CSC DKT. NO. 2017-294
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 11832-16

FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION
OF THE
CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: MAY 17 2017 BW

The appeal of Ann Pearl, Keyboarding Clerk 2, Hudson County, Sheriff's Department, removal effective July 5, 2016, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Thomas Betancourt, who rendered his initial decision on April 13, 2017. Exceptions were filed on behalf of the appellant and a reply to exceptions was filed on behalf of the appointing authority.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting of May 17, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision except with respect to the standard of review utilized by the Administrative Law Judge regarding the penalty.

However, in determining the proper penalty, the Commission's review is de novo. In addition to its consideration of the seriousness of the underlying incident in determining the proper penalty, the Commission also utilizes, when appropriate, the concept of progressive discipline. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962). In determining the propriety of the penalty, several factors must be considered, including the nature of the appellant's offense, the concept of progressive discipline, and the employee's prior record. George v. North Princeton Developmental Center, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (CSV) 463. However, it is well established that where the underlying conduct is of an egregious nature, the imposition of a penalty up to and including removal is appropriate, regardless of an individual's disciplinary history.

See Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). It is settled that the theory of progressive discipline is not a "fixed and immutable rule to be followed without question." Rather, it is recognized that some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished prior record. See Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474 (2007).

The appellant's disciplinary history includes three verbal warning for insubordination in 2010, a verbal warning for excessive lateness in 2010, two written warnings for insubordination in 2011, a 30 day suspension in 2011 for insubordination, conduct unbecoming a public employee, and other sufficient cause, a 60 working day suspension in 2012 for insubordination and conduct unbecoming a public employee, and a five day suspension in May 2016. As such, in its de novo review of the penalty, the Commission finds removal is the appropriate penalty for the sustained charges against the appellant in this matter.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in removing the appellant was justified. The Commission therefore affirms that action and dismisses the appeal of Ann Pearl.

This is the final administrative determination in this matter. Any further review should be pursued in a judicial forum.

BEFORE THOMAS R. BETANCOURT, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Appellant, Ann Pearl, appeals a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action imposing a penalty of removal effective July 5, 2016, for Incompetency, Inefficiency or Failure to perform duties; Insubordination; Conduct unbecoming a public employee; and Other sufficient cause.

The Civil Service Commission transmitted the contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on August 5, 2016.

A prehearing conference was held on August 19, 2016, and a prehearing order, dated August 22, 2016, was entered by the undersigned.

A hearing was held on March 10, 2017, whereupon the record was closed.

ISSUES

Whether there is sufficient credible evidence to sustain the charges set forth in the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action; and, if sustained, whether a penalty of a removal is warranted.

SUMMARY OF RELEVANT TESTIMONY

Respondent's Case

David Anthony testified as follows:

He is employed by the Hudson County Sheriff's Department as the manager of the foreclosure unit. He is Appellant's supervisor. On May 17, 2016, Appellant was brought to his office at approximately 11:30 a.m. He had heard yelling and screaming but did not know who was doing so. Appellant, Ms. Pearl, and another worker, Ms. Rivera, were brought into his office and were still screaming. They were highly agitated and screaming at each other. He did not know what the dispute was over. He separated the two. He removed Ms. Rivera from his office and spoke with Appellant first. He did not understand what the dispute was over.

He reported the incident to his supervisor, Undersheriff Francine Shelton, and prepared a report.

Other employees complained. Customers were present when the incident took place.

He was not present at a meeting called by Undersheriff Shelton on May 20, 2016.

He knew Appellant was to receive a five-day suspension for the incident and entered it in his log book.

He does not recall if he spoke with Appellant on either June 1 or June 2, 2016. He does not recall if he gave Appellant the five-day suspension notice. That is usually done by personnel. If he was asked to do it he would.

Claudia Macaro testified as follows:

She is employed by the Hudson County Sheriff's Department as assistant supervisor of accounting. On May 17, 2016, at approximately between 10:45 a.m. and 11:00 a.m. she heard a disturbance. She heard two people yelling and went to see. She saw Appellant and Ms. Rivera. She did not determine why they were yelling. She asked both to go to the back office where Mr. Anthony was located.

Both Appellant and Ms. Rivera were still yelling in the back office. She took Ms. Rivera to the front office and Appellant stayed with Mr. Anthony. She does not know what the argument was over, and never found out.

She prepared a joint report of the incident with Mr. Anthony. The report was given to Undersheriff Shelton who is in charge of the civilian employees.

On June 1 and June 2, 2016, Ms. Macaro thinks Appellant was still working, but does not specifically recall. She was aware that Appellant was to receive a five-day suspension. She did not give a copy of the five-day suspension notice to Appellant.

She did not know what the exact days of the suspension were.

Patricia Bustin testified as follows:

She is the chief clerk and the supervisor of both Appellant and Ms. Rivera. She was present on May 17, 2016, but did not witness the argument. She was upstairs in the sales office.

On May 20, 2016, she escorted Appellant to the office of Undersheriff Shelton around 3:00 p.m.

She prepared a report for Undersheriff Shelton regarding the May 20, 2016, meeting.

Undersheriff Shelton had called Ms. Bustin and requested that Appellant and Ms. Rivera be brought to her office. She did not know why at the time. Present at the meeting were Undersheriff Shelton, Ms. Bustin, Sharon Mallory, a union representative, and William Gonzalez. Prior to Appellant entering the office the proposed suspension and the suspension notice for Appellant to sign were discussed. The dates of the suspension were on the notice. Appellant was then brought in. Undersheriff Shelton attempted to explain to Appellant, who became aggravated and frustrated. Appellant stated she was not properly represented. Appellant was told Ms. Mallory was a union representative. Appellant stated she did not request her and left the meeting. Appellant returned in about ten to fifteen minutes. Prior to Appellant's return, Ms. Rivera was given notice of her five-day suspension and left.

Appellant returned with papers and started reading from them. She was angry and frustrated. She was beet red. Ms. Bustin does not recall what Appellant stated while reading. Undersheriff Shelton attempted to explain the days of suspension. Appellant left and was not given the notice of suspension. She was not given permission to leave.

She does not know who requested Ms. Mallory to be present. She was not aware of why there was a meeting before it occurred. She does not recall if Appellant requested a different union representative. When Appellant left for the second time it was after 4:00 p.m.

William Gonzalez testified as follows:

He is the sales department supervisor. Appellant was one of his employees. He did not hear the argument on May 17, 2016.

On May 20, 2016, he escorted Appellant and Ms. Rivera to Undersheriff Shelton's office. The meeting was to discuss the suspension of Appellant and Ms. Rivera. Also present was Sharon Mallory.

Undersheriff Shelton was trying to explain the days of suspension and the reason why to Appellant. Appellant interrupted and stated that her employee rights were being violated and left the meeting. Undersheriff Shelton had told Appellant that Ms. Mallory was a union representative. Appellant responded that she did not request her. Appellant was not given permission to leave. Appellant came back with papers and handed them to the Undersheriff. Undersheriff Shelton tried to speak again and was interrupted again. Appellant then left again, without permission.

The Undersheriff attempted to serve the notice to Appellant during the meeting. Appellant refused to accept it. He is not sure if the Undersheriff gave the notice to Appellant after the meeting. Mr. Gonzalez did give the notice to Appellant sometime thereafter, but is unsure as to what day.

The days of the suspension were on the notice. Appellant never took the notice. The days of suspension were June 1, 2, 8, 14, and 15, 2016.

On June 1, 2016, Appellant went to work. Mr. Gonzalez told Appellant that the day was a suspension day and that she should not be in the office. He then called Richard Sires to advise that Appellant was in the office. Ms. Bustin was present when he spoke to Appellant. This was during the morning hours. Appellant refused to leave even though she was told to do so.

Elizabeth Nevarez arrived and had a private conversation with Appellant. Ms. Nevarez is a union representative. Appellant returned to work after the conversation.

On June 2, 2016, Appellant again went to work. Two officers arrived and asked Appellant to leave at least three times. One officer was Sergeant Ruiz. The other was a female officer, but he does not know her last name. Sergeant Ruiz advised Appellant that if she did not leave she would be arrested. He did so in a calm and very professional manner. Appellant left after first trying to call a union representative. He believes Appellant left around 4:00 p.m.

Wilson Ruiz testified as follows:

He is a sergeant with the Hudson County Sheriff's Department. He spoke with Appellant on June 2, 2016. Officer Zulima Cabrera was with him. He was advised by Richard Sires that Appellant would be served with a termination notice. The paperwork was served and Appellant was asked to leave.

Mr. Sires had told Appellant to leave after he served her. Sergeant Ruiz gave Appellant time to gather her belongings. Appellant wanted to speak with a union representative. He told Appellant that if she did not leave he would arrest her as a defiant trespasser. Appellant then left without incident. He escorted her.

Sergeant Ruiz believed that Appellant spoke with a union representative outside the building. He heard her state "I don't know what to do." Her demeanor was calm.

Francine Shelton testified as follows:

She is an undersheriff with the Hudson County Sheriff's Department. She is responsible for the civilian personnel. She is familiar with Appellant.

Undersheriff Shelton was informed of the incident that occurred on May 17, 2016. She was informed by David Anthony. She had asked that reports be prepared. She issued minor discipline to both Appellant and Ms. Rivera. Each received a five-day suspension. The Notice of Minor Disciplinary Action prepared for Appellant states the days of the suspension: June 1, 2, 7, 14, and 15, 2016. The days are spread out so as to not cause a hardship upon salaries. Ms. Rivera received the same discipline as Appellant.

She saw Appellant on May 20, 2016 during a meeting. The Undersheriff had summoned Appellant to the meeting, which took place in the afternoon. Also present were Mr. Gonzalez, Ms. Bustin, Sharon Mallory, a union representative. She spoke with both Appellant and Ms. Rivera individually in her office with the others present. The purpose of the meeting was to inform them of the disciplinary action being taken for the May 17, 2016 incident. Neither Appellant nor Ms. Rivera was interrogated.

Undersheriff Shelton introduced participants in the meeting to Appellant, and then read the Notice of Minor Disciplinary Action to Appellant. She was not able to read the entire document but did read the dates of the suspension. Appellant became irate and did not want to speak with her. Appellant said she was entitled to union representation. Appellant continued to interrupt the Undersheriff, stating that she thought it unfair, and that she did not agree. She then stormed out of the office as the Undersheriff was getting towards the end of reading the charges. Appellant returned and handed Undersheriff Shelton a document pertaining to Weingarten. Undersheriff Shelton inquired of Appellant what it was. Appellant said she would not speak with her any further. Undersheriff Shelton informed Appellant that Ms. Mallory was a union representative. She attempted to serve the Notice of Minor Disciplinary Action upon Appellant who turned her back on the Undersheriff and refused to take it.

She was informed that Appellant arrived at work on June 1 and 2, 2016.

She did not prepare or sign the form 31A, the Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action.

Richard Sires had requested that Ms. Mallory be present at the meeting of May 20, 2017.

She placed a handwritten note on the Notice of Minor Disciplinary Action which states "Ms. Pearl walked out of meeting as I was reading the charges to her."

Sharon Mallory testified as follows:

She is an employee of the County of Hudson. She is also a union delegate. She had not met with Appellant prior to May 20, 2016. She was summoned to Undersheriff Shelton's office to be the union representative for Appellant. She recalls the Undersheriff reading the notice about the five-day suspension. Does not recall what the discipline was about. She recalls the Undersheriff giving the actual days of the suspension. Appellant did not want to hear what the Undersheriff was saying. After the days of suspension were read Appellant left and returned with Weingarten rights. Appellant was a little upset. The Undersheriff tried to hand Appellant the notice. She refused to accept it. Appellant stated that Ms. Mallory was not the delegate of her choice. Ms. Mallory stayed for the entirety of the meeting. She did not speak with Appellant prior to the meeting. Ms. Mallory saw the Notice of Minor Disciplinary Action the day of the meeting. She sent a copy to Floyd Worley, a union representative. Appellant did not request a different union representative at the meeting. Neither Appellant nor Ms. Rivera was interrogated at the meeting.

Richard Sires testified as follows:

He is the Principal Personnel Technician. Both Appellant and Ms. Rivera were disciplined on May 20, 2016, for their involvement in an incident on May 17, 2016. Each received a five-day suspension. The suspension days are spread out to avoid hardship for the employees. He became aware of the suspension on or after May 20, 2016. He notified the union through Floyd Worley. He did this via email to Mr. Worley dated May 24, 2016. In the email he noted that Appellant refused service of the notice and that escalation of discipline was being discussed. He also mailed this via certified mail.

Mr. Sires knew that June 1 and 2 were suspension days. He was working both days. He became aware that Appellant was at work on June 1, 2016. He had received a call prior to 9:00 a.m. He explained to the caller that Appellant needed to leave or discipline may escalate. He called the undersheriff and the legal department to advise them.

He also spoke with Elizabeth Navarez on June 1, 2016, to advise that Appellant was at work. Ms. Navarez came to the office and spoke with Appellant. Mr. Sires was not with Ms. Navarez when she spoke with Appellant. Appellant still refused to leave. Ms. Navarez returned to Mr. Sires after speaking with Appellant. He asked Ms. Navarez to prepare a report. He noted that Appellant signed in to work on June 1, 2016, at 8:05 a.m., and signed out at 4:05 p.m.

On June 2, 2016, Appellant returned to work. Mr. Sires then prepared a form 31A, Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action. He advised the undersheriff and sent the form to the law department. It was then signed by Undersheriff Andrew Conte.

He served the form 31A on Appellant about 3:00 p.m. on June 2, 2016, with Sergeant Ruiz and another officer. He told Appellant she was immediately suspended and had to leave. Appellant refused to sign the document. He then asked Sergeant Ruiz to have Appellant leave. A copy of the form 31A was mailed to the union.

Mr. Sires then reviewed Appellant's disciplinary history, which consisted of the following: 1/2/10, Insubordination with a penalty of verbal warning; 3/26/10, Insubordination with a penalty of verbal warning; 8/13/10, Insubordination with a penalty of verbal warning; 11/5/10, Excessive Lateness with a penalty of verbal warning; 2/14/11, Insubordination with a penalty of written warning; 9/29/11, Insubordination, Conduct unbecoming a public employee, Neglect of duty, Other sufficient cause with a penalty of 30-day suspension; 10/10/12, Insubordination, Conduct unbecoming a public employee with a penalty of 60-working-day suspension; the 5-day suspension arising out of the incident of May 17, 2016; and, the present matter.

The email that he sent to Mr. Worley was not sent to Appellant. He believes he mailed a copy to Appellant and that Mr. Gonzalez gave it to her.

Ms. Navarez does not work in the sales office and is not Appellant's supervisor.

He does not recall Appellant showing up for work during her previous thirty-day and sixty-day suspension.

On June 2, 2016, he spoke with Appellant while she was sitting at her desk. She was not disruptive. He handed her the notice of discipline. She refused to sign it. She is not required to sign it. Sergeant Ruiz was a witness. Mr. Sires believes that Appellant understood, but she did say "I don't understand" and "I'm not clear."

Appellant's Case

Ann Pearl, Appellant, testified as follows:

She began her employment with the Hudson County Sheriff's Department in July 2000. She was a Senior Clerk Typist and worked Monday through Friday from 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

On May 17, 2016, Ms. Rivera was "quite vocal." Ms. Pearl was on the telephone. When she finished the call Ms. Rivera said "people don't even turn on their computer." Ms. Pearl made it a point to counter Ms. Rivera. Ms. Pearl got up to report this to the back office. Ms. Rivera was "instigative." Ms. Pearl felt her comments were derogatory to the employees. Ms. Pearl was the senior employee at this time. Ms. Pearl stated that she would not refer to her interaction with Ms. Rivera as a disagreement. She wanted to counter Ms. Rivera and report it to her supervisor. She stated "at a certain time we all moved in there" referring to Mr. Anthony's office. She stated Mr. Anthony understood how upset she was and asked her to write something up.

On May 20, 2016, she was told by Mr. Gonzalez that Undersheriff Shelton wanted to see her. She called the Undersheriff to inquire what it was about. She was told she would be informed when they met. Present at the Undersheriff's office were Mr. Gonzalez, Ms. Bustin, Undersheriff Shelton and someone introduced as a union representative. Ms. Pearl confirms that this was Sharon Mallory. She did not request Ms. Mallory.

Undersheriff Shelton invited her in the office and offered her a seat. Ms. Pearl did not feel like sitting. The Undersheriff started reading from a piece of paper. Ms. Pearl heard "shouting match" and felt discipline might be in store. Upon hearing this she excused herself and got the Weingarten Rights.[1] When she first left she believes she said "excuse me." She returned and handed the Weingarten Rights to the Undersheriff.

Undersheriff Shelton asked what it was. Ms. Pearl did not feel she needed to say anything. She felt her submission of the Weingarten Rights was her statement. She sensed that a violation of her rights. She had no opportunity to speak with the Undersheriff prior to the meeting. At that point she did not know what communication needed to take place, other than merely asserting her rights.

[1] Weingarten Rules refer to NLRB v. Weingarten, 420 U.S. 251, 95 S. Ct. 959, 43 L. Ed. 2d 171 (1975), which upheld a National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) decision that employees have a right to union representation at investigatory interviews.

She then looked at the clock and it was the end of the work day. She told the Undersheriff that it was 4:00 p.m. and her work day is over. She left the meeting without the notice of discipline. The Undersheriff gave her back the Weingarten Rights.

She does not recall the Undersheriff trying to serve her with the disciplinary notice. She does not recall the Undersheriff stating the suspension days.

When she returned to work that Monday[2] she called Floyd Worley and left a message that she needed his involvement. There was no other discussion this week.

Ms. Pearl recalls Ms. Macaro calling Ms. Pearl into her office to ask if Ms. Pearl knew she was suspended. Ms. Pearl did not. Mr. Gonzalez was also present. She does not recall if Mr. Gonzalez said anything. What was uppermost in her mind was what Ms. Macaro said. Ms. Macaro did not tell her she had to go home. No one that day gave her notice of the suspension. This was probably on June 1, 2016.

There was a woman in the office that identified herself as someone from the union. She spoke of the suspension and the possible escalation of it. She gave Ms. Pearl her card. She told Ms. Pearl that ignoring the suspension could escalate. The union representative was looking at paperwork. Mr. Pearl "took it to mind."

Mr. Sires spoke with her on what Ms. Pearl believes to be June 2, 2016, and told her she was immediately suspended. At that point Ms. Pearl reached out for a union representative. Before she spoke with Mr. Sires Mr. Worley called her inquiring about what was going on. She is unsure if Mr. Worley called on June 1 or June 2, 2016.

Mr. Sires was clearly saying there was a suspension. She reached out for a union representative again. Another worker offered to call Sharon Mallory. Ms. Pearl was waiting for a call back. She was under the impression that Sergeant Ruiz was waiting with her for a union representative to call back. When she was told by Sergeant Ruiz she had to leave she left. She then met with Ms. Mallory and discussed what happened. The next day she filled out a grievance that was given to her by Ms. Mallory.

During her two previous suspensions she did not return to work. She doesn't believe she would have gone to work had she received notice.

She disputes the description of her interaction with Ms. Rivera as an argument. She decided to report the incident to Mr. Anthony. She disputes that she and Ms. Rivera were ever separated. She cannot recall if customers were present during the incident with Ms. Rivera. There was no one present at the sales door. Ms. Pearl was questioned by Mr. Anthony regarding the incident with Ms. Rivera.

At the June 20, 2016, meeting with Undersheriff Shelton she does not remember Ms. Rivera being there. She stated she walked to the meeting alone.

The Weingarten Rights form she keeps at her desk. She had not read it prior to May 20, 2016. She felt it applied to her matter.

She was not interrogated by the Undersheriff.

She decided to leave the May 20, 2016, meeting at 4:00 p.m., stating "four o'clock is four o'clock."

She does not believe Ms. Macaro told her she was suspended. She disputes that Mr. Gonzalez gave her the notice of discipline.

Ms. Pearl refutes that Ms. Navarez told her she was suspended. She was told there was a suspension.

CREDIBILITY

When witnesses present conflicting testimonies, it is the duty of the trier of fact to weigh each witness's credibility and make a factual finding. In other words, credibility is the value a fact finder assigns to the testimony of a witness, and it incorporates the overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, consistency, and how it comports with other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718 (9th Cir. 1963); see In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982). Credibility findings "are often influenced by matters such as observations of the character and demeanor of witnesses and common human experience that are not transmitted by the record." State v. Locurto, 157 N.J. 463 (1999). A fact finder is expected to base decisions of credibility on his or her common sense, intuition or experience. Barnes v. United States, 412 U.S. 837, 93 S. Ct. 2357, 37 L. Ed. 2d 380 (1973).

The finder of fact is not bound to believe the testimony of any witness, and credibility does not automatically rest astride the party with more witnesses. In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514 (1950). Testimony may be disbelieved, but may not be disregarded at an administrative proceeding. Middletown Twp. v. Murdoch, 73 N.J. Super. 511 (App. Div. 1962). Credible testimony must not only proceed from the mouth of credible witnesses but must be credible in itself. Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546 (1954).

David Anthony was a credible witness. He was calm and straightforward in his testimony. He did not embellish. He simply stated what he saw and heard.

Claudia Macaro was also credible. She testified in a direct and professional manner. She related what she saw and heard in a straightforward manner.

Patricia Bustin too was a credible witness. She was able to relate what she saw and heard in a clear manner.

William Gonzalez was credible also. He too was straightforward and direct in his manner.

Sergeant Wilson Ruiz testified in a professional manner. He was direct and to the point. He was quite credible.

Undersheriff Francine Shelton was credible. She related what she saw and heard at the meeting of May 20, 2016, in a straightforward and direct manner.

Sharon Mallory was also credible. She stated what she saw and heard without hesitation.

Richard Sires was likewise credible. He testified in a calm and straightforward manner.

I had great difficulty with the testimony of Petitioner, Ann Pearl. She seemed at times not able to answer simple questions. Often she took a great deal of time to formulate an answer. Her recollection of events differed markedly from other witnesses. Pointedly, her recollection of the events surrounding her argument with Ms. Ruiz strain belief. She recollects that she went to Mr. Anthony's office on her own. Others recollect that she was brought to the office because of the argument. Her statement that she left Undersheriff Shelton's office at four o'clock as this was the end of her shift – "four o'clock is four o'clock" – was astonishing. Her insistence that she was never told of the five-day suspension is simply not believable. How she related her conversation with Ms. Navarez was bizarre. When asked if Ms. Navarez told her of the five-day suspension her response was she was told "there was a suspension" but refuted that Ms. Navarez told her of the five-day suspension. It was difficult to credit much of what she said as credible. Simply put, I did not believe her version of what transpired on May 17, 2016, May 20, 2016, June 1, 2016, and June 2, 2016.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND the following FACTS:

1. Appellant, Ann Pearl, was employed by the Hudson County Sheriff's Department as a Senior Clerk Typist.

2. On May 17, 2016, Appellant became involved in an argument with a co-worker, Ms. Rivera.

3. The argument became loud. Both Appellant and Ms. Rivera were summoned to the office of David Anthony, the manager of the foreclosure unit.

4. Both Appellant and Ms. Rivera were still arguing loudly when brought to Mr. Anthony's office. The matter was reported to Undersheriff Francine Shelton.

5. Undersheriff Shelton is responsible for the civilian employees of the Hudson County Sheriff's Department.

6. Both Appellant and Ms. Rivera were disciplined for their involvement in the argument of May 17, 2016. Each received a five-day suspension.

7. On May 20, 2016, both Appellant and Ms. Rivera were brought to Undersheriff Shelton's office for the purpose of being served with the five-day suspension notice.

8. While Undersheriff Shelton was reading the Notice of Minor Disciplinary Action to Appellant she walked out of the office.

9. Petitioner returned with a Weingarten Rights form and handed it to Undersheriff Shelton.

10. Appellant refused to accept the Notice of Minor Disciplinary Action from Undersheriff Shelton.

11. Appellant left the office at approximately 4:00 p.m. without accepting a copy of the Notice of Minor Disciplinary Action.

12. The days Appellant was suspended were June 1, 2, 7, 14, and 15, 2016.

13. Appellant was served with a copy of the Notice of Minor Disciplinary Action by William Gonzalez.

14. Appellant went to work on June 1, 2016, the first day of the five-day suspension.

15. Appellant was informed by William Gonzalez, the office supervisor, that June 1, 2016 was a suspension day and that Appellant should not be in the office. Mr. Gonzalez then called Richard Sires, the Principal Personnel Technician, to advise him.

16. Appellant was also advised on June 1, 2016, by Elizabeth Navarez, a union delegate, that she was suspended. Petitioner refused to leave.

17. Appellant remained at work June 1, 2016.

18. Appellant again went to work on June 2, 2016.

19. Appellant was served with a notice of termination on June 2, 2016, by Richard Sires.

RESIDUUM RULE

Judicial rules of evidence do not apply to administrative agency proceedings, except for rules of privileges or where required by law. N.J.R.E. 101(a)(3); DeBartolomeis v. Bd. of Review, 341 N.J. Super. 80, 82 (App. Div. 2001); N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(a) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.1(c).

Hearsay are statements other than ones made by the declarant while testifying at a hearing, offered into evidence to prove the truth of the matter asserted. N.J.R.E. 801(c). Hearsay is usually not admissible because it is deemed untrustworthy and unreliable (N.J.R.E. 802) unless it falls within an exception enumerated in N.J.R.E. 803 or 804. However, hearsay is admissible in an administrative proceeding such as this one subject to the "residuum rule," which mandates that the administrative decision cannot be predicated on hearsay alone. Weston v. State, 60 N.J. 36 (1972).

> [A] fact-finding or legal determination cannot be based upon hearsay alone. Hearsay may be employed to corroborate > competent proof, or competent proof may be supported or given added probative force by hearsay testimony. But in the final analysis for a court to sustain an administrative decision, which affects the substantial rights of a party, there must be a residuum of legal competent evidence in the record to support it.

The Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules governing administrative agency proceedings codify this doctrine by requiring that "some legally competent evidence must exist to support each ultimate finding of fact to an extent sufficient to provide assurances of reliability and to avoid the fact or appearance of arbitrariness." N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5(c). In assessing hearsay evidence, it should be accorded "whatever weight the judge deems appropriate taking into account the nature, character and scope of the evidence, the circumstances of its creation and production, and, generally, its reliability. N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5(a).

In accordance with the residuum rule, I accepted into evidence a statement prepared by Elizabeth Navarez. Competent evidence exists in the form of the testimony of Mr. Gonzalez and Ms. Pearl to corroborate what is found in the statement.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

The Civil Service Act, N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to -12.6, governs a civil service employee's rights and duties. The Act is an important inducement to attract qualified personnel to public service and is to be liberally construed toward attainment of merit appointments and broad tenure protection. See Essex Council No. 1, N.J. Civil Serv. Ass'n v. Gibson, 114 N.J. Super. 576 (Law Div. 1971), rev'd on other grounds, 118 N.J. Super. 583 (App. Div. 1972); Mastrobattista v. Essex County Park Comm'n, 46 N.J. 138, 147 (1965). The Act also recognizes that the public policy of this state is to provide appropriate appointment, supervisory and other personnel authority to public officials in order that they may execute properly their constitutional and statutory responsibilities. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-2(b). In order to carry out this policy, the Act also includes provisions authorizing the discipline of public employees.

A public employee who is protected by the provisions of the Civil Service Act may be subject to major discipline for a wide variety of offenses connected to his or her employment. The general causes for such discipline are set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2 2.3(a). In an appeal from such discipline, the appointing authority bears the burden of proving the charges upon which it relies by a preponderance of the competent, relevant and credible evidence. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-21; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); Polk, supra, 90 N.J. 550. The evidence must be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to a given conclusion. Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958). Therefore, the judge must "decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to the reasonable probability of truth." Jackson v. Del., Lackawanna and W. R.R., 111 N.J.L. 487, 490 (E. & A. 1933). This burden of proof falls on the agency in enforcement proceedings to prove violations of administrative regulations. Cumberland Farms v. Moffett, 218 N.J. Super. 331, 341 (App. Div. 1987).

This forum has the duty to decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, in accordance with a reasonable probability of truth. Evidence is said to preponderate "if it establishes 'the reasonable probability of the fact.'" Preponderance may also be described as the greater weight of credible evidence in the case, not necessarily dependent on the number of witnesses, but having the greater convincing power. State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47 (1975). The evidence must "be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to a given conclusion." Bornstein, supra, 26 N.J. at 275 (1958). The burden of proof falls on the appointing authority in enforcement proceedings to prove a violation of administrative regulations. Cumberland Farms v. Moffett, 218 N.J. Super. 331, 341 (App. Div. 1987). The respondent must prove its case by a preponderance of the credible evidence, which is the standard in administrative proceedings. Atkinson, supra, 37N.J. 143. The evidence needed to satisfy the standard must be decided on a case-by-case basis.

Appellant is charged in the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA)[3] with incompetency in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1); insubordination in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2); conduct unbecoming a public employee in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6); and, other sufficient cause in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12).

"Conduct unbecoming a public employee" encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect for government employees and confidence in the operation of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atl. City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances "be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Id. at 555 (citation omitted). Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (citation omitted).

Webster's II New College Dictionary (1995) defines insubordination as "not submissive to authority: disobedient." Importantly, this definition incorporates acts of non-compliance and non-cooperation, as well as affirmative acts of disobedience. Thus, insubordination can occur even where no specific order or direction has been given to the allegedly insubordinate person.

As to the charge of incompetency, no evidence was presented. Therefore, as to this charge Respondent has not met its burden of proof.

As to the charges of insubordination, conduct unbecoming a public employee and other sufficient cause, Respondent has met its burden of proof by a preponderance of the credible evidence. In reaching this conclusion it is important to note that Appellant's conduct on May 17, 2016, during the verbal confrontation with Ms. Rivera was not considered. That conduct was dealt with in the Notice of Minor Disciplinary Action providing for a five-day suspension dated May 20, 2016. Appellant's conduct on May 20, 2016, during the meeting with Undersheriff Shelton, and her conduct on June 1, 2016, and June 2, 2016, meet the standard of insubordination, conduct unbecoming a public employee, and other sufficient cause. It is unacceptable for an employee to refuse to listen to her superior during a meeting regarding a disciplinary matter. It is unacceptable for an employee to remove herself from such a meeting without permission. It is unacceptable for an employee to leave work prior to the conclusion of such a meeting. It is unacceptable for an employee to refuse to accept a disciplinary notice, and then claim it was never served upon her. It is unacceptable for an employee to arrive at work during days she was suspended. This is particularly egregious as she was advised of the suspension by Undersheriff Shelton and William Gonzalez, who served her the notice personally. It is unacceptable for an employee to refuse to leave work after being told she was suspended and had to leave by both Mr. Gonzalez and the union delegate Elizabeth Navarez. It is unacceptable for an employee to have to be escorted from work under threat of arrest for her refusal to leave.

[3] The Final Notice of Disciplinary Action was not introduced into evidence. It was provided in the package submitted to the OAL when the matter was transferred by the Civil Service Commission.

An appeal to the Merit System Board requires the Office of Administrative Law to conduct a de novo hearing and to determine appellant's guilt or innocence as well as the appropriate penalty. In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (App. Div. 1987). In determining the reasonableness of a sanction, the employee's past record and any mitigating circumstances should be reviewed for guidance. W. New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962). Although the concept of progressive discipline is often cited by appellants as a mandate for lesser penalties for first time offences, > that is not to say that incremental discipline is a principle that must be applied in every disciplinary setting. To the contrary, judicial decisions have recognized that progressive discipline is not a necessary consideration when reviewing an agency head's choice of penalty when the misconduct is severe, when it is unbecoming to the employee's position or renders the employee unsuitable for continuation in the position, or when application of the principle would be contrary to the public interest.

> [In re Hernmann, 192 N.J. 19, 33-34 (2007) (citing Henry, supra, 81 N.J. 571).]

Although the focus is generally on the seriousness of the current charge as well as the prior disciplinary history of the appellant, consideration must also be given to the purpose of the civil service laws. Civil service laws "are designed to promote efficient public service, not to benefit errant employees . . . The welfare of the people as a whole, and not exclusively the welfare of the civil servant, is the basic policy underlining the statutory scheme." State-Operated Sch. Dist. v. Gaines, 309 N.J. Super. 327, 334 (App. Div. 1998). "The overriding concern in assessing the propriety of the penalty is the public good. Of the various considerations which bear upon that issue, several factors may be considered, including the nature of the offense, the concept of progressive discipline, and the employee's prior record." George v. N. Princeton Developmental Ctr., 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (CSV) 463, 465.

In Bock, supra, 38 N.J. at 522, which was decided more than fifty years ago, our Supreme Court first recognized the concept of progressive discipline, under which "past misconduct can be a factor in the determination of the appropriate penalty for present misconduct." Herrmann, supra, 192 N.J. at 29 (citing Bock, supra, 38 N.J. at 522). The Court therein concluded that "consideration of past record is inherently relevant" in a disciplinary proceeding, and held that an employee's "past record" includes "an employee's reasonably recent history of promotions, commendations and the like on the one hand and, on the other, formally adjudicated disciplinary actions as well as instances of misconduct informally adjudicated, so to speak, by having been previously brought to the attention of and admitted by the employee." Bock, supra, 38 N.J. 523-24.

As the Supreme Court explained in Herrmann, supra, 192 N.J. at 30, "[s]ince Bock, the concept of progressive discipline has been utilized in two ways when determining the appropriate penalty for present misconduct." According to the Court:

> . . . First, principles of progressive discipline can support the imposition of a more severe penalty for a public employee who engages in habitual misconduct. . . .

> The second use to which the principle of progressive discipline has been put is to mitigate the penalty for a current offense . . . for an employee who has a substantial record of employment that is largely or totally unblemished by significant disciplinary infractions. . . .
> . . . [T]hat is not to say that incremental discipline is a principle that must be applied in every disciplinary setting. To the contrary, judicial decisions have recognized that progressive discipline is not a necessary consideration when . . . the misconduct is severe, when it is unbecoming to the employee's position or renders the employee unsuitable for continuation in the position, or when application of the principle would be contrary to the public interest.

In the matter of In re Stallworth, 208 N.J. 182 (2011), a Camden County pump-station operator was charged with falsifying records and abusing work hours, and the ALJ imposed removal. The Commission modified the penalty to a four-month suspension and the appellate court reversed. The Court re-examined the principle of progressive discipline. Acknowledging that progressive discipline has been bypassed where the conduct is sufficiently egregious, the Court noted that "there must be fairness and generally proportionate discipline imposed for similar offenses." Id. at 193. Finding that the totality of an employee's work history, with emphasis on the "reasonably recent past," should be considered to assure proper progressive discipline, the Court modified and affirmed (as modified) the lower court and remanded the matter to the Commission for reconsideration.

In deciding what penalty is appropriate, the courts have looked toward the concept of progressive discipline. In Bock, supra, 38 N.J. at 523-24, The New Jersey Supreme Court held that evidence of a past disciplinary record, including the nature, number, and proximity of prior instances of misconduct, can be considered in determining the appropriate penalty. Also, where an employee's misconduct is sufficiently egregious, removal may be warranted and need not be preceded by progressive penalties. In re Hall, 335 N.J. Super. 45 (App. Div. 2000), certif. denied, 167 N.J. 629 (2001); Golaine v. Cardinale, 142 N.J. Super. 385, 397 (Law Div. 1976), aff'd, 163 N.J. Super. 453 (App. Div. 1978), certif. denied, 79 N.J. 497 (1979).

The penalty imposed must not be so disproportionate to the offense and the mitigating circumstances that the decision is arbitrary and unreasonable.

In the instant matter, Appellant has a substantial disciplinary history. She has three verbal warnings for insubordination in 2010. She has a verbal warning for excessive lateness in 2010. She has two written warnings for insubordination in 2011. She was suspended for thirty days on September 29, 2011, for insubordination, conduct unbecoming a public employee, and other sufficient cause. She was suspended for sixty working days on October 10, 2012, for insubordination and conduct unbecoming a public employee. She was suspended five days on May 20, 2016, for her behavior on May 17, 2016.

Based upon the above authorities, I CONCLUDE that progressive discipline should apply. The question remains whether removal is warranted, or that a lesser penalty be imposed.

Unless the penalty is unreasonable, arbitrary, or offensively excessive, it should be permitted to stand. Ducher v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 7 N.J. Super. 156 (App. Div. 1950). Appellant's entire record of performance must be considered when attempting to determine if the judgment of the appointing authority was unreasonable, arbitrary or capricious. See Bock, supra, 38 N.J. 500.

A court should overturn a final agency decision "in the absence of a showing that it was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, or that it lacked fair support in the evidence." In re Carter, 191 N.J. 474, 482 (2007) (quoting Campbell v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 39 N.J. 556, 562 (1963)). As the Court observed in Carter, a reviewing panel:

> must defer to an agency's expertise and superior knowledge of a particular field. Although an appellate court is "in no way bound by the agency's interpretation of a statute or its determination of a strictly legal issue," if substantial evidence supports the agency's decision, "a court may not substitute its own judgment for the agency's even though the court might have reached a different result."

I CONCLUDE that the respondent has proved by a preponderance of the credible evidence that that appellant was guilty of the charge of insubordination, conduct unbecoming a public employee and other sufficient cause set forth in the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action.

I further CONCLUDE that the penalty of removal is neither arbitrary, unreasonable nor offensively excessive, and therefore should be upheld.

THIS MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT, made and executed this ___ day of February, 2017, by and between the City of Paterson (hereafter referred to as the "City") and Bijoy Rodriguez (hereafter "Rodriguez"), represents the full and final understanding between the City and Rodriguez concerning disciplinary charges brought against Rodriguez by the City dated September 12, 2016.

1. Based upon the unique circumstances of this case and the miscommunication between counsel, the City agrees to modify the disciplinary penalty imposed in the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated December 6, 2016 from termination to a six (6) month suspension without pay beginning with the first day of his termination and served continuously until completed.

2. Rodriguez accepts the disciplinary penalty of a six (6) month suspension without pay beginning with the first day of his termination and served continuously until completed.

However, the sole issue at the administrative disciplinary hearing shall be whether the alleged misconduct occurred. If the said alleged misconduct is substantiated, Rodriguez consents to a penalty of termination. If Rodriguez does not request a hearing within the requisite five (5) calendar day period as set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.5(c), after

The parties and the Union agree that the terms of this Agreement are specific to the facts and circumstances of this particular action and binding only as to this matter.

6. MODIFICATION

This Agreement may be modified or amended only by a written instrument duly signed by each of the parties or their respective successors or assigns.

10. SEVERABILITY

Should any of the provisions of this Agreement be declared or determined by a court to be illegal or invalid, the validity of the remaining parts, terms, or provisions shall not be affected thereby and said illegal or invalid part, term or provision shall be deemed not to be a part of this Agreement.

(ON REMAND OAL DKT. NO. CSV 13733-13)

FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: MAY 17 2017 BW

The appeal of Nadeyah Sarmad, Family Service Specialist II, Department of Children and Families, release at the end of the working test period, was heard by Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Leland S. McGee, who rendered his initial decision on May 2, 2017. No exceptions were filed.

Having considered the record and the ALJ's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission, at its meeting on May 17, 2017, accepted and adopted all of the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision with the exception of the following. The Commission does not adopt the ALJ's references in the initial decision and order regarding charges of insubordination. The inclusion of those references appears to have been included in error.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in releasing the appellant at the end of the working test period was justified. The Commission therefore affirms that action and dismisses the appeal of Nadeyah Sarmad.

Re: Nadeyah Sarmad

Record Closed: June 27, 2016 Decided: May 2, 2017

BEFORE LELAND S. MCGEE, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner is a former Family Service Specialist II with the Department of Children and Families. She was released at the end of her working test period effective September 9, 2013, following an unsatisfactory rating for the second half of the probationary period. Petitioner appealed this action to the Civil Service Commission (CSC) which transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). A hearing was scheduled in the matter for July 14, 2014. Neither Petitioner nor her union representative appeared at the hearing, nor did they attempt to contact the OAL. Based upon their absence, the OAL issued a "Failure to Appear" notice. On July 16, 2014, this matter was returned to the Commission for a Final Decision, with a notice giving the parties thirteen days to present any reason for the failure to appear.

On July 28, 2014, Petitioner submitted a request for reinstatement of her appeal and Respondent filed an objection to same. On October 1, 2014, the Commission concluded that it would be unjust to deny Petitioner a hearing on the merits of her appeal and remanded the matter to the OAL for hearing. On October 3, 2014, the Remand was transmitted to the OAL.

Hearings in this matter were held on August 6, 2015, October 26, 2015, and January 7, 2016. Post-hearing submissions were filed on or about June 2016 and the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The following background facts are undisputed. Accordingly, I FIND them to be the FACTS of this case.

On February 27, 2012, Petitioner was hired as a Family Service Specialist (FSS) Trainee with DCF, Division of Child Protection and Permanency. When hired, she entered into an extensive Pre-Service Training Program in which Petitioner received classroom training on how to complete the essential job functions of a Family Service Specialist. The Pre-Service Training included instructions in family engagement, safety and risk assessment, case documentation, and learning how to detect the signs of child abuse and neglect. Petitioner was also instructed on Departmental policies, practices, and procedures. In addition to classroom instruction, Petitioner received hands-on field experience by serving as a "buddy" or "shadowing" experienced FSS's on the job.

On March 9, 2013, Petitioner entered her Working Test Period for the title of Family Service Specialist II and was subjected to a WTP of four months. The WTP was extended during which time she received four progress reports. On three of the reports Petitioner received an "unsatisfactory" rating.

Credibility Determinations

In assessing a witness's credibility, an Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) must consider his/her testimony in "light of its rationality or internal consistency and the manner in which it hangs together with other evidence." Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). A fact finder may reject a witness's testimony "when it is contrary to circumstances given in evidence or contains inherent improbabilities or contradictions which alone or in connection with other circumstances in evidence excite suspicion as to its truth." In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514, 521-22 (1950); see Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958) (rejecting testimony "inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience" or "overborne by other testimony."); D'Amato by McPherson v. D'Amato, 305 N.J. Super. 109, 115 (App. Div. 1997). An ALJ may consider the "interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness" but "where such choice is reasonably made, it is conclusive on appeal." State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div. 1952); Renan Realty Corp. v. State, Dep't of Cmty. Affairs, 182 N.J. Super. 415, 421 (App. Div. 1981).

The evidence must "be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to the given conclusion." Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263, 275 (1958.) Greater weight of credible evidence in the case – preponderance – depends not only on the number of witnesses, but "greater convincing power to our minds." State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47, 49 (1975). Similarly, credible testimony "must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness, but it must be credible in itself." Perrone, supra, 5 N.J. at 522.

Here, Petitioner does not dispute that she received unsatisfactory PAR reviews. In fact, in her letter of appeal, Petitioner outlined the specific corrective action that she developed for each of her "deficiencies." Her assertion is that Respondent failed to properly train her, failed to adequately supervise and support her, and placed her in a position of having to perform duties that a more seasoned staff person would be required to perform. Petitioner acknowledged that Supervisor Krauser did offer "some" assistance by going into the field with her did some of her monthly visits for her and, as was common practice, had other workers complete some of her monthly visits. There were five (5) cases that he helped her to close. Petitioner acknowledged that Krauser gave her good advice about how to handle cases and how to manage time to reduce time required for some cases. One of her colleagues, Biatrice Reyes, was also very helpful and knowledgeable.

Respondent does not dispute that it was understaffed and was operating under a Modified Settlement Agreement (MSA). Respondent was required to adjust staff to meet the directives of the MSA. Respondent acknowledged that it had supervisors with six (6) workers, in violation of the MSA standard of not more than five (5) workers per supervisor. In fact, when Petitioner came into the permanency unit, Krauser was the supervisor for the litigation unit as well and therefore, supervised a total of eleven (11) workers. Conflicting and irreconcilable testimony requires credibility determinations, based on the totality of the evidence, prior to making findings as to the disputed facts. In re Final Agency Decision of Bd. of Exam'rs of Elec. Contractors, 356 N.J. Super. 42 (App. Div. 2002). The basic facts of this case are not in dispute.

I FIND the testimony of both parties' witnesses was credible.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Applicable Standard

The Civil Service Act and the implementing regulations govern the rights and duties of public employees. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to 12-6; N.J.A.C. 4A:1-1.1 to 4A:10-3.2. An employee who commits a wrongful act related to his or her duties or who gives other just cause may be subject to major discipline. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-6, 11A:2-20; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2, -2.3(a). In a civil service disciplinary case, the employer bears the burden of sufficient, competent and credible evidence of facts essential to the charge. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-6(a)(2), -21; N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c); N.J.A.C. 1:1-2.1, "burden of proof"; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4. That burden is to establish by a preponderance of the competent, relevant, and credible evidence that the employee is guilty as charged. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982).

Civil Service matters are governed by N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.3(b), which places upon the employee the burden of proving that a termination following a working test period was a decision reached by the appointing authority in bad faith.

The purpose of the working test period is to give an appointing authority the opportunity to determine whether an employee satisfactorily performs the duties of a particular job. A working test period is part of the examination process. The Civil Service Commission shall provide for:

a. A working test period following regular appointment of four months, which may be extended to six months at the discretion of the commission, except that the working test period for political subdivision employees shall be three months and the working test period for entry level law enforcement, correction officer, and firefighter titles shall be 12 months;

b. Progress reports to be made by the appointing authority and provided to the employee at such times during the working test period as provided by rules of the commission and a final progress report at the end of the entire working test period shall be provided to the employee and the commission;

c. Termination of an employee at the end of the working test period and termination of an employee for cause during the working test period; and

d. The retention of permanent status in the lower title by a promoted employee during the working test period in the higher title and the right to return to such permanent title if the employee does not satisfactorily complete the working test period, but employees removed for cause during a working test period shall not be so returned.

[N.J.A.C. 11A:4-15.]

The working test period shall begin on the date of regular appointment and in State service, shall extend for a period of four months of active service, which the Commissioner may extend on request of an appointing authority for an additional two months. Such request should be submitted to the Department of Personnel at least five working days before the end of the four-month period. The appointing authority shall notify the employee of the extension in writing on or before the last day of the four-month period.

N.J.A.C. 4A:4-5.2(b)(2)

After evaluating the testimony and supporting evidence, I CONCLUDE that no bad faith existed here. There was "no evidence of furtive design, ill will or other illicit motivation" in any of Petitioner's progress reports. It is evident that the agency was insufficiently staffed, which may also have led to management and organizational challenges. There is no evidence that the burden of those problems was directed at Petitioner. I have every reason to believe that all of the staff bore the burden of the management and organizational problems that Respondent experienced at the time and there is no evidence that Petitioner's experience was the result of any misdeeds or bad faith. The standard of review for this court is not whether the agency was mismanaged or whether it operated in compliance with the MSA. The issue in this case was whether Respondent acted in bad faith when it terminated Petitioner in bad faith. Perhaps if Petitioner had applied for the position and gone through the training for the position at a time when the agency was at full staff, she would have had a different result. That I cannot predict. However, the evidence presented here indicates a strained operation and an unfortunate circumstance for Petitioner but does not indicate bad faith.

I further CONCLUDE that there is no evidence to support a charge of insubordination by Petitioner.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the decision of the appointing authority to terminate Petitioner following the end of her working test period is hereby AFFIRMED.

I further ORDER that the determination that Petitioner is guilty of insubordination against Petitioner is hereby REVERSED.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, P.O. Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL Docket No. CSV 6715-16

REMAND TO THE OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

ISSUED: JUN 06 2017 (NFA)

The appeal of Shirley Shay, Omnibus Driver with Sussex County, Department of Human Services, of her removal, effective April 8, 2016, was before Administrative Law Judge Leland S. McGee (ALJ), who rendered his initial decision on May 11, 2017, reversing the removal. Exceptions were filed on behalf of the appointing authority.

Having considered the record and the ALJ's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting on June 6, 2017, did not adopt the recommendation to reverse the removal. Rather, the Commission remanded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL).

DISCUSSION

The pertinent procedural history of this matter is detailed in the ALJ's initial decision. At the OAL, based on a dispute as to whether the appellant had waived her departmental hearing, as indicated on the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA) issued on April 5, 2016, the ALJ issued an order on November 18, 2016 remanding the matter to the appointing authority for a departmental-level hearing[1] and subsequently issued the subject initial decision finding that the appointing authority improperly removed the appellant "as a result of such 'waiver' ". Upon its de novo review of this matter, the Commission does not agree.

[1] The appointing authority subsequently held the appellant's departmental hearing, upheld the charges and removal, and issued a new Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA) on May 4, 2017. That notice was also timely appealed by the appellant and shall be attached to this decision upon remand to be considered the FNDA upon which the OAL hearing should be based.

While a departmental-level hearing is an important procedural protection afforded to Civil Service employees, it is only an initial step in the procedural protections afforded to such employees. In this regard, employees are given the discretion to waive a departmental-level hearing without any abrogation of their rights to thereafter appeal a FNDA issued based on the waiver of a departmental hearing. In this matter, it appears that the ALJ disregarded the portion of the FNDA issued where it indicated that the appointing authority upheld the charges and removal of the appellant and rather, focused on the fact that the appointing authority indicated that the departmental hearing was "deemed" to be waived. While it was improper for the appointing authority to have "deemed" the appellant's departmental hearing waived, in doing so, and issuing the FNDA upholding the underlying charges, it appropriately afforded the appellant the ability to appeal that action to the Commission, an opportunity she took advantage of. Once the timely appeal of the appellant's removal from employment was transmitted by the Commission to the OAL, the only issues that should have been explored were the actual alleged substantive charges and specifications lodged against the appellant and whether the penalty imposed based on those alleged infractions was proper.

It is a well-settled principle that procedural deficiencies at the departmental level which are not significantly prejudicial to an appellant are deemed cured through the de novo hearing received at the OAL. See Ensslin v. Township of North Bergen, 275 N.J. Super. 352, 361 (App. Div. 1994), cert. denied, 142 N.J. 446 (1995); In re Darcy, 114 N.J. Super. 454 (App. Div. 1971). In this case, since the Commission granted the appellant a hearing on the merits of the allegations against her, there is no indication of significant prejudice. Accordingly, the Commission remands this matter back to the OAL for a hearing.

ORDER

The Commission orders that this matter be remanded to the OAL for further proceedings as set forth above.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 06715-16
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2016-3834

IN THE MATTER OF SHIRLEY SHAY, SUSSEX COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES,

Gary A. Kraemer, Esq., for petitioner (Daggett & Kraemer, attorneys)

James T. Prusinowski, Esq., for respondent (Trimboli & Prusinowski, attorneys)

Record closed: December 19, 2016 May 11, 2017

BEFORE LEELAND S. MCGEE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Sussex County Department of Health and Human Services (Respondent or County) brings a major disciplinary action against Shirley Shay (Shay or Petitioner). Petitioner appeals the determination that respondent was unable to proceed with a disciplinary hearing because Petitioner's attorney refused to recuse himself from representing Petitioner due to a conflict of interest. Further, Petitioner appeals the determination that she waived her right to a departmental hearing by way of such refusal. Finally, Petitioner appeals the determination to terminate her as a result of the "waiver" of her right to a departmental hearing.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On December 1, 2015, respondent served petitioner with a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (PNDA) that noted an immediate removal. Petitioner requested an internal disciplinary hearing, which was not held. On April 17, 2016, a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA) was approved and served upon Petitioner by way of certified mail. The FNDA sustained the charges and the removal was upheld. Petitioner filed a timely request for an appeal of the FNDA.

On May 3, 2016, the New Jersey Civil Service Commission, Division of Appeals and Regulatory Affairs, transmitted the within matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On June 6, 2016, a prehearing conference was held. A subsequent prehearing conference was held on June 28, 2016, at which time a procedural schedule was established. On July 22, 2016, the parties filed a Joint Statement of Undisputed Facts. On July 28, 2016, Respondent filed a Notice of Motion to Disqualify Petitioner's counsel and supporting Brief. On August 11, 2016, Petitioner filed an Answer to the Motion. On August 25, 2016, Respondent filed a Reply to the Answer. In September 2016, additional submissions were filed and Oral Argument was heard on October 26, 2016.

On November 18, 2016, the undersigned issued an Order Reversing the decision of Respondent to terminate Petitioner and remanded the matter to the Respondent for a hearing. On November 28, 2016, Respondent filed a Request for Interlocutory Review to the Director of the Office of Administrative Law. On December 1, 2016, Petitioner filed an Answer to the Request. On December 13, 2016, Respondent filed a Reply to the Answer. On December 19, 2016, the Director of the Office of Administrative Law issued an Order Denying Request for Interlocutory Review and the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

On July 22, 2016, the parties filed a Joint Statement of Undisputed Facts. Therefore, I FIND the following to be the FACTS of this case:

1. On or about December 1, 2015, Sussex County (the appointing authority) served a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action seeking the removal of the Petitioner, Shirley Shay, from her position as a bus driver with the County Transportation Program. (A true and accurate copy of the Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action was attached in the Stipulation as "Exhibit A.")
2. The Petitioner disputed the allegations in the Preliminary Notice, and submitted a timely request for a hearing. (A true and accurate copy of correspondence from Gary Kraemer, Esq. dated December 1, 2015, was attached in the Stipulation as "Exhibit B.") The hearing request also requested that the County furnish relevant documentary evidence in discovery. (Ibid.)
3. On January 20, 2016, a hearing was scheduled for February 9, 2016. (A true and accurate copy of correspondence from James Prusinowski, Esq. dated January 20, 2016, was attached in the Stipulation as "Exhibit C.") No discovery material had been furnished at that point.
4. On January 28, 2016, James Prusinowski, Esq. sent a letter to Petitioner's counsel (Mr. Kraemer) suggesting that the firm of Daggett & Kraemer be disqualified because it was also representing Carol Novrit, the Sussex County Director of the Division of Social Services, in a separate lawsuit filed against the County of Sussex. (A true and accurate copy of correspondence from James Prusinowski, Esq. dated January 28, 2016, was attached in the Stipulation as "Exhibit D.")
5. Ms. Novrit currently has a complaint pending in Superior Court against the County making various allegations concerning her employment with the County, including a claim that the County failed to promote her to the position of County Business Administrator. Ms. Novrit is represented by George Daggett of the law firm of Daggett & Kraemer. Mr. Kraemer is not an attorney for the Novrit litigation against the County and has not met with Ms. Novrit regarding the specifics of the litigation.
6. As the Division Director, Ms. Novrit oversees the operations for Transit and the bus drivers.

7. In this capacity, Ms. Novrit was involved in review of the factual claims that led up to the disciplinary action being preferred against Ms. Shay and in requesting that disciplinary action be taken against Ms. Shay. Specifically, during the internal investigation of charges against Ms. Shay, John Jackson, Program Coordinator for Sussex County Skylands Ride, performed the initial fact gathering. He presented the information to Ms. Novrit, for administrative decision, as indicated in the memorandum drafted by Ms. Novrit regarding the investigation and request/recommendation for disciplinary action to be taken. (A true and accurate copy of a memorandum from Ms. Novrit dated November 20, 2015, was attached in the Stipulation as "Exhibit E.") As indicated in the memo, Ms. Novrit reviewed documents and information related to Ms. Shay's alleged actions. Based upon this review, Ms. Novrit requested that disciplinary action be taken against Ms. Shay.

8. Ms. Novrit personally met with Ms. Shay on December 1, 2015, in her office in Newton, New Jersey. Ms. Shay, Ms. Novrit, and Mr. Jackson were present for the meeting. In the course of the meeting Ms. Shay received her termination notice and the Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action. The parties disagree regarding the content of the discussion on December 1, 2016. The County contends that Ms. Novrit questioned Ms. Shay about her job performance and/or failure to perform her duties properly, which are the subject of this disciplinary action. The County also contends that Ms. Shay initially responded by claiming that she had completed all trips as indicated in the driver's manifest, but then, when Ms. Shay was confronted with conflicting GPS, she stated that the passenger in question requested to be dropped off at different locations. Finally, the County contends that Ms. Shay offered to call that passenger and "straighten things out." Ms. Shay contends that no interview or interrogation took place prior to Ms. Novrit handing her the Preliminary Notice and telling her that she was being terminated. The County plans to rely upon the information it contends was presented to Ms. Shay and by Ms. Novrit during the alleged interview as part of its case in chief to support the disciplinary charges it has preferred. The County has identified Mr. Jackson and Ms. Novrit as necessary witnesses for Ms. Shay's hearing.

9. Ms. Novrit authored the memorandum to Sarah Balzano, Administrator of the Department of Social Services, dated November 20, 2015, that triggered Ms. Shay's termination. (Exhibit E.)

10. Ms. Novrit, is the Director for the Division of Social Services, the highest position within the Division. The County has identified her as part of its control group and anticipates that Ms. Novrit will attend the OAL hearing as the County representative, as she has done for other employees charged with disciplinary action in her Division.

11. In a telephone conversation between Mr. Kraemer and Mr. Prusinowski, Mr. Kraemer said that he saw Ms. Novrit at the County reorganization meeting on January 1, 2016. In addition to exchanging pleasantries it was mentioned that the disciplinary charges had been preferred against Ms. Shay and Mr. Kraemer was representing Ms. Shay in the case. At that time, Mr. Kraemer stated that he did not believe a conflict existed based upon Ms. Novrit being represented by his firm and his representation of Ms. Shay in the disciplinary action.

12. Mr. Kraemer responded to Mr. Prusinowski's letter of January 28, 2016, with a letter dated February 4, 2016, indicating that allegations of a conflict of interest are insufficient, and that in order to assess the assertion of conflict properly, counsel would need to review the discovery materials that had been previously requested (but still not provided). He would also need a proffer of expected testimony from Ms. Novrit to gauge whether the asserted conflict was real or fanciful. (A true and accurate copy of correspondence from Gary Kraemer, Esq. dated February 4, 2016, was attached in the Stipulation as "Exhibit F".)

13. The hearing date of February 9, 2016, was adjourned pending resolution of the alleged conflict issue. (A true and accurate copy of correspondence from James Prusinowski, Esq. dated February 5, 2016, was attached in the Stipulation as "Exhibit G.")

14. On February 25, 2016, the County provided a response to Mr. Kraemer, setting forth the factual basis for its claim that a conflict of interest precludes Mr. Kraemer's participation in this matter. (A true and accurate copy of correspondence from James Prusinowski, Esq. dated February 25, 2016, was attached in the Stipulation as "Exhibit H.") Specifically, the County explained that a fatal conflict of interest is present where an attorney has to cross-examine a client of his firm. In support of its claim that Ms. Novrit is a necessary witness in this matter, the County produced Ms. Novrit's memorandum regarding the charges and investigation leading up to the disciplinary charges. (Exhibit E.) In light of the conflict of interest, the County deemed it was not permissible to provide the discovery requested by Mr. Kraemer.

15. On March 10, 2016, Mr. Kraemer wrote to Mr. Prusinowski, urging that from both factual and legal standpoints the conflict asserted by the appointing authority was baseless. (A true and accurate copy of correspondence from Mr. Kraemer, Esq. dated March 10, 2016 was attached in the Stipulation as "Exhibit I.")

16. There was no reply from Mr. Prusinowski or further communication between counsel.

17. Due to the parties' disagreement regarding whether an impermissible conflict of interest exists, the County took the position that it was unable to proceed with the disciplinary hearing. On April 7, 2016, the County served the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action upon Shay, which stated that she "waived her right to a departmental hearing by way of her counsel refusing to recuse himself based upon an actual non-waivable conflict of interest." (A true and accurate copy of the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated April 5, 2016, was attached in the Stipulation as "Exhibit J.")

18. The Appointing Authority provided no prior notice to Petitioner that a decision to continue with Mr. Kraemer as her attorney would be deemed a waiver of her right to the hearing she had requested on the disciplinary charges.

19. This appeal followed.

20. Mr. Kraemer has informed the Court that he will no longer be part of the firm Daggett & Kraemer as of September 1, 2016. Mr. Kraemer has also stated that his office would remain in the same building, which is owned by Mr. Daggett, and Mr. Kraemer plans to lease office space from Mr. Daggett.

21. Counsel for the parties stipulate that for the purpose of the instant motion that the exhibits attached hereto are true and accurate copies of the originals.

22. On or about September 1, 2016, Kraemer submitted a copy of the State of New Jersey Business Registration Certificate indicating the business registration for his new law firm of Kraemer & Corazza; a copy of the New Jersey Division of Revenue Request for Registration Information indicating a change in business ownership from Daggett & Kraemer to Kraemer and Corazza; a copy of the letterhead for Kraemer & Corazza; a copy of the State of New Jersey Business Registration Certificate indicating the business registration of the Law Offices of George T. DISCUSSION

The civil service laws "are designed to promote efficient public service, not benefit errant employees. The welfare of the people as a whole, and not exclusively the welfare of the civil servant, is the basic policy underlining the statutory scheme." State-Operated School Dist. Of City of Newark v. Gaines, 309 N.J. Super. 327, 334 (App. Div. 1998). Public employees' rights and duties are governed and protected by the provisions of the Civil Service Act, N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to 12-6, and the regulations promulgated pursuant thereto, N.J.A.C. 4A:1-1.1 to 4A:2-6.2. An appointing authority may only discipline an employee for incompetency, inefficiency or failure to perform duties; inability to perform duties; neglect of duty; or other sufficient cause. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)

The New Jersey Civil Service Law protects classified employees from arbitrary dismissal and other onerous sanctions. Prosecutor's Detectives and Investigators Ass'n v. Hudson County Bd. of Freeholders, 130 N.J. Super. 30, 41 (App. Div. 1974); Scancarella v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 24 N.J. Super. 65, 70 (App. Div. 1952). The law provides relief to civil service employees from public employers who may attempt to deprive them of their rights. Prosecutor's, supra, 130 N.J. Super. at 41. To this end, the law is liberally construed. Mastrobattista v. Essex County Park Comm'n, 46 N.J. 138, 147 (1965). Consistent with this policy of civil service law, there is a requirement that in order for a public employee to be fined, suspended or removed, the employer must show just cause for its proposed action. The Merit System Board is charged with the duty of ensuring that the reasons supporting disciplinary action are sufficient and not arbitrary, frivolous, or "likely to subvert the basic aim of the civil service program." Prosecutor's, supra, 130 N.J. Super. at 42 (quoting Kennedy v. Newark, 178 N.J. 190 (1959)).

Before an employee may be disciplined, he/she must be served with a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (PNDA) setting forth the charges and a statement of facts to support the charges prior to imposing major discipline. Specificity of the factual allegations is not merely a technical requirement, but rather a fundamental attribute of due process. Fabian v. Town of N. Bergen, CSV 3198-97, Initial Decision (August 24, 2998), adopted, MSB (October 14, 1998), http:njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/. Specifically, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.5 provides:

> 1. An employee may be suspended immediately and prior to a hearing where it is determined that the employee is unfit for duty or is a hazard to any person if permitted to remain on the job, or that an immediate suspension is necessary to maintain safety, health, order or effective direction of public services. An employee who has been appointed on or after September 1, 2011, who does not have a principal residence in New Jersey and who has not received a residency exemption in accordance with P.L. 2011, c. 70, within one year of appointment, is defined by that statute as illegally holding and unqualified for employment, and therefore subject to immediate suspension as unfit for duty. However, a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action with opportunity for a hearing must be served in person or by certified mail within five days following the immediate suspension.
> 2. An employee may be suspended immediately when the employee is formally charged with a crime of the first, second or third degree, or a crime of the fourth degree on the job or directly related to the job. See N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.7.

If sufficient cause is established, then a determination must be made on what is a reasonable penalty. In attempting to determine if a penalty is reasonable, the employee's past record may be reviewed for guidance in determining the appropriate penalty for the current specific offense. The concept of progressive disciplinary action is described in West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962). In Bock, the Court found the six-month suspension of a town fireman, on charges of being tardy three times in the previous four weeks, was a proper penalty. Furthermore, Bock explains an appropriate remedy should be related to the employee's past record including service ratings, promotions, commendations, and "formally adjudicated disciplinary actions as well as instances of misconduct informally adjudicated by having been called to employee's attention or admitted by him." Id. at 186. This Court has also found "the purpose of the imposition of penalty in a Civil Service proceeding is threefold. It is designed to deter, rehabilitate and punish the wrongdoer." Forand v. S. Woods State Prison, CSV 6334-99, Initial Decision (May 24, 2000), adopted, Comm'r (August 4, 200), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/final/csv06334-99.pdf>.

An appeal concerning violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.5, maybe presented to the Civil Commission through a petition for interim relief. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.5(e). Upon the filing of an appeal, a party to the appeal may petition the Civil Service Commission for a stay or other relief pending final decision of the matter. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.2. Further, an application for emergency relief shall be made directly to the agency head and may not be made to the Office of Administrative Law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6 (emphasis added).

In the present case, the County served Petitioner with a PNDA seeking her removal from her position as a bus driver with the County Transportation Program on December 1, 2015. Petitioner submitted a timely request for a hearing and a hearing was scheduled for February 9, 2016. Both parties, collectively, decided to adjourn the February 9, 2016, hearing date in order to resolve the alleged conflict issue. The letter requesting the adjournment stated "I hope to have these procedural issues resolved shortly and the parties will contact you at that point to schedule a new date for the hearing." (Respondent's brief, Exhibit G.) However, due to the parties' disagreement regarding whether an impermissible conflict of interest existed, Respondent took the position that it was unable to proceed with the disciplinary hearing. On April 7, 2016, the County served Petitioner the FNDA, which stated that Petitioner had waived her right to a departmental hearing by way of her counsel refusing to recuse himself based upon a non-waivable conflict of interest.

As stated above, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.5, an employee must be afforded the opportunity to have a hearing prior to imposition of major discipline. The only exception is if the employee is unfit for duty or would be a hazard to any person if permitted to remain on the job or that an immediate suspension is necessary to maintain safety, health, order or effective direction of public services. Here, this was not the case. The parties, agreed to adjourn the hearing in order the resolve the conflict issue. However, the County unilaterally decided that Petitioner waived her right to a hearing by way of her counsel refusing to recuse himself. This is not an exception to the right to have a hearing as proscribed by N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.5.

The factual basis for issuing the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA) was,

> The subject employee waived her right to a departmental hearing by way of her counsel refusing to recuse himself based upon an actual non-waivable conflict of interest due to concurrent representation of the County's witness.
> The County objected to counsel's representation of the subject employee because of the conflict of interest by correspondence dated January 28, 2016, and February 25, 2016. By letter date[d] March 10, 2016, the subject employee's counsel refused to withdraw from representation. Therefore, the departmental hearing is deemed waived.

The facts that formed the basis for terminating Petitioner had nothing to do with Petitioner's conduct. It was not related to the specifically enumerated bases for imposing major discipline pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a). The factual basis articulated in the FNDA does not comport with any of the exceptions to an employee's right to an opportunity for a departmental hearing. Further the penalty of "termination" is not a reasonable penalty to impose upon an employee for the facts set forth in the FNDA. I am not persuaded that the purpose of the imposition of a penalty in a Civil Service proceeding has been met in this case: "to deter, rehabilitate and punish the wrongdoer." Forand, supra, CSV 6334-99, Initial Decision (May 24, 2000), adopted, Comm'r (August 4, 2000), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/final/csv06334-99.pdf>. The "wrongdoer" in the present case is not Petitioner. There is absolutely no connection between the purpose for issuing the FNDA and the penalty imposed upon Petitioner. Additionally, the County did not provide any notice to Petitioner that her decision to continue with Mr. Kraemer as her attorney would be deemed a waiver of her right to the hearing that she requested on the disciplinary charges.

I note that Director Sanders denied Respondent's request for Interlocutory Review in part because, in the second paragraph of the Request, Respondent acknowledged that it does not challenge that, under the Rules of Professional Conduct, Petitioner's attorney is not prohibited from representing her.

Petitioner had a right to a hearing before the FNDA was issued and such right was not afforded to her.

CONCLUSIONS

For the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that Respondent improperly determined that Petitioner waived her right to a departmental hearing by way of her attorney's failure to recuse himself.

I further CONCLUDE that Respondent improperly terminated Petitioner from her employment as a result of such "waiver."

I further I CONCLUDE that Respondent improperly denied Petitioner the right to a departmental hearing prior to issuing the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action.

I further CONCLUDE that the appropriate procedure was for Petitioner was to seek interim relief from the Civil Service Commission regarding the conflict of interest issues.

In the Matter of County Correction Captain (PC1189P) and County Correction Lieutenant (PC1202P), Hudson County	:	FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION
CSC Docket No. 2017-2783	:	Court Remand

ISSUED: JUN 12 2017

The Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, has reversed and remanded the attached December 3, 2014 final decision of the Civil Service Commission (Commission) for further proceedings consistent with its decision.

The facts of this matter are thoroughly discussed in the attached decision. See In the Matter of County Correction Captain (PC1189P) and County Lieutenant (PC1202P), Hudson County (CSC, decided December 3, 2014). Maria Gaines, Helen Ford, Robert Kalb and Luis Oyola asserted that certain candidates for the PC1202P and PC1189P examinations did not meet the requisite year in grade requirement by the November 21, 2012 closing date. Specifically, they claimed that Christopher D'Andrea, Timothea Gabriel, Rene Felix, Miguel Matos, Paul Morales, Sharonda Murrell and Michael Ripp did not meet the time in grade requirement for PC1202P; and that Michael Conrad, John Geoghegan and Christopher Yurecko did not meet the time in grade requirement for PC1189P. The County indicated that due to implementation of a policy, these individuals received appointment dates effective August 6, 2011 for record purposes[1] but did not begin serving in their respective titles until March 23, 2012. The Commission determined that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:4-2.6(a)1, Messrs. D'Andrea, Felix, Matos, Morales and Ripp and Mses. Gabriel and Murrell must have actually served in and performed the duties of the County Correction Sergeant title during the requisite one-year period in order to be eligible for the PC1202P exam and that Messrs. Conrad, Geoghegan and Yurecko must have actually served in and performed the duties of the County Correction Lieutenant title in order to be eligible for the PC1189P exam. The Commission further determined that since these individuals did not did not perform the duties of their respective titles until March 2012, the appointing authority, in effect, inappropriately provided them with retroactive appointment dates.[2] However, the Commission noted that the appointing authority could have requested that the year in grade requirement be reduced to the completion of the working test period, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:4-2.6(g)3, at time of the subject announcements. Further, since the affected individuals applied and sat for the subject examinations based on good faith understanding that they were eligible and the basic tenet of the Civil Service Act is that appointments and promotions be awarded based on merit and fitness which is measured by competitive examinations, increasing the applicant pool by three eligibles for the PC1189P exam and by eight eligibles for the PC1202P exam did not negatively impact those applicants who were originally eligible without waiving the time in-grade requirement. Accordingly, the Commission determined, based on equitable grounds, to reduce the one-year service requirement for the County Correction Captain (PC1189P), Hudson County, and County Correction Lieutenant (PC1202P), Hudson County, examinations to the completion of the working test period for County Correction Lieutenant and County Correction Sergeant, respectively.

Thereafter, Mses. Gaines and Ford and Messrs. Kalb and Oyola, represented by Matthew R. Curran, Esq., pursued an appeal with the Appellate Division. In In the Matter of County Correction Captain (PC1189P) and County Lieutenant (PC1202P), Hudson County, Docket No. A-2162-14T3 (App. Div. March 9, 2017), the court reversed the decision of the Commission and ordered that Messrs. D'Andrea, Felix, Matos, Morales, Ripp and Yurecko and Mses. Gabriel and Murrell be removed from the PC1202P eligible list and Messrs. Conrad, Geoghegan and Yurecko be removed from the PC1189P eligible list. Specifically, the court found that retroactively amending the subject announcements to the completion of the working test period was contrary to Commission regulations and was not a reasonable application of legislative policies. In this regard, the court found that absent evidence that the affected individuals had successfully completed their working test periods, it could not be presumed that they did so. The court concluded that such a presumption was contrary to the requirements and purpose of working test periods.

[2] As a result, the Commission determined that Messrs. D'Andrea, Felix, Matos, Morales, Ripp and Mses. Gabriel and Murrell should receive regular appointment dates of March 23, 2012 to the County Correction Sergeant title; and Messrs. Conrad, Geoghegan and Yurecko should receive regular appointments to the County Correction Lieutenant title effective March 23, 2012.

In addition, the court determined that the announced requirements could not be retroactively reduced and the affected individuals' good faith understanding that they were eligible was undermined by the fact that the appointing authority recorded their August 6, 2011 appointment dates but that the individuals were aware that they did not serve in their respective titles until March 23, 2012. Finally, the court found that "competition is not the sole 'philosophy and public policy behind the Civil Service Act'" [citation omitted].

During the pendency of this matter in the Appellate Division, the first and only certification of the County Correction Captain (PC1189P) list was issued on July 22, 2015 (Certification No. PL150840) containing the names of the eligible appearing at ranks 1 through 8. In disposing of the certification, the appointing authority appointed the eligibles appearing at ranks 1 through 3, i.e., Messrs. Geoghegan, Yurecko and Conrad, effective November 28, 2015. In addition, the first and only certification of the County Correction Lieutenant (PC1202P) list was issued on July 15, 2015 (Certification No. PL150829) containing the names of the eligibles appearing at ranks 1 through 10. In disposing of the certification, the appointing authority appointed the eligibles appearing at ranks 1 through 5, i.e., Messrs. Matos, Morales, Ripp, D'Andrea and Ms. Murrell, effective November 28, 2015. Regarding the appellants, it is noted that Ms. Gaines retired effective June 1, 2015, Mr. Oyola effective July 1, 2016 and Mr. Kalb effective December 1, 2016.

By letter dated April 3, 2017, all of the parties to this matter were provided with the opportunity to supplement the record with any additional information and argument that they wanted the Commission to consider.

Ms. Ford requests that she receive a retroactive appointment to the County Correction Lieutenant title effective November 30, 2015 and be granted back pay. Ms. Gaines and Messrs. Kalb and Oyola request that they "receive retroactive promotions as of November 30, 2015 and back pay from November 30, 2015 to the date of their retirement so that their pension benefits can be adjusted accordingly." In support of their appeal, they submit additional documentation including: an email sent March 13, 2017 from Ms. Gaines to Mr. Curran; an email sent March 28, 2014 from Ms. Gaines to DARA staff; an email sent July 9, 2014 from Ms. Gaines to Abe Antun, Hudson County Administrator; and an email sent July 24, 2015 from Ms. Gaines to "jmaldonado@hcnj.us."

In response, the County presents "the potential remedies available to the Commission in addressing the unique circumstances attributable to this case." Specifically, the County indicates, with regard to the retirees, that it "is amenable to retroactively promoting those eligible individuals, who were on the promotional list for lieutenants and captains, and retroactively paying them their lost pay for the period commencing on November 28, 2015 . . ." Regarding Messrs. Geoghegan, Yurecko and Conrad, the County proposes "keep[ing] [Mr.] Geoghegan in the post of captain" and allow Messrs. Yurecko and Conrad "to continue to serve in the position of captain" or appoint them provisionally to the County Correction Captain title and "issue a notice for a new promotional test." With regard to Messrs. Matos, Morales, Ripp, D'Andrea and Ms. Murrell, the County proposes demoting them and retroactively appointing other eligibles on the PC1202P list, including Ms. Ford. Finally, the County notes that since Mr. Felix and Ms. Gabriel are on the County Correction Lieutenant (PC2556T), Hudson County, eligible list, "no further action is needed as to them."

Mr. Geoghegan requests that an "email string . . . from myself to the [C]omission dated May 1, 2013" which "was not entered into the record during the original [C]omission appeal process" or at the Appellate Division be considered "to refute any inference that the applicants in question did not make earnest attempts to seek clarification from the [C]ommission on our eligibility to take the promotional exams prior to taking the promotional exams." In this regard, Mr. Geoghegan provides a copy of an email sent May 6, 2013 from Susan Mannix to Mr. Geoghegan regarding the eligibility of Mses. Gabriel and Murrell and Messrs. Conrad, D'Andrea, Felix, Geoghegan, Matos, Morales, Ripp and Yurecko for the PC1189P and PC1202P exams, respectively.

CONCLUSION

In remanding this matter, the Appellate Division ordered that the "appellants' request for removal of the Applicants from the August 22, 2013 promotional lists" be granted. As such, Messrs. Conrad, Geoghegan and Yurecko should be removed from the PC1189P eligible list and Messrs. D'Andrea, Felix, Matos, Morales, Ripp and Mses. Gabriel and Murrell should be removed from the PC1202P eligible list. Furthermore, as previously noted, some of these affected individuals received appointments to the County Correction Captain and County Correction Lieutenant titles, respectively. Accordingly, Messrs. Conrad, Geoghan and Yureko are to be returned to the County Correction Lieutenant title and Messrs. D'Andrea, Matos, Morales and Ripp and Ms. Murrell are to be returned to the County Correction Sergeant title. It is not clear from the record whether the County has vacancies available to accommodate the return of these individuals to the County Correction Lieutenant and County Correction Sergeant titles. In this regard, if the County does not have sufficient vacancies, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 4A:8, the County must utilize layoff procedures for any individuals who may be displaced. This includes implementing pre-layoff actions and filing a layoff plan with the Division of Agency Services. See N.J.A.C. 4A:8-1.3 and N.J.A.C. 4A:8-1.4.

With respect to the remedies proposed by the appellants and the County, it is noted that the Appellate Division did not mandate the appointment of the appellants or any other individuals. Rather, the Appellate Division only ordered the removal of the above noted individuals from the PC1189P and PC1202P promotional lists. Furthermore, regarding Ms. Gaines and Messrs. Kalb and Oyola, in order to achieve permanent appointment, an individual must successfully complete a working test period. See N.J.S.A. 11:4-15 and N.J.A.C. 4A:4-5.1. Given that these individuals have separated from employment, there is no opportunity for them to serve a working test period. Moreover, the Commission cannot assume, as noted by the court in this matter, that they would have successfully completed their respective working test periods as the County did not observe or evaluate any of them as evidenced by progress reports or performed the duties of the respective titles. Accordingly, it would be improper to provide Ms. Gaines and Messrs. Kalb and Oyola with "retroactive promotions." With respect to Ms. Ford, it is noted that she is the fourth ranked eligible on the County Correction Lieutenant (PC2556T), Hudson County, eligible list, which is set to expire on November 16, 2019. Should she receive an appointment to the County Correction Lieutenant title and successfully complete a working test period, she or the appointing authority may petition the Commission, upon the successful completion of her working test period, for a retroactive appointment date.

It is noted that the most recent announcements for County Correction Captain (PC2530T), Hudson County and County Correction Lieutenant (PC2556T), Hudson County, were issued on November 1, 2015 and closed November 21, 2015.[3] As noted previously, Certification No. PL150840 and Certification No. PL150829 were issued on July 22, 2015 and July 15, 2015, respectively. Those individuals whose names appeared on these certifications could have applied for the PC2530T or PC2556T exams, as appropriate. However, since their names were certified, they may not have determined it necessary to apply for these promotional exams. Given that those affected individuals who were appointed are now being returned to their prior titles, they should have the opportunity to be on these eligible lists. Based on the foregoing, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 4A:4-2.6(a)2, the PC2530T and PC2556T announcements were amended to permit an extended period for application filing[4] and eligible candidates filing timely applications were tested in the current cycle.[5]

[3] The resultant eligible lists promulgated on November 17, 2016 and are set to expire on November 16, 2019. It is noted that to date, no appointments have been made from the PC2530T or PC2556T lists and there are no current certifications pending. In addition, certification holds have been placed on these lists pending the scoring of any make-up examinations.

[4] The amended application filing deadline was April 24, 2017. It is noted that the requirements provided in the announcements remained unchanged and all applicants must have met the requirements as of the November 21, 2015 closing date. It is further noted that Thomas Burke, Michael Conrad and Christopher Yurecko submitted applications by the extended application filing deadline for the PC2530T exam and were admitted; and Christopher D'Andrea, James Nieves, Michael Ripp and Sharonda Murrell submitted applications for the PC2556T exam and were admitted.

[5] It is noted that in In the Matter of Police Sergeant (PM3776V), City of Paterson, 176 N.J. 49 (2003), the New Jersey Supreme Court ordered the Civil Service Commission, for future exams, to

With respect to Mr. Geoghegan, whether the affected individuals "ma[d]e earnest attempts to seek clarification from the [C]ommission on [their] eligibility to take the promotional exams prior to taking the promotional exams" is immaterial in the instant matter as the Appellate Division has determined that the affected individuals were ineligible for the PC1189P and PC1202P tests, respectively.

ORDER

Therefore, it is ordered that Messrs. Conrad, Geoghegan and Yurecko be removed from the PC1189P eligible list and Messrs. D'Andrea, Felix, Matos, Morales, Ripp and Mses. Gabriel and Murrell be removed from the PC1202P eligible list. It is further ordered that Messrs. Conrad, Geoghan and Yureko be returned to the County Correction Lieutenant title and Messrs. D'Andrea, Matos, Morales and Ripp and Ms. Murrell be returned to the County Correction Sergeant title.

This is the final administrative determination in this matter. Any further review should be pursued in a judicial forum.

As a result, public safety candidates are given a make-up exam when the next regularly scheduled exam for their particular title is administered. In this regard, the make-up test is typically the same as that to be taken by candidates who apply for the next cycle of announcements and make-up candidates are directed to refer to the Orientation Guide associated with the next cycle of tests. AGREEMENT AND COMPLETE RELEASE

This Agreement and Complete Release ("Agreement") is entered into this 20th day of April 2017, and is by and between Monmouth County and the Monmouth County Board of Recreation Commissioners (collectively, "County"), Daniel DeSoucey ("DeSoucey" or "Employee"), and CWA Local 1075 ("Union").

RECITALS

WHEREAS, DeSoucey is employed by the County as a Carpenter, and is a member of the Union; and,

WHEREAS, on September 24, 2015, the County issued DeSoucey a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (DPF-31A) (the "Disciplinary Action"); and,

WHEREAS, the Disciplinary Action charged DeSoucey with violating N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6), (a)(7) and (a)(12); County Policies 501, 522, 701 and 703; and the County Policy Prohibiting Work Place Discrimination and Harassment; and,

WHEREAS, based on the charges and specifications contained in the Disciplinary Action, the County determined that a ninety (90) working day unpaid suspension was the appropriate penalty; and,

WHEREAS, following a departmental hearing conducted on November 12, 2015, the charges and proposed penalty of a ninety (90) working day unpaid suspension were sustained; and,

WHEREAS, the County thereafter administratively adjusted DeSoucey's disciplinary penalty to a ninety (90) calendar day unpaid suspension, resulting in DeSoucey actually serving an unpaid suspension from January 2, 2016 through April 3, 2016, a total of sixty-one (61) working days; and,

WHEREAS, DeSoucey timely filed an appeal of the Disciplinary Action to the New Jersey Civil Service Commission ("Commission"), which was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case under docket number CSV 00758-2016S; and,

WHEREAS, prior to the scheduling of a hearing date at the OAL on the Disciplinary Action, the parties engaged in settlement discussions; and,

WHEREAS, the County, DeSoucey and Union now desire to resolve all outstanding issues with respect to the Disciplinary Action via this Agreement.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the promises and conditions set forth herein, the adequacy of which is hereby acknowledged, the County, DeSoucey and Union hereby agree as follows:

1. RESOLUTION OF THE DISCIPLINARY ACTION.

   a. The Disciplinary Action shall be resolved by the County administratively withdrawing the charges in their entirety. The parties acknowledge that no final determination had been reached as to whether or not the charges contained in the Disciplinary Action were ultimately sustained or the penalty was appropriate. As DeSoucey has already served the entirety of the sixty (61) working day unpaid suspension, he shall be reimbursed ten (10) working days of back pay by the County. For record-keeping purposes, this reimbursement shall compensate him for the last ten (10) working days he was suspended without pay: March 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 28, 29, 30, 31 and April 1, 2016. The total amount of gross back pay he shall receive for these ten (10) days is $1600.40. The remaining fifty-one (51) working days during which he was suspended, starting on January 4, 2016 and ending on March 18, 2016, shall be amended in his employment records to reflect an approved, but unpaid administrative leave. The County, DeSoucey and Union will take whatever additional action is necessary to effectuate the terms of the Agreement, if any, including, but not limited to, the execution of any further documents that may be needed to ensure that the disciplinary charges are formally withdrawn by the County at the Commission and/or OAL.

b. DeSoucey, by signing this Agreement, does not concede or admit in any way to any of the allegations contained in the Disciplinary Action.

c. DeSoucey waives any and all claims arising from or relating to the Disciplinary Action, including, but not limited to, back pay, benefits, seniority, and attorneys' fees and/or costs, except as specifically provided in Section 1(a), above. The payment provided for in Section 1(a), above, shall be made no later than thirty (30) days after this Agreement is approved by the Commission.

d. The parties acknowledge that no pension or seniority time may be credited for periods for which DeSoucey is not paid by the County.

e. The County will ensure its records conform to the terms of the Agreement. All internal County records will remain intact.

f. The County shall have the right to revoke this Agreement within fourteen (14) days after its execution of this Agreement, in the event that DeSoucey has failed to simultaneously execute a separate settlement agreement relating to a separate disciplinary action filed against him on September 21, 2016. In such instance the parties shall reserve their rights to proceed with the Disciplinary Action at the Commission and/or OAL.

2. COMPLETE RELEASE AND COVENANT NOT TO SUE.

In consideration of the settlement hereinabove, and to the fullest extent permissible by law, DeSoucey, along with his successors, assigns, heirs, representatives and estates (collectively, "Releasor"), agrees to irrevocably and unconditionally relinquish any and all causes of Action, demands or claims, including claims for attorney's fees and costs, Releasor had, has or may have from the beginning of time up to the date this Agreement is executed against the County of Monmouth, the Monmouth County Board of Recreation Commissioners, and all of their officers, agents, employees, agencies and instrumentalities (collectively, "Releasees"), regardless of whether such claims are presently known or unknown to Releasor. This full and unconditional relinquishment and release of claims includes, but is not limited to, any causes of action, demands or claims relating in any way to DeSoucey's employment with the County, including the events, information or disputes giving rise to this matter, the Disciplinary Action or the Agreement.

This full release also specifically includes, but is not limited to, matters arising at common law, such as breach of contract, expressed or implied, promissory estoppel, wrongful discharge, tortious interference with contractual rights, infliction of emotional distress, defamation and any other common-law tort.

This full release also specifically includes, but is not limited to, matters arising under federal, state or local laws, statutes, regulations, ordinances, orders or policies, including, but not limited to, the United States Constitution, the federal Fair Labor Standards Act, the federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA), the federal Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA), the federal Equal Pay Act, the federal Civil Rights Act of 1866, Title VII of the federal Civil Rights Act of 1964, the federal Civil Rights Act of 1991, the federal Age Discrimination and Employment Act (ADEA), the federal Older Workers Benefit Protection Act (OWBPA), the federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the federal Americans With Disabilities Act (ADA), the New Jersey Constitution, the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act (CEPA), the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (NJLAD), the New Jersey Family Leave Act, and the New Jersey Civil Rights Act.

This full release also specifically includes, but is not limited to, claims for reemployment by contract or recall rights, compensatory damages, punitive damages, reinstatement, back pay, overtime compensation, back benefits, back emoluments, seniority credit, attorneys' fees, equitable relief, or any other relief.

This full release also specifically includes, but is not limited to, the right to receive any monetary relief in connection with the prosecution of a charge or suit brought on the Releasor's behalf by a third party, including any federal, state or local governmental agency or entity.

Nothing in this release shall apply to any vested benefits or any claims to determine or enforce rights with respect to said benefits, nor with respect to any claim currently filed or filed in the future under the New Jersey Workers Compensation Act.

3. OLDER WORKERS BENEFIT PROTECTION ACT REVOCATION PERIOD.

This Agreement is intended to comply with the federal Older Workers Benefit Protection Act (OWBPA), and DeSoucey acknowledges he specifically is waiving rights and claims under the OWBPA. Therefore, this Agreement and Release shall not be effective nor shall any payments hereunder be made, until the expiration of the seven (7) day revocation period set forth in the OWBPA.

4. ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.

DeSoucey acknowledges that this Agreement shall resolve all issues related to the Disciplinary Action and that he has had the right and opportunity to discuss all aspects of this Agreement with his legal counsel prior to entering into it and that he has availed herself of this right, that he has carefully read and fully understands all of the provisions of this Agreement, and that he is entering into this Agreement knowingly and voluntarily in exchange for good and valuable consideration.

5. GOVERNING LAW AND FORUM.

The parties agree that the laws of the State of New Jersey shall govern this Agreement and Release and the parties will submit to the jurisdiction of the state and/or federal courts located within the State of New Jersey for the resolution of any dispute that may arise hereunder.

6. HEADINGS.

The headings contained in the Agreement are for reference purposes only and shall not in any way affect the meaning or interpretation of this Agreement.

7. SEVERABILITY CLAUSE.

Should any provision of this Agreement be declared or determined by any court of competent jurisdiction to be illegal, invalid or unenforceable, the legality, validity, and enforceability of the remaining parts, terms, or provisions shall not be affected thereby and said illegal, unenforceable or invalid part, term, or provision shall be deemed not part of this Agreement.

8. AMBIGUITIES.

Each party and their counsel have participated fully in the review and revision of this Agreement. Any rule of construction to the effect that ambiguities are to be resolved against the drafting party shall not apply in interpreting this Agreement. The language in this Agreement shall be interpreted as to its fair meaning and not strictly for or against any party.

9. MODIFICATIONS TO BE IN WRITING.

The parties agree that this Agreement and Release may not be altered, amended, modified, superseded, canceled or terminated except in writing and duly executed by all the parties, or their attorneys on their behalf, which makes specific reference to this provision.

10. ENTIRE UNDERSTANDING.

This Agreement and Release sets forth the entire understanding between DeSoucey, the County, and the Union, and fully supersedes any and all prior agreements or understandings between them pertaining to the subject matter thereof, if any.

11. NON-ADMISSION.

Nothing in this Agreement shall be construed as an admission by any party that any action taken was unlawful or wrongful, or that any action constituted a breach of contract or violated any federal, state, or local law, policy, rule or regulation.

12. AGREEMENT NON-PRECEDENTIAL.

The parties agree that this Agreement shall be non-precedential, is limited to specific, unique facts and circumstances, and is not intended to create a past practice nor shall it be binding with respect to any other employee of the County. The Union expressly agrees not to use this Agreement as evidence of "past practice" in any forum.

13. CONFIDENTIALITY.

The parties agree that this document constitutes a confidential personnel record under OPRA and/or the common law governing public records, and will not be publicly disclosed, except as consistent with law. DeSoucey and the Union agree that they will not, in another action or proceeding before any state, federal or local court or any governmental or administrative agency or during any arbitration or mediation, obtain discovery or offer evidence, unless required by law or court order (in which case they agree to notify the County before doing so to provide for an opportunity to oppose such a request), relating to the terms or execution of this Agreement.

14. APPROVALS.

The parties acknowledge that this Agreement is subject to approval by the Commission and shall be provided to the Commission and/or the assigned Administrative Law Judge for approval. Any disapproval by the Commission shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue the matter further.

15. Daniel DeSoucey agrees to and acknowledges the following:

(a) I agree and acknowledge that I was represented by and consulted with an attorney of my choosing throughout the negotiation and execution of this Agreement and Release. I further acknowledge and agree that I was given a reasonable and sufficient amount of time within which to consider the Agreement and Release before signing it.

(b) I agree and acknowledge that I have the right to reflect upon this Agreement and Release for a period of twenty-one (21) days before executing it, and I will have an additional period of seven (7) days after executing the Agreement and Release to revoke it under the terms of the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act by notifying in writing: Steven W. Kleinman, Special Monmouth County Counsel, Hall of Records, 1 East Main Street, Freehold, NJ 07728.

(c) I understand and acknowledge that if I sign this Agreement and Release, along with the waiver attached hereto, prior to the expiration of the twenty-one (21) day review period, I am voluntarily and knowingly waiving the twenty-one (21) day review period.

16. ACKNOWLEGEMENT.

By signing this Agreement and Release, Daniel DeSoucey acknowledges:

i. I HAVE READ THIS AGREEMENT AND RELEASE COMPLETELY.

ii. I HAVE HAD AN OPPORTUNITY TO CONSIDER THE TERMS OF THIS AGREEMENT AND RELEASE.

iii. I ACKNOWLEDGE I HAVE BEEN ADVISED BY THE COUNTY TO CONSULT WITH AN ATTORNEY OF MY CHOOSING PRIOR TO EXECUTING THIS AGREEMENT AND RELEASE TO EXPLAIN THE LEGAL CONSEQUENCES OF SIGNING THIS DOCUMENT AND REPRESENT THAT I HAVE IN FACT CONSULTED WITH AN ATTORNEY.

iv. I KNOW THAT I AM GIVING UP IMPORTANT LEGAL RIGHTS BY SIGNING THIS AGREEMENT AND RELEASE.

v. I UNDERSTAND AND MEAN EVERYTHING THAT I HAVE SAID IN THIS AGREEMENT AND RELEASE, AND I UNDERSTAND AND AGREE TO ALL ITS TERMS.

vi. I HAVE NOT RELIED UPON ANY REPRESENTATION, WRITTEN OR ORAL, NOT SET FORTH IN THIS AGREEMENT AND RELEASE.

vii. I HAVE SIGNED THIS AGREEMENT AND RELEASE VOLUNTARILY AND ENTIRELY OF MY OWN FREE WILL.

viii. I REPRESENT AND AGREE THAT I AM NOT UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF ANY ILLNESS, INCLUDING MENTAL OR EMOTIONAL ILLNESS, MEDICAL CONDITION, DISABILITY OR IMPAIRMENT, OR OF PRESCRIPTION OR OTHER MEDICATION THAT WOULD AFFECT MY ABILITY TO REVIEW THIS AGREEMENT IN ITS ENTIRETY, UNDERSTAND IT AND KNOWINGLY AND VOLUNTARILY AGREE TO IT.

ix. I AGREE AND ACKNOWLEDGE THAT THIS AGREEMENT IS NOT THE RESULT OF ANY FRAUD, DURESS OR UNDUE INFLUENCE EXERCISED UPON ME BY THE COUNTY OR BY ANY THIRD PARTY.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, and intending to be legally bound hereby I, Daniel DeSoucey executed the foregoing Agreement this 20th day of April 2017.

SEPARATION AGREEMENT AND COMPLETE RELEASE

This Separation Agreement and Complete Release ("Agreement") is entered into this 20th day of April 2017, and is by and between Monmouth County and the Monmouth County Board of Recreation Commissioners (collectively, "County"), Daniel DeSoucey ("DeSoucey" or "Employee"), and CWA Local 1075 ("Union").

RECITALS

WHEREAS, DeSoucey is employed by the County as a Carpenter, and is a member of the Union; and,

WHEREAS, on September 16, 2016, the County immediately suspended DeSoucey and on September 21, 2016, the County issued DeSoucey a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (DPF-31A) (the "Disciplinary Action"); and,

WHEREAS, the Disciplinary Action charged DeSoucey with violating N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2), (a)(3), (a)(6), and (a)(12); County Policies 104, 501, 701, 702 and 704; the County Vehicle Policy; and the County Substance Abuse Policy; and,

WHEREAS, based on the charges and specifications contained in the Disciplinary Action, the County determined that removal from employment, effective and retroactive to September 16, 2016, was the appropriate penalty; and,

WHEREAS, following a departmental hearing conducted on October 13, 2016, the charges and proposed penalty of removal, effective and retroactive to September 16, 2016, were sustained; and,

WHEREAS, DeSoucey timely filed an appeal of the Disciplinary Action to the New Jersey Civil Service Commission ("Commission"), which was transmitted to the Office of

Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case under docket number CSV 00741-2017S; and,

WHEREAS, prior to the scheduling of a hearing date at the OAL on the Disciplinary Action, the parties engaged in settlement discussions; and,

WHEREAS, the County, DeSoucey and Union now desire to resolve all outstanding issues with respect to the Disciplinary Action and agree upon the terms of DeSoucey's amicable, permanent separation from employment with the County via this Agreement.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the promises and conditions set forth herein, the adequacy of which is hereby acknowledged, the County, DeSoucey and Union hereby agree as follows:

1. RESOLUTION OF THE DISCIPLINARY ACTION; GENERAL RESIGNATION OF DANIEL DESOUCEY.

   a. The Disciplinary Action shall by resolved by DeSoucey permanently and irrevocably resigning from his County employment, effective and retroactive to September 16, 2016, the date he was immediately suspended by the County. DeSoucey's resignation shall be recorded as a "general resignation" as defined in N.J.A.C. Title 4A. The parties acknowledge that no final determination had been reached as to whether or not the charges contained in the Disciplinary Action were ultimately sustained or the proposed penalty was appropriate.

   b. DeSoucey, by signing this Agreement, does not concede or admit in any way to any of the allegations contained in the Disciplinary Action.

   c. DeSoucey agrees that he will not be allowed to work for the County, or any of the County's agencies or instrumentalities, in any position, at any time in the future. However, this provision is not intended to limit in any way DeSoucey's ability to seek either public or private employment other than with the County or its agencies or instrumentalities.

d. DeSoucey waives any and all claims arising from or relating to the Disciplinary Action, including, but not limited to, back pay, benefits, seniority, and attorneys' fees and/or costs, except that to the extent he may still be owed any compensation for accrued, but unused vacation or compensatory time under established County policy, he shall be entitled to receive the same upon his resignation.

e. If he has not already done so, DeSoucey agrees to immediately return all property of the County he may have in his possession, including, but not limited to, all identification indicating his employment with the County.

f. For purposes of any unemployment claim that DeSoucey may file, the parties agree his resignation was compelled by the County and was not voluntary. The County further agrees not to contest any such unemployment claim, however, it is acknowledged by the parties that the decision whether or not DeSoucey will be found eligible to receive unemployment is outside their control and this Agreement shall remain in full force and effect regardless of that decision.

g. The parties acknowledge that no pension or seniority time may be credited for periods for which DeSoucey is not paid by the County.

h. The County will ensure its records conform to the terms of the Agreement, including specifically that DeSoucey resigned from County employment, rather than was removed as a result of disciplinary action. All internal County records will remain intact.

2. COMPLETE RELEASE AND COVENANT NOT TO SUE.

In consideration of the settlement hereinabove, and to the fullest extent permissible by law, DeSoucey, along with his successors, assigns, heirs, representatives and estates (collectively, "Releasor"), agrees to irrevocably and unconditionally relinquish any and all causes of Action, demands or claims, including claims for attorney's fees and costs, Releasor had, has or may have from the beginning of time up to the date this Agreement is executed against the County of Monmouth, the Monmouth County Board of Recreation Commissioners, and all of their officers, agents, employees, agencies and instrumentalities (collectively, "Releasees"), regardless of whether such claims are presently known or unknown to Releasor. This full and unconditional relinquishment and release of claims includes, but is not limited to, any causes of action, demands or claims relating in any way to DeSoucey's employment with the County, including the events, information or disputes giving rise to this matter, the Disciplinary Action or the Agreement.

This full release also specifically includes, but is not limited to, matters arising at common law, such as breach of contract, expressed or implied, promissory estoppel, wrongful discharge, tortious interference with contractual rights, infliction of emotional distress, defamation and any other common-law tort.

This full release also specifically includes, but is not limited to, matters arising under federal, state or local laws, statutes, regulations, ordinances, orders or policies, including, but not limited to, the United States Constitution, the federal Fair Labor Standards Act, the federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA), the federal Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA), the federal Equal Pay Act, the federal Civil Rights Act of 1866, Title VII of the federal Civil Rights Act of 1964, the federal Civil Rights Act of 1991, the federal Age Discrimination and Employment Act (ADEA), the federal Older Workers Benefit Protection Act (OWBPA), the federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the federal Americans With Disabilities Act (ADA), the New Jersey Constitution, the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act (CEPA), the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (NJLAD), the New Jersey Family Leave Act, and the New Jersey Civil Rights Act.

This full release also specifically includes, but is not limited to, claims for reemployment by contract or recall rights, compensatory damages, punitive damages, reinstatement, back pay, overtime compensation, back benefits, back emoluments, seniority credit, attorneys' fees, equitable relief, or any other relief.

This full release also specifically includes, but is not limited to, the right to receive any monetary relief in connection with the prosecution of a charge or suit brought on the Releasor's behalf by a third party, including any federal, state or local governmental agency or entity.

Nothing in this release shall apply to any vested benefits or any claims to determine or enforce rights with respect to said benefits, nor with respect to any claim currently filed or filed in the future under the New Jersey Workers Compensation Act.

3. OLDER WORKERS BENEFIT PROTECTION ACT REVOCATION PERIOD.

This Agreement is intended to comply with the federal Older Workers Benefit Protection Act (OWBPA), and DeSoucey acknowledges he specifically is waiving rights and claims under the OWBPA. Therefore, this Agreement and Release shall not be effective nor shall any payments hereunder be made, until the expiration of the seven (7) day revocation period set forth in the OWBPA.

4. ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.

WHEREAS, Egnatuk filed an amended complaint against the Authority in New Jersey Superior Court, docketed as L-3693-15 (the "Complaint") and also an appeal of her termination from the Authority with the Civil Service Commission and which is pending before the Office of Administrative Law, docketed as CSV-03606-2015S (the "Appeal")(the Complaint and the Appeal are hereinafter referred to collectively as the "Actions");

WHEREAS, the Authority has sought its attorneys' fees and costs in connection with the Complaint;

WHEREAS, there have been no findings on the merits of the Actions; and

WHEREAS, the parties mutually desire to resolve amicably all of their respective claims, disputes, liabilities and obligations, including without limitation those set forth in the Actions, without further litigation, expenses, and time.

NOW, THEREFORE, for good and valuable consideration, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, and intending to be legally bound hereby, the parties agree as follows:

1. The foregoing recitals are incorporated herein as if set forth at length.

2. Egnatuk agrees to dismiss both the Civil Complaint and Administrative Appeal with prejudice and to file and/or submit all appropriate paperwork with both the New Jersey Superior Court and Office of Administrative Law for accomplishment of the same.

3. The Authority agrees not to seek recovery of its attorneys' fees and costs.

4. Egnatuk agrees, on behalf of herself and/or anyone else claiming through, under or by reason of their relationship to Egnatuk, intending to be legally bound, to fully, unconditionally and forever release, discharge and hold harmless the Authority, its past, present and future parents, subsidiaries, successors, affiliates, officers, directors, employees, shareholders, trustees and/or members of the Board, partners, agents, representatives, insurers, attorneys, financial and legal advisors, and each of their predecessors, successors, affiliates and assigns, in their corporate and individual capacities (individually and collectively, the "Releasees"), from and against any and all claims, demands, debts, actions, causes of action, suits, costs, damages, losses, compensations, penalties, liabilities, sums of money, attorneys' fees, accounts, rents, covenants, promissory notes, contracts, controversies, agreements, promises, rights and/or obligations between the parties of any kind or nature whatsoever, including without limitation those set forth in the Actions ("Claims"), whether known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, contingent or fixed, liquidated or unliquidated, matured or unmatured, in law, equity or otherwise, that she ever had, now has or hereinafter can, shall or may have against the Releasees

WHEREAS, Lopez was employed by the Monmouth County Division of Transportation as a Special Citizens Area Transportation (SCAT) Motor Vehicle Operator Elderly and Handicapped Persons for approximately nine (9) years; and,

WHEREAS, on July 10, 2014, Lopez was suspended and, after a hearing on August 26, 2014, was terminated in accordance with a Final Notice of Discipline issued on October 9, 2014, for violations of the County's rules, regulations, policies or procedures; and,

WHEREAS, upon appeal captioned In the Matter of Alethia M. Lopez, Monmouth County Department of Transportation, OAL Dkt. No. CSV 14508-14, filed by Lopez to the Office of Administrative Law, a hearing was convened before the Honorable Robert W. Bingham, II, A.L.J; and

WHEREAS, Judge Bingham was unable to conclude the hearing, and accordingly, the matter was rescheduled before the Honorable Jeff F. Masin, A.L.J. (retired on recall) and continued on March 15 and March 17, 2017 and is presently pending; and

WHEREAS, as a result of her employment and cessation of employment with the County, Ms. Lopez has instituted an additional action filed before the Monmouth County Superior Court, Law Division, in the matter entitled Alethia Lopez vs. County of Monmouth, Monmouth County Division of Transportation, Kathleen Lodato, Monmouth County Department of Personnel, Frank Tragno, Jr., Scott Climer, John Does 1-5 under Docket No.

MON-L-002431-16, (hereinafter with the matter presented before the Office of Administrative Law collectively referred to as the "Appeals"); and

WHEREAS, Lopez and the County believe it is appropriate to conclude any and all matters arising out of the termination of Lopez' employment with the County; and

WHEREAS, under the circumstances, the parties wish to formally set forth certain conditions of Lopez' settlement with, and return to employment for, the County;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the promises and conditions set forth herein, the adequacy of which is hereby acknowledged, the County and Lopez herein agree as follows:

1. DISCIPLINARY ACTION AND RETURN TO EMPLOYMENT.

The County and Lopez agree as follows:

a. Lopez agrees that the charges contained in the Final Notice of Discipline referenced hereinabove are deemed sustained.

b. In lieu of removal, Lopez agrees that she will accept a major disciplinary penalty:

i. a three (3) month suspension, without pay; which for purposes of Lopez' employment record shall be from July 10, 2014 through October 10, 2014, consisting of sixty-six (66) workdays; and

ii. Lopez agrees to accept an additional three (3) month leave of absence, without pay, which for purposes of Lopez' employment record shall be from October 15, 2014 to January 13, 2015, consisting of sixty-three (63) workdays; provided further that all time not otherwise accounted for is to be considered approved leave of absence without pay; and

iii. Lopez is eligible to receive two (2) years of back pay, which for purposes of Lopez' employment record shall be from January 14, 2015 through January 13, 2017, provided, however:

1. Lopez will waive one (1) year of back pay for the January 2015-December 2015 term at a gross salary rate of $32,175; Lopez will receive one (1) year of back pay for the January 2016-December 2016 salary year in the amount of $33,574, provided, however, that Lopez shall receive payment of two (2) years of pension credit fully funded by the County, as well as receiving credit for two (2) years of contract seniority credit and sick leave. Lopez' salary shall be adjusted in accordance with the standard withholdings. Lopez' seniority credit and sick leave shall be adjusted in accordance with the provisions of the collectively negotiated agreement in force applicable to Lopez' employment; and

iv. Beginning April 17, 2017, Lopez will return to her position of employment with SCAT, at a prorated annual salary of $35,011, adjusted in accordance with standard withholdings and subject to a physical examination, inclusive of any alcohol and/or drug testing required by the County, for which Lopez agrees to cooperate in such physical examination and testing processes; and

v. Lopez acknowledges and agrees that her failure to cooperate and/or pass such testing administered to her, shall subject her to immediate removal; and

vi. Lopez will receive and review with designated SCAT personnel all County and SCAT policies relative to terms and conditions of employment and operations within the County and SCAT (hereinafter "policies"); Lopez will acknowledge receipt and review of policies by "signing off" on the same in the presence of the SCAT Director or designee when presented.

vii. Lopez acknowledges that upon her return to active employment with the County, she will be evaluated by her supervisors at the Department of Health and Human Services and Division of Transportation consistent with any other employee in like circumstances, and nothing is this Agreement shall limit or preclude the County from taking future legitimate job-related action, including disciplinary action, related to Lopez' performance as a Motor Vehicle Operator Elderly and Handicapped Persons for the County. However, neither party shall retaliate against the other in any way because of any allegations raised in the Appeals or as a result of the Agreement; and viii. Lopez will be eligible to receive a clothing allowance as provided for in the collectively negotiated agreement for this year.

c. Lopez waives any and all other claims arising from the disciplinary action, including any and all emoluments of employment or benefits not herein specifically referenced herein.

d. Lopez agrees that except for the assessment of the disciplinary penalty referenced hereinabove and in any subsequent personnel disciplinary hearing, nothing in this Agreement shall be deemed an admission of liability of either party, nor shall the settlement have any precedentual value or constitute binding practice by the County.

Agency Reference No.: CSC Dkt. No.: 2015-2446

This Settlement Agreement and Release ("Agreement") is made this _____ day of February 2017, by and between Appellant Wali Thomas ("Thomas" or "Appellant") and Respondent State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, commonly known as Newark Public Schools ("NPS" or "Respondent") (collectively, the "Parties").

WHEREAS, on or about May 1, 2014, Respondent issued a revised Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action to Appellant, Supervisor of Custodians, asserting Charges of Conduct Unbecoming, Discrimination, Neglect of Duty, and Other Sufficient Cause; and

WHEREAS, the Departmental Hearings of the above Charges took place on June 18 and 19, July 1 and 10, and August 13, 2014, during which the Parties presented evidence before Hearing Officer James Cooney, Esq.; and

WHEREAS, Hearing Officer Cooney issued a Recommended Order dated February 12, 2015 dismissing Respondent's Charge of Conduct Unbecoming and Discrimination (including sexual harassment), sustaining the Charges of Neglect of Duty and Other Sufficient Cause, and imposing a 60-day unpaid suspension; and

WHEREAS, Appellant initiated the instant appeal with the Civil Service Commission ("CSC"); and

WHEREAS, without waiving their respective positions and without any admissions as to liability, the Parties wish to fully resolve the pending appeal and Administrative Law Hearing, and all related claims and defenses by and between them pursuant to the terms and conditions set forth below; and

NOW THEREFORE, the Parties hereby agree to the following terms as full and final settlement of the above matter:

1. This Agreement sets forth all of the terms and conditions of the Parties' agreement.

2. Respondent will return to Appellant the sixty (60) days' pay which was withheld pursuant to the suspension recommended by Hearing Officer Cooney. As the payment represents back pay, all usual and mandatory deductions and withholdings will be made by Respondent.

3. The payment under Paragraph 2 shall represent Respondent's entire financial obligation to Appellant in connection with this action.

4. The Parties agree that Appellant is not a prevailing party and as such, Appellant expressly waives any claims for attorneys' fees incurred in connection with this action.

5. The payment under Paragraph 2 shall be made to Appellant within thirty (30) days after approval of this Agreement by the Honorable Leslie Z. Celentano, A.L.J. The Parties understand this Agreement is subject to approval of Judge Celentano and the CSC. In the event that Judge Celentano approves this Agreement and NPS makes payment to Appellant under Paragraph 2, but the CSC ultimately does not approve this Agreement, then Appellant agrees to: (i) pay back Respondent in a lump sum the entire amount received under Paragraph 2 within thirty (30) days of the CSC's rejection of the Agreement, or (ii) permit Respondent to automatically deduct the entire amount he received from Respondent under Paragraph 2 directly from his paycheck(s) in the pay period(s) immediately following the CSC's decision until said amount is paid back in full.

6. Appellant agrees to voluntarily dismiss the instant Appeal with prejudice.

7. The Parties agree that the underlying disciplinary charges and April 10, 2014 final notice of disciplinary action cannot be referred to, or utilized, by Respondent in any future disciplinary action brought against Appellant.

8. In exchange for the consideration set forth in Paragraphs 2 and 7, the sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, Appellant hereby waives, releases and discharges any and all claims or rights that he has or may have against Respondent, the Superintendent, Board of Education and Board members, and any and all other officers, employees, representatives, agents, successors and assigns of Respondent (collectively, the "Released Parties"), including any claim for attorneys' fees, costs or other monetary relief. Appellant does not waive or release any claim that cannot be waived or released as a matter of law.

9. To comply with the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act, if applicable, this Agreement advises Appellant of the legal requirements of the Act and fully incorporates the legal requirements by reference into this Agreement. Accordingly, by executing this Agreement, Appellant acknowledges that he: (i) fully understands the terms and conditions of this Agreement; (ii) has consulted with an attorney to review the Agreement; (iii) specifically waives his right to pursue any current claims he may have under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act; (iv) has been given twenty-one (21) days within which to consider this Agreement; and (v) has 7 days from the date of the execution of this Agreement to revoke it. ISSUED: JUNE 7, 2017 BW

The appeal of Marion Wilson, County Correction Sergeant, Camden County, Department of Corrections, demotion to County Correction Officer effective June 28, 2016, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Carl V. INITIAL DECISION
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2017-74

IMO MARION WILSON, CAMDEN COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS.

William B. Hildebrand, Esq., for Marion Wilson, appellant

Antonieta P. Rinaldi, Esq., for Camden County Department of Corrections, respondent (Christopher A. Orlando, County Counsel, attorney)

Record Closed: March 23, 2017 Decided: May 5, 2017

BEFORE CARL V. BUCK, III, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Camden County Department of Corrections Facility ("Camden" or "CCDOC" or "respondent") seeks to demote Sergeant Marion Wilson ("Wilson" or "appellant") from Sergeant to Corrections Officer. That action resulted from her actions on September 10, 2015, and from her posting of improper remarks in the "pass on" books maintained for her unit.

Sergeant Wilson contends that the penalty for the violation exceeds the level of reasonableness.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On June 28, 2016, the CCDOC issued a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (31-B) sustaining the above charges, and demoting Wilson from Sergeant to Corrections Officer, effective June 28, 2016. (R-1)

Appellant appealed the demotion and the Civil Service Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 for hearing as a contested case. On March 23, 2017, a hearing was held and concluded. The record was closed on March 23, 2017.

