Governor To Announce Youth Violence Initiative Increase Communication and Resources for New Jersey Teens

On Tuesday, Governor Christie Whitman will announce new tools to help prevent youth violence. The initiative will focus on communication among New Jersey's youth and ways of empowering teens to stop violence in their schools and communities.

The Governor will also highlight the delivery of the first batch of NJSAVER checks by visiting Garfield and discussing the program with local officials and residents. Property tax relief checks will be mailed out beginning Saturday, September 4 and will be mailed out over a one week period.
