The ALJ found that both the Board and the petitioner had been under the mistaken impression that the salary figure of $53,464 in 1994-95 was correct, and he recommended that petitioner's "annual salary remain frozen at $53,464 until a teacher of comparable training and experience would receive that level based on the negotiated salary guide and until the Board has recovered all overpayments resulting from her incorrect placement on the guide." Id. at 9. The ALJ further recommended that the Board pay $1,494 to petitioner to reimburse her for the improper reduction of her salary in 1995-96.

On April 14, 1997, the Commissioner adopted in part and modified in part the ALJ's recommended decision. Initially, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's determination that the Board's adjustment of petitioner's salary in the 1995-96 school year constituted a reduction in compensation in violation of her tenure rights. The Commissioner agreed that there was ample support in case law to freeze the petitioner's salary at the erroneous level until such time as her salary on the negotiated salary guide equaled or surpassed that which she was being paid.

However, contrary to the ALJ's recommendation, the Commissioner declined to direct the Board to maintain such a salary freeze until it had recovered the full amount of the overpayment. While acknowledging that the Board's recoupment of the overpayment would not constitute a violation of the education laws, the Commissioner concluded that "inasmuch as the parties agree that the error resulted from a mutual mistake [footnote omitted], they should be made to share the cost of the mutual error, however innocent or inadvertent." Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 16 (emphasis in original). He therefore directed the Board to reimburse petitioner in the amount of $1,494 for the improper reduction of her salary in the 1995-96 school year and to continue to freeze her salary at $53,464 until it had recouped one-half of the total amount of the overpayment.

The Board filed the instant appeal to the State Board, and the petitioner filed a cross-appeal.

After a thorough review of the record, we reverse the Commissioner's decision to the extent that it did not permit the Board to recover the full amount of the overpayment. When a district board makes an error in the placement of a tenured staff member on the negotiated salary guide or incorrectly establishes such employee's salary under the terms of that guide, action by the board to freeze the staff member's salary until such time as the overpayment is recouped does not constitute an impermissible reduction in compensation under the tenure laws. E.g., Cerato v. Board of Education of the City of Newark, decided by the Commissioner of Education, 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 248, aff'd by the State Board of Education, 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 422; Markot v. Board of Education of the Township of East Brunswick, decided by the State Board of Education, 1989 S.L.D. 3043, aff'd, Docket #A-345-89-T5 (App. Div. 1990). See also Trenton Education Association, et al. v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, decided by the State Board of Education, December 1, 1999 (district board's recoupment of an overpayment to tenured custodial employees by reducing six bi-weekly paychecks after the board erred in calculating the specific amounts to be included in the custodians' paychecks based on their established annual salaries did not constitute an impermissible reduction in compensation as contemplated by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 and 17-4).

Although the Commissioner in the instant matter has attempted, in essence, to "split the difference," the petitioner had no entitlement under the school laws, implementing regulations or case law to retain any of the moneys paid to her in error. Thus, notwithstanding the fact that the overpayment may have resulted from a mutual mistake, we agree with the ALJ that petitioner's salary should remain frozen until the Board has recovered the full amount of the overpayment resulting from her incorrect placement on the salary guide.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF OAKLAND, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teaching staff member who was riffed and later rehired on a part-time basis, claimed tenure entitlement to a position awarded by the Board to a nontenured individual. Petitioner possessed an instructional certificate with an endorsement for home economics and, subsequent to being riffed, she received a standard instructional certificate with an endorsement as an elementary school teacher. Board moved for summary decision and alleged petitioner filed an untimely petition.

ALJ found that petitioner did fail to file a timely position as she had notice of the Board's action on September 5, 1995, when the principal announced that a new teacher had been hired and assigned to teach the courses claimed by petitioner, but she did not file until January 18, 1996, beyond the 90 days required by rule. Moreover, the ALJ found that summary judgment was appropriate because petitioner's action was time barred and issues regarding petitioner's reemployment rights to teach the new courses did not have to be addressed.

Commissioner reversed the initial decision of the ALJ. Commissioner found that decision on a summary basis was inappropriate. Because petitioner could not have reasonably concluded from the job posting and its attendant certification requirement (K-8 certification) that she may have had a possible claim to the courses at issue, notice could not automatically be reckoned from the date of appointment of the teacher for those courses in question. Commissioner found that the record included insufficient facts and a fundamental factual dispute as to when petitioner knew, or reasonably should have known, about a possible claim so that the timeliness of her petition might be determined. Thus, the Commissioner remanded matter to the OAL and should the ALJ determine that the petition was timely filed, the matter should move directly forward for proceedings on the merits.

INITIAL DECISION
SUMMARY DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 1756-96
AGENCY DKT. NO. 21-1/96

SUSAN BESHAW,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF OAKLAND, BERGEN COUNTY,

Respondent.

Petitioner Susan Beshaw claims tenure entitlement to teach two courses that were assigned to a nontenured employee.

On February 20, 1996, the matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held on May 15, 1996. On September 13, 1996, the respondent, the Board of Education of the Borough of Oakland (Board), moved for summary decision. Respondent alleged that petitioner failed to timely file a verified petition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

FACTS

Petitioner has been employed by the Board as a full-time home economics teacher since 1977. Petitioner is tenured and holds the requisite instructional certificate with an endorsement in home economics. In July 1995, petitioner received an instructional certificate with an elementary endorsement. However, she was never employed and never acquired work experience under that endorsement.

By hand-delivered letter dated April 12, 1995, petitioner was notified that pursuant to a reduction in force (RIF) the Board would recommend that her employment not be renewed for the 1995-96 school year. On May 1, 1995, the Board considered the recommendation at its meeting and voted in favor of nonrenewal of petitioner's employment. At the close of the 1994-95 school year, petitioner underwent knee surgery.

On June 15, 1995, the Board posted notice of summer teaching positions. On July 19, 1995, the Board posted notice of a full-time teaching position to teach "Success for Living," "Keyboarding," "Career Education" and "Study Skills" for the 1995-96 school year. The position required the teacher to possess an instructional certificate with an elementary education endorsement. Petitioner asserted that due to her knee surgery and subsequent incapacity, she never saw either of these postings.

On August 29, 1995, petitioner was offered the position of home economics teacher for one period per day for the 1995-96 school year. Petitioner accepted the offer. In late August, the county school superintendent approved the following new courses for the 1995-96 school year: "Skills for Successful Living," "World of Work," and "Study Skills." The instructor would be required to possess an instructional certificate with an elementary education endorsement. The Oakland Education Association informed petitioner of the new courses. During a faculty meeting on September 5, 1995, the school principal announced that a nontenured teacher had been hired to teach "Skills for Successful Living" and "World of Work."

On January 18, 1996, petitioner filed this action and alleged that the Board violated her tenure rights when it assigned two courses, "Skills for Successful Living" and "World of Work," to a nontenured teacher for the 1995-96 school year. Petitioner contended that these courses fall within her instructional certificate with an endorsement in home economics. Thus, petitioner requested assignment to these courses with back pay.

The Board filed a motion for summary decision on the ground that petitioner's action is untimely.

DISCUSSION

Timeliness of Filing

Petitioner asserted that in late October or early November 1995 she received a copy of the school newsletter which included a review of the two courses. The new courses appeared to be within her qualifications and experience and she believed that she might have a tenure right to teach those courses. Petitioner also asserted that she never received from the vice principal the curricula guides for each class after she had requested copies of the documents. Instead, she received the curricula from the Oakland Education Association on January 4, 1996.

The Board asserted that petitioner requested and was given access to the curricula in mid-August, after she inquired by telephone about the position posted. The Board also asserted that petitioner again requested the curricula in late August, after a meeting with the vice principal, Barbara Ciambra.

The "90-day rule," N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), provides that:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the > district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

In Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley, 131 N.J. 572 (1993), the New Jersey Supreme Court held that the Commissioner and the State Board have the authority to establish a time limitation for the resolution of disputes arising under the school laws. The Court also addressed the public policy reasons behind the 90-day rule:

> The limitations period provides a measure of repose, an essential element in the proper and efficient administration of the school laws. It stabilizes the relationship between the teachers and the administration. . . . The limitation period gives school districts the security of knowing that administrative decisions regarding the operation of the school cannot be challenged after ninety days. Moreover, because local school boards operate on a cash basis, claims must be filed promptly so that the local board can anticipate any back-pay requirements.
> [131 N.J. at 582; see also Nissman v. Board of Educ., 272 N.J. Super. 373, 380 (App. Div.) ("What is important is that the Local Board had the right to know within 90 days whether its action was going to be challenged."), certif. denied, 137 N.J. 315 (1994).]

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) thus represents a fair and necessary requirement for the proper and efficient resolution of disputes arising under school laws. Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 582.

The 90-day rule requires that a petition be filed within 90 days of the receipt of notice of a final order, ruling or other board action. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). "Adequate notice must be sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to know and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate." Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 587. Thus, I have carefully considered the timeline of events and the facts to determine if the petition was filed timely in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

On April 18, 1995, petitioner received official notice by letter dated April 12 that her position was recommended for nonrenewal due to the RIF. On May 1, the Board voted not to renew her employment. Thus, petitioner had notice on May 1 of the Board's official action to not renew her contract. Pursuant to its mandate, the school posted notice of the new full-time position on July 19, 1995. Petitioner knew or should have known about the new position when the notice for a full-time teacher was posted on July 19, 1995. Thus, petitioner can be charged with knowledge and notice as of that date, even though she may not have actually seen the posting. Under these circumstances, the 90 days would have run out on October 17, 1995, and petitioner's action is time barred.

The new courses were officially approved at the end of August 1995. Petitioner contended that she learned of the new courses at this point. Further, on September 5, 1995, the school principal announced at a regular faculty meeting that a nontenured teacher had been hired to teach those courses. Petitioner conceded knowledge of the announcement. Thus, at the very latest, the 90 days began on September 5, 1995, and terminated on December 4, 1995. Under these facts, petitioner's action is time barred.

I have considered the facts in the light most favorable to petitioner. Petitioner asserted that she learned of the courses in August, but she did not know the substance of the subject matter. Further, petitioner denied that she requested the curricula before late November or early December. It was then that she read about the courses in the school newsletter and it appeared that they were within the scope of her qualifications. Petitioner acknowledged that she requested the curricula from the vice principal, but mentioned that she received the information from another source in early January 1996. Under this scenario, petitioner's action would be timely.

I have also considered the Board's assertion that petitioner requested copies of the new course curricula twice in August and was directed to obtain copies from the secretary of the vice principal. An affidavit from the vice principal, from whom the curricula was requested, supports the Board's claim.

The courts have held that under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) the 90 days begin to run after receipt of notice of some action taken by the board, e.g., a board's action to terminate a position due to an RIF. "[T]he date of an employee's RIF can be the only reasonable date certain on which the employee's rights can be reckoned for future entitlement purposes." Francey v. Salem Bd. of Educ., 286 N.J. Super. 354, 361 (App. Div. 1996) (quoting the Acting Commissioner). Here, petitioner maintained that she received adequate notice that a cause of action existed in January 1996, after she read about the courses in the newsletter in late November and thereafter obtained copies of the curricula. I agree that the 90-day period did not begin in April 1995, when petitioner received notice that the Board recommended that her contract not be renewed. Indeed, petitioner did not know about a potential cause of action until the new positions were posted and a nontenured teacher was hired to teach the courses. When the nontenured teacher was hired, however, petitioner was on notice of the Board's action. "The final order, ruling, or other action by the Local Board occurred when it appointed nontenured persons to positions to which [petitioner] claims tenure rights." Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 588. The regulation specifically requires that notice or action by the board triggers the running of the 90 days, not action or knowledge on the part of a claimant.

If claims could be filed based on when knowledge accrued to a petitioner, a board would never know when or if a claim might be pursued. The intent of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) is to offer both repose and security that claims cannot be instituted at any given time. See Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 582. Some objective event must occur to trigger the limitations period. Id. at 587. Accordingly, "the 90 days begin on the date on which the final action of the Local Board took place, . . . not the date on which petitioner claims that a substantive right accrued." Nissman, supra, 272 N.J. Super. at 381. Here, petitioner cannot claim that her acquisition of knowledge started the 90-day limitations period.

Thus, I CONCLUDE that petitioner had notice of the Board's action on September 5, 1995, when the principal announced that a new teacher had been hired and assigned to teach the courses claimed by petitioner. Consequently, I CONCLUDE that the 90-day period began on that date and ended on December 4, 1995. I therefore CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to file a timely petition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

Under appropriate circumstances the 90-day rule may be relaxed. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15 provides as follows:

> The rules herein contained shall be considered general rules of practice to govern, expedite and effectuate the procedure before, and the actions of, the Commissioner in connection with the determination of controversies and disputes under the school laws. They may be relaxed or dispensed with by the Commissioner, in his or her discretion, in any case where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice.

The statute of limitations set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) is to be strictly applied, Gordon v. Passaic Board of Educ., 1985 S.L.D. 1929, aff'd, No. A-3294-84T7 (App. Div. May 27), certif. denied, 105 N.J. 534 (1986); Elmwood Park Bd. of Educ. v. Farrell, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 375, 377, and the 90-day rule may only be relaxed under exceptional circumstances or if there is a "compelling" reason to do so. See Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 590 ("Nor do these facts present the exceptional circumstances that compel the Commissioner to waive the ninety-day limitation"); DeMaio v. New Providence Bd. of Educ., 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 449, 453 ("There are no compelling reasons in the present matter to justify a waiver or relaxation of the 90-day limitations period of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c)"). The authority to relax or waive the 90-day rule is rarely invoked, and such relaxation is generally unsuccessful unless strict adherence would be inappropriate, unnecessary or where injustice would occur. DeMaio, supra, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) at 453 (citing Gordon, supra, 1985 S.L.D. at 1931).

Here, no compelling or exceptional circumstances exist to warrant relaxation or waiver of the 90-day rule. Petitioner had notice on several occasions, from July 19 when the job notice was posted, to August when she learned of the new courses and had the opportunity to review the course curricula, to September 5 when the teacher assigned to those courses was announced. On each of these occasions, petitioner had adequate notice to inform her of a potential cause of action, and she should have pursued the matter if she was uncertain whether she had a claim. Under all three of these dates, petitioner's action is time barred, as the 90-day limitations period ended at the latest on December 4, 1995. Petitioner did not file her petition until January 18, 1996.

I CONCLUDE that there are no compelling or exceptional circumstances to warrant a waiver or relaxation of the rules. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's action is time barred.

Summary Decision

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), summary decision is appropriate:

> if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.

Summary decision in administrative proceedings parallels summary judgment in the courts. Summary judgment is:

> designed to provide a prompt, businesslike and inexpensive method of disposing of any cause which a discriminating search of the merits in the pleadings, depositions and admissions on file, together with the affidavits submitted on the motion clearly shows not to present any genuine issue of material fact requiring disposition at a trial.
> [Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Company of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954).]

In administrative proceedings, as in the courts, it is "the movant's burden to exclude any reasonable doubt as to the existence of any genuine issue of material fact." Ibid. Thus, "[a]ll inferences of doubt are drawn against the movant in favor of the opponent of the motion. The papers supporting the motion are closely scrutinized and the opposing papers indulgently treated." Id. at 75.

The New Jersey Supreme Court in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co., 142 N.J. 520, 539-40 (1995), applied the summary judgment standard employed by the federal courts and held that:

> when deciding summary judgment motions trial courts are required to engage in the same type of evaluation, analysis or sifting of evidential materials as required by Rule 4:37-2(b) in light of the burden of persuasion that applies if the matter goes to trial.

> Under this new standard, a determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 249, 106 S.Ct. at 2511, 91 *L.Ed.*2d at 212. Credibility determinations will continue to be made by a jury and not the judge. If there exists a single, unavoidable resolution of the alleged disputed issue of fact, that issue should be considered insufficient to constitute a "genuine" issue of material fact for purposes of Rule 4:46-2. Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 250, 106 S.Ct. at 2511, 91 *L.Ed.*2d at 213. The import of our holding is that when the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law," Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 252, 106 S.Ct. at 2512, 91 *L.Ed.*2d at 214, the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment.

Under Brill, once the movant has presented competent evidence tending to show the absence of any genuine issue for trial, the nonmovant must do more than simply create some doubts as to the material facts. Moreover, the nonmoving party cannot rely on disputed issues of fact that are insubstantial. Rather, Brill requires the nonmovant to raise a factual issue substantial enough to sustain a reasonable conclusion in the nonmovant's favor if a hearing were held. If the evidence, along with reasonable inferences, could sustain a judgment in favor of the nonmovant the motion must be denied.

In this matter, summary decision is appropriate because petitioner's action is time barred. Even drawing all inferences in favor of petitioner, petitioner's claim was filed beyond the latest date upon which the period of limitations could have expired. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that genuine issues of material fact do not exist. Having concluded that the action is time barred, the issues regarding petitioner's reemployment rights to teach the new courses need not be addressed.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent's motion for summary decision is GRANTED and petitioner's appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SUSAN BESHAW,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF OAKLAND, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner initially takes exception to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) conclusion that September 5, 1995, the date on which she learned that the Board hired a nontenured teacher to teach the courses in question, was the date on which she received "adequate notice." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 3) Petitioner asserts that, at the time, "[she] had a right to know and was not aware of the 'existence of facts' sufficient to put her on notice that she was entitled to teach " these courses. (Id.) It was not until late October or early November, petitioner contends, that she read a copy of the school's newsletter reviewing the two courses, and therein learned that the courses might be within the scope of her qualifications and experience under her Home Economics endorsement, notwithstanding that the Board contended that she was not qualified for the position since she did not acquire her elementary endorsement until after the date of the reduction in force. (Id.) Moreover, petitioner claims that the ALJ's reliance on Nissman, supra, in the initial decision is misplaced. Petitioner argues

> It is not a matter of conflict between when the final action of the Board took place and when substantive rights accrued but when petitioner received adequate notice that her rights might have been violated. It was only upon examining the curricula for the courses that it became apparent to petitioner that the courses would fall within her qualifications to teach home economics. It was only on January 12, 1996 when petitioner had adequate notice that a post-RIF cause of action existed. At the earliest, petitioner was aware in late October upon reading the school newsletter that the two courses potentially contained curricula within her qualifications to teach with an Instructional Certificate with an endorsement for Home Economics. Even using the late October date rather than the January 12, 1996 date, [the] petition having been filed on or about January 18, 1996 was timely filed. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 4)

In the alternative, petitioner contends that the rules should be relaxed in the instant matter. Petitioner underscores that she could not have been aware of the July 19, 1995 posting, since she was physically incapacitated, and while she heard about the course in late August, she did not know who would be teaching them. (Id. at p. 5) Even using the September 5, 1995 date, petitioner reasons that "this would only extend the limitations period by one and one-half months. This short amount of time would cause no hardship to respondent." (Id. at p. 6)

Finally, petitioner argues that there exists a genuine issue of material fact which precludes summary decision. (Id.) Petitioner contends that the ALJ's decision negates the fact that the vice principal's secretary never gave her a copy of the requested curricula and she, thus, had to obtain them through her Association. She further points out that, notwithstanding the Board's assertion, she did not request the curricula in August, as stated in the initial decision but, rather, at the end of November or early December 1995. (Id.; Petitioner's Certification at paragraph 18) Petitioner, thus, concludes that the ALJ considered the disputed facts and gave more credence to the Board's affidavit than to petitioner's affidavit, which is inappropriate when considering a motion for summary decision. (Id. at p. 7) Petitioner argues that if her actions were not time-barred under her set of facts, summary decision on that issue was inappropriate. (Id.)

In reply, the Board counters that the post-reduction-in-force cases demonstrate that a petitioner's cause of action and her corresponding obligation to file a petition of appeal, arises at the time she first becomes aware of a newly created position and of the appointment of someone else to that position. (Board's Reply at p. 2) Upon a review of case law, the Board argues that, > in a light most favorable to petitioner, the 90-day limitation period began to run either: on July 19, 1995, when the Board posted the notice of the available position; in mid to late August 1995, when petitioner twice requested copies of the curriculum for the two courses at issue; or as Judge Bari-Brown found, on September 5, 1995, when petitioner admittedly became aware of the courses and of the hiring of a new teacher to teach these courses. (Id. at pp. 2, 3)

The Board contends that the express language of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) does not support petitioner's view that the 90-day period does not begin to run until after she became aware of the "existence of facts" sufficient to notify her that she was entitled to teach the courses. (Id. at p. 3) Citing Kaprow, supra, the Board maintains that, to require that there be additional or more specific notice to a petitioner than her admitted knowledge of the new courses and the Board's appointment of a new teacher to teach said courses "'will not further the objectives of the regulatory scheme, and would only defeat the considerations of repose and interfere with the efficient administration of the school laws." (Id., citing Kaprow at 589) Moreover, the Board insists that Nissman, supra, is applicable, since that case is consistent with the many school law decisions holding that the 90-day limitations period begins upon notice of a final action of the board of education. The Board concludes that the 90-day period "did not start, as petitioner suggests, after her subsequent investigation over the next four (4) months revealed further information that confirmed her suspicion that she may have been entitled to teach the two new courses." (Id. at p. 4)

As to petitioner's prayer to relax the rules in the alternative, the Board avers that petitioner presents no unusual or compelling circumstances to warrant such relaxation. Here, the Board questions why petitioner, as a teaching staff member, did not know of, and made no inquiry into, the content of the courses at issue when she learned of their existence in late August or early September. (Id.) Moreover, the Board points out that petitioner was never prevented from obtaining copies of the curricula for the courses in question. Had she not received them upon her initial request, the Board asks

> 1) why did petitioner not demand in person the curricula at Vice-Principal Ciambra's office; and 2) why did petitioner delay over four (4) months in obtaining copies of the curricula after learning about the new courses and the assignment of the new teacher.

With respect to the issuance of a summary decision herein, the Board claims that, even if petitioner's allegation as to the timing of her request to the vice principal to obtain the curricula and her subsequent need to obtain them through the Association is correct, this fact is immaterial to the resolution of the timeliness issue since she admittedly learned of the two new courses and of the appointment of the new teacher on September 5, 1995. "What petitioner fails to understand," the Board continues, "is that the 90-day rule was triggered once she learned about the new courses and the assignment of the new teacher." (Id. at p. 6) The date on which petitioner requested the curricula or actually received the curricula, according to the Board, is irrelevant to the issue of timeliness. The Board concludes > it is disingenuous for petitioner to assert that the 90-day limitation period did not commence until she received the curricula when she admitted that she waited three (3) months to request copies of same after learning about the courses and the new teacher. The limitations period is in nowise tolled to afford petitioner an opportunity to investigate the facts of her case to determine whether it has merit." (Id.)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with petitioner that decision on a summary basis was inappropriate. Because petitioner could not have reasonably concluded from the job posting and its attendant certification requirement (K-8 certification) that she may have had a possible claim to the courses at issue, notice cannot automatically be reckoned from the date of appointment of the teacher for those courses in question. Thus, the question becomes when petitioner knew, or reasonably should have known, about a possible claim so that the timeliness of her petition may be determined. In this regard, the record includes insufficient facts and further reveals that there exists a fundamental factual dispute which directly impacts upon the threshold issue of timeliness. Specifically, petitioner and the Board offer contradicting accounts with respect to when petitioner first requested a copy of the curricula for the courses in question, a fact which is crucial to the underlying determination of when petitioner knew, or reasonably should have known, that she had a possible claim to teach the courses in question. See Metaxas et al. v. Board of Education of the City of Hoboken, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 708, 712. Petitioner certifies that she did not make the request until the end of November or early December 1995.

(Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 6 and Certification at paragraph 18) Whereas, the Board attests that petitioner twice requested copies in mid- to late August 1995. (Board's Reply at pp. 2, 3; Ciambra's Affidavit at paragraphs 2, 3) In that the ALJ rendered neither factual findings nor credibility assessments in this regard, the Commissioner is compelled to return this matter to the OAL for such findings so as to fairly resolve the issue of whether petitioner filed a timely petition in this matter. Should the ALJ determine that the petition was timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), this matter should then move directly forward for proceedings on the merits.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is reversed and this matter is remanded to the OAL for proceedings consistent with the above parameters.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

PETITIONER-RESPONDENT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF OAKLAND, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, April 14, 1997

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Bucceri & Pincus (Gregory T. Syrek, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Fogarty & Hara (Stephen R. Fogarty, Esq., of Counsel)

On May 1, 1995, the Board of Education of the Borough of Oakland (hereinafter "Board") voted to abolish the teaching position of Susan Beshaw (hereinafter "petitioner"), a tenured staff member assigned to teach home economics, effective at the end of the 1994-95 school year as the result of a reduction in force ("RIF"). On July 19, 1995, the Board posted notice of a full-time middle school position teaching "Skills for Successful Living," "The World of Work," "Keyboarding" and "Study Skills."[1] The position as posted required "K-8 certification." The County Superintendent subsequently determined in August 1995 that an elementary education endorsement was the appropriate certification for these courses. Affidavit of Lawrence R. Ksanznak, Superintendent of Schools, at 4. Petitioner held only an endorsement in home economics at the time of the RIF.[2] Petitioner acknowledged that she had learned of the job posting in late August 1995, but maintained that she had not been aware of the substance of the courses or whether they were within the scope of her home economics certification until after she had obtained copies of the curricula several months later.

On January 18, 1996, petitioner filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education alleging that the Board had violated her tenure rights when it assigned "Skills for Successful Living" and "The World of Work" to a non-tenured teacher for the 1995-96 school year. Petitioner alleged that such courses were within the scope of her home economics endorsement. The Board filed a motion for summary decision, arguing that the petition was not filed in a timely manner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).[3]

On February 24, 1997, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") recommended granting the Board's motion and dismissing the petition. The ALJ concluded that petitioner had notice of a possible claim against the Board on September 5, 1995 when the principal of her school announced at a faculty meeting that a non-tenured teacher had been assigned to teach "Skills for Successful Living" and "The World of Work." The

[2] Although petitioner obtained an elementary education endorsement in July 1995, there is no authority for accrual of additional rights in a tenured position after dismissal therefrom in a RIF. Francey v. Board of Educ. of Salem, decided by the State Board of Education, August 3, 1994, aff'd, 286 N.J. Super. 354 (App. Div. 1996).

[3] N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) provides that:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

ALJ further found that there were no compelling circumstances that would warrant relaxation of the 90-day rule in this instance. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15.

On April 14, 1997, the Commissioner of Education rejected the ALJ's recommendation and remanded this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings. The Commissioner found that petitioner could not reasonably have concluded from the job posting that she may have had a claim to the courses at issue and that, as a result, notice could not be reckoned merely from the appointment of a non-tenured individual to teach those courses. The Commissioner found that the record revealed the existence of a fundamental factual dispute which directly impacted upon the timeliness issue, i.e., when petitioner first requested a copy of the curricula for the courses at issue, a fact which he found to be crucial to the underlying determination of when petitioner knew or reasonably should have known that she had a possible claim to teach the courses at issue. Since the ALJ had rendered neither factual findings nor credibility assessments in this regard, the Commissioner remanded this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings in order to determine whether petitioner had filed her petition in a timely manner.

The Board filed the instant appeal to the State Board, again arguing that petitioner's claim was time-barred. We agree and, after a thorough review of the record, we reverse the decision of the Commissioner.

In Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley, 131 N.J. 572, 587 (1993), the New Jersey Supreme Court stated:

> When a plaintiff knows or has reason to know that he has a cause of action against an identifiable defendant and voluntarily sleeps on his rights so long as to permit the customary period of limitations to expire, the pertinent > considerations of individual justice as well as the broader considerations of repose, coincide to bar his action. [Farrell v. Votator Div., 62 N.J. 111, 115, 299 A.2d 394 (1973).] Adequate notice under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 should...effectuate concerns for individual justice by not triggering the limitations period until the tenured teachers have been alerted to the existence of facts that may equate in law with a post-RIF cause of action. See Burd v. New Jersey Tel. Co., 76 N.J. 284, 291, 386 A.2d 1310 (1978). At the same time, it should further considerations of repose by establishing an objective event to trigger the limitations period in order "to enable the proper and efficient administration of the affairs of government." Borough of Park Ridge v. Salimone, 21 N.J. 28, 48, 120 A.2d 721 (1956).

The final order, ruling or other action by the Board giving rise to petitioner's claim in this case occurred when the Board appointed a non-tenured individual to teach "Skills for Successful Living" and "The World of Work," courses to which petitioner now claims entitlement by virtue of tenure. Petitioner received notice of the Board's action on September 5, 1995, when the principal of the school in which she was employed announced the appointment at a faculty meeting. We find that such notice alerted petitioner to the existence of facts that might equate in law with a cause of action and was sufficient to enable her to pursue a claim, thereby triggering the ninety-day filing period of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2.

By virtue of her possession of an instructional certification in home economics, petitioner was authorized to teach:

> home economics in all public schools. Home economics normally includes: Homemaking and consumer education, foods and nutrition, family living and parenthood education, child development and guidance, housing and home furnishings, home management, clothing and textiles, and family health and safety.

N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)(12).

Given the scope of such authorization, we conclude that the course titles in this instance, "Skills for Successful Living" and "The World of Work,"[4] were broad enough to provide petitioner with notice sufficient to enable her to pursue a possible tenure claim against the Board under her home economics certification. The fact that petitioner did not request or review the curricula for those courses until some time later does not under these circumstances enlarge her time period for filing a petition challenging the Board's action.

Consequently, we agree with the ALJ that petitioner had reason to know of her tenure claim to "Skills for Successful Living" and "The World of Work" by September 5, 1995, when she learned that a non-tenured individual had been assigned to teach those courses. Since petitioner did not file her petition until January 18, 1996, 4½ months later, the petition was untimely. Nor do we find any basis in the record for relaxation of the 90-day rule in this case.

In that the facts in dispute pertain to the date on which petitioner requested copies of the course curricula, which we have found to be immaterial to a determination in this matter, we reverse the decision of the Commissioner, grant the Board's motion for summary decision and dismiss the petition. See Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995).

Attorney exceptions are noted.

For the Board, Louis R. Franzese, Esq.

For Respondent, Raymond J. Zeltner, Esq.

This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education on December 11, 1996, through certification of tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against a tenured teaching staff member of the State-operated School District of Newark; and

The Commissioner having directed respondent via both certified and regular mail on December 12, 1996, to file an Answer to the tenure charges against her; and

The Commissioner having sent such notice again on January 6, 1997, and on January 29, 1997, via regular and certified mail, and although the certified mail was returned as "moved, left no address," there is no indication that the regular mail was not duly received; and

By letter dated February 6, 1997, and faxed to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on February 10, 1997, Raymond J. Zeltner, Esq. advised that he had been retained to represent respondent with respect to this matter; and

On February 11, 1997, Mr. Zeltner's letter was acknowledged by the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, who advised him that although his client had been formally served with a copy of the tenure charges filed against her, via federal express, on December 10, 1996, in that Mr. Zeltner's letter indicated that his client had recently moved, the State-operated District was being requested by copy of the February 11, 1997 letter to provide counsel for respondent with another copy of the charges and counsel was accorded 20 days from his receipt of such communication to file an Answer on behalf of his client; and

On March 13, 1997, Mr. Zeltner was advised by certified and regular mail, with a copy of this communication being transmitted to respondent, that an Answer on behalf of his client had not been received and he was directed that such submission be made within ten (10) days of his receipt of this letter or the tenure matter would be decided on a summary basis; and

Respondent and her counsel having failed as of this date to comply with the directive of the Commissioner, notwithstanding receipt of the aforementioned notices, so that each count of the charges against respondent is deemed to be admitted; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED this 15th day of April 1997 that summary judgment shall be granted to the District, and Alyce Stewart shall be dismissed from her tenured position as a teaching staff member in the District's employ as of the date of this order.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, this matter shall be referred to the State Board of Examiners for review and action as it deems appropriate.

The record of this matter and the notice of withdrawal transmitted to the Commissioner by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.2 have been reviewed. Such review revealed the matter to have been withdrawn at OAL based on representations to petitioner that there were currently no assistant principals to whose positions she could claim entitlement by tenure or seniority.

However, on March 14, 1997, petitioner moved to reactivate the within matter based on information which came to light subsequent to withdrawal of the petition at OAL, specifically the employment of two nontenured vice principals of whom counsel for neither petitioner nor respondent were aware at the time of the withdrawal. Respondent did not oppose petitioner's request.

Accordingly, in light of these events, the Commissioner declines to approve withdrawal of this matter, which is hereby remanded to the OAL for further proceedings in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-1 et seq.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning guardian of F.A. challenged Board's residency determination.

ALJ dismissed petition as petitioner was twice afforded an opportunity to be heard and both times failed to appear. ALJ ordered that tuition be assessed against petitioner for the 1995-96 school year in the amount of $6,422.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and ordered payment of tuition for that period of minor F.A.'s ineligible attendance in the District.

Record Closed: February 27, 1997 Decided: February 27, 1997

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of Facts

This matter was remanded to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on May 24, 1996, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On December 23, 1996, the OAL notified the parties that a hearing was to be held on January 10, 1997 at 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey 07102. The post office returned the petitioner's notice with a notation indicating "MOVED LEFT NO ADDRESS."

I FIND that the notice of hearing was addressed to the petitioner at the address he specified as his and that he has not notified the Department of Education or the OAL of his current address. I CONCLUDE that the notice was reasonably calculated to reach the petitioner and afford him the opportunity of a hearing and that the failure of the petitioner to receive notice of this hearing was of his own making.

Therefore, it is for good cause shown ORDERED that the relief requested by petitioner is denied.

And further ORDERED that tuition is assessed against Paola Valencia for the 1995-96 academic year in the amount of $6,422.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that judgment must be entered in favor of respondent in that petitioner was twice afforded an opportunity to be heard on the instant matter and both times failed to appear on the scheduled date. In so ruling, the Commissioner notes that in the first instance, petitioner submitted an objection to dismissal of her petition, in May 1996, advising that she had moved and, therefore, did not receive a hearing notice in the mail. As previously noted, petitioner filed no exception or objection in response to the present decision and failed to leave a forwarding address with the OAL as to her new location. Based on these facts, the Commissioner concurs that petitioner has abandoned her appeal of the Board's determination that F.A. was not entitled to a free public education in the District's schools.

Moreover, under the circumstances, the Commissioner finds such conclusion equitable to both parties, observing that petitioner received fair notice, in writing, on several occasions, that she could be charged tuition for F.A.'s education, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, if this matter were decided against her.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the OAL that the instant Petition of Appeal be dismissed and petitioner is hereby assessed tuition in the amount of $6,422 for the period of minor F.A's ineligible attendance in the public schools of the City of Clifton.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF ALYCE STEWART, STATE-: STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE : DECISION
CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY. :

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, April 15, 1997

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Murray, Sills, Cummis, Zuckerman, Radin, Tischman, Epstein & Gross (Louis R. Franzese, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Samuel Manigault, Esq.

On December 11, 1996, the State-operated School District of the City of Newark (hereinafter "State-operated District") certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against Alyce Stewart (hereinafter "appellant"), alleging that she had knowingly participated in conduct intended to defraud the State Health Benefits Program by conspiring with Dr. Carl H. Lichtman, a licensed psychologist, to submit false claims for psychological services purportedly rendered. The State-operated District contended that appellant had provided Dr. Lichtman with personal information regarding herself and her dependents which was utilized by Dr. Lichtman to submit fraudulent claims to the insurance carrier for payment for psychological services. The State-operated District further alleged that, in exchange for the provision of such information, appellant had received and accepted a check from Dr. Lichtman in the amount of $3,181 as her share of the insurance payments received by him for her false claims, and that such conduct "resulted in a theft of and improper payment of public monies."

The statement of evidence with the tenure charges included an affidavit from Dr. Lichtman in which he admitted that between 1986 and 1995, he had been "involved in a scheme to defraud insurance carriers, including the State Health Benefits Program as administered by a third party administrator, by submitting false claims for psychological services purportedly rendered for insureds and/or their dependents." Lichtman Affidavit, at 1. He stated that "[u]pon receipt of payment from the carrier for the alleged treatments, I retained a portion of the amount paid on the false claims, usually seventy-five percent (75%), and gave the insureds a portion of the amount received by me on the false claims, usually twenty-five percent (25%)." Id. at 1-2.

Dr. Lichtman acknowledged that appellant had provided him with information for herself and her dependents necessary to submit false claims, and that he had not treated appellant or her dependents. He then used the information provided by appellant to submit false claims to the State Health Benefits Program and received approximately $12,724 from the insurance carrier. Dr. Lichtman averred that in July 1994, he had "issued a personal check payable to Alyce Stewart totalling approximately $3,181.00, representing approximately twenty-five percent (25%) of the amount I received on the false claims I had submitted for her....I mailed the personal check to Alyce Stewart, and the check was negotiated." Id. at 2.

On December 12, 1996, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes ("C & D") acknowledged receipt of those tenure charges from the State-operated District. A copy of that acknowledgment was also sent to appellant. On January 6, 1997, the Director of C & D notified appellant that she had not filed an answer to those charges.[1] On January 29, 1997, the Director of C & D again notified appellant of her failure to file an answer and advised her that unless she filed an answer within ten days, each count in the petition would be deemed to be admitted. By letter dated February 6, 1997, Raymond J. Zeltner, Esq. advised the Director of C & D that he had been retained to represent appellant and that appellant had not received the notices in a timely manner since they had been sent to her former address. He requested that any further correspondence be directed to his office, and he also provided appellant's new address.

By letter dated February 11, 1997, the Director of C & D acknowledged Mr. Zeltner's letter of February 6 and advised him that the counsel for the State-operated District was being requested to provide Mr. Zeltner with another copy of the tenure charges. He was accorded an additional 20 days from receipt of those charges to file an answer on behalf of appellant. On February 12, 1997, the State-operated District sent another copy of the tenure charges to Mr. Zeltner.

By letter dated March 13, 1997, the Director of C & D notified Mr. Zeltner that he had still failed to file an answer to the charges. Mr. Zeltner was advised that unless an answer was received within ten days, each count of the petition would be deemed to be admitted and the Commissioner of Education would decide the matter on a summary basis. A copy of that letter was also sent to appellant.

[1] N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(a) requires a respondent to file an answer to a petition of appeal within 20 days after receipt of that petition. The answer must "state in short and plain terms the defenses to each claim asserted and shall admit or deny the allegation(s) of the petition." N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(b) provides that a respondent "may not generally deny all the allegations, but shall make specific denials which meet the substance of designated allegations or paragraphs of the complaint."

On April 15, 1997, more than a month later, the Commissioner, still having received no answer to the charges, deemed each count to be admitted and directed that summary judgment be rendered in favor of the State-operated District. As a result, he directed that appellant be dismissed from her tenured employment.

On May 13, 1997, Mr. Zeltner filed the instant appeal on behalf of appellant. On August 8, 1997, a substitution of attorney was filed in which Mr. Zeltner withdrew as counsel for appellant and was replaced by Samuel Manigault, Esq. In an affidavit submitted in support of her appeal, appellant avers that during January and February 1997, she "left numerous messages with Mr. Zeltner's secretary requesting that he respond to the Tenure charge"...and "was reassured by his secretary that the matter was being handled." Appellant's Affidavit, at 1. Appellant asserts that "[i]n the latter part of February and early March, I was consistently reassured by Mr. Zeltner, himself, that everything was okay." Id. She adds that "I have a meritorious defense to the allegations set forth in the Tenure charges in that I am innocent of all criminal charges which is the gravamen of the action against me." Id. at 2.

After a careful review of the record, including the affidavit submitted by appellant, we affirm the decision of the Commissioner as clarified herein.

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e) authorizes the Commissioner to deem each count of a petition to be admitted and to render a decision by way of summary judgment in the event a respondent fails, after sufficient notice, to file an answer to a petition of appeal. In this case, appellant was provided with notice of the charges and an opportunity to respond. When she failed to respond, she was twice notified of such failure and, in accordance with the terms of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e), advised that unless she filed an answer within ten days, each count in the petition would be deemed to be admitted. After her counsel advised the Director of C & D of the delay in receipt of those charges, appellant was provided with an additional 20 days in which to file an answer. When no answer was filed after 20 days, both she and her counsel were again provided with notice that if an answer were not filed within 10 days, each count of the charges would be deemed to be admitted and the Commissioner would render a decision on a summary basis.[2]

Under the circumstances, we find that the Commissioner properly decided this matter on a summary basis, and we find no basis in the instant appeal for disturbing that determination. Appellant has not demonstrated that the failure to answer the charges was excusable under the circumstances or shown that she has a meritorious defense to those charges. See Marder v. Realty Constr. Co., 84 N.J. Super. 313, 318 (App. Div. 1964), aff'd, 43 N.J. 508 (1964). We reiterate that appellant, in addition to her counsel, was provided with a copy of the March 13, 1997 letter from the Director of C & D, which advised that the charges against her would be deemed to be admitted unless an answer was filed within ten days. Yet, appellant had still not filed an answer to the charges more than a month later when the Commissioner rendered his decision on April 15. We note in that regard that there is no indication in her affidavit that appellant contacted Mr. Zeltner after receipt of the March 13 letter. Rather, she avers

[2] We note that, although N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e) provides for two consecutive ten-day notices, appellant had been accorded an additional 20 days to answer the charges and then, after she still failed to file an answer, was advised in writing that each count in the petition would be deemed admitted unless she filed an answer within ten days. Such letters clearly provided appellant with adequate notice in conformity with the terms and intent of the regulation.

only that she was reassured by Mr. Zeltner "in the latter part of February and early March" that "everything was okay."

Indeed, appellant has still not responded to those charges. Nor, as a result, has she denied the specific allegations contained therein. The only intimation of a defense provided by appellant is the bald, one-line assertion in her affidavit that she is innocent of the criminal charges arising from the events at issue herein. Given the nature of the tenure charges, the statement of evidence from Dr. Lichtman corroborating and detailing appellant's participation in the scheme, and appellant's continuing failure to file an answer asserting her defenses to each claim and admitting or denying the allegations of the petition, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(a), we find that such a statement by appellant is not sufficient in itself to provide her with a showing of a meritorious defense.

We note, moreover, that appellant's innocence with regard to a particular criminal charge would not necessarily preclude a finding that her actions, if demonstrated, constituted unbecoming conduct. Unbecoming conduct need not constitute a criminal act. In addition, tenure charges require only that the truthfulness of the allegations be established by a preponderance of the credible evidence, unlike a criminal charge in which each element of the crime must be established beyond a reasonable doubt. See In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143, 149 (1962) ("In proceedings before an administrative agency...it is only necessary to establish the truth of the charges by a preponderance of the believable evidence and not to prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.").

In this case, our review of the tenure charges certified against appellant by the State-operated District and the statement of evidence in support of those charges indicates that appellant had knowingly and willingly engaged in conduct intended to defraud the State Health Benefits Program by conspiring to submit false medical claims for herself and her dependents. Deeming the charges to be admitted, and noting that appellant has still not denied the specific allegations contained therein, we find that appellant's actions constituted unbecoming conduct and that, under the circumstances, such conduct warranted her dismissal.

Consequently, as clarified herein, we affirm the decision of the Commissioner to dismiss appellant from her tenured employment.

Petitioner, supplier for the low bidder for the installation of an energy management system for two schools in the District, alleged the Board engaged in unfair and illegal bidding process.

ALJ dismissed petition, finding 1) that petitioner lacked standing to bring this action (a bidder who is not the lowest responsible bidder lacks standing to challenge the award of a contract to another bidder on allegedly illegal specifications) and 2) that the matter was moot.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision. Petition was dismissed.

BEFORE: JEFFREY A. GERSON, ALJ

STATEMENT OF CASE

In October 1994, respondent, Fair Lawn Board of Education, advertised a Notice to Bidders for the installation of an energy management system for two schools in the district. The specifications called for two separate bids on two separate contracts. Petitioner was an unsuccessful bidder who subsequently entered into an agreement with the successful bidder to supply certain components for the energy management system to be installed by the low bidder Tech Electric, Inc. (hereinafter TEC).

TEC requested that petitioner supply certain components for the energy management system to be installed by TEC. Petitioner proposed to supply components manufactured primarily by American Auto-Matrix which petitioner contended were equal to the Alerton equipment specified in the contract. Respondent's engineering consultant, Energy for America, Inc. (hereinafter EFA), advised TEC that its submittal was not approved contending that the architecture of the proposed system was unacceptable. Though Eiden disagreed with EFA's conclusion in a letter sent directly to EFA in February 1995, EFA countered that their only obligation was to deal with the contractor.

TEC, seeking to avoid any further delay, thereafter submitted shop drawings which proposed installation of the specified Alerton components. The project was completed by May 1995.

The petition of Richard Eiden Associates, Inc. was filed with the Commissioner of Education on March 27, 1995. The matter was forwarded to the Office of Administrative Law for resolution on April 26, 1995. No emergency relief of any type was sought by petitioner and the matter was heard on September 12, 1996.

ISSUES

Petitioner contends that EFA's rejection of the proposed substitution of American Auto Matrix equipment for the Alerton equipment was an unreasonable action. Prior to reaching this substantive issue, petitioner would have to successfully overcome the argument that petitioner has no standing to bring this action and that the matter is moot.

THE FACTS

The facts in this matter are not in substantial dispute. Attached hereto are the Joint Stipulation of Facts entered into by the parties. A review of these facts and others that were uncontested reveals the following:

1. Though petitioner participated in the bidding on the contract in question, petitioner was not the low bidder.

2. Petitioner was a supplier for the low bidder (TEC), but not in privity of contract with the respondent.

3. Petitioner was not a tax payer residing or domiciled in the Borough of Fair Lawn.

4. TEC completed the contract in May 1995.

An examination of the petition filed by Eiden reveals the following requests for relief:

(a) the Board immediately suspend the performance of the awarded contract and place it out to bid in compliance with applicable law;

(b) order the use of petitioner's "or equal" specified components in the awarded contract;

(c) that the specification of the awarded and open contract be modified to provide for "or equal" components and provision of the programming services, and

(d) such other relief as the Commissioner deem proper and appropriate.

The first three grounds of requested relief are simply no longer viable. Petitioner had not requested any emergency relief and the contract between the parties (TEC and the Board of Education) has been completed. There is no power either in the OAL or the Commissioner's office to award damages to an aggrieved party. "Absent an expressed grant, administrative agencies do not have the power to exercise or perform a judicial function and may not determine damages, award a person money judgment or promulgate a order requiring a pecuniary reparation or refund". John S. Slowenski v. the City of Trenton, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (BRC) 71, 72. Furthermore, although it appears that a citizen and taxpayer may challenge the validity of an award of a contract to a bidder, Albert F. Ruhel Co. v. Board of Trustees Industrial Ed., 85 N.J. Super. 4, 10 (L. Div. 1964), Eiden has not set forth any legal authority that would allow it the remedy of disgorging the profits of the successful bidder, TEC. In fact, Eiden was undoubtedly in privity of contract with TEC and had a remedy it could have pursued in Superior Court but chose not to. It was TEC that was the low bidder, it was TEC that fulfilled the specifications of the contract, and it was TEC that decided they would rather switch than fight when it came to the battle of the specified components.

Though it has been recognized that court fashioned doctrines for the handling of litigation are applicable to administrative proceedings City of Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1, 29 (1980), it is also well established that questions that have become moot or academic prior to judicial scrutiny generally have been held to be an improper subject for judicial review. Anderson v. Sills, 143 N.J. Super. 432, 437 (Ch. Div. 1976), citing Oxfeld v. New Jersey State Board of Education, 68 N.J. 301, 303-04 (1975); In re Geraghty, 68 N.J. 209, 212-13 (1975); Sente v. Clifton Manor and Municipal Council, 66 N.J. 204, 206 (1974). It is equally well established that the Commissioner does not decide moot issues. See, Pinkham v. Board of Ed. of Borough of South River, et. al. 1974, S.L.D. 1103; Tedesco v. Board of Ed. of Lodi, 1955-56 S.L.D. 60, Oxfeld v. Board of Ed. of Township of South Orange/Maplewood, 1975, S.L.D. 574.

The court in Anderson, set forth the reasons for this doctrine: First, for reasons of judicial economy and restraint, courts will not decide cases in which the issues are hypothetical, a judgment cannot grant effective relief, or the parties do not have concrete adversity of interest. Second, it is the premise of the Anglo-American judicial system that a contest engendered by genuinely conflicting self-interest of the parties is best suited to developing all relevant material before the court. Therefore, where there is a change in circumstances so that a doubt is created concerning the immediacy of the controversy, courts will ordinarily dismiss cases as moot regardless of the stage to which the litigation has progressed. See also, 2 Am Jour 2d Adm Law, 524 (6th Ed. 1990), stating that: "a subsequent event renders a controversy moot where it precludes a court from granting effective relief if any to the aggrieved party."

Consequently, the failure to obtain immediate emergency relief of any type now precludes the exercise of any effective remedy. It would be the height of absurdity to award damages to Eiden from profits that Eiden may have lost when Eiden refused to pursue the exact damages against the exact party in the form of breach of contract action against TEC prior to the completion of the contract.

Since I FIND as a matter of law that Eiden's petition requires dismissal on the basis of mootness, it is unnecessary to reach and resolve the outstanding issues. But, it is quite clear that the issue of standing in this matter travels hand in hand with the issue of mootness. Since Eiden was a bidder for the contract in question and did not at the time of his bid dispute the legality of the specifications, he cannot now circumvent that failure by attacking the Board with whom he was not even in privity of contract at any point. A bidder who is not the lowest responsible bidder lacks standing to challenge the award of a contract to another bidder on allegedly illegal specifications. Watzen v. The City of Atlantic City, 1, N.J. 272, 276 (1949). Petitioner claimed that he was "harmed" in that EFA rejected his proposed substitution "for equal" components. EFA's determination that the parts were not "equal" could have been directly challenged by TEC as the low bidder but was not. The harm to Eiden, if any, was inflicted by TEC since it was TEC who waived the argument and completed the contract, apparently with Alerton Components. Thus, in the absence of any harm inflicted by the respondent on Eiden and in the absence of any privity between Eiden and the respondent, there cannot possibly be any legal relief to which Eiden would be entitled against respondent.

CONCLUSION

Since the contract between TEC and the respondent has been fully executed there is no relief that could legally be rewarded to Eiden thus rendering this matter moot. Not only is the matter moot but Eiden had no standing to pursue the petition.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the petition filed by Richard Eiden Associates is hereby dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education as a contested case in October 1995 and a plenary hearing was scheduled to commence in May 1996. Thereafter, settlement discussions were initiated and the parties have now reached an amicable resolution of the dispute. A stipulation of settlement containing the terms and conditions of the agreement reached between the parties and signed by the petitioners and by a representative of the respondent is attached hereto.

Having reviewed the attached stipulation of settlement, FIND as follows:

The parties voluntarily have agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures contained on the stipulation.

The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF SOUTH ORANGE AND MAPLEWOOD, Counterclaimant, v. CHRISTOPHER JONES, MARGARET JONES and SHERRY CLOWERS, Counterclaim Respondents.

Petitioners/Counterclaim Respondents Christopher Jones, Margaret Jones and Sherry Clowers and Respondent/Counterclaimant Board of Education of the School District of South Orange and Maplewood herein stipulate as follows:

1. This settlement is being made without any admission of liability or wrongdoing on the part of any party and is for the purpose of amicably resolving this dispute. The parties specifically deny any wrongdoing or liability relating to any other party's claim.

2. The parties waive any and all claims which were or could have been asserted in the within action or any other action, including attorneys fees and damages pursuant to any federal or State constitutional or civil rights claims, and specifically release the other parties from any claims arising out of or related to these claims.

3. The pupil D.C. will be permitted to continue to attend District schools so long as he satisfies the statutory criteria set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, et seq. If the District determines in the future that D.C. is in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, et seq., the District will notify counsel for Petitioners of the basis for its belief and will not take any action against D.C. until the expiration of ten (10) days from the date of notice to counsel so that the parties may discuss the matter.

4. The Board of Education will provide a letter of explanation to Petitioners Christopher Jones and Margaret Jones, a copy of which is attached hereto.

5. As a result of the foregoing, Petitioners hereby withdraw the Petition filed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, with prejudice, and Respondent/Counterclaimant hereby withdraws its Counterclaim pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, with prejudice.

Re: Jones/Clowers v. South Orange-Maplewood Board of Education, Docket No. EDUOS 11727-95N

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Jones:

We believe it is in the best interests of the parties to resolve the above matter without devotion of further time and expense. Therefore, the Board of Education has determined that it will drop all challenges to Dantae's enrollment in Columbia High School. We should agree that the parties' willingness to resolve this matter does not constitute an admission of liability or wrongdoing on anyone's part. We hope you will accept this letter in furtherance of the settlement of your Petition with the Commissioner of Education.

As a citizen of Maplewood, you are no doubt aware of the Board's deep concern to protect the citizens and taxpayers of both South Orange and Maplewood. As a result, the Board has undertaken a program to ensure that only pupils entitled by law to attend district schools are permitted to enroll. Insofar as the Board's action in denying Dantae's initial enrollment may have caused you or Dantae any inconvenience, kindly accept the Board's apology.

We are pleased to have Dantae as a student at Columbia High School, and look forward to his continued success there.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner alleged that his dismissal from employment as a carpenter in the District violated his tenure rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

ALJ concluded that the Commissioner did not have subject matter jurisdiction over petitioner's employment as such employment is subject to, and governed by, the provisions of Title 11, the Civil Service Laws. As such, this matter is within the jurisdictional purview of the Department of Personnel, rather than the Commissioner of Education. Summary judgment was granted to the District. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

LIBORIO LO RUSSO,
v.
STATE OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,
Respondent.

Libero D. Marotta, Esq., for Petitioner

Patricia A. Taylor, Esq., for respondent, Jersey City School District

Record Closed: February 18, 1997 Decided: March 3, 1997

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

On March 4, 1996 the petitioner, Liborio LoRusso, filed a verified petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that his dismissal from employment as a carpenter in the State Operated School District of Jersey City (District) violated his tenure rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. The petitioner demands that the removal from his position be reversed; that he be granted back pay and that he be given a tenure hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq.

On April 11, 1996 the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

The respondent filed an answer, which, among other things, stated that the petitioner's employment is governed by the Civil Service Act, N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 et seq., (the Act); that the Act had been adopted by the Jersey City School District; that therefore, the School Laws, including N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. did not apply to the petitioner; and that the Commissioner of Education has no jurisdiction to hear or decide this matter.

On December 17, 1996 the respondent filed an application for summary decision, alleging that no disputed material facts exist and that a decision should be rendered in favor of the respondent as a matter of law.

The petitioner filed papers in opposition to the motion on February 18, 1997.

FACTS

After reviewing the papers submitted by both parties, it is clear that the following FACTS are undisputed:

Petitioner Liborio LoRusso was employed by the respondent as a carpenter. On March 28, 1995 petitioner was served with a Preliminary Notice of Disciplinary Action, Form CS-31A. This notice was prepared on a Department of Civil Service(Department of Personnel) form and charged the respondent with violations of Civil Service rules that are contained in N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3 et seq. The listed specifications include insubordination and conduct unbecoming an employee in the public service.

A departmental disciplinary hearing was convened on November 14, 1995, after multiple adjournments had been granted to the petitioner. Neither the petitioner or his attorney appeared on November 14, 1995.

After an ex parte presentation of evidence, the hearing officer found that the petitioner's actions constituted conduct unbecoming an employee in the public service and insubordination. Sufficient cause was found to terminate him from his position, effective December 4, 1995.

A Final Notice of Disciplinary Action, on a Department of Civil Service (Department of Personnel) CS-31B form, was thereafter served on the petitioner. The notice indicated that the charges were sustained and that he was removed from his position, effective December 4, 1995.

By letter dated December 22, 1995 petitioner filed a request to appeal the above determination to the Merit System Board, in the Department of Personnel.

On or about February 28, 1996 the petitioner filed the instant petition of appeal contesting his termination before the Commissioner of Education.

The respondent did not file "tenure charges" against the petitioner, nor was a hearing held pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. The respondent had acted against the petitioner under the Civil Service Laws, N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 et seq. and it did not submit the matter to the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education as a controversy and dispute under the school laws, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 et seq.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

A summary decision may be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

A summary judgment proceeding is designed to allow the judge to quickly and inexpensively dispose of any case which does not present any genuine issue of material fact requiring disposition at a hearing. Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954). The role of the judge in such a motion is to determine whether there is a genuine issue of material fact, but not to decide the issue if such an issue exists. Judson at 73. In addition, "an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary hearing. If the adverse party does not respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be issued." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

Reliance on argument in a brief and the bare allegations of the complaint, unsupported by fact and merely stating bare conclusions, are insufficient under our rules to create a fact issue. More is required than mere denials without supporting affidavits or proofs. See Borough of Franklin Lakes v. Mutzberg 226 N.J. Super 46, 57 (App. Div. 1988).

The administrative regulation referred to above governing summary decision is essentially the same as the New Jersey Court Rule that provides for summary judgment. See *R.*4:46-2. The New Jersey Supreme Court recently modified and clarified the analysis required when considering a motion for summary decision/judgment. In Robin Brill v. The Guardian Life Insurance Co. 142 N.J. 520 (1995), the court adopted the summary judgment standard currently utilized by the Federal courts. The court stated:

> Under this new standard, a determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential material presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. Brill, supra at 540.

In applying this analysis, the Appellate Division stated that this new standard "requires a judge ruling on a summary judgment motion to engage in a weighing process to find out if a genuine issue of material fact exists, a process essentially the same as that of a directed verdict." Kelly v. Bally's Grand, Inc. 285 N.J. Super 422, 435 (App. Div. 1995) (citing Brill, 142 N.J. Super 529-30, 533, 536-37).

The sole issue presented by the respondent in its application for summary decision is whether the petitioner's removal from employment is governed by the School Laws under Title 18A, within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education or, in the alternative, whether it is a question of Civil Service Law, within the jurisdiction of the Department of Personnel.

In removing the petitioner from his position, the respondent acted in accordance with Department of Personnel (Civil Service) procedures, utilizing Civil Service forms designed to be served on permanent employees; and Civil Service (Department of Personnel) disciplinary hearing procedures were followed. Of considerable interest is the fact that the petitioner filed a timely appeal of that action with the Merit System Board. Two months later the petitioner also filed the instant petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education.

In his opposing papers, the petitioner argues that he was a tenured employee of the school district, and was entitled to a tenure hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. However, he does not present any evidential materials to demonstrate that he was tenured. Respondent then proceeds to argue about the manner in which the Civil Service disciplinary hearing was held on November 14, 1995. He asserts that the charges of insubordination and conduct unbecoming an employee in the public service (civil service charges under N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)) were unsupported by detailed specifications. He also faults the fact that the departmental hearing was conducted on an ex parte basis, when neither he or his attorney appeared.

The petitioner then shifts back from his complaints about the departmental hearing to the original assertion that, as a tenured employee, he was entitled to procedures in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

After presenting the foregoing argument, the petitioner does not assert that any genuine issues of material fact exist. No evidential materials, affidavits or other matter were presented in an attempt to indicate that there is or may be a genuine issue of fact that can only be determined in an evidentiary hearing. The petitioner does not deny that he was a permanent Civil Service employee, protected under Title 11A. Nevertheless, he also desires the protection of a tenured employee under the School Laws.

In this case, it is obvious that there are no disputed material facts. The matter is therefore appropriate for determination by way of summary decision.

The authority cited by the district in support of its argument that the Commissioner of Education does not have jurisdiction over the petitioner's employment, because his employment is subject to and governed by the provisions of Title 11, the Civil Service Laws, is accurate. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 provides:

> The Board shall . . . make, amend and repeal rules, not inconsistent with this title or with the rules of the State Board . . . for the employment, regulation of conduct and discharge of its employees, subject, where applicable, to the provisions of Title 11, Civil Service, of the revised statutes.

More specifically, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-2 provides that no person in the classified service pursuant to Title 11 shall be affected by the provisions of the Education Law concerning tenure.

In Newark Attendance Counselors Association v. Board of Education, 2 N.J.A.R. 346 (1979), the Commissioner of Education dismissed a layoff appeal by school attendance officers, holding that the petitioners were classified Civil Service employees subject to competitive appointments.

This concept was repeated by the Commissioner of Education in Mary Ellen Anderson v. State-Operated School District of Jersey City, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 7006-94 (Feb. 28, 1995) aff'd Comm'r of Educ. (Apr. 10, 1995). There, the Commissioner of Education affirmed that whatever employment rights the petitioner, a clerk/secretary in the Jersey City School District, might have possessed existed pursuant to Civil Service Laws, N.J.S.A. Title 11, rather than the Education Laws. Consequently, the Commissioner of Education acknowledged that he lacked subject matter jurisdiction over the dispute.

See also, Valerie D. Harp v. Board of Education of the City of Newark, OAL DKT. 10918-93 (July 6, 1994).

It is CONCLUDED that the holdings in the above cases apply similarly to the instant matter, and the respondent is entitled to summary decision.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that summary decision is GRANTED to the respondent. The instant appeal before the Commissioner of Education is DISMISSED for lack of jurisdiction.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that whatever employment rights the within petitioner may possess exist pursuant to civil service law, N.J.S.A. Title 11, rather than under education law. As such, the Commissioner of Education lacks subject matter jurisdiction over the instant matter.

Accordingly, summary decision is hereby granted to the Board and the within Petition of Appeal is dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.

Petitioning teacher sought restoration of two sick leave days that she contended were due to work-related illness.

ALJ concluded that the two days absences were the result of personal injuries caused by accidents arising out of and in the course of petitioner's employment, and that the two days absences, charged to petitioner's sick leave, should be restored to petitioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. Moreover, citing Hern Appellate Division decision, ALJ found that where no claim was filed for workers' compensation benefits and where such a claim would be dismissed if filed, there was no valid reason to require petitioner to engage in the futile gesture of pursuing a workers' compensation claim. Thus, in this case, the Commissioner had original exclusive jurisdiction to decide the sick leave claim under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1.

Citing Hern (where the Appellate Division has offered guidance on a particular issue, the Commissioner will not ignore such guidance, notwithstanding that it may be found in an unpublished decision), the Commissioner adopted the findings and determination in the initial decision as his own. Commissioner ordered the restoration of petitioner's sick leave.

Record Closed: October 21, 1996 Decided: March 6, 1997

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner seeks to have two days absences charged to her sick leave restored pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 based on her contention that these absences were the result of personal injuries caused by accidents arising out of and in the course of her employment. Petitioner's petition of appeal was filed with the Commissioner of Education on July 14, 1994, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 9, 1994, for hearing as a contested case. It should be noted that a motion for summary decision by petitioner was also transmitted with petitioner's petition of appeal. On July 29, 1994, respondent filed an answer together with a cross-motion for summary decision.

The matter was assigned to the undersigned administrative law judge (ALJ) on September 19, 1994, and a telephone prehearing conference was scheduled for October 27, 1994. The scheduled prehearing conference was adjourned and rescheduled for December 8, 1994, because of a court conflict of attorney for respondent. On December 8, 1994, the prehearing conference was converted to a status conference at which time it was concluded that petitioner's summary decision motion and respondent's cross-motion for summary decision should be decided prior to any further proceedings in this matter. Accordingly, by an Order entered on December 21, 1994, petitioner's motion for summary decision was granted in part and respondent's motion for summary decision was denied. In this Order it was determined that the Commissioner of Education has jurisdiction to decide whether an employee is entitled to the benefit of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 without the necessity of the employee first filing a Worker's Compensation claim. It was further ordered that petitioner's motion for summary decision was denied in part and that a hearing must be held in order to determine whether petitioner's absence was the result of a personal injury caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of her employment.

A telephone prehearing conference was then scheduled for February 2, 1995. On that date it was determined that a prehearing conference would be dispensed with, and this matter was scheduled for hearing to commence on July 10, 1995. At that time the parties believed that certain grievance arbitration proceedings may have the result of resolving the issues in this matter. When these grievance procedures were not successful in resolving the matter, the hearing was held on July 10 and 11, 1995. At the conclusion of the testimony on these two days, the matter was continued in order to afford petitioner the opportunity to seek to enforce a subpoena served on a medical witness petitioner intended to call.

By letter dated July 27, 1995, attorney for petitioner indicated that because the medical witness who had been subpoenaed would be a hostile witness, petitioner requested the opportunity to be examined by an evaluating physician. Attorney for respondent had no objection to this and, accordingly, no new hearing date was scheduled at that time. On November 29, 1995, attorney for petitioner supplied the report of an examining physician and requested that this report be accepted into evidence. In response to this, attorney for respondent requested the opportunity to have petitioner examined by an independent psychiatric expert and made arrangements for such examination.

When no information concerning the status of this matter was forthcoming from counsel, a Letter Order was entered on March 11, 1996, ordering counsel to report the status of this matter within ten days and providing that in the absence of such a report the record would be closed. By letter of March 15, 1996, attorney for respondent indicated that petitioner was examined by a medical expert on March 8, 1996, and respondent was awaiting a report. This report was provided on March 28, 1996. Both counsel agreed to the submission of the two medical reports in evidence without the necessity of formal proof for consideration in this matter.

Counsel then requested an opportunity to file written closing arguments, and upon the submission of these closing arguments, the record in this matter was closed on October 21, 1996. As a result of the entry of two Orders of Extension, the time within which an Initial Decision was to be provided was extended until March 6, 1997.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The issue to be determined in this matter is whether petitioner's two days absences following an incident which occurred on April 13, 1994, was the result of personal injuries caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of her employment. Petitioner was paid her full salary for the two days she was absent from her teaching duties. These absences were charged against petitioner's accumulated sick leave. Petitioner did not file any action with the Division of Worker's Compensation as a result of the April 13, 1994 incident.

It is undisputed that petitioner is employed by the Board of Education of the Township of Neptune as a special education teacher assigned to Neptune High School. At the time of the incident which occurred on April 13, 1994, she had been employed for twelve years. It is also undisputed that on that date, Dr. Morgan was the principal of Neptune High School.

Petitioner testified that on April 13, 1994, she was sitting in the hall when a security guard came up to her and asked her to go to Dr. Morgan's office because he would like to see her. She then sought a building representative of the local education association, and indicated she would not go into Dr. Morgan's office alone because of previous incidents. She then located Mr. Bogan, a building representative, who accompanied her into Dr. Morgan's office. While on the way, Dr. Morgan stopped petitioner and asked where she was, to which she responded that she was getting a building representative. Dr. Morgan responded that he would like to see her in his office alone, but she indicated she wanted to have a representative with her. He then said "No. You're coming into my office alone" to which petitioner responded that she was not. Dr. Morgan then responded that if she did not come into his office alone she would need a representative. Petitioner then asked what the meeting was about, to which Dr. Morgan responded that she would find out when she came into his office alone. Petitioner then indicated she would not come into his office alone. Dr. Morgan then walked away and Mr. Bogan asked her if she was going to Dr. Morgan's office, to which she responded she would not go alone.

Petitioner testified that she then walked into the office of Ms. Abrams, who is a guidance counselor and another building representative. She sat down and told Ms. Abrams what happened. While she was talking to Ms. Abrams, Dr. Morgan opened the door, went into petitioner's face and said "What are you doing? Where are you supposed to be?" Petitioner responded that she was on hall duty but that she was telling Ms. Abrams what happened. Dr. Morgan then responded "Oh yeah. Well, I want you to go there right now." Petitioner responded that she is upset right now, to which Dr. Morgan, still in her face, responded, "Well, woopty-doopty-doo." Petitioner indicated she looked at Dr. Morgan and could not believe what he said and she said "Woopty-doopty-doo?" to which Dr. Morgan screamed back in her face "Yeah, woopty-doopty-doo." Petitioner indicated that Dr. Morgan was approximately three or four inches from her face.

Petitioner indicated that she had never heard anyone talk like that and she became very upset. Dr. Morgan then stormed out of the office, and slammed the door. Mr. Lampinen, a Vice Principal, then came into the office to try to calm her down and the school nurse was called. The school nurse took petitioner's blood pressure, and it was sky high. Approximately eight to ten minutes later, Dr. Morgan returned and he spoke to petitioner very nicely. He asked if she was upset and indicated there was no reason to be upset, and he just wanted to tell her about her year-end evaluation. She indicated that never in thirteen years has an evaluation been handled by anyone other than the chairman of the department. He indicated all she had to do was sign her year-end evaluation and there was nothing wrong. Following this, Dr. Bogan took petitioner to see Dr. Crawford and she told the doctor what happened. The doctor told her that she was really upset and that she should avoid precipitating events and come back on Monday.

Petitioner indicated that on that same day there was a meeting scheduled with the Superintendent and approximately twenty teachers who have had incidents involving Dr. Morgan.

Petitioner testified that her blood pressure is perfect, and is normally 110 over 70 or 110 over 80. On that day, her blood pressure went up to 140 over 110 or 140 over 120, and she had a headache that lasted for days. Her blood pressure was still very high the next day and two days later when she went to see another doctor. That doctor indicated that her blood pressure was abnormally high.

Petitioner indicated that when Dr. Morgan first addressed her, her own mental state was calm. She indicated that Dr. Morgan denied her representation and threatened her by telling her that if she did not go into his office alone, she would need representation. She indicated that when she went to talk to Ms. Abrams she was in tears. She then saw the school nurse who is Jean Mitchell. She indicated that Dr. Bogan took her to the school physician who is Dr. Crawford of Pro Health. Dr. Crawford advised her not to go back to teaching for two days, to avoid Dr. Morgan on Thursday and Friday and then come back to school on Monday. Petitioner identified a note given to her by Dr. Crawford on April 13, 1994 (P-1) indicating that she should return to work on April 18, 1994. The report indicates a diagnosis of anxiety disorder and a treatment of avoidance of precipitating events. Petitioner then returned to work on April 18, 1994.

Petitioner testified that she has had a second job teaching exercise classes at Monmouth College. It is a stretch and tone, low impact class and she indicated that it was relaxing and less stressful than her normal job. She taught that class on April 14 and 15, 1994.

Petitioner testified to other prior incidents involving her and Dr. Morgan. On January 14, 1994, there was a fight between two girls outside of her classroom. After petitioner broke up the fight, her back and neck was bothering her and she went to the nurse's office and the nurse suggested that she go home and see a doctor. She taught the next class but then at the end of the day she got coverage and was walking down the hall when Dr. Morgan began screaming and pointing at her to get into his office now. She indicated that Dr. Morgan is about six foot five inches tall and three hundred pounds and he was standing over her. He then asked if she hurt herself to which she responded that she hurt her lower back and neck. She could see that he was very mad and steaming, and he was frightening to see. One of his secretaries places an accident report on his desk, and he took his hand an swung the paper on the floor. The secretary picked it up and Dr. Morgan said "Okay, I'm done talking to you" and she started walking out of his office. She indicated that when he was speaking to her he was placing his finger in her face, his facial expression was like a monster and he was talking extremely loudly. She indicated that Dr. Morgan was scary and out of control. Petitioner indicated that she was in shock as a result of this meeting and afterwards she became nauseated.

Petitioner then testified to an incident on January 25, 1994. Petitioner indicated that after her return to work following the fight she had to make copies. After making copies she returned to her class and Dr. Morgan and Mr. Lampinen were outside of her room and Dr. Morgan told her to come with him. While they were walking down the hall, Dr. Morgan advised petitioner that she was in big trouble and needed a representative for the meeting. When they sat down, petitioner explained that she was making copies of an exam because the copy machine had been broken down. While she was stating this she glanced at someone else whereupon Dr. Morgan started pointing and screaming at her, "When I talk to you, you look at me. You don't look at anyone else. You look at me. I'm the principal. I'm the principal." Petitioner then stated that she did not mean to look at anyone else to which Dr. Morgan responded "You just remember, I'm the principal." Petitioner then finished giving her explanation and Dr. Morgan dismissed her. The next day, Dr. Morgan spoke to petitioner in the hall and said that the incident of the day before was going to be forgotten.

Petitioner testified to another incident on February 18, 1994, concerning her work-related injury. Petitioner, Lucille Alfano, Michael Berman, Esq., and Dr. Morgan attended the meeting and Dr. Morgan began questioning petitioner about the injury and asking if she still taught aerobics after school, to which she responded yes. At that point, Dr. Morgan got so mad that he threw everyone out of the office saying "Everybody get out of here. Get out of here now." She indicated that Dr. Morgan was waving his arms like a scary person and was screaming at the top of his lungs. He was banging on the desk waving his arms and he lost all control of himself.

Petitioner testified to another incident on February 22, 1994. She indicated that the beginning of that school year the teachers requested that she teach an exercise class, but it was never approved. As a result, she put up a note in the teachers' room indicating that there would be no aerobics class because it was rejected. On February 22, petitioner got a note in her mailbox from Dr. Morgan asking why she has a letter in the teachers' room saying she will not have aerobics. following this, on March 1, 1994, there was an incident at the mailbox. She walking into the office to see if she had any mail and Dr. Morgan was standing there. She walked by and Dr. Morgan yelled to her "Ms. Dorfman? Do you walk by me and not say hello?" She then said hello. Following this, Dr. Morgan would frequently pass by her in the hallway and put his face into hers and say hello with a kind of smirk. His face was about three inches from hers. He went out of his way to do this every time he saw her in the hallway.

Petitioner indicated that these prior incidents were in her mind when she was called to Dr. Morgan's office on April 13, 1994. Petitioner also indicated that because of this background and because of the incidents with approximately twenty other teachers, she felt that she had to attend the meeting of April 13, 1994.

On cross-examination, petitioner indicated that when the security guard informed her of the meeting, she asked what it was about, and the security guard shrugged his shoulders. About two or three minutes later she crossed the hall to Dr. Morgan's office and peeked in, and he was not there. It was when petitioner indicated she would not come in alone that Dr. Morgan became angry. When Dr. Morgan insisted that she go in alone, she responded that she would not without a representative. She indicated that this whole conversation took place in five minutes. It was when Dr. Morgan told her to go back to her regular duty and she indicated that she was upset that

Dr. Morgan said "Woopty-doopty-doo." She did not go back to hall duty at that point. When petitioner was seen by the school nurse office, she had a headache and felt sick and nauseous. She was also surprised and shocked. She saw Dr. Crawford within one-half hour to one hour after this incident.

Petitioner testified that she attended the meeting at the Board of Education office from approximately 2:15 until 4:00 p.m. During the meeting she had a headache and was distressed. Petitioner admitted that on the same day she taught two classes at Monmouth College at 5:15 p.m. and 6:30 p.m.. It is her normal practice to perform exercises and because Dr. Crawford's note indicated no restrictions, she taught the classes. She actually exercised with her students and indicated that the earlier class is a relaxation-type of classe and reduces stress. She also taught the second class starting at 6:30 p.m., which is a stretch or low-impact class. She did not go to school at Neptune High School to teach on April 14 or 15, 1994. On April 15, she went to an eye doctor, Dr. Jsaistis. She had no problems with her blood pressure before this incident.

On cross-examination, petitioner admitted that she provided a written statement to the Superintendent setting forth the incidents of January 14, 1994, January 25, 1994, March 1 and 2, 1994. However, in this statement dated July 16, 1994, the April 13, 1994, incident is not mentioned. She also indicated that it was also not mentioned in a sworn statement which she gave and which was transcribed on July 26, 1994.

Petitioner then testified that her blood pressure was elevated not after the incident on April 13, 1994, but after the incident on January 4, 1994. She indicated her blood pressure went up after the fight incident because that is when Dr. Morgan started on her. She also corrected her prior testimony by indicating that she saw Dr. Jsaistis on January 6 or 7, 1994 and not in April, 1994.

Petitioner admitted that nowhere in her statement of September 26, 1994 did she indicate that Dr. Morgan pointed his finger at her on January 4, 1994. Petitioner indicated that the transcript is basically accurate. She stated that Dr. Morgan started acted bizarre and peculiar toward her after she returned from her back injury.

Petitioner indicated that before the April 13, 1994 incident she felt fine. She admitted that in the transcribed statement she gave on July 26, 1994, she described her state as livid, and that she said, "I never heard of a building principal say woopty doopty do before." In the transcript she also said that she stated to Dr. Morgan, "I can't believe you are talking to me like this (gesturing)" and that she would not send her child to this school. She also admitted that she saw only Dr. Crawford after the incident of April 13 and she did not se Dr. Jsaistis after that.

Petitioner testified that after the January incident she was prescribed a muscle relaxant, which she took for eleven days until it ran out., but she was not taking any medication on April 13, 1994.

Constance Jean Liotti, a secretary in the computer room and for guidance, testified that her office is physically located in the vicinity of the offices of Dr. Morgan office and Joyce Abrams. On April 13, 1994, she saw Dr. Morgan in hallway and he was angry. He was walking in a fast and rough manner and his face was unhappy and his eyes were wide. She then walked into the guidance office and into Joyce Abrams' office and she observed petitioner very upset and crying. They then closed the doors so that the students would not hear anything whereupon Dr. Morgan came back into the guidance office, opened the door and started yelling at petitioner "I want you in my office." He then started to yell at her louder and she was crying. She stated that Dr. Morgan was yelling at petitioner and was right on top of her. She then sent someone to get the school nurse. Dr. Morgan then yelled at petitioner that she had to go back and teach and petitioner responded that she was very upset. Dr. Morgan then left the room, slammed the door and walked out. He was furious. At that point the school nurse came into the office and she left. She indicated that Dr. Morgan was screaming at petitioner for four minutes. The guidance office is very small and that as soon as someone comes in they are right over the chair that petitioner was sitting in. She indicated that she recalls no other unusual phrases stated on that day.

Joyce M. Abrams testified that she is employed by respondent as a high school guidance counselor. She was a guidance counselor on April 13, 1994. On that day, petitioner came into her office and asked if she would be able to join her at a meeting with Dr. Morgan as an association representative. Petitioner seemed very alarmed, fearful and concerned. Ms. Abrams indicated that because Dr. Jim Bogan had accompanied petitioner on previous occasions that it would be appropriate for him to go. She subsequently saw petitioner and Dr. Bogan walk toward Dr. Morgan and she observed that Dr. Morgan was glaring and impatient. She then heard petitioner subsequently state "I won't go in." with her voice raised. A short time later petitioner returned to Ms. Abrams' office and she totally lost her composure. She was upset, shaking from head to toe and was sobbing and Ms. Abrams thought that petitioner was going to pass out. She tried to calm petitioner down when Dr. Morgan barged into her office and verbally attacked petitioner. He stated "If you don't get into my office now then get where you belong." Petitioner indicated she could not go to hall duty because she is upset, to which Dr. Morgan responded woopty-doopty-doo for you, woopty-do, pointing at petitioner with his finger in her face. He was yelling and very aggressive and threatening.

Ms. Abrams testified that the school nurse was then called. Petitioner's legs and arms were shaking and she was very distraught. The nurse took her blood pressure and with that there was a knock on the door and Dr. Morgan entered to room. at this point, the tears started coming down petitioner's eyes and she was agitated again. Dr. Morgan said that if she had needed a representative with her that he would have had one there. He also indicated that he wanted to see her about an end of year evaluation and he was calling her in because it was a good one. Dr. Morgan had quieted his voice and was not threatening. Following this, Dr. Bogan brought petitioner to the school physician for treatment.

On cross-examination Ms. Abrams indicated that when petitioner first came into her office she looked alarmed, worried and apprehensive. She indicated that when Dr. Morgan returned to the office, petitioner completely lost her composure. She was sobbing and crying, her arms and legs were dangling and shaking, and her shoes were making noise on the floor because of the shaking. She indicated that an employee is entitled to a representative if the employee feels threaten or is uncomfortable. She also indicated that she has never had a security guard summon her and has never had an evaluation given by any one other than a department head.

Rita Smith testified that she is a secretary in the guidance office. On April 13, 1994 petitioner came into the guidance office and she was hysterical and upset. This is after she observed Dr. Morgan looking down at petitioner and motioning for her to go into his office and petitioner asking why he wanted to see her. Dr. Morgan was getting more heated and disturbed. Petitioner was just asking in a normal voice why, while Dr. Morgan's voice was intimidating and harassing. After petitioner came into the office, subsequently, Dr. Morgan also came in, opened the door, stuck his head in and said some things and then said "Woopty-do." She indicated that Dr. Morgan wanted petitioner to come into his office and he was getting her upset again.

Dr. James Bogan testified that he is a guidance counselor at the Neptune High School. On April 13, 1995, he met with petitioner to represent her in an administrative matter. He did not know what the matter was about. He started to walk with petitioner to a meeting with Dr. Morgan. Petitioner was uneasy and frightened. Dr. Morgan appeared and he was very irritated and agitated about something. Dr. Morgan instructed petitioner to go into his office now. She responded that she wanted a representative, in response to which he indicated that if she does not go into his office alone she will need a representative. Dr. Morgan was threatening, menacing, loud and belligerent. Petitioner then broke down in tears saying that she wanted a representative and Dr. Morgan insisted that she did not need a representative. Petitioner was extraordinarily and visibly upset. She was crying and when Dr. Morgan walked away Dr. Bogan lead her back to Ms. Abrams office. She was very frightened and nervous and indicated she did not want to meet with Dr. Morgan without someone being present. When they got into Ms. Abrams office, they closed the door and tried to make petitioner feel comfortable. Dr. Morgan abruptly walked in the door and looked down at petitioner and indicated that if she was not going to come to his office, she had to report back for duty. Petitioner responded that she cannot because she was too upset, to which Dr. Morgan responded, "Well woopty-do." Petitioner then asked what are you saying, why are you saying this me, following which petitioner became hysterical. Dr. Morgan then left. While they were attempting to console her, Dr. Morgan returned by knocking and coming in. His tone changed and soften, became more normal and he said he only wanted to give her her evaluation which was was very good.

Dr. Bogan indicated that when Dr. Morgan came into Ms. Abrams office the forst time, he was loud, intimidating, threatening and trying to get control. His face was in petitioner's face and his finger was approximately three or four inches from her face. Petitioner lost control of the words she said and became hysterical, but she never reacted to Dr. Morgan in a belligerent or responsive mode. Thirty to forty-five minutes later, Ms. Mitchell, the school nurse, suggested that petitioner go to Pro Health because of her condition. He indicated that the principal absolutely never gives a year end evaluation.

On cross-examination, Dr. Bogan indicated that Dr. Morgan is a pugnacious individual. He is tall and imposing, and when he is angry the volume of his voice increases in intensity. He indicated that petitioner did not act in any insubordinate way.

Dr. Bogan also testified to a January 25, 1994 meeting. On that occasion, Dr. Morgan wanted to know where petitioner was and petitioner looked at Dr. Bogan and answered the question. Dr. Morgan then interrupted her in a nasty, hostile and vicious way, and said "Ms. Dorfman, I am the principal, look at me when you answer the question." He demeanor on that occasion was angry and threatening.

Jean Mitchell testified that she is a school nurse a Neptune High School. On April 13, 1994, she was called to Joyce Abrams office and petitioner and Joyce Abrams were present. Petitioner was visibly and extremely upset, was crying, and was shaking and bent over. She talked to petitioner and took her blood pressure. As a result of her examination, petitioner's blood pressure was 140 over 90. Petitioner advised her that her normal blood pressure was 110 over 70. Thus, there was a significant difference. In addition she was suffering from a headache, queasiness, nausea and tremor in her arms and legs. After she was in the office, Dr. Morgan came in and spoke again to petitioner. As a result, petitioner cried more and harder.

Ms. Mitchell identified an Accident Investigation Report that she prepared and was typed by a secretary (P-4). She felt that petitioner should go to Pro Health because of her elevated blood pressure, headache, queasiness, nausea, tremors and symptoms of anxiety. Petitioner was not physically capable of driving because of her condition.

The attorneys for the respective parties submitted into evidence the reports of certain medical experts. Petitioner supplied the report of Edward Dengrove, M.D, dated November 21, 1995 (P-5). Dr. Dengrove concluded that petitioner suffers from an anxiety reaction with features of depression resulting from the trauma of the harassment and the back and neck injuries. He expressed the opinion that petitioner is partially disabled due to this neuropsychiatric condition resulting from the above harassment and physical complaints.

Respondent submitted the report of Morris Reby, M.D., dated March 26, 1996 (R-8). Dr. Reby indicated that the crux of the matter lies in the fact that petitioner was hypersensitive to Dr. Morgan's request and felt threaten when he requested that she come into his office without a union representative. After a brief discussion, a shouting match ensued and petitioner ultimately wound-up with the school physician who diagnosed acute anxiety disorder and told her to take a couple of days off, which petitioner did. Petitioner also, very wisely, saw the benefits of defusing the situation in this manner and at the same time she went about doing things to reduce her own anxieties. Dr. Reby notes that Dr. Crawford prescribed no medications. Dr. Reby opined that this situation was a display of emotions which certainly was not an accident, but a clash of personalities. He indicated that these sick days served to reduce the tensions and at the same time petitioner was able to reduce her anxieties. He indicated that he does not consider the days off as compensation days because this was a conflict of personalities.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 provides additional sick leave beyond annual and accumulated sick leave for employees who are absent from work as a result of a personal injury caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of their employment. In Theodore v. Dover Bd. of Ed., 183 N.J. Super. 407, 415 (App. Div. 1982), it was held that the phrase "accident arising out of or in the course of his employment" as used in N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 is intended to have the same meaning as it does in the context of the Worker's Compensation Act. The issue whether petitioner suffered an "accident" within the meaning of the statute appears not to be disputed. The term "accident" has traditionally been construed to include all work-related episodes and events resulting in injury and all unexpected injuries, whether or not unusual strain or exertion was involved and whether or not there was a direct impact. Theodore, supra. However, it must also be established that the injury arose out of or in the course of employment and was caused by the work-related episode. See, Porter v. Elizabeth Bd. of Educ., 281 N.J. Super. 13, 18-19 (App. Div. 1995). Respondent argues that petitioner's injury was caused by and resulted from her own hypersensitivity and, therefore, did not arise out of or in the course of her employment.

Before addressing the merits of the case, a preliminary and previously addressed issue must be dealt with. Respondent argues that in order for petitioner to be entitled to restoration of her sick leave, she must obtain a determination by the Division of Workers' Compensation that she suffered a compensable injury entitling her to workers' compensation benefits, citing Forgash v. Lower Camden County School, 208 N.J. Super. 461, 466-467 (App. Div. 1985). It points out that in that case the Appellate Division indicated that N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 contemplates a prior determination of a compensable injury by the workers' compensation court before consideration by the Commissioner of the eligibility of the injured employee for the additional benefits provided by the statute. Respondent also relies on Amos v. Bd. of Educ., Boro of Red Bank, State Board, Feb. 3, 1988; Tompkins v. Bd. of Ed. of Hamilton, 11 N.J.A.R. 520 (1987); and Verneret v. Bd. of Educ., City of Elizabeth, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 134, in support of its contention that the Commissioner should refrain from exercising its jurisdiction pending a determination by the Division of Workers' Compensation.

In support of her position, petitioner relies upon Hern v. Board of Education of the City of Union City, Hudson County, Superior Court, Appellate Division, Dkt. No. A-339-91T3, (decided Oct. 23, 1992). In that unreported decision, the Appellate Division held that where no claim has been filed for workers' compensation benefits and where such a claim would be dismissed if filed, there is no valid reason to require a petitioner to engage in the futile gesture of pursuing a workers' compensation claim. The Appellate Division held that in such a case, the Commissioner has original exclusive jurisdiction to decide a sick leave claim under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1.

In the Order Granting Partial Summary Decision in this matter, I reviewed both the Forgash case and the Hern case, and I indicated that when the Appellate Division decided Forgash, its concern was to harmonize N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 and the Worker's Compensation Act so as to avoid any conflict in their implementation. In circumstances where a workers' compensation claim has not been filed, the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 are not suspended, but remain in full force and effect and give certain rights to any employees of a school district. Where an employee has not filed a worker's compensation claim but seeks to assert rights under this statutory provision, and a dispute arises as to whether the employee's absence is the result of a personal injury caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of his or her employment, this issue clearly must be decided by the Commissioner of Education. It was on that basis that I concluded that the Commissioner has jurisdiction to hear and decide this issue. I do not intend to revisit that issue at this point in the case Petitioner seeks to have the two days absence charged not against her sick leave, but as and in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. In support of her position, she relies upon the report of respondent's authorized treating physician dated April 13, 1994 (P-1) having a diagnosis of anxiety disorder, a treatment of avoidance of precipitating events, and a return to work date of April 18, 1994. In addition, petitioner relies upon respondent's Accident Investigation Report (P-4), which was prepared by the school nurse, indicating that on April 13, 1994, petitioner became emotionally distraught and was crying after having been summoned to the principal's office from her duty and being given no reason for the meeting. This report indicates that petitioner experienced elevated blood pressure, headache, nausea and nervousness, and tremors of arms and legs. Finally, petitioner relies on the report of a medical expert, Edward Dengrove, M.D, dated November 21, 1995 (P-5). Dr. Dengrove concluded that petitioner suffers from an anxiety reaction with features of depression resulting from the trauma of the harassment and the back and neck injuries. Dr. Dengrove expressed the opinion that petitioner is partially disabled due to this neuropsychiatric condition resulting from the above harassment and physical complaints.

Respondent argues that petitioner's anxiety was purely personal to her and arose from her own hypersensitivity, citing the report of Dr. Reby (R-8). It points out that petitioner's own actions in returning to the Superintendent's office for a meeting on the same day as the incident, and her teaching exercise classes at Monmouth College on that same day and for the two days she was on sick leave reinforce the conclusion that her anxiety was purely personal and not the result of her employment.

I FIND that the report of Dr. Dengrove, which was accepted into evidence without objection, is the opinion of a medical expert, and expresses the opinion that petitioner's illness of an anxiety reaction with features of depression resulted from the trauma of the principal's harassment of petitioner. I FIND that petitioner's employment was, at the very least, a contributing cause of the injury. See, Coleman v. Cycle Transformer Corp., 105 N.J. 285, 290

(1986). I FIND that the April 13, 1994 report of Dr. Crawford, the school physician (P-1), who was the authorized to treat petitioner and did so, diagnosed petitioner as having an anxiety disorder, and recommended a treatment of avoidance of precipitating events. This report recommended a return to work date of April 18, 1994. I FIND that these two reports raise the clear inference that petitioner's anxiety reaction or disorder was caused by the incident on April 13, 1994, involving Dr. Morgan.

I specifically reject the argument of respondent that petitioner's anxiety was purely personal to her and arose from her own hypersensitivity. It was not disputed that Dr. Morgan engaged in a prior series of incidents which led to petitioner's anxiety when she was asked to report to his office on April 13, 1994. Neither was it disputed that Dr. Morgan impliedly threatened petitioner with discipline if she did not come into his office alone without any association representative. Finally, it would be beyond logic and human experience to conclude that petitioner did not suffer an anxiety disorder or reaction when her building principal, a 6 foot 5 inch tall 300-pound man, stood over her three or four inches away from her face, screaming at her. It would require a person of monumental insensitivity not to be affected by such bizarre and intimidating behavior directed toward him or her.

Based upon the report of Dr. Crawford who was petitioner's treating physician, and the report of Dr. Dengrove, I FIND that it was Dr. Morgan's bullying, outrageous, discourteous and unprofessional conduct which caused the anxiety reaction of petitioner requiring her to be out of work for two days. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the two days absences on April 14 and 15, 1994, were the result of personal injuries caused by accidents arising out of and in the course of petitioner's employment, and that the two days absences on April 14 and 15, 1994, charged to petitioner's sick leave, should be restored to petitioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based on the foregoing conclusion that the absences were the result of personal injuries caused by accidents arising out of and in the course of petitioner's employment, it is hereby ORDERED that the two days absences on April 14 and 15, 1994, charged to petitioner's sick leave, shall be restored to petitioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NEPTUNE, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter, including transcripts of the proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the initial decision of the OAL have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were timely filed pursuant N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.*

Respondent contends that the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) determination in this matter is incorrect in that pursuant to Forgash, supra, a prior determination of a compensable injury by the Workers' Compensation Court is required before the Commissioner can determine if an employee is eligible for the additional benefits provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 (Exceptions at p. 3) Respondent objects to the ALJ's reliance upon Hern, supra, an unpublished Appellate Division decision contrary to the holding in a public opinion, Forgash, in reaching his decision. Respondent notes that the language of New Jersey Court Rule 1:36-3 says that "no unpublished opinion shall constitute precedent or be binding upon any court." (Exceptions at p. 4) Further, respondent avers that to follow the unpublished Hern opinion would result in the Commissioner conducting a workers' compensation hearing complete with medical documentation and testimony. Such a result, he avers, would be contrary to the specific language of the Appellate Division in Forgash, which held that a proceeding pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 "may not be supplant to (sic) the function of the Compensation Court." (Exceptions at p. 4)

* Reply Exceptions were filed beyond the prescribed timeframe set forth in regulation and are, therefore, not considered herein.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the conclusions of the ALJ, specifically, the Commissioner finds it appropriate, in this circumstance, to be guided by the Appellate Division's reasoning in Hern, supra, which would not require petitioner to file a workers' compensation claim wherein that claim, on the basis of the length of sick leave involved, would clearly be dismissed. To do so, as noted in Hern, would force petitioner to engage in the futile gesture of pursuing a workers' compensation claim that would not satisfy the minimum seven-day waiting period required by N.J.S.A. 34:15-14. Consequently, the Commissioner agrees that, based on the circumstances herein, he has exclusive jurisdiction to decide the sick leave claim under N.J.S.A. 18:30-2.1.

In response to respondent's objections to the Commissioner's use of Hern, supra, the Commissioner notes that, where the Appellate Division has offered guidance on a particular issue, the Commissioner will not ignore such guidance, notwithstanding that it may be found in an unpublished decision.

Lastly, the Commissioner adopts the ALJ's finding that petitioner's two days of absence, on April 14 and 15, 1994, charged to petitioner's sick leave, should be restored to petitioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 based on the totality of this record.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, as amplified above, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL, ordering restoration of petitioner's sick leave.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WALL, MONMOUTH COUNTY,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner challenged the grade received by E.D. on a research paper. Board had agreed with E.D.'s teacher that he had plagiarized and, thus, deserved a low grade on his paper. Petitioner contended Board's action was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable.

ALJ found that petitioner did not prove by a preponderance of credible evidence that the Board's action was improper. A board of education has broad discretionary authority and its actions are presumed to be lawful and in good faith unless petitioner proves otherwise. ALJ dismissed petition, finding that E.D.'s plagiarism was not of such severity that it required a zero, but that after revision, the Board was not unreasonable in giving him a 55. Moreover, the grade of a classified student was not relevant to E.D.'s claim.

Having reviewed the Board's policies and established definitions regarding plagiarism and the appropriate crediting of encyclopedias for research reports, the Commissioner adopted the findings and determination of the ALJ as his own.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WALL,

Respondent.

Record Closed: February 13, 1997 Decided: March 4, 1997

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner E.D., a student in the high school operated by the Wall Township Board of Education (BOE), submitted a research paper and his teacher determined that, contrary to her instruction, he failed to credit sources for information in the paper. That is, the teacher determined that E.D. had plagiarized and she gave him a low grade on the paper. The BOE considered the matter and agreed with the teacher.

E.D. denies that he plagiarized; he contends that the BOE's actions were arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable; and he demands that the grade be raised.

The BOE submits that E.D. did plagiarize; that E.D. has not proven that the BOE acted unlawfully, etc.; and that E.D.'s claim must be dismissed.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The BOE (as detailed below) considered and affirmed the determination of its teacher and Curriculum Committee. On August 9, 1996, the petition was filed and, on August 29, 1996, the answer was filed with the New Jersey Department of Education's Bureau of Controversies and Disputes. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The Bureau transmitted the papers to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where, on September 19, 1996, the matter was filed as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). On November 18, 1996, the case was the subject of a telephone conference. On January 13 and 21, 1997, the case was heard in the OAL Trenton (Hamilton Township). Thereafter, I invited memoranda relative to the relevance of another student's grade on the research paper, and the record was closed with receipt of the last memorandum.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Consistent with the usual practice, at the start of the 1995-96 school year, copies of the BOE's high school's rules were distributed to all students; the rules were discussed by school officials and the students; and the students were instructed to take the rules home to their parents. For the 1995-96 school year, the rules stated, under the section heading "CHEATING," "Any student found cheating will be disciplined as follows: Zero grade, Parent Notified, incident recorded. Plagiarism, depending upon its severity, will result in a grade ranging from 0-65." R-7.

During the 1995-96 school year, in the BOE's high school, Robin Knutelsky, who was appropriately educated and certified, taught "College English." E.D., a sophomore, was one of about twenty-five students in Mrs. Knutelsky's class. The overall grade for Mrs. Knutelsky's class was determined as follows: 33% for classroom performance and quizzes; 67% for five major assignments.

In early January 1996, Mrs. Knutelsky instructed her students that they were required to write and submit research papers comparing Shakespeare's Macbeth to a historical figure; the historical figure would be chosen from a list provided by Mrs. Knutelsky; and the paper's theme would be a version of Lord Acton's principle "Power tends to corrupt and absolute power corrupts absolutely." P-1. From the list E.D. chose Nikita Khrushchev. Mrs. Knutelsky read about the people chosen by her students and she helped them select "outside sources" (reference materials) for their papers. Mrs. Knutelsky provided to each student a book entitled Writing Research Papers and a two-page document entitled "Research Paper, College English III, Requirements." P-2; R-4.

Writing Research Papers stated:

> Avoiding Plagiarism
>
> One of the purposes of using a Working Bibliography and note cards is to help you avoid plagiarism. Plagiarism is the act of intentionally or unintentionally treating work done by someone else as though it were your own. In most schools, including high schools and universities, plagiarism is considered a serious offense and can result in severe penalties such as failing grades, loss of course credit, or even expulsion.
>
> Given the seriousness of plagiarism, it is important to know exactly what it is and what you can do to avoid it. Here is a simple test to determine whether something is plagiarized: Ask yourself, Is this information, idea, or statement common knowledge? If the answer is no, then ask yourself, Did this information, idea, or statement come from a source outside myself, or did it come from my own experience or as a result of my own creative activity? If the information, idea, or statement is not common knowledge, and if it came from an outside source, then you must credit that source. Failure to do so constitutes plagiarism.

The last two sentences quoted above were restated in the margin on the same page. Id. at 40. The forms for credit of outside sources included a credit for "An article in an encyclopedia or other alphabetically organized reference work." Id. at 88.

Mrs. Knutelsky's "Research Paper, College English III, Requirements" stated, "Any form of plagiarism will result in a zero for a grade for the paper." R-4.

In class, Mrs. Knutelsky reviewed Writing Research Papers and she instructed her students that its instructions and forms for credit of outside sources should be followed in the preparation of their papers. Mrs. Knutelsky explained to her students that "common knowledge" (which would not require such credit) was information known to the "average person." Mrs. Knutelsky discussed with her students how to credit an encyclopedia (although she instructed them that only one encyclopedia should be used and it should not be a primary reference source.) P-2. To assure that her students were familiar with Writing Research Papers, Mrs. Knutelsky gave a quiz on it.

E.D. testified that Mrs. Knutelsky instructed her students that information from an encyclopedia would be considered "common knowledge" which did not need to be credited. However, E.D.'s testimony in that regard conflicts with the clear directions set forth in Writing Research Papers and was contradicted by Mrs. Knutelsky's testimony. Ibid. The credibility of testimony depends upon the demeanor of a witness, but also must be logical and consistent with all other credible evidence. Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546, 554-55 (1954). I found incredible E.D.'s testimony that Mrs. Knutelsky instructed her students not to credit an encyclopedia.

Mrs. Knutelsky instructed her students that they could submit drafts of their papers for her review and advice, so that thereafter they could make corrections, etc., before the mid-February submission of the final version of the papers (which would be graded). E.D. did not take advantage of this opportunity, i.e., he submitted his paper without such a review.

E.D. titled his paper "The Corruption of Macbeth and Khruschev [sic] Through Absolute Power." In the first seven pages of the paper E.D. summarized the events in Macbeth, summarized events in Khrushchev's years as premier of the Soviet Union, explained "the downfall of Macbeth," and compared Macbeth's and Khrushchev's "rise to power, their maintainment of power and their fall from power." The eighth page of E.D.'s paper was a list of six "Works Cited" (which did not include an encyclopedia). The last four pages of E.D.'s paper consisted of an outline relating to Macbeth and Khrushchev in three parts, "I. Rise to Power"; "II. Maintaining Power"; and "III. Fall from Power." J-1.

E.D.'s paper included much information, but only when he used a quotation did he credit an outside source. J-1; P-2. In most instances, E.D. provided names, dates, places and events without attribution to publications. J-1. For example, E.D. wrote the following:

> Unlike Macbeth, who gains absolute power as king through murder and conspiracy, Khruschev chose to gain his political status through promises of a new era of Soviet prosperity. In fact, Khruschev publicly denounced the Macbeth-like executions and overall reign of terror of the Stalin era. Instead of trying to gain power through fear and intimidation, Khruschev promised to place a new emphasis on Soviet industry and agriculture. This new emphasis on industry and a renewed interest in consumer goods, Khruschev boasted, would help the Soviet Union to become a more economically sound nation, a nation he believed could possibly surpass the U.S. economically by 1970.
> Unlike Macbeth, Khruschev had a positive influence and began his quest to maintain power over the Soviet Union, by trying to deliver on some of the promises he made. His emphasis on the poor and middle class factions of the Soviet Union could be felt in the many programs he tried to start at the beginning of his power. One particularly important program was a house-building program which provided decent affordable housing for the poor. Another promise he tried to deliver on, was his promise of a new emphasis on Soviet agriculture and industry. Khruschev took major strides in the area of increasing agriculture, when in the late 50's, he had 70,000,000 acres of land in Siberia cleared for the sole purpose of growing wheat and grain. Khruschev was also interested in increasing trade between both Socialist and capitalist nations.
> Like Macbeth, Khruschev too encountered some difficulties in maintaining power. For example in June of 1957, Khruschev almost became the victim of an overthrow by the pro-Stalin members of the Communist party. They felt that Khruschev's denouncement of the Stalin era could also be viewed as a denouncement of the basic Communist principles, and the catalyst for the recent revolutions in Eastern European Communist nations, such as Poland and Hungary. Khruschev was able to keep his position through an appeal to the Communist Party Central Committee. Khruschev used this little uprising as an opportunity to dismiss anyone from power he considered an opponent or threat, similar to the way Macbeth eliminates anyone viewed as a possible problem or threat, similar to the way Macbeth eliminates anyone viewed as a possible problem through execution. The most important of these was Khruschev's dismissal of Georgy Zhukov from "Minister of Defense." Following the incident, Khruschev would attempt to strengthen his power over the Soviet Union, by appointing himself to the position of Soviet Premier.

As Soviet Premier, Khruschev had taken the final step in achieving absolute power. Now he had enough power in the Soviet government to uphold his own personal agenda without opposition. This though is where absolute power, began to corrupt Khruschev. He was no longer concerned with upholding his promises of creating a superior Soviet Union, but was now more interested in living out his own personal fantasy of creating the most powerful array of nuclear weaponry in the world. Instead of capitalizing on the recent achievements of the Soviet Space program, Sputnik, and fostering its growth and development, Khruschev used Sputnik only as a means "to create the illusion that the Soviets had the power to dominate the world" (Beschloss, 381).

Probably the biggest mistake Khruschev made while in power was his decision to further Russian involvement in revolutionary Cuba. Khruschev's interest in Cuba was two-fold. On the surface, it seemed that he would use Cuba merely as a means of creating a strong Communist ally in Central America and furthering the cause of Socialism. Khruschev's main agenda though, was to rid Cuba of U.S. efforts against the Communist revolution and to fulfill his own secret power fantasies of creating a bitter conflict between the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

With this the Cuban Missile Crisis began in 1962. As a means of attempting to eliminate U.S. involvement in Cuba, Khruschev began to deploy Soviet nuclear missiles in Cuba and threatened to send Soviet troops to fight along side the revolution. Kennedy took a strong stance against any nuclear armaments being installed less than 100 miles from the United States. In retaliation, he sent naval forces to the waters around Cuba and threatened to board Russian ships in order to stop the Soviet buildup. Khruschev finally had the classic power struggle with the U.S. he had so long > desired, but now the world was closer to a nuclear holocaust than ever before and Khruschev backed down in fear that he would have to go toe to toe with the U.S., revealing the inferiority of Soviet nuclear power.

> Like Macbeth, Khruschev's corrupt methods would eventually pave the way for his downfall. Overtime, it became apparent that Khruschev was unable to deliver on his promises in full, and had become more concerned with his own personal agenda, than the betterment of the Soviet Union. His own personal fantasy of creating the most powerful nuclear army in the world, lost him the support of the military, which favored more conventional means. He "exploited Soviet Space successes and local opportunities, like Cuba, to bolster his claims that the Soviet economy would surpass the United States by 1970" (Beschloss, 381). His hopeful ideas of improving the Soviet economy and the overall status of Soviet life in general, helped to gain him support, but it was just as easily lost when the members of the Communist Party saw he had not succeeded in following through. Another problem with Khruschev was his overwhelming hatred of the United States. Instead of trying to foster a good relationship between both nations, Khruschev looked to create a bitter rivalry between the two.
> Like Macbeth, Khruschev would ultimately be removed from power by people he once trusted and considered allies. Unbeknownst to him, his colleagues had been plotting his removal for months. Khruschev could not believe the people he considered friends were plotting against him. His colleagues believed that Khruschev's main problem was "that he was never able to fully drive out of his mind the fanatical idea that the ends justify the means" (Burlatsky, 275). Ultimately, Khruschev was stripped of all of his political power on October 14, 1964. In his last address to the Communist party, Khruschev admitted to some wrong doing, but he felt that if his colleagues had seen problems they should have told him instead of keeping their hypocritical silence.

The "average person" may be educated sufficiently to know some of the information E.D. included in his paper. However, it is highly improbable (and no evidence has been offered to show) that the "average person" would know much of the information E.D. recited in his paper, such as the following: "Khruschev boasted [that an emphasis on Soviet industry and an interest in consumer goods] would help the Soviet Union to become a more economically sound nation, a nation he believed could possibly surpass the U.S. economically by 1970." "[I]n June of 1957, Khruschev almost became the victim of an overthrow by the pro-Stalin members of the Communist party." Khruschev dismissed "Georgy Zhukov from 'Minister of Defense.'" "Khruschev was stripped of all of his political power on October 14, 1964." J-1. This information obviously came "from a source outside" of E.D. P-2 at 40. Consequently, pursuant to the clear directions set forth in Writing Research Papers, such a "source" (even an encyclopedia) should have been credited. P-2.

Given the above circumstances, E.D. had no realistic intent to pass off the information in his paper as his "own experience" or the result of his "own creative activity." P-2 at 40. E.D. just failed to follow the clear directions provided by Writing Research Papers and Mrs. Knutelsky, and he unintentionally failed to credit the outside sources from which he obtained the information. P-2; R-4. Nonetheless, this constituted a form of "plagiarism," as defined in Writing Research Papers, and subjected E.D. to a "zero for a grade." P-2; R-4.

On E.D.'s paper, Mrs. Knutelsky corrected grammatical errors and, in numerous places, she wrote in the margins comments such as "quote to back this up," "documentation," "documentation needed," and "quote?" J-1. On the paper's first page she wrote and circled "NG" (no grade) and "Turn in note cards please." To the back of E.D.'s paper she attached her "Research Paper Evaluation Sheet," an outline with space for comments and six criteria with possible percentages adding up to 100% for the grade of the paper. The criteria were: (1) Overview of Paper (20%); (2) Technical Parts, References (10%); (3) Technical Parts, Citations (10%); (4) Written Presentation (40%); (5) Research, Quality (10%); and (6) Research, Quantity (10%). On E.D.'s evaluation sheet, Mrs. Knutelsky entered comments for each of the criteria, but she did not total the percentages assessed for them. J-1a.

In late February, in class, Mrs. Knutelsky returned the papers to her students. Three students received "NG." Mrs. Knutelsky did not announce the names of students who received "NG," but she announced that "NG" resulted from plagiarism; she announced that, within twenty-four hours of receipt of the papers, any student with an "NG" notation should meet with her; and she announced that students with "NG" could revise and resubmit the paper for one-half the grade that would have been given in the absence of plagiarism. E.D. leaped from his seat, flashed his paper at Mrs. Knutelsky, and stated, "There's no grade on this paper." Mrs. Knutelsky repeatedly ordered E.D. to sit down, but he refused to do so. Instead, he pressed on, asking, "What did I get?" Mrs. Knutelsky looked quickly at the evaluation sheet attached to E.D.'s paper. Seeing no total, but seeing that for "Written Presentation" she had assessed 30% out of a possible 40%, she hastily (and mistakenly) estimated a total grade and said "90. Now sit down!" J-1a.

E.D. spoke to his parents about his paper's "NG" and M.D., his mother, contacted Mrs. Knutelsky and Thomas Winters, E.D.'s guidance counselor, and a conference with school officials was arranged.

In the meanwhile, Mrs. Knutelsky reviewed and made changes on the evaluation sheet attached to E.D.'s paper. She "whited-out" some extraneous comments. Relative to (3) Technical Parts, Citations, she partially whited-out the "5" initially entered, but the "5" was left readable. Relative to (5) Research, Quality, she whited-out the initial percentage entered (which could have been no higher than 10), so that the initial percentage was unreadable, and substituted an "8." Given these circumstances, initially, E.D.'s paper would have received the following percentages: (1) Overview of Paper (10%); (2) Technical Parts, References (8%); (3) Technical Parts, Citations (5%); (4) Written Presentation (30%); (5) Research, Quality, as high as 10%; and (6) Research, Quantity (8%), for a total grade as high as 71. J-1a. With (5) Research, Quality, changed to "8%," the total grade is 69. Complicating things further, on the evaluation sheet Mrs. Knutelsky had initially entered "69" as the total grade, but she whited-out that grade and, over it, entered "70" as the total grade. (From the paper's other side, "69" is readable.) J-1a.

The day after the return of the papers, after class, Mrs. Knutelsky stated to E.D. that she had "goofed" and that his grade on the paper was really a "70" and not a "90." E.D. told her that he did not want to talk further about the matter without his parents present and the conversation ended.

A few days after the return of the paper, the conference was convened with E.D., M.D., Mrs. Knutelsky, and Joanne Cherefko, the high school principal, attending. Seeing the white-outs, substituted percentages, etc., on the "Research Paper Evaluation Sheet," M.D. suspected that Mrs. Knutelsky had wrongfully reduced E.D.'s grade from the "90" mentioned in class to the "70" then appearing. J-1a. The conference was then aborted.

A few days after the aborted conference, M.D. spoke with Mr. Winters and Ms. Cherefko and they advised her (M.D.) that E.D. could revise and resubmit his paper and attain a grade as high as 55.

In March 1996, J.D., E.D.'s father, and M.D. met with Eileen J. Smith-Stevens, Ed.D., superintendent of the BOE's school system. M.D. submitted to the school system an essay entitled "In Defense of [E.]," wherein she set forth contentions such as the following: E.D.'s descriptions of Khrushchev's actions were "factual statements . . . available in encyclopedias and other books on Khrushchev," and, consequently, "[d]ocumentation is optional" and there was "no evidence of plagiarism in his paper." P-4.

By letter dated March 18, 1996, Dr. Smith-Stevens notified J.D. and M.D. of the following: Dr. Smith-Stevens and several English and social studies teachers in the school system reviewed the research paper requirements and E.D.'s paper. Dr. Smith-Stevens determined that the research paper requirements were clear and the teachers independently determined that in E.D.'s discussion of Khrushchev's actions, citations were necessary. E.D. would be permitted to rewrite his paper, inserting the citations, and, if he did so within one week of receipt of the letter, he could receive a "55 rather than the zero called for in [the BOE's] policy." E.D. would be permitted to transfer to another English class (for the balance of the 1995-96 school year). R-1.

Consistent with Dr. Smith-Stevens's letter, E.D. revised and resubmitted his paper. Mrs. Knutelsky reviewed it and, relative to information in the paper about Khrushchev, (again) requested credit from outside sources. J.D. and M.D. then forwarded to Dr. Smith-Stevens their letter dated March 25, 1996, with attached copies of articles from encyclopedias, etc., in support of their contention that information appearing in encyclopedia entries is "common knowledge" which need not be credited. P-3. Mrs. Knutelsky rejected J.D.'s and M.D.'s contentions; E.D. revised and resubmitted his paper; and, ultimately, Mrs. Knutelsky gave E.D.'s paper a 55 (the highest grade possible within the guidelines set by Dr. Smith-Stevens's March 18, 1996 letter). R-12. (The two other students who initially received "NG" on their papers also revised and resubmitted their papers. One received a 55 and the other, a classified student, because Mrs. Knutelsky believed that his individualized education program (IEP) required "accommodation," received a 78. See in this regard N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.8, -3.5, -3.6, -4.8.)

J.D. and M.D. remained dissatisfied and, by letter dated April 25, 1996, they appealed to Jack Hahn, secretary of the BOE, for a hearing before the BOE on issues including the following: "The academic question of plagiarism, the reversal of grades, the lack of due process in public schools, and a teacher's arbitrary and capricious grading." They also represented that, if no hearing was granted, they might file a petition with the Commissioner of the Department of Education. P-6.

By letter dated June 10, 1996, the BOE's attorney notified J.D. and M.D. of the following: On June 18, 1996, the BOE's Curriculum Committee would meet to consider their request to the BOE. The Curriculum Committee would forward to the BOE a report on the matter. The BOE could then "affirm the administration's decision, reverse the decision, [or] ask for additional information," etc. R-3.

By letter dated June 12, 1996, J.D. and M.D. wrote to Patricia Smith, then president of the BOE, and reiterated their contentions. They wrote, e.g., "In our educational experiences as a teacher and lawyer, information contained in encyclopedias is common knowledge and unless copied verbatim reference to that information does not constitute plagiarism." P-5.

After receipt of the Curriculum Committee's report, the BOE affirmed the 55 grade.

Mrs. Knutelsky recorded the 55 grade for E.D.'s paper and E.D. received a passing grade for the class.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

A board of education has broad discretionary authority and its actions are presumed to be lawful and in good faith. Schinck v. Westwood Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 448 (App. Div. 1960); Quinlan v. North Bergen Bd. of Educ., 73 N.J. Super. 40, 46 (App. Div. 1962).

Consistent with the above principles, an action of a board of education which is within its discretionary power will not be upset unless the person challenging that action proves that it was arbitrary, without rational basis and/or the result of wrongful motive. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960).

The determination of the grade for a student in a board of education's school system is action within the board's discretion, and a student challenging that grade bears the burden of proof, by the preponderance (greater weight) of the competent and credible evidence, that such action was arbitrary, capricious and/or unreasonable. J.M. v. Hunterdon Cent. Regional High Sch. Dist., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 415.

The facts here are summarized as follows: The school system notified its students, including E.D., that "Plagiarism, depending upon its severity, [would] result in a grade ranging from 0-65." R-7. E.D.'s teacher notified her class, including E.D., that "Any form of plagiarism [would] result in a zero for a grade for the paper" they were to submit. R-4. By way of Writing Research Papers and classroom instruction, E.D.'s teacher instructed her class, including E.D., that "If the information, idea, or statement [in a research paper] is not common knowledge, and if it came from an outside source, then you must credit that source. Failure to do so constitutes plagiarism" and that an encyclopedia was such an "outside source," for which a form for credit was provided. P-2 at 40, 88. Much of the information recited in E.D.'s paper came "from a source outside" of him, but contrary to the above instructions, he failed to credit its sources. P-2. E.D.'s failure to credit was obvious, and E.D. had no realistic intent to pass off the information as his "own experience" or the result of his "own creative activity." P-2. E.D. just failed to follow instructions. However, the school system has a duty to instruct its students that "plagiarism is considered a serious offense," even if unintentional. P-2 at 39. Therefore, while E.D.'s plagiarism was not of such severity that it required a zero, and while he was rightfully allowed an opportunity to revise and resubmit his paper, the BOE has not been proven unreasonable, etc., in its determination that his grade should be 55.

A classified student who also was determined to have engaged in plagiarism was allowed to revise and resubmit his paper and was allowed a 78 grade, and E.D., who is not classified, contends that (if it is concluded that he engaged in plagiarism) he should also receive a 78. (If E.D. succeeds in this contention, reasonably, the grade of the third student who engaged in plagiarism, who was not classified, who revised his paper and received a 55, would also have to be raised to 78.)

The raising of the classified student's grade to a 78 may have been the result of proper application of his IEP – in which case E.D. and the classified student would not be similarly situated, and E.D. has cited no law requiring that, in such circumstances, his grade should be raised above what it otherwise should be. The raising of the classified student's grade may also have been the result of mistaken application of his IEP – in which case also the mistake would not justify the raising of E.D.'s grade above what it otherwise should be. I do not see that the classified student's grade is relevant to E.D.'s claim.

ORDER

Consistent with the above, I DISMISS WITH PREJUDICE E.D.'s petition and claims.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.		COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WALL, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter, including transcripts of the proceedings, and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner contests that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) had a preconceived notion from the outset of the instant case as to how this matter would end in that he denied petitioner the opportunity to present an expert to testify that the statements in E.D.'s paper represented common knowledge statements about Khrushchev. (Exceptions at p. 1) She asserts that the average person cannot be a reliable guide for judging plagiarism since

> [t]he average man on the street probably does not know who the current Secretary of Defense or Secretary of State is, and yet, this information is common, public knowledge. (Id.)

Petitioner then recasts the argument, previously presented before the ALJ, that most of the information contained in encyclopedias and in several reference books represents common or general information about a topic and, thus, information taken therefrom does not constitute plagiarism. (Id.)

Petitioner also asserts that the ALJ misunderstood the difference between a Works Cited page and a Bibliography, noting only the former was required by E.D. and his classmates, in that a Works Cited page would not require all information obtained in research. (Exceptions at p. 2)

Petitioner next avers that in his finding of facts, the ALJ glossed over the teacher's mistakes which she reiterates in detail. (Id. at pp. 3-4) In that these arguments were fully and fairly considered before the ALJ, they will not be presented herein.

Lastly, petitioner cites concerns over the grade boost given to student K.B, one of the other two students that failed to correctly cite information in the research paper, granted because K.B. was classified. (Id. at p. 4) Petitioner alleges this boost was wrongful since the teacher did not know what K.B.'s classification was, nor did she consult the student's individualized education plan (IEP) before giving him a grade boost. Without the presentation of an IEP to the Judge, petitioner queries as to how the teacher can be certain an IEP exists and, if so, whether it requires a grade boost. If it does not call for a grade boost, petitioner asserts, the teacher acted arbitrarily and capriciously. Moreover, she contends, the same grade boost should have been given to both K.M. and E.D. in the interest of fundamental fairness. (Id. at p. 4)

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner affirms the determination of the ALJ finding that neither the teacher, nor the Board, acted in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner in reviewing this matter. In so ruling, it must be noted that petitioner's contentions regarding the validity of the substantive content of the teacher's instructions to E.D. and the other students regarding citations on the subject term paper do not reach to the issue on review herein. Rather, the Commissioner's focus is upon the propriety of the Board's review of this matter within the context of the District's (and the teacher's) established definitions and policies regarding plagiarism and appropriate crediting of encyclopedias for research reports. * Consequently, the Commissioner finds no impropriety with regard to the grade given to E.D. and further agrees with the ALJ that the handling of K.B.'s grade is irrelevant hereto.

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL and dismisses the instant Petition of Appeal.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* Petitioner's remedy on this issue, if she believes the District's views to be in error or not consistent with the currently prevailing parameters for the crediting of research materials, is to work through the Board in order to effectuate appropriate policy and curricular changes.

NATURE OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Grace Caravello Dobson (Dobson) filed a petition with the State Department of Education (Department) on May 31, 1996, seeking refund of a payment made to the Town of Montclair Board of Education (respondent). Respondent filed an answer on June 27, 1996. The Department transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on July 9, 1996 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Thirteen other petitions, all seeking the same relief, were also filed with the Department. The Department transmitted all those matters to the OAL, and all the cases, including the matter pertaining to Dobson, were consolidated.

An in-person conference was conducted, and subsequent to additional communications, the cases were placed on the inactive list, pending the issuance of a decision by the State Board of Education (State Board) in the case of Herron v. Montclair Bd. of Educ. (OAL Dkt. No. 7286-94) (Herron).

Petitioners, including Dobson, contested the authority of respondent to charge tuition for a pre-school program offered during the 1994-95 academic year. Petitioners had paid the tuition and requested that the Commissioner of the Department (Commissioner) order refunds. On December 4, 1996, the State Board issued a decision in the Herron case, affirming a decision of the Commissioner that respondent was not authorized to charge tuition and rejecting a request by respondent that such ruling be given prospective application only.

By letter dated January 8, 1997, respondent's counsel advised this judge that, on approximately December 23, 1996, respondent sent checks to all petitioners, giving refunds in the full amounts. Counsel requested that all pending matters be withdrawn or dismissed with prejudice as moot.

By letter dated December 19, 1996, this judge advised petitioners, including Dobson, that the parties could file executed stipulations of settlement, which would be addressed in initial decisions, or letters withdrawing their petitions.

Most of the petitioners subsequently filed withdrawal letters. Subsequent to additional communications with the other parties, this judge, by letter dated February 19, 1997, communicated with several petitioners, including Dobson, advising that if written responses were not received within seven days, I would issue decisions dismissing the petitions. All of the remaining petitioners, except Dobson, thereafter filed withdrawal letters. No communications were received from Dobson pertinent to the February 19, 1997 letter, and the record pertinent to her case is deemed to be closed February 26, 1997.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Dobson does not dispute that respondent issued a refund to her of the tuition in question. Her petition is therefore moot. In addition, even if not moot, she has, at this point, failed to prosecute the matter, apparently, without good cause. I am therefore persuaded that her petition should be dismissed with prejudice.

I hereby CONCLUDE, and so ORDER, that the petition filed by Dobson with the Department on May 31, 1996 be and is hereby DISMISSED with prejudice.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Petitioning Association contested Board's determination to recoup staff overpayments.

Citing Sklute, the ALJ concluded that inasmuch as petitioners herein were not tenured, the Board's recoupment of its overpayments did not reduce any compensation protected by the tenure laws and, as such, was entirely appropriate. ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision and dismissed the petition.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Buena Regional Supportive Staff Association (Association)contests the determination by the Board of Education of the Borough of Buena (Board) to recoup overpayments erroneously made by it to certain of its staff members. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held on October 31, 1996, at, which. among other things, the parties agreed to cross-move for Summary Decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5.

ISSUE

The sole issue for determination by this tribunal is whether the Board may recoup monies erroneously paid to staff members?

STIPULATION OF FACTS

The parties stipulate to the following:

1. Respondent Board is a regional school district comprised of the Borough of Buena and Buena Vista Township in Atlantic County.

2. Several employees of the Board were overpaid as follows:

Carol Valenti - Part-time Kindergarten assistant	$55.10
Maureen Rakoci - Part-time Kindergarten assistant	$56.21
Victoria Bell - Part-time Kindergarten assistant	$48.78
Judy Torres - Cafeteria	$37.12
Maryann Rada - Cafeteria	$55.68
Edna Mallory - Custodian	$149.81
Rosemary Lisi - Part-time Kindergarten assistant	$106.89
Pearl Mattei - Part time Kindergarten assistant	$33.44
Rosa Francheschi - Playground assistant	$14.56
Margie Roskens-DeSantis - Cafeteria	$45.81
Maryanne Banta - Cafeteria	$51.98
Juan Andujar - Security	$294.06
Lisa Scarani - Part-time Kindergarten assistant	$80.88
Willa Goode- Part-time Kindergarten assistant	$49.49
Susan Plummer - Part-time Kindergarten assistant	$21.32
Donna Perna - Ten-month secretary	$231.00
Gary Molnar - Custodian	$397.72

3. The overpaid employees are members of the Association. This organization is the petitioner in this matter.

4. The overpayments commenced on or about December 22, 1995, when retroactive pay was distributed to the Supportive Staff employees. It continued for three regular payroll distributions, until February 2, 1996.

5. After realizing its mistake, the Board drafted a memorandum informing the employees of the overpayment and giving them a choice as to how it should be refunded. This memorandum was distributed on or around February 27, 1996.

6. Petitioner filed this petition of appeal on May 24, 1996.

7. The Board has recouped the overpayments through voluntary and involuntary salary adjustments.

8. None of the overpaid employees have tenure status with respect to their employment with the Board.

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

The Board's Position

STATEMENT OF FACTS & PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Respondent Buena Regional School District (Board) is a regional school district comprised of the Borough of Buena and Buena Vista Township in Atlantic County. Beginning on or about December 22, 1995, several Support Staff employees of the Board were mistakenly overpaid. None of the overpaid employees have tenure status with respect to their employment with the Board. The overpayments continued for approximately three payroll periods, ending on February 2, 1996.

Upon realizing its mistake, the Board drafted and distributed a memorandum informing the overpaid employees of the mistake, and giving them a choice as to how the money should be refunded. Several of the employees voluntarily agreed to return the overpaid funds to the Board.

As of this date, the Board has recouped all overpayments through voluntary and involuntary salary adjustments. See, Stipulation of Facts.

The overpaid employees are members of the Buena Regional Supportive Staff Association (Association). On May 24, 1996, a Petition of Appeal was filed by the Association on behalf of the overpaid employees, seeking to have these funds, originally paid to those employees by mistake, paid back to them.

On or about July 11, 1996, the Board filed an Answer to the Petition which admitted that overpayments had been made, but denied that the affected employees had any legal right to retain public moneys erroneously paid to them. A pre-hearing conference was held before the Honorable Lillard E. Law, A.L.J., at which time the parties agreed that the matter would be submitted for determination with a Stipulation of Facts and cross-motions for summary decision.

LEGAL ARGUMENT

Point I

SUMMARY JUDGMENT IS AN APPROPRIATE REMEDY WHERE NO GENUINE ISSUE EXISTS WITH RESPECT TO A MATERIAL FACT CHALLENGED

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, a summary decision may be rendered if "the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law". N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) (1990). Thus, in order to survive a motion for summary decision, the opposing party must set forth specific facts indicating that a genuine issue of material fact exists, which can only be resolved through an evidentiary hearing. Id. In this case, the parties have stipulated to the facts and agreed to present the matter for determination on cross-motion for summary decision. Based upon the uncontested and stipulated facts, there exists no genuine issue of material fact that the Board's employees in question are not entitled to the overpaid funds. Therefore respondent is entitled to summary decision in its favor, and a dismissal of all claims made by petitioner in this matter.

Point II

THE MONIES PAID TO THE BOARD'S EMPLOYEES WERE PUBLIC FUNDS TO WHICH THE EMPLOYEES HAVE NO LEGAL CLAIM AND, AS SUCH, THE BOARD HAD NOT ONLY THE RIGHT BUT THE RESPONSIBILITY TO CORRECT ITS ERROR AND RECOUP THE OVERPAID FUNDS.

The issues giving rise to the instant petition were recently addressed by the Commissioner in Sklute v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 264 (1995). In Sklute, several employees challenged the school board's recoupment of overpaid salaries. although the employees were full-time tenured secretaries, they also worked part-time as non-tenured secretaries for the Adult Evening School. Id. at 265. The overpayments at issue were made specifically with regard to earnings for these part-time, non-tenured positions. In addition, the board recouped the overpaid funds from future earnings attributed to the same part-time employment positions. Id. The employees filed a petition with the Commissioner, claiming that recoupment was an impermissible reduction in their salary as tenured employees in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2, which prohibits a reduction in compensation for tenured employees.

In rendering an initial decision, the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") in Sklute stressed that both the overpayments and recoupments were made specifically with regard to earnings for the part-time, non-tenured positions. Sklute, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) at 266. Therefore, the ALJ held that the petitioner's reliance on N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 and related case law was misplaced since there was no reduction in tenured compensation. Id. (Emphasis added) The ALJ further concluded that the board's actions in recouping the erroneous payments were justified, stating:

> The general rule is that a payment of money under a mistake of fact may be recovered, provided that such recovery will not prejudice the payee. This rule is grounded upon considerations of equity and fair dealing. It is considered unjust enrichment to permit a recipient to retain money paid because of a mistake, unless the circumstances > are such that it would be inequitable to require its return. This is so notwithstanding that the mistake is unilateral and a consequence of the payor's negligence, or that the payee acted in good faith. Great American Ins. Co. v. Yellen, 58 N.J. Super. 240 (App. Div. 1959); Winslow, Cohu & Stetson, Inc. v. Skowronek, 136 N.J. Super. 97, 104 (Law Div. 1975). In the present matter, the monies paid by mistake were public monies to which petitioners had no lawful claim. Respondent had not only the right but the responsibility to correct its error and recoup the monies. Sklute, supra, at 266.

When the Sklute petition was presented to the Commissioner, he adopted the ALJ decision, holding that recoupment by the board was "entirely appropriate". Id. at 267.

The circumstances giving rise to the instant petition are virtually identical to those addressed by the commissioner in Sklute. Several Board employees were mistakenly overpaid in their salary. All of these employees are non-tenured. Upon realizing this mistake, the Board immediately notified the employees and thereafter recouped the overpaid funds through both voluntary and involuntary salary adjustments. As the Commissioner held in Sklute, the Board had not only the right but the responsibility to recoup the overpaid funds.

Moreover, all of the moneys have already been recouped by the Board. To require the Board to now return to these employees public funds to which they had no legal claim in the first place flies in the very face of the decision in Sklute. These employees have no right to take advantage of a mistake of fact at the expense of the School District and the taxpayers who support that district. Accordingly, the Board's actions in recouping these funds were "entirely appropriate" and this petition is completely without merit.

The employees in question had no legal claim to these mistakenly paid funds. The Board had an obligation to recover these funds, and acted within its authority when it recouped the money through voluntary and involuntary salary adjustments. Accordingly, the Board is entitled to summary judgment, dismissing the petition.

Point III

THOSE EMPLOYEES WHO AGREED TO VOLUNTARILY RETURN THE OVERPAYMENTS TO THE BOARD ARE ALSO PRECLUDED FROM NOW SEEKING REIMBURSEMENT OF THESE FUNDS, PURSUANT TO THE DOCTRINES OF WAIVER AND EQUITABLE ESTOPPEL.

In the instant petition, a number of the employees agreed to voluntarily return the overpaid funds to the Board. By their actions in voluntarily returning these moneys, these employees are also precluded from claiming any right to the overpaid funds at issue by the doctrines of waiver and equitable estoppel. Accordingly, these doctrines serve as additional legal bases to grant summary judgment in favor of the Board and against these particular employees.

Waiver has been defined by New Jersey courts as "the voluntary relinquishment of a known right evidenced by a clear, unequivocal and decisive act from which an intention to relinquish the right can be based". Country Chevrolet v. North Brunswick Planning Board, 190 N.J. Super. 376, 380 (App. Div. 1983). It is an election by a party to give up something of value or to forego some advantage which the party might have demanded or insisted upon. Although as set forth in Point II above none of the employees in this case had any legal right to retain the mistakenly paid funds, certainly those that voluntarily returned the funds upon being notified of the error should not now be allowed to complain. In agreeing to voluntarily return the overpayments to the Board, these employees waived their right to file this petition and their claims must be dismissed.

These same employees are also barred from seeking reimbursement of the funds by the doctrine of equitable estoppel. Equitable estoppel has been defined as:

> [t]he effect of the voluntary conduct of a party whereby he is absolutely precluded, both at law and in equity, from asserting rights which might perhaps have otherwise existed . . . as against > another person who has in good faith relied upon such conduct, and has been led thereby to change his position for the worse.

Carson v. Masters, Mates & Pilots Pension Plan Trust 90 N.J. 334 (1979). The doctrine is intended to prevent a party's disavowal of prior conduct if such repudiation would frustrate the demands of justice and good conscience. Id. at 339. Moreover, it is not necessary to show any fraudulent intent of the party to be estopped. Chrisomalis v. Chrisomalis, 260 N.J. Super. 50, 55 (App. Div. 1992). Rather, estoppel is properly invoked where "conduct, either express or implied, . . . reasonably misleads another to its prejudice so that a repudiation of such conduct would be unjust in the eyes of the law". Dambro v. Union City Park Commission, 130 N.J. Super. 450, 457 (Law Div. 1974).

The funds were returned to the school district voluntarily by these employees and have been utilized in accordance with the district's budget plans. As such, it would be unjust to allow these employees to now assert a claim to these funds when they have already voluntarily returned them. Accordingly, they are estopped from making this claim.

Pursuant to the doctrines of waiver and equitable estoppel, those employees who voluntarily returned the overpaid funds to the Board are precluded from now seeking reimbursement of this money. Respondent is therefore entitled to a summary decision, dismissing all claims asserted by those employees who voluntarily agreed to return the overpaid funds to the Board.

Point IV

NONE OF THESE EMPLOYEES SHOULD BE ALLOWED TO UNJUSTLY ENRICH THEMSELVES AT THE EXPENSE OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT.

In this case all of the funds paid were recouped through both voluntary and involuntary salary adjustments. As stated in Point II, supra, none of these employees have a valid legal claim to these funds. Those that chose to voluntarily return the funds certainly have no right to complain as demonstrated in Point III, supra. Those that did not voluntarily return the money, however, similarly have no right to complain. As our courts have recognized "(g)enerally, one who receives a benefit which it is unjust for him to retain ought to make restitution or pay the value of the benefit to the party entitled thereto." Flemming v. Ronson Corp., 107 N.J. Super. 311, 316 (Law Div. 1969) affirmed 114 N.J. Super. 221 (App. Div. 1971). To have allowed these employees to keep these mistakenly paid public funds would have unjustly enriched these employees at the expense of the taxpayers of the School District. These employees themselves had a legal obligation to return these funds. Therefore, their petition is completely without merit. The Board properly recouped these funds and none of the employees involved in this petition are entitled to any of these funds.

The facts in this case are virtually indistinguishable from the facts in Sklute v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 264 (1995). As the Commissioner held in that case the employees had no legal right to retain public funds mistakenly paid to them. The Board was not only entitled to recoup these funds but had a public obligation to do so. The petition filed on behalf of these employees is completely without merit. The Board is entitled as a matter of law to summary judgment. The petition must be dismissed.

The Association's Position

LEGAL ARGUMENT

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION SHOULD NOT BE ABLE TO RECOUP OVERPAYMENTS TO CONTRACTUAL EMPLOYEES FOR REGULAR SERVICE

In Trenton Education Association v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, 1986 S.L.D. 2415, 2436, The Board of Education was not able to recoup overpayments made to teachers since the recoupment would be considered to be a deduction compensation and violative of the tenure law, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. In Barbara Sklute, et al v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, Mercer County, 1995, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU 264) the Commissioner allowed the Respondent, Board of Education, to recoup overpayments to secretaries who were overpaid in an optional adult evening high school program or at their part-time evening position.

While the employees and petitioners herein are not tenured employees, they are under contract and the pay relates to their expected full-time employment as opposed to the secretaries in Sklute who were performing an extra job on a part-time evening basis. The Association, therefore, argues that the Sklute decision, supra., does not distinguish the Trenton, supra. case from the employees in the case at bar, rather Sklute stands for the proposition that employees when working a part-time job at another position not covered by contract are not protected by the Collective Bargaining contract provisions, nor the State law applicable to those positions and, therefore, not entitled to the protection of reduction in regular employment compensation.

The Supportive Staff personnel herein, having a right to rely upon the Board's calculation of regular salary, and receiving a deminimus overpayment, should not be penalized for the mistakes in calculation of salary made by the Board. Since the amounts of overpayment were not substantial sums, the employees had every reason to believe that those sums were the newly calculated and proper salary amounts based on the effective date of the new Collective Bargaining Agreement. The overpayment was caught quickly by all concerned and as the reasoning in Galop v. Board of Education of the Township of Hanover, 1975 S.L.D. 358 and Trenton, supra, specifies, the Board should not be able to recoup overpayments. Certainly the Sklute, supra, case can be distinguished for the reason that the overpayment was for a part-time evening position which was not the position covered in the collective Bargaining Agreement.

Therefore, the Board should not be entitled to recoup the monies paid in salary by mistake to the Supportive Staff employees. For that reason if there has been recoupment the employees should be reimbursed in the amount specified in the Stipulation of Facts.

The Board's Reply

LEGAL ARGUMENT

THE BOARD HAD NOT ONLY THE RIGHT BUT THE RESPONSIBILITY TO RECOUP ALL OVERPAID FUNDS FROM THE NON-TENURED EMPLOYEES.

In Sklute, supra. 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 264 (1995), the Commissioner of Education adopted the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge, holding that Respondent Trenton Board of Education properly recouped overpayments made to several non-tenured employees. Significantly, in rendering the initial decision, the ALJ expressly distinguished prior case law involving overpayments to tenured employees, including the two cases principally relied upon by petitioner in the present matter. The ALJ reasoned as follows:

> The holding in [Gallop v. Board of Education of the Township of Hanover, 1975 S.L.D. 358] and [Trenton Education Association v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, 1986 S.L.D. 2415, 2436] and subsequent cases is grounded upon tenure rights contained in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 which guaranty individuals who have attained tenure that they will not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause. Sklute, supra, at 266.

Thus, the ALJ concluded that, since the respondent Board of Education did not reduce any compensation protected by the tenure laws, the board had "not only the right but the responsibility to correct its error and recoup the monies". Id. Furthermore, in adopting the ALJ's decision, the Commissioner stated that the ALJ properly found that the recoupment of the overpaid funds did not reduce compensation protected by the tenure laws and, as such, was entirely appropriate. Id. at 267.

With regard to the present petition, there is no dispute that the overpaid employees held non-tenure positions. Accordingly petitioner's reliance upon the holdings in Trenton, supra, and Gallop, supra is misplaced. As recognized by the ALJ and Commissioner in Sklute, the holdings in Gallop and Trenton were grounded upon tenure rights, and are inapplicable to the facts of the present petition. In contrast, the circumstances giving rise to the present petition are virtually indistinguishable from those issues addressed in Sklute. Therefore, as the Commissioner held in Sklute, the overpaid employees have no right to the overpaid funds, and the Board has not only the right but the responsibility to recoup the money. See, Sklute, supra, at 266.

The facts of the present petition are, therefore, virtually identical to the circumstances addressed by the Commissioner in Sklute, supra.. Therefore, pursuant to the Commissioner's holding in Sklute, the Board had not only the right but the responsibility to recoup the overpaid funds. The petition filed on behalf of the overpaid employees must fail as a matter of law.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

I FIND and DETERMINE that the instant matter is ripe for summary decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 2d, the criteria as set forth by our Supreme Court in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 1954).

The Honorable M. Kathleen Duncan's comprehensive analysis of the law with respect to the issue raised in the instant matter in Sklute, supra., demonstrates that whether or not a board of education may rescind over payments made to employees rests with the tenure status of the employees. She states in Sklute at 266 that:

> The holding in Galop and Trenton Education Association and subsequent cases is grounded upon tenure rights contained in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 which guarantee individuals who have attained tenure that they will not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:17.2 contains a similar provision for school employees who have acquired tenure in a secretarial or clerical position . . . .

It is undisputed that none of the members of the Association have acquired a tenure status with the Board. However, a close review of the stipulation of facts reveals that some of the employees are tenure eligible, i.e., ten-month secretary and custodian. Notwithstanding, Judge Duncan continues to state the rule with respect to the recovery of over payments as follows:

> The general rule is that a payment of money under a mistake of fact may be recovered, provided that such recovery will not prejudice the payee. This rule is grounded upon considerations of equity and fair dealing. It is considered unjust enrichment to permit a recipient to retain money paid because of a mistake, unless the circumstances are such that it would be inequitable to require its return. This is so notwithstanding that the mistake is unilateral and a consequence of the payor's negligence, or that the payee acted in good faith. Great American Ins. Co. v. Yellen, 58 N.J. Super. 240 (App. Div. 1959); Winslow, Cohu & Stetson, Inc. v. Skowronek, 136 N.J. Super. 97, 104 (Law Div. 1975). In the present matter, the monies paid by mistake were public monies to which petitioners had no lawful claim. Respondent had not only the right but the responsibility to correct its error and recoup the monies. Sklute at 266.

Judge Duncan's analysis is supported by the Commissioner where he said in Galop at 365, that:

> The Commissioner is further constrained to state that, while relatively small sums, as herein, may be decided in keeping with those precedents established in past school law decisions, he will in no way support any errors which might conceivably bestow unearned salary benefits of windfall proportions or in such amounts as to threaten the thorough and efficient operations of a local school district. (citation omitted)

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that under the facts and circumstances of the instant matter, the Board's actions are entirely appropriate and that it shall recover those monies paid to members of the Association due to a mistake and error buy the Board.

Accordingly, petitioner's motion for summary decision is DENIED. Respondent's motion for summary decision affirming its actions and dismissing the within matter is hereby GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BUENA REGIONAL SUPPORTIVE STAFF ASSOCIATION, PETITIONER, V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BUENA, ATLANTIC COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that, pursuant to Sklute, supra, inasmuch as the within petitioners do not have tenure rights in their respective positions, the Board's recoupment of its overpayments did not reduce any compensation protected by the tenure laws and, thus, was entirely appropriate.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons clearly stated therein. Summary decision is hereby granted to the Board and the within Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF FRANKFORD, SUSSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioner, former Computer Operations Coordinator/Office Manager, alleged that the Board violated her tenure rights when it reappointed her to a secretarial position at a lower salary.

ALJ concluded that petitioner demonstrated by a preponderance of credible evidence that her duties as child study team secretary continued unabated the entire time she was employed by the Board and that notwithstanding the title change to Computer Operations Coordinator/Office Manager, she never left her secretarial position, functions were just added. Therefore, the Board could not reduce her salary without violating her tenure rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2. ALJ concluded that her salary must be restored to the level she had prior to the reduction, together with back pay.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own and directed appropriate reimbursement.

Louis R. Franzese, Esq., for respondent
(Radin, Tischman Epstein & Gross, attorneys)

Record Closed: December 3, 1996 Decided: March 6, 1997

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

Petitioner, Dorothy Bove (Bove) alleges that the respondent Frankford Board of Education (Board) violated her tenure rights when it reassigned her to a secretarial position at a lower salary. The respondent denies the allegation and asserts that Bove did not have tenure rights in her position as a computer operations coordinator and office manager.

