New Jersey First Lady Tammy Murphy speaks outside an NJMVC Mobile Unit with a community provider about connecting mothers and their infants with government services to help combat the state's maternal and infant health crisis. The MVC's Mobile Units and staff play a key role in delivering services at the First Lady's roving Family Festivals, providing non-driver IDs and driver licenses for mothers. Accompanying the First Lady is MVC Community Engagement Manager Tanya Gauthier.

NJMVC Mobile Unit Supervisor Ellen Brunner with New Jersey First Lady Tammy Murphy at a Mini Family Festival in Jersey City. Supervisor Brunner and other MVC staff assist families by providing non-driver IDs, driver licenses, and other services under the sponsored program aimed at connecting mothers and their babies with government services to address New Jersey's maternal and infant health crisis.

NJMVC Deputy Administrator of Agency Operations Kim DiGiovanni, center, discusses Mobile Unit services at First Lady Tammy Murphy's Mini Family Festival in Trenton. The festivals are designed to connect families with state and local government services to address the state's maternal and infant health crisis. Deputy Administrator DiGiovanni talks with CapitalHealth System CEO Al Maghazeh and Barbara Plumeri, left, representing CapitalHealth Board of Trustees Chairman Sam Plumeri.

The NJMVC's two Mobile Units are ready to roll to provide services around the state, from veterans' homes and community centers to being a featured part of New Jersey First Lady Tammy Murphy's Family Festivals. The Units' staff provide non-driver IDs, driver licenses, and other services under the sponsored program designed to combat the state's maternal and infant health crisis.
