An American Icon Leaves the Jersey Guard

After 36 plus years of legendary service, the New Jersey Army National Guard bid farewell to its last UH-1 Huey helicopter. This fall, Col. Jorge Martinez, Chief Warrant Officer 5 Raymond Ferrante and Spc. Dave Debran, departed the Trenton-Mercer Airport en route to Groton Conn., where the aircraft was handed over to the Connecticut Army National Guard.

Since its arrival in New Jersey in early 1971, the Vietnam-era UH-1 Iroquois has been a dynamic presence in military operations, domestic emergencies and community functions. UH-1 helicopters were present in every major NJARNG operation as far back as our Nation's Bicentennial, Operation OPSAIL, the Statue of Liberty re-opening celebration, Tropical Storm Floyd, 9-11 emergency operations and as recent as the Republican National Convention and the Delaware River floods. UH-1s also supported innumerable static displays, gubernatorial flights and orientation flights for military and civic leaders and elected officials.

Since the early 1970s, the UH-1 fleet supported units in North and South New Jersey, mainly the 150th Combat Aviation Battalion in West Trenton and Troop D (Air), 5th Squadron, 117th Cavalry out of Linden Airport and eventually from Picatinny Arsenal.

During the past few years, the UH-1 helicopters assigned to the NJARNG gave way to the newer, more powerful and technologically advanced UH-60 Blackhawks. However, the aircraft leaving New Jersey did not go into retirement. Instead, the last three helicopters went to Mississippi, New Mexico and Connecticut to support missions such as Katrina relief, Operation Jump Start and Homeland Security. In the end, the honorable UH-1 left New Jersey the same way it arrived: with little fanfare, humble, reliable, dignified and ready to serve our nation.

108th Civil Engineering Responds To EOD

The Ali Air Base (Iraq) Emergency Management section of the Civil Engineering Squadron (CES) got to put to use some equipment that they had been training with for many years. A leaking explosive shell had been brought to the Explosive Ordnance Disposal unit (EOD) at the base. Before EOD could dispose of the item, a determination had to be made that there were no dangerous chemicals inside the live shell. Staff Sgt. Carlos Morales of the 108th Air Refueling Wing CES, who is a member of the team of 108th Airmen who are deployed there, and Senior Master Sgt. Pete Nestor of the 109th CES, New York Air National Guard were tasked to go down range and perform chemical reconnaissance. After donning their protective equipment (MOPP 4 with the temperature above 100 degrees) and performing operations checks on their detection equipment, they journeyed downrange to confirm that the shell did not contain any life-threatening chemicals. The shell was subsequently destroyed by EOD.

Happy 370th Birthday to the National Guard

What is a few years younger than the Mayflower Compact (1620); a lot older than the Declaration of Independence (1776) and U.S. Constitution (1787); predates the U.S. Army, Navy and Marine Corps by 139 years; and is 311 years older than the Air Force?

Answer: The National Guard.

Known originally as the militia, the National Guard turns 370 years young Dec. 13. It all started in 1636 when the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, which functioned as the colony's legislature, ordered existing militia companies from the towns

Quote for the week

Never tell people how to do things. Tell them what to do surrounding Boston to form into three regiments: North, South and East. These regiments became a kind of military "family" for members. Although their names have been changed and individual companies have come and gone, the three regiments still exist in the Massachusetts National Guard.

The differences between generation one and the current 19th generation are countless. Yet, even as the National Guard has transformed many times, it remains true to the Founder's intent of a citizens' Army; and, for the last three generations, a citizens' Air Force.

From its very beginnings, the United States has been a militia - Guard nation. The existence of and need for the colonial militia was ratified by the Founding Fathers in the Constitution. Congress specifically defined those missions the militia would be used for: "to Execute the Laws of the Union, suppress Insurrections, and repel Invasions."

Future National Guard generations will continue to employ all of the modern technology at its disposal at home and abroad. At the core, however, today's National Guard members and yesterday's Minutemen remain the same person: citizens with the conviction that their military service is required to make their nation and communities a safer and better place.

- from National Guard Bureau

Facts about the National Guard's history

Happy Birthday to the National Guard who celebrates their 370th birthday on Wednesday, December 13. Throughout it all, the Guard has proven that it's "Always Ready, Always There."

From the National Guard Bureau, here is how some of the men and women who went before us have served the nation.

The Guard birthday is Dec. 13, 1636, the date that the first regiments of militia were organized from militia companies in the towns surrounding Boston.

In Virginia, the militia was organized with the founding of the very first settlement, Jamestown, in 1607. Next year will be 400 years of militia in Virginia. Professional soldiers like Capt. John Smith were brought from the old country to train these citizens in the rudiments of soldiering, as defending the colony was a fundamental obligation that every adult male shared.

The first generations of militia fought with swords, pikes and unwieldy matchlocks that took more than 50 steps to load and fire, and wouldn't function in the rain.

Early militia members responded to Paul Revere's ride and formed up to battle the British at Lexington and Concord. They carried flintlocks, hunting rifles, shotguns, and hatchets - the implements of farmers and tradesmen.

Years later they faced off, brother against brother, in the Civil War. The militia functioned as it was supposed to - both North and South - and formed the cadre for hundreds of volunteer regiments that organized after Bull Run. Rifled muskets loaded with Minie balls ensured rapid and deadly fire out to 600 meters, contributing to a bitter protracted struggle that would claim more lives than all other American wars combined.

