Driscoll filed a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education seeking reinstatement of his salary on the grounds that even if convicted, the conviction would be for a fourth (4th) degree crime and would not operate as an automatic forfeiture of his teaching position. This matter was assigned OAL Docket No. EDU 8613-97, Agency Docket No. 319-9/97. This action is referred to as "Driscoll I".

8. On September 24, 1997, the District filed an Answer to Driscoll I.

9. Also on September 24, 1997, the Superintendent filed Certified Tenure Charges with the Secretary of the Board of Education, seeking Driscoll's removal from his tenured teaching position for conduct unbecoming a tenured teacher. Driscoll was notified of the filing of said charges and was afforded an opportunity to provide any written response for consideration by the Board of Education. Driscoll did not file any such response.

10. On October 15, 1997, the Complaint by the Superintendent and the Certified Tenure Charges were considered by the Board of Education, at which time the Board found probable cause for the charges and further found that the charges merited Driscoll's termination. The Board suspended Driscoll again, without pay, and certified the charges to the Commissioner of Education, where they are now pending under OAL Docket No. EDU 10241-97 and Agency Docket No. 402-10/97. This matter is referred to as "Driscoll II".

11. On or about November 6, 1997, Driscoll, by and through his attorney, Ned P. Rogovoy, Esquire, filed an Answer to the tenure charges (Driscoll II).

12. By written Order of December 18, 1997, Administrative Law Judge Lillard E. Law consolidated Driscoll I and Driscoll II with the consent of both parties.

13. The matter was originally scheduled for trial on September 3, 4 and 11, 1998, but was adjourned with the consent of both parties in order to afford the District the opportunity to submit the psychological reports submitted by Driscoll to an independent psychologist for review. The trial was then rescheduled for February 1, 2, 4 and 5, 1999.

14. On January 29, 1999, both parties notified the Administrative Law Judge that a settlement appeared imminent. The Court, at the request of Driscoll, excused the parties from attending on February 1, 2, and 4, 1999, but directed the parties to appear on February 5, 1999, at which time the parties placed on the record a Settlement Agreement intending the same to be ratified, confirmed and approved by the Board of Education at its meeting on February 17, 1999 and subject to the review and approval of the Commissioner of Education of New Jersey.

15. At a meeting of the Board of Education on February 17, 1999, the Board, in closed session, reviewed the Settlement Agreement and approved same. Thereupon the Board reconvened in open session and voted to authorize the appropriate officials of the District to sign the Settlement Agreement. The specific details were not made public pending review and approval by the Administrative Law Judge and, ultimately, by the Commissioner of Education.

STIPULATION OF FACTS

The parties hereby stipulate to the following facts:

1. Robert Barnes Driscoll was born on September 16, 1952 and is currently forty six (46) years of age. He is married and has two (2) children. During the pendency of this action (Driscoll I and Driscoll II), he has been divorced.

2. Driscoll began his employment with the District on September 1, 1980. He remained continuously employed from the date of hire until his suspension on July 16, 1997, as a result of his Indictment by the Cape May County Grand Jury.

3. The events set forth in the Procedural History are hereby incorporated herein by this reference.

4. Specifically, the Indictment which was filed on June 3, 1997 alleged that Driscoll committed the offense of criminal trespass as a "Peeping Tom". The allegation is that Driscoll looked in the window of his neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones. The unlawful event is alleged to have occurred on March 28, 1997. The Indictment alleged a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:18-3c, fourth degree crime. Driscoll made a written statement to the New Jersey State Police admitting his involvement in this occurrence.

5. Similarly, on July 17, 1997, Driscoll executed a Waiver of Indictment and agreed to stand trial on a Prosecutor's Accusation, which alleged a series of acts occurring between January 1, 1997 and March 27, 1997, in which Driscoll committed an act of criminal trespass by entering onto the property of Robert and Susan Rimpato, with the intent to peer into the windows and invade the privacy of Robert and Susan Rimpato, all in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:18-3c, a fourth degree crime.

6. Following the filing of the Indictment and the Accusation, Driscoll sought to be admitted into the Pre-Trial Intervention Program. Driscoll's entry into that program was denied. Driscoll thereafter filed a Motion with the Superior Court of New Jersey seeking to overturn the decision denying him entry into the program and seeking from the Court an Order admitting him to the P.T.I. Program. The Motion was considered by the Honorable Carmen Alvarez, J.S.C., and Driscoll's Motion was denied.

7. A Pre-Trial Conference was scheduled for May 7, 1998 and was thereafter adjourned to June 18, 1998, at which time Driscoll entered a plea of guilty.

8. On July 17, 1998, Driscoll was sentenced to probation with conditions. Among the conditions imposed were that Dris ll continue to undergo psychological treatment and counselling.

9. Driscoll is presently appealing through separate counsel the Court's denial of his entry into the Pre-Trial Intervention Program. That appeal is presently pending before the New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division.

10. On August 25, 1998, counsel for Driscoll, Mr. Rogovoy, supplied to the Board's attorney, Mr. Waldron, a Summary Report, dated November 20, 1997 from Philip Witt, PhD., a Diplomate in Forensic Psychology, together with a copy of Dr. Witt's Curriculum Vitae. The report was addressed to Mr. Rogovoy and referred to a psychological evaluation of Robert Driscoll perfor i by Dr. Witt on April 24, 1997. Dr. Witt offered the opinion that after extensive testing, risk assessment and interview, it was his opinion, expressed with a reasonable degree of professional certainty, that Driscoll presented no risk to his students and, therefore, would require no restrictions in this regard. Dr. Witt further observed that Driscoll had been a teacher without incident in the District for over seventeen (17) years and Dr. Witt observed nothing that would lead him (Witt) to believe that this would change.

11. At the request of Mr. Waldron, counsel for the Board, Mr. Rogovoy did, on September 17, 1998, submit the complete psychological report prepared by Dr. Philip Witt on April 24, 1997. That psychological report acknowledged that Driscoll was presently under criminal charges for trespassing.

12. Dr. Witt opined that Driscoll was well within the limits of risk that are normally acceptable for out-patient psychotherapy. Dr. Witt also made specific recommendations, which were set forth in his report.

13. Also, on September 17, 1998, Mr. Rogovoy submitted a psychological report on Driscoll, dated June 23, 1997, and prepared by Kevin R. Dougherty, PhD., New Jersey Licensed Psychologist. Dr. Dougherty confirmed the diagnosis as stated by Dr. Witt and confirmed that he was providing individual psychotherapy treatments to Driscoll. Dr. Dougherty further confirmed in his report that Driscoll has had group therapy and psychiatric consultation and has regularly attended other sessions and meetings recommended by Dr. Witt and/or Dr. Dougherty. Dr. Dougherty further indicated that Driscoll was making progress toward four (4) of the five (5) treatment recommendations made by Dr. Witt. Driscoll had received a referral to address the remaining recommendation of Dr. Witt.

14. Dr. Dougherty also offered the opinion that Driscoll was low risk to the students who might come in contact with him.

15. The District, with the express consent and approval of Driscoll and his attorney, Mr. Rogovoy, submitted the psychological report of Dr. Witt and the psychological report of Dr. Dougherty to an independent expert retained by the District, specifically, Timothy P. Foley, PhD., Director of Clinical and Forensic Services at the Joseph J. Peters Institute. Dr. Foley found that the tests administered by Dr. Witt were adequate and Dr. Foley did not recommend any further testing.

16. The District did request that Driscoll submit to an independent medical and/or psychological evaluation to be conducted by a psychiatrist or psychologist designated by the District. Driscoll refused that request, relying on the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-3, which provides him with the option of choosing, in this case the psychiatrist or psychologist, to conduct the examination. Driscoll, in reliance upon said Statute, chose not to submit to any further testing, but to rely on the evaluations prepared by Dr. Witt and Dr. Dougherty.

17. Driscoll contends that he is fit to resume his teaching duties and poses no threat to his students or any other students in the District. The Board rejects that contention, asserting that even if Driscoll's conduct is controllable, that, nonetheless, his Indictment and guilty plea to a charge of criminal trespass brought about as a result of his deviant psychological condition, conclusively amounts to conduct which is unbecoming of a tenured teacher and would merit his termination.

18. In light of the diametrically opposed positions of the parties in this action, Driscoll and the District have entered into a Settlement Agreement, a copy of which is being submitted to the Administrative Law Judge contemporaneously with the Statement of Procedural History and the Stipulation of Facts.

19. The complete psychological reports of both Dr. Witt and Dr. Dougherty concerning Driscoll will be made available to the Commissioner upon his request should he deem it necessary.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ROBERT BARNES DRISCOLL, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF CAPE MAY COUNTY VOCATIONAL-TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, CAPE MAY COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
		DECISION
ROBERT BARNES DRISCOLL, PETITIONER, v. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CAPE MAY COUNTY VOCATIONAL-TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, CAPE MAY COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:

The record, Settlement Agreement, and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, in this consolidated matter have been reviewed.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner cannot be satisfied that the proposed settlement meets the standards for review of settlements in tenure matters set forth in In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846. It is well established that, having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, the Board may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges need no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue them. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenneth Smith,

School District of Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner March 22, 1982, decision on remand June 16, 1983, aff'd with modification by the State Board of Education November 2, 1983, aff'd Superior Court January 30, 1986.

While the Commissioner does not preclude the possibility of settlement in this consolidated matter, he stresses that in order for him to meet his own obligation to the schools and children of New Jersey, he must be assured that any settlement is consistent with appropriate standards for setting aside tenure matters as expressed in Cardonick, supra. Neither the Initial Decision nor the Settlement Agreement sufficiently explains how the settlement in fact meets the Cardonick standards in light of the specific tenure charges filed with the Commissioner against respondent.

As emphasized by the Commissioner in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Corey Younger, State-operated School District of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, decided September 7, 1999 and In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Elmena Jean, State-operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, decided October 4, 1999, the mere fact that one of the terms of a proposed settlement in a tenure hearing matter calls for the teaching staff member's resignation does not in and of itself assure that the Cardonick standards have been met because concern for the public interest extends beyond the boundaries of the particular district certifying the tenure charges. This is particularly true in light of the fact that even after the Board in this matter approved the settlement terms in February 1999, it continues to reject respondent's contention that "he is fit to resume his teaching duties and poses no threat to his students or any other students in the District." See Procedural History and Stipulation of Facts, dated June 18, 1999, Number 17, at p. 10.

Dear Counsel:

On July 16, 1999, petitioner was requested to submit to the Office of Controversies and Disputes within ten days, a letter brief or memorandum of law explicating why the matter entitled Tracy Pettiford-Bugg v. State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, Agency Dkt. No. 169-6/99, should not be dismissed as moot in view of respondent's affirmative defense that the relief petitioner seeks has already been granted, i.e., restoration of the sick days for her absences from work on April 8, 1999 to April 16, 1999.

On August 5, 1999, by both regular and certified mail, petitioner was again requested to submit this information within ten days because, as of that date, we had not received any submissions by petitioner. Petitioner was also informed that if no submission was received within the specified time line, respondent's affirmative defense would be deemed admitted and the Petition of Appeal would be dismissed pursuant to the discretionary authority granted me by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.9. Subsequently, petitioner requested that the matter be held in abeyance pending petitioner's verification of restoration of her sick days. This request was granted until September 24, 1999.

Given that petitioner has not as of this date submitted the aforementioned required information, the State-operated School District of Jersey City's affirmative defense that the matter is moot is deemed to be admitted by petitioner. Consequently, the Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed in accordance with the authority granted me pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.9.*

Dear Counsel:

On August 9, 1999, petitioner was requested to submit to the Office of Controversies and Disputes within ten days, a letter brief or memorandum of law explicating why the matter entitled Deborah Zdyb v. State-operated School District of the City of Jersey City, Agency Dkt. No. 178-7/99, should not be dismissed as moot in view of respondent's affirmative defense that the relief petitioner seeks has already been granted, i.e., restoration of the sick days for her absences from work on March 5, 1999 to March 26, 1999. On August 20, 1999, petitioner requested that the matter be held in abeyance pending petitioner's verification of restoration of her sick days. This request was granted until September 24, 1999.

No responsive papers had been received from petitioner as of October 12, 1999, consequently, petitioner was notified, by both regular and certified mail, to submit the required information within ten days. She was also informed that if no submission was received within the specified time line, respondent's affirmative defense would be deemed admitted and the Petition of Appeal would be dismissed pursuant to the discretionary authority granted me by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.9.

THE SAMUEL DeWITT PROCTOR ACADEMY CHARTER SCHOOL, MERCER COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner contended that her termination from employment as Business Manager/Board Secretary by respondent charter school was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Petitioner sought compensation for the balance of salary due under her contract.

Based upon the evidence and an assessment of the witnesses, the ALJ found that the Board did not act arbitrarily or unreasonably when it decided that it was best to terminate this employee, who had left work without permission twice and, on occasion, was uncooperative and resistant to direction. The ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to establish that the Board acted in an arbitrary fashion.

Commissioner found that petitioner failed to establish that the Board's action terminating her from her position was in violation of her constitutional or statutory rights and, therefore, such action was not to be disturbed by the Commissioner. Petition was dismissed.

THE SAMUEL DeWITT PROCTOR ACADEMY CHARTER SCHOOL,
Respondent.

Record Closed: July 29, 1999 Decided: September 28, 1999

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

Tricia Mezzacappa was hired on or about September 21, 1998, by the respondent Samuel DeWitt Proctor Academy Charter School ("Proctor") to serve as its Business Manager/Board Secretary. Proctor is a small residential charter school located on the grounds of the Katzenbach School for the Deaf. Ms. Mezzacappa was terminated by the Board of Trustees ("Board") on November 11, 1998. She filed a Verified Petition with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") on February 16, 1999, seeking to overturn the Board's action. The respondent filed an answer on February 19, 1999. The Commissioner declared the matter a contested case and transferred it on March 5, 1999, to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held on April 26, 1999, and a prehearing order was issued on April 27, 1999. A hearing was conducted before this judge on June 29 and July 29, 1999. The record closed on July 29. Due to a substantial number of hearings and decisions, the ALJ requested an extension of the time for filing the initial decision and an extension was granted by the Director of the OAL and the Commissioner.

Ms. Mezzacappa, who holds a B.S. in Accounting from Fordham University and now holds a Master of Arts from Rider University, has previously worked as a school auditor and then as a school business administrator. She testified that she responded to a newspaper advertisement for the position of Business Administrator/Board Secretary which the Board was seeking to fill. She was interviewed by Dr. David Neil Thomas, who is now retired, but who served as the interim Head of School for Proctor from some time in the summer of 1998 until early 1999. Dr. Thomas asked her about her prior experience and discussed "in depth" how the charter school differed from a regular public school. She was later interviewed by Thomas and a member of the Board. She queried them as to whether there were differences in standards and in law between the requirements pertaining to the charter school and a regular school. She was told that Proctor was going to operate "identical" as to core academic requirements and as to business practices.

Ms. Mezzacappa described several situations with which she was confronted which caused concern for her and which lead to confrontations with Dr. Thomas, ultimately leading to an event in early November 1998, which resulted in the Board terminating her. She explained the "GAAP," which stands for "Generally Accepted Accounting Principles," which is the legally required double entry bookkeeping method for public schools. She understood that the charter school was also required to use this method. She also understood that petty cash was to be managed in the same fashion as in a public school, and that other requirements regarding bidding, purchasing, audit requirements and standards also applied.

When Mezzacappa began working at Proctor on September 21, she found that the previous woman who had agreed to serve as a business administrator had taken the records to her home and had done very little work with them. Mezzacappa set up an office with a donated computer and after finally receiving these records about one week after she started, she began to try to "catch up" on the necessary record keeping, reconciliations, etc., working 60-70 hours a week to do so. She shared her concerns with Thomas about the work in extensive contacts each day. The school, which had been chartered in 1997, had never had a county approved budget and had not been on the GAAP accounting system. Instead, the budget was set up on a Microsoft Excel sheet and had to be converted to the GAAP format. As she was told, her job was to handle whatever was needed, whether in regard to insurance, transportation, building and grounds, payroll, accounts payable, purchasing, etc. There was no written job description for her position. In essence, she "did what Dr. Thomas asked."

Ms. Mezzacappa explained that she questioned the procedure for paying bills. She found that the purchasing procedure "worked in reverse," by which she meant that Thomas would verbally authorize staff to purchase items and she then would receive requests for cash to reimburse for these purchases, without any vouchers indicating that the services were in fact rendered. In her experience and understanding, such requisitions were to be received and authorized by the Business Manager and the Superintendent or an authorized Board member. However, this system was not in place at Proctor. She questioned Dr. Thomas about this and he directed that she "cut the checks right away" for a number of items.

The school had a petty cash account which had started with about $50, which in her view was a reasonable amount for such an account. Normally, in administering such an account, receipts are given to her and she would reimburse for expenditures up to a set dollar amount. However, at Proctor no such policy was in place. She received a written directive to keep $2,000 in the petty cash account so that student activities could be paid for through the account. She believed that the proper procedure was to budget for these activities and that their costs should be handled as an expenditure. A petty cash account does not require that there be a voucher for each expense and approval for each as do other accounts in the budget. While she had problems with this directive, she did not verbalize her concerns to anyone at the time.

All of the school's employees were under contract and were salaried, except for the cook and the custodian. These persons should have submitted time sheets and she requested that they do so. Thomas okayed this request for the cook, but not for the custodian, who worked only at night and was not on the premises to submit the time sheets when Ms. Mezzacappa was there. Thomas himself was being paid on a daily rate as an independent contractor. He directed Mezzacappa to provide him with a check for $8,000 without any voucher, and she did so without challenge, because she read his agreement with the Board and determined that the request, based upon the agreed upon daily rate, coincided with his contract.

Ms. Mezzacappa related the events of November 4, 1998, which led to her being suspended with pay for insubordination and ultimately terminated from employment. She had attended a School Boards convention in Atlantic City with permission. On Tuesday, November 4, she returned to work. At that time all of her time was being directed to the task of reconciling the accounts and finding an error therein. The State Department of Education had notified the school that it was to lose $100,000 for the next school year. She was told to figure out the way in which this happened. The school was funded about 50% by private donations and the loss of so much State money would have been detrimental to the existence of the school. She arrived at school at about 8:30 A.M. and Dr. Thomas followed her in. Thomas had spoken to her before she left for Atlantic City and told her that he was going to prepare a different budget structure to be reported to the Board at each meeting, which would supersede the GAAP budget, which was only to be used for payroll and accounts payable purposes. As they arrived on November 4, he handed her a budget which was separate from the GAAP Budget he had prepared. He told her that the GAAP document was not to be used or seen again, that this other budget would be the formal budget. He told her that her job was to put the numbers from the GAAP documents into this other budget, which was on a Microsoft document not similar to the GAAP or anything which she had previously seen. She resisted moving the numbers from the GAAP to the other budget, and was explaining the need to make the two budgets materially the same. While she said this, Dr. Thomas, who was to her left at her desk as she sat at the desk with her coat and keys, "lunged across" at her and slammed his hands on the desk in front of her. They were "face to face, very close, less than an inch away." He said, "This is what I intend to do and you had better be supportive of it." She moved to another area and he said that she would be replaced if she would not comply. She was upset and went to the ladies room and when she returned to her office to get her purse, she found the room locked and she unlocked it.

Ms. Mezzacappa spoke to Jocelyn Bines, a residential advisor regarding Thomas' conduct. According to Mezzacappa, Bines had previously complained about his behavior with her and with others and could commiserate with Mezzacappa, who herself had observed Thomas act unprofessionally in the work environment. He had told Mezzacappa that she was not to pay the cook for two weeks following an outburst in the hall outside his office which resulted from a dispute over the behavior of the cook's child, who was a student at the school. Thomas had yelled at the cook, telling her that he was suspending her and would get a police officer to remove her if she did not take her daughter off the school premises. He had also badgered his secretary in Mezzacappa's presence.

According to the petitioner, she did not refuse to cooperate with Dr. Thomas or refuse to do as he wanted. However, after the incident in her office, she left the building and sat in her car and then went home and placed phone calls to members of the Board, who were mainly located in New York City. She first spoke to Juanita Joyner, who indicated not to worry, Mezzacappa was to stay home until further notice and Joyner would handle the situation. Other Board members were shocked to hear what Mezzacappa told them about Thomas.

On November 5, Mezzacappa was sent a letter written over the signature of Dr. Thomas, which indicated that he agreed with what he said was her assessment, supposedly expressed when she left the school the previous day, that, in what he quoted as her words, "This is not working out." Thomas requested that she submit her resignation, which he "would be pleased to accept" and if she did so, she would be paid through the end of the week. He added that "If you elect not to resign I will recommend your dismissal and suspend you effective yesterday." He asked her to advise how she wished to proceed. She did not submit a letter of resignation and on November 6, Thomas issued a letter which notified her of her suspension with pay, effective immediately and until the Board acted upon his recommendation to dismiss her. He identified the reason for his action as her "continued insubordinate behavior on several occasions," specifying October 21, regarding a matter regarding dental insurance issues, and the November 4 incident regarding the budget. He noted that following a discussion with her regarding the dental matter on October 21, she had been directed by him to check out a dental plan and she had told him that she "did not have to put up with this and proceeded to leave the premises. You did not report back to work any time that day and you called in sick on Thursday and Friday." He asserted that after her return to work she neither explained her insubordinate behavior or carried out his directive.

Thomas also detailed his version of the November 4 events, noting that after Mezzacappa left the school that day following his statement to her that if she left she would be docked that day's pay, she "made no effort to contact us until Thursday afternoon" when she called the school but "refused to talk to me" when he asked his secretary to let him speak to her and "you refused to give us a telephone number where we could contact you (the telephone number you have on file has been disconnected). You hung up and I have not heard from you again."

Mezzacappa wrote to Thomas on November 7. In the letter she expressed her position that he had acted toward her in a manner which was unacceptable in the workplace, conduct which she testified that she would have reported in any event even if she had not been terminated because of the "way he came at me." In testimony, she explained that the discussion regarding the dental plan had arisen when a residential advisor had started an in-house dental plan "in jest." There was some mention of Delta Dental ("Delta"), a dental plan with which Mezzacappa had some familiarity from her previous experience as a business administrator. She explained that Delta required a minimum number of enrollees and 100% participation. While there may have been some other jesting comment about the fact that she was correct in her understanding of Delta's requirements, she recalled no "direction" to her to do something regarding a dental plan or any refusal to do so.

After she learned that she had been terminated, Ms. Mezzacappa stopped in at Proctor to hand in her keys and to ask for her job back. She had a mortgage commitment pending and needed the employment. She spoke with Dr. Thomas, who told her that the Board would rescind the termination in exchange for a letter of resignation. She denied that she admitted that she had made mistakes or apologized.

Mezzacappa complained that she did not have an opportunity to address the Board before they decided to terminate her. That decision was discussed at an open meeting for which she opted, but she did not attend. As for her not returning to work on the days following November 4 and prior to receiving the letter of termination from the Board, she had been told by Board members "not to worry" and assumed that things would be taken care of. In addition, she had been told that the Board was looking for Dr. Thomas' immediate replacement.

The witness denied that there were any conversations with Thomas prior to November 4 regarding his need for the alternative budget as a means of presenting to the Board a more simple presentation of the budget than that offered by the GAAP. He had simply told her that he was going to prepare a separate budget. In her experience she had never before been asked to prepare a second set of records. She was confused about what she was being asked to do. She understood the GAAP to be the budget that was to be reported to the Board.

Ms. Mezzacappa recalled that she had been asked by Thomas to prepare a check for a David Brower, a technical coordinator for the Hopewell Valley Regional School District, when there was no voucher for the work he supposedly had performed. Thomas told her to cut the check and he would sign it, saying that it was an incentive to get Brower to come to Proctor to do some computer work.

Dr. Thomas, who is a graduate of West Point and holds a Masters and Ph.D. from Harvard, is now retired. He testified to his long service in education, including having served as a superintendent of schools in San Mateo and later in Santa Barbara, California, and as a deputy superintendent in Montgomery County, Maryland and in Loudon County, Virginia, before serving as superintendent in Hopewell Valley School District in New Jersey for five years before retiring. He was asked to help out the fledgling Proctor Academy in 1998. He determined that he needed a business manager for the school. The budget submitted for the school in August 1998 was $250,000 out of balance. He suggested methods to bring it into balance.

Thomas felt that the school's first Head Master had been "overwhelmed" and that it was important to have a second full-time person at the school. He had $40,000 to hire a business manager and after he advertised for applicants, he found that only Mezzacappa would work for that amount. He determined that she had an "excellent" knowledge of school business procedures and a very good background. He wanted her to assume full responsibility for the custodian, to call his house and make arrangements for his daily service and transportation. He wanted her to know the details of accounting rules, paperwork and communications with the state. She did not object to her job responsibilities when he hired her.

Within the first few weeks of her employment, two concerns arose. She had difficulty dealing with people. When the payroll checks were issued people would come in to the office to sign for the checks, and he wanted Mezzacappa, rather than either he or the secretary, to hand these out. However, there were problems with this arrangement. He had arranged for Katzenbach School maintenance employees to strip and wax the floors in the dormitories. They performed the work and he wanted them to be paid for it. He told them that they would receive their pay as soon as he had a business manager. When they came to her for the pay, she "made out like it was a "federal case" and he was embarrassed that they were put off by her. As for Doug Brower, he was employed at Hopewell and Thomas knew him from there. He had asked Brower to undertake some computer-related work at Proctor for three days and Brower had agreed to come when he could. The Proctor Board was aware of this. He simply wanted to get Brower paid for his time. Dr. Thomas was himself serving in his interim capacity at a daily rate of $400. He had not been paid by the end of September. He and others were paying for necessary items out of their pockets and needed to get paid.

Ms. Mezzacappa was correct in saying that the custodian, whom he referred to as Manuel, should have turned in time sheets. Since she insisted that she would not pay him without a time sheet, Thomas said that he was going to get paid and since Manuel worked at night, Thomas told her to "go get him to give you time sheets" and asked her if she could stay one night to meet him. He does not know whether she ever met with Manual, but Manuel's wife did come into the office and "got into it with" Mezzacappa (apparently about her disinclination to issuing his pay), so much so that the wife refused to leave the office. In addition to this problem, he explained that the petitioner also had run-ins with the bank and the telephone company.

About two weeks after Mezzacappa started at Proctor, Dr. Thomas sat her down and told her that he had been playing telephone tag with the superintendent of the last district in which she had been employed prior to her hiring at Proctor. He informed her that the superintendent's secretary had referred his routine reference request to the superintendent himself, who had told Thomas that he had had to let her go in January 1998, because she was immature and could not get along with people. She seemed shocked to hear this, but to Thomas it was reflective of the problems emerging at Proctor. He counseled her that if there were situations involving request for payments which troubled her she should not get angry, but that he would play the "bad cop."

The other concern which arose was in regard to what Thomas described as Mezzacappa's "fairly circumscribed idea of what to do and how." He liked to give employees latitude, but in her case he would tell her what was needed and she would do as she saw fit. She was very unwilling to take on what was not specifically the work of a business manager. He told her of his idea regarding a different budget structure, as it was not his practice to use the State mandated accounting system. The GAAP is a good system, however, each state has its own system for State Department of Education purposes, but that system is not usually good for anyone else to understand the budget. His method does require that two sets of books be kept, one for GAAP and one for his system. His system involved a very simplified three page budget, with sections for Residential, Instructional and Administration. He had told the Board that he would provide them with a balanced, understandable budget by December. The Board did not know if it could get through the school year and needed a budget which it could understand. He told her that he was going to use it and she told him that she was busy with other things. He kept talking to her about it, but she kept saying that she would put it together "later on." She voiced no objections to him about his plan and before she went to Atlantic City he spoke to her about it and, without pressing her, told her that he wanted to get started on the budget. While she was away he put the figures and format together on a spread sheet. He estimated some of the numbers and put in others that he knew, thinking that he was being helpful.

When Ms. Mezzacappa returned from Atlantic City, Dr. Thomas told her for the first time what he specifically wanted her to do, giving her his material and asking that she verify it from the records, but all she did was add up the numbers and correct his math. He then told her , "No, I want you to see if the expenditures are in line with GAAP documents, to cross walk the expenditures between both budgets, to make sure that they matched." She told him that she was busy, and asked if it was okay if she got to this later. On the morning of her second day back from Atlantic City he asked her when she was going to do this and she said "when she got around to it." He told her that she was going to do this now. He had promised Mariano Guzman, the Board treasurer and most important member of the Board, that he would work with Guzman on the budget and expected to meet with Guzman during the 2nd or 3rd week of November, and "time was closing down on" Thomas. He felt that the project would take her a couple of days. Thomas testified, "Here was this young lady resistant to direction," and that he leaned over her desk and said that he was "telling you to stop what you are doing and do this now." She responded that things were "just not working out." She had gotten up and he told her that if she left, she was not going to have a job. In view of her previous departure in October (mentioned in his letter of November 5, see above and below) he told her not to do what she had done before. She did leave, did not show up for work the next two days and refused to speak to him on the telephone. He recommended her termination. She was given an opportunity to appear at the Board's meeting but did not attend. His recommendation to the Board was based upon her negative attitude toward working with people, her refusal to accept responsibility, her refusal to follow specific direction, which resulted in her putting off things and "letting them slide," and her having left the job twice for several days after ordered to do something.

After her termination, he spoke with the petitioner. She was "very apologetic," and said that she had "really screwed up. I don't know why I acted the way I did. Please take me back." She indicated that she had been under stress. He listened, but while he said that he would consider her request, he never recommended her reinstatement.

The witness denied that he ever told the petitioner to place $2,000 in the petty cash account for student activities, although there was some discussion of adding into the budget a $2,000 account against which to draw for incidental expenses and he did tell the petitioner to set up a budget for this. He believes that he had given her "more than responsible time" to get her tasks done. He was required to spend time getting her to do what he wanted her to do and this interfered with his ability to properly run the school.

There had been a problem with the telephone company which had been threatening to terminate service. He wanted Mezzacappa to get up to date with the phone bill. After she left they again threatened termination of service, but he had no actual details about her contacts or problems with the phone company or for that matter with the bank.

Dr. Thomas acknowledged his familiarity with the use of purchase orders in his days at Hopewell. He knew that the signature on an order warranted that there was money in the appropriated account. He agreed that in Hopewell he probably would not have paid a bill without a voucher. In the case of Proctor, he did tell Ms. Mezzacappa on "a couple of occasions" to pay bills without vouchers, such as in Brower's case, where he knew that Brower had done the work and wanted his name on the warrant list so that the Board would review it and approve it. This Board acted differently than any he had previously dealt with. They would obtain a consensus of the Board to pay for things and would then approve them retroactively when they met, which was not regularly, perhaps every two months. He would send a voucher list to Treasurer Guzman. Thomas was "just trying to get it to run properly." He acknowledged that payment without a voucher was an improper procedure, that Mezzacappa was a licensed school business administrator and that it would be a "problem" to violate Title 18A, which applied to the school. He acknowledged that his attempt to make payments without vouchers and strict adherence to the normal procedure was a mistake on his part, and also noted that she "did not make an issue of this at the time." He did not want her to violate state regulations.

While there was no written job description, the petitioner knew from the interview what was expected. When there were problems he did not issue a letter to her telling her that she had to "clean up her act." In fact, when the incident regarding the dental plan occurred, she just walked off the job. That situation occurred when Joanne Bobb had called a dental company regarding a plan and had given Thomas some information about it. He gave this to Mezzacappa, who told him in response, "I don't have time to do that and they don't need it." He told her that it was important. She said that she would have to work on it as she did on the medical program and she did not want to do that. He wanted her to call and later asked her again. She would not. He then ordered her to call and she "jumped up and said, 'I don't have to take this,'" and left. She did not call in the next day and the phone number she had provided was incorrect. She remained out of work from Wednesday afternoon until Monday and reported that she had been sick on Thursday and Friday. He did not challenge her about whether she was actually sick, although he does not think that she actually was. After she left he called the company himself and learned that Proctor was too small for it to qualify. He denied that Mezzacappa ever told him that. After the November incident, she had now pulled the same disappearing act twice, and considering these "two outlandish incidents," he felt that it was time to terminate her. He denied that he had any physical confrontation with her on the 4th of November or that he was within an inch of her face. He simply told her to "do it now" and did not jump out of his chair.

Mariano Guzman is a trustee and serves as the treasurer for Proctor Academy. Mr. Guzman is the president of Children's Academies for Achievement, an organization which serves as a funding source for Proctor. Prior to Ms. Mezzacappa's termination, he met with Mezzacappa at the same time that he met with Dr. Thomas when he visited the school with a prospective donor. He spoke with Mezzacappa for a few minutes and noted that she seemed to be "a little surprised" by the fact that the prospective donor was at the school. Guzman found her surprise at this surprising to him. He was concerned that she was perhaps not "seasoned enough" for the role which Thomas had selected her for. He raised this concern at a regular meeting of the Board, but relied upon Thomas's recommendation and voted to approve her hiring.

Several days before the Board determined to terminate the petitioner, Guzman received a telephone call from her at his New York office. He believed that this occurred on the day on which she left the school, which from the record was November 4. She was "quite upset" and he tried to calm her. She told him that she had left the school as a result of a situation which she had with Dr. Thomas, during which he had raised his voice. She was "very uncomfortable" and "just left." She described herself as "frightened" and said that having left, she was "frightened about having left." She said nothing about any physical intimidation. Guzman told her to stay home for the day and that he would contact Thomas. He did not tell her anything about staying out of work for the remaining days of that week, but on cross-examination he did testify that he told her that the school would be in touch with her. He also supplied Dr. Thomas with her telephone number, as Thomas told him that he did not have it.

After this call there were may additional calls to him at his office, which he did not take once he had spoken to Thomas. She then called him at home on the weekend. This time she was angry and suggested "through innuendo" that the Board was not fulfilling its fiduciary role. She talked about the "dual budget." Guzman testified that this issue had been discussed before, as the concern was how to present the budget to the Board in a summary manner understandable in lay terms. Guzman explained that the GAAP budget "doesn't work." He claimed that Ms. Mezzacappa was present at the meeting when this discussion occurred. All agreed that the "summary budget" should be prepared and he had urged Thomas to do so. When she made her comments during the weekend phone call, Guzman explained to her that he had been involved with education finance for 30 years and the last thing he would ever do was anything which was not legal. She also expressed her concern that Thomas might be trying to do things "not by the book." She had never made such accusations before to him or to other members of the Board and he was alarmed by this comment, which seemed to him to be "a little more vituperative" and an expression of "anger." Following the call he contacted several Board members and Mr. Sumners, the Board's attorney.

Mr. Guzman related that after Ms. Mezzacappa received a Rice letter from the Board, she contacted him and was "really concerned" that the situation had reached that point. He told her that the Board needed to hear the matter through and she said that she would be at the meeting. He recalls that at the meeting someone mentioned that she might not appear. He heard nothing about any request to adjourn the hearing. After she was terminated, he received a copy of Mezzacappa's letter of November 13, 1998, and he and other members of the Board and Dr. Thomas spoke and the Board felt that it should uphold its previous decision to terminate her.

Ms. Mezzacappa testified on rebuttal. She related that on the morning of the scheduled Board meeting she spoke to Guzman and told him that she could not obtain legal counsel in time for the meeting. She also requested that the meeting be public. However, she was unable to attend the meeting. She did not ask for an adjournment. She believed that her present attorney, Mr. Griggs, did send a letter to the Board, but that it was sent after the hearing had been conducted. He also did not request any adjournment. She believed that it was a "shame for everyone that she was let go" and was surprised that she was terminated. Her letter sought to obtain another opportunity at the job.

DISCUSSION

The parties are in agreement that the appropriate standard to be applied in determining whether the Proctor Board acted within its legal rights in terminating Ms. Mezzacappa from her position is whether the Board acted arbitrarily and unreasonably. The decision therefore is not one which examines whether the Board's action was the "right" action to take, or whether some other measure short of termination might have been more appropriate to the circumstances, but instead whether the Board's action was founded upon a factual basis which could lead persons acting rationally and fairly to conclude that the conduct of Ms. Mezzacappa was such that a termination was necessary in order to achieve a legitimate purpose. Where the standard of review is arbitrariness, the proof in favor of overturning the decision must be clear.

According to Dr. Thomas, there were several motivations for his recommendation to the Board to terminate Ms. Mezzacappa. The most prominent appeared to be the two incidents in which she left work and then stayed out of work for days after leaving. In the first incident, the "dental plan" matter, she does not assert that her leaving work was the result of any physical intimidation. She left when she and Thomas had some dispute over checking out the possibility of a dental plan, and she then called in sick for two days thereafter. There is of course no evidence in the record from which to determine whether she was actually sick on those days or whether she simply decided to stay out due to the dispute with Thomas. In the second incident, she asserts a physical intimidation by her superior, and then claims that she remained out of work based upon instructions from Board members who told her to stay at home and they would work the problem out.

Based upon the evidence and an assessment of the witnesses, I am convinced that this second incident, which revolved around the "simple budget" issue, did erupt into a confrontation in Mezzacappa's office during which Dr. Thomas, exasperated with what he perceived as a disrespectful and uncooperative employee, assertively and strongly directed her to perform the job he wanted done without delay. I have no doubt he spoke loudly and did emphasize his demand by leaning over her desk, and while her description of his being an inch from her face may be an exaggeration, I FIND that he was quite close to her face as he spoke. His very way of describing the incident, "Here was this young lady resistant to direction" carries with it a picture of exasperation and frustration on the part of this extremely experienced administrator which supports these conclusions. Ms. Mezzacappa may well have felt uncomfortable with this, but she also was clearly resistant to his direction, did not feel that his plan to present a simplified format was proper, and his characterization of her as "resistant" is, in my view, not an exaggeration. His response to her lack of cooperation and her negative attitude may have been intense, but it is not unfair to say that her attitude helped to provoke it. Her decision to leave work that day was, under all the circumstances, not very surprising, although I FIND that she was not actually in any physical danger. However, her decision to leave the first time, after the "dental plan" discussion, was not so understandable, as there was no element there of physical intimidation, perceived or real, and she simply seems to have chosen to leave a situation not to her liking by going home. I have to question her alleged illness of the next two days, but admittedly that skepticism is based not on any specific evidence, but upon an overall assessment of the manner in which she and Thomas interacted and her apparent inclination to leave rather than to hold her ground by remaining at work despite uncomfortable circumstances.

I FIND that there was most likely some misunderstanding and confusion on Mezzacappa's part regarding the instructions received from Guzman and others about whether she was to return to work on November 5 or stay out until contacted by the school, as even Guzman acknowledged on cross-examination that he told her.

Since Dr. Thomas did not know any of the details of either the bank or the telephone company matters these could not have played any part in the decision to terminate her, indeed there is no evidence that the Board knew anything about the details of these concerns as well.

When it considered her possible termination, the Board was aware that its employee had left work without permission on two occasions and had not returned the next work day either time. It had been informed by its interim head of school that she was not cooperative with him, was resistant to direction, had not taken responsibilities upon herself which Thomas had asked her to undertake. She was a new employee, on the job for less than two months, holding an important position in a small and apparently somewhat financially unstable enterprise. Under these circumstances, I cannot say that the Board acted arbitrarily or unreasonably when it decided that it was best to terminate this employee. While perhaps some form of action short of termination might have been sufficient, Ms. Mezzacappa's conduct did not bode well for her future as a helpful member of the operation. There is no basis in this record for second guessing the Board on this decision. There is no clear evidence that the Board acted arbitrarily and therefore, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has failed to establish that the Board acted in an arbitrary fashion. Her petition seeking to overturn that decision must be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent challenged Board's residency determination that the S. family was not domiciled in the District during the 1998-99 school year and that the children were not entitled to a free public education there.

ALJ found that the domicile of the S. children between September 14, 1998 and October 31, 1998 was that of the parents, M.S. and H.S., and that all objective indicia were that the family was domiciled at Staten Island from March to October 1998 because they went there so that the father, M.S., could keep his job. The family, however, refused to remain there and moved back to Bayonne. Thus, the ALJ concluded that the S. family was not domiciled in Bayonne for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 between September 14 and October 31, 1998, and the Board was entitled to collect tuition from petitioner for that period of time.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ and directed petitioner to reimburse the Board the amount of $4, 64.14, representing tuition costs for her three children from September 14, 1998 through October 31, 1998, that period when they were ineligible to attend school free of charge in the District.

H.S. AND M.S., ON BEHALF OF THEIR MINOR CHILDREN,

Petitioners,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF BAYONNE, HUDSON COUNTY,

Respondent.

H.S. and M.S., petitioners, pro se

Robert J. Merryman, Jr., Esq., for respondent (Apruzzese, McDermott, Mastro & Murphy, attorneys)

Record Closed: September 21, 1999 Decided: October 6, 1999

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

On October 28, 1998, petitioner H.S. filed a Verified Petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking to enroll her three children, Albert S., Angela S. and Anthony S., tuition-free in the Bayonne public schools, pursuant to N.J.S.A.

18A:38-1(a), for the period between September 14, 1998, and the end of the 1998-99 school year. The Bayonne Board of Education (Board) alleged that the S. family was not domiciled in Bayonne during the 1998-99 school year and that the children were not entitled to a free public education there. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), the Board attempted to remove the children from the Bayonne school system in October 1998. The children were allowed to remain in school pending the outcome of this appeal.

Respondent filed its answer on January 12, 1999, and on February 8, 1999, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The case was assigned to the undersigned and scheduled for hearing on September 21, 1999. The hearing was held and the record closed on that date.

THE APPLICABLE LAW

This case arises under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), which states in relevant part:

> If the superintendent or administrative principal of a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district . . . , the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. The parent or guardian shall be entitled to a hearing before the board and if in the judgment of the board the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the district . . . , the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection.

Pursuant to the same statute, the Board is authorized to assess and collect tuition from the parent or guardian for the period of ineligible attendance. The amount of the tuition is computed, on a per diem basis, as 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). It is undisputed that Bayonne's total annual cost per pupil is $8,203.16, or $45.57 per day. It is further undisputed that Bayonne does not allow a grace period for tuition while families are in the process of moving into the school district.

REVIEW OF EVIDENCE

M.S., the father of the three children, was employed as an assistant chemist with the New York City Police Department. He and his wife, H.S., and their children lived in Bayonne continuously until approximately March 1998.

One of the conditions of M.S.'s employment by New York City was that he be a resident of the city. On December 7, 1997, he received a letter from his employer notifying him that he would be dismissed from his job for violating this condition. He was, however, not dismissed, but given ninety days to relocate his family to New York.

They rented a townhouse in Staten Island for $900 a month and moved into it in March 1998. According to the testimony of M.S., they intended to remain there and adopt the Staten Island home as their domicile. The two younger children, Angela S. and Anthony S., were taken out of the Bayonne school system and enrolled in Staten Island schools, but the eldest, Albert S., remained in the Bayonne high school.

As part of M.S.'s job requirement, both he and his wife had to register their automobiles in New York and have New York license plates on them. He was forced to comply because he was issued a special parking permit by the New York City Police Department and the permit had his license plate number on it. W-2 forms from M.S.'s employer show Staten Island as his address for the 1998 tax year.

H.S. was employed by an automobile dealer in Pine Brook, New Jersey, at all relevant times and, depending upon the date, gave her address as either West 29th Street in Bayonne or Avenue A in Bayonne. Albert S. was, at all relevant times, employed part time by a Burger King in Bayonne. He also gave his employer one or the other Bayonne address as his residence.

During and after the summer school recess, H.S. and the children refused to remain in Staten Island. On September 5, 1998, H.S. signed a lease for a one-bedroom apartment on West 29th Street in Bayonne. The lease shows that the premises were to be occupied by herself and the three children. The rent was $550 a month. She instituted utility service there on September 5, 1998, and telephone service on September 30, 1998. The utility bills from September 1998 through June 1999 are low, but the cost of heat for the apartment was included in the rent.

On September 14, 1998, the family applied to have the three children re-enrolled in the Bayonne public school system. After they began attendance, the district started to receive reports from neighbors that the S. children were being dropped off in Bayonne in the mornings and taken away in the evenings.

The district was already suspicious of the family because, it will be recalled, Albert S. was never withdrawn from the Bayonne high school when his family moved away in March 1998, even though his siblings were transferred to Staten Island schools. According to William Bodayle, an attendance officer, the district told him to investigate reports that Albert S. was being taken to Bayonne for the purpose of attending the high school and brought back to Staten Island in the evening. On March 19, 1998, Bodayle observed the S. residence in Staten Island at 6:20 a.m., but did not see Albert S. there. On March 20, 1998, Albert S. transferred out of the Bayonne school system after information was provided to the superintendent of schools.

As a result of the reports and the prior history, on October 20 and 21, 1998, the Board sent Bodayle to observe the S. family's residence in Staten Island. On October 20, Bodayle and another attendance officer, Raymond Lynch, sat in a vehicle outside of the petitioners' residence from 6:15 a.m. According to Bodayle, M.S., H.S. and the three children left home at 6:45 a.m. They entered a vehicle registered to H.S. with New York license plate V712DZ. The family stopped to pick up two girls before driving across the Bayonne Bridge to Bayonne. Albert and Anthony S. were dropped off at the West 29th Street apartment, which is near the high school. The two passengers were left at a parochial school in Bayonne and, finally, M.S. left H.S. and Angela S., with the car, in the vicinity of the Robinson School in Bayonne, where Angela S. is a student. On October 21, the attendance officers again watched as the S. family left their Staten Island home, picked up the two girls and drove to Bayonne. The officers saw Albert and Anthony S. dropped off at West 29th Street. They then saw the two boys enter the high school without ever going to the West 29th Street apartment where they supposedly lived.

M.S. does not deny that the family lived in Staten Island for a period of time, but he insists that the period ended before October 1998. He testified that he tried to live in Staten Island by himself for a while after his family moved back to New Jersey, but he was not in good health and so he was forced to move to Bayonne with them. They continued to rent the Staten Island residence for a period of time because of M.S.'s employer and M.S. went back regularly to maintain the premises and pick up mail. There is no evidence, however, that the family continued to live in Staten Island after November 1, 1998. Bodayle testified that he observed the Staten Island residence on November 2, 3, 4 and 5, 1998, but never saw the children there again.

In March 1999, M.S. took an early retirement from his employment and the family gave up the Staten Island townhouse. The family moved to a larger apartment in Bayonne sometime after May 1999. The district does not dispute that the S. family is domiciled in Bayonne for purposes of the 1999-2000 school year.

M.S. produced several witnesses to testify to the family's Bayonne domicile during the 1998-99 school year. The first of these witnesses, Edward Boktor, knew the family since 1984 and knew that they moved to Staten Island in 1998. He also stated that he visited them in Bayonne on many occasions in 1998, but he could not give any dates nor could he identify the season of the year. Carolina Castellanos, the superintendent of the West 29th Street building in which the S. family had its apartment, believed that the whole family, parents and children, lived there. She stated that they were all present on May 23, 1999, when the building was evacuated because of a fire.

Father George Greiss, priest of the Coptic church in Bayonne attended by the S. family, testified that the family regularly attended services there and M.S. frequently volunteered to do work for the church. The sons walked across the Bayonne Bridge several times alone to attend church services and to be with their friends. This upset M.S. because he felt that it was unsafe. Father Greiss recalled visiting the family in Staten Island in 1998 but he could not remember when.

Loretta Kennedy, a family friend for over twenty years, recalled that the S. family moved to Staten Island sometime in 1998, but she did not remember exactly when. She recalled that the sons walked across the Bayonne Bridge several times by themselves during the summer of 1998 to visit her and their friends without their parents' knowledge. This upset M.S. very much when he found out. Kennedy testified that the S. family moved back to Bayonne in 1998, but she did not know the date.

Based upon the testimony, the documentary evidence and the demeanor of the witnesses, I make the following findings of fact:

1. The S. family moved to Staten Island in about March 1998 so that M.S. would not lose his job with the New York City Police Department. They intended to make the Staten Island home their domicile at the time of the move.

2. Although H.S. rented an apartment in Bayonne in September 1998, the family did not actually move back to Bayonne until about November 1, 1998, as evidenced by the observations of the attendance officers on October 20 and 21, 1998.

3. Given the underlying circumstance that M.S. was attempting to satisfy the requirements of his employer by living in New York, it is credible that he tried to relocate his family to New York in March 1998 and then tried to maintain a New York presence after his family moved back to Bayonne at the end of October 1998. For this reason, the facts that (a) M.S. and H.S. continued to register their vehicles in New York, and (b) M.S. frequently returned to Staten Island to obtain mail and check on the townhouse, are not dispositive of the issue of their domicile in Bayonne. These facts might have been a matter of concern for M.S.'s employer, but not the Board.

4. It is also not dispositive of domicile that the Bayonne apartment was too small for the family. From this fact, the district infers that the whole family did not live there. However, based upon the W-2 forms for M.S. and H.S. for 1998, the parents' combined net annual income was about $36,800. They were paying $1,450 ($900 + $550) a month for rent alone between March 1998 and the time that they gave up the Staten Island residence. This is almost half (47 percent) of their combined net salaries for this period. Albert S.'s net earned income was only $721.32 in 1998. The reason why they rented such a small apartment in Bayonne could easily be that they could not afford a larger one.

5. M.S. and H.S. sent their children to school in Bayonne between September 14 and October 31, 1998, while the family was still domiciled in Staten Island.

6. The children were in school on thirteen days in September and twenty-one days in October 1998, or a total of thirty-four days, while they were still ineligible.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) provides that public schools shall be free to persons over five and under twenty years of age who are "domiciled in the school district."

> In a strict legal sense, the domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving.

Thus, domicile is regarded as an individual's true and permanent home. In re Jaffe, 74 N.J. 86, 90-91 (1977).

There are three possible ways by which an individual may acquire a domicile: (1) by birth or place of origin; (2) through the choice of a person legally capable of choosing his or her domicile; or (3) by operation of law in the case of a person who lacks capacity to acquire a new domicile by choice. In re Estate of Gillmore, 101 N.J. Super. 77, 87 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 52 N.J. 175 (1968). Persons legally incapable of choosing domicile acquire domicile by operation of law. Ibid.

Since the instant case involves three children who lacked the capacity to choose their own domicile, domicile must obtain by operation of law. Under the common law, the domicile of a child was said to follow that of the father "until the [child] is emancipated and chooses a place of residence of its own." Mansfield Township v. State Bd. of Educ., 101 N.J.L. 474, 478 (Sup. Ct. 1925). I therefore CONCLUDE that the domicile of the S. children between September 14, 1998, and October 31, 1998, was that of M.S. and H.S.

The question of domicile is one of fact and must be determined on a case-by-case basis. Lea v. Lea, 18 N.J. 1, 7 (1955). Intent is the touchstone of domicile, and the manifestation of a person's intent converts residence from a mere place in which a person lives to a domicile. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 251 (1955). A person may have multiple residences, but may have only one domicile at a time; as such, the residence may coincide with domicile, but does not alone determine domicile. Ibid. Thus, "the concept of 'domicile' may have different content and shades of meaning depending upon the context in which is used." Gillmore, supra, 101 N.J. Super. at 86-87.

Nonetheless, "(e)very person has a domicile at all times, and no person has more than one domicile at any one time." Id. at 87 (citation omitted). Where a person has two homes in which he lives and between which he divides his time, it is still his intention which creates one or the other as his domicile. A very short period of residence in a given place may be sufficient to acquire domicile. Domicile is established by the "concurrence, even for a moment, of physical presence at a dwelling place with the intention of making it a permanent abode." Lyon v. Glaser, 60 N.J. 259, 264 (1972).

Where a person has more than one residence, the following factors are useful in determining his domicile:

> . . . the physical characteristics of each [place], the time spent and the things done in each place, the other persons found there, the person's mental attitude towards each > place, and whether there is or is not an intention, when absent, to return.

> [Mercadante v. City of Paterson, 111 N.J. Super. 35, 39-40 (Ch. Div. 1970), aff'd, 58 N.J. 112 (1971).]
> [A] choice of domicile by a person, irrespective of his motive, will be honored by the court, provided there are sufficient objective indicia, by way of proofs, supporting the actual existence of that domicile.
> [Unanue, supra, 255 N.J. Super. at 376 (emphasis added).]

Here, all objective indicia are that the family was domiciled at Staten Island from March 1998 to the end of October 1998 because they went there with the intention to remain so that M.S. could keep his job. As it happened, his family refused to remain in Staten Island, so that, after the end of October 1998, M.S. was forced to return to Bayonne.

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that M.S. and H.S., and therefore their children, were not domiciled in Bayonne for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 between September 14 and October 31, 1998. I therefore CONCLUDE that the Board is entitled to collect tuition from respondents in accord with the provisions of the statute.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), as stated above, allows the assessment of tuition for each of the three S. children for each day on which they attended school in the district while ineligible. The daily tuition rate previously calculated is $45.57 for each of the three children, and this rate is applied for the thirty-four school days during the period in question. I FIND that the total tuition owed is $4,648.14 ($45.57 x 3 x 34) and I CONCLUDE that M.S. and H.S. are liable to the Board for this amount.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that petitioners pay to respondent $4,648.14 as tuition for their children's attendance in the Bayonne public schools from September 14, 1998, through October 31, 1998.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Although petitioner's exceptions were filed outside the time period permitted by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, the Commissioner nonetheless considered these arguments, having noted that a change of address for H.S. and M.S. delayed their receipt of the initial decision.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's findings and conclusions, and affirms that petitioner and M.S. were not domiciled in the Board's District until November 1, 1998. As such, petitioner is obligated to reimburse the Board the amount of $4,648.14, representing tuition costs for her three children from September 14, 1998 through October 31, 1998, that period when they were ineligible to attend school free of charge in the District.*

The record and notice of withdrawal transmitted to the Commissioner by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.2 have been reviewed. Upon such review, it is noted that the charges of unbecoming conduct certified against respondent in this matter are of an extremely serious nature, involving charges of physical assault against a student. It is further noted from review of the record that on May 18, 1999, an Order of Inactivity was issued by the OAL relative to the proceedings in this tenure hearing matter because there was an on-going criminal case arising from the same allegations as contained in the tenure charges. On October 13, 1999, the Board notified the Administrative Law Judge that respondent had resigned from the District, therefore, it was withdrawing the matter. Apparently, respondent's resignation was unilateral because there is nothing in the record to indicate that it was part of a settlement agreement entered into by the parties or a plea bargain in the criminal proceedings. [1]

Consequently, the Commissioner approves the withdrawal. However in so doing, the Commissioner reminds the City of Hoboken Board of Education and its chief school administrator of the obligation under N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.5 to report respondent's alleged misconduct to the State Board of Examiners and, should an Order to Show Cause be issued by the State Board of Examiners, their responsibility to cooperate in ascertaining and presenting the facts underlying such allegations.

[1] Had the resignation been part of a settlement agreement, the parties would have been required, pursuant to In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846, to submit the agreement to the Commissioner for his review and approval.

Accordingly, the matter is no longer deemed to be a contested matter before the Commissioner and is, therefore, dismissed. However, a copy of this decision and the record of the matter shall be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for its action as deemed appropriate.[2]

v.

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK

VOLUNTARY SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT, WAIVER AND RELEASE

The State-Operated School District of the City of Newark ("Newark" or "District") and Mark Leibowitz ("Leibowitz"), agree to the following terms in full resolution of this matter:

WHEREAS, Leibowitz disputes the bases for the District's withholding of his 1997-1998 and 1998-1999 increments, and

WHEREAS, it appears that Leibowitz has made efforts to improve his performance during the current school year; and

WHEREAS, the parties agree that it is in the public interest to enter into this agreement in resolution of said charges in order to avoid the uncertainty and expense of litigation, and

WHEREAS, the parties further agree that the terms of this agreement will not present any risk of harm to students and/or the safe operation of the school district,

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties agree as follows:

1. The District shall, upon approval of this agreement by the State District Superintendent and the Commissioner of Education, restore Petitioner's 1998-1999 salary increment. The 1997-1998 increment withholding shall remain in effect.

2. The 1997-1998 increment withholding shall remain in effect until the end of the 1998-1999 school year, at which time Newark will review Leibowitz' observations and evaluations. If Leibowitz' annual summative evaluation reflects a satisfactory rating, he shall be placed back on the appropriate level of the salary guide, effective September 1, 1999, as if neither increment withholding had occurred.

3. Leibowitz shall, upon execution of this agreement, withdraw with prejudice the appeals filed in relation to the 1997-1998 and 1998-1999 increment withholdings, specifically OAL Docket Nos. EDUOR 11498-97N and EDUOR 01151-99N.

4. Leibowitz acknowledges that the payments reflected in this agreement constitute the full financial obligation of the District and that he shall receive no additional payments. In exchange for the above consideration, Leibowitz, on behalf of himself, his heirs, successors and assigns, hereby fully releases and forever discharges the District, its representatives, agents, officers and employees, for any and all actions, claims and liabilities of whatsoever kind in character, that he has had or may now have against any of them, relative to the litigation herein identified.

5. This agreement is subject to the approval of the State District Superintendent and the Commissioner of Education.

6. The parties enter this agreement voluntarily and without coercion, after consultation with their respective counsel.

	O.A.L. DOCKET NO. EDU 5523-99
OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH :
BERGEN, HUDSON COUNTY :	STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

This Stipulation of Settlement is made by and between Kevin Taylor (hereinafter "Mr. Taylor") who resides at 250 First Street, Apartment 5A, Jersey City, New Jersey, and the Board of Education of the Township of North Bergen (hereinafter "the Board"). In consideration of the mutual promises and undertakings contained in this Agreement, and for good and valuable consideration, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, the undersigned state:

WHEREAS, Mr. Taylor has been employed as a custodian by the Board since 1980; and

WHEREAS, the Board certified tenure charges against Mr. Taylor to the Commissioner of Education by resolution of February 24, 1999; and

WHEREAS, the tenure charges against Mr. Taylor allege unbecoming conduct by virtue of excessive absenteeism, willful disregard of directives of his superior and failure to complete scheduled shifts; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Taylor has expressed a willingness to resign from all employment with the Board effective at the close of business on December 31, 1999, upon certain terms and conditions to be stipulated in this Agreement;

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises of the parties in exchange for the consideration more particularly noted below, it is hereby agreed:

1. As evidenced by the letter attached hereto as Exhibit A, Mr. Taylor has submitted an irrevocable letter of resignation from all employment with the Board effective at the close of business on December 31, 1999. The Board will, by separate resolution, be permitted to accept this resignation immediately upon its entry into and acceptance of this Agreement.

2. The Board shall affirmatively resolve to grant Mr. Taylor a paid leave of absence for personal reasons for the period commencing August 13, 1999. Through this period of time, Mr. Taylor shall receive his full salary (exclusive of an employment and adjustment increment for the 1999-2000 school year) in the normal course of business, net of normal payroll deductions for State and Federal income taxes, FICA and pension contribution. Mr. Taylor agrees that his entry into this Agreement releases any claim to have the 1999-2000 increment(s) restored.

3. Throughout the paid leave of absence referred to in paragraph 2, the District agrees to continue to provide Mr. Taylor with all insurance coverages presently provided to other custodial staff members employed by the Board.

4. Upon the termination of his employment and consistent with his rights under the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 ("COBRA"), Mr. Taylor shall be able to purchase, at his own cost and expense, the insurance coverages presently provided to other custodial staff members employed by the Board.

5. It is understood that Mr. Taylor shall not receive any other benefits or emoluments of employment specified in the present collective negotiations agreement, except as otherwise provided for in this Stipulation of Settlement.

6. The Board agrees to withdraw the tenure charges which it certified to the Commissioner of Education and which form the basis of In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kevin Taylor, School District of North Bergen, Agency Ref. No. 32-3/99, O.A.L. Docket No. EDU 5523-99, subject to the terms of this Agreement.

7. Mr. Taylor agrees to waive and abandon any claims, countercaims or actions which he may have against the Board and/or its officers, agents or representatives relating to or arising out of the proceeding entitled, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kevin Taylor, School District of North Bergen, Agency Ref. No. 32-3/99, O.A.L. Docket No. EDU 5523-99 and/or the facts underlying said proceeding.

8. The parties agree that the pursuit of this litigation through plenary hearing is not in the best interests of the students, parents or the community of the petitioner school district because litigation would entail the expense of public funds with a possible result being a 120-day suspension. This settlement is in the best interests of all concerned, and, in particular, is in the public interest. The parties have assiduously attempted to meet standards set forth In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank Cardonick, 1982 S.L.D. ____ (Commissioner of Education, April 7, 1982), aff'd. 1983 S.L.D. ____ (State Board, April 6, 1983).

9. The parties agree that their respective covenants and entry into this Agreement does not constitute any admissions of wrongdoing or guilt on the part of either party.

10. By entering into this Agreement, each party releases and discharges the other with respect to all claims or rights that either party may have against the other. This includes all claims, including those of which either party is not aware and those not mentioned herein. The release by each party applies to all claims resulting from anything which has happened up to now. It specifically includes, without limitation, all claims which Mr. Taylor may have respecting tenure, discrimination on any basis, rights under any collective bargaining agreement, disability payments, sick leave, salary or any other matter pertaining to his employment.

11. The Board agrees that the official record of Mr. Taylor's separation from employment shall be as a result of a voluntary resignation. Mr. Taylor shall request that all prospective employers contact the Director of Personnel, in writing, to obtain verification of employment. As is customary, Mr. Taylor may request prospective employers to contact such individuals as shall be willing to provide Mr. Taylor with an employment reference.

12. Both parties have each had independent legal representation. They both fully understanding the terms and conditions set forth in this Agreement as well as their respective rights to litigate the issues in this case with a final decision to be made by the Commissioner of Education as an alternative to settlement. The decision to enter into this Agreement rather than to avail themselves of the right to litigation has been made of their own free will without duress or coercion.

13. The parties acknowledge that this settlement must be recommended by the Honorable Maria Mancini LaFiandra, A.L.J., and approved by the Commissioner of Education. In the event such approvals are not forth coming, the parties will be returned to the status quo pending at the time when this settlement was adopted, and this Agreement shall be null and void.

14. The stipulations and agreements set forth in this document are made as part of this settlement. In the event this settlement is not approved by the appropriate authorities, it is agreed that nothing set forth herein may be used as evidence in any subsequent proceedings.

15. All terms of this Agreement are material and shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

16. The parties signing below hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized to enter into this Agreement. A copy of the Board's resolution is attached hereto.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals the date and year aforesaid.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF NATASHA MOORE.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY
OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

DOCKET NO. EDU-00224-96S
AGENCY REF. NO. 477-12/95

BEFORE: SOLOMON METZGER, A.L.J.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

Preliminary Statement:

This Agreement is entered into between the Camden City Board of Education (hereinafter referred to as "Board"), and Natasha Moore (hereinafter referred to as "Moore").

Whereas, Moore has been employed by the Board as a tenured clerk since in or about 1988 at various locations; and,

Whereas, in or about December 1995, the Board certified to the Commissioner of Education tenure charges against Moore, which it felt under the circumstances were sufficient to warrant a dismissal; and,

Whereas, in or about January 1996, Moore filed an Answer to the charged denying the allegations as stated; and,

Whereas, this matter has been listed for hearing before the Hon. Solomon Metzger, A.L.J., the latest being October 5 and 7, 1999; and,

Whereas, the parties have agreed to a means of resolving this dispute in a manner consonant with the public interest, the reason being that the Board has had a full opportunity to investigate this matter and based on that investigation believes that such an agreement is fair and just, that the settlement causes the least disruption to the Camden City School District in that witnesses will not have to be away from their normal responsibilities, that the settlement avoids the uncertainty of litigation and a lengthy and expensive hearing process at the Office of Administrative Law and possible appeals taken thereafter, and that the criminal allegations originally made against Moore were dismissed in their entirety; and

Whereas, it is understood that this Agreement is contingent upon the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. Nothing in this Agreement is intended to discourage or prevent the Commissioner of Education from executing his exclusive authority to decide tenure matters, nor is this Agreement intended to avoid the obligation of the Board to cooperate in any proceeding or action initiated by the Commissioner of Education.

Now, therefore, it is hereby stipulated and agreed as follows:

1. Moore will report to work upon approval of this Agreement by the Commissioner of Education. She will be contacted by the Personnel Office and will report at the date and time directed.

2. Moore will be returned to work in the Camden School District to a Clerk III position at a salary of $24,485 (step 13 - NC column) for 1999-2000. This is a twelve (12) month position. Upon the ratification of a new collective bargaining agreement, Moore shall be entitled to the benefits of that agreement as they would apply to someone in her position in the 1999-2000 school year. She will remain at the same salary and step for 2000-2001 and then will advance on the guide in the following years. Moore agrees to accept this as an increment withholding for 2000-2001.

3. Moore agrees to accept the salary and step placement set forth in paragraph 2 above and further agrees to accept, without further dispute and/or litigation, all periods of prior suspension.

without pay, subsequent to the certification of tenure charges.

4. Once returned to work, Moore agrees to serve in her position in full compliance with her job duties and all applicable Board policies and rules. Moore agrees that the Board may, without prejudice, reinstate the instant charges and/or any other charges should the Board at any time determine that Moore has violated the terms of this agreement or any of the Board's rules, regulations, policies or has committed any criminal offense. Moore further agrees that in this event, she will not use the instant settlement agreement as a defense to any substantive charges.

5. Moore agrees to be evaluated formally for a minimum of four (4) times in each of the next three (3) years, commencing with the 1999-2000 year. In addition to these evaluations, her work-related performance shall be subject to periodic review. Should her performance be deficient in any way during this time, the Board in its discretion, may refile the current charges against her, plus any new charges.

6. Moore agrees to participate in, and/or continue, counseling for twelve (12) consecutive months to address the conduct which are at issue in this case. Counseling shall be by an approved, certified psychiatrist or psychologist. There shall be no cost to the Board for this counseling if all or some is not covered by Moore's insurance. This time period of twelve (12) months shall commence in the month after the Commissioner's decision is issued. Moore agrees to authorize and request that her counselor prepare a detailed report on her progress after a six (6) month period and at the end of the one (1) year period. Moore agrees to provide the Superintendent with the name, address and phone number of her counselor at the commencement of the one year counseling period to enable the Board to provide background information to the counselor and data regarding the conduct at issue in this case so that such conduct can be fully and adequately addressed by the counselor.

7. Moore agrees to waive any rights she has or may have to contest or litigate any of the issues relative to this case, but in the event the Commissioner does not approve this agreement or the Board reinstates the charges, Moore reserves the right to assert any defenses which she may have had prior to the execution of this agreement.

8. In return for Moore's agreement with the terms of this settlement, the Board agrees to withdraw, without prejudice, the tenure charges seeking her termination.

9. Moore agrees that she has voluntarily and without coercion entered into this settlement agreement.

10. Moore agrees that she has been fairly and adequately represented at all stages of this proceeding.

11. This Agreement shall be final and binding on the Board and Moore upon final approval by the Commissioner of Education.

12. Violation of any one or more of the provisions of this Agreement by Moore shall permit the Board to refile the tenure charges, plus any new charges it may choose to file.

DECISION

The record and notice of withdrawal transmitted to the Commissioner by the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.2 have been reviewed. Notwithstanding that this matter was erroneously withdrawn on the basis of respondent's notice to the court that she was withdrawing as a party to any further proceedings in this tenure matter, it is determined that, since the record reflects that respondent has resigned her tenured position with the District, there is no basis on which this matter can move forward. Therefore, the Assistant Commissioner, to whom this responsibility has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A 18A:4-34c, approves the withdrawal. As such, the matter is no longer deemed to be a contested matter before the Commissioner and is accordingly dismissed.

However, in that the within respondent resigned from her position prior to the conclusion of the tenure proceedings against her, and due to the serious nature of the charges, which allege her participation in conduct intended to defraud the State Health Benefits Program, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.5, the State Board of Examiners is hereby notified of this matter and the file is being forwarded to that body for action as it deems appropriate. The District is also reminded of its obligation to cooperate with the State Board of Examiners in ascertaining and presenting the facts underlying its allegations herein.*

SYNOPSIS

In consolidated matter, petitioning parents contended that the Board's determination not to pay for transportation costs of their children to the county vocational school was, in effect, imposing the total cost for such transportation on them.

ALJ found that since petitioners' children attended both a private school and a vocational school on a shared-time basis during the school day, they were eligible for both types of transportation benefits. They should be treated no differently from a remote student enrolled in the regular public high school and the vocational school, who admittedly would be transported to both. ALJ ordered the Board to compensate petitioners for the transportation costs to the vocational school during the 1998-99 school year (N.J.S.A 18A:54-20.1(a)) and to pay petitioners $704 each in lieu of transportation between home and the private school during the 1999-2000 school year (N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1).

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own and directed the Board compensate petitioners pursuant to N.J.S.A 18A:54-20.1(a) and 18A:39-1.

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

Two families who send their children to private school seek their local school district to pay transportation costs to their county vocational school. Petitioners' children spend part of the school day at a private school and part of the day at the county vocational school. Although the local district acknowledges its obligation under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 to contribute toward transportation to the private school, it is unwilling also to pay transportation costs to the county vocational school. Petitioners contend that the local district is independently required by N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1 to "send" resident students to the county vocational district. However, the local district argues that it is not legally required to pay "twice" for transportation.

Procedural History

Mr. and Mrs. S.V. filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") on October 20, 1998 appealing a determination by the Lincoln Park Board of Education ("Board") that their child is ineligible for transportation to the county vocational school. Mr. and Mrs. R.P. filed a similarly-worded petition with the Commissioner on October 27, 1998. The Board filed its answer to both petitions on December 14, 1998. Subsequently, on January 7, 1999, the Commissioner transmitted both matters to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as consolidated cases. The OAL held a hearing on June 14, 1999. Witnesses and exhibits are listed in the appendix. Respondent filed a post-hearing brief on July 14, 1999.

Findings of Fact

All of the material facts are undisputed. I FIND:

Petitioners live in Lincoln Park. S.V. and his wife have three children, the oldest of whom is J.V. During the 1998-99 academic year, J.V., a seventeen-year-old high school junior, attended the Netherlands Reformed Christian High School ("NRCHS") in Pompton Plains, New Jersey. NRCHS is a private nonprofit school located approximately four miles from his home. In the late mornings, J.V. took landscaping classes at Morris County Vocational and Technical School ("Morris Vo-Tech"), located roughly fifteen miles from NRCHS. J.V. drove his own vehicle between NRCHS and Morris Vo-Tech. NRCHS has an enrollment of only fifty students and does not offer the specialized vocational training available at Morris Vo-Tech.

R.P. and his wife have four children, including J.P., a seventeen-year old junior also attending NRCHS. Last year, she took child-development classes at Morris Vo-Tech. Her mother drove her to and from NRCHS, a distance of about four miles. Fellow student J.V. drove her from NRCHS to Morris Vo-Tech and back. J.P. does not plan to attend Morris Vo-Tech in 1999-2000, but she has younger siblings who will likely attend in the future. Both sets of parents paid tuition for their children to attend private school.

Lincoln Park is a K to 8 school district. It sends its secondary students to Boonton High School under a sending-receiving relationship. A number of students at Boonton High School, including residents of Lincoln Park, attend classes at Morris Vo-Tech. Boonton has its own bus which transports them between Boonton High School and Morris Vo-Tech. Lincoln Park pays for transportation of its public-school students who go to Morris Vo-Tech. If petitioners' children attended Boonton High School, they would receive free transportation to Morris Vo-Tech. While there is room on the bus for petitioners' children, they have no convenient way of getting from NRCHS to Boonton High School.

Pursuant to its statutory obligation, the Board contributes to the transportation expense for petitioners' children to attend NRCHS.[1] Since the Board was unable to arrange for transportation at a cost of less than $702, it elected to pay that amount for each child in lieu of providing actual transportation.[2]

Pequannock school district has a bus route which transports its own students between NRCHS and Morris Vo-Tech. Moreover, Pequannock was willing to include petitioners' children on its bus at a per-pupil cost of $1,011. The Board proposed to enter into a transportation agreement with Pequannock if petitioners were willing to forego the $702 transportation allowance and pay the difference of $309. However, petitioners rejected this proposal, contending that "In essence, the parents then are paying for the full transportation costs (by forfeiting $702 and paying the $309)."

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that petitioners are entitled to transportation of their children to Morris Vo-Tech in addition to the $702 transportation allowance.

N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1(a) provides, in pertinent part, that:

> The board of education of each school district . . . in which there is a county vocational school district shall send to any of the schools of the county vocational school district each pupil who resides in the school district . . . and who has applied for admission to and has been accepted for attendance at any of the schools of the county vocational school district. The board of education shall

[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 mandates that "when any school district provides transportation for public school districts to and from school pursuant to this section, transportation shall be supplied to school pupils residing in such district in going to and from any remote school other than a public school, not operated for profit in whole or in part, located within the State no more than 20 miles from the residence of the pupil."

[2] N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 further provides that if the per-pupil cost of the lowest bid shall exceed a certain amount set by statutory formula, the parents are eligible to receive that amount in lieu of transportation. In 1998-99, the amount was $702. In 1999-2000, it is $704.

> pay tuition for each of these pupils to the county vocational school district pursuant to subsection c. of this section. (Emphasis added).

Generally, the language of a statute is given its ordinary and primary meaning unless there is legislative intent to the contrary. Merin v. Maglaki, 126 N.J. 430, 434-435 (1992). Kingsley v. Hawthorne Fabrics, Inc., 41 N.J. 521, 526 (1964). The preferred meaning of the word "send" is "to cause to go by physical means or direct volition." A secondary meaning is "to dispatch to a specified destination for a course or term" as in "to send a son to college." WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY (3d ed. 1976). It is difficult to imagine a context in which sending does not connote transportation, transmission or conveyance. Tuition had to be addressed separately in N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1(a) because the common sense of the word "send" does not imply that tuition is necessarily included.

School law decisions interpret the foregoing statute as imposing financial responsibility on local school districts for transportation as well as tuition costs. In M.R. v. Pompton Lakes Bd. of Educ., <http://www.state.nj.us.njded/legal/index.html> (Comm'r July 29, 1997), the Commissioner construed N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1 as requiring a local school district in Passaic County to pay tuition and transportation costs for its resident student to attend a vocational school in Bergen County. Reading the statute together with the regulation authorizing pupils to enroll in vocational schools outside their own district if the local school board does not offer a comparable type of program, the Commissioner held that these enactments establish "a statewide delivery system for vocational education that ensures pupil access to such education" and that "[s]uch right of access of necessity entails a concomitant right to transportation." M.R., slip op at 4-5. Such authoritative interpretation of a statute by an agency charged with its enforcement is entitled to great weight. Nelson v. Old Bridge Bd. of Educ., 148 N.J. 358, 364 (1997).

Subsequent initial decisions by administrative law judges have consistently followed the example set by M.R. Illustratively, in K.B. v. Rancocas Valley Reg. High Sch. Dist., <http://www.lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/html/initial/edu6974-99.html> (Initial Decision Nov. 12, 1997), ALJ Joseph Martone ordered a school district in Burlington County to provide transportation to a vocational school in Gloucester County. Similarly, in Jacobs v. Northern Valley Reg. Sch. Dist., <http://www.lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/html/initial/edu3517-98-1.html> (Initial Decision May 4, 1999), ALJ Mumtaz Bari-Brown required a school district to pay for transportation of a home-schooled pupil who had been accepted by the district's own county vocational school. Recently, in D.F. v. Roselle Park Bd. of Educ., <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/html/inial/edu5903-98.html> (Initial Decision May 24, 1999), former ALJ Sebastian Gaeta, now sitting on the Superior Court of New Jersey, ordered a local board of education to pay transportation costs for delivery of children to the magnet high school operated by the county vocational school.

Additional support for petitioners' position derives from N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, which obligates local school districts to transport secondary-school students who live more than two and-a-half miles from "their public school of attendance." In a written directive dated August 31, 1998, the Morris County Superintendent's Office expressly advised Lincoln Park that once a pupil attends a vocational school, he or she becomes "a public school student entitled to transportation to be paid by the district of residence as per N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1." This conclusion results from M.R., where the Commissioner recognized that a vocational school constitutes a "public school of attendance." (slip op at 5).

Although Lincoln Park cites several cases upholding the exclusion of certain categories of private school students, those limitations are inapplicable to vocational schools. Unlike the portion of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 pertaining to private schools, the statutory language applicable to public schools "excludes no categories of public school pupils and sets no limitations on the distance of the public schools of attendance." M.R., at 5. Lincoln Park's attempted distinction between compulsory and optional education is equally without merit. Children who attend vocational school are subject to the same compulsory education laws as children who attend other types of public schools or private schools. Vocational schools are approved educational placements which satisfy the statutory requirement that all children must attend "the public schools of the district or a day school in which there is given instruction equivalent to that provided in the public schools for children of similar grades and attainments." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-25.

Lastly, Lincoln Park's contention that it is paying twice for the same services misconceives the realities of the situation. Petitioners' children attend NRCHS and Morris Vo-Tech on a shared-time basis. Under the second paragraph of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, a local school district must provide transportation to resident students attending a nonprofit private school located within twenty miles from home. Lincoln Park acknowledges its responsibility to contribute up to $702 toward transportation of each of petitioners' children to NRCHS.

In addition, N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1(a) confers a right of access to a public vocational school if the local district does not offer a comparable program. The first paragraph of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 requires the local district to provide transportation to any public school, including a vocational school, located more than two and-a-half miles from a child's residence. Since petitioners' children attend both a private school and a vocational school during the school day, they are eligible for both types of transportation benefits. In this regard, they should be treated no differently than a remote student enrolled in Boonton High School and Morris Vo-Tech, who admittedly would be transported to the regular public high school and to the vocational school.

Order

It is ORDERED that Lincoln Park compensate J.V.'s parents in the amount of $1,011 for transportation costs to Morris Vo-Tech during the 1998-99 academic year, in the amount of 1/10 of $1,011 = $101 for the transportation costs to Morris Vo-Tech during the first month of the 1999-2000 academic year and arrange for transporting J.V. between NRCHS and Morris Vo-Tech for the remainder of the 1999-2000 school year.

It is ORDERED that Lincoln Park compensate J.P.'s parents in the amount of $1,011 for transportation costs to Morris Vo-Tech during the 1998-99 academic year.

And it is further ORDERED that Lincoln Park pay $704 to J.V.'s parents and $704 to J.P.'s parents in lieu of transportation between home and NRCHS during the 1999-2000 academic year.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioners are entitled to the relief they seek. In so concluding, the Commissioner finds the express language of N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 to be determinative.[1]

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the Initial Decision for the reasons expressed therein and directs that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1(a), the Board reimburse J.V.'s parents the amount of $1,011 for transportation costs from the Netherlands Reformed Christian High School (NRCHS) to the Morris County Vocational and Technical School (MCVTS) for the 1998-99 school year, and for 1999-2000 school year, until the date of this decision, at a prorated amount of $5.62 per day ($1,011 divided by 180 days). As of the date of this decision, the Board is responsible for transporting J.V. between the NCHRS and the MCVTS for the remainder of the 1999-2000 school year. Additionally, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1(a), the Board is directed to reimburse J.P.'s parents the amount of $1,011 for transportation costs from the NRCHS to the MCVTS for the 1998-99 school year. The Board is further ordered to continue to pay J.V.'s parents and J.P.'s parents each the amount of $704, representing aid in lieu of transportation costs from the students' respective homes in Lincoln Park to the NCHRS for the 1999-2000 school year. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.[2]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

[1] The Commissioner herein notes that, after issuing his final decision in M.R., supra, on July 29, 1997, the decision was appealed to the State Board of Education. There, the respondent Board contended for the first time that the Commissioner's determination violated the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Act, 20 U.S.C. Section 2301 et seq. (M.R., supra, State Board of Education, December 3, 1997, slip op. at p. 3) Upon request of the Commissioner, the State Board remanded this matter on December 3, 1997 to the Commissioner with direction that it be transmitted to the OAL "for hearing and determination of all the issues raised [in the] appeal, including the factual question of whether the Board can offer a comparable program to petitioners in Passaic County." (Id. at pp. 3, 4) While at the OAL, the parties settled the matter.

[2] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

In consolidated matter, petitioners, two tenured teaching staff members who were riffed in May 1994, sought back pay for the District's failure to employ them during the 1994-95 and 1995-96 school years. ALJ dismissed petitions. Upon review of the record and transcripts from the hearings, the Commissioner reversed the Initial Decision finding that subsequent to the RIF in May 1994, there were positions to which both petitioners could have been assigned by virtue of their superior tenure and seniority rights. Commissioner ordered the District to calculate the sums due petitioners, mitigated compensation for school years 1994-95 and 1995-96 until the date on which they were offered positions in the District. Moreover, the Commissioner directed the District to establish job positions and titles, as appropriate, for the positions discussed, to produce job descriptions that include certification requirements, inter alia, for each such position, and to submit positions bearing unrecognized titles to the County Superintendent for approval of designation of appropriate certification.

District appealed to the State Board. In 1997, the State Board approved a settlement resolving the dispute with Petitioner Skawinski. Requested relief of Petitioner Lewis in the form of back pay remained. State Board reversed Commissioner's determination with regard to petitioner's entitlement to in-school suspension assignment and remanded the matter for further proceedings to determine if the particular in-school suspension assignment at issue was a teaching staff position requiring possession of an appropriate certificate, as well as whether petitioner had any entitlement to it after November 1994. State Board remanded matter for determination.

On remand, the ALJ concluded that petitioner was entitled to three full months of compensation for a total of $3,939 for the period in question. Commissioner concurred with the ALJ and directed the District to compensate petitioner for lost wages in the amount of $3,939 and related emoluments.

BEFORE MARIA MANCINI LA FIANDRA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

These are consolidated cases in which the Petitioners asserted that Respondent had violated their tenure rights during a reduction in force (RIF) in May, 1994,[1] when her position was abolished. Petitioner claimed she was qualified for another position by virtue of seniority pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. Specifically, Lewis, who held an instructional endorsement as a Teacher of Business Education, claimed she was entitled to reinstatement as an in-school suspension instructor, a position which had been held by Robert Salviano until November 1994 or as a teacher of computers which had been held by Catherine Zehnacker. Lewis requested relief in the form of back pay for the entire 1994-95 school year and for the 1995-96 school year through the date of her reinstatement in March, 1996.

[1] On October 1, 1997, the State Board of Education approved a settlement resolving the dispute between the State-Operated District and Debra Ann Skawinski. Consequently, this remand from the State Board is limited to the petition filed by Anita Lewis; references to petitioner are intended to refer to Lewis only. (See State Board of Education Decision, June 17, 1998).

On January 30, 1997, an Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) recommended dismissing the petition because the Petitioner did not possess the required certification for the positions to which she had claimed entitlement; accordingly, her tenure rights had not been violated.

The Commissioner rejected the ALJ's recommendation, finding that Salviano's employment as an in-school suspension teacher constituted a position requiring a valid and effective certificate; moreover, the Commission found that a teacher of computers need only possess an instructional certificate. Accordingly, the Commissioner found that there were positions to which Petitioner could have been assigned by virtue of her tenure and seniority rights. He concluded that Lewis was entitled to the difference in pay between what she could have earned in those positions during the relevant time frame and what she actually earned. According to the Commissioner, however, it was unclear whether the in-school suspension position had been abolished after November, 1994; if it had been, there would be no remaining position after that date to which Lewis could claim entitlement and her relief would be limited.[2]

The State-Operated School District filed the instant appeal of the Commissioner's decision. The State Board reversed the Commissioner's determination with regard to Petitioner's entitlement to the in-school suspension assignment and remanded the matter for further proceedings to determine if the particular in-school suspension assignment at issue was a teaching staff position requiring possession of an appropriate certificate as well as whether Petitioner had any entitlement to it after November, 1994. In addition, the State Board remanded for a determination, as a result of the foregoing, of Petitioner's claim in accordance with the State Board decision.

[2] The State Board agreed with the Commissioner that, on the basis of the facts in this case, only an instructional certificate was required. Since Skawinski had greater seniority than Lewis, according to the State Board, Skawinski would have been entitled to reinstatement in position teaching computers, leaving only the in-school suspension assignment at issue.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The parties stipulated to the following facts on the record.

1. A teaching certificate is required for the position of in-school suspension teacher.

2. Petitioner, who holds a valid teaching certificate should have been appointed to the position; consequently, she is entitled to back pay.

3. The period for which she would have been appointed was from approximately September 1, 1994 to December 7, 1994.

4. Petitioner was employed as a teacher assistant commencing September 1, 1994 at a salary of $33,231 per year.

5. Accordingly, Petitioner is entitled back pay for the period from September 1, 1994 to December 7, 1994, in an amount which reflects the difference between her earnings as a teacher assistant and her earnings as a teacher at Step 7 of the ten effective salary guide, $45,351.

6. Based on the annual salaries set forth above, there is a difference of $12,100 between Petitioner's annual salary as an assistant and what she would have been paid as an in-school suspension teacher. Further calculation yields a difference of $1212 per month[3] and a per diem rate of $60.60.[4]

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that Petitioner is entitled to three full months from September 1, 1994 to November 30, 1994 of compensation at the rate of $1212 per month for a total of $3636 plus five working days from December 1, 1994 to December 7, 1994 at the per diem rate of $60.60 for a total of $303. Accordingly, I further CONCLUDE that Petitioner is entitled to compensation in the total amount of $3939 for the period in question.

ORDER

It is, therefore, hereby ORDERED that Respondent pay Petitioner $3939 as back pay for the period from September 1, 1994 to December 7, 1994.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

[3] Calculated on a 10 month basis.
[4] Calculated on the basis of 20 working days per month.

SYNOPSIS

Rahway Board of Education's policy on extracurricular activities does not allow the participation of students not enrolled in Rahway High School (RHS). On August 24, 1999 the Board passed a motion revising its policy on extracurricular activities which allowed Rahway students currently enrolled in grades 10, 11 and 12 at the Union County Vocational-Technical Magnet School Program for Math, Science and Technology (Magnet School), a full-time program, to participate in extracurricular and intramural athletic activities but excluded students enrolling in the Magnet School as ninth graders effective September 1, 1999. Parent of 9th grade Magnet School student filed a petition and emergent relief application seeking an order reversing the Board's action.

ALJ granted motion for emergent relief ordering the Board to immediately allow petitioner's daughter to participate fully in all extracurricular activities offered at RHS and to comply with Article V (G), CL3 of the NJSIAA rules and regulations governing the participation of full-time vocational-technical school students in interscholastic sports at their resident high schools. Because there were no material facts in dispute and the parties appeared to have fully briefed the issues, the Commissioner requested return of the case from the Office of Administrative Law, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3, so that a final decision could be issued rather than an interim decision.

As to participation in interscholastic athletic activities, the Commissioner found that the Board's policy revision constituted a blanket exclusion of Rahway's Magnet School students which had the effect of precluding the principal of RHS from complying with NJSIAA's Art. V (G), CL3, a rule which, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3, became Board policy upon Rahway's becoming a member school of NJSIAA. As to other extracurricular activities, the Commissioner found the record totally devoid of any rational basis for the policy revision. Commissioner, therefore, held that the Board's action cannot be deemed to be within its discretionary authority in the absence of the Board's (or principal's, in the case of interscholastic sports) having determined that such participation is not practicable or reasonable because of scheduling constraints, transportation costs or logistical difficulties, or other valid considerations.

Commissioner directed Board to allow petitioner's daughter, and other similarly situated Magnet School students, to participate in extracurricular activities and athletic programs at RHS, unless it can demonstrate that such participation is not practicable or reasonable as indicated above. Board was also ordered to revise its extracurricular activities policy in light of the Commissioner's holding and submit it to the Union County Superintendent of Schools for her review.

For Respondent: Alan J. Schnirman, Esq.

BACKGROUND AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was opened before the Commissioner by way of a Petition of Appeal and application for emergent relief filed by petitioner on September 13, 1999, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1 et seq. Petitioner and his daughter, A.F.S., are residents of Rahway. A.F.S. attends ninth grade at the Union County Vocational-Technical Magnet School Program for Math, Science and Technology (Magnet School), a full-time program. Rahway Board of Education's Policy 6145 on extracurricular activities does not allow the participation of students not enrolled in Rahway High School. On August 24, 1999 the Board passed a motion revising its policy on extracurricular activities which allowed students residing in Rahway who attend the Magnet School currently enrolled in grades 10, 11 and 12 to participate in extracurricular and intramural athletic activities at Rahway High School (RHS) but excluded from participation students enrolling in the Magnet School as ninth graders effective September 1, 1999. As a result, A.F.S.

is not allowed to participate in any extracurricular activities at RHS. The petition and emergent relief application seek an order from the Commissioner declaring "the policy of the Rahway Board of Education illegal, in violation of the Rules and Regulations of the New Jersey Department of Education and further, order [respondents] to immediately withdraw said motion and immediately invite all Magnet school students to fully participate in all Rahway High School extracurricular activities."

The petition and application for emergent relief were forwarded to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 18, 1999. A hearing on the emergent relief application was conducted by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) on October 7, 1999. On October 14, 1999, the ALJ issued an order on the emergent relief application which was received by the Commissioner on October 18, 1999. The ALJ's order reads in pertinent part that

> The Rahway Board of Education and Doctor William Petrino shall immediately and without further delay allow {A.F.S.} to fully participate in all extra-curricular activities including band clubs, dramatic or musical presentations and intramural and interscholastic sports offered by Rahway High School, and
> IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Rahway Board of Education shall order the Principal of Rahway High School to comply with Art. V(G)-CL3 of the Rules & Regulations governing New Jersey Interscholastic Athletic Association and without further delay come to an agreement with the Principal of Union County Vocational Technical School for Math, Science and Technology (UCVTS), allowing students of the Rahway School District attending UCVTS to fully participate in Rahway High School interscholastic athletic events regardless of the number of sports programs offered at the Vocational/Technical High School.

Upon a preliminary review of the record of the emergent relief hearing provided to the Commissioner by the OAL, including the audiotape of the proceedings, and the parties' exceptions to the ALJ's order submitted by the Board on October 26, 1999 and petitioner's reply thereto submitted on October 29, 1999, it appeared that no genuine issues of material fact were in dispute and that the parties had fully briefed the issues. Consequently, on November 1, 1999, a letter was sent to the parties indicating that the matter appeared amenable to a ruling on the merits by the Commissioner within the time accorded him by regulation for review of the emergent relief order, and the parties were accorded an opportunity to submit to the Commissioner within ten days any further arguments or affidavits not presented during oral argument on the emergent relief application, with replies, if deemed necessary, to be submitted five days thereafter. The OAL's Director and Chief Administrative Law Judge was requested to return the matter to the Commissioner, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3, because it appeared to be in the best interest of the parties for the Commissioner to issue a determination directly since there were no disputed facts necessitating further fact-finding and the matter had been fully briefed by the parties.

No submissions were filed by the parties in response to the November 1, 1999 letter. The matter was returned by the OAL on November 17, 1999; whereupon, the record of the matter was deemed closed.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

Upon review of the entire record of this matter, the following undisputed facts material to this case have been adduced:

1. A.F.S. resides with her parents in Rahway. She is a fourteen-year-old ninth grader at the UCVT Magnet School Program for Math, Science and Technology (Magnet School) in Scotch Plains, a full-time program.

2. Rahway is paying the cost of tuition and transportation for A.F.S.'s attendance at the Magnet School.

3. Prior to August 24, 1999, students residing in Rahway who attended the Magnet School were permitted to participate in extracurricular activities and sports.

4. Board Policy 6145 on extracurricular activities does not allow for the participation of students who are not enrolled in Rahway High School. On August 24, 1999, the Board passed a motion which revised its policy on extracurricular activities and sports to permit the Principal of RHS to enter into an agreement with the Principal of UCVT for participation of current Magnet School students in grades 10, 11 or 12 to participate in extracurricular and intramural athletic activities at RHS.

5. On August 25, 1999, the respondent superintendent sent a letter to petitioner regarding the Board's motion of August 24, 1999 relative to Policy 6145 and Magnet School student participation in extracurricular activities which reads in pertinent part:

> As a result of this motion, Rahway students enrolling in ninth grade effective September 1, 1999, will not be eligible for participation in the extracurricular activities including bands, clubs, dramatic or musical presentations, and intramural and interscholastic sports operated by the Rahway Board of Education. (Exhibit A)

6. Article V(G), CL3 of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Association (NJSIAA) Handbook, a voluntary association to which respondent belongs, governs the participation of full time vocational school students in interscholastic athletic activities in its member schools. It states:

> If a Vocational/Technical High School does not offer the particular sport in which one of its full-time students desires to participate, that student may participate in that sport at his/her sending school upon agreement of both Principals, regardless of the number of sports programs offered at the Vocational/Technical High School. (NJSIAA Handbook at p. 42)

7. A.F.S. desires to participate in interscholastic swimming and soccer and certain other extracurricular activities offered at Rahway High School, such as the drama club.

8. Policy 1645, as revised by the Board on August 24, 1999, precludes A.F.S. from participating in extracurricular and athletic activities operated by respondents.

9. UCVT Magnet School does not offer any interscholastic athletic activities. It does offer several extracurricular clubs.

PETITIONER'S POSITION

Essentially, petitioner contends that by statutory obligation respondents are required to provide a complete, thorough and efficient education to all public school students, which includes affording those students attending the Magnet School complete and full access to any and all extracurricular activities regularly provided Rahway High School students. He further avers that extracurricular activities are an integral/essential part of a student's education, citing in support thereof Willet v. Colts Neck Board of Education, 1966 S.L.D. 202, 206 and Board of Education of Asbury Park v. Asbury Park Education Association, 145 N.J. Super. 495, at 505 (Chanc. Div. 1976). Moreover, petitioner maintains that participation in extracurricular activities is a strong factor in determining college admission, as well as the possibility of scholarships awarded on the basis of such activities. By being denied entry to extracurricular activities as a ninth grader, A.F.S. will be unable to show a four-year commitment to any extracurricular activity, thus diminishing the likelihood of obtaining athletic or other scholarships.

Given the above, petitioner argues that the disputed policy is not only arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable but also discriminatory because it does not apply to all students residing in Rahway who attend the UCVT School, only to those who attend the UCVT Magnet School. Petitioner urges that the policy is violative of N.J.S.A. 18A:36-20 et seq., and N.J.A.C. 6:4-1.1 et seq., which mandate that there be no discrimination among students and further mandate equality among education programs. Of this, petitioner states "This newly announced policy of preclusion of 9th grade students constitutes discrimination against A.F.S. and other students similarly situated, based upon their social status, i.e. students of the Magnet School. In addition, the blanket exclusion of these students from extracurricular activities is arbitrary and capricious." (Petitioner's Reply Exceptions at p. 2).

RESPONDENTS' POSITION

Respondent Board and Superintendent (Board) urge that if petitioner were granted the relief he seeks it would violate its Policy 6145 which predates the creation of the UCVT Magnet School. This policy relative to extracurricular activities states, inter alia, that "The Board of Education specifically recognizes that only pupils of the Rahway School District shall participate in the extracurricular activities referenced herein." The Board further argues that it would violate Article V, Section 1 of the NJSIAA ByLaws which states that "[a] student to be eligible for participation in the interscholastic athletic program of a member school, must be enrolled in that school and must meet all the eligibility requirements of the Constitution, By-Laws, and Rules and Regulations of the NJSIAA." (NJSIAA Handbook at p. 34) As to Paragraph CL3 of Article V(G), cited above, the Board emphasizes that participation of a full-time student at a vocational/technical school in interscholastic athletics at the resident high school is allowed only upon agreement of the principals of the two schools. Thus, the rule for participation in interscholastic athletics for full-time vocational/technical school students is permissive, not mandatory.[1] The Board further emphasizes that, pursuant to its action of August 24, 1999, it does not have such an agreement for ninth grade students at the UCVT Magnet School, only those in grades 10-12. Consequently, the Board urges, an order granting petitioner the remedy he seeks "would usurp the NJSIAA ByLaws and be contrary to the well-settled principle that participation in interscholastic sports is a privilege rather than a right. Burnside, et al. vs. NJSIAA, 1984 S.L.D., 1686, 1693, aff'd N.J. Superior Court, App. Div. 1695, cert. denied 101 N.J. 236 (1985)."