FINDINGS OF FACT

(1) Failure to comply with CCDOC directives

The following facts are not in dispute. Appellant has been an employee of the CCDOC since August 26, 1996. She was promoted to Sergeant on November 28, 2004. On September 10, 2015, she was assigned to 2 South A Mod (2 S A), the special needs/high risk unit of the Camden County Correction's facility. Correction officers working in this unit must comply with additional safety precautions.

Lieutenant Douglas Grundlock has been employed by the CCDOC for approximately twenty years, the last two years as a Lieutenant. He was the shift commander for the 7:00 a.m.–7:00 p.m. shift on September 10, 2015. He testified as to the background of, information on, and specific procedures for employees on the 2 S A unit.

Those procedures were detailed in a directive to "All Personnel" from Deputy Warden James J. Simon (Simon) on "05, July 2006". This directive states, inter alia, that:

> The 2 South A, (B& C) officers will make checks every five (5) minutes, and note it in the composition book. If for any reason the officer cannot complete the check within the five minutes they will so note it in the logbook.
> And
> Supervisors must tour the area and if needed lend assistance to the assigned officers. The Shift Commander will tour the area at least once per shift, review logs and sign off on it. (R-3)

Further, clarifying procedures to be followed regarding 2 S A were detailed in a directive to "All Personnel" from Simon on "15, August 2006". This directive states, inter alia, that:

> The Officer will continue to place the inmates name along their assigned cells. As well a (sic) posting checks every five minutes. These logs will be reviewed, signed by the supervisor and turned in with the daily paperwork for each shift. (R-3)

Additional clarifying procedures to be followed regarding 2 S A were detailed in a directive to "All Personnel" from Simon on "08, September 2006". This directive states, inter alia, that:

> Close Watch checks must be maintained every 5 minutes, unless other direction is given by mental health or the medical department. Noe these checks will be logged on the respective logs.
> Supervisors must tour the area and if needed lend assistance to the assigned officers. (R-3)

Grundlock testified that on September 10, 2015, appellant was assigned as the second-floor supervisor on to 2 South A Mod on the 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. shift. He then narrated a video showing the chronology of events of that date. (R-4)

The video showed that at approximately 07:57:15 on September 10, 2017, appellant entered 2 S A and began to sign paperwork prepared by the two Correction

Officers detailed to 2 S A. These Officers were Christopher Burch and David Crossan. This paperwork is "CAMDEN COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS 2- SOUTH A (B-OFFICER) POST LOG" (R-5) and "CAMDEN COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS 2- SOUTH A (C-OFFICER) POST LOG." (R-6)

The post log(s) that appellant signed contained entries showing that Officers Burch and Crossan conducted close watch checks during the period appellant was in 2 S A. However, the video did not show that the officers conducted any close watch checks during the period 07:57:15 to 08:09:24. At approximately 08:09:24 appellant began a security check with Correction Officer's Burch and Crossan. At approximately 08:10:23 appellant exited 2 S A. (R-4)

Lieutenant Grundlock, as the "Shift Commander" for the 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. shift, had access to review cameras within the entire jail facility. At a certain point, Grundlock stated that he became aware that proper protocols on 2 S A were not being followed. Grundlock notified his superior, Captain Taylor who, in turn, notified Warden David Owens. Grundlock stated that he reassigned appellant at approximately 11:40 a.m. At that time appellant stated she threw everything away in her pockets. She also stated that she exited her computer. Lieutenant Grundlock requested that appellant turn over her tour notes and post logs for that morning. Appellant told Lieutenant Grundlock she did not have a post log. Lieutenant Grundlock then asked her for tour notes. Appellant told Lieutenant Grundlock that she had thrown everything she had in the trash.

Subsequently, Lieutenant Grundlock called the IT department which retrieved a draft of the supervisor's log from appellant's computer. (R-7) Lieutenant Grundlock also collected appellant's trash which trash did not reveal any notes.

Grundlock subsequently issued a Supervisor's Staff Complaint Report on 09-10-2015 regarding this incident. (R-2)

By a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (31-A), dated October 21, 2015, Respondent issued a notification to appellant that charges regarding this incident were made against appellant. The charges read:

> N.J.A.C. 42:2-3(a)(1) Incompetency, Inefficiency, Failure to Perform Duties; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) Insubordination; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct Unbecoming; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) Neglect of Duty; N.J.A.C. 4::2-2.3(a)(12) Other Sufficient Cause; C.C.C.F. Rules of Conduct: 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination; 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty; 3.1 Supervision; 3.2 Security; 3.6 Departmental reports; General Oder #73, #74; Supervisor General Order #001; et. al. (R-1).

(2) Failure to comply with Department of Corrections protocol regarding "pass on book"

Captain Linda Blackwell has been employed by the CCDOC for approximately 20 years, most recently as a Captain. She is familiar with this case and her primary job responsibility is to make sure that CCDOC policies are being followed. She testified she had received a call from Captain Karen Taylor (now Warden at CCDOC) regarding notations in the "pass on" books. Blackwell's investigation documented that on numerous occasions, appellant had made or written unprofessional and improper remarks in the 2 South Mod "pass on" book (R-9). The "pass on book" is intended to notify subsequent shifts of any conditions or issues in the unit which are of note. These remarks were made on September 20, 2015, September 29, 2015, October 7, 2015, October 16, 2015, October 18, 2015, October 22, 2015, and November 14, 2015.

Blackwell subsequently issued a Supervisor's Staff Complaint Report on 12-07-2015 regarding this incident. (R-9)

The complaint stated that "...[b]ooks are not for personal opinions and the information is strictly so that the oncoming (sic) shift knows if there were ... incidents that occurred. Sergeant Wilson is a Supervisor of this Department and is held to a higher standard therefor I am recommending disciplinary charges against her for unprofessional comments made in the 'pass on' book." (R-9)

By a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (31-A), dated February 5, 2016, respondent issued a notification to appellant that charges regarding this incident were made against appellant. The charges read:

> N.J.A.C. 42:2-3(a)(1) incompetency, Inefficiency, Failure to Perform Duties; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) Insubordination; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct Unbecoming; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) Neglect of Duty; N.J.A.C. 4::2-2.3(a)(12) Other Sufficient Cause; C.C.C.F. Rules of Conduct: 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination; 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty; 3.1 Supervision; 3.2 Security; 3.6 Departmental reports; General Oder #73, #74; Supervisor General Order #001; et. al. (R-1).

Warden Karen Taylor (Captain at the time of the incidents) has been employed by the CCDOC for approximately twenty years, being appointed as Warden approximately five months ago and before that as a Captain. She is familiar with this case and testified on behalf of the respondent.

She had spoken with Lieutenant Grundlock regarding the issue at 2 S A. Grundlock advised her of the actions he was taking regarding the 2 S A incident.

She had spoken with Captain Linda Blackwell regarding the notations in the "pass on" books. Blackwell's investigation documented that on numerous occasions, appellant had made or written unprofessional and improper remarks in the 2 South Mod "pass on" book. (R-9)

Warden Taylor discussed the various infractions for which petitioner was cited. In addition to the failure to perform, neglect of duty and conduct unbecoming, etc. there are very specific rules regarding the 2 S A unit. She detailed the violations to Rules 1.2, 1.3, 1.4, 3.1, 3.2, 3.6, and 2.0 and to General Orders 001, 073, and 074.

Warden Taylor discussed how the rules relate to security and safety at 2 S A. Petitioner was in charge of the second floor and was responsible for that floor and to guarantee that protocols were being followed and that appropriate close watch checks were being made. Warden Taylor's position was that the appellant's action(s) constituted a serious infraction, and that the resulting risk to safety and security of inmates and other officers to the extent that she lost faith in appellant being able to be a supervisor.

Marion Wilson testified on her own behalf. She is a Sergeant at the CCDOC, where she has worked since August 26, 1996, the first seven and a half years as a corrections officer. She did not dispute the information and time sequence revealed in the video. (R-4) She stated that she was at the 2 S A unit for thirteen minutes that she should only have been at the unit for two to three minutes. She stated that she takes responsibility for what happened during those thirteen minutes. She did state that she was unaware that Officers Burch and Crossan were falsifying information in the reports she had signed. (R-5, R-6) She further stated that when she signed the reports that notations before 07:56 were on the documents, but nothing after 08:00 was filled in.

She stated that Lieutenant Grundlock relieved her at 11:40 a.m. and at that time she threw everything away in her pockets. Grundlock then told appellant she was relieved and she stated that she then exited her computer. In the hall, Grundlock requested her log and she stated that she did not have the log (in the hall), so she stated she did not have the log. She stated that she did not believe she was being insubordinate during this exchange.

As to the comments written in the "pass on" books, appellant admitted that she had made the comments but she did not think they were bad. She did admit that the comments were unprofessional. She stated that there was no training on how to fill in pass on books and that she had been filling in information in pass on books for several years.

Appellant stated that she applied for retirement in December 2016.

Based on the record before me regarding the incident of September 10, 2015, I FIND that the appellant did not comply with the protocols and general orders of the CCDOC on September 10, 2015. Specifically, in that appellant did not perform her duties as a supervisor, did not follow the appropriate rules of conduct, was insubordinate to her supervisor, showed an inattentiveness to duty, failed to supervise those employees for whom she was responsible, did not file or prepare appropriate reports, did not comply with General Orders 073 and 074 and Supervisor General Order 001.

Based on the record before me regarding the incidents of comments placed in the "pass on" books of September 20, 2015, September 29, 2015, October 7, 2015, October 16, 2015, October 18, 2015, October 22, 2015, and November 14, 2015 I FIND that the appellant did not comply with the protocols and general orders of the CCDOC. Specifically, in that appellant did not comply with appropriate rules of conduct, did not file or prepare reports in an appropriate manner, engaged in conduct unbecoming a supervisor, did not comply with General Orders 073 and 074 and Supervisor General Order 001.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

N.J.S.A. 11A:2-6 authorizes the Commission to remove, suspend, fine or demote a permanent career employee. Rules promulgated by the Department of Personnel set forth various reasons for discipline, including "conduct unbecoming a public employee." N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3. On appeals from disciplinary action, the Board may redetermine guilt or modify a penalty originally imposed. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-19; Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). The Board is empowered to substitute its own judgment on the appropriate penalty, even if the local appointing authority has not clearly abused its discretion. Henry, supra, 81 N.J. at 579. In appeals from disciplinary actions, the appointing authority bears the burden of proof by a preponderance of the credible evidence. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143, 149 (1962).

Respondent charged appellant, inter alia, with insubordination and neglect of duty. "Insubordination" is not defined in the regulation. Assuming that its presence is implicit, courts generally apply its ordinary definition since it is not a technical term or word of art and there are no circumstances indicating that a different meaning was intended. Ricci v. Corporate Express of the East, Inc., 344 N.J. Super. 39, 45-46 (App. Div. 2001). Black's Law Dictionary (7th Ed. 1999) defines insubordination as a "willful disregard of an employer's instructions" or an "act of disobedience to proper authority." To give one other example, Webster's New International Dictionary 1288 (2d Ed. 1943) defines insubordinate as "not submitting to authority; disobedient; mutinous." See also Jeffrey F. Ghent, J.D., Annotation, What Constitutes "Insubordination" As Ground for Dismissal of Public School Teacher, 78 A.L.R.3d 83 (1977); A. L. Schwartz, Annotation, Employee's Insubordination As Barring Unemployment Compensation, 26 A.L.R.3d 1333 (1969). Similarly, "neglect of duty" can arise from an omission or failure to perform a duty and includes official misconduct or misdoing, as well as negligence. Generally, the term "neglect" connotes a deviation from normal standards of conduct. In re Kerlin, 151 N.J. Super. 179, 186 (App. Div. 1977). Neglect of duty implies nonperformance of some official duty imposed upon a public employee, not merely commission of an imprudent act. Rushin v. Bd. of Child Welfare, 65 N.J. Super. 504, 515 (App. Div. 1961).

Corrections officers are held to a high standard of conduct both on and off the job. In re Phillips, 117 N.J. 567, 577 (1990). Maintenance of strict discipline is important in military-like settings such as police departments, prisons and correctional facilities. Rivell v. Civil Serv. Comm'n, 115 N.J. Super. 64 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 59 N.J. 269 (1971); Mayberry v. Massey, 93 N.J. Super. 317 (App. Div. 1967).

Respondent's rules of conduct detail rules to be followed by all employees of the Corrections Facility. R-10. Directives as to activity on the 2 S A Mod are given, with specificity, in the 08, September 2006 memorandum from Simon and states:

> Close Watch checks must be maintained every 5 minutes, unless other direction is given by mental health or the > medical department. Noe these checks will be logged on the respective logs. (R-3)

These are not "suggestions" or "guidelines" - but directives. They are a subject of mandatory compliance and are required for the safety of the inmates who have an expectation of safety and care from CCDOC as well as the other employees of CCDOC for whom a level of safety and care is also expected.

This matter involves a major disciplinary action brought by the respondent against the appellant seeking a demotion from Sergeant to Officer. The appellant is charged with failure to perform duties, insubordination, conduct unbecoming, neglect of duty, and other sufficient cause. She is also charged with violating Rules of Conduct: 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination; 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty; 3.1 Supervision; 3.2 Security; 3.6 Departmental reports; General Order #73, #74; Supervisor General Order #001; et. al.

The charges all relate to the appellant's activities relating to the event of September 10, 2015. Appellant does not dispute the forgoing violations, and I have found as fact that she did in fact violate all the foregoing rules. In addition to the undisputed testimony, there is a video which corroborates all the foregoing undisputed facts.

PENALTY

When determining the penalty to be imposed, the Commission must consider an employee's prior disciplinary actions. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 523 (1962). Respondent imposed a demotion from Sergeant to Officer for the cumulative charges as detailed. Appellant's past disciplinary record reflects several similar offenses committed within the preceding seventeen years (seven within the past seven years) and a number (approximately nine) of what would be classified as minor disciplinary charges within the same time frame.

Once a determination is made that an employee has violated a statute, rule, regulation, etc., concerning his/her employment, the concept of progressive discipline must be considered. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. Super. 500 (1962). While this case did not specifically use the phrase "progressive discipline," its facts strongly suggest that a record of progressive discipline should precede the ultimate penalty, which is removal. The concept of progressive discipline involves consideration of the number of prior disciplinary infractions, the nature of those infractions and the imposition of progressively increasingly penalties. It is well settled that correction officers, like police officers are held to a higher standard of conduct than other public employees because of the sensitive nature of the position they occupy. Twp. of Moorestown v. Armstrong, 89 N.J. Super. 560 (App. Div. 1965), cert, denied, 47 N.J. Super. 80 (1966). It has also been noted in corrections cases, that failure to adhere to security precautions could have potentially serious consequences, which may give rise to a more serious penalty regardless of the lack of any past disciplinary consequences. I /M/O Martha Hicks and Antonio Price, OAL Dkt. Nos. CSV 11373 and CSV 11494-13; 2014 N.J. Agen. Lexis 469 (2014).

The appellant received a demotion from Sergeant to Officer for the foregoing violations. These violations were not only a violation of her specific duties, but critical to security and safety of inmates and fellow employees.

Appellant's attorney has argued, inter alia, that the severity of the penalty is not warranted as the demotion would prove a substantial financial hardship to appellant (who, since the events in question, has filed for service retirement). This is a fallacious argument. The safety and security of the CCDOC should be the utmost concern of any employee and particularly a supervisory employee. The financial impact of such penalty can in no way be compared to the potential impact of appellants' action (or inaction).

Appellant's attorney also compares the present incident to one for which appellant previously received a thirty-day suspension. The comparison is erroneous as the matter in question deals with violations of specific directives for an area of the jail facility known to warrant specific and direct attention (close watch checks) and is specifically designated as the special needs/high risk unit of the facility.

With regard to the charges relating to the "pass on" books, appellants' attorney argues that the discipline relating to the "pass on book" does not rise to the level of demotion. In that argument, I concur.

I CONCLUDE that the penalty of demotion from Sergeant to Officer is appropriate under the circumstances as the charges relating to September 10, 2015 are sustained. Appellant's past disciplinary record reflects several similar offenses committed within the preceding seventeen years (7 within the past seven years) and a number (approximately nine) of what would be classified as minor disciplinary charges within the same time frame. I also note appellant's lack of remorse and the fact that these infractions jeopardized the security of inmates and other employees in the facility as aggravating factors in this case. I therefore, CONCLUDE that the demotion from sergeant to officer is appropriate under these circumstances.

I CONCLUDE that the penalty of demotion from sergeant to officer is not appropriate under the circumstances of the events as detailed in the complaint of December 7, 2015 and is not sustained. Although appellant's lack of remorse is evident, and these comments could have proved embarrassing to CCDOC, these infractions did not jeopardize the security of inmates or other employees in the facility. These statements as made by appellant in the "pass on" books do constitute a violation to the CCDOC General Order #001, Supervisor General Responsibility; General Order #073, Personal Conduct of Employees; and General Order #074 Professional Code of Conduct. I therefore, CONCLUDE that the demotion from sergeant to officer is not appropriate under the circumstances concerning comments in the pass on book and that a five-day suspension with counselling is warranted for those violations.

DECISION AND ORDER

I hereby ORDER that the charges be AFFIRMED, and the demotion from Sergeant to Officer be SUSTAINED and that a separate five-day suspension with counselling be ordered.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, P.O. Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

In the Matter of Antonio Cruz, City of Newark

OAL Docket No. CSR 00047-17

FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION
OF THE
CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: JUL 14 2017 (HS)

The appeal of Antonio Cruz, a Fire Fighter with the City of Newark, of his removal, effective June 25, 2016, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Jude-Anthony Tiscornia (ALJ), who rendered his initial decision on May 4, 2017. Exceptions were filed on behalf of the appointing authority and a reply to exceptions was filed on behalf of the appellant.

Having considered the record and the ALJ's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting on June 21, 2017, did not adopt the ALJ's recommendation to reverse the removal. Rather, the Commission upheld the removal.

DISCUSSION

The appointing authority removed the appellant on charges of incompetency, inefficiency or failure to perform duties; inability to perform duties; conduct unbecoming a public employee; neglect of duty; and other sufficient cause. Specifically, it asserted that the appellant reported late for duty, missed assignments, was unfit for duty and tested positive for alcohol and drugs. Upon the appellant's appeal, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing as a contested case.

In his initial decision and based on the testimonial and documentary evidence presented, the ALJ found that the appellant received a regular appointment to the title of Fire Fighter on October 27, 2014. On June 25, 2016, the appellant was assigned to Engine 5, Tour 3 under the command of Orlando Alvarez, Fire Captain. On that date, the appellant reported at 8:07 a.m. for an 8:00 a.m. shift and missed roll call. After finishing a fire engine maintenance check, the appellant joined Alvarez in the firehouse kitchen and sat down with a cup of coffee. Shortly thereafter, the appellant fell asleep and dropped the coffee cup onto the floor. After cleaning the spilled coffee, the appellant left the kitchen and thereafter did not respond and could not be located when a call came in to the firehouse. The appellant missed both a response to an emergency call from St. James Hospital and an assignment at the Prudential Center. Alvarez later found the appellant sleeping in a spare room in the firehouse and contacted Steven P. DeCeuster, Battalion Fire Chief, who responded to the firehouse and observed the appellant sleeping on duty. DeCeuster and Alvarez both suspected the appellant of being under the influence of narcotics, and DeCeuster contacted his supervisor, Richard Zieser, Deputy Fire Chief, to report his observations and his suspicion of the appellant's drug use. Zeiser then contacted his supervisor, Richard Gail, Deputy Fire Chief, and advised him of the appellant's behavior and the suspicion that he may be under the influence of narcotics. Gail contacted the health officer, Ronnie L. Coco, Battalion Fire Chief, to arrange for the appellant to have his urine tested at Concentra, a private facility with which the appointing authority contracts to perform urine tests and other physical examinations. The appellant was escorted to Concentra by Kevin Aikens, Fire Fighter, a member of the Arson Squad. Justice Ntim, a nurse at Concentra, administered the appellant's urine test. The urine test results showed that the appellant was under the influence of cocaine, benzodiazepines and alprazolam, all controlled dangerous substances. Ntim also testified that he administered two breath alcohol tests and that the legal limit for blood alcohol content is 0.02%. Ntim's report reflected a reading of 0.023% on the screening test, and 0.017% on the confirming test. The ALJ found that the appellant reported for duty while under the influence of a controlled dangerous substance and was never charged with a crime.

Additionally, the ALJ found that PDP-19A is a 1992 addendum to the appointing authority's Disciplinary Action Policy (PDP-19) and that PDP-19A requires that a letter of conditional employment be issued prior to the removal of any employee suspected of drug usage. In pertinent part, PDP-19A states:

> The purpose of creating a drug testing policy is to eliminate the dangers caused by on-the-job drug use/abuse by: (i) mandating testing where reasonable individualized suspicion exists and (ii) providing addicts[1] with an opportunity for rehabilitation.

1 PDP-19A defines an addict as "[a]n individual with a disease or disability that involves a physical or mental dependency on drugs or the habitual inclination to use drugs and/or alcohol to the extent that it causes a problem in any area of life."

PDP-19A was negotiated by the union with the appointing authority and has been the working policy since 1992 and was the policy in place at the time of the appellant's removal. Raul Malave, Deputy Fire Chief, testified that he was aware of PDP-19A and the past practice of issuing a letter of conditional employment but noted that the appointing authority chose not to follow that protocol. Malave also testified that it was the appointing authority's position that it had discretion to implement PDP-19A or not. The ALJ found that the appointing authority never offered the appellant a letter of conditional employment.

The ALJ also distinguished In the Matter of Paul Andrade, Docket No. A-3149-14T4 (App. Div. October 12, 2016), a case that dealt with the same appointing authority and policy (PDP-19A). There, the Fire Fighter was removed for sale and distribution of controlled dangerous substances, and the removal was affirmed by the court. The court noted that PDP-19A specifically regarded the sale of narcotics as a terminable offense. Here, as the appellant was only involved in the use of narcotics, the ALJ concluded that PDP-19A should apply. Based on the foregoing, the ALJ determined that the penalty of removal should be reversed and that the appellant should be reinstated under a letter of conditional employment.

In its exceptions, the appointing authority argues that the ALJ's summary of Malave's testimony is factually inaccurate. In this regard, Malave never testified that the appointing authority had a "protocol" of automatically issuing a letter of conditional employment. Malave testified that PDP-19 is primarily used by non-uniform departments because there is no set uniform policy. Rather, the Fire Department is governed by the Rules and Regulations due to its nature as a paramilitary organization. The Rules and Regulations set forth a particular code of conduct to ensure safety. He testified that when instituting discipline of a Fire Fighter, the appointing authority looks at the Rules and Regulations, not PDP-19. All Fire Fighters are responsible for knowing the Rules and Regulations, and Malave testified that they specifically provide that a Fire Fighter may be terminated for being under the influence of drugs and alcohol. Malave testified that the offer of a letter of conditional employment is, and has always been, at the appointing authority's discretion.

The appointing authority also contends that PDP-19A does not require the issuance of a letter of conditional employment to any employee suspected of drug use, prior to removal. In this regard, it notes that PDP-19A is an addendum to PDP-19. PDP-19 contains a specific "Disclaimer" that, in part, states:

> This policy is subject to modification or cancellation, by the City in whole or in part, at any time, and it is not intended nor should it be construed as providing any employee with past practice or vested rights.

Therefore, the appointing authority argues, an employee cannot infer any requirement of a letter of conditional employment. The appointing authority asserts that it is arbitrary and capricious for the ALJ to dictate that a letter of conditional employment is required under any circumstances excepting criminal matters.

The appointing authority further points to the Commission's decision in In the Matter of Michael Larino (CSC, decided May 4, 2011), wherein the Commission affirmed the removal of a Fire Fighter who reported to work under the influence of drugs. In Larino, the Commission noted that under In the Matter of Daniel Cahill, 245 N.J. Super. 397 (App. Div. 1991), the refusal to employ a handicapped person is lawful where it would be hazardous to the person or others and that Larino had not made any requests for reasonable accommodations prior to the reasonable suspicion drug testing. Similarly, the appellant in this case never indicated that he had a substance abuse issue prior to the date in question. Thus, the appointing authority maintains that he was not entitled to any accommodation. Further, as the appellant is a Fire Fighter, the handicap he alleges places himself, his fellow Fire Fighters and the public at risk. The appointing authority notes that Charles West, Fire Fighter, testified that in his capacity as President of the Firefighter's Union, no Fire Fighter came to work under the influence in the past 12 years.

In his reply to exceptions, the appellant disputes the appointing authority's claim that Malave's testimony was inaccurately summarized. He notes that Malave testified that PDP-19 covers "all of the employees for the City of Newark . . . including fire." Malave confirmed that the Fire Department's use of letters of conditional employment for disciplinary actions involving positive drug or alcohol tests was part of the policy contained in PDP-19 and PDP-19A and that this policy works in conjunction with the Fire Department's Rules and Regulations. Moreover, in Andrade, supra, the appointing authority did not argue that PDP-19 and PDP-19A were inapplicable to Fire Fighters. Rather, the appointing authority argued that the letter of conditional employment did not apply to Andrade because he was terminated for his drug-related criminal offenses, not for failing a drug test. The appellant notes that under the Rules and Regulations, termination of a Fire Fighter for being under the influence of drugs and alcohol is not mandated but may be justified in cases of addiction, while a positive test for drugs or alcohol while on duty is not addressed. He argues that the Rules and Regulations are consistent with the letter of conditional employment, which requires treatment and rehabilitation in order to avoid addiction, which could lead to dismissal.

The appellant also disputes the appointing authority's claim that case law supports his removal. He notes that the concept of a "second chance" has been a long-established policy of the appointing authority as found in court decisions. Cahill, supra; Andrade, supra. The appellant also distinguishes Larino, supra, stating that unlike the circumstances in that case, here there was a current policy in existence, PDP-19A, that provided for a second chance. He maintains that the policy must be applied to him and states that more than 50 Fire Fighters over the last 25 years have been given second chances pursuant to PDP-19A. The appellant argues that PDP-19A has established that a first-time positive test for a controlled dangerous substance is not egregious. Rather, it is conduct that triggers progressive discipline in the form of the offer of a letter of conditional employment.

The appellant further notes that courts have held that addiction to drugs or alcohol renders a person handicapped under the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (LAD) and entitles that person to its protections. Clowes v. Terminex Intern., Inc., 109 N.J. 575, 590-595 (1988). He argues that providing him with an accommodation for this handicap is not inconsistent with prior cases where Fire Fighters were given one opportunity for treatment before removal. Cahill, supra; In the Matter of Henry Jackson, 294 N.J. Super. 233 (App. Div. 1996).

Based on its de novo review of the record, the Commission disagrees with the ALJ's assessment of this matter. The appellant claims that he is an addict rendered handicapped under the LAD, which, similar to the situation in Cahill, supra, requires the appointing authority to provide him with an accommodation. In Cahill, the court acknowledged that addiction, habituation or dependency that results from use of one drug or a combination of drugs renders a person handicapped. However, the court emphasized that N.J.S.A. 10:5-4.1 prohibits discrimination against a handicapped person "unless the nature and the extent of the handicap reasonably precludes the performance of the particular employment." It also underscored that Cahill was a Fire Fighter and that:

> the negligent or improper performance of that function can result in serious harm to persons and property . . . The nature of Cahill's job duties satisfies the city's burden of proving with a reasonable certainty that his handicap would probably cause injury to himself or to others.

Cahill at 400-401. The court in Cahill also noted that a Fire Fighter is subject to being called when needed, anytime of the day or night, and that a Fire Fighter under the influence of drugs cannot do the job. While the court in Cahill did consider that an employer, where feasible, should afford an opportunity for rehabilitation to an employee handicapped by substance abuse, it did not mandate that a Fire Fighter should not be removed for a first positive drug test. In this regard, the court stated that "refusal to continue employment of a handicapped person is lawful where employment in a particular position would be hazardous to that individual or to others." Id. While in this case, PDP-19A provided for the issuance of a letter of conditional employment, the appointing authority has persuasively argued that the policy was discretionary. In this regard, the appointing authority indicates that PDP-19A is an addendum to PDP-19. PDP-19, in turn, includes a "Disclaimer" that, in part, provides:

> This policy is subject to modification or cancellation, by the City in whole or in part, at any time, and it is not intended nor should it be construed as providing any employee with past practice or vested rights.

Therefore, as also noted by the appointing authority, an employee could not infer a requirement that a letter of conditional employment be issued. Even if PDP-19A was to be applied, it bears noting that its stated purpose was to eliminate the dangers caused by on-the-job drug use/abuse by mandating testing where reasonable individualized suspicion exists and "providing addicts with an opportunity for rehabilitation" (emphasis added). However, there is no evidence in the record either that the appellant is an addict or that he requested an accommodation or sought assistance of any kind for his asserted handicap prior to his drug test that was based on the appointing authority's reasonable suspicion. Further, second chances for drug related infractions are not generally afforded public safety employees, who, as compared with non-public safety employees, are held to a stricter standard of conduct. See In the Matter of John Simpson (MSB, decided March 26, 2008) (Removal of a Truck Driver modified to a four-month suspension and appellant ordered to undergo a return to work drug test prior to reinstatement and be required to undergo monthly random drug testing for a period of one year); In the Matter of Brian Huntley (CSC, decided February 12, 2014) (Heavy Equipment Operator); In the Matter of John Daraklis (MSB, decided June 11, 2008) (Laborer Heavy); In the Matter of Glenn Steiger, Borough of Rutherford (MSB, decided July 11, 2007) (Truck Driver); In the Matter of Richard Wilkins, Jr., Township of Irvington (MSB, decided September 21, 2005) (Police Aide).

In determining the proper penalty, the Commission's review is de novo. In addition to its consideration of the seriousness of the underlying incident in determining the proper penalty, the Commission utilizes, when appropriate, the concept of progressive discipline. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962). In determining the propriety of the penalty, several factors must be considered, including the nature of the offense, the concept of progressive discipline, and the employee's prior record. George v. North Princeton Developmental Center, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (CSV) 463. Moreover, it is well established that where the underlying conduct is of an egregious nature, the imposition of a penalty up to and including removal is appropriate, regardless of an individual's disciplinary history. See Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). It is settled that the theory of progressive discipline is not "a fixed and immutable rule to be followed without question." Rather, it is recognized that some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished prior record. See Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474 (2007).

The Commission has long recognized that Fire Fighters hold very unique positions, and any disregard for the law is unacceptable in a Fire Fighter who operates in the context of a paramilitary organization. See In the Matter of Bart Giaconia (MSB, decided February 22, 2006); In the Matter of James Alessio (MSB, decided March 9, 1999). Fire Fighters "are not only entrusted with the duty to fight fires; they must also be able to work with the general public and other municipal employees, especially police officers." Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 552 (1998). This is especially true where, as here, the appellant is a Fire Fighter who has tested positive for drug use. Indeed, as noted in In the Matter of Russell Strother (MSB, decided December 6, 2006), any use of an illegal drug constitutes a violation of the law and of a Fire Fighter's duty to exhibit conduct, both on and off duty, that is commensurate with his position. Here, along with illegal drugs, the appellant had alcohol in his system (albeit not over the legal limit). Moreover, the actual alleged misconduct, sleeping on duty and missing assignments, was not disputed. Finally, the appellant was not a long term employee as he had been serving as a Fire Fighter for less than two years prior to the date in question. Under these circumstances, the appellant's offense is sufficiently egregious to warrant his removal. Accordingly, the Commission concludes that the penalty imposed by the appointing authority is neither unduly harsh nor disproportionate to the offense and should be upheld.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the appointing authority's action in removing the appellant was justified. Therefore, the Commission affirms that action and dismisses the appellant's appeal.

This is the final administrative determination in this matter. Any further review should be pursued in a judicial forum.

OAL DKT. NO. CSR 00047-17

IN THE MATTER OF ANTONIO CRUZ, CITY OF NEWARK FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Craig S. Gumpel, Esq., for appellant Antonio Cruz (Law Offices of Craig S. Gumpel, LLC)

France Casseus, Assistant Corporation Counsel, for respondent, City of Newark (Kenyatta K. Stewart, Acting Corporation Counsel, attorney)

Record Closed: April 3, 2017 Decided: May 4, 2017

BEFORE JUDE-ANTHONY TISCORNIA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Antonio Cruz appeals his removal by the City of Newark Fire Department (Department). On June 25, 2016, Cruz reported late for duty and was found sleeping on the job while under the influence of a controlled dangerous substance. The Department removed Cruz without first issuing him a "last chance agreement," also known as a "letter of conditional employment." Can the Department remove a suspected drug user without first issuing him a letter of conditional employment? No. PDP-19A of Newark's disciplinary policy and procedures requires that the Department issue a letter of conditional employment before removal.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Appellant, Antonio Cruz, served as a Newark City firefighter from October 27, 2014. On June 25, 2016, appellant was served with a notice of suspension effective immediately. (R-2.) On June 27, 2016, appellant was served with a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (PNDA) seeking a suspension effective June 25, 2016, and a removal with the effective date to be determined. (R-3.) Appellant was charged with violating the following Newark Fire Department Rules and Regulations, in addition to the New Jersey Administrative Code:

> Article 6: Members of the Department shall not violate the Oath of Office, nor be guilty of neglect or cowardice or shirk any duty.
> Article 11: Members shall at all times appear neatly attired and clean in person, and shall set examples to subordinates and peers in dignity, sobriety, courtesy, skill and the observance of discipline.
>
> Article 14: Punctuality shall be strictly insisted upon and only the best of reasons that a member's delay in reporting for duty on time was unavoidable will be accepted
>
> Article 15: Members shall devote their entire time while on duty to the work of the department.
>
> Article 17: Members shall not absent themselves from Quarters or any assignment of duty without permission of a Superior Officer.
>
> Article 58: Members shall not commit any act nor shall they be guilty of any omission that constitutes neglect of duty.
> Article 59: Members whose performance is demonstrably inadequate or unsuitable and fails to meet, obtain or produce the effects or results mandated by Department Rules and Regulations, shall be deemed in violation of the Department Rules and Regulations.

SPECIFICATIONS OF CHARGES

1. On June 25, 2016 you, Firefighter Antonio Cruz, were late reporting for duty at your assignment, Engine 5, Tour 3.

2. On June 25, 2016 you, Firefighter Antonio Cruz, did not fulfill your duties as a Firefighter and missed an assignment that Engine 5, Tour 3 was given. The company was forced to respond without you.

3. On June 25, 2016 the Captain and Battalion Chief observed your condition and demeanor to be unfit for duty.

On June 28, 2016, appellant requested a departmental hearing. (A-2.) The departmental hearing was held on August 23, 2016, and on December 16, 2016, the Department served a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action via certified mail removing appellant retroactive to June 25, 2016. (A-1.) His appeal was filed at the Office of Administrative Law on December 27, 2016 (N.J.S.A. 40A:14-202(d)), and was heard on February 24, and 27, 2017. Post-hearing submissions were received on April 3, 2017, on which date the record closed.

TESTIMONY

Captain Orlando Alvarez

Newark Fire Department captain Orlando Alvarez testified on behalf of the Department. He stated that he has been employed by the Department for twenty-seven and a half years and that his current duties include monitoring and commanding his "crew" and overseeing day-to-day activities, including administering roll call at precisely 8:00 a.m. every morning. Alvarez testified that appellant was assigned to his command on June 25, 2016. Alvarez noted that appellant had recently transferred from another firehouse and that June 25, 2016, was appellant's second day working under his command.

Appellant was not present for roll call at 8:00 a.m. on June 25, 2016. Alvarez instructed one of the firefighters under his command to contact appellant via cell phone at approximately 8:01 a.m. Appellant arrived to the firehouse within five or six minutes of roll call. Alvarez stated that upon arrival appellant apologized for being late and immediately went about his duties. Alvarez testified that it was appellant's turn to drive the fire engine that day and that appellant's first set of duties was to conduct a daily maintenance check of the fire engine.

After finishing the maintenance check appellant joined Alvarez in the kitchen area of the firehouse. Appellant poured himself a cup of coffee and sat down. Shortly thereafter appellant fell asleep and dropped the cup of coffee he was holding onto the floor. Alvarez instructed appellant to clean the coffee off the floor. Appellant proceeded to clean the spill with a mop and then exited the kitchen with the mop. Upon exiting the kitchen appellant was out of Alvarez's range of vision, and appellant did not return for an extended period of time.

Captain Alvarez testified that during this time a "run" came into the firehouse. Alvarez explained that a "run" is a response to an emergency call. This particular "run" was in response to an internal alarm at St. James Hospital, which is located in close proximity to the firehouse. Alvarez recounted that he and his crew got into the fire engine and that appellant was absent. Appellant's absence was particularly notable because it was appellant's turn to drive, and there was no one there to drive the fire engine. Alvarez ordered a crew member to blow the horn and sound the siren in order to alert the appellant of the run. Alvarez then ordered a crew member to call for the appellant over the intercom. The appellant did not respond. Alvarez then ordered a crew member to drive the fire engine in Cruz's absence, and the company responded to the call without Cruz.

After returning to the firehouse from the run (approximately twenty minutes), Captain Alvarez, along with several members of his crew, searched the firehouse but were unable to locate appellant. Alvarez then notified his supervisor, battalion chief Steven P. DeCeuster, of the situation. Chief DeCeuster informed Captain Alvarez that he would come to the firehouse as soon as possible.

Captain Alvarez then testified that the company had received orders to report for duty at a Korean cultural festival taking place near the Prudential Center in downtown Newark. The assignment was to last from 9:00 a.m. to 10:00 a.m. Alvarez stated that the company reported to the event without appellant.

Upon returning to the firehouse the company once again looked for Cruz, and eventually found him upstairs sleeping on a loveseat in a spare room. It was about this time that Chief DeCeuster arrived at the firehouse. Alvarez informed DeCeuster that they had located Cruz sleeping in a spare room and that they could not wake him up. DeCeuster accompanied Alvarez to the spare room where Cruz was sleeping, and both attempted to wake him up by shouting his name, but could not wake him. DeCeuster then kicked appellant's boot, which woke him up for a short moment. Cruz looked at the officers and went back to sleep. Deputy Chief DeCeuster then notified Deputy Chief Zeiser of the situation. Alvarez and DeCeuster proceeded to the kitchen area of the firehouse, where they were soon met by Deputy Chief Zeiser and Deputy Chief Gail.

Alvarez testified that appellant eventually came downstairs into the kitchen area, accompanied by a member of the Newark Fire Department Arson Squad. He stated that appellant eventually left the firehouse, along with the arson detective.

Battalion Chief Steven P. DeCeuster

Newark Fire Department battalion chief Steven P. DeCeuster testified on behalf of the Department. He stated that he has been employed by the Newark Fire Department for over thirty-two years and that he currently serves as battalion chief of the fifth battalion, supervising nine companies, including the company to which appellant was assigned on June 25, 2016 (Engine 5).

DeCeuster's testimony corroborated that of Captain Alvarez, in that it reiterated many of the same facts. DeCeuster testified that he witnessed appellant sleeping in the spare room at the firehouse. DeCeuster noted that though he did not detect the odor of any alcohol around the appellant, based on his observations he determined that appellant was not able to perform his duties as a firefighter, and therefore called his supervisor, Deputy Chief Zeiser, to inform him of the situation. Deputy Chief Zeiser informed DeCeuster that he was going to notify his supervisor, Deputy Chief Gail, of the situation. Shortly thereafter both deputy chiefs responded to the firehouse.

DeCeuster testified that he was following the protocol in place for when a member of the Department is suspected of reporting for duty while under the influence of alcohol or a controlled dangerous substance. He testified that protocol includes reporting the incident up the chain of command, and usually results in the suspected member being taken by the Department to Concentra. DeCeuster explained that Concentra is a private facility that the City of Newark contracts with to perform urine tests and other physical examinations.

Deputy Chief Richard Zeiser

Newark Fire Department deputy chief Richard Zeiser testified on behalf of the Department. He stated that he has been employed by the Newark Fire Department for thirty-eight years and that he currently serves as the deputy chief in charge of the third tour.

Zeiser's testimony corroborated that of Captain Alvarez and Battalion Chief DeCeuster, in that it reiterated many of the same facts. He testified that he received a phone call from Battalion Chief DeCeuster concerning Captain Alvarez's concern for firefighter Cruz. Zeiser instructed DeCeuster to go to Engine 5 in order to see if he agreed with Captain Alvarez's assessment of the situation. Zeiser noted that it is common protocol for two officers to assess a situation of a firefighter suspected of being under the influence of drugs or alcohol. Zeiser contacted his supervisor, Chief Gail, and alerted him of the situation. Chief Gail indicated that he was going to contact the Arson Squad to escort Cruz to get "tested." Zeiser noted that by the time he arrived at the firehouse, the appellant had already left with a member of the Arson Squad to go "get tested."

Deputy Chief Richard Gail

Newark Fire Department deputy chief Richard Gail testified on behalf of the Department. He stated that he has been employed by the Newark Fire Department for twenty-three years, and that he currently serves as the chief of operations for the Department.

Deputy Chief Gail's testimony corroborated that of Captain Alvarez, Battalion Chief DeCeuster and Deputy Chief Zeiser, in that it reiterated many of the same facts. Gail testified that he received a phone call from Deputy Chief Zeiser informing him of the situation regarding firefighter Cruz. Gail was told by Zeiser that Cruz was acting out of sorts, and that both he and DeCeuster suspected that Cruz was under the influence of drugs or alcohol. Deputy Chief Gail relayed this information to the fire chief (Centanni), who then told Gail to contact Battalion Chief Coco (the health officer) in order to schedule a drug/alcohol screening at Concentra. Gail then communicated with Battalion Chief Coco as instructed, and traveled to Engine 5 to meet with detective Kevin Aikens, a member of the Newark Fire Department Arson Squad. Gail instructed Aikens that he was to transport/escort Cruz to Concentra, which he did.

Justice Ntim

Justice Ntim has been employed by Concentra as a nurse for four years. Ntim is certified by Concentra to perform drug screenings and breath alcohol tests. (See R-4; R-4(a).) Ntim testified that Concentra conducts drug and alcohol tests for the City of Newark, and that he administered two breath alcohol tests and a urine analysis/drug test on appellant on June 25, 2016. (R-8.) Ntim testified that the legal limit for blood alcohol content is 0.02% and that any result above that amount is considered a failed test. Ntim testified that appellant failed both tests. This statement conflicts with Ntim's report (R-5), which reflects a reading of 0.023 on the first test and 0.017 on the second (R-6). Nevertheless, it is undisputed that appellant's urine analysis/drug test was positive for the following drugs: cocaine, benzodiazepines, and alprazolam. (R-7.) Ntim testified that these last two drugs, benzodiazepines and alprazolam, are commonly prescribed as antidepressants. No evidence or testimony was provided that appellant had a prescription for these or any drugs. Ntim testified that appellant was compliant at all times.

Deputy Director Raul Malave

Raul Malave testified for the Department. He has been a firefighter for the City of Newark for approximately twenty-two years and has served as the assistant public safety director for almost one year.

Malave stated that he was familiar with appellant's case and was familiar with cases similar to it that have occurred in the past. He stated that he is aware of PDP-19A and the Department's past practice of issuing a "last chance letter," but noted that the director in this case chose not to follow that protocol. Upon direct inquiry by the judge, Malave testified that it was the Department's position that the director had the discretion to either implement PDP-19A of the City of Newark's Disciplinary Action Policy or not.

David Giordano

David Giordano testified on behalf of appellant. Giordano was a Newark firefighter from November 1985 to July 1, 2006. He testified that during his career as a firefighter he served as the Newark Firefighter Union's financial director (1990–1992), vice president (1992–1993), and president (1993–2006).

Giordano recalled the circumstances surrounding the adaptation of PDP-19A to Newark's disciplinary policy back in 1992. He testified that at that time there was a problem in the Department regarding firefighters suffering from drug addiction, and the City of Newark enacted PDP-19A to address this issue. Giordano testified that he was involved in the negotiations between the Firefighter's Union and the City of Newark regarding the drug-testing policy. He further testified to twelve specific instances wherein a Newark firefighter was disciplined under PDP-19A after being suspected of drug abuse, and testified that in all instances the firefighter was given a letter of conditional employment and an opportunity to rehabilitate, as required by PDP-19A. Giordano then identified and discussed four specific letters of conditional employment issued by the Department (A-4; A-5; A-6; A-7). He testified that it was always his understanding that the Department was obligated to adhere to PDP-19A.

Charles West

Charles West testified for appellant. Charles West has been a Newark firefighter for twenty-eight years, and currently serves as the Firefighter's Union president. He testified that he is familiar with PDP-19A, and identified and discussed two specific letters of conditional employment (A-8; A-9) that he was familiar with. He further testified that the Department cannot change disciplinary policy without first notifying and negotiating the changes with the union. He further testified that no such notification or negotiation regarding the Department's current decision to disregard PDP-19A had occurred.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The facts in this case are largely undisputed, and after carefully considering the testimonial and documentary evidence presented, and having had the opportunity to listen to the testimony and observe the demeanor of the witnesses, I FIND the following critical FACTS:

1. Appellant became a Newark firefighter On October 27, 2014.

2. On June 25, 2016, appellant was assigned to Engine 5, Tour 3, under the command of captain Orlando Alvarez.

3. On June 25, 2016, appellant reported at 8:07 a.m. for an 8:00-a.m. shift on Engine 5, Tour 3, and missed roll call.

4. After finishing a maintenance check of a fire engine, appellant joined Alvarez in the kitchen area of the firehouse. Appellant poured himself a cup of coffee and sat down. Shortly thereafter appellant fell asleep and dropped the cup of coffee he was holding onto the floor.

5. After cleaning up the spilled coffee, appellant left the kitchen area, and thereafter he did not respond and could not be located when a call came in to the firehouse.

6. Appellant missed a run to St. James Hospital.

7. Appellant missed an assignment at the Prudential Center.

8. Captain Alvarez ultimately located appellant sleeping in a spare room in the firehouse.

9. Captain Alvarez contacted Battalion Chief DeCeuster, who responded to the firehouse and observed appellant sleeping while on duty.

10. DeCeuster and Alvarez both suspected Cruz of being under the influence of narcotics, and DeCeuster contacted his supervisor, Deputy Chief Zeiser, to report his observations and his suspicion of Cruz's drug use.

11. Zeiser than contacted his supervisor, Deputy Chief Gail, and advised him of Cruz's behavior and of the suspicion that he may be under the influence of narcotics.

12. Gail contacted the Department's health officer, Chief Coco, to arrange for Cruz to have his urine tested at Concentra.

13. Cruz was escorted to Concentra by Detective Aikens of the Arson Squad.

14. Justice Ntim, a nurse at Concentra, administered the urine test on appellant.

15. The results of the urine test administered at Concentra showed that appellant was under the influence of the following controlled dangerous substances: cocaine, benzodiazepines, and alprazolam.

16. The appellant was never charged with a crime.

17. Appellant reported for duty while under the influence of a controlled dangerous substance.

18. PDP-19A is a 1992 addendum to the Disciplinary Action Policy of the City of Newark.

19. PDP-19A requires that a letter of conditional employment be issued to any employee suspected of drug usage prior to removal.

20. The Department never offered the appellant a letter of conditional employment.

21. The aforementioned policy was negotiated by the union with the City and has been the working policy since 1992, and was the policy in place at the time of Cruz's removal.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

In a disciplinary action, the burden of proof is on the appointing authority, which must prove its case by a preponderance of the believable evidence. In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). In order for evidence to meet that threshold, it must be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to the given conclusion. Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958). That is to say, the tribunal must "decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to the reasonable probability of truth." Jackson v. Del., Lackawanna and W. R.R. Co., 111 N.J.L. 487, 490 (E. & A. 1933). The greater weight of credible evidence in the case—preponderance—depends not only on the evidence of the greater number of witnesses, but on that evidence that "carries the greater convincing power to our minds." State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47, 49 (1975) (citation omitted).

The general causes for this discipline are set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a). In the case at bar, the appellant was charged with violating N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1), incompetency, inefficiency or failure to perform duties; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(3), inability to perform duties; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(4), chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6), conduct unbecoming a public employee; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7), neglect of duty; and N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(11),[1] other sufficient cause. He is also charged with violating various provisions of the Newark Fire Department Rules and Regulations.

Appellant Cruz argues that all of the alleged bad acts that gave rise to the disciplinary action against him were the direct result of his being under the influence of a controlled dangerous substance. He argues that under the City of Newark's Drug Testing Policy, PDP-19A, he is entitled to a letter of conditional employment and must be afforded a chance at rehabilitation before he can be removed.

PDP-19A states in pertinent part: "The purpose of creating a drug testing policy is to eliminate the dangers caused by on-the–job drug use/abuse by: (i) mandating testing where reasonable individualized suspicion exists and (ii) providing addict with the opportunity for rehabilitation." (R-1 at 1.) In the case at bar, the Newark Fire Department did not provide appellant with an opportunity for rehabilitation as provided by PDP-19A.

[1] Former N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(11) was recodified as N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) effective March 5, 2012.

The Department's position is that its adherence to PDP-19A is discretionary, and that appellant should be terminated in the interest of public safety. In furtherance of its argument, the Department points to a recent unpublished Appellate Division case, In re Andrade, No. A-3149-14T4 (App. Div. October 12, 2016), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/courts/>. Though unpublished, given that the case deals with the same City of Newark Fire Department, addresses the same disciplinary regulation (PDP-19A), and contains many of the same facts, the opinion is persuasive and it cannot be ignored in the discussion of this case. In Andrade, the firefighter was removed upon investigation and incitement for sale and distribution of controlled dangerous substances. The removal was ultimately upheld by the administrative law judge (ALJ) and affirmed by the Appellate Division. Both the ALJ and the Appellate Division cited the distinction between the sale of narcotics and the personal use of narcotics in their reasoning. The Appellate Division cites PDP-19A, which regards the sale of narcotics as a terminable offense, distinct from the personal use of narcotics:

> The City had adopted an addendum to its disciplinary policy and procedures in 1992 entitled "Drug Testing Policy." The addendum incorporated the concept of a last chance agreement. See, e.g., Watson v. City of E. Orange, 175 N.J. 442, 444 (2003) (generally explaining these type of agreements). However, the City's policy had no application to this case since it explicitly provided that "[i]t [was] a terminable offense for a City employee to dispense, sell, traffic, or facilitate in the sale of, any controlled dangerous substance or possess any drug paraphernalia."
> [In re Andrade, supra, No. A-3149-14T4 (App. Div. October 12, 2016), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/courts/>.].

The Department now argues that just as the firefighter's removal was upheld in Andrade, so should the appellant's removal in the current case be upheld. I reject the City's argument, because in Andrade the Appellate Division made it clear that PDP-19A allowed for termination without a chance for rehabilitation where the employee was involved in the sale or distribution of narcotics, and not just the use of same.

Therefore, based upon the above facts and applicable law, I CONCLUDE that PDP-19A should apply.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that appellant's appeal be and is hereby GRANTED, and appellant should be reinstated as a Newark firefighter under a conditional letter of employment.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 40A:14-204.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, P.O. Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

This Settlement Agreement and General Release ("Agreement") is made and entered into by Newark Police Officer Jobani Dumeng ("Dumeng" or "Appellant"), the Newark Fraternal Order of Police ("FOP" or "Union") and the City of Newark ("City" or "Respondent") (Dumeng, the Union and the City, are collectively referred to hereinafter as the "Parties"). This agreement is made and entered into by the parties in full settlement of Dumeng's appeal regarding the above matter.

Departmental disciplinary charges were brought against Dumeng by the Newark Police Department. The Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated June 5, 2012 (hereafter "FNDA"), contained the following charges: Neglect of Duty (2 Counts), in violation of Newark Police Department Rules and Regulations Chapter 18:6 and New Jersey Civil Service Rule N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a) 7; for which Dumeng was suspended seven (7) days beginning June 18, 2012 and ending June 26, 2012.

It is agreed as follows:

1. The charges listed in the FNDA are upheld.
2. Dumeng agrees to accept three (3) suspension days. The City will amend Dumeng's disciplinary record to reflect the 3 days suspension.
3. The total number of days of back pay to be paid by the Appointing Authority to the appellant is four (4).

4. The parties acknowledge Dumeng will be credited with pension and seniority time for the four days in which he had been suspended.

5. Dumeng further waives any and all right or claim which he has or may have to a hearing on the merits of the disciplinary action taken under this Agreement and/or to challenge the suspension penalty imposed as a result of same, including, but not limited to, any right to a departmental hearing concerning the charges in the FNDA.

6. Dumeng and the Union each agree not to appeal the terms and conditions of this Agreement to any agency or court, including, but not limited to the New Jersey Civil Service Commission and/or to any other New Jersey State Court or agency and/or to any United States Court or agency.

7. Dumeng and the Union each further agree that there is no consideration due Dumeng, his counsel and/or Union, including, but not limited to, any claim for back pay and/or counsel fees, arising from his employment and/or the execution of this Agreement, except as otherwise provided herein.

8. Except for the assessment of Dumeng's disciplinary record in any subsequent personnel disciplinary hearing, nothing in this agreement shall be deemed to be an admission of liability on behalf of either party.

9. Dumeng and the Union further acknowledge that this Agreement further precludes either of them from bringing any type of legal or contractual action in any forum including, but not limited to, filing a Complaint in New Jersey Superior Court or United States Federal Court, filing any type of complaint with the City, Essex County, the State of New Jersey or the United States of America, and filing a grievance and/or requesting arbitration, that is in any manner grounded, based upon, or related to the FNDA.

10. Dumeng is bound by this Agreement. Anyone who succeeds to Dumeng's rights and responsibilities, such as heirs or the executor of his estate, shall also be bound.

11. This Agreement shall not constitute a precedent or practice in any matter involving the City or other City employees.

12. Dumeng and the Union each agree this Agreement shall not be offered, used or considered as evidence in any proceeding of any type against or involving the City, except to the extent necessary to enforce the terms of this Agreement, or as required by law.

13. This Agreement contains the sole and entire agreement between Dumeng, the Union and the City, and fully supersedes any and all prior agreements and understandings pertaining to the subject matter hereof. Dumeng specifically represents and acknowledges in executing this Agreement that he has not relied upon any representation or statement by the City, or City's counsel or representatives, with regard to the subject matter of this Agreement, which is not set forth herein. No other promises or agreements shall be binding unless in writing, signed by all the Parties, and expressly stated to be a modification of the Agreement.

14. Dumeng agrees and acknowledges that he has been fully and fairly represented by his Union in this matter, and he is satisfied with that representation and with the terms and conditions of this Agreement.

15. Dumeng agrees and acknowledges that he has had a full opportunity to review this Agreement with his counsel and/or union representation and he enters into same knowingly and voluntarily.

16. The parties agree that if any portion of this Agreement is deemed unenforceable, the remainder of the Settlement Agreement shall be fully enforceable.

17. This agreement will become effective only if approved by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION. Any disapproval by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue the matter further.

18. By signing this Settlement Agreement, Dumeng states that:

a) He has read it;

b) He understands it and knows that he is giving up important rights, and any and all other federal and state employment related causes of any kind, including, but not limited to The New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, The New Jersey Equal Pay Law, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, The Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967, as amended, The Conscientious Employee Protection Act, The Americans With Disabilities Act of 1990, the Fair Labor Standards Act, and any other constitutional, statutory or common law suit, attorney's fees and costs of this proceeding, and any public policy of the United States, the State of New Jersey, or any other State;

c) He agrees with everything in it;

d) His representative negotiated this Agreement with his knowledge and consent;

e) He has been advised to consult with his attorney prior to executing this Agreement, and has in fact done so;

In the Matter of Keyon Gaddist, Hudson County, Department of Roads and Public Property

OAL DKT. NO. CSV 12790-16

DECISION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: JUN 23 2017 BW

The appeal of Keyon Gaddist, Building Maintenance Worker, Hudson County, Department of Roads and Public Property, 40 working day suspension, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Michael Antoniewicz, who rendered his initial decision on May 15, 2017. Exceptions were filed on behalf of the appellant and a reply to exceptions was filed on behalf of the appointing authority.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting on June 21, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision to modify the 40 working day suspension to a 30 working day suspension.

Since the penalty has been modified, the appellant is entitled to 10 working days of back pay, benefits, and seniority, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10. However, the appellant is not entitled to counsel fees. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12(a), the award of counsel fees is appropriate only where an employee has prevailed on all or substantially all of the primary issues in an appeal of a major disciplinary action. The primary issue in any disciplinary appeal is the merits of the charges, not whether the penalty imposed was appropriate. See Johnny Walcott v. City of Plainfield, 282 N.J. Super. 121, 128 (App. Div. 1995); James L. Smith v. Department of Personnel, Docket No. A-1489-02T2 (App. Div. March 18, 2004); In the Matter of Robert Dean (MSB, decided January 12, 1993); In the Matter of Ralph Cozzino (MSB, decided September 21, 1989). In the case at hand, although the penalty was modified by the Commission, charges were sustained and major discipline was imposed. Thus, the appellant has not prevailed on all or substantially all of the primary issues of the appeal. Consequently, as the appellant has failed to meet the standard set forth at N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12(a), counsel fees must be denied.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in disciplining the appellant was justified. The Commission therefore modifies the 40 working day suspension to a 30 working day suspension. The Commission further orders that appellant be granted 10 days of back pay, benefits, and seniority. The amount of back pay awarded is to be reduced and mitigated as provided for in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10. Proof of income earned shall be submitted by or on behalf of the appellant to the appointing authority within 30 days of issuance of this decision. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10, the parties shall make a good faith effort to resolve any dispute as to the amount of back pay.

Counsel fees are denied pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12.

The parties must inform the Commission, in writing, if there is any dispute as to back pay within 60 days of issuance of this decision. In the absence of such notice, the Commission will assume that all outstanding issues have been amicably resolved by the parties and this decision shall become a final administrative determination pursuant to R. 2:2-3(a)(2). After such time, any further review of this matter should be pursued in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division.

OAL DKT. NO. CSV 12790-16
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2017-358

IN THE MATTER OF KEYON GADDIST,
HUDSON COUNTY, DEPARTMENT OF ROADS AND PUBLIC PROPERTY.

John Branigan, Esq., for appellant Keyon Gaddist (Law Offices of Oxfeld Cohen, attorneys)

Nidara Y. Rourk, Assistant County Counsel, for respondent Hudson County (Donato J. Battista, County Counsel)

Record Closed: April 24, 2017 Decided: May 15, 2017

BEFORE MICHAEL ANTONIEWICZ, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The respondent, County of Hudson, Department of Roads and Public Property, brought a major disciplinary action against appellant Keyon Gaddist (Gaddist). Appellant appeals the substantiated charges and a forty-day suspension imposed by respondent alleging that appellant violated N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6), conduct unbecoming a public employee, insubordination, neglect of duty, and other sufficient cause.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On June 16, 2016, respondent served appellant with a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (PNDA) that noted a suspension effective June 8, 2016, without pay. Appellant requested an internal disciplinary hearing, which was held on June 21, 2016. On July 20, 2016, a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA) was approved and served upon appellant by way of certified mail. The FNDA sustained the charges of conduct unbecoming a public employee, insubordination, neglect of duty and imposed a forty-day suspension was upheld. Appellant requested an appeal within twenty days of receiving the FNDA.

The New Jersey Civil Service Commission, Division of Appeals and Regulatory Affairs, transmitted the within matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, where it was filed on August 23, 2016. On September 27, 2016, a prehearing conference was held. A hearing was held in this matter on April 24, 2017, and the record closed thereafter.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The basic facts of this case are not in dispute except for some small variations of a small number of material facts. Based on the documents admitted, the testimony presented, and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses and assess their crediblity, I FIND the following FACTS:

1. Appellant was hired as a maintenance worker for the respondent and worked as same for a period of nearly eleven years.

2. Appellant's duties included vacuuming, taking out the garbage, mopping, general cleaning and, at the appropriate time, shoveling snow.

3. Appellant's daily shift begins at 3:00 p.m. and ends at 11:00 p.m. His location of work is in the Administration Building/Hudson County Courthouse in Jersey City, New Jersey.

4. On June 8, 2016, appellant arrived at work on time and at a little after 3:00 p.m., appellant's Supervisor, Acosta, asked Gaddist to mop a back area.

5. Gaddist replied that he would mop it later, as was his regular practice as he normally mopped the building at the end of his shift when less people were present in the building.

6. It was not normal practice for Supervisor Acosta to direct appellant to do certain duties first and appellant did not inquire as to why Acosta directed him to perform such tasks at that time.

7. Supervisor Acosta referenced a spill in the back area which needed to be addressed when he directed the appellant to mop this area.

8. At the time appellant arrived at work on June 8, 2016, and began his work duties, he was not wearing his uniform supplied by Hudson County and required by policy to be worn at all times by the employees at work. The purpose of this policy is to identify such employees and for security purposes. The appellant's uniform shirt was in a bag, which appellant had with him but he was not wearing at the beginning of his shift on June 8, 2016.

9. Gaddist did not mop the area as directed by Supervisor Acosta, but performed other tasks such as sweeping and taking out the garbage. Gaddist informed Acosta that he would do the mopping later.

10. After being told to mop the spill area, appellant was sitting at a desk, not in uniform, and using his cell phone.

11. Acosta then reported Gaddist's actions and the failure of Gaddist to mop up as directed to Acosta's Supervisor, Kim Cardella, who was in her office.

12. Cardella then went down to where Gaddist was sitting and found him, not mopping as directed and using his cell phone and eating.

13. Cardella then directed Gaddist to do the tasks he was directed to do and Gaddist responded to Cardella not to yell at him and to watch her tone. Gaddist told Cardella not to speak to him as if he were her child.

14. Gaddist was upset and began yelling back at both Acosta and Cardella and told Cardella to "stop talking to me." Gaddist acted in an aggressive manner.

15. Gaddist continued to engage Cardella in an argument and stated: "Don't talk to me that way." This argument continued in Cardella's office and Gaddist's mother appeared in the area and calmed Gaddist down.

16. After much argument, Gaddist stated that "They were going to get theirs," referring to the two supervisors, i.e., Acosta and Cardella.

17. Based on the tone and tenor of Gaddist's remarks, both Acosta and Cardella took Gaddist's remarks to be a threat directed to them.

18. Cardella then immediately suspended Gaddist based on his threats and contentious behavior.

19. A Notice of Immediate Suspension was issued on June 10, 2016, by Supervisor Kim Cardella which stated that: "an immediate suspension is necessary to maintain safety, health, order or effective direction of public services." (R-2.)

18. After Gaddist's statement, Cardella asked for and received the assistance of a Sheriff's Officer, who directed Gaddist to exit the building.

19. In compliance with the Sheriff Officer's directive, Gaddist then exited the building.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Credibility Determinations

When the testimony of witnesses is in disagreement, the trier of fact must weigh the witnesses' credibility in order to make factual findings. Credibility is the value that the fact finder gives to testimony of a witness and contemplates an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency, and manner in which it "hangs together" with other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). Credible testimony must proceed from the mouth of a credible witness and must be such as common experience, knowledge, and common observation can accept as probable under the circumstances. State v. Taylor, 38 N.J. Super. 6, 24 (App. Div. 1955); Gilson v. Gilson, 116 N.J. Eq. 556, 560 (E. & A. 1934). A fact finder is expected to base credibility decisions on his or her common sense and life experiences. State v. Daniels, 182 N.J. 80, 99 (2004). Credibility is not dependent on the number of witnesses who appeared, State v. Thompson, 59 N.J. 396, 411 (1971), and the finder of fact is not bound to believe the testimony of any witness. In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514, 521-22 (1950).

The testimony in this case is consistent with respect to the basic facts. The inconsistency is whether a threat was made to Gaddist's Supervisors. Gaddist denies making such a threat. However, based on the credible testimony of Acosta and Cardella, along with the testimony of Gaddist's mother which, to a certain degree, supports the recollection of Acosta and Cardella, I FIND that Gaddist made a threat to both supervisors, whether it was intended a threat or not. I FIND that during the argument between the parties, Gaddist made a threat to both Acosta and Cardella, when he said: "He is going to get it and she is going to get it" as testified by Acosta and Cardella, or "Their time will come," as testified by Gaddist's mother. One can easily interpret such statements as a threat even if not intended in such a manner. In this day and age, we all must be cautious in addressing threats of violence even from people with no history of actual violence.

Based upon the demeanor of the witnesses and the testimony of same, it is clear that appellant was upset when directed by Acosta to mop the back area and then Cardella who also directed Gaddist to follow the directive of Supervisor Acosta to mop the back area. I do question the peaceful manner that Cardella stated she delivered her directive to Gaddist and FIND it more credible that it was delivered more in the manner described by Gaddist in his testimony, i.e., in a loud, forceful manner. However, this in no way justifies Gaddist's reaction which I FIND to be aggressive, combative, and containing threats.

I further FIND that appellant was not innocent in how the situation escalated. I also FIND that Cardella was not totally blameless and spoke to Gaddist in a manner which did not and would not defuse the situation, but rather created a greater conflict. Again, I stress that this in no way excuses Gaddist's reaction, leading to threats against Cardella and Acosta.

Importantly, appellant's conduct was clearly inappropriate in that he could have simply followed Acosta's directive and the matter would have ended. If he had done so, there would not have been any further argument. Gaddist's position that he wanted to mop at the end, as he always does, is no justification for his insubordinate behavior.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The New Jersey Civil Service Law protects classified employees from arbitrary dismissal and other onerous sanctions. Prosecutor's, Detectives and Investigators Ass'n v. Hudson County Bd. of Freeholders, 130 N.J. Super. 30, 41 (App. Div. 1974); Scancarella v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 24 N.J. Super. 65, 70 (App. Div. 1952). The law provides relief to civil service employees from public employers who may attempt to deprive them of their rights. Prosecutor's, supra, 130 N.J. Super. at 41. To this end, the law is liberally construed. Mastrobattista v. Essex Cty. Park Comm'n, 46 N.J. 138, 147 (1965). Consistent with this policy of civil service law, there is a requirement that in order for a public employee to be fined, suspended, or removed, the employer must show just cause for its proposed action. The Merit System Board is charged with the duty of ensuring that the reasons supporting disciplinary action are sufficient and not arbitrary, frivolous, or "likely to subvert the basic aim of the civil service program." Prosecutor's, supra, 130 N.J. Super. at 42 (quoting Kennedy v. Newark, 178 N.J. 190 (1959)).

Public employees' rights and duties are governed and protected by the provisions of the Civil Service Act, N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to 12-6, and the regulations promulgated pursuant thereto, N.J.A.C. 4A:1-1.1 to 4A:2-6.2. However, public employees may be disciplined for a variety of offenses involving their employment, including the general causes for discipline as set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a). An appointing authority may discipline an employee for sufficient cause, including failure to obey laws, rules and regulations of the appointing authority. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12). If sufficient cause is established, then a determination must be made on what is a reasonable penalty.

In attempting to determine if a penalty is reasonable, the employee's past record may be reviewed for guidance in determining the appropriate penalty for the current specific offense. The concept of progressive disciplinary action is described in West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 519 (1962). In Bock, the officer had received a thirty-day suspension and seventeen minor disciplinary actions during eight years of service. The prior disciplinary actions and the suspension of thirty days were strongly considered in determining if the thirty-day suspension was warranted. A civil service employee who commits a wrongful act related to his duties may be subject to major discipline. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-2(b), 11A:2-6, 11A:2-20; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2, -2.3(a). Depending upon the incident complained of and the employee's past record, major discipline may include suspension, removal, etc. Bock, supra, 38 N.J. at 522-24.

In disciplinary cases the appointing authority has both the burden of persuasion and production and must demonstrate by a preponderance of the competent, relevant and credible evidence that it had just cause to discipline the officer and lodge the charges. Jersey State Prison, CSV 1571-03, Initial Decision (February 25, 2004), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/ (citations omitted); see also N.J.S.A. 11A:2-21; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a); Atkinson v. Super. 454, 458 (App. Div. 1971); N.J.S.A. 11A:2-6(a)(2), -21; N.J.A.C. 1:1-2.1, "burden of proof"; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4. A preponderance of evidence has been defined as that which "generates belief that the tendered hypothesis is in all human likelihood the fact." Martinez v. Jersey City Police Dep't, CSV 7553-02, Initial Decision (October 27, 2003), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/ (quoting Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959)).

Conduct Unbecoming a Public Employee

"Conduct unbecoming" a public employee is an elastic phrase, which encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atl. City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also In re Emmons, 63 NJ. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances "be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555 (quoting In re Zeber, 156 A.2d 821, 825 (Pa. 1959)). Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (quoting Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)).

I CONCLUDE that appellant engaged in conduct unbecoming a public employee.

Insubordination

Gaddist is also charged with insubordination. The Civil Service Commission utilizes a more expansive definition of insubordination than a simple refusal to obey an order. In re Chaparro, Initial Decision (November 12, 2010), modified, CSC (March 18, 2011) (citing In re Stanziale, A-3492-00T5 (App. Div. April 11, 2002), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/courts/> (appellant's conduct in which he refused to provide complete and accurate information when requested by a superior constituted insubordination)); In re Lyons, A-2488-07T2 (App. Div. April 26, 2010), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/courts/>; In re Moreno, CSV 14037-09, Initial Decision (June 10, 2010), modified, CSC (July 21, 2010), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>; In re Bell, CSV 4695-09, Initial Decision (May 12, 2010), modified, CSC (June 23, 2010), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>; In re Pettiford, CSV 8804-07, Initial Decision (March 13, 2008), modified, Merit System Board (May 21, 2008), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. (Moreno, Bell, and Pettiford all concerning disrespect of a supervisor.)

The Civil Service Commission also has determined that an appellant is required to comply with an order of his or her superior, even if he or she believed the orders to be improper or contrary to established rules and regulations. See Palamara v. Twp. of Irvington, A-5408-05T3 (App. Div. February 28, 2005), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/courts/>; Compare, In re Allen, CSV 11160-04, Initial Decision (May 23, 2005), remanded, Merit System Board (July 14, 2005), CSV 09132-05 Initial Decision, (November 22, 2005), adopted, Merit System Board (January 26, 2006) <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/> (in which the Board determined that the appellant's disobedience was justified by concerns for the safety of the clients on a bus and reversed his removal).

In this case, there is really no dispute that Gaddist was insubordinate in dealing with Acosta and Cardella. In fact, at the close of the case, Gaddist's attorney basically conceded as much. There is no dispute by Gaddist that he received a clear directive from Acosta (to mop the floor at that time) and that he decided not to obey that directive. This is by definition insubordination.

I further CONCLUDE that appellant engaged in conduct which amounted to insubordination.

Neglect of Duty

Neglect of duty is not defined under the New Jersey Administrative Code, but the charge has been interpreted to mean that an employee has failed to perform and act as required by the description of their job title. Generally, the term "neglect" connotes a deviation from normal standards of conduct. In re Kerlin, 151 N.J. Super. 179, 186 (App. Div. 1977). It has been applied both to not fully carrying out duties and to acting incorrectly. See, e.g., In re Marucci, CSV 07241-09, Initial Decision (January 1, 2010), modified, CSC (March 6, 2010), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>, aff'd, A-3607-09T1 (App. Div. January 3, 2012), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/courts/> (removal of a police officer with no disciplinary record where he failed to remove drugs from under a sewer grate and then lied about his actions); see also In re Dona, CSV 10782-08, Initial Decision (August 3, 2009), modified, CSC (August 8, 2009), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/> (affirming twenty-day suspension for failing to pat down inmate properly, missing a wooden shank). Certainly, the failure to mop a spill or to mop as needed as told by a Supervisor constitutes a significant omission, and, thus, I further CONCLUDE that the respondent has met its burden with regard to the charge of neglect of duty.

Chronic Lateness

No evidence was presented at the hearing regarding chronic lateness that was contained in the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (R-7). This charge appears to be rescinded and the charge of chronic lateness was withdrawn at the end of the hearing by the respondent.

PENALTY

Public employees' rights and duties are governed and protected by the provisions of the Civil Service Act, N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to 12-6, and the regulations promulgated pursuant thereto, N.J.A.C. 4A:1-1.1 to 4A:2-6.2. However, public employees may be disciplined for a variety of offenses involving their employment, including the general causes for discipline as set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a). An appointing authority may discipline an employee for sufficient cause, including failure to obey laws, rules and regulations of the appointing authority. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12). If sufficient cause is established, then a determination must be made on what is a reasonable penalty.

In attempting to determine if a penalty is reasonable, the employee's past record may be reviewed for guidance in determining the appropriate penalty for the current specific offense. The concept of progressive disciplinary action is described in Bock, supra, 38 N.J. at 519. In Bock, the officer had received a thirty-day suspension and seventeen minor-disciplinary actions during eight years of service. The prior disciplinary actions and the suspension of thirty days were strongly considered in determining if the thirty-day suspension was warranted. A civil service employee who commits a wrongful act related to his duties may be subject to major discipline. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-2(b), 11A:2-6, 11A:2-20; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2, -2.3(a). Depending upon the incident complained of and the employee's past record, major discipline may include suspension, removal, etc. Bock, supra, 38 N.J. at 522-24.

In disciplinary cases the appointing authority has both the burden of persuasion and production and must demonstrate by a preponderance of the competent, relevant and credible evidence that it had just cause to discipline the employee and lodge the charges. See Coleman v. E. Jersey State Prison, CSV 1571-03, Initial Decision (February 25, 2004), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/ (citations omitted); see also N.J.S.A. 11A:2-21; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982); In re Darcy, 114 N.J. Super. 454, 458 (App. Div. 1971); N.J.S.A. 11A:2-6(a)(2), -21; N.J.A.C. 1:1-2.1, "burden of proof"; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-

1.4. A preponderance of evidence has been defined as that which "generates belief that the tendered hypothesis is in all human likelihood the fact." Martinez v. Jersey City Police Dep't, CSV 7553-02, Initial Decision (October 27, 2003), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/ (quoting Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959)).

In the present case, appellant had two previous disciplinary actions of a similar nature for which he received two separate five-day suspensions with the County taking no progression in order to make the discipline more severe. In light of this inaction by the respondent and the facts set forth in the hearing, I CONCLUDE that the appropriate penalty in this matter is a thirty-day suspension, which I believe to be more in accordance with the principles of progressive discipline.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing and the Notice of Final Disciplinary Action, it is hereby ORDERED that the charges of conduct unbecoming an employee, neglect of duty, and insubordination are all SUSTAINED.

It is further ORDERED that the determination of respondent, Hudson County, Department of Roads and Public Property, to suspend appellant for forty days, effective June 8, 2016, be REVERSED and a suspension of thirty days be imposed.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, P.O. Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

LAST CHANCE SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE

THIS LAST CHANCE SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE ("AGREEMENT" or "Last Chance Agreement"), made this ___ day of _____, 2017 by and between the City of Passaic, a governmental entity created under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with its principal offices located at Passaic City Hall, 330 Passaic Street, Passaic, New Jersey 07055 ("CITY") and Aregawi Abraham Kishen, an individual with a mailing address of 88 Pennington Avenue, Passaic, New Jersey 07055 ("KISHEN"), sets forth the terms and conditions of this AGREEMENT between the CITY and KISHEN as follows:

1. The CITY, as defined and used herein, shall at all times mean the CITY OF PASSAIC, its departments, divisions, affiliates, predecessors, successors, representatives and assigns of any and/or all of them, their present and former directors, officials (elected and/or appointed), officers (elected and/or appointed), representatives, associates, partners, servants, employees, agents, attorneys, designees, successors, heirs, executors and administrators (all of them past, present and future), whether in their individual or official capacities, and any and all other persons, firms, corporations, associations, partnerships or any other entity connected therewith.

2. KISHEN, as defined and used herein, shall mean AREGAWI ABRAHAM KISHEN, his heirs, family (of any relation), representatives, privies, executors, administrators, designees, assigns, successors-in-interest and predecessors-in-interest.

3. The parties agree that this AGREEMENT is contingent upon and subject to execution by KISHEN and approval and execution by the CITY.

4. In consideration of the mutual promises of this AGREEMENT and for other good and valuable consideration, the sufficiency of which the parties hereby acknowledge, the parties agree to resolve all pending disciplinary and administrative actions between them under the terms of this AGREEMENT.

a. KISHEN was formerly employed by the CITY in the title of Traffic Maintenance Worker.

b. On or about December 8, 2015, KISHEN was served with a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (the "DISCIPLINARY NOTICE"), which effected a removal of KISHEN from his employment from the CITY, effective October 14, 2015, for violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a), including (a)(1) (Incompetency, inefficiency or failure to perform duties; (a)(2) (Insubordination); (a)(3) (Inability to perform duties); (a)(6) (Conduct unbecoming a public employee); (a)(7) (Neglect of duty); (a)(8) (Misuse of public property, including motor vehicles); and, (a)(12) (Other sufficient cause), in addition to violations of the City of Passaic Employee Handbook and City of Passaic Department of Public Works Rules and Regulations.

c. KISHEN appealed the termination of his employment to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") in a matter entitled Aregawi Kishen v. City of Passaic Department of Public Works, OAL Docket No. CSV 03285-2016, Agency Ref. No. CSC Dkt# 2016-2238.

5. In order to avoid the time and expense of such proceedings, KISHEN and the CITY, through their respective attorneys and/or representatives, agree to enter into the within AGREEMENT upon the following terms and conditions, which are now to be made effective:

a. KISHEN shall dismiss his OAL appeal entitled Aregawi Kishen v. City of Passaic Department of Public Works, OAL Docket No. CSV 03285-2016, Agency Ref. No. CSC Dkt# 2016-2238, with prejudice and without costs to either party.

b. KISHEN shall plead guilty to the charges of Insubordination, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2), and Neglect of Duty, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(3), as set forth in the DISCIPLINARY NOTICE.

c. Based upon such guilty plea, the CITY shall issue, and KISHEN shall serve, a six (6) month suspension without pay, which suspension shall be deemed to have been served between October 14, 2015 and April 14, 2016.

d. Starting April 15, 2016, KISHEN's time off from the CITY shall be converted to an unpaid leave of absence, which shall remain in effect until the date KISHEN returns to full-time employment with the CITY, pursuant to Paragraph 5.h., below.

e. KISHEN shall not accrue any leave time (sick leave, personal leave, vacation leave, holiday leave, etc.) while he is on the unpaid suspension and the unpaid leave of absence nor shall KISHEN be able to use any current and/or accumulated paid leave time to provide compensation during the period he is on unpaid suspension and the unpaid leave of absence. However, KISHEN shall accrue six (6) months of service/seniority for the period set forth in paragraph 5c above only.

f. For purposes of the disciplinary record of KISHEN, the discipline imposed is a six (6) month unpaid suspension.

g. KISHEN understands and agrees that, if at any time subsequent to the parties' execution of this AGREEMENT, he receives a discipline other than a verbal or written reprimand for any infraction whatsoever and such charge is sustained by the appointing authority in accordance with Title 4A of the New Jersey Administrative Code, the CITY shall immediately terminate KISHEN from his employment. The level of discipline to be imposed upon KISHEN is at the sole discretion of the CITY. KISHEN shall have the right to appeal said termination to the New Jersey Civil Service Commission and/or pursue a civil remedy, if applicable.

h. KISHEN shall return to work for the CITY in the title of Traffic Maintenance Worker at the same salary he earned as of October 13, 2015, with his return to work date to be within seven (7) days of the CITY'S execution of this AGREEMENT.

i. KISHEN hereby gives up, releases and waives prospectively all grievances, i.e., complaints alleging violations of his rights under the applicable collective bargaining agreement, or any other judicial, quasi-judicial, administrative or contractual actions, that he could file with respect to work assignments or job duties which the CITY may give him for the remainder of his employment with the CITY. Furthermore, KISHEN shall not allow any person, entity or organization to file any such actions on his behalf.

j. KISHEN agrees not to contest, in any judicial, quasi-judicial or administrative or contractual forum, any of the terms and conditions of this AGREEMENT.

6. KISHEN understands that the resolution of all matters presently pending between him and the CITY does not shield or immunize him from any subsequent layoffs, demotions, lateral rights and/or discipline by the CITY.

7. KISHEN and the CITY acknowledge that the parties enter into this AGREEMENT solely to avoid further expensive and burdensome disciplinary/administrative proceedings. This AGREEMENT is not intended to be used and shall not be used as evidence or for any other purpose in any other action or proceeding, other than evidence of the compromise between KISHEN and the CITY as set forth herein or to enforce the terms of this AGREEMENT. Other than as noted in Paragraph 5.b., above, no party hereto admits to any wrongdoing and/or any liability as to any and/or all of their actions regarding each other.

8. KISHEN releases, acquits, gives up and forever discharges any and all claims and rights which he may have against the CITY and any and all of its officials (elected and/or appointed), officers, employees, representatives, assigns, successors and designees, up to the time of complete execution of this AGREEMENT by all parties. This releases any and all claims, including those of which KISHEN, his family, designees, representatives and assigns are not aware and those not mentioned in this Agreement. This AGREEMENT applies to claims resulting from anything which has happened from KISHEN'S first date of application for employment with the CITY through the date of complete execution of this AGREEMENT by all parties. A copy of any such Order will be provided to the CITY for its records and response.

10. The waiver by KISHEN and the CITY of a breach of any provision hereof shall not operate or be construed as a waiver of that breach by the other or as a waiver of any subsequent breach by the other.

DECISION OF THE
CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

In the Matter of Jose Morales, Hudson County, Division of Roads and Public Property

CSC Docket No. 2015-3209
OAL Docket No. CSV 19280-15

ISSUED: JUL 14 2017 (EG)

The appeal of Jose Morales, a Stationary Engineer with Hudson County, Division of Roads and Public Property, of his six-month suspension on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Gail M. Cookson (ALJ), who rendered her initial decision on March 27, 2017. Exceptions were filed on behalf of the appointing authority and a reply to exceptions was filed on behalf of the appellant.

Having considered the record and the attached ALJ's initial decision, and having reviewed the testimony and evidence presented before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting on June 21, 2017, did not adopt the ALJ's recommendation to reverse the suspension. Rather, the Commission imposed a five working day suspension.

DISCUSSION

The appellant was charged with conduct unbecoming a public employee, neglect of duty, insubordination and other sufficient cause. Specifically, the appointing authority asserted that the appellant falsified his timesheet and had been doing so for some time. Upon the appellant's appeal, the matter was transmitted to the OAL for a hearing as a contested case.

The ALJ set forth in her initial decision that the appellant worked the overnight shift at the Powerhouse. Kim Riscart-Cardella, an Executive Assistant, testified that the appointing authority had become suspicious that the appellant and a co-worker were covering for each other's shifts and skipping out on some shifts. She indicated that when she reviewed a timesheet on March 4, 2015, before his shift had started, the appellant had already signed in and out for that day. She also identified log book entries wherein the appellant was improperly signing it on days he wasn't scheduled to work. However, Riscart-Cardella also testified that there was no evidence that the appellant actually worked fewer than five days per week. The ALJ noted that Thomas Manfredi, an Assistant Chief Stationary Engineer, the appellant's supervisor, testified that he had a discussion with the appellant about the differing interpretations of the overnight shift days in February 2014 and again in January 2015. Manfredi also denied that the appellant had ever advised him about his parental obligations or provided him with a court order regarding the same.

The appellant testified that he needed to work Saturday through Wednesday so he could take his son to school two days per week following his divorce. He indicated that he had Thursday and Friday off for many years without any problems until 2015. He acknowledged that Manfredi did discuss his revised schedule interpretation in January 2015 but he was advised by his union representative to wait until it was posted on formal letterhead before grieving the matter. Since no such posting occurred, the appellant never filed a formal grievance. Further, the appellant testified that in March 2015, Manfredi gave him an oral warning about following the schedule. The appellant asserted that at the same time, Manfredi agreed that if all the shifts were covered, it would not be a problem and that he could keep his schedule as it had been for many years until his son graduated in June.

Based on the foregoing, the ALJ found that the supervisors and the employees read the schedules differently. If the schedule indicated the overnight shift started Sunday at 11:00 p.m. and ended Monday at 7:00 a.m., the supervisors considered this a Sunday workday, while the employees considered it a Monday work day. The ALJ stated that this explained why it appeared that the appellant had signed in and out before his shift started. In this regard, the ALJ found that there was no evidence that the appellant signed in or out of his payroll sheet except contemporaneously or that he worked fewer than five shifts per week on a regular basis. Further, the ALJ concluded that while the supervisors had the authority to make changes to the long-standing practice of viewing the overnight schedule the way the employees viewed it, the appellant testified that he had asked Manfredi to keep his schedule the same until his son graduated in a few months. Although Manfredi denied this discussion, the ALJ found the appellant more credible in this regard. Accordingly, the ALJ found that the appointing authority had not met its burden of proof and dismissed the charges.

In its exceptions, the appointing authority argues that the ALJ's credibility determinations were not supported by the documentary evidence. It claims that the schedules and sign-in sheets clearly show the appellant was not working his assigned shifts. Additionally, it contends that as of January 2015, the appellant acknowledged that he had been advised of the correct schedule to follow. Further, it argues that the ALJ improperly found the appellant more credible than Manfredi with regard to the appellant's schedule and the alleged request to keep the schedule the same until the appellant's son graduated.

In his reply to exceptions, the appellant argues that the ALJ's credibility determinations were amply supported by the record. In this regard, he states that the ALJ provided seven pages of summation of testimony. He also argues that Manfredi's testimony was inconsistent and not credible. He asserts that Manfredi testified that he had not heard of the appellant's court order until the May 2015 departmental hearing, yet he mentioned the court order in a letter he authored on March 6, 2015.

Upon its de novo review of the record, the Commission does not agree with the ALJ's recommendation to dismiss the charges and reverse the six-month suspension. Regarding the charges, the Commission finds that the appellant did not follow the schedule as presented by his supervisors. A review of the testimony clearly indicates that the appellant knew what the proper schedule to follow was in January 2015 but chose not to follow the schedule due to his parental obligations. There was no evidence presented that the appellant approached his supervisor requesting to keep his prior schedule at any time between January 2015 and March 2015, when the appellant was confronted by Manfredi on March 6, 2015. Therefore, even if the appellant asked Manfredi to keep his schedule the same for a few more months, the appellant worked the wrong schedule without authorization on March 4, 5, and 6, 2015, as indicated in the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action.

In its exceptions, the appointing authority challenges the ALJ's determinations based on witness testimony. In instances such as this, the credibility of the witnesses plays a major role in determining the outcome of the case. In this regard, the Commission acknowledges that the ALJ, who has the benefit of hearing and seeing the witnesses, is generally in a better position to determine the credibility and veracity of the witnesses. See Matter of J.W.D., 149 N.J. 108 (1997). "[T]rial courts' credibility findings . . . are often influenced by matters such as observations of the character and demeanor of the witnesses and common human experience that are not transmitted by the record." See In re Taylor, 158 N.J. 644 (1999) (quoting State v. Locurto, 157 N.J. 463, 474 (1999)). Additionally, such credibility findings need not be explicitly enunciated if the record as a whole makes the findings clear. Id. at 659 (citing Locurto, supra). The Commission appropriately gives due deference to such determinations. However, in its de novo review of the record, the Commission has the authority to reverse or modify an ALJ's decision if it is not supported by the credible evidence or was otherwise arbitrary. With regard to the standard for overturning an ALJ's credibility determination, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c) provides, in part, that:

> The agency head may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent, and credible evidence in the record.

See also, N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6(c); Cavalieri v. Public Employees Retirement System, 368 N.J. Super. 527 (App. Div. 2004).

In the instant matter, the appointing authority argues that the ALJ's credibility determinations were not proper and not supported by credible evidence. The Commission disagrees. The appellant's testimony regarding his request to keep his schedule for a few more months and his claim that he mentioned a court order to Manfredi were credible. Further, Manfredi's March 6, 2015, letter clearly mentions the appellant's court order. This same letter also contradicts Manfredi's assertion that he did not know about a court order until the May 2015 departmental hearing. Thus, finding the appellant more credible than Manfredi is supported in the record. Therefore, a review of testimony reveals that the ALJ's conclusions based on the witness testimony are reasonable and supported by the credible evidence in the record. However, the testimony also establishes that the appellant did not follow the schedule correctly, as noted previously.

In determining the proper penalty, the Commission's review is de novo. In addition to considering the seriousness of the underlying incident in determining the proper penalty, the Commission utilizes, when appropriate, the concept of progressive discipline. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962). Although the Commission applies the concept of progressive discipline in determining the level and propriety of penalties, an individual's prior disciplinary history may be outweighed if the infraction at issue is of a serious nature. Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571, 580 (1980). It is settled that the theory of progressive discipline is not a "fixed and immutable rule to be followed without question." Rather, it is recognized that some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished prior record. See Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474 (2007). In the instant matter, the appellant had no prior disciplinary actions since his employment began in 1998. Additionally, it is clear that the appellant had been working what he believed to be the correct schedule for years without issue. Further, the appellant had relied on his particular days off in order to meet his parental obligations. Given these particular circumstances, the Commission finds that a five working day suspension is the proper penalty.

Accordingly, the appellant is entitled to back pay, benefits and seniority after the imposition of the five working day suspension. With regard to counsel fees, since the appellant has not prevailed on the primary issues on appeal he is not entitled to an award of counsel fees. See N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12. The primary issue in any disciplinary appeal is the merits of the charges, not whether the penalty imposed was appropriate. See Johnny Walcott v. City of Plainfield, 282 N.J. Super. 121, 128 (App. Div. 1995); James L. Smith v. Department of Personnel, Docket No. A-1489-02T2 (App. Div. March 18, 2004); In the Matter of Robert Dean (MSB, decided January 12, 1993); In the Matter of Ralph Cozzino (MSB, decided September 21, 1989). In the case at hand, while the penalty was modified, charges were upheld and discipline imposed. Consequently, as the appellant has failed to meet the standard set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12, counsel fees must be denied.

This decision resolves the merits of the dispute between the parties concerning the disciplinary charges and the penalty imposed by the appointing authority. However, in light of the Appellate Division's decision, Dolores Phillips v. Department of Corrections, Docket No. A-5581-01T2F (App. Div. Feb. 26, 2003), the Commission's decision will not become final until any outstanding issues concerning back pay are finally resolved.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the appointing authority's action in imposing a six-month suspension was not justified. Therefore, the Commission modifies the six-month suspension to a five working day suspension. The Commission further orders that the appellant be granted back pay, benefits and seniority for the period after the imposition of the five working day suspension. The amount of back pay awarded is to be reduced and mitigated as provided for in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10. Proof of income earned and an affidavit of mitigation shall be submitted by or on behalf of the appellant to the appointing authority within 30 days of issuance of this decision. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10, the parties shall make a good faith effort to resolve any dispute as to the amount of back pay.

Counsel fees are denied pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12.

The parties must inform the Commission, in writing, if there is any dispute as to back pay within 60 days of issuance of this decision. In the absence of such notice, the Commission will assume that all outstanding issues have been amicably resolved by the parties and this decision shall become a final administrative determination pursuant to R. 2:2-3(a)(2). After such time, any further review of this matter should be pursued in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division.

INITIAL DECISION

IN THE MATTER OF JOSE MORALES, COUNTY OF HUDSON, DIVISION OF ROADS & PUBLIC PROPERTY.

AGENCY REF. NO. 2015-3209

Robin Bernstein, Esq., for appellant Jose Morales (Bernstein Law Firm, attorneys)

John A. Smith, III, Assistant County Counsel, for respondent County of Hudson (Donato Battista, Esq., County Counsel, attorneys)

Record Closed: February 7, 2017 Decided: March 27, 2017

BEFORE GAIL M. COOKSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Jose Morales (appellant) appeals from a disciplinary action taken by his employer the County of Hudson, Department of Building & Grounds, Division of Roads & Public Property (County) to suspend him from his position as a Boiler Operator for six months on charges of conduct unbecoming a public employee in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6); insubordination in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2); neglect of duty in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7); and other sufficient cause in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(11). The charges all relate to time sheet irregularities. Appellant denied the charges and claims and filed an appeal on June 2, 2015.

The appeal was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), on November 25, 2015, for hearing as contested cases pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to - 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. It was assigned to the Honorable Irene Jones, A.L.J. on December 7, 2015. A hearing notice was sent scheduling the matter for April 18, 2016. On that date, the County failed to appear and asserted that it had never received any pre-hearing or hearing notice. It was re-assigned to me on July 8, 2016, following the retirement of Judge Jones. With the consultation of counsel, the hearing was scheduled for December 1, 2016. When it did not conclude on that date, another plenary hearing was convened on February 7, 2017, on which date the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Based upon due consideration of the testimonial and documentary evidence presented at the hearing, and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses and assess their credibility, I FIND the following FACTS:

Kim Riscart-Cardella was the first witness to be presented by the respondent on this matter. Cardella has been the Unit Chief with the Department of Buildings and Grounds since January 2006. She oversees the buildings and parking lots including the facilities themselves and the personnel within. Chief Engineer Thomas Manfredi reports to her and there are various other intermediate supervisors between Manfredi and appellant. Appellant works in the Powerhouse as a Boiler Operator.

Cardella testified that she sought removal of appellant on disciplinary charges because he had allegedly stolen county services through manipulation of his time sheets. The final disciplinary action was reduced to six months because of certain mitigating factors, including, but not limited to, his apology, an admission, and some family custody issues. Cardella then provided more background to this disciplinary action.

Cardella stated that appellant and Gary Dooley worked the overnight shift at the Powerhouse. Because they each received two different days off, they only both worked that shift three days of the week. In March of 2015, she became suspicious that the operators were covering for each other's shifts and skipping out on some of those shifts. On March 4, 2015, Cardella reviewed the payroll sign-in/sign-out sheet and found that appellant had already signed out for that day. She then instructed Manfredi to drop in on the night shift to see who was working. He did so on April 9, 2015, and found Dooley working notwithstanding that he should have been out serving a suspension on that date. He also found that appellant was not there even though he was the operator who should have been on duty. On several other dates, she, Manfredi, or day-shift operators reported that Dooley and appellant were switching shifts or not following the schedule. Cardella identified log book entries wherein appellant was improperly signing it on certain days when he was not scheduled to work, and same with Dooley.

On cross-examination, Cardella admitted that the log book entries were consistent with the appellant's interpretation of what day of the week to denominate the overnight shift. She also admitted that there was no evidence that appellant actually worked fewer than five days per week, although she seemed convinced that Dooley somehow worked four days and had three days off or was serving a suspension one day per week during this period. There was also no evidence that the county needed to cover extra shifts because of appellant skipping shifts without authorization, or that the Powerhouse was unattended for any overnight shifts. Cardella was sure that appellant had not provided any court order on his parental rights prior to the departmental disciplinary hearing.

Orestes Acosta is a supervisor for the Powerhouse for the second shift (3:00 pm. to 11:00 p.m.). He has been with the County for four years. There is no supervisor on duty for the overnight shift. Acosta's office is in the Administration Building. On March 5, 2015, he advised Cardella that Dooley was working the shift that had been assigned to appellant.

Julio Cartegena has been a day shift boiler operator for the County for approximately eight years. He takes over from the shifts covered by Dooley and appellant. He admitted that the daily boiler read-out sheets were started at 11:00 p.m. by the overnight operators and then continued for that particular day by the first and second shift operators. Cartegena recalled that on March 4, 2015, he saw both Dooley and appellant in their vehicles when his shift started.

Thomas Manfredi also testified for respondent. He has been employed by the County for twenty-six (26) years and presently serves as the Chief Engineer. His office is in the Administration Building but he also has oversight over the Annex, the Powerhouse and the Courthouses. He issues the schedule for the Powerhouse operators but he is seldom there on site. Timesheets are on the honor system and there is no reliance on an electronic punch clock. Manfredi testified that he had had a discussion with Dooley and appellant about the differing interpretations of the overnight shift "days" in February 2014 (R-17) and again in January 2015 (R-10b). He had done this because he also had heard rumors that these two employees were covering different shifts than they were assigned.

On cross-examination and then in rebuttal, Manfredi denied that appellant had ever advised him about his parental obligations or shown him a court order regarding such. Nevertheless, Manfredi mentioned such a family court order in his own memorandum to Cardella when describing appellant's refusal to follow the schedule as dictated by himself.

Rodolfo Quintanilla testified on behalf of the appellant. He is now retired but he had been a boiler operator for several years with total county employment spanning fourteen years. Quintanilla mostly was assigned to the second shift but sometimes covered for the overnight shift. He testified as to where the schedules were posted and that the boiler read-out sheets always started a new day at 11:00 p.m. of the prior evening. Quintanilla did not recognize the hand-written annotated schedule used by Manfredi to explain his overnight shift interpretation. On cross-examination, he explained that he worked the overnight shift a few times per month when he would be assigned to cover the shift for someone who was out. He always worked that shift alone.

Appellant testified in his own defense. He has been employed with the county since approximately 1998 when he started at the correctional facility. He was a Boiler Operator and then a Stationary Engineer at the Administrative Building. By 2004, appellant was working the third or overnight shift, which was selected by seniority rank. He needed to work Saturday through Wednesday so he could take his son to school two days per week following his divorce. He stated that he had Thursday and Friday off for many years without any problem or even any discussion from Manfredi until 2015. Appellant denied ever seeing the 2014 marked-up schedule sheet prepared by Manfredi. While Manfredi did discuss his revised schedule interpretation in January 2015, appellant's union representative advised him to wait until it was posted on formal letterhead and to then grieve the management action. Appellant stated that it was never posted on letterhead, which is why he never filed a formal grievance.

In March 2015, Manfredi gave appellant an oral warning about following his schedule. According to appellant, Manfredi then agreed at that same time that if all the shifts were covered, it would not be a problem. Nevertheless, this disciplinary action was then initiated by his supervisors. Appellant remarked that he had a clear disciplinary record throughout his career and that he never signed in or out until that appropriate time. In other words, he never signed in and out at the same time. He also never signed in for a shift he did not actually work. Appellant utilized various examples from the log books to demonstrate his consistency in his recording of the days of his shifts.

On cross-examination, appellant maintained that he would never be able to get his son to school in Millburn on a Thursday morning if he worked until 7:00 a.m. on Thursday as his "Wednesday" shift. Appellant lives in Newark. Appellant also maintained that he had left a copy of his court order in an envelope with the time sheets at the time that it was issued in 2007. He had no knowledge of where it went once payroll picked up the sheets but after the passage of so much time, he assumed Manfredi understood. To the extent he had additional weekend days with his son, he had family members over at his house to babysit while he worked.

When questioned as to why he had produced a court order at the departmental hearing for the first time, appellant disagreed and stated that he showed a later court order from March 2015 at the departmental hearing only because it was new and the most current. Appellant insisted that Manfredi had orally acknowledged that the schedule could stay as it had been for many years until his son graduated from high school that June. Appellant is the most senior boiler operator assigned to the Powerhouse.

For evidence to be credible it must be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to a given conclusion. Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958). Credibility, or, more specifically, credible testimony must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness, but it must be credible in itself, as well. Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546, 554-55 (1954). I FIND that respondent's witnesses were less credible than appellant. Credibility means the testimony as a whole holds or hangs together, and makes sense. After listening carefully to every witness, it was clear to me that this entire case turned on a difference in interpretation as to what to call the day the person on the overnight shift is working.

Appellant and Quintanilla both explained that the practice for many years of the overnight shift was to mark themselves down at the beginning of the shift (11:00 p.m.) as working on the "next" day. Hypothetically, or by way of example, if one was assigned to work 11:00 p.m. to 7:00 a.m. on Monday, appellant and his fellow overnight boiler operators would report on Sunday at 11:00 p.m. and work through until Monday at 7:00 a.m. They would mark the payroll sheets accordingly as Monday. The supervisors considered that to be Sunday's shift. The log book entries by both appellant and Dooley were consistent with their interpretation of the day of the week worked.

The supervisors, who did not themselves ever work that shift, expected the boiler operators assigned on Monday in the hypothetical example to report to work at 11:00 p.m. on Monday and work through until Tuesday at 7:00 a.m. Appellant and his co-workers considered that to be Tuesday's shift. Thus, when the supervisors saw a payroll sheet already signed in for Tuesday at a time when they were of the view that such shift did not commence until 11:00 p.m. on Tuesday, they considered appellant as having signed out ahead of time and therefore, maybe not even working until the end of the shift.

The fact is that every shift was covered and every operator including appellant worked five shifts a week. It is just that Cardella and Manfredi expected to see Dooley sometimes when they saw appellant or vice versa. However, appellant and Dooley were consistent with each other as were the substitutes from other shifts who occasionally covered. Thus, when appellant stated that he had to have Thursday and Friday off so he could have time to get his son to school for approximately eight years, he stopped work at 7:00 a.m. on Wednesday and returned to the Powerhouse at 11:00 p.m. on Friday. In that way, he had the daytime hours of Thursday and Friday off and was available to drive his son. When Manfredi testified that he believed appellant should have worked through 7:00 a.m. on Thursday and report back at 11:00 p.m. on Saturday, appellant tried to explain that those hours interfered with his parenting time.

There has been no evidence that appellant worked fewer than five shifts per week on a regular basis, unless using authorized leave time. There is no evidence that appellant signed in and out on his payroll sheet except contemporaneously. It only looked that way to Manfredi and Cardella because they were operating with a different "day" in mind. Other factual bases for my finding that appellant and the overnight boiler operators were consistent, and at least historically correct, are the boiler reading charts that "start" at 11:00 p.m. (A-2), and the boiler logs. The payroll sheets were also picked up at the end of the week by 3:00 p.m. so the Friday overnight to Saturday shift started fresh with the next sign-in sheet.

The totality of the evidence in the record does demonstrate that the supervisors had an expectation that the shifts were working different from the reality; and as supervisors, they had the authority to make a change to the long-standing and historic practice. On that point, there was conflicting testimony as to when the difference of interpretations was first discussed. Appellant asked Manfredi for a couple of months before implementing the announced change for two reasons: (1) his parenting time and school drop offs for his son would go away by the end of June and cease to be an impediment or issue because he was then a senior in high school; and (2) appellant was the most senior operator such that no matter what day you called it, he just needed and expected to be off Thursdays and Fridays before 7:00 a.m. While Manfredi presented rebuttal testimony to the effect that appellant never mentioned these personal circumstances, I FIND appellant more credible on the likelihood that these conversations and concerns were expressed because appellant was very sensitive to the issue of his parenting time.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Civil Service Act, N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to -12.6, governs a public employee's rights and duties. The Act is an important inducement to attract qualified personnel to public service and is liberally construed toward attainment of merit appointments and broad tenure protection. Essex Council No. 1, N.J. Civil Serv. Ass'n v. Gibson, 114 N.J. Super. 576 (Law Div. 1971), rev'd on other grounds, 118 N.J. Super. 583 (App. Div. 1972); Mastrobattista v. Essex County Park Comm'n, 46 N.J. 138, 147 (1965). Governmental employers also have delineated rights and obligations. The Act sets forth that it is State policy to provide appropriate appointment, supervisory and other personnel authority to public officials so they may execute properly their constitutional and statutory responsibilities. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-2(b).

"There is no constitutional or statutory right to a government job." State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Newark v. Gaines, 309 N.J. Super. 327, 334 (App. Div. 1998). A civil service employee who commits a wrongful act related to her duties, or gives other just cause, may be subject to major discipline. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-6; N.J.S.A. 11A:2-20; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3. The issues to be determined at the de novo hearing are whether the appellant is guilty of the charges brought against her and, if so, the appropriate penalty, if any, that should be imposed. See Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980); W. New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962). In this matter, the County bears the burden of proving the charges against appellant by a preponderance of the credible evidence. See In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962).

For reasonable probability to exist, the evidence must be such as to "generate belief that the tendered hypothesis is in all human likelihood the fact." Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959) (citation omitted). Preponderance may also be described as the greater weight of credible evidence in the case, not necessarily dependent on the number of witnesses, but having the greater convincing power. State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47 (1975). Therefore, the tribunal must "decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to the reasonable probability of truth." Jackson v. Del., Lackawanna and W. R.R. Co., 111 N.J.L. 487, 490

(E. & A. 1933). This dispute does not turn on a legal interpretation but a factual one.

Based upon the facts set forth above, I CONCLUDE that the respondent has not proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence that appellant falsified any records or "stole" time from the County. Furthermore, the evidence supports that there was a well-established pattern and practice of calling the overnight shift by the day of the week during which most of the hours occurred and the shift ended, and not the day it began at one hour until midnight. While it is apparent that respondent required the third shift boiler operators to stop using the time sheets and clock in that manner, it was also shown by the preponderance of the credible evidence that appellant had oral permission to continue as they always had been for just a couple of more months until his son graduated high school. Thereafter, appellant's visitation rights would no longer be impacted by the supervisor's differing view of the third shift "days."

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that respondent has not met its burden of proof on these disciplinary charges and that they must be dismissed.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the disciplinary action entered in the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action of the County of Hudson, Department of Roads and Property against appellant Jose Morales is hereby REVERSED. It is further ORDERED that appellant Jose Morales is entitled to back pay and any other benefits that would have otherwise accrue had he not served this six-month suspension.

It is further ORDERED that reasonable counsel fees should be awarded to the appellant as the prevailing party, subject to submittal of an affidavit of services and supporting documentation to the appointing agency, if settlement of fees is not successful, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, MERIT SYSTEM PRACTICES AND LABOR RELATIONS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, P.O. Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

9. Otero acknowledges that this Agreement does not constitute and shall not be construed as an admission, violation of any law, rule or regulation, breach of any contract or commitment of any wrongdoing whatsoever on the part of the City.

10. Should any of the provisions of this Agreement be declared or determined by a court to be illegal or invalid, the validity of the remaining parts, terms, or provisions shall not be affected thereby and said illegal or invalid part, term or provision shall be deemed not to be a part of this Agreement.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have set their hands and seals the day and year first above written.

Mr. Sciarra and Mr. Glickman:

I am the Deputy Director in charge of this agency's hearings unit. We have received the proposed settlement agreement for Erika Otero regarding her appeal of a 30 working day suspension.

Before this matter can be presented to the Civil Service Commission for acknowledgement, clarification is necessary. Specifically, while the settlement attaches a new memorandum indicating that the charges are upheld based on modified specifications, no change in penalty is indicated. I just want to make sure that what this means is that the original 30 working day suspension is remaining as such, just that the specifications have changed.

Please let me know as soon as possible if this is the intention of the parties. If not, please clarify further. An e-mail response is sufficient so long as it is agreed upon by the parties.

Thank you in advance for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. CSV 00755-16
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2016-1883

IN THE MATTER OF ISAAC WILLIAMS, CITY OF WILDWOOD, DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS AND PUBLIC PROPERTY.

Issac Williams, appellant, pro se

William G. Blaney, Esq., appearing for respondent, (Blaney & Karavan, P.C., attorneys)

Record Closed: April 1, 2017 Decided: May 16, 2017

BEFORE DEAN J. BUONO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Appellant, Isaac Williams (Williams or appellant), an employee of respondent, City of Wildwood Department of Public Works and Public Property (City), appeals from the determination of respondent that he be removed for an incident that occurred on February 17, 2015. Respondent argues that he violated: N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct Unbecoming; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) Neglect of Duty; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) Other Sufficient Cause; City of Wildwood Workplace Violence Policy; City of Wildwood Employee Policies and Procedures Manual and the Progressive Discipline Policy "Unauthorized Use of Computers, Internet and Email". The appellant denies the allegations.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On September 2, 2015, the City issued a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action suspending appellant without pay indefinitely, beginning February 23, 2015. On November 17, 2015, the City issued a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action sustaining the charges and removing the appellant from his position, effective November 17, 2015. Appellant filed a timely notice of appeal.

The Division of Appeals and Regulatory Affairs of the Civil Service Commission transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on January 8, 2016. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was held on February 2, 2017. Appellant was afforded the opportunity to present an oral summation. The record remained open until March 1, 2017, for the respondent to submit a written summation argument. Also, appellant was afforded the opportunity to present a written summation, if he so chose, by April 1, 2017. On that date, the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Testimony for respondents

Detective John Elwell (Elwell) testified for the respondents that he has been employed by the City of Wildwood for the past ten years as a Police Officer; the last four of which have been as a Detective.

He recalled that on February 17, 2015, he received an assault complaint about an incident that occurred between Williams and Wilmont Jones. Both individuals are Laborers with the City of Wildwood and the specifics were that Williams threatened Jones with a knife while on the job.

On February 20, 2015, Elwell instituted an active investigation and interviewed everyone involved, including Williams and Jones. The investigation was reduced to a report. (R-6 Detective Report). The investigation revealed that another employee told Williams that he was not pulling his fair share of work while shoveling snow. Williams pulled a "pocket knife" out of his pocket and gestured to Jones as if he was going to throw the knife at him several times. Williams acknowledged the incident and agreed that it happened in that manner, but it was done in a playful manner. Williams was charged with aggravated assault, but the charges were summarily dismissed by the County Prosecutor's Office. Elwell did not know why it was dismissed. He also testified that Jones has a significant disability and "you can tell" but do not know what it is. He said he has trouble communicating, verbalizing and also wears a hearing aide.

Herman Seney Jr. (Seney) has been employed by the City of Wildwood Public Works for twenty-two years in Street Maintenance as a Truck Driver.

On February 17, 2015, he went to work because there was a significant snowfall. He was assigned to drive a salt truck with Williams and Jones. At some point, Williams, Jones and another employee were shoveling salt out of the truck. Williams then returned and sat in the truck refusing to do any work. Williams then got out of the truck and said, "You better not say it," to Jones. At that same time, Williams was motioning with a knife in his hand as if he was going to throw the knife at Jones.

Seney also testified that Jones is "slow" and wears hearing aids. Nevertheless, it was obvious that he was "scared." Also, since the incident, Williams has intimidated him as a witness and said, "I'm gonna [sic] get you." On one occasion, Williams kicked the grill of Seney's truck and he "says stuff" to him all the time.

Wilmont Jones (Jones) testified that he has worked at Public Works for a number of years with his brother. He recalled that Williams had a knife in his hand and motioned that he was going to throw a knife at him four to five times. He stated with particularity that he was also "scared" and "I moved back."

During his testimony I observed that Mr. Jones was wearing at least one hearing aid and had some difficulty hearing some of the questions. Also, based on some of his responses, it is my impression that he had difficulty comprehending some of the questions and verbalizing his responses.

Mark D'Amico (D'Amico) had been employed by the City of Wildwood for thirty-one years. He is currently retired from Wildwood City as Superintendent of Public Works. Prior to Public Works, he was employed by Wildwood City as a Police Officer.

He testified that Jones has a disability and has limited communication skills because of that mental disability. Also, he has hearing aids. Both Williams and Jones worked for him as Laborers. He became aware of the incident because Jones and other employees came in his office and told him about it. When they were in his office, it was clear that "Jones was [visibly] upset" by the incident.

He alone drafted the Write-up Notice to Terminate Employee. (R-1). It includes not only the incident involving Wilmont Jones but also use of a cell phone and social media while on city time. He explained that the City of Wildwood Policy Manual states in relevant part that there is to be "no work place violence and no cell phone usage during work." (R-8). As part of the investigation of Williams, there was a search of his open Facebook account. It revealed that on multiple occasions, Williams was accessing Facebook and posting photos while he was at work. (R-12 through R-15). This information was confirmed with Williams' work schedule. (R-35). This was not surprising since Williams has had a significant history of discipline with the City of Wildwood. (R-2).

Testimony for appellant

Isaac Williams had been a Wildwood City Public Works employee for a number of years prior to February 17, 2015. He recalled that on that date, he was called into work due to a snow storm. His work crew was tasked with clearing snow from the public areas around the City of Wildwood. While Williams was seated in the truck, Jones told Williams to get his "black ass out the truck." He admitted that while in the truck, he pulled a knife out and was gesturing to Jones with the knife with a throwing motion. The knife was initially being used to cut the inserts of his gloves but he never intended any harm toward Jones. He believes that he used good judgment on that day and did nothing wrong. He explained that he never meant to upset Jones and would never hurt him. However, he also believes that other employees put Jones up to this story and are coercing him into getting Williams fired.

FINDINGS OF FACT

For testimony to be believed, it must not only come from the mouth of a credible witness, but it also has to be credible in itself. It must elicit evidence that is from such common experience and observation that it can be approved as proper under the circumstances. See Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546 (1954); Gallo v. Gallo, 66 N.J.Super. 1 (App. Div.1961). A credibility determination requires an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). Also, "'[t]he interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony.'" State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 10 N.J. 316 (1952) (citation omitted).

A trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible, or because it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience, or because it is overborne by other testimony. Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958).

The testimony of the respondent's witnesses was especially credible and persuasive. Their testimony was clear and concise. It was obvious that they had concerns regarding Williams' actions that included promotion of safety for the individuals working in the Wildwood City Public Works facility and for Jones.

Conversely, Williams' testimony was not credible. Williams' own testimony assisted the respondent in proving the facts of the case by a preponderance of the evidence. He admitted to gesturing toward Jones with a knife as if he was going to throw it at him. However, more disturbing was that Williams failed to grasp the gravity of his actions. He believes that he used good judgment and did nothing wrong because he was just joking around. Also, Williams' attempt to shift the blame for this incident on other employees was unavailing. The dismissive comment that Jones was being put up to this story was unfounded in fact.