This matter was commenced when the petitioner filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner). On October 24, 1995, the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13. A prehearing conference was held before the undersigned on March 4, 1996. Plenary hearings were held on October 17, 1996 and the post hearings submissions were filed on December 3, 1996 at which time the record was closed. On January 17, 1997, the undersigned requested an Order of Extension by which to file the Initial Decision. By Order dated January 28, 1997, the Commissioner extended the time until March 3, 1997.

27. The job description for Special Services Secretary is attached hereto as Exhibit J-39.

28. Bove's annual evaluations are set forth in exhibits J-40 to J-56.

TESTIMONY

Bove testified that her duties as CST secretary were fairly constant over the years. Her workload increased when the CST increased its personnel and became a full time program. Changes in technology over the course of her tenure also impacted her work. For example, when she was first hired as a CST secretary the IEP's were prepared on a typewriter. Subsequently, the District purchased Apple Computers and the IEP'S were processed on the computer. The Apple computers were replaced by IBM computers. In addition to her secretarial duties for the CST, Bove was responsible for administering the California Basic Skills tests (CBST) to the entire High Point Regional School District. She set up and installed the CBST, as well as scanning and scoring and printing the test results.

When she became the Coordinator in September, 1986, her duties increased. In addition to functioning as CST secretary she was required to install computers and train staff on using the computers. Simultaneously, the CST personnel increased and several CST employees became full time employees. As Office Manager she was required to type reports for the CST and to perform secretarial tasks. Bove noted that she did minimal computer training, keyboarding and computer installation. Further. she did not perform all the tasks on J-38, such as, assisting the Principal with the scheduling of each new school year.

Marigordon Starett Kuehm (Kuehm), the former Director of the Child Study Team testified that she was employed by the District from 1978 to 1995. She noted how the CST went from basically a part time operation to a full time program. A CST secretary must type State and Federal reports and IEP's that contain technical language, among other duties. As the demands of the CST increased based on changes in both state and federal laws, the use of computers also increased. Bove had the most knowledge of computers and thus she was relied upon for all matters that related to the computers. She was Bove's supervisor and prepared annual evaluations on her job performance as CST secretary.

Kuehm admitted that increased workload required that the District hire a clerical assistant to assist the CST. The District used a federal grant to fund the clerical position. The assistant's primary duties were filing, typing and some computer work.

DISCUSSION FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

The parties agree that Bove acquired tenure as a secretary. Therefore, she cannot be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense, and then only in the manner prescribed by the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq.

At issue is whether the respondent violated the petitioner's tenure rights when it reassigned her to a secretarial position at a lower salary.

The petitioner disputes that her tenure status was affected by the Board's creation and assignment of the job title Coordinator of Computer Operations. Petitioner asserts that titles for positions are not the deciding factor for tenure. Further, one cannot lose tenure protections as long as one continue within their area of tenure. Quinlan v. Bd. of Ed. Township of North Bergen, 1959-60 S.L.D. 113, 114, rev'd. on other grounds, State Board of Education, 1960-61 S.L.D. 243, aff'd. 73 N.J. Super 40 (App. Div. 1962).

Here, the evidence is clear and conclusive that throughout her employment Bove worked as the CST Secretary. Additional responsibilities were constantly added to petitioner's duties as CST secretary throughout her history of service. Further, the creation of the title Coordinator of Computer Operations did not substantially alter Bove's duties as she was already doing these things as a secretary. Moreover, Bove was only evaluated as a secretary. Thus, no matter what the Board may have chosen to call her position, Bove continuously worked as a secretary where her duties continued unabated throughout her employment. Lange v. Bd. of Ed., of Borough of Audubon, 25 N.J. Super. 83, 88 (App. Div. 1953). The Board is using nomenclature as the deciding factor in its attempt to deprive Bove of tenure. However, job titles or other nomenclature may not be the determining factor for tenure because of the mischief that would be played by local boards of education. Berardi v. Bd. of Ed., School District of South Orange and Maplewood, 95 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 239.

The respondent contends that Bove voluntarily left her tenured position of Secretary for the non-tenurable position of Computer Operations/Coordinator office Manager ("Coordinator"). When the Coordinator position was abolished the Board could lawfully place her in her current position. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.; Kigerl v. Bd. of Ed. of the Borough of South Plainfield, 1981 S.L.D. 889, 892. Petitioner has not alleged that the Board's decision to abolish the position of Coordinator was done in bad faith. Bove was transferred to her old position of Secretary at a lower rate of pay than what she had been earning as Coordinator. When a person whose position is lawfully abolished (and) is reassigned or transfers or is transferred to another position with a lower salary structure, a reduction in salary does not occur for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2; Booth v. Board of Education of the City of Salem, 1980 *S.L.D*____.; Casey v. Board of Ed. of the Township of Cinnaminson, 95 N.J.A.R.2d 585.

After a careful review of the entire record, I FIND that Bove was hired as a CST secretary by the District in 1979 and throughout her employment with the District she has continued to function as CST secretary. (J-1 and J-2).

Exhibit J-38 sets for Bove's duties as Coordinator Computer Operations. It reveals that Bove was generally required to have a thorough knowledge of secretarial practices and procedures as well a thorough knowledge of computers. (J-38). The job goal was to act in the capacity of secretary and office manager. Further, Bove was to accept responsibility and take initiative to go beyond her assigned duties.

As computer operations coordinator, Bove was to oversee all computer operations in use in the District. Thus, she was responsible for the operation and evaluation of all new and existing computer software at the schools. She was to complete or distribute keyboarding tasks to aid the Superintendent, the Principal, Vice Principal and the Child Study Team. Additionally, Bove was required to develop a data base management systems for the operation of school records.

Notably, Bove was still responsible for the production of all Individual Education Programs (IEP's) for special need students.[1] Further, she was required to produce all reports/correspondence for the CST Director, the school Social Worker, the School Psychologist, the Learning Consultant and the Director of the Gifted and Talented Program.

As Office Manager, Bove was required to distribute keyboarding and other clerical tasks to appropriate clerical/computer personnel as directed by the Administration. In this capacity Bove was to perform all clerical tasks for the CST members with the exception of scheduling appointments and contacting parents. (J-38). Bove reported to the Administration and the CST Director .(J-38).

[1] An Individualized Educational Program (IEP) is an educational report prepared for a Special Education student and is mandatory pursuant to 20 USCA. § 1401-1461; N.J.S.A. 18A:46-8. It generally consists of test scores, the student's classification, and a specific educational program to address a student's educational deficiencies. It can be quite voluminous consisting of each teacher's individual assessment, psychological reports among other reports. It is generally prepared by the child study team(CST). A CST is generally comprised of five members.

Exhibits J-40 through J-56 are Bove's annual evaluation reports. From 1984 to 1986, Bove was evaluated as a CST secretary. The 1988 evaluation reflects a title change to Office Manager. In 1989 the title is changed to office manager/CST Secretary. This title remained constant from 1989 to 1995. The majority of the evaluations were prepared by Kuehm who evaluated her as the CST secretary.

Bove's current title as Special Services Secretary are detailed and delineated in J-39. In this position, Bove is required to act in the capacity of secretary, clerk typist and have thorough knowledge of secretarial practices and procedures. She reports to the CST Team Director and Administration. Bove's duties are to file, type, copy maintain "specialist reports" for the CST. Her annual evaluations are prepared by the Administration.

I am persuaded that Bove's current position requires that she perform the same tasks that she has always performed. Her primary duties are to perform secretarial duties for the CST. The deletion of "IEP" reports and the substitution of "specialist reports" in the current job description is nothing but a ruse to change her duties. Indeed, a "specialist report" is nothing other than the IEP reports of the consultants whom comprise the child study team that form the IEP. In Hansen v. Bd. of Ed. of the Maywood School District, 1989 S.L.D. 2106,2111 it was held that employment should be reviewed in light of the actual duties performed. In Quinlan v Board of Education of the Township of North Bergen, 1959-60 S.L.D. 113, 114, rev'd on other grounds State Board of Education, 1960-61 S.L.D. 243, aff'd. 73 N.J. Super. 40 (App. Div. 1962) it was held that the Commissioner must be vigilant to protect those who are entitled to tenure from the erosion of their tenure rights be subterfuge and evasion. The duties performed rather than the tittle of a position must be controlling in determining whether a position is protected by tenure. Nomenclatures may not be the deciding factor. In deciding whether the petitioner therein was a clerk or an attendance officer, the petitioner was required to show that her duties were preponderantly those of a clerk.

I CONCLUDE that Bove has demonstrated by a preponderance of the credible evidence that her duties as CST secretary continued unabated and that she never left her position notwithstanding the title change. I am persuaded by the evidence that Bove's duties a Coordinator were incidental to her position as CST secretary. J-38 standing alone is replete with references to her duties as CST secretary notwithstanding that it describes three different positions, i.e., CST secretary, computer operations coordinator/ office manager. The one constant responsibility in each position was that she perform the duties and functions of secretary to the child study team. As noted by the petitioner, tenure is a legislative status, not a contractual status. Phelps v. St. Bd. of Ed., 115 N.J.L. 310 (Sup. Ct. 1935, aff'd 116 N.J.L. 412 (E & A 1936), aff'd. 300 U.S. 319, 57 S.Ct. 483 (1937). Consequently, tenure laws take precedence over the terms of a contract and no contract can nullify the express words of the tenure statute. Silvestris v. Bd. of Ed., Bayonne, 1959-60 S.L.D. 184, 192.

The respondent reduced Bove's salary by $12,999, a 39% reduction, for the 1995-96 school year. Further, Bove's work day increase by one hour per day. Since I have concluded that Bove's duties did not change, I FIND that the respondent's action in reducing her compensation is contrary to the state's tenure laws. As a tenured employee Bove cannot be dismissed or reduced in compensation without tenure charges and a hearing. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq.; In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967). It is not disputed that the Board could abolish Bove's position as Coordinator. Further, it is not disputed that the Board could reassign her, however I FIND that the Board could not reduce Bove's salary without violating N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 and its express prohibition against reductions in compensation.

Therefore, I FIND and CONCLUDE that Bove' salary must be restored to the level she had prior to the reduction, or $33,020. For the 1995-96 school year, Bove is entitled to back pay in the amount of $12,999. For the 1996-97 school year, she is entitled to an award of back pay based on the difference between the required salary rate of $33,020 and the rate of pay actually received ($20,923) until her full salary is properly restored. I further FIND that Bove is entitled to back pay for the reduction from $178 to $100 per day for her summer pay rate.

I do not find however, that the imposition of prejudgment interest is warranted herein. Petitioner failed to prove that the Board acted in bad faith when it transferred her to the current position.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DOROTHY A. BOVE,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF FRANKFORD, SUSSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Both exceptions and the reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board objects to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) conclusion that it violated petitioner's tenure rights by reducing her salary upon the elimination of the position of Computer Operations Coordinator/Office Manager, essentially contending that the ALJ arrived at her conclusions without reference to the testimony of Harry Tachovksy, Superintendent of Schools, who affirmed the "drastically dissimilar job descriptions for each position" and the added duties attendant to the role of Computer Operations Coordinator/Office Manager. (Board's Exceptions at p. 2) Instead, the Board argues, the ALJ focused on petitioner's testimony, indicating that, in her role as Computer Operations Coordinator/Office Manager, she performed many of the functions of a secretary. The Board asserts,

> As Mr. Tachovsky pointed out during his testimony, Ms. Bove was given a substantial pay increase because of her numerous > additional duties. Simply because Bove, as a Coordinator/Office Manager, performed some of the tasks of a Secretary does not mean that all of her responsibilities remained the same. The testimony of Mr. Tachovsky reflects that there was a substantial change in job duties and that each position was not within the same tenurable category." (emphasis in text) (Id.)

In reply, petitioner maintains her position that a change in title accompanied by additional job duties does not remove the protections of tenure. (Petitioner's Reply at p. 1) Petitioner asserts that the evidence in this matter "abundantly established" that she performed the duties of a secretary, while holding the job title Computer Operations Coordinator/Office Manager. Petitioner further contests,

> The Board errs in its assertion that the Superintendent pointed out that [she] received a "substantial pay increase" because of her numerous additional responsibilities. The record establishes that the salary increase in question occurred many years before the Superintendent was ever employed by the Board. Consequently, his unfounded speculation is of no weight whatsoever. As the petitioner credibly stated, she and several other non-certificated employees received substantial raises because of their experience and/or education. This occurred which she performed secretarial duties. (Id. at pp. 1, 2)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has proven by a preponderance of credible evidence that her duties as the secretary to the Child Study Team (CST) office "continued unabated and that she never left that position notwithstanding the title change." (Initial Decision at p. 11) As noted by the ALJ, the job description for the position of Coordinator of Computer Operations/Office Manager "[i]s replete with references to her duties as CST Secretary " (id.) and her performance evaluations for the period she held the title Coordinator of Computer Operations/Office Manager evidence that she was consistently evaluated as the Child Study Team Secretary and Office Manager. (Id. at p. 10) The record, therefore, supports the conclusion that, notwithstanding the addition of duties to her secretarial responsibilities, and the corresponding pay increases, petitioner continued to hold her position as the secretary to the CST, and any additional functions she was required to perform did not substantially alter the duties she performed as the secretary to the CST. (Id. at p. 8) Thus, the Board's action in reducing her salary was violative of her tenure rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2. *

To the extent the Board raises exceptions regarding the testimony offered at the hearing in this matter, the Commissioner notes that the record before him does not include a transcript of the hearing at the OAL. Challenges to the factual findings rendered by the ALJ cannot be accepted or rejected by the Commissioner without a review of those portions of the record which are relevant to the exceptions. In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158 (App. Div. 1987). Moreover, it was the Board's responsibility, in that it asserted these exceptions, to supply the Commissioner with relevant portions of the transcript. Morrison at 158. Without pertinent transcript citations, the Commissioner defers to the factual findings and credibility determinations reached by the ALJ who was in a position to hear and adjudge the credibility of the witnesses. See Parker v. Dornbierer, 140 N.J. Super. 185, 188 (App. Div. 1976). In that the ALJ's findings are well grounded in the record before the Commissioner, he finds no cause to challenge either her findings or her conclusions.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. The Board is hereby directed to reimburse petitioner as so stated by the initial decision at pages 11 and 12.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE ROBERT S. MILLER, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on October 15, 1996, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared an Order for Dismissal on Settlement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case on October 2, 1996 and involves a challenge by the petitioners to the respondent Board's determination to deny N.R. and M.R. free attendance at the district's public schools. A status conference was conducted by the undersigned administrative law judge in January 1997 and it was anticipated that cross-motions for summary decision would be filed.

However, as a result of continued discussions between the parties an amicable resolution of the dispute has been reached. A consent order containing the terms of the agreement signed by counsel, has been submitted to the undersigned and is attached hereto.

I have reviewed the terms and conditions of the settlement as set forth in the consent order and FIND as follows:

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

RECEIVED
FEB 21 2 05 PM '97
STATE OF N.J.
OFFICE OF

This Agreement, made and entered into this _____ day of _____, 1996, by and between MARY A. COOPER (hereinafter referred to as "Cooper") and the CAMDEN BOARD OF EDUCATION (hereinafter the "Board") to resolve amicably the dispute between the parties relating to Mary A. Cooper v. Camden Board of Education, Docket No.: EDU-10203-96S.

For the mutual covenants and considerations set forth below, the employee and the Board do hereby agree as follows:

1. The Board agrees to pay Cooper the gross wages of Two Thousand Forty-Seven Dollars and Eighty Cents ($2,047.80), subject to standard and ordinary deductions. The net amount will be Nine Hundred and Thirty Three Dollars and Sixty-Three cents ($933.63).

2. The Board agrees to credit Cooper with seniority credit retroactive to September 1, 1996. Cooper shall retain all previously accrued seniority credit.

3. Cooper should be entitled to all benefits, which include sick leave, pension credit and personal days, retroactive to September 1, 1996 and any previously accrued, but not compensated benefits, to which she would be entitled pursuant to statute or the collective bargaining agreement.

4. Cooper agrees to pay her share of the pension contribution for any retroactive pension credit and shall not be liable for the Board's share. The Board will contribute the employer's share as determined by the State.

5. Cooper agrees to withdraw her Petition of Appeal, with prejudice.

6. Cooper agrees that she has voluntarily and without coercion entered into the Agreement.

7. Cooper waives her right to file any claims in any forum regarding any of the issues involved in the matter.

8. This Settiement Agreement resolves all claims between the parties arising from the reduction in force at issue in this case.

9. This Agreement contains all of the terms of the parties' agreement and cannot be modified or changed unless all parties agree to do so in writing.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have signed, sealed, delivered and acknowledged this Agreement.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :

HEARING OF THERESA LUCARELLI, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE : DECISION

BOROUGH OF BRIELLE, MONMOUTH :

COUNTY, :

_____:

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent, elementary physical education teacher with 23 years of service, for allegedly threatening the Superintendent of Schools in a series of written communications. Respondent did enter into a Pretrial Intervention Program (PTI) and following its completion, her indictment was dismissed.

ALJ concluded that the Board met its burden of proof, by a preponderance of credible evidence that its charge of unbecoming conduct was true and such behavior warranted respondent's dismissal as of August 29, 1995, the date of her suspension. Moreover, the ALJ concluded that respondent's motion to compel the Board to pay respondent, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 was moot.

Commissioner adopted in part and modified in part the initial decision of the ALJ. Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the Board demonstrated by a preponderance of credible and unrebutted evidence that respondent was guilty of unbecoming conduct. Citing In re Sammons, the Commissioner found respondent's actions in writing the memoranda to the superintendent to be so egregious as to prohibit excuse, particularly in light of the standard to which teachers are held. Commissioner found dismissal was warranted. Commissioner, however, did order the Board to compensate respondent for the time frame from the 121st day of that portion of her suspension attributable to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, until the date of his decision since respondent completed PTI and, thus, had resumed her status as a suspended employee. Commissioner directed matter to be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for further appropriate action.

INITIAL DECISION

AGENCY DKT. NO. 354-8/95

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF THERESA LUCARELLI, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BRIELLE, MONMOUTH COUNTY

Peter Kalac, Esq., for the charging Board of Education (Kalac, Newman, Lavender & Campbell, attorneys)

Arnold Mellk, Esq., for respondent (Wills, O'Neill & Mellk, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 5, 1997 Decided: March 10, 1997

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Board of Education of the Borough of Brielle (Board) certified tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) alleging that respondent, Theresa Lucarelli, had committed acts of unbecoming conduct of a teaching staff member, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -25. The Board seeks to remove respondent from her tenured position. Respondent denies the allegations and seeks to be reinstated to her former teaching position.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was held on November 18, 20 and 21, 1996, at the Trenton OAL, Mercerville, New Jersey. The parties requested and were granted leave to submit post-hearing briefs of law. The last submission was filed before this tribunal on March 5, 1997, which constitutes the close of the hearing record.

BACKGROUND FACTS

In or about the spring of 1995, respondent forwarded to the Superintendent of Schools four written communications, the purpose of which was to force the Superintendent to have the Board offer a tenured year contract to a colleague of respondent, whom the Superintendent had not recommended for re-employment.

On June 7, 1995, the Board directed that the four communications in question be forwarded to the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office.

On August 9, 1995, a member of the Board, Charles Kavanagh, filed with the Board Secretary a charge of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member against respondent predicated on the four written communications, together with a Statement of Evidence under oath.

On August 10, 1995, the charge of unbecoming conduct was served on respondent. During the fifteen-day statutory period afforded her, respondent elected not to respond to the charge of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member.

On August 29, 1995, the charge of unbecoming was certified to the Commissioner of Education. On the same day, respondent was served with a copy of the charge and the Certificate of Determination, which advised respondent she was suspended without pay.

On October 2, 1995, respondent, based on the four communications she had forwarded to the Superintendent, was indicted by a Monmouth County Grant Jury on one count of criminal coercion, N.J.S.A. 2C:13-5a(2) and (3).

On October 24, 1995, an Answer to the charge of conduct unbecoming was filed by respondent wherein she denied that she had threatened the Superintendent of Schools.

On November 20, 1995, the Board filed a Notice of Motion for Summary Decision in the within matter. No responding papers have ever been filed by respondent to the Motion for Summary Decision.

On December 20, 1995, the Board passed a Resolution, and thereafter notified counsel for respondent that it was continuing respondent's suspension without pay based on the fact that she was indicted subsequent to the time the charge of unbecoming conduct was filed, pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3.

On January 16, 1996, Board attorney Kalac had a conference telephone call from Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) M. Kathleen Duncan, along with counsel for respondent, and hearing dates for the tenure hearing matter were scheduled for April 29, 30 and May 1, 1996.

Respondent, subsequent to her indictment for criminal coercion, made application to the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office for admission to a Pre-Trial Intervention Program (PTI).

On February 23, 1996, Board attorney Kalac received a letter from the Honorable M. Kathleen Duncan who advised that she was recusing herself from the instant tenure matter inasmuch as she had handled the Velasquez matter, which was another matter from the same school district with certain related facts to the instant matter.

On February 29, 1996, counsel for respondent advised, by letter to Judge Duncan, that he was then "ready, willing and able to proceed in the defense of the tenure charges pending herein" and requested that Judge Duncan advise the parties of the judge who would be replacing her in this matter that the originally scheduled date of April 29, 30 and May 1, 1996, should be kept in place.

Subsequently, the parties were advised that the undersigned would replace Judge Duncan in the instant tenure matter.

On April 17, 1996, a conference call was placed to respective counsel by the undersigned to discuss the within matter, and on April 18, 1996, a Prehearing Order was executed. New hearing dates on the tenure hearing charges were scheduled for the week of November 18, 1996 through and including November 22, 1996.

Subsequently, the Board's attorney propounded a Motion for Summary Decision and oral argument was heard by the undersigned on June 18, 1996. Having heard the parties respective legal arguments, this tribunal denied the Board's motion and ordered that the matter proceed to a plenary hearing on the established dates.

On an oral motion propounded by the Board and opposed by respondent, an order of sequestration was issued for all witnesses to these proceedings.

THE CHARGE

The single charge to the Commissioner against respondent alleging conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member was brought by then President of the Board, Charles T. Kavanagh. The specification of the charge, dated August 9, 1995, states as follows:

> In a series of written communications sent to the Superintendent of Schools, three of which were dated May 9, 16 and 17, 1995, and a fourth undated, but received by the Superintendent of Schools on May 15, 1995, Theresa Lucarelli threatened the Superintendent of Schools that in the event he did not use his influence to persuade the Board of Education to "reinstate" a certain non-tenured teacher who did not receive an offer of contract for the 1995-96 school year, then and in that event, Theresa Lucarelli would provide the police with information, in her possession, that would establish that the Superintendent of Schools was a drug user. (P-1)

SUMMARY OF THE TESTIMONIAL AND DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE

Former Board President Kavanagh and former Superintendent of Schools, Gerard Russoniello, testified on behalf of the Board. Mr. Russoniello testified that he had recommended to the Board that Mr. Angelo Velasquez not be awarded a teaching contract for the 1995-96 school year. He was in receipt of a handwritten note from respondent, dated May 9, 1995, which stated as follows:

> Mr. Russoniello,
> I need to inform you that a member of the board has breached confidentiality.
>
> I have been made aware of the fact that there is another teacher on your "hit" list. I am also aware of the teacher you are targeting. I am aware that there is not much that can be done legally to protect this person's job.
>
> Please consider this decision, if it has already been decided!
>
> We are trying to maintain our professionalism, but if another teacher is hurt, who knows what the consequences will be. Those kinds of things can get personal. I would hate to see this happen.
> Terry Lucarelli (P-10)

Mr. Russoniello asserted that the letter was placed in his school mailbox. Subsequently, on Monday, May 15, 1995, a second handwritten letter was delivered to the school mailbox and date stamped by the Board's School Business Administrator. The letter to the Superintendent stated:

> Gerard,
> I strongly urge you to use your influence and persuade the Board to reinstate Angelo [Velasquez].
> I will give you until Wednesday to give me some indication that this is so.

> I heard your speech at DARE - what do you think Officer McWilliams, the 5th grade parents and the rest of the Brielle community would think if they knew what I know.
> I have already contacted a friend of mine who is a Board attorney. I did not mention any names yet.
>
> I told you that if you "hurt" a teacher - this would get dirty.
>
> Don't take this lightly! The information that I have you know is true. I have proof. Please don't make me use it.
> Terry (P-11)

Mr. Russoniello testified that on the afternoon of Tuesday, May 16, 1995, sometime after 3:00 p.m., a handwritten note from respondent was placed in his school mailbox. The handwritten note states as follows:

> Clarification of events that occurred May 16 -
>
> 1. Teachers picketed for Mr. Velasquez - only
>
> 2. Mrs. L. & Mr. R. had a conversation concerning her letter and the anonymous, harassing phone calls she received - 2 last evening and 1 this morning.
>
> 3. Both agreed to back off and not proceed with any actions towards each other.
>
> What proof do I have that you will not proceed and force the situation so that innocent people do not get hurt?
>
> I will not hand over to the police any information that may be used against you - including the phone numbers - time and dates of the phone calls -
>
> You will assure your friends that this situation is over and I will inform my person.
>
> Someone overheard J.S. telling someone that you said that "you won and I backed down" -
>
> I don't think anyone won - but if you need to say it - that's fine -

> Perhaps you should discuss confidentiality again with her and the Board.
> I was also told that someone heard at a game last night that J.S. is behind the whole Angelo situation and she is pushing you to make sure he doesn't get rehired.
> I think we need to talk about a gag order on all sides. (P-12)

Mr. Russoniello denies he had a meeting with respondent on May 15, 1995. He testified, moreover, that on May 17, 1995, he received an unsigned handwritten letter, dated May 17, which stated as follows:

> I received phone call #4 this morning around 7:10 - anonymous - raspy voice.
>
> Stated:
>
> > "This is an insurance policy if anything is said tonight about you Boss by anyone - you will pay the consequences."
>
> I don't know how many people you felt it necessary to send my letter to beside Kalac, Oppito, Kavanagh. I also know you showed it to Judith Sorkowitz. I guess you decided not to keep your side of the bargain since I received another call.
> I contacted an attorney - since you are accusing me of extortion if I reveal your drug use, which I told you I wouldn't because I don't want you to implicate John & Robin. I need to tell you that because this evil person has information that only you or someone you told would have that making terroristic threats over the phone is a federal offense. I did not reveal anything to anyone - so it has to be someone who either is displaying displaced loyalty or fears implication. (P-13)

Mr. Russoniello testified that the Board held its meeting on Wednesday, May 17, 1995, and did not award Angelo Velasquez a teaching contract for the 1995-96 school year which would have granted Mr. Velasquez a tenure status in the school district. He further asserted that after he had received all four letters from respondent, he made copies for the Board members and the Board attorney. The copies were made and distributed before June 5, 1995.

Mr. Russoniello testified that subsequent to his receipt of the letters from respondent, a number of things occurred in the school. A petition was circulated among the school's pupils to have the Board reinstate Mr. Velasquez. The parents of a second grade pupil became upset because of the circulation of the petition.

Kindergarten pupils were given ribbons to wear by a teaching staff member. The wearing of the ribbons was to show support for Mr. Velasquez. Some parents were upset and questioned Mr. Russoniello as to why the pupils were wearing the ribbons.

Posters were placed in the school's corridor and in classrooms which stated, among other things, "Bring back Mr. V." The materials used for the posters were from the schools' art room, under the direction of a long-term substitute teacher.

On Thursday, May 18 or Friday, May 19, 1995, the seventh and eighth grade pupils staged a "sit down" in the school's corridor during regular instruction time. There were approximately fifty pupils involved in the "sit down." A classroom teacher instructed the pupils to return to their respective classrooms before Superintendent Russoniello arrived on the scene.

Mr. Russoniello admitted he only investigated the source of the poster materials and did not investigate the origins of the petition or the ribbons worn in support of Mr. Velasquez. He contended, moreover, that the notes addressed to him from respondent constituted a threat, with which he did not comply. Nor did he change his recommendation to the Board to not offer Mr. Velasquez a teaching contract for the 1995-96 school year. He asserted that respondent's threat that "this would get dirty" (P-11) was a threat fulfilled when the controversy flowed over into the classroom and involved the children of the school.

Former Board President Kavanagh testified, among other things, that sometime in May 1995, on a date not specified, he had a conversation with Superintendent Russoniello concerning the series of communications from respondent to Russoniello. The Board thereafter invited respondent to appear before a committee of the Board on June 5, 1995, to discuss the communications. Respondent did not appear before the Board's committee, where the Board's attorney was in attendance. The Board then directed its attorney to contact the Monmouth County Prosecutor with respect to the communications from respondent to the Superintendent. The Board attorney complied with the Board's directive.

Mr. Kavanagh asserted that, as president of the Board, he filed the tenure charge of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member against respondent. The charge was prepared for Kavanagh by its attorney. Mr. Kavanagh also signed the sworn Statement of Evidence in support of the charge. He asserted that respondent was the president of the Brielle Education Association at some point in time, and in that capacity, Kavanagh had met with respondent as a member and representative of the Board. Kavanagh asserted that respondent would appear before the Board as an advocate in teacher personnel matters, i.e., grievances, etc. Kavanagh asserted he signed the Statement of Evidence to the charge because he believed it was the responsibility of the Board president to do so.

On August 28, 1995, the Board certified its charge against respondent to the Commissioner and suspended her from her teaching duties without pay.

Mr. Kavanagh testified that subsequent to the four letters from respondent to the Superintendent and forwarded to the Monmouth County Prosecutor, respondent was indicted by a Monmouth County Grand Jury on October 5, 1995. The indictment states as follows:

> FIRST COUNT
> CRIMINAL COERCION - FOURTH DEGREE CRIME
> The Grand Jurors of the State of New Jersey, for the County of Monmouth, upon their oaths present that THERESA LUCARELLI, on or about divers dates between May 9, 1995 and May 17, 1995, in or about the Borough of Brielle, County of Monmouth, and within the jurisdiction of this Court, did commit the crime of criminal coercion in that, with purpose unlawfully to restrict Gerard Russoniello's freedom of action to engage or refrain from engaging in conduct, she threatened to accuse Gerard Russoniello of an offense and/or to expose a secret which would tend to subject Gerard Russoniello to hatred, contempt or ridicule, > or to impair his credit or business repute, contrary to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 2C:13-5a(2) and/or (3), and against the peace of this State, the Government, and dignity of the same. (P-9)

On December 20, 1995, by recorded roll call vote, the Board continued respondent's suspension without pay as a consequence of her indictment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3.

Subsequently, on February 8, 1996, respondent was entered into the PTI, with an order to serve seventy-five hours of community service and pay all monies totaling $125 at the rate of $12.50 per month for ten months. Respondent's PTI was successfully completed on February 8, 1997.

Respondent testified on her own behalf together with fourteen other witnesses who testified about her good character, among other things. The witnesses, other than respondent, represented present and former teaching colleagues, former students and parents of pupils taught by respondent. The witnesses testified that respondent is an excellent and outstanding teacher who has been an advocate for children and members of the teachers' union. She has worked with handicapped children with their physical therapy, dealt with children's concerns about drugs and alcohol abuse and was instrumental in getting a grant of $10,000, with the assistance of the school's vice principal, for a comprehensive drug curriculum for grades kindergarten through eight. The curriculum required a three-day in-service program involving all staff members, including custodial and cafeteria workers. She participated in class trips, worked playground duty and was the cheerleader adviser, among other activities.

Some of those who testified on respondent's behalf knew of the charge filed against her by the Board. However, none of the witnesses testified as to the content or the substance of the charge nor the letters authored by respondent which formed the basis of the charge to the Commissioner.

Respondent testified on her own behalf asserting, among other things, that she has been an elementary physical education teacher for twenty-four years, twenty-three of which have been served with the Brielle Board. She has held an office in the local teachers' association since she acquired a tenure status with the Board and became its president in May 1988. It was not revealed when her term as president ended, however, the present president is Harry Nicholas Aronis, who testified on respondent's behalf. She asserted that the 1994-95 school yearbook was dedicated to her by the pupils of the school.

Respondent testified she first became aware of the charge against her on June 28, 1995, subsequent to the close of the 1994-95 school year. On that date, she was in receipt of a letter from the Board's Business Administrator/Board Secretary advising her to appear before a committee of the Board on July 11, 1995, to be interviewed concerning the four written communications she forwarded to the Superintendent. She contradicted her former testimony and stated she was absolutely not aware of any charges being brought against her at the time she received the letter from the Business Administrator/Board Secretary dated June 28, 1995.

In any event, on June 30, 1995, respondent addressed a handwritten letter to the Business Administrator/Board Secretary in response to the June 28, 1995 letter. In her letter, respondent asked for information, among other things, concerning which Board members and others would be present at the interview, how many witnesses would be allowed to be called and, could respondent waive her right to privacy and have a public meeting. She also noted that the Superintendent had neglected to include two other communications which she asserted were very important, i.e., a memo dated May 12 and a memo dated May 15, 1996.

Subsequently, respondent testified, she was in receipt of a letter dated July 5, 1995, from the Board's attorney in response to her letter of June 30, 1995. The Board's attorney advised respondent, among other things, that the meeting was not a hearing but, rather, an interview as permitted by statute. She was also advised that the meeting was not intended to be a public hearing and that she may have one person present to advise and represent her. Respondent did not attend this interview meeting with the Board.

Respondent testified that upon the receipt of the Board attorney's letter dated July 5, 1995, she was not aware she was being charged with any offense by the Board, i.e., unbecoming conduct of a teaching staff member. Nor was she told she was the subject of any disciplinary action by the Board. Respondent testified she learned of the charge of unbecoming conduct against her by way of a letter, dated August 9, 1995, over the signature of the Business Administrator/Board Secretary.

Respondent offered her Annual Performance Reports into evidence (R-9) which demonstrate satisfactory performance throughout her teaching career. During her twenty-four years with the Board, she has had only one unsatisfactory evaluation and that was in June 1995 under the criterion of "Implements district's goals and objectives" (R-9). In all other respects, her evaluations were satisfactory.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon all of the testimony and documents adduced at the hearing and having given fair weight thereto, I FIND the testimony to be credible and worthy of belief. In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950). Accordingly, I hereby adopt, by reference, all of the above as my FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

I FIND, therefore, that the Board has demonstrated, by a preponderance of the credible and unrebutted evidence, that the charge of unbecoming conduct of a teaching staff member brought against respondent Theresa Lucarelli is true, in fact.

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

THE BOARD'S POSITION

The facts, as set forth by the Board in its brief will not be repeated here.

LAW

Point I

WHETHER THERESA LUCARELLI'S ACTIONS, THROUGH A SERIES OF WRITTEN COMMUNICATIONS TO THE BOARD'S SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS, CONSTITUTES THREATS, AND THEREFORE, CONDUCT UNBECOMING A TEACHING STAFF MEMBER.

The foregoing is the initial issue identified in the Prehearing Order. The issue of whether Lucarelli's writing and delivering the four communications in question amounts to conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member needs little by way of argument. The writings speak for themselves.

Can the following be interpreted as other than threats?

> . . . who knows what the consequences will be. These kinds of things can get personal. I would hate to see this happen. (P-10 in evidence)
>
> I strongly urge you to use your influence and persuade the Board to reinstate Angelo.
>
> I told you that if you "hurt" a teacher -- this would get dirty. Don't take this lightly! The information that I have you know it's true. I have proof. Please don't make me use it. (P-11 in evidence)

The unrebutted testimony of the Superintendent was that the foregoing was contained in certain communications which were authored by Lucarelli and placed in his mailbox by her in May 1995.

It should not go unnoted that following delivery of the four communications in question, the Board offered Lucarelli two opportunities to meet with a committee of its members to explain, defend, or in some way justify her actions. She declined.

Lucarelli also had a fifteen-day opportunity to respond to the charge filed against her. She declined.

Finally, Lucarelli had the opportunity to explain, defend, or otherwise justify what she had done when she testified at her tenure hearing. Again, she declined.

The conclusion is inescapable. Lucarelli has conceded that her conduct was conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. Lucarelli's defense, based on her own testimony and that of the witnesses she produced, is directly solely to the penalty which must follow from her unbecoming conduct. This will be addressed in Point II, infra.

Point II

IF THE CHARGES ARE TRUE, THE APPROPRIATE PENALTY IS THE ONLY ISSUE TO BE REVIEWED.

This essentially is the second issue identified in the Prehearing Order. The charges against Lucarelli are obviously true -- they stand unrebutted in the record. The appropriateness of the penalty is the only matter at issue.

Lucarelli, in order to avoid the imposition of an appropriate penalty, produced an array of character witnesses, which included parents of students, former students, friends and colleagues. All testified to the better angels of her nature. It was also stipulated that Lucarelli was capable of producing some thirty-five additional character witnesses, all of whom would have essentially replicated the testimony of those witnesses who did appear.

Lucarelli testified, first to the twenty-four years she had been a teacher, then to her evaluations, which she claims were superior, and finally to her love of children.

The question that naturally evolves from all of this self-serving and cumulative testimony of adulation is whether it is sufficient to justify not severing the tenure of Lucarelli. It is respectfully submitted that it is not. Neither the number of character witnesses she presented nor the volume of testimony produced can, in view of Lucarelli's egregious conduct, justify a penalty less than the severing of her tenure.

The conduct in which Lucarelli engaged exceeded the bounds of anything that can be characterized as appropriate or acceptable. This case does not involve a single act of poor judgment. On the contrary, Lucarelli, with calculated forethought, on four separate occasions, penned four separate communications to the Superintendent of Schools, the content of which establish, beyond cavil, premeditated coercion. Lucarelli's actions were a direct attempt to rend the very fabric of the statute which governs employment practices in the public school.

> Notwithstanding the provisions of any law, rule or regulation to the contrary,
> a. a board of education shall appoint, transfer or remove a certified or non-certified officer or employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator. . . .

Lucarelli, by employing coercion, attempted to substitute her personal judgment for that of the Superintendent in what is perhaps the latter's most important statutory function -- the recommending of personnel for employment in the public schools.

The hubris involved in Lucarelli's coercive behavior is exceeded only by her request to be returned to her elementary teaching position while still serving the probationary time imposed as a condition of her Pre-Trial Intervention program. The latter she applied for and was accepted into following her indictment on a charge of criminal coercion (N.J.S.A. 2C:13-5a(2)(3); P-9 in evidence).

It is true, as stipulated by the parties, that Lucarelli's Pre-Trial Intervention probation will conclude on February 8, 1997. Provided that she is deemed to have successfully completed the program, her indictment for criminal coercion will then be dismissed. What should not be missed on this point, however, is the State Board of Education's view of teachers entering PTI programs. In Pawlak v. Board of Education of Hopatcong, 1988 S.L.D. 154, the State Board cites, with approval, the case of Lindes v. Sutter, et al., 621 F. Supp. 1197, 1201-2 (1985):

> In this regard, we emphasize that regardless of petitioner's arguments to the contrary, dismissal of charges as a result of participation in the PTI does not imply innocence, but generally implied guilt with amenability to rehabilitation. See Pawlak, supra, at footnote 2, p. 156.

Similarly, in the case of Gus Siciliano v. Board of Education of the Camden County Vocational-Technical School, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 94, the Acting Commissioner of Education concurred with the decision of the ALJ. The latter had written:

> To be "cleared" of tenure charges, the Commissioner must determine that the teacher . . . did not commit conduct unbecoming a teacher, or did not commit other conduct which would constitute "just cause" for dismissal or reduction in compensation. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.
> The dismissal of a criminal indictment as a result of entering PTI is not a determination that the individual was not guilty of the conduct complained of; only that the matter was "adjusted." R. 3:28(c)(1). See Siciliano, supra, at p. 95.

It is respectfully submitted that in New Jersey, teachers are subject to higher standards of behavior than individuals in other employment. In this regard, the Commissioner of Education, in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Jacque L. Sammons, School District of Blackhorse Pike Regional, 1972 S.L.D. 302, at p. 321, wrote:

> Of equal concern to the Commissioner is the situation where the teacher, who should set the good example, assumes that some higher right justifies activities which are inimical to the public interest and which are designed to impede the orderly process of public education. The Commissioner recognizes the desires on the part of public school employees to secure the greatest remuneration and the widest possible benefits in return for their services. He is constrained to remind the teachers of this State, however, that they are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of tens of thousands of school children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each individual child. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment.

This concept of teachers being held to higher standards has been a continuing refrain in tenure hearing cases before the Commissioner of Education. In In the matter of the Tenure Hearing of Robert H. Beam, School District of the Borough of Sayreville, 1973 S.L.D. 157, at p. 163, the Commissioner wrote:

> The teaching profession is chosen by individuals who must comport themselves as models for young minds to emulate. This heavy responsibility does not begin at 8:00 a.m. and conclude at 4:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, only when school is in session. Being a teacher requires, inter alia, a consistently intense dedication to civility and respect for people as human beings.

See also In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenneth Henderek, School District of the Township of East Brunswick, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 268, where Beam, supra, is cited with approval.

In In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Ernesto Tordo, School District of the Township of Jackson, 1974 S.L.D. 97, at pp. 98-99, the Commissioner of Education further expounded on the concept of public trust which teachers are required to maintain, to wit:

> Teachers are public employees who hold positions demanding public trust, and in such positions, they teach, inform, and mold habits and attitudes, and influence the opinions of their pupils.

> Pupils learn, therefore, not only what they are taught by the teacher, but what they see, hear, experience, and learn about the teacher.

It is anticipated that Lucarelli will contend that despite her attempt to coerce her Superintendent, her prior record should cause a lessening of the penalty. It is respectfully submitted that the egregious nature of Lucarelli's conduct requires that her teaching position be forfeited.

In Willingboro Board of Education v. Lott, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 516, the tenured teacher also advances her prior record in an attempt to ameliorate her penalty. Therein we find the following:

> Lott engaged in an activity which constituted unbecoming conduct for a public school teacher. The undisputed record demonstrates that during her 11 years as a teacher of art in the Willingboro district she was praised for her work and her commitment. The record contains no blemishes; on the contrary it contains many positives. That Lott was a very find teacher cannot be doubted from this record. . . . She felt that "she had a lot to offer." [at p. 520]

Notwithstanding this teacher's otherwise laudable record, she was dismissed. The facts in Lott are essentially on all fours with the case herein. Lucarelli also engaged in conduct unbecoming a public school teacher. The undisputed record demonstrates that she also was praised for her work and commitment. Her record, prior to May 1995, contained no blemishes, and on the contrary, contained many positives. Finally, and most assuredly, Lucarelli, based on her testimony and that of her character witnesses, feel she also has "a lot to offer." However, in the final analysis, Lucarelli's unexplained egregious behavior cries out for the same penalty as in Lott -- the severing of her tenure. Why? For the reasons that follow.

Initially, Lucarelli deported herself in such a manner as to directly attempt to brazenly interfere with the Superintendent's statutory obligation to render his recommendation for the appointment of staff. She did this, unabashedly through four written communications which, on their face, cannot be characterized as anything short of coercion. These facts are unrebutted in the record. That being the case, it is respectfully submitted that the finder of fact herein, when considering the penalty for Lucarelli's conduct, must examine Lucarelli's conduct and attitude subsequent to her letter-writing incidents of May 1995. This is what is known about that conduct and attitude:

* She failed to accept either of two dates to appear before a committee of the Board to explain or justify her conduct.

* She elected not to respond to the charges filed against her within the fifteen-day period allotted by statute.

* Her filed Answer to the charge claims she did not coerce the Superintendent.

* Her testimony did not address her letter-writing of May 1995, but rather her work record prior to that time.

At no time subsequent to Lucarelli's delivery to the Superintendent of the four communications in question did she acknowledge that, perhaps, what she had done was a mistake. On the contrary, had she not been prevented at trial, she would have attempted to actually justify her actions by contending they were within the realm of her duties as President of the local teacher's association. (T3, 5, 2-14; 12, 7-9).

To think that this teacher is still of the opinion that her attempt to directly interfere with the statutory duties of the Superintendent and the hiring practices of a school district is justified, should be a matter of grave concern to those who have the authority to decide on her continuing as a teaching staff member.

Since Lucarelli obviously is of the opinion that her actions were justified, then those actions require a close examination: In her first communication to the Superintendent [P-10 in evidence], Lucarelli shamelessly tells her superior that if does not reconsider a personnel decision he has made, the result can "get personal." This threat, in and of itself, should be sufficient to sever her tenure.

The second communication [P-11 in evidence] intensifies the pressure being applied to the Superintendent. If the Superintendent did not use his influence on his employer, the Board, then Lucarelli threatened that the result would not only be personal; by would "get dirty," as well. The Superintendent was further advised by Lucarelli that if her demand was not met, she was prepared to use against him information that she possessed, and that he should not take this additional threat "lightly."

At this point, one must pause and simply ask --- if Lucarelli had such damning "proof" against the Superintendent, of whatever it may consist, why had she not taken it to the proper authorities rather than use it against the Superintendent in form of a Damoclean sword. Can there by any question but that the cumulative impact of these first two communications requires Lucarelli's tenure be severed?

By the time that Lucarelli sends her third and fourth epistles [P-12 and P-13 in evidence], it is apparent that she realizes that the Superintendent is not about to be coerced and that he has done the proper thing in handing her earlier correspondence over to the Board attorneys and the Board President. This is evidenced by what she wrote in the May 18, 1995 letter (P-13 in evidence), to wit "I don't know how many people you felt it necessary to send my letter to beside Kalack (sic), Oppitto (sic), and Kavanagh." The first two surnames identified are the Board attorneys and the last the Board President.

At this juncture in her correspondence, Lucarelli obviously realizes that the coercion gambit has failed and that she might be guilty of extortion. She now begins to retreat and seeks legal advice. She wrote "I contacted an attorney -- since you are accusing me of extortion if I reveal your drug use, which I told you I wouldn't because I don't want you to implicate John & Robin" (P-13 in evidence).

What can be made of these writings by Lucarelli? Has she not, through her own pen, exposed herself as one who is unfit to be continued as a teacher?

Can the Commissioner of Education actually send back to an elementary classroom setting a teacher who purports to know that her Superintendent is a drug user, but is willing to conceal that information for fear that her revealing it would eventually implicate outside third parties? It should be noted that there was not a shred of evidence in this case from which it might even be suggested that the Superintendent was a drug user.

Has Lucarelli demonstrated, through her behavior, that she possesses the character traits the Commissioner of Education has repeatedly referenced as needed by those who choose teaching as a profession, to wit, individuals who exercise self-restraint, controlled behavior, set the good example, have an intense dedication to civility, respect people as human beings, and who must comport themselves as models for young minds to emulate? See Beam, supra, and Sammons, supra.

To ask that question is to answer it firmly in the negative.

Based on the foregoing analysis of the law and facts, it is respectfully submitted that Lucarelli's tenure be severed and that her employment as a teacher be terminated.

RESPONDENT'S POSITION

Point I

THERESA LUCARELLI DID NOT ENGAGE IN UNBECOMING CONDUCT

The Board's case relies and depends upon three bases:

1. The testimony of Charles Kavanagh;
2. The testimony of Gerard Russoniello; and
3. Exhibits P-10 through P-13 in evidence (the four written communications).

Kavanagh, the president of the Board, testified generally about that process of administratively charging Theresa Lucarelli. He also executed the statement of evidence under oath (P-2 in evidence), which was provided to the Commissioner in support of the tenure charges.

The Board relies upon paragraph 6 of that affidavit exclusively for proof of its case against Theresa Lucarelli, i.e., that Exhibits P-10 through P-13 "threatened the superintendent of schools in the event he did not use his influence to persuade the Board of Education to reinstate Angel Velasquez. Theresa Lucarelli would expose the superintendent as a drug user by providing the policed with certain information she claimed to possess." However, Kavanagh was never told by Russoniello that Russoniello felt threatened or coerced by the memoranda.[2] Kavanagh could not tell us with any specificity whatsoever about any discussions he had with Russoniello. In fact, Kavanagh's first discussion with Russoniello about the four communications most likely occurred serendipitously:

> Q. Mr. Kavanagh, when did you first speak to Gerard Russoniello with regard to the four written communications from Theresa Lucarelli?
> A. In May and early -- in mid-May.
>
> Q. Where did that conversation take place?
>
> A. Initially, in his office.
>
> Q. Who called whom?
>
> A. I'm not sure that it was a matter of calling or that I was there for a specific meeting, one of the board committee meetings.
>
> Q. Is it likely that you just happened to be there with regards to one of the board committee meetings that you just described?
>
> A. It's likely.
> (T1:29, 18-25 to T1:30, 1-6)

[2] Russoniello, a witness for the Board, never testified that he felt threatened. In fact, as will be shown infra, his testimony related to his unsupported beliefs that there was some link between the letters and certain activities by the students.

The fortuity and casualness of the event belies the notion of any perceived threat by Russoniello; Kavanagh is incompetent to testify as to the quality of the letter so we must look to Russoniello's testimony. However, there was no testimony whatsoever by Russoniello that he had any concern with regard to the so-called threats within the memoranda. Russoniello only testified as to his receipt of Exhibits P-10 through P-13 and that he made copies for the Board (Transcript of November 20, 1996, T2:16, 6-9).

His entire direct examination consisted of baseless speculation in an attempt to link Exhibits P-10 through P-13 with occurrences "that effected the classroom after Mr. Velasquez did not receive a reappointment?"[3] (T2:17, 19-23). Russoniello told us during his direct examination that:

1. Petitions were circulated among students (T2:18). However, the Board did not introduce any copy of a petition nor description of the contents of any petition. We can assume for the purposes of this case that there were no petitions, however, arguendo, even if there were, there is nothing to link them to Theresa Lucarelli; for Russoniello on cross-examination told us that he conducted no investigation as to the origin of the phantom petitions (T2:27, 11-15).

2. Ribbons were given to students by a teacher (T2:18, 10-18). The teacher was never identified. Russoniello did not know what the significance of the ribbons were, assuming there were ribbons,[4] other than to speculate without any basis as to his assumptions as to the meaning of the symbol (T2:18, 21-24). On cross-examination, Russoniello admitted that he conducted no investigation to determine what in fact was happening, if anything (T2;28, 17-21).

[3] Mr. Velasquez was a teacher who had not been recommended for reappointment by Russoniello and was a member of the union of which Theresa Lucarelli was the president. This attempt by Russoniello to hold Mrs. Lucarelli responsible for the "disruptions" is at worst a recent fabrication, or at best, inconsistent with his annual performance evaluation of Mrs. Lucarelli dated June 24, 1995, which only had one "unsatisfactory" and that related to implementation of the District's goals and objectives. There was no other negative comment by the Superintendent (R-9 in evidence). So much for the argument that Russoniello felt threatened. There was no indication whatsoever in the Superintendent's year-end evaluation that Mrs. Lucarelli was to be subject to any discipline (T3:24, 13-19).

[4] Russoniello's direct testimony simply was hearsay within hearsay. He said he received a telephone call from parents about ribbons and petitions (T2:18, 5-18).

3. Signs and placards were being posted in the schools (T2:18, 14-15). Not a single poster or placard was produced for this hearing, not only do they not exist as evidence, but once again, Russoniello did virtually nothing about this so-called event. On cross-examination, he identified a substitute teacher as having provided the art materials:

> Q. Did you discipline Mrs. Danback?
> A. No. I just asked her how the kids got a hold of art materials.
>
> Q. And that was the end of it?
> A. Yes.

These three non-events comprise the entire substantive case of the Board against Theresa Lucarelli. The Board did not present an iota of competent evidence to link Theresa Lucarelli to these "disruptions." The Board attorney, upon demand for an offer of proof as to the relevance of the so-called incidents to the charges (T2:19, 17, 18) responded:

> MR. KALAC: Those documents speak for themselves, and I believe when the Court has an opportunity to read them critically you will see that those documents in fact constitute a threat. They constitute a threat in the event the superintendent did not succumb to the will of the author of those documents, which was to reconsider his decision on the reappointment of a staff member. This superintendent was not cowed by those threats. He did not change his mind on the recommendation and the board accepted his recommendation. The letter clearly says that in the event you don't use your influence with the board things will occur, things will get dirty. (T20:3-16);

and in addition,

> MR. KALAC: That this never spilled over into the classroom. So we now have a threat. If you don't do something this will get dirty.

> The threat to the superintendent is not fulfilled by the superintendent succumbing to the will of the person making the threat. And, in fact, things did spill over into the classroom and did in fact get dirty. What we have here is the threat being fulfilled, Your Honor.
>
> Now perhaps Mr. Mellk will develop evidence to indicate that --
>
> MR. MELLK: Your Honor, I would suggest -- respectfully request that if --
>
> THE COURT: Mr. Mellk, allow him to present his argument and you'll be able to respond. Please. Thank you.
> MR. KALAC: Perhaps there will be testimony here that there was some perspicacious kindergarten student who decided to have all of his classmates wear ribbons. I don't know. But right now what I'm saying is there was a threat made and the threat is being fulfilled. And for that reason I think all of this is relevant, Your Honor, because it was the refusal to offer Velasquez a tenure year contract that in fact triggered the letters that are now marked for identification. (T2:20, 16 to T2:21, 16).

Unfortunately for the Board, this theory of their case remained the fanciful nonsense that it clearly was. Never was there a link made to Theresa Lucarelli; never was there any evidence offered whatsoever of Theresa Lucarelli being involved with the so-called "dirty" activities, which we now know only occurred within the imagination of the charging party.

After this unintentional admission by the Board that it has no case against Theresa Lucarelli, it went one step further, in an attempt to nail down its non-case and had Russoniello testify concerning a sit-down in school. No testimony was elicited linking Theresa Lucarelli to the sit-down. Exhibits P-10 through P-13 were only given to Russoniello, no one else. The distribution by Theresa Lucarelli was one-to-one and private.[5]

Although the Board's theory of its case is that Theresa Lucarelli's "threats" in Exhibits P-10 through P-13 were carried out by the children through petitions, ribbon wearing, poster painting and a sit-down, it speculates without any proofs whatsoever that Angelo Velasquez, the non-renewed teacher, was the catalyst for these threatening events (Board's Brief, pp. 3-4). Russoniello was asked specifically about Velasquez in his direct testimony; an attempt by the Board to relate Velasquez's non-renewal to Exhibits P-10 through P-13 and thereby to the "disruptions."

When Theresa Lucarelli attempted to testify on direct examination as to her involvement with Velasquez's employment status as a result of the Board's having raised that issue in its case, the ALJ refused to allow her that opportunity by ruling:

> THE COURT: Whether or not she was the president or the secretary of the association is not relevant, in my judgment. And that objection is sustained.
> Move forward. (T3:12, 7-10)

This foreclosed Theresa Lucarelli from explaining and defending her actions on behalf of a member of her union. Since it was the Board who raised that as the rationale for her having "threatened" the superintendent, Mrs. Lucarelli was denied her rights to due process and fundamental fairness.[6] N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.3 of course provides for the right to public employees to have their union representatives meet and threat with the public employer concerning the terms and conditions of employment for such employees, i.e., Velasquez. Although this tribunal precluded Mrs. Lucarelli from testifying in that regard, one need simply review R-2 in evidence which supports the fact that Mrs. Lucarelli had been acting as the representative of her union members as provided by law. Accordingly, the issue of the context of the communications has to be considered within the context of the Board's having raised it, i.e., a labor issue. As such, it is important to note:

> The Board may criticize employee representatives for their conduct. However, it cannot use its power as employer to convert that > criticism into discipline or other adverse action against the individual as an employee when the conduct objected to is unrelated to that individual's performance as an employee. To permit this to occur would be to condone conduct by an employer which would discourage employees from engaging in organizational activity.

[6] The ALJ also found ipse dixit, without allowing any testimony on the subject by Theresa Lucarelli, that the letters "were not, in any sense, an expression of representing anyone but herself" (T3:7, 22-23).

It has long been held, both as a matter of Federal and New Jersey Labor Law, that a wide latitude in terms of offensive speech and conduct must be allowed in the context of grievance proceedings and that "it has been repeatedly observed that passions run high in labor disputes and that epithets and accusations are commonplace." Crown Central Petroleum Corp., 74 L.R.R.M. 2885, 2860; Hamilton Twp. Bd. of Ed. and Hamilton Twp. Ed. Assn., 5 N.J.P.E.R. 115 (¶10068, 1979). Furthermore, the fact of the delay by the Board in bringing charges against Theresa Lucarelli was probably motivated by hostility to her associational activity.[7] See Middletown Twp. Bd. of Ed. and Middletown Twp. Ed. Assn., 22 N.J.P.E.R. 31 (¶27016, 1995), (aff'd App. Div., Docket No. A-2999-95T1, December 19, 1996, unreported).

Since the Board failed to present any proofs of disruptive conduct by Theresa Lucarelli at the hearing, it reiterates in its post-hearing brief, the history of the criminal charges brought against Theresa Lucarelli.[8] This is clearly intended to prejudice these proceedings. There has been no conviction. PTI participation is not proof of wrongdoing. The Board must prove its case independently. In fact, the Rules Governing the Courts of New Jersey explicitly preclude the use of PTI participation in any civil proceeding against the participant. R. 3:28(c)(5); see also Guideline 5; and R. 1:38(f).

The Board's harping on the criminal charges brought against Theresa Lucarelli at both the hearing and in its post-trial brief is interesting. It exposes the Board's lack of proof as to any disruptive behavior on the part of Theresa Lucarelli. Kavanagh, over respondent's objection, was permitted to testify as to the criminal proceedings instigated by the Board and its attorney, however, apparently unanticipated by the Board in its attempt to taint impermissibility Theresa Lucarelli, it exposed is duplicity and bad faith toward her. Exhibit R-3, a letter from the Board attorney to the County Prosecutor, made Theresa Lucarelli the target of a criminal investigation.[9] The letter dated June 7, 1995, states:

[8] The Board was allowed to introduce that testimony at the hearing over respondent's objection (T1:6, 21 - T1:7).

> I am enclosing herewith four handwritten communications received by the Superintendent of Schools of Brielle which were authored by a teacher in the Brielle school system named Theresa Lucarelli. These communications were received by the Superintendent shortly after the Board accepted his recommendation not to rehire, for the 1995-1996 school year, a colleague of Ms. Lucarelli. Ms. Lucarelli is a Physical Education teacher in the district.
> In view of the seriousness of the matter involved, the Board of Education intends to have a committee comprised of its members interview the author of the correspondence. In order to avoid any possible disruption with the school program, the interview will not occur until after the present school year concludes. Inasmuch as a reasonable advance notice time must be provided the teacher prior to the interview, it is expected that the interview will not occur until the first or second week of July. (R-3 in evidence)

This was done without any notice to Theresa Lucarelli. Yet while knowing that it had secretly made Theresa Lucarelli the subject of a criminal investigation, the Board nevertheless proceeded to request her "explanation" as to those exact same matters. This letter predates by three weeks the June 28, 1995 letter to Mrs. Lucarelli from the Business Administrator/Board Secretary which stated:

> Pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:25-7, I have been directed by the Board to advise you that you are to appear before a committee of the Board on July 11, 1995 at 7:30 p.m. at the Brielle Elementary School, Library Conference Room, to be interviewed concerning your four written communications to the Superintendent > during the month of May 1995, copies of which are attached. You will be interviewed regarding the contents of the four attachments.

>
> In the event the aforementioned date is not convenient, the committee has scheduled July 18, 1995 as an alternate date for your interview, to be conducted at the same time and place.
> Inasmuch as your actions in this matter could adversely affect the continuation of your employment, salary, or salary increments, you are entitled to have a person of your own choosing present to advise and represent you during the interview. (R-5 in evidence)

The Board's reckless and callous indifference to Lucarelli's constitutional rights requires this tribunal's consideration in evaluating the charges, particularly when the issues are so obvious.[10] If this were not so, then the Board would have at least forbore its attempts to interrogate Theresa Lucarelli in these circumstances.

The offensive and hypocritical actions by the Board in setting up Theresa Lucarelli secretly for a criminal investigation by the County Prosecutor while at the same time attempting to elicit from her possibly incriminating statements contrary to the Fifth Amendment to the Federal Constitution was done for no other reason but to "get" the activist present of the teachers' union. For if the Board were pure in this matter, it would have advised Mrs. Lucarelli of its commencement of a criminal investigation against her before attempting to "interview" her about those very same events. Fortunately, the Federal Congress has provided mechanisms and remedies for persons who are aggrieved by such a callous disregard for their civil rights. See e.g., 42 U.S.C. §1983. one need only note R-6 in evidence, Lucarelli's June 30, 1995 response to Lozinski's June 28 letter, to understand how devilish the Board was. The coda to this duplicity is R-7 in evidence, which in its purported description of the "interview" which the Board was requesting, omits informing her that there may be significant Fifth Amendment concerns which she should consider.

[10] There is no question but that the Board perceived itself to be in a political fight with the union concerning the status of a popular teacher, Velasquez.

For the foregoing reasons, it is respectfully submitted that the Board has failed to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Theresa Lucarelli had engaged in unbecoming conduct. The Board only managed to prove its malice and bad faith towards Theresa Lucarelli.

Mrs. Lucarelli's twenty-three year history of exemplary performance in both her teaching and extracurricular activities require that she be returned to her employment as a physical education teacher with all benefits, emoluments and back pay to the date of her suspension.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

It is undisputed that respondent has been a satisfactory teaching staff member in the Board's employ for 23 years. In fact, the record demonstrates that she has made significant contributions to the children of the school district during her tenure. However, her past accomplishments and contributions do not excuse nor diminish her unbecoming conduct towards her immediate supervisor.

Notwithstanding that respondent has successfully completed her PTI commitment and obligations, the fact remains that she is alleged to have committed and indictable offense against her Superintendent of Schools; i.e., criminal coercion, N.J.S.A. 2C:13-5. As the Honorable Edgar R. Holmes, ALJ, observed in Siciliano, supra.:

> The dismissal of a criminal incident as a result of entering PTI is not a determination that the individual was not guilty of the conduct complained of; only that the matter was "adjusted." R. 3:28(c)(1). A note to *R.*3:28 pints out that "A defendant's consideration for admission (to PTI) must be measured according to his/her amenability to correction, responsiveness to rehabilitation and the nature of the offense." In other words PTI is only applicable if the criminal defendant committed some illicit conduct, otherwise he or she would not need correction or rehabilitation. Id. at 95.

The United States District Court, District of New Jersey held in Lindes v. Sutter, 621 F. Supp. 1197 (D.C.N.J. 1985) at 1201 that:

> Although neither the Third Circuit nor the New Jersey appellate courts have dealt with the issue of whether successful completion of PTI constitutes a termination favorable to the accused for purposes of bringing a lawsuit for malicious prosecutions, this Court is persuaded by the (1) reasonings of those courts which have addressed the issue and (2) the polices behind the very existence of the PTI program that disposition of a case through N.J.S.A. 2C:43-12 and 13 is not a termination favorable to the accused ...

The Court continued to state in Lindes v. Sutter that:

> ... In Thomas v. N.J. Institute of Technology, 178 N.J. Super. at 62, 427 A. 3d. 1142, the Superior Court held that "acceptance in PTI, even where the program is successfully completed, cannot be regarded as the equivalent of a judgment of acquittal or an otherwise favorable termination of the criminal proceeding."

Thus the Commissioner is not only permitted but, rather, obligated to view the elements underlying the charge, notwithstanding respondent's successful completion of PTI.

As set forth hereinbefore in the FINDINGS OF FACT, this tribunal determined that the Board proved, by a preponderance of the credible and unrebutted evidence, that the charge of unbecoming conduct against respondent is true in fact. Respondent did not defend against the Board's charge nor did she rebut its evidence in support of the charge. The Board's evidence clearly demonstrates that respondent attempted to intimidate and coerce the Superintendent and cause him to violate his statutory duty to change his recommendation to the Board for a non-tenured employee. Such an action would have granted tenure status to an individual who the Superintendent did not consider worthy of status.

One may tolerate expression of differences in philosophy, policies and principles in professional matters. Such expressions may, and often do, become heated and unorderly when people take opposing positions. In the professional setting, moreover, the expression of differing position is tolerated. What is not tolerated, however, is personal attacks, threats or intimidation to the opposing view. Such behavior does not comport with the Commissioner's admonition that teaching staff members are required to exhibit "self-restraint and controlled behavior." Sammons, supra. at 321. That is precisely the case here.

In her failure to rebut the Board's evidence against her, which are her own writings, respondent now attempts to claim this to be a labor law case. She now claims to be asserting her rights under the Federal and New Jersey Labor Laws to protect a member of her union. As this tribunal observed at the hearing, respondent's writings to the Superintendent made no reference, nor is there any indicia of a labor dispute. Nor is there any reference to a grievance, complaint or alleged violation of the negotiated agreement between the Board and the union. It is observed that respondent's written correspondence to the Superintendent is not on union letterhead to suggest she was representing Mr. Velasquez under the aegis of the union. In fact, there is no mention in her correspondence that she is representing the will and/or the direction of the union membership or that she had been authorized to do so. Rather, respondent's correspondence with the Superintendent was a handwritten personal attack where she threatened to expose the Superintendent to the police (and, presumably, the public) with unsubstantiated allegation of illegal drug use. Respondent's actions cannot be excused as "offensive speech and conduct ... in the context of grievance proceedings." (Respondent's Brief at page 8.) Rather, as the Grand Jury determined, it was criminal coercion.

Respondent argues that her actions did not cause the disruptions of the school program or educational process. While there may be little direct evidence of respondent's involvement, there is sufficient circumstantial evidence that her behavior toward the Superintendent contributed to the disruptions. The promotion of a pupil "sit down" during regular classroom time cannot be condoned when, as here, the school administration and the Board were performing their statutory duty with respect to teaching staff personnel. It is the Superintendent's obligation to recommend teaching staff personnel for contract renewal or tenure to the Board. It is then the Board's duty to either accept or reject the Superintendent's recommendation. Zimmerman v. Board of Education of the City of Newark, 38 N.J. 65 (1962). The other disruptive pupil conduct, i.e., wearing of ribbons and posters placed in the schoolhouse, cannot be attributed to a spontaneous response by children of a tender age. Rather, these disruptive activities required planning and execution by adults. Here, there was a lacking of "self-restraint and controlled behavior" of respondent and other teaching staff members. Sammons, supra. at 321.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Board has met its burden of proof, by a preponderance of the reliable and credible evidence, that its charge of respondent's unbecoming conduct is true in fact.

I CONCLUDE that under the facts and circumstances of respondent's unbecoming conduct, such behavior warrants her dismissal.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that respondent's dismissal from her tenured teaching position is effective as of the date of her suspension, August 29, 1995.

POST HEARING MOTION

Respondent new seeks an Order to Compel the Board to pay her salary subsequent to the completion of her PTI and in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. Respondent sets forth the following legal argument:

> THE FULL SALARY OF THERESA LUCARELLI MUST BE PAID BY THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF IN ACCORDANCE WITH N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.
> N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 provides:
> Upon certification of any charge to the Commissioner, the Board may suspend the person against whom such charge is made, with or without pay, but, if the determination of the charge by the Commissioner of Education is not made within 120 calendar days after certification of the charges, excluding all delays which are granted at the request of such person, then the full salary (except for said 120 days) of such person shall be paid beginning on the one hundred twenty-first day until such determination is made. Should the charge be dismissed, the person shall be reinstated immediately with full pay from the first day of such suspension. Should the charge be dismissed and the suspension be continued during an appeal therefrom, then the full pay or salary of such person shall continue until the determination of the appeal. However, the Board of Education shall deduct from said full pay or salary any sums received by such employee or officers by way of pay or salary from any substituted employment assumed during > such period of suspension. Should the charge be sustained on the original hearing or an appeal therefrom, and should such person appeal from the same, then the suspension may be continued unless and until such determination is reversed, in which event he shall be reinstated immediately with full pay as to the time of such suspension. (emphasis supplied.)

There is no question but that the Legislature mandated this requirement in order to benefit those persons subjected to payless suspension if the charges were not resolved within four months. The only exception to this command is if there is any delay "granted at the request" of the subject. Since there has been no delay at the request of Mrs. Lucarelli, her pay should have commenced on the 121st day of her suspension without pay. That would have occurred on or about December 28, 1995. However, the Brielle Board resolved on or about that time to continue Mrs. Lucarelli's suspension without pay pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:8.3. That statute provides:

> Any employee or officer of a Board of Education in this State who is suspended from his employment, office or position, other than by reason of indictment, pending any investigation, hearing or trial or any appeal therefrom, shall receive his full pay or salary during such period of suspension, except that in the event of charges against such employee or officer brought before the Board of Education or the Commissioner of Education pursuant to law, such suspension may be with or without pay or salary as provided in chapter 6 of which this section is a supplement. (emphasis supplied)

It is obvious that this amendment supplementing chapter 6 of Title 18A was enacted in order to address the question of suspension of an indicted employee as being an exception to the 120-day rule. Notwithstanding that assumption, the operation of this supplement to Mrs. Lucarelli is now moot. There is no indictment therefore, there is no basis for the application of the exception addressed by the amendment. All that remains is the resolution of the tenure charges, thus, placing Mrs. Lucarelli in the status quo ante her indictment, i.e., suspension pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. That being the case, Mrs. Lucarelli is entitled at the very least to her pay from the dated of the eradication of her indictment, February 8, 1997, through such time as there is determination by the Commissioner of Education. The Board's refusal to pay Mrs. Lucarelli is arbitrary and unreasonable. Although this appears to be a case of first impression, the Commission has held that "fundamental fairness" comes into play in these circumstances. cf. Beaty v. Newton Bd. of Ed., 1991 S.L.D. (Comm. June 25, 1991). Fundamental fairness requires the restoration of Mrs. Lucarelli's pay because there have been no findings against her of wrongdoing; such findings await the Commissioner's determination in due course. Mrs. Lucarelli has the right to equal protection of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 in the circumstances.

For the foregoing reasons the Board of Education of the Borough of Brielle should be directed and compelled to commence payment of full salary, benefits and emoluments effective February 8, 1997, at the latest or December 27, 1996, at the earliest.

The Board opposes respondent's motion and sets forth the following argument:

Respondent's motion which seeks to restore Lucarelli to the public payroll and the letter memorandum in support of same are without legal foundation. Further, it constitutes a complete reversal of respondent's prior position taken at the time the Board sought, by way of Motion, to expedite this proceeding. Lucarelli cannot have it both ways.

First, with regard to Lucarelli's reversal of position. The Board heretofore sought an early decision in this matter. On May 20, 1996, it filed with the Court a Notice of Motion seeking an expedited hearing on its Motion for Summary Decision, or in the alternative, on the single tenure charge filed against Lucarelli.

It should be noted that an Answer to that single charge had been filed on October 24, 1995. Although Lucarelli had been indicted twenty-two days prior to her filing of an Answer in these disciplinary proceedings, the Answer did not invoke the doctrine of Ott v. Board of Education of Hamilton Township, 160 N.J. Super. 333 (App. Div. 1978). Additionally, Lucarelli did not file any opposing papers to the aforementioned Motion which was argued via telephone on June 18, 1996. Lucarelli's position on the Motion, however, was set out in the Order on Motion for Summary Decision entered by this Court on June 26, 1996. That position reads in extenso:

> Respondent invokes the doctrine set down in Ott, supra., an does not expect to be placed on the Board's salary rolls subsequent to the expiration of the 120 day period, as provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:25-6 (sic). In fact, respondent is not presently on the Board's payroll and agrees to remain off the payroll pending the disposition of these disciplinary proceedings. It is understood, that in the event respondent is cleared of the herein tenure charges, she will be entitled to reinstatement with full back pay and benefits. (p.5).

In view of the foregoing position, it is difficult to comprehend Lucarelli's present argument of "fundamental fairness" predicated on Beatty v. Board of Education of Newton, 1991 S.L.D. 1001, a case clearly distinguishable from the matter herein. A litigant seeking "fundamental fairness" cannot be permitted, in June 1996, when responding to a Motion to expedite her hearing on a tenure charge, to agree to remain off the payroll pending the disposition of the charge, and in February 1997, while the charge is still pending a decision, argue that she is entitled to be placed back on the payroll immediately, and in addition, to be paid retroactively from either December 27, 1996 or February 8, 1997.

Fundamental fairness, within the context of the present case, supports a decision on this application in favor of the Board of Education. If Lucarelli is owed any salary, and certainly the Board argues she is not, the payment of same should not be made unless the respondent achieves a favorable judgment on these disciplinary proceedings.

Now to Lucarelli's argument predicated on the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3. Based on the language in the foregoing statutes, it is Lucarelli's contention that she should be placed back on the public payroll and paid retroactively from either "February 8, 1997 at the latest, or December 27, 1996 at the earliest." This position is clearly unsustainable based on the existing case law and the facts in this case.

The delay in this case in proceeding to a hearing was occasioned not by the Board, but by Lucarelli. She was charged with conduct unbecoming a teacher on August 29, 1995 and suspended without pay. Thus, the 120 day clock provided for in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 began to run on August 29, 1995. Lucarelli was subsequently indicted on October 2, 1995, and on December 20, 1995, less than 120 days following her initial suspension, the Board took formal action to continue that suspension without pay pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 See, Slattery v. Board of Education of Ramapo-Indian Hills Regional High School District, 237 N.J. Super. 424 (App. Div. 1989).

This action by the Board effectively tolled the 120 day clock of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. There is no time limitation contained in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 for returning a suspended teacher to the public payroll. The title of the latter statute makes it abundantly clear that it is an exception to the reinstitution of salary payments when the suspension, without pay, is occasioned by reason of a teacher's indictment. Accordingly, as of December 20, 1995, when the Board continued Lucarelli's suspension pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8. because of her indictment, there was no statutorily directed timeline for returning her to the public payroll.

Lucarelli, following her indictment, invoked, as noted above, the doctrine of Ott, supra., and thus caused the hearing of this matter to be further delayed until November 18, 1996. On the later date, Lucarelli decided to go forward with the hearing, despite the fact that her indictment was still extant. She had, in February of 1996, entered into a Pretrial Intervention Program [hereinafter "PTI program"], but as of November 18, 1996, she had not completed the requirements of same.

The requirements of the PTI program were completed by Lucarelli on February 8, 1997 and purportedly the indictment has been dismissed. Accordingly, Lucarelli now argues, inasmuch as the indictment is no longer extant, "... there is no basis for the application" of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3.

This argument, of course, cannot be reconciled with the case law. In the State Board decision, Pawlak v. Board of Education of the Borough of Hopatcong, 1988 S.L.D. 154, the following was written:

> We likewise find petitioner's claim for back pay for the period of the suspension pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 to be without merit. That statute makes no provision of back pay regardless of the disposition of the criminal indictment, and we find no basis under > the educational laws upon which he would be entitled to back pay in these circumstances. (at 156).

There, as in the matter before this Court, the indictment was disposed of through the completion of the PTI program. The employee sought back salary for the period of suspension without pay. The suspension, as here, was pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3. This conclusion by the State Board is dispositive of Lucarelli's argument regarding her entitlement to back pay.

And now a further look at Beatty, supra. Lucarelli in the memorandum supporting her Motion, relies on this case for the general equitable principle of "fundamental fairness." As noted above, this case is distinguishable from the case at bar. In Beatty, supra., the teacher was indicted, suspended without pay pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3, proceeded to trial, and was acquitted of all criminal charges. He then sought salary reimbursement for the period he was suspended pursuant to the foregoing statute. In awarding the back pay, the Commissioner wrote:

> At the present time, petitioner has not been guilty of any wrongdoing and the indictment upon which the suspension is based has been disposed of in his favor; therefore, it is concluded that as a matter of equity, back pay is awarded under the circumstances ...

These facts are not the facts in the case before this Court. There has been no trial on the indictment; there has been no determination of guilt or innocence of Lucarelli on the charge for which she was indicted. As noted above, Lucarelli's indictment was disposed of through the operation of the PTI program. This, of course, is significantly different from being absolved of guilty by a jury.

This distinction has not been lost on the State Board of Education, which, in Pawlak, supra., cited with approval Lindes v. Sutter, et al, 621 F. Supp. 1197, 1201-2 (1985):

> In this regard, we emphasize that regardless of petitioner's arguments to the contrary, dismissal of charges as a result of participation in the PTI does not imply innocence, but generally > implies guilty with amenability to rehabilitation." Pawlak, supra. at footnote 2, p. 156.

See also, Siciliano v. Board of Education of the Camden County Vocational-Technical School, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 94; Thomas v. New Jersey Inst. of Technology, 178 N.J. Super. 60 (Law Div. 1981).

Based on the foregoing, it is respectfully submitted that Lucarelli is not entitled to back pay. Further, petitioner submits that when a teacher is suspended without pay pursuant to an indictment as provided in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3, or a suspension is continued without pay following an indictment, as occurred here, any decision regarding back pay or placing the teacher back on the public payroll must await a decision on the indictment by a jury or the final determination of the underlying tenure charge by the Commissioner of Education.

CONCLUSIONS

This tribunal has concluded and determined that respondent should be terminated from her tenured position, effective the date of her suspension, August 29, 1995. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that respondent's Motion to Compel the Board to Pay Respondent, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 is now moot. As the Commissioner has held in prior decisions, he is constrained to decide moot issues. In Carolyn Henry v. Board of Education of the City of Wildwood, Cape May County, 1975 S.L.D. 1, the Commissioner reiterated his position where he said:

> It has been well established that the Commissioner does not decide moot issues. See Sharon Ann Pinkham v. Board of Education of the Borough of South River et al., Middlesex County, 1974, S.L.D. 1103; Patrick E. Tedesco v. Board of Education of Lodi, Bergen County, 1955-56, S.L.D. 69; R. McAllister v. Board of Education of the Borough of Lawnside, Camden County, et al., 1951-52 S.L.D. 39; Robert M. Rodgers v. Board of Education of the City of Orange, Essex County, 1956-57 S.L.D. 50; In Moss Estate, Inc. v. Metal and Thermit Corporation, 73 N.J. Super. 56, 67 (Chan. Div. 1962), the Court said:

> *It is the policy of the courts to refrain from advisory opinions, from deciding moot cases, or generally functioning in the abstract, and to decide only concrete contested issues conclusively affecting adversary parties in interest. Borchard, Declaratory Judgments (2*d. ed.* 1941), pp. 34-35.* Id. at p.3.

ORDER

It is therefore, ORDERED that respondent be and is hereby terminated from her tenured teaching position, effective August 29, 1995.

Accordingly, there is no necessity for this tribunal to rule on respondent's motion. The respondent's Motion is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF THERESA LUCARELLI,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE	:	DECISION
BOROUGH OF BRIELLE, MONMOUTH	:
COUNTY,	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Both respondent's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent first excepts to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) finding that there exists sufficient circumstantial evidence that she contributed to certain disruptions in the school, as noted in the initial decision. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 2) Respondent asserts that, other than the testimony provided by Superintendent Russoniello, "[t]here was not a scintilla of evidence presented by the [Board] which would allow an inference or finding that [she] was involved in the so-called 'disruptions.'" (Id. at p. 3) In reply, the Board reasons that, based on the language in respondent's correspondence to the superintendent, viewed together with the superintendent's refusal "to succumb to the threats," and the behavior of the students which followed the Board's acceptance of the superintendent's recommendation not to offer Mr. Velasquez a tenure-year contract, the ALJ's conclusion that respondent contributed to the disruption was "a proper inference that comports with a common sense approach to the facts." (Board's Reply at p. 3)

Respondent next excepts to the ALJ's factual finding that she did not cooperate with the Board. Instead, respondent maintains that she was never invited to the Board's meeting on June 5, 1995, and she did not learn until June 28, 1995 of the Board's request to appear before a committee scheduled to meet on July 11, 1995. (Respondent's Exceptions at pp. 4, 5) While the Board concedes that it did not invite respondent to its meeting of June 5, 1995, it maintains that respondent failed to cooperate, in that she did not appear on July 11, 1995. (Board's Reply at p. 3)

Respondent further contends that the ALJ erred in refusing to allow her to testify about the circumstances surrounding her writing the memoranda. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 5) Here, respondent claims that her counsel informed the tribunal that, "in issue was [her] history as a teacher as well as her seven past years as president of the education association which required substantial and significant contact with Superintendent Russoniello." (Id. at p. 6) Respondent also contends that the tribunal was informed that the memoranda would be viewed within the context of labor-management relations, as opposed to being viewed in the abstract. (Id.) That the ALJ refused to allow her to testify about her activities as the leader of the teacher's union, vis-à-vis her membership, foreclosed her from explaining and defending her actions on behalf of a member of her union. (Id.) The Board, however, reminds respondent that, according to the ALJ's Prehearing Order, the issue to be decided by that tribunal was

> Whether Theresa Lucarelli's actions, through a series of written communications to the Board's Superintendent of Schools, constitute threats, and therefore, conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. (Board's Reply at p. 4, citing Prehearing Order)

Thus, the Board insists that the fact that respondent happens to be the president of her local union provides her with no special privilege under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. The Board, therefore, reasons that the ALJ correctly precluded respondent from testifying about her duties as president of the local union. (Id.) Moreover, the Board finds respondent's written communications to be anything but abstract. The Board avers, "Written threats that forewarn a superior that unless he succumbs to the writer's demands he can expect the situation to become 'personal' and 'dirty' have, in a linguistic sense, more concreteness than the Hoover Dam." (Id.)

Respondent next asserts that the ALJ erred in concluding that the criminal coercion for which she had been indicted and subsequently diverted through a Pre-Trial Intervention Program (PTI) is material fact of her unbecoming conduct. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 8) Here respondent argues that while there is nothing to prevent the Board from proving, independently of PTI, her underlying behavior as constituting unbecoming conduct, it was improper for the ALJ to use her participation in PTI as a fact against her. The Board, respondent urges, must prove its case independently of PTI. (Id. at p. 9) Here, the Board counters that the ALJ did not use respondent's PTI participation as a fact against her and the ALJ, "in the clearest of terms, separated the PTI and its implications from the underlying charge of conduct unbecoming a teacher." (Board's Reply at p. 5) The Board points to that portion of the initial decision where the ALJ clearly states that the Commissioner is obligated to view "the elements underlying the charge, notwithstanding respondent's successful completion of PTI." (Id., citing the Initial Decision at pp. 30 and 31)

Respondent further asserts that, given her contributions to the District over the past 23 years, and the fact that the Board, notwithstanding its knowledge of her memoranda to the superintendent, allowed her to continue teaching the remainder of the 1994-95 academic year, thus, signifying that her presence could not be disruptive, the recommendation that she be dismissed from her tenured position, effective August 29, 1995, for a single incident is too harsh. (Respondent's Exceptions at pp. 10, 11) However, the Board finds respondent's "single incident" argument to be "inexplicable." (Board's Reply at p. 6) Instead, the Board avers, "Four letters of threat written on four separate days, although dealing with a single issue, cannot be characterized as a single incident." (Id.) The Board reasons

> The respondent's written threats to her Superintendent were clearly sufficiently flagrant to establish her unfitness to continue in her teaching position. The respondent here attempted to rend the very fabric of the statute which governs employment practices in the public schools. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1. Had she been successful in her attempt, she would have managed to substitute her judgment for that of the Superintendent in determining whether a non-tenured teacher should have received tenure. (Id.)

Finally, respondent asserts that the ALJ erred in concluding that her motion to compel the Board to pay her pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 is moot. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 11) For the reasons essentially set forth in her brief in support of her motion, respondent argues she has a right to be paid her salary "from February 8, 1997 through at least such time as the Commissioner renders his decision." (Id. at p. 13) The Board refutes her contention, maintaining its position that, inter alia, respondent is not due recommencement of her salary since she was suspended under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 which does not provide timelines for returning respondent to the payroll, that the dismissal of the indictment does not bring back into operation N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, and that respondent agreed to remain off the public payroll until such time as there was a disposition on the disciplinary proceedings. (Board's Reply at pp. 6, 7) The Board concludes, "When a tenured teacher is suspended without pay by reason of indictment, the 120-day clock of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 is tolled until such time as there is a final disposition of the disciplinary charge filed against the teacher." (Id. at p. 7)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which included transcripts of the hearing conducted at the OAL November 18, 20 and 21, 1996, the Commissioner determines to adopt in part, and modify in part, the initial decision of the ALJ.

THE TENURE CHARGE

The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the Board has demonstrated by a preponderance of credible and unrebutted evidence that respondent is guilty of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. (Initial Decision at p. 12) Contrary to respondent's assertion, the Commissioner finds that the ALJ properly weighed the facts underlying respondent's charge of criminal coercion, and did not use her participation in PTI as a fact against her.

The Commissioner finds it noteworthy that, while respondent disputes that the memoranda she served upon the superintendent constituted threats and, further, contests the fact of her participation in subsequent events which served to disrupt the school, she never denies the fact of the memoranda themselves. In this regard, the Commissioner finds that the memoranda, by their very language, demanded particular action of the superintendent and predicted negative consequences if he did not so comply; thus, these memoranda constituted threats to the superintendent. That an action may be characterized as a "threat" turns not on the actual consequences of that action, but on the actor's declaration of intent to cause harm.[1] Therefore, whether the superintendent actually felt threatened by these messages, or whether these writings in any way contributed to the ensuing disturbances in the District is immaterial. The writings evidence, in and of themselves, improper conduct. Accordingly, to the extent the initial decision places significance on the apparent link between respondent's written messages and the disruptive events which later took place in the District, the Commissioner disavows the importance of said link to the outcome of the instant matter.

Additionally, the Commissioner concurs with the Board that, in accordance with the Prehearing Order issued by the ALJ on April 18, 1996, the sole issues to be determined in this proceeding were:

> 1. Whether respondent's actions, through a series of written communications to the Board's Superintendent of Schools constitutes threats and, therefore, conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member?
> 2. If the charges are true in fact, what penalty is appropriate?

Consequently, the Commissioner does not find the ALJ's ruling which precluded respondent's testimony concerning the position she held in her local association to be erroneous. Moreover, respondent's broad assertion that the ALJ refused her testimony "about the circumstances surrounding her writing the memoranda" (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 5) simply does not comport with the record in this matter.[2]

THE PENALTY

The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that, notwithstanding respondent's apparently unblemished record in the employ of the Board, her actions in writing the memoranda to the superintendent are so egregious as to prohibit excuse, particularly in light of the standard to which teachers are held. See In re Sammons, supra, at 321. For the reasons advanced by both the Board and the ALJ in the initial decision, the Commissioner finds that respondent's dismissal is warranted.

RESPONDENT'S MOTION

As noted in the initial decision, respondent seeks an order compelling the Board to pay her salary subsequent to her completion of PTI on February 8, 1997. In accordance with the above discussion, yet contrary to the findings of the ALJ, the Commissioner determines that respondent's motion is not moot, as the date of her dismissal is not August 29, 1995, but the date the decision herein is issued. The Commissioner further finds that, under these circumstances, while respondent is not entitled to her back pay for the period of time in which she was suspended by reason of her indictment under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3, See Siciliano, supra, at 96; Pawlak, supra, affirmed N.J. Superior Court, Appellate Division, July 12, 1989, A-5083-87T2, she was entitled, upon the completion of PTI on February 8, 1997, to resume her status as a suspended employee pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. In that the Board suspended respondent without pay under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 prior to the expiration of 120 days, as provided by

THE COURT: Let's hear it.

* * *

MR. MELLK: -- I can continue with the line of questioning.

THE COURT: Whether or not she was the president or secretary of the association is not relevant, in my judgment. And that objection is sustained. Move forward please.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, the Board is not obligated to retroactively pay respondent for that period of time following her completion of PTI, but before the remainder of the 120 days expired. However, respondent is due back pay and emoluments from the 121st day of that portion of her suspension attributable to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, until the date of this decision.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted in part and modified in part, as set forth above. The Board is directed to compensate respondent for the time frame noted above. Respondent is hereby dismissed from her tenured position with the Board as of the date of this decision, and this matter will be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for action as it deems appropriate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:1.1-3.6.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF OCEAN GATE, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured Chief School Administrator, alleged that the Board improperly withheld a portion of his salary. Board contended the $1,000 withheld was for a function which was eliminated from its school budget.

ALJ granted petitioner's motion for summary decision. ALJ found that the Board's action in reducing petitioner's salary by $1,000 per year was an improper reduction in his compensation violating the tenure laws. ALJ ordered the Board to retroactively pay to petitioner $1,000 per year, retroactive to the 1995-96 school year, which it wrongfully withheld, and to restore such $1,000 per year to his salary.

Commissioner concurred with the initial decision of the ALJ and directed payment to petitioner.

Record Closed: February 20, 1997 Decided: March 10, 1997

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education on March 5, 1996, alleging that his annual compensation as a Chief School Administrator was reduced by $1,000 contrary to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. In its response, respondent alleges that this payment made by respondent to petitioner was for a function which was eliminated from its school budget. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on April 8, 1996 for hearing as a contested case.

The matter was scheduled for a prehearing conference on June 25, 1996. On that date, and with the consent of the parties, the prehearing conference was converted to a scheduling conference and by a Letter Order entered on June 28, 1996, a schedule was established for the completion of discovery by July 26, 1996, for the submission of a summary decision motion by petitioner by August 26, 1996, and a response by respondent by September 26, 1996. Because of delays in providing discovery a Letter Order was entered on October 9, 1996, amending the prior schedule and providing for the completion of discovery by October 15, 1996, for the submission of a summary decision motion by petitioner by November 15, 1996, and a response by respondent by December 16, 1996.

Petitioner's motion for summary decision was filed on November 14, 1996 (P-1 and P-2), and respondent's response was filed on January 31, 1997 (R-1 and R-2). As a result of a telephone conference held on February 4, 1996, petitioner was given the opportunity to file a reply, and this was filed on February 20, 1997 (P-3), whereupon the record closed.

At the scheduling conference held on June 25, 1996, the attorneys for the respective party indicated that there was no dispute as to the facts and that this matter was appropriate for resolution as a matter of law. The undisputed facts are summarized herein.

Petitioner has been employed as the Chief School Administrator by respondent, Ocean Gate Board of Education for approximately 23 years, and has tenure in this position.

On December 3, 1991, petitioner and the respondent Board of Education entered into an Agreement beginning July 1, 1990 and ending June 30, 1992, providing for petitioner's employment as the Chief School Administrator, and setting forth the terms and conditions of employment (P-1, Exhibit A). Article VII of that Agreement provides as follows:

Salaries

The salary of the Chief School Administrator shall be $55,000.
The salary will be budgeted as follows:

Line 110 Administrative Salaries	53,200
Line 310 Salaries Health Services (attendance officer)	500
Line 610A1 Contracted Services (asbestos manager)	1,000
Line 660B2 Operation (gas reimbursement)	300
Total	55,000

That Agreement expired on June 30, 1992. However, beginning July 1, 1992, respondent continued to pay petitioner an annual salary of $55,000 as his compensation every school year until the 1995-96 school year, and reported to the Teacher's Pension and Annuity Fund that petitioner earned a salary of $55,000.

Petitioner asserts that on December 11, 1995, the Board President of respondent directed the Board Secretary/Business Administrator not to pay petitioner $1,000 of his salary. It was alleged that the Board President took this action on her own and without any vote or action on the part of the Board to direct the Board Secretary/Business Administrator to withhold or reduce part of petitioner's compensation. The Board Secretary/Business Administrator did not pay to petitioner $1,000 of his salary at that time.

On February 20, 1996, respondent eliminated the position and budget item for "asbestos manager." Respondent has no job description or any other type of documentary evidence indicating that this was a position which required duties in addition to those performed by him as the Chief School Administrator.

On March 5, 1996 Mr. Adams filed the petition in this matter alleging an illegal reduction in compensation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

In support of its position, respondent submitted the Certification of Paulette Konopka, Board President, dated January 31, 1997 (R-2). Ms. Konopka identified a true copy of the 1995-95 School District budget (R-2, Exhibit A) which excluded any appropriation for contracted services for asbestos manager. She indicates that the Board took this action based on the fact that the facilities had become asbestos free as a result of certain construction programs undertaken by the Board. The appropriation for asbestos manager was eliminated by the Board for economy reasons on the basis of District Policy 4117.4 (R-2, Exhibit B). As a result, the petitioner did not receive compensation as asbestos manager due to the exclusion of that line item from the Budget. A resolution was adopted by the Board of Education on February 21, 1997 confirming this (R-2, Exhibit C).

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Summary decision is a device for expeditiously reviewing the merits of a case to determine if the moving party is entitled to a favorable decision without the necessity of a hearing. See, Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 73-75 (1954). It may be granted if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, clearly show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b); Templeton v. Boro. of Glen Rock, 11 N.J. Super. 1, 4 (App. Div. 1950). As the Supreme Court recently stated:

> . . . [A] determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weight the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial."

Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995) citing Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 249 (1986).

In order to determine if a motion for summary decision should be granted or denied, the applicable law must be applied to the undisputed facts. Here, where there are no facts in dispute, it is clear that this matter should be resolved by way of summary decision.

Petitioner herein relies on N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 which provides that no person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation if that person is under tenure of office, position or employment. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 provides in relevant part that a person who has met the requirements to attain tenure in office,

> . . . shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecoming such a teaching staff member or other just cause and then only in the manner prescribed by subarticle B of article 2 of chapter 6 of this Title . . .

Article VIII of the Agreement between the parties dated December 3, 1991 (P-1, Exhibit A), provides that "the salary of the Chief School Administrator shall be $55,000." Petitioner points out that the language of the Agreement contains no provision that petitioner would be paid portions of his salary for performing certain duties. The Agreement merely indicates that petitioner's salary as the district's Chief School Administrator is to be $55,000 without qualification as to how that amount was to be allocated. While the Agreement indicates how the salary will be budgeted, it has not been argued by respondent that the budgeting of these funds is a condition precedent to the payment of the salary.

Petitioner argues that under New Jersey law "an agreement arises from offer and acceptance, and must be sufficiently definite that the performance to be rendered by each party can be ascertained with reasonable certainty." Weichert Co. Realtors v. Ryan, 128 N.J. 427, 435 (1992), citing West Caldwell v. Caldwell, 26 N.J. 9, 24-25 (1958); Friedman v. Tappan Dev. Corp., 22 N.J. 523, 531 (1956); Leitner v. Braen, 51 N.J. Super. 31, 38-39 (App. Div. 1958). It is undisputed that the parties entered into an agreement which provided with certainty that petitioner was to be paid a salary of $55,000 per year for performing the duties of Chief School Administrator. It is also undisputed that respondent continued to pay petitioner a salary of $55,000 for performing the duties of Chief School Administrator in the years following the expiration of the Agreement. Therefore, I FIND that petitioner's annual salary for performing the duties of Chief School Administrator is $55,000.

Respondent relies on N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 and Impey v. Bd of Educ., 273 N.J. Super. 429 (App. Div. 1994), affirmed 142 N.J. 388 (1995), as authority for its actions in this matter. The foregoing authorize a board of education to reduce the number of staff members and abolish positions for reasons of economy and other good cause. However, in Impey, the position of a part-time speech correctionist was eliminated and she was terminated from the school district and her former duties were undertaken by a county educational services commission. That is not the same as the action taken with respect to petitioner's position. There is no suggestion in this matter that petitioner's position has been eliminated or that his hours have been reduced so as to make it a part-time position. Respondent is simply eliminating one of the duties and responsibilities imposed on petitioner. The position held by petitioner has never been reduced from a full-time position so as to permit respondent to reduce petitioner's full-time salary. See, Bassett v. Bd. of Educ. of the Boro. of Oakland, 223 N.J. Super. 136 (App. Div. 1988).

The tenure rights of a teaching staff member are set by statute and there is no right conferred on boards to tamper with those rights based upon a funding source which may be tenuous. See, e.g., Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63, 81 (1982) (holding that teachers acquire tenure even though their positions were created based upon federal funds which may be tenuous). Once tenure is acquired, a teaching staff member acquires the right not to be reduced in compensation unless the tenured teaching staff member is dismissed for cause or for good faith economic reasons. Once respondent began paying petitioner a certain salary, respondent was not authorized to unilaterally reduce or remove a portion of that salary by eliminating one of the funding sources for the salary contained in the budget.

It is undisputed that respondent took no action to reduce Mr. Adams' salary by $1,000 per year in accordance with the tenure laws. Therefore, I FIND that respondent's action in reducing petitioner's salary by $1,000 per year is an improper reduction in his compensation. When a board of education interferes with an employee's tenure rights, that employee is entitled to back pay. See, Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. at 83-84. Because respondent improperly withheld a portion of petitioner's salary and, in effect, reduced his salary, he is entitled to the payment of $1,000 per year back pay retroactive to the 1995-96 school year. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that respondent shall be ordered to retroactively pay to petitioner the $1,000 per year it wrongfully withheld, and to restore that $1,000 per year to his salary.

In view of the foregoing, it is not necessary to address petitioner's additional argument that respondent is still required to pay to petitioner his full salary of $55,000 for the 1995-96 school year because the budget item was not eliminated until February 1996, more than eight months into the school year. Likewise, it is not necessary to address petitioner's argument that if respondent is permitted to unilaterally eliminate the line item for asbestos manager for the 1995-96 school year, this should be reported to the Commissioner of Education, and the money should be refunded to the New Jersey Department of Education for failure to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:58-68 to -76.

Since there is nothing in the record to establish that respondent's action was taken in bad faith or was a deliberate violation of the statute, it is unnecessary to consider the award of interest pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c)1.

DECISION AND ORDER

For the reasons stated above, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's motion for summary decision is hereby GRANTED, and it is ORDERED that respondent shall be required to retroactively pay to petitioner $1,000 per year which it has wrongfully withheld, and to restore $1,000 per year to his salary.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF OCEAN GATE, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that the Board's action in reducing petitioner's salary by $1,000 per year constitutes an improper reduction in his compensation. While the Board was free to choose to reallocate the payment of petitioner's salary within the budget, it was not entitled to discontinue any portion of such salary without following the procedures set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 et seq. As such, petitioner is entitled to have this amount restored to his salary and to receive payment of $1,000 per year retroactive to the 1995-96 school year.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons articulated therein. Summary decision is hereby granted to petitioner and the Board is ordered to retroactively pay petitioner the $1,000 per year which it wrongfully withheld, and to restore such $1,000 per year to petitioner's salary.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner alleged that although in January 1995 he was tenured as a guidance counselor, the Board, in violation of his tenure rights, hired a nontenured individual to fill a full-time guidance counselor position. The Board contended petitioner's duties were more limited in scope than those of a certified guidance counselor.

Citing Spiewak and testimony of witnesses, the ALJ concluded petitioner was entitled to the guidance counselor position. ALJ found that petitioner met all three requirements of Spiewak for one to claim statutory tenure -- 1) work in a position for which a certificate is required; 2) hold such a certificate; and 3) work the requisite number of years in the position. Moreover, the ALJ found that petitioner's duties were exactly those activities a guidance counselor would normally perform, albeit not as often as a full-time person. The Board was instructed immediately to take such steps as may be necessary and appropriate to place petitioner in said guidance counselor position.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioner, in January 1995, was entitled by virtue of his tenure to be appointed to the full-time guidance counselor position awarded by the Board to a nontenured individual and that he must, therefore, be immediately placed in such position. Commissioner found, as did the ALJ, that the record was abundantly clear that petitioner, while properly certified, performed the very duties which guidance counselors perform for the statutorily requisite period of time and, thus, petitioner satisfied the criteria necessary in order to claim tenure in said position pursuant to Spiewak. Board was directed to place petitioner in the full-time guidance counselor position immediately. The Commissioner further urges all boards of education to review informal appointments to tenure-eligible positions being made by their administrators.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education in May 1995 as the result of the filing of a verified petition by Gerald Dudzinski alleging that although in January 1995 he was tenured as a guidance counselor the Board, in violation of his tenure rights, hired a non-tenured person to fill a vacancy in a full-time guidance counselor position in the school district. A prehearing conference was conducted by the undersigned on September 1, 1995 and several issues were identified. They included, in addition to the basic issue of petitioner's tenure claim to entitlement to the guidance position, separate defenses of the "90-day" bar of N.J.A.C. 24-1.2, estoppel, laches, waiver and unclean hands.

Hearing dates originally scheduled for April 1996 had to be adjourned and the hearing took place in September 1996. Thereafter, a schedule for the filing of post-hearing briefs was established and briefs were filed with me. As the result of an order the due date for this initial decision was extended until March 17, 1997.

STIPULATED FACTS:

Prior to the commencement of the hearing counsel agreed to a Partial Stipulation of Facts (Court Exhibit 1) as follows (exhibit references deleted):

1. Petitioner was initially hired by respondent effective February 1, 1996, for service as a teacher under his instructional certificate.

2. Petitioner achieved tenure under his instructional certificate in February 1969.

3. Prior to the 1982-83 school year, the Franklin school system was a K through 12 district. Since and including the 1982-83 school year, the district is limited to grades K through 8. Grades 9 through 12 were regionalized beginning at the start of the 1982-83 school year.

4. During the course of the 1988-89 school year petitioner was voluntarily reassigned from teaching duties to the position of School Business Administrator. During the course of the 1991-92 school year, petitioner returned to a teaching position voluntarily. He is currently still employed by respondent as a full-time teacher.

5. Petitioner holds the following educational certificates and endorsements:

Instructional

Secondary Teacher of English, issued 1966

Temporary Elementary Education, issued 9/2/82-11/2/82

Regular Elementary School Teacher, issued 12/82

Educational Services

Student Personnel Services, issued 6/82

Administrative

Principal Supervisor, issued 2/81

School Business Administrator, issued 2/89

6. Respondent's current job description for the position of Guidance Counselor is attached. . . .

7. On March 16, 1987, respondent appointed Dennis Snyder as a full-time guidance counselor for the 1987-88 school year. He continued in that position into the 1994-95 school year.

8. On December 7, 1994, Dennis Snyder was promoted to the position of Vice Principal. On or about December 8, 1994, respondent posted the position of Guidance Counselor. Petitioner applied for the position and participated in the interview process.

9. Petitioner was notified by letter of January 18, 1995 that he would not be appointed to the guidance counselor position vacated by Mr. Snyder.

10. Respondent hired a new employee, Suzanne Crisman, as its sole guidance counselor, effective February 1, 1995. Ms. Crisman holds a Student Personnel Services endorsement which was issued in November, 1992. Ms. Crisman is not a tenured employee of respondent.

11. During the period from September 1982 to March 15, 1987, respondent did not adopt any resolutions appointing anyone to serve as a guidance counselor in its district.

12. On March 5, 1982, petitioner was appointed by respondent to serve as a 'Student Advisor' for the Guidance Department for the remainder of that school year. No subsequent resolutions appointing 'Student Advisors' were adopted by the Board.

13. A true copy of the minutes of respondent's work session of October 9, 1984 are attached. . . .

14. A true copy of the current job description for the position of elementary teacher in respondent's district is attached. . . .

15. Petitioner's 1995-96 salary as a guidance counselor would have been the same as the salary he actually earned as a teacher for that year.

TESTIMONY

A. Testimony for Petitioner

Dudzinski testified at length on his own behalf. Prior to 1982 he was employed as a elementary school teacher in Franklin Township, then a K-12 school district. In the Spring of 1982 an opening occurred for an elementary guidance person since the individual who performed that function in the district had been appointed to be head of guidance at the 9-12 regional high school which the Franklin Township Board had just joined. In early March 1982, Dudzinski and two others were appointed to perform certain functions one period per day which, he claimed, were distinctly guidance in nature. Although petitioner by then had completed his course work to obtain guidance certification, the actual certificate was not issued to him until June 1982.

In September 1982, Dudzinski was assigned to teach 8th grade but he continued to be assigned as well, to work one period a day in the "career office". During the school years 1982-83 through 1986-1987 petitioner continued to perform those functions, either one or two periods per day, and insisted they were guidance in nature. Indeed, many of the duties were the same as those set forth in a guidance counselor job description which had been adopted by the Board in 1995 (Exhibit J-7).

Although a full-time elementary guidance position was posted in 1987, Dudzinski did not apply for it and he continued to serve as an elementary teacher through the 1988-89 school year. From September 1989 to sometime during 1992 he served as the district's school business administrator. Since then, he has returned to a regular teaching position. In late 1994, when the individual who had taken the full-time guidance position in 1987 (Dennis Snyder) was appointed a vice principal, Dudzinski applied for the vacated position and was interviewed for it. However, Crisman, not he, was selected (Exhibit J-8), effective February 1, 1995.

During the course of his direct testimony the witness identified a variety of documents which, he claimed, supported his position. For example, in October 1984, the then Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Patrick Piegari, wrote to thank Dudzinski for participating in a presentation made to the Board on October 9, 1984 dealing with the "guidance program" (Exhibit P-2). So too, in a letter dated June 10, 1987 addressed "To Whom It May Concern", Dr. Piegari referred to the fact that Dudzinski had been a " . . . successful part-time guidance counselor . . . for the past five years", and " . . . as a guidance teacher, he is very effective working with parents and students and often has to deal with some very difficult situations" (Exhibit P-3). Dr. Piegari went on to observe that Dudzinski had made, " . . . constructive suggestions that helped with the smooth operation of our guidance program [and] . . . has also been actively involved in our district testing program and is very competent, analyzing and presenting test results to parents and staff (Exhibit P-3). Piegari concluded that letter by referring to petitioner as " . . . an asset to our guidance department . . . [who] would be a successful addition to any elementary or secondary guidance program" (Exhibit P-3). Thus, the Superintendent "highly" recommended petitioner for a position in whatever district was reviewing the letter of reference.

Another document identified by Dudzinski during his direct testimony was a letter dated March 1, 1990 sent to the Superintendent of the Passaic Valley Regional High School District by Ms. Naomi Davidsson, Principal of the Franklin Elementary School, in reference to an application Dudzinski had made for a position as "grade level supervisor" in that district. According to Davidsson's letter, Dudzinski had served successfully in Franklin not only as a supervisor and a teacher, but, in addition, had " . . .served as a guidance counselor in grades 5 - 12 [and that] . . . Dudzinski [had] piloted the guidance program at the elementary level because no program had existed there." (Exhibit P-4). Thus, Davidsson recommended Dudzinski for the position "without reservation".

When cross-examined, Dudzinski first conceded that since Ms. Davidsson had not been employed in the district prior to 1987, the information she put in her letter was obtained from him. He also agreed that after March 1982 he never received any formal letter or resolution of appointment from the superintendent, the Board or from any other official, person or entity concerning the "guidance" position.

Dudzinski also identified a variety of other documents including: (1) his application in January 1989 for SBA certification wherein no reference was made by him to any guidance experience (Exhibit R-1); (2) a seniority worksheet which he completed in January 1985 which also failed to claim any guidance experience (Exhibit R-2); (3) a seniority list prepared in September 1985 which gave him no credit for any guidance activities (Exhibit R-3); (4) an employment history form contained in his personnel file which contained no reference to any guidance activities (Exhibit R-4); and (5) a letter of recommendation prepared in August 1983 by the then Superintendent of Schools, Thomas L. Komlo, addressed "To Whom It May Concern" in support of Dudzinski's application to other districts to be an administrator wherein no reference was made to any guidance function either (Exhibit R-6).

In addition on cross-examination, the petitioner was "walked through" the 1995 guidance job specification (Exhibit J-7) and he agreed with respect to many of the items contained therein that they also are performed by teachers. He also admitted that at no time did he conduct any guidance workshops, nor group meetings with parents as a guidance person. However, he did meet often with parents regarding student test results.

Finally, with respect to the letter from Dr. Piegari concerning the October 1984 presentation made to the Board, Dudzinski agreed that was the only time he ever appeared before the Board in connection with any activities that could be called guidance related.

On redirect examination, Dudzinski explained that the reason he did not stress any guidance activities prior to applying for the 1995 vacancy was simply that he did not appreciate the strength of any potential claim he might have based upon his tenure.

B. Testimony for Respondent

The first witness for the Board, Dr. Piegari, was Superintendent of Schools in Franklin between October 1983 and June 1987. At present he is Superintendent of Schools in West Milford.

Piegari explained that upon being hired he became concerned there was no full-time guidance counselor at the elementary level. Thus, in order immediately to deal with that problem he determined to assign a few regular elementary teachers to provide "guidance support services" one period per day. He earlier had discussed this situation with the Board but implementation had been somewhat delayed because of budget concerns.

Thus, Dr. Piegari tabbed a small number of teachers (including petitioner) to serve the one duty assignment period per day. In 1983-84, Dennis Snyder who was a 4th grade teacher, was assigned to counsel 3rd and 4th graders. Another teacher performed the same function for grades 5 and 6 and Dudzinski was assigned the function for 7th and 8th graders. All three, he said, had expressed both an interest in this activity and a willingness to carry it out. Piegari denied there was any consideration given by him to the fact that Dudzinski and the other teachers were certified in guidance. As far as Piegari was concerned, the basic duties to be carried out by all three merely were to put together a program for Career Day, take referrals from teachers, counsel students regarding failing grades, and help coordinate testing programs. In October 1984 he asked the three to make a presentation to a Board workshop meeting in order to inform it of the guidance activities which had been put in place that school year. At no time was any "formal" appointment of Dudzinski or the others recommended by Piegari, nor was any made by the Board.

In 1986 Piegari prepared a guidance counselor job description in anticipation of the creation of a full-time guidance position at the elementary level (Exhibit R-8). That job description was adopted by the Board (Exhibit R-9) and Snyder was appointed to be the guidance counselor in March 1987. Piegari left the district at the end of the 1986-87 school year and could not recall whether Dudzinski had applied for the job vacated by Snyder (he had not).

Piegari insisted that Dudzinski never performed testing and pupil placement in any meaningful way insofar as true guidance activities are concerned, although he conceded petitioner could have talked informally with students and parents on topics that guidance counselors normally did as well.

With respect to the letter of recommendation that he wrote on Dudzinski's behalf in June 1987 (Exhibit P-3), Piegari explained he did so at Dudzinski's request in connection with an application petitioner had made for an out-of-district position. Although he made reference in that letter to guidance activities carried out by Dudzinski, in fact the petitioner did not in Piegari's view perform any activities which a regular teacher could not do.

On cross-examination, Piegari insisted that he never required, no less think of requiring guidance certification for petitioner and the other persons performing the guidance-type support services as a duty assignment, and he reiterated the reason the function was kept in place was in order to provide some sort of ad hoc activity designed to fill a gap stemming from the Board's inability to budget for a full-time counselor.

Finally, Piegari agreed it is possible the building principal could have delegated certain functions to Dudzinski with respect to assisting students in their transition from elementary to high school.

On redirect examination, the witness insisted that Dudzinski did not perform any function which a regular classroom teacher could or would not have performed if directed to do so by the superintendent if the person had the time to do it.

The last Board witness, Thomas N. Turner, is respondent's Superintendent of Schools and succeeded Piegari in that position in 1987. When he arrived Snyder recently had been appointed as full-time guidance counselor. In late 1994, when Snyder was promoted to be a vice principal, the district posted the vacancy in the full-time guidance position. Dudzinski applied and was interviewed by Turner and Snyder. However, the screening committee determined to recommend to the Board the appointment of Ms. Crisman and this was done, effective February 1, 1995.

DISCUSSION

The parties agree that the decision in Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63 (1982) establishes the criteria necessary in order for one to claim statutory tenure - (a) work in a position for which a certificate is required; (b) hold such a certificate; and (c) work the requisite number of years in the position. In my view Dudzinski met all three requirements. Nor is his claim to the position to be denied on the basis that at no time after 1982 was any formal resolution adopted by the Board appointing him to perform guidance counselor functions.

Specifically, the functions of guidance counselors set forth in the Board's own job description (Exhibit R-8), when matched against the kinds of activities that Dudzinski testified without contradiction that he performed, clearly demonstrate that during one or two periods per day from March 1982 to June 1987 he was performing in a guidance counselor capacity and not simply providing some amorphous disconnected "support service". He was: (a) involved directly in the maintenance and assembly of student records; (b) orienting students to school procedures; (c) assisting students with respect to standardized test scores; (d) screening new students for proper placement; (e) coordinating the carrying out of tests; (f) discussing test scores and other matters with parents; (g) speaking with students who had been referred by others to him; (h) counseling students in respect to problems they might have either in school, at home, or elsewhere; (i) arranging for tutoring; (j) initiating and conducting conferences with parents; and (k) working with teachers and other staff members to familiarize them with the guidance-type services offered at the elementary level. Indeed, as set forth in the Board's initial brief, a discussion which I had with Dr. Piegari points inexorably to the conclusion that the kinds of activities and functions carried out by Dudzinski during the period or two per day he performed the duty assignment given to him were exactly those activities which guidance counselors normally would perform, albeit not as often because he was not acting in a full-time position (See Tr., 163-14 through 166-6). In short, as urged by Dudzinski, his activities during the period from March 1982 to June 1987 met the first part of the Spiewak test.

Second, it has been stipulated that petitioner held a valid Student Personnel Services endorsement as of June 1982 (Exhibit C-1, para. 5), and Dudzinski testified as to his eligibility for that endorsement even prior to issuance of the certificate. Thus, it cannot be disputed that his performance since March 1982 must count toward tenure.

Finally, even though he worked only part-time in the guidance function, there is no dispute that petitioner worked the requisite number of years to achieve tenure under his Educational Services certification and his Student Personnel Services endorsement thereto. Thus, he has satisfied all three prongs of Spiewak.

A major defense posited by the Board is its contention that petitioner cannot have accrued eligible time toward tenure in a guidance position since he was never formally appointed to do so by the Board. However, as noted by petitioner in his reply brief, the primary authority offered for this proposition rests upon the decision in Buehler v. Bd. of Ed. of Ocean Tp. 1970 S.L.D. 436, (December 17, 1970), aff'd St. Bd. of Ed., 1971 S.L.D. 660, (June 2, 1971), aff'd N.J. Super., (App. Div.), 1972 S.L.D. 664, (November 2, 1972) (unreported), which petitioner argues has been rendered inapplicable by subsequent decisions. I agree.

The major decision upon which petitioner understandably places great emphasis is Ayoub v. So. Plainfield Bd. of Ed., 1988 S.L.D. 941. In Ayoub, as in this case, the petitioner claimed tenure in a position to which he had never formally been assigned by the Board. There the petitioner had been transferred to a teaching position from a position as a cooperative industrial education coordinator and had been certified for both positions. The administrative law judge relied upon Buehler to reject Ayoub's claim by concluding that since petitioner had never been appointed as a cooperative industrial education coordinator by the Board, but simply had been assigned those duties, there was no basis for him to claim tenure. Nor was there any allegation in that case that the Board had acted in bad faith by endorsing by silence the informal appointment in order to avoid the consequences of tenure attaching to Ayoub's position. The Commissioner, however, rejected the initial decision since under Spiewak, the petitioner in Ayoub worked while duly certified in the position of coordinator for the requisite number of years - all that was needed. With regard, in particular, to the claim that Ayoub's assignment to be a coordinator could not be honored because it was never the subject of a Board resolution, the Commissioner flatly disagreed, observing that " . . . tenure is a legislative protection which the Commissioner must vigilantly and assiduously guard from erosion, evasion or subterfuge", Ayoub, supra, 1988 S.L.D. at 950. See also, Zielinski v. Bd. of Ed. of Guttenberg, 1970 S.L.D. 202, rev'd St. Bd. 1972 S.L.D., 664, aff'd N.J. Super. (App. Div. 1972), 1972 S.L.D., 692. In light of Ayoub, Zielenski and subsequent decisions which stress the need to honor the legislative prescription as to the elements needed for acquisition of tenure and the need as well, assiduously to avoid any subterfuge, real or potential[1], it was wrong to deny Dudzinski appointment to the guidance counselor position in favor of a non-tenured person. The absence of a formal Board resolution, under these circumstances, is not relevant.

The remaining issues are whether Dudzinski's claim is barred by application of either the doctrines of laches or estoppel. The Board's additional separate defenses (waiver, the "90 day" rule and unclean hands) seem to have been dropped since no reference was made to them either in the respondent's original brief or in its reply brief.

With respect to its laches defense, the Board argues that petitioner "slept" on whatever rights he had to claim the guidance position on the basis of tenure since, if petitioner was correct in his interpretation, he was entitled as early as March 1987 to put in a claim to the new guidance position which was awarded that year to Snyder. Thus, by waiting almost eight years to assert the same claim he now should be barred from pursuit of his case. Indeed, the Board also stresses that neither when petitioner applied for the position vacated by Snyder in late 1994, nor interviewed, did he even assert any tenure claim and it was not until after Crisman was appointed and began working that he first put forth that contention. Thus, according to the Board, had petitioner timely acted to assert his claim, if not in 1987, at least in late 1994, the respondent would have had an opportunity to evaluate the claim in a "non-litigation" context and perhaps avoided going through the interview process and the hiring of Crisman who, it claims, left another job in order to accept the position with the respondent.

In my view, the laches argument must be rejected. First, as petitioner points out in his reply brief, the claim in this case relates not to the 1987 appointment of Snyder which was never challenged by Dudzinski (and need not have been), but to the appointment of Crisman in January 1995. There clearly was no delay, unreasonable, unexplained or otherwise, between the appointment of Crisman and the filing of the verified petition in this case and I perceive no undue prejudice either to the Board or to Crisman by any action or inaction of the petitioner. Indeed, even though the "90-day rule" claim has not been pursued by the Board, it seems obvious that under settled case law, even if it was pursued, the petitioner would prevail. Thus, on the very face of the situation, if petitioner meets the strictures of the "90-day rule" how can he possibly be barred by application of the doctrine of laches? The short answer is that he cannot[2].

The last issue, then, is whether under the circumstances petitioner's claim should be barred by application of the doctrine of estoppel. According to the Board, since petitioner did not even claim tenure until after Crisman was appointed, it justifiably relied on his "silence" as evidence that he had no tenure and pursuit of that contention now is unduly prejudicial both to the Board and to Crisman. This argument, too, should be rejected since there is no evidence of undue prejudice to the Board, even assuming Dudzinski had some obligation to have pursued his claim earlier than he did. Moreover, no competent testimony was presented as to Crisman's situation. The essential facts necessary to a decision in this case were presented through the partial stipulation and through the testimony of persons having knowledge of those facts - especially Dr. Piegari. In short, as with laches, the Board's estoppel defense also is rejected as no prejudice, undue or otherwise, has been shown.

In reaching the decision I do in this case, I am not unmindful that as a consequence the Board, through no intentional act or fault of its own, tolerated a situation whereby Dudzinski can claim entitlement to a guidance position to which he never was formally appointed. However, that must be the result where the tenure laws are involved if they are to be applied in a prophylactic fashion to protect the rights of teaching staff members who meet all of the statutory criteria for entitlement to that legislatively prescribed protection. Thus, it may be, as the Board contends, that the assignment of Dudzinski and the others to perform "guidance support" duties were never intended as actual guidance functions but only as an informal "activity" which was needed to fill a gap. That is irrelevant under Spiewak. Nor need I agree with petitioner's argument that Piegari's actions are suspect since he clearly knew or should have known of the certifications held by Dudzinski and the others. Whatever the case may be in that respect, the Board still cannot avoid the legally required consequences of what actually took place during the period March 1982 until June 1987. Whether the Board by formal resolution or otherwise made any specific appointments, and whether petitioner knew or should have known that he had a tenure claim, similarly are irrelevant under the circumstances of this case. Just as the letters of recommendation by Komlo, Piegari and Davidsson referring to Dudzinski's activities as those of a guidance counselor (Exhibits P-2, P-3, P-4) are not dispositive - neither is he barred from asserting his tenure claim because he did not insist that the guidance functions he performed be included on seniority worksheets, lists, etc. (Exhibits R-1 through R-4). Neither teaching staff members, Superintendents nor Boards can create the legal requirements for tenure - that is the function of the legislature which has spoken in this area. Simply put, the proofs demonstrate that: (1) while properly certificated the petitioner; (2) for the requisite time; (3) performed the very duties that certified guidance counselors perform. Thus, no assumptions, implications or interpretations can stand in the way of his entitlement under the law to claim tenure in that position.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth herein, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner was, in January 1995, entitled by virtue of tenure to be appointed to the full-time guidance counselor position vacated by Snyder and which was awarded instead to Crisman, a non-tenured person. The Board is instructed immediately to take such steps as may be necessary and appropriate to place petitioner in that position.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton,

New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

GERALD DUDZINSKI,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF FRANKLIN, SUSSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent Board's exceptions and replies thereto of petitioner were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board's exceptions[1] essentially recast and reiterate its arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in post-hearing submissions, again contending that not only was petitioner "never required to possess a Student Personnel Services certificate in order to work in the administrative guidance assignment he performed between 1982 and 1987" (emphasis in text) (Board's Exceptions at p. 3), he also "never performed work which was equivalent to the work a certified guidance counselor would be required to perform." (Id. at p. 4) It offers specific hearing testimony of Dr. Piegari to support its contention that the duties performed by petitioner were "far more limited in scope than the duties a certified guidance counselor would perform." (Id. at p. 5) The Board cites Dennery v. Board of Education, 131 N.J. 626, 640 (1993) for the proposition that the mere fact that some of petitioner's duties may have "overlapped" with those performed by a guidance counselor, "does not support a finding that the guidance assignment was the equivalent of a guidance counselor position for purposes of conferring tenure status." (Id. at p. 6) As such, the Board maintains that petitioner did not satisfy the necessary requirements for the acquisition of tenure pursuant to Spiewak.

[1] The Board's exceptions note that there is a typographical error in the ALJ's recitation of the parties' Stipulated Facts on Page 2 of the Initial Decision. Stipulated Fact No. 1 should read "Petitioner was initially hired by respondent effective February 1, 1966," rather than 1996 as indicated in the decision.

The Board next renews its post-hearing contention with respect to the controlling law in this matter, excepting to the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner could acquire tenure as a guidance counselor without a board appointment to these duties. In this connection, it avers that the ALJ erroneously determined that Buehler v. Board of Education of the Township of Ocean, 1970 S.L.D. 436, aff'd 1971 S.L.D. 660 (State Board), aff'd 1972 S.L.D. 664 (App. Div.) was inapplicable in this matter, instead relying on Ayoub v. South Plainfield Board of Education, 1988 S.L.D. 941. It maintains that Ayoub, rather than overturning Buehler as the ALJ improperly found, merely carves out a narrow exception to Buehler in cases where it is established that a board has acted in bad faith, i.e., "engaged in subterfuge to circumvent the tenure laws." (emphasis in text) (Board's Exceptions at p. 17) The Board advances that the within matter is totally distinguishable from Ayoub, in that "there is absolutely no evidence that the Board even knew Petitioner was performing guidance functions much less that the Board engaged in subterfuge to circumvent his tenure rights." (Id. at p. 18) It, therefore, argues that absent the "bad faith" exception carved out of Buehler in Ayoub, Buehler, requiring board appointment to a position as a prerequisite to an individual's ability to earn tenure in such position, is controlling herein.

In reply, petitioner avers that notwithstanding the Board's attempts to distinguish the "Guidance Support Services" work performed by petitioner from that of a guidance counselor, such contention is clearly specious. He posits that, "[p]etitioner verified that he performed virtually all of the duties outlined in the job description for guidance counselor which was eventually adopted by the Board in 1987 ([Exhibit] R-8)." (Petitioner's Reply at p. 2) He further contends that it is irrelevant whether or not the possession of a guidance certificate was a Board requirement, as such certification is clearly required by N.J.A.C. 11-11.11, "Student personnel services," which under subsection (a) provides

> This endorsement is required for any person assigned to perform student personnel services such as study and assessment of individual pupils with respect to their status, abilities, interest and needs; counseling with teachers, students, and parents regarding personal, social, educational, and vocational plans and programs; and developing cooperative relationships with community agencies in assisting children and families. (emphasis supplied)
> (Id. at pp. 8-9)

Petitioner avers that the record substantiates that the duties he performed fall within the purview of this regulation and he cites DeCesare v. Board of Education of North Bergen, 1983 S.L.D. 680, for the proposition that "[w]hen the duties assigned require certification by law, the work is tenure-eligible, even if no local district requirement for certification exists." (Id. at p. 9)

In summary on this issue, petitioner advances

> The simple fact is that petitioner and his colleagues were the Guidance Department in Franklin from 1982 through June, 1987. They performed guidance duties as to all of the students in the grades they covered. Not simply as to pupils in their own classes, but as to every pupil who needed help. Petitioner submits that this is the essence of pupil personnel services. (Id. at p. 10)

With respect to the controlling law in this case, petitioner argues that there is no rational basis for the Board's contention that "decisions prior to the Supreme Court's ruling in Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63 (1982), should be resurrected to amend the Supreme Court's analysis of the standards for tenure accrual." (Petitioner's Reply at p. 2) He maintains that the ALJ's determination that cases subsequent to Buehler, supra, which was decided in 1970, including Ayoub, supra, had rendered Buehler inapplicable in this matter was fully correct. Further, he contends that the Board's attempt to distinguish this matter from Ayoub based on "bad faith" or any other differentiator is "fruitless." (Petitioner's Reply at. p. 11) Rather, he asserts that the within facts fall squarely within the Commissioner's Ayoub analysis wherein he stated

> As to the fact that petitioner's assignment as CIE Coordinator was not effectuated by Board resolution, the Commissioner disagrees with the ALJ that tenure acquisition is thus precluded. As repeatedly stated in case law, tenure is a legislative protection which the Commissioner must [vigilantly] and assiduously guard from erosion, evasion or subterfuge. That the Board in this matter for 15 years impermissibly abdicated or delegated its power to name the district's CIE Coordinator(s) to the high school principal (with notification thereof from the assistant superintendent) cannot be used as an excuse to prevent petitioner's tenure acquisition, given that he has served in the position for the requisite period of time under a valid certificate required of the position. Spiewak, supra. Thus, the Commissioner is unpersuaded that Buehler, supra, should be controlling in this matter, particularly in light of the fact that the Commissioner's holding in that matter relied on his determination in Zielinski v. Bd. of Ed. of Guttenberg, 1970 S.L.D. 202 rev'd State Board 1972 S.L.D. 664, aff'd. N.J. Superior Court, Appellate Division, 1972 S.L.D. 692. (See Initial Decision, ante.) This determination was subsequently reversed by the State Board as explained by its words below:
> > [T]he Commissioner also held that [Zielinski's] employment did not come about by "a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board" as prescribed in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1. Since the tenure statute, > in describing the periods of service for purposes of tenure, uses the phrase, "after employment in such district or by such board,*" one must conclude that the Legislature recognized a difference between an employment in a district as distinguished from an employment by a board. An almost identical distinction is recited in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-4.

>
> > No teaching staff member shall acquire tenure in any position in the public schools in any school district or under any board of education, who is not the holder of an appropriate certificate for such position.
>
> These statutes lead us to conclude that it was not intended to deny tenure to a teacher, otherwise eligible, who taught continuously and performed all the duties of a regular teacher because the formality of a roll call vote may not have been undertaken where, as here, the Board had full knowledge of the details of petitioner's employment, assignment and benefits, and where the actions of its Superintendent were ratified and concurred in by the Board. (at 668)
>
> Accordingly, for the reasons stated herein, it is determined that petitioner's removal from his tenured CIE Coordinator position was improper. It is ordered, therefore, that he be reinstated forthwith to such position. (emphasis supplied)
> (Petitioner's Reply at pp. 13-15, quoting Ayoub, supra, at 950-951)

Petitioner asserts that such discussion of the State Board in Zielinski, supra, as cited in Ayoub, supra, "clearly and correctly analyzes the tenure law" (id. at p. 15), and is consistent with the Supreme Court's decision in Spiewak, supra.

Upon a comprehensive, independent review of the record in this matter, including the exception arguments advanced by the parties and transcripts of the hearing conducted at the OAL[2], the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ that petitioner was, in January 1995, entitled by virtue of his tenure to be appointed to the full-time guidance counselor position awarded by the Board to a nontenured individual and he must, therefore, be immediately placed in such position.

In this connection, the Commissioner finds the Board's exception arguments without merit, as he concludes, as did the ALJ, that the record is abundantly clear that petitioner, while properly certified, performed the very duties which guidance counselors perform for the statutorily requisite period of time and, thus, has satisfied the criteria necessary in order to claim tenure to such position pursuant to the Supreme Court's ruling in Spiewak, supra. He, likewise, concurs with the ALJ that Spiewak and subsequent decisions of the Commissioner have rendered Buehler, supra, inapplicable here. In reaching the decision which was compelled in this matter, the Commissioner is mindful, as was the ALJ, of the consequences which could inure to similarly situated boards and, therefore, he strongly urges boards of education to review informal appointments to tenure-eligible positions being made by their administrators.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons articulated therein. The Board is hereby directed to place petitioner in the full-time guidance counselor position to which he was entitled by virtue of tenure, which was improperly awarded by the Board to a nontenured individual.

John D. Jordan, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: March 4, 1997 Decided: March 11, 1997

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on September 25, 1996, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14-F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have set forth the following settlement terms:

The teaching certificate of the respondent is suspended for a period of six months terminating on June 30, 1997. This settlement was effectuated so that the respondent's license suspension would not still be in effect next school year.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Dear Judge Holmes:

As you requested by phone, a copy of correspondence from the Board's secretary is enclosed which officially recognizes the Board's acceptance of the settlement proposal. No formal resolution was prepared and the acceptance of the recommended six month suspension was incorporated with the acceptance of the superintendent's report which included this recommendation. Please accept this as sufficient authorization to complete the final settlement documentation which should provide for a six month suspension commencing December 1, 1996. That date is suggested since the settlement conference was held on November 21, 1996 and the December 1 date is simply a convenient reference point to begin the suspension to make sure it does not carry over into the school year beginning September 1, 1997.

I look forward to hearing from you in the near future and trust this documentation will be sufficient for your purposes.

Respectfully yours,

BUTLER, BUTLER & ROSENBERGER

Agency Docket No. 402-9/96

Dear Judge Holmes:

I am pleased to advise you that the parties to the above litigation have settled all of the matters raised therein. My client, Christine L. Cobin, agrees to the suspension of her teaching certificate, with the suspension to be effective immediately and terminating June 30, 1997. Essentially, this is a suspension for a six month period which will parallel the balance of the current school year. Accordingly, the Commissioner will not be offended by the suspension of my client's teaching certificate during part of another school year.

As you know, George G. Rosenberger, Jr. represents the Salem County Vocational Technical School, the other party to this matter. If he has not done so already, Mr. Rosenberger will confirm the details of the settlement with you.

Please advise me and Mr. Rosenberger if you need any additional documentation prepared by either of us at this time. Thank you for your cooperation.

Respectfully yours,

AGENCY DKT. NO. 402-9/96

IN THE MATTER OF THE TEACHING	:
CERTIFICATE OF CHRISTINE L. COBIN,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE SALEM	:	DECISION
COUNTY VOCATIONAL SCHOOL,	:
SALEM COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law with the parties' stipulation of settlement have been reviewed.

Initially, the Commissioner notes that the terms of the instant settlement appear to have already been effectuated, in that respondent's period of proposed suspension is nearly complete. In this regard, the Commissioner stresses that settlements of controverted matters are of no force or effect and may not be implemented absent the Commissioner's approval pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1. However, in that the Board and respondent have agreed that suspension of respondent's certificate until June 30, 1997, is appropriate resolution to this matter, the Commissioner will not reject the proposed settlement and hereby forwards this matter to the State Board of Examiners for its immediate suspension of respondent's certificate through June 30, 1997.

In reaching this determination, the Commissioner reminds boards of education and teaching staff members that they may not, themselves, effectuate a suspension of certificate for wrongful cessation of performance of duties pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10, absent an order from the Commissioner or a voluntary surrender to the State Board of Examiners, of which there is no evidence in the present record.

Accordingly, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement. A copy of this decision is being forwarded forthwith to the State Board of Examiners so that it may take immediate action with respect to respondent's certificate.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

MELINDO PERSI,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF ELMWOOD PARK, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioner, Superintendent of Schools, claimed entitlement to indemnification for legal costs, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, for defending criminal municipal court charges which were ultimately dismissed.

ALJ concluded that petitioner met the two-prong indemnification test as the criminal charges against him were dismissed with the final disposition of the charges in his favor and the alleged criminal actions were found to have arisen out of and in the course of the performance of the duties of his employment as superintendent. ALJ ordered the Board to reimburse petitioner for the reasonable counsel fees and expenses incurred by him in defending all of the criminal charges. The ALJ, however, ordered that the Board should not reimburse petitioner for the counsel fees and costs relating to the verified petition since the Commissioner does not have jurisdictional powers to award counsel fees and costs in controversies and disputes presented to him under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own with the clarification that the Commissioner concluded that the charges against petitioner (not his alleged criminal actions) arose out of and in the course of performing his duties as a superintendent. Commissioner ordered reimbursement to petitioner for reasonable counsel fees and expenses incurred by him in defending the criminal charges pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that he is not entitled to reimbursement for the costs of bringing the petition herein.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF ELMWOOD PARK, BERGEN COUNTY,

Record Closed: March 3, 1997 Decided: March 18, 1997

BEFORE MARIE P. SIMONELLI, A.L.J.:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Melindo Persi (Mr. Persi), seeks indemnification from respondent, Board of Education of the Borough of Elmwood Park, Bergen County (the Board), for legal fees, expenses and costs incurred by him in defending criminal municipal court charges and for fees and costs incurred in this matter, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 26, 1995, Mr. Persi filed a Verified Petition. On July 28, 1995, the Board filed an Answer. On August 15, 1995, the Department of Education transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (the OAL) for a hearing as a contested case. The OAL scheduled a hearing for May 9 and 10, 1996. At the request of the parties, the undersigned adjourned the hearing to January 29 and 30, 1997.

Prior to the hearing date, the parties requested that the undersigned decide this matter on the papers. On October 17, 1996, Mr. Persi submitted his papers. On December 23, 1996, the Board submitted its papers. On January 31, 1997, Mr. Persi submitted his reply. On March 3, 1997, the Board submitted its reply. The record closed on March 3, 1997, after the submission of all papers.

FACTS

Having read and considered all of the papers submitted by the parties, I FIND the following FACTS:

From June 1, 1992 until October 31, 1994, the Board employed Mr. Persi as Superintendent of Schools. At the time the Board hired Mr. Persi, he and the Board executed an Employment Contract which contains the following provision:

> A. The Board agrees that it shall defend, hold harmless, and indemnify the Superintendent from any and all demands, claims, suits, actions, and legal proceedings brought against the Superintendent capacity [sic] or in his official capacity as agent and/or employee of the board, provided the incident arose while the Superintendent was acting within the scope of his employment; or as part of his duties, and, as such, liability coverage is within the authority of the Board to provide under state law.

The Board held a public meeting on October 11, 1994 at Elmwood Park High School. Mr. Persi claims that a certain Board member, Thomas LaPorte (Mr. LaPorte), acted abusively toward him during that meeting. Mr. Persi also claims that, after the meeting, Mr. LaPorte followed him down a hallway to a set of stairs, "continuing his haranguing." The parties seem to agree that the two were engaged in some type of argument at the time. It must be noted at this point that there can be no serious dispute that Mr. Persi and Mr. LaPorte did not have a cordial relationship and that they did not have any contact or dealings with each other outside the business of the Elmwood Park School District.

Although the parties disagree about what happened between Mr. Persi and Mr. LaPorte in the stairway, the parties do not dispute that on October 12, 1994, Mr. LaPorte caused a Complaint to be filed against Mr. Persi in the Elmwood Park Municipal Court. Mr. LaPorte alleged that on October 11, 1994, Mr. Persi assaulted him by throwing a large heavy box at him, striking him in the head, neck and shoulder in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(a)(1).

On October 21, 1994, Mr. LaPorte caused five more Complaints to be filed against Mr. Persi. One alleges that Mr. Persi had assaulted Mr. LaPorte on September 1, 1994, by striking him in the left shoulder with a door, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(a)(1); one alleges that Mr. Persi harassed Mr. LaPorte on October 12, 1994, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4; one alleges that Mr. Persi harassed Mr. LaPorte on September 1, 1994, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4; one alleges that, on September 1, 1994, Mr. Persi purposefully prevented Mr. LaPorte, a public servant, from performing an official function by means of intimidation, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:29-1; and one alleges that Mr. Persi harassed Mr. LaPorte on October 11, 1994, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4.

With respect to the allegations concerning the incident that occurred on September 1, 1994, Mr. LaPorte had gone to the High School to conduct his own investigation of a certain matter. That matter involved Mr. Persi's investigation of a student who allegedly lived outside the District and was improperly registered as a student at the High School. Mr. Persi had scheduled a meeting with the student in question. Mr. LaPorte demanded to be present at that meeting. Mr. LaPorte allegedly became abusive and belligerent when Mr. Persi advised him that he would not be permitted to attend the meeting because it was an administrative matter that only Mr. Persi was authorized to handle.

On October 10, 1996, Mr. LaPorte also filed a Complaint for damages against Mr. Persi in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division, Bergen County. That Complaint stems from the conduct underlying the criminal charges against Mr. Persi. That Complaint, however, has not been served on Mr. Persi.

On October 21, 1994, Mr. Persi caused four Complaints to be filed against Mr. LaPorte: one alleges that Mr. LaPorte harassed Mr. Persi on September 1, 1994, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4; one alleges that Mr. LaPorte harassed Mr. Persi on October 11, 1994, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4; one alleges that, on September 1, 1994, Mr. LaPorte purposefully prevented Mr. Persi, a public servant, from performing an official function by means of intimidation, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:29-1; and one alleges that Mr. LaPorte harassed Mr. Persi on October 12, 1994, in violation of N.J.S.A. 23:33-4.

Mr. Persi denied all of the charges filed against him. On October 24, 1994, Mr. Persi requested that the Board indemnify him. On December 8, 1994, the Board notified Mr. Persi that its insurance carrier had denied coverage under the Board's Commercial General Liability Policy. The insurance carrier denied coverage because the insurance policy did not cover criminal claims.

Mr. Persi proceeded to defend himself against the criminal Complaints and to prosecute the Complaints against Mr. LaPorte. A private attorney, Patrick C. English, Esq., represented Mr. Persi. Another private attorney, Thomas J. Duch, Esq. (Mr. Duch), represented Mr. LaPorte. There is a dispute as to what happened with the charges. Mr. English states in paragraph 4 of his Affidavit, dated October 15, 1996, that "On March 15, 1995 the charges were dismissed." In paragraph 4 of his Affidavit, dated December 19, 1996, Mr. Duch states that > ... both parties voluntarily withdrew complaints. There was no adjudication, no finding of facts or conclusions, nor any finding of guilt by the Court.

> There was no dismissal or a final disposition in favor of ... Mr. Persi. There was, however, an acknowledgment of apology offered on the record on behalf of [Mr. Persi] to Mr. LaPorte.

In a Supplemental Affidavit, dated January 30, 1997, Mr. English states as follows:

> The charges against Mr. Persi were dismissed by Judge William H. Schmidt, by consent. There was absolutely no "public apology on the record" by Mr. Persi. Mr. LaPorte demanded such an apology, on the record, and it was not given. Mr. LaPorte first objected, then consented to the withdrawal of the charges which we were fully prepared to defend and to which Mr. Persi had plead Not Guilty. However, Mr. LaPorte did not have the right to simply withdraw the charges. It is a legal requirement that the Court dismiss them technically, the dismissal was on the Motion of the Prosecutor, who participated in "in-Chambers" discussion. [Emphasis in original.]

In paragraph 3 of his Affidavit, dated February 28, 1997, the Board's attorney conceded, in pertinent part, that:

> ... On the date scheduled for hearing ... , the parties mutually agreed to withdraw or allow dismissals of the Complaint, one against the other. Very simply, there was an agreement by parties not to pursue their Complaints. The Court agreed. Therefore, there was a dismissal placed on the record by Municipal Court Judge Schmidt.

On April 21, 1995, Mr. Persi again requested indemnification from the Board. The Board again declined Mr. Persi's request The Board claims that Mr. Persi's criminal acts against Mr. LaPorte were not within the scope of the Mr. Persi's employment as Superintendent, nor were his actions considered part of the his duties as Superintendent. The Board also claims that Mr. Persi was acting outside his capacity as Superintendent and not within his Superintendent duties as defined by law or by his job description. The Board further claims that Mr. Persi was not exculpated of the charges against him. The charges merely were mutually withdrawn and dismissed and there was no adjudication of those charges on the merits.

Mr. Persi then filed his Verified Petition. He seeks indemnification for all fees, expenses and costs incurred by him in defending against the criminal Complaints, plus the costs of bringing the Verified Petition.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

It is necessary to state at this time that this proceeding is limited to the issues set forth in the Verified Petition transmitted to the OAL by the Department of Education. Those issues are whether are not Mr. Persi is entitled to indemnification for the legal fees, expenses and costs incurred by him as a result of the criminal Complaints filed against him and the legal and fees and costs incurred by him in bringing the Verified Petition. Since this tribunal has no jurisdiction to hear criminal matters, this proceeding cannot and will not involve a determination of whether either Mr. Persi and/or Mr. LaPorte are guilty or innocent of the criminal charges each caused to be filed against the other.

The terms of Mr. Persi's Employment Contract with the Board notwithstanding, indemnification of school board employees involved in criminal actions is governed by N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, which provides:

> Should any criminal action be instituted against any such person for any such act or omission and should such proceeding be dismissed or result in a final disposition in favor of such person, the board of education shall reimburse him for the cost of defending such proceeding, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses of the original hearing or trial and all appeals.

This statute requires that the criminal proceeding must be dismissed or result in a final disposition in favor of the charged employee. In DelRossi v. DHS, 256 N.J. Super. 286, 293 (App. Div. 1992), the Appellate Court stated that:

> Criminal charges are disposed of by trial resulting in acquittal or conviction, entry of a guilty plea resulting in conviction, dismissal of the charges either on defendant's motion or at the request of the prosecuting authority (equivalent perhaps to an acquittal) or dismissal of the charges through PTI or similar programs that avoid an adjudication of guilt or innocence. [Emphasis added.]

In Cressinger v. Bd. of Ed., 256 N.J. Super. 155, 156 (App. Div. 1992), cert. den., 130 N.J. 394 (1992), the Appellate Court stated:

> In Rubin v. Nowak, 248 N.J. Super. 80, 83, 590 A.2d 249 (App. Div. 1991), we held that administrative dismissal of a criminal charge by the prosecutor pursuant to R. 3:25-1 was a favorable termination of a criminal proceeding for the purpose of supporting plaintiff's action for malicious prosecution.