[1] During oral arguments at the October 7, 1999 hearing on the emergent relief application at the OAL, the Board indicated that there are shared-time students who reside in Rahway who participate in Rahway High School athletic programs but they do so because, under the NJSIAA rules, a shared-time student at a vocational/technical high school has a right to participate in interscholastic athletic programs not offered at the vocational/technical school pursuant to Article V (G), CL 2 of the NJSIAA ByLaws. Rahway's shared-time students are enrolled in Rahway High School, attending that school for part of their school day and the UCVT School for the remainder. Magnet School students are at UCVT the entire school day and, therefore, are not enrolled at Rahway High School.

The Board further believes that the decision of the Commissioner on August 31, 1998 in E.L. and N.L., on behalf of minor, R.R. v. NJSIAA, a case involving a private school student who desired to participate as a member of the Cranford High School ice hockey team, is supportive of its position in the instant matter. In the E.L. decision, the Commissioner held that one of NJSIAA's most fundamental rules is that students be enrolled in the school for which they compete on interscholastic athletic teams and, therefore, upheld the NJSIAA rules denying the student's petition.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Upon a thorough review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner finds and determines that the Board's action on August 24, 1999 to revise its policy for participation in extracurricular activities (Policy 6145) so as to exclude students enrolled in the ninth grade effective September 1, 1999 at the Magnet School was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable for the reasons set forth below.

As to participation in interscholastic athletic activities, the Commissioner finds without merit the Board's argument that because A.F.S. is not enrolled in Rahway High School she is prohibited by Article V, Section 1 of the NJSIAA ByLaws to participate in Rahway High School interscholastic athletic programs. Its reliance on that provision is not applicable herein. Because A.F.S. attends a full-time vocational/technical high school, the controlling NJSIAA rule is Article V (G), CL3 which provides that where a sport is not offered at a vocational/technical school, a student attending the vocational/technical school full-time may participate in that sport at the high school "sending" the student, upon agreement of both principals.

While the Board is correct in stating that this rule is permissive, not mandatory, the Commissioner finds that the August 24, 1999 revision to Policy 6145 constitutes a blanket exclusion of Magnet School students from participation in interscholastic activities. This revision, by its very terms, has the effect of precluding Rahway High School's principal, under any circumstance, from entering into an agreement with the UCVT Magnet School Principal for such students. Thus, the Board's action is contrary to the NJSIAA rule, which, by virtue of its participation in this voluntary athletic association is deemed to be the policy of the Board (N.J.S.A. 18A: 11-3).

Furthermore, while participation in interscholastic sports is discretionary, i.e. subject to the agreement of the principals of both the UCVT Magnet School and Rahway High School, that discretionary authority must be reasonably exercised based on bona fide, legitimate considerations, as it clearly was not in the present matter.

The Commissioner finds equally without merit the Board's "non-enrollment" argument based on prior decisional law. Unlike the student in E.L., supra, who was a private school student seeking to participate in a public high school's interscholastic athletics program, A.F.S. is not a private school student. Pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A: 54-20.1 and N.J.A.C. 6:43-3.11, she is attending a public vocational/technical program operated by a county vocational school. Her tuition and transportation are funded by the Rahway School District. NJSIAA rules do not preclude her participation in the sports she desires.

As to the Board's decision with respect to other types of extracurricular activities, the Commissioner finds and determines that the August 24, 1999 revision exceeds its discretionary authority because the record is totally devoid of any rational basis for the Board to have taken action to allow the participation of Magnet school students currently enrolled in grades 10, 11 and 12 but to have excluded the participation of students enrolling in the Magnet School as ninth graders effective September 1, 1999. To create a blanket exclusion of a particular group or category of public school students from extracurricular activities or intramural athletic programs without a sound rational basis for such exclusion is inherently arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Such an exclusion as has occurred in the instant matter, whether in terms of a particular student or a group of students, cannot be deemed to be within a board's lawful discretionary authority in the absence of the board's (or the principal's, in the case of interscholastic athletic programs) having determined that participation is not practicable or reasonable because of scheduling constraints, transportation costs or logistical difficulties, or other valid considerations. [2]

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, the Board is directed to allow A.F.S., and other similarly situated Rahway students who attend the UCVT Magnet School, to participate in extracurricular activities and athletic programs at Rahway High School, unless it can demonstrate that such participation is not practicable or reasonable because of scheduling constraints, transportation costs or logistical difficulties, or other valid considerations. The Board is further directed to review and revise its Policy for student participation in extracurricular activities in light of considerations set forth herein and to submit the revised policy to the Union County Superintendent of Schools for her review. [3, 4]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

[2] Nothing herein, however, requires a board to take unreasonable or extraordinary steps to accommodate a county vocational student's participation in extracurricular activities operated by the district which is funding that student's placement.

[3] The Commissioner notes that it may be helpful for NJSIAA guidelines to clarify that agreements between principals, as referenced above, may not be made on an arbitrary or unreasonable basis.

[4] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, former shop teacher, alleged the Board violated his tenure rights when it terminated his contract two months into the 1998-99 school year on the assertion that he was not certified for the courses to which he was assigned.

ALJ determined that petitioner was a tenured teacher since he satisfied the requisite criteria for tenure acquisition -- he worked in a position requiring an instructional certificate; he held the appropriate endorsement (an endorsement, here the Teacher of Employment Orientation endorsement, is not invalidated when the Office of Licensing and Credentials discontinues its issuance); and he served the requisite period of time. (N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5) Having concluded petitioner was tenured, the ALJ found that petitioner was entitled to be reemployed by the Board since his endorsement permits him to teach courses which the Board continues to offer.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioner had acquired tenure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Commissioner, however, was not persuaded that the issue of petitioner's entitlement to reinstatement was one which should be resolved in a summary fashion. Commissioner remanded the issue of improper termination and entitlement to reinstatement to the OAL for further fact-finding.

FACTS

Albert Ziegler ("Petitioner") appeals the decision by the Board of Education of Bayonne ("Board") to terminate his employment. Particularly, Petitioner claims that he was wrongfully discharged inasmuch as he was a tenured teacher.

The pertinent facts in this matter are uncontroverted. Petitioner began employment with the Board in September of 1984 as a teacher in the Alternative Education Program. He has obtained the following certificates and endorsements[1]

1) Emergency Certificate valid from March 1981 to July 1981 as a Teacher of Skilled Trades (Employment Orientation).

[1] For purposes of clarity, the terms "certificate" and "endorsement" will be used in this memorandum consistent with N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.3 which provides:

2) Standard Instructional Certificate with an endorsement as a Teacher of Employment Orientation. Issued in July of 1982.

3) Standard Educational Services Certificate with an endorsement as a Teacher Coordinator of Cooperative Industrial Education. Issued in November of 1997.

Petitioner taught employment orientation in the Alternative Education Program from the 1984-1985 school year until the 1993-1994 school year, a period of ten consecutive years. During those years, Petitioner taught students in grades five through eight.

In 1994, Petitioner was transferred to Bayonne High School where he taught students in grades nine through twelve. The transfer was a result of a reorganization which eliminated the Alternative Education program. Petitioner and other teachers were placed under the supervision of the principal of Special Programs.

Petitioner taught at the high school level for the 1994-1995 and 1995-1996 school years. During this time, he taught Shop 9 and Shop 10 (also called Introduction to Vocational Trades).[2] There was a break from employment during the 1996-1997 school year because of budgetary constraints. However, Petitioner was reemployed by the Board for the 1997-1998 school year and assigned to teach Shop 9 and

> Consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38, the State Board of Examiners shall issue three educational certificates: the Instructional Certificate, the Administrative Certificate and the Educational Services Certificate. The Board may issue for each teaching, administrative or service position a special endorsement under the appropriate certificates. [Ibid.]

The different types of endorsements are listed and described in N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2. The parties and documents included in the record, on the other hand, have mistakenly used the terms "certificate" and "endorsement" interchangeably. See Howley v. Ewing Twsp. Bd. of Educ., 6 N.J.A.R. 509 (1982).

[2] The curriculum for these courses is set forth as follows:

SHOP 9 - Shop 9 is a cluster of several different mini-shop courses designed to give the students exploratory exposure to several different careers on a rotating basis. The course content of each rotation includes: safety, awareness of the trade, and hands-on experiences so that the student can select a trade option as a career.

INTRODUCTION TO VOCATIONAL TRADES 10

This course includes a review of Shop 9 content and shop and personal safety. Emphasizing this course centers on the trade areas of Carpentry, Masonry, Plumbing and Electricity as they relate to the industrial building trades. The students will learn and develop their skills and competencies constructing foundations, rough framing, roof framing, exterior and interior finishing, and wiring and plumbing on a modified scaled model house. The student will learn how to do estimating that will involve material cost, labor cost and general expense. [Bayonne High School Curriculum Offerings and Proficiencies 1998-1999, at 41-42.]

Shop 10. The Board also reemployed Petitioner for the 1998-1999 school year. He was assigned to teach Shop 9, Shop 10, Industrial Technology and Maintenance and Repair.[3] However, Petitioner was unable to complete the 1998-1999 term because he was informed on November 24, 1998 that the Board terminated his employment at its meeting held on November 23, 1998. Pursuant to his employment contract, Petitioner received sixty days' notice and continued working until January 25, 1999.

The Board's determination to terminate Petitioner was the result of several inquiries made in the Fall of 1998 regarding Petitioner's certifications. Specifically, the Hudson County Superintendent's office and the Board's Superintendent questioned whether Petitioner was properly certified to teach the courses he was teaching. By letter dated September 29, 1998, the County Superintendent informed the Board's Superintendent that Petitioner holds a Certificate of Employment Orientation and a Certificate as a Teacher Coordinator of Cooperative Industrial Education. The County Superintendent stated the following regarding these certificates:

> Teacher of Employment Orientation Certificate
>
> This certificate is obsolete. The New Jersey State Department of Education discontinued this certificate in 1983 and no longer issues a certificate of this type.
>
> Teacher Coordinator of Cooperative Industrial Education
>
> This endorsement is required for the position of teacher and coordinator of part-time cooperative vocational education in skilled trade, industrial and/or service occupations. The endorsement entitles the holder to teach related vocational subjects in such classes and to act as coordinator between school and industry. (See N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.3) [Respondent's Brief dated June 11, 1999 ("Respondent's Brief"), Exh. J; Petitioner's Brief dated July 2, 1999 ("Petitioner's Brief"), Exh. BB.]

---

3 These courses are described as:

INDUSTRIAL TECHNOLOGY I

Wood shop is an introductory study of today's industrial technological society through the woodworking industry by implementing methods, materials, occupations and processes. Emphasis is placed upon the basic skills and knowledge needed in the operation of common woodworking tools and equipment. It also includes the development of good work habits and attitudes including an appreciation of the importance of safety.

MAINTENANCE AND REPAIR

This course is designed to prepare the students to safely handle, diagnose, repair and/or replace the defective parts on small appliances to make the unit functional. Course content covers instruction on safety, use of diagnostic equipment, measuring devices relevant to the trade of servicing and repairing small appliances. [Bayonne High School Curriculum Offerings and Proficiencies 1998-1999, at 41 and 44.]

Subsequently, the Board's Superintendent contacted the New Jersey Department of Education's Office of Licensing and Credentials inquiring about Petitioner's certifications. The Coordinator of Licensing Programs responded by letter dated November 9, 1998, wherein she provided in part:

> In response to your inquiry regarding Mr. Ziegler's certification status, this is to advise that Mr. Ziegler hold [sic] standard certification in the areas of Teacher Coordinator of Cooperative Industrial Education and Teacher of Employment Orientation."[4] [Respondent's Brief, Exh. K; Petitioner's Brief, Exh. DD.]

The Board's Superintendent sent Petitioner a copy of the letter from the Office of Licensing and Credentials along with a letter advising Petitioner that based on the correspondence, he intended to recommend the termination of Petitioner's employment. As such, Petitioner met with the Board's Superintendent on November 18th and 19th, 1998. By letter dated November 19, 1998, the Board's Superintendent informed Petitioner that he would recommend that Petitioner's services be terminated at the Board's meeting which was to be held on November 23, 1998. Petitioner was notified on November 24, 1998 of the Board's decision to terminate his employment and continued to receive a salary until January 25, 1999.

On January 26, 1999, Petitioner's counsel wrote to the Director of the Office of Licensing and Credentials requesting information pertaining to the validity and scope of the Teacher of Employment Orientation endorsement. The Director responded by letter dated February 4, 1999 wherein she confirmed that the endorsement was no longer issued, but did not state that the endorsement was invalid.

On May 17, 1999, the Board's Superintendent also wrote to the Director of the Office of Licensing and Credentials requesting a formal opinion on this matter. However, the Director advised the Board's Superintendent on June 2, 1999 that the Office does not render formal opinions. Inasmuch as the matter remains contested, it was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law.

4 N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.1 provides that "[t]he standard certificate is a permanent certificate issued to candidates who have met all requirements for State certification" (emphasis added). This regulatory section does not, nor does any other, require standard certificates to be rendered invalid upon a determination to discontinue a particular endorsement.

DISCUSSION

The Board avers that its determination to terminate Petitioner was appropriate. This claim is based in the Board's belief that Petitioner does not have tenure or seniority rights to a teaching position in the district. (See Respondent's Brief, at 8.) Petitioner disagrees and asserts that he has obtained tenure and is properly certified to teach the courses he was teaching. (Petitioner's Brief, at 5.) Thus, Petitioner claims that the Board violated his tenure rights by terminating his employment and seeks reinstatement and back-pay.

A. Summary Decision

The Board submitted a motion for summary decision and Petitioner has submitted a cross-motion for summary decision. Under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, a party may move for summary decision if:

> the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. When a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. If the adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered.[N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) (emphasis added).]

The OAL summary decision rule is essentially the same as the summary judgment rule under the New Jersey Rules of Court, which permits a party to move for summary judgment if:

> the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to judgment or order as a matter of law. An issue of fact is genuine only if, considering the burden of persuasion at trial, the evidence submitted by the parties on the motion, together with all legitimate inferences therefrom favoring the non-moving party, would require submission of the issue to the trier of fact. [Rule 4:46-2(c) (emphasis added).]

The Supreme Court provided further guidance for the summary judgment analysis in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co., 142 N.J. 520 (1995):

> Under this new standard, a determination whether there exists a 'genuine issue of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-> moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial.' Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 249, 106 S.Ct. at 2511, 91 L.Ed.2d at 212. ... If there exists a single, unavoidable resolution of the alleged disputed issue of fact, that issue should be considered insufficient to constitute a 'genuine issue of material fact for purposes of Rule 4:46-2. Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 250,106 S.Ct. at 2511, 91 L.Ed.2d at 213. The import of our holding is that when the evidence 'is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law,' Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 252, 106 S.Ct. at 2512, 91 L.Ed.2d at 214, the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. [Brill, 142 N.J. at 540.]

To reiterate, the parties have tendered cross-motions for summary decision. They agree that the underlying facts are clear and that no genuine issue of material fact exists. Consequently, this matter is ripe for summary decision.

B. Tenure Acquisition

State statutes grant teachers the right to tenure. The Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18, defines the conditions under which teachers are entitled to the security of tenure. Tenure rights are designed to foster a competent and efficient school system by affording teachers and administrators a measure of security. Viemeister v. Board of Educ. of Prospect Park, 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949). Being of remedial purpose, the Tenure Act is to be liberally construed to achieve its beneficent ends. Lammers v. Board of Educ. of the Borough of Point Pleasant, 134 N.J. 264, 272 (1993); Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 74 (1982). The burden of proving a right to tenure rests with the teacher. Canfield v. Board of Educ. of the Borough of Pine Hill, 51 N.J. 400 (1968).

The requirements for tenure are described in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 which provides in pertinent part:

> The services of all teaching staff members employed in the positions of teacher ... and such other employees as are in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners, serving in any school district or under any board of education ... shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and they shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecoming such a teaching staff member or other just cause ... after employment in such district or by such board for:
>
> (a) Three consecutive calendar years, or any shorter period which may be fixed by the employing board for such purpose; or
>
> (b) Three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or

> (c) The equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years. [Ibid.]

This statute expressly sets forth the criteria necessary for tenure procurement: 1) work in a position for which a teaching certificate is required; 2) possession of the appropriate certificate; 3) service for the requisite period of time. See Spiewak, supra, 90 N.J. at 74.

A review of the record in the instant matter and relevant caselaw, leads to the conclusion that Petitioner satisfies the requisite criteria for tenure acquisition. First, Petitioner has worked in a position requiring an instructional certificate. Petitioner was initially hired in 1984 as a teacher. There is no question that to be employed by a school board as a teacher, a certificate is required. N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1; N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5; N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2.

The second requirement, that the person seeking tenure hold the appropriate endorsement, presents the disagreement in the matter herein. The Board maintains that because Petitioner's endorsement is no longer issued by the State board of examiners, it is obsolete and rendered invalid. Thus, the Board concludes that Petitioner did not hold an appropriate endorsement and is precluded from fulfilling the second statutory condition.

The Board relies in part upon Jennings v. Board of Educ. of the Borough of Highland Park, 1989 S.L.D. 1985, rejected, Comm'r of Educ., 1989 S.L.D. 1093, rev'd, State Bd., 1989 S.L.D. 1097, for support. Jennings involved a petitioner who taught health and served as an athletic trainer for four years. The petitioner, however, held only a physical education endorsement. Such an endorsement did not authorize him to teach health, as distinguished from a "health" or "health and physical education endorsement" which authorize holders to teach health. See N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(10), (11), and (17). Thus, the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") concluded that the petitioner had not obtained tenure since he failed to hold the appropriate endorsement for the position of teacher of health. Jennings, supra, 1989 S.L.D. at 1089. The Commissioner, on the other hand, rejected the initial decision and found that the petitioner was not precluded from obtaining tenure. 1989 S.L.D. at 1095-96. The State Board reversed the Commissioner because it found, as the ALJ had, that the petitioner's physical education endorsement did not authorize him to teach health. 1989 S.L.D. at 1099. The State Board distinguished a physical education endorsement from a "health" endorsement and a "health and physical education" endorsement and stated, "[c]learly health education is regarded as separate and distinct from physical education." 1989 S.L.D. 1101.

The Jennings case is distinguishable from the instant matter. The State Board's holding in Jennings was premised upon the fact that the petitioner taught a subject for which he never held the appropriate endorsement. The petitioner taught health for a period of four consecutive years while holding an endorsement to teach physical education. As such, the State Board correctly found that health education is "separate and distinct from physical education" and that petitioner was precluded from obtaining tenure as a health teacher. Unlike Jennings, however, Petitioner taught a subject for which he held the appropriate endorsement - he taught employment orientation under the Alternative Education program for ten consecutive years while holding a Teacher of Employment Orientation endorsement. Therefore, Petitioner taught a subject which was not "separate and distinct" from the subject his endorsement authorized him to teach.

The Board further relies on McAneny v. Board of Educ. of the Sch. Dist. of the Chathams, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 208. McAneny involved a petitioner who was hired as a supplemental teacher. In this position, the petitioner provided remedial instruction in reading, writing, and arithmetic to children with academic difficulties for nearly thirteen years. However, the petitioner held an instructional certificate with an endorsement in home economics, so she did not posses the proper endorsement for the position of supplemental teacher. The ALJ reviewed the relevant caselaw and noted:

> It is recognized that tenure statutes must be liberally construed in favor of employee protection. Spiewak, at 74. Dugan v. Stockton State College, No A-3996-89T1 (N.J. App. Div. Feb. 5, 1991). Accordingly, one must not adopt a begrudging or ungenerous approach toward what constitutes "appropriate" certification for tenure purposes. Where, for example, a teacher taught a developmental reading component of a ninth grade English > course, she was not deprived of tenure merely because she held a reading endorsement rather than an English endorsement. Bosco v. Northern Reg. Bd. of Ed., 1990 S.L.D. __ (Comm'r Aug. 3, 1990). Here, however, even the most indulgent interpretation of the certification regulations cannot condone the teaching of supplemental instruction by a teacher certified in home economics. [92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) at 210.]

Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that the petitioner did not satisfy the statutory conditions for tenure. Ibid. The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's decision. 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 211. The State Board affirmed stating, "we emphasize that our decision in Jennings v. Board of Education of the Borough of Highland Park, decided by the State Board, February 28, 1989, was limited to the circumstances presented to us by that case." 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 212, 213.

The instant case is distinguishable from McAneny. The McAneny decision was accurately rendered given the undisputed[5] fact that the petitioner therein had taught a subject for which she never possessed the appropriate endorsement; that is, she taught supplemental instruction while holding a home economics endorsement. Contrary to the petitioner involved in McAneny, Petitioner herein taught a subject for which he held the appropriate endorsement - he taught employment orientation under a Teacher of Employment Orientation endorsement.

Both of the cases discussed above are distinguishable from the facts here inasmuch as Petitioner was qualified to teach the course he was hired to teach. Nonetheless, based on the decisions, the Board claims:

> At the time he was hired in 1984, petitioner's Teacher of Employment Orientation certificate was invalid. He could not earn tenure under a certificate that was no longer recognized by the Department of Education. Therefore, the only certificate held by petitioner that would enable him to be employed in the Bayonne School District is the Coordinator Teacher [sic] of Cooperative Industrial Education which he obtained in 1997.
> ....
> Since he never served the requisite period under a valid certificate, petitioner has not met the statutory requirements for tenure. [Respondent's Brief, at 9-10.]

The Board's assumption is incorrect, for Petitioner's endorsement has not been invalidated by the board of examiners or a statutory or regulatory provision. Moreover, the documents contained in the record regarding correspondence by the Department of Education's Office of Licensing and Credentials do not state that the Department refuses to recognize the Teacher of Employment Orientation endorsement.

Additional support is found in Hughes v. Board of Educ. of the Twsp. of West Orange, 1987 S.L.D. 2338, aff'd in part and rejected in part, Comm'r of Educ., 1987 S.L.D. 2347, aff'd, State Bd., 1988 S.L.D. 2467, aff'd, No. A-4558-87T1 (App. Div. June 20, 1989.) Hughes involved a petitioner who sought seniority rights as a guidance counselor. The petitioner had worked on a full time basis under a teacher/counselor endorsement which was no longer issued[6] and specified, "[t]his certificate is required for any teacher who is assigned at least half-time but not full time in carrying out guidance and student personnel services." 1987 S.L.D. at 2343 (emphasis added). The endorsement expressly forbade the petitioner from working on a full time basis under the endorsement. The Commissioner, therefore, held that the petitioner possessed the wrong endorsement, the teacher/counselor endorsement, for the full-time guidance counselor position, but obtained tenure and seniority rights beginning with his subsequent procurement of the proper endorsement. 1987 S.L.D. at 2349. The Commissioner's determination was based upon the explicit language of the teacher/counselor endorsement, not on the fact that the particular endorsement was no longer issued. Ibid.; see also Ackerman v. Board of Educ. of the City of Hackensack, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 149, 150 (demonstrating that the non-issuance of an endorsement does not lead to its invalidity).

The above analysis of pertinent caselaw demonstrates that a particular endorsement is not invalidated once a decision is made to discontinue its issuance. Further, statutory and regulatory provisions do not direct that certificates with endorsements no longer distributed are invalidated. Because Petitioner's endorsement as an employment orientation teacher was not invalidated, suspended or revoked, 6 It appears that the teacher/counselor endorsement was no longer issued since regulations were adopted in 1966 which installed the pupil personnel services endorsement, made available by the introduction of educational services certificates. Hughes, supra, 1987 S.L.D. at 2349.

the Board mistakenly believed that Petitioner held an inappropriate endorsement. Petitioner held a valid certificate and satisfied the second statutory requirement for tenure.

The third statutory condition for tenure acquisition is that the individual serve the requisite period of time. Like the first requirement, Petitioner easily satisfies this one. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 requires a teaching staff member to serve for at least three consecutive years. The Board employed Petitioner from the 1984-1985 school year until the 1998-1999 school year, with the exception of the 1996-1997 school year. He served as a Teacher of Employment Orientation for ten years in the Alternative Education Program. Once transferred to the high school level, he taught for an additional three and a half years. Given the years of service by Petitioner, he fulfills the three years statutory minimum. As such, Petitioner has complied with the criteria necessary for tenure acquisition under his employment orientation endorsement and is a tenured teacher.

C. Petitioner's Employment Rights

Having determined that Petitioner is a tenured teacher, the next issue requiring resolution is whether he is entitled to be reemployed by the Board. The Board contends that since it discontinued the Alternative Education Program (which had an employment orientation course in its curriculum), it no longer offers an employment orientation course. According to the Board's Superintendent, Petitioner was assigned to teach the following courses while at the high school:

1994-1995	Shop 9 and Shop 10
1995-1996	Shop 9, Intro/Shop 9, Intro/Shop 10
1997-1998	Shop 9, Intro/Shop 9
1998-1999	Shop 9, Intro/Shop 9, Intro/Shop 10, Industrial Technology

[Certification of Dr. Malanowski, at 2, ¶ 6, Exh. E.]

Although the exhibit fails to include the maintenance and repair course for the 1998-1999 school year, both parties agree that Petitioner was assigned to teach this course. Nonetheless, the Board now avers that Petitioner is not qualified to teach any course it currently offers. (Respondent's Brief, at 11; Respondent's Reply-Brief dated July 19, 1999 ("Respondent's Reply-Brief"), at 1-2.).

Petitioner certifies that when he was transferred to the high school due to a reorganization in the district, he was assigned to teach courses whose content remained the same as that of employment orientation. Thus, he asserts that although the course names changed inasmuch as he taught Shop 9 and Shop 10 for several years, the classroom instruction did not change. (Ziegler's Certification dated July 2, 1999, at 9-13).

In Figurelli v. Jersey City Bd. of Educ., OAL DKT. EDU 2003-86 (Oct. 28, 1986), adopted, Comm'r of Educ., aff'd, St. Bd. of Educ., 1987 S.L.D. 2607, an ALJ held that a tenured teacher may be transferred to a position with a different title where the duties are substantially similar. Figurelli's position as Director of Pupil Personnel Services was abolished and she was transferred to the position of School Psychologist at a reduced salary. As a result, Figurelli claimed violations of her tenure and seniority rights. In the alternative, Figurelli asserted that if the abolition of her position was upheld, she was entitled to be appointed to the substantially similar position of Assistant Superintendent of Pupil Personnel Services which the Board had filled with a non-tenured individual.

After determining that Figurelli had obtained tenure in the position of Director of Pupil Personnel Services, the ALJ found that the evidence supported the Board's decision to abolish the position due to budgetary considerations which required reductions in personnel. Id. at 17. However, on Figurelli's claim that she was entitled to the Assistant Superintendent position, the ALJ concluded that inasmuch as the duties performed by Figurelli as Director of Pupil Personnel Services were substantially similar to the duties performed by the teacher appointed to the Assistant Superintendent position, Figurelli was entitled to the Assistant Superintendent position. The Commissioner agreed that the duties of the Director and Assistant Superintendent were "substantially similar" and adopted the findings and determinations of the ALJ. Id. at 29-32. The State Board of Education affirmed. 1987 S.L.D. 2607.

Petitioner submits various documents attached to his certification to support his claim that he continued to teach employment orientation although assigned to teach Shop 9 and Shop 10 at the high school level. At a Board meeting held on January 26, 1998, the Board adopted a resolution assigning Petitioner from the "Office of the Superintendent of Schools" to "Bayonne High School Teacher of Employment Orientation." (Petitioner's Brief, Exh. Z.) This document is quite telling since it demonstrates that as late as January 1998, Petitioner was deemed a Teacher of Employment Orientation by the Board.

Once tenure is granted, teachers shall not be dismissed except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Moreover, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, boards of education may reduce their teaching staff for reasons of economy. Petitioner's employment was not terminated for any of these reasons. Rather, as discussed, the Board dismissed Petitioner as a result of its assumption that Petitioner's teaching endorsement was invalid. Since Petitioner's endorsement was valid and he was entitled to tenure in his position, his transfer to the high school level was appropriate. The Board's subsequent assignment of the Shop 9 and Shop 10 courses to Petitioner was also appropriate.

CONCLUSION

Petitioner has fulfilled the statutory criteria necessary for tenure acquisition. Petitioner worked as a teacher, which is a position that requires an instructional certificate. Further, contrary to the Board's assertion, Petitioner's standard certificate with an endorsement as a Teacher of Employment Orientation is valid although it is no longer issued. Therefore, Petitioner holds an appropriate endorsement. Petitioner has also served the requisite number of years under his employment orientation endorsement to acquire tenure. Therefore, the factors set forth by the Legislature in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and clarified by the Supreme Court in Spiewak v. Board of Educ. of Rutherford, 90 N.J. 63 (1982) have been fulfilled and Petitioner is a tenured teacher.

Having concluded that Petitioner is tenured, his dismissal could only result from inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, other just cause, or a reduction in force. Inasmuch as Petitioner's dismissal was premised on a mistaken assumption that he held an inappropriate endorsement, Petitioner should be reinstated and permitted to teach as he had for over thirteen years. Accordingly, the Board's motion for summary decision is denied and Petitioner's cross-motion for summary decision is granted.

It is ORDERED that Petitioner be reinstated with full benefits.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

ALBERT ZIEGLER,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF BAYONNE, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Both parties filed exception and reply arguments, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and these arguments were considered by the Commissioner in issuing his decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner determines to affirm in part, and reverse in part, the recommended decision of the ALJ. Initially, for the reasons carefully outlined by the ALJ in his decision, the Commissioner concurs that, under these circumstances, petitioner has acquired tenure.

However, in order to determine whether the Board improperly terminated petitioner on November 23, 1998 and whether petitioner is entitled to reinstatement to his tenured position of employment (Petition of Appeal at p. 3), it is also necessary to examine what skills are required to be taught, and are actually taught, by a teacher of Shop 9, Shop 10, Maintenance and Repair and Industrial Technology.

In this connection, petitioner asserts that the four courses he taught in the early part of the 1998-99 school year, notwithstanding that they were identified as "Industrial Arts" courses, were essentially "Employment Orientation" courses. Petitioner avers that > [g]iving the course titles such as Shop 9 and Shop 10 does not make them Industrial Arts courses, if, in fact, the curriculum is the same as that taught in Employment Orientation. I prepared Course Requirements for the students in my Maintenance and Repair, Shop 10, Shop 9 and Industrial Technology Classes. (Exhibit UU) These requirements are the same as I have always taught, including my Employment Orientation classes.

> The course titles may have changed, but the subject matter is still Employment Orientation. Students in 1998-99 received general introductory or exploratory instruction in various trades. The Board is attempting to make a distinction that has no real difference. " (Petitioner's Certification at p. 13, paragraphs 27 and 28)

The Board, however, maintains its position that the courses, which petitioner was teaching in the 1998-99 school year, prior to his termination, are properly designated as Industrial Arts courses, which petitioner is not certified to teach. The Board contends that

> It is clear from the descriptions of the Employment Orientation program that the program is a highly structured program designed to evaluate a student's aptitude, teach skills related to finding a job, develop work habits and provide introductory training in the occupational area suited to the student's aptitudes and abilities in consultation with the student's counselor and parent(s). Such a program does not exist in Bayonne High School. (emphasis added) (Board's Post-Hearing Reply Brief at p. 4)
>  [The courses taught by petitioner in the 1998-99 school year] are not designed to evaluate and profile students based on their individual aptitudes and abilities. Instead, these are basic instructional courses designed to provide students, who are interested, with a minimum of training and knowledge in a particular area such as wood working, carpentry, plumbing, electricity or small appliance repair. (Id. at p. 6)

Notwithstanding these assertions, the Commissioner notes that the record shows the following: petitioner's Professional Improvement Plan for the 1995-96 school year was prepared after petitioner's position was placed under the auspices of the Industrial Arts program and at that time petitioner was teaching the same courses he taught at the time of his termination in 1998.[1] The plan states that petitioner shall strive:

> [t]o offer a curriculum of occupational and related academic experiences structured on a highly individual basis and flexible enough to meet the varied needs of the students.
> [t]o evaluate each student in terms of his or her employment potential and apply the appropriate instructional techniques to make them employable; to provide a basic introductory course that would span the various skilled trades, to his or her liking. (Petitioner's Certification, Exhibit V)

Additionally, as the ALJ notes, the Board's resolution adopted at its meeting of January 26, 1998, assigned petitioner to the position of "Teacher of Employment Orientation." (Id. at Exhibit Z)

Therefore, based on the record as a whole, including the parties' arguments in support of their respective motions for summary decision which clearly dispute the skills which are taught within the Board's Industrial Arts program, as well as their arguments on exception,[2] the Commissioner is not persuaded that the issue of petitioner's entitlement to reinstatement is one which should be resolved in summary fashion, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5.

[2] The Commissioner notes, in particular, the Board's argument that the ALJ, "never looked at the actual scope of the employment orientation endorsement; never considered the description of the courses which he now finds that petitioner is authorized to teach; and never explained how courses which are taught by individuals who hold industrial arts and/or teacher of skilled trades certification can now be taught with an employment orientation endorsement. The Administrative Law Judge has, without factual or legal support, concluded that employment orientation is the same as industrials arts. Such conclusion is unsupported factually and legally and is beyond the authority of an Administrative Law Judge." (Board's Exceptions at p. 9)

This matter, therefore, is remanded to the OAL for further fact-finding as necessary to determine (1) the actual duties of, and skills taught by, a teacher of Shop 9, Shop 10, Maintenance and Repair and Industrial Technology within the Board's Industrial Arts Program; (2) whether petitioner's endorsement as a Teacher of Employment Orientation permits him to teach any or all of these courses; and (3) if petitioner is entitled to teach any or all of these courses, what back pay and emoluments are now due as a result of his improper termination.

In so remanding, the Commissioner notes that, contrary to the Board's position, nothing in the record of correspondence from either the County Superintendent or the Office of Licensing and Credentials provides a reasonable basis for its continued assertion that its decision to terminate petitioner was a "good faith reliance on the advice of Department officials." (Board's Reply at p. 2)

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the ALJ is affirmed to the extent that the Commissioner concurs that petitioner has acquired tenure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. As to petitioner's claim that he was, therefore, improperly terminated and is entitled to reinstatement, the Commissioner remands this issue to the OAL for proceedings in accordance with parameters set forth above.[3]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[3] This decision may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner alleged that the District violated his tenure and seniority rights when it abolished his position as Director of Research, Planning and Evaluation and employed him as a school psychologist. Petitioner asserted entitlement to a supervisory position.

ALJ found that petitioner was tenured in the separately tenurable position of director and that he never served in the position of supervisor. Consequently, based upon the applicable law, the ALJ concluded that the tenure rights he accrued in the position of director could not be transferred to the separately tenurable position of supervisor. ALJ determined that petitioner did not obtain tenure in the position of supervisor absent experience and time served in that position. Moreover, a comparison of the job descriptions for the director position held by petitioner and those of the supervisor positions held by intervenors did not show similarities. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioner was not entitled to the supervisor positions held by the intervenors. (Nelson New Jersey Supreme Court decision; Howley; and Brenner) Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner agreed with and adopted as his own the recommendation of the ALJ to dismiss the petition essentially for the reasons set forth in the Initial Decision.

NICHOLAS DUVA,

Petitioner,

v.

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,

Respondent.

Louis P. Bucceri, Esq., for petitioner (Bucceri & Pincus, attorneys)

Charlotte Kitler, General Counsel, for respondent

Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., for intervenors Sharon Bartley and Belinda Mays-Stokes

Record Closed: July 20, 1999 Decided: October 14, 1999

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

On September 18, 1998, petitioner, Nicholas Duva, filed a Verified Petition with the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, alleging that the State-Operated School District of Jersey City (District) violated his tenure and seniority rights when it abolished his position as director of research, planning and evaluation and employed him as a school psychologist instead of offering him a supervisory position to which he believes himself entitled. The District filed its Answer to the petition on October 5, 1998, and on October 29, 1998, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the appeal to Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

As the result of a telephone conference with the parties, it was determined that three individuals who held supervisory positions might be adversely affected by this matter and they were given the opportunity to intervene. Two of the three, Sharon Bartley and Belinda Mays-Stokes, elected to become intervenors. The third supervisor, Joanna Veloz, did not.

It was further determined that the material facts in this matter could be stipulated and the appeal heard upon the papers. The parties prepared a joint stipulation of facts and a briefing schedule was established. The record closed on July 20, 1999, when it appeared that no additional submissions were to be received from the parties.

2. Petitioner holds the following certificates and endorsements:

SUBJECT AREA	ISSUE DATE
School Psychologist	6/72 (Exhibit A)
Supervisor	9/79 (Exhibit B)
School Administrator	8/84 (Exhibit C)

3. The job description for director of research, planning and evaluation under which petitioner was employed beginning in October 1980 is in evidence as Exhibit D.

4. The revised job description, effective April 1990, for director of research/planning/evaluation under which petitioner was employed is in evidence as Exhibit E.

5. As a result of the State takeover of the Jersey City public school system, all supervisory and administrative positions in the District were abolished, including petitioner's, effective on or before April 4, 1990. The District's administration was reorganized as of that date. Petitioner was retained. (Exhibit G)

6. The job description, effective May 1994, for director of planning/evaluation/grants under which petitioner was next employed is in evidence as Exhibit F.

7. By memorandum of July 8, 1998, the respondent's State-District superintendent ordered an administrative reorganization. (Exhibit H)

8. By letters of July 8, 1998 (Exhibit I) and July 31, 1998 (Exhibit J), petitioner was informed that his position as director would be abolished effective July 8, 1998, as a result of the reorganization and that he would be reassigned as a school psychologist for the 1998-99 school year at a lower salary rate.

9. As of July 8, 1998, respondent employed the following non-tenured supervisors:

   Sharon Bartley, supervisor of special education
   Belinda Mays-Stokes, mathematics supervisor
   Joanna Veloz, bilingual supervisor

10. Ms. Bartley, Ms. Mays-Stokes and Ms. Veloz are all certified as supervisors.

11. The following job descriptions are all in evidence:

    Supervisor, Special Education - Exhibit K
    Mathematics Supervisor - Exhibit L
    Bilingual Supervisor - Exhibit M

12. The certificates and endorsements held by Sharon Bartley are:

Supervisor, issued 8/93 (Exhibit N)
Speech Language Specialist, issued 10/90 (Exhibit O)

13. Petitioner's salary during the 1997-98 school year was $99,670.

14. A supervisor at petitioner's level of training and experience would have been paid $92,021 for 1998-99.

15. Petitioner's annual salary as a school psychologist for 1998-99 was $82,750.

The only question to be resolved in this matter is whether Duva was entitled to be employed in the position of supervisor of special education, or any other supervisory position held by any non-tenured employee, for the 1998-99 school year by virtue of his tenure as director under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. In a tenure dispute, the burden of proving a tenure right rests with the teacher. Canfield v. Board of Educ., Borough of Pine Hill, 51 N.J. 400 (1968).

THE POSITIONS OF THE PARTIES

Petitioner argues that he has a tenure right to the position of supervisor, special education, that is held by intervenor Bartley. Pet. Br. at 5. Petitioner bases this argument on the job description for the position, which requires an administrative certificate with a supervisor endorsement and an educational services certificate with either a school social worker, LDTC or school psychologist endorsement. Pet'r Br. at 5. Since petitioner has the appropriate certificates, a supervisor endorsement and school psychologist endorsement, and was a tenured teaching staff member in the respondent school district, he claims that his right to the position supersedes Bartley's, since she is a non-tenured teaching staff member. Pet'r Br. at 5.

Petitioner further alleges that "the imposition of additional requirements beyond supervisory certification cannot defeat a tenure claim to a supervisory position." Pet'r

Br. at 5-6. As such, petitioner claims that he has a right to either the mathematics supervisor position held by intervenor Mays-Stokes, or the bilingual supervisor position held by Veloz and argues:

> Thus, even as to [these] positions . . . petitioner was entitled to be appointed over the non-tenured staff members, despite the inclusion of a subject area certification requirement and various non-certification requirements. Since these job descriptions do not require teaching duties, the requirement of teaching endorsements cannot be used to bar the claim of a riffed tenured supervisor. . . . Based on the foregoing, petitioner had an absolute right to be appointed as a Supervisor in place of a non-tenured Supervisor upon the abolition of his position.
> [Pet'r Br. at 6.]

Respondent contends that despite petitioner's long-term employment with the District, and his possession of a supervisor's endorsement, he has never served in a position of supervisor, and therefore has no tenure rights to such a position. Resp't Br. at 1, 4. Respondent cites to decisional law for its argument that tenure "attaches to a position," and since petitioner has never served in the position of supervisor, he has no tenure entitlement to such a position. Resp't Br. at 6-10.

The District relies upon decisions of the Commissioner and State Board, as well as the New Jersey Supreme Court's holding in Nelson v. Board of Education of the Township of Old Bridge, 148 N.J. 358 (1997), and the 1996 amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 of the Education Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18 (Act), in support of its argument that the "position of supervisor is 'separately tenurable' and hence requires actual service in that specific position to attain tenure in it." Resp't Br. at 11. It concludes with:

> The petitioner acquired tenure in the position of Director, Planning/Evaluation/Grants. He never served a day in the distinctly different position of supervisor, which involves ongoing evaluation of instructional staff, direct monitoring of > services to pupils and development of subject curricula, and he therefore never acquired any rights to any position of supervisor. Upon abolition of his position of Director . . . he was properly placed in his former tenured position of school psychologist. He was accorded all the tenure rights and protection to which he was entitled.

> [Resp't Br. at 18-19.]

The arguments asserted by intervenors Bartley and Mays-Stokes mirror those of the respondent. In short, the intervenors contend that "Petitioner appears to be making the assumption that the title of director and supervisor are interchangeable for tenure purposes. In fact, the opposite is true." Int. Br. at 4.

Like the respondent, the intervenors rely upon the 1996 amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and the Supreme Court's holding in Nelson. In this regard, the intervenors argue that "even if the required endorsement for the two titles, director and supervisor, were the same, Petitioner's claim must still fail because tenure is not transferable. Simply put, service in one position may not confer tenure in a wholly separate position absent service in that position." Int. Br. at 5. In conclusion, they state:

> What is undisputed in this case is that the Petitioner never served in the title of supervisor. It is clear from the statute, as well as the case law, that service in a supervisory title is a prerequisite to a petitioner to accrue tenure as a supervisor. Having never served as a supervisor, Petitioner's claim of tenure must fail under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. That both the qualifications and the duties of the positions held by the Intervenors are wholly distinct from the positions previously held by the Petitioner only further supports this conclusion.
> [Int. Br. at 9.]

Petitioner responds that the state of the law prior to the 1996 amendment "clearly established that tenure as a supervisor extends to claiming any other supervisory position held by a non-tenured person." Pet'r Reply Br. at 1-2. He contends that prior to the amendment, school law decisions "maintained that individuals serving in jobs which were not specifically listed in the statute [N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5] had generalized bumping rights within the scope of their administrative endorsements, excluding those specifically listed jobs in the statute." Pet'r Reply Br. at 3. Petitioner then argues that the 1996 amendment and the Supreme Court's holding in Nelson reinforced this long-standing practice, and concludes as follows:

> Since neither the title of director nor the title of supervisor are listed in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 achieving tenure in one such title allows a tenure claim to any of the others, in the absence of additional certification requirements for which particular duties are involved. . . . The fact that a position claimed might have a different scope, in terms of grades or subjects, is irrelevant. . . . Since petitioner has all of the certificates required for the position of Supervisor, Special Education, there is no need to even analyze the extra certificates specified in the job descriptions for Mathematics/BSIP Supervisor, or Bilingual/ESL/World Languages Supervisor. However, in both cases petitioner notes that instructional certificates are specified in addition to the supervisor certificate. However, since no instructional duties are listed in the job descriptions, petitioner would have a right to those two jobs as well. . . . For all of these reasons, petitioner's tenure under his administrative certificate requires the finding that he was entitled to one of the supervisory positions at issue.
> [Pet'r Reply Br. at 8-9.]

DISCUSSION OF LAW

The acquisition of tenure by educational personnel is governed by the Education Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 through -18 (hereinafter the "Act"). Any interpretation of the Act requires application of several general principles. First, tenure rights are designed to foster a competent and efficient school system by affording teachers and administrators a measure of security. Viemeister v. Board of Educ. of Prospect Park, 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949). Second, because the Act is remedial it is liberally construed to achieve its beneficent ends. Kletzkin v. Board of Educ. of Borough of Spotswood, Middlesex County, 136 N.J. 275 (1994); Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 74 (1982). Third, in a tenure dispute, the burden of proving a tenure right rests with the teacher. Canfield, supra, 51 N.J. 400.

Certain rules and regulations implementing the Act are relevant to the controversy herein. The State Board of Examiners issues only three educational certificates: instructional, administrative and educational services. N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.3. Petitioner has been issued an administrative certificate, governed by N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.1 through -9.7, and an educational services certificate, governed by N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.1 through -11.20.

The State Board of Examiners also issues for each teaching, administrative or service position a special endorsement under the appropriate certificates. N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.3. There are four endorsements to the administrative certificate: school administrator, principal, supervisor and school business administrator. N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3. Petitioner holds endorsements as a supervisor and school administrator. Under an educational services certificate there are several endorsements. N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.3 to -11.20. Petitioner has satisfied the requirements for the school psychologist endorsement and there is no dispute that he has accrued tenure in the position of school psychologist.

The section of the Act pertinent to the matter herein provides:

> The services of all teaching staff members employed in the positions of teacher, principal, other than administrative principal, assistant principal, vice-principal, assistant superintendent, and all school nurses . . . and such other employees as are in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners, serving in any school district or under any board of education, . . . shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and they shall not be dismissed or > reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecoming . . . or other just cause . . . .

> For purposes of this chapter, tenure in any of the administrative or supervisory positions enumerated herein shall accrue only by employment in that administrative or supervisory position. Tenure so accrued shall not extend to any other administrative or supervisory position and nothing herein shall limit or restrict tenure rights which were or may be acquired pursuant to N.J.S. 18A:28-6 in a position in which the individual actually served.

It generally takes three consecutive academic or calendar years to achieve tenure. Ibid.; see also N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c) (which provides that in a State-operated school district tenure may be obtained in a position in the more abbreviated time period, two to three years, afforded under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6).

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 was amended in response to the Appellate Division's unpublished opinion in Nelson v. Board of Education of the Township of Old Bridge, No. A-6441-94 (App. Div. Apr. 29, 1996), which held that tenure accrued under a supervisor endorsement of an administrative certificate is transferable to a principal endorsement under the same certificate, rejecting the long-standing practice of the Commissioner and State Board that positions listed in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 are separately tenurable. In its statement to the amendment, the Legislature found and declared that > a clarification of [N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5] is necessary in order to continue the traditional practice of providing that tenure is acquired in one of the specifically enumerated positions only if the individual has served for the requisite statutorily required period of time in that position.

> [Legislature's Statement to L.1996, c.58, § 1, eff. June 28, 1996.]

The resulting amendment, which effectively reversed the Appellate Division's decision, is embodied in the final paragraph of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, supra.

In addition to the legislative "clarification" of the statute, the Appellate Division was reversed by the Supreme Court in Nelson v. Board of Education of the Township of Old Bridge, 148 N.J. 358 (1997). The Court agreed with the State Board's position that the specifically enumerated positions set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 are separately tenurable. 148 N.J. at 368. The Court observed that prior to the Appellate Division decision, the distinction between separately tenurable positions and those not listed in the statute had "been recognized consistently" by the State Board, the Commissioner and the Appellate Division. Id. at 365.

The Court also agreed with the State Board's position that the Appellate Division's decision would promote unsound education policy if an educator could transfer tenure rights to a separately tenurable position. Id. at 367-68. Elaborating on that position, the Court contrasted Nelson's tenured supervisory position, chairperson of industrial arts, achieved under the supervisor endorsement to his administrative certificate, with the principal position he claimed entitlement to based upon the principal endorsement he held under the same certificate, even though he had never served as a principal.

The Court found that the two positions were "not significantly similar even though both endorsements fall under the [same] administrative certificate." Id. at 367. Nelson's supervisory position had "primarily involved the supervision and assessment of high school industrial arts teachers" while the principal position he claimed entitlement to was the "school's chief administrative post with the sole responsibility for establishing policy for the entire school and controlling every facet of its operation, including all issues concerning staff, students, buildings, and budgets." Id. at 367. The Court concluded its analysis of the issue as follows:

> After the Appellate Division decision in this case, the Legislature amended [N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5] to make clear that the positions listed [therein] are indeed separately tenurable. Accordingly, deference to the State Board's longstanding interpretation . . . is even more compelling. The State Board's determination was neither unreasonable, unsupported by the record, nor violative of any legislative will. We continue to defer to the expertise of the State Board in tenure matters and recognize the educationally-unsound policy results that would flow from applying Nelson's rationale to the positions listed in Section 28-5.

As recognized in Nelson, supra, 148 N.J. 358, the positions of supervisor and principal are separately tenurable positions. See also Rogers v. Board of Educ. of Highland Park, 1990 S.L.D. 691 (where the State Board referred to the position of "supervisor" as separately tenurable). Accordingly, to obtain tenure in either position requires actual service in the position.

The Nelson opinion and the concept of "separately tenurable" can be better understood if the terms "position" and "endorsement" are distinguished. As previously discussed, endorsements are specifically provided by regulation under the three educational certificates issued by the State Board of Examiners. "[A]n endorsement is not synonymous with a 'position,' although in some cases they may actually be the same. For example, the endorsement 'principal' entitles the holder to serve in the . . . 'positions'" of, among others, principal and vice-principal. Howley v. Ewing Bd. of Educ., 6 N.J.A.R. 509, 515 (1982). Tenure is acquired in a position, not an endorsement, by an employee who holds the appropriate certificate and endorsement. Id. at 517.

The Act defines "position" as including any office, position or employment. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1. "Every position must have a position title which is recognized in the administrative code. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3(a). This position title either corresponds to one of the enumerated endorsements, is specifically designated within the endorsement description . . . or has been specifically approved by the county superintendent who has made a determination of the appropriate certification and title for the position. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3(b)." Howley, supra, 6 N.J.A.R. at 516. The endorsement description of "school administrator" includes the positions of superintendent, assistant superintendent, executive superintendent and director.

Petitioner has served in two positions in respondent school district since the State takeover and reorganization in 1990; director of research/planning/evaluation from April 1990 through the 1993-94 school year and director of planning/evaluation/grants from May 1994 until July 8, 1998, when his position was abolished. According to the job descriptions, the positions required an administrative certificate with either a supervisor or principal endorsement. Petitioner possesses a supervisor endorsement.

The facts indicate that petitioner served in both director positions for four years each, exceeding the number of years required by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 to obtain tenure. Like the positions of supervisor and principal, the position of director is separately tenurable. See Brenner v. Board of Educ. of Middlesex, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 81. Having served a total of eight years in the position of director, under the Act and Nelson petitioner has obtained tenure in that position.

Consequently, since petitioner is tenured in the separately tenurable position of director, he is not entitled to any of the supervisor positions currently held by the intervenors. While he possesses a supervisor endorsement, he has never served in the position of supervisor. The tenure rights he accrued in the position of director cannot be transferred to the separately tenurable position of supervisor. See Nelson, supra, 148 N.J. at 367-68. Absent experience and time served in the position of supervisor, tenure is not obtained.

While unnecessary to the resolution of this matter, it is worth noting that a comparison of the job descriptions for the positions of director held by petitioner with the supervisor positions held by the intervenors shows no similarities. The supervisor positions are limited to an assigned school and involve the supervision of instructional personnel. The director positions were district-level positions involved in evaluating and developing the quality of the District's educational programs and securing grants for the District.

Parenthetically, a review of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3 indicates that the position title of director is not recognized in the New Jersey Administrative Code as a title that corresponds with a supervisor endorsement. See N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3 and -9.3(c). As a result, that part of respondent's qualifications for the director position requiring a supervisor endorsement is incorrect. The position title of director is an appropriate title for the school administrator endorsement, N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(a), and the principal endorsement, N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(b). Fortunately, petitioner has held a school administrator endorsement since August 1984, therefore, his tenure in the position of director is unaffected because he holds the proper certificate and endorsement for the position.

CONCLUSION

I FIND that petitioner is tenured in the separately tenurable position of director. I FIND that he has never served in the position of supervisor. Consequently, based upon the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the tenure rights he accrued in the position of director cannot be transferred to the separately tenurable position of supervisor. Absent experience and time served in the position of supervisor, tenure is not obtained. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner is, therefore, not entitled to the supervisor positions currently held by the intervenors.

ORDER

Based upon the above, petitioner is entitled to no relief in this matter and it is ORDERED that his petition is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. NICHOLAS DUVA,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and respondent's reply exceptions, in which Intervenors Bartley and Mays-Stokes join, were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions urge that the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) finding that, as a matter of law, service in the title of director restricts the tenure rights of an individual to other positions with the title of "director" is contrary to the plain language of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and all prior decisions. In support of this assertion, petitioner essentially reiterates at length the arguments he advanced before the ALJ as part of his Brief in Support of Cross-Motion for Summary Judgment and Reply Brief which shall not be repeated herein. Additionally, he excepts to the ALJ's reliance on Brenner, supra, averring that the legal conclusion in that matter is totally irrelevant to his claim because he is claiming a job as supervisor, not one as principal. As to this point, he emphasizes that the title of supervisor is not listed in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and argues, inter alia, that "[b]oth the title 'supervisor' and the title 'director' were removed from the amendments to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 by the legislature before passage of L. 1996, c. 58, §2. Lisa v. Bd. of Ed., Washington Twp., 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 478, 484, fn. 3. Their removal means those titles are not the ones as to which tenure must separately accrue." (emphasis in text) (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 2)

Petitioner's exceptions also argue that:

> Since neither the title of director nor the title of supervisor are listed in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 achieving tenure in one such title allows a tenure claim to any of the others, in the absence of additional certification requirements for which particular duties are required.
>
> The fact that a position claimed might have a different scope, in terms of grades or subjects, is irrelevant.
>
> Since petitioner has all of the certificates required for the position of Supervisor, Special Education (Exhibit K), there is no need to even analyze the extra certificates specified in the job descriptions for Mathematics/BSIP Supervisor (Exhibit L), or Bilingual/ESL/World Languages Supervisor (Exhibit M). However, in both cases petitioner notes that instructional certificates are specified in addition to the supervisor certificate. However, since no instructional duties are listed in the job descriptions, petitioner would have a right to those two jobs as well. [Galbraith v. Lenape Regional High School District, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 396, aff'd N. J. Superior Court 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 558 (App. Div.)]
> (Id. at p. 7)

Petitioner concludes his exceptions with the following statement:

> Since the petitioner held an endorsement as both a School Administrator (N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(a)) and a Supervisor (N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(c)) while employed for the time required by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, it does not matter which endorsement was the legally correct form of licensure. The jobs as supervisor claimed by petitioner would be properly performed under either endorsement and tenure achieved under one such endorsement would extend to the other as long as the positions claimed were not specifically enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Since no position as supervisor is enumerated in the statute, petitioner's claim to one of the positions of supervisor held by non-tenured employees must be > upheld. The decision of the Administrative Law Judge must be reversed. (Id. at p. 8)

Respondent's reply exceptions urge affirmance of the ALJ's decision, emphasizing, inter alia, that petitioner never actually served in any position as supervisor; thus, the ALJ ruled that the tenure rights he accrued in the position of director could not be transferred to the separate position of supervisor. Pointing to the fact that the ALJ found that the job descriptions for the two positions petitioner is seeking showed no similarities in duties and that state code prescribes different endorsements for the positions of supervisor and director, respondent argues:

> In this case, petitioner acquired tenure in the position of Director, Planning/Evaluation/Grants, a position involving the conduct of studies, gathering of data and writing of proposals for funding, but entailing no evaluation or guidance of staff engaged in the delivery of educational services to students (See Job Description, Exhibit F). He never served a day in any position of supervisor for any of the educational programs of the District (such as, special education, mathematics, bilingual education, etc.) which do involve ongoing direction and evaluation of staff (See Job Descriptions, Exhibits K, L & M). Not only is the position of Director a "recognized title," it is recognized in State Code (N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(a) & (b)) as separate and distinct from the position of Supervisor (N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(c)), requiring a different endorsement (either school administrator or principal), and not the endorsement of supervisor. Therefore, since the petitioner never served in any position of Supervisor, he had no rights to such a position, as the ALJ correctly held . (Reply Exceptions at p. 3)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with and adopts as his own the recommendation of the ALJ to dismiss the petition essentially for the reasons set forth in the Initial Decision. As correctly recognized by the ALJ, the endorsement required to serve as a director is that of school administrator or principal, N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(a) and (b). The supervisor endorsement, N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(c), does not authorize service as director. Moreover, petitioner never served in the position of supervisor. Consequently, in keeping with the principles articulated in Nelson, supra, along with the aforementioned regulations specifying the authorization for service under the endorsements of supervisor, school administrator and principal, it is found and determined that the positions of supervisor and director must be deemed to be separately tenurable, notwithstanding the fact that the Legislature removed those positions from proposed legislation prior to its enactment as L. 1996, c. 58, §2.

L. 1996, c. 58 was introduced on June 10, 1996 and signed into law on June 28, 1996. Introduction of this legislation was specifically undertaken to remedy the April 29, 1996 Appellate Division interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 in Nelson, which construed the language of the statute to allow, contrary to longstanding case law, supervisors who held a principal endorsement and who were subject to a reduction in force to bump into a principal position, notwithstanding that they never served in, nor acquired tenure in, a principal position. The sole purpose of the proposed legislation, which was introduced and enacted within 60 days of the court's decision, was immediate restoration of the status quo of prior decisional law, i.e. "to continue the traditional practice of providing that tenure is acquired in one of the specifically enumerated positions only if the individual has served for the requisite statutorily required period of time in that position." L. 1996, c. 58, § 1.

The fact that the Legislature chose at this juncture not to add "supervisor" and "director" to the list of specifically enumerated positions does not have the import petitioner suggests, that is, a deliberate legislative exclusion of these two positions from the universe of positions which are to be held separately tenurable. To the contrary, the enactment's history suggests instead a recognition that the bill as initially drafted would have added a new element to the statute, which was neither necessary to address the issue created by the Nelson decision nor appropriate for legislation designed to express the intent of the Legislature with regard to an existing law so as to restore the status quo to its interpretation as quickly and efficiently as possible. As stated by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Schmoll v. Creecy, 54 N.J. 194, 203 (1969), "inaction can mean only that the Legislature did not act." See also Donaldson v. Bd. of Ed. of No. Wildwood, 65 N.J. 236, 240-241 (1974).

Given the above, the Commissioner is in full agreement with the ALJ's conclusion on page 13 of the Initial Decision that reads:

> [s]ince petitioner is tenured in the separately tenurable position of director, he is not entitled to any of the supervisor positions currently held by the intervenors. While he possesses a supervisor endorsement, he has never served in the position of supervisor. The tenure rights he accrued in the position of director cannot be transferred to the separately tenurable position of supervisor. See Nelson, supra, 148 N.J. at 367-68. Absent experience and time served in the position of supervisor, tenure is not obtained.

Lastly, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that a comparison of the job descriptions for the director job held by petitioner and those of the supervisor positions at issue herein do not show similarities.

Accordingly, for the reasons well-expressed by the ALJ in the Initial Decision and as clarified herein, the Petition of Appeal is dismissed.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF MYRNA MARRERO,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY	:	DECISION
OF BAYONNE, HUDSON COUNTY.	:

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent secretary for alleged improper handling of school funds.

ALJ found that although the criminal charge of theft was reversed on appeal, that result is not binding in the administrative forum. Here the burden of persuasion is preponderance of credible evidence, not guilt beyond a reasonable doubt applicable on the criminal side. ALJ found that the Board met its burden of establishing by a preponderance of credible evidence that respondent intended to convert school money into her own use and would have done so if not for the sting operation involving the police department and school administrators. Moreover, the ALJ concluded that the conduct engaged in by respondent, who had been in a position of trust, was sufficiently serious to warrant the sanction of dismissal. ALJ ordered respondent dismissed from her employment as a secretary.

Having reviewed the audiotapes of the hearing and being satisfied that the ALJ's recitation of the testimony of the witnesses was both accurate and thorough, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's reasoning finding respondent's explanation of the events incongruous. Citing Redcay, the Commissioner found that the particular circumstances of this matter to be "sufficiently flagrant" to warrant respondent's dismissal. Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own and directed respondent be dismissed as of the date of this decision.

INTRODUCTION

The City of Bayonne Board of Education (Board) certified a charge of unbecoming conduct against Myrna Marrero (respondent), a secretary with a tenure status in its employ, to the Commissioner of Education for determination under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, et seq. Respondent was simultaneously suspended from her employment without pay pending disposition of the charge. After the matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to-13, a plenary hearing was conducted before Administrative Law Judge Mary Louise Lucchi-McCloud. Simultaneous briefs were filed on September 2, 1998. ALJ McCloud became physically disabled after the briefs were filed but before she had the opportunity to issue her initial decision. On or about May 18, 1999 and, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.13 (b), the undersigned was temporarily assigned as an administrative law judge to prepare an initial decision based on the record in the matter. Counsel to the parties agree that the issues presented may be decided on the record supplied, without the need for further testimony or submissions.

The record consists of the charges filed by the Board, respondent's answer to the charges, the prehearing order prepared by ALJ McCloud, discovery motions, interrogatories and a request for admissions and responses thereto, documents (P-1 through P-8 and R-1 through R-5) admitted into evidence and as more fully described on the attached Documents in Evidence list, and the respective briefs of the parties. Counsel requested the undersigned to review audio tape recordings of the testimony received at hearing. This initial decision is based on a review of the entire record., including all testimony received at hearing as is recorded on audio tapes which were received by the undersigned on September 6, 1999.

CHARGES

The Board essentially alleges respondent engaged in theft through her failure to make proper disposition of money given her by a student for a particular purpose and, that by her conduct, she intended to convert such money for her own private purpose. The specifications to the charge certified by the Board against respondent are these:

> 1. Ms. Marrero has been employed as a secretary of the Bayonne Board of Education since September 1, 1988 and is currently tenured.
> 2. During the 1995-1996 school year Ms. Marrero was assigned to the [Midtown] Community School as a secretary.

3. Prior to March 28, 1996 and for about one and one-half years there had been a series of thefts of cash at the Midtown Community School. Some involved school monies and others involved the theft of the pay of several employees from their pocketbook while in the secretarial care of the main office.

4. On March 28, 1996 the Principal, Patricia McGeehan, arranged to have envelopes containing school picture money brought to each of the regular secretaries working that day. Two such envelopes were given to Myrna Marrero, each containing $25.00 and clearly marked as school picture money. The other secretary was also given similar envelopes with the same amount of cash in them.

5. In spite of the principal's policy that all such monies should be turned in upon receipt, Ms. Marrero did not turn in the envelopes that morning, whereas the other secretary did. The principal and vice-principal purposely made numerous trips past the desk of Ms, Marrero after they knew she had the envelopes, but she never attempted to turn the envelopes over to either of them.

6. At lunch time Ms. Marrero left the building and the principal and vice principal checked the desk to see if the envelopes were there. When they saw they were not there, they called the detective working on the case of the thefts.

7. Based on the call, Det. Goscinski and policewoman Sullivan stopped Ms. Marrero on the street within several blocks of the school. Ms. Marrero allowed a search of her pocketbook and the envelopes were discovered in the pocketbook with the cash inside. She was charged with the theft of the $50.00.

8. On August 27, 1996, Ms. Marrero, who had pleaded not guilty to the charges, was found to be guilty by Hon. Frank Carpenter, a Judge of the Bayonne Municipal Court, after a trial in which she was represented by legal counsel. Ms.

Marrero has filed an appeal of that conviction, which is pending as of this date [December 17, 1996].

9. The Bayonne Board of Education concluded, based upon this evidence that Myrna Marrero had stolen the property from the Midtown Community School. These actions represent conduct unbecoming a secretary.

FACTS

It is noted that respondent's conviction was reversed in the Law Division of New Jersey Superior Court. Except as otherwise noted, the facts established by a preponderance of credible evidence based on the record as a whole are these. Part I of the factual recitation is based on undisputed facts established by the evidence. Part II of the recitation is based on credibility assessments of witnesses who testified at hearing.

I

Respondent has been employed as a secretary by the Board since 1988. Between her initial employment and 1992, she had been assigned as secretary at the Board's Roosevelt school. Respondent was transferred to the Midtown School in 1992, when the facility was initially opened. The evidence shows that respondent was considered a valuable employee because of her performance and bi-lingual ability. (See R-1 through R-4) Indeed, the evidence shows respondent was relied upon to answer questions for other secretaries should the need arise. (See R-5)

There are three secretaries at the Midtown School; Cathleen O'Connell, Patricia Friscia, and respondent. Ms. O'Connell has been at Midtown since September 1994, Ms. Friscia has been a permanent substitute secretary since September 1995, and respondent. The school principal since 1992 is Dr. Patricia McGeehan (or principal). The vice-principal is Christina Mercun (or vice-principal). Secretaries O'Connell and Friscia worked for the principal and vice-principal, while respondent was assigned as secretary and reported to the bi-lingual education program director identified only as Mrs. Monaghan. Respondent' desk was in the same central office area as the other secretaries, which is immediately adjacent to the main office where the principal' office is located. The vice-principal's desk was located in the same area as the secretaries. The office of bi-lingual director Mrs. Monaghan is adjacent to the central location of the secretaries.

Despite the fact respondent was assigned as secretary to the bi-lingual program director, she also was responsible according to her own testimony to greet members of the public who appeared in the office for various reasons, she provided translation of the Spanish and English languages because many of the school's students and parents only spoke Spanish and none of the administrators speak that language, she did typing, answered telephones, and prepared payroll for those assigned to the after care program. In short, respondent was in all respects a secretary in the Midtown school who happened to be assigned the director of the bi-lingual program.

Sometime in 1994, along with her duties to the bi-lingual program, respondent took on the additional task of being secretary to what is called the "after-care program" for which she received a stipend from the Board. This program is operated in conjunction with a "before-care program,' both of which are operated to benefit parents whose children require adult supervision before school begins and after it ends for the day. Both programs are operated by the Board under the leadership of a Mrs. Finby, who is the Director of Community Education. Mrs. Finby's office is adjacent to the central area where the secretaries are situated. Respondent registered children for the after-care program, she collected fees for the program from parents and occasionally from students in the program whose parents had them bring the fees to her, and she performed ministerial tasks for the teachers involved in the program. When parents came after hours to pick up their children, they would go to respondent who would use the school's intercom system to announce to that particular child to report to the office so their parents could then take them home. The fee for the program was $35 per week which was generally paid at two week intervals. Payment was requested to be made by check, although some parents sent in cash. When students brought after-care fees to her, respondent testified she made out receipts for the students in exchange for the fees with the amount of money tendered.

Respondent's daily working hours were from 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. for the bi-lingual program, and from 4:00 p.m. to 6, 7, 8, or 9 p.m. for the after-care program depending on the activities taking place. For a short while, Ms. Friscia was also the secretary for the before-care program.

It is not disputed that secretaries were the intermediary recipients of various monies collected by students throughout the year. Sources of such funds included school picture money from many of the approximately 1,100 pupils in the school, field trip money, Parent-Teacher Organization (PTO) fund-raiser money, Dad's Club money, Cheerleading Association money, and other fund-raisers. Teachers would send students to the office with collected money for the various activities to the office for submission to one of the three secretaries. The secretaries, in turn, were obligated to insure that the money received was turned over either to the principal or vice-principal, or to Ms. Finby when the money represented fees for the before- or after-care programs.

At the time of first employment, secretary O'Connell was told by her predecessor that money collected from students or teachers must be turned over as soon as possible to either the principal or vice-principal . In the event neither administrator was available at the time, O'Connell was instructed to place the collected money in either a designated lockbox located in the principal's office or, if the principal's office was locked at the time then the secretary could get the key to the office from the vice-principal or janitor. If the key to the principal's office could not be secured, then the money was be placed in the principal's mailbox located behind the secretarial desks in the main office.

Secretary Friscia was also instructed that money given her by students or teachers for a school activity was to be given directly to the principal, or to the vice-principal or, if appropriate, placed in the designated lock box. Ms. Friscia testified that as a general rule she immediately gave one of the two administrators whatever money was given her by students or teachers because one or both of them would always be in or about the office. Rarely, she explained, did she ever place money in the principal's mailbox or in the designated lock box. Indeed, there is no evidence in the record to show that the appropriate collection boxes were inaccessible to the secretaries at any time. Nor is there evidence to show that either the principal or vice-principal were not available to the secretaries at least sometime during the school day.

The principal and vice-principal testified that because of a rash of missing money incidents which had been occurring in the school, secretaries were instructed on several occasions that any money they received from teachers was not to be held by them. Rather, each secretary who received money from students sent or who appeared at the office with money was instructed to place the money in a lock box in the principal's office, or turn over the money directly to the principal or vice-principal, or place the money in the principal's mailbox immediately behind the secretaries' desks in the central office. The testimony of the principals and secretaries, including respondent, establishes that the central concern was the chain of custody of submitted receipts until such time the receipts were safely in a lock box or in the possession of the school administrators for eventual disbursement to the proper party. The evidence shows the emphasis of the school administrators was that secretaries not maintain possession of submitted receipts in order to eliminate the increasing number of missing money incidents which were occurring.

Prior incidents of missing money referenced above include secretary O'Connell in 1995-96 missing $100 from a larger collection made for a party for a staff member who was about to retire; an entire class's picture money was missing after it had been turned in ; $100 was missing from candy sale money which had been turned into respondent but could not be thereafter located; an undisclosed amount of money was missing from various envelopes the vice-principal had placed on a window sill and had asked respondent to watch while she vacated the area for a short time; field trip moneys were missing, as was money from, what I understand the vice-principal's testimony to be, community egg money. These incidents all occurred between 1993 and 1996 and they all occurred after the money reached the secretarial main office area.

The incident which precipitated the "sting" operation referred to in paragraphs four through seven of the specifications to the charge against respondent is this. On or about March 15, 1996 secretary Friscia had $300 stolen from her pocketbook while at work. She testified she and respondent were friendly at the time. Indeed, Ms. Frsicia testified she was staying beyond her normal quitting time of 3:45 p.m. waiting for respondent to finish her work for the after-care program so they could go and have a drink together. It is also noted that during the course of the regular school day, respondent learned before lunch-time her daughter at home was having an asthma attack and had to be taken to the doctor immediately. Ms. Friscia, knowing respondent's automobile was inoperable, called her own daughter and instructed her to drive respondent and her daughter to the doctor immediately, which her daughter did. When Ms. Friscia learned her daughter did not wait at the doctor's office with respondent to insure everything was all right with her daughter, Ms. Friscia instructed her daughter to return to the doctor's office immediately. Respondent acknowledges this sequence of events having occurred on March 15, 1996 and that Ms. Frsicia was waiting for her to finish work to go out and have a drink together.

March 15 was a Friday. Ms. Friscia had just cashed her paycheck, placed the money in a bank envelope, and placed the envelope in her purse. She was at her desk in the central office area, and respondent was at her desk. The teacher who ran the school coffee club, Mr. Walsh, entered the area to receive Friscia's coffee club dues. Ms. Friscia took her pay envelope out of her purse, paid the teacher her $20 coffee club dues, placed the pay envelope back in her purse, and placed the purse back on the floor under her desk. This transaction was observed by respondent who was sitting at her desk no more than 15 feet from Ms. Friscia..

As the transaction was occurring, the teacher asked respondent to make copies of music for him. Ms. Friscia offered to do the copying because at that time she had finished her own work and was simply waiting for respondent to finish her work. The teacher left the music he wanted copied, and made his exit from the central office area. No one was else was present in the office at this time which was about 4:30 p.m. When Friscia went to make the copies on the principal's copy machine which was located immediately behind respondent's desk, respondent urged her to use the copier in the office of the director of the bi-lingual program, Ms. Monaghan, located down the corridor out of view of the secretarial area. Respondent explained that that machine was newer and made better copies. At hearing, respondent testified she instructed Ms. Friscia to use the bi-lingual copier because the after-care program uses the bi-lingual copier and anything that must be copied after the regular school day is considered by her to be after-care work.

Initially, Ms. Friscia was reluctant to use the bi-lingual program's copy machine because she understood it was to be used only for bi-lingual related tasks. Copying of music for the teacher was related to the regular school program and she believed she was to use the principal's copier. Nevertheless, at respondent's urging and because respondent was senior to her, Ms. Friscia accompanied respondent to the bi-lingual office to use that machine and for respondent to explain how to use it. Once the explanation was done and Friscia understood, respondent returned to her desk in the central office area. Friscia remained in the bi-lingual office out of view of respondent to make the copies.

Friscia was away from her desk and out of view of respondent for about 15 minutes while making copies. The thought of her having left her purse in the office with her pay envelope occurred to her while she was making copies, but she reasoned she need not worry because respondent was in the office. When she finished making the copies and returned to her desk, she looked into her pocketbook for her pay envelope. The entire envelope, including the money, was missing or as Ms. Friscia testified, she was "robbed!". Ms. Friscia became very upset that her money was missing, and she searched throughout the office in a vain attempt to locate it. Teachers who were returning to the school building that evening for a student production assisted in the search but without success. Respondent remained at her desk without comment while Ms. Friscia and two or three teachers who came into the office were searching the immediate area for the money. Respondent testified she did not assist in searching for the money because there were too many persons around Ms. Friscia's desk.

Ms. Frsicia telephoned the vice-principal that her money was missing and was advised to telephone the police. When members of the Bayonne Police Department arrived at the school, Ms. Friscia gave them a statement outside the main office area. When she returned to her desk area inside the main office, she was given a message that respondent had left for home because her daughter became ill again. Despite the date being in March when the weather is still cold, respondent left her long leather coat in the office area while the police were taking Ms. Friscia's statement. Respondent testified she did leave the office between 5:30 and 6 p.m. because her daughter became ill and she had to take her to the doctor. She acknowledges she left her coat in school because at the time she was not thinking of her coat; she was thinking only of her daughter.

In the meantime, the principal had returned for a school function that evening and Ms. Friscia had told her what happened regarding her missing money. The vice-principal had also returned to school for the same function and talked with the principal about the missing money. Both school administrators suspected respondent was responsible for the missing money although they did not share those suspicions with Ms. Friscia that evening. The following Monday, Ms. Friscia came to them and said that after having the weekend to think about her missing money she suspected respondent to be the person responsible. The principal told Bayonne Police Detective Goscinski of their suspicions and he, in turn, suggested setting up the "sting" operation. The plan was for the principal to place currency in envelopes plainly marked so there could be no mistake regarding the purpose of the money inside, take the envelopes to a kindergarten teacher, have the teacher send the envelopes back to the main office, hand the envelopes to the respective secretaries, and wait for the respective secretaries to follow established administrative policy of immediately surrendering the envelopes to either administrator or placing them in the lock-box, or otherwise transferring possession in an acceptable manner.

In the meantime, the principal and vice-principal again emphasized to the secretaries not to retain possession of money handed in for various school activities in light of the disappearance of Ms. Friscia's $300. Indeed, the secretaries were instructed not to leave money in the principal's mailbox anymore; rather, they should be certain to hand the money directly to either the principal or vice-principal. It is also noted that while the evidence in the record, including the testimony of respondent, is that the principal and vice-principal had reduced to writing their concerns of insuring the safety of funds collected, copies of the memoranda were not retained. Respondent did testify she saw such memoranda and she also testified she was present when the principal would emphasize to all secretaries the need for safety of money received.

The "sting" was carried out on March 28, 1996. Respondent was present at her desk, as was secretary O'Connell and a substitute for Ms. Friscia who was out sick that day. Respondent had just returned from being absent several days in a row. The principal placed $25 in each of two envelopes which she subsequently sealed, and which had sufficient markings on them for anyone to know the purpose of the money inside. She took the envelopes to a kindergarten teacher and instructed the teacher to send two of her students to the office to give the sealed envelopes to secretary O'Connell. Both the principal and vice-principal insured they would be in and around the office all day so that it could not later be said by anyone that they were not available to give them the sealed envelopes containing the money. The students did as they were instructed by their teacher and went to the office and gave O'Connell the envelopes. Secretary O'Connell immediately gave the two envelopes containing the money to the principal as she and the other secretaries were instructed to do.

Next, the principal took two more envelopes with sufficient markings on the outside so there could be no dispute regarding the purpose of the money inside the envelopes. One envelope (P-2, pp. 1-2) is clearly an envelope of the company, Life-Touch, that takes student pictures and which uses the envelopes for the submission of picture orders and money. The principal placed $25 in this envelope, sealed it, placed a check mark in the appropriate place on the face of the envelope that $25 was inside the envelope for "A Complete Package/Paquete Completo" of pictures, placed a student's name on the envelope, the name of the student's teacher, and the school's initials. Next, the principal placed $25 in a plain envelope (P-2, pp.3-4) and sealed it. The principal wrote on the face of the envelope a student's name and "25 $ Picture", along with the classroom and classroom teacher's name. The principal took the envelopes to the kindergarten teacher and instructed her to send the envelopes back to the office with two of her students and to give to respondent. The teacher and students did as requested. The envelopes were given respondent, who was the only secretary in the office at that time, by the two kindergarten students around 11:30 a.m. The principal and vice-principal insured they were in and out of the main office area from 11:30 on for respondent to give one of them the envelopes containing the picture money. Respondent did not do so; she retained possession of the sealed envelopes. The vice-principal testified she deliberately engaged respondent in conversation between 12:30 and 1 p.m. talking about respondent's health to make it easy for respondent to simply give her the envelopes. In the face of the very convincing testimony that the principal and vice-principal made themselves available to respondent between 11:30 and 1 p.m. on March 28, she testified neither administrator was available for her to give the envelopes to.

The principal notified detective Goscinski through a prearranged telephone call to his pager that respondent left the building without having turned in the envelopes. The detective and a uniformed female police officer had stationed themselves near the school facility. They saw respondent walking away from the school and intercepted her at an intersection. In response to the officers' questions, respondent denied having school property in her possession. Respondent did give them permission to pat down her coat, after which they requested she accompany them back to the school. They proceeded to the school multi-purpose room where the uniformed officer, having received respondent's permission, searched her purse and found the two envelopes - unsealed. Respondent, when asked what the envelopes were, stated she thought the money was for the after-school program. Respondent was placed under arrest and charged with theft. She was then transferred to police headquarters for booking and additional questioning by the police. Detective Goscinski testified respondent explained she thought the money was for the after school program and that she really did not look at the envelopes. She further explained she denied having school property in her possession because when she was asked if she did, she thought she was being asked if she had some thing of the school's with her; she did not think of the envelopes or the money as property. He testified respondent said she was instructed by Ms. Finby, the after-care director, to hold all fee money until she reported for work at 2 p.m. and that she was simply doing what she was instructed by Ms. Finby to do.

Ms. Finby had retired prior to the commencement of the hearing in the matter. She was not called to testify in the proceeding. Goscinski testified that when he talked with Ms. Finby she denied ever telling respondent to hold money until she arrived at 2 p.m.; that she did not authorize anyone to take school money off school property that day; and, finally, Ms. Finby told the detective that her office was open that day and respondent should have put the money in her lockbox if she did not give it to either administrator. In response to the detective's specific question, respondent denied having intended to steal the money in the envelopes that day.

Respondent says she understood her responsibility concerning the acceptance of money from students in this manner. Respondent testified she disposed of moneys given by students for regular school activities in the lock-box in the principal's office or give it to the vice-principal or principal. She testified she never received any special instructions for the handling of after-care money. Respondent testified when she received money representing fees for the after-care program, or on occasion for the before-care program, .she would place the money in a box designated for that purpose which was in a closet in Ms. Finby's office or retain the money until Ms. Finby reported for work at 2 p.m. Respondent would secure the key to Ms. Finby's office if Ms. Finby was not yet present from either the principal, vice-principal, or school janitor. If she received money related to a PTO fund-raiser, she would deposit the money in the P.T.O. lock box or, if the money was related to a school activity such as picture money or candy money, she would turn the money over to the principal or vice-principal. Respondent also testified that on occasion, Ms. Finby would authorize her to take after-care money off school premises in order to convert the cash received for the student fees into money orders. Secretary Friscia also testified that when she had been assigned the before-care program and was responsible for collecting those student fees, Ms. Finby had asked her on one occasion to convert cash into money orders. Ms. Friscia refused to do that because she felt uncomfortable taking school money off school property and she knew taking school money off school property was prohibited which she never did.

Respondent testified that March 28 was her first day back to work from a series of sick days she had taken and, consequently, had a number of purchase orders she had to type for the following school year. Respondent acknowledges she received two envelopes from two kindergarten children about 11:30 a.m., and because she was so busy typing purchase orders, she simply placed the envelopes on the top of her desk with the intention of getting to them later. She testified she presumed the envelopes contained after-care money from the parents of the students who delivered the envelopes. When she prepared to go to lunch at 1 p.m., she recalled the envelopes were still on her desk in, she says, an unopened state. Because she assumed money was in the envelopes, she decided to put them in her purse while she went to lunch. She would then turn over the envelopes to Ms. Finby when she came to work at 2 p.m. Respondent explained she did not put the envelopes in her desk for safekeeping because she does not have a key to lock her desk, and because of the heightened concern regarding the handling of money she did not want to leave the envelopes unattended. Respondent says she did not turn the envelopes over to either administrator because neither administrator was available for her to surrender the envelopes and/or she says because after-care money goes directly to Ms. Finby.

The principal testified that from the date of respondent's suspension from her employment to the present, no incidents of missing money have occurred at the Midtown School.

II

The preponderance of the evidence establishes that the events prior to and on March 28, 1996 occurred as described by the witnesses for the Board. Each Board witness, I find, was truthful, forthcoming in responses to questions posed, and unbiased. That the principal and vice-principal concluded respondent was considered to be a likely suspect responsible for the rash of missing money does not in the circumstances confronting the administrators render their testimony of the entire matter biased.

The evidence does not support respondent's testimony that the entire matter is a misunderstanding of her responsibility as secretary for the after-care program. Her claim that it is not unusual for her to have after-care money off school property is, in the context of the charge against her, rejected as ill-founded. The threshold fact to be established in the matter is not whether respondent was authorized by Ms. Finby to be in possession of after-care money off school property on March 28, and even if it was, the evidence establishes she was not so authorized by anyone other than her own view of what she could or could not do. Rather, the essential fact to be decided is whether under all the circumstances respondent, more likely than not, knew the money in the envelopes she opened on March 28 before being arrested was intended to be school picture money.

Respondent, through the course of her duties as the secretary for the after-care program, got to know all the children by sight, no more than 25, who were enrolled in the after-care program. Thus, she had to know the children who delivered the envelopes to her were not after-care students. As secretary for the after-care program who registered students for the after-care program, she knew or had reason to know, no children from the morning kindergarten classes were enrolled in the after-care program. She knew by virtue of the time of day the envelopes were delivered that the two kindergarten children were from the morning kindergarten classes. The envelopes were plainly marked as containing picture money, an activity wholly unrelated to the after-care program. It is not reasonable for a secretary, knowing the problems the school experienced with missing money, to accept two envelopes from kindergarten children and not look at the envelopes being accepted. A mere glance at the envelopes is sufficient for any reasonable person to know that the contents of the envelopes were designated as containing money for school pictures.

Respondent testified that merely seeing school picture envelopes is not a compelling signal to her that the money enclosed was for that purpose. She explained that after-care fees were sent her in all kinds of envelopes including Public Service envelopes for the payment of bills, church envelopes, and so on. The weakness in this explanation is she claims not to have even looked at the envelopes on March 28. It is unlikely that she, a secretary of close to ten years experience, accepted envelopes from kindergarten children without being secure in knowing precisely what the contents of the envelopes were for. Finally, respondent testified she knew all 26 students by sight in the after-care program and she knows that the student whose name was on one of the envelopes given her March 28 was not in the program. Nevertheless, she insists she believed the envelopes were after-care money because she says she reasoned that the named pupil could have just started in the program. But, in light of the fact respondent registers the children for participation in the program and she did not register this particular program, respondent explains that away by saying someone else could have registered him.

The envelopes were sealed when delivered to respondent by the two kindergarten children. When respondent was intercepted by the police and had her purse searched, the envelopes were opened. Consequently, at some point between the time of acceptance and the time of interception by the police, respondent opened the envelopes and saw the cash inside. The Light Touch envelope, together with the student's name and order for the complete package, together with the markings on the second envelope, clearly identified the money was for pictures; not for anything else. Finally, respondent did not give the students receipts for the money contained in the envelopes which she insists she believed to be after-care money despite the clear markings on the envelopes that the money inside was for school pictures. Respondent's explanation at hearing rings hollow that when she returned from lunch she would check with the kindergarten children who gave her the money exactly what part of the after-care program the money was for and then give them a receipt or mail a receipt to their parents. As emphasized by Board counsel during cross-examination of respondent, her claim that she would check with kindergarten students she knew did not participate in the after-care program what part of the after-care program the money they gave her in the morning was for is ludicrous.

Respondent testified she put the envelopes on the top of her desk when she received them at 11:30 a.m. because she was so busy and because she was then talking with a teacher whose identity she could not recall at hearing. The vice-principal is positive that at the time of delivery of the envelopes, respondent was not engaged in conversation with anyone. The principal and vice-principal made it a point to be in and out of the main secretarial area at this time to provide respondent with every opportunity to turn in the envelopes to them. Despite being in close proximity to respondent's desk, neither administrator saw the envelopes on the top of her desk after delivery by the students. Indeed, the vice-principal engaged respondent in a thirty minute conversation between 12:30 and 1 p.m. so that respondent would again have the opportunity to turn in the envelopes.

Respondent's testimony she did not have a key for her desk is rejected as untruthful. The believable evidence presented by the Board through the testimony of the vice-principal is that respondent did have a key to her desk which was given her when she was first assigned to the Midtown school and that respondent has on prior occasions locked her desk. There is no evidence that respondent ever reported her key missing or lost to anyone in authority at the Midtown school. Respondent's testimony that neither administrator was available to give the envelopes is rejected as being untruthful because she acknowledges she had a conversation with the vice-principal for thirty minutes between 12:30 and 1 p.m. Respondent's testimony that she did not look closely at the envelopes to know what they were for is rejected. The envelopes need not be inspected with a microscope to determine the purpose for which they were being submitted and it is abundantly clear that the envelopes were not intended for the after-care program. Furthermore, respondent's testimony that she believed the student whose name is on the envelope was newly enrolled in the after-care program solidifies her testimony as incredible that she did not know what the money inside the envelopes was for because she did not look at the envelopes.

Respondent's testimony that she was going to turn over the envelopes to Ms. Finby at 2 p.m. is rejected. I infer that when respondent took the envelopes from the kindergarten children she knew because of the markings there was cash money in them. I infer respondent then opened the envelopes surreptitiously, discovered the amount of money inside, and placed the envelopes immediately into her purse. I specifically infer and, consequently find as fact, that respondent had every intention of retaining possession of the combined $50 for her own personal use and only claimed she thought the money was for after-care when she was intercepted by the police to avoid having to face the truthful reality of her conduct.

CONCLUSION

Having found that respondent intended to convert school money into her own personal use, it cannot be gainsaid in the entire circumstance of the event that such conduct is conduct unbecoming a school employee. One is not employed as a secretary by public boards of education to work themselves into positions of trust in order to convert public moneys collected for their own use in that position of trust. While respondent may have been inartfully charged with "theft," this is not the forum where the criminal charge of theft under N.J.S.A. A. 2C:20-1 is to be tried.

The criminal charge was tried upon which respondent was initially found guilty, which verdict was reversed on appeal.

The sequence of events in municipal court and then the New Jersey Superior Court, Law Division, and the results obtained therein, is not binding in this forum. Here, the charge of "theft", particularly in light of the specifications to the charge, manifests an intention of the Board to administratively charge respondent with conduct unbecoming an employee. In this administrative forum, the burden of persuasion is preponderance of credible evidence; not guilt beyond a reasonable doubt applicable on the criminal side. The Board has met its burden of establishing by a preponderance of credible evidence that respondent fully intended to convert school picture money into her own use on March 28, 1996 and would have done so had it not been for the sting operation involving the Bayonne Police Department and school administrators.

Prior to this incident, respondent had been considered a valuable employee; a person to whom newer employees could go for answers to questions regarding their job should the need arise. She was trusted by administrators and undoubtedly other professional employees to use her bi-lingual talents in a manner helpful to the efficient operation of the school. The special manner in which respondent was viewed by her supervisors, with which respondent was keenly aware, render this offense to be especially egregious. Respondent knew the special trust placed in her to be collecting money in the first instance; she knew that by being responsible for the collection of after-care program fees that she was trusted by those with whom she worked. Her conduct in this matter destroyed that trust in a blinding instant to the extent the principal is convinced respondent should not ever be allowed to return to her position of employment in the Midtown School. The victims of the rash of missing money incidents now have a likely suspect who turns out to be a colleague. No incidents of missing money have occurred in the Midtown School since respondent was suspended on the charge.

One incident of conduct unbecoming may be sufficiently serious to warrant the ultimate sanction of dismissal. In this case, the underlying conduct is sufficiently egregious to warrant the ultimate sanction of dismissal when viewed from the perspective of the conduct itself as well as the conduct being committed by someone in a position of trust as was respondent. The evidence shows respondent's conduct destroyed her capacity to be part of the team of employees upon whom the Board may rely in carrying out its mission to provide its pupils with a thorough and efficient program of education.

In consideration of the conduct engaged in by respondent as established by the Board by a preponderance of credible evidence, I conclude Myrna Marrero must forfeit her tenure employment as a secretary with the Bayonne Board of Education. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P. O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 1341-97
AGENCY DKT. NO. 603-12/96

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF MYRNA MARRERO,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY	:	DECISION
OF BAYONNE, HUDSON COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter, which it is noted contained audiotape recordings of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL),[1] and the Initial Decision of the OAL have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions and the Boards's reply thereto were filed in accordance with the directives of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate those arguments previously advanced to the ALJ in her post-hearing brief. She again argues that the Board did not meet its burden of proof on its charge that she stole money from the school on March 28, 1996. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 3) In this regard, respondent repeats her allegation that the Board's witnesses "had preconceived opinions regarding [her] guilt," and, as a result, their testimony must be viewed as biased. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 2) Such bias, she asserts, is particularly relevant when attention is directed to "differences in testimony" regarding procedures for collecting and handling money and the possession of funds outside the school building. (Id. at p. 3)

Respondent once again emphasizes that the charge lodged against her was that she stole money from the school on March 28, 1998, not, she argues, that she violated school policy by taking money off school premises; that she failed to properly record the funds when they were turned over to her; or that she violated a procedure when she did not deposit the funds in the P.T.O. Box. (Id. at p. 3) Next, respondent again advances that because the Board's charge was "theft," guidance as to the extent of the Board's burden in establishing such charge may be gained from an examination of the criminal definition of theft, N.J.S.A. 20C:20-3, which, she avers, is the unlawful taking, or unlawful control over the property of another "with purpose to deprive him thereof." (Id. at p. 4) As such, respondent maintains, in order for the Board to sustain its burden here it was obligated "to prove that [respondent] had the purpose, or intent, to deprive the [school] of the property." (Id.) Respondent contends that the Board has failed to meet its burden of proof in this matter, requiring that the tenure charges be dismissed and that respondent be restored to her position.

Finally, respondent urges that if the Commissioner finds "some form of improper conduct," the circumstances of this matter do not warrant her dismissal but, rather, some lesser penalty should be imposed. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 6)

In reply, the Board advances that the ALJ's initial "decision is not only well-reasoned and correct on the merits, but reaches the only possible conclusion based upon the evidence presented to him." (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 3) With regard to respondent's charge of "bias" of the witnesses, the Board argues that to give credence to such a contention would be tantamount to accepting "that the Board's witnesses are lying in order to 'frame' an innocent employee," a finding which is fully belied by the record. (Id.) Further, it posits, the testimony of each of the Board's witnesses is fully consistent "on every crucial point." (Id.) Respondent's testimony, in sharp contrast, it asserts, "is either flatly contradicted by that of others, is inconsistent, or is just simply incredible." (Id. at p. 4) The Board presents, what it purports are, numerous testimonial examples in support of this contention. (Id. at pp. 4-7) As such, it reasons, the ALJ "correctly concluded that Ms. Marrero was untruthful in her sworn statements, and that her attempts to explain her actions were illogical, absurd, and, in the Court's own language, 'ludicrous.'" (Id. at p. 7)

The Board next states that respondent's attempt to mask her responsibility for her actions by clothing herself in the mantle of criminal law is no more than an effort to obfuscate the real question before the Commissioner, "whether the Board proved by a preponderance of credible evidence (that is, was it more likely than not) that Marrero took the money with an intent to make it her own." (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 8) It avers that, based on the within record, an affirmative answer to this question is the inevitable conclusion. (Id.)

Finally, the Board advances that the within respondent has presented "no mitigating factors" which might serve to justify alleviation of the ALJ's recommended penalty of dismissal which, it avers, is fully warranted in this matter. (Id. at p. 10)

Upon his independent and comprehensive review of the record, including all testimony proffered at the hearing, the Commissioner, finding respondent's exceptions without merit, determines to affirm the findings and conclusion of the ALJ that the Board has established, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, its charge of unbecoming conduct[2] against respondent, and that such conduct warrants respondent's removal from her tenured position.

In reaching his determination here, the Commissioner was fully cognizant that this matter, to a great extent, turns on the credibility of witnesses and the weighing of evidence. The Commissioner's comprehensive review of the audiotapes of the hearing provides him with no basis to challenge the credibility determinations of the ALJ. Rather, he is fully satisfied that

[2]As was aptly noted by the ALJ, "[w]hile respondent may have been inartfully charged with 'theft,' this is not the forum where the criminal charge of theft under N.J.S.A. 2C:20-1 is to be tried." (Initial Decision at p. 17) Rather, the ALJ's recitation of testimony is both accurate and thorough, and that he carefully measured conflicts, inconsistencies, and plausibility of content in deciding which testimony to credit. Moreover, the Commissioner was especially mindful that:

> Testimony to be believed must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness but must be credible in itself. It must be such as the common experience and observation of mankind can approve as probable in the circumstances. (In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950))

For the reasons aptly detailed by the ALJ on pp. 15-17 of his Initial Decision, the Commissioner finds respondent's explanation of the events which transpired on March 28, 1996 incongruous.

In considering the appropriate penalty in this matter, the Commissioner duly took into account respondent's lengthy, apparently unblemished record with the Board but, nonetheless, determines that the charge established herein, under the particular circumstances of this matter, is "sufficiently flagrant" to warrant respondent's dismissal. (See Redcay v. State Board of Education, 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943); aff'd 131 N.J.L. 326 (E. & A. 1944).)

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the recommended decision of the OAL, for the reasons clearly stated therein, and hereby orders that Myrna Marrero be dismissed from her tenured position with the Board of Education of the City of Bayonne as of the date of this decision.[3]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

"[h]ere, the charge of 'theft,' particularly in light of the specifications to the charge, manifests an intention of the Board to administratively charge respondent with conduct unbecoming an employee." (Id. at p. 18)

For Petitioner, Kenney, Gross and Kovats, L.L.P. (Michael J. Gross, Esq.)

For Respondent Athletic Association, Herbert, Van Ness, Cayci & Goodell, P.C. (Steven P. Goodell, Esq.)

