READER, PLEASE TO OBSERVE,

FIRST, That the calculations of this Almanack are made to solar or apparent time: to which, for the mean or clock time, apply the equation given in the sixth column, adding when the sun is slow, and subtracting when fast.

II. The time of high-water at Philadelphia is so computed as to serve for either morning or afternoon, nearly enough for common use; the morning flood being about 12m. earlier than the time in the tide column, and that of the afternoon as much later.

III. The sun's declination is fitted to the meridian of Philadelphia, for the convenience of American mariners, &c.

IV. The rising, setting, or southing of a star may be carried several days backward by adding, or forward by subtracting, 4m. per day: for instance; on the 8th. of the first month (January) Sirius is south at 15m. past 11; adding 12m. for 3 days sooner, we have 11h. 27m. for the southing on the 5th. and deducting 8m. for 2 later, leaves 11h. 7m. for that of the 10th. of the same month, &c.

V. The time of Alioth's passage over the meridian, or when a plumb-line apparently cuts both the pole-star and Alioth, is given, for the first six months, above the pole, and for the last six below it, to five days in each month, and is quickly known for any day, by the preceding note. These two stars will be visibly coincident with a level east and west line at 5h. 59m. before or after Alioth passes the meridian; but, for common use, say six hours. Thus we may regulate time-pieces to a minute, or tell the time without them. The pole-star is on the meridian five minutes later than Alioth, when a true meridian line may be drawn by it, and the magnetic variation thereby determined, &c.

Alioth is the first star in the tail of the Great Bear, viz. that next to the square; or, it is the third star of the seven commonly called the Waggon or Plough, counting towards those two of them which are denominated the Pointers.

VI. As the day ends at midnight, the rising, setting, and southing of the moon, when after that time, is found against the succeeding day: so, on the night of (or following) the 13th. of the first month (January) the moon rises at 1h. 6m. after midnight, viz. in the morning of the 14th, not at oh. 9m. the time opposite the 13th. which is that of its rising the preceding morning.

REMARKS on the ORIGIN of GOVERNMENT.

MANKIND being undoubtedly all born free, and naturally too proud and too fond of power, to submit to the controul of another, without a proper consideration for parting with their native liberty; government beyond question owes its origin to common consent. It was for the superior advantages of civil society to the lawless and predatory state of nature, that men consented to abridge their primitive freedom, and submit to the restraints of political institutions. As the weaker and more virtuous were, in their natural condition, a perpetual prey to the stronger and more avaricious, it became necessary for the former, in order to be screened from the rapacity of the latter, to institute a more equitable tribunal for the decision of private contests, than mere animal strength. Hence it became requisite to fix a common standard of right, for adjusting all disputes about property; and to appoint persons to enforce

The hoary frost, at midnight hour,
 O'er wither'd fields its mantle spreads,
 Alike through all the silent bower
 Its silver gloss profusely sheds.
 The meads, so lately dress'd in green,
 Are now o'erspread with sadd'ning gloom ;
 No more the fragrant blossom's seen
 Array'd in nature's lovely bloom.

But, ere to-morrow's setting sun,
 Thy beauty fades—thy form is gone.
 Yet, tho' no grace thy buds retain,
 Thy pleasing odours still remain.
 Cleora's smile, like thine, sweet flower,
 Shall bloom and wither in an hour;

that standard upon those who would otherwise appeal to violence. The former we denominate laws, and the latter the civil magistrate, who is to carry them into execution. Civil policy was therefore established, and the civil magistrate appointed by the people to secure, by laws, the persons and property of the several individuals composing the society, from those invasions of both, to which, in a state of nature, every one was obnoxious; and from which, nothing but transcendent personal force could defend him. For this end, the executor of the laws, not being stronger in his natural capacity than another, was, as magistrate, armed with the united power of the whole community which no individuals can resist. It is therefore evident, that government was instituted for the good of the people, and consequently the magistrate, whose business it is to execute government, for the same salutary purpose.

On yon high mountain's shaggy brow
 The tall tree bends its reverend head ;
 The pale leaves, falling from the bough,
 Bespeaks its transient beauty fled.
 As leaves in Autumn soon decay,
 So youth walks o'er life's slender stage ;
 The blooming beauty fades away,
 Nipp'd by the wint'ry frost of age.

THE MONITOR.