There is no dispute in the present case that the criminal charges against Mr. Persi were dismissed. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 requires either a dismissal or a final disposition in favor of the charged employee. By virtue of the holding in DelRossi, a dismissal is equivalent to an acquittal. By virtue of the holding in Cressinger, a dismissal also is a favorable termination of a criminal proceeding against the person charged. See also, Bower v. Bd. of Ed. of City of East Orange, 287 N.J. Super. 15, 22 (App. Div. 1996) (the dismissal of an indictment with prejudice constitutes a final disposition in favor of the person indicted).

I, therefore, CONCLUDE that Mr. Persi has met the first prong of the test as to whether or not he is entitled to indemnification under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. The criminal charges against him were dismissed and there was a final disposition of those criminal charges in his favor.

To be entitled to reimbursement for legal fees and expenses under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, Mr. Persi must meet the second prong of the test. He must show that his actions arose out of and in the course of the performance of the duties of his employment as Superintendent. Bower, supra; Scirrotto v. Warren Hills Bd. of Ed., 272 N.J. Super. 391 (App. Div. 1994); Cressinger at 155. This prong of the test also will cover the obligation of the Board under Paragraph 7 of Mr. Persi's Employment Contract.

The Board argues that Mr. Persi was not acting in the scope of his duties as Superintendent when he allegedly committed the criminal acts against Mr. LaPorte. The Board also argues that Mr. Persi's job description did not contemplate or include his alleged acts against Mr. LaPorte. Mr. Persi argues that all of the criminal charges arose directly from the performance of his duties as Superintendent. He also argues that all of the incidents occurred while he was performing his duties as Superintendent and that they occurred on District property. He further argues that he had no contact with Mr. LaPorte, except for matters concerning the business of the District.

In Bower, a Grand Jury returned an indictment against Bower, a tenured kindergarten teacher, for aggravated sexual assault and endangering the welfare of children. The incidents allegedly took place during school hours, on school property and against Bower's students. A Superior Court Judge dismissed the indictment without prejudice. Another Grand Jury returned a second indictment against Bower on the same charges. A Superior Court Judge dismissed the second indictment with prejudice. 287 N.J. Super. at 18-19.

Prior to the dismissal of the second indictment, Bower had filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education for indemnification under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. An Administrative Law Judge denied indemnification and the Commissioner affirmed that denial. The State Board of Education eventually upheld the Commissioner's denial and Bower appealed to the Superior Court, Appellate Division. Id. at 19-20. The main issue on appeal was whether Bower's alleged conduct leading to the criminal charges arose out of and in the course of the performance of his duties as a kindergarten teacher. Id. at 22.

The problem faced by the Appellate Court in Bower was that it was never established on the merits that Bower had engaged in aggravated sexual assault on and endangering the welfare of his students. Rather than focus on Bower's alleged conduct, the Appellate Court examined the charges which provided the basis of Bower's criminal prosecution to see if those charges arose out of and in the course of his employment. In so doing, the Appellate Court looked to the area of workers' compensation for guidance and it referred to the case of Coleman v. Cycle Transformer Corp., 105 N.J. 285 (1986). Id. at 30.

The Appellate Court noted that, in Coleman, the Supreme Court construed the term "arising out of" to mean casual origin and the term "course of employment" to mean time, place and circumstances of the incident in relation to employment. Coleman also amplified the definition of "arising out of employment" as follows:

> The accident, in order to arise "out of" the employment, must be of such nature the risk of which might have been contemplated by a reasonable person when entering the employment, as incidental to it. A risk is incidental to employment when it belongs to or is connected with what a workman has to do in fulfilling his contract of service. [Citations omitted.]

The Supreme Court in Coleman also stated that the "but for" test applies and that,

> [u]nder the "but for" test, an injury arises out of employment if it is more probable that the injury would not have occurred under the normal circumstances of everyday life outside of the employment. ... [Citation omitted. Emphasis in original.]

The Appellate Court in Bower stated that this same test applies to criminal charges that ultimately are dismissed. That test is that:

> [t]he criminal charges, in order to arise "out of" the employment, must be of such nature the risk of which might have been contemplated by a reasonable person when entering the employment, as incidental to it. A risk is incidental to the employment when it belongs to or is connected with what a [teacher] has to do in fulfilling his contract of service.

In applying the reasoning in Coleman to the facts in Bower, the Appellate Court held that Bower's alleged conduct met the standard of "arising out of and in the course of employment" as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, and that that conduct was unique to and a function of Bower's profession. The alleged conduct occurred during school hours in the school where Bower taught and the alleged victims were Bower's students. The acts allegedly occurred during a time when the alleged victims were under Bower's tutelage in his capacity as their teacher. Id. at 31-33. The Appellate Court further stated:

> We conceive that a teacher may be at risk for allegations of improper conduct, and even criminal conduct, in a setting in which he or she is exposed to the imagination of an immature student population. We think it would be highly improper to require a teacher to defend against the charge of criminal conduct which is withdrawn by the accuser or which is dismissed with prejudice by a court where the alleged improper conduct clearly arose because of the teacher's status. Said differently, but for the teaching relationship, or the teacher's proximity to an alleged victim, the allegations would not have been filed in the first instance.

Thus, the Appellate Court concluded that Bower was entitled to be reimbursed for the fees and expenses he incurred in defending the two indictments.

In Mr. Persi's case, his alleged criminal actions on September 1, 1994, occurred on school property during normal school hours while he was conducting an administrative investigation of an alleged non-resident student. He clearly was acting in his capacity as Superintendent at the time and his alleged actions clearly arose because of his status as Superintendent. I, therefore, CONCLUDE that since Mr. Persi's actions on September 1, 1994, arose out of and in the course of the performance of the duties of his employment as Superintendent, he is entitled to reimbursement for reasonable counsel fees and expenses incurred by him in defending the criminal charges relating thereto under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

Mr. Persi's alleged criminal actions on October 11, 1994, also occurred on school property. Although those actions did not occur during normal school hours, they occurred directly after a public Board meeting that Mr. Persi attended in his capacity as Superintendent. The incident also was an extension of matters that apparently occurred at the meeting between Mr. Persi and Mr. LaPorte. They clearly had an argument after the meeting about something that had occurred during the meeting. Mr. Persi would not have been at the Board meeting "but for" the requirement of his job description that he attend and participate in all Board meetings. (See Job Description, p. 2, attached as an Exhibit to the Affidavit of Joseph Casapulla, dated December 19, 1996.) Thus, Mr. Persi's alleged criminal actions clearly were connected with what he was doing to fulfill his job duties. I, therefore, CONCLUDE, that since Mr. Persi's actions on October 11, 1994, arose out of and in the course of the performance of the duties of his employment as Superintendent, he is entitled to reimbursement for reasonable counsel fees and expenses incurred by him in defending the criminal charges relating thereto pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

Mr. Persi also seeks reimbursement for counsel fees and costs relating to the Verified Petition. Jurisdiction of the Commissioner is set forth in N.J.A.C. 18A:6-9 which provides, in pertinent part:

> The commissioner shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine, without cost to the parties, all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. ...

While the courts have "repeatedly reaffirmed the great breadth" of the Commissioner's power, that power it not limitless. Henfrey v. Matawan Regional Bd. of Ed., 77 N.J. 514, 524 (1978). One area specifically excepted from the Commissioner's jurisdictional powers is the power to award counsel fees and costs in controversies and disputes presented to him under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Balsely v. No. Hunterdon Bd. of Ed., 117 N.J. 434, 442-443 (1990); Lilenfield v. Bd. of Ed. of Watchung, 1977 S.L.D. 315, 323; Watsula v. Bd. of Ed. of Plumstead, 1977 S.L.D. 692, 695. The Commissioner also lacks jurisdiction over contractual disputes, such as Mr. Persi's Employment Contract. Picogna v. Bd. of Ed. of Cherry Hill Twp., 249 N.J. Super. 332 (App. Div. 1991); So. Orange-Maplewood Ed. Ass'n v. Bd. of Ed. of South Orange, 146 N.J. Super. 457 (App. Div. 1977); Newark Teacher's Union v. Bd. of Ed. of Newark, 149 N.J. Super. 367 (Ch. Div. 1977). Since the Commissioner does not have the power to award counsel fees and costs or determine contract disputes, the undersigned also does not have this power.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that counsel fees and costs relating to the Verified Petition cannot be awarded to Mr. Persi by the undersigned.

ORDER

I, therefore, ORDER that the Board shall reimburse Mr. Persi for the reasonable counsel fees and expenses incurred by him in defending all of the criminal charges. I further ORDER that the Board shall not reimburse Mr. Persi for the counsel fees and costs relating to the Verified Petition.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

MELINDO PERSI,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF ELMWOOD PARK, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and the replies thereto were filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

In its exceptions, the Board essentially renews its arguments raised before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), again contending that petitioner has not satisfied the two-pronged test for indemnification under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. The Board argues that the dismissal of the criminal charges against petitioner by virtue of their mutual consent to a withdrawal does not constitute a favorable disposition for petitioner. (Board's Exceptions at p. 2) Additionally, the Board maintains that petitioner does not meet the second prong of the test since "it is difficult to agree that the alleged conduct of the petitioner in throwing a box or slamming a door would be 'contemplated by a reasonable person' as  conduct arising out of the performance of his job duties." (Id., citing Powers v. Union City Board of Education, 124 N.J. Super. 590 (Law Div. 1973))

Petitioner counters that a dismissal of charges with prejudice is a disposition in favor of the person charged. (Petitioner's Reply at p. 1) As to the second prong of the indemnification test, petitioner maintains that, in his affidavit, he analyzed each of the complaints brought against him. He avers that his "factual assertions  were completely un-rebutted," (id. at p. 2) and, thus, reasons that the findings of the ALJ were amply supported by the record.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has demonstrated that he satisfies the statutory requirements found at N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, so as to be entitled to indemnification for reasonable legal fees incurred by him in defending against the criminal complaints filed by Thomas LaPorte. In so determining, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner satisfies the first prong of the two-pronged test for indemnification, in that the criminal charges against him were dismissed, and said dismissal constitutes a favorable disposition to petitioner. (Initial Decision at p. 7)

As to the second prong of the test, the Commissioner finds instructive the distinction created by the Bower court with respect to petitioners seeking indemnification for legal expenses involved in defending criminal cases which are fully adjudicated, versus those cases that are not fully adjudicated, as in the instant matter. The Bower court opined,

> We think that there is a need to distinguish those cases in which an act is alleged and a school employee is vindicated after trial, such as Powers, from those cases in which an allegation of misconduct is asserted against an employee and the charge is withdrawn or dismissed prior to trial. In the latter set of cases, there will be no findings of fact concerning the actual conduct of the defendants. (Bower, supra, at 26)

>  read Valerius to advocate an examination not of the official's alleged conduct, but of the charges which provide the basis of a criminal prosecution when those charges are dismissed for reasons other than the merits. That case suggests that a public official should be indemnified for attorney's fees if the charges -- not the official's actual conduct -- "arise out of and in the course of employment." (emphasis added) (Bower at 30)

As noted by the ALJ, the Bower court then interpreted "arising out of and in the course of employment," in accordance with the reasoning in Coleman, supra, holding that the charges against Bower arose out of his status as a teacher, inasmuch as Bower's alleged victims were his students and the alleged criminal acts occurred during the school day, and upon school premises. (Bower at 33)

Similarly, in the instant matter, the criminal charges against petitioner were dismissed prior to trial; there are no findings of fact as to petitioner's actual conduct. Therefore, like Bower, it is appropriate to examine the charges which provided the basis of the criminal prosecution. Here, the charges for assault (N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(a)(1)), harassment (N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4) and obstructing the administration of law or other governmental function (N.J.S.A. 2C:29-1) arose from petitioner's status as a superintendent. That a school district superintendent in the performance of his contractual duties could draw the ire of the public is a risk incidental to his employment. (Bower at 31) The alleged criminal acts occurred, in one instance, in the course of

* The Appellate Division also noted that the net result of Valerius had been rendered obsolete by subsequent legislation which eliminated indemnity for charges arising from acts outside the scope of police duties, but occurring in the course of performance of those duties, as well as for "status charges," and confining coverage to those instances where an officer "is a defendant in any action or legal proceeding arising out of and directly related to the lawful exercise of police powers in the furtherance of his official [police] duties." (emphasis in text) (Bower at 29, citing amendment to N.J.S.A. 40A:14-155)

the school day and, in the second instance, following a board meeting at Elmwood Park High School. In accordance with Bower's reasoning, but for the administrative relationship, or petitioner's proximity to LaPorte, the allegations would not have been filed in the first instance. (Id. at 32)

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted and clarified to the extent that the Commissioner concludes that the charges against petitioner, stemming from the September 1, 1994 and the October 11, 1994 incidents, arose out of and in the course of performing his duties as a superintendent. Therefore, having satisfied both prongs of the test, he is entitled to reimbursement for reasonable counsel fees and expenses incurred by him in defending the criminal charges, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. He is not, however, for the reasons expressed by the ALJ, entitled to reimbursement for the costs of bringing the within action.

Petitioning parents sought to have their son's (J.D.) suspension expunged. High School student J.D. was suspended for three days for setting off a fire alarm in his school.

Relying on testimony of witnesses and the credibility of J.D., the ALJ found that the three-day suspension was a minor punishment for a serious offense. Board's action was presumed to be valid; petitioners did not show that said action was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

Record Closed: February 13, 1997 Decided: March 20, 1997

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner was suspended for three days for setting off a fire alarm in his school. He requested a hearing before the Commissioner of Education and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case, pursuant to the Administrative Procedures Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, the act creating the OAL, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

J.D. is a 16 year old 9th grade student at Wildwood High School. On January 24, 1996, a regular school day, at approximately 2:09 p.m., J.D. pulled the handle on a fire alarm box inside the school and drove 750 people, both students and employees, including persons with special needs, into a driving rainstorm. He said it was an accident.

The principal, Walter Dull interviewed many students. Two told him that J.D. planned in advance to pull the alarm. There was no otherwise legally competent evidence to corroborate these statements so that an ultimate finding of fact cannot be made in reliance upon them as to J.D.'s intention. N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5. It was the principal who described the seriousness of J.D.'s actions during the rainstorm.

Betty Harshaw is a Physical Education Instructor at the school. When she heard the fire alarm on January 24, 1996, she got everyone in the gym out of the building. As she was standing in the door escorting her students through the door, J. told her he pulled the alarm accidentally.

Lt. Neill, a fire fighter got the call on January 24, 1996. He determined that the box by the gym was the source of the alarm. He reset it. It is the one J. D. says he pulled accidentally.

The fire alarm box is a red box with a pull handle encased by a metal grill. The grill defends the box from accidental encounters with the lever. One has to insert one's hand into the grill in order to pull the lever to set off the alarm.

This case can be decided solely on the credibility of J.D. He admitted that he set off the alarm but claimed it was accidental. In his opening remarks he said he "was leaning on the fire box and it went off." He said he "slipped."

During his actual testimony he stated that he was talking to someone, "leaned over real fast and his hand went over the casing he slipped and his hand went in and pulled the alarm down."

In the space of a very few minutes J.D. gave two versions of the event. First he was "leaning on the box" when his hand slipped and set off the alarm. His second version was that he slipped and his hand went into the box and pulled the lever down.

I believe J.D. only when he said he was very scared. I do not believe that this was an accident.

In part J.D. is relying on the fire department acceptance of the event as an "accident." That may only mean that it did not want to file criminal charges against him as a juvenile.

A three day suspension is a minor punishment for so serious an offense. Any one of the persons evacuated could have been injured in the wet conditions that prevailed in the street. This was also a major interruption in the educational process that day. Who knows what great insight was interrupted or lost forever when the fire alarm began to clang. In such matters the Board of Education's action is presumed to be valid and the petitioner must show the action was arbitrary and unreasonable. Thomas v. Bd. of Ed. of Morris Tp., 89 N.J. Super. 327,332 (App. Div. 1965); Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

I AFFIRM the action of the Wildwood Board of Education which suspended the petitioner for three days.

Accordingly the petition filed herein is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Record Closed: March 13, 1997 Decided: March 21, 1997

BEFORE BARBARA A. HARNED ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

In this matter petitioner, Dominick J. Cicala, is contesting the denial of his application for certification as a Teacher of Skilled Trades by respondent New Jersey State Board of Examiners. The denial was based on petitioner's conviction for homicide. By letter dated January 31, 1996, the Secretary to the Board of Examiners notified Mr. Cicala that the Board had voted to deny issuance of the certificate because "[i]t is at this time unable to find that you are sufficiently rehabilitated to be entrusted with the care of school children." On April 29, 1996, Mr. Cicala filed a Petition with the Commissioner of Education, challenging the Board's denial of his application for certification. Mr. Cicala included with his Petition documents concerning his rehabilitation which he had not submitted to the State Board and which were not therefore considered by the Board when it issued its decision.

On June 14, 1996, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the Petition to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. A prehearing conference was held on August 19, 1996. During that conference, counsel for respondent Board argued that the standard for reviewing the Board's denial is whether it was arbitrary, capricious or an abuse of discretion. Counsel also argued that under that standard of review, the proceeding before the Commissioner of Education is not a de novo hearing and the only evidence which may be introduced in this proceeding is that which was submitted and reviewed by the Board. Mr. Cicala contended, however, that he is entitled to a de novo hearing and to present any relevant evidence as to his rehabilitation regardless of whether that evidence was submitted to the Board. Following the conference, a prehearing order was entered which established a briefing schedule for these issues and a hearing date of December 18 and 19, 1996.

Respondent Board submitted a brief on August 30, 1996. However, Mr. Cicala asked for an extension of time within which to file his brief and adjournment of the December hearing date as a result of family health problems. With no objection from the Board, Mr. Cicala's requests were granted and an amended prehearing order was entered on December 20, 1996. Mr. Cicala filed his brief on January 14, 1997. The Board filed its responsive brief on January 22, 1997. The hearing was rescheduled for March 20 and 21, 1997.

On March 7, 1997, the undersigned issued an Order which determined that the standard for review in this matter was whether the decision of the Board was arbitrary or capricious; that, therefore, the hearing is not a de novo proceeding and petitioner may not introduce evidence beyond that which was submitted to the Board. In a cover letter, however, the following regulation was brought to the attention of the parties:

> [w]hen the Office of Administrative Law acquires jurisdiction over a matter that arises from a State agency's rejection of a party's application, and at the hearing the party offers proofs that were not previously considered by the agency, the judge may either allow the party to amend the application to add new contentions, claims or defenses or, if considerations of expediency and efficiency so require, the judge shall order the matter returned to the State agency. If the matter is returned to the agency and thereafter transmitted for hearing, the agency's response to any new contentions, claims or defenses shall be attached to the transmittal form required by N.J.A.C. 1:1-8.2.

The cover letter further advised the parties that pursuant to this regulation it appeared that the matter should be returned to the Board for consideration of the additional materials submitted by petitioner but that oral argument would be held before that action was taken. Oral argument by telephone conference call was held on March 13, 1997. An oral decision was rendered on that day returning the matter to the Board with the intent of subsequently entering this written Order. As a result of the oral decision, the hearing scheduled for March 20 and 21, 1997 was canceled.

DISCUSSION

At oral argument petitioner argued that under the above-quoted regulation, the matter should be returned to the Board for consideration of the additional materials he had submitted. Counsel for the Board, however, argued that the regulation did not apply to the instant proceeding but only to those proceedings wherein de novo review is available. There is no language in the regulation limiting its applicability to de novo proceedings. All the regulation requires is that the proceeding be one which "arises from a State agency's rejection of a party's application" during which "the party [at the hearing] offers proofs that were not previously considered by the agency. N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.2(b). This proceeding is a rejection by the Board, a state agency, of petitioner's application for teacher certification. In addition, petitioner has offered "proofs not previously considered by the agency." While the proofs were not actually offered at the hearing, to deny application of the regulation on this basis would be elevating form over substance. It is also more expedient and efficient for the matter to be returned to the agency at this time for consideration of the additional proofs submitted by petitioner rather than requiring that he submit a second application with the additional materials.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

For the reasons discussed above I CONCLUDE and ORDER that this matter be returned to the New Jersey State Board of Examiners for consideration of the materials submitted by petitioner in his petition filed with the Commissioner of Education from the denial by the Board of his application for certification as a Teacher of Skilled Trades.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge that, inasmuch as the standard of review for the matter before him is whether the State Board of Education's decision, issued on January 31, 1996, was arbitrary and capricious, and said standard does not permit a de novo hearing, petitioner may not introduce evidence of rehabilitation which was not considered by the State Board of Examiners in rendering its decision.

Accordingly, the within petition appealing the State Board of Examiners' decision of January 31, 1996, is dismissed without prejudice to petitioner's right to appeal, if he so chooses, any subsequent determination by the State Board of Examiners with respect to his reapplication for certification. Petitioner is hereby noticed that he may reapply to the State Board of Examiners for certification as a Teacher of Skilled Trades, and, in so doing, may present to the Board any and all evidence of rehabilitation, in accordance with pertinent State Board of Examiner guidelines.

This is an appeal by the Borough of Mountainside from a decision of the Commissioner of Education involving the division of assets of the Union County Regional High School District No. 1 upon its dissolution.

Union County Regional High School District No. 1 was a limited purpose regional district comprised of Berkeley Heights, Kenilworth, Mountainside, Garwood, Clark, and Springfield. By letter from the Commissioner of Education dated November 8, 1995, the boards of education and the municipal governing bodies of these districts were notified that the Board of Review[1] had decided to grant a petition for dissolution of the Regional School District that had been submitted by the constituent districts,[2] and that it had thereby authorized a referendum on the question.[3]

[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:13-56 confers on a board of review consisting of the Commissioner as chairperson, a member of the State Board of Education appointed by the President of the State Board, the State Treasurer or his designee, and the Director of the Division of Local Government Services in the Department of Community Affairs the responsibility to make a determination as to whether the petition should be granted and, if so, the amount of indebtedness to be assumed by the districts involved before the question may be submitted to the voters.

[2] The district boards of education and the governing bodies of Berkeley Heights, Kenilworth, Mountainside, Clark, and Springfield submitted a petition for dissolution, and the district board and governing body of Garwood submitted a cross-petition and third party petition.

[3] The Commissioner's letter indicated that such grant was conditioned on Kenilworth's agreement to accept Garwood's high school students if Garwood chose to enter into a sending-receiving relationship with that district.

On December 13, 1995, the Commissioner of Education, as chairperson of the Board of Review, issued an amplification of the Board of Review's November 8 determination.[4]

On March 8, 1996, the parties were advised by the Acting County Superintendent, David Livingston, that unless they requested and agreed to an alternate method of distribution, the liquid assets of the Regional District would be distributed according to the statutory plan set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-62 and N.J.S.A. 18A:8-24. On May 14, 1996, the voters approved dissolution. The ballot question did not indicate that an alternate method would be used for distributing the liquid assets. The Borough of Mountainside then petitioned the Commissioner of Education seeking a distribution of the liquid assets according to then County Superintendent Leonard Fitts' feasibility report of April 7, 1995 rather than the statutory plan. If the distribution scheme in County Superintendent Fitts' report been followed, Garwood and Mountainside would have received all of the liquid assets because neither had any buildings in their districts and could not share in the division of real property.

Prior to transmittal of the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the Commissioner dismissed the petition under authority granted him by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.9.[5] In doing so, he relied on the Appellate Division's decision in Egg Harbor Bd. of Ed. v.

[4] Such amplification of the Board of Review's November 8 statement was submitted to the Appellate Division and mailed to the parties pursuant to R 2:5-1(b) of the New Jersey Court Rules. That rule provides that within 15 days of notice of appeal to the Appellate Division from a decision or action by an administrative agency or officer, that agency or officer may file and mail to the parties an amplification of a prior statement, opinion or memorandum, or, if there is no prior statement, he must file a written opinion stating his findings of fact and conclusions of law.

[5] N.J.S.A. 6:24-1.9 provides that:

> At any time after the receipt of the answer and prior to the transmittal of the pleadings to the OAL, the Commissioner, in his or her discretion, may dismiss the petition on the grounds that no sufficient cause for determination has been advanced, lack of jurisdiction, failure to prosecute or other good reason.

Greater Egg Harbor, Etc., 188 N.J. Super. 92 (App. Div. 1983) (hereinafter "Egg Harbor") to conclude that because no method of distribution of liquid assets had been specified in the question placed before the voters in the referendum, the liquid assets had to be distributed in accordance with the plan set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-62 and N.J.S.A. 18A:8-24.

Mountainside appealed to the State Board, arguing that the Commissioner had improperly interpreted Egg Harbor as an absolute bar to an alternative method of distributing the liquid assets in the absence of specification of such method in the referendum question placed before the voters. Mountainside asserted that in petitioning the Board of Review, all of the constituent districts had agreed that Mountainside and Garwood would get the liquid assets and that the Board of Review had incorporated this scheme for distribution in its determination by virtue of the petitions it had before it and the County Superintendent's feasibility report. Mountainside further argues that it is unfair to apply the statutory scheme because the other districts were to get the buildings in their districts while Mountainside and Garwood would be left with nothing since there were no buildings in their districts.

After reviewing the record and the applicable law, we affirm the Commissioner's determination as modified herein. Initially, we concur with Mountainside that the Appellate Division's decision in Egg Harbor does not stand for the proposition that, as a matter of law, any departure from the statutory distribution scheme is prohibited unless it has been included in the question placed before the voters. In point of fact, that decision was an equitable one, grounded in the specific circumstances of that case. However, careful examination of the Court's decision reveals that it was based on circumstances far different than those reflected by the record before us in this case.

The issues in Egg Harbor arose from a withdrawal by one district from a regional school district rather than, as here, from the dissolution of a regional district.[6] The underlying case had been initiated when Egg Harbor sought to withdraw from the Greater Egg Harbor Regional School District, a limited purpose school district comprised of five constituent districts. On Egg Harbor's application, the County Superintendent investigated the advisability of the withdrawal and issued his report as provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-52. In his report, the County Superintendent set forth what he considered to be the appropriate basis for dividing assets and liabilities. As here, the County Superintendent's view of the appropriate manner to divide the assets and liabilities departed from the statutory scheme.

Egg Harbor then petitioned the Commissioner for permission to submit the issue of withdrawal to the voters. As provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-56, the Commissioner submitted the petition to the Board of Review, see supra note 2, which authorized a special election on the question.

In its decision, the Board of Review included the finding that Egg Harbor did not seek to acquire any assets if it were permitted to withdraw from the Regional District, that Egg Harbor assumed that it would not incur any liabilities, and that all remaining assets and liabilities would be assessed proportionately to the remaining districts. Then, adopting verbatim the County Superintendent's report, the Board of Review specified that the question submitted to the voters must include a statement to that effect.

[6] We note that until August 1993, the language of the applicable statutes included only withdrawals. Effective August 13, 1993, the statutes were amended to expressly provide for dissolution. L. 1993 c. 255. See N.J.S.A. 18A:13-51 et seq.

Nonetheless, following voter approval of the withdrawal, Egg Harbor sought distribution of assets and liabilities pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-62. In response the County Superintendent indicated that the assets and liabilities were to be distributed in accord with the scheme described in the ballot question rather than the statutory scheme.

The following spring, Egg Harbor petitioned the Commissioner to compel the Regional District to pay it a distributive share of its budget surplus from the previous year. At that point, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law. There, acting on a motion to dismiss by the Regional District, an Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that Egg Harbor had waived any claim to the assets of the Regional District by acquiescing to the Board of Review's approval of the election, which had been given on the condition that Egg Harbor would neither assume any further debts or acquire any assets. The ALJ further concluded that Egg Harbor's claim was barred by res judicata since the Board of Review had been fulfilling its quasi-judicial function when it had granted approval to place the question of withdrawal before the voters.

The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's decision, and the State Board affirmed the determinations of the ALJ and Commissioner with modification.[7] On appeal to the Appellate Division, Egg Harbor argued that N.J.S.A. 18A:13-62 mandated the distribution of all assets other than school buildings, grounds, furnishings and equipment, and provided the sole means for distributing those assets by specifying that they be divided in the same manner as provided in N.J.S.A. 18A:8-24.

[7] The State Board modified the decisions below to indicate that the County Superintendent should have filed a report on the Regional District's assets and liabilities even though Egg Harbor was not entitled to a share of those assets.

The Appellate Division rejected the claim, stressing that both the County Superintendent and the Board of Review had considered the impact of Egg Harbor's withdrawal on debt service for the remaining districts and, in that context, had determined that Egg Harbor should not acquire assets at the time of final distribution. The Court found that Egg Harbor had not protested the terms of the Board of Review's approval although it had sufficient notice of those terms to enable it to protest. Consequently, the Regional District, the voters, and the remaining constituent districts had been induced to suppose that Egg Harbor had agreed to relinquish its assets. Hence, Egg Harbor was estopped from requesting a distribution of assets because, by its acquiescence, it had allowed the voters to approve a plan under which it was required to relinquish any claim to the Regional District's assets.

The Court further found that because it had resolved the issue of Egg Harbor's acquiescence in the affirmative, there was no need to decide whether Egg Harbor's claim was barred by res judicata on the basis of the Board of Review's decision. Given that the State Board's decision had not rested on grounds of res judicata, the Court found it unnecessary to reach that issue in order to affirm that decision.

As set forth herein, the Court's decision in Egg Harbor was an equitable decision, grounded in an examination of the particular circumstances presented by that case. That examination was not limited to the ballot question placed before the voters, but focused equally on the other circumstances which surrounded the proceedings before the Board of Review. Basically, the Court concluded that under all of those circumstances, including the wording of the ballot question, it would be unfair to permit Egg Harbor to claim assets. Hence, Egg Harbor can not properly be read so broadly as to create an absolute bar to any claim involving a different arrangement than provided by the statute because the arrangement was not included in the wording of the ballot question.

However, neither can Egg Harbor be read to entitle Mountainside to pursue its claim in this case. Quite simply, Mountainside has not shown any circumstances that would warrant a departure from the statutory scheme. In contrast to Egg Harbor, there is no indication in the record before us that the Board of Review intended a departure from the statutory method for distributing the assets at issue. To the contrary, the Commissioner's letter of November 8, 1995 states that the Board of Review was not convinced that following the statutory scheme "results in such inequity of such proportion as to provide a basis for denying the petition [for dissolution]." Further, the December 13 amplification of the Board of Review's November 8 statement states that:

> The apportionment of the remaining assets and liabilities, as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:8-24 as those assets other than school buildings, grounds, furnishings and equipment, is directly proportional to the amount of local contribution that each of the municipalities has contributed to the regional district. Therefore, each municipality will leave the regional district structure with the same percentage share of these assets as its contribution to them.

In this context, we reject Mountainview's contention that the petitions and the County Superintendent's feasibility report provide a sufficient basis to assume that an alternate scheme was adopted by the Board of Review, especially in view of the fact that the ballot question did not reflect such scheme. Quite simply, given the record before us, we can only speculate as to the circumstances surrounding the proceedings before the Board of Review.

While we recognize that judicial doctrines such as res judicata and collateral estoppel are not automatically applicable to quasi-judicial proceedings such as these, we can find no basis to justify a review in this context of the proceedings before the Board of Review. City of Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1 (1980). In this respect, we stress that the applicable statutory scheme does not confer on either the Commissioner or the State Board of Education the authority to determine whether a petition for dissolution should be granted, but rather entrusts that determination to a board of review comprised of both the Commissioner and a member of the State Board of Education, as well as the State Treasurer and the Director of the Division of Local Government Services. N.J.S.A. 18A:13-56. See supra note 2. Consistent with the character of the composition of such board, appeals from determinations by the Board of Review have been made, not to the State Board, but rather directly to the Appellate Division pursuant to R 2:2-3(a)(2). See In re Petition For Authorization to Conduct a Referendum on Dissolution of Union County Regional High Sch. Dist. No. 1, 298 N.J. Super. 1 (App. Div. 1997). Nothing presented to us in this case reflects that application of the statutory scheme to the division of liquid assets involved here would result in an inequity such as to provide a basis for denying the finality of the resolution of this issue that is embodied in the Board of Review's determination. City of Hackensack v Winner, 82 N.J. at 30-33.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

C.B., petitioner, pro se

Honora O'Brien Kilgallen, Esq., for respondent (Kramer, Kramer & Kilgallen, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 18, 1997 Decided: March 19, 1997

BEFORE ROBERT S. MILLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter arises from the challenge by the petitioner, C.B., of the respondent's residency determination. The respondent (Township of Ocean School District) alleged that C.B.'s two (2) children, J.B. and L.B., did not reside in the school district.

On November 22, 1996 this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The matter was scheduled for a telephone prehearing conference on January 14, 1997 at 4:00 p.m. C.B. was not at the telephone number when the call was placed. The attorney for the respondent, Ms. Kilgallen, indicated that C.B. had signed her two children out of the Ocean Township School District, which was certified to be true by the Superintendent of Ocean Township School District, Douglas Deicke, in his certification dated January 30, 1997.

Accordingly, Ms. Kilgallen filed with the undersigned a Notice of Motion to dismiss petitioner's petition, serving copies of said motion with C.B. Receiving no opposition from the petitioner, I signed the attached Order dismissing the matter.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that this matter is properly dismissed, in that petitioner has removed her children from respondent's school system as of December 2, 1996,* and, further, has failed to respond to the Board's Motion for Summary Decision.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

The record of this matter and the initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement have been reviewed.

The Commissioner is unable to accept the written settlement in its present form to the extent that the language of the Stipulation of Settlement, Term 4, requires that "[t]he terms of this Agreement shall remain confidential." It is observed that, although the parties may agree between themselves to keep the specific terms of a settlement agreement confidential, they cannot seek to bind the Commissioner or, for that matter, any other individual to such confidentiality. In this regard, the parties must also remember that, in the absence of a motion to seal the record, a Commissioner's decision and its underlying proceedings are matters of public record.*

* Given the nature of the Commissioner's rejection of the settlement in this matter, the parties' proposed agreement is not appended to this decision.

Accordingly, this matter is remanded to the OAL for revision of the settlement terms or such other action as may be appropriate to effectuate the parties' intention.

BEFORE: ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On April 25, 1996, petitioners J.A. and A.A. filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education requesting that the Commissioner order respondent Board of Education to permit petitioners' minor children to remain resident students in the Fort Lee school district. On May 9, 1996, respondent filed an answer, alleging that petitioners are not domiciled within the Borough of Fort Lee and seeking an award of tuition from petitioners. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on May 24, 1996 for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The case was assigned to the undersigned judge on July 10, 1996, and a prehearing conference scheduled for August 20, 1996. The prehearing conference was rescheduled to September 10, 1996 at the request of counsel for petitioners. The telephone prehearing conference was held on September 10, 1996, at which time the issues were isolated, and a hearing scheduled for December 17 and 18, 1996 at the Office of Administrative Law. As a result of settlement conferences held between the parties, a settlement was reached and the hearing was adjourned.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached Stipulation of Settlement, indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and find:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement, as evidenced by their signatures or their representative's signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and these proceedings be concluded.

This matter having been brought before the court on the Petition of A.J. and A.A. on behalf of their minor children, and the parties having reached agreement with regard to this settlement, of all claims and causes of action regarding this matter, it is hereby stipulated and agreed as follows:

1. The Petitioners shall pay the sum of $1,000.00 in ten (10) equal One Hundred Dollar ($100.00) installments, commencing January 15, 1997 to the Fort Lee Board of Education, at the Board's Office, 255 Whiteman Street, Fort Lee, New Jersey.

2. Petitioners will have a fifteen (15) day grace period in regard to each payment. If any installment provided hereunder is not made within the time provided for in this stipulation of settlement and the grace period, the Board will have the right to request entry of judgment for the sum of $6,913.50, based on fifty (50) days enrollment period X three children enrolled at a per diem rate of $46.09 per day.

3. The Board will continue to permit the Petitioners' children to attend school without tuition as long as a bona fide domicile is maintained within the Borough of Fort Lee. The Board recognizes that the Petitioners and their children have been domiciled within the Borough of Fort Lee since on or about September, 1996 and continuing through the date of the Stipulation.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning grandparent alleged that Board improperly had a psychiatric evaluation conducted on minor child, S.L.T. Petitioner sought to enjoin Board from compelling any future evaluation or counseling absent her prior notification and approval.

ALJ found Board properly responded to the incident of threat of suicide by S.L.T., 4th grade student. ALJ found that the psychiatric evaluation of S.L.T. conducted at the Jersey Shore Medical Center's Crisis Evaluation Unit was appropriate and correct. ALJ further found that there was no basis for enjoining the Board from calling for psychiatric evaluations of S.L.T., should a similar circumstance arise again.

Having reviewed the Board's Student Suicide policy, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and determination. Petition was dismissed.

BEFORE KATHRYN A. CLARK, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter (EDU 8583-96) was brought by the grandmother of S.L.T. alleged that the BOE improperly conducted a psychiatric evaluation of her granddaughter and she seeks to enjoin the Neptune Township Board of Education from conducting psychological testing of her granddaughter without prior notice.

EDU 8583 was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52: 14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, on October 3, 1996. A hearing was scheduled for March 5, 1997, at the Office of Administrative law, Trenton, New Jersey.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

S.L.T. is a 9 year old girl, now in the 4th grade at Green Grove Elementary School, who was classified as perceptually impaired (PI) by a child study team in June, 1994

On June 13, 1996, S.L.T. threatened to commit suicide, and tightened a belt around her neck, doing this in front of her classmates, who reported this to their teacher. S.L.T. had threatened suicide before (R-3. The school administration responded to the June 13, 1996 incident by taking S.L.T. to Jersey Shore Medical Center's Crisis Evaluation Unit.

Dr. Michael Lake, Superintendent of the Neptune BOE, said that the Crisis Intervention Team had taken S.L.T. to Jersey Shore Medical Center after she had tightened a belt around her neck and told her classmates that she was going to kill herself. Dr. Lake said he learned of the incident in a telephone call from the Green Grove school principal, Ms. Sweeney, in which it was described that S.L.T. was in serious emotional turmoil and that she presented a risk of bodily harm.

Dr. Lake said that telephone calls were placed to M.F.'s residence, but that his office could not get through to anyone. In a subsequent conference call with Ms. Sweeney and Ms. Gillette, the school guidance counselor, Dr. Lake made an administrative determination to have S.L.T. taken in a private automobile to the Jersey Shore Medical Center's Crisis Evaluation Unit (CEU). Dr. Lake also called the BOE's attorney, Mr. Hundley. While they were at Jersey Shore Medical Center, the Child Study Team psychologist, Maxine Perrine and Ms. Gillette, continued to attempt to reach M.F. or an adult who could come to the medical center immediately, but they were told that no guardian could come. Dr. Lake said that S.L.T. could not be treated without the consent of her guardians, and that he (Dr. Lake) was satisfied with the attempts made to contact the guardians. Due to the fact that no guardian could (or would) come to the hospital, Dr. Lake told Ms. Sweeney to contact the Division of Youth and Family Services (hereinafter DYFS) for child abuse or neglect intervention.

Dr. Lake said that DYFS responded immediately, and that DYFS told M.F. and her husband, S.L.T.'s guardians, that one of them should immediately go to Jersey Shore Medical Center. Dr. Lake said that, eventually, M.F.'s husband, W.F., did arrive at Jersey Shore CEU, and gave his consent to treatment of S.L.T. Dr. Lake said that S.L.T. was eventually released to her guardian W.F. and was taken home.

On cross, Dr. Lake said that, although Ms. Sweeney was on vacation on June 13 and Ms. Sanders was the acting principal, Ms. Sweeney was available for telephone calls, and as Ms. Sweeney lives close to the school, she could and did participate in the activities described. Dr. Lake said he also spoke to Ms. Sanders that day.

Dr. Lake said that he felt he had no choice but to take S.L.T. to the CEU, and that he decided that DYFS should be called in, and that he strongly felt that S.L.T. needed psychiatric counseling.

M.F.'s husband, W.F., testified that his wife called him to advise him that S.L.T. had been taken to Jersey Shore Medical Center. W.F. did not recall speaking to anyone from the school. W.F. said he went to the hospital and gave his permission for his granddaughter to be evaluated. W.F. was not sure whether or not there was a message from the school on their answering machine.

M.F. testified that, while she was at work, she received a call from Ms. Perrine around lunch time, and that Ms. Perrine was already at Jersey Shore Medical Center with S.L.T. M.F. said that she did not want S.L.T. to be evaluated, and that she did not take S.L.T.'s suicide threat seriously, and that suicide threats were merely S.L.T.'s response to getting into trouble. M.F. said that S.L.T. had forgotten her gym shoes that day, and had been "yelled at" by her teacher. M.F. said that the earlier suicide threat was because S.L.T. had lost a teacher's calculator and was afraid of getting into trouble. M.F. said that S.L.T. was imitating a cousin in Philadelphia who always threatened suicide. M.F. said that she told S.L.T. not to wear a belt with the dress S.L.T. wore on June 13, but that S.L.T. must have snuck the belt out of the house without M.F.'s knowledge. M.F. also said that there were no messages from Green Grove school on her answering machine.

DISCUSSION

Joking suicide threats by children, or even imitative "fooling around," can turn out to have very serious consequences. The Green Grove school personnel and Dr. Lake were justified in taking her threat seriously. If they had not responded and if, for example, the girl had slipped while her belt was tightened about her neck, the result would have been disastrous.

I FIND that the actions of Dr. Lake and of the personnel of the Green Grove School in responding to the incident of June 13, 1996, were appropriate, correct and timely.

I further FIND that the psychiatric evaluation of S.L.T. (P-1) conducted at the Jersey Shore Medical Center's Crisis Evaluation Unit was appropriate and correct.

I further FIND that there is no basis for enjoining the BOE from calling for psychiatric evaluations of S.L.T., should a similar circumstance arise again. The petition of M.F. is DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NEPTUNE, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions initially charge that the issue decided in this matter is not the one raised in her Petition of Appeal. Specifically, she alleges that her petition "was not to enjoin the Neptune Township Board of Education from conducting psychological testing on [S.L.T.]," but rather "to enjoin the Board from forcing [S.L.T.] to undergo outside non school funded psychiatric counseling." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 1)

Petitioner next alleges that the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) factual recitation in this matter is incorrect in numerous areas, and she presents, in detail, her version of the facts and the conclusions which she avers should be adduced from them. Petitioner further urges that this case should be reconsidered in that the Board denied her access to S.L.T.'s records both prior to and after the hearing and, notwithstanding that she informed the ALJ of such denial, the ALJ did not compel the Board to provide the records.

Finally, petitioner objects to the ALJ's conclusion that the Board's actions in this matter were reasonable. She alleges that, in this connection, the Board did not even follow its own Suicide Prevention Procedures policy, asserting > [t]hese procedures state that when they have a "suicide attempt," that the nurse is summoned immediately for first aid services. It then states that the local rescue squad is contacted. It is after these actions have been taken that the child is taken to the hospital. It also states that the Child Study Team will conduct follow-up services and that the child will not be re-admitted to school without the recommendation of the Child Study Team. None of these procedures were followed.

Further, she maintains that the written report of the Jersey Shore Medical Center's Crisis Evaluation Unit, reporting that S.L.T. "was not suicidal, in emotional turmoil or in risk of bodily harm," is dispositive in this matter and necessitates a reconsideration of the ALJ's decision. (Id. at p. 3)

After an independent and comprehensive review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner finds petitioner's exception arguments, fully addressed below, unpersuasive, and he concurs with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ that the Board's action of having a psychiatric evaluation conducted on minor child, S.L.T., under the circumstances existing here, was appropriate and correct. The Commissioner further agrees with the ALJ that there is no basis for enjoining the Board from seeking future psychiatric evaluations of this child should a similar circumstance again arise.

In reaching his determination herein, the Commissioner initially believes that it is necessary to clarify that, notwithstanding petitioner's contention to the contrary, a full review of the Petition of Appeal filed in this matter clearly reveals that the petitioner therein raised the issue of the propriety of the Board's action in compelling a psychiatric evaluation of the minor child, S.L.T, while the question of responsibility for payment was not presented as an issue before the Commissioner. Moreover, the Commissioner concludes that such an assertion, at this point in time, is inexplicable given that in the Commissioner's letter decision, dated September 27, 1996, which severed the special education issues contained in petitioner's Petition of Appeal from the one which was properly before him, it was unambiguously stated:

> The one remaining issue in this matter seeks the Commissioner to render a determination regarding the propriety of the Board's intervention with respect to a psychiatric evaluation conducted on S.L.T. on June 13, 1996, and further requests that the Board be enjoined from compelling any such evaluation or counseling, absent prior notification and approval of the petitioner, in the future.

As such, the Commissioner finds petitioner's allegation, which apparently seeks to refocus the objective of these proceedings at this juncture in the case, without merit.

Moving to that portion of petitioner's exceptions which contests the factual findings of the ALJ, it is noted that the record before the Commissioner does not include a transcript of the hearing below. Challenges to the factual findings made by an ALJ require the objecting party to supply the agency head with the relevant portion of the transcript for his review and consideration. See Rowley v. Board of Education of Manalapan-Englishtown, 205 N.J. Super. 65, 75 (App. Div. 1985); In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158-159 (App. Div. 1987). Thus, without a transcript from which to draw his own conclusions, and finding no basis in the record to challenge the factual recitation of the ALJ, the Commissioner accepts such factual recitation as correct. The Commissioner, likewise, concludes that petitioner's objection that she was refused access to S.L.T.'s records by the Board, thus requiring a full reconsideration of the within matter, is without support in the record, in that there is no evidence of any motion by petitioner to compel discovery, the procedure routinely utilized in these matters to exact information from a recalcitrant party.

Finally, a full review of the Board's "Student Suicide Awareness and Procedures" policy (Exhibit R-7) indicates that the Board acted in accordance with that portion of its policy entitled "Suicidal Ideation (Verbal threat or communication of possible suicidal intent)" which was the situation faced in this matter. The portion of the policy quoted in petitioner's exceptions deals with procedures to be followed in cases of "Actual Attempt of Suicide," which was clearly inapplicable in the instant case. Furthermore, the Commissioner concludes that the fact that staff at the hospital crisis evaluation unit found S.L.T. to be in no immediate physical or mental jeopardy at the time of their evaluation does not diminish or invalidate the Board's legitimate concern or the need to implement applicable policy when faced with the situation underlying this matter.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons articulated therein, and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 19, 1997

For the Petitioner-Appellant, M.F., pro se

For the Respondent-Respondent, Hundley & Parry (James T. Hundley, Esq., of Counsel)

The decision of the Commissioner of Education dismissing the petition in this matter is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein. We agree with the Commissioner that school personnel acted appropriately in seeking an immediate psychiatric evaluation of petitioner's granddaughter after she tightened a belt around her neck and threatened to commit suicide. However, we also remind the Board of the importance of its staff following its express written procedures for handling such exigencies.

IN THE MATTER OF BETTIE JO ZIEMER, :
BRADLEY BEACH BOARD OF EDUCATION, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
MONMOUTH COUNTY. : DECISION

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission has acted pursuant to the authority granted to it by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. to recommend removal of the above-named Board member from office for failure to attend the Board member training sessions required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.4; and

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission sent ample notice to the above-named Board member of her failure to attend such training sessions; and

Whereas, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.3(i), on March 26, 1997, the Commission issued an Order to Show Cause as to why a penalty should not be imposed for such failure; and

Whereas, the above-named Board member provided to the Commission an answer noting that she planned to take the training twice, in October 1996 and in March 1997, but was unable to attend due to childbirth in the first instance and due to the illness of her children in the second, however, such explanation was deemed by the Commission as an insufficient reason for her nonattendance; and

Whereas, the Commission voted on April 22, 1997, to recommend removal of the above-named Board member for failure to attend training sessions in violation of State statute, memorializing such decision through a resolution forwarded to the Commissioner, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29; and

Whereas, on May 3, 1997, the above-named Board member filed before the Commissioner a response to said resolution recommending removal, stating that the flu which befell her children and caused her to miss her March training course was potentially life-threatening to one of her children, a twin who is prone to seizures; and

Whereas, the Board member further explained that her inability to attend the June 1997 course was due to her prior registration at a conference on birth defects associated with premature and multiple births, and concluded by asking the Commissioner whether she could substitute her college education and profession as Certified Tax Collector, since she has also served as a Treasurer of School Monies, for completion of the training requirement; and

Whereas, the Commissioner of Education has carefully considered the record of this matter, the decision of the School Ethics Commission, and the Board member's comments; having done so, he finds that N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 does not allow for exceptions to the statutory training requirement, nor for substitution of experience and education, and that board member training is a significant and well-established obligation of board membership, and that a penalty is warranted in that seven courses were offered between April 1996 and April 1997, of which the above-named Board member has demonstrated why she was unable to attend only two; however, based on the Board member's assertion that she would take the Fall 1997 training course and that she has provided reasons deemed sufficient by the Commissioner for not attending two conferences as planned, removal is not warranted at this point however; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED that the above-named Board member shall not be removed from office subject to her attendance at the October 1997 training session but, rather, shall be suspended from office for a period of three months to commence as of the date of this decision, and shall be removed without further proceedings should she not attend the October 1997 session as set forth above.

IN THE MATTER OF BETTY JO ZIEMER, :

BRADLEY BEACH BOARD OF EDUCA- : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

TION, MONMOUTH COUNTY. : DECISION

Decided by the School Ethics Commission, April 22, 1997

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 19, 1997

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Nancy Kaplen, Deputy Attorney General
(Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Betty Jo Ziemer, pro se

On April 22, 1997, the School Ethics Commission determined that Betty Jo Ziemer (hereinafter "appellant"), a member of the Board of Education of the Borough of Bradley Beach, had violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 by failing to attend mandated training sessions for new school board members, and recommended that she be removed from the board as a result of such violation. On May 19, 1997, the Commissioner of Education modified the penalty recommended by the Ethics Commission, directing that appellant be suspended from her membership on the board for a period of three months.

On June 11, 1997, appellant filed a notice of appeal with the State Board, along with a request for a stay of the Commissioner's decision.

By letter dated June 24, 1997, the counsel to the State Board advised appellant that a brief in support of her appeal was due on July 1. She also advised appellant that the State Board could not entertain her request for a stay of the Commissioner's decision since such a motion must be made first to the Commissioner. N.J.A.C. 6:2-2.2.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.11(a), appellant's brief in support of her appeal was due on July 1, 1997, 20 days after she filed her notice of appeal. Appellant, however, failed to file a brief by that date. By letter dated July 8, 1997, appellant was notified that no appeal brief had been filed and that this matter was therefore being referred to our Legal Committee for consideration of her failure to perfect the appeal. Appellant has still failed to file a brief in support of her appeal, more than two months after the deadline for such filing, and nearly two months after she was provided with notice of her failure to file. Nor has appellant offered any explanation for her failure to file or requested an extension of time.

Consequently, the State Board of Education dismisses the appeal in this matter for failure to perfect. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.12(a). See Paszamant v. Board of Education of the Borough of Highland Park, decided by the State Board of Education, April 1, 1992, aff'd, Docket #A-4812-91-3 (App. Div. 1993).

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or the signatures of their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms, and it is FURTHER ORDERED that the proceedings in this matter be concluded.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Respondent.	:

THIS AGREEMENT and GENERAL RELEASE, dated January 28, 1997, is made by and between Petitioner HOWARD CAESAR and Respondent STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF NEWARK to resolve the pending appeal before the Commissioner of Education. In consideration of the mutual promises and undertakings contained in this Agreement, the parties agree as follows:

1. The State Operated School District of Newark will issue payment to Howard Caesar in the amount of $37,730.00, representing a total of 98 earned sick days and vacation days (73 sick days and 25 vacation days) at the rate of $385.00 per day.

2. Howard Caesar hereby releases and forever discharges the State Operated School District of Newark, its agents and employees from all claims, causes of action, suits, etc., which he now has or ever had against the Newark Board of Education and/or its successor, the State Operated School District of Newark and its agents and employees (the "District") arising in or out of the State takeover of the Newark Board of Education and subsequent abolishment of Caesar's position of employment. Howard Caesar further releases and forever discharges the District from any and all claims, causes of action, suits, etc. for any accrued sick, vacation, personal or other leave time.

3. The parties agree not to disclose the terms of this Agreement to outside parties unless necessary to effectuate the terms of the Agreement.

4. This Agreement does not constitute an admission of liability by the State Operated School District of Newark.

5. This Agreement and General Release constitutes the entire agreement with respect to the subject matter hereof and shall not be amended, modified or amplified except in writing signed by both parties. No oral statement of any persons shall in any manner or degree modify the terms and provisions of this Agreement and General Release.

Record Closed: March 10, 1997 Decided: April 8, 1997

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 24, 1995 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A hearing was scheduled for March 19, 1997 at the OAL in Newark, New Jersey. Prior to the hearing date, the parties requested that the hearing be adjourned because a settlement had been reached. A stipulation of settlement was signed by the parties and was filed in the OAL on April 7, 1997. The stipulation of settlement is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Respondent.	:	STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The petitioners, Ann Berger, Theresa Golz, Joan Grube and the Paterson Education Association, and the respondent, the State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson (hereinafter the "District") state as follows:

WHEREAS, the instant petition concerns assaults that were committed by students against teachers in the Spring of 1995, and

WHEREAS, the District, as required by the Commissioner of Education, adopted a policy regarding assaults by students against teachers, other staff members, administrators or board members in September of 1996, and

WHEREAS, the parties do not wish to unnecessarily waste the resources of the Office of Administrative Law or either of the parties, they therefore consent to the following:

1. In the case of petitioner Joan Grube the District attempted to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 but was unable to hold a suspension or expulsion hearing because the student fled the District. The respondent shall hold such a hearing if the student, A.G., ever attempts to re-register in the District.

2. In the case of Theresa Golz, the District failed to comply with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. However, in September of 1995, the student was dropped from the rolls of the District for excessive absence and the District has been unable to locate him since that time. The respondent shall hold a suspension or expulsion hearing if the student, K.R., ever attempts to re-register in the District.

3. In the case of Ann Berger, the District failed to comply with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. However, the student, L.W., is a classified student who has been placed in a more restrictive environment and has been re-evaluated since the time of the assault.

4. The petitioners shall withdraw their petitions in exchange for the promises and admissions above-stated.

5. This Stipulation is subject to the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

6. The undersigned represent that they have been duly authorized by their respective clients to enter into this Settlement.

STIPULATION of SETTLEMENT

DD AND VD on behalf of JD v. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF TOWN OF BOONTON

AGENCY DKT NO. 112-3/97.
EDU 3788-97

On the hearing date of the emergent relief application the parties reached the following agreement disposing of the issues presented by the petition filed in this matter.

1. JD remains expelled from the Boonton School District effective March 26, 1997.

2. Petitioners withdrawal any claims or disputes regarding the expulsion action of the respondent Board.

3. The respondent school district will permit JD to take tests or submit incomplete assignments for which an incomplete grade was recorded during the second or third marking period, provided that the missing tests or assignments are scheduled with Joanne DeFilippo guidance counselor. The incomplete tests and assignments must be completed by the end of the fourth marking period.

4. The school district will provide the petitioners with the curriculum requirements and coursework, tests and assignments which JD would have been given if he had not been expelled. The petitioners will retain a licensed teacher to provide private tutoring and instruction to JD for the remainder of the current school year. The school district teacher for the respective class will review and grade the tests and assignments submitted by the privately retained teacher as the work completed by JD, provided that all such assignments and tests are administered and received before June 12, 1997, the end of the fourth marking period. The grades so earned through private instruction or 1997 summer school will be credited toward the tenth grade academic proficiencies except for incompletes as of the end of the fourth marking period and excepting failing grades.

5. Except as set forth in paragraph 4, the respondent school district will have no further obligation to provide teaching or educational services to JD.

6. If petitioners elect, at their expense, to provide summer schooling for JD during the 1997 year, the school district will accept the grades earned by JD in a licensed public school program in New Jersey.

7. The school district will also accept grades given by school district teachers based upon their review and grading of the work of JD submitted by the privately retained home instructor, if submitted before the end of the fourth marking period in 1997.

8. Petitioners acknowledge that no assurance has been given by respondents that JD will satisfy the academic proficiencies for the 10th grade, and that this determination will be made by Joanne DeFilippo after receiving the grades earned by JD as a result of completing incomplete tests and assignments, and the grades received as a result of private home instruction during the third and fourth marking periods, and after the grades are received from the 1997 summer program.

9. It is the intent of petitioners to enroll JD at Morris Catholic High School for the 1997-98 academic year.

10. Petitioners withdrew their request for a child study team referral and evaluation of JD because petitioners intend to privately place JD in a regular school program other than the Boonton

School District.

12. This stipulation resolves all issues and disputes and accordingly the petition in this matter is withdrawn.

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

The petitioners, J.T. and J.T. on behalf of minor child B.B., filed a Verified Petition with the Commissioner of Education challenging the Board's adverse residency determination relating to the attendance of B.B. as a student in the respondent district.

On September 27, 1996, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13. A hearing date was scheduled for March 31, 1997. The parties conferred for purposes of settlement prior to the hearing date, after the petitioner's submitted additional documentation to the Board's attorney. This resulted in a determination by the Board that the student did in fact meet the requirements of the district, and the Board would no longer challenge his residency. A letter to that effect was forwarded to the OAL by counsel. A copy of the letter, dated March 27, 1997, is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

Based on the foregoing, it is CONCLUDED that good cause has been shown to accept the settlement and withdrawal of this matter, which is fair and fully dispositive of all issues in controversy.

It is therefore ORDERED that the settlement and withdrawal be approved and that this matter be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

OAL Doc. No. EDUOS 09701-96N

Dear Judge Samuels:

I am pleased to advise you that the above matter has been settled in that the school district is no longer objecting to the minor child, B.B.'s attendance in the Bayonne School System.

I am advised by the attorney for the Board, James Plosia, of Appruzzese, McDermott, Mastro & Murphy, that documents recently completed by the youngster's parents have met the requirements of the district and they no longer challenge his residency.

Accordingly, no one will be appearing to prosecute or defend this matter.

Thank you for the courtesies extended to me in this matter.

Respectfully yours,

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent contested Board's expulsion of eighth grade student, K.S., from school. While in the seventh grade K.S. sold a substance which she believed to be LSD to another student. K.S. pled guilty in Family Court to distributing an "imitation" drug.

ALJ found the Board's decision to expel based on its "zero tolerance" policy for drugs was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, given the nature and severity of the wrong K.S. committed and the potential risks and harm to her classmates. ALJ sustained the determination of the Board to expel.

Commissioner set aside the initial decision of the ALJ, finding, instead, that the Board's action expelling K.S., under the particular facts herein, was arbitrary and unreasonable. While the Commissioner is mindful of the Board's need to take a firm disciplinary stance against drugs, its action to expel K.S., a student who just completed seventh grade and against whom the Board had never found cause to take prior disciplinary action, was unreasonable even though K.S. was provided home instruction. Commissioner found that her young age had to be considered because expulsion truncates her entire secondary public school experience and because a twelve-year-old cannot reasonably be expected to understand the implications of potential expulsion, notwithstanding that she may have been aware of district polices. Moreover, the Commissioner found that the Board failed to consider, investigate and effectively utilize the local- and county-based alternative education program options which are available. Thus, the Commissioner could not conclude that expulsion was employed as the "last-ditch expedient," which it is expected to be. Commissioner directed the Board to resume its obligation under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 to provide K.S. with a free public education and to undertake to evaluate K.S., prior to the start of the 1997-98 school year, for the purpose of finding a suitable local- or county-based alternative education program assignment for her. The Board, therefore, was directed to continue to provide K.S. with home instruction, in accordance with its policy, through the remainder of the 1996-97 school year, and to evaluate and readmit K.S. at the start of the 1997-98 school year, in conformance with the above-noted parameters.

BEFORE STEVEN C. REBACK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On October 17, 1996, the petitioner, C.S., on behalf of K.S., a minor, filed a petition before the Commissioner of Education seeking emergent relief requiring respondent Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, Middlesex County, ("the Board" or "Piscataway") to reinstate K.S. to the eighth grade at the Quibbletown Middle School in Piscataway Township

Public Schools. The relief was sought following a meeting of the Board on June 18, 1996, which resulted in the expulsion of K.S. from the Piscataway Township Public School System, effective on that date.

Thereafter, on October 28, 1996, oral argument and documentary submissions were entertained by Administrative Law Judge Jeff Masin in respect to the emergent relief request. Mr. Rubin, in opposition to the emergent relief motion, submitted a letter brief to Judge Masin, dated October 25, 1996. On October 29, 1996, Judge Masin denied the emergent relief request and scheduled the matter for plenary hearing. On November 18, 1996, the matter was transmitted to my office for hearing on a plenary basis. Presumably, prior to this date, the Commissioner either through silence or through the issuance of a decision (my file is unclear in this regard) upheld Judge Masin's order denying K.S.'s emergency relief motion. On that same date I directed a letter to counsel and directed that they advise me as soon as possible in respect to the procedures they wished to subsequently employ in respect to a plenary disposition of this appeal. Following this letter, various telephone conferences were conducted and the parties stipulated that the case would be heard based upon the factual record, memorialized in a transcript of the proceedings conducted before the Board on June 18, 1996, and the submission of letter motions in support of their respective decisions. My office received the certified transcript of the proceedings (C-1) on March 10, 1997. On January 14, 1987, obviously preceding the submission of the transcript, Mr. Rubin submitted his letter brief in support of the Board's position on plenary disposition.

Following my receipt and review of the foregoing documents, I discovered that there was no brief submitted by Mr. Campbell on the plenary issues. Thereafter, on March 25, 1997, my secretary placed a telephone call to Mr. Campbell's office who advised that he would rely on the legal arguments embodied in the brief which he submitted to Administrative Law Judge Masin in support of the emergent relief motion. He noted as well that, in his view, the arguments on the emergent relief issue which were embodied in his brief went beyond the limited scope of the standard for emergent relief and would be sufficient to support his arguments on the plenary issues at bar. Accordingly, the record closed on the latter date, March 25, 1997. [1]

[1] By letter of March 11, 1997, which my office received on or about March 14, 1997, Mr. Rubin brought to my attention the fact that while C-1 obstensibly suggests at page 63 that the resolution to expel K.S. was made moments after the testimony was introduced, in fact the Board "reconvened for the purpose of deliberating before

ISSUE AND BURDEN OF PROOF

The singular issue to be addressed in this proceeding is whether the conduct and actions of K.S. warranted her expulsion from the Piscataway School District. In respect to this issue the burden rests squarely upon the petitioner: the action of a local school district which lies within the area of its discretionary powers may not be upset, unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis, or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div.) 1960 at 7. Mere disagreement, if any, with the Board is insufficient legal grounds to recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a new judgment be substituted. The Board must first be found to have been arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable for reversal or modification to occur.

THE FACTS

Unless otherwise noted, the following is a substantially uncontradicted narrative of the operative facts in this matter. I have derived the facts from the pleadings in the case and primarily from the certified transcript of the hearing conducted before the Board (C-1). Accordingly, I FIND:

At the time of the submission of the motion for emergent relief, K.S., C.S.'s daughter, was thirteen years of age and in the eighth grade of the Piscataway Township Public Schools. K.S. resides with both the parents and her sister in Piscataway Township. On March 22, 1996, while K.S. was in the seventh grade at the Quibbletown Middle School, K.S. sold to another seventh grade female student a substance which K.S. believed to be LSD, lysergic acid diethylamide, a hallucinogenic controlled substance. Shortly after this transaction the child who bought the LSD experienced in school what appeared to be a drug-induced hallucinatory episode. At paragraph 6 of the motion for emergent relief, counsel indicates that after a laboratory analysis was conducted, "it was evident that the substance that was purchased from K.S. by the classmate who ingested it, was not a controlled dangerous substance of any type." In his post-hearing submission, Mr.

entertaining a resolution. Because the deliberations were not tape recorded, it may have appeared from the tape that the resolution immediately followed the testimony."

Rubin at footnote 3 at page 2 indicates that the Board was presented with two laboratory analyses in respect to whether the substance sold by K.S. was LSD or any other controlled dangerous substance. Based upon these analyses, the Board was not able to conclude that no illegal substances were involved. Nevertheless, Mr. Rubin notes, given the inability of the prosecuting authorities or the school health provider to establish the presence of LSD or any other controlled and dangerous substances the Board, for purposes of the expulsion proceeding, gave K.S. the benefit of the doubt and assumed that what K.S. sold was not a controlled dangerous substance of any type.

K.S. admitted to school officials to selling the substance to her classmate, having secured it from her older sister, then a high school student at Piscataway who has since withdrawn from the school system voluntarily. Following the incident, K.S. was immediately suspended from school and placed on home instruction pending further disciplinary proceedings as directed by the superintendent of the district.

The superintendent initiated expulsion proceedings before the school board but that proceeding was held in abeyance at the request of K.S.'s counsel pending disposition of a Middlesex County family court prosecution which arose as a result of the March 22nd incident. K.S. pleaded guilty to distributing an "imitation" drug, see N.J.S.A. 2C:35-11 and on June 3, 1996, was sentenced to a period of probation with a variety of conditions. In spite of the fact that the petitioner pled guilty to distributing an "imitation" drug, at the Board hearing, she acknowledged having sold to her classmate what she indeed thought to be LSD.

The originally scheduled Board hearing was postponed to June 18, 1996, so as to give the petitioner, at her parents' request, the opportunity to have K.S. evaluated by the Board's child study team. As part of its evaluation, the team determined that the incident at issue was not caused either by a learning disability or other handicapping condition which would have made K.S. eligible for special education.

Following the proceedings conducted on June 18th by the Board, following lengthy deliberations, voted 6 to 3 to expel K.S. from the school district, effective immediately. The decision was thereafter communicated by the superintendent directly to K.S.'s parents. Subsequently, on June 27, 1996, a written statement of "Findings and Determination" was issued by the Board which detailed the reasons for its decision to expel. The decision referred to Board Policy 5620 under which the superintendent would recommend to the Board alternate educational program for the Fall 1996 semester. Eventually, the superintendent implemented a program of home instruction, which went into effect at the commencement of the Fall semester. As noted by Mr. Rubin in his post-hearing submission, the expulsion policy of the Township of Piscataway provides that where a student below the age of sixteen is expelled the Board must provide an alternate educational program. The Board would argue, if the issue were justiciable, Mr. Rubin notes, that absent such internal policy the Board as a matter of law would not have been obliged to provide such program. The child study team, however, did recommend that K.S. be reinstated to the Quibbletown School as soon as possible as well as a variety of other remedies. (See attachment B to petitioner's emergent relief application.) K.S. has no record of any significant disciplinary action instituted against her. As noted in the emergent relief application, she never even had detention. It is also represented in the motion papers that K.S.'s family, on its own initiative, began a family counseling program with K.S., as well as her sister, within weeks following the offense.

ANALYSIS

There is no dispute that K.S. intended to sell LSD (and may have well sold that substance) to another student on school grounds for money. That the drug may not have been LSD is of no consequence in respect to K.S.'s intention, mens rea, and motive. The sole question then becomes whether the decision by the Board expelling K.S. from the Quibbletown Middle School based upon her actions and based as well upon the subsequent conviction by entering a plea of guilty to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-11, under all of the circumstances of this case can be demonstrated by the petitioner to have been patently arbitrary, without rational basis, or induced by improper motives. In my judgment, the petitioner has failed to establish its burden of proof. It is not arbitrary, unreasonable or capricious for the school district to have a zero tolerance for drugs. As indicated by the Board in its "Findings and Determination", the distribution and use of controlled dangerous substances, or other illegal drug-related conduct will not be tolerated in the Piscataway School System. As a government agency charged with responsibility for the supervision of students during the school day, the Board has a legal responsibility to take reasonable steps to halt illegal drug-related activity on school grounds. The Board has also made a moral commitment to the children of this community to use its best efforts to assure that students attend schools free of illegal drugs and drug-related activity. The present case is a test of that commitment." Exhibit A to petitioner's emergent relief motion at 3. The Board also took into consideration the fact that even if arguendo the substance sold by K.S. was not a controlled dangerous substance, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-11(d), the distribution of substances which while not actually illegal appear to be is deemed to be an indictable crime of the third degree. .

The Board also took into consideration K.S.'s record separate and apart from the offense at issue. It acknowledged that she was an above-average student and that there was no prior instances of disciplinary action instituted against her. It considered the fact that there was absence of proof that the substance sold was indeed LSD or any other controlled dangerous substance but as properly noted by the Board the absence of such proof "was pure happenstance." [K.S.] intended to distribute a dangerous illegal drug on school grounds for money. The fact that she may have been duped herself entitles her to no more credit than an armed robber who puts hostages in fear "of their lives by pointing an unloaded weapon at them." [2]

The Board also considered the argument offered that K.S. was trying to emulate her sister, from whom she apparently received the drugs, to "be cool". The Board reasonably acknowledged that it was mindful of the traditional adolescent rites of passage but the Board did not view K.S.'s desire to enhance herself esteem as an excuse for knowingly committing a felony. It noted at page 5 of its Findings "the only conclusion to be drawn is that she was at all times in complete control of her conduct, was conscious of the potential consequences, yet made a deliberate choice to act as she did." Id. at 5.

The Board also considered K.S.'s ostensible remorse for her behavior and the presumed profound consequences expulsion would have on her. It notes, "[K.S.] was processed through the juvenile justice system, placed in detention where she spent her thirteenth birthday, and remained confined to her home until her sentencing earlier this month. Having given due weight to this consideration, however, the Board is of the view that the circumstances do not overcome the aggravating circumstances involved." Ibid.

The Board viewed the most significant mitigating factor, K.S.'s youth and the fact that she had only completed seventh grade thus requiring her family to arrange for up to five years of secondary education elsewhere (assuming of course that the family deems the "alternate educational program" under which the Piscataway District operates unacceptable.). The Board emphasized, however, that this fact would have carried more weight had there been evidence that K.S.'s age itself had a bearing on her appreciation of the nature and consequences of her conduct. The Board properly notes that the record proves otherwise.

The Board also took into consideration the argument raised by counsel, which ostensibly would not be consistent with its position, [3] While the Board took no position in respect to its ability to predict the future it did conclude, however, that contrary to reinstating K.S. to Quibbletown that she would benefit from a "fresh start" in another setting. This was indeed the case, pursuant to K.S.'s mother's testimony before the Board in respect to K.S.'s older sister. The latter had apparently withdrawn from the school system and enrolled in Middlesex County Vocational and Technical High School to get a "fresh start" in the wake of the incident involving K.S.

The Board by a vote of 6 to 3 determined that the aggravating circumstances involving K.S.'s sale of an apparently controlled dangerous substance outweighed the mitigating circumstances by a sufficient margin so as to warrant her immediate expulsion from Piscataway. That the child study team may have recommended a less severe penalty is entitled to little weight given that the purpose of the child study team is to determine whether conduct was caused by some disability which would render K.S. eligible for special education and classification. Thus its role in assessing the penalty for a child who is deemed to be in all ways competent and not subject to special education is quite narrow and, in my view, significantly departs from the expertise of those comprising the team itself. Unlike the Board, as Mr. Rubin notes at page 6 of his brief, the child study team is not obliged to balance the interests of other children who may be affected by wrongdoing or to vindicate broader district policies which transcend the field of special education.

Drugs are anathema to our society and to the extent that a school is a microcosm of that society it is also anathema to our educational system. There is absolutely no reasonable excuse for K.S.'s behavior. Had the substance, in fact been LSD one can only speculate as to the harm that could have been done to the child to whom she sold the drugs. That K.S. is in a family counseling program is promising. Nevertheless, that is the responsibility of K.S. and her family. In this instance, the school district is not in loco parentis and clearly on balance the application of its drug policy, as applied to K.S. , by expelling her from the school district, given the nature and severity of the wrong she committed, and the potential risks and harm to her classmates is not outweighed by the mitigating factors presented. The decision by the Board is not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

Accordingly and based upon the foregoing, the termination by the Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, which expelled K.S. be and is hereby SUSTAINED. The petitioner has failed to meet its burden.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." C-1 Transcript of expulsion proceedings of K.S., conducted before the Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, Middlesex County, June 18, 1996

AGENCY DKT. NO. 467-10/96

C.S., on behalf of minor, K.S.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PISCATAWAY, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Initially, petitioner contends that if the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) decision of using expulsion as a last resort, is permitted to stand, it will represent a disturbing reversal of long-standing decisional precedent in that the "[e]xpulsion of a 12-year-old seventh grade student for a single offense is not a factual precedent in any cases that the petitioner has found." (Exceptions at p. 1) Petitioner further asserts that in the initial decision, the ALJ considers only the arguments raised by the Board which substantiate the Board's position that its action to expel K.S. was not arbitrary. (Id. at p. 3) As a result, the decision reiterates errors, including the Board's reference to K.S.'s juvenile offense as a felony which petitioner casts as a serious mischaracterization. Petitioner points out that the notion that juvenile offenses are not criminal acts and must be viewed differently is a recognized and strong public policy of New Jersey. (Id.)

Petitioner next avers that the minimal home instruction being provided K.S. is neither thorough nor efficient, as prescribed by our State Constitution, and that the Board has unconstitutionally usurped K.S.'s right to a free public school education which constitutes a grievous and unconstitutional harm to K.S. (Id. at pp. 3-4) Petitioner asserts that the Board's and the ALJ's finding that K.S. was at all times in complete control of her conduct, and its potential consequences when she acted, was erroneous noting that such requires "mature judgment on the part of pre-teen children." (Id. at p. 4) Petitioner disagrees with the finding that K.S.'s age had no bearing on the appreciation of her conduct and states that K.S. certainly appreciates the nature and consequences of her conduct now. (Id.)

Finally, petitioner states that, "[w]hile the juvenile justice system accentuates the public policy that youthful offenders must be rehabilitated, the respondent Board accentuates its own arbitrary policy that punishment is paramount irrespective of the offender's age." (Id.) To support this contention, petitioner avers the ALJ ignores the guidance contained in the Commissioner's decision in Scher v. West Orange Board of Education, 1968 S.L.D. 92 at 96-97, where the Commissioner directs school boards to make such decisions grounded on competent advice from its psychologist and other appropriate sources. Petitioner avers the Board acted contrary to the advice of its child study team and seeks reinstatement of K.S. to school. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 4)

In reply, the Board contends that the initial decision is correct and that petitioner may not complain that the ALJ adopted in substantial measure the factual findings made by the Board, so long as those findings were grounded in the evidential record made before the Board. Indeed, if the Board could have reasonably reached those conclusions from the record, it avers, the ALJ is required to give deference to the Board's ability to assess the evidence first hand. (Reply Exceptions at p. 1) The Board next notes that whether K.S.'s conduct was technically juvenile delinquency as opposed to criminal behavior, the student's conduct was extremely serious and harmful and her age does not minimize the seriousness of the infraction. (Id. at p. 2) As to petitioner's argument that its decision deprives K.S. of her constitutional right to a thorough and efficient education, and the Board points out that K.S. is not being deprived of a complete cessation of services but, rather, is receiving instructional services to allow her to progress from grade to grade through age sixteen. As such, the Board contends there is no basis for considering this constitutional argument. (Id. at pp. 2-3)

Next, the Board objects to petitioner's assumption that, in reaching this decision, it found all 12-year-olds to possess mature judgment. It avers that it only found that this student, based on the evidence in this case and her intelligence, was mature enough to understand the consequences of her actions. (Id. at p. 3) The Board reiterates that the present record supports a finding that K.S. understood the seriousness of her conduct and what might occur if she were caught. It asserts that > [n]o one could seriously argue surprise at the prospect that drug dealing on campus, even the first time, might result in expulsion. In any event, the announced policy of the Piscataway School District is that illegal drug-related activity will not be tolerated on school grounds or at school-sponsored events. At no time during the hearing did the student claim ignorance of this policy.

Finally, the Board objects to the argument that it, and the ALJ, gave too little weight to the child study team reports in this case, noting that, "the members of the child study team, competent as they are in their particular fields, are not disciplinarians." (Id.) It concluded that even if the child study team's assumption were true, that K.S. would not commit the offense again, a school could reasonably conclude that the sanction imposed here was essential to the integrity of a "zero tolerance" drug policy. (Id. at p. 5)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner determines to reverse the initial decision of the ALJ, finding, instead, that the Board's action expelling K.S., under the particular facts herein, was arbitrary and unreasonable.

Initially, the Commissioner underscores that he endorses the ALJ's view of the seriousness of K.S.'s actions in the instant matter; there is no question that districts cannot tolerate the distribution of illegal chemical substances, real or imitation, which contaminate the bodies and minds of their students. The Commissioner further recognizes and supports the significant role which local districts must assume in the daily struggle to ensure that they provide an environment which is safe from the influence of drugs. Both the Legislature and the State Board of Education have taken notable steps in recent years to guide local districts in carrying out that role, while, at the same time, ensuring that the rights of the individual student are not extinguished. Herein, the Board has adopted a "zero tolerance" policy which, when applied to the extraordinary facts herein, necessitates striking a delicate balance of the interests of the student body as a whole, and those of K.S.

In the instant matter, while the Commissioner is mindful of the Board's need to take a firm disciplinary stance, he finds that its action to expel K.S., a student who had just completed seventh grade and against whom the Board had never found cause to take prior disciplinary action, is unreasonable, notwithstanding that it may be providing K.S. with home instruction, a service dictated by its internal policy, rather than requirement of law, and, thus, subject to revocation or revision. While the Board takes the position that the record is devoid of evidence that K.S.'s age "had a bearing on her appreciation of the nature and consequences of her conduct," (Initial Decision at p. 7), the Commissioner finds that her age must be considered, both because her expulsion from the school system effectively truncates her entire secondary public school experience and because a twelve-year old cannot reasonably be expected to fully comprehend the implications of such a sanction, notwithstanding that she may have been aware of the district's "zero tolerance" policy.[1] Under these circumstances, the Commissioner cannot conclude that expulsion was employed as the "last-ditch expedient," which it is expected to be. Scher, supra.

Short of expulsion, but in furtherance of the Board's objective to remove K.S. from its regular education program, the Commissioner finds that the Board failed to consider, investigate and effectively utilize the local- and county-based alternative education program options which are available. These alternative education programs are specifically designed to serve the dual purposes of removing the disruptive student from the regular education program, thus, permitting the district to maintain an educational climate that is both safe and conducive to learning, and assisting the alternative education student to continue her educational program in a public school setting, satisfy credit-year curriculum requirements and develop more responsible patterns of behavior. Where a student such as K.S. is removed, perhaps on a permanent basis, from the regular education program, the Board's "zero tolerance" policy cannot be viewed as emasculated, notwithstanding that such removal does not absolutely terminate a student's entitlement to an education within the district.

[1] The Commissioner notes in this regard that, while the role of the child study team in a disciplinary proceeding is limited in a formal sense, as properly found by the ALJ, and that its members are not disciplinarians, as stated by the Board, the findings of the team nonetheless reflect the judgment of professionals trained in the assessment of various aspects of pupil behavior and are not without relevance to this matter.

The Commissioner, therefore finds that the Board's action to expel K.S., under the circumstances herein, was unreasonable and cannot be upheld. The Board is directed to resume its obligation under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 to provide K.S. with a free public education, and to undertake to evaluate K.S., prior to the start of the 1997-98 school year, for the purpose of finding a suitable local- or county-based alternative education program assignment for her.[2]

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is reversed for the reasons set forth above. The Board is directed to continue to provide K.S. with home instruction, in accordance with its policy, through the remainder of the 1996-97 school year, and to evaluate and readmit K.S. at the start of the 1997-98 school year, in an appropriate placement consistent with the above parameters.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[2] The Commissioner notes that the within decision does not preclude K.S.'s eventual return to the regular education program, as the Board may determine; nor does it prevent the Board from taking disciplinary action against K.S. should she fail to abide by the rules and policies of any alternative education program in which she is placed, or of the regular education program should the Board subsequently determine to readmit her.

PETITIONER-CROSS/APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PISCATAWAY, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 19, 1997

For the Petitioner-Cross/Appellant, Kalac, Newman, Lavender & Campbell
(Francis J. Campbell, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, David Rubin, Esq.

On March 22, 1996, K.S., a 12-year-old seventh-grade student at the Quibbletown Middle School, sold another seventh-grade student a substance which K.S. believed to be lysergic acid diethylamide (LSD), a controlled dangerous substance, on school grounds. Although the student who purchased the substance appeared to experience a drug-induced hallucinatory episode, subsequent laboratory analysis did not indicate the presence of a controlled dangerous substance. However, K.S. admitted that she had intended to sell LSD. The Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway (hereinafter "Board") suspended K.S. from school and provided her with home instruction pending further disciplinary proceedings. The child study team determined that the incident was not caused by a learning disability or other handicap.

April 1, 1998

As a result of that incident, K.S. subsequently pleaded guilty in Middlesex County family court to a charge of distributing an imitation drug. N.J.S.A. 2C:35-11.

Following a hearing on June 18, 1996, the Board determined by a 6 to 3 vote to expel K.S. from the district. The Board issued its written findings and determination on June 27, 1996. Pursuant to its policy, the Board provided K.S. with home instruction commencing in September 1996.

On October 17, 1996, petitioner C.S. filed a petition of appeal and a motion for emergent relief on behalf of her daughter K.S. with the Commissioner of Education, seeking a directive requiring the Board to reinstate K.S. to her regular school program. On October 29, 1996, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") denied petitioner's request for emergent relief and scheduled the matter for plenary hearing.

On April 2, 1997, another ALJ assigned to hear the case dismissed the petition, finding that petitioner had failed to satisfy her burden of demonstrating that the Board's action in expelling K.S. was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The ALJ stressed that K.S. had intended to sell a dangerous illegal drug on school grounds and noted that the Board, in determining to expel K.S., had taken into consideration K.S.'s age; the fact that there had been no prior instances of disciplinary action taken against her: that K.S. was remorseful about her behavior; and that K.S. was apparently trying to emulate her sister, from whom she had apparently received the substance. Consequently, the ALJ recommended upholding the expulsion, finding that the nature and severity of the offense, as well as the potential risk of harm to other students, was not outweighed by the mitigating factors.

On May 19, 1997, the Commissioner rejected the ALJ's recommendation, concluding that the Board's action in expelling K.S. was arbitrary and unreasonable. While recognizing the Board's need to take a firm disciplinary stance against drugs, the Commissioner concluded that its action to expel a 12-year-old student against whom it had never taken previous disciplinary action was unreasonable, notwithstanding that it was providing her with home instruction. The Commissioner found that K.S.'s age was a critical consideration "both because her expulsion from the school system effectively truncates her entire secondary public school experience and because a twelve-year-old cannot reasonably be expected to fully comprehend the implications of such a sanction, notwithstanding that she may have been aware of the district's 'zero tolerance' policy." Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 15. In addition, the Commissioner found that the Board had failed to consider local and county-based alternative education programs designed to remove a disruptive student from a regular education program. Thus, the Commissioner concluded that the Board's action in expelling K.S. was unreasonable under the circumstances and could not be upheld. He therefore directed the Board to continue to provide K.S. with home instruction through the 1996-97 school year and to evaluate K.S. prior to the 1997-98 school year for the purpose of finding a suitable local or county-based alternative education program for her.

The Board filed the instant appeal to the State Board, arguing that petitioner had failed to demonstrate that its action was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Petitioner filed a cross-appeal, contending that the Commissioner, in view of his decision, should have directed the Board to reinstate K.S. to her regular school program.

After a careful review of the record, we affirm with clarification the decision of the Commissioner.

As noted by the ALJ, action of a district board which lies within its discretionary powers may not be upset unless it is shown to be "patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives." Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). The scope of this agency's review is not to substitute our judgment for that of the district board but to determine whether the underlying facts were as the board claimed and whether it had a reasonable basis for its conclusion. The burden of proving unreasonableness is on the appellant. Kopera, supra.

In this case, it is undisputed that K.S. intended to sell a controlled dangerous substance to another student on school premises, notwithstanding the fact that laboratory analysis did not confirm the presence of an illegal substance. While the applicable legal standard precludes us from substituting our judgment for that of the Board, we find that petitioner has demonstrated that the Board did not have a reasonable basis under the particular facts of this case for its decision to expel K.S. from the district. We emphasize, like the Commissioner, that K.S. was just 12-years-old at the time of the incident. Although the Board did give some consideration to K.S.'s age, we find that it did not give sufficient weight to this factor. Rather, the Board's decision was geared more towards the fact that K.S. had "just completed seventh grade, and that expulsion would require her family to arrange for up to five years of secondary education elsewhere." Decision of Piscataway Board, at 5. The Board added that "[t]his factor may have carried more weight...had there been evidence that [K.S.'s] age had a bearing on her appreciation of the nature of her conduct." Id. at 5-6.

We find that K.S.'s age cannot be so lightly discounted. There is nothing in this record that would lead us to believe that this particular twelve-year-old sufficiently appreciated the nature and potential consequences of her conduct, particularly in an instance in which she may have been attempting to emulate an older sibling. Indeed, the Board notes that the incident has had "a meaningful impact" on K.S. Id. at 5. "She was processed through the juvenile justice system, placed in detention where she spent her thirteenth birthday, and remained confined to her home until her sentencing...." Id. Nor is there any indication that K.S. had been subject to any previous disciplinary action in the district.

We stress that our decision rejecting expulsion in this case is not intended in any way as an indictment of the Board's "zero tolerance" policy towards drugs. To the contrary, we commend the Board for its aggressive stance on the use of illegal drugs. Nor would our decision today preclude the Board from expelling a student under its "zero tolerance" policy under a different set of circumstances. Rather, after careful consideration of the facts in the record before us, we find that the Board did not have a reasonable basis for its determination that the appropriate disciplinary action in this particular instance was the ultimate sanction of expulsion from the district.

Consequently, as clarified herein with regard to the legal standard, we affirm the decision of the Commissioner reversing the Board's decision to expel K.S. In so doing, however, we reject petitioner's contention that the Board should be required to reinstate K.S. to her regular school program at this time. Given the nature of K.S.'s offense, we direct the Board to evaluate K.S. for the purpose of finding an appropriate local or county-based education program for her.

OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY.	:

For the Board, Thomas W. Sumners, Jr., Esq.

This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education on February 6, 1997, through certification of tenure charges of excessive absenteeism and unbecoming conduct against a tenured custodian of the Board of Education of the City of Trenton; and

The Commissioner having directed respondent, via both certified and regular mail on February 10, 1997, the certified copy having been signed for on February 14, 1997, to file an Answer to the tenure charges against him; and

The Commissioner having sent such notice, again, on March 10, 1997, and on April 1, 1997, via regular and certified mail, with the certified copies having been signed for on March 13, 1997, and April 2, 1997, respectively; and

Respondent having failed as of this date to comply with the directive of the Commissioner, so that each count of the charges against him is deemed to be admitted; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED this 27th day of May 1997 that summary judgment shall be granted to the Board, and Ronald Morgan shall be dismissed from his tenured position as a custodian in the Board's employ as of the date of this order.

For Petitioner: Michael P. Stanton, Esq.

This matter, having been brought before the Commissioner of Education by the Board of Education of the City of Ocean City by way of a Petition of Appeal filed on November 25, 1996, requesting that respondents be ordered to pay the Board tuition in the amount of $10,210.96; and

Whereas, the Board conducted a disenrollment hearing on January 24, 1996 and respondents, represented by an attorney, did not dispute their nonresidency; and

Whereas the Board subsequently sought reimbursement for tuition and, at the request of Respondent C.P., convened to discuss tuition calculations and, thereafter, petitioner and Respondent C.P. agreed on a payment schedule; and

Whereas Respondent C.P. failed to confirm said agreement by his signature on the Board's letter dated March 19, 1996, and, further, was unable to be reached; and

Whereas, the Commissioner of Education, having a duly filed petition before him has directed respondents and/or their attorney of record by notices dated December 3, 1996, December 23, 1996, January 14, 1997[1] and February 13, 1997[2] to file an Answer to the charges against them; and

Whereas, neither respondents, nor any attorney on their behalf, having filed an Answer to the charges against them, and each count of the charges against the respondents having been deemed to be admitted; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED on this 27th day of May 1997 that summary decision shall be granted to the Board of Education and that respondents shall pay tuition in the amount of $10,210.96 due the Board for the period of time in which C.P. was ineligible to attend school in the Board's district.

Record Closed: March 24, 1997 Decided: April 18, 1997

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

The petitioner, Victor Mizzone, filed a Verified Petition with the Commissioner of Education claiming of violations of seniority rights in connection with a reduction in force that adversely affected him.

On September 11, 1996 the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13. A Prehearing conference was held on December 2, 1996, and a Prehearing Order was entered, defining and limiting the issues to be decided, fixing hearing dates, providing for discovery and regulating other procedural aspects of the forthcoming hearing, which was scheduled to be held on August 18, 1997.

In February 1997, the parties conferred for purposes of settlement, and an agreement was reached. The terms of the settlement were incorporated into a written settlement agreement dated February 24, 1997 and signed by the parties and their authorized representatives.

A copy of the settlement agreement is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

Having reviewed and considered the issues involved in this dispute, it is CONCLUDED that the parties have voluntarily and knowing agreed to the settlement, as evidence by the attached agreement. It is further CONCLUDED that the settlement is fair and fully dispositive of all issues in controversy.

It is therefore ORDERED that the settlement be approved and that this matter be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Petitioner, Victor Mizzone, residing at 92 Kilian Place, Totowa, New Jersey 07512 (hereinafter "Mr. Mizzone"), and the State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson (hereinafter referred to as "the District") hereby enter into this Settlement Agreement as follows:

WHEREAS, Mr. Mizzone filed the above-captioned petition claiming a violation of his seniority rights regarding a reduction in force affecting him;

WHEREAS, Mr. Mizzone has been reinstated to a full-time teaching position in the District effective February 1, 1997;

WHEREAS, as a result of discovery, the parties have mutually agreed that Mr. Mizzone is entitled to reinstatement with full back salary, less mitigation, and compensation for the cost of alternative medical insurance;

IT IS on this 24TH day of February, agreed:

1. In return for compliance with this Agreement, and based on the needs of the District, Mr. Mizzone has been assigned to a full-time teaching position within the scope of his certifications, effective February 1, 1997. He shall receive the salary and benefits due to every teaching staff member as prescribed by law, contract, practice and policy for his service after reinstatement.

2. Mr. Mizzone shall be paid back salary in the gross amount of $18,164.50. This amount is the balance due after a reduction of $5,792.00 reflecting mitigation due to the receipt of state unemployment insurance benefits by Mr. Mizzone during the period from July 1, 1996 to February 1, 1997. The District shall refund this amount of $5,792.00 to the State of New Jersey, Department of Labor, as required by law and thereby discharge Mr. Mizzone's duty to repay that sum.

The amount of gross back salary due to Mr. Mizzone after mitigation ($18,164.50) shall be subject to normal payroll deductions. Payroll deductions shall be calculated based on the gross salary amount of $18,164.50.

The net amount of salary, after payroll deductions, shall be paid to Mr. Mizzone within 30 days of the approval of the Settlement by the Commissioner of Education.

3. Mr. Mizzone shall be reinstated to all medical, dental and other health insurance plans maintained by the District, retroactive to July 1, 1996. It is understood that Mr. Mizzone has incurred medical and dental bills since July 1, 1996, which must be submitted to the District's carrier for coverage as to any excess beyond the amounts provided by Mr. Mizzone's alternative insurance.

If, for any reason, Mr. Mizzone is denied retroactive insurance coverage from July 1, 1996, the District will compensate Mr. Mizzone for the amount in excess of his alternative insurance that would have been paid by the Board's carrier if that coverage had been in effect.

4. Mr. Mizzone shall not be required to comply with any 'waiting period' for any form of health insurance on or after the date of his reinstatement.

5. Mr. Mizzone shall be paid the amount of $984.68 as reimbursement for the cost of alternative medical and dental insurance. Said sum shall be paid within 30 days of the approval of this Agreement by the Commissioner of Education. Said amount shall be paid as a lump sum with no deductions or withholdings taken from it. The District may issue a Form 1099 as to this sum. If any income tax is due as to this amount, it shall be Mr. Mizzone's responsibility to determine the amount of tax due, if any, and pay said tax when due.

6. Mr. Mizzone shall receive retroactive seniority credit for the period September 1, 1996, through January 31, 1997, in the same manner as would have been the case if he had been employed for that period. This time span shall count as time employed for all other purposes under district policy, practice or contract as to Mr. Mizzone.

7. In return for compliance with this Agreement, Mr. Mizzone agrees to the dismissal of the above-captioned litigation, with prejudice and without costs. This Agreement is subject to approval by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education and shall be null and void if not so approved.

U.M., petitioner, contested the Pennsauken Board of Education determination that her niece, H.C., is not qualified under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 to attend Pennsauken High School.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. The hearing was calendared for May 1, 1997 at 9:00 a.m. at the Office of Administrative Law, Trenton, New Jersey.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF LAWNSIDE, CAMDEN COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

Petitioning parents challenged Board's residency determination.

In light of the testimony of witnesses and review of the record, the ALJ concluded that petitioners' children were domiciled in the District as A.B. and R.B. and their four children have lived with A.B.'s aunt and mother in Lawnside for a number of years and, thus, were entitled to a free public education in Lawnside. The Board was ordered to permit petitioners' children to be enrolled in its schools free of charge.

Relying on the record and the credibility determinations of the ALJ, the Commissioner adopted the findings and determination in the initial decision as his own.

R.B., petitioner, appearing pro se

Harvey C. Johnson, Esq., for Respondent

Record Closed: December 12, 1996 Decided: April 14, 1997

BEFORE BARBARA A. HARNED ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

A.B. and R.B., on behalf of their four minor children, contest the determination of the Board of Education of the Lawnside School District (Board) that their children are not entitled to a free public education from the Lawnside School District. By letter dated June 14, 1996, the Board advised A.B. and R.B. that it had determined they were not domiciled in Lawnside and that their children were not living in the home of another person domiciled in the district and supported gratis by that individual (R-3). Accordingly, A.B. and R.B. were advised to withdraw their children from the District (R-3). The letter additionally advised the parents of their appeal rights (R-3).

A.B. and R.B. filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education on June 30, 1996. On July 29, 1996, the Commissioner transferred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A telephone prehearing conference was held on September 19, 1996. The hearing was held on November 12, 1996. The record was kept open for the submission of tax returns by A.B. and R.B. to the Board and was closed thereafter on December 12, 1996. The B. children have continued to attend school in the Lawnside district pending the outcome of this proceeding.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

Unless otherwise noted, the following facts are undisputed and I adopt them as FINDINGS OF FACT. Disputed facts are noted and findings as to those disputed facts are set forth at the end of this factual discussion. R.B. and A.B. have four children: a son A.B., Jr. age 17, and three daughters, A.B. age 12, A.B. age 9, and A.B. age 6. A.B.'s mother, G.W. age 71, owns a home at 1411 Ormond Avenue, Camden, New Jersey. However, G.W. does not live in the Ormond Avenue home but rather lives with her sister, M.J., age 77, in a home owned by M.J. at 131 Ashland Avenue, Lawnside, New Jersey. G.W. moved in with her sister approximately six to eight years ago when it became clear that she could no longer live alone. G.W. suffers from a chronic mental disorder, complicated by memory deficits and requires twenty-four hour supervision (P-1). R.B. and A.B. testified that they and their four children live with A.B.'s aunt and mother in Lawnside. The Board, however, contends that A.B., R.B. and their four children live at the 1411 Ormond Avenue address in Camden.

R.B.'s son A.B., Jr., was born in 1979. R.B. and the baby's father, A.B., married in 1982 and lived with A.B.'s mother at the 1411 Ormond Avenue address in Camden for about one year. R.B. and A.B. subsequently had three daughters. While disputed by the Board, R.B. testified that in 1982 or 1983, she, A.B. and A.B., Jr. moved in with M.J. in Lawnside, that their daughters were born while they lived in Lawnside and that the family has continuously lived in Lawnside since 1982 or 1983.

R.B. testified as to the sleeping arrangements at the Lawnside residence. There are four bedrooms in that home. R.B. testified that M.J. and the two older daughters sleep in one bedroom and that her youngest daughter sleeps in the same room as her grandmother G.W. A.B., Jr. has his own bedroom and R.B. and A.B. have a bedroom in the basement.

The children have always attended school in the Lawnside district with one exception, discussed below. The Board entered into evidence documents relating to the children's attendance at school in the district. In September, 1990, the children's great aunt, M.J., signed an Affidavit of Residency when the B.'s oldest daughter entered kindergarten (R-2, Exhibit 13, page 4). In this Affidavit, M.J. swore that she maintained a permanent residence at 131 Ashland Avenue and that A.B. and his family also maintained a permanent residence at that address (R-2, Exhibit 13, page 4). Also entered into evidence by the Board is a partially completed Affidavit of Support of Minor with the oldest daughter's name filled in, suggesting that M.J. claimed she supported the child (R-2, Exhibit 13, pages 5 through 8). However, this document is unsigned and undated and therefore I will not accord it any evidential weight. On a medical information form completed in relation to the oldest daughter's entering kindergarten in September, 1990, her address was listed as 131 Ashland Avenue (R-2, Exhibit 16). Registration forms completed in September, 1992 and September, 1995, respectively, when the two younger daughters entered kindergarten, also list their home address as 131 Ashland Avenue and state that the children live with their mother and father at that address (R-2, Exhibits 14 and 15).

The one exception noted above occurred when A.B., Jr., was in eighth grade and was not promoted to the ninth grade. R.B.'s mother suggested that he live with her in Camden, attend summer school and enter Camden High School. A.B., Jr. did live with his maternal grandmother for the year, completed ninth grade at Camden and returned to the Lawnside school district the following year to enter Haddon Heights High School, with which Lawnside has a sending/receiving relationship (R-2, Exhibit 13, page 1). R.B. testified that while her son attended Camden High School, he visited the Lawnside residence every day and she and her husband supported him. A.B., Jr.'s great aunt,

M.J., completed an Affidavit of Residency on September 2, 1994 in connection with A.B., Jr.'s return to Lawnside. In this Affidavit M.J. swore that A.B., Jr. maintained a permanent residence at the 131 Ashland Avenue address (R-2, Exhibit 13, page 1). The Board also submitted into evidence a partially completed Affidavit of Residency Parents/Guardian in which M.J. is listed as the guardian of A.B., Jr. (R-2, Exhibit 13, page 2). However, this document is undated and unsigned (R-2, Exhibit 13, page 2). Therefore, I will not accord it any evidential weight.

R.B. testified that the family does not live at the 1411 Ormond Avenue, Camden address. Rather, they only visit that home on occasion when the stress of caring for her mother-in-law becomes too great. G.W. suffers from schizophrenia and Alzheimer's disease (P-1, P-2, P-3 and P-4). According to G.W.'s treating psychiatrist, Dr. Rao, as of May 22, 1995, G.W. "needs 24 hour supervision and assistance in all her daily activities" and that A.B. "is a primary caregiver for [G.W.]" (P-1). Dr. Rao also stated that

> Without the son's help, patient is very difficult for her sister to manage alone. His daily presence there is of utmost importance to her well-being and continued care (P-1).

R.B. testified that at times the family needs to take a break because of the difficulty in dealing with G.W. In addition, G.W. sometimes does things that are not good for the children. She will wake up in the middle of the night screaming which scares the children. According to R.B., the family stays in the Camden house one or two days a week when G.W. gets "too bad." Sometimes, G.W. will be "bad" for a week or two and the family will go to Camden until her medicine starts working. The family often spends the weekends at the Camden address. R.B. and the children have some clothes and the children have toys at the Camden house. In addition, the children have old bikes in Camden while they have new bikes in Lawnside. R.B. keeps her important papers at the Camden address because G.W. destroys correspondence.

Both R.B. and A.B.'s driver's licenses list the Lawnside address as their address. In addition, R.B. and A.B. submitted into evidence sixteen pieces of correspondence, thirteen addressed to A.B. and three addressed to R.B., all mailed to the Lawnside address. The correspondence includes items such as bills from doctors, lawyers and Bell Atlantic Mobile, as well as a citation from traffic court. The envelopes bear postmark dates from 1986 (one item, the traffic citation) through 1996, with the majority of the documents dated 1994 to 1996 (P-6 through P-21). On their 1995 income tax return, R.B. and A.B. listed their address as 131 Ashland Avenue, Lawnside, NJ and claimed the four children as dependents (R-2, Exhibit 10). It is undisputed that R.B. and A.B. fully support their four children.

James Allen, District Investigator, testified for the Board. He had been asked by the Acting Superintendent, Cassandra Brown, to investigate the B. family because Ms. Brown had been told by teachers that the family lived in Camden and that the younger children were frequently late to school. Mr. Allen observed the home at 1411 Ormond Avenue, Camden on four occasions. On Friday, April 19, 1996, Mr. Allen arrived at 1411 Ormond at approximately 5:30 a.m. (P-5). He observed Mr. B.'s car parked in a side driveway. Mr. B. walked out of the house at approximately 7:37 a.m. and started his car. Mr. B. walked back to the front of the house and then started working in the back yard (P-5). Mr. Allen videotaped Mr. B. walking to the front of the house and working in the back yard (R-1, P-5). At approximately 7:45 a.m., Mrs. B. walked up the driveway and got into the car with Mr. B. (P-5).

On Monday, April 22, 1996, Mr. Allen returned to 1411 Ormond at approximately 6:30 a.m.. At approximately 7:47 a.m., Mr. Allen observed Mr. B. and the B.'s three daughters walk out the front door, around to the driveway and get into their car (P-5). Mrs. B. then came out of the house, got into the car and they drove away (P-5). Mr. Allen followed the B family after they left the 1411 Ormond address. They drove to 131 Ashland Avenue in Lawnside and dropped off the youngest daughter at that address (P-5). Mr. Allen arrived at 131 Ashland at approximately 8:16 a.m. on April 22, 1996, observed and videotaped the same car that had left 1411 Ormond, now parked at 131 Ashland (R-1, P-5). After dropping off their youngest daughter at 131 Ashland, the B.'s drove their other two daughters to their school in Lawnside (P-5).

Mr. Allen returned to 1411 Ormond on Tuesday, April 23, 1996. At approximately 7:30 a.m. he observed Mr. B. walk out of the house and start his car (P-5). Mr. B. went back to the front of the house and put out the trash (P-5). Mr. Allen described the trash as one container, several large bags and several smaller bags. He thought it "appeared to be trash from a family living there." Shortly thereafter, Mrs. B. came out of the house, got into the car with her husband and they drove away (P-5). On Monday, April 29, 1996, Mr. Allen returned to 1411 Ormond (P-5). At approximately 7:30 a.m. he observed Mr. B. come out of the house and start his car (P-5). He then observed Mrs. B. come out of the house carrying a large overnight bag (P-5).

Mr. Allen again visited 1411 Ormond on May 1, 1996, at approximately 9:30 a.m. (P-5). His purpose was to interview the neighbors of the B. family. Mr. Allen went to 1415 Ormond Avenue and spoke with Mr. Thomas, a long time resident (P-5). Mr. Thomas told Mr. Allen that he knew the B. family and that they had lived at 1411 Ormond for about thirty years (P-5). In response to Mr. Allen's inquiry about the children's activities, Mr. Thomas responded that "[t]hey play outside when its hot, but it's been cold lately so I don't see them that much" (P-5). Mr. Allen also interviewed Mr. Mustapha who lives at 1466 Bradley Street, across the street from 1411 Ormond (P-5). Mr. Mustapha stated that he knew the B. family. When asked by Mr. Allen how long the B.'s had lived at 1411 Ormond, he responded that he had been living in his house for thirteen years and that the B.'s "were here when I came" (P-5). When asked if he ever saw the children playing outside, Mr. Mustapha replied "I see the girls riding their bikes around my house and playing in the park across the street all the time" (P-5). On cross examination, Mr. Allen acknowledged that the park referred to by Mr. Mustapha is a vacant lot with no swings or slides. When asked about A.B., Jr., Mr. Mustapha replied that he "is usually with his father" (P-5).

Mr. Allen further testified that some children are bused to the high school in Haddon Heights and that with an address in Lawnside, A.B., Jr., would have a bus pass. Mr. Allen followed the buses approximately ten times between February and June, 1996 and saw A.B., Jr., get off the bus in the morning only two times. He never saw A.B., Jr. use the bus in the afternoon. Some of the students on the bus asked Mr. Allen why he was following the bus and he replied that he was investigating students who do not live in Lawnside. The students responded that A.B., Jr. did not live in Lawnside. Mr. Allen is aware of some teenagers who take the Speed Line from Camden to Lawnside and that 1411 Ormond is only a few blocks from the high speed line but he acknowledged on cross examination that he had never observed A.B., Jr. taking public transportation to school. R.B. testified that her son does not use the bus because his girlfriend drives him to school.

Cassandra Brown is a sixth grade teacher who was serving as Acting Superintendent of the Lawnside school district in 1995/96. She testified that the teaching staff told her that the B. family lived in Camden and that they were late to school a lot. School starts at 8:25 a.m. and the late bell rings at 8:35 a.m. If a student is late, he or she must report to the office. Ms. Brown estimated it would be a ten to fifteen minute walk to school from the 131 Ashland address. One of R.B. and A.B.'s daughters is in Ms. Brown's class this year and she is late to class at least two times a week. On cross examination, Ms. Brown acknowledged that the number of unexcused latenesses would be shown on a student's report card. She also acknowledged that other children are late to school.

Affidavits of Residency for the four children were signed by M.J. and R.B. for the 1996/97 school year in which M.J. and R.B. swore that the children resided full time in M.J.'s home and maintained a permanent residence in her 131 Ashland Avenue home (R-2, Exhibits 2, 4, 6 and 8). In addition, Affidavits of Residency for Parents/Guardians were signed by R.B. and A.B. for the 1996-97 school year for each of the four children in which the parents swore that they reside at the 131 Ashland Avenue address on a permanent basis and are the legal parents and guardians of the children (R-2, Exhibits 3, 5, 7 and 9).

Based on the above discussion, it is clear that resolving where the B. family lives requires a determination of the credibility of the witnesses. In this instance, I found all three witnesses to be creditable. R.B.'s explanation that the family sometimes stays in Camden when G.W. is acting out has the ring of truth to it. Moreover, R.B.'s testimony is strongly supported by the letter from Dr. Rao in which he states that A.B. is "a primary caregiver for" G.W. who "needs 24 hour supervision and assistance in all her daily activities" and that A.B.'s "daily presence there is of utmost importance to [G.W.'s] well-being and continued care"(P-1). It is reasonable to conclude that in order to provide this primary care on a 24-hour basis, A.B. must live with his mother in his aunt's Lawnside residence. This letter provides particularly strong support since it is dated prior to the commencement of the investigation into the B. family's residence and thus clearly was not prepared in connection with this litigation. The Board contends, however, that the letter supports its position because Dr. Rao also states in the letter that G.W. "lives with her elderly sister who is overwhelmed by the care the patient needs" instead of stating that G.W. lives with her elderly sister and A.B. and his family (P-1).[1] The Board asks that an inference be drawn from this statement that A.B. and his family do not live in the Lawnside residence. However, such a strong inference cannot be derived from the quoted language. The doctor could just as easily have referred only to M.J. in that statement because he knew M.J. owned the house in Lawnside. R.B.'s testimony is also supported by documentary evidence such as the sixteen pieces of correspondence addressed to either A.B. or R.B. at the Lawnside address, the Lawnside address on both petitioners' drivers licenses and the Lawnside address on their income tax form. Moreover, R.B.'s description of the sleeping arrangements in the four bedrooms in the Lawnside home was essentially uncontradicted by the Board and seems reasonable.

I also found the testimony of Investigator Allen entirely credible. Indeed, petitioners do not dispute that on the first, second and fourth days he observed the Camden address, Mr. and Mrs. B. came out of the Camden residence and that on the third day Mr. and Mrs. B. and their daughters left that residence and drove to the Lawnside address. Mr. Allen's observations on these four days, however, are consistent with R.B.'s testimony that the family lives in Lawnside but goes to the Camden residence on occasion to relieve the stress of caring for her mother-in-law.

Moreover, the one instance of observing the daughters leaving the Camden house is insufficient to establish that the family lives at that address, especially since the children were not observed on three other occasions. While Ms. Brown's testimony, which I also find credible, that one of the children is in her class this year and is late at least two times a week may be suggestive, it would be speculation to conclude that the child is late because she lives in Camden. The fact that Mr. Allen observed A.B., Jr. taking the school bus on only a few occasions and speculated that A.B., Jr. could be taking the speed line from Camden is too inconclusive to establish that A.B., Jr. lives at the Camden residence. The only other evidence that the children live at the Camden address is hearsay testimony from neighbors, classmates and teachers. The only non-speculative and non-hearsay evidence on this issue is Mr. Allen's observations. I conclude that those observations are insufficient to support a finding that the family lives in the Camden residence in light of my finding that R.B.'s explanation of why they occasionally stay at the Camden residence is credible and a reasonable explanation of why Mr. Allen observed them leaving the Camden residence.

[1] I note that both parties submitted Dr. Rao's letter into evidence. Petitioners as P-1 and the Board as R-2, Exhibit 18.

Based on the foregoing, I make the following additional FINDINGS OF FACT:

1. In 1982 or 1983, R.B., A.B. and A.B., Jr. moved in with M.J. in M.J.'s 131 Ashland Avenue, Lawnside, N.J., residence.
2. R.B. and A.B.'s three daughters were born while the family was living at 131 Ashland Avenue, Lawnside, N.J.
3. The B. family has continuously lived in Lawnside since 1982 or 1983.
4. There are four bedrooms in the 131 Ashland home. M.J. and the two older daughters of R.B. and A.B. sleep in one bedroom. G.W. and the youngest daughter sleep in a second bedroom. A.B., Jr., has his own bedroom. R.B. and A.B. have a bedroom in the basement of the house.
5. G.W. suffers from schizophrenia and Alzheimer's disease and requires 24 hour supervision and assistance. A.B. is a primary caregiver for his mother, G.W.
6. On occasion when the stress of caring for G.W. becomes too great, the B. family will stay at the 1411 Ormond Avenue, Camden house owned by G.W. The family stays in the Camden house approximately one or two days a week and frequently will stay there on weekends. Occasionally the family will stay at the Camden address for a week, if G.W.'s medication is not working. G.W. sometimes wakes up during the night and starts screaming which frightens the younger B. children.
7. R.B. and the children have some clothes and the children have some toys at the Camden house. In addition, the children have old bikes in Camden and new bikes in Lawnside. R.B. keeps her important papers at the Camden address because G.W. sometimes destroy correspondence.
8. After receiving reports that the B. family lived in Camden, the Acting Superintendent of the Lawnside school district asked the District Investigator, James Allen, to investigate.
9. Mr. Allen observed the residence at 1411 Ormond Avenue, Camden, on four days, i.e. on April 19, 22, 23 and 29, 1996.

10 On April 19, 1996, at approximately 7:37 a.m. Mr. B. walked out of the house at 1411 Ormond Avenue and started his car. Mr. B. then started working in the back yard of that residence. At approximately 7:45 a.m., Mrs. B. walked up the driveway and got into the car with Mr. B.

11 On April 22, 1996, Mr. B. and his three daughters walked out of the front door of the residence at 1411 Ormond Avenue and got into Mr. B.'s car. Shortly thereafter, Mrs. B. came out of the same house and got into the car. The family drove to 131 Ashland Avenue in Lawnside where the youngest daughter was dropped off. Mr. and Mrs. B. then drove their other two daughters to their school in Lawnside.

12. On April 23, 1996, at approximately 7:30 a.m. Mr. B. walked out of the house at 1411 Ormond Avenue and started his car. Mr. B. went back to the front of the house and put out the trash which consisted of one container, several large bags and several smaller bags. Shortly thereafter, Mrs. B. came out of the 1411 Ormond Avenue residence, got into the car with her husband and they drove away.

13. On April 29, 1996, at approximately 7:30 a.m. Mr. B. walked out of the house at 1411 Ormond Avenue and started his car. Shortly thereafter, Mrs. B. came out of the 1411 Ormond Avenue residence carrying a large overnight bag.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, a local school district is required to provide a free public education to any person over five and under twenty years of age who is domiciled within the school district. A person may have several residences but can have only one domicile. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 251 (1955). Domicile is defined as > [i]n a strict legal sense, the domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving. . .. Home is the place where a person dwells and which is the center of his domestic, social and civil life . . .. Thus, the concepts of home and domicile mean more than physical residence. They also embody the subject's objective and subjective relationship to that residence. Matter of Unanue, 225 N.J. Super. 362, 374 (Law Div. 1991).

As the Court explained in State v. Benny, supra, 20 N.J. at 251, residency is different than domicile in that a > [r]esidence, on the other hand, though parallel in many respects to domicile, is something quite different in that the elements of permanency, continuity and kinship with the physical, cultural, social and political attributes which inhere in a "home" according to our accepted understanding, are missing. Intention adequately manifested is the catalyst which converts a residence from a mere place in which a person lives to a domicile. Where a person has two homes in which he lives and between which he divides his time, it is still his intention which creates one or the other as his domicile.

Petitioners have the burden in this proceeding of proving by a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence that their family is domiciled in Lawnside and thus entitled to attend Lawnside public schools free of charge. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(2). Based on my findings set forth above, I CONCLUDE that A.B. and R.B. never intended to make 1411 Ormond Avenue, Camden, their "home" as described in State v. Benny, supra. The address on their drivers' licenses, correspondence and income tax return is 131 Ashland Avenue, Lawnside. Moreover, one piece of correspondence with the Ashland Avenue address is dated December 8, 1986, (P-9), indicating that the B. family has lived at that address for a long period of time. Indeed, with the exception of one year, A.B., Jr. has been attending Lawnside schools for the past twelve years. His sisters have been attending Lawnside schools since 1990, 1992 and 1995 respectively. Despite this long attendance at Lawnside schools, the Board offered no testimony of a concern the family did not live in Lawnside until sometime in 1996 when Mr. Allen was asked to investigate. In addition, I found R.B.'s testimony that the family stays at the Camden home several times a week when the stress of caring for G.W. becomes overwhelming to be convincing. It may have been these visits to the Camden home that caused speculation that the B. family no longer lived in Lawnside. However, those visits do not amount to an intention by R.B. and A.B. to make the Camden house their home or domicile.

For the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that petitioners' children are entitled and at all times relevant have been entitled to attend the public schools in respondent's district free of charge pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a).

ORDER

For the reasons expressed herein, respondent is ORDERED to permit A.B., Jr., A.B., A.B., and A.B. to continue to be enrolled in their schools free of charge.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF LAWNSIDE, CAMDEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter,* and relying upon the credibility determinations rendered by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), the Commissioner affirms the ALJ's findings and conclusions, and concurs that petitioners have demonstrated they are domiciled in Lawnside, so as to permit their children to attend school in that District, free of charge, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1a.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL granting petitioners' appeal to set aside the Board's decision to disenroll their children is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Board is hereby ordered to continue to admit petitioners' children into its public school system, free of charge, so long as there is no change in petitioners' circumstances that would alter their entitlement.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Consolidated matters involved the sending-receiving relationship between Petitioning Lincoln Park Board and Respondent Boonton Board. Dispute involved 1) interpretation of applicable school laws and parties' Agreement on matters regarding the rights of the Lincoln Park representative (appointee) to the Boonton Board and 2) petitioner's allegation that the respondent Board and its Superintendent, DeVincenzi, acted arbitrarily, capriciously, illegally and in bad faith in the selection search process and the appointment of Respondent Angilly to the position of Principal of Boonton High School.

First, the ALJ assessed and detailed the rights and responsibilities of the Lincoln Park appointee pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, considering the plain language of this provision, its legislative history and intent, and the Agreement in place between the parties. Next, the ALJ concluded that the Boonton Board and its superintendent acted arbitrarily, capriciously and in bad faith in implementing the principal selection search process and, as such, the appointment of Walter Angilly to the position of Booton High School was invalid.

Having reviewed transcripts of the 12 days of hearings and the voluminous record in this matter, the Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's assessment of the rights and responsibilities of the Lincoln Park appointee to the Boonton Board, finding these properly reflected the two separate directives mandated by the applicable statute, were consistent with the statute's legislative history and intent, and comported with the contemplated spirit of cooperation envisioned by the parties' Agreement. Both Boards were directed to immediately take those actions necessary to conform their policies and procedures to reflect the rights and responsibilities of the Lincoln Park representative to the Boonton Board. As to the principal selection search process, the Commissioner, relying on the ALJ's summations of testimony, assessments of witness credibility, overall characterization of underlying situations and specific findings and conclusions, and finding all of these to be amply supported in the record, agreed with the ALJ that the Board and its superintendent acted arbitrarily, capriciously and in bad faith in implementing the process. (Driscoll; Onulak; McKnight) The Commissioner ordered the appointment of Angilly be vacated and a new principal selection process developed and implemented. He further ordered that Angilly remain in the position of Acting Principal during the course of this process and retain all rights to apply and be considered for the position.

STATEMENT OF CASE

These consolidated matters involve the sending/receiving relationship between petitioner Board of Education of the Borough of Lincoln Park ("petitioner" or "Lincoln Park" or "Lincoln Park BOE") and respondent Board of Education of the Town of Boonton ("respondent" or "Board" or "Boonton").

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-11 et seq., Lincoln Park sends its high school students, grades 9 through 12, to Boonton High School ("BHS"). On April 10, 1990, Lincoln Park and Boonton entered into an "Agreement" to continue their sending/receiving relationship. In January 1995, the Legislature enacted N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, which provides that a sending district whose students comprise at least 10 percent of the total enrollment of the students in the receiving district shall have one representative on the receiving board of education. Lincoln Park students comprise approximately 56 percent of the total student population of BHS, and thus petitioner has one voting representative on the Boonton Board.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 9620-95, Agency Dkt. No. 259-7/95

The major dispute between the parties is the interpretation of the Agreement and applicable school laws on matters regarding the rights of the Lincoln Park BOE and/or its representative ("appointee"). Petitioner asserts that the Lincoln Park BOE and its appointee have the right pursuant to the Agreement and N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 to receive and discuss among themselves all information, matters, business, and other concerns relating to high school programs brought before the Boonton BOE prior to action taken on the information by the Board. Petitioner seeks a remedy which directs the Board (1) to provide to the appointee all documents and information provided to members of the Board, (2) to allow the appointee full rights and privileges as a member of the Board, subject to the statutory voting restrictions, and (3) to allow the appointee to communicate with the Lincoln Park BOE and its superintendent on matters pending before the Boonton Board.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 12270-95, Agency Dkt. No. 436-11/95

The second matter involves three respondents: the Board; the Board's superintendent, Joy Northrop DiVincenzi ("DiVincenzi"); and the principal of Boonton High School, Walter Angilly ("Angilly"). Petitioner asserts that the Board and DiVincenzi acted arbitrarily, capriciously, illegally and in bad faith in the "selection search process" and the appointment of Angilly to the position of principal of Boonton High School. Petitioner seeks an order from the Commissioner vacating the appointment of Angilly and a resumption of the selection search process.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 3, 1995, Lincoln Park filed a petition before the Commissioner and requested that Boonton provide to Lincoln Park through its superintendent of schools a copy of all appendices to the Board agenda affecting the high school program. Petitioner claimed that the information was necessary to allow Lincoln Park and its appointee to effectively participate in the decision-making process at the Board's meetings.

On July 31, 1995, Lincoln Park filed a petition for emergent relief and requested that the Commissioner enjoin Boonton from taking any further actions to screen, interview and/or appoint a new high school principal.

Boonton timely replied to the petitions and filed an Answer and Cross-Petition for Declaratory Judgment concerning the application of school laws governing the sending/receiving relationship and Agreement between Lincoln Park and Boonton. Boonton also requested that the Commissioner consolidate the petitions and retain jurisdiction of the matters.

On August 25, 1995, the Commissioner denied Lincoln Park's application for emergent relief and Boonton's application for Declaratory Judgment. Also, the Commissioner denied Boonton's application to retain jurisdiction of the proceedings and transmitted the matters to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to-13. The Commissioner also recommended that these matters be consolidated.

On October 31, 1995, a telephone status conference was held and petitioner filed a substitution of attorney, substituting Rand, Algeier, Tosti & Woodruff, attorneys, for Peggy O'Dowd, Esq., withdrawing attorney. On November 7, 1995, Lincoln Park filed the current petition (EDU 12270-95, Agency Dkt. No. 436-11/95), essentially updating the July petition which sought to enjoin Boonton from hiring a high school principal. The November petition requested that the Commissioner vacate the appointment of respondent Walter Angilly to the position of high school principal. On December 8, 1995, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the OAL to be consolidated with OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9620-95. On November 14, 1995, I entered an Order to consolidate OAL Dkt. Nos. EDU 9620-95 and EDU 12270-95.

Prehearing conferences were held on December 22, 1995, and January 30, 1996. Hearings were held on February 15, March 11 and 12, April 9, 11, 19, and 22, and May 13, 16, 17, 23, and 28, 1996. On July 31, 1996, the parties filed a stipulation of agreement which provided in part that during the pendency of this matter Angilly would not assert tenure rights to the position of principal based on his services as a middle school administrator. The parties also agreed that petitioner will not apply for emergent relief seeking the removal of Angilly from his position of Boonton High School principal, provided that the Commissioner issues his decision on or before June 30, 1997. The parties filed posthearing briefs and the record closed on October 11, 1996.

The forty-five-day statutory period within which to file the Initial Decision with the Department of Education expired on November 25, 1996. Based on the administrative law judge's voluminous case load and the complexity of these consolidated matters, a forty-five-day extension of time to complete the Initial Decision was twice granted. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c); N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8.

STIPULATION OF FACTS

The following stipulated facts are adopted as FACT:

1. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-20, the boards of education of the Borough of Lincoln Park and the Town of Boonton entered into a sending/receiving agreement dated April 10, 1990 (the "1990 Agreement") under which Lincoln Park, as a sending district, reaffirmed and redesignated Boonton as the receiving district for the high school pupils of Lincoln Park.

2. The 1990 Agreement perpetuated an existing sending/receiving contract due to terminate on June 30, 1994, by extending the contractual sending/receiving relationship for a ten-year period through the 1998-99 school year.

3. According to the October 15, 1995 report of the Boonton public schools, as of October 15, 1995, there were 564 students attending Boonton High School, apportioned 319 from Lincoln Park and 245 from Boonton.

4. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, since Boonton's organizational meeting in April 1995, Boonton's nine member board of education has been increased to ten members in order to include one Lincoln Park appointee, initially Ms. Susan Boykas, then replaced by Ms. Bonnie Sudol, who in January 1996 was followed by Patrick English ("Lincoln Park appointee").

5. In July 1995, the boards of education of Lincoln Park and Boonton received a written report jointly prepared by the superintendents of Boonton and Lincoln Park communicating the results of their coordination.

6. The 1990 Agreement requires each to designate at least two, but less than a majority, of its members to serve as liaison representatives to the other board and to meet periodically.

7. The boards of education of Lincoln Park and Boonton have adopted policies establishing a Bi-District Committee, composed of four members from each district, as well as the two superintendents and the principal of Boonton High School.

8. The first posting and advertisement of the principal position occurred on June 13, 1995, when the position was published in the Star Ledger and Daily Record, fixing a July 7, 1995, deadline for application submissions.

9. The previously employed principal of Boonton High School, Robert Kane, retired on June 30, 1995.

Stipulated facts ten (10) through thirty (30) pertain to the principal selection process and the appointment of Walter Angilly. They are contained in section VII: Principal Selection Search Process.

31. After approval, the minutes of public meetings of the Boonton Board of Education are sent to the Lincoln Park superintendent and subsequently distributed by him to the Lincoln Park Board of Education.

ISSUES

The list of issues was submitted by the parties and incorporated into the Prehearing Order:

1. Does the Lincoln Park BOE have a right under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 or under the sending/receiving contract to receive all information and documents available to Boonton BOE members pertaining to the high school, before the information is available to the public and prior to consideration of the same information by the Boonton BOE?

2. Is the deliberative role of the Lincoln Park appointee (sending district) on the Boonton BOE (receiving district) limited to the categories on which Lincoln Park's appointee is eligible to vote under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1?

3. Is the Lincoln Park appointee (sending district) entitled to receive copies of all information and communications distributed to the Boonton BOE (receiving district) that are not related to the categories on which the Lincoln Park appointee is eligible to vote under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1?

4. As a member of the Boonton receiving district board, is the appointee from Lincoln Park (sending district) bound to maintain the confidentiality of, and not disclose to other members of the sending district board, the information received and deliberations conducted in closed session meetings of the receiving district board pursuant to the Open Public Meetings Act?

5. Is it proper for the Lincoln Park BOE appointee to disseminate to other members of the sending district board, information and communications which the sending district appointee receives as a member of the Boonton receiving district board before the information is considered or acted upon by the Boonton BOE?

6. Does the Lincoln Park BOE as a matter of law or contract have the right to limit the authority granted to the Boonton BOE to appoint administrators at Boonton High School to candidates acceptable to the Lincoln Park BOE?

7. May a receiving district agree by contract, board action, policy or practice to place limitations on its authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1 to appoint a school principal?

8. May a receiving district through contract, board action, policy or practice consider candidates for high school principal not recommended by the chief school administrator of the receiving district?

9. With respect to the receiving district superintendent's general supervision authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20(b) and appointment recommendation authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, may a receiving district through contract, board action, policy or practice cede or share that authority with the sending district board, the sending district superintendent, or a bi-district committee?

10. Did the Boonton BOE cede to any other body the final authority to determine the principal selection process?

11. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, could the Boonton BOE have voted not to appoint to the position of high school principal the candidate recommended by the superintendent?

12. Does the relief sought by the Lincoln Park BOE contravene the statutory scheme for a sending/receiving relationship and the statutory authority of the Boonton BOE over the operation and management of its school district?

13. Do the contract and grievance rights of Angilly preclude his removal prior to expiration of the current contract term?

14. Can the Commissioner substitute his judgment for the judgment of the receiving district board and its superintendent although the appointee is qualified for the position of principal?

15. Was the conduct of respondents Boonton BOE and Northrop DiVincenzi arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable, illegal or exercised in bad faith in the appointment of Angilly to the position of high school principal?

16. With regard to the principal selection process, did the Lincoln Park BOE act with predetermined bias and is, therefore, precluded from challenging the selection process and the appointment of Angilly to the position of high school principal?

17. What is the principal selection process and what is the function of the Bi-District Committee in the principal selection process?

18. Did the principal selection process used by respondents Boonton BOE and Northrop DiVincenzi, which resulted in the appointment of Angilly by the Boonton BOE, violate the "Agreement" between the Lincoln Park BOE and the Boonton BOE?

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 9620-95

I

Issues one through five will be discussed together, as each raises overlapping questions whose answers are dependent upon an interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 and the Agreement.

The Agreement between Lincoln Park and Boonton provides, in pertinent part:

> 8. Policy and Procedural Provisions. The parties hereby agree to abide by the following policies and procedural provisions governing the sending/receiving relationship:
>
> A. The Boonton Board will take the concerns of the Lincoln Park and Lincoln Park Boards of Education into account in making all decisions and taking all actions affecting Lincoln Park and Lincoln Park pupils and the Boards.
>
> . . . .
> E. There shall be a mutually acceptable agreement between the two (2) districts respecting the following areas, and > this coordination is to be worked out between Superintendents and the results communicated by them in a jointly prepared written report to the Boards by July 1st of every year:

> (1) Orientation of Lincoln Park and Lincoln Park's eighth graders into Boonton High School;
> (2) Program Articulation;
> (3) Lincoln Park and Lincoln Park pupil records and reporting of them to Boonton;
> (4) Scheduling, including school calendar and class hours;
> (5) Curriculum and program offerings;
> (6) Class size and staffing;
> (7) Extracurricular activities;
> (8) Transportation schedules;
> (9) Such other areas as any of the participating districts' Boards, Superintendents, or Business Administrators shall deem appropriate.
> [J-1.]

The Agreement established the structure of the relationship between Lincoln Park and Boonton. Thomas Curtin, Esq., negotiated the Agreement for the Boonton BOE. He testified that the intention of paragraph 8A was that the boards would cooperate with one another. Paragraph 8E indicates that the petitioner and the Board shall reach mutually acceptable agreements in nine areas, including a catch-all section which requires agreement on "[s]uch other areas as any of the participating districts' Boards, Superintendents, or Business Administrators shall deem appropriate." The contract has been strengthened and broadened by the enactment of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, which entitled Lincoln Park to a seat on the Boonton Board of Education.

II

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 was amended effective August 19, 1996. The statute provides as follows:

> In addition to the members of the board of education of a Type I and Type II school district provided by law, in a school district which is receiving pupils from another district or districts pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8, there shall be an additional > member as provided pursuant to section 2 of this act to represent the board of education of each sending district. Any additional member shall be a member of the board of education of a sending district designated annually by the board of that district and shall be eligible to vote on the following matters before the receiving district board of education:

> a. Tuition to be charged the sending district by the receiving district and the bill lists or contracts for the purchase, operation or maintenance of facilities, equipment and instructional materials to be used in the education of the pupils of the sending district;
>
> b. New capital construction to be utilized by sending district pupils;
>
> c. Appointment, transfer or removal of teaching staff members providing services to pupils of the sending district, including any teaching staff member who is a member of the receiving district's central administrative staff; and
>
> d. Addition or deletion of curricular and extracurricular programs involving pupils of the sending district.

The 1996 amendments clarified and expanded the voting rights of the sending district's appointee by broadening the areas upon which the appointee could vote. Indeed, the Senate Education Committee stated its purpose as follows:

> [T]his bill would permit the representatives also to vote on the operating budget for any facilities or staff providing services to pupils of the sending district upon which the tuition charge is based. In addition, language is added to make clear that the representatives may vote on the appointment, transfer or removal of professional administrative staff who provide services to pupils of the sending district.
> The committee adopted amendments which delete the word "directly" in both subsections being revised in order to clarify further the services on which the sending district representatives may vote.
> [Senate Education Committee Statement to S. 1031 with committee amendments (May 2, 1996).]

Further, the legislative history reveals that N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, bill S. 151, as originally proposed, authorized the appointee from the sending district to "vote on all matters before the receiving district board of education, except those matters pertaining exclusively to the grades of the receiving district in which no students from the sending district are enrolled including, but not limited to, matters of facilities, personnel and programs." Senate Education Committee Statement to S. 151 (May 16, 1994). This authorization also included eligibility "to vote on the annual budget prepared for the receiving school district." Senate Statement to S. 151 (Second Reprint).

Governor Whitman vetoed the bill and returned it to the legislators with recommendations for reconsideration. The changes to the bill were precipitated by two concerns. First, that "the bill may provide disproportionate representation to the sending district, in contravention of the Constitutional rights of the voters in the receiving district," and second, that "the bill authorizes the sending district representative to vote on all matters before the receiving board including matters that do not affect the sending district." Governor Whitman's Veto Message with Recommended Action, S. 151 (Oct. 20, 1994). Thus, the Governor recommended a change in the formula for determining the sending district's representation on the receiving board of education which capped representation at one member where the sending district's student enrollment is 10 percent or above of the total enrollment in the receiving district or two members where two or more sending districts collectively have at least 15 percent of the total enrollment. Ibid. She also recommended limiting the voting rights of the sending district representative to matters concerning the tuition to be charged the sending district by the receiving district; new capital construction to be utilized by sending district pupils; the appointment, transfer or removal of teaching staff directly providing services to sending district pupils; and the addition or deletion of curricular and extracurricular programs involving sending district pupils. Ibid.

The Governor, nonetheless, recognized the legislation's meritorious goals:

> The goal of this bill, to provide the sending district with a voice on the receiving district board of education, is laudable. I am > encouraged by the Legislature's recognition of the merits of regionalization by establishing a formal line of communication between the districts. Such communication will foster an atmosphere of trust and cooperation between the respective boards of education.

> [Ibid.]

The bill was amended to conform to the Governor's recommended action. The third reprint of S. 151 was enacted with passage by the Senate on June 13, 1994, and by the Assembly on September 12, 1994. It became effective on January 12, 1995.

III

The Board posits that the entire rights of membership of the sending district are controlled by the statutory limitations on voting. Thus, the Board argues that the appointee's right to receive information in advance of public dissemination and the right to discuss or debate any matters are triggered only when the Board addresses those issues upon which the appointee can vote. The Board maintains that on all other matters, "the appointee's rights are no greater than any other member of the public." Boonton's Reply Brief at 2.

I reject the Board's argument that the appointee's right to receive information and documents available to other Board members is strictly confined to the statutory subject areas upon which the appointee is eligible to vote. Here, the Board's interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 is restrictive and contrary to the legislative intent. "The interpretation of any statute necessarily begins with consideration of its plain language." Lammers v. Point Pleasant Bd. of Educ., 134 N.J. 264, 267 (1993). The language of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 addresses only two subjects, eligibility for membership and voting rights. Specifically, the statute (1) grants to the sending district entitlement to membership on a receiving district's board of education as a representative of the sending district, and (2) designates those matters on which the appointee shall vote. No other limitations are placed upon rights of the appointee's membership, nor are the terms of the statute defined or given any special meaning. Thus, "[a]bsent a legislative intent to the contrary, such language should be given its ordinary meaning." Id. at 268.

The ordinary meaning of the statute is that the appointee has limited rights of voting. The Legislature expresses no intention to limit either the appointee's access to documents/information or the appointee's level of participation outside of voting eligibility. "Statutes are to be construed as written, not according to some unexpressed intention." Herrera v. Township of South Orange, 270 N.J. Super. 417, 420 (App. Div. 1993). The Board's leap to severely circumscribe the appointee's rights of membership based on limited voting rights is not expressed in the statute or legislative history, nor can it be reasonably inferred from the plain language of the statute. Indeed, the legislative history shows that the Legislature originally intended not to place any limit on the appointee's voting rights.

Moreover, the Board's interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 does not comport with what the Governor recognized as the purpose of the legislation. Indeed, in her veto message, the Governor concluded that the underlying intent of the legislation is to promote communication between the sending and receiving school districts which will foster an atmosphere of trust and cooperation.

In contrast, the Board has created an atmosphere of distrust and suspicion between the sending and receiving school districts by setting apart the rights of the appointee's membership, stretching the limitations imposed upon the appointee, and relegating the status of the appointee to that of a member of the public. The Board presented clearly its position on the rights of the appointee's membership:

> Boonton acknowledges the right of the Lincoln Park appointee to receive information related to his statutory voting rights at the same time as the elected Boonton board members, and to receive information outside those categories when it is made available to the public. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 does not require Boonton to make information on extra-statutory subjects available to the appointee prior to the public meeting at which it will be considered. With respect to these subjects, the appointee's rights are no greater than any other member of the public.

The Board's interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 is unreasonable and deters harmonious dialogue between the school districts. Also, it is inconsistent with the Agreement that the boards would cooperate with one another.

I also reject the Board's argument that by providing the appointee with the disputed information in advance of public dissemination "Boonton's statutory obligation and authority to govern its own school district" will be hindered. Boonton's Initial Brief at 16. The appointee is a board member and, contrary to the Board's position, nothing in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 expresses or implies that when the subject matter before the Board is outside the voting categories the appointee reverts to a member of the public with no greater rights. Moreover, the Board's positions are alienating and more likely to hinder collaboration between the two school districts, in contrast to the intent of the Agreement. Additionally, the Board's position ignores the Governor's acknowledgment that "a formal line of communication [has been established] between the districts." Governor Whitman's Veto Message with Recommended Action, S. 151 (Oct. 20, 1994). Restricting the appointee's access to information would not foster communication between Lincoln Park and Boonton.

Additionally, the Board's interpretation is overbroad and not supported by Callowhill v. Board of Education of Atlantic City, Decision on Motion for Emergent Relief, Commissioner of Education (May 13, 1996). In Callowhill the receiving board was not ordered to accept and consider input from the appointee because the appointee was not entitled to cast a vote. Thus, the active participation of the appointee would not be required.

Although Boonton correctly notes that the appointee is not entitled to vote on "extra-statutory subjects" such as "student discipline, staff leaves of absence, or reduction in force, to name a few," I am persuaded that the receiving district would not be consistently able to determine when matters which are not directly related to the sending district will raise issues that do impact its pupils. See Boonton's Initial Brief at 15. Indeed, the Legislature recognized that the appointment, transfer or removal of teaching staff affects students from the sending district, although the staff members do not provide direct services to these pupils. Thus, the Senate Education Committee deleted the word "directly" from the text:

> 1. . . . Any additional member . . . shall be eligible to vote on the following matters before the receiving district board of education: . . .
> c. Appointment, transfer or removal of teaching staff directly providing services to pupils of the sending district . . . .
> [Senate Education Committee Statement to S. 1031 (May 2, 1996).]

The Board, however, ignores the fact that "student discipline, staff leaves of absence, [and] reduction in force, to name a few," affect all students. Thus, withholding "extra-statutory" information from the appointee until the information is available to the public places the appointee at a severe disadvantage. In contrast, permitting the appointee to review in advance of public dissemination information on "extra-statutory" subjects on which he has no vote merely ensures that the appointee will be a well-informed Board member. The Board's concern that Lincoln Park will control the administration of Boonton High School is unfounded. See Boonton's Initial Brief at 1, 21. The appointee is a minority Board member and cannot impose its will on the majority. Thus, the receipt of information prior to dissemination to the public does not undermine the receiving board's authority to control the conduct of any Board member, as the administration of Boonton High School lies within the control of the Boonton Board.

Thus, on issue three, I CONCLUDE that the appointee is entitled to receive copies of all information, documents and communications when distributed to the other Board members, even though the items are not listed within the categories upon which the appointee is entitled to vote under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1.

IV

The analysis applied to issue three is equally applicable to the question of the scope of the appointee's deliberative role, issue two. Although the Commissioner in Callowhill would not compel the receiving district to accept and consider the evaluative input of the appointee, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 does not address an appointee's deliberative role or limit participation to questions arising under voting categories.

The cases relied on by the Board are inapposite.[1] Each involved a zoning board member who was deemed disqualified from voting because a conflict of interest existed. Thus, participation by these members in the proceedings was inappropriate. The court in Szoke v. Zoning Board of Adjustment, 260 N.J. Super. 341, 345 (App. Div. 1992), noted that the participation of such members "poisoned the spirit of impartiality with which the Board's quasi-judicial proceedings must be governed," which required "that the Board action be voided." In the present matter, no conflict of interest exists.

[1] Szoke v. Zoning Board. of Adjustment, 260 N.J. Super. 341 (App. Div. 1992), Kremer v. City of Plainfield, 101 N.J. Super. 346 (Law Div. 1968).

Unless a governing body adopts rules limiting the rights of the members, board members have the right to full participation in the proceedings. This includes the right to make motions, the right to speak in debate, and the right to vote. Here, the Legislature has limited the sending district's voting rights by designating on which matters the appointee may vote. Notwithstanding statutory limitations, the Governor, in her veto message, was encouraged by the line of formal communication between the sending and receiving districts which N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 sought to establish. In light of the legislative history, and the recognition of the importance that the sending district's voice be heard, the appointee's deliberative role should not be limited unless it is expressed in the statute.

Rather, the extent of an appointee's deliberative participation, like that of any other Board member, should be governed by the Board's parliamentarian procedures.[2] Pursuant to parliamentary procedure the presiding officer maintains control over the procedure of the Board meeting and conduct of the Board members.[3] Once a Board member is recognized by the presiding officer or chair, he or she may speak unless ruled out of order. Thus, in a Board meeting composed of ten members, including one representative from Lincoln Park, the presiding officer determines, for example, when it is appropriate to allow members to obtain the floor before making motions or speaking, to not limit the number of times a member may speak, or to allow informal discussion of a subject while no motion is pending. Permitting the Board to maintain control of the procedure is in accord with Callowhill, as it does not compel the appointee's deliberative role in extra-statutory matters; it simply permits the appointee to participate in discussion at the Board's discretion. In the exercise of its discretion, the law presumes that local public bodies will act fairly with proper motives and for valid reasons. Kramer v. Sea Girt Bd. of Adjustment, 45 N.J. 268 (1965).

[2] N.J.A.C. 6:1.2.1 provides that parliamentary procedures in meetings of the State Board shall be governed by Robert's Rules of Order. Thus, it is assumed that each local board of education shall adopt an authoritative parliamentary procedure, e.g., Henry M. Robert, Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised (9th ed. 1990); Alice Sturgis, Standard Code of Parliamentary Procedure (3rd ed. 1988); Henry A. Davidson, Handbook of Parliamentary Procedure (1955).

[3] Subject to applicable federal and state laws the duties of the presiding officer to control the meeting are governed by parliamentary rules of order, e.g., the presiding officer opens the meeting at the appointed time by taking the chair, calls the meeting to order, announces the sequence of business in accordance with the agenda, recognizes members, states and puts to vote all questions before the board, and announces the vote. See Robert's Rules of Order, supra note 2.

Notwithstanding that differences of opinion between the two school districts may exist, permitting the appointee to debate on extra-statutory subjects does not undermine the receiving board's authority to control the meeting or the conduct of Board members. Moreover, where the subject of debate is a matter outside of the appointee's voting eligibility, it is improbable that the appointee will find need to participate in the discussions. However, where the appointee rises to obtain the floor to participate in the discussion on the merits of the question before the Board, his or her comments may have significant bearing on the subject of debate. Indeed, the appointee's input may expand the knowledge of all members of the Board.

Additionally, permitting the appointee to voice an opinion on extra-statutory subjects is consistent with the intent of the Agreement. Mr. Curtin, the chief negotiator on behalf of Boonton, explained that the intent "must be construed in the context of the relationship between the two districts, i.e., that Boonton was the receiving district and that it therefore retained the statutory authority to run the district; that Boonton would listen to Lincoln Park and evaluate its input, but that ultimately the final decisions belong to Boonton." Boonton's Initial Brief at 28. A well-informed Board member who understands all issues affecting the high school will be more knowledgeable when voting upon issues that affect any aspect of the school district. The appointee's participation, therefore, could be beneficial to the process rather than detrimental, as viewed by the Board.