After hearing the testimony and reviewing the evidence, I FIND, by a preponderance of credible evidence, that on February 17, 2015, while on the job with the City of Wildwood, Williams pulled out a knife and gestured as if he was going to throw it at another employee, Jones. I FURTHER FIND, that Williams used the internet via a cellular telephone while on the job at the City of Wildwood.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Civil service employees' rights and duties are governed by the Civil Service Act and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to 11A:12-6; N.J.A.C. 4A:1-1.1. The Act is an important inducement to attract qualified people to public service and is to be liberally applied toward merit appointment and tenure protection. Mastrobattista v. Essex Cnty. Park Comm'n, 46 N.J. 138, 147 (1965). However, consistent with public policy and civil-service law, a public entity should not be burdened with an employee who fails to perform his or her duties satisfactorily or who engages in misconduct related to his or her duties. N.J.S.A. 1 1A:1-2(a). A civil-service employee who commits a wrongful act related to his or her duties, or gives other just cause, may be subject to major discipline, including removal. N.J.S.A. 1 1A:2-6; N.J.S.A. 11A:2-20; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2. The general causes for such discipline are set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2- 2.3(a).

This matter involves a major disciplinary action brought by the respondent appointing authority against the appellant. An appeal to the Merit System Board requires the OAL to conduct a hearing de novo to determine the appellant's guilt or innocence as well as the appropriate penalty, if the charges are sustained. In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (App. Div. 1987). Respondent has the burden of proof and must establish by a fair preponderance of the credible evidence that appellant was guilty of the charges. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). Evidence is found to preponderate if it establishes the reasonable probability of the fact alleged and generates a reliable belief that the tendered hypothesis, in all human likelihood, is true. See Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959), overruled on other grounds, Dwyer v. Ford Motor Co., 36 N.J. 487 (1962).

The respondent sustained charges of violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct Unbecoming; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) Neglect of Duty; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) Other Sufficient Cause; City of Wildwood Workplace Violence Policy; City of Wildwood Employee Policies and Procedures Manual and the Progressive Discipline Policy "Unauthorized Use of Computers, Internet and Email".

Initially, respondent sustained charges against appellant for Conduct Unbecoming a Public Employee, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6). "Conduct unbecoming a public employee" is an elastic phrase, which encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances "be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555 (quoting In re Zeber, 156 A.2d 821, 825 (1959)). Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (quoting Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)).

Suspension or removal may be justified where the misconduct occurred while the employee was off duty. Emmons, supra, 63 N.J. Super. at 140.

It is difficult to contemplate a more basic example of conduct which could destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services than the image of a Public Works employee gesturing that he was going to throw a knife at another employee. Also, the same individual was on his cellular telephone during work hours. I CONCLUDE that appellant's actions constitute unbecoming conduct, and the charge of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) is hereby SUSTAINED.

The respondent also sustained charges for a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) (Neglect of Duty). Neglect of Duty can arise from an omission or failure to perform a duty as well as negligence. Generally, the term "neglect" connotes a deviation from normal standards of conduct. In re Kerlin, 151 N.J. Super. 179, 186 (App. Div 1977). "Duty" signifies conformance to "the legal standard of reasonable conduct in the light of the apparent risk." Wytupeck v. Camden, 25 N.J. 450, 461 (1957). Neglect of duty can arise from omission to perform a required duty as well as from misconduct or misdoing. Cf. State v. Dunphy, 19 N.J. 531, 534 (1955). Although the term "neglect of duty" is not defined in the New Jersey Administrative Code, the charge has been interpreted to mean that an employee has neglected to perform and act as required by his or her job title or was negligent in its discharge. Avanti v. Dep't of Military and Veterans Affairs, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 564; Ruggiero v. Jackson Twp. Dep't of Law and Safety, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 214.

Again, it is difficult to contemplate a more basic example of neglect of duty than the image of a Public Works employee gesturing that he was going to throw a knife at another employee. Also, the same individual was on his cellular telephone during work hours. I CONCLUDE that appellant's actions constitute neglect of duty, and the charge of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) is hereby SUSTAINED.

Appellant has also been charged with a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) (Other Sufficient Cause). Specifically, appellant is charged with violations of the Other Sufficient Cause; City of Wildwood Workplace Violence Policy; City of Wildwood Employee Policies and Procedures Manual and the Progressive Discipline Policy "Unauthorized Use of Computers, Internet and Email".

It is noted that the preliminary and final notices of disciplinary action (R-3 and R-4) indicate the sustained charges. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the consideration of the charges constituting a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) (Other Sufficient Cause) will be limited to the regulations, rules and general orders specifically enumerated in the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action. (R-4).

As such, appellant is charged with violating City of Wildwood Workplace Violence Policy. (R-6). The rule provides that:

> The City of Wildwood will not tolerate workplace violence. Violent acts or threats made by an employee against another person or property are cause for immediate dismissal and will be fully prosecuted. This includes any violence or threats made on municipal property, at municipal events or under other circumstances that may negatively affect the Municipality's ability to conduct business.
>
> Prohibited conduct includes, but may not be limited to:
>
> 3. Aggressive, hostile or bullying behavior that creates a reasonable fear of injury to another person or subjects another individual to emotional distress.
> 5. Possession of a weapon while on Municipal property or while on Municipal business, except for those uniformed officers permitted to do so by law. (R-8 pg. 8).

The record reflects in all of the testimony that while on the job for the City of Wildwood, Williams pulled a knife out of his pocket and gestured that he was going to throw it at another employee, Jones. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of the City of Wildwood's Policy on Workplace Violence and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

Finally, the City of Wildwood Employee Policies and Procedures Manual and the Progressive Discipline Policy address the "Care In Use of Email, Voicemail, Internet and Computer Network Systems". It has a provision that prohibits the recording of "job related incidents or occurrences with any... cellular telephone." (R-8 pg. 26).

R-11 through R-33 are photographs that were placed on Williams' personal Facebook account. The images reflect that Williams photographed incidents and occurrences during his work hours at the City of Wildwood. Also, he posted them to his personal Facebook account during those same times. Appellant did not comply with the City of Wildwood Employee Policies and Procedures Manual involving "Care In Use of Email, Voicemail, Internet and Computer Network Systems". Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of this section and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

Having met its burden in demonstrating violations of City of Wildwood Workplace Violence Policy and the City of Wildwood Employee Policies and Procedures Manual, "Care In Use of Email, Voicemail, Internet and Computer Network Systems," I CONCLUDE that the charge of a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12), Other Sufficient Cause, is hereby SUSTAINED.

PENALTY

Where appropriate, concepts of progressive discipline involving penalties of increasing severity are used in imposing a penalty and in determining the reasonableness of a penalty. West New York v. Bock, supra, 38 N.J. 523-24. Factors determining the degree of discipline include the employee's prior disciplinary record and the gravity of the instant misconduct.

However, it is well established that where the underlying conduct is of an egregious nature, the imposition of a penalty up to and including removal is appropriate, regardless of an individual's disciplinary history. See Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). It is settled that the theory of progressive discipline is not a fixed and immutable rule to be followed without question. Rather, it is recognized that some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished prior record. See Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474 (2007).

The record reflects that while employed by the City of Wildwood, appellant has been reprimanded and/or received a written warning on eighteen prior occasions and has been suspended on two occasions. Two of the prior incidents were for altercations with other employees. Absence of judgment alone can be sufficient to warrant termination if the employee is in a sensitive position that requires public trust in the agency's judgment. See In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19, 32 (2007) (DYFS worker who waved a lit cigarette lighter in a five-year-old's face was terminated, despite lack of any prior discipline).

"There is no constitutional or statutory right to a government job." State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Newark v. Gaines, 309 N.J. Super. 327, 334 (App. Div. 1998). (NOTE: Gaines had a substantial prior disciplinary history, but the case is frequently quoted as a threshold statement of civil service law.)

"In addition, there is no right or reason for a government to continue employing an incompetent and inefficient individual after a showing of inability to change." Klusaritz v. Cape May County, 387 N.J. Super. 305, 317 (App. Div. 2006) (termination was the proper remedy for a county treasurer who couldn't balance the books, after the auditors tried three times to show him how).

> In reversing the MSB's insistence on progressive discipline, contrary to the wishes of the appointing authority, the Klusaritz panel stated that "[t]he [MSB's] application of progressive discipline in this context is misplaced and contrary to the public interest." The court determined that Klusaritz's prior record is "of no moment" because his lack of competence to perform the job rendered him unsuitable for the job and subject to termination by the county.
> [In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19, 35-36 (2007) (citations omitted).]

Considering the foregoing, the respondent seeks termination of the appellant. Considering the record in the present matter including the appellant's attitude, disciplinary record, the nature of the job duties and the nature of the charges, I CONCLUDE that the respondent's action terminating appellant be AFFIRMED.

DECISION AND ORDER

I ORDER that the charges of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct Unbecoming; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) Neglect of Duty; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) Other Sufficient Cause be SUSTAINED. I further ORDER that the charges of violating the City of Wildwood Workplace Violence Policy and City of Wildwood Employee Policies and Procedures Manual "Care In Use of Email, Voicemail, Internet and Computer Network Systems" be SUSTAINED. I FURTHER ORDER respondent to terminate appellant from employment with the City of Wildwood.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, PO Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Re: Timothy Crotto v. Vineland Developmental Center, Department of Human Services (CSC Docket No. 2017-3522 and OAL Docket No. CSV 7311-17) - SETTLEMENT

Dear Mr. Scorzetti and Ms. Pinkas:

The appeal of Timothy Crotto, a Residential Services Worker at Vineland Developmental Center, Department of Human Services, of his removal, effective January 13, 2017 on charges, was before Administrative Law Judge Lisa James-Beavers (ALJ), who issued her initial decision on June 28, 2017 indicating that the parties had reached a settlement.

The Civil Service Commission (Commission) received this matter on June 30, 2016. Accordingly, the time frame for the Commission to make its final decision expires on August 14, 2017. See N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6. In this regard, if the Commission could not decide the matter by that date, it would normally secure an initial 45-day extension of time to render its final decision. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8. However, currently one of the three Commission members must be recused from participating on this particular matter, thus, there is not a quorum of members available to vote. Until such a quorum is secured, or, in other words, until an additional Commission member is seated, this matter cannot be decided by the Commission. We have no timeframe as to when that may occur. Based on this information, and given the fact that the matter was settled by the parties and a review of the settlement by staff indicates that it is in compliance with Civil Service law and rules, there does not appear to be a basis to further delay a final disposition in this matter. Thus, the Commission has determined not to seek any extensions on this matter and, per N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c), it is to be considered deemed adopted, effective August 15, 2017.

Sincerely,

OAL DKT. NO. CSV 04011-16
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2016-3090

IN THE MATTER OF MATTHEW CALIO,
CAMDEN COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS.

William B. Hildebrand, Esq. appearing for appellant, Matthew Calio (Law Offices of William B. Hildebrand, attorneys)

Antonieta P. Rinaldi, Assistant County Counsel, appearing for respondent, Camden County Department of Corrections (Christopher A. Orlando, County Counsel, attorney)

Record Closed: April 13, 2017 Decided: May 30, 2017

BEFORE DEAN J. BUONO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Appellant, Matthew Calio (Calio or appellant), an employee of respondent, Camden County Department of Corrections (DOC), appeals from the determination of respondent that he be suspended for thirty days for an incident on August 24, 2015. Respondent argues that he violated: N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) Insubordination; N.J.A.C.

4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct Unbecoming; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) Neglect of Duty; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) Other Sufficient Cause; Camden County Correctional Facility Rules of Conduct (C.C.C.F.): 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination; 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty and 3.2 Security. The appellant denies the allegations and contends that he acted appropriately.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On September 21, 2015, the DOC issued a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action suspending appellant without pay for thirty days. On February 17, 2016, the DOC issued a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action sustaining the charges and suspending the appellant from his position effective February 18, 2016, through March 18, 2016. Appellant filed a timely notice of appeal.

The Division of Appeals and Regulatory Affairs of the Civil Service Commission transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on March 14, 2016. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was held on October 24, 2016. The record remained open until December 1, 2016, for the appellant to renew a Motion to Consolidate with CSV 05868-2016. The motion was received on December 5, 2016, and denied on February 10, 2017. Closing summations were ordered on April 7, 2017, with an extension granted to the parties until April 13, 2017, and the record closed on that date.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Testimony

Warden Karen Taylor testified for the respondent that she has been employed by the Camden County Correctional Facility for twenty years and had been appointed Warden on October 23, 2016. At time of this incident she maintained the rank of Captain.

On August 24, 2015, she noticed inmates sitting outside the kitchen and "disrupting activities." She contacted her subordinate officer to address the significant "security concern". She showed a video of the incident wherein Calio remained seated at a hallway desk immediately outside the kitchen. The video also showed an inmate sitting outside of the kitchen door next to Calio's desk, within arm's reach of Calio. (R-3 at 4:48-4:58 inmate on milk crate). She explained that Calio was told a week prior that he was not to allow inmates in the hallway. (R-2). As a result, a complaint was lodged by Lt. Sweeten against Calio. (R-4).

The violations in the complaint include: N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) Insubordination; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct Unbecoming; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) Neglect of Duty; and N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) Other Sufficient Cause. The warden explained that the allegations of insubordination were because of the safety concern for inmates in a hallway around the kitchen. Calio was told about this concern on August 19, 2015, in the kitchen passbook and chose to ignore it. (R-4). She explained that it was common for inmates to take advantage of officers and that usually leads to a "bad" end result. He was charged with violations of the C.C.C.F.: 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination; 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty and 3.2 Security. (R-6).

With respect to violations of the C.C.C.F. General Orders, she explained the duties of a Kitchen Officer and noted that there was a violation of Order Number 8, which provides the need for security and control for civilians. (R-7). She also indicated violations of the C.C.C.F.'s General Order 73: Personal Conduct of Employees. Pointing to regulation numbers four and twelve, she noted that employees will comply with all departmental rules and regulations and all laws of the United States and the State of New Jersey, and that all employees are responsible to know all departmental policies as well as county policies and act in accordance with them, respectively. (R-8).

Finally, the Warden indicated that all sworn personnel will conduct themselves in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, the New Jersey Constitution and all applicable laws and rules enacted or established pursuant to legal authority. Sworn personnel are also obligated to follow all other departmental and county policies. By not following the General Orders, Calio was in violation of the C.C.C.F.'s General Order number 74. (R-9).

After the disciplinary charges lodged by Lt. Sweeten were explained to Calio, he apologized and said that the "inmate was working" and that he was permitted to be in the hallway. It was at this time, that he was told about another disciplinary issue regarding his pat-down searches of inmates. He explained that he would improve his pat searches.

Warden Owens was disappointed at Calio because he disregarded her order and the safety concern for the facility. The kitchen is a place where a lot of contraband exists (kitchen cutlery and utensils) and there is a high security risk if any of the contraband should make its way into the general population. It was obvious that he failed to comprehend the gravity of his actions/inactions.

On cross-examination, Warden Taylor testified that on the twenty-fourth, she saw inmates in the hallway and told Lt. Sweeten to address her concern and he did. (R-4). He instructed Calio to put the order in the passbook and not to have inmates in the hallway. (R-2). Also, the person on the crate was a runner. His job as it related to the kitchen was to get trays off the elevator and transfer them to the kitchen staff. She indicated that at one point there were "several inmates" in the hallway, not just the runner, which is unacceptable.

Matthew Calio has been a Correction Officer for Camden County for sixteen years. He was hired on March 12, 2001. The facility works on twelve hour shifts.

He introduced a number of character exhibits including: (A-1 Basic Training Certificate), (A-2 Oath of Office), (A-3 Prosecutor's Letters), (A-4 Service Honor), (A-5 Employee of Month), (A-6 Certificate of Appreciation), (A-7 Pay Records (perfect attendance), (A-8 Attendance Awards), (A-9 Performance Evaluations, (A-10 Warden's Award 5/2001), (A-11 Officer of the Year 10/2011), (A-12 Unemployment Tribunal), (A-13 Pass Book note from August 19, 2015), (A-14 Certificate of Appreciation), (A-15 Volunteer for 911 request).[1]

In August 2015, Calio was assigned to a kitchen "bid" post. A "bid" post is an officer's personal selection of posting but bid by that officer. On August 19, 2015, he made the first entry in the passbook. That was the result of a discussion with Captain Taylor regarding inmates in the hallway outside the kitchen. It was common for inmates be in the hallway, "playing nerf football" but Captain Taylor wanted everyone in the kitchen for security reasons, even the runner who is always in the vestibule doors.

The common practice at the time was to have the runner in the hallway to make the process of unloading the trays from the elevator. However, he believed, the runner was not blocking the door or goofing off and he is still in "disbelief" that it is a breach of security. Calio was adamant that he "did not agree" with Taylor. He thought when he was given the order that it was meant only for people who weren't working. The runner was working. It was simply a "misunderstanding". He said that he apologized for the "misunderstanding" but believed he was complying with the order. Also, he has already been punished by being assigned to "three south", which is an undesirable post.

He believes that he used good judgment on that day and did nothing wrong. He explained that all the corrections officers always performed their duties in the same manner as he had done. He was not insubordinate because he believed "all inmates in kitchen" meant only the inmates who were not working at the time.

FINDINGS OF FACT

For testimony to be believed, it must not only come from the mouth of a credible witness, but it also has to be credible in itself. It must elicit evidence that is from such common experience and observation that it can be approved as proper under the circumstances. See Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546 (1954); Gallo v. Gallo, 66 N.J. Super. 1 (App. Div.1961). A credibility determination requires an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). Also, "'[t]he interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony.'" State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 10 N.J. 316 (1952) (citation omitted).

[1] At the hearing, Calio's exhibits were marked "R". However, for ease of this Decision, they have been changed to "A" to represent the Appellant.

A trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible, or because it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience, or because it is overborne by other testimony. Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958).

The testimony of Warden Taylor was especially credible and persuasive. Her testimony was clear and concise. It was obvious that her concerns regarding inmates in the hallway were to promote the safety of the inmates and individuals working in the facility.

Conversely, Calio's testimony was not credible. Calio's own testimony assisted the respondent in proving the facts of the case by a preponderance of the evidence. It was disturbing that Calio failed to grasp the gravity of his actions. He believes that he used good judgment and did nothing wrong and explained that the corrections officers always performed their duties in that manner. He was not insubordinate because he believed "all inmates in the kitchen" meant only the ones who were not working. These comments deeply concerned the undersigned because it was apparent that Calio did not comprehend the fact that dangerous contraband (knives, forks, spoons, kitchen utensils) exist in the kitchen and pose a significant threat to all personnel and inmates in the facility if it were to find its way into general population. Calio's takes the position that other corrections officers always performed their duties in the same manner, so it is acceptable.

After hearing the testimony and reviewing the evidence, I FIND, by a preponderance of credible evidence, that on August 19, 2015, Calio made an entry in the passbook that all inmates must be in the kitchen. I FURTHER FIND, on August 24, 2015, Warden Taylor noticed inmates sitting outside kitchen and "disrupting activities." I FURTHER FIND, that a video showed an inmate sitting outside the kitchen door next to Calio's desk, within arm's reach of Calio.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Civil service employees' rights and duties are governed by the Civil Service Act and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to 11A:12-6; N.J.A.C.4A:1-1.1. The Act is an important inducement to attract qualified people to public service and is to be liberally applied toward merit appointment and tenure protection. Mastrobattista v. Essex Cnty. Park Comm'n, 46 N.J. 138, 147 (1965). However, consistent with public policy and civil-service law, a public entity should not be burdened with an employee who fails to perform his or her duties satisfactorily or who engages in misconduct related to his or her duties. N.J.S.A. 1 1A:1-2(a). A civil-service employee who commits a wrongful act related to his or her duties, or gives other just cause, may be subject to major discipline, including removal. N.J.S.A. 1 1A:2-6; N.J.S.A. 11A:2-20; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2. The general causes for such discipline are set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2- 2.3(a).

This matter involves a major disciplinary action brought by the respondent appointing authority against the appellant. An appeal to the Merit System Board requires the OAL to conduct a hearing de novo to determine the appellant's guilt or innocence as well as the appropriate penalty, if the charges are sustained. In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (App. Div. 1987). Respondent has the burden of proof and must establish by a fair preponderance of the credible evidence that appellant was guilty of the charges. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). Evidence is found to preponderate if it establishes the reasonable probability of the fact alleged and generates a reliable belief that the tendered hypothesis, in all human likelihood, is true. See Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104

(App. Div. 1959), overruled on other grounds, Dwyer v. Ford Motor Co., 36 N.J. 487 (1962).

The respondent sustained charges of violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) (Insubordination); N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) (Conduct Unbecoming); N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) (Neglect of Duty); N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) (Other Sufficient Cause); Camden County Correctional Facility Rules of Conduct (C.C.C.F.): 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination; 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty and 3.2 Security.

Regarding the charge of insubordination, to the extent that appellant is charged with violation of Rule of Conduct 1.4, which addresses Insubordination and Serious Breach of Security, consideration of such violation will be addressed in concert with the current analysis. Black's Law Dictionary 802 (7th Ed. 1999) defines insubordination as a "willful disregard of an employer's instructions" or an "act of disobedience to proper authority." Webster's II New College Dictionary (1995) defines insubordination as "not submissive to authority: disobedient." Such dictionary definitions have been utilized by courts to define the term where it is not specifically defined in contract or regulation.

> 'Insubordination' is not defined in the agreement. Consequently, assuming for purposes of argument that its presence is implicit, we are obliged to accept its ordinary definition since it is not a technical term or word of art and there are no circumstances indicating that a different meaning was intended.
> [Ricci v. Corporate Express of the East, Inc., 344 N.J. Super. 39, 45 (App. Div. 2001) (citation omitted).]

Importantly, this definition incorporates acts of non-compliance and non-cooperation, as well as affirmative acts of disobedience. Thus, insubordination can occur even where no specific order or direction has been given to the allegedly insubordinate person. Insubordination is always a serious matter, especially in a paramilitary context. "Refusal to obey orders and disrespect cannot be tolerated. Such conduct adversely affects the morale and efficiency of the department." Rivell v. Civil Serv. Comm'n, 115 N.J. Super. 64, 72 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 59 N.J. 269 (1971).

In the present matter, appellant's disregard of a direct order is evidence of insubordination. His argument that it was simply a "misunderstanding" is not lucid nor comprehensible. He was given a direct comprehensible order and chose his own convenient interpretation. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating support to sustain a charge of insubordination. Charges of violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) and Rule of Conduct 1.4 are hereby SUSTAINED.

Respondent also sustained charges against appellant for Conduct Unbecoming a Public Employee, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6). "Conduct unbecoming a public employee" is an elastic phrase, which encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also In re Emmons, 63 NJ. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances "be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555 (quoting In re Zeber, 156 A.2d 821, 825 (1959)). Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (quoting Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)). Suspension or removal may be justified where the misconduct occurred while the employee was off duty. Emmons, supra, 63 N.J. Super. at 140.

It is difficult to contemplate a more basic example of conduct which could destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services than the image of a public employee disregarding a direct order and allowing inmates in a correctional facility to do as they pleased. I CONCLUDE that appellant's actions constitute unbecoming conduct, and the charge of such is hereby SUSTAINED.

The respondent also sustained charges for a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) (Neglect of Duty). Neglect of duty can arise from an omission or failure to perform a duty as well as negligence. Generally, the term "neglect" connotes a deviation from normal standards of conduct. In re Kerlin, 151 N.J. Super. 179, 186 (App. Div 1977). "Duty" signifies conformance to "the legal standard of reasonable conduct in the light of the apparent risk." Wytupeck v. Camden, 25 N.J. 450, 461 (1957). Neglect of duty can arise from omission to perform a required duty as well as from misconduct or misdoing. Cf. State v. Dunphy, 19 N.J. 531, 534 (1955). Although the term "neglect of duty" is not defined in the New Jersey Administrative Code, the charge has been interpreted to mean that an employee has neglected to perform and act as required by his or her job title or was negligent in its discharge. Avanti v. Dep't of Military and Veterans Affairs, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (CSV) 564; Ruggiero v. Jackson Twp. Dep't of Law and Safety, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (CSV) 214.

Again, it is difficult to contemplate a more basic example of neglect of duty than the image of a public employee in a correctional facility failing to follow a direct order from a superior officer. I CONCLUDE that appellant's actions constitute neglect of duty, and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

Appellant has also been charged with a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) (Other Sufficient Cause). Specifically, appellant is charged with violations of the Camden County Correctional Facility Rules of Conduct (C.C.C.F.): 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination; 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty and 3.2 Security.

It is noted that the Preliminary and Final Notices of Disciplinary Action (R-1) indicate the sustained charges and conclude with the words "et al." Obviously, such amorphous terminology taken literally would constitute insufficient notice to appellant of the charges faced, and would be impossible to prepare to defend. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the consideration of the charges constituting a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) (Other Sufficient Cause) will be limited to the regulations, rules and General Orders specifically enumerated in the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (R-1). Additionally, Rules of Conduct 1.2, 1.3, and 1.4 have been addressed within the discussion of violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2), (6) and (7).

As such, appellant is charged with violating Rule of Conduct 1.1, Violations in General, which is a charge of "Failure to comply with regulations, orders, directives or practices of the department, whether verbal or written by the Warden or his designee." (R-6). The rule provides that:

> Any employee who violates any rule, regulation, procedure, order or directive, either by an act of commission or omission, whether stated in this manual or elsewhere, or who violates the standard operating procedure as dictated by departmental practice, is subject to disciplinary action in accordance with the New Jersey Department of Personnel (Civil Service) rules and regulations. Disciplinary actions shall be based on the nature of the rule, regulation, procedure, order, or directive violated, the severity and circumstances of the infraction and the individual's record of conduct.

Violation of this rule would seem to be implicated by the appointing authority's allegations of violations of General Orders 73, and 74 as well as Post Order 8.

Post Order 8 (R-7) addresses the duties of a kitchen officer. Section 4 of this order states that "Provides security and control for civilians."

The record reflects in the testimony and video that a lack of control of the inmate seated in the hallway. Appellant did not fulfill the requirements of General Order 8. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of Post Order 8 and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

General Order 73 (R-8) addresses "Personal Conduct of Employees." Captain Taylor testified that appellant violated sections 4 and 12, of this order.

Section 4 states that "Employees will comply with all departmental rules and regulations and all laws of the United States and the State of New Jersey." The record reflects that appellant did not comply with the General Order he was accused of violating. I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of this section and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

Section 12 states that, "Employees are responsible to know all departmental policies as well as county policies and act in accordance with them." Irrespective of whether the appellant was aware or unaware of the specific requirement of Post Order 8, ultimately it is his responsibility to know. I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of this section and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of General Order 73.

General Order 74 (R-9) addresses "Professional Code of Conduct." Testimony revealed that appellant violated sections one of this order.

Section 1 states that, "Sworn personnel will conduct themselves in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, the New Jersey Constitution and all applicable laws and rules enacted or established pursuant to legal authority. Sworn personnel are also obligated to follow all other departmental and county policies." The evidence in the record demonstrates that appellant not only violated Post Order 8 but also N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) (Insubordination); N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) (Conduct Unbecoming); N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) (Neglect of Duty) and therefore this supports a finding of a violation of this section. I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of this section and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of General Order 74.

Having met its burden in demonstrating violations of General Orders 73 and 74, as well as Post Order 8, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has demonstrated a violation of Rule of Conduct 1.1 Alleged violations of Rules of Conduct 1.2 and 1.4 having already been addressed, I FURTHER CONCLUDE that the charge of a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12), Other Sufficient Cause, is hereby SUSTAINED.

Finally, the respondent sustained charges of 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty and 3.2 Security.

2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty is defined as "Personnel shall not engage in any activities or personal business which could cause them to neglect or be inattentive to duty." (R-6). I find nothing in the record to support a claim that would substantiate this charge, therefore I CONCLUDE that the charge of a violation of 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty, is hereby DISMISSED.

3.2 Security is defined as "[p]ersonnel shall exercise a scrupulous regard for security in their dealings with inmates and with regard to the Correctional Facility in general. Any act of commission or omission tending to undermine security shall constitute a breach of security." (R-6). I find the record to support a claim that would clearly substantiate this charge. The fact that appellant continues to fail to see the security concern in an inmate seated at such a proximate location to the security desk is troublesome. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the charge of a violation of 3.2 Security, is hereby SUSTAINED.

PENALTY

Where appropriate, concepts of progressive discipline involving penalties of increasing severity are used in imposing a penalty and in determining the reasonableness of a penalty. West New York v. Bock, supra, 38 N.J. 523-24. Factors determining the degree of discipline include the employee's prior disciplinary record and the gravity of the instant misconduct.

However, it is well established that where the underlying conduct is of an egregious nature, the imposition of a penalty up to and including removal is appropriate, regardless of an individual's disciplinary history. See Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). It is settled that the theory of progressive discipline is not a fixed and immutable rule to be followed without question. Rather, it is recognized that some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished prior record. See Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474 (2007).

The record reflects that appellant has been reprimanded on two occasions for Neglect of Duty and suspended on two occasions for Conduct Unbecoming. The first suspension was for Three days and the second for Fifteen days. Despite this fairly unremarkable disciplinary record, it is noted that a single charge of Incompetency, Inefficiency or Failure to Perform Duties by itself, can be sufficient grounds for termination in the absence of any other disciplinary history. Absence of judgment alone can be sufficient to warrant termination if the employee is in a sensitive position that requires public trust in the agency's judgment. See In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19, 32 (2007) (DYFS worker who waved a lit cigarette lighter in a five-year-old's face was terminated, despite lack of any prior discipline).

"There is no constitutional or statutory right to a government job." State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Newark v. Gaines, 309 N.J. Super. 327, 334 (App. Div. 1998). (NOTE: Gaines had a substantial prior disciplinary history, but the case is frequently quoted as a threshold statement of civil service law.)

"In addition, there is no right or reason for a government to continue employing an incompetent and inefficient individual after a showing of inability to change." Klusaritz v. Cape May County, 387 N.J. Super. 305, 317 (App. Div. 2006) (termination was the proper remedy for a county treasurer who couldn't balance the books, after the auditors tried three times to show him how).

> In reversing the MSB's insistence on progressive discipline, contrary to the wishes of the appointing authority, the Klusaritz panel stated that "[t]he [MSB's] application of progressive discipline in this context is misplaced and contrary to the public interest." The court determined that Klusaritz's prior record is "of no moment" because his lack of competence to perform the job rendered him unsuitable for the job and subject to termination by the county.
> [In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19, 35-36 (2007) (citations omitted).]

Considering the foregoing, the respondent seeks a Thirty-Day suspension. Considering the record in the present matter including the appellant's disciplinary record, the nature of the job duties and the nature of the charges, I CONCLUDE that the respondent's action suspending appellant for Thirty Days without pay was justified.

DECISION AND ORDER

I ORDER that the charges of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) (Insubordination); N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) (Conduct Unbecoming); N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) (Neglect of Duty); N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) (Other Sufficient Cause) be SUSTAINED. I further ORDER that the charges of violating Camden County Correctional Facility Rules of Conduct (C.C.C.F.): 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination and 3.2 Security also be SUSTAINED. The charge of 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty is hereby DISMISSED. I FURTHER ORDER respondent's imposition of a Thirty-Day suspension without pay is AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION
OF THE
CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: JUL 17 2017 BW

The appeal of Matthew Calio, County Correction Officer, Camden County, Department of Corrections, 150 calendar day suspension, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Dean J. Buono, who rendered his initial decision on May 30, 2017. Exceptions were filed on behalf of the appellant and a reply to exceptions was filed on behalf of the appointing authority.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision, increasing the 150 calendar day suspension to a 180 calendar day suspension, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission, at its meeting on July 13, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision. The Commission notes this increase in penalty is warranted based on the appellant's egregious misconduct, his failure to appreciate the seriousness of his actions as well as his previous disciplinary history.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in suspending the appellant was justified and increases the 150 calendar day suspension to a 180 day calendar day suspension. The Commission therefore dismisses the appeal of Matthew Calio.

Re: Matthew Calio

This is the final administrative determination in this matter. Any further review should be pursued in a judicial forum.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. CSV 05868-16
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2016-3565

IN THE MATTER OF MATTHEW CALIO,
CAMDEN COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS.

William B. Hildebrand, Esq. appearing for appellant, Matthew Calio (Law Offices of William B. Hildebrand, attorneys)

Antonieta P. Rinaldi, Assistant County Counsel, appearing for respondent Camden County Department of Corrections (Christopher A. Orlando, County Counsel)

Record Closed: April 13, 2016 Decided: May 30, 2017

BEFORE DEAN J. BUONO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Appellant, Matthew Calio (Calio or appellant), an employee of respondent, Camden County Department of Corrections (DOC), appeals from the determination of respondent that he be suspended for One Hundred Fifty (150) days for an incident on August 25, 2015. Respondent argues that he violated: N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1) Incompetency, Inefficiency, Failure to Perform Duties; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) Insubordination; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct Unbecoming; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7)

Neglect of Duty; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) Other Sufficient Cause; Camden County Correctional Facility Rules of Conduct (C.C.C.F.): 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination; 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty; 3.2 Security; General Order 73; General Order 74; General Order 79 and Post Order 8. The appellant denies the allegations and contends that he acted appropriately.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On October 1, 2015, the DOC issued a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action suspending appellant without pay for 150 days. On March 25, 2016, the DOC issued a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action sustaining the charges and suspending the appellant from his position effective March 25, 2016, through August 21, 2016. Appellant filed a timely notice of appeal.

The Division of Appeals and Regulatory Affairs of the Civil Service Commission transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on April 15, 2016. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was held on October 24, 2016. The record remained open until December 1, 2016, for the appellant to renew a Motion to Consolidate with CSV 04011-2016. The motion was received on December 5, 2016, and denied after oral argument. Closing summations were ordered for April 13, 2017, and the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Testimony

Sergeant Robert Parker (Parker) testified for the respondents and has been employed by the Camden County Department of Corrections for seventeen and one-half years. He is currently the Training Commander and on average performs twenty-five to thirty-five pat searches per day. He explained that the purpose of a pat search is to limit contraband entering and moving through the facility.

He demonstrated a pat search on another correction officer. The process can best be described as a thorough searching and touching of the body and extremities including under the arms and between the legs, to determine if any items are attempting to be concealed.

Warden Karen Taylor (Taylor) also testified for the respondent. She has been employed by the Camden County Correctional Facility for twenty years and had been appointed Warden on October 23, 2016. At time of this incident she maintained the rank of Captain.

On September 2, 2015, Captain Blackwell noticed Officer Calio was poorly searching inmates and said she would handle it. However, Warden Taylor reviewed the institutional video of the incident which was dated, September 2, 2015. Calio was observed from 7:08 a.m.-11:58 a.m. She articulated that it showed poor searches or no searches at all on inmates coming in or out of the kitchen area. (R-2). In fact, there was more than forty no searches, more than forty improper searches and only six acceptable pat searches.

The video was played and paused at several instances throughout the Warden's testimony:

7:15 a.m. air patdown (airpat); touches back and slides down outside of the hips)
7:25 a.m. "air pat" but did not check juice containers
7:27 a.m. "air pat" six inmates
7:32 a.m. no search at all

The Warden stated that what is "most shocking" is that Calio doesn't even get up from his chair. "Looking at the video five hours was enough". She was "very shocked" at what she saw. She was clear that Calio "was not being harassed" by her. In fact, she was simply looking out for the safety of the facility. "I'll make him do his job." "Failure to do your job will not be tolerated." The significant discipline requested was because Calio had been counseled about his poor search techniques on August 25, 2015, and apologized for it. Then, on September 2, his poor performance continued, evidencing that Calio simply "refused to do what he was told".

On cross-examination, the Warden conceded that inspection of juice containers and food trays is not specifically articulated in (R-9). However, it is mentioned in (R-12). Also, she does not know if any contraband got passed Calio. But, the only reason she does not know is because Calio did not do his job effectively to uncover any items. "Laziness is the case of improper searches and discipline has corrected it over the past year."

Matthew Calio has been a Correction Officer for Camden County for sixteen years. He was hired on March 12, 2001. The facility works on twelve hour shifts.

He introduced several character exhibits including: (A-1) Basic Training Certificate, (A-2) Oath of Office, (R-3) Prosecutor's Letters, (A-4) Service Honor, (A-5) Employee of Month, (A-6) Certificate of Appreciation, (A-7) Pay Records (perfect attendance), (A-8) Attendance Awards, (A-9) Performance Evaluations, (A-10) Warden's Award 5/2001, (A-11) Officer of the Year 10/2011, (A-12) Unemployment Tribunal, (A-13) Pass Book note from August 19, 2015, (A-14) Certificate of Appreciation, (A-15) Volunteer for 911 request.[1]

In August and September 2015, Calio was assigned to his kitchen "bid" post. Bid post are for officers to choose the post and bid on it. He completes 250 pat down searches per day and several thousand pat down searches per month. He never had a problem with contraband getting in the facility.

"Pat searches are a dangerous activity." "When you bend down to search it puts you in a very difficult and compromising position." He conceded that if you do not properly search individuals that is also dangerous. He recalled being confronted by Taylor in August about the quality of his pat down searches. His response to her was "Ma'am, I apologize. I'll do my best." After that he stated that he tried to do his best.

[1] Appellant submitted Exhibits labelled with "R". For ease of reading, the Exhibits are being referred to as "A" for appellant.

As a defense, Calio claims that there is no remedial training in pat down searches. He claims that he needs a refresher course. There are other aspects of law enforcement that require continued training, but not for searches. However, he admitted to violating Post Order Number 8 (R-9) which requires "searches of all inmates arriving/departing from the kitchen." He claimed that he didn't search everyone because that is "what the guys do". In fact, he reiterated that he did not make full searches of inmates "for his own safety" but "it gets done the way they want it now."

He believes that he used good judgment on that day and did nothing wrong; explaining that all the correction officers performed their duties the same way. He "didn't conduct proper pat searches for his own safety" and he lacked proper continued training.

FINDINGS OF FACT

For testimony to be believed, it must not only come from the mouth of a credible witness, but it also has to be credible in itself. It must elicit evidence that is from such common experience and observation that it can be approved as proper under the circumstances. See Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546 (1954); Gallo v. Gallo, 66 N.J.Super. 1 (App. Div.1961). A credibility determination requires an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). Also, "'[t]he interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony.'" State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 10 N.J. 316 (1952) (citation omitted).

A trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible, or because it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience, or because it is overborne by other testimony. Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958).

The testimony of Taylor was especially credible and persuasive. Her testimony was clear and concise. It was obvious that her concerns regarding inmate searches were to promote the safety of the inmates and individuals working in the facility.

Conversely, Calio's testimony was not credible. Calio's own testimony assisted the respondent in proving the facts of the case by a preponderance of the evidence. He admitted to not searching inmates but more disturbing is that Calio failed to grasp the gravity of his actions. He believes that he used good judgment and did nothing wrong. He explained that all the correction officers always performed their searches of inmates in the same manner as he had done. He "didn't conduct proper pat searches for his own safety" and his lack of access to training. Calio's attempt to shift the blame for this incident on his employer is unavailing. The dismissive comment that "it gets done the way they want it now" deeply concerns the undersigned.

After hearing the testimony and reviewing the evidence, I FIND, by a preponderance of credible evidence, that on August 25, 2015, Calio was counseled that the searches he was making on inmates were not proper. I FURTHER FIND, on September 2, 2015, Calio was observed failing to search inmates and making improper searches.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Civil service employees' rights and duties are governed by the Civil Service Act and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to 11A:12-6; N.J.A.C. 4A:1-1.1. The Act is an important inducement to attract qualified people to public service and is to be liberally applied toward merit appointment and tenure protection. Mastrobattista v. Essex Cnty. Park Comm'n, 46 N.J. 138, 147 (1965). However, consistent with public policy and civil-service law, a public entity should not be burdened with an employee who fails to perform his or her duties satisfactorily or who engages in misconduct related to his or her duties. N.J.S.A. 1 1A:1-2(a). A civil-service employee who commits a wrongful act related to his or her duties, or gives other just cause, may be subject to major discipline, including removal. N.J.S.A. 1 1A:2-6; N.J.S.A. 11A:2-20; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2. The general causes for such discipline are set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2- 2.3(a).

This matter involves a major disciplinary action brought by the respondent appointing authority against the appellant. An appeal to the Merit System Board requires the OAL to conduct a hearing de novo to determine the appellant's guilt or innocence as well as the appropriate penalty, if the charges are sustained. In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (App. Div. 1987). Respondent has the burden of proof and must establish by a fair preponderance of the credible evidence that appellant was guilty of the charges. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). Evidence is found to preponderate if it establishes the reasonable probability of the fact alleged and generates a reliable belief that the tendered hypothesis, in all human likelihood, is true. See Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959), overruled on other grounds, Dwyer v. Ford Motor Co., 36 N.J. 487 (1962).

The respondent sustained charges of violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1) Incompetency, Inefficiency, Failure to Perform Duties; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) Insubordination; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct Unbecoming; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) Neglect of Duty; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) Other Sufficient Cause; Camden County Correctional Facility Rules of Conduct (C.C.C.F.): 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination; 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty; 3.2 Security; General Order 73; General Order 74; General Order 79 and Post Order 8.

Initially, Calio has been charged with a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1) Incompetency, Inefficiency, Failure to Perform Duties. Calio testified that he failed to search inmates entering and leaving the kitchen. Also, the record reflects in the testimony and video Calio performing "airpats" on some inmates and on many occasions, there was no search of some inmates. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating support to sustain a charge of Incompetency, Inefficiency, Failure to Perform Duties. Charges of violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1) are hereby SUSTAINED.

Regarding the charge of Insubordination, to the extent that appellant is charged with violation of Rule of Conduct 1.4, which addresses Insubordination and serious breach of security, consideration of such violation will be addressed in concert with the current analysis. Black's Law Dictionary 802 (7th Ed. 1999) defines insubordination as a "willful disregard of an employer's instructions" or an "act of disobedience to proper authority." Webster's II New College Dictionary (1995) defines insubordination as "not submissive to authority: disobedient." Such dictionary definitions have been utilized by courts to define the term where it is not specifically defined in contract or regulation.

> 'Insubordination' is not defined in the agreement. Consequently, assuming for purposes of argument that its presence is implicit, we are obliged to accept its ordinary definition since it is not a technical term or word of art and there are no circumstances indicating that a different meaning was intended.
> [Ricci v. Corporate Express of the East, Inc., 344 N.J. Super. 39, 45 (App. Div. 2001) (citation omitted).]

Importantly, this definition incorporates acts of non-compliance and non-cooperation, as well as affirmative acts of disobedience. Thus, insubordination can occur even where no specific order or direction has been given to the allegedly insubordinate person. Insubordination is always a serious matter, especially in a paramilitary context. "Refusal to obey orders and disrespect cannot be tolerated. Such conduct adversely affects the morale and efficiency of the department." Rivell v. Civil Serv. Comm'n, 115 N.J. Super. 64, 72 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 59 N.J. 269 (1971).

In the present matter, appellant was counseled by Taylor in August about the quality of his pat down searches. His response to her was "Ma'am, I apologize. I'll do my best." After that, his testimony was that "he tried to do his best." Yet, he also testified that he "didn't conduct proper pat searches for his own safety" and his lack of access to training. His disregard of a direct order is evidence of insubordination. His argument to the contrary is not lucid nor comprehensible. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating support to sustain a charge of Insubordination. Charges of violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) and Rule of Conduct 1.4 are hereby SUSTAINED.

Respondent also sustained charges against appellant for Conduct Unbecoming a Public Employee, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6). "Conduct unbecoming a public employee" is an elastic phrase, which encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that tends to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also In re Emmons, 63 NJ. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances "be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555 (quoting In re Zeber, 156 A.2d 821, 825 (1959)). Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (quoting Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)). Suspension or removal may be justified where the misconduct occurred while the employee was off duty. Emmons, supra, 63 N.J. Super. at 140.

It is difficult to contemplate a more basic example of conduct which could destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services than the image of a Correction Officer not searching or performing an "airpat" on an inmate in a prison. Also, the same officer disregarding a direct order and allowing inmates in a correctional facility to walk freely through the institution without searches. I CONCLUDE that appellant's actions constitute unbecoming conduct, and the charge of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) is hereby SUSTAINED.

The respondent also sustained charges for a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) (Neglect of Duty). Neglect of duty can arise from an omission or failure to perform a duty as well as negligence. Generally, the term "neglect" connotes a deviation from normal standards of conduct. In re Kerlin, 151 N.J. Super. 179, 186 (App. Div 1977). "Duty" signifies conformance to "the legal standard of reasonable conduct in the light of the apparent risk." Wytupeck v. Camden, 25 N.J. 450, 461 (1957). Neglect of duty can arise from omission to perform a required duty as well as from misconduct or misdoing. Cf. State v. Dunphy, 19 N.J. 531, 534 (1955). Although the term "neglect of duty" is not defined in the New Jersey Administrative Code, the charge has been interpreted to mean that an employee has neglected to perform and act as required by his or her job title or was negligent in its discharge. Avanti v. Dep't of Military and Veterans Affairs, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 564; Ruggiero v. Jackson Twp. Dep't of Law and Safety, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 214.

Again, it is difficult to contemplate a more basic example of neglect of duty than the image of a correction officer in a correctional facility failing to search inmates. I CONCLUDE that appellant's actions constitute neglect of duty, and the charge of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) is hereby SUSTAINED.

Appellant has also been charged with a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) (Other Sufficient Cause). Specifically, appellant is charged with violations of the Camden County Correctional Facility Rules of Conduct (C.C.C.F.): 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination; 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty; 3.2 Security; General Order 73; General Order 74; General Order 79 and Post Order 8.

It is noted that the Preliminary and Final Notices of Disciplinary Action (R-1) indicate the sustained charges and conclude with the words "et al." Obviously, such amorphous terminology taken literally would constitute insufficient notice to appellant of the charges faced, and would be impossible to prepare to defend. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the consideration of the charges constituting a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) (Other Sufficient Cause) will be limited to the regulations, rules and general orders specifically enumerated in the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (R-1). Additionally, Rules of Conduct 1.2, 1.3, and 1.4 have been addressed within the discussion of violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2), (6) and (7).

As such, appellant is charged with violating Rule of Conduct 1.1, Violations in General, which is a charge of "Failure to Comply with Regulations, Orders, Directives or Practices of the Department, whether verbal or written by the Warden or his designee." (R-6). The rule provides that:

> Any employee who violates any rule, regulation, procedure, order or directive, either by an act of commission or omission, whether stated in this manual or elsewhere, or who violates the standard operating procedure as dictated by departmental practice, is subject to disciplinary action in accordance with the New Jersey Department of Personnel (Civil Service) rules and regulations. Disciplinary actions shall be based on the nature of the rule, regulation, procedure, order, or directive violated, the severity and circumstances of the infraction and the individual's record of conduct.

Violation of this rule would seem to be implicated by the appointing authority's allegations of violations of General Orders 73, 74, 79 and Post Order 8.

Post Order 8 (R-9) addresses the duties of a kitchen officer. Section 4 of this order states that "Provides security and control for civilians."

The record reflects in the testimony and video that some of the inmates were searched and others were not. Also, in many case the "airpat" search was performed. Appellant did not fulfill the requirements of Post Order 8. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of Post Order 8 and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

General Order 73 (R-10) addresses "Personal Conduct of Employees." Captain Taylor testified that appellant violated Sections 4 and 12, of this order.

Section 4 states that "Employees will comply with all departmental rules and regulations and all laws of the United States and the State of New Jersey." The record reflects that appellant did not comply with the General Order he was accused of violating. I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of this section and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

Section 12 states that, "Employees are responsible to know all departmental policies as well as county policies and act in accordance with them." Irrespective of whether the appellant was aware or unaware of the specific requirement of Post Order 8, ultimately it is his responsibility to know. I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of this section and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of General Order 73.

General Order 74 (R-11) addresses "Professional Code of Conduct." Testimony revealed that appellant violated Section 1 of this order.

Section 1 states that, "Sworn personnel will conduct themselves in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, the New Jersey Constitution and all applicable laws and rules enacted or established pursuant to legal authority. Sworn personnel are also obligated to follow all other departmental and county policies." The evidence in the record demonstrates that appellant not only violated Post Order 8 but also N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) (Insubordination); N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) (Conduct Unbecoming); N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) (Neglect of Duty) and therefore this supports a finding of a violation of this section. I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of this section and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of General Order 74.

General Order 79 (R-12) addresses "Search of Inmates (Pat Searches)." Taylor testified that appellant violated this order in its entirety.

"A "PAT SEARCH" is a search of an inmate's person and his/her clothing while the inmate is clothed...." It articulates the procedure and mechanics for conducting such a search. The record reflects that appellant by his own admission did not comply with the General Order 79. I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of this section and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

Having met its burden in demonstrating violations of General Orders 8, 73, 74 and 79, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has demonstrated a violation of Rule of Conduct 1.1 Alleged violations of Rules of Conduct 1.2 and 1.4 having already been addressed, I FURTHER CONCLUDE that the charge of a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12), Other Sufficient Cause, is hereby SUSTAINED.

Finally, the respondent sustained charges of 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty and 3.2 Security.

2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty is defined as "Personnel shall not engage in any activities or personal business which could cause them to neglect or be inattentive to duty." (R-8). I find nothing in the record to support a claim that would substantiate this charge, therefore I CONCLUDE that the charge of a violation of 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty, is hereby DISMISSED.

3.2 Security is defined as "[p]ersonnel shall exercise a scrupulous regard for security in their dealings with inmates and with regard to the Correctional Facility in general. Any act of commission or omission tending to undermine security shall constitute a breach of security." (R-8). I find the record to support a claim that would clearly substantiate this charge. The fact that appellant fails to acknowledge the security concern in improperly searching or failing to search an inmate is troublesome. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the charge of a violation of 3.2 Security, is hereby SUSTAINED.

PENALTY

Where appropriate, concepts of progressive discipline involving penalties of increasing severity are used in imposing a penalty and in determining the reasonableness of a penalty. West New York v. Bock, supra, 38 N.J. 523-24. Factors determining the degree of discipline include the employee's prior disciplinary record and the gravity of the instant misconduct.

However, it is well established that where the underlying conduct is of an egregious nature, the imposition of a penalty up to and including removal is appropriate, regardless of an individual's disciplinary history. See Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). It is settled that the theory of progressive discipline is not a fixed and immutable rule to be followed without question. Rather, it is recognized that some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished prior record. See Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474 (2007).

The record reflects that appellant has been reprimanded on two occasions for Neglect of Duty and suspended on two occasions for Conduct Unbecoming. The first suspension was for Three days and the second for Fifteen days. Despite this unremarkable disciplinary record, it is noted that a single charge of Incompetency, Inefficiency or Failure to Perform Duties by itself, can be sufficient grounds for termination in the absence of any other disciplinary history. Absence of judgment alone can be sufficient to warrant termination if the employee is in a sensitive position that requires public trust in the agency's judgment. See In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19, 32 (2007) (DYFS worker who waved a lit cigarette lighter in a five-year-old's face was terminated, despite lack of any prior discipline).

"There is no constitutional or statutory right to a government job." State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Newark v. Gaines, 309 N.J. Super. 327, 334 (App. Div. 1998). (NOTE: Gaines had a substantial prior disciplinary history, but the case is frequently quoted as a threshold statement of civil service law.)

"In addition, there is no right or reason for a government to continue employing an incompetent and inefficient individual after a showing of inability to change." Klusaritz v. Cape May County, 387 N.J. Super. 305, 317 (App. Div. 2006) (termination was the proper remedy for a county treasurer who couldn't balance the books, after the auditors tried three times to show him how).

> In reversing the MSB's insistence on progressive discipline, contrary to the wishes of the appointing authority, the Klusaritz panel stated that "[t]he [MSB's] application of progressive discipline in this context is misplaced and contrary to the public interest." The court determined that Klusaritz's prior record is "of no moment" because his lack of > competence to perform the job rendered him unsuitable for the job and subject to termination by the county.

> [In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19, 35-36 (2007) (citations omitted).]

Considering the foregoing, the respondent seeks a One-Hundred-Fifty-Day suspension. Considering the record in the present matter including the appellant's cavalier attitude, disciplinary record, the nature of the job duties and the nature of the charges, I CONCLUDE that the respondent's action suspending appellant for One Hundred-Fifty days without pay be modified to One-Hundred-Eighty days.

DECISION AND ORDER

I ORDER that the charges of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1) Incompetency, Inefficiency, Failure to Perform Duties; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) Insubordination; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct Unbecoming; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) Neglect of Duty; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) Other Sufficient Cause be SUSTAINED. I further ORDER that the charges of violating Camden County Correctional Facility Rules of Conduct (C.C.C.F.): 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination; 3.2 Security; General Order 73; General Order 74; General Order 79 and Post Order 8 also be SUSTAINED. The charge of 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty is hereby DISMISSED. I FURTHER ORDER respondent's imposition of a One-Hundred-Fifty-Day suspension without pay is MODIFIED to One-Hundred-Eighty days.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, PO Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

WHEREAS, the matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law bearing docket number CSV 06107-2017S for a de novo hearing; and

WHEREAS, the parties would like to resolve the matter amicably due to the uncertainties and cost of litigation; and

WHEREAS, Employee has agreed to resign, upon and subject to the terms and conditions contained herein, which shall be considered a general resignation; and

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants contained herein and further good and valuable consideration, the parties mutually agree as follows:

1. Employee understands and agrees that his employment with the County ended effective March 21, ~~1027~~ 2017 and will be recorded as a general resignation. Employee will be given the opportunity to obtain medical coverage through the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act, 29 U.S.C. § 1166(a)(4) ("COBRA") for a period of up to eighteen (18) months starting from the date of his employment end date at Employee's own expense.

4. Except as set forth in Paragraph 3, Employee hereby relieves and discharges the County of and from any obligation to pay or provide any salary, expense, reimbursement or other sum, or any benefit plan of any nature. Employee agrees that the benefits set forth in Paragraph 3 shall be the only obligation the County has, had or might ever have regarding Employee pursuant to or in connection with Employee's employment with the County, excepting any obligation pertaining to a pending workers compensation claim. The parties further agree that the benefit set forth in Paragraph 3 herein shall constitute full and fair consideration for the waiver and release of claims pursuant to Paragraph 6 hereof.

5. This Agreement is not, and shall not in any way be constructed, as an admission by the County and the Employee of any violation of any federal or state constitutional prohibition or any federal or state or local law or ordinance or regulation, or any express or implied contract of employment, or in violation of any other legal duty owed to or by employee, but instead constitutes the good faith settlement of a disputed claim and the parties specifically disclaim any liability to each other or to any other person. The parties have entered into this Agreement for the sole purpose of resolving the subject matter of this case and any related claims, both asserted and unasserted, in order to avoid the burden, expense, delay and uncertainties of litigation. No findings of any kind have been made or issued by any court and employee does not purport to be the prevailing party in any threatened or pending litigation.

It is emphasized that Employee is waiving all possible claims against the County with regard to this disciplinary matter.

7. Employee represents and certifies that he has carefully read and fully understands all of the provisions of and effects of this Agreement and further, certifies that he is voluntarily entering into this Agreement and that the County has not made any representations concerning the terms of effects of this Agreement other than those contained herein.

8. This Agreement is made and entered into in the State of New Jersey and shall in all respects be interpreted, enforced and governed under laws of the State of New Jersey. The language of all parts of this Agreement shall, in all cases, be constructed as a whole, according to its fair meaning and not strictly for or against any of the parties.

9. Should any provision of this Agreement be declared or determined by any court to be illegal or invalid, the validity of the remaining part(s)/term(s) or provision(s) shall not be affected thereby and said illegal or invalid part, term or provision shall be deemed not to be a part of this Agreement.

10. The foregoing constitutes a full and final disposition of this matter.

11. Employee shall not request relief with respect to this matter, in any forum beyond that which is contained herein.

14. Employee specifically acknowledges that he understands that this Agreement is a legally binding document, and that by signing this Agreement he is prevented from filing, commencing or maintaining any action, complaint, charge, or other proceeding against the County, except as expressly permitted by the terms of this Agreement. Employee further agrees that any fact, evidence, event or transaction currently unknown to Employee but which hereafter may become known shall not affect in any way or manner the final and unconditional nature of this Agreement. Employee acknowledges that he understands that he has the right to consult with an attorney of his choice to review this Agreement and that he is encouraged by the County to do so. Employee further acknowledges that he understands that he has twenty-one (21) days to consider and accept this Agreement from the date it was first given to Employee, although she may accept it at any time within those twenty-one (21) days. Employee further acknowledges that he understands that he has seven (7) days after signing the Agreement to revoke it by delivering to Kristina Chubenko, Assistant County Counsel, County of Mercer, McDade Administration Building, 640 S. Broad Street, Trenton, New Jersey 08650, written notification of such revocation within the seven (7) day period. If Employee does not revoke the Agreement, the Agreement will become effective and irrevocable on the eighth (8^{th}) day after he signs it (the "Effective Date").

If Employee elects to exercise his right of revocation, this Agreement and the promises contained in it, will automatically be deemed null and void.

15. This settlement fully and finally disposes of all issues in controversy. It is reached by way of compromise.

16. This Agreement shall neither set a precedent nor constitute a past practice.

17. This Agreement shall not be considered binding and/or final until approved by and executed by the County Administrator and/or his designee. Any subsequent disapproval by the Civil Service Commission shall cause all the terms and conditions of this agreement to be null

In the Matter of Felix Colon,
City of Passaic, Department of Public Works

OAL DKT. NO. CSV 16513-16

DECISION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: JUL 17 2017 BW

The appeal of Felix Colon, Laborer 1, City of Passaic, Department of Public Works, 90 working day suspension, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Ellen S. Bass, who rendered her initial decision on June 7, 2017. No exceptions were filed.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision modifying the 90 working day suspension to a 15 working day suspension, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting on July 13, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision to modify the 90 working day suspension to a 15 working day suspension.

Since the penalty has been modified, the appellant is entitled to 75 working days of back pay, benefits, and seniority, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10. However, the appellant is not entitled to counsel fees. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12(a), the award of counsel fees is appropriate only where an employee has prevailed on all or substantially all of the primary issues in an appeal of a major disciplinary action. The primary issue in any disciplinary appeal is the merits of the charges, not whether the penalty imposed was appropriate. See Johnny Walcott v. City of Plainfield, 282 N.J. Super. 121, 128 (App. Div. 1995); James L. Smith v. Department of Personnel, Docket No. A-1489-02T2 (App. Div. March 18, 2004); In the Matter of Robert Dean (MSB, decided January 12, 1993); In the Matter of Ralph Cozzino (MSB, decided September 21, 1989). In the case at hand, although the penalty was modified by the Commission, charges were sustained and major discipline was imposed. Thus, the appellant has not prevailed on all or substantially all of the primary issues of the appeal. Consequently, as the appellant has failed to meet the standard set forth at N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12(a), counsel fees must be denied.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in disciplining the appellant was justified. The Commission therefore modifies the 90 working day suspension to a 15 working day suspension. The Commission further orders that appellant be granted 75 days of back pay, benefits, and seniority. The amount of back pay awarded is to be reduced and mitigated as provided for in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10. Proof of income earned shall be submitted by or on behalf of the appellant to the appointing authority within 30 days of issuance of this decision. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10, the parties shall make a good faith effort to resolve any dispute as to the amount of back pay.

Counsel fees are denied pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12.

The parties must inform the Commission, in writing, if there is any dispute as to back pay within 60 days of issuance of this decision. In the absence of such notice, the Commission will assume that all outstanding issues have been amicably resolved by the parties and this decision shall become a final administrative determination pursuant to R. 2:2-3(a)(2). After such time, any further review of this matter should be pursued in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 16513-16
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2017-1239

IN THE MATTER OF FELIX COLON, CITY OF PASSAIC, DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.

Curtiss Jameson, Esq., for appellant, Felix Colon (Jameson, Esq., attorneys)

Steven Siegler, Esq., for respondent, City of Passaic (Eric Bernstein and Assoc., attorneys)

Record Closed: June 2, 2017 Decided: June 7, 2017

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The City of Passaic, Department of Public Works, (Passaic) seeks to impose a ninety-day unpaid suspension on the respondent, Felix Colon (Colon), who is employed by Passaic as a laborer. It contends that he has abused his leave time for several years, and charges him with chronic absenteeism, incompetency, inefficiency, neglect of duty, conduct unbecoming, inability to perform his duties, and other sufficient cause. N.J.A.C. 4A: 2-2.3. Colon replies that his absences were all legitimate, and that, to the extent the charges are sustained, the penalty imposed is unreasonable and excessive.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Passaic issued a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (PNDA) on August 9, 2016. A departmental hearing was conducted on or about October 6, 2016, and a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA) was issued on October 7, 2016. Colon appealed to the Civil Service Commission on October 18, 2016, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 28, 2016. A hearing was conducted at the OAL on May 11, 2017. Post-hearing submissions were filed on June 2, 2017, at which time the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The pertinent facts were uncontroverted and I FIND:

Colon has been employed by Passaic as a laborer since January 2011. He has had only one prior disciplinary infraction during his employment, and was suspended for one day in 2013. That infraction concerned a matter other than absenteeism, the conduct presently at issue.

The Passaic Employee Handbook lists infractions that could result in discipline. Included are "unscheduled absence, or chronic, patterned or excessive absence," and "chronic or patterned tardiness." Director of Personnel Viviana Lamm indicated that a pattern of absence can include repeated use of partial sick days, and can result in a disciplinary response even if the absences are excused. Per his union contract, Colon receives 15 sick days per year, and 12 vacation days per year. If he is out sick for five days or more, his contract requires that he produce a doctor's note. In Passaic, sick days may be used only for personal illness, and not to conduct personal business, or simply because an employee prefers a day off.

Lamm reviewed Colon's attendance history from 2013 through 2015, as follows:

1. During 2013, Colon took 15.75 sick days and 20.25 vacation days.[1] He also took three administrative leave days. Some of the sick and vacation leave was taken as partial days. An analysis of how many work days were impacted by leave time reveals that Colon took sick time (either a full day or a partial day) on 24 days, and vacation time on 22 days throughout the year. No doctor's notes were supplied by Colon.

2. During 2014, Colon took 13.75 sick days, and 11 vacation days. He also took three administrative leave days. But again, a review of the number of actual days impacted by leave time reveals that Colon took some form of sick leave on 24 days. In December, there is a distinct Monday/Friday pattern of sick day use. No doctor's notes were supplied by Colon.

3. During 2015, Colon used 16.5 sick days, and 11.25 vacation days. Because he used his time to take partial days, 27 work days were impacted by his sick leave usage, and 13 work days were impacted by his vacation time. Colon supplied a doctor's note indicating he would be out of work due to anxiety from December 7 through December 11, 2015.

In late 2015, concerns arose about Colon's health. He apparently advised the then Director of the Department of Public Works that he was seeing a psychiatrist, and that he was taking psychiatric medication. Since Colon operated heavy equipment, his employer became concerned about his fitness for duty. Colon was sent for a medical examination at Barnabas Health on February 9, 2016; it was recommended that his medication be reviewed as it did have a sedative effect. On February 11, 2016, Colon's psychiatrist, Dr. Kim, related via letter that he had adjusted the administration of the medication to address this concern. Colon again was examined at Barnabas Health on February 11, 2016, and was declared fit for duty.

[1] He had carried over some vacation days from the prior year.

Colon worked until July 20, 2016. During 2016, he used 15.75 sick days. He exhausted his allotment of paid sick time, and his vacation time, and went on an unpaid status. He did submit two doctor's notes that verified that he was ill. One from Dr. Kim, dated June 27, 2016, indicated that Colon could not work for medical reasons from June 28, 2016 until July 9, 2016. A second letter from Dr. Kim stated that Colon should be excused from June 28, 2016 until August 9, 2016. But that letter was delivered to Passaic on July 19, 2016, and inexplicably is dated August 9, 2016.

Lamm explained that so long as Colon's illness was verified via a doctor's note, Passaic would not suspend him or terminate his employment; hence he was placed on an unpaid leave during the period from July 20, until August 9, 2016. But she explained that it was imperative that Colon complete an FMLA (Federal Medical Leave Act) packet, per Passaic protocol. Despite numerous attempts to secure Colon's cooperation, to include seeking the intervention of his attorney, the packet was never completed.

Accordingly, on the day his doctor indicated that Colon was fit to return for duty a PNDA was issued, and he was suspended until September 6, 2016, for a total of 20 days. The discipline ultimately imposed by Passaic, and as affirmed at the local hearing, was a ninety-day suspension; the remaining time was served from October 11, 2016, through January 17, 2017.

Counsel for Colon shared for the record that his client does have a pending worker's compensation claim, in which he alleges that his absences were due to workplace induced stress and anxiety.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

A civil service employee who commits a wrongful act related to his or her duties, or gives other just cause, may be subject to major discipline. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-6; N.J.S.A. 11A:2-20; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3. In an appeal from such discipline, the appointing authority bears the burden of proving the charges upon which it relied by a preponderance of the competent, relevant and credible evidence. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-21; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982). The evidence must be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to a given conclusion. Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958). Preponderance may also be described as the greater weight of credible evidence in the case, not necessarily dependent on the number of witnesses, but having the greater convincing power. State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47 (1975). Both guilt and penalty are redetermined on appeal from a determination by the appointing authority. Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980); W. New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962).

Here, Passaic has charged Colon with chronic absenteeism, incompetency, inefficiency, neglect of duty, conduct unbecoming, inability to perform his duties, and other sufficient cause. N.J.A.C. 4A: 2-2.3. "Neglect of duty" has been interpreted to mean that an employee has neglected to perform and act as required by his or her job title. Ortiz v. City of Newark, CSV 12056-04, Initial Decision (February 8, 2006), modified, Merit System Board (April 6, 2006), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/> (citing Avanti v. Dep't of Military and Veterans Affairs, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 564). "Neglect of duty" includes official misconduct as well as negligence. Clyburn v. Twp. of Irvington, CSV 7597-97, Initial Decision (September 10, 2001), adopted, Merit System Board (December 27, 2001) <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. "Inefficiency" has been defined as the failure of an employee to adhere to proper procedures. See Okosa v. Union County Human Servs., CSV 5279-99, Initial Decision (July 20, 2000), modified, Merit System Board (September 15, 2000), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/l>.

In judging whether an employee's absenteeism is chronic or excessive, relevant factors include, among others, the number of absences, the time span between the absences, and the negative impact on the work place. See Harris v. Woodbine Developmental Ctr., CSV 4885-02, Initial Decision (February 11, 2003), adopted, Comm'r (March 27, 2003), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>; Hendrix v. City of Asbury, CSV 10042-99, Initial Decision (April 10, 2001), adopted, Comm'r (June 8, 2001), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>; Morgan v. Union Cnty. Runnells

Specialized Hosp., 97 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 295; Bellamy v. Twp. of Aberdeen, Dep't of Pub. Works, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 770. It is further recognized that "numerous occurrences" of habitual tardiness or similar chronic conduct "over a reasonably short space of time, even though sporadic, may evidence an attitude of indifference amounting to neglect of duty." West New York, supra, 38 N.J. at 522. And "excessive absenteeism is not necessarily limited to instances of bad faith or lack of justification on the part of the employee who was frequently away from [his or] her job." Terrell v. Newark Hous. Auth., 92 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 750, 752; see also Bellamy, supra, 96 N.J.A.R.2d at 772.

I CONCLUDE that the County has met its burden of proving charges of neglect of duty, inefficiency and excessive absenteeism against Colon.[2] His pattern of constantly taking sick time, and doing so for partial days, was a disruption to the workplace. His conduct demonstrated a disregard for his obligations to his employer. Although toward the end of several years of such conduct Colon began to support his absences with doctor's notes, the case law makes it clear that considering the pattern of sick time abuse reflected on this record, his absences from the workplace were excessive. It would have been impossible for Colon, with attendance of this sort, not to have neglected his duties. Colon's failure to cooperate with FMLA procedures compels me to sustain the charge of inefficiency.

PENALTY

In this de novo review of the County's disciplinary action I am required to reevaluate the penalty on appeal. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-19; Henry, supra, 81 N.J. 571; Bock, supra, 38 N.J. 500. Depending on the conduct complained of and the employee's disciplinary history, major discipline may be imposed. Id. at 522-24. Major discipline may include removal, disciplinary demotion, suspension or a fine of no greater than six months. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-6(a), -20; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2, -2.4. A system of progressive discipline has evolved in New Jersey to serve the goals of providing employees with job security and protecting them from arbitrary employment decisions. Progressive discipline is not "a fixed and immutable rule to be followed without question." Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474, 531 (2007). The question to be answered is "whether such punishment is 'so disproportionate to the offense, in the light of all the circumstances, as to be shocking to one's sense of fairness'" Ibid.

[2] The charges of conduct unbecoming and incompetency arise from the same facts, and are subsumed in the charges of neglect and inefficiency and excessive absenteeism.

I CONCLUDE that the penalty imposed here was excessive, and was shocking to my sense of fairness. Passaic has never before sought to discipline Colon for his poor attendance. He has been employed by Passaic for over six years; has only one minor incident on his disciplinary record; and has never been the subject of major disciplinary action. I CONCLUDE that the appropriate penalty is a fifteen-day suspension.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the charges against Colon are AFFIRMED. It is further ORDERED that the penalty of a ninety-day suspension be REDUCED to a fifteen-day suspension. The amount of back pay shall be mitigated in accordance with the guidelines set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10(d)(3).

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, P.O. Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BEFORE JOHN P. SCOLLO, ALJ:

The Civil Service Commission transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) and filed on March 28, 2017, for determination as a contested case. A conference call was held on April 19, 2017 wherein the parties advised the undersigned that the within removal matter had been under settlement negotiations. However, since the time it was negotiated, Appellant Davis has been unresponsive. A hearing date was then scheduled for June 8, 2017. On April 20, 2017 the undersigned forwarded a letter to all parties requesting a status report in this matter. On May 23, 2017 the Court received a letter addressed to Mr. Davis from his union representative asking him to contact them to advise as to whether he will accept or rejection the Settlement offer. On June 8, 2017, attorneys for respondents submitted a letter to the undersigned enclosing the fully executed Settlement Agreement and Release in the terms thereof.

Having reviewed the record and the settlement terms, I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures of the parties and/or their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

The above parties in this appeal have voluntarily resolved all disputed matters and enter into the following settlement, which fully disposes of all issues in controversy between them.

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants contained herein, the parties hereby agree to the following terms as full and final settlement of the above-captioned matter:

1. The Board agrees to settle the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated April 20, 2016 as follows:

a. The Final Notice of Disciplinary Action will be amended to reflect that Denise DeLeon ("DeLeon") was suspended without pay for three (3) months, covering the period of April 20, 2016 through July 20, 2016;

b. DeLeon's personnel file and records will be amended to reflect that for six (6) months from July 21, 2016 and January 21, 2017, DeLeon was on a leave of absence without pay;

c. DeLeon's personnel file and records will be amended to reflect that for five (5) months from January 21, 2017 through June 21, 2017, DeLeon was on a leave of absence with pay, and the Board agrees to pay DeLeon five (5) months of fully mitigated back pay in the amount of $21, 475, covering the period of January 21, 2017 through June 21, 2017.

The Board agrees to tender the backpay payment no later than the second payroll period of August 2017.

d. The parties acknowledge that from June 18 through December 10, 2016, DeLeon collected unemployment insurance benefits. The parties agree that the above-referenced backpay is fully mitigated, is not a windfall to the employee, and shall be paid for that period of time for which DeLeon did not collect unemployment insurance benefits.

e. DeLeon will return to work on June 22, 2017 and in the title of Human Services Specialist 2, B/L Spanish and English, Range 16, Step 7; and

f. DeLeon understands and agrees that, in light of her three-month suspension and eleven-month leave of absence, her next annual work evaluation will not be conducted until on or about June 22, 2018 and her next eligibility for increment will be concomitant with this annual evaluation date.

2. DeLeon, on her own behalf and on behalf of her heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns agrees to withdraw the instant appeal with prejudice.

3. DeLeon waives any and all rights to file a grievance and any other form of complaint concerning the disciplinary action imposed against her in the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated April 20, 2016. DeLeon shall not institute any further appeal or any other action with respect to this matter.

4. DeLeon shall not request any other relief with respect to this matter, other than that provided for by this Settlement Agreement. With respect to this matter and the incidents giving rise to the above-referenced discipline, Employee voluntarily and in consideration for the above hereby releases the Board, its employees, officials, agents and assigns from all claims, benefits, demands, damages, and causes of action that she may have had against the Board, its employees, officials, agents and assigns from the date of her initial employment with the Board

The parties choose the Superior Court of New Jersey as their forum for resolving any dispute concerning this Agreement. The parties further agree that this Agreement shall not be filed with any court except in an action to enforce or challenge its terms.

10. Denise DeLeon acknowledges that she has had ample time to consult with Counsel and her Union Communications Workers of America, throughout the negotiations that preceded her execution of this Agreement; that she has been represented by Counsel and her Union during the entirety of this matter; that she has carefully read and fully understands all of the provisions of this Agreement, including the Release; that she is voluntarily executing this Agreement without coercion or duress; that she has had adequate time to review this Agreement and the release contained in this Agreement; and that she understands and acknowledges that she is waiving any right to proceed to a hearing at the Office of Administrative Law by signing this Agreement.

11. This Settlement may be executed in multiple originals, each of which shall be considered an original instrument, but all of which shall constitute one (1) agreement, and shall bind the parties hereto and their successors, heirs, assigns, and legal representatives.

12. This settlement between the Board and DeLeon shall not be deemed a precedent or be considered a past practice and shall have no effect on future cases, be it through arbitration or otherwise, and that the contents of this Agreement shall be non-evidential in any future matter involving the Board and CWA Local 1082 and/or one of its bargaining unit members, except as a basis for progressive discipline in any future disciplinary matter between the Board and DeLeon.

OAL DKT. NO. CSV 09823-16

IN THE MATTER OF JULISSA DELGAUDIO, BERGEN COUNTY, BOARD OF SOCIAL SERVICES.

Julissa DelGaudio, petitioner, pro se

Yaacov Brisman, Esq., for respondent (Cleary, Giacobbe, Alfieri, Jacobs, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 1, 2017 Decided: June 6, 2017

BEFORE LESLIE Z. CELENTANO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In this matter appellant, Julissa DelGaudio, appeals her release by the Bergen County Board of Social Services (the Board) at the end of her working test period, effective June 3, 2016. On July 1, 2016, the Civil Service Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was scheduled for February 6, 2017, and was held on that date. At the conclusion of the hearing, appellant asserted that she was not aware that she had the ability to bring witnesses with her. This matter had been scheduled on July 13, 2016, to commence on February 6, 2017, and nothing had been heard from petitioner in the ensuing seven months. Nevertheless, over the strenuous objections of respondent, the appellant was provided with one week to advise whether she intended to call witnesses, and in that event to provide their names. Two weeks later appellant advised that she wished to call three witnesses, and once again over the strenuous objection of respondent, a date to continue the hearing was scheduled.

On May 1, 2017, respondent appeared with potential rebuttal witnesses and the appellant also appeared, advising that no additional witnesses would be testifying. As such the record was closed on that date.

TESTIMONY

Robert Calocino

Mr. Calocino is the Acting Director of the Bergen County Board of Social Services and has been the Chief Personnel Officer since 2012. Prior to that he served as the Senior Personnel Technician. He is familiar with hiring practices and the training and evaluation processes for determining whether someone would be permanently hired.

Mr. Calocino advised appellant by letter dated October 9, 2015, (R-1) that she had been offered the position as a temporary part-time Human Services Aide. During the first month, there is training for the SNAP program (food stamps; review of regulations; the code; and the interview process). During the first thirty days, temporary part-time employees are given several tests based upon objective criteria. Employees are advised how they are doing via a training progress report.

Appellant's thirty-day training progress report (R-2) dated November 30, 2015, indicated that she had scored a 74% on the food stamp program eligibility test where the average score had been 84%, indicating she scored below average. She scored a 72% on the financial eligibility test and the average for the class was 82%, indicating a level of difficulty understanding the financial eligibility requirements. Finally, for the FAMIS and DOVE inquiry test, she scores a 92%, indicating a satisfactory understanding of how to access those systems and interpret the information. The average for the class was 96%.

There was concern at the time that appellant had scored below average in all of her tests, and it was suggested that she utilize the handouts to better understand the program.

Thereafter, on January 14, 2016, a memo was sent to appellant from the training supervisor (R-3) complimenting appellant's professional manner and initiative, as well as her ability to work independently and be organized. It was reported, however, that she needed to review her work more carefully to avoid the number of errors and to ask more questions. Mr. Calocino indicated that appellant's issues were holding up the process. He indicated she could have asked for help from her training supervisor; she had also never said that her training was insufficient. He indicated that at this juncture, some of the other aides from her group were moved into the unit to start working the position under supervision.

Thereafter, on February 29, 2016, appellant was offered the part-time Human Services Aide position and advised that there was a ninety-day working test period starting on that date. (R-4.) However, appellant's status remained as temporary as Board approval had not yet been secured. (R-5.)

Following Board approval, appellant was advised her ninety-day working test period began as of March 7, 2016. (R-6.) At this juncture, she was considered to be a regular employee with a ninety-day working test period.

The first evaluation appellant received, covering the thirty days between March 8, 2016, and April 7, 2016, reveals that the quality of appellant's work was scored as a 1 out of a possible 6. She had an error rate of 30.6% and the average of the trainees was 17.6%. The quantity of her work was deemed to be a 3.5 out of a possible 6. She completed 108 intake and recertification interviews, which was higher than the average of 103.7. However she had a higher error rate. Her job knowledge and skill was scored a 1 out of a possible 6.

Taking all of her scores combined, she earned a 23 out of a possible 50 indicating that she meets the job requirements, but only barely. At a subsequent conference with appellant to discuss the evaluation, her supervisor indicated that her error rate needed to improve because she simply made too many errors. No comments were offered by appellant at that time under the employee comment section.

Mr. Calocino testified that the training department is always available to help employees and that a supervisor and specialist in the unit are available to answer questions.

Appellants next review, a sixty-day evaluation, covered the period of April 8, 2016, to May 7, 2016. The quality of her work was now rated a zero out of a possible 6 with an error rate of 30.5% at a time when the average for the trainees was 13.3%. This was deemed to be an unacceptable error rate. The quantity of her work was once again determined to be a 3.5 out of a possible 6. Appellant completed 118 interviews when the trainee average was 108.8. Her job knowledge and skill at this time was rated a .5 out of 6, down from a 1 out of 6 at her last review. Several other scores were lower, and during the working test period they should be increasing as she had been on the job, had the training and was getting more experience. This was a cause for concern for respondent and the reviewer noted in the comments that appellant has had no improvement in her error rate, and continued to make careless errors. (R-8.) Her total was now 19.5 out of a possible 50 indicating she was not meeting the job requirements. At an evaluation conference on May 13, 2016, with her supervisor she was advised that she needed to improve the quality of her work before her next evaluation or she was at risk of failing the ninety-day evaluation period. Once again the evaluation reflects no employee comments.

Appellant's ninety-day evaluation dated June 3, 2016, and covering the period of May 8, 2016, through June 2, 2016, reflected a .5 out of 6 score on the quality of her work. This is an extremely poor score and appellant's error rate was 19.6% at the time when the average was 12.2%. The quantity of her work still rated at 3.5 out of 6 and the job knowledge and skill was a 1 out of 6, still extremely poor. Other scores showed no change including those for professional conduct, self-motivation, communication and team work and flexibility, which actually went down as of this last evaluation. (R-9.) Her final score was 19.5 out of a possible 50 for her ninety-day evaluation, indicating that she still was unable to meet the job requirements. Her inability to demonstrate that she was able to complete the quality of work necessary led to appellant's termination. (R-10.)

Julissa DelGaudio

Appellant testified that there were thirteen trainees in her class and she felt that she did the job properly. She indicated there were other issues and that although she knows her "scores weren't that high" she felt she had better scores than others. She indicated she had to train under stress and that the professionalism was not there at the agency. She stated that no one sat next to her to evaluate her and that her error rate was much better at the end despite what the evaluations indicate.

On May 1, 2017, when petitioner was to return with witnesses, she provided a written narrative to be included with her testimony which was admitted without objection. (P-1.)

ANALYSIS

In this matter, Ms. DelGaudio has appealed her release at the end of her working test period, effective June 3, 2016. A candidate for permanent-employee status must successfully complete a working test period so that an appointing authority may determine whether the employee can satisfactorily perform the duties of that title. N.J.S.A. 11A:4-15. "A working test period is part of the examination process which shall be served in the title to which the certification was issued and appointment made." Ibid. It supplements the examination process "by providing a means for testing an employee's fitness through observed job performance under actual working conditions." In re Stringer, CSV 4341-09, Initial Decision (March 16, 2011) (citing Dodd v. Van Riper 135 N.J.L. 167, 171-72 (E. & A. 1947)), adopted, CSC (June 15, 2011), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. The purpose of the working test period is not to provide the employee further training to qualify him for the position, but rather "to further test a probationer's qualifications." Briggs v. N.J. Dep't of Civil Serv., 64 N.J. Super. 351, 355 (App. Div. 1960). During the working test period, the appointing authority evaluates the employee's "work performance and conduct . . . in order to determine whether he merits permanent status," while the employee "is entitled to a fair opportunity to demonstrate his ability to fulfill the requirements of the position." Vegotsky v. Office of Admin. Law, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 162, 167.

At the end of the working test period, an appointing authority may terminate the employee or return that employee to his or her former permanent title if the employee's job performance was unsatisfactory. See N.J.S.A. 11A:2-6(a)(4); N.J.S.A. 11A:4-15(c); N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.1; N.J.A.C. 4A:4-5.4(a). "The only requirement necessary to justify release at the end of the working test period is that the opinion of the Appointing Authority be formed in good faith." Mabson v. City of Monmouth, CSV 2164-05, Initial Decision (Jan. 26, 2006) (citing Devine v. Plainfield, 31 N.J. Super. 300, 302-03 (App. Div. 1954)), adopted, MSB (March 9, 2006), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. In an appeal concerning the release of an employee at the end of a working test period, the burden of proof is on the employee to show that the appointing authority acted in bad faith when it determined that the employee was incapable of satisfactorily performing the duties of the position. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.3(b); Briggs, supra, 64 N.J. Super. at 356; Devine, supra, 31 N.J. Super. at 303. Bad faith contemplates dishonesty and a state of mind affirmatively operating with a furtive motive, self-interest or ill will. See O'Connor v. Health Servs. Ctr. of Camden Cnty., 91 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 23, 25.

In this context, good faith means that "the appointing authority has actually observed the probationer's performance and found it to be unsatisfactory," and "[a] fair evaluation period is further evidenced by the giving of guidance and advice due to a probationer, as well as a notification of any deficiencies in performance." Sokolowsky v. Twp. of Freehold Dep't of Code Enforcement, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 155, 157.

Based upon the foregoing, I FIND that appellant has presented no argument regarding any purported bad faith by the respondent. In fact, the preponderance of the evidence established that the appointing authority exercised good faith by evaluating appellant at required intervals over the course of her working test period, and by giving her specific feedback on the deficiencies in her job performance. The record is devoid of any evidence of ill will or dishonest motive by the appointing authority; to the contrary, the undisputed evidence demonstrated that appellant's performance ratings declined during the course of her working test period and she offered no evidence to rebut the veracity of the appointing authority's evidence of her deficiencies.

It is further evident that while Ms. DelGaudio received extensive training, she had significant and wide-ranging problems during her working test period, all of which are amply manifest in the most recent progress reports issued in this matter.

I am therefore satisfied that the respondent acted in good faith in the manner in which it assessed appellant's capabilities during the working test period, and that it made a valid determination regarding her ongoing unsatisfactory performance. Despite the Board having given appellant notice in a timely fashion regarding her interim failures during the working test period, she nonetheless failed to measure up and meet minimum standards of acceptable performance thereafter.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Based upon all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the Board has correctly determined that the release of Julissa DelGaudio at the end of her working test period was appropriate under the circumstances and that it was done in good faith.

It is therefore ORDERED that the release of Julissa DelGaudio, at the end of her working test period, effective June 3, 2016, is AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, P.O. FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: BW

The appeal of R. Bernard Garner, Technician Trainee, Motor Vehicle Commission, release at the end of the working test period, effective March 24, 2013, was heard by Acting Director and Chief Administrative Law Judge Laura Sanders, who rendered her initial decision on June 1, 2017. No exceptions were filed.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission, at its meeting on July 13, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in releasing the appellant at the end of the working test period was justified. The Commission therefore affirms that action and dismisses the appeal of R. Bernard Garner.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 05849-13
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2013-2673

IN THE MATTER OF R. BERNARD GARNER, MOTOR VEHICLE COMMISSION.

R. Bernard Garner, appellant, pro se

Marc J. Malfara, Hearing Officer, for respondent Motor Vehicle Commission, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.4(a)(2)

Record Closed: May 6, 2014 Decided: June 1, 2017

BEFORE LAURA SANDERS, Acting Director and Chief ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Appellant R. Bernard Garner (Garner) appeals his dismissal from the position of Technician Trainee with the Motor Vehicle Commission (MVC) due to an unsatisfactory rating at the end of a six-month Working Test Period (WTP).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On March 13, 2013, the Motor Vehicle Commission advised appellant that he failed to successfully complete his WTP and was terminated as of the close of business on March 24, 2013. On March 18, 2014, appellant filed a notice of appeal concerning the termination with the Civil Service Commission. The MVC transmitted the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on April 29, 2013. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Administrative Law Judge John Schuster III held a hearing on May 6, 2014, and closed the record on that date. Twenty-seven extensions were granted to Judge Schuster to allow him to complete the decision, but despite multiple inquiries as to what was needed to allow him to finish all outstanding decisions, Judge Schuster retired on April 1, 2017, without writing the initial decision. An additional extension was granted to allow time to contact the parties pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.13, to determine if the parties could settle or wished to relitigate it upon transfer to a new judge. The answer having been in the negative, the undersigned was assigned the case. An additional extension was granted to allow time to listen to the hearing record, read the exhibits, and write the decision.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

Some facts are not disputed. Garner started in June 2012, as a "944 employee," which is an at-will employee limited to 944 annual hours. In that capacity, he solely worked at the information desk. Then, on September 24, 2012, because his supervisor in the prior position was happy with his work and Garner had requested the move, Garner began a working test period in the position of part-time MVC Tech, limited to twenty-four hours per week. In his new position, his duties included working at the reception desk, and serving customers at the individual windows for driver licenses, registrations, renewals, and title documents. The WTP for the position is four months, such that the normal time for a decision on his employment would have ended on January 24, 2013. The MVC had the option to extend the WTP an additional two months with documentation, which it exercised.

Appellant received a two-month evaluation report on November 19, 2012, where he was told by his direct supervisor, Brian DeLuca, and Deborah Vannatten, the facility supervisor, that he would be trained in titles and licenses in the next two months. Garner was also told if he had a problem, he should ask for assistance. The second evaluation report, dated and signed on January 15, 2013, (R-40) was marked unsatisfactory. The manager at the Lakewood Motor Vehicle Commission agency at which Garner worked, made a determination to extend the probationary period in part due to the extensive operational disruptions caused by Superstorm Sandy, which struck on October 29, 2012. The third and final evaluation report, dated and signed on March 13, 2013, (R-2), also marked unsatisfactory, was the final evaluation preceding his termination.

The evaluation reports identified the rationale for Garner's unsatisfactory ratings. The four-month evaluation stated that Garner continued to make mistakes, including incorrect owners, missing signatures, incorrect make of car, missing lien holder and processing questionable work without consulting a supervisor. (R-40.) The six-month evaluation stated that Garner's performance remained unsatisfactory, his errors were due to his negligence in reviewing forms presented to him, and he made thirty-one errors in the twelve days prior to the report. The errors included missing information on applications, incorrect signatures, work processed for the incorrect owner and improperly answered questions. The evaluation added that Garner took an extended amount of time to process transactions. (R-2.)

The dispute is over whether Garner's performance was unsatisfactory and whether he had an opportunity to understand and learn from his errors, or whether the agency showed bad faith in its treatment of him.

Deluca, Garner's direct supervisor, testified on behalf of the MVC. On the date of the hearing, DeLuca had served for over three years as the agency manager, with duties including managing the twenty-eight employees at the Lakewood facility.

DeLuca testified that employees at the MVC were encouraged to ask questions of senior technicians or supervisors, and that Garner did in fact ask questions during his employment. DeLuca had many discussions with Garner regarding his performance including the two-, four- and six-month evaluations. During the WTP, Garner was shown the print-out of the errors that he made, and was informed that his performance must improve. DeLuca indicated that employees were expected to login to their work stations and be ready to serve customers at the beginning of their shifts; however, the MVC provided a grace period of approximately five-minutes. The four-month evaluation stated that Garner was averaging fifteen to twenty minutes to sign onto the computer and process his first transaction and took 30 minutes to sign onto the computer on both November 19 and 21, 2012. (R-40.)

On cross-examination, DeLuca testified that the MVC based the required login time when the employee took possession of the work station, and that it could take an additional thirty seconds to one minute more to log into a camera work station.

Deborah Vannatten, Supervisor 1 at the Lakewood MVC facility since August 2012, was the only supervisor at the facility. Vannatten described Garner's duties, and the hands-on supervision he was provided.

Vannatten testified that there was a discussion with Garner concerning the performance reviews during the WTP, including the errors detailed in the evaluations. During a discussion concerning Garner's six-month review, Vannatten and DeLuca sat down with the appellant, and reviewed all errors with the corresponding dates, as well as photocopies of every document. Garner provided no objections during the performance review. On cross-examination, Vannatten identified the types of transactions referenced in the performance reviews.

Garner testified on his own behalf. At the time he was notified of his termination, DeLuca stated that Garner was always on time; never stretched breaks; was always good to the customers; and worked well with his colleagues. However, Garner testified, DeLuca also said that Garner needed more training to "get the hang of the job."

Garner stated that DeLuca continually told him that he may be terminated, and Garner spoke to Human Resources about DeLuca.

Garner relied upon the December 2012 Performance Assessment Review Model (PAR) on his job performance (A-1) to rebut the unsatisfactory WTP evaluation reports. The report contained a detailed job description for an MVC technician, and the interim evaluation of Garner's performance containing a numbered score for individual tasks required in the position. The interim evaluation score was nineteen, which fell into the successful category of nineteen to twenty-nine points. The PAR was signed by Garner, DeLuca, and Vannatten.

In Garner's cross-examination of DeLuca, he asked multiple questions concerning the amount of time it took Garner to sign into his work station and service clients. Garner noted that he began many of his shifts at 2:00 p.m., and in many instances needed to wait for an MVC employee to complete a transaction with a customer. Therefore, in those instances, he was unable to login at the beginning of his shifts. Garner also testified that logging into a camera terminal could be difficult, and would take longer to complete his login.

Having heard the testimony of the witnesses and reviewed the documentary evidence I make the following findings of FACT:

1. Appellant received copies of all written evaluation reports.

2. Appellant was made aware of the multiple errors he made in the course of his duties during the WTP that were relevant to the unsatisfactory ratings contained in the evaluations.

3. Vannatten and DeLuca personally counseled appellant on the nature of the errors, and attempted to train appellant to remedy his performance.

4. Appellant received sufficient training from Vannatten, DeLuca, and other experienced MVC employees.

5. Appellant was given an additional two-month review process when his termination would have been justified following a four-month evaluation.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

A civil service employee's rights and duties are governed by the Civil Service Act, which has been described as an important inducement to attract qualified personnel to public service and is to be liberally construed toward attainment of merit appointments and broad tenure protection. See, Essex Council No. 1, N.J. Civil Serv. Ass'n v. Gibson, 114 N.J. Super. 576 (Law Div. 1971), rev'd on other grounds, 118 N.J. Super. 583 (App. Div. 1972). In ensuring the merit and fitness of public service employees, a candidate for permanent employee status must successfully complete a probationary or working test period. See, N.J.S.A. 11A:4-15; N.J.S.A. 11A:1-2; State-Operated Sch. Dist. of City of Newark v. Gaines, 309 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1998), certif. denied, 156 N.J. 381 (1998).

The primary objective of the working test period is 'to supplement the examining process by providing a means for testing an employee's fitness through observed job performance under actual working conditions." Dodd v. Van Riper, 135 N.J.L. 167, 171 (E. & A. 1947). The working test period is not to provide the employee with further training to qualify him for the position and "the employee must demonstrate that he is competent to discharge the duties of the position." Briggs v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 64 N.J. Super. 351, 355-56 (App. Div. 1960).

In an appeal from an employee's termination at the conclusion of a working test period, the employee shoulders the burden of proving that the appointing authority's "action was in bad faith." N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.3(b). If bad faith is found, the employee is entitled to a new full or shortened working test period and, if appropriate, other remedies. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.3(c). The basic test is whether the appointing authority exercised good faith in determining that the employee was not competent to perform satisfactorily the duties of the position. See, Briggs v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 64 N.J. Super. 351, 356 (App. Div. 1960); Devine v. Plainfield, 31 N.J. Super. 300, 303-04 (App. Div. 1954); Lingrell v. New Jersey Civil Serv. Comm'n, 131 N.J.L. 461 462 (1944). In general, good faith has been defined as meaning "honesty of purpose and integrity of conduct with respect to a given subject." Smith v. Whitman, 39 N.J. 397, 405 (1963). As stated in Schopf v. New Jersey Department of Labor, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (CSV) 853, 857:

> No set rule may be formulated when attempting to determine whether an employee's termination at the end of the working test period was based on opinions of the appointing authority formed in good or bad faith. If the opinion is formed based upon actual observations of the employee's performance of the duties of the position, and is an honest assessment as to whether the > employee will be able to satisfactorily and efficiently perform those duties if the appointment becomes permanent, it must be considered to have been made in good faith. If, on the other hand, the decision to terminate is not based upon actual observations of performance, or if it is made based upon dishonest motives, is based on bias, prejudice or self-interest, or is made with ill will toward the employee or because of some furtive design, it must be set aside. The use of the good faith standard also implies that if the employer's decision to terminate is made in good faith, the fact that the Merit System Board may not have decided the question in the same way is of no import. It is only required that the opinion be based on actual observations and that those observations form a rational basis for the opinion.

The preponderance of the evidence established that the appointing authority exercised good faith by evaluating Garner at required intervals over the course of his working test period, by giving him specific feedback on the deficiencies in his job performance, and focusing on numerous errors as well as excessive length of time to sign into his work station and begin servicing customers. Garner did not dispute the specific deficiencies and errors described in his performance evaluations, nor present any evidence that his performance was satisfactory. Appellant did offer an explanation relating to the amount of time required to sign into his work station and serve clients. However, DeLuca's testimony that an employee was given a grace period, which did not begin until the employee took possession of the work station, combined with the instances documented in the performance evaluations, make his argument unpersuasive. Garner's only defense was his 2012 PAR, in which he received an interim evaluation score of nineteen, which fell into the successful category of nineteen to twenty-nine points, and was on the cusp of a successful and unsuccessful score. However, appellant Garner presented no documentary evidence or testimony that his subsequent performance improved enough to merit retaining him in the position.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the record is insufficient to establish bad faith by the appointing authority. To the contrary, the undisputed evidence demonstrated that Garner's performance ratings were unsatisfactory during the course of his WTP and he offered no evidence to rebut the veracity of the appointing authority's evidence of his deficiencies. The evidence plainly shows that his continued errors validated his unsatisfactory evaluation. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority's decision to terminate Garner at the end of his working test period should be affirmed.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I ORDER that the appointing authority's decision terminating Appellant R. Bernard Garner at the end of his working test period is AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. Mr. Murray and Mr. Baker:

I am the Deputy Director in charge of this agency's hearing unit. We have received the settlement regarding John Howard from the Office of Administrative Law. However, prior to forwarding it to the Civil Service Commission for acknowledgment, clarification is required.

Specifically, the settlement indicates that Mr. Howard agrees to a 180 day (six month) suspension, which has already been served. However, the record reflects that he was immediately suspended on November 17, 2015. Assuming the agreed upon 180 day suspension ends on May 17, 2016, we need to know how the time period from that date until Mr. Howard's reinstatement should be recorded. For example, is that time period to be recorded as a leave of absence without pay, or something else?

Please let me know the intention of the parties as soon as possible. An email reply is sufficient so long as agreed upon by the parties.

Sincerely,

Nicholas F. Angiulo

On May 25, 2016, the Civil Service Commission transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where it was filed on May 31, 2016, for determination as a contested case. A telephone prehearing conference was held on June 21, 2016 and a hearing date of November 7, 2016 was scheduled. The November 7, 2016 hearing date was converted to a settlement conference date. Subsequently, the parties reached a settlement, which was signed by December 7, 2016.

This Settlement Agreement and General Release ("Agreement") is made and entered into between the Township of North Bergen (the "Township") and Enrique Marrero ("Marrero"), collectively, "the Parties".

WHEREAS, Marrero is employed by the Township as a police sergeant; and

WHEREAS, with regard to an incident that occurred on November 1, 2015, by way of a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated April 29, 2016, Marrero was suspended, without pay, for a period of thirty (30) days for the following charges:

(a) Violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1) Incompetency, inefficiency or failure to perform duties;

(b) Violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) Insubordination;

(c) Violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct unbecoming a public employee;

(d) Violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) Neglect of duty; and,

(e) Violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) Other sufficient cause; and

WHEREAS, Marrero filed an appeal of his discipline and suspension with the Office of Administrative Law (OAL Docket No. CSV 08063-16); and

WHEREAS, on November 7, 2016, the Office of Administrative Law was scheduled to conduct a plenary hearing in the matter, but instead, the Parties agreed to voluntarily enter into this Agreement; and

WHEREAS, the Parties deem it to be in their best interests to memorialize the terms and conditions of their agreement placed on the record before the Honorable John Scollo, A.L.J., with respect to the parties' rights, duties and obligations regarding Marrero's discipline and suspensions stemming from the November 1, 2015 disciplinary matter; and

WHEREAS, all parties have been afforded the opportunity to consider the terms of this Agreement with advice of counsel and/or a representative of their choice;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the promises and the mutual covenants herein contained, and for other good and valuable considerations, the parties hereby agree as follows:

1. The "Township", as used herein, shall at all times mean the Township of North Bergen, its affiliates, predecessors, successors and assigns of any and all of them, their present and former directors, officials, elected officials, officers, representatives, associates, partners, servants, employees, agents, attorneys, and successors, whether in their individual or official capacities, and all other persons, firms, corporations, associations, partnerships or any other entity connected therewith.

2. "Marrero", as used herein, shall mean Enrique Marrero, his heirs, representatives, privies, executors, administrators, assigns, successors-in-interest and predecessors-in-interest.

3. With regard to the November 1, 2015 disciplinary matter, Marrero agrees and voluntarily elects to forever dismiss, with prejudice, all claims and appeals relating to his discipline and suspension in connection with the matter docketed as OAL Docket No. CSV 08063-16.

4. With regard to the November 1, 2015 disciplinary matter, the Township agrees to issue an Amended Final Notice of Disciplinary Action, attached hereto as "Exhibit A", to reflect a sustained charge of violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) Other sufficient cause, with the penalty of a fifteen (15) day suspension, without pay.

5. The Parties agree that Marrero shall serve the fifteen (15) day suspension, without pay, by forfeiting his accumulated but unused vacation days. In the event that Marrero's unused, accumulated vacation days for 2016 are less than the fifteen (15) days he is to be suspended, the balance shall be taken from his vacation days for 2017.

6. The Parties acknowledge and agree that the terms set forth in this Agreement is a full and complete settlement of any and all claims that have been asserted or can be asserted or may be asserted or could be asserted by either party against the other for compensatory damages, pain, suffering, emotional distress, stress, humiliation, embarrassment, mental anguish, medical expenses, punitive damages, interests, attorney's fees, costs of suit, loss of sick time, loss of vacation time, loss of benefits, consequential damage, reputation damage, breach of express or implied contract, interference in any contract, economic opportunity or prospective economic advantage which arose out of or could arise out of the matter docketed as OAL Docket No. CSV 08063-16, and the underlying facts and circumstances that gave rise to that docketed matter.

7. Marrero understands and agrees that this Agreement does not constitute an admission by the Township of any wrongful action or violation of any federal or state statute, regulation, policy or procedure, or common law right so that neither this writing nor the fact of settlement constitutes an admission of liability or wrongdoing or breach of duty. It is understood and agreed by Marrero that the Township does not admit any liability, nor has it made any agreement to make any payment or take any action not reflected in this Agreement. The Township specifically denies any wrongful action or conduct.

8. As an inducement for the parties to enter into this Agreement, each party does hereby remise, release and forever discharge all other parties from any and all debts, obligations, suits, actions, causes of action, claims or demands, in law or in equity, which any one party now has or hereafter may assert against the others arising out of the matter docketed as OAL Docket No. CSV 08063-16, as well as the underlying facts and circumstances that gave rise to that docketed matter, including, but not limited to, all claims, liabilities, costs and attorneys' fees under: (1) the New Jersey civil service laws and regulations; (2) the Civil Rights Acts of 1964, as amended (42 U.S.C. 2000(e) et seq.); (3) the Americans with Disabilities Act; (4) the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (N.J.S.A. 10:5-1, et seq.); (5) any collective negotiations agreement; (6) Township ordinances, rules and regulations; (7) the Constitution of the United States; (8) the Constitution of New Jersey; (9) wage and hour laws, federal and state; (10) any and all paid and/or unpaid medical and/or personal and/or family leave laws and regulations, federal and state including, but not limited to, FMLA and NJ FLA; (11) any other federal or state statute or common law (including, but not limited to the ADEA, WARN Act); (12) the New Jersey Tort Claims Act N.J.S.A. Title 59; (13) the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution; and/or (14) other causes of action whether enumerated herein specifically or not. Marrero does not waive any claims for the Township's breach of this Agreement. Further, Marrero hereby waives any and all relief not explicitly provided for in this Agreement, other than all relief he currently seeks under Civil Action No.: 2:14-cv-03482-KM-MAH , currently venued in the United State District Court, District of New Jersey, Newark

9. The Parties agree that in consideration of the promises set forth in this Agreement that neither party shall file: (a) any appeal or contested case/controversy before the Civil Service Commission seeking any type of relief whatsoever; (b) any grievances or arbitrations relative to the November 1, 2015 disciplinary matter and the Amended Final Notice of Disciplinary Action; and (c) any type of judicial or administrative action of any type or nature in connection with the November 1, 2015 disciplinary matter and the Amended Final Notice of Disciplinary Action under this Agreement. Marrero agrees not only to release, acquit and forever discharge the Township from any and all claims which arose from Marrero's November 1, 2015 disciplinary matter, but also those which have been or may be made against the Township by any other person or organization on his behalf. Marrero specifically waives any right to become, and promises not to become, a member of any class in any case in which any claim is asserted against the Township, involving any event that has occurred on or before the date of this Agreement and General Release. The Township affirms that, as of the date of execution of this Agreement and General Release, it has no knowledge of any pending class action against it to which Marrero could be a potential class member.

10. The Parties hereby acknowledge and agree that they further expressly waive and assume the risk of any and all claims or damages which exist regarding the November 1, 2015 disciplinary matter the Township and Marrero do not know of or suspect to exist, whether through ignorance, oversight, error, negligence, or otherwise and which, if known, would materially affect their decision to enter into this Agreement and General Release.

11. Both Parties acknowledge that this agreement is subject to the approval of the Township. If such approval is not given, this agreement and all of the stipulations and acknowledgements, whether contained herein or attached hereto, shall be rendered null and void and the parties shall be returned to the status quo existing prior to this agreement.

12. Marrero and the Township bear all costs and expenses arising from the actions of their own counsel in connection with this agreement and Agreement and General Release.

13. The terms of this Agreement and the Agreement itself shall be held in the strictest confidence by all parties and shall not be publicized or disclosed in any manner whatsoever, except that: (a) either party may disclose this Agreement in confidence to their attorneys, accountants, auditors, tax preparers, and financial advisors; (b) the Township may disclose this Agreement as necessary to fulfill its obligation under the Open Public Records Act, as well as other standard or legally required reporting or disclosure requirements; and (c) the parties may disclose this Agreement insofar as disclosure may be necessary to enforce the terms or as otherwise required by law.

14. Both parties acknowledge and agree that they will not disclose, discuss or post the terms of the Agreement via electronic communication, including, but not limited to, e-mail or text messages; or via the internet or social media websites, including, but not limited to, Facebook, Twitter, blogs, NJ.com, or similar websites or social media outlets.

15. The Parties agree not to disparage or make any negative remarks or statements about the other Parties. For purposes of this, "disparage" shall mean any negative statement, whether written, oral, or via the internet or social media websites.

16. The Parties agree that, if asked about the Agreement by anyone, including any member of the media, they will respond only: "That the matter concerns a personnel matter for which no comment can be made as it is confidential."

17. The Parties acknowledge and agree that if they violate any of the terms of this Agreement, including but not limited to breach of the provisions set forth in paragraphs 13 through 16, all of the obligations set forth herein shall cease and the Parties will return to their original positions as if this Agreement never occurred.

18. This Agreement shall be construed and interpreted in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.

19. The waiver by Marrero and/or the Township of a breach of any provision hereof shall not operate or be construed as a waiver of that breach by the other, or as a waiver of any subsequent breach by the other.

20. In any action commenced against any party to enforce the provisions if this Agreement, the moving party, if it is the prevailing party, shall be entitled to recover its reasonable attorneys' fees, costs and disbursements incurred in prosecuting the action.

21. If any term, provision or condition of this Agreement is held invalid or unenforceable by a court of competent jurisdiction, such holding shall be without effect upon the validity or enforceability of any other provision, term or condition of this Agreement and General Release.

22. Marrero and the Township agree to cooperate fully and execute any and all supplementary documents and to take all additional actions which may be necessary or appropriate to get full force and effect of the basic terms and interest of this Agreement.

23. This Agreement contains the entire Agreement between Marrero and the Township with regard to the matters set forth in it, and shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of their officials, officers, directors, attorneys, representatives, employees, associates, partners, agents, servants, executors, administrators, personal representatives, heirs, successors and assigns of each, and all other persons, firms, corporations, associations or partnerships or any other entity or persons connected therewith, except as set forth herein or as may be agreed to in writing between the parties.

24. In entering into this Agreement, Marrero has relied upon the legal advice of his attorney, who is the attorney of his own choice, as to the terms of this Agreement and General Release which have been completely read and explained by his attorney and those terms are fully understood and voluntarily accepted as being reasonable.

25. This Agreement shall be irrevocable, fully binding upon Marrero and his respective heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns.

26. This Agreement shall become effective immediately following the execution by Employee and the Township.

NOW THEREFORE, intending to be legally bound hereby, The Passaic County Sheriff's Office, Yesenia Pucheta and Tamer Kazan have voluntarily resolved all disputed matters and enter into the following settlement, which fully disposes of all issues in controversy between them:

A. Yesenia Pucheta will resign from her employment with the Sheriff's Office as of the date upon which she went on a no pay status. B. The Sheriff's Office agrees to provide any prospective employers with a neutral reference of Yesenia Pucheta, to include the dates of her employment and position held within the Sheriff's Office. In the event the County is contacted by any person or entity seeking a professional, personal or character reference related to Pucheta and/or her employment at the County as a Sheriff's Officer, all parties agree that the County shall advise such person or entity that it is the policy of the County to solely provide information verifying employment, dates and title and will verify that Pucheta resigned in good standing.

C. Yesenia Pucheta and her Husband, Tamer Kazan waive any and all claims as set forth under the Notice of Tort Claim filed on September 17, 2014 as referenced herein, against all parties, named therein, known or unknown, and as more fully set forth herein. While Tamer Kazan is not a party to this action and appeal before the Office Of Administrative Law, all parties, including Tamer Kazan, acknowledge that this Settlement Agreement and Release, shall specifically act as a Release of his claims, as set forth under that Notice of Claim, previously referenced herein, for any and all claims and causes of actions associated with, arising from and/or in any way connected to the claims which have been or which could have been asserted, in connections with the termination of employment of Petitioner, Yesenia Pucheta and the Passaic County Sheriff's Office. And both Petitioner Yesenia Pucheta and her Husband Tamer Kazan, recognize that they are receiving valuable consideration under the terms, conditions and execution of this agreement, so as to make this Settlement Agreement and Release, binding upon Tamer Kazan, Yesenia Pucheta and the Sheriff's Office, pursuant to all of the terms and conditions as set forth herein and as such has become a party to this Settlement and Release.

D. In consideration of paragraphs A-C, and all of the terms and conditions as set forth herein, the Passaic County Sheriff's Office Agrees to pay an attorney's fee in trust to the Law Offices of Gina Mendola Longarzo, LLC, in the amount of $20,000.00 within forty five days of the acceptance of this Settlement Agreement and Release, by Civil Service as a final determination.

provision and accept an application for employment from Yesenia Pucheta prior to the expiration of the six year period.

F. The Passaic County Sheriff's Office agrees to dismiss all disciplinary charges against Pucheta with prejudice and the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action, dated June 19, 2014, will be amended to reflect that she resigned in good standing from her employment with the Sheriff's Office and the form attached hereto as (Exhibit D) and will be filed with the Civil Service Commission; The Sheriff's Office shall amend Yesenia Pucheta's personnel records to conform to the terms of the Agreement. All of the Sheriff's Office internal records will be kept intact. Nothing herein shall preclude the Sheriff's Office from releasing information on this matter to anyone who has a release executed by Yesenia Pucheta or as consistent with the law. Any information regarding the resolution of the underlying charges will be provided to the Public Employees Retirement system pursuant to N.J.S.A. 43:1-2.2 as amended effective April 14, 2007.

G. Yesenia Pucheta waives all other claims against the Passaic County Sheriff's Office and all others as set forth above with regard to the instant charges, including any award of back pay or other monetary relief, other than counsel fees.

H. Nothing in this Agreement shall be deemed to be an admission of liability on behalf of either party. This Agreement shall not constitute a precedent in matters involving other employees.

In the Matter of Rebecca Recine
Hamilton Township,
Department of Public Safety

CSC DKT. NO. 2016-2244
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 471-16

DECISION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: JUL 17 2017 BW

The appeal of Rebecca Recine, Public Safety Telecommunicator, Hamilton Township, Department of Public Safety, removal effective December 15, 2015, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Solomon A. Metzger, who rendered his initial decision on June 7, 2017 reversing the removal. Exceptions were filed on behalf of the appointing authority and a reply to exceptions was filed on behalf of the appellant.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission, at its meeting on July 13, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision.

This decision resolves the merits of the dispute between the parties concerning the disciplinary charges and the penalty imposed by the appointing authority. However, in light of the Appellate Division's decision, Dolores Phillips v. Department of Public Safety, Docket No. A-5581-01T2F (App. Div. Feb. 26, 2003), the Commission's decision will not become final until any outstanding issues concerning back pay or counsel fees are finally resolved. In the interim, as the court states in Phillips, supra, if it has not already done so, upon receipt of this decision, the appointing authority shall immediately reinstate the appellant to her permanent position.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in removing the appellant was not justified. The Commission therefore reverses that action and grants the appeal of Rebecca Recine. The Commission further orders that appellant be granted back pay, benefits, and seniority for the period of separation to the actual date of reinstatement. The amount of back pay awarded is to be reduced and mitigated as provided for in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10. Proof of income earned and an affidavit of mitigation shall be submitted by or on behalf of the appellant to the appointing authority within 30 days of issuance of this decision.

The Commission further orders that counsel fees be awarded to the attorney for appellant pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12. An affidavit of services in support of reasonable counsel fees shall be submitted by or on behalf of the appellant to the appointing authority within 30 days of issuance of this decision. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10 and N.J.A.C. 4A:2.12, the parties shall make a good faith effort to resolve any dispute as to the amount of back pay and counsel fees. However, under no circumstances should the appellant's reinstatement be delayed pending resolution of any potential back pay or counsel fee dispute.

The parties must inform the Commission, in writing, if there is any dispute as to back pay and counsel fees within 60 days of issuance of this decision. In the absence of such notice, the Commission will assume that all outstanding issues have been amicably resolved by the parties and this decision shall become a final administrative determination pursuant to R. 2:2-3(a)(2). After such time, any further review of this matter shall be pursued in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division.

Appellant sought review and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to-15. A hearing was conducted on August 16 and August 23, 2016.[1]

Certain facts are undisputed. Appellant was hired as a Public Safety Tele-communicator, more commonly known as a dispatcher, in September 2010. This is a civilian position. Her duties included taking emergency calls, quickly eliciting needed information, and directing the problem to appropriate units for intervention. On March 31, 2015, and April 3, 2015, she failed to report for work and officers were sent to find her. Appellant was tested on suspicion of drug use and was suspended on April 9, 2015. Appellant was terminated from her position effective December 15, 2015.

Though multiple charges were filed, the parties agreed that the hearing would focus on appellant's fitness for duty as a dispatcher.