MANY are of opinion that one may be strictly moral without being religious; but if we take an accurate survey of morals, we shall discover, that how punctual soever we may be in performing the duties which result from our relation to mankind, yet to be quite deficient in performing those which arise from our relation to the Almighty, must argue a strange perversion of reason or depravity of heart. If imperfect degrees of worth attract our veneration, and if the want of it would imply an insensibility, or, which is worse, an aversion to merit, what lameness of affection or immorality of character must it be, to be unaffected with, and much more to be ill-affected to, a Being of superlative worth! To love society, or particular members of it, and yet to have no sense of our connection with its head, no affection to our common Parent and Benefactor; to be concerned about the approbation or censure of our fellow creatures, and yet to feel nothing

A HYMN to SPRING.

THE voice of my beloved sounds,
 While o'er the mountain-tops he bounds ;
 He flies exulting o'er the hills,
 And all my soul with transport fills.
 With gentle voice he chides my stay,
 My fair one rise and come away,

of this kind towards Him who sees and weighs our actions with unerring wisdom and justice, and can fully reward or punish them, betrays an equal madness and partiality of mind, and the basest ingratitude to the most benevolent of Beings.

It is plain, therefore, beyond all doubt, that our warmest regards are due to the great Father of all, in whom every lovely and amiable quality combines to inspire veneration and homage.

Pertinent Questions to begin the New-Year.

AS the year 1794 is concluded, let us ask ourselves a few serious questions, well adapted for the consideration of rational creatures.

1. What good have we done the year past?
2. As we are a year older, are we in truth, a year wiser?
3. As we have gotten one year nearer to eternity, are we better fitted for an eternal world, if not, high time it

M A Y. Fifth Month.

The scatter'd clouds are fled at last,
 The rain is gone, the winter's past.
 The lively vernal flowers appear,
 The warbling choir enchants our ear ;
 Now sits the turtle-dove alone,
 And makes her sweetly pensive moan.
 Awake my soul, and tune my tongue,
 To join in Nature's gen'ral song :

is we were, for who knows what a day may bring forth?

Whether old or young, rich or poor, be assured these questions equally concern us all, and are not asked by an enthusiast or madman; no, but by one who sincerely wishes the happiness of his fellow-creatures in this world, and in the world to come, everlasting felicity.

To dress, to visit, to see and be seen; to be admired and flattered (and I wish I could not add) too often ruined and undone, is too much the employment of the present day; may it be our serious determination that it shall be less so than ever, during the year we are now entering on. Surely, the consideration of a future state of endless bliss or wo, to which time is hastening us all, should be attended to by every rational creature; as it is the duty, interest and privilege of the sons and daughters of mortality to think seriously of and be happily prepared for that awful change, which, sooner or later, must pass on all, for

Awake to gratitude and sing,
 The kind return of cheering SPRING.
 With joyful voice his praises sound,
 Who sits and rolls the seasons round ;
 Who still fulfils what he ordain'd,
 That these should last while earth remain'd.
 He sends his blessings from above,
 And crowns the year with tend'rest love ;

THE BIBLE.

IT cannot be presumed, that any thing need be said to recommend the Bible, that ground work of our holy religion, to any class of citizens, whatever—if there should, nothing new can be given on the subject—we must republish the ideas of those who have gone before us. Books are addressed to the judgment or imagination—intended to touch the passions, or please the fancy. The Holy Bible addresses the soul, directs to the paths of peace and happiness here, and brings to view a beautiful prospect of an hereafter; in its pages may be viewed, with awful surprise, the great and glorious creation—and with pleasing admiration may be seen the rise and fall of empires—the revolutions of kingdoms and states—the various vicissitudes of life in all stations—the

 Thy smiles can give eternal SPRING—
 Can sweeten all our youthful joys,
 And give us more than Age destroys—
 Can guide us through this darksome maze,
 And cheer the winter of our days.

 Thy richest grace, while here below,

While scarce the skies her horrid head can bound,
 She stalks on earth, and shakes the world around :
 The nations bleed, where e'er her steps she turns,
 The groan still deepens, and the combat burns.

From the London Gazetteer.
 SINS OF GOVERNMENT, SINS OF THE NATION.

[The Pamphlet which has appeared under this title is generally attributed to Mrs. Barbauld. Of all that has been written on the topick of WAR we do not remember to have met with any thing more striking than the following Reflections, which were intended to be read on a Fast day :]

“WHEN the workings of bad passions are swelled to their height by mutual animosity and opposition, WAR ensues. War is a state in which our feelings and our duties suffer a total and strange inversion ; a state, in which “Life dies, Death lives, and Nature breeds
 “Perverse all monstrous, all prodigious things.”