Thus, on issue two, I CONCLUDE that the deliberative role of the appointee on the Boonton BOE is not limited to the categories upon which the appointee is eligible to vote under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1. I CONCLUDE that the presiding officer controls the procedure of the meeting and may recognize any Board member who seeks the floor to discuss, remark or comment on the merits of the pending question.

Issues one, four and five involve the rights of Lincoln Park to receive copies of all information, documents and communications when distributed to the other Board members and the appointee's right to communicate with the Lincoln Park BOE and its superintendent.

Petitioner contends that there is a legitimate need for the appointee to consult with the superintendent to obtain his expertise on educational matters and to receive insight and information from his or her board on matters before the Boonton BOE. Petitioner's Initial Brief at 24. Further, petitioner asserts that communications among Lincoln Park's appointee, the Lincoln Park superintendent, and other board members are implicit in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, "which deems the newly-created position to be 'representative' in nature." Ibid. Thus, petitioner requests that the appointee be allowed to communicate with the Lincoln Park superintendent and board on matters pending before Boonton. Ibid.

Boonton does not challenge the appointee's right to seek input from the superintendent and the Lincoln Park BOE. However, it urges this tribunal to consider the consequences of permitting the appointee to disseminate confidential information and documents prior to their becoming available to the public. Boonton argues that it is not proper for the appointee to disseminate to the full Lincoln Park BOE the information and communications which he receives as a member of the Boonton Board before the information is considered and acted upon the Board.[4] Further, Boonton argues that the appointee, as a member of the Boonton Board of Education, is bound to maintain the confidentiality of information received and deliberations conducted in closed meetings pursuant to the Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA), N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to -21. Moreover, the statutory appointee functions in the same manner as the elected members of the Board, and thus he is bound to exercise independent judgment, not the will of the majority of the Lincoln Park BOE. Boonton's Initial Brief at 17.

I agree that students' records and personnel matters must be kept confidential. N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b)(8). Additionally, matters regarding bargaining units and property acquisition negotiations should maintain a level of confidentiality. However, the appointee's right to consult with the superintendent facilitates the appointee's ability to better represent Lincoln Park and better function as a member of the Boonton Board of Education, and fulfills the intent of the Agreement and N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1. Moreover, the OPMA does not prohibit communication between the appointee and the superintendent. Boonton is willing to provide to the Lincoln Park superintendent and the appointee copies of all appendices to Boonton meeting agendas, "subject to a stipulation that the information will not be released to the remainder of the Lincoln Park Board or the public prior to its consideration by the Boonton Board." Booton's Initial Brief at 21.

[4] "Currently, the agenda and appendices for each public meeting of the Boonton Board are available to the Lincoln Park appointee at the same time that they are provided to Boonton Board members and to Boonton residents . . . ." Boonton's Initial Brief at 23.

Based on the above, I CONCLUDE that by virtue of the statutory entitlement to a seat on the receiving board, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, a sending district's appointee may freely communicate with its superintendent on matters regarding documents and information received pertaining to the Board meeting. For the reasons discussed here, I further CONCLUDE that the superintendent must be bound to maintain strict confidentiality as to all issues so designated.

VI

The appointee's and the superintendent's communications with the Lincoln Park BOE and Lincoln Park's right to receive all information available to Boonton BOE members before the documents are available to the public and prior to their consideration by Boonton are complicated and limited by law. The State Board of Education and each local board of education are public bodies and are governed by the OPMA. N.J.S.A. 18A:10-1. The central section of the OPMA, N.J.S.A. 10:4-12, provides that with limited exception all meetings of public bodies shall be open to the public at all times. However, the OPMA does not limit the discretion of a public body to permit, prohibit or regulate the active participation of the public at any meeting. N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(a). Further, N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b) lists nine subject matters where the public body may exclude the public only from that portion of the meeting when discussion is held on the enumerated subject. "[A]ny exception from the full public disclosure mandated by the statute is to be strictly construed." Rice v. Union County Regional High Sch. Bd. of Educ., 155 N.J. Super. 64, 70 (App. Div. 1977). Before excluding the public from a meeting to discuss any of the matters described in N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b), the public body must adopt a resolution at a public meeting "[s]tating the general nature of the subject to be discussed," and "[s]tating as precisely as possible, the time when and the circumstances under which the discussion conducted in closed session of the public body can be disclosed to the public." N.J.S.A. 10:4-13. Moreover, the minutes of the meetings shall be available to the public. N.J.S.A. 10:4-14.

Where the issues concern information received and deliberations conducted in closed session meetings of the Boonton Board, the appointee's communications with Lincoln Park must also be in a closed session. However, Lincoln Park must also adhere to the OPMA. Thus, where the Board may satisfy one of the exceptions from holding a public meeting, Lincoln Park will not. For example, matters involving employment may be discussed in closed session by the public body which employs or has appointed the employee in question, N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b)(8). A closed session held for this purpose by the Board would be appropriate. However, if the appointee determined that it was necessary to discuss the same issue with Lincoln Park, the sending district could not satisfy the statutory exception because it would not meet the requirement of being the "public body which employs or has appointed the employee." Thus, the only time an appointee may communicate confidential issues to Lincoln Park is in a closed session, which may only be convened where one of the specific exceptions required under N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b)(1)-(9) exists. It is unlikely that Lincoln Park will ever satisfy this requirement. Therefore, the appointee will be bound to maintain the confidentiality of the information received and deliberations conducted in closed session of the Board.

Regarding the information and communications which the Board has not considered or acted upon, the appointee may only disseminate such matters to Lincoln Park where the sending district has convened as a full board and the subject matter is not confidential. Under general parliamentary procedure, the appointee may not communicate with individual members of the Lincoln Park BOE. If communication with Lincoln Park is necessary, it must convene as a full board. A board can transact business only in a properly called meeting and at which a quorum, unless otherwise properly established, is present. "The personal approval of a proposed action obtained separately by telephone or individual interview, even from every member of the board, is not approval of the board, since the members were not present in one room where they could mutually debate the matter." Robert's Rules of Order, supra note 2, at 477. Also, if Lincoln Park must call a meeting, it must provide adequate public notice, N.J.S.A. 10:4-8(d),[5] and the timing of the meeting could not be used to delay the Board's consideration of any matter.

I CONCLUDE that as a member of the Boonton Board, the appointee is entitled to receive all documents and information provided to members of the Board. I further CONCLUDE that the appointee is bound to maintain the confidentiality of, and not disclose to other members of the sending district board, the information received and deliberations conducted in closed session meetings of the receiving district board pursuant to the Open Public Meetings Act.

Based on the mandates of N.J.S.A. 18A:10-1 and the OPMA, I CONCLUDE that Lincoln Park is not entitled to receive copies of all information, documents and communications when distributed to Boonton and Board members before the information is available to the public and prior to consideration by the Boonton BOE.

Further, I CONCLUDE that is not proper for the appointee to disseminate to members of the sending district board, information and communications which the appointee receives as a member of the Boonton Board before the information is considered or acted upon by the Board.

ORDERS

[5] Waived if matter is deemed one of "urgency and importance" as established under N.J.S.A. 10:4-9.

It is ORDERED that the Lincoln Park appointee to the Boonton BOE receive copies of all information, documents and communications when those materials are distributed to the other Boonton BOE members.

Further, it is ORDERED that the Lincoln Park appointee to the Boonton BOE be permitted to participate/debate on the merits of extra-statutory matters.

Further, it is ORDERED that the Lincoln Park appointee to the Boonton BOE be permitted to freely communicate with its superintendent on matters regarding documents and information received pertaining to the Board meeting. It is further ORDERED the Lincoln Park superintendent be bound to maintain strict confidentiality as to all issues so designated. It is further ORDERED that the Lincoln Park appointee to the Boonton BOE not be permitted to disseminate to members of the sending district board, information and communications which the appointee receives as a member of the Boonton Board before the information is considered or acted upon by the Board.

Further, it is ORDERED that Lincoln Park not be permitted to receive copies of all information, documents and communications when distributed to Boonton and Board members before the information is available to the public and prior to consideration by Boonton BOE.

Principal Selection Search Process

The remaining issues listed in the PreHearing Order involve the principal selection search process and the appointment of Angilly to the position of principal of Boonton High School. Petitioner does not dispute Boonton's right to appoint administrators at the high school which are unacceptable to Lincoln Park (issue six) or Boonton's authority to appoint a school principal (issue seven). Petitioner does not assert that Boonton may consider candidates for high school principal who were not recommended by its chief school administrator (issue eight) or that Boonton may cede to or share with the sending district board, the sending district superintendent, or a bi-district committee the general supervision authority granted to the receiving district's superintendent under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 (issue nine). In essence, petitioner does not seek to limit either the authority of the Board to appoint administrators to Boonton High School or DiVincenzi's authority to recommend appointments to such positions. Thus, discussion on each point is unnecessary.

Rather, the central allegation by Lincoln Park in this proceeding is that DiVincenzi and the Boonton BOE agreed to a principal selection process and then unilaterally discarded it, which constituted a breach of the Agreement. Thus, petitioner submits that the Board and DiVincenzi acted arbitrarily, capriciously, illegally and in bad faith in the "selection search process" and the appointment of Angilly to the position of principal of Boonton High School.

Therefore, the critical questions to be resolved are, (a) what were the agreed-to components of the principal search process; (b) was the agreed-to process binding under the Agreement; and, if so, (c) were the changes to the selection process made in bad faith (issues seven through eighteen).

Based on a review of the evidence, I FIND the following relevant FACTS:

1. On June 13, 1995, DiVincenzi published an advertisement for the position of principal of BHS (J-11). The position stated two qualifications as follows:

(1) Master Degree of higher with a minimum of five years of successful administrative experience;

(2) Must possess, or be eligible for, a New Jersey Principal Certificate.

2. On June 20, 1995, DiVincenzi presented a draft of the search process for principal of BHS to the Bi-District Committee (J-5). DiVincenzi proposed the following:

(a) an 18-member screening committee to review, evaluate, and recommend to an interview committee top candidates to be interviewed;

(b) an 8-member interview committee to conduct personal interviews and recommend to the Boonton superintendent "no fewer that three (3) but no more than five (5) candidates acceptable to all members of the committee";

(c) the 8 members of the interview committee include two Lincoln Park representatives, two Boonton representatives, one parent of a high school student from Lincoln Park, one parent of a high school student from Boonton, one staff member and one administrator. DiVincenzi represented to the Committee that no BHS administrator would be on the interview committee.

3. The minutes of the June 20, 1995, Bi-District Committee meeting (J-4) state that, "[n]umerous changes [to the search process] were made by consensus." Also, the minutes reflect the following:

(a) Discussions were had on the screening process presented by DiVincenzi and on its use in the past;

(b) In response to questions about the need to place a teacher on the interview committee, DiVincenzi noted that this may be a contractual requirement. Thus, until she researched the issue the total membership of the interview committee would include seven members, two Lincoln Park representatives (including the superintendent), two Boonton representatives, two parents (one each from Lincoln Park and Boonton), one administrator, not from BHS;

(c) DiVincenzi would sit in on all interviews;

(d) Finalist would be interviewed by a student panel;

(e) The screening committee would meet on July 10;

(f) The two superintendents would review all applications for completeness.

4. DiVincenzi presented the principal search process memorandum, J-6, to the Boonton BOE on June 26, 1995. The memorandum contained several revisions made at the Bi-District Committee meeting. The most notable was that both superintendents would complete a screening of all applicants received to ensure completeness prior to the start of the paper screening. Also, under the heading "Interviewing Committee," DiVincenzi deleted the words "acceptable to all members of the interview committee" and inserted "Need six yes votes to be a finalist."

5. DiVincenzi was also the Board secretary and prepared the minutes of the Board's June 26, 1995 meeting (J-7). The minutes state in pertinent part:

> NEW BUSINESS
>
> 1. Selection Process - Boonton High School Principal
>
> . . . The qualifications defined by individuals attending the Bi-District meeting, as well as, the results of the discussion of the process were distributed. Dr. Berlinghoff clarified the qualifications listed were made by individuals attending the Bi-District, not as defined by either Board or by consensus of the committee. . . .
>
> Mrs. Nolan [Board president] reminded the public and press, the document being discussed was a result of a discussion held at the Bi-District Committee meeting. But, as she had indicated during the Bi-District meeting, the Committee made suggestions for the Boonton Board's consideration, but the final process would be approved by the Board tonight after discussion.
>
> Discussion included whether five or six votes were required from the interviewing committee to become a finalist. The Board recommended, and Miss Northrop[-DiVincenzi] agreed, to the requirement of five. It would require five votes from the interviewing committee to become a finalist. The purpose of modifying from six to five is so no one group would be able to control the process, thus ensuring the consensus of the Interviewing Committee as to candidates being recommended to the superintendent as being acceptable to all involved.
>
> Miss Northrop[-DiVincenzi] indicated the screening process had been proposed to both committees [the Bi-District Committee and the Personnel/Education Committee], and discussed accordingly. The items being recommended by the Bi-District were in italics.

6. The Board meeting on June 26, 1995, was recorded and the audiotape, P-83, was evaluated by audio experts engaged by the parties. The experts concluded that the audiotape was not altered. A transcript was produced from the recording, "Transcript of New Business Portion" (J-29).

At the hearing, DiVincenzi listened to the tape and reviewed the transcript. When asked to identify where the Board members discussed changing six votes to five "to become a finalist [and] the Board recommended and [she] agreed, to the requirement of five," DeVincenzi claimed that the discussion occurred at page 33, line 23, through page 34, line 4, of the transcript.

The section of the discussion identified by DiVincenzi occurred in less than ten (10) seconds "real time."

I have reviewed the evidence and find no mention or reference, expressed or implied, that the Board members discussed at the public session the number of votes needed to become a finalist for the position of principal. Further, there was no acknowledgment that the Board agreed by consensus to change the votes.

7. On June 27, 1995, DiVincenzi distributed the Search Process for the BHS Principal document (J-8), which incorporated "the suggestions given during our meeting on June 26, 1995." The document was revised to show "Need five yes votes to be a finalist."

8. Thirty applications were received as a result of the first-round advertisement (Joint Stipulation no. 10).

9. Dr. Farr, the Lincoln Park superintendent, made arrangements to review the applications at DiVincenzi's office on July 7, 1995. Farr compiled two groups, one containing those candidates who met the qualifications stated in the advertisement and the other containing candidates who did not meet the qualifications listed. Farr determined that Angilly did not meet the qualification of five years of successful administrative experience and placed him in the group of candidates who did not meet the qualifications.

10. All applications were submitted to the Screening Committee comprised of 18 members: 3 board members from each district, 2 parents from each district with students at the middle school and high school, 2 community members from each district, 1 Lincoln Park administrator, 1 Boonton administrator and 2 Boonton High School staff members (Joint Stipulation no. 11).

11. On July 10, 1995, DiVincenzi met with the Screening Committee and reviewed the process to be used by the committee. The committee was to rate the candidates on a numerical scale.

12. The candidates were assigned numbers so that the identities of the candidates were not disclosed on the Ranking Sheets or Tally Sheet (Joint Stipulation no. 12).

13. DiVincenzi directed her secretary to place an asterisk next to each candidate who met all the credentials listed in the advertisement. No asterisk was placed next to Angilly's identification number.

14. The maximum points each candidate could receive from the Screening Committee was 70 per evaluator. Multiplied by 18 evaluators, the maximum total number of points was 1,260 (Joint Stipulation no. 13).

15. The total points for the 30 candidates in the first round ranged from a high of 1,097 to a low of 177 (Joint Stipulation no. 14).

16. The Screening Committee completed its ratings but did not reconvene to determine the cut-off figure. Instead, DiVincenzi unilaterally determined the cut-off at "813." Under that figure, eleven candidates moved forward to the Interview Committee. Angilly made the cut-off, ranking ninth on the list.

17. The numerical ratings and rankings of the Screening Committee of the candidates advanced for interviews were not disclosed to the Interview Committee (Joint Stipulation no. 15).

18. Five of the eleven candidates forwarded to the Interview Committee were interviewed.

19. The Interview Committee was comprised of eight members: the superintendent and one board member from Lincoln Park, two board members from Boonton, one parent of a high school student from each district, one administrator from Boonton High School, and one teaching staff member from Boonton High School (Joint Stipulation no. 16).

20. In the first round, the Interview Committee recommended two candidates to the Boonton superintendent. Walter Angilly, who received five "yes" votes and three "no" votes, was one of the two candidates advanced (Joint Stipulation no. 17).

21. The five "yes" votes were cast by Boonton, the three "no" votes were cast by Lincoln Park.

22. The Boonton Board authorized a second posting and a second advertisement of the position was published in the Star Ledger and Daily Record on September 3 and 10, 1995 (Joint Stipulation no. 18).

23. The second advertisement did not include the reference to five years' successful administrative experience which appeared in the first advertisement (Joint Stipulation no. 19).

24. Lincoln Park communicated its objection to Boonton to maintain the requirement that the candidate possess five years' administrative experience.

25. The second posting and advertisement produced 40 additional applications (Joint Stipulation no. 20).

26. The Screening Committee rated the candidates. DiVincenzi then polled the committee members and presented a multiple choice to determine which candidate would advance to the Interview Committee. The three choices were: (a) cut-off score of 813; (b) the candidate chosen by the two superintendents; (c) the top six candidates. None of the three choices received a majority vote of the committee. DiVincenzi unilaterally chose the plurality of the votes, (c) the top six candidates.

27. The Boonton superintendent advanced the six highest new candidates as ranked by the Screening Committee, to be interviewed by the Interview Committee (Joint Stipulation no. 21).

28. On September 23, 1995, the Interview Committee interviewed all six candidates advanced in the second round (Joint Stipulation no. 22).

29. The Boonton superintendent referred three candidates, including Walter Angilly, to be interviewed by the Boonton Board and superintendent on October 2, 1995 (Joint Stipulation no. 24).

30. On or about September 27, 1995, the Boonton superintendent provided every member of the Boonton Board, including the Lincoln Park appointee, Ms. Sudol, with application packets providing information on each of the three candidates to be interviewed on October 2, 1995 (Joint Stipulation no. 24).

31. The three candidates were interviewed by the Boonton Board and superintendent on October 2, 1995 (Joint Stipulation no. 25).

32. On October 2, 1995, after the Boonton Board interviewed the three candidates, the Boonton superintendent presented a recommendation that Walter Angilly be appointed principal of Boonton High School (Joint Stipulation no. 26).

33. At its public meeting on October 2, 1995, the Boonton Board voted 8 to 1 to approve the recommendation of the Boonton superintendent that Walter Angilly be appointed principal of Boonton High School on an effective date to be determined (Joint Stipulation no. 27).

34. At its public meeting on October 25, 1995, the Boonton Board adopted a resolution making Walter Angilly's appointment as Boonton High School principal effective November 1, 1995 (Joint Stipulation no. 28).

35. Walter Angilly has held a Principal's Certificate since 1972, and he has been employed in the Boonton School District for thirty years (Joint Stipulation no. 29).

36. The position of high school principal is within the bargaining unit of the Boonton Administrators Association (Joint Stipulation no. 30).

VIII

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Summary of the Parties' Positions

Petitioner asserts that the principal search process was tainted by bad faith and was conducted in an arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable manner. Specifically, petitioner boldly asserts that "DiVincenzi lied when she told the Screening Committee that it would be reconvened to determine the cut-off for the advancement of candidates; DiVincenzi lied when she represented that Boonton could not pay a principal above $85,000 when its budget provided for far in excess of that figure; DiVincenzi lied when she told the Bi-District Committee that she would not appoint a Boonton High School administrator to the Interview Committee; DiVincenzi lied when she testified that she provided Mr. Angilly with a draft of his evaluation." Petitioner's Initial Brief at 31. Petitioner submits that the "litany of lies" has tainted the principal search process. Ibid. Thus, the appointment by the Board of Angilly as high school principal must be vacated and declared void ab initio. Id. at 26.

Respondents (Boonton BOE, DiVincenzi, and Angilly) argue that the principal selection process was an administrative plan developed by the Boonton superintendent and that the Bi-District Committee's role was advisory only. Respondents' assertions contained in issues six, seven, eight, nine and ten remain unchallenged by petitioner. Thus, respondents submit that Angilly is qualified for the position of principal. Therefore, the Board's decision to appoint Angilly was not arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable or exercised in bad faith.

IX

Petitioner's assertions that DiVincenzi misrepresented facts and that she and other Board members presented false testimony are serious allegations. See Petitioner's Initial Brief at 26. Petitioner has the burden of proof by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian 37 N.J. 143 (1962). The term "burden of proof" refers to the "burden of persuasion." The burden of persuasion entails more than merely producing evidence to establish a state of equilibrium with respect to whether a certain fact exists. This tribunal must "decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to the reasonable probability of the truth." Jackson v. Delaware, Lackawanna and Western R.R. Co., 111 N.J.L. 487, 490 (E. & A. 1933). One factor to consider to determine the "reasonable probability of truth" is that the "interest, motive, biases or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify [the trier of fact], whose providence it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony." State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div. 1952). In an administrative proceeding, testimony may be disbelieved, but it may not be disregarded. Middletown Tp. v. Murdoch, 73 N.J. Super. 511 (App. Div. 1962). Thus, I have carefully reviewed the evidence, including the transcript of the audiotape from the Boonton BOE meeting, to determine if the testimony contains "inherent improbabilities or contradictions which alone or in connection with other circumstances in evidence excite suspicion as to its truth." In re Perone, 5 N.J. 514, 521-22 (1950).

On June 26, 1995, the subject of the principal selection process was discussed at the Boonton BOE meeting for approximately forty minutes. Boonton's witnesses testified that the discussion to change six required votes to five occurred at the public session. Petitioner's witness testified that it did not. The parties acknowledged, however, that changing the required votes from six to five would prevent Lincoln Park from blocking Boonton's choice of candidates to proceed to the Interview Committee. See J-7. Petitioner's allegations that DiVincenzi and Boonton BOE members had the motive and intent to misrepresent the facts turn on complicated inferences from the evidence and are therefore within the province of the fact finder.

The transcript of the audiotape exposed several crucial facts. DiVincenzi presented the search process document to the Board for its review and then announced, "If anyone wants anything added, now is the time for us to add to this, expand, delete and make some final recommendations." J-29 at 5. She also told Board members, "If you want additions, subtractions to that, . . . if you want to take it home and call me in the morning or later in this week, that's fine, too . . . . You may -- if you're anything like I am, after the fact you go to think about something, you come up with several points that should have been included on there." Id. at 6.[6] The Board discussed the candidates' qualifications. The advertisement, published on June 13, used the district's standard form for administrative positions. Thus, the position for principal required five years' experience. Some Board members did not want candidates excluded from the process based on lack of minimum years of experience. However, the Boonton BOE took no action to change the five years' minimum experience required in the advertisement. The Bi-District Committee also discussed the candidates' qualifications on June 20, but did not amend the advertisement. DiVincenzi then confirmed Nolan's previous announcement that the Board would decide the selection process that would actually be followed, and that it would be "published following the action" that night. Id. at 12.

[6] Just as Lincoln Park cannot transact business without a full board, DiVincenzi cannot obtain Board approval on a proposed action "separately by telephone or individual interview, even from every member of the board, since the members were not present in one room where they could mutually debate the matter." Robert's Rules of Order, supra note 2, at 477.

The tape also revealed that DiVincenzi urged the Boonton BOE to address the subject of the number of votes needed to be a finalist. She presented the issue as follows:

> Ms. Northrop[-DiVincenzi]: . . . The final process once the Interviewing committee had completed its work -- and we did talk about the fact and we need to review the purpose of the Interviewing Committee -- says that the Interviewing Committee will interview candidates recommended by the Screening Committee. Recommend to the Boonton Superintendent of School no fewer than three, but no more than five candidates. Need six yes votes to be a finalist.
> Ah - of the people that we have -- remember that we have . . . eight people on the Interviewing Committee. They would need six yes votes to move forward.
>
> Ah - My original proposal to Lincoln Park and to the Bi-District . . . was that everybody be able to live with the candidate. They said that would be unfair. We may never get -- reach a conclusion or consensus. So we . . . need six votes. And the Board needs to address that concept and that thought.

DiVincenzi's remarks sent a clear signal to Boonton that requiring six affirmative votes to be a finalist could cause a problem for the Boonton BOE. Indeed, DiVincenzi's minutes state that "the purpose of modifying from six to five is so no one group would be able to control the process," J-7. Thereafter, Boonton conceded that requiring five votes had the effect of precluding Lincoln Park's representatives, if they voted as a bloc, from blocking the advance of a candidate which a majority of the Interview Committee endorsed as a finalist. See Respondent's Answers to Petitioner's Request for Admissions, dated January 30, 1996. The Board members, however, did not immediately respond to DiVincenzi's statement about the votes. Instead, they discussed maintaining the candidates' confidentiality during the selection process. J-29 at 22-28. Eventually, an unidentified person asked, "So we get six out of nine?" DiVincenzi replied, "Six out of eight . . . I just sit there . . . I can't comment . . . I can't do anything other than show up." The Board then moved onto other components of the process. Id. at 29.

Also during the meeting, Marilyn Nolan, Board president, informed the public and the press that the principal selection process must be approved by the Board. At the hearing, Nolan testified that the discussion about the change in votes from six to five occurred at the end of the public session and was reflected in the transcript of the audiotape at pages 33-34. She also testified that although the Boonton BOE took no formal action on the selection process, it agreed by consensus to change the votes required from six to five.

Also during the meeting, Sheryl O'Neil, another Boonton BOE member, informed the Board of a typographical error in the principal search document, J-6. At the hearing she identified her comments in the transcript of the audiotape at page 33, line 23, through page 34, line 4. O'Neil also testified that at the Boonton meeting she recommended that the votes required should be changed from six to five.

O'Neil's claim that the discussion occurred at pages 39-40 of the transcript is not supported by the evidence. The transcript reveals that the Board took no formal action to adopt O'Neil's recommendation. Moreover, there is no mention by any person present at the public session of the meeting that the votes required should be changed from six to five. Notably, the transcript discloses DiVincenzi's acknowledgment of several other changes and corrections by Board members regarding the principal selection document. However, there is no acknowledgment by the presiding officer, the secretary, or any other person that a verbal or non-verbal consensus occurred at the public session to change the votes required from six to five. The subject discussed at pages 39-40 was the scheduling of interviews, not the number of votes required. Thereafter, Nolan closed the public discussion and the Board went into closed session.

I have considered the evidence and the testimony and have observed the demeanor of the witnesses. Some inconsistencies in a witness's testimony do not warrant an automatic discounting of that testimony as incredible. The testimony must be such that the administrative law judge can reasonably conclude that the witness is wholly unworthy of belief. Accordingly, the trier of fact must carefully weigh the evidence before rejecting testimony, even if not directly contradicted, when it is contrary to the circumstances.

The transcript from the unaltered audiotape uncovered what actually occurred at the Board's meeting and negated the witnesses' versions of the events. I am persuaded by the evidence unveiled in the audiotape that no discussion to change the number of votes required from six to five occurred at the public session. Thus, I reject the testimony presented by DiVincenzi, Nolan and O'Neil because it is overborne by credible evidence. Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958).

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has demonstrated by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the Bi-District Committee agreed to implement a principal selection process which provided that an applicant would need six affirmative votes to become a final candidate for principal of BHS. The Boonton superintendent presented the selection process to the Boonton BOE for consideration. I CONCLUDE that during the public session of the meeting the Boonton BOE discussed the principal selection process, but did not take any action to change the votes required from six to five, nor was the change agreed to by consensus of the Board. I CONCLUDE that DiVincenzi, Nolan and O'Neil falsely testified that this change had occurred during the public session of Boonton's June 26, 1995 meeting. I CONCLUDE that DiVincenzi falsely altered the agreed-upon principal selection process to provide that only five affirmative votes would be required to advance a candidate from the Interview Committee. I CONCLUDE that the DiVincenzi fabricated that portion of the minutes of the Board's June 26 meeting to show that during the public session the Board recommended and she agreed that five votes were required from the Interview Committee to become a finalist.

Other inconsistencies further impaired DiVincenzi's credibility. For example, she did not maintain a neutral and non-participatory role in the Screening Committee as she professed. DiVincenzi initially informed the Board that the members of the screening and interview committees would implement the process after both superintendents screened the applications to ensure that they were thorough, complete and ready to proceed forward. She made clear several times that she would not interfere in the screening process, except to "be the facilitator" and to "paper screen" the applications with the Lincoln Park superintendent. She also told the Board that after screening the applications she would conduct the final interviews. DiVincenzi defined her role in the process as follows:

> Ms. Northrop[-DiVincenzi]: One of the things -- of the Screening Committee, I will be meeting with everyone. I will be setting the process in place. And if its agreeable with the Board, I will be asking the Board member to co-Chair that with me so that I'm not part of the screening process and will not -ah - contaminate, for lack of a better wording, any of the results of that Committee.
> A Voice: (UI)?

> Ms. Northrop[-DiVincenzi]: No, I will not. I will not be part of the screening process [] [[-- and I will get my shot at a later level of]] the process. And I've deliberately, for a lot of reasons, taken myself out of the process. As I announced earlier, I have taken myself totally out of the process until the final three to five -- Lincoln Park put me back in the process. They felt very strongly that if I could not - if there was a personality issue or there was [], something I saw, that should at least, if nothing else, be present for all of the interviews.
>
> Male: [] What about if in the interviewing you're not voting on that?
>
> Ms. Northrop[-DiVincenzi]: No, I will not . . . .--
> [J-29 at 28-29.]

To safeguard the integrity of the screening process and not "contaminate . . . any of the results of that Committee," DiVincenzi assured the public that she would not participate in the screening process. Nonetheless, DiVincenzi unilaterally determined the cut-off figure.

Patrick English, a member of the bi-district and screening committees, testified that DiVincenzi made the same promise to the Screening Committee on July 10. DiVincenzi denied, however, telling the committee that it would reconvene to determine the cut-off figure. She claimed instead that she told the committee it would have a second meeting to review and improve the process. DiVincenzi's testimony is inconsistent with her behavior. After the meeting, DiVincenzi had ample opportunity to inform Lincoln Park that she never agreed to convene the committee to determine the cut-off figure. For example, in a memo dated July 17, English inquired when the committee would meet to determine the "break-point number" for advancement. P-12. DiVincenzi did not reply. Notably, on July 20, Dr. Jack Farr, the Lincoln Park superintendent, reminded DiVincenzi that three issues surrounding the recruiting of a new BHS principal remained unresolved. Dr. Farr identified those issues as follows:

> 1. The establishment of a cut-off score to move a candidate from the screening process to the initial interview.

> 2. Access to the numerical rating for each candidate screened.
>
> 3. Handling of those candidates who are not viable candidates by virtue of the advertised criteria to advance to an interview, if there are such candidates.

Thus, to resolve these issues, Farr requested an emergency meeting of the Bi-District Committee prior to the interview process moving forward. Ibid. DiVincenzi acknowledged receipt of Farr's memo, but she did not inform him that she had already determined the cut-off number on "either the 19th or 20th of July." Instead, she replied, "Your quick fax of July 20 . . . was received after the close of the Office on July 20. It was copied and forwarded to the Board for a response. As soon as the Board decides, I will be in touch." P-15. DiVincenzi forwarded Farr's memo to the Boonton BOE and indicated that all the issues raised by Farr were resolved at the public session of the Board's meeting on June 26. R-48. On August 3, 1995, she thanked Farr for serving on the Screening Committee. DiVincenzi also enclosed a list of the ranking for all 30 candidates and informed Farr that the top 11 would move forward to the Interview Committee. J-14.

Thereafter, on August 15, DiVincenzi told the Bi-District Committee that she had determined who would advance to the Interview Committee. She also explained her methodology, saying, "Um, I looked down a list of numbers and picked a number . . . ." P-27. Under cross-examination, she conceded that she determined the cut-off of "813."

Another major component of the selection process included the individuals chosen to serve on the Interview Committee. Patrick English chaired the meeting of the Bi-District Committee on June 20. He believed that a Boonton staff person serving on the Interview Committee created a potential conflict because the high school principal would be supervising and evaluating an employee who voted for him. DiVincenzi responded that she believed that the teachers' contract required that a staff member be part of the Interview Committee, and agreed to research the question. This issue was included in the minutes of the Bi-District Committee meeting (J-4).

DiVincenzi maintained that the minutes were incomplete, biased and one-sided. R-54. She testified twice that the minutes did not include comments from the public or the lengthy discussions concerning committee members or votes needed to advance from the Interview Committee. However, she did not refute offering to research the issue raised by English. Nevertheless, on June 26, DiVincenzi informed the Board that "much discussion was held [at the Bi-District Committee meeting] as to having a staff member involved in the interviewing." She then stated,

> However, I did take exception, and I wish to stand by, and I'd like to -- the process that we have always followed in this District of including our staff members in those interviews. . . .
>
> There is something about including our staff in those interviews, and I would encourage the Board to stick with that.

She also asked the Board "to entertain maintaining the one staff member and the one administrator on this centralized [interview] committee." Id. at 21.

DiVincenzi's testimony about her role in the selection process became more incredible under cross-examination. On June 19, 1995, she attended the Personnel/Education Committee meeting along with Boonton BOE members Malayter, Kaminski and LeFebvre. DiVincenzi distributed a copy of her proposed search process, J-5, to each member. At the hearing, she maintained that the committee did not discuss the selection process. Further, DiVincenzi testified that she told the committee that the matter would be discussed the next day at the Bi-District Committee meeting and on June 26 at the Boonton BOE meeting. DiVincenzi's minutes of Boonton's BOE meeting proved false her testimony. The minutes state, "Selection Process - Boonton High School Principal. Miss Northrop[-DiVincenzi] indicated this topic had been discussed at the Personnel/Education Committee." J-7. The transcript also reveals that DiVincenzi discussed the selection process with the Personnel/Education Committee. J-29 at 2-3. Additionally, Boonton maintains that DiVincenzi "sought input from the Education/Personnel Committee . . . ." Boonton's Initial Brief at 61.

Also under cross-examination, DiVincenzi further conceded that she represented to the Bi-District Committee on June 20 that no BHS administrator would be on the Interview Committee. She explained that two non-high school administrators were on vacation and the other was a candidate for principal. There were no other non-high school administrators in the district. Therefore, it was necessary to put a BHS administrator on the Interview Committee to keep the process moving forward. Lois Branch agreed to serve on the Interview Committee. Branch is the director of guidance and a tenured administrator assigned to BHS. Although Branch was a long-time colleague of Angilly, DiVincenzi believed that she would not present a conflict because the director of guidance answered to the superintendent, not the school principal. Thus, her vote would not be influenced.

I am persuaded by the evidence that DiVincenzi told English that several candidates dropped out of the first round after she told them that the highest salary offered by Boonton for the position was $85,000. At the Bi-District Committee meeting on August 15, DiVincenzi discussed the salary range of $72,000 to $85,000 for the principal position. During the discussion she acknowledged that the Board could pay a higher amount. P-27.

Boonton conceded that DiVincenzi's testimony contained "some inconsistencies," but, the whole of the record reveals that her testimony was replete with numerous inconsistencies and contradictions. See Boonton's Initial Brief at 8. Indeed, DiVincenzi continued to misrepresent the facts regarding Angilly's position after he became principal of BHS. In March/April 1996, the Boonton BOE considered staff contract renewals. Although she believed that Angilly would attain tenure during the 1996-97 school year, DiVincenzi placed Angilly's name on a list of administrators who would not attain tenure if reappointed. On May 16, 1996, DiVincenzi testified that she had not completed Angilly's evaluation, although she was required to conduct three evaluations of his performance by April 30. She also stated on May 16 that a draft of the evaluation had been provided to Angilly and that it would be finalized in May or June 1996. On May 23, 1996, Walter Angilly credibly testified that he received three evaluations from DiVincenzi on May 20, and that he had not received any evaluations prior to that date.

Under the circumstances, DiVincenzi's testimony that she was unaware that Angilly made her cut-off list is in all probability contrived.

> Testimony to be believed must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness but must be credible in itself. It must be such as a common experience and observation of mankind can approve as probable under the circumstances.
> [Perone, supra, 5 N.J. at 522.]

Indeed, DiVincenzi directed her secretary to place an asterisk next to all applicants who met all the credentials of the first advertisement. She was aware the Angilly applied for the position and believed he was capable of filling the position.

Based on the preponderance of the credible evidence, I CONCLUDE that candidates who did not meet the minimum published qualifications established by the advertisement were improperly passed on to the Screening Committee by DiVincenzi. I CONCLUDE that after the ratings of the first round of candidates were completed, DiVincenzi failed to reconvene the Screening Committee as she had represented and arbitrarily chose the cut-off point to determine the advancement of candidates. I CONCLUDE that for the second round, DiVincenzi sought "input" from the committee as to the method to determine advancement, but again made the selection on her own.

Further, I CONCLUDE that DiVincenzi misrepresented to several qualified candidates the amount of funds available for the salary of the new principal, resulting in their withdrawing from the process. I CONCLUDE that an administrator from Boonton High School, a long-time colleague of Angilly, served on the Interview Committee notwithstanding DiVincenzi's assurance that the administrator on this committee would be selected from outside the high school.

Petitioner has presented overwhelming evidence that DiVincenzi misrepresented and fabricated the facts surrounding the principal selection process. Her credibility was impaired to the extent that I must conclude that she is wholly unworthy of belief. Based on the whole of the record, I CONCLUDE that DiVincenzi's conduct in the principal selection process constituted bad faith.

X

Petitioner contends that the Agreement permitted the Bi-District Committee to agree to the selection process which was accepted by the Board without substantive changes. Also, petitioner charged that the Boonton BOE and DiVincenzi unilaterally changed the number of affirmative votes needed from the Interview Committee to become a finalist.

Boonton denied the charge, but admitted that it adopted the process on June 26, 1995. Boonton stated:

> The Bi-District Committee made recommendations with respect to the selection process and those recommendations were not > binding on the Boonton BOE. Respondents admit that the selection process adopted by the Boonton BOE provided for the Interview Committee's advancement of a candidate upon the affirmative vote of five members rather than six members recommended by the Bi-District Committee.

> [Respondent's Answers to Petitioner's Request for Admissions, dated January 30, 1996.]

Subsequently, Boonton conceded that it was not required to adopt the selection process and did not vote on it. Boonton's Initial Brief at 8. Moreover, Boonton averred that any changes in the selection process, even if recommended by members of both boards, were "irrelevant to Ms. Northrop DiVincenzi's authority to change the process." Id. at 42. The Board further declared that, > [DiVincenzi] was not bound to accept or incorporate any of the recommendations and, if she had desired, she could have changed the process even after the June 26 Boonton Board meeting. By law, she was not required to obtain the approval of even her own board of education in order to implement a selection process or change the process in any way she saw fit.

Boonton's pendulous position that the final authority regarding the selection process belonged solely to DiVincenzi and did not require Board approval is a baseless attempt to justify the actions of the Boonton BOE and its superintendent.

Generally, committees cannot make binding decisions on boards of education. To be binding, committee recommendations must be accepted by the board, or approved by previous authorization or agreement. The purpose of the Bi-District Committee is set forth in Exhibit R-26, "Regulations, Board of Education, Town of Boonton," as follows:

> To serve as a committee of both the Boonton and Lincoln Park Boards of Education to discuss issues affecting the students at the high school, to make recommendations for consideration and possible formal adoption to the respective Boards where appropriate concerning issues affecting the students at the high school, to serve as a consultative body between the two boards > on matters where consultation is required by the contract between Boonton and Lincoln Park and to consult upon and discuss such other matters as may be deemed desirable by the two Boards and by the members of the committee.

Further, the committee's goals are "[t]o serve as an intermediary communication vehicle for both Boards and to address areas of mutual concern regarding the quality of education offered to all high school students with the overall goal of improving the quality of education and student life at Boonton High School." R-26. Thus, the Bi-District Committee was created in part to implement the Agreement.

The selection of a high school principal is an issue which affects "the students at the high school." Indeed, the responsibility of finding a new high school principal is one that concerns both Lincoln Park and Boonton. Thomas Curtin, Esq., testified that it is an area that falls squarely within paragraph 8E(9), the "catch-all" section, of the Agreement. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that a selection process to recruit candidates for the position of principal at BHS is consistent with the Agreement. I further CONCLUDE that pursuant to the Agreement a recommendation from the Bi-District Committee to implement a selection process is binding upon acceptance by the Board.

The principal selection process was initially proposed by DiVincenzi to the committee on June 20, 1995. The committee engaged in a round-table discussion on various components of the process such as the qualifications of the candidate, the screening process and what individuals would comprise the Interview Committee. Another major item of discussion was the number of votes needed to advance to the finalist position. The round-table discussions resulted in several changes to the proposal introduced by DiVincenzi. For example, the number of votes needed to advance to the finalist position was changed from a unanimous vote to six votes. The Boonton BOE president, Nolan, reminded the committee that the Board would review the selection process proposal and could make changes.

Boonton's early admission that it adopted a selection process which provided that advancement of a candidate required "the affirmative vote of five members rather than six members recommended by the Bi-District Committee" is refuted by the overwhelming evidence that it accepted the selection process but took no action to change the votes needed. Thus, Boonton now asserts that its superintendent had the final authority on the matter. Boonton and DiVincenzi rely extensively upon N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 to support their actions. The relevant section of that statute provides:

> Notwithstanding the provisions of any law, rule or regulation to the contrary,
>
> a. A board of education shall appoint, transfer or remove a certificated or noncertificated officer or employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board. The board shall not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1.]

Respondents have interpreted the superintendent's recommendation authority as extending to all aspects of the hiring process and assert that,

> [b]ecause of the Boonton Superintendent's broad statutory recommendation authority, not even her own board of education could bind her to a particular selection process, qualifications, or minimum number of committee votes. If her own board cannot, then any attempt, whether by contract, board action, policy or practice to cede or share the appointment authority with Lincoln Park or the Bi-District Committee would directly contravene the statute, and would be invalid.
> [Boonton's Initial Brief at 38.]

Respondents' position has no support. Petitioner has correctly observed that the Board advances an interpretation of the statute "which would vest in the superintendent of schools absolute authority to determine all aspects of the hiring of personnel." Petitioner's Reply Brief at 15. The Board's giant leap to equate the statutory requirement that there be a superintendent's recommendation for all appointments to the premise that the superintendent has total control over the school district's appointment process is absurd. Indeed, Boonton's interpretation divests a board of education of any authority over the hiring process.

The statute speaks only to the final phases of the hiring process; an appointment, transfer or removal. Nothing in the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 can be read to prohibit a board of education from establishing a selection process which would ensure that a search results in a qualified pool of candidates. The superintendent would then recommend to the board of education the best candidates. This interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 does not deprive the superintendent of his or her recommendation authority. Thus, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 has no bearing upon the issue of the principal selection process.

I CONCLUDE that the Bi-District Committee agreed to use a selection process in its search to hire the high school principal. The recommendation was accepted and implemented by the Boonton BOE. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that pursuant to the 1990 Agreement, the selection process is binding. I CONCLUDE that the Boonton superintendent unilaterally changed substantive parts of the selection process, which constituted a breach of the Agreement.

The courts and the Commissioner have repeatedly held that a board of education's decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness, and its decision will not be set aside unless there is a clear showing of abuse of discretion or error. Thomas v. Morris Tp. Bd. of Educ., 89 N.J. Super. 327 (App. Div. 1965); Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 40 (App. Div. 1962); Quinlan v. North Bergen Bd. of Educ., 73 N.J. Super. 40 (App. Div. 1962);

McMillan v. South Orange-Maplewood Bd. of Educ., 1977 S.L.D. 137; Ricco v. Bloomfield Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 8111-84 (May 16, 1985), adopted, Comm'r of Educ. (July 8, 1985). Accordingly, the review of the action of the superintendent and the board is not de novo and is not to determine whether they acted wisely. Instead, the scope of review is whether the preponderance of the evidence establishes that the board exercised its discretion unreasonably, arbitrarily, capriciously, or in bad faith. Glynos v. Union County Bd. of Educ., 93 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 673.

Based on the whole of the record, I CONCLUDE that the Boonton BOE and its superintendent acted arbitrarily, capriciously, illegally and in bad faith in implementing the "selection search process." Consequently, I CONCLUDE that the appointment of Angilly to the position of principal of Boonton High School is invalid.

XI

Lincoln Park requests that the parties be returned to the status quo as of June 25, 1995, and that the appointment of Angilly be declared void ab initio. Lincoln Park also requests that the Commissioner direct Boonton to reinstitute a fair search process consistent with the terms outlined in J-6 and that the candidate for principal of BHS have five years' successful administrative experience.

Boonton argues that non-adherence to the selection process recommended by the Bi-District Committee does not require the nullification of the receiving school district's statutory recommendation and appointment authority. Therefore, the Commissioner should not vacate the appointment of Angilly and redo the selection search process.

Assuming, however, that petitoner is entitled to relief, Boonton and Angilly urge the Commissioner to fashion a remedy which is least disruptive to the educational program of the students and maintains the integrity of the statutory authority of the receiving district superintendent and board. Moreover, respondents maintain that petitioner has not challenged Angilly's performance in the position. Therefore, respondents urge that Angilly continue as acting principal should the Commissioner invalidate the principal appointment and reinstitute the search process. Boonton's Initial Brief at 88; Angilly's Initial Brief at 30-31.

I have carefully considered whether the conduct of the Boonton BOE and its superintendent necessitates nullifying the principal appointment and reinstituting the search process. Boonton's failure to adhere to a planned selection process violated the Agreement between the school districts. The Agreement established the structure of the relationship between Lincoln Park and Boonton. The intent of the Agreement was that the boards would cooperate with one another. See J-1 at paragraph 8A. Further, paragraph 8E indicates that Lincoln Park and Boonton shall reach mutually acceptable agreements in nine areas, including a catch-all section which requires agreement on "[s]uch other areas as any of the participating districts' Boards, Superintendents, or Business Administrators shall deem appropriate." Therefore, pursuant to the Agreement, a selection process proposed by the receiving district superintendent, recommended by the Bi-District Committee, and accepted by the Boonton BOE as presented or modified should be followed. Ultimately, however, the receiving superintendent and the Board would retain recommendation and appointing authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1.

I have also considered the statutory recommendation and appointment authority vested in superintendents and boards of education under N.J.S.A.

18A:27-4.1, and the enactment of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, which entitled Lincoln Park to a seat on the Boonton Board of Education. Sending and receiving school districts must be willing to work through their disagreements and any pre-conceived biases. The Agreement between Lincoln Park and Boonton, the creation of a Bi-District Committee and the implementation of a selection process to recruit a high school principal are means to accomplish this goal. Moreover, unless a selection process denies the superintendent of her recommendation authority or the board of its appointment authority, it should not be summarily dismissed. Indeed, the Agreement requires that the superintendents and the sending and receiving boards of education and their representatives exercise good faith in their dealings with one another. That has not occurred here.

The Boonton superintendent breached the Agreement by implementing a principal selection process in bad faith. I have considered the important role of superintendents of schools. Like teachers, they hold a sacred position in our society and must be held to a high standard of conduct. While parents, law enforcement officials and the general public expect teachers to provide students with book learning, superintendents are the leaders of the school district and therefore must impart social and moral values appropriate to the setting. Also, superintendents influence the opinions of their staff and students, thus they are role models. The Commissioner has dealt severely with superintendents who misrepresent critical facts. See In re Tenure Hearing of Pitch, School District of South Bound Brook, Somerset County, 1975 S.L.D. 763, 773. Further, where the board of education abused its discretion in the search and selection process for a superintendent of schools, the court has nullified the appointment. Cullum v. North Bergen Bd. of Educ., 15 N.J. 285 (1954). The Court in Cullum also declared that "members of [a] board of education hold positions of public trust and must at all times faithfully discharge their functions with the public interest as their polestar. Amongst their most vital and responsible duties is the proper selection of personnel, particularly the school superintendent." Id. at 292 (citations omitted). I agree that "the appointment of a high school principal is a critical decision of substantially comparable importance [to] that of superintendent of schools." Petitioner's Initial Brief at 27.

I am mindful of the recurrent controversies between Lincoln Park and Boonton, but I cannot be dissuaded by Boonton's omen that, "If Boonton and Lincoln Park are required to agree upon a new selection process, appointment criteria, committee compositions, salary ranges and the like, the predictable impasses at each level will soon return the parties to the OAL." Boonton's Initial Brief at 90. If the Agreement and the Bi-District Committee are to have any meaning, and school officials held to a high standard of conduct, the principal appointment must be invalidated and the selection process reinstituted.

I have also considered the position of Walter Angilly. I agree that he "is an innocent victim [of] what is essentially a political melodrama between the two boards." Angilly's Reply Brief at 2. Removal of Angilly under these circumstances will be disruptive to the Boonton High School educational program and could have detrimental effects on all sending and receiving school districts. I am therefore persuaded that Angilly has presented a more appropriate remedy than that presented by Lincoln Park or Boonton. See Angilly's Initial Brief at 31.

ORDERS

It is ORDERED that the position of principal of Boonton High School be reopened. It is further ORDERED that until a selection process which is consistent with the Agreement has been recommended to the Boonton BOE for consideration and an appointment made, Walter Angilly shall be permitted to retain the position of acting principal of Boonton High School. Further, it is ORDERED that Walter Angilly shall be given the same opportunity as any candidate to submit his application.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF LINCOLN PARK, MORRIS COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF BOONTON, MORRIS COUNTY, JOY NORTHROP DE VINCENZI, AND WALTER ANGILLY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of petitioner, Board of Education of the Borough of Lincoln Park (hereinafter "Lincoln Park") and respondents Board of Education of the Town of Boonton (hereinafter "Boonton"), Joy Northrop DeVincenzi[1] (hereinafter DeVincenzi), and Walter Angilly[2] (hereinafter "Angilly") were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 as

[1] By letter dated February 6, 1997, Arnold H. Chait, counsel for Boonton and Ms. DeVincenzi, requested that Donald M. Weitzman, Esq., be permitted to be substituted for Chait's firm as individual counsel for Respondent DeVincenzi in order that he may file exceptions on her behalf to permit the respective interests of the Board and DeVincenzi to be separately advocated. Upon receipt of this communication, all parties were provided an opportunity to submit objections to such request. In that no opposing submission was filed, the substitution of attorney request for Ms. DeVincenzi was granted.

[2] On February 7, 1997, counsel for Respondent Angilly advised that he had not yet received a copy of the initial decision in this matter. He reported that upon checking with the OAL he was informed that a copy was being mailed and he, therefore, requested an extension of time within which to file exceptions in this case. Based upon the circumstances presented, counsel was accorded the regulatorily specified 13 days from the February 7 mailing within which to file exceptions to the initial decision. Angilly's exceptions were timely filed pursuant to the established timeline.

were replies of Lincoln Park to the exceptions of Angilly and those of DeVincenzi and Boonton and replies of Boonton and DeVincenzi to the exceptions of Lincoln Park.

The parties extensive exceptions and replies essentially recast and reiterate the arguments advanced in their post-hearing submissions before the ALJ, which the Commissioner finds were fully considered and addressed in the initial decision. As such, only the most salient exception and reply arguments of each of the parties are briefly presented below.

LINCOLN PARK EXCEPTIONS

Lincoln Park excepts to the ALJ's conclusion, on Page 23 of the Initial Decision, that its representative on the Boonton Board may not disseminate information and communications which will be considered by the Boonton Board to Lincoln Park Board members. It advances that depriving the representative of this ability places him or her "in the position of having to deliberate and vote on issues which impact the Lincoln Park Board without having the opportunity to consult with other board members." (Lincoln Park Exceptions at pp. 2-3). It urges that such dissemination is necessary "to ensure proper preparation for Lincoln Park at Boonton Board meetings." (Id. at p. 3)

With respect to the ALJ's remedy to the principal selection process issue, Lincoln Park urges the Commissioner to order the immediate implementation of the previously agreed upon principal selection process (Exhibit J-6), "with an express prohibition against any participation in the process by Ms. DeVincenzi." (Lincoln Park Exceptions at p. 4) It contends such exclusion of involvement by Ms. DeVincenzi is clearly dictated by the ALJ's findings and conclusions that she exercised bad faith and misconduct in the previous selection. Lincoln Park further requests the Commissioner to direct that the requirement of five years of successful administrative experience, as was set forth in the initial advertisement for the principal position, be retained and only candidates meeting such qualification be considered. It additionally proffers that if Ms. DeVincenzi is not removed, it would be entirely appropriate, under the circumstances, for the Commissioner "to direct that Lincoln Park's superintendent be given the authority pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 to recommend the appointment of the new principal of Boonton High School." (Id. at p. 6) Finally, Lincoln Park submits that, based upon the ALJ's findings and conclusions regarding "fabrication of minutes and false testimony" by Ms. DeVincenzi, the Commissioner should recommend that the State Board of Examiners initiate proceedings to revoke all of her certificates. (Id. at p. 7)

In reply, Boonton urges that Lincoln Park's argument that information and communications received from the Boonton Board should be disseminated to the Lincoln Park Board before such information is considered or acted upon by the Boonton Board indicates that Lincoln Park misperceives the role of its appointee to the Boonton Board. In this connection it asserts that > [Lincoln Park] argues, in effect, that its appointee functions as a surrogate for the full Lincoln Park Board, and that the appointee is bound to consult and confer with his or her fellow Lincoln Park Board members to solicit their views on all issues before deliberating and voting upon them before the Boonton Board. To the contrary, Lincoln Park's appointee should function in the same manner as the other elected members of the Boonton Board. Each member of a board is bound to exercise independent judgment in the performance of his or her duties. Lincoln Park seems to want to have its appointee surrender that judgment to the will of a majority of the Lincoln Park Board.

> (Boonton Reply Exceptions at pp. 2-3)

Further, it concurs with the ALJ's determination that the need for confidentiality with respect to certain matters is of paramount concern and such sharing of this information with the Lincoln Park Board is clearly precluded by the Open Public Meetings Act. Boonton proffers that the appointee is not disadvantaged by the determination that the materials may not be shared in advance with the Lincoln Park Board, as this individual is permitted to share such information with the Lincoln Park Superintendent and, thus, have the benefit of his or her experience and educational expertise in determining how to vote. Additionally, it warrants that "because the agenda for the Boonton Board meetings is made public in advance, all Lincoln Park Board members have advance notice of the exact subjects and issues which will be discussed at the Boonton Board meeting, and can provide their input to their appointee on these subjects." (Id. at p. 6)

Boonton next urges the Commissioner to reject Lincoln Park's request that he enter an order calling for the immediate implementation of the principal selection process outlined in Exhibit J-6. Notwithstanding Boonton's continuing argument that it never agreed to this process, it asserts that such a directive is clearly contrary to law. In this regard, it proffers that the within events, including the creation of the outlined selection process, occurred over two years ago and, subsequent to this time, there have been a number of changes in the membership of both boards. Boonton argues that "[i]t is well-established that a board of education is a noncontinuous body, whose authority is limited to its own official life and whose actions can bind successor boards only in those ways and to the extent expressly provided for by statute." (citations omitted) (Boonton Reply Exceptions at p. 10) It argues that here, Lincoln Park is requesting the Commissioner to impose "a search policy which the ALJ presumed to be acceptable to a predecessor board " upon the current Boonton Board, thereby unlawfully depriving the current Board of its right "to determine its own criteria and qualifications for both the process and the principal position." (Id.) Moreover, Boonton charges that Lincoln Park's proposal that the Lincoln Park Superintendent be vested with full authority to recommend the principal appointment in the receiving district should Boonton Superintendent DeVincenzi not be removed from office, is preposterous and a "blatant violation of the statutory framework governing sending/receiving relationships." (Id. at p. 9)

In her reply, DeVincenzi urges that the harsh remedies requested by Lincoln Park, over and above those contained in the initial decision, i.e., her removal from the principal selection process and an Order to Show Cause to review her certifications, due to the ALJ's conclusion that she acted in bad faith in the principal selection process, are clearly premature in this matter. DeVincenzi asserts that all of the adverse findings of the ALJ have been refuted in her exceptions (DeVincenzi's exception arguments are presented below) and, therefore, no sufficient basis exists for the imposition of such remedies.

BOONTON EXCEPTIONS

Boonton's exceptions renew its post-hearing assertion, contrary to the ALJ's finding, that Lincoln Park's appointee to the Boonton Board should not have entitlement to information relating to grades which are not encompassed in the sending/receiving relationship, i.e., grades K-8 of the Boonton School System, prior to the release of this information to the public, again arguing that this information is not an area within the legitimate concern of Lincoln Park. Likewise, it reiterates its arguments in support of its contention that the deliberative role of Lincoln Park's appointee should be confined. "Inasmuch as there are a number of subject areas in which the sending district appointee is unable to act (i.e. vote), and/or which have no impact upon sending district pupils, there should be no right in that appointee to participate in the formal deliberations in those subject areas." (Boonton Exceptions at p. 14)

Boonton next excepts to the ALJ's determination that the Boonton Board accepted the principal selection process which had been recommended by the Bi-District Committee. In this connection, Boonton presents cited portions of hearing testimony which it contends establishes that when the proposed search process was submitted to the Bi-District Committee, it was clearly understood that this was only being done to solicit "input," and that any recommendation of this Committee was never intended to be binding on the Boonton Board or its superintendent. (Boonton Exceptions at p. 18) It argues that "[i]n a leap of logic," the ALJ turned the inaction of the Boonton Board at its June 26 meeting "into formal action, concluding that a failure to reject or modify [the Bi-District Committee's recommendations] represented an approval by the Board." (Id. at p. 20) It argues that "the only manner in which the Bi-District Committee recommendations could have become binding on the Superintendent and/or Boonton Board was if they had specifically agreed to be bound by them." (Id. at p. 19)

Boonton next excepts to the ALJ's finding that the irregularities which occurred in the principal selection process warrant the invalidation of Angilly's appointment to this position. It posits that, notwithstanding the recognition that there were some inconsistencies in testimony, or perhaps even flaws in the process, such irregularities do not rise to the level of demonstrating "bad faith" necessitating the Commissioner's overturning of "the appointment of a candidate who is clearly qualified for the position and who was selected after a comprehensive, inclusive selection process which incorporated the input of all possible constituencies, which is all the Boonton Superintendent was required to do[.]" (Boonton's Exceptions at p. 8) Boonton urges the Commissioner to review every instance where bad faith is asserted in light of the "legal significance" test. It advances that given that the ultimate statutory responsibility for personnel appointments is conferred exclusively upon the superintendent and the Board, there is no legal significance to any of the charged modifications made to the selection process. (Id.)

Finally, Boonton argues that the remedy to the selection process recommended by the ALJ is unworkable and unlawful. It posits that the ALJ's proposed process "conditions the ability of the receiving Board and Superintendent to adopt and implement a selection process and criteria upon the ability of the Bi-District Committee to reach consensus and put forth a recommendation." (Boonton's Exceptions at p. 40) Boonton perceives that the ability of the Bi-District Committee to reach consensus is compromised by the fact that of the nine members comprising this body, four are Lincoln Park representatives, four are Boonton representatives, and the remaining member is the Principal of Boonton High School, Respondent Angilly. It proffers that given that Angilly would most likely be required to recuse himself from voting, in that he would be a candidate for the position, each district would have equal representation on the Committee, creating "a real potential of stalemate, resulting in perpetuation of the continuing disputes, thereby placing the administration of the high school in limbo." (Id. at pp. 40-41)

In reply, Lincoln Park avers that Boonton's claim that its Board never accepted the principal selection process disingenuous, in that Boonton and its superintendent claim on one hand that the recommendations of the Bi-District Committee were subject to the approval of the Board, but on the other hand, the Board did not accept or approve the principal selection process. It asserts that the process proposed by DeVincenzi and modified at the Bi-District Committee meeting of June 20, 1995, and presented to the Boonton Board on June 26, 1995, was not modified by that body at the meeting. Further, it contends, there is nothing in the record to support Boonton's claim that it had given its superintendent authority to modify the process as presented. As such, Lincoln Park contends that "[t]he ALJ properly concluded that Boonton was bound to follow the process outlined in Exhibit J-6," (Lincoln Park Reply Exceptions at p. 10)

Further, Lincoln Park asserts that Boonton advances no support for its contention that it was "free to ignore an agreed upon principal selection process which in no way stripped it of its ultimate authority to appoint a principal of Boonton High School." (Id. at p. 12)

Finally, Lincoln Park discounts as without merit, Boonton's assertions that the irregularities in the principal selection process do not warrant the invalidation of Angilly's appointment. It contends

> Boonton has gone to great lengths to argue that the appointment of the high school principal should not be invalidated in spite of overwhelming evidence that the appointment resulted from a tainted process. Boonton's argument that the improprieties in the process have no "legal significance" must be rejected, especially in light of the egregious conduct of public officials which has been revealed in this matter. (Lincoln Park Reply Exceptions at p. 13)

DE VINCENZI EXCEPTIONS

DeVincenzi generally excepts to all of the ALJ's "findings of bad faith, misrepresentation, falsifying of facts and documents, and any other allegations directed at [her] on the issue of bad faith," contending that such findings are not supported by the within record, and that she was, in fact, at all times "acting pursuant to her authority under N.J.S.[A] 18A:27-4.1" (DeVincenzi Exceptions at p. 1) In this regard, DeVincenzi presents her version of the facts and citations of selected testimony advanced at the hearing underlying each of the areas where she maintains the ALJ made erroneous determinations that she acted in bad faith, i.e., the published qualifications issue, the cutoff score, inclusion of Boonton High School staff members and administrators in the selection process, and the maximum pay scale issue, arguing that a fair consideration of these facts must lead to the inevitable conclusion that she exercised "good faith efforts with respect to the process" in each of these areas. (Id. at p. 5)

With regard to the "change" from six votes to five, DeVincenzi proffers that testimony at the hearing demonstrates a divergence of opinion as to whether this issue was discussed at the meeting of the Boonton Board on June 26. She advances that notwithstanding that such "discussion is not audible on the tape recording of the meeting, two members of the Boonton Board of Education testified at the trial that such a discussion did take place[,] [she] says such a discussion took place[, and] the minutes [she took] indicate that the discussion took place." As such, DeVincenzi asserts that "[c]ommon sense leads to the conclusion that some consensus must have taken place on this issue." (Id. at pp. 7-8) DeVincenzi charges that "[t]he ALJ uses this [ambiguous] incident regarding the June 26, 1995 meeting as requiring a ruling to disbelieve all of [her] remaining testimony on the other issues." (Id.) She cites United Stations of N.J. et al. v. Getty Oil Co. et al., 102 N.J. Super. 459, 476 (Ch. Div. 1968), affirmed 54 N.J. 150 for the proposition that such a generalization on the part of the ALJ is clearly contrary to the laws of evidence, arguing

> In [United Stations] the Court below found that a party who was occasionally contradicted, and whose credibility on some issues may have been impaired, had not been shown to be wholly unworthy of belief and so unclean as to be undeserving of equitable relief. It is submitted that such is true of the case at hand. The law of evidence "False in one, false in all" was misapplied. To disbelieve all of DeVincenzi's testimony and ascribe an overall finding of bad faith on every issue is clearly an error based on the facts set forth above. (Id. at p. 9)

In reply, Lincoln Park argues that the exception arguments advanced by both DeVincenzi and the Boonton Board, "do not serve as any basis to reject the ALJ's findings and conclusions in this matter," as all such findings and conclusions are "amply supported by the voluminous record in this matter." (Lincoln Park Reply Exceptions at p. 2) Lincoln Park again presents its arguments, noting that such are fully amplified in its post hearing brief, with respect to "[t]he fabrication of the minutes, false testimony[,] in addition to other lies and misrepresentationsdemonstrat[ing] the bad faith which tainted the principal selection process." (Id.) As to the ALJ's determinations regarding the credibility of witnesses, it posits that "[i]n reviewing credibility determinations, the Commissioner must give 'due regard to the opportunity of the one who heard the witnesses to judge their credibility,'" citing McKnight v. Mercer Vocational-Technical Schools, 1986 S.L.D. 117, 134; and Onulak v. Metuchen Board of Education, 1986 S.L.D. 1372, 1392, as its authority for this proposition. (Id. at p. 7)

ANGILLY EXCEPTIONS

Angilly's exceptions renew his post-hearing arguments that the circumstances in this matter do not warrant his removal from his position. In this connection, he reargues that "the dispute in this case is essentially a political one between the Lincoln Park Board of Education and Boonton." (Angilly's Exceptions at p. 1) Angilly maintains that he was not at all involved in the process developed to fill his position and concurs with the ALJ that he is an "innocent victim" of the "political melodrama" between Lincoln Park and Boonton. (Id. at p. 2) Angilly argues, that notwithstanding Lincoln Park's contentions to the contrary, the ultimate decision with respect to any appointment was statutorily that of the Boonton Board, upon recommendation of its superintendent. He maintains that he was the overwhelming choice of the Boonton Superintendent and the Boonton Board for the position, and "whatever may have transpired during the selection process cannot be used to upset his appointment." (Id. at p. 4) He urges that "[u]ltimately, the current focus should be on what [he] has done since his appointment to merit remaining the high school principal and not what occurred in the 1995 selection process before his appointment." (Id. at p. 6)

In response, Lincoln Park asserts that although Angilly attempts to distance himself from the conduct of DeVincenzi and the Boonton Board with regard to the implementation of the principal selection process "which ensured his appointment," it finds significant that Angilly does not take exception to the ALJ's conclusions that Ms. DeVincenzi

> 1) improperly advanced candidates, including Mr. Angilly, who did not meet the published minimum qualification of five years of successful administrative experience; 2) acted in bad faith to change the number of affirmative votes of the Interview Committee members needed to advance as a finalist; 3) arbitrarily established the cut-off score for advancement in the first round (ensuring Mr. Angilly's advancement); and [4] appointed a high school administrator who was a longtime colleague of Mr. Angilly to the Interview Committee in spite of assurances that no high school administrator would serve on that committee.

Lincoln Park proffers that as a result of these and other circumstances existing herein, Mr. Angilly's appointment was the outcome of the arbitrary, capricious and illegal process which was implemented in bad faith, [and], pursuant to Cullum v. North Bergen Board of Education, 15 N.J. 285 (1954), the invalidation of the appointment of the principal is warranted. (Id. at p. 3)

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Upon an independent and comprehensive review of the record in this matter, which included transcripts of the 12 days of hearings before the ALJ[3] the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's assessment of the rights and responsibilities of Lincoln Park's appointed representative to the Boonton Board, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 and the Agreement in place between the parties, as discussed on pages 8-24 of the Initial Decision. The Commissioner finds without merit the parties' exception arguments which seek to either enhance or circumscribe the appointee's right to receive information, the necessary concomitant restrictions on the maintaining of confidentiality of such information, as well as this individual's deliberative and participatory role on the Board. As aptly noted by the ALJ, the relevant statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 addresses two distinct subjects, i.e., it 1) grants the sending district entitlement to membership on the receiving district's board of education as a representative of the sending district, and it 2) designates those matters on which the appointee shall vote. The Commissioner finds that the ALJ's analysis properly reflects this duality of purpose, is consistent with both the plain language of the statute, its legislative history and intent, and fully comports with the contemplated spirit of cooperation envisioned by the parties' Agreement.

[3] The record reflects that the hearings in this matter were conducted on February 15, 1996, March 11 and 12, 1996, April 9, 11, 19 and 22, 1996, and May 13, 16, 17, 23 and 28, 1996.

With respect to the issues surrounding the principal selection process, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ, for the reasons comprehensively detailed on pages 24-48 of the Initial Decision, that the Boonton Board and its superintendent acted arbitrarily, capriciously, in bad faith and in violation of the spirit of the Agreement between the Boards in implementing the principal selection search process at issue herein and, as such, the appointment of Walter Angilly to the position of principal of Boonton High school must be deemed invalid. In reaching this determination, the Commissioner was not persuaded by exception arguments of the parties with respect to errors which they contend the ALJ made in reaching her findings and conclusions based upon the credibility of the testimony of witnesses in this matter. It is observed that the governing standard of review with regard to an ALJ's factual determinations was succinctly set forth in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Walter Driscoll, School District of Woodstown-Pilesgrove Regional High School, decided by the Commissioner March 2, 1982, aff'd State Board September 8, 1982, aff'd New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division, October 28, 1983, Dkt. No. A-798-82T2, wherein the Commissioner stated

> Where conflicting evidence is offered on any issue and there is sufficient evidence contained in the record to reasonably support > the findings made, the Commissioner will defer to the judgment of the hearer on questions of credibility since he/she had the opportunity to hear and observe the witnesses and so was in a better position to assess credibility. Cf. Close v. Kordulak Bros., 44 N.J. 589, 599 (1965); Parker v. Dornbierer, 140 N.J. Super. 185, 188 (App. Div. 1976). (Id., slip op. at pp. 39-40)

See also Onulak, supra, and McKnight, supra. The Commissioner observes that not only does the record provide no cause to challenge the ALJ's summations of testimony, assessments of witness credibility, overall characterization of underlying situations and specific findings and conclusions, in fact, he finds that all of these are amply established by such record.

Finally, in addressing the appropriate remedy in this matter, the Commissioner is in accord with the ALJ's conclusion that the conduct of the Boonton Board and its superintendent necessitates nullifying the principal appointment and reinstating the search process to fill this position. Notwithstanding this conclusion, the Commissioner is fully cognizant of the importance of maintaining educational continuity for the students and of assuring a minimization of disruption during this interim period. He is also mindful that the two Boards in this matter are autonomous bodies which are vested with the full authority to develop and implement the parameters of the principal selection process and have an established mechanism in place for accomplishing this task. As such, the Commissioner rejects the exception arguments of Lincoln Park which suggest that the Commissioner should intervene to dictate the specifics of such process. Further, the Commissioner discounts as inappropriate Lincoln Park's suggestion that he remove Boonton's superintendent from the selection process. Rather, he concludes that such a proclamation would be inopportune in the context of the within proceeding, as it would have the potential for introducing a measure of turmoil into what is already recognized as a difficult and complex situation. This determination, however, does not preclude the Boonton Board from implementing whatever measures it deems appropriate to control, limit, or otherwise deal with its superintendent's participation in the process or to initiate whatever other actions it ordains the situation necessitates.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons clearly articulated therein. In view of the finding that the Boonton Board and its superintendent acted arbitrarily, capriciously, in bad faith and in violation of the spirit of the Agreement between the Boards, it is hereby ordered that the appointment of Walter Angilly to the position of Principal of Boonton High School be vacated and a new selection process developed and implemented in accordance with the dictates of this decision. It is further ordered that Walter Angilly shall remain in the position of Acting Principal during the course of this process and shall retain all rights to apply and be considered for the principal position as any other applicant. In addition, the two within Boards are directed to immediately take those actions necessary to conform their policies and procedures to reflect the rights and responsibilities of the Lincoln Park representative to the Boonton Board as detailed herein. Finally, a copy of this decision is hereby forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for review and such action, if any, as it deems appropriate.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: April 17, 1997 Decided: April 23, 1997

BEFORE DIANA C. SUKOVICH, ALJ:

On or about August 1, 1996, tenure charges against respondent, a tenured staff member of petitioner, were filed with the then acting secretary of petitioner. Subsequent to service of the charges upon respondent, a response to the charges was filed on respondent's behalf. On August 26, 1996, petitioner certified the charges to the Commissioner of the Department of Education (DOE). The DOE transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on October 2, 1996 for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Subsequent to the conducting of a conference, the parties reached a resolution of the matter. An executed stipulation of settlement was filed on April 17, 1997, on which date the record was closed. Hearings previously scheduled for April 23, 24, and 25, 1997 were adjourned. Attached herewith is a copy of the stipulation of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ANTHONY GERVASIO,	:	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION/OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
MORRIS SCHOOL DISTRICT, MORRIS COUNTY,	:	AGENCY REF. NO. 378-8/96 O.A.L. DOCKET NO. EDU 9841-96N STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

This Stipulation of Settlement is made by and between Anthony Gervasio (hereinafter "Mr. Gervasio""), residing at 5 Arbor Way, Morristown, New Jersey, and the Board of Education of the Morris School District (hereinafter "Board"). In consideration of the mutual promises and undertakings contained in this Agreement, and for good and valuable consideration, the receipt and sufficient of which is hereby acknowledged, the undersigned state:

WHEREAS, Mr. Gervasio has been employed as a Teacher by the Board since 1968; and

WHEREAS, the Board certified tenure charges against Mr. Gervasio to the Commissioner of Education by resolution of August 26, 1996, suggesting that he be suspended without pay for one year; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Gervasio was suspended without pay for the first 120 days of the 1996-97 school year; and

WHEREAS, the certified charges allege incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause for the reduction in Mr. Gervasio's compensation or his dismissal as a result of his transmission of an anonymous e-mail message on or about June 14, 1996, his alleged failure to promptly acknowledge responsibility for the same and his alleged failure to recognize the significance of his act; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Gervasio has issued a formal apology to the Superintendent of Schools; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Gervasio has determined that he wishes to permanently retire from the teaching profession and as an employee of the Board; and

WHEREAS, the Board has determined that further proceedings in this matter given the total circumstances are inappropriate in light of Mr. Gervasio's determination to retire;

IT IS on this 7 day of April, 1997, agreed that:

1. Mr. Gervasio hereby signs and tenders an irrevocable and permanent notice of retirement, effective June 1, 1997, in the form attached hereto as Schedule A. By doing so, Mr. Gervasio understands that he hereby irrevocably gives up any and all rights to tenure, seniority, recall, reinstatement, or any other right to employment by the Board, as well as any right to salary or benefits after May 31, 1997, except as otherwise provided herein. Nothing in this Agreement will in any way impair Mr. Gervasio's pension rights.

Mr. Gervasio has already filed an application for retirement, effective June 1, 1997, with the New Jersey State Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund. The Board makes no representation as to the amount of pension benefits, if any, Mr. Gervasio will be entitled to receive.

2. The Board agrees to pay Mr. Gervasio his full salary through May 31, 1997, and to maintain full heath insurance and any other benefits provided to regular teaching staff members through May 31, 1997. Any salary paid to Mr. Gervasio will be paid in the normal course with all normal payroll deductions in the same manner as any other teacher.

3. The Board agrees to dismiss, without prejudice, the pending tenure charges as moot, subject to the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

4. The parties shall exchange mutual general releases in the forms attached hereto. Each party will retain the right to enforce this Agreement. The originals of said releases shall be signed but held in escrow by each party's respective counsel until approval of this settlement by the Commissioner of Education is received.

5. Mr. Gervasio shall be entitled to receive compensation for accumulated, but unused, sick leave days in the same manner as would be the case for any other teacher in the Board's employ who was retiring on June 1, 1997. The monies due shall be paid on or before July 1, 1997. No pension contribution shall be taken from such payment since it is not pension-eligible compensation. However, all other normal payroll deductions shall apply in the same manner as would be the case for any other teacher.

6. Mr. Gervasio understands that the Commissioner of Education will refer his case to the State Board of Examiners for its review as to the issue of whether or not an Order to Show Cause should be instituted seeking the revocation or suspension of his educational certificates and endorsements. Nothing herein shall prevent such a proceeding, or the Board's cooperation with same.

7. Mr. Gervasio acknowledges that he has hereby been advised in writing that he has the right to consult with an attorney or a representative of his own choosing prior to signing this Agreement, and has done so, and that he signs this Agreement as his own voluntary act and deed, and that he fully understands the duties and obligations enumerated herein.

8. The undersigned representatives of the Board hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized by the Board to sign this Agreement and bind the Board to its terms.

9. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended, modified or revoked except by an instrument executed in writing by the parties.

10. Nothing in this Agreement shall be deemed to constitute precedent, past practice or policy as to the rights of any employee, nor in the future, other than Mr. Gervasio.

11. The Board shall process Mr. Gervasio's application for pension benefits under the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund in the normal manner for such processing.

12. Both parties acknowledge that their agreement to dismiss the tenure charges is subject to the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. Only this agreement to dismiss the tenure charges shall be null and void if such approval is not received.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning mother and grandparents alleged minor child, A.S., was wrongfully denied a free public education in the District. ALJ dismissed petition for failure to appear. Commissioner remanded matter in the interest of fundamental fairness as petitioners attested they were unaware of hearing date.

ALJ concluded that petitioners did not carry their burden of proof that A.S. is not residing with her grandparents solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in the District. ALJ found there was no hardship and the mother was able to provide for A.S. ALJ found that petitioners were liable to the Board for prorated tuition for the period from December 1, 1995 through June 1996 and for 48 days in 1996-97 school year for a total amount due of $8,575. Petitioners were ordered to pay the amount due to the District.

Commissioner reversed the initial decision of the ALJ, finding that, notwithstanding the temporary nature of the living arrangement (A.S. lived with her grandparents while her mother, an entertainer, traveled), and irrespective of any deficiencies which may exist in petitioners' affidavits, A.S. was deemed to have been entitled to a free public education in the District until she returned to living with her mother in Maplewood.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Respondent.	:

On April 14, 1997, the parties placed on the record before the Honorable Robert Miller, A.L.J., the following terms for a full and final resolution of the above captioned matter, subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Education. The individual parties have acknowledged to the court their understanding of and agreement to these terms and to the fact that the agreement was reached voluntarily. The court has indicated its approval of this resolution.

1. The petitioner, Princeton Regional School District Board of Education (hereinafter "Board"), shall restore the previously withheld contractual salary increments of McCray Bussey for school years 1994-95, 1995-96, 1996-97. The payroll check(s) issued to respondent Bussey shall be net of all appropriate and required withholdings for state and federal income taxes, pension contributions, dues deductions and the like. In addition, the Board shall withhold and apply those annuity and credit union deductions as were previously authorized by Mr. Bussey;

2. McCray Bussey shall retire from the Princeton Regional School District effective June 30, 1997. His Notice of Intention to Retire shall be signed, witnessed and delivered to the Board's representative on April 14, 1997. The retirement is subject to the approval of this agreement by the Commissioner of Education;

3. McCray Bussey shall use his accumulated and unused sick days for the period April 15, 1997 through June 30, 1997;

4. The Board shall restore to McCray Bussey the 120 days of pay withheld as a result of his suspension without pay on certification of the tenure charges in August of 1996. The payroll check(s) issued to respondent Bussey shall be net of all appropriate and required withholdings for state and federal income taxes, pension contributions, dues deductions and the like. In addition, the Board shall withhold and apply those annuity and credit union deductions as were previously authorized by Mr. Bussey;

5. McCray Bussey does not waive his charge of discrimination against the Board of Education presently pending before the New Jersey Division on Civil Rights;

6. Upon approval of this agreement by the Commissioner of Education, the Princeton Regional School District Board of Education withdraws the above captioned tenure charges.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF MC CRAY BUSSEY,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
PRINCETON REGIONAL SCHOOL	:	DECISION
DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY,	:

The record and initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner cannot be satisfied by the present record that the proposed settlement in this matter meets the Cardonick standards for settlement of tenure matters. In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, affirmed State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846.

It is well established that, having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, the Board may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges can no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue them. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenneth S. Smith, School District of the City of Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner March 22, 1982, decision on remand June 16, 1983, affirmed with modification State Board of Education November 2, 1983, affirmed New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division, January 30, 1986. The present record contains no such required explanation. Further, there is no indication that the within teaching staff member was advised of the Commissioner's duty pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of certificate. While the Commissioner does not preclude the possibility of settlement in this matter, he must be assured that any settlement is consistent with appropriate standards for setting aside of tenure matters as expressed in Cardonick, supra.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is remanded for revision of the settlement document and expansion of the record consistent with the concerns expressed herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE ROBERT S. MILLER, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on September 30, 1996, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a stipulation of settlement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

3. The settlement is fully consistent and in accordance with the public interest for the reasons expressed in the joint certification of counsel dated July 11, 1997 (also attached hereto.)

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF PRINCETON REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT	:
Petitioner,	:	OAL Docket No. EDUOA 8513-96 Agency Reference No. 359-8/96
-vs-	:
McCRAY BUSSEY	:	JOINT CERTIFICATION FOLLOWING REMAND
Respondent.	:

Mark J. Blunda, Esq., counsel for the Petitioner, Board of Education of the Princeton Regional School District, and Arnold M. Mellk, Esq., counsel for the Respondent, McCray Bussey, certify as follows:

1. The undersigned counsel of record in this action have represented the parties since its inception and are familiar with the nature of the tenure charges, Respondent's work history, the anticipated duration and extent of this litigation and the specific terms of the settlement placed upon the record before the Honorable Robert Miller, A.L.J. on April 14, 1997, which terms were acknowledged and agreed to by both McCray Bussey and the chief school administrator of the Princeton Regional School District. The undersigned submit this Certification in response to the Commissioner's remand of the matter in order to amplify the record and assist the Commissioner in approving the terms of the settlement.

2. Prior to the start of the 1996-1997 school year, McCray Bussey (hereinafter "Bussey" or "Respondent") had served as a music teacher in the Princeton Regional School District (hereinafter "District") for approximately thirty years and had nearly forty years of total teaching experience. By reason of his years of service and age he is eligible for retirement with full benefits under the Teachers Pension and Annuity Fund.

3. The tenure charges certified to the Commissioner of Education in August of 1996, and the statement of evidence under oath in support thereof, established that in the three school years immediately preceding the filing of tenure charges, Mr. Bussey's increments had been withheld by the District on the grounds of unsatisfactory teaching performance. According to the District's evaluating administrators, Mr. Bussey's teaching performance was not improving to the level necessary to efficiently educate children in Princeton, despite the evaluations, conferences and withholding of his increments. Mr. Bussey disputed these findings and conclusions.

4. It was the District's contention that Mr. Bussey was inadequately teaching music to the children, was causing children to leave rather than join the music program and was habitually and increasingly late for scheduled classes, conferences and submission of lesson plans and related educational materials. Mr. Bussey disputed these claims. The District served him with tenure charges of inefficiency in early 1996 and placed him on a ninety day corrective action plan pursuant to statute.

5. Mr. Bussey was assigned to teach music in the four elementary schools within Princeton. Consequently, four school principals were given the task of implementing and monitoring the ninety day corrective action plan with Mr. Bussey. At the end of the corrective action plan, it was the unanimous conclusion of the four building principals and the superintendent of schools that Mr. Bussey had not shown sufficient improvement in his performance and that the tenure charges of inefficiency should be presented to the Board of Education and to the Commissioner of Education. The Board of Education after reviewing the statement of evidence under oath and the supporting documentation certified the charges of inefficiency to the Commissioner of Education in August 1996. Mr. Bussey filed an answer generally denying all charges.

6. There is nothing in the tenure charges, nor in the statement of evidence supporting those charges that alleges, in any way, that Mr. Bussey engaged in any type of physical or sexual misconduct with students or engaged in any unbecoming conduct relating to fraud, dishonesty or moral turpitude. The gravamen of the charges is that a teaching staff member with three decades of service (perhaps because of failing health and/or advanced age) has become deficient in his teaching performance so that the children in the music program in the Princeton Regional School District are not receiving the level of instruction required by the state and the local district. Mr. Bussey does not agree with the conclusions of his certified evaluators.

7. The tenure charges and the statement of evidence in support thereof are voluminous. Because of Mr. Bussey's many years of service and the nature of the tenure charges, discovery led the parties to conclude that the tenure hearings before the Administrative Law Judge would require several weeks of testimony followed by post hearing briefs and exceptions to the ALJ's Initial Decision. The parties appeared with their counsel at the Office of Administrative Law on April 14, 1997 to commence the hearings in this matter.

8. As a result of lengthy discussions between the parties, with the assistance of the Administrative Law Judge, the parties reached a settlement which was spread upon the record in open court. The Superintendent of Schools for the Princeton Regional School District and Respondent McCray Bussey were present in the court room, answered questions from counsel and from the court and indicated their understanding of and agreement with the terms of the settlement.

A written settlement agreement was subsequently drafted and executed by counsel. A true copy of same is attached hereto as Exhibit A. In addition, a copy of the tenure charges certified to the Commissioner of Education and filed with this court are attached hereto as Exhibit B.

9. Upon the record in open court and in the body of the written settlement agreement the parties acknowledged that its terms were subject to review and approval by the Commissioner of Education. Consistent with the Cardonick standard, counsel for the school district believes that settlement of this litigation on the terms set forth on the record is in the public interest for the following reasons:

(a) The goal of the Princeton Regional School District is to remove a tenured teaching staff member whose performance, in its judgment, is below the level required and expected by the citizens of Princeton and the State of New Jersey. Settlement of this litigation on the proposed terms achieves that goal with certainty;

(b) A related goal of the Princeton Regional School District is to replace McCray Bussey with a qualified music teacher who will enhance the District's music program and provide a high quality of music instruction to its students. Settlement of this litigation on the proposed terms will achieve that aim;

(c) The financial cost to the Princeton Regional School District and its taxpayers for preparation and litigation of at least two weeks of contested hearings, followed by transcripts, post hearing briefs and exceptions is enormous. Settlement of this litigation on the proposed terms saves the District and the public tens of thousands of dollars in legal fees;

(d) Based upon the nature of the charges (inefficiency) and the length of Mr. Bussey's service in the District, the Board of Education's case and Respondent's case will require the attendance of school District administrators, teaching staff members and support staff to give testimony. That will not only cost the District in financially due to the hiring of substitutes, it will disrupt the educational process and the administration of the school district. Settlement of this litigation on the proposed terms avoids that disruption;

(e) By reason of his length of service and age, McCray Bussey is eligible for full retirement under TPAF. The settlement allows for that retirement effective July of 1997;

(f) Aside from a restoration of the 120 suspension without pay, the proposed settlement simply allows for payment of Mr. Bussey's salary increments and the unused sick pay provided in the Teacher's Collective Bargaining Agreement;

(g) Settlement of the litigation achieves all of the goals sought by the Board of Education without the cost associated with this expensive litigation and without impugning the dignity of a veteran teacher staff member who will otherwise be forced to confront unpleasant testimony from co-workers and administrators;

(h) Although the Board of Education is convinced that the record and evidence will allow it to prevail in the tenure proceedings, there are never guarantees in litigation. Consequently, settlement on the proposed terms achieves all of the Board of Education's goals without risk;

(i) All of the foregoing benefits to the Princeton Regional School District, its students and its taxpayers are in the public interest of the citizens and taxpayers of the State of New Jersey, as well as the Department of Education. Consequently, settlement of this litigation on the proposed terms is preferable to litigating the case to conclusion to achieve the exact same results.

10. Respondent, McCray Bussey, discussed this matter at length with his counsel, participated in the settlement discussions and was present in the court on April 14, 1997 when the terms were spread upon the record. Mr. Bussey was questioned by counsel and by the court as to his understanding of the terms of the agreement, its consequences and his agreement thereto. He expressed his assent on the record. In addition, counsel for Respondent Bussey certifies that he explained to Mr. Bussey that New Jersey Regulations provide for the referral of tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation proceeding. Mr. Bussey expressed his understanding of that proposal.

11. Both counsel for the Board of Education and counsel for the Respondent believe that revocation proceedings will not occur in this case given the nature of the inefficiency charges and the fact that Mr. Bussey, through this agreement is retiring from service pursuant to TPAF. In addition, the Board of Education is aware that should the State Board of Examiners wish to pursue revocation proceedings, the local school district will have the onus of presenting the underlying tenure materials.

The undersigned certify that the foregoing statements are true. Mark J. Blunda, counsel for the Princeton Regional School District, certifies as to the public interest paragraph number 9, but not as to the discussions with Mr. Bussey. Arnold Mellk, counsel for McCray Bussey, certifies to the foregoing and to the discussions with Respondent McCray Bussey, noted in paragraph 10 but not as to the paragraph regarding the Board of Education's view of the public interest.

RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teaching staff member, claimed the Board violated her tenure and seniority rights by failing to appoint her to the position of Assistant Principal.

Citing Martucci and Picogna, ALJ concluded that petitioner did not achieve tenure as an assistant principal because she did not achieve tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(a) as she did not serve for two consecutive calendar years (she served a period of less than two years) and she was not reappointed to the position. Summary decision was granted in favor of the Board; petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in the initial decision as his own.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 412-9/96

ESTHER DUES,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF IRVINGTON, ESSEX COUNTY,

Respondent.

Wayne J. Oppito, Esq., for petitioner (New Jersey Principals and Supervisors Association, attorneys)

Denise P. Coleman, Esq., for respondent (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso & Kessler, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 25, 1997 Decided: April 24, 1997

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

On September 12, 1996, petitioner, Esther Dues, filed a Petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking to compel the Board of Education of the Township of Irvington (Board) to grant her tenure as an Assistant Principal in the school district (District), with tenure and seniority rights, salary, benefits and emoluments retroactive to September 1, 1996.

On October 18, 1996, the Board filed its answer and on November 1, 1996, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The matter was preheard on February 13, 1997. At that time, respondent stated that it would make a motion for summary decision to dismiss the petition. Further proceedings were deferred pending decision on the Board's motion.

Respondent filed its motion on March 3, 1997. On March 24, 1997, petitioner indicated that she would file no responsive papers, and the record closed on March 25, 1997. The only issue to be decided is whether Dues acquired tenure in the position of assistant principal, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6, in the District.

The material facts are not in dispute. They are as follows:

1. Dues was first employed by the District in September 1981 and she is tenured as a teacher.

2. Dues claims that she was promoted to the position of assistant principal in the District effective July 1, 1994, and held the position continuously through June 30, 1996. A resolution of the Board dated August 17, 1994, shows that the effective date of her appointment was actually August 18, 1994. However, as explained below, even if Dues were correct, it would not change the outcome of this matter.

3. In a letter dated March 28, 1996, petitioner was notified by Victor Demming, Board secretary, that her contract as assistant principal was not renewed by the Board for the 1996-97 school year "due to reasons of economy."

4. By letter dated June 24, 1996, received by Dues on June 29, 1996, Demming notified petitioner that she would be reassigned to a teaching position for the 1996-97 school year.

5. In August 1996, the District posted a notice of vacancy for the position of assistant principal.

6. On about August 7, 1996, the District superintendent told Dues that, if she wanted this position, she would have to apply for it. Dues applied but was not appointed.

7. The assistant principal position has always been a twelve-month, or calendar year, position.

It is Dues's contention that she attained tenure as an assistant principal because she served two full school years in that position. Consequently, she argues, the Board violated her tenure and seniority rights when it failed to appoint her to the newly-created assistant principal position in August 1996. In this appeal, she seeks appointment to the position and recognition of her tenure and seniority rights from September 1996.

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 provides, in relevant part, that:

> Any . . . teaching staff member under tenure or eligible to obtain tenure under this chapter, who is transferred or promoted with his consent to another position . . . , shall not obtain tenure in the new position until after:
>
> (a) the expiration of a period of employment of two consecutive calendar years in the new position unless a shorter period is fixed by the employing board for such purpose; or
> (b) employment for two academic years in the new position together with employment in the new position at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or

> (c) employment in the new position within a period of any three consecutive academic years, for the equivalent of more than two academic years.

Provisions (b) and (c) of the statute do not apply since they only pertain to persons employed during an academic year, not a calendar year. An "academic year," as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1, is "the period between the time school opens in any school district or under any board of education after the general summer vacation until the next succeeding summer vacation." The assistant principal position is a twelve-month, or calendar year, position.

Based upon the Board's resolution of August 17, 1994, by which she was appointed an assistant principal effective August 18, 1994, Dues did not achieve tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(a) because she did not serve for two consecutive calendar years. She was appointed by the Board on August 18, 1994, and served until June 30, 1996, a period of less than two years.

However, even if she served in the position for the full two years, she still did not acquire tenure in it. The facts in the instant case are almost identical to those in Martucci v. Board of Education of the City of Linden, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 109, rev'd, State Bd. (Dec. 4, 1996); see also Picogna v. Cherry Hill Bd. of Educ., 143 N.J. 391 (1996). In Martucci, the State Board of Education held that reemployment in the position after the two-year statutory period is necessary in order to support a claim of tenure. It stated that:

> [P]etitioner did not acquire tenure as a principal because, although he served the entire term of his contract, he was not reemployed by the Board as a principal after being employed in that capacity for two years.
> [Martucci, supra, State Bd. Decision, at 7.]

The State Board explained that:

> [S]ound educational policy supports this result. Were we to hold otherwise, district boards would be forced to terminate the contracts of calendar year employees in order to prevent tenure acquisition. We find no justification for the disruption to the school system that such a result would cause. Nor can we justify the additional expense that would be inevitable in those cases where payment must be made to the employee under the employment contract following his termination while, at the same time, the district would be required to pay for his replacement.

The State Board concluded that Martucci was entitled to return to "his former position at the salary he would have received had he not been promoted together with any increase to which he would have been entitled during the period of his promotion." Ibid.

Based upon N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(a) and the State Board's decision in Martucci, I CONCLUDE that Dues did not acquire tenure as an assistant principal because she was not reappointed to the position after she served in it for two years. She has been returned to her teaching position, presumably with all required adjustments to her salary. I therefore CONCLUDE that Dues is entitled to no relief in this matter.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that respondent is entitled to summary decision in this matter, and the petition of Esther Dues is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon an independent review of the within record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that, even accepting, arguendo, that petitioner's appointment to the position of Assistant Principal was effective, as she asserts, on July 1, 1994, and that she served continuously in such position through June 30, 1994, petitioner did not acquire tenure in this position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(a) (see Martucci v. Cherry Hill Board of Education, 143 N.J. 391 (1996)) and is, therefore, entitled to no relief in this matter.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons articulated therein and the instant Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teaching staff member, alleged the Board violated his tenure rights in removing him from the supervisory position of Facilitator and replacing him with a nontenured teacher. Board contended tenure does not attach to a position compensated by stipend.

ALJ found that petitioner, who possessed the appropriate certification, served in the Facilitator position for over two school years paid by an annual stipend of $3,000. ALJ concluded petitioner was tenured in that position and, therefore, had priority over the nontenured individual appointed. Thus, petitioner had greater entitlement to the Facilitator position than a person without any tenure in a supervisory position. ALJ ordered that the Board pay petitioner the sum of $3,000 as lost compensation for the 1994-95 school year.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and directed the Board to compensate petitioner the sum of $3,000, representing his lost stipend for the 1994-95 school year.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is a suit by a teaching staff member who alleges that the school district violated his tenure rights by terminating his employment as a "facilitator" for the 1994-95 school year. Basically, the issue is whether or not petitioner acquired tenure in a supervisory position. Petitioner Dimitri Ocasal ("Ocasal") contends that he attained tenure by serving the statutorily-prescribed period in a position requiring a supervisory certification. Respondent Elmwood Park Board of Education ("Board") maintains that tenure does not attach to a position compensated by stipend. Both sides agree that Ocasal is fully qualified for the job and that he was replaced by a nontenured individual.

Procedural History

On November 9, 1994, Ocasal filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"). The Board filed its answer on December 27, 1994. Subsequently, on January 10, 1995, the Commissioner forwarded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for handling as a contested case. In lieu of an evidentiary hearing, the parties submitted a joint stipulation of facts, together with exhibits, on October 19, 1995. Thereafter, the parties filed legal briefs on November 17, 1995. At the request of the OAL, the Board filed a supplemental brief on March 11, 1997. Ocasal did not file any additional papers before the March 21, 1997 closing date.

Findings of Facts

All of the relevant facts are set forth in the written stipulation and joint exhibits to which both parties have agreed. I FIND:

Dimitri Ocasal has been employed by the Board as a teaching staff member for thirty-two years. Since September 1966, he has held a New Jersey instructional certificate endorsed as "secondary school teacher of English, Italian and Spanish." The Board acknowledges that he has tenure in the district as a teacher.[1] On September 18, 1991, the Board appointed Ocasal to the ten-month position of "staff development departmental facilitator" for language arts for the 1991-92 school year.[2] A job description for that title, adopted by the Board on July 17, 1991, requires, among other qualifications, that the facilitator must hold a "supervisory certificate." At the time of his appointment, Ocasal possessed an appropriate administrative certificate endorsed as "supervisor," issued in September 1985.

According to the district's job description, the duties of a staff development departmental facilitator include various supervisory functions, such as "discusses the interpretation of curriculum with teaching staff;" "assists in the selection of textbooks;" "encourages department members in the use of new methods and materials;" and "performs observations of teacher performance in the evaluation process as requested[.]" The parties stipulate that, in his role as facilitator, "petitioner was required to carry out supervisory responsibilities[.]" It may be reasonably inferred that Ocasal performed these extra duties in addition to his regular teaching assignment. In addition to his regular salary as a teacher, Ocasal received a $3,000 stipend for his facilitator services.

During the next two school years (1992-93 and 1993-94), the Board extended Ocasal's appointment to the facilitator title and continued paying him an annual stipend of $3,000. However, the Board did not reappoint him to the facilitator title for 1994-95, although he remained as a full-time teacher. Instead, on August 16, 1994, the Board appointed Ellen Nunn as "facilitator (foreign language/language arts)" for 1994-95 at a $3,000 stipend. Nunn had begun her employment in the district as a teacher on January 2, 1990. She had also served in Ocasal's absence as "acting facilitator" or "facilitator assistant" for May and June 1994. Both parties agree that, at the time of her

[2] The facilitator title is an unrecognized title which required approval of the county superintendent of schools before the Board could make any appointment to that position. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 (1986) [recodified as N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3 (1990)]. By memorandum dated July 17, 1991, Acting Bergen County Superintendent Alfred Marbaise authorized the district to use the title "staff development departmental facilitator," but cautioned that any employee who attains tenure under that title will accrue seniority under the recognized legal title of "supervisor."

appointment as Ocasal's successor for 1994-95, "Nunn was not tenured as a supervisor."

After institution of this litigation, the Board reappointed Ocasal to a facilitator position for the 1995-96 school year at a stipend of $3,000. Ocasal's damage claim is limited to the $3,000 stipend that he did not receive in 1994-95.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Ocasal is tenured as a language-arts facilitator and, therefore, had priority over Nunn to that particular supervisory position.

Generally, tenure accrues to teaching staff members who work in positions for which a certificate is required, who hold valid certificates, and who have worked the requisite number of years. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 81 (1982). Initially, it takes employment for three academic years and one day for a ten-month employee to acquire tenure. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(b). Any previously-tenured teaching staff member "who is transferred or promoted with his consent to another position" obtains tenure in the new position after employment for only "two academic years in the new position, together with employment in the new position at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year." N.J.S.A. 18A:28-69(b). Ocasal had previously achieved tenure as a teacher. Here the stipulated facts show that the facilitator position requires possession of a certificate with a supervisory endorsement, that Ocasal holds such a certificate, and that he performed supervisory duties for more than two academic years.[3] Consequently, he has tenure in the facilitator position and cannot be displaced by a nontenured individual. Since Nunn admittedly had no tenure in a supervisory capacity, Ocasal is entitled to preference "as against a non-tenured applicant with the same certification." Capodilupo v. West Orange Twp. Bd. of Educ., 218 N.J. Super 510, 515 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den. 109 N.J. 514 (1987). Accord, Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Educ., 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den. 110 N.J. 512 (1988). See also, Rogers v. Highland Park Bd. of Educ., 1990 S.L.D. 685 (Comm'r May 10, 1990), aff'd 1990 S.L.D. 691 (St. Bd. Sept. 5, 1990) (departmental chairperson of social studies has superior right over nontenured supervisor to newly-created position of social studies supervisor.)

[3]A supervisory endorsement is required for staff members "charged with authority and responsibility for the continuing direction and guidance of the work of instructional personnel." N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(c).

Although the Board urges that the facilitator position is "analogous to coaching or other extracurricular positions for which a stipend is paid and no tenure accrues," it offers no cases in support of its argument. Moreover the analogy is imperfect, since the job of the facilitator is not merely enhancement of instruction beyond the regular curriculum, but a separate type of supervisory activity for which a different certificate is required. Insofar as the Board implies that tenure is unavailable because facilitators work part-time and are paid by stipend, the law is clear that acquisition of tenure depends on satisfaction of the statutory criteria, not on full-time employment or the district's particular method of compensation, Spiewak, 90 N.J. at 84.

Additionally, the Board seeks to distinguish N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 on the ground that this statute relates to a "new" position and provides that time spent in such "new" position shall be included in determining tenure and seniority rights in the "former" position. The Board argues that the statute does not apply because Ocasal retained his teaching duties and was not truly transferred to any "new" position. However, the language on which the Board relies was designed to encourage current employees to accept transfers by protecting them against loss of security in their existing positions. Otherwise, a senior employee who accepts a transfer to a new position might lose his place-in-line to a junior employee who continues in the prior position or category. This concept is consistent with the so-called "tacking-on" regulation, which ensures that "[w]henever a person shall move from or revert to a category, all periods of employment shall be credited toward his or her seniority in any or all categories in which he or she previously held employment." N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(g). Nothing in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 can be read to suggest that a district employee working simultaneously in two assignments requiring different certifications should be deprived of tenure in the second position. Certainly Ocasal fits within the literal statutory terms, since he has accepted a transfer to a "new" position and has served in such new position for more than two academic years. There is no special significance to the fact that he divides his time between both responsibilities, rather than devoting full time to one or the other assignment.

In order to resolve the dispute in Ocasal's favor, it is unnecessary to address the troublesome question of the scope of a supervisor's tenure rights. Although several school law decisions hold that a supervisor's tenure extends to subject areas in which he has no prior experience or training, the preferable approach is that a supervisor must demonstrate some basic familiarity with the subject to be supervised. Compare Herbert v. Middletown Bd. of Educ., 1989 S.L.D. 2148 (Comm'r July 25, 1989), aff'd 1990 S.L.D. 1759 (St. Bd. Aug. 1, 1990), aff'd No. A-318-90T1 (N.J. App. Div. May 22, 1991) (general supervisor has greater right than nontenured employee to appointment as supervisor of special services) with Eagan v. Old Bridge Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 7448-82 (Comm'r July 5, 1983), aff'd No. A-1706-83T3 (N.J. App. Div. Feb. 4, 1985) (chair of physical education is unqualified to become chair of mathematics department). Recently, the trend in the law has been to uphold reasonable measures by school districts to require adequate qualifications for a particular assignment. Illustratively, in Nelson v. Old Bridge Bd. of Educ., 148 N.J. 358 (1997), the New Jersey Supreme Court ruled that a head of industrial arts tenured under a supervisory endorsement had no claim to a separately-tenurable principal position. Noting that the two positions differed greatly even though both endorsements fall under the administrative certificate, the Supreme Court was reluctant to impose a result that "would promote unsound educational policy." Nelson, at 367-368. Similarly, in Dennery v. Board of Educ., 131 N.J. 626 (1993), the Supreme Court declared that a guidance counselor's tenure was not transferable to a newly-created class supervisor position requiring the performance of distinctly different duties and tasks. Allowing the district to require dual certification pertaining to both the substantive and supervisory aspects of the job, the Court expressed its reluctance "to interfere with regulatory and administrative judgments of the professionals in the field of education unless those judgments are palpably arbitrary or depart from governing law." Dennery, at 642-643.

Fortunately, it is unnecessary to enter the legal thicket of whether Ocasal's tenure as a supervisor extends to subject areas beyond his recognized knowledge and experience. Ocasal possesses appropriate certification as a teacher of English, Italian and Spanish and has already served as a facilitator of language arts for more than the requisite time period. Accordingly, he has greater entitlement to that position than a person without any tenure in a supervisory position.

Order

It is ORDERED that the Elmwood Park Board of Education pay to Ocasal the sum of $3,000 as lost compensation for the 1994-95 school year.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner determines to affirm the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) finding that, contrary to the Board's view, the Facilitator position in question is a tenurable one, and that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 need not necessarily be read to bar applicability to concurrent appointments, such as in the instant matter.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. The Board is hereby directed to compensate petitioner the sum of $3,000, representing his lost stipend for the 1994-95 school year.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :

HEARING OF MICHAEL FACCONE, :

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, : DECISION

HUDSON COUNTY. :

State-operated School District certified tenure charges of excessive and chronic absenteeism against respondent mathematics teacher.

ALJ concluded that respondent's chronic and excessive absenteeism warranted his dismissal from his teaching position. ALJ proved by a preponderance of credible evidence that respondent was guilty of said absenteeism, was notified of the problem and did not indicate that his attendance would improve if he were to return to work. Having considered the educational needs of the students, the ALJ found that the absenteeism adversely impacted the District's operations. Respondent was ordered dismissed from his position.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision. Commissioner ordered respondent dismissed and directed matter be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for further appropriate action.

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF JERSEY CITY,

Record Closed: March 24, 1997 Decided: May 6, 1997

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On April 18, 1996, petitioner, the State-Operated School District of Jersey City, certified charges of chronic and excessive absenteeism against respondent, Michael Faccone, a tenured teacher. Respondent filed an answer on April 23, 1996, denying the charges and alleging that his absences were for legitimate illness or injury, work-related and/or caused by the difficulty respondent had receiving authorization for proper medical treatment from the board of education. Respondent requested that the tenure charges against him be dismissed. The matter was transmitted by the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, on May 24, 1996, to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On July 12, 1996, the matter was assigned to the undersigned judge, and a telephone prehearing conference was scheduled for August 19, 1996. During the telephone prehearing conference, the issues were isolated, and a hearing was scheduled for June 17 and 25, 1997, at the OAL. The matter was subsequently rescheduled and heard on January 6 and 7, 1997. The record closed after the submission of briefs.

Facts

It became clear at the hearing that the pertinent facts were essentially undisputed. They may be summarized as follows:

1. Michael Faccone has a bachelor of arts degree in business from St. Peter's College and is certified to teach business and math.

2. Michael Faccone commenced employment with the Jersey City School District as a full-time teacher on September 1, 1976.

3. Since the time of his initial employment and throughout the course of his employment with the Jersey City School District, Michael Faccone has taught mathematics on the high school level.

4. Faccone was assigned to teach mathematics at Lincoln High School during the 1976-77 school year. He taught mathematics at Academic High School from school year 1978-79 through school year 1982-83, when he was transferred to Dickinson High School. He taught at Dickinson from school year 1983-84 through school year 1990-91, when he was transferred to Snyder High School. He has taught mathematics at Snyder since the 1991-92 school year.

5. The official records of respondent's attendance show the following absences, for personal illness (PI), injuries due to school accident (SA), or personal business (PB):

School Year	Absences	Total Days Absent
1985-86	144 days plus 2¼ hours (SA) 2 days (PI)	146 days plus 2¼ hours
1986-87	97 days (PI)	97 days
1987-88	28 days plus 2¼ hours (PI)	28 days plus 2¼ hours
1988-89	37 days plus 2 hours (PI)	37 days plus 2 hours
1989-90	15 days (PI) 2 days (PB)	17 days
1990-91	16 days plus 4¾ hours (PI) 2 days (PB)	18 days plus 4¾ hours
1991-92	19 days (PI)	19 days
1992-93	23 days plus 4½ hours (PI)	23 days plus 4½ hours
1993-94	34 days (PI) 2 days (PB)	36 days
1994-95	20 days (PI)	20 days
1995-96	105 days (SA) 7 days (PI) 2 days (PB)	114 days until suspended with filing of tenure charges

6. Respondent was given written notices over the course of his years of employment with the district that his attendance needed improvement:

(a) Respondent was advised by Instructional Observation/ Evaluation Report dated June 5, 1990, that his attendance must improve. P-14.

(b) Respondent was advised in an Instructional Observation/ Evaluation Report dated April 17, 1991, that he should be more constant in his attendance. He was informed that occasional absences are disruptive to the continued learning process and that improved attendance on Fridays was paramount. P-15.

(c) Respondent was advised in an Instructional Annual Written Performance Report dated May 17, 1991, that he needed to improve his attendance. P-16.

(d) Faccone was advised by memo dated March 21, 1994, from the principal of Snyder High School that his absences affected the continuity of instruction in his classes and that this was considered an unsatisfactory performance factor. He was advised to include improvement of attendance and timeliness in his professional improvement plan for 1994-95. P-17.

(e) Respondent was advised in an Instructional Annual Written Performance Report dated June 2, 1994, that his attendance needed improvement and that excessive absence and lateness causes discontinuity in the instructional process. P-18.

(f) Respondent was advised by the principal of Snyder High School by memo dated February 10, 1995, that at the mid-year point his absences had exceeded nine. He was told that if this pattern continued a recommendation to withhold his increment might be made. P-19.

(g) In May 1995 respondent was notified that his increment for the forthcoming school year, 1995-96, was being withheld for excessive absenteeism. P-20. Respondent's increment had previously been withheld for the 1989-1990 school year for unsatisfactory ratings. As part of the unsatisfactory rating, he apparently had been advised that his attendance needed improvement. P-13.

(h) Respondent was further advised by letter dated December 11, 1995, that excessive absenteeism affects the students' learning process and that his continued poor attendance would lead to further action by the district. P-22.

7. The last day respondent worked was October 16, 1995. On that date, he reported to the school nurse that he had injured his right knee at work six weeks earlier, the second day of school in September. Also on that day, the principal of Snyder High School held a conference with him to discuss his absences. Respondent was absent from work the next day, October 17, 1995, and absent throughout the remainder of the 1995-96 school year.

Testimony

Denise M. Ryan, a mathematics teacher with over twenty-nine years of experience teaching mathematics on the high school level, has served as chair of the mathematics department at Snyder High School since 1990. Ryan contended that a pattern of absence by a teacher impacts on learning and is apparent in the classroom. If a teacher has frequent absences the teacher cannot carry on the continuity of the instruction method and must go back to "square one"; the teacher loses control. Ryan evaluated respondent's performance during school years 1993-94 and 1994-95, during which Faccone taught HSPT (remedial classes) and geometry.

In Faccone's final evaluation in 1995, Ryan observed that Faccone's class was hard to control, disruptive, disrespectful and indifferent to Faccone. These problems were due to Faccone's absences; students feel abandoned if a teacher is not with them. She referred to the Instructional Annual Written Performance Report dated June 2, 1994, in which she noted the excessive absenteeism in writing for the first time (P-18). Although Ryan could not recall discussing the report with Faccone, she did recall having had two prior conversations with him during which he agreed that his attendance had to improve. She noted in the professional improvement plan that improved attendance would improve performance, and she reviewed this with him as well.

In her report of observation dated March 23, 1995 (P-23), Ryan noted that Faccone arrived at class late and that his students were disruptive and hard to control. This was a remedial class in which the students needed a lot of help in basics. She observed Faccone get angry and snap at a child, a response that was not called for. Although students usually cooperate with the teacher during an observation, during this particular observation Faccone's students were apathetic. Ryan opined that Faccone's absences formed a pattern and that his performance declined because of his poor attendance. Although he had previously been rated satisfactory, in 1995 respondent was rated as "needs improvement" in most performance factors. Ryan said that Faccone refused to sign the 1995 annual performance report (P-21) and that he was abusive to her; he told her he did not have to "put up with this shit." She opined that Faccone had been treated with respect and had been warned about certain things. He did not react in a judicious manner, and he alleged that he was going to "get them." Ryan tried to talk to him on three occasions to advise him about his attendance, plan book (he refused to leave backup lesson plans) and record book. She said that when he was absent his classes were covered by an assigned substitute or another teacher, but she explained that a substitute teacher would not have the same qualifications.

Substitute mathematics teachers are rare because those with qualifications have full-time jobs.

On cross-examination, Ryan said that she did not remember there being construction in Snyder High School in 1994 and 1995, and she said she had not experienced problems with fumes when the individual classrooms were painted. She admitted that Faccone could have been advised to leave a classroom because of fumes. She acknowledged that a gym floor had been installed, but could not recall the year. She agreed that Faccone had told her that he had a leg injury.

Next to testify was Margaret Oliver, principal of Snyder High School since August 29, 1995. She monitored the attendance of students and staff, and she explained that more than five absences is excessive. Oliver and the vice president of the math department had a conference with Faccone on October 16, 1995, to discuss Faccone's absences and the lack of instructional continuity to the students. Faccone did not dispute the absences and said he would try to improve. He related for the first time that he had injured his knee on the first day of school by lifting a box, which he had been ordered to do. He said he would see the nurse. He did not return to school after the conference, nor did he call Ms. Oliver regarding his absences during the 1995-96 school year. She saw him again the first day of the 1996-97 school year, and for a few minutes when he was suspended. She explained that she certified tenure charges because after researching his other years of employment with the district, she determined that his use of sick time was excessive. She explained that students had lost instruction because most substitutes are not certified to teach math. The students themselves had apparently felt that they were missing out on math instruction, and wrote a letter to this effect (P-24). The parents also complained. Oliver did not recall Faccone complaining about using the stairs at the high school or telling him that if he could not walk from the basement to the fourth floor he could not work in the building; there are elevators.

Michael Faccone testified in his own behalf. He stated that he has two children, born November 17, 1991, and November 8, 1994, respectively. He pays child support and is responsible for most of their medical bills. He provides transportation for them because their mother does not drive.

Faccone sought to explain his absences. He alleged that prior to June 1985 he was not often absent. He injured his right knee at work in June 1985 when he slipped off a step. He saw the board's doctor and received physical therapy. Although advised that he could return to work, he determined that he was not capable of working because he was still in pain. On the second day of school in September 1985 his knee was still swollen. He was finally allowed to see his own specialist, Dr. Tolentino, who found the problem, and in the beginning of October recommended surgery. Faccone claimed that he could not stand, walk or put pressure on his knee, thus he could not work. Although Faccone's doctor scheduled surgery for November 7, 1985, the board did not authorize the surgery until January 1986. He waited for the authorization at home. The doctor "scoped" his knee and removed the loose bodies, but could not find the tear he believed was causing the pain. After the surgery, respondent was supposed to have physical therapy. The board failed to authorize the requisite physical therapy for one month, causing his muscles to atrophy. He was out the rest of the 1985-86 school year to rebuild and tone his muscles. During the summer of 1986, Dr. Tolentino advised respondent that the cartilage was off the bone and that he needed another surgery. He continued to weight train during the summer months and returned to work in September 1986. His leg was strong but his knee was unstable, and when he moved, the cartilage stuck out of his knee. By the end of January 1986/beginning of February 1987 he had been absent only a few days. By mid-February he was in pain every day and had not received authorization for the second surgery from the board. The doctor finally received authorization, and at the end of February or the beginning of March 1987 respondent had surgery to remove 55 percent of the cartilage in his knee. He was out sick the rest of the 1986-87 school year. By October 1987 of the next school year when his knee began to swell he stayed home; he feared that he would have to go through the whole process again.

Faccone testified that during the 1984-85 school year a fire hazard required elimination of a stairwell in Dickinson High School. The construction work caused fine cement powder to linger in the air. He complained and they tried to do the work after hours. However, he began to experience allergy symptoms and upper respiratory infections, and was consequently out a lot. In January 1989 he was subjected to a lye spray which burned his throat. In March 1989 he got the flu and was sick through Easter vacation. His knee no longer seemed to be a problem. During the 1989-90 school year he got the flu in late November/early December. During the 1990-91 school year he did not have any particular health problems; he had an occasional cold or stomach virus. In January 1992 he had the flu; in March 1992 he had bronchitis and was out for two weeks. During the 1992-93 school year he had the flu in November and he went to the nurse on December 15 for bronchitis. He was sick through Christmas 1992.

Faccone testified that the 1993-94 school year was one of his worst years, healthwise. He had bronchitis in November, suffered a relapse in December, and had the flu at the end of December. During the 1994-95 school year, his breathing was affected by the construction that was going on at Snyder High School. The lockers were being redone, which required soldering, and they used a dangerous paint. The airborne lead came into his room, and, at his request, his class was moved to the auditorium for two weeks, where there was no chalkboard. He was absent following an incident on November 21, 1994, during which smoke permeated the building, and again after he had a reaction to the strong glue used in redoing the locker room with new pipe. He said he was allergic to "all the stuff."

At the beginning of the 1995-96 school year, Ryan asked the male teachers to help retrieve the math books, which were stacked from floor to ceiling. Faccone climbed on a table and grabbed a box of books. As he stepped down, he felt something burst in his knee. He was not sure that he was injured and continued to work. His foot swelled up and was unstable. Mr. Pekarsky, the vice principal, had a conference with Faccone at the beginning of October regarding Faccone's six days of absence. Faccone told him that he had been injured, that he had been to the doctor (the doctor believed it was a sprain), and that his knee was getting worse. Faccone said that he would try to work. Faccone complained to the administration that he had to work on different sides of the building and had difficulty walking to the classrooms, and also that hall duty was hard for him. He reported the incident with the books to the school nurse in October. However, in mid-November his problem of walking from room to room was still not resolved. He went out on sick leave on November 17 due to the school accident. The principal told him that it was "convenient" for him to be out for a school accident, and Faccone concluded that he had been called a liar. The board refused to agree that he could see Dr. Tolentino, but he went to Dr. Tolentino anyway. He also agreed to see Dr. Steinway, the doctor the board recommended. Steinway seemed to understand the problem. An MRI showed partial tears of ligaments. Respondent did not agree with Dr. Steinway that it was an old injury. Therapy did not improve the condition, and he asked Steinway to do exploratory surgery. A diagnosis of anterior cruciate ligament was made, and surgery was performed in May 1996. Faccone contended that the surgery should have been authorized prior to that time and that he had to wait for therapy. He was also advised that he would need reconstructive surgery.

Faccone contends that his knee is "shot," making him crippled at forty-five years old, and nobody cares. He was advised that Oliver had ordered that his sick leave be considered personal illness and not a school accident. He believes that the administration has been after him for years and contended that his attendance problem was their fault. They knew that he was going to be out sick, but did nothing to help the students. He said that he is very concerned about his students, and believes that if he has reconstructive surgery, he can still do his job.

On cross-examination, Faccone specified that his knee "popped" on September 6, 1995 (the second day of the school year). He was out sick because of his knee on September 18 and 20. He did not report the accident because he believed it was a sprain and tried to tolerate the situation. He agreed that he had a conference with Oliver, but contended that he had not told Oliver that he would try to improve his attendance. He reported the knee injury to the school nurse as a school accident. He agreed that he had been told to improve his attendance over the years, but said he was not told it was a problem.

Faccone claimed that he told Mr. DeCosta, now head of the math department, about his knee injury first, and two weeks later told Mr. Pekarsky, and then finally told Oliver. The school nurse referred him to Dr. Boylan, who sent him to Dr. Steinway. He had requested authorization to go to Dr. Tolentino, but Tolentino was not approved on the workers' compensation carrier list and the board refused to pay for Faccone's MRI. He received approval to go to Dr. Steinway and had surgery two weeks later. He admitted that Steinway told him that he had had as much treatment as was necessary and that he could return to work. He contended, however, that he was too young to go back to work wearing a brace, and that Steinway finally agreed that he has a legitimate problem. On questioning by this judge, respondent indicated that he could give going back to work a "shot"; he would have to wear a brace and would require additional surgery. He could return to work depending on the results of that surgery. He contended that most of his absences were the board's fault.

Discussion

Petitioner filed tenure charges of chronic and excessive absenteeism against respondent, Michael Faccone, employed by the district as a math teacher. The charges were supported by respondent's attendance records.

The respondent has had knee injuries and numerous bouts with allergies, flu, colds and bronchitis. Respondent argues that most of his absences were attributable to those conditions, especially the knee injuries. There is clearly a question as to whether the respondent's knee problems are under control or able to be controlled by surgery.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, which governs dismissals of tenured teachers such as the respondent, provides in relevant part that:

> No person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation,
>
> > (a) if he is . . . under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency in the public school system of the state . . . .
>
> except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause.
> [Emphasis added.]

A survey of the relevant case law indicates that chronic or excessive absenteeism has been found to constitute both "incapacity" and "unbecoming conduct," within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, such as to warrant dismissal from employment. It has also been held that chronic and excessive absenteeism amounts to "just cause" under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, such as to warrant dismissal from employment. Trenton Bd. of Educ. v. Williamson, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 7335-85 (Apr. 14, 1986), aff'd, Comm'r of Educ. (May 28, 1986).

In In re Tenure Hearing of Reilly, 1977 S.L.D. 403, the Commissioner of Education affirmed the dismissal of a teacher, on grounds of incapacity and conduct unbecoming a teacher, whose absences ranged from 5 to 149 days a year over a ten-year period, notwithstanding the claim that most of the absences were in connection with a physical ailment plaguing the teacher. See also Malley v. Board of Educ. of Pequannock Township, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 1858-86 (Nov. 19, 1986), aff'd, Comm'r of Educ. (Dec. 29, 1986), aff'd, State Bd. of Educ. (April 1, 1987); In re Tenure Hearing of DeKrafft, 1981 S.L.D. 1308, aff'd, State Bd. of Educ., 1982 S.L.D. 1470, aff'd, No. A-4641-81T2 (App. Div. May 4, 1983).

With respect to determining what constitutes chronic or excessive absenteeism, it must be pointed out that the administrative law judge (ALJ) in In re Tenure Hearing of Sheets, 1979 S.L.D. 790, 798, rev'd, 1979 S.L.D. 800, rev'd, 1980 S.L.D. 1536, held that, "The point at which absenteeism is judged to be chronic falls within the prerogative and discretionary authority of the Board [of Education] subject to a determination by the Commissioner of Education in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 [which provides the Commissioner with jurisdiction to hear and determine all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws]."

The rationale underlying the principle that chronic or excessive absenteeism is conduct which warrants dismissal has been articulated in various ways. The ALJ in Williamson, in rather conclusive fashion, held that "[t]here is no question that repeated and excessive absenteeism of regular teachers poses a threat to the integrity of the educational process." Williamson, supra, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 7335-85 at 4, citing Angelucci v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 1980 S.L.D. 1066.

In Reilly, the rationale was more fully set forth by the Commissioner: "Frequent absences of teachers from regular classroom learning experiences disrupt the continuity of the instruction process. The benefit of regular classroom instruction is lost and cannot be entirely regained, even by extra effort, when the regular teacher returns to the classroom. Consequently, many pupils who do not have the benefit of their regular classroom teacher frequently experience great difficulty in achieving the maximum benefit of schooling. . . . The regular contact of the pupils with their assigned teacher is vital to this process." Reilly, supra, 1977 S.L.D. at 414; see also Meli v. Board of Educ. of Burlington County Vocational-Technical Sch., 1984 S.L.D. 906, 913, 919, aff'd, 1984 S.L.D. 921, wherein the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that "[c]ommon sense dictates that a teacher's continued absence must, at some point, have a negative impact upon her pupils even if a board of education is unable to prove the relationship between a teacher's attendance and pupil progress."

A similar result was reached in In re Tenure Hearing of Green, State Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, 1991 S.L.D. 1103, 1111, aff'd, 1991 S.L.D. 1116, wherein the ALJ held that "the conclusion is inescapable that respondent's chronic and excessive absenteeism to so extreme a degree seriously disrupted continuity of the instructional process in her classroom. The degree and the repetitiveness of such absenteeism of itself is sufficient ground for removal."

Moreover, chronic or excessive absenteeism may be found to warrant removal even where the absences in question were for legitimate medical or health reasons. Malley, supra, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 1858-86 at 14, referring to Trautwein v. Board of Educ. of Bound Brook, No. A2773-78 (App. Div. April 8, 1980), certif. denied, 84 N.J. 469 (1980); see also Reilly, supra, 1977 S.L.D. 403, wherein the dismissal was affirmed notwithstanding a claim that the teacher had been suffering from chronic respiratory ailments during most leaves of absence; Sheets, supra, 1980 S.L.D. 1536, in which the dismissal was affirmed despite the teacher's claim of having suffered from bronchitis, anxiety and depression, and/or hypertension during the periods of absence in question.

In Angelucci, a case dealing with the withholding of salary increments on account of chronic or excessive absenteeism, the Commissioner offered an explanation for this seeming indifference to the problems of teachers: "The Commissioner can only sympathize with teachers who suffer from debilitating illness but cannot agree that the continued absence of any teacher has no effect on the pupils. If such be true, the Commissioner is constrained to wonder the need for the presence of the teacher at all, which wonderment reduces to a legal absurdity." Angelucci, supra, 1980 S.L.D. at 1078; see also Green, supra, 1991 S.L.D. at 1119, quoting In re Tenure Hearing of Grossman, 1972 S.L.D. 144, 161, wherein the Commissioner pointed out that while "a school district has a responsibility to teachers who are plagued with illness and have medical problems . . . the overarching responsibility of the Commissioner and the local Board of Education is to the children." In light of the foregoing, it appears that the respondent in the case at bar may not rely on the fact that most of his absences were due to a physiological ailment as an argument in mitigation of the penalty of dismissal.

In sum, excessive or chronic absenteeism of a tenured teacher, even if related to legitimate medical or health problems, has been held to constitute "incapacity," "unbecoming conduct," and/or "just cause" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, so as to warrant dismissal from employment.

I have considered the evidence in the instant case and I am of the view that dismissal is warranted. As pointed out by petitioner, there can be no doubt that respondent's absences from his teaching duties were chronic and excessive. He was absent for virtually the entire 1985-86 school year due to a knee injury suffered at work and absent for an extended period during the 1986-87 school year. His attendance record thereafter reveals a pattern of absences which continued even during the years when his knee was healed and had become strong and sturdy. Respondent's absences from 1987-88 through 1994-95 ranged from a "low" of 17 days to a high of 37 days. In the 1995-96 school year, he was absent on another leave for a reinjury to his knee which occurred on September 6, 1995, but which was not reported to the school nurse until October 16, 1995.

Further, and as pointed out by petitioner, even though most of respondent's absences may be presumed to be due to legitimate causes, they nonetheless had a serious impact upon the students and the instructional process. The testimony of Ms. Ryan and Ms. Oliver indicates the significant deleterious effect of respondent's absences. Clearly, Faccone's absences caused the students to lose continuity in instruction. In fact, respondent's students felt such a loss of instruction in mathematics that they wrote a letter to the principal pleading for a permanent teacher whose attendance would be reliable. Thus, while I believe that Faccone's absences may in fact have been due to his knee problems, allergy problems, etc., the important factor here is the effect of his illnesses and resulting absenteeism on the students. Clearly, since substitute teachers are not required to be certified to teach mathematics, as testified to by petitioner's witnesses, respondent's absences deprived his students of the benefit of his expertise, obviously necessary to their education.

Moreover, it is clear that respondent had been given more than sufficient notice and warning of dissatisfaction with his record of attendance. As pointed out by petitioner, respondent's own testimony at the hearing on his increment withholding for the 1989-90 school year due to unsatisfactory ratings indicates his awareness that one of the reasons for the unsatisfactory ratings was his 97 days of absence in the preceding school year. In the years following that increment withholding, reports of his classroom observations, annual evaluation reports and memos from the school principal repeatedly noted the need to improve his attendance. He was warned in February 1995 that his increment might be withheld if his pattern of absences continued, and when he nevertheless subsequently took several days of absence for personal illness, his increment was in fact withheld for the 1995-96 school year due to excessive absenteeism. I agree with petitioner that since increment withholding is the most severe action short of dismissal that a school district can take against a tenured teacher, it is absurd to suggest that respondent had not been warned and made aware of the seriousness of his absenteeism problem.

Despite the 1995 increment withholding, respondent showed no improvement in his attendance the next school year. He returned to school on September 5, 1995, and was absent for personal business on September 8, 1995, and again on September 14, 1995. During the next four weeks, he was sporadically absent for personal illness until October 16, 1995, on which date he reported having been injured at work six weeks previously and had a conference with the principal about his absences. He was absent the next day and continuously thereafter. Clearly, he was aware of the concerns of the district and the necessity to improve his attendance. However, his record does not reflect the necessary improvement for the continued success of his students.

Respondent argues that at no time did any of petitioner's agents consider the reasons for respondent's absences. He contends that all of his absences were due to either his work-related knee injuries, the refusal of the board of education to authorize treatment for those injuries, or his allergic reactions to materials being used in construction work at the schools. Respondent contends that the problems of continuity in instruction would not have occurred if petitioner had provided respondent with appropriate medical treatment and a non-toxic atmosphere in which to work. Moreover, respondent contends that he cannot be held responsible for the lack of availability of quality substitute teachers. In sum, respondent blames the district for all of his absences and alleges that his termination is unwarranted.

I must agree with petitioner that respondent's attempt to blame the district for all of his absences is unconvincing and of no help to respondent. I am in agreement that the district was not responsible for most of the absences that respondent mentions. Clearly, the district was not responsible when respondent was absent to transport his children for medical treatment, and the district did not cause his stomach flues and colds. Moreover, the district apparently offered medical treatment to respondent, and cannot be held responsible for his refusal to avail himself of it. Respondent also has not proven to the undersigned judge that his allergies and/or knee problems were caused by petitioner.

In any event, although respondent may very well have been physically and/or medically unable to report to work on many of the days he was absent, the result of those absences cannot be ignored. As noted above, the schools were created not for the benefit of the teachers, but for the benefit of the pupils and the resulting benefit to their parents and the community at large. While I am not indifferent to Faccone's problems, I am compelled to stress that a teacher's purpose is to benefit the pupils. Thus, the effect of Faccone's absences on those pupils must be considered. Clearly, Faccone's effectiveness in providing instruction to his students has been seriously impaired by his poor attendance. Respondent's attendance record shows a pattern of absenteeism that has been long-term, persistent and chronic. Moreover, it should be noted that respondent continues to have pain in his knee; he claims that he still needs surgery and is unsure whether he could presently return to teaching without such surgery. It is merely his hope that with the surgery he would be able to return to teaching.

Based on the above, I believe that Faccone can no longer serve the needs of the district in the necessary manner. Faccone has been unable to improve his attendance in the past, and with a seemingly still unresolved knee problem, there is no indication that his attendance would improve if he were to return to work now. Considering the educational needs of the students, I CONCLUDE that respondent's chronic and excessive absenteeism warrants his dismissal.

Order

Based upon the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, I ORDER that Michael Faccone be removed from his position as a math teacher, a tenured position, with the State-Operated School District of Jersey City.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF MICHAEL FACCONE,	:
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY,	:	DECISION
HUDSON COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions and the replies thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. However, in that respondent's exceptions are a verbatim reiteration of his post-hearing arguments before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), the Commissioner does not herein recount said arguments.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which did not include a copy of the transcript of the hearing before the OAL, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the District has demonstrated by a preponderance of credible evidence that respondent is guilty of excessive absenteeism, and that said absenteeism has adversely impacted its operations. The District has further proven its efforts to fairly notify respondent of his absenteeism problem. However, as the ALJ aptly noted, respondent "has been unable to improve his attendance in the past, and with a seemingly still unresolved knee problem, there is no indication that his attendance would improve if he were to return to work now." (Initial Decision at p. 17)

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. Respondent is terminated from his tenured position as a mathematics teacher in the District as of the date of this decision, and this matter will be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for action as it deems appropriate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF CAROL SCUDILLO, :

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

OF GARFIELD, BERGEN COUNTY. : DECISION

JUNE 10, 1997

IN THE MATTER OF	:	Before the
CAROL SCUDILLO,	:	School Ethics Commission
Garfield Board of Education, Bergen County	:	Docket No. C14-93
	:	DECISION

The above matter arises from a petition by the School Ethics Commission to find Carol Scudillo in violation of the School Ethics Act for activity she undertook when she served as a member of the Garfield Board of Education in 1993.

Administrative Law Judge Arnold Samuels fully set forth the procedural history of the case. Thus, the Commission does not need to repeat it herein. However, the Commission adds that after the Administrative Law Judge mailed the decision to the parties and advised them that they had 13 days to file exceptions to the decision, the Commission received timely exceptions from Carol Scudillo. It also received a timely reply to the exceptions from Deputy Attorney General Arlene Lutz. After consideration of the file documents, and the exceptions and replies thereto, the Commission now adopts the initial decision with the modifications discussed below.

The Administrative Law Judge found that respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the School Ethics Act when she cast the crucial vote to hire her son-in-law as Superintendent of Schools for the Garfield school district. He stated that she voted in a matter in which "she had a personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair her objectivity or independence of judgment" in clear violation of the Act. In arriving at an appropriate penalty for the violation, he noted that the penalties of suspension and removal were moot because the respondent was no longer serving as a board member. However, he noted that the penalties of reprimand and censure could still be imposed. He recommended the more severe penalty of censure.

The Commission's regulations at N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.2 define censure as:

> a formal public action read into the record of the School Ethics Commission to rebuke a school official who has been determined by the Commission to have been in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq.

The Commission's regulations further require that if the Commissioner of Education imposes a censure as the appropriate penalty:

> The Commissioner's Resolution of Censure shall be adopted at the Commission's meeting next following the affirmance of the sanction by the Commissioner and shall be read at the next public meeting of the district board of education following its adoption by the Commission and posted in such places as the board posts its public notices. [N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.19(c)(1)].

Respondent filed exceptions with the Commissioner on April 9, 1997. In those exceptions, respondent argues that the penalty imposed should be a reprimand rather than the censure recommended by the Administrative Law Judge. Respondent argues that she did not receive advice from the board attorney on whether it was appropriate for her to vote on the matter. In addition, she argues that the evidence does not show that she intended to violate the Act.

The Commission notes that the facts do show that respondent abstained from the vote when Mr. Cangiolosi's appointment came before the Garfield Board of Education for appointment as interim superintendent. At that time, it was clear that Mr. Cangiolosi had enough votes to be appointed without respondent's vote. The facts further show that respondent voted to approve Mr. Cangiolosi's appointment as superintendent when he needed her vote. Under these circumstances, the Commission concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's conclusion that censure is the appropriate penalty.

Respondent also cites the School Ethics Commission case, In the Matter of Matilda Touw, SEC Docket No. C16-96, to support her argument that a reprimand would be more appropriate than a censure in her case. The Commission finds the two cases to be very different factually. In Touw, the Commission reprimanded the respondent for having voted for her son's re-employment as head custodian. Her son was on a re-appointment list with many others for board approval. The board had re-appointed him for several years before the vote at issue. Ms. Touw did not cast the deciding vote and the board took only one vote to re-appoint the list. In contrast, Ms. Scudillo voted when the sole item before the board was her son-in-law's appointment as superintendent. There were no other appointments considered simultaneously. Further, as stated previously, respondent abstained on the vote when her son-in-law did not need her vote to be approved, but voted when her vote was crucial to his appointment.

For the foregoing reasons, the Touw case does not support the lowering of the penalty in the present case. Rather, the Commission would recommend a higher penalty than censure if respondent were still on the board. Given the circumstances in the present case, the Commission finds it is imperative that the penalty imposed be made publicly. Ms. Scudillo and the board secretary may be the only persons to know that a reprimand issued against her. Further, she may plan to run for a seat on the board in the future. There should be no question that her conduct was a clear violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) and the general prohibition that board members must avoid conduct which is in violation of the public trust or which creates a justifiable impression among the public that such trust is being violated. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-22(a).

Last, the Commission notes that the Administrative Law Judge sets forth in his statement of the procedural history of this case and his citation of two prior cases of the Commission, that the Commissioner of Education had affirmed the substantive findings of a violation by the respondent, although he may have mitigated or augmented the penalty. The School Ethics Act sets forth that after the Commission states in writing its findings of fact and conclusions of law, "[t]he Commissioner shall then act on the commission's recommendation regarding the sanction." N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The Act further sets forth that any appeal of the Commission's determination regarding a violation of this act and of the commissioner's decision regarding the sanction shall be to the State Board of Education in accordance with Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(d). Pursuant to these statutory provisions, the Commissioner of Education's review is limited to the sanction only. He does not make a ruling regarding the Commission's substantive findings of a violation.

DECISION

For the foregoing reasons, the School Ethics Commission adopts the initial decision that Carol Scudillo violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the School Ethics Act by voting for her son-in-law's appointment as superintendent of schools in her district with the above modifications. The Commission agrees that since the penalties of removal and suspension are moot because Ms. Scudillo no longer sits on the board, the highest penalty that it can impose is a censure. Therefore, the Commission agrees with the Administrative Law Judge's assessment of penalty and recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of censure.

This matter shall be transmitted to the Commissioner of Education for action on the Commission's sanction recommendation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29. Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which the Commission's decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written comments on the recommended sanction. The parties must direct their comments to the Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, 100 Riverview Plaza, CN 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EEC 4868-95

Agency Dkt. No. SEC #C14-93

IN RE CAROL SCUDILLO

Arlene Goldfus Lutz, Deputy Attorney General, for petitioner, School Ethics Commission (Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Joseph F. Skinner, Esq., for respondent, Carol Scudillo (Purcell, Ries, Shannon, Mulcahy & O'Neill, attorneys)

Record Closed: December 23, 1996 Decided: March 20, 1997

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

This matter involves an action by the petitioner, School Ethics Commission, to impose sanctions against the respondent, Carol Scudillo, for violation of the "School Ethics Act" (Act), when she served as a member of the Board of Education of Garfield, Bergen County, New Jersey, in 1993.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Following the filing of a complaint with the School Ethics Commission (Commission) against the respondent by a citizen of the city of Garfield, the Commission found that Ms. Scudillo had violated the provisions of the School Ethics Act, N.J.A.C. 18A:12-21 to -34, as a member of the Garfield Board of Education (Board). The Commission recommended that the respondent be reprimanded and suspended from the Garfield Board for three months.

On March 30, 1994, the Commissioner of Education affirmed the substantive findings of violations by the respondent, but revised the penalty to removal from the position.

The matter was appealed to the State Board of Education, which held, in a decision dated January 4, 1995, that the matter was a contested case, requiring an adjudicatory hearing in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act (APA. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-9(c); N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(a). Without any finding on the merits of the allegations or the penalty, the State Board of Education remanded the case to the School Ethics Commission for transmittal to the Office of Administrative (OAL) for hearing and determination in accordance with the APA, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was filed in the OAL in May 1995.

An initial hearing date, January 8, 1996, was adjourned because of a snowstorm and the closing of State offices. In May 1996, the petitioner filed a motion for summary decision, but in a status conference held on June 3, 1996, the parties seemingly arrived at a mutually satisfactory resolution of the dispute. However, before the School Ethics Commission had an opportunity to consider the settlement, the respondent rejected it. Therefore, counsel filed papers in opposition to the summary decision application in July 1996, and a hearing date was fixed for December 23, 1996.

When the hearing began on December 23, 1996, counsel agreed that no genuine issues of disputed fact existed, and that since both parties had filed briefs, the matter could be treated and decided as if cross-motions for summary decision had been filed.

Therefore, without the need for any testimony, counsel engaged in oral argument on December 23, 1996, and the record closed on that date. An order was entered extending the time for issuance of the initial decision until March 23, 1997.

ISSUES

Two issues are to be decided:

1. Whether the respondent violated the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 to -34.

2. If so, what penalty is appropriate?

FACTS

There are no disputed or contested facts in this matter. The following relevant and material facts have been abstracted from the papers on file:

The respondent, Carol Scudillo, was a member of the Board of Education of the City of Garfield in 1993. At that time, she was also a member of the personnel committee of the Board, which dealt with staffing matters.

The respondent's daughter was a long-term teaching staff member in the Garfield district. In July 1993 and thereafter respondent's daughter was married to Thomas Cangialosi, who was also a long-term teaching staff member in Garfield.

On or about June 1, 1993, the Garfield superintendent of schools resigned from his position. The Board decided to appoint an interim or acting superintendent, pending a search to fill the position permanently.

The personnel committee of the Board consisted of three members, including the respondent. Because of the importance of the position to be filled, both on an interim and a permanent basis, the committee referred the matter to the full Board for discussion and decision.

Two candidates were considered for the interim position, one of whom was Thomas Cangialosi, the respondent's son-in-law.

The full Board consisted of nine members, and the personnel decisions to be made required a majority vote of five. The order of voting placed the respondent in the seventh position on the roster. When the vote was taken to appoint the interim superintendent, the first five members voted affirmatively. The resolution had already been carried with the first five votes, and the respondent abstained from voting when her name was called.

The acting superintendent's appointment was due to expire on September 30, 1993. Thomas Cangialosi and one other person, both of whom possessed the necessary qualifications, were candidates for the permanent position. The Board convened on September 28, 1993, for purposes of voting on and appointing the new, permanent superintendent of schools.

The respondent's son-in-law, Thomas Cangialosi, was nominated for the position. The motion to appoint Mr. Cangialosi was carried with five affirmative votes out of nine. The respondent cast one of the affirmative votes. Two members voted no, one was absent and one was excused. The respondent's vote was one of the five needed by the Board to pass the resolution. The attorney for the Board was present during the voting for both the interim and permanent appointments. The attorney gave no advice to the respondent relating to the advisability of voting or not voting, and the respondent did not request any such advice. The respondent's son-in-law was appointed to the permanent position.

In October 1993, a citizen of the city of Garfield, Maria Scannella (complainant) filed a complaint with the New Jersey School Ethics Commission alleging that the respondent violated the School Ethics Act by voting to appoint her son-in-law to the position of superintendent of schools. That charge is the sole subject of the instant dispute. A second allegation of the complainant, that Ms. Scudillo had been soliciting sales for her glove business among school employees, was not addressed or pursued by the Commission in its motion for summary decision, and therefore is not an issue to be dealt with or decided in this decision.

The respondent is no longer a member of the Garfield Board of Education. She lost her bid for reelection in April 1995.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 to -34, became effective on April 15, 1992. The Act prohibits conflicts of interest, requires disclosure of financial information, and applies to school officials throughout the state, including elected school board members.

In promulgating this act, the Legislature broadly described the public policy and purpose of the legislation:

> In our representative form of government it is essential that the conduct of members of local boards of education and local school administrators hold the respect and confidence of the people. These board members and administrators must avoid conduct which is in violation of their public trust or which creates a justifiable impression among the public that such trust is being violated.

[N.J.S.A. 18A:12-22(a).]

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24 delineates conduct by school officials that is prohibited by the Act. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) can be applied to this dispute:

> No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial or personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment.

The specific inquiry to be addressed, in deciding whether the respondent's vote for her son-in-law violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c), is whether she had a direct or indirect financial or personal involvement that might reasonably have been expected to impair her objectivity or independence of judgment. Any question relating to the "immediate family" portion of the subsection must be answered in the negative, because N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 defines "Member of immediate family" as "the spouse or dependent child of a school official residing in the same household." The respondent's son-in-law does not fit that definition.

