The NJ Resiliency Coalition is an online community where people living and working in New Jersey can come together to help lean into positive childhood experiences (PCEs) and help mitigate adverse childhood experiences (ACEs) to create a healthier and happier state. This public online learning group was created by the NJ ACEs Collaborative, the Office of Resilience, the Center for Health Care Strategies, and the New Jersey Education Association. This platform will be made stronger by the involvement and active participation of all New Jerseyans!

Our mission is to promote collaboration among state residents seeking to prevent, protect against, and help families heal from the impact of ACEs and to learn about and promote PCEs. In addition, the site will serve as a conduit for information about the work happening with our partners across New Jersey and within the United States. The NJ PACEs Action Plan will platform the work surrounding this NJ Resiliency Coalition.

Through this online community, we will learn from each other about PACEs-related work in the state broader, PACEs-related topics, and to build cross-sector awareness of existing statewide and community-level efforts.

Please post information you think will move NJ forward in its efforts to become a trauma-informed, healing centered state.
