The following words and terms, as used in this chapter, shall have the following meanings unless the context clearly indicates otherwise:

"Academic degree" means any associate degree, baccalaureate degree, master's degree, or doctoral degree regardless of the specific discipline in which it was awarded.

"Academic department" means a subdivision of an institution of higher education designated as such that is responsible for instruction and/or research in a specific discipline or disciplines.

“Academic disciplines” means the major areas of study identified in the Classification of Instructional Programs (CIP), that is, the first two digits of the CIP code, developed by the National Center for Education Statistics, 2000, incorporated herein by reference. The CIP may be obtained from the National Center for Education Statistics, 555 New Jersey Avenue NW, Washington, DC 20208-5652.

“Accreditation” means a status attained by an institution through voluntarily meeting standards set by a nongovernmental entity recognized by the U.S. Secretary of Education.

“Adjunct faculty” means one who is employed to teach on a course-by-course or credit basis.

“Branch campus” means a physical facility located at a place other than the institution’s principal campus offering one or more complete programs leading to a degree. A branch campus in New Jersey requires approval by the Commission.

“Changing the programmatic mission” means changing the level of academic degrees authorized for the institution.

“College,” “institution” or “institution of higher education” means a postsecondary educational institution that provides instruction beyond the 12th grade level in programs that satisfy the requirements for a degree at the associate, baccalaureate, or graduate level; with the exception of institutions whose major mission is to prepare individuals for religious vocations, a college offers a range of degree programs. A college has an independent board of trustees. It has a faculty whose duties include some combination of the instruction of students and involvement in scholarship and research. A college has policies and procedures that encourage the academic officers and the faculty to exercise their full responsibility for the academic direction of the institution. One indication of this type of collegiality is a system of tenure or a system of long-term contracts for the full-time faculty. A junior/community college or county college is an institution of higher education that offers the associate degree only. A senior college offers degrees up to the baccalaureate level and/or offers graduate and professional degrees. “Educational program” means a group of related courses, organized for the purpose of attaining specified educational objectives.

“Exceeding the programmatic mission” means offering an academic degree beyond the authorized level for the institution.