Dr. Howard Adelman was presented by the appointing authority as an expert in Psychology. On September 25, 2015, he undertook psychological testing using the Personality Assessment Inventory (PAI) geared toward law enforcement. Dr. Adelman testified that this is a highly reliable test that has been in use for many years. He also interviewed appellant and integrated this information with the test results. The process took approximately five hours. Dr. Adelman thought that appellant answered his questions openly and without any effort to evade. He concluded that she was anxious, depressed, ruminative, and strongly reactive. She could be explosive when frustrated. She might prove unreliable at work and had poor inter-personal skills. Appellant used medications, both prescribed and otherwise, that engendered somatic symptoms such as fatigue and lack of clarity. Together, these conditions would impede her performance as a dispatcher and Dr. Adelman found her unfit for that particular duty. He did not inquire into appellant's work history, as his assessments were intended to be predictive of future complications.

Dr. Daniel S. Cowan is a board-certified psychiatrist called by appellant. Dr. Cowan examined appellant on June 23, 2016. He found that she suffered from a generalized anxiety disorder and has had episodes of depression. She also suffers from attention deficit disorder. Appellant reported taking medications on and off for these conditions, but was not on medication when he saw her. While working as a dispatcher she was taking Xanax for anxiety and Adderall for attention issues. Dr. Cowan offered that many people take these medications and have no problem working.

Dr. Cowan also reviewed Dr. Adelman's report and found it unclear. It appeared Dr. Adelman relied in part on a personality test designed for law enforcement personnel. These are predictive tests generally used for interview purposes, or if someone is not performing well. They help determine whether a certain personality type is suited to a given organization or position. Dr. Cowan does not use formal written testing, as this is the province of psychologists. He felt; however, that in this instance it would be more informative to inquire into appellant's work history. In his seventy-five-minute session with appellant she denied alcohol or drug abuse and denied being angry, aggressive, or having difficult relationships. She reported that she had worked for five years as a dispatcher without much incident. Dr. Cowan felt that this was better evidence of fitness than a personality test.

Appellant testified that her record as a dispatcher was generally free of incident, other than the two events that led to her fitness for duty exam and a prior lateness in 2011. As to the incidents she related that she had been ill, not impaired and that her error was not calling in sick. More generally she was not hostile, impatient, depressed or fatigued and felt that she handled her duties professionally. This is the substance of the record.

The burden of proof rests with the appointing authority to show that appellant is unfit for her title, N.J.S.A. 11A:2-21. This was not accomplished. I have accorded greater prominence to appellant's work history than to the predictive testing. Over the course of five years as a dispatcher the incidents were few. No peer or supervisor appeared to endorse the image of her as angry, argumentative, brooding, or depressed. There is no evidence that appellant ever failed to properly receive or route a call, or that there were complaints from the public about her manner. As to the events of March 31 and April 3, 201,5 we have only appellant's testimony that she was ill and did not call out for her shifts. While it is possible to exclude a candidate based on psychological testing, this is no small matter, see, In re Vey, 124 N.J. 534 (1991). I do not entirely discount Dr. Adelman's assessment; Dr. Cowan recognized as well that appellant had issues requiring medications. However, Dr. Adelman opined that work history is insignificant in the face of testing and he thereby marginalized a common measure of evaluation. The traits he ascribed to appellant would weigh more heavily were they better correlated with known conduct.

Based on the foregoing, it is ordered that appellant be restored to her position as a dispatcher, with back pay, benefits and counsel fees, in accordance with the regulations.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. Record Closed: April 11, 2017 Decided: May 26, 2017

BEFORE JOHN S. KENNEDY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

City of Millville Police Officer, Felix Rivera, (appellant) appeals the decision of the City of Millville Police Department (respondent, City,) to remove him from employment. A Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action, (PNDA) dated June 19, 2015, seeks the removal of appellant based on the following charges: N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)1—Incompetency, Inefficiency, or Failure to Perform Duties; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)6— Conduct Unbecoming a Public Employee; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)7— Neglect of Duty; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)12— Other Sufficient Cause; Millville Police Department (MPD) Rules & Regulations 3.3.2

Oath of Office; 3.3.6 High Ethical Standards; 4.1.1 Performance of Duty; 4.1.3 Obedience to Law & Rules; 4.1.8 Compromising Criminal Cases; MPD General Orders III A1(a) General Conduct; III A2(a) Conduct Unbecoming; and III A3(c) Accountability, Responsibility and Discipline. After a departmental hearing, charges against appellant were sustained and incorporated into a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA) 31-C (J-1) with a proposed penalty of removal from employment. The FDNA also sustained charges against appellant for violating MPD Rules & Regulations 4.3.3 Inaccurate/ False Report; 4.12.6 Truthfulness and General Orders 4-78 Evidence.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Appellant appealed his removal to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was received on June 17, 2016. Appellant waived the 180-day period for completion of the case on September 26, 2016. The hearing in this matter was held on January 17, 2017, February 3, 2017 and February 6, 2017. The parties agreed to file their briefs with the court on April 10, 2017, and the record closed on April 11, 2017.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The respondent alleges that in June 2015, the City filed disciplinary charges against appellant seeking his removal from employment for violations of Civil Service Regulations, Rules and Regulations and General Orders of the City's Police Department. Appellant was one of several city police officers who were disciplined as a result of what respondent summarizes as a failure to perform the job responsibilities that was discovered initially by an investigation by the Cumberland County Prosecutor's Office ("CCPO"). The City's Internal Affairs (IA) department conducted its own investigation and ultimately issued the charges that resulted in the termination of appellant.

The investigation of the various officers was initiated by a complaint filed by another Millville police officer alleging that certain Millville police officers were not conducting criminal investigations properly and was closing cases before investigations were completed. Upon learning of the lawsuit, Millville Police Captain, Matteo Rabbi, investigated the allegations and then referred the matter to the CCPO, concerned that criminal activity may have taken place. Ultimately, after an investigation that lasted in excess of one year, the CCPO referred the matter back to the City to be handled administratively. CCPO Special Agent, Ron Cuff, led that investigation. During his investigation, Agent Cuff initially investigated thirty-one cases that had been identified by one officer as not having been properly investigated and were improperly closed out. Agent Cuff decided that he should examine all cases handled by the MPD Detective Bureau (DB) during the two-year period of 2012 and 2013. Appellant served in the DB during that time period and Agent Cuff reviewed all of the cases assigned to him during that time period. Agent Cuff prepared spread sheets listing cases assigned to each officer and issuing findings about the investigations conducted.

Upon receipt of the CCPO declination letter in May 2015, Sergeant Brian Starcher (Starcher) conducted an IA investigation for the City. Starcher testified that the CCPO declination letter identified seven or eight officers who should be subject to administrative investigation and that his investigation included reviewing all cases handled by the DB during the period of 2012 - 2013. Starcher utilized the spreadsheets prepared by Agent Cuff to identify the cases he investigated for each officer. After considering the evidence gathered during the investigation, the City issued and served appellant with the June 15, 2015, PNDA.

Appellant asserts that the PNDA fails to set forth any facts supporting the allegations of an inaccurate or false report. The attachment to the PNDA merely sets forth the various sections alleged to have been violated by appellant without any specific factual basis. The attachment merely sets forth four case numbers and the City Rules and Regulations alleged to have been violated by appellant regarding inaccurate/false reports and truthfulness. Those case numbers are 12-06241 (R-8), 13-06797 (R-19), 13-07684 (R-20), and 13-23873 (R-22). Appellant asserts that the remaining charges regarding inaccurate, false or untruthful reports should be dismissed for the failure on the part of the employing agency to set forth the allegations with specificity.

TESTIMONY

Detective Brian Starcher testified on behalf of the City. Starcher testified that he relied on the spreadsheet prepared by Agent Cuff while conducting his investigation, but also conducted his own investigation and reached his own conclusions and made his own recommendations. Starcher authenticated and played the recording of his IA interview of appellant, which he conducted on May 26, 2015. (R-3.) That interview formed the basis of the charges filed against appellant. Appellant was provided with an opportunity to review the reports in each of the cases assigned to him and was questioned about deficiencies in his investigation of each case. Appellant stated in his IA interview that he was fully aware that a detective's job is to investigate cases with the goal of solving crimes. (R-3; 6:25.)[1] He added that if there are witnesses, it is his job to follow-up and interview them. Appellant stated that he had the ability to go into the system and assign cases to himself. (R-3; 7:50-9:00.) He could and occasionally did go into LawSoft and assign cases to himself. (R-3; 9:30.) Appellant's statement revealed that at one point, Sergeant Redden asked the detectives to close inactive cases out so that the department could get an accurate count regarding the number of cases being assigned to each individual detective. He stated that investigations are never really closed until someone has been charged, stating that they may run out of leads but they are never really closed. (R-3; 10:50.) When Starcher asked about the many cases that were closed during the week of June 24, 2013, appellant indicated that it was probably the same period of time that Sergeant Redden asked the detectives to close out inactive cases. He explained that there may be times when he may not want to let a person know that he or she is under investigation (R-3; 12:45) but that at some point he should try to interview the accused. (R-3; 13:45.) When questioned regarding meetings with supervisors, appellant indicated that they were few and far between and that regular meetings rarely happened due to the heavy caseload. According to Starcher, these meetings are important to direct and guide detectives in their investigations, and to help manage detectives' caseloads. New guidelines on how cases are assigned have been developed as a result of this investigation. Previously, there was no set procedure to notify a detective when he was assigned a new case. Sometimes it was just done orally or with a sticky note left on their desk. Now, there is a formal written procedure to notify detectives of new assignments.

[1] This reference is to the approximate time during appellant's IA interview when each statement was made, not to the time during the OAL hearing.

On cross-examination, Starcher testified that there were four or five working detectives during the time period covered by this case and that the majority, if not all, said they were overworked. The job of the superior officers was to review reports, not to redo investigations. Starcher also testified that Sergeant. Redden told detectives to close cases that could not be solved and for which there was no more work to be done. Initial reports are typically prepared by patrol officers although occasionally a detective will complete an Initial Investigation Report. Starcher explained that reports should contain all information generated during the investigation, including unsuccessful attempts to contact victims, those accused, and witnesses should be documented, including names, dates, addresses, phone numbers, etc. Starcher pointed out that in many of appellant's reports there was no follow-up investigation. The inclusion of this information is important for anyone else working on the case and for evidential purposes.

Starcher was questioned on cross-examination about an e-mail he sent to the City Business Administrator, Susan Robostello, on January 15, 2016, after he was notified that he was being transferred to the DB from IA. (P-2.) When challenged that his e-mail indicates that he did not have the training to investigate detectives because he had not had training for several years, Starcher explained that he was primarily seeking updates on case law. In his new position in the DB Starcher has found that he does not need to meet with detectives when he assigns cases but he chooses to do so to help him learn. If he rejects a report he explains his reasons to the officer whose report was rejected. He does not have regular meetings with detectives but will have one-on-one meetings.

Of the ninety-four cases assigned to appellant during the 2012-2013 time period, the City alleges that he erred in nineteen of those cases. Each of those cases will be addressed individually:

This case involved an alleged theft that occurred on January 12, 2012. The investigating officer was Richard Kott, Badge No. 104. Officer Kott's report indicates that Detectives Guy and Rivera arrived at the scene and processed it. Appellant recalls that he processed the scene and did some fingerprinting but he did not document his actions. (R-3; 20:15.) He stated that he should have documented what he processed. (R-3; 21:40.) After initially processing the scene, appellant never went back to speak to any of the victims. The victim of the theft indicated that a J.P.C. assisted his mother with cleaning up a lot of clutter that had been built up over the years in the residence. Officer Kott's report indicates that he was unable to locate J.P.C.

A Supplemental Report by appellant on March 29, 2012, revealed that no information was developed in reference to J.P.C. stealing the items from the residence, and the case would now be closed. He indicated that if any new information was developed the case would be reopened at that time. Appellant admitted in the course of his interview that in hindsight he should have interviewed J.P.C.

This case involved an initial report of a burglary at the Wal-Mart store. It was investigated by Officer John Redden, III, Badge No. 102, on January 23, 2012. Appellant also processed the scene for potential fingerprints. The Loss Prevention Officer provided Officer Redden with a copy of surveillance video. Attached to the video was a photo of the suspect's vehicle. Appellant's Supplemental Report, dated January 31, 2012, indicates that he did in fact process the scene.

His report indicates that he recovered a set of eighteen-inch bolt cutters to be fingerprinted at a later date. The bolt cutters and video were taken by appellant but never put in evidence by him, nor was the existence of this evidence documented by appellant. Appellant said he would consider the video and bolt cutters evidence but there was no documentation placing them in evidence and he has no idea where those items are. (R-3; 30:00.) He added that he did not know why the report did not show the evidence and that there was no reason for him not to put the video and bolt cutters in evidence. He was unable to get any prints from the bolt cutters. Appellant's report indicates that he was unable to identify any suspects and was waiting for a Wal-Mart's representative to provide him with a detailed list of stolen items. Supplemental Report B written by appellant indicates the case would be closed as of March 29, 2012, as no suspects had been identified and no new leads developed. No one from the Wal-Mart store ever provided a list to the appellant regarding the stolen items. Appellant made no other attempts to identify a suspect.

This case involved a burglary alleged to have occurred on February 18, 2012, at XXX Vine Road. Officer Joseph LaBonne, Badge No. 154, was the investigating officer and was unable to locate any fingerprints at the scene. Appellant indicated during the course of his interview that he did not recall the case at all. He further stated that, at that time, he was "kind of new" to the DB.

Appellant prepared a report on March 29, 2012. His report indicated that there was no information or suspects developed in the case. He did not check the neighborhood or speak to neighbors or the victims. Appellant did not go to the scene of the alleged burglary. Appellant stated that as a practice he did not always document when he processed a scene if it did not turn up any evidence or leads. (R-3; 37:05.) Appellant admitted he should have done more to solve this case.

This case was investigated by Officer Antonio Delfinado, Badge No. 127. This case involved a burglary at XXXX Louis Drive. Officer Delfinado's report indicates that appellant processed the scene and the evidence report in this case verifies this and appellant placed fingerprint examination envelopes into evidence.

Appellant's Supplemental Report A indicates that he spoke to a neighbor about two suspicious looking males the neighbor had seen in the area. However, the neighbor could only provide a vague description of the suspects. Appellant's Supplemental Report B indicates that several stolen items were recovered in another matter, Case No. 12-07102, and that the alleged victim went to the station and reviewed a booklet of the stolen items recovered in Case No. 12-07102. The alleged victim was unable to identify any of the items as belonging to him. An arrest was made in connection with Case No. 12-07102 and appellant believed it was the same suspect who committed both burglaries. The alleged victim at that time was unable to identify any of the recovered items as belonging to him. Appellant said that he identified a suspect in this case but he never interviewed the suspect because the suspect was not willing to talk. He did not document this in any of his reports and conceded that he should have. The incident occurred on February 27, 2012, and appellant closed the case on April 11, 2012. Starcher testified that appellant should have talked to neighbors, checked the neighborhood for cameras, attempted to interview suspects and checked with pawn shops or second hand stores to locate the stolen property.

This case involved burglary and theft of approximately $6,000. The incident occurred on March 1, 2012, and appellant closed the case on April 11, 2012. Appellant's report in this case states that he spoke with the victim and asked her to come in to identify suspect. He claimed during his IA interview that the victims would not identify suspects but he did not document this. (R-3; 48:25.) The victim in this case alleged the appellant never contacted her. Appellant stated that this is false (R-3; 49:10) but he did not document his efforts to contact the victim. He acknowledged during his IA that he should have documented that the victim refused to come in to the station. (R-3; 51:50.)

Appellant prepared a Supplemental Investigation Report (R-8; 12-06241) in which he claimed that on March 9, 2012, a large amount of stolen items were recovered in another case. The report indicated that he contacted the victim but she never came to the station. As of April 11, 2012, appellant had "not been able to contact her" and the case was closed. The report does not state that the victim refused to identify suspects (as he claimed during his IA interview) or that she refused to come in when he contacted her (as he claimed during his IA interview). Appellant stated in his report that he had no other leads and was closing the case but the Investigation Report issued by the initial responding officer identified J.L.'s ex-boyfriend by name as a possible suspect. Appellant made no mention of any efforts to locate or contact this individual. Appellant also stated in his report that he believed that the suspects from another case were involved in this burglary but he does not say why and he did not document who they were.

The victim in this case, J.L., testified before this tribunal that the value of the stolen items was significantly higher than what she initially told Officer Delfinado. Rather than the $6,000 value she initially reported, she now believes the jewelry was worth $45,000. She also said that $300 in cash was missing, but she did not think to check for the cash when the house was burglarized. J.L. called for the investigating officer several times, but he was not available when she called. She denied that anyone from the police department ever called her.

This case involved burglary and theft of approximately $10,000 worth of copper wire on March 9, 2012. Appellant remembered this case. There was no documentation that he checked the recycling facilities in the area but he contends that he did. Appellant identified suspects at the beginning of his investigation but there is no indication that he attempted to interview any suspects.

Starcher testified that appellant should have looked further into the other cases he referenced in his report. Starcher also testified that dates of contacts should always be included in reports along with the method of contact. It was not clear who appellant interviewed during field interviews and that his report should have listed each person's name and address as well as the date and time of the interviews.

Appellant set up two MPD owned cameras near the entrance to the fence of the Verizon property which captured two white males and one white female walking toward the Verizon property. On April 25, 2012, appellant indicates that as of that date the subjects had not been identified but there is no evidence that he made any attempt to identify them.

This case involved aggravated assault, unlawful possession of weapons, and possession of a weapon for unlawful purpose. Appellant denied any recollection of this case and said he did not know the victim. (R-3; 101:40.) He did not remember doing a report for this incident and the only evidence he submitted was an interview on DVD. (R-3; 102:00.) The last page of the Evidence Report indicates FR2-FR4 was placed into the Evidence Locker by appellant. That Evidence Report indicates that there was an interview of the victim B.W. by appellant. He candidly admitted during the course of his IA interview that he did not remember why he had not actually prepared a supplemental report.

This case involved aggravated assault and unlawful possession of a weapon. The victim was shot multiple times. Appellant recalled this case but never identified a suspect although someone gave him the names of some suspects. (R-3; 1:08:00.) There is no written record of what additional steps were taken. Appellant stopped working on this case nine days after the incident with no evidence that the investigation continued.

Appellant did prepare a report, Supplement B. His report indicates that he took nine photographs of the area and copied them onto a CD-R and entered them into evidence. He goes on in his report to indicate the interviews that took place with the neighbors and indicates that on Monday, July 9, 2012, he spoke to D.S., the victim's brother, who told him he did not know who had shot his brother.

This case involved a burglary of $11,900. worth of jewelry. Appellant remembered being assigned this case but did not document the efforts he made to solve this case.

Starcher testified that appellant had leads in Officer Bojaciuk's report that he could have pursued but that he never contacted, which included two persons of interest or persons to speak with as possible suspects. He added that appellant also could have spoken with neighbors and canvassed the neighborhood for video cameras. Appellant never documented whether he checked with pawn shops.

On cross-examination Starcher maintained that even though appellant arrested a person for receiving stolen property he should have tried to identify the person who actually conducted the burglary.

This case involved aggravated assault and domestic violence wherein the victim was a pregnant female. Appellant's report indicates that the unborn baby died. Agent Cuff's report confirms that there was no record that appellant attempted to contact the CCPO. Appellant claimed that the victim was uncooperative and closed the case.

Starcher testified that any time there is a death it must be reported to the CCPO. Appellant, according to Starcher, could have spoken to the suspect in an effort to investigate this case and even if the victims did not want police involvement appellant should have contacted the CCPO.

This case involved the theft of property from Verizon at XX Reese Road. There were nine other cases wherein appellant also investigated thefts from Verizon. On September 7, 2012, he responded to American Recycling where he observed several large rolls of cable. A representative from American Recycling provided appellant with two photos of J.A. from the weigh station from American Iron which showed the wiring being sold to them. He confirmed with Verizon that the property belonged to them and had a value of approximately $300.00.

His report indicates that on October 7, 2012, he was able to locate and interview J.A. There was no indication in the reports if anyone was arrested for the underlying theft, although appellant charged J.A. with receiving stolen property and she identified by name the person who gave her the stolen property.

This case commenced on January 9, 2013, when Officer Michael Phillips, Badge No. 147, was dispatched to XXX Lance Court for a reported burglary in progress. Officer Phillips' report indicates that the homeowner was not able to provide neither any description of the accused nor any additional information about the van she saw outside the residence. His report indicates that Detectives Rivera, Guy and Miller arrived at the scene as per Sergeant Duffield's request. The homeowner advised the detectives that she was missing $400 in United States currency from her pocketbook. Appellant said that he did not remember this case being assigned to him so he did not prepare any reports. He did remember going out to meet with the victims. Agent Cuff's spreadsheet confirmed that this case was assigned to appellant and that victim said that he attempted to contact appellant but that he never heard from him. Appellant placed in evidence e-mails exchanged between him and the victim. (P-1.) In one response, appellant writes "We are still working on several burglaries (including yours) in which a group of people were involved with. It will take some time to decipher if your house was included in the burglaries committed [sic] by these individuals. We will contact you once we have more information."

This case was investigated by Officer Douglas Wilson, Badge No. 135, on January 9, 2013, regarding shots being fired. An individual was shot in the foot. Officer Wilson indicates that Officer Mooney was dispatched to the Regional Medical Center (RMC) to speak to the alleged victim. Officer Mooney's report, Supplement A, indicates that she did go to RMC to speak to the victim. The victim stated the accused was a black male wearing all dark clothing. He was tall and thin. He stated that he really did not get a good look at the accused.

Appellant prepared Supplement D. In addition to receiving five photographs of the victim's right foot, which were placed into evidence, appellant also went to Cooper Hospital to obtain a recorded statement from the victim. Appellant's report indicates that the victim spoke of other subjects involved in the incident. He identifies the subject as S1 and S2. S2 is identified in the report as being the subject who shot the victim. No leads regarding the suspects were provided to appellant.

Appellant remembered going to the scene and that there were several people with whom he should have spoken but did not. (R-3; 1:42:50.) He did not document any of these facts for the benefit of anyone else who might work on the case. Oddly, he admitted that he closed out the case about a month after it was opened but that he did not know why he did. (R-3; 1:43:55.)

Starcher testified that five reports were filed in this case, with numerous names mentioned in multiple reports who appellant could have tried to interview. He also could have checked with neighbors and canvass the neighborhood for cameras. He added that there was no investigation of this case after February 19, 2013, even though the incident occurred on January 9, 2013, slightly more than a month earlier.

This case involved burglary, criminal trespass, and criminal mischief, with guns and money taken, and possibly a TV. Appellant did not recall anything about this case but he closed the case on May 21, 2013, slightly more than three months after the incident. He has no idea why the case was closed but no leads were developed.

Case No. 13-04887 (R-18)

This case involved an aggravated assault, possession of weapons for unlawful purpose, and unlawful possession of weapons that occurred on February 16, 2013, with a gunshot having entered an assisted living facility and lodged in a wall. Three police officers, in addition to appellant, prepared reports containing their initial efforts to gather information and solve this case. Appellant issued a report stating that he had not "developed any leads on this case" but did not document any efforts he made to identify leads and closing the case on May 21, 2013. Appellant did not recall working on this case during his IA interview.

Case No. 13-06797 (R-19)

This case involved robbery, aggravated assault, and theft. The victim in this case was transported to RMC with several broken bones in his face. Appellant prepared a Supplemental Report in this case but did not remember preparing it in his IA. He specifically remembered going to the victim's house to speak with the victim at his home on March 7, 2013, to ask him to look at a photo array however the victim was still in the hospital at that time, having been transferred from a local hospital to Cooper University Hospital Medical Center and was not released until four days later on March 11, 2013. Appellant's report indicates that as of June 24, 2013, when he closed the case as he had not heard from the victim even though he "made several attempts to contact him with negative results."

Case No. 13-07684 (R-20)

This case involved robbery, aggravated assault, and shots fired. Appellant recalled this case and indicated that he tried to contact one witness but he had moved to Philadelphia. He claimed he spoke with witnesses but did not document any attempts to solve the case. Page 3 of Officer Scott's report states that a surveillance video was turned over to appellant but there was no evidence log or chain of custody submitted by appellant indicating that the video was placed in evidence. Appellant indicated that there were no leads however Starcher testified that there was evidence that appellant should have reviewed. Appellant closed the case on June 24, 2013, stating that he had not developed any leads. This was the same week that the detectives were told to close inactive cases so that an accurate account could be determined regarding the assignment of cases.

Case No. 13-20755 (R-21)

Officer Michael Parsons, Badge No. 158, reports that on Sunday, June 30, 2013, he was dispatched to Oak View Apartments, Apt. XXX for the report of a gunshot victim. He indicates that one of the victims, E.Y., was very irate and being uncooperative. Officer Parsons's interview of several other persons in the area revealed no relevant or helpful information. Appellant's report, Supplement D, indicates that he made several attempts to contact E.Y. with negative results. He lists the telephone number that he called and indicates there was no answering machine. The other victim had given false contact information to the police and could not be located. Appellant reported that he "was advised the address for him [victim, D.C.] has been vacant for several months" but he did not state who advised him of this or if he attempted to confirm that the address was false. That report was prepared on July 15, 2013, and the case was closed by appellant on September 11, 2013. Appellant did not interview anyone on this case, including any neighbors.

Case #13-23873 (R-22)

This case involved burglary and theft which occurred on July 24, 2013. Appellant did not recall this case. According to his report he did not speak to the victim.

The report indicates that he checked receipts at We Buy Gold and M & M Jewelry for the missing items. The Investigation Report identifies the missing jewelry as gold hoop earrings and a gold necklace.

According to Officer Cuff's spreadsheet (R-2), the victim said she never spoke with a detective and she could not understand how he could have checked with a pawn shop because she never provided a description of her jewelry. The case was closed by appellant on October 14, 2013.

Special Agent Ronald Cuff from the CCPO also testified. He spent a year investigating all of the cases handled by the MPD DB during the 2012-2013 time period. He reviewed several hundred cases. As a result of his investigation, he sustained charges against every detective in the DB. He found that there were no written rules, regulations, or SOPs regarding case assignment and management. He also identified problems with LawSoft and that detectives did not always know when a case was assigned to them.

FINDINGS OF FACT

In order to resolve the inconsistencies in the witness testimony, the credibility of the witnesses must be determined. Credibility contemplates an overall assessment of the story of a witness in light of its rationality, internal consistency, and manner in which it "hangs together" with other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718 (9th Cir. 1963). A trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible, or because it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience, or because it is overborne by other testimony. Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958).

Having considered the testimonial and documentary evidence offered by the parties, I deem that the testimony offered by all of the witnesses to be credible. Although J.L. changed the amount of what was stolen from her residence from $6,000 to $45,000, I do not deem that this makes her testimony less credible. She did not make an insurance claim for reasons that are her own so there would be no reason for her to be untruthful. Therefore, I FIND as FACT that appellant did not speak to her as he reported in his report. (R-8.) Based upon the testimonial and documentary evidence, and having had the opportunity to observe the appearance and demeanor of the witnesses, I FIND as FACT the following for the individual investigations:

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

Under the Civil Service Act, a public employee may be subject to major discipline for various employment-related offenses, N.J.S.A. 11A:2-6. In an appeal from a disciplinary action or ruling by an appointing authority, the appointing authority bears the burden of proof to show that the action taken was appropriate. N.J.S.A. 11A:-2.21; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a). The authority must show by a preponderance of the competent, relevant and credible evidence that the employee is guilty as charged. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982). When dealing with the question of penalty in a de novo review of a disciplinary action against an employee, it is necessary to reevaluate the proofs and "penalty" on appeal, based on the charges. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-19; Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980); West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962).

The City issued and served appellant with a PNDA charging him with the following:

Title 4A

4A:2-2.3(a)1	Incompetency, Inefficiency, or failure to perform duties
4A:2-2.3(a)6	Conduct unbecoming a public employee
4A:2-2.3(a)7	Neglect of Duty
4A:2-2.3(a)12	Other Sufficient Cause

Rules & Regs

3.3.2	Oath of Office
3.3.6	High Ethical Standards
4.1.1	Performance of Duty
4.1.3	Obedience to Law & Rules
4.1.8	Compromising Criminal Cases

General Orders

2-99 III A1(a)	General Conduct
2-99 III A2(a)	Conduct Unbecoming an Officer
2-99 III A3(c)	Accountability, Responsibility and Discipline

The FNDA listed nineteen cases assigned to appellant in which the above charges were sustained. (R-4 through R-22)

Of the nineteen cases to which the above charges applied, four of those cases also were identified in the FNDA as sustained charges of Inaccurate/False Reports and/or Untruthfulness. (R-8; R-19; R-20; R-22)

Rules & Regs

4.3.3	Inaccurate/False Report
4.12.6	Truthfulness

REPORTS. No employee shall knowingly falsify any official report or enter or cause to be entered any inaccurate, false or improper information on records of the department

TRUTHFULNESS. Employees are required to be truthful at all times whether under oath or not.

Finally, the FNDA identified one charge to which General Order 4-78, Evidence, applied. (R-5)

Appellant argues that the FDNA alleges that at various times during the years 2012 and 2013 appellant failed to adequately perform his duties as a police officer. The specification contained in J-1 alleges that:

> On various dates throughout the year 2012 and 2013, Officer Felix Rivera was found to have wrongly and improperly closed out investigations assigned to him and also found to have improperly handled investigations, which are identified below, by neglecting to follow up on these crimes in order to > solve same. Det. Rivera failed to conduct appropriate investigations on numerous cases and prepared inadequate reports on the following cases identified below. Furthermore, Officer Felix Rivera was untruthful and filed inaccurate, false or improper information on records of the department in the cases identified below. Furthermore, Det. Rivera failed to gather, or ignored evidence in gathered in the criminal cases identified below.

The second page of J-1 merely sets forth case numbers and the general sections of Title 4A, The Rules and Regulations of the City and the General Orders of the City. Appellant asserts that there are no factual allegations contained on the attachment setting forth with specificity what he is alleged to have done improperly.

In In the Matter of Benjamin Ortega, CSC Docket No. 2012-3621, OAL Docket No. CSR 8216-12 (2013), it was held that even though the specifications in that case consisted of a vague multipage narrative, the charges would be upheld in light of the evidence presented by the appointing authority at the hearing, which made evident what the actual allegations were. Appellant was provided with multiple opportunities during his IA interview to explain his actions in each of the nineteen cases. The appointing authority further made it evident at the hearing beginning December 2, 2015, before Hearing Officer, Robert Verry, what the specific allegations were. Finally, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority, through testimony and evidence presented during this hearing has adequately specified the actions for which he is being charged for each of the nineteen cases outlined in the FNDA.

Under N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a) (1), an employee may be subjected to major discipline for "incompetency, inefficiency, or failure to perform duties." Absence of judgment alone can be sufficient to warrant termination if the employee is in a sensitive position that requires public trust in the agency's judgment. See, In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19, 32 (2007) (DYFS worker who waved a lit cigarette lighter in a five-year-old's face was terminated, despite lack of any prior discipline).

"There is no constitutional or statutory right to a government job." State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Newark v. Gaines, 309 N.J. Super. 327, 334 (App. Div. 1998). (Note: Gaines had a substantial prior disciplinary history, but the case is frequently quoted as a threshold statement of civil service law.)

"In addition, there is no right or reason for a government to continue employing an incompetent and inefficient individual after a showing of inability to change." Klusaritz v. Cape May County, 387 N.J. Super. 305, 317 (App. Div. 2006) (termination was the proper remedy for a County treasurer who could not balance the books, after the auditors tried three times to show him how.)

> In reversing the MSB's insistence on progressive discipline, contrary to the wishes of the appointing authority, the Klusaritz panel stated that "[t]he [MSB's] application of progressive discipline in this context is misplaced and contrary to the public interest." The court determined that Klusaritz's prior record is "'of no moment" because his lack of competence to perform the job rendered him unsuitable for the job and subject to termination by the county.

There is no definition in the administrative code of the term "inefficiency," and therefore, it has been left to interpretation.

In general, incompetence, inefficiency, or failure to perform duties exists where the employee's conduct demonstrates an unwillingness or inability to meet, obtain or produce effects or results necessary for adequate performance. Clark v. New Jersey Dep't of Agric., 1 N.J.A.R. 315 (1980).

The fundamental concept that one should be able to perform the duties of the position is stated in Briggs v. Department of Civil Service, 64 N.J. Super. 351, 356 (App. Div. 1960), which happens to be a probationary period case involving a nurse:

> Manifestly, the purpose of the probationary period is to further test a probationer's qualifications. Neither the Legislature nor the Commission has given the courts any guidance in determining the extent of assistance or orientation which a probationer must > receive. Undoubtedly her duties must be explained to her and she must be given reasonable opportunity to perform the duties expected of her. But this does not mean she is entitled to on-the-job training in the manner of performing her duties. This is what she must be qualified for—the proper performance of her duties as outlined by the appointing authority.

In the present matter, the record reflects that appellant failed to perform several of his duties, specifically involving how to properly conduct an investigation as a detective. He clearly demonstrated an absence of judgment in a sensitive position requiring public trust in the agency's judgment. In several of the cases analyzed above, appellant admits that he should have done a better job and only provides lack of experience or heavy case load as a rationale. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the charges of a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1) (incompetence, inefficiency, failure to perform duties) must be and is hereby SUSTAINED for each of the nineteen cases in question.

Respondent also sustained charges against appellant for conduct unbecoming a public employee, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a) (6). To the extent that appellant is charged with violation of Rules and Regulations 3.3.6, which addresses High Ethical Standards, consideration of such violation will be addressed in concert with the current analysis.

"Conduct unbecoming a public employee" is an elastic phrase, which encompasses conduct that "adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services." Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also, In re Emmons, 63 NJ. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances "be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555 [quoting In re Zeber, 156 A.2d 821, 825 (1959)]. Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) [quoting Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)]. Suspension or removal may be justified where the misconduct occurred while the employee was off duty. Emmons, supra, 63 N.J. Super. at 140.

In the present matter, the record reflects that appellant failed to perform duties required of him in his handling of each of the nineteen cases. In many of these cases, appellant wrote reports without making any effort to investigate those cases or in which he wrote a line "I could not identify any leads" or similar words which gave the false impression that he actually investigated those cases. Appellant understood how to perform his job responsibilities as he acknowledged at the outset of his IA interview when he described the duties and responsibilities of a detective and personally failed to perform those job responsibilities. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has proven, by a preponderance of credible evidence, that the charge of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a) 6 (conduct unbecoming a public employee), and Rules and Regulations 3.3.6, should be and are hereby SUSTAINED. I further CONCLUDE that appellant violated Rules and Regulations 4.1.8. by failing to properly investigate these criminal cases appellant interfered with the proper administration of criminal justice and potentially left criminals on the street to commit additional crimes.

Appellant has also been charged with Rules and Regulations 4.3.3, Inaccurate/False Report and 4.12.6 Truthfulness for the following four cases 12-06241 (R-8), 13-06797 (R-19), 13-07684 (R-20) and 13-23873 (R-22). Those Rules and Regulations state:

> REPORTS. No employee shall knowingly falsify any official report or enter or cause to be entered any inaccurate, false or improper information on records of the department
> TRUTHFULNESS. Employees are required to be truthful at all times whether under oath or not.

In one case, appellant states that he spoke with the victim about coming into the station to review evidence but the victim denied this in her testimony before this tribunal. (R-8.) In another case, he claimed to have interviewed a victim at his house the day after he was severely injured but the victim was still in the hospital at the time.

(R-19; R-19A.) In a third case, he asserted that he attempted to develop leads in a case when in fact he did not follow leads provided by other investigating officers. (R-20.) In the fourth case, appellant issued a two (2) line report in which he claimed he did not develop any leads and closed a case. (R-22.) Appellant only provided a generic description of the incident and his report does not state if he met with the victim. Without documentation to the contrary appellant's lack of specificity in his report leads a reader to presume that he did not attempt to develop any leads. Furthermore, appellant's untruthfulness and false report create issues whereby he cannot testify in any criminal court without a prosecutorial disclosure of his "Brady Issue," thereby, reducing his ability to serve as a police officer. This clearly constitutes behavior which could adversely affect the morale of the facility and undermine public respect in the services provided.

Respondent also sustained charges against appellant for neglect of duty, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) for each of the nineteen cases. To the extent that appellant is charged with violation of Rules and Regulations 4.1.1, which addresses Performance of Duty, consideration of such violation will be addressed in concert with the current analysis. "Neglect of duty" has been interpreted to mean that "an employee . . . neglected to perform an act required by his or her job title or was negligent in its discharge." In re Glenn, CSV 5072-07, Initial Decision (February 5, 2009) (citation omitted), adopted, Civil Service Commission (March 27, 2009), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/ collections/oal/>. The term "neglect" means a deviation from the normal standards of conduct. In re Kerlin, 151 N.J. Super. 179, 186 (App. Div. 1977). "Duty" means conformance to "'the legal standard of reasonable conduct in the light of the apparent risk.'" Wytupeck v. Camden, 25 N.J. 450, 461 (1957) (citation omitted). Neglect of duty can arise from omitting to perform a required duty as well as from misconduct or misdoing. Cf. State v. Dunphy, 19 N.J. 531, 534 (1955). Neglect of duty does not require an intentional or willful act; however, there must be some evidence that the employee somehow breached a duty owed to the performance of the job.

In the present matter, the record reflects that appellant failed to follow leads, did not interview witnesses, victims or suspects and failed to complete his investigation before closing cases. I CONCLUDE that this action constituted omissions of required duties, and therefore, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has proven, by a preponderance of credible evidence, that the charge of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) - Neglect of Duty, Rules and Regulations 4.1.1 should be and is hereby SUSTAINED.

Appellant has also been charged with a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) - Other Sufficient Cause. Specifically, appellant is charged with violations of MPD Rules & Regulations 3.3.2 Oath of Office; 3.3.6 High Ethical Standards; 4.1.1 Performance of Duty; 4.1.3 Obedience to Law & Rules; 4.1.8 Compromising Criminal Cases; MPD General Orders III A1(a) General Conduct; III A2(a) Conduct Unbecoming; and III A3(c) Accountability, Responsibility and Discipline. I CONCLUDE that the consideration of the charges constituting a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(11) - Other Sufficient Cause have been addressed and SUSTAINED within the discussion of violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1),(6) and (7).

Accordingly, I further CONCLUDE that the charge of a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) - Other Sufficient Cause must be and is hereby SUSTAINED.

PENALTY

In West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 522 (1962), which was decided more than fifty-years ago, our Supreme Court first recognized the concept of progressive discipline, under which "past misconduct can be a factor in the determination of the appropriate penalty for present misconduct." In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19, 29 (2007) (citing Bock, supra, 38 N.J. at 522). The Court therein concluded that "consideration of past record is inherently relevant" in a disciplinary proceeding, and held that an employee's "past record" includes "an employee's reasonably recent history of promotions, commendations and the like on the one hand and, on the other, formally adjudicated disciplinary actions as well as instances of misconduct informally adjudicated, so to speak, by having been previously brought to the attention of and admitted by the employee." Bock, supra, 38 N.J. 523-24.

As the Supreme Court explained in In re Herrmann, supra, 192 N.J. at 30, "[s]ince Bock, the concept of progressive discipline has been utilized in two ways when determining the appropriate penalty for present misconduct." According to the Court:

> . . . First, principles of progressive discipline can support the imposition of a more severe penalty for a public employee who engages in habitual misconduct . . .
>
> The second use to which the principle of progressive discipline has been put is to mitigate the penalty for a current offense . . . for an employee who has a substantial record of employment that is largely or totally unblemished by significant disciplinary infractions . . .
> . . . [T]hat is not to say that incremental discipline is a principle that must be applied in every disciplinary setting. To the contrary, judicial decisions have recognized that progressive discipline is not a necessary consideration when . . . the misconduct is severe, when it is unbecoming to the employee's position or renders the employee unsuitable for continuation in the position, or when application of the principle would be contrary to the public interest.
> [In re Hermann, supra, 192 N.J. at 30-33 (citations omitted).]

In the case of In re Carter, 191 N.J. 474 (2007), the Court decided that the principle of progressive discipline did not apply to the sanction of a police officer for sleeping on duty and, notwithstanding his unblemished record, it reversed the lower court and reinstated a removal imposed by the Board. The Court noted the factor of public-safety concerns in matters involving the discipline of correction officers and police officers, who must uphold the law and "present an image of personal integrity and dependability in order to have the respect of the public." In re Carter, supra, 191 N.J. at 486 (citation omitted).

In the matter of In re Stallworth, 208 N.J. 182 (2011), a Camden County pump-station operator was charged with falsifying records and abusing work hours, and the ALJ imposed removal. The Civil Service Commission (Commission) modified the penalty to a four-month suspension and the appellate court reversed. The Court re-examined the principle of progressive discipline. Acknowledging that progressive discipline has been bypassed where the conduct is sufficiently egregious, the Court noted that "there must be fairness and generally proportionate discipline imposed for similar offenses." In re Stallworth, supra, 208 N.J. at 193. Finding that the totality of an employee's work history, with emphasis on the "reasonably recent past," should be considered to assure proper progressive discipline, the Court modified and affirmed (as modified) the lower court and remanded the matter to the Commission for reconsideration.

A penalty in this case is unavoidable. The case law setting sworn law enforcement officers apart from other public servants as "special" is consistent. The standard guiding their behavior and informing their discipline is strict:

> A police officer is a special kind of public employee. His primary duty is to enforce and uphold the law . . . He represents law and order to the citizenry and must present an image of personal integrity and dependability in order to have respect of the public.

[Twp. of Moorestown v. Armstrong, 898 N.J. Super. 560, 566, 215 A.2d 775 (App. Div. 1965), certif. denied, 47 N.J. 80, 219 A.2d 417 (1966); See also In re Phillips, 117 N.J. 567, 577 (1990)]

In the case of In re Carter, 191 N.J. 474, 485-486 (2007), affirming removal of a police officer who slept while on duty, the Court held:

> In matters involving discipline of police and corrections officers, public safety concerns may also bear upon the propriety of the dismissal sanction. See, e.g., Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571, 580, 410 A.2d 686 (1980) (affirming appellate reversal of Board decision to reduce penalty from dismissal to suspension for prison guard who falsified report because of Board's failure to consider seriousness of charge); In re Hall, 335 N.J. Super. 45, 51, 760 A.2d 1148 (App. Div. 200) (reversing Board's decision to reduce penalty imposed on police officer for attempted theft from dismissal to suspension), certif. denied, 167 N.J. 629, 772 A.2d 931 (2001); Bowden v. Bayside State Prison, 268 N.J. Super. 301, 305-06, 633 A.2d 577 (App. Div. 1993) (holding that it was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable to reduce penalty from removal > to six months suspension for prison guard who gambled with inmates for cigarettes), certif. denied, 135 N.J. 469, 640 A.2d 850 (1994).

To determine whether a lesser penalty than the respondent's termination of appellant is appropriate, the concept of progressive discipline is generally examined. Our courts uniformly have upheld the concept in a long line of cases, beginning with West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 523 (1962): (an employee's past record of both discipline and commendations can be considered). See also In re Hermann, 192 N.J. 19, 21 (2007). However, the judiciary also agrees that progressive punishment can be waived when the offense involved is sufficiently egregious. In re Stallworth, 208 N.J. 182, 196-197 (2011). However, the Court in Hermann also declared that progressive discipline can be used to mitigate the penalty where there is a substantial record of employment that is largely or totally unblemished by significant disciplinary infractions. In re Hermann, 192 N.J. supra, at 32-33.

The appellant's disciplinary record is in not in evidence however I am satisfied that appellant's conduct in this case was egregious such that progressive discipline need not be considered. The public who is served, and other employees, deserve to be able to expect that in such situations the officer's investigation will be guided by concerns for safety and order above all else. To expect otherwise is to invite disorder and confusion in responding to such instances, possibly leading to worse, more dangerous situations, and serves to undermine the confidence the public places in the correctional system. It cannot be tolerated. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the respondent's action in removing the appellant from his position was justified.

DECISION AND ORDER

The respondent has proven by a preponderance of credible evidence the charges against appellant with violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)1—Incompetency, Inefficiency, or Failure to Perform Duties; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)6— Conduct Unbecoming a Public Employee; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)7— Neglect of Duty; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)12— Other Sufficient Cause; Millville Police Department (MPD) Rules & Regulations 3.3.2 Oath of Office; 3.3.6 High Ethical Standards; 4.1.1 Performance of Duty; 4.1.3 Obedience to Law & Rules; 4.1.8 Compromising Criminal Cases; MPD General Orders III A1(a) General Conduct; III A2(a) Conduct Unbecoming; and III A3(c) Accountability, Responsibility and Discipline, and I ORDER that these charges be and are hereby SUSTAINED. Furthermore, I ORDER that the penalty of removal is hereby AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 40A:14-204.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 2016-1610

IN THE MATTER OF CHRISTOPHER SPIVEY, NEWARK PUBLIC SCHOOL DISTRICT.

Christopher Spivey, appellant, pro se

Sabrina Styza, Associate General Counsel, for respondent Newark Public School District (Charlotte Hitchcock, General Counsel, Office of the General Counsel, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 11, 2017 Decided: May 30, 2017

BEFORE KELLY J. KIRK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Newark Public School District suspended HVAC mechanic Christopher Spivey for fifteen working days for conduct unbecoming a public employee, neglect of duty, and other sufficient cause.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about July 30, 2015, the Newark Public School District served Christopher Spivey with a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (PNDA). (R-4.) A departmental hearing was held on August 21, 2015, and the charges of conduct unbecoming a public employee, neglect of duty, and other sufficient cause were sustained. (R-5.) On or about September 29, 2015, the Newark Public School District served Spivey with a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA), suspending him for fifteen working days, beginning October 13, 2015, and ending November 2, 2015. (R-5.)

Spivey appealed, and the Civil Service Commission transmitted the contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on December 1, 2015. The hearing was held on August 3, 2016, and the record remained open for post-hearing submissions. The record closed on January 11, 2017.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Richard Morales testified on behalf of the Newark Public School District. Christopher Spivey testified on his own behalf.

Background

Having had an opportunity to consider the evidence and to observe the witnesses and make credibility determinations based on the witnesses' testimony, I FIND the following FACTS in this case:

Richard Morales is the acting HVAC supervisor for the Newark Public School District. As supervisor, he dispatches work for several schools, and monitors personnel to insure the work is completed in a cost-effective and timely manner. It is important that HVAC personnel promptly be in and out of each school to avoid or minimize disruption to students and teachers.

HVAC personnel are monitored throughout the day. They punch in upon entering a school in the morning, punch out upon exiting a school in the afternoon, and punch in and out for lunch. Morales monitors where the punches are made. Morales advises employees daily where to punch in, either the night before or the morning of, before the employee punches in. District policy requires that the employee punch in at the school assigned, or at the last school where the employee worked. Morales keeps a log, the "Trades Weekly Timesheet" (Log) that reflects where each employee is to report daily in the morning. Typically, the employee calls Morales in the morning and tells Morales his or her location. Morales enters that information daily into the Log, and it should coincide with where the employee is supposed to be. If a location changes overnight because of an emergency that has arisen, the employee will be notified that night or before he or she punches in in the morning, and Morales records the change in the Log.

Morales compares the Log weekly with the computerized Kronos Punch Origin printout (Kronos). Kronos punch clocks are located in the schools throughout the Newark Public School District. Juan Guerrero is Morales's supervisor. A formal request for disciplinary action against Spivey was made by Guerrero on May 20, 2015, for alleged unauthorized punches made outside of assigned locations. (R-3.)

The HVAC shop is located in the Technology High School (Tech) basement. HVAC materials are kept in the shop. Morales does not remain in the shop all day. Morales drives around to various locations to verify that employees are at their assigned locations, that they have the necessary materials, and that their work is completed. He drives around the school district constantly, so he is both in the shop and in the field.

Spivey had been employed by the Newark Public School District for seven years when the PNDA was issued, and had no prior disciplinary history.

Testimony

Richard Morales

At the end of the week Morales compares the Log with Kronos to verify that employees are punching in at their assigned locations. An employee could tell Morales by phone that he or she was at a particular school, but Morales was able to thereafter verify that with Kronos. Any discrepancy would be noted, and Morales would personally speak to an employee about a discrepancy, and he would advise the employee that he or she was required to punch in at his or her assigned location. Multiple discrepancies would be referred for disciplinary action. At times, Morales's Log/Kronos checks are prompted by a "drive-by," where Morales sees an employee at a location other than his or her assigned location. Morales sometimes received complaints that Spivey was not where he was supposed to be.

At most of the schools the HVAC employees must go to, the classrooms are shut down. Thus, they must arrive and complete the work timely so that the teachers and students may return. Failure to punch in timely or at the appropriate location affects and significantly delays the work. By way of example, at times boilers shut down overnight and employees are dispatched immediately to correct the problem. Clocking in at another location delays the work, as sometimes it can take an hour to get from one location to another, by which time pipes may be frozen.

Morales supervised Spivey for approximately three years, and dispatched work orders and assignments to Spivey. Spivey was to be at his assigned location to complete his assigned work, and to meet other workers to assist in completing the work. Very rarely, if an emergency occurred in the middle of the night, Morales would contact Spivey before 8:00 a.m. and instruct him to go to a different location than the one he was assigned the night before. This change would be reflected on the Log.

Morales compared the Log to Kronos for Spivey and determined that there were numerous discrepancies, as follows:

[2] "Tech" was crossed out.

Sometime in mid-to-late January 2015, after Morales noticed the discrepancies, he spoke to Spivey. Spivey should not have been punching in anywhere but the assigned location reflected in the Log. Morales spoke to Spivey at least four or five times, but despite the verbal warnings, Spivey's conduct did not change, so Morales referred him for disciplinary action. Spivey was referred for more than twenty discrepancies, but disciplinary referrals are made for as few as fifteen discrepancies. Morales notified his supervisor, Juan Guerrero, of the discrepancies, and Guerrero prepared the disciplinary action request.

District policy requires that the employee punch in at the school assigned, or at the last school where the employee worked. A memorandum is given to the employees, and it is available online. Spivey was notified of the policy, and there would be no reason for him to not be aware of the policy.

Once Morales assigns a job and the employee contacts him that morning to advise of his or her location, he writes it on the Log. Thereafter he checks Kronos for discrepancies. Morales estimated the Log to be "very accurate" or "95 percent." At times entries are made by another supervisor, but Morales estimated that 90 percent of the entries were his handwriting. A slash mark with another school reflected on the Log most likely reflects an emergency.

Normally, Morales gives Spivey his assignments the night before. Very rarely would Spivey be given an assignment in the morning, as that would be for an emergency. Morales has also gone to a school and given Spivey an assignment. The Log is accurate and is used to document where all his employees are during the day, what jobs were completed, and what they get paid for. Spivey's profile reflects every single school he worked at, based on work orders. There would not be a situation where an employee would not have a new assignment before punching out for the day. Morales notifies the employees before they punch out of their assigned location for the following morning, and if he does not, the employee is to return to the last job location.

If Spivey has finished an assignment in the morning, Morales would know from Spivey calling in. There are times when Spivey has finished a job assignment in the morning and been in a different location in the afternoon. Typically, he would be in one school per day, but has occasionally been in up to three schools in one day. If Spivey had to pick up parts at the shop, he would be assigned to Tech.

Spivey is due in at work at 8:00 a.m. Morales's understanding of why employees have clocked in at locations other than their assigned location was that it is done when the employee is late; the employee pulls over at another school and punches in to avoid being marked as late.

Regarding January 21, 2015, and January 23, 2015, Morales testified that Tech is their shop, but the shop is downstairs. There was no reason for Spivey to have been punching in at the main offices, which are upstairs and have nothing to do with the shop. A punch-in at either of the main offices would be a violation, as the proper location is the shop and that is why there is a separate Kronos downstairs. Additionally, the only time Spivey can punch in at Tech would be if they were having a meeting at the shop. Morales testified that a punch in at the Tech main office is a violation. That is upstairs where the children attend school, and there is too much "people traffic."

Morales did not recall specifically what was discussed during the telephone calls with Spivey. If Morales had ever called Spivey to change his location, it would have been recorded on the Log. Calls from Spivey could have been for any number of reasons, including that Spivey needed material, got stuck, or was not coming in.

Christopher Spivey

Spivey's telephone records reflect seven telephone calls, relevant to the twenty-eight days in question, as follows: On January 5, 2015, at 8:36 a.m., Spivey called the shop; on January 20, 2015, at 3:58 p.m., Morales called Spivey from his cell phone; on January 21, 2015, at 2:01 p.m., Spivey received a call from the shop; on January 28, 2015, at 2:54 p.m., Spivey called Morales; on February 5, 2015, at 10:11 a.m., Spivey called Morales; and on March 19, 2015, at 3:20 p.m., Spivey called Morales[3].

Sometimes Morales called Spivey the day before to give him his assignments. Morales called Spivey on January 20, 2015, at 3:58 p.m. and instructed him to report to Tech the following morning. Morales called Spivey on January 21, 2015, at 2:01 p.m. and instructed him to report to Dr. William H. Horton the following morning. Morales called Spivey on January 28, 2015, at 2:54 p.m. and instructed him to report to Tech the following morning. Morales called Spivey on February 4, 2015, at 2:30 p.m. and instructed him to report to Tech the following morning. Spivey called Morales at 10:11 a.m. on February 5, 2015, to let him know that he would be leaving early that day, at which time Morales instructed him to go to Ivy Hill the following day. Spivey left work at 11:36 a.m. on February 5, 2015.

Spivey initially testified that Morales called him at 3:20 p.m. on March 19, 2015, and instructed him to report to Tech the following morning. Spivey thereafter testified that he called Morales to tell him he was done at the site, and Morales instructed him to punch in at Tech the following morning.

Spivey denied that any of the cell-phone calls between Spivey and Morales were about work matters other than where Spivey was assigned to report the following day. Morales might call him during the day for an update on a job, at which point Spivey would tell Morales whether he was done or not, and Morales would give him an assignment, as needed. Spivey denied that he had conversations with Morales about the scope of a job and not about the next day's assignment. When they speak, it is about how the job is going, when it will be completed, and assignments for the next day.

Spivey admitted he was aware of the Newark Public School District Policy requiring him to "Kronos in" on time at his assigned location. He also admitted that not following the policy could affect the efficiency of the schools. Spivey denied punching it at locations other than his assigned locations. The Kronos is accurate, but the Log is not. Spivey knows where to punch in, which is either the last school he worked at or where Morales instructs him to go when he calls. Spivey never received a verbal or written warning for the allegations in the PNDA. Spivey denied ever being advised that his Kronos punches did not match the Log. Sometimes Morales showed up at jobs and gave out work assignments for the following day.

Spivey punched in on January 28, 2015, at a location other than his assigned location because of snow and the inability to get to his assigned location at all that day. Spivey also testified that he had "absolutely no access to get to the school" on March 6, 2015, because of a snow storm on March 5, 2015.

Additional Findings of Fact

A credibility determination requires an overall evaluation of the testimony in light of its rationality or internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). Testimony to be believed must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness, but must be credible in itself. Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546, 555 (1954). It must be such as the common experience and observation can approve as probable in the circumstances. Gallo v. Gallo, 66 N.J. Super. 1, 5 (App. Div. 1961). "The interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony.'" State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 10 N.J. 316 (1952) (citation omitted).

Appellant's testimony with respect to several of the dates in question was inconsistent with and overborne by the record, including the documentary evidence and the concise, consistent, and credible testimony of Morales. By way of example, appellant claims that on January 5, 2015, he called to get a school assignment, but he had punched in at the Ivy Hill Main Office at 8:01 a.m. and did not call the shop until 8:36 a.m. If he had no assignment for that day, it is not clear why he would have waited more than half an hour to find out where he should be working.

Appellant also claims that Morales called him on January 20, 2015, at 3:58 p.m. and advised him to report to Tech in the morning on January 21, 2015. However, Morales testified that the Log would reflect the morning punch-in location—Ivy Hill—and it is observed that Spivey's subsequent two punches that day were Ivy Hill. Appellant claims that he received a call from Morales, from the shop, on January 21, 2015, at 2:01 p.m., and was advised to report to Dr. William H. Horton in the morning. However, Morales likewise testified that the Log would reflect the morning punch-in location—Tubman—and it is observed that Spivey's subsequent three punches that day were Harriet Tubman, and all but his morning punch the following day were also at Harriet Tubman.

Appellant claims that on February 5, 2015, he called Morales at 10:11 a.m. and was advised to report to Ivy Hill the following morning. Morales testified that the employees were generally contacted the night before or before punching out for the day, and it does not seem logical that an assignment would have been made with more than five hours remaining in the work day. Further, the morning punch-in location on the Log—South St.—was Spivey's last punch on February 5, 2015, and his two punches subsequent to his morning punch at Ivy Hill the following morning were also at South Street. Thus, the evidence suggests that Spivey was working at South Street the prior day, and was to continue working at South Street on February 6, 2015.

Spivey also testified that he was unable to get to his assigned location at all on January 28, 2015, because the roads were impassable due to snow. However, other than the morning punch at N – Barringer Steam Main Office, his other three punches were all from the Log-assigned school (Newton). Additionally, Morales pointed out that if Spivey could make it to Barringer by 7:52 a.m., there was no reason he could not have made it to Newton.

Spivey repeatedly claimed that Morales contacted him and told him to report to an assigned location other than the location reflected in the Log, but it is observed that on many of those occasions, Spivey ended up at the Log-assigned location by 11:30 a.m. Specifically, of the twenty-eight discrepancies in the period from January 5, 2015, through March 20, 2015, it is observed that on seventeen occasions (January 21, 2015, January 22, 2015, January 23, 2015, January 28, 2015, February 2, 2015, February 5, 2015, February 6, 2015, February 9, 2015, February 10, 2015, February 12, 2015, February 13, 2015, February 17, 2015, March 3, 2015, March 4, 2015, March 17, 2015, March 19, 2015, and March 20, 2015), Spivey punched out for lunch at his Log-assigned location, despite having punched in for the day elsewhere, which suggests that Spivey was indeed assigned to a different location than the one where he punched in.

Additionally, of the twenty-eight days reflected above, Spivey punched it at "S – Tech High Main 2" eleven times, and "S – Tech High Main Office 1" three times, none of which is the "S – Tech High Basement" location where the shop is, and Morales testified there would be no reason for him to punch in outside the shop.

Having had an opportunity to consider the evidence and to observe the witnesses and make credibility determinations based on the witnesses' testimony, I FIND the following additional FACTS in this case:

On at least seventeen occasions from January 5, 2015, through March 20, 2015, Spivey knowingly punched in at a school other than the school at which he had been assigned to report to work. Spivey was verbally warned by Morales not to punch in at a location other than his assigned location. Spivey was aware that punching in at a school other than the school at which he was assigned to work was a violation.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 through 12-6, the "Civil Service Act," established the Civil Service Commission in the Department of Labor and Workforce Development in the Executive Branch of the New Jersey State government. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-1. The Commission establishes the general causes that constitute grounds for disciplinary action, and the kinds of disciplinary action that may be taken by appointing authorities against permanent career-service employees. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-20. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-6 vests the Commission with the power, after a hearing, to render the final administrative decision on appeals concerning removal, suspension or fine, disciplinary demotion, and termination at the end of the working test period, of permanent career-service employees.

N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2(a) provides that major discipline includes removal, disciplinary demotion, and suspension or fine for more than five working days at any one time. An employee may be subject to discipline for reasons enumerated in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a), including conduct unbecoming a public employee, neglect of duty, and other sufficient cause. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6), (7) and (12). In appeals concerning such major disciplinary actions, the burden of proof is on the appointing authority to establish the truth of the charges by a preponderance of the believable evidence. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4; N.J.S.A. 11A:2-21; Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143, 149 (1962).

Spivey is charged with conduct unbecoming a public employee, neglect of duty, and other sufficient cause. The burden of proof is on Newark Public School District to prove the charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence.

N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) does not define conduct unbecoming. However, the Appellate Division has held that conduct unbecoming a public employee is "any conduct . . . which has a tendency to destroy public respect for municipal employees and confidence in the operation of municipal services." In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). In Emmons, which involved a police officer charged with conduct unbecoming, the Appellate Division also held that conduct unbecoming is "any conduct which adversely affects the morale or efficiency of the bureau." Ibid. What constitutes conduct unbecoming a public employee is primarily a question of law. Karins v. Atl. City, 152 N.J. 532, 553 (1998).

Spivey on at least seventeen occasions failed to timely report to his assigned job location, and instead punched in at another, presumably closer, location to avoid punching in late for work. He thereafter, while already on Newark Public School District time, would travel to his assigned location, delaying completion of work in the schools. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the charges of conduct unbecoming a public employee and neglect of duty are sustained.

The penalty imposed by Newark Public School District was a fifteen-working-day suspension. The Civil Service Commission may increase or decrease the penalty imposed by the appointing authority, though removal cannot be substituted for a lesser penalty. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-19. When determining the appropriate penalty, the Commission must utilize the evaluation process set forth in West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962), and consider the employee's reasonably recent history of promotions, commendations, and the like, as well as formally adjudicated disciplinary actions and instances of misconduct informally adjudicated.

Spivey has no prior disciplinary history, but the credible evidence reflects that Spivey, on at least seventeen occasions, punched in at a location other than his assigned job location, including after he was warned, knowing that doing so was a violation. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that a fifteen-working-day suspension is an appropriate penalty in this matter.

ORDER

I ORDER that the charges of conduct unbecoming a public employee and neglect of duty are SUSTAINED, and that the penalty of a fifteen-working-day suspension is AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, P.O. Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT. NO. CSV 00207-16
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2015-2274

IMO BRANDY VALASA, MONMOUTH COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS AND YOUTH SERVICES.

Patrick J. Caserta, Esq., for Brandy Valasa, appellant

Steven Kleinman, Esq., for Monmouth County Department of Corrections and Youth Services, respondent (Andrea I. Bazer, County Counsel, attorney)

Record Closed: May 1, 2017 Decided: June 15, 2017

BEFORE CARL V. BUCK III, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Appellant Brandy Valasa (Valasa) appeals from a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA), dated January 21, 2015, suspending her for ten days from her position as a County Correction Officer with the respondent Monmouth County Correctional Institution (MCCI). The charges arose from her alleged removal and photocopying of official documents for her own personal use.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Appellant was served with a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (PNDA) on July 03, 2014, charging her with the following:

1. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(3)
2. Violation of Monmouth County Sherriff's Office Department of Corrections Rules and Regulations
    a. 3.20.030
    b. 3.20.260
    c. 4.30.020
3. Violation of Monmouth County Sherriff's Office Department of Corrections Policy and Procedures
    a. 1-3.13
4. Violation of Monmouth County Policy 701 regarding Employee Conduct and Work Rules

The factual specifications in the PNDA allege that appellant removed official documents and a logbook for the purpose of photocopying pages for her personal use without first obtaining the appropriate authorization as detailed in the Department Rules and Regulations. (R-1)

On January 21, 2015, the MCCI issued a FNDA sustaining the above charges. Appellant appealed and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where it was filed on December 25, 2015, to be heard as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and 14F-1 to 13. The matter was heard on March 9, 2017. The record was held open for simultaneous written summations, which were filed on May 1, 2017, and the record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The following facts are not in dispute:

The MCCI is operated by the Monmouth County Sherriff's Office (Sherriff). Appellant is a corrections officer (CO) and has been an employee of the MCCI for approximately eleven years. On June 16, 2014, she was assigned to K-Pod. At 9.25 a.m., appellant removed the K-pod logbook from its standard location on the unit. She concealed the logbook in a sweater. She obtained the D/E keys from Officer Jamie Elliott. Appellant then opened the library door, returned the keys to Officer Elliott, entered the library and closed the library door behind her. She exited the library at 9.33 a.m. She returned to K-pod with the K-pod logbook similarly concealed in a sweater. (R-3, -4).

While in the library she used the library copier to make copies of page 100 of the logbook (R-5) and page 104 of the watch sheet pertaining to inmate L.S. (R-6).

TESTIMONY

In support of its case, respondent presented the testimony of Lieutenant David Betten (Betten). He has been employed by the MCCI for approximately twenty years. He became a Sergeant in 2007 and was promoted to Lieutenant in 2010. He was the watch commander during the 7:00 a.m.-3:00 a.m. shift on June 16, 2014, and testified concerning the incident.

He testified that he had received a telephone call (from a source requesting anonymity) advising him to review the video outside the K-pod unit at a certain time. After review of the video tape, he went to Jeffrey Equils, principal investigator for MCCI to tell Equils what he had seen on the tape; to wit, confirming the details of the incident elaborated upon above.

Betten testified that it was not normal for the logbook to be removed unless it was "full" and needed to be replaced. He also testified that there was a procedure in place should copies of pages needed to be made. He testified that removal of the logbook was a safety concern for MCCI and contained sensitive information pertaining to medical issues of the inmates and security issues concerning K -pod. If there had been an official document request, such request would be dealt with by the MCCI custodian of records.

Principal Investigator Jeffrey Equils (Equils) also testified for respondent. He has been employed by MCCI for approximately twenty-five years, the past ten as a principal investigator. He is in charge of the Internal Affairs (IA) unit whose purpose it is to investigate any violation of policies and procedures by inmates or staff. He testified that the incident was reported to him by Betten; specifically, that the appellant may have removed the log book. He then reviewed the video of her actions.

He testified that C.O.s are not given the authority to make copies of logbooks. He requested Betten to make a report of the incident. He also spoke with appellant who admitted she had made a copy of a page of the logbook and a copy of a watch sheet. Equils testified that appellant told him that she was concerned about a supervisor not performing their duties, but appellant declined to name the supervisor.

He further testified as to the MCCI "Confidentiality Statement" signed by appellant (R-14); specifically referencing sub section III:

> III. I will not remove confidential information from the agency except as authorized, by the appropriate administrator, in the performance of my duties, including, but not limited to consumer records, charts, correspondence or any other form of written or electronic documentation.

Brandy Valasa testified on her own behalf. She has worked at MCCI for approximately eleven years. She testified that on June 16, 2014, Sergeant Rutkowski was the sergeant in charge of the K-pod zone. The logbook was kept in the panel area in a secure location. Inmates were located in five separate pods off the panel area. On the date in question two inmates were in the area for disciplinary reasons with twenty-three-hour lockdown stages and were to be monitored every thirty minutes for safety and security.

She testified that she had a concern with Rutkowski's signature on two watch sheets where he signed twice. She admitted that she did place the logbook under her sweater, she did remove the logbook from the area in which it was kept, and she did make copies from the logbook. However, she testified that she violated no rules in doing so.

Appellant testified that she made two copies from the logbook and gave those documents to Equils when Equils questioned her about the logbook. She testified that while in training she was told by the training department that she could have copies of any document that contained her name. She further testified that she did not remember asking anyone for approval to make these copies, nor did she tell anyone that she made the copies.

She testified that she was aware of several internal investigations at MCCI (one of which dealt with her husband, Anthony Valasa, who also worked at MCCI). She concealed the logbook as she was not sure what the situation at the facility was on that date relating to a number of these ongoing investigations. She again testified that she copied the pages out of a concern regarding the actions of Rutkowski.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

A civil service employee's rights and duties are governed by the Civil Service Act and the regulations promulgated pursuant thereto. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to 12-6; N.J.A.C. 4A:1-1.1 to 4A:10-3.2. A civil service employee who engages in misconduct related to his or her duties or who gives another just cause may be subject to major discipline. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2 -2.3(a). In appeals concerning major disciplinary actions brought against classified employees, the burden of proof is on the appointing authority. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a). The standard of proof in administrative proceedings is a preponderance of the credible evidence. In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. Super. 550 (1982); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. Super. 143 (1962).

This matter involves a major disciplinary action brought by the respondent appointing authority against the appellant seeking a ten-day suspension. The appellant is charged with, among other things, conduct unbecoming a public employee and other sufficient cause. She is also charged with a violation of MCCI Rules and Regulations 3.20.030, 3.20.260 and 4.30.020, Policy and Procedure 1-3.13 Code of Ethics Policy and Monmouth County Policy 701 regarding Employee Conduct and Work Rules. The charges all relate to the appellant's removal of the K-pod logbook and photocopying pages from the log book for personal use without first obtaining appropriate authorization.

Conduct Unbecoming a Public Employee is an elastic phrase, which encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also In re Emmons, 63 NJ. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (quoting Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)).

Lieutenant Betten and Investigator Equils testified as to the information received regarding copying pages from the logbook by appellant and the policies, procedures and charges stemming from that action on the part of appellant. The videotape revealed that appellant did remove the log book under a sweater, took the D/E keys to open the library, entered the library at 9:25 a.m. on June 16, 2014 and exited at 9:33 a.m. Appellant admitted that she copied pages from the logbook; albeit out of a concern regarding a procedure violation by another officer, Sergeant Rutkowski.

Appellant testified that she did not consider this action to be a violation of any rule at MCCI.

The issue of credibility is not in contention as appellant admitted the activity which is at the crux of the disciplinary charges.

Based on the testimony and findings, I CONCLUDE that the respondent has satisfied its burden of proving that appellant violated Monmouth County Sheriff's Office Department of Corrections Rules and Regulations 3.20.030, 3.20.260, and 4.30.020. Further, I CONCLUDE she has violated the Code of Ethics Policy 1-3.13 and County Policy 701 regarding Employee Conduct and Work Rules and that her actions constituted conduct unbecoming a public employee. I CONCLUDE that the charges are SUSTAINED.

PENALTY

Once a determination is made that an employee has violated a statute, rule, regulation, etc., concerning his/her employment, the concept of progressive discipline must be considered. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. Super. 500 (1962). While this case did not specifically use the phrase "progressive discipline," its facts strongly suggest that a record of progressive discipline should precede the ultimate penalty, which is removal. The concept of progressive discipline involves consideration of the number of prior disciplinary infractions, the nature of those infractions and the imposition of progressively increasingly penalties. It is well settled that correction officers, like police officers are held to a higher standard of conduct than other public employees because of the sensitive nature of the position they occupy. Twp. of Moorestown v. Armstrong, 89 N.J. Super. 560 (App. Div. 1965), cert. denied, 47 N.J. Super. 80 (1966). It has also been noted in corrections cases, that failure to adhere to security precautions could have potentially serious consequences, which may give rise to a more serious penalty regardless of the lack of any past disciplinary consequences. I/M/O Martha Hicks and Antonio Price, OAL Dkt. Nos. CSV 11373 and CSV 11494-13; 2014 N.J. Agen. Lexis 469 (2014).

The appellant received a ten-day suspension for her removing, concealing, and copying pages from the K-pod logbook at MCCI. She failed to adhere to behavior which goes beyond that expected from a Corrections Officer, from whom a higher standard of behavior is expected and required. The penalty is appropriate under the circumstances and is sustained. I therefore CONCLUDE that a ten-day working day suspension is appropriate under these circumstances.

DECISION AND ORDER

For the reasons stated above, I hereby ORDER that appellant's appeal is DISMISSED, and respondent's proposed ten-day suspension of Valasa is AFFIRMED based upon appellant's violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(3), conduct unbecoming a public employee and other sufficient cause; violation of Monmouth County Sherriff's Office Department of Corrections Rules and Regulations Sections 3.20.030, 3.20.260 and 4.30.020; violation of Monmouth County Sherriff's Office Department of Corrections Policy and Procedures Section 1-3.13 Code of Ethics Policy and violation of Monmouth County Policy 701 regarding Employee Conduct and Work Rules.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, P.O. Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 19442-16
AGENCY DKT NO. CSC 2017-1732

IN THE MATTER OF ABDUL-RAHEEM YASIN, CITY OF NEWARK, DEPARTMENT OF WATER AND SEWER.

Arnold S. Cohen, Esq., for appellant Abdul-Raheem Yasin (Oxfeld Cohen, P.C., attorneys)

France Casseus, Assistant Corporation Counsel, for respondent City of Newark, Department of Water and Sewer (Corporation Counsel, City of Newark, attorneys)

Record Closed: April 12, 2017 Decided: May 30, 2017

BEFORE JULIO C. MOREJON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Appellant, Abdul-Raheem Yasin (Yasin) appealed his termination by respondent, City of Newark, Department of Water and Sewer (Newark), effective September 1, 2016, for conduct unbecoming a public employee and other sufficient cause, resulting from an alleged written threat made by Yasin against his supervisor.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Yasin was served with a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (PNDA) on September 1, 2016, terminating Yasin on September 1, 2016, for conduct unbecoming a public employee under N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a), and other sufficient cause. Yasin requested a departmental hearing, which was held on November 1, 2016. The Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA) affirming the termination was served on November 17, 2016. Yasin appealed the termination on November 18, 2016, and the Civil Service Commission transmitted the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on December 27, 2016.

A hearing was held on April 12, 2017, and the record was closed at the conclusion of the same.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the testimony the parties submitted and my assessment of its credibility, together with the documents that the parties submitted and my assessment of their sufficiency, I FIND the following as FACT:

Prior to the commencement of the hearing, counsel for Newark made an oral motion to suppress certain photographs that Yasin had provided Newark during pre-hearing discovery. The photographs were contained in a CD (P-1). Newark argued that the photographs were not relevant and should not be considered in the underlying hearing. Yasin argued that the photos depicted the work site where Yasin claimed he was harassed and let to his termination.

The parties agreed that I should view the photos individually and then issue a ruling. Yasin produced a laptop computer that allowed me to view the photos individually in the presence of both counsel (P-1).

After reviewing the photographs on the CD and hearing the argument made by counsel, I ruled that the photos would not be excluded and Yasin could testify as the same, as a foundation for submission of the CD in evidence had been provided by Yasin.

Yasin does not dispute writing a note to his supervisor, Kareem Adeem, Assistant Director of Public Works (Adeem), on September 1, 2016, stating: "Kareem Herrill...suck my dick...see you in the streets." (R-1).[1] Yasin testified that the note was not meant as a threat but that he would be "out on the street" if he were terminated from his job. Adeem testified that he interpreted the second part of the note as a threat as "a possible physical problem" with Yasin if they were to see each other in the street. Yasin testified that he wrote the note because he was upset at being harassed on the work site. Andrea Hill Adebowale, Director of the Department of Water and Sewer (Adebowale) testified that the decision to terminate Yasin resulted from a perceived threat made by Yasin to Adeem, and by extension to other workers, which Newark could not tolerate.

Rita Adams (Adams), Assistant Chief Clerk, testified that on September 1, 2016, between 10:00 and 10:30 AM, Yasin came into the office at 239 Central Avenue, Newark, New Jersey (Central Avenue), looking for Adeem. Adams informed Yasin that Adeem was not in and that he would return later in the afternoon. Adams testified that Yasin appeared "anxious" and that he was pacing outside her office, while he waited for Adeem. Yasin then left and returned between 3:00 and 3:30 the same day. Adams testified that she saw Yasin again in the afternoon and she informed him that Adeem was not in, and if she could help him. Adams testified that Yasin said "No, it's between he and me", meaning Adeem. Adams asked Yasin if he would like to leave Adeem a note, since she did not know when he would return. Yasin said "yes" and Adams handed him a blank paper and pen for him to write a note. Yasin wrote the note, folded the paper and gave it to Adams, who then put the paper in an envelope and gave it to Michael Gelin, Assistant Director (Gelin) (R-1)

Adeem then testified. He gave his title as Assistant Director, Newark Department of Water and Sewer, and a description of his duties as responsible for the day-to-day operation of the Water and Sewer Department, which included the supervision of Yasin and other employees in the department. Adeem testified that on September 1, 2016, he had taken a vacation day, but did return to Central Avenue after 5PM, to pick up Gelin to attend a funeral. When Adeem met Gelin, he showed Adeem Yasin's note, to which Adeem responded "I don't know what's wrong with this guy". Adeem testified that he interpreted the first part of the note as an "invitation to look at his [Yasin's] private parts", and the second part as a threat that "if he [Yasin] saw me in the street, there would be a problem." Gelin told Adeem that he had brought the incident to the attention of the Director, Andrea Adelwabe (Adelwabe) and she was going to suspend Yasin because of the note. Adeem had no reaction to the same Adeem then testified about two prior employment related incidents concerning Yasin. Adeem first recalled that a week or so before September 1, 2016, he saw Yasin driving a Department of Public Works (DPW) truck in the yard, and he questioned Yasin if he had authority to drive the truck, to which Yasin responded "No". Adeem told Yasin that he should not drive the DPW truck as he was not authorized to do so. There was no testimony provided if Yasin had been formally admonished for the same, or if it was just and exchange between Adeem and Yasin.

Adeem then recalled an incident that had occurred on August 31, 2016, involving Yasin and a work crew at a job site in Newark. Adeem recalled that a call had come in to the Central Avenue office informing him that Yasin refused to assist DPW employees dig a hole at a work site because of a "live wire" located in the hole that had been dug by DPW employees. Adeem spoke with "Mr. Di Silva" , the work site supervisor, who informed Adeem that the report of a wire was incorrect as it turned out to be a pipe. Adeem testified that Mr. Di Silva told him Yasin did not want to work in the hole because of the wire and that Yasin had called his union representative and was told he did not have to work at the site because of the complaint of a wire. Adeem then decided to have Yasin come back to Central Avenue to be reassigned to another work site. Adeem testified that he made this decision in order to defuse the situation with Yasin and other employees at the work site, and he did not want an "altercation" with Yasin and other employees at the site.

In response to questions from the bench concerning the employment relations between Adeem and Yasin, Adeem testified that he had originally hired Yasin two-years prior in 2015, when Yasin came off the "Special Reemployment List" and that he had worked at the City Hall location prior to working at Central Avenue.[2] Adeem stated that his relationship with Yasin was "great" and that he had no prior issues with him. Adeem testified further that Yasin had been previously disciplined for the unauthorized driving of a DPW truck from a water treatment plant that resulted in a four-month suspension from the department.

On cross-examination, Adeem answered that Yasin and other employees did not need to make an appointment to speak with him if the issue was not complicated. However, if an employee had a problem or had a procedural question, he recommended that the employees make an appointment to speak with Adeem at Central Avenue. Adeem said that he did not know Yasin had come by his office on September 1, 2016, until he met Gelin after work on said date.

Adelwabe then testified that she is the Director of the Newark Department of Water and Sewer, and has full responsibility for running and overseeing the department. Adelwabe first became aware of Yasin's note on September 1st, when Gelin called to inform her of the same. Gelin scanned and emailed it to her. Adelwabe testified that she was "outraged" when she read the contents of the note stating "see you in the streets" as she interpreted the statement as a threat of violence to Adeem, and a threat of violence in the workplace. Adelwabe testified that the reason for her reaction was because her department had had prior incidents of employees harming their supervisor, and she did not want this to occur again.

As a result of Yasin's note, Adelwabe suspended him immediately and removed Yasin from his employment as Adelwabe found Yasin's "conduct unbecoming of a public employee." (R-2). Adelwabe testified that Yasin had been previously suspended for four (4) months because he had taken a DPW truck out of the yard for several hours during his work day. Upon his return from the suspension, Yasin was placed in the City Hall office, where he was assigned to conduct meter readings of residences and notifications to property owners concerning their water and sewer bills. Adelwabe testified that approximately two weeks prior to the incident she transferred Yasin to Central Avenue because she had determined that Yasin was not a "good fit" at City Hall. Adelwabe believed Yasin would be better suited for labor work at Central Avenue, as he wanted to work in a more labor intensive positon, such as digging holes in the street.

As for her decision to immediately suspend and then remove Yasin, Adelwabe testified that under the collective bargaining agreement, it was within her managerial right as the Director of the department to discipline and remove an employee for their conduct on the work site. (R-3). Adelwabe testified that as part of her investigation after receiving a copy of the note she spoke to Adeem and she concluded that for work safety reasons and because of prior work violence in her department, it was best to terminate Yasin's employment. Adelwabe testified that the words "meet you in the streets" was a threat to whomever the words were intended-the employees or the public. Adelwabe also testified that she had no prior issues with Yasin as an employee other than his four month suspension and underlying incident.

Prior to Yasin commencing his defense, Yasin was heard as to the admissibility of six separate videos clips taken by Yasin on August 25, and August 31, 2016 (P-1). After viewing the six video clips, and hearing from Yasin as to each, Newark's motion to suppress the video clips was denied as it was ruled that Yasin had provided a foundation for the video clips, and the clips depicted Yasin at his work site on the dates in question. As to the video's relevancy, Yasin would testify as to what was depicted in each clip in relation to his defense.

Yasin is heard telling a co-worker Mr. Besemar, that "...he wanted to punish me...wants me to work too hard". Yasin testified that he was referring to his supervisor wanting to "punish him" by sending him to a work site.

Video Clip No. 2 (8/31/2016) P-2

Yasin is heard telling Mr. Brismar that "this is another dig-up...he wanted me to do it by myself", while holding paper containing an address that Yasin is heard saying is "a special list for me".

Yasin testified that the address on the paper refers to an address where a hole needs to be dug to fix an underground pipe, and that his supervisor wanted Yasin and Mr. Besemar to do the work alone-which Yasin said is impossible to do.

Video Clip No. 3 (8/31/2016) P-2

This video clip shows another DPW employee digging a hole with a pickaxe. There some undiscernible dialogue in the video background. Yasin testified that "Rocky" his supervisor tells him that he will "take a pickaxe and sever your spine" and Yasin is heard to say "cold".

Video Clip No. 4 (8/31/2016) P-2

Yasin is heard narrating the video while looking at a concrete slap covering a hole. Yasin states: "This is what happens when the holes break...and they sabotage and they want to harass you...they make you want to pick up... this whole slap of concrete...its heavy."

Video Clip No. 5 (8/31/2016) P-2

Yasin is heard telling his supervisor Mr. Delano that there is "some wires and stuff in there" and Mr. Delano tells Mr. Brismar to "get out of the hole." Yasin testified that Mr. Delano "threatened him" to get out of the hole.

Video Clip No. 6 (8/31/2016) P-2

This video shows Mr. Delano digging around a pipe and proclaiming that there is "no wire" and that the pipe is a "hollow pipe...allowing water underneath". Yasin testified that Mr. Delano is not an electrician and that he did not know that there was a yellow wire in the hole.

Overall, Yasin testified that the videos depicted that he was harassed at the worksite in being assigned to dig a hole without proper assistance; his work was being sabotaged because someone left a wire in the hole, and his supervisor," Mr. Delano", threatened him with violence by stating that he would "sever your [Yasin's] spine with a pickaxe." As a result, Yasin testified that he went to see Adeem to discuss the same on September 1st. Yasin would also testify that he went to see Adeem on September 1st because his union representative told him he had been suspended for the August 31st incident.

As for the first part of the note-"Suck my dick", Yasin testified that he was frustrated because of the "harassment" he was experiencing at the work site. The second part of the note-"See you in the streets" did not intend violence to Adeem, but was a reference to Yasin being previously homeless and he feared that he would homeless again if he were to be terminated. Yasin testified that he had been trying to meet and speak with Adeem to discuss the harassment by his supervisor and co-worker and that Adeem referred him to EEOC.

On cross-examination, Yasin testified that his union representative, Ms. Martha, called him on August 31st to inform him that he was pulled off the work site because he had complained about the wire in the hole, and that he was suspended on said date because of the same. This was the explanation Yasin gave as to why he went to see Adeem the next day on September 1st, to discuss his "suspension."[3] Yasin testified that it was inappropriate for him to write what he did on the note that caused him to be terminated, but he did so because he was frustrated by perceived harassment in the workplace, and he thought he was suspended.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

In appeals concerning major disciplinary action, the appointing authority bears the burden of proof. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a). The burden of proof is by a preponderance of the evidence, Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143, 149 (1962), and the hearing is de novo, Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571, 579 (1980). On such appeals, the Civil Service Commission may increase or decrease the penalty, N.J.S.A. 11A:2-19, and the concept of progressive discipline guides that determination, In re Carter, 191 N.J. 474, 483–86 (2007). Thus, an employee's prior disciplinary record is inherently relevant to determining an appropriate penalty for a subsequent offense, Id. at 483, and the question upon appellate review is whether such punishment is "so disproportionate to the offense, in the light of all the circumstances, as to be shocking to one's sense of fairness," Id. at 484 (quoting In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550, 578 (1982) (internal quotes omitted)). Indeed, progressive discipline may only be bypassed when the misconduct is severe, when it renders the employee unsuitable for continuation in the position, or when the application of progressive discipline would be contrary to the public interest, such as when the position involves public safety and the misconduct causes risk of harm to persons or property. In re Herrmann, supra, 192 N.J. at 33.

Here, Yasin admitted to having written a note to his supervisor which contained offensive and threatening language. I am not persuaded by Yasin's explanation that the words, "See you in the streets" meant that he would be homeless again if her were to lose his job. Yasin also attempts to play down his statement that "See you in the streets" was not threatening by stating that unlike Adelwabe, Adeem did not fear for his safety in response to the statement. Again, I am not persuaded by this position because Adeem had testified that he did interpret Yasin's words to mean that if he saw him in the street there would be a "physical problem", which can only be interpreted as nothing good.

Yasin had an opportunity to make an appointment with Adams to speak with Adeem but he failed to do because he was to upset and instead he chose to leave a note containing an offensive and threatening remark. Yasin also had an opportunity to reflect on what he would communicate to his supervisor, as he visited Adeem's office twice in one day. By his own admission Yasin was very upset when he went to see Adeem, because of his perceived work-place harassment and he was erroneously informed by his union that he had been suspended for the August 31st incident.

The testimony of Adelwabe reaffirms that she has a responsibility to her department and the City of Newark to protect the employees and residents from potential violence. Yasin's statement of "see you in the street" was interpreted as a threat of violence to Adeem and by extension other employees and the public.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that Yasin engaged in conduct unbecoming a public employee in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a) (6) and that there also existed other sufficient cause in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a) (12), to terminate Yasin.

Regarding the penalty to be imposed, Yasin has a prior discipline having been suspended for four months, and his misconduct does concern public safety or cause a risk of harm to persons or property. Indeed, termination would be proportionate to the offense. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that Newark's decision to terminate Yasin from his employment should be AFFIRMED.

ORDER

Given my findings of fact and conclusions of law, I ORDER that Newark's decision to terminate Yasin is AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF PETER CHIRICO,
CITY OF NEWARK POLICE DEPARTMENT.

Joyce Clayborne, Esq, Assistant Corporation Counsel for respondent, City of Newark Police Department (Willie L. Parker, Corporation Counsel, attorney)

Record Closed: May 24, 2017 Decided: June 29, 2017

BEFORE: JEFFREY A. GERSON, ALJ t/a:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Peter Chirico, a Police Officer of the City of Newark, contested a 9 working day suspension pursuant to a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated September 18, 2015.

On or about September 28, 2015, Police Officer Chirico filed his major disciplinary appeal form resulting in the matter being transferred to the Office of Administrative Law on or about December 28, 2015 for a hearing.

On or about December 9, 2016, a brief was filed by the Newark Police Department requesting a dismissal of Officer Chirico's appeal contending that his 9 day suspension was as a result of a temporary restraining order entered as a result of a domestic violence complaint which required Officer Chirico to surrender his weapon.

On or about December 15, 2016, Chirico responded to the Motion/application contending that the Newark Police Department wrongfully suspended him prior to a hearing.

FINDINGS OF FACT

As a result of the stipulated and undisputed facts submitted by both sides, I FIND the following to be the uncontested FACTS of this matter.

In the early morning hours of September 8, 2015, Officer Chirico and his girlfriend, Carla Goncalves, got into a domestic dispute which resulted in Goncalves' filing of a Domestic Violence complaint with the City of Newark Police Department. Concurrently with the filing of the Domestic Violence complaint against Officer Chirico by Goncalves, she in addition requested a Temporary Restraining Order against Officer Chirico which was granted by a municipal court judge.

The Temporary Restraining Order prohibited Officer Chirico from possessing any weapons. Officer Chirico was served and signed for the TRO on September 8th at 8:50 p.m.

As a result of the TRO, the Newark Police Department issued an immediate suspension notice determining that Officer Chirico was unfit for duty as a result of the weapon prohibition issued by the Municipal Court Judge. The immediate suspension notice was signed for by Officer Chirico in the evening hours of September 8, 2015. A Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action was prepared and served on Officer Chirico on that same date, September 8, 2015. The PNDA contained two charges and an immediate suspension, indefinitely, without pay.

Officer Chirico requested a hearing which was conducted at the local level on September 18, 2015. This hearing resulted in a lifting of the indefinite suspension and the reinstatement of Officer Chirico to a modified set of duties. The Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated September 18, 2015 imposed the 9 day suspension which proceeded Officer Chirico's reinstatement to modified duty. It is that 9 day suspension which Officer Chirico now contests.

THE LAW

N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.5 provides:

In The Matter of Lanier v. The City of Jersey City, OAL DKT. No. CSV 7649-97 (April 29, 1998) a 10 day suspension on charges of inability to perform was sustained by an Administrative Law Judge. There, like here, the police officer was the subject of a TRO that required him to surrender his weapon. In granting the unopposed summary judgment motion of the Appointing Authority, the ALJ found:

> "The ability to carry a firearm is prerequisite for a uniformed police officer, according to the New Jersey Department of Civil Service, Division of County and Municipal Government Services "class specifications for a police officer", as well as the description of a police officer promulgated by the Department of Personnel, Division of Personnel Management . . .
> The Appointing Authority is not obligated to provide alternative assignments to its officers".

DISCUSSION

As a result of the TRO and the Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action, Officer Chirico was immediately suspended, a suspension which was without pay until September 18, 2015 when the City of Newark Police Department after a hearing, placed Chirico on modified duty and reinstated his pay.

It was the TRO which rendered Chirico unfit for duty since he was deprived of his weapon. Though the Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action also imposed an immediate suspension as a result of the pending criminal charges, it is the domestic violence TRO judicial Order which was served and acknowledged by Chirico which provides for the immediate suspension.

Though Chirico acknowledges that N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.5(a)(1) provides for the immediate suspension if there is a finding that an officer is unfit for duty. He goes on to argue as follows:

> "It is undisputed on 9/18/16 Officer Chirico was placed on modified duty even though he could not carry his service weapon while the restraining order proceedings were going on.
> Eventually, the TRO was dismissed. However, it is unclear how in one instance Officer Chirico was deemed to be unfit for duty and then placed on modified duty even though he could not carry his weapon.

> The position taken by Newark Police Department is completely inconsistent. If an officer is unfit because he cannot carry a weapon then how can he be placed on modified duty even though he still cannot carry his weapon and the restraining order procedure was still going on."

Based on the above, Chirico contends that he could not be unfit for duty as a result of the TRO if he was able to be placed on modified duty and be reinstated with pay.

There is no legal citation nor legal support for Chirico's argument. A police officer deprived of his weapon cannot fulfill the complete duties of his position. The police Department of the City of Newark was within its authority to modify Chirico's duties assigning him administrative work not requiring the use or possession of a weapon. If Chirico's argument is that by placing him in a modified position allowing him to return to work was an inconsistent disposition of his charges, then the result would not be a dismissal as a result of the inconsistency, but rather a re-imposition of the suspension since the modification would not be in affect and Chirico would not have a weapon.

Nonetheless, the police department, though not required to do so, reinstated Chirico to modified duty despite his inability to fulfill his responsibilities fully due to lack of a weapon. The modified duties allowed Chirico to start receiving salary, but did not reinstate him to former status as an armed police officer. He was, therefore, still unfit for duty as a police officer due to the lack of a weapon, but not unfit for the modified duties.

Inconsistency, as contended by Chirico in the police departments treatment, even if it existed, which is far from proven, would still not lead to a legal argument recapturing lost pay. Since he was unfit for to carry out the full responsibilities of a police officer by virtue of the judicially ordered TRO, he suffered a 9 day suspension without pay which was statutorily supported and procedurally and legally warranted.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that Peter Chirico's appeal of his 9 day suspension is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Record Closed: February 10, 2017 Decided: March 16, 2017

BEFORE GAIL M. COOKSON, ALJ:

By Notice of Dismissal entered on or about August 27, 2015, the Police Training Commission (PTC) dismissed Yesmean Damon (petitioner) from her attendance at the John H. Stamler Police Academy (Academy) based on her failure to meet the minimum standards of the physical conditioning component of the Basic Course. On September 24, 2015, petitioner appealed and requested a hearing. On October 15, 2015, the appeal was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where it was filed for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F1 to -13.[1]

I conducted case management discussions with the parties telephonically on December 16, 2015. Thereafter, petitioner obtained representation by counsel. Hearings were initially scheduled for February 24, 2016, but were adjourned at the request of petitioner's counsel. The hearing was re-scheduled for August 2016 but was also adjourned. The hearing took place on January 4, 2017. Post-hearing briefs were to be submitted no later than February 10, 2017, on which date the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS OF FACT

Detective Edward Hanewald was the sole witness at the plenary hearing. He is the Academy's Lead Physical Fitness Training Instructor. Detective Hanewald has been certified by the PTC and has served as an instructor for seventeen years. Petitioner began at the Academy in July 2015. That session was to extend approximately ninety-six (96) days through December 2015. On August 27, 2015, petitioner was dismissed for failing to meet the minimum standards of the physical conditioning component of the Academy. Detective Hanewald stated that the dismissal was predicated upon her failure to fully participate in twenty conditioning sessions, [1]As a result of her dismissal from the Academy, petitioner was also terminated from her position as a Sheriff's Officer with the Union County Sheriff's Department. A separately filed appeal from that employment action was docketed with the OAL as CSV 19739-15. County counsel requested that the employment action be stayed and placed on the inactive list until the determination of the within foundational decision. Under Administrative Procedure Rules and the predominant interest of the PTC, however, and in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.1, I must consolidate the cases. It is so ORDERED.

which was more than twenty 20% percent of the total number of sessions there would have been for that class. The Academy requires recruits to fully participate in at least eighty (80%) percent of the sessions. A failure to perform in twenty of the sessions, even early in the class, mathematically precluded her from completing eighty (80%) percent and, therefore, mandated a dismissal from the Academy.

Specifically, the recruits are required to maintain a running pace during the running sessions, or they receive a Non-Participation in Physical Training Notice (Notice). They can fall back from the lead group but the failure to keep a non-walking pace is determined by an instructor walking behind or alongside the recruit. Detective Hanewald stated that if they cannot maintain a walking pace, they are given a Notice for that particular training session. Recruits will also receive a Notice if they stop during a run. In addition, there are calisthenics requirements and drills for which the recruits are coached on each aspect. If a recruit fails in any one component of the conditioning session, they receive a Notice for that entire morning. Damon received her twelfth Notice on August 17, 2015, and was counseled that she would be dismissed if she accumulated eight more. They do not allow a recruit to remain in the Academy if there is no chance of meeting the eighty (80%) percent requirement. When petitioner reached the twenty-notice mark, she was dismissed even though three months remained to the class.

Detective Hanewald testified that recruits are told during orientation what is required of them. Detective Hanewald was present during all or most of the physical conditioning sessions during this class and he did recall petitioner. He testified that she had a lot of difficulty with the runs as well as the exercises. Detective Hanewald explained that the Academy trainers documented through the Notices and videotapes of training sessions that petitioner failed to fully participate in scheduled activities on the following days. He identified the memos which were prepared, indicating petitioner had failed to fully participate on twenty separate occasions. (R-1 through R-20.)

18. August 25, 2015
19. August 26, 2015
20. August 27, 2015

I have reviewed these Notices and the corresponding video recordings.

On three occasions, petitioner was given Notices because she fell back to a walking pace, even though she tried to pump her arms to make herself look like she was running. On seven occasions, she failed at the running portion as well as some or all of the calisthenics or obstacle course portions. On ten occasions, petitioner was not feeling well and/or was not medically cleared to participate.

Detective Hanewald stated that the standards applied by all instructors are uniformly applied and objectively defined, albeit not with a minimum pace standard. He further explained that there were no excused absences due to illness or injury and each of those days would count as a non-participation. He considered this class to be unusually un-fit and remarked that nine of the recruits washed out.

On cross-examination, Detective Hanewald maintained that the requirements of the Academy with respect to physical conditioning are not dependent upon the type of position the recruit might fulfill once back at their local department. It is entirely irrelevant to petitioner's participation in the Academy that she may fill a sedentary position back at the Sheriff's Office. Furthermore, she was required to have been medically cleared before commencing the Academy class. The instructors guide the recruits and set the bar low at the beginning. They gradually build up the conditioning aspects but the program is not set up to accommodate those who are not physically fit to begin with.

I FIND based on these documented dates and the Detective's testimony that petitioner failed to fully participate in twenty sessions at the Academy.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Petitioner's Dismissal from the Academy

Academies are given the power to dismiss or otherwise discipline recruits by the Police Training Act, which mandates successful completion of a basic training course at a school approved by the Police Training Commission as a prerequisite to a permanent appointment as a parole officer. N.J.S.A. 52:17B-67, -68. The PTC is vested with the power, responsibility, and duty to prescribe standards for approval of police training schools and the minimum qualifications for their instructors, and "to prescribe the curriculum, the minimum courses of study, attendance requirements, equipment and facilities, and standards of operation for such schools." N.J.S.A. 52:17B-71(a)–(d). The PTC is also responsible for certifying correction officers that have satisfactorily completed training programs. N.J.S.A. 52:17B-71(e).

The Academy is an approved police training facility and is governed by the provisions of N.J.S.A. 52:17B-66, et seq. As such, it is vested with power, responsibility and duty --

> [t]o issue and enforce rules consistent with Commission requirements which govern the conduct of trainees and the use of the school's facilities. Each trainee shall be furnished a printed copy of the rules at the commencement of the course . . . . These rules shall explicitly state which rule(s), the violation of which, may result in the trainee's suspension or dismissal from school.
> [N.J.A.C. 13:1-7.2(a)(3).]

N.J.A.C. 13:1-7.2(a)(8) vests the Academy with the power

> [t]o dismiss a trainee who has demonstrated that he or she will be ineligible for Commission certification, for unacceptable behavior or for other good cause.

As set forth in Greenwood v. State Police Training Center, 127 N.J. Super. 500, 510 (1992):

> [A]lthough the good-cause standard eludes precise definition, courts ordinarily uphold findings of good cause when the employee's performance is deficient or when the employee creates a risk of harm to himself or herself or others.

Good cause refers to the conduct of an employee that would justify dismissal. The example of such conduct noted by the Court in Greenwood was deficient performance. The Greenwood Court noted that courts have found good cause for termination in cases in which the discharge is prompted by a legitimate business concern.

The issues in this matter are whether petitioner failed to fully participate in twenty training sessions; and whether this failure constituted "good cause" for her dismissal from the Academy. As outlined in the PTC's Physical Conditioning Training Manual, the physical-conditioning exercise program must meet the following requirements:

1. Each exercise session, including the warm-up and cool-down phases, shall not exceed 70 minutes in length. (An additional 10 minutes, however, will be allowed for more highly fit trainees undergoing exercise. Also, additional time is permitted for trainees who require rest during the performance of speed and agility exercises . . . .)

2. Exercise sessions shall be conducted at least three days per week. Depending on local needs and resources, schools may increase the number of one-hour sessions up to five per week, but no more than one per day. A five-day exercise program is recommended.

3. A minimum of 40 physical conditioning sessions shall be scheduled in a five-day program, and 20 physical conditioning sessions shall be scheduled in a three-day program. In addition, a trainee must fully participate in eighty-percent of the scheduled physical training sessions, and meet the standard which produces the higher number of sessions based upon the course schedule. Failure to fully participate in eighty-percent of the total physical conditioning sessions shall be grounds for dismissal from the police academy.

4. Each exercise session shall consist of a warm-up phase, conditioning phase, and cool-down phase.

5. The conditioning phase shall consist of flexibility exercises, aerobic activities, calisthenics and strength exercises, and, on specified days, exercises geared to enhance speed and agility.

6. Academies may utilize training sites which are approved by the [PTC]. Whether outdoor, or indoor, approved sites may be utilized for physical fitness training . . . . When an academy utilizes a site located outside of their own academy property, the academy staff shall note this on the final course schedule.

7. Full participation shall be defined as participating continuously and without stopping in a twenty-minute run. Recruits shall demonstrate to staff their ability to engage in aerobic training running continuously for this period of time. Full participation in calisthenics and strength exercises shall be approved by the evaluation of physical training staff at each academy, on a recruit-by-recruit basis.

While petitioner argues that the "run" standard is too subjective because it is not based on a set metric such as pace per mile, it is clear from the findings above that petitioner's slow jog/walk was viewed as generously as possible by the instructors, who are trained to judge compliance. Moreover, petitioner also failed to fully participate in the callisthenic and obstacle portions of the physical fitness programs, and was also ill or injured on many occasions. There were only three dates when petitioner was judged to not have fully participated on the basis of just the running portion. In each instance of under-performance, it was clear on the videotapes that petitioner was not accomplishing the established exercise, whether it was running, push-ups, or scaling a wall. Here, petitioner was dismissed from the Academy due to her failure to fully participate in eighty (80%) percent of the required trainings sessions. Petitioner was advised of what was expected of her.

Having found that Damon failed to successfully complete twenty of the sessions just between July 28 and August 27, 2015, I CONCLUDE that she was dismissed from the Academy for "good cause." I CONCLUDE that respondent properly concluded that petitioner failed to meet the universal standards of the physical conditioning aspect of the PTC. Thus, it properly dismissed her from this class for good cause.

Petitioner's Termination of Employment

The Civil Service Act and the regulations promulgated pursuant thereto govern the rights and duties of a civil service employee. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to 11A:12-6; N.J.A.C. 4A:1-1.1, et seq. A civil service employee who commits a wrongful act related to his or her duties, or gives other just cause, may be subject to major discipline. See N.J.S.A. 11A:2-20; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3. The issues to be determined are whether the employee is guilty of the charges brought against her and, if so, the appropriate penalty, if any, that should be imposed. Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980); W. New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962).

An appointing authority may discipline an employee for, among other causes, an inability to perform duties. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(3). The Department bears the burden of proving the charges against petitioner by a preponderance of the credible evidence. See In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). In this matter, the Department terminated petitioner's employment predicated on her inability to perform duties, stemming from her failure to successfully complete the training course at the Academy.

The statutory scheme governing police training dictates that successful completion of a police training course at a PTC-approved school is a mandatory prerequisite to a permanent appointment as a police officer. N.J.S.A. 52:17B-68 instructs that "every municipality and county shall require that no person shall hereafter be given or accept a permanent appointment as a police officer unless such person has successfully completed a police training course at an approved school." In other words, the training laws apply to all police officers and establish a classification of temporary or probationary employment for police officers until successful completion of the mandatory program of training. Borger v. Borough of Stone Harbor, 178 N.J. Super. 296, 301–02 (Ch. Div. 1981); see N.J.S.A. 52:17B-68, -69.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:17B-68, a mandatory prerequisite to a permanent appointment as a police officer is successful completion of a police-training course at a school approved by the PTC. The failure to complete this training is clearly grounds for termination of employment. Simply put, as a result of petitioner's dismissal from the Academy, petitioner could not perform the essential duties of her position. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE, as a matter of law and on the basis of the findings of fact and conclusions of law set forth above, that the Union County Sheriff's Office's determination to terminate petitioner's employment for failure to complete the Academy, a sine qua non to a permanent appointment, was within the scope of its authority and cannot be said to be arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable under the circumstances. It is up to her former employer to determine if she should be allowed to re-enroll in an Academy. Unless and until it does, petitioner cannot fulfill the requirements of her position as a Sheriff's Officer.

ORDER

For the reasons stated above, it is hereby ORDERED that the action of respondent John H. Stamler Police Academy of dismissing petitioner from the basic training course for good cause is AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the POLICE TRAINING COMMISSION for consideration.

OAL Docket No. PTC 16570-15

OAL Docket No. CSV 19739-15

(CONSOLIDATED)

The Police Training Commission received an Initial Decision in this matter on March 20, 2017. This Final Decision was rendered within the time limits prescribed by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6 and N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8.

Petitioner Yesmean Damon was enrolled in a basic training course at the John H. Stamler Police Academy. Petitioner was dismissed from the basic course on August 27, 2015 for failure to meet the minimum standards of the physical conditioning component of the basic course. Damon filed an appeal with the Police Training Commission, which was referred to the Office of Administrative Law.

A plenary hearing on the merits of petitioner's appeal was conducted by Administrative Law Judge Gail M. Cookson, ALJ on January 4, 2017. At issue was whether petitioner was properly dismissed from the basic training course. The record was closed on February 10, 2017. On March 16, 2017, Judge Cookson issued a thirteen page Initial Opinion which reviewed and weighed all of the evidence in the case. Judge Cookson concluded that the dismissal of petitioner Yesmean Damon from the John H. Stamler Police Academy was warranted and Affirmed the decision to dismiss her from the Academy.

On Wednesday, June 7, 2017, at a regular meeting of the Police Training Commission, the commissioners reviewed the Initial Decision rendered by Judge Cookson. The commissioners voted to ADOPT the Initial Decision as the FINAL DECISION.

OF THE
CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: JUL 28 2017

The appeals of Doris Gonzalez, Police Officer, City of Newark, Police Department, of her six-working day, 15 working day, 30 working day, and 45 working day suspensions, on charges, were heard by Administrative Law Judge Mumtaz Bari-Brown (ALJ), who rendered her consolidated initial decision on June 26, 2017. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Having considered the record and the ALJ's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting on July 26, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact as detailed in the initial decision. However, while the Commission adopted the ALJ's recommendation to uphold the six and 15 working day suspensions and reverse the 30 working day suspension, it did not adopt the ALJ's recommendation to modify the 45 working day suspension to a 15 working day suspension. Rather, the Commission modified the 45 working day suspension to a 30 working day suspension.

DISCUSSION

Regarding the 45 working day suspension, the ALJ found that the appellant was guilty of the underlying charges relating to her misconduct, namely insubordination, neglect of duty, failure to be punctual and unprofessional use of language. Regarding the penalty, the ALJ stated that "given the obvious animosity between Department employees" and in order to equate this infraction "to the overall intertwined circumstance" between this infraction and two previous infractions, that a 15 working day suspension was the appropriate penalty. The Commission does not agree.

In determining the proper penalty, the Commission's review is de novo. In addition to its consideration of the seriousness of the underlying incident in determining the proper penalty, the Commission also utilizes, when appropriate, the concept of progressive discipline. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962). In assessing the penalty in relationship to the employee's conduct, it is important to emphasize that the nature of the offense must be balanced against mitigating circumstances, including any prior disciplinary history. However, it is well established that where the underlying conduct is of an egregious nature, the imposition of a penalty up to and including removal is appropriate, regardless of an individual's disciplinary history. See Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). It is settled that the theory of progressive discipline is not a "fixed and immutable rule to be followed without question." Rather, it is recognized that some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished prior record. See Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474 (2007).

In the instant matter, the Commission finds that the appellant's actions during the incident underlying the 45 working day suspension were wholly inappropriate. Regardless of the apparent "animosity" that existed, the appellant's conduct and defiance towards a superior officer was inexcusable and worthy of a significant sanction. In this regard, the appellant works in a paramilitary setting where the chain of command must be maintained and respected. Further, in light of the fact that the six and 15 working day suspensions were sustained, the Commission finds that the appropriate penalty is a 30 working day suspension.

ORDER

The Commission finds that the appointing authority's imposition of six and 15 working day suspensions was appropriate and upholds those actions. Additionally, the Commission finds that the charges underlying the 30 working day suspension were not sustained and that suspension was properly reversed. Finally, the Commission finds that the 45 working day suspension should be modified to a 30 working day suspension.

The appellant is entitled to a total of 45 working days of back pay, benefits, and seniority pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10. The amount of back pay awarded is to be reduced and mitigated as provided for in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10. Proof of income earned shall be submitted by or on behalf of the appellant to the appointing authority within 30 days of issuance of this decision.

Counsel fees are denied pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12. In this regard N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12(a) provides that the award of counsel fees is appropriate only where an employee has prevailed on all or substantially all of the primary issues in an appeal of a major disciplinary action. In this matter, charges were sustained and major discipline was imposed. Thus, counsel fees must be denied.

This is the final administrative determination in this matter. Any further review should be pursued in a judicial forum.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

Charge One—OAL Dkt. No. CSV 04313-15 (6-Day Suspension)

CHARGE I: Violation of Newark Police Department Rules and Regulations, Chapter 18:8, ACTS OF INSUBORDINATION—Department members shall not commit acts of insubordination or disrespect to any superior officer (2 Counts).

CHARGE IB: Violation of Civil Service Rule N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)2. An employee may be subject to discipline for: 2. Insubordination.

SPECIFICATION: On September 28, 2014, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez did commit an act of insubordination to Lieutenant Freddie Hill, a superior officer, to wit: after being given a direct order by Lieutenant Freddie Hill to remain on duty at the end of her tour to work mandatory overtime due to staff level shortage on the following shift, Police Officer Gonzalez immediately stated to Lieutenant Hill in a rude and disrespectful manner, "No, I ain't staying, I'm booking off sick, I'm taking antibiotics!" Moments later Police Officer Gonzalez responded to the Desk Area of the precinct where she stated to Lieutenant Hill "are you really going to make me stay, because if you are, I am going to book off sick." Lieutenant Hill responded, "Yes, I am ordering you to work overtime." At that point Officer Gonzalez became even more boisterous and defiant stating, "No, I ain't staying, I'm booking off sick!" Then [she] asked Police Officer Nathan Headd for a blue and white card because she was booking-off, after retrieving the cards Officer Gonzalez filled out same and walked out of the precinct.

CHARGE II: Violation of Newark Police Department Rules and Regulations, Chapter 5:4.1, OBEDIENCE TO ORDERS—Police officers or civilian employees shall promptly and fully obey any lawful order directed to them by a superior officer.

SPECIFICATION: On September 28, 2014, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez did receive a lawful verbal order from Lieutenant Freddie Hill, a superior officer, directing her to remain on duty and work in mandatory overtime capacity following her tour of duty. Officer Gonzalez did disobey this order when she failed to comply as directed.

CHARGE III: Violation of Newark Police Department Rules and Regulations, Chapter 18:6, NEGLECT OF DUTY—Department members shall not commit any act nor shall they be guilty of any omission that constitutes neglect of duty.

CHARGE IIIB: Violation of Civil Service Rule N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)7. An employee may be subject to discipline for: 7. Neglect of Duty.

SPECIFICATION: On September 28, 2014, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez did neglect her duty when she failed to remain on duty and work in mandatory overtime capacity following her tour of duty as directed to do so by Lieutenant Freddie Hill, a superior officer.

CHARGE IV: Violation of Newark Police Department Rules and Regulations, Chapter 18:11, MALINGERING—Department members shall not feign illness, injury or incapacity to perform required duties, nor shall they fail to follow a lawful order issued by Police Surgeon or other Surgeon acting in his stead.

SPECIFICATION: On September 28, 2014, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez did feign illness, when after given a direct order by Lieutenant Freddie Hill to remain on duty and work in mandatory overtime capacity following her tour of duty, due to staff level shortage, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez booked off sick.

CHARGE V: Violation of Newark Police Department Rules and Regulations, Chapter 18:2, ABSENCE WITHOUT LEAVE—Police officers shall not be absent from duty except for illness or injury without the consent of a superior officer.

CHARGE VB: Violation of Civil Service Rule N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)11. An employee may be subject to discipline for: 11. Absence without leave.

SPECIFICATION: On September 28, 2014, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez did absent herself from mandatory overtime at the Fifth Precinct without the consent of a superior officer.

CHARGE VI: Violation of Newark Police Department Rules and Regulations, Chapter 18:22, FALSE STATEMENT—Police officers shall not falsify any official report or record.

SPECIFICATION: On October 14, 2014, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez did submit an Administrative Report, DPI:1001, regarding her actions on September 28, 2014, with intent to deceive, in that she reported that "Lieutenant Hill failed to mention that when he first spoke to her in the report room, she made him aware of her health condition, at which time Lieutenant Hill stated to her, "he didn't care about her health condition and then ordered her to work overtime" although knowing in truth that said information was false and contrary to fact.

Summary of Testimony on Charge One

Respondent presented Lieutenant Freddie Hill, who testified that on September 28, 2014, Officer Gonzalez worked the 11-p.m.-to-7-a.m. shift. Prior to the end of the shift he realized there would be a staffing shortage on the next shift (7 a.m. to 3 p.m.). Per Department procedure he asked for volunteers to cover that shift, and, finding none, he checked the "involuntary overtime" ledger, which listed the next officer in line to work mandatory overtime. Officer Gonzalez was next on the list and, thus, Lieutenant Hill ordered Officer Gonzalez to work a mandatory overtime shift from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Lieutenant Hill maintained that Officer Gonzalez responded in a "nasty, . . . rude and disrespectful manner," saying, "No, I ain't staying, I'm booking off sick, I'm taking antibiotics!" (R-9.)

Shortly thereafter, he and Gonzalez were standing in the desk area of the precinct. Also present were officers Nathan Headd and Kiva Williams. Lieutenant Hill further maintained that Officer Gonzalez asked him if she "really" had to work the overtime shift and stated, "If so, I'm booking off sick!" (R-9.) Lieutenant Hill denied responding that he didn't care that she was sick. At that point, Officer Gonzalez asked Officer Headd for a blue-and-white card to book off sick. She then filled out the card, booked off sick, and walked out of the precinct. Hill described Gonzalez's demeanor as

"upset and angry." Later that day, at 3:15 p.m., Officer Gonzalez booked in for her scheduled shift.

Lieutenant Hill explained that the Police Department is a paramilitary organization and operates under a chain of command. For example, all police officers, including Officer Gonzalez, are considered as subordinate officers who must abide by all lawful orders from their superiors. Consequently, Officer Gonzalez's refusal to cover mandatory overtime constituted disobedience of a lawful order.

