DECEMBER 5, 2014

Capt. Ryan Bailey spends time with his family after the Welcome Home ceremony for the seven Soldiers and one Airman of the Military Advisor Team (MAT) V held at the New Jersey Joint Force Headquarters, Joint Base McGuire-Dix-Lakehurst, N.J., Dec. 2, 2014. MAT V coached, taught and mentored Afghan National Army (ANA) units, served as the conduit for liaison and command and control and, when required, supported the operational planning and employment of the ANA. This was the last Joint MAT deployment with the New Jersey Army National Guard and the Albanian Armed Forces to Afghanistan to train that nation's army. (U.S. Air National Guard photo by Master Sgt. Christmas comes early to Vets Haven

At Veterans Haven South, Christmas came 22 days early.

Thirty volunteers from the Veterans of Foreign Wars – Absecon Post 9462, Hammonton Post 1026 and Brigantine Post 6964 cooked and served dinner and distributed gifts to residents Dec. 3.

“This makes their Christmas a little brighter,” said Stuart McCullen of Post 9462 and event chairman.

McCullen’s involvement began several years ago. During a holiday visit to Vets Haven, he saw a resident playing the piano for his visiting son.

“I saw that young kid with his father who was in the program and have been helping since.”

The State VFW has divided New Jersey so that the southern Posts support Vets Haven South in Winslow, while the northern Posts support Veterans Haven North in Glen Gardner.

Veteran service organizations like the VFW and their volunteer support for New Jersey’s Veterans Transitional Housing Program are a perfect example of the “Force Multipliers in action” that Brig. Gen. Michael L. Cunniff, The Adjutant General of New Jersey speaks of. These Force Multipliers augment the support that state provides the residents of the Veterans Transitional Housing Program.

NEW JERSEY HAS AMONG ITS HOMELESS POPULATION AN ESTIMATED 7,000 TO 8,000 VETERANS. THE RESIDENTS’ AGE AT VETS HAVEN SOUTH RANGE FROM 25 TO 70. THERE ARE SEVERAL IRAQ VETERANS IN THE PROGRAM.

New Jersey has among its homeless population an estimated 7,000 to 8,000 veterans. The residents’ age at Vets Haven South range from 25 to 70. There are several Iraq veterans in the program.

“Veteran service organizations can mentor the residents – veteran to veteran,” said Albert J. Bucchi, Director, Veteran Services, New Jersey Department of Military and Veterans Affairs.

“These are good people,” said McCullen.

This year, the Posts raised $1,500, which members of Post 9462 Ladies Auxiliary used to buy the residents gifts. In addition to receiving a bag of toiletries, each resident picked out a gift from four tables heaped with items ranging from shoes, clothing, gloves to shavers and watches.

Deciding what to buy has been a learning process.

“This is my twelfth year and I’ve seen what is and isn’t a hit,” said Donna Wagner, President, Post 9462 Ladies Auxiliary. “The men sometimes pick stuff they can give away as gifts.”

Not all residents were able to attend the dinner.

“Some are at their jobs, while others are school,” said Bucchi.

Those who weren’t able to make it, still receive gifts, no one gets left out.

GUARDING THE STATE

DECADES OF SELFLESS SERVICE

Eileen Foster was hired as a clerk typist at the National Guard Training Center in Sea Girt on March 3, 1969.

“There wasn’t much there when I started, some trees, some old wooden buildings and that was about it,” Foster recalled recently. Her first office was in a small wooden building that’s now a rental cottage.

As Foster ended her 45 year career with the Department of Military and Veterans Affairs, all of it at Sea Girt, she recalls that if anything remained constant during her time there, it was change.

The State Police and Department of Corrections moved their initial entry training onto the installation, the post grew into a major training installation for National Guard Soldiers from across the Northeast, and new buildings sprang up across the post.

Foster’s responsibilities and stature in the National Guard grew along with the post. She served nine post commanders with each giving her greater responsibilities, from human resources to finance to logistics.

Foster, who’s looking forward to spending time with her first grandchild in retirement, counts her first helicopter ride and a visit from former Vice President Dick Cheney among her most memorable days at Sea Girt.

But they weren’t the reasons she stayed.

“It was the people,” she said. “All the wonderful people I got to work with over the years. It was a nice career.”

When you work more than 40 years for the same organization, it shows a remarkable amount of loyalty and dedication – the kind you don’t see much anymore.

BRIG. GEN. JAMES GRANT, DIRECTOR OF THE JOINT STAFF

Eileen Foster, left, and Sophie Guzikowski were awarded the New Jersey Civilian Meritorious Service Medal by Brig. Gen. Michael L. Cunniff, The Adjutant General.

It was still dark outside the Department of Military Affairs Headquarters in Lawrenceville. There was no heat or power and the building looked like the set of a disaster movie. Hurricane Sandy had passed through only a few hours before, shattering windows and blowing apart one of the rear doors, leaving glass scattered across the back veranda.

A solitary figure made her way across the empty parking lot. It was Sophie Guzikowski. When a passerby asked Guzikowski how she’d made it to work on the largely impassable roads, she didn’t answer.

She just shrugged and smiled: “The phones are down, I want to get them fixed.”

That’s been the veteran telecom manager’s work ethic for 43 years.

“She’s the hardest working person in the department,” said her supervisor, Dave Snedeker, the chief of DMAVA’s information services division. “She’s the first one here every morning and the last one to leave. It’s been that way the whole time she’s been here.”

Guzikowski left the building as a DMAVA employee for a final time on Dec. 4 and headed off to a well-earned retirement.

She plans to spend time with her children and grandchildren and help her husband with their pride and joy, their garden.

“I will miss everyone here very much,” Guzikowski said. “The people here are the most wonderful people in the world.”

Veterans Benefits Guide available

The second edition of the New Jersey Veterans' Benefits Guide has just been published. The New Jersey Department of military and Veterans Affairs publication details the numerous benefits, as well as contact information for services available to the New Jersey veterans community.

Some of the areas covered include VA health care benefits, health care for women veterans, Vet-to Vet – New Jersey's program that addresses the readjustment problems of veterans and the treatment programs available to them, homeless support and New Jersey's Transitional Housing Program (see story on page 2 for more information about the program), New Jersey tax and property benefits, employment, veterans preference, service organizations and their contact information, business opportunities, education, State awards and veterans' healthcare and New Jersey's state-of-the-art nursing homes.

Copies of the publication can be picked up at the Veterans Outreach locations (see the back cover of Highlights for dates and locations).

ENERGY CONSERVATION TIP OF THE WEEK

Winter generator safety

Did You Know?

Winter storm season is upon us. Many people use backup generators to heat and light their homes when the power goes out. Remember to never use a generator indoors or in an attached garage.

According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, after Hurricane Katrina, the misuse of the portable power sources killed at least five people and injured 40 more due to carbon monoxide poisoning. Be sure to place the generator outside where exhaust fumes will not enter into enclosed spaces.

For more generator safety tips, check out www.consumerenergycenter.org/tips/generators.