For Respondent Board of Education, McDonald, Rogers & Rizzolo (Michael J. Rogers, Esq.)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition for Emergent Relief filed on November 30, 1999. Therein, Petitioner (Hazlet) alleged that at the conclusion of a November 19, 1999 semifinal playoff game under the auspices of respondent New Jersey Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA), with Hazlet's Raritan High School team facing the team from respondent Somerville Board of Education (Somerville), "the officials made an unreasonable, unexplained, and clearly erroneous decision," resulting in Hazlet losing the game and Somerville winning the right to proceed to the NJSIAA Central Group II final championship game scheduled for Sunday, December 5, 1999 (Hazlet's papers state December 4). Hazlet officials immediately sought "reversal, clarification and/or explanation" of the officials' decision, but were denied. Hazlet then filed a protest with NJSIAA seeking the same relief, but were once again denied based upon Article VII of the NJSIAA bylaws, which provides that "protests based upon an official's judgment, or misinterpretation (misapplication) of the playing rules, will not be honored."

Petitioner submitted a certification of the Raritan High School Athletic Director describing in detail the specific events underlying its application, wherein it sought from the Commissioner a reversal of the officials' decision at issue, stay of the final championship game pending the outcome of this appeal, an immediate date for a final hearing as to the legitimacy and validity of the disputed decision, a directive that NJSIAA provide a written explanation setting forth the officials' decision-making process and rationale for the disputed decision, and a declaration that NJSIAA bylaws are illegal, unconstitutional and in violation of the State and federal anti-trust laws.

In response to Hazlet's application, both NJSIAA and Somerville filed reply papers as directed, including certifications, on December 2, 1999.

Hazlet's fundamental argument is found in that allegation of its petition claiming that "the determination by the officials in this case goes beyond a mere judgment, misinterpretation or misapplication of the rules of football. Rather, their decision and the process utilized in reaching that determination calls into question the integrity and reputation of the entire interscholastic sports system. Therefore, the exclusionary provisions of Article VII are not properly applied to this matter." That allegation is echoed by the statement of the Athletic Director noting that "it continues to be the position of the Petitioner that the [disputed decision] was not a judgment, application or interpretation of the rules governing varsity football, but was, rather, a blatant error which is incorrect and invalid on its face, and subject to reversal." As to the need for emergency action, Hazlet argues that it will clearly suffer irreparable, immediate and dramatic harm if relief is not granted, in that it will lose an unrecoverable opportunity to play for the Group II Championship and no subsequent legal or equitable remedy can compensate for such loss.

The essence of Hazlet's argument, then, is that, in the interest of fairness, due process and integrity, an error by game officials, particularly if sufficiently obvious, egregious or consequential to the team against which the call is made, cannot be considered to be a "judgment" or a "misinterpretation (misapplication)" of playing rules for purposes of review on appeal to the NJSIAA or the Commissioner.

Upon careful consideration of this matter, and granting every inference to Hazlet for purposes of this proceeding, the Commissioner is unable to grant the relief requested.

Initially, the Commissioner cannot find that the circumstances and disputed decision herein, which are described in detail in Hazlet's papers and characterized by Hazlet itself as an "error," constitute anything other than a judgment call on the part of game officials. As such, even granting, arguendo, that the decision at issue was not correct, under the clear and explicit bylaws of NJSIAA, it is not reviewable. Further, those bylaws, by law, are adopted as controlling policy by boards of education when they elect to join the NJSIAA, which is a fully voluntary organization. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3. Thus, Hazlet, as every other district, is aware that game officials will make judgment calls and applications of rule which cannot be challenged on the basis of error, and that there is no allowance for exception, even in the case of those errors which are deemed egregious by the affected party. Such awareness is based both upon the explicitness of the bylaws and explanatory guidelines themselves, and upon the consistent interpretation of them over the years.

While the consequences of any given official call may be unfortunate for a team, NJSIAA's rule recognizes the reality that game officials' calls are routinely disputed, and that permitting such calls to be challenged on the basis of error would result in both endless litigation and scheduling quagmires, since no game could be considered final if its outcome were in dispute as a result of an alleged error by field officials. Granting the relief sought by Hazlet herein would, in effect, establish both an exception to the rule and a slippery slope wherein challenges would routinely arise based upon the question of how obvious, or serious, or consequential, an error must be in order to be reversable. This result is neither fair nor practicable.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds that the decision herein disputed is not reviewable by him, that the determination of the NJSIAA not to honor Petitioner's protest was a correct and lawful application of that organization's bylaws under the circumstances, and that the bylaw at issue, as interpreted herein, does not offend the due process rights of teams and student athletes whose districts adopt it as policy when joining the NJSIAA so as to enjoy the privilege of participation in interscholastic athletics. The application for emergent relief is denied and the petition dismissed.[12]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

[2] Nothing herein precludes Petitioner, should it so desire, from writing the Commissioner or NJSIAA to request consideration of a prospective change in NJISAA's bylaws as they pertain to situations of the type that gave rise to the within dispute.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, school custodians who became employees of the Berkeley Heights School District subsequent to the dissolution of the Union County Regional High School District in 1996, alleged the Berkeley Heights Board failed to recognize their appropriate level of salary when they transferred to that constituent District from the Regional. Petitioners contended that the Board denied them their rights to salary guide placement to which they were statutorily entitled pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64. Board sought to dismiss the petition as untimely under the 90-day rule, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

ALJ concluded that the Board violated petitioners' statutory entitlement to be placed on the salary guide at a step and level commensurate with their service in the now-dissolved Regional District. ALJ found that petitioners' entitlement derived directly from statute and was not an element of the employment contract. Pursuant to Lavin, the ALJ found that the right to relief was not governed by the regulatory limitation period. ALJ ordered the Board to compensate petitioners for the 1997-98 school year and to place them on the appropriate step of the salary guide for succeeding years, where applicable.

Commissioner determined to reverse the recommended Initial Decision and to dismiss the petition as untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Commissioner noted that petitioners received notice of their salaries for 1997-98 by letter, dated June 9, 1997; yet, their petition was filed October 10, 1997, beyond the 90-day limitation period. Commissioner observed that petitioners neither disputed that their petition was outside of the 90-day limitation period, nor did they provide any explanation or excuse for its untimeliness. Citing Kaprow, the Commissioner stressed that the 90-day rule is strictly applied. Moreover, the Commissioner found without merit petitioners' assertion that their claim for relief was a "statutory entitlement" within the intendment of Lavin, in that such claim to additional salary and correction of their salary guide placement was based solely on the benefits granted them by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, triggered by the dissolution of the Regional District and bore no relation to their service to the Board. Specifically he determined that, upon the dissolution of a regional district, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 operates as a "save harmless" provision to preserve and protect benefits earned by affected individuals by virtue of their service in such regional district. Absent rights and benefits accrued through petitioners' prior employment, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 does not operate to independently create a benefit for them. Because petitioners were not entitled to any right or benefit independent from the administration of a school system but, rather, any right or benefit to be afforded them herein was wholly predicated upon services they previously rendered as Regional District employees, their claim did not fall within the narrow prescriptions delineated in Lavin which might entitle them to a waiver of the mandatory filing timelines. Consequently, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) applied here to bar petitioners' claims and the Commissioner found no compelling or exceptional circumstances to relax the 90-day rule. Petition was dismissed as untimely.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal by ten school custodians who became employees of the Berkeley Heights School District ("Berkeley Heights") after the breakup of the Union County Regional High School District ("Union County Regional") in 1996. Petitioners, who had previously worked for Union County Regional, contend that Berkeley Heights failed to recognize their appropriate level of salary when they transferred to that surviving district. Although all petitioners had achieved tenure as custodians in Union County Regional, they do not base their claim on the tenure law. Rather, they maintain that Berkeley Heights violated their statutory entitlement under N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, which prescribes the rights of employees of a regional school district "in the event of dissolution." In particular, petitioners allege that Berkeley Heights and the collective-negotiating unit representing existing custodial employees improperly renegotiated their unexpired two-year contract to provide lower salaries for incoming custodians from Union County Regional.

At the outset, Berkeley Heights seeks to dismiss the petition as untimely under the ninety-day rule, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). If the merits are reached, Berkeley Heights asserts that the historic practice in the district has been to fix custodians' salary on factors other than seniority. Furthermore, Berkeley Heights argues that the revised salary scale is the binding product of collective negotiations.

Procedural History

Respondent Berkeley Heights filed a motion to dismiss the petition, together with supporting certification and legal brief, on July 31, 1998. Petitioners filed a cross-motion for summary decision, with legal brief, on August 8, 1998. Both parties filed a stipulation of facts on August 24, 1998. Berkeley Heights filed a reply brief and opposing certification on August 21, 1998. Thereafter, petitioners filed a reply brief and opposing certification on September 2, 1998. The Office of Administrative Law heard oral argument on the cross-motions on December 16, 1998.

Findings of Fact

All of the material facts are stipulated or undisputed. I FIND:

Union County Regional was a regional high school district comprised of several local school districts including Berkeley Heights. Voters of Union County Regional approved the dissolution of the regional district at a public referendum held on May 14, 1996. As a result, the dissolution of Union County Regional took effect on June 30, 1997.[1] Petitioners had been employed by Union County Regional in various custodial or maintenance capacities until that date. In December 1996, all regional employees, including petitioners, participated in a process to select which of the constituent local districts would become their employer after the regional district ceased to function. Prior to making their selection, petitioners had the opportunity to review the custodial salary guide incorporated in the collective agreement negotiated by the Berkeley Heights Janitorial Association ("Association") for the 1996-97 and 1997-98 school years.[2] Each of the ten petitioners chose to transfer to Berkeley Heights.

Although the negotiated agreement was not due to expire until June 30, 1998, Berkeley Heights met with the Association to renegotiate the contract for the 1997-98 school year. These negotiations occurred prior to the start of petitioners' employment in Berkeley Heights. Since petitioners were not yet employees of Berkeley Heights, they were not members of the Association and had no say on whether to accept the revised terms. On June 9, 1997, Berkeley Heights and the Association entered into a new collective agreement revising the salary guide for custodial and maintenance employees employed by the local district in the 1997-98 school year. Basically, the modified contract created a series of intermediate steps which fell between the original steps and the next higher steps on the salary guide.[3] Illustratively, Step H on the guide for regular custodians was $31,100 and Step G was $32,600. Under the revised contract, an additional step of $32,000 was interposed between Step H and Step G. Similar adjustments were made at Steps F through C. Every staff member who had previously been an employee of Berkeley Heights was placed on a guide step that had existed in the original contract. Except for Ramon Perez, each petitioner was placed on one of the newly-created intermediate steps. When petitioners filed their original petition, they alleged that they first learned of their salary guide placement on July 15, 1997, when they received their first pay checks as employees of Berkeley Heights. Subsequently, however, they amended their petition to conform to the proofs that Berkeley Heights sent them a notice of their salaries on June 9, 1997 and that they received such notices "within a few days of that date."

Review of the salaries of preexisting custodians reveals no consistent method for fixing compensation. During oral argument, board counsel conceded that the old salary guide was "anomalous." One such anomaly is that W. Rehberger, a prior employee with five years of service, received $35,000, whereas T. McEnroe, a prior employee with the same length of service, received only $32,600. Another is that D. Shelhorn, a prior employee with eight years of service, received $38,000, compared to F. Simon, a prior employee with nine years of service, who earned only $36,300. According to board counsel, custodians in Berkeley Heights "move laterally along the guide rather than moving up." In other words, they receive an adjustment increment to adjust for cost of living or to meet competitive demands, but not an employment increment to reflect greater experience. Whatever criteria may have been used to place custodians on the salary guide, seniority does not appear to have been the determinative factor.[4]

Despite apparent randomness in the distribution of custodians' salaries, one clear pattern that emerges is the inequality of treatment between those previously employed in the district and those coming from Union County Regional. John Balwierczak, who had seven years of service in Union County Regional, was put on a newly-created intermediate step earning $32,000, while David Shelhorn, a district employee with eight years of service, is on Step C earning $38,800. If Balwierczak were placed one step below Shelhorn, he would be earning $36,300 or a difference of $4,300. Francis J. Dunne has worked for fifteen years in Union County Regional and was placed at an intermediate step earning $36,800. Meanwhile C. Billingslea, with seventeen years of service in Berkeley Heights, is at Step A earning $40,800 and R. DeBisco, with eleven years of service, is at step C earning $38,800. If Dunne were placed at step B between Billingslea and DeBisco, he would be earning $40,800 or a difference of $4,000. Dunne retired on December 31, 1997, so he is claiming the difference for only six months or a total of $2,000.

John C. Johnson Jr., who had six years of service at Union County Regional, is earning $32,000, while Alan Bebbino and Michael Percario, with three years of service in Berkeley Heights, are at Step G earning $32,600. If Johnson were placed one step above T. McEnroe, who has five years in the district, he would be at Step F earning $33,400 or a difference of $1,400. Fred Melchior had sixteen years of service at Union County Regional and was at an intermediate step of $36,800. Like Dunne, if he had been placed at Step B directly below original employee Billingslea, Melchior would have earned $40,800 or a difference of $4,000. Melchior has notified Berkeley Heights of his intent to retire effective October 31, 1998.

[4] It is possible that the certain custodians were placed at a higher step on the guide when initially hired and that their relative advancement since then has remained stable.

Petitioners Robert Kreig, James Lesak, Ramon H. Perez and Tommaso Pugliese each have eleven years of service as custodians at Union County Regional.[5] Kreig was put at an intermediate step earning $33,800; Lesak at $36,800; and Pugliese at $33,100. Perez is the only former Union County Regional employee who was placed on a regular step of the prior salary guide. He was placed at Step F earning $33,400. Every original district employee with eleven years of service is at Step C making $38,800. If this group of petitioners were moved to Step C, the difference would be $5,000 for Kreig, $2,000 for Lesak, $5,700 for Pugliese and $5,400 for Perez.

Some of the petitioners were supervisory staff at a higher pay scale. Peter Martino is a head custodian with seventeen years of service at Union County Regional, but he was placed off the guide at $35,800. In comparison, head custodian A. Amiano, who has worked as head custodian in Berkeley Heights for seventeen years, was at Step A of the head custodians' guide earning $45,600. If Martino had received the same treatment, he would also be making $45,600 or a difference of $9,800. James Materia is a high school "night supervisor" with eight years of service at Union County Regional. He was paid as a regular custodian earning $34,500.[6] The lowest level on the corresponding salary guide for head custodians is Step C earning $44,100. If Materia were placed on Step C of the appropriate guide for head custodians, he would be receiving $44,100 or a difference of $9,600. As of July 1, 1998, both Martino and Materia are no longer members of the Berkeley Heights Janitorial Association, but instead are covered by a separate agreement for custodians with supervisory responsibilities. Accordingly, their claim is limited to the one year from July 1, 1997 through June 30, 1998.

[5] Perez's official title was groundskeeper, but there is no suggestion that his duties were not custodial in nature.

[6] Although school business administrator William Van Tassel alleges that the title of "night supervisor" is not interchangeable with "head custodian," the district's own revised salary guide treats night supervisor as a subcategory of head custodian.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Berkeley Heights violated petitioners' statutory entitlement to be placed on the salary guide at a step and level commensurate with their service in the now-dissolved regional district.

First, Berkeley Heights urges that the petition is untimely under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), which provides that:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later from the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case.

Recently, the New Jersey Supreme Court upheld the ninety-day limitation period as a reasonable procedural requirement to promote repose in educational affairs and to protect school districts against unanticipated liabilities. Kaprow v. Berkeley Twp. Bd. of Educ., 131 N.J. 572, 582 (1993). Accord, Nissman v. Long Beach Island Bd. of Educ., 272 N.J. 373 (App Div. 1994), certif. den. 137 N.J. 315 (1994). Since petitioners received notice of their salary on June 9, 1997 and did not file their petition until October 10, 1997, their cause of action was instituted thirty-three days after expiration of the ninety-day period.

New Jersey's highest court has carved out an exception to the general approach that the limitation period should be strictly enforced. In Lavin v. Hackensack Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 145 (1982), the Court held that a limitation period could not be applied to cut off a right which was mandatorily established by the Legislature rather than by agreement of the parties. Lavin involved a salary credit for military service designed "to reward veterans for service to their country in time of war." 90 N.J. at 151. Differentiating between benefits "directly related to employment service" and those "awarded for a totally unrelated reason," the Court refused to apply the limitations period to statutory entitlements. 90 N.J. 150. See also North Plainfield Educ. Ass'n v.

Plainfield Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J. 857, 594, where the Supreme Court reiterated that if the particular benefit were a matter of statutory entitlement, "the period of limitations contained in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 would not apply, and the petition for prospective relief would have been timely." In North Plainfield, however, the Court determined that an annual salary increment is not a matter of statutory right because it can be denied for inefficiency or other good cause and, therefore, that it is subject to the time bar provided in the regulation.

Pointing out that no other reported decision since Lavin has found a statutory benefit to constitute an absolute entitlement, Berkeley Heights argues that the situation is analogous to North Plainfield and that salary disputes are subject to the ninety-day rule. However, the circumstances of the instant case are much closer to Lavin than to North Plainfield. Petitioners are not entitled to a higher salary as a reward for past service to the school district or to encourage quality in performance. North Plainfield, at 593. Instead, their entry-level salary dovetails with the existing salary scale in the constituent district as a legislative policy declaration of fundamental fairness and equity. Indeed, the State Board of Education has expressly stated that "the events that follow approval of an application to dissolve a regional school district occur by operation of statute, and the employment status of members of the regional staff is not dependent on board action." Stagaard v. Contini, 97 N.J.A.R. 217 (Comm'r Dec. 6, 1996), modified Dkt. No. 88-96 (St. Bd. Feb. 5, 1997) (slip op. at 7). Their entitlement derives directly from statute and is not an element of the employment contract. Accordingly, the right to relief is not governed by the regulatory limitation period.

Even if the ninety-day rule does apply, the Commissioner may nevertheless relax the rule under appropriate circumstances. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the Commissioner has discretion to dispense with any general rule of practice "where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice." Exercise of this power is used sparingly and not merely to avoid a harsh result. Pacio v. Lakeland Reg. High Sch. Dist., 1989 S.L.D. 2060, 2064 (Comm'r June 29, 1989); Union Twp. Educ. Ass'n v. Union Twp. Bd. of Educ., 1986 S.L.D. 2516, 2527 (Comm'r Oct. 22, 1986). However, the Commissioner has found good cause to relax the limitation period in instances "[w]here a substantial constitutional issue is presented, where judicial review is sought of an informal administrative determination, and where a matter of significant public interest is involved." Pacio, at 2064. Miller v. Morris Sch. Dist., 1980 S.L.D. __ (Comm'r Feb. 25, 1980).

Here there is a question of significant public interest justifying relaxation of the ninety-day rule to prevent a manifest injustice. Dissolution of a regional district is contentious enough already without creating artificial divisions among categories of the affected employees. Berkeley Heights renegotiated an unexpired contract for the obvious purpose of depriving former Union County Regional custodians of the benefits enjoyed by existing Berkeley Heights custodians. Petitioners attempted to comply with the time requirements by filing their petition within ninety days of their first pay checks. Regardless of procedural technicalities, Berkeley Heights knew of its potential liability shortly after commencement of the academic year and had adequate opportunity to plan for payment of this expense out of its current operating budget. Thus, the situation is distinguishable from one in which a school district is exposed to unanticipated demands for back pay. Kaprow, at 582.

On the underlying merits, petitioners are clearly entitled to relief. N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 mandates that all employees of the regional district shall continue "in each of the constituent districts in the event of a dissolution and all their rights of tenure, seniority, pension, leave of absence and other similar benefits shall be recognized and preserved[.]" In Stagaard v. Conti, supra, the State Board of Education upheld the Commissioner's direction that::

> [S]taff transferring to a withdrawing constituent district from a regional district were to be placed on the salary guide of the constituent district at the step and level appropriate for their years of service in the regional district, that their rights of leave and other similar benefits were to be preserved, and that they were to be accorded all other benefits held by employees of the constituent district. 97 N.J.A.R. at 220.

An earlier Commissioner's decision also determined that N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 was intended to prohibit "two levels of compensation and benefits for comparable levels of training and experience, one for its long time employees and one for its newly acquired employees." Central Reg. High Sch. Dist. v. Lacey Twp. Bd. of Educ., 1980 S.L.D. 553, 571 (Comm'r June 6, 1980). Such authoritative interpretation of a statute by an agency charged with its enforcement is entitled to great weight. Nelson v. Old Bridge Bd. of Educ., 148 N.J. 358, 364 (1997). See G.E. Solid State, Inc. v. Dir., Div. of Taxation, 132 N.J. 298, 306 (1992).

Finally, Berkeley Heights avers that the Commissioner should not interfere with a salary scale that is the result of the collective-negotiating process. While terms and conditions of employment, including salary, are generally held to be negotiable, a collective agreement does not supersede a statute mandating a particular level of rights or benefits for employees. In re IFPTE Local 195 v. State, 88 N.J. 393, 403 (1982); State v. State Supervisory Employees Ass'n, 78 N.J. 54, 81-82 (1978). Berkeley Heights cannot be allowed to circumvent the specific statutory provisions protecting former employees of a dissolved regional school district.[7]

JOHN BALWIERCZAK, FRANCIS J. DUNNE, JOHN C. JOHNSON, JR., ROBERT KREIG, JAMES LESAK, PETER MARTINO, JAMES MATERIA, FRED MELCHIOR, RAMON PEREZ, AND TOMMASO PUGLIESE,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BERKELEY HEIGHTS, UNION COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and petitioners' reply thereto were submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board's exceptions "vehemently object" to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) decision, alleging that in reaching his conclusion therein the ALJ "misread" and/or "ignored" binding precedent and found facts which are unsupported by the record. (Board's Exceptions at p. 2) It argues that if the Initial Decision is left to stand, this, and other constituent districts involved in dissolution, will be burdened by baseless claims of their "inherited employees" who, notwithstanding that they receive incremental salary increases, are dissatisfied with their placement on salary guides. (Id.)

With respect to the ALJ's finding that petitioners' claim "for salary increases" is a statutory entitlement, thus exempting their Petition of Appeal, which was concededly filed outside the mandatory timelines of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), from the application of these timelines, the Board argues that such a determination clearly flies in the face of established precedent. In reaching this result, the Board argues, the ALJ relied on Lavin, supra, which "is the only reported case that found a statutory benefit to constitute an absolute statutory entitlement," where the court held that the limitation period did not apply "because the statute 'bears no relationship to the services to be rendered as an employee.' Kaprow, 131 N.J. at 584 (quoting Lavin, 90 N.J. at 150)." (Board's Exceptions at p. 3) The Board points out that in subsequent decisions the Supreme Court read its holding in Lavin, supra, narrowly. As an example, it asserts, in Kaprow v. Berkley Tp. Bd. of Ed., 131 N.J. 572, 585-86 (1993), the Court found that tenure was not a "statutory entitlement" exempted from the mandatory 90-day limitations period, reasoning "that the proper focus is on the relationship between the statute and the employment; unless there is absolutely no functional relationship between the two, the 90-day limitations period will apply." (Board's Exceptions at p. 3) Likewise, it avers, in North Plainfield Educ. Ass'n. v. Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J. 587 (1984), the Court concluded that the petition of two teachers seeking salary scale credit for time spent on sabbatical leave, filed subsequent to the expiration of the 90-day period, was untimely. In so doing, the Court, reasoning that a teacher's increment is basically a reward for meritorious service provided to the school district, specifically distinguished that matter from Lavin:

> From that perspective, salary increments accruing under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-11 are distinctly different from those awarded under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-8. The annual increment under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-11 accrues because of time spent in military service without regard to performance of the teacher. By contrast, the annual increment under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-8 is subject to annual > evaluation of teacher performance. Consequently, that Court's analogy of an annual increment to the statutory entitlement for veterans is invalid. 96 N.J. at 594. (Board's Exceptions at p. 4)

The Board argues that it is evident that central to an analysis which could implicate Lavin is a determination "that the entitlement is wholly unrelated to performing duties for the board of education." Here, it advances, "the service of the Petitioners is the key to their claim: they contend that their service as school district employees entitles them to certain placement on the salary guide." (Id.) Because petitioners' claim is directly "related to the length and nature of their service as custodial employees," it does not qualify as a statutory entitlement pursuant to Lavin, and is, therefore, subject to the 90-day limitations period. (Board's Exceptions at pp. 4-5)

The Board charges that the ALJ ignores this persuasive precedent and proceeds to attempt to buttress his mistaken belief that, because the employment status of employees from a dissolving regional district is controlled by statute, it is a "statutory entitlement" by citing language from Stagaard v. Contini, supra, a case which the Board contends, did not involve a 90-day rule challenge nor did it deal with the issue of statutory entitlement pursuant to Lavin. (Id. at pp. 5-6) To illustrate the inapplicability of Stagaard as support for the ALJ's within determination, the Board points to two cases involving the same statutory provision and the same dissolution as is involved in the within matter, American Federation of Teachers, Local 3417 v. Berkeley Heights Bd. of Educ., decided by the Commissioner November 30, 1998, and Peter J. Lanzi v. Board of Education of the Township of Springfield, decided by the Commissioner August 27, 1998, aff'd State Board December 2, 1998, wherein the 90-day rule was applied to bar employees' claims. (Id. at p. 6)

The Board urges that if the Commissioner disregards these previous precedential holdings to support the ALJ's recommended "nullification" of time limits, the resultant consequences would be both illogical and dangerous. It avers that such a determination would subject "all six of the constituent school districts from which the employees of the dissolved Union County Regional District could select to suit at any time in the future if an employee is not satisfied with his or her placement on the constituent districts' salary guide." (Board's Exceptions at p. 7)

The Board next excepts to the ALJ's conclusion that, if the 90-day rule does apply, the facts in this case warrant the Commissioner's relaxation of the rule to "prevent a manifest injustice." (Board's Exceptions at p. 7) It proffers that his finding in this connection, that "Berkeley Heights renegotiated an unexpired contract for the obvious purpose of depriving former Union County Regional custodians of the benefits enjoyed by existing Berkeley Heights custodians (see Initial Decision at p. 9)," is unsupported by the record and incorrect given that the salary guide at issue "provides for approximately 2.0% to 4.0% raises for all custodians regardless of whether they began their career in Berkeley Heights or Union County Regional." (Board's Exceptions at pp. 7-8) Acceptance of petitioners' unfounded arguments "that their years of service at Union County Regional 'entitled' them to placement on a guide that is specifically not tied to seniority or years of service, [would result in] the former Union County Regional custodians [receiving] raises of between 7.8% and 31.9% , while the Berkeley Heights custodians' raises remain within the 2.0% to 4.0% range." (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 8) As such, the Board argues, manifest injustice and inequality of treatment will result only if the Commissioner adopts the ALJ's Initial Decision. Moreover, the Board argues, relaxation of the 90-day rule in this case will subject the Board to a liability in excess of $100,000, as a result of the fact that it has been three years since dissolution during which period petitioners may be entitled to retroactive salary increases, and the fact that it took almost ten months for the issuance of an Initial Decision in this matter. (Id. at p. 9) The ALJ's statement on page 9 of the Initial Decision that this case "is distinguishable from one in which a school district is exposed to unanticipated demands for back pay," it claims, is wholly erroneous. The within Board has not planned for such a liability, nor is there any way it could have reasonably been expected to do so. (Board's Exception at p. 9)

Finally, the Board excepts to the ALJ's determination that petitioners' are entitled to prevail on the merits of their claims. It advances that it is undisputed that when petitioners were placed on the lawfully negotiated salary guide in Berkeley Heights, each of them received a salary increase from their prior year's compensation as employees of the dissolved Regional District. What petitioners are objecting to herein, it advances, is that there are existing Berkeley Heights custodians with less seniority who are making more money than they are. The major defect in such a contention "is that -- as the parties stipulated -- no custodians, be they originally from the Berkeley Heights School District or the Regional District, are placed on the salary guide based upon seniority." (emphasis in text) (Board's Exceptions at p. 11) The Board hypothesizes that confusion in the Initial Decision may be based on specific language in Stagaard, 97 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) at 220, which directed that teachers coming from the dissolving Regional District "were to be placed on the salary guide of the constituent district at the step and level appropriate for the years of service...." (Id.) Stagaard, it asserts, dealt with teachers moving from the dissolved Regional District to constituent school districts where all entities involved utilized years of service as the determining factor for placement on their salary guides. Here, however, it is uncontroverted that Berkeley Heights "always has been unique" with respect to its salary guide for custodians, as years of service are not considered for either initial placement or movement on its salary guide. (Id.) Therefore, the Board argues, the Initial

Decision, rather than prohibiting "two levels of compensation and benefits for comparable levels of training and experience, one for its long-time employees and one for its newly acquired employees," as it purportedly intends (see Initial Decision at p. 10), actually "creates" such a two-tier system by requiring that years of service be considered for placement of Regional District employees, while years of service remain irrelevant for the original Berkeley Heights employees. The anomalous result of this decision is that the original Berkeley Heights custodians receive wage increases of 2.0% to 4.0%, while the former Regional District employees receive increases in the general range of 15% to 30%. (Id. at pp. 11-12) Placement of the Regional custodians on the Board's existing scale, it avers, results in a more equitable result, all custodians receive raises in the same range. That some individuals with greater service would make less than others with less experience, it contends, is irrelevant. As recognized by the ALJ, such a disparity also exists among those custodians originally hired by Berkeley Heights. The Board posits that the fact that its custodian salary guide is difficult to understand does not make it unlawful and urges the Commissioner to reject the disparate result espoused by the ALJ's decision, i.e., nullification of the guide only as to one class of custodians. (Id. at p. 12)

In their reply exceptions, petitioners assert that the Board's exceptions with respect to the essence of its argument here, i.e., that petitioners' claims are barred, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), because of their failure to file within 90 days of their receipt of a June 9, 1997 salary notice, provides no supplementation to the facts and law previously presented before the ALJ. Petitioners state that they fully endorse the ALJ's "cogent and thorough analysis" of the applicable law in this regard. (Petitioners' Reply Exceptions at p. 1) Petitioners aver that the Board's attempt to distinguish the applicability of Lavin, supra, herein is misplaced because, as recognized by the ALJ, the factual pattern existing in Lavin is "much closer" to the one existing in this matter than is any other case cited by the Board. In support of this contention, petitioners argue:

> Lavin's claim was to salary guide credit. Petitioners' claim is to salary guide credit. Lavin's claim to credit was for time that was totally unrelated to the performance of duties for her employer (i.e., military service time). Petitioners claim credit for time totally unrelated to the performance of duties in Berkeley Heights (i.e., for service time in the Union County Regional School District). Lavin's claim was solely based on the operation of a statute (N.J.S.A. 18A:29-11). Without that statute, Lavin would have had no right to additional salary. Petitioners' claim is solely based on the operation of a statute (N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64). Without that statute, petitioners would have no right to claim additional salary. (Petitioners' Reply Exceptions at p. 2)

In contrast, petitioners assert, in Kaprow, supra, cited by the Board, the petitioner's claim related to tenure and seniority claims, which accrued solely because of his service to a school district, and it is on this basis that the Court found that Kaprow was not exempt from the 90-day rule pursuant to Lavin. Here, petitioners argue, "no aspect of [their] service to the respondent is involved in their claim," precisely the situation which created the exemption established in Lavin. (Petitioners' Reply Exceptions at p. 2) Likewise, petitioners advance, Plainfield, supra, which did not pertain to a claim based on the operation of a statute, is irrelevant in the instant case. "If it were not for the mandates of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, the within petitioners could not make their claim. It is because the school laws create the petitioners' salary entitlement that the regulatory limitation period does not apply." (Id.)

Petitioners next charge that the Board's claim that the ALJ's findings are not supported by the record is "wholly without substance." They posit that the record clearly establishes: At the time petitioners selected positions in its district, Berkeley Heights had a collective bargaining agreement in place for 1996-97 and 1997-98; Despite the existence of a two-year agreement, on June 9, 1997, the Board and its pre-dissolution employees entered into a new salary agreement for 1997-98; The new salary guide established as a consequence of this agreement created "in-between" steps; The only people placed on these additional in-between steps were employees coming from the dissolving Regional District; The placement of the employees coming from the Regional District was at a lesser salary amount than that of existing Berkeley Heights employees with comparable years of service. (Petitioners' Reply Exceptions at pp. 3-4)

Petitioners next challenge the Board's assertion that denial of the 90-day limitation claim in this matter presents an unreasonable burden on the budget of the District. They aver that the Board's 1997-98 budget process was, by law, concluded before July 1997 and, as such, its financial obligations were not altered by the filing of the within petition on October 10, 1997, as opposed to September 1, 1997, or some earlier date. Moreover, petitioners aver, the period of time encompassed by this particular litigation has provided the Board ample opportunity to plan and budget for this potential expenditure. (Id. at p. 4))

In conclusion, petitioners dismiss as irrelevant the method normally utilized by the Board for placing new employees on the salary scale. Here, they assert, citing a quotation from Stagaard, supra, as support, "N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 mandates that employees coming from a dissolved regional district must be placed in the same guide position as existing employees with similar terms of service." (emphasis in text) (Petitioners' Reply Exceptions at p. 5)

Upon his independent and comprehensive review of the record, the Commissioner determines, for the reasons detailed below, to reverse the recommended Initial Decision and to dismiss the within Petition of Appeal as untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). In so concluding, the Commissioner initially observes that the parties' stipulated facts in this matter confirm that the within petitioners received notice of their salaries for 1997-98 by letter, dated June 9, 1997, which it is acknowledged was received by each of them within a few days of this date. The record further establishes that the instant Petition of Appeal was filed on October 10, 1997. Petitioners neither dispute that their petition was outside of the 90-day limitations period prescribed by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), nor do they provide any explanation or excuse for its untimeliness.

In his consideration of this matter, the Commissioner is cognizant that it is well established that claims brought before the Commissioner must be brought in a timely manner. In this regard, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) specifies that:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

It is also well settled that this 90-day rule is strictly applied. See Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley, 131 N.J. 572 (1993); s*ee also Nissman v. Board of Education of the Township of Long Beach Island*, 272 N.J. Super. 373 (App. Div. 1994), certif. denied 137 N.J. 315 (1994); Morris-Union Jointure Commission v. Board of Education of the Borough of South River, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 453; Markulin & the Neptune Twp. Educ. Assn. v. Board of Education of the Twp. of Neptune, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 406. The reasoning behind such a requirement for strict application of the limitations period was articulated by the Supreme Court in Kaprow wherein it stated:

> The [ninety day] limitations period provides a measure of repose, an essential element in the proper and efficient administration of the school laws. It stabilizes the relationship between teachers and the administration. The limitation period gives school districts the security of knowing that administrative decisions regarding the operation of the school cannot be challenged after ninety days. Moreover, because local school boards operate on a cash basis, > claims must be filed promptly so that the local board can anticipate any back-pay requirements.  (Kaprow at 582)

With the state of the law and its underlying rationale, along with the undisputed facts of this matter clearly in mind, the Commissioner turns to petitioners' claim that their particular cause of action is exempt from the application of this mandatory time requirement because, pursuant to Lavin, supra, it is a "statutory entitlement."

As was recognized by the ALJ, in 1982 the Supreme Court "carved out an exception to the general approach that the limitation period should be strictly enforced." (Initial Decision at p. 7) In this unique case, the Court dealt with a situation in which a school nurse was claiming a statutory entitlement to salary guide credit in her school district pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-11, which awarded such credit based upon an individual's prior military service. In considering the petitioner's claim in that case, the Lavin Court stated:

> [t]he core of the issue is whether the credit for military service, N.J.S.A. 18A:29-11, is an essential term of the petitioner's employment contract or whether it represents a statutory entitlement granted by the State in return for military service in time of war. (Lavin at 149)

Next, the Court reasoned:

> [w]hether the benefit flowing from a statute is to be considered a statutory entitlement or a term of the public employee's contract of employment depends upon the nature of the benefit and its relationship to the employment. Stating the problem in terms of incorporation in the employment contract or as a statutory benefit begs the question. Rather, attention should be directed to the purpose of the statute and its relevance and materiality to the employment. (emphasis added) (Lavin at 150)

In concluding that the petitioner's claim was a statutory entitlement, thus rendering the relevant statute of limitations inapplicable, the Lavin Court found:

> [t]he legislative purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-11 is to reward veterans for service to their country in time of war. The reward > takes the form of crediting the military service as teaching experience even though there is no functional relationship between the two. The emolument is not for services rendered or to be rendered for school teaching as such. (Lavin at 151)

The Commissioner's review persuades him that it is evident, from its refusal to make a similar finding in subsequent cases where such a claim was raised, that the Supreme Court intended its holding in Lavin, which exempts a matter from applicable timelines by virtue of its nature as a "statutory entitlement," to be very narrowly construed. (See North Plainfield, supra; also see Kaprow, supra.) Confirmation of such an objective can be found in Kaprow where the Court, itself, observed:

> Lavin, however, is the only reported case that found a statutory benefit to constitute an absolute statutory entitlement. (at 584) (emphasis added)

In light of this background, the Commissioner finds without merit the within petitioners' assertion that their claim for relief in this matter is a "statutory entitlement" within the intendment of Lavin, because such claim to additional salary and correction of their salary guide placement is based solely on the benefits granted them by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, triggered upon the dissolution of the Union County Regional School District, and bears no relation whatsoever to their service to respondent. Rather, he concludes that such contention, when examined against the evaluative criteria set forth by Lavin, is untenable. Key to the determination of the existence of a statutory right, pursuant to Lavin, is a review of the underlying statute, its purpose, and "its relevance and materiality to the employment." (Lavin at 150) Here, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, in pertinent part, specifies:

> [a]ll employees of the regional district shall continue in their respective positions in the withdrawing district, or in each of the constituent districts in the event of a dissolution, and all of their rights of tenure, seniority, pension, leave of absence and other similar benefits shall be recognized and preserved and any periods > of prior employment in the regional district shall count toward the acquisition of tenure to the same extent as if all such employment had been under the withdrawing district or in any of the constituent districts in the event of a dissolution.

It is noted that the underlying purpose of this provision was considered and addressed in Board of Education of the Central Regional High School District v. Board of Education of Lacey Township and the Central Regional Education Association and Ronald Villano, individually, Ocean County, 1980 S.L.D. 553, 565, wherein it was recognized "that the Legislative intent [of this particular provision] was to protect the employment rights of those employees [of the regional district affected by the withdrawal] who have provided good and faithful service to the school district."

The Commissioner concludes that, upon full consideration of the statute and its legislative intendment, it is undeniable that N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 was designed to operate, upon the dissolution of a regional district, as a "save harmless" provision to preserve and protect benefits earned by affected individuals by virtue of their service in such regional district. Absent rights and benefits accrued through their prior employment, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 does not operate to independently create a benefit for them. As such, petitioners' rights here are clearly distinguishable from the petitioner's right to military service credit in Lavin. They are not entitled to any right or benefit independent from the administration of a school system. Rather, any right or benefit to be afforded petitioners here is wholly predicated upon services they previously rendered as Regional District employees and, therefore, does not fall within the narrow prescriptions delineated in Lavin which might entitle them to a waiver of the mandatory filing timelines. Consequently, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) applies here to time bar petitioners' within claims.

Having eliminated petitioners' reliance on a "statutory entitlement" to excuse the untimeliness of their within petition, the Commissioner next recognizes, notwithstanding that the limitations rule of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) is to be strictly applied, he may, pursuant to his authority under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, relax this rule under exceptional circumstances or if there is a compelling reason to do so. (See Kaprow, supra, at 590; also see DeMaio v. New Providence Board of Education, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 449, 453.) Such authority, the Commissioner observes, is rarely invoked unless strict adherence to the limitations rule would be inappropriate, unnecessary or where injustice would occur, DeMaio at 453, or where he finds the presence of a substantial constitutional issue or other issue of fundamental public interest beyond that of concern only to the parties themselves. Pacio v. Lakeland Regional High School District, 1989 S.L.D. 2060, 2064. The Commissioner finds no such compelling or exceptional circumstances, nor other sufficient reason, to warrant relaxation or waiver of the 90-day rule. Specifically, the record reveals no indication, nor do the petitioners allege, that they suffered any loss, in either salary or benefits, such as to contravene the protection guaranteed by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64. Rather, the record reflects that, upon moving from their Regional District positions to Berkeley Heights, petitioners received salary increases which were consistent with those awarded to existing Berkeley Heights custodians. Further, the Commissioner concludes that the underlying issues surrounding this matter are not of such compelling public interest so as to justify the extreme remedy of relaxation. To the contrary, he finds that, under the circumstances existing here, "the pertinent considerations of individual justice as well as the broader considerations of repose, coincide to bar [petitioners'] action." Kaprow, supra, at 587, quoting Farrell v. Votator Div., 62 N.J. 111, 115 (1973).

Accordingly, the Commissioner reverses the recommended Initial Decision of the OAL, grants the Board's Motion for Summary Decision, and dismisses the within Petition of Appeal.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JACKSON, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning tenured teaching staff member alleged that the Board's nonrenewal of his contract to be Head Golf Coach violated state law and regulation. Petitioner sought reinstatement with compensation.

ALJ determined that not only does a teaching staff member not accrue tenure status as a coach, but also, the Board is authorized to discontinue a coaching assignment at its discretion. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 did not apply to petitioner in his position as coach. ALJ concluded that the Board exercised its authority to terminate petitioner's assignment as coach at the conclusion of the 1997-98 school year and that the Board was in compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 as evidenced by the Superintendent's July 1998 letter to petitioner stating the reasons why he would not be recommending petitioner for reappointment. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioner was not entitled to the relief he sought. Commissioner noted that petitioner could not assert that the protections afforded by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 et seq. were applicable to his coaching contract and he failed to demonstrate any infirmity in the Board's application of N.J.S.A, 18A:27-4.1 to the nonrenewal of his coaching contract. Commissioner ordered petition dismissed.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, James Scelba, alleges that the Board of Education of the Township of Jackson (Board) violated State Education Law and Regulations when it took action not to renew his contract as Head Golf Coach for the 1998-99 school year. Petitioner seeks an order from the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) reinstating him to the position together with lost back pay, among other things.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was held on June 10 and 28, 1999, at the Trenton OAL, Mercerville, New Jersey. The parties submitted post-hearing briefs of law the last of which was received on August 23, 1999, which constitutes the close of the hearing record.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this administrative tribunal, as agreed upon by the parties and set forth in the Prehearing Order dated March 30, 1999, are as follows:

1. Whether the Board's action to not renew petitioner's contract as Head Golf Coach for the 1998-99 school year was arbitrary and capricious and in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1?

2. Whether the Board failed to provide petitioner written notice of his contract non-renewal by May 15, 1998, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10?

3. Whether the Board failed to provide petitioner with a written statement of reasons for the non-renewal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2?

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the testimony and other evidence adduced at the hearing and having given fair weight thereto, and having assessed the credibility of the witnesses, I FIND the following FACTS.

Petitioner, who is 52 years of age, has acquired tenure status as a teaching staff member with the Board. At the time of the herein hearing, petitioner had been employed by the Board for 24 years. Petitioner has also been employed by the Board as a coach of the Jackson High School golf team for more than 20 years.

On June 24, 1997, petitioner entered into a contract with the Board to serve as the head golf coach for the 1997-98 school year, beginning September 1, 1997 and ending June 30, 1998.

In petitioner's Coaches Evaluation Report at the end of the 1995-96 school year, dated June 14, 1996, the Board's Athletic Director (A.D.), Ralph Carretta, evaluated petitioner as "satisfactory" in all areas of duties and responsibilities and was complementary with respect to petitioner's major accomplishments. (P-2). In addition, A.D. Carretta set for "Goals for next season which included areas for improvement, as follows:

B. Areas for improvement:

1. Mr. Scelba should have "get togethers: at least one or two nights a week during the summer.

2. Start Middle School Golf "Clubs"

3. Sign students up for Adult School Golf Clinics

4. Run golf tournament for fund raiser.

(P-2)

Petitioner testified, among other things, that he could not arrange the "get together" with the golf team members during the summer months because he was not employed by the Board to work in the summer. He asserted that he had made arrangements for golf team members to play at the Gambler's Ridge Golf Course at a reduced rate, however, there were problems with transporting the team members to and from the golf course.

Petitioner testified that he did not start any middle school golf clubs because there were no personnel available nor funds to support the "clubs." He asserted that the two middle schools did not have golf teams during the 1996-97 school year. He asserted that the availability of a golf course was a major problem.

With respect to the A.D.'s goal for petitioner to sign up students for the Adult School Golf Clinics, petitioner testified that there was no interest on the part of the students.

Petitioner testified that it was impossible to run a golf tournament at the Metedeconk Golf Course because it was too expensive and that the Metedeconk members run their own tournaments. He asserted that Metedeconk now limits the Ocean County tournaments to every other year where, in the past, it allowed the tournament to be played every year.

A.D. Carretta's evaluation of petitioner at the end of the 1996-97 school year shows satisfactory ratings in all of the areas of duties and responsibilities. A.D. Carretta stated on the Coach's Evaluation Report, dated June 11, 1997, that:

> B. Areas for improvement: Mr. Scelba has made very little progress in developing a golf program. To his credit he has attempted (through reduced rates) to have the students play in the summer, though at this point it seems that the players "lacked" the motivation. Mr. Scelba should, therefore, be more active in the summer. It also remains that developing younger players is a problem. Mr. Scelba, however, did not have a JV coach for assistance and had to recruit a volunteer. It remains that a Middle School tournament or Middle School recruitment trips would be beneficial. Mr. Scelba did little to reach his goals of last year and they, therefore, are repeated for the following season.

C. Goals for next season:

1. Mr. Scelba should have "get togethers" at least 1 or 2 nights a week during the summer.

2. Start Middle School Golf "Clubs."

3. Sign students up for Adult School Golf Clinics.

4. Run golf tournament for a fund raiser.
(P-3).

In response to this evaluation, petitioner stated:

> Fund raising tournament at Metedeconk is an impossibility, private country clubs do not operate like public ones. (P-3)

The A.D.'s evaluation of petitioner at the end of the 1997-98 school year, dated June 10, 1998, and signed by petitioner, was exactly the same as the evaluation at the end of 1995-96 school year (P-2) except that A.D. Carretta stated that: "Mr. Scelba reached none of his goals defined in 1996/97." (P-4)

On June 2, 1998, a conference was held between petitioner and A.D. Carretta. By way of memorandum, dated June 10, 1998, petitioner's requested written reasons for the A.D. not renewing petitioner's coaching position. On June 15, 1998, A.D. Corretta sent the following memorandum to petitioner, with copies to the Superintendent of Schools, the Board's Director of Personnel and, the Jackson High School principal, wherein Carretta stated:

> This is to summarize our conference of Tuesday, June 2, 1998. You have not been offered the Varsity Head Golf Coach for not reaching your goals of 1997. (See Attached) as set out in your 1997 evaluation. (P-6)

Subsequently, on July 17, 1998, Superintendent Edward Elms sent a letter to petitioner, which states as follows:

Dear Mr. Scelba:

Please be advised that under 18A:27-4.1, I am informing you that I am not recommending the renewal of your head golf coaching position at the high school for school year 1998/1999.

The reason for this non-renewal is your failure to achieve the goals set for you by Mr. Ralph Carretta, the Athletic Director, over the past three years. (P-7)

Petitioner requested and was granted an audience before the Board. The appearance before the Board occurred on July 28, 1998, where petitioner was represented by Dr. Charles Walker, New Jersey Education Association (NJEA). Petitioner asserts he was never in receipt of anything in writing subsequent to his appearance on July 28, 1998.

MOTION

At the close of petitioner's case in chief, the Board propounded on oral motion to dismiss petitioner's Petition of Appeal. Oral argument on the Board's Motion was heard and held in abeyance by the undersigned. The parties were required to submit their legal arguments by way of brief or memoranda. The motion and arguments are set forth herein below:

The Board's Motion

The Jackson Township Board has moved for dismissal of the petition in this matter. The Board argues that after presentation of the petitioner's case at the plenary hearing conducted by the court on June 10, 1999, and continued on June 28, 1999, the evidence presented fails to carry the petitioner's burden of proving that the Board's decision not to renew Scelba's contract as a coach constituted action that was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. See, Barcalow v. Monmouth Regional High School District, 96 NJAR 2*d.* (EDU) 193 at 194-195. (The controlling legal standard in cases involving a school board's exercise of discretion and the petitioner's burden of proof in such cases is discussed at pp. 194-195). In adopting the findings and conclusions of the AL J in the Barcalow case, the Commissioner reiterated the standard that in such cases a board's decision may not be upset unless it can be demonstrated to be patently arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, citing Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

At oral argument the Board cited paragraphs 9, 10 and 11 of the petition as stating the gravamen of the petitioner's case. The petition alleges the following:

> 9. Respondent had failed to provide written notification of nonrenewal by May 15, 1998, as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10.
>
> 10. Respondent's action was arbitrary and capricious and in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1.
> 11. Respondent has failed to provide a written statement of the reasons for nonrenewal as required by those statutes and N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2.

For the purposes of the Board's motion, it is submitted that even after presentation of the petitioner's case, there are no genuine issues of material fact in dispute. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-2.1, the Board submits that there is no disputed fact that is legally consequential to a determination of an issue in the case, and that the Board is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. See, Kufel v. Board of Education of Union County Vocational-Technical School District, Union County, 96 NJAR 2*d.* (EDU) 14, at 17. In Kufe, the Commissioner reiterates the standard set forth in Dore v. Bedminister Township Board of Education, 185 N.J. Super. 447, 456 (App. Div. 1982). where he states:

> . . . absent constitutional constraints or legislation affecting the tenure rights of teachers, local boards of education have an almost complete right to terminate the services of a teacher who has not tenure and is regarded as undesirable by the local board.

The court must examine representations of the petitioner in a light most favorable to the petitioner, including the above referenced assertions set forth in the petition of this case in paragraphs 9 and 11. Respondent's motion to dismiss is based on arguments that the violations of the three statutes claimed in paragraphs 9, 10 and 11, are not supported by the evidence, or that they constituted minor procedural errors which, in view of facts testified to by the petitioner in this case, were "harmless error" and that the petitioner suffered no injury or damage as a result of any such procedural errors. Petitioner's own testimony reveals that his legal right to contest any decision of the Board was not affected by any alleged violations, or actual and admitted violations, of statutory or regulatory rights.

Legal Argument

Point I

Any violations of statutory or regulatory requirements constituted "harmless error" and are not grounds to invalidate the Board's decision not to renew the petitioner's coaching contract.

In his petition, Scelba asserts that the Board violated his rights by failing to comply with notice requirements as set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10, and, further, by failing to provide Scelba with a written statement of reasons for nonrenewal as required by "those statutes" and by N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2.

Respondent submits that N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 was never intended to apply to renewal of coaching contracts. This is particularly evident when the coaching duties of an athletic coach for a spring sport continue through the nonrenewal notice deadline of May 15, set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10. A similar issue was dealt with by the Commissioner in the case of Schultz v. State Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, 92 NJAR 2*d.* (EDU) 116, cited to the court at oral argument. In that case, the ALJ and the Commissioner determined that Schultz was not a "regular teacher" and he was not entitled to the benefits of the statutory notice requirements. Respondent submits that the statutes in question, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10, et seq., were intended to provide protection for "regular teachers" as the ALJ describes the situation in the Schultz case, at 92 NJAR 2*d.* (EDU) 116-117. As a matter of law, it is clear that this notice requirement was not intended to apply to positions that were not teaching positions. In the case at bar, Scelba was not contesting a nontenured position, but, rather, a coaching position.[1]

[1] Under N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1, "teaching staff member" is defined as "a member of the professional staff of any district . . . of such character that the qualifications, for such office, position or employment, require him to hold a valid

It is clear from testimony presented by witnesses for the petitioner that the competition season of the golf team is not over until the end of May. With such a short season, it would be stultifying to interpret N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 as requiring notice to a spring-season coach by May 15 that his contract will be renewed for the next succeeding school year even before the season is over. Yet this is exactly the consequence called for by petitioner's arguments. Likewise, a decision on whether such employment will not be offered could not logically be required to be made before the end of the short spring varsity golfing season. Respondent submits that the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 were never intended by the Legislature to apply to nontenured teaching staff members other than those employed in actual teaching positions as the statute clearly states:

> 18A:27-10 Nontenured teaching staff member, offer of employment for next succeeding year or notice of termination before May 15
>
> On or before May 15 in each year, each nontenured teaching staff member continuously employed by a board of education since the preceding September 30 shall receive either
>
> a. A written offer of a contract for employment from the board of education for the next succeeding year providing for at least the same terms and conditions of employment but with such increases in salary as may be required by law or policies of the board of education, or > b. A written notice from the chief school administrator that such employment will not be offered. (Emphasis mine).

It is quite clear that the terms of this statute do not apply to contracts for part-time seasonal coaching positions, since coaches do not fit the definition of "teaching staff member" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 set forth in footnote No. 1 of this brief. A coach is not required to hold a teaching certificate in all cases, and, therefore, a coach does not fit within the definition provided at N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1.

The Commissioner's opinion in the Schultz case, supra., raises another issue cited to the court by respondent at oral argument. The issue is unaddressed by the brief submitted on behalf and effective standard, provisional or emergency certificate, appropriate to his office, position or employment, issued by the State Board of Examiners . . . ."

of the petitioner, except where petitioner argues that the court should not hold the petitioner to be required to comply with the statutory requirement set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-12. At footnote No. 2 of the ALJ's decision, appearing at 92 NJAR 2*d.* (EDU) 119, the ALJ raises the following legal issue:

> Indeed, petitioner never explained why, if the statutory scheme did apply to him, his failure to provide a written offer of acceptance as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-12 would not be fatal to his case.

This very same argument was made by respondent at oral argument since it is quite clear that petitioner offered no proofs of a written offer of acceptance, which is specifically required by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-12 as follows:

> N.J.S.A.* 18A:27-12 Notice of acceptance; deadline
> If the teaching staff member desires to accept such employment he shall notify the board of education of such acceptance, in writing, on or before June 1 which event such employment shall continue as provided for herein. In the absence of such notice of acceptance the provisions of this article shall no longer be applicable. [Emphasis mine]

As suggested by Judge Weiss in his Schultz opinion, supra., failure of the petitioner here to provide a written offer of acceptance pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-12 is fatal to his case. It is only fair and logical that if the School Board is going to be held to the notice requirement of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 (which respondent argues cannot logically apply here), the petitioner must comply with the procedure set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-12 because "in the absence of such notice of acceptance the provisions of this article shall no longer be applicable." See last sentence of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-12.

In the 1995 case of Gillison v. Board of Education of the City of Newark, Essex County, 95 NJAR 2*d.* (EDU) 157, the Commissioner held that a board of education had "a virtually unfettered right not to renew the services of a nontenured employee." In the Gillison case, the petitioner takes issue with a procedural deficiency in the board's actions following its decision not to renew her employment. The deficiencies alleged by the petitioner and undenied by the board of education were primarily procedural including:

> the board's dilatoriness in replying to her [the teacher's] request for a detailed statement of reasons and, later, for an informal hearing. However, even if these allegations are true, which I note the board does not deny, they would still not result in a finding that petitioner's employment should have been continued; therefore, while I certainly do not condone the board's evident failure to abide by applicable statutory requirements, neither can I find that such failure is grounds to invalidate its decision not to renew petitioner's employment. See, Gillison, at 95 NJAR 2*d.* (EDU) 157.

Scelba argues that he is entitled to the Legislative protection of N.J.S.A 18A:27-10, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-11 and N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1. Respondent respectfully submits that N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 and 18A:27-11 have no effect unless some type of notice is provided by the nontenured teacher pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-12. The petitioner's brief would have the court believe that N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, a statute that was enacted in 1995 in response to the Appellate Division decision in the case of Rotondo v. Board of Education of the Carlstadt-East Rutherford Regional High School District, Bergen County, 276 N.J. Super. 36 (App. Div. 1944), is part of the overall legislative scheme governing nonrenewal of school district employees. Petitioner fails to recognize that the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 are applicable to virtually all school district employees both "certificated or noncertificated." In contrast, the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 as demonstrated supra, apply only to "nontenured teaching staff member[s]." The legislative scheme set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 is set forth in Article 5 of Chapter 27 of Title 18A, which contains the following statutes: 18A:27-10, 18A:27-11, 18A:27-12, and 18A:27-13. Those statutes were enacted as Chapter 436 of the Laws of 1971 and became effective on September 1, 1972. These statutes were enacted together in order to provide for a process of notice regarding continuation of employment for nontenure teaching staff members.

In contrast to the legislative scheme evidenced by the enactment of Chapter 436 of the Laws of 1971, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 was enacted as Chapter 125 of the Laws of 1995. This court is quite familiar with the Legislative scheme behind the enactment of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, which overturned the effect of a decision by the Appellate Division in the case of Rotondo v. Board of Education of Carlstadt-East Rutherford Regional High School District, Bergen County, cited supra. The enactment of this statute on June 19, 1995, brought into effect a legislative requirement that virtually all employees can be appointed, transferred or removed only upon the recommendation of the Superintendent. This legislative policy established what this court has acknowledged to be perhaps the most important function of a superintendent of schools in New Jersey. See, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Theresa Lucarelli, 97 NJAR 2*d* (EDU) 537, at 541, where the court stated:

> Lucarelli, by employing coercion, attempted to substitute her personal judgment for that of the Superintendent in what is perhaps the latter's most important statutory function -- the recommending of personnel for employment in the public schools (Emphasis supplied).

The petition filed in this case also alleges that "respondent's action was arbitrary and capricious and in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1." [See paragraph 10 of petition.] Other than petitioner's claim that the action of the Board of Education in failing to reappoint Scelba as coach of the golf team was "for arbitrary and capricious reasons," it is clear that no evidence advanced by the petitioner provides any proof that the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 were not followed by the Board of Education. In the respondent's answer to the petition, it is specifically stated that the Board of Education followed the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1b in its procedure for determination that the coaching contract of the petitioner would not be renewed. Moreover, the evidence contained in the testimony of petitioner's witnesses establishes that petitioner was provided with a statement of reasons for his nonrenewal were set forth on or about June 15, 1998, by the Athletic Director. These reasons for nonrenewal were set forth in writing from the Superintendent to the petitioner on July 17, 1998. [See Exhibit P-7 in evidence.] No written demand for a statement of reasons for nonrenewal, as prescribed in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2 and as recited in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1b, ever was made by petitioner after the notice that he received from the Superintendent dated July 17, 1998, ostensibly because the reasons were already stated in the Superintendent's letter.

At page four of petitioner's brief he argues, "When there was no notice to the contrary forthcoming throughout the month of May 1998, it was entirely reasonable for Mr. Scelba to assume that he was going to continue in his position." Petitioner argues that even though his golf season was not over until the end of the month of May, the decision to renew his contract had to be made by May 15, 1998. As respondent argues, supra., the May 15 deadline does not apply to coaching contracts pursuant to the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10, nor by the application of logic.

Against this rationale, the petitioner advances the novel theory of "reasonable assumption." Such a theory has no legal nor logical merit.

Petitioner insinuates that no notice was given to Scelba regarding his nonrenewal until June 2, 1998, as part of a design by the Board to "ambush" Mr. Scelba. Actually, it is clear from the facts and the timeliness involved that the A.D. had a conversation with Scelba June 2, 1998, the earliest practical opportunity after the golf season had ended and after school resumed subsequent to the 1998 Memorial Day holiday. Only after the season concluded, could practical administrative recommendations be expected to be made concerning the coaching positions for the following spring season, e.g., for the 1999 golf season.

Respondent asserts that there is no deadline for notice affecting coaching contracts. The protections afforded by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1b allow an employee to request a statement of reasons and, thereafter, to request a Donaldson hearing. As petitioner himself testified, a Donaldson hearing was granted to him on July 28, 1998, and that he learned that the Board had decided not to renew his contract as golf coach, "a day or two after" that decision had been made. Petitioner also testified that he authorized the filing of a grievance to challenge the action of the Board. That grievance was filed by the Jackson Education Association shortly after the meeting that took place on July 28, 1998, as petitioner himself testified.

At page four of petitioner's brief, the petitioner argues with the Board's assertion that any procedural deficiencies, e.g., "the failure of the Board of Education to provide a written statement of reasons pursuant to N.J.S.A. 6:3-4.2[sic] following the Donaldson hearing in this matter, is both a mistake in the actual citation applicable and a misreading of what the regulation set forth at N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2(I) actually requires. That regulation states:

> Within three days following the informal appearance[2] the Board shall notify the affected teaching staff member, in writing, of its final determination. Such notification may be delegated by the board to its superintendent or board secretary.

[2] The so-called Donaldson hearing.

No statement of reasons is necessary or required by this regulation. The regulation requires mere notice of what the Board determined to do. The petitioner testified that he learned that the Board had appointed someone else as the golf coach on the day after the Board took such action, i.e, on July 29, 1998. The intent of this regulation is to prevent a board from taking action and not informing the person affected by the action. The intent of this regulation certainly was not subverted in this case.

The petitioner's actual knowledge of what took place makes any argument of injury an absolutely nonsensical one. Contrary to the arguments raised by the petitioner at page five of his brief, the reason for the notice provision set forth at N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2(i.) has absolutely no application to the substantive issue, i.e., dismissal for arbitrary and capricious reasons. The essential protection of notice to the employee has been acknowledged by the petitioner's own testimony. Actual notice defeats any claim of injury by the petitioner. This fact reduces the petitioner's argument to a classic but inane argument, elevating form over substance.

Point II

The Petitioner's Claim that Scelba's Contract was Nonrenewed for Arbitrary Reasons is Belied by Testimony Elicited from the Petitioner Himself and Witnesses Testifying on His Behalf.

Taking all evidence elicited from the petitioner and his witnesses in a light most favorable to the petitioner, it is clear that testimony of the petitioner and witnesses Riva and Davis acknowledged that there was a "difference of opinion" between what the A.D. believed that the golf coach should be attempting to accomplish, and what the golf coach believed to be practical or, in his words, "possible." Consideration of all testimony elicited thus far makes it quite clear that this case involves circumstances over which reasonable minds can disagree.

On the Board's side of the issue stand the A.D., the High School Principal, the Director of Personnel, the Superintendent of Schools and, ultimately, the Board. There is no significant dissent among the documented decisions of those persons. While the petitioner and his witnesses claimed that the goals set by the A.D. were plausible, achievable or even possible, the record reveals that these goals existed for years and that the petitioner invariably espoused the position that they were not possible to achieve. Respondent submits that the intransigent posture adopted by the petitioner was contrary, capricious and unreasonable on its face. The legal authority cited by the petitioner to support his argument over the arbitrariness of the Board's action is totally inapplicable to the case at bar. In the case of Winston v. Board of Education of the Borough of South Plainfield, 125 N.J. Super. 131 (App. Div. 1973), the procedural errors committed by the Board resulted in a denial of a contract to a teaching staff member, ostensibly in retaliation for the teacher's exercise of constitutionally protected rights. No such allegation is made in the petition filed in this case and, as a consequence, no such application of the rule of the Winston case can be made here.

Petitioner's argument that a statement by the Superintendent that he had been "shocked and surprised" by the nonrenewal of Mr. Scelba's contract, reveals the absurdity of what the petitioner is attempting to make out of the conversation in question. The notes of counsel to the respondent indicate that the conversation that Mr. Riva testified about with the Superintendent took place in September 1998. This was after the Superintendent himself had recommended to the Board that Mr. Scelba should not be renewed as the golf coach. It is clear that the Superintendent may have been shocked and surprised that Scelba did not achieve any of the goals set for him by the A.D. The Superintendent's letter of July 17, 1998, states this as the reason why he would not be recommending Mr. Scelba for reappointment to the position of golf coach. [See P-7 in evidence.] In view of the documentary evidence submitted by the petitioner, the characterization of Mr. Riva's testimony misconstrues the process followed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 and attempts to put a spin on Mr. Riva's testimony which falls somewhere between "inexplicable" and "absurd."

Since Scelba himself admitted that he had not achieved the goals set for him over a period of three years, he could not have been surprised that the school district administration posted the position of golf coach to determine who else might be interested in the position. Under the terms of the collective bargaining agreement [P-8 in evidence], Scelba himself had the right to apply for the position[3]

[3] Article IX, A.3 specifically states:

It is also evident from petitioner's brief that petitioner has distorted the circumstances surrounding the fact that the A.D. and other administrators were not going to recommend Scelba's reappointment to the Superintendent. These facts had no legal effect until the Superintendent decided to make that recommendation his own, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1b. The wording of petitioner's brief makes respondent's case that this controversy clearly involves a difference of opinion. In petitioner's brief he refers to "the impracticality of the stated goals for the golf team." This statement is in contrast to the petitioner's acknowledgment on the same page of his letter brief (p.7), that the goals were not "impractical" but, rather, "impossible." Also, it is important to remember that these goals were not goals for the golf team, but rather, goals for the golf coach.

What is clearly at issue in this case is Coach Scelba's consistent refusal to attempt to achieve goals set for him by the A.D. The administration and the Board had every right to determine that the petitioner's lack of effort toward achievement of these goals justified the decision that they had to try to find someone else who would at least try to achieve these goals which the A.D. believed would help to improve the golf team.

A determination that the petitioner is correct in his assumption that his disagreement with the A.D. over the goals that were set for him to achieve, could not justify replacing him with another coach, would turn the system of governance of public schools on its head. Even though the golf team at Jackson Memorial High School proved to be more competitive in the 1998 season than it had been in previous years the A.D.'s issue remains: How much better could the golf team have been if the coach had even attempted to meet some of the goals set for him in the past three years?

The petitioner revealed an attitude during his testimony and in his arguments that tell this court all it needs to know about the crux of the issue here. The petitioner and the JEA would like to dictate who will coach students. Such a right rests with the Board by virtue of the public policy behind the pertinent statutes. The petitioner has the burden of showing that the Board's Extra and co-curricular positions will be posted district-wide, and all teachers shall be eligible to apply for said positions. [Emphasis mine].

action was unreasonable. If this were true, the proofs would have been rather simple. But no such proofs have been offered.

Toward the end of his brief the petitioner raises a fresh complaint that was never set forth in his pleadings. Petitioner's brief now alleges that Scelba had been discriminated against illegally by reason of his age. Since such an allegation was never made in the petition, it cannot be made now. The petitioner had every right to raise such a charge before the Division of Civil Rights, provided that it had been raised within 180 days of the act that the petitioner now suggests was illegally discriminatory. See, N.J.S.A. 10:5-13.

At the end of the brief, petitioner argues as follows: "At this point in the case, no valid, practical, justified or reasonable basis has been offered to support the decision not to renew Mr. Scelba." To the contrary, the evaluations of Scelba's performance introduced into evidence by the petitioner and relied upon by the Administration and the Board clearly support the respondent Board's action not to renew the petitioner's coaching contract. Furthermore, the Board's action not to renew Scelba's coaching contract has the legal presumption of being a valid governmental action. See, Thomas v. Morris Twp. Board of Education, 89 N.J. Super. 327 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd. on opinion below at 46 N.J. 581 (1966).

It is true that the Board has not yet presented any evidence but some of its evidence has been introduced by the petitioner. The petitioner has lost sight of the issue that is before the court, i.e., has the petitioner met its burden of proving that the reasons relied upon by the Board for determining not to renew Scelba's coaching contract were arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The respondent submits that the rationale behind the Board's action is self-evident from the documentary exhibits submitted by the petitioner and from the testimony of the petitioner acknowledging the reasons for his less-than-satisfactory evaluation by the A.D. Such evidence is enough to disprove the petitioner's case. This has clearly been accomplished.

For the reasons set forth hereinabove, as further stated in respondent's answer, and as stated at oral argument made by respondent's counsel on June 28, 1999, the motion of the Jackson Township Board of Education to dismiss the petition in this case should be granted.

Petitioner's Position

Argument

I, James Scelba is entitled to the Legislative protection of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, 18A:27-10 and 18A:27-11.

Mr. Scelba has alleged in his petition that the Jackson Township Board has failed to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 in that neither the Board nor the Superintendent supplied him with written notice of nonrenewal of his employment contract prior to May 15, 1998. The evidence in this case is clear that Mr. Scelba did not receive any written notice from any school employees prior to June 15, 1998, when he received a memorandum from Ralph Carretta, the A.D. (Exhibit P-6). This memorandum was prompted by Mr. Scelba's request for written reasons for the nonrenewal of his coaching contract after he learned through a posting on a bulletin board that the position of head golf coach was available to interested parties. (Exhibit P-5). The evidence is also clear that no written statement was ever provided to Mr. Scelba from either the Board or the Superintendent as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 until July 14, 1998, when Superintendent Elms sent a letter to Mr. Scelba. (Exhibit P-7). It is clear that the Board failed to comply with its notice obligations. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-11, the failure to provide notice prior to May 15, 1998, constitutes an offer of reemployment.

In making its Motion to Dismiss, the Board has argued that the case of Schultz v. State Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, 92 NJAR 2*d.*, 116 (N.J. Admn. 1992), stands for the proposition that the notice statutes cited above do not apply to school employees other than teachers. A review of the statutory scheme as well as the Schultz case itself reveals that this is not correct. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 is part of an overall Legislative scheme governing the appointment, transfer, removal, renewal or nonrenewal of school officers and employees. As the Board has acknowledged throughout this case as well as in the letter sent to Mr. Scelba by Superintendent Elms (Exhibit P-5), N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 is applicable to this case. That statute by its very terms does not simply apply to teachers, but rather applies to all certified and/or non-certified officers or employees of the Board. More specifically, the Shultz, the question before the ALJ was whether a "pool substitute" was entitled to the procedural protections of the Legislative scheme. The petitioner in that case was a substitute teacher. The substitute teacher was specifically not covered by any collective bargaining agreement between the School Education Association and the State Operating School District of Jersey City. In holding that the petitioner was not within the class of personnel entitled to the statutory protections, the ALJ replied the fact that a substitute teacher is not a regular teacher, but is rather one who is utilized to fill in for absent teachers. The ALJ further relied upon the fact that there was no employment contract between the substitute teacher and the Board. Therefore, the substitute teacher could have had no reasonable expectation of re-employment and was, therefore, an individual not within the class of persons who may invoke the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10. The instant case is simply a far cry from the facts of Schultz. Mr. Scelba is a tenured school teacher who has taught in the Jackson Township school system for nearly 25 years. His position as the head golf coach is one that he had held for close to twenty of those years. There is an employment contract between Mr. Scelba and the Board (Exhibit P-1). Additionally, coaching contracts are expressly covered in the General Collective Bargaining Agreement between the Jackson Township Board and the Jackson Education Association (Exhibit P-8). These facts clearly distinguish Mr. Scelba's situation from that of the substitute teacher in Schultz. Therefore, the Legislative protections of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 are applicable to Mr. Scelba.

The Jackson Township Board further argues that applying this Legislative scheme to Mr. Scelba's situation, the failure of Mr. Scelba to formally accept in writing reemployment prior to June 1, enables the Board to terminate his employment after that date, relying upon N.J.S.A. 18A:27-12. The petitioner asserts that the Board, having repeatedly violated the procedural protections of State statutes and regulations, should not be permitted to rely upon this provision to save itself from its errors. Mr. Scelba had been renewed year after year for nineteen years will the Jackson Township High School in his position as head golf coach. When there was no notice to the contrary forthcoming throughout the month of May, 1998, it was entirely reasonable for Mr. Scelba to assume that he was going to continue in his position. Petitioner asserts that it is particularly significant that on cross examination by Mr. Campbell of the petitioner's witnesses, it has been alleged that Mr. Carretta engaged in a conversation with Mr. Scelba regarding his nonrenewal on June 2, 1998. Giving petitioner all favorable inferences at this point in the case, it appears that the Board and its employees violated their own obligations under the statutes and then waited until the deadline for Mr. Scelba to assert his rights prior to notifying him that he was not going to be renewed. Apparently, the decision to replace and terminate Mr. Scelba had been made in advance of the deadline for Mr. Scelba to assert his rights, yet he was not informed until after that deadline. This type of termination by ambush simply should not be countenanced.

It is further submitted by the Board that these procedural deficiencies on the part of the Board including the failure of the Board to provide a written statement of reasons pursuant to N.J.S.A. 6:3-4.2 following the Donaldson hearing this matter simply constitutes harmless error. It is submitted that there are reasons why the Legislature has adopted a statutory scheme and has further authorized the Commissioner to promulgate regulations in this area, not the least of which is to insure that the activities of Chief School Administrators and Boards of Education remain above board and are not conducted for arbitrary or capricious reasons. Violations of these statutes and regulations strike at the very heart of the long-held understanding that public school employment is a public service subject to Legislative direction in the public interest. See, Redcay v. State Board of Education, 130 N.J.L. 369, affirmed 131 N.J.L. 326 (1943). Such violations should never be considered harmless error.

2. The Nonrenewal of Mr. Scelba's Employment Contract was Predicated upon Arbitrary Reasons

In making its motion, the Board has relied upon cases which set forth the discretionary powers of boards of education. Although boards of education may be vested with a certain amount of discretion, it is nonetheless clear that the theory that public employment which may be denied altogether may be subjected to any conditions regardless of how unreasonable has been uniformly rejected by the courts. See, Winston v. Board of Education of the Borough of South Plainfield, 125 N.J. Super. 131, (App. Div. 1973), citing, Pickering vs. Board of Education, 391 U.S. 563, 568, 88 S. Ct., 1731, 1734 (1968). Although the Board has characterized this dispute as constituting a mere difference of opinion regarding the manner in which the golf team in Jackson Township should be coached, petitioner submits that the evidence in this case, which at this point is uncontroverted, establishes that the reasons which have been articulated in support of the termination of Mr. Scelba are manifestly unreasonable.

Perhaps the first instance which highlights the arbitrary nature of the decision of both the Superintendent and the Board, is the fact that there is no evidence of any involvement by the Superintendent in the decision making process until July 14, 1998. (Exhibit P-7). The realization by Mr. Scelba in June of 1998 that his position was not renewed was at best derived from the revelations of the A.D., Ralph Carretta. The statutory scheme governing this dispute clearly disputes that the decision whether to recommend renewal or nonrenewal is to be made by the chief school administrator, in this case, Superintendent Edward Elms. There is testimony in this case by William Riva, the boys track coach at Jackson High School, that he confronted Superintendent Elms regarding the Scelba situation. Mr. Riva testified that the Superintendent indicated that he had been "shocked and surprised" by the nonrenewal of James Scelba's position. The inference to be drawn is that the decision not to renew Mr. Scelba was simply not made by the one with the statutory authority and responsibility to do so. This is perhaps highlighted by the fact that on June 10, 1998, the date on which Mr. Scelba submitted a written request to the A.D. for a written statement of reasons for his nonrenewal, the Superintendent had obviously not even had an opportunity to review Mr. Scelba's 1998 evaluation. That evaluation, dated June 10, 1998, is in evidence as Exhibit P-4 and is signed by Ralph Carretta. It is therefore clear that by June 10, 1998, the availability of the position of head coach had been posted in the school and that Mr. Carretta had made his determination, before Superintendent Elms would have even had an opportunity to have reviewed the 1998 evaluation of Mr. Scelba. It is submitted that the abdication of any decision making authority by the Superintendent constitutes in and of itself, arbitrary action by the Superintendent, who apparently acceded to the actions of his underlings only after they had made the decision not to bring Mr. Scelba back as head golf coach for the upcoming year.

The arbitrary nature of the decision of both the Superintendent and the Board is further highlighted by a review of the purported reasons which have been provided and the factual circumstances presented in this case which demonstrate the impracticality of the stated goals for the golf team. The Board and the Superintendent had based their decision in part upon the fact that Mr. Scelba was unable to provide extensive summer programs for the players on the golf team. It should be noted that Mr. Scelba did obtain a reduced rate for his players to play golf at a golf course during the summer. Further, Mr. Scelba did have a custom of holding a get together at his home including a barbecue for the players on the golf team at the end of each golf season. The goal which was presented to Mr. Scelba in previous evaluations of increased summer involvement for the members of the golf team, which was only presented as a request and not as a demand, would simply have required Mr. Scelba to engage in activities and duties which were clearly beyond the scope of his contract, which ran from September to June of each year. Furthermore, as the contract between the Jackson Education Association and Board reveals, teachers receive additional compensation for summertime work. Mr. Carretta's suggestions would have required Mr. Scelba to take on an additional job without compensation. Mr. Carretta's recommendation for summertime programs further ignores reality. Golf is simply not the same as other school sports where athletes can engage in activities on the school grounds using school equipment. Golf is a rather expensive sport which requires players to pay for green fees and equipment. There has been testimony in this case that availability of a golf course for practices for the entire team during the summer would not have been possible due to the expense involved. Although Mr. Carretta has set this forth as a goal for the golf team, he apparently has done nothing to facilitate or to assist Mr. Scelba in implementing this specific goal. It is also significant that Mr. Carretta expected Mr. Scelba to perform these extra duties without the benefit of any assistance. A further concern is the fact that the purported insistence to engage in summertime programs is not uniformly enforced. Alton Johnson, the girls track coach who testified in this matter has indicated that two years ago, he too was told to begin summer programs beyond the scope of his contract and that he has clearly told Mr. Carretta that he will not do so. It is submitted that the rationale for Mr. Scelba's nonrenewal centering upon his failure to engage in summertime programs which would have been difficult if not impossible, and which were clearly beyond the scope of his contract does not constitute a valid reason for his nonrenewal.

A second reason urged by the Board is that Mr. Scelba should have engaged in activities at the Middle School level. There are no existing Middle School golf programs. Once again, the contract between the Jackson Township Education Association and the Board reveals that Middle School coaches in other sports are compensated for their services. Nonetheless, Mr. Carretta set a goal for Mr. Scelba to develop talent in the Middle Schools without the existence of any

"feeder" programs. This would have necessarily entailed Mr. Scelba having to initiate programs of his own. Mr. Scelba was in effect being asked to become a Middle School coach without either compensation or a contract. When coupled with other factors which have been presented in this case, including the lack of an assistant, and the practical aspects of engaging Middle School children in sport they may not have the ability or equipment to participate in, the failure to meet the goal of developing talent in the Middle School is simply not a valid basis for nonrenewal.

Finally, the Board alleges Mr. Scelba's failure to reach the goal of having a golf tournament fund raiser at the Metedeconk Golf and Country Club, as a reason for nonrenewal. The testimony is clear that Mr. Carretta requested a fund raiser to be held at that particular golf course. Mr. Scelba has testified that Metedeconk is one of the most exclusive private golf courses in the State of New Jersey. In fact, members pay $100,000 to join the Metedeconk Golf and Country Club. To demand that Mr. Scelba somehow convince those in charge of the Country Club to permit the school system to hold a golf tournament is simply outrageous and cannot possibly be deemed a valid reason for nonrenewal. One cannot be asked to do the impossible.

Such purported reasons for the nonrenewal of Mr. Scelba's contract seem particularly arbitrary when one considers all of the positive qualities which Mr. Scelba has brought to the golf program in Jackson. Although the Board is currently choosing to rely upon suggestions for improvement contained in Mr. Scelba's evaluation as outlined above, the Board has apparently completely ignored the many positive comments which have been made in those evaluations. These include the comments in Mr. Scelba's 1996 evaluation (Exhibit P-2) stating that "Mr. Scelba is a fine person who does most of the leg work to be sure the students have a fine place to play" and that Mr. Scelba is a "knowledgeable coach with many years experience." In fact, Mr. Scelba not only insured that these students had a fine place to play but he obtained the privilege for the students to play at one of the most exclusive golf courses in the State of New Jersey. In Mr. Scelba's 1997 evaluation, it was noted that he had two players who could compete with the County's best players. The evaluation further indicates that there was improvement in the team's competitive nature. In fact, in the 1997 evaluation, although there is mention of summertime and Middle School involvement, it is specifically acknowledged by Mr. Carretta that Mr. Scelba did not have an assistant to work with him. The evaluation notes that Mr. Scelba had obtained a volunteer on his own to assist with the regular duties that he was asked to perform as head golf coach. Perhaps most ironic of all in the history of this case is the fact that Mr. Scelba's 1998 evaluation specifically indicates that Mr. Scelba's team was the most competitive that it had been in years.

The testimony in this case reveals that Mr. Scelba is a knowledgeable coach who is very interested in helping the members of the golf team. Mr. Scelba recognizes that being coach is more than just about winning and losing, it is about teaching young students the gentlemanly arts of the game, so that they may enjoy the game throughout their lives. Mr. Scelba is patient with and dedicated to these students and brings a wisdom to them that can only be brought from learned life experience. During the season, Mr. Scelba works five nights a week with both the varsity and junior varsity golf teams. On days when there are practices, he works until 6:00 p.m. and on days where there are matches, he works much later. Mr. Scelba has gone above and beyond his duties in that he has on his own procured a volunteer to act as an assistant. This provision of a volunteer enables the students who are not actually participating in matches to continue to be members of the golf team and to play at an alternative course during the matches played by the starting varsity and junior varsity players. If Mr. Scelba had not done this on his own, the golf team simply would not be what it is today. The evidence in this case further suggests that Mr. Scelba has saved the school costs in transportation in that both he and his volunteer assistant, Glen Davis, provided transportation for the members of the golf team. The evidence also shows that Mr. Scelba has engaged in his own fund raising activities to offset costs. It is submitted that many of these responsibilities which Mr. Scelba has taken upon himself rightly belong with the Athletic Department of Jackson Township High School. Nonetheless, in an effort to increase the quality of the golf program, Mr. Scelba has taken these responsibilities upon himself.

When one wonders as to the true reasons why Mr. Scelba was not offered his position for the 1999 to 2000 school year, it cannot be forgotten that Mr. Scelba has testified in this matter that he had a conversation with Mr. Carretta in which the latter suggested that he was perhaps too old to do all of the running around associated with the head golf coach position. It is also insignificant that Mr. Scelba's replacement is approximately thirty years old while Mr. Scelba is in fifties. The new coach simply does not have any coaching experience to compare with that of Mr. Scelba. At this point in this case, there is at least an inference to be drawn that perhaps Mr. Scelba's age had something to do with the decision to terminate his involvement as head coach and to hire a much younger yet much more inexperienced replacement.

It is respectfully submitted that a review of the evidence in this case suggests that the articulated reasons by the Board for the nonrenewal of Mr. Scelba's contract are simply illogical in the face of the facts, nor are they consistently applied to coaches of other sports at Jackson Township High School. The reasons provided are unreasonable and it is highly suspect whether the Superintendent even participated in the decision as he is required to do by statute. At this point in the case, no valid, practical, justified or reasonable basis has been offered to support the decision not to renew Mr. Scelba. Without valid reasons being offered, especially in light of the Superintendent's and the Board's failure to abide by statutory and regulatory procedures, Mr. Scelba cannot legally be removed from his position as head golf coach. To permit the removal of any school employee under the circumstances and in the manner involved here, is to open the door to the baseless removal of coaches and other school employees as well as such accompanying evils as cronyism, nepotism and discrimination.

For all of the above stated reasons, it is respectfully submitted that looking at all of the evidence that has been supplied, and providing the petitioner with all the favorable inferences which are to be drawn therefrom, the current motion by the Board should be denied.

CONCLUSIONS

The Commissioner has long held that coaching staff members do not achieve the status of tenure in their extra-curricular positions. In the matter of Nello Dallolio v. Board of Education of the City of Vineland, Cumberland County, 1965 S.L.D. 18, the Commissioner held that:

> . . . . . a board of education has the power to assign and reassign teachers to curricular duties in addition to their regularly scheduled classroom instruction assignment and to pay such additional remuneration as is reasonable and appropriate therefore: that absent a requirement for a certificate other than that of teacher, no tenure > accrues to such assignments and they are renewed or discontinued at the discretion of the Board; and that when the extra work is no longer performed the extra compensation for that purpose can no longer be claimed.

> The Commissioner finds and determines that the Vineland Board of Education acted within its discretionary authority in relieving the petitioner of his extra duties and discontinuing his extra compensation as coach of football, and assigning that responsibility and extra remuneration to another staff member. Respondent's motion is granted and the petition is dismissed. Id. at 22.

Thus, not only does a teaching staff member not accrue tenure status as a coach but, moreover, the Board is authorized to discontinue a coaching assignment at its discretion. See also, Joseph J. Dignon v. Board of Education of the Rumson-Fair Haven Regional High School, Monmouth County, 1971 S.L.D. 336, aff'd. State Board, 1974 S.L.D. 1376. The Commissioner's holding in Dallolio, supra. and Dignon, supra. is reinforced by our Appellate Court in the matter of Dore, supra., as quoted by the Board in its brief, which states, in part that:

> 185 N.J. Super. at 456

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Board exercised its authority to terminate petitioner's assignment as coach of the high school golf team at the conclusion of the 1997-98 school year. I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Board was in compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, as evidenced by the Superintendent's letter, dated July 17, 1998, addressed to petitioner. Consequently, I CONCLUDE, the Board did not violate the statute as alleged by petitioner.

I FINALLY CONCLUDE the statue, at N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 does not apply to petitioner in his position as coach of the high school golf team. Under the Commissioner's holdings in Dallolio, supra. and Dignon, supra. The herein Board used its discretion in not assigning petitioner to the coaching position for the 1998-99 school year. As the Appellate Court held in

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that there is no merit in petitioner's claims against the Board and his Petition of Appeal should be dismissed.

ORDER

JAMES SCELBA,	:
PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JACKSON, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner is not entitled to the relief he seeks. Like the ALJ, the Commissioner is not persuaded that N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10, 11 and 12 apply to the circumstances herein, inasmuch as these statutes, enacted as P.L. 1971 c. 436, appear to apply to potentially tenurable staff members serving a probationary period prior to the acquisition of tenure. As the Supreme Court noted in Donaldson v. Bd. of Ed. of No. Wildwood, 65 N.J. 236 (1974), a board's discretion not to renew a teaching staff member's employment contract pursuant to N.J.S.A.. 18A:27-10, and, consequently, not to grant tenure "need not be grounded on unsatisfactory classroom or professional performance for there are many unrelated but nonetheless equally valid reasons why a board, having had the benefits of observation during the probationary period, may conclude that tenure should not be granted." Donaldson at 241. As the Court therein recognized, a newly hired teacher is fully aware that he/she serves in such a probationary period and that he/she may, ultimately, not acquire tenure. Id. at 245.

That there is an "inter-relationship" between 18A:27-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, the statute defining the terms under which tenure is acquired, was also recognized by the Appellate Division when it examined a board's responsibility to timely notify a nontenured employee of the nonrenewal of her contract, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10, while still allowing the employee to perform her duties until the expiration of her contract, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-9, without incurring the tenure implications of service under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Nissman v. Bd. of Ed. of Twp. of Long Beach Island, Ocean County, 272 N.J. Super. 373, 379, 382 (App. Div. 1994). There, the Court read the Legislature's selection of the date identified in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 as providing local boards with sufficient time to fill a vacant position before the start of the next school year, as well as sufficient time for the terminated teaching staff member to secure other employment. Id. at 380.[1]

Here, as the ALJ noted, it is well-settled that "tenure does not attach to a coaching position." Norcross v. Board of Education of the North Hunterdon Regional High School District, Hunterdon County, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 176, 178, aff'd State Board at 181, aff'd App. Div. March 30, 1993, No. A-3533-91, citing Furlong v. Kearny Bd. of Ed., 1980 S.L.D. 1420 and Koslick v. Bd. of Ed. of the Twp. of Edison, State Board April 3, 1987. Petitioner cannot assert, therefore, that the protections afforded by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 et seq. are applicable to his coaching contract; neither can he credibly claim to be prejudiced by the Board's failure to notify him of the nonrenewal of his coaching contract by May 15, 1998.[2]

[1] In Nissman, the Court held that the petitioner's appeal was untimely filed since her cause of action arose at the time of the board's decision in April 1990 to terminate employment, rather than at the expiration of her contract in August 1990. Nissman, supra, at 382.

Moreover, the Commissioner cannot conclude that the Board violated N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2, since that regulation, formerly found at N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.20, was specifically adopted to implement Donaldson, supra, pursuant to the Supreme Court's interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10. See 8 N.J.R. 62(a); Hicks v. Board of Education of the Township of Pemberton, Burlington County, 1975 S.L.D. 332; Jamison v. Morris Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ., 198 N.J. Super. 411, 417 (App. Div. 1985); Bd. of Ed., Tp. of Wyckoff v. Wyckoff Ed. Assoc., 168 N.J. Super. 497, 500, 501 (App. Div. 1979), cert. denied, 81 N.J. 349 (1979). Finally, the Commissioner determines that petitioner has failed to demonstrate any infirmity in the Board's application of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 to the nonrenewal of his coaching contract.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein, and amplified above. The within Petition of Appeal is dismissed.[3]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Mailing date: December 13, 1999

[3] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Record Closed: October 26, 1999 Decided: October 26, 1999

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

This matter arises from the filing of a Petition of Appeal by Harry Parker, ("petitioner") with the Commissioner of Education on August 5, 1998, alleging that the respondent board froze his salary and failed to pay him in accordance with the applicable salary guide therefore reducing his salary in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on September 18, 1998, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached stipulation indicating the terms of settlement.

A review of the terms of the settlement and the legal issues involved which have been extensively briefed by the parties and which have been the subject of a summary decision motion which was denied, indicate that the resolution reached between the parties is an appropriate settlement of the dispute which should be accepted as a reasonable conclusion of the matter. BEVERLY J. STURM, Petitioner, v. MT. ARLINGTON BOARD OF EDUCATION, Respondent.	Agency Docket No.: 233-8/99 SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

1. Beverly Sturm, employed by the Mt. Arlington Board of Educatio ("Board"), as its Board Secretary/School Business Administrator, hereb submits her resignation effective March 1, 2001 subject specifically to th following terms and conditions.

2. Ms. Sturm will dismiss, with prejudice, the two pending actior referenced above. The Board will resolve the issue of the allege reduction in Ms. Sturm's compensation by retroactively increasing her salary by $4640.50 for the 1997-98 school year and by $4640.50 for the 1998-99 school year. This would result in the Board owing Ms. Sturm a total of $9,281.00. Payment of this salary due and owing will be made as follows: $4640.50 will be paid to Ms. Sturm between January 1, 2000 and January 15, 2000, and $4640.50 will be paid on or before July 31, 2000. This shall be the only payment beyond the existing salary obligations which the Board owes to Ms. Sturm.

3. Ms. Sturm will continue to be paid at the rate of her present salary through March 1, 2001. The parties have agreed that, due to certain recurring medical issues, Ms. Sturm will commence an extended sick leave on September 30, 1999 and will not return to work thereafter. Ms. Sturm will use all remaining sick days, vacation days, personal days and leave days to cover the period of this leave; to the extent that the days available to Ms. Sturm are insufficient, the Board will continue to maintain her at her current salary through the effective date of her resignation (approximately 34 days are expected to be left once her available days are exhausted).

4. Her resignation is effective March 1, 2001, after which she will no longer be an employee of the Board. However, prior to that time, she will be considered an employee for all purposes, including but not limited to salary and benefits. This includes the Board's obligation to make pension contributions and to pay her NJASBO dues.

5. For and in consideration of the mutual promises set forth herein, Ms. Sturm, for herself, and for her agents, heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, fully, irrevocably, and unconditionally releases and discharges the Board, its employees and its agents from any and all claims, demands, causes of action and liabilities of any kind. This release specifically includes any claim of entitlement to a tenured position, or any other type of employment with the Board, after March 1, 2001.

6. After September 30, 1999, no further documentation will be added to Ms. Sturm's personnel file. Furthermore, the Board shall release copies of documents contained specifically therein only upon the written consent of Ms. Sturm or pursuant to Court Order.

7. The Board shall agree not to make any negative comments -- written or oral -- regarding Ms. Sturm including but not limited to her job performance or abilities. Ms. Sturm shall agree to the same regarding the Board. In the event the Board receives any inquiries from any individuals or entity, including but not limited to any prospective employers of Ms. Sturm, the Board shall advise that it is the policy of the Board to respond to such inquiries in writing whereupon the Board will provide a letter to which the parties shall agree in advance. The parties agree that they will not disclose the terms of this Agreement unless such disclosure is required by law or consented to by both parties. For purposes of this paragraph, the reference to the Board shall mean the Board, each of its members, officers, employees and professionals and the staffs of any of its professionals.

8. The parties recognize and agree that the making of this stipulation of settlement is not intended to and does not constitute or imply an admission of liability or any type of wrongdoing by any party, or of any violation of any federal, state or local statute, regulation or ordinance, or violation of any other right by any party, upon any legal or equitable theory, whether contractual, common law, statutory or otherwise. The parties agree that this stipulation of settlement may not be used to establish precedent in any future proceeding of any type whatsoever, and that it shall be inadmissible in any such proceeding, other than a proceeding to enforce or prove the existence of same.

9. This agreement is specifically contingent upon approval by the Board by recorded roll call vote at a public meeting. In the event that it is not so approved, Ms. Sturm has the right to withdraw her offer of resignation and this agreement shall be null and void.

For the Board, Raymond R. Trombadore, Esq.

Thomas Lynch, Pro Se

This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education on October 1, 1999, through certification of tenure charges against Thomas Lynch, a tenured custodian (Supervisor of Buildings and Grounds), by the Board of Education of the Borough of Manville; and

The Commissioner having directed respondent on October 1, 1999, via both certified and regular mail, the certified copy having been signed for on October 6, 1999, to file an Answer to the tenure charges against him; and

Such directive clearly providing respondent notice that, pursuant to P.L. 1998, c. 42, effective July 1, 1998, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified "shall have 15 days to submit a written response to the charges to the commissioner," and that failure to answer within the prescribed period will result in the charges being deemed admitted and the Commissioner deciding the matter on a summary basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e); and

Respondent having neither submitted a reply to the Board's charges against him, nor having at any time communicated with the Office of the Commissioner to request an extension of time within which to file a response, request assistance, or for any other reason, by operation of N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.3 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e), each count of the charges against respondent is deemed admitted for purposes of the within proceeding; and

The Commissioner having reviewed the tenure charges certified against respondent by the Board, specifically:

1. Beginning approximately 7 years ago and continuing until 2 or 3 years ago, you accepted from Andrzej Zagaja, a subordinate employee, monies extorted by him from other employees of the school district, all of whom were under your direct supervision;

2. You failed to report to the Superintendent of Schools or to the Board of Education the conduct of your immediate subordinate in extorting monies from employees supervised by him;

3. You aided and abetted your immediate subordinate in his plan and scheme of extorting monies from Board of Education employees;

4. Your conduct in this matter was both illegal and in contravention of your contract of employment; and

Having deemed such charges to be admitted by operation of rule, the Commissioner has determined, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, that these charges, taken together, constitute unbecoming conduct[1] and are sufficient to warrant respondent's dismissal from his tenured position; and

Notwithstanding this determination, the Commissioner notes from the record that the Board's suspension of the within respondent without pay on August 12, 1999, was in contravention of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, in that respondent was neither under indictment nor had tenure charges been certified against him as of that date; now, therefore

[1]While respondent may have been inartfully charged with what may be viewed as criminal charges, the Commissioner notes that this is not the forum where criminal charges are to be adjudicated. Rather, the within charges manifest an intention of the Board to administratively charge respondent with conduct unbecoming an employee.

IT IS ORDERED this _____ day of December 1999, that summary judgment shall be granted to the District, and Thomas Lynch shall be dismissed from his tenured position as a custodian (Supervisor of Buildings and Grounds) in the Board's employ as of the date of this order; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Board pay respondent his full salary and emoluments for the period from August 12, 1999 up to September 29, 1999, the date of its certification of tenure charges against him.[2]

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Record Closed: October 26, 1999 Decided: October 27, 1999

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

The Passaic County Manchester Regional High School District Board of Education filed charges with the Commissioner of Education against Christopher Wannemacher, whom it employees as a tenured teacher. The matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law on June 18, 1999, for determination as a contested case.