The subsection of the Act referred to above does not require proof of prejudice in an action taken by a board member; it merely prohibits activity "that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment." N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c). See also N.J.S.A. 18A:12-22(a), requiring officials to avoid conduct that "creates a justifiable impression among the public that such trust is being violated." Thus, the Act prohibits a broad range of conduct, from conduct that involves direct, intentional financial gain, to conduct which creates a public perception of violation of the public trust.

Since the School Ethics Act was so recently enacted, and the Appellate Courts have yet to decide controversies that have arisen under the Act, other conflict of interest case law can be instructive. The Conflict of Interest Law (N.J.S.A. 52:13D-12 et seq.), the Local Government Ethics Law (N.J.S.A. 40A:9-22.1 et seq.), and the Municipal Land Use Law (N.J.S.A. 40:55D-1 et seq.) all provide penalties and/or sanctions for employees and officials who act in an official capacity for their personal interests. This case law provides a framework within which the language of the School Ethics Act may be placed.

In Aldom v. Borough of Roseland, 42 N.J. Super. 495, 503 (App. Div. 1956), the court held that in determining if the public official has breached the public trust, it is not necessary to prove that the public official engaged in fraud, dishonesty, loss to the public or was in fact influenced by his personal interests.

> The interest which disqualifies is not necessarily a direct pecuniary one, nor is the amount of such an interest of paramount importance. It may be indirect; it is such an interest as is covered by the moral rule: no man can serve two masters whose interests conflict. . . . And in the determination of the issue, too much refinement should not be engaged in by the courts in an effort to uphold the municipal action on the ground that his interest is so little or so indirect.
> [Aldom, supra, 42 N.J. Super. at 502.]

The courts have developed general guidelines for determining whether a conflict of interest reaches a threshold which requires action against the official. In the context of a zoning dispute, the New Jersey Supreme Court held that:

> The decision as to whether a particular interest is sufficient to disqualify is necessarily a factual one and depends upon the circumstances of the particular case. No definitive test can be devised. The question will always be whether the circumstances could reasonably be interpreted to show that they had the likely capacity to tempt the official to depart from his sworn public duty.
> [Van Itallie v. Franklin Lakes, 28 N.J. 258, 268 (1958) (citation omitted).]

The Court further noted that "[t]he citizens of a community have a right to expect that a public official in the performance of [her] duty will exercise [her] best judgment unaffected by anything which will inure to [her] personal advantage." Id. at 265.

More recently, the Supreme Court reaffirmed the Van Itallie test and attempted to clarify it further:

> A commentator has [described] four types of situations that require disqualification: (1) "Direct pecuniary interests," when an official votes on a matter benefiting the official's own property or affording a direct financial gain; (2) "Indirect pecuniary interests," when an official votes on a matter that financially benefits one closely tied to the official, such as an employer, or family member; (3) "Direct personal interest," when an official votes on a matter that benefits a blood relative or close friend in a non-financial way, but a matter of great importance, as in the case of a councilman's mother being in the nursing home subject to the zoning issue; and (4) "Indirect Personal Interest," when an official votes on a matter in which an individual's judgment may be affected because of membership in some organization and a desire to help that organization further its policies.
> [Wyzykowski v. Rizas, 132 N.J. 509, 525-26 (1993).]

The Court also noted that the term "personal involvement" as used in the Local Government Ethics Law (and in the School Ethics Law) instead of "personal interest" might extend the areas of disqualification of public officials. However, the Court did not attempt to construe the terms in its decision. Id. at 529.

In analyzing the application of the Act to the facts in the instant case, several other School Ethics Act cases may be instructive. In School Ethics Commission case CO2(c)-93, cited in Scannella v. Scudillo, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 190, 192, the Commission found probable cause where a district board member cast the deciding vote to appoint her employer to a vacant seat on the board, reasoning that there was a financial relationship between the board member and her employer.

Similarly, in In re Harrison, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 553, the Commission held that a new school board member, who voted for an extension for the construction of a new school while he was concurrently a partner in a firm subcontracted as the consulting structural engineer by the architect on the same project, violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c). The Commission found that Harrison's vote "create[d] an impression among the public that he cast this vote in self-interest rather than the interest of the public." 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) at 554. The Commission made this determination even though Harrison was new in the position, had not attended the board member training course, had an extremely remote connection to the project, and even sought and received a legal opinion before the vote. Id. at 557. The Commissioner of Education adopted the Commission's determination that a violation had occurred, but noted that the mitigating factors, as stated above, would serve to reduce the sanction from public censure to a reprimand.

Furthermore, intent is not a factor. It is not necessary to show that the board member intended to violate the Act or to achieve personal or financial gain. In Dilzer v. Sweet, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 132, the Commission found that a board member who solicited signatures for another candidate from teachers and others at a district school violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b),[1] and recommended a public censure. The Commission acknowledged Sweet's lack of intent and the lack of evidence of coercion, but noted that her act created "a perception that she violated the public trust." 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) at 134. Again, the Commissioner of Education relied on mitigating factors to reduce the sanction, but did not reject the Commission's conclusion. Id. at 135. Repeating the concept noted in Harrison, lack of intent or direct gain may serve to mitigate the sanction applied, but it apparently does not serve as a defense to the violation itself.

[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) states: "No school official shall use or attempt to use his official position to secure unwarranted privileges, advantages or employment for himself, members of his immediate family or others."

The School Ethics Commission has been enforcing the Act strictly. In its written decisions, the emphasis has continually been placed on the public perception of a violation of the public trust. As noted in the cases discussed above, the board member's intent and actual gain, if any, are not dispositive. The statute itself, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-22(a), clearly presents the public policy that the Legislature intended to further. Thus, any conduct on the part of a board member which may be interpreted by the public as suspect can be a violation of the Act.

In the instant matter, Ms. Scudillo had the opportunity to cast votes twice to appoint her son-in-law as superintendent of schools. In the first instance, on the vote to name him as acting superintendent, the respondent abstained only after it was clear that he had the votes needed to be appointed. See Respondent's Certification dated November 20, 1993. Approximately a month later, Ms. Scudillo voted with the majority to appoint her son-in-law as permanent superintendent. Her vote was needed to carry the motion. Viewed by any member of the public, this conduct would reasonably give rise to speculation that a conflict of interest existed, because Mr. Cangialosi was married to the respondent's daughter, and she presumably had a personal involvement with both her daughter and her son-in-law. This relationship is sufficient to "reasonably be expected to impair [her] objectivity or independence of judgment." N.J.A.C. 18A:12-24(c). This was especially true since the Board considered only one other candidate and did not conduct a search outside of the district.

Furthermore, the superintendent of schools, as the chief executive officer of the district, is expected to work closely with and report directly to the Board, thus increasing the possibility of future questionable or preferential conduct. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20(b) defines a tenured superintendent's general powers and duties as follows:

> [The superintendent] shall be the chief executive and administrative officer of the board or boards of education employing him and shall have general supervision over all aspects, including the fiscal operations and instructional programs, of the schools of the district or districts under rules and regulations prescribed by the State board and shall keep himself informed as to their condition and > progress and shall report thereon, from time to time, to, and as directed by, the board and he shall have such other powers and perform such other duties as may be prescribed by the board or boards employing him.

> He shall have a seat on the board or boards of education employing him and the right to speak on all matters at meetings of the board or boards but shall have no vote.

Particularly because the superintendent acts as the chief executive officer of the district, an inseparable relationship exists between the board and him or her. This is not a judgment call or a subjective test. As a member of the Board, Ms. Scudillo was abridged to refrain from any conduct which "creates a justifiable impression among the public that [the public] trust is being violated." N.J.S.A. 18A:12-22(a). By voting for her son-in-law for superintendent, the respondent gave the reasonable impression that the public trust might be violated.

Turning to the question of penalty, the Act provides that, following the hearing at the OAL, the School Ethics Commission will determine whether a violation has occurred or whether the complaint should be dismissed. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). If the Commission determines that the conduct is a violation of the Act, "the commission shall, by majority vote, recommend to the commissioner the reprimand, censure, suspension, or removal of the school official found to have violated this act." Ibid. The Act and the rules promulgated thereunder do not provide standards for determining the appropriate sanction. However, the regulations include definitions of "censure" and "reprimand":

> "Censure" means a formal public action read into the record of the School Ethics Commission to rebuke a school official who has been determined by the Commission to have been in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq.
>
> . . . .
>
> "Reprimand" as a sanction imposed by the Commissioner upon recommendation of the School Ethics Commission shall consist of a letter from the Commission rebuking a > school official for having been found to have breached the standards of conduct prescribed by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq.

> [N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.2.]

To date, no known cases have been decided which provide examples of penalties imposed on officials who no longer hold the office or position. The Local Government Ethics Law provides for fines of $100 to $500 for appointed or elected officials found guilty of ethics violations. N.J.S.A. 40A:9-22.10. In addition, disciplinary action, including removal, suspension and demotion, may be taken against appointed officers or employees who violate the Local Government Ethics Law. N.J.S.A. 40A:9-22.11. The Conflict of Interest Law, covering State officers and employees, provides for similar fines for ethical violations, along with suspensions of up to one year. N.J.S.A. 52:13D-21(i). In addition, conduct which is determined to constitute a willful and continuous disregard of the provisions of the act or of a code of ethics may be sanctioned by removal from office and disqualification from public office for up to five years.

Since neither the School Ethics Act itself nor the case law provides guidance for determining the appropriate sanction, once a board member has left office, comments by administrative law judges or the School Ethics Commission that have accompanied several penalty recommendations are indicative of the Commission's view of the purpose to be served by imposing sanctions. For example, in Sweet, supra, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) at 134, in recommending censure, the Commission stated: "The Commission wants it known that such actions violate the School Ethics Act." In Irvington Municipal Council v. Steele, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 123, 131, the Commission reasoned that suspension of a board member and public censure of a board was appropriate, because "[I]n Irvington, the public perception is that politics prevails as usual . . . ." Again, in Harrison, supra, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) at 555, the Commission recommended censure, because "[t]he public should be aware that the Commission will not allow such a situation to exist."

Comparing Ms. Scudillo's conduct to that of other individuals disciplined under the Act, the penalty of sanction, suspension or removal from office would be in keeping with the Commission's past actions. Censure or reprimand has been imposed in addition to suspension or removal. However, in the instant matter the respondent remained in her position for more than one and one-half years after the vote that constituted the violation charged. She completed her term and was not re-elected. Therefore, imposition of a sanction such as suspension or removal is moot.

However, an analysis of Ms. Scudillo's conduct leads to a conclusion that under the circumstances, her vote to appoint her son-in-law as superintendent of a school district is certainly more serious than the Sweet and Harrison cases. The respondent appointed a person with whom she had a personal involvement to the highest position in the district. Furthermore, the superintendent of schools is expected to work closely with the Board, thus increasing the possibility of future questionable conduct. It is also noted that the respondent abstained from voting when the temporary appointment was made after a majority vote had already been cast. On the other hand, when the time came for the more important vote for the permanent appointment, Ms. Scudillo did vote, and she cast the fifth and deciding affirmative vote. Therefore, public censure, as defined in N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.2, is the appropriate sanction.

CONCLUSIONS

Based on the foregoing, it is CONCLUDED that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c). She acted in her official capacity in a manner in which she had a direct or indirect financial or personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair her objectivity or independence of judgment. Under the circumstances, her conduct created a justifiable impression among the public that the public trust was being violated.

It is also CONCLUDED that the sanction of public censure is most appropriate.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that the petitioner's application for summary decision is granted, and the respondent's cross-motion is denied.

It is further ORDERED that the Commission should sanction the respondent by issuance of a public censure for violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c).

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION and with the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29, the School Ethics Commission has jurisdiction to determine whether a violation of the School Ethics Act occurred. If it concludes that the conduct constitutes a violation of the School Ethics Act, it shall recommend an appropriate penalty to the Commissioner of Education. The Commissioner of Education shall issue the final decision in this matter.

The recommendations of this decision as to whether the conduct constitutes a violation of the School Ethics Act may be adopted, modified or rejected by the SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION. If the School Ethics Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision.

If the School Ethics Commission determines that a violation has occurred, it shall issue a written decision recommending to the Commissioner of Education an appropriate penalty and shall forward the record, including this recommended decision and its decision, to the Commissioner of Education. The Commissioner of Education may subsequently render a final decision as to the appropriate penalty. If the Commissioner of Education does not render a final decision within forty-five (45) days of its receipt of this initial decision, and unless such time period is otherwise extended, the recommended decision of the School Ethics Commission shall become the final decision.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION, DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, CN 500, Trenton, NJ 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

COMMISSION DKT. NO. C14-93
AGENCY DKT. NO. 140-4/97

IN THE MATTER OF CAROL SCUDILLO,	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

The record of this matter, the decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the decision of the School Ethics Commission adopting the decision of the OAL, including the recommended penalty of censure, have been reviewed. This matter comes before the Commissioner to impose a sanction upon respondent, member of the Garfield Board of Education, based upon the findings of fact and conclusions of law of the OAL and the Commission that she violated the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., by voting to hire her son-in-law as superintendent of schools. Upon issuance of the decision of the School Ethics Commission, respondent was accorded thirteen days from the mailing of such decision to file written comments on the recommended penalty for the Commissioner's consideration. Respondent's comments were filed in accordance with such timeline.

Respondent's comments are a verbatim recitation of her exceptions to the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) filed with the School Ethics Commission. In that such arguments were fully considered by the Commission in reaching its determination, and in that the Commissioner concurs, for the reasons clearly articulated in the Commission's decision, that these arguments are unpersuasive in support of a mitigated penalty in this matter, respondent's comments are not reiterated herein.

Upon a thorough review of the entire record herein, the Commissioner determines to accept the Commission's recommendation that censure is the appropriate penalty in this matter.*

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Carol Scudillo be censured as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* In making the within determination, the Commissioner was mindful that the penalties of removal and suspension were unavailable as potential sanction options in that respondent is no longer a sitting board member.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JOHN SIANO, SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF NORTH BERGEN,	:	DECISION
HUDSON COUNTY,	:

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges for chronic absenteeism and other just cause against respondent custodian.

ALJ concluded that the Board proved by a preponderance of credible evidence the tenure charges against respondent. ALJ found that respondent had been notified of his problem of excessive absenteeism but failed to rectify it, adversely affecting the students and staff. ALJ ordered respondent's dismissal from employment.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own and directed that respondent be terminated from his position as of the date of this decision.

Record Closed: February 15, 1997 Decided: April 1, 1997

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about July 22, 1996, petitioner North Bergen Board of Education certified charges of chronic and excessive absenteeism against respondent John Siano, a tenured custodian employed by the district. On August 12, 1996, respondent filed an answer denying the charges and requesting that the tenure charges be dismissed. An amended answer was filed on August 15, 1996. On August 19, 1996, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on August 22, 1996, and a telephone prehearing conference was scheduled for September 24, 1996. During the prehearing conference, the issues were isolated and a hearing was scheduled for December 10, 11 and 16, 1996, at the Office of Administrative Law. The matter was ultimately heard on December 11, 16, and 18, 1996. Witnesses who testified and exhibits marked into evidence are listed in the attached appendix.

Facts

The essentially undisputed facts may be summarized as follows:

1. On December 4, 1989, respondent was hired by the North Bergen Board of Education as a custodian. Respondent became tenured in that capacity on or about March 4, 1990.

2. Respondent was a union member with contract terms embodied in a collective bargaining agreement effective July 1, 1992, through June 30, 1994 (P-1), and a successor agreement dated July 1, 1994, though June 30, 1997 (P-2).

3. Pursuant to both contracts, employees receive 12 days of paid sick leave each year, cumulative from year to year. In addition, an employee who is ill for 3 days or more might be required to submit a doctor's certificate certifying such illness. The school physician may examine an employee who is absent for a period of more than one week by reason of illness. Pursuant to the contract, sick leave is defined as "absence from post or duty because of personal disability due to illness or injury (non-job related) or as a result of medical documented contagious disease in the employee's immediate household." Any employee who exhibits a pattern of sick leave may be required by the Board to submit a physician's written statement certifying his/her disability. Abuse of sick time is cause for disciplinary action. In addition, the contract specifies that in the event of any extended verified illness which goes beyond accumulated sick leave, an employee may be granted additional sick time, by Board approval at varying rates. The contract further specifies that if it is necessary for an employee to be absent or late he/she must notify the school at the earliest practical time, but in no event shall this notification be later than sixty minutes before he/she is scheduled to report to work. In addition, except in case of emergency, an employee who is absent for 2 consecutive days or more and who does not notify the school shall forfeit pay for those days.

4. Respondent was absent in excess of 300 days from the 1992-93 school year through the 1995-96 school year (P-3; P-4).

5. More particularly, during the 1992-93 school year, respondent was absent in excess of 50 days.

6. During the 1993-94 school year, respondent was absent in excess of 14 days.

7. During the 1994-95 school year, respondent was absent in excess of 170 days.

8. During the 1995-96 school year, respondent was absent in excess of 90 days.

9. Concerns about Siano's attendance and its disruptive influence on the ability to provide appropriate custodial services dates back to the 1991-92 school year. By memo dated May 26, 1992, Vincent Ascolese, assistant superintendent of business, wrote to John Siano indicating that they expected to receive a call the morning of the day when reporting illness.

Ascolese's memo further advised Siano that if he was out for 3 consecutive days they expected to receive a doctor's note. Ascolese informed Siano that he had used his 10 sick days for the year and that they would watch his absences for a continued pattern. P-8.

10. By letter dated November 4, 1992, Robert J. Dandorph, principal at the John F. Kennedy School, wrote to Vincent Ascolese complaining of Siano's atrocious attendance. Siano was copied on the letter. P-9.

11. By letter dated December 14, 1992, Carmine E. Pellechio, vice principal of John F. Kennedy School, wrote to Vincent Ascolese, indicating that since the last communication, dated November 4, 1992, Siano had continued his atrocious attendance and total disregard for Board policy, which requires an employee to call the Board when he or she is going to be absent. Pellechio indicated that Siano had not called to inform the Board of his absence, creating scheduling problems at night, and that the building was not properly cleaned for six nights. He indicated that prior discussions with Siano had been to no avail. P-10.

12. On or about December 15, 1992, Siano signed a memorandum to all maintenance and custodial personnel acknowledging receipt of the Board's policy for absenteeism and an employee's obligation to submit a doctor's certification when ill for 3 days or more and to call the school at least sixty minutes before the employee's scheduled report time.

13. By letter dated March 23, 1993, Principal Dandorph wrote to Ascolese complaining about Siano's continuing atrocious attendance and total disregard of the Board policy requiring that he call the Board when he is going to be absent. Dandorph further stated that the third floor of the school was a mess, that the constant substitutes for Siano's position were not adequate, and that teachers and parents were unhappy about the situation. P-11.

14. By memo dated March 25, 1993, John Kanzler advised John Duffy, Board secretary, that Siano had exceeded his sick and personal days for the 1993 school year with absences in every month since September 1992. He further indicated that the Board did not have a home address or telephone number for Siano. P-37.

15. By memorandum dated July 12, 1994, from Vincent Ascolese to Siano (P-13), respondent was notified of three improper actions that he took. He was advised that:

    a) On July 5, 1994, he punched in at 7:01 a.m. but no one was able to locate him until 10:40 a.m.
    b) On July 8, 1994, he took an unauthorized vacation day.
    c) On July 11, 1994, he punched in at 7:16 a.m. but left the premises to get a quart of milk. He had not returned as of 3:00 p.m. He was advised to discuss these situations with Ascolese.

16. By memorandum dated July 29, 1994, Siano was notified by Ascolese of his failure to follow the Board policy requiring him to call in sick before the start of his work shift on July 25, 26, 27 and 28. P-14.

17. By memorandum to Siano dated September 25, 1995, Siano was notified by Mike Duffy, assistant supervisor of custodians, of his failure to either show up for work for his new job assignment at John F. Kennedy School or call in sick on September 25, 1995. Siano was notified of the policy regarding calling in when absent or late. P-21.

18. By memo dated October 10, 1995, Duffy notified Siano about his failure to call into the switchboard when he was to be out sick. The memo indicated that this was the second time Siano had ignored this directive;

he had been spoken to when he failed to call in on September 25, 1995. P-22.

19. On December 8, 1995, Duffy wrote to John Siano informing him that he had an "alarming number of days out." (He was out 7 days from September 1995.) He indicated that when an employee is out an excessive number of days the building morale suffers. P-23.

20. A notice to all maintenance and custodial personnel was posted February 7, 1996. It advised, among other things, that everyone must call in when not reporting for work and it set forth the number to call. In addition, it advised that anyone not reporting for work on two consecutive days who did not call in would be written up. John Siano's name appeared next to those instructions. P-15.

21. By memorandum dated February 26, 1996, from Ascolese, Siano was notified of the procedures for reporting his absence and of work performance deficiencies. He was told that his duty is to protect the health and safety of the students by providing them with a clean atmosphere in which to be educated. P-16.

22. By letter to Siano dated February 26, 1996, John Duffy informed Siano that his attendance record needed improvement. He was advised to seek any medical attention that he required to improve his attendance record. Improvement in his attendance would avoid further action. P-19.

23. By memorandum dated April 18, 1996, to Ascolese, Duffy advised his supervisors of Siano's absenteeism. (Duffy indicated that Siano had used 17 sick days as of September 1995.) Duffy further notified his supervisors that Siano's attendance deficiency was taking a toll on the cleanliness of the building. P-25.

24. By memorandum dated April 24, 1996, to Ascolese, Duffy indicated that Siano had missed 21 days of work due to sick days since September 1995. Duffy again indicated that Siano's use of sick time was starting to take a toll on the cleanliness of the building, and he sought a review of Siano's past attendance. P-27.

25. By memorandum dated May 15, 1996, Duffy informed Ascolese that Siano had called in sick at 2:08 p.m., in direct violation of the contract. He reiterated that Siano's absences were having a negative effect upon morale in the building. Since he did not have a working telephone number for Siano, he could not contact Siano in the event of an emergency. P-26.

26. By memorandum dated May 20, 1996, Duffy informed Ascolese that Siano did not show up for a meeting and did not come to work on May 17, 1996. He pointed out that this followed a long pattern of not calling in when he did not show up for work. He stated that on 6 occasions he had to make the proper arrangements to cover Siano's floor at the last moment. He noted that he had instructed Siano not to return to work without a doctor's note for the 6 consecutive days out. P-28.

27. By memorandum dated May 17, 1996, Ascolese wrote to Siano indicating that Siano had missed a personnel conference which Siano had requested to discuss his frequent absenteeism. The memo stated that Siano failed to show up for conferences on May 10 and 17, 1996. P-17.

28. On May 21, 1996, Duffy completed an evaluation of Siano. He stated that Siano's attendance had hurt building morale. The evaluation has the notation, "not available for interview." P-18.

29. By memorandum dated May 30, 1996, Duffy wrote to Ascolese regarding Siano's failing to call in when out sick on May 29, 1996. This constituted the 34th day he had been out since 1995 and the 8th time that Siano had not called in. P-29.

30. By memorandum dated May 31, 1996, Duffy advised Ascolese that Siano neglected to call in when he was out on May 29 and 30, 1996. He indicated that Siano had been out sick 33 days and that the other custodians were complaining about the extra work they were required to do as a result of these absences. P-30.

31. By memorandum dated June 3, 1996, Duffy informed Ascolese that Siano had neglected to call in when he was out on May 29, 30 and 31, 1996. Noting that the contract provides that when an employee is absent for 2 consecutive days or more and does not notify the school he shall forfeit pay for those days, he requested that the Board enforce its policy in regard to Siano. He indicated that this failure to call in constituted the third in a row, "not counting the eight separate instances previous." P-31.

32. By memo dated June 4, 1996, Ascolese advised Siano that as of May 31, 1996, he had used up all his sick days and accumulated vacation. He indicated that Siano would not receive any compensation until he returned to work. Siano would not be allowed to return to work until he furnished Duffy with his home address and a telephone number so the Board could contact him. P-20.

33. On June 26, 1996, respondent was notified that tenure charges had been filed against him. They were scheduled for consideration on July 17, 1996. P-32.

34. On July 17, 1996, the Board of Education voted to certify tenure charges against respondent. P-33.

35. By letter dated June 29, 1996, Ausberto McKinney, M.D., advised Michael Duffy that he had examined Siano. McKinney found no abnormalities or evidence of a herniated disc. P-34.

Testimony

Vincent Ascolese, petitioner's assistant superintendent of business, testified that all custodians report indirectly to him. He explained that custodians are responsible to clean the buildings and maintain the interiors of the schools. They do light maintenance and report dangers. He stated that it is a very important position. There are safety concerns, and a classroom which is not clean creates a bad educational environment. A custodian's attendance record is very important. If a custodian is out, the district must pay other custodians to cover the area, and if the district cannot find anyone to take overtime, another custodian will have to do the cleaning, which destroys morale. In addition, the overtime man does not do the same job as the regularly scheduled custodian in the area, who has built a relationship with the teachers.

Ascolese indicated that he is responsible for maintaining the custodial records, and he explained the manner in which attendance is recorded. Familiar with Siano's records, he opined that to miss over 300 days in the past four academic years was not a very good attendance record. He said that he sent memorandums to Siano from 1992 on, and also spoke with Siano on nine or ten occasions. Siano usually said that he would improve, but there was no sustained improvement despite the warnings.

More particularly, Ascolese stated that during the 1993-94 year Siano's attendance and work habits did not improve. He spoke to Siano regarding the situations outlined in his memorandum of July 12, 1994 (P-13), but Siano's explanations were not in conformity with the proper procedure. His attendance did not improve when he was transferred to another school. Ascolese added that Siano reported a back injury and was on worker's compensation disability for the better part of the 1994-95 school year.

The witness explained the importance of an employee notifying the Board of his address. Siano had moved on four occasions and did not notify the Board, consequently there was a problem locating him. In May or June 1996 Siano was not appearing for work and they had great difficulty finding him. Ascolese further stated that Siano would either fail to come to meetings or would show up at the incorrect time. He believed that Siano was not at the personnel conference regarding his evaluation in May 1996, and he did not know if the evaluation had been presented to Siano.

On cross-examination, Ascolese was questioned as to certain days of alleged absences that were unaccounted for on the absentee records. He agreed that Siano had told him that he had a back problem during the period of time he claimed he had a work-related injury. His worker's compensation claim is still being litigated. Siano advised Ascolese that he had problems, and Ascolese told Siano to correct them. Siano only specifically mentioned his back. Ascolese said that Siano was sent to the hospital on two occasions and was examined by Dr. McKinney. He said that Siano's increment had not been withheld and that personal memorandums would not have been put on the bulletin board. Ascolese recalled that he spoke to Siano with a representative regarding Siano's absenteeism. On redirect-examination, he stated that attendance for May 1996 was recorded and that Siano was off the payroll as of June 3, 1996. He indicated that the compensation days were not recorded on P-3 and P-4.

Next to testify was John Kanzler, supervisor of custodians for ten and one-half years. He supervised Siano from December 4, 1989, to September 17, 1994. He had concerns regarding Siano's attendance and his failure to call in from the inception of his employment, and he made Siano aware of his concerns through memorandums, conversations on the job and meetings with him at his home at various different addresses. Siano's response was that he was sick, and had to go to the hospital.

Kanzler testified specifically about the milk incident described in P-13. He noted that Siano did not have permission to leave his employment that day. Siano always said he would do a better job the following week, but that did not occur. There was no improvement, and in fact the attendance problem worsened.

Kanzler testified concerning the impact of Siano's behavior. He said that he could not contact him, despite checking eight or nine addresses, and was thus unable to give him certain information. The other custodians had to do a portion of Siano's work, which created a big problem over time. It affected the morale of the other custodians, and the school principals expressed concerns that certain portions of the buildings were not getting cleaned. Kanzler further recalled that he would see Siano in the morning, but Siano would not show up for work at night. On cross-examination, Kanzler said that he asked Siano for his address many times, and when he asked, Siano told him. Siano was out of work in the summer of 1994, and Kanzler could not find him. He did not know that Siano had alleged that he had been hurt on the job until December 11, 1996, although the policy is to notify your supervisor, and he did not know that Siano had a worker's compensation case.

Michael Duffy, assistant supervisor of elementary custodians since September 20, 1995, was in charge of supervising Siano. He testified to the importance of snow removal and the stress that poor attendance of one custodian places on other custodians. On nine occasions he wrote memorandums to Siano, and he met with Siano on five occasions prior to that. He indicated that he personally handed P-21 to Siano. Siano said that he had not seen the resolution transferring him, but Duffy stated that the resolution had been posted in the boiler room for the five or six days prior to the transfer. Siano indicated that he would do "better" with his attendance, but he did not improve. At one point Duffy had a problem locating Siano because his telephone number wasn't working. Siano said that he would give Duffy a working phone number, but he never did. A fellow custodian told Duffy where Siano lived.

Duffy indicated that Siano was not available for his evaluation, since he was not at work. Siano did not work or call on June 11, 1996, but was present on June 12, 14 and 17, 1996, when Duffy sent him to Dr. McKinney. There was a union meeting on June 18, 1996, and Siano said he would improve his attendance. Siano did not notify Duffy of his absences from June 18, 1996, to July 28, 1996. Duffy served him personally with charges on July 28, 1996, at which time Siano told Duffy he had just come from compensation court. Siano called in on July 28, 1996, and said he would not be in until August 8, 1996.

On cross-examination, Duffy indicated that Siano basically was not at work during May 1996. In regard to Siano's absence of September 25, 1995 (P-21), Duffy stated that Siano was supposed to report to the new worksite. Duffy was not sure if Siano showed up at the old worksite (he called the custodian's room two times and there was no answer), and agreed that Siano's attendance record did not reflect an absence for September 25, 1995. Duffy did not talk to Siano before he wrote the memorandum (P-21), but he talked to him when he came back to school. Siano said he had not been notified of the change, but the resolution had passed and Duffy believed Siano had seen it.

In further testimony, Duffy stated that he did not send P-25 through P-31 to Siano. Due to the legal nature of those memorandums, the Board attorney would have sent them to Siano. He believed that the Board attorney, Joseph Ryglicki, sent the memorandums to Siano. Ascolese also may have sent some of them. However, Duffy alleged that he had conversations with Siano regarding the substance of those memorandums. He further testified to several dates that appeared in his memorandums, but not on the Board record. After June 18, 1996, he could not locate Siano to find out why he was absent; his telephone numbers were disconnected. Advised in mid-June that Siano was in the hospital with hemorrhoids, Duffy went to the hospital to see Siano, but was advised that he had been released. Duffy went to the address given to him, and he handed the charges to Siano's roommate.

Next to testify was Dr. Ausberto McKinney, a medical doctor since 1967. He finished his training in 1975 as a doctor of medicine and has been in private practice since 1975. He completes medical examinations for North Bergen. He first examined Siano on June 17, 1996, and prepared a report (P-34). He asked Siano to provide written documentation regarding his problem, but Siano failed to do so. McKinney received a note which indicated that Siano was out of work for back pain (a sprain) on certain days. Of import, McKinney completed a full medical examination of Siano and found nothing wrong with him, and nothing to prevent him from working.

John Siano, assigned to various schools during his tenure at North Bergen, sought to explain his numerous absences over the years. He alleged that during the 1992-93, 1993-94, 1994-95 and 1995-96 school years he had allergies. (His lips swelled and he had hives.) He may also have had the flu during 1992-93, and during that school year or 1993-94, he fractured his collarbone and was out of work for six to eight weeks. In July 1994 he injured his back (his worker's compensation claim is pending) and was out sick until January 15, 1995. After he returned to work, he got backaches every two or three months and was in the hospital in traction two times that year. He alleged that his absences from July 1994 to January 1995 and in March 1995, May 1995 and June 1995 were all compensation days. His back went out at the beginning of the 1995-96 school year, and he was out for surgery in June.

Siano also testified that he did not recall receiving various memos testified to by petitioner's witnesses. More particularly, he did not recall receiving P-8, did not recall a conversation in May 1992 with Ascolese regarding bringing in a doctor's note if ill, and did not recall a conversation with Ascolese regarding his number of absences. He did not recall receiving P-9, and did not have a recollection of the complaint in the letter. (He contended that he was not supposed to work on election day.) Petitioner alleged that he had not received P-10, and that neither Vice Principal Pellechio nor his supervisor met with him regarding his attendance in 1992-93. He did not receive P-11, nor did he recall a discussion with Principal Dandorph in March 1993 regarding his attendance. He did not receive P-12 and could not recall any discussions regarding where he lived. He claimed that he notified the Board as to where he lived, and did not receive any letters in March 1993 from Board attorney Joseph Ryglicki regarding his work status. He indicated that he did not receive P-13, did not have discussions with Vincent Ascolese regarding his work performance in July 1994, and did not know about the substance of the memo. He had no idea that there was a problem with him and was not aware of a July 12, 1994 meeting.

Siano testified that he did not receive a copy of P-14, but he admitted that he had a meeting with Vincent Ascolese and John Kanzler regarding calling in. He explained that no one was at the switchboard prior to 9:00 a.m., and he was advised to call when it opened. He alleged that in the summer of 1994 he called in and said that he would be out an entire week. He was not told that this was improper. He admitted that he received a memo sent to all maintenance and custodial personnel which all custodians had to sign. He contended that the handwriting in the margin was not his and that there were no meetings with John Duffy or Vincent Ascolese at this time regarding his attendance. He could not recall receiving P-16 or having meetings with Vincent Ascolese regarding phoning in his absences, and said he was not advised that he had received letters regarding his work habits. He alleged that he had not requested meetings, was not aware of various meetings to take place in May 1996 (P-17), and did not participate in any discussions in May 1996 with Vincent Ascolese regarding his not showing up for meetings.

In regard to the evaluation dated May 21, 1996 (P-18), Siano admitted that the evaluation conference took place and that he was advised that he was absent a great deal. He had no opportunity to respond, and he did not sign the evaluation. He had never received prior evaluations. He alleged that he had not received a letter dated February 26, 1996, regarding absence from work (P-19 or P-20). Siano said he had given Mike Duffy his address before Duffy asked for it. He placed his name and address on the board in April 1996 and then wrote it down for Duffy in June 1996. Siano admitted that he received P-21, but he explained that he had not shown up for work at John F. Kennedy School on the date he was supposed to because he was not notified of his transfer from North Bergen High School to John F. Kennedy until 6:00 p.m. on September 25, 1995, because the custodial supervisor of the high school had forgotten to give the transfer notice to him. Thus, he finished the day at North Bergen High School and began to work at Kennedy on September 26, 1995. He had no discussion with Mike Duffy regarding not being at Kennedy on September 25.

In further testimony, Siano claimed that he did not receive P-22 or P-23, and that he had no discussions with Mike Duffy in October 1995 or December 1995 regarding calling in or his attendance. There was no disciplinary action taken against him. He admitted that he received a handwritten note from Mike Duffy dated January 24, 1996, and that he had received notes from Mike Duffy since Duffy was appointed. Siano opined that Duffy had a vendetta against him; Duffy would only provide him with a broken vacuum cleaner. Duffy did not tell him about any "problem" with the main hall, nor did Siano have any discussion with Duffy regarding the late sign-in notice. Siano did not receive P-25, and he could not recall discussions or meetings with Duffy, Ascolese or Ryglicki regarding his attendance in April 1996. He claimed he had not received P-26, P-28, P-29, P-30 and P-31. He had no discussions with Duffy in May 1996 regarding a failure to call in absences (P-26), and referring to P-29, P-30 and P-31, he claimed that he had called in his absence (he could not recall the first date of the absence) and said he would be out until further notice. In addition, he claimed that since the 1992-93 school year he has had no meetings with Ascolese, Kanzler, John Duffy or anyone else regarding the reasons he was absent.

On cross-examination, Siano admitted that he was a member of the union, but he believed that he had not received a copy of the contract until three years after he began his employment. Although he agreed that there is a policy regarding calling in sick and doctors' notes, he did not believe the policy required him to call in every day he was going to be absent. He contended that he followed the policy by calling in on the first day of the sickness and advising that he would be out the whole week. Although he admitted that his signature appeared on P-7, he contended that he handed in doctors' notes only if he was out for over 3 days; he had no copies of those notes. He said that he was not made aware of his excessive absenteeism through a formal conversation, but he agreed that Mike Duffy had indicated to him that he had used his sick and vacation days. Kanzler did not have a discussion with him or question him regarding attendance. He agreed that it is important to come to work and that missing time affects the school, but he contended that a back injury and allergy problems prevented this. He admitted that he had no back injury in 1992-93 and 1993-94. He acknowledged his sick and personal day entitlement, but recalled only being docked one day, and claimed that no one talked to him regarding his sick time.

In further testimony, Siano agreed that he had not always notified the school of where he was living. He contended that he let them know where he was living before they had to look for him, and that Kanzler came to his home at two different addresses. He admitted that he received P-36, but claimed he received it two weeks after the date of the letter. He received P-37, but he could not remember if the statements in it were true. He admitted that he had received notification from Kanzler regarding his absences, but contended that he was out due to health problems.

On redirect examination, Siano referred to P-37 and claimed that he did not have a discussion with Kanzler regarding his absences or where he lived. He saw Kanzler once every two months, and notified the Board where he was living. Referring to P-36, he indicated that he called the Board between December 16 and January 19 and left a message that he would be out until further notice. He was not sure if Ascolese received the message. On recross-examination, Siano claimed that he had no other employment from 1989 to the present. He further stated that he called the Board in June 1996. Before he went to the hospital in June 1996, he advised the switchboard. He also told his girlfriend to call, but was not sure if she had.

Discussion

It is well-settled that excessive absenteeism may constitute grounds for the removal or suspension of a tenured employee. The Commissioner of the Department of Education, adopting this position, has stated that he would not hesitate to dismiss a tenured employee for chronic, persistent absenteeism, even when there is no charge of illegitimate use of sick leave. Toms River Bd. of Educ. v. Marsden, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 1188-84 (Aug. 26, 1985), modified and aff'd, Comm'r of Educ. (Oct. 10, 1985), aff'd, State Bd. of Educ. (Nov. 4, 1987). However, the Commissioner conditioned dismissal in such instances upon a demonstration by the board that it has attempted to correct the pattern of absenteeism and that such efforts failed to elicit any change. Ibid. The Marsden case involved a teacher who exhibited an excessive absenteeism problem over a period of seven years. The board filed tenure charges against Marsden citing unbecoming conduct and chronic absenteeism as grounds for her dismissal. In deciding that the teacher's absences did not warrant dismissal, the administrative law judge (ALJ) noted that the record failed to show that the board took any corrective action to improve the teacher's pattern of excessive absenteeism. The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's decision.

The sheer number of a teacher's absences may warrant dismissal from her tenured position. In Newark Board of Education v. Marshall, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 10126-83 (July 3, 1984), aff'd, Comm'r of Educ. (Aug. 20, 1984), Marshall was a tenured teacher with a chronic absenteeism problem. The board filed tenure charges alleging, among other things, abuse of sick leave, physical incapacity, and excessive absenteeism.

During her tenure at the school, Marshall exhibited a pattern of excessive absenteeism. She was absent 184 days during the 1982-83 school year, 30 days during the 1981-82 school year, and 63 days during the 1980-81 school year. Her high rate of absenteeism during the 1982-83 school year was apparently due to her full-time attendance at law school. Her attendance at law school occurred without the knowledge and approval of the school board. The ALJ dismissed the teacher because of her excessive absenteeism and her deliberate failure to inform the board of her attendance at law school.

It is axiomatic that a tenured teacher must be available to teach on a consistent basis if the teacher is to provide the quality of services that the school board and students have come to expect. The Commissioner has stated:

> Frequent absences of teachers from regular classroom learning experiences disrupt the continuity of the instruction process. The benefit of regular classroom instruction is lost and cannot be entirely regained, even by > extra effort, when the regular teacher returns to the classroom. Consequently, many pupils who do not have the benefit of their regular classroom teacher frequently experience great difficulty in achieving the maximum benefit of schooling.

> [In re Tenure Hearing of Catherine Reilly, School District of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, 1977 S.L.D. 403, 414.]

Indeed, many pupils in these circumstances are able to achieve only mediocre success in their academic programs. The entire process of education requires a regular continuity of instruction with a teacher directing the classroom activities and learning experience in order to reach the goal of maximum educational benefit for each individual pupil. The regular contact of the pupils with their assigned teachers is vital to this process.

However, it is evident that this rationale should not be strictly applied to a tenured member of the custodial staff. While a custodian plays an important role in the day-to-day operation of a school, he or she does not have a direct impact on the learning experiences of the students. It is the educational benefit resulting from a close relationship between the teacher and students that mandates a teacher's regular classroom attendance. Consequently, a custodian should not be held to the same attendance requirements as a classroom teacher.

A tenured public school custodian may not be removed or suspended from his position without justification. The suspension or dismissal of a tenured custodian is permitted if he has committed "neglect, misbehavior or other offense." N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. In addition, since a custodian is a tenured employee, he could also be dismissed or suspended on the grounds of "inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

It appears that while excessive absenteeism is a basis for the dismissal of a tenured custodial employee, a single charge of excessive absenteeism is generally not sufficient grounds for dismissal. Trenton Bd. of Educ. v. White, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 8408-86 (March 17, 1987), adopted, Comm'r of Educ. (May 1, 1987). White was a tenured custodian who was dismissed due to his long history of excessive absenteeism. His pattern of absenteeism spanned a four-year period. He was absent 31½ days during the period July 1985 to March 1986; 57 days during the period July 1984 to June 1985; 86½ days during the period July 1983 to June 1984; and 27 days during the period September 1982 to June 1983.

Because of this pattern of absenteeism, the board gave the custodian 90 days to correct his inefficiencies and absenteeism. Despite the notification, the custodian failed to correct his inefficiencies and excessive absenteeism during the 90-day period. Consequently, the board filed tenure charges against the custodian seeking his dismissal. After a hearing, the ALJ determined that dismissal of the custodian was justified due to his inefficiency and excessive absenteeism which were not corrected during the 90-day period.

In another custodian tenure case, the Commissioner stated that excessive absenteeism of a custodian which causes an adverse impact on the education process is sufficient grounds for dismissal. Passaic Bd. of Educ. v. Viani, 92 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 76. The board sought to dismiss a custodian based solely on the number of his absences. The Commissioner noted that although the number of absences was excessive, an additional showing of aggravating circumstances was necessary to warrant dismissal of a tenured custodian. The board may demonstrate aggravating circumstances by showing the "extent of harm such performance of a custodial employee has on the provision of a thorough and efficient education in '[a]dequately equipped, sanitary and secure physical facilities . . .'." Id. at 79, quoting N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-5(f).

State-Operated School District of Paterson v. Watson, 93 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 362, which involved charges of excessive absenteeism and insubordination against a tenured custodian, entailed a factual scenario similar to that of the instant matter. In Watson, I concluded that dismissal was warranted because Watson was notified of his problem of excessive absenteeism and failed to rectify it. Watson's failure to call in and his excessive absenteeism inconvenienced the school and jeopardized the health and safety of the students and staff. The dismissal was affirmed by the Commissioner, who referred to the pattern of absenteeism over a protracted period of time and the repeated warnings and opportunities to improve given Watson by the district. Despite knowledge of the detrimental impact upon the efficient custodial operations of his school, the absence pattern continued.

With this backdrop, the Commissioner concluded as follows:

> The Commissioner finds it particularly troubling that irrespective of the District's clear policy requiring employees to notify the school of intended absences so that their necessary duties could be covered by other custodial staff, [Watson] failed to call in and report his absence on 19 occasions between July 1, 1991, and March 10, 1992.
>
> The Commissioner recognizes the position occupied by a school custodian as an important one > and she finds that the conduct of [Watson] established by the record falls far below the standard of dependability and responsibility which his position requires. His behavior demonstrates a total lack of concern for his duty to help assure that the students and staff of his school are provided with adequately equipped, sanitary and secure physical facilities, thus jeopardizing the health and safety of these individuals. Although he received repeated warnings over an elongated period of time to correct his deficiencies, [Watson] remained unwilling or unable to conform his conduct to the requirements of his position.
> > [a] school janitor occupies a position of trust and responsibility necessitating high standards of dependability and morality. His functions far exceed opening and closing the schoolhouse and keeping it clean and tidy. The safety and welfare of the children may depend upon the proper discharge of his duties. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Joseph McDougall, 1974 S.L.D. 170, at 178.

In the present case, respondent was absent more than 300 days from the 1992-93 school year through the 1995-96 school year. More particularly, respondent was absent in excess of 50 days during the 1992-93 school year, in excess of 14 days during the 1993-94 school year, in excess of 170 days during the 1994-95 school year, and in excess of 90 days during the 1995-96 school year.

Petitioner contends that Siano's dismissal is warranted due to his excessive absences and his failure to call in as required. Petitioner argues that despite numerous written and oral warnings, respondent's attendance and compliance with Board policy never improved. Petitioner further claims that respondent's absences and failure to call in as required had a detrimental impact on the school. In support of its claim, petitioner states that respondent's absences made it difficult to keep the building clean and also affected the morale of the custodial staff.

As stated by petitioner, respondent does not deny the number of absences alleged or the fact that on various occasions he failed to properly call in. Respondent would have this tribunal conclude that he did not receive much of the documentation notifying him of his excessive absenteeism and failure to call in and that he had not been properly warned of this. He explained his more than 300 absences over a four-year period as being due to numerous physical ailments. Respondent believes that the Board's actions are unjustified because of the existence of these numerous physical ailments.

I have considered the testimony and evidence in this matter and am persuaded by the testimony and evidence presented by petitioner. I found the testimony and evidence presented by petitioner to be credible and worthy of belief and to the contrary of respondent's allegations. The evidence supports the conclusion that from 1991-92 there were concerns about Siano's attendance and his consequent inability to provide appropriate custodial services. The evidence demonstrates that numerous memos were sent by the administration from school year 1992-93 through school year 1995-96 advising and warning Siano that his absenteeism was excessive, atrocious, and would not be tolerated. He was informed both verbally and in writing on numerous occasions of his failure to notify the school and thereby follow Board policy if he was going to be absent. He was advised that his absences were negatively affecting the maintenance of the school and the morale of the custodial staff, and thus jeopardizing the proper functioning of the school. The extensive documentation and testimony substantiate that these issues were discussed with Siano via many memos, letters and conversations. He was further advised of the requirements of attendance by virtue of notices, as well as the contract in effect during the applicable period of time. The instructions and advice given to Siano came from several sources, including Vincent Ascolese, John Kanzler, John Duffy and Michael Duffy.

The overwhelming evidence substantiates the fact that the administration was more than patient with Siano's excessive absenteeism and failure to call in to report absences. Although Siano would indicate, when confronted, that his attendance would improve, he failed to make any substantive changes in his attendance practices. Clearly, respondent was aware of the procedures regarding the taking of sick leave. He had been warned and counseled on numerous occasions about his absences and failure to call in, although respondent would have this tribunal believe that he was not so advised. Moreover, although respondent argues that he was out due to illness and as a result of a worker's compensation claim, he cannot explain the numerous absences which are on his record or his failure to call in to report absences as required. While it may be that he was ill on certain occasions, he failed to provide any medical testimony or documentation that each of his absences was due to a physical ailment. He has not produced the requisite doctors' notes to support his claim that his absences were for medical reasons. Petitioner's evidence substantiates that there was nothing prohibiting respondent from working. In fact, he was examined by Dr. Ausberto McKinney, who saw nothing wrong with respondent which would prevent him from working.

Clearly, respondent's failure to report to work or notify the school of his absences cannot be excused. Moreover, as pointed out by petitioner, sanctions can be imposed even if certain of the absences were shown to be medically legitimate. Respondent acknowledged the negative effect of excessive absenteeism, and it is clear that his excessive absences and failure to call in inconvenienced the custodial staff and the school. His actions jeopardized the health and safety of the students and the staff by making it difficult to keep the facilities clean and operate the school in a reasonable manner.

In sum, petitioner has shown by a preponderance of the believable evidence that respondent engaged in a pattern of excessive absenteeism and failure to call in that amounted to insubordination. Respondent was warned and counseled about his absenteeism and insubordination problem on numerous occasions. Despite the efforts of petitioner to inform respondent of the problem and persuade respondent to correct the problem, the pattern of absenteeism and failure to call in continued. In addition, petitioner has demonstrated that respondent's absences and failure to call in had an adverse impact on the functioning of the school. Respondent's absences adversely affected the school's ability to provide sanitary, clean and secure facilities as required, and created a morale problem for the other custodial staff. That being so, respondent's absences jeopardized the health and safety of the students and staff. Viani, supra, 92 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) at 79. Therefore, since petitioner has met its burden of proof on the charges of excessive absenteeism and failure to call in, dismissal of respondent is warranted notwithstanding his tenure. Ibid.; see also In re Tenure Hearing of Dwight Hayes, School District of the Township of South Brunswick, 1990 S.L.D. 1512; Watson, supra, 93 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 362.

Conclusion

Based upon the above discussion and findings of fact, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has proven by a preponderance of the believable evidence the tenure charges against respondent of excessive absenteeism. Petitioner has shown that respondent was notified of his problem of excessive absenteeism but failed to rectify it. Respondent's failure to call in and his excessive absenteeism adversely affected the students and staff. I further CONCLUDE that respondent's actions warrant dismissal from his employment with petitioner.

Order

For the foregoing reasons, it is ORDERED that the tenure charges are sustained, respondent's appeal is denied, and respondent is dismissed from his employment with petitioner.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JOHN SIANO, SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF NORTH BERGEN,	:	DECISION
HUDSON COUNTY,	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. However, in that these exceptions are a verbatim reiteration of respondent's post-hearing arguments before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), the Commissioner does not herein recount said arguments.

Subsequent to the expiration of the exception and reply period provided by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, yet prior to issuance of the decision herein, respondent filed a motion to compel the restoration of his salary payments, retroactive to April 1, 1997. The Board was thereafter provided an opportunity to file a response to said moving papers. In that no response was filed by the Board, the Commissioner's determination, below, is rendered on the basis of respondent's moving papers. Respondent alleges that, subsequent to the issuance of the initial decision by the OAL on April 8, 1997, the Board denied him his regular salary checks for the pay periods ending April 15, 1997 and April 30, 1997, which denial "constitutes clear defiance of State law." (Respondent's Motion at pp. 1, 4) Respondent argues that "[o]nce the statutorily authorized time for a suspension without pay has expired, there is no authority whatsoever for the Board to withhold an employee's salary." (Id. at pp. 3, 4) Thus, respondent seeks an order compelling the Board to restore his salary, effective April 1, 1997,* and further seeks interest, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16, inasmuch as respondent avers that the Board's action in denying his salary was taken in bad faith.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the Board has readily demonstrated by a preponderance of credible evidence that respondent is guilty of excessive absenteeism, and that said absenteeism has adversely impacted the operations of the District. The Board has further proven its efforts to fairly notify respondent of his absenteeism problem and has given him the opportunity to correct the deficiency; however, respondent has failed to improve his attendance.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. Respondent is terminated from his tenured position as a custodian in the Board's school system as of the date of this decision. The Commissioner further determines, however, that, based on the clear language of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, respondent is due retroactive earned salary payments, together with emoluments, from April 1, 1997 until the date of the decision herein. The Commissioner declines to award respondent interest in conjunction with said retroactive salary payments.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* Respondent argues that he has not received a salary since March 31, 1997. (Respondent's Motion at p. 1)

STATEMENT OF CASE

This case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on December 29, 1995 for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

The parties entered into a settlement and have prepared a stipulation indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

IN THE MATTER OF: RIDGEWOOD EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, ELAINE HIGGINS AND ANN HOVAN, PETITIONERS,

V.

RIDGEWOOD BOARD OF EDUCATION,

RESPONDENT.

OAL DOCKET NO. EDU 04706-92N, on remand, EDU 12492-95

The Ridgewood Education Association (hereinafter referred to as the "Association"), located at Willard School, 601 Morningside Road, Ridgewood, NJ 07450-1399, Elaine Higgins (hereinafter referred to as "Higgins") residing at 417 Sheffield Road, Ridgewood, NJ 07450 and Ann Hovan (hereinafter collectively referred to as "Hovan"), residing at 160 Claremont Road, Ridgewood, NJ 07450 and The Ridgewood Board of Education (hereinafter referred to as "the Board") hereby agree to the following terms in full and final settlement of all claims brought or which could have been brought in the matter of the RIDGEWOOD EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, ELAINE HIGGINS and ANN HOVAN v. RIDGEWOOD BOARD OF EDUCATION, bearing OAL Docket No. EDU 04706-92N, on remand, OAL Docket No. EDU 12492-95 and in the matter of Ridgewood Education Association v. Ridgewood Board of Education, bearing New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission No. CO-H-93-69:

1. The Association, Higgins and Hovan (hereinafter collectively referred to as "Petitioners") hereby dismiss with prejudice the above-captioned Petition to the Commissioner of Education that is pending before the Office of Administrative Law;.

2. The Ridgewood Education Association ("Association") shall withdraw with prejudice its unfair practice charge against the Board which bears Public Employment Relations Commission Docket No. CO-H-93-69. Said withdrawal shall take effect upon the Board of Education's retraction of the policy referred to in paragraph number 3 hereof;

3. The Board will retract those portions of Ridgewood Board of Education Policy No. 4123 which limit contracts for supplemental teachers to not more than two consecutive years. This policy will be retracted within thirty (30) days of the date of execution of this agreement by all parties.

4. The School District will notify the Association of vacancies which occur in supplemental teacher positions by forwarding to the Association a copy of the job posting for any such vacancy.

5. Supplemental teachers whose employment contracts have been nonrenewed pursuant to the aforesaid policy shall be permitted to apply for vacant teaching positions which may arise subsequent to the ratification of this agreement by the Board. All applicants for said positions will be considered in the normal course of the applicant review process.

6. All claims for relief in the above referenced action and any and all claims for backpay by or on behalf of any supplemental teacher who may have been affected by the aforesaid policy are hereby waived.

7. The terms of this agreement are subject to formal ratification by the Board. The undersigned representatives hereby acknowledge that they are duly authorized to execute this Agreement.

8. The parties acknowledge that they fully understand the terms of this Agreement and the duties and obligations enumerated herein.

9. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended, modified or revoked except by an instrument in writing executed by the parties.

10. This Agreement and the provisions it contains shall not serve to establish any precedent or practice as between an employee of the Board and the Board, and the Board reserves its right to exercise its discretion on a case-by-case basis.

11. This Agreement shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

The record of this matter and the initial decision incorporating a stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

The Commissioner approves the settlement terms and adopts the settlement as the final decision in this matter.* The matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* It is noted that Term 7 of the Settlement Agreement specifies that such agreement is contingent upon "formal ratification by the Board." Because agency approval renders this settlement a final decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1(c)2, accord to its terms by all necessary parties must be accomplished prior to the Commissioner's approval. In that the record of this matter indicates that Board approval of the agreement was achieved in late April, the Commissioner determines that approval of the settlement can be granted.

ATTORNEYS FOR DONNIE HARRELL

IN RE: DONNIE HARRELL

Asbury Park High School District, Monmouth County.

BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY

OAL DOCKET NO.:
EDUTH 00255-97S

AGENCY REF. NO. 599-12/96

Civil Action

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

This matter having come before the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to the filing of tenure charges against the Respondent on October 22, 1996; and,

WHEREAS, the Asbury Park High School District Board of Education (hereinafter referred to as "Board") has determined to withdraw the aforementioned charges based upon a proposed settlement of the controversy as set forth herein, the parties do hereto, through their counsel, execute the following Stipulation and request that the charges be withdrawn by the Office of Administrative Law as a result of the following findings.

1. Donnie Harrell is a licensed and certificated teacher who is in his seventh year of employment with the Asbury Park Board of Education. He has served throughout this time as a music teacher and held that position at the Asbury Park High School at the time of the events related herein.

2. On or about October 22, 1996, charges were filed against Mr. Harrell alleging misconduct and sexual harassment, and on December 16, 1996, the Asbury Park Board of Education voted to certify the tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education. The charges were sent to the Office of Administrative Law on January 22, 1997.

3. The charges which were filed and later certified were the product of a Statement of Evidence executed by Patricia A. Desmond, Vice Principal of Curriculum and Instruction at the Asbury Park High School. The Statement of Tenure Charges was executed by James H. Mundy, Ed.D., the Superintendent of Schools. Neither of the above administrators had any direct knowledge nor had they made personal observations of the facts referenced in the charges. The only first party evidence given was by a student, who was the alleged victim of the allegations. Despite the fact that various other witnesses were mentioned in the charges, at no time did the student complainant produce corroboration from any alleged witnesses.

4. The investigation of the Board charged that, based upon the statement of the student, the teacher had committed unbecoming conduct between November of 1995 and February of 1996, but no explanation was ever provided as to why the student had not notified the administration of the school until September of the next school year regarding the allegations.

5. In the Statement of Evidence and Statement of Position, Mr. Harrell, under oath, vigorously denied any and all of the material allegations made by the student and challenged her credibility. The only allegation he admitted to was giving her a ride on several occasions, either home or to the doctor, as a courtesy.

6. Criminal charges were submitted to the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office and the matter was presented to a grand jury, which declined to find probable cause in connection with the presentation. The matter was investigated by the Division of Youth and Family Services during October of 1996, but despite their investigation, they have not recommended prosecution of the charges nor even rendered a final report.

7. Subsequently, the Board of Education considered the facts that a no bill was returned on the criminal charges; it did not have a final determination from DYFS to substantiate any of the charges and that it received information that the student in question had previously made similar charges against other adults and recanted those charges at a later date. The Board therefore requested that the teacher return to his position, which he did on February 25, 1997.

8. As a result of the foregoing, the parties have agreed that the matter should be resolved by dismissing the tenure charges. The Petitioner has agreed, as a result of having placed himself in the position of transporting the student on several occasions without any other persons present, in violation of Board policy, to accept a one-year incremental denial. The Board has also agreed to restore his back pay for the time encompassed by the 120-day suspension period, or the portion thereof that actually took effect, and further agrees they will restore him to the proper step and grade on the salary chart the year following the loss of increment hereinabove referred to.

9. The Board has determined that it cannot successfully prosecute this matter for the reasons set forth above and both parties ask the Commissioner of Education to approve the settlement.

The parties have agreed, therefore, that based upon the foregoing and other considerations, the matter should be resolved by way of a mutual agreement between the parties, and a resolution has been adopted by the Asbury Park Board of Education to withdraw the tenure charges presently pending in the matter hereinabove referenced, and effectuate the settlement in accordance with the conditions contained herein, contingent upon approval by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

I, Dora E. Mylchreest, Board Secretary of the Board of Education of the City of Asbury Park in the County of Monmouth, State of New Jersey, HEREBY CERTIFY that the foregoing annexed extract from the Executive Session Minutes of a meeting of the governing body of the Board of Education duly called and held on May 14, 1997 and has been compared by me with the original minutes as officially recorded in my office in the Executive Session Minute Book of the Board of Education and is a true, complete and correct copy thereof and of the whole of the original minutes so far as they relate to the subject matters referred to in the extract.

Board Members Present: Mr. Bond, Mrs. Cooke, Mr. Fantini, Mr. Moor, Mr. Neal, Mr. Young, Mr. Famularo, Vice President and Mrs. Solomon, President

On the Matter of Mr. Donnie Harrell, Mr. Peterson presented the following Resolution for the Board's consideration:

WHEREAS, the Asbury Park Board of Education has reviewed the Settlement Agreement regarding Mr. Donnie Harrell, and

WHEREAS, the Board has directed the return of Mr. Harrell to the classroom and the withholding of his increment for the 1997-98 school year only, and

WHEREAS, the Board does not wish to pursue tenure charges,

The Board hereby approves the Settlement Agreement.

The Board Members present discussed the settlement terms and there was consensus to support the adoption of this Resolution.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the corporate seal of the School District this 20th day of May 1997.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY	:	DECISION
OF ASBURY PARK, MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Based upon such review, the Commissioner must reject the terms of accord because there is no indication that the teacher was advised of the Commissioner's duty, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)1, to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of certificate. The State Board has ruled in In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846, that such disclosure should be part of any agreement which results in loss of position.

Accordingly, the instant settlement is rejected and remanded to the Office of Administrative Law for further action consistent with this determination.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

H.K. AND A.K. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, I.K.,
Petitioners,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE WEST WINDSOR-PLAINSBORO SCHOOL DISTRICT,
Respondent.

Stuart Surick, Esq., for petitioners

Russell Weiss, Jr., Esq., for respondent (Carroll & Weiss, attorneys)

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Petitioners seek an order reversing the decision of the West Windsor-Plainsboro Board of Education that I.K. not be graduated from West Windsor-Plainsboro High School on Tuesday, June 17, 1997, based on excessive absence and failure to accumulate the minimum credits required. As emergent relief, they request:

1. The Board's decision denying credit for Physical Education, Creative Cooking and Catering, Resource Center and Writing Laboratory be reversed;

2. I.K. be given credit for American Studies II because of his diagnosed learning disabilities and the failure of the school to implement his IEP;

3. I.K. be graduated with his class on June 17, 1997, and

4. Compensatory and punitive damages, attorney's fees and costs of suit.

The matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, with a request for expedited hearing, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. The judge received the petitioners' papers on June 13, 1997, and the respondent's on June 16, 1997. The matter was heard on June 16, 1997, at the Office of Administrative Law, Trenton. For the reasons that follow, the motion is DENIED.

Upon opening the record, the parties stipulated that the academic credits, with the exception of Physical Education, no longer are in dispute. It is further stipulated that I.K. was absent from his Physical Education class on twenty-one days in the 1996-97 school year.

I.K. testified that he is a seventeen-year-old senior at West Windsor-Plainsboro High School. He has been in the district for two years. He has been classified as perceptually impaired (PI) since the early grades. This classification followed him to West Windsor-Plainsboro.

Excessive absence in Physical Education is his problem. He learned after going on a trip in March that Physical Education attendance was a problem. Prior to this, his mother told him "a couple of times" that she had spoken to the school about his attendance, but "everything's fine." He had no discussions with his guidance counselor or with his case manager concerning his Physical Education class attendance.

The witness had conferences with his case manager about his American Studies course, but not attendance. The high school vice principal told him nothing about attendance problems. He had no reason to believe that going to Cancun at the same time as the senior class trip to Florida would be a problem. He says he spoke to several teachers about it and they expressed no reservations. The only call to the home that I.K. is aware of concerned attendance at the senior prom.

In the 1996-97 school year, the witness suffered many illnesses. He also suffered from a deep depression. He began psychological treatment in his junior year for this problem. When he was most affected, the condition made him slow and uninterested in what was going on about him. Attendance at school was difficult. He continued in therapy until February 27, 1997. As a coping strategy, the witness "stepped aside" when problems appeared overwhelming. He would go to a "safe place." The witness explained that stepping aside meant going home. "Stepping aside" correlated with his class cuts. However, he did not cut any Physical Education classes. Days on which he missed Physical Education classes were days on which he was absent from school.

The witness failed American Studies in the first semester of his senior year. He knew he had low grades. He was denied prom attendance and felt bad about it. He "tuned out."

The witness also stated he had no idea that a trip to Cancun while the senior class was on a trip to Florida would in any way cost him academic credit.

The witness stated, "I went to school as much as possible," during the senior year.

The witness learned after the Cancun trip that there was a problem. His mother had had conversations with administrators at least a couple of times. The witness received a student handbook, but states he does not use it. He does not read bulletin boards. He spoke with the vice principal five or six times during his senior year. Some of those meetings occurred before his trip to Cancun. He usually saw the vice principal because of cutting classes. The vice principal did not explain to him the school policy concerning attendance.

The witness recalls serving in-school suspensions. He received a letter after his fifth class cut and spoke to the vice principal, Mr. Fogas. His parents told him that they had spoken to the vice principal and his parents told him everything was fine. He believed them.

A.K. testified. She is the mother of I.K. He was diagnosed early with learning problems and repeated his first grade. He went to a private school for his elementary grades. He was also tutored at home. In junior high school, his program was a combination of mainstream classes and resource room time.

The family decided to move to West Windsor before I.K.'s junior year. The parents met with the child study team (CST). The parents also met with a history teacher who noticed a learning problem. The IEPs for 1995-96 and 1996-97 were introduced as Exhibits J and L, respectively. Exhibit K was the October 1995 educational re-evaluation.

The witness testified extensively about illnesses I.K. has suffered over the years and equally extensively concerning his educational problems and bouts of depression.

When CST testing indicated that I.K. was "high on the depression scale," the parents asked the CST to recommend therapists. The parents chose one from a list of recommended persons.

In February 1996, I.K. was seeing his therapist at least once per week. He was also referred to a psychiatrist in New York City who, according to the mother, used the term "borderline psychotic." A medication was prescribed. I.K. stopped taking the medication in February 1997.

The period December 1996-January 1997 was marked by severe problems. I.K. was moody and angry. In March and April, the parents noted some improvement. I.K. had a girlfriend and appeared happier, at least until he could not attend the prom. He also suffered several physical illnesses.

A.K. stated that she received notices from the school concerning I.K.'s attendance. She received what is known as a five-day absence letter dated October 18, 1996, from the assistant principal. She believes she called and spoke to the assistant principal. However, she did not discuss the letter with I.K.; "it was only five absences." Because I.K. was absent only because he was ill, she saw no reason to upset him (Exhibit W).

The witness also received a letter dated December 4, 1996. This is called a ten-day letter. It states clearly, "Should his absences exceed eighteen (18), [I.] may be in jeopardy of losing credit for the year."

The witness called the assistant principal and told him that I.K. had been ill and that the absences were "real." A.K. stated there was no explanation of attendance policy offered to her other than what was in the letter. She is sure there was no mention of a conference with school personnel (Exhibit U).

The parents received a letter dated February 10, 1997, which stated

> As stated in the letter sent to you when [I.] reached ten (10) days of absence in at least one of his classes, it has now become necessary to schedule a meeting with the Attendance Review Board. . . . For your records, a copy of his attendance is attached.
> Please contact me upon receipt of this letter at . . . so a conference may be scheduled.

Despite the fact that A.K. spoke with the assistance principal, she claims there was on conference. She told the assistant principal that I.K. was really ill. The assistant principal did not request a meeting (Exhibit R).

I.K. was in Cancun, Mexico, with three other West Windsor-Plainsboro pupils while the senior class was on its annual trip to Florida. At the same time, the parents received a letter dated March 19, 1997, which stated

> As stated to you when [I.] reached the fifth (5) tenth (10) and fifteenth (15) day of absence in at least one of his classes, it has now become necessary to inform you of [I.'s] eighteenth (18) day of absence in one of those classes. In compliance with our > attendance policy, the next absence will result in a loss of credit for the class. (Exhibit S)

According to the witness, this told her that I.K. was at the limit. One more absence and he would lose credit. She assumed the trip to Cancun would not be counted as absence because most of the senior class was on the class trip.

A.K. called the assistant principal. He stated that the in-school suspensions were imposed for cutting classes. The witness could not recall if she told the assistant principal that I.K. was in Cancun. If she had known of the attendance problem, she would not have allowed him to go on the trip. She thought it was class vacation time. The witness did not call the school, as she said she always had, when I.K. would be absent or when she received a letter from the school. In this instance, the school called them.

After the witness received the ten and fifteen-day letters, she spoke to I.K., trying to be "conversational." She said words to the effect that we just have to watch this. I.K. indicated to her no conversation with any school person concerning attendance. There was no mention of a problem with the Cancun trip before the trip. Because of his excessive absences, I.K. was denied attendance at the prom.

The parents met with the vice principal and the full Attendance Review Board. Prom attendance, nevertheless, was denied.

The witness does see a purpose to a school attendance policy and agrees the school has a right to require a minimum number of days of attendance. Exhibit Q states that, if I.K.'s absences exceed eighteen, he may be in jeopardy. To her, use of "may be" is not definite, she is a positive person so, to her, "may be" is positive. The witness did not ask the assistant principal if illnesses were excused or excusable. However, Exhibit W, the letter of October 18, 1996, clearly states

> While it is understandable that a student may be absent, you should know that all absences except the following are chargeable to your child's attendance record:

. state approved religious holidays
. school approved homebound instruction
. suspension
. legal holiday
. school sponsored activities.

Should you have any questions, please feel free to contact me at . . ., so that we may discuss this further.

The witness stated that she told I.K. she received letters from the school about attendance, but she did not want "to bother" I.K. about it. He was in a major depression. She did not want to create any stress on him or drag him down.

The trip to Cancun was a month in the planning. While I.K. was away, the parents received the fifteen-day letter dated February 10. It never occurred to A.K. that the trip could affect I.K.'s attendance. She stated that I.K. told her a little about the school trip to Florida. No matter where he went, she believed, he would be out of school for three days. When asked how the witness knew that the Florida trip constituted an excused absence, her response was that she wasn't counting and that she wasn't thinking about what was legal or not legal. I.K. simply told her, "the seniors are going away." According to the witness, she learned at the Review Board meeting, for the first time, that the days of the Florida trip were not vacation days.

The assistant principal at West Windsor-Plainsboro High School testified. The Board policy is to require a minimum of 162 days attendance in each year-long course. This means that up to eighteen days can be excused. If eighteen days of absence is exceeded, the pupil is placed temporarily in a no-credit status. A review is then done. After review, a decision is reached concerning the award of credit, or not.

Attendance policies are clearly stated in the student handbook, which each pupil is obliged to read. Attendance policies are reviewed at the beginning of school assembly. Guidance counselors know and discuss the policies. The policies are referred to at least six times per year on the school's electronic message board. Attendance is reported on report cards.

The witness spoke with I.K. approximately nine times throughout the year. At least four or five of these discussions were about attendance.

In a typical meeting following a cut of classes by I.K., he would schedule a meeting. The standard operating procedure was to pull up the pupil's attendance and academic records on the computer while the pupil was present.

In some or all of these meetings, the witness told I.K. the attendance policy. The computer showed when letters went out warning of the consequences of more than eighteen days' absence.

Attendance is monitored. The five-day notice is generated, when appropriate, and copies are sent to him, the guidance counselor and, if the pupil is a special education pupil, the case manager.

The ten-day letter calls for a meeting of the student, parents and guidance counselor. The guidance counselor in this case had a telephone conference with A.K.

After the fifteen-day notice, parents usually make contact. The attendance policy is clearly restated. The consequences are stated. The right to an appeal to the Review Board is stated. In the present case, after the fifteen-day letter, he spoke with A.K. He has spoken to her at least four times. All absences are chargeable. The only excusable absences are the five categories listed above.

The witness spoke with I.K.'s guidance counselor. She knew of I.K.'s ten-day letter because I.K. often dropped in to talk with her. The assistant principal also stated that no one contacted him about the pupil's trip to Cancun before the trip occurred.

The guidance counselor had more than fifteen conferences throughout the year with I.K. At least one was about attendance, following the ten-day letter. There was a telephone conference with A.K. about the same time.

The Attendance Review Board did not meet after the fifteen-day letter. The witness told A.K. of her right to a meeting with the Board, but she declined. The witness explained to A.K. what would be entailed. The witness explained to A.K. that absences for illness count. There was at this time, however, no discussion of the Cancun trip.

Seniors not on the class trip are expected to attend school on regular school days.

DETERMINATION AND ORDER

The petitioner argues that denial of graduation, concededly a privilege, would in the present case be irreparable harm. I.K. is prone to depression. These circumstances, particularly the concern of the parents, should be a consideration and the first letter (Exhibit W) should not be given more emphasis.

I.K. had only six absences in the second semester. However, three of those were days he was in Cancun and were unexcused absences. His total of absences is now twenty-one, three over the limit.

A.K. and H.K. were focusing on I.K., not the school's policies. They wouldn't do something knowingly to jeopardize I.K.'s graduation. I.K. has had to work hard, even struggle, to pass his academics. He should be praised for his effort. He did not understand the consequences of the trip to Cancun.

The district counters that it is not in business to deny things to children. It must have standards, expressed in reasonable policies, to carry out the responsibilities placed upon it by the State. The district has done this.

There has been no failure to inform here. Nor is there irreparable harm. Mere nonattendance at a graduation ceremony is not irreparable harm. I.K. has a summer school option and still can receive a diploma before September. Most importantly, in other cases, policies with a lower than eighteen-absence threshold have been sustained.

Irreparability of Harm

As the Board correctly notes, a party seeking emergent relief must satisfy the standards in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). The Commissioner has consistently found that denial of attendance at graduation exercises does not constitute irreparable harm. The case law is remarkably consistent that attendance at graduation ceremonies is a privilege, not a right. That privilege may be withheld in the interest of maintaining an orderly and efficient school system. See, e.g., S.M. v. Woodbury Township Board of Education, 1973 S.L.D. ___ (June 21) (unpublished) and M.P. v. Hackettstown Board of Education, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDS) 210.

To the extent the petitioners rely on R.D. v. Willingboro Board of Education, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDS) 190, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the decision therein was specific to the facts therein. That decision forms no precedent.

The denial of a privilege, as opposed to denial of a right, creates no irreparable harm. Denial of attendance at graduation exercises is, therefore, not irreparable harm.

Although the law is well-settled and the petitioners cannot show irreparability of harm, the other standards will be addressed in the interests of a full discussion.

Immediacy of Harm

This element cuts in the petitioners' favor. The matter was heard some thirty hours before the scheduled graduation exercises. It must thus be conceded that immediacy is present. This element alone, however, does little for the petitioners' case.

Likelihood of Success on the Merits

The Legislature and the State Board of Education have given wide compass to local boards of education in creating policies and rules governing attendance, grades and the withholding of privileges. Grades may not be used for punitive purposes. See, e.g., Wetherell and Carnivale v. Burlington Township Board of Education, 1978 S.L.D. 794. By the same token, there is nothing in case law that says a board of education cannot enforce an attendance policy and count absences. The purpose of requiring attendance is in support of sound educational principles. As the Commissioner noted in Wheatley v. Burlington City Board of Education, 1974 S.L.D. 851, regular attendance is a requirement for course mastery, regardless of the reasons for absence.

In today's case, although the parents claim no one explained the attendance policies to them, I FIND that there was ample notice, specifically, the letter of December 4, 1996, from the assistant principal which clearly stated

> Should his absences exceed eighteen (18), [I.] may be in jeopardy of losing credit for the year. (Exhibit Q)

After this, any ignorance of attendance problems constitutes willful blindness. The petitioners cannot demonstrate a substantial likelihood of success on the merits.

Balancing of the Hardships

The petitioners argue that the Board would suffer no harm if their prayer for relief is granted. According to the petitioners, the facts in this matter are unique. The reported decisions, however, indicate otherwise. The hardship I.K. will suffer consists of attending summer school and of satisfying the requirements for physical education. The hardship befalling the Board, if the petitioners were successful, would be significant. Challenges to application of sound Board policy could fairly be expected to increase. In short, a finding for the petitioners here would erode Board authority. Even if considered in the light most favorable to the petitioners, the Board must prevail on this element.

In consideration of the foregoing, the motion for emergent relief is DENIED for the reasons stated. It is so ORDERED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this emergent matter and the Order on Motion for Emergent Relief of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.

Upon careful and independent review, the Assistant Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that petitioners have failed to meet the standards for granting emergent relief set forth in Crowe v. DeGoia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). Accordingly, the recommended Order of the ALJ denying petitioners' Motion for Emergent Relief is adopted for the reasons well expressed therein. This matter shall proceed to determination on the merits of petitioners' remaining claim regarding credit for physical education classes.

AMENDED STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

This matter having come before the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to the filing of tenure charges against the Respondent on October 22, 1996; and the parties having executed an original Stipulation of Settlement, which was approved by the Honorable Steven C. Reback on May 28, 1997; and the Commissioner of Education having rejected the terms of the settlement due to the absence of an indication that the teacher was advised of the Commissioner's duty, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(1), to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of certificate, and the parties having addressed the comments of the Commissioner of Education and the omission in this Amended Stipulation of Settlement, same is re-submitted for consideration in connection therewith;

WHEREAS, the Asbury Park High School District Board of Education (hereinafter referred to as "Board") has determined to withdraw the aforementioned charges based upon a proposed settlement of the controversy as set forth herein, the parties do hereto, through their counsel, execute the following Stipulation and request that the charges be withdrawn by the Office of Administrative Law as a result of the following findings.

1. Donnie Harrell is a licensed and certificated teacher who is in his seventh year of employment with the Asbury Park Board of Education. He has served throughout this time as a music teacher and held that position at the Asbury Park High School at the time of the events related herein. During his tenure of service in Asbury Park, he has never been disciplined in any formal fashion, nor reprimanded or even charged with the type of conduct contained in the charges referenced herein.

2. On or about October 22, 1996, charges were filed against Mr. Harrell alleging misconduct and sexual harassment, and on December 16, 1996, the Asbury Park Board of Education voted to certify the tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education. The charges were sent to the Office of Administrative Law on January 22, 1997.

3. The charges which were filed and later certified were the product of a Statement of Evidence executed by Patricia A. Desmond, Vice Principal of Curriculum and Instruction at the Asbury Park High School. The Statement of Tenure Charges was executed by James H. Mundy, Ed.D., the Superintendent of Schools. Neither of the above administrators had any direct knowledge nor had they made personal observations of the facts referenced in the charges. The only first party evidence given was by a student, who was the alleged victim of the allegations. Despite the fact that various other witnesses were mentioned in the charges, at no time did the student complainant produce corroboration from any alleged witnesses.

4. The investigation of the Board charged that, based upon the statement of the student, the teacher had committed unbecoming conduct between November of 1995 and February of 1996, but no explanation was ever provided as to why the student had not notified the administration of the school until September of the next school year regarding the allegations.

5. In the Statement of Evidence and Statement of Position, Mr. Harrell, under oath, vigorously denied any and all of the material allegations made by the student and challenged her credibility. The only allegation he admitted to was giving her a ride on several occasions, either home or to the doctor, as a courtesy.

6. Criminal charges were submitted to the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office and the matter was presented to the grand jury, which declined to find probable cause in connection with the presentation. The matter was investigated by the Division of Youth and Family Services during October of 1996, but despite their investigation, up to and including the date of this Stipulation, the Division has not recommended prosecution on the charges nor even rendered a final report.

7. Subsequently to the filing of the charges, the Board of Education considered that a no bill was returned on the criminal charges; that it did not have a final determination from DYFS to substantiate any of the charges and that it had received information that the student in question had previously made similar charges against other adults and recanted those charges at a later date. The Board therefore requested that the teacher return to his position, which he did on February 25, 1997. Since his return, there have been no incidents nor problems associated with him, consistent with his prior record of service to the District, which commenced in 1991-92, during which time the Petitioner was never reprimanded nor disciplined.

8. As a result of the foregoing, the parties have agreed that the matter should be resolved by dismissing the tenure charges. The Petitioner has agreed, as a result of having placed himself in the position of transporting the student on several occasions without any other persons present, in violation of Board policy, to accept a one-year incremental denial. The Board has also agreed to restore his back pay for the time encompassed by the 120-day suspension period, or the portion thereof that actually took effect, and further agrees they will restore him to the proper step and grade on the salary chart the year following the loss of increment hereinabove referred to.

9. The Board has determined that it cannot successfully prosecute this matter for the reasons set forth above and both parties ask the Commissioner of Education to approve the settlement.

10. The Petitioner has been advised and is aware of the duty of the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(1) to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners to consider the possible suspension or revocation of his certificate. The aforementioned disclosure which is required by In re Cardonick is herein made a part of the Amended Stipulation of Settlement and the execution of this Amended Stipulation of Settlement by the Petitioner is evidence of the fact that he is aware of the referral referenced above. If the State Board of Examiners acts as a result of the referral, the procedure set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(1) shall be followed, and the new matter will commence with the issuance of an Order to Show Cause pursuant to the aforementioned regulation, which also provides the Petitioner an opportunity to respond and contest such charges as more particularly set out therein.

The parties have agreed, therefore, that based upon the foregoing and other considerations, the matter should be resolved by way of a mutual agreement between the parties, and a resolution has been adopted by the Asbury Park Board of Education to withdraw the tenure charges presently pending in the matter hereinabove referenced, and effectuate the settlement in accordance with the conditions contained herein, contingent upon approval by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

CERTIFICATE

I, Dora E. Mylchreest, Board Secretary of the Board of Education of the City of Asbury Park in the County of Monmouth, State of New Jersey, HEREBY CERTIFY that the foregoing annexed extract from the Executive Session Minutes of a meeting of the governing body of the Board of Education duly called and held on May 14, 1997 and has been compared by me with the original minutes as officially recorded in my office in the Executive Session Minute Book of the Board of Education and is a true, complete and correct copy thereof and of the whole of the original minutes so far as they relate to the subject matters referred to in the extract.

Board Members Present: Mr. Bond, Mrs. Cooke, Mr. Fantini, Mr. Moor, Mr. Neal, Mr. Young, Mr. Famularo, Vice President and Mrs. Solomon, President

On the Matter of Mr. Donnie Harrell, Mr. Peterson presented the following Resolution for the Board's consideration:

WHEREAS, the Asbury Park Board of Education has reviewed the Settlement Agreement regarding Mr. Donnie Harrell, and

WHEREAS, the Board has directed the return of Mr. Harrell to the classroom and the withholding of his increment for the 1997-98 school year only, and

WHEREAS, the Board does not wish to pursue tenure charges,

The Board hereby approves the Settlement Agreement.

The Board Members present discussed the settlement terms and there was consensus to support the adoption of this Resolution.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the corporate seal of the School District this 20th day of May 1997.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning food service workers alleged the Board violated statutory sick leave provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 and 30-3, in denying petitioners their accumulated sick leave rights when it established a new contract with them.

ALJ found that notwithstanding that the Board advised petitioners in or about June 1996 that their respective employment positions had been terminated and that petitioners collected unemployment insurance benefits over the summer months of 1996 until they commenced employment duties in September 1996, the fact remains that petitioners were "steadily employed" by the Board prior to June 1996 and their employment extended to the 1996-97 school year. For all intents and purposes, petitioners' employment was uninterrupted for sick leave purposes. (Upper Township) ALJ entered summary decision on behalf of petitioners and ordered that petitioners be credited with the accumulated sick leave time earned prior to June 30, 1996.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners, food service employees with the Board of Education of the City of Northfield (Board), allege, among other things, that the Board violated the statutory sick leave provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 and N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3, in denying petitioners their accumulated sick leave rights when it established a new contract with petitioners.

The matters were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as contested cases, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 and consolidated. A prehearing conference was held on February 7, 1997, at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey, at which, among other things, the parties agreed that there were no material facts in dispute. It was further agreed that the parties would cross-move for summary decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. The last submission was received by the undersigned on April 30, 1997, which constitutes the close of the hearing record.

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

THE BOARD'S POSITION

STATEMENT OF FACTS

The Board was compelled, as a result of budgetary shortfalls, to examine every aspect of its budget in the preparation of the 1996-1997 budget. The Board identified as an area of potential savings the cafeteria operations which, in past years, had generated a substantial deficit. The Board, in an attempt to deal with its budgetary needs, explored establishing a relationship with Mainland Regional High School ("Mainland"), the high school of which Northfield is a sending district. The relationship with Mainland would result in Mainland preparing the food for the cafeteria and then taking the responsibility to employ and supervise the cafeteria workers. Based upon discussions with Mainland, it became clear that the Board could save substantial sums of money by participating in this inter-governmental relationship.

In anticipation of the implementation of the program with Mainland, the Northfield cafeteria school workers, including the petitioners in this case, were notified that their one-year employment contract (1995-1996) was terminated as of June 30, 1996 and would not be renewed for the 1996-1997 school year. This action resulted in the cafeteria workers being terminated. In fact, several cafeteria workers, including the petitioners, applied for and received unemployment benefits. The Board paid the petitioners eight weeks of unemployment compensation for the summer of 1996. The Board paid the following amounts to the petitioners:

Petitioner Voorhees:	$1,576
Petitioner Levy:	$1,624
Petitioner Olsen:	$1.976
Petitioner Chau:	$1,224

In an attempt to ease the transition to the new relationship with Mainland, the Board, through its administration, met with the cafeteria workers involved, including the petitioners, and explored the possibility of hiring them for a one-year term at a reduced salary. Ultimately, petitioners entered into an employment contract with the Board on August 12, 1996, which provided, among other things, that the petitioners would receive a maximum of ten days sick leave during the term of the contract, i.e., September 1, 1996 through June 30, 1997.

The petitioners agree that they received the statutorily required ten days sick leave per year. However, the petitioners contend on this appeal, despite the fact that their contracts were terminated and they applied for and received unemployment benefits, that the accumulated sick time which they received in prior years of employment with the Board must be accumulated. As will be set forth more fully below, it is respectfully submitted that the petitioners' claims are without merit and that the Board is not required to allow the petitioners to accumulate sick time for the period prior to their termination.

LEGAL ARGUMENT

POINT I

SUMMARY DECISION IS APPROPRIATE IN FAVOR OF THE BOARD, AS THERE ARE NO GENUINE ISSUES OF MATERIAL FACT WHICH WOULD PRECLUDE JUDGMENT AS A MATER OF LAW

A party may seek summary decision at any time after the case is determined to be contested. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5.

In the instant matter, there are no genuine issues of material fact which would preclude the Court from entering judgment as a matter of law. It is undisputed that the Board was experiencing financial difficulties and was required to examine all areas of potential savings, including the cafeteria operation. Additionally, the arrangement the Board made with Mainland for the preparation of the cafeteria food, as well as the responsibility to employ and supervise the cafeteria workers, was an example of an inter-governmental venture to effectuate cost savings. It is also not in dispute that the petitioners were notified that their one-year employment contracts were terminated as of June 30, 1996, and that they would not be renewed for the 1996-1997 school year. Likewise, it is clear that the petitioners applied for and received unemployment benefits, which were paid by the Board. Lastly, there is no dispute that the petitioners entered into an employment contract with the Board which provided for a maximum of ten sick days as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2. There is no mention in the employment contract of any accumulated sick time.

The petitioners now seek to ignore the plain language of the employment contract which provides for ten days sick time and does not provide for any accumulation of sick time from prior years. The petitioners seek to rewrite the contract to provide a benefit to them which was not included in the employment contract. As will be set forth in Points II and III, the petitioners' position is contrary to the statutory requirements governing sick leave and general principles of contract law.

In light of the above, this matter is ripe for summary decision. See, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5; Matter of RoGros Recycling Corp., 226 N.J. Super. 343 (App. Div. 1988) cert. denied 113 N.J. 638.

POINT II

THE PETITIONERS ARE NOT ENTITLED TO ACCUMULATED SICK LEAVE PURSUANT TO THE APPLICABLE STATUTORY LAW

N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq. governs sick leave for school district employees. N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 provides:

> All persons holding any office, position, or employment in all local school districts, . . . of the state who are steadily employed by the Board of Education or who are protected by tenure in their office, position, or employment under the provisions of this or any other law, . . . shall be allowed sick leave with full pay for a minimum of 10 school days in any school year. (emphasis added)

N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3 then provides:

> If any such person requires at any school year less than the specified number of days of sick leave with pay allowed, all days of such minimum sick leave not utilized that year shall be accumulative to be used for additional sick leave as needed in subsequent years.

Moreover, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.1 provides when accumulated sick leave rights are preserved:

> The accumulative sick leave rights of the employees in any high school or junior high school or other school terminated by the creation of a regional district shall be recognized and preserved by the Regional Board of Education whenever said former employees of the united districts shall be employed, or have been employed, by the Regional Board of Education.

N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.2 provides a discretionary mechanism for a Board of Education to credit employees with unused sick leave:

> Whenever a Board of Education employs any person who has an unused accumulation of sick leave days from another school district in New Jersey, the employee Board may grant, not later than the end of the first year of employment, part or full credit therefor. The amount of any such credits shall be fixed by Resolution of the Board uniformly applicable to all employees and subject to the provisions of this chapter.

Thus, the statutory scheme provides school district employees with certain mandatory benefits as well as other benefits which are strictly discretionary with the Board in regard to sick leave and the accumulation of same. First, all school employees must be allowed sick leave with full pay for a minimum of ten school days in any school year. It is without question that the petitioners in this case have been granted the mandatory sick leave allowance pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2. Second, the accumulation of sick leave is only permitted when a school employee is "steadily employed by the Board of Education or they are protected by tenure in their position." See, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3. In the instant mater, the petitioners are not "steadily employed" or "protected by tenure." The petitioners were clearly terminated from their positions on June 30, 1996, and did not have any reasonable expectation of future employment at that time. The best evidence of that is the fact that the petitioners sought and received unemployment benefits after they were terminated. Petitioners made their claim on or about June 30, 1996, and received unemployment compensation for eight consecutive weeks, beginning in July and ending in August. In August 1996, the petitioners were rehired, long after they applied for and were granted unemployment benefits, based upon a written employment contract which was executed by the individual petitioners and the Board. At the time of the termination, the petitioners had no reasonable expectation of returning to employment with the Board. Accordingly, it is respectfully submitted that the termination of petitioners from employment renders the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3 inapplicable to the petitioners, as they were not "steadily employed" by the Board. This is corroborated by the fact that the petitioners applied for and received unemployment benefits following their notice of termination on June 30, 1996.

A review of the other pertinent provisions of the sick leave statutory scheme, namely, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.1 and -3.2, leads to the conclusion that the petitioners are not entitled to accumulative sick leave in the instant matter. The petitioners cannot make a claim that they were terminated by the creation of a regional district which would, in that case, mandate that the Board allow them to accumulate their sick time. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.1. A better analogy is found in N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.2 which provides that a Board has the discretionary authority to allow an employee from another school district in the State of New Jersey to accumulate unused sick leave days. However, there is nothing in the statute which mandates that the Board provide the accumulated unused sick leave in the situation where a Board hires an employee from another school district in New Jersey who has accumulated unused sick leave from its previous employer. The statute leaves it entirely up to the Board whether they will permit the accumulation of the unused sick leave. In the instant matter, the Board made a decision to hire the petitioners after they were terminated and after petitioners applied for and received unemployment compensation. The Board made a decision, which they were permitted to do under the statutory scheme of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq. to not include any provisions in the contract to grant the petitioners' accumulated sick leave from their prior employment. The Board, of course, did comply with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 by allowing the petitioners full pay for up to ten school days during the term of the contract. Accordingly, the petitioners' complaint must be dismissed.

POINT III

PETITIONERS' COMPLAINT MUST BE DISMISSED AS IT IGNORES THE LANGUAGE OF THE EMPLOYMENT CONTRACT FOR THE 1996-1997 SCHOOL YEAR

It is a basic rule of contract construction that the "polestar of construction" is the intention of the parties. Kearny PBA Local No. 21 v. Town of Kearny, 81 N.J. 208, 221 (1979). In Jacobs v. Great Pacific Century Corp., 104 N.J. 580, 586 (1986), the New Jersey Supreme Court stated:

> As always, in the quest for the intention of the parties to the contract, the "attending circumstances, including practices and custom, may serve to clarify the common intention of the parties." But the judicial interpretative function is to consider what was written, in the entire context of the circumstances under which it > was written, and to accord the language a rational meaning in keeping with the express general purpose.

In Communication Workers v. Monmouth County Board, 96 N.J. 442, 452 (1984), the New Jersey Supreme Court stated:

> The polestar of contractual interpretation is the intent of the parties. The starting point in ascertaining that intent is the language of the contract. It is also permissible to shed further light on the parties' intent, to consider and examine the circumstances that existed when the contract was made. However, once the parties' intent is determined on the basis of the evidence available, that intent may not be disregarded to create a new or better contract or to add to, subtract from, modify, or alter any terms of the agreement.

The beginning point in the analysis of determining the intent of the parties is to examine the circumstances that existed when the contract was made. It is clear that the petitioners were terminated from their position as cafeteria workers due to the budgetary constraints which the Board was experiencing. The Board opted to enter negotiations with Mainland for the preparation of the cafeteria food and the employment of the cafeteria workers. At the time that the petitioners were terminated, there was no reasonable expectation of continuing employment with the Northfield School District (the "District"). This fact was further evidenced by the petitioners' choice to seek and ultimately obtain unemployment benefits following the notice of termination. Thus, at the time that the petitioners entered the new contract with the Board for the 1996-1997 school year, the petitioners were not employed by the Board and had no reasonable expectation of continued employment with the District.

Additionally, the language in the new contract for 1996-1997 expressly made mention of the petitioners' rights to sick leave, i.e., the petitioners were only given ten days of paid sick leave. This was all that was required under the applicable statutory provisions. If the Board so chose, it could have provided for the accumulation of unused sick leave from prior employment periods. See Point II. However, the contract did not so provide. As our Supreme Court has noted, a contracting party cannot disregard the intent of the parties to create a "new or better contract." See, Communications Workers v. Monmouth County Board, 96 N.J. at 452. Thus, the petitioners' complaint must be dismissed with prejudice.

PETITIONERS' POSITION

COUNTER STATEMENT OF FACTS

Petitioners Mary Olsen, Carol Voorhees, Elizabeth Chau and Sandra Levy have been long term employees of the Board, they each have been assigned to work in the food service program. Each year of their employment they worked from September through school closing in June. Each year they were granted ten sick days in accord with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2. Each year sick leave days not used were carried over and accumulated for later use as per the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18:3-3.

In the spring of 1996 the petitioners were notified that their employment would be terminated as of June 1996. The petitioners applied for and received unemployment benefits for July and August 1996. The Board did not contest these applications or payments which it had a right to do.

In August 1996, the Board issued contracts to the petitioners for the period September 1, 1996, through June 30, 1996. This contract provided for ten sick days but did not provide for use of the previously accumulated sick leave during the 1996-97 school year.

LEGAL ARGUMENT

I. THE APPLICABLE STATUTORY AND CASE LAW REQUIRE THAT THE PETITIONERS ARE ENTITLED TO ACCUMULATED SICK LEAVE CREDIT DURING THE 1996-97 SCHOOL YEAR

The Board argues that the statutory scheme provides school district employees with certain mandatory benefits as well as other benefits which are strictly discretionary with the Board in regard to sick leave and the accumulation of same.

The Board further cites N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 and emphasizes that this statute requires that persons who are steadily employed in school districts shall be allowed sick leave with full pay for a minimum of ten school days in any school year. In its statement of the facts, the Board asserts that the petitioners entered into an employment contract with the Board on August 12, 1996, which includes ten days of sick leave during the term of the contract. The Board goes on to say, "The Petitioners agree that they received the statutorily required 10 days' sick leave per year." (Board brief, pp. 2 & 3)

The Board further cites N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3 which provides for the accumulation and later use of sick leave days not currently used. Both N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 and 3 place an affirmative obligation upon the Board as employer and allows no discretion on the part of the Board.

The Board then cites N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.1 and -3.2 which petitioners submit are not relevant to the facts of this case.

The Board maintains that the petitioners in the instant case are not "steadily employed" or "protected by tenure." The evidence presented is that the employees sought and received unemployment benefits for the months of July and August 1996.

Petitioners submit that the issue of the petitioners' application for and collection of unemployment benefits is not dispositive of this issue.

While the case law on the interpretation of the phrase "steadily employed" in N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 is not extensive, what does exist is clear in its meaning. In DeGrott v. Board of Education of Passaic County, 13 N.J.A.R. 438, the Commissioner and the State Board of Education affirmed the determination of the administrative law judge (ALJ) when he concluded that coaching duties did not constitute steady employment because they were not "regular or continuous employment for the entire school year or the entire academic year." DeGrott, Ibid. 448.

In the instant case, the petitioners have always been employed for a full academic year including the 1996-97 academic year.

In Schwartz v. Dover Public Schools, 180 N.J. Super. 222 (App. Div. 1981), the court determined an issue of prorated sick leave for new employees and in doing so defined the term "steadily employed." The court held that: "It is more likely that the Legislature was contemplating regular, full time employees and did not contemplate employees who are hired for less than a full school year. Employees who work a full school year are guaranteed 10 days of paid sick leave." Schwartz, Ibid., p. 227.

In the instant case, each of the petitioners have worked full school years for each year of their employment including the 1996-97 school year.

Attached to this statement is a copy of Upper Township Education Association on behalf of Christine Argoe, et al. v. Board of Education of Twp. of Upper, 93 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 45 (1992) in which the above citations from DeGrott and Schwartz are taken and which further defines the concept of "steadily employed."

In Upper Twp., the specific issue was whether an employee was entitled to accumulate prior unused sick leave. The employee has been employed by the Board in several positions from September 1987 through late January 1991. She was not employed from February through June 1991. When she was reemployed in September 1991, the Board did not recognize her previously accumulated sick leave allowance. The ALJ determined and the Commissioner of Education concurred that employment in forty-five out of fifty possible months or ninety percent of the time equaled steady employment.

The ALJ went on to say:

> In addition, the intent of the statute is to reward long term, faithful employees. It serves no other purpose. Pelz is a long term faithful employee. She accepted every position offered to her during the five years. She accepted a temporary appointment as a resource room long term substitute in 1990, then returned to her position as > an aide when that appointment expired. She is entitled to the protection of the statute. A contrary result would deprive the statute of its full force and effect. A parsimonious school board could regularly lay off long term faithful employees at four (4) or five (5) year intervals and save accumulated sick time. Such a plan could also backfire when the practice was recognized for what it is, an attempt to circumvent the statute. Many employees would utilize sick leave to the fullest extent possible so that they would not lose it; thereby requiring the Board to employ extra people for the contingency. Upper Twp., Ibid. (p. 45)

It looks to us that the ALJ had this Board in mind when he put these words together.

The petitioners have had no break in service. Within the context of Upper Twp., the petitioners have worked fifty out of fifty months or one hundred percent of the time. If ninety percent qualifies as steady employment, one hundred percent cannot be any less.

II. THE ISSUE IS A MATTER OF LAW NOT OF CONTRACT INTERPRETATION

The Board argues that the employment contract signed by the petitioners for the 1996-97 school year contains provision for ten sick days for the petitioners but not for the previously accumulated leave and that the contract controls this situation.

Petitioners submit that in the absence of a controlling statute, the Board would be correct. In the face of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 and 3 it is not. In State v. State Supervisory Employees Assn., 78 N.J. 54, 80-82 (1978), the court preempted negotiations over a term and condition of employment if such matter is covered by a statute or regulation which speaks in the imperative. While the issue before that court was raised in a collective bargaining context, the holding applies to all public employees which includes the petitioners. N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 and 3 speak in the imperative. Their provisions may not be modified by a contract.

III. THE BOARD'S OBLIGATION TO GRANT TEN SICK DAYS FOR THE 1996-97 SCHOOL YEAR ASSUMES AN OBLIGATION TO RECOGNIZE PRIOR ACCUMULATED SICK LEAVE DAYS

The Board has recognized its obligation to grant petitioners ten sick leave days for the 1996-97 school year:

> . . . The petitioners were only given 10 days of paid sick leave. This was all that was required under applicable statutory provisions. (Board brief, p. 8)

N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 and 3 must be read together, they are to be read ". . . as a unitary and harmonious whole, in order that each may be fully effective." Clifton v. Passaic County Board of Taxation, 28 N.J. 411, 421 (1958). Accord Brewer v. Porch, 53 N.J. 167, 174 (1969); Porcelli et al. v. Titus et al., 108 N.J. Super. 301, 309 (App. Div. 1969) as cited in Woodbridge Twp. Fed. of Tchrs. v. Bd. of Ed. Twp. of Woodbridge and Woodbridge Twp. Sch. Adm. Assn. v. Bd. of Ed. Twp. of Woodbridge, 1974 S.L.D. 1201.

In Woodbridge, the Commissioner quotes extensively from King v. Bd. of Ed. Borough of Woodcliff Lake, 1972 S.L.D. 449 in reviewing the legislative history of sick leave for school employees:

> "The original enactment of P.L. 1941, c.142 granted certain provisions of sick leave to 'teachers, principals and supervising principals.' The title of this act was changed by P.L. 1952, c.237 to provide sick leave benefits for teachers, principals, assistant superintendents and superintendents." A general revision of this law was accomplished by the enactment of P.L. 1954, c.188, which extended the scope of these sick leave benefits to "certain persons in the public schools of this State." The statement attached to this legislation enunciated two purposes of this bill, the second being "to extend the coverage of the law to include all persons steadily employed by board of education." The language of the specific 1954 statute, N.J.S.A. 18:13-23.8 (now 18A:30-2) clearly provides that the act applies to "all persons holding any office, position, or employment in all local school districts, regional school districts or county vocational schools of the state who are steadily employed by the board of education or > who are protected by tenure in their office, position, or employment under the provisions of this or any other law."

> Further amendments and additions were made to this basic act by P.L. 1956, c.58, permitting the granting of sick leave above the minimum of ten days; P.L. 1958, C.150, allowing additional sick leave days above the minimum of ten to accumulate, but limiting the annual accumulation of such unused days to fifteen; P.L. 1959, c.175, providing for leave with pay for injury arising out, and in the course, of the performance of duties, for up to one calendar year; P.L. 1960, c.53, protecting the accumulated sick leave of employees who continue employment after a regional school district is created; P.L. 1960, c.54, providing similar protection for employees of public schools which consolidate; P.L. 1961, c.35, permitting local school boards to hire teachers with accumulated sick leave from other school districts within the same county and transfer such leave; and P.L. 1967, c.177, broadening the transfer of accumulated sick days for new employees from any other school district within the State.

The Commissioner's conclusion was stated in King, supra, as follows:

> . . . Thus the thirty-year history of this legislation discloses a consistent legislative purpose to broaden the scope of beneficiaries, and no instance of restrictive language to permit any limitation of the designated beneficiaries at the discretion of local boards of education. Therefore, the Commissioner finds no authority in the controlling statute of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq. to permit such a limitation. Sick leave provisions adopted by a local Board of Education pursuant to the statutes, ante, must apply to all persons as defined by N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2. (1972 S.L.D. at 455)

In the instant case, it is the intent of the Board to restrict and limit this benefit to petitioners in contravention to the intention of the law as interpreted by the Commissioner.

The recognition of the granting of ten sick days under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 brings with it the obligation to recognize the availability for use of all previously accumulated sick leave under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.

The petitioners qualify for sick leave under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 because they have been steadily employed as defined in the statute. This benefit is a statutory right of the employees which may not be altered by any discretionary action of the Board and cannot be affected by the terms of any contract between an individual and the Board. The recognition of sick leave entitlement under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 carries with it the right to use of previously accumulated sick leave under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3. The statutes and applicable case law supports the position of the petitioners. The petition must be sustained and an order must be issued directing that the Board recognize the availability for use by the petitioners of all previously accumulated sick leave days.

THE BOARD'S RESPONSE

The Board's Reply Brief has been reviewed and considered. It will not be repeated here.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) summary decision may be rendered when "the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a mater of law." In the analogous area of summary judgment, it has been recognized by the courts that a summary judgment "is designed to provide a prompt, businesslike and inexpensive method of disposing of any cause, which a discriminating search of the merits in the pleadings, depositions and admissions on file, together with the affidavits submitted on the motion shows not to present a genuine issue of material fact requiring disposition at trial." Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 64, 74 (1954).

It has been held that mere assertions and allegations in the pleadings are insufficient to defeat a motion for summary judgment. Ocean Cape Hotel Corporation v. Masefield Corporation, 63 N.J. Super. 369, 383 (App. Div. 1960). Instead, when a movant establishes certain facts, one who opposes the motion has a duty to come forward with any controverting facts. Heljon Management Corp. v. DiLeo, 55 N.J. Super. 306, 313 (App. Div. 1959).

Recently, the New Jersey Supreme Court re-examined the standards applied to summary judgment motions. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995). The Court in Brill emphasized that "where the party opposing summary judgment points only to disputed facts that are 'of an insubstantial nature' " the proper disposition is summary judgment. Id. at 541.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the instant matter is ripe for summary decision.

The threshold issue to be determined is whether this is a matter of statutory dimension or whether it sounds in contract. It is clear that the "Commissioner shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine . . . all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.

As the State Board of Education (State Board) stated in Poole v. BOE of the Passaic County Reg. Sch. Dist. No. 1, 1978 S.L.D. 1039-1040:

> It is well settled that the Commissioner's jurisdiction does not extend to controversies arising under other laws, as for example pension or taxation acts, even though a school district may be a party to the controversy. Reilly v. Board of Education of Camden, 127 N.J.L. 490 (Sup. Ct. 1941); Board of Education of Fair Lawn v. Mayor and Council of Fair Lawn, 143 N.J. Super. 259 (Law Div. 1976). Furthermore, where questions purely of law are involved, the initial jurisdiction of the education authorities is not exclusive, but concurrent with that of the courts. Borough of Matawan v. County Board of Taxation, 51 N.J. 291 (1969); Silverman v. Board of Education of Millburn, 143 N.J. Super. 253 (Law Div. 1975).

It continued to say, at 1040, that:

> The Legislature vested the Commissioner with authority to decide controversies arising under the school laws in order that he might > better meet his "overriding responsibility to make certain that the terms and policies of the school laws are being faithfully effectuated." Booker v. Board of Education of Plainfield, 45 N.J. 151, 175 (1965); Laba v. Newark Board of Education, 23 N.J. 364, 381-384 (1957); In re Masiello, 25 N.J. 590, 605-607 (1958). . . .

See also, Salley v. BOE City of Newark, 1984 S.L.D. 1714-1718, 1720.

Here, the Board raises two defenses; i.e., (1) that it is cloaked with discretion in its application of employee unused sick leave under N.J.S.A. 18:20-3.2 and, (2) that this controversy sounds in contract. Addressing the later defense first, there is no question the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction over contract disputes. Poole, supra; Salley, supra. To the extent that the parties herein have entered into a contract for the 1996-97 school year, the Commissioner is compelled to refrain from comment. The statutory implications concerning N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 to -3.2 are, however, viable before the Commissioner.

The statute, at N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2, provides as follows:

> All persons holding any office, position, or employment in all local school districts, regional school districts or county vocational schools of the state who are steadily employed by the board of education or who are protected by tenure in their office, position, or employment under the provisions of this or any other law, except persons in the classified service of the civil service under Title 11, Civil Service, of the Revised Statutes, shall be allowed sick leave with full pay for a minimum of 10 school days in any school year. (emphasis supplied)

There is neither question nor doubt that petitioners have been employed by the Board and that they enjoyed steady employment each school year from September until June. Upper Township Ed. Asso., supra. There is no dispute that during the course of their employment, petitioners were allowed a minimum of ten sick leave days per year.

N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3 provides, in toto, as follows:

> If any such person requires at any school year less than the specified number of days of sick leave with pay allowed, all days of such minimum sick leave not utilized that year shall be accumulative to be used for additional sick leave as needed in subsequent years. (emphasis supplied)

Each of the statutory provisions contain the word "shall" with regard to the Board's obligations and responsibilities. Our State Supreme Court has addressed the construction of statutes where the statute contains the words "shall" and "may." In Harvey v. Essex County Board of Freeholders, 30 N.J. 381 (1959), the Court said:

> In determining whether a statute is mandatory or directive regard shall be had to the purpose and intent of the Legislature. Mr. Justice Heher in Leeds v. Harrison, 9 N.J. 202, 213 (1952) stated:
>
> > "May" is a permissive and not an imperative verb which is to be given its natural and ordinary meaning, barring a clear contextual indication of a different usage. The question is essentially one of legislative intent, to be gathered from the nature and object of the statute considered as a whole; and in that inquiry public and individual rights are sometimes factors to be regarded.
>
> The word "may" is ordinarily permissive or directory, and the words "must" and "shall" are generally mandatory. Id. at 391.

Similarly, the Court said, in Union Terminal Cold Storage Co. v. Spence, 17 N.J. 162 (1954), that:

> In determining whether an act is imperative and mandatory or merely directory there is a presumption that the word "shall" (such word appears in this statute) is used in an imperative and not a directory sense, and while this presumption is not a conclusive one it can only be overthrown by something in the character of the legislation or in the context which will justify a different meaning. (Citations omitted) Id. at 166.

In both instances the quoted sections of the statutes contain and use the word "shall." As a matter of statutory construction, there is a presumption that the word "shall" appearing in a statute is used in the mandatory or imperative sense and not in a directory sense. The word "may," however, is used in a permissive and directory sense.

With respect to the legislative intent of the sick leave statutes under Title 18A, the petitioners properly cite the King, supra, matter where the Commissioner laid out the scope and purpose of the Legislature in its enactment and amendments of the statutes. The stated purpose of the Legislature is to broaden the scope of the benefits rather than to restrict or limit the benefits at the discretion of the Board. King, at 455.

The Board's attempt to use N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.2 to provide it with wide discretion is misplaced. That statute only provides a local board of education the discretion to grant or not grant, unused accumulated sick leave days from another New Jersey school district where the new employee had accumulated sick leave days pursuant to *N.J.S.A.*18A:30-3 with the former employing board of education. There is nothing in N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.2 which provides the Board the discretion to withhold accumulated sick leave days earned and credited pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.

Notwithstanding that the Board advised petitioners in or about June 1996 that their respective employment positions had been terminated and that petitioners collected unemployment insurance benefits over the summer months of 1996, the fact remains that the petitioners were employed by the Board and commenced their employment duties in September 1996 for the 1996-97 school year. For all intents and purposes, petitioners' employment was uninterrupted for sick leave purposes. Upper Township, supra.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioners were "steadily employed" by the Board prior to June 1996, and that their employment extended to the 1996-97 school year. N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.

I CONCLUDE that each of the petitioners had accumulated sick leave time pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3 and that such accumulated sick leave time is required to be credited in their present employment.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED, consistent with the above, that petitioners be credited with the accumulated sick leave time earned prior to June 30, 1996.

Therefore, summary decision is hereby entered on behalf of petitioners and the Board's motion for summary decision is DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that petitioners are entitled to summary judgment based on the provisions of applicable law. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.13. See, also, Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995), and Judson, supra. The Commissioner finds that the ALJ correctly characterized the intent of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 and -3, and related case law, in determining that the Board must restore petitioners' accumulated sick leave time. It is herein reiterated that these provisions of statute may not be modified by contract.

The Commissioner further notes that although petitioners collected unemployment benefits for eight weeks, this does not thwart their entitlement to accumulated sick leave time where, as here, they were steadily employed and there was, in effect, no break in service from the previous year. As was explicated in Upper Township, supra,

> [a] contrary result would deprive the statute [N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3] of its full force and effect. A parsimonious school board could regularly lay off long term faithful employees at four (4) or five (5) year intervals and save accumulated sick time. (Id. at 46)

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL, hereby entering summary judgment in favor of petitioners.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE SEBASTIAN GAETA, JR., ALJ:

STATEMENT OF CASE

The petitioner in this matter seeks a determination as to the responsibility for providing educational services to J.E., a classified student.

The respondent has moved for summary decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5.

This matter is related to the special education case, J.E. v. Mahwah Board of Education, OAL Docket No. EDS 11287-95, which was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on or about September 28, 1995. It was assigned to the undersigned Administrative Law Judge. Shortly thereafter, by letter of October 5, 1995, the Mahwah Board of Education (Mahwah) advised the Director of Special Education for the Ramapo-Indian Hills School District (Ramapo-Indian Hills) that Mahwah believed that J.E. was residing with his mother in Franklin Lakes which is within the Ramapo-Indian Hills regional district. Mahwah advised that a classification meeting was scheduled for October 16, 1995.

No response was made to that letter and counsel for Mahwah made a motion before the Office of Administrative Law to compel joinder of the Ramapo-Indian Hills Regional Board of Education as an indispensable party or, in the alternative, for an order "binding the said Ramapo-Indian Hills Regional School Board of Education to the results of the outcome of the within matter determined either by judgment, order or settlement."

In his October 16, 1995 letter to the Administrative Law Judge, counsel for Ramapo-Indian Hills submitted objections to the motion. By letter of October 31, 1995, the Administrative Law Judge, inter alia, addressed that motion, noting that:

> The determination of which school district may be responsible for the education of a child is a matter within the purview of the Department of Education. An order by an Administrative Law Judge in a special education matter is not reviewable by the Commissioner of Education.
>
> The relief sought by Mr. Sullivan, on behalf of the respondent, Mahwah Board of Education, may be requested of the Department of Educaion which may refer the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as an education matter, with the right of final decision reserved to the Commissioner.

On November 9, 1995, Mahwah filed a petition with the Department of Education seeking an order to have Ramapo-Indian Hills assume responsibility of the education for J.E., to reimburse Mahwah for his educational expenses and the expenses of the special education matter.

Ramapo-Indian Hills did not participate in the special education matter. Following hearings on October 18, 1995, November 13, 1995 and November 27, 1995, the parties arrived at a settlement of the matter which was approved by the Administrative Law Judge on April 9, 1996.

On March 25, 1997, the Office of Administrative Law received from respondent, Ramapo-Indian Hills, a motion and supporting papers for summary decision. Petitioner, Mahwah, submitted its brief in opposition, received April 7, 1997.

The motion for summary decision relies upon Cherry Hill Board of Education v. Board of Education of Haddonfield, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 1032.[1] In that case, there was a settlement by which a pupil, J.G., a classified student was sent by Cherry Hill to a residential placement, after which his father moved from Cherry Hill to Haddonfield without notifying Cherry Hill. The father did later notify Haddonfield. The issue was the responsibility for tuition during the period of the move from Cherry Hill until the time that Haddonfield became aware of the move.

The Commissioner of Education concurred with the decision of the Administrative Law Judge that the central issue was a contract dispute and that the Commissioner has no jurisdiction to decide issues relating to a contract.

DISCUSSION

Although there was a settlement in the related special education matter giving rise to the present dispute, the events leading up to that disposition and the circumstances of the instant parties are significantly different than those in Cherry Hill.

[1] The Final Decision was issued September 23, 1996. An appeal to the State Board of Education is pending.

Shortly after the special education matter was filed, Mahwah became aware that the pupil may, in fact, be living with his mother in Franklin Lakes. Mahwah attempted to have the cognizant school district, Ramapo-Indian Hills, intervene by motion, which was denied, and by invitation, which was declined.

Thereafter, Mahwah fully participated as a party in the matter. Following three days of hearing, and after extensive discussion among the several parties, the matter was resolved by a detailed settlement agreement.

In Cherry Hill, Judge Campbell stated "[t]he state has a strong public policy in favor of settlements." [citations omitted]. at 1034. Such policy would not be served should the holding in Cherry Hill be applied to facts similar to the instant matter. In special education cases in which a respondent school district believes another school district, not a party, may be responsible for the education of the classified student, such respondent school district would be disinclined to settle any matter lest it be barred from seeking reimbursement from the district wherein the child is domiciled.

Ramapo-Indian Hills assiduously avoided participation in the special education matter, knowing that Mahwah had reason to believe that the pupil may have been domiciled within the district served by Ramapo-Indian Hills. Under those circumstances, the rationale of Cherry Hill does not bestow upon Ramapo-Indian Hills an unwarranted benefit of a settlement which Mahwah entered in good faith in the belief it served the educational needs of a J.E., a classified student.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that respondent's motion for summary decision be and is DENIED.

This order denying partial summary decision is being submitted under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(e) for immediate review. This recommended order may be adopted, modified or rejected by COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make the final decision in this matter. If Commissioner does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended order shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this order was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DECISION

Synopsis

Following tenure proceedings brought by the Board (In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Daniel Woodside, School District of the City of Elizabeth, Union County, Decision dated April 19, 1993) wherein the Board and Woodside entered into a settlement agreement, petitioner seeks salary payments pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.

ALJ found that the Appellate Division's decision to uphold the settlement agreement resolves the instant dispute. As per the terms of the agreement, petitioner is not entitled to any salary payments from the Board beyond June 30, 1993, the date on which he agreed to resign. Thus, the ALJ dismissed petition.

The Commissioner adopted the initial decision.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 354-10/93

DANIEL L. WOODSIDE,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY,
Respondent.

Daniel L. Woodside, petitioner, pro se

David F. Corrigan, Esq., for respondent (Murray, Murray & Corrigan, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 26, 1997 Decided: May 7, 1997

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about October 29, 1993, petitioner, Daniel L. Woodside, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education for salary payments pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. By letter dated November 4, 1993, respondent filed a letter in answer to the petition. After additional correspondence, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14-1 to -13. The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on January 7, 1994, and a prehearing conference was scheduled for March 31, 1994. During the conference, the parties agreed that this matter should be placed on the inactive list until the determination of petitioner's appeal by the Appellate Division of the Superior Court (Dkt. No. A-1077-93T3). Mr. Woodside confirmed this request by letter dated March 31, 1994, and respondent consented by letter dated April 8, 1994. When additional motions were thereafter filed by petitioner, I scheduled oral argument on the issue of whether this matter should properly be placed on the inactive list, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-9.7. On May 23, 1994, the date scheduled for oral argument, the parties agreed that the matter should be placed on the inactive list pending resolution of the same issue in the Superior Court proceeding. I signed an order dated May 31, 1994, to that effect.

The Appellate Division has made its determination, and the instant matter is ripe for consideration. On February 28, 1997, respondent moved to dismiss petitioner's petition for salary payment. On March 7, 1997, petitioner filed an answer requesting back pay and the return of his teaching certificate. Respondent filed a reply, received March 24, 1997, and on March 26, 1997, petitioner responded thereto.

The facts are essentially undisputed. They are as set forth by respondent and may be summarized as follows. The Elizabeth Board of Education (Board) hired Dr. Daniel Woodside as a teacher in its school district effective September 1, 1987. On or about May 14, 1992, the Board filed and certified tenure charges against Woodside, pursuant to allegations of corporal punishment and inappropriate physical intervention with students. Hence, the Board suspended Woodside without pay, effective May 15, 1992. Tenure hearings regarding this matter were held at the Office of Administrative Law, and on November 19, 1992, I ordered the Board to resume salary payments to Woodside pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. Since Woodside's suspension after certification had exceeded 120 days without a final determination rendered, the law required the Board to resume salary payments effective September 12, 1992.

On February 9, 1993, while the case was still being heard, Woodside and the Board entered into a settlement agreement which provided that the Board would pay Woodside's full salary until June 30, 1993, after which Woodside would resign/retire and surrender his teaching certificate. I engaged Woodside in an extensive colloquy to ensure that he understood the settlement and freely and voluntarily consented to its terms. I recommended the settlement to the Commissioner of Education for approval pursuant to an Initial Decision/Settlement.

Woodside subsequently filed exceptions to the Initial Decision, seeking to repudiate the settlement. On April 19, 1993, the Commissioner rejected the settlement and remanded the matter for rehearing. On October 6, 1993, the Board appealed the Commissioner's decision to the State Board of Education. The State Board reversed the Commissioner. It held that the February 9, 1993 settlement entered into by the Board and Woodside was valid. Woodside appealed the State Board decision to the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, Union County.

On October 15, 1993, while Woodside's appeal was still pending before the Appellate Division, Woodside filed the instant petition for salary payments before the Commissioner of Education. He stated that: (1) N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 mandates that the Elizabeth Board continue paying him until the State Board reversed the Commissioner on October 6, 1993, thereby blocking his case from going to trial; and (2) N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 mandates paying him during appeal to the appellate court.

As stated above, by agreement of both parties I ordered placement of Woodside's petition for salary payment on the inactive list for three months, or until a decision was rendered by the Superior Court.

On October 27, 1994, the Appellate Division upheld the State Board's ruling that the settlement agreement of February 9, 1993, between Woodside and the Board was valid and that Woodside's resignation from the Board was effective on June 30, 1993, as agreed upon. The court specifically stated:

> Woodside's sworn testimony consistently shows that he completely understood the terms of the agreement and entered into it voluntarily. Therefore, Woodside's argument that the Elizabeth Board used N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 to "commit > grand theft of two months pay" from him is clearly without merit. R. 2:11-3(e)(1)(E).

> Woodside's contention that he should continue to be paid until resolution of the case is also clearly without merit. R. 2:11-3(e)(1)(E). One of the stipulations in the settlement agreement upheld by the State Board was that Woodside's resignation was effective June 30, 1993. Therefore, Woodside is no longer entitled to payment because he is no longer an employee of the Board.
> [No. A-1077-93T3 at 5-6.]

It is clear that the instant appeal is resolved by the Appellate Division's determination. Woodside is not entitled to any salary payments from the Board beyond June 30, 1993. As a result of the Appellate Division's determination, Woodside's petition for salary payment beyond June 30, 1993, must be dismissed.

Moreover, and as stated by respondent in its reply letter dated March 21, 1997, petitioner's request for an order for back pay and the return of his teaching certificate must be dismissed. Clearly, the back pay issue was resolved by the Appellate Division decision of October 27, 1994, and Woodside's surrender of his teaching certificate was part of the settlement agreement that was affirmed by the Appellate Division. Nothing set forth in petitioner's papers warrants relief from the terms of that agreement.

In sum, I CONCLUDE that the Appellate Division's determination renders the instant appeal by petitioner moot. It is hereby ORDERED that Woodside's petition for salary payments pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DANIEL L. WOODSIDE,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner again repudiates the agreement which he entered into on February 9, 1993, essentially contending that he was blackmailed by the Board of Education, whose actions, along with those of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) resulted in a "criminally corrupted settlement." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 4) Petitioner, therefore, asserts that he is entitled to back pay until October 17, 1994, the date of the Appellate Court's decision in the prior tenure matter. (Id.) Finally, petitioner avers that, inasmuch as the State Board of Examiners has not yet taken any action with respect to his certificate, he has retained said certificate and should be permitted to do so. (Id.)

In response, the Board contends that petitioner's exception arguments " are irrelevant because he has voluntarily agreed to waive his tenure rights as well as surrender his teaching certificate [in] return for salary payments that ended on June 30, 1993." (Board's Reply at pp. 1, 2) Thus, the Board urges that this matter be dismissed.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs that the within Petition of Appeal is properly dismissed. As the ALJ aptly noted, it is clear that the decision rendered by the Appellate Division as to the validity of the settlement agreement entered into by petitioner and the Board necessarily resolves the within dispute, since petitioner is deemed to have resigned from the Board on June 30, 1993, and is entitled to no compensation beyond that date.

As to petitioner's teaching certificate, the Commissioner notes that the pertinent term of the agreement signed by both parties provides that:

> Dr. Woodside voluntarily relinquishes all teaching licenses and certificates for the appropriate action, if any, by the State Board of Examiners.  (In re Woodside, Decision dated April 19, 1993, Agreement at p. 3, paragraph 4)

The agreement also makes clear that petitioner resigned his position, as of June 30, 1993, "with the expressed intention of retiring, thereby concluding his teaching career." (Id. at pp. 2, 3, paragraph 2)

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. This matter shall be forwarded to the State Board of Education for action as it deems appropriate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, and petitioner, in accordance with the agreement, supra, shall thereupon cooperate fully with any such proceedings. The Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

JUNE 23, 1997

IN THE MATTER	:	BEFORE THE SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION
OF	:
	:	Docket No.: C15-96/C26-96
MARK CONNOLLY,	:	Consolidated
West Milford Board of Education	:
Passaic County	:	DECISION

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from two complaints filed by Leroy Gearl and Steven Brandt against Mark Connolly, a member of the West Milford Board of Education. Leroy Gearl filed his complaint on May 8, 1996. Mr. Brandt filed a complaint on August 15, 1996. The complaints alleged, in pertinent part, that Mr. Connolly violated various provisions of the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., in connection with his wife's employment application with the West Milford school district.

When Mark Connolly received the complaint of Steven Brandt, he asked that the complaints be consolidated. The Commission consented to his request. Thus, the Commission accepted the answer to Mr. Gearl's complaint as the answer to the complaint of Mr. Brandt.

The Commission heard testimony from witnesses at its meeting on February 25, 1997. It tabled a decision on the case at the public meeting. At the April 8, 1997, special meeting of the Commission, the Commission concluded that there were no material issues of fact that needed resolution at an evidentiary hearing. The Commission then adopted a decision finding probable cause to credit some of the allegations in the complaint of Leroy Gearl. Specifically, the Commission found probable cause to credit the allegations in paragraphs one, four and five of the complaint, which state the following:

> 1) Mr. Connolly was a member of the Personnel Committee that consisted of three board members. Mr. Connolly should have removed himself from that Committee when his wife was being considered for a teaching position in the West Milford school district.
> 4) When the motion for the hiring of Mr. Connolly's wife failed, Mr. Connolly solicited the school board attorney for a legal opinion on how to bring the resolution back to the floor for a new vote.
> 5) After getting the legal opinion, Mr. Connolly then called the one school board member who would be able to bring it back to the floor for a vote. When this member told Mr. Connolly he would not agree with this, Mr. Connolly proceeded to berate and make slanderous remarks to this board member.

The Commission did not find probable cause to credit the allegations in the complaint of Steven Brandt although his complaint was also based on Mrs. Connolly's application for employment. The wording of the complaint was such that the allegations were either not supported by the record, or if supported, could not sustain a finding of probable cause of an ethics violation. Accordingly, the Commission dismissed the allegations in his complaint as set forth in the Commission's probable cause letter of April 8, 1997.

The Commission invited Mr. Connolly to submit in writing his position as to why his actions do not constitute a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the School Ethics Act. The Commission further directed that if Mr. Connolly is of the opinion that there are material facts in dispute, he shall set forth those facts and explain why they are material to the disposition of the case. It also invited Mr. Connolly to include his position on the appropriate sanction in the event that the Commission finds a violation. The Commission received his written statement on May 13, 1997.

Mr. Connolly's affidavit in answer to the complaint of Leroy Gearl set forth the following responses to the three allegations in which the Commission found probable cause:

1) Mark Connolly was a member of the Personnel Committee when the superintendent presented his wife's name to the committee for review on September 25, 1995. He states that the committee consisted of four rather than three members: Mr. Duffy; Mrs. Nobis; Mrs. Shoemaker and himself. At the Committee meeting in question, Mrs. Touw was present in Mrs. Shoemaker's place. He did not leave the room but sat quietly listening to the discussion. He answered only one question posed by Mrs. Touw. The Committee approved his wife 2-1, with Mrs. Touw voting against it and him abstaining.

4) After the board failed to appoint his wife, he asked then board counsel, J. Rothchild, whether the board could bring the motion back before the full board for another vote. Mr. Rothchild informed him that only someone who voted against the motion or who did not vote could bring the motion back for another vote.

5) Since Mr. Maglio was not present at the board meeting, Mr. Connolly asked him to consider bringing the motion back for another vote. Mr. Maglio informed him that he would not and began to scream at him for even asking such a thing since Mr. Connolly had not supported him for board president. The conversation then ended.

Last, Mr. Connolly states that Mr. Gearl filed the complaint out of revenge because he lost so badly in the April 1996 election to candidates whom Mr. Connolly supported. He believes that the fact that Mr. Gearl filed the complaint in May 1996, seven months after the events he alleges constitute violations of the Act, supports his theory. He urges the School Ethics Commission to find the complaint to be frivolous.

FACTS

The Commission finds the following material facts to be undisputed. Mrs. Connolly first became a substitute teacher in West Milford in special and regular education in August 1995. Soon after she became a substitute, she was called by Howard Heller, Director of Special Services, and asked to be a long-term substitute. She accepted the position and served as a long-term substitute in the resource center. On September 25, 1995, the Personnel Committee met to discuss, among other appointments, the appointment of Susan Connolly to be a resource room teacher. Mr. Connolly was a member of the Personnel Committee at that time and attended the meeting as such. When the Committee discussed his wife's appointment, Mr. Connolly recused himself from the discussion, but did not leave the room. He did not add to the discussion, except to answer a question that another member of the committee asked him.

Before the full board voted on the appointment, Mr. Connolly made several board members aware that his wife's appointment was going to be considered at the meeting on September 26, 1995. He did not suggest to them how they should vote. Before the meeting, Mr. Connolly asked Mr. Gearl how he was going to vote on his wife's appointment. Mr. Connolly attended the executive session of the board at which his wife's appointment was discussed on September 26, 1995. He did not participate in the discussion. When the matter came before the full board, Mr. Connolly abstained from voting on his wife's appointment.

After the motion to appoint his wife failed, Mr. Connolly consulted the board attorney as to how the agenda item could be brought back before the board for a re-vote. The board attorney informed him that only a person who had voted against the motion or had not voted could ask to have the matter returned to the agenda. Mr. Maglio was the only board member who had not attended the September 26, 1995, meeting. Mr. Connolly called Mr. Maglio to determine whether he would consider bringing his wife's appointment back to the board for a re-vote. Mr. Maglio refused to do so. At the October 10, 1995, meeting, Mrs. Connolly spoke to the board and charged it with not basing its vote on her qualifications, but on Mr. Connolly's membership on the board. Mr. Connolly also spoke to the board regarding the board's failing to appoint his wife. He also mentioned that the board had hired or promoted other board members' relatives while they were in office.

After Mrs. Connolly failed to get the position as resource center teacher, she continued serving as a long-term substitute. The board never brought back the motion to hire her as a teacher for a re-vote. In April 1996, Mrs. Connolly applied for another resource center position that had opened. She received an interview, but was not recommended because her experience was not in high school, but in middle school. In July 1996, she applied to be a part-time resource center teacher in the middle school. The board appointed her to this position with all members in favor, except Mrs. Touw who voted against it, and Mr. Connolly who abstained.

As set forth above, the Commission found probable cause to credit the allegations in paragraphs one, four and five that respondent violated the School Ethics Act. The Commission dismissed the remaining paragraphs for lack of probable cause. The issue is thus whether respondent violated the Act when he remained in the Personnel Committee meeting when his wife was being discussed, when he asked the attorney how to bring the motion to hire his wife back to the floor or when he called Mr. Maglio to ask him to consider bringing the motion back for a re-vote.

Mr. Connolly defends his actions in his written statement in response to the finding of probable cause. Therein, Mr. Connolly states that he has attended Personnel Committee meetings when other board members' relatives were discussed hired and promoted. However, at no time did board counsel advise these board members that they should leave the room. Thus, he thought refraining from discussion was sufficient. He adds that he would have left the room if he was aware that by remaining he may be in violation of the School Ethics Act. Regarding paragraph four, he adds that he did inquire for legal advice as to how to bring the vote on his wife back to the floor. He adds that he would expect that the board attorney would have advised him that it was a violation for him to do so. He states that this all began because of an attack on his wife. He feels that he should have the same right as any member of the general public to ask for advice. Last, regarding paragraph five, he denies berating or slandering Mr. Maglio or anyone else. However, he admits to calling the fellow board member and asking him to consider bringing the resolution back to the table.

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the School Ethics Act provides:

> No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial or personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment.

The initial question, therefore, is whether Mr. Connolly's continued attendance at the meeting of the Personnel Committee was "acting in his official capacity" in a matter in which he and his spouse had a financial and personal involvement. Mr. Connolly does not argue that he and his spouse have a direct financial and personal involvement in her getting a full time job with the board that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity. He correctly abstained on the vote, which shows that he acknowledges the involvement. The Commission finds that Mr. Connolly did not have to resign from the Personnel Committee altogether because his wife was being considered for an appointment with the board. However, by remaining in the room when she was being discussed, he was acting in his official capacity in a matter in which he had a financial and personal involvement. The committees of the board meet in private and thus, are not subject to public scrutiny. Thus, when the Personnel Committee makes its recommendation to appoint Susan Connolly and the minutes show Mr. Connolly as having been present for the entire meeting, the public may view the recommendation with suspicion and mistrust. His mere presence may be viewed as a hindrance to a critical review of the candidate's credentials by the committee. It may create a chilling effect on the committee's speech by virtue of the fact that any board member who dares to speak against the candidate's qualifications is viewed as personally attacking Mr. Connolly. Indeed, that appears to be exactly what happened in this instance. Mr. Connolly took offense at Mrs. Touw's question regarding how long she had been serving as a substitute and it began a bitter dispute between the two that clearly continues to this day.

The Commission does not find the fact that counsel never advised respondent that he could not sit in the Personnel Committee's discussion of his wife to prevent the Commission from finding a violation. The Commission only considers the effect of inadequate or nonexistent legal advice in determining penalty. Furthermore, there is no evidence that he sought such advice regarding sitting in on the personnel committee. For the foregoing reasons, the Commission concludes that respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when he continued to sit in on the personnel committee meeting when it was discussing his wife's appointment.

The Commission agrees with the respondent that it should not find him in violation of the Act for asking the board attorney how to bring the motion to appoint his wife back to the floor. If respondent had taken no further action, the Commission would not be able to find that he violated the Act on the facts of this case. However, Mr. Connolly acted on that advice and contacted the one board member who did not cast a vote for the purpose of soliciting him to bring the motion back to the floor. Although Mr. Connolly denies soliciting a vote for his wife, he did attempt to have Mr. Maglio bring the motion up for a re-vote. The only reasonable explanation for his doing so is that he hoped that the outcome of the motion would be different on a re-vote. The Commission concludes that he contacted Mr. Maglio as a fellow board member when he called him at home to get him to take the action in support of his wife. By doing so, he fully involved himself in the process of his wife's hiring and took on the role of advocate instead of impartial and neutral observer that the Act requires. It does not matter that he did not succeed in his efforts to have the motion brought back to the floor. The Commission concludes that by his call to Mr. Maglio, he acted in his official capacity in a matter in which he and his spouse had a financial and personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity in violation of subsection (c).

DECISION

For the foregoing reasons, the School Ethics Commission finds that respondent Mark Connolly violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the School Ethics Act when he sat in on the Personnel Committee's discussion of his wife's appointment. He violated it again when he called Mr. Maglio and asked him to consider bringing his wife's appointment up for a re-vote after the motion had failed. He should have accepted the defeat of the resolution and taken no further action. Instead, he became fully involved in actions to get his wife hired in the position. This was clearly acting in his official capacity in a matter in which he and his spouse had a personal and financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment in violation of subsection c.

Regarding penalty, Mr. Connolly has set forth several factors that he would like for the Commission to consider. First, he states that he was not trying to influence the hiring of his wife, but simply responding to personal attack. Second, he states that if he had received adequate legal advice, he would have refrained from the actions upon which the Commission has found probable cause. Third, he compares his case to In the Matter of Matilda Touw, C16-96, in which the Commission reprimanded a board member for voting on her son's reappointment as assistant head custodian. He concedes that her case is not the same, but submits that he never voted for or solicited votes for Susan Connolly.

In response to Mr. Connolly's suggested mitigating factors, the Commission first notes that its investigation did not reveal that he or his wife was personally attacked by any board member. Rather, he viewed questions about his wife's qualifications as a personal attack, which provides a reason that he should not have been present during the discussion. In any event, even a personal attack would not justify his interference in the outcome of his wife's employment application. Regarding the second mitigating factor, the Commission has accepted a lack of legal advice as a factor to mitigate a penalty. However, here, Mr. Connolly did not seek any advice, except how to get the matter back on the agenda. The Commission cannot find that lack of legal advice, when it was not requested, mitigates a penalty in the same way that incorrect legal advice may. Last, Mr. Connolly suggests that he should receive the same penalty as Mrs. Touw because he never solicited votes for Susan Connolly. The Commission has found that Mr. Connolly involved himself in the board's consideration of his wife's hiring in a way that created more public distrust than Mrs. Touw's single vote during a public meeting. The Commission has already found that Mr. Connolly's call to Mr. Maglio was an attempt to solicit a vote for his wife, albeit after the motion had already failed. He committed two violations of the act and his actions were not in view of the public. For this reason, his actions are subject to a greater penalty than the letter of reprimand Mrs. Touw received.

Considering the foregoing, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of censure for Mr. Connolly's two violations of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the School Ethics Act. The Commission believes that such a penalty adequately disciplines Mr. Connolly for the two violations and considers the defenses raised by Mr. Connolly. Last, such a penalty indicates that this is a serious violation of which the public should be aware.

Upon adoption of this decision by a formal resolution of the School Ethics Commission, the matter shall be transmitted to the Commissioner of Education for action on the Commission's recommendation for sanction pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29. Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which the Commission's decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written comments on the recommended sanction with the Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, 100 Riverview Plaza, CN 500, Trenton, NJ 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

Petitioning bus company, which was awarded pupil transportation contracts under bid for school year 1993-94, contended that respondent assessed penalties against it in an arbitrary, unreasonable, and discriminatory manner. Petitioner further alleged that respondent wrongfully withheld trip assignments which it was entitled to receive.

ALJ dismissed the petition. Although decisions to change trip request forms to alter bus types occurred, ALJ concluded that the changes were not based on political affiliations of petitioner's agents but were based, in part, on considerations of distance, additional space and pupil needs, and in part, on personal dislike and the contentious relationship between the parties' agents. The ALJ further concluded that petitioner had a valid contract with the District, and that petitioner was estopped from challenging the District's action by laches, and by its apparent acquiescence in the claimed violation of those rights.

The ALJ further found it reasonable to inspect vehicles based on certain conditions but concluded that use of the Branham book, which was not accessible to vendors, was unreasonable and that the District, through its transportation coordinator, acted arbitrarily, capriciously, and in bad faith in using the Branham book to determine if petitioner's vehicles complied with weight specifications. Additionally, the ALJ ruled that the District properly cited petitioner for infractions for late arrivals but directed the transportation department to review its records for calculation errors and adjust them, if appropriate. The ALJ concluded that the violation penalty schedule of the District is comparable with local standards and, thus, is not arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Neither was petitioner entitled to damages, which cannot be awarded by the Commissioner.

Commissioner adopted the ALJ's decision with modification. Commissioner concurred that petitioner was not entitled to the relief it sought, but set aside two conclusions of the ALJ and modified the penalty recalculation directive. Commissioner found that the ALJ, in directing recalculation, had erroneously applied a prior year's penalty schedule rather than the applicable schedule from 1993-94. Commissioner further determined that the record did not demonstrate that any personal dislike that may have existed between the parties' personal agents specifically influenced the District's decisions in changing bus types for certain trips or in using the Branham book to determine vehicle weight. However, the Commissioner did find the latter action to be arbitrary and unreasonable, and accordingly admonished the District and directed it to reform its policies and procedures so that weight standards are henceforth applied uniformly by all staff to all vehicles.

STATEMENT OF CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Hudson County Transport (HCT), was awarded pupil transportation contracts under bid for school year 1993-94. Petitioner contends that respondent, the State Operated School District of Jersey City, Hudson County (District) assessed penalties against the company for alleged violations in an arbitrary, unreasonable, and discriminatory manner. Petitioner also alleged that the District wrongfully withheld trip assignments to which it was entitled to receive.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 1, 1994, as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1-15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1-13. During eighteen hearing dates, the parties presented 21 witnesses. At the conclusion of the hearing, the parties had several settlement conferences before Arnold Samuels, ALJ, but did not settle the case. Thereafter, the parties filed post hearing briefs. The record closed on September 9, 1996. The forty-five (45) day statutory period within which to file the initial decision with the Department of Education expired on October 24, 1996. Based on the administrative law judge's voluminous case load, hearing schedule, and the complex and voluminous record consisting of more than 600 multi-paged documents, four extensions of time to complete the initial decision were granted. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8. The date for filing the Initial Decision is April 24, 1997.

ISSUES

The issues are as follows:

1. Whether the District wrongfully withheld assignments from petitioner, e.g., field trips, and if so, was the conduct discriminatory and did it constitute a breach of contract?

2. Whether the District's penalty procedure and the penalties assessed against petitioner are unreasonable, excessive or have been misapplied.

3. Is petitioner entitled to dismissal of the violations, reimbursement of penalties, attorneys fees and costs?

REVIEW OF EVIDENCE

FIELD/ATHLETIC TRIPS

Alan Manzo, Vice President of HCT, testified that in school year 1993-94, HCT was awarded the contract for weekday field trips starting before 2:30 p.m. for daily athletic trips occurring after school, and for weekend athletic trips occurring before 5:00 p.m. Prior to school year 1993-94, petitioner was the low bidder for these trips which also included 100 to 200 field trips to New York City. However, in school year 1993-94, petitioner received no assignments for the field/athletic trips to New York City. Instead, the field/athletic trips to New York City were awarded to Academy Bus Tours (Academy), HCT's competitor,.

Alan Manzo also claimed that Rita "Chickie" Damico, a District employee in the transportation department, informed him that Janet Gaita, transportation coordinator, was advised by Stan Wojek, an employee of the State Board of Education, that it was "illegal" for (yellow) school buses to leave the state and that only 'transit' type buses should be used for field trips to New York City. Notwithstanding several telephones calls to Gaita, Manzo maintained that she would not return his calls nor did she respond in writing. Under cross-examination, Manzo acknowledged that Gaita was on medical leave during part of the school year. However, in April or May 1994, he discussed the matter with Wojek who denied making the statement. Manzo learned that other vendors were awarded those assignments and used coach buses for trips out-of-state.

Robert Murden, athletic director at Synder High School, testified that before school year 1992-93 he attended a meeting with the athletic coaches and Janet Gaita. He recalled a discussion about the use of school buses traveling out of New Jersey. Murden has used school buses and coach buses for athletic trips to Pennsylvania and New York.

Terence Matthews, Principal at Ferris High School, testified that during a meeting with the athletic director, they were advised not to use school buses for travel out of New Jersey. Generally, Matthews initiated the trip request forms and requested the type of bus, e.g., school bus or coach, based on the particular trip, safety, comfort and cost.

Carolyn Scott Nelson, coordinator of academic services, administered a program for pupil trips to Lincoln Center in New York. Nelson did not receive any directives about what type of buses must be used for out-of-state trips. However, she requested and received large transit type buses because they were more comfortable. Neither Murden, Matthews nor any other District employee presented by petitioner received a written directive that school buses could not leave New Jersey or that transit or coach type buses were required to be used for trips out-of-state.

Janet Gaita, employed with the District for 18 years, has held the position of transportation coordinator for 16 years. Gaita was on medical leave for school year 1992-93, from February 1991 to February 1992, and from October 1993 to March 1995. While on medical leave, her duties were administered by Dr. Konick. However, Gaita did perform minimum work from home.

Gaita denied telling her staff or HCT that vendors were prohibited from using school buses for out-of-state trips. She explained the regular bidding process and bus assignment used by the District for field and athletic trips. The vendors' bids include the vehicle type to be supplied, e.g., school bus, coach bus. Bidders also submit hourly rates for the basic four hours athletic trips and five hours field trips, and hourly overtime rates. After the contracts are awarded, the District distributes to its administrative personnel a list of vehicles/bus types owned by vendors. Generally, school administrators initiated the transportation request form. Thereafter, the form is filed with the transportation department which would secure the vehicle from the appropriate vendor.

