Veterans get help from special clinical and research program at New Jersey VA hospital

The War Related Illness and Injury Study Center at the East Orange campus of the VA New Jersey Health Care System (NJ WRIISC) is a national center for post-deployment health concerns.

The highest priority is to help returning veterans get the best care they deserve. The NJ WRIISC accomplishes this through an extensive clinical and educational programs for veterans with difficult to diagnose symptoms and exposure related concerns, as well as targeted research programs.

This research important to veteran care because often, it can answer questions about causality or lead to new and innovative treatment approaches. The NJ WRIISC has an impressive research program that is focused on translating findings on veteran health into improved clinical care.

Right now, the center is performing cutting edge research on post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), blast-related injury, concussions, fatigue and the effects of exposure to burn pits and sand storms.

Current projects include working with NASA and academic centers such as Harvard University and Johns Hopkins, to utilize the most advanced testing systems to better understand post-deployment health problems.

The center is exploring new avenues of treatment such as integrative medicine programs like yoga and Qi Gong. Veterans participation in a WRIISC research project could yield long term benefits to all veterans.

For more information on the WRIISC, visit their webpage at www.warrelatedillness.va.gov/nj/research/research-studies.asp or our website at www.warrelatedillness.va.gov or contact us at 1-800-248-8005.

Combined Federal Campaign celebrates 50th anniversary

The New Jersey National Guard Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) has officially kicked off its 2011 campaign which will run until Nov. 30.

This year's campaign marks the 50th Anniversary of the CFC, one of the most effective and efficient channels for philanthropic giving. The CFC gives federal workers an accountable, flexible way to make meaningful differences in the world by providing a wide range of donation options.

There are nearly 3,000 local, national and international agencies listed in this year's brochure. Contributions may be made by payroll deductions – the easiest way to give or make a one-time gift to the charity of your choice.

Over the years, the New Jersey National Guard's CFC has been most successful in this endeavor because of the personal generosity and concerns of its members. Every employee is urged to support this worthy cause. Catalogs and payroll deduction forms will be going out to all full time federal technicians and AGRs.

The CFC coordinator for this year's Combined Federal Campaign is Jo Anne Miller, of the J1-HRO Office. For more information, please call 609-562-0851.

GT enhancement course available to New Jersey National Guard Soldiers

The New Jersey Army National Guard Recruiting and Retention Command has developed an education course which allows Soldiers to increase their education level. It is called the General Technical (GT) Enhancement Course.

This week-long course focuses on both Math and English and is taught at the National Guard Training Center in Sea Girt. It is given quarterly and has approximately 10-15 students per class. It was developed as an effort to assist Soldiers who need a boost in order to make it to the next level. Some Soldiers aspire to become officers, while others may just want to make a career change. This course was directly responsible for at least 12 percent of the officer production mission. Future dates for this course are Dec. 12-18; Feb. 6-12, 2012 and June 25 – July 1, 2012.

If you are looking for this great opportunity, contact a recruiter near you for more details.