Thereafter, Wannemacher filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking a determination that the decision to withhold his increment for the 1999-2000 school year was arbitrary and capricious. This matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law on August 11, 1999, for determination as a contested case. The two matters were consolidated for hearing.

Prior to hearing, the parties agreed to a settlement which resolves the dispute with respect to the tenure charges and the withholding of the increment. Having reviewed the record and the settlement terms, I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or the signatures of their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms, and it is FURTHER ORDERED that the proceedings in this matter be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF TENURE CHARGES AGAINST CHRISTOPHER WANNEMACHER, PASSAIC COUNTY MANCHESTER REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT BOARD OF EDUCATION.	:	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION/OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW Agency Ref. No. 134-6/99 OAL Dkt No. EDU 07096-99N
CHRISTOPHER WANNEMACHER, Petitioner, v. MANCHESTER REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT BOARD OF EDUCATION, Respondent.	:	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION/OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW Agency Ref. No. 200-7/99 OAL Dkt No. EDU 9126-99

This AGREEMENT made this 21st day of October 1999 between the Passaic County Manchester Regional High School District Board of Education, which has offices located at 70 Church Street, in the Borough of Haledon, County of Passaic and State of New Jersey (hereinafter referred to as the "Board"), and Christopher Wannemacher, who resides at 59 Quarry Road in the Township of Wantage, County of Sussex and State of New Jersey (hereinafter referred to as "Wannemacher").

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, Wannemacher has been employed by the Board as a science teacher at Manchester Regional High School since the 1989-1990 school year and has obtained tenure under his instructional certificate;

WHEREAS, on April 5, 1999, the Board served Wannemacher with fourteen (14) tenure charges of unprofessional and unbecoming conduct, together with supporting statement of evidence;

WHEREAS, the Board advised Wannemacher that he had fifteen (15) days in which to file with the Board a written response to the tenure charges;

WHEREAS, on April 19, 1999, Wannemacher notified the Board, without explanation, that he did not feel it was necessary for the Board to certify tenure charges against him but he did not respond to the factual allegations contained in the tenure charges at that time;

WHEREAS, on May 27, 1999, the Board passed a resolution to certify the tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education and suspend Wannemacher without pay, effective May 28, 1999;

WHEREAS, the tenure charges were filed with the Commissioner of Education on June 1, 1999;

WHEREAS, on June 24, 1999, the Board passed a resolution withholding Wannemacher's employment and adjustments increments for the 1999-2000 school year based on the facts contained in the tenure charges;

WHEREAS, Wannemacher filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education which challenged the Board's action to withhold Wannemacher's salary increments; said action contended that the alleged factual basis underlying the withholding and the tenure charges was false in fact, arbitrary and capricious;

WHEREAS, on June 14, 1999, Wannemacher filed an Answer denying, without explanation, the tenure charges filed against him;

WHEREAS, the tenure charges were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law and assigned to the Honorable Richard McGill, A.L.J.;

WHEREAS, on August 18, 1999, Judge McGill granted Wannemacher's motion to consolidate the tenure charges and the withholding of increments petition;

WHEREAS, the parties propounded interrogatories and requests for production of documents upon each other;

WHEREAS, upon receipt of Wannemacher's answers to interrogatories and response to the request for production of documents, the Board for the first time discovered Wannemacher's explanation to the tenure charges and evidence in support of his position;

WHEREAS, the Board has conducted a thorough review of Wannemacher's response to the tenure charges as well as the discovery information that he submitted in support of his position, and as a result of such review, the Board has determined that there is a factual basis for the defenses asserted which makes it difficult to conclusively determine that the tenure charges will result in dismissal or remand of tenure, thus making it prudent for the Board to reassess its position on the tenure charges before proceeding with a lengthy and costly tenure proceeding;

WHEREAS, since the tenure charges have been filed, Wannemacher realizes that the reputational damages caused by the allegations of the charges, even though they are denied, may have compromised his ability to function as a teacher in the Manchester Regional High School District (hereinafter referred to as "District") and thus caused him to reassess his desire to continue his employment at Manchester Regional High School;

WHEREAS, the parties' position since the filing of the tenure charges can be addressed through a settlement agreement;

WHEREAS, the Board and the superintendent of schools of the District are not of the opinion that tenure charges might warrant revocation or suspension of Wannemacher's teaching certificate, regardless of whether the tenure charges are litigated or settled;

WHEREAS, the terms of the settlement take into account that the employment decisions for the 1999-2000 school year have already been made by school districts and that a time period for Wannemacher to secure alternative employment is needed;

WHEREAS, Wannemacher will continue to receive his salary until a decision is rendered by the Commissioner of Education;

WHEREAS, eight days of hearing were scheduled with the possibility of additional hearing dates being needed;

WHEREAS, litigation of the tenure charges would cause disruptions to the educational program in the District due to the absence of administrators, teachers and students who will have to testify at the hearing;

WHEREAS, since the Board will incur substantial financial costs to continue the litigation, it would be cost effective to negotiate a settlement which would also enable the parties to effectuate a mutually acceptable decision on Wannemacher's employment in the District;

WHEREAS, the parties agree that a settlement is consistent with the public interest and the best interest of the Manchester Regional High School District;

NOW, WHEREFORE, based on the foregoing premises and the mutual promises and covenants contained herein, the parties agree as follows:

1. Wannemacher hereby resigns from his position of teacher with the Board and relinquishes all tenure and seniority rights, effective November 1, 2000, subject only to the approval of this Agreement by the Board, the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education, and the provisions of paragraph 16 of this Agreement. Wannemacher submits his resignation knowingly, voluntarily and irrevocably, free of coercion or duress, after consulting with counsel and receiving advice as to its ramifications. Wannemacher will sign an irrevocable letter of resignation from all employment with the Board. The form of Wannemacher's irrevocable letter of resignation is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

2. The Board, by resolution, will publicly approve and accept the resignation of Wannemacher at its next regularly scheduled meeting, effective November 1, 2000. The form of the Board's resolution is attached hereto as Exhibit B.

3. Wannemacher hereby requests a leave of absence with pay commencing the date this Agreement is approved by the Commissioner of Education and ending on October 31, 2000. The form of Wannemacher's letter requesting a leave of absence with pay is attached hereto as Exhibit C. The Board shall provide Wannemacher with a mutually convenient time to obtain all of his personal belongings.

4. The Board, by resolution, will publicly approve and accept Wannemacher's requested leave of absence with pay commencing the date this Agreement is approved by the Commissioner of Education and ending October 31, 2000. The form of the Board's resolution is attached hereto as Exhibit B.

5. The Board agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, its tenure charges in the above-captioned matter bearing O.A.L. Docket No. EDU-7096-99 and Agency Ref. No. 134-6/99, subject to the approval of this Agreement by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

6. Wannemacher agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, the Verified Petition before the Commissioner of Education, bearing OAL Docket No. EDU 9126-99 and Agency Ref. No. 200-7/99, which challenges the withholding of his increments, subject to the approval of this Agreement by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

7. In consideration for Wannemacher's resignation effective November 1, 2000, the Board agrees to pay Wannemacher the following compensation:

(a) Restore Wannamacher's salary, including advisor positions, during the period of suspension without pay from May 28, 1999 through June 30, 1999 -- $7,153.54 less applicable taxes and the usual and customary deductions.

(b) Payment of 1998-1999 attendance incentive in accordance with the provisions of the collective negotiations agreement between the Board and the Manchester Education Association -- $450.00.

(c) Restore Wannemacher's salary increments for the 1999-2000 school year and the salary, including advisors positions, during the period of suspension from September 1, 1999 through September 26, 1999, which will effectively result in the payment of salary for the 1999-2000 school year based on the appropriate level of the salary guide, including longevity and advisor positions - $70,414.00 less applicable taxes and the usual and customary deductions. All salary paid to Wannemacher during the 1999-2000 school year pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 shall be deducted from this amount.,

(d) Reimburse Wannemacher for insurance premiums purchased in accordance with the provisions of COBRA during the period of suspension without pay - $1,736.55 (lump sum payment without deductions). A signed voucher, together with proof of payment, shall be submitted to the Board.

(d) Payment of salary based on the level of the salary guide for the 1999-2000 school year, including longevity but exclusive of stipend positions, from September 1, 2000 through October 31, 2000 -- $13,620.00 less taxes and the usual and customary deductions.

All monies due to Wannemacher under this Agreement will be paid upon final approval of this Agreement by the Commissioner of Education.

8. The Board will continue to provide Wannemacher with health, medical, prescription and dental insurance in accordance with the collective negotiations agreement between the Board and Manchester Education Association through October 31, 2000, subject to the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. If, however, Wannemacher secures alternative employment prior to October 31, 2000 which provides insurance benefits, the Board will have no further obligation to provide health, medical, prescription and dental benefits to Wannemacher after the conclusion of any eligibility waiting period. In the event that Wannemacher's insurance coverage is terminated prior to November 1, 1999, Wannemacher can reenroll through the Board's insurance carrier, subject to the applicable rules and regulations, and if authorized by the Board's insurance carrier, insurance benefits will be reinstated through October 31, 2000. Upon his termination and consistent with his rights under the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 ("COBRA"), Wannemacher shall be able to purchase at his own cost and expense, the insurance coverages presently provided to other teaching staff members in the Manchester Regional High School District and set forth in the collective negotiations agreement aforesaid.

9. During Wannemacher's leave of absence with pay, no benefits (such as sick days, personal days, and bereavement days) in accordance with the provisions of the collective negotiations agreement, other than those specifically addressed in paragraph 8 of this Agreement, shall accrue to Wannemacher or become an obligation of the Board.

10. Wannemacher will receive no compensation by the Board for any accumulated sick days earned during his period of employment with the Board.

11. Wannemacher shall be solely responsible for the reimbursement of any unemployment compensation or benefits he received while in the employ of the Board and for which he is required to repay.

12. All references and requests for letters of recommendation shall be given to and issued only by the Assistant Superintendent of Schools, who had evaluated Wannemacher during the course of his employment with the Board. The references and letter of recommendation shall be consistent with the Assistant Superintendent's evaluations. No other administrator employed or hereafter employed by the Board, or Board member, shall release any other information concerning Wannemacher except Wannemacher's name, title, position, salary, payroll record, length of service, date of separation and reason therefor (to wit: voluntary resignation) as authorized by Executive Order No. 11.

13. Neither Wannemacher nor the Board shall make any statements about the other which would tend to disparage or defame the other. Neither party shall undertake any act constituting a reprisal against the other for having instituted or defended the subject matter of these actions.

14. The compensation and benefits specified in paragraphs 7 and 8 above of this Agreement are to be provided in consideration for Wannemacher waiving any and all claims he has, or could have, against the Board, its agents, officers, employees, servants, representatives and attorneys, or any one of them, and any student who made an oral or written statement about Wannemacher to the District in connection with the tenure charges, including, but not limited to, claims for discrimination, contract, tort or constitutional violations, or attorney's fees. Wannemacher shall execute a General Release in favor of the Board releasing the Board, its officers, agents, servants, attorneys or employees, or any one of them, and any students who made an oral or written statement about Wannemacher to the District from all claims, liabilities or expenses to which it may be subject, arising from any claims or rights of Wannemacher. The form of the General Release is attached hereto as Exhibit D. Notwithstanding the signing of the release, the Board remains obligated to indemnify Wannemacher against claims by students and their parents which pertain to the tenure charges in accordance with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and 6.1. Nothing in this Agreement or the documents referenced herein shall preclude either party from bringing an action to enforce performance of any term of this Agreement should there be a default in performance.

15. The Board, John Petrelli, Superintendent of Schools of the Manchester Regional High School District, and Hank Sinatra, Principal of Manchester Regional High School, shall execute a General Release in favor of Wannemacher releasing him from all claims, liabilities, or expenses to which he may be subject to, arising from any claims or rights of any of them. The form of General Release is attached hereto as Exhibit E.

16. The parties acknowledge that this Agreement shall be submitted to the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education for review and approval, and that the terms of this Agreement are expressly made subject to and contingent upon such review and approval and the matter not being referred to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of Wannemacher's teaching certificate. In the event that the Commissioner of Education disapproves and/or rejects any of the terms contained herein or the Commissioner of Education refers the matter to the State Board of Examiners, this Agreement shall be null and void and shall not be evidential or used by either party in any proceeding involving any party to this Agreement. In addition, the parties shall return to the same positions which they held prior to this Agreement.

17. The signing of this Agreement does not constitute nor should it be interpreted as an admission of wrongdoing or guilt on the part of Wannemacher or that the Board had acted improperly in preferring the tenure charges.

18. The parties acknowledge that each has consulted with an attorney or a representative of their own choosing prior to signing this Agreement and that each sign this Agreement as their own voluntary act and deed, and that they fully understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein.

19. This Agreement shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

20. The undersigned representatives of the Board hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized by the Board to sign this Agreement and bind the Board to its terms.

21. Wannemacher hereby declares that he is of sufficient physical, mental and emotional capacities to understand and agree to all of the terms and conditions of this Agreement and agrees that he is and will continue to be bound by these terms and conditions in the future.

22. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended, modified or revoked except by an instrument executed in writing by the parties.

IN WITNESS, WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals the date and year aforesaid.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF CHRISTOPHER WANNEMACHER, MANCHESTER REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, PASSAIC COUNTY.
CHRISTOPHER WANNEMACHER, PETITIONER, V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE MANCHESTER REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, PASSAIC COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record, settlement agreement and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, in this consolidated matter has been reviewed.

Upon careful and independent review of the full record of this matter and the terms of the proposed settlement agreement, the Commissioner is compelled to reject such agreement as it is currently structured since he cannot be satisfied by the present record that the proposed settlement meets the Cardonick standards for settlement of tenure matters. In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, affirmed State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846.

It is well-established that, having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, the Board may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges can no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue them. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenneth Smith, School District of the City of Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner March 22, 1982, decision on remand June 16, 1983, aff'd with modification by the State Board of Education November 2, 1983, aff'd New Jersey Superior Court January 30, 1986. The present record contains no such explanation, notwithstanding that the agreement indicates that "the Board has determined that there is a factual basis for the defenses asserted [by Wannemacher] which makes it difficult to conclusively determine that the tenure charges will result in dismissal or remand of tenure." (Stipulation of Settlement at p. 4)

The Commissioner notes that his determination in this regard was highly influenced by the serious nature of the charges, and the dearth of information on the record providing a "factual basis for the defenses asserted" by Wannemacher. Although the parties reference interrogatories which, apparently, offer a basis for Wannemacher's defense, no such interrogatories are included in the record for the Commissioner's review; and, indeed, no defenses have been advanced on the record, outside of Wannemacher's general denial of all charges.[1] Additionally, in this connection, the Commissioner cannot sanction a settlement which fails to explain why, where the Board has brought serious charges against a teacher, it is now in the public's interest to continue to pay this teacher for almost one full year as a condition of settlement, and to offer him multiple reimbursements, which payments amount to the outlay of considerable public funds.

[1] The Commissioner notes that Wannemacher did not, prior to the certification of the within charges, meaningfully deny the charges. To the contrary, he merely stated, in pertinent part, "Other than to say that I do not feel it is necessary for the Board of Education to certify tenure charges against me, I have nothing further to say at this time. My position and evidence will be made known at the hearings to be scheduled in this matter." (Statement of Charges at Exhibit 4, Wannemacher's Answer to Charges, dated April 16, 1999) After the charges were certified to the Commissioner, Wannemacher's Answer consisted primarily of a series of denials, without explanation.

Further, it is noted that settlement term number 12 provides, inter alia, that, with respect to references and requests for letters of recommendation, the Board shall act as authorized by Executive Order No. 11,[2] and the Assistant Superintendent of Schools shall, upon such request, indicate that the reason for Wannemacher's separation was "voluntary resignation." (Stipulation of Settlement at p. 9) However, based on the record before him, and recognizing that this agreement contemplates Wannemacher's return to teaching, the Commissioner cannot approve the characterization of Wannemacher's resignation that the parties so propose, as such terms do not "adequately protect the public interest and  the interests of New Jersey's public school districts ." Barbara Holder v. Board of Education if the Township of Piscataway, Middlesex County, State Board of Education decision April 7, 1993.[3] The Commissioner cannot consent to terms in a settlement that would infringe in any way on the right, or indeed, the obligation, of the Board to be more forthcoming in responding to inquiries that might arise concerning Wannemacher's employment with the Board. See, e.g., John Salsberg v. Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, Morris County, decided by the Commissioner May 11, 1989.

[2] Executive Order No. 11 (1974) states, in pertinent part, that the following information must be public:

> a. An individual's name, title, position, salary, payroll record, length of service in the instrumentality of government and in the government, date of separation from government service and the reason therefor; and the amount and type of pension he is receiving;
> b. Data contained in information which disclose conformity with specific experiential, educational or medical qualifications required for government employment or for receipt of a public pension, but in no event shall detailed medical or psychological information be released.  (emphasis added)

[3] Distinguish, Barbara Holder v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, Middlesex County, State Board of Education decision April 7, 1993, where, in a dispute which did not involve tenure charges brought against a teacher, and where allegations as to the teacher's underlying conduct were not as serious as those in the instant matter, the terms of the settlement agreement were found to be consistent with law, and the parties' agreement to alter petitioner's evaluation documents, upon her resignation, were nevertheless found to adequately protect the public interest.

Additionally, contrary to the requirements of Cardonick, supra, the parties have expressly indicated that the within agreement is made subject to, and contingent upon, this matter not being referred to the State Board of Examiners, notwithstanding that it is the Commissioner's duty pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, to refer tenure determinations for possible revocation of certificate. (Stipulating of Settlement at p. 11) On its face, this term cannot stand.

While the Commissioner does not preclude the possibility of settlement in this matter, he stresses that in order for him to meet his own obligation to the schools and children of this state, he must be assured that any settlement is consistent with appropriate standards for setting aside tenure matters as expressed in Cardonick, supra.

Accordingly, the proposed settlement is rejected for the reasons expressed herein. The Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the OAL for revision of the settlement agreement and expansion of the record, consistent with the concerns set forth above. In the alternative, if the parties are unwilling or unable to settle consistent with the Commissioner's decision herein, this matter may move to plenary hearing on the merits to allow Wannemacher to defend himself against the Board's charges, thereby also providing him the opportunity to exonerate himself and restore his reputation. (Stipulation of Settlement at p. 4)[4]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[4] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

BEVERLY J. STURM, Petitioner, v. MT. ARLINGTON BOARD OF EDUCATION, Respondent.	:	Agency Docket No.: 233-8/99 SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

1. Beverly Sturm, employed by the Mt. Arlington Board of Educatior ("Board"), as its Board Secretary/School Business Administrator, hereby submits her resignation effective March 1, 2001 subject specifically to the following terms and conditions.

2. Ms. Sturm will dismiss, with prejudice, the two pending actions referenced above. The Board will resolve the issue of the allege reduction in Ms. Sturm's compensation by retroactively increasing her salary by $4640.50 for the 1997-98 school year and by $4640.50 for the 1998-99 school year. This would result in the Board owing Ms. Sturm a total of $9,281.00. Payment of this salary due and owing will be made as follows: $4640.50 will be paid to Ms. Sturm between January 1, 2000 and January 15, 2000, and $4640.50 will be paid on or before July 31, 2000. This shall be the only payment beyond the existing salary obligations which the Board owes to Ms. Sturm.

3. Ms. Sturm will continue to be paid at the rate of her present salary through March 1, 2001. The parties have agreed that, due to certain recurring medical issues, Ms. Sturm will commence an extended sick leave on September 30, 1999 and will not return to work thereafter. Ms. Sturm will use all remaining sick days, vacation days, personal days and leave days to cover the period of this leave; to the extent that the days available to Ms. Sturm are insufficient, the Board will continue to maintain her at her current salary through the effective date of her resignation (approximately 34 days are expected to be left once her available days are exhausted).

4. Her resignation is effective March 1, 2001, after which she will no longer be an employee of the Board. However, prior to that time, she will be considered an employee for all purposes, including but not limited to salary and benefits. This includes the Board's obligation to make pension contributions and to pay her NJASBO dues.

5. For and in consideration of the mutual promises set forth herein, Ms. Sturm, for herself, and for her agents, heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, fully, irrevocably, and unconditionally releases and discharges the Board, its employees and its agents from any and all claims, demands, causes of action and liabilities of any kind. This release specifically includes any claim of entitlement to a tenured position, or any other type of employment with the Board, after March 1, 2001.

6. After September 30, 1999, no further documentation will be added to Ms. Sturm's personnel file. Furthermore, the Board shall release copies of documents contained specifically therein only upon the written consent of Ms. Sturm or pursuant to Court Order.

7. The Board shall agree not to make any negative comments -- written or oral -- regarding Ms. Sturm including but not limited to her job performance or abilities. Ms. Sturm shall agree to the same regarding the Board. In the event the Board receives any inquiries from any individuals or entity, including but not limited to any prospective employers of Ms. Sturm, the Board shall advise that it is the policy of the Board to respond to such inquiries in writing whereupon the Board will provide a letter to which the parties shall agree in advance. The parties agree that they will not disclose the terms of this Agreement unless such disclosure is required by law or consented to by both parties. For purposes of this paragraph, the reference to the Board shall mean the Board, each of its members, officers, employees and professionals and the staffs of any of its professionals.

8. The parties recognize and agree that the making of this stipulation of settlement is not intended to and does not constitute or imply an admission of liability or any type of wrongdoing by any party, or of any violation of any federal, state or local statute, regulation or ordinance, or violation of any other right by any party, upon any legal or equitable theory, whether contractual, common law, statutory or otherwise. The parties agree that this stipulation of settlement may not be used to establish precedent in any future proceeding of any type whatsoever, and that it shall be inadmissible in any such proceeding, other than a proceeding to enforce or prove the existence of same.

9. This agreement is specifically contingent upon approval by the Board by recorded roll call vote at a public meeting. In the event that it is not so approved, Ms. Sturm has the right to withdraw her offer of resignation and this agreement shall be null and void.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE LENAPE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, Gloucester County Institute of Technology (GCIT), alleged respondent Lenape owed tuition for nine Lenape students in attendance at GCIT's Southern N.J. Academy for the Performing Arts (Academy) for the 1997-98, 1998-99, 1999-2000 school years and beyond. GCIT contended that the performing arts program at the Academy is approved vocational education, that Lenape concedes having no comparable program, that the students attended, and that tuition was due under N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1. Lenape contended the petition was untimely filed. Moreover, Lenape alleged the Academy was not approved to provide vocational education, that dance and theater programs do not qualify as vocational education under N.J.A.C. 6:43-1.1 to –8.2, and that the Academy's recruitment policies make it resemble a private institution. Lenape did pay transportation costs for those students.

Citing Kaprow, the ALJ agreed with GCIT that the matter was not untimely filed since there was no indication in the record through a resolution, minutes, or otherwise that the Lenape Board ever formally passed on the GCIT demand for tuition. The letters from Lenape to GCIT might have served as notice of official action, had there been one, but no notice came from the Board as the ALJ found is required, pursuant to Kaprow. Also, in light of an exhibit from the Department of Education, the ALJ found that the Academy's performing arts program is approved occupational education. Thus, Lenape was obligated to pay for the students in attendance in the approved program. The ALJ noted that if the Academy violated conditions of its approval, then that is a separate matter to be brought before the Commissioner as a licensing question. The ALJ denied Lenape's motion for partial summary decision and granted GCIT's motion for summary decision.

The Commissioner concurred with the ultimate conclusion of the ALJ that GCIT was entitled to summary decision in this matter, but he so found based upon a different analysis from that proffered in the Initial Decision. Commissioner found that the actions of the Lenape Board clearly satisfy the requirements envisioned by Kaprow sufficient to trigger the running of the 90-day timeline for filing of a petition by GCIT. Thus, the Commissioner found that GCIT's petition was untimely filed. The Commissioner, however, was persuaded that this matter presents a compelling public interest sufficient to warrant relaxation of the 90-day rule. The Commissioner determined that although Lenape honored its obligation with respect to the transportation of these students, it refused to similarly honor its legal responsibility for tuition. The Commissioner found that Lenape's defenses to its withholding of payment were without substance and irrelevant to its responsibility. The Commissioner cannot and will not countenance a local board's refusal to honor its obligations to vocational students because the board does not agree with prevailing decisional interpretations. The Commissioner affirmed Initial Decision with modification. The Commissioner granted summary decision to GCIT and directed Lenape to remit the tuition owed GCIT for the attendance of its resident students at the Academy for the 1997-98, 1998-99, 1999-2000 school years and thereafter, pursuant to a mutually acceptable payment schedule. The Commissioner directed Gloucester County Superintendent of Schools to review GCIT's student acceptance practices.

Record Closed: October 4, 1999 Decided: October 28, 1999

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a claim by the Board of Education of the Gloucester County Institute of Technology (GCIT) that the Board of Education of the Lenape Regional High School District (Lenape) is obliged to pay for Lenape students in attendance at GCIT's Southern New Jersey Academy for the Performing Arts (Academy) for the 1997/98 school year and beyond.[1] The matter falls under the jurisdiction of the Department of Education, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, and was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The parties have filed cross-motions for summary decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5; Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995).

The facts for purposes of the cross-motions are undisputed. On May 9, 1997, Victor C. Morella, GCIT's superintendent, wrote to Dr. Daniel Hicks, the Lenape superintendent, informing him that students from the Lenape district had been admitted to the Academy. The letter reflects GCIT's expectation that Lenape will pay transportation costs, and after an exchange of correspondence over the summer, Lenape assented. On September 26, 1997, Daniel T. Greene, GCIT's business administrator/board secretary, addressed a letter to Lenape indicating that nine Lenape students had actually enrolled and noted for the first time a tuition cost of $7,600 per pupil, or a total cost of $68,400. Payment could be made monthly over the course of the school year, or in full on July 1, 1998.

On February 2, 1998, Arthur F. Risden, Esq., wrote to Mr. Greene indicating that Lenape had reviewed the September 1997 request for tuition and was "not in a position to enter into the Education Tuition Contract Agreement inasmuch as there [was] no sending-receiving relationship between Lenape and [GCIT]." GCIT's former counsel, Joseph F. Betley, Esq., responded to Mr. Risden on February 4, and 5, 1998, seeking to further explain GCIT's position. On February 6, 1998, Thomas S. Rende, Lenape assistant superintendent, wrote to Mr. Greene indicating that Lenape would not pay tuition for the reasons expressed in Mr. Risden's earlier correspondence. On February 12, 1998, Mr. Risden responded to Mr. Betley's letters, further explaining his legal stance and again expressing Lenape's unwillingness to pay.

On July 6, 1998, Mr. Morella wrote to Dr. Hicks advising him of the Lenape students who would be attending GCIT in the 1998/99 school year. Mr. Greene wrote to Lenape on July 10, 1998, indicating that tuition for the 1997/98 school year, which had been due by July 1, 1998, had not been received and that GCIT would seek legal recourse if payment were not forthcoming.

[1] GCIT's motion to amend its petition to add school years 1998/99, 1999/00 and beyond was granted pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-6.2, in the interest of efficiency and to avoid future litigation.

Mr. Risden replied by letter of July 22, 1998, indicating that Lenape stood by the position it took in February 1998. Mr. Greene wrote to Lenape on August 31, 1998, to indicate that eleven of its students would be attending the Academy for the 1998/99 school year and again requested tuition. On September 22, 1998, Mr. Risden forwarded what had now become his standard reply. On September 24, 1998, GCIT filed a petition with the Commissioner claiming tuition for the 1997/98 school year. GCIT's amended petition seeks $83,600 as tuition for eleven students in attendance at the Academy in 1998/99, $85,000 for ten students in attendance during this school year, and, all things being equal, an order requiring Lenape to pay for such students in future years.

Dr. Hicks submitted an affidavit stating that when GCIT's demand for tuition was first received in September 1997, he took the matter up with the Board of Education and was authorized to contact Mr. Risden for an opinion. Based on that opinion, the Board felt no responsibility to pay and Mr. Risden and Mr. Rende were directed to so inform GCIT. This is the substance of the record for purposes of the cross-motions.

Lenape argues that GCIT's petition is untimely and must be dismissed as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) provides:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

This regulation was most recently examined by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley Township, 131 N.J. 572 (1993), and both parties draw support from different aspects of the opinion. In June 1981, Maurice Kaprow's employment as a tenured assistant superintendent was terminated by the Berkeley Township Board of Education in a reduction in force (RIF). In 1986 and 1987, the board made two appointments to which Kaprow might have asserted post-RIF claims, but he was given no notice of these actions. On February 23, 1988, Kaprow asked the board secretary about any such positions and she wrote back the same day mentioning these two appointments. By letter of February 28, 1988, to the board, Kaprow maintained a right to these posts. The board did not answer. Kaprow sent a second letter on April 25, 1988, stating that he wished to resolve the matter amicably and would appreciate a response by May 16, 1988. The board's attorney responded on June 14, 1988, rejecting Kaprow's suggestion of entitlement. On August 1, 1988, Kaprow filed a petition with the Commissioner, and the board argued, inter alia, that he was barred by the 90-day rule.

The Court found that the board's appointments in 1986 and 1987 constituted final action as contemplated by the regulation. Notice may have lagged these events, but the board secretary's letter of February 23, 1988, though "unofficial and informal," 131 N.J. at 588, was sufficient to trigger the 90-day limitations period. Kaprow's August 1988 petition was thus out of time. The Court went on to say, however, that "[i]n the future, it would be better if such information and notice is officially authorized and communicated by the Local Board." 131 N.J. at 588.

Lenape argues from this that if notice from the board secretary was adequate to trigger the regulation in Kaprow, then the letters of counsel and an assistant superintendent in February 1998 must activate the limitations period here. Thus, GCIT was required to file its petition with the Commissioner in May, not September, 1998. GCIT understands Kaprow differently and I am inclined to this view. The regulation states that the 90-day period begins to run from the date that notice is received of a final order, ruling or other action by the board. There are two elements here; the board must act and notice must be transmitted. The Kaprow Court was careful to note that the board had acted when non-tenured personnel were appointed to positions that Kaprow might claim. While notice trailed this event by some time, it nevertheless effectuated the goal of the regulation by letting Kaprow know that the Board had taken adverse action.

There is no indication in this record either through a resolution, minutes, or otherwise that the Lenape Board ever formally passed on the GCIT demand for tuition. Dr. Hicks states that the matter came before the Board and that he was directed to contact counsel and act upon counsel's recommendations. However, the limitations period is initiated with a "final order, ruling, or other action by the district board of education." Final orders and rulings must of necessity come from the Board, and under the maxim ejusdem generis the term "other action" ought to be construed as a catchall for the remaining spectrum of Board decisionmaking. The regulation would not run upon the actions of staff and counsel. Though no reported case that I have seen treats this point directly, they all appear to begin with board action. See North Plainfield Educ. Ass'n v. North Plainfield Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J. 587 (1984); Nissman v. Long Beach Island Bd. of Educ., 272 N.J. Super. 373 (App. Div. 1993); Polaha v. Buena Regional Sch. Dist., 212 N.J. Super. 628 (App. Div. 1986); Riely v. Hunterdon Central High Sch. Bd. of Educ., 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980). The letters from Lenape to GCIT in February 1998 might have served as notice of an official action, had there been one, but even here the Kaprow Court preferred that such notice come from the Board.

GCIT's motion for summary decision argues that the performing arts program at the Academy is approved vocational education, that Lenape concedes having no comparable program [GCIT Br., Ex. P], that the students attended, and that tuition is therefore due under N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1. Lenape takes the position that the Academy is not approved to provide vocational education, that dance and theater programs do not qualify as vocational education under N.J.A.C. 6:43-1.1 to -8.2, and that Academy recruitment policies make it resemble a private institution, which would violate any authorization that it may have. These defenses are without substance. GCIT has produced an exhibit from the Department of Education indicating that the Academy's performing arts program is approved occupational education [GCIT Supp. Br., Ex. B]. There is no reason to look behind this approval. Moreover, in K.B. & GCIT v. Rancocas Valley Regional High School District Board of Education, EDU 6974-97, Initial Decision (Nov. 12, 1997), adopted, Comm'r (Dec. 29, 1997) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/>, a case awarding transportation costs for travel to the Academy, the Commissioner observed that the District was also responsible to pay tuition. Finally, if the Academy is violating conditions of its approval then this is a separate matter to be brought before the Commissioner as a licensing question. It has nothing to do with Lenape's present obligation to pay for students in attendance at an approved program. The same defense against a summary decision motion was rejected in D.F. v. Roselle Park Board of Education, EDU 5903-98, Initial Decision (May 24, 1999), adopted, Comm'r (July 9, 1999) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/>.

Based on the foregoing, Lenape's motion for partial summary decision is denied; GCIT's motion for summary decision is granted.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE GLOUCESTER COUNTY INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY, GLOUCESTER COUNTY, PETITIONER, V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE LENAPE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BURLINGTON COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of the respondent Board of Education of the Lenape Regional High School District (hereinafter "Lenape") and the reply thereto from petitioner Gloucester County Institute of Technology (hereinafter "GCIT") were filed in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Lenape's exceptions initially urge that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) should have dismissed the within petition and amended petition as untimely as they were clearly filed outside of the 90-day timeframe for such filings. In this regard, Lenape proffers that GCIT had "adequate notice," no later than February 12, 1998, that the Lenape Board had decided that it would not pay tuition for residents of the Lenape District to attend CGIT. Notwithstanding this notice, GCIT's Petition of Appeal was not filed until September 24, 1998, and its Amended Petition on October 20, 1999. (Lenape's Exceptions at p. 5) In finding GCIT's petition timely, Lenape argues, the ALJ erred in three ways. First, it advances, he misconstrued Kaprow, supra,

"as requiring notice of 'formal' board action, in the form of a 'resolution, minutes, or otherwise.'" Kaprow, it advances, makes no such requirement. (Id. at p. 7) Rather, Lenape asserts, Kaprow stands for the proposition that > [u]nder N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), the limitations period begins to run when a party has "adequate notice" of a final order, ruling or other action by a board of education. The Court has observed that notice is "adequate" where it is "sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to know and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate." Kaprow, 131 NJ at 587 (citation omitted). Adequate notice should also stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend, thus preventing the litigation of stale claims...[while also] "penaliz[ing] dilatoriness and serv[ing] as a measure of repose" by giving security and stability to human affairs. Id. at 587. Where the notice satisfies these goals, the formality or informality of the notice is irrelevant. Id. at 588. And, where such notice is provided, failure to initiate a contested case within the 90-day period, warrants dismissal of the Petition. (Lenape's Exceptions at p. 6)

Consequently, Lenape attests, "Kaprow did not, [as concluded by the ALJ], require the Lenape Board to give notice of any direct or formal action, on the GCIT demand for tuition, either through a 'resolution, minutes, or otherwise'; Kaprow merely required that the Lenape Board inform GCIT of its decision on the tuition issue, which it did on three separate occasions during February, 1998, through its board secretary and solicitor." (Lenape's Exceptions at pp. 9-10)

Even assuming, arguendo, that Kaprow requires notice of "formal" or direct board action, the ALJ's second error in finding GCIT's petition timely, Lenape argues, was his failure to recognize that the Lenape Board took such action with regard to GCIT's tuition demand. As recognized by the ALJ in his factual findings, the undisputed affidavit of Dr. Hicks stated:

> [W]hen GCIT's demand for tuition was first received in September 1997, [Dr. Hicks} took the matter up with the Board of Education and was authorized to contact Mr. Risden for an opinion. Based on that opinion, the Board felt no responsibility to > pay and Mr. Risden and Mr. Rende were directed to so inform GCIT. Opinion, at 3. (Lenape's Exceptions at p. 10)

As such, the ALJ's own factual findings clearly belie his conclusion that the Board failed to take action on GCIT's demand in that such findings establish "not only was the Lenape Board advised of GCIT's demand for tuition, but it determined that it would deny that demand, and through Dr. Hicks, directed Mr. Risden and Mr. Rende to inform GCIT of same, which they did in writing on February 2, February 6, and February 12, 1998." (Id.)

Finally, although recognizing that the February 1998 letters provided GCIT with adequate notice of the Board's decision regarding its tuition demand, (see Initial Decision at p. 5), the third error committed by the ALJ in finding the within petition timely, Lenape asserts, was when he concluded "that the notice of board action [must] actually come from the board, as opposed to staff or counsel. Opinion, at 4-5." (Lenape's Exceptions at p. 11) Lenape proffers that, not only did the court in Kaprow never indicate that counsel for a board of education, acting under board authority, cannot provide adequate notice of a board's decision, but, herein, GCIT also received notice of the Board's decision from the Board Secretary, the very individual deemed sufficient, pursuant to Kaprow, to trigger the 90-day limitation period. (Id. at p. 12)

Lenape's next exception objects to the ALJ's October 20, 1999 order permitting GCIT to file an amended Petition of Appeal in this matter to include claims for tuition for the 1998-99, 1999-2000, and future school years, claiming such order was "improvidently granted" in that the claims for these additional school years are, similarly to GCIT's original petition, time-barred by the 90-day limitations period. (Lenape's Exceptions at p. 12) It further proffers that the ALJ should have denied GCIT's Motion to Amend its petition to include these time-barred claims pursuant to the rationale of Halpern v. Board of Education of the Township of Delran, Burlington County, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 22. (Id.)

Finally, Lenape excepts to the ALJ's "erroneously" concluding that GCIT's Performing Arts Program is approved vocational education based exclusively on a letter from the Department of Education that the program is so approved. It proffers that such letter was insufficient to support GCIT's Motion for Summary Decision because it constituted hearsay, i.e., it was offered for the truth of its contents, and it does not fall under any exception to the hearsay rule which might permit its admissibility. Further, Lenape maintains, the Department concedes that many of the files relating to the approval process for this institution are no longer available, thus making it impossible for either the DOE or GCIT to positively confirm that GCIT properly complied with the approval process. Lenape takes issue with the ALJ's determination that whether or not GCIT is violating the conditions of its approval is irrelevant to Lenape's obligation to pay for its students attending an approved program. (Initial Decision at p. 5) To the contrary, it asserts, if the program is not an "approved vocational program," Lenape has no obligation to pay tuition at all. (Lenape's Exceptions at pp. 13-14) The ALJ's sole reliance on the DOE letter to confirm that the Academy is vocational education was also incorrect because the court failed to consider and address one of Lenape's major arguments, that the Academy is "private" rather than a county vocational education. In this regard, Lenape advances that the particular characteristics of this program "strongly suggest" that it is a private vocational school, i.e., it solicits out-of-county pupils through advertisements; Academy representatives go to out-of-county schools to recruit the most talented students; and rather than limiting acceptance of out-of-county students to spaces available after all in-county students have been accepted as required by regulation, the Academy uses an audition process to "test in" students to the program. This has the effect of rejecting in-county students in favor of "more talented" out-of-county students; and, finally, the tuition charged for the Academy program, $8,500 for the 1999-2000 school year, far exceeds the tuition at a typical "vocational" school. (Id. at pp. 13-14)

Lenape asserts that the ALJ's failure to consider whether GCIT was private vocational education is a significant error, which, at a minimum, requires the Commissioner to remand this matter for consideration of this issue, as a board of education's responsibilities vis-a-vis private vocational education institutions are appreciably different from those for county institutions. (Id. at p. 14)

In reply, GCIT states that the ALJ properly "interpreted and applied the holding of Kaprow," when he concluded that, because there was no "final action" of the Lenape Board in this matter with respect to GCIT's tuition payment demand, the within Petition of Appeal was timely filed. It urges the Commissioner to adopt the ALJ's decision for the reasons set forth therein.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the ultimate conclusion of the ALJ that petitioner GCIT is entitled to summary decision in this matter, but he so finds based upon the analysis outlined below rather than that proffered in the Initial Decision. Initially, the Commissioner rejects the ALJ's interpretation of Kaprow, supra, as requiring formal board action by way of "a resolution, minutes, or otherwise" (Initial Decision at p. 4) and direct notice by the board, as opposed to actions of its designated representatives taken at its behest, as absolute prerequisites to the triggering of the 90-day limitations period of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. Such a rigid interpretation does not comport with that Court's articulation of the underlying purpose of both the limitations period and "adequate notice." Essentially, the Kaprow Court found the limitations period begins to run when a party has adequate notice of a final order, ruling or action by a board of education, adequate notice being defined as one which is "sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to know and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate." Kaprow at 587. Moreover, it found that notice is "adequate" where it furthers the purpose of the 90-day limitations period,

> [t]hat is, the notice requirement should effectuate concerns for individual justice by not triggering the limitations period until the > [affected persons] have been alerted to the existence of facts that may equate in law with [their] cause of action. At the same time, [the notice] should further considerations of repose by establishing an objective event to trigger the limitations period in order "to enable the proper and efficient administration of the affairs of government." Id.

The Kaprow Court further opined that where the notice provided to an individual satisfies these underlying goals, the formality or informality of the notice is irrelevant. Id.

Here, as was recognized by the ALJ, the uncontroverted affidavit of Dr. Hicks, Lenape Superintendent of Schools, confirms that the Board was advised when GCIT's tuition demand was received, it sought a legal opinion on the issue, and, based upon that opinion, it directed both its Board Secretary and its counsel to communicate to GCIT that Lenape would not accept responsibility for the payment of the requested tuition. The record confirms that such directed communications were transmitted to GCIT by Board counsel on February 2, 1998 and February 12, 1998 and by the Board Secretary on February 6, 1998. The Commissioner finds and determines that these actions clearly satisfy the requirements envisioned by Kaprow sufficient to trigger the running of the 90-day timeline in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) for the filing of a petition of appeal. Consequently, having been adequately placed on notice as of mid-February 1998 that Lenape had no intention of paying the tuition of its resident students attending GCIT's Academy, the within Petition of Appeal, filed on September 24, 1998 for students enrolled for the 1997-98 school year, must be deemed untimely.[1]

Notwithstanding the well-established maxim that the limitations rule of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) is to be strictly applied, the Commissioner is cognizant that he may, pursuant to his authority under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, relax this rule under exceptional circumstances or if there is a compelling reason to do so. (See Kaprow, supra, at 590; also see DeMaio v. New Providence Board of Education, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU 449, 453.) Such authority, the Commissioner observes, is rarely invoked unless strict adherence thereto would be inappropriate, unnecessary or where injustice would occur, DeMaio at 453, or where he finds the presence of a substantial constitutional issue or other issue of fundamental public interest beyond that of concern only to the parties themselves. Pacio v. Lakeland Regional High School District, 1989 S.L.D. 2060, 2064. The Commissioner's reasoned review of the within matter persuades him that it presents a compelling public interest sufficient to warrant relaxation of the 90-day rule.

[1]Based on the tenor and tone of the communications it received from Lenape, the Commissioner cannot accept, as was argued below, that GCIT could reasonably harbor a belief at this time that the within matter was not ripe for appeal in that the parties were moving cooperatively towards resolution of their differences and that, therefore, tuition payment from Lenape might be forthcoming by the July 1, 1998 final due date.

There is no question that Lenape was fully aware that, under N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1 and N.J.A.C. 6:43-3.11, as interpreted by the Commissioner of Education, M.R. by his guardian ad litem, J.N. and K.K. by his guardian ad litem, F.K. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Pompton Lakes, Passaic County, decided by the Commissioner July 29, 1997, remanded State Board of Education December 3, 1997, and K.B., on behalf of minor child, H.B. and Gloucester County Institute of Technology v. Board of Education of the Rancocas Valley Regional High School District, Burlington County, decided by the Commissioner December 29, 1997[2], it was obligated to pay the tuition and transportation costs for resident students attending the Academy at GCIT. The within record reflects that although Lenape honored its obligation with respect to the transportation of these students, it steadfastly refused to similarly honor its responsibility for tuition. Like the ALJ, the Commissioner finds and determines that Lenape's "defenses" to its withholding of payment are without substance and irrelevant to its responsibility.[3] The [2]See also D.F., on behalf of minor child, E.F. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Roselle Park, Union County, et al., decided by the Commissioner July 9, 1999.

[3]To the extent that Lenape attempts to argue that GCIT's Academy for the Performing Arts is not a DOE approved program, such issue was previously resolved in K.B., supra, where the Commissioner found that such program falls within the scope of vocational education as contemplated by N.J.S.A. 18A:54-1, having taken judicial notice of the program's inclusion in the Department of Education's Directory of Verified Occupational Programs (DOE

Commissioner cannot and will not countenance a local board's refusal to honor its legal obligations to vocational students because the board does not agree with prevailing decisional interpretations.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is affirmed as modified, and summary decision is hereby granted to GCIT. Lenape is directed to remit the tuition owed GCIT for the attendance of its resident students at the Academy for the 1997-98, 1998-99, 1999-2000 school years and thereafter, pursuant to a mutually acceptable payment schedule to be arranged by the parties.

Notwithstanding the result herein, the Commissioner takes note of Lenape's allegations with regard to GCIT's failure to limit acceptance of out-of-county students consistent with rule. By copy of this decision, the Gloucester County Superintendent of Schools is directed to review GCIT's student acceptance practices and take such action, if any, as may be necessary as a result of her findings.[4]

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 16, 1999

For the Petitioner-Cross/Appellant, Zane & Lozuke (Raymond J. Zane, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Archer & Greiner (Louis L. Chodoff, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter involves a claim by the Gloucester County Institute of Technology (hereinafter "GCIT") that the Board of Education of the Lenape Regional High School District (hereinafter "Board" or "Lenape Board") is obligated to pay tuition for its resident students attending GCIT's Southern New Jersey Academy for the Performing Arts for the 1997-98 school year and thereafter.

In an initial decision issued on October 28, 1999, an administrative law judge ("ALJ") rejected the Lenape Board's contention that GCIT's claim had been filed in an untimely manner, and he recommended granting GCIT's motion for summary decision.

JUNE 7, 2000

In so doing, the ALJ relied on the decision of the Commissioner of Education in K.B., on behalf of minor child, H.B., and Gloucester County Institute of Technology v. Board of Education of the Rancocas Valley Regional High School District, decided by the Commissioner of Education, September 25 and December 29, 1997, rev'd by the State Board of Education, March 1, 2000.[1]

On December 16, 1999, the Commissioner adopted with modification the ALJ's decision in this matter and granted summary decision to GCIT. Although the Commissioner concluded that GCIT's petition was time-barred under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), he found that the case presented a compelling public interest sufficient to warrant relaxation of that rule. Turning to the merits of GCIT's claim, the Commissioner agreed with the ALJ that the Lenape Board was obligated to pay the tuition costs of its resident students attending GCIT's Academy for the Performing Arts. In so doing, he rejected the Board's argument that the GCIT program at issue was not an approved vocational program, citing his decision in K.B.

On March 1, 2000, we set aside the Commissioner's decision in K.B., rejecting the Commissioner's assertion that inclusion of the GCIT performing arts program in the Department of Education's Directory of Verified Occupational Education Programs conclusively established that such program was within the purview of the statutory provisions relating to vocational schools. We remanded the case to the Commissioner with the directive that he transmit it to the Office of Administrative Law for such proceedings as were necessary to determine whether the GCIT program at issue was vocational within the intendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:54-1 et seq. during the relevant period and for a resultant determination on the merits of the petitioner's claim for transportation.

[1] In K.B., the Commissioner determined that the Rancocas Valley Regional High School District was responsible for the cost of transporting the petitioner's daughter, who resided within the district, to the GCIT Academy for the Performing Arts. The Commissioner noted that the district was also responsible for the petitioner's tuition costs. The Commissioner asserted that inclusion of the GCIT performing arts program in the Department of Education's Directory of Verified Occupational Programs conclusively established that such program was "clearly within the purview of the cited statutory provisions...."

Given our determination in K.B., we set aside the Commissioner's decision in this matter and remand the case to him for such proceedings as are necessary to determine the merits of GCIT's claim for tuition consistent with our decision in K.B.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 16, 1999

Remanded by the State Board of Education, June 7, 2000

For the Petitioner-Cross/Appellant, Zane & Lozuke (Raymond J. Zane, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Archer & Greiner (Louis L. Chodoff, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter involved a claim by the Gloucester County Institute of Technology ("GCIT") that the Board of Education of the Lenape Regional High School District ("Lenape Board") was obligated to pay tuition for its resident students attending GCIT's Southern New Jersey Academy for the Performing Arts for the 1997-98 school year and thereafter. On December 16, 1999, the Commissioner granted summary decision to GCIT. Although the Commissioner found that GCIT's petition had not been filed in a timely manner, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) [now codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d)], he concluded that this matter presented a compelling public interest sufficient to warrant relaxation of the 90-day rule. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15 [now codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16]. In turning to the merits of the case, the Commissioner determined that the Lenape Board was obligated to pay the tuition costs of its resident students attending GCIT's Academy for the Performing Arts.

The Lenape Board filed an appeal to the State Board of Education, and the GCIT cross-appealed.

On June 7, 2000, we rendered our decision, in which we set aside the Commissioner's decision and remanded the case to him for such proceedings as were necessary to determine the merits of GCIT's claim for tuition consistent with our decision in K.B., on behalf of minor child, H.B., and Gloucester County Institute of Technology v. Board of Education of the Rancocas Valley Regional High School District, decided by the Commissioner of Education, September 25 and December 29, 1997, rev'd by the State Board of Education, March 1, 2000.

The Lenape Board filed the instant motion for clarification of our June 7, 2000 decision. In so doing, it has taken the position that since we did not expressly address the timeliness of GCIT's petition to the Commissioner, we should now "clarify" that decision by determining that relaxation of the 90-day rule was inappropriate in this case.

As previously stated, our remand in this matter was limited to such proceedings as are necessary to determine the merits of GCIT's claim for tuition consistent with our decision in K.B. Based on our review of the papers filed by the parties, we clarify that, although our decision of June 7 did not expressly address the timeliness issue, in remanding this matter for further proceedings on the merits of GCIT's claim, we were affirming the Commissioner's resolution of that issue.

Samuel J. Podietz abstained.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, teaching staff member who possessed a standard NJ Instructional Certificate with two endorsements: Elementary School Teacher and Teacher of Reading, alleged that the Board improperly terminated her employment. Board contended petition was filed untimely.

The ALJ concluded that petitioner did obtain tenure in the District in the position title "teacher" at the commencement of the 1998-99 school year. The ALJ noted, however, when the Board discovered that petitioner did not possess a valid endorsement for her then current assignment, notwithstanding that she possessed other endorsements, it summarily dismissed her and waited to see whether the N.J. State Board of Examiners would take action against her valid instructional certificate/endorsements. The ALJ found that when the Board terminated petitioner's employment without complying with the requirements of the tenure law, petitioner had 90 days within which to challenge the Board's action. Thus, the ALJ concluded that the petition of appeal was time-barred. The ALJ ordered both the petition and the counterclaim dismissed with prejudice.

The Commissioner adopted findings and determination in Initial Decision as his own.

Record Closed: September 15, 1999 Decided: October 29, 1999

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter commenced on December 18, 1998, when the Patricia Osman (hereinafter petitioner) filed a verified petition seeking an order from the Commissioner of Education that the Board of Education of the Township of Delran (hereinafter respondent) had improperly terminated her employment. An answer to the petition of appeal and a counterclaim on behalf of respondent were filed on January 14, 1999. On January 22, 1999, petitioner filed an answer to the counterclaim and on February 3, 1999, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was conducted on April 29, 1999, at which time it was determined that petitioner would file a motion for summary decision. Petitioner's motion and supporting papers were received on May 17, 1999. Respondent's reply dated June 20, 1999, and a cross-motion to dismiss the petition, together with a certification of Carl Johnson were received on June 28, 1999. Petitioner filed a reply letter memorandum and her own certification, dated June 24, 1999, which were also received on June 28, 1999. Respondent's response to petitioner's summary decision reply brief was received on July 1, 1999, and a rejoinder on behalf of petitioner was received on July 2, 1999. Oral argument on the cross-motions was conducted by telephone conference call on July 26, 1999. Thereafter, petitioner filed an additional letter memorandum dated August 5, 1999, and respondent filed an additional letter memorandum and supplemental certification of Dr. Carl Johnson by facsimile transmittal on September 8, 1999. The exhibits which were referenced in the supplemental certification were received on September 15, 1999, whereupon the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The facts relevant to a disposition of the motions are not in dispute and accordingly, I FIND the following as uncontested facts.

Petitioner commenced employment with respondent as a teaching staff member at the beginning of the 1985-86 school year. At that time she possessed a standard New Jersey Instructional Certificate with two endorsements: Elementary School Teacher and Teacher of Reading. During the 1985-86, 1986-87 and 1987-88 school years, petitioner was assigned to teach basic skills courses. During the 1987-88 school year, at the request of her supervisors, petitioner completed an application for the endorsement Teacher of English, which application was forwarded to the New Jersey State Board of Examiners. No teacher of English endorsement was ever issued to petitioner pursuant to that application, however. Nevertheless, commencing in September 1988, respondent assigned petitioner to teach one class of English-non elementary level and the rest of her classes were designated as either "writing" or "basic writing" or "comp-ed writing."

At the conclusion of the 1988-89 school year, petitioner received the following letter, dated July 17, 1989 on the official letterhead of the Delran Township Board of Education, signed by Bonnie J. Weiskittel, Basic Skills Coordinator:

> We put the finishing pages into the Basic Skills application on Thursday. Friday, George, our mail carrier delivered two copies to the County Office. It seems as if the entire county was struggling with the augmented version of the application. I realized this on my 5th telephone call to Darlene Mincy.
>
> This letter is to heartily thank you for your contribution to the application. It took another two weeks to complete the 131 page document. I sincerely appreciate your efforts and I am certain, we would not have met the deadline without your assistance.
>
> The 1988-89 Summary Evaluation for the Basic Skills program at each level recorded in the NCE's was positive. You are commended for the high quality instruction and effective teaching you offered to Delran students which was reflected in the CAT results.
> I anticipate a more supportive role for myself to assist you beginning in September. Have a pleasant and restful summer.

In subsequent school years petitioner was assigned to teach additional classes in secondary English. Commencing in approximately 1991, all of the classes petitioner taught were secondary English courses for which she was not properly certified. Petitioner was suspended from her teaching position by respondent on December 10, 1996, after the Burlington County Superintendent of Schools advised respondent that the certificate bearing an English endorsement for petitioner which had been faxed to the County Superintendent's offices by one of respondent's employees on December 10, 1996, was fraudulent. Although respondent received a copy of a letter dated January 9, 1997, written by the Director of the New Jersey State Board of Examiners to the County Superintendent of Schools advising, inter alia, that petitioner was "permitted to continue teaching under her two legitimate certificates (sic-really endorsements) until such time as the Board of Examiners takes action against those certificates," nevertheless respondent terminated petitioner's employment at its regularly scheduled board meeting on January 13, 1997.

Petitioner's lack of an English endorsement became the subject matter of an order to show cause issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners on January 23, 1997. The order to show cause charged petitioner with dishonest misrepresentation of the status of her licensure and ordered her to show cause why her Teacher of Elementary School and Teacher of Reading endorsements on her instructional certificate should not be revoked or suspended. Respondent did not participate in the case which proceeded against petitioner's two valid endorsements before the New Jersey State Board of Examiners. On or about August 19, 1998, respondent's superintendent of schools received a copy of the initial decision which had been entered by the undersigned on June 1, 1998 in the matter of the Suspension or Revocation of the Teaching Certificates of Patricia Osman, EDE 7164-97. That initial decision is attached hereto for the Commissioner's easy reference. At its meeting on September 24, 1998, the State Board of Examiners adopted the initial decision without modification. The written decision of the State Board of Examiners was mailed to the parties in the case on October 13, 1998.

On December 18, 1998, the petitioner filed the verified petition which commenced the within matter, asking the Commissioner to enter an order declaring that she is a tenured employee of the respondent Board of Education and reinstating her to a teaching position consistent with her endorsements, along with back pay, benefits, etc. In the counterclaim which respondent filed with its answer on January 14, 1999, respondent claims entitlement to reimbursement from petitioner for all salary and the cost of all emoluments petitioner received while she was assigned to teach English. This concludes the recitation of uncontested facts.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

The once classic statement of the standard for granting or denying summary judgment set forth in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954), was modified in Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995). Therein the Court held that the standard to be applied is now the same as the standard for determining motions for involuntary dismissal under R. 4:37-2(b) and for determining motions for judgment under R. 4:40-1 and R. 4:40-2. Trial courts considering motions for summary judgment are now required to engage in the same type of evaluation, analysis or sifting of evidential materials in light of the burden of persuasion that applies if the matter goes to trial. The Court explained:

> Under this new standard, a determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial.". . . Credibility determinations will continue to be made by a jury and not a judge. If there exists a single, unavoidable resolution of the alleged disputed issue of fact, that issue should be considered insufficient to constitute a "genuine" issue of material fact for purposes of Rule 4:46-2. . . . The import of our holding is that when the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law, . . ., the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. (citations omitted) Id. at 540.

The Court noted that to send a case to trial knowing that a rational decision-maker could reach but one conclusion was indeed "worthless" and would "serve no useful purpose." The purpose of this new standard, the decision explained, was to encourage trial courts not to refrain from granting summary judgment when the proper circumstances present themselves.

In the present matter, each party has made a dispositive motion and each asserts that the facts material to decision of the motion are not in dispute. I agree, and accordingly, this matter is ripe for summary decision.

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), the regulation relevant to a determination of the cross-motions, states:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

In its motion to dismiss the petition of appeal, respondent argues that petitioner was required to file her claim with the Commissioner within the 90-day period following January 13, 1997, the date her employment with respondent was terminated and that her failure to do so bars the within litigation. Petitioner responds that she could only assert her claim that she was entitled to reinstatement in her tenured position with respondent after the New Jersey Board of Examiners issued its decision declining to suspend or revoke her legitimate endorsements, Teacher of Elementary School and Teacher of Reading. The basis for petitioner's claim herein, however, is her assertion that she acquired tenure in respondent's district and therefore could not be removed except pursuant to the process set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. That claim was not in any way affected by the September 24, 1998 determination of the Board of Examiners. If petitioner was a tenured teacher in respondent's district in January 1997 when it purported to terminate her employment, it was because she had taught for the requisite period of time pursuant to one of her valid endorsements. Since she never possessed a valid teacher of English endorsement, it is obvious that she could not have obtained tenure on the first day of the 1988-89 school year by teaching English. Petitioner taught four other courses during that school year, however, which were designated as "writing," "basic writing," or or "comp-ed writing." It is apparent from the letter quoted hereinabove which was written to petitioner by the Basic Skills Coordinator in respondent's district on July 17, 1989, that the district regarded those other four courses as part of the Basic Skills Program. Furthermore, N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.1(b) and N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)6, both specifically provide that teachers with elementary education endorsements are authorized to teach the common branch subjects such as reading, writing, arithmetic and spelling in the secondary schools from grade 7 through 12. Since petitioner had at all times since her initial employment with respondent been the holder of a valid New Jersey Instructional Certificate with two endorsements, Elementary Education and Reading, during the 1988-89 school year, she held a valid endorsement for teaching the four writing classes she taught.* Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner obtained tenure in the district in the position title "teacher" at the commencement of 1988-89 school year. If she had not been entitled to the protections of tenure in January 1997 (or if she held no valid instructional certificate at all), then upon notification from the County Superintendent of Schools that she was not the holder of an appropriate certificate/endorsement for her employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-2 her employment would have ceased by operation of law. That statute provides:

> Any contract or engagement of any teaching staff member, shall cease and determine whenever the employing board of education shall ascertain by written notice received from the county or city superintendent of schools, or in any other manner, that such person is not, or has ceased to be, the holder of an appropriate certificate required by this title for such employment, notwithstanding that the term of such employment shall not then have expired.

Because petitioner was a tenured teacher with two valid endorsements, however, when respondent discovered that she did not possess a valid endorsement for her then current assignment, it had two choices: 1) it could have reassigned her to another assignment within the scope of her Elementary Education endorsement or her Reading endorsement, or 2) it could have filed tenure charges to remove her pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. For whatever reason, perhaps merely strategic reasons, respondent chose to do neither. Instead, it summarily "dismissed" her and waited to see whether the New Jersey State Board of Examiners would take action against her valid instructional certificate/endorsements. None of that, however, changed what petitioner

* Respondent correctly notes that petitioner could not have obtained tenure during the 1988-89 school year under her Teacher of Reading license as the petition alleges, since the Teacher of Reading endorsement authorizes the holder only to teach reading. Tenure is a statutory status, however, and its acquisition is not dependent upon the precision of the pleadings in litigation.

knew in January 1997, i.e., that she was a tenured employee holding a valid instructional certificate with two valid endorsements which entitled her to continued employment in the district. When respondent purported to terminate her employment without complying with the requirements of the tenure law, petitioner had 90 days within which to challenge the board's action before the Commissioner of Education by filing a petition of appeal. For whatever reason petitioner chose not to do that, perhaps also for strategic legal reasons. She too waited to see whether the New Jersey State Board of Examiners would take action against her legitimate instructional certificate/endorsements. There is no question that the 90-day period mandated by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) applies to an alleged violation of statutory tenure rights. Like the teaching staff member in Nissman v. Board of Educ., 272 N.J. Super. 373 (App. Div. 1994), petitioner herein could have presented the same substantive argument in January 1997 as she did when she filed her petition in December 1998, well beyond the 90-day period which commenced with her termination of employment in January 1997. As in Nissman, the respondent herein had a right to know within 90 days of January 13, 1997 whether its action was going to be challenged. As our Supreme Court noted in Kaprow v. Berkeley Tp. Bd. of Educ., 131 N.J. 572 (1993):

> [T]he limitation period gives school districts the security of knowing that administrative decisions regarding the operation of the school cannot be challenged after ninety days. Moreover, because local school boards operate on a cash basis, claims must be filed promptly so that the local board can anticipate any back-pay requirements.

For these reasons, I CONCLUDE that the petition of appeal is time-barred and must be DISMISSED. The regulatory period of limitations set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), is a double-edged sword, however, and it applies equally to the counterclaim respondent filed in the within matter asserting for the first time on January 14, 1999, that it was entitled to the return of all salary and the costs of all emoluments wrongfully received by petitioner for teaching English without a valid endorsement. If the Commissioner of Education has jurisdiction at all over respondent's claim that petitioner owes it money, respondent was required to file that claim within 90 days of learning that petitioner had for many years been teaching only English courses without a valid endorsement to teach English. The latest date respondent could assert in this regard is December 10, 1996. Respondent failed to file within the 90-day period of time and accordingly, the counterclaim must also be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.*

Because both the petition and the counterclaim must be dismissed as untimely, it is not necessary to reach the various claims of the parties concerning the entire controversy doctrine and the estoppel effects of the Board of Examiners' decision in EDE 7164-97. In this regard I note, however, that respondent's papers acknowledge that it received a copy of my initial decision in that case on or about August 19, 1998 (see September 7, 1999, supplemental certification of Carl Johnson, Superintendent of Schools) more than one month before any final decision was rendered by the Board of Examiners. Respondent had ample time to alert the Board of Examiners that it wished to participate in that case and to ask the Board to remand the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for additional evidence, something for which there is clear and long-standing precedent. See In re Kallen, 92 N.J. 14 (1983).

For all the foregoing reasons, it is hereby ORDERED that both the petition of appeal and the counterclaim are dismissed with prejudice and these proceedings are concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

---

* If the counterclaim had not been barred by the regulatory period of limitations as of the time when the petition of appeal was commenced, it would not be considered as untimely even though filed in said action at a time when if it were the subject of an independent action, it could not be maintained. See Atlantic City Hospital v. Finkle, 110 N.J. Super. 435, 440 (Cty. Ct. 1970). The claims in the counterclaim were required to be filed by March 10, 1997, however, and since the petition herein was not filed until December 1998, even with relation back to the date of the petition, it is untimely.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P. O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDE 7164-97

AGENCY DKT. NO. 435-01/97

IN THE MATTER OF THE SUSPENSION OR REVOCATION OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATES OF PATRICIA OSMAN

Mylan K. Alexander, Deputy Attorney General, for the New Jersey State Board of Examiners (Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Arnold M. Mellk, Esq., for respondent (Wills, O'Neill & Mellk, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 2, 1998 Decided: June 1, 1998*

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter commenced on January 23, 1997, when the New Jersey Department of Education State Board of Examiners (hereinafter petitioner) issued to Patricia Osman (hereinafter respondent) an order to show cause why her Teacher of Elementary School and Teacher of Reading endorsements on her Instructional Certificate should not be revoked or suspended. The order to show cause charged respondent with "dishonest misrepresentation of the status of her licensure." On March 3, 1997 respondent filed an answer to the order to show cause wherein she denied the allegations. On July 14, 1997, the State Board of Examiners transmitted the matter to

* An extension of time for issuing the initial decision was requested and granted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F- 1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was conducted on October 16, 1997 at which time the following were identified as the issues for determination at hearing:

1. Are the allegations in the order to show cause, or any of them, in fact true?

2. If the answer to the previous question is yes, what are the appropriate sanctions/remedies?

The hearing commenced as scheduled on February 10, 1998 and concluded on that date. At the close of petitioner's proofs, respondent moved for involuntary dismissal pursuant to R. 4:37-2(b). That motion was granted with respect to all allegations in the order to show cause except to the extent that the allegations in paragraph 6 could be interpreted to allege that respondent, by teaching high school English knowing that she lacked the appropriate Teacher of English endorsement and that she was ineligible for that endorsement, was misrepresenting her licensure status to the public. Following the presentation of respondent's case, the record remained open for the receipt of written submissions. A letter memorandum on behalf of petitioner in response to respondent's oral summation was received on February 24, 1998. A reply on behalf of respondent was received on March 2, 1998, whereupon the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Some of the facts relevant to a determination of this matter are not in dispute, and I therefore FIND the following as uncontested facts.

In December 1980 petitioner issued to respondent (whose name at the time was Patricia McCarron) a New Jersey Instructional Certificate with the following endorsements; Elementary School Teacher and Teacher of Reading. Respondent's applications for each of these endorsements was submitted for processing to the Office of the Burlington County Superintendent by respondent's then employer, the Bordentown City Board of Education. In January 1987, respondent placed a telephone call to the Office of the Burlington County Superintendent of Schools and spoke with Sharon Lovenduski, Supervisor of Teacher Certification. Respondent requested the necessary forms and information to apply for an endorsement as Teacher of English. Ms. Lovenduski forwarded to respondent the requested packet of information with forms. When Ms. Lovenduski received the completed application for certification as a Teacher of English bearing respondent's signature and the date August 15, 1988, she called respondent on the telephone. When respondent returned the call on September 13, 1988, Ms. Lovenduski advised her that an additional $10 fee would be necessary because the State had raised the fee and she also advised respondent that additional transcripts were necessary. The county superintendent's office thereafter did not forward the application to the New Jersey State Board of Examiners because the additional necessary documentation was not forthcoming. On June 12, 1989, Ms. Lovenduski sent the following memorandum to respondent, in care of Delran High School:

> On several occasions we have written or telephoned you regarding your application for Teacher of English. As of this writing, we have not received a reply. Therefore, we are returning your application, $30.00 money order, sealed NTE score for English Language, and your official transcript from Temple University.
> If in the future you decide that you would like to apply for this certificate, you will need to forward everything to our office again along with the correct fee of $40.00. We would also need the transcript from Penn State.
> If you have any questions regarding this certification, please call our office at 265-5003 and ask for Mrs. Moseley or Mrs. Lovenduski.

Thereafter on September 11, 1990, when the completed application was resubmitted to the Burlington County Superintendent of Schools' office with the $40 fee and the required transcripts, Ms. Lovenduski prepared a form memorandum to respondent. The address on the face of the form memorandum is respondent's home address. The form requests an additional $10 money order payable to the Commissioner of Education and contains the following note:

> Please be advised, when we returned your records to you on 6/12/89, we indicated that the fee for certification was $40.00. On 7/1/89, the State raised the fee from $40.00 to $50.00. We are holding your money orders totaling $40.00 on file in our office with your official transcripts. Please send us an additional $10.00 money order. Also, we are returning your Application for Certification form which is dated 8/15/88. If all the information is correct on this application, please put today's date in Block 14 and return it to our office. If the information needs to be updated, we have enclosed a new application form for you to complete. As soon as these items are received, we will process your application records to the State Department for their review.

At the hearing in the within matter, Ms. Lovenduski testified that she mailed the September 11, 1990 memorandum to respondent at the home address indicated on the form. On February 5, 1992, Ms. Lovenduski received the same completed application for certification bearing respondent's signature; however, "8/15/88" had been crossed out and underneath "1-20-92" had been written. Ms. Lovenduski testified that the envelope in which she received the altered application had been sent from respondent's home address; however, she testified, "I don't have the envelope with me." The completed application, transcripts, etc. were forwarded to the Bureau of Licensing in the Department of Education. On April 9, 1992, Elizabeth A. Strother, (now Haywood) Supervisor of Examiners, issued her evaluation of respondent's credentials in which she concluded that respondent was not eligible for issuance of a Teacher of English endorsement. The evaluation provided in pertinent part: "The applicant has completed 9 credits in the subject field of English. 'English Education' courses are professional education courses and are not applicable. Of the 30 credits required at least 12 credits must be 300 and 400 level English courses." The Office of Teacher Certification and Academic Credentials sent the written evaluation of respondent's credentials to the Office of the Burlington County Superintendent where it was received on April 16, 1992. This form is a multi-copy form with the white copy intended for the applicant, the canary copy for the county, the pink copy for the district and the goldenrod copy maintained by the State. On April 22, 1992, Ms. Lovenduski sent a form memorandum addressed to Patricia Osman enclosing the evaluation. Ms. Lovenduski testified that she mailed it to respondent's home address. When she was asked how she knew this, she said it was because it was the address which appears on the evaluation form.

During 1996, the Office of the Burlington County Superintendent conducted an audit of the Delran Township school district. This audit included review of the certificates and endorsements held by each teaching staff member, together with those courses taught by the teaching staff member in the district. Although computer print outs issued by the Bureau of Information Resources Management of the New Jersey Department of Education and sent to the county office each year commencing with 1990 disclosed that respondent was teaching both basic skills-remedial and English non-elementary, and also indicated "possible license errors," these forms were not reviewed by the county superintendent's office until 1996. In response to a request from Ms. Lovenduski, on December 10, 1996, the Delran Board of Education forwarded to the county superintendent's office by facsimile transmission a copy of a State Board of Examiners' certificate issued to Patricia Osman bearing the endorsement Teacher of English. The document indicates on its face that it was issued 12/80 and it bears the signatures of Saul Cooperman, Commissioner of Education, and Leo Klagholz, Secretary, State Board of Examiners. Ms. Lovenduski testified that Joan Iverson, an employee in the Delran district, told her that this copy, which was not an original, came from respondent's personnel file. Because the endorsement was an obvious forgery (it is dated 12/80 and Saul Cooperman did not become the Commissioner of Education until 1982) and because respondent did not possess a valid endorsement permitting her to teach English, after December 11, 1996, she was no longer permitted to teach English in the Delran High School.

MOTION TO DISMISS

The classic statement of the test for determining a motion for dismissal at the end of an opponent's case is articulated in Dolson v. Anastasia, 55 N.J. 2, 5-6 (1969):

> In the case of motions for involuntary dismissal, the test is, as set forth in R.. 4:37-2(b) and equally applicable to motions for judgment, whether "the evidence, together with the legitimate inferences therefrom, could sustain a judgment in *favor" of the party opposing the motion, i.e., if, accepting as true all the evidence which supports the position of the party defending against the motion and according him the benefit of all inferences which can reasonably and legitimately be deduced therefrom, reasonable minds could differ, the motion must be denied. . . . The point is that the judicial function here is quite a mechanical one. The trial court is not concerned with the worth, nature or extent (beyond a scintilla) of the evidence, but only with its existence, viewed most favorably to the party opposing the motion. (Citations omitted)

The Rules Governing the Courts of the State of New Jersey, R. 4:37-2(b), provides:

> (b) At Trial - Generally. After having completed the presentation of the evidence on all matters other than the matter of damages (if that is an issue), the plaintiff shall so announce to the court, and thereupon the defendant, without waiving the right to offer evidence in the event the motion is not granted, may move for a dismissal of the action or of any claim on the ground that upon the facts and upon the law the plaintiff has shown no right to relief. Whether the action is tried with or without a jury, such motion shall be denied if the evidence, together with the legitimate inferences therefrom, could sustain a judgment in plaintiff's favor.

Not all rules and legal concepts utilized in judicial tribunals are applicable in "quasi-judicial," administrative adjudications. See Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1 (1980). Although there is no specific rule in the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6, which addresses motions at the end of a petitioner's case, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.3(a) provides:

> This chapter shall be construed to achieve just results, simplicity in procedure, fairness in administration and the elimination of unjustifiable expense and delay. In the absence of rule, a judge may proceed in accordance with the New Jersey Court Rules, provided the rules are compatible with these purposes. Court rules regarding third party practice and class action designations may not be applied > unless such procedures are specifically statutorily authorized in administrative proceedings.

In addition, motions for dismissal and judgment have been discussed by Judge Lefelt in his text on administrative law, in pertinent part as follows:

> The two most frequent motions made at administrative hearings are motions for judgment of involuntary dismissal at the end of petitioner's case and motion for judgment at the close of all the evidence. The technical, common law patterns of going forward, making the prima facie case, the shifting of the burden and resting a case are not binding on ALJs. If a judge requires the party without the burden of proof to proceed first, no motion for judgment of involuntary dismissal can be made. If the party with the burden proceeds first, the motion can be made. The test is identical to that applied in the judiciary. The judge considers whether all the evidence together with the legitimate inferences therefrom could sustain a judgment in favor of the party opposing the motion. The judge is not concerned with the weight, worth, nature or extent of the evidence. The judge must accept all the evidence supporting the party defending against the motion and accord that party the benefit of all inferences which can reasonably and legitimately be deduced therefrom. If reasonable minds could differ, the motion must be denied. . . . 37 N.J. Pract. (Lefelt) § 195

Therefore, the legal standard to be applied to the evidence presented by petitioner is the one articulated in Dolson v. Anastasia, supra, and reiterated in Judge Lefelt's text.

Petitioner offered no direct evidence that respondent was aware of the existence of the fraudulent certificate prior to December 11, 1996. The only evidence concerning the obviously fraudulent certificate* was that Ms. Lovenduski had received it by facsimile transmission from the Delran Board of Education on December 10, 1996. Ms. Lovenduski's testimony that Joan Iverson had told her on the telephone that the certificate had been obtained from respondent's

---

* Counsel for petitioner, on more than one occasion in her argument in opposition to respondent's motion to dismiss, stated that there would have been no reason for the Delran Board of Education to question the authenticity of respondent's Teacher of English endorsement. Counsel's argument in that regard obviously lacks merit.

personnel file, is hearsay evidence concerning whether the certificate had actually been in the file. There is no evidence whatsoever, however, concerning how the Delran Board of Education came into possession of the fraudulent certificate. Petitioner offered no evidence whatsoever from which any reasonable person could conclude that it was more likely that respondent created the false certificate and provided it to the district rather than that employees in the district created it themselves because they knew they had assigned respondent to teach English when she did not possess the appropriate license. In fact, judging from the face of the certificate itself which bears the signature stamp of Commissioner Cooperman and now Commissioner Klagholz, who was then Secretary of the State Board of Examiners, respondent could not simply have altered her own valid teaching certificate which bears the endorsements Elementary School Teacher and Teacher of Reading, because that certificate was signed by Commissioner Burke and Secretary Fred A. Price. The order to show cause charges respondent with submitting to school officials in Delran a certificate bearing a Teacher of English endorsement which was not authentic. The burden of proving that charge by a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence is petitioner's. In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982).

As suggested in the Dolson v. Anastasia language set forth hereinabove, the mere "scintilla of evidence" rule does not prevail in New Jersey; to enter an order of involuntary dismissal, the judge need not be faced with an utter absence of all evidence of contradictory purport. Pabon v. Hackensack Auto Sales, Inc., 63 N.J. Super. 476, 488 (App. Div. 1960). To defeat a motion for dismissal, petitioner must establish a prima facie case by presenting sufficient proof from which the liability of respondent can be logically and reasonably inferred. In the present matter, however, the proofs offered by petitioner do not provide even a scintilla of evidence that respondent was aware of the existence of the fraudulent certificate, let alone that she prepared it or offered it to the Delran school district. The mere fact that the Delran Board of Education was in possession of this fraudulent certificate on December 10, 1996, does not lead to a logical or reasonable inference that respondent provided it to them. Since the district is responsible for assigning only properly certificated teachers to teach the pupils in their district. (see N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2 and 18A:27-2), the fraudulent certificate could have been created by district employees responsible for maintaining certification records. In fact, such employees would probably have easier access to a certificate with Commissioner Cooperman's signature than respondent, whose own certificate bears the signature of Commissioner Burke. For the foregoing reasons, all allegations in the order to show cause that respondent provided a fraudulent certificate to the Delran Board of Education or made any misrepresentations to the Board of Education concerning the status of her certification are hereby DISMISSED.

Granting petitioner all of the legitimate inferences which could be drawn by a reasonable fact finder from its proofs, I CONCLUDE that the only allegation in the order to show cause upon which petitioner might prevail is the one which may be inferred from paragraph 6 of the order. That paragraph states: The "State Board of Examiners finds that the aforestated information regarding Ms. Osman's dishonest misrepresentation of the status of her licensure provides cause to consider the suspension or revocation of Patricia Osman's licenses as Teacher of Elementary School and Teacher of Reading." Accepting for purposes of the motion Ms. Lovenduski's testimony that she mailed certain documents to respondent at respondent's home, a reasonable fact finder could conclude that respondent was aware of the fact that no teacher of English endorsement had been issued to her; the fact that respondent continued to teach English in the high school, knowing that she lacked the appropriate certification, could be regarded as a dishonest misrepresentation. Accordingly, the hearing went forward with respect to this issue only.

RESPONDENT'S CASE

Respondent testified that during the 1987-88 school year while she was teaching basic skills in the Delran school district, her supervisor Lynn Basner and the Assistant Principal for Curriculum and Instruction, Bonnie Weiskittel, advised her that there would be a reduction in force affecting the basic skills teachers because many of the students were being transferred into a level one English class, that they wished for her to continue teaching those students in the level one English class and that in order for her to do so, she would have to obtain a teacher of English endorsement. The RIF would not have resulted in her loss of a position in the district, respondent testified, because she could have moved to the elementary school or the middle school.

Respondent further testified she advised Ms. Basner and Ms. Weiskittel that because she was the mother of young children she did not wish to go back to school to take additional courses. Ms. Basner assured her that because she had a master's degree in reading, her courses were probably sufficient to obtain an English endorsement even though she had not been an English major. Ms. Basner told her that she herself had obtained a social studies endorsement because she had enough courses, although she had not been a social studies major. Ms. Basner and Ms. Weiskittel took respondent's transcripts and compared her courses with the requirements in an administrative code book and indicated that they felt she would obtain an English endorsement. Ms. Basner advised her to take an overview course for literature prior to taking the National Teachers' Exam. Respondent gave to Ms. Basner her transcripts, the fees for the review process and the completed application which she dated August 15, 1988 at Ms. Basner's request although she actually completed it probably some time in April. Ms. Basner had indicated that the results of the National Teachers' Exam would not be available until early August and therefore she had asked respondent to post-date the application. Respondent testified that after she gave this application and materials to Ms. Basner, she never saw it again.

Respondent acknowledges that she received a telephone call from Ms. Lovenduski in September 1988 requesting additional money and advising her that not all of the transcripts had been received, although she does not specifically remember this conversation. Respondent took the National Teachers' Exam in the summer of 1988, and passed. Commencing in the 1988-89 school year, respondent taught one class of English-nonelementary level and the rest of her courses were basic skills. She continued to teach high school English until December 1996. Throughout this period of time up until and including December 10, 1996, respondent assumed that she had received an English endorsement on her Instructional Certificate. She assumed this because she had given all of the materials and information requested to Lynn Basner, who had indicated that she would expedite the certification process. Ms. Basner left Delran and went to another school district and Ms. Weiskittel went to another school building within the district and accordingly, respondent testified, she did not discuss the status of her certification with them. When she was assigned to teach English in the high school she simply concluded that she had received the Teacher of English endorsement.

Respondent indicated that once she gave the completed application to Lynn Basner in 1988, she never saw it again; she did not change the date on her signature, she testified, and further she did not receive any written communications from the Office of the Burlington County Superintendent. In response to questions from the undersigned, she testified that she had never seen Ms. Lovenduski's June 1989 letter, although it is addressed to her, until she saw it in her lawyer's office in preparation for the within proceedings. She further testified that she had not seen the memorandum which Ms. Lovenduski testified she had mailed to respondent's home on September 11, 1990, until she saw it in her lawyer's office and, she had not seen P-8 in evidence, the evaluation of the State Board of Examiners determining that she was ineligible for an English endorsement, until she saw it in the attorney's office in preparation for these proceedings. The very first time that she was aware that she did not have an English endorsement was December 11, 1996, when she was advised by her principal that she did not have one. That same day she was suspended with pay pending the next board of education meeting. She acknowledged that she had advised the principal on December 10, 1996, when she was asked for the original of her certificate bearing the English endorsement that she would look for it. She said she did not know where any of her certificates were and when she looked for them she discovered she did not have copies of any of her certificates, including the one bearing the Reading and Elementary Education endorsements. She further testified that no one in the Delran district had asked her to produce her English endorsement until December 10, 1996.

With respect to the disputed facts in this matter, I FIND that after respondent gave the completed application to Ms. Basner sometime between April and August 1988, and that she never saw it again. I further FIND that she did not receive any written communications from the Burlington County Superintendent's office either at her home address or at school between August 18, 1988 and December 10, 1996. Although Ms. Lovenduski testified that she mailed certain letters and memoranda, including the evaluation of credentials performed by the State Board of Examiners, to respondent at her home address, I am not persuaded that she did in fact mail the documents to respondent at home. She acknowledged that some of the correspondence had been sent to respondent in care of the school, and it was apparent from other answers which she gave during her testimony that she was concluding (rather than remembering) that she had mailed certain things to respondent's home address simply because that address appeared on some of the documents. Likewise, although she testified that when P-5 in evidence, the application for certification, was returned to her office in 1992 it was in an envelope bearing respondent's home address, she did not have the envelope, and I find it incredible to believe that she could possibly remember the envelope for this one piece of correspondence out of the many thousands which are sent to her office by teachers and school districts.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2, one of the statutes relevant to a determination in this matter, provides in pertinent part:

> No teaching staff member shall be employed in the public schools by any board of education unless he is the holder of a valid certificate to teach, administer, direct or supervise the teaching, instruction, or educational guidance of, or to render or administer, direct or supervise the rendering of nursing service to, pupils in such public schools and of such other certificates, if any, as may be required by law.

Although the order to show cause issued in this matter by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners on January 23, 1997 charges respondent with dishonest misrepresentation of the status of her licensure both to her school board, the Board of Education of Delran, and to students and parents in her classes, petitioner has offered no evidence whatsoever of any dishonesty on respondent's part. I have found as a matter of fact hereinabove that respondent believed that she was properly certificated to teach English because she had provided her supervisors, Ms. Basner and Ms. Weiskittle, with all of the information they had requested; she had passed the National Teachers' Exam and she had been assigned by those supervisors to teach English in the high school. Was respondent negligent in failing to demand that she be provided with the original certificate bearing the English endorsement (or even a copy thereof)? The answer is probably yes; however, negligence is not what has been charged here, nor would it provide a basis for revoking the endorsements which respondent does hold, Teacher of Elementary School and Teacher of Reading. Certainly respondent relied to her detriment upon representations made to her by Ms. Basner and Ms. Weiskittel that the courses she had already taken to obtain a Masters degree in reading would undoubtedly qualify her for the teacher of English endorsement and that Ms. Basner would expedite the certification process.* Although not entirely justified, such reliance by respondent is understandable in that when she was employed by the Bordentown schools, the entire certification process was handled for her by the district. Respondent's simple negligent failure to ensure that she had the teacher of English endorsement/certificate in her possession, absent anything further, may not serve as the basis for revoking her legitimate certificate/endorsements. The grounds for revocation and suspension of certification are specified in the administrative code at N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.4 and require some sort of finding of wrongdoing. That regulation provides:

> The State Board of Examiners may revoke or suspend the certification of any certificate holder on the basis of demonstrated inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming a teacher, or other just cause. Other just cause shall include, but not be limited to, offenses within the terms of the forfeiture (N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2) or disqualification statutes (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1). The State Board of Examiners may revoke or suspend a certificate upon evidence that the applicant did not meet the qualifications for the certificate at the time of issuance. The Board may not revoke or suspend a certificate without providing the applicant an opportunity to be heard pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.

* In her post-hearing written submission, petitioner's counsel argues that respodnent's evidence concerning her supervisor's representations is hearsay. Respondent's testimony about what her supervisors said to her is not hearsay because it is not offered to prove the truth of the supervisor's statements, but only that it was said and that respodnent relied upon it. What is hearsay evidence, however, are the statements set forth in exhibit R-2 in evidence, respondent's answers to interrogatories because they were not uttered by the witness on the record during the hearing if they are offered to prove the truth of the matter asserted, i.e., that Ms. Basner told respondent she was "good to go" In fact, counsel for respondent stated that R-2 in evidence was being offered to show that petitioner had ample advance notice concerning respondent's defenses, including the names of the supervisors involved.

There is ample evidence in the within matter of wrongdoing; however, there is no evidence that respondent is the responsible party. The evidence presented by the petitioner was unfortunately brief and exiguous. Petitioner did not offer the testimony of any person from the Delran school district who might be able to explain how the obviously fraudulent certificate came into their possession. The names and titles of those individuals involved were provided by respondent in answers to interrogatories to petitioner. Whether petitioner failed to properly investigate to make a determination concerning who the wrongdoers were in this matter or whether for whatever reason it simply failed to present this information cannot be determined on the basis of the within record. What can be determined, however, is that the Delran Board of Education knew or should have known that respondent did not possess an endorsement as teacher of English. The document entitled "Certificate" which Delran officials faxed to the Burlington County Superintendent of schools on December 10, 1996 is an obvious forgery. The school district would have known this for two reasons: one, it indicates on its face that the certificate was issued to Ms. Osman in December 1980, obviously incorrect even if the certificate were genuine since in August 1988, the district forwarded respondent's application for such an endorsement to the Burlington County Superintendent of schools, and two, as previously noted, Saul Cooperman was not the Commissioner of Education in December of 1980, something which anyone involved in education in New Jersey would know. Further inquiry and investigation by the State Board of Examiners into this matter to determine the identity of the culpable party or parties is required. In the within matter, however, for all of the reasons set forth hereinabove, petitioner has failed to establish by a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence any of the allegations in the order to show cause. and accordingly the order to show cause is hereby DISCHARGED and the within matter is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the State Board of Examiners does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the SECRETARY OF THE STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS, Office of Licensing, 329 West State Street, PO Box 503, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0503, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF DELRAN, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and were considered by the Commissioner in rendering the within decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the within petition is time-barred, and rejects petitioner's contention that only "after she was cleared of any wrongdoing, could [she] assert her claim that she has the right of reinstatement in her tenured position with the Delran Board of Education ." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 2) Rather, like the ALJ, the Commissioner determines that petitioner can fairly be charged, as of January 13, 1997, the date the Board terminated her employment as a tenured teacher (see Initial Decision at pp. 6, 7), absent the statutory protections afforded her by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, with knowledge of "the existence of facts that might equate in law with a cause of action ," thereby triggering the 90-day filing period of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). (at p. 4) Susan Beshaw v. Board of Education of the Borough of Oakland, Bergen County, State Board decision, February 4, 1998, aff'd Appellate Division

March 23, 1999, A-3985-97T5) Indeed, the within Petition of Appeal recognizes that "[o]n January 13, 1997, respondent terminated, unilaterally, petitioner's *tenured employm*ent purportedly pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-2." (emphasis added) (Petition of Appeal at p. 2)

As the ALJ stated:

> The basis for petitioner's claim, herein  is her assertion that she acquired tenure in respondent's district and therefore could not be removed except pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. That claim was not in any way affected by the September 24, 1998 determination of the Board of Examiners. If petitioner was a tenured teacher in respondent's district in January 1997 when it purported to terminate her employment, it was because she had taught for the requisite period of time pursuant to one of her valid endorsement. (Initial Decision at p. 6)

Even if the State Board of Examiners suspended or revoked petitioner's remaining endorsements on September 28, 1998, such action could not have affected petitioner's valid claim to employment in the District, based on her tenure rights, from January 13, 1997, until the date the State Board of Examiners took action.[1]

Accordingly, the Initial decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. The within Petition of Appeal and respondent's counterclaim are dismissed, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2.(c)[2]

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[1] Here, the Commissioner notes that the record demonstrates that the Board's receipt of a copy of correspondence dated January 9, 1997 from Ida B. Graham, Director of the Office of Licensing and Credentials, to the then Burlington County Superintendent of Schools indicated, in part, that "Ms. Osman is permitted to continue teaching under her two legitimate certificates until such time as the Board takes action against her certificates." (Supplemental Certification in Lieu of Affidavit of Dr. Carl Johnson, Superintendent of Schools, at p. 4 and Exhibit N) (emphasis added)

[2] Petitioner does not argue that this matter warrants the Commissioner's relaxation of the 90-day rule, pursuant to his authority under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15

[3] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. And N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

Remanded by the Appellate Division, October 17, 2001

Decided by the State Board of Education, May 30, 2000

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 20, 1999

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Wills, O'Neill & Mellk (Arnold M. Mellk, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, John T. Barbour, Esq.

This matter is before us pursuant to a remand by the Appellate Division. The underlying case arose when the Board of Education of the Township of Delran terminated petitioner's employment on January 13, 1997 following discovery of the fact that the English endorsement she possessed appeared to be fraudulent on its face. Petitioner's termination was contrary to the advice given to the County Superintendent by the State Board of Examiners that petitioner was permitted to continue teaching under her other endorsements until such time as the Board of Examiners took action against them.

Subsequent to petitioner's termination, the Board of Examiners issued an order to show cause why her certification should not be revoked or suspended. Petitioner successfully contested the order to show cause and, on September 24, 1998, the State Board of Examiners dismissed the matter.

Petitioner did not challenge the district board's action at the time of her termination in 1997. However, petitioner did file a petition with the Commissioner of Education within ninety days of the Board of Examiner's determination to dismiss its action with respect to her certification. In her petition to the Commissioner, petitioner claimed tenure and sought reinstatement to a teaching position.

In the ensuing administrative appeals process, the Administrative Law Judge, the Commissioner and the State Board of Education all agreed that petitioner was tenured at the time of her termination. However, they all concurred that petitioner's claim was time-barred by the ninety day rule, under which any petition challenging her termination had to be filed within ninety days of that termination.

In dismissing the petition, the Commissioner indicated in a footnote that since petitioner had not argued the issue, he was not considering whether the circumstances of the matter warranted relaxation of the ninety-day time limit. In affirming the Commissioner's decision, the State Board made no comment concerning relaxation of the time limit.

The Appellate Division affirmed the State Board's determination that, although petitioner was tenured at the time of her termination, her petition was time-barred.

Nonetheless, given the informal nature of administrative proceedings and in the absence of a controlling rule, the Court found that no petitioner should be prejudiced by a failure to formally request relaxation of the ninety-day time limit. Because the Commissioner had not considered whether the circumstances warranted relaxation of the ninety-day time limitation in this case and because the State Board had not commented on the question, the Court determined that it was necessary to remand the matter to the State Board so that we could return it to the Commissioner for his findings and determination of whether the ninety-day rule should be relaxed. Therefore, pursuant to the Court's direction to us, we remand this matter to the Commissioner.

Like the Appellate Division, we do not retain jurisdiction.

WILLIAM MARSH,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ATLANTIC CITY, ATLANTIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, Coordinator of Adult Education and Community Use of Schools, alleged the Board took no action to abolish his position and, accordingly, sought an order to continue his employment. Board contended petitioner was not entitled to continued employment because the action of the City Council effectively eliminated petitioner's position by not restoring funding for it after the voters rejected the supplemental spending question.

ALJ concluded that there was no statutory provision for the abolishment of positions duly established by a board of education to take effect merely because the board's annual school budget was defeated at the polls by the electorate. ALJ concluded that the Board had to take affirmative action to abolish the position it created; therefore, by failing to abolish petitioner's position when it terminated him in July 1998, the Board's action to terminate petitioner's salary, benefits and other emoluments was ultra vires. ALJ concluded that petitioner's position remained in force until such time as the Board takes affirmative action to abolish it. ALJ ordered the Board to reinstate petitioner to his position as Coordinator of Adult Education and Community Use of Schools with mitigated compensation, retroactive to June 18, 1998.

Commissioner set aside the Initial Decision. Although concurring with ALJ's analysis, Commissioner will not grant a relief that compels a board to fill a position which, by law, it does not have the authority to fund. Such a result elevates form over substance, and is contrary to both logic and sound educational and fiscal policy. Moreover, petitioner was unequivocally on notice that his position would be eliminated if the underlying program were not restored following voter defeat, and the administration took subsequent actions that left no doubt as to the RIF to take effect as of June 30, 1998. Commissioner reminded respondent Board and all boards of their obligations with regard to abolishment of positions in the event of program elimination as a result of rejected excess expenditure questions. Additionally, in that the record indicates that the Board may have been aware of its responsibilities and failed to act nonetheless, the commissioner directed the Atlantic County Superintendent to inquire into the circumstances surrounding this matter and to report to him with findings and recommendations for action as appropriate.

Petitioner,

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ATLANTIC CITY, ATLANTIC COUNTY,

Respondent.

Michael Epps, Esq., (General Counsel) for respondent

Record Closed: August 23, 1999 Decided: October 20, 1999

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, William Marsh, alleges that the Board of Education of the City of Atlantic City (Board) failed to abolish his employment position prior to his dismissal and, therefore, seeks an order from the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) to continue all of his salary, benefits and emoluments, retroactive to July 1, 1998.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was held on April 20, 1999, at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The parties submitted post-hearing memoranda and the hearing record closed on August 23, 1999.

FINDING OF FACT

Based upon the testimony and other evidence adduced at the hearing and having determined there are no other facts in dispute, I hereby incorporate petitioner's Statement of Facts as my, I FINDINGS OF FACTS as set forth herein below:

Statement of Facts

The facts in this matter are essentially uncontroverted. Petitioner was employed by the Atlantic City Board of Education from on or about July 1, 1979 until on or about June 30, 1998. Initially, petitioner was employed as the Neighborhood Facilities Coordinator. In the 1997-98 school year, petitioner became the District Coordinator of Adult Education and Community Use of Schools. (P-1).

On or about April 15, 1998, the annual school election was held. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-5, on the ballot was a CAP waiver question which had a number of items including continuation of the community schools program, of which petitioner's position was a part. The voters of Atlantic City defeated the budget and the CAP waiver question. Pursuant to N.J.S.A.

18A:7F-5 and N.J.A.C. 6:19-5.2, the defeated budget and separate question was referred to the municipal governing body, the Atlantic City Council.

At its meeting on May 13, 1998, respondent, the Board, acted to restore the CAP question in its entirety, which included the restoration of petitioner's position by using other available funds. (P-3). Subsequently, the Board and the City Council met to discuss the defeated budget and CAP waiver question. According to the testimony of petitioner, the sole witness, the City Council presented to the Board a budget amount which restored the money necessary to fund the CAP waiver with the exception of the community schools program. At its meeting on May 19, 1998, respondent acted "to direct the Business Administrator to submit, to the county superintendent, a budget reflecting the actions of City Council." (P-4) (emphasis supplied). The resolution expressly directed the Business Administrator to submit the budget to the county superintendent. The resolution did not abolish any positions.