Trips Awarded Upon Oral Bid

Alan Manzo testified that prior to school year 1993-94, HCT and the District agreed to a minimum price for pupil transportation for four hours athletic trips and five hours field. In school year 1993-94, the District eliminated the minimum price contracts and requested emergency quotes from vendors for athletic trips of less than four hours and field trips of less than five hours.

Joann Gilman, District Finance Director, testified that in September 1993 she reviewed the District's expenses. She inquired about the District's costs for field and athletic trips. The records indicating that the District spent $500.00 for a two hour field trip led Gilman to conclude that the District's agreement to pay a minimum cost for local trips were fiscally unsound. Indeed, vendors were paid for a fixed rate for a five hours field trip although the actual trip was two hours. Concerned that the an audit would disclose poor financial management, Gilman discussed the matter with Gaita. Thereafter, the District eliminated minimum payments for athletic and field trips of less than four and five hours.

Gaita awarded all athletic trips projected for 3½ hours and field trips projected for 4½ hours to HCT and Laidlaw Transit, Inc., (Laidlaw), the vendors who were initially awarded contracts on the bids. The remaining shorter trips were served by Hudson County Vo-Tech pursuant to the contract or awarded by emergency oral bid. Emergency bids required telephone quotes on hourly rates from three vendors. Each of the affected vendors, Laidlaw, Academy, and HCT, were notified of the change and participated in the oral bidding process. Under objection, HCT eventually submitted oral bids and was awarded 1079 of 1272 athletic trips and 854 of 1323 field trips during the 1993-94 school year.

Use of Non Compliant Vehicles

Alan Manzo testified that in prior years the bids for 36 passenger routes were awarded to HCT, Laidlaw, and Savon Bus companies without problems. For school year 1993-94, HCT was held to the strict application of the specifications while the transportation department allowed Laidlaw to use buses which did not comply with "local" regulations. For example, although the regulations required that buses not exceed 26 feet from bumper to bumper, Manzo claimed that Laidlaw used 36 passenger Genesis buses that were 26 feet and 3 inches. He further claimed that the Genesis buses did not comply with the regulations requiring the engine be located in front of the windshield, and that the entrance doors be located behind the front wheels. Manzo also claimed that HCT was held to strict compliance with the specifications for vehicle types as designated by the Department of Motor Vehicles and Department of Education. Although he informed the District's inspectors that Laidlaw's vehicles did not comply with the specifications, Gaita approved the use of the buses.

Gaita explained that the Department of Education used alphabetical designations for school bus vehicles, such as Types A, B, C, and D. The Department of Motor Vehicles designated the same school buses numerically: Types I, and II. (R-559). Types I and II were defined in the 1993-94 specifications. (J-3). In August 1993, the District issued an addendum which removed the Department of Education's bus diagram from the specifications. Ibid. Also, the District amended the specifications for Type I and II buses, e.g., 36 passenger buses and the required weight for S-2 cars. Gaita maintained that the addendum intended to clarify any confusion caused by the designations used by the Departments of Education and Motor Vehicles. The local specifications for 36 passengers buses remained the same for capacity (34 to 39 passengers), wheelbase (no greater than 194 inches), and length (no longer than 26 feet from front bumper to rear bumper). Also, the addendum noted that vendors should be guided by Federal, State and local regulations. Gaita believed that the Genesis buses met the required length.

George Errico, Christos Genes, and Janet Gaita measured the Genesis buses used by Laidlaw. George Errico, senior transportation inspector has been employed by the District for 22 years. Gaita is his immediate supervisor. Errico is also employed by Academy Bus Co. but does not participate in the inspection of their vehicles. Errico informed Gaita that Manzo had complained that the length of the Genesis buses did not comply with specifications. Errico reinspected the buses and conceded that the location of the doors and the engine did not comply with the specifications. He acknowledged that Laidlaw was permitted to use the Genesis buses. Errico also testified that HCT used Thomas Buses, a flat nose 36 passenger bus whose engine was located behind the windshield.

Christos Genes was employed by the District as a transportation inspector. After the vendors were awarded a contract, Errico and Genes inspected the vehicles to assure that they complied with the bid specifications. Genes measured the Genesis buses after Manzo complained that they did not comply with the specifications. Genes acknowledged that the Genesis buses did not comply with the specifications because its engine and doors were located behind the windshield and wheels. Genes also testified that HCT used Thomas buses which were similar to the Genesis bus. The Thomas bus' engine is located behind the windshield and its doors are located in front of the wheels.

James Folkes, Director of Operations for Laidlaw, special ordered the Genesis bus to comply with the local specifications. For example, the number of seats were modified from 45 seats to fit the 39 passenger requirement. The Genesis buses were equipped to shorten the length of the bumpers by three inches. Therefore, he believed that the vehicle complied with the District's 26 feet specification.

S-2 CARS:

Alan Manzo testified the District failed to provide notice to vendors that for school year 1993-94 the bid specifications had increased the required weight of the S-2 cars. An S-2 car was defined as a four door sedan vehicle weighing more than 3,500 lbs.. The bid specifications also provided that the Branham Automobile Reference Book was to be used by the contractors in determining which vehicle will be accepted by the Jersey City Public schools.

Manzo requested a copy of the Branham book from the District but was not given a copy. However, Inspector Genes informed him that according to the Branham Book, vehicles owned by HCT, a Dodge Caravan, a Dodge Reliant, and a Dodge Aries, could not be used to transport pupils. Manzo maintained, however, that other vendors were allowed to use S-2 cars which did not comply with specifications.

Gaita acknowledged that in 1993-94 the District's transportation department changed the specifications to require that S-2 cars weight more than 3,500 lbs. Gaita also conceded that the Branham Book was not useful to determine if the vendor's vehicles met the required specifications. Therefore, some exceptions were made and the District waived the Branham book as a standard for all vendors.

Errico acknowledged that for school year 1993-94, the bid specifications increased the weight requirement for S-2 cars for safety reasons. The new specifications required that the vendor provide four door sedans weighting more than 3,500 lbs. Thus, for example, a seven seat van would not be in compliance. Errico also acknowledged that the Branham Auto Reference Book was not helpful in inspecting the vehicles. Thus, he used the District's Policy Manual, the Motor Vehicle Regulation, the bid specifications, and the regulations promulgated by the Department of Education. Errico was also familiar with NADA, the official Used Car Guide, Eastern Edition, April 1995. P-560. Errico acknowledged that under NADA, vehicles used by Winsale, the Cutlass Sedan, weighted 2,958 lbs. However, NADA was not used as a guide to determine the weight for S-2 vehicles. Errico also acknowledged that he inspected a 1989 Chevrolet vehicle registered to Winsale, the car weighed less than 3,500 lbs. P-562.

Errico further acknowledged that although vehicles owned by Winsale were inspected on or about August 30, 1993, title to the vehicle was dated September 28, 1993. P-561. Errico explained, however, the grace period permitted for the vendor to obtain all the documents to the vehicle. Errico believed that it was reasonable to inspect a vehicle without a Bill of Sale so long as the vendor had the appropriate documents by the beginning of school. Errico further disclosed that the decision to remove routes was determined by Dr. Konick, District Superintendent. The decision to reject vehicles was determined by Gaita. Errico believed that neither HCT or Winsale lost routes based on non-compliance of its vehicles.

Louis Ricco, President of A&A Charter Services Bus Co., was also awarded transportation contracts by the District. Ricco recalled the changes in the S-2 weight specifications. He was aware that the District used the Branham Book to check weight specifications, but never received a copy or saw the book. He also recalled that the violations issued to his company between February and May 1993 would often be delivered at the end of the school year in June.

Penalties

Alan Manzo disputed many of the violations issued by the transportation department for alleged infractions and complained that the District failed to follow its own written policies. For example, when an alleged infraction occurred, the driver should have been issued a copy of the violation and a confirming copy sent to the vendor within seven days. Instead, the cumulative violations shown in Exhibit P-260 to P-441 were not issued to the driver. Indeed, HCT received a packet of violations on August 3, 1993. Manzo claimed that when he spoke to Errico about the matter, he was directed to call Gaita. Alan Manzo also complained to the transportation department about the lack of a procedure to contest the penalties assessed against HCT.

Manzo also protested against the District's policy in collecting the fines from the vendors. HCT's revenues were about $175,000 per month less $12,000 for fines. The District deduced the penalty from the vendor's contract amount. Manzo claimed that he was forced to sign the addendum accepting the terms of the agreement under duress or pay $100 per day penalty. Indeed, he wrote several letters contesting the penalty procedure.

Manzo also disputed many violations issued to HCT for being late. Manzo maintained that his drivers always performed a test drive of the route after they have been awarded the contract. Often, the bus arrived at the student's home on time, but the student was not ready. Consequently, HCT was fined for arriving late to school. Manzo also testified that the District refused to acknowledge other mitigating circumstances such traffic jams, lack of parking space, or arriving a few moments before school recessed. Manzo also asserted that the District's penalty schedule was two and three times greater than other school districts and thus, excessive. His complaints to the transportation department were ignored and his requests for a departmental hearing were denied.

Alan Manzo disputed the penalties for violations regarding Route 713 and the emergency bid for the Route E 713. The bids were opened on August 23 and read aloud before those in attendance including HCT, Laidlaw and District employees, Errico and Rita Damico. Two vendors, HCT and Laidlaw, bid on the route. P-450. HCT's bid was lower than Laidlaw's bid. Ibid. Laidlaw asked whether an aid was required for the route. The question was referred to the legal department. On August 25, Gaita informed the bidders that route 713 was being rejected based on a discrepancy in bidding. Thereafter, the District took emergency telephone quotes on route 713.

Manzo asked why the prior bid was rejected and whether an aid was required on the route. He maintained that the District did not respond to either of his questions. HCT bid $148 on the route plus $35 for an aide if one was necessary and began the route without an aide.

Charles Trefurt is the principal of P.S. #8, a grade K through 8 school consisting of 1350 students and two special education classes. In school year 1993-94, HCT was awarded the contract for route 444. Petitioner used two vans to transport the students who were enrolled in the special education classes. Trefurt recalled that because the vans were constantly late the pupils became upset. Trefurt instructed a teacher's aide to prepare the violation forms and obtain the bus driver's signature.

Trefurt identified the violations forms which were completed under his directive. He candidly testified that often the aide had difficulty obtaining the driver's signature. Either the driver would refuse to sign the violation or the aide was helping the children from the bus into the school building. Under cross examination, Trefurt conceded that several of the violation forms may be inaccurate regarding whether the driver was late less than or more than fifteen minutes.

Marvin Strynar is the principal of P.S. #36, a grade K through 8 school consisting of approximately 850 students. In school year 1993-94, about 120 pupils were bused daily from their school to his building for bi-lingual instruction. Often, buses driven by HCT arrived to school late. Late arrivals impact student instruction, cause children to miss the breakfast program, and interfere with the duties of the aides. Strynar identified the signatures on the violation forms as those authorized by him to complete the documents. However, the bus drivers employed by HCT refused to sign for receipt of the violations. Strynar acknowledged that at times the driver had difficulty locating a parking space for the bus. However, on other occasions, although parking space was available the driver chose not to park. Instead, he discharged the students from mid-street.

Angela Bruno is the principal of P.S. #11, a grade K through 8 bi-lingual magnet school consisting of approximately 1100 students. In school year 1993-94, she too experienced problems of late pick-ups or no arrivals by HCT. Bruno often spoke with HCT directly about the late buses. Bruno conceded that she did not give the violations to the bus driver. Instead, she sent them to the transportation department.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. In school year 1993-94, HCT was awarded the contract to provide pupil transportation for four hours athletic trips and five hours field trips. HCT's charged a fixed rate for the for four hours athletic and five hours field trips.

2. In school year 1993-94, the District eliminated minimum payments for athletic and field trips of less than four and five hours.

3. The District requested emergency quotes from vendors for athletic trips of less than four hours and field trips less than five hours.

4. Each affected vendor, Laidlaw, Academy, and HCT, were notified of the change and participated in the oral bidding process.

5. HCT submitted oral bids and was awarded 1079 of 1272 athletic trips and 854 of 1323 field trips during the 1993-94 school year.

6. In school year 1993-94, petitioner received no assignments for the field/athletic trips to New York City.

7. Prior to school year 1993-94, petitioner was the low bidder for many trips to New York City.

8. The District permitted Laidlaw to use Genesis buses for pupil transportation.

9. The engine and doors on Genesis buses used by Laidlaw were located behind the windshield.

9. The bumpers on the Genesis buses were adjustable within three inches.

10. The bid specifications required that the transportation department use the Branham Automobile Reference Book to determine the weight of the vehicle to be used by the Jersey City Public schools.

11. The Branham Book was selectively used to determine whether the weight of S-2 vehicles met the bid specifications.

12. Other school districts have comparable violation penalty schedules as those applied by the District.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The crux of this proceeding is petitioner's claim that Janet Gaita, the District's transportation coordinator, personally disliked Allen Manzo, President of HCT. In its initial brief, petitioner does not assert that it was subjected to discriminatory treatment based on the political affiliations of Allen Manzo. Rather, petitioner maintains that Janet Gaita's personal dislike for Manzo motivated her to discriminate against HCT and its owners by "favoring their rivals in bidding, awarding, administration and implementation of their contracts." Petitioner's Initial Brief at 2.

Moreover, Gaiter violated regulations and laws pertaining to advertising, bidding, awarding, and administering contracts for pupil transportation. Petitioner also avers that Gaita has "constantly violated said authorities and operated her department guided by her own ego and personal preferences, favoring and rewarding the people she liked, while discriminating against, harassing and punishing those she did not like." Id. at 24. Petitioner submits that only substantial monetary sanctions will motivate respondent to reform and urges this tribunal "not to let the opportunity pass" to award petitioner the requested damages and interest, without mitigation." Ibid.

Discrimination

Allen Manzo, Sr. has been in the bus transportation business since 1920 and he formed HCT in 1977. He has also held several elected and appointed political positions in Jersey City. He testified that Gaita was also politically active in Jersey City and described their relationship as "political adversaries". Manzo also testified about several incidents which fostered the rivalry and discord between he and Gaita. For example, Gaita asked him to speak to former Mayor McCann about appointing Gaita's father to the Jersey City Commission Sewer Authority. After Manzo refused Gaita's request, his business began to change. Manzo also testified that Gaita stalked him and while both were present in a local restaurant she attacked him with a butter knife and threw a glass at him. Manzo maintained that the District selectively issued fines against HCT after he "fell out" with Gaita.

I have considered Allen Manzo's testimony that respondent discriminated against HCT based on the political activities of Janet Gaita and her personal dislike towards him. Claims of discrimination based on political affiliation have been addressed by the court and the Commisioner and thus, can be used as a guide in reviewing petitoner's claim of discrimination. Traditionally, political motivated dismissals have involved retaliation against employees because of their involvement with the Democratic or Republican parties. Discrimination based on political association in employment matters requires that the employee prove 1) that the employee works for a public agency in a position that does not require political affiliation, 2) that the employee maintained an affiliation with the political party, and 3) that the employee's political affiliation was a substantial or motivating in the adverse employment decision. If the employee demonstrates these events, the employer may avoid a finding of liability by demonstrating by a preponderance of the evidence that it would have made the same decision even in the absence of the protected affiliation. Robinson v. Fiore, 62 *F.*3rd, 596, 599 (3rd Cir. 1995). Intra-party disputes have also been considered by the courts within the spear of political affiliation. Ibid.

Factionalism can give rise to a claim of inappropriate retaliation. In Caputo v. Board of Education of Union City, 1988, SLD. 1815, reversed, State Board of Education, 1990, SLD, 1694, petitioner alleged retaliation for his political activities after he was not rehired as a football coach. The ALJ found that the failure to rehire petitioner was based on his efforts in a school board election on behalf of a group named CARE, an organization that unsuccessfully challenged the Alliance Civic Association which controlled the school board. The State Board recognized that political affiliation can apply when a nonpartisan group controls the board. However, the State Board reversed the finding of retaliation because the facts did not support the conclusion that political affiliation was the reason for the board's action. See also Dearden v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, 1990, SLD, 1391, aff'd State Board of Education, 1991, SLD 2536 (Petitioner's position was improperly abolished when the basis for the abolition was the Mayor's comment that Dearden was a "political hack.").

Patronage dismissals based on intra-party political affiliation, personality or philosophical differences also have been recognized by the New Jersey courts. See Battaglia v. Union County Welfare Board, 88 N.J. 48, 1981, Cert. denied, 556 U.S., 965, 102 S.Ct. 2045, 72 L.Ed.2, 490, 1992. Nevertheless, the allegations of retaliatory discrimination based on political affiliation must be carefully scrutinized. Although the court applied political affiliation protection to intra-party disputes, it also expressed concern that disputes among public officials of every nature would be characterized as "political" in an attempt to bring an action for alleged constitutional violations or to seek a remedy for dismissals for poor performance. Robinson v. Fiore, supra. 62 F. 3d 596, Here, neither Allen Manzo nor Janet Gaita claim affiliation to any political party or faction within the same political party. They do not dispute, however, being political adversaries or their dislike for one another. Indeed, Gaita counters that for many years, Allen Manzo has engaged in a course of abusive behavior and harassment towards her and the employees in the transportation department. For example, in correspondence to District employees, Manzo alleged that an employee, Robert Roggenstein, "was involved with organized crime". Respondent's Initial Brief at 10. Additionally, a local newspaper article revealed that Louis Manzo, Allen Manzo's brother and the former Chief Health Inspector for Jersey City, alleged that Manzo and the former mayor attempted to draw up a "black list" of city health employees who did not support the mayor during the last election campaign. Manzo denied the allegations but acknowledged that Roggernstein and Gaita were political rivals. R-119.

At the hearing, I had the opportunity to closely observe Janet Gaita, Allen Manzo and his son Alan Manzo. Alan Manzo's demeanor, posture and tone of voice during his testimony about specific incidents and past communications with Gaita reflected antagonism and repugnance. Similarly, during Gaita's testimony, her demeanor towards Allen and Alan Manzo showed intense dislike. She claimed that during many of their discussions, Alan Manzo had used derogatory language commonly associated with overweight persons.

In a letter dated October 6, 1993, Gaita wrote Alan Manzo about his abusive behavior towards the transportation staff.

> Dear Mr. Manzo, Jr.
>
> On September 24, 1993, Mr. Christos Genes, Inspector, wrote several violations pertaining to your company.
>
> At about 3:10 P.M. that day, while I was standing by Mr. Genes' desk, he received a phone call from you and held the phone away from > his ear so I could hear what was said. What I heard was extremely upsetting to me since I heard you refer to Mr. Genes as a FAT F__K, as well as other obscenities.

>
> Approximately a half-hour later, you called once again, and according to Mr. Genes, allegedly threatened his life. Your alleged statement to him was "If you give me any more violations, they will be reading your last rights by next week."
>
> As I have told you in the past, I will not tolerate the constant abuse of the transportation staff by you or any member of your company.
>
> ***
> If these actions continue, I will have no choice but to ask the J.C. public Schools to take some form of legal action against you and your company. [R-125]

I am persuaded by Manzo's overall demeanor that his conduct towards Gaita and the transportation staff was abusive and hostile.

The doctrine of unclean has been applied to deny reappointment to teachers who obtained their positions through political patronage North Bergen Federal Teachers v. Board of Education of the Township of North Bergen, 1978, SLD, 218, modified, State Board of Education, 1978, SLD, 250, aff'd, Appellate Division, 1980, 522, cert. denied, 84 N.J. 444, (1980). The same principle applies to persons seeking relief from an administrative tribunal. North Bergen Federation of Teachers, super. at 250. Thus, I have also considered petitioner's conduct.

Respondent argues that HCT's claim that it was held to specifications while other vendors were not held to the same standard are a mere reiteration of the arguments which were rejected by the ALJ in the previous decision, Hudson County Transport, Inc. v. State-Operated School District of Jersey City, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU)

636. Based on the result of the previous case, respondent urges this tribunal to dismiss petitioner's arguments in this matter.

In the prior matter, HCT challenged the District's decision to rescind the transportation contracts which had been awarded under bid to HCT by the former Jersey City school board. The contract specifications required the vendor to provide 36 passenger buses. The contracts were awarded although HCT had not specified in its proposal the vehicle it would provide. Since its creation in 1977, HCT has provided transportation services to the Jersey City school system. As it did in past years, HCT supplied 54 passenger buses rather than the required 36 passenger buses. In October 1998, the school system became the State-Operated School District of Jersey City. Christos Genes attempted to inspect the 36 passenger buses and was informed by HCT that they were unavailable. Ibid. Judi Granick, state executive assistant to the District superintendent, directed that the contracts not be awarded to HCT and that the routes be rebid. Ibid. Thereafter, on September 6, 1989, Gaita informed Allen Manzo that the contracts would be canceled because HCT did not meet the specifications for 36 passenger buses. "Nevertheless, the pupil transportation contract was signed by Hudson County Transport on August 23, 1989, and was signed by the president of the Board on September 14, 1989." Id. at 637. After the state takeover, the District rescinded the contract and directed the director of transportation to rebid the routes served by HCT. The routes were awarded to Laidlaw. In December 1989, HCT filed a complaint against the District seeking damages for alleged breach of contract.

The administrative law judge concluded that the contracts awarded to HCT violated the laws and regulations governing public school contracts and this, was an ultra vires act by the Board. Further, the ALJ rejected HCT's argument that "that it was entitled to the award of an illegal contract because such contracts had been awarded illegally in the past." Hudson County Transport, Inc. v. State-Operated School District of Jersey City, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 636, 639.

FIELD/ATHLETIC TRIPS

Petitioner maintains that the reason Gaita consistently favored other vendors over HCT was her personal dislike for Allen Manzo. For example, in school year 1993-94, HCT was awarded the contract for trips requiring 54 passenger buses and Academy was the sole bidder and awarded the contract for trips requiring transit and coach buses.[1] In previous years, HCT had regularly used school buses to transport pupils to New York City. However, HCT recieved no assignments for such trips in 1993-94. Petitioner alleged that Janet Gaita determined that school buses could not leave the state and that only 'transit' type buses should be used for field trips to New York City. Thus, the trips to New York were awarded to Academy. Although Academy's performance bond was based on anticipated revenues of $25,000.00, it billed the District for $85,457.00. This amount represented 120 extra trips and 180 more buses than anticipated. Petitioner submits that it should have received the extra trips and revenues paid to Academy. Petitioner calculated the total amount owed from the District at $56,654.48, plus interest. Petitioner's Initial Brief at 5.

Petitioner has the burden of proof by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian 37 N.J. 143 (1962). The term "burden of proof" refers to the "burden of persuasion". The burden of persuasion entails more than merely producing evidence to establish a state of equilibrium with respect to whether a certain fact exists. This tribunal must "decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to the reasonable probability of the truth." Jackson v D.L. & W.R.R., 111 N.J.L. 487, 490 (E. & A. 1933). One factor to consider to determine the "reasonable probability of truth" is that the "interest, motive, biases or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify [the trier of fact], whose providence it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony." State v Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div. 1952). In an administrative proceeding, testimony may be disbelieved, but it may not be disregarded. Middletown Tp. v Murdoch, 73 N.J. Super. 511 (App. Div. 1962). Thus, I have carefully reviewed the evidence to determine if the testimony contains "inherent improbabilities or contradictions which alone or in connection with other circumstances in evidence excite suspicion as to its truth." In re Perone, 5 N.J. 514, 521-522 (1950).

Janet Gaita denied Alan Manzo's claim that she was advised by an employee of the State Board that it was "illegal" for school buses to leave the state and that only 'transit' type buses should be used for field trips to New York City. The credibility of testimony presented by Janet Gaita, Allen Manzo, and Alan Manzo regarding transportation matters have been undermined by their contentious relationship and the mutual hostility between Gaita and the Manzos. However, the record reflects that school administrators, e.g., principals and teacher, initiated the trip request forms and indicated the number of passenger space required. Generally, the teachers had no preference for vehicle type and left the decision to the transportation department. However, some administrators and teachers requested coach buses for lengthy trips, additional space for sports equipment and the special needs of the students.

Although no written directive was issued prohibiting the use of school buses for out of state trips, Robert Murden credibly testified that a discussion about the use of school buses for trips to New York had occurred at a meeting which he attended with athletic coaches and Gaita. He recalled, however, using school buses and coach buses for trips to New York and Pennsylvania. Terence Matthews also provided credible testimony that during a meeting he and the athletic director were advised not to use school buses for out of state trips.

Further, the record reflects that HCT was deleted as vendor on several trip request forms for athletic trips to New York and the trip was awarded to Academic Bus. P-574b, P-576b. Other trip request forms show that changes were made to the "vehicle type" category. The request for a "school bus" and "54 passenger bus" had been deleted and the words "coach" and "coach only since out of State" had been inserted. Petitioner submits that the transportation department deliberately made these changes to deny HCT from receiving assignments.

Based on the above, I CONCLUDE that the transportation department discouraged the use of school buses for trips out side New Jersey. I CONCLUDE the transportation department changed several trip request forms for athletic trips to New York by deleting the request for a "school bus" and inserting the term "coach" bus. I CONCLUDE that the changes resulted in HCT not being assigned trips out side of New Jersey. I CONCLUDE that the decisions to change the bus type were not based on the political affiliations of Allen and Alan Manzo. Rather, the decisions were made by Janet Gaita and based in part on considerations of distance, additional space, and pupil needs. I further CONCLUDE that the decisions were based in part on Janet Gaita's personal dislike of Allen and Alan Manzo and their contentious relationship.

Trips Awarded Upon Oral Bid

In school year 1993-94, HCT was awarded 74 athletic trips of less than four hours and 94 field trips of less than five hours for a minimum rate of $189.00. Petitioner's Initial Brief at 7. Petitioner asserts that before the transportation department determined to eliminate a minimum price for athletic trips of less than four hours and field trips less than five hours it breached the contract with HCT by awarding a "good number of oral bids" to other vendors. Petitioner's Initial Brief at 6. HCT also asserts that the field and athletic trip were anticipated, not emergencies. Except for the hours involved, the services supplied pursuant to the oral bid were the same as those supplied under the bid awarded through advertisement. Id. at 8. Petitioner submits that the District had no legal justification to award oral contracts to HCT's competitors. Petitioner calculates the damages for "diverted illegal oral contracts" at $7,182.00 plus interest. (38 buses at $189.00 per bus). Ibid.

The record reflects that for school year 1993-94, HCT was awarded the contract to provide pupil transportation for four hours athletic trips and five hours field trips for a minimum rate. The District eliminated minimum payments for the trips after the finance director reviewed the costs and determined that the transportation department's agreement to pay a minimum coast for trips were too costly.

I CONCLUDE that HCT had a valid contract with the District provide pupil transportation for athletic trips and field trips which included a minimum charge for the for four hours athletic and five hours field trips.

I am persuaded, however, by respondent's argument that HCT did not act within a reasonable time to assert its claim against the District. Laches is an equitable doctrine that applies when there has been an inexcusable delay in enforcing a known right which results in prejudice to the other party. Hansen v. Janitschek, 57 N.J. Super. 418 (App. Div. 1959), rev'd, 31 N.J. 545 (1960); Auciello v. Stauffer, 58 N.J. Super. 522 (App. Div. 1959). Laches is not imputed to one who has no knowledge or means of acquiring knowledge of facts giving rise to the cause of action. Heagen v. Borough of Allendale, 42 N.J. Super. 472 (App. Div. 1956); Kohler v. Barnes, 123 N.J. Super. 69 (Law Div. 1973). The burden of proof is on the party asserting laches to show that the other party's inexcusable delay caused it prejudice. Enfield v. FWL, Inc., 256 N.J. Super. 502 (Ch. Div. 1991) aff'd, 256 N.J. Super. 466, (App. Div. 1992) certif. den., 130 N.J. 9 (1992).

Respondent demonstrated that HCT was notified of the District's determination to eliminate minimum bids. Although Manzo made objections to the transportation department about the revised bidding, petitioner took no action to bring this matter before the Commissioner on an emergent basis. Instead, HCT submitted oral bids to provide transportation field and athletic trips on an hourly rate. Thereafter, HCT was awarded 1079 of 1272 athletic trips and 854 of 1323 field trips during the 1993-94 school year. Laidlaw had also provided specific performance on the oral contracts awarded for 1993-94. Then in August 1994, HCT filed the present matter before the Commissioner and alleged that the District's action was discriminatory, contrary to the regulations, and a breach of contract.

I therefore CONCLUDE that petitioner is estopped by latches from challenging the District's action and its apparent acquiescence in the claimed violation of those rights has operated as a waiver.

Use of Non Compliant Vehicles

Petitioner contended that the District allowed Laidlaw to use buses which did not comply with "local" regulations. Specifically, the regulations required that Type C vehicles not exceed 26 feet from bumper to bumper, the engine be located in front of the windshield, and the that the entrance doors be located behind the front wheels. Laidlaw used 36 passenger Genesis buses that were "two inches longer than 26 feet." Petitioner's Initial Brief at 20-21. Petitioner asserted that the additional two inches may have been inconsequential, but the locations of the engine behind the windshield and the front wheels behind the entrance door were significant infractions. Ibid.

Further, petitioner asserted that the "local" regulations differed from State regulations,

> "so that the Respondent's attempt to eliminate the limitations of Type I to the State Board's Type C buses, where a Motor Vehicle Department Type I vehicle was called for, was not accomplished in July of 1992 by removing the reference to an attached diagram [P-546-M], which was referred to in the addenda [sic] P-548a and 549, while still keeping paragraph 18 and the 36 passenger bus language in the specification intact, since it still required all vendors to be guided by 'Federal, State and Local Regulations'"

Petitioner's Initial Brief at 21. Moreover, the District's use of the State's specifications after the bidding occurred in July 1992 and the addendum issued on August 19, 1993 did not eliminate local specifications language contained in paragraph 18. P-548a, P-

549. Thus, petitioner submits that "[t]he addendum language, if intended to eliminate the descriptions as well, was not precise or clear enough for all to comprehend that intention." Ibid. Petitioner acknowledged, however, that the District recently issued "clear ad precise" bid specifications. Ibid.

Further, petitioner asserted that the District favored its competitor, Laidlaw, by providing "advanced information". Indeed, Laidlaw ordered 11 Genesis, Type D, buses the following year. Additionally, for school year 1993-94, the District increased its 36 passenger bus routes from 23 to 45 routes. Laidlaw was the "only bidder on 25 of them." Id. at 22. Petitioner claimed other incidences of differential treatment. For example, the District held HCT to "the letter of the specification" but permitted other vendors to use vehicles which did not comply to specifications. The District also allowed other vendors to submit their vehicles for inspection after the awards were announced.

Alan Manzo acknowledged, however, that HCT owned only enough buses to fulfill its contract awarded by the District. Also, he conceded that HCT would have had to purchase approximately 45 additional buses which had to be ordered months in advance to fulfill the contract awarded to Laidlaw. However, petitioner submits that although Genesis buses were used on routes for which Laidlaw was the sole bidder, HCT was "2nd for at least one route". The District's failure to award this route to HCT resulted in lost revenues of $42,840.00 plus interest. Ibid.

Errico and Genes credibly testified that each had inspected the Genesis bus. They conceded that the locations of the of the engine behind the windshield and the front wheels behind the entrance door did not comply with regulations.

Advertised bids for pupil transportation contained regulations for vehicles used by vendors to transport pupils. Local school boards were permitted to make reasonable variations to the state's specifications. The District's specifications required that all vehicles meet the regulations specified by local, state and districts rules. "No substitute of requested vehicles will be accepted." J-3. Local school boards must not ignore infractions which compromise the safety of passengers and the public.

I CONCLUDE that the length of the Gensis bumpers substantially complied with the specifications. Indeed, Laidlaw special ordered the vehicles to conform to the correct seating and to adjust the bumpers. I CONCLUDE that the location of the engine and front wheels on Genesis bus did not comply with regulations. I CONCLUDE that the District permitted Laidlaw to transport pupils in buses which did not comply to specifications.

Petitioner contended that the District permitted Winsale Bus Co. (Winsale), to use non-complying S-2 cars. N.J.A.C. 6:21-9.2(c) provides that small vehicles which have a gross vehicle weight rating (GVWR) of less than 3,000 lbs. shall not be used after January 2, 1992. GVWR is the value specified by the manufacturer as the maximum loaded weight of the vehicle. N.J.A.C. 6:21-9.2(c). The District's 1993-94 route specifications allowed the use of four door sedan type cars weighing more than 3501 lbs. The specifications also provided that in determining which vehicle will be accepted, the contractor should be guided by the Branham Automobile Reference Book. J-13.

In contrast, the local specifications do not refer to the vehicle's GVWG or loaded weight, "but simple [sic] requires a vehicle weight over 3501 lbs." Petitioner's Initial Brief at 23. Petitioner asserts that the District did not produce the Branham book after several requests, but permitted a "favored" vendor, Winsale, to use vehicles weighing less than 3,000 lbs. Petitionern submits that under the NADA book "nearly all" vehicles used by HCT's competitor, Winsale, were less than 3500 lbs.

Further, petitioner alleges that that the favored treatment towards Winsale was shown by the District's inspection of vehicles prior to title being transferred to the vendor. Ibid. Indeed, the District inspected Winsale's vehicles on August 30, 1993, 28 days before title was transferred to the vendor on September 28, 1993. P-557, P-561b, P-569b. Petitioner submits that two S-2 car routes, route 617 and route 621 should have awarded to HCT, the lowest bidder, not Winsale, the favored vendor. Consequently, petitioner lost revenues of $69,300.00.

Respondent's assertion that the Braham book was waived to as a standard to all vendors is not supported by the record. Respondent's Initial Brief at 9. Louis Ricco, President of A&A Charter Bus Co. was aware that the District used the Branham Book to check weight specifications, but never received a copy or saw the book. Inspector Errico candidly testified that the Branham book was cited but not useful to verify the weight of the S-2 cars. Thus, he used other reference sources such as the District's policy manual, state and department regulations and the bid specifications. He was personally familiar with the NADA book but did not use this source for inspections. Errico also acknowledged that he inspected vendor vehicles before title was transferred to the owner.

The courts and the Commissioner have repeatedly held that a board of education's decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness, and its decision will not be set aside unless there is a clear showing of abuse of discretion or error. Thomas v. Morris Tp. Bd. of Educ., 89 N.J. Super. 327 (App. Div. 1965); Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 40 (App. Div. 1962); Quinlan v. North Bergen Bd. of Educ., 73 N.J. Super. 40 (App. Div. 1962); McMillan v. South Orange-Maplewood Bd. of Educ., 1977 S.L.D. 137; Ricco v. Bloomfield Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 8111-84 (May 16, 1985), adopted, Comm'r of Educ. (July 8, 1985). Accordingly, the Commissioner will not interfere with local school boards and the management of their school districts unless they exercised their discretion unreasonably, arbitrarily, capriciously, or in bad faith.

An arbitrary and capricious act has no rational basis. Arbitrary and capricious action by an administrative body is willful and unreasoned action without consideration of and in disregard of circumstances. Bayshore Sewerage Co. v. Dep't of Environmental Protection, 122 N.J. Super. 184, 199 (Ch. Div.). An abuse of discretion occurs when a decision is not premised upon consideration of all relevant factors, is based upon a consideration of irrelevant or inappropriate factors, or amounts to clear error in judgment. State v. Bender, 80 N.J. 84, 93 (1979). Bad faith "contemplates a state of mind affirmatively operating with a furtive design or some motive of interest or ill will." Lustrelon, Inc. v. Prutscher, 178 N.J. Super. 128, 144 (App. Div. 1981).

Based on the whole of the record, I CONCLUDE that it was reasonable to inspect vehicles made available to the District prior to the transfer of title so long as the proper documents were produced for inspection prior to the use of the vehicle by the vendor.

I CONCLUDE that the Branham book was not accessible to vendors and its use to disqualify petitioner's vehicles was unreasonable. I CONCLUDE that the District through its transportation coordinator, Janet Gaita, acted arbitrarily, capriciously, and in bad faith in using the Branham book to determine if HCT's vehicles complied with weight specifications.

Penalties

Petitioner contends that the District's penalty assessment is excessive compared with school districts. Petitioner also asserts that it was overcharged for violations and contests penalties assessed for arriving late. Specifically, petitioner asserts that the District issued duplicate violations to cover the same incident. P-494, P-431, P-504. Thus, the additional assessment was unreasonable. Petitioner also objects to the District's failure to produce a witness to substantiate the violations shown in P-469 through P-545. Thus, petitioner submits that it should be reimbursed for the double routing incident "of an additional rebate of $309 and a total of $6,659 plus interest for unsustained violations." Petitioner's initial brief at 15.

Manzo acknowledged receiving copies of an addendum regarding violations for late arrivals. The penalties were deducted from the contract price. P-260A. The documents show the date of the infraction, the complaint, and the amount deducted. Additionally, fines were issued to HCT for improper boarding and departing, lack of fire extinguishers, lack of two-way radio and double routing were included. For school year 1992-93, the total fines were $12,598 for late arrival and $1,530 for other infractions for April and May 1993

Manzo also claimed that in school years 1992-93 and 1993-94, there was a change in the penalty schedule. In 1992-93, the penalty changed from 1/3 to 1/2 and in 1993-94, there was a 100% penalty. In its brief, petitioner states that for 1992-93, all violations were assessed at 1/2 the daily route cost. This amount, however, is contrary to the contract penalty schedule which provides that noncompliance will result in nonpayment of 1/3 the daily rate for the a.m. bus run, morning violations, and nonpayment of the daily rate for p.m. bus runs in the afternoon. After five specification violations, the penalty for violation #6 and thereafter shall result in nonpayment of 1/2 of the daily rate for a.m. and/or p.m. bus run. P-546.

Petitioner submits that it was assessed for 153 individual penalties as the 1/2 daily rate "86 exceeded the 6+ rule, leaving 67 penalties, if sustained, that will over penalize by 1/6 of the routes daily rate." Petitioner urges that the violations be reversed because the District failed to submit the appropriate addendum to the county superintendent within 30 days and did not follow its own due process procedure of forwarding the violation to the vendor within seven days of the infraction. Thus, the penalty amount of $14,139 should be returned to petitioner with interest. Ibid.

Respondent argues that the violation penalty schedule is not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Further, respondent denies that it's conduct towards petitioner was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or disparate. The violation and penalty schedules are set forth in the contract. During the bidding process, questions arose concerning the requirement of an aide on route E713. HCT was awarded the contract but did not confirm whether an aide was required until it began to receive violations.

I have considered petitioner's disputes regarding the penalties assessed for violations. Route 713 was a shuttle run from the school to the occupational center and transported students in grades 8 through 12. I reject Manzo's claim that he was not aware whether any of the students were handicapped and required an aide. At the bidding for route 718, questions were asked whether an aide was required on the bus. The District did not respond in the affirmative or negative but stated that it would refer the matter to its legal department.

HCT is vendor who had done business with the Jersey City school district for many years and believed it was entitled to the continued business it had recieved in the past. Indeed, in the prior proceeding HCT sought to maintain the same status had it had previously held before the state takeover. The ALJ found, however, no merit in HCT's argument that it was entitled to the award of contracts because such contracts had been awarded the past. Hudson County Transport, Inc., supra at 639. Moreover, HCT was familiar with the bidding process and the nature of many pupil routes. For example, Manzo testified that several areas in Jersey City had narrow roads which created access problems for the buses. Thus, it can reasonably be concluded that the vendor should have sought clarification about the requirements of an aide. Indeed, Hudson submitted a quote with and without an aide. Consequently, I CONCLUDE there is no merit to petitioner's argument that it was wrongfully assessed penalties for violations of Route E-713.

With regard to fines for late arrivals, credible testimony was provided by several school principals that HCT was often late in transporting its students. Moreover, school administrators such as Trefurt and Strynar credibly testified that HCT's drivers refused to sign the violation forms at the cite. Thus, I CONCLUDE that the District properly cited HCT for infractions of late arrivals. However, I direct the transportation department to review its records for calculation errors. If appropriate, adjustments shall be made to reflect the contract penalty of 1/3 the daily rate for the first five violations committed on the a.m. bus run, morning violations, and nonpayment of the daily rate for p.m. bus runs in the afternoon. After five violations, the penalty for violation six and thereafter shall result in nonpayment of 1/2 of the daily rate for a.m. and/or p.m. bus run. P-546.

With regard to the reasonableness of the District's violation penalty schedule, the record reflects that the violation penalty schedule of other local school districts such as Newark Board of Education, Union County Educational Services Commission, Essex County Educational Services Commission, Rutherford Board of Education and South Bergen Jointure Commission are comparable to the Jersey City school district. R-7, R-8, R-9, R-10- R-11.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the violation penalty schedule of the State-Operated School District of Jersey City is comparable with local standards and thus, it is not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

I reject petitioner's assertion that the District's failure to provide a departmental hearing on the violations was a denial of due process. No statue or regulation provides for departmental hearings. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 provides that the Commissioner shall determine controversies and disputes arising under school law or under the rules of the State Board of Education of the Commissioner of Education. Hudson County Transport, Inc. v. State-Operated School District of Jersey City, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 635, 636. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Commissioner and therefore, the OAL is the appropriate tribunal for an impartial hearing regarding the assessment of contract violations.

Damages

I CONCLUDE that HCT is not entitled to nor eligible for monetary damages. The education statue, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, grants the Commissioner jurisdiction to hear and determine controversies and disputes arising under the school law or under the rules of the State Board of Education or the Commissioner of Education. Hudson County Transport, Inc. v. State-Operated School District of Jersey City, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 635, 639. Accordingly, the Commissioner and therefore, the OAL have jurisdiction over bidding disputes arising under the Public School Contracts Law. However, an ALJ's jurisdiction does not extend to the awarding of damages to an aggrieved party. "[A]bsent an express grant, administrative agencies do not have the power to exercise or perform a judicial function and may not determine damages, award a personal money judgment or promulgate an order requiring a pecuniary reparation or refund." John S. Slowinski v. City of Trenton, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (BRC) 71, 72; see also Hudson County Transport, Inc. supra. at 636. (The ALJ concluded that Commissioner had jurisdiction over school transportation contract disputes which fall under the education statute but did not have jurisdiction to award money damages for breach of contract.). Similarly, an ALJ's jurisdiction does not extend to the granting of attorney's fees. Balsey v. North Hunterdon Reg. High Sch., 225 N.J. Super. 221 (1988).

I have considered and find no merit to the remainder of petitioner's arguments. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner is entitled to no relief in this matter.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the petition of Hudson's County Transport be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

HUDSON COUNTY TRANSPORT,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by the respondent District in conformance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. No exceptions or replies were filed by petitioner.

Respondent initially concurs with the finding that petitioner is entitled to no relief on its claims. However, it takes exception to two conclusions reached by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in the course of the initial decision, averring that these are not supported by the evidence in the record. Specifically, respondent seeks that the Commissioner strike and delete the conclusion of the ALJ that respondent's decisions to change the bus type on trip request forms from "school bus" (furnished by petitioner) to "coach bus," were based in part on Janet Gaita's personal dislike of Allen Manzo, President of Hudson County Transport and his son, Alan Manzo, and their contentious relationship. (Exceptions at p. 3) It bases such contention on the fact that all of petitioner's claims related to pupil transportation contracts in 1993-94, a time period when Ms. Gaita was not even present at work to administer the transportation department of the District. (Exceptions at pp. 3-4) Further, respondent purports that such finding "appears to have been clouded by the personally abusive behavior of the Manzos toward Ms. Gaita and her staff, in the time period preceding Ms. Gaita's medical leave, and Ms. Gaita's dislike of their conduct." (Exceptions at p. 5) It asserts that a supervisor's dislike of personal abuse of her staff does not translate into personal motivation or vindictiveness in making decisions on school business. (Exceptions at p. 6)

Respondent further objects to the finding that, 'the District, through its transportation coordinator, acted arbitrarily, capriciously and in bad faith in using the Branham book to determine if HCT's vehicles complied with weight specifications.' (Exceptions at p. 7, citing to Initial Decision at p. 25)

Consequently, respondent asserts that the ALJ assumed bad faith on the part of Ms. Gaita without basis and contrary to the proscription of Miller v. Passaic Valley Water Commission, which holds that, "the good faith of public officials is to be presumed." 259 N.J. Super. 1, 14 (App. Div.) certif. den., 130 N.J. 601 (1992). (Exceptions at p. 8)

Additionally, respondent notes that the ALJ's directive to recalculate penalties and make any necessary adjustments was erroneously based on the penalty schedule included in the 1992-93 bid specifications, when the year at issue was 1993-94 and an entirely different schedule was operative and applied by the District.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that petitioner is not entitled to the relief it seeks. However, the Commissioner also finds it appropriate to set aside the two conclusions specified in respondent's exceptions and to amend the order regarding recalculation of penalty. With regard to recalculation of penalties, it is clear from the record that the applicable schedule is, in fact, that included in 1993-94 bid specifications as contended by the District, so that no recalculation appears necessary based on the ALJ's application of 1992-93 standards. With regard to the changing of bus types specified on trip request forms from "school bus" to "coach bus," the record as presented demonstrates that distance, additional space, and pupil needs were respondent's considerations in making such changes. It does not, however, demonstrate that any personal dislike that may have existed between the parties' personal agents specifically influenced the District's decisions, so as to find such decisions to have been made in bad faith. Likewise, with regard to the Branham book being used to determine vehicle weight, the record reveals no specific basis upon which the Commissioner can conclusively infer bad faith on the part of the respondent for application of these standards to petitioner's vehicles.* However, the Commissioner does find the record of this matter sufficient to support the ALJ's conclusion that such action was arbitrary and unreasonable, and, accordingly, the Commissioner admonishes the District and directs it to reform its policies and procedures to scrupulously ensure that, henceforth, such standards as it adopts for determining acceptable vehicle weight are applied uniformly by all staff to all vehicles.

ACCORDINGLY, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law, as modified herein, as the final decision in this matter and dismisses the Petition of Appeal.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, nontenured custodian, challenged his transfer from the day to the night shift in March 1993, and his removal from employment in November 1993. He alleged that respondent Board violated the Open Public Meetings Act in connection with his transfer, breached his rights under his employment contract, and engaged in a conspiracy to conceal its actions and falsify public documents.

ALJ found that Commissioner lacked subject matter jurisdiction over the instant matter and therefore, dismissed the case. Insofar as the petition sought a contractual remedy for breach of the collective bargaining agreement, those issues were properly raised in the arbitration proceeding previously initiated by petitioner. Moreover, the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction to decide any claim that a Board engaged in a criminal "conspiracy" to violate petitioner's rights. Thus, ALJ found that the Open Public Meetings Act violation remained alone. In that the Commissioner possesses only incidental jurisdiction to decide such questions, as there must first be a primary dispute arising under school laws, the Commissioner cannot assert jurisdiction over the instant appeal.

Commissioner adopted the findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") brought by a school custodian challenging his transfer from the day to the night shift in March 1993 and his removal from employment in November 1993. Basically, petitioner Kenneth Tucker alleges that respondent Glen Ridge Board of Education ("Board") violated the Open Public Meetings Act in connection with his transfer, breached his rights under the employment contract, and engaged in a conspiracy to conceal its actions and falsify public documents.

Respondent Board has filed motion papers to dismiss the petition or, in the alternative, for summary decision, based on four separate grounds: (1) petitioner is time-barred under the ninety-day rule, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1, from filing a petition with the Commissioner; (2) petitioner's Open Public Meeting Act claim was filed beyond the forty-five day period allowed by statute, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6; (3) petitioner's allegations of discrimination were filed beyond the 180-day statute of limitations set forth in the Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-18; and (4) petitioner's cause of action is barred by res judicata and the single controversy doctrine.

For the reasons which follow, Mr. Tucker's petition will be dismissed for lack of jurisdiction, without reaching the various timeliness issues.

Procedural History

Mr. Taylor filed his original petition with the Commissioner on April 8, 1996 and his amended petition on April 15, 1996. The Board filed its answer and affirmative defenses on May 3, 1996. Subsequently, on June 3, 1996, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case.

On March 17, 1997, the Board served a copy of its notice of motion, together with supporting certification and brief, on Mr. Tucker.[1] Mr. Tucker filed opposing papers, together with tapes of a related hearing before the Division on Civil Rights on April 7, 1997. Thereafter, the Board filed a reply on April 15, 1997.

[1] Initially, the Board had filed this motion with the OAL on August 1, 1996. Due to confusion over whether or not Mr. Tucker was properly served with the motion papers, the OAL directed that the moving papers be refiled so that the motion could be decided on its merits.

Findings of Fact

All of the facts necessary for disposition of this motion are undisputed. From the pleadings, certifications and exhibits, I FIND the following facts:

Kenneth Tucker started working as a custodian for the Glen Ridge public school district on July 13, 1992. In or about March 1993, the school administration changed Mr. Tucker's assignment from the day shift to the night shift. Apparently the Board held a discussion about the transfer of Mr. Tucker during an executive session which proceeded its regular meeting on March 2, 1993. In testimony given at a related civil rights proceeding on January 30, 1996, Dr. Nell Sanders, a building principal in the district, stated that the Board met on March 2, 1993 and discussed the transfer of Mr. Tucker "among many items of business."[2] Minutes for the regular board meeting on March 2, 1993 make no mention of any formal resolution approving the transfer. Mr. Tucker contends that he received no advance notice that the Board would consider his transfer at its March 2 meeting and that he first learned of the Board's possible discussion of his transfer at the civil rights hearing on January 30, 1996.

Eight months later, on November 2, 1993, the Board voted to terminate Mr. Tucker's employment for cause. A letter from the Board, dated November 3, 1993, enumerates several reasons for this action, including: "falsification of employment application; unsatisfactory work performance; insubordination; unbecoming and subversive conduct; [and] failure to correct conduct and attitude after prior warnings." While there is some dispute whether this letter was hand-delivered to Mr. Tucker, he admits that he was orally informed of his dismissal on November 3, 1993.

Later in her testimony, Dr. Sanders clarified that she wasn't actually at that particular meeting, but that the Board's standard operating procedure is to approve a transfer "in open session." Transcript, at p. 134, line 13

After his transfer and ultimate dismissal, Mr. Tucker instituted a series of complaints before various courts, administrative agencies and public bodies arising out of the same or similar events. In late November and early December, he and the Glen Ridge Education Association on his behalf filed multiple grievances under the collective bargaining agreement regarding, among other items, his work assignments, termination and alleged violation of the Open Public Meetings Act. When the grievances were denied at the superintendent and board level, the parties agreed to submit their dispute to binding arbitration conducted by an arbitrator appointed by the Public Employment Relations Commission. Due to a dispute among Mr. Tucker, his attorney and the Association, the scheduled arbitration was adjourned without date.

Meanwhile, on March 8, 1993, Mr. Tucker filed a complaint with the Division on Civil Rights alleging, among other things, discrimination in his transfer from the day to the night shift. After his termination, Mr. Tucker filed a companion complaint with the Division of Civil Rights on February 7, 1994, alleging unequal treatment and retaliatory discharge for filing his earlier complaint. Both civil rights cases were referred to the OAL for consolidated hearings before Administrative Law Judge Elinor Reiner, which commenced in July 1995 and are still ongoing. It was in the course of these hearings that Mr. Tucker purportedly first learned that the Board had met on March 2, 1993 to discuss his transfer.

Additionally, Mr. Tucker has brought separate courses of action against the Board in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division, Essex County. On October 31, 1994, Mr. Tucker filed his first complaint, designated Dkt. No. ESX-L-14363-94, in which he accused the Board of breach of contract, invasion of privacy, defamation and gross negligence. By order entered on January 6, 1995, Superior Court Judge Stephen E. Mochary granted summary judgment dismissing Mr. Tucker's complaint "with prejudice."

Again, in 1994, Mr. Tucker filed a second Superior Court complaint, designated Dkt. No. ESX-L-14087-94, contending that the Board's conduct had violated the Conscientious Employee Protection Act, N.J.S.A. 34:19-1 to -8. Judge Edward M.

Kirby denied the Board's summary judgment motion on November 22, 1996 and that matter is currently pending before the Superior Court.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the Commissioner lacks subject matter jurisdiction.

Insofar as the petition seeks a contractual remedy for breach of the collective-bargaining agreement, those issues are properly raised in the arbitration proceeding previously initiated by Mr. Tucker. Where the controversy does not arise under the school laws, it is outside the Commissioner's jurisdiction even though it may pertain to school personnel. East Brunswick Bd. of Educ., v. Twp. Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94, 102 (1966). Many disputes involving terms and conditions of employment may be resolved by binding arbitration if the agreement so provides, without resort to the Commissioner. N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.3. South Orange-Maplewood Educ. Ass'n v. South Orange Bd. of Educ., 146 N.J. Super. 457, 462 (App. Div. 1977). While the Commissioner has primary interest in matters concerning major educational policy or matters controlled by the school laws, the Commissioner's special expertise "would not significantly further the interpretative process as to the intended meaning of the parties' agreement." Englewood Bd. of Educ. v. Englewood Teachers Ass'n, 64 N.J. 1, 8 (1973); Newark Teachers Union v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 149 N.J. Super. 367, 372 (Ch. Div. 1977). If provision is made for binding arbitration of contractual issues, recourse for their resolution must be by that means and not to the Commissioner. Red Bank Bd. of Educ. v. Warrington, 138 N.J. Super. 564, 572 (App. Div. 1976).

Moreover, the State Board of Education has frequently recognized that the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction to decide contractual disputes. Illustratively, in Larsen v. Piscataway Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 1445-81 (Jan. 7, 1982), adopted by Comm'r of Educ. (Feb. 18, 1982), rev'd by State Bd. (Oct. 6, 1982), the State Board overturned an award to a school custodian suing to recover damages resulting from wrongful termination of his employment contract. Holding that the Commissioner should not have decided the case, the State Board ruled that "a controversy over the interpretation or enforcement of an employment contract . . . does not come within the orbit of [N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9]." (at page 2). Similarly, in Rainer's Dairies v. Collingswood Bd. of Educ., 1967 S.L.D. 260 (St. Bd. Sept. 6), the State Board ruled that the Commissioner's control over school cafeterias does not vest him with jurisdiction to decide a contract claim brought by a milk supplier against a board of education. See also, Padukow v. Jackson Twp. Bd. of Educ., 1968 S.L.D. 263, 264 (St. Bd. April 3), wherein the State Board declared that "the exercise of the Commissioner's expertise should be limited to matters directly bearing upon education and withheld in purely commercial matters." In our own case, Mr. Tucker has invoked the grievance procedure contemplated by the collective bargaining agreement and already has an adequate remedy for any breach of the contractual language.

Of course, the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction over any claim of criminal "conspiracy" to violate Mr. Tucker's rights. Article III of the New Jersey Constitution of 1947 embodies the separation of powers doctrine, which prohibits the executive branch of government from exercising any of the powers belonging to the judicial branch. N.J. Const. art III, §1. Jurisdiction over criminal matters is a judicial function vested exclusively in that branch of government. See Wright v. Plaza Ford, 164 N.J. Super. 203 (App. Div. 1978). Generally, all indictable offenses must be prosecuted in the Superior Court, Law Division. R. 3:1-5. Administrative agencies are not authorized to punish for criminal misconduct. Cresse v. Parsekian, 81 N.J. Super. 536 (App Div. 1963), aff'd 43 N.J. 326 (1964).

Even if petitioner's conspiracy count is liberally construed to set forth a tort claim for damages, see, e.g., Pitak v. Bell Atlantic Network Servs., Inc., 928 F. Supp. 1354, 1368 (D.N.J. 1996), the proper place for bringing such cause of action would be the judicial system. Tort actions against boards of education are cognizable in a court of competent jurisdiction, rather than before the Commissioner. Jackson v. Hankinson, 51 N.J. 230 (1968). Titus v. Lindberg, 49 N.J. 66 (1967). Accordingly, in D.K. v. Clifton Bd. of Educ., 93 N.J.A.R. (EDU) 71, 74 (Comm'r Nov. 20, 1992), the Commissioner remarked that redress for injury to a student caused by willful conduct or negligence of another student "must be pursued through the tort process."

That leaves the alleged Open Public Meetings Act violation as the only claim left.[3] Despite the literal language of N.J.S.A. 10:4-15 that any action by a public body not conforming to the Act is reviewable by the Superior Court, the Appellate Division has ruled that the Commissioner possesses "incidental jurisdiction" to decide such questions "as they relate to controversies under the school laws." Sukin v. Northfield Bd. of Educ., 171 N.J. Super. 184, 187 (App. Div. 1979). Like pendent jurisdiction in the federal courts, incidental jurisdiction requires the existence of a proper underlying claim to which the Commissioner's ancillary powers can attach. Subsequent agency decisions have consistently held that there must first be a primary dispute arising under the school laws before the Commissioner can exercise incidental jurisdiction to decide an Open Public Meetings Act question. Hamilton Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. Fraleigh, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 538 (Comm'r June 14, 1993); Rovello v. Boyle, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 313 (Comm'r March 15, 1993). Since Mr. Tucker's remaining claim is unaccompanied by any legitimate educational dispute, the Commissioner cannot assert "incidental jurisdiction" over the subject matter.

Order

It is ORDERED that the Board's motion to dismiss the petition is granted.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

[3]A generous reading of the amended petition fails to reveal any allegation of racial discrimination, except in connection with the contract claim. Although Mr. Tucker could (and arguably should) have originally filed his discrimination complaint with the Commissioner, he elected to file such complaint with the Division on Civil Rights. Now that the parties have engaged in lengthy hearings before the Division on Civil Rights, principles of comity and administrative efficiency dictate that the Commissioner abstain from relitigating the identical issues. Hinfey v. Matawan Reg. Bd. of Educ., 77 N.J. 514 (1978).

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were filed on an untimely basis and, therefore, such exceptions and the replies submitted thereto are not considered herein.[1]

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner determines to affirm the decision of the ALJ finding that the Commissioner lacks subject matter jurisdiction to review the instant matter for the reasons expressed therein.

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law and dismisses the petition of appeal.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[1] Petitioner's exceptions, which generally reiterate arguments previously raised before the ALJ and object to the ALJ's handling of certain procedural aspects of the instant case, were due no later than May 28, 1997. However, in that they were received by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on June 4, 1997, and in that there was no indication by petitioner that they were timely filed prior to his own hand-delivery of same on June 4, 1997, they will not be considered pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(a).

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission has acted pursuant to the authority granted to it by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. to recommend removal of the above-named Board member from office for failure to attend the Board member training sessions required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.4; and

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission sent ample notice to the above-named Board member of his failure to attend such training sessions; and

Whereas, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.3(i), on March 27, 1997, the Commission issued an Order to Show Cause why a penalty should not be imposed for such failure; and

Whereas, the above-named Board member informed the Commission that he could not attend the October 22, 1997 session due to a business emergency, and he could not attend the March 15, 1997 session because he was unexpectedly called away on business and later became ill and could not make the return flight in time for the session, but that he planned to attend the June 6-8, 1997 training program; and

Whereas, the Commission voted on April 22, 1997, to recommend reprimand of the above-named Board member if he attends the June 6-8, 1997 training session and, removal from the board if he fails to attend the June training session, in accordance with State statute, memorializing such decision through a resolution forwarded to the Commissioner, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29; and

Whereas, on May 28, 1997, the above-named Board member was afforded an opportunity to submit to the Commissioner a response to said resolution recommending either reprimand or removal; and

Whereas, no response was forthcoming; and

Whereas, the Commissioner of Education has confirmed that the above-named board member has, in fact, attended the June 6-8, 1997 training session; and

Whereas, the Commissioner of Education has carefully considered the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission, but declines to issue a reprimand to the above-named board member, finding suspension to be the appropriate penalty in this instance; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED that a one-meeting suspension be imposed on the above-named Board member, to be effective for the next regularly scheduled meeting of the board.

WHEREAS, Barbara DeLuca was elected to serve a three-year term on the Audubon Park Board of Education on April 15, 1996; and

WHEREAS, the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) advises prospective board members of the training requirement in the "candidate kit" before their election and mails correspondence to all new board members who have failed to register for or attend an orientation and did mail such correspondence to this board member on February 13, 1997; and

WHEREAS, at the request of the School Ethics Commission, the NJSBA published a notice with the heading "Last Chance to Meet Training Requirements" on the front page of the February 21, 1997 edition of School Board Notes advising that the March 15, 1997 session was the last that new board members could attend without penalty; and

WHEREAS, the NJSBA conducted seven training sessions between April 1996 and April 1997 at varying locations and continuously published the dates and times of the sessions; and

WHEREAS, the last training session to fulfill the requirement was held on March 15, 1997; and

WHEREAS, the Commission issued an Order on March 27, 1997, directing Barbara DeLuca to Show Cause why she had not attended training up until that time; and

WHEREAS, Ms. DeLuca replied that she did not attend the January session for which she was scheduled because she had to work and that she attends school on Saturdays until November, but she would attend "as soon as possible"; and

WHEREAS, the Commission notified Ms. DeLuca that the Commission would discuss this matter at its May 27, 1997 meeting, that she had the right to attend, and he could be found in violation of the School Ethics Act and receive a penalty up to removal; and

WHEREAS, Ms. DeLuca's response does not provide an adequate explanation of why she failed to attend training within the year allowed by law in light of other sessions offered before March; and

WHEREAS, Ms. DeLuca has failed to attend the required training program for the one year allowed; and

WHEREAS, the Commission finds that her failure to attend board member training from April 1996 to April 1997 constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33; and

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the School Ethics Commission finds that Barbara DeLuca violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 of the School Ethics Act and recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal from the board.

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission has acted pursuant to the authority granted to it by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. to recommend removal of the above-named Board member from office for failure to attend the Board member training sessions required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.4; and

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission sent ample notice to the above-named Board member of her failure to attend such training sessions; and

Whereas, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.3(i), on March 27, 1997, the Commission issued an Order to Show Cause why a penalty should not be imposed for such failure; and

Whereas, the above-named Board member replied that she did not attend the January session for which she was scheduled because she had to work and that she attends school on Saturdays until November, but she would attend "as soon as possible;" and

Whereas, the Commission voted on May 27, 1997, to recommend removal of the above-named Board member for failure to attend training sessions in violation of State statute,

Whereas, on May 28, 1997, the above-named Board member was afforded an opportunity to submit to the Commissioner a response to said resolution recommending removal; and

Whereas, no response was forthcoming; and

Whereas, the Commissioner of Education has carefully considered the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission and concurs with and adopts as his own the recommendations of the Commission; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED that the above-named Board member is removed from office as of the date of this decision.

Petitioner, Asbury Park Board of Education, and Respondent, State of New Jersey, Department of Education, have mutually agreed to settle the above-captioned matter, with Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey, by John K. Worthington, Deputy Attorney General, appearing on behalf of Respondent, New Jersey Department of Education, and Robin S. Perry, Esq., appearing on behalf of Petitioner, Asbury Park Board of Education, the parties hereby agree to settle the above captioned matter, which arose after an audit was conducted by the New Jersey Department of Education, Office of Compliance, of Petitioner's State School Aid received for 1992-1993, 1993-1994, and 1994-1995 school years, upon the following terms;

1. Petitioner will repay the Department of Education $418,832 in State Aid overpaid to petitioner for the 1992-1993, 1993-1994, and 1994-1995 school years. For the 1992-1993 school year, petitioner will repay $165,746 in State Aid. For the 1993-1994 school year, petitioner will repay $104,701 in State Aid. For the 1994-1995 school year, petitioner will repay $148,385 in State Aid.

2. The reimbursement of State Aid detailed in paragraph one will be as follows: in the 1996-1997 school year, the petitioner is repaying $165,746 in State Aid for the 1992-1993 school year through reductions by the Department in the State Aid payments that petitioner is to receive during the 1996-1997 year; in the 1997-1998 school year, the Department will recover the $104,701 in State Aid from the 1993-1994 school year and the $148,385 in State Aid from the 1994-1995 school year, totaling $253,086, from the State Aid payments petitioner is to receive during that year.

3. The Department agrees to consider a hardship application with regard to the $253,086 to be collected in the 1997-1998 year pursuant to the terms of the April 18, 1997 letter from Mike Azzara, Director of Finance, New Jersey Department of Education, to Dr. James H. Mundy, Superintendent of Schools, Asbury Park Public Schools (Attached hereto), if petitioner chooses to file such an application. Pursuant to the terms of the April 18, 1997 letter of Mike Azzara, any such hardship application must be filed by May 3, 1997 with the County Superintendent of Schools. The County Superintendent will then make a recommendation and a final determination will be made by Mike Azzara as to whether the application will be granted. If the application is granted, the $253,086 to be repaid for 1993-1994 and 1994-1995 school years will be collected by the Department pursuant to the determination of Mike Azzara, Director of Finance. If the application is denied, the entire $253,086 will be collected from the State Aid payments petitioner is to receive in 1997-1998.

4. It is further agreed that petitioner's petition will be dismissed with prejudice.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning tenured secretary filed simultaneously with the Commissioner and the Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC), seeking relief under the terms of a previously signed settlement and alleging retaliation and harassment. Board of Education subsequently filed tenure charges of insubordination, dereliction of duty and neglect. Matters were consolidated and predominant interest was found to be with the Commissioner due to the primacy of the tenure matter.

ALJ found that, prior to hearing, petitioner had resigned from employment with the Board and was receiving a pension. ALJ found entire matter to be mooted by this action.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ's findings and conclusions as to the matters under his jurisdiction and noted PERC's concurrent review of the matter before it.

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On August 15, 1995, the petitioner, Theresa M. Castagliuolo filed petitions simultaneously with the Commissioner of Education, OAL Docket. No. EDU 8577-95, and with the Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC), OAL Docket No. PRC 149-97.

On February 3, 1996, the Wildwood Crest Board of Education (Board) filed tenure charges with the Commissioner, OAL Docket No. EDU 927-96.

An Order determining predominant interest was filed on October 25, 1996 and the matters were consolidated by Order dated February 19, 1997.

Prior to the hearing date, petitioner Castagliuolo moved for an Order compelling the Board to pay petitioner Castagliuolo her full salary on the 121st day of her suspension pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. During the ensuing exchange of documents it became apparent that petitioner Castagliuolo had retired from her position effective January 1, 1996 and has been receiving her pension ever since. The Motion to Compel salary payments was withdrawn.

As a result of petitioner Castagliuolo's retirement effective January 1, 1996, the tenure charges are moot. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Carol Scherr, School District of the Borough of South Plainfield. 95 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* (EDU) 97.

The Commissioner, in his Final Decision in the Scherr matter, supra. pgs. 99-100, points out that the "employment relationship between (Scherr) and the charging district has been severed, ... by ..... (Scherr's) own actions."

It is therefore logical and by implication it follows, that petitioner Castagliuolo's petition to restore her to a former secretarial position and her petition charging retaliation are also moot.

I therefore DISMISS the petitions filed herein.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration and the PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION and the PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION, which by law are authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION and THE PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION do not not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION AND THE CHAIRMAN OF THE PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION, at 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625 and 495 West State Street, CN429, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, respectively, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. It is herein noted that on June 9, 1997, petitioner attempted to submit "exceptions" on her own behalf in this matter. Such submission was apparently filed without the knowledge or consent of her attorney, nor was there any indication that it had been served on opposing counsel. Additionally, in that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.1, a party to administrative proceedings may choose one of several options with respect to her representation and that, because petitioner elected throughout the course of the instant proceedings to be represented by counsel, absent notification to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes that she is no longer represented by an attorney, petitioner's exceptions in the circumstances herein, will not be considered by the Commissioner.*

* In that petitioner's exceptions would have been due no later than June 2, 1997, thirteen days from the mailing date pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, they would have been untimely filed in any event.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with those findings and conclusions in the initial decision which fall under the Commissioner of Education's jurisdiction. The Commissioner further notes that he has confirmed that this matter is being decided concurrently by the Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC) with regard to issues specific to that agency.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts those portions of the initial decision which are under his jurisdiction as his final decision in this matter.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

* It is noted that N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34c authorizes each assistant commissioner to hear and determine controversies and disputes which may arise under school laws, or the rules of the state board, or of the commissioner.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning teaching staff member appealed District's determination to withhold her 1995-96 employment and adjustment increments, based on unsatisfactory teaching performance during the 1994-95 school year.

ALJ found that evidence did not support District's action, and that, instead, the then-Board of Education based its actions on bad faith evaluations conducted in retaliation for petitioner's having criticized district programs and filed discrimination complaints.

Commissioner affirmed decision of the ALJ, noting that findings turned largely on credibility determinations which the Commissioner found no basis to disturb.

Record Closed: April 10, 1997 Decided: May 13, 1997

BEFORE MARIE P. SIMONELLI, A.L.J.:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Zena Mitchell (Ms. Mitchell), appeals the decision of respondent, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County (the District), to withhold her 1995-96 salary employment increment and adjustment increment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. The District based its decision on Ms. Mitchell's alleged unsatisfactory teaching performance during the 1994-95 school year.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 21, 1995, Ms. Mitchell filed a Petition. The District filed an Answer to Petition on September 8, 1995. The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 20, 1995, for a hearing.

The OAL held a hearing on June 7, September 30, and October 18, 1996, and January 8 and 9, 1997. The record closed on April 10, 1997, after the submission of all posthearing briefs.

FACTS

Having heard the witnesses and reviewed the exhibits, I FIND the following FACTS:

Ms. Mitchell began working for the District on January 30, 1989, as an elementary school teacher at the Peshine Avenue School (Peshine). From 1989 to 1995, the Peshine administration assigned Ms. Mitchell to teach six different grades as follows: (1) January 1989 to June 1989, seventh grade; (2) 1989-90 school year, sixth grade; (3) 1990-91 school year, fifth grade; (4) 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years, fourth grade; (5) 1993-94 school year, second grade; (6) 1994-95 school year, fourth grade, and (7) 1995-96 school year, kindergarten.

Ms. Mitchell experienced great difficulty in being assigned to teach different grades every year. It was difficult for her to prepare to teach every September because she had to use new textbooks and new materials and she had to move into new classrooms. She could not use lesson plans and materials that she had developed for the prior grades she had taught and this became a severe disadvantage for her. Ms. Mitchell complained to Peshine's administrators about being assigned to different grades every year. She further complained that Peshine's administrators were discriminating and retaliating against her in changing her teaching assignments every year because she had spoken out many times at faculty meetings about problems with Peshine's reading program and about the lack of textbooks, supplies and materials. She also had spoken out at those faculty meetings about the poor educational system at Peshine and that Peshine's educational system essentially set students up for failure.

After receiving no response to her complaints of discrimination and retaliation, in August 1994, Ms. Mitchell filed her first Civil Rights Complaint. In November 1994, Ms. Mitchell filed an Amended Complaint adding the allegation of retaliation. After Ms. Mitchell filed her first Civil Rights Complaint, Peshine's administrators began to aggressively evaluate her immediately upon the start of the 1994-95 school year. For the first time in all of her years at Peshine, Ms. Mitchell's began receiving unsatisfactory evaluations from these administrators. The Peshine administrators gave Ms. Mitchell unsatisfactory evaluations during the 1994-95 school year largely because they claimed that she allegedly could not control or discipline her class.

During the summer of 1994, the Peshine administration put together a roster of students to be assigned to Ms. Mitchell for the 1994-95 school year. The administration again changed Ms. Mitchell's grade level and assigned her to teach a fourth grade class of about 22 students. Ms. Mitchell had great difficulty teaching this class because 17 students were below grade level in reading, math and language. One student was reading at the first grade level, 14 were reading at the second grade level, 3 were reading at the third grade level and only 2 were reading at the fourth grade level. The students reading below fourth grade level had great difficulty using fourth grade textbooks. They, therefore, had great difficulty learning and sometimes acted out in frustration. Although Ms. Mitchell had asked Peshine's administrators for different textbooks that these students could read and understand, the administrators ignored her request and demanded that she use the fourth grade textbooks. Although she tried to make adjustments, it was extremely difficult for her students to learn because they simply could not read the textbooks. In addition, Ms. Mitchell had an insufficient number of textbooks for her students to use. The students had to share textbooks and this caused further learning problems. Peshine's administrators also ignored Ms. Mitchell's request for additional textbooks.

To make matters worse, several of Ms. Mitchell's students were disruptive and had very serious disciplinary problems. Other teachers who testified at the hearing described Ms. Mitchell's class as "the class from hell" and as an extremely difficult class to control and teach. One teacher, Phyllis Hunter-McLeod (Mrs. McLeod), even admitted that, despite her 22 years of teaching experience, she would have had great difficulty controlling this class. She also testified that she observed the disruptive students in Ms. Mitchell's class and that they were abusive and disrespectful to Ms. Mitchell. Another teacher, Judith Ann Lupo (Ms. Lupo), described Ms.

Mitchell's class as "stacked" with students who had disciplinary or educational problems and who needed help. Patricia D. George (Ms. George), a security guard, testified that she constantly was called to Ms. Mitchell's classroom to remove disruptive students because Ms. Mitchell was concerned about the safety of her other students and herself. Whenever Ms. George went to Ms. Mitchell's classroom, she observed the same students fighting, arguing, pushing, cursing and throwing things around. She also observed a student threaten Ms. Mitchell on one occasion. Ms. George further testified that she continued to have disciplinary problems with these particular students after they no longer were in Ms. Mitchell's class.

Ms. Mitchell took many steps to try to control and discipline the disruptive students in her class. When these students did not respond, she then attempted to communicate with their parents. She also reported her difficulties to Peshine's administrators. Ms. Mitchell also submitted 152 Discipline Referral Forms, several Child Study Team Referral Forms and several Guidance Referral Forms. Peshine's administrators either did not respond to Ms. Mitchell or they did very little to assist her with these difficult students. They merely removed some of these students from Ms. Mitchell's class and placed them into another class. In short, Ms. Mitchell received no support from Peshine's administrators in dealing with these very difficult students.

With respect to the disciplinary policy at Peshine, Ms. Lupo testified that it was nonexistent. The Peshine administration did very little about disciplinary problems and it did not follow-up in disciplinary referrals. In fact, when Ms. Lupo had asked the administration for help with a difficult student, the administration ignored her. Another teacher, Mark Leslie Leibowitz (Mr. Leibowitz), testified that the administration did nothing when he submitted Discipline Referral Forms. He also received no support from the Child Study Team or the Guidance Department. Finally, another teacher, Paul J. Urso (Mr. Urso), testified that he did not even bother to submit Discipline Referral Forms because they were a waste of time and the administration did nothing. He also testified that the Peshine administration did not take discipline problems seriously during the 1994-95 school year and that it left the teachers on their own to handle disciplinary problems. Mr. Urso also corroborated that "the deck was stacked against Ms. Mitchell" because there was an inordinate number of students with disciplinary problems in her class. He concluded that Ms. Mitchell's difficulty with her class stemmed from the above and not from any poor teaching or unsatisfactory performance on her part.

Mr. Urso also testified that he has been teaching at Peshine for 30 years and has served as a mentor to other teachers. During the 1994-95 school year, he visited Ms. Mitchell's classroom on many occasions. Despite the disciplinary problems Ms. Mitchell was having, her classroom was one of the most talked about rooms in the school. It was nicely decorated and other teachers tried to copy it. Ms. Mitchell prided herself on the neatness and appearance of her classroom and it always was in excellent shape. Mr. Urso also observed Ms. Mitchell effectively teaching her students using many learning tools, some of which she had purchased or made herself. Mr. Urso testified that Ms. Mitchell always tried to teach her class despite being disrupted by certain students. He also stated that Ms. Mitchell was a dedicated teacher and she always got to school early and left late.

Mr. Urso's description of his observations of and dealings with Ms. Mitchell, as well as the testimony of other witnesses about Ms. Mitchell's teaching abilities, are in sharp conflict with the unsatisfactory evaluations she received during the 1994-95 school year which portray her as a very poor teacher. It is as if they are talking about two different people. What is not in conflict, however, is that prior to the 1994-95 school year, and prior to filing her discrimination Complaints, Ms. Mitchell never received an unsatisfactory evaluation and she never had difficulties controlling or disciplining any class.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

Under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-13, a board has the power to give annual increments. An award of an annual increment is not a matter of statutory right. Rather, N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 permits a board to withhold an increment "for inefficiency or other good cause". An annual increment "is in the nature of a reward for meritorious service" and is "subject to annual evaluation of teacher performance". North Plainfield Education Association v. Board of Education, 96 N.J. 587, 593-594 (1984).

A board has the statutory authority to establish the criteria by which it evaluates the performance of a teacher. A Board's determination that a teacher has not satisfactorily performed and is, thus, not entitled to an annual increment will not be overturned unless it is found to be arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). There must be a reasonable basis for the board's conclusion. Id. at 295. It is Ms. Mitchell's burden of proving unreasonableness. Id. at 297.

In the present case, the District determined that Ms. Mitchell would not receive an annual increment for the 1995-96 school year because of her alleged unsatisfactory teaching performance during the 1994-95 school year. The undersigned is convinced by the evidence presented in this case that Ms. Mitchell did not perform unsatisfactorily and that her unsatisfactory evaluations were arbitrary and done in bad faith. The undersigned places particular importance on the testimony of the witnesses presented by Ms. Mitchell. That testimony has convinced the undersigned that the Peshine administrators were out to get Ms. Mitchell because of her criticism of the reading and educational programs at Peshine and because she had filed discrimination Complaints. The Peshine administration assigned Ms. Mitchell to the "class from hell" which was "stacked" with students with disciplinary and educational problems. The Peshine administration also did nothing to help Ms. Mitchell with those students, they did not enforce any disciplinary policies with respect to those students, and they completely ignored her requests for assistance, for textbooks and for other teaching materials. It is clear to the undersigned from all of the evidence presented in this case that the Peshine administration acted in bad faith is giving Ms. Mitchell unsatisfactory evaluations during the 1994-95 school year.

By reason of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the District improperly withheld Ms. Mitchell's salary increment and adjustment increment for the 1995-96 school year. I further CONCLUDE that Ms. Mitchell has proved that the District's decision was arbitrary, without rational basis and induced by improper motive.

ORDER

Therefore, I ORDER that the District's decision to withhold Ms. Mitchell's salary increment and adjustment increment for the 1995-96 school year be and hereby is REVERSED. I further ORDER Ms. Mitchell's Petition be and hereby is GRANTED and the District shall restore her 1995-96 increment.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

ZENA MITCHELL,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of respondent, State-operated School District of the City of Newark were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions object to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) conclusion that it improperly withheld petitioner's increment. In this connection, respondent contends that the ALJ erroneously failed to properly credit documentary evidence it presented and testimony proffered by its witnesses. Respondent presents a recapitulation of testimony advanced by each of its witnesses which, it contends, establishes that petitioner's performance for the 1994-95 school year was far below par, thereby, justifying the withholding of her increment. Respondent argues that this conclusion is inevitable despite the "many excuses" presented by petitioner "to deflect attention from her poor teaching skills." (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 10)

Upon an independent and comprehensive review of the within record, which included transcripts of only 3 of the 5 days of hearings conducted in this matter[1] , the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ that petitioner has met her burden of establishing that the District's action[2] in withholding her salary increment for the 1995-96 school year was unreasonable and as such, this increment must be restored.

The Commissioner is unpersuaded by the exception arguments advanced by respondent. Although this matter turns, to a great extent, on the credibility of witnesses and the weighing of evidence, the Commissioner is satisfied, based on the record as a whole, that the ALJ appropriately measured conflicts, inconsistencies, potential biases, and plausibility of content in deciding which testimony to credit in reaching the factual findings and conclusions herein. It is noted that credibility determinations of the finder of fact, who observed the witnesses first-hand, are to be accorded great weight in the absence of any meaningful basis on which to challenge them upon review of the hearing transcripts. Notwithstanding that the only transcripts contained in the record were those of the testimony of respondent's witnesses, review of these, along with the balance of the record before him, provides the Commissioner with no basis for overturning the ALJ's credibility determinations. Additionally, the Commissioner recognizes, as did the ALJ, that prior to filing her discrimination complaint in August 1994, petitioner had never received an unsatisfactory evaluation nor identified as having difficulty controlling or disciplining any class.

[1] Hearings in this matter were conducted on June 7, 1996, September 30, 1996, October 18, 1996, and January 8 and 9, 1997. Transcripts covering hearing dates of June 7, 1996, September 30, 1996, and January 9, 1997 were submitted with respondent's exceptions.

[2] It is noted that the record reflects that the action at issue herein was taken on May 7, 1995 by the Newark Board of Education. The State-operated District became the respondent in this matter by virtue of the State takeover of the district which occurred on July 12, 1995.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is affirmed for the reasons articulated therein. The State-operated District of the City of Newark is hereby ordered to restore petitioner's increment for the 1995-96 school year which was improperly withheld.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teacher, asserted State Operated District violated N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 in adopting its expulsion policy and in failing to convene a proper expulsion hearing against a student who assaulted him. Petitioner contends that the express language of statute requires that expulsion hearings be conducted by the Board of Education which now exists in the District pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-48, rather than by the State District Superintendent.

ALJ concluded that, in a State Operated District, all the duties and powers of the previous Board of Education are vested in the State Superintendent. Therefore, conduct of the expulsion hearing contested by petitioner was appropriate, as was the manner in which the District's expulsion policy was adopted.

Commissioner affirmed findings and conclusions of initial decision.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education as a contested case on February 20, 1996. A telephone prehearing conference scheduled to be conducted on May 13, 1996 subsequently was adjourned and the case was placed on the inactive list. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-9.7. Ultimately, following informal telephone conferences with counsel, it was agreed that the matter could be decided by cross-motions for summary decision based upon a joint stipulation of facts. Those papers now have been filed and the following is my initial decision.

JOINT STIPULATION OF FACTS

As noted above, counsel have submitted a joint stipulation of facts which will be marked "Court Exhibit 1". The facts to which the parties have stipulated are as follows:

1. Petitioner, Thomas M. Weir, is a tenured teaching staff member employed by the Respondent, the State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson (hereinafter "the District").

2. Petitioner, Paterson Education Association, is the majority representative for all teaching staff and various staff and various staff members employed by the District.

3. Thomas M. Weir was assaulted by Korey Marche, then a student at School No. 24 in the Paterson School District, on May 22, 1995.

4. Thomas M. Weir and the Paterson Education Association filed a petition alleging a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-1 by Respondent on October 20, 1995.

5. On January 30, 1996, the District filed an Answer.

6. Petitioner, Paterson Education Association, was a party to three (3) separate petitions concerning Paterson teachers who had been assaulted and seeking to have the Commissioner order the State Operated School District of Paterson to enforce 18A:37-2.1. The cases were, in order of filing, Garrity, et al v. Board of Education of the State Operated School District, Passaic County, OAL Docket No. EDU 9876-94; Berger, et al v. The State Operated School District of the City of Paterson, OAL Docket No. EDU 11722-95, and the subject case.

7. On June 13, 1996, the matter was placed on the inactive list for six months because the student was in a residential placement subject to the jurisdiction of the juvenile justice system and the District was formulating a policy and guidelines to address student assaults. The Berger case was held in abeyance pending the decision in the Garrity case. The subject case, the Weir case, was likewise put on the inactive list pending the release of the assailant from custody and the formulation of policy and guidelines by Respondent Paterson to address student assaults. See J-4 (Order or inactivity and supporting letters).

8. On August 23, 1996, Louis Flora wrote to the Principal of School No. 24 directing him not to re-admit Korey Marche without a hearing (J-1).

9. Counsel for Petitioners was given the opportunity to review the policy and the guidelines that had been written as directed by the Commissioner in Garrity under the agreements supporting the Order of Inactivity in this case. (See J-4 Order of Inactivity and enclosures).

10. While Petitioner's counsel did not fully agree that the policy and guidelines were appropriate, no action was taken by Petitioner's counsel to appeal the Order in the Garrity case.

11. In September 1996, the District adopted a policy regarding assaults by pupils upon District staff and Board Members (J-2). Petitioner's counsel was provided with the policy and regulations, as approved by the Department of Education, in September of 1996.

12. During the course of the Respondent's defense of the subject case, it offered to Petitioner's counsel a hearing of the case against the student upon his attempted return to the District. See J-5 (letter of June 4, 1996).

13. On September 13, 1996, a disciplinary hearing was held by Dr. Emmajean Stepherson, Assistant Superintendent of Schools. In the subject case, Petitioner's counsel was permitted to attend the hearing conducted by Dr. Stepherson on September 13, 1996 under the policy and guidelines adopted.

14. On September 17, 1996, Dr. Stepherson issued her report and decision (J-3).

15. Neither the Petitioner's counsel nor any petitioner expressed any dissent or alleged any deficiency concerning the proceeding held on September 13, 1996 until Petitioner's counsel's letter of 1/7/97 to ALJ Weiss (J-6).

16. By letter of 1/13/97, counsel for Respondent replied to the 1/7/97 letter of Petitioner's counsel (J-7).

17. During the course of the litigation of the Garrity case, the Berger case, and the subject case, certain statutory revisions occurred concerning N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 - 18A:37-12, and sections of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-34 through N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52.

18. Respondent, State Operated School District of Paterson, has been under State operation since August of 1991. (Court Exhibit 1)[1]

DISCUSSION

After this matter was restored to the active list in January 1997 I asked counsel to address three separate issues in their cross-motions as follows: (1) was the school district's policy pertaining to suspension and/or expulsion of pupils in compliance with the requirements of the education statutes; (2) are petitioners' claims barred by the doctrine of collateral estoppel; and (3) are petitioners' claims barred by the doctrine of waiver? The memoranda submitted by petitioners do not appear to address the last two issues. Since they are in the nature of separate defenses, they were addressed by the Board.

The position taken by petitioners is straightforward, to wit: N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 expressly provides that in circumstances involving an alleged assault by a pupil upon a teacher the hearing to be provided to the pupil must be conducted by the board of education itself. Thus, even though the school district in this case is a State-Operated school district, since it was in its sixth year of such operation in 1996-97 there is now a locally elected Board which is entitled to vote on matters brought before it by the district superintendent for a vote. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-48. Petitioners therefore maintain that: (1) the policy adopted in September 1996 (J-2) should have been reviewed by the Board; and (2) the hearing conducted on September 13, 1996 should have been conducted by the Board.

[1] References to various "J" documents cited in the Joint Stipulation will be discussed, as needed, infra. I should also note that the case had been placed on an "inactive" status between June 1996 and January 1997 as the parties were attempting to reach an amicable resolution. When that proved not to be possible the case was restored to the active list.

For its part, of course, the respondent takes a distinctly different view of the matter. According to it, the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 do not, in the circumstances of this case, diminish the authority of the State District Superintendent or his designee to conduct suspension or expulsion hearings. I agree.

On its face, of course, the statute appears unambiguously to provide that suspension/expulsion proceedings should be conducted before the local board. Thus, in Garrity, supra, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 567, the Commissioner ordered the respondent to comply with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. See, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) at 576. However, Garrity did not address the specific issue before me in this case, for regardless of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1, since the respondent is a State Operated School District the requirements of the Public School Education Act of 1975 govern its operation and the provisions of the Act must be considered with respect to the analysis of any other education statutes. My review of the Act points inexorably to the conclusion that what occurred in this case was appropriate. Thus, all of the authority and powers previously vested in the local board are transferred to the Superintendent of the State Operated School District, and all of the district's activities are conducted by and under the Superintendent's supervision. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-15.1; 7A-35(a); 7A-46(b). See, also, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-35(e) and 7A-38(b) and 7A-35(f). Therefore, since under the Act all the duties and powers of the local board are to be exercised by and under the control of the Superintendent, where, as here, suspension/expulsion hearings are held by the Superintendent or his or her duly appointed designee, such action becomes the equivalent of the local hearing under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1.

Although the respondent's policy for suspension/expulsion hearings was approved by the Department in September 1996 there was no specific reference to who actually was responsible for conducting the hearing. In this case, of course, the hearing was conducted by Dr. Stepherson, Assistant Superintendent of Schools. Petitioners' counsel was permitted to attend the hearing (J-4) and at no time prior to, or at the hearing, was any objection raised with respect to the propriety of Dr. Stepherson acting as the hearing entity rather than the local board, nor any challenge lodged to whether or not she had proper authority to so act. Thus, I must assume: (a) that the authority to conduct the hearing properly was delegated under N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42(b); and (2) that, in any event, any objection to such a delegation on procedural or other grounds was waived.

Having reached these conclusions there is no reason for me to address the "collateral estoppel" issue. Clearly, given the contents of the Joint Stipulation of Facts and the applicable statutory authority cited herein, the actions taken by respondent in this case were proper and met all of the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. Thus, the petition is ordered DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

WHEREAS, the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et. seq. was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in school board members and school administrators and to provide specific ethical standards to guide their conduct; and

WHEREAS, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 requires new board members to attend training within one year of election or appointment to the board to gain the skills and knowledge necessary to serve as a school board member; and

WHEREAS, John Bryant was elected to serve a three-year term on the Pleasantville Board of Education on April 15, 1996; and

WHEREAS, the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) advises prospective board members of the training requirement in the "candidate kit" before their election and mails correspondence to all new board members who have failed to register for or attend an orientation and did mail such correspondence to this board member on February 13, 1997; and

WHEREAS, at the request of the School Ethics Commission, the NJSBA published a notice with the heading "Last Chance to Meet Training Requirements" on the front page of the February 21, 1997 edition of School Board Notes advising that the March 15, 1997 session was the last that new board members could attend without penalty; and

WHEREAS, the NJSBA conducted seven training sessions between April 1996 and April 1997 at varying locations and continuously published the dates and times of the sessions; and

WHEREAS, the last training session to fulfill the requirement was held on March 15, 1997; and

WHEREAS, the Commission issued an Order on March 27, 1997, directing John Bryant to Show Cause why he had not attended training up until that time; and

WHEREAS, Rev. Bryant replied that he was previously unable to attend training due to scheduling conflicts with his job responsibilities, but is currently enrolled and plans to attend the June 6-8, 1997 training session; and

WHEREAS, the Commission notified Rev. Bryant that the Commission would discuss this matter at its May 27, 1997 meeting, that he had the right to attend, and he could be found in violation of the School Ethics Act and receive a penalty up to removal; and

WHEREAS, Rev. Bryant has failed to attend the required training program for the one year allowed; and

WHEREAS, the Commission finds that his failure to attend board member training from April 1996 to April 1997 constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33; and

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the School Ethics Commission finds that Rev. John Bryant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 of the School Ethics Act and recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of reprimand if he attends the June 6-8, 1997, session, but removal from the board if he fails to attend the June session.

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission has acted pursuant to the authority granted to it by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. to recommend removal of the above-named Board member from office for failure to attend the Board member training sessions required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.4; and

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission sent ample notice to the above-named Board member of his failure to attend such training sessions; and

Whereas, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.3(i), on March 26, 1997 the Commission issued an Order to Show Cause why a penalty should not be imposed for such failure; and

Whereas, the above-named Board member provided to the Commission an answer noting that he was unable to attend the March 15, 1997 training session due to scheduling conflicts arising from work obligations but that he planned to attend the June 6-8, 1997 training program, and;

Whereas, the Commission voted on May 27, 1997, to recommend reprimand of the above-named Board member for failure to timely attend training sessions in violation of State statute if he attends the June 6-8 training session, with removal from the Board if he fails to attend the June training session, memorializing such decision through a resolution forwarded to the Commissioner, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29; and

Whereas, on May 28, 1997, the above-named Board member was afforded an opportunity to submit to the Commissioner a response to said resolution recommending either reprimand or removal; and

Whereas, no response was forthcoming; and

Whereas, the Commissioner of Education has confirmed that the above-named Board member has, in fact, attended the June 6-8, 1997 training session; and

Whereas, the Commissioner of Education has carefully considered the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission, but declines to issue a reprimand to the above-named Board member finding suspension to be the appropriate penalty in this instance; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED that a one-meeting suspension be imposed on the above-named Board member, to be effective for the next regularly scheduled meeting of the Board.

FRANK KELLY,	:
Mullica Township Board of Education	:
Atlantic County	:

WHEREAS, the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et. seq. was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in school board members and school administrators and to provide specific ethical standards to guide their conduct; and

WHEREAS, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 requires new board members to attend training within one year of election or appointment to the board to gain the skills and knowledge necessary to serve as a school board member; and

WHEREAS, Frank Kelly was elected to serve a three-year term on the Mullica Township Board of Education on April 15, 1996; and

WHEREAS, the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) advises prospective board members of the training requirement in the "candidate kit" before they are elected and mails correspondence to all new board members who have failed to register for or attend an orientation and did mail such correspondence to this board member on February 13, 1997; and

WHEREAS, at the request of the School Ethics Commission, the NJSBA published a notice with the heading "Last Chance to Meet Training Requirements" on the front page of the February 21, 1997 edition of School Board Notes advising that the March 15, 1997 session was the last that new board members could attend without penalty; and

WHEREAS, the NJSBA conducted seven training sessions between April 1996 and April 1997 at varying locations and continuously published the dates and times of the sessions; and

WHEREAS, the last training session to fulfill the requirement was held on March 15, 1997; and

WHEREAS, the Commission issued an Order on March 27, 1997, directing Frank Kelly to Show Cause why he had not attended training up until that time; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Kelly replied that he could not attend the seven scheduled sessions because of family commitments, but that he promised to attend the first available training session that comes about; and

WHEREAS, the next available session that the New Jersey School Boards Association offers is the June 6-8, 1997 session; and

WHEREAS, the Commission notified Mr. Kelly that the Commission would discuss this matter at its May 27, 1997 meeting, that he had the right to attend, and he could be found in violation of the School Ethics Act and receive a penalty up to removal; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Kelly has failed to attend the required training program for the one year allowed; and

WHEREAS, the Commission finds that his failure to attend board member training from April 1996 to April 1997 constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Kelly's response does not provide an adequate explanation of why he failed to attend the required training session for the year allowed by law; and

WHEREAS, the Commission finds that if Mr. Kelly fails to attend the June session as he has set forth, the Commission finds that it would be appropriate to have him removed from the board;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the School Ethics Commission finds that Frank Kelly violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 of the School Ethics Act and recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a reprimand if he attends the June session, but removal from the board if he does not attend the June 6-8, 1997, training session.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF BETTE JOHNSON, STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY

Charlotte Kitler, General Counsel, for petitioner

Gail Oxfeld Kanef, Esq., for respondent (Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 14, 1997 Decided: May 15, 1997

BEFORE MARIE P. SIMONELLI, A.L.J.:

Petitioner brought charges against respondent for chronic absenteeism. Petitioner sought dismissal of respondent from her tenured position as an elementary school teacher.

The Department of Education transferred this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (the OAL) on February 4, 1997. The OAL scheduled a hearing for May 1 and 2, 1997.

At the hearing, the parties agreed to settle this matter. On May 14, 1997, they submitted the attached Stipulation of Settlement which sets forth the terms of the settlement.

I have reviewed the record and settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF

BETTE JOHNSON

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF JERSEY CITY

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

This Stipulation incorporates the terms of a Settlement Agreement reached by the parties and stated on the record of proceedings before Administrative Law Judge Marie Simonelli on May 1, 1997.

WHEREAS, the respondent Bette Johnson has been employed as a full-time elementary school teacher with the Jersey City School District since October 18, 1992; and

WHEREAS, the District filed charges with the Commissioner of Education on September 17, 1996, to terminate employment of Ms. Johnson for chronic and excessive absenteeism; and

WHEREAS, the respondent Bette Johnson was not suspended with the filing of tenure charges but remains on the District's employment rolls as absent from work without pay; and

WHEREAS, the parties have agreed to resolve the matter without the expense of time and resources in further litigation and without any payment of monies by the District to the respondent; and

WHEREAS, the respondent Bette Johnson testified under oath before the Administrative Law Judge on May 1, 1997, that she clearly understood the terms of the settlement agreement, that she entered into the settlement agreement voluntarily without any pressure or duress, and that she was advised and understood that the Commissioner of Education had to approve the settlement agreement and that the Commissioner could refer the matter to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of her teaching certificate; and

WHEREAS, the parties believe that it serves the public interest to end respondent's employment with the District in a amicable manner;

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties have agreed to the following terms of settlement:

1. The respondent Bette Johnson agrees to resign from employment with the Jersey City School District, effective on the date of the Commissioner of Education's approval of this settlement agreement.

2. The respondent Bette Johnson will not resume her position during the period while this settlement agreement is pending action by the Commissioner of Education and will not receive any salary payments from the District during said period of time.

3. The petitioner Jersey City School District accepts the respondent's tendered resignation, and agrees to withdraw tenure charges bearing the OAL Docket Number EDUTH-01591-97 and the Agency Reference Number 420-9/96.

4. This settlement agreement entails no salary payments or other expenditures by the District to the respondent.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Respondent is a tenured teacher employed by the Trenton Board of Education. The Board filed tenure charges against Morales alleging conduct unbecoming a teacher based on accusations that he showed photos of partially nude women to students, made sexually suggestive and offensive comments to students, used profane language, and made inappropriate gestures.

Based on the evidence presented at the hearing, the ALJ concluded that respondent manifested poor judgment but that the Board did not prove all of its charges and the actions proven did not warrant termination. Therefore, ALJ, recommended that the penalty imposed on respondent be forfeiture of the 120 days' salary withheld following certification of the tenure charges, and two annual employment and adjustment increments. ALJ recommended that the Board's back payment following the 120-day suspension be calculated from April 15, 1996, the date that Morales notified the Department that his criminal indictment was dismissed until January 1, 1997, the date the Board returned him to pay status.

Commissioner adopted initial decision as his own with modification. The Commissioner concurred that charges proven did not warrant dismissal, but stressed that respondent's behavior cannot be countenanced in the school environment and increased the ALJ's recommended penalty to loss of six months salary plus increments. The Commissioner also found that back pay should be calculated from April 23, 1996, the Department's date of receipt of respondent's notice that his criminal indictment was dismissed, rather than from April 15, 1996, the date on the face of respondent's letter.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 460-11/94

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY, Petitioner,
v.
WILLIAM MORALES,
Respondent.

Thomas W. Sumners, Jr., Esq., for petitioner (Sumners, Council, George and Dortch, attorneys)

Michael T. Barrett, Esq., for respondent (Bergman and Barrett, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 31, 1997 Decided: May 19, 1997

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

The Trenton Board of Education certified tenure charges against the respondent William Morales, a teacher in the district, pursuant to the Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18. By letter of November 15, 1994, these charges were submitted to the Commissioner of Education. A request was made to stay the administrative proceedings due to the pendency of criminal charges arising from some of the allegations which form the basis of the certified charges. Counsel for the Board agreed to this request by letter of January 10, 1995. The criminal charges were ultimately dismissed and the certified charges were transferred to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") as a contested case on July 23, 1996, in accordance with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to - 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was conducted on October 1, 1996, and hearings were held on January 23 and February 4, 1997. Post hearing briefs and reply briefs were submitted and the record was closed on March 31, 1997.

THE CHARGES

The Board certified six charges against Mr. Morales. These involve complaints that he engaged in inappropriate conduct toward several female students, displayed inappropriate materials in class, used inappropriate language, and that he committed a physical assault upon a male student. He denies that any of his conduct was inappropriate.

EVIDENCE

The Alleged Assault

Paul Gmitter, the principal of Harrison Elementary School since August 1996, was the principal of Grace A. Dunn Junior High (later Middle School) for five and one-half years. The school educated 6th, 7th and 8th graders. During the 1992-93 school year, Mr. Morales was a member of the school teaching staff as a bi-lingual teacher of social studies. On March 31, 1993, Mr. Gmitter received a report of an assault by Morales upon one J.O., a student. Gmitter spoke to both the student and his mother and to Morales, who denied any wrongdoing. Gmitter reported his findings to the district superintendent, and to his knowledge, Morales was permitted to continue teaching. He did not recommend that the teacher be terminated as a result of what he determined to have occurred.

The record establishes that all witnesses, including J.O. and Mr. Morales, agree that the incident in question occurred inside and just outside the school cafeteria. Gmitter was not a witness to this incident, learning of its details from others. Amongst these was a security officer, Angel Benitez, who came on the scene after the incident between the student and Morales had already begun. Benitez did not recall the incident in detail when testifying, but had filed a report some fifteen minutes after the incident. Approaching the cafeteria, Benitez saw Morales and the student right outside of the cafeteria entrance. Someone said that a teacher was having a problem. Benitez did not know what may have happened, including anything that might have been said by either of the two prior to his own arrival on the scene. He did see a "small struggle" between the two and separated them. He noted a small cut, described as a "deep scratch," on O. He also recalled that the student referred to Morales as "G.I. Joe, this," and "G.I. Joe, that." Morales wanted the student taken to the office.

Robert G. Matlock, a teacher/disciplinarian/assistant principal at Dunn at that time and now an industrial arts teacher, was on his way to the cafeteria when he encountered "noise" and a "commotion." He observed a disturbance involving Morales and the student J.O. Security officers Barfield and Benitez were also present. Benitez "had O.," Morales was inside the cafeteria, "relatively close to O.," and was "annoyed, agitated, loud, and shouting" at O, in whose direction he was moving in a "somewhat aggressive demeanor." Matlock saw no physical contact between the two. He directed that O. be removed to classroom A-11, which was downstairs from the cafeteria. Matlock was trying to determine from O. what had happened, and as he was, Morales appeared at A-11. He had not been told to report to that location, but did so anyway. Matlock had called the student's mother, and as he was attempting to talk to her, Morales entered the room, speaking loudly and moving toward O. Morales was "loud, aggressive and accusatory about something." He was directed to stop yelling, which he did not do at first, and was then asked to leave. Matlock, who was concerned about the possibility of a physical altercation, had to repeat his direction to leave the room several times. Morales' conduct in A-11 was "inappropriate," he was "out of control," and his actions were not provoked by anything that O. was then doing.

Matlock saw no cuts on the student, but he was not looking for any.

Ms. Daisy Barfield, a security officer at the school, vaguely recalled the incident, about which she had filed a report. After reviewing it, she related that as she approached the cafeteria, she observed that Morales was bringing O. out of the cafeteria by his collar. From four to five feet away she saw Morales "slam" O. against the wall "with physical force." The student, who "just backed up with his hands against the wall," appeared to her to be cooperative and she saw no indication of any reason for the teacher to have to "slam" him against the wall. The student attempted to re-enter the cafeteria and Morales pulled him back into the hallway and asked that the student be taken downstairs. She remembered that Morales told her that O. had been calling him names and that Morales was "very much upset" and "not under control." O. told her that he did not do "anything." She tried to get him to release O., but he did not want to let go of the boy. She tried to get Morales to calm down, while she radioed for assistance.

Ms. Barfield further recalled that when the two were in the hall prior to J.O.'s removal, Morales said "don't call me any more names" and then the two spoke to each other in Spanish. Later, O. said that Morales called his mother a "whore." She did not see any cuts or bruises on the student. She characterized Mr. Morales' conduct as "inappropriate."

On cross-examination the witness observed that Mr. Morales slammed O. against the wall prior to making the request to security to take Mr. O. downstairs. He made the request, then the comment about "whore" occurred and he again requested that O. be removed. Mr. Benitez was not present when the "slam" occurred.

J.O., who became 18 years old on February 5, 1997, was in the 7th grade at Dunn at the time of the incident. He recalled that he had been in the hall next to the lunch room and was talking to classmates while in line. They were talking about G.I. Joe toys which they had collected when younger. They walked past Mr. Morales, who said nothing to them at the time, and they proceeded to a table. At one point while they ate, A.S. told O. that "a teacher was looking at you." O. was not a student of Morales, and he did not know the teacher's name at the time. O. had no idea why the man was looking at him. He proceeded to clear the left over items from his lunch tray and then got in line. Mr. Morales came over to him, pulled him by the arm and "threw" him into the hallway. Conversing at first in English, O. asked what was wrong and Morales replied that "you know." O. stated that he did not know and asked how he could know since he did not even know Morales. Morales then said that O. "had to fucking respect him." (In his written statement about the incident, O. left out the curse word). He mentioned that O. had been calling him names and the boy asked in Spanish, "what did I say to you." The student again said that he did not know Morales and started to walk into the lunch room, but the teacher grabbed him. At this point, O. spoke in Spanish, saying "fuck you." Morales then called O. a "mother fucker," again in Spanish. Ms. Barfield then tried to calm Morales, whom O. characterized as blabbing at the mouth and throwing his hands up. Benitez then told O. to calm down so things would not get worse. At one point when he was grabbed by the left arm, O. was scratched on the neck.

The witness claimed that prior to this incident he had had no dealings with Morales, who was at the time physically bigger than J. He was fearful of the teacher, and was shocked that a teacher would have something against him without any reason. He had not said anything about G.I. Joe to Morales. When he was taken to A-11 he was crying and scared. Morales arrived, screaming and shouting in the hallway, saying in Spanish that someone "should go to hell." Morales then entered the room as Mr. Matlock was talking to J.O.'s mother on the telephone. Morales spoke in Spanish and said that he would "get O." Matlock tried to move Morales out of the room.

The witness believed that he was suspended from school as a result of the incident.

Ms. A. G., Mr. O.'s mother, went to the school after receiving a telephone call about her son having been involved in an incident with a teacher. While she was on the phone speaking to Mr. Matlock, she could hear Mr. Morales yelling in the background and Matlock told her that Morales was in the room, acting out of hand and going for her son and that she had better come to the school right away. She could hear the voice say, "I'm going to get you."

Ms. G. went to Dunn where she saw Gmitter and Matlock. They indicated that they wanted to speak to both Morales and herself. Gmitter briefed her on the events, saying that Morales hit her son in the lunchroom, but that he did not really know exactly what had happened. Matlock told her Morales had thrown her son against the wall. When Morales was in her presence, she acknowledged to him that she knew that her son could get on one's nerves. He told her that the boy had been calling him names, mentioned the G.I. Joe reference, and said that J. did not respect Morales. Ms. G. did not understand this reference as a problem as such, and told him that he needed to calm down and get some psychological assistance. To this Morales responded that she was not going to be the one to tell him how to deal with kids. Gmitter advised her that she could press charges against Morales. About ten minutes later, as she went from the office to the school entrance to leave the building, Morales told her that she should not press charges if she knew what was good for her, to which she replied that she was not afraid of him and was not a child who could be intimidated. Ultimately, charges were filed against the teacher on behalf of her son.

Thaddeus Robinson, a music teacher employed by the Trenton Board at Dunn since 1983, was in the cafeteria on the day of this incident. He was on his way out of it with food or had just finished eating when he saw Morales escort O. out of the cafeteria. The boy was familiar to him as one of his students, either at that time or during another quarter of the year. The respondent had his arm around the student and appeared to be trying to calm him, speaking to him in Spanish, a language Robinson said that he understood very well. However, Robinson could not hear exactly what was being said. O. was shouting and moving his arms around. Other students got up and followed the two out toward the hall. Robinson rushed out another set of doors to get these students "out of the way" and, as he stood with the kids behind him, he saw that Morales had O. against the wall, but not flat against it. Morales was talking to him, again trying to calm O. O. said that he didn't give a "so and so." (Robinson did not say exactly what O. actually said). He did not see Morales strike O. Morales asked for security. Meanwhile, O. kept pushing and fighting. Morales turned, said that he was going to write O. up and went downstairs. Robinson left the corridor before O. was removed. He never heard Morales curse. He could not tell if Morales was upset, although he had seen the respondent on previous occasions "go off" and get physically upset, which he was not during this incident.

Robinson claimed that he was never asked to give a statement about this incident and that he did not even know that it had been reported.

William Morales addressed the J.O. incident. While O. was not a student of his, Morales had seen him before, and described an incident which he alleged had occurred outside the school earlier that week when he had been near his home in the vicinity of the Mott School which his daughter attended. O. and a few others had been on a corner yelling at him, and he thought that they were just saying hello. As for the cafeteria incident, Morales was serving lunch duty at about 11:30. At one point, O. got up to throw out his tray refuse and nearly bumped Morales while saying G.I. Joe three times. O. then sat at a table adjacent to where Morales was. O. and his friends were laughing, smiling and pointing at Morales and saying, "Yea, you, you." Morales told the student that he wanted to talk to him and that he should come with him. He took O. by the bicep and took him out into the hall. He then told O. that his name was Mr. Morales, not G.I. Joe. O. told him to get the fuck out of his face, saying that he did not know what Morales was talking about. During his direct testimony Morales said that he led O. up against the wall, but denied that he pushed, struck, dragged or hit the boy, saying that the student "went under his own volition." However, on cross-examination he said that he did not know if he slammed O. against the wall. O. was belligerent and cursed in Spanish, referring to Morales as a "son of a whore." Morales himself did yell at O., telling him to show him some respect, to stop cursing at him, and asking him why he was "doing this (apparently the name calling) when O. did not even know" Morales. While this was happening everyone in the cafeteria was coming to the door and security arrived. Morales told Barfield to take O. to the office, but the security personnel "just stood there." When O. tried to re-enter the lunch room, Morales told him "no, you're not going back in." Pushing, shoving, and cursing followed. Morales was scrapped in the chest during the scuffle. He did try to restrain O. at this time.

When O. was removed downstairs, Morales went to the disciplinary office. He wanted to fill out papers about the incident. He also sought to reason with O. before the student's mother arrived and to explain the matter to the parent. He was upset, but could not characterize himself as aggressive. He did argue loudly in the hallway with Detective Pedro Medina, a friend of his. He does not recall being "loud" when he meet with Mrs. Gonzalez and Mr. Gmitter.

Morales was never even issued a letter of reprimand for the cafeteria incident. He did feel that Mr. Gmitter had attempted to push Ms. Gonzalez into pressing charges when she herself had not been interested in doing so.

Charges One through Five

Mr. Gmitter also related that on June 3, 1993, he was advised that five students of Mr. Morales had complained about some unspecified problem. Ultimately, it developed that these students were complaining that Mr. Morales had a habit of putting his hand into his pants in the classroom, had shown playing cards with nude women on them to students, had "gawked" or stared at a student and touched her face, had a picture of a partially clad woman from the

Trentonian newspaper taped inside a locker, and had made a remark to a student about her menstrual cycle.[1]

Robert Mendez, a security officer with twenty-one years of experience with the Trenton Board of Education, first received a complaint from three students regarding the "porno" playing cards. He turned this information over to Principal Gmitter. Mr. Matlock wrote out a statement which he told Mendez to sign. Students did not tell him anything about Morales' purportedly fondling his private parts in class.

L. S., now a sixteen and a half year old student at Trenton Central High School, was in Mr. Morales' 8th grade social studies class at Dunn. At the time she had been on the mainland for two years, having previously lived in Puerto Rico. She characterized Morales as a "good teacher" whom she had in 7th grade, when she had no problems with him at all. Together with her classmates D. R., C., A., L.V., and J., she reported that Mr. Morales had engaged in several inappropriate activities in their class. They all reported this information together, although the situations they discussed were not all the same. They each said "just what they knew." She and D. had seen the same things. Specifically, she related that on nearly every day Mr. Morales would open his pants in front of the class, go back toward the chalk board with his back to the class, move his hands and then turn around and zip his pants back up while facing toward the class. She told him that he should do this in the bathroom.

The witness also reported that during this same school year she had seen Mr. Morales touch D. R.'s face. At the time of the hearing, she had not seen D. R. in years.

Ms. S. also recalled having seen a picture from the newspaper of a woman in a bathing suit taped inside a green book cabinet. He sometimes would show these to the class. The school security personnel did not find the pictures.

[1] Reference to the Statement of Tenure Charges does not indicate a charge which clearly relates to the cards with naked women. The first charge seems to relate to the newspaper photo(s), as no evidence was presented that Morales claimed any relationship to the women on the cards. However, the Statement of Evidence does refer to statements about the cards and this evidence has been presented in the hearing. Therefore, the Initial Decision will consider the "cards" evidence and rule upon it.

Ms. S. testified that earlier on the same day that the "pants" issue was finally reported, Mr. Morales made a comment to her in Spanish when she asked where a ruler was. His reply played upon the (perhaps colloquial) meaning in Puerto Rico of the Spanish word for "ruler," "regla," which supposedly referred to the menstrual period. Her recollection at the hearing was that he said, "didn't your ruler come last month." (However, in her written statement, P-12, she wrote in English that he said "that the period come next mouths (sic)"). She told him that he was not supposed to talk like that to her, that he had to give respect and he'd get respect back. This incident was the one which caused her to decide that she was going to the office to report Mr. Morales. There had been some previous discussion of doing so in regard to the "hands in pants," but she was scared to go. When she finally decided to go, others in the class decided to go as well.

Ms. S. wrote a report of her observations on June 3, 1993. Her original statement did not contain any reference to the "hands in pants." She did not have any assistance in writing the report, which she said was "truthful." She completed a "Discrimination Complaint" in Room A-11 at sometime, but could not recall when this was. She had been told that she had to write down what she was complaining about. She wrote "stuff she knew." Others were also asked to complete the form at the same time as she did. Mr. Mendez helped them fill out the complaint as she and the others did not then know a lot of English. They asked a lady who was present what the categories of discrimination on the form were. Additionally, a Ms. Figueroa, who was a counselor, may have been present and may have been consulted because she wanted to write clearly. However, she insisted that she was not told what to write. The similarities in the language of the complaints were coincidental.

Although in her written statement she wrote that Morales "was choing us somecars with womens with off clouses," at the hearing the witness explained that she did not personally see the playing cards, as she was absent the day that they were supposedly displayed to her classmates. This was the day before the "ruler" comment, and she was told about the cards by others.

The witness acknowledged that she knew B.M., who was not in her class. Ms. M.'s father was the pastor of the church which Ms. S. attended.

D.R., now 18 years old and attending Nottingham High, had Mr. Morales as a teacher in the 7th and 8th grades. She reported her concerns to Mr. Gmitter after first speaking to Mr. Mendez and a Mr. Rodriguez. She went to the office with L. S., C., and I. She personally observed the cards bearing the images of naked women in the classroom, which she believed he exhibited sometime in March. C., L.V. and J. were in class with her at the time this happened. She also saw the teacher pull his zipper down and fix his shirt, turning his back to the class. This happened about three or four times. He would use such words as "shit," "fuck," and "mother fucker" in class.

One day he touched her chin on the right side and she did not like this. She recalled that this happened after they had some sort of a disagreement in class about some "stupid things" and he yelled at her and she crumpled up a paper. He asked to talk to her alone, and then asked her why she was mad at him as he did not do anything to her. She also recalled that he was mad at her about a class trip that she did not go on. She also related that he used to look at her when she was walking, and one day when she had a short skirt on she happened to look back and he was "looking at (her) legs." She believed that he looked at all the girls in this manner.

Ms. R. wrote out her statement in Spanish, which at the time she spoke more easily than she did English, having been on the mainland for only two years. Her friends were present when she wrote the statement, and while no one helped her write the statement, they did "cooperate" and "did them together," "comparing notes" and apparently deciding amongst themselves what matters to write down. That explains why they all wrote down the same things, and a Ms. Figueroa, whom she described as a counselor, told them to write the "same things" on the Discrimination Forms. She did not know who wrote the statement in English but it was an accurate translation of her statement, which was itself a truthful statement of the events.

Ms. R. explained that she was tired of what Morales did and did not want him to do anything worse.

L. V., who also was Morales' student for two years, and recalled him as a "good teacher," never observed any inappropriate conduct on the respondent's part in the 7th grade. Although Morales did sometimes get mad and scream at the students to sit down and be quiet, Mr. V. did not recall that Morales swore during the 8th grade year. He denied seeing any "fondling" in class. When he was asked for a statement in March of 1993, he wrote that he had seen the naked picture cards. However, in testimony he denied that Morales ever showed him cards with naked women on them. The girls in the class, specifically L.S. and D.R., said that they and he had seen them, but he had not. Similarly, the girls told him that they saw Morales "play with himself." When he was called to Principal Gmitter's office on the loudspeaker he became "kind of scared." Gmitter told him that he was to write down what the girls had said, that is, that he had seen the cards. He also denied ever seeing a pinup from the Trenton newspaper.

According to the witness, after he had written his statement, he heard L. tell C. that Morales had treated them "wrong" and they had made up the charges against Morales in order to get back at him. C. said nothing in response, as "she was always quiet."

The witness claimed that he did not know that Mr. Morales was indicted until a year later. Although the documentary evidence includes a statement that he gave to a police investigator at the Criminal Investigation Bureau, Mr. V. did not recall talking to a man at the police station. In the statement that he gave to this investigator, he mentioned that there were six cards, and now says that he gave this number because it "felt right," but nevertheless the statement of seeing any such cards was a lie, and he said this untruth because he had already said so before. Similarly, he was not sure why he said that Morales showed cards to J.C., when in fact this too was a lie. Despite his written statement, it was also not true that the teacher cursed almost every day. Morales did have baseball cards, but they were not kept in a box.

Mr. V. was fourteen years old at the time he made his statements and testified that at that time he could barely read. He did not really know the difference between right and wrong. He thought that it was "okay to say what wasn't true."

Mr. V. last saw the respondent a couple of months ago in downtown Trenton. He just "bumped into him" and asked him about his case. Morales told him that the criminal case had been dismissed and the "trial (apparently the tenure case) was going on." There was a discussion of the fact that V. could return to a volleyball and basketball program that Morales was associated with at the Mott School or the YMCA. V., who had previously been told by a "judge" that he was not to be in this program, went to it twice about a month ago.

B.M., now a college student, knows Mr. Morales through friends and through Morales' daughter. She was on his volleyball team in the 8th grade. Ms. M. knows L.S. from Ms. M.'s father's church.

According to the witness, some time during 1993-1994 she was in Trenton High School, at her locker between classes, when she heard laughter across the hall, and L. S. then said that Morales was in trouble because he yelled at "them" and they made the charges up. M. told S. that this was not right, as Morales could get in a lot of trouble, but L.S. said that she did not care. At the time Ms. M. had a "case pending" against her father which had been in the newspaper and she did not want to get involved in another case. In August 1994 she told Morales about the conversation. He asked her whether she wanted to go to the volleyball program, but she had two jobs and could not. She has no contact with the respondent at this time.

Thaddeus Robinson testified that he had bumped into Mr. Morales about a month before this hearing and at that time he had recalled that he had seen kids from Morales' class with cards bearing pictures of naked women. He remembered that at the time he had told Morales about what he had observed and Morales said that he would take the cards away from the students. At the time Robinson had never asked Morales whether he had taken the cards. When he saw him a month before the hearing he mentioned this incident to Morales, but Morales did not recall it. Robinson claimed that he told other colleagues about the cards, but not Gmitter. When Morales was removed from teaching, Robinson heard that it had something to do with pornography, but not that cards were involved.

Asked why he did not act himself to confiscate the cards from the students, the witness said that he had not been "sure" of what he had seen, so he went to Morales. Robinson "couldn't stop them (the students) from going out of (his) classroom," so instead he went to their homeroom teacher.

William Morales testified that all of the charges made against him (other than the J.O. matter) arose from one class. He was shocked when told of the several charges, which he denied. He never fondled himself, although at the time he was having a weight problem and he did often tuck his shirt into his pants or adjust his belt after turning his back to the class. He denied that he cursed in front of his class. As for D.R.'s accusation of the comment about her menstrual period, he had "no idea" where the charge came from. There was an incident where the students had been working on a project and sometimes people would ask for equipment in Spanish, using the Spanish word for "ruler." He himself did not know why the term "ruler" was used in connection with the menstrual cycle and when he inquired he was told that it was because as a rule it came every month.

As for the photographs from the Trentonian, kids often joked about them and would kid him, saying "look at your new girlfriend." He would joke back, "oh, yea." Otherwise, he never displayed the photos, although he did use newspapers in class, handing them out for school work. Photos were not pinned up in the cabinet.

Mr. Morales did have baseball cards, which he would trade and sell with students, and he would sometimes bring them out before or after class or after the school day. He never had cards with naked women, never possessed or saw these. He did not recall that Mr. Robinson had told him that Robinson had seen students with cards of this type.

The respondent did touch Ms. R.'s face. He explained that two weeks prior to a class trip to New York she had no money to pay for the trip. He was aware that her financial situation at home was not good. She was upset and crying, and he told her not to worry, that he would get money from donations. She was at first appreciative, but then said that she would not go on the trip. He might have touched her face to cheer her up, but there was no sexual connotation to this action.

Morales denied any threats to L.S. or any other student. He was not in contact with the complaining students after they made the complaints and were then removed from his class. Two years ago he was at Mercer County College regarding his daughter's search for school funding. He saw Ms. S. there but kept away from her.

DISCUSSION

Mr. Morales is charged with several different allegedly inappropriate forms of conduct, to wit: (1) displaying playing cards with nude women thereon; (2) displaying newspaper "centerfold-type" photos and discussing alleged relationships between he and the women; (3) engaging in lewd and inappropriate behavior in class involving unzipping his pants, loosening his belt and manipulating his genitalia while his back was turned to his class; (4) making suggestive, lewd and offensive remarks to L.S., specifically regarding her menstrual cycle; (5) using lewd and profane language in class on a regular and continual basis; (6) making sexually suggestive remarks to and touching the face of D.R. in a manner which caused her apprehension and fear about the possible sexual connotations of that conduct.

In regard to some of the above matters, the facts are less clouded and disputed than with some of the others. For instance, Morales himself conceded that he did often adjust his shirt and belt in class, with his back turned to the class, but he denies that he was manipulating his genitalia. No student testified that they could actually see such manipulation or any actual handling of the respondent's private parts during these "back to the class" episodes. The most they could relate was that his hands were moving.

There is of course a considerable difference between a teacher adjusting clothing in class and one masturbating in class. One sort of conduct bespeaks a level of inappropriate sexual conduct, an inability to restrain one's sexually related actions to a private setting, an attempt to foist, even if only partially, one's sexual self upon a captive and impressionable audience; in short, serious deviant conduct. The other signifies only a lack of sense and judgment, a lack of decorum, a misapprehension of the accepted social graces, a failure to treat his position and that of his students' with appropriate dignity, but not a gravely serious deviation from appropriate social norms. While the truth respecting the inclusion of a sexual aspect in this conduct may lie with Mr. Morales' benign explanation, the scenes presented to a class of young teenagers may understandably have appeared far less benign. But even though the limited observations here cannot support a conclusion that the respondent was in fact handling his genitals and thus engaging in a serious level of maladjusted conduct, his actions were nevertheless inappropriate.

Such adjustments as he claims to have been making were not the sort that he should have accomplished in the plain sight of his students, even though he turned his back. If nothing else, the frequent repetition of this bespeaks a lack of judgment on Mr. Morales' part.

Mr. Morales acknowledges that he did touch Ms. R.'s face. Despite her concerns about the way he looked at her from behind, I find no evidence that the touch was in any way meant to convey any actual sexual message. The two had been involved in some discussions about an emotional matter regarding her limited financial resources and a class trip, there appears to have been some attempt by Morales to lift her spirits. While the touch was innocent enough in itself, I do not in any way suggest that Ms. R.'s feelings that Morales might have some actual or perhaps fantasized sexual interest in her should be overlooked. Nevertheless, while this incident of touching a student again may suggest a lack of judgment, by itself it would not call for any discipline other than perhaps a warning or reprimand to Mr. Morales that even innocent physical contact with young students, especially young females, cannot be permitted. As for the alleged "staring," the evidence as to any pattern of actual visual concentration upon the anatomy of female students is too limited and speculative to support any finding of any inappropriate conduct on Mr. Morales' part. It would be naive to suggest that some males do not look at females in this way, even sometimes those of a younger age, and looks can be misinterpreted. But to condemn this respondent on the skimpy record here for supposedly staring in the direction of Ms. R. and/or others would not be warranted.

The evidence regarding the nude picture cards, the cursing and the "ruler" comment to L.S., is less clear. Here, the students' versions and those of Morales and his supporting witnesses diverge. He completely denies that he had or showed the cards, while acknowledging that he did have and displayed baseball cards. He denies L.S.'s charge that he made reference to her period, and denies that he cursed. If Ms. M. and Mr. V. are to be believed, these charges were part of a plot, a constructed lie formulated by L.S. and others to get back at Morales because he yelled at them, or for some other unknown reason. V. originally was a supporter of charges against Morales, now he recants and claims he knows that the others lied. M. claims that she knew of the falsity of charges in 1994, but did not come forward then due to other personal issues in her life. Robinson never gave any information about this, or the O. matter.

The Board's case on these charges is somewhat slender. As for the cards, at present the only witness still asserting that she personally saw these cards displayed by Morales is D.R. L.S. says that she only wrote that she had seen them, but she now admits that she had not. L.V. also now denies that he ever saw them. The testimony of both of these students is suspect, as they first said one thing and now another. As for D.R., she did not seem to be getting along with Morales at the time that these accusations were made, and she was apprehensive about him. Did he actually show cards in her presence? Did someone else have and display cards, as Robinson says? Although several of the witnesses here were apparently sincere, I did find Robinson to be a strong witness, despite the rather late revelation of his knowledge of the case.

In view of Mr. Morales' long history of teaching in this district without incident, including nearly a year and three quarters of teaching these same students prior to March 1993, it would certainly appear that any inappropriate conduct towards his students would be conduct of an aberrational quality. I am not convinced by a preponderance of the credible evidence that he did exhibit these cards. The burden of proving this allegation by that level of evidence rests with the Board. It has failed to meet that burden, and all charges relating to the cards are hereby DISMISSED.

As for the newspaper photos, it is admitted by Morales that there was some occasion or perhaps occasions where there was some kidding about photos displayed in the newspaper. On the record here, I cannot find that he purposely and inappropriately showed these pictures of partially clad women, to his class. But there may well have been some instance of kidding about a woman or women in the newspaper photos and some joking reference to their being a girlfriend of Morales. Any such isolated incident calls for a warning or a reprimand, but not a more severe discipline. The record does not support any finding that Morales told the students that he had requested the photos be taken.

I find it unlikely that Ms. R. invented the "ruler" remark. Whatever else may be said about the truth of the other charges, this has the ring of truth. I believe that an off-hand request drew an off-hand, flip, completely uncalled for and inappropriate remark, stated by Morales as a "joke." There is no excuse for this sort of comment to a student. The third charge is therefore established.

The allegations that Morales cursed appear to be at least exaggerated, but this does not mean that he never used profane language in front of the students. How often is uncertain, but I am not convinced that it was a regular occurrence. The students' testimony on this score is opposed by a complete denial. There is enough here to suggest Morales had a sufficient temper and an insufficient control of his mouth to lead to a conclusion that he sometimes did use profane and lewd language in class. The fourth charge is therefore proven.

Finally, as for Charge Six, the specification of the details of the alleged physical assault within this charge alleges that Morales grabbed O. without provocation, threw him against the wall and caused him to suffer "cuts and abrasions." There is no doubt that he did grab or otherwise take hold of O. by the arm, as he admits that he did. Whether he threw or slammed him against the wall is in far more question. From the record, it appears that he forcefully guided the student against the wall, that some limited degree of force was applied to move O. there and up against the wall. A "throw" or "slam" appears to be too strong a characterization of the event, and the record, while suggesting that O. was somehow injured in this event, does not adequately identify exactly how that occurred. As for the lack of provocation, the use of the term "G.I. Joe" towards Morales was certainly did not provide him with a sufficient warrant for him to forcefully take physical control over a student who was otherwise not physically unruly or in any way a threat to anyone. If some form of discipline was appropriate, or if a mere conversation was sought in which to confront O. about inappropriate conduct toward and lack of respect for a teacher, another method other than this physical one should have been used to bring such about. In the circumstances present at the time, Mr. Morales' physical conduct toward the student was not justified.

I CONCLUDE that the Board has proven the sixth charge by a preponderance of the credible evidence.

SUMMARY AND CONCLUSIONS

I CONCLUDE that the Board has proven Charges 3, 4, and 6. Charge 1 has been established to the extent that I FIND that Morales did joke about some newspaper photo, but not about his requesting that they be taken, and not in regards to any cards. Further, I CONCLUDE that Charge 2 has been sustained only as to the lack of judgment in engaging in repeated instances of inappropriate "dressing" actions in the presence of his class, but not to the extent that he is found to have manipulated his genitalia. As to Charge 5, the Board has failed to establish that any comments by Morales or his touch of D.R. were in any fashion intended to be sexually suggestive and offensive to D.R., although I FIND that they did offend her and cause her some apprehension.

THE APPROPRIATE SANCTION

In determining the proper sanction to be imposed in this matter, I have taken into account this teacher's long history of satisfactory service and the fact that in regard to the several matters proven against him, the record does not suggest that he purposely, maliciously or intentionally acted in any offensive or depraved fashion toward his students and that in the O. incident, while he acted improperly, he was again not motivated by any inappropriate or improper motivations, but was responding, albeit overly aggressively, to a derisive student. The whole of the evidence and the conclusions drawn therefrom indicate that at least in the later part of the 1992-93 school year Mr. Morales was suffering from a serious lack of judgment and restraint, not something which was in accord with his demonstrated teaching history, at least as far as this record shows. Under the circumstances of this case, I am convinced that removal of tenure would be an inappropriate and overly harsh penalty for the conduct involved here. While any instance of inappropriate conduct on the part of a tenured teacher may be sufficient to warrant revocation of tenured status, and while a series of such events may also serve that purpose even if the separate events themselves are not individually so serious, I do not find that the instances here are of a sufficient character and quality to necessitate the extreme penalty of tenure loss. Mr. Morales needs to exercise some restraint on his mouth and person, but nothing proven here indicates that he is a threat to anyone or that his presence in the classroom represents an intolerable situation.

Instead, the loss of any increments for a period of two years would be an appropriate and severe enough penalty, especially when taking into account that this respondent has suffered a long suspension from employment due to the criminal matters which were ultimately dismissed and the loss of 120 days pay. Thus, the Board, in calculating the back pay which must be paid to Mr. Morales (see next section) shall pay him in accordance with the appropriate pay steps applicable to him for the years for which back pay is due, but shall adjust the back pay to levels which delete the affects of any increments to which he would normally have been entitled. Since he is due back pay for periods applicable to school years 1993-1994 until January 1, 1997, when he was restored to pay status, minus 120 days from the certification of tenure charges on November 14, 1994, the increments to be deemed as denied would be those for the school years 1995-96 and 96-97.

Back Pay

In the present matter, the parties are in agreement that Mr. Morales was indicted on May 1, 1994, and suspended without pay pending the outcome of the criminal proceedings on May 24, 1994. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 and State v. Ramapo-Indian Hills, 237 N.J. Super. 424 (App.Div. 1989). The Board certified tenure charges on November 14, 1994, and the matter was put on the inactive list at the Department of Education on January 15, 1995. The indictment was dismissed on April 7, 1996, and the Department of Education was notified of the dismissal on April 15, 1996. The case was then transferred to the OAL as an active case on July 23, 1996.

Case law supports the restoration of the back pay when a teacher is acquitted of the criminal charges or when they are otherwise dismissed. Griffin v. Board of Education of the City of Paterson, 1992 SLD 311; Beatty v. Newton Board of Education, 1991 SLD 6/25/91. But the suspension of back pay which results from the pendency of criminal charges is not the sole suspension of pay that may be implicated in a tenure proceeding. Ordinarily, when a teacher is suspended following the institution of tenure charges, pay may be suspended for no more than 120 days. N.J.S.A. 18:6-14. Thus, here, where the criminal matters were dismissed, Mr. Morales would receive back pay from the time of his suspension without pay on May 24, 1994, through the notification to the Department of Education on April 15, 1996. However, the Board argues that it should not be prejudiced by the inactive period which was requested by the respondent and consented to by the Board on the written understanding that the stay of proceedings would be without prejudice to the Board. It therefore contends that the back pay should only be for the period from May 24, 1994, until January 15, 1995, and then for the period from the restoration of the case to the active list on July 23, 1996, until pay was restored by the Board on January 1, 1997.

Whether or not the tenure charges had been stayed Mr. Morales would not have been paid so long as the indictment remained in force. Had the tenure charges been tried during the pendency of the indictment and had the charges resulted in something other than removal, no doubt he would have remained suspended without pay until the outcome of the criminal case. Thus, he should be entitled to be paid for all of the time from the original suspension without pay on May 24, 1994, through January 1, 1997, except for 120 days from the date of the tenure certification. As for the period from the time of the dismissal of the indictment on April 7, 1996, and the notice to the Department on April 15 until the Department transferred the case to OAL, the record does not reveal the reasons for the delay in transfer, but this appears not to have been the fault of the parties. The equities favor Mr. Morales, as the 120 days had already run and the only reason he would not be paid at that point would have been his failure to advise the Department of the dismissal of the criminal charges. Since he did advise the Department, any further delay in the matter was the result of administrative reasons and should not adversely affect him. Of course, any back pay is to be offset by any monies received by him in mitigation of his losses. Counsel for the respondent shall submit an affidavit regarding any such monies to the Board counsel, who shall then prepare an affidavit detailing the Board's calculations of the back pay due under this decision. If the parties are unable to agree on the amount, they may seek a determination by reference of the dispute to the Commissioner.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF WILLIAM MORALES,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY	:	DECISION
OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions were timely filed by the Board in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. No replies were filed by respondent.

The Board's exceptions initially contend that there is sufficient evidence to sustain Charge No. 1, that respondent showed photographs of partially nude women to his students. In so doing, the Board challenges the credibility determinations reached by the ALJ, particularly objecting to the weight accorded to the testimony of witnesses D.R, Thaddeus Robinson, and L.V. (Exceptions at pp. 4-5). The Board further avers that, even if the Commissioner concurs with dismissal of Charge No. 1, because the ALJ found in charges 3, 4 and 6 that respondent repeatedly engaged in conduct evincing a lack of judgment, respondent's tenure should nonetheless be removed. The Board asserts that, although separately these charges may not result in tenure removal, in combining all of them together, as they occurred within the same school year, such conduct is unbecoming and tenure removal is not too a harsh a penalty. (Exceptions at pp. 6-7)

The Board next argues that, if the Commissioner determines that respondent should not lose his tenure rights, he should, at the very least, penalize respondent for more than a 120-day loss of pay and two annual increments. In justification for such position, the Board refers to Randolph Twp. Bd. of Ed. v. Mary Ellen DiPillo, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d, 206, aff'd w/mod., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d EDU 13, where the State Board of Education found it appropriate for a teacher to lose six months pay for causing a child to get on his knees and beg for a book where the teacher also had a history of yelling at students and telling them to "shut up." The Board notes that, "there should be similar cause for concern about the respondent's conduct as recognized by the ALJ in the within matter." (Exceptions at pp. 7-8)

Lastly, the Board objects to the ALJ's finding that it must pay respondent lost wages for the time period between April 15, 1996, when respondent notified the Department that his criminal indictment was dismissed, and July 23, 1996, the date the matter was filed with the OAL. While respondent did not cause a delay in restoring this matter to the Commissioner's active list, neither was the Board responsible for such delay. Thus, the Board claims it should not be required to pay respondent more than two months of lost wages when it did nothing to cause the delay in restoring this matter to the Commissioner's active case list. (Exceptions at pp. 8-9)

Upon review, the Commissioner determines to affirm the decision of the ALJ with modification as noted below. Initially, the Commissioner is unpersuaded by exception arguments regarding Charge No. 1. Although the ALJ's findings herein turn, to a great extent, on the credibility of witnesses and the weighing of evidence, the Commissioner is satisfied, based on the record before him, that the ALJ appropriately measured conflicts, inconsistencies, and the plausibility of content in deciding which testimony to credit, and the proper weight to assign thereto, in reaching the factual findings and conclusions herein. It is noted that credibility determinations of the finder of fact, who observed the witnesses first-hand, are to be accorded great weight in the absence of any meaningful basis on which to challenge them. This is so especially where, as here, transcripts of the proceedings were not provided by either party.

As to the appropriateness of the recommended penalty, the Commissioner finds it necessary to balance the totality of the record herein with the need to stress most emphatically that behavior of the type evinced by respondent cannot be countenanced in the school environment. Accordingly, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that, in view of all the facts in this matter and respondent's prior history, the extreme penalty of loss of tenure does not appear to be warranted. However, he does not find loss of 120 days salary and two increments to be a penalty sufficient to impress upon respondent and others the seriousness of the charges proven in this matter, which include inappropriate remarks regarding a student's menstrual cycle and an unwarranted physical response in dealing with a student who was himself not physically unruly and did not pose a threat to anyone. Rather, the Commissioner modifies the recommended penalty of the ALJ to include a loss of salary for six months plus the withholding of two increments.

Finally, with regard to the Board's contention that it should not be responsible for back pay between the period respondent notified the Department that his criminal indictment was dismissed and the date the matter was filed with OAL, the Commissioner modifies the date from which the Board must reimburse respondent to April 23, 1996, the date of the Department's receipt of respondent's letter to reactivate his case, rather than April 15, 1996, the date on the face of the notice sent to the Commissioner. Concededly there was a delay in transmitting this case to OAL, the reason for which is not ascertainable from the record herein; however, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 clearly holds that the Board is responsible for payment of salary during tenure proceedings except in the event of delay caused by the charged employee, stating:

> Upon certification of any charge to the commissioner, the board may suspend the person against whom such charge is made, with or without pay, but, if the determination of the charge by the commissioner of education is not made within 120 calendar days after certification of the charges, excluding all delays which are granted at the request of such person, then the full salary (except for said 120 days) shall be paid beginning on the one hundred twenty-first day until such determination is made.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein, except as above modified with respect to penalty and the starting date for calculation of respondent's back pay following removal of this matter from abeyance status. The Commissioner hereby directs that respondent forfeit the 120 days' salary withheld following certification of the within tenure charges, plus salary for two additional months, and that he further be denied employment and adjustment increments for the 1995-96 and 1996-97 school years as recommended by the ALJ.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM E.	:
YOUNG, ASBURY PARK BOARD OF	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
EDUCATION, MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:	DECISION

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission has acted pursuant to the authority granted to it by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. to recommend removal of the above-named Board member from office for failure to attend the Board member training sessions required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.4; and

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission sent ample notice to the above-named Board member of his failure to attend such training sessions; and

Whereas, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.3(i), on March 26, 1997 the Commission issued an Order to Show Cause why a penalty should not be imposed for such failure; and

Whereas, the above-named Board member failed to provide a timely response to the Order of the Commission; and

Whereas, the Commission voted on May 27, 1997, to recommend removal of the above-named Board member for failure to timely attend training sessions in violation of State statute, memorializing such decision through a resolution forwarded to the Commissioner, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29; and

Whereas, on May 28, 1997, the above-named Board member was afforded an opportunity to submit to the Commissioner a response to said resolution recommending removal; and

Whereas, a response was submitted on behalf of the above-named Board member indicating that he had been previously scheduled to attend an unspecified training session but was compelled to cancel due to a conflicting employment obligation, and that he had registered for, and planned to attend, the session to be held on June 20-22, 1997; and

Whereas, the Commissioner of Education has confirmed that the above-named Board member has, in fact, attended the June 20-22, 1997 training session; and

Whereas, the Commissioner of Education has carefully considered the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission, and, having done so, declines to order removal of the above-named Board member in light of his attendance at the June 20-22, 1997 training session, instead finding suspension to be the appropriate penalty in this instance; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED that a one-meeting suspension is imposed on the above-named Board member, to be effective for the next regularly scheduled meeting of the Board.

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the petition filed by Roslyn Gnatt regarding the decision of the respondent to withhold her increments for the 1996-97 school year. The respondent denied the allegations in the petition, and the matter was sent, on October 18, 1996, to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

I held a prehearing conference on February 13, 1997, and the parties discussed a settlement. Prior to setting a date for the hearing, I received a letter from David L. Rosenberg, Esq., on behalf of the petitioner, requesting that the matter be dismissed with prejudice and without costs.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the matter is no longer a contested case before the Office of Administrative Law. It is ORDERED that this matter be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Synopsis

Petitioner, a domiciliary of the Board's district, challenges Board's residency determination. ALJ found that petitioner established that the parents of the minor children, from January 1996 until January 1997, were in the course of emigrating to the United States from Taiwan, a process that had been time-consuming, difficult and which constituted "family or economic hardship." During that period, the children were kept in the Holmdel home of petitioner who, along with his wife, supported the children gratis, assumed all personal obligations for them relative to school requirements, and kept and supported them gratuitously for a longer period than merely the school term. ALJ found that the children were not residing in the district for the sole purpose of receiving a free public education from the Board. Therefore, during the time period in issue, ALJ concluded that the children were entitled, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1), to attend the Board's school's without payment of tuition.

The Commissioner adopted the initial decision as his own.

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This case involves whether minor children Y-C.L. and Y-Y.L. were entitled to a free, public education in the schools operated by the Board of Education of the Township of Holmdel (BOE) or whether tuition should be paid for their attendance in the BOE's schools. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 governs the case.

While the children's parents were attempting to emigrate from Taiwan to the United States and until the parents obtained a home here, petitioner G.L. and his wife, the children's uncle and aunt, kept, supported and supervised the children in their Holmdel home and the children attended the BOE's schools. The basic issue is whether these circumstances constitute a "family or economic hardship," as the phrase is intended in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, such that the children could attend the BOE's schools without payment of tuition.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In early January 1996, the petitioner's former attorney and the BOE's attorney exchanged letters and other documents relative to whether the children had a right to attend the BOE's schools. By letter dated January 12, 1996, the BOE's attorney's notified the petitioner's former attorney of his position that there was no hardship; the children would not be permitted to attend the BOE's schools; and a petition challenging this could be filed with the Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Education. Consequently, the parties did not engage in the process provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, wherein, based upon a "sworn statement," etc., the BOE would make a "decision" on whether the children could attend the schools, before resort to an appeal to the Commissioner.