Lieutenant Hill also believed that Officer Gonzalez used the Department's sick-leave policy to circumvent his order to work mandatory overtime. (R-3; R-8.) Thus, disobeying his order also constituted insubordination (R-10), neglect of duty (R-12), malingering (R-13), absence without leave (R-14), and making a false statement (R-15).

Under cross-examination, Lieutenant Hill stated that he was unaware that Officer Gonzalez was a cancer survivor, and he did not question her about any of her medication. Lieutenant Hill acknowledged that he did not refer Officer Gonzalez to the police surgeon as required by Department rules. (R-14.) Nevertheless, Hill maintained, Gonzalez's refusal to work overtime constituted insubordination. (R-9.)

Appellant presented Officer Latasha Taylor, who worked the same shift as Officer Gonzalez on September 28, 2014. Taylor recalled that towards the end of the shift, Lieutenant Hill requested volunteers to work overtime. Officer Taylor heard Lieutenant Hill direct Officer Gonzalez to work the overtime shift. Taylor also heard Gonzalez respond that she was sick. However, Taylor did not hear Lieutenant Hill say that he did not care. Taylor could not recall any further details about the incident or whether Gonzalez stayed and followed the order to work overtime. Taylor noted that, to the best of her recollection, Gonzalez was not disrespectful.

Appellant acknowledged that her refusal to work overtime, as ordered by Lieutenant Hill, resulted in charges of insubordination, obedience to orders, neglect of duty, malingering, absence without leave, and false statements, for which she was given a six-day suspension beginning March 16, 2015, and ending March 23, 2015. (R-1.) Appellant maintained, however, that she explained her reasons for not working overtime to Lieutenant Hill. She said that she told Lieutenant Hill that she was too sick to perform overtime duties due to a sinus infection, for which she was taking antibiotics. She also testified that the medication caused her body to retain water and her feet to swell. However, she denied speaking to Lieutenant Hill in a disrespectful, angry, and unprofessional manner. She disclosed that in 2009 she underwent radiation for thyroid cancer, which left two nodules on her throat and made it impossible for her to raise her voice. Gonzalez further testified that although she was too ill to work overtime, she felt better later that day and reported for duty at 3:15 p.m.

Regarding her Administrative Submission report (R-7), Gonzalez testified that she knew the importance of submitting a complete and accurate report. She maintained, however, that Lieutenant Hill would not allow her to include specific details describing her symptoms. She further maintained that she informed a Sergeant Eury of her illness.

Summary of Testimony on Charge Two

Appellant's thirty-day suspension relates to the incident of September 28, 2014, resulting in the six-day suspension.

Respondent presented Lt. Mathew Milton, who testified about Gonzalez's return to work after completing the six-day suspension. Lieutenant Milton's Administrative Submission states in part:

> SUBJECT: Absent without leave
> [I]n regards to Officer Gonzalez . . . not reporting for duty. Officer Gonzalez was scheduled to work March 24th and 25th 2015 for her regular tour of A1 squad . . . Officer Gonzalez was out the week of March 18th, 19th, 20th and 21st. I calculated from Officer Gonzalez's work days, that she would have still been on suspension for the 24th and 25th and the fact that she was on the Assignment Tour Sheet was a clerical error and adjusted the assignment sheet. I was later informed on the morning of 3/25/2015 that the suspension time was not work days, but rather consecutive days and Officer Gonzalez should have been at work for March 24th and 25th.

Lieutenant Milton further testified that he did not notify appellant about the schedule adjustment and that she was supposed to work on March 24, and March 25, 2015. He believed, however, that Lieutenant Lopez might have contacted Officer Gonzalez about the schedule change.

Respondent presented Sgt. Marc Priccaciante, who handled the internal investigation regarding Lieutenant Hill's allegations that "Officer Gonzalez's tone of voice seemed disrespectful as she verbally explained why she was late for duty because she had been out of work due to suspension." (R-37.) Sergeant Priccaciante candidly testified that he was unsure how to calculate the days of Officer Gonzalez's suspension and return to duty. He believed she should have returned on March 24, 2015, if she was scheduled to work that day. But, if March 24, 2015, was a scheduled day off, then Officer Gonzalez's return date would have been March 25, 2015. Lieutenant Priccaciante sought advice on this issue from Sgt. Beatrice Golden, advocate unit supervisor.

Sergeant Golden has been employed by the Department for twenty-six years. Her duties as advocate unit supervisor include preparing the written disciplinary charges and serving the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action. She testified that suspension days for police officers are counted consecutively. On March 3, 2015, Sergeant Golden signed Officer Gonzalez's Final Notice of Disciplinary Action, which states, "The following disciplinary action has been taken against you: Suspension for 6 days, beginning March 16, 2015 and ending March 23, 2015." (R-1.) Thus, Gonzalez's return date was March 24, 2015. Golden maintained that Gonzalez had a duty to verify her return date and should have contacted the Department if she had questions.

Gonzalez acknowledged receiving notice of the six-day suspension (R-1). She maintained, however, that her suspension was not calculated on consecutive days. Rather, it covered her scheduled workdays. She further testified that prior to returning to work, she called the supervisor, who told her to return on March 25, 2015, because March 24, 2015, was a scheduled day off. Thus, after completing her six-day suspension she returned to work on March 25, 2015.

Appellant presented Officer Eduardo Roces, who testified that his suspension regarding the incident at 2 S. Place also listed consecutive days. Uncertain whether to apply scheduled work days, he contacted his union. Officer Roces maintained that he was given permission to serve his suspension based on his workdays.

Charge Three—OAL Dkt. No. CSV 20508-15 (45-Day Suspension)

CHARGE I: Violation of Newark Police Department Rules and Regulations, Chapter 18:8, ACTS OF INSUBORDINATION—Department

members shall not commit acts of insubordination or disrespect to any superior officer (2 Counts).

CHARGE IB: Violation of Civil Service Rule N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)2. An employee may be subject to discipline for: 2. Insubordination.

SPECIFICATION I: On March 25, 2015, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez did commit an act of insubordination to Lieutenant Freddie Hill, a superior officer, to wit: after being given a direct order by Lieutenant Freddie Hill to submit an Administrative Report explaining the reason she was late for duty, Police Officer Gonzalez reported, "I just came back from suspension thanks to Lieutenant Hill."

SPECIFICATION II: On March 25, 2015, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez did commit an act of insubordination to Lieutenant Freddie Hill, a superior officer, to wit: during a conversation relative to Police Officer Gonzalez's lateness for duty, Officer Gonzalez stated to him in a rude and disrespectful manner, "It was thanks to you that I was suspended."

SPECIFICATION III: On March 25, 2015, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez did commit an act of insubordination to Lieutenant Freddie Hill, a superior officer, to wit: while providing Officer Gonzalez with a copy of the Administrative Report she wrote, Office Gonzalez rudely snatched the report from Lieutenant Hill's hand.

CHARGE II: Violation of Newark Police Department Rules and Regulations, Chapter 18:6, NEGLECT OF DUTY—Department members shall not commit any act nor shall they be guilty of any omission that constitutes neglect of duty.

CHARGE IIB: Violation of Civil Service Rule N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)7. An employee may be subject to discipline for: 7. Neglect of Duty.

SPECIFICATION: On March 25, 2015, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez did neglect her duty when she failed to speak to Lieutenant Freddie Hill, desk supervisor, advising him that she would be late for duty.

CHARGE III: Violation of Newark Police Department Rules and Regulations, Chapter 5:3.1, PUNCTUALITY—Police officers shall be punctual in reporting for duty.

SPECIFICATION: On March 25, 2015, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez failed to report for duty promptly at the Fifth Precinct.

CHARGE IV: Violation of Newark Police Department Rules and Regulations, Chapter 17:1.11, CONCISENESS AND ORDINARY USE OF LANGUAGE—Official Department correspondence shall be plain and concise in language. Statements shall be made in terms that cannot be misunderstood. Each paragraph shall deal with only one phase of the general subject. Unnecessary introductory or explanatory paragraphs shall be avoided.

SPECIFICATION: On March 25, 2015, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez did violate the above rule when she submitted an Administrative Report, relative her failure to report for duty promptly at the Fifth Precinct, in that: Officer Gonzalez wrote, "I just came back from suspension thanks to Lieutenant. Hill."

Summary of Testimony on Charge Three

Appellant's forty-five-day suspension also relates to the incidents of September 28, 2014, followed by March 25, 2015. Respondent presented Lieutenant Hill, who testified that on March 25, 2015, Officer Gonzalez was late for duty without providing him notice. Thus, he ordered Officer Gonzalez to submit an administrative report documenting the reasons she was late for work. Hill maintained that after Gonzalez responded that she was unsure of the date she was due back, she stated in a rude and disrespectful manner, "Thanks to you that I was suspended!" After he reviewed her administrative report, she "very rudely snatched it" from his hand. (R-20.) Lieutenant Hill further maintained that her Administrative Submission included the unnecessary and unprofessional comment, "I just came back from suspension thanks to Lieutenant Hill." (R-18.) Lieutenant Hill concluded that her statement was not relevant to his order.

Sgt. Marc Priccaciante handled the investigation regarding Lieutenant Hill's claim that Officer Gonzalez was disrespectful in reporting the reason she was late for duty on March 25, 2015. Sergeant Priccaciante concluded that Officer Gonzalez conducted herself in the manner described by Lieutenant Hill, which constituted insubordination. (R-37.)

Charge Four—OAL Dkt. No. CSV 20508-15 (15-Day Suspension)

CHARGE I: Violation of Newark Police Department Rules and Regulations, Chapter 18:6, NEGLECT OF DUTY—Department members shall not commit any act nor shall they be guilty of any omission that constitutes neglect of duty.

CHARGE IB: Violation of Civil Service Rule N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)7. An employee may be subject to discipline for: 7. Neglect of Duty;

SPECIFICATION: On March 09, 2015, at 2 [S.] Place, Police Officers Doris Gonzalez and Eduardo Roces did neglect their duty when they failed to diligently carry out all of the duties, responsibilities and function of their positions and/or employment, in that: Police Officers Gonzalez and Roces were dispatched to a domestic violence assignment, both officers failed to exit their patrol unit to gain entry into the dwelling. Instead officers notified dispatch they were unable to gain access into the building. It was later determined that the building is unsecured and the locks were inoperable. As a result of Officers Gonzalez's and Roces's neglect the victim was assaulted a second time by the actor (the assault was overheard by call taker).

CHARGE II: Violation of Newark Police Department Rules and Regulations, Chapter 5:4.1, OBEDIENCE TO ORDERS—Police officers or civilian employees shall promptly and fully obey any lawful order directed to them by a superior officer.[2]

SPECIFICATION: On March 09, 2015, at 2 [S.] Place, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez and Eduardo Roces did receive a verbal order from Lieutenant Mathew Milton, a superior officer, directing officers to detain and conduct a field interrogation on the actor involved in the domestic violence incident. Police Officers Gonzalez and Roces did disobey this order when they failed to comply as directed. As a result, the actor was able to leave the scene and later placed into custody by another unit.

CHARGE III: Violation of Newark Police Department Rules and Regulations, Chapter 18:22, FALSE STATEMENTS—Police officers shall not falsify any official report or record (2 counts).

SPECIFICATION I: On March 09, 2015, Police Officers Doris Gonzalez and Eduardo Roces did falsify an Official Record, to wit: dispatch communication, in that officers notified dispatch they were unable to gain access into dwelling of a domestic violence incident, although knowing in truth that said information was false and contrary to fact.

SPECIFICATION II: On March 09, 2015, Police Officer Doris Gonzalez and Eduardo Roces, did submit an Administrative, DPI: 1001, to their command with intent to deceive, in that they indicated "they were unable to gain access into the dwelling," although knowing in truth that said information was false and contrary to fact.

[2] Respondent dismissed the charge of Obedience to Orders prior to the OAL hearing.

Summary of Testimony on Charge Four

Appellant presented Officer Eduardo Roces, who testified about the incident on March 9, 2015, where he and his partner, Gonzalez, were working the midnight shift. They were dispatched to 2 S. Place on a domestic-violence call. Upon arrival, Gonzalez attempted to open the front door, which had been locked. Thus, he asked dispatch to contact the victim about the locked door. (R-29.) The victim responded that the door was not locked, but nevertheless came downstairs, and was followed by the man whom Roces described as the "actor." Roces called for backup, and three officers shortly arrived. When informed by the victim that she decided not to "press charges," Roces allowed the suspect to leave the premises. Roces acknowledged that he was disciplined and charged with neglect of duty.

Under cross-examination, Roces described the entrance as having two doors. (R-23; R-24; R-32.)

Respondent presented Lt. Mathew Milton, an eighteen-year veteran of the Department. He responded to the backup call at 2 S. Place. Lieutenant Milton was familiar with the building and had been dispatched to that address "ten to fifteen times." He described the entry and two doors leading into the hallway. Lieutenant Milton further testified that he had never found the doors locked. In fact, the exterior door was incapable of being locked due to a faulty pin mechanism. Additionally, the second door in the vestibule had a broken clasp, and, thus, could not be locked.

Lieutenant Milton further testified that upon arriving at the building, he observed Officer Roces with the suspect and the victim walking down the stairwell towards them. Lieutenant Milton "advised" Officer Roces to conduct a field inquiry and record check. Milton heard Gonzalez say, "It's taken care of." Lieutenant Milton then spoke with the victim about the incident while the suspect remained with officers Gonzalez, Roces and Lindsey. The victim told Lieutenant Milton that the doors do not lock, and when she went downstairs she was followed and assaulted. Lieutenant Milton recalled observing the suspect with Officers Gonzalez and Roces, and he assumed they were taking the suspect to the police station. However, they released the suspect, who left the area, but was subsequently stopped and arrested by Officer Lindsey. During processing of the suspect's arrest, it was revealed that he had two open warrants, which the check would have disclosed before he left the scene of the incident.

Respondent also presented Lt. Lawee Colbert, Jr., who handled the investigation. He testified that the City closed the building after receiving numerous complaints, including the removal of door locks, which made the building unsecured. He further testified that when dealing with domestic-violence calls, police officers are required to go over questions on a special form, which would have been applicable in this situation.

Appellant described her view of the incident. Upon being dispatched to the domestic-violence call with her partner, Officer Roces, she found that the inner door was locked. Thus, the victim was asked to come downstairs and open the door. Officer Gonzalez then followed her back upstairs. Gonzalez observed no signs of physical injury, but testified that the victim was "drunk" and wanted the "actor" to leave the apartment. Gonzalez did not question the suspect, nor did she perform a record check prior to letting the suspect go. Prior to leaving the premises, Officer Gonzalez reported her observations to Lieutenant Milton. Officer Gonzalez maintained that based on her observation of, conversation with, and interaction with the victim, she followed protocol.

DISCUSSION

The Civil Service Commission has jurisdiction to hear major disciplinary disputes under N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.3. Major discipline includes removal or fine or suspension of more than five working days. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2. Employees may be disciplined for insubordination, neglect of duty, failure to perform duties, and conduct unbecoming a public employee, among other things. N.J.A.C. 4:2-2.3. Appeals before the Commission are conducted as hearings de novo. East Patterson v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 47 N.J. Super. 55 (App. Div. 1957); Newark v. Civil Serv. Comm'n, 114 N.J.L. 406, 413 (Sup. Ct. 1935).

The City of Newark Police Department has the burden of proving the charges against Officer Doris Gonzalez by a preponderance of the credible evidence. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to 12-6. Preponderance is the greater weight of credible evidence and convincing power presented, not necessarily dependent on the number of witnesses. State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47 (1975). Moreover, the evidence must be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to the given conclusion. Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958). And, where the standard is reasonable probability, the evidence must be such as to "generate belief that the tendered hypothesis is in all human likelihood the fact." Lowe v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959).

A major factor in proving the charges against Officer Gonzalez is the credibility of the witnesses, whose testimony may be disbelieved, but may not be disregarded. Middletown Twp. v. Murdoch, 73 N.J. Super. 511 (App. Div. 1962). Thus, the trier of fact is not bound to believe the testimony of any witness, and may accept or reject, in whole or in part, the testimony. Application of Howard Sav. Bank, 143 N.J. Super. 1 (App. Div. 1976). Consequently, in assessing the credibility of the evidence, this tribunal must "decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to the reasonable probability of the truth." Jackson v D.L. & W.R.R., 111 N.J.L. 487, 490 (E. & A. 1933).

Charge One

On September 28, 2014, Officer Gonzalez disobeyed Lieutenant Hill's order to work overtime. She maintained she was too ill to work. Officer Gonzalez denied that her behavior towards Lieutenant Hill was disrespectful. Respondent charged appellant with insubordination, neglect of duty, obedience to orders, absence without leave, malingering, and false statements. Respondent imposed a six-day suspension.

Appellant does not dispute refusing Lieutenant Hill's order to work overtime. She maintained that her reason for disobeying a direct order was illness. It would have been sufficient and reasonable to simply explain that the symptoms she was experiencing would interfere with her ability to properly carry out her duties. However, while Officer Gonzalez might have been suffering from a sinus infection, taking medication, and experiencing swollen feet, she nevertheless remained on her full shift without complaint to any of her fellow workers. Remarkably, subsequent to Lieutenant Hill ordering her to stay and work mandatory overtime, her response was intertwined with rude and disrespectful behavior towards a superior officer.

Respondent notes that insubordination is behavior that is "not submissive to authority: disobedient." (Respondent's Brief.) It may also embody "non-compliance and non-cooperation, as well as affirmative acts of disobedience." Ibid. Moreover, depending on the circumstances, insubordination can occur even where no specific order or direction has been given to the allegedly insubordinate person.

Based upon the foregoing, and having had the opportunity to listen to the witnesses, observe their demeanor, assess their credibility, and review the documents in evidence, I FIND that Officer Gonzalez told Lieutenant Hill that she was too ill to work the overtime shift, and added, "No, I ain't staying, I'm booking off sick, I'm taking antibiotics!" I further FIND that Officer Gonzalez refused to work the overtime shift, booked off sick, and responded to a superior in a disrespectful and unprofessional manner.

The parties do not dispute that the Department is a paramilitary organization with a chain of command. Thus, police officers and civilian employees must obey lawful orders directed by superior officers. "Neglect of duty" has been interpreted to mean that an employee has neglected to perform and act as required by his or her job title. Ortiz v. City of Newark, CSV 12056-04, Initial Decision (February 8, 2006), modified, MSB (April 6, 2006), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/> (citing Avanti v. Dep't of Military and Veterans Affairs, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 564).

Based on the credible evidence presented by respondent, I FIND and CONCLUDE that Officer Gonzalez disobeyed a lawful order when she refused to work mandatory overtime and booked off sick. I also CONCLUDE that Officer Gonzalez's failure to report to mandatory overtime constituted neglect of duty. I further CONCLUDE that Officer Gonzalez's behavior constituted insubordination, disobedience to orders, neglect of duty, and absence without leave.

Regarding the charges of malingering and false statements, the issue is whether Officer Gonzalez feigned illness, injury, or incapacity to perform required duties. The record reflects that prior to Lieutenant Hill's order to work the mandatory shift, Officer Gonzalez worked without incident or complaint. She describes her manner of speaking in response to Lieutenant Hill's order as "simply and matter-of-factly." (Appellant's Brief.) Feeling too ill to work overtime, she went home, took her medication, then felt better, and "booked back on for duty later that day but was off the next two days." Ibid. Appellant argues that her booking back on "meant simply that she was not requesting additional leave due to illness." Ibid. I have also considered appellant's administrative submission, including her testimony that Lieutenant Hill would not let her describe the symptoms of her illness in the report. Yet, she included Lieutenant Hill's remarks that "he didn't care she was sick." Respondent argues, "This makes no sense." I agree.

Respondent further notes that Officer Gonzalez's return to duty fifteen minutes after the overtime shift ended suggests that she either recovered from her illness or that her illness was never severe enough to prevent her covering the overtime shift. Respondent's argument on this issue is more persuasive than that presented by appellant. Consequently, I CONCLUDE that appellant's refusal to report for overtime without the consent of a superior officer constituted malingering and false statements.

Charge Two

Charge Two is directly related to the September 28, 2014, incident described in Charge One. This charge concerns the dispute between the parties regarding the date on which appellant was to return to work after serving the six-day suspension, beginning March 16, 2015, and ending March 23, 2015. Respondent contends that appellant should have returned on March 24, 2015. Appellant contends that her return date was March 25, 2015. Consequently, respondent charged that appellant's failure to return to work on March 24, 2015, constituted absence without leave and neglect of duty, for which she received a thirty-day suspension.

Respondent asserts that officers serve their suspension days consecutively, based on a Monday-through-Friday schedule. Moreover, they are provided notice at the time they are served with the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action. Officer Roces testified that he was confused over how to calculate his return date after a suspension. Sergeant Priccaciante candidly testified that he was unsure how to calculate Officer Gonzalez's return-to-duty date. He believed she should have returned on March 24, 2015, if she was scheduled to work that day. But, if March 24, 2015, was a scheduled day off, then Officer Gonzalez's return date would have been March 25, 2015. Eventually, Sergeant Priccaciante sought advice from Sergeant Golden, who testified that suspension days are counted consecutively. Since appellant's suspension for six days ran from March 16, 2015, to March 23, 2015, her return date was March 24, 2015. Sergeant Golden submits that if Gonzalez was unsure or did not know how to calculate the return date, she had a duty to contact the Department.

Respondent candidly conceded, "the March 25, 2015, Absence without Leave charge should have been dismissed because Appellant did not return to work as required on March 24, 2015, but did show up late to work on March 25, 2015." I agree. However, "unlike Officer Roces, the Appellant never received permission from the Police Director to serve her suspension days based on her work schedule. Despite being provided with notice that she was to serve her suspension days consecutively, [s]he was defiant and chose to improperly serve her suspension days." (Respondent's Brief.) Thus, respondent submits that appellant is guilty of absence without leave for March 24, 2015.

Respondent further asserts that Officer Gonzalez knew that her return date following her suspension "conflicted with her own opinion on how to serve the days." Ibid. "Despite being provided with notice as to how she was supposed to serve the days consecutively on a Monday through Friday schedule . . . she knew the suspension dates were for her working days." Ibid. Thus, respondent submits that appellant neglected to verify her return date, and therefore she is guilty of neglect of duty.

Appellant argues, "There was substantial confusion as to whether the suspension days should be calculated on a work day schedule or a calendar schedule." (Appellant's Brief.) I agree. Indeed, Sergeant Priccaciante and Sergeant Golden acknowledged that there is no written policy setting forth the calculation procedure. Appellant further notes that Sergeant Golden "conceded that if the return date after a suspension falls on an officer's day off, then the return date would be the officer's next day of duty." Ibid.

Officer Gonzalez maintained that she too was uncertain of how to calculate her return date, either March 24, or March 25, 2015. She further testified that she contacted her shift commander, who said the calculation of suspension days was based on the work schedule and not calendar days. Here, appellant's argument that the Department "has no clear explicit written policy concerning the calculation of suspension days" is unrefuted and persuasive. Moreover, there exists confusion among Department employees who interpreted return dates; some calculated consecutively, others applied work-day schedules or calendar days.

Based on the circumstance presented, I CONCLUDE that respondent failed to demonstrate by a preponderance of the credible evidence that appellant's failure to return to work on March 24, 2015, constituted absence without leave.

I further CONCLUDE that respondent failed to demonstrate by a preponderance of the credible evidence that appellant's failure to return on March 24, 2015, constituted neglect of duty.

Thus, I further CONCLUDE that Charge Two is unsupported and must be dismissed.

Charge Three

Charge Three also relates to the September 28, 2014, incident described in Charge One and Charge Two. It concerns appellant's alleged statements and demeanor towards Lieutenant Hill following her return to duty after serving the six-day suspension. The Department charged Officer Gonzalez with insubordination, neglect of duty, failure to be punctual, and unprofessional use of language and imposed a forty-five-day suspension.

The parties do not dispute that Officer Gonzalez was late for work on March 25, 2015. However, they differ on the words spoken by Gonzalez and her attitude. Respondent maintains that appellant failed to notify Lieutenant Hill that she would be late for duty. Appellant maintained that she was unable to reach Lieutenant Hill, but notified the front desk. Upon her arrival, Lieutenant Hill questioned appellant and ordered her to submit an administrative report documenting the reason she was late. Respondent maintains that appellant responded, in a rude and disrespectful manner, "it was thanks to you that I was suspended!" (Respondent's Brief.)

Additionally, after Lieutenant Hill reviewed the administrative report and handed a copy to appellant, "she rudely snatched it" from his hand. Ibid. Gonzalez denied snatching the report from his hand. Regarding appellant's Administrative Submission, she included the statement, "I just came back from suspension thanks to Lieutenant. Hill." (R-18; R-20.) Lieutenant Hill believed her statement was not relevant to his order and again displayed disrespect to a superior officer.

Respondent asserts that appellant's verbal and written remarks, and "snatching" the report out of Lieutenant Hill's hand, constituted insubordination. Respondent further submits that appellant's denial that these acts occurred is incredible, because "she has shown herself to be brash and impulsive." (Respondent's Brief.) Respondent submits that Lieutenant Hill's testimony is credible; Officer Gonzalez's is not. The Department further maintains that appellant's failure to notify the Department that she would be late for work constituted neglect of duty.

Based on the evidence presented by the parties, including the opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses, I am persuaded that Officer Gonzalez's behavior and the incidents occurred as presented by respondent. I CONCLUDE that appellant's conduct constituted insubordination, neglect of duty, failure to be punctual, and unprofessional use of language.

Charge Four

Charge Four relates to Officer's Gonzalez handling of a domestic-violence dispatch call on March 9, 2015. Respondent charged appellant with neglect of duty and false statements, and imposed a fifteen-day suspension. The parties acknowledged that appellant and her partner responded to a domestic-violence call. Appellant claims, however, that the door to the hallway at the premises was locked. Respondent claims it was not.

Respondent contends that appellant neglected her duty and made false statements when, "instead of rendering assistance to the victim, she lied to Dispatch that the door was locked." (Respondent's Brief.) Consequently, appellant's conduct caused the victim to leave the apartment, followed by her "boyfriend," who then assaulted her. Respondent further asserts that appellant failed to appropriately question the victim and failed to ask the suspect any questions. Moreover, no record check was conducted on the suspect. Officers Lindsey and Pinzon submitted statements that the building was unsecured when they entered. Respondent submits that it has met its burden of proving appellant guilty of the charges.

Appellant maintains that the doors were locked and, thus, prevented her from entering the building until the victim came downstairs and opened the door. Unfortunately, the victim's boyfriend followed and assaulted her. Appellant submits that she did not neglect her duty or make any false statements. Instead, appellant submits, "Officer Gonzalez and her partner may have been mistaken as to whether the door was actually locked or just stuck." (Appellant's Brief.)

Having carefully reviewed the evidence and having observed the demeanor of the witnesses, I am persuaded that the incident occurred as presented by respondent. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that appellant's conduct constituted neglect of duty and false statements.

PENALTY

In determining the reasonableness of a sanction, the employee's past record and any mitigating circumstances should be reviewed for guidance. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962). However, the courts should not adhere to rigid disciplinary guidelines in assessing penalties. To determine whether sufficient cause exists to justify the sanction, the conduct must be examined considering certain factors. Moreover, the employee's conduct must be evaluated in context with its relationship to the nature of the job and the circumstances, which may impact specific conduct. On appeal, the Board may modify a penalty originally imposed. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-19; Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). Indeed, the Board is empowered to substitute its judgment on the appropriate penalty, even if the local appointing authority has not clearly abused its discretion. Henry, supra, 81 N.J. at 579. However, the penalty imposed may not be so disproportionate to the offense and the mitigating factors that the administrative decision is arbitrary and unreasonable. Feldman v. Town of Irvington Fire Dep't, 162 N.J. Super. 177, 182 (App. Div. 1978), overruled on other grounds by Steinel v. Jersey City, 99 N.J. 1 (1985).

The charges against Officer Gonzalez are serious, and I have considered whether mitigating factors exist to reduce the penalty. Conversely, I have equally considered whether there are aggravating circumstances to warrant an increase in the penalty imposed by the Department. Although the record contains several inconsistencies in the appellant's testimony, this does not necessarily prove that her total testimony was untruthful. Indeed, some inconsistencies in a witness's testimony do not warrant an automatic discounting of that testimony as incredible. United Stations of N.J. v. Getty Oil Co., 102 N.J. Super. 459 (Ch. Div. 1968). The testimony must be such that the administrative law judge can reasonably conclude that the witness is wholly unworthy of belief. Accordingly, the trier of fact must carefully weigh the evidence before rejecting testimony, even if not directly contradicted, when it is contrary to the circumstances.

Charge One

Regarding Charge One, I CONCLUDE that the Department has proven the charges against appellant by a preponderance of the credible evidence. I further CONCLUDE that the six-day suspension is appropriate.

Charge Two

Regarding Charge Two, I CONCLUDE that the Department has not proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence the charges of absence without leave and neglect of duty. There exists among Department employees significant confusion over the proper calculation of the date of return to duty after serving a suspension. Consequently, I CONCLUDE that the evidence does not support the imposition of the thirty-day suspension, and this charge must be DISMISSED.

Charge Three

During this hearing, I closely observed the deportment of every witness, particularly the Department's charging witness and appellant. Both Lieutenant Hill and Officer Gonzalez appeared strong-minded, rigidly controlled, and at times indomitable. As the record developed, the charges against appellant, particularly the intensity of Charge Two and Charge Three, appeared to be in large part reflective of a festering growth of acrimony, not merely dislike between two individual employees of the Department, one superior in rank to the other.

Thus, while I CONCLUDE that the Department has proven the charges of insubordination, neglect of duty, failure to be punctual, and unprofessional use of language, given the obvious animosity between the Department employees, I CONCLUDE that the imposed forty-five-day suspension warrants a reduction making it more appropriate to the overall intertwined circumstance connecting Charge One, Charge Two, and Charge Three. I therefore CONCLUDE that a fifteen-day suspension is appropriate, justified, and supported by the credible evidence.

Charge Four

I CONCLUDE that the Department has proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Officer Gonzalez mishandled the domestic-violence call on March 9, 2015. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the evidence supports charges of neglect of duty and false statements, for which the fifteen-day suspension is appropriate.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY

In the Matter of Hayford Jarpa
Department of Military and Veterans Affairs, Veterans Haven Transitional Home

DECISION OF THE
CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

CSC DKT. NO. 2016-1783
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 19729-15

ISSUED: JUL 28 2017 BW

The appeal of Hayford Jarpa, Human Services Assistant, Department of Military and Veterans Affairs, Veterans Haven Transitional Home, 60 working day suspension, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Tama B. Hughes, who rendered her initial decision on May 9, 2017 reversing the 60 working day suspension. Exceptions were filed on behalf of the appointing authority and a reply to exceptions was filed on behalf of the appellant.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission, at its meeting on July 26, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision.

Since the penalty has been reversed, the appellant is entitled to the equivalent of 60 days of back pay, benefits, and seniority, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10. Further, since the appellant has prevailed, he is entitled to counsel fees pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12.

This decision resolves the merits of the dispute between the parties concerning the disciplinary charges and the penalty imposed by the appointing authority. However, in light of the Appellate Division's decision, Dolores Phillips v. Department of Corrections, Docket No. A-5581-01T2F (App. Div. Feb. 26, 2003), the Commission's decision will not become final until any outstanding issues concerning back pay and counsel fees are finally resolved.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in suspending the appellant was not justified. The Commission therefore reverses that action and grants the appeal of Hayford Jarpa. The Commission further orders that appellant be granted the equivalent of 60 days back pay, benefits, and seniority. The amount of back pay awarded is to be reduced and mitigated as provided for in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10. Proof of income earned and an affidavit of mitigation shall be submitted by or on behalf of the appellant to the appointing authority within 30 days of issuance of this decision.

The Commission further orders that counsel fees be awarded to the attorney for appellant pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12. An affidavit of services in support of reasonable counsel fees shall be submitted by or on behalf of the appellant to the appointing authority within 30 days of issuance of this decision. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10 and N.J.A.C. 4A:2.12, the parties shall make a good faith effort to resolve any dispute as to the amount of back pay or counsel fees.

The parties must inform the Commission, in writing, if there is any dispute as to back pay or counsel fees within 60 days of issuance of this decision. In the absence of such notice, the Commission will assume that all outstanding issues have been amicably resolved by the parties and this decision shall become a final administrative determination pursuant to R. 2:2-3(a)(2). After such time, any further review of this matter shall be pursued in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division.

OAL DKT. NO. CSV 19729-15
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2016-1783

IN THE MATTER OF HAYFORD JARPA, VETERANS HAVEN TRANSITIONAL HOME,
DEPARTMENT OF MILITARY AFFAIRS.

William A. Nash, Esq., appearing for appellant, Hayford Jarpa, (Law Office of Nash Law Firm, LLC, attorneys)

Susan C. Sweeney, Administrator Employee Relations, appearing for respondent, Veterans Haven Transitional Home, Department of Military Affairs, appearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.4(a)2

Record Closed: March 27, 2017 Decided: May 9, 2017

BEFORE TAMA B. HUGHES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Appellant Hayford Jarpa, ("appellant") an Assistant at the Veterans Haven Transitional Home (VHTH or respondent), appeals a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action ("FNDA") and the sixty-day suspension for: 1) Conduct Unbecoming a Public Employee (N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6)); 2) Other Sufficient Cause (N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12)) specifically, notoriously disgraceful conduct (DD.230.05:C.16). Respondent's basis for the suspension originates from the arrest of appellant for second degree aggravated assault in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(b)(2) which was ultimately downgraded and dismissed. Respondent alleges that appellant was untruthful about the arrest and subsequent investigation regarding the same.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On June 15, 2015, appellant was issued a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action ("PNDA") suspending him with pay, effective June 11, 2015, due to appellant's arrest for aggravated assault on June 1, 2015. On June 25, 2015, an amended PNDA was issued to appellant suspending him without pay indefinitely. On September 1, 2015, a second amended PNDA was issued to appellant suspending him for 120 working days beginning on a date to be determined. On September 15, 2015, a third amended PNDA was issued to appellant suspending him for 120 days and provided appellant seventeen days within which to seek a departmental hearing. A departmental hearing was held on October 23, 2015, the result of which was the issuance of a FNDA on November 2, 2015, suspending appellant for sixty days. The appellant requested a hearing and the matter was filed at the Office of Administrative Law, on December 3, 2015, to be heard as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and 14F-1 to 13. A settlement conference and prehearing conference were held on February 25, 2016, and August 19, 2016, respectively. The matter was heard on February 24, 2017, and February 27, 2017. The record closed on March 27, 2017.

TESTIMONY

Justin Seidel ("Seidel"), a Patrolman for the Buena Police Department testified that on May 31, 2015, at 12:57 a.m., he was dispatched to appellant's home on the report of a domestic matter. (R-3). Upon arrival, less than a minute later, he found appellant's son, Hayford Jarpa, Jr., ("Jarpa") standing outside, bleeding from a two-inch laceration on his head. Jarpa, who was highly intoxicated and stumbling at the time, informed Seidel that he and his father had gotten into an altercation and appellant hit him with a folding chair. Due to the head injury, an ambulance was called and Jarpa was taken to the hospital where he was subsequently admitted, due to his level of intoxication. Appellant was not located at the residence and while Jarpa's mother was present, she did not want to speak to the police. Seidel stated that per protocol, all domestics go on warrants. In this case, the judge was telephonically contacted and an arrest warrant was authorized for aggravated assault with bail set at $2,500 at ten percent. Thereafter, a physical warrant was generated with a copy for the respondent. (R-7). Also generated were Incident and Case Detail reports detailing the events of the evening. (R-2 and R-4). Seidel testified that he drove by the residence a couple of times that night to try to serve appellant with the warrant, however, was unable to locate him.

On June 1, 2015, at 4:30 p.m., appellant turned himself in to the Buena Police Department where he was fingerprinted, photographed and posted bail. (R-5 and R-6). Appellant was given a copy of the bail receipt and informed that he was to appear in court on June 4, 2015. (R-10). Seidel stated that while he told the next shift to serve appellant with a copy of the warrant, he could not say for certain if that occurred. Seidel also stated that in his experience as a police officer, when a person is fingerprinted, photographed and pays bail, they understand that they have been arrested. The charges were downgraded by the county and ultimately dismissed in Municipal Court on August 27, 2015, (R-8, P-1 and P-2) due to a statement provided under oath by Jarpa that he did not want to proceed.

On cross-examination, Seidel stated that the police had been to the appellant's home once before on an unrelated, non-domestic matter. Seidel also testified that he did not know what time the incident occurred on May 31, 2015, or what time the appellant left the residence. Seidel also stated that he did not leave copies of the warrant at the house and did not inform the female (who he assumed to be appellant's wife) that there was an active warrant for appellant's arrest, just that he needed to go to the police station. Seidel further stated that while it is protocol to give a defendant a copy of their arrest warrant, there is no documentation in the system to verify that had occurred in appellant's case.

Cindy Leese ("Leese"), Manager, Human Resources for the Department of Military Affairs testified that she is responsible for all personnel issues for respondent. Leese stated that her department received notification that appellant had been arrested and fingerprinted. Due to this notification, per protocol, on June 11, 2015, Leese informed appellant's supervisors that appellant had to be placed off duty with pay immediately. (R-14). Leese was informed later in the day via email by Staff Supervisor Leanne Donahue ("Donahue") that appellant had been placed off-duty and was also questioned about what had occurred. According to Donahue, appellant informed her that there had been a fight at his house when he was not there and that the police went to his home looking for him. When appellant went to the police station he was told that he had to appear in court on June 4, 2011. On June 4, 2015, appellant was informed that he had been charged with aggravated assault and asked if he had received the complaint, which he had not. According to appellant, he was told to wait to see what comes through by the court and then left. He has not heard from them since. (R-14). On this same date, Leese received a call from appellant who informed her that nothing happened involving him and that the judge said that everything was handled and that he could go home.

Leese stated that on June 12, 2015, she received another call from appellant who informed her that he had gone to the police station and was informed that the charges were dismissed. Leese told appellant that he needed to get something in writing to that effect and fax it over. Nothing was faxed over the next couple of days. On June 15, 2015, Leese received another call from appellant who stated that the police would not put anything in writing. When Leese questioned this, appellant indicated that he was going to get an attorney and that he had been allowed to go back home on June 4, 2015. On this same date, Leese spoke to the assistant prosecutor handling appellant's criminal matter. Leese was informed that appellant's charges would either go to the grand jury or go to municipal court but that they would not be dismissed.

Shortly thereafter, appellant was placed on leave without pay. (R-15). Due to appellant's inconsistencies in his statements to her, Leese created a timeline of calls. (R-16). Leese testified that she received a call from appellant on August 28, 2015, wherein appellant questioned whether Leese had received the fax he had sent. When she told him "no", he indicated that he would re-fax everything. Two fax sheets came in that were blank. (R-17 and R-18).

When questioned whether there was a policy requiring an employee to notify respondent if he/she were arrested, Leese said yes. When questioned where it was and whether it was in the Corrective and Disciplinary Action Booklet ("Disciplinary Booklet") (P-4), Leese stated that she does not use the book nor is she familiar with it. When questioned where the policy would be requiring such notification, Leese stated that she believed it was in the Title 4A book.

Leanne Donahue ("Donahue"), Staff Supervisor for respondent, testified that she is appellant's supervisor. On June 11, 2015, based upon a call and email that she received from Leese, she met with appellant to suspend him and collect his keys. At the time of the meeting, she questioned whether he was involved in any legal issues. Appellant thought a moment, hesitated and then informed her that there was a fight at his house but that he was not home when it had occurred. Appellant went on further to state that the police came to his house a couple of times looking for him. When appellant spoke to the police, he was told that he had been charged with aggravated assault and that he needed to appear in court on June 4, 2015. He appeared before the judge on that date but did not receive a complaint and was told to go home and wait. Donahue prepared a statement regarding this meeting. (R-12). Donahue had previously been unaware that there was a court date on June 4, 2015, prior to her meeting with appellant on June 11, 2015.

Alicia Bonner ("Bonner"), Staff Assistant for respondent, testified that she has been appellant's supervisor for the last five years. On June 11, 2015, she sat in the meeting wherein appellant was suspended. In questioning appellant about the incident that occurred on June 1, 2015, appellant stated that there was a fight at his home. The next day while at work, the police came to his house looking for him. Appellant stated that he went to the police station after work and was told to report to court on a specific date. He did not state that he was charged with assault or that he was arrested. Appellant appeared in court on June 4, 2015, however the judge did not go forward with the matter. Bonner wrote a statement on the same date as the meeting regarding what was discussed. (R-11).

On cross-examination, Bonner stated that appellant was one of the best employees at the veteran's home and that she was "stunned" when he was being put out. Bonner stated that appellant has integrity, a work ethic and is reliable. At no time, has he been aggressive with patients. Bonner testified that she is aware that appellant's son is an alcoholic with several DUI's. Bonner further stated that she did not recall whether appellant had to go to court prior to June 11, 2015, however if he had to go to court on a work day, he would need permission to get off early.

Hayford Jarpa Jr. ("Jarpa") testified that he drinks daily. When he drinks, he doesn't black out. When questioned if anything happens when he drinks in excess, Jarpa stated that the first time that happened, he was in an accident. The second time was during his daughter's birthday party on May 30, 2015, at his parent's home when he had several different drinks. Jarpa stated that he does not remember the police being called at midnight on May 30, 2015, or a recollection of anything except for renting a "bouncing house" for the kids and at 6:30 p.m., bringing out the checkbook to pay for the delivery. Jarpa did not remember wanting to go to Atlantic City or his father taking his keys. Jarpa stated that his father did not hit him with a chair but he did remember slipping, falling and bleeding and waking up in the hospital the next day. He did not recall calling the police. Jarpa testified that he is a different person when he is drunk and that his dad has never hit him. He was not sure why he told the police that his father had hit him. When questioned if there was another party someplace on the same date, Jarpa said "yes," there was a graduation party for one of his parents' friend's child. Jarpa has been convicted of three DUI's. When questioned on cross-examination if his story to the police about his dad hitting him was a lie, Jarpa said, yes. Throughout his testimony, Jarpa was smirking.

Hayford Jarpa, Sr. testified that he is a Liberian-born native and has lived in the United States for the past sixteen years. He is married with nine living children. He has a Bachelor of Arts Degree and a Master Degree from Manchester University. Appellant has worked for respondent for the past five years as a Human Services Assistant (HSA) and prior to that worked for the Division of Youth and Family Services. He has worked for the State of New Jersey since 2007.

Appellant stated that on May 30, 2015, there was a birthday party for two grandchildren at his home. There was alcohol at the party which started around 2:00 p.m. At 8:00 p.m., he told everyone to shut the party down. In-or-around that time, he left to go to a party that was being held by a member of the Liberian community. His son and son-in-law were drunk when he went to leave and they were about to get into a car to drive to Atlantic City. Appellant took the car keys away from his son. He has never hit his son. When he arrived home after midnight, he learned that his son was injured. His wife said that his son fell and was bleeding. Appellant testified that his wife believes the police took him, however someone else said that an ambulance came and took him. Appellant testified that he was only home for ten minutes when he left to go to the hospital. Once there, he met a Buena Police Officer whom he knew very well, however he couldn't remember his name. The Police Officer did not detain him at that time.

The next day, May 31, 2015, appellant went to work. Appellant testified that he worked two shifts - the midnight shift from 11:30 p.m. to 7:00 a.m. and the morning shift from 7:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. While at work he received a call from his wife stating that the police had been to their house looking for him. Appellant told his wife to go to the police station and see what they wanted and in so doing, was informed that appellant needed to turn himself in and bring bail money in the amount of $2,500 – ten percent or $250. After work, appellant went to the police station where he was finger printed, photographed, paid bail in the amount of $250 and given a receipt. Appellant stated that he called Leese from the Police Station to inform her that he had been charged with aggravated assault and fingerprinted, but that he was told to go home. Leese informed appellant to put it in writing.

On June 2, 2015, appellant gave Bonner the bond receipt and requested a half-day off to go to court on June 4, 2015. On June 4, 2015, appellant went to court, showed the judge the bond receipt and was told to go home and wait. He was also told to go back to the police station to receive the charges. Appellant stated that he hired an attorney and the charges were dismissed. Appellant also stated that he told Leese that he had been arrested for aggravated assault. When questioned whether he hid anything from his supervisors or misrepresented anything, he said, no. Appellant testified that both Leese and Bonner were lying when they said they did not know what was happening prior to June 11, 2015. Leese was lying because he called her from the Police Station to inform her that he had been arrested and was also incorrect in her statements in (R-16). Bonner was lying because she gave him a half day off on June 4, 2015, to go to court.

The choice of accepting or rejecting the witnesses' testimony or credibility rests with the finder of facts. Freud v. Davis, 64 N.J. Super. 242, 246 (App. Div. 1960). In addition, for testimony to be believed, it must not only come from the mouth of a credible witness, but it also has to be credible in itself. It must elicit evidence that is from such common experiences and observation that it can be approved as proper under the circumstances. See Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546 (1954); Gallo v. Gallo, 66 N.J. Super. 1 (App. Div. 1961). A credibility determination requires an overall assessment of the witnesses' story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718,749 (1963). A fact finder is free to weigh the evidence and to reject the testimony of a witness, even though not directly contradicted, when it is contrary to circumstances given in evidence or contains inherent improbabilities or contradictions which alone or in connection with other circumstances in evidence excite suspicion as to its truth. In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514. 521-22 (1950). See D'Amato by McPherson v. D'Amato, 305 N.J. Super. 109, 115 (App. Div. 1997).

Based on the evidence presented at the hearing as well as on the opportunity to observe the witnesses and assess their credibility, I FIND that on May 31, 2015, appellant was charged by Buena Police Department for Aggravated Assault in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1B(2) and bail was set at $2,500 at ten percent. I FIND Jarpa's testimony disingenuous. However, I further FIND that no evidence was presented that appellant assaulted Jarpa with a steel folding chair on May 31, 2015, causing him bodily injury. I further FIND that no evidence was presented that appellant intentionally left his residence to elude or evade the police.

I FIND that on June 1, 2015, when appellant learned that the police were looking for him, he turned himself in. I FIND that upon turning himself in, appellant was formally arrested and processed by the Buena Police Department, posted bail in the amount of $2,500 at ten percent ($250) and received a bail receipt that reflected both the charges and court appearance date of June 4, 2015. I FIND that appellant was cognizant of the charges levied against him at that time and the fact that he had been placed under arrest when he was fingerprinted, photographed and posted bail – regardless of whether he was served with a copy of the warrant.

I FIND that appellant's testimony was not credible when he testified that he had contacted Leese from the police station to report his arrest. I FIND that respondent was not formally made aware of appellant's arrest until June 11, 2015, when Leese received notification that appellant had been arrested and fingerprinted. I FIND that while respondent has a disciplinary booklet, there is nothing contained therein, nor was there credible evidence presented, that requires an employee to disclose an arrest.

I FIND that appellant was responsive to his supervisors when questioned about the criminal charges levied against him. However, appellant was misleading to Leese regarding the case status. I FIND that the "incident's giving rise to the charge(s) and the date(s) on which it/they occurred" identified in the PNDA, first through third amendments thereto, and the FNDA, do not identify or mention appellant's failure to disclose his arrest, inconsistent information and/or lack of candor regarding his arrest or case status. I FIND that no evidence was presented to support the supposition that respondent's failure to report his arrest or accurately report the status of the criminal matter was in violation of a departmental policy, employee handbook or the disciplinary booklet.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

This matter involves a major disciplinary action brought by the respondent appointing authority against the appellant. An appeal to the Merit System Board requires the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to conduct a hearing de novo to determine the appellant's guilt or innocence as well as the appropriate penalty, if the charges are sustained. In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (App. Div. 1987). Respondent has the burden of proof and must establish by a fair preponderance of the credible evidence that appellant was guilty of the charges. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). Evidence is found to preponderate if it establishes the reasonable probability of the fact alleged and generates a reliable belief that the tendered hypothesis, in all human likelihood, is true. See Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959), overruled on other grounds, Dwyer v. Ford Motor Co., 36 N.J. 487 (1962). Preponderance may also be described as the greater weight of credible evidence in the case, not necessarily dependent on the number of witnesses, but having the greater convincing power. State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47 (1975).

Here, respondent was charged with violating N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct Unbecoming a State Employee and N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) Other Sufficient Cause, specifically, DD.230.05:C.16 – Notoriously Disgraceful Conduct.

Conduct Unbecoming a Public Employee is an elastic phrase, which encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also In re Emmons, 63 NJ. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances "be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555 (quoting In re Zeber, 156 A.2d 821, 825 (1959)). Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (quoting Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)).

The "incident's" giving rise to the FNDA identifies the following basis for the sustained charges: 1) warrant for the arrest of appellant for a domestic violence incident; 2) appellant striking Jarpa with a steel folding chair causing him bodily injury; and 3) leaving the scene when 911 was called.

The record reflects that appellant was charged with aggravated assault on May 31, 2015, and formally arrested the following day when he voluntarily went to the police station after learning that the police were looking for him. These charges were dismissed in August 2015, and no evidence was presented at the hearing to support a finding that appellant assaulted his son or attempted to evade or elude the police.

Respondent argues that the charge of conduct unbecoming was properly sustained due to appellant's lack of candor or truthfulness surrounding his arrest and case disposition. Respondent further asserts that given appellant's position as a direct care worker at a facility charged with rehabilitation and care of at-risk population, such conduct cannot be tolerated thereby supporting a finding of conduct unbecoming.

Appellant's alleged failure to be truthful or forthcoming regarding his arrest and pending case disposition was not one of the enumerated "incident's" identified on the FNDA or the amended PNDA's as the basis for the disciplinary action.

Plain notice is the standard to be applied when considering the adequacy of disciplinary charges filed against public employees. Pepe v. Township of Springfield, 337 N.J. Super. 94, 97 (App. Div. 2001). Hammond v. Monmouth County Sheriff's Dep't, 317 N.J. Super. 199, 204 (App. Div. 1999): "No provision of law empowers the public employer to prosecute charges before the Board which the appointing authority has, itself, dismissed after the required local disciplinary proceedings have been held." Cf. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-13, -14, -15; City of Orange v. De Stefano, 48 N.J. Super. 407, 419-20 (App. Div. 1958). Stated otherwise, charges are a sine qua non of a valid disciplinary proceeding. It is elementary that an employee cannot legally be tried or found guilty on charges of which he has not been given plain notice by the appointing authority. The de novo hearing on the administrative appeal is limited to the charges made below. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 522 (1962) "Where an employee who is entitled to notice of "cause" and hearing before discharge is tried on one specific charge, as here, and is found not guilty thereof but solely of other charges, never specified or actually tried before either the original hearer or on appeal to the Commission, the penalty imposed will be set aside." City of Orange v. De Stefano, supra, 48 N.J. Super. 407; Kramer v. Civil Serv. Comm'n, 120 N.J.L. 599 (Sup. Ct. 1938). However, if the person had reasonable notice in time to defend at the hearing, then the core concerns of fairness are met.

In Campbell v. Department of Civil Service, 39 N.J. 556 (1963), Bernard Campbell ("Campbell") was charged with incompetency, inefficiency and poor service ratings. During the hearing, evidence was introduced relating to two additional matters which occurred during the pendency of the hearing which bore on Campbell's fitness to continue in his position. Campbell was advised that the two matters would also be considered by the Acting Commissioner of the Department of Labor and Industry. Campbell did not introduce any evidence to meet the two new charges, however introduced evidence bearing on the other ten other charges. Upon the close of the hearing, the Acting Commissioner sustained the charges and removed Campbell from his position. Thereafter, a hearing de novo was held before the Civil Service Commissioner who sustained Campbell's removal. On appeal, one of the arguments set forth by Campbell was the contention that the appointing authority failed to enumerate the cause which constituted the grounds for removal and the act of the employee constituting such cause. In upholding the Civil Service Commissioner's findings, the Court stated:

> ...the preliminary notice of disciplinary action which was served by the Department of Labor and Industry upon Mr. Campbell was on a form prepared by the Commission and referred to both of the quoted grounds for removal. While the notice might well have set forth the specifics supporting the general charges of incompetency and inefficiency, Mr. Campbell was made fully aware of them during the days of hearing before the Department and was afforded ample opportunity to meet them. Furthermore, his appeal before the Civil Service Commission was de novo and by that time Mr. Campbell was thoroughly familiar with the individual charges, including the additional charges of injudicious conduct in Burkley and improper practice before the Division during his suspension. He was undoubtedly entitled to fair notice and opportunity to be heard. See West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 522 (1962). But he had that, he never made formal application for further particularization, and if there was any procedural irregularity it did not prejudice him...

Campbell further argued that the charges outside of the preliminary notice were improperly considered. In response to this argument, the Court found that the charges were duly raised before the Acting Commissioner and that Campbell was advised that they would be considered and that he could introduce evidence to meet them. He did not. The Court went on to state:

> ...in any event, the original notice may be considered as having been amended or supplemented to include them specifically. On his appeal, they were part and parcel of the > charges heard de novo by the Commission which fairly received evidence with respect to them from both the Department and the appellant... Campbell supra at 580.

The instant matter is distinguishable from Campbell in that the appellant was not provided notice that respondent's charges were premised upon lack of candor or truthfulness surrounding his arrest and case disposition. Even assuming arguendo appellant had been placed on notice of such a charge, no credible evidence was presented at the hearing to support such a finding.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that respondent has not met its burden in demonstrating a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) (Conduct Unbecoming a State Employee) under either the assault charge or failure to truthfully report the arrest/case disposition.

Having not met its burden demonstrating a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) - Conduct Unbecoming a State Employee, I CONCLUDE that the charge of violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3a(6) Conduct Unbecoming a State Employee is hereby DISMISSED.

Appellant was also charged with a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)12 (other sufficient cause) specifically, a violation of departmental directive 230.05:C.16 (notoriously disgraceful conduct). There is no definition in the New Jersey Administrative Code for other sufficient cause. Other sufficient cause is generally defined in the charges against appellant. The charge of other sufficient cause has been dismissed when "respondent has not given any substance to the allegation" Simmons v. City of Newark, CSV 9122-99, Initial Decision (February 22, 2006), adopted, Comm'r (April 26, 2006), <hjttp://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/final/csv9122-99.pdf>. Likewise, notoriously disgraceful conduct is not defined in the Disciplinary Booklet nor did respondent introduce into evidence any rules, provisions or employee handbook which gives further definition to the charge. Black's Law Dictionary, sixth edition, defines "notorious" as "generally known and talked of; well or widely known; forming a part of common knowledge, or universally recognized" and "disgrace" as "ignominy; shame; dishonor."

As noted above, the incident giving rise to the PNDA (as amended) and the FNDA, was appellant's arrest for aggravated assault. This aggravated assault charge was downgraded and ultimately dismissed. No evidence was presented at the hearing to support a finding that appellant assaulted his son or attempted to elude the police. Respondent argues that the sustained charges were based upon appellants "incorrect, inconsistent and nonsensical information pertaining to his arrest and subsequent disposition of a criminal matter where he was a named defendant." The PNDA (as amended) and FNDA do not articulate this basis, nor is it supported by the record.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that respondent has not met its burden in demonstrating a violation of Other Sufficient Cause, specifically violation of DD.230.05 (Notoriously Disgraceful Conduct).

Having not met its burden demonstrating a violation of DD.230.05 - Notoriously disgraceful conduct, I CONCLUDE that the charge of violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3a(12), Other Sufficient Cause, specifically DD.230.05:C.16 Notoriously Disgraceful Conduct, is hereby DISMISSED.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing findings of fact and applicable law, it is hereby ORDERED that the charges of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct Unbecoming a State Employee and N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) Other Sufficient Cause, specifically DD.23-05:C.16 Notoriously Disgraceful Conduct be DISMISSED. It is further ORDERED that appellant be awarded back pay and reasonable attorney fees. The amount of back pay shall be mitigated in accordance with guidelines set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10(d)(3).

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, PO Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SETTLEMENT

OAL DKT. NO. CSV 12319-16

AGENCY DKT. NO. 2017-310

IN THE MATTER OF CHARLES KNIGHTON, JR.,
VOORHEES FIRE DISTRICT.

John F. Pilles, Jr., Esq., for appellant Charles Knighton, Jr.

Eric J. Riso, Esq., for respondent Voorhees Fire District (Platt & Riso, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 5, 2017 Decided: June 26, 2017

BEFORE LAURA SANDERS, Acting Director and Chief ALJ:

On August 16, 2016, the above referenced matter was filed at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F1 to -13. On November 23, 2016, the matter was placed on the inactive list of cases pending the dissolution of the Fire District, as well as to explore settlement. Just prior to the matter coming off the inactive list the parties advised that the dissolution of the Fire District had been dissolved and consolidated into a municipal fire department. A telephone conference call scheduled for March 29, 2017 was canceled as the parties represented that the matter had settled.

A Settlement Agreement and General Release indicating the terms of settlement was signed by the parties and forwarded to the undersigned on May 8, 2017. I sought clarification regarding language used therein. On June 5, 2017 a letter of clarification was received amending paragraph 1(a) of the settlement agreement and general release and it provides "Employer agrees that all references to Employee's demotion shall be removed from Employee's personnel file." Both the Settlement Agreement and General Release and the letter of clarification are attached hereto and made a part hereof.

I have reviewed the record and terms of the settlement and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures of the parties or their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with law.

I CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the safeguard requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and, accordingly, I approve the settlement and ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Dear Judge Sanders:

Further to the conference call held on May 16, 2017 regarding the above-referenced matter, please accept this letter on behalf of myself and Mr. Pilles regarding the Settlement Agreement and General Release. SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE

THIS SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE (hereinafter "this Agreement") is entered into on this 30th day of March, 2017, by and between Charles Knighton, Jr. (hereinafter referred to as "Releasor" or "Employee") and the Voorhees Township Fire District No. 3 ("Fire District") n/k/a the Voorhees Township Fire Department ("VTFD"), its past, present and future agents, servants, employees, representatives and elected officials and the Township of Voorhees (hereinafter referred to as "Township," "Releasees" or "Employer")

WHEREAS, on or about July 21, 2016, Employee was demoted from the position of lieutenant to firefighter by the Fire District; and

WHEREAS, Employee challenged his demotion by filing an appeal with the Civil Service Commission, which is currently pending as a contested matter before the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") under Docket No. CSV 12319-2016 S; and

WHEREAS, the Fire District has since been dissolved such that the Employee is now a member of the VTFD and, as such, an employee of the Township; and

WHEREAS, the Employee and the VTFD have engaged in negotiations and have settled all controversies between them, including Employee's claims that he was wrongfully demoted, as well as any and all related claims which could have been asserted as of the date of this Agreement, whether such claims are presently known or unknown; and

WHEREAS, the parties acknowledge that the merits of the controversy are in dispute and have not been finally adjudicated, and that no party admits any liability to any other, but all have reasons to desire amicable resolution of the matter, including to avoid the costs of litigation;

NOW, for and in consideration of the agreements, covenants and conditions herein contained, the adequacy and sufficiency of which are hereby expressly acknowledged by the parties hereto, the parties agree as follows:

1. Terms of Settlement and Consideration:

   (a) Employer withdraws the disciplinary action and rescinds the demotion of the employee.

   (b) Employee shall be restored to the position of lieutenant effective April 1, 2017.

   (c) Employee shall not receive any back pay associated with his restoration to the position of lieutenant; however, the pay he received as firefighter for the time period during which he was demoted (August 18, 2016 to April 1, 2017) shall be adjusted to reflect compensation and deductions at Step 15, as opposed to Step 14.

(d) Restoration to the position of lieutenant and the adjusted payment as provided for above is contingent upon Employee's execution of this Agreement as well as the dismissal with prejudice of his disciplinary appeal, which is currently pending under OAL Docket No. CSV 12319-2016 S.

(e) Employee agrees that but for this General Release and Settlement Agreement, he would not be entitled to the aforesaid payment and other terms of settlement described herein.

2. Dismissal of Action: Employee understands and agrees that a dismissal with prejudice of his pending disciplinary appeal will be filed with the Office of Administrative Law and/or Civil Service Commission, it being understood and agreed that the terms of said dismissal are expressly incorporated by reference within this Agreement as if fully set forth herein.

3. Release in Consideration for the Payment and Other Consideration Provided for in this Agreement: In consideration of the payment and other consideration provided for in this agreement, Releasor, personally and for his estate and his heirs, waives, releases and gives up any and all claims, demands, obligations, damages, liabilities, causes of action and rights, in law or in equity, known and unknown, that he may have against the Fire District, VTFD and/or Township, its past, present and future agents, servants, employees, and elected officials, based upon any act, event or omission occurring before the execution of this Agreement, including, but not limited to, any events related to, arising from, or in connection with Releasor's employment and/or association with the Fire District, VTFD and/or Township. Releasor specifically waives, releases and gives up any and all claims arising from or relating to his employment and/or association with the Fire District, VTFD and/or Township based upon any act, event or omission occurring before the date of execution of this Agreement, including but not limited to, any claim that was asserted or could have been asserted under any federal and/or state statutes, regulations and/or common law. Releasor specifically waives, releases and gives up any and all claims arising from or relating to his employment and/or relationship and/or association with the Fire District, VTFD and/or Township, based upon any act, event or omission occurring before the effective date of this Agreement, including but not limited to, any claim that was asserted or could have been asserted under any Federal and/or State statutes, regulations and/or common law, expressly including, but not limited to, any potential claim relating to the following (along with any amendments thereto):

In the event that he or they are asked about this litigation, Employee hereby agrees, and they agree, to state only that "the matter has been settled." Employee recognizes and agrees that the representations, promises and covenants set forth in this paragraph constitute a material and significant part of this Agreement and that the Employer would not have entered into this Agreement absent such agreement and, therefore, any violation of this paragraph by Employee will constitute a material violation and breach of this Agreement.

Should Employee be requested to provide a copy of this Agreement to any person or entity by subpoena or court order, he shall notify Employer in writing at least fourteen (14) days prior to any return date of any subpoena or upon receipt of any court order. If served with any notice or court order within the fourteen (14) day period prior to the return date, Employee shall immediately make such notification as soon as reasonably practicable.

It is expressly recognized and agreed, however, that this provision may be limited by and is subject to Employer's obligation to comply with various state and federal statutes regarding the disclosure of records and information including, but not limited to, the Open Public Records Act. In addition, this provision shall not be interpreted as prohibiting the Employer from responding to any requests for information and/or documents by any State and/or Federal agency and/or otherwise responding to a duly issued subpoena.

8. Not Admissible or Precedential: This Settlement Agreement and General Release is not intended to be used and shall not be used as evidence or for any other purpose in any other action or proceeding, other than evidence of the parties' compromise as set forth herein, or to enforce the terms of this Agreement.

9. Entire Agreement and Headings: This Agreement embodies the entire agreement and understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior agreements and understandings related to the subject matters hereof. The headings in this Agreement are for purposes of reference only and shall not limit or otherwise affect the meaning of this Agreement or its provisions.

10. Modifications and Amendments: This Agreement shall not be modified or amended except by writing duly executed and signed by the parties hereto.

11. Severability: The parties agree that if any court declares any portion of this agreement unenforceable, the remaining portion shall be fully enforceable.

12. Applicable Law: This Agreement shall be construed and interpreted in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey. The parties agree that any action to enforce or interpret this Agreement shall only be brought in a court of competent jurisdiction in the State of New Jersey, which the parties hereby acknowledge and agree to be the Superior Court of New Jersey in Gloucester County.

13. BY SIGNING THIS SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE, EMPLOYEE ACKNOWLEDGES THAT:

A. HE HAS READ IT;

B. HE UNDERSTANDS IT AND KNOWS HE IS GIVING UP IMPORTANT RIGHTS;

C. HE AGREES WITH EVERYTHING IN IT;

D. HE HAS CONSULTED WITH HIS LEGAL REPRESENTATIVES PRIOR TO EXECUTING THIS SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE; AND

INITIAL DECISION

SETTLEMENT

OAL DKT. NO. CSR 04489-15

IN THE MATTER OF VINCENT MAIAROTO, VOORHEES TOWNSHIP (FIRE DEPARTMENT).

John F. Pilles, Jr., Esq., for appellant Vincent Maiaroto

Eric J. Riso, Esq., for respondent Voorhees Fire District (Platt & Riso, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 5, 2017 Decided: June 26, 2017

BEFORE LAURA SANDERS, Acting Director and Chief ALJ:

On March 30 2015, Firefighter Vincent Maiaroto (appellant) was served with a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA) terminating him on March 10, 2015 on charges of failure to report to duty. After receipt of the FNDA, Maiaroto, by letter received at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 31, 2015, requested a hearing. The case was filed on that date. (N.J.S.A. 40A:14-202(d)).

Additionally, the appellant has agreed to extend the previous agreement to toll the time under N.J.S.A. 40A:14-201(b)(2), which states that, "If the officer or firefighter or his representative requests and is granted a postponement of a hearing or any other delay before the 181st calendar day, the calendar days that accrue during that postponement or delay shall not be used in calculating the date upon which the officer or firefighter is entitled, pursuant to subsection a. of this section, to receive his base salary pending a final determination on his appeal."

On April 8, 2015, the matter was assigned to Robert Bingham, ALJ. After numerous telephone conferences were held, hearing dates were scheduled for multiple dates between July 23, 2015 and November 4, 2016; however, they were adjourned due to discovery, pending motions, witness unavailability, and, finally, Judge Bingham's nomination to Superior Court. The matter was then reassigned to the undersigned.

Prior to the scheduling of new hearing dates, the matter was placed on the inactive list of cases on November 23, 2016, pending the dissolution of the Fire District, as well as to explore settlement. Just prior to the matter coming off the inactive list the parties advised that the dissolution of the Fire District had been dissolved and consolidated into a municipal fire department. A telephone conference call scheduled for March 29, 2017 was canceled as the parties represented that the matter had settled. A Settlement Agreement and General Release indicating the terms of settlement was signed by the parties and forwarded to the undersigned on May 8, 2017. I sought clarification regarding language used therein. On June 5, 2017 a letter of clarification was received amending paragraphs" "1(a) "has been completed and Mr. Maiaroto has been cleared for duty. The parties acknowledge that the language regarding waiver of Mr. Maiaroto's right to appeal in the event he is charged with unexcused tardiness during the six (6) month probationary period contained in Paragraph (1)(b)(2) is not enforceable. Finally, the parties agree that Paragraph 1(g) should be amended to provide as follows: "Employer agrees that upon successful completion of the six (6) month probationary period provided herein, all references to the charges giving rise to the Disciplinary Appeal shall be removed Employee's personnel file."

Both the Settlement Agreement and General Release and the letter of clarification are attached hereto and made a part hereof.

I have reviewed the record and terms of the settlement and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures of the parties or their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with law.

I CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the safeguard requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and, accordingly, I approve the settlement and ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

RE: Vincent Maiaroto and Voorhees Fire District No. 3 Appeal of Disciplinary Discharge
O.A.L. Docket No. CSR 04489-2015 S
Our File No. 16-0105

Dear Judge Sanders:

Further to the conference call held on May 16, 2017 regarding the above-referenced matter, please accept this letter on behalf of myself and Mr. Pilles regarding the Settlement Agreement and General Release. The fitness for duty exam requirement set forth in Paragraph 1(a) has been completed and Mr. Maiaroto has been cleared for duty. The parties acknowledge that the language regarding waiver of Mr. Maiaroto's right to appeal in the event he is charged with unexcused tardiness during the six (6) month probationary period contained in Paragraph (1)(b)(2) is not enforceable. Finally, the parties agree that Paragraph 1(g) should be amended to provide as follows: "Employer agrees that upon successful completion of the six (6) month probationary period provided for herein, all references to the charges giving rise to the Disciplinary Appeal shall be removed Employee's personnel file."

Provided the above is acceptable, it is respectfully requested that Your Honor issue a decision enforcing/approving the settlement and, in turn, that the matter be transferred back to the Civil Service Commission so that a Final Decision can be rendered with respect to same.

You Honor's time and attention to this matter is greatly appreciated. Should Your Honor have any additional questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Respectfully submitted,

Attorney for Vincent Maiaroto

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE

THIS SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE (hereinafter "this Agreement") is entered into on this 31ST day of MARCH, 2017, by and between Vincent Maiaroto (hereinafter referred to as "Releasor" or "Employee") and the Voorhees Township Fire District No. 3 ("Fire District") n/k/a the Voorhees Township Fire Department ("VTFD"), its past, present and future agents, servants, employees, representatives and elected officials and the Township of Voorhees (hereinafter referred to as "Township," "Releasees" or "Employer")

WHEREAS, Employee was terminated from his employment with the Fire District effective March 10, 2015; and

WHEREAS, Employee challenged his termination by filing an appeal with the Civil Service Commission, which, in turn, transferred the matter to Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for an administrative de novo review, which is pending under OAL Docket No. CRS 0449-2015 S ("Disciplinary Appeal"), in accord with those procedural and substantive due process rights provided by Title 40A of the New Jersey Statutes; and

WHEREAS, the Fire District has since been dissolved such that the Employee is now a member of the VTFD and, as such, an employee of the Township; and

WHEREAS, the Employee and the VTFD have engaged in negotiations and have settled all controversies between them, including Employee's claims that he was wrongfully discharged, as well as any and all related claims which could have been asserted as of the date of this Agreement, whether such claims are presently known or unknown; and

WHEREAS, the parties acknowledge that the merits of the controversy are in dispute and have not been finally adjudicated, and that no party admits any liability to any other, but all have reasons to desire amicable resolution of the matter, including to avoid the costs of litigation;

NOW, for and in consideration of the agreements, covenants and conditions herein contained, the adequacy and sufficiency of which are hereby expressly acknowledged by the parties hereto, the parties agree as follows:

1. Terms of Settlement and Consideration:

   (a) Employee shall be reinstated as an employee effective April 1, 2017, subject to passing a physical and psychological fitness for duty exam, at the same pay rate and with the same seniority status as though he had never been separated from employment.

   (b) Employee and the VTFD agree that (1) the first six months of Employee's reinstatement shall be probationary such that Employee shall be subject to discharge in the event he is charged with unexcused tardiness during said probationary period; (2) Employee will not appeal and/or challenge such discharge in any fashion; and (3) upon expiration of said six (6) month probationary period, Employee's disciplinary record shall be expunged in its entirety.

(c) Employee waives any request for remittance by the Township to the New Jersey Division of Pensions for either/both employer and/or employee contributions for lost pension credit. Any attempt to "buy back" service time lost as a result of his termination will be at Employee's sole discretion and, in that event, funded solely and exclusively by Employee.

(d) The Township agrees to pay Employee the settlement amount of Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars ($25,000.00), representing reimbursement of legal fees incurred, not lost wages.

(e) Payment as provided for above is contingent upon Employee's execution of this Agreement as well as the dismissal with prejudice of his Disciplinary Appeal.

(f) Employee agrees that, but for this General Release and Settlement Agreement, he would not be entitled to the aforesaid payments and other terms of settlement described herein.

(g) VTFD, as the successor in interest of the Fire District, hereby withdraws with prejudice those disciplinary charges from which Employee has pursued the Disciplinary Appeal.

2. Dismissal of Action: Employee understands and agrees that a dismissal with prejudice of his pending Disciplinary Appeal will be filed with the Office of Administrative Law and/or Civil Service Commission, it being understood and agreed that the terms of said dismissal are expressly incorporated by reference within this Agreement as if fully set forth herein.

3. Release in Consideration for the Payment and Other Consideration Provided for in this Agreement: In consideration of the payment and other consideration provided for in this agreement, Releasor, personally and for his estate and his heirs, waives, releases and gives up any and all claims, demands, obligations, damages, liabilities, causes of action and rights, in law or in equity, known and unknown, that he may have against the Fire District, VTFD and/or Township, its past, present and future agents, servants, employees, and elected officials, based upon any act, event or omission occurring before the execution of this Agreement, including, but not limited to, any events related to, arising from, or in connection with Releasor's employment and/or association with the Fire District, VTFD and/or Township. Releasor specifically waives, releases and gives up any and all claims arising from or relating to his employment and/or association with the Fire District, VTFD and/or Township based upon any act, event or omission occurring before the date of execution of this Agreement, including but not limited to, any claim that was asserted or could have been asserted under any federal and/or state statutes, regulations and/or common law. Releasor specifically waives, releases and gives up any and all claims arising from or relating to his employment and/or relationship and/or association with the Fire District, VTFD and/or Township, based upon any act, event or omission occurring before the effective date of this Agreement, including but not limited to, any claim that was asserted or could have been asserted under any Federal and/or State statutes, regulations and/or common law, expressly including, but not limited to, any potential claim relating to the following (along with any amendments thereto):

(a) The National Labor Relations Act;

(b) Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964;

(c) Sections 1981 through 1988 of Title 42 of the United States Code;

(d) The Employment Retirement Income Security Act of 1974;

(e) The Immigration Reform Control Act;

(f) The Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990;

(g) The Age Discrimination & Employment Act of 1967;

(h) The Fair Labor Standards Act;

(i) The Occupational Safety & Health Act;

(j) The Family & Medical Leave Act of 1993;

(k) The Equal Pay Act;

(l) The New Jersey Law Against Discrimination;

(m) The New Jersey Minimum Wage Law:

(n) The Equal Pay Law for New Jersey;

(o) The New Jersey Worker Health & Safety Act;

(p) The New Jersey Family Leave Act;

(q) The New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act;

(r) Any anti-retaliation provision of any statute or law;

(s) Any other federal, state or local, civil or human rights law or any other local, state or federal law, regulation or ordinance, any provision of any federal state constitution, any public policy, contract, tort or common law, as well as for all losses, injuries or damages (including back pay, front pay, compensatory and/or punitive damages, attorney's fees and litigation costs).

4. No Claims Permitted/Covenant Not to Sue: Releasor waives his right to file any charge or complaint on his own behalf and/or participate as a complainant, a plaintiff, or charging party in any charge or complaint which may be made by any other person or organization on their behalf, with respect to anything which has happened up to the execution of this Agreement before any federal, state or local court or administrative agency, against the Defendant, except if such waiver is prohibited by law. Should any charge or complaint be filed, Releasor agrees that he will not accept any relief or recovery therefrom. Releasor confirms that no such charge, complaint or action exists in any forum or form other than the Disciplinary Appeal pending under OAL Docket No. CRS 0449-2015 S, and hereby covenants not to file any charge, complaint or action in any forum or form against the Fire District, VTFD and/or Township based upon anything which is encompassed by the terms of this Agreement. Except as prohibited by law, in the event that any such charge, complaint or action is filed by Releasor, it shall be dismissed with prejudice upon presentation of this Agreement.

5. Attorney's Fees and Costs: Employee agrees that he will bear his own costs and attorney's fees which have been incurred in connection with the within matter and in connection with the negotiation and preparation of this Agreement and that no amounts other than the payment to be made pursuant to Paragraph 1(d) of this Agreement shall be sought by or owed to Employee or his attorneys by the Fire District, VTFD and/or Township in connection with this matter.

6. No Admission of Liability: By entering into this settlement agreement, Employer does not acknowledge any wrongdoing or liability for the allegations set forth in the Disciplinary Appeal and/or with respect to any disciplinary action taken against Employee. To the contrary, Employer believes and maintains that it acted in accordance with state and federal law and that all actions taken in connection with Employee's employment and discharge were justified, lawful and in accordance with accepted business practices.

7. Confidentiality: Employee agrees that the terms, amount and fact of this Agreement, and the nature of all claims that were or could have been raised, as well as any information disclosed by the parties in the negotiations of this matter are confidential. This paragraph shall not prevent Employee from disclosing the fact or amount of the settlement to his attorney, accountant or members of her immediate family, each of whom shall first be advised of the confidentiality provision of this Agreement. In the event that he or they are asked about this litigation, Employee hereby agrees, and they agree, to state only that "the matter has been settled." Employee recognizes and agrees that the representations, promises and covenants set forth in this paragraph constitute a material and significant part of this Agreement and that the Employer would not have entered into this Agreement absent such agreement and, therefore, any violation of this paragraph by Employee will constitute a material violation and breach of this Agreement.

Should Employee be requested to provide a copy of this Agreement to any person or entity by subpoena or court order, he shall notify Employer in writing at least fourteen (14) days prior to any return date of any subpoena or upon receipt of any court order. If served with any notice or court order within the fourteen (14) day period prior to the return date, Employee shall immediately make such notification as soon as reasonably practicable.

It is expressly recognized and agreed, however, that the this provision may be limited by and is subject to Employer's obligation to comply with various state and federal statutes regarding the disclosure of records and information including, but not limited to, the Open Public Records Act. In addition, this provision shall not be interpreted as prohibiting the Employer from responding to any requests for information and/or documents by any State and/or Federal agency and/or otherwise responding to a duly issued subpoena.

8. Not Admissible or Precedential: This Settlement Agreement and General Release is not intended to be used and shall not be used as evidence or for any other purpose in any other action or proceeding, other than evidence of the parties' compromise as set forth herein, or to enforce the terms of this Agreement.

9. Entire Agreement and Headings: This Agreement embodies the entire agreement and understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior agreements and understandings related to the subject matters hereof. The headings in this Agreement are for purposes of reference only and shall not limit or otherwise affect the meaning of this Agreement or its provisions.

10. Modifications and Amendments: This Agreement shall not be modified or amended except by writing duly executed and signed by the parties hereto.

Dear Deputy Director Angiulo:

I respond to your inquiry electronically transmitted to my office yesterday morning involving settlement in the above referred matter.

Your suggestion that Mr. Maiaroto's time, during which he was unemployed pending appeal of disciplinary charges issued by Voorhees Township Fire District No. 3 ("District"), be designated as "a leave of absence without pay" is acceptable to the petitioner so long as such designation does not preclude him ability to "buy back," at some future time, pension service credit for military deployment taken during his employment tenure with the District. It is my understanding that the New Jersey Division of Pensions and Benefits will provide such opportunity to any member whose civilian employment was interrupted by military deployment.

Subject: Vincent Maiaroto v. Vorhees Township Fire Department - SETTLEMENT

Importance: High

Mr. Pilles and Mr. Riso:

I am the Deputy Director in charge of this agency's hearing unit. We have received the settlement regarding Vincent Maiaroto from the Office of Administrative Law. However, prior to forwarding it to the Civil Service Commission for acknowledgment, clarification is required.

Specifically, the settlement indicates that Mr. Maiaroto will be reinstated on April 1, 2017. However, while the settlement indicates that he will not receive back pay for the time from his removal to his reinstatement, we need to know how that time should be reflected in his official personnel record. I assume, absent his "buying back" that time, it should be recorded as a leave of absence without pay?

Please let me know the intention of the parties as soon as possible. An email reply is sufficient so long as agreed upon by the parties.

Sincerely,

FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: [redacted] 28 2017 BW

The appeals of Ellen Russell, Senior Cottage Training Technician, Vineland Developmental Center, Department of Human Services, of two removals effective May 24, 2016, on charges, were heard by Administrative Law Judge Jefferey R. Wilson, who rendered his initial decision on June 12, 2017. No exceptions were filed.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting of July 26, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in removing the appellant was justified. The Commission therefore affirms that action and dismisses the appeals of Ellen Russell.

This is the final administrative determination in this matter. Any further review should be pursued in a judicial forum.

IN THE MATTER OF ELLEN RUSSELL,
DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES,
VINELAND DEVELOPMENTAL CENTER.

William A. Nash, Esq., for appellant, Ellen Russell (Nash Law Firm, LLC, attorneys)

Christopher Weber, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent, Department of Human Services, Vineland Developmental Center (Christopher Porrino, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: April 10, 2017 Decided: June 12, 2017

BEFORE JEFFREY R. WILSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Appellant, Ellen Russell, appeals her removal effective May 24, 2016, as a Senior Cottage Training Technician (SCTT), by respondent, Department of Human Services (DHS), Vineland Developmental Center (VDC), for chronic and excessive absenteeism. The respondent alleges that the appellant accumulated approximately fifty-one full days and twenty-three partial days of unauthorized time away from work between January 1, 2015, and February 12, 2016.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from two separate removal actions initiated by the respondent. The Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (PNDA) on the first was filed on August 21, 2015; the second on February 16, 2016. The Final Notices of Disciplinary Action (FNDA) on the first and second removal action were filed on May 23, 2016. Both actions involve allegations of infractions for chronic and excessive absenteeism, abuse of sick time and unauthorized absences. The actions were initiated in sequence, but were simultaneously finalized on May 23, 2016.

Following a consolidated departmental hearing, the appellant filed a timely appeal of her removal and requested a hearing. The matters were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where they were filed on May 11, 2016, under Docket Nos. CSV 08808-16 and CSV 08809-16, respectively.

On December 19, 2016, the respondent filed a motion for summary decision. (R-1.) The appellant filed her response on March 27, 2017 (A-1.) The respondent filed its rebuttal brief on April 10, 2017, (R-2) and the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

The FACTS of this case are not in dispute:

The appellant was employed as a SCTT at the VDC since August 16, 1997. (R-1 at Exhibit 1.) The VDC is governed by DHS. Consistent with DHS policy, VDC employees are subject to disciplinary action for excessive absenteeism and related infractions.

On August 27, 2015, the appellant was issued a PNDA, dated August 21, 2015, charging her with four violations of Administrative Order 4:08: Section A-2.11 "Absent from work as scheduled without permission but with giving proper notice of intended absence."; Section A-1.6 "Chronic or excessive absenteeism from work without pay."; Section A-9.7 "Abuse of sick time."; Section E-1.1 "Violation of a rule, regulation, policy, procedure, order or administrative decision; as well as N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(4) "Chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness." (R-1 at Exhibit 2.)

The PNDA alleged that the appellant accumulated thirty-six full and fourteen partial days of unauthorized absences from January 1, 2015, through August 21, 2015[1]. The PNDA also alleges that the appellant "exhausted the total sick time allotted to [her] for 2015, approximately 15 days, by March 6, 2015." Finally, the PNDA noted that appellant's absences violated the DHS policy on attendance and absences (R-1 at Exhibit 11[2]), and had "a negative impact on the operations of the unit" and "the quality of service" provided to VDC clients. The PNDA sought appellant's removal from employment.

Appellant was also served with a notice dated August 27, 2015, requiring her to provide medical documentation for any absence due to illness or injury until December 31, 2015. (R-1 at Exhibit 4.) The appellant appeared before a VDC hearing officer on May 12, 2016, who recommended that removal be upheld based on appellant's excessive absenteeism and significant history of infractions for absenteeism. (R-1 at Exhibit 5.) On May 23, 2016, respondent issued a FNDA, removing the appellant from service effective May 24, 2016[3]. (R-1 at Exhibit 6.)

[1] See Time Review Logs (R-1 at Exhibit 3.)
[2] The appellant acknowledged receipt of the VDC Personnel Circular #95-89 (Time Away from Work for Illness or Injury for Employees) on February 3, 2016. (R-2 at Exhibit 2.)
[3] The appeal of this removal was filed with the OAL on June 14, 2016, under OAL DKT. NO. CSV 08808-16.

On February 28, 2016, the appellant was issued a PNDA dated February 16, 2016, charging her with four violations of Administrative Order 4:08: Section A-2-12 "Absent from work as scheduled without permission but with giving proper notice of intended absence; Section A-4.7 "Chronic or excessive absenteeism from work without pay"; Section A-9.8 "Abuse of sick time; and Section E-1.2 "Violation of a rule, regulation, policy, procedure, order or administrative decision; as well as N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(4) "Chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness"; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) "Conduct unbecoming a public employee"; and N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) "Other sufficient cause." (R-1 at Exhibit 7.)

The PNDA alleged that the appellant accumulated fifteen full and nine partial days of unauthorized absences from August 22, 2015, through February 16, 2016[4]. Additionally, the PNDA notes that the appellant failed to provide medical documentation as required in connection with four of her absences in January 2016, and February 2016. The PNDA also re-alleges that the appellant "exhausted the total sick time allotted to [her] for 2015, approximately 15 days, by March 6, 2015." Finally, the PNDA noted that the appellant's absences violated the DHS policy on attendance and absences, (R-1 at Exhibit 11) and had "a negative impact on the operations of the unit" and "the quality of services" provided to VDC clients. The PNDA sought appellant's removal from employment.

The appellant appeared before a VDC hearing officer on May 12, 2016, who recommended that removal be upheld based on appellant's excessive absenteeism and significant history of infractions for absenteeism. (R-1 at Exhibit 9.) On May 23, 2016, respondent issued two FNDA's, removing the appellant from service effective May 24, 2016[5]. (R-1 at Exhibit 10.)

On June 1, 2016, appellant's Report of Separation or Transfer Work Sheet was forwarded to VDC payroll. (R-2 at Exhibit 5.) The Work Sheet indicated that as of May 24, 2016, the appellant had a balance of negative thirty-two sick leave days; no vacation days; negative four administrative leave days; no compensatory time; and no days in her paid leave bank.

Since 2000, the appellant has received twenty-three disciplinary actions for excessive absenteeism or similar offenses, excluding the two at hand. Progressive discipline included oral counseling, written warnings and a total of one hundred nineteen days of suspension. The current removal actions constitute her sixth and seventh infractions for excessive absenteeism, her seventh and eight infractions for abuse of sick time, and her eleventh and twelfth infractions for unexcused absences. (R-1 at Exhibit 12.)

In 2003, the appellant received a five-day suspension for three unexcused absences. In 2005, she was suspended once for five days for excessive absences (sixteen and two partial days), and a second time that year, for one day for abuse of sick leave. In 2008, the appellant received a three-day suspension for excessive and unauthorized absences (eighteen total days). She was suspended five days in 2009 for unauthorized absences (thirteen per the PNDA and six per the settlement agreement). In 2010, she was suspended for twenty days following two actions for removal based upon a myriad of excessive and unauthorized absences between October 2009 and May 2010.

Pursuant to an October 16, 2014, settlement agreement, the appellant received a forty-five day suspension for unauthorized absences and abuse of sick leave occurring in 2013. That settlement agreement required the appellant to attend counseling with the employee advisory service, established pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:6-4.10. (R-2 at Exhibit 3.) The appellant attended her initial meeting, but never returned for scheduled follow-up visits. (R-2 at Exhibit 4.)

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) provides that a motion for summary decision may be granted if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. See also Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co., 142 N.J. 520 (1995). The opposing party must submit responding affidavits showing that there is indeed a genuine issue of material fact, which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding, and that the moving party is not entitled to summary decision as a matter of law. Failure to do so, entitled the moving party to summary judgment. Id. at 520.

Moreover, even if the non-moving party comes forward with some evidence, the courts must grant summary judgment if the evidence is "so one-sided that [moving party] must prevail as a matter of law." Id. at 536. If the non-moving party's evidence is merely colorable, or is not significantly probative, summary judgment should not be denied. See Bowles v. City of Camden, 993 F. Supp. 255, 261 (D.N.J. 1998). However, "the court must grant all the favorable inferences to the non-movant." Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 536.

In her responsive papers, the appellant does not dispute any of the facts as presented by the respondent. Instead, she claims that she suffers from depression and has been under the care of Robert S. Patitucci, MD[6] for depression. She further claims that she "provided doctor notes to her employer and certainly would have provided any medical evidence required." (A-1 at Affidavit of Appellant.) In support of these claims, she provides a document titled "Work", dated January 12, 2017. (A-1 at Exhibit B.) This document appears to be from Dr. Patitucci, listing only the thirty-six full days of unauthorized absences included in the first FNDA issued on May 23, 2016. It does not address the fourteen partial days of unauthorized absences. Furthermore, the document does not address any of the full or partial unauthorized days of absence included in the second FNDA issued on May 23, 2016. Most interestingly, this document was not even created until seven months after the within petitions were filed with the OAL.

[6] Robert S. Patitucci, MD is a primary care provider offering services that include: EKG, Immunizations, Medical Marijuana Program, On-site blood draws, School, Sport and Camp Physicals, Spirometry Testing, Suboxome Program and Well Care for all ages. (A-2 at Exhibit 7.)

In support of her opposition to respondent' motion seeking summary decision, the appellant asserts the following five arguments:

First, the appellant argues that the Civil Service Act (The Act) is to be liberally construed toward attainment of broad tenure protection. This assertion does not serve to dispute any facts. It merely restates the law applicable to the discipline of employees protected by the provisions of The Act. The Act also recognizes that the public policy of this state is to provide appropriate appointment, supervisory and other personnel authority to public officials in order that they may execute properly their constitutional and statutory responsibilities. N.J.S.A.11A:1-2(b). To carry out this policy, The Act also includes provisions authorizing the discipline of public employees.

A public employee who is protected by the provisions of The Act may be subject to major discipline for a wide variety of offenses connected to his or her employment. The general causes for such discipline are set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a). Here, the appellant is charged with chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(4).

Second, the appellant argues that in appeals of major discipline, the appointing authority has the burden of proof to show that its actions are justified. Again, this assertion does not serve to dispute any facts. It merely restates the law applicable to the discipline of employees protected by the provisions of The Act.

In an appeal from major discipline, the appointing authority bears the burden of proving the charges upon which it relies by a preponderance of the competent, relevant and credible evidence. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-21; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); Polk, supra, 90 N.J. 550. The evidence must be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to a given conclusion. Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958). Therefore, the judge must "decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to the reasonable probability of truth." Jackson v. Del., Lackawanna and W. R.R., 111 N.J.L. 487, 490 (E. & A. 1933). This burden of proof falls on the agency in enforcement proceedings to prove violations of administrative regulations. Cumberland Farms v. Moffett, 218 N.J. Super. 331, 341 (App. Div. 1987).

Third, the appellant mistakenly argues that there is no definition as to what constitutes "excessive absenteeism" and therefore each case should be reviewed on its own unique facts. However, "excessive absenteeism" is clearly defined in the DHS Personnel Circular #95-89. (R-1 at Exhibit 11.) The appellant acknowledged receipt of the circular on February 3, 2016. (R-2 at Exhibit 2.) The policy defines "excessive absenteeism" as:

> Paid or unpaid days away from the job for illness or injury which exceed six in any six pay periods which does not otherwise require a doctor's certificate...Excessive absenteeism shall also be defined as ten (10) paid or unpaid days for sick purposes in twelve (12) pay periods not otherwise requiring a doctor's certificate.

An identical recitation of the definition of excessive absenteeism is included in the Employee Notices of Medical Evidence Required issued to the appellant on August 27, 2015, (R-1 at Exhibit 4) February 11, 2016, and April 29, 2016. (R-2 at Exhibit 6.)

Fourth, the appellant argues that relevant factors must be considered, including number of absences, the time span between the absences and the negative impact on the workplace. This assertion does not serve to dispute any facts. It merely restates the law applicable to the discipline of employees protected by the provisions of The Act.

Finally, the appellant mistakenly argues that there is a genuine issue of material fact as to the amount of time available to the appellant beyond the fifteen days of sick time she is permitted. It is undisputed that on June 1, 2016, appellant's Report of Separation or Transfer Work Sheet was forwarded to VDC payroll. (R-2 at Exhibit 5.) The Work Sheet indicated that as of May 24, 2016, the appellant had a balance of negative thirty-two sick leave days; no vacation days; negative four administrative leave days; no compensatory time; and no days in her paid leave bank.

I CONCLUDE that under the Brill standards this matter is appropriate for summary disposition. The appellant has failed to raise some "colorable inferences" or interested fact regarding her termination and the underlying facts supporting same. The allegations are supported by tangible evidence and the facts presented by the appellant in her opposition papers are insufficient to raise disputed facts in the record. Lo Russo v. State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Jersey City, Essex County, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 505, 506 (citing Borough of Franklin Lakes v. Mutzberg, 226 N.J. Super. 46, 57 (App. Div. 1988).

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that since the appellant failed to submit competent evidential materials to raise a dispute as to a material fact, this matter is ripe to be determined by a motion for summary decision.

DISCIPLINARY ACTION

In appeals concerning major disciplinary actions brought against classified employees, the burden of proof is on the appointing authority. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a). The standard of proof in administrative proceedings is by a preponderance of the competent, relevant and credible evidence. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-21; N.J.A.C. 4A2-1.4(a); In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962).

The Act and the regulations promulgated pursuant thereto govern the rights and duties of a civil service employee. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to 11A:12-6; N.J.A.C. 4A:1-1.1 et seq. New Jersey's Civil Service Act is construed liberally in order to protect employees from arbitrary discipline. Mastrobattista v. Essex Cty. Park Comm'n, 46 N.J. 138, 147 (1965); Prosecutors, Detectives and Investigators Ass'n v. Hudson County Bd. of Freeholders, 130 N.J. Super. 30, 41 (App. Div. 1974); Scancarella v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 24 N.J. Super. 65, 70 (App. Div. 1952).

A civil service employee who commits a wrongful act related to his or her duties, or gives other just cause, may be subject to major discipline. N.J.S.A. 11:2-6; N.J.S.A. 11A:2-20; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3. Grounds for discipline include, among other things, insubordination, chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness, conduct unbecoming a public employee, and neglect of duty. See N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2), (4), (6), and (7).

Here, the appellant was charged with chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness because she was absent without authorization for at least thirty-six full days and fourteen partial days from January 1, 2015, to August 21, 2015, and she was absent without authorization for at least fifteen full days and nine partial days from August 22, 2015, to February 16, 2016. This does not include her sixty-six days of leave of absence without pay from October 20, 2015, to January 19, 2016. (R-2 at Exhibit 1.)

Since 2000, the appellant has received twenty-three disciplinary actions for excessive absenteeism or similar offenses, excluding the two at hand. Progressive discipline included oral counseling, written warnings and a total of one hundred nineteen days of suspension. The current removal actions constitute her sixth and seventh infractions for excessive absenteeism, her seventh and eight infractions for abuse of sick time, and her eleventh and twelfth infractions for unexcused absences. (R-1 at Exhibit 12.)

An employee may be subject to discipline for chronic or excessive absenteeism. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(4). While there is no precise number that constitutes "chronic," it is generally understood that chronic conduct is conduct that continues over a long time or recurs frequently. Good v. N. State Prison, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 529, 531. Courts have consistently held that excessive absenteeism need not be accommodated, and that attendance is an essential function of most jobs. See e.g., Muller v. Exxon Research and Eng'g Co., 345 N.J. Super. 595, 605-06 (App. Div. 2001) (under the Law Against Discrimination (LAD), excess absenteeism need not be accommodated even if it is caused by a disability otherwise protected by the Act); Svarnas v. AT&T Commc'n, 326 N.J. Super. 59, 79 (App. Div. 1999) ([a]n employee who does not come to work cannot perform any of her job functions, essential or otherwise); see also Dudley v. Calif. Dep't of Transp., 2000 W.L. 328119 (9th Cir. 2000) (a diabetic with frequent absences who failed to provide adequate medical documentation and could not provide a definite return to work date was not a qualified individual).

Furthermore, in Hatcher v. Northern State Prison, CSV 3684-01, Initial Decision (November 18, 2002), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, the court held that:

> [T]here is no way to reasonably accommodate the unpredictable aspect of an employee's sporadic and unscheduled absences. Svarnas v. AT&T Communications, 326 N.J. Super. 59, 77 (App. Div. 1999). As noted by the New Jersey Supreme Court, "just cause for dismissal can be found in habitual tardiness or similar chronic conduct." West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 522 (1962). While a single instance may not be sufficient, "numerous occurrences over a reasonably short space of time, even though sporadic, may evidence an attitude of indifference amounting to neglect of duty." Ibid. Especially in times of budgetary constraint, it is important that management utilize existing staff efficiently and effectively. "We do not expect heroics," but "being there," i.e., appearing for work on a regular and timely basis is not asking too much. State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Newark v. Gaines, 309 N.J. Super. 327, 333 (App. Div. 1998).

I CONCLUDE that the appellant had been excessively absent from work sufficient to warrant disciplinary charges. The respondent had a right to expect that she would be present at work, willing and able to work. Certainly, respondent is not obligated to continue to employ a person who either cannot or will not perform her job duties on a regular basis. Frequent absences cause disruption in the public work place and create a hardship for the remaining employees, who must absorb the job duties of a person who cannot or will not perform them. I, therefore, CONCLUDE that the respondent has met its burden of proof regarding excessive absenteeism in this case.

The Civil Service Commission's recent decision in In re Morales, 2015 WL 8636730, discussed the long-standing legal authorities that support an employer's right to discipline an employee with the penalty of removal. See also N.J.S.A. 11A:2-6(a)(1).

Specifically, chronic absenteeism has been found to be sufficient just cause for the removal of an employee in multiple circumstances. In re Wiley, CSV 48-13, Initial Decision (Nov. 3, 2014), aff'd, Civil Serv. Comm'n (Dec. 17, 2014), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/; In re Ciuppa, CSV 04702-11, Initial Decision (Apr. 24, 2014), aff'd, Civil Serv. Comm'n (Jun. 4, 2014), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/; Brown v. Trenton State Prison, 13 N.J.A.R. 466 (Merit System Board Sept. 7, 1988); In re Pribramsky, CSV 11877-14, Initial Decision (Jul. 23, 2015), aff'd, Civil Serv. Comm'n (Sept. 2, 2015), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/.

PENALTY

Principles of progressive discipline should be considered in the removal actions of civil service employees. Bock, supra, 38 N.J. 500. The determination of whether a specific act supports removal requires an evaluation of the conduct in terms of its relationship to the nature of the position itself and an evaluation of the actual or potential impairment of the public interest that may be expected to result from the conduct in question. Golaine v. Cardinale, 142 N.J. Super. 385, 397 (Law Div. 1976). The frequency, number and continuity of the employer's warnings indicate the progression of the discipline. Ibid. On appeals from disciplinary action, the Merit Board may redetermine guilt or modify a penalty originally imposed. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-19; Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). The Board is empowered to substitute its own judgment on the appropriate penalty, even if the local appointing authority has not clearly abused its discretion. Id. at 579. The Board must consider an employee's past record, including both mitigating factors and prior discipline when determining the appropriate penalty to be imposed. Bock, supra, 38 N.J. at 523. The frequency, number and continuity of the employer's warnings, previous discipline and other measures indicate the progression of the discipline. It is clear from the record that the appellant had a history of poor attendance. This history must be considered under the framework of progressive discipline.

The sustained charges against appellant are serious in nature and major disciplinary action is warranted. Based upon the foregoing disciplinary actions and upon the totality of the record, I CONCLUDE that removal is the appropriate penalty.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the respondent's motion for Summary Decision is GRANTED. The removal of the appellant from her employment as a SCTT with the VDC is hereby AFFIRMED. Petitioner's appeal is DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Superintendent of the Division of State Police does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION – DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, P.O. IN THE MATTER OF LUIS VALLE, CITY OF PASSAIC, DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.

Curtis T. Jameson, Esq. for Appellant Luis Valle

Eric M. Bernstein, Esq. for Respondent City of Passaic, Department of Public Works (Eric M. Bernstein & Associates, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 9, 2017 Decided: June 20, 2017

BEFORE CAROL I. COHEN, ALJ t/a:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Appellant is seeking to enforce a settlement that was put on the record on April 5, 2017; compel the Appellant to sign the Settlement Agreement and General Release; and incorporate the Settlement Agreement and General Release in the Initial Decision.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On December 2, 2016, the Appellant received a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action removing him from his position as Laborer/Maintenance Worker on the grounds that he had executed a Last Chance Agreement in March 2014 and he had not lived up to the terms of the Agreement. Based on the Last Chance, he was not entitled to a hearing. The grounds for removal included incompetency, inefficiency, failure to perform duties, insubordination, Inability to perform duties, chronic or excessive absenteeism, conduct unbecoming a public employee, neglect of duty and other sufficient caused. The Appellant filed an appeal on December 20, 2016. The matter was forwarded to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 10, 2017. A prehearing conference was held on January 26, 2017 and the matter was set down for a hearing on April 5, 2017. After extensive discussions between the parties and a discussion with the ALJ, the Appellant agreed to settle the matter and a settlement was put on the record[1]. On April 27, 2017 the court was informed that the Appellant was refusing to sign the settlement agreement, that memorialized the terms of the agreement which had been put on the record, and which had been forwarded to his attorney by Mr. Bernstein on April 6, 2017. The Respondent was instructed to file a Motion to Enforce the Settlement. The motion was received by the court on May 30, 2017.

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

The city argued that the Petitioner testified under oath that he accepted the terms of the settlement. There was no coercion, duress, fraud, dissatisfaction or questioning of the terms. In addition, the settlement was promptly reduced to writing within one day of the hearing and accepted by Mr. Valle's attorney. Subsequent to that, the Petitioner refused to sign the written Agreement. The City contended that an oral contract was created on April 5, 2017 and the written agreement, pursuant to Civil Service laws, merely memorialized the terms that were testified to and accepted by the Petitioner the day prior. The City pointed to the decision in In re Smith, CSV 6370-07, Initial Decision (December 17, 2007), affirmed, Merit System Board (January 30, 2008), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, which was upheld by the Merit System Board. In that matter, on the day of the plenary hearing, the employee authorized her agent to settle the case. The employee then reconsidered and refused to sign the written agreement. In rendering his opinion upholding the settlement, the ALJ pointed out that there is a strong public policy favoring settlement of litigation. When a settlement is voluntary, it is binding on the parties. A settlement is equivalent to a contract and, if freely entered into, without fraud or other compelling circumstances, it should be honored and enforced. In addition, the fact that the oral agreement is later reduced to writing, makes it no less enforceable. Passaic also cited In re Tenure Jones, EDU 08618-05, Initial Decision (May 8, 2007), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, in which an unsigned draft settlement agreement was found to be a settlement. The ALJ's decision was subsequently upheld by the Commissioner of Education. In adopting the ALJ's decision the Commissioner of Education stated that what was required to enforce a settlement was that the Court determine:

> From the written order/stipulation or from the parties' testimony under oath that the settlement is voluntary, consistent with the law and fully dispositive of all issues. In controversy, the judge shall issue an initial decision, incorporating the full terms and approving the settlement. N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1

Passaic argued that the present matter factually mirrored both Smith and Jones. The settlement was fairly negotiated and reached in the presence of the attorneys for the litigants. The settlement was then put on the record. The Petitioner assented to the terms of the Agreement under oath. Therefore, the terms of the Agreement should be incorporated into an Initial Decision.

The Petitioner did not file a responsive brief and made no argument in opposition to the City's motion.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

New Jersey has a "strong public policy in favor of settlement." Department of Public Advocate v. N.J. Board of Public Utilities, 206 N.J. Super. 523, 528 (App. Div.

1985). The courts have "strained" to uphold settlements. Ibid. The fact that the agreement is later reduced to writing does not mean that the oral contract is unenforceable, as long as the parties intended to be bound by the terms of the oral agreement. Berg Agency v. Sleepworld-Willingboro, Inc. 136 N.J. Super. 369, 374 (App. Div. 1975).

On April 5, 2017, the parties appeared for a hearing. Prior to the beginning of the hearing, I asked the attorneys if there had been any settlement negotiations and if there was any chance of resolving the matter. The attorneys and their clients took part in extensive settlement negotiations. In my presence, there was a discussion about the fact that, if there was an adverse ruling, Mr. Valle's pension could possibly be forfeited. Mr. Valle questioned whether the "last chance" agreement could be enforced. I said that if he wanted a hearing on the issues, then we would proceed to trial. Finally, Mr. Valle stated that he wished to settle the matter. At that point we went on the record and Mr. Bernstein outlined the terms of the Settlement. They included that:

1. Mr. Valle agreed that he was resigning in good standing as of December 2, 2016.
2. Any monies that he was owed up to December 2, 2016 would be paid to him through the City's Department of Human Services.
3. A neutral reference would be provided to Mr. Valle if he required a reference for another employment.
4. The City would take no action against Mr. Valle's pension.
5. The City would take no action against Mr. Valle's unemployment.
6. The Appellant would withdraw his appeal with prejudice.

Mr. Valle was sworn in and asked whether he heard the terms as outlined by Mr. Bernstein; if he understood the terms; if he had any questions regarding the terms; if he was under the influence of drugs or anything that could affect his ability to enter into the Agreement fully and fairly; if he was coerced into entering into the Agreement; if he was satisfied with the representation he had received; and if he had any questions of the attorneys or the court regarding the Settlement. Mr. Valle's responses to the questions were such that it was clear that he had entered into the Agreement voluntarily and with an understanding of the terms of the Agreement.

While the Appellant has chosen not to file a responsive brief, it is clear that at the time the settlement was put on the record, he fully understood the terms of the agreement and the implications of the Settlement, and consented to same. As ALJ Masin annunciated in the Jones matter, when there is clearly a meeting of the minds, the law contemplates that a binding agreement has been created, even though it is reduced to writing subsequently. While Mr. Valle may have remorse at this time, that does not negate the fact that he agreed to the settlement under oath and with the advice of counsel. I therefore, CONCLUDE that the terms of the Agreement that were negotiated by the parties; spread forth on the record; and later memorialized in a writing, are the terms of the Settlement.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED that the terms of the Agreement as outlined above are binding on the parties and are hereby incorporated in the Initial Decision.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, PO Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 13677-16
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2017-614

IN THE MATTER OF SABURA ALEXANDER, HUDSON COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF FAMILY SERVICES,

---

Terry Woodrow, Esq., for Appellant (Staff Attorney, AFSCME Council 52, attorneys)

Daniel W. Sexton, Esq., Assistant County Counsel for Respondent (Donato J. Battista, County Counsel, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 14, 2017 Decided: July 11, 2017

BEFORE JOANN LASALA CANDIDO, ALAJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Appellant, Sabura Alexander, a Human Service Specialist IV (HSS4) Supervisor, appeals a one-hundred-twenty day suspension issued by respondent, Hudson County Department of Family Services (Respondent or County), effective April 19, 2016. Respondent alleges that appellant's conduct was unbecoming a public employee on July 20, 2016, while raising her tone of voice to her supervisor and that she was insubordinate, neglected her duty and other sufficient cause exists.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 26, 2016, respondent issued a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action against appellant and an administrative hearing was held on August 15, 2016. A Final Notice of Disciplinary Action issued on August 19, 2016 upheld the charges.

On September 6, 2016, the Civil Service Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), for a hearing as a contested matter pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Hearings were scheduled for May 1 and 2, 2017. The matter was settled on May 1, 2017, and the settlement was placed on the record. Appellant subsequently changed her mind and the hearing was held on June 14, 2017, on which date the record closed.

ISSUE

Did the respondent carry its burden of proving the charges referenced above by a preponderance of the credible evidence? If so, what disciplinary action, if any, is appropriate?

TESTIMONY

The testimony of the witnesses presented is not intended to be a verbatim report. Rather, it is intended to summarize the testimony and evidence found by the undersigned to be relevant to the issues presented.

Maryann Smith

Maryann Smith, an administrator within the Hudson County Department of Family Services, testified on behalf of respondent. Smith testified to appellant's demeanor in the workplace and specifically to the incident on July 20, 2016. Smith stated that once appellant returned from a sixty-day suspension, her demeanor changed. She stated that Alexander was irritable and contentious after her return.

With regard to the July 20, 2016 incident, Smith testified that she called a meeting in her office with appellant and Camela Nales (Nales), both HSS4 Supervisors, to discuss routine work matters. Smith asked appellant about a situation pertaining to a worker's request for more time to complete his work and whether appellant asked Nales if she could allow her worker more time. Appellant responded by loudly proclaiming that she did not need to ask for Nales' permission. Smith inquired further about the worker's caseload and appellant responded that she did not know and blamed Smith for not doing what she was supposed to and not properly staffing the department. Smith stated that she attempted to calm appellant down multiple times but she continued to escalate her tone and shout over Smith. Smith had to ask appellant multiple times to leave the room. Smith credibly testified that she felt threatened by appellant's behavior and that appellant was disrespectful. Smith agreed that at no point did appellant approach or physically threaten her. Smith memorialized the incident that day in narrative form. (R-1.)

Camela Nales

Camela Nales, HSS4 Supervisor, testified on behalf of respondent with regard to the incident on July 20, 2016. Nales testified that she was present for the entirety of the interaction between Smith and appellant, but did not say anything during the meeting. Nales stated that appellant immediately became defensive when asked about her staff's case load. She stated that Smith asked appellant about the situation surrounding one of her workers to which appellant responded by loudly accusing Smith of intentionally holding meetings when she was away. Appellant insinuated that she could not know what was going on because Smith decided not to include her in earlier discussions.

Nales stated that appellant continually shouted over Smith's attempts to explain and calm her down. She testified that appellant's behavior made her anxious and she could see it was bothering Smith as well. Nales memorialized the incident that day. (R-2.)

Sabura Alexander

Appellant testified on her own behalf. She has been an employee of Hudson County since November 5, 2007 and has been a HSS4 Supervisor since October 20, 2014. She had been disciplined twice, regarding similar circumstances, before the incident in question. The most recent prior action being a sixty-day suspension from October 8, 2015 to January 5, 2016 for insubordination towards Director Harrison from which she returned to work on or about January 5, 2016.

With regard to the incident on July 20, 2016, Alexander testified that she was called to Maryann Smith's office to discuss a routine work matter. She stated that Smith asked her about her workers' caseload but that she didn't know because she was not working on the day Smith held the meeting. She stated that she voiced her concerns with the department management but she did not raise her voice above a firm tone. Alexander claimed that Smith exaggerated her reaction and that she did not shout during the meeting. She testified that she had no intention of disrespecting or threatening Smith.

CREDIBILITY DETERMINATIONS:

Where facts are contested, the trier of fact must assess and weigh the credibility of the witnesses for purposes of making factual findings as to the disputed facts. Credibility is the value that a finder of the facts gives to a witness' testimony. It requires an overall assessment of the witness' story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and the manner in which it hangs together with the other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). Testimony to be believed must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness but must be credible in itself, in that it must be such as the common experience and observation of mankind can approve as probable in the circumstances. In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950). A fact finder is free to weigh the evidence and to reject the testimony of a witness when it is contrary to circumstances given in evidence or contains inherent improbabilities or contradictions which alone or in connection with other circumstances in evidence excite suspicion as to its truth. Id. at 521–22; see D'Amato by McPherson v. D'Amato, 305 N.J. Super. 109, 115 (App. Div. 1997). In other words, a trier of fact may reject testimony as inherently incredible, and may also reject testimony when it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience or overborne by the testimony of other witnesses. Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super.282, 287 (App. Div. 1958). The choice of rejecting the testimony of a witness, in whole or in part, rests with the trier and finder of the facts and must simply be a reasonable choice. Renan Realty Corp. v. Dep't of Cmty. Affairs, 182 N.J. Super.415, 421 (App. Div. 1981).

I FIND the testimony offered by respondent's witnesses to be more credible than that offered by appellant. Both witnesses offered consistent versions of the events on July 20, 2016. Their testimony was wholly consistent with the memoranda written by each of the witnesses' right after the incident of July 20, 2016. Appellant's testimony on the other hand contradicts the credible eye witness accounts as to her loud tone of voice and screaming over Smith.

FACTS

Based on the evidence presented at the hearing as well as on the opportunity to observe the witnesses and assess their credibility, I make the following findings of relevant fact, which are essentially undisputed, in this matter:

1. Appellant received a thirty-day suspension in May 2015 for violation of a cease and desist order forbidding her from having contact with a coworker with whom there had been an altercation. The suspension was amended to fifteen days.

2. Appellant received a sixty-day suspension on or about October 12, 2015. Appellant shouted at and spoke in a disrespectful and threatening manner to Director Angelica Harrison.

3. On July 20, 2016, at the request of Maryann Smith, appellant and Camela Nales met with Smith in her office to discuss a routine work matter. Appellant became defensive during the meeting and inappropriately raised her tone of voice and shouted over Smith. She loudly accused Smith of ineffective leadership.

4. Appellant inappropriately continued to loudly intensify the conversation despite Smith's attempts to calm the situation. Ultimately, Smith felt threatened and disrespected. She requested that appellant leave the room multiple times. (R-1.)

5. Camela Nales witnessed appellant disrespecting, shouting and yelling over Smith. (R-2.)

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

A civil service employees' rights and duties are governed by the Civil Service Act, N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to -12.6. The Act is an important inducement to attract qualified personnel to public service and is to be liberally construed toward attainment of merit appointments and broad tenure protection. See, Essex Council No. 1, N.J. Civil Ser. Ass'n. v. Gibson, 114 N.J. Super 576 (Law Div. 1971), rev'd on other grounds, 118 N.J. Super 583 (App. Div. 1972); Mastrobattista v. Essex County Park Comm'n, 46 N.J. 138, 147 (1965).

A public employee who is protected by the provisions of the Civil Service Act may be subject to major discipline for a wide variety of offenses connected to his employment. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2(a) provides the penalties for a major discipline of removal or suspension for more than five working days at any one time. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3 provides the reasons for a major disciplinary action including: neglect of duty, chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness and other sufficient cause. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-14 requires written notice of the final disposition of an employee.

An appointing authority may discipline an employee on various grounds, including insubordination, conduct unbecoming a public employee and other sufficient cause. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a). Such action is subject to review by the Merit System Board, which after a de novo hearing makes an independent determination as to both guilt and the "propriety of the penalty imposed below." W. New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 519 (1962). In an administrative proceeding concerning a major disciplinary action, the appointing authority must prove its case by a "fair preponderance of the believable evidence." N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a); Polk, supra, 90 N.J. at 560; Atkinson, supra, 37 N.J. at 149.