At its meeting on May 26, 1998, a resolution was on respondent's agenda "to implement the policy imposed on the Board by City Council to notify Mr. Marsh, Mr. Langford and Mr. Allen of the abolishment of their positions." By recorded roll call vote, the resolution failed. (P-5) Respondent did not approve by roll call vote the resolution to abolish petitioner's position. Of note, in the next resolution that evening, respondent voted to abolish the position of a health benefits clerk and to notify the affected employee. Even though respondent did not act to abolish petitioner's position, petitioner was notified in a letter, dated June 22, 1998, from the Acting Superintendent that after 19 years of dedicated service, his last day of work would be June 30, 1998. (P-6) After June 30, 1998, the school district's central administration concluded that petitioner was no longer an employee, even though respondent's motion to abolish position did not pass.

At its meeting on August 18, 1998, respondent again addressed the resolution to abolish petitioner's position. Again respondent voted not to abolish the position. (P-7) To date, respondent has never voted in the affirmative to abolish petitioner's position. Respondent has had two resolutions to abolish the position, one on May 26, 1998, and the other on August 18, 1998. On each occasion, respondent did not pass the resolution to abolish petitioner's position.

Petitioner's Legal Argument

In the Absence of a Resolution to Abolish Petitioner's Position, Respondent is Required to Continue Petitioner's Employment

In the absence of a resolution to abolish petitioner's position, respondent is required to continue petitioner's employment. Respondent's resolution of May 19, 1999, directing "the Business Administrator to submit to the county superintendent, a budget reflecting the actions of City Council" (P-4) did not abolish the position. Although the Atlantic City Council determined that money in the budget could be cut from the community school programs, the City Council does not have the authority to determine how a board of education is to spend its money once the tax levy has been certified. The municipal resolution of the City Council only certifies the local tax levy required to support a thorough and efficient education plus any additional amounts approved by the voters or restored by the municipality after voter rejection of separate proposals. The certification of the tax levy by the municipality is not a resolution as to how a board of education is to expend its funds once the tax levy has been certified. The board of education is statutorily authorized to expend the funds to operate the school district and to determine the employment organization of the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 et seq.

A case similar to this one is Wollman v. Trenton Bd. of Ed., 96 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* 21, rev'd State Bd. January 7, 1998, aff'd App. Div. April 7, 1999 (attached as Appendix A). In Wollman, supra., the Commissioner appointed a Fiscal Monitor "to oversee and control the fiscal operations" of the Board. The Fiscal Monitor had the authority, in consultation with the Department of Education to, among other things, terminate or promote employees without the approval of the Board, but in accordance with applicable contractual or statutory procedures.

On October 5, 1993, the Fiscal Monitor recommended to the Board that the Buildings and Grounds Department be reorganized and that the position of Assistant Director of Buildings and Grounds be abolished. The Board, however, did not move or adopt the recommendation, nor did it take independent action to abolish the position. Nevertheless, the position was eliminated by the Fiscal Monitor on October 15, 1993. On November 1, 1993, a public accounting firm retained by the Fiscal Monitor issued a report proposing that the position be abolished. Subsequently, on November 18, 1993, the Board did adopt a resolution supporting the abolishment of the position.

Wollman filed a petition with the Commissioner alleging that the Board's failure to adopt a formal resolution abolishing his position rendered the recommendation of the Fiscal Monitor as ultra vires. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) determined that the Fiscal Monitor had broad authority to abolish the position and that the Board was not required to take independent action to do so. However, the ALJ noted that the Board subsequently adopted the accounting firm's recommendation. The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's recommended decision.

On appeal, the State Board reversed. The State Board determined that:

> Unlike the Commissioner, we conclude that the authority of the Fiscal Monitor to abolish positions without the approval of the Trenton Board cannot reasonably be inferred from the terms of the administrative order. (slip opinion at p.4).

Further, the State Board said:

> Our review of the petition and resultant order leads us to conclude that the authority to abolish positions without Board approval cannot reasonably be inferred from the scope of powers conferred on the Fiscal Monitor . . .
>
> Nor do we find that such authority can reasonably be inferred from the provision in the order authorizing the Fiscal Monitor to "terminate or promote any board of education employees under the supervision of the board secretary or school business administrator without approval of the board of education . . ." The authority to "terminate or promote" expressly involves individual employees under the Fiscal Monitor's supervision; the authority to abolish positions involves control of the district's organizational structure. This is not a distinction without a difference. The Fiscal Monitor's authority to terminate or promote individual employees under her supervision without the approval of the Board cannot, in itself, be read to abrogate the Board's jurisdiction over the district's general organization. Moreover, the use of the word "promote" in conjunction with "terminate" reinforces our belief that the intent of such provision was to permit the Fiscal Monitor to take appropriate > personnel action with regard to those employees under her supervision without the necessity for seeking approval from the Board, rather than to eliminate entire positions without approval.

> Thus, while the Fiscal Monitor had express authority under the terms of the administrative order to terminate petitioner's employment without the approval of the Board, we agree with petitioner that the Fiscal Monitor did not have authority, express or implied, to abolish his position without approval. As a result, such action was ultra vires. (emphasis supplied.)

Unlike, the Trenton Board of Education in Wollman, supra., which subsequently took action to abolish the position, the Atlantic City Board did not abolish petitioner's position. Respondent had the resolution to abolish petitioner's position before it on two separate occasions. At its meeting on May 26, 1998, respondent voted not to abolish petitioner's position. (P-5). Again at its meeting on August 18, 1998, the resolution was presented to abolish petitioner's position and again the resolution was defeated. (P-7). To date, the Atlantic City Board has not taken action to abolish petitioner's position.

It is convincingly clear under the school laws that the authority to abolish positions rests with the board of education. The municipality in a defeated school budget election establishes the tax levy. The municipality may recommend areas of the budget to cut, but once the tax levy is established, only the board of education may determine how to spend it. On May 19, 1998, "the Atlantic City Board of Education voted to direct the Business Administrator to submit, to the county superintendent, a budget reflecting the actions of City Council" (emphasis supplied). Once the budget was approved by the Department of Education, the Atlantic City Board had the authority to determine how to spend it. Only the Board had the authority to abolish petitioner's position and on two occasions, it failed to do so. Absent a resolution abolishing his position, petitioner is entitled to continued employment in the Atlantic City School District, retroactive to July 1, 1998.

For all the foregoing reasons, it is respectfully requested that the ALJ Find and Determine that respondent, Atlantic City Board, was required to abolish petitioner's position and that on two occasions, it voted not to do so. It is further requested that in the absence of a resolution abolishing the position, the ALJ Order respondent to employ petitioner in his position with all salary, benefits and emoluments, retroactive to July 1, 1998, less mitigation.

The Board's Position

Respondent agrees with petitioner's statement that the facts of the instant matter are essentially uncontroverted. The respondent would make the following clarifications. The supplemental spending waiver question included the line item for salary and supplies for the community schools program. The petitioner's salary was included in this line item.

Respondent, Atlantic City Board did not act to restore the supplemental spending question at a May 13, 1998, meeting. This was not within the purview of the Board. The Board attempted to make recommendations to City Council of ways to free up funds in budget to support the supplemental spending question's funding. On the following day, May 14, 1998, City Council acted on the budget and supplemental spending waiver question. The budget was restored in total and the supplemental spending waiver was approved with the exception of the salary and supply line item for community schools. Thereafter, the Board passed a resolution directing the Business Administrator to submit to the county superintendent a budget conforming to the actions of City Council.

The health benefits clerk position was not a position eliminated by an act of City Council, but instead was a position not funded in the base budget based on a decision by the Board.

Legal Argument

In View of the Action of City Council the Atlantic City Board of Education was not Obligated to Take Any Further Action Regarding the Petitioner

The petitioner is not entitled to continued employment. The action of the City Council effectively eliminated petitioner's position. The petitioner's position was the subject of a supplemental spending question on the ballot during the general school election. The voters rejected the supplemental spending question. The review process for an unsuccessful supplemental spending question is governed by N.J.A.C. 6:19-24. Subsection (e) of the foregoing regulation provides that:

> Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-5d(10), proposed expenditures which are rejected by the local voters and which are not restored by the local governing body or bodies, or rejections by a board of school estimate, are final and no application for restoration pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:119-5 shall be permitted.

Therefore, the decision of City Council was final as there was not further review. The act of City Council eliminating the funding for petitioner's position essentially terminates the petitioner.

Petitioner argues that the board is authorized to expend funds to operate the district. However, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:19-24(f) the district is precluded from replacing the eliminated funds from any other source once eliminated pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:19-24(e). Therefore, the board did not have the authority to otherwise fund the petitioner's position. The crux of this matter is that the board has discretion to function and spend within the line items in the budget approved by the voters as well as within those line items the voters approve to be added to the budget by way of a supplemental spending question. In the case of a defeated budget and supplemental spending question, the municipal governing body is brought into the situation to represent the voting public. The people did not fund the line item for petitioner's position. Any further action by the Board would be moot or at best superfluous.

The Wollman case cited by petitioner is factually distinguishable from the instant action. The cited case involves the action of a Fiscal Monitor appointed by the Department of Education and his act of eliminating a position. The matter at bar involves the annual budget process as set forth in the Administrative Code. In the instant action, the petitioner's position was not abolished by one individual but by the municipal governing body as part of the review process established by the Administrative Code.

Moreover, the State Board's decision in Wollman turned on the authority of the Fiscal Monitor to eliminate a position without board approval. Here the authority is set forth in the regulations and further the regulations specifically provide that the board is precluded from taking any contrary action. Therefore the failure to pass a formal resolution terminating the petitioner is not relevant. Even if this failure was in error, it was a harmless error, not one giving rise to reinstatement.

While petitioner accurately states that the municipality determines the tax levy in a defeated budget and the board determines how it is spent, the same is not the case in the matter of a defeated supplemental spending question. In that case, the governing body determines the line items that will be added to the budget and the money appropriated for those line items may only be used in those line items.

For the foregoing reasons, it is respectfully requested that the petitioner's actions be dismissed.

CONCLUSIONS

The facts in this matter demonstrate that petitioner had been continuously employed by the Board since on or about July 1, 1997, in at least two positions. He is the holder of a Provisional Certificate as a Supervisor and Principal issued by the Department of Education Board of Examiners. The Board created the position of Coordinator of Adult Education and Community Use of the Schools to which it assigned petitioner in or about 1997, and, presumably, with the approval of the Atlantic County Superintendent of Schools. On April 30, 1998, petitioner was advised, by way of letter from Assistant Superintendent Melvin A. Clarke, that petitioner might be the subject of a reduction in force (RIF) as a consequence of the Board's 1998-99 budget. Assistant Superintendent Clarke also advised petitioner of petitioner's "property rights to other district positions [and which] will be protected and respected if you are entitled to such 'bumping rights.'" (P-2)

The powers and duties of the Board are set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1, which provides, in part, as follows:

> The board shall

b. Enforce the rules of the state board;
c. Make, amend and repeal rules, not consistent with this title or with the rules of the state board, for its own government and the transaction of its business and for the government and management of the public schools and public school property of the district and for the employment, regulation of conduct and discharge of its employees, subject, where applicable, to the provisions of Title 11, Civil Service, of the Revised Statutes; and
d. Perform all acts and do all things, consistent with law and the rules of the state board, necessary for the lawful and proper conduct, equipment and maintenance of the public schools of the district.

Pursuant thereto, under N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1, the Board is required, by law, to appoint teaching staff members as follows:

> No teaching staff member shall be appointed, except by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education appointing him.

Thus, the Board is under the statutory constraint to employ and appoint teaching staff members by no less than a majority vote of its full membership and the appointment must be by a recorded vote.

Similarly, the Board is required to abolish positions under tenure protection when the position is subject to a RIF. The statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:29-9, provides that:

> Nothing in this title or any other law relating to tenure of service shall be held to limit the right of any board of education to reduce the number of teaching staff members, employed in the district whenever, in the judgment of the board, it is advisable to abolish any such positions for reasons of economy or because of reduction in the number of pupils or of change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the district or for other good cause upon compliance with the provisions of this article. (emphasis supplied).

Reading these two statutes together, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:29-9, it can only lead to the logical conclusion that where a board of education is required to appoint a teaching staff member by a recorded roll call vote of its full membership it, therefore, must vote to abolish a position before it may subject an employee to a RIF. It may not rely upon an outside party, who may or may not have eliminated a budgetary consideration, to effectuate the abolishing of the position duly established by the board of education. I CONCLUDE, therefore, there is no statutory provision for the abolishment of positions duly established by a board of education to take effect merely because the board's annual school budget was defeated at the polls by the electorate. I CONCLUDE that a board of education must take affirmative action to abolish the position it created.

Having reached these conclusions, I now CONCLUDE that the Atlantic City Board, by its own admission, failed to abolish petitioner's position of Coordinator of Adult Education and Community Use of Schools when it terminated him, effective July 1, 1998. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioner's position remains in force and in effect until such time as the Board takes affirmative action to abolish the position. I CONCLUDE that the Board's action to terminate petitioner's salary, benefits and other emoluments was ultra vires and must be reversed.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the Board reinstate petitioner to his position as Coordinator of Adult Education and Community Use of Schools with all salary, benefits and other emoluments, due to him, less mitigation, retroactive to June 18, 1998.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ATLANTIC CITY, ATLANTIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions were untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(a), in that the Initial Decision was mailed to the parties on October 25, 1999, and the exceptions were filed on November 18, 1999. Accordingly, the exceptions were not considered in the Commissioner's determination of this matter.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner is compelled to set aside the Initial Decision. Initially, the Commissioner finds that the Board is correct in noting that, where a district proposes additional general fund tax levies in excess of its maximum budget required to provide a thorough and efficient system of education, and where such proposed expenditures are rejected by the local voters and, subsequently, are not restored by the local governing body or bodies, or are rejected by the board of school estimate, such rejection is final. In such cases, no application for restoration by the Commissioner may ensue, and the Board is thereafter prohibited from modifying its base budget in order to effectuate the purpose(s) of the proposed expenditure. N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-5d, N.J.A.C. 6:19-2.4(e), 6:19-2.4(f).

However, the Board's argument that, under such circumstances, "[a]ny further action by [it] would be moot or at best superfluous" (Initial Decision at p. 8), ignores a board's responsibilities as provided elsewhere in the State school laws and as summarized by the ALJ (id. at pp. 9-11), both to appoint teaching staff members and to abolish the positions of teaching staff members where necessary for reasons of economy. As the ALJ observes, "[The Board] may not rely upon an outside party, who may or may not have eliminated a budgetary consideration, to effectuate the abolishing of the position duly established by the board of education." (Id. at p. 11) In the instant matter, then, the Board did not fulfill its statutory obligation when it failed to pass a resolution abolishing petitioner's position. Additionally, it failed in this regard notwithstanding the scheduling of a resolution to abolish petitioner's position on two separate agendas, suggesting that arguments to the effect that the Board believed it did not need to act may not reflect the full circumstances surrounding the Board's determination in this matter.

In view of the Board's failure to take action under circumstances which suggest that the Board may, in fact, have been aware of its responsibilities notwithstanding its ultimate failure to fulfill them, the Commissioner directs the Atlantic County Superintendent of Schools to investigate such circumstances and report to the Commissioner with his findings and recommendations, so that action may be taken if warranted.

However, whatever the Board's understanding may actually have been at the time it failed to pass the scheduled resolutions, and notwithstanding that the Board did not act in accordance with its responsibilities, the Commissioner cannot in good conscience find that petitioner is entitled to the relief he seeks as a result of the Board's failure to act. Here, the record is clear that, by letter dated April 30, 1998, petitioner was advised > of a possible Reduction in Force effecting [sic] your position as Neighborhood Facilities Coordinator. If the budget for the 1998-98 [sic] school year is not certified at the level of finding being requested by the Board of Education[,] the Reduction in Force will be implemented.

>
> This letter will serve as the required thirty day notice and will also advise you that your property rights to other district positions will be protected and respected if you are entitled to such "bumping rights."
> Dr. H. Benjamin Williams, Superintendent of Schools, is expected to convene a meeting with you shortly to discuss this possible reduction and its impact on you.  (Exhibit P-2, Letter from Assistant Superintendent Melvin A. Clarke to William Marsh) (emphasis in text)

Thereafter, by letter dated June 22, 1998, petitioner was informed that Acting Superintendent Delois Campbell would be available for an exit conference with him on his last day of work in the District, June 30, 1998. (Exhibit P-6) Petitioner himself alleges that "[o]n or about June 30, 1998, [he] met with the assistant superintendent who advised [him] that his position was abolished and that he should not report to work." (Petition of Appeal at p. 2) Under these circumstances, where petitioner was unequivocally on notice that his position in the District would be abolished if the underlying program were eliminated, and where the administration took subsequent actions that left no doubt as to the reduction in force to take effect as of June 30, 1998, petitioner cannot claim to have been prejudiced by the Board's failure to take the technical action necessary to formally effectuate the abolition of his position.

Moreover, the Commissioner cannot permit a relief that compels, as does the relief sought by petitioner and recommended by the ALJ herein, a board to fill a position which, by law, it does not have the authority to fund. Such a result is counter to sound educational and fiscal policy, elevates form over substance and unjustly enriches petitioner at the expense of the district's students.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the ALJ is set aside for the reasons expressed herein, and the within petition is dismissed. However, the Board herein and all other boards of education in this State are cautioned that, notwithstanding that the funding for a program is eliminated pursuant to voter rejection and subsequent governing body or board of school estimate review, a board must nonetheless take affirmative action to formally abolish any positions which may be impacted by such elimination. Additionally, as set forth above, the Atlantic County Superintendent is directed to inquire into the circumstances surrounding this matter and to report to the Commissioner with his findings and recommendations.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Highlands Board challenged the Department of Education's determination that the Board had the financial responsibility for the education, including special education services, during the 1997-98 school year, for M.M.C., a school-aged child classified for special education. The Department claimed that, by operation of law, the Board must be considered M.M.C.'s district of residence because M.M.C. lived with C.S., his mother, prior to placement and because C.S. resided in the Board's district. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b). The Board contended that given M.M.C.'s scrambled residential history (foster homes and institutions outside of the district served by the Board) and the absence of any real connection between the Board and M.M.C.'s education, the State must assume responsibility. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(d) and 12(e). Moreover, the Board argued that because DYFS failed to comply with 6:28-7.4(b)(5), it should not be held responsible for M.M.C.'s tuition. (Prospect Park) The parties cross-moved for summary decision.

The ALJ found that the district of residence for M.M.C. pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b was the Highlands. Citing Riggs ("time-of-decision" rule), the ALJ determined that the failure of DYFS to comply with the repealed N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)(5) did not negate the Board's responsibility for M.M.C.'s 1997-98 school year education costs. The ALJ ordered the Highlands Board to pay M.M.C.'s 1997-98 school year education.

The Commissioner agreed with and adopted as his own the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b), the Board was properly assigned by the Department as the district of residence for M.M.C. for the 1997-98 school year. That aspect of the petition was dismissed. The Commissioner, however, found that the parties did not present any legal arguments or engage in any legal analysis whatsoever relative to whether the general prospectivity rule or the "time-of-decision" doctrine should be applied, given the repeal of N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)5ii in July 1998, after the 1997-98 school year concluded. Consequently, the Commissioner remanded this matter to the OAL so that the parties have an opportunity to present legal arguments with respect to the impact of the repeal on the Board's financial responsibility and the ALJ may have full opportunity to consider in the first instance the legal arguments of the parties as to the applicability to the regulation in dispute of the "time-of-decision" doctrine and the prospectivity rule, in light of the facts of this matter and the Commissioner's decision in Prospect Park.

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

M.M.C. is a school-age child classified for special education, whose living arrangements have been quite complicated and this case concerns financial responsibility for his education, including special education services, during the 1997-98 school year. The Division of Finance, part of the New Jersey Department of Education, claims that, by operation of law, the Highlands Board of Education (BOE) must be considered M.M.C.'s district of residence and that the BOE is financially responsible. The Highlands BOE submits that, given the unusual circumstances of this case, by operation of law, the State must assume financial responsibility.

The case is summarized as follows: Except for a few months in 1990 when M.M.C. resided with C.S., his mother, he has been placed in foster homes and institutions outside of the district served by the Highlands BOE. A 1993 court order placed custody and care of M.M.C. with M.G. and, thereafter, M.M.C. and M.G. resided in Middletown where M.M.C. attended schools operated by the Middletown BOE until 1997. In 1997, a court order placed custody and care of M.M.C. with the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS) and, thereafter, the DYFS placed M.M.C. in a series of foster homes and institutions. Contrary to N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)(5)(ii) (then in effect), the DYFS failed to notify the Highlands BOE of these placements, so the BOE was not afforded an opportunity to participate in decisions relative to placement, including placement for the 1997-98 school year. During that school year, M.M.C. did not reside and was not placed in the Highlands BOE district, but C.S. resided in the Highlands BOE district. Entities that have provided educational services to M.M.C. during that school year have demanded payment of tuition and the New Jersey Department of Education's Division of Finance, citing N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b), determined that, because M.M.C. lived with C.S. prior to the subject placement and because C.S. reside in the Highlands BOE's district, the Highlands BOE is responsible for the tuition. The Highlands BOE contends that, given M.M.C.'s scrambled residential history and the absence of any real connection between the Highlands BOE and M.M.C.'s education, N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(d) and -12(e) require that the State (Department of Education) assume responsibility for M.M.C.'s tuition. Further, the Highlands BOE submits that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)(5)(ii), because it was not afforded an opportunity to participate in the placement decision, it may not be held responsible for the subject costs. However, the Division of Finance points out that N.J.A.C. 6A:14-1.1 et seq., which have replaced N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1 et seq., do not require participation of the local board of education in placement, so, under current law, the DYFS's failure to notify the Highlands BOE, etc., should not negate the BOE's responsibility for the tuition.

The parties have cross-moved for summary decision.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

By way of a letter dated January 23, 1998, the Division of School Finance notified the Highlands BOE of its determination that the Highlands BOE was financially responsible for the education of M.M.C. Thereafter, as detailed below in the "Findings of Fact," the parties corresponded. On July 23, 1998, the Highlands BOE's petition against the Middletown BOE and "ABC Board of Education 1-3" was filed with the Department of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. On October 27, 1998, the Middletown BOE's answer was filed. On November 5, 1998, the Middletown BOE's amended answer was filed. On November 16, 1998, the Highlands BOE's first amended petition, which added the State of New Jersey, Department of Education, as a respondent, was filed. On November 24, 1998, the Department's papers in support of a motion to dismiss the amended petition (as untimely) were filed. On December 4, 1998, the Highlands BOE's papers in opposition to the motion to dismiss were filed. On December 7, 1998, the Department's reply to the Highlands BOE's papers was filed. By letter dated December 11, 1998, the Commissioner denied the motion to dismiss. On January 11, 1999, the Department's answers and defenses were filed. The Department then transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where, on February 3, 1999, it was filed as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b).

On February 19, 1999, the case was assigned to me and I sent out a scheduling letter notifying the Highlands BOE that, by May 14, 1999, it should file and serve a motion for an order allowing amendment of its petition identifying any additional board of education and that, if such a motion were not filed, any claim against any additional board of education would be considered waived and barred. On February 24, 1999, the Highlands BOE's present attorney's substitution of attorney form was filed. On June 24, 1999, a telephone conference was held and the attorneys represented that they expected to file cross-motions for summary decision. On June 10 and July 16, 1999, the Department's papers in support of its motion to dismiss and in response to the Highlands BOE's papers were filed. On July 12 and 22, 1999, the Highlands BOE's papers in support of its motion for summary decision and in opposition to the Department's motion were filed. The Board of Education of the Township of Middletown joins in the Division's motion and opposes the Highland BOE's motion. On September 27, 1999, the motions were the subject of an unrecorded conference.

FINDINGS OF FACT

C.S. and M.S. are, respectively, the mother and father of M.M.C., also known as M.S., whose date of birth is July 15, 1988. M.M.C. has been placed in foster homes and institutions outside of the district served by the Highlands BOE except for a brief period (about 1990) when he resided with C.S. M.M.C. has been classified for special education services. P-A; RNJ-J.

In a May 26, 1993, case captioned [M.G.] v. [C.S.] and [M.S.], In the Matter of: [M.M.C.], A Minor, No. FD-13-1525-93 (Ch. Div.), Mark Sullivan, Jr., J.S.C., entered an "Order of Custody." Legal custody of M.M.C. was ordered placed with M.G., then residing in Highlands, until further order of the court; visitation between the parents and M.M.C. was ordered suspended, pending the completion of M.M.C.'s pediatric-psychological evaluation; and M.S. was restrained from any and all contact with M.G. and M.M.C. P-A; RNJ-K.

Following entry of the May 1993 order, until May 1997 M.M.C. resided with M.G. In August 1993, M.G. moved to and resided in Middletown Township. In August 1995, M.G. moved to and resided in Shrewsbury Township. In October 1995, M.G. moved back to and again resided in Middletown Township and, until May 1997, M.M.C. attended the Middletown public schools. P-A.

On May 14, 1997, in a case captioned Division of Youth and Family Services and [M.S.], In the Matter of: [M.M.C.], No. FN-13-76-97-B (Ch. Div.), Eugene Iadanza, J.S.C., entered an "Order to Show Cause for Protective Services, With Removal and Custody." M.M.C. was thereby placed in the care and custody of the DYFS as provided by N.J.S.A. 30:4C-12, N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21 et seq. M.M.C. was thereby made a ward of the court and custody was to be granted to or continued with the DYFS with authorization to the DYFS to consent to emergency medical treatment, etc. M.G. was ordered to show cause why an order should not be entered placing M.M.C. in the care and supervision of the DYFS. RNJ-L.

Thereafter, the DYFS placed M.M.C. with the following persons or entities:

May 15 to May 17, 1997	S.A.B. Bradley Beach, NJ
May 17 to July 3, 1997	CCIS Unit Monmouth Medical Center Long Branch, NJ
July 3 to September 18, 1997	D.T. (Mentoring Program) Merchantville, NJ	B.J. (Mentoring Program) Sicklerville, NJ
September 23 to October 1, 1997	Kennedy Health Care System (Hospital) 2201 Chapel Avenue Cherry Hill, NJ
October 1 to October 6, 1997	J.M.M. (Mentoring Program) Willingboro, NJ
October 6 to November 17, 1997	Kennedy Health Care System (Hospital) 2201 Chapel Avenue Cherry Hill, NJ
November 17, 1997, to February 1998	Mount Saint Joseph's Children's Center (a State-approved, private residential educational program) 124 Shepherds Lane Totowa, NJ

About December 1997, the Division of Finance was asked to determine whether the Highlands BOE was responsible for tuition for M.M.C.'s education. The DYFS reported to the Division that C.S. was residing in Highlands and M.S. was residing in Port Monmouth. RNJ-J.

By letter dated January 23, 1998, Melvin Wyns of the Department of Education's Office of School Finance wrote to the Highlands BOE as follows:

> The Department of Human Services has asked my office to determine the district of residence for [M.M.C.], a child who was placed by DYFS with the Mt. St. Joseph Children's Center, 124 Shepherds Lane, Totowa, New Jersey, on November 17, 1997.
>
> The specific facts in this case are as follows:
>
> 1. The address of parent [C.S.] as of the date of this placement (11/17/97) was 55 Waterwitch Avenue, Highlands, New Jersey.
>
> 2. Highlands Borough is responsible for the educational costs of the child for the 1997-98 school year.
>
> In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12, N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.3, N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.4 and based upon the information provided, it is determined that Highlands Borough is the responsible school district for [M.M.C.].
>
> If your [BOE] contests the determination of district of residence, a written notification should be submitted . . . .
>
> [RNJ-A.]

Thereafter, the DYFS placed M.M.C. with the following entity:

February to May 7, 1998	Monmouth Medical Center Long Branch, NJ

By letter dated February 23, 1998, the Highlands BOE responded to the Division of Finance as follows:

> An investigation into this case by a member of the Highlands [BOE] Child Study Team resulted in information indicating that [M.M.C.] > had been in foster care since eighteen (18) months of age and that the following foster parent obtained legal custody of the child in 1993:

>
> [M.G.]
> 15 Bay Avenue
> Middletown, New Jersey 07748
>
> The child attended [the Middletown BOE's] Port Monmouth School, Main Street and Highway 36, Middletown, New Jersey until May 14, 1997. It is my understanding that [M.G.] now resides at 32 Bay Avenue, Keansburg, New Jersey 07734.
>
> Since this child was in foster care with legal custody, I do not believe that the Highlands [BOE] is responsible for the costs of educating the child. I would appreciate your further attention to this matter.
> [RNJ-B.]

By letter dated March 10, 1998, Karen Gagne, a school social worker in the Department of Human Service's Office of Education, wrote to the Office of School Finance expressing her opinion that, on November 17, 1997, C.S., who resided in Highlands, was M.M.C.'s "legal guardian." RNJ-M.

By letter dated March 20, 1998, the assistant commissioner for the Division of Finance responded to the Highlands BOE as follows:

> I have reviewed your letter of February 23, 1998 . . . . Additional information from the Department of Human Services has indicated that [C.S.] was a resident at 55 Waterwitch [Avenue], Highlands, New Jersey, as of the date of [M.M.C.'s] placement (11/17/97). [M.G.] was [M.M.C.'s] foster parent but had no legal guardianship. With regard to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12, "The district of residence for children in foster homes shall be the district in which the foster parents reside. If a child in a foster home is subsequently placed in a state facility or by a state agency, the district of residence of the child shall then be determined as if no such foster placement had occurred."
>
> Based on the address of parent as of the date of this placement, I must uphold Mr. Wyns' determination that Highlands [BOE] is the responsible district for [M.M.C.] for the 1997-98 school year.

[RNJ-C.]

Thereafter, the DYFS placed M.M.C. with the following entity:

May 7, 1998, to present	Somerset Hills School Somerset, NJ

M.M.C. remains placed in the Somerset Hills School. Since November 1997, C.S. has resided in Highlands. M.G. resides in Middletown Township. P-A.

The Kennedy Health Care System, Mount Saint Joseph's Children's Center, Monmouth Medical Center and Somerset Hills School seek reimbursement for educational services provided to M.M.C. (First Amended Petition).

Contrary to N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)(5)(ii), the DYFS did not notify the Highlands BOE of the above-described placements, so the BOE was not afforded an opportunity to participate in any placement decision. Also, there is no allegation that from May 1997 through the 1997-98 school year an emergency existed that prevented the DYFS from notifying the BOE and affording it an opportunity to participate in decisions affecting placement.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Legislature is to "provide for the maintenance and support of a thorough and efficient system of free public schools for the instruction of all the children in the State between the ages of five and eighteen years." N.J. Const. art. VIII, § 4, ¶ 1. And, generally, local boards of education provide and are financially responsible for the education of school-age children domiciled within their respective districts. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

Criteria for determination of a school child's district of residence and for determination of responsibility for tuition for the child's educational services are provided in N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12:

> For school funding purposes, the Commissioner of Education shall determine district of residence as follows:
>
> a. The district of residence for children in foster homes shall be the district in which the foster parents reside. If a child in a foster home is subsequently placed in a State facility or by a State agency, the district of residence of the child shall then be determined as if no such foster placement had occurred.
>
> b. The district of residence for children who are in residential State facilities, or who have been placed by State agencies in group homes, private schools or out-of-State facilities, shall be the present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived prior to his most recent admission to a State facility or most recent placement by a State agency.
>
> If this cannot be determined, the district of residence shall be the district in which the child resided prior to such admission or placement.
>
> . . . .
>
> d. If the district of residence cannot be determined according to the criteria contained herein, or if the criteria contained herein identify a district of residence outside of the State, the State shall assume fiscal responsibility for the tuition of the child. The tuition shall equal the approved per pupil cost established pursuant to [N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-1 et seq.]. This amount shall be appropriated in the same manner as other State aid under this act. The Department of Education shall pay the amount to the Department of Human Services, the Department of Corrections or the Juvenile Justice Commission . . . or, in the case of a homeless child, the Department of Education shall pay the appropriate T & E amount and any appropriate additional cost factor for special education pursuant to [N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-19] to the school district in which the child is enrolled.
>
> e. If the State has assumed fiscal responsibility for the tuition of a child in a private educational facility approved by the Department of Education to serve children who are classified as needing special education services, the department shall pay to the Department of Human Services or the Juvenile Justice Commission, as appropriate, the aid specified in subsection d. of this section and > in addition, such aid as required to make the total amount of aid equal to the actual cost of the tuition.

>
> [Emphasis added.]

Criteria for determination of a school child's district of residence are also provided in N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.3:

> (a) The district of residence for school funding purposes shall be determined according to the following criteria:
>
> 1. The "present district of residence" of a child in a residential State facility defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-3 and referred to in paragraph one of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b) shall mean the New Jersey district of residence of the child's parent(s) or guardian(s) as of the last school day prior to October 16.
>
> 2. The "present district of residence" of a child placed by a State agency in a group home, private school or out-of-State facility also referred to in paragraph one of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b) shall mean the New Jersey district of residence of the child's parent(s) or guardian(s) as of the date of the child's initial placement by the State agency. In subsequent school years spent in the educational placement made by a State agency, the child's "present district of residence" shall be determined in the same manner as for a child in a residential State facility as set forth in (a)1.
>
> [Emphasis added.]

Relative to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(a), "foster home" is defined in N.J.S.A. 30:4C-2(i):

> The term "foster home" means and includes private residences, group homes, residential facilities and institutions wherein any child in the care, custody or guardianship of the [DYFS] may be placed by the said division or with its approval for temporary or long-term care, and shall include any private residence maintained by persons with whom any such child is placed for adoption.

Until July 4, 1998, N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4 governed responsibility for placement of an educationally disabled student and N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)(5) stated:

> Placement of a pupil with an educational disability in an approved residential private school by a public agency, other than the district board of education, shall be subject to the rules governing such agencies and to this chapter. The district board of education shall pay the nonresidential special education costs.
>
> i. When the pupil has been placed by a public agency empowered to make such placement, the placement shall meet the individualized education program requirements of the pupil.
>
> ii. The chief school administrator or his or her designee shall participate with the public agency in the placement decision if the district board of education is to be responsible for the special education costs.
>
> [Emphasis added.]

N.J.A.C. 6A:14-1.1 et seq., which replaced N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1 et seq., do not require participation of the district of residence in the placement of a classified student.

In May 1997, M.M.C. was placed in the care and custody of DYFS, "a State agency," and the DYFS placed M.M.C. in a succession of foster homes and institutions, including those which provided services during the subject 1997-98 school year. Therefore, consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(a), the "district of residence of [M.M.C.] shall . . . be determined as if no such foster placement had occurred."

C.S. is the parent with whom M.M.C. lived "prior to his . . . most recent placement by a State agency [the DYFS]." N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b) and, therefore, under N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b), because C.S. resides in Highlands, the Highlands BOE would be responsible for M.M.C.'s tuition during the 1997-98 school year. (The 1993 order placed care and custody of M.M.C. with M.G., but did not name her as his guardian and, therefore, there is no "guardian" whose residence N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b) would make the district of residence for M.M.C.)

Consistent with N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)(5), then in effect, in Board of Education of the Borough of Prospect Park v. New Jersey Department of Education, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 134, 140, the Commissioner held that the DYFS "must consult with the school district prior to placement" absent some emergency excusing the state agency from that requirement. Here, the DYFS failed to notify the Highlands BOE or to otherwise afford it an opportunity to participate in any placement decision. And, in May 1997, i.e., months before the start of the 1997-98 school year, the custody and care of M.M.C. was placed with DYFS. So it appears highly unlikely that (and there is no allegation that) during these many months an emergency continued that prevented the DYFS from notifying the BOE and affording it an opportunity to participate in decisions affecting placement for the 1997-98 school year.

However, N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1 et seq. have been repealed and replaced by N.J.A.C. 6A:14-1.1 et seq., effective July 4, 1998, which do not require notification of the district of residence before such placement of a classified student. And, consistent with the "time-of-decision" rule, current law - presumedly expressing public policy, is generally applicable in lieu of repealed law. Riggs v. Long Beach Tp., 109 N.J. 515, 521 (1986), on remand, 212 N.J. Super. 69, (App. Div. 1986), rev'd 109 N.J. 601 (1988). See also Juliano & Sons, v. Chevron, U.S.A., 250 N.J. Super. 148, 158 (App. Div. 1991). See also Department of Health v. Tegnazian, 205 N.J. Super. 160, 175 (App. Div. 1985), for the principle that, in construing and applying regulations, rules governing construction and application of statutes are generally applicable.

The Highlands BOE does not allege that M.M.C.'s 1997-98 placement was inappropriate or that there could have been other appropriate placement at a lesser cost and it does not allege that it relied on the old rule in obtaining some vested interest that would prevent application of the current law. Consequently, the DYFS failure to comply with the repealed N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)(5) does not negate the BOE's responsibility for M.M.C.'s 1997-98 school year education costs.

Given the above, the district of residence for M.M.C. can be determined according to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b; that district is the Highlands BOE's; and the Highlands BOE is responsible for M.M.C.'s 1997-98 education costs.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF HIGHLANDS,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN, MONMOUTH COUNTY AND THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY, DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, DIVISION OF FINANCE,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and Respondent State of New Jersey, Department of Education's (Department) reply were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. No exceptions were filed by Respondent Middletown Township Board of Education.

Highlands Board of Education (Board) vigorously excepts to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) conclusion that it may not be relieved from financial responsibility for the costs of M.M.C.'s education for the 1997-1998 school year because N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)5ii, the regulation under dispute herein, was repealed in July 1998. The Board argues, inter alia, that the ALJ erroneously applied the doctrine of "time-of-decision" articulated in Riggs v. Long Beach Tp., 101 N.J. 515 (1986), when concluding that the regulations that govern in this matter are those in effect at the time of trial, N.J.A.C. 6A:14-1.1 et seq., not those in effect at the time the Department made the determination that the Board was financially responsible for M.M.C.'s education, i.e., N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1 et seq. Petitioner's exceptions set forth at length the Board's legal position on the applicability of the general prospectivity rule to the instant matter as opposed to the "time-of-decision" doctrine. These arguments are briefly summarized below.

The Board urges the general rule is that regulations are to be applied prospectively only. Seashore Ambulatory Surgery Center, Inc. v. N.J. Department of Health, 288 N.J. Super. 87, 97 (App. Div. 1996); Mitchell v. Cavicchia, 29 N.J. Super. 11, 15 (App. Div. 1953). It further argues that legislation may be applied retroactively only if there is an expression of intent to retroactively apply, when reasonable expectations of those affected by regulation warrant retroactive application, or if the regulation is ameliorative or curative in nature. Seashore, supra, at 97. As to this, the Board states:

> None of these criteria apply. There is no expression by the Department of any explicit or implicit intention to apply these regulations retroactively. The reasonable expectations of school districts clearly do not point to retroactive application. The change in the special education regulations was not to correct some defect in the original regulations but to "improve special education programs by assuring a balance of flexibility and safeguards...and to comply with the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act., 20 U.S.C. §§ 1400, et seq." If the special education regulations were to be applied retroactively, school districts would be subject to countless violations of special education requirements, merely because the requirements changed. Surely, that is not what the Department intended. (Board's Exceptions at pp. 2-3)

Moreover, the Board contends that regulations may not be applied retroactively if to do so will result in manifest injustice to the party affected, Seashore, supra, at 98, which it believes would occur in the instant matter if it is required to pay for DYFS's unilateral placement of M.M.C. It urges, inter alia, manifest injustice is especially true in this matter because Highlands was entirely innocent in its actions and the ALJ's ruling means that without input by Highlands, the Highlands taxpayers must pay for M.M.C.'s education. The Board, therefore, avers that the Commissioner should not reward DYFS's failure to follow the law. Of this, it states:

> The time-of-decision rule is often applied to promote public policy as embodied by the actions of the Legislature. However, condoning a failure to follow applicable regulations contravenes public policy and places financial burden on a small group of local taxpayers whose board of education was deprived of the right to make educational decisions. Thus, applying the time-of-decision rule in this case would not promote public policy. (Board's Exceptions at p. 4)

In addition to its strong objections to the ALJ's application of the "time-of-decision" doctrine in this matter instead of the general prospectivity rule, the Board also objects to the ALJ's conclusion that it is financially responsible for M.M.C.'s education based upon N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b), urging that the ALJ reliance upon that statutory provision is misplaced. As to this, the Board avers that the ALJ essentially ignored the uncontroverted fact that M.C. has not resided with his parent since approximately 1990. As such, placement pursuant to that regulation does not conclusively point to the Board. The Board, therefore, contends that the State must assume financial responsibility for M.M.C.'s education, not the Highlands Board of Education.

The Department urges affirmance of the ALJ's recommended decision, maintaining that the ALJ properly applied the "time-of-decision" rule in assigning financial responsibility to the Board. As to this, the Department emphasizes that the change in the law that occurred in the instant matter involves repeal of an existing regulation and not the enactment of a new one. The Department also contends that it is well-established that the same rules which govern the construction and application of statutes and municipal ordinance also govern the construction and application of administrative regulations. In summarizing its legal position, the Department states:

> the ALJ's application of the "time-of-decision" rule was correct because the repeal of N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)5ii effectively extinguished any cause of action which might have arisen under it. Further, under a traditional retroactive application analysis, it is clear that the repeal of N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)5ii was intended to be retroactive, as it was curative and not contrary to the reasonable expectations of the parties. Moreover, retroactive application of the regulation does not infringe upon a vested interest of the petitioner and does not result in manifest injustice. (Department's Reply Exceptions at p. 11)

The Department also urges affirmance of the ALJ's determination that it properly applied N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b) when assigning the Board financial responsibility for M.M.C.'s education for the 1997-1998 school year. The Department avers that the Board would read into the statute a requirement that a child must have resided with his parents immediately prior to his most recent placement, or the State assume financial responsibility, an interpretation which the Department contends has never been previously made and for which the Board provides no authority. The Department further contends that the precise wording of the statute dictates that the time M.M.C. resided in foster placement is not counted; hence, the mother's residence is determinative of his district of residence.

Upon a thorough and comprehensive review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with and adopts as his own the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that, pursuant to the statutory provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b), the Board was properly assigned by the Department to be the district of residence for M.M.C. for the 1997-1998 school year for the reasons well-expressed by the ALJ in the Initial Decision.

However, the Commissioner also finds upon his independent review of the record that during the period this matter was under consideration by the ALJ, the parties did not present any legal arguments or engage in any legal analysis whatsoever relative to what has emerged as the second major issue in this matter, namely, whether the general prospectivity rule or the "time-of-decision" doctrine should be applied, given the repeal of N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)5ii in July 1998, after the 1997-1998 school year concluded. Given the determination herein that the Highlands Board was properly assigned as M.M.C.'s district of residence for the 1997-1998 school year, this issue takes on prominence in the present matter in light of the Commissioner's decision in Prospect Park, supra. Therein, the Commissioner waived Prospect Park Board of Education's financial responsibility for the education of a student assigned to it under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b) because DYFS had failed to comply with the requirement set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)5ii, that it meet with the district of residence prior to placing a student in a residential facility. Careful scrutiny of the record reveals that the ALJ did not have the benefit of the extensive briefing and legal arguments of the parties contained in the exceptions and reply exceptions prior to the issuance of the Initial Decision wherein he determined that the "time-of-decision" doctrine as articulated in Riggs, supra, should apply in the present matter.

Consequently, the Commissioner concludes that the matter must be remanded to the OAL so that the parties will have an opportunity to present, and the ALJ will have the opportunity to consider in the first instance, legal arguments with respect to the impact of the July 1998 repeal of N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)5ii on the Board's financial responsibility for the 1997-1998 school year, which were set forth for the first time in the exceptions, and for consideration of such other submissions relative to this issue as the ALJ may deem fit.

Accordingly, that aspect of the Board's petition which appealed the action of the Department designating it, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b), as the district of residence for student M.M.C. is hereby Dismissed. However, the question of whether the Board remains responsible for the costs of M.C.C.'s education is remanded to the OAL in order that the ALJ may have full opportunity to consider the legal arguments of the parties as to the applicability to the regulations in dispute of the "time-of-decision" doctrine and the prospectivity rule in light of the facts of this matter and the Commissioner's decision in Prospect Park, supra. *

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning tenured teacher alleged the District's action to charge her sick days for work-related injury/illness violated N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. The District contended her petition was untimely filed.

The ALJ found that petitioner had adequate notice of the termination of her compensation benefits. Moreover, the ALJ found that petitioner presented no reason upon which to predicate a relaxation of the 90-day limitation and that the petition was filed approximately 10 months after the notice of the action taken by the District. Petition was dismissed as untimely.

The Commissioner adopted findings and determination in Initial Decision as his own.

Michael Chulak, Esq., appearing for Petitioner

Charlotte Kitler, Esq., appearing for Respondent

Record Closed: October 8, 1999 Decided: November 3, 1999

BEFORE MARIA MANCINI LA FIANDRA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner is seeking an order restoring sick days for certain absences from her work as a tenured teacher. Although she alleges that she was injured at work on February 27, 1997, as a result of falling down the stairs of her school, she continued working until October 5, 1997, since which she has been absent from work.

Respondent asserts that certain days of Petitioner's absence were, in fact, treated as due to work related injuries; however, her absences since March 4, 1998, have been charged against her sick bank. Moreover, Respondent asserts that Petitioner was notified many months ago that further time lost from work would not be treated as being due to work related injuries.

Although Petitioner was given notice in March, 1998 that continued absences from work would not be compensable as work related, she did not file her petition until January, 1999. Accordingly, Respondent is seeking dismissal of the verified petition for failure to comply with the 90-day requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The operative facts relevant to a determination of this application to dismiss this petition for failure to comply with the 90-day requirement set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 are uncontroverted. They are:

1. Petitioner's sick bank has been charged with her absences from March 4, 1998.

2. Respondent's compensation carrier sent a letter dated March 5, 1998 to Petitioner, advising her that no further medical treatment was found to be necessary and no further lost time from work would be authorized.

3. Petitioner received the letter on March 10, 1998.

4. Petitioner has not returned to work.

5. There is a pending workers compensation claim.

Notwithstanding the fact that Petitioner did receive notice from the carrier that she no longer required treatment and would no longer receive authorized lost time from work, Petitioner asserts that because her attorney was not notified by the carrier of the termination of compensation benefits and because she is not an attorney familiar with the governing statutes and regulations, the requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 should be relaxed. The regulation provides, in pertinent part, that a petition challenging an action by a district board, such as this, must be filed no later than 90 days from the date of receipt of the notice of the action.

The sole issue to be resolved, therefore, is whether notice to Petitioner was sufficient to trigger the 90-day period. Although Petitioner urges that the carrier had an obligation to notify her attorney of the termination of benefits, she offers no authority in support of her position. Petitioner merely claims ignorance of the regulation and its meaning. This position, however, is untenable and unpersuasive for many reasons, not the least of which is the well established principle that an individual cannot be absolved from a legal responsibility simply because she is unaware of that responsibility. Moreover, at the time she received the notice in question, Ms. Mello had already retained the services of an attorney. Presumably, the responsibility for notifying him of the change in status devolved upon her. Moreover, other than to say that the notice she received was not adequate because it was not also sent to her attorney, there is nothing in the record to explain the 10-month delay in filing the petition.

Review of the letter sent to the carrier by the attorney (Petitioner's Exhibit A) reveals that he requested that he be kept ". . . abreast of the matter with medical reports and evaluations." The notice in question was clearly neither an evaluation or medical report. The carrier is under no obligation to go beyond the four corners of the request drafted by counsel.

Finally, I note that the procedures to be followed by the doctor and their ramifications, including the consequences of a release to return to work, were clearly stated by letter to Petitioner dated November 7, 1997. (P-1).

Petitioner relies on the provision of the regulations granting the Commissioner authority to relax the rules. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15. That provision, however, requires a showing that such an action by the Commissioner is required to avoid injustice or inappropriate or unnecessary action. Petitioner has offered no explanation of the great delay.

Accordingly, I FIND that petitioner had adequate notice of the termination of compensation benefits. I further FIND that petitioner has presented no reason upon which to predicate a relaxation of the 90-day limitation. I further FIND that the petition herein was filed approximately 10 months after the notice of the action taken by the board.

Consequently, based on the foregoing as well as the recognition by the Supreme Court of New Jersey that the 90-day limitation period is "a fair and reasonably necessary requirement for the proper and efficient resolution of disputes under the school laws"[1] I CONCLUDE that this petition should be DISMISSED for failure to be timely filed.

It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the District's reply thereto are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and were considered by the Commissioner in rendering the within decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the within Petition of Appeal is properly dismissed as untimely, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), and that petitioner has failed to demonstrate cause for relaxation of the 90-day filing requirement. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15

WILLIAM MARSH,	:
PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ATLANTIC CITY, ATLANTIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 21, 1999

For the Petitioner-Appellant, New Jersey Principals and Supervisors Association (Wayne J. Oppito, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Michael C. Epps, Esq.

William Marsh (hereinafter "petitioner") was employed by the Board of Education of the City of Atlantic City (hereinafter "Board") in July 1979. From 1979 until 1997, he was employed as the Neighborhood Facilities Coordinator. For the 1997-98 school year, the petitioner served as the District Coordinator of Adult Education and Community Use of Schools. Although the Board took no formal action, petitioner's employment was terminated as of June 30, 1998.

The petitioner filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, seeking an order that his employment be continued. The Board countered that petitioner was not entitled to continued employment because the Atlantic City Council had not restored the funding to support the position after the voters had rejected a supplemental spending question submitted to them pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-5(d)(9).

Oct. 4, 2000

Observing that the powers and duties of the Board are set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1, the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") stressed that under N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1, the Board must appoint teaching staff members by a recorded vote of the majority of its full membership. Reading N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1 together with N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, which authorizes district boards to reduce the number of teaching staff members employed in the district, the ALJ found that a board must vote to abolish a position before it could subject an employee to a reduction in force. Concluding that there was no statutory provision to effect abolishment of positions duly established by a district board on the basis of a voter defeat of the board's annual school budget, the ALJ further concluded that a board must take affirmative action to abolish any position it creates. Because the Atlantic City Board had taken no action to abolish petitioner's position, the ALJ found that the position had remained in existence and that the Board's actions in terminating petitioner's salary and benefits was ultra vires. The ALJ therefore recommended that the Commissioner direct petitioner's reinstatement with all salary and benefits retroactive to June 1998.

The Commissioner set aside the ALJ's determination. Citing N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-5d, along with N.J.A.C. 6:19-2.4(e) and N.J.A.C. 6:19-2.4(f), the Commissioner initially observed that a rejection of proposed expenditures by the voters is final where the local governing body does not restore such expenditures and that the district board cannot modify its base budget to effectuate them. The Commissioner, however, rejected the Atlantic City Board's argument that it was excused on this basis from any obligation to adopt a resolution abolishing the petitioner's position. In this respect, the Commissioner relied on the ALJ's analysis of a district board's statutory obligation to appoint and abolish the positions of teaching staff members.

Finding that the petitioner had been on notice that his position was to be abolished, the Commissioner concluded that petitioner had not been prejudiced by the Board's failure to take formal action in this case, and he declined to award relief to the petitioner. The Commissioner also concluded that he could not permit relief that would compel a board to fill a position which it did not have the authority to fund. Nonetheless, because the circumstances suggested that the Board had been aware of its responsibilities when it failed to act, the Commissioner directed the Atlantic County Superintendent to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the matter and to report to the Commissioner with his findings and recommendations.

Based on our review of the record in this matter and the relevant law, we modify the ALJ's findings, which were relied upon by the Commissioner to conclude that the Board had a statutory obligation to act affirmatively in this case. Initially, our examination of the record indicates that the petitioner was not a certificated employee of the Board. Hence, the petitioner was not a teaching staff member. N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 ("teaching staff member" is defined as a member of the professional staff of any district whose employment is of such character that the qualifications require him to hold a certificate issued by the State Board of Examiners). By their express terms, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, upon which the ALJ relied, apply only to teaching staff members. Consequently, the Board's failure to take formal action to abolish the petitioner's position was not in violation of those statutes.

However, further review of the education statutes indicates that N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, which imposes procedural obligations on district boards with respect to the appointment and removal of employees, applies to both certificated and noncertificated employees. Under this statute, the Board had an obligation to act upon the Superintendent's recommendation by recorded roll call vote of a majority of the full Board in order to properly remove petitioner from his position. Moreover, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1, which provides the authority for district boards to employ and dismiss officers and employees regardless of certification, also required that the Board take formal action to effectuate petitioner's dismissal. Based on the requirements of these statutes, we concur with the Commissioner's conclusion that the Board in this case had a statutory obligation to take formal action irrespective of whether it had the authority to fund the position at issue.

However, for the reasons that follow, we also agree with the Commissioner's determination that the petitioner is not entitled to reinstatement as the result of the Board's failure to take formal action to dismiss him. We do so solely on the grounds that the petitioner has shown no entitlement to such relief under the education laws. In this respect, we again stress that since the petitioner was not a teaching staff member, the Board was not required by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 to abolish the position in which he had been serving before it could dismiss him. Accordingly, the petitioner cannot claim relief under that statute. Nor do the procedural requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 provide a basis for reinstatement in this case. Moreover, as found by the Commissioner, the petitioner had actual notice that he was to be dismissed and, therefore, cannot claim any relief on the grounds that he was prejudiced by the Board's failure to take formal action to dismiss him. Accordingly, while we join the Commissioner in cautioning the Board that it must fulfill its obligations to take appropriate action in all personnel matters regardless of the status of the funding that underlies the positions affected, we, like the Commissioner, find that the petitioner in this case is not entitled to relief.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parents challenged District's disciplinary transfer of 7th grader, E.A., Jr., from the James F. Murray School to another school within the District. E.A. had been enrolled in P.S. 38 pursuant to an Open Enrollment program. Petitioners sought E.A.'s reinstatement in good standing as a student at P.S. 38 retroactive to December 3, 1997, reimbursement in the amount of $5000 relevant to costs incurred for E.A.'s education and an award of counsel fees and costs.

The ALJ dismissed the petition. The ALJ concluded that the due process requirements of notice and hearing applicable to the exclusion of students from a public education system were not applicable in the current matter (E.A. was not excluded from participation in the District's educational system); that petitioners did not prove by a preponderance of credible evidence that respondents acted in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner regarding the transfer of E.A., Jr.; and that petitioners did not prove discrimination.

The Commissioner adopted findings and determination in Initial Decision as his own.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about February 27, 1998, the Reverend E. A., Sr. (E.A.) and Mrs. D.A. (D.A.) filed a petition with the State Department of Education (DOE), seeking relief, on behalf of their minor child, E.A., Jr., from the State-Operated School District of Jersey City (respondent or District), Marie Morrissey (Morrissey or respondent), and Richard DiPatri (DiPatri or respondent). Respondents filed an answer on March 20, 1998, and the DOE transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on April 9, 1998 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

Telephone and in-person conferences were conducted. Hearings were conducted on April 23 and 27 and May 27, 1999. The parties filed post-hearing briefs. The record was closed on September 13, 1999, the date of final communications with the parties.

NATURE OF THE CASE

As of December 1997, E.A., Jr. was enrolled in the seventh grade at the James F. Murray School, School No. 38 (P.S. 38), in the District. He had been enrolled in P.S. 38 since September 1993, pursuant to an "open enrollment" program. (Exh. R-1.) On or about December 3, 1997, Morrissey, the Principal of P.S. 38, terminated E.A., Jr.'s enrollment at P.S. 38 and transferred him to Public School No. 15 (P.S. 15), his local neighborhood school in the District. That action was based upon a conclusion by Morrissey that E.A., Jr. had signed his father's name on a mathematics test.

E.A. and D.A. stated in their petition that the transfer was implemented without a fair hearing before an impartial forum, in violation of E.A., Jr.'s basic due process rights. They also alleged that various education statutes were violated.

Petitioners initially sought an order rescinding E.A., Jr.'s transfer, which request was withdrawn during the proceedings. Petitioners also sought the imposition of monetary sanctions against the District, DiPatri, the State District Superintendent, and Morrissey and an award of costs regarding the placement of E.A., Jr. in a private school subsequent to December 3, 1997. In their post-hearing brief, petitioners request that E.A., Jr. be reinstated in "good standing" as a student at P.S. 38, retroactive to December 3, 1997; that respondents be required to reimburse petitioners in the amount of $5000 relevant to costs incurred for E.A., Jr.'s education; and an award of counsel fees and costs.

The issues, broadly, are whether petitioners have met the burden of proving their claims, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, and, if so, what relief should be granted.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The testimony of the witnesses differed substantially regarding the question of whether E.A., Jr. had, in fact, signed his father's name to the test in question.

E.A., Jr. testified that when Ellen Stevenson (Stevenson), his mathematics teacher, returned the test, he took it home and told his mother he had not passed the test. She told him to have his father sign it. E.A., Jr. also stated that he put the paper on his father's desk, with other documents. The next morning, E.A. signed the test while driving his son to school. E.A. Jr. noted that E.A. had papers, including the test, on the steering wheel, and that he signed it while the vehicle was stopped at a light. E.A. was not angry but told his son to do better in school. E.A., Jr. also testified that Stevenson asked him only once whether he had signed the paper and that no one else was ever present when he spoke to Stevenson regarding the matter. E.A., Jr.'s testimony regarding his communications with Stevenson was ambiguous and contradictory.

E.A. recollected that during the first week of December 1997, his son had left a mathematics paper on his desk, with other school documents. When E.A. arrived home later in the evening, he put the papers in his briefcase. The next morning, while driving E.A., Jr. to school, he signed the mathematics test when stopped at a light. E.A. specifically recollected that he used a mechanical lead pencil, that he had difficulty with it, and that he had to retrace his signature. E.A. stated that he did not wait until he had arrived at school to sign the test because it was his practice to do many things simultaneously because he was busy.

On rebuttal, E.A. again testified that he had signed the test with a mechanical pencil while driving E.A., Jr. to school. He noted that he retraced his signature because the lead "broke off."

Stevenson testified that upon reviewing the mathematics test, she noted that what appeared to be the signature of E.A., Jr., at the top of the paper, was odd in appearance, had apparently been misspelled, and seemed to have been written over. Stevenson spoke with E.A., Jr., after class, inquiring if his father had seen the test and signed it. Stevenson testified that E.A., Jr. stated his father had signed the document. She then told E.A., Jr. to be honest, that it did not have to go any further, and again inquired whether his father had seen the test and signed it. At that point, he told her that E.A. had not signed the document. Stevenson testified that when she inquired who did, E.A., Jr. indicated that he had. She then went to speak with Patricia Clarritt (Clarritt), whose class was across the hall, requesting that the latter retrieve documents with E.A. Jr.'s signature, to compare them. Stevenson also testified that she again went to Clarritt, E.A. Jr.'s homeroom teacher, accompanied by E.A., Jr., and asked E.A., Jr., in Clarritt's presence, about the signature on the test. E.A., Jr. said he had signed his father's name on the test paper

Clarritt testified that on that day, Stevenson came to her classroom, requesting documents containing E.A.'s signature, to compare them with the signature on a mathematics test. Clarritt retrieved the documents, observed them and the mathematics test, and indicated to Stevenson that the signature on the mathematics test was not that of E.A. Clarritt also testified that a little while after that, Stevenson brought E.A., Jr. to her classroom. E.A., Jr. was asked about the signature on the test, and he said that he had signed his father's name. Clarritt recollected then saying to him; "E.-E.-E. Why did you do that?" E.A., Jr. did not respond, but shrugged his shoulders. Clarritt stated that she then told him that he was in trouble.

Morrissey testified that Stevenson, on approximately December 3, 1997, informed her that E.A., Jr. had admitted that he had forged his father's name on a mathematics test. Stevenson showed Morrissey the test and they examined the signature, comparing it with E.A.'s signature on other school documents. Morrissey then directed the school secretary to issue a transfer notice to E.A., Jr., which notice was given to him later that day. Morrissey also testified that after school, she spoke with D.A., in the principal's office, regarding the matter. In addition, Morrissey stated that D.A. advised her that E.A., Jr. had told his mother that he had signed his father's name on the test, but that D.A. did not believe that was sufficient reason to transfer him. Stevenson stated that D.A. also said that her son told her had done so because he was fearful of showing the test to his father. On rebuttal, D.A. denied making those statements to Morrissey.

Both D.A. and E.A. testified regarding their good relationships with their children, the fact that E.A., Jr. would have had no reason to fear showing his father the test, and to E.A., Jr.'s general truthfulness.

The witnesses also differed, in certain respects, regarding an Open House which was conducted at PS 38 on November 24, 1997. The general purpose of the Open House, as testified to by Morrissey, was for parents to meet with teachers, obtain report cards, and generally assess the performance of their children.

E.A. testified that shortly before the Open House, in November 1997, D.A. advised him of an incident involving E.A., Jr. which had occurred in the school gymnasium. D.A. indicated that she had scheduled an appointment for petitioners to meet with Morrissey at the Open House to discuss the matter. E.A. testified that petitioners waited 20 minutes for Morrissey, in the latter's outer office, during which time the principal "ignored them." When the principal arrived and entered her office, petitioners waited another 10 to 12 minutes. E.A. also testified that at some point during their meeting, Morrissey told D.A. to "go upstairs" to obtain E.A., Jr.'s "folders" and that she did so as a "command." D.A. indicated that she would do so after the meeting, but Morrissey told her "no, you go now," and D.A. did.

When they finally spoke with the principal, Morrissey indicated that she had to see other parents as well. E.A. also stated when petitioners entered Morrissey's office, he greeted her as follows: "Good evening." Morrissey replied, "what makes you think I want to keep your son in my school." E.A. was "shocked." D.A. responded that E.A., Jr. had a right to attend a school in Jersey City and that they had applied for, and received, approval to attend P.S. 38. At that point, Morrissey told them that E.A., Jr. was "causing a lot of trouble." E.A. indicated that he was not aware of such, although he knew of an incident in the gymnasium. Morrissey responded that E.A., Jr. was "failing everything." E.A. expressed concern, referencing a prior report card. When he saw the report card, he indicated that he did not believe the failing grades reflected E.A., Jr.'s work.

To E.A.'s perception, Morrissey's "attitude" was that she "wanted him out." E.A. was "baffled," especially because he had never met Morrissey. At some point, Morrissey told petitioners that "I don't have to keep him around here." As they spoke more, Morrissey became more "insistent" about appearing to want E.A., Jr. "out." E.A. also stated that when he requested assistance for E.A., Jr. in reading and mathematics, Morrissey responded that "you're not getting anything from me." Morrissey also indicated that "this is my school" and it was her "prerogative" not to have E.A., Jr. at the school. Towards the end of the meeting, when some type of consensus had been reached, Morrissey stated that if E.A., Jr. "doesn't do better, he is going to be out of here." E.A. also indicated that when D.A. returned with the folder, which she had obtained from Clarritt, D.A. told him, while they were still waiting for Morrissey, that Clarritt had told her that "they would get him."

On cross-examination, E.A. testified that Morrissey did not explicitly state that she was going to transfer E.A., Jr., but that she indicated, in discussing his grades, "what makes you think I have to keep him?"

On rebuttal, E.A. testified that he had called P.S. 38 and spoke with an office employee, indicating that he wanted to speak with Morrissey. He was told that he could do so at the end of the Open House. E.A. also testified that he had requested the meeting because E.A., Jr. had advised him of an incident in the gymnasium and because both E.A., Jr. and D.A. had told him that Morrissey had said she "wanted him gone." E.A. also testified on rebuttal that when he requested remedial assistance for E.A., Jr., Morrissey replied that he . . . "would get nothing from me," at which time the meeting ended.

D.A. testified that Morrissey was "antagonistic" to petitioners at the Open House. D.A. also testified that Morrissey told her to go upstairs to E.A., Jr.'s class to obtain his "folder." When D.A. indicated that she would obtain it later, Morrissey told her: "No, you won't be going up to meet teachers. Go up and get the folder." E.A., who "was not very docile," was "upset," but "respectable," and expressed "disagreement." D.A. left the room and obtained the report card from Clarritt, telling her that petitioners were meeting with Morrissey. D.A. testified that Clarritt said she was glad, "because they are going to try to get E.," and cautioned that petitioners should "watch out."

On cross-examination, D.A. testified that it was her understanding, at the time, that petitioners met with Morrissey because of an incident in the gymnasium. It was her recollection that Morrissey had requested the meeting. D.A. also testified that Morrissey did not state that she would transfer E.A., Jr. and that a transfer was not referenced.

On rebuttal, D.A. reiterated that Morrissey told her to obtain E.A., Jr.'s folder and report card from Clarritt, which she did.

Morrissey testified that she did not know, prior to meeting with petitioners, that they wanted to speak with her that evening. She stated that when she arrived at her office, petitioners were sitting in the outer office. She also stated that she met with petitioners as soon as she arrived. Morrissey also testified that she did not tell D.A. to obtain E.A., Jr.'s "folder," but that she did request she obtain his report card. Morrissey elaborated that a "cum" folder is maintained in the school's main office. She also testified that she "absolutely" did not tell petitioners that they would not be meeting with E.A., Jr.'s teachers.

On cross-examination, Morrissey testified that it was her understanding that petitioners wanted to meet with her to discuss a prior transfer. She also testified that it was not true that she wanted E.A., Jr. out of the school and that it was "absolutely false" that she indicated such at the Open House. She also refuted D.A.'s rebuttal testimony that Morrissey had stated, in reference to the incident in the gymnasium, that she was "tired of E.A." and "he's out of here."[1] Morrissey also testified on cross-examination that she was not concerned that E.A., Jr.'s grades would decrease the school's "academic profile." She stated that she had previously determined to transfer E.A., Jr. because of his academic performance, his report card, and his behavior in class, as well as the fact that progress reports had been sent home. Morrissey stated on cross-examination that she did not "dislike" E.A., Jr. and that she would have treated any other student in the same manner. She had never been involved in an involuntary transfer because of a forgery.

Morrissey testified on rebuttal that at the Open House, petitioners wanted assurances regarding how E.A., Jr. could improve academically and that she told them to speak with his teachers. She also testified that she "absolutely did not" tell them that they would "get nothing" from her.

On cross-examination, Clarritt testified that she did not agree that Morrissey wanted E.A., Jr. out of P.S. 38 because he was decreasing the school's average and that Morrissey had never said that to her. Clarritt testified that she did not recollect the date of the Open House meeting with petitioners, D.A. requesting documents pertinent to E.A., Jr., and any conversation with D.A. that evening. Clarritt also did not recollect that Morrissey had told her that the principal was going to meet with petitioners. She did not recollect if she sent E.A., Jr.'s report card downstairs. Nor did she recollect how petitioners obtained the report card that evening. However, Clarritt did remember that, at some point, she told D.A. to "watch" E.A. Jr.'s behavior because he "could be taken out of the school." Clarritt also testified that Morrissey had never told her that the principal was concerned regarding inspections at the school by State personnel.

[1] Testimony was heard out of order, at the parties' requests.

The witnesses also testified regarding an incident in the school gymnasium on or about November 21, 1997.

E.A., Jr. testified that the students were playing "kick ball" during physical education class. He was the "catcher." When he went to retrieve the ball, a female student, T, "hit him." E.A., Jr. just "looked at her," and T. stated that he had hit her. The physical education teacher, "Mr. Gross" (Gross), sent both students to Morrissey's office. E.A., Jr. stated that upon reviewing a report regarding the matter, Morrissey indicated she was going to suspend E.A., Jr. He indicated that he said nothing in response and that T. was sent back to class. When his mother came to pick him up, she saw him in the principal's office. D.A. spoke with Morrissey, requesting to see Gross, which she did. Gross indicated that T. had hit E.A., Jr., and Morrissey then stated that he would not be suspended.

E.A., Jr. reiterated on cross-examination that Gross sent him and T. to Morrissey's office. Morrissey read a report and said that E.A., Jr. was suspended, although she did not state the reasons. He asked her why he was suspended, and she "never gave him an answer." E.A., Jr. also testified on cross-examination that Morrissey told him to carry a box to a class, at which time T. had already left the office. E.A., Jr. followed Morrissey's directions and then returned to his homeroom, at which time his mother came to school. When T. returned to class, Gross asked her why E.A., Jr. was not with her. Gross then "wrote it up on a piece of paper."

On rebuttal, D.A. testified that she arrived at school early to pick up E.A., Jr. Morrissey, who was in the outer office, "flared up" at D.A., stating that she was " tired of E.A., Jr." and that they had to do something about him. An ex-student of D.A., "Christine", who was also present, told her what had happened. D.A. went to the gymnasium, accompanied by Christine. Gross told D.A. about the incident and referred her to the school office. When D.A. returned to the office, Christine obtained a copy of Gross' report for D.A., although the latter did not know how that was accomplished. Apparently, Gross told D.A. that T. had "hit E.A., Jr." and E.A., Jr. had done nothing.

On cross-examination, on rebuttal, D.A. testified that she did not know if Christine were employed by the District at the time in question. However, she believed that Christine would have told her if she were. To D.A.'s knowledge, Christine did not have children in the school. D.A. asked Christine to accompany her to the gymnasium because she was not sure of its location. D.A. also testified that she did not talk to Morrissey that day specifically regarding the incident.

Morrissey testified that she had never seen Gross's report, until the hearings in the current matter. She also stated that the report was not in a "discipline file" for E.A., Jr. and that Gross should have given it to her or her assistant. She testified that if there is a "confrontation," the teacher is to meet with the administration. Morrissey also stated that she "absolutely did not" gesture towards, nor speak with, D.A. on the day in question.

D.A. and E.A. impressed me as sincere witnesses. However, Clarritt and Stevenson were also credible witnesses. The burden of proof, as indicated herein-above, is on petitioners, by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Based upon a review of the entire record, I am persuaded that petitioners have not proven that E.A., Jr. did not, in fact, sign his father's name on the test in question.

Stevenson testified in detail regarding her conversation with E.A., Jr. regarding the test, both when she spoke to him alone and in Clarritt's presence. Clarritt, who corroborated Stevenson's testimony, was very specific regarding the statements that she made to E.A., Jr. The fact that there was no apparent reason for Stevenson to question who had printed E.A., Jr.'s name on the paper also lends credence to their testimony. E.A., Jr.'s testimony, in that respect, was ambiguous. In addition, as noted, he testified that he did not speak with Stevenson in anyone else's presence. Also, as the District argues, there is no apparent reason why Clarritt and Stevenson would lie regarding the statements made to them by E.A., Jr. As reflected in the findings of fact, they testified that although E.A., Jr. was somewhat disruptive in class, he was also polite to them, and they viewed some of his behaviors as that typical of a student his age. Clarritt, in addition, had previously warned E.A., Jr. regarding his behavior and the possible effects thereof. Both testified, as reflected in the findings of fact, that they had no involvement in the transfer of students and that Morrissey did not consult them before deciding to transfer E.A., Jr. In addition, a report which Stevenson subsequently wrote was consistent with her testimony.

However, as respondents argue, it is not necessary to reach a finding in that respect. As discussed in more detail hereinafter in the discussion, the standard of proof in a case such as this is whether the action in question was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. . Based upon a review of the record, I am persuaded that Morrissey, Clarritt, and Stevenson reasonably concluded, based upon the information available to them, that E.A., Jr. had admitted that he had signed his father's name on the test, and that he did so admit.

Except for arguably being relevant to credibility issues, the differences among the witnesses regarding the Open House and the incident in the gymnasium are not material to a determination of the issues presented in this case. I am also not persuaded that the fact Morrissey changed the dates on the pertinent transfer documents is determinative. Morrissey's testimony that she did so because of an inadvertent error was credible.

Based upon a review of the entire record, including credibility assessments of the witnesses, I FIND the following to be facts.

E.A. and D.A., a married couple, reside in Jersey City, with their children, E.A., Jr. and an older daughter, A.A. D.A. has been employed as a teacher by respondent for approximately 20 years. As of 1997, she taught Business Education at Snyder High School (Snyder).

E.A. is an ordained Baptist minister and has been a pastor in Newark, New Jersey, and employed in various positions as a "professional educator" for 27 years. (E.A.'s direct testimony.) He was previously an educational consultant to St. Peter's College, in Jersey City, and was respondent's Affirmative Action Officer. E.A. is currently employed full-time with the John F. Kennedy Recreation Center in Rahway, New Jersey.

E.A. has also been actively involved as a volunteer with various non-profit organizations, for some 22 years, on the local and national levels Since 1995, E.A. has been a "public critic" of the District, participating in "rallies" in "Trenton". He opposed the State takeover of the District. He organized, and has been an active member of, a group of clergy, the "Concerned Clergy for Education" (Concerned Clergy), which has been active in "looking on" the school system in Jersey City. The group addresses "concerns" raised by parents and "taxpayers" pertinent to the State takeover of the District. (D.A.'s direct testimony.)

Morrissey has been employed by the District for 34 years, in various positions at various schools. For the past eight years, she has been the Principal of P.S. 38. DiPatri is the State District Superintendent. The District's official job description for the title of elementary school principal is as stated in Exhibit P-12.

For some time, including from 1993 until 1997, the District has made available an "open enrollment" program which, subject to the availability of "slots", allows students to attend any of its public schools. The primary purpose of the program is to "improve the racial balance" within schools. Open enrollment is also permitted because of "space availability" reasons. (Exhs. R-1 & R-2 & Morrissey's direct testimony.) The District does not impose a stricter academic standard upon Open Enrollment students than those not enrolled in the program.

The District circulated a letter to parents regarding the program. The letter noted, in part, "THAT ONLY REQUESTS THAT WILL HELP CORRECT MINORITY ISOLATION WILL BE CONSIDERED." (Exh. R-2.) The letter also noted that transfer applications would be approved, contingent upon availability of space in the schools in question; that effective September 1997, expanded open enrollment would be available to students in grades 1 through 12, "WITHIN THE LIMITATIONS OF AVAILABLE SPACE AND FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF MINORITY ISOLATION"; that applications should be sent to the appropriate "Cluster Associate Superintendent"; and that:

> It is a requirement of the program that the children attend regularly, show good behavior and give concentrated attention to class work. (Ibid.)

The District refers applications to the schools involved, and the principals determines whether to accept, deny, or hold them pending availability. The principals notify the applicants and the pertinent associate superintendent of the decision.

E.A., Jr. attended St. Aloysius, a private school in Jersey City, through the second grade. Although he liked his teachers and peers, E.A., Jr. did not want to remain because he "did not like having to wear a uniform" and thought "he would feel better in a public school." (E.A., Jr.'s testimony on cross-examination.) A.A. also attended St. Aloysius and wanted to go to a public school. Petitioners consented. The fact that D.A. is employed as a teacher in the District also apparently was a factor.

E.A.'s designated local public school is P.S. 15. P.S. 15 and 38 are elementary schools. The closest elementary school to the A. residence is P.S. 41, which is located "around the corner." (E.A.'s testimony on cross-examination.) P.S. 15 is farther away; and P.S. 38, still farther. P.S. 38 is approximately two to three miles from the family's residence; P.S. 15 is approximately four blocks from P.S. 38. As of the fall of 1997, there were approximately 1,000 students at P.S. 38; and approximately 50 to 75 more students, at P.S. 15. All schools in the District follow the same curriculum.

P.S. 15 was not petitioners' choice of school for their children. E.A. believed that P.S. 15 was in the "heart of the drug den" in Jersey City. (Ibid.) In E.A.'s view, P.S. 15 was not in the family's "neighborhood" and was "certainly less desirable" than P.S. 38, although E.A. had "no disrespect" for the school, nor its administration. (E.A.'s testimony on recross examination.) Based upon his knowledge as an "activist" in Jersey City, E.A. believed that P.S. 15 was "clearly touted" as the "worst" school in the District and was located in one of the "most dangerous" areas in Jersey City. (E.A.'s direct testimony.) P.S. 38 was designated as a "special school", and petitioners thought that their children would do "fairly well" there. (D.A.'s direct testimony.)

In July or August 1993, petitioners filed applications pursuant to the Open Enrollment program, requesting that E.A., Jr. and A.A. be allowed to attend P.S. 38. Petitioners received a copy of the District's letter regarding the program at that time. D.A.'s understanding was that the applicable conditions were equivalent to those in the District's "code of conduct", that students in the open enrollment program would have to demonstrate "good behavior". (Ibid.) E.A.'s understanding was that attendance pursuant to the program would have to have a "positive impact" on integration in the District, that is, decrease "segregation." (E.A.'s redirect testimony.)

Morrissey reviewed the applications, determined that space was available in the pertinent grades, and approved the applications. The pertinent Assistant Superintendent also reviewed the applications.

Students at P.S. 38 were "predominantly African American", as are E.A., Jr. and A.A. If petitioners' applications had been considered "that way", they would not have been accepted. (Morrissey's direct testimony.) To Morrissey's understanding, the open enrollment program was implemented to achieve "racial balance in the schools", and the impetus was a prior court order. (Morrissey's testimony on recross-examination.)

An associate superintendent advised petitioners that the applications had been approved by notice dated August 31, 1993. E.A., Jr. and A.A. commenced attending P.S. 38 at the beginning of the 1993-1994 school year, in the third and sixth grades, respectively. A.A. ultimately graduated from the eighth grade from P.S. 38. There were no "problems" with A.A. (Ibid.) E.A., Jr. thought that P.S. 38 was a "good school". He believed he had "no trouble in school." (E.A. Jr.'s direct testimony.) He had friends at P.S. 38, who lived in the vicinity of the school. His friends from his neighborhood did not attend P.S. 38.

D.A. drove E.A., Jr. to school in the morning, and his father drove him home in the afternoon. Both parents were actively involved in their children's education. D.A. was a member of the Parent/Teachers Council. The parents attended parent/teacher conferences and communicated with their children's teachers on a regular basis.

The children were required to complete their homework at certain times, and homework was checked by petitioners. E.A. usually reviewed E.A., Jr.'s homework assignments. E.A. was not usually at home when the children returned after school, and reviewing the homework kept him "part of the loop" and provided an opportunity for him to help "remediate" any errors. (E.A.'s direct testimony.) E.A., Jr. usually left his completed homework assignments and tests in a certain area on E.A.'s desk. E.A. and E.A., Jr. had a "system" for communicating by facsimile transmissions when E.A. was at work, so that E.A. could review E.A., Jr.'s assignments. (D.A.'s direct testimony.) E.A. did not sign any tests, nor homework assignments, until he had reviewed them with E.A., Jr.

E.A., Jr. exhibited "academic problems" in reading when he entered P.S. 38. (Morrissey's direct testimony.)

He did not read at grade level during fifth grade, the 1995-96 school year. E.A., Jr. received an "F" in Reading, Writing, and Social Studies for the third marking period. (Exh. R-11.) The responses to checklists on his report card indicated that E.A., Jr. experienced difficulties in practicing self-control, writing, behaving properly outside school, writing legibly, following written and oral directions and completing class and homework assignments. Written comments for the first marking period indicated that E.A., Jr. had to practice "self-discipline" and that he should be encouraged to continue reading every night. Comments for the second period indicated that he had to "focus more on tasks"; and for the third marking period, that E.A., Jr. was experiencing "much difficulty with 5th grade work" and that he had not been completing all assignments. (Ibid.) D.A. signed the report cards for each of the three marking periods.[2]

[2] Personnel at P.S. 38 did not have a complete report card for the 1995-96 school year. All records in E.A., Jr.'s cumulative folder were sent to P.S. 15 in December 1997 and could not be found.

During the fifth grade, E.A., Jr. was placed in a "Basic Skills Program", a program for students with less than the "minimum level of proficiency on standardized tests." He was also referred to the school's "resource committee" (Committee), which was comprised of a guidance counselor, E.A., Jr.'s teacher, and an administrator. Review by the Committee is a "prelude" to a referral to the Child Study Team (CST) for an "evaluation." (Morrissey's direct testimony.) The purpose of a referral to the Committee is to provide assistance to pupils experiencing difficulties, including the development of strategies, techniques and recommendations. E.A., Jr.'s parents gave approval for the referral. The Committee received a copy of E.A., Jr.'s report card.

The Committee recommended that E.A., Jr. attend a reading program at Jersey City State College, which he did. He completed the program in May 1996. The program was not available in the fall of 1997.

The Committee also recommended that E.A., Jr. be referred for a CST evaluation. Although petitioners apparently initially consented, they subsequently objected, and E.A., Jr. was not evaluated by the CST. A handwritten note was sent to D.A., dated September 30, 1996, requesting that D.A. meet with CST members to sign regarding the testing of E.A., Jr. Another handwritten note, by E.A., indicated that he had "changed his mind" and that petitioners would "not give a signature for the test." (Exh. R-9.)

E.A. believed that classification reflected "racial profiling" of students and that the District utilized the evaluation process to deal with children who "didn't learn the way they thought they should." E.A. also believed that because the District had been taken over by the State, personnel were concerned with "pupil performance" and that the grades of classified children were not utilized when the State was "evaluating schools." (E.A.'s direct testimony.) D.A. believed that since the State takeover, the children were "not the concern of the State." To her knowledge, "special education" children were located in the basement at P.S. 38. (D.A.'s direct testimony.)

E.A., Jr. met the "standards" for promotion from fifth to sixth grade. In Morrissey's view, E.A., Jr. performed "satisfactorily" in sixth grade, the 1996-1997 school year. (Morrissey's testimony on cross-examination.) E.A., Jr. passed all his courses; seventy was a passing grade.

At the end of the school year, E.A., Jr. received a 'B' in Language Arts, Reading, Writing, Mathematics, Health, Consumer Sciences, Applied Technology, and Art; a 'C', in Listening/Speaking, Science, Social Studies, Behavior, and Work Habits; and an 'A', in Physical Education and Art. Written comments on his report card for the first marking period indicated that E.A., Jr. needed to work harder in all areas; for the second marking period, that he had shown some progress but needed to continue to work hard and "get his silliness in check", and for the third marking period, that his grades had fallen because of a lack of concentration and a concern with "socialization." (Exh. P-11.)

E.A., Jr. was promoted to seventh grade, the 1997-98 school year. As of June 1997, the District required that a student obtain "passing grades" in four "major subject areas" to be promoted. (Morrissey's testimony on cross-examination.)

Stevenson, a teacher in the District, has been assigned to P.S. 38 for the past 16 years. She was E.A., Jr.'s Mathematics teacher during seventh grade. Clarritt has been employed by respondent for 25 years, 12 at P.S. 38. E.A., Jr. was assigned to Clarritt's Science, Health, and homeroom classes in September 1997. Clarritt's function as a homeroom teacher was to "monitor" students' presence in the school. (Clarritt's testimony on cross-examination.) E.A., Jr. "liked" Clarritt; Stevenson was "alright." (E.A., Jr.'s direct testimony.)

E.A., Jr.'s other teachers during seventh grade were Cathy Peliti, Language Arts, and Norma Bresnick, Social Studies. There were four teachers assigned to a group, and all agreed regarding discipline matters. The teachers had a "common practice time", 45 minutes daily, and all their classes were "housed together." Teachers were able to speak with each other "at any time". (Clarritt's testimony on cross-examination.)

Stevenson found E.A., Jr. to be an "average" student with "some difficulties" in mathematics. However, E.A., Jr. engaged in "disruptive behavior", behavior "disturbing" to the other students, was "unprepared," and did not "focus" on his assignments. (Stevenson's direct testimony.) Such behaviors occurred on a "daily" basis. However, E.A., Jr. was "polite" to Stevenson, not "threatening." His behavior was "not so destructive" that Stevenson had to have him "removed from class." (Stevenson's testimony on cross-examination.) Stevenson never met E.A. but she did meet, and otherwise communicate with, D.A. More particularly, Stevenson met with D.A. because Stevenson had called her regarding "discipline" pertinent to E.A., Jr., as well as regarding academic matters. (Stevenson's direct testimony.) D.A. told Stevenson that she would work with him. Stevenson also apparently spoke with D.A. when D.A. returned progress regarding E.A., Jr. Overall, Stevenson viewed E.A., Jr. as an "average student", that is, he had "difficulty" with "certain concepts" and did "very well" with others. (Stevenson's testimony on cross-examination.)

Clarritt viewed E.A., Jr. as a "typical rambunctious seventh-grade boy". However, she had input into progress reports issued to him and spoke to D.A. on "various occasions." E.A., Jr. exhibited "unruly behaviors" in class. (Clarritt's direct testimony.) In the course of disciplining him, Clarritt warned E.A., Jr. several times that he could be transferred from P.S. 38 if he did not change his behavior. E.A., Jr. "laughed and played" constantly in class, but he was not "disrespectful." E.A., Jr. exhibited "respect" to Clarritt and was not involved in "altercations" with peers. Nor did he exhibit "problems" regarding property. Clarritt "knows" D.A. and had spoken with her regarding discipline issues pertinent to E.A., Jr. The situation developed "to the point" where Clarritt spoke to D.A. at the latter's vehicle at school regarding "discipline" matters. (Clarritt's testimony on cross-examination.)

E.A., Jr. did not meet with his guidance counselor during seventh grade, but he was aware there were reports that he was "talking too much in class." Clarritt, as well as other teachers, had told him so. E.A., Jr. understood that he should not do so, and he "tried to stop." (E.A., Jr.'s direct testimony.) He was never suspended, and did not have problems with his peers; he had many friends. Morrissey "informally" spoke with E.A., Jr. during seventh grade. She never met with him regarding his academic performance. E.A., Jr. had "perfect attendance" during seventh grade, a "good sign." (Morrissey's testimony on cross-examination.)

A progress report was issued to E.A., Jr. on approximately September 26, 1997, indicating that E.A., Jr. was not doing satisfactory work, more specifically, that he did not pay proper attention in class; he exhibited an indifferent attitude; he displayed a lack of cooperation; and he had to practice self-discipline. Comments indicated that E.A., Jr. "talked " . . . all the time! Must constantly be monitored." (Exh. R-5.) The report also contained a printed statement that:

> If the quality of work does not improve, it may mean a failure for the marking period/grade. (Ibid.)

The progress report was signed by D.A. Consistent with her practice, Morrissey initialed the progress report.

Another progress report was issued on approximately October 3, 1997. The report indicated that E.A., Jr. exhibited some lack of progress in English, behavior with peers, and class participation. Comments reflected that E.A., Jr. "talks and plays constantly." (Exh. R-4.) It was initialed by Morrissey and Catherine Ann Romano (Romano), the Assistant Principal at P.S. 38, and signed by D.A. All four of E.A., Jr.'s teachers initialed the progress reports. Morrissey spoke with them at the time.

E.A. subsequently spoke to Clarritt regarding the reports. She indicated that she would work with petitioners, and E.A. gave her his pager number. E.A. signed a document, on approximately September 28, 1997, indicating that he had read and reviewed the District's elementary promotional policy for the 1997-98 school year.

All staff members and the principal met monthly. A teacher might also speak with Morrissey subsequent to meeting with a parent. E.A., Jr. was referenced "several times" at meetings, including in approximately September and October 1997. In general, Morrissey "kept abreast" of the academic and behavioral performance of students. Clarritt understood that if E.A., Jr. did not "improve", he would be transferred. E.A., Jr. passed "seventh grade science, and Clarritt had no "jurisdiction" regarding his other classes. (Clarritt's testimony on cross-examination.)

On November 21, 1997, E.A., Jr. and a female peer, T., were involved in an incident in the school gymnasium during a physical education class. T. alleged that E.A., Jr. had hit her with the ball, and he denied doing so. The teacher, Gross, apparently wrote a student referral form regarding the matter. The content of that report is as stated in Exhibit P-9.

Later in the day, D.A. arrived at P.S. 38 to pick up E.A., Jr. early. When she entered the office, a former student of D.A., "Christine", who was present, advised D.A. of the incident. D.A., accompanied by Christine, then went to the gymnasium. Gross told D.A. what had happened, indicating that E.A. Jr. had not hit T., and referred D.A. to the office. D.A., again accompanied by Christine, returned to the office, and Christine obtained a copy of the student referral form for her.

To Morrissey's knowledge, the student referral form was not in any file pertinent to E.A., Jr. No personnel at P.S. 38, including Morrissey, ever took disciplinary action against E.A., Jr. relative to the incident.

For the first marking period in grade seven, E.A. Jr. received an "F" in Language Arts, Listening/Speaking, Writing, Mathematics, and Social Studies. He received a "C", in Reading, Science, Health, Music, and Art; and a "B", in Physical Education. Checklists on his report card indicated that E.A., Jr. participated in Applied Technology, Educational Technology, and Library Media skills and that he was exhibiting difficulties in practicing self-control and preparation, behavior, following written and oral directions, completing class and homework assignments, and putting forth a good effort daily. Written comments indicated that although he had perfect attendance, E.A., Jr. did ". . . not take his studies seriously. He is forgetful and does not follow directions." (Exh. R-11.) E.A., Jr. received an "F" regarding behavior from all four of his teachers, including Clarritt. (Clarritt's testimony on cross-examination.) The report card was signed by D.A. Morrissey had no input into the grades given to E.A., Jr.

Upon reviewing the report card, Morrissey was "very concerned." In her experience, it was "unusual" for a student to receive such grades. The first marking period of a school year is usually the "best period" because it constitutes a "review." She was "appalled" by E.A., Jr.'s report card. (Morrissey's direct testimony.) In Morrissey's experience, a student exhibiting problems in being prepared for class was not a "common occurrence." Only 52 "failures" regarding behavior had been given for the marking period. (Morrissey's testimony on cross-examination.)

As a result, on or about November 24, 1997, Morrissey issued a "transfer" back to P.S. 15. (Ibid.) Morrissey told her staff to give the transfer form to E.A., Jr. She notified John Pacifico, an Associate Superintendent, but not in writing. She did not speak with E.A., Jr.'s teachers to obtain their opinions prior to issuing the transfer.

Morrissey did not know why E.A., Jr. received a failing grade in Mathematics, although she was "very concerned" regarding the situation. In her view, it was the individual teacher's responsibility to make recommendations for improvement. (Ibid.) Morrissey's believed that Stevenson was available before and after school, and during lunch periods, to assist students. Stevenson told Morrissey that she offered assistance to E.A., Jr. but that he did not come for help. Morrissey was also aware that progress reports had been issued.

E.A., Jr. was assigned to a guidance counselor at the school. However, guidance counselors generally presented lessons to students regarding matters such as drug and alcohol usage and worked with eighth-grade students. They became involved with "problems" upon referrals by teachers and others. (Ibid.) Morrissey was not aware that E.A., Jr. had been referred to a guidance counselor, and she did not consider doing so.

D.A. was generally aware that E.A., Jr. was "talking in class", and she discussed his study habits with him. In D.A.'s experience, it was "not uncommon" for students in grades six and seven, "adolescents", to exhibit such behaviors. (D.A.'s direct testimony.) D.A. spoke with E.A., Jr.'s teachers on various occasions each year he was at P.S. 38. His behavior was "never a big problem", to her understanding, during the third, fourth and fifth grades. (D.A.'s testimony on cross-examination.)

An Open House was scheduled for, and conducted on, the evening of November 24, 1997 at P.S. 38. Open House was an opportunity for parents and teachers to discuss a student's progress, including any academic or behavioral difficulties. The practice was that homeroom teachers distributed report cards at Open House, obtaining them from Morrissey's office. Parents signed them and received copies. The teachers retained the originals. Generally, parents did not have opportunities to meet with teachers prior to an Open House.

Petitioners first attended a parent's meeting at the Open House and then went to Morrissey's office. Petitioners met with Morrissey in the main office for 20 to 25 minutes. During the course of the meeting, Morrissey requested that D.A. get E.A., Jr.'s report card. D.A. left the room, and obtained the report card from Clarritt and returned to Morrissey's office. Petitioners had not previously met Morrissey, although D.A. knew who she was.

Petitioners and Morrissey discussed E.A., Jr.'s report card, as well as strategies to assist him. To Morrissey's perception, the meeting was "tense", and petitioners were "very upset" regarding the prior transfer, although they did not tell her so. (Morrissey's testimony on cross-examination). To D.A.'s perception, Morrissey was "antagonistic" towards petitioners, which was "even" evident from her "tone of speech." (D.A.'s direct testimony.)

Petitioners asked how E.A., Jr. could improve academically, and Morrissey responded that they should contact his teachers. Petitioners agreed to monitor E.A., Jr.'s grades closely.

E.A. expressed concerns regarding E.A., Jr.'s grades on his report card, indicating that although he was aware E.A., Jr. needed to improve, he believed E.A., Jr.'s work at home was not reflected in the grades. E.A. queried how grades were determined. E.A. also indicated that petitioners had previously requested assistance for him with Mathematics and Reading.

Morrissey noted that petitioners had previously not agreed to a CST evaluation. E.A. emphasized that he did not want an evaluation, but instead wanted "testing" and "remediation." (E.A.'s direct testimony.) E.A. also indicated he would not agree to a transfer of E.A., Jr. to another school, but would work with the school and E.A., Jr. at home. He felt that he had received no assurance from Morrissey that assistance would be provided in Mathematics and Reading.

They did not discuss the incident which had occurred in the gymnasium, although E.A. had understood that Morrissey had "some desire" to have E.A., Jr. "out of the school." (E.A.'s testimony on cross-examination.)

Morrissey "voided" the prior transfer", allowing E.A., Jr. to remain at P.S. 38. She told petitioners that the transfer was rescinded. She also told petitioners that the second marking period would be "crucial", that she would determine if E.A., Jr. would remain at P.S. 38 based on that, and that he would be transferred if his grades and behavior did not improve. (Morrissey's direct testimony. See, also, E.A.'s testimony on cross-examination.) Morrissey did not indicate that she was about to transfer E.A., Jr. immediately.

At the end of the meeting, other parents were still waiting to speak with teachers. There was insufficient time for petitioners to do so. To E.A.'s knowledge, D.A. had spoken with some of E.A., Jr.'s teachers. They were not "prevented" from seeing teachers. (E.A.'s direct and redirect testimony.)

The next day, at Morrissey's direction, the school secretary "tore up" the transfer notice. (Morrissey's testimony on cross-examination.) Morrissey subsequently sent petitioners a letter, dated December 3, 1997, memorializing their meeting at the Open House. That letter read as follows:

> This letter is a follow-up to our conference on Open House evening during which we discussed E.'s lack of progress the first marking period. His grades - failures in Language Arts, Listening, Speaking, Writing, Mathematics, Social Studies and Behavior - including Habits/Attitudes and Work Habits - must improve significantly in order for him to remain at P.S. 38 and not be transferred to his district school.
>
> During this crucial second marking period, it is expected that you monitor his classwork, homework, test results, etc. Very closely and maintain close contact with his teachers.
>
> Your continued co-operation is appreciated. (Exh. R-12)

The letter reflected the "agreement" which had been reached at the Open House. (DA's testimony on cross-examination.)

In the interim, in November 1997, sometime before Thanksgiving, Stevenson gave a mathematics test to E.A., Jr.'s class. She returned the graded tests to the students the next day so that they could bring them home for their parents' reviews and signatures. E.A. Jr., received a grade of 55, and Stevenson wrote "Very Poor" on his test paper. (Exh. P-4).

Parents of all students at P.S. 38 were required to sign all of their children's tests, a method to keep parents informed. Another purpose was for classroom "management." (Stevenson's testimony on cross-examination.) Stevenson did not put signature lines on her tests. Although Stevenson generally requested that students return signed tests the next day, a certain percentage did not do so.

E.A., Jr. thereafter returned the test to Stevenson on approximately December 3, 1997. His name was printed on the bottom, and what, on its face, appeared to be the signature of "Rev. A.," at the top. (Ibid. and Exh. P.4.) E.A., Jr. had two periods of mathematics daily, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. He returned the test during his morning class.

Consistent with her practice, Stevenson noted the signature and printed name. The signature seemed to be "odd," and Stevenson observed that Rev. A.'s last name appeared to be misspelled. (Stevenson's direct testimony.) Stevenson spoke to E.A. Jr. in the hall, after class, requesting that he remain. Stevenson did not want to speak in front of the other students.