In a petition filed with the Commissioner on January 23, 1996, G.L. demanded an order staying the above-described exclusion of the children from the schools and requiring the BOE to allow the children to continue in the schools. The BOE's answer was also filed on January 23, 1996. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The Department transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where, on January 30, 1996, it was filed as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). On June 12, 1996, the BOE filed a motion for summary decision, dismissing the petition. The petitioner opposed the motion and, by letter dated July 10, 1996, Administrative Law Judge Solomon A. Metzger denied the motion. A hearing was scheduled; the case was assigned to me; the petitioner's former attorney withdrew from the case; and, on October 28, 1996, in the OAL, G.L. and the BOE's attorney conferred and entered into a settlement agreement, conditioned upon the BOE's approval. The BOE later rejected the agreement and the case was scheduled for a hearing. On February 24, 1997, the hearing began, but G.L. realized that he needed a Mandarin Chinese translator/interpreter to adduce testimony from his witness and the hearing was adjourned. On April 9, 1997, petitioner filed a motion for summary decision. The BOE opposed the motion and I denied it. The hearing was rescheduled for May 7, 1997. On that day, petitioner questioned whether, given the absence of the above-described process provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, wherein the BOE would make a "decision," the case should be heard. I decided that, because the Commissioner had transmitted the matter here for filing as a contested case and to avoid further delay in the making of a decision on the matter, it should be heard. The case was then heard with Robert C. Hsu serving as translator/interpreter.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The findings of fact are substantially based upon the testimony of Y.C.L., the children's mother, who was a credible witness. Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546, 554-55 (1954).

G-Y.L. and Y.C.L., natives of Taiwan, are dentists and the parents of daughter Y-C.L., who was born in Taiwan on May 29, 1980, and daughter Y-Y.L., who was born in Taiwan on July 2, 1982. During relevant times, petitioner G.L., the brother of G-Y.L., has operated a business in New Jersey and he and his wife have resided in Holmdel Township.

In 1984, G-Y.L. and Y.C.L. visited the United States, decided to emigrate here, and applied for approval to do so. They did not receive approval until 1995. They then attempted to sell their properties and dental practice in Taiwan. The process of winding up their affairs was time-consuming and was complicated by G-Y.L.'s heart condition. However, Y.C.L. testified, it was required that the children emigrate to the United States within five months of the approval. G.L. and his wife volunteered to house, support and supervise the children while G-Y.L. and Y.C.L. were in Taiwan preparing for the whole family's move. Consequently, in late December 1995 the family traveled to the United States, and, when their parents returned to Taiwan, the children remained in the home of G.L.. Thereafter, G-Y.L. and Y.C.L. made numerous trips between Taiwan and the United States. (G-Y.L. was in Taiwan most of the time.) Consequently, they were unable to support and supervise the children. There was no agreement or expectation that G-Y.L. and Y.C.L. would repay G.L. and his wife for their services, and there has been no such repayment. On G.L.'s tax returns, he showed the children as dependents. In early January 1996, the children were enrolled in and began attending the BOE's schools, which they continue to attend. From January 1996 until January 1997 the children were housed, supported and supervised, including supervision relative to school requirements, by G.L. and his wife. During this time, Y.C.L. occasionally provided the children with incidental spending money, e.g., for movies.

In December 1996 Y.C.L. signed a lease on a home in Holmdel, and in January 1997 she and the children began to reside in that home. G-Y.L. continues to spend most of his time in Taiwan, winding up their affairs.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 states, in pertinent part:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under 20 years of age:
>
> a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district;
> b. (1) Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term, and a copy of his lease if a tenant, or a sworn statement by his landlord acknowledging his tenancy if residing as a tenant without a written lease, and upon filing by the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. The statement shall be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements, information from or about which shall be supplied only to the board and only to the extent that it directly pertains to the support or nonsupport of the child. If in the judgment of the board of education the evidence does not support the validity of the claim by the resident, the board may deny admission to the child. The resident may contest the board's decision to the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner on the validity of the claim and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. The board of education shall, at the time of its decision, notify the resident in writing of his right to contest the board's decision to the commissioner within 21 days. No child shall be denied admission during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. In the event the child is currently enrolled in the district, the student shall not be removed from school during the 21-day period in which the resident may contest the board's decision nor during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the resident, he shall assess the resident tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the school district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced. Nothing shall preclude a board from collecting tuition from the resident, parent or guardian for a student's period of ineligible attendance in the schools of the district where the issue is not appealed to the commissioner;

(2) If the superintendent . . . of a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district and the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. The parent or guardian shall be entitled to a hearing before the board and if in the judgment of the board the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the district or the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the > decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. The board of education shall, at the time of its decision, notify the parent or guardian in writing of his right to contest the decision within 21 days. No child shall be removed from school during the 21-day period in which the parent may contest the board's decision or during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the parent or guardian, the commissioner shall assess the parent or guardian tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced. Nothing shall preclude a board from collecting tuition from the parent or guardian for a student's period of ineligible attendance in the schools of the district where the issue is not appealed to the commissioner.

The petitioner has proven the following: For G-Y.L. and Y.C.L. and their children, the process of emigrating from Taiwan to the United States has been time-consuming and difficult, constituting a "family or economic hardship." Consequently, from January 1996 until January 1997, the children were kept in the Holmdel home of G.L. and his wife. G.L. and his wife "supported [the children] gratis." G.L. and his wife "assume[d] all personal obligations for the child[ren] relative to school requirements" and kept and supported the children "gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term." The children resided in the district as a necessary step in their emigration and did not reside in the district "solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education" from the BOE. During the time in issue, i.e., January 1996 to January 1997, the children were entitled to attend the BOE's schools without payment of tuition. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1).

ORDER

I ORDER the petition's claims GRANTED. For the children's attendance in the BOE's schools, no tuition is owed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter,* and relying upon the credibility determinations rendered by the ALJ, the Commissioner affirms the ALJ's findings and conclusions, and concurs that petitioner has demonstrated that the minor children were entitled to attend school in the Board's district, free of charge, during the time period in issue, January 1996 to January 1997, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1).

SYNOPSIS

Teacher aide appealed his disqualification from school employment pursuant to criminal record check. During the course of this appeal, appellant also contested the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 to the employees of private schools for the educationally disabled which accept public school students.

Initially, the ALJ concluded that the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 apply to the employees of a facility, center, or school under the supervision of either the Department or a local Board of Education. ALJ found that legislative history shows a legislative intent that the bill's requirements so apply and that, further, where a statute is ambiguous, the interpretation of the statute by the administrative agency that administers it, while not binding, is entitled to weight in the determination of the ~~statute~~'s meaning and intent.

Having reviewed the testimony and documents admitted into evidence, the ALJ concluded that appellant affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation. ALJ ordered that appellant was not disqualified from school employment as a teacher's assistant.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own, concurring that the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 apply to the employees of a facility, center or school under the Department of Education or a local Board of Education. In noting there was no cause to question the ALJ's assessment of petitioner's credibility, Commissioner deemed petitioner qualified for school employment as a teacher aide.

Record Closed: March 3, 1997 Decided: June 2, 1997

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the appeal of the petitioner, Joseph Henderson, Jr., as to his disqualification from school employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

---

* Deputy Attorney General Arlene Goldfus Lutz submitted a response brief as to the issue of the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

By letter dated May 13, 1996, the Department of Education (Department) notified the petitioner of its determination that he was disqualified from continued school employment (R-1d). The petitioner filed an appeal on July 25, 1996, and the Commissioner of the Department of Education (Commissioner) transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A 52:14F-1 to -13.

The hearing took place on December 9, 1996. Jeff Thakker, Esq., appeared on behalf of the petitioner, and the Department was not represented at the hearing but relied on papers sent to the petitioner and the OAL. After the hearing, Mr. Thakker requested that the record remain open and that he be given the opportunity to submit a brief as to whether N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 applies to employees of private schools for the educationally disabled which accept public school students. I allowed Mr. Thakker to submit a brief on this issue, which I received on December 31, 1996. I sent a copy of the petitioner's brief to the Department for its comments. I received a response from Deputy Attorney General Arlene Goldfus Lutz on February 10, 1997. Mr. Thakker filed a reply on March 3, 1997, and the record closed on that date.

At my request, the date for the submission of this initial decision was extended to June 2, 1997.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND that the facts in this matter are not in dispute.

In 1995, the petitioner got a job as a teacher assistant at the Howell Campus of the Coastal Learning Center (Coastal), a private school for the educationally disabled which accepts public school students. Coastal required that the petitioner sign a form allowing a criminal history record check (P-3). This check revealed that the petitioner was convicted for possession of cocaine in 1974 and was placed on probation for three years (R-1m), and was convicted for distribution of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) in 1986 and was sentenced to seven years in jail (R-1d; R-1gg). Both of these convictions are disqualifiers pursuant to N.J.S.A.

18A:6-7.1. In addition, the criminal record check revealed that the petitioner had fourteen other convictions, which are not disqualifiers, between 1970 and 1983 (R-1gg; R-1k).

By letter dated May 13, 1996, the Department notified the petitioner that its check had revealed the two convictions which are disqualifiers pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, and it gave the petitioner thirty days in which to challenge the accuracy of the criminal record or to establish rehabilitation (R-1d). Mr. Henderson submitted documents to the Department to show rehabilitation, and the matter was referred to the OAL for a hearing.

At the hearing, Mr. Henderson testified that he was born in 1951, and was raised in a poor neighborhood in Asbury Park by his mother. He graduated from high school in 1970. While in high school, Mr. Henderson was active in sports and did not use drugs. He joined the U.S. Air Force in 1970, and got an honorable discharge in 1973. While in the service, Mr. Henderson started to drink alcohol and use illegal drugs. Soon after his military release, Mr. Henderson was arrested and convicted for possession of cocaine (according to the petitioner it was heroin, and not cocaine). For several years thereafter, he did not use illegal drugs. During this period, he took a computer course and got married. The petitioner started to use illegal drugs again in 1979, and he continued to use illegal drugs until his arrest for the sale of cocaine in 1985. According to the petitioner, a friend of his asked him to purchase cocaine on several occasions. This friend was working undercover for the police, and the petitioner was arrested after he obtained the cocaine for the friend.

Mr. Henderson testified that he stopped using illegal drugs after his arrest in 1985, since he recognized that he had to change his life. He started going to the Good Hope Baptist Church and started to correspond with Pastor LeRoy Holmes.

After his conviction in 1986 (R-1g), Mr. Henderson was incarcerated for two years. While incarcerated, he took college courses, participated in a behavior modification program, and attended Bible readings and Narcotics Anonymous meetings. Also while he was incarcerated, he decided that he wanted to help troubled youths.

After his release and until 1994, Mr. Henderson did volunteer work at the St. Joe's Juvenile Shelter in Trenton, which is under the supervision of Jose Lopez. Mr. Lopez submitted a sworn statement confirming the petitioner's volunteer services and stating that the petitioner was a positive role model for the children (P-15). The petitioner also did volunteer work at the Gilmore J. Fisher Middle School in Ewing. Marossa Davis, a guidance counselor at the school, confirmed his volunteer service and stated that he was a good role model for students (P-6). During this period, Mr. Henderson was employed as an assistant at the Thomas Lewis Laboratory, which is part of Princeton University.

In 1993, Mr. Henderson started to work at the Exodus House in Asbury Park, which operates a drug recovery program for adults. Later, he worked for the Rugby School for troubled youths. Since 1995, he has been employed by Coastal. As a teacher assistant at Coastal, Mr. Henderson accompanies children between buildings, assists teachers and does crisis intervention counseling. John H. Quintaglie, the principal of the Howell Campus of Coastal, testified and submitted a sworn statement on behalf of the petitioner (P-20). Mr. Quintaglie stated that the petitioner is trustworthy, reliable, and has a good rapport with the students and their parents and guardians. Neal M. Hines, a drug and alcohol counselor employed by Coastal, testified that the students at Coastal relate well with the petitioner and that the petitioner is effective in his attempts to help them.

When he started to work at Coastal, Mr. Henderson was required to sign a form entitled Applicant Authorization and Certification (P-3). According to Mr. Henderson, he signed it based on the representation that it allowed the Department to do a criminal history check. Mr. Henderson stated that he did not read the form carefully and was not aware that he was also signing a certification that he had not been convicted of certain offenses, including controlled dangerous substance offenses.

In addition to his job at Coastal, the petitioner is employed by the Boys and Girls Club of Monmouth County (Club) in Asbury Park. He heads the Club's Smart Move Program, which counsels children with drug, gang and other problems, and supervises the Club's after-school recreation program. Kevin McMillan, the Club's board president (P-18), and Kenneth Saunders, the Club's executive director (P-21), submitted sworn statements as to Mr. Henderson's excellent employment record and the fact that he is a role model for the students.

Mr. Henderson continued his religious studies and in 1994 he received certificates from the Monmouth Bible Institute and the Evangelical Training Association (P-2). He is now an ordained evangelist and a deacon at the Macedonia Baptist Church in Neptune. At this church, he teaches Bible studies and has organized a youth rap-music group. He is also active in various prison ministry programs. Pastor Kelvin McDonald of the Macedonia Baptist Church submitted a sworn statement as to Mr. Henderson's activities in the church and with the prison outreach ministry, which involves visiting inmates in prisons and helping newly released inmates (P-17). James D. Lang, Jr., vice president (P-13), and Frank M. Green, state director (P-7), of the Bill Glass Prison Ministry submitted sworn statements as to Mr. Henderson's volunteer prison ministry work. Mr. Henderson also does prison ministry work for the Community Network of Bishop LeRoy Holmes (P-25), and at the Middlesex County Prison under the direction of assistant pastor Willie Hill. Both Bishop Holmes and Assistant Pastor Hill submitted letters attesting to the petitioner's volunteer work (P-9; P-10). The petitioner also submitted letters from Louis Jordan, national founder and CEO of the National Concerned Officers Organization on Gang Activities, Inc. (P-12), William P. Lucia, chief of detectives, Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office (P-16), Rev. Herbert Presley (P-19), and Mayor Carl Williams of Asbury Park (P-23), attesting to his rehabilitation and his volunteer work in the community.

Mr. Henderson is president of the Old Timers' Association of Monmouth and Ocean counties, which runs dances and programs to raise money for college scholarships. He does volunteer work with the local food bank, which operates a Friday Night Feast to provide children with a good meal on Fridays. He is also on the executive board of the Center of Love, Inc., in Asbury Park, which provides crisis counseling for families. Tyrone K. Laws, the executive director of the Center of Love, testified and submitted a sworn statement (P-14) regarding Mr. Henderson's volunteer work at the Center of Love.

Also, Mr. Henderson is involved in the Mentor Program in Asbury Park, and a number of people involved with that program submitted sworn statements or letters regarding the petitioner's activities to help the community's youth to keep away from illegal drugs and criminal activities. These letters and sworn statements are from Robert A. Honecker, Jr., an assistant prosecutor in Monmouth County (P-11), Jerry Hamlin, special projects coordinator for the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office (P-8), Detective Dominic Fazio (P-1), Sebastian Trapani, director of the Community Mentor Program (P-22), Felicia Costantino, a Monmouth County probation officer (P-5), Colleen R. Christie, a Monmouth County supervising probation officer (P-4), and Superior Court Judge Paul F. Chaiet (P-24).

According to Mr. Henderson, he has not consumed any alcoholic beverages or illegal drugs or committed any criminal offenses since 1985.

CONCLUSION OF LAW

The threshold issue in this matter is whether the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 apply to employees of private schools for the educationally disabled which accept public school students. The pertinent provision of the statute provides:

> A facility, center, school, or school system under the supervision of the Department of Education and board of education which cares for, or is involved in the education of children under the age of 18 shall not employ or contract for the services of any teaching staff member or substitute teacher, teacher aide, . . . or any other person serving in a position which involves regular contact with pupils . . . unless the employer has first determined consistent with the requirements and standards of this act, that no criminal history record information exists on file in the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Identification Division, or the State Bureau of Identification which would disqualify that individual from being employed or utilized in such capacity or position.
> [Emphasis added.]

In his brief, the petitioner argues that consistent with the plain language of the statute its legislative history, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 only applies to schools that are under the supervisic both the Department and the local board of education. The petitioner argues that it has consistently held that a court is obligated to enforce the legislative language as written, an not, under the guise of construction, substitute a different meaning, even though s alternative is more desirable. State Bd. of Medical Examiners v. Warren Hospital, 102 N.J. Super. 407 (Cty. Ct. 1968), aff'd, 104 N.J. Super. 409 (App. Div. 1969); In re Howell Tp., Monmouth County, 254 N.J. Super. 411 (App. Div. 1991), certif. denied, 127 N.J. 548 (1991).

The petitioner concedes that Coastal is under the supervision of the Department; however, he argues that Coastal is not under the supervision of any local board of education. The petitioner notes that local boards of education are permitted, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-14, to enter into contracts to send educationally disabled students to privately operated schools and that N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.1 et seq. regulates the tuition that these private schools may charge, but that there is no statute or regulation authorizing the local school boards to supervise the privately operated schools.

In her response, Deputy Attorney General Lutz disagreed and argued that the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 are applicable to schools supervised either by the Department or a local school district. Ms. Lutz argued that private schools for the educationally disabled that accept public school students are under the supervision of the Department since such schools must be approved by the Department, N.J.S.A. 18A:46-15, and are subject to a monitoring process by the Department, N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.1 et seq.

It is the Department's position that the intent of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 is to insure that all public school students attend facilities and schools with employees that have passed the required criminal history check, and that public school students who are placed in private schools for the educationally disabled because the local school district cannot provide an appropriate education are entitled to the protections afforded to all other public school students pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

I recognize that the petitioner's position that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 applies only where there s dual supervision is reasonable since the statute provides "the Department of Education and oard of education" (emphasis added). The courts have recognized that the "word 'and' carries th it natural conjunctive import." Pine Belt Chevrolet v. Jersey Central Power, 132 N.J. 564, 3 (1993) (citation omitted). However, the courts have also > recognized that "[t]he words 'or' and 'and' are ofttimes used interchangeably, and the determination of whether the word 'and' as used in a statute should be read in the conjunctive or disjunctive depends primarily upon the legislative intent."

> [Ibid.]

I CONCLUDE that the legislative history of N.J.S.A. 18:6-7.1 shows a legislative intent that the word "and" be read in the disjunctive. All committee statements to the legislation reported that the bill's requirements apply to "all final candidates for employment by a board of education or a facility, center, or school under the supervision of the Department of Education." Assembly Appropriations Committee Statement to S. 223 (Mar. 6, 1986); Assembly Education Committee Statement to S. 223 (Feb. 27, 1986); Senate Education Committee Statement to S. 223 (Jan. 23, 1986). Former Governor Kean, in his review of the bill, also indicated that "Senate Bill No. 223 (OCR) would require criminal history checks on all final candidates for employment . . . in the public schools or in educational institutions under the supervision of the Department of Education." Governor Kean's Objections and Recommendations for Amendments to S. 223 (June 23, 1986).

Furthermore, where a statute is ambiguous, the interpretation of the statute by the administrative agency that administers it, while not binding, is entitled to weight in the determination of the statute's meaning and intent. American Nat'l Bank & Trust v. Presbyterian Homes, 148 N.J. Super. 465, 475 (App. Div. 1977); In re John Brennan, 126 N.J. Super. 368, 373 (App. Div. 1974); In re Petition of Public Service, 103 N.J. Super. 505, 513 (App. Div. 1968). The Department, the administrative agency that administers N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, has taken the position that the statute applies to schools under the supervision of the Department or a local board of education.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 apply to the employees of a facility, center, or school under the supervision of either the Department or a local board of education.

Although the petitioner conceded that Coastal is under the supervision of the Department, the pertinent statutory provisions do not specifically give the Department "supervision" over private schools for the educationally disabled that accept public school students, and there is a question as to whether the Department's monitoring and approval of such private schools is tantamount to "under the supervision of the Department of Education" as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

Ms. Lutz's brief clearly states that the Department has interpreted the statute, using a broad definition of "supervision," to require employees of private schools for educationally disabled students which accept public school students to meet the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. I CONCLUDE that such an interpretation of the statute is reasonable and consistent with the legislative intent. A private school for the educationally disabled that wants to accept public school students has to submit an application for approval, N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.2(a). If the school is approved, it must annually submit information regarding its program, staffing, services and building maintenance, N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.3(a), and is subject to a periodic monitoring procedure by the Department, N.J.A.C. 6:28-9.1, 6:28-7.9(a), in order to retain its approved status. These provisions give the Department rights akin to "supervision" in order to insure that public school students sent to these schools are provided, on a continuing basis, with appropriate education programs in suitable facilities.

The remaining issue in this matter is whether Mr. Henderson has shown rehabilitation.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e), a person with a criminal record will not be disqualified from school employment if said person shows clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. This section sets forth a number of factors to be considered in determining whether the person has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation. These factors are:

(1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

(4) The date of the offense;

(5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;

(6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.

On behalf of the petitioner, Mr. Thakker argued that the petitioner grew up in the inner city of Asbury Park, associated with persons who used illegal drugs and were involved in criminal activities, and personally became heavily involved with illegal drugs during the 1970s and early 1980s. The petitioner's entire criminal record relates to his use of illegal drugs and to offenses committed to get money for drugs. Mr. Thakker noted that Mr. Henderson converted to Christianity after his 1985 drug arrest, that he was a model prison inmate, and that since his release from prison, he has been employed and has engaged in many volunteer activities to help others, especially children, avoid illegal drug usage and other criminal activity. Mr. Thakker argued that the petitioner has presented clear and convincing evidence of his dramatic and complete rehabilitation. Mr. Thakker argued that Mr. Henderson is a role model for the students at Coastal since they know he was able to overcome his drug addiction. See, Saunders v. N.J. Bd. of Educ., 91 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 12.

The petitioner acknowledges that the drug offenses are serious, but he argues that they are non-violent offenses and that he has been drug free and law abiding for more than ten years.

Although the petitioner was not a youthful violator, Mr. Thakker argued that his convictions were largely due to his association with friends who used illegal drugs and were involved in other criminal activities. The petitioner has substantially changed his lifestyle and there is no reason to believe he will ever resume using drugs or commit any other type of crime.

Having reviewed the testimony and the documents admitted into evidence, I agree with Mr. Thakker's arguments and I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation.

Also, Mr. Thakker argued that any disqualification of the petitioner based on his prior drug dependency constitutes discrimination pursuant to the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination and the Americans with Disabilities Act. Mr. Thakker presented no legal argument to support his position that a drug addiction is a handicap except to refer to Clowes v. Terminix International, Inc., 109 N.J. 575 (1988), which recognizes alcoholism as a handicap. Even if drug addiction should be considered a handicap, Mr. Thakker recognizes that there would still be a question as to whether such a handicap would reasonably preclude a person from performing the duties of Mr. Henderson's position. It is not necessary to address this argument here, since I have concluded that Mr. Henderson has shown rehabilitation.

Therefore, I ORDER that the petitioner not be disqualified from school employment.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE DISQUALI-	:
FICATION FROM SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
EMPLOYMENT OF J.H., JR.,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner adopts the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 apply to the employees of a facility, center or school under the supervision of either the Department of Education or a local board of education.

The Commissioner further concurs that petitioner has demonstrated rehabilitation in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, and is, therefore, qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws. It is observed in reaching this decision, that the Commissioner had no cause to question the ALJ's assessment of petitioner's credibility as such assessment is not belied by the record. Moreover, it was the ALJ who had the opportunity to hear petitioner's sworn testimony and to observe his demeanor, so that he was in the optimum position to make such determination.

ACCORDINGLY, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision as the final decision in this matter and Petitioner is deemed qualified for school employment as a teacher aide.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF IRVINGTON, ESSEX COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning business education chairperson challenged Board's termination of her employment, claiming that, notwithstanding that her continued service on the date of February 1, 1996 was the result of administrative error, she had nonetheless acquired tenure by operation of law through having worked for the requisite period of time as specified in statute.

ALJ found that controlling statute as interpreted by recent court decisions required re-employment for a fourth year to be a necessary condition of tenure acquisition under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, and that petitioner had neither received such an offer nor been recommended by the superintendent as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1. ALJ found it unnecessary to reach to petitioner's specific claim of entitlement under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(c), service for the equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of four consecutive academic years, based on calculation of length of the academic year. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner affirmed findings and conclusions of initial decision.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is a dispute over whether or not petitioner acquired tenure by operation of law. While the board of education clearly intended to deny her tenure, the school superintendent made an error in determining the date on which tenure would accrue. Consequently, petitioner worked one day beyond what was supposed to be the effective date of her termination.

Petitioner contends that she satisfied the statutory requirements for tenure by working "for more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years." N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(c). Respondent raises three reasons why tenure was not achieved: first, that petitioner was not "reemployed" by the board upon expiration of her third contact; second, that her claim is barred because the superintendent did not recommend her for reappointment; and, third, that she failed to satisfy the requisite time period set forth in the statute.

With respect to the third issue, the parties utilize different methods for determining how much service is needed for tenure. Petitioner maintains that tenure automatically arises after service for thirty months or one-hundred twenty weeks, plus one additional day. Respondent, however, insists that accrual of tenure depends on the number of days in a particular district's school calendar and calculates that petitioner falls four or five days short of the necessary length of service.[1]

Procedural History

Ms. Bernice Woods-Brown ("Woods-Brown") filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") on February 19, 1996. Irvington Board of Education ("Board") filed its answer on March 20, 1996. Subsequently, on April 11, 1996, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case.

Both parties agree that the outcome turns entirely on a legal question and that the matter should be decided on cross-motions for summary decision. Accordingly, on January 27, 1997, the parties filed a joint stipulation of facts and exhibits. Woods-Brown filed her motion for summary decision, together with supporting certifications and brief, on January 9, 1997. The Board filed its opposing brief on February 5, 1996. Thereafter, the parties filed reply briefs on or before February 24, 1996. The OAL heard oral argument on February 27, 1997, on which date the record closed.

[1] "Academic year" is defined as "the period between the time school opens in any school district or under any board of education after the general summer vacation until the next succeeding summer vacation." N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1. Slight differences in the Board's figures are attributable to whether the first day of school is taken as the date that teachers report to work or the date that students begin classes.

Findings of Fact

All of the relevant facts are stipulated. I FIND:

Irvington Board of Education is a body politic and corporate, organized and existing by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey and entrusted with maintaining and conducting the schools of the Township of Irvington school district. Bernice Woods-Brown started working for the district midway during the 1992-93 academic year. By resolution dated February 24, 1993, the Board accepted the recommendation of its superintendent to appoint Woods-Brown to a ten-month position as chairperson of the high school business-education department, "effective February 1, 1993." Her duties were spelled out in a written job description and in the district's business-education curriculum. In addition, Woods-Brown was responsible for operating and implementing a work-study program for high school students. At all relevant times, she possessed various educational certificates with appropriate endorsements, including principal/supervisor, teacher of business education and data processing, and coordinator of cooperative vocational-technical education.

It appears that Woods-Brown continued her employment in the district for the entire 1993-94 and 1994-95 academic years and for the first half of 1994-95. However, on December 6, 1995, superintendent of schools Peter Carter wrote her a letter indicating that February 2, 1996 "represents the date on which you could obtain tenure with the [district]" and advising that he would not recommend her for tenure at the December 20th meeting of the Board. The letter went on to say that, "Upon denial of said tenure by the Board, your employment will cease on February 2, 1996 and your last day of work will be February 1, 1996."

One day later, on December 7, 1995, superintendent Carter met personally with Woods-Brown, in the presence of the acting high school principal, and verbally "advised her that she was being nonrenewed and denied tenure in conjunction with a district-wide reduction in force." On December 14, 1995, Carter sent another letter to Woods-Brown, telling her that the Board "will consider the non-renewal of your employment and denial of tenure . . . during the closed session portion of its December 20, 1995 meeting" and informing her of the right to request a public discussion. Thereafter, on December 20, 1995, the Board held a regular meeting and voted unanimously to approve the recommendation of its superintendent not to renew her employment and, thereby, to deny her tenure, "effective February 1, 1996."

Despite the apparent inconsistency between the superintendent's letter referring to February 1, 1996 as her "last day of work" and the board resolution purportedly making her termination "effective" as of February 1, 1996, the parties agree that Woods-Brown did come to work and performed her usual and customary duties on February 1, 1996.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Woods-Brown did not satisfy the statutory requirements for tenure.

At the outset, the parties agree that there exists no genuine issue of material fact requiring a hearing and, therefore, that the matter may be decided by summary decision. N.J.A.C. 1:1-121.5. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520 (1995). Tenure is a statutory status that supersedes any contrary contractual terms. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 72 (1982). In order to acquire the status of a permanent teacher under a tenure law and with it the consequent security of permanent employment, a teacher must comply with the precise conditions articulated in the statute. Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65, 72 (1962), cert. den. 371 U.S. 956, 83 S. Ct. 508, 9 *L.Ed.*2d 502 (1963). Both sides agree that the present situation is governed by subsection (c) of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, which provides:

> The services of all teaching staff members . . . shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency . . after > employment in such district or by such board for . . . the equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years. (Emphasis Added).[2]

Initially, the Board urges that petitioner does not qualify for tenure because it refused to offer her employment after expiration of her third contract and, thus, she was not "employed" for more than three academic years. A recent Supreme Court opinion, Picogna v. Cherry Hill Bd. of Educ., 143 N.J. 390 (1996), strongly supports the Board's reasoning. There a school board wrongfully terminated a teaching staff member's employment during the final year of the three-year contract. Although plaintiff was entitled to damages for breach of contract, the Court held that he did not acquire tenure. Interpreting identical introductory language to subsection (a) of the tenure statute, the Court ruled that in order to obtain tenure "plaintiff was required to serve three consecutive calendar years on probation with defendant and then be reemployed by the Board for at least one day in a fourth year." Picogna, at 402. Even though the plaintiff would have achieved tenure but for the board's misconduct, the Court determined that he had not satisfied "the statutory requirement of employment after expiration of three consecutive years." Id. Accord, Canfield v. Pine Hills Bd. of Educ., rev'g on dissent below, 97 N.J. Super. 483, 490-493 (App. Div. 1967).

In Canfield, a school board mistakenly failed to give the sixty-day notice of termination required under the cancellation clause of the contract, so that arguably the teacher's employment continued beyond statutory period for tenure. Reversing a judgment in the teacher's favor, the Supreme Court concurred with the view of the dissenting judge below that "the discharge of an employee before passage of the required time bars tenure, even if the discharge is in breach of an employment contract which, if not breached, would have extended to a date which would have give tenure."

[2] Subsection (a), which confers tenure after employment for "[t]hree consecutive calendar years, or any shorter period which may be fixed by the employing board for such purpose," is inapplicable because Woods-Brown was not employed on a calendar-year basis. Subsection (b), which confers tenure after employment for "[t]hree consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year" is inapplicable because Woods-Brown started in February and was not employed for three "consecutive" academic years.

97 N.J. Super. at 490. The Court adopted the dissenting judge's concern that a school district "should not be trapped into tenure by the construction of words which neither party expected to have that meaning." 97 N.J. Super. at 493

Our own factual pattern presents an even more compelling case against the accidental granting of tenure. Insofar as the record reflects, the Board made a good-faith decision to deny tenure to petitioner, without breaching her contractual rights or failing to give adequate notice. Indeed, Woods-Brown was fully aware long before her last day of work that she would not become tenured. Superintendent Carter sent her written notice of his negative recommendation on December 6, 1995, told her personally on December 7, 1995 and notified her on December 14, 1995 of the upcoming Board meeting at which her tenure would be considered. Moreover, on December 20, 1995, the Board passed a straightforward resolution declining to renew her contract and denying her tenure.

Case law emphasizes the importance of allowing a district to reach an informed judgment on whether a particular staff member should receive tenure. Illustratively, in Zimmerman , supra, the Supreme Court remarked that:

> . . . [A] board's duty to hire teachers requires more than merely appointing licensed instructors; it demands that permanent appointments be made only if the teachers are found suitable for the positions after a qualifying trial period. In essence, this constitutes a "proving out" period. 38 N.J. at 73.

Courts expressly recognize the utility of a probationary period "as a means of assessing a teacher's performance." Kletzkin v. Spotswood Bd. of Educ., 136 N.J. 275, 280 (1994). Teachers who accept employment in a particular district do so with the clear understanding that they are "serving a probationary period and may or may not ultimately attain tenure." Donaldson v. No. Wildwood Bd. of Educ., 65 N.J. 236, 245 (1974).

Recently, in Martucci v. Linden Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 109 (Comm'r Oct. 25, 1995,) rev'd Dkt. No. 108-95 (St. Bd. Dec. 8, 1996) the State Board of Education acknowledged the requirement of reemployment after a probationary period in order to sustain a claim of tenure. Martucci involved a teacher who was promoted to principal and served for two years in that capacity. Prior to completion of the second year, the school board notified him that it was not going to offer him a contract for the following year. Nonetheless, the board allowed him to serve out the remainder of the second year. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(a) provides that any teaching staff member transferred or promoted with his consent to another position in the district shall not obtain tenure "until after . . . the expiration of a period of employment of two consecutive calendar years in the new position unless a shorter period is fixed by the employing board for such purposes." (Emphasis added). Since he had worked as a principal for two full years, the teacher claimed that he had achieved tenure. Applying the rationale of Picogna and Zimmerman, the State Board held that he did not acquire tenure "because he was not reemployed by the Board as a principal after being employed in that capacity for two years." (slip op. at 7). In further support of its decision, the State Board cited the disruption and additional expense that would occur if district boards were "forced to terminate the contracts of calendar year employees in order to prevent tenure acquisition." (slip op. at 8).

The State Board's analysis in Martucci is controlling here as well. Although Woods-Brown, like Martucci, may have technically served for the requisite amount of time, she too was not reemployed by the Board after completion of her probationary period. Instead, the Board gave her timely and effective notice that her employment would cease "effective February 1, 1995," which connotes that her last day of work would be January 31, 1995. Pursuant to statute, the Board had the option of having Woods-Brown continue to perform her duties "during the period between the giving of the notice and the date of termination of employment thereunder." N.J.S.A. 18A:27-9. Any work she performed on February 1, 1995 was done without the Board's approval and against its plain instructions. Even if the superintendent of schools inadvertently allowed Woods-Brown to work beyond her termination date, he lacks legal authority to bind the Board to a new contract which that body has specifically declined to offer. [3]

Woods-Brown relies on an earlier case, decided twenty-five years ago, standing for the dubious proposition that a teaching staff member may obtain tenure by ignoring a school board's timely notice of nonrenewal. In McGlynn v. Lumberton Bd. of Educ., 1972 S.L.D. 28 (Comm'r Feb. 3, 1972), a school board verbally served notice in March of its "intent" not to renew its superintendent's annual contract, which was about to expire at the end of June. (In contrast, the Board notified Woods-Brown not merely of its future intent, but of its fully-formed decision to terminate her contract). Next month, in April, the school board confirmed its intention in writing and inquired whether McGlynn wanted to revert to his former tenured position of principal for the coming year. Without responding to the board's inquiry, McGlynn continued performing his duties as superintendent for two weeks after the contract expiration date. Faulting the board for not taking unspecified measures to "discharge" its superintendent prior to June 30, the Commissioner determined that McGlynn had acquired tenure as superintendent "at the precise moment when the requisite period had expired." McGlynn, at 33. Whatever precedential value McGlynn may once have possessed, it has been overruled by Martucci, where the State Board held that tenure does not accrue until actual reemployment after the probationary period. Not only is Martucci a more current recitation of controlling law, but State Board pronouncements take precedence over contrary Commissioner's rulings. Dore v. Bedminster Twp. Bd. of Educ., 185 N.J. Super. 447 (1982).

Additionally, the Board argues that Woods-Brown cannot obtain tenure without the affirmative recommendation of the superintendent for her final reappointment. Prior to recent legislative amendments, the Appellate Division had declared that a school board was not bound by the staffing recommendations of its chief school administrator and that a superintendent of schools lacked "veto power" over teacher appointments. Rotondo v. Carlstadt-East Rutherford Reg. High Sch. Dist., 276 N.J. Super. 36 (App. Div. 1994). Arriving at that result on the basis of statutory construction, the court suggested that, "If a new answer is to be reached, it is the Legislature that has to reach it." 276 N.J. Super. at 46.

In response to that invitation, the Legislature enacted L. 1995, c. 125, designed to "clarif[y] the role of the chief school administrator in school board employment decisions." Sponsor's Statement to Assembly Bill 2410. Unfortunately, the new law generated more confusion. On one hand, the new legislation, popularly known as the "Rotondo Bill," amended N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(b) to read that "A board of education shall renew the employment contract of a certificated or non-certificated officer or employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator[.]" (Emphasis added). More emphatically, the amendment added a sentence that "A nontenured officer or employee who is not recommended for renewal by the chief school administrator shall be deemed nonrenewed." (Emphasis added). This language clearly implies that the superintendent's recommendation is a precondition to any grant of tenure. On the other hand, the amendment also provides that an officer or employee whose employment contract is not renewed is entitled to an informal appearance before the board, the purpose of which is "to permit the staff member to convince the members of the board to offer reemployment." Further, the amendment stated that the board "may not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons." Commentators wondered whether the superintendent's approval was absolutely necessary after all, or whether the board could still override the superintendent's recommendation in certain circumstances. School Law Reporter, at 1 (Dec. 1995).

Such doubts were put to rest by the Commissioner in Velasquez v. Brielle Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. EDU 8276-95 (Comm'r April 4, 1996), in which he found that the bill's legislative history and its origin as a response to the Appellate Division's decision in Rotondo demand that the statutory language be read to prohibit a school board from reemploying a staff member whom the superintendent opposes. The Commissioner was able to harmonize the apparently contradictory provisions of the Act by pointing out that a school superintendent sits as a nonvoting member of the school board and, thus, that the employee's appearance before the board offers an opportunity to convince the superintendent to change a negative recommendation. Any other interpretation, the Commissioner observed, "ignores both the context of the specific language being relied upon and the overall scheme of the legislative enactment." Velasquez, slip op. at 26. Now that it has been authoritatively determined that a superintendent's approval is necessary for tenure, the consequences for Woods-Brown are clear. Mr. Carter told her more than once that he could not recommend her for tenure.

In light of the fact that Woods-Brown does not have tenure because she was not reemployed after her probationary period and also because the superintendent recommended against her reappointment, it is unnecessary to consider whether length of service should be measured by the passage of months or weeks or by the nearest day on a particular district's calendar.

Order

It is ORDERED that the Board's motion for summary decision in its favor is granted.

And further ORDERED that the relief requested by Woods-Brown is denied.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BERNICE WOODS-BROWN,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF IRVINGTON, ESSEX COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, as were replies by the respondent Board of Education (Board).

In her exceptions, petitioner renews her contention, which she claims was erroneously ignored by the ALJ, that she acquired tenure by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(c). She did so, she claims, through being employed for the equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of four academic years as required by statute. Academic years, according to petitioner, are to be uniformly reckoned as thirty months, so that petitioner acquired tenure by virtue of having performed her duties on February 1, 1996 and, thus, having been employed for thirty months and one day.

In reply, the Board urges acceptance in full of the initial decision, but argues that, even accepting petitioner's stance that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(c) controls the present inquiry in its entirety, petitioner did not acquire tenure because she was not employed for the requisite number of days based on the academic calendar of the district during the years in question.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ, for the reasons well expressed in the initial decision, that the State Board's analysis in Martucci, supra, controls this matter in its entirety. Notwithstanding any differences in the manner of calculating the length of an academic year for purposes of tenure acquisition pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(c), the Martucci analysis clearly requires a valid offer of reemployment as a condition precedent to the granting of tenure under any provision of 18A:28-5. Thus, the ALJ did not err in finding it unnecessary to reach to petitioner's specific contentions regarding the precise length of an academic year when applying 18A:28-5(c).

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the petition of appeal is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

This matter having been brought before the Court upon joint application of Cherie L. Maxwell, Esquire, Sills, Cummins, Zuckerman, attorney for State Operated School District of the City of Newark (hereinafter ~~State~~ District) and Claudine M. Liss, Esquire, attorney for Cynthia Johnson, and

It appearing, subject to review and approval by the Commissioner of Education that this matter in dispute has been resolved by agreement between the parties, the following items are agreed upon:

1. Cynthia Johnson agrees to tender her resignation from employment with the State Operated School District of the City of Newark effective upon approval of this settlement by the Commissioner.

2. Cynthia Johnson has already returned to the State Board of Examiners any and all teaching certificates in her possession which have been issued to her and she has already informed the State Board of Examiners that she requests to have her name removed from the records of those certified to teach in the State of New Jersey.

3. Cynthia Johnson agrees to waive her rights, if any, to salary under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.

4. In light of the agreements by Ms. Johnson contained in paragraphs 1,2, and 3 above, the ~~State~~ District acknowledges that settlement of this case is in the public interest notwithstanding the nature of the charges in that it forecloses Ms. Johnson from being a teacher in New Jersey in the future, and avoids the costs attendant to litigation which the ~~State~~ District might have to bear.

5. This Agreement constitutes the Full Agreement between the parties and is subject to approval by the State District Superintendent and Commissioner of Education.

SYNOPSIS

School bus driver appealed his disqualification from school employment pursuant to criminal record check.

Having reviewed the testimony and documents admitted into evidence, the ALJ concluded that appellant affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation. ALJ ordered that appellant was not disqualified from employment as a school bus driver.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own, noting there was no cause to question the ALJ's assessment of petitioner's credibility. Thus, petitioner was deemed qualified for school employment as a school bus driver.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 614-97

AGENCY DKT. NO. DHP #101-96

BOBBY D. WILLIAMS,

Petitioner,

v.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

Respondent.

Bobby D. Williams, petitioner, pro se

New Jersey State Department of Education, respondent, appearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 1:1-5.6(a)

Record Closed: March 19, 1997 Decided: May 2, 1997

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the appeal of the petitioner, Bobby D. Williams, from his disqualification from employment as a school bus driver pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, and 18A:39-19.1.

By letter dated December 6, 1996, the Department of Education (Education) determined that the petitioner was disqualified from employment as a school bus driver (R-7). The petitioner filed an appeal and on February 4, 1997, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The hearing took place on March 19, 1997, and the record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND the facts in this matter are not in dispute.

In 1996, the petitioner got a job as a school bus driver with Stout's Bus Service, Inc., and he was terminated when the company was informed by the Department of the petitioner's disqualification (R-8, R-10).

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and 18A:39-19.1, school bus drivers are subject to a criminal history record check. Through this check, the Department was informed that the petitioner was arrested and convicted for the possession of a controlled dangerous substance on six occasions between May 1982 and December 1987. For the first five convictions, he was fined and sentenced to the Mercer County Correctional Center and/or put on probation (R-2). For the December 1987 conviction, he was sentenced to the New Jersey State Prison for four years and was fined $1,580.00 (R-2).

By letter dated December 6, 1996, the Department notified the petitioner that its check revealed a criminal record, and gave the petitioner the opportunity to challenge the accuracy of the criminal record or to establish rehabilitation (R-7).

In response to the Department's letter, the petitioner admitted the convictions but argued that he has been rehabilitated (R-3). The petitioner sent to the Department a number of letters to support his representation of rehabilitation (R-5, R-6, R-16, R-17, R-18).

At the hearing, Mr. Williams stated that he is thirty-five years old, married and supports their combined family of five children. Mr. Williams stated that prior to his December 1997 conviction, he was a drug addict and associated with people who used drugs. Mr. Williams never finished high school and for a while he was a professional boxer. During that period, he was active in sports but described himself as being self-centered and a drug user. According to Mr. Williams, being sent to prison changed his life and he decided to stop using drugs. When he was released from prison in 1990, he lived for a while in a half-way house and worked for the Trenton Times newspaper. Mr. Williams stated that he was on probation for only a short period and was unable to get a letter from his probation officer since his record was closed for too long of a period.

Later, Mr. Williams got a job with Stout's Bus Service, Inc. as a school bus driver. Mr. Williams liked the job and he would like to get another job as a school bus driver.

Stout's Bus Service, Inc. terminated the petitioner (R-8) after it was informed of his disqualification (R-10). On behalf of the petitioner, the company submitted a letter stating that during the few months he worked for the company, it found him to be a punctual, courteous and conscience employee, who was very good with the students (R-4).

Since December 1996, Mr. Williams has been employed as a counselor by the Bo Robinson Education and Training Center (R-19). This is a private facility for drug rehabilitation and his job primarily relates to safety and security. Mr. Williams describes his job duties as being similar to those of a correction officer.

Mr. Williams admitted that he used drugs for a short period after his release from prison and that he started attending a rehabilitation program. Mr. Williams did not complete the program and he has not used illegal drugs since 1991. He attributes his "cure" to God. Mr. Williams started to go to church to pray, and he no longer has any desire to use drugs. Mr. Williams stated that recovering drug addicts have to be careful since they can be tempted to resume taking drugs but since he has been "delivered" from drugs, he can and does work with addicts without experiencing any desire to use drugs.

Mr. Williams is an assistant to the pastor of the Trenton Church of Christ of the Apostolic Faith, Inc. and is a preacher at the church. He also sings in the church choir, is the church's radio/electronic technician, oversees the church's weekly radio broadcast, and is the president of the young people's group.

According to Mr. Williams, he now tries to help others and to encourage addicts to stop using drugs.

Elder Corneluis Morrow, the pastor of the Trenton Church of Christ of the Apostolic Faith, testified and submitted a letter (R-6), on behalf of the petitioner. Elder Morrow has been the pastor of the church for 15 years and he meet the petitioner while he was using drugs. Elder Morrow got to know Mr. Williams better after he started attending church and he stated that the Lord saved Mr. Williams by helping him overcome his drug addiction. Elder Morrow stated that Mr. Williams is very active in church activities, that he is now a good person and that he no longer uses drugs.

In addition, a number of people active in the church submitted letters attesting to Mr. William's good character and honesty (R-5, R-16, R-17, R-18), including his wife (R-17), and his sister-in-law (R-16).

CONCLUSION OF LAW

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e), a person with a criminal record will not be disqualified from being a school bus driver if said person shows clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. This section sets forth a number of factors to be considered in determining whether the person has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation. These factors are:

(1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

(4) The date of the offense;

(5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;

(6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.

Having reviewed the testimony and the documents admitted into evidence, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation.

Although Mr. Williams has several dug convictions, his criminal activity occurred more than six years ago, and he has had no arrests or convictions since then. All of his convictions occurred while Mr. Williams was using drugs and associating with people who also used drugs. Mr. Williams has successfully changed his life style and he no longer uses drugs. Since his convictions, the petitioner has married, financially supports his family, and is now a responsible member of his church and community.

Therefore, I ORDER that the petitioner is not disqualified from employment as a school bus driver.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE DISQUALI-	:
FICATION FROM SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
EMPLOYMENT OF B.D.W.	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner adopts the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the within petitioner has demonstrated rehabilitation in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1 and is, therefore, qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws. * It is observed that in reaching this decision, the Commissioner had no cause to question the ALJ's assessment of petitioner's credibility, as such assessment is not belied by the record. Moreover, it was the ALJ who had the opportunity to hear petitioner's sworn testimony and to observe his demeanor, so that she was in the optimum position to make such determination.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision as the final decision in this matter. Petitioner is deemed qualified for school employment as a school bus driver.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* In affirming the ALJ's decision, the Commissioner is cognizant that petitioner's last disqualifying offense occurred ten years ago.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board sought a determination as to whether Respondent Szillery and her child, S.W., were in a homeless state commencing with the school year 1994-95 until the present. Petitioner sought reimbursement for tuition for S.W.'s education.

ALJ concluded that Respondent Szillery was homeless during November and December 1994 following her loss of employment and forced eviction. However, in light of evidence and testimony of the Board's investigator, the ALJ concluded that respondent and her child were not homeless in 1995 until the present and that they were resident and domiciled in Scotch Plains while S.W. attended Madison public schools. ALJ ordered tuition for November and December 1994 be returned to respondent, subject, however, to an offset of sums owed by respondent to the Board. ALJ ordered respondent to pay tuition for her son at the nonresidential tuition rate commencing with January 1, 1995 until such time as S.W. may withdraw or is removed as a Madison public school student, subject to an offset of sums owed by the Board to respondent. ALJ ordered S.W. removed from Madison public schools as a public school student. It is noted that by previous order the ALJ ordered the record sealed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination of the ALJ as his own.

BEFORE SEBASTIAN GAETA, JR., ALJ:

STATEMENT OF CASE

Petitioner seeks a determination as to whether the respondent, Dr. Eva Szillery and her child, S.W., were in a homeless state commencing with the school year 1994-1995 until the present and reimbursement of tuition for S.W.'s education in the Madison School District.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

By letter dated June 16, 1996, (P-6), respondent, Dr. Sharon I.R. Clover, Morris County Superintendent of Schools, (County Superintendent), advised Dr. Lawrence S. Feinsod, Superintendent of Schools of the Madison Borough School District, that she had received a request for mediation of a dispute between the petitioner, Board of Education of the Borough of Madison (Board), and respondent, Dr. Eva Szillery (Dr. Szillery), regarding whether Dr. Szillery was homeless during the 1994-95 school year and whether the Board should be required to reimburse her for two (2) months of non-resident tuition which was paid by her for the enrollment of her son, S.W., in the Madison School District.

The County Superintendent issued her determination in a letter dated July 6, 1995, (P-7). The decision stated, in part, as follows:

> Based on the eviction notice of April 15, 1994 and her sworn statement outlining all of the locations where the family stayed during the 1994-95 school year, I have concluded that Dr. Szillery was homeless during the time period for which she paid tuition (November and December, 1994). Therefore, Dr. Szillery's son, S.W., was entitled to be enrolled in the Madison School district without charge, so the tow months of tuition should be returned.
> I have further advised Dr. Szillery, through her attorney, that residency must be established prior to the beginning of the 1995-96 school year, so that a determination can be made as to the school district her son will attend. Madison has made a reasonable accommodation for the entire 1994-95 school year but cannot be expected to continue that arrangement. . .

On or about August 8, 1995, the Board filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking a reversal of the portions of the County Superintendent's decision which determined that Dr. Szillery was homeless during the 1994-95 school year and that S. W. was entitled to attend the Madison Public Schools without the payment of tuition. The Board's petitioner also sought an order that Dr. Szillery's pay tuition in the amount of $3,696 for the balance of the 1994-95 school year (January through June, 1995).

Following a telephone conference on February 26, 196 with the parties, the Administrative Law Judge issued a Prehearing Order on March 11, 1996.

By Order of April 1996, leave was granted for the Board to submit its Amended Petition, which provided for a Third Count challenging Dr. Szillery's continuing claim that she was homeless and also sought tuition from Dr. Szillery for S.W.'s attendance in the Madison Public Schools during the 1995-96 school years and any subsequent school years.[1] On May 30, 1996, the Board withdrew paragraph 8 of the Third Count of the Amended Petition.

Upon the application by the Board, on July 15, 1996 a hearing was held to compel Dr. Szillery to answer certain interrogatories, provide more specific answers to certain interrogatories and provide copies of documents requested by the Board. The Order to Compel Discovery, issued July 26, 1996, which incorporated the ruling issued from the bench, set forth in detail the responses and documents required of Dr. Szillery. That Order stated that failure to comply would result in sanctions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.5, including: (1) suppression of defenses to petitioner's claim; (2) exclusion of

[1] Counsel for the respondent, County Superintendent, in her March 29, 1996 letter advised that there was no objection to petitioner's motion to file an amended petition, but added a caveat:

> If the court finds that Dr. Clover's decision that Dr. Eva Szillery was homeless was incorrect, so that Dr. Szillery must pay tuition to Madison for her child, Dr. Clover has no objection to the court then finding that Dr. Szillery in addition owes tuition for the 1995-96 school year. If, however, the Court determines that Dr. Clover was correct that Dr. Szillery was homeless at the time she made her decision, then the Board is not entitled to tuition for the 1995-96 school year. The Board cannot seek in the first instance a determination from this court that at some time after Dr. Clover's decision Dr. Szillery was whether she is no longer homeless as defined by law must be addressed initially by Dr. Clover, and not by this Court.
>
> The issue on appeal in this matter is whether Dr. Clover's determination of July 1995 was correct. Should the Board wish a further determination regarding Dr. Szillery's status and whether it has changed since July 1995, Dr. Clover is willing to review any documents provided to her on the question.

In her August 29, 1996 letter, the County Superintendent advised counsel for the Madison Board of Education:

> I am in receipt of the Madison Board of Education's request for me to resolve a homeless dispute between Dr. Eva. Szillery and the Board. I have been advised by legal counsel that because of pending litigation on this same matter, which the Board initiated, I cannot make a determination on a new request at this time. (P-13)

Whatever reservation may have been intended by the County Superintendent's caveat to its acquiescence in the amended petition will not be directly affected by this Initial Decision, which is a recommended decision to the Commissioner of Education.

evidence by Dr. Szillery; (3) imposition of costs or reasonable expenses; and (4) other case-related action.

Dr. Szillery appealed that Order to the Commissioner of Education, who declined to grant the request for interlocutory review, finding that the request was untimely.

Dr. Szillery did not comply with that discovery order, but subsequently filed a motion "requesting confidentiality" of certain information. An Order was issued on October 23, 1996, which granted Dr. Szillery's request, in part, and directed her to comply with the discovery order by November 6, 1996.

Dr. Szillery did not comply with the discovery order and, upon application by the Board on November 20, 1996, the Administrative Law Judge issued an Order Imposing Sanctions. The sanctions imposed by Order were:

1. Any defenses or claims by respondent, Dr. Eva Szillery, shall be suppressed.

2. Any evidence on behalf of respondent, Dr. Eva Szillery, shall be excluded.

Dr. Szillery's request for interlocutory review was accepted by the Commissioner on December 12, 1996 and, on December 20, 1996, the Commission affirmed the order imposing sanctions.

Hearings on the merits concluded on December 6, 1996. The parties were granted leave to file written posthearing submissions.

Dr. Szillery's request, dated January 4, 1997, that additional hearings be scheduled for her to call additional witnesses to testify was denied on the basis that the order imposing sanctions precluded the presentation of evidence on her behalf.

Following requests by an individual, not directly associated with this matter, for transcripts of the proceedings and other related information, on February 14, 1997, the Administrative Law Judge, sua sponte, issued an Order Sealing the Record.

The time within which this Initial Decision was to be filed was extended by an Order of Extension.

FACTS

In September 1993, Dr. Szillery and her son, S.W., were domiciled in Madison where S.W. was enrolled in public school as a second grade pupil.

During April 1994, Dr. Szillery and S.W. were evicted from their residence by Order of the Morris County Superior Court. S.W. continued as a Madison School student. In September 1994, Dr. Lawrence Feinsod the Superintendent of Schools for the Madison Public School District (Madison Superintendent) was informed that S.W. no longer resided within Madison.

After discussing this with Dr. Szillery, the Madison Superintendent granted permission for S.W. to continue in the Madison public schools as a tuition student for the remainder of the 1994-95 school year, at a prorated tuition of $4,928 or eight monthly payments of $616. Dr. Szillery paid $664 in November 1994. In December, she paid $571 tuition which reflected the November 1994 overpayment of $45.

Additional tuition payments were not received and the Board advised Dr. Szillery by its February 10, 1995 letter that unless payment for January was received by February 27, 1995, S.W. would not be permitted to continue to attend school. (P-4)

Letters dated February 16, 1995 and February 17, 1995 were sent to Dr. Szillery by an attorney on behalf of the Board demanding payment of the January and February tuition payments and advising that unless paid immediately educational services for S.W. would be discontinued effective February 27, 1997. (P-4, P-5).

The Madison Superintendent received a March 8, 1995 letter from an attorney representing Dr. Szillery in a wrongful discharge and discrimination matter. The attorney stated that Dr. Szillery's discharge left her unable to pay her rent in Madison, and she became homeless. The attorney stated that since the eviction, Dr. Szillery and her children were in temporary housing situations and were presently temporarily in Scotch Plains, but had never changed their domicile from Madison (J-3).

No further tuition was paid and the dispute continued with exchanges of correspondence including affidavits by Dr. Szillery and other supporting documents.

Dr. Szillery also contended that her family was homeless at the time that she paid tuition in November and December 1995 and was, therefore, entitled to reimbursement.

On June 14, 1995, Dr. Szillery left a telephone message with the office of the County Superintendent requesting that she mediate the tuition payment dispute (J-22).

The County Superintendent notified the Superintendent of Schools of the request to mediate Dr. Szillery's request that she be reimbursed for the tuition payments for November and December 1994. The County Superintendent requested that she be provided information documenting the reason it was determined that Dr. Szillery was not homeless in November and December 1994, when she paid tuition.

The Board responded through its attorney who enumerated reasons why the Board believed that Dr. Szillery was not homeless. (J-6) Upon review of the matters submitted on behalf of Dr. Szillery and the Board, on July 6, 1995, the County Superintendent advised the Madison Superintendent that she found for Dr. Szillery:

> Based on the eviction notice of April 15, 1994 and her sworn statement outlining all of the locations where the family stayed during the 1994-95 school year, I have concluded that Dr. Szillery was homeless during the time period for which she paid tuition (November and December, 1994). Therefore, Dr. Szillery's son, [S.W.], was entitled to be enrolled in the Madison School District without charge, so the two months of tuition should be returned.
> I have advised Dr. Szillery, through her attorney, that residency must be established prior to the beginning of the 1995-96 school year, so that a determination can be made as to the school district her son will attend. Madison has made a reasonable accommodation for the entire 1994-95 school year but cannot be expected to continue that arrangement. As always, I appreciate your cooperation and look forward to the resolution of this difficult situation. (P-7).

The Board filed the initial petition in this matter before the Commissioner and advised Dr. Szillery that S.W. could continue in the Madison public school system, but that, should it be determined that her family was not homeless, she would be expected to pay tuition for the 1995-1996 school year, as well as tuition that she may owe for the 1994-1995 school year . (P-8).

SANCTIONS

Remedies for failure to comply with discovery requirements should be proportionate to the nature and breadth of the failure. Brown v. Mortimer, 100 N.J. Super. 395 (App. Div. 1968).

When a party, who refused to comply, is specifically ordered to answer interrogatories more fully, but refuses to do so, severe sanctions, including dismissal with prejudice, may be appropriate. See, Zimmerman v. United Service Auto., 260 N.J. Super. 368 (App. Div. 1992).

The sanctions imposed against Dr. Szillery, were that any defenses or claims would be suppressed and that she could not introduce evidence. Notwithstanding those sanctions, Dr. Szillery was permitted to participate in the hearing and to cross examine witnesses called by the other parties. Additionally, she was permitted to submit argument by her written summation, which has been considered and is part of the record.

Inasmuch as the information sought in discovery, which Dr. Szillery refused to produce, would be expected to represent or result in evidence relevant to the issue of homelessness, it is appropriate for the Administrative Law Judge to draw adverse inferences against Dr. Szillery in those respects. Interchemical Corp. v. Uncas Printing & Finishing Co., 39 N.J. Super. 318, 328 (App. Div. 1956).

EVIDENCE PRESENTED

Dr. Szillery is a college level instructor who received her doctoral degree from Eotvos Lorand University, Budapest, Hungary. She has taught at the County College of Morris, Rutgers University and other universities and colleges outside of New Jersey.

It was shown that for 1994 she received from the County College of Morris $3,800 and $4,231 in child support, a total of $8,575.88. For 1995 she received $27,320.24 from Rutgers University and $5,507.95 in child support, a total of $32,828.19. During 1996, Rutgers University paid her $23.659.05 through August 23, 1996 and child support through October 31, 1996 was $4,136.30, a total of $27,795.35.

Robert Calcagno, who described himself as an investigator,[2] testified that on November 21, 1996 he conducted a surveillance of Dr. Szillery and S.W. He was at the Central Avenue School attended by S.W. When school let out for the day he observed him enter a silver Datsun driven by Dr. Szillery who proceeded to a local supermarket which she and S.W. entered. They returned to the Datsun with a full bag of groceries and drove to a blue ranch style house in Scotch Plains where Dr. Szillery pulled into the driveway and then suddenly backed out forcing him to back down an unfinished one lane road. After they left he knocked on the door of the house with the driveway she had pulled into. The door was locked and no one answered. There were cut out pictures and decorations with autumn themes. Dr. Szillery and S.W. arrived back about 6:30 p.m. and, after unlocking the rear door, brought the bag of groceries inside. Lights went on in the house. Between then and 8:00 p.m., when he ended the surveillance, no one else entered.

[2] Following the hearing Dr. Szillery produced a January 7, 1997 letter from the New Jersey State Police stating that its Private Detective Unit did not show that private detective licenses had been issued to Robert Calcagno or to Michael Salzbach whose report of his surveillance of June 19, 1996 was marked as Exhibit P-21 for identification, but which was not accepted into evidence upon the objection of Dr. Szillery. Mr. Calcagno was cross-examined by Dr. Szillery.

When Dr. Szillery backed up she noticed him and they did speak. He told her he was looking for another family. He could not recall the number on the house.

Other nearby buildings were boarded up, the one Dr. Szillery and S.W. entered appeared to be lived in.

The Board introduced other evidence tending to show that the Scotch Plains address was the residence of Dr. Szillery and S.W. The 1996-1997 Bell Atlantic White Pages contain a listing at that address in the name of Dr. Szillery's daughter, a student at Drew University (P-15). Records provided by Bell Atlantic reflect that there was continuous service since May 1994 (P-16). That same number is recorded as S.W.'s emergency number on cards on file at the Central Avenue School (P-10).

Public Service Electric & Gas Company records reflect service in the name of Eva Szilleiy (sic) at that address since May 17, 1994 (P-17). Elizabethtown Water Company records show regular consumption of water at that address. (P-18).

DISCUSSION

Action by Dr. I. R. Clover, Morris County Superintendent of Schools

When the County Superintendent was called upon to resolve the homelessness of S.W. she had to determine whether S.W. was homeless as defined by N.J.A.C. 6:3-8.3. In particular, Dr. Szillery relied upon the condition of homelessness described by N.J.A.C. 6:3-8.3 that a pupil is homeless if he or she is the child of a homeless family which is out of necessity living with relatives or friends.

The County Superintendent provided opportunity for the Board and Dr. Szillery to provide information relevant to the claimed homelessness.

Included in the information submitted was the loss of employment by Dr. Szillery, the eviction for failure to pay rent and an affidavit by Dr. Szillery listing the several locations she and S.W. stayed for the year following their eviction.

The County Superintendent concluded that Dr. Szillery was homeless during November and December 1994 when she paid tuition for S.W. and that Dr. Szillery was entitled to return of the tuition paid by her.

Although there was other evidence introduced in these proceedings which was not available to the County Superintendent, she gave full opportunity to the Board to submit information contrary to Dr. Szillery's claim of homelessness (P-6). Inasmuch as the school district directly concerned with the issue of homelessness was solicited to provide information why it believed that Dr. Szillery was not homeless in November and December 1994, the Board's suggestion that the County Superintendent had the independent obligation to investigate the veracity of the matters presented is rejected.

Certainly the loss of employment and the following forced eviction gave strong credence to the claim of homelessness asserted by Dr. Szillery.

The decision of the County Superintendent was not arbitrary, capricious, nor unreasonable. That decision relating to the state of homelessness during November and December 1994 shall be affirmed.

1995 TO THE PRESENT

Although the Board was denied discovery of many documents in the possession or under the control of Dr. Szillery, it produced substantial evidence proving that Dr. Szillery and S.W. were living in a separate residence and that their homelessness had ended at least by May 1994.

Despite the attempted impeachment of the testimony of investigator Calcagno, his testimony that Dr. Szillery and S.W. appeared to be in residence at the house in Scotch Plains is bolstered by independent evidence which also shows that the house has been in continual use as a residence since late Spring 1994.

Dr. Szillery is a highly educated college instructor with several published articles and professional works.

While the total income for the years in question may have been relatively modest, it was certainly sufficient to maintain the nature of the premises described by Mr. Calcagno.

Electric service in the name of Dr. Szillery was provided by Public Service Electric and Gas to the Scotch Plains address. Several hundred dollars of services were provided and paid for on a regular basis. A telephone number in the name of Dr. Szillery's daughter who attends a New Jersey college, is for that same address.

The evidence presented shows that Dr. Eva Szillery and S.W. were not homeless in 1995 until the present and that they were resident and domiciled in Scotch Plains while S.W. attended Madison Public Schools.

CONCLUSION

From January 1, 1995 until the present, S.W., the son of Dr. Eva Szillery, was not entitled to a public education in the Madison School District and that Dr. Eva Szillery, mother of S.W., is responsible for tuition at the non-resident rate for the Madison School District.

ORDERS

It is ORDERED that the decision of Dr. Sharon I. R. Clover, Morris County Superintendent of Schools, that for the months of November and December 1994, Dr. Szillery was homeless and that tuition paid by her for her son should be returned is and shall be AFFIRMED.

It is ORDERED that the Board of Education of the Borough of Madison shall pay to Dr. Eva Szillery the amount of tuition paid by her on behalf of her son for November and December 1994, subject, however, to an offset of sums owed by Dr. Eva Szillery to the Board of Education of the Borough of Madison.

It is ORDERED that Dr. Eva Szillery pay to the Board of Education of the Borough of Madison, tuition for her son, S.W., at the non-resident tuition rate, commencing with January 1, 1995 until such time as S.W. may withdraw or is removed as a Madison Public School student, subject, however, to an offset for the sums owed by the Board of Education of the Borough of Madison to Dr. Eva Szillery.

It is ORDERED S.W. be removed from Madison Public School District as a public school student.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions for the Board and Respondent Szillery, and replies thereto, were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.[1]

Respondent Szillery's general contention is that she and her son, S.W., were in 1995, and continue to be, homeless and, therefore, entitled to a free public education in the Board's schools. In that these exceptions generally recast and reiterate arguments raised throughout this litigation and considered by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), they are not summarized in detail herein.

In reply, the Board refutes each of the arguments raised by Respondent Szillery and contends the points raised by her were thoroughly addressed by the ALJ and, thus, the Commissioner should adopt the determination of the ALJ finding that she is not homeless. The [1] Although the Board's reply exceptions were filed on June 30, 1997, more than five days from the date the Commissioner received Respondent Szillery's exceptions, such replies were timely filed in that Respondent Szillery sent them via first class mail to the Board while she hand-delivered them to the Commissioner. Further, Respondent Szillery provided no proof that they were faxed or otherwise delivered to the Board.

Board also excepts to the ALJ's finding that Respondent Szillery was homeless for the period encompassing November and December 1994, asserting that the ALJ's ruling is inconsistent with his finding at page 11 of the initial decision that the Board proved that Respondent Szillery and S.W. were not homeless as of May 1994. Thus, the Board seeks an order that her nonresidential tuition obligation extend from November 1994 through the 1996-97 school year.

Respondent Clover notes that the only issue before the ALJ concerning the County Superintendent was whether her decision regarding the determination of Respondent Szillery's homelessness during November 1994 and December 1994 and reimbursement of tuition for that time was arbitrary and capricious, and urges affirmance of the initial decision on that point. She further reiterates that this affirmation should not, in any way, lead the Commissioner to find that Dr. Szillery was homeless for the period from November 1994 through July 1995, in that the "reasonable accommodation" made by the school district is not tantamount to a determination of homelessness for the entire year.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ for the reasons expressed therein. The Commissioner is satisfied that the ALJ fully considered and correctly rejected the claims presented in Respondent Szillery's exceptions, including her assertions that she was homeless in 1995 until the present and that S.W. is entitled to a free public education in the Board's schools. The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's determination that Respondent Szillery was properly deemed homeless by the County Superintendent in November and December 1994, and that no tuition should be charged for this period.

Accordingly, the Commissioner concurs with the decision of the ALJ and orders Respondent Szillery to pay the Board tuition for S.W. at the nonresidential tuition rate, commencing January 1, 1995, until such time as S.W. may withdraw or is removed from the Board's schools, subject to offset by the amounts paid by Respondent Szillery for S.W.'s attendance during November and December 1994, as directed by the ALJ.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, tenured teachers and attendance officers, challenged Board's decision to freeze their salaries in order to recoup monies allegedly overpaid to them. Petitioners contended such action constituted a withholding of their increments.

Citing Cerato, the ALJ concluded that petitioners were not deprived of any rights under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law (N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and 18A:6-10) by freezing their salaries until the overpayments were recouped. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Summary decision was entered in favor of the Board.

Matthew J. Michaelis, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: May 9, 1997 Decided: June 3, 1997

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

On November 26, 1996, petitioners filed a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education alleging that respondent, the Board of Education of the City of Passaic (Board), wrongfully withheld their annual increments and that this constituted a reduction in compensation in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. On December 19, 1996, the Board filed its answer. On January 10, 1997, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A telephone prehearing conference was held with the parties on April 17, 1997. At this time, consideration was given to the possibility that this matter could be disposed of on the papers. At a second telephone conference, held on April 23, 1997, the parties agreed that respondent would move for summary decision because the material facts in this matter are not in dispute. Respondent's motion was received on April 25, 1997, and the record closed on May 9, 1997, when petitioners' response was received.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

The following material facts are not in dispute:

1. Petitioners Hammer, Howe, Johnson, Kleinman, Psomas, Shanley, Simakowicz, Sotolongo and Wurst are all tenured teachers in the district. Toledo and Troche are tenured school attendance officers in the district.

2. Respondent inadvertently paid the petitioners' salaries for the 1995-1996 contract year in excess of those salaries specified in the salary schedules which are part of the employment agreement.

3. In or about the month of August 1996 and prior to the commencement of the 1996-1997 contract year, the Board adopted a resolution freezing the inadvertently inflated salaries paid to petitioners during the 1995-1996 contract year which were in excess of those salaries specified in the salary schedules of the employment agreement commencing in the 1996-1997 contract year.

4. The relevant employment contract covering this matter became effective on September 1, 1994, and expires on August 31, 1997.

5. Salaries at the incorrect higher level have been and will continue to be frozen at this level until the Board recoups the overpayments in salaries it erroneously made to petitioners.

6. The intent of the respondent's action is to recoup the overpayments by freezing petitioners' salaries at the present level, not to withhold increments or reduce salaries for cause.

7. When the overpayments have been recouped, each petitioner will be restored to his or her appropriate place on the salary schedule so that no actual loss of salary or benefits will result.

THE RELEVANT STATUTES

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, no tenured teacher or other tenured employee of a school district shall be "dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecoming such a teaching staff member or other just cause," and then only in the manner prescribed by statute. See also N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 provides, in relevant part:

> No person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation,
>
> (a) if he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency in the public school system of the state, . . .
>
> except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after a hearing held pursuant to this subarticle, by the commissioner, or a person appointed by him to act in his behalf, after a written charge or charges, of the cause or causes of complaint, shall have been preferred against such person, signed by the person or persons making the same, who > may or may not be a member or members of a board of education, and filed and proceeded upon as in this subarticle provided.

RESPONDENT'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY DECISION

The Board argues that, as a matter of law, the method which it employed to recoup the inadvertent salary overpayments made to the petitioners was the correct one to be applied and did not violate any of their statutory tenure rights. Any question of violation of contractual rights is not within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education and may not be pursued in this forum.

Respondent relies upon Cerato v. Board of Education of the City of Newark, 94 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 248. I FIND that the facts in Cerato are substantially similar to the facts in the present case.

The Board of Education of the City of Newark withheld Cerato's salary and increment adjustments for the 1992-1993 school year because it had inadvertently neglected to withhold his increment for the 1991-1992 year for reasons of discipline. Cerato argued that the Board's action violated his tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and his rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 because it imposed an impermissible reduction in his compensation. The administrative law judge reached the following conclusions: (1) the freezing of Cerato's salary until the recoupment was complete did not constitute an impermissible reduction in compensation under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, nor did it contravene N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14; (2) Cerato had demonstrated no right, vested or equitable, to salary mistakenly overpaid to him; and (3) the Board measures to recoup the overpayment are part of its obligation to guard public funds. Summary decision was granted in favor of the Board.

The commissioner affirmed the decision of the administrative law judge, stating that the Board did not violate the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 by freezing Cerato's salary until the recoupment was complete:

> a board's determination to freeze a teacher's salary until it recoups an inadvertent ministerial overpayment does not constitute an unlawful reduction in compensation as envisioned by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. The latter case makes plain that " the appropriate step for a board to take when the issue of erroneous salary level arises is to hold the salary level in place, not to reduce it through deductions."
>
> . . . [N]o deductions of the overpayment to petitioner were ever undertaken. Rather, the Board herein froze petitioners' salary . . . .
>
> [94 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) at 250 (citations omitted).]

The State Board affirmed the decision without opinion at 94 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 422.

Petitioners attempt to distinguish Cerato from the present matter by arguing that they, unlike Cerato, immediately sought to correct what they perceived to be a mistake in their salaries. They also argue that the Board did not recoup their overpayments by following the procedures that would apply in the case of disciplinary withholding of increments. I FIND that there is no merit to these arguments: the Board is not questioning the timeliness of petitioners' appeal for relief, nor are the recoupments to be equated to disciplinary proceedings. Respondent is simply recovering public money that was inadvertently paid to petitioners which they were not entitled to receive.

I CONCLUDE that the holding in Cerato is determinative of the outcome of this proceeding. I CONCLUDE that petitioners in the present case were not deprived of any rights under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, by freezing their salaries until the overpayments are recouped. I therefore CONCLUDE that petitioners are entitled to no relief and that respondent is entitled to summary decision dismissing petitioners' appeal as a matter of law.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that summary decision is GRANTED to respondent and the petition herein is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF PASSAIC, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioners in conformance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. No replies were filed by the Respondent Board of Education.

Petitioners' exceptions rely on arguments expressed before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) at hearing, arguing that the Board should not be allowed to freeze the salaries of petitioners until such time as it recoups the overpayments it made to petitioners. Petitioners except to the ALJ's reliance on the decision entered in Cerato, supra, averring it is completely distinguishable from the present situation in that therein petitioner had salary increments withheld for unbecoming conduct, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. The present petitioners contend that they did not silently accept the Board's overpayments but attempted to correct the mistake and should not now be penalized. Further, petitioners note there is no evidence to substantiate that they did anything which would warrant having their increments withheld for inefficiency or other good cause pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. Thus, petitioners urge the Commissioner to find that Cerato does not dictate that a similar decision be reached in this matter.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that respondent is entitled to summary judgment. There is ample support in case law to sustain the finding that where a board has erroneously overpaid a tenured staff member, it may recoup such overpayments by freezing the staff member's salary without charging such staff member with inefficiency or other just cause, or acting to withhold an increment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. Therefore, the Commissioner finds that the ALJ correctly characterized the intent of Cerato, supra, and related case law, in determining that the Board acted appropriately herein. See also Markot v. East Brunswick Board of Education, 1989 S.L.D. 3043, aff'd New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division, December 24, 1990, A-345-89-T5.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL, hereby entering summary judgment in favor of the Board and dismissing the Petition of Appeal.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board Little Ferry sought Commissioner's declaration that the April 30, 1997 organizational meeting of Respondent Board Ridgefield Park was null and void in that Little Ferry's representative member to this Board, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, was improperly precluded from voting on organizational issues at this meeting, including election of Board officers. Petitioner requested Commissioner to direct a new reorganization; to direct Ridgefield Park to include the vote of the sending district member with regard to organizational issues; and to enjoin Ridgefield Park from excluding the sending district member from voting on any other disputed matter without the consent of the Commissioner.

Having reviewed the parties' arguments and in light of the interpretative clarification of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 provided by the May 30, 1997 decision of the Commissioner entitled Board of Education of the Borough of Lincoln Park, Morris County v. Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, Morris County, Joy Northrop DeVincenzi, and Walter Angilly, the Commissioner concluded that Little Ferry's representative to the Ridgefield Park Board, by virtue of her statutorily granted membership on such Board, was entitled to vote in the election of Board officers and other procedural matters attendant to the orderly conduct of Board operations. Thus, Ridgefield Park's impermissible exclusion of its sending district representative Board member from the vote for Board officers at its April 30, 1997 reorganization necessitated a voiding of such reorganization. Commissioner declared the reorganization void and directed the Board to reorganize consistent with his dictates and to confirm the completion of such with the County Superintendent. Citing Pijeaux and other relevant cases, the Commissioner concluded that all subsequent actions of the Board and its de facto officers were accomplished within the scope of their authority and, as such, there was no basis upon which to invalidate such actions.

For Respondent, Fogarty & Hara (Rodney T. Hara Esq.)

This matter comes before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal and a Motion for Emergent Relief filed by petitioner, Little Ferry Board of Education (hereinafter "Little Ferry"), on May 13, 1997. Little Ferry requests the Commissioner to declare the April 30, 1997 organizational meeting of respondent, Ridgefield Park Board of Education (hereinafter "Ridgefield Park"), null and void in that Little Ferry's representative member to this Board, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, was improperly precluded from voting on organizational issues at this meeting, including the election of Board officers. It asks that the Commissioner, therefore, direct a new reorganization; that Ridgefield Park be directed to include the vote of the sending district member with regard to organizational issues; and that Ridgefield Park, further, be enjoined from excluding the sending district member from voting on any other disputed matter without the consent of the Commissioner. Ridgefield Park filed its Answer to the Petition and Emergent Relief Motion on May 27, 1997. By letter dated May 28, 1997, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes advised the parties that, upon review of the submitted papers in this matter, it appeared that a decision of the type envisioned in this case was not amenable to emergent relief and a subsequent determination on the merits but, rather, was a matter of first impression on an issue of law which would be more appropriately addressed by an expedited determination on the merits. As such, the parties were accorded 10 days from their receipt of the director's letter to submit any additional arguments supporting their respective positions on the merits of this case, and 5 days from their receipt of any submission of their adversary to file replies to such submission. By letter filed June 11, 1997, Respondent Ridgefield Park advised that it would rely on the arguments advanced in its previously submitted brief in opposition to petitioner's application for emergent relief, to support its position on the merits of the within matter. Upon expiration of the allotted time period for the filing of additional arguments, the record in this matter closed on June 12, 1997.[1]

BACKGROUND

The within parties are engaged in a sending/receiving relationship, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8, whereby Little Ferry sends its high school students, grades 9 through 12 to Ridgefield Park's High School. Subsequent to the January 1995 enactment of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, which provides that a sending district whose students comprise at least 10 percent of the total enrollment of students in the receiving district shall have a representative on the receiving district's board of education, a representative of Little Ferry was sworn in as a member of the [1] It is noted that by letter dated June 17, 1997, Petitioner Little Ferry filed a supplementation to its previously submitted brief in support of its arguments on the merits of this matter. Such submission was, subsequently, opposed by Ridgefield Park as untimely. Given the clear timelines established by the director's May 28, 1997 letter and in view of the fact that at no time during this allotted period did Little Ferry request an extension of time within which to file supplementary materials, its submission dated June 17, 1997 will not be considered herein.

Ridgefield Park Board at that body's 1995 reorganization meeting. The matter at issue herein occurred at the April 30, 1997 organizational meeting of Ridgefield Park where, subsequent to the swearing in of the Little Ferry representative, but prior to commencement of voting, the Board discussed the circumstances giving rise to the Little Ferry representative's right to vote, specifically, whether this individual would be permitted to participate in the election of the president and vice-president of the Board, and it moved to conduct a Board vote on this issue. After seeking advice of Board counsel, the motion was defeated by a vote of 5 to 5, and the Little Ferry representative was, consequently, precluded from voting for Board officers.

POSITION OF THE PARTIES

Little Ferry argues that the exclusion of its representative from the vote for Board officers, who possess "powers and authorities which directly impact and affect the education of Petitioner's students including presiding at meetings, appointment of committees and committee chairmen and other administrative functions which naturally devolve upon said officers," (Petitioner's Letter Memorandum at p. 2) is clearly in contravention of petitioner's statutory Board membership rights and "in violation of previous practice and agreements between the parties." (Petitioner's Petition of Appeal, #6, at p. 2) It posits that although N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 limits specific voting rights of its representative with respect to "issues confronting the board," the clear language of the statute and subsequent positions of the Commissioner dictate that this representative is, in all other respects, a full member of the Board. As such, it maintains that votes regarding procedural and organizational matters of the Board must include the sending district appointee. (Petitioner's Letter Memorandum at p. 2) Moreover, Little Ferry maintains that this position was, heretofore, recognized as a settled and accepted practice between the parties in that its representative member has previously been included and permitted to vote for Ridgefield Park Board officers.

Little Ferry further argues that not only was its representative precluded from voting, but such member was not included in the calculation of voting requirements or quorum in direct violation of a Department of Education directive, dated February 22, 1995, stating that "the requirements for a quorum, as well as other voting requirements, must be amended to reflect the new total membership of the board." (Id. at p. 3, quoting from Petitioner's Exhibit A, Letter of Peter B. Contini, Assistant Commissioner) As such, Little Ferry asserts that even if it were possible to read N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 so narrowly as to support Ridgefield Park's exclusion of the sending district representative from the election of Board officers, "the voting requirements still need to reflect her membership [on] the board." (Id.) Consequently, Little Ferry contends that voiding of the April 30, 1997 organizational meeting elections would still be required.

In reply, Ridgefield Park advances that, notwithstanding Little Ferry's contention that its member representative's right to vote for Board officers is "projected" by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, it fails to advance any statutory language in support of this position. (Ridgefield Park's Reply Brief at p. 3) Rather, Ridgefield Park contends that this statutory provision clearly and concisely sets forth the scope of voting rights conferred upon a sending district representative to a receiving district's board. Specifically, it asserts that this provision, on its face, "provides four specific areas in which a designated sending member may vote:

> a. Tuition to be charged the sending district by the receiving district and the bill lists or contracts for the purchase, operation or maintenance of facilities, equipment and instructional materials to be used in the education of the pupils of the sending district;
> b. New capital construction to be utilized by sending district pupils;

c. Appointment, transfer or removal of teaching staff members providing services to pupils of a sending district, including any teaching staff member who is a member of the receiving district's central administrative staff; and

d. Addition or deletion of curricular and extracurricular programs involving pupils of the sending district. [N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1]" (Id.)

It argues that, pursuant to the canons of statutory construction which require a statute to be interpreted in accordance with its clear, unambiguous language, given that voting for the election of board officers is not a delineated subject matter in the clear, narrow, and specifically detailed list of instances where a sending district representative is entitled to vote, petitioner in this matter was properly excluded from voting. (Id. at p. 4)

Ridgefield Park further maintains that this position is also entirely consistent with the legislative history of the statute in that such "elucidates that the purpose for amending N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 was to clarify the voting rights conferred to representatives of a sending district on receiving district boards of education." (Id.) It posits that because the legislative intent was to avoid confusion with respect to voting rights, "the statute reflects restrictive language that was intended to be narrowly construed." (Id.)

With respect to Little Ferry's assertion that the exclusion of its representative violates past accepted practice, Ridgefield Park, while conceding that the representative was permitted to vote for officers at the Board's 1996 organizational meeting, contends that such action was mistakenly undertaken in violation of law. It advances that when the illegality of this practice was brought to its attention by Board counsel at the 1997 organizational meeting, the Board properly complied with the dictates of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 by defeating the motion which would have permitted the Little Ferry representative to vote. It proposes that a prior incident that is not consistent with the law is not binding upon the Board, citing Naseef v. Cord, Inc., 90 N.J. Super 135, 142 (App. Div.), aff'd, 48 N.J. 317 (1966) as authority for this proposition. (Id. at p. 5)

Ridgefield Park next denies Little Ferry's allegation that it failed to comply with quorum and voting requirements at the reorganization meeting. In this regard it proffers

> [t]he minutes from the 1997 reorganization meeting indicate that the respondent acknowledged petitioner's representative's membership, in that she was sworn in and her name appears on the roll list of members present and her absence was noted on all motions. Accordingly, respondent did calculate petitioner's representative into its total membership thereby rendering it a ten member board at the 1997 reorganization meeting.
>
> (Ridgefield Park's Reply at p. 5)

Finally, Ridgefield Park urges that if Little Ferry's requested relief is granted and the Board's 1997 election of officers and other organizational issues are voided, the Board's ability to carry out its functions will be seriously impeded. (Id. at p. 7)

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Upon review of the parties' arguments advanced in this matter and in light of the interpretative clarification of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 provided by the recently decided matter entitled Board of Education of the Borough of Lincoln Park, Morris County v. Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, Morris County, Joy Northrop DeVincenzi, and Walter Angilly, decided by the Commissioner May 30, 1997, I conclude, for the reasons outlined below, that Little Ferry's representative to the Ridgefield Park Board, by virtue of her statutorily granted membership on such Board, was entitled to vote in the election of Board officers and other procedural matters attendant to the orderly conduct of Board operations.

It is observed that Ridgefield Park effectively argues, as did the respondent board in Lincoln Park, supra, that the rights of board membership of the sending district representative are controlled by that individual's statutory limitations on voting. I, again, reject this interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 as unduly restrictive and find that such a circumscription of the representative's board membership rights cannot be reasonably inferred from the plain language of the statute nor is it supported by the legislative history and expressed intent of this provision. (For a comprehensive discussion of the legislative history and intent of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 see Lincoln Park, at pp. 9-17.) As was elucidated in Lincoln Park, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 addresses two distinct subjects, it 1) grants the sending district entitlement to membership on the receiving district's board of education as a representative of the sending district, and it 2) designates those matters before the board (emphasis added) upon which the representative is eligible to vote. I find that this recognition of the duality of the statute's purpose is key to the understanding and correct application of its directives. Consistent with this finding, it is undeniable that, notwithstanding that the representative of a sending district has limited voting rights on substantive matters which arise before the board, in all other respects such representative, by virtue of the statutory entitlement to a seat on the receiving district board, is empowered to function as a full member of the board. As determined in Lincoln Park, these membership rights include entitlement to copies of all information, documents and communications when distributed to other board members, even though these items are in areas falling outside this individual's voting eligibility, along with full deliberative and participatory rights on the merits of extra-statutory matters before the board.

Consonant with the interpretative framework established in Lincoln Park, I find and conclude that eligibility for full participation, including voting rights, in those procedural and organizational matters necessary to ensure the effective operation of the board itself also inures to the sending district representative by virtue of that individual's board membership. Again, subsequent statutory restrictions governing the voting rights of the representative on substantive issues arising before the board cannot be superimposed on the separately granted membership rights, thereby depriving this individual of full and effective participation as a board member. As such, Ridgefield Park's impermissible exclusion of its sending district representative Board member from the vote for Board officers at its April 30, 1997 organizational meeting necessitates a voiding of such reorganization. Therefore, Ridgefield Park will be required to reorganize in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:10-3 and N.J.S.A. 18A:15-1, recognizing the full participatory rights of all of its members.[2] [3]

The Commissioner notes, however, that all other Board business conducted at the April 30, 1997 organizational meeting, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:10-5, as well as that conducted at subsequent meetings, will be unaffected by the within determination, as disturbing these actions would be contrary to long-established law in this area. In the conducting of such business, the individuals identified as Board President and Vice-President performed as "de facto" Board officers in that "they held office under color of a known election or appointment and their ineligibility was unknown to the public at the time [they acted]." (Maxine J. Pijeaux v. Board of Education of the City of Orange, Essex County, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 345, 346) As such,

> [It]s members had certainly a color of title, and their actual incumbency was complete....Under these circumstances the acts of > the board, in which third persons are interested, cannot be impugned on the ground that the title of the members is defective. (Pijeaux, at 346, quoting Kimball v. Hendee, 57 N.J.L. 307, 309 (S. Ct. 1894))

[2] Despite the conclusion mandated in this matter, the Commissioner is persuaded that the actions of Ridgefield Park herein are not attributable to bad faith or ill will but, rather, were taken in a good faith effort to satisfy what appeared to be the dictates of a heretofore uninterpreted statutory provision.

[3] Given the within determination of the Commissioner, it was unnecessary to reach the parties' arguments with respect to voting or quorum requirements at the April 30, 1997 organizational meeting.

(Also see Lesley Monsees et al. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Bloomingdale, and Theodore Lovell, 1982 S.L.D. 1409; Claire M. Egan and Basil H. Blair v. Joseph G. Brody et al., 1970 S.L.D. 153.) The Commissioner, thus, concludes that all subsequent actions of the Board and its de facto officers were accomplished within the scope of their authority and, as such, there is no basis upon which to invalidate such actions.

Accordingly, the April 30, 1997 organizational meeting of Ridgefield Park is hereby declared void. The Board is directed to reorganize, consistent with the dictates expressed herein, within 20 days of the date of this decision, and to confirm the completion of this action with the County Superintendent.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

E.R. filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking reinstatement of minor child, A.K., into a school of the Board of Education of the South Orange and Maplewood School District pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b). Respondent counterclaims for tuition during any period of ineligibility against E.R., who is A.K.'s cousin, and against L.K., who is A.K.'s father. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on December 8, 1995 for determination as a contested case.

Prior to hearing, the parties agreed to an amicable resolution of the matter and submitted the attached Stipulation of Settlement. Having reviewed the record and the settlement terms, I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or the signatures of their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms, and it is FURTHER ORDERED that the proceedings in this matter be concluded.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Record Closed: June 9, 1997

Decided: June 9, 1997

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

This matter involves tenure charges of unbecoming conduct certified by the Board of Education of the Township of Franklin ("Board") against Thomas Hopewell under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -18.1. Hopewell filed a separate suit against the Board challenging the suspension of his salary prior to certification of any tenure charges.

Thomas Hopewell is a tenured teaching staff member employed by the district. On or about September 9, 1996, the Board placed him on involuntary leave of absence without pay. Four months later, on January 8, 1997, the Board made a finding of the existence of probable cause to certify tenure charges which, if true, would be sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary. Basically, the charges allege that Hopewell exhibited inappropriate behavior during the 1995-96 school year which interfered with his ability to perform his teaching duties. As a result of its determination, the Board suspended Hopewell, without pay, effective January 23, 1997. Therefore, Hopewell has not received any salary for the entire 1996-97 school year.

On January 24, 1997, the Board filed its written tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"). Hopewell filed an answer on March 13, 1997. Subsequently, on March 27, 1997, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("'OAL") for determination as a contested case.

Both parties have agreed to a proposed settlement, subject to approval by the Commissioner. In accordance with the decision of the State Board of Education in Cardonick v. Brooklawn Bd. of Educ., 1983 S.L.D. ___ (St. Bd. April 6, 1983), the record of any proposed settlement must include:

> . . . the nature of the charges, circumstances justifying the settlement, consent or authorization by the Board of Education and the teacher to the proposed agreement, the Administrative Law Judge's finding that the teacher entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights, and [a finding] that the agreement is consistent with the public interest.

On May 14, 1997, the OAL held a public hearing on the issue of whether or not the proposed settlement should be accepted. Counsel for both parties set forth on the record the reasons why settlement would be in the public interest. Hopewell testified that he fully understood and voluntarily agreed to the terms of settlement. In addition, the parties have prepared the stipulation of settlement, which is attached and fully incorporated in this decision. The Board passed a resolution approving the settlement terms on May 22, 1997.

Based on my review of the record, I FIND that the proposed settlement is consistent with the public interest for the following reasons:

1. It is anticipated that a hearing in this matter would be lengthy and expensive. Initially, the case was set down for four days of hearing. There are four medical experts plus numerous fact witnesses who would be called to testify. If the hearing takes longer than four days, it would continue into the 1997-98 school year.

2. Medical reports indicate that Hopewell suffers from a debilitating medical condition and is under treatment for that condition.

3. Aside from behavior attributable to his medical condition, Hopewell has a distinguished record of service for eleven years. As recently as 1993-94, he was chosen by a committee, composed of board members, school administrators, colleagues and community representatives, as Teacher of the Year.

4. Under the proposed terms of settlement, Hopewell will resign from his position effective June 1, 1997. In exchange, he will receive a lump-sum payment of $20,000.

5. If the tenure charges are not proven, Hopewell will be entitled to his full annual salary of $43,000. Even if the Board prevails on the tenure charges, it may be still liable to pay back salary from September 1996 though January 1997. Moreover, Hopewell would soon be entitled to resumption of his salary pending the outcome of the tenure hearing.

6. As part of the agreement, Hopewell has acknowledged his understanding that the Commissioner may refer the matter to the State Board of Examiners for whatever action it deems appropriate.

7. Before entering into this agreement, Hopewell fully understood his rights and had an adequate opportunity to consult with legal counsel.

8. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy.

I CONCLUDE that the terms of settlement are in the public interest.

It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms and the proceedings are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This Agreement, made this 14th day of May, 1997, by and between the Board of Education of the Township of Franklin, County of Warren ("Board") and Thomas Hopewell ("Mr. Hopewell").

RECITALS:

A. The Board employs Mr. Hopewell as a tenured elementary school teacher.

B. Mr. Hopewell has been employed as a teacher since the 1985-86 school year.

C. Mr. Hopewell's year end evaluations and observations have been consistently excellent. As recently as the 1993-94 school year Mr. Hopewell was accorded recognition as the Teacher of the Year within the Franklin Township School District.

D. During the past several years Mr. Hopewell has been treated for depression and was hospitalized for a period of two weeks in January of 1995. Since his hospitalization in January of 1995 Mr. Hopewell has been prescribed a series of mood altering medications as well as additional medication to assist him in sleeping.

E. The psychological disorder suffered by Mr. Hopewell and the prescribed medications may have caused Mr. Hopewell to suffer bouts of disorientation, in addition to, sleep related problems.

F. In his teaching staff position during the 1995-96 school year, Mr. Hopewell suffered from periodic losses of control over his demeanor, which resulted in allegations that Mr. Hopewell had engaged in certain conduct unbecoming a teacher.

G. Because of Mr. Hopewell's behavior, the Board, on May 13, 1996, placed Mr. Hopewell on an administrative leave of absence pending further reports from psychiatrists or psychologists regarding his ability to return to work.

H. Based on Mr. Hopewell's behavior during the 1995-96 school year the Chief School Administrator filed Tenure Charges and a Statement of Evidence with the Board Secretary, and the Board, after having considered the Statement of Evidence and Mr. Hopewell's medical condition, certified the Tenure Charges, which alleged unbecoming conduct against Mr. Hopewell, on January 23, 1997.

I. Mr. Hopewell, Board supervisory and administrative personnel and Board of Education members believe the incidents set forth in the Statement of Evidence are a direct result of Mr. Hopewell's documented psychiatric disability.

J. In addition to certifying the charges, the Board further determined that Mr. Hopewell should be suspended without pay pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. Mr. Hopewell has also initiated litigation against the Board challenging the Board's decision not to continue him on full salary prior to the date of the Board's certification of tenure charges against him.

K. Because of (1) Mr. Hopewell's long and unblemished service to the district, (2) Mr. Hopewell's diagnosed medical condition, (3) his need to continue psychotherapy and his need to remain on mood altering medications, and (4) the probability that Mr. Hopewell will not be cleared to return to work to perform his instructional duties in the future because of his diagnosed medical condition, Mr. Hopewell and the Board have negotiated a tentative resolution of the Tenure Charges, which will, in effect, avoid extensive, time consuming and extremely costly litigation that would involve four separate expert medical witnesses.

L. The Board has considered Mr. Hopewell's offer to settle in Executive Session and has approved the settlement.

M. Mr. Hopewell has been advised that the Commissioner of Education, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, is authorized to refer cases contested before him relating to proffered tenure charges to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of one's teaching certificate.

THEREFORE, IN CONSIDERATION OF THE MUTUAL COVENANTS HEREIN CONTAINED, the Board and Mr. Hopewell agree as follows:

1. Mr. Hopewell shall immediately complete an application for an ordinary disability retirement pursuant to the relevant TPAF statutes and regulations, which retirement will be effective June 1, 1997.

2. The Board of Education will fully cooperate with Mr. Hopewell regarding the completion of the application for an ordinary retirement and will attest to the fact that he is permanently and totally disabled from continuing to perform his duties and functions as an elementary school teacher within the District.

3. The Board of Education shall pay Mr. Hopewell the sum of $20,000. (Mr. Hopewell's teaching salary for the 1996-97 school year is approximately $43,000).

4. The Board of Education shall continue to maintain Mr. Hopewell as part of the District's health insurance program during the pendency of his application for the aforementioned ordinary disability retirement.

5. The Board of Education shall prepare a favorable letter of recommendation that may be utilized by Mr. Hopewell if in the future he seeks employment in a non-education related position. This letter will accurately reflect Mr. Hopewell's many achievements as an educator within the Franklin Township School District.

6. The Board and Mr. Hopewell shall exchange General Releases to be prepared by the Board of Education with the only exception to those General Releases being the terms and conditions of the Settlement Agreement.

7. As part of this settlement, Mr. Hopewell shall provide proof from his treating physician that he is legally capable of fully understanding and agreeing to this settlement.

8. The Board and Mr. Hopewell agree not to disclose the terms and conditions of the within settlement to any third parties and also agree to not discuss with any third parties any issue involved in the entire matter.

9. This settlement is contingent upon the approval of the Commissioner.

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City certified charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent, Robert Pizzella. Pizzella is a tenured teacher employed by the District. On September 9, 1996, the District found probable cause to certify the tenure charge of unbecoming conduct which, if true, could warrant cause to certify the tenure charge of unbecoming conduct which, if true, could warrant Pizzella's termination. On September 10, 1996, the District filed the written charges with the Commissioner of Education.

The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on October 1996, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and 52:14F-1 to -13. Hearings were scheduled for June 12 and June 13, 1997.

A hearing was held on June 12, 1997 wherein the parties agreed to settle this matter. At the hearing, Pizzella was carefully examined by his attorney wherein he was advised as to the nature of the charges and that any settlement agreement herein is subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Education. Further, that the Commissioner could refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners for further action. Thereafter, Pizzella acknowledged that he fully understood the charges and the consequences of this settlement. See Cardonick v. Brookline Board of Education, 1990 S.L.D. 842.

After a review of the entire record, I FIND that the proposed settlement is consistent with the public interest because it will save significant legal expenses and costs as well as time expended by administrators and witnesses. I further FIND that Pizzella had full opportunity to consult with legal counsel prior to entering into the agreement. Pizzella is aware that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, the Commissioner may refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners for any action which he may deem appropriate. Further, Pizzella was informed by counsel that notwithstanding the parties agreement to settle this matter, the Commissioner may not approve the settlement agreement. Thus, any execution of the settlement prior to the approval by the Commissioner is done at the peril of the parties.

It is therefore ORDERED that upon approval by the Commissioner that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that the proceedings are hereby CONCLUDE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

of William Tierney, Board of Education of the Township of Wayne, Passaic County
O.A.L. Dkt. No. EDU-11006-96
Agency Dkt. No. 364-8/96

Dear Judge Hayden:

Pursuant to our letter dated June 6, 1997, enclosed please find a fully executed copy of the settlement agreement in the above-captioned matter which we submit for your review and approval.

Both parties have agreed to the proposed settlement, subject to approval by Your Honor and the Commissioner of Education. Moreover, both parties agree that the proposed settlement is in the best interest of the Wayne Township Public Schools as well as the public. Finally, the proposed settlement agreement is consistent with Cardonick v. Brooklawn Bd. of Ed., 1983 S.L.D. _____ (St. Bd. of Ed. April 6, 1983), wherein the record of a proposed settlement must include:

> . . . the nature of the charges, circumstances justifying the settlement, consent or authorization by the Board of Education and the teacher to the proposed agreement, the Administrative Law Judge's finding that the teacher entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights, and [a finding] that the agreement is consistent with the public interest. [slip op. at 5-6]

The Board respectfully seeks Your Honor's approval of this proposed settlement agreement. In support thereof, the Board submits the following reasons.

It is predicted that the hearing in this matter would be long and arduous. The Board has filed a voluminous statement of evidence in support of its charges. The Office of Administrative Law has scheduled four (4) hearing dates: June 10, 12, 13 and 16, 1997. However, the hearing could become protracted and necessitate additional hearing dates, particularly since the respondent has asserted a defense to the charges under the Americans with Disabilities Act and New Jersey's Law Against Discrimination. Additionally, much time would be taken from the Wayne Township Public Schools administration if they testified to the numerous incidents which led to the filing of the tenure charges.

Under the proposed terms of settlement, William Tierney (hereinafter referred to as "Tierney") would resign his position immediately. In exchange, he would receive his salary from the date of his resignation, June 4, 1997, until June 30, 1997, or 19 workdays, in the amount of $6,380.96. (A day's pay is defined as 1/240 of Tierney's annual salary of $80,600, which is $335.84; consequently, 19 x $335.84 = $6,380.96.) In addition, the Wayne Board of Education (hereinafter referred to as the "Board") would pay Tierney's health and medical insurance (including dental and prescription) in accordance with the parties' negotiated contract through August 31, 1997, at a total cost of $1,559.70. Thus, the total financial cost of this settlement to the Board is $7,940.66.

If the tenure charges were adjudicated, a thirty (30) day post-hearing brief submission period would follow the hearing dates. Reply briefs would than be exchanged within a ten (10) day period. Your Honor would have forty-five (45) days to prepare an initial decision and the Commissioner of Education would have an additional forty-five (45) days for review and issuance of a final decision. Regardless of whether or not the Board prevailed, it would incur the additional expense of paying Tierney's annual salary of $80,600 from July 1, 1997 through at least the end of October 1997, at the estimated prorated amount of $26,867.20 (Tierney's per diem salary rate of $335.84 x 80 workdays = $26,867.20.)

Furthermore, if the tenure matter proceeded to hearing, it is estimated conservatively that the Board's legal fees would be approximately $65,000. Moreover, Tierney has asserted affirmative defenses to the tenure charges under the Americans with Disabilities Act and the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination related to his alcoholism which would increase significantly the legal fees necessary to litigate this matter. Thus, a realistic estimate of the Board's total legal fees to bring this matter to closure would be approximately $75,000.

An essential provision of the proposed settlement agreement obligates Tierney to surrender all licenses and/or teaching certificates authorizing him to teach in the State of New Jersey. Additionally, Tierney agrees that he will not oppose any action by the State Board of Examiners to revoke his teaching licenses or certificates. Accordingly, the primary purpose of the tenure hearing is readily accomplished within the proposed settlement.

Both parties concur that Tierney fully understood his rights relative to this proposed settlement and had an adequate opportunity to consult with legal counsel. Moreover, Tierney has attested to his knowledge of, understanding, and voluntary agreement with this settlement (see Tierney Affidavit, Exhibit C). In addition, the parties affirm that the proposed settlement completely disposes of all issues in controversy.

Consequently, for all of the above-mentioned reasons, the Board submits that the proposed settlement is in the public interest and respectfully seeks Your Honor's approval.

Respectfully submitted,

FOGARTY & HARA

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF WILLIAM TIERNEY, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WAYNE, PASSAIC COUNTY	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION/OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW O.A.L. DOCKET NO.: EDU 11006-96 AGENCY REF. NO.: 364-8/96

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

WHEREAS, petitioner, Board of Education of the Township of Wayne (hereinafter referred to as the "Board") certified tenure charges against respondent, William Tierney (hereinafter referred to as "Tierney") for unbecoming conduct, insubordination, incapacity, and abandonment of position and suspended Tierney without pay on August 22, 1996; and

WHEREAS, said charges for unbecoming conduct, insubordination, incapacity, and abandonment of position were filed by petition with the Commissioner of Education on August 23, 1996; and

WHEREAS, Tierney filed an Answer to the petition on September 12, 1996, denying the charges filed against him; and

WHEREAS, the Board has withheld the salary increments of Tierney for the 1996-1997 school year based on Tierney's unbecoming conduct, insubordination, incapacity, and abandonment of position; and

WHEREAS, the parties agree that a settlement would benefit all witnesses and be in the best interests of the Wayne Township Public Schools; and

WHEREAS, further litigation of these charges would necessitate the disruption of the Board's educational program due to the necessary absence of administrators and teachers for testimony at the hearing; and

WHEREAS, the Board would incur substantial financial costs by continuing this litigation that would significantly exceed the cost of this settlement; and

WHEREAS, the parties wish to amicably resolve their differences without the need to resort to any further litigation;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the aforementioned mutual premises and the mutual promises and covenants of the parties set forth below, the parties hereby agree as follows:

1. Tierney hereby resigns his position of employment with the Board, together with all tenure and seniority rights, effective immediately subject only to approval of this Agreement by the Board, the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. Tierney submits his resignation knowingly, voluntarily and irrevocably, free of coercion or duress, after consulting with counsel and receiving advice as to its ramifications. Tierney will sign an irrevocable letter of resignation from all employment with the Board in a form attached hereto as Exhibit A.

2. The Board, by resolution, will publicly accept the resignation of Tierney at its next regularly scheduled meeting. The form of the Board's resolution is attached hereto as Exhibit B.

3. The Board agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, its tenure charges in the above-captioned matter bearing O.A.L. Docket No. EDU 11006-96 and Agency Ref. No. 364-8/96, subject to the approval of this Agreement by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

4. Tierney agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, his counterclaim under the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, subject to the approval of this Agreement by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

5. In consideration for his immediate resignation, the Board agrees to pay Tierney his salary through June 30, 1997, excluding his salary increments which were withheld for the 1996-1997 school year. All monies due Tierney from the effective date of his resignation until final approval of this Agreement will be paid, after normal payroll deductions, upon final approval of this Agreement. Any remaining payments shall be paid in the normal course of business, net of normal payroll deductions. The Board will continue to provide health and medical insurance in accordance with the parties' negotiated contract through August 31, 1997.

6. Tierney shall surrender any licenses and/or certificates that he may possess to teach in the public schools of the State of New Jersey, with the explicit understanding that the within matter will be transferred to the State Board of Examiners for purposes of revoking his certificates(s), and that he does not oppose such revocation. For the purpose of expressly demonstrating acceptance of the terms of this paragraph, an Affidavit of Tierney is attached hereto as Exhibit C.

~~7. Tierney agrees that he will at no time in the future apply for the restoration of his licenses and/or certificates and further agrees that he will at no time in the future teach or seek employment in any school, public or private, in the State of New Jersey or any other state in the United States of America.~~

8. Tierney hereby agrees to waive any and all claims he has, or could have, against the Board, its agents, employees, and representatives, including, but not limited to, claims for discrimination; contract, tort or constitutional violations; or attorney's fees. Tierney shall execute a General Release in favor of the Board releasing the Board from all claims, liabilities or expenses to which it may be subject, arising from any claims or rights of Tierney. The form of this General Release is attached hereto as Exhibit D. Nothing in this Agreement or the documents referenced herein shall preclude either party from bringing an action to enforce performance of any term of this Agreement should there be a default in performance.

9. The parties acknowledge that this Agreement shall be submitted to the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education for review and approval, and that the terms of this Agreement are expressly made subject to and contingent upon such review and approval. In the event that either agency disapproves and/or rejects any of the terms contained herein, this Agreement shall be null and void and the parties shall return to the same positions which they held prior to this Agreement.

10. The parties recognize that each has been represented by legal counsel or a representative of his or its own choosing and that they sign they fully understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein. This Agreement shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

11. The undersigned representative of the Board hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized by the Board to sign this Agreement and bind the Board to its terms.

12. Tierney hereby declares that he is of sufficient physical, mental and emotional capacities to understand and agree to all of the terms and conditions of this Agreement and agrees that he is and will continue to be bound by these terms and conditions in the future.

13. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended, modified or revoked except by an instrument executed in writing by the parties.

BEFORE BARBARA A. HARNED, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on April 21, 1997, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared Stipulation of Settlement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND.

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

On or about January 9, 1997, the Respondent, Pennsauken Board of Education, forwarded to M.S., as Guardian for J.W. and E.W., notice that J.W. and E.W. would be transferred from the Pennsauken School District based upon non-residence. M.S. thereafter filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education disputing the District's determination and the Department of Education transmitted the controversy to the Office of Administrative Law. In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, J.W. and E.W. remained in the Pennsauken School District during the pendancy of the proceedings.

A pre-hearing telephone conference was held before the Honorable Barbara A. Harned, A.L.J., on May 28, 1997, and at that time, the parties reached an agreement to be memorialized by this Stipulation of Settlement. It is therefore agreed as follows:

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, two nontenured corridor aides who were under contract with respondent, contended they had been wrongfully suspended without pay following arrest on charges of impairing the morals of two students and for sexual assault. Matters were consolidated.

ALJ noted that the language of the statute clearly permits suspensions without pay in only two circumstances: when an employee is indicted or when tenure charges are brought against an employee (Slater) and the statute is not limited to tenured employees. Thus, the ALJ concluded that petitioners were entitled to pay from December 2, 1996, the first day of their suspension, until March 12, 1997, the day of their indictments. ALJ further concluded that petitioners' back pay award was subject to mitigation reflecting any money they may have earned elsewhere during the applicable time period.

Commissioner adopted initial decision as his own, entering summary judgment in favor of petitioners and ordering the Board to pay petitioners for the time they were suspended without pay, offset by earnings received elsewhere during the applicable time period.

BEFORE BARBARA A. HARNED ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners and respondent in these consolidated matters have cross moved for summary decision. In both cases, petitioners are challenging their suspensions without pay imposed by respondent Board of Education of the City of Long Branch (Board). Petitioners contend that their suspensions should have been with pay, at least for part of the time period of the suspension. The petitions were filed with the Department of Education on January 6 and 10, 1997 and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 7, 1997 for hearing as contested cases pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and 52:14F-1 to -13. A telephone conference call was held on March 13, 1997 at which time the two matters were consolidated. In addition, all parties indicated that they would file for summary decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Petitioner Walker filed his motion for summary decision on March 18, 1997. On March 19, 1997, petitioner Williams filed his motion for summary decision. Respondent Board's cross motion for summary decision was filed on March 27, 1997. Petitioner Walker filed a response to the Board's cross motion on April 2, 1997. Oral argument by telephone conference call on the cross motions was held on April 11, 1997. On April 17, 1997, counsel for petitioner Walker submitted the date of the criminal indictment against petitioner Walker into the record and the record closed on that date.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

Unless otherwise noted, the following facts are undisputed and I adopt them as FINDINGS OF FACT. Petitioners, James Edward Walker and John Williams, Jr., are employed as corridor aides under contract with respondent, the Long Branch Board of Education. Neither Walker nor Williams have tenure in their positions. By letter dated December 3, 1996, Joseph M. Ferraina, Superintendent of Schools for the District of Long Branch, suspended both petitioners without pay, effective December 2, 1996.

In his certification filed in support of the Board's cross motion for summary decision, Superintendent Ferraina states that he took this action in response to a telephone call he received from petitioner Williams shortly after the 1996 Thanksgiving holiday weekend. According to the superintendent, during this call petitioner Williams advised him that petitioner Walker had taken two special education fifteen-year old students to Williams' apartment and made them something to eat. Further, petitioner Williams advised Superintendent Ferraina that the girls were very nervous and became sick in the apartment and that one of the girls started to panic, began having an asthma attack and had to dial 911 for emergency medical assistance. Shortly thereafter, Superintendent Ferraina became aware that petitioners had been arrested on charges of impairing the morals of the two students and for sexual assault. In their letter briefs, petitioners seem to challenge the accuracy of the facts set forth in the superintendent's certification by characterizing same as "allegations." However, neither petitioner submitted a certification denying any of those factual statements. Accordingly, for purposes of this motion, the facts set forth in Superintendent Ferraina's certification are adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT. See, e.g., Heljohn Management Corp. v. DiLeo, 55 N.J. Super. 306, 312 (App. Div. 1959).

By letters dated December 9, 1996, counsel for petitioners filed objections with the Board to the suspensions without pay, arguing that the suspensions should have been with pay. On December 17, 1996, the Board met and affirmed the suspensions without pay. Petitioners were originally scheduled for grand jury proceedings in December, 1996. Apparently due to scheduling and administrative conflicts within the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office, the grand jury proceedings were postponed until February and an indictment handed down on March 12, 1997. In that indictment petitioners were charged as follows: aggravated criminal sexual contact - third degree (First Count); criminal sexual contact - fourth degree (Second Count); attempted aggravated sexual assault - second degree (Third Count); attempted sexual assault - second degree (Fourth Count); aggravated criminal sexual contact - third degree (Fifth Count); criminal sexual contact - fourth degree (Sixth Count); attempted aggravated sexual assault - second degree (Seventh Count); attempted sexual assault - second degree (Eighth Count); and endangering the welfare of a child - third degree (Ninth Count). In addition, the following charges were made against petitioner Walker: possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute - fourth degree (Tenth Count); distribution of a controlled dangerous substance - fourth degree (Eleventh Count); distribution of a controlled dangerous substance - fourth degree (Twelfth Count); terroristic threat - third degree (Thirteenth Count) and tampering with a witness or informant - second degree (Fourteenth Count).

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules contain provisions governing motions for summary decision and provide in pertinent part that summary decision "may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). This is essentially the same standard established by R. 4:46-2 for the granting of summary judgment in the Superior Court of New Jersey. Hence it is appropriate to look to court decisions under R. 4:46-2 for guidance as to the granting of summary decisions in the administrative arena. In its most recent case involving summary judgment, the Supreme Court of New Jersey held that > deciding a Motion for Summary Judgment under Rule 4:46-2 . . . requires the Motion Judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party in consideration of the applicable evidentiary standard, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995).

In the instant matter, as discussed below, I have decided to grant petitioners' motion for summary decision. Accordingly, although both parties have cross-moved, I consider the Board to be the non-moving party and will view the "competent evidential materials" in "the light most favorable to the" Board and determine whether those evidential materials, viewed in that favorable light, would permit "a rational fact finder to resolve" the matter in favor of the Board. Brill, supra.

Petitioners argue that their suspensions must be with pay pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 which provides that

> [a]ny employee or officer of a board of education in this State who is suspended from his employment, office or position, other than by reason of indictment, pending any investigation, hearing or trial or any appeal therefrom, shall receive his full pay or salary during such period of suspension, except that in the event of charges against such employee or officer brought before the board of education or the Commissioner of Education pursuant to law, such suspension may be with or without pay or salary as provided in chapter 6 of which this section is a supplement.

The language of the statute clearly permits suspensions without pay in only two circumstances: when an employee is indicted or when tenure charges are brought against an employee. Slater v. Board of Educ., 237 N.J. Super. 424, 426 (App. Div. 1989). Thus, it would seem that petitioners are entitled to back pay from the time of their suspensions (December 2, 1996) to the time of their indictment (March 12, 1997). The Board, however, argues that the above-quoted statute is a "tenure" statute that applies only to tenured employees and that nontenured employees may be suspended without pay in circumstances other than the two permitted by the statute. Specifically, the Board argues that nontenured employees may be suspended without pay when "sufficient facts [are] brought to the attention of a board of education so as to convince the board of education that inappropriate, unacceptable, and reprehensible conduct has been engaged in by an employee" (Letter brief on behalf of respondent, page 8). The Board further argues that since it may dismiss a nontenured employee for such conduct, it is illogical to conclude that it cannot suspend a nontenured employee without pay for the same conduct.

I do not find the Board's arguments persuasive in light of the plain language of the statute . While the Board labels 18A:6-8.3 as a "tenure law" there is no language in the statute itself or in the section headings of which it is a part that supports that characterization. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 is contained within Article 2, Section A of the school laws. Article 2 is described as applying to "Public Educational Institutions and Systems" and Section A specifically as applicable to "Employees; Qualifications; Discrimination; Prohibitions; Leave to Serve in Legislature." More importantly, when the Legislature intends to limit applicability of a statute to only certain employees, it does so in an explicit manner. Thus, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 refers to "[a]ny charge made against any employee of a board of education under tenure during good behavior and efficiency" (emphasis added). Similarly, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.4 refers to "[n]o person employed by a public educational system or institution in a position which requires a certificate issued by the State Board of Examiners." See also, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.2. In sharp contrast, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 refers to "[a]ny employee" without any limiting language. That the statute is not limited to tenured employees also finds support in Worrell v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Cherry Hill, 1979 S.L.D. 401, affirmed by the Commissioner, 1979 S.L.D. 418. In Worrell, the hearing examiner held that an employee was improperly suspended without pay under the statute. While not specifically stated, it appears that the employee was nontenured. The statutory language is clear and unambiguous; is not limited to tenured employees nor does it contain any exception for "reprehensible conduct". Even viewing the evidential materials in the light most favorable to the Board, its argument that it may suspend a nontenured employee without pay for "reprehensible conduct" cannot be sustained given the plain language of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3.

The Board seeks to bolster its interpretation of the statute by arguing that since it can dismiss a nontenured employee for "reprehensible conduct," a fortiari it may therefore suspend a nontenured employee without pay for such conduct. The Board, however, does not dispute that petitioners are members of a union and that their dismissal would be subject to binding arbitration. Perhaps for that reason, the Board did not seek to dismiss petitioners pending the outcome of the criminal proceedings. For whatever reason, the Board did not seek dismissal but rather suspension without pay. When it decided to do so, the plain language of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 became operative.

The Board argues alternatively that even if the statute applies to nontenured employees, it does not apply to petitioners in this case because they were not suspended "pending any investigation, hearing or trial or any appeal therefrom" as set forth in the statute, but rather as a result of admissions made by petitioner Williams. Apart from the fact that the Board cannot justify its suspension of petitioner Walker on this basis, its argument really makes little sense. The Board was clearly suspending petitioners pending something happening. Otherwise, it would have terminated their employment immediately. The only logical conclusion is that petitioners were suspended pending the outcome of the grand jury investigation and/ or the criminal trial.

For the above reasons I CONCLUDE that petitioners are entitled to pay from December 2, 1996, the first day of their suspension, until March 12, 1997, the day of their indictments. Petitioners contend that the pay award should be continued beyond the March 12, 1997 indictment date since a new vote by the Board following indictment to suspend without pay is required. That identical issue was raised and soundly rejected by the Appellate Division in Slater v. Board of Educ., 237 N.J. Super. 424,427 (App. Div. 1989). As held in Slater, "it exalts form over substance to require payment of Slater's salary after indictment because the local board failed to shuffle some papers" and therefore when a school board validly suspends an employee upon arrest, "subsequent indictment on the charges for which the employee was arrested will serve to legitimize the suspension of salary prospectively without further board action." Id. at 427-28. I further CONCLUDE that petitioners' back pay award is subject to mitigation reflecting any money they may have earned elsewhere during the applicable time period. Worell, supra; see White v. Twp. of North Bergen, 77 N.J. 538, 558-59 (1978).

ORDER

For the above stated reasons, IT IS ORDERED that petitioners be paid what they would have earned in salary from the Board for the period December 2, 1996 to March 12, 1997, less any outside earnings they may have made during that period. Each petitioner shall provide the Board an affidavit of all earnings, if any, received during the applicable period of time, to be supplied within 10 days of the receipt of this decision. If the parties are unable to agree upon the amount of money to be paid to any petitioner, such matter shall be addressed to the Commissioner for such proceedings as he shall order.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by the Board in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board generally recasts and reiterates arguments raised before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) contending that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 should not be strictly interpreted where, as here, circumstances militate in favor of a petitioner's suspension without pay. It notes that the spirit of the law should sustain the Board's action to suspend nontenured petitioners without pay where an employee himself has admitted criminal wrongdoing to the superintendent.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ, for the reasons expressed therein, that petitioners are entitled to summary judgment pursuant to the clear language of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3. In so ruling, the Commissioner is satisfied that the ALJ fully and fairly considered and rejected the Board's arguments concerning the equities in applying such statute to the present facts.

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL, entering summary judgment in favor of petitioners, and orders that the Board pay petitioners for the time they were suspended without pay, offset by earnings received elsewhere during the applicable time period.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 4829-97

DATE: July 7, 1997

S.N. AND J.N., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, R.N.,

Petitioners,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAZLET,

Respondent.

Francis J. Campbell, Esq., for petitioner (Kalac, Newman, Lavender and Campbell, attorneys)

Michael J. Gross, Esq., for respondent (Kenny and Gross, attorneys)

BEFORE JOSEPH LAVERY, ALJ:

THE MOTION

Petitioners, S.N. and J.N., ask that respondent, the Board of Education, Township of Hazlet (the Board) (a) be compelled to modify its disciplinary penalty and allow their son, R.N., to participate in extracurricular activities, and interscholastic athletics, or, in the alternative, (b) to overturn the Board's discipline in its entirety because of biased decision-making.

ANALYSIS

Background:

On March 17, 1997, after hearing, and by formal resolution, the Board suspended R.N. from attendance at class for nine days, and barred him from participation in extracurricular activities and interscholastic sports for the remainder of junior year, and all of senior year. The Board conditioned R.N.'s graduation on an exemplary disciplinary record henceforth, and warned that he would be expelled for any future act of violence.

It took this step after R.N., age 17, on February 24, had confronted another student, J.E., age 14, who was leaving a school bus, and challenged him to a fight. R.N. had driven to the bus stop in his car for that purpose. A fight followed, and the other student sustained blows to the head in an altercation which lasted a minute or two, before a passerby intervened to end the conflict, and R.N.'s friends persuaded him to leave. R.N. was suspended by his school principal for nine days for the fight, and for injuries sustained by the other student. The other student, J.E., was hospitalized for three days.

Arguments of the Parties:

Petitioners' argument:

In support of the motion, petitioners argue that the Board's action was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Petitioners insist that the proceedings before the Board were "tainted," because that body considered unsworn statements of student witnesses, and other unverified information, despite the agreement of its counsel that the matter would be decided on stipulated facts. Some of the Board members were biased and prejudiced (which limited discovery would show) as well, which contributed to a penalty arrived at without consideration of all mitigating factors. Finally, because of the Board's decision to go outside the agreed-upon record, R.N.'s right to due process was violated.

Additionally, emergent relief is necessary to prevent unreasonable harm. R.N., by the terms of an essentially punitive Board decision, will miss football summer camp. He also cannot obtain a remedy if he does not participate in the fall schedule. This, despite an absence of disciplinary history, R.N.'s remorse and apology, an exemplary academic record, pending charges in superior court, and little risk that the event will be repeated.

Further, petitioners contend, this Board seeks to bind any future Board which may be elected next spring, an ultra vires act.

For all the foregoing reasons, which satisfy the test of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(b), R.N. should be reinstated to the full status which thorough and efficient education requires.

The Board's reply:

The Board replies that petitioners have failed to satisfy the regulatory and case law standard for emergent, interim relief. The petitioners must carry a burden of proving that such an extraordinary remedy as is sought here is warranted.

In addition, the Board maintains, petitioners have not satisfied the discovery rule requiring "good cause" for depositions, a precondition normally addressed only after the exhaustion of interrogatory exchanges. Thus, the Board argues, in the present circumstance, this request is tantamount to a "fishing expedition."

Further, the Board states, it is vested with broad discretion in disciplinary matters, and the right of minors to a free public education is not without limits. In this undisputed instance, physical assault is by law subject to suspension or expulsion.

As to prejudicial statements reviewed by the Board which were beyond the stipulation prepared by counsel , petitioners were on notice beforehand, as their own exhibits reveal. Beyond this, the Board notes, petitioners received the full measure of due process in a hearing before the Board, especially since they have no entitlement to hearing on loss of nonacademic privileges.

For all these reasons, the Board asserts, petitioners have failed to satisfy the four-part standard of Crowe v. DiGoia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), incorporated by reference within N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5(b), the rule governing emergent relief before the Commissioner of Education.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Legal Standard for Emergent Relief:

The rule governing emergent relief is N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5, and this rule, in turn, relies on the four-part test of Crowe v. DiGoia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) as its standard. Interim relief should not be granted thereunder, except (1) when necessary to prevent irreparable harm, (2) when the legal right underlying the claim in settled, (3) when the material facts are uncontroverted, and (4) when the relative hardship caused by grant or denial of relief is considered.

Here, there is no irreparable harm, and the law relating to petitioners' claim, though apparently settled, is not in their favor. R.N. is entitled to a thorough and efficient education, as argued, but not extracurricular activities, such as football camp and participation in the subsequent season. The material facts are also uncontroverted, but this certitude does not redound to petitioners' benefit, since it is plain that R.N. sought out a fellow student, and purposefully inflicted harm, interrupted only by a passing motorist and R.N.'s friends.

This event, uncontroverted in its material, stipulated facts, suggests a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-1, which directs compliance with lawful authority, and leaves open the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2(d), authorizing suspension, or even expulsion. Since R.N. endured only nine days suspension, and continues to benefit from classes providing a full curriculum, petitioners' claim lacks a likelihood of success.

Lastly, given the involvement of violent behavior, the relative hardship of R.N.'s loss of extracurricular activity pending a full hearing pales in comparison with the need for good order and safety among the student population. On the facts stipulated, nullifying through an interim stay the most significant disciplinary bar (to football participation) would be a signal ominous in its implication for school efforts toward control of assaultive behavior.

Petitioners contend in their brief and at oral argument that certain circumstances suggest a fatal bias permeated the Board's decision. These circumstances include, among other things: consideration by the Board of statements outside a stipulation relied on its argument, and the influence by either blood relationships or personal friendships among Board members with the injured student's family. Petitioners believe they should be free to explore these perceived possibilities through limited deposition of Board members.

Assuming, only for the purpose of petitioners' argument, that one might ignore the settled prohibition against looking behind the thought processes of a deciding entity,[1] petitioners' arguments are unpersuasive. In the record thus far, nothing beyond allegations and a post-decision newspaper quote gives life to the charges of bias. It is significant that, in reply, the Board proffers an affidavit by its Superintendent in which he would affirm that, before it heard R.N.'s case, he cautioned the Board to disclose any conflicts its members felt might color their participation. None did. As the Board reasonably argues, in a small school district, personal familiarity with the residents, including petitioners, is inevitable. In a small school district, there is a greater chance of personal familiarity with the residents, including petitioners, than might prevail in larger districts.

The presumed correctness of the Board's action cannot be overcome by mere charges, made in the hope of obtaining a discovery order. These asserted grounds would not prompt a grant of depositions, even during a proceeding for emergent relief, without first exhausting normal preliminary steps. N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.2. Petitioners' efforts seem directed toward an investigation of whether suspicions might be justified. Neither the emergent motion rule nor the discovery rule, discussed above, anticipate such an approach. Petitioners' motion would more appropriately be considered during plenary hearing on the merits.

[1] N.J. Turnpike Authority v. Sisselman, et al., 106 N.J. Super. 358, 367 (App. Div. 1969)

As to an alleged violation of the School Ethics Act, and assorted remaining charges by petitioners, the likelihood of success on those arguments is below de minimis, and cannot support an order.

ORDER

I ORDER therefore that the emergent relief sought by petitioners be, and hereby is, DENIED.

This order is subject to review, as well as acceptance, rejection, or modification by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.9 and -14.10, or at the end of the case under N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6

The record of this emergent matter, including the audiotape of proceedings before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), and the Order on Motion for Emergent Relief of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. By letter dated July 11, 1997, from the Director of the Office of Controversies and Disputes, the parties were provided 13 days from the transmission of the ALJ's order to file exceptions to such order, and 5 days from receipt of any exceptions of their adversary to file a reply. No submissions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioners have failed to meet the standards for the granting of emergent relief set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). Accordingly, the recommended order of the ALJ denying petitioners' Motion for Emergent Relief is adopted for the reasons well expressed therein, and this matter shall proceed, consistent with the recommendation of the ALJ, to a plenary hearing on its merits.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

City Council appealed General Fund tax levy of $41,877,208 certified by State-operated School District, first seeking reductions in the amount of $2,979,560 and later reducing this amount to $2,256,265.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine the necessity of the disputed amounts for purposes of providing a thorough and efficient system of education, Commissioner determined that full amount of $41,877,208 was necessary and directed that general fund tax levy stand as certified by the District.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DECISION

Louis M. Flora, Esq., for Respondent

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on April 19, 1996, through the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the City Council of the City of Paterson (City), seeking reduction of the General Fund tax levy certified by the State-operated School District of the City of Paterson (District) for 1996-97 school purposes pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a). The proposed reduction of $2,979,560 from the $41,877,208 tax levy certified by the District was effectuated through cuts in ten (10) line items, for the reasons given in the City's petition. As per the City's Position Statement at p. 6 (see below), the City subsequently withdrew its recommended reductions in account number 11-110-100-101, Salaries for Preschool and Kindergarten, and account number 11-213-100-101, Salaries of Resource Room staff. Consequently, the amount of reduction in dispute is $2,256,265, in a total of eight (8) line items.

An answer to the City's petition was filed by the District on June 12, 1996. In accordance with established briefing schedules, on September 4, 1996, the respective parties filed position statements pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.8, followed by responsive statements on September 11, 1996 and September 13, 1996. On September 23, 1996, the City filed a final summation.

Upon review of the parties' submissions, the Commissioner determined that further information would be necessary to enable him to render a decision on the appeal. Accordingly, on January 14, 1997, the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes directed the parties to submit the more detailed calculations and documentation underlying their general contentions as to the District's salary accounts. On February 6 and February 7, 1997, respectively, the parties submitted their replies to this directive, and on February 13, 1997, the District submitted a response to the City's reply. Thereupon, the record of this matter was deemed closed.

The amounts in dispute in this appeal are as follows:

Tax Levy Certified by District		Tax Levy Sought by City
General Fund	$41,877,208	General Fund	$39,620,943
Amount of Proposed Reduction		Amount in Dispute
General Fund	$2,256,265	General Fund	$2,256,265

PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND AND STANDARD OF REVIEW

The statutory framework under which the budget of a State-operated school district is established differs from that applicable to other school districts. In contrast to other districts, the budget of a State-operated school district is set under N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-50, -51, and -52, which provide for current-year funding and require that, after comment and recommendation by the district board and public hearing, the State district superintendent shall fix the amount necessary to be appropriated and raised. Moreover, challenges to the education budget established by the district differ from budget appeals under other provisions of Title 18A in that N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a) provides that the municipal governing body rather than the district board must initiate any appeal to the Commissioner, and the governing body must prevail in that appeal before any budget reductions may be effectuated. Mayor and Council of the City of Jersey City v. State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d(EDU) 461, 474.

In rendering judgment relative to budget appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education (T&E). The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such T&E to local boards of education except in those instances where a State-operated school district is established as a result of continued failure to meet certification criteria. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies, or, as in the instant matter, appeals by municipalities seeking a reduction in the tax levy certified by the State district superintendent of a State-operated school district. In reviewing appeals from local boards, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line-item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of T&E. Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township_Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford_Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989). In reviewing appeals from municipalities in State-operated districts, the Commissioner must "determine the amount necessary for the district to provide a thorough and efficient educational program including the implementation of the plan to correct deficiencies." N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a). For this purpose, the standard of review is "whether the City has demonstrated that the certification of the State Superintendent is in excess of that required to provide for a thorough and efficient education." Jersey City, supra, 475.

Mindful, then, of the standard to be applied in this matter, the Commissioner makes determinations as set forth below.

GENERAL ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

The City contends that the District will have a $4.6 million surplus in its salary accounts, which have historically been overbudgeted. The City warrants that its reductions in these accounts were calculated using the actual 1995-96 budget year expenditure figures provided by the District in its April 2, 1996 audit report, which also included projections for salary line-item expenditures to the end of the fiscal year. To these amounts, the City added the 4% salary increase negotiated by the District and factored in increases in appropriate line-items for substitute teachers, attendance bonuses/incentives, performance bonuses/incentives, retirement payoffs and bumping rights. The City also took into account expected changes such as reductions in staffing: one less teacher in Grades 1-5, 9 fewer teachers for grades 6-8, 14 teachers for grades 9-12, 30 teachers for Basic Skills and 11 teacher aides for other instruction, at annual salary levels of $33,000 for teachers and $20,000 for aides. The City affirms that the reductions proposed below will not adversely impact on the ability of the District to provide T&E or prevent implementation of any corrective action plan.

The City further makes two general arguments with respect to the District's method of calculating the amounts necessary for salary appropriations. First, it contends that the District's submissions evidence that in calculating the amount of each line item appropriation, it included the 4% salary increase on the salaries generated by the total number of positions in each line item, reaching a subtotal which is then reduced by the salaries of the excessed positions. By such method, the City claims that the District is providing raises for people no longer employed. In that the 4% raises represent an expense for the upcoming 1996-97 fiscal year, the City queries how the District can justify appropriating such salary raises for positions which will not exist in the coming fiscal year. The City reasons that, in view of the fact that 326 positions are being eliminated for a salary savings in excess of $9,000,000, the District has effectively budgeted and appropriated for an excess of $360,000, representing 4% of the approximate $9,000,000 in salary savings based on the reduced number of positions. (City's Position statement at p. 7)

The City next finds troubling the District's method of calculating those salary line items which involve the category of "Subs, Incentives, MAG, Contractual Items." (Id.) Here, the City argues that the costs for such items are normally related to the number of teachers in each specific category/line item. The City asserts that there should be a reasonable basis for the amount placed in such accounts. However, after examination, the City finds that the dollar amounts in such categories, when divided by the number of employee positions in each such line item, results in "significantly varying dollar amounts per teacher/employee." (Id.) For example, the City observes that, with respect to the line item for Salaries of Preschool/Kindergarten staff, the dollar amount is $322,500 for 65 positions, resulting in a per position figure of $4,961; whereas, the per teacher/employee dollar amount for the Salaries for Grades 9-12 line item is $2,093. (Id.) Thus, the City concludes that the District's calculations are arbitrary.

As to the District's contention, infra, that the budget should be calculated based upon actual, rather than projected figures, the City agrees. However, the City argues that "obtaining accurate figures, properly segregated between the various accounts, is not always made easily accessible by the District." (City's Summation at p. 2) The City further adds that, even with the use of actual expenditures, "past experience has shown subsequent budget expenditure requests by the District to often be inflated and unrealistic ." (Id.)

The District denies these contentions and avers that all monies budgeted are necessary in order to provide for T&E, as well as noting that the budget for FY 97 is less than that for FY 96. Additionally, the District asserts that the City did not adequately calculate for the inclusion of costs of substitute teachers, performance bonuses/incentives, attendance bonuses/incentives, retirement payoffs, bumping rights, and movement on the salary guide. (District's Answer at p. 2) Nor, the District asserts, are the City's estimates soundly based on the District's historical experience. (Id.) The District contends that the City's system of analysis "is the most unsophisticated, unprofessional and inaccurate method of public finance budget preparation." (District's Reply at p. 1) It argues that the City's calculations do not provide for the "real life" situations which arise in the course of a budget year, and affect district expenditures. The District maintains that actual, rather than projected, data should be used to set the 1996-97 budget. (Id. at p. 2) In support of its contentions, the District provides calculations for each line item reduced, demonstrating how the amount budgeted was derived.

The District further notes that the surplus referenced was dedicated to revenue in the 1996-97 budget so as to reduce the local tax levy, which has remained fairly constant. Finally, the District points to its efforts to find alternative methods of obtaining revenue, devise operational efficiencies and reduce staff (privatization of custodial positions and abolition of a substantial number of positions) as an indication of the leanness of the District's budget.

SPECIFIC ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

Disputed Line-Item Number 1

Line No.	Account No.	Description	Amount Budgeted	Amount Cut
02520	11-120-100-101	Salaries-Gr. 1-5	$25,772,008	$104,957

The reduction which the City proposes was calculated by using anticipated projected expenditure figures provided by the District at the time of the filing of the Petition based on figures contained in the March 19, 1996 Secretary's report and/or the April 2, 1996 audit report. The projected expenditure was $23,700,726. Although the District's actual expenditures in this line item were $24,279,212, the City maintains that the recommended reduction is appropriate. (City's Position Statement at p. 2) That is, the City reasons that, given the actual amounts expended in the account in the year ending June 30, 1996, and reducing said amount as per a single position, then adding the 4% contracted salary increase for the 1996-97 fiscal year, the City's recommended appropriation of $25,667,051 exceeds that which is needed based on the aforesaid calculation. Moreover, the City contends that this figure includes appropriate costs for substitutes, attendance bonuses/incentives, performance bonuses/incentives, retirement payoffs and bumping rights, resulting in an approximate increase of 6% over the amount actually spent in this line item for the recently ended fiscal year. (Id.)

The District denies that the reduction of $104,957 in this line item was proper. In so doing, it relies upon its calculation which begins with the number of positions at February 26, 1996 (including nine vacancies), adds costs for six vacancies to be filled and three staff to return from leaves of absence, applies the 4% negotiated settlement, reduces the amount as per the one full-time position to be eliminated, factors in bumping rights, reductions in force, substitutes, incentives, MAG and contractual items for a total of $25,772,008.

Disputed Line-Item Number 2

Line No.	Account No.	Description	Amount Budgeted	Amount Cut
02530	11-130-100-101	Salaries-Gr. 6-8	$19,346,604	$ 89,864

The City notes that, as with the previous line item, the amount of actual year end expenditure as of June 30, 1996 ($18,456,805) exceeded that which was projected in April of 1996 at the time of the filing of the petition ($17,998,408). Again, the City, for illustration purposes, shows that by reducing the figure for the actual amount by the reductions in salary as per the elimination of nine full-time positions, and applying the 4% salary increase, the City's proposed appropriation is in excess of the needed amount, based on the above computation. (City's Position Statement at p. 2) Once again, the City affirms that this figure accounts for substitutes, incentives, etc. The City concludes that its recommended appropriation is an approximate 6% increase over the District's net costs for this line item and is more than adequate in view of last year's actual expenditures. (Id. at p. 3)

The District relies upon its calculations to conclude that the City's reduction in this line item is improper. The District starts with the number of positions at February 26, 1996 (including 10 vacancies), adds costs for 10 vacancies to be filled, applies the 4% salary increase, reduces the amount as per the nine full-time positions to be eliminated, factors in bumping rights, reductions in force, substitutes, incentives, MAG and contractual items for a total of $19,346,604.

Disputed Line-Item Number 3

Line No.	Account No.	Description	Amount Budgeted	Amount Cut
02540	11-140-100-101	Salaries-Gr. 9-12	$17,866,368	$198,056

The reduction proposed by the City was calculated based upon the anticipated projected expenditures provided to it by the District last spring. While the actual amount of expenditures in this account was $16,877,485, the City maintains that the reduction was proper. Again, the City calculates that even using the actual amounts expended in the subject account as the starting figure, its recommended appropriation exceeds that which is needed to meet anticipated costs in this line item. Thus, the City submits that its figure is more than adequate in light of the actual expenditures for the 1995-96 fiscal year and further maintains that the proposed reduction can be made without adversely affecting the quality of education to the students in the District. (City's Position Statement at p. 3)

The District again relies upon its calculations to conclude that the City's reduction in this line item is improper. The District starts with the number of positions at February 26, 1996 (including 19 vacancies), includes costs for the 19 vacancies to be filled, applies the 4% salary increase, reduces the amount as per the 14 full-time positions to be eliminated, factors in bumping rights, reductions in force, substitutes, incentives, MAG and contractual items for a total of $17,866,368.

Disputed Line-Item Number 4

Line No.	Account No.	Description	Amount Budgeted	Amount Cut
04810	11-230-100-101	Salaries-Basic Sk.	$10,452,601	$296,605

The City reasons that, given the actual amount expended in this account in the 1995-96 fiscal year, and reducing said amount by the salaries for the 30 full-time positions to be eliminated, then adding the 4% salary increase, the result is indeed less than that which the City has appropriated. Thus, the City reasons that the District will not be adversely affected by the reduction in this account.

The District relies upon its calculations to conclude that the City's reduction in this line item is improper. The District begins with the number of positions at February 26, 1996 (including 8 vacancies), includes costs for the 8 vacancies to be filled, applies the 4% salary increase, reduces the amount as per the 30 full-time positions to be eliminated, factors in bumping rights, reductions in force, substitutes, incentives, MAG and contractual items for a total of $10,452,601.

Disputed Line-Item Number 5

Line No.	Account No.	Description	Amount Budgeted	Amount Cut
04900	11-240-100-101	Salaries-Bilingual	$ 2,867,142	$255,497

The City proposes a reduction in this account of $255,497. Again, the City reasons that, given the actual amount expended in this account in the year ending June 30, 1996 of $2,472,003, then adding the 4% contracted salary increase for the upcoming fiscal year, the City's recommended appropriation of $2,611,645 well exceeds the amount which results from the aforesaid calculation which should be the amount needed for this line item. Further, the City notes that available remaining balance in the 1995-96 budget of $256,362 in this line item. (City's Position Statement at p. 4)

Again, the District relies upon its calculations to conclude that the City's reduction in this line item is improper. The District starts with the number of positions at February 26, 1996 (including 5 vacancies), includes costs for the 5 vacancies to be filled, applies the 4% salary increase, factors in bumping rights, reductions in force, substitutes, incentives, MAG and contractual items for a total of $2,867,142.

Disputed Line-Item Number 6

Line No.	Account No.	Description	Amount Budgeted	Amount Cut
02640	11-190-100-106	Salaries-Other	$ 2,131,884	$392,015

The City again points out that the actual amount of fiscal year expenditures for this line item significantly exceeded that which was projected by the District. The City argues that it arrived at the designated reduction by using the projected expenditure amount, adjusted by the 11 excessed positions, and applied the 4% salary increase. However, using the District's actual year-end expenditures as the starting point, the City's resulting figure would be $1,899,041. Thus, the City reasons that its appropriation will not adversely affect the District.

Again, the District relies upon its calculations to conclude that the City's reduction in this line item is improper. The District starts with the number of positions at February 26, 1996 (including 7 vacancies), includes costs for the 7 vacancies to be filled, applies the 4% salary increase, reduces the amount as per the 11 full-time positions to be eliminated, factors in bumping rights, reductions in force, substitutes, incentives, MAG and contractual items for a total of $2,131,884. Here, the District further notes that this account provides for the base calculated salaries of both classroom instructional aides and the hourly calculated wages for lunchroom aides. The District argues that while the component relating to the base salaries can be calculated, the amount budgeted for lunchroom aides on an hourly rate of pay is estimated on a review of years of service for all hired staff and based upon average amounts of salaries paid over the past three or four fiscal years. The amount the District has budgeted reflects the ability to hire the same number of aides for the same number of hours at the rates of pay called from the contracts, less an already existing deduction of over $200,000 to anticipated temporary vacancies. (District's Reply at p. 3)

Disputed Line-Item Number 7

Line No.	Account No.	Description	Amount Budgeted	Amount Cut
07370	11-000-290-220	Social Security Contr.	$ 2,715,717	$134,041

The City reduced social security contributions on the same basis and according to the same method as was employed to reduce salary line items above, using a F.I.C.A. withholding rate of 7.65 percent. The City asserts that the District apparently has not taken into account the reduction of the excessed staff in its calculations. (City's Position Statement at pp. 4, 5)

In reply to the District's arguments, infra, the City finds that the District's contentions as to the proposed increase in the social security wage base are misplaced in that such increases will affect very few, if any, nonteaching personnel covered by social security and for whom contributions are made by the District, rather than the State. The wages of such affected employees, the City continues, would not come up to the levels cited by the District. (City's Summation at p. 3)

The District contends that the City has used a simplistic method of calculation which fails to account for actual staffing patterns and "real world" conditions.