In the present matter, appellant was charged with insubordination and conduct unbecoming a public employee, violating Civil Service Rule N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) for raising her voice to a superior and shouting over Smith's attempt to speak. "Unbecoming conduct" is broadly defined as any conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of the governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect and confidence in the delivery of governmental services. In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). Conduct unbecoming need not be predicated on violations of the employer's rules or policies, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct. Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 555 (1998). Appellant's inappropriate tone and attitude demonstrates offensive behavior when speaking with her supervisor, and as such deviates from the "implicit standard of good behavior" expected from a public employee.

Insubordination is defined as intentional disobedience or refusal to accept a reasonable order, assaulting or resisting authority; and disrespect or use of insulting or abusive language to supervisor. Black's Law Dictionary 870 (9th ed. 2009) defines insubordination as a "willful disregard of an employer's instructions" or an "act of disobedience to proper authority." Id. at 802. Webster's II New College Dictionary (1995) defines insubordination as "not submissive to authority: disobedient." Such dictionary definitions have been utilized by courts to define the term where it is not specifically defined in contract or regulation. Similarly, case law generally interprets the term to mean the refusal to obey an order of a supervisor. See e.g. Belleville v. Coppla, 187 N.J. Super. 147 (App. Div. 1982); Millan v. Morris View, 177 N.J. Super. 620 (App. Div. 1981); Rivell v. Civil Service Comm'n, 115 N.J. Super. 64 (App. Div. 1971), certif. denied, 59 N.J. 269 (1971). According to Webster's II New College Dictionary (1995)

"insubordination" refers to acts of non-compliance and non-cooperation, as well as affirmative acts of disobedience. Stanziale v. County of Monmouth Bd. of Health and Merit Sys. Bd., 350 N.J. Super. 414 (App. Div. 2002), certif. denied, 174 N.J. 361 (2002).

I CONCLUDE respondent has demonstrated by the preponderance of the legally competent, credible evidence that appellant committed acts of insubordination and conduct unbecoming a public employee on July 20, 2016. Her behavior towards her supervisor when raising her voice and shouting inappropriately demonstrated a lack of respect which deviates from the "implicit standard of good behavior" expected from a public employee.

Appellant was also charged with neglect of duty, violating N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7). Neglect of duty can arise from an omission to perform a duty or failure to perform or discharge a duty and includes official misconduct or misdoing, as well as negligence. Steinel v. City of Jersey City, Initial decision, 7 N.J.A.R. 91, 95 (March 21, 1983), modified on other grounds, Civ. Serv. Comm'n, 7 N.J.A.R. 100 (May 12, 1983), modified on other grounds, 193 N.J. Super. 629 (App. Div. 1984), aff'd, 99 N.J. 1 (1985). Generally, the term neglect connotes a deviation from normal standards of conduct. In re Suspension or Revoc. of the License of Kerlin, 151 N.J. Super. 179, 186 (App. Div. 1977).

I CONCLUDE that respondent has not met its burden of proving, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, the charge of neglect of duty. There is no evidence presented that proves appellant failed to perform her job duties.

Appellant has been charged with violating N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(11), other sufficient cause. Other sufficient cause is generally defined in the charges against appellant as all other offenses caused and derived as a result of all other charges against her. Other sufficient cause is an offense for conduct that violates the implicit standards of good behavior which devolve upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct. Therefore, I also CONCLUDE that the respondent has met its burden of proof on this charge.

PENALTY

Factors determining the degree of discipline to be imposed include the employee's prior disciplinary record and the gravity of the misconduct in the instant case, as well as the concept of progressive discipline. W. New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 522-524 (1962). The New Jersey Supreme Court has recognized that the principle of progressive or incremental discipline is not a "fixed and immutable rule" that must be applied in every disciplinary setting. In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19, 33 (2007); In re Carter, 191 N.J. 474, 484 (2007). Rather, "some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished prior record." Carter, supra, 191 N.J. at 484. Progressive discipline is not a necessary consideration "when the misconduct is severe, when it is unbecoming to the employee's position or renders the employee unsuitable for continuation in the position, or when application of the principle would be contrary to the public interest." Herrmann, supra, 192 N.J. at 33.

Under the facts presented, a substantial penalty is appropriate. In light of appellant's aberrant conduct and behavior, the one-hundred-twenty day suspension is appropriate, and I so CONCLUDE.

ORDER

Based upon the aforementioned, I ORDER that appellant be suspended without pay for a period of one-hundred-twenty days.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, PO Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 13807-13
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2014-716

IN THE MATTER OF VICTOR BERMUDEZ, CUMBERLAND COUNTY, DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS.

Stuart J. Alterman, Esq., for appellant, Victor Bermudez (Alterman and Associates, attorneys)

Theodore E. Baker, County Counsel, for respondent Cumberland County, Department of Corrections

Record Closed: May 18, 2017 Decided: June 30, 2017

BEFORE BRUCE M. GORMAN, ALJ t/a:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Appellant, Victor Bermudez (Bermudez) appealed the respondent's, Cumberland County, Department of Corrections (CCDOC), action imposing a ten-day suspension for violation of the County Harassment Policy.

The appellant requested a fair hearing and the matter was filed at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 25, 2013, to be heard as a contested case.

N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and 14F-1 to 13. The matter was heard over the course of three days, August 13, 2015, April 14, 2016, and March 27, 2017. The record closed after the parties filed written summations on May 18, 2017.

FACTUAL SUMMARY

This case emanates from an argument between two corrections officers employed by the CCDOC.

Officer Gregory Glenn (Glenn) testified for the CCDOC. Glenn has been employed as a Corrections Officer by the CCDOC for the past eighteen years. He has been assigned to the Transportation Unit for the past three years.

On September 7, 2012, Glenn was working in the Transportation Unit with his partner, Yolanda Crosley (Crosley). At that time, he was accosted by the appellant, who proceeded to engage in an argument.

The argument had its genesis in a prior conversation among a group of corrections officers. The officers were discussing the condition of a fellow officer, Yobani Marti (Marti). Marti was purportedly suffering from cancer at the time. Appellant expressed the opinion that she did not really have cancer. He stated that he had seen both of his grandparents suffer from cancer and Marti did now show the same symptoms. He noted that Marti liked to avoid work.

Appellant was a delegate for his union and was active in handling employee grievances. Glenn was aware that Marti intended to ask appellant to assist her in proving that she was suffering from cancer. Consequently, he told Marti what appellant had said and recommended that she use the union president to assist her instead of the appellant.

When appellant learned that Glenn had reported his comments to Marti, he was angered. On September 7, 2012, at approximately 8:15 a.m., he confronted Glenn at the rear control area at the back of the jail. According to Glenn, appellant exhibited that anger when he approached him. Glenn testified that appellant said, "What's wrong with you, you bitch ass nigger?" "Didn't you take your hormone shots?" Glenn commented that appellant may have used the word "nigga" and not "nigger". He stated that the phrase "bitch ass nigger" was street jargon. "Bitch ass" meant coward; "nigger" or "nigga" meant punk. Consequently, when appellant called Glenn a "bitch ass nigger," he was calling him a cowardly punk.

Glenn stated that he did not feel threatened by the outburst, but he felt hurt. This statement was a recurring theme in Glenn's testimony. Glenn appeared under subpoena. He had previously attempted to avoid participation in the proceeding. He had previously asked the administration not to discipline the appellant. During his testimony, he did everything possible to mitigate the significance of appellant's outburst.

However, his conduct on the date of the incident belied his protestations that he did not feel threatened. After the argument was concluded, Glenn immediately went to the office and prepared an Incident/Offense Report. (R-1.) In that report he noted that the outburst occurred in front of Officer Crosley, a secretary named Sandy Fisher, and inmate named T. Mathis. He termed the offense "threatening behavior". He then wrote the following narrative:

> Approx. at 0815 hrs at the gun bay area, Officer Bermudez went off on me, Officer G. Glenn, #68. Bermudez said "Glenn have you took those hormone shots to get the bitch out of you, "you bitch ass nigger." Why did you tell about what I said." Bermudez had made a statement that he believed Mary was faking that she had cancer. Bermudez kept screaming out in front of inmate T. Mathis, Sandy Fisher, and Officer Crosley. He said "you bitch ass nigger this isn't the first time you told on me." When Bermudez was screaming all this, he was approaching me with his fists balled up. He kept calling me, Officer Glenn a bitch ass nigger and get the fuck out of my way! Bermudez scream also don't say another thing to me ever, you bitch ass nigger and went storm off!

Glenn admitted that he wrote this report because he was angry and upset. But he contended that once he calmed down, he realized that appellant's conduct did not make him feel threatened. Glenn stated that appellant should have confronted him in private and not in front of three witnesses. He admitted that appellant's voice was raised but contended that he was not yelling. He characterized appellant's words as more like "harsh". When confronted with his statement in the Incident Report that appellant was "screaming," he admitted that appellant was screaming, but said he was not shouting louder than normal.

Glenn contended that appellant called him a "bitch ass nigger" only twice. When it was pointed out to him that in the report he stated that the term was used three times, he contended that he had made a mistake in the report.

Glenn admitted that he was not required to file a report. He claimed he did so because he did not want to be teamed with appellant for the next few days until he had calmed down.

Glenn contended he should have written "nigga" instead of "nigger" in his report. He asserted that there was a difference between the two words, but he was upset and angry at the time and not thinking clearly when he wrote the report. He asserted that the term "nigga" was one of endearment, that, "you are my nigga" means "you are my boy". However, he admitted that the term "nigger" could also be a term of endearment.

Glenn asserted that the matter had been blown out of proportion. He stated that appellant's use of the term "nigger" (of "nigga") was "not a racial thing". Glenn reached that conclusion because he felt appellant was also "black". When queried about the fact that appellant is in fact Latino in his heritage, Glenn stated that there are two colors, white and black. He included appellant in the black category.

Glenn stated that the terms "nigger" and "nigga" are "almost similar", but "different". Whether the terms are pejorative in nature depends upon the intent. Glenn was satisfied that appellant did not use the terms in a racial manner. Instead, appellant was attacking Glenn's manhood. Appellant's intent to attack Glenn's manhood was behind appellant's question, "Have you took those hormone shots to get the bitch out of you?"

Glenn stated that he is "from the old school". By "old school", he meant that he is now sixty-years-old and remembers the days of Dr. King and the Civil Rights Movement. In his opinion, the word "nigger" should not be used at all. He went so far as to state that he also does not like the words "negro" and "colored". He considers himself to be "black" or "African American".

Glenn stated that the word "nigger" was offensive. It was a downgrade of a black person, a belittlement, a statement that an African American was worthless trash. It reminded him of the time he could not use the same bathroom as white people. However, in 2015, whether the term was offensive depended upon the context in which it was used. If a black person used the term to him, he would automatically think he was being friendly. Glenn stated that the world is dyed into two colors, black and white. Black people were considered to be a lower form of race by white people. Accordingly, when a white person used the term, it is to discredit the black person.

Despite his antipathy toward the term "nigger", Glenn admitted it has come back into common use in the African American community. As a result, whether it is offensive now depends upon the way in which it is used. If it is used in an antagonistic way, it is offensive, but if it is used in a friendly way, then it is acceptable. He noted that even "white guys" now call each other nigger. In his view, appellant did not utilize the term in a racial manner.

Glenn stated that appellant made his statements out of emotion and did not really mean them. Appellant knew that, and the two reconciled the following day. Thereafter, another officer told him he should not have written the report and urged him to withdraw it. At a later date, he met with the Warden, and told the Warden that the report was a mistake and urged that appellant not be charged. He tried to retract the report, but the Warden advised that he could not do so.

Glenn complained that the unit's Sergeant, Robert Echevarria, (Echevarria) took pleasure in seeing appellant charged. When Glenn filed his report, Echevarria stated, "Good, burn him, burn him, burn him." However, Glenn admitted that he did not speak with him prior to writing the Incident Report. Glenn confirmed that Echevarria did not place pressure on him to testify. Glenn stated that he had told the truth at trial.

Yolanda Crosley testified for the CCDOC. Crosley has been a Transportation Officer with the CCDOC since 1997 and has served as Glenn's partner for approximately five years. She was working as Glenn's partner on September 7, 2012.

At the outset of her testimony, Crosley claimed to remember virtually nothing about the incident. She claimed only to remember that Glenn and appellant had a discussion in her presence. Her recollection was that they "had some words" and they were done. The discussion occurred at rear control at the back of the jail. Crosley was preparing to transport Inmate T. Mathis. Glenn and the appellant were arguing.

Crosley was confronted with the Incident Report she wrote on September 7, 2012. (R-2.) She acknowledged her signature and admitted that she wrote the report on the day of the incident, but claimed it had been so long, she did not remember what happened. She admitted that the report must be accurate. However, she claimed not to remember the incident.

After reading her report, she conceded that the discussion between appellant and Glenn became loud, but continued to insist she did not know what appellant said. Finally she admitted that appellant called Glenn a "bitch ass nigger".

Crosley quickly attempted to exonerate appellant for his conduct. She testified that, in her words, black people say that to each other all the time. They think of "nigger" as a word they can use. She agreed that "nigger" is a slave word when spoken by a white person, but African Americans use it continuously. Crosley testified that she heard the word repeatedly when she grew up in the projects. She agreed that saying the word was not ok, but said that "that is how we were raised". She agreed that African Americans feel offended if a white person says the word, but if a black person says it to another black person is acceptable. She said that use of the word in the workplace was not acceptable. In fact, she stated that using the word at all was not acceptable.

Crosley contended that she only heard appellant say "bitch ass nigger" one time, but admitted that in her report, she stated that appellant used the words "bitch ass" twice.

Crosley stated that if someone used the word to her while arguing, she might have been offended. She has never heard the term used toward a black female, but if the word was used casually, she would not be offended even if the speaker was white, if the speaker was a friend. The difference was in how the word was utilized. If the word was utilized in an insulting or demeaning context, then she would be offended. If it was utilized in a friendly manner, she would not be offended.

Crosley explained that there is a difference between the terms "nigger" and "nigga". "Nigger" is a much harsher term. She noted that in her report, she stated that appellant used the term "nigga".

Crosley admitted that the confrontation between the appellant and Glenn was not a friendly exchange.

On cross-examination by appellant's counsel, Crosley's memory improved significantly. She testified that appellant called Glenn a "bitch ass nigga". She also noted that appellant asked Glenn if he had taken his female hormones. Crosley concluded that the thrust of the appellant's statement was to question Glenn's manhood. She did not think that appellant's comments were racially motivated. She stated it is not unusual for her colleagues at the jail to call each other "bitch ass niggers."

Glenn told Crosley that he was sorry he wrote the incident report. He told her he only wrote the report because appellant hollered at him in front of other people.

Crosley stated that as an African American female she did not find appellant's words to be racist in nature. Black officers use these words all the time; they even say them in front of their supervisors. Sometimes people of color use this terminology as terms of endearment.

Crosley noted that her view of appellant's words was based partly upon the fact that he is married to an African American woman. However, she agreed that it was not acceptable for appellant to use the word "nigger" just because his wife is African American. She also agreed that the word "nigger" is racist by definition.

Crosley briefly addressed the word "bitch". When asked if the word "bitch" was sexist, she stated that it depended on the intent of the speaker.

Walter T. Wroniuk, Jr. (Wroniuk) testified for the CCDOC. Wroniuk has been employed by the CCDOC for twenty-six years. At the time of his testimony, he held the rank of Lieutenant and served as Commander of the four to twelve shift. In September of 2012, he was a Sergeant assigned to the Internal Affairs (IA) Division.

Wroniuk conducted an investigation of the incident. On direct examination he described his investigation and introduced into evidence his report. (R-4.) His direct testimony concluded at the end of the day, and an additional date was scheduled for his cross examination. Wroniuk failed to appear on that date, and again on subsequent dates scheduled for that purpose. County Counsel explained that Wroniuk had retired, but Counsel believed he could be produced. Ultimately, County Counsel issued a subpoena, but Wroniuk ignored the subpoena. After nearly two years, it was apparent that, short of having him arrested on a bench warrant, a power this tribunal lacks, Wroniuk would never voluntarily appear. At that juncture, on appellant's motion, Wroniuk's testimony was stricken and his report (R-4) was returned to the CCDOC.

Appellant testified on his own behalf. He has served as a Corrections Officer with the CCDOC since 1997. During that time, he has been active in his union. He was his local's State Delegate for nine years, and presently serves as President of PBA Local 231. He has been active on numerous committees dealing with issues affecting corrections officers and has personally assisted in securing the passage of legislation addressing these issues.

Appellant described his ethnic background. Both parents came from Puerto Rico. However, his grandmother on his father's side bore African blood. Additionally, he has been married for twenty-five-years to an African American woman. Accordingly, appellant considers himself to be a "person of color", which he defined as someone descended from slaves.

Appellant has known Glenn since 1997. He had no problem with Glenn prior to the incident of September 7, 2012. At the time of the incident, they worked together as partners in the jail's Transportation Division.

Shortly before September 7, 2012, Captain Ken Lamcken advised appellant that an officer named Marti was being investigated for abuse of sick leave. Specifically, Marti claimed she suffered from stage four cancer. Appellant's grandmother had died of cancer, and he was familiar with the symptoms. Given his knowledge of the illness, petitioner expressed doubt that Marti suffered from stage four cancer. Additionally, Marti's cousin told him Marti was not telling the truth.

Appellant conveyed his belief to his transportation partner. Subsequently, appellant learned that Glenn had told Marti what he had said. Glenn's disclosure caused petitioner a problem with his union.

On September 7, 2012, Glenn was partnered with Crosley instead of appellant. According to appellant, the three met at the weapons box at the rear of the jail. At that time, he asked Glenn if he had taken his hormone pills that morning. When Glenn asked him what he meant, appellant told him he should not have repeated his words to Marti. Glenn then became very emotional and began yelling incoherently. At that juncture, appellant called Glenn a name. When he testified in court, he stated what he called Glenn, sounded like "bitch ass nigger". He quickly corrected himself and changed "nigger" to "nigga". He then insisted that he had said "nigga" in the first place.

Appellant explained that "nigger" and "nigga" were different words. "Nigger" was a racial term; "nigga" was not. To the contrary, "nigga" was a term of endearment among people of color. Caucasians were not permitted to use either word, but African Americans were.

Appellant stated that the term "bitch ass nigga" expressed a challenge to Glenn's manhood. It suggested that he was gossiping "like a woman". He stated he told Glenn he had a lot of estrogen in him. He had no intent to attack Glenn racially, and did not think Glenn would take the statement as a racial slur.

Appellant did not remember if he wrote a report about the incident. When advised that the exchange had become a problem for him, he went to Glenn and apologized, telling Glenn that he did not mean to hurt him. He also noted that during an unrelated matter, Glenn had called Lieutenant Chareston, an African American officer, a "bitch ass nigger". After appellant apologized, Glenn wrote a letter (P-1) requesting that the charges be dropped. The County declined to drop the charges. During his testimony, appellant repeatedly attempted to deflect questions benoting that Glenn had asked that the charges be dropped.

Appellant stated he did not understand why the charges were filed against him. He was never trained in harassment. During the County's one training session on harassment, he did not attend because he was assigned to special duty away from the jail.

Appellant admitted that since the incident, he has concluded that the use of the word "nigga" is deleterious to people of color. He no longer uses the word, and encourages members of the younger generation to avoid the term.

On cross-examination, appellant argued that a double standard existed over the use of the term "nigga", and that at the time of the incident, he approved of the double standard. People of color could use the term, but Caucasian people could not. Since the incident, he has changed his views and now believes that it's wrong for either race to use the word.

Appellant was asked if he had told the IA investigator that he had used the term "nigga" when addressing Glenn. He asserted he could not remember what he had told the investigator, either about the incident generally or specifically whether he used the word "nigger" or "nigga".

On cross-examination, appellant acknowledged that he had intended to insult Glenn's manhood. He agreed that a "bitch" was a contrary woman, and his use of the term was not intended as an endearment. He conceded the same facts with regard to his use of the term "ass". But he insisted the term "nigga" was the equivalent of the term "dude".

Appellant conceded that he was upset when he approached Glenn, but denied that he had raised his fist to Glenn. He acknowledged telling Glenn never to seek his assistance if he needed help from the union. He also conceded he told Glenn never to speak to him again. He agreed that he had intended his words to be offensive. He now believes what he said to Glenn was wrong, and regrets his conduct on September 7, 2012.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The County's Harassment Policy (R-5) provides in pertinent part:

> In addition to prohibiting sexual harassment, the county prohibits the harassment or intimidation of an individual based on his or her race, creed, color, religion, national origin, ancestry, marital status, affectional or sexual orientation, familial status, sex, age, disability, veteran status, gender identity or expression, source of lawful income used for rental or mortgage payments or any other classification protected by federal, state or local law. Harassment can be written, verbal or physical conduct – including but not limited to slurs, remarks, epithets, jokes, intimidating or hostile acts based on an employee's membership in a protected class, when such conduct has the purpose or effect of:

1. Substantially interfering with an individual's work performance, or creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work environment;
2. Otherwise adversely affecting an individual's employment opportunities; or
3. Unreasonably interfering with an individual's work performance.

Such behavior is unacceptable in the workplace and anywhere work is conducted including but not limited to, business trips, conferences, work-related travel and business-related social events. It includes contacts over telephone, voice mail, regular mail, facsimile machine or any other electronic communication device.

The County asserts that appellant violated this policy when he confronted Glenn on September 7, 2012. Appellant denies that he engaged in harassing conduct.

Most of the facts of the case are not in dispute. Appellant conceded that he approached Glenn in a state of upset. He then asked Glenn if he had taken his female hormones that day, berated him for disclosing his comments about Marti, and called him either "bitch ass nigger" or "bitch ass nigga". The only facts in dispute are whether appellant raised his fist to Glenn, which Glenn asserted and appellant denied, and which form of the "N" word appellant utilized.

Appellant's question to Glenn about whether he had taken his hormone, and statement about Glenn's estrogen level clearly amount to slurs against Glenn's sex and gender identity. His use of the terms "bitch" and "ass" constitute epithets within the meaning of the policy. All of these words contributed to the creation of a hostile and offensive work environment, and coming from a high ranking union official, they also created an intimidating environment.

Appellant asserted that he called Glenn "nigga", which he contended was a term of endearment. In his report, R-1, Glenn stated that petitioner used the term "nigger". In her report, R-2, and her testimony, Crosley confirmed that appellant used the term "nigger" and not "nigga". It should be noted that both Glenn and Crosley testified reluctantly and tried their best to protect appellant.

The credibility issue here resolves itself based upon appellant's conduct. Regardless of whether he said "nigger" or "nigga", he clearly did not intend the word as a term of endearment. By his own admission, he was upset, and he delivered the epithet in a threatening manner. If we accept appellant's explanation, then "nigga" was less onerous than "nigger", but given the context of delivery, whatever word he used constituted a slur in violation of the policy. Whatever word he spoke was said in anger.

The appellant argued that the incident constituted no more than a quarrel between colleagues, a quarrel that was personal in nature and should be resolved between the parties. Glenn's reluctance to proceed with prosecution of the matter supports appellant's argument. The problem with appellant's argument lies with the nature of the language he used. Appellant's attack on Glenn's manhood went well beyond the context of a common quarrel. His sexually derogatory language was unacceptable in the public work place.

But worse, appellant's use of the "N" word, regardless of whether he used "nigger" or "nigga", has no place in public work place. Certain words in the English language are so vile that they cannot be countenanced. The so-called "F" word falls into that category, as does the so-called "C" word as applied to women. So too does the "N" word, regardless of the context. That word has been used for generations to degrade. In their efforts to protect appellant, both Glenn and Crosley attempted to minimize the significance of the incident, but both admitted they found the "N" word to be offensive.

The First Amendment to the United States Constitution protects free speech. That amendment affords appellant the right to use the "N" word in the privacy of his home, or elsewhere during his off duty time. But it does not afford him the right to use the "N" word in the work place. Appellant holds his job not as a right, but as a privilege. With that privilege come certain limitations. One of those limitations is that he cannot direct offensive and derogatory language at a fellow employee. The "N" word is perhaps the most extreme example of unacceptable language. His use of that word causes what might otherwise constitute a common quarrel to rise to the level of harassment.

Accordingly, I am satisfied that appellant violated the harassment policy. The charges must be SUSTAINED.

There remains the issue of penalty. Progressive discipline is the law in New Jersey. See West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 523-24. Appellant's disciplinary record is lengthy, but remarkably minimal. He has received six letters of reprimand, but none later than 2001. He received two one-day suspensions, the later in 2000. He received a seven-day suspension for tardiness and neglect of duty in 2001, a three-day suspension for insubordination (cell phone in possession) in 2002, and a thirty-day suspension for neglect of duty (leaving his post) in 2002. But he has received no disciplinary action since 2002, a period of ten years prior to the incident in question and fifteen years prior to the time of trial.

The County now seeks to impose a ten-day suspension, which is a term less than his longest suspension. Appellant's prior thirty-day suspension could have justified the imposition of a significantly harsher penalty. The County showed restraint by only imposing a ten-day suspension.

On the other hand, aside from the incident in question, appellant has a clean disciplinary record since 2002. The victim expressed a desire that the incident be forgotten and the appellant freed of penalty. And in many respects, the matter amounted to a quarrel among colleagues, a personal matter perhaps best left to the participants.

But in the final analysis, appellant's use of the "N" word in any form was unacceptable in the work place. Appellant must be punished for his conduct, and his punishment must constitute a warning to all other public employees that the use of the "N" word in the work place will not be tolerated.

The County's action imposing a ten-day suspension must be SUSTAINED.

ORDER

I ORDER that respondent's action imposing a ten-day suspension for harassment be SUSTAINED.

IN THE MATTER OF
CURTIS DIAZ, MERCER COUNTY
DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY.

Christopher A. Gray, Esq., for appellant (Alterman & Associates, LLC, attorneys)

Kristina Chubenko, Assistant County Counsel of Mercer County, for respondent

Record Closed: October 17, 2013 Decided: July 12, 2017

BEFORE ELIA A. PELIOS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Appellant Curtis Diaz (Diaz) appeals a six-day suspension imposed by Respondent Mercer County Department of Public Safety (County), for violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(A) 4. Chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(A)6 Conduct unbecoming of public employee; and, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(A)12 Other sufficient cause, specifically, violating Section A-4 of the Mercer County Table of Offenses and Penalties—chronic or excessive absenteeism from work without pay. The matter arises from appellant allegedly calling off from work December 25, 28, and 29, 2011, without having any available sick time.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On January 11, 2012, the County served on appellant a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action suspending him for ten working-days. On May 15, 2012, a departmental hearing was held. The County issued a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action suspending appellant for six working-days to be served July 6 through 8, and July 11 through 13, 2012. Diaz filed an appeal with the Civil Service Commission on or about June 6, 2012. The matter was filed with the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case on June 15, 2012, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On June 25, 2013, respondent filed a summary decision motion. The appellant filed his opposition on August 23, 2013, and respondent replied to appellant's opposition to its motion on August 26, 2013. Oral argument was held on October 17, 2013.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

Respondent, in bringing the herein motion, relying upon the certifications of Richard Beardon and Alejandra Silva, and the exhibits attached thereto, asserts the following factual basis:

Diaz is a corrections officer employed by the respondent. Appellant applied for leave pursuant to the Family Medical Leave Act (FMLA), 29 C.F.R. 825.100 et seq, through the County's personnel department and was approved for intermittent leave for the period of June 1, 2011 through December 1, 2011. On or about June 8, 2011, appellant was mailed correspondence advising him that he had been approved for intermittent leave for that specific period. The last day that appellant called off from work that was covered by the FMLA leave period was November 18, 2011. At the time that the approved FMLA period expired the appellant had forty-days of Family Leave time available to him. However, the period had expired December 1, 2011, and such leave is required to be taken during the relevant period. Appellant did not submit additional documentation seeking to extend the FMLA leave period.

Employees of the corrections department are provided fifteen sick-days per year pursuant to the terms of the collective bargaining agreement. Appellant had exhausted his sick-day allotment by June 27, 2011. On December 25, 28, and 29, 2011, appellant called out of work in accordance with the appropriate call-out procedure citing FMLA as his reason. The FMLA period had expired by this time, and appellant had no sick days remaining.

The appellant was charged by the respondent for calling off work those three days. It was noted that this was a step-three infraction, as appellant had been previously found guilty of a step-one infraction for calling off December 9 and 10, 2011, and of a step-two infraction for calling off on December 21, 2011.

The preceding statements appear to not be in dispute and are hereby FOUND as FACT.

In bringing the herein motion respondent argues that the foregoing constitutes sufficient factual basis to sustain the charges as presented, and that no issues of material fact exist and that summary motion should be granted.

Appellant does not appear to dispute the fact-pattern described above, and offers additionally that petitioner honestly thought that he had been granted a full year FMLA leave. Appellant argues that issues of material fact exist in that appellant disputes the appropriateness of the suspension, and whether his conduct supports sustaining the charges.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

In an appeal from a disciplinary action or ruling by an appointing authority, the appointing authority bears the burden of proof to show that the action taken was appropriate. N.J.S.A. 11A:-2.21; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a). The authority must show by a preponderance of the competent, relevant and credible evidence that the employee is guilty as charged. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982). When dealing with the question of penalty in a de novo review of a disciplinary action against an employee, it is necessary to reevaluate the proofs and "penalty" on appeal, based on the charges. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-19; Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980); West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962).

The respondent has sustained charges of violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(A) 4. Chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(A)6 Conduct unbecoming of public employee; and N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(A)12 Other sufficient cause, specifically, violating Section A-4 of the Mercer County Table of Offenses and Penalties—chronic or excessive absenteeism from work without pay.

Respondent has brought the herein motion for summary decision. A motion for summary decision shall be granted if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged, and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(a). If a motion for "summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail, must by responding affidavit, set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding . . . If the adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered." Ibid. As respondent has brought multiple charges against appellant in this matter, a determination as to whether any genuine issue exists as to material fact must be made for each individual charge, as each charge may require a different set of material facts than another.

Respondent sustained charges against appellant for chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(4). Conduct that occurs over a period of time, or frequently recurs, is considered "chronic," and may be the basis of discipline or dismissal. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(4).

"Just cause for dismissal can be found in habitual tardiness or similar chronic conduct." West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 522 (1962). While a single instance may not be sufficient, "numerous occurrences over a reasonably short space of time, even though sporadic, may evidence an attitude of indifference amounting to neglect of duty." Ibid.

"There is no constitutional or statutory right to a government job. Our laws, as they relate to discharges or removal, are designed to promote efficient public service, not to benefit errant employees." State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Newark v. Gaines, 309 N.J. Super. 327, 334 (App. Div. 1998). However, approval of an absence shall not be unreasonably denied. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-6.2(b).

In Cumberland County Welfare Board v. Jordan, 81 N.J. Super. 406 (App. Div. 1963), a classified employee who was granted a leave of absence was improperly denied an extension of that leave because of the appointing authority's failure to provide proper notice of the denial; the appointing authority knew she was absent, was aware that she was confined to a hospital, and had previously granted the leave.

The record reflects that appellant had exhausted his sick leave allotment as of June 27, 2011, and therefore had no sick leave available to him when he called off work on December 25, 28 and 29, 2011. It further reflects that appellant applied for, and was granted, six-months of FMLA leave, for the period of June 1, 2011 through December 1, 2011. The record also reflects that appellant was provided notice of the period of his FMLA leave in June 2011, and that the period had expired when he called off work on December 25, 28, and 29, 2011. Finally, the record reflects that appellant had not sought to extend the FMLA period, and that employees of the respondent are expected to keep track of their available leave time.

It appears that the essential facts involving the herein motion are not in dispute as to the charge of chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(4). To the extent that appellant argues (through attorney assertion rather than the required responding affidavit), that appellant was under a mistaken belief that he had been granted FMLA leave for a period of one year rather than six months. I CONCLUDE that such assertion does not constitute a dispute as to material fact, especially in light of undisputed evidence that appellant was given notice of the specific period for which leave had been granted. Additionally, appellant's argument that issues of material fact exist in that appellant disputes the appropriateness of the suspension, and whether his conduct supports sustaining the charges do not suffice, as while resolution of those points may well be fact specific, no question of the underlying facts exist. As such, these issues are resolved by applying facts to law and are not in and of themselves a factual dispute.

Therefore, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:12.5(b) and Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995), I FIND that there are no genuine issues of material fact as to this charge, and that disposition of such is ripe for summary decision. Considering the facts as established, I CONCLUDE that the Appointing Authority has met its burden in demonstrating, by a preponderance of credible evidence, that petitioner is GUILTY of a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(4). The charge of chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness is SUSTAINED.

Appellant has also been charged with a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(11) Other sufficient cause. Specifically, appellant is charged with a step-three violation of A-4 on the Mercer County Public Safety Table of Offenses and Penalties which involves chronic or excessive absenteeism from work without pay. Item A-4 on that document appears to merely be suggested penalties for chronic or excessive absenteeism. As such, the analysis would likely be similar to that performed for the previous charge. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the charge of a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(11) Other sufficient cause, is redundant and is hereby DISMISSED.

Respondent also sustained charges against appellant for conduct unbecoming a public employee, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6). "Conduct unbecoming a public employee" is an elastic phrase, which encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also, In re Emmons, 63 NJ. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances "be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555 [quoting In re Zeber, 156 A.2d 821, 825 (1959)]. Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) [quoting Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)]. Suspension or removal may be justified where the misconduct occurred while the employee was off-duty. Emmons, supra, 63 N.J. Super. at 140.

In the present matter, the essential facts involving this motion are not in dispute as to the charge of conduct unbecoming a public employee, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6). Therefore, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:12.5(b) and Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995), I FIND that there are no genuine issues of material fact as to this charge and that disposition of such is ripe for summary decision. The record reflects that appellant called off from work, having exhausted all available leave time. While such behavior is not to be encouraged, as evinced by the sustaining of the charge of excessive absenteeism, it can hardly be said to "offend publicly accepted standards of decency" or to otherwise undermine public confidence in the carrying-out of the public's business, especially if done so, as appellant contends, due to honest mistake. I CONCLUDE that the record does not support the sustaining of a charge of Conduct Unbecoming, and that charge is hereby DISMISSED.

PENALTY

N.J.S.A. 11A:2-19 and N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.9(d) specifically grant the Commission authority to increase or decrease the penalty imposed by the appointing authority. Typically, the Board considers numerous factors, including the nature of the offense, the concept of progressive discipline and the employee's prior record. George v. N. Princeton Developmental Ctr., 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (CSV) 463. Removal shall not be substituted for a lesser penalty. See, Sabia v. City of Elizabeth, 132 N.J. Super. 6, 15-16 (App. Div. 1974), certif. denied, Elizabeth v. Sabia, 67 N.J. 97 (1975).

"Although we recognize that a tribunal may not consider an employee's past record to prove a present charge, West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 523 (1962), that past record may be considered when determining the appropriate penalty for the current offense." In re Phillips, 117 N.J. 567, 581 (1990).

Ultimately, however, "it is the appraisal of the seriousness of the offense which lies at the heart of the matter." Bowden v. Bayside State Prison, 268 N.J. Super. 301, 305 (App. Div. 1993), certif. denied, 135 N.J. 469 (1994).

In re Carter, 191 N.J. 474, 484 (2007), citing Rawlings v. Police Dep't of Jersey City, 133 N.J. 182, 197-98 (1993) (upholding dismissal of police officer who refused drug screening as "fairly proportionate" to offense); see also, In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19, 33 (2007) (DYFS worker who waved a lit cigarette lighter in a five-year-old's face was terminated, despite lack of any prior discipline):

> . . . judicial decisions have recognized that progressive discipline is not a necessary consideration when reviewing an agency head's choice of penalty when the misconduct is severe, when it is unbecoming to the employee's position or renders the employee unsuitable for continuation in the position, or when application of the principle would be contrary to the public interest.
> Thus, progressive discipline has been bypassed when an employee engages in severe misconduct, especially when the employee's position involves public safety and the misconduct causes risk of harm to persons or property. See, e.g., Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571, 580 (1980).

The record reflects that appellant has had a charge of chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(4) sustained. A review of appellant's disciplinary history informs that this would be a third such infraction. A-4 on the Mercer County Public Safety Table of Offenses and Penalties, although not binding upon this tribunal, recommends a ten-day suspension for a step-three violation. In consideration of the foregoing, along with appellant's disciplinary records, a six-day suspension appears to be a reasonable penalty consistent with progressive discipline. Appellant's argument that appellant is being penalized three times for calling off after the same FMLA period had expired due to what he terms a singular "honest mistake," is unpersuasive. The first and second infractions occurred when appellant called off work for December 9 and 10, 2011, and December 21, 2011, respectively, and only the third infraction is at issue in the current matter) The six-day suspension is AFFIRMED.

ORDER

I ORDER that respondent's motion for summary decision is hereby GRANTED. I further ORDER that the charge of chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(4) be SUSTAINED. I further ORDER that the charges of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct unbecoming, and N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(11) Other sufficient cause, specifically chronic or excessive absenteeism from work without pay identified as A-4 on the Mercer County Public Safety Table of Offenses and Penalties be DISMISSED. I finally ORDER that appellant's six-day suspension also be AFFIRMED.

This order may be reviewed by CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION either upon interlocutory review pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10 or at the end of the contested case, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6.

Record Closed: June 22, 2017 Decided: June 22, 2017

BEFORE JOHN S. KENNEDY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Daniel R. Hillersheim, was dismissed from a basic training course due to a positive drug test as well as a number of violations of the Police Training Commission (PTC)/Academy Rules. As a result, he was also removed from his position as a Police Officer in the City of Margate.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

By Notice of Dismissal dated December 4, 2014, the Camden County Police Academy (CCPA) dismissed petitioner from the CCPA. On January 12, 2015, the CCPA notified the Margate City Police Department (MCPD) that petitioner had submitted samples for urinalysis that revealed a positive indication of controlled substances. As a result petitioner was deemed "non-certified" and MCPD issued a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA) on June 8, 2015, removing him from the position of Police Officer as of June 8, 2015. On October 29, 2015, CCPA amended the Dismissal Notice to add five additional charges and specifications. Petitioner appealed both Notices of Dismissal and his removal from MCPD. All three matters were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for disposition where they were filed on July 23, 2015, (Removal), September 15, 2015, (First Notice of Dismissal) and September 15, 2016, (Amended Notice of Dismissal) as contested cases pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and 14F-1 to 13. The matters were originally assigned to the Honorable Bruce M. Gorman, Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) and later reassigned to me upon Judge Gorman's retirement. All three cases were consolidated by Order dated September 29, 2016, and the PTC was deemed to have the predominant interest.

FACTUAL DISCUSSIONS AND FINDINGS

On September 29, 2016, discovery was served upon petitioner's attorney by the CCPA with a request for reciprocal discovery. No responses have been received. This matter was the subject of several telephone conferences to discuss discovery and scheduling of hearing dates. On more than on occasion during these telephone conferences, petitioner's attorney advised that petitioner has been unresponsive to his requests to complete responses to the discovery. During a telephone conference on March 30, 2017, I directed petitioner's attorney to respond to the propounded discovery with in thirty days. If no response was forthcoming, I directed CCPA to file a Motion to Dismiss. On May 22, 2017, CCPA filed the motion. A telephone conference call was conducted on June 13, 2017, at which time petitioner's attorney advised that petitioner has not responded to numerous attempts to complete discovery and has not corresponded with him whatsoever. On June 13, 2017, I sent a letter to petitioner and all of the attorneys involved in this matter, advising that a telephone conference was scheduled for June 20, 2017, at 3:30 p.m. That letter advised that if petitioner failed to participate in the telephone conference, the cases would be withdrawn and returned to the transmitting agencies. On June 20, 2017, a telephone conference was conducted at 3:30 p.m. All of the attorneys participated in the telephone conference. Petitioner did not. I inquired if petitioner's attorney had heard from his client or had any update as to whether petitioner intended to proceed with his appeal and was advised that the attorney had not heard from his client. The telephone conference was terminated at 3:46 p.m. without petitioner's participation. Petitioner has not contacted the OAL to date to explain his failure to appear.

Based upon the foregoing, I FIND as FACT that petitioner has failed to respond to discovery served on September 29, 2016, and has not been in contact with his attorney. I also FIND as FACT the petitioner failed to appear for the telephone conference on June 20, 2017. I also FIND as FACT that no explanation for the non-appearance of petitioner has been received.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a) "If, after appropriate notice, neither a party nor a representative appears at any proceeding scheduled by the Clerk or judge, the judge shall hold the matter for one day before taking any action. If the judge does not receive an explanation for the non-appearance within one day, the judge shall, direct the Clerk to return the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b) and (c).

This matter was scheduled for a telephone conference on June 20, 2017. Petitioner was notified directly by this office of the date and advised that his participation was mandatory. He failed to appear or participate in the telephone conference and has not submitted any explanation as to his failure to appear.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has abandoned his appeals and direct the Clerk to return all three matters to the transmitting agencies.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the Clerk return these matters to the Police Training Commission and Civil Service Commission for appropriate disposition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b) and (c).

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with POLICE TRAINING COMMISSION.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the POLICE TRAINING COMMISSION, who/which by law is authorized to make the final decision on all issues within the scope of its predominant interest. If the POLICE TRAINING COMMISSION does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision on all of the issues within the scope of predominant interest shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL, POLICE TRAINING COMMISSION, Richard J. Hughes Justice Complex, PO Box 085, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0085,, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.8, upon rendering its final decision POLICE TRAINING COMMISSION shall forward the record, including this recommended decision and its final decision, to CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION which may subsequently render a final decision on any remaining issues and consider any specific remedies which may be within its statutory grant of authority.

Upon transmitting the record, POLICE TRAINING COMMISSION shall, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.8(c), request an extension to permit the rendering of a final decision by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION within forty-five days of the predominant agency decision. If the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION does not render a final decision within the extended time, this recommended decision on the remaining issues and remedies shall become the final decision.

FINAL DECISION - AMENDED

OAL Docket No. PTC 14686-15
AND CSV 11093-15[1]
(CONSOLIDATED)

The Police Training Commission received an Initial Decision in this matter on June 22, 2017. This final decision was rendered within the time limits prescribed by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6.

Petitioner Daniel Hillesheim was enrolled in the Basic Training Course for Police Officers at the Camden County College Police Academy. On December 4, 2014, Petitioner was dismissed from the basic course for positive drug test for a controlled dangerous substance. Petitioner filed an appeal with the Police Training Commission, which was referred to the Office of Administrative Law. On October 29, 2015 an Amended Dismissal Notice was filed with the Office of Administrative Law. The Amended Dismissal Notice cited positive drug test, violation of orders, violation of candor and honesty, filing false reports, falsifying application, violation of drug regulation, and failure to report injury in violation of PTC or academy rules as the reasons for dismissal.

1 The Initial Decision lists the docket numbers as PTC 14686-15 and PTC 20648-15. After verifying with the Civil Service Commission, the docket numbers have been corrected. Thus, the Initial Decision is modified accordingly.

On September 29, 2016, a discovery request was served on the petitioner's attorney. No response was ever received. Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) John Kennedy scheduled numerous telephone conferences between March 30 and June 20, 2017, none of which the petitioner phoned in for. Petitioner's attorney also reported that his attempts to contact his client were unsuccessful.

As a result of the June 20, 2017 telephone conference and petitioner's failure to appear by telephone on that day, the ALJ concluded that the petitioner has abandoned his appeal and closed the case.

On Wednesday, August 2, 2017, at a regular meeting of the Police Training Commission, the commissioners reviewed the Initial Decision rendered by Judge Kennedy. The commissioners voted to adopt the Initial Decision as the FINAL DECISION.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE

THIS SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE (hereinafter referred to as the "AGREEMENT"), is made this ___ day of January, 2017 by and among the County of Bergen, a governmental entity created under the laws and Constitution of the State of New Jersey, whose principal offices are located at One Bergen County Plaza, Hackensack, New Jersey 07601 (hereinafter referred to as the "COUNTY"); Paul Horvath, an employee of the COUNTY with a mailing address of 522 Park Place, Lyndhurst, New Jersey 07071 (hereinafter referred to as "HORVATH"); and, the United Service Workers Union, Local 655, the majority representative representing the position held by HORVATH, whose address is 13850 Queens Blvd, Jamaica, New York 11435 (hereinafter referred to as the "UNION").

1. The COUNTY, as defined and used throughout this Agreement, shall at all times mean the COUNTY OF BERGEN, its divisions, subdivisions, departments, agencies, affiliates, designees, predecessors, successors and assigns of any and all of them, their past, present and future directors, officers, officials (elected and/or appointed), representatives, employees, agents, attorneys, heirs, executors and administrators, whether in their individual or official capacities, in the past, present and future.

2. HORVATH, as defined and used throughout this Agreement, shall mean PAUL HORVATH, his family (by marriage and/or blood relation), relatives, heirs, representatives, designees, privies, executors, administrators, representatives, assigns, successors-in-interest and predecessors-in-interest.

3. The UNION, as defined and used throughout this Agreement, shall at all times mean the United Service Workers Union, Local 655, its affiliates, subsidiaries, designees, predecessors, successors and assigns of any and all of them, their past, present and future directors, officers, officials (elected and/or appointed), representatives, employees, agents, attorneys, heirs, executors and administrators, whether in their individual or official capacities, in the past, present and future.

4. The parties agree that this AGREEMENT is contingent upon and subject to execution by HORVATH and the UNION and approval and ratification by the COUNTY.

5. In consideration of the mutual promises of this AGREEMENT and for other good and valuable consideration, the sufficiency of which the parties hereby acknowledge, the parties agree to resolve all appeals of the disciplinary and administrative actions between them under the terms of this AGREEMENT.

a. HORVATH was employed by the COUNTY as a Mosquito Control Heavy Machine Operator.

b. On or about August 24, 2016, the COUNTY served HORVATH with a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (hereinafter referred to as the "PNDA") in which the COUNTY charged HORVATH with violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1) Incompetency, inefficiency or failure to perform duties; (3) Inability to perform duties; (6) Conduct unbecoming a public employee; (7) Neglect of duty; (8) Misuse of Public Property, including automobiles; (9) Discrimination that affects equal employment opportunity (as defined in N.J.A.C. 4A:7-1.1), including sexual harassment; and (12) Other sufficient cause. The COUNTY also charged Horvath with violations of the COUNTY E-Mail / Internet Use Agreement and violations of the COUNTY Anti-harassment Policy.

c. On or about October 13, 2016, after a hearing on the charges presented in the PNDA, the COUNTY served HORVATH with a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (hereinafter referred to as the "FNDA") in which the COUNTY found HORVATH guilty of all charges. The COUNTY removed HORVATH from employment with the COUNTY effective October 21, 2016 based upon its findings of guilt.

d. HORVATH appealed the suspension to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") in a matter entitled Horvath, Paul v. County of Bergen, Department of Public Works, OAL Docket No. CSV 17081-2016 N, which appeal remains pending.

6. In order to avoid the time and expense and uncertainty of proceeding with the outstanding disciplinary and administrative appeal action, HORVATH, the UNION and the COUNTY, through their respective attorneys and/or representatives, agree to enter into the within AGREEMENT upon the following terms and conditions, which are now to be made effective:

a. HORVATH shall dismiss his appeal entitled Horvath, Paul v. County of Bergen, Department of Public Works, OAL Docket No. CSV 17081-2016 N, with prejudice, and provide an irrevocable resignation from his employment with the COUNTY in good standing retroactive back to October 21, 2016. The County shall accept HORVATH's resignation in good standing in lieu of termination and HORVATH's personnel records shall be amended to reflect that he resigned in good standing effective October 21, 2016.

b. HORVATH and the UNION agree not to contest, in any judicial, quasi-judicial or administrative forum, any of the terms and conditions of this AGREEMENT.

c. HORVATH agrees never to seek employment with the COUNTY, in any capacity whatsoever, after his resignation from the COUNTY.

d. HORVATH waives any and all claims for back or front pay or payment for any accumulated leave time or the receipt of any benefits under any applicable collective bargaining agreement between the UNION and the COUNTY covering HORVATH and/or any COUNTY policy/practice.

7. HORVATH releases, acquits, gives up and forever discharges any and all claims and rights that he may have against the COUNTY and any and all of its officials (elected and/or appointed), officers, employees, representatives, assigns, successors and designees, up to the time of complete execution of this AGREEMENT by all parties. This releases any and all claims, including those that HORVATH, his family, designees, representatives and assigns are not aware and those not mentioned in this Agreement. This AGREEMENT applies to claims resulting from anything that has happened from HORVATH's first (1st) date of application for employment with the COUNTY through the date of complete execution of this AGREEMENT by all parties and the receipt of the irrevocable letter of resignation from HORVATH. HORVATH specifically releases the following claims:

A copy of any such Order will be provided to the COUNTY for its records and response.

9. The waiver by HORVATH, the UNION and the COUNTY of a breach of any provision hereof shall not operate or be construed as a waiver of that breach by the other or as a waiver of any subsequent breach by the other.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE REGARDING RETRO PAY UNDER 2016 COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENT

1) The parties to this agreement are Paul Horvath ("Horvath"), the County of Bergen ("County"), and United Service Workers Union Local 655 ("Union").
2) In or around November, 2016, the County and Union entered into a renewal collective bargaining agreement providing that certain pay raises, retroactive to January 1, 2016, for employees who were on the County payroll as of October 1, 2016.
3) On August 24, 2016, Horvath was served with Section 31-A charges and the County notified him of its intent to seek his removal from his job with the County.
4) On or around October 13, 2016, Horvath was served with a Section 31-B notice and officially removed from employment with the County.
5) Horvath appealed the final notice of disciplinary action to Civil Service, and the case was referred to the NJ Office of Administrative Law for adjudication.
6) In lieu of proceeding with appeal at OAL, Horvath and the County have agreed, via a separate Agreement, that Horvath will resign from his employment with the County and waive all claims/remedies, as is set forth in the particulars of that Agreement.
7) Horvath maintains he is entitled to retro pay under the CBA, irrespective of his termination or the reasons therefore. The County denies that Horvath is entitled to any retro pay.
8) The parties agree that, were Horvath entitled to any retro pay, the amount of such retro pay is $884.00.
9) Without admitting that Horvath is entitled to such retro pay, the County, as an inducement for Horvath to enter into the settlement agreement resolving the OAL appeal, shall pay Horvath $884.00 in retro pay by good check or direct deposit in the next regular payroll cycle after the County executes this Agreement.
10) Horvath warrants that he is owed no other wages, commissions, bonuses, or any other forms of compensation or reimbursements from Bergen County, from the beginning of time up to and through the making of this Agreement.
11) Horvath shall execute this Agreement, and the OAL settlement agreement simultaneously, and send them both to the County for signature.
12) This matter is settled special to its facts and shall not constitute precedent between the Employer and the Union with regard to any other matters involving retro pay under the renewal CBA.
13) Horvath and the Union agree that this Agreement is to be kept strictly confidential and may not be disclosed to any other parties.
14) The parties agree that this Agreement is supported by adequate consideration.
15) Horvath agrees that he has been fully and fairly represented by Local 655 in all matters pertaining to this Agreement and his separation from employment.

Paul Lawrence v. Borough of Milltown
OAL Docket No.: CSV 14975-2016N
Agency Reference No. 2017-884

This Settlement Agreement and Release ("Agreement") is made this 28 day of June 2017, by and between Appellant Paul Lawrence ("Lawrence"" or "Appellant") and Respondent, Borough of Milltown, ("Borough" or "Respondent") (collectively, the "Parties").

WHEREAS, on or about September 2, 2016, Respondent issued Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action to Appellant, Truck Driver, asserting a Charge of Conduct Unbecoming, and

WHEREAS, the Departmental Hearing of the above Charge took place on September 19, 2016, and

WHEREAS, on September 22, 2016 Respondent issued a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action imposing an unpaid suspension on Appellant of thirty (30) working days beginning on September 2, 2016 and concluding on October 14, 2016; and

WHEREAS, Appellant initiated the instant appeal with the Civil Service Commission ("CSC"); and

WHEREAS, without waiving their respective positions and without any admissions as to liability, the Parties wish to fully resolve the pending appeal and Administrative Law Hearing, and all related claims and defenses by and between them pursuant to the terms and conditions set forth below; and

NOW THEREFORE, the Parties hereby agree to the following terms as full and final settlement of the above matter:

1. This Agreement sets forth all of the terms and conditions of the Parties' agreement.

2. Respondent will reduce the penalty imposed upon Appellant to thirty (30) calendar days, beginning on September 2, 2016 and concluding on October 2, 2016. Appellant shall be entitled to receive ten (10) days back pay, representing the period between October 3, 2016 and October 14, 2016. As the payment represents back pay, all usual and mandatory deductions and withholdings will be made by Respondent.

3. The payment under Paragraph 2 shall represent Respondent's entire financial obligation to Appellant in connection with this action.

4. The Parties agree that Appellant is not a prevailing party and as such, Appellant expressly waives any claims for attorneys' fees incurred in connection with this action.

5. The payment under Paragraph 2 shall be made to Appellant within thirty (30) days after approval of this Agreement by the Honorable Ellen S. Bass, A.L.J.

6. Appellant agrees to voluntarily dismiss the instant Appeal with prejudice.

7. Respondent agrees to revise all relevant internal records to reflect the reduction of penalty imposed upon Appellant pursuant to Paragraph 2 hereunder. Appellant agrees that Respondent had probable cause to impose the penalty as set forth in Paragraph 2 hereunder.

8. In exchange for the consideration set forth in Paragraphs 2 and 7, the sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, Appellant hereby waives, releases and discharges any and all claims or rights that he has or may have against Respondent, Borough of Milltown, and any and all other officers, employees, representatives, agents, successors and assigns of Respondent (collectively, the "Released Parties"), including any claim for attorneys' fees, costs or other monetary relief, relating to the facts and circumstances of his pending appeal. This waiver, release and discharge includes, without limitation all claims which Appellant may have regarding discrimination on any basis, any federal or state civil rights law, any alleged violation of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, as amended; the Older Worker Benefits Protection Act; Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended; Sections 1981 through 1988 of Title 42 of the United States Code; the Civil Rights Act of 1991; the Equal Pay Act; the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Rehabilitation Act; the Family and Medical Leave Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended; the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act; the National Labor Relations Act; the Fair Credit Reporting Act; the Occupational Safety and Health Act; the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Act; the Employee Polygraph Protection Act; the Immigration Reform Control Act; the retaliation provisions of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002; the False Claims Act; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act; the New Jersey Family Leave Act; the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law; the New Jersey Equal Pay Law; the New Jersey Occupational Safety and Health Law; the New Jersey Smokers' Rights Law; the New Jersey Genetic Privacy Act; the New Jersey Fair Credit Reporting Act; New Jersey Wages and Hours Law, disability benefits laws, the United States Constitution, the New Jersey Constitution; and/or any other alleged violation of any federal, state or local law, regulation or ordinance; any claim based on contract, implied contract, collective bargaining agreement, tort law, personal injury, or public policy, including but not limited to any claim for wrongful discharge, back pay, vacation pay, sick pay, personal day pay, wages, attorneys' fees, costs, and/or future wage loss. Appellant does not waive or release any claim that cannot be waived or released as a matter of law.

9. To comply with the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act, if applicable, this Agreement advises Appellant of the legal requirements of the Act and fully incorporates the legal requirements by reference into this Agreement. Accordingly, by executing this Agreement, Appellant acknowledges that he: (i) fully understands the terms and conditions of this Agreement; (ii) has consulted with an attorney to review the Agreement; (iii) specifically waives his right to pursue any current claims he may have under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act; (iv) has been given twenty-one (21) days within which to consider this Agreement; and (v) has 7 days from the date of the execution of this Agreement to revoke it. Appellant understands that he may rescind this Agreement within 7 calendar days of signing it, and such rescission must be in writing and delivered to counsel for the Respondent either by hand or by certified mail within the 7 day period.

10. The Parties agree to keep confidential and not share any information as to the terms of the settlement agreement and release, except as required by law.

11. This Agreement is subject to the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Civil Service Commission.

12. This Agreement may not be modified, altered, changed, discharged, terminated or waived, except upon express written consent of the Parties.

13. This Agreement shall not serve as a precedent for any other employee or matter.

14. The Parties agree that if any portion of this Agreement is deemed unenforceable, the remainder of the Agreement shall be fully enforceable.

15. The Parties acknowledge that they have entered into this Agreement voluntarily, with the assistance of counsel, and hereby sign it without duress or coercion.

16. This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New Jersey.

OF THE
CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: AUGUST 22, 2017 BW

The appeal of Kellie Martin, Senior Public Safety Telecommunicator, Burlington County, Department of Public Safety, demotion to Public Safety Telecommunicator, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin, who rendered his initial decision on July 6, 2017. No exceptions were filed.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission, at its meeting on August 16, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 11478-13
AGENCY DKT. NO. #2014-243

IN THE MATTER OF KELLIE MARTIN, BURLINGTON COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY.

Kellie Martin, appellant, pro se

Laurel Peltzman, Esq., for respondent Burlington County Department of Public Safety (Capehart & Scatchard, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 30, 2017 Decided: July 6, 2017

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ t/a:

Kellie Martin was a Senior Public Safety Tele-Communicator (SPST) for the Burlington County Department of Public Safety. Her employer demoted her to Public Safety Tele-Communicator (PST), effective July 23, 2013. According to a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action issued on June 24, 2013, her demotion was the result of a determination that she was unable to perform her duties, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(3). The basis for this was that Martin suffers from limitations affecting her hearing. According to the County, her position as a SPST required that she be able to utilize both ears simultaneously, which she could not do due to these auditory limitations. Ms. Martin appealed her demotion to the Civil Service Commission, which transferred the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing. The case was originally assigned to Judge Robert Bingham, II. Judge Bingham issued a Letter Order on April 2, 2015, following a March 31, 2015, telephone prehearing conference. After Judge Bingham's appointment to the Superior Court, the case was transferred to this judge, serving on recall, in November 2016.

In September 2015, the respondent moved for summary decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. On January 12, 2017, this judge issued an Order, granting the motion in part and denying it in part. More specifically, I found that the parties had entered into a Joint Stipulation of Facts, J-1. In granting the County's motion in part, I found, based upon elements of that Stipulation, that "Kellie Martin cannot perform duties that necessitate the ability to hear in one ear while speaking, writing and listening with her other ear. As such, she cannot fulfill the duties purportedly required of a Senior Safety Tele-Communicator." That said, the Order addressed Ms. Martin's claim, in opposition to the motion, that with regard to the County's claim regarding the required elements of the Senior PST position, "[H]er claim that these duties have not been required of others holding the position and that she has been discriminated against due to her disability will abide further discovery and motion or hearing, as warranted." Thus, the denial in part of the motion.[1] A copy of the Order is included as an exhibit with this decision for convenient reference.

Following the issuance of the Order, the parties were permitted to engage in further discovery regarding Ms. Martin's claim that, despite her admitted physical limitation and inability to perform in tasks purportedly required for the Senior PST position, others similarly situated to her had been permitted to retain their position as a Senior PST despite their inability to perform the purported mandatory requirements of that position. She thus claimed to have suffered treatment that was disparate from such similarly situated employees. As the previous order noted, "Further discovery should proceed, during which the County can, if it chooses, use interrogatories to attempt to flesh out Ms. Martin's claim that she has been the victim of discrimination. Ms. Martin must understand that she will be required to provide detailed information to support her claim that others who were unable to perform in these subdivisions were allowed to retain their senior status. If she is unable to do so, the fact, as found here, that she cannot perform in the three subdivisions will result in her demotion being upheld." An Order respecting elements of the on-going discovery was issued on May 1, 2017.

[1] Based on exhibits presented by the County as part of an evidence book offered in support of its motion for summary decision, it appears that Ms. Martin filed a Complaint on August 23, with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC). The EEOC dismissed the Complaint on May 12, 2015, as "unable to conclude that the information obtained establishes violations of the statutes." The notice of this dismissal also contained a "Notice of Suit Rights." See Exhibits R-3 and R-4.

On May 30, 2017, the respondent renewed its motion for summary decision, contending that as a result of further discovery, it was clear that Ms. Martin had failed to provide any meaningful support for her claim of discrimination and that, as a matter of law, her appeal should be dismissed and her demotion upheld. On June 22, Ms. Martin responded to the renewed motion.[2] The respondent replied to her submission on June 30.

According to the respondent's renewed motion, it served interrogatories upon Ms. Martin to which she responded on February 9, 2017. In those responses Ms. Martin identified numerous employees who, according to her, were "unable to perform the tasks required for the Police, Fire/EMS and Countywide subdivisions in the public safety center while holding the title of Senior PST." However an examination of her answers shows that in almost every case the claim is that the individuals identified have not been trained to work in a particular area and/or not asked to perform in other subdivisions. After identifying a series of names, Martin writes "they were all senior PST's at one time and were not trained or required to work in all four subdivisions of the public safety Center while still holding a senior PST title." Only in regard to one named employee, Meredith Bell, does Martin say, "He also had physical limitations that kept him from working police desk or any other area and was only required to work in the call-taking the last several years of his employment."

[2] Her response is dated June 10, but was not received by the OAL until June 22, 2017.

In support of the renewed motion, and in reply to Ms. Martin's assertions in her answers to its interrogatories, the respondent has supplied a Certification from Howard Black, Deputy Director of the Burlington County Department of Public Safety, Communications Center. Mr. Black states that he is "unaware of any senior PST, other than Ms. Martin, who is/was limited or unable to perform the duties attendant to another subdivision besides call-taking." He also addresses the situation of Bonnie Taylor, a Senior PST who, according to Ms. Martin's response to the January 25, 2017, interrogatory, was employed, "[W]hen the county decided my demotion was necessary," and who "was allowed to keep her title as a Senior PST even though she was unable to work in any other division other than call-taking. She wasn't required to train or work in any other area. It was only after I decided to bring a suit against Burlington County that she was required to train on police radio, in which she was not required to work once her training was done. She remained a Senior PST and only worked in the call-taking division." However, according to Mr. Black's Certification, he reviewed Ms. Taylor's file and "to my knowledge, Ms. Taylor was never limited or unable to perform the duties attendant to the other subdivisions besides call-taking. Indeed, Bonnie Taylor was trained on Police Desk and was able to work at the Police Desk if she was called upon to do so."

In her reply to the renewed motion, Ms. Martin first complains that she did not receive "any of the discovery I have asked for that would have proven my claim," discovery which she contends would have proven "that several senior public safety telecommunicators were only assigned to one division (call-taking) for all of or the last several years of their employment as a senior public safety telecommunicator." She argues that the expectations placed on her by the County were "obvious[ly] . . . more complex than those of other SPSTs." She next seems to contend that she was somehow disadvantaged at the time of a promotional Civil Service test for Senior PST. However, it is unclear exactly how this is related to her contention concerning the validity of her demotion from SPST. As for the discovery issue, it is again noted that an Order was issued dealing with discovery on May 1, 2007, and it has not been shown that the respondent did not adhere to that Order.

In her reply, Ms. Martin iterates her contentions in her interrogatory responses concerning Bonnie Taylor and Meredith Bell. She claims that due to Howard Black's limited period of service in his position, he "would not be aware of Mr. Bell's limitations or inability to perform in any other division during the time of Mr. Bell's employment nor would he be aware of promotional requirements prior to taking his present position."

In addition to her letter response to the motion, Ms. Martin has supplied a memo, dated December 28, 2005, from Jeffrey Johnson, Chief PST to Kellie Howe (apparently this is another name by which Ms. Martin was then known) regarding "Senior Position" and a letter, dated February 7, 2017, from Helen Rumph, each of which will be discussed later in this decision.

The County's reply dismisses Ms. Martin's arguments and contentions as either irrelevant to the current appeal or insufficient to demonstrate the existence of genuine issues of material fact that would defeat its motion. In addition, the respondent offers additional Certifications, from Kevin Briggs, Supervising Public Safety Telecommunicator/911 Coordinator, and Christian Carroll, Chief Public Safety Telecommunicator.

Summary Decision

The New Jersey Supreme Court defined the standard for determining motions for summary decision in Brill v. The Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, et al., 142 N.J. 520 (1995). In this case, the Court elaborated upon the standards first established in Judson v. People's Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74-75 (1954). Under the Brill standard, a motion for summary decision may only be granted where there are no "genuine disputes" of "material fact." The determination as to whether disputes of material fact exist is made after a "discriminating search" of the record, consisting as it may of affidavits, certifications, documentary exhibits and any other evidence filed by the movant and any such evidence filed in response to the motion, with all reasonable inferences arising from the evidence being accorded to the opponent of the motion. In order to defeat the motion, the opposing party must establish the existence of "genuine" disputes of material fact. The substantive law governing a dispute determines which facts are material. Only disputes regarding "those facts that might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law will properly preclude the entry of summary judgment." Dungee v. Northeast Foods, Inc., 940 F. Supp. 682, 685 (D.N.J. 1996), quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2511, 91 L. Ed.2d 202, 211 (1986) (Anderson).

In Judson, supra, at 75, the Supreme Court stated that the material facts allegedly in dispute upon which the party opposing the motion relies to defeat the motion must be something more than "facts which are immaterial or of an insubstantial nature, a mere scintilla, fanciful, frivolous, gauzy or merely suspicious, . . . ," (citations omitted). Brill focuses upon the analytical procedure for determining whether a purported dispute of material fact is "genuine" or is simply of an "insubstantial nature." Brill, supra at 530. Brill concludes that the same analytical process used to decide motions for a directed verdict is used to resolve summary decision motions. "The essence of the inquiry in each is the same: 'whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require submission to a jury or whether it is so one-sided that a party must prevail as a matter of law.'" Id. at 536, quoting Anderson, supra, at 477 U.S. 251-52, 106 S. Ct 2505, 2512, 91 L.Ed 2d 214. In searching the proffered evidence to determine the motion, the judge must be guided by the applicable substantive evidentiary standard of proof, that is, the "burden of persuasion" which would apply at trial on the merits, whether that is the preponderance of the evidence or the clear and convincing evidence standard. If a careful review under this standard establishes that no reasonable fact finder could resolve the disputed material facts in favor of the party opposing the motion, then the uncontradicted facts thus established can be examined in the light of the applicable substantive law to determine whether or not the movant is clearly entitled to judgment as a matter of law. However, where the proofs in the record are such that "reasonable minds could differ" as to the material facts, then the motion must be denied and a full evidentiary hearing held.

Discussion

Burlington County based its original motion for summary decision upon its contention that Ms. Martin is indisputably unable to perform tasks which are essential elements of the critical public-safety communicator position from which she is being demoted. The County, through the first Certification supplied by Kevin Briggs, Supervisor in the Department of Public Safety, Communications Center, supplied evidence respecting the mandatory requirement that a Senior PST must be able to perform duties in more subdivisions than solely in the call-taking division. She must be able to perform in at least one additional subdivision. The nature of the job responsibility requires her to be able to use both ears simultaneously and, according to the Joint Stipulation of Facts, Ms. Martin is unable to do so due to hearing loss, a deficiency which has been attested to by her own physician. Thus, it argued, her demotion, based upon her inability to perform, should be upheld and her appeal dismissed.

As has been stated, the evidence offered by the County as to Ms. Martin's auditory deficiency and its impact on her ability to perform her job as a SPST is now, and was previously, unopposed. Medical examination by an auditory specialist confirmed her hearing loss and noted that she herself had expressed her belief that her hearing loss hampered her ability to perform her job properly. Thus, the finding in the prior Order that the County had sustained its position that she could not perform her duties and that summary decision was warranted as to that contention. However, as also noted, Ms. Martin claims that, despite her acknowledged inability to perform and despite the supposedly mandatory requirement to be capable of performing in more than one subdivision, in fact other employees with her previous title as a SPST have not been required to perform in other divisions. Thus, she claims that while she may indeed be physically limited, she has suffered disparate treatment at the hands of the County, as she is being discriminated against due to her disability. Given this, her demotion must be overturned.

As the County points out in its brief, to establish a prima facie case of disparate treatment, Ms. Martin must establish that (1) she belongs to a protected class; (2) she was performing her job at a level that met her employer's legitimate expectations; (3) she suffered an adverse employment action, and (4) others not within the protected class did not suffer similar adverse employment action. El-Sioufi v. St. Peter's Hosp., 382 N.J. Super. 145, 167 (App. Div. 2005). In respect to the second of these elements, while an employer is generally required "to consider all reasonable accommodations that may be made in a job requirement so as to permit a person suffering from a disability the opportunity to remain in position . . . the employer is not required to change the reasonable requirements of a position in order to allow someone to remain in that position if the reasonable accommodation cannot be made while allowing the function to be properly performed." This is especially the case where the job involves matters related to the public safety and welfare. At the same time, an employer may not require a disabled employee to perform job tasks that others holding the same position are not capable of performing and then use the disabled employee's inability to perform such task(s) as the basis for claiming that the employee is unable to perform the job.

It is important to note that the examination respecting alleged disparate treatment must be made between individuals who are similarly situated. Thus, as Ms. Martin is physically incapable of performing the required task of using both ears during elements of the required work in other divisions, the meaningful comparison in her case is not with employees who are said to be "incapable" of performance simply due to their not having received training to perform in other divisions and/or because they have not been asked to perform in other divisions, but with other employees with similarly disabling physical or mental conditions that prevent them from actually being able to perform, even if they have received, or attempted to receive, the necessary training. The factor that limits, and indeed prevents, Ms. Martin, from performing tasks that a Senior PST must be capable of performing is not a lack of training or an opportunity to perform in other subdivisions, but an actual physical disability to engage in such performance. As a result, the information provided by Ms. Martin in her answer to the supplemental discovery, in which she lists many present and past employees who were supposedly not required to perform in other subdivisions, or who had not received training to do so, is of no consequence. Indeed, as made clear in her letter responding to the renewed motion, her claim is not that Bonnie Taylor was physically or mentally incapable of performance in other divisions, only that she lacked training to do so, and was only re-trained to be able to perform work at the police desk after Martin noted her lack of training when Martin was demoted. And as Christian Carroll certifies in his June 28, 2017, Certification, Taylor was trained on Police Desk as well as on call-taking and was "never limited or unable to perform the duties attendant to other subdivisions besides call-taking."

The only individual Ms. Martin appears to identify as having a "physical limitation" is Meredith Bell. However, Martin provides no additional information whatsoever as to the nature of this supposed physical limitation, nor any indication that she had personal knowledge of his alleged limitations or how they impacted Mr. Bell's abilities, rather than perhaps indirect awareness through others. As for the letter from Helen Rumph, which is neither in the form of an affidavit or a certification, as such supporting documentation must be under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), Rumph identifies herself as Martin's Senior Communications Operator and/or Supervisor from 1992 to 2014. In referring to Mr. Bell, Rumpf states that he had "limited physical capacity." She does not indicate the nature of this "incapacity" or how it limited Bell from performing in other divisions than call-taking.

A mere "bald" assertion that Mr. Bell had a physical limitation, much less one affecting his ability to perform a required job responsibility, unaccompanied by any form of proof as to the existence of the limitation and how it affected Mr. Bell in his ability to perform the requirements of the Senior PST position, other than an uncertified letter containing no significant additional information on this point, is insufficient by itself to raise a genuine issue of factual dispute. While Martin offers such "gauzy" claims, on behalf of the respondent, Mr. Black specifically states that Ms. Martin is the only Senior PST of whom he is aware "who was limited or unable to perform the duties attendant to another subdivision besides call-taking." Additionally, in reply to her letter response, Kevin Briggs certifies that he supervised both Martin and Bell and that "Bell worked in the Call Center and was trained in Police Desk. He was capable of performing the duties of Police Desk if called upon to do so." He also notes that of all the Senior PSTs of whom he was aware, only Martin was limited or unable to perform "the duties attendant to at least one other subdivision besides call-taking."

While it is recognized that Ms. Martin would be unlikely to have any significant details concerning the alleged "physical limitation" supposedly affecting Mr. Bell, it must be assumed that if she asserts the existence of such a limitation she must have some sufficient familiarity with the general nature of that limitation so as to be able to at least describe it in regard to how she understood it affected and limited Mr. Bell. Yet, in her answer to the interrogatory and in her letter response, she refers to it only in this most general and unrevealing terminology. Such a "gauzy" assertion is the very "scintilla" of evidence that cannot stand to create a genuine dispute of material fact. Judson, supra, at 75. The claim is at best, "insubstantial," Brill, supra at 530.

As Ms. Martin is the party asserting that she was the subject of disparate treatment, the burden to, at the very least, identify with some specificity the individuals who were similarly situated and yet treated differently must rest with her. Based upon the submissions made in respect to the original motion for summary decision and its renewal, I FIND that Ms. Martin has failed to provide sufficient evidence to support a prima facie case that she was improperly treated as opposed to other individuals similarly situated to her. While no doubt as an individual suffering from the hearing loss she is a member of a protected class and she did suffer an adverse employment action, the evidence makes clear that she was not capable of performing required elements of the significant public safety position she held. There is no assertion, or any evidence to support any suggestion that the requirement she could not fulfill was unreasonable, particularly given the nature of these critical, public safety-related communications positions. Where it is certainly possible that were she capable of performing the job fully, she might not be asked to perform in other subdivisions, or conceivably might not even receive training to permit her to do so, she would nevertheless be either capable of receiving such training or, if trained, of stepping in to do the work in other divisions at such time as the employer found it necessary for her to do so. But with the disability which she admittedly has, she cannot actually perform in these other subdivisions, and it must be presumed, could not be properly trained to do so due to her physical limitations.

I CONCLUDE that Ms. Martin has failed to present evidence necessary to establish the existence of a prima facie case of disparate treatment, as she is unable to fulfill the requirement to establish that others similarly situated to herself have not suffered the same adverse employment action as she did.[3] As a result, and as she is, as stipulated, physically incapable of performing reasonable requirements of the Senior PST position, I CONCLUDE that there are no genuine issues of material fact in dispute and that the respondent's renewed motion for summary decision should be GRANTED. I CONCLUDE that the County has met its burden of supporting Ms. Martin's demotion, based upon N.J.A.C. 4:2-2.3(3). The appeal is therefore DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B10.

[3] The respondent notes that if Mr. Bell actually was physically or mentally limited such that he could not perform the duties attendant to one of the divisions other than call-taking, the County did not demote him, which suggests that it did not, as she claims, discriminate against Ms. Martin due to her disability. Of course, as has been discussed, her claim that Bell was affected by any such limitation has not been sustained by any competent and substantial proof, and the record thus is that only Martin was so limited.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, PO Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

4. parties specifically disclaim any liability to each other or to any other person. The parties have entered into this Agreement for the sole purpose of resolving the subject matter of this case and any related claims, both asserted and unasserted, in order to avoid the burden, expense, delay and uncertainties of litigation. 7. This Agreement is made and entered into in the State of New Jersey and shall in all respects be interpreted, enforced and governed under laws of the State of New Jersey. The language of all parts of this Agreement shall, in all cases, be constructed as a whole, according to its fair meaning and not strictly for or against any of the parties.

8. Should any provision of this Agreement be declared or determined by any court to be illegal or invalid, the validity of the remaining part(s)/term(s) or provision(s) shall not be affected thereby and said illegal or invalid part, term or provision shall be deemed not to be a part of this Agreement.

If Employee elects to exercise his right of revocation, this Agreement and the promises contained in it, will automatically be deemed null and void.

14. This settlement fully and finally disposes of all issues in controversy. It is reached by way of compromise.

15. This Agreement shall neither set a precedent nor constitute a past practice.

16. This Agreement shall not be considered binding and/or final until approved by and executed by the County Administrator and/or his designee. Any subsequent disapproval by the Civil Service Commission shall cause all the terms and conditions of this agreement to be null

Mr. Murray and Mr. Baker:

I am the Deputy Director in charge of this agency's hearing unit. We have received the settlement regarding Cynthia Reid from the Office of Administrative Law. However, prior to forwarding it to the Civil Service Commission for acknowledgment, clarification is required.

Specifically, the settlement indicates that Ms. Reid agrees to the modification of her 40 working day suspension to a 20 working day suspension, which has already been served. However, the record does not reflect how the remaining 20 working days should be accounted for. For example, is that time period to be recorded as an approved leave of absence without pay, or something else?

Please let me know the intention of the parties as soon as possible. An email reply is sufficient so long as agreed upon by the parties.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY

In the Matter of Marion Wilson

OF THE
CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

CSC Docket No. 2017-3166
OAL Docket No. CSR 04966-17

ISSUED: SEP 07 2017 (SLK)

The appeal of Marion Wilson, a County Correction Officer with Camden County, of her removal, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Dean J. Buono (ALJ), who rendered his initial decision on June 21, 2017. Exceptions were filed on behalf of the appellant and a reply to exceptions was filed on behalf of the appointing authority.

Having considered the record and the ALJ's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting on August 16, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact as detailed in the initial decision. However, the Commission did not adopt the ALJ's recommendation to uphold the removal. Rather, the Commission modified the removal to a six-month suspension.

DISCUSSION

The appellant was removed, effective February 9, 2017, on charges of incompetency, inefficiency, or failure to perform duties, insubordination, conduct unbecoming a public employee, and other sufficient cause. Specifically, the appointing authority alleged that the appellant failed to search an inmate's mail allowing contraband to enter the facility, left bay doors open causing a serious breach of security and was disrespectful to superiors. Upon the appellant's appeal to the Commission, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing as a contested case.

The ALJ set forth in his initial decision that Lieutenant Douglas Grundlock testified that mail was provided to an inmate without being searched allowing "contraband," 14 Compact Discs (CDs), to enter the facility, and it was the appellant's job to make sure that contraband did not get into the facility as she was stationed at the mail post. Further, upon being questioned by Grundlock, the appellant acknowledged that she signed for the "legal mail" and had not searched its contents. Additionally, while questioning the appellant, Grundlock saw that both bay doors to the loading dock were open in violation of the facility's rules of conduct that state that doors are to remain closed. Grundlock also indicated there were other open doors down the hallway and inmates had previously escaped, although not on the day of this incident. Therefore, he told the appellant to close the bay doors and she did. However, approximately 40 minutes later, the bay doors were open again and the appellant was removed from her post. Moreover, a video showed a civilian walking through the facility from the loading dock and proceeding through the bay doors into the facility without any impediments. Grundlock implied that the appellant should have known not to leave the bay doors open based on her 20 years of service, which included serving as a Sergeant, and previous service in the mailroom.

Captain Rebecca Franceshini testified that the 14 CDs were considered contraband because they can be broken and used as weapons. Additionally, the inmate who received the contraband indicated that the appellant gave him the mail and the appellant admitted she did not search the mail.

Captain Linda Blackwell testified that she, Lieutenant Leithead, Sergeant Arroliga, and Officer White, the appellant's union representative, met at the appellant's house to serve the disciplinary notice. She explained that the meeting was at the appellant's house because the appellant indicated that she would not be at the facility due to inclement weather. Blackwell indicated that, during the meeting, the appellant cursed at her superior officers several times and called Blackwell a "bitch." Blackwell stated that it was a violation of the facility rules to curse at superior officers and that she was approximately eight feet away from the appellant when she was called a "bitch." Blackwell indicated that she did not know why the reports from the other officers did not mention that the appellant called her a "bitch." She thought they might not have heard the derogatory term, as they were further down the driveway. Blackwell confirmed that she did not discuss being called a "bitch" with the other officers who were at the meeting.

Warden Karen Taylor testified that she recommended the appellant's termination since the appellant had a pattern of similar behavior and there were significant safety concerns for the facility. Taylor indicated that the appellant admitted she did not perform all of the duties she was supposed to perform when delivering legal mail. Taylor asserted that the appellant's conduct towards her superiors violated the facility's rules and it did not matter that the incident took place while she was off duty at her home. Additionally, Taylor stated that bay doors should be closed unless work was being done and that even though no prisoners escaped, safety and security are the primary concern.

The appellant testified that she had been a Sergeant for 12 years, but she was demoted to County Correction Officer. She indicated that she had been assigned to the mail/delivery post for one month prior to this incident in February 2017. The appellant presented that she had never been instructed on when to open and close the bay doors and that she "understood" that if someone was on the loading dock that the bay doors were to be left open. She stated that she left the bay doors open because there were three civilians and two inmates on the loading dock. The appellant indicated that her post was not the "last line of defense" as there were gates on the loading dock that lead to the outside. She represents that Grundlock never explained why the doors were to be kept closed. The appellant denied cursing at her superior officers and calling Blackwell a "bitch," accused the officers of lying, believed that her union representative would just "side" with her superior officer so he would not be retaliated against, and asserted that "she wasn't happy but was not being disrespectful" during the meeting. She stated that Blackwell was "in the back" trailing behind the others who were "inches" ahead of her. The appellant provided that she chose the mail post because she only had two months left before her retirement and admitted that she did not check the mail. She also admitted that she was the "last officer" in that building near the loading dock. The appellant asserted that although the sign stating that the doors should be closed had been there for 20 years, it was her understanding that other officers would leave the bay doors open based on "past practices." Further, she kept the bay doors open after Grundlock left because people were coming in and out and she kept them open not "thinking anything of it."

Lieutenant Leithead and Sergeant Arroliga testified on behalf of the appellant indicating that they did not hear the appellant call Blackwell a "bitch" and never spoke with any other officer about a report.

The ALJ found the appointing authority's witnesses credible and persuasive as they clearly and concisely expressed concerns about how these incidents affected safety in the facility and the appellant's lack of respect for her superiors. Further, the ALJ found that the appellant admitted to not opening and searching legal mail for contraband and did not express remorse for her actions. Additionally, the ALJ found that it was unfathomable that the appellant did not understand the security concerns in leaving the bay doors open. Moreover, the appellant's position that she did not curse at her superior officers was not credible and it was not realistic that she would call Blackwell a "bitch" loud enough for the others to hear, which also hurt her credibility. The ALJ presented that the appellant had been fined on six occasions, reprimanded on eight occasions, suspended on seven occasions, and demoted from Sergeant to County Correction Officer for similar charges. Therefore, the ALJ recommended sustaining the appellant's removal based on her disciplinary history, the nature of her job duties, and the nature of the charges.

In her exceptions, regarding the charges, the appellant asserts that the ALJ erred in failing to ignore her motion to sever the three charges at the hearing as she claims the charges are for three unrelated incidents occurring at different times and places. The appellant claims that the ALJ misconstrued the sign stating that the doors shall remain closed at all times as this sign is not directed at correction officers. Further, she states that it would not make sense to keep the doors closed at all times. Additionally, the appellant contends that the ALJ misconstrued the facility's rule that indicates that a failure to close and/or lock any gate or door required to be shut is a breach of security as this rule does not mean that all doors are to remain closed at all times, but only should be shut at the required times. The appellant represents that she never received training regarding the operation of the bay doors and therefore argues that it is unfair to penalize her for failing to follow any processes related to the operation of the bay doors. The appellant argues that the appointing authority's witnesses were not credible. Specifically, she believes that Blackwell's testimony that she was called a "bitch" is not credible since none of the witnesses heard the comment and she never told the other officers on the ride back about the comment, which the appellant believes is highly unusual and contradicts Warden Taylor's comment that Blackwell told her that she did speak to the other officers on the ride back. The appellant argues that her admitting that she did not inspect the mail supports her credibility. The appellant asserts that the ALJ made a mistake by equating the lack of evidence of remorse with a lack of remorse as a finding must be based on evidence and not a lack of evidence. The appellant argues that the ALJ erred as he does not explain why it is not realistic that she would call Blackwell a "bitch" loud enough for the other officers to hear. The appellant presents that there is no evidence that she disobeyed a direct order to close the bay doors as she did close the bay doors after Grundlock told her to do so. However, there is no evidence that Grundlock directed her to keep the bay doors closed at all times and therefore there is no evidence to conclude that she was insubordinate. The appellant contends that there is no evidence that she permitted people to walk freely through the institution as the ALJ states as there was never anyone on the loading dock except people who were supposed to be there. The appellant indicates that the ALJ erred by charging her with "inattentiveness to duty" as this charge was not specified for the date of the incident. The appellant asserts that the ALJ erred that she violated a facility rule regarding property of inmates or by permitting contraband to be introduced to the general prison population as she did not destroy any property and the CDs were not introduced to the general population as they were promptly discovered and removed from the inmate's possession.

Regarding the penalty, the appellant argues that her removal was not warranted since she had been employed for 20 years and all of her fines and most of her reprimands were outside of the seven-year "look-back" period mandated by the New Jersey Supreme Court. Further, she asserts that none of her prior charges were similar, as she had never been previously disciplined for failing to inspect mail, failing to keep doors shut, or for using profanity. While the appellant acknowledged that some penalty is justified for her failure to do her job, she argues that removal is excessive under these circumstances.

In reply, the appointing authority states that all three incidents were properly considered together as they were intertwined. Specifically, initially the appellant was questioned about her failure to search an inmate's mail. During that investigation, it was discovered that the appellant failed to keep the bay doors closed, and these two events led to the charges being served to the appellant where she cursed and was disrespectful to her superior officers. It asserts that the appellant is attempting to mislead the Commission by stating that the sign instructing that doors should be closed at all times does not specifically refer to correction officers as the appellant acknowledged that the sign was there for 20 years and she chose to ignore the sign. Further, her intentional act in leaving the bay doors open was a violation of facility rules, which undermined security as she admitted she was the "last officer" in that building near the loading dock. The appointing authority presents that the appellant was trained about opening and closing doors at the Academy and it is ludicrous for a 20-year employee who was a Sergeant for 12 years to argue that she needed training on the operation of doors. It emphasizes that the appointing authority's witnesses were credible as four of them unequivocally stated that the appellant cursed at them and the ALJ found that the appellant was not credible. Further, the ALJ found Blackwell credible when she testified that the appellant called her a "bitch," that the other officers were ahead of her and may not have heard it, and she did not discuss the comment with the other officers and waited to discuss it with her superiors. It states that the appellant disobeyed Grundlock's direct order to keep the bay doors closed by opening the doors after he left which clearly demonstrates her lack of concern for safety. Moreover, there is a video showing unnamed people walking through the unsecured bay doors. Additionally, there is a video showing the appellant on her phone discussing her paycheck and therefore the ALJ did not make a mistake when he sustained the charge of "inattentiveness of duty" against her. The ALJ also properly found her to have violated a facility rule when the appellant admitted that she did not search the inmate's mail and she was aware of the dangers when contraband enters the facility. The ALJ appropriately considered the appellant's prior discipline history and the alleged "seven year look back" rule does not apply if the prior offenses and behavior were similar to the current incidents, which they were. The ALJ presented a comprehensive review of the law and facts of this case and appropriately upheld the appellant's removal.

Upon its de novo review of the record, the Commission agrees with the ALJ regarding the charges. Clearly, the appellant's failure to search an inmate's mail allowing contraband to enter the facility, leaving bay doors open causing a serious breach of security and being disrespectful to superiors constitutes incompetency, inefficiency, or failure to perform duties, insubordination, conduct unbecoming a public employee, neglect of duty and other sufficient cause.[1] However, as discussed further below, the Commission does not adopt the ALJ's recommendation to uphold the appellant's removal.

Initially, the Commission notes that the appellant admitted that she did not inspect an inmate's mail and her failure to perform this duty allowed contraband into the facility, which could have potentially been used as a dangerous weapon. Further, while the appellant argues that she was not given any training on the opening and closing of the bay doors, as the appellant was trained on the opening and closing of doors in the Academy, was a 20-year employee of the facility including serving 12 years as a Sergeant, was well aware of the sign that instructed that the doors remain closed, and was instructed by her superior officer to close the bay doors, the Commission finds that the appellant's leaving the bay doors open was a breach of security and the appellant's arguments in that regard are without merit. Moreover, the ALJ found that the appellant cursed and was otherwise disrespectful to her superior officers including calling Blackwell a "bitch" and there is nothing in the record to support overturning the ALJ's credibility determinations.

In determining the proper penalty, the Commission's review is de novo. In addition to its consideration of the seriousness of the underlying incident in determining the proper penalty, the Commission also utilizes, when appropriate, the concept of progressive discipline. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962). In assessing the penalty in relationship to the employee's conduct, it is important to emphasize that the nature of the offense must be balanced against mitigating circumstances, including any prior disciplinary history. However, it is well established that where the underlying conduct is of an egregious nature, the imposition of a penalty up to and including removal is appropriate, regardless of an individual's disciplinary history. See Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). It is settled that the theory of progressive discipline is not a "fixed and immutable rule to be followed without question." Rather, it is recognized that some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished prior record. See Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474 (2007).

In the instant matter, the Commission is not in any way persuaded by the appellant's exceptions. However, the Commission notes that the appellant was a 20-year employee, retired on March 1, 2017 and had been suspended effective February 9, 2017 due to incidents that took place in early February 2017. In other words, the appellant's suspension was only approximately three weeks before the effective day of her retirement after a long career as a correction officer. Therefore, in light of these circumstances, the Commission shall modify the appellant's removal to a six-month suspension. However, the Commission emphasizes that the appellant shall not have the option to rescind her retirement and return to employment as the modification of the appellant's removal to a six-month suspension is based solely on the fact that the appellant has retired and the suspension runs from February 9, 2017 to the date of her retirement with the remainder to be considered for record keeping purposes only. As such, the appellant shall not be entitled to any back pay under N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10.

N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12(a) provides for the award of counsel fees only where an employee has prevailed on all or substantially all of the primary issues in an appeal of a major disciplinary action. The primary issue in any disciplinary appeal is the merits of the charges, not whether the penalty imposed was appropriate. See Johnny Walcott v. City of Plainfield, 282 N.J. Super, 121, 128 (App. Div. 1995); James L. Smith v. Department of Personnel, Docket No. A-1489-02T2 (App. Div. March 18, 2004); In the Matter of Robert Dean (MSB, decided January 12, 1993); In the Matter of Ralph Cozzino (MSB, decided September 21, 1989). In the case at hand, although the penalty was modified by the Commission, the conduct underlying the charges, as well as the charges, were sustained. Thus, the appellant has not prevailed on all or substantially all of the primary issues of the appeal. Consequently, as the appellant has failed to meet the standard set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12(a), counsel fees must be denied.

ORDER

The Commission finds that in light of the circumstances as described above, the Commission shall modify the appellant's removal to a six-month suspension.

Back pay pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10, and counsel fees pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12(a) are denied

This is the final administrative determination in this matter. Any further review should be pursued in a judicial forum.

The appellant denies the allegations and contends that she acted appropriately.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 10, 2017, the CCCF issued a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action removing her from her post as of February 9, 2017. On March 9, 2017, the CCCF issued a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action sustaining the charges and terminating her from employment as of February 9, 2017. Appellant filed a timely notice of appeal.

The Division of Appeals and Regulatory Affairs of the Civil Service Commission transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on April 5, 2017. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was held on June 2, 2017. The record remained open until June 16, 2017, for the parties to submit closing summations and the record closed on that date.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Testimony

Respondent

Lieutenant Douglas Grundlock (Grundlock), has been employed by the Camden County Department of Corrections for twenty years. The last two years he served as a Lieutenant at the CCCF. Primarily, his job as a lieutenant is to monitor officers so that "they are doing their jobs".

In this case, he was tasked to investigate "legal mail" that had been given to an inmate. Included in the mail were fourteen Compact Discs (CDs). The mail was provided to the inmate without being searched allowing "contraband" to enter the facility. Wilson was stationed at the mail post so, he proceeded to her location. Upon his arrival, he confronted her and she was on the "cell phone and looking at her paycheck." After she finished, Wilson told him that she signed for the "legal mail" and had not searched its contents. On the exterior of the legal mail, (2NA 53) was handwritten on the envelope. Wilson acknowledged that it was her handwriting. (R-4).

While discussing the "legal mail" issue with Wilson, he saw that both doors to the loading dock area were open. There is a sign on the door that says, "All staff Doors are to remain closed at all times" plus rules of conduct 3.2 says, all doors are to remain closed.

Grundlock said two doors that were further down the hallway were also opened and inmates have escaped before, but not that day. As a result of what he saw, Grundlock told Wilson to close the doors and she did. However, approximately forty minutes later, the doors were opened again. At that point, she was removed from her post for not keeping the doors closed and disobeying an order. A video showed a civilian walking through the facility from the loading dock and proceeding through the doors into the facility without any impediments. (R-6 Video at 10:39:34). The same video at 10:40:43, showed Grundlock telling Wilson to close the doors and she did.

On cross-examination, Grundlock testified that Wilson was working her mailroom bid post and her job was to open and inspect the mail, making sure no contraband gets into the facility through the mail. She did not do her job. Also, "Wilson controls both sliding doors" shown in video. In describing the location of the security doors, Grundlock stated that there was a twenty to thirty-foot corridor, then a gate on the loading dock that is controlled by a civilian. Only "specially classified lower level" offenders are permitted on the loading dock. Grundlock reiterated that all gates are supposed to be closed, unless someone is ingress or egressing. After the person ingresses or egresses the doors were again to be closed. When one door is opened, the other one is closed to control the flow of people. (Rule 3.2). Interestingly, when confronted with the question of what instruction or training Wilson had on the operation of doors, Grundlock replied that "she was a C.O. for twenty years" and "had been in the mail room before that day." Also, she was a "Sargent for five years." Intimating that she should have known.

Captain Rebecca Franceschini (Franceschini), has been with the CCCF for seventeen years; two and a half years as Captain. Her responsibilities are the safety and security of facility.

She recalled that on February 6, 2017, she received a telephone call from Warden Taylor (Taylor) about legal mail that had fourteen CD's enclosed inside and was disseminated into the facility. They are "contraband" because they can be broken and used as weapons. Inmate Collins was given the legal mail and told Franceschini that Wilson gave her the legal mail. When confronted about the contraband in the mail, Wilson admitted she did not search the mail.

Franceschini reported her findings to the Warden and Deputy Warden and Wilson was then removed from the mailroom bid post. A Disciplinary Complaint was generated and discipline was recommended for the incident. (R-3).

Captain Linda Blackwell (Blackwell), has spent twenty years at the CCCF, three years as Captain. Her responsibilities are to make sure all officers are doing their job.

On February 8, 2017, Taylor told her that she was going to be serving a "Laudermill letter" to Wilson. On February 9, 2017, Wilson indicated to members of the facility that due to inclement weather, she would not appear at the facility to be served and she requested to be served her at home.

As a result, Blackwell, Lieutenant Leithead (Leithead), Sergeant Arroliga (Arroliga), and Officer M. White (White) arrived at Wilson's home. White was there as her union representative. Wilson came to the door on front porch and stated, "You had to bring the whole department to my house?" Blackwell informed her that White was there on her behalf as a union representative, and that she was going to be served with Laudermill paperwork. Wilson looked at White and said, "Thank you." She was informed that she was suspended pending termination and that she had an opportunity to explain orally to us why she should be suspended with pay, or she had twenty-four hours to write the Warden explaining why she should be suspended with pay. Then, Wilson stated, "I don't want to fucking talk to ya'll." She laughed and then stated, "I knew this was coming." Arroliga then asked Wilson for her the badge, breast badge and two identification cards. To retrieve the items, Wilson went into her house and slammed the front door with force. Upon her return, she handed the items to White. Arroliga explained to her that her insurance may be affected and gave her insurance paperwork. Arroliga then asked Wilson to sign her equipment paperwork and she stated that she could not find her Department I.D. Arroliga also explained to Wilson that she could give an oral statement or notify the department within twenty-four hours in writing of why she should not be suspended without pay. Wilson then stated, "I ain't talking to ya'll; fuck ya'll." After all the paperwork was signed Wilson stated, "Fuck ya'll; get the fuck otta here." Blackwell responded with, "my pleasure" and as she was walking away Wilson stated, "bitch." Blackwell continued to walk away and joined Leithead and Arroliga who were walking ahead. She was agitated and being disrespectful, so to diffuse the situation Blackwell replied, "my pleasure." (R-7). All individuals were instructed to write reports. (R-8, R-9, R-10).

On cross-examination, Blackwell testified that it is a violation of the rules if an officer curses at a superior officer. In this case, Wilson called her a "bitch" and she was approximately eight feet away. She also testified that she did not know why the other reports did not mention Wilson calling her a "bitch", but it may be that they were further down the driveway. Blackwell never discussed it with them. Frankly, she was not surprised that Wilson used that language because she was known to be unprofessional.

Warden Karen Taylor (Taylor), has been with CCCF for twenty-one years; seven months as a Warden. She is tasked with the care and custody of inmates and safety of all in the facility.

She learned of Wilson's incident by reading through her daily reports and saw that contraband (CDs) came in the facility through legal mail. After Franceschini reported to her on the incident, coupled with the loading dock door incident, she recommended termination. "There was a pattern of the same type of behavior." (R-15). Wilson clearly violated Rules of Conduct 1.1, 1.2, 1.3. and 3.12 Disregard for Inmate Property. (R-12). There are significant concerns for the safety of the facility. The CDs can be used as weapons and mail can contain the drug suboxone. As a result, Wilson violated Order 33 for Mail Officer/Processing and Delivery 3.2.

In Order 33, Contraband is defined as:

1. Any item, article or material found in the possession of, or under the control of, an inmate that is not authorized for retention or receipt;
2. Any item, article, or material found within the adult county correctional facility or on facility grounds that has not been issued by the facility or authorized as permissible for retention receipt;
3. Any item, article or material found in the possession of, or under the control of, staff or visitors within the adult county correctional facility or on facility grounds that is not authorized for receipt, retention or importation;
4. Any item, article or material that is authorized for receipt, retention or importation by inmates, staff or visitors but that is found in an excessive amount or that has been altered from its original form. An amount shall be considered excessive if it exceeds stated adult county correctional facility limits or exceeds reasonable safety, security, sanitary, or space considerations; and/or
5. Any article that may be harmful or presents a threat to the security and orderly operation of an adult county correctional facility.

Taylor testified that when delivering legal mail, the officer should verify that the correct inmate is receiving the mail by checking the inmate's I.D. bracelet, then open and inspect the contents in front of the inmate. None of this was done, Wilson admitted to it.

The Insubordination was the incident at her house. When the Laudermill papers were to be delivered at her home, she was "demeaning", "insubordinate," cursed at them and was "belligerent" so she was charged with a violation of Rule 1.4. Being off duty, has nothing to do with it. Personal conduct of employees is defined as "all department employees, when on and off duty, will conduct themselves in a manner that will not bring discredit or criticism to the department. Common sense, good judgment, consistency and the department's mission will be the guiding principles for the expected employee standard of conduct." (R-13).

"If you look at the disciplinary record, they tried to correct her behavior." "It's not a case of first impressions," she has a pattern of doing this. Even though she has twenty years, the safety of the facility is paramount.

On cross-examination Taylor admitted that "it was very troubling" that Wilson did not open the legal mail but "this was how she does things". It's quite possible that "she had done it in the past".

Regarding the security door incident, Taylor testified that "all doors should be closed at all times unless there was work being done." No inmate escaped as a result of Wilson's actions, but that is not the point. Security and safety are the primary concern. No inmate was hurt either, but "how do I know she is checking anything?" "I have no confidence" in her ability.

Appellant

Marion Wilson (Wilson), twenty years with Department of Corrections, had been Sergeant for twelve years, but she was demoted to Officer.

In February 2017, she was assigned to bid post mail/delivery and had been there for a month before this incident. She had never been instructed on when to open/close doors. She "understood" that if someone was on the loading dock that the doors were to be left open. On that day, three civilians and two inmates were on the loading docks, so she left the doors open.

Wilson indicated that her post is not the, "last line of defense" and there are gates on the loading dock that lead to the outside. Grundlock never explained the reason why the doors were to be kept closed.

On February 9, 2017, when the officers came to her house, she did not swear at them at all and did not call Blackwell a "bitch." Blackwell was "in the back" trailing behind the others who were "inches" ahead of her.

On cross-examination, Wilson stated that she chose the mail bid post because she only had two months left and admitted that she did not check the mail. She understands the danger of letting contraband into the facility. She also admitted that she is the "last officer" in that building near the loading dock. Also, the sign that is on the window for the mail post "has been there twenty years because Aramark is no longer there." Other officers would leave the doors open in the past. Despite the fact that the sign reads to keep the doors closed, "past practices" was her understanding. (R-6). She explained that she opened the doors after Grundlock left because people came in/out, and kept them open not "thinking anything of it".

Regarding the incident at her house, all the officers are lying. White would just "side" with them so he is not retaliated against. She did not curse. "She wasn't happy but was not being disrespectful."

Lieutenant Leithead (Leithead), did not hear Wilson call Blackwell a "bitch" and never spoke with other officers about report.

Sergeant Arroliga (Arroliga), has spent thirteen years with CCCF; two years as Sergeant. Arroliga did not hear Wilson call Blackwell a "bitch" and never spoke with any other officer about a report.

FINDINGS OF FACT

For testimony to be believed, it must not only come from the mouth of a credible witness, but it also has to be credible in itself. It must elicit evidence that is from such common experience and observation that it can be approved as proper under the circumstances. See Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546 (1954); Gallo v. Gallo, 66 N.J.Super. 1 (App. Div. 1961). A credibility determination requires an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). Also, "'[t]he interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony.'" State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 10 N.J. 316 (1952) (citation omitted).

A trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible, or because it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience, or because it is overborne by other testimony. Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958).

The testimony of Warden Taylor and the respondent witnesses was especially credible and persuasive. Their testimony was clear and concise. It was obvious that they all had concerns about these incidents and the safety of inmates and individuals working in the facility. Also, they had concerns for the lack of respect for the position and her superiors.

Conversely, Wilson's testimony was not credible. Wilson's own testimony assisted the respondent in proving the facts of the case by a preponderance of the evidence. Regarding the legal mail, she admitted to not opening and searching the legal mail, thereby allowing fourteen CD's to enter the facility and become potential weapons. More disturbing is the fact that the record is devoid of her expressing any remorse for her actions. That allows me to believe that she failed to understand the gravity of her action, or more appropriate, inaction.

Regarding the issue of the security doors, she explained that all corrections officers always left those doors open when people were on the loading dock and that her post is not the "last line of defense;" there are gates on the loading dock. Wilson used the excuse that Grundlock never explained the reason why the doors were to be kept closed. Despite a sign located on the window of the post indicating that the "[d]oors are to remain closed at all times" and being employed as a corrections officer for twenty years, it is unfathomable as to why Wilson could not comprehend the significant security concern of leaving security doors open. Wilson's attempt to shift the blame for this incident on her employer for failing to educate her or explain why the doors were to be closed is unavailing and deeply concerns the undersigned.

Regarding the incident at her house, Wilson testified that all the officers were lying and White would just "side" with them so he is not retaliated against. Although "she wasn't happy," she did not curse. This was Wilson's attempt to "sell" her version of the facts to the undersigned. Not only was her recitation of the positioning of the officers when they left not credible, (Blackwell was "in the back" trailing behind the others who were "inches" ahead of her), it is also not realistic to believe that Wilson would call Blackwell a "bitch" loud enough for the others to hear. These comments by Wilson detracted from any modicum of credibility.

After hearing the testimony and reviewing the evidence, I FIND, by a preponderance of credible evidence, that on February 2, 2017, Wilson delivered legal mail to an inmate without searching it, causing fourteen CD's (contraband) to enter the correctional facility. I FURTHER FIND, on February 6, 2017, while at the mail post, Wilson failed to secure the doors and after being told to close them, she continued to leave them open. I FURTHER FIND, on February 9, 2017, she was not courteous and civil while dealing with superior officers at her residence and used profane language toward Blackwell.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Civil service employees' rights and duties are governed by the Civil Service Act and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to 11A:12-6; N.J.A.C. 4A:1-1.1. The Act is an important inducement to attract qualified people to public service and is to be liberally applied toward merit appointment and tenure protection. Mastrobattista v. Essex Cnty. Park Comm'n, 46 N.J. 138, 147 (1965). However, consistent with public policy and civil-service law, a public entity should not be burdened with an employee who fails to perform his or her duties satisfactorily or who engages in misconduct related to his or her duties. N.J.S.A.11A:1-2(a). A civil-service employee who commits a wrongful act related to his or her duties, or gives other just cause, may be subject to major discipline, including removal. N.J.S.A.11A:2-6; N.J.S.A. 11A:2-20; N.J.A.C.4A:2-2.2. The general causes for such discipline are set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2- 2.3(a).

This matter involves a major disciplinary action brought by the respondent appointing authority against the appellant. An appeal to the Merit System Board requires the OAL to conduct a hearing de novo to determine the appellant's guilt or innocence as well as the appropriate penalty, if the charges are sustained. In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (App. Div. 1987). Respondent has the burden of proof and must establish by a fair preponderance of the credible evidence that appellant was guilty of the charges. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). Evidence is found to preponderate if it establishes the reasonable probability of the fact alleged and generates a reliable belief that the tendered hypothesis, in all human likelihood, is true. See Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959), overruled on other grounds, Dwyer v. Ford Motor Co., 36 N.J. 487 (1962).

The respondent sustained charges of violations of: N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1) Incompetency, Inefficiency, Failure to Perform Duties; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) Insubordination; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct Unbecoming; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) Neglect of Duty; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) Other Sufficient Cause; Camden County Correctional Facility Rules of Conduct (C.C.C.F.): 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination; 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty; 3.2 Security; 3.12 Property of Inmates; General Order 73; General Order 74; and Post Order 33.

Initially, Wilson has been charged with a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1) Incompetency, Inefficiency, Failure to Perform Duties. It is uncontested that Wilson failed to search an inmate's legal mail. Also, it is uncontroverted that security doors were open when Lt. Grundlock arrived at her post. The record reflects in the testimony and video that Wilson re-opened the doors, and kept them open after being told to close them. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating support to sustain a charge of Incompetency, Inefficiency, Failure to Perform Duties. Charges of violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1) are hereby SUSTAINED.

Regarding the charge of Insubordination, to the extent that appellant is charged with violation of Rule of Conduct 1.4, which addresses Insubordination and Serious Breach of Security, consideration of such violation will be addressed in concert with the current analysis. Black's Law Dictionary 802 (7th Ed. 1999) defines insubordination as a "willful disregard of an employer's instructions" or an "act of disobedience to proper authority." Webster's II New College Dictionary (1995) defines insubordination as "not submissive to authority: disobedient." Such dictionary definitions have been utilized by courts to define the term where it is not specifically defined in contract or regulation.

> 'Insubordination' is not defined in the agreement. Consequently, assuming for purposes of argument that its presence is implicit, we are obliged to accept its ordinary definition since it is not a technical term or word of art and there are no circumstances indicating that a different meaning was intended.
> [Ricci v. Corporate Express of the East, Inc., 344 N.J. Super. 39, 45 (App. Div. 2001) (citation omitted).]

Importantly, this definition incorporates acts of non-compliance and non-cooperation, as well as affirmative acts of disobedience. Thus, insubordination can occur even where no specific order or direction has been given to the allegedly insubordinate person. Insubordination is always a serious matter, especially in a paramilitary context. "Refusal to obey orders and disrespect cannot be tolerated. Such conduct adversely affects the morale and efficiency of the department." Rivell v. Civil Serv. Comm'n, 115 N.J. Super. 64, 72 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 59 N.J. 269 (1971).

In the present matter, appellant was told to keep the security doors closed and she did not. Approximately forty minutes later, the doors once again remained open. Despite a sign on the Post indicating that the "[d]oors are to remain closed at all times" and twenty years of employment at the CCCF, she claimed that nobody trained her at the post. Her disregard of a direct order is evidence of Insubordination. Her argument to the contrary is not lucid nor comprehensible based upon her years at the facility. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating support to sustain a charge of Insubordination. The charges of violating N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) and Rule of Conduct 1.4 are hereby SUSTAINED.

Respondent also sustained charges against appellant for Conduct Unbecoming a Public Employee, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6). "Conduct unbecoming a public employee" is an elastic phrase, which encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also In re Emmons, 63 NJ. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances "be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555 (quoting In re Zeber, 156 A.2d 821, 825 (1959)). Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (quoting Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)). Suspension or removal may be justified where the misconduct occurred while the employee was off duty. Emmons, supra, 63 N.J. Super. at 140.

It is difficult to contemplate a more basic example of conduct which could destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services than the image of a Corrections Officer failing to search an inmate's mail and allowing contraband to enter a prison. Also, the same officer disregarding a direct order to secure security doors and allowing people in a correctional facility to walk freely through the institution. Finally, to use the type of language Wilson used toward a superior officer in public is intolerable. I CONCLUDE that appellant's actions constitute unbecoming conduct. The charges of violating N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) and Rules of Conduct 1.2 are hereby SUSTAINED.

The respondent also sustained charges for a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) (Neglect of Duty). Neglect of Duty can arise from an omission or failure to perform a duty as well as negligence. Generally, the term "neglect" connotes a deviation from normal standards of conduct. In re Kerlin, 151 N.J. Super. 179, 186 (App. Div 1977). "Duty" signifies conformance to "the legal standard of reasonable conduct in the light of the apparent risk." Wytupeck v. Camden, 25 N.J. 450, 461 (1957). Neglect of duty can arise from omission to perform a required duty as well as from misconduct or misdoing. Cf. State v. Dunphy, 19 N.J. 531, 534 (1955). Although the term "neglect of duty" is not defined in the New Jersey Administrative Code, the charge has been interpreted to mean that an employee has neglected to perform and act as required by his or her job title or was negligent in its discharge. Avanti v. Dep't of Military and Veterans Affairs, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (CSV) 564; Ruggiero v. Jackson Twp. Dep't of Law and Safety, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (CSV) 214.

Again, it is difficult to contemplate a more basic example of Neglect of Duty than the image of a corrections officer in a correctional facility not searching an inmate's mail and allowing contraband to enter a prison. Also, leaving secure security doors open and allowing people in a correctional facility to walk freely through the institution after being instructed to close them by a superior officer. I CONCLUDE that appellant's actions constitute Neglect of Duty. The charges of violating N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) and Rule of Conduct 1.3 are hereby SUSTAINED.

Appellant has also been charged with a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) (Other Sufficient Cause). Specifically, appellant is charged with violations of the Camden County Correctional Facility Rules of Conduct (C.C.C.F.): 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination; 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty; 3.2 Security; 3.12 Property of Inmates; General Order 73; General Order 74; and Post Order 33. It is noted that the Preliminary and Final Notices of Disciplinary Action (R-1) indicate the sustained charges. I CONCLUDE that consideration of the charge constituting a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) (Other Sufficient Cause) will be limited to the regulations, rules and general orders specifically enumerated in the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (R-1). Additionally, Rules of Conduct 1.2, 1.3, and 1.4 have been addressed within the discussion of violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2), (6) and (7).

As such, appellant is charged with violating Rule of Conduct 1.1, Violations in General, which is a charge of "Failure to comply with regulations, orders, directives or practices of the department, whether verbal or written by the Warden or his designee." (R-6). The rule provides that:

> Any employee who violates any rule, regulation, procedure, order or directive, either by an act of commission or omission, whether stated in this manual or elsewhere, or who violates the standard operating procedure as dictated by departmental practice, is subject to disciplinary action in accordance with the New Jersey Department of Personnel (Civil Service) rules and regulations. Disciplinary actions shall be based on the nature of the rule, regulation, procedure, order, or directive violated, the severity and circumstances of the infraction and the individual's record of conduct.

Violation of this rule would seem to be implicated by the appointing authority's allegations of violations of General Orders 73, 74, and Post Order 33.

Post Order 33 (R-11) addresses the duties of a Mail Officer/Processing and Delivery. This order defines contraband and provides that "[w]hen delivering LEGAL MAIL, the officer will verify that the correct inmate is receiving the correspondence by checking the inmate's I.D. bracelet. The officer will then open and inspect the contents in front of the inmate...." Wilson admitted to not doing any of the above.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of Post Order 33 and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

General Order 73 (R-13) addresses "Personal Conduct of Employees." There was significant testimony that the appellant violated sections 4 and 12, of this order.

Section 4 states that "Employees will comply with all departmental rules and regulations and all laws of the United States and the State of New Jersey." The record reflects above that appellant did not comply with the Post Order 33 to which she was accused of violating. I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of this section and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

Section 12 states that, "Employees are responsible to know all departmental policies as well as county policies and act in accordance with them." Irrespective of whether the appellant was aware or unaware of the specific requirement of Post Order 33, ultimately it is her responsibility to know. I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of this section and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of General Order 73.

General Order 74 (R-14) addresses "Professional Code of Conduct." Testimony revealed that appellant violated sections 1, 9, 11, 12, 13, and 14 of this order.

Section 1 states that, "Sworn personnel will conduct themselves in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, the New Jersey Constitution and all applicable laws and rules enacted or established pursuant to legal authority. Sworn personnel are also obligated to follow all other departmental and county policies." The evidence in the record demonstrates that appellant not only violated Post Order 33 but also N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) (Insubordination); N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) (Conduct Unbecoming); N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) (Neglect of Duty) and therefore this supports a finding of a violation of this section. Also, she used "indecent", "profane" and "derogatory" language toward a superior officer; "ridiculing" them in public as well as not "treating fellow employees with respect." Captain Blackwell's testimony was clear, concise and believable. As stated above, Wilson's was not. I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of section 9, 11, 12, 13 and 14 and the charge is hereby SUSTAINED.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has met its burden in demonstrating a violation of General Order 74.