She asked him if his father had seen the test and signed it. E.A. Jr. responded in the affirmative. When she asked if E.A., Jr. had signed it, E.A., Jr. responded in the negative. She then asked: "Are you sure? Be honest with me. This doesn't have to go any further." However, she apparently also indicated that it was not "one hundred percent certain" that it would "go no further." (Stevenson's re-direct testimony.) When Stevenson again asked who had signed it, E.A., Jr. replied: "I." (Stevenson's direct testimony.)

Stevenson then spoke to Clarritt, whose classroom was across the hall, in the hallway. Stevenson brought the test to Clarritt for "verification" of the signature. (Clarritt's direct testimony.) Stevenson asked Clarritt to retrieve any documents which Clarritt possessed that had been signed by D.A. or E.A. After comparing the test with the other documents, Clarritt told Stevenson that it was not E.A.'s signature.. Clarritt also showed her documents to Stevenson. Based on her observations of them, Stevenson believed that the signature for Rev. A. was not that of E.A. It appeared to Stevenson that the signature was " a little bit of both lead and ink", as if the signature had been "written over." (Stevenson's testimony on cross-examination.) In addition,

E.A., Jr.'s name should have been at the top of the paper. E.A., Jr. was in the hall while she spoke to Clarritt.

Stevenson left, taking the test paper, and subsequently returned with E.A., Jr. Stevenson told E.A., Jr. to "tell her," and E.A., Jr. stated that he had signed his father's name on the test. (Ibid.). Clarritt then said to him: "E.-E.-E. How could you do that?" E.A., Jr. "shrugged his shoulders" and "looked down." (Clarritt's direct and cross-examination testimony.) Clarritt also told E.A., Jr. "You know you're in trouble." In Clarritt's view, a "forgery" constitutes a "misrepresentation" of a signature. (Clarritt's testimony on cross-examination.)

Classes were changing at the time, and Stevenson returned to her classroom. She did not contact E.A. regarding the matter. Stevenson referred the matter to "another level", i.e., to Morrissey, an avenue available to all teachers at the school. (Stevenson's testimony on cross-examination.) Later that day, Stevenson spoke to Morrissey regarding the matter. Morrissey compared the signature on the test with the documents she possessed and concluded that E.A. had not signed the test. Morrissey indicated that she would handle the matter. Stevenson wrote a report regarding the incident on approximately December 3, 1997.

One reason Stevenson reported the matter to Morrissey was that Stevenson was "disturbed" that E.A., Jr. had initially "lied" regarding the signature. In addition, Morrissey was Stevenson's "boss." (Morrissey's testimony on cross-examination.) Also, E.A., Jr.'s parents had to be informed, and "it's just something that I do." (Stevenson's re-direct testimony.) Stevenson did "not expect" that E.A., Jr. "would be put out of school" because of the incident. However, Stevenson made no recommendations to Morrissey regarding E.A., Jr.'s status. Morrissey did not ask Stevenson for her views regarding what action should be taken.

That day, Morrissey acted to transfer E.A., Jr., The second marking period had not yet ended. Morrissey told her secretary to "issue" the document and give it to E.A., Jr. (Morrissey's direct testimony.)

Morrissey decided to transfer E.A., Jr. because he had admitted to his teachers that he had "forged" his father's signature on the Mathematics test and because the incident occurred shortly after she had met with petitioners at the Open House. She did not believe it was necessary to speak with E.A., Jr. first because she recently met with petitioners and had "voided" the prior transfer. She concluded that that meeting had had "no impact" on E.A., Jr. (Ibid.)

Adele Linder (Linder), the school secretary, completed the transfer forms. Consistent with the general practice in the District, Linder wrote Clarritt's name, in an area designated for "Teacher", writing as if it were signed. None of E.A., Jr.'s teachers executed, nor signed, transfer forms. The purpose of the form was to "notify the new school" of the pupil's prior teacher, thereby facilitating the receipt of pertinent records by that school. However, Morrissey believed that P.S. 15 should have had records regarding E.A., Jr. because it was "his District school." (Ibid.) Morrissey did not tell Linder to provide any other information to E.A., Jr.

The practice in every school in the District is that principals do not fill out and sign a Notice of Transfer. That task is designated to a clerical employee. In addition, teachers do not approve transfers.

Morrissey believed that a seventh-grade student should be responsible enough to take "a piece of paper" home to his/her parents. (Morrissey's redirect testimony.) She had no prior knowledge that E.A., Jr. had never taken documents home. In general, all types of documents, including medical policies, are sent to parents via their children.

Prior to issuing the transfer forms, Morrissey unsuccessfully attempted to call D.A. at Snyder. She did not attempt to contact E.A. because she "always" called D.A.; it was much easier to reach D.A. She had contacted D.A. at Snyder a "couple of times" over the years. Romano did not have input into Morrissey's decision, and Morrissey did not discuss the matter with anyone in "central administration." Morrissey did not need approval to "rescind" an open enrollment. (Morrissey's testimony on cross-examination).

Later in the day, while in Clarritt's science class, E.A., Jr. was called to the office by Linder. The school secretary gave E.A., Jr. a "form letter" regarding the transfer, addressed to petitioners. It was in a sealed envelope, with a Notice of Transfer form. He was told to give the envelope to his parents. E.A., Jr. did not open it, and he did not question her regarding it. The letter and form contained incorrect dates. The letter was signed by Morrissey and Romano. Morrissey did not check a space regarding behavior problems on the form letter because she had spoken about such matters with petitioners the prior week.

When D.A. picked E.A., Jr. up at school that day, he was "upset. D.A. asked him what had happened, and he gave her the envelope. D.A. opened it and read the contents. E.A., Jr. told her that Linder had told him he was "out of here." D.A. was "upset" by what the secretary had said to E.A., Jr. as well as the content of the documents. D.A. went into the school, alone, "upset." (D.A.'s direct testimony.)

D.A. entered the outer office as Stevenson was "signing out." Morrissey was also present. (D.A.'s direct testimony on rebuttal.) Morrissey recognized D.A. and addressed her by name, indicating that they needed to talk regarding the transfer. Morrissey requested that Stevenson and D.A. come into her office. The three met there for approximately 20 minutes.

Morrissey told D.A. that she had "issued the transfer". D.A. was "upset" and "disagreed" with it. (Ibid.) Morrissey indicated that she was transferring E.A., Jr. because of the "forgery." (D.A.'s testimony on cross-examination.) D.A. had not previously seen the mathematics test in question. Although E.A., Jr. had told her he had taken the test, he did not tell her his grade. Stevenson indicated that she had asked E.A., Jr. if he had signed the test and he responded that he did. She then showed D.A. the test. D.A. believed, and stated, that it appeared to be E.A.'s signature. Morrissey showed her the Transfer Notice, and, at that time, corrected the date on it.

D.A. queried how Morrissey could allow a clerical employee to advise a student of a transfer and why she had not first contacted petitioners. Morrissey told D.A. that she had called Snyder and told a clerical employee what had transpired, but D.A. was not in the school building at the time. D.A. indicated that that was not an acceptable procedure and inquired if Morrissey had spoken to E.A. Morrissey responded that she had not. D.A. queried how personnel could "put an adolescent on the street." D.A. felt that Morrissey had "transferred" E.A., Jr. the prior month without first speaking to D.A. (D.A.'s direct testimony.)

To D.A., it seemed as if the transfer had "already been processed." D.A. felt that Morrissey had not adhered to the prior "agreement" petitioners had with her. (Ibid.) D.A. believed that the prior conference had addressed E.A., Jr.'s grades if he were to remain at P.S. 38. She also understood that E.A., Jr. would remain at the school at least through the second marking period.

The meeting ended with D.A. being "upset" and Morrissey indicating that E.A., Jr. was transferred. There was no discussion of a "hearing", nor "alternative action." (Ibid.) D.A. indicated that she would speak to E.A. regarding the matter. No one suggested that efforts be made, at that point, to contact E.A., and no one told her that Morrissey had attempted to do so. An employee at Snyder subsequently told D.A. that a clerical employee at P.S. 38 had called, between 2:00 and 2:30 p.m., indicating that E.A., Jr. was being transferred.

Upon returning to her vehicle, D.A. asked E.A., Jr. about the test. He told her he had shown it to E.A. and that his father had signed it. She told him not to worry, that they would call E.A.

E.A. had given school personnel his number at his place of employment, a "voice mail paging system", and his beeper number. Phil Flood (Flood) is the District's Affirmative Action officer. Flood was the "emergency contact" individual listed by petitioners on school forms regarding E.A., Jr. E.A. did not receive a call to his beeper from P.S. 38 on December 3, 1998. (E.A.'s direct testimony.)

E.A. received a "page" from D.A. at approximately 4:15 p.m. (Ibid.) D.A. advised him that Morrissey had "put E. out of school" for forging a signature. E.A. arrived home at approximately 4:45 p.m. D.A. told him what had happened. E.A., Jr. told his father that the school clerk had advised him that he was "out", but that he did not really know why. (E.A.'s testimony on cross examination.) D.A. indicated that she had been informed that E.A., Jr. had admitted forging his father's signature. E.A. asked E.A., Jr. why he had said that, and the latter stated that he had done so because he thought his teacher had asked if he had signed his own name to the test paper. E.A., Jr. showed his father the printed name on the test paper. E.A., noting that there had been a "misunderstanding", told his son not to worry. (E.A.'s direct testimony.) E.A. called P.S. 38 at approximately 5:00 p.m., but no one answered.

After experiencing a "horrible night", and in light of the conversation with Morrissey the prior week, E.A. decided to go to the District's administrative offices the next morning, rather than to E.A., Jr.'s school. (Ibid.) Upon his arrival, in response to a query from a security person, E.A. indicated that he wanted to speak with someone regarding a public elementary school. He was referred to Picifico, who apparently referred E.A. to Horace Smith (Smith), respondent's Director of Elementary Education, an individual whom E.A. has known for twenty years.

E.A. told Smith that E.A., Jr. had been summarily "dismissed" from P.S. 38 because of a "forgery claim." Smith responded that personnel should not "put a student out of school", that that was a matter between the parents and the child. (Ibid.)

E.A. told Smith that he was "very concerned" regarding the "atmosphere" at P.S. 38. Referencing the prior incident in the gymnasium, E.A. also expressed the view that

Morrissey had "jumped to a conclusion" regarding that matter and was now doing so regarding the test in question, without contacting petitioners. E.A. also indicated that he expected problems, "no matter how E.A., Jr. behaved." He also told Smith that he would not have E.A., Jr. attend P.S. 38 until "the matter was cleared up" and that he wanted to speak with Morrissey and a "higher-up." E.A. stated that to do otherwise would mean that he had "accepted the transfer," although he had "no disrespect" for P.S. 15. (E.A.'s testimony on cross-examination.) Smith's wife was the principal of that school.

In E.A.'s view, it would have been "less desirable" to send his son to P.S. 15, which was one of the largest elementary schools in the District, and which had "poor" academic performance. The latter was important because E.A., Jr. already had had "academic difficulties" and had not received the "attention he needed." (E.A.'s testimony on redirect examination.) E.A. believed that it would be "insulting to both of us" to send E.A., Jr. to P.S. 15; it would "justify throwing him out" for something he had not done. (E.A.'s direct testimony.)

Smith offered "to make a call." After discussing the matter further, and apparently at Smith's suggestion, E.A. decided to contact respondent's Legal Department and to obtain information regarding the District's "student code." An individual at the Board of Education apparently gave him a copy of the code. (Ibid.)

E.A. then went to the District's Legal Department, asking for, and speaking with, Charlotte Kittler (Kittler), an attorney employed by the Board. Kittler, who was "very gracious" and "very lawyer-like," advised E.A. that that she could not comment on the matter because she represented the District and because she did not know what had transpired. E.A. requested information regarding the Open Enrollment program and, at his request, Kitler subsequently arranged for such to be sent to him by facsimile transmission. E.A. expressed his intent to not have E.A., Jr. attend P.S. 15, and Kittler indicated that it was appropriate for E.A. to be in school. E.A., agreeing, requested information regarding home schooling, which Kitler provided.

At some point, E.A. told Smith's office not to send E.A., Jr. to P.S. 15. Smith subsequently spoke with Morrissey. He did not ask Morrissey to reconsider the matter, but inquired what had occurred. Morrissey explained the situation. Morrissey denied having decided to transfer E.A., Jr. when the incident in the gymnasium occurred.

Later that day, after receiving information regarding home schooling, E.A. called Smith, who indicated that he "had not solved the problem" and did not explain what had happened. Smith stated that he had spoken with Morrissey and that there was "no resolution." (Ibid.) E.A. advised that no one from the District had called to ask if he had signed the test in question. Smith asked if he had, and E.A. responded in the affirmative, indicating that he had never spoken with Morrissey regarding the matter.

Although E.A. anticipated that District personnel would subsequently contact him, no one did. He therefore communicated with DiPatri by letter dated December 15, 1997. The content of that letter is as stated in Exhibit R-3.

When he did not imminently receive a response, E.A. consulted a lawyer, authorizing counsel to make efforts to "get a hearing," which, in his view, had never been conducted by respondents. (E.A.'s direct testimony.) At some point, E.A. apparently received a reply from DiPatri.

Morrissey did not speak with petitioners subsequent to December 3, 1997. E.A. Jr. never returned to P.S. 38. He was educated at home until January 1998 by E.A., who took time from work to do so. In December 1999, petitioners enrolled E.A., Jr. in The Lutheran Parochial School, (Lutheran Parochial), a private school in Jersey City. E.A., Jr. commenced attending that school during the first week of January 1998. E.A. did not attempt to enroll his son in any public school in the District, although he had investigated other private schools in the area. Those schools were more expensive than Lutheran Parochial.

As of the time of hearings in the current matter, E.A., Jr. was "doing well" at Lutheran Parochial; his grade average was a "B." (E.A., Jr.'s direct testimony.) E.A., Jr. liked Lutheran Parochial "very much". It was "small", and one-to-one assistance was available when needed. He did not want to return to P.S. 38. To E.A., Jr.'s perception, P.S. 15 did not have "as good a reputation" as did P.S. 38, among the students; it did not have the same "student-teacher friendship." He did not discuss the mathematics test in question "too much" with his parents subsequent to December 3, 1997. (E. A., Jr.'s direct testimony.) Petitioners planned to subsequently enroll E.A., Jr. in St. Anthony's School, a private high school in Jersey City.

Petitioners' expenses at Lutheran Parochial totaled $5,055 for the period from December 1997 to the current time. They paid approximately $300 monthly, an estimated figure. At the time of the hearings, E.A., Jr. was scheduled to complete the eighth grade during the first week of June, 1999. Expenses had been paid through May, 1999.

In addition, the family expended funds for "uniforms" and "fund-raising." Lutheran Parochial has a "dress code." The family purchased E.A., Jr.'s "uniform" at a "uniform store" in Jersey City. The required shirt was a yellow one, "which could be purchased at various places." The required trousers were "blue pants", a "specific blue color." Boys also had to wear "plaid ties." Normally, E.A. would not have purchased that "type" of slacks for E.A., Jr. (E.A.'s direct testimony.)

To E.A.'s perception, subsequent to December 3, 1997, E.A., Jr. initially was "very quiet and reclusive" and "embarrassed" with his family and to see his friends at P.S. 38. E.A. suggested that his son go to P.S. 38 to say good-bye to his friends and give them his phone number. E.A., Jr. indicated that he would not do so. E.A., Jr. has since "rebounded," although, occasionally, when in proximity to P.S. 38, he "looks away." (E.A.'s direct testimony.) D.A. also observed that E.A., Jr. was "very quiet" for a while, although he "has come out of it now." He still has respect for "authority" and the "school system." He did not want to attend P.S. 15. D.A. believes that he was treated "unfairly." (D.A.'s direct testimony.)

Several of E.A., Jr.'s friends called him on approximately December 4, 1997, when he did not return to school. Some told him that they had "found out" from the "teacher" "what had happened." (E.A. Jr.'s testimony on cross-examination.) E.A., Jr. saw a friend on one occasion. The friend did not ask what had happened, but he "knew a little bit." E.A., Jr. was "embarrassed." (E.A., Jr.'s direct testimony.) He never read the Transfer Notice, nor the letter to his parents, until petitioners consulted counsel.

No personnel at P.S. 38 ever subsequently spoke to E.A., Jr. regarding the matter. E.A., Jr. felt that he was "not treated fairly", and the incident still "bothers him." (E.A., Jr.'s direct testimony.) E.A., Jr. was aware that he had had difficulties with Mathematics. He also believed that he could not "read as good as everybody else": However, he believed that he had "no problems" in school prior to third grade. (E.A., Jr.'s testimony on cross-examination.)

As Clarritt was leaving the building at the end of the day on approximately December 3, 1997, she learned from Linder that E.A., Jr. had been "transferred." She did not subsequently see E.A., Jr. Students in the class thereafter inquired about him, and she told them that he had been "transferred." (Clarritt's direct testimony.) She discussed nothing else with the students.

Clarritt was not asked to provide input regarding the "transfer." She was not sure what she would have indicated, if so requested, because she ". . . never gave it thought." Clarritt never had involvement with the "transfer of students in or out of the school." (Clarritt's testimony on cross-examination.) She had no administrative duties and was not involved in disciplinary matters regarding her homeroom students.

Morrissey had never told Clarritt that the principal wanted E.A., Jr. "out" of the school because he was "bringing down the overall average." In general, at various meetings, Morrissey told the teachers that there was "always room" for improvement and that it was up to the teachers to find ways to do so. Clarritt believed, in general, that "no one likes academic failures." However, in the course of previously disciplining E.A., Jr., Clarritt had told him that it was "an honor", a "privilege", to be at P.S. 38 and that "they will remove you" if you "upset the balance." Clarritt did so because she believed that he would "be removed" if his academic and behavioral performance did not improve. She had previously taught at another school prior to teaching at P.S. 38 and "had seen it happen before." She was aware that E.A., Jr. had "workbooks full of blank pages." However, Clarritt was never aware of any document relevant to E.A., Jr., nor his parents, indicating that E.A., Jr. was "in danger of a transfer." (Ibid.)

Clarritt never asked anyone why E.A., Jr. had been "transferred." She assumed that it was because of "discipline problems" and because he was "not academically sufficient." In her view, however, "forgery" was not part of "behavior." At some point, Clarritt observed to Morrissey, "in passing", that: "I see he's gone." Morrissey responded, "yes", and the two did not have a conversation regarding the matter. (Ibid.)

None of Stevenson's students in EA Jr.'s mathematics class subsequently inquired of her regarding E.A., Jr., and she never told any student that he had been "put out of the school." (Stevenson's direct testimony.)

To E.A.'s knowledge, State personnel have been "holding principals" in the District accountable for student performance, and principals are evaluated based on such performance. Some principals had "concerns" regarding the situation, and E.A. had been involved in the matter, via his participation in Concerned Clergy. Based upon newspaper articles he had read, E.A. believed that there was a "Squat Team" which evaluated principals and teachers and that the team's attitude was "do it our way or be in trouble." However, E.A. did not know what consequences there would be for Morrissey if a "high percentage" of students at P.S. 38 "failed," although he believed that another principal had been "run out of town." In E.A.'s view, P.S. 38 was located in an area of Jersey City in which "many students" were Caucasian, and a "large portion" of students were of Asian or oriental background. The students came from an "economic strata" that was "better" than in other areas of the city. E.A. believed that if Morrissey could not "exclude" E.A., Jr.'s "performance" from the overall "school grade", then she "wanted him out of there." (E.A.'s direct testimony.) Such concerns had been expressed to Concerned Clergy.

In fact, "comprehensive reviews", by the State of the District were conducted, and continue. Morrissey had heard the phrase "squat team." (Morrissey's direct testimony.)

Morrissey never prepared a report for the District regarding the matter because it "was not necessary." It was the District's policy that a school principal could "rescind" an Open Enrollment." She was not aware of any pertinent written guidelines. In her view, E.A., Jr. did not meet the "criteria" to remain in P.S. 38. (Morrissey's testimony on cross-examination.) At the time in question, Morrissey anticipated that petitioners would oppose the transfer, based on their discussions at the Open House. Morrissey never subsequently asked E.A., Jr. if he had signed the test in question

She based her decision on information received from E.A., Jr.'s teachers, who had compared signatures, her own review of documents, and her understanding that E.A., Jr. had admitted signing his father's name. Morrissey placed emphasis on the fact that she had met the prior week with petitioners, in a "very long meeting", regarding E.A., Jr.'s "lack of commitment" to his studies and behavioral "problems" and that she had rescinded the prior transfer. E.A., Jr.'s action in December 1997 indicated to her that the meeting had had "no impact" on him. (Morrissey's testimony on cross-examination.) In Morrissey's view, a "forgery" was "dishonest" and "unconscionable." Morrissey also considered the fact that E.A., Jr. was "disruptive in class", received an "F" in behavior on his report cards, and had "academic failures" and "behavioral problems" and that progress reports had been issued. However, the "forgery" was the final straw. (Ibid.)

To Morrissey's understanding, E.A. Jr. had improved during the second marking period, to the extent of his performance on one test in Social Studies. He had not improved in Mathematics. She did not consider any such improvement in making her decision. It was based on his behavior. In her view, forgery is not "minor", but a "very serious infraction"; "adults are prosecuted for it." Morrissey believes that "forgery" is "signing another person's name", a "misrepresentation." (Ibid.)

In Morrissey's view, as confirmed by the letter sent to petitioners subsequent to the Open House, E.A., Jr. had been given a "whole marking period" to improve his academic performance. However, soon thereafter, he "forged a signature." At that point, there was nothing he could do "to save himself. Morrissey did not consider E.A., Jr.'s attendance record. In her view, it was not relevant; E.A., Jr. could have perfect attendance "in any school." Ibid.

Morrissey did not consider referring E.A., Jr. to his guidance counselor. She did not believe it was necessary. She also did not believe that the counselor could provide "help" to E.A., Jr., i.e., "counseling" regarding "forgery." (Ibid.)

Morrissey had previously "transferred" Open Enrollment students for various reasons, including behavioral problems, disciplinary matters, attendance, and grades. She transferred approximately seven to eight students since the late 1960's. She never "involuntarily transferred" students not enrolled in the Open Enrollment program. (Ibid.)

Morrissey viewed her action as rescinding the Open Enrollment. She believed that a suspension was "more punitive" than a transfer. In addition, she was aware that E.A., Jr.'s local public school was "only a few blocks" from P.S. 38. (Morrissey's direct testimony.)

The content of the District's Student Code of Conduct (Code) is as stated in Exhibit P-1. The Code provides, in part, that students are responsible for adhering to all school rules, policies, and directions from teachers and other individuals in authority. The Code addresses, among other topics, attendance policies and "Progressive Disciplinary Action Steps." (Exh. P-1, p.8.)

The disciplinary policy states, in part, that "disruption of the school climate by a student" can result in disciplinary actions "at a higher level." (Ibid.) Corrective action is dependent upon the age and developmental level of the student, as well as the circumstances related to specific behavioral problems and actions.

Prior to implementing formal discipline, "proactive remedial actions" are to be employed, including, but are not limited to, consultation with teachers, guidance counselors, or CTS members; parent/guardian conferences; warnings; detention; referral to appropriate staff or administrators; student contracts; conflict resolution; peer mediation; and referrals to a school committee or a counselor. Such steps are to be generally handled by the teacher involved. Referral to a "higher level" should be done when such measures do not result in a favorable student response. The Code notes, in that respect, that continued inappropriate student behavior shall result in "disciplinary action." (Id. at 9.)

Disciplinary action, in turn, may result in an in-school suspension; suspension; expulsion; other disciplinary action; Saturday detention/suspension; or placement in an alternative school or setting.

The Code also sets forth the procedures applicable to disciplinary actions. Violations referred for disciplinary action should be accompanied by a written statement. Students will be assigned to before-or-after school supervised detention for infractions of school rules. Only principals have authority to suspend students. The parents of a suspended student are to be notified, and every attempt is to be made to contact a parent by phone at the time of the suspension. Written notification is to be sent on the day of the suspension, and a copy of such is to be maintained while the student is enrolled. A parent/guardian and student conference must be conducted with an administrator before a suspension is lifted.

"Chronic violators" may be referred to outside supportive agencies. (Id. at 9.) Students on out-of-school-suspensions are prohibited from entering any District property. Students on suspension cannot participate in school activities, including clubs, plays, concerts, and athletic events.

A principal may suspend an elementary school student for up to ten days. Students suspended for non-violent or non-criminal actions shall be suspended at the end of the school day. A student presenting a danger to persons or property may be immediately suspended and removed from the school, subsequent to an "informal hearing", i.e., a meeting with an administrator, a parent or guardian, and the student to inform the student of the charges and give him/her a chance to reply.

A student's "discipline file" shall be destroyed upon graduation. If a student leaves a school without graduating, "discipline records" will be maintained for one year and then destroyed. (Id. at 10.)

The Code defines "expulsion" as the "permanent denial" of a student's right to attend school. (Ibid.) Expulsion may be imposed only by the State District Superintendent. A student can appeal an expulsion decision to the Commissioner of the DOE (Commissioner) and the State Board of Education.

Referencing N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2, the Code articulates the type and conduct constituting good cause for suspension or expulsion. The Code also provides that any student who commits an assault, as defined pursuant to pertinent criminal statutes, upon a teacher, administrator, board member, or other employee of the District, acting in the performance of his/her duties, and in a situation where his/her authority to so act is apparent, shall be immediately suspended, consistent with "procedural due process pending expulsion proceedings before the local District." (Id. at 11.) Such proceedings are to occur no later than 21 calendar days subsequent to the day on which the student is suspended.

The Code provides, in addition, that the power to expel a student is given only to the State District Superintendent. Expulsion is to be considered only if the principal has exhausted all means of bringing about a correction of the misconduct and shall have brought the case before the State Assistant Superintendent for school operations and the parents/guardians have been interviewed and advised of the student's right to a full hearing, which will afford the student "procedural due process," and the right of parents/guardians to appeal to the Superintendent. (Id. at 11.)

A first-level appeal available to a parent/guardian is before an Associate Superintendent. Such "informal hearing" shall be held within five days of an initial suspension. (Id. at 11.) A second level of appeal is before the State Assistant for School Operations. The case will be presented to the State Assistant Superintendent with the Principal's and Associate Superintendent's recommendations. Such hearing is to be conducted no later than eleven days after a student suspension.

If the State Assistant Superintendent determines that the charges are true and may warrant expulsion, a "formal hearing" may be set at that time before the State District Superintendent. Such hearing must be conducted within 21 days after the State Assistant Superintendent's recommendation for expulsion. The District's legal counsel will arrange for "legal notice" to all parties concerned. (Id. at 12.) The student has the right to be represented by an attorney. To assure a student's "constitutional rights and the protection of due process," the student shall be given an opportunity for a hearing if the student or his/her parents or guardians desire to have one. (Ibid.) The hearing shall be conducted to permit the student to contest the facts which may lead to suspension by a principal, or continued suspension, or expulsion by the State District Superintendent.

A "formal due process hearing" shall include the student's right to notification of the charges; the names of adverse "witnesses"; copies of the statements and affidavits of such witnesses; and the opportunity to be heard, to cross-examine witnesses, and to be represented by counsel. (Ibid.) In all cases where expulsion is considered, a student must be given an alternative form of instruction, i.e., home instruction or alternative programs. The Code also sets forth guidelines pertinent to disciplinary actions relative to students with educational disabilities.

The number of days applicable to suspensions/expulsions for first, second and subsequent offenses for various infractions are also set forth. The causes of suspension/expulsion are noted in that respect with specificity. If any student is suspended for a violent act, possession of a weapon, vandalism, or substance abuse, documentation regarding such must be listed on the District's suspension form and submitted with an Incident Report Form.

In general, the Code provides that the District shall attempt to keep as many students as possible in school or regular classrooms. Whenever possible, for a first or second offense, excluding violent or criminal acts, mediation should be considered as a first alternative prior to an in-or out-of-school suspension.

The Code defines an "in-school suspension" as the temporary removal of a student from classes to address a problem through proper intervention so that the student can return to class the same day or the next day. (Id. at 18.) Students should be referred to support staff for appropriate interventions. Another option available is a Saturday suspension program.

The content of P.S. 38's Student/Parent Handbook (Handbook) for the 1996-97 school year is as stated in Exhibit P-7. The Handbook notes, in part, that report cards are distributed to parents, and student progress is discussed, at an Open Houses at the school. If a parent does not attend an Open House, an appointment should be arranged to meet with a student's teacher.

The Handbook also sets forth a Student code of conduct which lists the causes of suspensions/expulsions and the length of such regarding first, second, and subsequent violations. That code is the same as set forth in the Code.

The Handbook also sets forth policies regarding transfers. It notes, in part, that parents may request transfers for students when they move to another "school zone" in the City and for reasons pursuant to current District policies. (Exh. P-7, p.7.) A pupil leaving one school to enter another in the District must obtain a written transfer from the principal of the school he/she has left, or from the Superintendent, and shall be required to present the transfer to the principal of the school he/she is to enter.

DISCUSSION

Petitioners argue that E.A., Jr., was removed from P.S. 38 for disciplinary reasons, without being afforded the required due process, more specifically, without a fair hearing before an impartial forum. Petitioners also argue that the removal of E.A., Jr. from P.S. 38 was based solely upon a disciplinary reason and that respondent did not follow the Code regarding the matter. In addition, petitioners argue that neither the Code, nor the Handbook, provided notice to students, and parents, of the potential consequences of a student signing a parent's name to a test, and that E.A., Jr. had not been warned, counseled, or in any way advised regarding such consequences. Petitioners argue that the fact that the pertinent transfer documents had different initial dates results in an inference that the incident involving the mathematics test was a pretext for a predetermined decision by Morrissey to forcibly transfer E.A., Jr. because of her hostile attitude towards petitioners. Petitioners reference, in that respect, the Open House meeting and the fact that no one from the District spoke to E.A. prior to Morrissey's determination.

Respondents argue that the transfer of a student from one public school to another does not constitute disciplinary action and that in any event, E.A., Jr. was afforded due process. Respondents also argue that the Commissioner does not have the authority to grant the monetary relief requested and that petitioners did not prove that respondents discriminated against E.A., Jr.

The Commissioner generally has jurisdiction to hear and determine controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 (Supp. 1999.) Public schools are required to provide a free education to individuals between the ages of 5 and 25 years in certain circumstances, including to individuals who are domiciled within the school district. Id. at 38-1. No pupil in a public school in this State shall be discriminated against regarding admission to, or obtaining any advantages, privileges, or courses of study of a school, because of race, color, creed, sex, or national origin. N.J.S.A. 18A:36-20.

Petitioners analogize to expulsions and suspensions, pertinent to their due process arguments. I am not persuaded by this analysis

A seminal case regarding due process in student matters is Gross v. Lopes, 419 U.S. 565, 95 S. Ct., 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d. 725 (1975) (Gross). Gross involved an appeal by administrators of the Columbus, Ohio, public school system challenging the determination of a federal court that the appealees, high school students, were denied due process, contrary to the Fourteenth Amendment, because they were temporarily suspended without a hearing, neither prior to the suspensions nor within a reasonable time thereafter, and enjoining the administrators to remove all references to the suspensions from the students' records.

State law provided for a free education to all children between the ages of 6 and 26 and empowered principals to suspend a pupil for misconduct for up to ten days or to expel a student. In either case, the principal was required to notify the student's parents within 24 hours and to state the reasons for the action. The student, or his/her parents, could appeal to the local board of education and would then be permitted to be heard at a board meeting. The board could subsequently reinstate the student. No such procedure was provided for a suspended student. The school system had not issued written procedures applicable to suspensions, nor had any of the individual high schools involved in the case. Each high school had, formally or informally, however, described the conduct for which suspensions could be imposed. 42 L. Ed. 2d at 730-731.

Preliminarily, the Court rejected appellants' argument that the Due Process Clause does not protect against expulsions from a public school system because there is no constitutional right to an education at public expense. Id. at 733-735.

The Court also rejected the argument that even if there were a right to a public education protected by the Due Process Clause, generally, the Clause only applies when a state subjects a student to a 'severe detriment or grievous loss' and that a loss of ten days did not meet such criteria. The Court noted in that respect that when considering whether due process requirements apply, the "nature" of the interest, not the "weight", must be considered. Id. at 735. (citation omitted.)

Although the appealees in Gross were "excluded" from school temporarily, the length and consequent severity of a "deprivation", although relevant to determining the appropriate form of a hearing, 'is not decisive of the basic right' "to a hearing of some kind." "... as long as a property deprivation is not de minimus, its gravity is irrelevant ..." to the question of whether account must be taken of the Due Process Clause. Ibid. (citations omitted.) The Court determined that a ten-day suspension is not de minimus, although it noted that a "short suspension is, of course, a far milder deprivation than expulsion." Id. at 735,736. ". . . total exclusion from the educational process for more than a trivial period, and certainly if the suspension is for ten days, is a serious event in the life of the suspended child." Id. at 736.

The Court held that due process requirements require that, at a minimum, a student facing the possibility of a suspension, " . . . and the consequent interference with a protected property interest . . .", must be given some type of notice and some kind of a hearing. Id. at 737 (citation omitted.) More specifically, in cases involving a suspension of ten days or less, the student must be given oral or written notice of the charges and, if the student denies them, an explanation of the evidence the authorities have and an opportunity to present his/her "side of the story."

In addition, there needs to be no delay between the time the 'notice' is given and the time of the "hearing." The Court recognized, however, that in most cases, the disciplinarian may "informally discuss" the misconduct alleged with the student "minutes after it had occurred":

> We hold that, in being given an opportunity to explain his version of the facts at this discussion, the student first be told what he is accused of doing and what the basis of the accusation is . . . Id. at 739 (citation omitted.)

As a general rule, the notice and hearing should precede removal, although there are recurring situations in which such cannot be required. "Students whose presence poses a continuing danger to persons or property or an ongoing threat of disrupting the academic process may be immediately removed from school." However, the notice and "rudimentary hearing" should occur as soon as "practical." Ibid.

However, the Court made clear that the Due Process Clause does not require that hearings regarding a "short suspension" afford a student the opportunity to obtain counsel, confront and/or cross-examine witnesses, or call witnesses. The school administrator would have discretionary authority, subsequent to informally discussing the matter with the student, to allow more formal procedures. The Court recognized, in that respect, the practical difficulties that would be imposed upon school districts by such a requirement. Id. at 740.

Finally, the Court made clear that it considered in Gross only "short" suspensions, i.e., those not exceeding ten days, and that in "unusual" situations involving short suspensions, something more than the "rudimentary procedures" might be required. "Longer suspensions or expulsions for the remainder of the school term, or permanently, may require more formal procedures." Id. at 740.

As respondents argue, courts have subsequently held that where there is no exclusion from the educational process, there is no constitutionally protectable interest to which due process attaches.

In Nevares v. San Marcos Consol. Independent School, 111 F. 3d, (5th Cir. 1997) (Nevares), the court held that a high school student challenging a transfer to an alternative educational program did not assert deprivation of a federally protected property, nor liberty, interest. Nevares was detained for aggravated assault by local police. Upon receiving the police report, the assistant principal questioned Nevares. The student refused to make a statement other than to indicate that school authorities should contact his father and lawyer. His father subsequently called the principal, admitting that the act in question had occurred but asserting that his son's behavior had been in self-defense, and requesting a meeting before the school took action. The principal indicated that pursuant to school regulations, once there was reason to believe an aggravated assault had been committed, the student would be reassigned to an alternative educational program. When the principal confirmed with authorities that the assault charge was still pending, he decided to transfer Nevares to the alternative program, a program maintained for students whose violation of the school's code of conduct fell short of triggering suspensions or expulsions, but who, because of reasons of safety and order, had to be removed from the regular classroom. Nevares, at 26.

Referencing Gross, the court noted that Navares was " . . . not being denied access to public education, not even temporarily." He was only to be transferred from one school program to another program with stricter discipline. Ibid. The court also referenced prior decisions holding that there is no protected property interest in a denial by a school to offer a student a particular curriculum; there are no protected interests in the separate components of an educational process, such as participation in interscholastic athletics; and there is no constitutional right to the particular incidents of education, such as sports, advance placement classes, attending a particular school, or in a transfer to a different school for disciplinary reasons. Although recognizing the importance of trust between students and administrators and that, for that reason, a student and parent should be treated fairly and given an opportunity to explain why anticipated assignments may not be warranted, the court concluded; > but that is for Texas and the local schools to do. We would not aid matters by relegating the dispute to federal litigation and because the United States Constitution has not been offended in the present dispute, we retire from it. Id. at 27.

Similarly, a high school student removed from his science class because of disruptive behavior for the remaining five weeks of the school year, and who was taught during that time individually by a Dean of Science, did not assert a constitutionally protected property interest, nor liberty interest, because he "was not deprived of his right to a public education." Casey v. Newport School Committee, 13 F.Supp. 2d. 342,246 (D.R.I. 1998)(Casey). The court in Casey noted that the right to a public education " . . . does not include entitlement to particular aspects of the educational program", nor does it ' . . . necessarily encompass every facet of the educational program'. Ibid. (citations omitted.)

In Glidden v. County of Monroe, 950 F.Supp. 73 (W.D.N.Y. 1997) (Glidden), the court held that a high school student did not have a protectable property interest in participation in a school marching band, whether such was deemed to be a curricular or extra-curricular activity, although, under applicable state law, he had a legitimate claim of entitlement to a public education. The court interpreted Gross as follows:

> Therefore, under Gross, the property interest which is protected by the Due Process Clause is the right to participate in the entire educational process and not the right to participate in each individual component of that process. Accordingly, it is only when a student is excluded from the entire educational process that due process must be afforded. His exclusion from a particular course, event or activity is of no constitutional import. Glidden at 73.

Nor do the due process requirements of the Fourteenth Amendment apply to a one-year prohibition of a high school student from inter-scholastic athletic competition, pursuant to a local rule prohibiting such participation when a student transferred from one school district to another but did not reside in the transferee district with a parent or guardian. Dallam v. Cumberland Valley School District, 391 F.Supp. 358 (1975). In addition, a student does not have a constitutional right to such "incidents of education" as participation in sports, the taking of advance placement classes, and attending a particular school. Seamons v. Snow, 84 *F.*3d, 1226 (10th Cir. 1996). And college students at a state university who were placed on probation and denied certain school privileges did not assert grievances rising " . . . to the level of the deprivation of a right secured by the Constitution requiring judicial relief." Sill v. Pennsylvania State University, 462 *F.*2d, 463 (1972) (Sill).I

The transfer of a high school student for disciplinary reasons to another school within a school district, which school " . . . seemingly had less standing as an educational institution . . . ", a sanction "far less severe than expulsion . . .", also did not implicate the Due Process Clause. Zamor v. Pomeroy, 639 *F.*2d, 662,669-670 (1981) (Zamor). Citing Sill, the court also concluded that the parents' allegation that the transferee school were "so inferior" to constitute an expulsion from the educational system were not demonstrated in the record and that in the absence of a "clear showing" that the school assignment was "substantially prejudicial," the parents lacked standing to attack the actions on that ground. Id. at 670.

I am not persuaded by petitioners' reliance on Jordan v. School Dist. of City of Erie, Pa., 583 *F.*2d, (1978) (Jordan) and R.L. v. Kingsway Regional High School District Board of Education, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d EDU 296 (R.L.), in support of their argument that the decision to transfer E.A., Jr. violated accepted standards of progressive discipline, constituted deprivation of due process, and warrants reinstatement and an award of appropriate remedial steps.

The court in Jordan ordered modification of a previously entered consent order to require notice of a proposed action and the basis thereof, as well as an opportunity for a student to explain his/her version of the facts in an informational meeting with a principal prior to removal for disciplinary reasons of a non-disruptive student, or one who does not present a continuing danger to persons or property, to an alternative facility designed to meet the needs of disruptive students, a situation not specifically before the court. The court found that such would meet the requirements of Gross. Jordan, at 97.

R.L., a twelfth-grade student, was expelled from a local high school, after a hearing, based upon a determination that he had inappropriately touched and/or made vulgar sexual remarks and suggestions to a number of elementary school girls. R.L. at 297. The presiding Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) concluded that the preponderance of the credible evidence demonstrated that he had committed many of the acts alleged and that the charges were true. Id. at 299. The school's pertinent parent/student handbook provided for "progressive discipline," i.e., for first and subsequent offenses, suspensions were progressively higher. The handbook also prohibited a student from engaging in obscene or lewd physical acts and sexually assaultive behavior. However, the applicable punishments could be 'supplemented by more severe punishment where circumstances warrant.' Id. at 30.

The ALJ's ultimate conclusion was that petitioners had not demonstrated that the local board of education had acted in an arbitrary nor capricious manner. However, the board was willing to change the expulsion to a long-term suspension and continue homebound instruction until the end of the school year so that R.L. could graduate, although he could not participate in the graduation ceremony. With that modification, the ALJ affirmed the board's action. The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's decision. (Ibid.)

Jordan involved modification of a previously agreed upon consent order regarding removal of students, a situation not at issue in the current matter. Similarly, R.L. involved expulsion of a student and subsequent action by the local board of education to voluntarily change the expulsion to a long-term suspension, neither of which is applicable to EA, Jr.

New Jersey law is consistent with federal law. Pupils in public schools must comply with " . . . rules established in pursuance of law for the government of such schools, pursue the prescribed course of study and submit to the authority of the teachers and others in authority over them." N.J.S.A. 18A:37-1.

A pupil guilty of continued and willful disobedience; open defiance of the authority of a teacher or a person having authority over him/her; the habitual use of profanity or obscene language; or who cuts, defaces, or otherwise injures any school property; is liable for punishment and suspension or expulsion from school. Illustrative examples of such conduct are continued and willful disobedience; open defiance of authority; conduct of such character constituting a continuing danger to the physical well-being of other students; physical assault upon another student; taking, or attempting to take, personal property or money from another student, or from his/her presence, by force or fear; willfully causing. or attempting to cause, substantial damage to school property; participation in an unauthorized occupancy by any group of pupils of any school or other building owned by any school district and failure to leave promptly after having been directed to do so by the principal or another person in charge, incitement intended to and resulting in unauthorized occupation by any group of students or others of any part of a school or other facility owned by any school district; incitement intended to and resulting in truancy by other students; and knowing possession or knowing consumption, without legal authority, of alcoholic beverages or controlled dangerous substances on school premises or being under the influence of such while on school premises. Id. at § 2.

The teacher in a school having only one teacher or the principal in all other cases may suspend a student for good cause. Such suspension shall be reported "forthwith" to the superintendent of schools in the district, if there is one. The superintendent, or the teacher or principal, as appropriate, shall report the suspension to the board of education at its next regular meeting. The teacher, principal, or superintendent may reinstate the pupil prior to the second regular meeting of the board of education held after such suspension, unless the board reinstates the pupil at the first such regular meeting. Id. at § 4. No suspension shall be continued longer than the second regular meeting of the board of education after such suspension, unless such is continued by the board. The power to reinstate, continue any suspension reported to it, or expel a pupil shall be vested in each board of education. Id. at § 5.

Any pupil committing an assault, as defined pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1, upon certain specified individuals, not involving the use of a weapon or firearm, shall be immediately suspended from school consistent with procedural due process, pending suspension or expulsion proceedings before the local board of education. Such proceedings shall occur no later than 30 calendar days following the day on which the pupil is suspended. The board's decision shall be made within 5 days after the close of the hearing. An appeal to the Commissioner shall be made within 90 days of the Board's decision. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1a (Supp. 1999-2000). Whenever a teacher, administrator, board member, or other employee of a board of education, or a labor representative on behalf of an employee, alleges in writing that the board member or employee has been assaulted by a pupil, the principal must file a written report with the district superintendent. The superintendent, or if there is no superintendent in the district, the principal who received the allegation shall report the alleged assault to the board of education at its next regular meeting. Id. at § b.

Any pupil who commits an assault upon certain individuals, with a weapon, on any school property, on a school bus, or at school-sponsored function, shall be immediately removed from the school's regular education program, pending a hearing before the local board. Id. at § 2.2. A student removed from the regular education program pursuant to this provision shall be placed in an alternative education program. If such is not available, the pupil shall be provided home instruction or other suitable facilities and programs until a placement is available. However, nothing in the pertinent statutory provision shall be construed as prohibiting the expulsion of a pupil. Ibid.

Any pupil removed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2 shall be entitled to a hearing before the local board of education to determine if the pupil is guilty of committing such an assault. If it is found that the pupil is not guilty of the offense, he/she shall be immediately returned to the regular education program. Id. at § 2.4(a). The required hearing shall take place no longer than 30 days following the day the pupil is removed from the regular education program. Id. at § b. The board's decision shall be made within 5 days after the close of the hearing. Any appeal to the Commissioner shall be made within 90 days of the Board's decision. Id. at § c. The chief school administrator shall determine when the pupil is prepared to return to the regular education program, in accordance with procedures to be established by the Commissioner. Id. at § 2.5.

In addition, pursuant to the Zero Tolerance for Guns Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-7 et seq., any pupil who is convicted or adjudicated delinquent for possession of a firearm or a crime or armed with a firearm, or found knowingly in possession of a firearm on any school property, on a school bus, or at a school-sponsored function, shall be immediately removed from the school's regular education program, pending a hearing before the local board of education to remove the pupil from the regular education program for a period of not less than one calendar year, subject to modification on a case-by-case basis by the chief school administrator. Any pupil removed from the regular education program pursuant to this provision shall be placed in an alternative education program. If such is not available, the pupil shall be provided home instruction or other suitable facilities and programs until placement is available. Nothing in this provision is to be construed as prohibiting the expulsion of a student. Id. at § 8. Any pupil removed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-8 shall be entitled to a hearing before the local board of education to determine if the pupil was convicted or adjudicated delinquent of such offenses or was guilty of not only possessing a firearm in any school property, school bus, or at any school-sponsored function. If it is found that the pupil is not guilty, he/she shall be immediately returned to the regular education program. The required hearing shall occur no later than thirty days following the day the pupil is removed from the regular education program. Prior cite, Id at § 10b. The board's decision shall be made within five days after the close of the hearing. An appeal to the Commissioner shall be made within ninety days of the Board's decision. Id at § c. The chief school administrator shall determine whether the pupil is prepared to return to the regular education program or shall remain in an alternative education program, home instruction, or other suitable facilities and programs, in accordance with procedures to be established by the Commissioner. Id at § 11.

N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2, 37-4 and 37-5 require that the possible imposition of a ". . . serious sanction such as suspension or expulsion" mandates procedural due process pursuant to the Fourteenth Amendment. R.R. v. Bd. of Ed., Shore Reg. H.S., 109 N.J. Super., 337,346 (Ch. Div. 1970) (citations omitted.) (R.R.)

I am not persuaded by petitioners' reliance on R.R. and State v. Conk, 180 N.J. Super. 140 (App. Div. 1981) (Conk), for the proposition that a charge of forgery and removal of a student from his school of choice based upon such charge constitute disciplinary action concerning which the student and his parents have certain due process rights, including a fair hearing and progressive discipline.

R.R. involved a suspension because of alleged actions, which, parenthetically, occurred off school premises. R.R. at 339-340. Conk was an 18 year-old twelfth grade student enrolled in a special work study program, his classes concluding at 10:20 a.m., daily. Following a particular incident, the school's principal and vice-principal told him that, in the future, he would have to leave school at the conclusion of his last class. He was subsequently observed in school during the afternoon, having an odor of alcohol, and became involved in an altercation with another student. Communications with a teacher and the vice-principal ultimately resulted in local police being called to the school. Conk was arrested, and the vice-principal signed a criminal complaint. Conk subsequently appealed from a conviction of defiant trespass, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:18-3(b), for which he was fined $25.00 and assessed costs.

In rejecting Conk's argument that N.J.S.A. 18A:37-1 to 5 precluded the board of education from utilizing remedies available under the code of criminal justice, the court, citing Gross, noted that the " . . . focus of these sections of the school laws is to guarantee student discipline and the student's due process rights in proceedings taken by the school administration which could result in the imposition of the serious sanctions of suspension or expulsion." Id. at 144. (citation omitted). In rejecting other arguments not germane to the instant matter, the court also noted that the right to an education was not absolute but subject to a student's adherence to lawful conditions reflected in the referenced statutes. Id. at 145. The conviction was affirmed. Id. at 145-146.

New Jersey law, as discussed hereinabove, is consistent with federal law. The due process protections set forth in Gross are applicable to sanctions such as suspension or expulsion, R.R., supra. Conk, supra. The pertinent statutory provisions regarding the discipline of students, including those who present a danger to themselves and others, are also consistent with federal law.

Hearings to address claims of procedural deficiencies in violation of Gross are not de novo but are intended to review the action in question and the process provided, to determine whether a school district acted in an "arbitrary or capricious manner." The "heavy burden of persuasion" rests with petitioners. R.W. v. Hunterdon Central Regional High School District Board of Education, 93, N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 114,115. (R.W.) (citation omitted.)

The fact that EA, Jr. was transferred to his local public school, pursuant to the District's determination of school attendance zones lends additional support for the conclusion that he was not entitled to the due process requirement set forth in Gross.

The authority of local boards of education to design school attendance area boundaries is "well-established." Hoffman v. Board of Education of the Twp. of Cherry Hill, 1973 S.L.D. 406,408 (citations omitted.) A board's determination in that respect will be upheld if such were not arbitrary, capricious, or discriminatory. See, Hoffman, at 409. A local board of education has discretion to determine pupil attendance zones. In the absence of prejudice or discrimination, a board may transfer students from school to school. The Commissioner will not interfere with the determination of a local board regarding school attendance lines unless there is " . . . evidence of unjust discrimination." J.A.P. v. Morristown Board of Education, 1988, S.L.D. 2651,270 (citation omitted).

The Commissioner has held, for example, that the matter of class assignment, and, specifically, the session assignment of kindergarten pupils, constitutes a 'management prerogative' of local boards of education, which will not be assumed nor usurped by the Commissioner unless there is " . . . a definite showing that the action of a local board of education was arbitrary, in bad faith, without rational basis, or discriminatory." Paddock v. Demarest Bor. Bd. of Educ., 1974 S.L.D., 435, 440.

More on point, it has been held that the burden of proving unreasonableness, in an action challenging a change in the geographic designation for attendance in kindergarten classes was on petitioners, and that such was within the management prerogative of a local board of education, which would not be "usurped or assumed by the Commissioner of Education absent a definitive showing of bad faith or arbitrary actions taken in bad faith without a rational basis." G.M. v. Roselle Park Borough Board of Education, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 107,109.

Respondents argue that, even if certain procedural due process requirements were applicable, such were met. Respondents stress, in that respect, the fact that EA, Jr. admitted to both Stevenson and Clarritt that he had signed his father's name on the test and that, after being given opportunities to discuss the matter with them, Clarritt, Stevenson, and Morrissey reviewed other documents signed by EA, that Morrissey based her decision on information provided to her by Stevenson, as well as her review of the other documents, and that Morrissey subsequently spoke with D.A.

The requirements that a student who denies charges be given an explanation of the evidence forming the basis of the charges and an opportunity to present his/her side of the story apply only when the student denies the charges. Giangrasso v. Kittatinny Reg. High Sch. Bd. of Educ., 865 F.Supp. 1133 (D.N.J. 1994). Arguably, however, EA, Jr. should have had an opportunity to discuss the matter with Morrissey, the decision-maker.

However, it is not necessary to reach issues in that respect. For the reasons discussed hereinabove, I am persuaded that the requirements of Gross were not applicable and that petitioners have the burden of establishing, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that Morrissey's action was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. I am persuaded that petitioners have not met their burden and that based upon the information available to her at the time in question, and the other considerations important to her decision, Morrissey's decision to transfer EA, Jr. was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

EA, Jr. was not excluded from the public education system, a factor important to the Court's holding in Gross, and subsequent cases. Morrissey's action in the current matter is more analagous to a transfer which, as was held in Nevares, does not give rise to a federally protected property, nor liberty, interest. As respondents argue, the holdings in Glidden, Casey, Dallam, Seamon, and Sill also support a conclusion that EA, Jr. was not entitled to the hearing required by Gross. EA, Jr. was not excluded from the educational process, nor an incident thereof. The transfer of EA, Jr. is more analagous to the disciplinary transfer in Zamor.

I also am not persuaded by petitioners' argument that the manner in which EA, Jr. was transferred was inconsistent with pertinent provisions in the Handbook and Code. Those documents do not expressly address the Open Enrollment program, and on their face, are not applicable to it. However, the letter sent by the District to parents did articulate the reasons for termination of an Open Enrollment placement, including behavioral infractions. As respondents argue, the signing of a parent's name to a test, or any other document, when a parent was required to do so, by a student, clearly constitutes inappropriate behavior.

In that respect, I am not persuaded by petitioners' argument that the fact that "forgery" was not specifically set forth as a reason for termination warrants granting the requested relief. School boards are not required to establish an "exhaustive shopping list of infractions with specified disciplines" when developing a student handbook. It is sufficient to impose discipline if the conduct in question "clearly violated the letter and spirit of school rules." R.W. at 115 (citation omitted.) It is not unreasonable to expect that a seventh-grade student would be expected to anticipate that signing his/her parent's required signature is inappropriate behavior. In addition, petitioners were advised of the requirements of continued participation in the Open Enrollment Program at the time their applications were filed.

As reflected in the above findings of fact, Morrissey's testimony that, the principals of each school in the District had the authority to act upon applications pursuant to the Open Enrollment program, and to change the status of participation of students in that program, was credible. The official job description for the position of principal is not inconsistent with that testimony. For the reasons discussed hereinabove, I am persuaded that her action in the current matter was consistent with the applicable legal principles. In addition, petitioners presented no evidence that DePatri was involved in the decision to transfer EA, Jr. to any extent. To the contrary, the evidence offered by respondents supports the conclusion that he was not.

Petitioner's reliance on N.J.S.A. 18A:37-10 is also misplaced. As respondents argue, E.A., Jr. was not charged with a weapons offense, and he was not transferred to an alternative education program.

Petitioners did not demonstrate, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that Morrissey's actions, or those of any other employee of the District, resulted from prohibited discrimination. To the contrary, as reflected in the above findings of fact, Morrissey testified that she approved petitioners' 1993 applications because space was available at P.S. 38 and that race was immaterial, because the enrollment of E.A., Jr. and A.A. would not improve the racial balance of the school. In addition, although not determinative, as the District argues, the fact that A.A. attended the school for several years, and graduated from its eighth grade, without any problems, indicates that discrimination was not involved.

Petitioners impressed me as being extremely sincere regarding the reasons why they wanted their children to attend P.S. 38 and not P.S. 15. However, their desires in that respect do not change the fact that they voluntarily removed EA, Jr. from the public school system, or the fact that he was not excluded by respondents from participation in the District's educational system. Parenthetically, petitioners have not proven, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that their conclusions regarding P.S. 15, as reflected in the above findings of fact, were accurate.

I am persuaded that the petition should be dismissed and that the relief requested by petitioners should not be granted. It is unnecessary to reach respondents' argument that the Commissioner does not have the authority to grant the requested monetary relief. Notwithstanding, petitioners' arguments, and the concerns raised by petitioners, regarding the manner in which the transfer was handled have merit, from the perspectives of a student who had been at P.S. 38 for several years, and his parents. Although not constituting a due process violation, it would have been more appropriate, as well as sensitive, for Morrissey to have discussed the matter with EA, Jr., as well as his parents, prior to implementing the transfer, even if such resulted in several days' delay in reaching a decision.

CONCLUSIONS

I CONCLUDE that that the due process requirements of notice and hearing applicable to the exclusion of students from a public education system are not applicable in the current matter; that petitioners did not prove, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that respondents acted in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner regarding the transfer of EA, Jr.; that Morrissey's action in that respect was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable; that petitioners have not proven, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that respondents discriminated against EA, Jr., in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:36-20; and that petitioners are not entitled to the relief requested.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the District's reply thereto are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioners' arguments on exception challenge, inter alia, the "unilateral action of Principal Marie Morrissey" transferring E.A., Jr., from the James F. Murray School (P.S. 38) "without seeking the advice of the student's teachers, without providing assistance from a guidance counselor, [and] without notifying the Jersey City Board of Education ." Petitioners claim the principal's action "constitutes a gross violation of reasonable, discretionary and proper school administration." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 5) With respect to the relief sought, although petitioners indicate that E.A., Jr., has "graduated from the Jersey City Elementary School System," and, therefore, reinstatement to the James F. Murray School is not an appropriate relief, they ask the Commissioner to > enter a decision rescinding the unilateral action of the Principal  and declaring that the transfer of the student, E.A., Jr. was unjustified. Such remedial action by the Commissioner will cure, to some degree, > the adverse impact of the Principal's decision upon the academic record of the student and its harmful and damaging effect upon his self-esteem. Further, the parents should be compensated by the School District for the expense which they would not have incurred but for the arbitrary action of the Principal  in removing their child from his school of choice. This very modest expense of $5,055.00 was not disputed at the hearing.  Counsel fees incurred by the parents in seeking redress for the wrongful conduct of the Principal  should also be awarded . (Id. at p. 7)

In reply, the District underscores that, as principal of P.S. 38, Ms. Morrissey reviewed the applications for admission to the Open Enrollment program, determining whether to admit or deny a student, and, therefore, it "was consistent with the operation of the program and the job description for the position of principal for [Ms. Morrissey] to rescind the open enrollment approval." (District's Reply at p. 4) That this procedure was not reduced to a written policy does not necessarily, according to the District, render it arbitrary. (Id. at p. 5, citing Gebhart v. Hopewell Twp. Bd. of Educ., 1938 S.L.D. 570 (1927); aff'd 1938 S.L.D. 576 (1928).) Moreover, the District argues that there is no requirement for a principal to consult with any teacher regarding the transfer of a student, and the evidence in this matter shows that the teachers at P.S. 38 had never been involved in making such an administrative decision. (Id. at p. 6) Finally, the District notes that the ALJ expressly found that petitioners had not proven that E.A., Jr., did not forge his father's signature, and that the boy's admission to same "was a serious infraction which, coupled with his previous behavioral problems, not only represented a violation of the requirement of the Open Enrollment program for good behavior, but also indicated to the Principal that E.A., Jr., lacked commitment to improve at P.S. 38." (Id. at p. 8) Consequently, the District urges the Commissioner to affirm the Initial Decision of the ALJ.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioners have failed to demonstrate that the action taken herein to rescind E.A., Jr.'s open enrollment approval, under these circumstances, contravened school law, violated E.A. Jr.'s due process rights, was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or otherwise induced by improper motive. To the extent petitioners challenge the facts determined by the ALJ based on the testimony of the witnesses and the credence ascribed to such testimony, the Commissioner notes that the record before him does not include transcripts of the hearing conducted at the OAL in this matter. Challenges to the factual findings predicated upon credibility determinations made by an administrative law judge require the party to supply the agency head with the relevant and necessary portion of the transcript. See In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158 (App. Div. 1987). In the absence of transcripts from the hearing, due regard should be given to the person who heard the live testimony and assessed the witnesses' behavior at the hearing. Close v. Kordulak Bros., 44 N.J. 589, 599 (1965).[1]

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein.[2] The Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY,	:
HUDSON COUNTY.	:

For the District, Ken Iwama, Esq., Associate General Counsel

For the Respondent, Sanford R. Oxfeld, Esq., (Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen)

This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education on December 1, 1999, through certification of tenure charges of excessive absenteeism and unbecoming conduct against a tenured crisis intervention teacher by the State-operated School District of the City of Jersey City; and

The Commissioner having directed respondent and his attorney, via both certified and regular mail by letter dated December 2, 1999 to file an Answer to the tenure charges against him[1]; and

Such communication clearly having provided respondent and his attorney notice that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16[2], an individual against whom tenure charges are certified shall have 15 days from the date the charges were certified to the Commissioner to submit a written response to the charges, and that failure to answer within the prescribed period will, absent granting of an extension for good cause shown, result in the charges being deemed admitted and the Commissioner deciding the matter on a summary basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e); and

The Commissioner having received on December 20, 1999, a request from respondent's counsel for an additional 14 days to file an Answer on respondent's behalf, and having noted that, even assuming arguendo that the request was timely filed, counsel failed to identify "good cause" for such an extension, as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16[3], and, indeed, failed to articulate any reason for the request; and

The Commissioner having determined that respondent failed to submit a timely Answer, he finds that both counts of the charges are deemed admitted, thus rendering this matter appropriate for summary decision; and

The Commissioner having reviewed the tenure charges certified against respondent by the District and the statement of evidence in support of those charges indicating that respondent has been absent a total of 311 days from the start of the 1993-94 school year through the end of the 1998-99 school year[4]; that respondent has been repeatedly informed of the District's attendance requirements and advised that his attendance was unsatisfactory and needed improvement; that despite respondent's salary increments being withheld for the 1997-1998 and 1999-2000 school years, there has been no improvement in his attendance; that, as of September 7, 1999, respondent has failed to report to work for the 1999-2000 school year; and

[3] The statute provides, in pertinent part, that "[t]he individual against whom the charges are certified shall have 15 days to submit a written response to the charges to the commissioner. Upon a showing of good cause, the commissioner may grant an extension of time." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16.

[4] By way of example, the District avers that respondent was absent for an approximate total of 23 days and tardy for three days in the 1993-94 school year; respondent was absent for an approximate total of 25 days in the 1994-95 school year; respondent was absent for an approximate total of 25 days and tardy for eight days in the 1995-96 school year; respondent was absent for an approximate total of 64 days and tardy for eight days in the 1996-97 school year; respondent was absent for an approximate 28 days and tardy for six days in the 1997-98 school year; and respondent was absent for an approximate 122 days in the 1998-99 school year. (Statement of Charges at pp. 1-2) that, consequently, his chronic and excessive absences have had a significant adverse effect on the students of the District; and

The Commissioner further noting that the District avers respondent is guilty of unbecoming conduct, inasmuch as he has been absent without leave since March 1999[5], and, therefore, the District avers that respondent has breached his responsibilities as a teacher; and

Deeming such charges to be admitted, and noting that respondent has chosen not to deny the specific allegations contained therein, the Commissioner finds that respondent's actions constitute excessive absenteeism and conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member, sufficient to warrant his dismissal from his tenured position; now, therefore

IT IS SO ORDERED this _____ day of _____ that summary judgment shall be granted to the District, and James Johnson shall be dismissed from his tenured position as a crisis intervention teacher in the District's employ as of the date of this order. This matter shall be referred to the State Board of Examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 for action against respondent's certificate as it deems appropriate.[6]

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent sought to have her son, S.H., attend school in the East Brunswick schools with tuition paid by respondent Spotswood school district. Petitioner alleged there was abuse and discrimination against her child by Spotswood staff and students. Respondent asserted that S.H. was a resident of Helmetta and that the Helmetta school district was in a sending-receiving relationship with respondent; consequently if petitioner prevailed in her argument to have her son attend school elsewhere, Helmetta would have to pay the tuition. Therefore, Helmetta was an indispensable party in this action.

ALJ dismissed petition. Since petitioner was unsuccessful in finding any school willing to take her son and he was presently attending school in Spotswood, petitioner did not oppose the Motion to Amend and to Dismiss Petitioner's Action Based Upon Failure to Name an Indispensable Party.

BEFORE AUGUST E. THOMAS, ALJ T/A:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On August 18, 1999, petitioner filed a petition and request for emergent relief asking the State Department of Education to send her son to the East Brunswick schools with tuition paid by the school district of Spotswood. This request was made because of alleged abuse and discrimination against her child by bus drivers, teachers, the principal of the school and other students. At that time, the East Brunswick Board of Education also was a party respondent. By Order dated September 10, 1999, petitioner's request for emergent relief was denied and the administrative law judge (ALJ) dismissed the action against the East Brunswick Board of Education.

After a prehearing conference, this matter was scheduled for a hearing. During discovery, respondent filed a Motion to Amend Answer and to Dismiss Petitioner's Action Based Upon Failure to Name an Indispensable Party. Respondent asserts that S.H. is a resident of Helmetta and that the Helmetta School District is in a sending-receiving relationship with Spotswood; consequently, if petitioner prevails in her argument to have her son attend a school district other than Spotswood, Helmetta would have to pay S.H.'s tuition expenses. Therefore, Helmetta is an indispensable party in this action.

In a three-way telephone conference with counsel on October 26, 1999, beginning at 9:30 a.m., counsel for petitioner stated that his client was unsuccessful in finding any school willing to take her son and that her son was presently attending school in Spotswood. Petitioner offered nothing further and did not oppose the Motion to Amend Answer and to Dismiss Petitioner's Action Based Upon Failure to Name an Indispensable Party.

Based on the above, respondent's motion is granted and the petition is DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

On June 15, 1998, the petitioner, Maureen S. Murray, filed a Verified Petition with the Commissioner of Education concerning a dispute with the respondent pertaining to the deduction of sick leave time. On July 23, 1998, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

Counsel agreed to place the matter on the Inactive List, pending completion of a Worker's Compensation proceeding, because the only issue in dispute was the length of petitioner's temporary period of disability following a work related accident.

The four month Order of Inactivity expired in September 1999, and on October 26, 1999 the parties filed a Stipulation of Settlement. This followed a determination of temporary disability by the Division of Worker's Compensation. A copy of the Stipulation of Settlement is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

Having reviewed and considered the issues involved in this dispute, it is CONCLUDED that the parties have voluntarily and knowingly agreed to the settlement, as evidenced by the attached document. It is further CONCLUDED that the settlement is fair and fully dispositive of all issues in controversy.

It is therefore ORDERED that the settlement be approved and that this matter be dismissed.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent alleged her son's placement in a science course was not based on his academic needs, but on the Board's transportation needs. The Board contended that petitioner failed to state a cause of action upon which relief could be granted, that the petition was untimely filed, that petitioner failed to exhaust administrative remedies, and that the subject matter was moot.

The ALJ found that the Board did not act improperly. It tried to accommodate petitioner and it did devise a program for D.P., which did not satisfy petitioner. The ALJ granted respondent's motion for summary decision.

The Commissioner found that although he concurred with the ALJ that respondent was entitled to summary decision in its favor, the Board properly noted that this matter was moot. Petition was dismissed.

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF OAKLYN, CAMDEN COUNTY,

Andrea Wicker., petitioner, pro se

William D. Hogan, Esq., for respondent (Davis, Reberkenny & Abramowitz, attorneys)

Record Closed: August 16, 1999 Decided: November 9, 1999

BEFORE KATHRYN A. CLARK, ALJ:

Petitioner alleged that her son's placement in a science course was not based on his academic needs but because the Board of Education (respondent) does not provide transportation to Collingswood High School.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petition in this matter was filed on December 24, 1998. This matter was assigned to this Administrative law Judge on February 4, 1999, with hearing dates set for August 6 and 24, 1999. A status conference was set for August 4, 1999. The hearing dates were postponed because of the filing of a motion for summary decision by respondent. Petitioner was given until August 13, 1999 to respond to the motion.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner's son, D.P., who attended 9th grade at Oaklyn Junior High School, was placed in Honors General Science at Oaklyn Junior High School, instead of Chemistry II at Collingswood High School, for the 1998-1999 school year. Petitioner alleged that he was not being academically challenged enough by this program.

Respondent answered that petitioner failed to state a cause of action upon which relief could be granted, that the petition was untimely filed under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), that petitioner failed to exhaust administrative remedies, and that the subject matter was moot.

D.P. has done well in school, and has been permitted to take some courses at the next higher grade level, especially in math and science. In 9th grade, he was placed in Honors Science, since he had already completed the 9th grade courses in math and science while in 8th grade.

Oaklyn School District has a "sending-receiving" relationship with Collingswood High School for the education of their 10th, 11th, and 12th grade classes. There is no current agreement involving 9th grade students. For D.P. to attend a 10th grade class in science (Chemistry) at Collingswood while still an 9th grade student at Oaklyn, the prior approvals of the Collingswood and Oaklyn Superintendents and of the Collingswood and Oaklyn Boards of Education would have to be obtained.

The Oaklyn Superintendent had considered making the arrangements to obtain these approvals before the start of D.P.'s 9th grade. But in January, 1998, D.P.'s mother (petitioner) informed D.P.'s teachers and the principal of Oaklyn Junior High School that the family would be moving out of Oaklyn.

When the Oaklyn Superintendent heard that the family would be moving out of Oaklyn, he did not pursue the arrangements necessary to obtain approval. In May, 1998, the Oaklyn Principal again contacted petitioner to make sure that D.P. would not be attending 9th grade through the Oaklyn School District. He was assured that the family was moving and that D.P. would be going to school through his new school district.

However, D.P.'s family did not move out of the Oaklyn School District. Approximately 10 days before the start of the September, 1998 school term, petitioner called the Oaklyn Superintendent to advise him that D.P. would indeed be attending 9th grade through Oaklyn School District.

In attempting to arrange a program for D.P., the Oaklyn Superintendent found out that the only opening in science at Collingswood was in Chemistry II, an 11th grade class offered at 3rd period. The Superintendent concluded that the class level was inappropriate, and that transporting D.P. to Collingswood High School for a 3rd period class alone was impracticable, even if the Collingswood Superintendent and the Collingswood and Oaklyn Boards of Education agreed to D.P.'s taking a class at Collingswood High School.

The Oaklyn Administration developed a program for D.P. that offered Algebra II (taught on a 1-1 ratio) and Honors General Science.

Petitioner appealed. The Oaklyn Board of Education denied her appeal on October 20, 1999. petitioner appealed to the department of Education on November 23, 1999. She did not request emergent relief.

On June 16, 1999, D.P. graduated from Oaklyn Junior High School, and entered grade 10 at Collingswood High School in September, 1999.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The relevant standard of review on a motion for summary decision is as follows:

The decision sought may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 (b).

When a motion for summary decision is filed the "adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 (b). If the adverse party fails to meet this burden, "a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered." Ibid.

Summary decision is granted if, after considering the evidence presented in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, there exists no genuine issue of material fact. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995). The essential question is "whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require [a hearing] or whether it is so one sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law" Id. at 533. The Court recognized that this necessarily involves the judge in the process of weighing the evidence presented. Id. When determining whether a genuine issue of material fact exists, "the court should be guided by the same evidentiary standard of proof . . . that would apply" at a hearing. Id. This weighing differs from the weighing the judge would perform after a hearing in that "on a motion for summary [decision] the court must grant all the favorable inferences to the non-movant." Id. at 536.

"When a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). "If an adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered." Id.

DISCUSSION

In this matter, petitioner was allowed to file her response out-of-time, and when she did file a response, it was not in the form of an affidavit. Even giving allowance for this since petitioner is "pro se," i.e., representing herself (as allowance has been given for all timeliness and mootness issues), petitioner's response does not state a "genuine issue as to any material fact."

She is unhappy that her son was not adequately challenged in his 9th grade science class, but I can find no legal entitlement for D.P., a 9th grade student at Oaklyn who is not classified, to attend an 11th grade class in another school, or to be transported there.

Further, I can find nothing improper in the actions of the Oaklyn administration. They double-checked on the report that D.P. would not be attending 9th grade at Oaklyn. When they were advised otherwise, they did attempt to accommodate petitioner, but found out that this was impracticable. They did devise a program for D.P. There are no federal or state requirements for programming for students who are arguably "gifted and talented."

ORDER

The respondent's motion for summary decision is hereby GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner finds that although he concurs with the ALJ that respondent is entitled to summary decision in its favor,[1] the Board has properly noted that this matter is moot. Petitioner does not dispute that her son, D.P., graduated from the Board's District on June 16, 1999. As such, the Board duly recognizes that "there is no further education that the Oaklyn School District can furnish to him through its own staff and its own facilities," notwithstanding that it retains jurisdiction, under the existing sending-receiving relationship, for high school students living in its District to attend the Collingswood High School, and pays the tuition therefor. (Board's Brief in Support of Respondent's Motion for Summary Decision at pp. 11-12) Moreover, the record indicates that petitioner informed the Board's administration that she was

The petitioner was expelled from the Oakcrest High School and requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to the Administrative Procedures Act N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, and the act creating the OAL N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On September 10, 1999, an Order for Emergent Relief was issued in which the Board of Education of Greater Egg Harbor Regional School District (Board) was to provide the petitioner with tuition and transportation to the Alternative School at Atlantic County Community College. This was not satisfactory to the parents who place the child, I.B., in a neighboring school district's high school. On October 5, 1999, the Commissioner of Education approved the Emergent Order and ordered a plenary hearing. The plenary hearing was scheduled for November 15, 1999.

The petitioner's parents called the OAL and indicated they would not appear on November 15, 1999 and said they would confirm in writing. They did not confirm in writing. They failed to appear on November 15, 1999. The Board was present and prepared to go forward.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner's parents abandoned their request to reinstate petitioner in the Oakcrest High School. Accordingly, I DISMISS the petition filed herein.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Petitioners,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF MORRIS HILLS REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT,
Respondent.

This matter having come before the Office of Administrative Law on November 22, 1999 on petitioners' application for emergency relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5; and petitioners appearing pro se; and Peter A. Marra, Esq. of the firm of Schenck, Price, Smith & King, L.L.P., appearing for respondent; and the administrative law judge having reviewed the pleadings, petitioners' moving papers and respondent's opposing papers; and petitioners having made a preliminary showing that: (1) emergency relief is necessary to prevent irreparable injury; (2) that petitioners have a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merit; and (3) that the relative hardship to petitioners is greater than the relative hardship to respondent; and good cause having been shown,

It is on this 23rd day of November 1999,

ORDERED that the stay of imposition of the disputed suspensions granted by the Commissioner of Education on October 22, 1999 is hereby continued pending the outcome of this matter on the merits.

Record Closed: November 15, 1999 Decided: November 17, 1999

BEFORE: ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On April 14, 1999, petitioners, Chester Parlavecchio and the Passaic Valley Education Association, filed a verified petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that respondents had abused their authority and attempted to violate their rights. Petitioners requested that the Commissioner of Education issue an order directing respondents to cease and desist from searches of school property. On May 5, 1999, respondents filed an answer to the petition, alleging that petitioners failed to state a claim and seeking dismissal of the petition. On July 8, 1999, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on July 19, 1999, and a telephone prehearing conference scheduled for September 14, 1999. As a result of settlement conferences held between the parties, a settlement was reached and the prehearing conference was not held.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached Settlement Agreement indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. 12/99 New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association and the HAZ Somerville Board of Education, Somerset County, Respondent.
December 3, 1999 (#394-99)

Hazlet's Raritan High School played against the Somerville Board's team in a semifinal game. Hazlet avers that the NJSIAA officials "made an unreasonable, unexplained, and clearly erroneous decision," resulting in Somerville winning the right to proceed to the final championship game. The C. finds that the determination of the NJSIAA not to honor Petitioner's protest was a correct and lawful application of that organization's bylaws under the circumstances. The bylaw does not offend the due process rights of teams and student athletes whose districts adopt it as policy when joining the NJSIAA. The application for emergent relief is denied and the Petition dismissed.

11/99 Petitioners-Appellants, v.
"J.M." Summit Board of Education, Union County, Respondent-Respondent.
November 3, 1999

Petitioners allege that the Board acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner in failing to give their child the Most Valuable Player awards for the high school cross-country track seasons of 1995 and 1996. The State Board of Education reverses the C.'s dismissal of the matter as untimely and remands it to him for further proceedings.

CD Paterson School District and the Paterson Eastside High
1/99 School, Passaic County, Petitioners, v.

January 29, 1999 (#21-99)

The NJSIAA Executive Committee placed the high school's basketball team on probation for two years and suspended the team from participating in the 1999 Basketball Tournament. The suspension was due to unsportsmanlike conduct during a semi-final basketball championship game against Teaneck High School. The C. affirms the NJSIAA's decision.

BIDS
CD Alaska Services, Inc., Petitioner, v.
7/99 East Brunswick Board of Education, Middlesex County, Respondent.
ALA July 2, 1999 (#213-EM)

BIDS
CD Alaska Services, Inc., Petitioner, v.

ALA October 18, 1999 (#329-99)

BIDS
CD Byram Bus Lines, Inc., Petitioner, v.
3/99 Mount Arlington Board of Education, Morris County, Respondent.
BYR March 9, 1999 (#62-99)

The C. finds that the Board complied with applicable laws and regulations in securing, through competitive bidding, the lowest responsible bidder for its transportation contract. He finds Petitioner's contention that the Board acted improperly in this regard to be without merit.

BIDS

CD 7/99 FRE — Fred M. Schiavone Construction, Inc., Petitioner, v. Kingsway Regional School District Board of Education, Gloucester County, and Ogren Construction, Respondents. July 9, 1999 (#222-99 E)

Petitioner alleges that it is the lowest responsible bidder and moves for emergent relief restraining Respondents from proceeding with activities and work pursuant to such award. The C. finds that Petitioner has failed to satisfy the standard for obtaining emergent relief. Motion denied. The matter shall continue at the OAL for further proceedings on the merits of Petitioner's claim as deemed necessary.

BIDS

CD 2/99 TAR — Taranto Bus Company, Petitioner, v. Saddle Brook Board of Education, Bergen County, and South Bergen Jointure Commission, Bergen County, Respondents. February 24, 1999 (#47-99)

Petitioner claims that the Saddle Brook Board violated the bidding laws when it decided to renew the existing contract after it had already taken bids. The ALJ finds, and the C. concurs, that the decision by the Saddle Brook Board to reject the bids was not arbitrary or capricious and was free from fraud, collusion and bad faith. The ALJ finds, and the C. agrees, that once Saddle Brook informed the Commission that it was withdrawing Route 450 and providing its own transportation, the Commission's authority regarding Route 450 was renounced. Thereafter, the Commission had no authority to contract with Taranto on behalf of Saddle Brook. No contract existed between Taranto and Saddle Brook or the Commission based on implied contract theory or agency. Petition dismissed.

BOARD MEMBERS

CD 8/99 BEA — Donald Beatty, Petitioner, v. Chester Board of Education, Morris County, Respondent. August 31, 1999 (#289-99)

Petitioner, a Board member, seeks an Order granting him access to the application materials for non-employee candidates and the relevant personnel file data for employee applicants, sufficiently in advance of the Board's August 24th meeting to make review meaningful. The Asst. C. orders interim relief. "The clear language of prior decisional law with respect to the central issue in this matter, the responsibility and authority of individual board members to cast informed votes with regard to accepting or rejecting the recommendations of the superintendent in filling district positions, creates a reasonable likelihood that petitioner will ultimately be found to be entitled to the fundamental relief he seeks. . . .Once lost, petitioner's opportunity to cast an informed vote cannot be recaptured or remedied, so that he would, indeed, sustain irreparable harm if interim relief were not accorded." The Asst. C. stresses that the Board can place reasonable limitations on the times and places for review of applicant materials by individual board members "so that the orderly administrative operation of the district and the timely filling of vacancies will not be compromised by demands for access on the part of individual Board members." The matter shall proceed to hearing.

BOARD MEMBERS
CD Wesley M. Smith, Petitioner, v.
3/99 Hazlet Board of Education, Monmouth County, Respondent.
SMI March 8, 1999 (#61-99 E)

Petitioner seeks relief from the Board's decision removing him as a Board member because he failed to attend three consecutive Board meetings. Petitioner contends that the Board's actions were arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable since he provided "good cause" for the absences. The C. denies emergent relief since the law underlying Petitioner's legal claim is unsettled. Petitioner can claim no likelihood of success on the merits and so his Petition fails to meet at least two of the necessary criteria under Crowe. The matter is returned to the OAL for further proceedings on the merits of the matter.

Respondent has filed a workers' compensation claim against the Board. The ALJ finds, and the C. affirms, that when a board member makes a claim against the board which will accrue to his/her personal benefit, such a claim disqualifies the individual from membership on the Board. Respondent is disqualified from continued membership on the Board as of the date of this decision.

WAL Respondent, and Middletown Township Board of Education, Monmouth County,
Petitioner, v.
Patricia A. Walsh, Respondent.
February 16, 1999 (#35-99)

Ms. Walsh, a Board member, requests indemnification from the Board for costs and expenses of defending a legal action brought against her by Thomas Stokes. The Board seeks her disqualification from service on the Board because of this legal action. The Board cites N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 which provides that "No member of any board. . .shall be directly or indirectly in any. . .claim against the board." The C. notes that the relevant cases distinguish between those claims against a board which seek to uphold a public interest as opposed to those claims that support a private, personal interest. Ms. Walsh seeks to have the Board indemnify her so that she can protect what she maintains is the public interest in her ability to attend Board members "in safety and security." The C. grants summary decision to Ms. Walsh and dismisses the Board's Petition. The matter of her indemnification claim shall proceed to the OAL.

Decided by State Board of Education, May 5, 1999 (SB #99-98)

BIL September 13, 1999 (#302-99)

The State Board of Examiners denied Petitioner's application for permanent certification as a teacher of skilled trades, based on his conviction for homicide in the course of a robbery. Petitioner received a life sentence, but was paroled in 1987. The ALJ concludes that Petitioner has failed to sustain his burden of proving that the State Board of Examiners abused its discretion. The Board has presented a reasonable basis for its determination based on its concern with the protection of children and the acknowledgment that a higher standard of conduct is expected from teachers. The C. affirms the ALJ's determination and dismisses the Petition.

First, his undergraduate and graduate degrees from Stevens Institute of Technology are not equivalent to the required master's degree in one of the recognized fields of leadership and management. Secondly, his education and experience do not satisfy the requirement of study in the areas of communications and law. The C. upholds the State Board of Examiners' decision to deny Petitioner's application for issue of a school administrator certificate. Petition dismissed.

CERTIFICATION

GAB November 3, 1999

The State Board of Examiners blocked issuance of a new county substitute license to Petitioner. In February, 1994, Petitioner signed a statement admitting that she provided alcoholic beverages and marijuana to students. Given the gravity of this admission, the State Board of Education concludes that Petitioner has not shown an entitlement to receive a county substitute certificate. However, the procedure used in this case was not in accordance with regulations. The State Board of Examiners does not have the authority under N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(g) to consider Petitioner's application. It should have been submitted to the County Superintendent for review and approval. Petitioner's application is denied.

xResignations xTimeliness

The Board asks that Respondent's teaching certificate be suspended for one year since he resigned from his teaching position without the requisite 60 days' notice. After receiving an unfavorable evaluation, Respondent resigned because of "the emotional stress that I would have to endure working under these conditions." The ALJ finds, and the C. affirms, that the Board's Order to Show Cause was timely filed. At any time before the Board's formally acting to refuse to accept his resignation, Respondent could have officially rescinded it. The C. finds that the Board acted without undue delay when it resolved to reject Respondent's resignation at its official meeting on March 23, 1998 and decided to pursue its rights to request suspension of his certificate. Therefore, the Board had 90 days from March 23rd to file its Order to Show Cause which it did. The C. finds that Respondent is guilty of unprofessional conduct. The C. determines that, while it is reasonable to conclude that an individual who experiences a negative evaluation would suffer emotional stress, immediate resignation is an unacceptable response. The C. orders Respondent's certificate suspended for a period of one year as of the date of this decision. The State Board of Examiners are to be notified.

CHARTER SCHOOLS
SC-A In the Matter of the Grant of the Charter School Application
5/99 of the East Orange Community Charter School, Essex County.
EAS Superior Court, Appellate Division
May 17, 1999

The Respondent Charter School filed an August 1997 application to begin operating in the 1998-99 school year. The C. issued his contingent approval over the local school board's objects. The State Board of Education upheld that approval in April, 1998. In January, 1998, Appellant Board filed a notice of appeal which was denied by the State Board of Education. The East Orange Board of Education argues that the Charter School Program Act violates the Administrative Procedure Act or constitutional guarantees of procedural due process, because it does not provide for a hearing or findings and conclusions. The Board found shortcomings in the C.'s decision since it did not reconcile negative recommendations from the Department's evaluators regarding the financial plan, the goals and objects, the curriculum, the plans for disabled students and the facility's location. The Respondent and the State Board of Education counter that the Court must defer to the C. and State Board in matters involving educational experience. They aver that formalized fact findings and conclusions of law are not required in this type of case. Furthermore, they contend that even if the Court had jurisdiction to review the evidential sufficiency of the C.'s decision, the C.'s decision was amply supported. The Court rejects the first argument that the APA governs the charter granting process. APA applies only to "contested cases." In deciding charter school cases, the C. is acting in a legislative capacity, not an adjudicatory or quasi-judicial one. The C. need not provide "the kind of detailed, formalized findings and conclusions that are necessary in a contested agency case. And he need not analyze a local board's specific objections or each deficiency cited in the initial review, especially when the addenda presumably cured these deficiencies" in the C.'s opinion. The governing standard of review in charter school cases is the "arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable" standard. The Court finds that the Department's review before approving the applications was ample to support the C.'s decision. The Court finds that the Act is not unconstitutional because it creates a conflict of interest in the C. who may feel compelled to approve a quota of charter schools in each county. The East Orange Board contends that the Act violates the equal protection clause of the New Jersey Constitution because charter schools "may adversely affect the students of the existing district with respect to quality of education, racial balance, and financial support." The Court finds this argument premature. The Board avers that the grant must be reversed because the application failed to promise a program that would meet the "different and innovative" mandate of the Act. The Board asserts that its "back to basics" theme is a program in effect in the existing schools. The Court notes that there are intended innovations: team teaching, parents in the classrooms, longer days and school year, participation by businesses, local government and other organizations, small class size, etc. The Board asserts that the ownership of the proposed school's facility by a private corporation creates the appearance of impropriety and violates the School Ethics Act. The Court notes that the Act governs the conduct of individual school officials, not the relationship between a school and a corporate body. The Court affirms the issuance of the grant.

3/99 Teaneck Board of Education, Bergen County, Respondent.
TEA March 30, 1999 (#99-99M)

The first issue is whether or not the statutes for the creation of charter schools and the regulations developed by the DOE to implement these statutes require a local board of education to pay funds directly to a charter school at the levels set for in N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12. Secondly, is the board obligated to provide transportation to the charter school students who reside in the district over and above the level of funding required by N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12. The C. agrees with Petitioner that the statutory and regularly framework does impose on districts this dual requirement. The Board is directed to pay the Charter School the difference between the amounts it already paid and those amounts due to the Charter School under in N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12. Remanded to the OAL is the issue of whether Respondent Board acted in bad faith and/or deliberate violation of law unless Petitioner notifies the C. that it desires to withdraw this claim.

xCustodial and Maintenance Staff xTenure Claims

Petitioners are former head custodians in the Board's employ. They allege that the Board's action transferring head custodians to regular custodial positions and reducing their salaries violates their tenure rights. The issues are: Have the Petitioners acquired tenure status with the Board? Were their individual tenure rights violated by the Board's action to change their positions? Did the Board's action reducing their salaries violate their tenure rights? All individual Petitioners have obtained tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. The Board distinguishes the classes of custodians and head custodians, arguing that they are "radically different positions that require a separation of bargaining units in order to separate the supervisory and non-supervisory classes." The C. disagrees. In Reinertsen, he held that "the title 'head custodian' merely denotes a special assignment within the general classification of janitorial services and, therefore, it comes within the scope of the tenure statute. . . .petitioner's title can be changbed without violation of the statute, but as long as he remains within this category/class of employment he is afforded the protections of a tenured janitor." Therefore, the C. rules that the Board's attempt to create a "supervisory subclass of Head Custodians" without tenure must fail." The C. holds that Petitioners Bell, Carmona, Davis, Monagas, Moddy, Palin, Rodriguez, Vergara and White had all acquired tenure as custodians. The Board was not permitted to reduce their compensation when it abolished their positions as head custodians and reassigned them to other janitorial/custodial positions. The Board is directed to restore each of them to the salary level each had during the 1997-98 school year and reimburse each for the amount representing the difference between what each should have received in the 1998-99 school year and up to the date of restoration. The positions of Petitioners Johnson, Cosme and Smallwood were riffed for reasons of economy. The C. holds that the Board was obligated to respect their seniority rights. The C. finds that custodial employees with less seniority were retained. The C. finds that the Board was required under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4 to dismiss the less senior custodial employees before it ended Petitioners' employment. The Board is directed to reinstate these Petitioners and compensate them with lost wage and emoluments, less mitigation, from the date of their respective terminations to the date of their reappointments. This decision does not preclude the Board from prospectively implementing a RIF in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 and 4.

FAN June 14, 1999 (#184-99)

Petitioner alleges that she was entitled to sixty days pay when her employment contract was terminated after only one week of work. Petitioner signed a proposed written contract, but the District did not and the State-District Superintendent had not approved the issuance of the contract. Before the contract arrangements were finished, Petitioner was assigned to an Adult Education Center where she worked a week. As soon as the District learned that Fanego had previously been brought up on tenure charges, it withdrew its offer of employment. Since the takeover, the District policy has been not to rehire former employees "who left without an excellent record." The District paid her for one week's work. The C. finds that as the State District Superintendent never approved Petitioner's appointment to any position with the District, she was never an employee of the District and is not entitled to any relief. Petition dismissed.

CONTRACT CANCELLATIONS
CD Ruben Gonzalez, Paul J. O'Donohue, Claude Craig and Steven 6/99 G. Block, Petitioners, v.
GON Newark School District, Essex County, Respondent.
June 1, 1999 (#172-99)

Petitioners contest the termination of their employment after the State takeover of the District. They argue that they were terminated without notice contrary to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44 and N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1. The District argues that Petitioners were "at will employees" and were not entitled to notice. The ALJ finds, and the C. affirms, that Petitioners' positions were not abolished pursuant to the takeover statute. Their individual employment was terminated by the discretionary authority of the State superintendent. As at-will employees, they are not entitled to relief. Petition dismissed.
On May 3, 2000, the State Board of Education affirmed the C.'s conclusion that N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 is not applicable to this matter. However, the State Board reverses the C.'s determination that Petitioners are not entitled to relief under N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44. "The reorganization process was not intended to authorize group terminations for reorganizational purposes except upon effectuation of the statutorily prescribed reorganization. In this respect, it is abundantly clear from the record that the petitioners were not terminated for any individualized reason. Nor were the resignations submitted by the petitioners voluntary. Rather, we find that the petitioners were, in fact, terminated for purposes of reorganization, but that such terminations were effected outside of the statutorily mandated process. The statutes at issue do not confer to the State Superintendent carte blanche authority to effectuate blanket dismissals without regard to the statutory reorganization process. . . .Because their positions did not exist after they were terminated, and in view of our finding that such terminations were in fact part of the reorganization process, the petitioners are not entitled to reinstatement. Rather, they are entitled to their salaries from the effective date of their termination to the date of effectuation of the reorganization, plus 60 days' pay."

LAW July 16, 1999 (#226-99)

The Board seeks an order withholding the September 10-November 8, 1998 salary of Respondent for neglect of or failure to perform duties and an order suspending her teaching certificates for one year. On September 9, 1998, the Board approved the recommendation of its superintendent to terminate the Respondent's employment upon sixty days' notice pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-5. The Board required that she perform her duties during this period in order to receive her salary. Respondent refused to perform any duties and sat at her desk calling friends, doing personal business, disrupting the work of other members of the child study team by singing while at sitting her desk. She further disrupted the work of the child study team by shredding without authorization parts of student files that are needed for evaluations. Respondent has decided not to defend the case. The C. finds that Respondent has effectively abandoned or refused to perform her assigned work duties, thereby constructively abandoning her employment without the sixty days' notice. He orders her certificates suspended for one year for her unprofessional conduct. The Board is authorized to withhold from Respondent any unpaid compensation for service on and after September 10, 1998.

Petitioners argue that they were entitled to a school-based supervisory position or teaching position when their central office administrative positions were abolished after the state takeover. The ALJ finds that when a central office supervisory position is abolished pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44, all tenure and seniority rights to and originating from that position are also abolished. Petitioners retain only tenure and seniority rights which were not attained in connection with the central office supervisory positions. Petitioners Johnson, Iosca and Allen and Goyins retain tenure rights as teachers. Petitioner Tate retains only his tenure rights as a school psychologist. Petitioner states that she repeatedly questioned the business procedures used by the school in approving vouchers, handling petty cash, time sheets, preparing budgets, etc. The C. finds that Petitioner has failed to establish that the Board's action canceling her employment violated her constitutional or statutory rights. From the 1985-86 through the 1987-88 school years, Petitioner was assigned to teach basic skills courses. Petitioner was requested to complete an application for the endorsement of Teacher of English and submit it to the State Board of Examiners. Despite not being issued a certificate, the Board assigned Petitioner to teach one class of English non-elementary level in September, 1988. The rest of her classes were designated as some type of writing. Beginning in 1991, Petitioner was assigned to teach all secondary English courses. On December 10, 1996, the Burlington County Superintendent of Schools "advised respondent that the certificate bearing an English endorsement for petitioner which had been faxed to the County Superintendent's office by one of Respondent's employees was fraudulent." The Board canceled Petitioner's employment on January 13, 1997. The State Board of Examiners issued a decision on September 24, 1998 stating that the Board "failed to establish by a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence any of the allegations in the order to show cause and accordingly the order to show cause is hereby Discharged and the within matter is Dismissed with Prejudice." On December 18, 1998, Petitioner filed a Petition to the C. asking for an order reinstating her to a teaching position consistent with her endorsements along with emoluments. The C. finds that the matter is time-barred. He holds that January 13, 1997, the date the Board ended her employment as a tenured teacher triggered the 90-day filing period.

The C. cannot sanction a settlement which is contingent upon the satisfaction of conditions by another agency and which provides that if such conditions are not met, the agreement shall be deemed null and void, thereby reactivating the matter. The C. directs that this matter by remanded to the OAL and held in abeyance, pending review by the Division of Pensions and Benefits. If the parties obtain the necessary endorsement from the Division, this agreement may be modified to so reflect that approval and may be resubmitted to the C. for review. xConscientious Employee Protection Act xDiscriminatory Practices

Plaintiff, an African-American, was hired by the District as a guidance counselor for the 1995-96 school year. Defendant Brown, a white male, is the principal at the school to which she was primarily assigned. In a November memorandum, Brown directed Plaintiff to: (1) provide timely feedback to teachers; (2) pick up the children at their classrooms rather than expect the teacher to keep track of when a particular student was expected to report for counseling; and (3) improve her rapport with the staff. Plaintiff disagreed with a teacher because of the teacher's failure to send a student immediately for counseling. Plaintiff judged the student to be emotionally troubled and suicidal. Earlier, Brown told Plaintiff that she needed to "become more teachable," referring to her inability to receive directions or advice "without giving a retort." Plaintiff forwarded a five page memorandum to Brown in response to his memorandum. She complained about his use of the term "teachable" as derogatory and offensive. In December, Plaintiff was notified that she was being placed on a Plan of Assistance because of her unsatisfactory performance. The Director of Guidance and Counseling outlined six, specific steps Plaintiff was to take to improve her performance and provided a time frame for each step. In March, 1996, the Board voted not to renew her contract. She was afforded a statement of reasons and a hearing. Another African-American woman was hired to replace her as guidance counselor. The first issue is whether Plaintiff can establish a prima facie case of racial discrimination since she was replaced by another African-American woman. The Court finds that the there is no inference in the entire record that the Board did not renew Plaintiff's contract as a result of unlawful racial discrimination. Brown's employed the word "teachable" to describe a perceived characteristic of her personality. The word "teachable" does not connote racial animus. Secondly, Plaintiff charges that she was terminated in retaliation for her complaints regarding the teacher's failure to refer the student to counseling in a timely fashion. There is no support for Plaintiff's allegations that the boy's teacher was aware of a risk of suicide and ignored it for several months. The Court holds that the trial court properly granted summary judgment for the District and affirms it.

