Trenton, NJ – Lt. Governor Kim Guadagno delivered opening remarks at the New Jersey Emergency Preparedness Association (NJEPA) Conference on Thursday, May 4 in Atlantic City, highlighting the Office of New Jersey Homeland Security and Preparedness' Hometown Security Initiative.

"The Hometown Security Initiative is about being proactive and working together, said Lt. Governor Guadagno. "It's about discussing with our families, our friends, and our neighbors how we will protect ourselves and our communities, so we can contribute to, and share in, a stronger and more resilient society."

The NJEPA provides education and training by hosting an annual conference for all persons and agencies involved in the emergency management field. The conference provides training and coordination skills, as well as promotes the development of public and private partnerships in planning, response, recovery and mitigation for all types of emergencies.