Having met its burden in demonstrating violations of General Orders 33, 73 and 74, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has demonstrated a violation of Rule of Conduct 1.1, 1.2 and 1.4 having already been addressed, I FURTHER CONCLUDE that the charge of a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12), Other Sufficient Cause, is hereby SUSTAINED.

Finally, the respondent sustained charges of 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty, 3.2 Security and 3.12 Property of Inmates.

2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty is defined as "Personnel shall not engage in any activities or personal business which could cause them to neglect or be inattentive to duty." There is unrebutted evidence in the record to support a claim that would substantiate this charge. Testimony from Lt. Grudlock, corroborated by Wilson, indicated that Wilson was on her cellular telephone with her paycheck in her hand when the Lt. approached. This occurred while the security doors were left open. I CONCLUDE that the charge of a violation of 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty, is hereby SUSTAINED.

3.2 Security is defined as "[p]ersonnel shall exercise a scrupulous regard for security in their dealings with inmates and with regard to the Correctional Facility in general. Any act of commission or omission tending to undermine security shall constitute a breach of security." (R-12). I find the record to support a claim that would clearly substantiate this charge. The fact that appellant fails to acknowledge the security concern in improperly searching or failing to search an inmate's mail and leaving security doors open is troublesome. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the charge of a violation of 3.2 Security, is hereby SUSTAINED.

3.12 Property of Inmates is defined as "Employees shall exercise scrupulous regard for the property of inmates." Here, Wilson exercised complete disregard for legal mail of an inmate and allowed it to be introduced into the general population without a search. This would compromise not only the safety of the inmate but any possible defense she may have had. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the charge of a violation of 3.12 Property of Inmates, is hereby SUSTAINED.

PENALTY

Where appropriate, concepts of progressive discipline involving penalties of increasing severity are used in imposing a penalty and in determining the reasonableness of a penalty. West New York v. Bock, supra, 38 N.J. 523-24. Factors determining the degree of discipline include the employee's prior disciplinary record and the gravity of the instant misconduct.

However, it is well established that where the underlying conduct is of an egregious nature, the imposition of a penalty up to and including removal is appropriate, regardless of an individual's disciplinary history. See Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). It is settled that the theory of progressive discipline is not a fixed and immutable rule to be followed without question. Rather, it is recognized that some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished prior record. See Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474 (2007).

The record reflects that appellant has been fined on six occasions, reprimanded on eight occasions, suspended on seven occasions and demoted from Sargent to officer. All of the prior discipline is similar to the within charges. The disciplinary record is remarkable. It is noted that a single charge of Incompetency, Inefficiency or Failure to Perform Duties by itself, can be sufficient grounds for termination in the absence of any other disciplinary history. Absence of judgment alone can be sufficient to warrant termination if the employee is in a sensitive position that requires public trust in the agency's judgment. See In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19, 32 (2007) (DYFS worker who waved a lit cigarette lighter in a five-year-old's face was terminated, despite lack of any prior discipline).

"There is no constitutional or statutory right to a government job." State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Newark v. Gaines, 309 N.J. Super. 327, 334 (App. Div. 1998). (NOTE: Gaines had a substantial prior disciplinary history, but the case is frequently quoted as a threshold statement of civil service law.)

"In addition, there is no right or reason for a government to continue employing an incompetent and inefficient individual after a showing of inability to change." Klusaritz v. Cape May County, 387 N.J. Super. 305, 317 (App. Div. 2006) (termination was the proper remedy for a county treasurer who couldn't balance the books, after the auditors tried three times to show him how).

> In reversing the MSB's insistence on progressive discipline, contrary to the wishes of the appointing authority, the Klusaritz panel stated that "[t]he [MSB's] application of progressive discipline in this context is misplaced and contrary to the public interest." The court determined that Klusaritz's prior record is "of no moment" because his lack of competence to perform the job rendered him unsuitable for the job and subject to termination by the county.
> [In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19, 35-36 (2007) (citations omitted).]

Considering the foregoing, the respondent seeks to terminate the appellant. Considering the record in the present matter including the appellant's disciplinary record, the nature of the job duties and the nature of the charges, I CONCLUDE that the respondent's action terminating appellant is hereby SUSTAINED.

DECISION AND ORDER

I ORDER that the charges of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1) Incompetency, Inefficiency, Failure to Perform Duties; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) Insubordination; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) Conduct Unbecoming; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) Neglect of Duty; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) Other Sufficient Cause be SUSTAINED. I further ORDER that the charges of violating Camden County Correctional Facility Rules of Conduct (C.C.C.F.): 1.1 Violations in General; 1.2 Conduct Unbecoming; 1.3 Neglect of Duty; 1.4 Insubordination; 2.10 Inattentiveness to Duty; 3.2 Security; 3.12 Property of Inmates; General Order 73; General Order 74; and Post Order 33 also be SUSTAINED. I FURTHER ORDER respondent's action terminating appellant is hereby SUSTAINED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 40A:14-204.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, PO Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." Re: Wilfredo Morales, Jr. v. City of Asbury Park (CSC Docket No. 2015-92 and OAL Docket No. CSV 12656-14)

Dear Mr. Schiro and Mr. Glickman:

The appeal of Wilfredo Morales, Truck Driver, Heavy with the City of Asbury Park, of his 90 working day suspension on charges, was before Administrative Law Judge Jacob S. Gertsman (ALJ), who rendered his initial decision on August 23, 2017, recommending reversing the 90 working day suspension. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

The time frame for the Civil Service Commission (Commission) to make its final decision was to initially expire on October 6, 2017. See N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6. Prior to that date, the Commission secured a 45-day extension of time to render its final decision no later than November 20, 2017. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8. However, since one of the three Commission members must be recused from participating on this particular matter, there is not a quorum of members available to vote. Accordingly, the Commission sought consent from the parties, as required, to secure a second 45-day extension. However, neither party provided consent for an additional extension. Under these circumstances, the ALJ's recommended decision will be deemed adopted as the final decision in this matter per N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c), effective November 21, 2017.

Since the appellant's suspension has been reversed, he is entitled to 90 working days of back pay, benefits and seniority. The amount of back pay awarded is to be reduced and mitigated as provided for in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10. Additionally, the appellant is entitled to reasonable counsel fees pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12. Proof of income earned and an affidavit in support of reasonable counsel fees should be submitted to the appointing authority within 30 days of receipt of this letter. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10 and N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.12, the parties shall make a good faith effort to resolve any dispute as to the amount of back pay and/or counsel fees.

Sincerely,

Nicholas F. Angiulo

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 12656-14
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2015-92

IN THE MATTER OF WILFREDO MORALES, JR.,
CITY OF ASBURY PARK.

Leonard C. Schiro, Esq., for appellant (Mets Schiro McGovern & Paris, LLP, attorneys)

Steven Glickman, Esq., for respondent (Lite DePalma Greenberg, LLC, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 14, 2017 Decided: August 23, 2017

BEFORE JACOB S. GERTSMAN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Appellant Wilfredo Morales, Jr. (Morales) appeals a ninety-day suspension imposed by Respondent City of Asbury Park (City, Asbury Park), for violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3 including: Inability to perform duties; Chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness; Conduct unbecoming a public employee; Neglect of duty; and Other sufficient cause.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 22, 2014, the City served on appellant a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action suspending him for ninety working days. On August 18, 2014, a departmental hearing was held. Asbury Park issued a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action on August 24, 2014, suspending appellant for ninety working days to be served starting July 24, 2014. Morales filed an appeal with the Civil Service Commission on or about September 5, 2014. The matter was filed with the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case on September 30, 2014, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 and assigned to Administrative Law Judge Robert W. Bingham. The matter was reassigned to Administrative Law Judge Patricia M. Kerins following Judge Bingham's appointment to the Superior Court and reassigned to the undersigned due to scheduling conflicts. The matter was heard on July 14, 2017, and the record was closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

Respondent's exhibits detailed appellant's attendance record from his hiring as a heavy truck driver for the City of Asbury Park in April 2008, through June 30, 2014. In 2008, he was scheduled to work 175 days (not including holidays, vacation days, and personal days) and used 3.5 of 7.5 earned sick days. (R-2, R-3.) In 2009, he was scheduled to work 227 days (not including holidays, vacation days, and personal days) and used 28.5 of 20 earned sick days. (R-2, R-4.) Appellant claimed that the first week of January 2009 should have been for injury leave, rather than sick time. In 2010, he was scheduled to work 238 days (not including holidays, vacation days, and personal days) and used 16.5 of 20 earned sick days. (R-2, R-5.) In 2011, he was scheduled to work 224.5 days (not including holidays, vacation days, and personal days) and used 23.5 of 20 earned sick days. (R-2, R-6.) In 2012, he was scheduled to work 228 days (not including holidays, vacation days, and personal days) and used 15.5 of 20 earned sick days. (R-2, R-7.) In 2013, he was scheduled to work 220.5 days (not including holidays, vacation days, and personal days) and used 16 of 20 earned sick days. (R-2, R-8.) In 2014, he was scheduled to work 123 days (not including holidays, vacation days, and personal days) through July 7, 2014, and used 16 of 20 earned sick days. (R-2, R-7.)

Robert Bianchini (Bianchini), deputy director, department of public works for the City of Asbury Park, testified on behalf of respondent. He stated that Morales' excessive absenteeism, which left the City shorthanded, led to the disciplinary proceedings. The preliminary notice of disciplinary charges also cited a pattern of absenteeism and was prepared for Jose R. Cunha, then the Director of Public Works. (R-2.) Cunha is no longer employed by the City, and no subsequent charges were brought against appellant.

Bianchini stated that the appellant's attendance record demonstrated a pattern of sick days taken in conjunction with other days off, not including time-off for injury. (R-3 through R-9.) He detailed appellant's percentage of sick time taken in this manner from 2008 through 2014 as: 2008-57 percent; 2009-78 percent; 2010-60 percent; 2011-83 percent; 2012-48 percent; 2013-74 percent; 2014-100 percent. He admitted that these percentages were not in the charges brought against Morales. Bianchini further admitted that neither the collective bargaining agreement (A-2), nor the personnel handbook, detailed a policy regarding the percentage of time an employee may not exceed when tied to other days off.

Bianchini stated that appellant exceeded the allotted sick time in both 2009 and 2011. (R-4 and R-6.) He further cited appellant's attendance at that end of December 2009, where he was not present at work for nine consecutive days, consisting of four scheduled days off; one holiday; two sick days; and two personal days. (R-4)

Bianchini claimed that Morales and others received written reprimands with warnings from the City Manager to make them aware that continued excessive use of sick time could lead to disciplinary action. Respondent did not produce written copies of the warnings, and Bianchini was unsure of when they were sent to appellant and other employees. He stated that the letter was the result of a directive from the City Manager to reduce excessive absenteeism, and were directed at individuals with specific problems. He could not recall when they were sent, but he believed that it was on or about July 2014.

Bianchini further admitted that notwithstanding the fact that two other employees took more sick time than appellant, no others were charged with excessive absenteeism. Appellant averaged seventeen sick days per year, while one employee used thirty-one sick days in 2009, and one averaged sixteen per year. (P-1.) Bianchini stated that appellant's rank of absences in comparison to his colleagues was not in the top five, and that appellant brought in a note for the sick days and was medically excused. Morales also had various Workers' Compensation issues leading to injury time taken, that culminated in spinal surgery, which were not contested by the respondent.

Appellant Morales testified on his own behalf. He has been employed as a heavy truck driver for Asbury Park since 2008. No disciplinary action was taken against him until the commencement of this matter, and no subsequent action has been taken.

He was first injured in 2008, in that incident, a waterlogged railroad tie washed up on the beach and came close to people, including children. When he picked it up, he felt a crack in his back. He stated that he eventually required surgery on L-4 L-5 in his spine. Morales showed the surgery scar on his lower back, and testified that he reinjured his back in 2014. Morales further stated that he produced a doctor's note for each absence, whether it was for his illness or if it was regarding an issue with one of his five children. He was also unaware of any rule regarding a percentage of absences from before or after a weekend.

Appellant recalled that the warning letters cited by Bianchini, but not entered into evidence, were sent to all employees.

Having heard the testimony of the witnesses and reviewed the documentary evidence, I make the following findings of FACT:

1. Appellant has been employed by the City of Asbury Park since April 2008;

2. Appellant exceeded the amount of allotted sick time in 2009 and 2011;

3. Respondent had no specified policy limiting the amount of sick time taken by employees in conjunction with other days off;

4. Appellant received no warnings or counseling regarding the alleged excessive use of sick time.

5. Appellant produced doctor's notes for the sick days taken.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

In an appeal from a disciplinary action or ruling by an appointing authority, the appointing authority bears the burden of proof to show that the action taken was appropriate. N.J.S.A. 11A:-2.21; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a). The authority must show by a preponderance of the competent, relevant and credible evidence that the employee is guilty as charged. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982). When dealing with the question of penalty in a de novo review of a disciplinary action against an employee, it is necessary to reevaluate the proofs and "penalty" on appeal, based on the charges. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-19; Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980); West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962).

The respondent has alleged charges of violations of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(d) including the Inability to perform duties; Chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness; Conduct unbecoming a public employee; Neglect of duty, and Other sufficient cause.

Respondent alleged charges against appellant for chronic or excessive absenteeism or lateness, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(4). Conduct that occurs over a period of time, or frequently recurs, is considered "chronic," and may be the basis of discipline or dismissal. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(4).

"Just cause for dismissal can be found in habitual tardiness or similar chronic conduct." West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 522 (1962). While a single instance may not be sufficient, "numerous occurrences over a reasonably short space of time, even though sporadic, may evidence an attitude of indifference amounting to neglect of duty." Ibid.

"There is no constitutional or statutory right to a government job. Our laws, as they relate to discharges or removal, are designed to promote efficient public service, not to benefit errant employees." State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Newark v. Gaines, 309 N.J. Super. 327, 334 (App. Div. 1998). However, approval of an absence shall not be unreasonably denied. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-6.2(b).

In Cumberland County Welfare Board v. Jordan, 81 N.J. Super. 406 (App. Div. 1963), a classified employee who was granted a leave of absence was improperly denied an extension of that leave because of the appointing authority's failure to provide proper notice of the denial; the appointing authority knew she was absent, was aware that she was confined to a hospital, and had previously granted the leave.

In this matter, respondent claims that appellant's injury time was not at issue, rather he had developed a pattern of excessive absenteeism through the use of his sick time. Specifically, respondent argued that appellant had a high percentage of sick time tied to other days off, and that irrespective of the fact that the sick days were approved, Morales was not present to do his job. Appellant countered that the alleged excessive absenteeism was never memorialized and that Morales was never warned. Respondent claimed that Morales was in fact warned, and that it takes time for a pattern to develop.

The City has not produced any memorialized warnings to Morales. It is attempting to utilize a standard that was not previously provided to any employee in the collective bargaining agreement or the employee handbook. Finally, the City initiated these proceedings in mid-2014, approximately six-years following the hiring of Morales, when it alleges the conduct began during the first year of his employment. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the charge of excessive absenteeism, has not been proved by a preponderance of the credible evidence and is hereby DISMISSED.

Respondent has alleged charges against appellant for inability to perform duties, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1). Under N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1), an employee may be subjected to major discipline for "incompetency, inefficiency, or failure to perform duties."

In general, incompetence, inefficiency, or failure to perform duties exists where the employee's conduct demonstrates an unwillingness or inability to meet, obtain or produce effects or results necessary for adequate performance. Clark v. New Jersey Dep't of Agric., 1 N.J.A.R. 315 (1980).

The fundamental concept that one should be able to perform the duties of the position is stated in Briggs v. Department of Civil Service, 64 N.J. Super. 351, 356 (App. Div. 1960), which happens to be a probationary period case involving a nurse:

> Manifestly, the purpose of the probationary period is to further test a probationer's qualifications. Neither the Legislature nor the Commission has given the courts any guidance in determining the extent of assistance or orientation which a probationer must receive. Undoubtedly her duties must be explained to her and she must be given reasonable opportunity to perform the duties expected of her. But this does not mean she is entitled to on-the-job training in the manner of performing her duties. This is what she must be qualified for -- the proper performance of her duties as outlined by the appointing authority.

The record is devoid of any mention about appellant's ability to perform his position, only that his absence, even if approved, made him unable to perform the job. Respondent failed to demonstrate how appellant's absence affected the work that needed to be done, and failed to memorialize appellant's alleged conduct from 2008 through 2014. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the charge of the inability to perform duties has not been proved by a preponderance of the credible evidence and is hereby DISMISSED.

Respondent also sustained charges against appellant for conduct unbecoming a public employee, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6). "Conduct unbecoming a public employee" is an elastic phrase, which encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services." Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also, In re Emmons, 63 NJ. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances "be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555 [quoting In re Zeber, 156 A.2d 821, 825 (1959)]. Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) [quoting Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)].

Suspension or removal may be justified where the misconduct occurred while the employee was off-duty. Emmons, supra, 63 N.J. Super. at 140.

Absent respondent's argument that appellant's mere absence from work, irrespective of the fact that he was either on approved sick or injury leave, left the City shorthanded, the record does not support the charge of conduct unbecoming. Respondent has presented no credible argument that appellant's absence in itself meets the above standard. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the charge of conduct unbecoming, has not been proved by a preponderance of the credible evidence and is hereby DISMISSED.

Respondent alleged charges against appellant for a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7), neglect of duty.

"Neglect of duty" has been interpreted to mean that "an employee . . . neglected to perform an act required by his or her job title or was negligent in its discharge." In re Glenn, CSV 5072-07, Initial Decision (February 5, 2009) (citation omitted), adopted, Civil Service Commission (March 27, 2009), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/ collections/oal/>. The term "neglect" means a deviation from the normal standards of conduct. In re Kerlin, 151 N.J. Super. 179, 186 (App. Div. 1977). "Duty" means conformance to "'the legal standard of reasonable conduct in the light of the apparent risk.'" Wytupeck v. Camden, 25 N.J. 450, 461 (1957) (citation omitted). Neglect of duty can arise from omitting to perform a required duty as well as from misconduct or misdoing. Cf. State v. Dunphy, 19 N.J. 531, 534 (1955). Neglect of duty does not require an intentional or willful act; however, there must be some evidence that the employee somehow breached a duty owed to the performance of the job.

Respondent made the argument that appellant's absence, even if excused, left him unable to perform the job. There is no evidence presented that proves appellant failed to perform his job duties. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the charge of neglect of duty, has not been proved by a preponderance of the credible evidence and is hereby DISMISSED.

Finally, appellant has been charged with a violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(11), other sufficient cause. Other sufficient cause is generally defined in the charges against appellant as all other offenses caused and derived as a result of all other charges against him. Other sufficient cause is a general "catch-all" offense for conduct that violates the implicit standards of good behavior which devolve upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct. Respondent has presented no evidence to support this charge and therefore, I CONCLUDE that the charge has not been proved by a preponderance of the credible evidence and is hereby DISMISSED.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that the determination to suspend the Appellant in this matter be and hereby is REVERSED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. DEAN EDWARDS,
Petitioner,
v.
CITY OF PASSAIC DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS,
Respondent.

Kendal Coleman, Esq., for petitioner (Kendal Coleman, attorneys)

Record Closed: April 27, 2017 Decided: July 24, 2017

BEFORE LELAND S. MCGEE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This case arises out of an employment termination proceeding against Dean Edwards (Petitioner or Edwards) by the City of Passaic (Respondent). Edwards worked for the Passaic Department of Public Works (DPW) for over twenty-five years. He worked as a recycling driver for approximately ten years before becoming a tree cutter. He held that position until he was promoted to the position of Supervisor of Trees in 2008.

On October 14, 2015, the City of Passaic issued a Preliminary Notice Disciplinary Action (PNDA) against Petitioner alleging twenty (20) charges. Petitioner requested a hearing, which the City conducted over four (4) dates:

- November 30, 2015,
- December 21, 2015,
- January 25, 2016, and
- February 25, 2016.

On March 31, 2016, the City issued a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA) removing Edwards from public employment. The following charges were sustained: N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a):

- (1) (Incompetency, inefficiency, or failure to perform duties);
- (2) (Insubordination);
- (6) (Conduct unbecoming of a public employee);
- (7) (Neglect of duty);
- (8) (Misuse of public property, including motor vehicles); and
- (12) (Other sufficient cause).

Petitioner then appealed to the OAL.

The allegations outlined in the FNDA relate to several incidents and altercations involving a number or Edwards's coworkers. The facts surrounding these incidents, litigants' arguments, and credibility determinations are outlined chronologically below.

There was a delay in serving the FNDA upon Petitioner, and thereafter, he requested a hearing before the Civil Service Commission, which transmitted this matter as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on July 1, 2016.

DISCUSSION OF THE FACTS

Summary of Testimony

May 15, 2015, Incident

At the time of the incidents, Anthony Gagliano (Gagliano) was the Assistant Superintendent. On May 15, 2015, Edwards requested Gagliano's approval to take a personal day on May 18, 2015. (R-9). Edwards did not inform Gagliano that he was scheduled for a mandatory defensive driving class on that day. The schedules were posted in the DPW office and employees are responsible for checking the schedule regularly. Gagliano approved the request because he did not know Edwards was scheduled for a class. (R-9.) Typically, this requires the approval of the director.

September 18, 2015, Incident

On September 18, 2015, at approximately 7:36 a.m., Miriam Perez (Perez), Administrative Assistant, parked her vehicle in the DPW parking lot. As she exited the vehicle and prepared to walk across the DPW driveway, Edwards drove past her in a large bucket loader. (P-1.) Perez was alarmed by the fact that Edwards's vehicle was passing so close to her at a high rate of speed. She felt he was traveling too fast and that she was in danger.

The video files of the incident show a first DPW vehicle (pickup/utility truck) exiting the garage and reaching the end of the driveway in approximately ten seconds. (P-1.) The video shows the second vehicle, a much larger piece of equipment, being driven by Edwards, exiting the garage and reaching the end of the driveway in approximately seven seconds. The videos also show multiple DPW employees crossing the busy driveway at that time of day.

October 1, 2015, Incident

On October 1, 2015, Kasim Washington (Washington) was working near 14 Alfred Street, a private residence belonging to a relative. He called Anthony Gagliano, Assistant DPW Superintendent at 10:04 a.m. to ask permission to use a restroom. Gagliano granted him permission to use the bathroom at 14 Alfred Street, the home of the mother of Washington's son. Edwards called Gagliano on his cell phone at 10:28 a.m. and again at 10:37 a.m. to advise him that Washington was in a private residence. Gagliano advised Edwards during the first telephone call that he had granted Washington permission to be there and that he would check into the matter himself. When Washington exited the residence, he saw DPW vehicle #107 parked head-on to his vehicle on the wrong side of the street.

Washington called Gagliano and asked whether Edwards and the Shade Tree crew were supposed to be working in that area because a similar situation occurred in May of that year when Washington was working with a crew nearby. In that instance, Washington received permission from his supervisor to use the restroom at his girlfriend's home at XX Wilcot Street but when he returned to the crew, he noticed Edwards watching him from a DPW vehicle parked up the street, with a cell phone pointed in his direction. Edwards ducked down when he recognized that Washington noticed him. In the October instance, Gagliano said they were working nearby (one block away). When Washington exited the house Edwards addressed him stating "I got you now" and instructed Washington to go to the DPW office. Washington then called his Shop Steward, Frank Gonzalez (Gonzalez), and asked him to meet him at the DPW office.

Gonzalez met Washington at the DPW office where Washington explained what happened at 14 Alfred Street. Gonzalez saw Edwards and asked to speak with him in private. They went into the "clock" room. Gonzalez tried to talk to Edwards about his concern about other employees' whereabouts. (R-5.) Edwards spoke over him and used insulting language. Edwards and Gonzalez then left the building together, walked towards the garage, and continued to address one another. In the garage, Edwards began threatening Gonzalez. (R-5.) Edwards then approached Gonzalez, put his finger in his face, and threatened him. (R-5.) Coworkers restrained Gonzalez and urged him to back away before the incident escalated.

Washington and Gonzalez submitted reports regarding the DPW garage incident, and went to the City's Personnel Department to discuss it with Viviana Lamm (Lamm), Director of Personnel. (R-2; R-5.) Lamm advised them to return to the garage and to stay away from Edwards. She then spoke with Gagliano to advise him that Edwards was to stay away from Washington and Gonzalez for the rest of the day. Gagliano met with Edwards and gave him this directive. Lamm did not speak directly with Edwards.

Despite Gagliano's warning, Edwards approached Washington and Gonzalez while they were in the break room at the end of their shift. He entered the break room and demanded that both employees give him their daily work reports "or else [he was] going to write [them] up." (R-3; R-6.)

Both Washington and Edwards reported the day's incidents to the Passaic Police Department on the following day. (R-4; R-7.) The officer found probable cause to issue a complaint against Edwards, who was later found "not guilty" in Municipal Court.

October 6, 2015, Incident

On October 6, 2015, John Sarno, Esq. (Sarno) of the New Jersey Employers' Association led a seminar for DPW employees, on workplace harassment and discrimination. Edwards and Gregory Lawson (Lawson), a DPW employee, were in attendance. At one point during the seminar, Edwards began a lengthy admonishment about what he perceived to be a general lack of work ethic among unidentified DPW workers. Lawson took offense and responded to Edwards's statements. Edwards then engaged in a verbal confrontation with Lawson. Both employees ignored Sarno's repeated requests to stop. The argument became personal and heated. Both men rose from their seats, continued arguing, and made inflammatory statements. They were approximately eight feet apart, shouting and gesturing at each other. They closed the gap to approximately four feet. They continued to argue for short while before eventually returning to their seats.

Perez

In May 2015, Theodore Evans (Evans), Director of the DPW, asked Perez to monitor the time that Edwards spent in the office instead of out in the field supervising his crew. (R-1.) Perez recorded that on at least six occasions between May 6, 2015, and August 11, 2015, Edwards had spent over five hours in the office when he should have been in the field supervising his staff.

Edwards' Disciplinary Record

Edwards was disciplined on four prior occasions. These include:

- One-day suspension in 2002 (see Exhibit R-15, Notice of Minor Disciplinary Action, dated May 10, 2002);
- Two-day suspension in 2009 (see Exhibit R-16, Notice of Minor Disciplinary Action, October 14, 2009);
- Twenty-four-day suspension in 2014 (see Exhibit R-17, Final Notice of Disciplinary Action, dated February 13, 2014); and,
- Forty-five-day suspension in 2016 (see Exhibit R-18, Final Notice of Disciplinary Action, dated January 13, 2016).

Arguments

May 15, 2015

Petitioner argues that all employees, including supervisors, were aware of the training and had notice that it was scheduled for May 18, 2015. He argues that since Gagliano had notice of the training, he could not have been misled into granting a Personal Day.

Respondent argues that Edwards deliberately failed to mention the training to Gagliano because otherwise, he would have denied the request for a Personal Day.

September 18, 2015

Petitioner argues that the allegation that he drove recklessly through the DPW parking lot is "absurd" and that it is "obvious" from the video.

Respondent argues that Edwards drove through the parking lot too fast given the time of day and that he almost "ran over" Perez. Respondent points out that Edwards's vehicle crosses the lot in seven seconds just after another DPW vehicle crosses in ten seconds.

October 1, 2015

Petitioner argues that he followed the proper chain of command when he observed Washington's vehicle parked at a private residence and that he was never instructed "not to confront Washington." He also argues that Frank Gonzalez instigated and escalated the confrontation that occurred in the garage. Petitioner argues that at no point after the incident did anyone order him to stay away from Gonzalez and Washington.

Respondent argues that Edwards was insubordinate when he chose to confront Washington outside of 14 Alfred Street as Gagliano said he would look into the matter himself. Respondent also argues that Edwards's conduct with Frank Gonzalez was unbecoming of a public employee and violated DPW employee policies. Respondent provides testimony of Gagliano to suggest that Edwards was in fact ordered to stay away from Gonzalez and Washington.

October 6, 2015

Petitioner argues that he did not instigate a confrontation with Lawson during the training and did not engage him physically at any point.

Respondent argues that neither man listened to Sarno's request to stop and both used inflammatory statements during the confrontation.

Perez's Notes

Petitioner argues that Ms. Perez was never asked to keep track of any other employee and this action was done to single out Edwards so that he could be terminated. He also argues that he was using his time in the office to make work-related phone calls.

Respondent provides testimony that Ms. Perez has kept track of other employees in the past. Perez testified that Edwards was in the office when he should have been supervising his crew and that at one point he was observed watching a movie.

CREDIBILITY

When the testimony of witnesses is in disagreement, the trier of fact must weigh the witnesses' credibility in order to make factual findings. Credibility is the value that the fact finder gives to testimony of a witness and contemplates an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency, and manner in which it "hangs together" with other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). Credible testimony must proceed from the mouth of a credible witness and must be such as common experience, knowledge, and common observation can accept as probable under the circumstances. State v. Taylor, 38 N.J. Super. 6, 24 (App. Div. 1955); Gilson v. Gilson, 116 N.J. Eq. 556, 560 (E. & A. 1934). A fact finder is expected to base credibility decisions on his or her common sense and life experiences. State v. Daniels, 182 N.J. 80, 99 (2004). Credibility is not dependent on the number of witnesses who appeared, State v. Thompson, 59 N.J. 396, 411 (1971) and the finder of fact is not bound to believe the testimony of any witness. In re Perrone, supra, 5 N.J. at 521-22.

Regarding the incident on May 15, 2015, I FIND Respondent's testimony to be more credible. Therefore, I FIND that Edwards should have, but failed to mention the training to Gagliano when he requested a Personal Day. Edwards intentionally misled Gagliano.

Regarding the incident in the DPW parking lot on September 18, 2015, I find Petitioner's argument to be more convincing. Therefore, I FIND that at no point in the video did the loader appear to be moving at an excessive rate of speed, nor did it come close to "running over" Perez.

Regarding the incident involving Kasim Washington and Frank Gonzalez on October 1, 2015, I FIND Respondent's testimony to be more credible. Therefore, I FIND that Edwards did not follow orders and acted inappropriately when confronted by other DPW employees.

Regarding the incident that occurred during the workplace harassment seminar on October 6, 2015, I FIND Respondent's testimony to be more credible. Lawson may have instigated the confrontation; however, I FIND that Edwards acted inappropriately and served to escalate the conflict.

Regarding Perez's keeping track of Edwards, I FIND Respondent's testimony to be more credible. Therefore, I FIND that Edwards spent an excessive amount of time in the office, neglected work duties, and was not singled out for purposes of terminating his employment.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

The Civil Service Act, N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to -12.6, governs a public employee's rights and duties. The Act is an important inducement to attract qualified personnel to public service and is liberally construed toward attainment of merit appointments and broad tenure protection. Essex Council No. 1, N.J. Civil Serv. Ass'n v. Gibson, 114 N.J. Super. 576, 580-81 (Law Div. 1971), rev'd on other grounds, 118 N.J. Super. 583 (App. Div. 1972); Mastrobattista v. Essex County Park Comm'n, 46 N.J. 138, 147 (1965). The Act states that State policy is to provide appropriate appointment, supervisory and other personnel authority to public officials so they may execute properly their constitutional and statutory responsibilities. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-2(b). To carry out this policy, the Act authorizes the discipline and termination of public employees.

N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a) provides that a public employee may be subject to major discipline for various offenses. The New Jersey Department of Human Services has a Disciplinary Action Program that sets forth the standards that all employees must meet. (R-12.) "Unbecoming conduct" is broadly defined as conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of the government unit or has the tendency to destroy public respect and confidence in the delivery of government services. In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). The physical abuse of a resident of NJDC by a staff member who was entrusted with the resident's care would be conduct unbecoming the staff member.

The Disciplinary Action Program also sets forth the penalty or range of progressive penalties for each offense of violating the Department's standards. With respect to the physical abuse of a client, the first and only disciplinary action is removal of the employee. (R-12 at C.3.) Consistent therewith, NJDC's Policy # CEO-005 regarding Suspected/Alleged Abuse or Neglect of Clients defines "abuse" as, among other things, "striking with a closed or open hand." (R-11 at 1.) NJDC has an Incident Response Unit with established protocols under Policy # CEO-005 for conducting investigations of suspected abuse or neglect. (R-11 at 4.)

On March 31, 2016, the city of Passaic issued a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action to Edwards, terminating him from employment. The following charges will be discussed.

N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1) (Incompetency, inefficiency or failure to perform duties)

Regarding Civil Service Rule N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(1) petitioner did exhibit incompetency, inefficiency or failure to perform his duties. There is no definition in the New Jersey Administrative Code for incompetency, inefficiency or failure to perform duties. However, case law has determined incompetence is a "lack of the ability or qualifications necessary to perform the duties required of an individual [and] a consistent failure by an individual to perform his/her prescribed duties in a manner that is minimally acceptable for his/her position." Sotomayer v. Plainfield Police Dep't, CSV 9921-98, Initial Decision (December 6, 1999), adopted, Merit Sys. Bd. (January 24, 2000), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/final/ (citing Steinel v. City of Jersey City, 7 N.J.A.R. 91 (1983); Clark v. New Jersey Dep't of Agric., 1 N.J.A.R. 315 (1980).)

I CONCLUDE that Edwards ignored his duties as a Supervisor when he chose to follow Washington and threatened him with disciplinary action. Washington was not a member of Edwards's crew. Edwards ignored his job duties when he spent a total of over five hours in the DPW office instead of supervising his men out on the road. Edwards failed to perform his duties in a manner that is minimally acceptable for his position. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that this charge should be upheld.

N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2) (Insubordination)

Regarding Civil Service Rule N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2), petitioner did engage in insubordination. The New Jersey Administrative Code definitions, N.J.A.C. 4A:1-1.3, does not provide a definition for insubordination; however, case law generally interprets the term to mean the refusal to obey an order of a supervisor. See e.g. Belleville v. Coppla,187 N.J. Super. 147 (App. Div. 1982); Millan v. Morris View, 177 N.J. Super. 620 (App. Div. 1981); Rivell v. Civil Service Comm'n, 115 N.J. Super. 64 (App. Div. 1971), certif. denied, 59 N.J. 269 (1971). According to Webster's II New College Dictionary (1995) "insubordination" refers to acts of non-compliance and non-cooperation, as well as affirmative acts of disobedience. Stanziale v. County of Monmouth Bd. of Health and Merit Sys. Bd., 350 N.J. Super. 414 (App. Div. 2002), certif. denied, 174 N.J. 361 (2002). In In re Rudolph, CSV 5083-99 (consolidated), Initial Decision (October 23, 2000), adopted, Merit System Board (December 18, 2000), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, the Merit System Board upheld the removal of a public works repairer for refusing to respond to the reasonable orders of his supervisor to complete an assignment. The Administrative Law Judge found that appellant's employment history evidenced a pattern of refusal to accept supervision and disrespect for those who attempted to supervise him and upheld appellant's removal.

I CONCLUDE that Edwards disobeyed Gagliano regarding the matter of Washington's use of a private bathroom on October 1, 2015. Gagliano told Edwards he would handle the matter himself. Edwards remained on the scene, continued to monitor

Washington and confronted Washington outside the home, stating "I got you now." He should have left the scene after speaking with Gagliano.

I further CONCLUDE that Edwards was insubordinate when he disobeyed and disregarded the directive of Gagliano, through Lamm, to stay away from Gonzalez and Washington for the rest of the day on October 1, 2015. Edwards defied this order when he chose to confront the employees and demand to see their daily work logs even though he was not their direct supervisor. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that this charge should be upheld.

N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) (Conduct unbecoming a public employee)

Regarding Civil Service Rule N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6), petitioner did engage in conduct unbecoming a public employee. There is no precise definition for conduct unbecoming a public employee, and the question of whether conduct is unbecoming is made on a case-by-case basis. King v. County of Mercer, CSV 2768-02, Initial Decision (February 24, 2003), adopted, Merit Sys. Bd. (April 9, 2003), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/.

In Jones v. Essex County, CSV 3552-98, Initial Decision (May 16, 2001), adopted, Merit Sys. Bd. (June 26, 2001), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, it was observed that conduct unbecoming a public employee is conduct that adversely affects morale or efficiency or has a tendency to destroy public respect for governmental employees and confidence in the operation of public services. Unbecoming conduct is not precisely defined in N.J.S.A. 11A or N.J.A.C. 4A; see, e.g., In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). In Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532 (1998), an off-duty firefighter directed a racial epithet at an on-duty police officer during a traffic stop. The Court noted that the phrase "unbecoming conduct" is an "elastic one that includes any conduct that adversely affects morale or efficiency by destroying public respect for municipal employees and confidence in the operation of municipal services." Id. at 554.

In Hartmann v. Police Department of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992), that court stated that a finding of misconduct need not "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior, which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that, which is morally and legally correct."

In the present case, I CONCLUDE that Edwards engaged in a loud verbal confrontation with the Shop Steward, Frank Gonzalez, on October 1, 2015. Edwards threatened, taunted, and bullied Gonzalez using profane and insulting language. Five days later, he engaged in a verbal confrontation with a different DPW employee during a seminar addressing the topic of workplace violence. Again, Edwards used threatening and insulting language. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that this charge should be upheld.

N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) (Neglect of duty)

Regarding Civil Service Rule N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7) and the charge of negligence, petitioner did neglect his duties. There is no definition in the New Jersey Administrative Code for neglect of duty, but the charge has been interpreted to mean that an employee has failed to perform and act as required by the description of their job title. Neglect of duty can arise from an omission or failure to perform a duty and includes official misconduct or misdoing, as well as negligence. Generally, the term "neglect" connotes a deviation from normal standards of conduct. In In re Kerlin, 151 N.J. Super. 179, 186 (App. Div. 1977), neglect of duty implies nonperformance of some official duty imposed upon a public employee, not merely commission of an imprudent act. Rushin v. Bd. of Child Welfare, 65 N.J. Super. 504, 515 (App. Div. 1961).

I CONCLUDE that Edwards failed to perform his job duties when he chose to unreasonably follow and question Washington on two occasions, engaged in two verbal altercations with two different employees, skipped a mandatory training class, and sat in the office watching movies instead of working. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that this charge should be upheld.

N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(8) (Misuse of public property, including motor vehicles)

Regarding Civil Service Rule N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(8) and the charge of misuse of public property, petitioner did not neglect his duties. There is no definition in the New Jersey Administrative Code for misuse of public property, including motor vehicles, but the charge is understood to mean that an employee has used public property, in this case a vehicle, in a manner that is inconsistent with agency policy or reasonable safety standards. In In re Pressley, A-0699-13T4, A-0700-13T4 (consolidated) (App. Div. June 21, 2016), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/courts/, recurring incidents of unpermitted and erratic driving were sufficient to sustain a charge under N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(8).

I CONCLUDE that Edwards did not misuse public property as suggested by Respondent. The video evidence does not support Perez's testimony that she was almost "run over" by the loader. The loader does not appear to be moving at an excessive speed and there is a sufficiently large distance between the vehicle and where Perez was standing at the time it passed. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that this charge should be dismissed.

N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12) (Other sufficient cause)

Regarding Civil Service Rule N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12), respondent did not provide a basis for the other sufficient cause listed on the FNDA. There is no definition in the New Jersey Administrative Code for other sufficient cause. Other sufficient cause is generally defined in the charges against petitioner. The charge of other sufficient cause has been dismissed when "respondent has not given any substance to the allegation." Simmons v. City of Newark, CSV 9122-99, Initial Decision (February 22, 2006), adopted, Comm'r (April 26, 2006), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/final/.

The FNDA does not specify which incidents should be considered sufficient cause. Respondent argues that cumulatively, all of Edwards' actions, as detailed above, constitutes "other sufficient cause" in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12). I CONCLUDE that this charge should not be upheld.

CONCLUSIONS

Edwards has a history of disciplinary action with the City of Passaic DPW. While it is not necessary to show progressive discipline in this case it is worth noting that the city comported with this policy. Edwards's actions, as outlined in the FNDA, are sufficiently egregious to warrant his termination from employment.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that the determination to terminate Petitioner in this matter be and hereby is AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. EDWARD GRUBER, Appellant, -v- CITY OF NEWARK Respondent,	:	STATE OF NEW JERSEY OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW OAL DOCKET NO.: CSV 03551-2016N SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE

This Settlement Agreement and General Release ("Agreement",) is made and entered into between Senior Building Inspector Edward Gruber ("Gruber" or "Appellant"), The AFSCME Local 2299 ("Union") and the City of Newark ("City" or "Respondent") (Gruber, the Union and the City are collectively referred to hereinafter as the "Parties"). The Parties herein have voluntarily agreed to resolve all disputed matters arising from the disciplinary action taken against him by the City's Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action dated August 27, 2015 (PNDA) and Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated November 25, 2015 (FNDA).

In consideration of the promises contained herein, it is agreed as follows:

1. On or about August 5, 2015, Senior Building Inspector Edward Gruber, attempted to conduct an unauthorized building inspection at the home of Yvette Thomas Freeman ("Ms. Thomas") located at 53 Unity Avenue, Newark, NJ.

2. When he arrived at the location, an argument occurred between Gruber and Ms. Thomas which resulted in an alleged physical altercation between the two and cross complaints were filed in the Newark Municipal Court (See attached PNDA, FNDA and Police Report).

3. The Newark Municipal Court charges stemming from the August 5, 2015 incident have been resolved.

4. On August 11 and 12, 2015, Ramon Lago ("Lago"), Building Sub Code Official and Gruber's immediate supervisor, submitted two reports to Phillip Scott, Director of the Department of Engineering. Both reports detailed discrepancies in Gruber's daily log sheet, insubordination instances and the circumstances involving the August 5, 2015 incident with Ms. Thomas.

5. On July 2, and June 26, 2015, Charles Diliberti ("Diliberti"), Assistant Construction Official and supervisor to Lago, issued directives for all licensed inspectors regarding office and inspection procedures.

6. On June 26, 2015, Diliberti issued Gruber a memorandum for disciplinary action based on insubordination and a failure to perform duties as outlined in both directives referenced in paragraph 5. Gruber received several corrective conferences as a way of progressive discipline.

7. As a result of the conduct outlined in paragraphs one (6) through six (6) herein, the PNDA was issued and Gruber was brought up on disciplinary charges for an immediate suspension prior to a hearing (See attached PNDA, and Police Report).

8. On August 14, 2015, Gruber requested a departmental hearing. The immediate suspension was upheld on September 8, 2015. On October 22, 2015, Gruber appeared with Union counsel representation but requested an adjournment to obtain another attorney. The matter was continued to November 9, 2015. Gruber, through the Union attorney, waived his rights to any further hearings on the departmental level (See attached FNDA).

9. Gruber was removed from City employment on August 7, 2015. The FNDA was issued on November 25, 2015.

10. Gruber appealed the decision on the FNDA to the Office of Administrative Law.

11. The parties have agreed to resolve all issues herein and herein referenced as follows:

    1. The City agrees to Gruber's request to resign from employment as a Senior Building Inspector effective immediately.

    2. Gruber agrees not to seek any further employment with the City in any capacity.

    3. Gruber further waives any and all rights and/or claims which he has and/or may have to: (1) A hearing on the merits of the disciplinary action taken under the PNDA, FDNA and/or this Agreement; (2) To challenge the PNDA, FNDA and/or this Agreement; (3) Initiate and/or partake in Grievance procedures; and/or (4) Initiate, pursue and/or partake any and all litigation against the City in State, Federal and/or Administrative Courts.

    4. Gruber and the Union each further agree that there is no consideration due Gruber, his counsel (if applicable) and/or the Union, including, but not limited to, ~~any claim for back pay~~ and/or counsel fees, arising from his employment and/or the execution of this Agreement.

a. Six (6) months back pay; and
b. Six (6) months suspension is what Gruber will receive from the City only.

5. Gruber and the Union each agree not to appeal the terms and conditions of this Agreement to any agency or court, including, but not limited to the New Jersey Public Employee Relations Commission, the New Jersey Civil Service Commission and/or to any other New Jersey State Court or agency and/or to any United States Court or agency.

6. Gruber and the Union further acknowledge that this Agreement further precludes either of them from bringing any type of legal or contractual action in any forum including, but not limited to, filing a Complaint in New Jersey Superior Court or United States Federal Court, filing any type of complaint with the City, Essex County, the State of New Jersey or the United States of America, and filing a grievance and/or requesting arbitration, that is in any manner grounded, based upon, or related to the FNDA.

7. The Parties are bound by this Agreement. Anyone and/or entity who succeeds to the Parties' rights and/or responsibilities, such as heirs, the executor/administrator of Gruber's estate, and purchasers and/or assignees of Gruber's, the City's and/or the Unions interests shall also be bound.

8. This Agreement shall not constitute a precedent or practice in any matter involving the City or other City employees.

9. Gruber and the Union further acknowledge and agree that this Agreement is based upon a unique set, combination and weighing of factors and shall not be used and/or construed as precedent and/or to in any way dictate, bind, limit and/or even guide the decisions that the City may make in future and/or currently pending disciplinary matters and/or labor negotiations.

10. Gruber and the Union each agree this Agreement shall not be offered, used or considered as evidence in any proceeding of any type against or involving the City, except to the extent necessary to enforce the terms of this Agreement, or as required by law.

11. This Agreement contains the sole and entire agreement between Gruber, the Union and the City, and fully supersedes any and all prior agreements and understandings pertaining to the subject matter hereof. Gruber specifically represents and acknowledges in executing this Agreement that he has not relied upon any representation or statement by the City, or City's counsel or representatives, with regard to the subject matter of this Agreement, which is not set forth herein. No other promises or agreements shall be binding unless in writing, signed by all the Parties, and expressly stated to be a modification of the Agreement.

12. Gruber agrees and acknowledges that he has been fully and fairly represented by his Attorney and the Union in this matter, and he is satisfied with that representation and with the terms and conditions of this Agreement.

13. Gruber agrees and acknowledges that he has had a full opportunity to review this Agreement with her Attorney and/or Union representative and he enters into same knowingly and voluntarily.

13. There is no admission of liability on Gruber's part or the City of Newark.

14. The Parties agree that if any portion of this Agreement is deemed unenforceable, the remainder of the Settlement Agreement shall be fully enforceable.

15. By signing this Settlement Agreement, Gruber states that:

a. He has read it;

b. He understands it and knows that he is giving up important rights, and any and all other federal and state employment related causes of any kind, not including potential Worker's Compensation claims, but including but not limited to The New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, The New Jersey Equal Pay Law, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, The Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967, as amended, The Conscientious Employee Protection Act, The Americans With Disabilities Act of 1990, the Fair Labor Standards Act, and any other constitutional, statutory or common law suit, attorney fees and costs of this proceeding, and any public policy of the United States, the State of New Jersey, or any other State;

c. He agrees with everything contained in this Agreement;

d. His Attorney and Union representative negotiated this Agreement in his presence and with his knowledge and consent;

e. He consulted with his Attorney prior to executing this Agreement;

f. He has signed this Settlement Agreement knowingly and voluntarily.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Parties have caused this Settlement Agreement to be executed.

Mr. Saunders and Ms. Holmes:

I am the Deputy Director in charge of this agency's hearing unit. We have received the settlement regarding Edward Gruber, Jr. from the Office of Administrative Law. However, prior to forwarding it to the Civil Service Commission for acknowledgment, clarification is required.

Specifically, the settlement indicates that Mr. Gruber will resign "effective immediately" and receive a six-month suspension and six months of back pay. However, the settlement does not account for the time from the end of his period of suspension and back pay until the date of his resignation. In that regard, we need to know how that time should be reflected in his official personnel record. Should it be recorded as an approved leave of absence without pay, or something else?

Please let me know the intention of the parties as soon as possible. An email reply is sufficient so long as agreed upon by the parties.

Sincerely,

STATE OF NEW JERSEY

In the Matter of Wayne Hanns, Jr., City of Linden, Police Department

CSC DKT. NO. 2017-2028
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 00745-17

FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: SEP 07 2017 (BW)

The appeal of Wayne Hanns, Jr., Police Officer, City of Linden, Police Department, release at the end of the working test period, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Joann Lasala Candido, who rendered her initial decision on July 28, 2017 permitting the appellant to complete the working test period. No exceptions were filed.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting on September 6, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision.

DISCUSSION

Although the appellant will be permitted to complete his working test period, he has not obtained permanent status as a Police Officer. The appellant must successfully complete a working test period in order to obtain permanent status. Although the appellant has shown his release was not proper, the record does not adequately establish the appellant's satisfactory work performance. Accordingly, the appropriate remedy in this matter is to afford him the opportunity to complete the remainder of his working test period.

In non-disciplinary appeals, such as an appeal of a release at the end of the working test period, the standard for determining whether an appellant is entitled to back pay or counsel fees is governed by N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.3(c) and N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.5(b). N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.5(b) provides, in pertinent part, that back pay and counsel fees for appeals that are not based on disciplinary action or the challenge of the good faith of a layoff "may be granted . . . where the Commission finds sufficient cause based on the particular case." In this case, it was found that the appellant is not entitled to a permanent appointment since he had not successfully completed his working test period. Therefore, sufficient cause has not been demonstrated in this matter to award back pay or counsel fees. See e.g., In the Matter of Melvin Robinson (MSB, decided December 21, 2005), In the Matter of Rocky Rembert (MSB, decided December 3, 2003).

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in releasing the appellant at the end of the working test period was not justified. The Commission therefore reverses that action and orders that Wayne Hanns, Jr., be permitted to complete the remainder of his working test period.

Back pay and counsel fees are denied.

This is the final administrative determination in this matter. Any further review should be pursued in a judicial forum.

INITIAL DECISION
SUMMARY DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 00745-17
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2017-2028

IN THE MATTER OF WAYNE HANNS, JR., CITY OF LINDEN POLICE DEPARTMENT,

---

Wolodymyr P. Tyshchenko, Esq. (Caruso Smith Picini, P.C.)

Daniel J. McCarthy, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: July 17, 2017 Decided: July 28, 2017

BEFORE JOANN LASALA CANDIDO, ALAJ:

Appellant, Wayne Hanns, (Hanns/ appellant) appeals his termination as a police officer by respondent, City of Linden Police Department (Linden/ respondent) at the end of his working test period. Linden hired appellant as a police officer trainee on July 8, 2015, and, after he successfully completed his police academy training on December 14, 2015, he began a twelve-month working test period. According to Linden, on June 4, 2016, and June 21, 2016, appellant received progress reports that "detailed his unsatisfactory performance" and "bad attitude, bad judgment and childish behaviors." On December 15, 2016, Linden terminated appellant for "unsatisfactory performance during the working test period." Appellant subsequently appealed his termination.

According to appellant, he was "involuntarily placed on administrative leave" on July 8, 2016, and remained on administrative leave until he was terminated on December 15, 2016. Appellant argues that Linden acted in bad faith by terminating him at the end of his working test period because Linden "cut off [his] chance to demonstrate that he was worthy of being a police officer by shunting him to the side for a portion of his probationary period and then terminating him at the end of that period."

Appellant filed the instant appeal in accordance with N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 4A:4-5.4. On January 18, 2017, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where it was filed as a contested case. The parties requested that this matter be briefed rather than schedule a hearing date to address the issue of whether appellant was improperly terminated at the end of his working test period on December 15, 2016. Their respective briefs were received on April 26, 2017. On or about June 1, 2017, a telephone conference was conducted and respondent's attorney requested additional time before I issue a decision.

On July 17, 2017, appellant's counsel requested that this matter be decided by summary decision. Having received no opposition from defense counsel, that request was granted and the record closed on July 28, 2017.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), a summary decision "may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." This rule is substantially similar to the summary judgment rule embodied in the New Jersey Court Rules, R. 4:46-2. See Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954). In connection therewith, all inferences of doubt are drawn against the movant and in favor of the party against whom the motion is directed. Id. at 75. In Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co., 142 N.J. 520 (1995), the New Jersey Supreme Court addressed the appropriate test to be employed in determining the motion:

> [A] determination whether there exists a 'genuine issue' of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The 'judge's function is not . . . to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial'.
> [Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 540 (citations omitted).]

Appellant was employed by Linden as a probationary police officer after graduating from the John H. Stamler Police Academy on or about December 15, 2015. He began a 12 month working test period. On June 4 and June 21, 2016 appellant was given feedback on an observation report from December 2015 through June 20, 2016 which detailed unsatisfactory performance. On or about July 8, 2016 appellant was placed on administrative leave by the respondent. He was thereafter terminated at the end of his twelve month working test period on December 15, 2016.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.3(b), the appellant has the burden of establishing that the action to release him at the end of her working test period was taken in bad faith. Appellant must establish by a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence that the action terminating her at the end of his working test period was done in bad faith. Fitzpatrick v. Civil Serv. Comm'n, 91 N.J. Super. 535, 539 (App. Div. 1966); Van Itallie v. Franklin Lakes, 28 N.J. 258, 269 (1958); Divine v. Plainfield, 31 N.J. Super. 300, 302-303 (App. Div. 1954); Dodd v. Van Riper, 135 N.J.L. 167 (E. & A. 1946). If bad faith is found, the employee shall be entitled to a new full or shortened working test period and other appropriate remedies. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.3(c); see also N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.5.

The function of the working test period is not for the purpose of providing the employee further training to qualify him for the position. Briggs v. New Jersey Dep't of Civil Serv., 64 N.J. Super. 351, 355 (App. Div. 1960). Stated differently, during the working test period, the appointing authority is entitled to evaluate the employee's "work performance and conduct . . . in order to determine whether he merits permanent status" and, in turn, the employee "is entitled to a fair opportunity to demonstrate his ability to fulfill the requirements of the position." Vegotsky v. Office of Admin. Law, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 162, 167. An employee may also be terminated from service at the end of the working test period for unsatisfactory performance. See N.J.S.A. 11A:2-6(a)(4); N.J.S.A. 11A:4-15(c); N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4, et seq.; N.J.A.C. 4A:4-5.4(a).

Under the Civil Service Act, N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to -12-6, "appointments shall be permanent after satisfactory completion of a working test period." N.J.S.A. 11A:4-13. The working test period "not only serves the employer who must evaluate the probationary employee's performance to make a well-founded decision as to whether to retain or release him, but also, the required performance evaluations afford the probationer guidance and an opportunity to improve specified performance deficiencies during the probationary period." In re King, CSV 8062-98, Merit Sys. Bd. (November 30, 1999) <https://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/final/csv8062-98.pdf>; N.J.S.A. 11A:4-15. For police officers, the working test period is twelve months, and "the appointing authority shall prepare a progress report on the employee at the end of six months and a final report at the conclusion of the working test period." N.J.S.A. 11A:4-15(a); N.J.A.C. 4A:4-5.3(b). An employee who is terminated at the end of a working test period may appeal the appointing authority's decision to the Civil Service Commission. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.1. In such an appeal, "[t]he employee has the burden of proof to establish that the action was in bad faith." N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.3(b). Bad Faith has been defined as:

> Generally implying . . . a design to mislead or deceive another . . . not prompted by an honest mistake as to one's rights or duties, but by some interested or sinister motive. Bath faith is not simply bad judgment or negligence, but implies the conscious doing of a wrong because of a dishonest purpose . . . .
> [Brown v. State Dep't of Educ., 97 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 537, 541.]

Tribunals having jurisdiction over such matters have defined a very strict standard to be applied in determining whether an appointing authority has exercised bad faith in terminating an employee at the end of the working test period. It is been held that good faith is the sole test to be applied in the circumstances; the employer has no burden to prove that the terminated employee is unfit for a job. Rather, it is the burden of the employee to show that his termination was the result of bad faith on the part of the employer. Cianciosi v. County of Passaic, CSV 3553-99, Initial Decision (July 26, 1999), adopted, Merit System Board (September 17, 1999), <htt://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/search.html>; Jenkins v Housing Auth. of Atl. City, CSV 841-01, Initial Decision (February 5, 2002), adopted, Merit System Board (April 10, 2002), <htt://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/search.html>. "Bad Faith" is defined by Black's Law Dictionary (5th ed. at 127) as follows:

> The opposite of "good faith," generally implying or involving actual or constructive fraud, or designed to mislead or deceive another, or a negligent or refusal to fulfill some duty or some contractual obligation, not prompted by an honest mistake as to one's rights or duties, but by some interested or sinister motive. The term "bad faith" is not simply bad judgment or negligence, but rather it implies the conscious doing of a wrong because of a dishonest purposes or moral obliquity. It is different from the negative idea of negligence in that it contemplates a state of mind affirmatively operating with furtive design or ill will.

See, e.g., Stath v. Williams, 367 N.E. 2d, 1120, 1124 (1977); see also Memmott v. Dep't of Health, Twp. of Freehold, 95 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 118.

If the appointing authority acted in bad faith, "the employee shall be entitled to a new full or shortened working test period and other appropriate remedies." N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.3(c).

This appears to be a case of first impression insofar as there are no reported decisions in which a probationary employee was involuntarily placed on administrative leave for nearly half of his working test period for purported disciplinary reasons, but without any formal disciplinary action against him. Nonetheless, there are a few cases that offer guidance in this matter. For example, in In re Bernal, CSV 3154-07, Initial Decision (September 12, 2008), adopted in part, rejected in part, Civil Serv. Comm'n (November 7, 2008) <https://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal>, a probationary employee was given a new working test period in part because his three-month working test period was supposed to last from May 22, 2006 to August 22, 2006, but was interrupted when he was placed on involuntary leave with pay for non-disciplinary reasons from July 1, 2006, to September 11, 2006, and he was only further evaluated from September 11, 2006, until his termination on November 3, 2006. In concluding that the appointing authority acted in bad faith and ordering a new working test period, the ALJ noted that the appointing authority "failed to follow its own procedures, beginning with placing him on a paid involuntary leave, a status for which there is no provision" and that "[h]is WTP was interrupted for a period almost lasting as long as the WTP itself, and instead of starting fresh, [the appointing authority] truncated his WTP, a violation of the fair and full opportunity that should have been afforded to him."

In contrast, in In re Guevara, CSV 9238-14, Initial Decision (June 2, 2015) (no reported final decision) <https://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal>, an appointing authority acted in good faith in terminating a police officer at the end of his working test period "because he completed only two months of his working test period as a consequence of being disarmed and placed on modified duty because of a domestic violence charge." According to the ALJ in that case, the appointing authority's "decision to allow [appellant] to perform modified duty so that he could continue to receive a paycheck rather than suspend him because of an inability to perform his regular duties hardly demonstrates bad faith" and the "opportunity to observe [appellant] performing his regular duties existed for only a very small portion of the working test period through no fault of the [appointing authority]."

Here, Linden acted in bad faith by essentially removing appellant from his position for the last five months of his twelve-month working test period without taking any formal disciplinary action against him. An appointing authority may discipline a probationary employee during the working test period, but in doing so the appointing authority must follow civil service rules for major discipline and local rules for minor discipline. N.J.A.C. 4A:4-5.4(b). In effect, Linden removed appellant from his position – which constitutes major discipline – without instituting formal disciplinary action against him or affording him a chance to appeal. As a result, Linden deprived appellant of an opportunity to correct any deficiencies in his performance prior to the end of his working test period. Unlike in Guevera, in which the appointing authority had no choice but to place the police officer on modified duty due to the fact he could not carry a weapon, Linden could have taken formal disciplinary action against appellant or allowed him to complete his working test period before terminating him.

I am not satisfied that appellant's working test period was conducted in compliance with the Civil Service rules and regulations. He was not given an opportunity to complete his full working test period. Appellant has not been given an opportunity to receive the benefit of continued progress reports so that he may improve on specified performance deficiencies.

Further, I am not persuaded that respondent has established, by a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence, its position to terminate appellant without giving him an opportunity to improve his performance. Hence, respondent acted in bad faith when determining that appellant's services were unsatisfactory.

I, therefore, CONCLUDE that respondent's determination to release appellant at the end of his working test period was not warranted and inappropriate.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, appellant's motion for Summary Decision is hereby GRANTED. It is hereby ORDERED that the appeal filed by appellant be and is hereby GRANTED and he will be permitted to complete his working test period.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION
OF THE
CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: SEP 07 2017 BW

The appeal of Sara Lloyd, Senior Laundry Worker, Woodbine Developmental Center, Department of Human Services, removal effective October 27, 2011, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge John S. Kennedy, who rendered his initial decision on August 3, 2017. No exceptions were filed.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting of September 6, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in removing the appellant was justified. The Commission therefore affirms that action and dismisses the appeal of Sara Lloyd.

This is the final administrative determination in this matter. Any further review should be pursued in a judicial forum.

IN THE MATTER OF SARA LLOYD,
DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES,
WOODBINE DEVELOPMENTAL CENTER,

Lee J. Hughes, Esq., for appellant, Sara Lloyd (Gruccio, Pepper, Desanto & Ruth, P.A., attorneys)

Patrick Jhoo, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent, Department of Human Services, Woodbine Developmental Center (Christopher Porrino, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: June 20, 2017 Decided: August 3, 2017

BEFORE JOHN S. KENNEDY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The appellant, Sara Lloyd (Lloyd), challenges her removal from the Woodbine Developmental Center (Woodbine). Woodbine removed her due to theft charges having been issued against her as well as Lloyd's consent to Civil Judgment by Confession (Civil Judgement).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 18, 2016, Woodbine issued a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FDNA) removing Lloyd effective October 27, 2011. Lloyd appealed her removal and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on June 6, 2016, as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13. A hearing was conducted in this matter on May 17, 2017. The record closed on June 20, 2017, after the parties submitted written closing briefs.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Based on the testimony of the witnesses and examination of the documentary evidence, I FIND the following FACTS are undisputed:

Appellant was employed by Woodbine as a Senior Laundry Worker from June 2004, until her removal effective October 27 2011. In September 2011, Lloyd was charged in a series of criminal complaints stemming from her use of her elderly neighbor's ATM card. After learning of the pending criminal complaints, Woodbine suspended Lloyd indefinitely. On June 2, 2014, the criminal complaints were dismissed pending Lloyd's completion of a Pretrial Intervention Program (PTI). Lloyd consented to a Civil Judgment as a condition of PTI. On May 18, 2016, Woodbine issued a FDNA removing Lloyd effective October 27, 2011, on the basis of the underlying theft charges as well as Lloyd's consent to the Civil Judgement.

Testimony

Detective Charles Tortella (Tortella) of the New Jersey State Police testified on behalf of Woodbine. Tortella became involved in this matter when J.D., Jr., reported that his father, J.D., Sr., who was suffering from the early stages of dementia, had considerably less money in his bank account than normal. Tortella testified that during the investigation he was unable to interview J.D., Sr., because he was unable to remember the answers and seemed confused by the questions. Tortella was made aware of a suspicious check made out to cash for $9,000 and that appellant had been acting as caretaker to his father and he suspected that she might be the person responsible for taking the money. During his conversation with J.D., Jr., and his father, he found that J.D., Sr., was missing his USAA credit card and Tortella advised J.D. Jr., to check the USAA credit card statements to determine whether it had been used without authorization.

Tortella interviewed a representative from Millville Savings Bank and was able to obtain still images from video surveillance footage from the transaction cashing the $9,000 check. He was able to identify Lloyd as the person withdrawing the $9,000 check for cash. Tortella later questioned Lloyd at the State Police Station in Port Norris. Lloyd told him that she had always been afraid that someone would accuse her of stealing from J.D., Sr. She admitted that on several occasions she had used J.D., Sr.'s ATM card without his authorization. She also admitted that on other occasions she would withdraw more money than J.D., Sr., had asked for so that she could keep the extra money for herself. Through the course of his investigation, Tortella found that J.D., Sr.'s Millville Savings Account Statement from June 15, 2011, reflects twelve $500 withdrawals. (R-4.) On June 6, two $500 withdrawals were made at different ATMs. On several other dates, multiple $500 withdrawals were made. The pattern of near daily $500 withdrawals continued through July 14, 2011. (R-4.) J.D., Sr.'s USAA credit card statements reflect a similar trend of large withdrawals of cash advances. (R-6.)

Tortella noted that there was a series of checks written out to cash and to Lloyd. (R-7.) These checks were presumably signed by J.D., Sr.; however the other information, including who the check is made out to and amount, was completed in another's handwriting. These checks range from $100 to $9000. (R-7.) Criminal charges were made against Lloyd. (R-3.) Lloyd entered into a Civil Judgment in the amount of $49,164 as a condition to her entry into PTI. (See PTA Order attached to petitioner's closing brief.)

Edith Cerracchio, (Cerracchio) Quality Assurance Coordinator at Woodbine testified next. Woodbine's clientele are intellectually disabled and mostly lower functioning. Woodbine has staff on a twenty-four-hour basis to assist the residents. Lloyd is a service worker and interacts with the residents by washing and putting away laundry in their rooms. She has access to the living quarters where residents keep money and other valuables. In 2011, Cerracchio was a program assistant and would have no knowledge if any complaints where ever filed against the appellant.

Steven Katz, (Katz) Employee Relations Coordinator testified that Woodbine does not consider bringing back any employee charged with a crime until PTI is completed and all payments, if any are made. After that is completed the facility makes a determination whether to proceed with discipline. The criminal disposition is considered but does not control the determination if an employee will be disciplined. Based on appellant's conduct, it was determined that she should not return as Woodbine must look out for the best interest of the residents, some of which, have similar vulnerabilities and J.D., Sr.

Sara Lloyd testified on her own behalf and asserted that the terms and conditions of her suspension were that upon completion of her pending criminal matter, without conviction, she would be reinstated. Lloyd contends that she and her husband took care of the elderly neighbor and used the ATM card with his consent. They never charged him for their help and he was appreciative and generous. She did not deny confessing to unauthorized use of J.D., Sr.'s accounts, but claimed that her confession was coerced by Detective Tortella. She never questioned J.D., Sr.'s dramatically increasing spending in spite of the fact that she had access to his bank records. J.D., Sr., did not have any lavish possessions and lived modestly. She accepted PTI because she thought she would get her job back by completing the program. A Union representative advised her that she would be able to keep her job if she took PTI. She also agreed to repay the money because it was a condition of PTI and she thought it would get her job back.

When assessing credibility, inferences may be drawn concerning the witness' expression, tone of voice and demeanor. MacDonald v. Hudson Bus Transportation Co., 100 N.J. Super. 103 (App. Div. 1968). Additionally, the witness' interest in the outcome, motive or bias should be considered. Credibility contemplates an overall assessment of the story of a witness in light of its rationality, internal consistency, and manner in which it "hangs together" with other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718 (9th Cir. 1963).

A trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible, or because it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience, or because it is overborne by other testimony. Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958). In this case, I do not deem appellant's testimony to be credible. It is clear based upon a review of the evidence that appellant took advantage of her elderly neighbor for financial gain. She admitted using his ATM and writing checks from his account. He did not have any lavish possessions and lived modestly and appellant could not account for the daily cash withdrawals, nor did she question him regarding his finances despite having access to his bank accounts and considering herself his care giver. I do not find it credible that she would agree to repay in excess of $49,000 if she did not take the money.

Based upon the testimonial and documentary evidence, and having had the opportunity to observe the appearance and demeanor of the witnesses, I FIND as FACT that appellant took advantage of her elderly neighbor for financial gain. I further FIND as FACT that she admitted using J.D., Sr.'s ATM card without his authorization and that she would withdraw more money than J.D., Sr., had asked for so that she could keep the extra money for herself.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

Appellant's rights and duties are governed by laws including the Civil Service Act and accompanying regulations. A civil service employee who commits a wrongful act related to his or her employment may be subject to discipline, and that discipline, depending upon the incident complained of, may include a suspension or removal. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-2, 11A:2-6, 11A:2-20; N.J.A.C. 4A2-2.

The Appointing Authority shoulders the burden of establishing the truth of the allegations by preponderance of the credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143, 149 (1962). Evidence is said to preponderate "if it establishes the reasonable probability of the fact." Jaeger v. Elizabethtown Consol. Gas Co., 124 N.J.L. 420, 423 (Sup. Ct. 1940) (citation omitted). Stated differently, the evidence must "be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to a given conclusion." Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263, 275 (1958); see also Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959).

Appellant was charged with "Conduct unbecoming a public employee," N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6). "Conduct unbecoming a public employee" is an elastic phrase that encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atl. City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances "be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555 (quoting In re Zeber, 156 A.2d 821, 825 (1959)). Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (quoting Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)).

I CONCLUDE that appellant's behavior did rise to a level of conduct unbecoming a public employee. The basis for the charge of conduct unbecoming was the underlying theft charges as well as Lloyd's consent to the Civil Judgement. Appellant's conduct clearly compromises her ability to be trusted in the context of a facility serving developmentally disabled residents. Appellant took advantage of her position as a caretaker for her neighbor and her conduct serves as a breach of the trust and faith of the public.

Appellant has also been charged with violating N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12), "Other sufficient cause." Other sufficient cause is an offense for conduct that violates the implicit standard of good behavior that devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct. I CONCLUDE that the Appointing Authority has met its burden of proof that appellant violated N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12), "Other sufficient cause." Her conduct violated the implicit standard of good behavior and demonstrates that she cannot be trusted in a facility serving patients with similar needs and vulnerabilities.

PENALTY

In determining the appropriateness of a penalty, several factors must be considered, including the nature of the employee's offense, the concept of progressive discipline, and the employee's prior record. George v. N. Princeton Developmental Ctr., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 463. Pursuant to West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 523–24 (1962), concepts of progressive discipline involving penalties of increasing severity are used where appropriate. See also In re Parlo, 192 N.J. Super. 247 (App. Div. 1983). However, where the charged dereliction is an act which, in view of the duties and obligations of the position, substantially disadvantages the public, good cause exists for removal. See Golaine v. Cardinale, 142 N.J. Super. 385 (Law Div. 1976), aff'd, 163 N.J. Super. 453 (App. Div. 1978); In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19 (2007). The question to be resolved is whether the discipline imposed in this case is appropriate.

Some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished prior record. In re Carter, 191 N.J. 474, 484 (2007), citing Rawlings v. Police Dep't of Jersey City, 133 N.J. 182, 197–98 (1993) (upholding dismissal of police officer who refused drug screening as "fairly proportionate" to offense); see also In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19, 33 (2007) (DYFS worker who snapped lighter in front of five-year-old):

> . . . judicial decisions have recognized that progressive discipline is not a necessary consideration when reviewing an agency head's choice of penalty when the misconduct is severe, when it is unbecoming to the employee's position or renders the employee unsuitable for continuation in the position, or when application of the principle would be contrary to the public interest.
> Thus, progressive discipline has been bypassed when an employee engages in severe misconduct, especially when > the employee's position involves public safety and the misconduct causes risk of harm to persons or property. See, e.g., Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571, 580 (1980).

In this case, the egregious nature of appellant's conduct justifies her removal. Allowing Lloyd to remain at Woodbine would have the potential to destroy public confidence in Woodbine and similar facilities serving those with developmental disabilities across the state. Her removal is the appropriate penalty in light of the public interest in the well-being of Woodbine's clients and the interest in maintaining public confidence in the New Jersey Department of Human Services.

After having considered all of the proofs offered in this matter, and the impact upon the institution regarding the behavior by appellant herein and in light of the seriousness of the offense, I CONCLUDE that the removal of the appellant is appropriate.

ORDER

Accordingly, I ORDER that the action of the Appointing Authority is AFFIRMED, as set forth above.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE

ISSUED: SEPTEMBER 6, 2017 JM

The Civil Service Commission, at its meeting of September 6, 2017, acknowledged the attached settlement in the above matter.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE

IN THE MATTER OF ROBERT MURIE AND ATLANTIC COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

This Settlement Agreement and General Release is made by and between Atlantic County Corrections Officer Robert Murie, hereinafter referred to as "Employee", and Atlantic County Department of Public Safety, hereinafter referred to as "Employer".

WHEREAS, Employee was served with two Final Notices of Disciplinary Action (FNDAs), both dated September 15, 2016, which were subject to appeals:

> OAL Dkt. No. CSV 15268-2016, Agency Ref. No. CSC Dkt. No. 2017-990, a 20-day suspension, and
>
> OAL Dkt. No. CSV 15262-2016, Agency Ref. No. CSC Dkt. No. 2017-984, a 40-day suspension, and

Copies of the FNDAs are attached; and

WHEREAS, the parties to this Agreement have decided to resolve the FNDAs and appeals in a summary fashion in order to avoid the uncertainty, expense and burden of litigation, and of any and all other matters and proceedings that might arise between Employee and Employer as a result of the aforesaid FNDAs and appeals.

NOW, THEREFORE, Employee and Employer agree as follows:

1. Employer withdraws the FNDA for the 20-day suspension, giving rise to the appeal docketed as OAL Dkt. No. CSV 15268-2016, Agency Ref. No. CSC Dkt. No. 2017-990.

2. Employer and Employee consent to a reduction of the FNDA for the 40-day suspension, giving rise to the appeal docketed as OAL Dkt. No. CSV 15262-2016, Agency Ref. No. CSC Dkt. No. 2017-984. The penalty on that FNDA is reduced from a 40-day suspension to a 20-day suspension, with the 20-day suspension already having been served, and the Employer will issue an amended FNDA.

3. Employer will reinstate the 40 days' pay as comp time to be paid in full at the hourly rate in effect at the time of Employee's retirement. Employee will pay these days at the full rate of pay even if the collectively negotiated agreement provides for a lower pay rate for days cashed in at retirement.

4. The Employee agrees to withdraw the above appeals presently pending in the Office of Administrative Law, with prejudice and without costs.

5. Employee releases and forever discharges for himself, his heirs, executors, and administrators, the Employer and any employees and agents of the Employer, of and from all demands, complaints, causes of action, claims and charges whatsoever, arising from the filing of these FNDAs, including, but not limited to, any alleged violation of:

- The National Labor Relations Act;
- Family Medical Leave Act (Federal and State);
- Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964;
- The Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974;
- The Immigration Reform and Control Act;
- The Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990;
- The Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967;
- The Fair Labor Standards Act;
- The Occupational Safety and Health Act;
- New Jersey State Wage and Hour Law;
- The New Jersey Law Against Discrimination;
- The New Jersey Workers' Compensation laws;
- New Jersey Civil Service Statutes;

- any other federal, state or local civil or human rights law or any other alleged violation of any local, state or federal law, executive order, regulation or ordinance;
- any public policy contract (whether oral or written, expressed or implied), tort or common law;
- any allegation for costs, fees or other expenses including attorney's fees incurred in these matters.

This release does not extend to and does not preclude any claims arising under the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act or under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Such claims were neither raised, adjudicated, nor settled in this proceeding.

6. Without in any way limiting the scope or effect of the preceding paragraphs:

A. Employee represents that he is able to read the English language and understands the meaning and effect of this Agreement.

B. Employee understands that the above paragraph includes a waiver of all demands, complaints, causes of action, claims and charges against the Employer and the Employer's current and former employees and agents, whether known or unknown, asserted or unasserted, suspected or unsuspected, which Employee may have as a result of any act that has occurred arising out of the filing of the attached FNDAs.

C. Employee understands that if this Agreement were not signed, the Employee would have the right to submit information on appeal to the New Jersey Civil Service Commission and to a hearing by Administrative Law Judge assigned to hear the appeal, and further understands that upon receipt of any unfavorable ruling by an Administrative Law Judge, would have the right to make submissions to the Civil Service Commission, and thereafter, if unsatisfied with the final decision of the Civil Service Commission, would have the right to take an appeal to the New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division, together with any further rights to file appeals, either by right or by grace in the New Jersey State Court or Federal Court system.

D. The Employee has been represented by the firm of Selikoff and Cohen in the person of Keith Waldman, Esquire, and acknowledges that the Employee has in fact discussed the form and content of this document with his attorney, having sufficient time to review the document prior to agreeing to it.

7. All parties of this Agreement agree that the terms of this Agreement and the circumstances surrounding same, are not to be divulged to any outside sources, either directly or indirectly. Outside sources do not include various agents for the County of Atlantic, namely the County Counsel's Office, Treasurer's Office, Freeholder's Office, or employees of the Atlantic County Department of Public Safety. The provisions of this paragraph are binding only on the Employee and Employer. The Employer makes no representation and takes no responsibility for any unofficial actions of other employees who are not parties to this Agreement.

8. This Agreement shall be governed and conformed in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey. Should any provision of this Agreement be declared illegal or unenforceable by any court of competent jurisdiction and cannot be modified to be enforceable, including the general release language, then this Agreement shall immediately become null void.

9. This Agreement contains the entire agreement between Employer and Employee. No changes to this Agreement shall be effective unless made in writing and signed by the parties thereto.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals the day and year written below their respective names:

FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION
OF THE
CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: SEP 07 2017 (BW)

The appeal of William Pierce, Police Sergeant, City of Hackensack, Police Department, return to prior permanent title at the end of the working test period, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Caridad F. Rigo, who rendered her initial decision on July 24, 2017 granting a new working test period. Exceptions were filed on behalf of the appellant, a reply to exceptions was filed on behalf of the appointing authority and a cross reply was filed on behalf of the appellant.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting on September 6, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision.

DISCUSSION

Although the appellant will be permitted to complete a new working test period, he has not obtained permanent status as a Police Sergeant. The appellant must successfully complete a working test period in order to obtain permanent status. Although the appellant has shown his release was not proper, the record does not adequately establish the appellant's satisfactory work performance. Accordingly, the appropriate remedy in this matter is to afford him a new working test period.

In non-disciplinary appeals, such as an appeal of a release at the end of the working test period, the standard for determining whether an appellant is entitled to back pay or counsel fees is governed by N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.3(c) and N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.5(b). N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.5(b) provides, in pertinent part, that back pay and counsel fees for appeals that are not based on disciplinary action or the challenge of the good faith of a layoff "may be granted . . . where the Commission finds sufficient cause based on the particular case." In this case, it was found that the appellant is not entitled to a permanent appointment since he had not successfully completed his working test period. Therefore, sufficient cause has not been demonstrated in this matter to award back pay or counsel fees. See e.g., In the Matter of Melvin Robinson (MSB, decided December 21, 2005), In the Matter of Rocky Rembert (MSB, decided December 3, 2003).

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in returning the appellant to his prior permanent title at the end of the working test period was not justified. The Commission therefore reverses that action and grants a new working test period for William Pierce.

Back pay and counsel fees are denied.

This is the final administrative determination in this matter. Any further review should be pursued in a judicial forum.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 01242-15
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2015-1891

WILLIAM PIERCE,

Petitioner,

v.

CITY OF HACKENSACK POLICE DEPARTMENT,

Respondent.

Maurice W. McLaughlin, Esq., for petitioner (McLaughlin & Nardi, attorneys)

Raymond R. Wiss, Esq., for respondent (Wiss & Bouregy, attorneys)

Record Closed: February 8, 2017 Decided: July 24, 2017

BEFORE CARIDAD F. RIGO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner appeals his demotion from sergeant to patrolman because he allegedly failed to successfully complete a ninety-day working test period (WTP).

On December 18, 2014, petitioner was advised that he failed to successfully complete his working test period and was reassigned to the rank of patrolman. On December 31, 2014, he sent a notice of appeal to the Civil Service Commission appealing the demotion from sergeant. On January 23, 2015, the matter was transmitted to the Offices of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing as a contested case. Hearings were held on June 1, 2, 15 and 30, 2016, and July 1 and 22, 2016. Written summations were submitted on September 27, 2016, however the record remained open until February 8, 2017, when a list of the exhibits was finalized.

ISSUES

1. Did petitioner receive his written evaluations or progress reports within sufficient time so he could improve any of his alleged deficiencies?
2. Was respondent's evaluations and decisions made on objective measures of performance?
3. Did the respondent act in bad faith?

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Petitioner, William A. Pierce, is a police officer with the Hackensack Police Department (HPD) and has been for approximately nineteen years. After being a patrol officer for thirteen years he took the sergeant's exam, passed it, and became eligible to be a sergeant. He was originally promoted to sergeant in February 2013, as a sergeant he was given a working test period (WTP) which he failed; this was his first sergeant's WTP. Petitioner appealed the HPD's decision and the matter was settled. The settlement included that petitioner was re-promoted and given a second chance at a new WTP. It is this second WTP that is the subject of the instant matter. This WTP occurred from September 2014 to December 2014.

SUMMARY OF TESTIMONY

The following is a summary of the relevant testimony of the witnesses.

Captain Patrick Coffey

Captain Patrick Coffey is employed by the HPD and has been since February 2000. He was assigned to the Detective Bureau in 2003, he made sergeant in 2008, he was assigned to Internal Affairs in 2010, in February 2013 he was a lieutenant assigned as shift commander, and in March of 2016 became captain. His role as a lieutenant is that of a shift commander overseeing sergeants. He explained that sergeants are viewed as street supervisors or first-line supervisors: a patrol officer goes to a sergeant for assistance and direction. He further explained that the HPD has 115 employees and eighty of them are patrol officers.

Captain Coffey had nothing to do with petitioner's first WTP. He was assigned to assist in the oversight of petitioner's second WTP. Coffey was petitioner's immediate supervisor during the second WTP. He was personally involved in overseeing all of the police officer and sergeant's work. He was able to make personal observations of the petitioner. He documented his observations in a memo dated November 18, 2014, exhibit R-14. The memo did not say anything negative about petitioner's performance other than that petitioner took a little longer to complete certain paperwork.

Coffey testified that a few of the patrol officers working with petitioner complained about how at times petitioner spoke to them in a condescending manner. Coffey testified that he told petitioner about these complaints and petitioner acknowledged that he needed to improve in that area.

Coffey next prepared exhibit R-18, a memo dated December 4, 2014. This memo noted that petitioner had made improvements in his processing of paperwork but not on his demeanor when dealing with subordinate police officers. Coffey related that he listened to a phone conversation Pierce had with a subordinate officer and that Pierce was abrasive and demanding. Coffey testified that he spoke to Pierce about it.

Coffey next identified Exhibit R-20 as a memo he wrote on December 13, 2014, this was his summation of Pierce's performance over the WTP. As to Pierce's administrative abilities Coffey said that Pierce was not good. In his opinion, Pierce took too long in processing the necessary paperwork and he could not multitask. He said that Pierce's inability to multitask could present a danger to the public and fellow police officers.

In the same Exhibit R-20, and in his testimony Coffey expressed his concern over Pierce's lack of communication, leadership, and supervisory skills. Coffey based this opinion on the reports and complaints he received from other officers and his observations of Pierce when relating to the officers.

Coffey acknowledged that he did not give his evaluation reports to Pierce but he reiterated that he spoke to Pierce directly several times about his concerns and observations.

Under cross-examination Coffey related that the shifts were eleven hours. He supervised petitioner about four to five weeks, which turned out to be about eight days out of the ninety days.

There were no written protocols to be applied during a WTP either by the Civil Service Commission or the HPD.

The witness acknowledged to this ALJ's direct question that he did not keep petitioner abreast of his progress or lack of progress and that he did not give petitioner any copies of the memos.

Captain Timothy Lloyd

Captain Timothy Lloyd was hired in August 1993 as a patrolman, he went through the ranks until achieving the office of captain. He has been a captain with the HPD since June 2014, his entire law enforcement career has been with the HPD. He is now one of six captains in the HPD. He is in charge of the patrol division directly overseeing Pierce—he is Pierce's top supervisor.

Captain Lloyd provided a brief history of his dealings with Pierce. He said Pierce was out on medical leave for ten to eleven months before his first WTP. Pierce also sustained an injury in the interim so he was out of work in total about twenty months. In the interim, he stated that the HPD underwent a tremendous amount of changes so he made a unilateral decision to work with Pierce to bring him up to speed.

Lloyd further explained that sergeants are the first line of field supervisors and are responsible for the day-to-day functions of officers under their command, and are responsible for making sure that such officers are current on their training and getting the best training they can. To assist Pierce on his return to active duty he assigned two patrol officers to bring Pierce up to speed on the many departmental changes that occurred during his absence. Ultimately, Pierce was deemed ready to perform his duties as a patrol officer again. Within thirty days following his return to patrol duty Pierce was promoted to the rank of sergeant but subject to completion of a WTP. This WTP took place February to March 2013 and was the first WTP.

Lloyd testified that after Pierce's first WTP his supervisors concluded that Pierce was unfit for the position of sergeant because he lacked the skills sets required. Captain Lloyd then testified that Pierce appealed the department's decision not to permanently promote him to sergeant and as a result of that appeal a settlement agreement was entered into. The terms of the settlement were that Pierce would return to the rank of a patrolman for one year and then he would be re-evaluated for the rank of sergeant and given a second WTP.

Lloyd said he was not involved in petitioner's first WTP.

Lloyd next testified that on September 22, 2014, he met with then-Lieutenant Coffey, Lieutenant Busciglio, Sergeant Peterson, and Pierce and he explained to them his new plan of action for the second WTP for Pierce. He stated that this new plan for the conduct of WTPs was to be utilized not just on Pierce but it was to be applied to all sergeants in a WTP. Sergeant Peterson was to be Pierce's main instructor or supervisor. Peterson was to ride with Pierce in the first thirty days of the ninety-day WTP. Lieutenants Busciglio and Coffey were to oversee Pierce and Peterson. Lloyd said that all efforts were made to make sure Pierce passed his second WTP.

According to Llyod's testimony all of the reports he received from Pierce's supervisors/instructors showed one theme about Pierce's performance: that Pierce had trouble handling several matters at one time (he could not multitask); took too long to make decisions; he needed better computer skills; and his communication with his subordinates lacked tact (he had a poor demeanor speaking to subordinates). Lloyd furthered that Pierce should have known certain things, common knowledge in policing, especially after having been on the force for eleven-plus years and having gone through a WTP before.

Lloyd testified that Pierce had fairly good evaluations while he was a patrol officer.

Lloyd stated that during the subject WTP Sergeant Peterson provided approximately nine reports/evaluations/memos to him. Lieutenant Busciglio gave him one report/evaluation/memo for one work cycle, which is eight days but he only observed Pierce for one day out of that eight-day cycle. Busciglio also gave him one report which was his final summative evaluation. Then Lieutenant Coffey gave him two observations reports and one summary report. Lloyd said he did not check what he was told verbally against what they wrote.

Under cross-examination Lloyd could not provide specific details as to exactly what Pierce could and could not do. He explained that he was not concerned about the absence of any formal feedback or progress reports to Pierce because he had instructed Pierce's instructors to give him real time input directly and personally to Pierce as it was happening. Pierce was not evaluated on any objective standard of performance. Lloyd was never present when Peterson, Coffey, or Busciglio were with Pierce.

Lloyd stated that Pierce never received a copy of these reports as they were submitted because Pierce never asked for them. He furthered that he gave Pierce the reports at the end of the WTP when Pierce asked for them. Lloyd clearly stated that Peterson, Coffey, and Busciglio did not give Pierce any of their written reports or evaluations because they gave them to him directly. Lloyd said Peterson, Coffey, and Busciglio told him that they told Pierce what they wrote on the reports/evaluations. So as far as he was concerned Pierce was on notice because he had been told of his progress or lack of progress. Lloyd stated he was not present at any time that Peterson, Coffey, or Busciglio were training, evaluating or meeting with Pierce.

Lloyd furthered that this WTP was newly designed by him and that the new WTP program was a new system for Pierce as well as for Peterson, Coffey, and Busciglio.

Under questioning by this ALJ, Lloyd said his decision to not retain Pierce at the rank of sergeant had mostly to do with the written reports he had received as well as the verbal representations made to him by the officers working with him.

Sergeant Walter Peterson III

Sergeant Walter Peterson has been with the HPD since February 1998. As an officer with the HPD he has served in the housing police department, detective investigating major crimes, he has supervised five to ten patrol officers.

In the Fall of 2014 he supervised the WTP for Pierce. He was told by Lloyd to ride with Pierce and report to him every four days (end of a tour). Lloyd told him to write what he saw, what went well and what went bad. Lloyd also told him to meet with him and discuss what was going on. He was also told that Busciglio and Coffey would meet with Pierce at the end of each four-day work cycle. He rode with Pierce approximately the first thirty days; however, in total he rode with petitioner sixty days.

Peterson stated that his daily routine was to review emails, review duty rolls, attend line up, go with patrol officers on calls, and assist with typing up of the paper work. The writing up requires proficiency with the computer. Multitasking is a must.

Peterson said in the first four days of the WTP he showed Pierce all of the paper work and administrative functions that a sergeant needs to do on a daily basis. He made sure Pierce go onto emails, making sure he had an email account. Pierce received all his computer codes and once Pierce grasped that he simply stood over him making sure all was done correctly. Pierce always had questions and if the question could not be answered right away Pierce always made sure that he asked the question the next day.

Peterson testified that he had a fairly good relationship with Pierce, they would ride together for nearly eleven hours a day. During the WTP there were no major incidents so they would discuss hypothetical situations so he would have an opportunity to assess Pierce's thought processing. Peterson said Pierce would hit all of the points and it would be good except that he thought Pierce took too long and wished Pierce was a little faster. Peterson felt that Pierce had sufficient time and knowledge of police work to have been able to make most decisions faster and easier. Peterson said line-ups went longer than they should have. He said petitioner was always asking questions about things he should know. And, the patrol officers that Pierce supervised complained that Pierce spoke to them as if they were children. He heard complaints from the patrol officers that Pierce was unable to make timely decisions and they had no confidence in him. Pierce was unable to interact with people. Peterson said by October Pierce had improved his performance during the lineups, Pierce knew what the assignments were, where the guys were going and in what cars, the lineups went very smooth.

Peterson denies that Lloyd told him anything about Pierce.

Peterson acknowledged writing Exhibit R-7 and that it was his first observation report after his first week with Pierce. He said the reports he wrote were for Captain Lloyd and as far as he was concerned the reports were interoffice memos to Lloyd. Peterson told Pierce to ask Lloyd for copies of his reports.

Peterson said that by the second week of November Pierce continued to improve in the performance of his administrative duties and during the line-ups but he was concerned that in a major incident Pierce would not be able to make proper decisions in a timely manner, Pierce might freeze in a life-or-death situation.

Because there were no major incidents on which he could evaluate Pierce's performance Peterson said he posed numerous hypotheticals to Pierce to see how he would handle a major incident. Peterson opined that Pierce would not be able to handle a major incident. In total he said he evaluated Pierce on his ability to lead, discharge his responsibilities, give advice, and supervise and opined that Pierce was not capable.

Peterson observed Pierce for sixteen and one-half days out of the forty-five days; he said a ninety-day WTP turns out to be forty-five days because they don't work a full week.

Under cross-examination Peterson acknowledged that he worked with Pierce four days on and four days off and that he was to do a report after each four-day tour and that either Busciglio or Coffey were supposed to do one as well. Peterson was supposed to meet with Pierce after each tour to go over the reports. He stated that Pierce was not given a copy of the reports/evaluations. Peterson did not remember if Pierce was shown the reports.

After asking Pierce a series of hypothetical questions, that he answered correctly, but because Pierce did not answer them fast enough, Peterson thought Pierce would freeze in a major incident and would therefore be unfit to assume the responsibilities of a sergeant.

I FOUND Peterson honest and credible. However, I note he was uncomfortable testifying.

William A. Pierce

William A. Pierce has been a Hackensack police officer for thirteen years and in law enforcement for nineteen years. Prior to the HPD he was a correction officer with the Bergen County Sheriff's Department. In thirteen years with the HPD he has not had any disciplinary actions. He has gone through two police academies; one for corrections and the other for the HPD. He has thirty college credits from Bergen County College in criminal justice. He passed the initial test to be hired as a HPD police officer. However, he was not hired until he appealed his not being hired. Pierce feels that he was disciplined for appealing and was put on a walking post for fourteen months, when new hires generally do three to four months on a walking post.

Pierce furthered that in 2008 he applied to take the sergeant's test and he passed it. He was # 15 on the list and they went to # 22 and promoted that officer skipping him. He said all twenty-two eligible officers were promoted and received a badge but he did not. He said the list came out in 2009 and the HPD slowly made promotions. He was promoted on February 27, 2013, to the position of sergeant. At this promotion he started his first WTP and was failed and demoted. He appealed and they settled, a term of that settlement was that he would do another WTP, hence, the current matter. He was promoted to sergeant again on September 22, 2014.

His first WTP began on February 25, 2013, and ended on May 25, 2013. He received one discipline during his first WTP, it was received on May 24, 2013, and his first WTP was ended the next day. (See Exhibit P-31.)

Pierce testified that no one gave him suggestions as to ways he could improve. No one gave him feedback as to his improvement or lack thereof. He said that when he asked for feedback everyone told him he did not need to be concerned. He testified that Captain Lloyd never told him what he was to improve. Pierce said he did not understand what it was that he needed to improve.

Pierce said that he saw his first evaluation during his second WTP on December 9, nine days before the end of that WTP. In the interim he said he was told not to be concerned.

Pierce counters to the HPD's allegation that it was difficult to evaluate him during the second WTP because nothing major happened by bringing attention to several major incidents. For example, the incident that occurred on November 9, 2014, at 2130 hours when he assisted the Hasbrouck Heights P.D. in locating a suspect involved in a stolen car. On November 14, 2014, when an individual drove a vehicle into a building. Pierce said he handled a suicide, a burglary, a pedestrian being struck by a train, an attempted robbery with a knife, a fire at a church, a fire with possible arson, a motor vehicle fatality, a robbery, a bar fight, and a call from a bar stating that a customer was in the bar and he had a gun. In total Pierce testified he handled about fifteen major incidents during his WTP.

Pierce received commendations but none during his WTP.

Pierce believes Captain Lloyd is predisposed against him.

During cross-examination Pierce stated that between December 2010 and January 7, 2013, (sixteen months) he was out ill and when he returned he started his first WTP. He furthered that on promotion day six officers were promoted to sergeant and five got their badges he was the only one that did not get his badge—he said it was humiliating.

Pierce said he asked Peterson multiple times for his written reports but Peterson never gave them to him. He was told verbally on December 18 that he had failed this WTP.

On December 8 when he was given Peterson's negative report, he requested a meeting on December 9, and he received all of the reports on December 9. He only requested the reports from Peterson.

Pierce admitted that he never complained about the fact that the procedures outlined in the memo dated November 3, 2014, and the meeting of September 22, 2014, were not followed because he did not want to make waves.

Pierce reiterated numerous times throughout his testimony that he was told by his supervisors not to worry about his performance that it was no big deal and he was doing fine.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having heard the testimony of the witnesses and reviewed the documentary evidence I make the following findings of FACT:

1. Appellant did not get copies of his written evaluation reports until December 9, 2014, approximately one week before the end of his ninety-day WTP.
2. Captain Coffey was assigned to work and meet with Pierce during his second WTP to monitor his progress or lack thereof and to otherwise oversee and supervise Pierce during the WTP.
3. Captain Coffey completed three evaluations on the appellant when he should have done twelve. And, Coffey observed appellant eight days out of the ninety days.
4. Peterson's written evaluations/progress reports and his testimony are not consistent with his opinion and conclusions about Pierce's abilities. Peterson criticizes Pierce for taking too long to make decisions; however, at no time does he define what too long is and under what circumstances. According to Peterson because no major incidents occurred while he was supervising Pierce he was forced to pose hypothetical scenarios to assess Pierce's abilities. However, Peterson failed to provide the details of the hypothetical scenarios he posed to Pierce neither in writing or through his testimony.
5. Appellant should have received copies of the written evaluations/reports as they were completed during his ninety-day WTP.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

In an appeal from an employee's termination at the conclusion of a working test period, the employee shoulders the burden of proving that the appointing authority's "action was in bad faith." N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.3(b). If bad faith is found, the employee is entitled to a new full or shortened working test period and, if appropriate, other remedies. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-4.3(c). The basic test is whether the appointing authority exercised good faith in determining that the employee was not competent to perform satisfactorily the duties of the position. See Briggs v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 64 N.J. Super. 351, 356 (App. Div. 1960); Devine v. Plainfield, 31 N.J. Super. 300, 303-04 (App. Div. 1954); Lingrell v. New Jersey Civil Serv. Comm'n, 131 N.J.L. 461 462 (1944). In general, good faith has been defined as meaning "honesty of purpose and integrity of conduct with respect to a given subject." Smith v. Whitman, 39 N.J. 397, 405 (1963). As stated in Schopf v. New Jersey Department of Labor, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 853, 857:

> No set rule may be formulated when attempting to determine whether an employee's termination at the end of the working test period was based on opinions of the appointing authority formed in good or bad faith. If the opinion is formed based upon actual observations of the employee's performance of the duties of the position, and is an honest assessment as to whether the employee will be able to satisfactorily and efficiently perform those duties if the appointment becomes permanent, it must be considered to have been made in good faith. If, on the other hand, the decision to terminate is not based upon actual observations of performance, or if it is made based upon dishonest motives, is based on bias, prejudice or self-interest, or is made with ill will toward the employee or because of some furtive design, it must be set aside. The use of the good faith standard also implies that if the employer's decision to terminate is made in good faith, the fact that the Merit System Board may not have decided the question in the same way is of no import. It is only required that the opinion be based on actual observations and that those observations form a rational basis for the opinion.

In addition, "[a] fair evaluation period is further evidenced by the giving of guidance and advice due to a probationer, as well as a notification of any deficiencies in performance." Sokolowsky v. Twp. of Freehold, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 155, 157; Davis v. Newark Public Library, 9 N.J.A.R. 84, 87-88. In this regard, the Merit System Board has consistently emphasized the necessity on the part of an appointing authority to comply with the regulatory requirements governing the provision of progress reports. The progress reports required by N.J.A.C. 4A:4-5.3 are a means of notice to an employee in the working test period that his performance is unsatisfactory so that the employee has an opportunity to improve specified performance deficiencies toward completing a successful working test period and attaining permanent appointment. The termination of an employee in situations in which the appointing authority has failed to provide that mandated notice has been found to be demonstrative of a lack of good faith and a denial of a fair evaluation of the employee's work performance.

In Sokolowsky, the Merit System Board concurred with the ALJ's conclusion that the employee should be afforded a new working test period where the appointing authority failed to fulfill the evaluation requirements. Although the employee had received verbal criticism from his supervisor during his working test period, the employee never had the impression that his supervisor was unsatisfied with his work. While the employee's supervisor had prepared an interoffice memorandum stating that he was dissatisfied with the appellant's work approximately two months into the employee's working test period, the supervisor did not discuss the contents of this memorandum with the appellant and the evidence did not establish that the appellant received it. In concluding that the appellant was entitled to a new full working test period, the ALJ noted that a "fair evaluation period" is "evidenced by the giving of guidance and advice due to a probationer, as well as a notification of any deficiencies in performance." Sokolowsky, supra, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) at 157. The ALJ held that "the appointing authority failed to fulfill the . . . requirements for a fair evaluation period." Ibid. Specifically, although the appellant "was verbally advised concerning deficiencies in his performance," "he received no written report concerning his progress," and "[t]he consequence of the appointing authority's failure to provide the appellant with timely written notification of deficiencies was denial of a fair evaluation of his work performance." Ibid.

In the case of Niosi v. Department of Public Works, 95 N.J.A.R. (CSV) 238, 240, the appointing authority's failure to issue the required two-month and final progress reports "in and of itself constitutes bad faith, the requirement that the employee must have an opportunity to correct any deficits," warranting a new working test period). Smith v. N. State Prison, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 342 (ordering an extended working test period where employee did not receive progress reports); Richardson v. Dep't of Corr., 92 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 63 (concluding the employee demonstrated that the appointing authority reached its determination that his performance was unsatisfactory is bad faith where the employee did not receive the required progress reports on his performance, warranting a new four-month working test period).

The irregularities in the procedures regarding Pierce's working test period cannot be ignored. Peterson, Coffey, Busciglio, and Lloyd were charged with preparing Pierce's evaluations/progress reports yet they all admitted that they did not give Pierce their reports; and Lloyd said he gave the reports to Pierce on December 9, one week before the end of his WTP. The fact that the HPD did not have a set procedure that it was an ad hoc program put together by Lloyd shows that the WTP was also being tested and there were no objective guidelines in place.

Peterson's testimony is void of the specifics of the numerous hypotheticals he posed to Pierce to see how Pierce would handle a major incident. And, as per Captain Lloyd, Pierce was not evaluated on any objective tests. Peterson, who was Pierce's immediate supervisor during the second WTP, acknowledged that he did not give Pierce the written progress reports. On its face, the failure to offer adequate time to remediate deficiencies in job performance during a WTP constitutes bad faith on the part of the HPD, a week if that, is insufficient time to correct deficiencies

Therefore, having considered all of the above I CONCLUDE that the HPD failed to provide Pierce with adequate notice of his work performance during his ninety-day WTP and therefore did not exercise good faith during the WTP. I recommend that Pierce be given another WTP so that a true evaluation of his abilities can be made.

Marc Serra, Esq., for appellant Geraldine Taylor (Law Office of Marc Serra, attorneys)

Sylvia Hall, Esq., appearing for respondent Essex County (Courtney M. Gaccione, County Counsel, attorneys)

Record Closed: August 1, 2017 Decided: August 8, 2017

BEFORE GAIL M. COOKSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

By Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated October 19, 2016, and made effective October 20, 2016, Essex County Department of Health and Rehabilitation removed appellant Geraldine Taylor (appellant) from her civil service position as a Registered Nurse for abandonment, excessive absenteeism, and other sufficient cause, namely that she failed to return to work after an extended period of Family Medical Leave. Appellant filed a request for a hearing appealing her removal, which appeal was filed with the Office of Administrative Law by the Civil Service Commission for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F1 to -13 on December 7, 2016.

The matter was assigned to me on December 9, 2016. On January 4, 2017, I convened a telephonic case management conference. Among other issues discussed, a hearing date for May 26, 2017, was scheduled. The matter was adjourned on appellant's request, together with acknowledgement of a waiver of back pay for the period of the adjournment, until July 26, 2017.

At the scheduled plenary hearing, the parties set forth the outline of a settlement on the record and the hearing was adjourned. The parties were given the opportunity to reduce the settlement to writing. Under cover of July 28, 2017, the parties submitted to the undersigned a fully executed Settlement Agreement. On the basis of the written agreement submitted, I FIND that all parties in this matter are satisfied with the terms and conditions of that agreement. I have reviewed the record and terms of the Settlement Agreement, made a part hereof, and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures of the parties and/or their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the applicable law.

I CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and therefore, it is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be and are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: SEP 25 2017 (ABR)

The appeals of Claudio Tundo, a Laborer 1 with the Borough of Ringwood (Ringwood), Department of Public Works (DPW), of his seven working day and 15 working day suspensions[1] and his removal, effective February 26, 2016, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Richard McGill (ALJ), who rendered his initial decision on July 31, 2017. Exceptions were filed on behalf of the appointing authority and the appellant and replies to the exceptions were filed on behalf of the appellant and the appointing authority.

Having considered the record and the ALJ's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting on September 6, 2017, did not adopt the ALJ's recommendation to modify the appellant's removal to a three-month suspension. Rather, the Commission upheld the appellant's removal.

DISCUSSION

The appointing authority presented the appellant with a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA), removing him on charges of insubordination, inability to perform duties, chronic or excessive absenteeism, neglect of duty, abuse of sick time, conduct unbecoming a public employee, and other sufficient cause. Specifically, the appointing authority asserted that the appellant declined to come into work on February 15, 2016 to plow snow and he did not report on February 16, 2016 due to ice. It also alleged that he had a long history of abuse of sick and personal leave time dating back to November 2014. Upon the appellant's appeal, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing as a contested case.

In his initial decision, the ALJ found that the events in this matter were essentially undisputed. As a result, the ALJ observed that the Collective Negotiations Agreement (CNA) in effect during the relevant period provided employees with 15 sick days per year, five of which could be utilized as personal days each year.[2] The CNA also provided that the appointing authority could require a doctor's note for sick leave of any duration. The ALJ noted that the appellant finished 2013 with a balance of 0.64 sick days and no personal days; had deficits of 3.50 sick days and one personal day at the end of 2014; had year-end balances of 0.50 sick days and 0.50 personal days in 2015;[3] and used 5.00 sick days and 0.50 personal days in January 2016.[4]

With regard to February 15, 2016, the ALJ noted that Gregory Cook, Supervisor, Public Works, spoke with the appellant at 4:43 a.m. on February 15, 2016, a holiday (Presidents' Day), and told the appellant that he needed to report to work that morning. However, the appellant declined to report to work. The ALJ found that the CNA permitted him to decline to work on that day, as it was a holiday that fell on a week where he was not on the snow emergency standby schedule. The appellant testified that the road conditions on the morning of February 16, 2016 prevented him from traveling to work and he stated that he called a supervisor to advise him accordingly. Although the ALJ found that the local roads were icy on February 16, 2016, he did not find the appellant's testimony that the icy conditions prevented him from traveling to work to be credible, since all other Ringwood DPW employees were able to make it to work on that day.

The ALJ also observed that the appellant's disciplinary record included the following: a written warning in 2015; a four working day suspension in 2015 on charges primarily related to his attendance record; a seven working day suspension in May 2015 due to his failure to report to work on March 2, 2015 after an absence; and a 15 working day suspension in 2016 due to his attendance. The ALJ further

[2] In In re Woodbridge Fire District #1 Sick Leave Policy (CSC, decided January 13, 2010), the Commission held that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:6-1.3, collective bargaining agreements may not permit sick days to be used to conduct personal business.

[3] The appellant's 9.50 sick days in 2015 were dispersed as follows: 2.00 on Mondays, 2.00 on Tuesdays, 1.00 on a Wednesday, 2.00 on Thursdays, and 2.50 on Fridays. None of the appellant's 2015 sick days occurred before or after a holiday.

[4] The appellant's 5.00 sick days in 2016 were dispersed as follows: 2.00 on Mondays, 0.50 on a Tuesday, 1.00 on a Wednesday, 0.50 on a Thursday, and 1.00 on a Friday. Additionally, the ALJ found that 3.50 of the 5.00 sick days the appellant used in 2016 corresponded to snow events and the appellant's use of a 0.50 sick leave day on February 16, 2016 fell on the day after a holiday.

noted that the appellant was "docked" one day's pay in January 2016 for failing to provide a required doctor's note after a December 22, 2015 absence. The ALJ also recognized that the appellant, during the course of his employment, performed 37.09 hours of overtime, compared to another employee who had 304.76 hours of overtime.

Based upon the foregoing, the ALJ sustained the charges of insubordination, abuse of sick time, neglect of duty and conduct unbecoming a public employee. The ALJ found that the appellant's failure to provide documentation for absences on July 21, 2015 and July 24, 2015, as ordered to in two memos, supported the charge of insubordination. The ALJ also cited the appellant's failure to furnish documentation for other sick days in further support of the insubordination charge. As to the abuse of sick time charge, the ALJ found that the appellant's use of sick time on Mondays and Fridays, as well as on dates corresponding to snow events in 2015 and 2016, including his absence on February 16, 2016, demonstrated a pattern of abuse, particularly as he failed to provide doctor's notes for many of his absences. The ALJ indicated that the appellant's use of sick days in November 2014, after producing a doctor's note which merely restricted him to light duty, also constituted abuse of sick leave. The ALJ found that the appellant's extensive use of sick days corresponding with snow events without producing doctor's notes supported the charges of neglect of duty and conduct unbecoming a public employee, as it forced the appointing authority to assign his duties to other employees and negatively impacted the morale and efficiency of Ringwood DPW. The ALJ dismissed the charges of chronic absenteeism, inability to perform duties, and other sufficient cause. In dismissing the charge of chronic or excessive absenteeism, the ALJ cited the appellant's improved attendance after his May 2015 suspension and the fact that he remained within his annual allotment of sick and personal days in 2015 and 2016. The ALJ found that the appellant's improved attendance record after 2014 and his limited overtime compared to other Ringwood DPW employees did not support the charge of inability to perform duties. In weighing the appropriate penalty, the ALJ observed that the appellant "did not have the opportunity to improve his conduct" after the February 2016 suspension that the appellant was serving at the time the instant FNDA was issued. The ALJ noted that the appellant's misconduct in support of the removal after the February 2016 suspension involved only two additional days, of which he only sustained the charges based on the February 16, 2016 absence. Accordingly, the ALJ found that "[w]hether one day or two, the additional misconduct d[id] not warrant a leap from a 15-day suspension to a removal." Therefore, in view of the sustained charges and the appellant's past record, the ALJ recommended that the appellant's removal be modified to a three-month suspension.

In its exceptions, the appointing authority maintains that the ALJ should have sustained the charges of chronic or excessive absenteeism and inability to perform duties and, therefore, should have upheld the appellant's removal. As to the charge of chronic or excessive absenteeism, the appointing authority argues that the appellant's attendance record did not improve after his May 2015 suspension. Rather, it claims that the appellant continued a pattern of misconduct by routinely using sick days on Mondays, Fridays, before holidays, after holidays and following snowstorms. The appointing authority proffers that snow removal was one of the appellant's principal responsibilities as a Laborer 1, but the appellant was habitually absent following snowstorms. It submits that all of the sick days the appellant used in 2016 corresponded to snow events. Moreover, the appointing authority contends that the ALJ failed to recognize the 10 warnings it provided the appellant from November 2014 through January 2016 regarding the use of sick time, unauthorized absences and other infractions. Similarly, the appointing authority argues that the appellant's conduct supports the charge of inability to perform duties, as the appellant demonstrated a routine inability perform his critical snow removal duties by failing to make himself available on regular work days following winter storms.

As to the appellant's removal, the appointing authority maintains that the appellant's history of discipline in the relatively recent past make it appropriate to remove the appellant, as his persistent misconduct and indifference to his duties, including snow removal, demonstrate that any lesser disciplinary action is not likely to improve his conduct. It emphasizes that the written warnings it provided to the appellant were part of progressive discipline and intended to give the appellant an opportunity to improve his behavior. It notes that despite those warnings, the appellant used sick days in January 2016 to avoid snow removal duties and thereafter refused to provide doctor's notes for those absences before failing to report for a regular workday during a snowstorm on February 16, 2016.

In reply, the appellant asserts that the appointing authority failed to demonstrate that removal was the appropriate penalty. The appellant maintains that this matter must be viewed as an issue of progressive discipline for two minor infractions which the ALJ found not to be severe misconduct: one involving a holiday for which he declined overtime and a second for calling out and taking a personal day. In that regard, the appellant notes that the ALJ did not sustain the charges related to the February 15, 2016 incident because he was not scheduled to work, was not on a standby list and was permitted to decline overtime. As such, the February 16, 2016 absence, where he was unable to report to work due to icy road conditions, was the only incident that could support charges and, on its own, does not warrant removal, particularly as the suspension was not issued until after February 22, 2016 and could not form a "building block of progressive discipline." Moreover, the appellant submits that his absences in recent years were not chronic or excessive, since 2014 was the only year in which he actually exceeded his leave allotments. With regard to 2016, the appellant notes that he was within his leave allotments, having only utilized 7.5 out of the 15 days allotted to him. As such, he maintains that removal would not be appropriate, as the foregoing demonstrates that the appointing authority is attempting to punish him for past acts already addressed by prior disciplinary actions.

In his exceptions, the appellant maintains that the insubordination and abuse of sick leave charges should be reversed. Specifically, the appellant argues that the ALJ erred in sustaining the insubordination charge, as his failure to provide doctor's notes for a March 2, 2015 absence could not, in and of itself, sustain the charge in the instant matter, given that he had already received discipline based upon that incident. As to the abuse of sick time charge, the appellant maintains he took February 16, 2016 as a personal day. In that regard, the appellant contends that the ALJ found no evidence that the appellant treated it as a sick day and submits that the Director of Ringwood DPW acknowledged in his testimony that an employee could use a personal day if he could not make it into work for a true winter-related reason. Therefore, because the appellant did not treat February 16, 2016 as a sick day and because he had already been disciplined for all prior attendance-related incidents, his absence on that date was insufficient to sustain the abuse of sick time charge. Finally, the appellant requests back pay, retroactive seniority and benefits.

In reply to the appellant's exceptions, the appointing authority proffers that while the appellant had not received the FNDA suspending him for 15 days until after February 16, 2016, he had notice of the possible suspension and underlying conduct related thereto through the Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action issued on February 10, 2016.

Upon its de novo review of the record, the Commission agrees with the ALJ's upholding of the charges of abuse of sick time, insubordination, neglect of duty, and conduct unbecoming a public employee and dismissing the charges of inability to perform duties and other sufficient cause. However, the Commission does not agree with the dismissal of the charge of chronic or excessive absenteeism. The mere fact that the appellant did not exceed his allotted leave time in 2015 or through February 2016 does not foreclose a finding that his absenteeism during those periods was chronic or excessive. An employee may not exhibit a pattern of abuse of sick leave, such as a demonstrated pattern of use of leave days to extend weekends, holidays, or in a deliberate way that allows them to avoid performing duties at critical times. See In the Matter of Bessie McDalton (CSC, decided June 18, 2014) (Finding disciplinary action was warranted, despite the appellant's submission of doctor's notes, where her absences occurring either the day immediately preceding or after her days off, demonstrated a pattern of abuse). Here, the record of the appellant's relatively short tenure with the appointing authority is replete with a pattern of his use of leave time to shirk his duties, particularly the crucial public safety function of snow removal and the appellant was repeatedly warned of such between November 2014 and January 2016. When the appellant failed to report to work on February 16, 2016, it was the seventh sick day he used in 2016, meaning that he had used nearly half of his sick leave days for 2016 in approximately one-and-a-half months. Notably, all seven sick days he used in 2016 corresponded to snow events. Viewed in that light, the February 16, 2016 absence is sufficient to support the charge of chronic or excessive absenteeism.