Petitioner holds a standard certificate with an endorsement as a Teacher of Employment Orientation which is no longer issued. Petitioner taught employment orientation in the Alternative Education Program to students in grades five through eight from 1984-85 until the 1993-94 school year. In 1994, Petitioner was transferred to Bayonne High School where he taught students in grades nine through twelve. He taught shop and vocational trades. In the 1998-99 school year, he was assigned to teach shop and industrial technology and maintenance and repair. His contract was canceled in November, 1998. The Board maintains that Petitioner does not have the proper certification to teach these courses. Petitioner asserts that he is properly certified and has tenure and seniority rights. He contends that although the courses he taught were identified as "industrial arts," they were essentially employment orientation courses. The C. remands the matter to the OAL for further fact-finding to determine the actual duties of, and skills taught in the industrial arts course and to determine if Petitioner's endorsement as a Teacher of Employment Orientation permits him to teach any or all of these courses.

6/99 minor child, "J.J.," Petitioners, v.
PEQ Pequannock Board of Education, Morris County, Respondent.
June 1, 1999 (#173-99)

xAssociation Rights and Duties

The Petition alleges that the Board's elimination of the woodshop course from its curriculum was made without compliance with statutes, regulations and Board policy. The ALJ finds that the Education Association has no independent standing to pursue an action before the C. unless it can demonstrate the "reasonable likelihood of direct harm threatened either to the association as an entity or to one of its members whom it represents." The Arbitrator finds that the elimination of the woodshop course causes no threat as such to the PEA even though the elimination of the course resulted in a teacher's reassignment to another position. Only a "substantial likelihood of harm threatened toward an association member would provide an adequate underpinning for the requisite standing." The ALJ finds that the process chosen by the Board regarding core curriculum changes was proper under the law. The C. affirms and dismisses the Petition.

DRUG ABUSE

CD 10/99 "J.K." — "J.K.," on behalf of minor child, "L.K.," Petitioner, v. Hunterdon Central Regional High School District Board of Education, Respondent. October 4, 1999 (#317-99E)

Petitioner was attending a ceramics class. He molded an object in soft clay which has fired in a kiln. School authorities were given opinions from various individuals that this object was a "hash pipe" and was drug paraphernalia. On his return to school, "L.K.," was informed that he was to be drug tested. The result was negative. "L.K." asserts that the object was to be used as an incense holder. "L.K." was assigned to in-school suspension for three days, two days out of school suspension, loss of parking privileges, exclusion from extracurricular activities for 60 days and Saturday detention. He also was ordered to attend five drug education prevention programs. The C. grants emergent relief from penalties. The matter shall be directed to an expedited plenary hearing on the merits.

It is claimed that Respondent, a Board member, violated the School Ethics Act by using his office to influence the hiring of an insurance broker owned by the Mayor of Haddonfield. It is alleged that Mr. James switched the Board's computer software contract from Edmunds to ICS, a company that is owned by a friend who sets on the Camden County Human Relations Commission. It is asserted that Mr. James transferred school funds from First Union Bank to Commerce Bank when First Union denied Mr. James a home equity loan. The last complaints allege sex discrimination against a District employee and a violation of the Sunshine Law. The Commission dismisses all charges, but one. The Commission finds that Mr. James violated the Act by asking the Board's Business Administrator to intercede for him in acquiring an unsecured loan from the bank that held the Board's accounts. The C. orders Mr. James censured as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

EXTRACURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

CD 11/99 "G.W.S." on behalf of minor child, "A.F.S.," Petitioner, v. William Petrino, Superintendent, and Rahway Board of Education, Union County, Respondents. November 29, 1999 (#389-99)

"A.F.S." attends ninth grade at the Union County Vocational-Technical Magnet School Program for Math, Science and Technology (Magnet School). The Respondent's policy on extracurricular activities allow students residing in Rahway in grades 10, 11 and 12 to participate in extracurricular and intramural athletic activities at the Rahway High School. Ninth grade students are excluded from this policy. The C. finds that to "create a blanket exclusion of a particular group or category of public school students from extracurricular activities or intramural athletic programs without a sound rational basis for exclusion is inherently arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable." The Board is directed to allow "A.F.S." and other similarly situated Rahway students who attend the Magnet School to participate in extracurricular activities and athletic programs at the high school, unless it can demonstrate that "such participation is not practicable or reasonable because of scheduling constraints, transportation costs or logistical difficulties or other valid considerations." The Board is directed to revise its extracurricular activities policy and submit it to the Union County Superintendent of Schools for review.

GIFTED

CD 10/99 "D.B." and "J.B.," on behalf of minor child, "A.B.," Lower Camden County Regional School District No. One "D.B." Board of Education, Camden County, Respondent. October 28, 1999 (#341-99)

Petitioners challenge the Board's decision denying their son participation in the District's gifted and talented program. "A.B." has a high I.Q., but has been classified as perceptually impaired because of language-based difficulties and motor coordination. The ALJ notes that the District has a written procedure for selection to the gifted and talented program. These procedures have a rational basis in that they are designed to identify those students who will attain success in the program. The ALJ finds that these requirements were correctly applied to "A.B." The ALJ concludes that Respondent's denial of selection of "A.B.' to the program was proper. The C. affirms the ALJ's decision.

xDrug Abuse xFreedom of Speech

"T.L.' was a student in a honors biology class at the high school. The assignment was to design a brochure for the organism the pupil chose. "T.J.' selected the Psilocybe mushroom as the subject for his brochure. The teacher notified that unless "T.L.' removed references to illegal drug activity in his brochure, he would receive a grade of zero. "T.L." refused to change his brochure. "T.L." was given no credit for his project. Respondents contend that the school district has violated "T.L.'s" right to freedom of expression. The Assistant Commission points out that the Board's legitimate pedagogical concern is that the District is committed to the prevention of student substance use/abuse. The Assistant Commissioner finds that the Board need only be concerned that the text of "T.L.'s" brochure 'might reasonably be perceived' by anyone to advance a position contrary to Board interest in preventing substance abuse. Petition dismissed.
Affirmed, State Board of Education, February 2, 2000. The brochure was produced because of an assignment given as part of the educational curriculum. Judging the content of such assignments is part of the core of a school's educational mission.

The Board barred "N.C." from graduation because he was absent for sixteen days during his first period class. The Assistant C. denies Motion for Emergent Relief and orders the matter continued at the OAL for consideration on its merits.
On October 6, 1999, the State Board of Education concludes that Emergent Relief was warranted in this instance. C.'s decision reversed.

"C.A." graduated from high school in three years as a junior. Petitioners ask that he be afforded all rights and privileges accrued to graduating fourth year students. The C. finds that the Board presents a rational basis for restricting students who graduate in three years from being eligible for honors and recognition based on their grade point averages. Petition dismissed.

HOME SCHOOLING
CD Jack Jacobs, Petitioner, v.

xVocational Education

Petitioner protests the Board's refusal to pay the tuition and transportation costs for his son to attend the Bergen County Vocational Technical School. He is home schooling his son. The C. approves the ALJ's holding that "all New Jersey pupils have an independent entitlement to a vocational education which is not limited to the pupils enrolled in the public schools." The Board is directed to reimburse Petitioner for transportation and tuition costs.
On December 1, 1999, the State Board of Education affirmed the C.'s determination that the District was obligated to pay tuition to the Technical School for "D.J." during the 1997-98 school year. Petitioner is entitled to reimbursement for the costs of his son's transportation.

BLA County, Respondent.
August 25, 1999 (#276-99)

Petitioners, tenured teachers, protest the withholding of their salary increments. Petitioner Blazakis withdrew her petition. Petitioner Sullivan teaches Spanish at the high school. Since 1988, her supervisors gave her negative evaluations regarding inadequate plan books and record keeping, especially inconsistencies in recording grades and attendance. Petitioner testified that there was nothing incorrect about her record keeping, that it was the evaluators fault for not being able to read her roll book and understand her lesson plans. The C. finds that Petitioner did not demonstrate by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the withholding of her salary increment was arbitrary, capricious or otherwise contrary to law. Petition dismissed.

xConscientious Employee Protection Act

"W.B., the mother of a neurologically impaired child, petitioned the New Jersey Division of Special Education for changes in her child's Individualized Education Plan and for his placement in a private school. Plaintiff Kolb testified before the Office of Administrative Law in this matter. Her salary increment was withheld by the Board because she had violated a directive given by Dr. Burns prohibiting her from communicating with "W.B." without the presence of another district employee. The Superior Court, Law Division, Warren County granted summary judgment to the Board and its members concluding that Plaintiff had no cause of action under CEPA. The Superior Court, Appellate Division, reverses as "genuine issues of material fact exist concerning whether defendants' proffered reasons for withholding plaintiff's salary increment were legitimate and nondiscriminatory, rather than pretextual as retaliation against plaintiff for her testifying on "W.B.'s behalf." Plaintiff engaged in protected activities when testifying before a public body investigating whether Defendants had violated the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. The matter is reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

INCREMENTS
CD Karen Natapoff, Petitioner, v.
1/99 State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, NAT Hudson County, Respondent.
January 25, 1999 (#14-99)

Petitioner appeals the withholding of her salary increment for the 1996-97 school year. Petitioner was a special education teacher in the District for eight years. Petitioner was formally observed on two occasions during the 1995-96 school year. As the result of these observations and other contacts throughout the year, the District determined to withhold her employment and adjustment increments for "less than satisfactory performance" in classroom management, instructional techniques and assessment of student needs. The C. finds that Petitioner has failed to meet her burden to prove, by a preponderance of credible evidence, that the District's decision to withhold her increments was unreasonable, based on the facts.

INCREMENTS

CD 10/99 NOR — North Bergen Federation of Teachers, Local 1060, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, and Eileen Wende, Petitioners, v. North Bergen Board of Education, Hudson County, Respondent. October 28, 1999 (#339-99)

xAbsenteeism xSecretaries and Clerks

Petitioner was employed in data entry positions until her employment was terminated in July, 1991. In September, 1992, she was reinstated, but was transferred from the central office to work at Horace Mann as a clerk. She had no typing skills at that time and arrangements were made for her to do non typing work. Petitioner had accumulated 34 sick and personal days as of July 1, 1996. For the 1996-97 school year, she used 11.5 sick days, three personal days and 22 vacation days, mainly due to illness and death of her father. She has doctor's notes for eight and a half of the sick days. The Board decided not to give her an increment for the 1997-98 school year based on this record of absenteeism and poor work. The ALJ finds that when Petitioner's absences for her father's illness and funeral are subtracted, she did not have an extraordinary or unusual number of absences. The ALJ finds that to hold a three week period of absence against an employee when her father is suddenly taken ill and dies is arbitrary and unreasonable. The sudden demands for Petitioner to type when her job responsibilities to date had never called for her to type were an inappropriate measurement to use to evaluate the overall quality of her work. The ALJ also finds Petitioner to be more credible than the witnesses for the Board. The ALJ credits Petitioner when she stated that she was never told that there was anything wrong with her appearance and that she violated the dress code. The ALJ holds that the decision not to give Petitioner an increment in 1997-98 was arbitrary and capricious, not for good cause and is overturned. The C. is not persuaded that he has the jurisdiction to hear and determine this matter regarding increment withholding for noncertified employees. The C. remands the matter to the OAL for argument on the issue of jurisdiction and for additional fact-finding.

Petitioner states that she had been disabled as a result of a work related injury and that she had filed a workers' compensation claim. She alleges that during the period of her disability, the Board did not pay her the statutory sick leave salary she is entitled to pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 and improperly charged her accumulated sick leave for absences caused by the injury. This was once part of three consolidated cases which were placed on the inactive list pursuant to Vernet. Two of the matters have now been resolved while the third matter remains pending. Accordingly, the three cases are hereby severed from each other. Since the issue in this matter involving education laws has been resolved as a result of the decision in the companion workers compensation case, the C. dismisses the matter with prejudice.

xJob Injuries xTimeliness

Petitioner fell down the stairs at work on February 27, 1997. She continued working until October 5, 1997. She has been absent from work since then. She claims that these absences were due to her February injury. The Board counted Petitioner's absences as work related injuries from October 5, 1997 until March 4, 1998. Since then, her absences were credited against her sick leave. The C. dismisses the appeal as untimely. The 90-day filing requirement will not be relaxed.

Ronald Standridge and the Roxbury Board of Education, Defendants.
Superior Court, Appellate Division
July 12, 1999 (323 N.J. Super. 538)

xSexual Harassment

Standridge is the former athletic director of the Roxbury District. According to Ramey, NJEA field representative, Kristen Sieka, an athletic trainer at the high school, complained to him that Standridge was spreading rumors about her sex life and harassing her in the workplace. Ramey advised her to contact the local affirmative officer of the District and file a grievance with the Board. Subsequently, female coaches complained to the Roxbury Education Association that they were being subjected to harassment and discriminatory treatment by Standridge. Ramey sent letters to the high school principal and the superintendent about these complaints. Subsequently, the superintendent recommended to the Board that Standridge, who did not have tenure, not be reappointed for the following school year. The Board did not reappoint him. The issue is "whether Plaintiff's defamation claim is governed by the standard of 'actual malice,' i.e., whether Plaintiff must show by clear and convincing evidence that Defendants' alleged defamatory statements were made with 'knowledge' of their falsity or with 'reckless disregard' for their truth or falsity. . . . To establish the applicability of the actual malice standard, a defamation action defendant must show that the plaintiff is a 'public official.'" The Court holds that as a school athletic director, Standridge was a public official and must show actual malice to establish his defamation claims against Ramey and NJEA. The Court agrees with Defendants that Ramey's statements are evidence of his hostility towards Standridge and desire to see him removed from office, "it would not provide an adequate foundation for a finding that Ramey knew that the statements in his March 27th letters were false or that he acted in reckless disregard of the truth or falsity of these statements." The Court concludes that Plaintiff should be afforded an opportunity to complete discovery before his claim is subject to dismissal by a motion for summary judgment. The matter is remanded to the trial court.

LIBRARIES
CD Pennsville Education Association, Petitioner, v.
9/99 Pennsville Board of Education, Salem County, Respondent.
PEN September 9, 1999 (#299-99)

xCertification xParaprofessionals

The Association alleges that the Board violates N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.6 by operating its school library at the middle school without a properly certificated professional librarian. It maintains that the library aide is performing several professional functions without the education, experience or certification. The C. finds that the Board is not compelled to employ the services of an individual with a standard educational services certificate as an educational media specialist or an endorsement as an associate educational media specialist in order to operate its middle school media center. However, the Board may not assign duties which are professional in nature to a paraprofessional aide. The C. finds that the Association has demonstrated by a preponderance of credible evidence that the aide is not performing as an assistant to a properly certified professional, but is acting in a capacity which calls for independent initiative. The Board may not simply employ a paraprofessional holding a substitute certificate and then assign her tasks which are reserved for professional staff. The Board is directed to modify its job description for librarian aide to conform with applicable regulations and the parameters of this decision. A copy of the revised job description shall be submitted to the county superintendent for review and approval. The Board is directed to append to its proposed job description for the librarian aide the job description for the position of principal. This shall show the role of the principal in the delivery of educational media services in the middle school.

CD "M.N.," Petitioner, v.
8/99 Dumont Board of Education, Bergen County, Respondent.
"M.N." August 13, 1999 (#267-99)

xConfidentiality xStudent Records xTimeliness
Petitioner seeks a ruling on the following issues: Is the school under a duty to notify parents/guardians or include them in a meeting regarding the questioning of a student? Is the school and/or guidance counselor under a duty to disclose to the parents discussions between the counselor and the student regarding the student's suicidal tendencies? Did the Board act appropriately when it destroyed the pupil records of Petitioner's son, "E.N.?" The vice principal questioned "E.N." about money missing from school vending machines. "E.N." told another student that he would "rather throw himself in front of the train than face the shame." The friend reported the threat to the vice principal. The vice principal did not inform Petitioner of "E.N.'s" state of mind. "E.N." did commit suicide. After his death, Petitioner discovered that her son had several conversations with the high school guidance counselor about suicide. A year after his death, Petitioner requested his records. His grades and SAT results were forwarded to her, the rest of the documents had been destroyed. The C. relaxes the 90-day filing limitation because he finds the circumstances to be sufficiently compelling and extraordinary. The C. finds that: "a school administrator may question minor students without parents' consent; a local board may not destroy, without parents' consent, mandated pupil records during the time of the student's enrollment, or any pupil records existing at the time of the student's graduation or permanent departure from the district, but may destroy, with no prior notice, permitted records during the time of the pupil's enrollment consistent with administrative regulations; and legal authority to render a determination as to a counselor's duty of care does not rest with the C."

CD Florence Adler, Petitioner, v.
11/99 Shamong Board of Education, Burlington County, Respondent.
ADL November 3, 1999 (#350-99)

Petitioner is a tenured teacher. Petitioner began employment with the Board as a part-time music teacher in November, 1983 until June, 1987. In September 1, 1987, she became a full-time music teacher. On May 8, 1997, she was informed that her full-time position was going to be abolished and replaced with a part-time position. Petitioner was appointed to the part-time position. She asserts that the Board retained nontenured teachers in full-time positions in which her certificate is appropriate, thereby violating her tenure and seniority rights. Petitioner also asserts that she has more seniority than Ms. T. Ms. T. taught music under her elementary certificate until 1992. Then, Ms. T. taught under her music teacher endorsement. The C. finds that Ms. T. has greater seniority. Ms. T. was asked to teach music because the administration was aware of her dual certification. The ALJ finds, and the C. affirms, that Petitioner was qualified for one of the full-time computer teaching positions for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years. The Board is directed to compensate Petitioner for lost wages and emoluments, including additional pension credit commensurate with her salary loss.

1/99 Norman Jeffries and Bessie White, Petitioners, v.
CAP State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, Respondent.
January 4, 1999 (#4-99)

Petitioners were senior executives who served at the pleasure of the then executive superintendent, Eugene Campbell. If the senior staff did not receive letters of termination by the end of the school year, they were renewed for the forthcoming school year. The State took over the Newark School District on July 12, 1995. Petitioners aver that they did not receive proper compensation from the District when their positions were abolished after the state takeover. They maintain that they are entitled to their full salaries for the 1995-96 school year because of the existence of an implied employment contract between them and the Newark Board of Education. If the implied employment contracts do not exist, Petitioners aver that they are entitled to payment for 60 work days instead of 60 calendar days and payment for the sick, vacation and personal leave days they accumulated until the end of their employment. The C. finds that upon creation of the State-operated School District of Newark in July, 1995, all employment contracts of the chief executive officers of the District were ended. Therefore, none of the Petitioners has a viable claim to continued employment for the 1995-96 school year. Petitioner Johnson, an auditor, was not entitled to pay in lieu of the 60 days' notice of termination upon State operation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42a(3). The remaining Petitioners are entitled to 60 calendar days' pay, prorated in accordance with the salaries each was receiving on July 11, 1995, just prior to State operation. Neither N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42a(3) nor N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44a supports Petitioners' claims for payment of accumulated sick, vacation and personal leave time. Petitioners Jeffries and Johnson are directed to reimburse the District for the amount each received as compensation for accumulated sick, vacation or personal leave time.
Affirmed, State Board of Education, April 7, 1999.
On April 14, 2000, the Superior Court, Appellate Division, reversed in part and affirmed in part. It reversed the State Board decision to the extent it denied Petitioners compensation for accumulated vacation and sick days and remanded for reconsideration and calculation of these benefits in accordance with the policy and procedure manual of the Board and, to the extent appropriate, the Board's past practices. The Court also remanded for a determination of whether Petitioner Johnson's accumulated vacation limit is forty or sixty days. In all other respects, the State Board decision is affirmed. [330 N.J. DUV Hudson County, Respondent.
December 3, 1999 (#392-99)

xCertification xSeniority

The District abolished Petitioner's position as Director of Research, Planning and Evaluation and transferred him to a school psychologist position. Petitioner believes that his tenure and seniority rights entitle him to a supervisory position. He holds certificates and endorsements as a school psychologist, supervisor and school administrator. In the District, he was first employed under an emergency certificate as an elementary teacher. His subsequent employment has been as school psychologist and Director. The C. determines that the endorsement required to serve as a director is that of school administrator or principal. The supervisor endorsement does not authorize service as a director. The positions of supervisor and director must be deemed to be separately tenurable. Petitioner has never served in the position of supervisor. Furthermore, a comparison of the job descriptions for the director position formerly held by Petitioner and those of the supervisor positions do not show similarities. Petition dismissed.

POSITIONS, ABOLISHMENT
CD William Marsh, Petitioner, v.
12/99 Atlantic City Board of Education, Atlantic County, Respondent.
MAR December 21, 1999 (#419-99)

Petitioner was employed by the Board on July 1, 1979 as the Neighborhood Facilities Coordinator. In the 1997-98 school year, he became the District Coordinator of Adult Education and Community Use of Schools. On the ballot of the annual school election was a CAP waiver question. One of the items included continuation of the community schools program. The budget and CAP waiver question were defeated by the voters. The Atlantic City Council restored some funding, but not for the community schools program. The Board submitted a budget "reflecting the actions of City Council" to the county superintendent. At its May 1998 meeting, the Board considered notification to Petitioner that his position would be abolished. The resolution failed. Even though the Board did not approve by roll call vote to abolish Petitioner's position, he was notified that his last day of work would be June 30, 1998. Petitioner maintains that in the absence of this resolution, the Board is required to continue his employment. The C. agrees that the Board did not act in accordance with its statutory responsibilities. However, "the C. cannot in good conscience find that the petitioner is entitled to the relief he seeks as a result of the Board's failure to act. . . .Petitioner was unequivocally on notice that his position in the District would be abolished if the underlying program were eliminated. . .where the administration took subsequent actions that left no doubt as to the reduction in force to take effect as of June 30, 1998, petitioner cannot claim to have been prejudiced by the Board's failure to take the technical action necessary to formally effectuate the abolishment of his position." The Board cannot be compelled to fill a position which it does not have the legal authority to fund. "However, the Board herein and all other boards of education in this State are cautioned that, notwithstanding that the funding for a program is eliminated pursuant to voter rejection and subsequent governing body or board of school estimate review, a board must nonetheless take affirmative action to formally abolish any positions which may be impacted by such elimination."

January 19, 1999 (#11-99)

xChild Study Teams xSubcontracting

Petitioner, a school psychologist, was employed by the New Hanover Board of Education until she was riffed on June 30, 1996. Petitioner contends that she has the right under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 AND N.J.S.A. 18A:6:31-3 to employment by the Educational Services Unit because it has undertaken the operation of the New Hanover child study team and must recognize the District's tenure and recall rights. The C. notes that contractual agreements for provision of child study team services are permitted by N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1. The New Hanover Board of Education at all times retains legal responsibility to provide child study team services. It may provide those services either separately/independently as it did prior to 1996 or through a joint agreement with another public entity, as it has with the BCESU since the 1997-98 school year. "In the Commissioner's judgment, such a joint agreement between the New Hanover Board of Education and the BCESU does not constitute a 'takeover' or assumption of operation of a school or educational program. . . ." Petition dismissed.
In 1996, Petitioner was advised that the Board was granted a waiver of N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1(f) and 28:5.1(c) so as to provide all basic child study team services by contracting with a private vendor. Petitioner challenges this waiver. On May 3, 2000, the State Board of Education finds that the grant of the waiver was not a valid exercise of the authority delegated to the C. The waiver is invalid. The clear and unambiguous language of the applicable statutes precludes a district from providing basic child study team services solely by contracting with a private vendor.

10/99 Boonton Board of Education, Morris County, Respondent.
MCA October 1, 1999 (#314-99)

xSeniority xTenure Claims

Petitioner was assigned as a full-time teacher in the District before the 1995-96 school year. During the 1995-96, 1996-97 and 1997-98 school years, she was assigned as both a teacher and guidance counselor at the high school, the middle school and the elementary school. The Board reassigned her as a teacher for the 1998-99 school year. She asserts that she has seniority in her guidance position. The C. finds that Petitioner's assignment as a teacher violated her tenure rights as a guidance counselor. The Board must credit Petitioner with seniority as a guidance counselor for the period of teaching assignment during that school year.

xCertification
Petitioner holds certificates and has attained tenure as a substance abuse coordinator and school social worker. She contends that the Board's assignment of her as an in-class support instructor in the health program constitutes an assignment for which a teaching certificate is required which she does not possess. She requests an assignment to a position covered by her certification. The ALJ dismisses the matter as moot since Petitioner has been reassigned. The C. reverses the ALJ's decision. Petitioner's reassignment does not render moot her action challenging the Board's action since there is clearly a reasonable potential for recurrence of the alleged improper assignment. The matter is remanded to the OAL for a determination of Petitioner's underlying claim that the Board's assignment was improper.

PROFESSIONAL IMPROVEMENT PLANS
CD Education Association of Passaic, Petitioner, v.
4/99 Passaic Board of Education, Passaic County, Respondent.
PAS April 26, 1999 (#126-99)

The Association challenges Board practices regarding individual professional improvement plans for teaching staff members. It contends that Respondent's practices are inconsistent with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4(f)3, which requires that an individual professional improvement plan be developed by the supervisor and the teaching staff member, and with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(h)3, which defines the individual professional improvement plan as a written statement which includes the responsibilities of the District for implementing the plan. The Association avers that the Board's practices limit the teacher to choose from a list of items selected by the principal, thus it does not provide an opportunity to address deficiencies on an individualized basis. The ALJ points out that the list of topics does not necessarily include all deficiencies of every teacher. Thus, the Board's practices unduly circumscribe the role of the teaching staff member regarding the development of a PIP. The ALJ concludes, and the C. affirms, that the Board's practices do not comply with the regulations. The Association also contends that the form does not provide for a statement of the responsibilities of the District. The ALJ and the C. agree that the Board's forms do not comply with the regulations. The Board is directed to determine PIPs based upon the individual teaching staff member's performance areas of strength and those needing improvement based upon the job description. All PIPs shall contain the responsibilities of the District for their implementation.

Petitioners request that the C. reverse the decision of the Board to promote their daughter to the first grade. She is immature and has behavior problems. The parents request that she be retained in kindergarten so that her motor skills can catch up with other kindergartners. The Board does not believe in retention. The C. grants emergent relief. "J.C." may be harmed by her advancement into the first grade during the pending of this matter. This outweighs any harm which may be experienced by the Board in allowing her retention in kindergarten during this interim period. The matter shall proceed to the OAL for a hearing on merits.

xSchool Nurses xSubcontracting

Petitioners Palisits and Samuel assert that the Board violated their tenure rights by abolishing their positions as school nurses for reasons of economy and contracting with the Montclair Department of Health to provide certain nursing services. Petitioners contend that the Board is without legal authority to provide school-health related services through a contract with the Montclair Department of Health which it established prior to the RIF and has maintained since then. They argue that N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1 mandates that the Board "employ and manage" its own school nurses. The C. observes that this statute does not mandate that all nurses performing services in the District be employees of the Board. The law is to be interpreted as requiring each school district to employ at least one school nurse appropriately certified by the State Board of Examiners and "who is considered a teaching staff member for purposes of salary, tenure and evaluation, to perform duties expressly reserved to school nurses, and to oblige a local board to employ a sufficient number of school nurses to ensure the adequate provision of the duties specifically reserved for certified school nurses. . . .Other nursing services in the school setting may be provided by any qualified person, licensed and supervised, where the duties so require, in accordance with nursing law. . . .there is nothing in the controlling statute that would preclude a board from contracting for the services of noncertificated nurses, to perform other health-related services." The C. points out that each of the nurses provided by DOH is fully licensed and registered in accordance with the State Board of Nursing. Accordingly, each of these contracting nurses may perform services other than "school nursing services" and may assist certified school nurses in the performance of duties reserved by law to school nurses. Contracted nurses holding educational services certificates with endorsements as school nurses may not perform school nurse services nor may contract nurses holding county substitute's certifies substitute for certified school nurses as such substitutes must be employed by the District. The Board may not have noncertificated and/or certificated contracted nurses independently performing functions reserved to the school nurse and then simply have the school nurse review and approve the results. The role of noncertificated and contract nurses must be limited to assistance. The C. finds that no violation of the Interlocal Services Act occurred. The C. directs the Board to review its contract with DOH and its attendance job descriptions to ensure that the nursing duties do not conflict with duties specifically reserved for certificated school nurses employed by the District and to make such revisions as may be necessary in these documents and in the District staffing patterns. Within 120 days of the date of this decision, the revisions are to be submitted to the Essex County Superintendent of Schools for review and approval.

Petitioner was employed as a teacher of Spanish from 1970-71 through the 1974-75 school years. She was on maternity leave from September 1, 1975 through August 31, 1976. Her teaching position was eliminated on April, 1976. In August, 1995, there was a vacancy for a teacher of Spanish. The Board did not notify Petitioner of the vacancy, but appointed a non-tenured person to fill the position. The issues are: Did the Board violate Petitioner's tenure and seniority rights by hiring a nontenured teacher for the position of teacher of Spanish? Did Petitioner waive her reemployment rights? Was the petition timely filed? The ALJ notes that "A waiver requires a clear, unequivocal and decisive act by a party." Petitioner was aware in September, 1995 that another individual had been appointed to the position of teacher of Spanish. "However, this circumstance standing alone does not warrant the inference that Petitioner intended to waive her right to remain on the preferred eligible list for the position of teacher of Spanish." Under these circumstances, the ALJ concludes that the Board violated Petitioner's reemployment rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. The C. concurs. Despite her lengthy absence from the profession, Petitioner holds the appropriate certification and endorsement for the position. The Board is directed to reinstate Petitioner as a teacher of Spanish with back pay and related emoluments from June 30, 1997.

REDUCTION IN WORK YEAR
CD William Buckley, Petitioner, v.
7/99 Trenton Board of Education, Mercer County, Respondent.
BUC July 30, 1999 (#247-99)

xSalaries

Petitioner asserts that the Board violated his tenure and seniority rights when it reassigned him from a twelve-month position to a ten-month position. The Board prorated his twelve-month annual salary to reflect the new ten-month work schedule. Petitioner asserts that the Board is required to maintain his annual salary frozen at its former level until the annual salary on the guide for industrial arts teacher becomes equal to or greater than his last annual salary for the twelve month assignment as job developer. The C. determines that under the factual circumstances presented herein, Petitioner was the subject of a reduction in force, not a transfer as the Board avers. Because the Board acted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 to abolish Petitioner's twelve month position and reassign him to a ten month position in accordance with his tenure and seniority entitlements, its action to reduce Petitioner's annual salary is permissible because his ten month salary is prorated based upon the salary for his prior twelve month position and his rate of salary has been maintained.
On September 16, 1999, the C. remanded the matter to the OAL for further proceedings limited to those issues specified in the record which have not been decided by this decision. (#247+99 Amended Decision)

REDUCTION IN WORK YEAR
CD Rocco DiMaggio, Petitioner, v.
7/99 Trenton Board of Education, Mercer County, Respondent.
DIM July 8, 1999 (#219-99)

xSalaries
Petitioner asserts that the Board violated his tenure and seniority rights when it reassigned him from a twelve-month position to a ten-month position. The Board prorated his twelve-month annual salary to reflect the new ten-month work schedule. Petitioner was formerly the job placement coordinator at the high school. After a RIF, Petitioner was assigned to the ten-month position as teacher of auto mechanics/small engines. The parties have agreed that the Board will assign Petitioner to the auto mechanics position at the high school and place him on a preferred eligible list for teacher specialist, CIE coordinator and job placement coordinator. The remaining issue concerns Petitioner's salary. The C. determines that Petitioner was subject to a RIF and not a transfer. A reduction in a tenured staff member's salary/compensation and benefits is permissible when it is a result of a board's action to effectuate a reduction in force pursuant to its authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. It was permissible for Respondent in this matter to reduce Petitioner's annual salary since the Board maintained Petitioner's rate of salary based on his prior twelve-month position.

The Board asserts that "J.G.A>" is not entitled to a free public education in its District simply because his father is the owner of property and a taxpayer in the District. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:1-1-14.14, the ALJ dismisses the Petition and orders Petitioners to pay tuition to the Board for the 1997-98 school year and pre and post-judgment interest. The C. does not accept that pre-judgment interest should be awarded to the Board since the record is insufficient to persuade him that the actions of Petitioners are ascribable to bad faith or a deliberate violation of law or regulation. An award of post-judgment interest is inappropriate since a claim for such interest would only arise if the Petitioners fail to satisfy the judgment awarded in this decision within 60 days of its award.

SC-A Woodbury Heights Board of Education, Plaintiff-Respondent, v.
3/99 Sarkis J. Starr, Defendant-Appellant.
WOO Superior Court, Appellate Division
March 25, 1999
On April 28, 1995, the C. awarded tuition to the Board for attendance by Defendant's grandson at a Woodbury Heights public school. Defendant kept appeals pending, thus allowing his grandson to spend three years in Woodbury Heights. Now, the Defendant appeals the Law Division judgment against him awarding tuition for three years' attendance by his grandson at the District high school. The Law Division concluded that James and his mother lived in another municipality. The Superior Court, Appellant Division, holds Defendant liable for tuition for the 1994-95 school year and reverses the tuition liability for the 1992-93 and 1993-94 school years.

xJob Injuries xWorkers' Compensation

Petitioner asserts that she had been disabled due to a work related injury. She filed a workers' compensation claim. Petitioner alleges that the Board did not pay her the statutory sick leave salary she is entitled to pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. She maintains that the Board improperly charged her accumulated sick leave for absences caused by her injury. Petitioner's workers' compensation case was resolved and the Board reinstated days which it had deducted from her sick leave account. Since the issue involving the education laws has been resolved as a result of the decision in the workers' compensation case, the C. dismisses the matter with prejudice.

xCustodial and Maintenance Staff xTimeliness

Petitioners, school custodians, became employees of the Respondent Board after the breakup of the Union County Regional High School District in 1996. Petitioners contend that Respondent Board failed to recognize their appropriate level of salary when they transferred. The Board seeks to dismiss the Petition as untimely under the ninety day rule, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2c. The Board points out that when Petitioners were placed on its negotiated salary guide, each received a salary increase from their prior year's compensation as employees of the dissolved district. It maintains that what Petitioners are objecting to is that there are existing District custodians with less seniority who are making more money than they are. The Board asserts that the past practice in the District has been to fix custodians' salary on factors other than seniority. The C. dismisses the Petition as untimely. Any right or benefit to be afforded Petitioners is wholly predicated upon services they previously rendered as regional district employees and does not fall within the narrow prescriptions delineated in Lavin which might entitle them to a waiver of the mandatory filing timelines. The C. finds no compelling or exceptional circumstances to warrant relaxation or waiver of the 90-day rule. Petitioners received no loss, in either salary or benefits, to contravene the protection guaranteed by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64. Petition dismissed.

Superior Court, Appellate Division (320 N.J. Super. 1)

xReduction in Force

Plaintiff Picot was riffed in December, 1986. At this time, he had twenty-one years of service in the District including credit for work experience and was placed at the top of the salary guide. In August, 1993, the Board offered employment to Picot for the 1993-94 school year at a salary corresponding to the highest level of the Board's salary guide and a longevity allowance. Picot contends that he was also entitled to the three "off guide" increases that were granted to teaching staff during the time of his hiatus from school employment. The Court points out that no provision in the Agreement obligates the Board to grant "off guide" increases to reinstated teachers when the teacher was employed outside of the employment of the Board. The decision by the Superior Court, Law Division Warren County which entered summary judgment for the Board is affirmed.

The District operates two high schools: Ramapo High School and Indian Hills High School. Petitioners argue that the District's revised attendance policy will result in an enrollment shift between the two high schools. They maintain that this will jeopardize the delivery of a thorough and efficient education for all students. The C. finds that the Board's decision was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. There is no clear and convincing evidence that would warrant reversal of the Board's lawful action. Petition dismissed.

She asserts that his placement in Honors General Science at the junior high school was based on lack of transportation to the high school. Chemistry II is an 11th grade class offered at 3rd period. The superintendent concluded that the class level was inappropriate for the student and that transporting him to one class was impracticable. CD Frank Carney, Petitioner, v.
8/99 Union City Board of Education, Hudson County, Respondent.

xContract Cancellations xCustodial and Maintenance Staff

Petitioner was a tenured custodian. He seeks to have the Board's attempt to consider his employment forfeited after he was found guilty of harassment of a fellow employee at their work site, N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4C, a petty disorderly persons offense. The judge declined to issue an order of forfeiture of Respondent's employment. The Board seeks forfeiture of employment under N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2. Because of a recent amendment to this statute, Respondent asserts that tenure charges must be filed against him if he is to be terminated from his employment. Since the Board has not brought such charges, Respondent asserts that he is entitled to be reinstated to his position with recovery of full salary and benefits. The C. finds that if a court declines to act to order forfeiture of public employment, then the only means for a board to seek removal of that individual from its employment is through the certifying of tenure charges. Back pay and benefits owed to Petitioner must be paid by the board in a reasonable period of time.

SEXUAL HARASSMENT
SC Davis, as next friend of LaShonda D., v.
5/99 Monroe County Board of Education et al.
DAV Supreme Court of the United States
May 24, 1999

Petitioner filed suit against Respondents seeking damages for the sexual harassment of her daughter by "G.F.," a fifth-grade classmate at a public elementary school. Petitioner alleges that the Respondents' indifference to "G.F.'s" persistent sexual advances towards LaShonda creating an "intimidating, hostile, offensive, and abuse school environment that violated Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972. The Supreme Court concludes that private damages action may be filed against a school board in cases of student-on-student harassment "only where the funding recipient acts with deliberate indifference to known acts of harassment in its programs or activities. Moreover, we conclude that such an action will lie only for harassment that is so severe, pervasive, and objectively offensive that it effectively bars the victim's access to an educational opportunity or benefit."

Superior Court, Appellate Division [321 N.J. Super. 67]
May 4, 1999

Plaintiffs complain that the Board and the school official defendants were negligent in failing to protect Diane Hamel, a student, from psychological injuries due to harassment from fellow students. Plaintiffs allege that students habitually teased and physically assaulted Diane because she was a good student. They claim that the harassment consisted of daily pushing, shoving and kicking. Plaintiffs state that they informed the superintendent of the harassment and met with the principal. After collapsing in class, Diane was diagnosed as suffering from permanent post-traumatic stress disorder. Plaintiffs seek damages against the Board defendants based on negligence, tortious conduct and negligent supervision. The Superior Court, Appellate Division, finds "no authority for the proposition embraced by the trial court that a local board of education, a public entity, is entitled to the statutory immunity simply because it is a not-for-profit entity and has exclusive educational purposes." The Court holds that the Charitable Immunity Act is not intended to provide immunity to public entitles, such as local school boards. Reversed and remanded.

SPECIAL EDUCATION
SC-US Cedar Rapids Community School District, v.
3/99 Garret F., a minor, by his mother and next friend, Charlene F.
CED March 3, 1999

The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act was enacted to "assure that all children with disabilities have available to them. . .a free appropriate public education which emphasizes special education and related services designed to meet their unique needs." The issue in this case is "whether the definition of 'related services' in Section 1401(a)(17) requires a public school district in a participating State to provide a ventilator-dependent student with certain nursing services during school hours." Respondent Garret F. is a ventilator-dependent quadriplegic who is a high school sophomore, attending regular school classes. He requires a responsible individual nearby to attend to certain physical needs while he attends school. Until 1993, Garret's family employed a licensed practical nurse. In 1993, Garret's mother requested the District to pay for the health care services that Garret requires during the school day. The District believes that it is not legally obligated to provide continuous one-on-one nursing services. The Court quotes a "related services" definition determined in Irving Independent School District v. Tatro. The requested services are supportive services since Garret cannot attend school unless they are provided. Secondly, the services were not excluded as "medical services." Services provided by a physician, except for diagnostic and evaluation purposes, are subject to the medical services exclusion. Services provided by a nurse or qualified lay person are not. "Continuous services may be more costly and may require additional school personnel, but they are not thereby more 'medical.'" The District contends that the existing school health staff cannot meet all of their responsibilities and also provide for Garret. The Court agrees that the District has legitimate financial concerns, but contends that cost is not included in the definition of "related services." The Court orders the "District to fund necessary "related services" in order to help guarantee that students like Garret are integrated into the public schools."

SPECIAL EDUCATION
CD Highlands Board of Education, Petitioner, v.
12/99 Middletown Board of Education, Monmouth County, and the HIG State of New Jersey, Department of Education, Division of Finance, Respondents.
December 23, 1999 (#421-99)

"M.M.C." is a child classified for special education. The Division asserts that the Highlands Board is his district of residency and the Board is financially responsible for his placement. Except in 1990 when he resided with his mother, "M.M.C." has been placed in foster homes and institutions outside the District. DYFS has been ordered by the court to assume his custody. Therefore, the Board avers that the State must assume financial responsibility. The C. finds that the Highlands District was the district of residency for 1997-98. However, the C. remands the matter to the OAL in light of the repeal of N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)511 in July, 1998 and the C.'s decision in Prospect Park.

STATE AID
CD Lakewood Board of Education, Ocean County, Petitioner, v.
5/99 New Jersey Department of Education, Division of Finance, LAK Respondent.
May 19, 1999 (#154-99M)

The Board challenged the calculation of its District income that was used to determine State Aid entitlement for the 1998-99 school year. The C. finds that N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-15 provides Petitioner with the right of appeal. "Parameters of such appeals have not, as yet, been further explicated through rule or decisional law. Moreover, nowhere in the record is there any indication of what type or source petitioner might have relied upon to buttress with facts the claim of its petition that the district income wealth data relied upon by the Department were inaccurate." The C. orders the matter continued at the OAL for further proceedings as a contested case.

STATE AID
CD Middlesex County Educational Services Commission,
2/99 Petitioner, v.
MID New Jersey State Department of Education, Respondent.
February 5, 1999 (#24-99)

Petitioner seeks recalculation of a sum determined by audit to be due and returnable to the Department. The audit concluded that fraudulent activities by an employee occurred between July, 1986 and December, 1995. The Commission argues that because it recovered only fifty-seven percent of the funds embezzled, the recovery should be limited to that percentage of the amount the Department demands. The Department maintains that the Commission must refund the full amount because it was fraudulently charged to State and Federal sources by a Commission employee and the Commission has no legal basis for retaining any of these funds. Also, educational services commissions may not be profit making entities. The C. concurs and directs Petitioner to refund the monies.

STATE AID
CD Middlesex County Educational Services Commission, Petitioner, v.
4/99 New Jersey Department of Education, Respondent.
MID April 16, 1999 (#115-99)

The Teacher Quality Employment Act established a minimum salary of $18,500 for teachers. Chapter 9 of the Laws of 1986 amended the statute to include full-time teachers employed by the educational services commission. The Department argues that the receipt of TQEA monies limited the amount of money placed in the reserve account to any funds left over after the teachers' salary differentials were made. The law does not provide any authority for a district of ESC, to make the teachers' salary differential payments using other available funds and moving the TQEA funds to a reserve account. Therefore, the C. holds that if any Chapter 192-193 funds used by the Commission for teachers' salary differential payments, the funds were borrowed for this purpose and the Chapter 192-193 account had to be repaid once TQEA funds were received from the State. The $90,709 in Chapter 192-193 unused funds is to be returned to the Department as well as any interest earned on this amount.

Charges of unbecoming conduct were certified by the District against Respondent, a tenured teacher. The District alleges that Respondent failed to properly account for monies collected from students for the purpose of ordering class rings and caps and gowns during the 1996-97 school year. The investigation showed that Respondent was guilty of careless bookkeeping and sloppy money management, but not criminal intent to misappropriate money belonging to students. The parties have proposed a settlement whereby Respondent will lose pay for 120 days and make full restitution of all monies collected from students. The C. approves the parties' settlement.

Superior Court, Appellate Division
August 20, 1999

xIndemnification xLegal Fees

Cynthia Carney, a gym teacher observed Plaintiff, a student, in a locker room with her hand in another person's purse clenching money. Several students, including the owner of the purse, complained of missing money. Robert Zeoli, the school disciplinarian at the Sussex County Voational-Technical School, ordered Patricia Taranto, the school nurse, to conduct a body search on Plaintiff. Nothing was found. Plaintiff seeks both compensatory and punitive damages on allegations of constitutional and privacy violations, false imprisonment, assault and battery, negligence, slander and intentional infliction of emotional distress. Carney and Taranto cross-claimed against the Board for indemnification against any sums, including costs and counsel fees, to which they might be subjected by reason of the litigation under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6. On May 2, 1997, summary judgment was entered in favor of Respondents on Plaintiff's claims. A further order was entered against the Board on application by Respondents' separate counsel that granted fees and costs under the statute for successfully defending against the portions of the complaint which sought punitive damages. On appeal, the Board contends that it fulfilled its obligation to defray all costs of Respondents' defense of the civil action when it arranged for defense by Selective Insurance Company of America, the Board's insurer. The Company provided Carney and Taranto with counsel to defend against the compensatory damages claims, the insurer issued a reservation of rights letter declining to represent them to the extent claims for punitive damages were asserted. The Board contends that the "damages, losses and expenses" contemplated by the statute do not include separate attorneys' fees. The Court disagrees. "The legislative language clearly includes not only 'damages' but 'expenses'. . . .If costs of a successful defense against a criminal action (which necessitates purposeful conduct) will be indemnified, surely the Legislature no less intended that a successful defense in a civil action alleging an intentional tort would be embraced by N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6. If the insurance coverage secured by the Board is inadequate to discharge its statutory obligation, that is a problem which must be met by the Board, not by respondents." The Board also contends that since the New Jersey Education Association's advanced Respondents' legal fees and costs, they incurred no attorney's fees requiring reimbursement. The Court notes that Respondents are required to reimburse NJEA for any expenditure, including reasonable attorneys' fees and court costs, provided by it if they recover legal defense costs. The Court sees no indication that the statutory intent was to transfer the Board's legal obligations to Respondents' labor organization.

3/99 Appellants, v.
GUT Leo F. Kagholz, Commissioner of Education, Respondent, and Guttenberg Board of Education, Hudson County, Respondent.
March 3, 1999

xCertification xEquivalencies xSubcontracting xWaivers

This is an appeal from an equivalency granted to the Board by the C. on January 9, 1998, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3A-1.1 et seq. The equivalency was "to permit persons with a county substitute certificate and subject matter expertise to provide world language instruction." The Board had approved Berlitz International as its "World Language teacher." Appellants challenge the legality of the Board's proposal to subcontract with Berlitz to engage the services of individuals possessing only substitute certificates. The State Board notes that since "a county substitute certificate is not a teaching certificate and doesn't constitute appropriate certification issued by the State Board of Examiners . . .the equivalency granted by the C. operates to set aside the certification requirements for service as a foreign language teacher. . . .certification requirements establish the threshold qualifications for teaching staff members employed in the public school system throughout the state." The State Board of Education invalidates the equivalency granted by the C. in this case.

4/99 Deptford Board of Education, Gloucester County, Respondent.
"A.B." April 7, 1999 (#102-99)
Following an altercation, "S.B." was expelled from school on November 17, 1998. Despite a long history of discipline, including fifteen suspensions, "S.B." was not referred for evaluation and classification under IDEA. No home schooling has been provided "S.B." The matter is transferred to the Division of Special Education for such proceedings as are necessary to hear and determine the IDEA issue. The reasonableness of his suspension shall be held in abeyance under the IDEA claim has been resolved. The Board is ordered to begin providing home-based instructional services to "S.B."

The Board expelled Petitioner's daughter after it found her guilty of having assaulted another student on school property and during school hours. The C. accepts the Board's offer to pay for the cost of tuition of "I.B." at an alternative school located on the campus of the Atlantic County Community College on a temporary basis, pending outcome of the appeal on merits. The matter is returned to the OAL for further proceedings as may be necessary to conclude this case on its merits.

SUSPENSIONS AND EXPULSIONS
SC-A Marcus Hernandez, individually and by his guardian ad litem, 6/99 Peter Hernandez, Peter Hernandez and Emily Hernandez,
HER Plaintiffs-Respondents, v.
Don Bosco Preparatory High, Charles O' Sullivan, Father John Grinsell, and James M. Scanlon, Defendants-Appellants.
Superior Court, Appellate Division
June 8, 1999

This is the first decision on the procedural rights of a student expelled from a private high school. During his junior year at the private Roman Catholic boys school, Marcus received five detentions for misconduct. During the summer following his junior year, the assistant principal sent a letter to the Hernandez family stating that Marcus was going to be placed on disciplinary probation for the fall semester of his senior year because of his disciplinary problems. They signed the letter and returned it to the school and met with the assistant principal to review the matter. During the fall semester, Marcus was suspended for one day for arguing with a freshman student on the bus. During the spring semester, Marcus was summoned by the assistant principal on several occasions and questioned about prank calls to a teacher. He was also accused of using and selling steroids. The assistant principal again met with the Hernandez family and placed Marcus on indefinite suspension. The Disciplinary Committee and the School Director agreed that Marcus should be dismissed. He was denied a hearing to determine the nature of the charges against him and the grounds for dismissal. Appeals to the School Director and the Provincial Director were denied. The Student and Parent Handbook for the school provides that the school reserves the right to "suspend and, when circumstances warrant, to dismiss students whose behavior is disrespectful, recalcitrant, disruptive, immoral, illegal or which is at odds with promoting our school environment or is detrimental to the reputation of the school with regard to behavior occurring inside or outside the school." Plaintiff filed a complaint alleging improper dismissal that prevented him from securing scholarships and admission to certain colleges. The Court holds that "a private high school, when expelling a student for misconduct, must follow a two-prong process. First, the private high school must adhere to its own established procedures for dismissal. Second, in executing the dismissal, the school must follow a procedure that is fundamentally fair." In this matter, the student handbook sets forth the procedure for expulsion which the school followed before dismissing Marcus. The procedure followed was fundamentally fair. The Court dismisses the complaint against the school with prejudice.

CD "J.O.," Petitioner, v.
3/99 Sterling High School District Board of Education, Camden County,
"J.O." Respondent.
March 23, 1999 (#89-99)

Petitioner is accused of planning a retaliatory attack on another student. He claims that the Board imposed penalties upon him greater than those imposed on others for similar violations based upon his race. He claims that his suspension was unduly harsh because "it deprived him not only of the opportunity to attend class but also because it prevented him from being Captain of Sterling's basketball team." The ALJ finds that the Board did not act unreasonably in finding Petitioner responsible for the attack on "J.C." or in disciplining him for his actions. The C. concurs and dismisses the Petition.

xTimeliness

Petitioner appeals the Board's expulsion of her son from its public school. She contends that the Board's action was arbitrary, capricious and/or unreasonable and seeks his reinstatement. The C. finds that the matter was untimely filed. 6/99 Collingswood Board of Education, Camden County, Respondent.
"V.A." June 29, 1999 (#209-99E)

"K.M.A." changed the message on the computer shut down screen in the computer lab to read "if you turn me off I will blow up." He was arrested and suspended for ten days. An expulsion hearing was conducted by the Board. Petitioner argues that her son did not receive a preliminary hearing and did not have a full hearing before the Board within twenty-one days of suspension. She also alleges various improprieties in the conduct of the Board's hearing. The C. dismisses the claim of delay on the part of the Board. The procedural errors at the hearing are insignificant since "K.M.A.'s" conduct was admitted and the hearing was conducted solely to determine the appropriate penalty. Home instruction is being supplied to the student. Emergent relief is denied. The matter is remanded to the OAL for further proceedings on the allegation that the Board's action to expel "K.M.A." was an abuse of its discretionary authority.

3/99 Atlantic City Board of Education, Atlantic County, Respondent.
WIL March 1, 1999 (#50-99 E)

Petitioner, the school superintendent, avers that the Board's certification of tenure charges against him at a public meeting constituted a technical violation of the laws governing the tenure process sufficient to warrant dismissal of the charges. The Board maintains that it was merely memorializing in public an action that it had duly taken in private session in accordance with law. The C. finds that this action was a clear violation of the Tenure Employees Hearing Act and its implementing regulations, as well as a violation of the consent order between the parties. However, dismissal of the tenure charges is not an appropriate relief in the present context. Petitioner's motion to appeal denied, State Board of Education, May 5, 1999.

Petitioner asserts that the Board failed to recognize his tenure rights as a principal with the District and his entitlement to the vacant position of principal in the high school. Petitioner was principal of the intermediate school from 1989 until 1992 when another staff member with greater seniority was appointed principal after the abolishment of his title. The Board wanted to retain another staff member in Petitioner's previous title as Director of Special Education. Therefore, the Board appointed Petitioner, with his concurrence, to the position of assistant principal of the intermediate school. The parties agreed that Petitioner would continue to be paid as a principal and retain his tenure rights. The retirement of the high school principal resulted in the first vacancy of the title of principal in the District since the reorganization. The C. grants summary decision to Petitioner based upon his tenure rights as a principal in light of the court's holding in Schienholz et al.

GRA October 20, 1999 (#331-99L)

In the course of the tenure hearing in process, counsel for Respondent objected to questions asked by the Board's counsel in the direct examination of the human resource specialist for the Board. These questions concerned Respondent's alleged "pattern of conduct of not drug testing students at Wayne Valley High School prior to the 1995-96 school year." Respondent argued that such evidence is outside the scope of the tenure charges. The ALJ sustained Respondent's objection, thereby precluding the Board from brining to the record any evidence of these prior incidents which took place in 1991 and 1994. The C. overturns the ALJ's order. Respondent cannot credibly claim that he has been prejudiced by the Board's introduction of the evidence.

xAbsenteeism

The Board certified tenure charges of excessive absenteeism and incapacity against Respondent, a tenured custodian. Respondent has agreed to apply for disability retirement. The parties have settled. The C. rejects the settlement. The C. remands the matter to the OAL for revision of the settlement or, if the parties concur, for an abeyance of proceedings pending a determination by PERS on Respondent's disability retirement application.
On remand, the C. noted that Respondent has been out of work for three years due to a work related injury. The Board has demonstrated a negative effect from Respondent's prolonged absence. There is no indication when or whether Respondent will be able to resume his duties. The C. rules that the appropriate penalty under such circumstances is dismissal, notwithstanding that Respondent's absenteeism constituted a legitimate use of sick leave and the possibility remains that he might ultimately become physically capable of performing his duties. Respondent is dismissed from his position as a tenured custodian as of the date of this decision, July 22, 1999 (#230-99).

LYN December 13, 1999 (#413-99)

The District certified tenure charges against Respondent, a tenured custodian (Supervisor of Buildings and Grounds). Charges involve his accepting from a subordinate employee monies extorted by him from other employees of the District who were under Respondent's direct supervision. Respondent did not submit a reply to the Board's charges against him nor communicated with the C. to request an extension of time within which to file a response. The C. determines that these charges constitute unbecoming conduct and are sufficient to warrant Respondent's dismissal from his tenured position. The C. notes that the Board's suspension of Respondent without pay on August 12, 1999 contravened N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 since Respondent was neither under indictment nor had tenure charges been certified against him as of that date. Therefore, summary judgment is granted to the District that Respondent is dismissed from his tenured position as a custodian as of the date of this order. The Board is directed to pay Respondent his full salary and emoluments from August 12 until September 29, 1999, the date of its certification of tenure charges against him.

xDiscriminatory Practices

The District filed tenure charges against Respondent, a tenured custodian. It claims that he was insubordinate and/or failed to carry out his assigned duties to the extent that his dismissal is warranted. Respondent maintains that the charges are a subterfuge for discrimination based on religion (Islam) and national origin (Egyptian). In September, 1996, Respondent filed a complaint with the Division on Civil Rights. He was suspended on May 6, 1997. There were complaints of inadequately cleaned areas by the principals of the schools to which he was assigned. Respondent was in two altercations with another janitor. The principal complained that he frequently had to mediate between Respondent and other custodians as Respondent felt that everyone was against him. He questioned every assignment. He was disgruntled wherever he was assigned and always measured his work load against the duties of other custodians. Respondent was in two altercations with another janitor. Respondent injured his back on March 11, 1996 and was in and out of work for a few months. Respondent claims that the administrators hampered his ability to attend physical therapy. His work schedule was adjusted to permit him to attend physical therapy. The ALJ finds that this is not an issue. The ALJ also finds that the principal neither said nor did anything to suggest religious or ethnic intolerance. The C. concurs that the Board has demonstrated by a preponderance of credible evidence that Respondent is guilty of conduct unbecoming a tenured custodian because of his hostile and inappropriate behavior toward his coworkers, his supervisors and other District staff as well as his repeated insubordination. The C. dismisses Respondent from his position as a tenure custodian as of the date of this decision. The State Board of Education directs Appellant to file a brief in support of his appeal within 20 days from the date of this decision, January 5, 2000.

The Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against Respondent, a tenured custodian. He admitted that he took money from the student activities fund which is kept in a locked cabinet in the guidance office at the middle school. Criminal charges were filed against him. Respondent pled guilty to a disorderly persons offense. The C. holds that summary disposition in favor of the Board is appropriate since Respondent has failed to show that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary hearing. Respondent's action constitutes conduct unbecoming a tenured employee and dismissal is the appropriate penalty.

The Board preferred tenure charges against Respondents, tenured custodians. The charges allege incapacity and excessive absenteeism. In June, 1996, Respondent Vereen suffered injuries to both knees while on the job. He is back at work on a modified schedule. Respondent Prusakowski has injured in December, 1994 and has not returned to work since. The Board argues that Respondents' absences have had a negative effect on its ability to provide sanitary and secure facilities. The C. finds that the Board has demonstrated a negative effect and orders their dismissal "notwithstanding that their absenteeism constituted a legitimate use of sick leave and the possibility remains that one, or both, of them might ultimately, at some point not presently foreseeable, once again become physically capable of performing their duties."

xCorporal Punishment
The first charge alleges that Respondent, a tenured educational media specialist, committed acts of corporal punishment "with the intent to discipline, harm, injure, punish, intimidate, or otherwise embarrass pupils under her charge." It is asserted that on October 23, 1996, Respondent grabbed and forced "Z.L.," a fifth grade student, into a small, secluded area behind the circulation desk and made her stand there for forty minutes. Respondent is also accused of slapping "Z.L." The second charge avers that Respondent failed to observe or prevent a pupil, "L.G.," from leaving the classroom on October 9, 1996. This charge was dismissed. After examining the evidence, the C. notes substantive inconsistencies among the testimony of student witnesses which raise substantial questions regarding the veracity and accuracy of their renditions of what occurred in the library between Respondent and "Z.L." Also, the manner in which the incident was investigated by administrators raises questions regarding the credibility of the witnesses. The C. finds that evidence shows only that Respondent left "Z.L." unsupervised for five minutes. The C. imposes the penalty of one month's loss of salary for leaving "Z.L." unsupervised.

xAnti-Union Animus xUnfair Labor Practices

The Board certified tenure charges against Respondent and suspended her without pay. The C. referred the matter to the OAL for disposition. The Association filed an unfair labor practice charge with PERC alleging that the tenure charges were filed to interfere with Dirk's role as Association president and to discriminate against her because of protected activity. The Board denied Respondent her 1999-2000 salary increments. The Association amended the ULP charge to include the increment withholding. An appeal of the increment withholding was filed with the C. The C. and Chair of the PERC Commission agreed to consolidate the unfair practice charge and the tenure charges. The Commission will consider all issues regarding the unfair practice charge concerning the increment withholding, including whether legitimate business reasons motivated the withholding and whether it would have occurred for such reasons without Respondent's protected activities. The same analysis will be made by the Commission regarding the tenure charges and increment withholding. The matter will then be sent to the C. to determine whether the tenure charges were warranted under education law. The increment withholding petition filed before the C. will be dismissed because the C. does not have jurisdiction over withholdings of increments for persons who are not teaching staff members. The parties' settlement was approved before the matters were heard.

Tenured teachers and other certificated staff employed by the Department hold employment "during good behavior and efficiency." The New Jersey Commission for the Blind and Visually Impaired is an agency within the Department. It charges that Respondent had sexual relations with his client while he was supposed to be providing instruction to her and that he falsified work records, including client itineraries, time sheets and travel vouchers. It is alleged that he threatened and intimidated the client when she became pregnant. Respondent claims that the relationship was between consenting adults and he never had falsified his work records. The parties have settled. The Board found no fraudulent actions on the part of Respondent. The C. does not understand why the Board did not investigate the relevant facts prior to the filing of the tenure charges. He emphasizes to this Board and all others that a failure to investigate fully alleged serious misconduct of an employee before the filing and certification of tenure charges can result, as is apparently the case herein, in a board's inability to prosecute fully the charges it certifies to the C. Such a failure carries the major consequence of needless expenditure of large amounts of taxpayer money, to say nothing of the potential impact on the personal and professional reputation of the person who has been charged with serious misconduct. DOM June 23, 1999 (#198-99)

The Board filed tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and other just cause against Respondent, a high school business education teacher. The ALJ denied a request that the matter be consolidated with separate tenure charges previously filed against Respondent. Respondent entered a plea of guilty to one count of Criminal contempt, 4th degree. He disobeyed a restraining order of the court by making harassing phone calls and engaging in other harassing behavior against "L.S." Furthermore, "L.S.'s" daughter had to be removed from Respondent's class which had a negative educational impact upon her since there was no other accounting class to which she could have been reassigned. Respondent ascribed his conduct to psychological problems over which he had little or no control. The C. concurs with the ALJ that Respondent's behavior regarding the incidents listed in the Board's tenure charges constitutes conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. The C. points out that dismissal may be imposed upon a tenured employee for unbecoming conduct "even if such conduct did not occur in the course of a teacher's employment." The C. notes that Respondent does not appreciate the significance of his behavior. The C. affirms the ALJ's findings that Respondent's conduct is sufficient to warrant his dismissal, "even where his behavior is viewed independently of the prior finding of unbecoming conduct, and even where his psychological condition may, as respondent alleges, have contributed to his behavior." The C. finds that "respondent's actions in this matter evidence a lack of self-restraint and controlled behavior which are compelled by his position as a professional employee in a public school system holding great influence over the lives of children." Respondent is dismissed from his tenured position as a tenured teaching staff member as of the date of this decision. The matter is referred to the State Board of Examiners for action against his certificate if deemed appropriate.

Respondent, a tenured teacher, was suspended without pay by the Board based on his indictment by the Cape May County Grand Jury. Tenure charges were filed. The parties have settled. The C. does not approve the parties' settlement. "Having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, the Board may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges need no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue them." Neither the initial decision nor the Settlement Agreement sufficiently explains to the C. how it meets the Cardonick standards. xInsurance Fraud

District brought tenure charges against Respondent, alleging conduct unbecoming a teacher based on his participation in a scheme to defraud the State Health Benefits Program by conspiring with Dr. Carl Lichtman. Respondent allegedly provided information used to submit fraudulent claims to the insurance carrier for payment for psychological services in return for a share of the fees collected. Respondent denies participating in the scheme. The C. concludes that the credible evidence establishes that: Respondent made a conscious decision to involve himself in what he knew or should have known was a questionable enterprise; Respondent actively pursued contact with Lichtman; and Respondent had his wife participate in the scheme. The C. orders Respondent dismissed from his tenured teaching position as of the date of this decision. The matter shall be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action as it deems appropriate.
On June 2, 1999, the State Board of Education dismissed the appeal for failure to perfect.

It is alleged that Respondent engaged in conduct which defrauded the District, resulting in the theft of federally received Title I monies. Respondent avers that any failure on his part to instruct was due to the assignment of other duties or cancellation of basic skills classes by the principal. However, the investigation of the charges does not support a claim of fraudulent conduct since Respondent was performing duties assigned by his building principal. The C. does not understand why the District did not engage in a full investigation of the relevant facts prior to the certification of the tenure charges. The C. approves the parties' settlement.

xCorporal Punishment

The Department filed tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against Respondent, a tenured Community Facilitation Teacher at a school for severely developmentally disabled children. He is accused of hitting a student by another staff member. Witnesses testified that the student would frequently flail his arms about in an effort to hit others. Standard procedure was to grasp and hold his wrist. The ALJ notes that the staff member who accuses Respondent is antagonistic towards him. The C. agrees with the ALJ that the record does not support a conclusion that Respondent was guilty of conduct unbecoming a teacher. The tenure charges are dismissed.

xRetirement

Tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, insubordination, inefficiency and/or other just cause were brought against Respondent, a tenured teaching staff member. The Board asserts that Respondent has been chronically absent or tardy from her teaching duties, disrupting the instructional process and resulting in a detrimental impact on the educational environment. The Board alleges that Respondent took a group of students on an unauthorized field trip during the school day, took an unapproved conference day for the trip and refused to cancel it upon direction from the superintendent. Respondent's application for Ordinary Disability Retirement was approved by the Board of Trustees of TPAF, effective September 1, 1998. This matter is dismissed due to Respondent's retirement. xTimeliness

Tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, insubordination, inefficiency and/or other just cause were brought against Respondent, a tenured teaching staff member. Respondent has been consistently absent from or late to her class, adversely affecting instruction to students. It is alleged that Respondent failed to provide effective classroom instruction. She is accused of inappropriate behavior by sending recalcitrant, combative memos to her supervisors in response to evaluations and constructive criticism by her supervisors. The Board asserts that she failed to follow administrative policies and allowed students who were not registered in her class to remain in her class for entire periods. It alleges that she used inappropriate language in front of students. The C. concluded that Respondent's response had not been submitted within the 15 day period required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 and deemed each count of the charges to have been admitted. The C. grants summary judgment to the Board, upholds the tenure charges and orders her dismissal from her tenured position. The matter shall be referred to the State Board of Examiners for action against her certificate as it deems appropriate.
Respondent contends that her response to the tenure charges was filed in a timely manner. She mailed it on the fifteenth day following certification of charges. On October 6, 1999, the State Board of Education finds that the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 as amended in 1998 did not provide the Respondent with clear notice that a written response to the tenure charges was required to have been received by the C. within 15 days following certification of the charges. Therefore, the State Board of Education finds that it would be inequitable to hold Respondent to the knowledge that mailing her response within 15 days after certification of the charges would not be sufficient to satisfy the statutory deadline. Accordingly, the State Board of Education reverses the C.'s determination and remands the matter to him for further proceedings on the merits of the charges.

xAnti-Union Animus xCorporal Punishment

The District filed tenure charges of conduct unbecoming a teacher because of physical abuse of students against Respondent, a tenured teacher. Three incidents involving three students were cited. The first two incidents were found to be unsubstantiated by DYFS. DYFS substantiated the third allegation of physical abuse and placed Respondent's name into its Central Registry of child abusers. Respondent and the student were arguing and cursing at each other. The student, "A.F.," tripped and fell to the floor. While on the floor, he yelled threats at Respondent. Respondent leaned over and pressed down on "A.F.'s" neck for five seconds while "A.F." continued to scream at him. The security guard came up and took "A.F." into the office. Respondent is accused of shoving "R.R." out into the hall with such force as to cause the student to strike his head against the opposite wall of the hall. Respondent avers that the District seeks to remove him from his position because of anti-union animus. He is the teachers' union representative and has complained about the physical condition of the school. Respondent was not permitted to introduce any evidence regarding this claim. The charges against him were not based upon any protected activity in which he was engaged. Furthermore, the nature of the charges are such that, removal would be required if he were found guilty and the presence or absence of anti-union animus is irrelevant. The ALJ finds, and the C. concurs, that Respondent's employment records show that there were aspects of Respondent's dealing with student disciplinary problems that were troubling to the school administration from 1994 and that recommendations were made to him on how to improve his performance in this area. The C. finds that the District has proven, by a preponderance of credible evidence that Respondent's actions towards "A.F." and "R.R." constitute corporal punishment and conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. The Board is ordered to dismiss Respondent as of the date of this decision. The matter is referred to the State Board of Examiners for action against his certificate, as it deems appropriate.

xJob Injuries

The District filed a tenure charge with the C. alleging that Respondent, a tenured teacher, was incapacitated from performing his duties. Respondent contends that the Board failed to comply with its obligations under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 which provides that he is entitled to receive up to one year of salary if he is absent from his employment as a result of a personal injury "caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment." Respondent claims that his disability is related to a work connected injury which occurred when he witnessed an accident in class in which a student lost three fingers while using power equipment. He claims that the Board has illegally charged his absence against his accumulated sick leave. The C. determines that Respondent is incapacitated from performing his responsibilities as a teacher of industrial arts. The C. dismisses Respondent from his tenured position as of the date of this decision and refers the matter to the State Board of Examiners.

Subsequent to the certification of the charges, further investigation determined that the charges were unsubstantiated. The parties have settled. The C. rejects the parties' settlement. The record does not provide the C. with the newly discovered information which prevents the District from proceeding on the charges. "To approve such a settlement without further explication as to why the charges are now unsubstantiated would be extremely difficult in light of the allegation that respondent was absent from her teaching position for approximately 302 days over a four-year period." Respondent was advised that this attendance was unsatisfactory. His increments were held for the 1997-98 and 1999-2000 school years. Respondent failed to report to work for the 1999-2000 school year. xAbsenteeism Tenure charges of chronic and excessive absenteeism, unbecoming conduct and abandonment of position were filed against Respondent, a tenured teacher, by the District. From January, 1997 to March, 1999, Respondent was absent from her duties 265 days, thereby disrupting the delivery of education and continuity of instruction to the pupils of the District. She is accused of unbecoming conduct. Respondent submitted Sick Day Donor Program Request Forms to the Division of Health Services, pursuant to which certain staff members had purported to give Respondent use of their sick days. She was credited with and received payment for these sick days. It was later determined that these forms were either altered or contained forged signatures, resulting in a theft and improper payment of public funds. Respondent stated that she would return to work on March 1, 1999, but has not done so. The Board charges that this constitutes abandonment of position. Respondent has not applied to these allegations. Therefore, the C. upholds the charges and orders Respondent's dismissal as of the date of this decision. The matter shall be referred to the State Board of Examiners for action as deemed appropriate against Respondent's teaching certificates.

xInsurance Fraud

The District filed charges alleging conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member against Respondent. Respondent provided personal information about herself and son to Carl H. Lichtman, a psychologist. Lichtman admitted to involvement in a scheme to defraud insurance carriers, including the State Health Benefits Program by submitting false claims for psychological services purportedly rendered to insureds and/or their dependents. Lichtman submitted false claims for services rendered under Respondent's name and her son's. Respondent received checks totaling over $5,585 from Lichtman which represented 25% of the total fees collected by him from SHBP. Part of this money represented a finder's fee for other employees to whom Respondent referred Lichtman. Respondent protests that the District has not satisfied its burden of proving the charges against her by a preponderance of the believable evidence. The C. is in full accord with the ALJ that it "defies credulity to believe that a professional person who provided personal information to a person whom she had never met would simply accept substantial sums of money without questioning why she was receiving them." The C. concludes that Respondent "engaged in knowing and intentional participation in conduct with a purpose to defraud and introduced others to the fraudulent scheme." The C. determines that the charges are "sufficiently flagrant" to warrant's Respondent's dismissal from her employment. The matter shall be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action, if deemed appropriate, against Respondent's certificate.

xCriminal Charges

The C. determines that the Board's action to approve certification of the charges prior to the expiration of the 15-day period afforded by law to the employee to respond to such charges constituted a substantial failure to comply with the procedural mandates governing the institution of tenure charges, necessitating the dismissal, without prejudice, of these charges. The C. notes that the tenure charges alleging six counts of unbecoming conduct are serious in nature. He had been arrested and charted with criminal sexual contact involving two female students and official misconduct. This determination does not serve to preclude the Board from reconsidering them following proper compliance with the applicable statutory and regulatory mandates. Since the Respondent has not been indicted nor has the Board validly certified tenure charges against him, Respondent is entitled to full salary and emoluments for the school year until such time as either of these events may occur. After the C.'s decision to dismiss the tenure charges, the Board served Respondent with a second set of charges. After giving him 15 days to respond, the Board certified those charges to the C. and once again suspended Respondent without pay. On November 18, 1999, the c. denied the Board's motion for a stay of his October 21st decision. The Board filed a motion for a stay of the C.'s decision with the State Board. On April 5, 2000, the State Board of Education reversed the C.'s determination to dismiss the August, 1999 tenure charges, but restrained the Board from completing certification of those charges pending disposition of the criminal charges filed against Respondent. Given the Respondent's assertion of his Ott rights, the State Board of Education upholds his suspension without pay as of September 7, 1999. The Board must provide the Respondent with the opportunity to respond to the tenure charges following the conclusion of the criminal proceedings. After consideration of the Respondent's response, the Board may then determine to complete certification of the charges by transmitting them to the C.

Respondent was arrested for possession of cocaine and drug related paraphernalia and driving with a suspended license. On November 4, 1996, the superintendent suspended Respondent without pay, effective November 1st, as a result of his guilty plea and pending the filing of tenure charges against him. He asserts that his suspension should have been with pay from November 1st until December 16, 1996, when the Board voted to certify tenure charges against him. Mr. Morton further asserts that he is entitled to continuation of his full salary effective April 16, 1997 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 and 6-14. The C. finds that the Board has proven the charges of unbecoming conduct. Respondent is ordered dismissed from his tenured position as of the date of this decision. The District brought charges of unbecoming conduct and neglect of duty against Respondent based on a series of incidents in February, 1996 and during the 1996-97 school year. The District accuses Respondent of exhibiting disrespectful behavior toward other teachers and students and failing to provide instruction to his class on numerous occasions. Respondent has been a teacher in the District for nearly twenty-six years. He actively participated in union activities as an officer of the Newark Teacher's Union and a trustee of the supplemental fringe-benefit fund. He participated in a counseling program whereby teachers would adopt a student and work with him or her after school. He has a master's degree and is certified both as an elementary teacher and a supervisor. During the 1995-96 school year, he was assigned as a Title I or basic skills teacher for the first and fourth grades at the Alexander Street School. His duties were to provide remedial instruction in reading, writing and mathematics to children identified as deficient in these areas. Title I teachers go into the regular classrooms to assist selected students. In order for this in-class model to work, the classroom teacher and the Title I teacher must coordinate their activities and agree on the objectives of the lesson. Transition to the in-class model did not go smoothly in the District because the school administration failed to provide adequate training to classroom teachers expected to implement it. Staff members at the Alexander Street School complained about Respondent's conduct and he was transferred to the 13th Avenue School where he performed similar duties for the fourth, seventh and eighth grades. Teachers at this school also complained about his conduct in their classrooms. The District suspended him without pay and instituted these charges. The ALJ finds that Respondent "exhibited his contempt for other teachers in the presence of their students." The ALJ holds that Respondent undermined the authority of the classroom teachers and "sapped the self-confidence of students who looked to him for support." The ALJ notes that Respondent was particularly rude and disrespectful to younger and less experienced teachers. The ALJ determines that "such a gross distortion of his appropriate teaching function represents unfitness to discharge his duties and responsibilities amounting to 'unbecoming conduct.'" The ALJ finds that Respondent is also guilty of neglect of duty constituting "other just cause for dismissal." "A teacher who does not teach is worse than useless, because funds used to pay his salary could be put to better use for the benefit of the children. In addition, the children in his class are deprived of educational services to which they are legally entitled." Other teachers testified in Respondent's behalf. Because of this and his many years of satisfactory service, his willingness to volunteer for extracurricular duties and his prior disciplinary record, the ALJ recommends a permanent reduction of one step on the salary guide and forfeiture of all salary and benefits during the first 120 days of his suspension. The C. concurs. However, because of Respondent's unprofessional, uncooperative and defiant conduct, he orders the increased penalty of forfeiture of an additional two months' salary and benefits. The C. is without authority to compel Respondent to attend training classes, but the District may elect to do so within the confines of Respondent's tenure and contractual rights. Affirmed, State Board of Education, December 1, 1999.

The District seeks dismissal of Respondent based upon charges of chronic and excessive tardiness and inefficiency. Respondent requests that the charge of inefficiency be dismissed for failure to comply with procedural requirements. Her motion was granted by Order dated October 5, 1998. The charge of chronic and excessive tardiness remained. Respondent maintains that there were reasons for her tardiness, that her lateness had negligible impact on her students and that she has shown significant improvement in recent years. The C. finds that the District has carried its burden of proving that Respondent's tardiness was excessive and disruptive to its operations and educational program. The appropriate penalty is for Respondent to forfeit the 120 days' salary already withheld.

The Board filed tenure charges with C. against Respondent, a tenured teacher. Subsequently, he filed a petition with the C. regarding the withholding of his increment for the 1999-2000 school year. The two matters were consolidated for hearing. The C. rejects the parties' settlement as not meeting the Cardonick standards. The record does not contain a reasonably specific explanation of why the tenure charges can no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest to drop them. The C. cannot sanction a settlement which fails to explain why it is in the public's interest to continue to pay this teacher for almost one full year as a condition of settlement and to offer him multiple reimbursements which amount to the outlay of considerable public funds. Furthermore, the C. rejects the settlement term that the Board shall indicate that the reason for the end of his employment was "voluntary resignation." The settlement is also contingent upon this matter not being referred to the State Board of Examiners. It is the C.'s duty to refer tenure determinations for possible revocation of certificate. The matter is remanded to the OAL for revision of the settlement agreement and expansion of the record. Respondent was acquitted of criminal charges following a jury trial. The Board also asserts that Respondent failed to comply with directives issued to him to avoid contact with students after his suspension. Respondent acknowledges that he and "E.K." are friends and that he served as her mentor. He denies that the relationship was ever romantic and/or sexual in nature. The C. finds that the Board has established its charges of unbecoming conduct against Respondent by a preponderance of credible evidence. The C. orders his dismissal from his tenured position as of the date of this decision. The issue of monies which may be due to Respondent is severed from the tenure matter and remanded to the OAL. 12/99 Petitioners, v.
"E.A." Jersey City School District, Hudson County, Marie Morrissey and Richard DiPatri, Respondents.
December 23, 1999 (#423-99)

"E.A., Jr." was enrolled in the seventh grade at the James F. Murray School, School No. 38, in the District. The principal terminated his enrollment and transferred him to P.S. 15, his local neighborhood school in the District for disciplinary reasons. The principal concluded that "E.A., Jr." signed his father's name on a math test. Petitioners aver that this transfer violated their son's due process rights since he was not granted a hearing. "E.A., Jr.'s" attendance at P.S. No. 38 was under the Open Enrollment program. The District maintains that the principal has the option to rescind approval for a student to attend the program. The ALJ finds, and the C. affirms, that due process is not applicable in this matter since "E.A., Jr." is still attending a district school. The Respondents did not act in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable matter regarding his transfer. Petition dismissed.

November 29, 1999 (#386-99)
Petitioners' children spend part of the school day at a private school and part at the county vocational school. They ask that the Board pay transportation costs to their county vocational school. The C. finds that under N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1 and 39-1, the Board is responsible for transmitting the children to the county vocational school.

Petitioner Board asserts that Lenape is obligated to pay for its students in attendance at the Institute's Southern New Jersey Academy of Performing Arts. The C. orders Lenape to remit the tuition owed the Institute for attendance of its students at the Academy from the 1997-8 school year and thereafter. The Gloucester County Superintendent of Schools is directed to review the Institute's student acceptance practices.

CD Passaic County Elks Cerebral Palsy Treatment Center Board of 7/99 Trustees, Petitioner, v.
PAS New Jersey State Department of Education, Division of Finance,
Respondent.
July 6, 1999 (#214-99)

Petitioner operates a private school which provides education and related services to handicapped pupils sent from various public school districts. Petitioner leases the primary school premises from the Passaic County Elks Crippled Children's Committee, Inc. and the high school program from another party. The Petitioner appeals the audit decision from the Division of Finance which found that the lease agreement between it and the Committee are between related parties and are not "arms length transactions". The Department concluded that the rental costs that Petitioner paid to the Committee was improperly included as an allowable cost in the school's tuition rate. The ALJ finds, and the C. concurs, that Petitioner and the Committee are related parties. Notwithstanding both corporations efforts to divest themselves of common control, the fact remains that they are both divisions of the Elks. Members in both corporations must be Elks and are drawn from the membership of six lodges. Petition dismissed.
Affirmed, State Board of Education, December 1, 1999.

TUITION
CD Somerset County Educational Services Commission, Petitioner, v.
9/99 North Plainfield Board of Education, Somerset County, Respondent.
SOM September 7, 1999 (#296-99)

The Commission alleges that the Board failed to pay tuition payments for educational services for "L.G.," a child under the age of 16 residing in the Board's district. These services were provided after "L.G." was enrolled in the Commission's Alternative to Incarceration Program pursuant to the order of Family Court. The Board asserts that its action to expel "L.G." terminated any obligation to provide him educational services or to pay his tuition. The C. holds that a board is still responsible for educational services to a student after expulsion when a court of appropriate jurisdiction has ordered the student's school placement or there exists a statutory or regulatory provision mandating such an obligation. The C. orders the Board to pay the Commission tuition.

TUITION
CD Spotswood Board of Education, Middlesex County, Petitioner, v.
6/99 Milltown Board of Education, Middlesex County, Respondent.
SPO June 7, 1999 (#179-99)

Petitioner Board alleges that Respondent Board failed to make tuition payments in accordance with their sending-receiving relationship. The ALJ notes that the terms of the contract are dictated by law and the provisions are on a form prepared by the C. and required to be used by the parties. Petitioner Board seeks only to be compensated for the services it provided in an amount equal to its actual per pupil costs. Respondent has suffered no prejudice from the omission of the building use charge in the estimated calculation as it had the time value of the additional monies. The C. affirms.

WORK YEAR
CD Carol Riegel, Petitioner, v.
2/99 Berkeley Heights Board of Education, Union County, Respondent.
RIE February 22, 1999 (#42-99)

xJurisdiction-C. xSalaries
xSchool District Reorganization

Petitioner was employed by the Union County Regional High School District as a full-time school psychologist. Berkeley Heights was a constituent district of the Union County Regional District. The Regional District was dissolved in 1997. As a result of the dissolution, Petitioner was transferred to the employ of Respondent District. For the 1996-97 school year, Petitioner was paid an annual salary of $75,825 and worked 185 days, the same number of days as the regular teaching staff members. Her salary included a $2,000 stipend as compensation for working a longer school day than the teachers. For the 1997-98 school year as a member of Respondent's staff, Petitioner was paid an annual salary of $76,321 and was required to work 189 days, six days longer than the regular teaching staff members. Petitioner seeks re-establishment of her school year to the 1996-97 level and/or the restoration of her 1997-98 salary to at least the same per diem rate she received during the same school year. Petitioner avers that the Board is statutorily prohibited from reducing her rate of compensation without instituting proceedings under the Tenure Act. The Respondent asserts that Petitioner is paid the salary lawfully negotiated with the Berkeley Heights Education Association. It contends that the C. does not have jurisdiction over this matter. The C. has jurisdiction since, given the factual circumstances of this matter, a violation of the Tenure Act occurred. While Petitioner's annual salary and monthly salary were not reduced, the C. finds that Petitioner's salary was reduced because the per diem rate was less than she had earned the previous school year as an employee of the Regional District. The ALJ determines, and the C. affirms, that the appropriate remedy is restoration of the per diem rate to $409.86 and retroactive reimbursement of the difference between the two rates.

WORKERS' COMPENSATION
CD Patsy N. Marino, Jr., Petitioner, v.
4/99 Willingboro Board of Education, Burlington County, Respondent.
MAR April 13, 1999 (#111-99)

xJurisdiction-Commissioner of Education

Petitioner has a petition for benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 before the C. which was held in abeyance pending his pursuit of remedies under the Workers' Compensation Act. Petitioner has settled the Workers' Compensation matter. The Board argues that Petitioner has thus waived his right to any claim for benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. The Assistant C. finds and determines that the circumstances here establish that, although it is conceded that Petitioner's accident occurred in the course of his employment, his entitlement to relief under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 is dependent upon resolution of the contested issue as to whether such accident was the cause of his injury. The Division of Workers' Compensation, not the C., is the forum with the expertise to decide this issue. The Petitioner cannot be allowed to come before the C. seeking to find a jurisdiction which provides him a more favorable outcome. Petition dismissed.
On March 1, 2000, the State Board of Education reversed the Asst. C.'s decision to dismiss the Petition and remanded the matter to the C. for further proceedings. The Petitioner expressly reserved the claim to sick leave benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1.

ABSENTEEISM
CD Paul Medeiros, Petitioner, v.
1/2000 Jersey City School District, Hudson County, Respondent.
MED January 24, 2000 (#42-00)

xBonuses xJob Injuries

Petitioner protests the withholding of his bonus for perfect attendance. Petitioner was injured while conducting a class and was absent the next day. He asserts that this absence was a work related injury and should not prevent him from receiving the bonus for perfect attendance for the September 1995 to January 1996 semester. The ALJ concludes that work related injuries are not considered excused absences in the perfect attendance policy. The C. affirms this finding. Petitioner was charged with assaulting a student during gym class on November 8, 1996. He was reassigned away from the classroom until November 20, 1996. He became ill on November 21, 1996 and has not returned to work. He exhausted his accumulated sick leave as of January 15, 1997. He asserts that his accumulated sick leave was wrongfully applied and depleted because his absences were work related. The C. notes that there is no record that Petitioner has sought or received a determination from the Division of Workers' Compensation that his absences beginning on November 21, 1996 were the result of a work-related injury. Therefore, he has not sustained his burden of proof that such absences were improperly charged to his sick leave bank. Petition dismissed.

ALTERNATIVE ROUTE PROGRAM
CD Linda J. Avellino, Petitioner, v.
10/2000 New Jersey State Board of Examiners, Respondent.
AVE October 2, 2000 (#332-00)

Petitioner holds a B.A. degree and a Master of Science in Education degree issued by St. John's University. She applied to the Department for Alternate Route certification through the Provisional Teacher Program. The State Board of Examiners issued Petitioner certificates of eligibility for provisional certification as an elementary school teacher, teacher of psychology and substance awareness coordinator. Petitioner is running an After-School Enrichment Program. The ALJ finds, and the C. affirms, that this program does not constitute substantial compliance with the intensive teacher training program contemplated by the regulations. Therefore, Petitioner has failed to prove that she is entitled to the certificates/endorsements which she seeks. Petitioner may still complete an approved provisional teacher program. Petition dismissed.

ATHLETIC POSITIONS
CD Steven Cohen, Petitioner, v.
3/2000 Jackson Board of Education, Ocean County, Respondent.
COH March 6, 2000 (#79-00)

Petitioner protests the non-renewal of his contract as head soccer coach for the 1999-2000 school year. His evaluation as soccer coach was not completely positive and several points were raised during the formulation of his PIP. The Director of Athletics, Director of Personnel, the high school principal and the superintendent decided that a new soccer coach was needed. Petitioner was advised of the decision and offered an opportunity to appear before the Board. The Board decided not to renew Petitioner's coaching contract. Petitioner avers that the decision was made because of trivial parental complaints. Petitioner asserts that while coaching positions do not accrue tenure, a coach may not be removed for arbitrary or capricious reasons. The ALJ agrees. However, he holds that the Board accepted the recommendation of its administrators who had sufficient information from which to conclude that the soccer program needed a new coach. The C. affirms and dismisses the Petition.
See also the arbitration award, PERC Docket No. AR-99-650, decided November 22, 2000.

ATHLETIC POSITIONS
CD Barry Staton, Petitioner, v.
7/2000 Cape-Atlantic League and New Jersey State Interscholastic STA Athletic Association, Respondents.
July 10, 2000 (#223-00)

Petitioner is a track and field coach at the Pleasantville High School. He seeks a reversal of the decision by the NJSIAA that Petitioner violated the CAL Constitution and NJSIAA rules by terminating a track meet prematurely. It imposed a penalty of suspension for the 1999-2000 spring track season. The C. upholds the suspension.

ATHLETIC PROGRAMS
CD In the Matter of the Divisional Realignment by the Northern 6/2000 New Jersey Interscholastic League.
NOR June 23, 2000 (#209-00)

Petitioners are six parochial schools of the Northern New Jersey Interscholastic League. They seek a reversal of the decision by the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association regarding a divisional realignment by the NJIL which established two public school divisions and one nonpublic school division. The C. finds that due process was granted Petitioners. He finds no basis under the appropriate standard of review on which to overturn the NJSIAA's decision. Dismissed.

ATHLETIC PROGRAMS
CD Wildwood Board of Education, Cape May County, Petitioner, v.
7/2000 Cape-Atlantic League and the New Jersey State Interscholastic WIL Athletic Association, Respondents.
July 28, 2000 (#245-00)

The NJSIAA affirmed the determination of the Cape-Atlantic League to deny Petitioner permission to implement an independent football schedule or to leave CAL immediately, rather than comply with the two-year waiting period. Petitioner avers that the Respondents have placed the health and safety of its students at risk by forcing it to play football against much larger schools. The C. "may not substitute his judgment for that of the NJSIAA, even if he believed an erroneous conclusion had been reached by the NJSIAA, because the record establishes that respondents did not take willful or unreasonable action, without consideration and in disregard to the circumstances." Wildwood has improved its football program after four years of independent scheduling and had a winning 1999 season so a return to the CAL was reasonable. Petition dismissed.

BIDS
CD H.A. DeHart and Son, Petitioner, v.
10/2000 Salem County Special Services School District Board of DEH Education, Wolfington Body Company and Sheppard Bus Service, Inc., Respondents.
October 20, 2000 (#347-00)

The C. restrains the District from taking any further action pursuant to any award of the bid for school buses until there can be a plenary hearing. This hearing will resolve the issues as to the award of the contract to Wolfington Body Company. The matter is remanded to the OAL.

BIDS
CD Douglas E. Wicks, Petitioner, v.
11/2000 Bernards Township Board of Education, Somerset County, WIC Respondent.
(#383-00, November 20, 2000)

Petitioner, a resident of the Township, charges that the Board's specifications for roof replacements and related work on its school buildings "prohibited free, open and full market competition among potential bidders." The C. finds that the Petitioner has not proven by a preponderance of competent, credible evidence that the board's specifications inhibited competitive bidding, that the Board improperly advertised for bids without specifications, or that the board violated law or regulation with "not to scale" drawings in its specifications. Petition dismissed. However, based upon the nature of Petitioner's allegations, a copy of this decision shall be forwarded to the Office of Compliance Investigation for review and any action as that office may deem necessary.

BOARD MEMBERS

CD 5/2000 BER — Berlin Board of Education, Clementon Board of Education, Lindenwold Board of Education, Pine Hill Board of Education, Winslow Board of Education, and Michael Edwards, President of the Berlin Township Board of Education, Camden County, Petitioners, v.
Ralph Condo in his capacity as a member of the Lower Camden County Regional High School District No. 1 Board of Education and a member of the Waterford Board of Education, Camden County, Respondent.
May 1, 2000 (#139-00)

The Boards seek to remove Respondent from his position as member of the Lower Camden County Regional High School District No. 1 Board of Education. The C. approves the parties' settlement.

BOARD MEMBERS

CD 12/2000 COH — Martin Cohen, Petitioner, v.
James R. Durr, Member, Chesterfield Board of Education, Burlington County, Respondent.
December 28, 2000 (#418-00)

xResidency

Petitioner asserts that Mr. Durr is not a resident of the District. The sole basis of this claim is that Respondent listed an out-of-district address on his divorce papers. "In that the ALJ rendered neither sufficient factual findings nor credibility assessments to permit the C. to fairly resolve whether petitioner has met his burden, the C. is compelled to remand this matter for a complete recitation of testimony and findings of fact."

BOARD MEMBERS

CD 1/2000 CRY — Robert Crystal, Petitioner, v.
Barnegat Board of Education, Ocean county, Respondent.
January 18, 2000 (#29-00)

Petitioner appeals the Board's action to censure him for the alleged violation of the Board's Policy #090. This policy provides that "no Board member will act to notify or release information concerning the business of the Board until and unless they have informed every other Board member no less than five days before such dissemination." Petitioner asserts that this action was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable; denied him his right to due process; violated Board rules and procedures; and violated Petitioner's right to free speech. The Board convened into closed session to discuss potential ethics complaints against Petitioner regarding unauthorized use of school district telephones and undue influence in the hiring of a school district employee. After the closed session meeting, the Petitioner was interviewed by a newspaper reporter. Subsequently, the Board censured Petitioner for discussing closed session issues with the press. The ALJ finds, and the C. affirms, that Petitioner's First Amendment rights were not violated nor was the Board's action to censure Petitioner arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

BOARD MEMBERS
CD Susan Settle, Petitioner, v.
4/2000 Pennsville Board of Education and Robert Peddle, Superintendent, SET Salem County, Respondents.
April 3, 2000

xEthics xGrievance Procedures

The Pennsville Educational Association filed a grievance against Petitioner, a school board member, alleging ethical violations. The Assistant C. grants emergent relief, temporarily enjoining the Board from taking further action in consideration of the grievance filed against Petitioner. The matter shall proceed to the OAL for a review of the merits of the matter.

BONUSES

1/2000 Jersey City School District, Hudson County, Respondent.

BUDGETS
CD Fairfield Board of Education, Cumberland County, Petitioner, v.
2/2000 Robert Ench and Sanderina R. Kasper, Executrix of the Estate of FAI Benjamin Kasper, Partners Trading as Bench Realty, Frederick A. Jacob, and old Republic National Insurance Company, Respondents.
February 17, 2000 (#64-00)

The C. finds that the Board had been obligated to submit to its voters a budget which included a line item accounting for purchase of the Buckshutem Road track. The C. finds that the Board acted outside its scope of authority in effectuating the purchase of the land without such voter approval. The matter is remanded to the OAL for further proceedings on the question of whether the transaction should be voided as the result of the C.'s findings.
On August 2, 2000, the State Board of Education remanded the matter to the C.

CERTIFICATION
SBD In the Matter of the Denial of Standard Certification to Linda
5/2000 J. Avellino.
AVE May 5, 2000

The State Board of Examiners denied Avellino's request for certification as Teacher of Elementary School, Teacher of Psychology, Student Personnel Services and Substance Awareness Coordinator. The major issue is whether the training program in which Avellino was employed by the Spotswood District during the 1995-96 school year confirmed to the requirements of the regulations governing provisional teachers. The matter is transferred to the C. The State Board of Examiners is directed to revise its decision letters to insure that individuals who are denied the issuance of certification are notified that such decisions may be appealed to the C.

CERTIFICATION, REVOCATION OF
SBD 2/2000 CRA — In the Matter of the Revocation of the Teaching Certificate of Robert Crawford by the State Board of Examiners. February 2, 2000

The State Board of Examiners revoked the standard certification to serve as a teacher of psychology which it had issued to Respondent. The State Board of Education directs the State Board of Examiners to transmit the case to the OAL for such proceedings as are necessary to correct the record.

CERTIFICATION, REVOCATION OF
SBD 12/2000 "M.S." — In the Matter of the Revocation of the Teaching Certificate of "M.S." by the State Board of Examiners. December 6, 2000

On June 15, 2000, the State Board of Examiners revoked Respondent's teaching certificates for unbecoming conduct. The State Board of Examiners adopted the conclusions of the ALJ that the charge of improper sexual conduct had been proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence and that the Respondent's conduct was so egregious as to warrant revocation of her certificates. The State Board of Education affirms this decision.

CERTIFICATION, SUSPENSION OF
CD 6/2000 MCF — In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Rosalind McFadden, Cherry Hill School District, Camden County. June 19, 2000 (#195-00)

Respondent gave thirty days notice in resigning from her teaching position on December 15, 1999. She stated that she would use her sick days and personal days during this time. "The C. agrees with the Board that in resigning abruptly, respondent put her own self-interest above the interests of her students and her professional obligation to provide adequate notice to the Board." Respondent is guilty of unprofessional conduct. The C. suspends her teaching certificate for a period of one year as of the date of this decision. The matter is forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for the purpose of effectuating this decision and taking such further action, if any, as it deems appropriate.

These two consolidated cases determined that the Charter School Program Act of 1995 is not unconstitutional as applied to these charter schools. "The Commissioner of Education must assess the racial impact of a charter school's approval on the school district where the charter school is located and also must consider the financial impact if a district makes a preliminary showing that its ability to provide a thorough and efficient education is at risk."