A state in which it becomes our business to hurt and annoy our neighbour by every possible means ; instead of cultivating, to destroy ; instead of building, to pull down ; instead of peopling, to depopulate ; a state in which we drink the tears, and feed upon the misery of our fellow crea-

SEPTEMBER. Ninth Month.

AMBITION leads the youth astray,
 His mind with lofty thoughts inspires;
 But soon the vision fleets away;
 And shews how vain are man's desires!
 To ev'ry fordid error prone,
 We heed not Reason's steady plan;
 Fantastick Folly call our own,
 Till Wisdom scorns the wand'rer, man!

tures; such a state, therefore, requires the extremest necessity to justify it; it ought not to be the common and usual state of society.

'As both parties cannot be in the right, there is always an equal chance, at least, to either of them of being in the wrong; but as both parties may be to blame, and most commonly are, the chance is very great indeed against its being entered into from an adequate cause; yet war may be said to be, with regard to nations, the sin which most easily besets them. We, my friends, in common with other nations, have much guilt to repent of from this cause, and it ought to make a large part of our humiliations on this day. When we carry our eyes back through the long records of our history, we see wars of plunder, wars of conquest, wars of religion, wars of pride, wars of succession, wars of idle speculation, wars of unjust interference, and hardly among them one war of necessary self-defence in any of our essential or very important interests.

'Of late years, indeed, we have known none of the late calamities of war in our own country but the waste-

OCTOBER. Tenth Month.

Then say, how vain is human lore!
 How frail is all on earth we prize!
 Each hope deceives us o'er and o'er,
 And soon to dark extinction flies!
 In Death's cold arms we sink to rest,
 Till the last morn's resplendent ray,
 Shall wake the righteous to be blest,
 And shew the bright Eternal Day.

ful expense of it; and sitting aloof from those circumstances of personal provocation, which in some measure might excuse its fury, we have calmly voted slaughter, and merchandised destruction; so much blood and tears for so many rupees, or dollars, or ingots. Our wars have been wars of cool calculating interests, as free from hatred as from love of mankind; the passions which stir the blood have had no share in them. We devote a certain number of men to perish on land and sea, and the rest of us sleep sound, and, protected in our usual occupations, talk of the events of war as what diversifies the flat uniformity of life.

'We should, therefore, do well to translate this word WAR into language more intelligible to us. When we pay our army and our navy estimates, let us set down so much for killing, so much for maiming, so much for making widows and orphans, so much for bringing famine upon a district, so much for corrupting citizens and subjects into spies and traitors, so much for ruining industrious tradesmen and making bankrupts, (of that species of distress at least, we can form an idea,) so much for letting loose the Short is our longest day of life,

 And soon its prospects end;
 Yet, on that day's uncertain date,
 Eternal years depend.

DECEMBER. Twelfth Month.

As rivers glide towards the sea,
 And sink and lose them in the main,
 So man declines—and what is he!
 His hope, his wish, alas, how vain!
 Fast goes the Year—but still renew'd.
 The ball of time knows no decay:
 Sure signal of that greatest good
 We hope in GOD'S ETERNAL DAY.

If he had returned, his exertions would not have been remembered individually, for he only made a small imperceptible part of a human machine called a Regiment. We must take in the long sickness which no glory sooths, occasioned by distress of mind, anxiety, and ruined fortunes. These are not fancy pictures, and if you please to heighten them, you can every one of you do it for yourselves. We take in the consequences, felt perhaps for ages, before a country which has been completely desolated, lifts its head again; like a torrent of lava, its worst mischief is not the first overwhelming ruin of towns and palaces, but the long sterility to which it condemns the track it has covered with its stream. Add the danger to regular governments which are changed by war, sometimes to anarchy, and sometimes to despotism. Add to these, and then let us think when a General performing these exploits, is saluted with, "well done, good and faithful servant," whether the plaudit is likely to be echoed in another place.

The POWER of VIRTUE.

By thee inspir'd, O Virtue, age is young,
 And music warbles from thy faltering tongue;
 Thy ray creative cheers the clouded brow,
 And decks the faded cheek with rosy glow,
 Brightens the faded aspect, and supplies
 Pure heav'nly lustre to the languid eyes.
 But when youth's living bloom reflects thy beams,
 Resistless on the view the glory streams,
 Love, wonder, joy; alternately alarm,
 And beauty dazzles with angelic charm.
