News from Around the State

Make the Road NJ: Know Your Rights Webinar - Happening Today!

With an increase in activity by Immigration and Customs Enforcement, library workers and administrators are invited to join Lauren Herman from Make the Road NJ and Natalie Kraner from Lowenstein Sandler, on June 2nd, at 2pm, for a valuable and timely program. Representatives will share information on the rights of library users when dealing with Immigration and Customs Enforcement and other law enforcement officials. The information presented in the program does not constitute legal advice or opinion. New Jersey library workers and administrators can click here to register.

Open Call for Revolutionary Acts

Monument Lab—in partnership with the New Jersey State Council on the Arts, the New Jersey Historical Commission, and RevolutionNJ—is launching an Open Call for Artist Ideas to commission a new monumental performance series in New Jersey that will animate histories and legacies of the American Revolution in 2026.

Revolutionary Acts invites artists who live or work in New Jersey to propose a performance-based work that will unfold across sites in Camden, Trenton, and Fort Lee. The selected artist will collaborate with local partners to activate these sites, weaving together stories of the state's and nation's past, present, and future.