(District's Reply at p. 2) The District adds that the City's calculations further fail to take into account the increase in covered wages of 2 1/2%, from $61,200 to $62,700, which occurred on January 1, 1996. (Id.) Moreover, the District expects the social security wage base to further rise, resulting in an adjusted 4% increase during the second half of fiscal year 1997. The higher rate, the District avers, will be applicable for the full year. The District further asserts that the City did not review increases or decreases in non-calculated salary accounts such as part-time employees, hourly employees, overtime pay and other types of salaries which are not based on calculated salaries, but are covered by social security. (Id. at p. 3) Thus, the District maintains that its figures are actual and accurate, and are based upon real staffing levels. (Id.)

Disputed Line-Item Number 8

Line No.	Account No.	Description	Amount Budgeted	Amount Cut
07420	11-000-290-290	Other Empl. Benefits	$18,625,727	$785,230

The City proposes a reduction of $785,230. Its appropriation represents a 9.3% increase for health insurance and related costs above the District's cost basis for this line item at the start of the current fiscal year. The City argues that the District's calculations include the 326 excessed employees, and its budgeted figure thus includes an artificially increased base amount. Again, the City notes a year-end surplus in this line item of $356,193. As to the District's assertions, infra, the City counters that the District's reliance on a 12.2% rate of increase is misplaced in that this figure is accurate as to only one component of the various health benefit programs offered by the District to its employees. (City's Summation at p. 3)

The District contends that the City's calculations are based on erroneous assumptions, and provides in support a detailed analysis of these accounts and the manner in which budgeted amounts were derived. The District further refutes that it failed to properly account for the 326 excessed employees in its calculations. Moreover, the District alleges that a 9.3% increase in costs for health insurance is not a reasonable amount. The District affirms that the State of New Jersey, Division of Pensions and

Benefits acknowledges that a 12.2% increase in rates is more reasonable, as this is the amount by which the premium will be increased. (District's Reply at p. 3)

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Upon careful review of the record of this matter, including the extensive salary information submitted in response to the Commissioner's request for further explanation and documentation, the Commissioner finds that the monies in dispute are, in fact, necessary for provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

In so finding, the Commissioner expressly notes that the crux of this dispute was which party's method of salary cost projection provided a higher probability of accurately estimating the District's salary needs for the 1996-97 school year. The budgeting of salaries is not an exact science, as it must take into account such potentially uncertain factors as attrition, reductions in force and filling vacancies, which are exacerbated in a large urban district such as Paterson. The Commissioner also notes that the general method of salary cost projection employed by the City would be an acceptable one if applied to a more stable environment; however, review of the District's workpapers, facts, assumptions and methodology clearly indicates that circumstances were present which could not be equitably accounted for under the City's methodology herein. The Commissioner further notes the District's practice of inappropriately coding in regular K-12 instructional salary accounts all of its budgeted amounts, including special and noninstructional, in the areas of substitute services, performance incentives, sick incentives, class coverage, vacation buy-back, salary guide movement and retired sick pay. (Upon actual payment of these amounts, the District then reclassifies them under the applicable function.) As a result of this practice, actual expenditures and the original budget are not comparable. The City's methodology excludes the inappropriately recorded costs, which in turn creates a perception of overbudgeting. Thus, the Commissioner finds that the District's more elaborate methodology, having no material weaknesses, is the more appropriate methodology under the circumstances and is satisfied that the amounts included by the District in its salary accounts are necessary for provision of T&E, as are the concomitant amounts in the social security and health benefit accounts.

In view of the findings herein regarding coding, however, the District is directed to make forthwith the adjustments necessary to properly code amounts budgeted for substitutes, class coverage and salary guide movement under the function to which they pertain, to budget amounts for performance incentives, sick incentives vacation buy-back and retired sick pay in Business and Other Support Services - Other Employee Benefits, and to budget cafeteria aides' salaries under the applicable teacher salary account, when this duty is performed by a teacher, and under the Maintenance of Plant Services - Salaries account when performed by noninstructional employees.

APPLICATION OF SURPLUS

In its advertised annual school district budget statement, the District projected an unreserved surplus of $6,159,881 and allocated $4,144,000 as revenue, leaving $2,015,881 as undesignated unreserved surplus.

The District's annual financial report filed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-10 (June 30 report) and the District's annual year-end audit report reveal that no additional surplus is available to fund District appropriations, and the Commissioner so finds.

SUMMARY

In summary, the Commissioner directs action on the City's proposed line-item reductions as set forth below. The Commissioner further notes that all line-item appropriations where reductions have not been approved are restricted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:20-2A.11(b)3.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING	:
OF ANTONIA M. BENECCHI, SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF	:	DECISION
MANTUA, GLOUCESTER COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming charges against elementary music teacher for allegedly throwing a tambourine (which hit a child) and pushing a music stand (which grazed another child).

Having considered the evidence and all of the circumstances of the incident, the ALJ concluded that respondent did engage in unprofessional conduct, failed to properly control her class and displayed less than proficient ability to adjust her lesson plan to existing circumstances. ALJ, however, found that removal of respondent's tenure was too great and too harsh a penalty as she acted without malicious and cruel intent, she was seriously challenged and patently ignored by the students and she has recognized the faults of her actions. ALJ concluded that a one-step reduction in pay together with the loss of any increments which respondent would have been due since her suspension and any which she may be due for the coming school year 1997-98 was a sufficiently steep penalty.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's credibility determinations, as well as his resultant findings and conclusions. However, in light of respondent's apparently unblemished record in the District, the Commissioner modified the recommended sanction -- respondent was to forfeit her 120 days' pay already withheld, and was to be subject to the loss of her increments, if any, which were due since her suspension and any which were due for the 1997-98 school year.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MANTUA,

Petitioner,

v.

ANTONIA M. BENECCHI,

Respondent.

Raymond T. Page, Esq., for petitioner

Ned P. Rogovoy, Esq., for respondent (Waltman, Reilly & Rogovoy, attorneys)

Record Closed: April 24, 1997 Decided: June 9, 1997

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

The Board of Education of Mantua Township certified tenure charges against the respondent teacher. The Commissioner of Education transferred the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") and the case was preheard on January 14, 1997. Hearings were held on April 7 and 8, 1997, and thereafter, briefs were submitted to the judge and the record closed on April 24, 1997.

The Board alleges that Ms. Benecchi engaged in inappropriate conduct for a teacher on April 18, 1996, when she (1) allegedly threw a tambourine during a music class and threw a music stand over, each item purportedly striking a student and (2) used inappropriate language in the presence of students. In addition, it contends that she (3) failed to maintain proper discipline and control over her class and, (4) failed to recognize the need to adjust her lesson plan for that day in view of the disruptive behavior of the students, (5) failed to send the student who had been struck by the tambourine to the nurse and (6) failed to control her emotions so as to act within the appropriate manner for a professional. The Board seeks to have her tenure removed.

The evidence presented at the hearing establishes that certain facts concerning the events of the 16th of April are not in dispute. Ms. Benecchi was a music teacher at the J. Mason Tomlin Elementary School. She had been employed in the district since 1991. On April 16th, Iowa tests were being given in the school, and as a result the regular schedule was disrupted. Ms. Benecchi was to teach a music class which would run from 1:10 P.M. to 1:45 P.M. The class consisted of approximately 25 fourth grade students. Normally, this class involved singing, but on the day in question, Ms. Benecchi decided that the instrumentalists who were to play at the upcoming concert scheduled for the following Wednesday would have an opportunity to play before an audience consisting of the rest of the students in that music class. According to her testimony, her intent was both to give these musicians the opportunity to experience playing before others and to teach the listening students the proper etiquette.

The evidence is undisputed that the class did not go well. As the solo musicians played, students began to laugh, talk and otherwise be disruptive. While the actual sequence of events is not undisputed and the testimony regarding that will be reviewed below, the basic occurrences during the class are not in conflict. At some point, Ms. Benecchi ordered J.H., a female student, to leave the room and go to the office. This happened when Ms. Benecchi admittedly told students that they were acting like a "bunch of animals" and Ms. H. then made a monkey sound. Ms. H. did proceed to the office.

In addition to her problems with J.H. and others, Ms. Benecchi had difficulty with student J.S., who was talking and who was otherwise disruptive. At one point in the class, he was ordered to go to the time out seat, which was located separate from the other student's chairs, against a wall. He concedes that he used the "f" word in class, but exactly when and in response to what is in dispute.

At some point in the class, Ms. Benecchi, trying to get the attention of the students and to finally get them to be quiet, took a tambourine from the piano where she was standing while playing and leading the class, and eventually she threw it down onto the floor, which was carpeted. She again picked it up and threw it a second time. At another point after this, she pushed over a music stand. The exact results of these actions, and whether the objects struck students, are in dispute.

Ms. H., who is now 11, testified that she could not recall if the class was in the morning or the afternoon. She believed that the students sat wherever they wanted to. She remembered that some of the students were playing their instruments and some just sitting. There were music stands in front of some of the students. J.S. started to talk to T.S., and he was making fun of and laughing at the instrument players. They were sitting somewhere near the door. Ms. Benecchi told them to stop talking, they did, but started to again talk. Ms. Benecchi then stopped everyone from playing and told the boys to be quiet and told J. to go to the side of the room, which he did. Students continued to play, but J. kept talking to T. The teacher then stood up behind the piano and picked up a tambourine and threw it towards the ground in front of her. It bounced and struck the side of J.'s face and eye. Ms. H. saw it hit the boy, who she recalled to have been sitting about 4 1/2 feet from Benecchi. She saw J. hold his eye or face. He said a curse word. Benecchi then asked him if he had to go to the nurse and he said "no." The class quieted down, but 6-7 minutes later J.H. was sent out of the class when, as noted above, she responded to Benecchi's "animals" comment with the monkey sound. J.H. only saw the tambourine thrown one time.

On cross-examination, Ms. H. appeared to be confused about whether J.S. had actually gone to the time out chair. The tambourine was thrown over the piano in the direction of that chair.

J.S., now 12 years old, recalled that he was sitting in the first row of seats on the day in question. He was about six feet from the piano and twelve feet from the door. When the students were playing their instruments, most of those not playing were talking. Ms. Benecchi yelled at them two or three times, but the talking continued. She then stood up from the piano and "grabbed" the tambourine from the top of it and threw it in front of her. It hit the floor or "the chair" and bounced right in front of his feet. He was struck in the right cheek bone. A piece of the instrument, P-3, broke off and he recovered it from the floor and put it in his pocket. When he was struck, he held his cheek, "pushed down the chair" and said a curse, "What the f---," actually using the full word. Ms. Benecchi said nothing to him, but she did then say that he was to stand by the wall and he went to the time out chair. He never asked for medical attention, and does not remember anyone asking him if he needed any such assistance. He was "bruised" and crying, ,but not loudly. He stopping crying when he was sitting in the time out chair. Within five to six minutes he was allowed to return to his normal seat. On re-direct, he recalled that Ms. Benecchi asked him "Does the baby need an icepack." He said that he did not.

J.S. advised Mr. Cataffi, his regular classroom teacher, of what had happened and showed him a red mark made by the tambourine. Cataffi did not ask him whether he wanted to go to the nurse. He showed the same red mark to the school principal, Mr. Cattell. When he got home after school, he advised his mother of the incident. She returned to school with him, and at a meeting Ms. Benecchi apologized.

The student recalled that Ms. Benecchi threw the tambourine twice. The second such incident occurred when he was seated in the time out chair. She took it from about three feet from where he was seated in the time out chair. He did not see where on the wall it hit.

Contrary to Ms. H.'s recollection of the events, Mr. S. believed that J.H., who testified she saw him struck, had actually been sent out of the room before he was hit by the tambourine.

A.T., now eleven years old, testified that she had brought her instrument to class that day. This use of the instruments in this class was not the usual activity, as the class usually sang songs. Ms. T. had a music stand in front of her. J. S. was talking and Ms. Benecchi yelled at him. The teacher threw the tambourine down and it bounced and hit him under the eye. At some point, he was sent to sit in front of the closet, but Ms. T. could not remember where he was sitting when he was hit. She recalls that Benecchi commented to J.S., "Do you need an ice pack, little baby?" She also asked if he wanted to go to the nurse and he said "no."

At a point in the class, Ms. Benecchi was standing in front of D., who was seated next to A.T. A.T. was not talking, and does not think that D. was. The teacher "knocked over" or "pushed down" the music stand which had music on it, and it "kind of skinned me a little" on the left knee. She did not remember if she was upset from this. She did not remember if Benecchi bumped into the stand, but she did use her hand to knock it over. She did not recall if Benecchi said anything at that time. The teacher picked up the stand. A.T. did not see any mark on her knee at that time and did not show any to Mr. Cattell that day. She first noticed a mark the following Wednesday and she went to the school nurse at that time.

Ms. T. explained that when these events happened she was afraid because one student had already gotten hurt and she did not know if anything else would happen to anybody.

D.R., now twelve years old, recalled students talking and Benecchi getting mad. Benecchi warned J.S. and then told him to sit in the time out chair, which he did, but only after saying the "f' word. He does not remember her response at that time. Later on, J.S. was back in his regular seat, but he talked again, and was again told to go to the time out chair.

D.R. recalled that Benecchi threw the tambourine "like a frisbee," which he remembered bouncing off the wall and striking J.S. on the cheek bone, but he was not sure which one. D.R. was "scared" when she threw it. He also recalled that the music stand fell on A., but does not recall how it came to fall.

School Principal John Collins Cattell first learned of the incidents in Ms. Benecchi's class when he received a phone call from J.S.'s mother at 3:45 that afternoon. She reported that he had come home with a piece of plastic that had been thrown in the music class and that he had a mark on his right cheek where he had been hit by the instrument or this piece of it. She and her son came to school and conferred with Cattell, who noted redness on the boy's right cheek bone area. He then spoke to Ms. Benecchi in the presence of Ms. S. and her son. The respondent had returned to the school at his request from the Center City School where she had gone after the dismissal at 3 P.M. as part of her normal Thursday afternoon responsibilities. She explained that she was trying to give students rehearsals for the spring concert scheduled for the following week. They were unruly, she was attempting to get control, she banged the tambourine on the piano and then threw it on the floor. She was just trying to get the students' attention, did not intend to hurt anyone, and as he recalled, she was "not sure if it (apparently the injury) happened." She "looked at J.S. and apologized and said that she was "sorry it happened," but told him he was one of those causing the trouble. After the boy and his mother left, Benecchi told the principal about J.S.'s "f--- you" remark, which she had not wanted to embarrass his mother with. He knew that she had sent one student from the class, J.H., to the office for disciplinary reasons. He asked her why she had not let him know before she left the building about what had happened in the classroom, but he did not ask why J.S. was not sent to the office earlier. She responded that she was "afraid I would wring her neck."

The tambourine was retrieved from the classroom the next day. When he looked on Thursday, it was not in its usual place and could not be located.

John Samuel Cattafi, a teacher at J. Mason Tomlin, was the homeroom teacher for the class of youngsters involved in this case. On that particular Thursday, he had them till 1:05 P.M. and they returned to him at 1:45. When they returned his attention was directed to J.S., who seemed very sad and solemn and appeared ready to cry. He asked the boy, who was always quiet in class, what was wrong and a couple of other students said that something had happened in the music room. He asked if J.S. wanted to go to the nurse, but got no response to the inquiry. J.S. also did not respond when asked if he wanted to go to the principal. At this point, Cattafi did not pursue the matter any further, and left the school when summoned for a family medical emergency. He did not notice any mark on the boy's face, although he did not observe him from any closer than ten feet.

David S. Porreca, who has been the superintendent in Mantua for eighteen years and taught and served as an assistant principal and middle school principal prior to that, was offered and accepted as an expert in elementary education. He testified that he was alerted to the incident by Mr. Cattell. Although he sat in on an interview with eight students about the situation, he never spoke to the respondent about it.

Dr. Porreca explained that, based upon his understanding of the events in question, Ms. Benecchi should have recognized that the children were not cooperating in listening to the instrumentalists and that there was an undercurrent of impoliteness. She should have stopped the activity until the class was restored to a more conducive attitude or, if this was unsuccessful, she should have taken other steps, either to properly bring the class under control and/or to change the activities. A forthright discussion concerning courtesy would have been appropriate. Those causing problems could have been seated closer to the teacher. If the difficulties were not eliminated and instead continued, then she could have used the intercom to contact the principal regarding the unruly and uncontrollable class and the principal could then have consulted with either the class as a whole or particular students. Additionally, students other than the one student who was properly sent to the principal could have been similarly dispatched to the office.

Referring to her affidavit, Dr. Porreca explained that while she said that she had changed her lesson plan, he saw no attempt to gain control over the class. She apparently realized that something had to be done, however she did not attempt more stringent measures to gain control other than to change the subject matter of the lesson. As an example, the time out for an individual student could have been extended to an in-seat time-out for the whole class.

Ms. Benecchi's reference to the students as a "bunch of animals" was inappropriate and not the type of language proper as part of a reprimand, it was not likely to help bring them to order. It simply added more fuel to the fire as the behavior declined. He also believed that if she addressed J.S. as to the need to go to the nurse, she was therefore aware that he had been struck and she should have insisted that he go.

Dr. Porreca emphasized that this teacher was not dealing with just an every day occurrence, but instead with a class that was completely out of control for a short time. Student after student disregarded instructions. In summary, if after sending J.H. out J.S. was a continued problem then he should have been sent out or if the whole class was misbehaving, the building principal should have been contacted to sort things out.

Dr. Porreca had reviewed Ms. Benecchi's written affidavit, but it did not change his mind as to the impropriety of her conduct.

As previously noted Antonia M. Benecchi testified concerning her basic plan for the day, which was not a usual one due to the Iowa test. She explained that she had told the students not playing to listen, not to boo, whistle, make fun of mistakes, but instead to applaud and show appreciation. About six pupils had instruments in class. After the group played a full band piece, "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star," which went very well, several of the instrumentalists wanted to play solo, and she "went with the excitement." The class enjoyed the first player, who played very well. When K. M. played her clarinet, she squeaked, which brought comments such as "you suck," "you don't know how to play," and "put it away." She told the students to appreciate the players, listen and keep their opinions to themselves. The next player wanted to start over a few times and the class laughed hysterically. J. H. and R.P. were especially loud. Benecchi told E. to move two seats away from J. and that she would not be playing her instrument. J.H. started to mimic her, and when told to be quiet, she acted like a monkey. Told to stop, she would not, and she was sent to the office with a note. This happened during the second third of the class. When Benecchi decided that the soloists were not gaining confidence because of the fun others were making of them, she decided that the players should perform as a group again. They were asked to take out the music for "Yankee Doodle Dandy." She started the musical introduction on the piano, at which she always stands when she plays in class. The students were talking continuously and loudly. She told them to listen as an audience and not to talk. She stopped the introduction, then started again, but the talking continued. Again she asked that they be quiet, and started to play again. At this point she was feeling frustrated, angry, and made fun of, and the students were being continuously disruptive. Most complied with her next request for quiet, and she started the introduction once more. Noise persisted. She focused on one of a group making noise, and told J.S. to go to the time out chair. He gave her a "raspberry" and she again told him to go, but he did not. She was "so frustrated" and she took the hand drum and said "I said, move" and threw the drum to the ground, at the right side of the keyboard. It "hopped" toward the front of the piano at the side. At that point, J. got up and said "f--- you," using the full word. She took the tambourine, which was at her feet, and threw it like a frisbee at the door. At this point in time, J. had not yet gone to the time out chair, and J.H. had already been sent out of the room to the office.

Ms. Benecchi said that her intent was to make a loud noise to get the attention of the students. She never noticed the chip in the tambourine and had no indication that the drum made contact with his body. Therefore she was not aware of any need for him to go to the nurse. He seemed to be pouting while sitting in the time out chair. She asked him if he had a reason to be crying.

When she realized that the instrument performance was not working, the respondent moved to "Plan B" and asked the students to put their instruments away and she handed out a musical play "Light fingers" with dialogue and songs. This was in the last third of the class toward the end of the period. However, there still was noise, laughter and disruption. She took a music stand and pounded it on the floor. This did not work, so she pushed the stand into the side of the piano to get attention.

Ms. Benecchi readily acknowledged that neither her throwing of the tambourine nor her pushing of the music stand was appropriate conduct. She did not report the incidents to the office as the class was unruly, but she did not feel that anything about the incident was reportable. She apologized when she met with Mr. Cattell later that day.

The respondent was suspended in April 1996 (that record does not reveal the exact date). Since that time she has taken courses in classroom management and strategies in the Berks County unit of St. Joseph's College. These courses met over two weekends and she wrote a paper on this incident as part of the course.

Ms. Benecchi characterized this as a rough class, discipline wise, and had told this to Mr. Cattafi during the course of the school year. Some of the children were often rude. She had written nothing to Mr. Cattell about the class and she had not attended any conference about the class. As for the use of the principal's office as a management tool, she saw the calling in of that office as a "last resort." She believed that she should try to handle discipline problems in the classroom. She was "caught off guard" by J.S., who she characterized as generally a quiet boy. She does not believe that either J. or A.T. were struck by the tambourine or by the stand, respectively.

The witness denied that she ever told anyone that she "could throw things too." She never mentioned an ice pack. She did not reference his mother or that he would go home crying to her. She observed no bruise on the cheek that afternoon.

DISCUSSION

The respondent does not attempt to deny that she acted in an improper and unprofessional manner both when she threw the tambourine and when she pushed over the music stand. The acts are just as unprofessional regardless of whether one or both of the students were struck by either the drum or the stand. As Dr. Porreca said, there were perfectly acceptable means available to Ms. Benecchi for dealing more effectively, safely and professionally with the unruly members of her class than by means of these rash, violent, dangerous physical actions, which undoubtedly were manifestations of frustration and anger at the students who had been and continued to be so disruptive, noisy, rude, disrespectful and undisciplined. She had no excuse for these actions, whatever her level of mental and emotional stress. Dr. Porreca's testimony is convincing that she could and should have tried other less dramatic and less dangerous means of asserting and retaining control and cooperation. Additionally, her "animals" comment was unprofessional.

While there are some discrepancies in the testimony of the four students as to time sequence, and while it is unclear how J.H. could have seen J.S. struck or even the tambourine thrown as it appears that she was already out of the class at that time, nevertheless, as for the results of Ms. Benecchi's actions, I FIND that J.S. was struck by either the piece of the tambourine or the instrument itself, perhaps more likely by the piece. I also FIND that A.T. was grazed by the music stand. I see no reason to conclude that the students were mistaken or that they lied about the contacts, and despite the lack of observation of the marks left by these contacts by some who saw the students afterward, and the delayed notice of marks evidencing the contact, the greater weight of the credible evidence supports the finding that they were struck.

Based upon the evidence, I CONCLUDE that the respondent engaged in unprofessional conduct, failed to properly control her class and displayed less than proficient ability to adjust her lesson plan to the existing circumstances.

THE APPROPRIATE SANCTION

The Commissioner of Education has made it quite clear, and the Appellate Division has agreed, that under appropriate circumstances, a tenured teacher can lose tenure as the result of one incident of unprofessional conduct. In Re: Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (1967). The parties have reviewed a number of cases in which serious misconduct has either led to removal of tenure or to a lesser sanction. The Board has particularly relied upon South Orange-Maplewood Board of Education v. Nancy Simonic, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 730-85 (July 3, 1985), adopted by Commissioner (August 23, 1985), aff'd by State Board (January 8, 1986), where a teacher was found to have thrown a pair of pliers in the direction of a group of students who had failed to respond to her repeated requests to take their seats. The pliers struck a student in the eye. The respondent had testified that she was waving the pliers above her head when her right ankle gave way and as she fell toward the right the pliers flew forward. The ALJ found, apparently contrary to her version, that she intentionally threw the pliers a distance of some forty feet. No doubt of some significance to the outcome, Ms. Simonic had previously been warned about throwing objects. The Commissioner deemed the single incident sufficiently flagrant and of such a magnitude as to warrant dismissal from the tenured position.

In Fulcomer, supra, which is discussed by the respondent a teacher, after first dropping his textbook on the student's desk, laid hands upon a student who was inattentive, and when the boy was released and then went to the front of the room and when told to resume his seat went toward the rear door, Fulcomer pursued and took hold of the student. Both fell to the floor. The appellate court concluded that while they disapproved of the teacher's conduct, they nevertheless saw no indication of premeditation, cruelty or viciousness, or of an intent to punish or inflict corporal punishment. "Rather, they bespeak a hasty and misguided effort to restrain the pupil in order to maintain discipline." Fulcomer, supra, at 421.

As cases such as Simonic and Fulcomer indicate, in cases where a teacher attempts to gain control of and bring discipline to an unruly classroom, the line between that conduct which is unacceptable and that which is so outrageous as to necessitate the removal of the teacher can be a fine one indeed. In the present case, I have no problem with the fact that Ms. Benecchi had no vicious intent, no premeditated concept or plan, no cruel purpose in her conduct. Her unfortunate reference to the group as "animals" and her throwing and pushing of objects were responses to a distinctly frustrating situation. She acted precipitously and incorrectly, but her conduct did not stem from wicked or hateful thought. She simply and quite unfortunately was overwhelmed by the situation. She was clear as to the impropriety of her deeds as soon as they were reviewed with her. I have not the slightest doubt that she is both truly sorry for them and that she now understands that this conduct is entirely unacceptable, this regardless of whether the students were hit by the objects or not.

The Board argues that the respondent's conduct created fear in the classroom, and the evidence from the children supports this. That was an unfortunate result of the misguided actions of the respondent. But the same climate must have been created in young and impressionable children in Fulcomer, yet removal was not the outcome. In Tenure Hearing of Frederick L. Ostigren, 1966 S.L.D. 185, cited by the Board in regard to its concerns regarding the use of physical force and the fear factor, the incident involved was a fight at a baseball game which had been provoked by an obscene comment by the student. The Commissioner forcefully condemned the use of violence and force, as the quote cited by the Board reflects, but the Commissioner also noted that the factors which determine the appropriate level of sanction are the nature and circumstances of the incidents, the teacher's prior record and present attitude, the expressed concerns of the parents and the likelihood of such behavior recurring. Ostigren, at 187. Evidence of contrition, remorse, apology, and of provocation as well, led the Commissioner to order that the teacher suffer a reduction in salary.

In this present matter, the facts and circumstances of the incident reveal that Ms. Benecchi's conduct cannot be excused. The needs and desires of the parents and of the Board to protect young students from both physical and emotional harm are well recognized. At the same time, while other appropriate means of maintaining discipline were available to her and should have been used, Ms. Benecchi was in fact sorely tested by her students, and was also subjected to a highly provocative curse before she threw anything. She was apologetic and recognized her errors when she met with the student and parent, she has suffered a lengthy suspension, some of it without pay, she has no prior record, and she has undertaken at her own expense course work to enhance her understanding of measures and tactics for discipline and classroom control. While post-incident study cannot be an excuse for light treatment, it is nevertheless important for gauging the likelihood of any repeat of the unacceptable conduct.

Based upon the evidence, and given all of the circumstances, I FIND that removal of Ms. Benecchi's tenure in this instance, where she acted without malicious and cruel intent, where she was seriously challenged and patently ignored by the students and where she has recognized the faults of her actions, would be too great and too harsh a penalty. I judge the circumstances here to reflect conduct that was abberational for this teacher, and I deem the likelihood of any repetition of her mistakes to be extremely remote. While a serious sanction is wholly warranted, the ultimate sanction is not. Instead, I CONCLUDE that a one-step reduction in pay and the loss of any increments which Ms. Benecchi would have been due since her suspension and any which she may be due for the coming school year, 1997-98, is a sufficiently steep penalty.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF	:	DECISION
MANTUA, GLOUCESTER COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's credibility determinations, as well as his resultant findings and conclusions. The Commissioner does, however, modify the recommended sanction in this matter so as to determine that respondent shall forfeit her 120 days' pay already withheld, and shall be subject to the loss of her increments, if any, which may have been due since her suspension and any which may be due for the 1997-98 school year. The Commissioner finds that such a penalty sufficiently demonstrates that respondent's conduct, even under provocative circumstances, was indeed unprofessional and imprudent, yet also considers her apparently unblemished record in the District and is consistent with penalties effectuated in prior tenure determinations which did not result in the dismissal of respondent.

Accordingly, the initial decision is adopted, as modified, for the reasons well-expressed by the ALJ.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, nine nontenured custodians, contended the Board improperly suspended them without pay. Petitioners argued that the Board had no legal authority to refuse to pay them during the pendency of investigations and complaints into possible criminal activity (falsifying vouchers for overtime and weekend duty). Board refused to reinstate them or pay back compensation even though charges were ultimately dismissed.

ALJ found that summary judgment was warranted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. ALJ found that petitioners were not illegally suspended, but the Board acted illegally when it refused to pay petitioners during the period of suspension as no indictment was pending against them. ALJ directed the Board to restore petitioners to the positions they would have had had it not acted improperly by making their otherwise lawful suspensions payless. Petitioners had a duty to mitigate their damages during the suspensions by making reasonable efforts to secure employment during the suspension, but the burden to establish that petitioners did not put forth reasonable efforts to mitigate while suspended under suspicion of illegal conduct lies with the respondent. ALJ determined petitioners need not account for the monies received from unemployment compensation as they can deal with the Department of Labor on their own concerning repayment of such benefits.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the issuance of summary judgment was warranted. Commissioner found that interest was not warranted in that petitioners provided no basis for concluding that the Board acted in bad faith. Commissioner concurred that the Board failed to meet the burden necessary to fully litigate the issue of mitigation. Commissioner modified the ALJ's recommendation regarding unemployment benefits, concluding that the amount of back pay owed by the Board should be offset by unemployment benefits already paid to petitioners, as well as the amount of any actual earnings received.

Record Closed: May 13, 1997 Decided: June 10, 1997

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

These contested cases concern the question as to whether the respondent Board of Education of the Borough of South River acted improperly and without legal authority when it suspended nine non-tenured custodians without pay. The nine have all filed complaints with the Commissioner of Education, arguing that the Board had no legal authority to refuse to pay them during the pendency of investigations and complaints into possible criminal activity. The Commissioner transferred the cases to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") and a prehearing conference was held on March 19, 1997. The petitioners then moved for summary decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5.[1]

The background of the dispute is that an investigation began in May 1996 concerning allegations that custodians in the district were filing false vouchers for overtime and weekend duty. The parties agree that the Board notified each of the petitioners by letter dated August 7, 1996, that the Board would be considering matters which might have relevance to their employment at its meeting of August 12. None appeared at the Board session and the Board proceeded to suspend each of the petitioners without pay.

The Middlesex County Prosecutor's Office and the South River Municipal Prosecutor each declined to prosecute any charges against the petitioners. Ultimately, a private attorney was hired by the Board to prosecute the matters in the South River Municipal Court, but the criminal charges pending therein, which had been brought on a citizen's complaint by the Superintendent of Schools and were for alleged violations of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2A (Conspiracy) and N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4A (Theft by Deception), were all dismissed on a motion made by the Board's retained counsel.

The several petitioners were each notified by mail dated December 5, 1996, that a meeting of the Board would be held on January 6, 1997, at which the Board would consider charges against them. Each letter stated a specific charge against the particular recipient. This meeting was postponed until January 30. Thereafter, in a letter dated February 3, 1997, each petitioner was advised that at the Board's meeting, they had been "found guilty" and each was terminated.

The terminations are currently the subject of arbitration proceedings and their validity is not under consideration before either the Commissioner or this administrative tribunal.

[1] All of the petitioners have joined in the brief in support of summary decision filed by David Rosenberg, Esq., counsel for petitioner Melvin Rossi.

Arguments of the Parties

The petitioners seek summary decision based upon their contention that, while the Board may have had the authority to suspend them pending the investigations, it was without authority to make those suspensions without pay. Their position is premised upon a reading of the applicable statutory provision, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3, which permits the suspension of an employee of a school board.

Suspended employee or officer of board of education; compensation; exceptions

> An employee or officer of a board of education in this State who is suspended from his employment, office or position, other than by reason of indictment, pending any investigation, hearing or trial or any appeal therefrom, shall receive his full pay or salary during such period of suspension, except that in the event of charges against such employee or officer brought before the board of education or the Commissioner of Education pursuant to law, such suspension may be with or without pay or salary as provided in chapter 6 of which this section is a supplement.[1]

The petitioners' attorneys argue that each of their clients is a Board employee who have been suspended from employment and is therefore eligible to state a claim under this law. They contend that the sole exception provided by this act to the general principle that those employees suspended for reasons other than the pendency of an indictment must be paid during the period of suspension, is that which allows for the suspension of tenured employees for a period of up to 120 days following the certification of tenure charges to the Commissioner. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. Since these employees are not tenured, and they were never indicted, the exception does not apply to them. Therefore, the Board could not lawfully suspend them without pay, but had to continue to pay them during the period of suspension.

In support of their position, the petitioners cite two cases which have each concluded that absent indictment or certified charges a board may not suspend a tenured employee without pay. Slater v. Board of Education of Ramapo-Indian Hills Regional High School District, 237 N.J.

[1] Sections 18A:6-1 to 18A:6-7.4.

Super. 424 (App. Div. 1989), and Roberts v. Clinton Township Board of Education, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 123 (1991).

The respondent believes that the same statute relied upon by the petitioners as the source for limiting the power of the Board in fact grants the Board the discretion to suspend without pay, even where no indictment is pending and the employees are not tenured employees. In its brief, the Board cites the following language from N.J.S.A. 18A6-8.3 for this proposition > . . . except that in the event of charges against such employee or officer brought before the board of education . . .

Counsel for the Board argues that the issues regarding back pay must be addressed by looking at three distinct periods of time. The first runs from the suspension without pay on August 12, 1996, until the dismissal of the charges in the South River Municipal Court on November 6, 1996; the second from November 6 until December 5, 1996, on which date the petitioners were served with the charges filed before the Board; and the third from December 5 until the petitioners were terminated by the Board's action of February 15, 1997. He submits that the petitioners are not eligible for any pay after December 5, for as of that date they would come within the exception to the suspension-with-pay mandate which covers cases in which "charges (are) . . . brought before the board . . ."

THE STANDARD FOR SUMMARY DECISION

The traditional standard for determining whether a motion for summary decision can be granted was long ago formulated in Judson v. Peoples' Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74-75 (1954). In Robin Brill v. The Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, et al., 142 N.J. 520 (1995), the New Jersey Supreme Court elaborated upon this standard, incorporating the United States Supreme Court's analysis as presented in Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 106 S.Ct. 2505, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202 (1986) and Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 106 S. Ct. 2548, 91 L.Ed. 2d 265 (1986). Under the refined formulation, as before, a motion for summary decision may only be granted where there are no "genuine disputes" of "material fact." The determination as to whether disputes of material fact exist is made after a "discriminating search" of the record, consisting as it may of affidavits, documentary exhibits and any other evidence filed by the movant and any such evidence filed in response to the motion, with all reasonable inferences arising from the evidence being accorded to the opponent of the motion.

In order to defeat the motion, the opposing party must establish the existence of "genuine" disputes of material fact. The facts upon which the party opposing the motion relies to defeat the motion must be something more than "facts which are immaterial or of an insubstantial nature, a mere scintilla, fanciful, frivolous, gauzy or merely suspicious, ..." Judson, supra., at 75 (citations omitted). The Brill decision focuses upon the analytical procedure for determining whether a purported dispute of material fact is "genuine" or is simply of an "insubstantial nature." Brill, supra at 530. Under the new standard, the same analytical process used to decide motions for a directed verdict is used to resolve summary judgment motions. "The essence of the inquiry in each is the same: 'whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require submission to a jury or whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law.' " Brill, supra., at 536, quoting Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 251-52, 106 S.Ct. at 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 214. In searching the proffered evidence to determine the motion, the judge must be guided by the applicable substantive evidentiary standard of proof, that is, the "burden of persuasion" which would apply at trial on the merits, whether that be the preponderance of the evidence or the clear and convincing evidence standard. If a careful review under this standard establishes that no reasonable fact finder could resolve the disputed facts in favor of the party opposing the motion, then the uncontradicted facts thus established can be examined in light of the applicable substantive law to determine whether or not the movant is clearly entitled to judgment as a matter of law. However, where the proofs in the record are such that "reasonable minds could differ" as to the material facts, then the motion must be denied and a full evidentiary hearing held.

DISCUSSION

The parties agree that the source for deciding the question of whether the Board could lawfully suspend these employees without pay during any period prior to their purported termination is N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3. However, they differ on its meaning. Clearly, the statute allows for suspension without pay where an indictment has been returned against a board employee, but in the present matter no indictments were returned.

Interestingly, the Board does not attempt to defend the legality of a suspension without pay for any of these employees during the period from August 12 until December 4, when no charges were pending before the Board. Apparently, it concedes that the statute does not give it the authority to suspend without pay merely because of the pendency of an investigation or of charges which are pending in a prosecutor's office or in a municipal court, but which have not yet resulted in an indictment. For the period beginning December 5, the Board relies on the language cited above from its brief, the exception for charges "brought before the board." If one reads only the quoted portion it does appear that this language would apply, that is, as of the point at which the charges were filed with the board, the board could suspend without pay. But the flaw in the Board's analysis for the period from December 5, is that the portion of the statute which it chooses to quote in its brief is not the whole phrase which defines the exception for charges before the board. The whole phrase is "except in the event of charges brought before the board of education . . . pursuant to law, such suspension may be with or without pay or salary as provided in chapter 6 of which this section is a supplement." (italics supplied). Thus, in order to support a suspension without pay, a board must show that some portion of chapter 6 of Title 18A relevant to the particular employees subjected to the suspension provides for a suspension without pay. That portion cannot be 18A:6-8.4 itself, for no reference to the rest of chapter 6 would be necessary if 6-8.4 itself permitted suspension without pay in every instance where a charge was brought before the board. An examination of the whole of chapter 6, from 6-1 to 6-74, the very sections footnoted in 6-8.4 itself, reveals only one situation where the statutory provisions allow a suspension without pay, other than where an indictment exists, and that sole exception is where a tenured employee is suspended upon certification of tenure charges, and then the suspension without pay can only last for up to 120 days, at which point it must become a suspension with pay, unless in the interim an indictment is returned, or where the matter is delayed by action of the suspended employee. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. There is no provision within 6-1 to 6-74 which allows for a non-tenured employee's pay to be suspended based solely upon the existence of charges before the board.

The action of a board suspending an employee without pay must be grounded in some portion of chapter 6 which allows for a without pay suspension. The exception in 6-8.4 is regulated by the presence or absence of authority for suspensions within the rest of chapter 6. There is no authority in this chapter permitting a non-tenured employee to be suspended without pay unless an indictment is pending against the employee. None was in the present case, and therefore the Board acted without authority when it determined to withhold pay from these suspended employees. They are therefore entitled to have their withheld pay restored to them, together with all benefits which they would have otherwise been entitled to had their pay not been suspended. See, Worrell v. Bd. of Ed. of theTwsp. of Cherry Hill, 1979 S.L.D. 401, 415-416.

No disputes regarding any material facts exist which prevent a determination of this legal issue. The exact amount of money each petitioner is entitled to may be a matter of legal or factual dispute, but the fundamental decision that the Board acted illegally can be made without any need for further delineation or resolution of the facts.

Back Pay Award

> Any person holding office, position or employment in the public school system of the state, who shall be illegally dismissed or suspended therefrom shall be entitled to compensation for the period covered by the illegal dismissal or suspension . . . . N.J.S.A. 18A:6-30

In this case, the petitioners were not illegally suspended, but the board acted illegally when it refused to pay the petitioners during the period of suspension. Under the provisions of this statute, the respondent is required to restore the petitioners to the position that they would have had had it not acted improperly by making their otherwise lawful suspensions payless. As this provision has been interpreted, the petitioners had a duty to mitigate their damages during the suspensions by making reasonable efforts to secure employment during the suspension. School District of the Twp. of Teaneck v. Hogue, OAL. DKT. EDU 1696-83 (Sept. 27, 1983), adopt. with mod. Comm. of Educ. (Nov. 16, 1983); White v. Twp. of North Bergen, 77 N.J. 538 (1978) (no distinction between "compensation" and "salary" as far as duty to mitigate). Public policy requires such reasonable efforts, but the burden to establish that the petitioners did not put forth reasonable efforts to mitigate while suspended under suspicion of illegal conduct lies with the respondent, Hogue, supra. As for the need to account for unemployment compensation payments, the payment of full reimbursement for the total compensation lost will impose upon the petitioners the obligation to repay the unemployment payments to the Department of Labor. N.J.S.A. 43:21-5(b). However, it is more appropriate that the petitioners receive the full amount from the Board and deal with the Department of Labor on their own. Thus, they need not account for the monies received from unemployment compensation in this proceeding.

Each petitioner shall provide the Board an affidavit of all earnings received during the period of suspension without pay, to be supplied within 10 days of the receipt of this decision. If the parties are unable to agree upon the amount of money to be paid to any petitioner, such matter shall be addressed to the Commissioner for such proceedings as he shall order.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and the petitioners' joint reply thereto, filed through one attorney, were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board excepts to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) contention that the Middlesex County Prosecutor's Office and the South River Municipal Prosecutor declined to prosecute any charges against petitioners and explains the procedural history of the instant matter at length. (Board's Exceptions at pp. 1-3)

The Board then avers that summary judgment was inappropriate herein due to the unresolved issue regarding mitigation of damages, noting that discovery would have provided the Board with the opportunity to learn exactly what petitioners did to mitigate their damages. Additionally, the Board excepts to the lack of a determination in the initial decision requiring each petitioner to provide an affidavit as to what, if anything, each of them did to mitigate the damages. In citing West Orange Supplemental Instructors Assoc. et al. v. Board of Education of West Orange Twp., 92 N.J.A.R. 2d 287 (EDU) 1991, on remand, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d 337 (EDU) 1993, the Board avers that petitioners were required to use reasonable diligence and to exercise ordinary care to mitigate any damages which they may have sustained. (Board's Exceptions at pp. 4-6)

Additionally, the Board excepts to the ALJ's directive regarding the unemployment benefits which have been paid to the petitioners. Citing Willis v. Dyer, 63 N.J. Super. 152, 163-164 (App. Div. 1978), the Board contends that legal authority supports a finding that back salary be reduced by unemployment benefits received by an employee. (Board's Exceptions at p. 7)

In reply, petitioners first contend that they were improperly served with the Board's exceptions in that only one of the nine petitioners was served. (Petitioners' Exceptions at p. 1) Next, while concurring with the ALJ's determination that their suspension without pay was not allowable under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, petitioners except to the ALJ's calculation of damages, urging the Commissioner to award them interest on their back pay in that the Board acted in bad faith when it suspended them without pay in direct contravention of statute. (Petitioners' Exceptions at pp. 2-5) They further contend that the question of mitigation of damages should not have been considered by the ALJ in that the Board failed in its pleadings to raise it as an affirmative defense. In support of this proposition, the Board cites Winans-Carter Corporation v. Jay & Benisch, 107 N.J. Super. 268 (App. Div. 1969). (Petitioners' Exceptions at p. 5) Lastly, petitioners argue that the Board failed to sustain its burden of proof on the mitigation issue in the instant matter. (Id. at pp. 5-6)

Initially, the Commissioner notes that exceptions were served upon the attorney that collectively represented the petitioners in the filing of exceptions, so that no harm was incurred. Thus, the Commissioner will not reject the Board's exceptions on this basis alone.

Upon review of the substantive issues raised, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision, finding that the issuance of summary judgment was warranted in the present matter pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. In so ruling, the Commissioner is satisfied that the ALJ fully and fairly considered the procedural history of this matter and the Board's arguments concerning the appropriateness of issuing summary decision herein. With regard to the arguments raised in petitioners' exceptions seeking interest, the Commissioner finds that interest is not warranted in that petitioners have provided no basis for concluding that the Board acted in bad faith or in deliberate violation of law as required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16.

In addressing the exception arguments regarding mitigation, the Commissioner concurs that the Board failed to meet the burden necessary to fully litigate this issue herein.

While the Board correctly asserts that West Orange, supra, requires that petitioners use reasonable diligence and exercise ordinary care to mitigate any damages which they may have sustained, it is well-settled in law that failure to mitigate is an affirmative defense and the burden to demonstrate such failure rests with the employer. See Zielenski v. Board of Education of the Town of Guttenberg, Hudson County, 1981 S.L.D. 759; Goodman v. London Metals Exchange, Inc. 86 N.J. 19 (1981). It is not enough for an employer to merely raise lack of mitigation as an issue. As stated in Cartin v. Continental Homes of New Hampshire, "Such burden [of failure to mitigate] is not met by merely arguing the possibility and, absent concrete evidence, the issue is merely speculative." 360 A. 2d. 96, 134 Vt. 362 (1976). (Zielenski at 764) Rather, as stated by the Supreme Court in Goodman, supra,

> Mitigation is an affirmative defense and the burden of proving the appropriateness of its application rests on the wrongdoer, in this case the employer [who] may establish a prima facie case by first showing that comparable employment opportunities were available and, that there were other suitable [available] jobs. (at 40-41)

In the instant matter, the Board raised the question of failure to mitigate in its answering papers in opposition to petitioners' Motion for Summary Decision but did not provide supporting affidavits, as required under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.4(a), in order to defeat a motion for summary judgment, to meet its burden under the Goodman case, bringing forth facts serving to demonstrate that comparable job opportunities were available to petitioners in similar types of employment, with reasonable and diligent efforts.* Thus, the Board cannot now complain that it was denied its opportunity to pursue this issue.

Finally, the Commissioner modifies the recommendation of the ALJ regarding unemployment benefits, concluding that the amount of back pay owed by the Board should be offset by unemployment benefits which have already been paid to petitioners, as well as by the amount of any actual earnings received. The Commissioner favors such approach as efficient and consistent with the approach set forth in Willis v. Dyer, supra, wherein the Appellate Division held that unemployment benefits received by plaintiff should be deducted by the township from the back pay due him. See also Labor and Industry Dept. v. Smalls, 153 N.J. Super. 411 (App. Div. 1977).

* Given this finding, the Commissioner finds it unnecessary to reach to the question as to whether affirmative defense of failure to mitigate must be raised in the initial pleadings.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein and as further explicated above, the initial decision is affirmed with modification, and summary judgment is entered in favor of petitioners.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

C.M., on behalf of minor child, S.F., :

PETITIONER, :

V. : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE LENAPE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BURLINGTON COUNTY, : DECISION

RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning grandparent, C.M., challenged Board's residency determination concerning her grandson, S.F. Petitioner claimed S.F.'s mother and husband were not capable of supporting or providing care for S.F. due to economic hardship.

ALJ found that C.M. was domiciled within the District; that S.F. was living with C.M.; that C.M. was supporting S.F. gratis and intended to keep and support S.F. gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term. However, ALJ further found that there was insufficient testimony in the record to establish that W.B., C.M.'s mother, was not capable of supporting S.F. as a result of economic hardship; that petitioner failed to establish that the effects of prior abuse of S.F. by his stepfather and of W.B. by her former husband prevented S.F. from living with W.B. and prevented her from providing care for S.F. Therefore, ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to establish any legally sufficient reason for providing a free public education to S.F. in the District. Petition was dismissed. ALJ determined petitioner was responsible for the payment of the annual tuition of $21,475.80 prorated for that portion of the 1996-97 school year during which S.F. was enrolled in respondent's School District.

Commissioner adopted in part and reversed in part the initial decision. Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioner had demonstrated that S.F. was living with her and was supported by her gratis. Commissioner, however, declined to find that S.F. was not entitled to a free public education in the District. Commissioner found that petitioner met her burden of proving that the parents of S.F. were incapable of supporting or providing care for him due to family or economic hardship, thereby establishing S.F.'s entitlement to a free public education provided by the Lenape Regional High School District. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1).

C.M. ON BEHALF OF A MINOR CHILD, S.F.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE LENAPE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BURLINGTON COUNTY,

Respondent.

Stan R. Gregory, Esq., for petitioner (Gibbs & Gregory, attorneys)

Louis L. Chodoff, Esq., for respondent (Archer & Greiner, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 14, 1997 Decided: April 28, 1997

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner contests respondent's determination that she does not satisfy the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 thereby entitling S.F., a minor child who is her grandson, to a free public education in the district's schools. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 30, 1996 for hearing as a contested case. The matter was assigned to the undersigned administrative law judge on December 2, 1996. Since petitioner is entitled to an expedited hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, a hearing was scheduled for December 27, 1996. Prior to the scheduled hearing, the attorneys conferred with the ALJ and requested that the matter be adjourned and rescheduled. Accordingly, the hearing was rescheduled for January 24, 1997. On that date a hearing was held and concluded. The record remained open to permit the attorneys to submit legal arguments. Upon the submission of legal arguments the record closed on March 14, 1997.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The following is not intended to be a verbatim summary of the testimony, but is intended to summarize that testimony and evidence found to be relevant to the issues in this matter.

C.M., petitioner herein, testified that she lives in Vincentown, which is in the Lenape Regional High School District. She has lived at this location for nine years with her husband and S.F. S.F. has lived there his entire life. Since March 1996, W.B., who is her daughter and is S.F.'s mother, has made no contributions toward the support of S.F. She admitted that W.B. buys birthday and Christmas presents for S.F. but provides no other support. W.B. lives in Hainesport with her husband, J.B. and her five other children. In fact, C.M. testified that she helps W.B. with school clothing for her five children and if she gets behind in her bills. C.M. and her husband own the property which W.B. and her husband and family live on.

C.M. testified that S.F. attends Y.A.L.E. School and C.M. is involved in all decisions involving the school. She has attended meetings at Y.A.L.E. School, although she indicates that W.B. has also attended these meetings. For example, when S.F. was suspended from the bus, she and W.B. shared the responsibility for transporting S.F., but she is ultimately responsible. If S.F. misbehaves in school or is disciplined, the school contacts her rather than W.B. The school notifies her and she then calls W.B. She indicated that she has the superior role with regard to S.F. The Lenape Regional High School Child Study Team gave her a copy of Parental Rights in Special Education and she signed a receipt for this document (P-1).

C.M. testified that she purchases everything S.F. needs. S.F. has resided with her most of the time except for six or seven months. S.F. has health insurance coverage through his stepfather, J.B., because it is provided at no additional cost. However, it is C.M. who takes S.F. to the doctor, and any co-payments for medical attention for S.F. are paid by C.M. All medications provided to S.F. are paid by C.M.

C.M. testified that W.B. works for the company owned by C.M.'s husband, who is W.B.'s father, and is there every day.

C.M. testified that she was familiar with S.F.'s family life when he was living with his mother, W.B. She is aware of S.F.'s life in connection with his stepfather, W.F. She has been to the doctor regarding problems with W.F. She was present when S.F.'s stepfather, W.F. hit and kicked S.F. She indicated that on one occasion, when S.F. was five or six years old, W.F. had a gun to the heads of his children. The Mount Laurel Police were called and W.F. threatened to kill all of the children. W.F. also mistreated her daughter and the children and was very abusive toward all of them including S.F. W.F.'s abusive mistreatment caused strain on the daughter's family. It made W.B. feel incapable and it made S.F. feel as if he were not a worthy person. However, W.F. did not mistreat his own children, S.F. and his brother D.F. having a different father. S.F. has not been with the family very much and has lived with C.M. However, S.F. has gone back to W.B. on occasions.

C.M. testified that when S.F. has lived with W.B. she has a hard time with him. S.F.'s behavior is such that he has a very quick temper and would lash out at his brothers. W.B. would then call and ask C.M. to come to get S.F. While S.F. was living with W.B. there were disruptions, arguments, fights and there was a negative effect on the other children. W.B. cannot mentally support S.F.

C.M. testified that she talked to the doctor about S.F.'s behavior. The doctor told her that S.F. is so full of anger toward his father that anger is the only way to fight back for the mistreatment he suffered. She testified that W.B. resides in Hainesport which is in the Rancocas Valley School District.

On cross-examination, C.M. testified that she is not the court-appointed guardian for S.F. He has been in the Y.A.L.E. School since February 1992, and it does not matter what school he attends because he will still be placed at Y.A.L.E. School. All actions with Y.A.L.E. are through her and she attends all meetings. She identified a special education Annual Review for S.F., which occurred on September 30, 1996 (R-1). C.M. testified that she was present but did not sign the Annual Review. W.B. was there and participated. She also indicated that when S.F. was suspended from the school bus the problem with transportation was worked out with both W.B. and C.M. providing his transportation. She identified a fax sent to the School District concerning this transportation problem and identified the handwriting on the fax as being that of her daughter, W.B., S.F.'s mother. She admits that W.B. was involved in the planning of S.F.'s transportation. She also admitted that W.B. has been actively involved in S.F.'s schooling. However, W.B. was not involved in treatment at Y.A.L.E.

C.M. testified that she does not charge W.B. rent for the house in which W.B. and her family live. However, they pay the property taxes on the house. S.F. is on J.B.'s health insurance, although C.M. pays for medications. S.F.'s stepfather, W.F., has been out of the picture five or six years. W.B. has been married to J.B. for the past three years. J.B. has a good relationship with S.F. as long as he does not attempt to correct S.F. The six or seven months that S.F. was living with W.B. was in 1993 and part of 1994. The reason that S.F. left to live with W.B. was that he did not want to live by the rules of C.M.'s house. He was given the option of either living by these rules or leaving, and he chose to leave.

C.M. testified that since September 1996, W.B. sees S.F. every day except on weekends when she rarely sees him. She also indicated there are occasions when S.F. sleeps at W.B.'s house, but this has only occurred four or five times since September 1996. S.F. has his own telephone in the house and he calls his mother often. S.F. moved back with W.B. for approximately three months from March through June 1996. However, S.F.'s brothers do not want him to live with them.

C.M. testified that W.B. completed the application and she then signed it (R-3). She admitted that S.F.'s friends attend Lenape High School. She also admits that there is a desire on the part of S.F. to play football at Lenape.

C.M. testified that S.F. returned to W.B.'s house in March 1996. He got in trouble in school and she put him on restrictions. He refused to abide by these restrictions and he left. In June 1996 he agreed to abide by the restrictions and moved back in with C.M.

C.M. testified that there is no financial support for S.F. by W.B. except for gifts for his birthday and for Christmas.

On redirect examination, C.M. testified that she did not sign the Y.A.L.E. School Annual Review because she was taking care of another grandchild and W.B. signed it. She also indicated that she discussed the contents of the fax of September 4, 1996, regarding transportation with W.B. prior to it being sent. Dr. Camman had called and spoke to her, and she directed W.B. to send the fax. She assumed the transportation obligation for S.F. She explained the problem at W.B.'s home is that if W.B.'s husband, J.B. corrects S.F. he gets angry. However, S.F. listens to what his grandfather says. She also indicated that it does not matter where S.F. plays a sport, as long as he plays. She last talked to the doctor about one year ago. She indicates that S.F. still acts out.

W.B. testified that her husband is J.B. and they have five children ages 14, 11, 10, 9 and 8 living at home. She has trouble making ends meet and there is not enough money to support them all. Her husband works and she also works for her parents. However, she was recently laid off. She also gets child support for four of the children. However, she cannot make it without her parents' continued support.

S.F. went back to live with her parents at the end of June 1996, and he was there on July 4, 1996. She would not have been able to support S.F. in September 1996 because she simply does not have enough money. S.F. is residing with C.M. because it is the best place for him, not in order for him attend a certain school. She indicates that it is hard for her to handle S.F. He is going to Y.A.L.E. and will still be going there no matter what school he attends. S.F. does not attend Lenape.

When S.F. is not present, her family life is "okay". When S.F. is present, if he has a good day, their family life is normal. However, when S.F. gets upset, he gets violent and hits the other children. This disrupts family life and makes it difficult for her. She indicated that S.F. needs one-on-one support, and she cannot give him full support.

W.B. testified that she has gone to see Dr. Edward Silver with S.F. Dr. Silver indicates that S.F. acts out because of abuse by his stepfather W.F. W.F. kicked, abused and threatened S.F. from the time he was two until he was eight or nine years old. S.F. does much better when he is with his grandparents because he respects his grandfather. Emotionally and financially it is the best place for him.

When S.F. moved back with her from March until June 1996, things were normal until the end of March 1996. S.F. then got into trouble with the law and things went downhill. He had trouble following her rules. He is very emotional and very physical. He pushed her and she realized she could not handle him. However, he can always come to her home and visit.

W.B. testified that she wrote and sent the fax to Dr. Camman on September 4, 1996, at C.M.'s direction. She indicates that if S.F. is in trouble at Y.A.L.E. School or on the bus they call her mother, C.M. She indicated that both she and her mother took S.F. to school while he was suspended from the bus. If there is a meeting, the school calls C.M., who then calls her. J.B. has S.F. on his health insurance plan because it is at no cost.

W.B. testified that when she signed the Parent Affidavit on September 3, 1996 (R-4, page 17 and 18) she truthfully answered question 5, concerning whether she is providing any support, in the affirmative. However, she denies that she is the primary financial supporter for S.F. She also indicated that her response to question 7, to the effect that she and his grandparents are providing financial support to S.F., related to transportation and health insurance. She explained that she answered this question this way because she participates in providing transportation and S.F. receives health insurance coverage through her husband. She also indicated that her response to question 4 of the Parent Affidavit, ("Don't get along with father and feels better living with grandparents.") are not the only reasons S.F. is not living with her. The father she was referring to is referring to is S.F.'s stepfather, W.F. She also admitted that the Parent Affidavit is blank with respect to question six asking if she is not providing support, explain why not.

W.F. also admitted that it is her Affidavit and her signature on the Affidavit attached to the Amended Petition (R-4, pages 12-14). She confirmed that her net income is $286.91 per week and her husband's is $310 per week.

W.B. testified that S.F. moved back with C.M. in June 1996 and not in mid-August 1996. She knows that S.F. was back with her mother before July 4, 1996. She indicated that prior to August 1996 she could not support S.F. by herself. It was difficult but not impossible to support him. S.F. has a good relationship with her husband, J.B. S.F.'s stepfather, W.F., left the scene in 1990, and the abuse of S.F. occurred prior to 1990. She also indicated that S.F. is doing better with his behavior at the present time. When the transportation problem occurred at Y.A.L.E. School, both she and her mother may have talked to Dr. Camman. From September 1996 to the present she has attended school meetings for S.F. She identified a letter of January 30, 1996 sent to her at her parents' address (R-6). She indicated that she did not go to this meeting. She admitted that she was still actively involved in S.F.'s schooling and his treatment plan. She also admitted that she went to more meetings than C.M. for the 1993 and 1994 school year because S.F. was living with her in Hainesport.

W.B. feels that her father, S.F.'s grandfather, is a positive influence on S.F. She sees S.F. at work every day and sees him once or twice a month on weekends when he occasionally stays in her home. S.F. calls, but speaks to his brothers more than he speaks to her. She and her family are an active part of S.F.'s life. She indicated that her parents usually go to Florida for one week and S.F. goes with them. The one exception was on one occasion S.F. stayed at his grandparents home with a family friend.

On redirect examination, W.B. testified that during the 1993-94 school year she supported S.F. In connection with the transportation problem (R-2), she took S.F. to school, but not everyday. She took him at the direction of her mother and when she did not take him, her mother did. From September 1996 to the present, both she and her mother have attended every meeting in connection with S.F. However, she only found out about the meetings from her mother. She admitted that if S.F. is living with her the school calls her.

William J. Krzan testified for respondent. He is the Personnel Director at Lenape Regional High School District and has held the position for five years. He is involved with all personnel administration and student attendance issues. He identified a contract to send S.F. to Y.A.L.E. School at an annual cost of $21,475.80 (R-16).

C.M. testified in rebuttal and indicated she was present at the Annual Review meetings on May 14, 1993 (R-12), September 28, 1993 (R-13) and May 8, 1995 (R-10). However, she is not sure if she was present at the meeting of May 10, 1994 (R-11). She indicated that she was involved in other problems at that time and she may not have been there.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 provides that public schools shall be free to: (a) Any person who is domiciled within the school district; (b)1. Any person who is kept in a home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he was such other person's own child. Such other person must file with the secretary of the board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term. The child's parent or guardian is also required to file with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. It requires that these statements be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements, information from or about which shall be supplied only to the board and only to the extent that it directly pertains to the support or nonsupport of the child.

If admission is still denied, on a hearing before the commissioner, the petitioner has the burden to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the resident, he shall assess the resident tuition for the student's attendance.

In order to focus on the issues in this matter, it is helpful to review the submissions of the parties and the positions that they have taken as to these issues.

Petitioner's Argument

Petitioner asserts that it is undisputed that C.M. is domiciled within respondent's school district, that S.F. is between the age of 5 and 20 and that C.M. is supporting S.F. gratis as if he were her own child. C.M. pays all of the medical bills for S.F. including co-payments. However, it is admitted that for two brief periods of time totaling six months S.F. resided with his mother, W.B., and that the husband of W.B. provides health insurance for S.F. because this health insurance is provided at no cost to W.B. or her husband through his employment. Petitioner makes the argument that S.F.'s stepfather providing insurance coverage to him and S.F.'s overnight visits with W.B. approximately twice per month is no basis for determining that C.M. does not support S.F. gratis. Petitioner also asserts that because W.B. buys S.F. clothes occasionally, that this does not impede a finding of support by C.M.

Petitioner asserts that the affirmative responses provided by W.B. to questions 5 and 7 in her Parent Affidavit of September 4, 1996 (attached to R-4), are the result of unfair and inappropriate questions, and that W.B.'s testimony explained why she answered these questions in the affirmative. She believed that since her husband provided health insurance for S.F. and since she purchased clothing as gifts for S.F., she should answer these questions in the affirmative.

Petitioner also asserts that C.M. has assumed all personal obligations of S.F. relative to school requirements and intends to keep and support S.F. gratuitously for a time longer than merely through the school term. It is pointed out that when S.F. was not allowed to ride the bus to school, C.M. would drive him to school most of the time. However, because of her duties in connection with her husband's businesses C.M. could not take S.F. to school every day. Thus, at C.M.'s direction, W.B., who was in the employ of C.M., would also bring S.F. to school. Petitioner argues that the documents signed by W.B. with respect to C.M.'s special education program applied to previous school years and that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1(b)(1) is clearly prospective and applies only to the current school year. Petitioner assert that both of the witnesses for petitioner testified that the school notifies C.M. of S.F.'s school activities and that C.M. testified she has been at every meeting this school year.

Petitioner argues that it was clearly established that W.B. is not capable of providing support for S.F. due to economic hardship. C.M. must often assist W.B. with her monthly bills and W.B. testified that she can barely make ends meet. On numerous occasions in the past, C.M. has had to pay W.B.'s bills because W.B. and her husband cannot afford to pay them. It is pointed out that W.B. stated that if S.F. were to live with her she would not be able to support him and the other children in the household.

Petitioner also argues that W.B. is not capable of providing support and care for S.F. due to a family hardship. When S.F. was younger, prior to 1990, he was abused by his stepfather by being beaten and kicked by him. As a result, ever since that time S.F. has been emotionally disturbed and has been medically diagnosed as such. S.F. is difficult to control and W.B. does not have the time to give S.F. the attention that he needs because she has five other children to care for. When S.F. has attempted to reside with W.B. he completely disrupts family life, beats up his other brothers and has physically pushed W.B., and she testified that it is hard for her to control him because he is physical. However, when S.F. is residing with C.M. he does not behave in this manner because he is given proper attention, he lives by the rules of the household and he respects C.M.'s husband who is his grandfather. Because of this disruption of the family life of W.B., petitioner argues that a hardship has been established justifying S.F. residing with C.M.

Respondent's Argument

Respondent points out that unlike the typical case where it must actually be determined which school the pupil will be attending, the decision in this matter will not effect where S.F.

attends school. As a classified student he currently attends the Y.A.L.E. School in Cherry Hill and has been attending that school since September 1992. The only practical consequence of the decision in this matter is whether Lenape Regional High School District will be responsible for the payment of approximately $84,000 for tuition costs for S.F. during his high school years.

Respondent argues that petitioner has failed to establish that S.F.'s parents are incapable of providing support to him due to either a family or economic hardship. Respondent points out that the Application For Non-Resident Pupil submitted by petitioner to respondent on September 3, 1996(R-4, page 16), did not indicate that S.F. was residing with C.M. because W.B. is incapable of supporting S.F. financially or that because of parental abuse W.B. was incapable of providing adequate care for C.F., as is now claimed. In addition, respondent points out that W.B.'s Parent Affidavit (R-4, page 17) indicates that S.F. does not reside with her because he does not get along with his father and feels better living with grandparents. When questioned during the hearing W.B. indicated that her answer to this question on the Parent Affidavit included all of the reasons that S.F. no longer resides with her. Respondent points out that in responding to questions 5 and 7 of the affidavit, W.B. stated that she was providing support and financial costs for S.F. With respect to question 6 of the Parent Affidavit requiring her to explain why she was not providing financial support, W.B. left the answer blank and provided no response.

Respondent also asserts that at the September 17, 1996 meeting of the School District Board of Education, petitioner informed the Board that S.F. had friends who attended Lenape High School and she believed it would be beneficial for S.F. to play football there. Petitioner admitted on cross-examination that she failed to advise the Board about any claimed economic hardship or any allegation that W.B. was incapable of providing care to S.F. due to parental abuse.

Respondent also makes the assertion that the Amended Petition filed with the Commissioner contradicts the statements contained in the Application since the Amended Petition now asserts in paragraph five that S.F. has been in the care of C.M. for approximately 11 years and during that time W.B. has provided no support for him. In addition, W.B. further asserts that due to family hardship she is incapable of supporting or providing care for S.F. and also is incapable due to economic hardship.

Respondent argues that the testimony of C.M. and W.B. demonstrate that W.B. continues to assume a significant part of S.F.'s personal obligations relative to school responsibilities. It is asserted that C.M. admitted that she makes no decision regarding S.F.'s schooling on her own but always consults W.B. W.B. also testified that she plans to stay actively involved in deciding S.F.'s educational plans. Respondent also relies upon Annual Reviews and other school documents dated between 1993 and 1996 which are signed either by both W.B. and C.M. or by W.B. alone. In addition, respondent relies upon the September 4, 1996, fax sent by W.B. to the Lenape Regional High School District regarding S.F.'s transportation to school while he was suspended from using the school bus. Respondent also points out that the Annual Review meeting of September 30, 1996, at Y.A.L.E. School was attended by both W.B. and C.M. but that C.M. did not sign the Participant section of the document.

Respondent argues that petitioner offered no expert medical testimony to substantiate the claims regarding the alleged effects on S.F. of the abuse which occurred approximately 7 years previously. Respondent also argues that the testimony concerning W.B.'s difficulty in meeting current expenditures even without S.F. residing with W.B. should not be accepted. Respondent points out that W.B.'s net household income is over $31,000 per year, that W.B. pays no mortgage or rent to live in the house, that W.B. receives child support for four of her six children, that W.B. receives financial support from petitioner and that W.B. supported all six of her children, including S.F,. when S.F. moved back in with her for six or seven months during the 1993-94 school years and for four months from March to June 1996. Thus, respondent argues that it would not be impossible for W.B. to support S.F. if S.F. were to live with W.B.

Respondent points out that C.M. is not S.F.'s legal guardian and that S.F. was allowed to return to their house only if he agreed to abide by their rules. It was pointed out the S.F. has left C.M.'s house twice to go back to live with W.B. because of his refusal to live by their rules.

Analysis

After considering the arguments of the parties, it is clear that the central issue in this matter is whether the child's parent is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship. With respect to the other requirements of the statute, I FIND that C.M. is domiciled within the school district. I FIND that S.F. is living with C.M. and that C.M. is supporting S.F. gratis and intends to keep and support S.F. gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term. I FIND as a fact that W.B.'s participation in meetings relative to S.F.'s school programs or involvement in discussions and decisions regarding S.F.'s schooling have no impact on this finding. C.M. has testified that she has assumed all personal obligations for S.F. relative to school requirements, and I FIND that no testimony or evidence has been provided by respondent to dispute this contention.

The most difficult aspect of this case, as with many other similar cases, is the requirement that it be established that the child's parent is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship. In J.B. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Ocean, Monmouth County, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU 628) the State Board of Education indicated that:

> The express language of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) requires more than simply a finding of family hardship in order for a child kept in the home of another person domiciled within the district to be entitled to a free public education in that district. Rather, the hardship must be of such nature that the parents or guardians are not capable of supporting the child or providing care as a result of that hardship.

The testimony upon which petitioner claims economic hardship is that W.B. and her husband J.B. do not earn sufficient income to support themselves and their family of five children, and that adding S.F. to the family will make it even more difficult to make ends meet. However, W.B. admitted that she receives child support for four of the children. It was also established during the hearing that the house that the family lives in belongs to C.M. and her husband and that W.B. and J.B. pay no rent but only pay taxes. In addition, it is undisputed that their net income exceeds $31,000.

In J.B. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Ocean, Monmouth County, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU 628) the State Board of Education indicated that:

Rather, the hardship must be of such nature that the parents or guardians are not capable of supporting the child or providing care as a result of that hardship.

The testimony upon which petitioner claims economic hardship is that W.B. and her husband J.B. do not earn sufficient income to support themselves and their family of five children, and that adding S.F. to the family will make it even more difficult to make ends meet. However, W.B. admitted that she receives child support for four of the children. It was also established during the hearing that the house that the family lives in belongs to C.M. and her husband and that W.B. and J.B. pay no rent but only pay taxes. In addition, it is undisputed that their net income exceeds $31,000.

The burden of proof is upon the petitioner to demonstrate each and every element of the statute, Gunderson v. City of Brigantine Bd. of Educ., 95 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 39, 41. Mere conclusory statements that a parent is unable to provide financial support for a child is not sufficient by itself to establish economic hardship. C.f., S.L. v. Clifton City Bd. Of Educ., 95 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 476, 477. There has been no showing that S.F. residing with W.B. and her family would cause a financial or economic hardship. There has been no showing where W.B.'s family income is spent and no showing, for example, that the actual expenses of W.B.'s family without S.F. exceeds its income, and that the additional expenditures required if S.F. were present would make the situation worse. There has been insufficient testimony in the record to established that W.B. is not capable of supporting S.F. as a result of economic hardship, and I so FIND.

C.M. testified that W.B.'s former husband, S.F.'s stepfather, was abusive towards both S.F. and W.B. Both C.M. and W.B. testified that, as a result, S.F. suffered psychological harm and is emotionally disturbed, and that it is better emotionally for S.F. to live with C.M. In addition, while S.F. lived with W.B., if he became upset when things did not go his way or when he was corrected by W.B. or her husband J.B., he became violent, beat up his brothers and disrupted the house. Because W.B. was also abused by her former husband, she feels incapable of handling S.F. The difficulty with these assertions on the part of petitioner is that the testimony regarding the alleged psychological harms resulting from these incidents of abuse suffered by both S.F. and W.B. is unsupported by any type of expert testimony regarding the impact of the abuse or its present effects. I agree with respondent that, other than the lay opinion testimony of petitioner and W.B., I have no way of knowing whether this situation is the direct result of the past instances of abuse.

The question may be raised why the cause of S.F.'s behavior is important in assessing whether a family hardship exists. All that is required is that the hardship be of such nature that the parents or guardians are not capable of supporting the child or providing care as a result of that hardship. However, the reason it is important is that the family hardship claimed by petitioner is based on assertions that S.F. is emotionally disturbed and it is better emotionally for him to live with C.M., and that because W.B. was abused by her former husband she feels incapable of handling S.F. Both of these assertions involve issues which are best addressed by an expert in the field of psychology. I have no way of deciding on the facts before me whether S.F. is emotionally disturbed. The fact that S.F. was classified as emotionally disturbed for special education purposes indicates that he suffers from one or more conditions which interfere with his educational progress. However, there is nothing in the record upon which I am able to base a conclusion that S.F.'s emotional state is such that it is better for him to live with C.M. rather than with his mother, W.B. There is also nothing in the record upon which I am able to base a finding that because W.B. was abused, she is incapable of caring for S.F.

Therefore, I FIND that petitioner has failed to establish that the effects of prior abuse of S.F. by his stepfather and of W.B. by her former husband prevents S.F. from living with W.B. and prevents W.B. from providing care for S.F. Quite simply, I FIND that petitioner has failed to establish any legally sufficient reason for providing a free public education to S.F. at the Lenape Regional High School District based on the statutory requirement to establish that the parent is not capable of providing care as a result of the hardship.

In view of the fact that the burden of proof is upon the petitioner to demonstrate each and every element of the statute, Gunderson v. City of Brigantine Bd. of Educ., supra, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) at 41, I FIND that petitioner's claim in this matter must fail.

Since petitioner has not prevailed she will be responsible for the payment of annual tuition of $21,475.80 (R-16) prorated for that portion of the 1996-97 school year during which S.F. was enrolled in respondent's school district.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing it is hereby ORDERED that respondent's determination denying S.F. admission to the Lenape Regional High School District is hereby AFFIRMED and petitioner's appeal is hereby DISMISSED. It is further ORDERED that petitioner shall be assessed tuition for the student's attendance at the Lenape Regional High School District.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE LENAPE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Both petitioner's exceptions and the reply thereto were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner refutes the ALJ's conclusion that she failed to show that family hardship exists in the instant matter sufficient to render W.B. incapable of providing support to S.F. Rather, petitioner asserts,

> It is irrelevant whether [S.F.'s] mental condition came from his early childhood, or whether he had been diagnosed as being mentally disturbed. The issue with regard to family hardship in the present case is whether S.F.'s behavior caused a family hardship, which made W.B. incapable of providing support for him. There is no need for an expert witness for that. The best witness for such determination is W.B. The basis of S.F.'s behavior is not relevant, as Judge Martone provides. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 1)

Petitioner argues that W.B.'s testimony established that S.F.'s behavior was beyond her control when he resided with her, and "[t]here was constant tension, fighting and brawling throughout the house." (Id. at p. 2) Petitioner continues,

> Regardless of the basis or origin of S.F.'s mental condition, when he resided with W.B. it caused a family hardship which made W.B. incapable of supporting him. It is submitted, that when a child physically accosts his parent, that is a hardship which makes the parent incapable of providing support for that child. (Id.)

Thus, petitioner maintains that she has proven that when S.F. lives with W.B., "it caused a family hardship which made W.B. incapable of supporting him." (Id.)

Further, petitioner contends that W.B.'s testimony has established that she cannot financially support S.F.

> There was the testimony of W.B. that she could not financially support S.F.  [Petitioner] also testified that she gives W.B. substantial funds for the maintenance and support of her family without S.F. residing with W.B. Logically, if S.F. were to reside with W.B., she would even have a harder time financially.  Furthermore, [W.B.] testified that she had just been laid-off from her employment. Judge Martone did not provide that the testimony of the witnesses was incredible. As a matter of fact, he found in favor of [petitioner] on the other portions of his decision without [petitioner] submitting any paper evidence, and solely based [on petitioner's] and W.B.'s testimony as evidence. (Id. at p. 3)

Moreover, petitioner asserts that the Board has "submitted no evidence to dispute the contention that W.B.'s expenses were in excess of her and her husband's income, and that if S.F. were to live with her it would not create a[n] economic or financial hardship." (Id.)

In reply to petitioner's exceptions, the Board asserts that the ALJ properly found that petitioner failed to establish by a preponderance of the record evidence that W.B. was incapable of providing care for S.F. due to family hardship. (Board's Reply at p. 1) Here, the Board contends that "[p]etitioner's claim that S.F. allegedly physically abused W.B. amounts to nothing more than hyperbole." (Id. at p. 2) The Board argues that, contrary to petitioner's assertion, the fact that S.F. may have pushed her on one occasion, as W.B. so testified, does not create family hardship, nor does it render W.B. incapable of providing care for S.F., as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1). (Id.) Not only did W.B. fail to testify that S.F. was residing with petitioner because she was incapable of providing care for him, but the documentary evidence, according to the Board, also fails to support petitioner's claim of incapability.[1] The Board further notes that W.B. "testified that S.F. was 'doing better with his behavior at the present time,'" and that S.F. could return to W.B.'s home whenever he wanted. (Id.)

As to petitioner's argument that the ALJ impermissibly focused on the cause of S.F.'s behavior rather than the effects of the behavior, the Board contends that petitioner's argument ignores the fact that W.B.'s claims of family hardship are grounded "solely on the alleged lingering effects of alleged parental abuse over seven years ago ." (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 3) However, without expert testimony and documentation to support petitioner's claim, the Board asserts that the ALJ properly determined that he could not make a finding that "family hardship" renders W.B. incapable of providing care to S.F.

The Board next addresses petitioner's contention that she has shown that W.B. is incapable of providing care to S.F. due to economic hardship. Here, the Board argues that petitioner has improperly cited the record evidence with regard to W.B.'s testimony, and has further impermissibly attempted to shift the burden of proof. (Id. at p. 4) The Board affirms that

[1] The Board points out that "W.B. testified that when S.F. resides with her, it 'makes it difficult for her'." (Board's Reply at p. 2, citing to Initial Decision at p. 6) Moreover, W.B.'s affidavit submitted to the District affirms that "S.F. is not living with her because he '[didn't] get along with [his] father and fe[lt] better living with [his] grandparents.'" (Id., citing Petitioner's Affidavit at p. 17, Respondent's Exhibit No. 4)

W.B. did not testify, as petitioner's exception arguments so state, that "if S.F. were to come [to] live with her that 'she was certain that she could not make ends meet.'" (Id., citing to Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 2) Rather, the Board refutes, W.B. testified that "it would be difficult, but not impossible, to financially support S.F." (Id.) The Board herein underscores that the pertinent statute requires that a petitioner support her claims of incapability due to economic hardship with documentation. Moreover, the Board stresses that the burden of proof remains with petitioner to prove each and every element of the statute. (Id.)

The Board next presents its cross-exceptions to the ALJ's initial decision, first offering a list of 23 specific findings which it proposes in lieu of, or in addition to, those findings of the ALJ. The Board then asserts that petitioner failed to establish by a preponderance of the record evidence that she assumed all personal obligations for S.F. relative to school, contrary to the ALJ's finding. The Board contends that the ALJ's own factual findings contradict his conclusion in this regard.

> For example, Judge Martone found that W.B. regularly attended important meetings over the years, both prior to and after S.F.'s application to the Lenape District, with respect to S.F.'s educational and treatment planning and review, and was involved in other aspects of S.F.'s schooling. The documentary evidence admitted at the hearing corroborates W.B.'s assumption of these responsibilities. (Id. at p. 8)

The Board further excepts to the ALJ's failure to make a finding on the issue of whether S.F. was living with petitioner for the sole purpose of receiving a free public education within the Lenape District. (Id. at p. 9) The Board notes that S.F. has not lived with petitioners continuously and that it is merely S.F.'s "word" that he will abide by his grandparents' rules which keeps him in their home. (Id.) Yet, the Board contends that, "both petitioner and

W.B.  testified that S.F. can return home whenever he wants, [and] admitted that S.F. still regularly returns to W.B.'s house to spend nights and, on occasion, entire weekends." (Id.) The Board further argues that, on cross-examination, W.B. admitted that petitioner advised her that she needed to sign the affidavit submitted with the Petition of Appeal in order to establish S.F.'s residence within the Lenape District. This admission, asserts the Board, renders petitioner unable to reestablish that S.F. is not living with her for the sole purpose of obtaining a free public education from the Lenape District. (Id. at p. 10)

Finally, the Board excepts to the ALJ's finding that petitioner has established that she is supporting S.F. gratis within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1). (Id.) Here, the Board points to the uncontroverted evidence which belies W.B.'s assertion that she did not provide support to S.F. The Board concludes,

> W.B. is still physically and emotionally able to care for S.F., and testified that she did for two extended periods of time previously, and for countless additional nights and weekends now, and during the past two years. No claim of economic or family hardship was made by W.B. until after the Lenape Board denied S.F.'s application for non-resident pupil status, and then only after W.B. was advised by petitioner as to the applicable statutory standards. W.B. lives only a short distance from petitioner's house  and both petitioner and W.B. testified that W.B. sees S.F. on a daily basis, that W.B. regularly speaks to S.F. on the phone, and that W.B. is still actively involved in his life. W.B. testified unequivocally that she has, and continues to, assume significant obligations relative to S.F.'s school requirements. W.B. and her husband, with whom W.B. testified that S.F. has a good relationship, provide support to S.F. in the form of clothes, gifts, money, and health insurance. W.B. also testified that S.F. can return home at any time he wishes. Clearly, the relationship between petitioner and S.F. is not the type of relationship that the affidavit law was designed to recognize. (Id. at p. 12)

Accordingly, the Board urges that the Commissioner modify the initial decision consistent with its cross-exceptions and affirm the ALJ's ultimate conclusion denying petitioner's instant appeal and ordering petitioner to reimburse the Board, as stated in the initial decision. (Id.)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which did not include transcripts of the hearing held at the OAL, the Commissioner adopts in part, and reverses in part, the recommended decision of the ALJ. Initially, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has demonstrated that S.F. is living with her and is supported by her gratis (initial decision at p. 13). Contrary to the Board's assertions, the fact that S.F. occasionally spends an evening or weekend at his mother's home, and that he has, from time to time, returned there for more extended periods and is free to do so provided that he behaves appropriately, does not alter the fundamentally long-term and stable nature of his residence in the home of his grandmother. Nor does the fact that his mother, who has given up neither legal custody nor her parental rights, retains a level of interest and involvement in her son's personal and educational welfare rise to the level of precluding a finding that S.F.'s grandmother is primarily responsible for these matters. Thus, the Commissioner is satisfied that the ALJ's findings and conclusions in this regard are both appropriate and correct.

However, the Commissioner declines to further concur that S.F. is not entitled to a free public education in the District by virtue of petitioner's failure to establish that the parents of S.F. are incapable of supporting or providing care for him due to family or economic hardship. N.J.S.A 18A:38-1b(1). The Commissioner recognizes that "[t]he amendments to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1  were intended to ease the burden on local boards of education attempting to remove illegally enrolled students ." Gunderson v. Board of Education of the City of Brigantine, Atlantic County, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 39, 42. Prior to the enactment of the amendment, if a local board doubted the validity of sworn statements submitted to it by a resident in order to show the residency of a child within the district, it was required to initiate proceedings before the Commissioner to contest the validity of the statements. (Senate Bill No. 1447, Statement of 1993, enacted as c. 380) However, under those circumstances where a local board determines the evidence does not support the validity of the resident's claim, the amended statute allows the board to deny the child admission, and provides that the resident may appeal the board's decision to the Commissioner. The amendment further requires additional proofs to be filed by a parent or guardian attesting to the fact that the parent or guardian "is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to family or economic hardship and the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1).[2]

Notwithstanding the increased burden placed on the resident by this amendment, the fundamental purpose of the statute was not altered. That is, the statute continues to aim to prevent enrollment in a local district by those students who, through deceptive living arrangements, are attempting to fraudulently obtain a free public education in the district. Thus, where there is nothing in the record to indicate that a petitioner has acted with fraudulent intent to mislead the Board into permitting a nonentitled student to attend school in the District, see H.M. and L.M., on behalf of their minor children, J.M. and J.M. v. Board of Education of the Township of Freehold, Monmouth County, decided by the State Board April 2, 1997, and where, as herein, the finder of fact has, in all respects, accepted the testimony of petitioners and their witnesses as credible, claims of family or economic hardship should not be invalidated as "conclusory" because petitioners do not buttress their statements with extensive documentary evidence or assessments from expert witnesses (as here, in the field of psychology, id. at pp. 14, 15). To the contrary, certain types of hardship, such as those arising from a child's behavior in the parent's home or from a precarious but not destitute financial status, are often not amenable to evidence beyond the credible testimony, for instance, as to the child's actions and their effect on the remainder of the family and on the need for supplemental support from relatives.

[2] In all such cases where a local residency determination is challenged, the resident is entitled to an expedited hearing and the child may not be denied admission during the pendency of the proceedings. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1).

In the present instance, petitioner and W.B. have testified regarding S.F.'s quick, and sometimes violent, temper, and described aggressive and disruptive behaviors of a type that are corroborated by the assessments contained in S.F.'s annual review conference reports (Exhibits R-10 through R-14) and by the fact of his having been suspended from school bus privileges due to his actions (id., at p. 6). Additionally, they have testified as to S.F.'s negative effect on W.B.'s other children when S.F. lives with W.B. and the family (id. at p. 3), as well as W.B.'s inability to give S.F. the individualized emotional attention he requires and control him when he evinces aggressive or disruptive behavior (id. at p. 6). Both petitioner and W.B. have attested to the history of abuse in their family and its effect on petitioner and S.F. (id. at p. 3, 6), particularly with regard to S.F.'s behavior and W.B.'s inability to handle it. Finally, W.B. has attested to the financial burden of raising five additional children, of being recently laid off, of being continually short of money and the fact of her dependence on the continued support of her parents, both in terms of money and provision of living quarters (id. at p. 1, 5).

Under these circumstances, the Commissioner finds that petitioner has sufficiently demonstrated that W.B. is not presently capable of supporting or providing care for S.F. due to family and economic hardship, and that S.F. is not living with petitioner solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in the District.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is affirmed in part, and modified to the extent that the Commissioner finds that petitioner has met the burden of proof, as set forth above, necessary to establishing S.F.'s entitlement to a free public education in the Lenape Regional High School District.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning students, residents of respondent Passaic County school district who had applied and been accepted for admission into academies operated by the Bergen County Vocational District, appealed respondent Board's refusal to pay tuition and transportation costs. Board contended petitioners were only entitled to attend Passaic County vocational schools, that the academies petitioners sought to attend were quasi-private magnet schools rather than vocational schools, and that appropriate offerings were available within the district and county.

Commissioner found that, as a matter of law, students who are accepted into county vocational schools outside their county of residence are entitled to attend such schools at no cost to themselves or their parents when a comparable type of program is not offered by their district or county of residence; Commissioner further found that such entitlement extends to provision of transportation. Commissioner rejected Board's contention that academies of the type at issue herein are outside the scope of vocational training, finding instead that they offer advanced preparation for technical careers and related postsecondary schooling, as clearly contemplated by laws governing provision of vocational education. Commissioner found that, notwithstanding availability of a precollege curriculum within respondent district and availability within Passaic County of vocational instruction in same general area sought be petitioners, there was no discrete, coherent program comparable to the type offered by the Bergen County academies available to petitioners within Passaic County. Accordingly, respondent Board was directed to remit tuition costs and nonresident fees, if any, to the Bergen County Vocational District on behalf of petitioners and to arrange for their transportation to and from their schools of attendance.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF POMPTON LAKES, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

For Petitioners, Jeffer, Hopkinson, Vogel & Peiffer (Reginald F. Hopkinson, Esq.)

For Respondent, Sills, Cummis, Zuckerman, Radin, Tischman, Epstein & Gross (Derlys Maria Gutierrez, Esq.)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on June 11, 1997, by way of a Petition of Appeal with Motion for Emergent Relief filed on behalf of two Passaic County students whose district of residence, the respondent Board of Education herein, has denied their request for payment of tuition and transportation to attend academies operated by the Bergen County Vocational School District, where they have applied and been accepted.

On June 20, 1997, the Board of Education (Board) filed its Answer to the Petition and Reply to the Motion, to which petitioners filed a responsive submission on June 27, 1997.

Upon review of these filings, the Commissioner has determined that the issues raised are appropriately decided through an expedited ruling on the merits, and, further, that they can be decided on the basis of the existing record. Accordingly, the Commissioner proceeds to determination as set forth below.

POSITIONS OF THE PARTIES

Petitioners are students residing in the Passaic County municipality of Pompton Lakes, who graduated from the eighth grade in respondent's school district in June 1997. They have applied and been accepted to, respectively, the Academy for Engineering and Design Technologies and the Academy for Business and Computer Technologies, both magnet schools operated by the Bergen County Vocational School District and both employing a rigorous and highly competitive admissions process. When advising petitioners of their acceptance, the academies informed them that, as nonresidents of Bergen County, they were responsible for making arrangements to satisfy the academies' tuition requirement of approximately $17,950 per pupil and to provide for transportation to and from the academies, prior to commencement of their course of study on August 11, 1997. Petitioners' parents requested that the respondent Board arrange for such payment of tuition and provision of transportation, claiming entitlement under N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1; this request was denied. Petitioners contend that the laws of this State require a local board of education to provide tuition on behalf of resident students who apply, and are accepted, for admission into out-of-county vocational education schools. Thus, the Board's denial herein was not within its discretionary authority, and, moreover, effectively bars petitioners from an education which they have properly and lawfully met the criteria to obtain and now have the statutory right to receive.

The Board denies that it has any such obligation. According to the Board, petitioners seek tuition and transportation for what they describe as vocational education, when in reality the schools they seek to attend do not fall anywhere within the purview of vocational education as described by N.J.S.A. 18A:54-1. Instead, they are, in fact and by their own description, academically rigorous magnet high schools. As such, they effectively function as private schools within a public school setting, and petitioners' request is nothing more than an attempt to obtain a private education at public expense. Moreover, even if the academies at issue are considered vocational in nature, petitioners would still not be entitled to the relief they seek. Attendance at out-of-county vocational schools is mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1 only where there is no county vocational school within the county, whereas Passaic County has its own County Technical Institute to which the Board regularly sends students wishing to pursue courses of study in state-of-the-art computer systems and other advanced technologies to equip them for the demands of a technology driven workforce. (The 1996-97 per pupil cost for this Institute was $14,504, of which the respondent Board paid $9,564.) Additionally, the district itself offers a rigorous academic program, suitable for exceptionally talented students who seek to prepare for college in the manner offered by the Bergen County academies. Finally, the Board contends that if petitioners succeed in their claim, the County of Passaic, which petitioners should have joined as a necessary party, is required pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:54-23.4 to pay for a substantial portion of the attendant costs, as they do for Passaic County students attending the County Technical Institute. The Board does not have funds budgeted to meet the expenses petitioners' request would generate.

Petitioners respond to these arguments by rejecting as altogether misguided the notion that high academic standards and preparation for college education are incompatible with vocational education and cannot occur in a vocational school setting. To the contrary, the special magnet schools at issue herein, and others like them in select counties throughout the state, are clearly vocational schools; however, they are schools of a particular kind offering a uniquely intensive, high-level experience not available to students attending the Passaic County vocational school. This being so, the general scheme for provision of vocational education, which mandates attendance outside a pupil's district or county of residence when no comparable program is available therein, dictates that petitioners are entitled to the relief they seek. With regard to the Board's contentions regarding assessment of certain costs to Passaic County, petitioners allege that the statute cited by the Board has been repealed as of July 1, 1990, and that it is not petitioners' obligation, but the Board's, to seek any applicable relief from the county.

ANALYSIS AND DETERMINATION

The entitlement of New Jersey students to attend county vocational schools is initially established by N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1, which provides as follows:

18A:54-20.1. Enrollment of pupils in county vocational schools; funding; tuition

a. The board of education of each school district or regional school district in any county in which there is a county vocational school district shall send to any of the schools of the county vocational school district each pupil who resides in the school district or regional school district and who has applied for admission to and has been accepted for attendance at any of the schools of the county vocational school district. The board of education shall pay tuition for each of these pupils to the county vocational school district pursuant to subsection c. of this section. The provisions of this section shall not apply to the board of education of a school district or regional school district maintaining a vocational school or schools pursuant to article 2 of chapter 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes.

b. The board of education of a county vocational school district shall receive pupils from districts without the county so far as their facilities may permit.

c. The board of education of a county vocational school district shall receive such funds as may be appropriated by the county pursuant to N.J.S. 18A:54-29.2 and shall be entitled to collect and receive from the sending districts in which each pupil attending the vocational school resides, for the tuition of that pupil, except for a post-secondary vocational education pupil, a sum not to exceed the actual cost per pupil as determined for each vocational program classification, according to rules prescribed by the commissioner and approved by the State board. Whenever funds have been appropriated by the county, the county vocational school district may charge a fee in addition to tuition for any pupils who are not residents of the county. The fee shall not exceed the amount of the county's per pupil appropriation to the county vocational school district.

d. The tuition and nonresident fee, if any, shall be established not later than January 15 in advance of the school year by the board of education. The tuition for each program category shall be at the same rate per pupil for each sending district whether within or without the county, and 10% of the tuition amount and nonresident fee, if any, shall be paid on the first of each month from September to June by or on behalf of the board of education of each sending district.

Such entitlement is further elaborated through State Board of Education regulation at N.J.A.C. 6:43-3.11, which provides as follows:

6:43-3.11 Access to vocational instruction offered

(a) Pupils shall be permitted to enroll in programs of vocational instruction offered by district boards of education other than their resident district so long as the resident district board of education does not offer a comparable type of program and space is available for additional enrollees in the programs offered by the receiving district board of education.

(b) To the extent that space is available, each type of program of vocational instruction offered by the State Board [pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:43-2.1(a), the State Plan for Vocational Education] shall be made available to all pupils residing in the State, and each program of instruction offered by a district board of education shall be made available to all pupils residing in the district or community served by the district board of education offering such instruction.

(c) Pupils shall be admitted for enrollment in classes and provided instruction on the basis of their potential for achieving the occupational or other objective of such instruction.

Taken together, these enactments clearly establish a statewide delivery system for vocational education that ensures pupil access to such education through a tiered structure that first directs pupils to the local or regional district, then to the county district if the local district does not offer a comparable type of program, and then to schools statewide, to the extent that facilities permit and students qualify, if a comparable type of program is unavailable within the county district. The terms of both the statute and rule are plain in their directive that county districts shall admit nonresident students to the extent space is available and students qualify, and that they shall be entitled to collect tuition from the sending districts in which their pupils reside, together with a nonresident fee to the extent permitted by law. Indeed, the mechanism established for setting and collection of county district tuition is, by its own terms, applicable to sending districts both within and without the county. There can, therefore, be no question, that students are entitled to attend, without cost to the student or parent, vocational schools outside their district and county of residence when comparable types of programs are not available within the county.

Such right of access of necessity entails a concomitant right to transportation. Thus, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, which generally requires districts to provide transportation for resident students living remote from the public school they attend, cannot be construed as inapplicable to students whose public school of attendance is a vocational school located outside the county. Nothing in the language of the statute, which excludes no categories of public school pupils and sets no limitations on the distance of the public schools of attendance, supports such a reading, nor would this be consistent with the laws establishing entitlement to access.

Next to be addressed is the Board's contention that academies of the type at issue herein are not vocational schools, but rather elite, quasi-private academic institutions not falling within the scope of vocational education as defined by N.J.S.A. 18A:1, which reads:

> 18A:54-1. Definitions. As used in this chapter, "vocational education" means any education the controlling purpose of which is: (a) to fit for profitable employment; (b) to provide training which is supplemental to the daily employment; or (c) to fit for homemaking, according to the state plan for vocational education adopted by the state board.

By its own terms, this statute is informed by rules and policies of the State Board of Education, set forth at N.J.A.C. 6:43-1.1 et seq. Of particular relevance herein are regulations which expressly contemplate preparation for enrollment in advanced or highly skilled postsecondary vocational or technical education programs, including college preparatory work:

> 6:43-3.3 Advanced, skilled vocational and technical education
>
> (a) Vocational instruction shall be primarily designed to prepare individuals for employment in a specific occupation. It may also prepare individuals for enrollment in advanced or highly skilled postsecondary vocational and/or technical education programs.
> (b) An approved secondary technical education program includes three years of college preparatory mathematics, two one-year laboratory science courses and a technical laboratory course which is conducted a minimum of 400 minutes per week for a period of not less than two years.

It is clear from this regulation, and the larger context in which it appears, that the State Board's view of vocational education encompasses a range of levels from rudimentary to highly advanced. Thus, there can be no support for the Board's contention that schools espousing rigorous academic standards and offering high-level preparation for advanced postsecondary education are, inherently, incompatible with the concept of vocational education, and, thus, outside the scope of entitlement otherwise provided by Chapter 54 of Title 18A. Such a view ignores the changing and ever more sophisticated needs of today's workplace, as well as the wisdom of the Legislature in recognizing that the State plan for vocational education must remain fluid in response to this continual evolution.

The undisputed facts in the present matter establish that the schools at issue herein are, in actuality, advanced-level vocational schools falling well within the purview of the State's vocational education delivery system. Within that system, they effectively function as career academies, magnet schools offering rigorous, highly structured programs linking college-level academics to advanced preparation in specified vocational/technical fields (in this instance, Engineering and Design Technology, and Business and Computer Technology). There is no basis, either in law or sound educational policy, for excluding schools of this type from the scope of a student's access to vocational education as contemplated by Chapter 54 and its implementing rules.

Given that the law requires access to out-of-county vocational programs under specified circumstances, and that career academies of the type at issue herein are not to be excluded from the scope of such access, the question with regard to petitioners' claim must now become whether a comparable type of program exists within Passaic County so as to preclude petitioners' entitlement to attend their schools of choice in Bergen County. Initially, the Commissioner rejects the notion that the existence of a vocational/technical school within the county of residence automatically acts to preclude access to schools outside the county. The language of the laws governing access clearly speaks to a comparable type of program, not to the mere existence of a vocational/technical school within the resident district or county. Moreover, even the availability of some level of instruction in the same general area sought by the student will not necessarily constitute a comparable type of program. Although the Board herein claims, without dispute from petitioners, that it offers within its own district a rigorous precollege academic program and that there exists within Passaic County a vocational/technical school offering instruction in computers and advanced technologies, to which the district normally sends vocational students, no claim is ever made that the Board can provide petitioners with a discrete, coherent program comparable to the type available in the Bergen County district. To the contrary, it is plain from the undisputed facts that this type of program is not available to petitioners within respondent's school district or the Passaic County Vocational District. Therefore, having duly applied and been admitted to the Bergen County academies, petitioners are entitled to attend these schools at no cost to themselves, or their parents, for tuition or transportation.

ORDER

Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1 (c) and (d), the Pompton Lakes Board of Education is directed to remit the established tuition and nonresident fee, if any, to the Bergen County Vocational School District on behalf of petitioners, and to provide for their transportation to and from their schools of attendance pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* The Commissioner notes that N.J.S.A. 18A: 54-23.4 has not, as claimed by petitioners, been repealed by P.L. 1990, c. 52, that law having repealed 18A:54-23, but not the subsequent sections (18A:54-23.1 through 18A:54-23.5). However, neither does 18A:54-23.4, which is part of an enactment (P.L. 1973, c. 333) dealing solely with postsecondary students, apply to the matter herein, as claimed by respondent, so as to establish a county obligation to pay all or part of the cost of petitioners' education.

V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF POMPTON LAKES, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, July 29, 1997

For the Petitioners-Respondents, Jeffer, Hopkinson, Vogel & Peiffer (Reginald F. Hopkinson, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Sills, Cummis, Zuckerman, Radin, Tischman, Epstein & Gross (Lester Aron, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Commissioner of Education, Geraldine Callahan, Deputy Attorney General (Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey)

This matter was initiated by a petition of appeal accompanied by an application for emergent relief filed on behalf of two students who had applied to and been accepted by the Academy for Computer Technologies and the Academy for Engineering and Design, respectively, both of which are operated by the Bergen County Technical Schools. The students, who had graduated from eighth grade in the Pompton Lakes school district in Passaic County in June 1997, had requested that the Board of Education of the Borough of Pompton Lakes (hereinafter "Board") pay for their tuition and transportation to attend the academies in question, and the Board had refused to assume these costs. The students' guardians then petitioned the Commissioner of Education, seeking payment by the Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:54-23.4.

With their petition, petitioners filed a notice of motion for emergent relief and a brief in support of that motion. The Board filed an answer to the petition and a brief in opposition to the motion for emergent relief, accompanied by the certification of its superintendent and supporting exhibits. Petitioners then filed a letter memorandum in response to the Board's submissions.

Following the submission of petitioners' reply to the Board's responsive papers, the Commissioner determined that the issues raised could appropriately be decided by an expedited ruling on the merits of the matter on the basis of the record before him. Accordingly, he proceeded to do so, thereby disposing of this matter in its entirety.

The Commissioner found that the academies at issue were vocational schools within the meaning of Chapter 54 and its implementing regulations. He further found that no program comparable to the type available in Bergen County could be provided by the Pompton Lakes Board. He therefore directed the Board to remit tuition on behalf of petitioners to the Bergen County Vocational School District pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1 and to provide for their transportation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.

The Pompton Lakes Board appealed the Commissioner's determination, contending that the academies at issue do not provide vocational education within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:54-1 and the implementing regulations, and that, as a result, it is not obligated to pay for petitioners' education at these academies. It further contended that even if the State Board determined that the academies were vocational schools, the dispute should be returned to the Commissioner for a factual hearing in the Office of Administrative Law on the question of whether it could offer a comparable program to petitioners in Passaic County.

Petitioners countered that the Commissioner had properly interpreted and applied the applicable statutes, and argued that a hearing was not necessary because there were no material facts in dispute.

In its reply brief, the Pompton Lakes Board reiterated its earlier arguments that the academies were not vocational schools within the meaning of New Jersey's statutes and that their programs did not constitute vocational education and training. The Board also contended for the first time that the Commissioner's determination violated the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Act ("Perkins Act"), 20 U.S.C.A. §2301 et seq.

On November 5, 1997, the Deputy Attorney General representing the Commissioner filed a letter brief on his behalf. By this filing, the Commissioner moved to participate in the matter to request that it be remanded to him so that he could have the opportunity to consider the Board's claim relating to the Perkins Act.

The Pompton Lakes Board is in accord with the Commissioner's request. Petitioners, however, oppose the request, arguing that the question involved is one of law which the State Board should now decide.

We grant the Commissioner's motion to participate so as to allow the State Board to entertain his request for a remand. After careful consideration, we grant the request and remand this matter to the Commissioner with the further direction that it be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing and determination of all the issues raised by this appeal, including the factual question of whether the Board can offer a comparable program to petitioners in Passaic County. Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Company, 142 N.J. 520 (1995).

BEFORE MARIA MANCINI LA FIANDRA, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) from the Department of Education on January 13, 1998, for hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Prior to the scheduled hearing, settlement discussions were held and a settlement was reached.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a Stipulation of Settlement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

and
BERGEN COUNTY VOCATIONAL TECHNICAL INSTITUTE, Intervenor.

THE CONSENT AWARD expressed herein is the result of agreements reached between the Petitioners, Respondent, and Intervenor and is the result of discussions between counsel with the assistance of the Court. This Consent Award has been formally approved at public meetings of the Pompton Lakes and Bergen County Vocational Technical School Districts and agreed to by the parents/guardians of M.R. and K.K.

The Consent Award contains the following provisions:

1. Pompton Lakes will make no further payments towards tuition, out of county fees, or transportation for the remainder of the 1997-1998 school year.

2. For the remainder of the academic careers of M.R. and K.K. at Bergen Vo-Tech, school years 1998-1999, 1999-2000, and 2000-2001, the Pompton Lakes Board of Education will be responsible to pay a total of $10,000 per student per year. These monies are in lieu of payments for tuition and out of county fee.

3. Pompton Lakes will make no further payments towards the cost of transporting M.R. and K.K. to the Bergen County Vocational Technical School District.

4. Presuming both M.R. and K.K. complete the next three years of schooling at Bergen County Vocational Technical School, Pompton Lakes' full and total responsibility under this settlement is $10,000 per child, or $20,000 per year, for three years, creating a total obligation of $60,000.

5. Bergen Vo-Tech has a bus transportation route which goes through the Borough of Oakland. The parents of M.R. and K.K. will be responsible to transport their children to the appropriate "pick-up" point for the bus provided by Bergen Vo-Tech which stops in Oakland. Bergen Vo-Tech shall provide a pick-up point in Oakland for the school years 1998-1999, 1999-2000, and 2000-2001.

6. Provided the students do not drive themselves to school, the parents of M.R. and K.K. shall each pay the sum of $1,500 to Bergen Vo-Tech for the cost of transporting each child from the pick-up point to the Bergen Vo-Tech and back, and this shall be the maximum amount paid by the parents each year to the Bergen County Vocational Technical School for any purpose under the terms of this Agreement.

7. By letter of February 11, 1998, attached hereto and made a part hereof, Dr. John Greico, the Superintendent of Schools of Bergen County Vocational Technical School has represented to the Director of the Office of School to Career and College Initiatives of the New Jersey State Department of Education that his district will no longer accept out of county students in either the Academies, Institutes, or regular programs. In response, Commissioner Leo Klagholz has informed Bergen Vo-Tech that any future plans to accept out of county students will require the prior permission of his office. Based upon the above cited letter, it is the expectation of the Pompton Lakes Board of Education that none of its students will be solicited or admitted to any program at Bergen Vo-Tech in the foreseeable future.

8. While there is no present expectation that any further Pompton Lakes students will be admitted to Bergen County Vocational Technical School District, the parties nonetheless hereby agree that should such an admission and subsequent attendance occur, the following terms shall apply:

   a. In the first year of the student's attendance, the cost in lieu of tuition and out of county fees at Bergen Vo-Tech will be paid by the amount of the in-county tuition charged by Passaic Vocational Technical School District multiplied by the number 1.042.

   b. The dollar amount derived by that calculation shall be the full payment in lieu of tuition and out of county fee for Bergen Vocational Technical School District, not only in the first year of the students' attendance, but in each and every year of the students' attendance, without additional increase.

c. Transportation arrangements necessary for said students shall be made between Bergen County Vocational Technical School District and the parents of the accepted student/s. The Pompton Lakes Board of Education shall have no responsibility for any transportation costs.

9. Should any provision of this Agreement be held unenforceable, the remainder of the Agreement shall nevertheless be valid and in full force and effect.

This Consent Agreement, signed and dated by counsel for each of the three parties to this dispute hereby agree that as a result of their clients' agreement to its terms, this document shall be submitted to the Office of Administrative Law to be conformed as a Consent Award.

The record and initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner accepts the proposed stipulation as settlement of the within matter, as it has been fully agreed to by all parties as a means of ending the present litigation. In so doing, however, he clarifies that such acceptance in no way establishes a precedent that would preclude students in the respondent district or elsewhere outside Bergen County from attending the Bergen County Vocational Technical School District, with tuition and transportation provided by the district of residence, where they are so entitled by law.

Accordingly, the Commissioner approves the settlement terms and adopts the settlement as the final decision in this matter. The matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement and the clarification stated herein.*

BEFORE KATHRYN A. CLARK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioners, parents of a 16 year old buy, D.B., claimed that the action of the Board of Education of the Monmouth Regional School District in expelling D.B., deprived their son of due process and further, that the action of the BOE was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. In this action, they have requested emergent relief and reinstatement of their son so that he may enter the 11th grade in September, 1997.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner appealed to the Department of Education and on July 10, 1997 the Department of Education transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing and determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52: 14B-1 to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

The matter was scheduled for oral argument on the motion for emergent relief on July 16, 1997 at 3:00 p.m. The oral argument on the motion was heard on July 16, 1997 at 3:00 p.m., at the Office of Administrative Law, Quakerbridge Road, Hamilton, New Jersey.

DISCUSSION OF THE TESTIMONY AND EVIDENCE

On March 4, 1997, D.B. and two of his friends, A.C. and C.G., were detained by two school officials. The boys smelled of marijuana, and later testing showed that there was marijuana present in their bodies. All three eventually admitted smoking marijuana on school grounds.

A search of D.B.'s shoes and socks revealed three small zip-lock bags of marijuana and a search of his backpack revealed a piece of foil that smelled of burnt marijuana. There was no indication that the other two boys had any drugs or drug paraphernalia in their possession.

C.G. was suspended for 1 day. A.C. was suspended for 10 days. D.B. was expelled at the March 18, 1997 meeting of the BOE. A letter sent to D.B.'s parents on March 6 stated the charges, i.e., possession of a C.D.S., intent to distribute a C.D.S. and being under the influence of a C.D.S. As the charges were uncontested, the BOE's counsel said that the BOE did not hold an actual "hearing" on the expulsion, and no report containing a discussion of testimony, findings or conclusions was produced, in large part because D.B. admitted to smoking and being in possession of marijuana. The result of the BOE's meeting of March 18, 1997 was a short letter to the parents saying that their son was expelled (Petitioner's brief, exhibit 1.)

Petitioner's counsel claimed that this letter was inadequate to apprise petitioner fully of the reasons why the BOE made its decision. The petitioner also argued that the BOE was treating D.B. disproportionately, as opposed to his two friends, C.G. and A.C., and also as opposed to other students who were found with illegal drugs.

The petitioner claimed that D.B. was suffering irreparable harm by the expulsion, that he was undergoing counseling, that all his recent drug tests have come back negative, that he realized the error of his ways, that he was being denied the opportunity to participate in extracurricular activities, such as baseball, and that the cost of home studies was unjustified as D.B. was entitled to a free public education.

The BOE countered by pointing out that this present appeal was not brought until almost the last minute, that D.B. had lost three months of school already as a result of his own actions and that home or alternate schooling had not been requested by D.B. The BOE counsel went on to point out that it is very unlikely that D.B. would be allowed to participate in extracurricular activities because he would probably be on probation if he returned to school. Further, the BOE was entitled to treat D.B. differently from A.C. and C.G. because of D.B.'s extensive disciplinary record and because he was the only one in possession of drugs and drug paraphernalia. Also, there are alternatives available to D.B. for a free public education or he can be transferred to another school district, as well as a private or parochial school.

The BOE counsel said that the likelihood of D.B. being able to enter 11th grade was remote before this incident, because of his poor academic record.

The undersigned raised the question as to why this matter was not brought as a special education case, as D.B. has a P.I. classification. However, D.B.'s parents chose to proceed.

D.B. is to appear in Family Intake on July 17, 1997, on the charge of possession of less than 50 grams.

DISCUSSION

D.B.'s parents are seeking a stay of the BOE's actions, so that D.B. may begin the 11th grade in September, 1997.

Leaving aside the boy's discipline problems, it is not at all evident that D.B. would have passed the 10th grade, or would be entitled, in September, 1997, to enter the 11th grade. He missed at least 3 months of school at the end of his 10th grade. He did not take his final exams, and his grades up until his expulsion in March do not inspire confidence that he would have passed the 10th grade. If, indeed, D.B. is in summer school, is he likely to pass and will he earn enough credits to enable him to pass the 10th grade before the start of the 1997-1998 school year?

CONCLUSION

The action of the Board in expelling D.B. was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The law is well-settled that a board of education may expel a student for sufficient cause. The treatment of D.B. is indeed different from that afforded his two friends, and may be different from that afforded to other students in other cases at other times. But there is not a factual similarity between and among all the students mentioned, sufficient so that the penalty handed out to D.B. appears to be disproportionate or unreasonable. Further, no violation of due process to the extent that emergent relief would be mandated is shown. The likelihood of success on the merits is yet to be determined. The favorable reports from his counsellors are commendable, but they are after the fact. Also, the advisability of ordering the District, now, to admit D.B. into the 11th grade for the fall term is questionable. The emergent relief petition is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter, including the audiotape of emergent proceedings by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) and the initial decision on Motion for Emergent Relief of the Office of Administrative Law, have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ denying emergent relief as petitioners failed to meet the standards for such relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) and N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5.

Accordingly, the ALJ's determination to deny emergent relief is adopted for the reasons expressed therein and this matter shall duly proceed on its merits in accordance with the ALJ's recommendation.

MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT

This Agreement between ANGEL LUIS JUARBE, Petitioner, (hereafter referred to as "Petitioner") and the STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, Respondent, (hereafter referred to as "DISTRICT" and collectively referred to as the "Parties") in the matter before the State of New Jersey, Department of Education, Agency Docket No. 488-11/96, wherein the Parties desire to settle all items in dispute with respect to the above matter, hereby agree, as follows:

1. Effective July 1, 1997, and upon a satisfactory performance evaluation for the 1996-1997 school year, the DISTRICT agrees Petitioner's salary and placement on the appropriate salary guide shall be restored prospectively for the 1997-1998 school year. The increment shall not be restored in the event an unsatisfactory performance evaluation is received.

2. The Petitioner agrees to withdraw the Petition filed with the State of New Jersey, Department of Education, Agency Docket No. 488-11/96. This provision is applicable in the event of a satisfactory or unsatisfactory evaluation.

3. The DISTRICT agrees to withdraw its Answer to the Petition filed with the State of New Jersey, Department of Education, Agency Docket No. 488-11/96.

4. The Parties hereby release, waive, and forever discharge any and all past, present and future claims they may have against each other which arises out of this Petition.

5. This Agreement contains the entire agreement and understanding between the parties and constitutes full and final agreement on any and all issues relating to the Petition filed by Petitioner against the DISTRICT.

6. This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New Jersey.

7. If, during the term of this Agreement, a specific clause of the Agreement is determined to be illegal or in violation of any Federal or State law, the remainder of the Agreement shall not be affected by such a ruling and shall remain in full force and effect.

8. The Parties shall be bound by the terms and conditions of this Agreement, finding it to be fair and equitable under all circumstances surrounding this matter.

9. The terms and conditions of this Agreement are subject to the ratification and approval by the DISTRICT.

10. The parties have entered into this Agreement freely and voluntarily with a fuli understanding of their rights and the contents of this Agreement.

11. This Agreement may not be altered, amended or modified except by a writing, signed and duly authorized by all parties.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereunder set their hands and seals to this Agreement effective on the 9th day of April, 1997.

Re: Mildred Peloso v. State Operated School District of the City of Newark
Agency Dkt. No. 491-11/96

Dear Judge Clancy:

Enclosed please find a fully executed Memorandum of Agreement with respect to the above captioned matter. It is the position of the parties that this Memorandum of Agreement resolves all items in dispute with respect to the above captioned matter.

For that reason, I am respectfully requesting that this Memorandum of Agreement be filed and incorporated into an Order closing out the matter.

By copy of this letter, I have provided a copy of the Memorandum of Agreement to Derlys Maria Gutierrez, Esq. on behalf of the State Operated School District of the City of Newark.

Thank you.

Very truly yours,

ANTHONY P. SCIARRILLO

MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT

This Agreement between MILDRED PELOSO, Petitioner, (hereafter referred to as "Petitioner") and the STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, Respondent, (hereafter referred to as "DISTRICT" and collectively referred to as the "Parties") in the matter before the State of New Jersey, Department of Education, Agency Docket No. 491-11/96, wherein the Parties desire to settle all items in dispute with respect to the above matter, hereby agree, as follows:

1. Effective July 1, 1997, and upon a satisfactory performance evaluation for the 1996-1997 school year, the DISTRICT agrees Petitioner's salary and placement on the appropriate salary guide shall be restored prospectively for the 1997-1998 school year. The increment shall not be restored in the event an unsatisfactory performance evaluation is received.

2. The Petitioner agrees to withdraw the Petition filed with the State of New Jersey, Department of Education, Agency Docket No. 491-11/96. This provision is applicable in the event of a satisfactory or unsatisfactory evaluation.

3. The DISTRICT agrees to withdraw its Answer to the Petition filed with the State of New Jersey, Department of Education, Agency Docket No. 491-11/96.

4. The Parties hereby release, waive, and forever discharge any and all past, present and future claims they may have against each other which arises out of this Petition.

5. This Agreement contains the entire agreement and understanding between the parties and constitutes full and final agreement on any and all issues relating to the Petition filed by Petitioner against the DISTRICT.

6. This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New Jersey.

7. If, during the term of this Agreement, a specific clause of the Agreement is determined to be illegal or in violation of any Federal or State law, the remainder of the Agreement shall not be affected by such a ruling and shall remain in full force and effect.

8. The Parties shall be bound by the terms and conditions of this Agreement, finding it to be fair and equitable under all circumstances surrounding this matter.

9. The terms and conditions of this Agreement are subject to the ratification and approval by the DISTRICT.

10. The parties have entered into this Agreement freely and voluntarily with a full understanding of their rights and the contents of this Agreement.

11. This Agreement may not be altered, amended or modified except by a writing, signed and duly authorized by all parties.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereunder set their hands and seals to this Agreement effective on the 7th day of April, 1997.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent challenged as arbitrary and capricious the Board's decision to impose a four-month suspension on her son, C.C., for allegedly assaulting a teacher.

Based on the record and witness testimony, the ALJ concluded that due process requirements were met with respect to the initial suspension, the continuation of the suspension, and the notification of the parent and student of the date of the expulsion hearing. Moreover, the ALJ concluded that the Board's decision to advance to expulsion proceedings was based on the determination that C.C. was not a classified student and, therefore, was ineligible for special education. ALJ concluded that the Board's action suspending C.C. for four months rather then expelling him was appropriate and affirmed such action.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BEFORE MARIA MANCINI La FIANDRA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, P.C., is challenging the decision of Respondent Board of Education of Rahway to impose a four month suspension on her son, C. C., for assaulting a teacher as arbitrary and capricious. This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on May 24, 1996 for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A.. 52:14F-1 to -13.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the evidence presented at the hearing, as well as on the opportunity to observe the witnesses and assess their credibility, I make the following findings of fact, which are essentially undisputed, in this matter:

1. During the 1995-1996 school year, C. C. was a student in the eighth grade at Rahway Intermediate School.

2. Lara Moskowitz (nee Selesner), hereinafter Moskowitz, was a teacher at the same school during that time. She was a member of a three person teaching team also consisting of Mr. Curnow and Mr. Spaulding, all of whom were present at the time the incident giving rise to this claim occurred.

3. A detention was held on September 29, 1995. There were between 10 and 20 attendees.

4. C.C. was a part of the detention group.

5. C.C. did not report to the initial detention to which Ms. Moskowitz had assigned him nor did he report to the central detention to which he had been assigned.

6. C. C. left detention on September 29 at about 3:20 p.m. before the group was dismissed at 3:30 p.m.

7. C. C. had not completed homework assignments on several occasions. This was the reason for his detention.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The ultimate issue in this case is, whether in light of the circumstances giving rise to the action of Respondent in suspending C.C., the four month suspension was appropriate. Determination of this issue requires resolution of the question of whether C. C. intentionally struck his teacher with his shoulder upon leaving the room.

Ms. Moskowitz and Mr. Spaulding both testified that, in leaving the classroom C. C. did strike Moskowitz, who was standing in the hallway outside of the classroom, with his shoulder. As a result, Moskowitz stumbled, but did not fall, backward. C. C., on the other hand, testified that he did not strike her shoulder at all; moreover, she was inside the classroom, blocking the doorway. He further stated that he "faked left" and then went to the right, a behavior which I find to be provocative under the circumstances, because, if Moskowitz was in C. C.'s path, his faking left would have demonstrated that she did not have to move since she was obviously positioned to his right.

In addition, the testimony from both sides indicates that C.C. was upset and resentful at having been forced to attend this detention. Indeed, C. C. himself testified that he felt he did not deserve to be there, he was upset, he voiced his feelings, and he decided that he did not want to be there (at detention), so he left.

Taking the following factors into consideration:

(a) this incident took place after only approximately 3 1/2 weeks of school;

(b) C. C. admitted that he had not completed his homework assignment in a timely fashion;

(c) C.C. admitted that he had not attended the previous detentions to which Ms. Moskowitz had assigned him;

(d) C. C.'s admission that he "faked" left; and

(e) C. C.'s resentment at being kept in detention,

I CONCLUDE that C. C. exhibited an attitude of total defiance of authority during the course of the detention. I FURTHER CONCLUDE that C. C. intentionally struck Ms. Moskowitz as he left the detention room with enough force to cause her to stumble backwards. Accordingly, I FURTHER CONCLUDE that C.C. attempted to cause the teacher bodily injury.

Since Respondent has demonstrated, by a preponderance of the evidence that an assault on Ms. Moskowitz did take place[1], the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1, requiring immediate suspension, consistent with due process, pending suspension or expulsion proceedings before the local Board of Education when an assault, as committed on certain Board employees including, among others, teachers, acting in performance of her duties where her authority to act is apparent, applies. According to the same statutory provision such proceedings are to take place no later than 21 calendar days following the day of suspension.

[1] N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1 provides that a person is guilty of assault if he attempts to cause . . . bodily injury to another

Turning to the issue of the immediate suspension, consistent with due process, the record reveals that Mr. Yergalonis, at that time the Principal of Rahway Intermediate School, met with P.C. and C. C. on October 2 at 3:00 p.m., after a ten-day suspension of C. C. had been approved by the Superintendent (R-1). By letter dated October 5, 1995, P.C. was advised that the suspension hearing was set for October 17, 1995, at 3:00 p.m.; moreover, the notice of the suspension hearing states that P. C. could bring "any persons and materials to provide a response to the allegations . . . (R-2). The notice was hand delivered and receipt was acknowledged by P. C. (R-3). I CONCLUDE that the suspension hearing was scheduled and held within the statutory parameters.

As a result of the "due process suspension hearing, Mr. Yergalonis recommended expulsion proceedings be initiated and C. C.'s suspension was continued through November 21, 1995. During the period between October 17 and November 21, 1995, an evaluation of C. C. was conducted to determine whether he should participate in the special education program. It was determined that he was not eligible for special education (R-5b). P. C. neither agreed nor disagreed with this determination (R-5c).

The record indicates that P. C. was advised of each step the district took, from the notice of immediate suspension up to and including the decision of the Board on November 21, 1995 to continue the suspension of C. C. until the regular meeting of the Board on December 18, 1995, at which time an expulsion hearing was to be held. The Superintendent's letter dated December 4, 1995 advised Petitioner of her right to have counsel present at that time and P.C. requested an adjournment of the December 18, 1995 date in order to give her time to seek legal representation.

Based on the documents in evidence, as well as on the testimony of Mr. Yergalonis, I CONCLUDE that due process requirements were met with respect to the initial suspension, the continuation of the suspension, and the notification of the parent and student of the date of the expulsion hearing.

It is clear from the record that the initial suspension was continued in order to afford the parties the opportunity to have the Child Study Team (CST) evaluate C. C.;

upon finding him ineligible for the special education class, the Board on November 21 apparently decided to consider expulsion, an option granted under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. The first indication that the Board was considering expulsion is contained in the letter of December 4, 1997 from the Superintendent. Until that time, the reference in correspondence and on the Board agenda for November 21, 1995 was to suspension.

Petitioner established, through cross examination of Mr. Yergalonis, that he had determined to seek expulsion after his initial conversation with the teacher involved, teachers who witnessed the incident and C. C. It is clear, however, from the record, that before proceeding to consider expulsion, the District continued the suspension in order to conduct the CST evaluation; accordingly, I CONCLUDE the Board's decision to proceed with expulsion proceedings was based on the determination that C. C. was not a classified student and, therefore, was ineligible for special education. The District and the Board sought to find a reason, other than defiance of authority, for C. C.'s behavior before considering the ultimate penalty of expulsion.

Finally, the adjournment of the December 18, 1995 expulsion hearing was requested by the Petitioner; the Petitioner was advised of the rescheduling of the hearing by letter sent by regular mail and certified, return receipt requested.

I CONCLUDE that the District complied with due process requirements throughout the pendency of this matter.

With respect to the position of Petitioner in her petition that the District failed to follow its own policy, Petitioner failed to address this issue in any cohesive manner during her presentation. In addition, she apparently relied on discrepancies in the various statements of witnesses of the incident. To the extent that such discrepancies may exist in the record before me, I CONCLUDE that they are not substantial and do not affect the credibility of the witnesses or the determination in this matter.

The statute under which the District proceeded, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 is clear; in a case where there has been an assault on a teacher, it is appropriate to consider expulsion as the penalty. The fact that he Board chose not to expel C. C. but to suspend him for a four month period of time is well within the discretion of the Board, based on the record before me.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the action of the Rahway Board of Education in this matter was appropriate and should be AFFIRMED. It is, therefore, hereby ORDERED that the determination of the Board be and hereby is AFFIRMED; it is FURTHER ORDERED that the petition be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, and relying upon the credibility determinations rendered by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), the Commissioner concurs that petitioner has failed to establish that C.C.'s suspension, under the circumstances herein, was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable, or otherwise improper.

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

This Agreement made this on May 29, 1997, by and between the parties, petitioner State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson ("District"), and respondent Theresa Miller, a tenured secretary.

WHEREAS, Theresa Miller ("Respondent") is a tenured secretary employed by the District;

WHEREAS, on or about March 13, 1996, tenure charges were filed against the Respondent based upon conduct unbecoming and neglect of duty;

WHEREAS, on April 4, 1996, the State District Superintendent certified the charges against the Respondent. On or About May 8, 1996, the charges were filed with the commissioner of Education;

WHEREAS, In May, 1996, the Respondent's attorney filed an Answer denying the charges with the Commissioner of Education; and

WHEREAS, in light of the nature of charges, and potential for protracted litigation, it is in the best interest of the parties to resolve the charges before the Commissioner of Education in the following matter;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, the parties hereby stipulate and agree as follows:

1. The Respondent admits to Charge One, part 2., submission of a leave request for jury duty which she did not report for, but denies the remaining charges. The Respondent agrees to the following disciplinary measures: (1) a six month suspension without pay, inclusive of the 120 day unpaid suspension previously served (May 8, 1996 to September 5, 1996) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14; and (2) an increment denial for the 1996-97 school year only. The remainder of the six month suspension will commence upon approval of this Agreement by the Commissioner of Education.

2. In light of the Respondent's employment history and performance, and weighing the evidence in this case, the District agrees to withdraw Charge One, part 1., false offer of employment, and Charge Two: Neglect of Duty.

3. The District agrees to reinstate the Respondent to a secretarial position, after the six month suspension is served, upon approval of the settlement agreement by the Commissioner of Education. The District's Personnel Office will notify the Respondent in writing of the expiration date of the suspension and the date to report to work.

4. The parties respectively acknowledge that each has had ample opportunity to seek independent legal counsel, financial or other advice regarding this Agreement, and that each is signing this Agreement freely and voluntarily, without coercion, duress or pressure from the other party.

5. This Agreement constitutes the full Agreement between the parties.

6. By entering this Agreement, each party releases and discharges the other with respect to all claims or rights that either party may have against the other. This includes all claims, including those of which either party is not aware and those not mentioned herein. The releases by each party apply to all claims resulting from anything which has happened up to now.

7. This Agreement is subject to approval by the State District Superintendent, Office Administrative Law, and Commissioner of Education.

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT AND RELEASE

The parties to this Stipulation of Settlement and Release ("Stipulation"), Shakuur A. Sabuur and Asmaa Abdus-Sabuur, individually and as Natural Parents and Guardian Ad Litem, and Aminah Abdus-Sabuur (hereinafter referred to collectively as "Sabuur" unless otherwise specified), the Orange Board of Education, individually and collectively, and Alice Dunston, Harriet L. Johnson, Luz Cantor, Charles Jackson, Roland Sanon, and Bernice Davis (hereinafter referred to collectively as the "Board" unless otherwise specified), desiring to avoid the time and expense of continued litigation and further desiring to amicably resolve the above-captioned matter, and having negotiated in good faith prior to reaching agreement as to the terms of this Stipulation of Settlement, hereby set forth their agreement as follows:

1. The Board shall pay to Sabuur the lump sum of $7,500.

2. The Board shall expunge the personnel file of Shakuur A. Sabuur of any reference to the incident that occurred in or about December, 1992, as well as all documents relating to his termination of employment, including this Stipulation. The Board also shall expunge the student records of Aminah Abdus-Sabuur of any reference to the disciplinary action taken against her relative to the December, 1992 incident.

3. The payment contained in Paragraph 1 and the promises of expungement contained in Paragraph 2 are expressly contingent upon Sabuur withdrawing, with prejudice, their petition in the above captioned matter, docketed as OAL Docket No. EDUOA-12295-95N, Agency Docket No. 178-5/94, by executing and filing with the Commissioner of Education and the Office of Administrative Law a Notice of Withdrawal, thus forever releasing the Board from any and all claims arising under or relating in any way to the above docketed matter.

4. In consideration for the promises made hereunder, Sabuur forever releases the Board and each individual respondent from any and all claims arising under or relating in any manner whatsoever to the above-captioned action. Sabuur specifically releases and gives up any and all future claims which she may have against the Board arising from or relating to the above-captioned action, including, but not limited to, claims arising under (1) the Constitution of the United States; (2) the Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq.; (3) the Constitution of the State of New Jersey; (4) any express or implied contracts in effect; (5) any collective negotiations agreement(s); (6) federal or state common law; (7) the Education Laws of the State of New Jersey, N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 et seq.; and (8) any federal, state or local statutes, ordinances and regulations.

5. This Stipulation is not and shall not in any way be construed as an admission by Sabuur. Nor shall it be construed as an admission by the Board, or any of its officials, officers, agents, attorneys, employees or representatives of the commission of any acts of wrongdoing whatsoever against Sabuur, by itself or any other person or entity, or that the Board, or any of its directors, officers, officials, agents, employees or representatives violated any federal or state constitutional prohibitions or any federal, state or local law, ordinance or regulation, or that any employment decision or action affecting Sabuur was the result of any acts which were unwarranted, unjustified, discriminatory, otherwise unlawful or in violation of an express or implied contract of employment, or in breach of any statute, regulation or public policy of the State of New Jersey, but instead constitutes the good faith settlement of all matters and the Board specifically disclaims any liability to Sabuur or any other person or entity, on the part of itself, its officials, officers, officials, agents, employees or representatives. The parties have entered into this Stipulation for the sole purpose of resolving claims, both asserted and unasserted, in order to avoid the burden, expense, delay and uncertainties of litigation. No findings of any kind have been made or issued by any court or administrative agency and neither party shall purport to be the prevailing party in this action.

6. The parties covenant and agree that they will keep the terms, amount and existence of the agreement set forth in this Stipulation completely confidential, and that they will not hereafter disclose, except as may be required by law, any information concerning the existence or terms of this Stipulation to any person, partnership, corporation, association or other legal entity, except pursuant to a Court Order, subpoena disposition notice, written interrogatories or similar formal legal request for information that provides for the imposition of sanctions for non-compliance therewith, or with the written authorization of the Board.

7. This Stipulation represents the full and complete agreement of the parties hereto and may be modified only by a writing signed by all parties hereto. This Stipulation supersedes any and all prior or contemporaneous written and/or oral statements or representations.

3d

8. Should any provision of this Stipulation be declared or be determined by any court to be illegal or invalid, the validity of the remaining parts, terms or provisions shall not be affected thereby and said illegal or invalid part, term or provision shall be deemed not to be part of this Agreement.

9. The parties acknowledge that they have consulted with their attorneys prior to executing this Stipulation and that they fully understand and accept the terms and conditions set forth herein.

WHEREFORE THE PARTIES HERETO SET THEIR HANDS.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board Green Township sought Commissioner's declaration concerning the application of the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 and of the Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA), N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 et seq., to two areas of controversy: 1) the right of sending district representative members on a receiving district's board of education to share executive session discussions of this body with the sending districts' boards and 2) the impact of these statutory provisions on the quorum requirements of the receiving district's board.

Having reviewed the parties' arguments advanced in this matter and in light of the interpretative clarification of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 provided by the May 30, 1997 decision of the Commissioner entitled Board of Education of the Borough of Lincoln Park, Morris County v. Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, Morris County, Joy Northrop DeVincenzi, and Walter Angilly, and by the July 24, 1997 decision of the Commissioner entitled Board of Education of the Borough of Little Ferry, Bergen County v. Board of Education of the Village of Ridgefield Park, Bergen County, the Commissioner declined to entertain the first issue as the Lincoln Park decision determined that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:10-1 and the OPMA, such practice of sharing executive session discussions would be impermissible. As to the second issue, the Commissioner found that with respect to the quorum and voting requirements discernment of such requirements necessarily flows from an understanding of the underlying duality of purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1. This statutory provision 1) grants the district entitlement to membership on the receiving district's board as a representative of the sending district, and 2) designates those board matters upon which the representative is eligible to vote. (Lincoln Park; Little Ferry) Thus, while the sending district's representative has limited voting rights in substantive matters before the board, in all other respects this individual shall function as a full member of the board. Given that the Newton Board herein was expanded to an eleven member Board with the addition of its two representative members, the quorum necessary to convene any meeting, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 10:4-8b, will at all times be six. Commissioner further found that voting requirements for particular substantive resolutions before the Board will vary. On all procedural matters and those substantive matters before the Board where the representative members are eligible to vote, the vote required to carry a motion will be based on a total membership of eleven. On those substantive matters where such representatives are not eligible to vote, the vote required to carry the motion will be based on a total membership of nine. Commissioner directed Newton to conform its policies and procedures with regard to quorum and voting requirements consistent with his declaration herein.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF NEWTON, SUSSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

For Petitioner, David A. Wallace, Esq.

For Respondent, Friedman, Siegelbaum (Philip E. Stern, Esq.)

This matter comes before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition for Declaratory Judgment, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1 et seq., filed by Petitioner Green Township Board of Education (hereinafter "Green") on February 7, 1997. Green requests that the Commissioner construe the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 and the provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 et seq. as these apply to two areas of controversy between the within parties, specifically 1) the right of sending district representative members on a receiving district's board of education to share executive session discussions of this body with the sending districts' boards and 2) the impact of these statutory provisions on the quorum requirements of the receiving district's board. Respondent Board of Education of the Town of Newton (hereinafter "Newton") filed its Answer in this matter on March 7, 1997.

BACKGROUND

The within parties are engaged in a sending/receiving relationship, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8, whereby Green sends its high school students, grades 9 through 12, to Newton's High School. Newton also has an essentially identical sending/receiving relationship with the Andover Regional Board of Education with respect to that body's grade 9 through 12 pupils. As a consequence of the January 1995 enactment of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, which provides that a sending district whose students comprise at least 10 percent of the total enrollment of students in the receiving district shall have a representative on the receiving district's board of education, Newton's nine member board was increased to eleven members with the addition of a representative from each of these sending districts. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, in addition to granting sending districts entitlement to membership on the receiving district's board, also identifies four specific matters upon which these representatives are eligible to vote. As a consequence of this statutory directive, the within parties refer to the matters for which the two sending district representatives are eligible to vote, pursuant to this statutory provision, as "eleven member issues" and those matters for which these individuals are not eligible to vote as "nine member issues," a distinction which is even reflected on the agendas for Newton Board meetings where each motion is designated as either a "Motion (11)" or a "Motion (9)." (Petition for Declaratory Judgment at p. 2)

POSITION OF THE PARTIES

On the first issue herein, Green advances the position that if the Newton Board discusses an "eleven member issue" in executive session, the Green representative has a right, if not a duty, to include this issue in a report to, and discussions with, the Green Board at an executive session of that body. (Green Petition for Declaratory Judgment at pp. 2-3)

Newton, on the other hand, posits that such report to, and discussions with, the Green Board are totally inappropriate, particularly with respect to Newton personnel issues which may require RICE notices. (Newton Reply at pp. 1-2)

With respect to the second question at issue, Green contends that "if a committee of the Newton Board meets to discuss a 'nine member issue,' the presence of five (5) Newton members  (a majority of the nine (9) Newton members) represents a quorum and thus constitutes a Newton Board meeting within the meaning of the Open Public Meetings Act." (Green Petition for Declaratory Judgment at p. 3)

Newton, however, maintains that the Board is now an eleven member Board, requiring six members to constitute a quorum. As such it asserts that five members do not constitute a quorum, notwithstanding the issue discussed or the composition of the committees at issue.

The parties urge that the Commissioner resolve through declaratory judgment these sensitive and recurring areas of disagreement which they perceive as fundamental to their sending/receiving relationship.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

I have reviewed the submissions of the parties filed in this matter and considered these in light of the interpretative clarifications of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 provided by the recently decided matters entitled Board of Education of the Borough of Lincoln Park, Morris County v. Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, Morris County, Joy Northrop DeVincenzi and

Walter Angilly, decided by the Commissioner May 30, 1997, and Board of Education of the Borough of Little Ferry, Bergen County v. Board of Education of the Village of Ridgefield Park, Bergen County, decided by the Commissioner July 24, 1997. Upon such review, it is apparent that the first issue raised in this matter, the question of whether sending district representative members on a receiving district's board may share executive session discussions of this body with their sending district boards, has been squarely addressed and resolved by the Commissioner's decision in Lincoln Park, wherein it was determined that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:10-1 and the Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA), N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 et seq., such a practice would be impermissible. (See Lincoln Park at pp. 19-23.) Thus, the Commissioner finds it unnecessary to entertain this portion of the within request for declaratory judgment.

With respect to the quorum and voting requirements necessitated by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 and the provisions of the OPMA, I find that discernment of such requirements necessarily flows from an understanding of the underlying duality of purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1. As was elucidated in Lincoln Park and reiterated in Little Ferry, this statutory provision 1) grants the sending district entitlement to membership on the receiving district's board of education as a representative of the sending district, and it 2) designates those matters before the board upon which the representative is eligible to vote. As such, while the representative of a sending district has limited voting rights in substantive matters before the board, in all other respects this individual shall function as a full member of the board. Therefore, the requirements necessary for quorum and voting must be amended to reflect the new total membership of the board. Given that the Newton Board herein has been expanded to an eleven member Board with the addition of its two representative members, the quorum necessary to convene any meeting, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 10:4-8b, will at all times be six.

Notwithstanding that the quorum requirement to convene meetings remains constant, voting requirements will vary dependent upon whether the sending district representatives are eligible to vote on the issue at hand. Thus, on all procedural matters, as set forth in Little Ferry, supra, and on those substantive matters before the Board where the representative members are eligible to vote, the vote required to carry a motion will be based on a total membership of eleven. On those matters where such representatives are not eligible to vote, the vote required to carry the motion will be based on a total membership of nine.

Accordingly, the Newton Board of Education is hereby directed to conform its policies and procedures with regard to quorum and voting requirements consistent with the declarations herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Vice Principal contended the Board refused to allow her to use accumulated sick days during sick leave due to a work-related injury. The issue herein was whether petitioner may elect to use her accumulated sick leave during the absence in question or whether she must accept temporary disability payments under the Workers' Compensation Act as directed by the Board.

ALJ concluded that since petitioner did not apply for workers' compensation benefits and exhausted her salary benefits pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, petitioner should have been allowed to exercise her discretion in using her accumulated sick leave to compensate for her absence while she recovered from surgery. ALJ ordered the award of $9,246 to petitioner for sick leave benefits she was denied and ordered the return of any workers' compensation benefits she received.

Commissioner granted summary decision to petitioner and directed the Board to pay petitioner the $9,246 owed. In the absence of bad faith, no pre-judgment interest was awarded.

BEFORE STEVEN C. REBACK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On March 11, 1996, the petitioner filed her appeal before the Commissioner of Education. The petition inter alia alleged that the respondent, Trenton Board of Education (Trenton) unjustifiably disallowed petitioner from utilizing any accumulated sick leave, directing her instead to obtain temporary disability payments under Workers Compensation in respect to a work-related injury. Respondent filed its answer before the Commissioner on April 2, 1996, essentially alleging that its actions in regard to petitioner's utilization of sick time and disability payments are entirely lawful and consistent with law. Thereafter, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B -15 to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, on April 10, 1996. Following extensive prehearing discussions and conferences, counsel determined to submit the matter on cross-motions for summary decision and stipulations of fact. The record closed on May 15, 1997, when my office received the petitioner's reply memorandum.

THE FACTS

The facts are not in dispute in this matter. They are based upon a stipulation of the facts entered into between the parties and signed on April 15, 1997 by counsel. The petitioner was initially employed as a classroom teacher by Trenton beginning in the 1970-1971 school year. In the 1982-1983 school year Ms. Pratico was appointed to the position of Assistant Principal to the Stokes School. Several years thereafter she was assigned to the position of Vice Principal at Trenton High School, where she serves to this day.

In April of 1993, Ms. Pratico suffered a work-related injury causing her to be absent from her employment. She remained absent for the entire 1993-1994 school year and for this period continued to receive full compensation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A-30-2.1. She returned to full time duties in or about August 1994.

In or about November 1995 the petitioner underwent surgery for the same work-related injury that she suffered in April 1993. She informed her superiors of the impending surgery before undergoing it and advised them that she would be utilizing her sick leave from the district until she returned to her employment. Petitioner is a member of the Trenton Administrators and Supervisors Association (TASA) whose agreement at Article XVI provides all administrators with the right to accumulate sick days. In November 1995 Ms. Pratico has sufficient sick days accumulated to cover her absences following her surgery. She did not apply for disability as a result of her surgery in 1995; nevertheless, after going on leave on or about November 9th the Workers Compensation carrier for Trenton, the New Jersey School Board Association and Insurance Group, commenced mailing Ms. Pratico temporary disability payments in accordance with its procedures when an employee is on leave as a consequence of a work-related injury. Ms. Pratico began drawing sick days from her accumulated sick days with her surgery in November 1995. Ms. Pratico was out of work from November 9, 1995 through either March 7 or March 16, 1996. [1]

Petitioner's record indicates that through January 26, 1996 her absences were treated as personal illness days and taken from her accumulated sick days. Subsequent to January 29, 1996, her absences were treated as sick days, which are considered non-paid accident days. The temporary disability payments, which were made to the petitioner, totaled $7,573.28; of that amount $3.448 is being held in escrow by petitioner's workers compensation attorney and an additional $3,448 was forwarded to the respondent's workers compensation attorney on February 16, 1996. Also, a check in the amount of $677.28 was returned to Trenton's counsel, in an unopened envelope, from the school board insurance group on or about July 29, 1996. All the sums received by Ms. Pratico, in the form of disability payments, have either been returned to Trenton or its counsel or are currently being held in escrow by Ms. Pratico's workers compensation counsel, who is awaiting instructions from Trenton.

For the period January 28, 1996 through March 7, 1996, respondent ceased receiving compensation salary from Trenton. It was not until the end of January 1996 that respondent commenced taking the position that petitioner's absences should not be counted as sick days when, after receiving inquiries from the petitioner as to how she could return the disability payments she received for which she never applied, Trenton realized that petitioner was receiving temporary disability paychecks while concurrently receiving her regular paychecks through the use of sick days covering the same period. It is stipulated that the compensation which Ms. Pratico should have received in accordance with the agreed upon annual salary during the period between November 9th through March 7th was $27,738. The compensation she actually received during the period was $18,492. The difference between the compensation she actually received and the compensation she would have received had a regular salary been paid through March 7, 1996 was $9,246.

[1] Paragraph 14 of the settlement erroneously has a typographical error indicating both March 7 and March 20th. March 7 is the correct date. Her position was filled by a temporary appointment.
