Governor Christie Announces Jacqueline Halldow As New Deputy Chief of Staff of Communications

Friday April 22, 2016 Tags: Appointments

Trenton, NJ – Governor Chris Christie today announced the addition of Jacqueline Halldow to his senior management team as Deputy Chief of Staff of Communications. She replaces Communications Director Kevin Roberts, who recently departed the administration after six and a half years of service to pursue an opportunity in the private sector.

Most recently, Halldow served as Chief of Staff at New Jersey Transit where, for the past five years, she was responsible for overall strategic direction, construction of a customer satisfaction measurement system, and operational oversight of rail, bus and capital programs. In that capacity, she also was charged with daily coordination with the communications team and providing leadership on both internal and external messaging.

Prior to her position at NJ Transit, Halldow was Vice President of Communications for the Rochester, New York Transportation Authority, where she led a team charged with managing customer communications, internal messaging, and capital program leadership. Halldow also served the New York State Association of Counties, working with 62 New York counties on communications, event coordination, and legislative support.

She is a graduate of The College of Saint Rose in Albany, New York.

In addition to Halldow, Jeremy Rosen and Lynne Richmond have joined Press Secretary Brian Murray in the Governor's Communications Office as deputy press secretaries.