With regard to the penalty, the Commission does not agree with the ALJ's recommendation to modify the removal to a three-month suspension. In determining the proper penalty, the Commission's review is de novo. In addition to its consideration of the seriousness of the underlying incident in determining the proper penalty, the Commission utilizes, when appropriate, the concept of progressive discipline. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962). In determining the propriety of the penalty, several factors must be considered, including the nature of the offense, the concept of progressive discipline, and the employee's prior record. George v. North Princeton Developmental Center, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (CSV) 463. Moreover, it is well established that where the underlying conduct is of an egregious nature, the imposition of a penalty up to and including removal is appropriate, regardless of an individual's disciplinary history. See Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). It is settled that the theory of progressive discipline is not a "fixed and immutable rule to be followed without question." Rather, it is recognized that some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished prior record. See Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474 (2007).

The charges that were sustained are serious. The appellant's pattern of using sick time after a snow event or to extend a weekend or holiday is clearly disruptive to the appointing authority's work operations, particularly the vital public safety function of snow removal, given that those duties had to be reassigned to other employees. See In the Matter of Wilbur George (CSC, decided October 1, 2014) (Appellant's excessive use of sick time supported disciplinary action, where duties to be performed by appellant on days he was absent were either left undone or performed by someone else, creating an adverse impact on governmental operations). Moreover, it is clear that the appellant was sufficiently apprised of the need to correct deficiencies in his inappropriate use of his sick time. In that regard, since March 2013, the appointing authority issued no fewer than 10 communications to the appellant regarding issues with his use of sick leave time or requests for required documentation. The appellant's record also evidenced a four working day suspension in April 2015 and a seven working day suspension in May 2015, both for attendance-related infractions. Accordingly, based upon the seriousness of the appellant's offenses, and his prior disciplinary history, which includes one minor disciplinary action and two major disciplinary actions within a three-year period for similar infractions, the Commission concludes that removal is the appropriate penalty.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in removing the appellant was appropriate. Therefore, the Commission affirms that action and dismisses the appellant's appeal.

This is the final administrative determination in this matter. Any further review should be pursued in a judicial forum.

IN THE MATTER OF CLAUDIO TUNDO, BOROUGH OF RINGWOOD DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.

Ryan M. Lockman, Esq., for Claudio Tundo

Justin D. Santagata, Esq., for the Borough of Ringwood Department of Public Works (Kaufman Semeraro & Leibman, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 26, 2017 Decided: July 31, 2017

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

Claudio Tundo (appellant) filed appeals from two suspensions and a removal on charges from the position of Laborer 1 with the Borough of Ringwood Department of Public Works (respondent). The charges against appellant in the removal proceeding are as follows: (1) insubordination; (2) inability to perform duties; (3) chronic absenteeism; (4) neglect of duty; (5) abuse of sick time; (6) conduct unbecoming a public employee; and (7) other sufficient cause.

The specification in the Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action in the removal proceeding states that appellant did not report to work on February 15 and 16, 2016, and that he has a long history of abuse of sick and personal time dating back to November 2014. The specification in the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action states that appellant has a long history of abuse of sick and personal time as well as a history of excessive absenteeism.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Respondent advised appellant of the removal on charges by Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action dated February 22, 2016. Thereafter, respondent informed appellant by Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated February 29, 2016, that the charges were sustained and that the disciplinary action was removal.

Appellant requested a hearing by letter dated March 10, 2016, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on March 21, 2016, for determination as a contested case. By Order dated August 9, 2016, the removal proceeding was consolidated with the appeals of two suspensions on charges, I/M/O Claudio Tundo, Borough of Ringwood Department of Public Works, OAL Dkt. NOS. CSV 09642-15 and CSV 04671-16.

Hearings were held on May 5 and 9, 2017, at the Office of Administrative Law in Newark, New Jersey. On the first hearing day, appellant withdrew his appeals of the two suspensions. The record closed on June 26, 2017, upon receipt of written summations.

ISSUES

The issues in this proceeding are whether the charges should be sustained and, if so, whether removal is the appropriate disciplinary action. The two main factual issues are whether appellant was called to report for work on February 15, 2016, and whether appellant was unable to get to work on February 16, 2016, due to icy road conditions.

FACTS

A. Undisputed Facts

The general course of events in this matter is essentially undisputed, and I FIND as follows:

1. Background

Appellant became a permanent employee of respondent as a Laborer 1 effective March 18, 2013, after being employed as a seasonal employee. Appellant's duties included driving a truck to plow snow.

Respondent has an Employee Manual, which includes sections on sick leave and abuse of sick leave. According to the section on sick leave, respondent's policy is subject to any bargaining unit contracts. The Collective Negotiations Agreement (CNA) in effect during the pertinent period of time provided that a full-time employee accumulates fifteen sick days per year. An employee may utilize five sick days as personal days yearly. In its attendance records, respondent provides an allowance of ten sick days and five personal days at the beginning of each year. If a personal day is not utilized, it is accrued to the next year as an unused sick day.

The section of the Employee Manual on abuse of sick time states as follows:

> An event is any sick time usage evidencing a pattern of absenteeism, including absences on: Fridays or Mondays, the first or last business day of the week; the day before or after a holiday or vacation day; or any combination of the above. An event will be charged for any usage for which a doctor's note is not supplied when required by this policy or required in conjunction with a disciplinary action.

Further, the Borough may, in its sole discretion, require a doctor's note for sick leave of any duration. A doctor's note must be written by a treating physician and provide sufficient information to determine the reason for the use of sick time.

The CNA also has a section on overtime. The pertinent provisions state as follows:

> G. Employees shall work overtime when requested to do so, if possible, and failure to work as requested will result in the employee being charged with the overtime on the overtime distribution records (and losing their place on the list if they took same).
> H. Overtime work shall be distributed by means of overtime roster. Each employee shall be listed on such roster. An employee unable to be reached for an overtime opportunity will have been considered to have used his turn. However, this provision shall not be construed to prevent men already on a task from being continued on for overtime. Employees on vacation will not be called for overtime unless the list has been exhausted and the department head deems it necessary.

Respondent maintained an early morning start schedule and a snow emergency standby schedule, which were posted in the Department of Public Works garage. Employees were compensated at a flat weekly rate when they were on standby.

2. Attendance Record

According to a summary of appellant's attendance records, appellant was out twenty-six days in 2013, fifty-eight days in 2014 and twenty-three days in 2015. These dates include fourteen "Worker's Comp" days as a result of an injury on the job in 2013, approximately thirty-three days due to "Disability" and one day for "Worker's Comp" in 2014, and five suspension days in 2015. Net of these amounts, appellant was out twelve days in 2013, twenty-four days in 2014 and eighteen days in 2015.

According to appellant's attendance record for 2013, in or about May, appellant had balances of 14.64 sick days, 4.00 personal days and 10.64 vacation days. Appellant used 14.00 sick days, 4.00 personal days, and 10.50 vacation days, leaving balances of 0.64 sick days, no personal days and 0.14 vacation days. Of the fourteen sick days, five were on a Monday, two were on a Friday and two were days before a holiday. Appellant produced a doctor's note for three consecutive sick days in August covering a Monday through Wednesday.

Appellant began 2014 with balances of 10.64 sick days, 5.00 personal days and 10.14 vacation days. Appellant used 14.14 sick days, 6.00 personal days and 10.14 vacation days, leaving deficits of 3.50 sick days and 1.00 personal day. The sick days included three Mondays, four Tuesdays, two Wednesdays, two Thursdays and three Fridays. Three of the Tuesdays were days after a holiday. Appellant produced doctor's notes for ten of the sick days. Appellant was assigned to light duty on November 19, 22, 23 and 26, 2014, but he did not report for work.

Appellant began 2015 with balances of 10.00 sick days, 5.00 personal days and 10.00 vacation days. Appellant was docked four vacation days as a disciplinary action as a result of the absences in November 2014. Appellant used 9.50 sick days, 4.50 personal days and 6.00 vacation days, leaving balances of 0.50 sick days, 0.50 personal days and no vacation days. Appellant produced doctor's notes for seven of the sick days. The sick days were dispersed as follows: two on Mondays, two on Tuesdays, one on a Wednesday, two on Thursdays and 2.50 on Fridays.

In January 2016, appellant used five sick days and half a personal day. Two of the sick days were on Mondays, and one was on a Friday. Appellant produced a doctor's note for a four-day span in which he used a total of three sick days. Appellant took off a Tuesday after a holiday on February 16, 2016.

3. Medical Documentation

Scott M. Heck is respondent's Borough Manager and Director of Public Works. On January 2, 2015, Mr. Heck sent a written warning to appellant for absences on November 19, 22, 23 and 26, 2014. The letter emphasizes that the doctor's note submitted by appellant indicated that appellant could perform light duty which was assigned to him.

By memo dated August 4, 2015, Mr. Heck advised appellant that he was required to provide documentation for sick leave on July 21 and 24, 2015. Mr. Heck reminded appellant that use of sick leave to extend weekends, vacations and other time off is improper use of sick leave. In a memo dated August 28, 2015, Mr. Heck noted that appellant had not provided the documentation as required by the memo dated August 4, 2015. Mr. Heck again stated that absences must be documented and that notes are required for any sick leave. By memo dated January 15, 2016, Mr. Heck noted that appellant took sick days from January 11 to 14, 2016, and that the doctor's note did not explain why appellant actually could not work. Mr. Heck sent appellant a memo dated January 27, 2016, in regard to his absences on January 22 and 25, 2016, and reminded him that he was required to provide a doctor's note for every sick day.

4. Overtime

During the course of his employment, appellant performed 37.09 hours overtime. By comparison, another employee had 304.76 hours of overtime. Mr. Heck acknowledged that Section G of the provision on overtime in the CNA does not say anything about discipline if an employee does not come in for overtime.

5. Snow Emergencies

On March 1, 2015, a supervisor called appellant at 11:00 p.m. to come in to plow snow. Appellant said that he could not do so because he was driving home from Pennsylvania. Appellant was told to call another supervisor when he got home.

At 11:12 p.m., appellant called the other supervisor and said that he would report to work at 7:00 a.m. on Monday. Appellant called the following morning and said that he was not coming to work because he was sick.

Appellant reported to work on Tuesday and said that he had to go to "O.H.," meaning Occupational Health. The supervisor granted appellant's request.

There was a snow event on January 11 and 12, 2016. Appellant was out sick on January 11, 2016, and on January 12, 2016, he left early and used half of a sick day.

A major snowstorm began on Friday, January 22, 2016, continued through January 24, 2016, and dropped 21.7 inches of snow. Appellant took sick days on January 22, 2016, and on Monday, January 25, 2016, while other employees worked the entire weekend to clear the snow.

Another snow event occurred on February 15 and 16, 2016. There was holiday, President's Day, on February 15. Appellant was not on the snow emergency standby schedule for the week from February 15 to February 21, 2016. Other facts in regard to this snow event are in dispute.

6. Past Record

On November 6, 2014, appellant received a written warning for use of sick time and personal time beyond the number of days in the union contract. In conjunction with a written warning dated January 2, 2015, Mr. Heck docked appellant four vacation days for his absences in November 2014. By Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated April 17, 2015, appellant was given a four-day suspension for various charges related primarily to attendance in February 2015. By Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated May 15, 2015, appellant was given a seven-day suspension for his failure to report to work in response to a call on March 1, 2015, and his absence on March 2, 2015.

By memo dated January 5, 2016, appellant was docked a day's pay for failure to comply with notification requirements in regard to an absence on December 22, 2015. By Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated February 22, 2016, appellant was given a fifteen-day suspension as the result of his absences on January 22 and 25, 2016. The suspension was scheduled to run from February 22, 2016, to March 11, 2016. It is noteworthy that the removal in this matter became effective February 26, 2016, while the fifteen-day suspension was still in effect.

B. Disputed Facts

Gregory Cook testified that he is employed by respondent as a supervisor in the Department of Public Works. On February 15, 2016, Supervisor Cook was calling employees in for snow-related work. At 4:43 a.m. Supervisor Cook called appellant and spoke with him. Supervisor Cook said that he needed appellant to report to work, and appellant responded that he would not come in. Supervisor Cook recorded appellant's response on an overtime list.

Mr. Heck testified that a weather report was posted prior to February 15 and 16, 2016, and that there was a holiday on February 15, 2016. Appellant was called in on February 15, 2016, but he declined to come in. The following day, February 16, 2016, was a regular work day, but appellant did not report for work. Appellant said that his driveway was icy and he could not come in. Everyone else reported to work including individuals who travel greater distances than appellant. As a result, other employees had to cover appellant's route.

Appellant testified that he did not receive a telephone call from Supervisor Cook on February 15, 2016. Further, appellant never told Supervisor Cook that he did not want to work. By the evening of February 15, 2016, appellant had not received any call to come to work.

Appellant further testified that on the morning of February 16, 2016, the roads were icy and he had a forty-minute drive to work. Appellant went outside at approximately 5:45 a.m. to get to work by 7:00 a.m. Appellant pulled out of his driveway, but his all-wheel-drive vehicle slid into the curb. Appellant tried to get to work, but he turned back due to dangerous road conditions. Appellant called work about 6:00 a.m. and reported that he could not report to work due to icy road conditions. The supervisor said "Okay" and that he would see him the following day.

Respondent's witnesses impressed as more reliable, and their testimony is accepted as true. Based thereon, I FIND as follows. On February 15, 2016, Supervisor Cook telephoned appellant and spoke with him at 4:43 a.m. Supervisor Cook said that he needed appellant to come to work, but appellant declined to do so. On the morning of February 16, 2016, the roads were icy as the result of a snowstorm. Nonetheless, all other employees got to work. Appellant's testimony is not persuasive that the road conditions prevented him from getting to work for the entire day.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

An appointing authority may discipline an employee for insubordination, inability to perform duties, chronic absenteeism, neglect of duty, abuse of sick time, conduct unbecoming a public employee, and other sufficient cause. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a). The appointing authority's action is subject to review by the Civil Service Commission, which after a de novo hearing makes an independent determination as to both the charge and the penalty. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 519 (1962). In an appeal concerning a major disciplinary action, the burden of proof is on the appointing authority. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a). The appointing authority must prove its case by a fair preponderance of the believable evidence. In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982); In re Darcy, 114 N.J. Super. 454, 458 (App. Div. 1971).

The first charge to be considered is chronic absenteeism. The summary of appellant's absences included fourteen Worker's Comp days in 2013 and approximately thirty-three days for disability and one day for Worker's Comp in 2014. These dates are well in the past, and it seems evident that an appointing authority should not discipline an employee due to disability or time taken off due to an injury on the job. While the details as to appellant's disability and injuries on the job were not presented at the hearings, these absences will not be considered in regard to the charge of chronic absenteeism. Likewise, respondent included five suspension days as absences in 2015. These days also should not be considered in regard to a charge of chronic absenteeism.

Appellant finished 2013 with balances of 0.64 sick days and no personal days. In 2014, appellant had deficits of 3.50 sick days and 1.00 personal day by the end of the year. Those absences along with other charges led to disciplinary action in the form of a four-day suspension in April 2015. Thereafter, appellant's attendance improved in 2015 with year-end balances of 0.50 sick days and 0.50 personal days. In 2016, appellant used five sick days and half a personal day in January. In sum, appellant was previously disciplined for his attendance in 2014, and in 2015, which his last full year, appellant's sick and personal days were within his allotted time and a definite improvement over 2014. Appellant's use of sick and personal days in January 2016 was substantial for one month but well within his annual allotment. In view of the fact that appellant remained within his annual allotment of sick and personal days in 2015 and 2016 and the improvement in his attendance since the previous disciplinary action, I CONCLUDE that the charge of chronic absenteeism must be dismissed.

The next charge is inability to perform duties. In support of this charge, respondent cites appellant's attendance record and limited overtime. Appellant's overall attendance since the beginning of 2015 was satisfactory and does not bespeak an inability to perform his duties. Likewise, appellant's limited overtime is not necessarily indicative of an inability to perform duties. Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that the charge of inability to perform duties must be dismissed.

The next charge against appellant is insubordination. Insubordination includes acts of disobedience to proper authority. Here, in memos dated August 4, 2015, and August 28, 2015, Mr. Heck directed appellant to provide documentation for absences on July 21 and 24, 2015. Appellant failed to provide the documentation. This failure constituted insubordination. In addition, appellant failed to provide documentation in regard to other days on which he used sick time. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the charge of insubordination must be sustained.

The next charge against appellant is abuse of sick time. It is noteworthy that the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action sets forth the charge of abuse of sick leave, while the specification states that appellant has a long history of abuse of sick and personal time dating back to November 2014. Appellant attached a summary of appellant's attendance, but there is no identification of specific dates that constitute abuse of sick time.

Despite the lack of specificity as to dates, the charge of abuse of sick time may be considered based on the definition in the Employee Handbook for the period from November 2014 to February 2016. The only full year in question is 2015. One basis for abuse of sick time is use of sick time on a Monday, a Friday or a day before or after a holiday. In 2015, appellant's use of 9.5 days of sick time was dispersed as follows: 2.00 on Mondays, 2.00 on Tuesdays, 1.00 on a Wednesday, 2.00 on Thursdays, and 2.50 on Fridays. None of the sick time was before or after a holiday. In January 2016, appellant used five sick days dispersed as follows: 2.00 Mondays, 0.50 of a Tuesday, 1.00 Wednesday, 0.50 of a Thursday and 1.00 Friday. Significantly, 3.50 of the 5.00 sick days corresponded to snow events. Additionally, appellant did not report to work on a Tuesday after a holiday in February 2016. This day also corresponded to a snow event.

Appellant also failed to produce adequate medical documentation for some of his absences. In November 2014, appellant produced a doctor's note, but Mr. Heck interpreted it to mean that appellant could perform light duty. Appellant believed that he could not work at all. Mr. Heck's interpretation is supported by the note which states as follows: "Patient can return to work with no use of the left arm and no overhead work if available."

In 2015, appellant failed to produce a doctor's note for a sick day on March 2, 2015. This absence corresponded to a snow event. In 2016, appellant did not provide a doctor's note for sick days on January 22 and 25, 2016. These absences also corresponded to a snow event.

Finally, appellant did not report for work on February 16, 2016. It is not clear how appellant or respondent treated this day for purposes of the attendance record, but there is no indication that appellant provided a doctor's note. This date also corresponded to a snow event.

In view of the above, appellant's sick days in 2016 showed a clear pattern of corresponding to snow events. Further, appellant failed to provide doctor's notes for some of his sick days. Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that the charge of abuse of sick time must be sustained.

The next charge is neglect of duty. Again, respondent did not specify in the Preliminary or Final Notice of Disciplinary Action the exact conduct that constitutes neglect of duty. Nonetheless, it appears that the concern is appellant's failure to report to work on regular work days that involved snow events.

In the above discussion of abuse of sick time, various dates were identified on which appellant took sick days that corresponded with snow events. Appellant did not produce doctor's notes for those dates, and the effect of his absence was that his work had to be assigned to other employees. Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that the charge of neglect of duty must be sustained.

The next charge against appellant is conduct unbecoming a public employee. "Conduct unbecoming a public employee" is an elastic phrase, which encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a government unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960).

Here, appellant repeatedly took sick days when there was a snow event. The effect of appellant's neglect of duty was that his work had to be assigned to other employees. It is reasonable to infer that appellant's absences adversely affected the morale and efficiency of respondent's Department of Public Works. Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that the charge of conduct unbecoming a public employee must be sustained.

The final charge against appellant is other sufficient cause. The Preliminary and Final Notices of Disciplinary Action do not specify anything in particular as the other sufficient cause, but in its written summation respondent stated that appellant could no longer be trusted as even a minimally productive employee.

A charge of other sufficient cause typically involves a violation of a rule or regulation of the appointing authority. Here, the basis for the charge of other sufficient cause was not stated with specificity prior to filing of post-hearing summations. Further, there was no testimony as to appellant's overall job performance. It follows that there is no factual basis for this charge. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the charge of other sufficient cause must be dismissed.

Disciplinary Action

The factors to consider with respect to the disciplinary action are the nature of the charges sustained and appellant's past record. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. at 523-24. Progressive discipline is a recognized and accepted principle in choosing the appropriate disciplinary action. In re Herrmann, 192 N.J. 19, 33 (2007). But removal may be the appropriate discipline for a single instance of severe misconduct. Ibid.

The misconduct in this matter relates to attendance. Appellant abused his sick time by using sick days to avoid working during snow events. The same avoidance of work during snow events constitutes neglect of duty and conduct unbecoming a public employee. It is noteworthy that the same conduct underlies these three charges. In addition, appellant's failure to provide medical documentation is a form of abuse of sick time under respondent's Employee Manual. This same misconduct underlies the charge of insubordination. Under the circumstances, the charges which have been sustained in this matter certainly warrant disciplinary action.

On the other hand, the charges which were sustained in this matter relate to attendance. Under the circumstances, this case does not involve the type of severe misconduct where one incident would warrant removal. It follows that progressive discipline would be appropriate for this case.

With respect to past record, appellant received two written warnings in regard to his use of sick time, and he was given a four-day suspension related to sick time. The first major disciplinary action against appellant was a seven-day suspension imposed by notice dated May 15, 2015. Thereafter, appellant's attendance improved significantly for the balance of 2015.

The second major disciplinary action against appellant was a fifteen-day suspension imposed by notice dated February 22, 2016. The suspension was scheduled to run from February 22, 2016, to March 11, 2016. The difficulty with this suspension from the perspective of progressive discipline is that appellant was removed effective February 26, 2016, and as a result, he did not have the opportunity to improve his conduct in response to the disciplinary action. It follows that the only major disciplinary action, to which appellant had an opportunity to respond, was the seven-day suspension.

Further, subsequent to the Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action dated February 10, 2016, advising appellant of the possible fifteen-day suspension, appellant's subsequent misconduct in support of the removal involved only two additional days, i.e.,

February 15 and 16, 2016, and only the charges based on February 16, 2016, were sustained in this proceeding. Whether one day or two, the additional misconduct does not warrant a leap from a fifteen-day suspension to a removal.

Under the circumstances, removal is a grossly excessive disciplinary action. In view of the charges which were sustained in this matter and appellant's past record, I CONCLUDE that a suspension for a period of three months is the appropriate disciplinary action.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that:

1. The charge of chronic absenteeism be dismissed.
2. The charge of inability to perform duties be dismissed.
3. The charge of abuse of sick time be sustained.
4. The charge of insubordination be sustained.
5. The charge of neglect of duty be sustained.
6. The charge of conduct unbecoming a public employee be sustained.
7. The charge of other sufficient cause be dismissed.
8. The disciplinary action shall be a suspension for a period of three months.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, PO Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: SEP 07 2017 BW

The appeal of Darrick Valentine, Senior Medical Security Officer, Ann Klein Forensic Center, Department of Human Services, removal effective May 27, 2015, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Jeffrey N. Rabin, who rendered his initial decision on July 27, 2017. No exceptions were filed.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting of September 6, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in removing the appellant was justified. The Commission therefore affirms that action and dismisses the appeal of Darrick Valentine.

This is the final administrative determination in this matter. Any further review should be pursued in a judicial forum.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 16199-15
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2016-894

IN THE MATTER OF DARRICK VALENTINE, DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES, ANN KLEIN FORENSIC CENTER.

William A. Nash, Esq., appearing for appellant, Darrick Valentine (Nash Law Firm, LLC, attorneys)

Angela Juneau Bezer, Deputy Attorney General, appearing for respondent, Department of Human Services, Ann Klein Forensic Center (Christopher S. Porrino, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record closed: June 15, 2017 Decided: July 27, 2017

BEFORE JEFFREY N. RABIN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Appellant, Darrick Valentine, a Medical Security Officer at Ann Klein Forensic Center (AKFC), appeals disciplinary action seeking his removal for conduct unbecoming an employee, in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6); physical or mental abuse of a patient, client or resident, in violation of Administrative Order (A.O.) 4:08 C3; and inappropriate physical contact or mistreatment of a patient, client, resident or employee, in violation of Administrative Order C5, by the respondent, AKFC.

At issue is whether the disciplinary guidelines in the New Jersey Department of Human Services Disciplinary Action Program Policy (DAP) Handbook, Administrative Order 4:08 Table of Offenses and Penalties, which indicate removal for a first offense of physical abuse of a patient, may be mitigated to allow for a lesser penalty.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Appellant was served with a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action on May 27, 2015, suspending him without pay. Appellant did not request a departmental hearing, and on August 7, 2015, a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action was served, removing him from his position. Appellant filed an appeal, and the Civil Service Commission transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on October 9, 2015. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On July 14, 2016, respondent filed a Notice of Motion for Summary Decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. On November 4, 2016, Dean J. Buono, ALJ, issued a ruling on the briefs which granted in part respondent's Motion, finding that appellant did commit the offenses he was charged with. Accordingly, the within hearing was held on the issue of discipline/penalty only.

The hearing was held on February 21, 2017.[1] Post-hearing letter-briefs were received from respondent on February 28, 2017, and appellant on March 24, 2017. The record closed on June 15, 2017.

[1] The recording system malfunctioned subsequent to the hearing. Accordingly, the parties reconstructed the record on June 14, 2017, pursuant to New Jersey Court Rule 2:5-3(f).

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Undisputed Facts from the Summary Decision:

1. On April 18, 2015, appellant punched patient J.G. at Ann Klein Forensic Center (AKFC).

2. Such conduct constituted conduct unbecoming a public employee.

3. Appellant physically or mentally abused a patient.

4. This conduct constituted inappropriate physical contact or mistreatment of a patient.

Undisputed Facts from the within Hearing:

1. There is a history of violence by patients against AKFC employees.

2. Appellant was aware his job as a Medical Security Officer at AKFC would entail dealing with patients with psychological issues and criminal records and that there would be the potential for violence against employees.

3. Appellant had been attacked twice by patients prior to the within incident.

4. Appellant received initial training and periodic training thereafter as to proper employee procedures, specifically defensive guidelines to be followed when a patient displayed aggressive or violent behavior, as set forth in the Policy on Personal Defensive and Control Techniques in Aggressive Patient Situations and Emergencies. (Exhibit R-2.)

5. Appellant was aware of the "zero tolerance" policy which prohibited the physical abuse of patients, and that the penalty for a first offense of physical abuse was removal. There were no circumstances under which punching a patient was permitted at AKFC.

6. On April 18, 2015, appellant punched patient J.G. and did not follow the required defensive protocols. (Exhibit R-1.) Appellant had never been previously disciplined or reported for violations.

7. Appellant never sought treatment for psychological or emotional issues prior to April 18, 2015. At no time did appellant seek help from his employer or advise anyone at AKFC that he had experienced psychological or emotional issues due to the violent behavior of patients.

8. On March 23, 2016, appellant began seeing Victor J. Nitti, Jr., Ph.D., who diagnosed appellant with Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD).

9. On February 3, 2017, Dr. Nitti wrote that appellant's PTSD had remitted and that appellant could return to his position at AKFC.

Testimony:

For appellant:

Darrick Valentine, appellant, began working at AKFC in July 2007, first as an Escort Officer, then as a Medical Security Officer in Unit 5. Appellant tried to adhere to the required defensive techniques in the past but they "didn't work" for him. He was aware that he had not followed those defensive guidelines in the incident with patient J.G., but that was because he experienced a "hot white flash," and did not remember punching J.G. It was only after the incident, when he saw his fists were bruised and somebody told him what happened, that he became aware he had punched a patient. Appellant also testified that when patient J.G. threatened and shoved him, he became scared, and that is why he did not follow the defensive guidelines.

Appellant had experienced sleep problems as a result of dealing with patients' violent behavior, but had never informed anyone at work. He sought no help until approximately one year after the incident, when he began seeing Dr. Nitti. Appellant said Dr. Nitti taught him coping exercises if a violent situation were to arise again.

Appellant testified that the white flash "cannot happen again," although Dr. Nitti never told him he was permanently cured. Appellant later acknowledged that he may again someday suffer the white flash and symptoms of PTSD.[2] Appellant stated he would still fear for his safety if he returned to work at AKFC.

Appellant stated, with no further detail, that he had also seen a Dr. Bereanu.[3]

Credibility:

In evaluating evidence, it is necessary to assess the credibility of the witnesses. Credibility is the value that a finder of the facts gives to a witness's testimony. It requires an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality or internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). "Testimony to be believed must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness but must be credible in itself," in that "[i]t must be such as the common experience and observation of mankind can approve as probable in the circumstances." In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950).

A fact finder "is free to weigh the evidence and to reject the testimony of a witness . . . when it is contrary to circumstances given in evidence or contains inherent improbabilities or contradictions which alone or in connection with other circumstances in evidence excite suspicion as to its truth." Id. at 521–22; see D'Amato by McPherson v. D'Amato, 305 N.J. Super. 109, 115 (App. Div. 1997). A trier of fact may also reject testimony as "inherently incredible" when "it is inconsistent with other testimony or with

[2] Dr. Nitti's letter/report did not address appellant's "hot white flash." (Exhibit A-1.)
[3] This was the only reference to Dr. Bereanu made at this hearing. Dr. Bereanu was not produced as a witness and her letter/report dated May 5, 2016, was not offered into evidence. No weight has been given to her report in reaching the within conclusions.

common experience" or "overborne" by the testimony of other witnesses. Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958).

Further, "'[t]he interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony.'" State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 10 N.J. 316 (1952) (citation omitted). The choice of rejecting the testimony of a witness, in whole or in part, rests with the trier and finder of the facts and must simply be a reasonable one. Renan Realty Corp. v. Dep't of Cmty. Affairs, 182 N.J. Super. 415, 421 (App. Div. 1981).

After having the opportunity to review the evidence and observe his testimony, I accept the appellant's testimony as credible and truthful. Accordingly, I FIND as fact that appellant feared for his safety at his job, and that there was no certainty on his behalf as to whether the white flash or PTSD could reoccur.

LEGAL ARGUMENT AND CONCLUSION

The first issue is whether the disciplinary guidelines in the DAP Handbook Table of Offenses and Penalties, which indicated removal as the penalty for a first offense of physical abuse of a patient, could be mitigated to allow for a lesser penalty, in consideration of appellant's diagnosis of Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder.

Appellant's rights and duties are governed by the Civil Service Act and accompanying regulations. A civil service employee who commits a wrongful act related to his or her employment may be subject to discipline, and that discipline, depending upon the incident complained of, may include a suspension or removal. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-2, 11A:2-6, 11A:2-20; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.

In assessing the propriety of a penalty in a civil disciplinary action, the primary concern is the public good; factors to be considered are the nature of the offense, the concept of progressive discipline and the employee's prior record. George v. North Princeton Development Center, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d 465 (CSV)(1996). Progressive discipline is required in those cases where an employee is guilty of a series of offenses, none of which is sufficient to justify removal. Harris v. North Jersey Developmental Center, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (CSV)(1994).

Respondent cited N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6) for the charge of "conduct unbecoming a public employee"; penalties for this charge are set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2(a), which permit discipline ranging from suspension and demotion, to removal. For the other two charges, respondent cited the DAP Handbook Table of Offenses and Penalties. (Exhibit R-4.) In that Table, the charge of "Inappropriate physical contact or mistreatment of a patient, client, resident or employee" was listed as offense C-5, where for a first offense a supervisor had latitude to impose a minimum penalty of an "Official Reprimand" to a maximum penalty of "Removal"; for a second offense, the only penalty available was "Removal."

Because there was a range of penalties for these two charges, a civil service employer was entitled to consider the option of two-tier progressive discipline, which then allowed for mitigating factors to be considered.

But the focus here should be on the offense with the strictest penalty: offense C-3. The DAP Handbook Table of Offenses and Penalties indicates that for offense C-3, "[p]hysical or mental abuse of a patient, client, resident or employee," the penalty for the first offense is "removal." (Exhibit R-4).

Appellant committed a first offense of physical abuse of a patient. The issue then became whether mitigating factors may be considered in light of a penalty of removal for this first offense.

The DAP Handbook applies a "fairness" standard by allowing the "consideration of appropriate and demonstrable mitigating factors." (Exhibit R-4, Supplement 1, paragraph 1.) To mitigate the charges against him, appellant introduced evidence as to the violent working conditions at AKFC. Appellant claims these conditions caused him to suffer PTSD, and that the PTSD caused him to ignore the defensive guidelines he was trained to follow, leading to the physical abuse of patient J.G. Additionally, appellant offered in mitigation the fact that he never had been previously disciplined or reported for violations.

In addressing these mitigating factors, it is noteworthy that appellant was aware from the beginning that he had accepted a position at a hospital housing mentally ill patients with criminal records, and that dealing with violent behavior was a part of the job for a Medical Security Officer. He was given training when he started his job at AKFC, specifically in how to deal with violent episodes, and received continuing training throughout his nearly eight years at AKFC. He was aware that there were no circumstances under which punching a patient was permitted. Appellant voluntarily undertook his job with full knowledge of what the position entailed.

Yet, despite being trained in AKFC defensive guidelines, appellant believed he was entitled to override those guidelines when he felt the need to defend himself. Further, appellant offered no assurances that if he returned to his job he would be willing to strictly follow the defensive guidelines required of AKFC employees, despite his awareness that the zero tolerance policy for physical abuse of patients meant his position could be terminated for even a single infraction.

PTSD is a serious condition which affects many who have dealt with stressful and violent occurrences. When considering it as a mitigating factor, however, one must look at the medical and mental history of the affected person.

Despite suffering and witnessing numerous violent encounters with patients, appellant never sought psychological or emotional help or counseling from AKFC during his nearly eight years working there (either before or after the incident with patient J.G.), although such help was available to employees. There had been no diagnosis of PTSD prior to the incident with patient J.G. Appellant never informed his supervisors that he was having emotional or psychological issues due to the violent nature of the job, or that he was having sleep problems. It was not until approximately one year after the incident with J.G.--and after he was removed from his job--that appellant sought help.

Accordingly, appellant has not on his own established a medical or mental history such that PTSD might have justified his physical abuse of a patient.

In deciding what weight to give Dr. Nitti's written letter/report (Exhibit A-1), it must be noted that Dr. Nitti did not appear at the discipline/penalty hearing to elaborate on his report; no foundation was laid as to whether Dr. Nitti had any expertise in identifying or treating PTSD; no information was given as to when the PTSD began or how long it would typically have taken to treat a patient for PTSD; Dr. Nitti wrote that appellant's PTSD was remitted and he could return to work, but never addressed in his report what the likelihood of reoccurrence was if appellant returned to AKFC; he taught appellant "coping methods" in case such a stressful situation did arise again; Dr. Nitti never stated that appellant was permanently cured. Appellant himself testified that there was a chance he might again display symptoms of PTSD. Finally, Dr. Nitti's letter/report never addressed the "hot white flash", a claim introduced by appellant at this hearing.

In focusing on the effect on the public good, as set out in George v. North Princeton Development Center, supra, there is concern for returning an employee to a job where he has for many years feared for his safety; that may have caused him to suffer from PTSD and/or may have caused a sleep disorder; and that may have caused him to blackout in fear at a critical moment when he needed to consciously follow safety guidelines in order to deal with an aggressive patient. Appellant stated he would still fear for his safety if he returned to work at AKFC.

Without any expert medical guidance as to the white flash scenario, or sufficient medical guidance as to how long it takes a person to fully recover from PTSD, or the likelihood of recurrence of PTSD, sending such an employee back to a job where he has to deal with aggressive patients would put those very patients in jeopardy of once again suffering physical abuse at the hands of a Medical Security Officer.

Accordingly, appellant's introduction of PTSD as a mitigating factor did not carry sufficient weight to overturn respondent's decision to remove appellant for physical abuse of a patient.

The second issue is whether the disciplinary guidelines in the DAP Handbook could be mitigated due to the appellant having no prior disciplinary actions on his record.

When considering removal of an employee, his entire prior work/disciplinary record must be considered. In re Stallworth, 208 N.J. 182 (2010). In the within matter, appellant had never been disciplined or reported at AKFC prior to the incident with patient J.G.

Once a determination is made that an employee has violated a statute, regulation or rule concerning his employment, the concept of progressive discipline must be considered. W. New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962). However, it is well established that where the underlying conduct is of an egregious nature, the imposition of a penalty up to and including removal is appropriate, regardless of an individual's disciplinary history. Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). Progressive discipline is not a "fixed and immutable rule to be followed without question." Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474, 484 (2007). Rather, it is recognized that some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished record. Id.

Numerous cases have upheld the removal of an employee for a first violation. In re Hermann, 192 N.J. 19 (2007) (in upholding an employee's removal, the court held that while progressive discipline is a worthy principle, it is not subject to universal application); See also Henry v. Rahway State Prison, supra (progressive discipline bypassed by the court where an employee was engaged in severe misconduct, especially where the employee's position involved public safety and the misconduct caused a risk of harm to persons or property); Bowden v. Bayside State Prison, 268 N.J. 469 (App. Div. 1993), certif. denied 135 N.J. 469 (1994) (upholding the removal of a corrections officer for a first major discipline, having taken into consideration the important role that corrections officers play in dealing with inmates).

A security officer at a facility such as AKFC, which houses patients with criminal records and psychological issues, is charged with the safety of those patients while at the same time having to maintain order at the facility. The mere fact that appellant had not been disciplined before is not sufficient to require the use of progressive discipline, and does not preclude his being removed for a first disciplinary action, especially when such misconduct has the potential to cause serious harm to patients at that facility.

Accordingly, none of the mitigating factors introduced by appellant carry sufficient weight to overturn respondent's decision to remove appellant for a first offense of physical abuse of a patient.

FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: SEP 07 2017 BW

The appeal of Peter Zampella, Senior Maintenance Repairer, Hudson County, Department of Roads and Public Property, 90 working day suspension, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Thomas R. Betancourt, who rendered his initial decision on August 10, 2017. Exceptions were filed on behalf of the appellant and a reply to exceptions was filed on behalf of the appointing authority.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission, at its meeting on September 6, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in suspending the appellant was justified. The Commission therefore affirms that action and dismisses the appeal of Peter Zampella.

BEFORE THOMAS R. BETANCOURT, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Appellant, Peter Zampella, Jr., appeals a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action, dated October 18, 2016, which imposed a penalty of ninety-day suspension for conduct unbecoming a public employee, neglect of duty, and chronic and excessive lateness.

repairer and worked in the Brennan Courthouse. Appellant's shift was from 3:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. Appellant was the "head man" and would assign work to other employees.

Mr. Madigan reviewed the Appellant's timesheets and noted that Appellant was late twenty-one times between the dates of January 23, 2016, and July 27, 2016.

Mr. Madigan, and Appellant's supervisor discussed Appellant's tardiness numerous times with him. Each time Appellant would advise that he would correct his tardiness.

Mr. Madigan reviewed Appellant's prior disciplinary history, which consisted of two written warnings; minor discipline with a one-day suspension; minor discipline with a three-day suspension; a verbal warning; and, major discipline with a forty-five-day suspension.

Mr. Madigan noted that when Appellant was at work he performed his job satisfactorily. When Appellant was late he rarely called in advance. Mr. Madigan recalled two times that Appellant called to advise he would be late. Mr. Madigan also noted that even if an employee called in advance, the employee was still late for work.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND the following FACTS:

1. Appellant, Peter Zampella, Jr., was employed by Hudson County, Department of Roads and Public Property as a senior maintenance repairer.

2. Appellant's work shift was 3:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

3. Appellant was late for work a total of twenty-one times between January 23, 2016, and July 27, 2016, as follows:

    a. February 3, 2016 – 15 minutes

b. Written verbal warning dated March 30, 2006, for chronic and excessive absenteeism;

c. Notice of Minor Disciplinary Action dated July 19, 2012, with a one-day suspension for neglect of duty and excessive lateness;

d. Notice of Minor Disciplinary Action dated March 5, 2013, with a three-day suspension for not going to work and not calling in;

e. Verbal warning dated March 3, 2014, for leaving work early;

f. Notice of Major Disciplinary Action dated July 15, 2015, with a forty-five-day suspension for conduct unbecoming a public employee, neglect of duty, and chronic and excessive lateness.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

The Civil Service Act, N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to -12.6, governs a civil service employee's rights and duties. The Act is an important inducement to attract qualified personnel to public service and is to be liberally construed toward attainment of merit appointments and broad tenure protection. See Essex Council No. 1, N.J. Civil Serv. Ass'n v. Gibson, 114 N.J. Super. 576 (Law Div. 1971), rev'd on other grounds, 118 N.J. Super. 583 (App. Div. 1972); Mastrobattista v. Essex County Park Comm'n, 46 N.J. 138, 147 (1965). The Act also recognizes that the public policy of this state is to provide appropriate appointment, supervisory and other personnel authority to public officials in order that they may execute properly their constitutional and statutory responsibilities. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-2(b). In order to carry out this policy, the Act also includes provisions authorizing the discipline of public employees.

A public employee who is protected by the provisions of the Civil Service Act may be subject to major discipline for a wide variety of offenses connected to his or her employment. The general causes for such discipline are set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2 2.3(a). In an appeal from such discipline, the appointing authority bears the burden of proving the charges upon which it relies by a preponderance of the competent, relevant and credible evidence. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-21; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Id. at 555 (citation omitted). Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (citation omitted).

As to the charges of conduct unbecoming a public employee, Respondent has met its burden of proof by a preponderance of the credible evidence. In reaching this conclusion it is important to note that it is unacceptable for an employee to be habitually late for work. This conduct "adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit." See Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 554.

Neglect of duty is not defined in the New Jersey Administrative Code. However, the charge has been interpreted to mean that "[a]n employee has neglected to perform an act as required by his or her job title or was negligent in its discharge." Avanti, supra, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 564; Ruggerio v. Jackson Twp. Dep't of Law and Pub. Safety, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 214. The ALJ in Glenn v. Twp. of Irvington, CSV 5051-03, Initial Decision (February 25, 2005), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, reasoned:

> The term "neglect" connotes a deviation from normal standards of conduct. Matter of Kerlin, 151 N.J. Super. 179, 186 (App. Div. 1977). The term "duty" means conformance to "the legal standard of reasonable conduct in the light of the apparent risk." Wytupeck v. Camden, 25 N.J. 450, 461 (1957). Neglect of duty can arise from omission to perform a required duty as well as from misconduct or misdoing. Cf. State v. Dunphy, 19 N.J. 531, 534 (1955) (police chief violated his sworn duty by failing to enforce criminal laws).

Although a finding of neglect does not require an intentional or willful act, there must be some evidence that an employee somehow breached a duty of care owed to his employer.

the public good. Of the various considerations which bear upon that issue, several factors may be considered, including the nature of the offense, the concept of progressive discipline, and the employee's prior record." George v. N. Princeton Developmental Ctr., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 463, 465.

In Bock, supra, 38 N.J. at 522, which was decided more than fifty years ago, our Supreme Court first recognized the concept of progressive discipline, under which "past misconduct can be a factor in the determination of the appropriate penalty for present misconduct." Herrmann, supra, 192 N.J. at 29 (citing Bock, supra, 38 N.J. at 522). The Court therein concluded that "consideration of past record is inherently relevant" in a disciplinary proceeding, and held that an employee's "past record" includes "an employee's reasonably recent history of promotions, commendations and the like on the one hand and, on the other, formally adjudicated disciplinary actions as well as instances of misconduct informally adjudicated, so to speak, by having been previously brought to the attention of and admitted by the employee." Bock, supra, 38 N.J. at 523-24.

As the Supreme Court explained in Herrmann, supra, 192 N.J. at 30, "[s]ince Bock, the concept of progressive discipline has been utilized in two ways when determining the appropriate penalty for present misconduct." According to the Court:

> . . . First, principles of progressive discipline can support the imposition of a more severe penalty for a public employee who engages in habitual misconduct . . . .
>
> The second use to which the principle of progressive discipline has been put is to mitigate the penalty for a current offense . . . for an employee who has a substantial record of employment that is largely or totally unblemished by significant disciplinary infractions . . . .
>
> . . . [T]hat is not to say that incremental discipline is a principle that must be applied in every disciplinary setting. To the contrary, judicial decisions have recognized that progressive discipline is not a necessary consideration when . . . the misconduct is severe, when it is unbecoming to the employee's position or renders the employee unsuitable for major disciplinary action for chronic lateness resulting in a forty-five-day suspension. Much of his disciplinary history revolves around his inability to arrive at work in a timely manner.

Based upon the above authorities, I CONCLUDE that progressive discipline should apply. The question remains whether a ninety-day suspension is warranted, or that a lesser penalty be imposed.

I further CONCLUDE that the penalty of a ninety-day suspension is appropriate given Appellant's prior disciplinary history, most of which entails excessive tardiness, and therefore should be upheld.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that Appellant's appeal is DENIED;

It is further ORDERED that the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action providing for a penalty of ninety-day suspension, effective October 11, 2016, is AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

CSC DKT. NO. 2015-2610

FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

ISSUED: September 21, 2017 BW

The appeal of Rosalba Dominguez, Senior Probation Officer, Judiciary, Somerset Vicinage, removal effective March 12, 2015, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Susan M. Scarola, who rendered her initial decision on August 14, 2017. Exceptions were filed on behalf of the appellant, and a reply to exceptions was filed on behalf of the appointing authority.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting of September 20, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusion as contained in the attached Administrative Law Judge's initial decision.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the action of the appointing authority in removing the appellant was justified. The Commission therefore affirms that action and dismisses the appeal of Rosalba Dominguez.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CSV 4227-15
AGENCY DKT. NO. 2015-2610

IN THE MATTER OF ROSALBA DOMINGUEZ, NEW JERSEY JUDICIARY, SOMERSET VICINAGE.

Brian M. Cige, Esq., appearing for appellant, Rosalba Dominguez (Law Offices of Brian Cige)

Thomas Russo, Esq., for respondent, New Jersey Judiciary, Somerset Vicinage (Glenn A. Grant, J.A.D., Acting Administrative Director of the New Jersey Courts, attorney)

Record Closed: June 30, 2017 Decided: August 14, 2017

BEFORE SUSAN M. SCAROLA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Appellant, Rosalba Dominguez, a senior probation officer (PO) at respondent, State of New Jersey Judiciary, Somerset/Hunterdon/Warren Vicinage, appeals disciplinary action seeking her removal for conduct unbecoming a public employee in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6), and other sufficient cause in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12), specifically, violation of the Code of Conduct for Judiciary Employees

Canon 3 (avoiding actual or apparent impropriety) by attempting to use her judiciary position to unduly influence police officers from Clinton Township to refrain from charging her boyfriend with driving while intoxicated, by providing a false name to law-enforcement authorities, and by calling 911 in a non-emergency situation.

The appellant denies the allegations and contends that her conduct had no influence on the arresting officers, and, further, that she was intoxicated, and therefore was not acting deliberately.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On September 29, 2014, the New Jersey Judiciary, Vicinage 13 (Somerset County), issued a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action suspending appellant without pay pending a departmental hearing. Following a departmental hearing, the judiciary issued a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action on March 11, 2015, sustaining the charges and removing appellant from her position effective March 12, 2015. Appellant filed a timely notice of appeal.

The Civil Service Commission, Merit System Practices, transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on March 26, 2015. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was held on August 29, and 30, 2016, before the Hon. John Schuster III, ALJ. The record remained open until September 30, 2016, for the receipt of briefs.[1] Judge Schuster retired before writing the decision. The matter was reassigned on May 17, 2017, and the record reopened. A conference call with counsel was held on June 9, 2017. As neither party had ordered a transcript of the proceedings, recordings of the hearing were then ordered. The record closed on June 30, 2017, after the recordings were received.[2]

[1] Extensions of time were then granted for the filing of the Initial Decision.
[2] The recordings and the evidence form the basis for this decision.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Testimony

For Respondent

Clinton Township patrolman Joseph Sangiovanni testified that he was working during the early-morning hours of August 17, 2014, on DWI (driving while intoxicated) patrol, when he stopped a vehicle operated by appellant's boyfriend; the appellant was the passenger. The driver was given field sobriety tests and subsequently arrested for DWI. Officer Latif and Sergeant DeRosa also responded to the scene to assist Patrolman Sangiovanni. Officer Latif was the officer who took the appellant to headquarters (HQ).

The appellant was disrespectful to Officer Latif and gave him a false name. She later called 911 when she was outside HQ, which was a misuse of the system. She claimed that she was a PO, and he believed she was using her position to try to help the driver. The driver said appellant was a PO. The appellant later admitted she was not professional.

Patrolman Sangiovanni's dash camera recorded the motor-vehicle stop. The appellant said she had been drinking and was a probation officer. She was boisterous.

Clinton Township patrolman Umair Latif testified that he was on patrol on August 17, 2014, and called for backup on the motor-vehicle stop with Sergeant DeRosa. The appellant identified herself as a PO, and said that they should cut her boyfriend a break. The appellant called another police officer from North Plainfield to intercede on her boyfriend's behalf. This phone call was heard by Patrolman Latif and Sergeant DeRosa, who put appellant's cell phone on speaker. The appellant tried to call the North Plainfield officer again, but the second call was not answered.

Patrolman Latif drove the appellant to HQ. No recording was made of this because his camera was broken. When asked if she wanted water, the appellant declined, but asked for vodka. Patrolman Latif felt disrespected by appellant. He asked her for her name and she said "Rosa Rodriguez," and she refused to spell her last name.

The appellant was outside HQ and called 911 about her boyfriend, which was inappropriate, as it was not an emergency and tied up the system. This could be considered a criminal offense. Patrolman Latif and Sergeant DeRosa went out to talk to her and told her not to use 911.

The appellant appeared intoxicated. She had her cell phone out and Sergeant DeRosa asked her to get off the phone. At HQ, she was upset and wanted the sergeant's name so she could file a complaint against him.

She was not arrested; she was not charged with giving a fake name or using 911 inappropriately. When leaving HQ, the appellant admitted she had been disrespectful.

Clinton Township sergeant Thomas DeRosa testified that on the evening of August 17, 2014, he was in charge of and working patrol, specifically on drunk-driving enforcement. Patrolman Sangiovanni called him for backup. Both he and Sangiovanni had working dash cameras.

Multiple times, the appellant stated that she was a PO, and volunteered this information without being asked. He believed she wanted them to give her boyfriend a break on the DWI arrest and wanted no charges brought against him. She complained that she was not given any courtesy and that she would remember that.

The appellant called a police officer from North Plainfield to try to get him to intercede. When he did not intervene, she called him names.

Patrolman Latif drove the appellant to HQ. While there, she went outside and called 911. DeRosa told her that calling 911 in a non-emergency was a crime, as well as unprofessional and inappropriate. She also advised dispatch on the call that she was there to pick up her boyfriend, even though she was obviously intoxicated. At HQ, the appellant was irritated. She was distracting, although the officers could still do their job. She was rambling on about cops getting breaks, but they have no discretion on a DWI offense.

The following week, Sergeant DeRosa reported the incident to the Somerset County trial court administrator and was referred to chief probation officer (CPO) Ron Kirk. Sergeant DeRosa felt that the 911 call was serious. He told Kirk that the appellant had identified herself as a PO upon his arrival and multiple times thereafter. DeRosa provided a copy of the three police reports (prepared by patrolmen Sangiovanni and Latif and him), as well as the dash-cam videos from his car and Sangiovanni's recording.

The appellant never filed a complaint against him.

Ronald Kirk testified that he has been CPO in Vicinage 13 for the New Jersey Judiciary since July 2013. Probation officers take an oath of office and are held to a higher standard. It is a responsible position, as it affects people's lives. POs must interact with law enforcement and must maintain good relationships with local safety personnel. They are supposed to be role models to the people on probation as they try to get them back on the right track.

POs have a code of conduct to follow which applies inside and outside of the workplace, during working and non-working hours. All employees are given a copy of the code, read it, and have training on it. Voluntary identification as a PO is prohibited, but a PO can answer the question if asked.

The appellant is a senior PO in Somerset County, assigned to the adult-supervision section, which includes drug offenders and those on court-ordered probation. Her job was to supervise offenders, and oversee reporting, drug testing, and record checking. She would be in contact with law enforcement and reach out to fellow law-enforcement officers. She would handle home visits and answer any law-enforcement questions about someone serving time on probation.

The Somerset County Probation Department was contacted by Sergeant DeRosa and advised that the appellant's conduct was very much inappropriate. Sergeant DeRosa said that the appellant said she was a PO but had no identification with her. She was trying to get her boyfriend out of a DWI charge. She was disrespectful and continued to be; she gave a false name; and she called 911. Kirk spoke with his supervisors, Farkas and Morejon, and they agreed to take no action until the police reports were received.

During the week of September 8, 2014, Kirk received the police reports and DVDs from the Clinton Police Department. He reviewed them and gave them to Morejon. They then discussed the matter, and both had serious concerns about the appellant's behavior.

On September 18, 2014, Kirk spoke with the appellant in the presence of her union representative. The appellant said she identified herself as a PO but only after she was asked. She was not looking for a favor, as it would be a violation of the canon and she would not do that. She admitted that she had dialed 911 because she was cold and was trying to get back in the building. She said she was "not a partyer" when asked if she had been drinking.

A summary of the incident was prepared, and the conclusion was a suspension without pay pending review and approval by the assignment judge. On September 24, 2014, the appellant was provided with notice of immediate suspension issued by Eugene Farkas, the trial-court administrator. The appellant was provided with a copy of the Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action, and after the hearing officer's decision and approval of the assignment judge, the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action.

Kirk and the other administrators concluded that the appellant's action was egregious: she identified herself as a PO without prompting; she said she was able to drive (when she was intoxicated); she contacted a North Plainfield police officer to intervene on her behalf; she asked for vodka; she gave a false name (a criminal act), which called her integrity into question; and she called 911 in a non-emergency. The latter offenses were the major reasons for the disciplinary action. The credibility and integrity of the Probation Department were called into question. The appellant's intoxication was not relevant to the decision to charge.

Rachel Morejon is the Human Resources Division manager for the New Jersey Judiciary, Vicinage 13. She reports to the trial-court administrator, who reports to the assignment judge.

All employees receive the Code of Conduct for Judiciary Employees, which covers workplace and outside-of-workplace conduct. In addition, employees receive a copy of a memorandum from the Hon. Glenn Grant, J.A.D., administrative director of the courts, on risk avoidance. The memo directs employees to avoid using their judiciary affiliation. Employees are also advised that their conduct must be above reproach in order to preserve the integrity of and public respect for the court system. Any violation of this policy is forbidden and could result in discipline, including termination.

In addition to orientation, employees receive frequent training on this and other management policies. Frequent review is also done as employees turn on their computers, which serves as a reminder to them of the policy.

The appellant commenced work in 2004 and received a copy of the code of conduct, a risk-management memo, and training. Her most recent training was in early 2014.

As for the appellant's disciplinary history, the stipulation reached by the parties was accurate. She had no disciplines for behavior, only for attendance, and this was taken into consideration when determining the appropriate discipline.

This particular incident had been brought to Morejon's attention by Kirk, who gave her three police reports and dash-cam videos. She reviewed the materials. She had meetings with Kirk and Farkas, and one with the assignment judge. They reviewed the information and discussed how to proceed. They interviewed the appellant, and Kirk asked about the call to 911.

At the second meeting, they agreed on the discipline to impose. The Clinton Police had no input into the determination. After a hearing before the Administrative Office of the Courts hearing judge, they agreed that the behavior was egregious and decided that removal was appropriate. The assignment judge agreed.

Morejon had no knowledge of the appellant's intoxication at the time of the incident; it was not a part of this discipline, either as an offense or with regard to punishment.

Morejon spoke with DeRosa in preparation for the departmental hearing. She was aware that the appellant had asked for the name of DeRosa's supervisor and that his report was prepared after the appellant said she was going to file a complaint against him, but this was not significant to her decision.

[By stipulation] Sgt. Edward Ciempola[3] testified that during the early-morning hours of August 17, 2014, he received a telephone call from the appellant, who was an acquaintance, asking him to speak with Clinton Township police officers and to intervene in the motor-vehicle stop to prevent the appellant's boyfriend's arrest or to undo it. In a second telephone call to the sergeant, which went unanswered, the appellant left a nasty voicemail message and called him names, as she was angered that he had failed in "undoing" the boyfriend's arrest.

For Appellant

Rosalba Dominguez testified that she started working for the Somerset County Probation Department in 2004; she later became a senior PO dealing with adult populations. Her disciplinary record was clean from 2004 through 2010, when she had a death in her family. This affected her health, and she ran out of sick time and vacation time. Her only disciplines were for attendance, not behavior.

[3] The parties stipulated to the testimony of Sergeant Ciempola. (See Joint Exhibit 1.)

On August 17, 2014, she and her boyfriend went to Asbury Park. The whole day is blurry to her. She drank mixed drinks. They left after dark, and had dinner and were doing shots. After they left, her boyfriend was pulled over. Sometime during the day she had lost her credentials.

At the motor-vehicle stop, she was not aware of her boyfriend's behavior, as she was intoxicated. She called her police-officer friend in North Plainfield to validate her name and position. She does not remember her intentions that night. At HQ, she was in a fog, and has a poor memory of events there. She was waiting for her boyfriend. She did not recall asking for vodka or giving a false name. She did not know where she was, exactly. She felt that Sergeant DeRosa was annoyed and aggressive to her. She thought the 911 call was appropriate because she was outside HQ and was cold, but did not know her location. This seemed like an emergency to her.

The next day she realized it had been a long, bad night the evening before, and she decided she did not want to file a complaint against DeRosa.

Findings of Fact

For testimony to be believed, it must not only come from the mouth of a credible witness, but it also has to be credible in itself. It must elicit evidence that is from such common experience and observation that it can be approved as proper under the circumstances. See Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546 (1954); Gallo v. Gallo, 66 N.J. Super. 1 (App. Div. 1961). A credibility determination requires an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality or internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). Also, "'[t]he interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony.'" State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 10 N.J. 316 (1952) (citation omitted).

A trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible, or because it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience, or because it is overborne by other testimony. Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958).

After reviewing the evidence and the DVD, I accept the testimony of the police officers and the stipulation of the testimony of Officer Ciempola as truthful and as FACT. The events were described in a straightforward manner; they had no reason to lie or dissemble. The testimony of the three officers was consistent and supported by the dash-cam video.

On August 17, 2014, the appellant was a passenger in a vehicle driven by her boyfriend when he was pulled over for suspected DWI. As the officers addressed that situation as procedure dictated, the appellant repeatedly told the officers that she was a probation officer and entitled to courtesy from them regarding the DWI. When that effort did not appear to be successful, the appellant tried to interfere by calling a police-officer acquaintance from North Plainfield and asking him to intervene to try to stop or undo the arrest of her boyfriend. When that officer did not help her, she called him back and left nasty voicemail messages. She was disrespectful of the Clinton police officers; she was boisterous. When Patrolman Sangiovanni asked for her name, the appellant provided a false one. When the appellant went outside the police station, she called 911 because she was cold, even though it was not an emergency. When asked if she wanted a glass of water, she stated she wanted vodka. The dash-cam videos provide additional support for the testimony of Patrolman Sangiovanni and Sergeant DeRosa.

The appellant agrees that she was intoxicated that night. She did not remember most of what had occurred: she did not remember providing a false name to the police officer or being disrespectful. She did not remember asking for vodka. The appellant did not remember her intentions that night. I FIND that she contacted the North Plainfield officer to curry favor with the Clinton officers, and to try to get him to intercede in the boyfriend's arrest. I also FIND that the appellant dialed 911 in a non-emergency situation.

I also accept as FACT the testimony of Kirk and Morejon as to the procedure followed after they became aware of the appellant's behavior during the traffic stop. The appellant had notice of the behavior expected for a probation officer, and the possible consequences for any violation. The discipline sought to be imposed was not because of the appellant's intoxication, but rather because of the conduct in which she had engaged.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

Civil service employees' rights and duties are governed by the Civil Service Act and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 to 11A:12-6; N.J.A.C. 4A:1-1.1. The Act is an important inducement to attract qualified people to public service and is to be liberally applied toward merit appointment and tenure protection. Mastrobattista v. Essex Cnty. Park Comm'n, 46 N.J. 138, 147 (1965). However, consistent with public policy and civil-service law, a public entity should not be burdened with an employee who fails to perform his or her duties satisfactorily or who engages in misconduct related to his or her office. N.J.S.A. 11A:1-2(a). A civil-service employee who commits a wrongful act related to his or her duties, or gives other just cause, may be subject to major discipline, including removal. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-6; N.J.S.A. 11A:2-20; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.2. The general causes for such discipline are set forth in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a).

This matter involves a major disciplinary action brought by the respondent appointing authority against the appellant. An appeal to the Civil Service Commission requires the OAL to conduct a hearing de novo to determine the appellant's guilt or innocence as well as the appropriate penalty, if the charges are sustained. In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (App. Div. 1987). Respondent has the burden of proof and must establish by a fair preponderance of the credible evidence that appellant was guilty of the charges. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). Evidence is found to preponderate if it establishes the reasonable probability of the fact alleged and generates a reliable belief that the tendered hypothesis, in all human likelihood, is true. See Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959), overruled on other grounds, Dwyer v. Ford Motor Co., 36 N.J. 487 (1962).

Here, the judiciary has charged the appellant with conduct unbecoming a public employee in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6), and other sufficient cause in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12), specifically, violation of the Code of Conduct for Judiciary Employees Canon 3 (avoiding actual or apparent impropriety) by attempting to use her judiciary position to unduly influence police officers from Clinton Township to refrain from charging her boyfriend with driving while intoxicated, by calling 911 in a non-emergency situation, and by giving a false name to law-enforcement authorities.

Conduct unbecoming a public employee has been interpreted broadly as conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect for governmental employees and confidence in the delivery of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atl. City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances "be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555 (quoting In re Zeber, 156 A.2d 821, 825 (1959)). Such misconduct need not "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (quoting Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)).

Canon 3 of the Code of Conduct for Judiciary Employees (avoiding actual or apparent impropriety) provides:

> A court employee shall observe high standards of conduct so that the integrity and independence of the courts may be preserved, and shall avoid impropriety or the appearance of impropriety.
>
> . . . .
>
> Specifically, a judiciary employee shall not:

> a. Use or attempt to use the official position or the prestige of judicial affiliation to secure special privileges or exemptions for the employee or others.

Here, although the appellant was aware of her obligations as an employee of the judiciary—she was to observe high standards of conduct to avoid impropriety or the appearance of impropriety—she then engaged in inappropriate conduct: she repeatedly identified herself as a probation officer in an attempt to curry favor with law-enforcement officers; she contacted a police officer from another jurisdiction to try to get him to intercede and "undo" her boyfriend's arrest; when asked for her name, she provided a false one to law-enforcement officers; and she called 911 in a non-emergency situation. Such conduct tends to destroy public respect for governmental employees and confidence in the delivery of governmental services.

The appellant sought to justify her conduct by blaming it on her intoxication. She claimed not to remember some of her conduct that night, but denied that her conduct was intentional. The appellant's intoxicated state should not be used as a justification for behavior that she later recognized was inappropriate.

Applying the law to the facts, I CONCLUDE that the appointing authority has sustained by a preponderance of the credible evidence the charges of conduct unbecoming a public employee, in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6), and other sufficient cause, in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12), specifically, violation of Canon 3 of the Code of Conduct for Judiciary Employees.

Penalty

Once a determination is made that an employee has violated a statute, regulation or rule concerning his employment, the concept of progressive discipline must be considered. W. New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962). However, it is well established that where the underlying conduct is of an egregious nature, the imposition of a penalty up to and including removal is appropriate, regardless of an individual's disciplinary history. Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). Progressive discipline is not a "fixed and immutable rule to be followed without question." Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474, 484 (2007). Rather, it is recognized that some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished record. Ibid.

Here, the appellant had been employed as a probation officer since 2004. In mitigation, her only disciplines were for attendance, and not behavior, and came at a stressful time in her life. She later acknowledged her misconduct and stated that it would not recur.

The aggravating factors are significant: the appellant's behavior continued over a period of time; it involved conduct such as calling 911 in a non-emergency and providing a false name to law-enforcement authorities (which could be considered as potential criminal behavior); it involved a law-enforcement officer from another jurisdiction and an attempt to have him interfere with her boyfriend's arrest; it involved being disrespectful to the arresting law-enforcement officers; and it involved an effort by her to use her position within the judiciary to influence an arrest. Such conduct is egregious and requires the appropriate penalty of removal of the appellant from her position as a senior probation officer.

ORDER

I ORDER that the charges of conduct unbecoming a public employee, in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(6), and other sufficient cause, in violation of N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(12), are sustained, and that the action of the respondent appointing authority removing the appellant from her position as a senior probation officer is hereby AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, MERIT SYSTEM PRACTICES AND LABOR RELATIONS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, PO Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION
OF THE
CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

In the Matter of Steven Hotz,
Department of Corrections

CSC Docket No. 2017-1342
OAL Docket No. CSR 16631-16

ISSUED: OCT 04 2017 (SLD)

The appeal of Steven Hotz, a Senior Correction Officer, Garden State Youth Correctional Facility, Department of Corrections, of his removal, effective October 7, 2016, on charges, was heard by Administrative Law Judge Joseph Lavery (ALJ), who rendered his initial decision on July 11, 2017. Exceptions were filed on behalf of the appellant and a reply to the exceptions was filed on behalf of the appointing authority.

Having considered the record and the ALJ's initial decision, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Civil Service Commission (Commission), at its meeting on September 20, 2017, accepted and adopted the Findings of Fact and Conclusions as contained in the initial decision and the recommendation to uphold the removal.

DISCUSSION

The appointing authority presented the appellant with a Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (FNDA) which indicated that he was removed on charges of conduct unbecoming a public employee, and other sufficient cause, i.e., physical or mental abuse of an inmate, falsification and/or intentional misstatement of a material fact in connection with work or in any record, report, investigation or other proceeding and violation of a rule, regulation, policy, procedure, order or administrative decision. Specifically, the appointing authority asserted that in November 2015, the appellant and two other Senior Correction Officers physically abused an inmate by holding him down in a barber chair, punching and slapping him and cutting his hair. The appointing authority also alleged that the appellant provided a supplemental interview in which he admitted to providing false information during his initial interview. Upon the appellant's appeal, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing as a contested case.

Prior to the hearing, the appointing authority brought a motion for partial summary decision. It asserted that there were no material facts in dispute with regard to the charge of falsification. Specifically, it maintained that the appellant gave two recorded statements. During the first interview on March 11, 2016, he denied any knowledge of or familiarity with the inmate and/or the incident at issue. However, during the second interview on May 26, 2016, the appellant admitted to knowing the inmate, and he conceded that he took part in the incident although he denied that he physically abused the inmate. In response, the appellant brought a cross-motion for partial summary decision, requesting the dismissal of the falsification charge for violations of constitutional and statutory requirements. Specifically, he argued that the charges against him were ambiguous and lacked specificity. The appellant also argued that the charge of falsification was not filed within the 45-day time limit imposed by N.J.S.A. 30:4-3.11a. Further, he asserted that the March 11, 2016 interview was in violation of the fifth, sixth and 14th amendments of the United States Constitution, and the Attorney General's Guidelines. The appellant asserted that, as all inferences must be made in favor of him, factual issues remain including the interpretation of policy, and his reason for his statements.

In deciding the motions, with regard to the appellant's allegation that the falsification charge was not timely filed, the ALJ determined that issue concerned a dispute of fact that was to be resolved at the hearing, but that issue did not bar him from determining whether the substance of the falsification charge could be decided on the motion of summary decision. The ALJ found that a comparison of the video recordings of the appellant's interview make it clear that the appellant lied in the March 11, 2016 interview. Moreover, the appellant's statements in the May 26, 2016 interview confirm that he knew his prior statements were untrue. The ALJ concluded that the change could only be seen as contradictory, and his March 11, 2016 statements were per se an intentional misstatement of material facts. The ALJ found that the appellant's state of mind was irrelevant to the charges since his own video-recorded statements precluded any doubt that it was his intention to deceive. The ALJ found the remainder of the appellant's arguments unpersuasive. In this regard, he noted that the charges against the appellant were not ambiguous as the specifications related to the falsification charge indicated that the appellant "admitted to providing false information in the initial interview." He also found that no interpretation of the policy was needed, as the policy concerning personal conduct should be read narrowly. The ALJ found that there were no constitutional deficiencies present in either interview. In this regard, he found that the appellant submitted to both interviews with full knowledge that they were administrative in nature and not criminal interviews. Moreover, the appellant was provided with due process as evidenced by the appointing authority's adherence to N.L.R.B. v. Weingarten Inc., 420 U.S. 251 (1975). In this regard, a union representative was present during the March 11, 2016 interview, the appellant did not request the presence of his attorney and the appellant signed the customary Weingarten form. The ALJ found that the appellant's reliance on the Attorney General's Guidelines was misplaced as it was found in In re Cox, Docket No. A-2471-14T4 (App. Div. December 7, 2016), that those guidelines did not apply to Correction Officers. Finally, the ALJ found that the absence of an affidavit from the appointing authority in response to the appellant's cross-motion was an insufficient basis to grant the appellant's cross-motion. In this regard, he noted that the appointing authority had submitted its motion for partial summary decision, accompanied by a brief and exhibits, as well as the entirety of the record, which was more than ample for the purpose of summary decision. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the appointing authority's motion for partial summary decision and upheld the charge of falsification. However, he ordered that the penalty for falsification, the remaining charges, and arguments concerning the timeliness of the falsification charge would be addressed at the hearing.

In his initial decision, the ALJ found that based on the testimony of the appointing authority's witnesses, and the appellant, that on November 6, 2015, the appellant was called over the radio to the barbershop by Senior Correction Officer Ivonne Collazo. When he arrived at the barbershop, he found the inmate arguing with Collazo and when the inmate raised his arm, the appellant and Senior Correction Officer Brian Attardi grabbed the inmate and forcibly placed the inmate into the barber's chair, after which Collazo proceeded to "buzz" off the inmate's hair with a clipper she brought with her. The appellant then turned to Senior Correction Officer Jason Terhune who was receiving a haircut, and questioned what was happening. The appellant then left the area and returned to his escort duty. However, the ALJ found that the appellant had not punched, slapped or cut the appellant's hair. The ALJ also found that the appellant had no knowledge that the incident would occur. Consequently, aside from the previously upheld falsification charge, the ALJ dismissed the remaining charges against the appellant.

With regard to the falsification charge, the ALJ found that sufficient evidence was not presented at the hearing to warrant the dismissal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 30:4-3.11a. In this regard, the ALJ noted that the appellant's falsification was only apparent, at the earliest, after the May 26, 2016 interview. Therefore, the July 8, 2016 amended Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action (PNDA) which listed the charge of falsification was within the mandatory 45-day time limit. Moreover, the ALJ determined that the appellant's behavior was so egregious as to warrant removal. Specifically, he noted that the appellant unreservedly lied during a formal interview on March 11, 2016. Moreover, although the appellant claimed he was assured by Collazo the matter would go away if he did not talk about the incident, such statements could not be considered either coercion or an order. Furthermore, the ALJ noted that falsification in a correctional facility strikes at the heart of correction officer's responsibility or accountability.

In his exceptions, the appellant argues that the ALJ erred in granting partial summary decision in favor of the appointing authority and denying his request for summary decision. Specifically, he argues that in response to his request for summary decision, the appointing authority failed to submit an affidavit in response. Therefore, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1-1:12.5(b), he was entitled to summary decision in his favor. In this regard, he notes that since the appointing authority failed to raise any issue of material fact which controverted the appellant's request, he was entitled to a determination that the charge of falsification was untimely as it was filed beyond the 45-day time limit, and thus, should have been dismissed. The appellant maintains that he provided his first statement on March 11, 2016 during which he denied any knowledge of the incident, and the initial charges, minus the falsification charge were issued on April 15, 2016. The appellant contends that as the appointing authority had enough information to charge him regarding the underlying conduct on April 15, 2016, it certainly had enough information to charge him with falsification on that same date.

Additionally, the appellant asserts that the March 11, 2016 interview cannot be used as a basis for discipline as the interview was "constitutionally offensive." Specifically, he maintains that he was informed that he was a target of a criminal investigation on December 7, 2015, at which time he invoked his right to counsel and his fifth-amendment right from self-incrimination. He denies that he was ever told that he was no longer under criminal investigation. Instead, he asserts that he was "summoned" to an interview and "forced to answer questions under threat of termination" on March 11, 2017. The appellant maintains that he was denied the opportunity to consult with his counsel and forced to answer "nonspecific questions" about the events in November 2015. Moreover, the appellant argues that the appointing authority violated the Attorney General's Policy concerning criminal and administrative investigations.

The appellant further argues that the imposition of discipline in this matter was arbitrary and capricious. Specifically, he contends that a Correction Lieutenant involved in the incident, who is held to a higher standard, only received a 10 working day suspension. The appellant also argues that the charges of abuse of an inmate, conduct unbecoming a public employee, violation of a policy and other sufficient cause should have all been dismissed. In this regard, the appellant maintains that for the charge of violation of a policy, the charge itself lacks specificity. With regard to the other charges, the appellant argues that the appointing authority failed to submit any competent proof to support those charges. Even assuming arguendo that there was just cause for discipline, the appellant argues that removal was not appropriate. Specifically, he asserts that the alleged falsification was the result of dubious interrogation tactics that violated his rights as evidenced by the fact that he provided accurate information later.

In response, the appointing authority rebuts the appellant's allegations, indicating that the ALJ properly assessed the testimony and evidence in the record and presented clear, reasonable and logical reasons for his ultimate findings and conclusions. It also argues that the appellant's cross-motion for summary decision was procedurally barred as it was filed less than 30 days before the hearing date and in the form of opposition to its motion for partial summary decision. The appointing authority asserts that with regard to the appellant's arguments concerning the Correction Lieutenant, his discipline is irrelevant to this matter as he was disciplined for a sole charge that was not a subject of this matter. The appointing authority notes that with regard to the charge of falsification, it was timely issued as it was only after the appellant's second interview on May 26, 2016 that it learned of the extent of the appellant's deception and his intent behind the deception. The appointing authority further asserts that the other charges should have also been sustained. Finally, the appointing authority argues that removal is appropriate in this matter as the appellant's actions were particularly egregious.

Based on its de novo review of the record, the Commission agrees with the ALJ that the charge of falsification should be upheld, the remaining charges dismissed and the appellant should be removed from employment. In his initial decision, the ALJ found, after an opportunity to assess the witnesses and their testimony, that the testimony of the appellant and the appointing authority's witnesses was credible with regard to the remaining charges. In this regard, the Commission acknowledges that the ALJ, who has the benefit of hearing and seeing the witnesses, is generally in a better position to determine the credibility and veracity of the witnesses. See Matter of J.W.D., 149 N.J. 108 (1997). "[T]rial courts' credibility findings . . . are often influenced by matters such as observations of the character and demeanor of witnesses and common human experience that are not transmitted by the record." See In re Taylor, 158 N.J. 644 (1999) (quoting State v. Locurto, 157 N.J. 463, 474 (1999)). Additionally, such credibility findings need not be explicitly enunciated if the record as a whole makes the findings clear. Id. at 659 (citing Locurto, supra). The Commission appropriately gives due deference to such determinations. However, in its de novo review of the record, the Commission has the authority to reverse or modify an ALJ's decision if it is not supported by the credible evidence or was otherwise arbitrary. See N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c); Cavalieri v. Public Employees Retirement System, 368 N.J. Super. 527 (App. Div. 2004). In this case, there is nothing in the record or in the appellant's exceptions or the appointing authority's reply which convinces the Commission that the ALJ's assessment of the credibility of the appellant or the other witnesses was not based on the evidence, or was otherwise in error, or that his conclusions based on these determinations were improper. Thus, the Commission finds that all but the falsification charge was properly dismissed.

Moreover, with regard to the charge of falsification, the Commission notes that the 45-day time period for filing disciplinary charges found N.J.S.A. 30:4-3.11a commences on the date on which the person filing the complaint has sufficient notice of the conduct underlying the disciplinary charges. The appellant argues that as the appointing authority determined it had sufficient information to charge him with the underlying conduct, despite his denials in the March 11, 2016 interview, then it certainly had enough information to also charge him with falsification. The Commission does not agree. The Commission agrees with the ALJ that it was only after the May 26, 2016 interview that the appointing authority had sufficient information to file the charge of falsification. It was only after the second interview that it became apparent that the appellant lied in the first March 11, 2016 interview about knowing the inmate and being involved in the incident. The Commission also does not agree with the appellant that the March 11, 2016 interview violated the constitutional protections afforded to the appellant. In this regard, the ALJ found, and the appellant does not dispute, that he was provided with his Weingarten rights and that a union representative was present during the interview. As noted by the ALJ, the appellant did not request that his attorney be present and he denied during the interview that he was being coerced.

In determining the proper penalty, the Commission's review is also de novo. In addition to its consideration of the seriousness of the underlying incident in determining the proper penalty, the Commission utilizes, when appropriate, the concept of progressive discipline. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962). In determining the propriety of the penalty, several factors must be considered, including the nature of the offense, the concept of progressive discipline, and the employee's prior record. George v. North Princeton Developmental Center, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (CSV) 463. Moreover, it is well established that where the underlying conduct is of an egregious nature, the imposition of a penalty up to and including removal is appropriate, regardless of an individual's disciplinary history. See Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571 (1980). It is settled that the theory of progressive discipline is not "a fixed and immutable rule to be followed without question." Rather, it is recognized that some disciplinary infractions are so serious that removal is appropriate notwithstanding a largely unblemished prior record. See Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474 (2007). Even when a Correction Officer does not possess a prior disciplinary record after many unblemished years of employment, the seriousness of an offense occurring in the environment of a correctional facility may, nevertheless warrant the penalty of removal where it compromises the safety and security of the institution, or has the potential to subvert prison order and discipline. See Henry v. Rahway State Prison, supra, 81 N.J. at 579-80. In this regard, the Commission emphasizes that a Correction Officer is a law enforcement officer who, by the very nature of his job duties, is held to a higher standard of conduct than other public employees. See Moorestown v. Armstrong, 89 N.J. Super. 560 (App. Div. 1965), cert. denied, 47 N.J. 80 (1966). See also, In re Phillips, 117 N.J. 567 (1990). Moreover, the Commission is also mindful that:

> The appraisal of the seriousness of [the appellant's] offense and degree which such offenses subvert discipline . . . are matters peculiarly within the expertise of the corrections officials. The appraisal is subject to de novo review by the [Civil Service Commission], Rahway State Prison, supra, but that appraisal should be given significant weight. Bowden v. Bayside State Prison, 268 N.J. Super. 301, 306 (App. Div. 1993), cert. denied, 135 N.J. 469 (1994).

In the instant matter, the appellant blatantly lied in an interview about his knowledge of and involvement in the alleged abuse of an inmate. Although the appellant was ultimately determined not to have abused an inmate, his failure to provide a factual and accurate statement during the interview was sufficiently egregious, in and of itself, to support his removal. See In the Matter of Anthony Carter, Docket No. A-2599-03T2 (App. Div. March 14, 2005) (Senior Correction Officer, who intentionally falsified material information on his employment application when he indicated that he was unemployed during a period of time when he was actually terminated from his position with a county detention center in Maryland, removed rather than suspended). Although the appellant argues that removal is too severe since the Correction Lieutenant only received a 10 working day suspension, the Commission does not agree. In this regard, the Commission determines the appropriate penalty based on the particular circumstances and, absent compelling circumstances, will not compare the penalty in a separate matter. In this matter, the egregiousness of the appellant's misconduct clearly warrants removal from such a safety sensitive law enforcement position, regardless of his prior disciplinary history. Accordingly, the foregoing circumstances provide a sufficient basis to uphold the removal.

ORDER

The Civil Service Commission finds that the appointing authority's action in imposing a removal was justified. Therefore, the Commission affirms that action and dismisses the appellant's appeal.

This is the final administrative determination in this matter. Any further review should be pursued in a judicial forum.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. CSR 16631-16

IN THE MATTER OF STEVEN HOTZ, GARDEN STATE YOUTH CORRECTIONAL FACILITY, DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS.

David J. Heintjes, Esq., for appellant Steven Hotz

Emily M. Bisnauth, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent Garden State Youth Correctional Facility (Christopher S. Porrino, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: June 9, 2017 Decided: July 11, 2017

BEFORE JOSEPH LAVERY, ALJ t/a:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This is an appeal by Steven Hotz, appellant, challenging his termination from the position of Senior Correction Officer (SCO), Garden State Youth Correctional Facility. The grounds for his removal were (a) abuse of an inmate, and (b) falsification.

Respondent appointing authority, Garden State Youth Correctional Facility, New Jersey Department of Corrections (Garden State) contests the appeal and asks that all charges be affirmed and that the penalty be upheld.

Today's initial decision:

(a) incorporates by reference the partial summary decision order upholding the charge of falsification[1],
(b) dismisses the charge of inmate abuse, and
(c) affirms the removal of appellant from employment solely on the charge of falsification.

Procedural History:

This case was filed in the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 27, 2016. The Acting Director and Chief Administrative Law Judge on December 1, 2016, appointed the undersigned to hear this case in the capacity of temporary administrative law judge, who convened a prehearing conference on December 15, 2016, and set hearing dates. Adjournments to accommodate motions followed[2]. On January 18, 2017, oral argument was heard.[3] On March 24, 2017, an order issued granting respondent's motion for partial summary decision, and denying appellant's cross-motion for partial summary decision. Plenary hearing convened on March 28, March 29[4], and April 11, 2017. An order settling the record was promulgated on May 24, 2017. On June 9, 2017, the last summation was filed in the OAL. On that date, the record closed.

Background:

Appellant, Steven Hotz, served as a Correction Officer and, later, as a Senior Correction Officer in the New Jersey Department of Corrections for a period of approximately ten years. The appointing authority now seeks affirmation of their termination of his employment. The event which triggered his final discipline occurred initially on November 6, 2015, when appellant took part in the debasement of an inmate barber, Edwin Lopez. For this he was subjected to charges arising from physical and mental abuse of an inmate. (Exhibit R-1A.) Whether his actions were knowing and intentional is in issue before this tribunal today. In any event, the fallout from that episode worsened when appellant lied about what took place in the first of two subsequent investigatory interviews by the agency's Special Investigation Division (SID). This deception caused the amendment of the charges to include that of falsification. (Exhibit R-1B.)

On the charge arising from falsification, the largely uncontested facts were discussed and, in part, decided by an earlier order of this tribunal granting respondent Garden State partial summary decision[5]. The material factual background decided in that order still may usefully serve, in part, for today's purposes:

> The facts which the appointing authority proffers as undisputed involve alleged mistreatment of an inmate. Garden State relates that an inmate, E.L., was restrained in a barber chair, and his hair was cut off against his will. It maintains further that during the first investigatory interview of March 11, 2016, by SID investigators which followed, appellant repeatedly denied any knowledge of the inmate and of the incident, and categorically denied any participation in it. During questioning, according to Garden State, appellant answered that it was possible others had "made up a story," untruths which had happened before. Nevertheless, unpersuaded by appellant, on April 15, 2016, the appointing authority charged him with conduct unbecoming a public employee, physical or mental abuse of an inmate and other sufficient causes. (Respondent's Exhibit 9.)
>
> Afterwards, the appointing authority contends, in a second, supplementing SID interview held on May 26, 2016, appellant altered his position on the facts. Shown a photo of the inmate, appellant admitted knowing him. Further, appellant now conceded that he took part in the episode in the barbershop on November 6, 2015, albeit, in his version of events, only to the extent of physically calming the inmate. The latter had raised his arm in a movement suggesting threat. Appellant conceded that he and SCO Attardi had forcibly placed the inmate in a barber's chair, but blamed SCO Collazzo for a buzzed haircut which then occurred. Finally, in this same interview, appellant added that on the day of the incident, he and SCO Collazzo had discussed the event, but that she advised him not to say or do anything about it. She counseled that she had been assured that nothing would happen to them if they stayed silent.

[5] See footnote 1.

> Armed with this supplementing information, the appointing authority compared the two separate visually recorded statements and found that appellant had engaged in falsification. On July 8, 2016, it therefore issued an amended preliminary notice of disciplinary action charging him with falsification. (Respondent's Exhibit 9.) Eventually, appellant was removed by final notice of disciplinary action dated September 30, 2016. (Respondent's Exhibit 10.) . . .

Against this background, the current appeal is brought, and the parties presented their cases at hearing solely as they related to the charge of abusing an inmate:

Arguments of the parties:

Respondent appointing authority's case:

With partial summary decision now granted on the issue of falsification, Garden State addressed the remaining charge of inmate abuse. It did so through testimony of witnesses accompanied by exhibits and through submission of post-hearing written summations:

The sole eyewitness testimony proffered by the appointing authority was that of SCO Jason M. Terhune, an SCO who had been working in the institution for only four months into his probationary period after completing his academy training when he saw what took place with inmate Edwin Lopez. SCO Terhune stated that, at the time, he was still trying to familiarize himself with the local protocols. On November 6, 2015, the SCO recalled, he had entered the barber shop where officers received their haircuts. At some point between 11:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. he had gone there during his half-hour break. Inmate James Traylor was cutting his hair. While seated in the chair, inmate Edwin Lopez entered and seated himself in a chair used for those waiting. SCO Ivonne Collazo followed.

SCO Terhune recalled that SCO Collazo confronted inmate Lopez, giving him a choice between getting his hair cut in retaliation for a poor haircut given Lieutenant Ervin, or being placed in lockup. She indicated that this was at the behest of Lieutenant Ervin, and said "What the lieutenant wants, the lieutenant gets." This seemed an odd statement in SCO Terhune's judgment. Appellant was not present at the time. Afterward, despite his having declined the haircut option, SCO Terhune said, SCO Collazo nevertheless called for assistance on Terhune's lapel phone. She intended to give the haircut anyway. SCOs Attardi and appellant responded within three minutes.

SCO Terhune additionally stated that SCO Collazo directed that the two officers place the inmate in a barber chair, and both complied, keeping the inmate restrained with his arms somehow held behind. The inmate had not been seated willingly. SCO Terhune remembered that appellant had at one point looked at him, "lipping" something which SCO Terhune could not understand but which seemed to indicate appellant's state of confusion. Once in the chair, SCO Collazo gave the inmate a buzz cut, using clippers which SCO Terhune believed she had brought with her. Both appellant and the second SCO, Officer Attardi, then released the inmate from the barber chair and left the shop.

SCO Terhune testified that he had not witnessed any violence by appellant against the inmate. Specifically, he had not seen SCO Attardi smack the inmate in the face or in the back of the head, and he had not observed appellant strike the inmate elsewhere on his body. Notwithstanding, after the haircut, the inmate sat with his head down, and was red-faced with embarrassment or anger. SCO Collazo told him she would allow the repair of his haircut by another inmate. Appellant and SCO Attardi left.

All this took place, in SCO Terhune's estimation, in only a fraction of the time during which he continued to receive his own haircut from the regular barber, inmate Traylor. He himself was there for less than thirty minutes. The precise time frame of appellant's presence in the barbershop, SCO Terhune did not feel comfortable estimating. SCO Terhune was certain that the only persons present during the episode with the inmate were himself, inmate Traylor who was cutting his hair, Inmate Lopez, SCO Attardi and SCO Collazo.

Relying on his report (Exhibit R-4.)[6] to serve as his direct testimony preliminary to cross-examination, Roy Becker-Rowley, Senior Investigator, Special Investigations Division (SID) recalled his part in the review of appellant's actions. He noted that he was not the primary investigator. His role was only to collect basic information after receiving an allegation from the Ombudsman. (Exhibit A-51.) The information forwarded and his later investigation, including interviews with the inmate, appellant and numerous correction officers, civilian and inmate witnesses, collectively was comprised of statements alleging that inmate Lopez had been set upon by two correction officers, SCO's Attardi and appellant. These statements included assertions that the two officers had beaten the inmate and had forced him into a barber chair, while three other officers watched. In the course of the attack by the two, according to the inmate himself, his head had been shaved by SCO Collazo as retaliation for his having given Lieutenant Harry Ervin a "bad" haircut. The clippers used had been obtained from outside the barbershop.

Afterwards, Investigator Becker-Rowley reported, the inmate had been treated in the infirmary, but had been released with continuing complaints of rib and back pain. Investigator Becker-Rowley stated in testimony that he had seen no sign of injury when interviewing the inmate in the infirmary. However, an injury report form (Exhibit R-27.) was issued by the infirmary. It recorded minimal redness of Inmate Lopez's right scapular area and complaints by the inmate of pain in the same shoulder.

According to the report of Investigator Becker-Rowley, later that day, the inmate had been visited by SCO's Paul Walker and George Davino, and the following day by CO Sergeant Kory Acchione. All asked about the event, and inquired about the inmate's intended response. Now concerned that he would be further abused, Inmate Lopez formally reported the incident, and indicated a willingness to take a lie detector test. Investigator Becker-Rowley himself was not present during the incident in issue, or during any of the events or times covered by those he interviewed.

[6] Completed November 12, 2015.

In additional testimony, the investigator principally responsible for scrutiny of the event, Kurt Rocco, Sr. Investigator, SID, also acknowledged his reports as his direct testimony. (Exhibits R-5, R-6 and R-7.) The investigator emphasized that his role was only to collect information, not to conclude as to guilt. Like Senior Investigator Becker-Rowley, he, too, had not personally observed any aspect of what had occurred before or during the incident.

Senior Investigator Rocco's first report (Exhibit R-5.), was submitted on April 13, 2016. It thoroughly and extensively summarizes the results of his interviews with witnesses thought to have been involved prior, during, and after the barbershop incident on November 6, 2015, from which the charges against appellant arise. (Exhibits R-1A, R-1B and R-1C.) That information ended in a major disciplinary suspension of Lieutenant Ervin. The information gathered concerning the actions of appellant, SCO Attardi and SCO Collazo in the barbershop ended in their termination as correction officers. With the exception of SCO Terhune, none of the persons interviewed by the appointing authority, on the basis of whose collective testimony disciplinary charges eventually issued, were called by the State to testify at hearing.

The investigator recorded in his first report that he had interviewed appellant on March 11, 2016, with Principal Investigator Edward Soltys. Appellant signed the Weingarten Rights form and had a union representative present. The interview was taped. (Exhibit R-16.) As noted in the order granting partial summary decision, on that date, the appellant denied any involvement with Inmate Lopez's mistreatment. He could not recall whether he had been in the barber shop on November 6, or where his work assignment was that day. According to investigator Rocco, appellant specifically denied knowing Inmate Lopez, denied being summoned to the barber shop, denied forcibly placing Inmate Lopez in the barber chair, witnessing SCO Attardi doing so, or witnessing SCO Collazo cutting the inmate's hair.

After appellant retained counsel, Senior Investigator Rocco, with Principal Investigator Edward Soltys, again interviewed appellant on May 26, 2016. (Exhibits. R-6, R-17.) As with the earlier interview, the requisite legal preliminaries were observed, including video-taping. This time the interview included the presence of counsel rather than a union representative, compliance with Garrity rights, and provision of use immunity. At that time, it is reported, appellant described in full his version of what had occurred on November 6, 2015. This account differed entirely from his lengthy denial of involvement documented in investigator Rocco's earlier report. (Exhibit R-5.)

Finally, according to officer Rocco's testimony and report, based in part on the video of the second interview, appellant now stated that he had, in fact, taken part in the haircut of inmate Lopez. He had responded to a two-way radio summons from SCO Collazo to come to the center. He had no knowledge of why he was being called, since he had been on escort duty elsewhere. On arrival at the barber shop where he saw SCO Collazo, he found inmate Lopez in an agitated state confronting SCO's Attardi and Collazo, and in reaction to the inmate's raised arm suggesting resistance, he and SCO Attardi forcibly placed the struggling inmate into a barber's chair. To his surprise, SCO Collazo then passed clippers she was holding over the inmate's head, in a single-pass "buzz" cut.

Senior Investigator Rocco reported that appellant denied foreknowledge that SCO Collazo had planned this action. Appellant recalled that he had expressed alarm contemporaneously by turning to SCO Terhune and by saying "What the fuck is this about!" Once this occurred, appellant stated, he left immediately to return to the duty station he had left. Appellant denied that he or SCO Attardi during this unexpected turn of events had struck or in any other way abused the inmate.

In post-hearing written summation, Garden State recounted testimony and facts of record, arguing that the application of law to these facts required decision for the State. It maintained that the facts demonstrated conduct unbecoming an employee through abuse of an inmate. The facts also demonstrated appellant's unlawful conspiracy with another officer to thwart an investigation, and revealed failure of appellant to do his duty to help the victimized inmate. Appellant's special status as a law enforcement officer therefore demands his termination, the State maintains.

Appellant's case in reply:

Appellant denied the charge of inmate abuse. He adopted as his direct testimony his video-recorded interview of May 26, 2016 (Exhibit R-17.) during which he asserted that he was wholly unaware of why he had been radioed twice by SCO Collazo to report to center. The contents of that interview were also summarized without material contradiction of record in Senior Investigator Rocco's report, supra (Exhibit R-6, at DOC 202-204.) and under the heading herein, "Respondent appointing authority's case."

Additionally, in this same interview, appellant emphasized that he had no prior knowledge of any controversy involving Lieutenant Irvin's haircut. When he responded to the radio call from SCO Collazo, he first saw her at the barber shop, as he was descending nearby stairs from his duty assignment as an escort to a civilian technician. He had no idea of what assistance was needed by SCO Collazo. However, when he reached her, he found inmate Lopez in the shop engaged in a heated "in-your-face" confrontation with SCO Attardi. This appeared to him as a threatening development. When the inmate raised his arm, appellant grasped it. With SCO Attardi, he forcibly placed the inmate in a barber chair, restraining him to end what appellant saw as an incipient altercation. While in the process, he spoke to the inmate in attempt to calm him. It was then that the buzz-cut by SCO Collazo occurred.

Taken by surprise, appellant remembered, he commented to SCO Terhune, who was still in the next receiving a haircut: "What the fuck is this?" Officer Terhune merely shrugged. Appellant stated that he immediately left to return to his escort duty assignment. He estimated his time in the shop as lasting approximately thirty seconds. The time taken to reach the barber shop took approximately three minutes..

He explained that his request to amend his March 11, 2016, answers concerning the incident on November 6, 2015, was motivated by his need to do the right thing. He noted that he had spoken to SCO Collazo after the barber shop event, demanding to know why she had called him at all, drawing him into this "shit-storm." Appellant conceded that she should not have. He stated further that before the first SID interview, he had been assured by SCO Collazo that she herself had spoken to Major Paladino, a life-long acquaintance. The latter, according to SCO Collazo in several subsequent conversations with appellant, had assured her that all would be well. She said the problem raised by the inmate's complaint would go away if appellant would follow the major's instructions to "just play ball" and "be quiet." After a six-month transfer he would be returned to Garden State. Appellant insisted that, being sensitive to his family responsibilities, his previous denials to investigators in the first videoed interview had been an effort to not get involved.

Appellant could not recall if handcuffs had been used, or if a code had been called. He did agree that there had been restraint of the inmate, and that, after the buzz-cut, the latter had appeared depleted and slumped. Appellant stated that once the cut was concluded, he himself left.

Being called as appellant's witness, Senior Investigator Rocco acknowledged that his office had forwarded the case to the prosecutor's office for criminal charge assessment. After review, that office declined to move on criminal charges, so advising SID on March 8, 2016. (Exhibit A-30.) He stated that he knew nothing about the status of use immunity. As to guilt, the investigator declared that his role was to collect, not conclude.

For his part, Lieutenant Harry Irvin, Jr. testified that he was on duty on November 5 and 6, 2015. However, he had not ordered a haircut for inmate Lopez. The lieutenant disclosed that he had been given a ten-day suspension nonetheless.

In corroboration of appellant's testimony, SCO Kevin A. Rodriquez confirmed that he had unexpectedly relieved appellant to act as custody escort of a civilian technician, and that appellant had returned within approximately five minutes.

The Administrator of Garden State, Derrick Loury, recalled in testimony that he had received an ombudsman's referral. (Exhibit A-51.) Additionally, he knew that afterward a report was submitted to him in early spring of 2016 (Exhibit R-5.), and that it was this report which prompted his discipline of appellant. (Exhibit R-1A.) After the second SID interview, the charge of falsification was added. (Exhibit R-1B.)

In post-hearing written summation, appellant summarized testimony, proposed findings of fact, and argued the law. He maintained that the charges were insufficiently specific. As such they were unconstitutional for lack of due process. Further, the charge of falsification was not timely filed within the forty-five-day period envisioned by N.J.S.A. 30:4-3.11a, and should be dismissed. Additionally, appellant states, the charges were arbitrary and capricious, in violation of civil service law. There is no evidence of his physically or mentally abusing the inmate, there is no substantiation of conduct unbecoming an employee, or of violation of any other rule, regulation, policy, procedure, order or administrative decision. Finally, appellant argues, if discipline is to be imposed, a lesser penalty is appropriate in view of a minimal past discipline history over ten years of employment.

FINDINGS OF FACT

To resolve disputes of material fact, I make the following FINDINGS:

1. On November 6, 2015, appellant was called over the radio for immediate assistance by SCO Ivonne Collazo.
2. Appellant was not told by SCO Collazo the reason for her request, nor did he know what that reason was.
3. Appellant, on duty serving as an escort for a civilian, asked a passing officer, SCO Kevin Rodriguez to relieve him.
4. Appellant descended a stairway to find SCO Collazo motioning him into the Correction Officers' barber shop, just beneath.
5. Entering the shop, he found inmate Edwin Lopez arguing heatedly face-to-face with SCO Attardi. Appellant did not understand the cause of the argument.
6. On reaching the arguing pair, sensing resistance to an officer, appellant caught the inmate's hand when he raised it, and the two officers forced him into a barber chair, restraining his arms behind him, while SCO Collazo imposed a rapid pass-over "buzz" cut, with scissors she had brought with her to the barber shop.

7. Surprised, appellant turned to SCO Jason M. Terhune whose hair was being cut nearby, and projecting a visible affect of confusion, said to the officer: "What the fuck is this?!"
8. The inmate slumped in the chair, in a "depleted" state, and was released.
9. At no point did appellant punch or slap the inmate or cut his hair off.
10. Appellant then immediately left and returned to his escort duty, relieving SCO Rodriguez.
11. The total time of his absence from his escort assignment was approximately five minutes.
12. Appellant had no foreknowledge of SCO Collazo's intention to buzz-cut inmate Lopez, nor of the background to it, and left quickly thereafter to avoid further involvement.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

Burden of persuasion:

The burden of persuasion falls on the agency in enforcement proceedings, such as those in which it is sought to prove an employee has engaged in violations susceptible to removal as a penalty, under controlling regulations, Cumberland Farms, Inc. v. Moffett, 218 N.J. Super. 331, 341 (App. Div. 1987). The agency must prove its case by a preponderance of the credible evidence, which is the standard in administrative proceedings, Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). Precisely what is needed to satisfy the standard must be decided on a case-by-case basis. The evidence must be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to a given conclusion, Bornstein v. Metropolitan Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958). Preponderance may also be described as the greater weight of credible evidence in the case, not necessarily dependent on the number of witnesses, but having the greater convincing power, State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47 (1975).

The Charges:

This case involves a penalty. Where punishment is sought, the words of the charges brought to justify it must be strictly construed. There can be no departure from their boundary in the trial of fact or application of law. Any decision must arise from the plain meaning of the charges' words. For that reason, the State's post-hearing accusations of conspiracy with SCO Collazo and failure to come to the aid of inmate Lopez after his buzz cut will not be evaluated.

The basic charge of falsification will likewise not be considered here. That was decided in the summary decision order already cited. Notwithstanding, appellant was permitted in that order to provide at subsequent plenary hearing any facts which he believed would demonstrate violation of N.J.S.A. 30:4-3.11a. At that hearing, no preponderating evidence was entered into the record which would demonstrate that the falsification charge should be dismissed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 30:4-3.11a. As has been known from the outset, appellant's falsification was apparent at the earliest only after the May 26, 2016, videoed interview. The specifics of that charge, based on the most plausible facts show that an amended version of the preliminary notice was served on July 8, 2016. (Exhibit R-2, FNDA 9-30-16.) Consequently, the falsification charge was filed within the statutorily-mandated forty-five days thereafter.

To evaluate the remaining issue of inmate abuse it is useful to print the relevant specifics of the charges here, verbatim:

> On or about November 8, 2016 an incident occurred wherein physical force was used against an inmate. This action led to an SID investigation That revealed the following. Officer Steven Hotz was one of 3 Officers who did physically abuse the inmate in the Garden State Youth Correctional Facility Staff Barbershop; specifically, by holding him down in the barber chair, punching and slapping him, and cutting his hair off. This constitutes conduct unbecoming, physical abuse of an inmate and a violation of law enforcement rules, policies, and procedures. Total disregard was given as it pertains to the policy as set forth in the Law Enforcement Officers Handbook as well as the NJDOC employee handbook. Additionally, SCO Hotz did provide a supplemental interview with the NJDOC Internal Affairs Units, in which he admitted to providing false information during the initial interview.

[Exhibit R-2; Final Notice of Disciplinary Action (31-B).]

The Civil Service Rules and the Human Resources Bulletin cited therein as "Sustained Charges" were N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)6, Conduct Unbecoming A Public Employee; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)12, Other Sufficient Cause; HRB 84-17C.3. Physical or mental abuse of an inmate, patient, client, resident, or employee; HRB 84-17C.8. Falsification: Intentional misstatement of material fact in connection with work, employment, application, attendance, or in any record, report, investigation or other proceeding.

As has been noted, the appointing authority has already demonstrated that appellant violated those regulations forbidding falsification[7]. However, in the remainder of the case it has not demonstrated by a preponderance of evidence that appellant abused inmate Edwin Lopez. The sole eyewitness, SCO Jason M. Terhune corroborated appellant's claim of confusion over what took place in the barber chair when SCO Collazo cut the inmate's hair. SCO Terhune also credibly stated that he did not see appellant strike the inmate, nor did he see SCO Attardi hit him in the face or back of the head. The State's sole eye-witness thus provided testimony more exculpatory than damaging.

Appellant himself testified similarly. Mindful of the wise legal maxim: "False in one, false in all," his statements must be carefully scrutinized. Nonetheless, his demeanor is forthright and consistent during his second videoed interview of May 26. (Exhibit R-17.) It meshes with his persuasive (albeit ineffective) defense that his earlier falsification arose from the urging and assurances of a high-ranked officer, conveyed to him by SCO Collazo.

[7] See footnote 1.

SCO Rodriguez, was not shown to have any interest in the outcome of the case. In his testimony, he limited appellant's absence to about five minutes. He was fully credible. The serendipity of SCO Rodriquez's appearance, his happenstance relief of appellant, and appellant's brief, five-minute absence fits within appellant's claim, i.e., he was pulled into the barbershop fray without prior planning on his part, and without a formulated intent to abuse inmate Lopez. Alarmed by SCO Collazo's act, he left at once.

It is true that the appointing authority provided testimony from fully professional and credentialed investigative officers: Senior Investigator Rocco and Senior Investigator Becker-Rowley. Their reports and testimony were meticulous. The accompanying documentation (Exhibits R-4, R-5, R-6 and R-7.) summarized extensively their witness interviews. Nevertheless, this data describes a factual backdrop extending well beyond that underlying the narrow charges against appellant quoted supra. Understandably, neither investigator could personally say he was present at the scene in issue. Yet, to offset this lack no eyewitness inmate or correction officer interviewee but SCO Terhune was called by the State to testify. Consequently, the investigatory record compiled, insofar as it bears on the charges, and with the exception of appellant's two videoed interviews, is today held as being without evidentiary weight. It is hearsay unsupported by competent evidence. N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5.

Conclusion:

I CONCLUDE, from the above analysis, that the preponderating evidence with respect to the charge of inmate abuse (Exhibit R-2.) is that presented by appellant. For this reason, this charge (though not the charge of falsification) should be DISMISSED.

PENALTY

The weighing of suitable penalty is an inapplicable inquiry with respect to the dismissed charge of inmate abuse. However, the question of appropriate penalty for the charge of falsification, upheld earlier through summary decision, remains to be determined.

For the reasons which follow, appellant's removal for egregious falsification must be affirmed, without regard to the doctrine of progressive discipline, In re Hermann, 192 N.J. 19, 36 (2007).

It is well-settled judicial and administrative case law that police officers specifically and sworn law enforcement officers generally are special government officers. Misconduct anywhere in public service is objectionable. Yet, when it takes place in law enforcement, the level of seriousness is significantly enhanced. In a leading case, our superior court has held:

> A police officer is a special kind of public employee. His primary duty is to enforce and uphold the law . . . He represents law and order to the citizenry and must present an image of personal integrity and dependability in order to have respect of the public.
> [Twp. of Moorestown v. Armstrong, 898 N.J. Super. 560, 566, 215 A.2d 775 (App. Div. 1965), certif. denied, 47 N.J. 80, 219 A.2d 417 (1966)]

Correction officers are law enforcement officers. Removal in circumstances comparable in seriousness to the instant matter is not unusual. In the case of In re Carter, 191 N.J. 474, 485-486 (2007), affirming removal of an officer who slept while on duty, the Court held:

> In matters involving discipline of police and corrections officers, public safety concerns may also bear upon the propriety of the dismissal sanction. See, e.g., Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571, 580, 410 A.2d 686 (1980) (affirming appellate reversal of Board decision to reduce penalty from dismissal to suspension for prison guard who falsified report because of Board's failure to consider seriousness of charge); In re Hall, 335 N.J. Super. 45, 51, 760 A.2d 1148 (App. Div. 200) (reversing Board's decision to reduce penalty imposed on police officer for attempted theft from dismissal to suspension), certif. denied, 167 N.J. 629, 772 A.2d 931 (2001); Bowden v. Bayside State Prison, 268 N.J. Super. 301, 305-06, 633 A.2d 577 (App. Div. 1993) (holding that it was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable to reduce penalty from removal to six months suspension for prison guard who gambled with inmates for cigarettes), certif. denied, 135 N.J. 469, 640 A.2d 850 (1994).

It is also true that the appropriateness of progressive discipline attends the circumstances of the offense. Where the violation is sufficiently serious, the violation per se could be enough to warrant disregard of the graduated discipline concept. This was discussed in IMO Ruby Saunders, CSR 15250-13 April 14, 2014): In re Saunders, CSR 15250-13, Initial Decision (April 14, 2014), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>, aff'd, CSC (July 16, 2014), <http://www.state.nj.us/csc/about/meetings/search/index.html>.

> Appellant is without any record of discipline during the brief period of her employment as a Correction Officer Recruit. She has one record of commendation for attention to detail in searches (Exhibit N). It is not disputed that her single counseling for raising her voice and speaking over a supervisor, Ibid, does not qualify as a discipline but, is rather, an instruction.
>
> Ordinarily, any penalty would be considered within the context of an employment history of discipline, or lack of it. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 523 (1962). Nevertheless, this progressive discipline policy is not inflexible. It is a concept which may be set aside when the offense under consideration is sufficiently egregious. In re Stallworth, 208 N.J. 182, 199 (2008).
>
> In appellant's case, the level of seriousness accompanying the offenses charged is enhanced by her law enforcement title. The reported judicial case law is replete with recognition of the special nature of that status, with respect for the unusually great responsibilities imposed on law enforcement, and with affirmance of the strict accountability demanded of an officer:
> [Id at 18-19]

In the instant case, appellant lied unreservedly during a formal SID investigatory interview. (Exhibit R-16.) It cannot be claimed that he was ordered to do so by Major Paladino. The two apparently never spoke concerning the incident. Appellant instead relied on the second-hand assurances of SCO Collazo that the incident would fade away if appellant did not tell the truth. Her persuasion can hardly be held as coercion. Neither can this rationale of appellant justify blatant falsification. His act was clearly in violation of the rules cited by the appointing authority.

Falsification in the setting of a correctional facility such as Garden State strikes at the heart of a correction officer's responsibility and accountability. He or she is an integral actor in a paramilitary organization, subject to its regulatory code and the orders of superiors. Superior officers must depend on the honesty of their subordinates to maintain good order in a dangerous environment. Fellow correction officers must have confidence that they can rely on the truth of information dispensed by their colleague. Such certainty is essential. It is fundamental to secure law enforcement cooperation during those work demands which place at risk officer and inmate safety. Appellant's demonstrated dishonesty threatens this arrangement. For all these reasons, termination is appropriate.

ORDER

I ORDER therefore (a) that the charge of inmate abuse be DISMISSED, but (b) that the removal of appellant from his position of Senior Correction Officer be AFFIRMED, based on the previous finding of falsification through an order of partial summary decision.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Civil Service Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF APPEALS AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS, UNIT H, CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, 44 South Clinton Avenue, PO Box 312, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0312, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

ORDER GRANTING RESPONDENT'S MOTION FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY DECISION AND DENYING APPELLANT'S CROSS-MOTION FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. CSR 16631-16

IN THE MATTER OF STEVEN HOTZ, GARDEN STATE YOUTH CORRECTONAL FACILITY, DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS.

David J. Heintjes, Esq., for appellant Steven Hotz

Emily Bisnauth, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent Garden State Youth Correctional Facility (Christopher S. Porrino, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

BEFORE JOSEPH LAVERY, ALJ t/a:

The Motions:

The appointing authority, Garden State Youth Correctional Facility (Garden State), respondent, in response to appellant's appeal from his termination as a Senior Corrections Officer, brings this motion for partial summary decision. It contends there are no material facts in dispute concerning a charge of falsification. Further, it opposes appellant's cross-motion for partial summary decision.

Appellant, Steven Hotz, brings a cross-motion for partial summary decision asking for dismissal of the charge for constitutional and statutory reasons, as well as because of underlying factual circumstances showing violation of the Attorney General's Guidelines. All these legal flaws cited in defense raise material issues of fact, barring summary disposition, he argues. Appellant also opposes the appointing authority's motion for partial summary decision.

The appointing authority's motion and argument in opposition:

Respondent Garden State in the main relies on a comparison of two videoed Special Investigation Division (SID) interviews to support its motion. The first interview was held on March 11, 2016, the second on May 26, 2016. Respondent argues: (a) that appellant gave false and misleading statements to investigators in the first interview, (b) that appellant later admitted to false statements made then, (c) that appellant knew this behavior was prohibited by policy and rules, and (d) that removal for this conduct is supported by precedent.

The facts which the appointing authority proffers as undisputed involve alleged mistreatment of an inmate. Garden State relates that an inmate, E.L., was restrained in a barber chair, and his hair was cut off against his will. It maintains further that during the first investigatory interview of March 11, 2016, by SID investigators which followed, appellant repeatedly denied any knowledge of the inmate and of the incident, and categorically denied any participation in it. During questioning, according to Garden State, appellant answered that it was possible others had "made up a story," untruths which had happened before. Nevertheless, unpersuaded by appellant, on April 15, 2016, the appointing authority charged him with conduct unbecoming a public employee, physical or mental abuse of an inmate and other sufficient causes. (Respondent's Exhibit 9.)

Afterwards, the appointing authority contends, in a second, supplementing SID interview held on May 26, 2016, appellant altered his position on the facts. Shown a photo of the inmate, appellant admitted knowing him. Further, appellant now conceded that he took part in the episode in the barbershop on November 6, 2015, albeit, in his version of events, only to the extent of physically calming the inmate. The latter had raised his arm in a movement suggesting threat. Appellant conceded that he and SCO Attardi had forcibly placed the inmate in a barber's chair, but blamed SCO Collazzo for a buzzed haircut which then occurred. Finally, in this same interview, appellant added that on the day of the incident, he and SCO Collazzo had discussed the event, but that she advised him not to say or do anything about it. She counseled that she had been assured that nothing would happen to them if they stayed silent.

Armed with this supplementing information, the appointing authority compared the two separate visually recorded statements and found that appellant had engaged in falsification. On July 8, 2016, it therefore issued an amended preliminary notice of disciplinary action charging him with falsification. (Respondent's Exhibit 9.) Eventually, appellant was removed by final notice of disciplinary action dated September 30, 2016. (Respondents Exhibit 10.)

Addressing the rule authorizing full and partial summary decision, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, respondent appointing authority maintains it could identify no genuine issue of material fact with respect to the falsification charge. Additionally, it argues that appellant has not supplied a responding affidavit showing a genuine issue of fact. Therefore, viewing the case in the light most favorable to the moving party, Garden State insists that a rational fact-finder could only resolve the dispute in its favor, citing relevant opinions of both the New Jersey and the United States Supreme Courts. Moreover, the appointing authority states, once it is granted partial summary decision for falsification, case law also compels termination as a penalty.

In its brief in opposition to appellant's cross-motion, the appointing authority offered further rationale for its position. It stressed that in the March 11, 2016, interview appellant denied knowledge of every detail he was questioned on, ranging from his presence in the barber shop, to recollection of who might have been there and their activities, through forced placement of the inmate in the barber's chair, and finally to the involuntary haircut while being held by himself and his fellow corrections officer, SCO Attardi. Yet, on May 26, 2016, appellant recanted on every topic touched. In its view, this was falsification.

Garden State believes appellant's defenses are specious, and none support denial of its motion for partial decision. Fear of job loss would not excuse lying. During the March 11 interview appellant denied he had been threatened, when questioned during the interview. He explained that he falsified because of jail rumors that the case was "going nowhere," and because SCO Collazzo had advised him to do nothing.
