“Serving Those Who Served”

PAKTIKA PROVINCE, Afghanistan – Army Staff Sgt. David Pereda, Provincial Reconstruction Team Paktika Security Forces squad leader and a New Jersey National Guardsman, listens to radio communications as 887th Engineer Support Company engineers use an armored vehicle, called a Buffalo, to search for possible unexploded ordnance Nov. 7. In the background are two local 7-year-old children who, along with their parents, reported the ordnance to an Afghan Local Police station close to their home. The three waited behind the safety of a rock wall as the engineers dug for the ordnance. When asked what they do when they find ordnance the children said, “We know we’re not going to touch it, (they pointed to the police station and said,) we tell the police and they deal with it.” (Photo by U.S. Air Force 1st Lt.