SBD 5/2000 PLE — Pleasantech Academy Charter School Education Association, Petitioner-Appellant, v. Pleasantech Academy Charter School Board of Trustees and David Hespe, Commissioner of Education, Respondents-Respondents.
May 3, 2000

The Association asserts that the teachers employed by the charter school were not being compensated in conformity with the terms of the school's charter. The Director of the Office of School Choice advised counsel for the Petitioner that the charter school was addressing accounting deficiencies and that its teachers were being compensated in accordance with the terms of their individual contracts. The Petitioner filed this appeal to the State Board of Education. The State Board of Education remands the matter to the C. for a final decision with respect to the Petitioner's complaint as there has not been a decision rendered by the C. on this matter.

CD 9/2000 "M.D." — "M.D." and "E.D.," on behalf of minor child, "J.D.," Petitioners, v. Buena Regional School District Board of Education, Atlantic County, Respondent.
September 1, 2000 (#282-00E)

"J.D." was a 9th grade student at the Buena Regional High School during the 1999-2000 school year. In April, 2000, "J.D." and three other students constructed a web site on the Internet in which they published threatening, profane and derogatory material concerning a high school mathematics teacher. "J.D." was suspended for the rest of the school year and barred from sports and extracurricular activities for the 2000-2001 school year. He was also required to sign an agreement governing his behavior before being readmitted. The C. denies emergent relief since Petitioners have not satisfied the requirements necessary for granting it. The matter is returned to the OAL for further proceedings as may be necessary.

CD Lydia Anderson, Petitioner, v.
1/2000 Newark School District, Essex County, Respondent.
AND January 19, 2000 (#34-2000)

xDivision of Youth and Family Services

Petitioner asserts that the Board improperly canceled her employment as a teacher in violation of the tenure statutes and without due process. The Board asserts that Petitioner directed two students to stand in class and engage in a tug-of-war with "D.M." when the student attempted to sit. It also alleges that Petitioner permitted an uncle of a female student to beat the student in her presence. The Board states that Petitioner engaged in inappropriate and unprofessional conduct by not reporting the incident as required. Petitioner was suspended after this incident and her employment subsequently terminated. The ALJ points out that Petitioner was a non-tenured teacher. As such, she was only entitled to a statement of reasons for her dismissal. "No statute or regulation exists requiring the District to provide petitioner with a hearing. Inasmuch as the District's determination to terminate petitioner was reasonable and not arbitrary or capricious, petitioner's appeal should be dismissed." The C. affirms and dismisses the Petition. A copy of this decision shall be forwarded to State Board of Examiners for review and appropriate action.
Affirmed, State Board of Education, February 7, 2001.

CONTRACT CANCELLATIONS
CD Patricia Desmond, Petitioner, v.
2/2000 Asbury Park Board of Education, Monmouth County, Respondent.
DES February 3, 2000 (#48-2000)

xCertification xTenure Claims

Petitioner has a supervisor of instruction certificate, but not a principal's certificate. She has served as a vice-principal in the District's schools since 1993. The posting for her initial position required an administrator or supervisor certificate. The C. finds that "petitioner made a knowing and material representation of the facts when she listed her certificates held as "Supervisor of Instruction/Principal, K-12," and "Supervisor/Principal" on her resume and employment application. . . .Although the District failed to fulfill its obligation to verify petitioner's certificates, the District's negligence cannot excuse petitioner's actions." Therefore, Petitioner's employment ceased when the County Office advised the District that Petitioner did not hold a principal certificate. "Because petitioner's contract was void ab initio, tenure rights never attached." The employment relationship between Petitioner and the District is dissolved effective April 27, 1998, the date on which the Board was notified by the County Office that Petitioner did not have the appropriate certification.

CAS March 15, 2000 (#92-00)

xDiscriminatory Practices xEvaluations

[On February 2, 2000, the C. declined Petitioner's request for declaratory judgment in this matter. The State Board of Education finds that this request has been rendered moot because of the following C.'s decision, June 7, 2000.]

Petitioner is a Spanish teacher at the high school. He contests the nonrenewal of his teaching contract for the 1998-99 school year. He alleges that he was discriminated against because he was a cancer patient. He has since abandoned this claim because the matter has been filed in the federal district court. Petitioner now asserts that the Board failed to provide him with the three classroom evaluations for the 1998-99 school year as required by N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.1. The Board stated that three classroom observations were conducted. Petitioner persuaded his supervisor to disregard the observation conducted on November 16, 1998 because he had just learned he had cancer. He required a new evaluation in a few days. However, Petitioner never returned to school. He remained on sick leave until the first of the year and was placed on administrative leave. Petitioner failed to appear for his hearings before the superintendent and the Board. His attorney requested adjournments. The C. finds that the Board evaluated Petitioner in conformity with the applicable law. It is a well-established legal principle that a district board has "virtually unlimited discretion in hiring or renewing nontenured teachers." Therefore, the C. finds that the Board acted within its lawful discretion in not renewing Petitioner's employment in the District.

On October 4, 2000, the State Board of Education dismissed the appeal for failure to file notice within the statutory time limit.

xSexual Harassment

Petitioner alleges that the Board's decision not to renew his teaching contract was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. The Board asserts that Petitioner violated the sexual harassment policy when he did not report information he received concerning sexual harassment of a student by another teacher. Petitioner was the personal friend of a teacher who allegedly had affairs with students. The C. dismisses the Petition as Petitioner fails to meet the limited standard entitling nontenured, nonrenewed teachers to relief.

xCustodial and Maintenance Staff

Respondent avers that he is a tenured custodial employee and protests the nonrenewal of his contract. The Board maintains that he was appointed for a fixed term of employment. Petitioner was appointed to a series of one-year contracts from 1984-1995. From 1995-96 through 1997-98, the parties did not execute any contracts, but signed memoranda stating the Petitioner's salary for the next school year. After examining Board minutes, the ALJ determines that the Board passed resolutions renewing Petitioner's employment for successive fixed terms. The C. concurs and dismisses the Petition.

Affirmed, State Board of Education, June 7, 2000.

CONTRACT RENEWALS
CD Toni Healy, Petitioner, v.
6/2000 Hamilton Township Board of Education, Mercer County, Respondent.
HEA June 26, 2000 (#207-00)

Petitioner was employed from September 1, 1996 to June 30, 1997 as a special education teacher. Her contract was not renewed for the 1997-98 school year because her supervisors "were not satisfied with the behavior management system you utilized for students." The Petitioner appealed the decision to the Board which voted in September, 1997 to continue Petitioner's employment. By then there were no vacant full-time positions in the District for which Petitioner held a valid certificate. In November, Petitioner was assigned as a long-term substitute for a special education teacher on maternity leave. Petitioner was under the assumption that she would receive a permanent full-time position when it became available. However, when Petitioner's employment as a long-term substitute ended, the superintendent did not reassign her to any position for the remainder of the contract year because of his concerns relating to her performance. Had Petitioner continued to work until June 30, 1998, she would have received $8,991.75 additional salary. The ALJ finds that the appeal was timely filed. The ALJ finds that the Board was obligated to pay Petitioner for the remainder of the school year even though it did not reassign her to other teaching duties as it was entitled to do so. The C. concurs and orders the Board to pay Petitioner back pay from April 3 through June 30, 1998.

CUSTODIAL AND MAINTENANCE STAFF
CD Richard Parisi and Marsha Parisi, Petitioners, v.
1/2000 Saddle Brook Board of Education, Bergen County, Respondent.
PAR January 3, 2000 (#1-2000)

Petitioners allege that the Board did not respond appropriately to their complaints about one of its custodial employees. They assert that the Board did not respond to their written complaint, investigate the matter and that they did not receive acknowledgment that steps were taken to resolve the problem. Also, they protest that they were denied minutes of a meeting at which there was a discussion which led to the denial of their request that the Board reimburse them for legal fees. The dispute began when the custodian, in his private capacity, was hired to do bathroom renovations for Petitioners. They did not approve the work done and dismissed him. They filed suit against him and received a refund. Petitioners complained about him to the Board and he charged Petitioner with harassment. Petitioners incurred legal fees of approximately $2,000. The Board referred Petitioner's complaints to the superintendent of schools who investigated the matter and met with the custodian and his supervisor. He was given a verbal warning by the superintendent who did not recommend any further disciplinary action. The C. dismisses the matter since Petitioners fail to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Petitioners' request for the reimbursement of legal fees does not arise under the school laws so that the C. is without the authority to order reimbursement. The C. cannot judge Petitioners' ancillary claims which arise under the Open Public Meetings Act and the Right to Know Law.

xSalaries

See 1998 School Law Decisions Index for prior case in which Petitioner appealed his removal as head custodian. On July 8, 1998, the C. ordered the Board to compensate Petitioner "at the same rate and for no less than he was receiving as a head custodian, and to further reimburse petitioner for the amount representing the difference between what he should have received, pursuant to the decision, and what he was actually paid by the Board, after he was relieved from his assignment as head custodian." Petitioner maintains that, pursuant to this decision, the Board is obligated to continue to pay Petitioner the negotiated guide amount for head custodians for the 1999-2000 school year and thereafter. The ALJ disagrees and the C. affirms the ALJ's decision. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 protects Petitioner in that his salary can never be reduced below $23,480, the amount he would have been paid if he had not been relieved of his position as head custodian in 1997. "The scope of the tenure statute, however, does not extend to protect future salary expectancy." Petition dismissed.

"C.C." June 8, 2000 (#171-00E)

A teacher reported that "R.S." was copying homework answers from another student's book in the school's hallway between classes. The students denied the incident. The teacher gave "R.S." an incomplete for the assignment and in-school detention. "C.C." refused to allow her son to serve the detention. The C. denies the request for emergent relief and orders the matter to the OAL for further proceedings on the merits of Petitioner's claim as may be deemed necessary.
On September 6, 2000, the State Board of Education dismissed the appeal for failure to perfect.

Petitioners request emergent relief staying the discipline of suspensions and community service imposed on their children for violating Respondent's policies. "J.E." and "M.E." did not report an act of vandalism to the school which they observed in progress and did not cooperate with the ensuing policy investigation. The C. denies Petitioner's application to stay the suspensions from October 3-November 10, 2000. Petitioners application to resume school attendance on November 13th without having to submit psychiatric evaluations required by the Board is granted. The C. finds that the penalty of community service envisioned by the Board for their infraction falls within the "restitution and restoration" provision of the Board's policies and refuses emergent relief. The matter shall continue at the OAL for hearing on an expedited basis.

March 15, 2000 (#90-00)

Petitioners request emergent relief. "S.T.M." and his friend joked about bringing guns to school and raping their language teacher. These remarks were reported to the school's social worker who reported them to the chief school administrator who contacted the New Jersey State Police. The boys were suspended. The Board agreed to readmit the boys after psychiatric evaluation and approval by the Child Study Team. The Board also ruled that the two boys could not take part in extracurricular activities, including recess. The parents appealed the decision to remove "S.T.M." from extracurricular school activities. The C. finds that Petitioners have failed to satisfy the four-pronged standard set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia for obtaining emergent relief. The matter shall continue at the OAL for expedited hearing.

WOO Bert Lopez, President, Theresa Thomas, Daniel Gallagher, Matthew Doran, James Herzog and Theresa Kelly, individually and jointly, Respondents.
July 10, 2000 (#225-00)

Petitioners filed a petition asserting: (1) a pattern of racial harassment and reprisal in violation of the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; (2) making public comments regarding ending Petitioners' employment in violation of the rights to confidentiality protected by the Tenure Employee's Hearing Law and the Governor's Executive orders No. 9 and 11; and (3) violating Petitioners' privacy rights under the Open Public Meetings Act. Petitioners assert that this pattern of harassment occurred because they exposed a grade fixing scandal and participated in an investigation about it. The C. notes that Petitioners do not allege an unlawful practice or discrimination based on race or any other "invidious classification" as prohibited by the NJLAD. Therefore, the C. must dismiss allegations of violations of the NJLAD. Petitioners contend that they have suffered unlawful reprisals as a consequence of their involvement in reporting the grading scandal. The C. finds that Petitioners have not been subjected to adverse employment decisions "which would rise to an allegation of reprisal." Regarding the public statements about terminating employment, the C. finds that Petitioners fail to state a claim upon which relief may be granted. Petition dismissed.

DIVISION OF YOUTH AND FAMILY SERVICES
SC-A In re an allegation of physical abuse concerning "R.P."
7/2000 Superior Court, Appellate Division [333 N.J. Super. 105]
"R.P." July 18, 2000

The issue is: Does a teacher have a due process right to challenge the form of an investigatory finding by DYFS that the teacher has had improper physical contact with a student? A principal of an elementary school reported that the father of a first grader alleged that "M.I.," a teacher, grabbed his daughter, "R.P.," by the back of the neck. DYFS investigated and sent a report to the superintendent of schools. DYFS concluded that physical abuse was not substantiated, but expressed concerns about the teacher's actions. "M.I." was administratively counseled about the District's "hands-off" policy, a disciplinary letter was placed in his personnel folder, and he was warned that "future incidents may result in more severe actions." The Court concludes that "even though a teacher has no right to an adjudicatory hearing to challenge such a finding unless DYFS concludes that the teacher's conduct constitutes 'substantiated' child abuse, the teacher may challenge the wording of the finding on the ground that it is misleading and unfairly damaging to his reputation. . . .[The Court also concludes] that DYFS inaccurately and unfairly conveyed the impression that its finding was based on an adjudicatory hearing by stating in a letter to the teacher's employer that the finding was based on the 'preponderance of the credible evidence.'" DYFS is ordered to send a corrected finding to the teacher's employer "which clearly states that the finding was investigatory only."

EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION
CD 1/2000 SHE — Lynn P. Sherman et al., Petitioners, v. Beach Haven Board of Education, Ocean County, Respondent. January 18, 2000 (#30-00)

Petitioner requests that the District be compelled to reinstate the half-day kindergarten program for four-year-old children which it discontinued after 14 years. Petitioners allege that no educational purpose existed for the action, that the District acted in bad faith and its actions were arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. A full time program for five-year-old children was substituted. The C. determines that the Board effectively precluded the public from having sufficient notice of the meeting in which the elimination of the program was going to be discussed so as to enable all interested persons to attend the meeting. However, there is no basis to grant the relief sought by Petitioners to reinstate the preschool program since the Board took official action on a later occasion to ratify the decision to discontinue the half-day kindergarten program. Petition dismissed. Affirmed, State Board of Education, June 7, 2000.

1/97 Education, Ocean County.
PAN January 28, 1997 (#38-97 SEC)[97 N.J.A.R. 2d(EDU) 339]

Respondent is a teacher in East Orange and a member of the NJEA. He is a member of the Brick Township Board of Education. The BTEA is the local bargaining unit of the NJEA. This complaint alleges that Respondent participated in negotiation sessions with the BTEA and voted on the collective bargaining agreement. The School Ethics Commission finds that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.c. of the School Ethics Act. There are mitigating circumstances. Respondent received inadequate advice from Board counsel as to whether he should vote. The School Ethics Commission had only recently issued the advisory opinion setting forth that his voting on the contract would violate the Act. Therefore, the Commission recommends a penalty of censure. The C. concurs and orders Respondent censured as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.
On June 4, 1997, the State Board of Education grants the motion for leave to appear as amicus curiae filed by the New Jersey School Boards Association.
On January 6, 1999, the State Board of Education grants the motion for leave to appear as amicus curiae filed by the New Jersey Education Association.
On March 1, 2000, the State Board of Education held that N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24c does not "automatically prohibit a board member from voting on a collective negotiations agreement solely on the basis of his status or that of his immediate family with respect to membership or representation by a different local affiliate of the same statewide association with whom the agreement is made." Mr. Pannucci's involvement with another local affiliate did not compromise his objectivity or independence of judgment. The State Board of Education reverses the Ethics Commission finding that he violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24c and the C.'s imposition of a sanction on the basis of that finding.

WHI March 15, 2000 (#91-00)

A Ewing Board member alleged that fellow Board member Bruce White violated the School Ethics Act when he entered into negotiations with members of the Ewing Township Education Association without Board authority. It is also asserted that his spouse is a member of the NJEA with which the ETEA is affiliated. Mr. White's wife is a teacher in Trenton. The C. finds that, given the change in law that has occurred during this ongoing administrative proceeding, he cannot adequately assess the Commission's recommended penalty without having the benefit of that body's review of its decision in light of the State Board's ruling in Pannucci. The matter is returned to the Commission so that it may determine what effect the State Board's reversal of prior decisional law may have on its finding and recommended penalty in this matter. On June 1, 2000, the C. found that the appropriate penalty, under the circumstances set forth by the Commission, is suspension as a Board member for a period of 45 days from the date of this decision. [#169-00] On September 6, 2000, the State Board of Education dismissed the appeals on the grounds that neither complainant has standing to challenge the C.'s determination.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH

SC-A 2/00 GRE Green Township Education Association , Plaintiff-Appellant, v. Stephen P. Rowe, David Brady, Ronald Parks, Mark Graham, Melinda McCoy Miller, John McDermott, Doreen Schaffer, Denise Sheehan, Amy Stewart, Ken Swisher and Green Township Board of Education.
Superior Court, Appellate Division
February 28, 2000 (328 N.J. Super. 525)

The issues are: Does the Board's conflict of interest policy barring teachers from engaging in specified political activities infringe upon their right to free speech? May the Board bar teachers from wearing a political button bearing the inscription "NJEA SETTLE NOW" while on school property in the presence of students? In 1992 during the course of an acrimonious labor dispute, the Association members displayed similar buttons. The Board contends that this display resulted in classroom disruptions. The Association protests this allegation. The Chancery Division held that the Board's interest in achieving its educational objectives outweighed the teachers' First Amendment right to comment on matters of public concern. The Chancery Division found no intent on the part of the Board to extend the policy to settings other than the classroom. The Superior Court, Appellate Division, affirms in part and reverses in part. The Superior Court finds that the prohibitions in Board's policy as written are not confined to the setting of the school facility or classroom. "Nor are its restraints and prohibitions always limited to situations in which students are present. . . .Read literally, the clause bars employees from using their lunch breaks or free periods to express their opinions to other willing adults even if no students are present. Read literally, the clause precludes teachers from speaking at board of education meetings conducted at the school facility. . .the Board's prohibition against displaying campaign materials is not limited to school property." Therefore, the Superior Court finds unconstitutional the first two clauses of the Board's policy. The Superior Court states that a carefully worded protocol prohibiting teachers from promoting positions on labor relations issues in the presence of students and on school property would pass constitutional muster. There would be no constitutional impediment to a policy barring teachers from displaying campaign materials while on school property that is being used as a polling place on the day of a school election. The Superior Court states that the Board should redraft its policy to render it constitutional. The Superior Court finds that the Board's prohibition against teachers wearing the Association's buttons in the presence of students while on school premises is constitutional. "The first rule of teaching should be that teachers shall teach. A classroom is not a place for proselytizing students to advance a teacher's financial interests. Nor should a classroom be transmogrified into a teacher's soapbox. Just as a board of education may set the curriculum, it may also require teachers to confine their classroom activities to providing students with a thorough and efficient education. . . .government has a greater power to regulate speech when it acts as an employer than when it acts in relation to the general citizenry." However, the Superior Court does permit teachers to respond to questions propounded by students and does not preclude teachers from discussing the topic of education "in a bona fide manner consistent with their role as educators. Nor does the prohibition bar teachers from wearing buttons in other settings not involving the presence of students."

Board of Education, Camden County, Respondent.
May 19, 2000 (#160-00E)

Petitioners request that the C. find that Petitioner Deanna Hoover be allowed to graduate from the Edgewood Senior High School at the end of the 1999-2000 school year. They also ask that the C. find that "S.H." was properly placed in the eleventh grade for the 1999-2000 school year. Both students previously attended St. Joseph High School. Because of a dispute as to tuition, St. Joseph High School refused to send their school records to the Respondent District. Both students passed the Grade 11 High School Proficiency Test. The Board placed Deanna Hoover in the twelfth grade and "S.H." in the eleventh grade for the 1999-2000 school year. Without their transcripts, the principal testified that she could not certify that Deanna Hoover has the necessary credits needed for graduation or that "S.H." has the needed credits for advancement to the twelfth grade. The ALJ orders, and the C. concurs, that Deanna Hoover be permitted to graduate provided that she passes the required courses necessary for graduation. The motion for emergent relief is denied for "S.H." since a final decision will be rendered in sufficient time to allow "S.H." to make plans for the next school year. On July 3, 2000, the C. found that "S.H.' should be placed in the 12th grade for the 2000-2001 school year provided that she passes her current courses. (#214-00, July 3, 2000)

GRADUATION
CD "G.J.C." and "L.C.," on behalf of minor child, "N.C.," 1/2000 Petitioners, v.
"G.J.C." Somerville Board of Education, Somerset County, Respondent.
January 12, 2000 (#17-00)

The Board denied "N.C." credit for his senior year first-year course in physics because of excessive absenteeism. He was barred from graduation until he passed a five-credit course of his choosing, bringing the number of credits to the total required. Petitioners had been advised that "N.C.'s" absences were accumulating and were reminded of the Board's rule regarding 15 absences for full year courses and 8 absences per semester course as well as the Board's rule regarding tardiness after the first ten minutes of class being recorded as a full course. Petitioner received a grade of A- for the course. The C. finds that the Board's decision to compel "N.C." to take a summer course after he had successfully completed his physics course was unreasonable. The C. orders "N.C." credited with the grade earned and with the credits accumulated for successful completion of the physics course taken during the regular school year. His cumulative average is to be recalculated to reflect the actual grade earned and he is to be awarded his high school graduation diploma.

HOME SCHOOLING

CD "M.C.," on behalf of minor child, "L.C.," Petitioner, v.
2/2000 Freehold Regional High School District Board of Education,
"M.C." Monmouth County, Respondent.
February 2, 2000 (#47-00)

"L.C." has been home schooled. "M.C." wanted to enroll her in 10th grade at Colts Neck High School. The District did not evaluate "L.C." before placing her in 9th grade at Manalapan High School. (See 1998 School Law Decisions Index for background on matter.) The C. finds that "it is implicit in the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-25 that a home-school child is required to receive instruction equivalent to that provided by the public schools. The C. also concurs [with the ALJ] that, when a child has been lawfully home schooled, a district should place the child for initial purposes at the level represented by the parents as being the level of instruction received by the child at home." The C. directs the District to place "L.C." in the 11th grade and expeditiously assess her course proficiencies through the mechanisms established by the District for such assessments if she should wish to return to Manalapan High School. The C. finds that the Board's denial of Petitioner's request that "L.C." be placed at Colts Neck High School was within its lawful authority.

8/2000 Jersey City School District, Hudson County, Respondent.
ALE August 18, 2000 (#262-00)

Petitioner appeals the withholding of her salary increment for the 1998-99 school year. Petitioner taught English as a Second Language at the high school level in the 1997-98 school year. Her prior experience was as an elementary level ESL teacher. Petitioner was absent from work for nineteen days when she fell at work and hurt her ankle. She was evaluated three days after her return to work and again evaluated in February, 1998 by the same administrator. Other administrators evaluated her teaching performance. Her evaluations stated that Petitioner did not use ESL instructional techniques, did not maintain accurate, complete and up-to-date records for her students, did not properly assess her students' needs and evaluate their progress, and did not employ effective organization and planning of instructional techniques. She was also rated as deficient in the affective domain. Petitioner refused to participate in post-evaluative conferences. She signed the forms with written notes that she did not agree with them. Petitioner asserts "that any alleged deficiency in her teaching skills was the result of the District's failure to properly prepare her for her new assignment, together with the fact that she was injured and absent for nineteen days prior to the evaluations." The ALJ points out that a master teacher was assigned to assist Petitioner and she refused to cooperate with the evaluators. The C. concurs and finds that the Board's decision to withhold Petitioner's increment was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Petition dismissed

xEvaluations

Twenty-one teachers appealed the decision of the State District Superintendent to withhold their salary increments for the 1997-98 school year. Subsequently, fifteen Petitioners withdrew their appeals. Petitioners' employment and salary increments were withheld for less than satisfactory performance ratings during the 1996-97 school year. Petitioners argue that: the withholding of their increments was arbitrary; the evaluations punished the teachers instead of providing direction and instruction to improve performance; there were no standards as to when the increment would be denied; teachers were not given advance notice that their increments were in peril; and that the executive assistant/human resources did not have the authority to deny the increments. The C. points out that there are only two determinations to be made when reviewing the District's decision: whether the underlying facts were as claimed and whether it was unreasonable for the administration to conclude as they did based upon these facts. The ALJ finds, and the C. affirms, that the District's withholding of the increments was a valid exercise of its discretionary authority in each case. Petition dismissed.

xTimeliness

Petitioner protests the Board's withholding of her increment for the 1994-95 school year. She also seeks reinstatement to her former position of Assistant Board Secretary/Director of Administration. The Board voted to establish the position of comptroller and reassigned the fiscal supervisory duties performed by Petitioner to this position. Petitioner retained her title as director of administration, her salary level and responsibility over the workers' compensation department. Ms. Cheloc alleges that the Board retaliated against her for objecting to allegedly improper budget-related actions in violation of the Conscientious Employee Protection Act. The Board maintains that the Petitioner did not timely appeal the decision to withhold her salary increment. The ALJ finds, and the C. affirms, that Petitioner filed her petition 90 days after she was notified of the Board's decision. The matter was timely filed. The Board argues that Petitioner is not part of any bargaining unit and is not part of any salary schedule established by the Board. The Board argues that Petitioner is not guaranteed any predetermined increment each year and that it has the authority to determine whether Petitioner is entitled to a salary increase. The C. finds that Petitioner did not make a case that the Board's decision not to award her a salary increase was made for retaliatory reasons. Furthermore, Petitioner did not receive any above average or outstanding scores in her formal evaluation. The C. finds that the Board's abolishment of Petitioner's prior position and creation of a new Comptroller position was not arbitrary nor capricious. Petition dismissed.

September 1, 2000 (#283-00)

The Board withheld Petitioner's salary increment for the 1998-99 school year. Petitioner has been a special education teacher for thirteen years. He holds art education and teacher of the handicapped certificates. During the 1997-98 school year he taught ten, ten-year-old students who were neurologically impaired and functioned between grades one and two. He was assigned a teacher's aide. Petitioner was formally observed on at least four separate occasions by three different supervisors. As a result of these observations, and other less formal contacts throughout the year, the District determined to withhold Petitioner's employment and adjustment increments for "less than satisfactory performance." The majority of the observations were critical of Petitioner's assessment of the needs of and evaluation of the progress of his pupils as well as his lack of effective organization and planning. His ability to use effective instructional techniques was criticized by two administrators. Petitioner protests that the teaching requirements were not made clear to him and his evaluators. The ALJ dismisses his defense that the alleged deficiencies of his teaching skills were the result of the District's failure to properly train or prepare him for his assignment. The C. concurs and finds that the Petitioner did not meet his burden to prove by a preponderance of credible evidence that the District's decision to withhold his increment was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Petition dismissed.

GRO February 28, 2000 (#69-00)

In 1990 the parties agreed to settlement agreement relating to a 1989-90 increment withholding and tenure charges. In accordance with the Agreement, Petitioner resigned at the end of the 1990-91 school year. In May, 1996, Petitioner filed a complaint in the Superior Court, seeking to invalidate the 1990 settlement claiming that the Board prematurely ceased payments due her. The Board asserted that the early cessation of payments in February, 1991 resulted from a payroll processing error whereby Petitioner had received more money than she was entitled to under the agreement. Petitioner also argued that the settlement should be invalidated and also argued the merits of the underlying tenure case that led to the settlement. The Court granted the Board's motion for summary judgment and dismissed Petitioner's complaint and indicated that the matter should be returned to the Commissioner. In June, 1999, Petitioner filed a Petition with the C. challenging the validity of the settlement agreement and charging the Board with failure to properly perform its obligations under the agreement. The C. dismisses the matter as untimely.

Petitioner asserts that the Board wrongfully withheld his annual increments for the 1996-97 school year. The Board asserts that Petitioner physically assaulted the District's parent coordinator. Petitioner had filed a grievance regarding this increment withholding. This grievance resulted in a binding arbitration hearing before PERC. This matter was placed on the inactive list. The jurisdictional issue raised at this hearing was whether the reason for withholding Petitioner's increments was disciplinary or based upon his performance. The Arbitrator held that the increments were withheld for primarily disciplinary reasons and ordered the matter to proceed to a hearing. The resulting arbitration award held that Petitioner's conduct constituted "just cause" for the imposition of the increment withholding. [See also: In the Matter of the Arbitration between Irvington Education Association and Irvington Board of Education, Arbitrator: Lawrence I. The math supervisor observed Petitioner teach a 45-minute math lesson. He rated her as less than satisfactory in every performance category on the evaluation form. The supervisor reviewed the evaluation with Petitioner and provided her with a comprehensive list of "suggestions for improvement." He made follow-up visits to her classroom to assist her. The supervisor provided Petitioner with a stack of materials to assist her in remedying her performance problems. Her second formal evaluation rated her as unsatisfactory in every performance category. Petitioner did not implement any of the suggestions given to her by the math supervisor. Petitioner was also evaluated by her principal in the area of language arts. She was given a less than satisfactory performance rating in the category of organization and planning. The principal's second evaluation rated Petitioner as unsatisfactory in every performance category. The principal directed Petitioner to visit and observe other teachers. Petitioner refused to do so. The C. finds that the pre-trial investigative work undertaken by the firm "was of significant and critical assistance" to the successful defense of the criminal action. Pursuant to statute, the C. finds that the Board is obligated to reimburse Mr. Seabrook for the legal fees and costs incurred by the firm for work performed in connection with the defense of the criminal charges. CD 2/2000 NEW — New Jersey School Boards Association, Petitioner, v. Wyckoff Board of Education, Bergen County, Respondent. February 3, 2000 (#50-00)

The NJSBA seeks an order that the Wyckoff Board pay it dues assessed to the Association under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-50 for the fiscal years 1993-94 through 1999-2000. The NJSBA also seeks an order that the Board make future timely payments of the assessed dues. The C. finds that all the boards of education in the State are obligated by statute to pay the dues assessed to it by the NJSBA. "If the Wyckoff Board wished to 'call into question' the reasonableness of dues being assessed by the NJSBA, the appropriate recourse would have been to bring that issue before the association's NJEA Delegate Assembly, since it is this body which by law has the statutory power to approve NJSBA's assessed dues." The Board argues that it is entitled to a setoff amounting to the value of services denied it by the NJSBA when the Board's "good standing" status was removed by the Association. "When the Board embarked on its long course of intentional refusal to pay dues assessed by the NJSBA, it acted at its own peril and will not be rewarded for such willful disregard of the law by having the amount of monies owing to the NJSBA reduced in the manner argued by respondent." The C. directs the Board to pay the assessed dues for 1993-94 through 1999-2000 in a mutually acceptable payment schedule. It is ordered to pay to the NJSBA the dues it is assessed in future fiscal years.

July 18, 2000 (164 N.J. 564)

Petitioner was an educational media specialist. On May 31, 1991, Ms. Kasper arrived at school at 7:45 a.m. The school day officially began at 8:30 a.m. Ms. Kasper came early because the school principal required that certain media materials be distributed to various classrooms before the official start of classes. As she was climbing the school steps to the front door of the building, a man grabbed her purse and pulled her to the ground. The principal found her a few minutes after the attack and she suffered several injuries. She filed a claim for accidental disability retirement benefits. The TPAF Board determined "that Petitioner was totally and permanently disabled from the performance of her duties, that her disability was the direct result of a 'traumatic event' and that she was qualified for an ordinary service retirement." Her application for accidental disability retirement was denied since the traumatic event did not occur "during and as a result of the performance of her regular or assigned duties" as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:66-39c. The Superior Court, Appellate Division, affirmed the Board's decision. The Supreme Court reverses the Appellate Division's decision. "An employee may qualify for an accidental disability pension as a result of a traumatic injury occurring prior to the start of or after the end of the formal workday, so long as the employee is at premises owned or controlled by the employer for the purpose of performing his or her regular duties and not for some other purpose." The case is remanded to the TPAF Board for proceedings consistent with this opinion.

xSalaries xSecretaries and Clerks xTransfers

Petitioner was employed by the Board as an executive secretary to a department head. Before the beginning of the 1998-99 school year, the Board adopted a resolution fixing her salary in accordance with its negotiated salary guide. On June 10, 1998, the Board abolished the position of Director of Special Services and transferred Petitioner to a lower-paying secretarial position. She asserts that this constitutes a transfer from one secretarial position to another and that the Board violated her tenure rights by reducing her salary. The Board asserts that the higher-paying position was no longer needed and its action was a demotion as a result of a RIF. The C. finds that Petitioner had acquired a vested right in the salary which the Board established for her on May 13, 1998 when it approved her movement to the 14th step on the "higher level" salary guide for the 1998-99 school year. Since Petitioner remained in the same tenurable position after the RIF, the Board was not permitted to reduce her compensation without meeting the requirements in N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2. The Board is directed to compensate Petitioner, within 60 days of the date of this decision, with back pay and related emoluments for the 1998-99 and 1999-2000 school years.

December 11, 2000 (#404-00)

Petitioner appeals the Board's decision to eliminate her nontenured position as Chief for the Center for Safety and Security. The issues are: Whether the Board's action to terminate Petitioner's position was arbitrary and capricious? Whether, subsequent to her termination, the Board properly compensated Petitioner for her vacation time and compensatory time? Whether the Board's decision was discriminatory and violated the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination? The C. concurs with the Board's contention that the District was in a financial crisis and that its action to pursue a RIF was for reasons of economy. There is no evidence that the District engaged in discriminatory action when it voted to abolish Petitioner's position. Respondent properly exercised its contractual rights to provide Petitioner with 30 days notice that her position was abolished and her employment ended. The C. notes that Petitioner's contracts are silent regarding employment benefits. The parties' supplemental stipulation states that Petitioner was a twelve month employee entitled to 1.6 days of vacation time per month from November 1997 to June 1998 which the Board did not pay her. The C. orders the Board to provide compensation to Petitioner for any unused vacation days and sick days or personal days, if they were provided to her in the policy or agreement.

STA January 24, 2000 (#43-00)

Petitioner acquired tenure as a teacher of art. Her employment was terminated on June 30, 1985 due to a RIF. She was recalled and re-employed by Respondent on September 1, 1994. However, in September, 1988, the Board employed a non-tenured art teacher to fill a vacancy to teach art. Petitioner was neither notified of the position nor offered a position. She filed this Petition within 90 days of discovering this fact. The parties recognize Petitioner's right on September 1, 1988 to be re-employed as a tenured teacher of art. The C. approves the parties' settlement terms.

CD 8/2000 WOO — Woodbine Education Association and Paula Harris, Petitioners, v. Woodbine Board of Education, Cape May County, Respondent. August 18, 2000 (#274-00)

xSchool Nurses

Petitioner Harris is a certificated school nurse with 32 years of service in the District. Petitioners assert that the Board first acted to subcontract school nursing services even though a duly certified school nurse must perform certain services under school law. The Board abolished her position. Petitioners allege that she was given a choice between a 19-3/4 hour per week position without benefits and premature retirement with benefits. They assert that her teaching functions were transferred to less senior and nontenured staff in violation of her tenure and seniority rights. The Petitioners also assert that since 1998, an individual who only possesses a county substitute certificate has been filling the school nurse position. The Board asserts that it abolished Petitioner's school nurse position, which included both school nurse and health teaching responsibilities, and created two separate and distinct positions, one for school nurse and one for teaching health. The C. finds that Petitioner is "entitled to tenure protection in all assignments within the position of school nurse for which the endorsement on her educational services certificate qualifies her. . . Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.7, the school nurse endorsement authorizes services as a school nurse and teaching in health-related areas." The C. finds that the Board's assertion that it created two positions is not supported by the record. The job description included health instruction both before and after the Board's RIF affecting Petitioner's school nurse position. Under the facts of this matter, the assignment of teaching of health to teaching staff members with less seniority than Petitioner violates her rights. The C. points out that "where there does exist an obligation to aggregate assignments, such obligation is a general principle of law, not an absolute one." The C. holds that "county substitute certificates are intended only for persons temporarily performing the duties of a fully certified and regularly employed teaching staff members." The C. orders Petitioner's reinstatement to her school nurse position on a full-time basis and that she be provided all salary, emoluments and benefits and pension credit to which she is entitled, less mitigation, retroactive to September 1, 1998. Pre- and post-judgment interest is denied.

CD 7/2000 HOL — Joyce Holloway, Petitioner, v. Saddle River Board of Education, Bergen County, Respondent. July 27, 2000 (#242-00)

xCertification xPart-Time Positions xSeniority

Petitioner is an art teacher. The Board reduced her assignment from full-time to part-time for the 1989-99 school year. Petitioner asserts that she should have been offered the full-time position as technology coordinator which the Board gave to another teacher with less seniority than Petitioner. The Board maintains that the selection of a different candidate as technology coordinator was its management prerogative since Petitioner never served in that position. The C. remands the matter to the OAL for determination of the appropriate endorsement, if any, for the position of technology coordinator.

REDUCTION IN WORK HOURS
CD Richard Markowski, Petitioner, v.
3/2000 Cape May County Special Services School District Board of MAR Education, Cape May County, Respondent.
March 24, 2000 (#99-00)

Petitioner was employed as a social studies teacher from January 1, 1995 through June 30, 1998 when his full time tenured teaching position was reduced to a part-time position. Petitioner was placed on a preferred eligibility list and offered a part-time position. He declined the offer in order to accept full-time employment in another public school district. Petitioner claims that the Board retained a less senior teaching staff member to replace him and assigned this replacement teacher to more time than that offered to him. The C. agrees. The C. finds that no reduction in force was actually effectuated until April, 1999, when the classroom schedule of the replacement teacher was changed. Therefore, from June 30, 1998 until April, 1999, Petitioner's tenure and seniority rights were violated. The C. orders the Board to provide Petitioner with the salary and other emoluments to which he was entitled between September, 1998 and April 1, 1999, less mitigation. The Board shall maintain Petitioner on its seniority list for the position of social studies teacher and that he be advised when and if a position becomes available.

REDUCTION IN WORK HOURS
CD Linda Peters, Petitioner, v.
11/2000 Pinelands Regional School District Board of Education, Ocean
PET County, Respondent.
December 11, 2000 (#403-00)

Petitioner, a tenured speech correctionist, asserts that the Board's actions reducing her position from a full-time to a part-time one of 23 hours per week violated her tenure rights. In 1996, the C. granted a waive to the Board permitting it to increase the size of speech language services groups to no more than five students. Based on this waiver, the Board reduced Petitioner's work hours for the 1996-97 school year with a commensurate reduction in her annual salary. There was no comparable reduction in her assigned caseload and job responsibilities. In 1997, the Department of Education, Office of Special Education issued a report which showed violations of students' IEPs and procedural concerns. Based on this report, the Board increased Petitioner's workweek to 32 hours with a corresponding increase in salary. It restored her full-time position for the 1997-98 school year. The ALJ finds that the Board engaged in an illegal RIF by reducing her position from full-time to part-time without reducing the amount of work she was required to do. The C. agrees and orders the Board to pay Petitioner all salary and emoluments owing and due her for the 1996-97 school year.

RIGHT TO KNOW LAW

SC-A 3/2000 WIL — Dr. H. Benjamin Williams, Plaintiff-Respondent, v. Atlantic City Board of Education et al., Defendants and The Press of Atlantic City, Defendant/Intervenor-Appellant. Superior Court, Appellate Division Docket No. A-1109-98T3 March 28, 2000 [329 N.J. Super. 308]

xTenure Charges

In a closed session, the Board suspended Dr. Williams from his position as superintendent of schools and placed him on administrative leave. Dr. Williams alleged violations of the Open Public Meetings Act, the Law Against Discrimination and the Tenure Employees Hearing Act. The Board filed tenure charges against Plaintiff. The Press filed a motion to intervene and to obtain a copy of the tenure charges and supporting documents. The motion judge permitted the Press to intervene, but declined its motion for disclosure of the tenure charges. The Press contends that the tenure charge documents are statutory public records accessible under the Right to Know Law. The Court notes that the Board was required to conduct its proceedings in closed session when addressing the conduct of Plaintiff and whether probable cause existed for his dismissal or a reduction in salary. Dr. Williams argues if the tenure charge documents are open to the public, the closed session activity of the Board and the privacy rights of the employee are undermined. The Court disagrees. "The tenure charge documents filed with the Board's secretary pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 are "public records" within the meaning of the Right to Know Law. The documents were accessible on filing."

SALARY OVERPAYMENTS
CD Alison Hendershot, Petitioner, v.
2/2000 Montague Board of Education, Sussex County, Respondent.
HEN February 28, 2000 (#70-00)

Petitioner has worked as a part-time basic skills teacher or elementary school teacher since the 1993-94 school year. She was on maternity leave from February, 1997 through June, 1997 and returned to work for the 1997-98 school year. She was paid $18,013 for the 1997-98 school year. For the 1998-99 school year, Petitioner's salary was $16,599.23. Petitioner contends that the Board was prohibited from reducing her compensation as a part-time teacher while employing nontenured teachers in her area of certification. The Board contends that Petitioner accepted a reduction in hours from half time to four ninths time in 1997-98, but was erroneously paid half time salary. The reduction in her salary for 1998-99 merely corrected this error. The C. finds no evidence on the record to support Petitioner's contention that she was subjected to a RIF in the 1998-99 school year since the Board did not reduce her salary for reasons of economy, but for salary overpayment. The sole issue is whether the Board improperly reduced Petitioner's salary in the 1998-99 school year in violation of her tenure rights. The C. finds that the Board's adjustment of Petitioner's salary for the 1998-99 school year violated her statutory tenure protections. "The proper means of redress, although less immediate in its result, is to freeze petitioner's salary at its 1997-98 amount." The C. directs the Board to reimburse Petitioner the amount of $1,413.77. The Board is to freeze Petitioner's salary at this level until such time as a 4/9 position at Petitioner's step on the salary guide meets or exceeds $18,013.

CD 9/2000 "M.G.L." "M.G.L.," on behalf of herself and minor children, "B.S.," "D.J.," and "V.J.," Petitioner, v. West Orange Board of Education, Essex County, Respondent. September 7, 2000 (#290-00)

Petitioner contests the Board's policies and procedures for school admission which resulted in a delay in enrolling her children in school. The C. finds that it was improper for the Board to require that a Certificate of Inhabitancy be completed as part of its registration process. This factor contributed substantially to the delay in the children's enrollment. Petitioner and her sister should never have been required to make several visits to the West Orange Zoning and Housing Authority and be subjected to a housing inspection as part of the registration process. The C. further finds that when Petitioner came into the District office on November 3, 1998 to enroll her children, she should have been provided a date for review of the enrollment/registration material sooner than November 16th. "There is no provision in statute or code which requires a parent or guardian to provide a transcript prior to a child's enrollment in school. Furthermore, the C. "finds that incomplete immunization records may not interfere with the enrollment of a child in a school district, notwithstanding that it may, by law, be a basis for delaying actual admission to school." The C. orders the District to discontinue inclusion of a CI in its registration packet. The District is ordered not to allow the absence or incompleteness of transcripts and immunization records to interfere with the enrollment of a new student. The county superintendent is directed to review the District's policies and procedures for enrolling new students. All other relief requested by Petitioner is denied.

The Regional Board approved a Dissolution Incentive Program by which selected personnel are to be paid money in the present school year and again in the 2000-2001 school year in return for their promise to continue their employment until the dissolution date. The Berlin Board seeks a temporary restraining order against the Respondent Board from making such payments until a hearing is conducted on its Petition of Appeal pending before the C. LOW February 25, 2000 (#67-00)

The Petitioners are the boards of education and governing bodies of two municipalities that are constituents of a regional high school district which is being dissolved. They seek reconsideration of a January 27, 1999 Assistant C.'s decision concerning the funding of capital improvements in the Regional District at the present apportionment rate. Although the dissolution date has not been set, it is agreed that the capital improvements would have benefit after the dissolution date. The ALJ explains the significant procedural distinctions between a withdrawal and a dissolution regarding the assumption of indebtedness. The State Board of Education has not amended the withdrawal regulations to incorporate dissolutions, nor has it ever promulgated any separate rules for dissolution. Therefore, the ALJ will apply the withdrawal regulations to dissolution. The ALJ concludes that the $2.75 million lease purchase agreement does not constitute indebtedness. Therefore, this Petition is dismissed. The C. concurs.

SENDING-RECEIVING RELATIONSHIPS
CD Hammonton Board of Education, Atlantic County, Petitioner, v.
1/2000 Hammonton Education Association et al., Respondents.
HAM January 4, 2000 (#2-00)

The Lower Camden County Regional School District No. 1 is currently a limited purpose regional school district which operates four schools educating pupils in grades 7-12. Its constituent districts submitted an application to the C. requesting that a Board of Review convene to authorize a public referendum to consider the dissolution of the Regional District. The application was granted and dissolution was approved by the voters. Thereafter, the Hammonton District and Waterford District entered into a proposed sending-receiving relationship whereby the Hammonton Board agreed to accept Waterford's 7-12 grade students. There are matters to be answered before the sending-receiving relationship is implemented. The C. finds that the execution of a sending-receiving relationship is within the inherent powers of each Board of Education under education law and regulation. The Hammonton Board asks the C. if it has any responsibility to use employees of the dissolved Regional District. Under N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, the employment rights of employees of the dissolving district involve continued employment in one of the constituent districts. "Moreover, this statutory right is confined to instances where regional staff members cannot be accommodated within their certification to available high school positions. It is uncontroverted here that Hammonton is not a constituent district of the LCCR, nor is it claimed that Hammonton either had any input in the hiring or employment of LCCR employees, or played any role whatsoever in the referendum to dissolve the LCCR. As such, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 does not operate to create an independent obligation for Hammonton to employ staff of the LCCR as a result of the district's dissolution." Hammonton does not have any derivative responsibility under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.1 to employ regional district staff because of its proposed sending-receiving relationship with Waterford. This statute applies only if a district closes a school and then sends its pupils from the closed school to the receiving district. All of the affected staff were employed by the Regional District, not the Waterford District. The staff of the dissolved Regional District will be able to select positions in all seven of the constituent districts, but will not be able to select positions in grades 7-12 in Waterford. The C. finds that under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-20, the current boards of education of Hammonton and Waterford may not enter into a thirty year sending-receiving relationship. This statute specifically prohibits any term exceeding ten years. At the end of this period, the new boards may enter into subsequent 10-year successor agreements if desired.

Petitioners filed an application for emergency relief before the C. seeking a stay of the scheduled staff selection process by the Respondent boards pending a plenary hearing on the merits of Respondents' Petition. The ALJ denies the motion for emergency relief. "If mistakes occur or oversights are made, there is time to correct such matters before the effective date of the dissolution and petitioners do have remedies available to them should the need arise. The legal rights of petitioners underlying their claims in the petition of appeal are not clearly settled, nor have petitioners demonstrated a likelihood of success on the merits." October 11, 2000 (#338-00)

On March 4, 1998, the State Board of Education directed that a plenary hearing be conducted in order to determine whether the Bayonne Board of Education had the requisite standing to pose a State equal protection challenge to the method of distribution of foundation and categorical aid under the Quality Education Act of 1990 as amended. If Bayonne has such standing, has it demonstrated that a State equal protection violation has occurred in connection with distribution of the aid? Bayonne contends that the method of distribution chosen by Respondents is based upon outdated enrollment data, thereby depriving Bayonne of additional aid since its enrollment increased while its State aid did not. The ALJ finds that Bayonne has standing since its petition can be read to pursue claims on behalf of its students since the reduction in State Aid funding impacts on the offerings that can be made to students. The ALJ finds that Bayonne failed to prove that funding formulas created any improper classifications among school districts or that the formulas had a disparate impact on Bayonne. The C. concurs and dismisses the Petition.

1/2000 Education, et al., Petitioners, v.
"D.S." Leo F. Klagholz, Commissioner of Education and the New Jersey Department of Education, Respondents.
January 10, 2000 (#6-00)

Petitioners allege that Respondents failed to properly implement the provisions of the Comprehensive Education Improvement and Financing Act as they pertained to the District's State aid for the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years. They assert that the Board's students were denied their constitutional entitlement to a thorough and efficient education because the State provided less aid. The C. notes that Wildwood received more aid in 1997-98, even after stabilization, than it had under the prior funding formula. Furthermore, the District received 1.5 million over and above CEIFA aid through special language in the 1997 and 1998 Appropriation Acts. CEIFA's stabilization provision will work in the 1999-2000 school year and beyond so that the "final aid calculation for Wildwood in any given year will include core curriculum standards aid based on the district's growth in actual enrollment, without the transitional limitation imposed during the first two years of the act's operation. . . .To the extent that petitioners are alleging that the stabilization provision, as it will apply in 1999-2000 and beyond, acts to prevent the district from providing T&E in accordance with the constitutional mandate, such allegation, in addition to being insufficiently pled, is premature until such time as the funding formulas of CEIFA have been fully reflected in the educational programs of the district and afforded an opportunity to work as intended." Petition dismissed.

STRIKES
SC-A 5/2000 MID — Middletown Board of Education, Monmouth County, Plaintiff-Appellant/Cross-Respondent, v.
Middletown Township Education Association, Diane Swaim, et al. Defendants-Respondents, and New Jersey Education Association and John Molloy, Defendants-Respondents.
Superior Court, Appellate Division
May 16, 2000

The Board obtained an order to show cause with restraints which they served on about 300 of some 850 employees threatening to strike. Most of the secretarial staff reported for work, but only about 130 of the 770 teachers did so. The Board hired substitute teachers to keep the schools open. On September 3, 1998, it moved for litigant's relief. On September 10th, the teachers returned to work. The Board moved for an order allowing it the monetary damages it had sustained as a result of the strike. It docked the pay of the striking teachers. It seeks additional funds to pay for the cost of the substitute teachers, security, legal fees, transportation costs for replacement staff, and extra overtime. The Superior Court, Chancery Division, judge declined to award damages since the Board's total expenses did not exceed its savings in teachers' salaries. The judge did allow the requested counsel fees. The Board appeals from the portion of the judgment denying its claim for the non-instructional expenses it incurred. The Superior Court, Appellate Division, agrees with the trial judge. The defendant MTEA acknowledged in the trial court its responsibility for the $30,000 counsel fee and does not challenge the concession before this court. Regarding the issue of cross-appellants' joint and several liability, there is no basis on which to impose that liability on them. "There is no competent evidence that cross-appellants participated in planning, supporting or carrying out the strike and no competent evidence to support the Board's bare speculation that the cross-appellants colluded with defendant MTEA and its members. Absent a factual basis that could support a finding that they were involved in the strike, the judgment against them cannot stand." The matter is remanded to the trial court for entry of an appropriate amended judgment.

9/2000 Kittrels, Petitioners, v.
KIT State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, Respondent.
September 18, 2000 (#309-00)

Since October, 1987, the firm entered into written agreements with the Newark Board of Education engaging it as a consultant to provide various educational services. No successor written contract was entered into for the 1994-95 school year, but it was extended on a month-to-month basis as of July 1, 1994. On July 12, 1995, the State took over operation of the Newark School District and advised the firm that its services were no longer needed. Petitioner asserts that he should have been paid in accordance with the contract as extended from July 1 to July 12, 1995. He also asserts that he was entitled to sixty calendar days pay after July 12, 1995 and was entitled to a $1200 payment as a bonus authorized by certain senior staff employees of the District. The issue is: At the time the contract was terminated, did the District owe Petitioner for services? The C. finds that Petitioners do not have any entitlement to 60 days pay pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7!-44(a) nor to the bonus payment adjustment. However, the C. notes that Petitioners are entitled to payment for the services during July 1995.

xChild Study Teams

Petitioner was employed as a school psychologist and was a member of the child study team. The Board abolished her position effective June 30, 1996. The Board had been granted a waiver of regulations so as to provide all basic child study team services by contracting with a private vendor. Petitioner claims that the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 requires boards to provide basic child study team services only through its own employees or by combining with other districts to provide such services through authorized public entities. The State Board of Education finds that Petitioner's view is correct. The grant of the waiver was not a valid exercise of the C.'s authority and is invalid.
On November 27, 2000, the C. rejected the parties' settlement. The agreement is expressly contingent upon the Division of Pensions and Benefits recognition of additional pension credit to be attributed to Petitioner for the 1996-97 school year. The C. cannot sanction a settlement which is contingent upon the satisfaction of conditions by another agency and which provides that if such conditions are not met, the agreement shall be deemed null. The C. directs that the matter be remanded to the OAL and held in abeyance pending review by the Division of Pensions and Benefits of the parties' proposal.

xCertification xDistance Learning xLanguage Instruction xLimited Star Distance Learning Consortium

The Board entered a contract with Limited Star Distance Learning Consortium (STARNET) to provide distance learning credit courses in Latin I, II, and III at the Neptune Township Senior High School. STARNET provides student instruction via direct television broadcast and videotape programs. It provides collateral materials including calendars and lesson plans as well as text books, laboratory apparatus, resource materials, work books, language audio tapes and other instructional materials. The instructor who presented the Latin instruction via closed circuit television did not hold a New Jersey standard teaching certificate. STARNET requires the District to assign a classroom facilitator for high school credit courses. The two Department Chairpersons who were assigned to facilitate the Latin classes were not certified in any foreign language. The Association asserts that the Board may not use non-certified teaching personnel to provide foreign language instruction for academic credit to its high school students. The Association contends that Core Course Proficiencies could not be met through the distance learning technique. The C. finds that the Latin instruction provided through Respondent's distance learning program could not lawfully be delivered by a person not in possession of appropriate New Jersey certification. The Board is directed to cease its current means of providing Latin instruction through STARNET.

SUBSTITUTE STAFF

SBD 5/2000 MID — In the Matter of the waiver granted to the Middletown Township Board of Education, Monmouth County. May 3, 2000

The Middletown Education Association appealed the grant of a waiver from N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.5(c) to the Board by the C. This would permit it to employ individuals possessing a certificate of eligibility with advanced standing to serve as a substitute teacher for up to sixty days in the same assignment. The State Board of Education finds that waiving the requirement that an individual's service as a daily substitute under a county substitute certificate must be limited to twenty days in a given assignment constitutes a waiver of the certification rules which would otherwise apply. County substitute certificates are not teaching certificates. Therefore, as detailed in Guttenberg, such a waiver cannot properly be granted. The waiver is invalidated.

The Petitioners allege that the Board improperly suspended "J.L." from its schools and placed her on home instruction. The ALJ finds that the Board's case against her was based entirely upon hearsay. Should the Board again suspend "J.G.," it will provide him with: written notice of any charge on which the suspension is based, a written statement of the factual allegations on which any charges are based, the means of contact of any person with knowledge of relevant facts, a copy of any relevant documents and notice of a Board hearing during which "J.G." may confront any witnesses and evidence against him and call witnesses and offer evidence in his defense. The C. points out that the Board has offered to pay both tuition and transportation costs for "T.C.'s" attendance at one of three local alternative high schools provided he maintains good attendance at the chosen school. The C. finds that Petitioner is not entitled to documents about "T.C." from the District's Core Team. The C. denies Petitioner's request for emergent relief and orders the matter continued at the OAL on the merits of Petitioner's claims.

Petitioners demand that the Board: remove from their son's pupil record an entry relating to a theft charge; provide copies of records made and maintained pursuant to the Board's substance abuse prevention program; and provide "T.C." an education in a proper facility after his expulsion. The ALJ finds that the Board has removed from "T.C.'s" pupil record the entry on the theft charge. The ALJ points out that the records maintained as part of the drug abuse program are confidential. Such patient records may only be divulged with a patient's prior written consent or, upon a showing of good cause as authorized by an "appropriate order of a court of competent jurisdiction." The ALJ finds that the Board did not act arbitrarily in expelling "T.C." The Board has directed "T.C." to several alternative schools through which he can obtain credits to obtain his high school degree and the Board has offered to pay for such educational services. The C. affirms and dismisses the Petition.

He was accused of exposing his buttocks, making an obscene gesture and a remark during basketball practice. Petitioners appealed the Board's decision to suspend "J.B." and "L.B." from classes and extracurricular activities for consuming alcohol off school premises prior to a school sponsored dance. The C. finds that the suspensions were arbitrary and capricious since the Board did not enforce its Drug and Alcohol Abuse Policy against all students who were suspected of involvement in this incident. Furthermore, under its own disciplinary policy, the Board was not authorized to impose sanctions for conduct of this type. The C. directs the Board to revise its policy to eliminate the phrase "near school property" and to reflect the sphere of the Board's disciplinary authority more clearly. The Board is ordered to remove from the students' school records all references to the disciplinary actions.

In his paper for his creative writing class, "R.M." describes acts of violence against a number of persons in the high school, including the principal. The teacher gave his paper to the school's guidance counselor who showed it to the principal. "R.M." was suspended for ten days. During his suspension, he was observed in the school's parking lot. The principal was assigned a security guard to accompany her to and from her car and be present in the principal's office after school hours. "R.M." was evaluated by a psychiatrist. CD "M.G." and "M.G.," on behalf of minor child, "A.G.," 11/2000 Petitioners, v.
"M.G." Washington Township Board of Education, Gloucester County, Respondent.
November 6, 2000 (#359-00)

The Board expelled "A.G." after two drug tests showed that he had taken marijuana. "This matter concerns a district's dual responsibility to arrange for the immediate medical examination of a pupil when a staff member suspects that he is under the influence of alcohol or other drugs at school or a school-sponsored function, and, where that suspicion is substantiated, to ensure that he receives appropriate follow-up services." The C. finds that N.J.S.A. 18A:40A-12 does not require that parental consent be obtained before a pupil receives this medical examination. Once a staff member advises the administrator of suspected student use, the principal or designee may not substitute his/her judgment for that of the referring staff member. Upon the student's return to school, a substance awareness coordinator or other appropriately trained teaching staff member shall interview the student for the purpose of determining the extent of involvement with prohibited substances and possible need for treatment. Board policy provides that if a pupil is found to be under the influence of prohibited substances twice during his enrollment in the District, the pupil will be excluded from school pending an expulsion hearing by the Board. After "A.G.'s" second positive finding of marijuana, the Board conducted an expulsion hearing without further documentation of his progress in treatment. "A.G." was placed on home instruction until his 16th birthday when the Board terminated educational services to him. The C. is concerned about the perfunctory hearing on expulsion. "Notwithstanding the fundamental nature of an expulsion hearing, not only were petitioners dissuaded from attending the hearing and arguing on A.G.'s behalf, but there are also indications in the record that the Board may have deliberately failed to consider the viability of options other than expulsion, such as alternative educational programs, that might be suitable for him." The C. directs the Board to readmit "A.G." to its District and to determine, after considering pertinent factors including available alternative educational options, whether expulsion is the appropriate sanction in his case.

He was charged as a juvenile with aggravated assault and unlawful possession of weapons on school grounds. "M.C." pled guilty to two disorderly persons offenses resulting from the charges and was placed on probation. The District expelled him. After the expulsion, the District discontinued all educational services to "M.C." and takes the position that it is no longer responsible for his education. The shutdown screen message on the computers in the school labs reads: "It is now safe to turn off your computer." "K.M.A." opened the shutdown message file on the computer he was using and substituted the message "if you turn me off I will blow up." "K.M.A." was suspended and arrested. The Board expelled him. Based on the circumstances, the C. determines that the Board did not act reasonably when it concluded, under the circumstances of this matter, that "K.M.A.'s" entitlement to a free public education in the District should be permanently severed. The penalty was too harsh. "K.M.A.'s" record shall reflect that he is entitled to reinstatement for the 1999-2000 school year. Should he request readmission to the District, the Board should conduct a full and fair evaluation in order to determine whether a return to the regular school environment or an alternative placement is warranted.

xManagement Prerogatives

Petitioners challenge the Board policy prohibiting possession and use of portable paging or telecommunication devices by employees during school hours. Petitioners assert that the policy is ultra vires, arbitrary and capricious and violates free speech. The parties partially settled, agreeing that employees could use cellular phones during their lunch periods. A hearing was held on the issue regarding employee use of cellular phones during their professional periods. The C. finds that the Board's imposition of restrictions in the use of telecommunications devices during preparation or professional periods was a reasonable exercise of its discretionary authority not subject to disturbance by the C. Petition dismissed.

TENURE CLAIMS
CD Nancy J. DiComo, Petitioner, v.
10/2000 Newark School District, Essex County, Respondent.
DIC October 2, 2000 (#327-00)

Petitioner asserts that she is tenured in a supervisory position and seeks reinstatement to a position as vice principal with back pay. The District avers that she is only tenured as a teacher. Petitioner taught elementary school from 1964 through June, 1972. From 1972 through June, 1979 she was a remedial reading resource teacher. From 1980 through 1996, Petitioner was in the following titles: central office supervisor of reading; supervisory monitor; and central office supervisor of special projects. When the State took over the District in 1996, Petitioner became a vice principal and remained in that position until 1998 when she was not renewed as vice principal. The District claims that her supervisory position was abolished and transferred her to a classroom position. The C. notes that "this matter does present for the first time in a contested case the circumstance wherein a central office administrative/supervisory employee, whose position was abolished pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44 was not, upon reorganization, either terminated or returned to an 'other than central office' position to which he or she was entitled by virtue of tenure and/or seniority rights, but rather, is placed in a school-based administrative position in which the individual has not previously attained tenure." The C. finds that a vice principal position is separately tenurable from that of supervisor. It requires an endorsement different from that of supervisor and constitutes a school-based rather than a central office position. "Tenure accruing to a vice principal position cannot be achieved without actual service in the position for the requisite statutory length of time." The C. concludes that Petitioner cannot attain, through the reorganization of a state-operated district, tenure status in a school-based administrative position when she has only served on central office supervisory positions. Petition dismissed.

The C. finds that Respondent's actions constitute unbecoming conduct warranting her dismissal from her tenured position. The matter shall be referred to the State Board of Examiners for action against Respondent's certificate as it deems appropriate.

On August 5, 1999, Respondent threatened to kill administration officials. She has been absent from work for 302 days. Respondent has not replied to the Board's charges. xCriminal Charges

The Board filed tenure charges with the C. against Respondent, a tenured custodian. He was charged with conduct unbecoming a public employee based upon his arrest for committing a burglary and criminal mischief. Respondent entered a plea of guilty to the criminal mischief charge and to the charge of burglary in the third degree. A judgment of conviction on the count of third degree burglary was formally entered which included an order of forfeiture of his public employment by the Superior Court. The Board moves for summary decision. The C. finds that the tenure charges are moot. His employment with the Board ceased, effective upon the date of the forfeiture order.

The Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, excessive and chronic absenteeism and excessive lateness and neglect of duties against Respondent, a tenured custodian. No replay has been received from Respondent in response to the Board's charges. Therefore, the C. directs that each count of the charges against Respondent is deemed to be admitted. Respondent is dismissed from his tenured position as a custodian in the Board's employ as of the date of this order.

xDrug Abuse

Respondent, a tenured head custodian, was arrested for possession of marijuana and cocaine. The Board asserts that despite his successful completion of the PTI program, his involvement with drugs is sufficiently flagrant to warrant dismissal from his position. The C. agrees with the Board that this single incident of drug possession, under the factual circumstances presented herein, and in light of the ALJ's credibility determinations, is sufficient to warrant Respondent's removal as a janitor with the District.

xCorporal Punishment

The C. rejects the parties' settlement. Respondent, a school librarian, is charged with conduct unbecoming a staff member because of alleged use of corporal punishment and failure to adopt recommendations for reducing stress at work, inability to cope with personal conflicts, and creating a volatile classroom environment. The revisions to the settlement must specify that Respondent will not oppose proceedings before the State Board of Examiners to suspend or revoke her certificates. If the parties are unable to reach accord on the agreement, the matter shall proceed to hearing on its merits.

On November 1, 2000, the State Board of Education determined that the criteria set forth in Cardonick have been met. It is not necessary for the proposed settlement in this case to include an express agreement by Respondent not to oppose referral to the State Board of Examiners. The State Board of Education concludes that "the acknowledgment of the Commissioner's duty to make the referral already included in the proposal is sufficient to insure that, as required by Cardonick, Respondent understands that one of the implications of the settlement is referral to the Board of Examiners and, consequently, the potential for the board to initiate proceedings to revoke or suspend her certification." The State Board of Education approves the parties' settlement and directs the matter be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners.

TENURE HEARINGS-PRINCIPALS
CD 6/2000 KIM — In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Morris Kimble, Trenton School District, Mercer County. June 15, 2000 (#181-00)

Tenure charges were filed against Respondent, a tenured principal. Allegations include: early release of a student without proper authorization; failure to take steps to discipline the school disciplinarian for allowing the early release; failure to insure that the staff were made aware of the Board's early dismissal policy; failure to meet and respond to parental concerns; arriving to work and meetings late; failing to submit the middle school budget plan in the designated format; failure to provide access to the Holland Middle School by a Trenton Times reporter in accordance with Board policy and administrative directives; failing to insure adequate instruction on March 3, 1999 when many members of the staff attended a funeral; and generally failing to follow Board policies and administrative directives. The C. does not approve the parties' settlement. The record provides no information as to what position Respondent will hold between his resuming employment with the Board and the effective date of his retirement. The C. cannot determine how the payment of accumulated sick days, vacation days and personnel leave days was calculated. The matter is remanded to the OAL

TENURE HEARINGS-PSYCHOLOGISTS
CD In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Margaret Sidberry, 8/2000 Willingboro School District, Burlington County.
SID August 18, 2000 (#272-00)

The Board filed tenure charges of inefficiency, pattern of conduct and unbecoming conduct against Respondent, a tenured school psychologist. The Board asserts that Respondent failed to prepare and submit psychological assessment reports in a timely manner as required by federal and state law. The Board submitted 53 memos from the Director of Pupil Personnel Services reminding her of overdue reports; three annual evaluations reprimanding her for overdue reports; an increment withholding; and four professional improvement plans to guide her to improve the submission of reports. Respondent points to her overall good record in other aspects of her position. She asserts that staff cutbacks and shortages, increased case management duties, extra assignments, scheduling difficulties, and the huge volume of students assigned to her for processing interfered with her writing and submission of reports. The C. finds that the Board sustained its charges of inefficiency against Respondent. It provided her with a period of remediation during which it accorded her reasonable support to assist her in overcoming such inefficiencies. Respondent was unwilling or unable to improve. The C. orders Respondent's removal from her tenured position. "At a very minimum, the untimely preparation and submission of her reports delayed the initial or re-evaluative placement of students in appropriate educational programs and placed the District in unnecessary jeopardy of potential legal action for failure to comply with federal and state statutes and regulations governing the rights of classified students." The matter shall be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action against Respondent's certificate as it deems appropriate.
Affirmed, State Board of Education, January 3, 2001.

MUL May 15, 2000 (#148-00)

The Board certified tenure charges alleging conduct unbecoming a chief school administrator. It asserts that Respondent made misrepresentations to the Board, exhibited incompetence in the handling of school board issues and in performing his duties, and failed to adhere to school board policies. The Board maintains that Respondent failed to: supervise and direct fiscal operations and instructional programs, negotiate between the Board and the teachers' association, and failed to ensure the safety and well being of pupils by mishandling the school nurse situation. The C. approves the parties' settlement and transmits a copy of this decision to the State Board of Examiners for action as it deems appropriate.

xSexual Abuse

The District filed tenure charges of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member against Respondent, a tenured teacher of French. He was suspended from his position without pay for 120 days pending resolution of these charges. Respondent is charged with: using inappropriate language and actions during his French class, making inappropriate comments of a sexual nature to female students, hitting a female student on the buttocks with a book, and making inappropriate comments of a sexual nature to minor students. DYFS received an allegation of sexual and emotional abuse concerning these charges. After conducting an investigation, DYFS concluded that sexual abuse was unfounded in relation to Respondent's actions. DYFS did find that there was evidence Respondent made inappropriate comments to female students concerning sexual situations and body parts. The C. determines that Respondent's use of inappropriate language and inappropriate conduct with his students is conduct unbecoming a teacher. In view of all the facts in this matter, including Respondent's prior unblemished history, the extreme penalty of loss of tenured employment is not warranted. The C. orders a loss of salary for six months plus the withholding of salary increments for the 1999-2000 and 2000-2001 school years. Respondent is to be reinstated to his position only after he is determined to be fit by a psychologist or psychiatrist to be selected and paid by the Board within 60 days of the date of this decision.

xSexual Harassment

Tenure charges of unbecoming conduct were filed against Respondent, a tenured teacher of science. The Board alleges that he sexually harassed a 19-year-old female student during class. The student states that Respondent asked her for her phone numbers, pulled a string on her blouse and wanted to date her. The C. notes that paramount to the resolution of this case is the credibility of the witnesses. The C. determines that in the interest of fairness, Respondent's Motion to Re-open the Hearing be granted and that the matter be remanded to the OAL for further proceedings. "The C.'s independent review of the record, including a thorough scrutiny of the transcripts, compels him to agree with respondent that the within ALJ's stated determinations with regard to respondent's credibility were based, in large part, on facts not supported by evidence in the record. . . .Given the gravity of the allegations, i.e., sexual misconduct directed at a special education student, and the significance of the stakes at issue here, the C. concludes that it is essential that respondent be provided with an opportunity for entry into the record of such further testimony and evidence as will permit the critical determinations relating to credibility to be based on a full and fair record." Respondent is entitled to back pay for the period October 16-December 15, 1998 since the summer months were incorrectly excluded from the computation of the 120 days.

xState Health Benefits Plan

Petitioner brought tenure charges of conduct unbecoming a teacher against Respondent. The charges were based on Respondent's intentional participation in a scheme to defraud the State Health Benefits Program by conspiring with Dr. Cal H. Lichtman to submit claims for psychological services allegedly rendered. Petitioner allegedly provided information required and used to submit fraudulent claims to the insurance carrier for payment for psychological services not rendered. Respondent received a share of the fees collected. On May 5,2000, Respondent was convicted of crimes of the second and third degree which involved dishonesty. As part of the sentence, the judge entered an order forfeiting Respondent's employment with the District. Because Respondent forfeited her public employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2a(1) and 2, as a consequence of the judicial order, the tenure charges are rendered moot.

xCorporal Punishment xProfanity

The District charged Respondent, a tenured teacher, with several counts of corporal punishment, unbecoming conduct and subordination." It states that Respondent used excessive force to discipline students, used profanity and racial epithets in his classroom, and referred to students in derogatory and demeaning language. The District asserts that Respondent in separate incidents pushed a student against a wall, pushed another student into a chair, pushed a student against a blackboard, grabbed a student by the neck and pushed him into a chair, and made derogatory statements to students about "welfare kids" and "project kids." Respondent had received prior warnings and reprimands. The ALJ finds that Respondent was aware that corporal punishment is illegal and that he had received ample notice that he should refrain from excessive use of physical force in disciplining students. The C. concurs that the District has sustained its tenure charges against Respondent. The appropriate penalty is dismissal. The matter shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners.

xAlcohol Abuse xProfanity

The Board certified charges of unbecoming conduct against Respondent, a tenured teacher. A parent complained about messages from Respondent left on his home answering machine and directed to his two daughters who are students in the District. Respondent admitted that he made the telephone calls, but claimed that it was the result of a reaction to medication and alcohol. He did not remember the content of the messages, which included profanities. The C. finds that Respondent's behavior constitutes conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. The C. rejects as untenable Respondent's claim of entitlement to the protections afforded a handicapped person by New Jersey's Law Against Discrimination because of his "alcoholism disability." "Employers are not required to tolerate criminal or egregious conduct of employees, even if the conduct in question was caused by a disability." Respondent claims that his offending actions were not "work related." The C. disagrees since the messages were directed to two students, caused them great distress and disrupted their educational program. Furthermore, the "mere fact that misconduct occurred at a time and place entirely apart from school and even may involve people entirely unrelated to it does not immunize the offender from disciplinary sanction commensurate with his offense." The C. orders Respondent dismissed from his tenured position. The matter shall be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action, as it deems appropriate, against Respondent's certificate.

See 1998 School Law Decisions Index for background. The C. held that Respondent's conduct was unbecoming a teaching staff member based upon his conviction for simple assault of a sixth grade student while in school. Despite his previous record, the C. finds that this incident is sufficiently flagrant to warrant Respondent's dismissal from his teaching position. The C. concludes that Respondent was entitled to his salary and related emoluments retroactive to February 27, 1998 without off-set for substituted employment. The C. finds that Respondent has not met his burden of establishing that the Board's action to withhold his salary increment for the 1997-98 school year was arbitrary and capricious. CD 3/2000 FIN — In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Patricia Finn, Bordentown Regional School District, Burlington County. March 10, 2000 (#86-00)

The Board filed tenure charges against Respondent alleging incapacity and other just cause. Charge A. includes failure to prepare adequate lesson plans, failed to adhere to developed lesson plans, failed to provide pupils with the instruction scheduled for a given date, failed to adhere to the individual educational plans of special education pupils, and failed to supervise and use the instructional aide in an appropriate manner. Charge B. involves just cause for removal and includes failure to adhere to policies regarding meetings with parents and other staff members, failure to prepare and follow lesson plans, failure to follow IEPs, leaving her classroom unattended, and permitting an instructional aid to deliver instruction directly. Before filing the charges with the C., the Board did not follow the procedures for certifying charges of inefficiency as set out in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. Until the 1996-97 school year, Respondent's evaluations were mostly favorable. The ALJ characterizes most of the charges as charges of inefficiency. The Board did not provide Respondent the 90 day statutory period of assistance to overcome the specific inefficiencies. Therefore, these charges are dismissed without prejudice. Charges of leaving her classroom unattended and permitting an instructional aide to deliver instruction directly to students are "discrete incidents of conduct or behavior which violate some known rule or regulation." The ALJ characterizes these charges as conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member or other just cause. The C. reviewed the two just cause charges and found them sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal of reduction in salary. The C. remands the two charges to the OAL for further proceedings.

The C. approves the parties' settlement, November 8, 2000 (#360-00R).

xAbsenteeism xJob Injuries xTextbooks

The Board filed tenure charges of excessive absenteeism, unbecoming conduct, insubordination, and other just cause against Respondent, a tenured teacher of special education. Charges 1 through 4 allege excessive absenteeism during the 1994-95, 1996-97, 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years. The charges aver that the absences "resulted in a disruption of the proper operation of Park Avenue, interfering with the instructional process, resulting in a detrimental impact on the educational environment. . . ." Respondent asserts that the majority of the absences were due to on the job injuries. The Board argues that Respondent did not return to employment on dates reasonably expected by her physicians. It asserts that she exhibited a pattern of absences occurring before and after weekends and holidays raises questions regarding her credibility. The ALJ notes that it has not yet been determined by the Division of Workers' Compensation whether any of Respondent's injuries arose out of and in the course of her employment. However, the ALJ states that "action may be taken against a teacher because of excessive absenteeism even if such is the result of work-related injuries." The ALJ upholds Charges 1 through 4. Respondent argues that Charges 5 through 13 constitute charges of inefficiency and should be dismissed because the Board did not comply with pertinent procedural requirements. Charge 5 alleges that Respondent failed to follow a specific administrative directive requiring her to inform her principal of a scheduled attendance at a mandated professional day and that such conduct constitutes unbecoming conduct, insubordination and just cause for dismissal. Charge 6 asserts that Respondent failed to follow an administrative directive requiring all staff members to submit lesson plans in a timely manner. Charge 7 alleges that Respondent abandoned her classroom to attend an education workshop without prior authorization from her principal and failed to follow a specific administrative directive by ignoring the principal's request to return from the workshop to her classroom. Charge 8 asserts that Respondent failed to follow a specific administrative directive requiring all teachers to submit a list of core curriculum needs to immediate Team Leaders. Charge 9 maintains that Respondent failed to follow specific administrative directives requiring all teachers to attend a mandatory staff meeting. The ALJ finds that the Board has not proven Charges 5-9 by a preponderance of the creditable evidence. Charge 10 alleges that Respondent failed to follow an administrative directive requiring all teachers to keep beepers and cellular telephones out of sight and to ensure that they are disengaged during the instructional day. The ALJ finds that the Board has proven Charge 10 by a preponderance of credible evidence and states that the withholding of an increment is an appropriate penalty. Charge 11 alleges that Respondent failed to follow a specific administrative directive by her continued failure to use the Board's adopted texts, thus constituting unbecoming conduct, insubordination and other just cause. It maintains that such failure adversely affected the instruction provided her students. The ALJ states that failure by a teacher to use a district's adopted textbooks constitutes insubordination and/or unbecoming conduct. However, the ALJ finds that the Board has not proven this charge by a preponderance of the creditable evidence. Charge 12 alleges that Respondent continuously failed to follow administrative directives during the 1998-99 school year. The AlJ dismisses this charge. Charge 13 avers that Respondent failed to follow by a specific administrative directive by failing to group students according to their IEP levels, thus adversely affecting the instruction provided to students. Charge dismissed. The C. finds nothing in the record indicating that the Board based its decision to certify tenure Charges 1 through 4, excessive absenteeism, against Respondent solely upon application of a mechanistic, mathematical or statistical formula. The Board has met the standard for termination of a tenured employee for excessive absenteeism set forth in White. Thus, there must be consideration of "(1) the particular circumstances of the absences and not merely the number of absences, (2) the impact that the absences had on the continuity of instruction during the period of time the absences occurred, not merely after the fact and (3) that there be some warning given to the employee that his or supervisors were dissatisfied with the pattern of the absences." The C. upholds the ALJ's findings regarding Charge 10. The C. orders Respondent's termination from her tenured position. A copy of this decision shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for review and action as it deems appropriate.

xComputers

Respondent, a tenured instructor of basic skills, was charged with conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member for using a school computer to access and view pornography on the Internet during school hours. Respondent denies the charges and claims that any access to illicit material was inadvertent. The charges are based upon the allegations of a student Respondent was tutoring in his basic skills class. This student has been receiving psychological counseling. Respondent argues that his rights were violated when the principal confronting him did not inform him of the identity of his accuser or the specifics of the allegations against him. Respondent notes that the computer was shared by the six teachers who regularly used the room, plus it was available to any additional teachers and students who wanted to use it. The computer was not password-protected and had no log-in procedure to identify the user. There was also open access to the room in which the computer was used for community groups who used the school evenings and weekends. The Board argues that the student's testimony is augmented by clear evidence because the "computer was 'rife' with pornographic content, including a large amount of access to pornographic 'news groups,' which the Board maintains cannot be inadvertently accessed but must be accessed through subscriptions." The C. notes that "Not only was J.M. unsure which month(s) he observed respondent viewing sexually explicit material as indicated above, but he was also inconsistent in recounting which days of the week, the time of day and the number of instances. . . .Although J.M. had writing only three days a week, he testified that he saw respondent accessing pornographic material every time he went into the classroom and that he went there every day." No other teacher nor student ever saw Respondent do anything inappropriate on the computer." The Board did not have a policy in place governing the use of school computers prior to "J.M.'s" accusations nor was there security measures in place regarding the use of computers. The C. notes that the Board's computer experts contaminated the evidence in their search for websites and dates accessed. The C. finds that the Board failed to meet its burden of proof substantiating the charges of misconduct by Respondent by a preponderance of credible evidence. The C. orders Respondent's reinstatement with back pay for the period of his suspension at the level of pay that he would have received had the charges not been brought against him.
On November 1, 2000, the State Board of Education agreed with the C. that the Board failed to demonstrate the charges against the Respondent by a preponderance of the credible evidence.

The Board filed seven tenure charges against Respondent, a tenured teacher. The charges assert that Respondent exhibited "unbecoming conduct on seven occasions in the classroom when he uttered racist, sexist and/or derogatory comments to students and when he required students to chant "school sucks" in the classroom. Respondent faults the Board's investigation because the administrators allegedly did not search out witnesses that would provide evidence in support of him and did not record such evidence when they did receive it. The ALJ finds that the investigation was not tainted. The C. concurs. The C. finds that the Board has sustained its burden of proving all seven charges of conduct unbecoming a teacher by a preponderance of credible evidence. "As to the appropriate penalty, the Commissioner finds it necessary to balance the totality of the record herein with the need to stress most emphatically on respondent the seriousness of his conduct and his need for greater control and sensitivity in dealing with his students." In view of all the facts in this matter, the extreme penalty of loss of tenured employment is not warranted. The C. orders the forfeiture of 120 days of pay withheld following the certification of tenure charges, the forfeiture of an additional two months' salary, and the withholding of increments until the end of the 2000-01 school year. The C. notes that it would be appropriate for the board to compel Respondent to attend training classes designed to address and prevent insensitive conduct in the classroom.

The C. rejects the parties' settlement. Respondent, a tenured teacher, is charged with conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. She is accused of engaging in inappropriate and unjustified physical contact with students, failure to attend required training relating to effective student techniques and crisis intervention and failure to supervise her students properly. The C. notes that Respondent's resignation from the District is contingent upon action to be taken by the Division of Pensions and Benefits. "The C. cannot approve a settlement where a material term, such as respondent's resignation, is dependent upon the satisfaction of conditions by another agency, and where the parties make no provision for that condition's nonoccurrence." Also, the C. notes that the proposed settlement provides no explanation of how the lump sum payment to Respondent for the purchase of her service credits is consistent with the public's interest or how it was calculated. The C. cannot approve settlement terms that would infringe upon the right of the District to respond to any inquiries that might arise concerning Respondent's employment. The parties cannot bind the C. to a confidentiality provision. The matter is remanded to the OAL for revision of the settlement, including the specification that Respondent will not oppose proceedings before the State Board of Examiners. On May 20, 1998, the Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against Respondent, a tenured teacher. Respondent was suspended from his teaching duties without pay pending disposition of the charges. Budget reductions by the superintendent of schools were the initial cause of disputes between Respondent and the superintendent. Respondent's position of "staff developer" which he held in addition to his teaching duties was eliminated. Respondent was issued a written reprimand due to his conduct outside the superintendent's office concerning a canceled PTA meeting. Respondent's response to this written reprimand formed the basis for the tenure charges. Mr. Montgomery had this rebuttal published in the Irvington Herald newspaper. Respondent also published another letter in the newspaper concerning his dispute with the superintendent which formed the basis for the charges of conduct unbecoming a teacher. The C. approves the parties' settlement. The settlement provides that the terms of the Agreement shall be kept confidential. CD In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Donald Pantalone,
1/2000 Somerset County Vocational School District, Somerset County.
PAN January 13, 2000 (#18-00)

Respondent signed the first settlement agreement. Despite the legal principle that a settlement agreement may not be executed until approved by the C., resigned his teaching position and the Board paid him his salary and benefits in accordance with the settlement terms. The C. did not approve the settlement and remanded it for modification. Respondent refused to sign the second settlement agreement because it listed the charges against him. The Board argues that a binding settlement has been entered into and asks that the settlement be enforced. The Board states that it would be difficult to proceed with the matter to hearing because many of the students needed to testify no longer attend its school. Furthermore, the Board would have to continue to pay Respondent's salary until a final decision on the merits of the tenure charges was issued. Therefore, the C. determines that the disposition of this matter "shall be construed as a withdrawal of the tenure charges by the Board, not as a settlement." A copy of this decision shall be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for review and action, as deemed appropriate.

TENURE HEARINGS-TEACHERS
CD In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Celese Segall, 4/2000 Elizabeth School District, Union County.
SEG April 17, 2000 (#128-00)

xAbsenteeism xLeaves, Sick

Respondent is a tenured teacher of mathematics. From September 1992 to October 28, 1999, Respondent was absent 720 days from her tenured teaching position. The Board filed a tenure charge of alleged chronic and excessive absenteeism, incapacity, incompetency and unbecoming conduct. Respondent has not given the Board adequate explanation for her prolonged absences. She refused to undergo a medical exam in March 1999. The C. orders Respondent's dismissal from her employment.

CD 3/2000 UTL — In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Stanley K. Utley, Trenton School District, Mercer County. March 2, 2000 (#77-00)

xCriminal Charges xDrug Abuse

Respondent was found guilty of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) and possession with intent to distribute. The District certified tenure charges of conduct unbecoming a tenured teacher. Respondent has failed to answer to these charges. The C. grants summary judgment to the Board and orders Respondent dismissed from his tenured position as an elementary school teacher as of the date of this order. The matter shall be referred to the State Board of Examiners for action against Respondent's certificate as it deems appropriate.

TENURE HEARINGS-TEACHERS
CD 3/2000 VAR — In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Nicholas Varanelli, Orange School District, Essex County. March 31, 2000 (#103-00)

The District certified written charges of unbecoming conduct and other just cause against Respondent, a tenured teacher of Spanish. The C. cannot approve the parties' settlement. Neither the ALJ's decision nor the settlement agreement sufficiently explains how the settlement meets the Cardonick standards since the charges include assaulting a student and loudly and abusively using expletives directed at a student. The matter is remanded to the OAL for expansion or, and revision to, the record and settlement agreement. If the parties are unwilling or unable to agree to a settlement consistent with this decision, the matter shall proceed to plenary hearing.

TENURE HEARINGS-TEACHERS
CD 8/2000 WOO — In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Roger Wood, South Plainfield School District, Middlesex County. August 18, 2000 (#271-00)

xSexual Harassment

The Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and other just cause against Respondent, a tenured teacher. The Board alleges that Respondent "wrongfully and repeatedly touched his female students." Respondent pled guilty to three counts of third-degree endangering the welfare of children and violations of N.J.S.A. 2C:24-4(a). The Superior Court judge found that Respondent was a sex offender whose misconduct was characterized by a pattern of repetitive and compulsive behavior. The C. finds that Respondent's guilty plea and the Judgment of Conviction sustains the Board's tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against Respondent and justifies his dismissal. The C. finds that because the delay in the disposition of this matter was at Respondent's request, he has no entitlement to back pay or benefits from the Board.

TENURE HEARINGS-VICE PRINCIPALS
CD 9/2000 GRA — In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Joseph Graceffo, Wayne School District, Passaic County. September 21, 2000 (#310-00)

xDrug Abuse

The Board contends that on six occasions Respondent violated state law and the Board's policy regarding drug testing students who were suspected of being under the influence of alcohol or other drugs. The Board asserts that Respondent's conduct was unprofessional and unbecoming and warrants dismissal from his employment. The operative statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:40A-12 is part of a larger enactment intended to establish a comprehensive public school program for prevention of substance abuse and provision of assistance to students. The C. points out that "nowhere in the statute is the principal or designee given the authority to substitute his/her judgment for that of the referring staff member, once a staff member advises the designated administrator of his or her belief that the student is under the influence of alcohol or drugs and articulates the observations, symptoms and indicators underlying this conclusion." The C. finds that the Respondent exhibited unprofessional and unbecoming conduct by his violation of statute and the Board's policy when he decided not to test students upon receiving reports from staff members that they appeared to be under the influence of alcohol or drugs. In ascertaining the penalty, the C. notes that the Board has not properly implemented the statute nor its policy. Instead of mandating that a student appearing to be under the influence of alcohol or drugs be immediately examined by a physician, the Board has established a District practice which ignores that mandate and substitutes drug screening in its stead. The Board took no disciplinary action against any other staff members who failed to properly implement the statute and policy. Therefore, the C. finds that the extreme penalty of loss of tenured employment is not warranted. The C. orders that Respondent be permanently reduced one step on the salary guide and forfeit all salary and benefits accrued during the first 120 days of his suspension. The Board is ordered to revise its policies and procedures to reflect statutory requirements and institute a program of continuing education so that staff members will be able to fulfill their obligations under the law.

"C.C." September 18, 2000 (#306-00E)

Petitioner asks for emergent relief to stay the proposed detention of "R.S." which, she asserts, was improperly imposed. Petitioner also alleges a number of inappropriate actions by employees of the Board. Petitioner argues that these incidents show a pattern of inappropriate actions towards her son and her expressed concern for her son's safety. The Board asserts that the alleged incidents occurred in May 1998, December 1999 and January 2000 and should be dismissed as being filed out-of-time pursuant to N.J.S.A. 6:24-1.2. The C. holds that the Petitioner is permitted to advance her arguments regarding these incidents for the purpose of establishing a pattern of alleged inappropriate actions towards her son by the Board. The matter shall continue at the OAL for proceedings on merits of Petitioner's claim.

TRANSPORATION OF STUDENTS

11/2000 Ridgefield Board of Education, Bergen County, Respondent.
"G.A." November 9, 2000 (#363-00)

The C. concludes that the only safe and legal manner of transportation to and from "B.A.'s" public school is via vehicle transport. Local school districts are not obligated to enforce traffic laws or to provide sidewalks, overpasses, etc. to meet the requirements of safe travel. Districts have no affirmative duty to seek the safest route. "Nevertheless, if the only safe and legal means of transportation when measured from door to door exceeds two miles, children are entitled to transportation under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1." Since the shortest route measured by vehicle transport exceeds two miles, Petitioner is eligible for transportation.

Estell Manor Board of Education, Atlantic County, Respondent.
August 25, 2000 (#269-00)

The Board ended bus service to Petitioners upon discovering that they resided more than 20 miles from the private schools in which their children were enrolled (N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1). Petitioners upon equitable doctrines to assist them in regaining bus transportation, arguing that the school abruptly terminated service without reasonable notice. The C. upholds the Board's decision and dismisses the Petitions of Appeal.

5/2000 Petitioners, v.
"J.F.N." Morris Hills Regional School District Board of Education, Morris County, Respondent.
May 19, 2000 (#159-00)

Petitioner lives more than two and-a-half miles from school and is entitled to free transportation. The issue is whether the District acted arbitrarily, capriciously and unreasonably when it designated a particular location for a bus stop used by Petitioners' daughter. Petitioners allege that the bus stop is placed at a closed landfill and is dangerous and unsafe. After examining the situation, the C. concurs with the ALJ that, under the particular circumstances of this matter, Petitioners have demonstrated that the Board's refusal to accommodate their request to locate an alternative bus or van stop for "C.N." was arbitrary and capricious. The Board is directed to select a suitable alternative route allowing for van service to "C.N.'s" driveway.

xState Aid

Petitioner Board contests the conclusion of the Office of Compliance that it is required to repay the State $153,238.60 as a result of a transportation department audit conducted by the Office. The C. determines that the amount of state aid recoverable is $146,163.10.

TRANSPORTATION OF STUDENTS
CD Mount Holly Board of Education, Petitioner, v.
3/2000 New Jersey State Department of Education, Respondent.
MOU March 1, 2000 (#74-00)

xNonpublic Schools

Petitioner requests an interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1. The C. determines that this statute "places an obligation on a regional school district to transport all students living within the bounds of the regional district to remote nonpublic schools, if any student within the regional district is so transported pursuant to law. The statute also unmistakably directs that the expense incurred by a regional district in providing for transportation of students below the grade level of the regional district is to be borne by the constituent districts comprising the regional district, prorated on a per pupil basis. Consequently, as a constituent member of a regional district which is required by law to transport nonpublic school students, petitioner is indisputably responsible for payment of that share of the regional district's transportation costs associated with those pupils attending nonpublic schools below grade 9 who reside in petitioner's local district." The C. determines that Petitioner is obligated to pay Rancocas Valley regional High School District its pro rata share of costs incurred in providing transportation services to eligible nonpublic school students below grade 9 who reside within Petitioner's school district.

9/2000 Education, Mercer County, Mercer County, Petitioner, v.
WES Delran Board of Education, Burlington County, Respondent, and Nutley Board of Education, Essex County, Petitioner, v.
Delran Board of Education, Burlington County, Respondent.
September 5, 2000 (#287-00)

Petitioner Boards seek to compel the Delran Board of Education to pay transportation costs of children placed by state agencies in group homes in Respondents' districts. The C. finds that N.J.S.A. 30:4C-26c states that children placed in group homes are to be accorded all of the "educational benefits" of the school district in which the group home sits, including pupil transportation. The C. also finds that the school district where the group home is located is responsible for providing child study team services (paid for by the resident district) to children placed in group homes within its borders. Therefore, the group home school district determines the child's educational program and placement which dictates the child's transportation needs and the district's transportation costs. The C. directs the Respondent Board to reimburse Petitioning Boards for the cost of transportation for the students.

CD "J.K.H.," et al., Petitioners, v.
11/2000 Shore Regional High School District Board of Education,
"J.K.H." Monmouth County, and Red Bank Regional High School District Board of Education, Monmouth County.
November 29, 2000 (#391-00)

Petitioning parents and guardians assert that Respondent Boards have the obligation to pay tuition and transportation costs for their children to attend the visual performing arts program operated by the Red Bank Regional High School District. The C. finds that any special status Red Bank Regional enjoyed under N.J.S.A. 18A:54-7 because of its Area Vocational Technical School and Local Area Vocational School District designations was terminated when N.J.A.C. 6:46-2 was repealed in 1991. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-15 is now the controlling statute. Therefore, the C. finds that the Districts did not abuse their discretionary authority by refusing to pay tuition and transportation costs for their students to attend Red Bank Regional's vocational program.

xVocational Education

The Petitioner Board challenges the legality of magnet schools or academies operated by the Respondent Board. It seeks a declaration that it has no legal obligation to pay tuition or related costs for resident students enrolled in any academy operated by the Respondent Board. The Petitioner Board asserts that the Voc-Tech has failed to obtain the approval of its programs by the C. The C. finds that the programs operated by Respondent's academies have been approved pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:43-8.2. The C. determines that Petitioner's programs are not comparable to the programs provided in Respondent's academies. Petitioner is directed to remit tuition costs to Respondent for its resident students attending the academies.

Petitioner alleges that failures by the District caused her to provide a tutor for her daughter. She seeks reimbursement of costs associated with the tutoring. The C. dismisses the Petition as Petitioner has failed to provide specific bases for her claim.

VANDALISM
CD Nicholas Dentino, Petitioner, v.
5/2000 Haddonfield Board of Education, Camden County, Respondent.
DEN May 19, 2000 (#161-00E)

Petitioner challenges the Board's decision to suspend him for the balance of the school year for committing vandalism. Petitioner threw eggs at the school, pulled up shrubs around the school and broke a school window. He requests emergent relief in the form of expedited hearing because the suspension runs to the end of his senior year and he will be unable to return unless the matter is resolved. There is no procedural defect since Petitioner had a hearing by the Board in a timely manner and there is no dispute as to culpability. Petitioner is receiving home instruction, will be given all final examinations and, if academically qualified, will receive his diploma, but will not be permitted to participate in graduation exercises. The ALJ orders a minimum of ten hours of home instruction for Petitioner weekly and orders final examinations administered to him. The withdrawal of prom and graduation privileges is upheld as appropriate under the circumstances. The C. affirms and returns the matter to the OAL for further proceedings as may be necessary to bring it to a conclusion.

"A.S." May 19, 2000 (#162-00)
Petitioner appeals his son's ten-day suspension from school and school-related activities because he allegedly threatened a teacher. In his creative writing class, the teacher directed pupils to write about how they wanted to be famous and why. "M.S." said out loud that he wanted to be famous for killing his teacher. He went through the balance of the school day without the matter being raised and he attended his prom during the weekend. On the following Monday, he was called before the school disciplinarian and told of his suspension. The C. finds that Petitioner has failed to satisfy the four-pronged standard for obtaining emergent relief. The matter shall continue to the OAL for further proceedings as deemed necessary.

WORKERS' COMPENSATION
CD Sandra Schmidtke, Petitioner, v.
11/2000 Woodbridge Board of Education, Middlesex County, Respondent.
SCH November 8, 2000 (#361-00)

Petitioner avers that her days absent resulted from a work-related occurrence and protests the charging of these days to her accumulative sick leave. The Petition requests a determination of whether Petitioner's injury arose out of and in the course of her employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. This determination is within the authority of Workers' Compensation. Petitioner did not pursue her claim for work-related injury with the Division. The C. refrains from exercising jurisdiction regarding entitlement and damages under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 in this matter until the Division of Workers' Compensation makes the determination of a work-related injury/illness pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:15-1.1 et seq.