Still later they "Remembered the Maine" during the Spanish-American War. The tiny regular Army of 25,000 quadrupled in size virtually overnight as militia units volunteered to a man for overseas service. Former New York National Guardsman and future president Theodore Roosevelt charged up San Juan Hill with a regiment of U.S. Volunteers that was largely made up of New Mexico militia. He would receive the Medal of Honor 103 years later for his actions.

Volunteers from the Guard doubled the size of the Army when it was mobilized for World War I and quickly went "Over There." Forty percent of the divisions that saw combat, and forty percent of the casualties in World War I, were Guardsmen. The German General Staff rated eight American divisions it faced during the war as "superior" or "excellent;" of these, six were Guard divisions.

Their sons had to return to Europe to do the job all over again. They also had to slog through the malaria infested jungles of the Pacific against a new enemy. Once again, the mobilization of the Guard doubled the size of the Army and bought precious time for America to mobilize its manpower and its vast industrial base. National Guardsmen from the pre-war division observation squadrons formed the heart of the expanding Army Air Corps, and were the basis for the post-war Air National Guard.

Many went home, only to be called back for Korea five years later. The Guard had a year-long mobilization for the Berlin crisis and a limited mobilization for Vietnam.

and they will surprise you with their ingenuity.

-George S. Patton

The Guard reaped the fruits of the all-Volunteer concept; it became more closely integrated in peacetime with the active Army and Air Force than any previous generation. Peacetime overseas deployments to Germany for REFORGER or Central America for VOLANT OAK or FUERTES CAMINOS strengthened their mobilization skills. The 1990 mobilization for the Gulf War in the quickest, most efficient mobilization in Guard history – up to that point.

Current Guard members will never forget and is still responding to 9/11. Today, our Guardsmen serve with the same purpose as their 18 generations of forebears, but with an array of equipment – jet fighters, helicopters, rocket artillery, armoured vehicles, satellite radios, global positioning systems – the like of which their ancestors couldn't dream of.

New dial out prefix is in effect

Effective Friday, Dec. 8, all employees who work at the DMAVA Lawrenceville complex, and the Veterans Homes in Paramus and Vineland will no longer use 9 to dial for an outside line. The new dial-out prefix will be 3. Examples are:
3-XXX-XXXX or, 3-1-XXX-XXX-XXXX

This is the first phase in converting the dial-out prefix for DMAVA facilities on a state-wide basis. This process is being implemented in order to reduce the number of mis-dialed 911 calls by staff members.

Holiday gift giving suggestions for military, veterans, others

The holidays are coming. The stores are loaded with items for sale, lists are at the ready from the children in our lives and the cooler weather brings thoughts of snow, sleds and the winter holidays. Whether you celebrate Hanukkah, Christmas or Kwanzaa, gifting is often part of the festivities.

Some people cannot be with family or friends during this holiday season and you can help them find some joy in their lives. Maybe a gift to an organization in a loved one's name will bring a smile that special person and holiday joy to someone that truly needs your help.

Here are some suggestions for your holiday gift giving.

Go to www.americasupportsyou.mil. "America Supports You" is a nationwide program launched by the Department of Defense recognizing support of our military men and women and communicates that support to members of our Armed Forces at home and abroad. If it is sending an e-mail or packing up items to send to a service member or sewing a blanket or writing a letter; "America Supports You" can find a group that does that for the members of the military and their families.

When you walk through the store, do the rows of toys call your name, drawing you in to explore and make you want to buy? Maybe you should think about the Toys for Tots program. The mission of the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots Program is to collect new, unwrapped toys during October, November and December each year, and distribute those toys as Christmas gifts to needy children in the community in which the campaign is conducted. The primary goal of Toys for Tots is to deliver, through a shiny new toy at Christmas, a message of hope to needy youngsters that will motivate them to grow into responsible, productive, patriotic citizens and community leaders. Visit their web site, <http://www.toysfortots.org/default.asp> , to find out more about the program.

Closer to home, Veterans Haven has a wish list that includes items such as: personal hygiene items for men and women, sweat pants and shirts in various sizes, twin size sheet sets and blankets, pre-paid phone cards, scarves and gloves, and more. Call Robert Sauselein, Veterans Haven superintendent at 609-561-4948, ext 103 if you have any questions or need to drop off items.

The Paramus Memorial Veterans Home has a large list of wishes for the veterans who live there. Items start with monetary donations to cover everything from the maintenance on the aquariums in the dayrooms to trips and outings for the veterans. The list continues for requests of various furniture items on to CDs, DVDs, clothing of all types and sizes, electronic items, personal hygiene items, and lots of miscellaneous items to include: batteries of all sizes, magnifying glasses, eyeglass repair kits, sports bottles, postage stamps for personal mail and lots more. Call Susan Pettigrano, director of Volunteer Services, 201-634-8504, if you have questions or need to drop off items.

If you live closer to Menlo Park Veterans Home, some of their wish list items include DVD players, portable CD players, extra large T-shirts, universal remote controls, large face watches, white tube socks, wheelchair cushions, electric razors and full-size blankets. Call Ed Weisenhorn, director of Volunteer Services, 732-452-4133, for questions or to drop off items.

Finally, Vineland Veterans Home's wish list consists of computer supplies, DVDs and CDs, new Velcro sneakers and shoes in all sizes, tennis balls, phone cards, batteries in all sizes, talking watches, various types of personal hygiene items, coffee beans and large wheelchair bags and wheelchair cup holders.

If you would like a copy of the wish lists of Vets Haven and the three Veterans Homes, drop an e-mail to Barbara.harbison@njdmava.state.nj.us and a copy of the lists will be sent to you.
