Honored guests and my fellow New Jerseyans –

Today, as we assess the state of our state, and look ahead to the challenges of 2009, I cannot help but feel an overwhelming sense of pride in the people of New Jersey.

Despite the challenges of today's national economic crisis, the people of our state are pushing forward in building better schools ...broadening access to health care ... making our streets safer ... and building a more secure world.

Our state has long been blessed by its deep well of talent and by the character of its people – people who have built, in good times and bad, a tradition of achievement and excellence.

From the founding wisdom of Stockton and Kean ... to the genius of Edison and Einstein ... to the proud voices of Robeson and Springsteen...

From the poetry of Carlos Williams and the prose of Toni Morrison ... to the leadership of President Wilson and General Odierno
.....

New Jersey and the nation have been shaped by our state's extraordinary people.

This era is no exception.

Our determination remains strong -- our drive is undiminished -- and our work ethic knows no bounds.

We are a creative, "can-do" people who, with fortitude and spirit, will work through today's challenging times.

Despite the economic tsunami that's engulfing the nation, I believe that the character and fundamentals of our state are equal to any task we face.

We generate the highest incomes in the nation.

We educate our children in schools that are the envy of others.

We maintain a highly respected justice system.

We provide a strong safety net for the most vulnerable.

And, we have always welcomed newcomers from other shores, embracing the value of diversity and pluralism.

Yes -- New Jersey is a state committed to achievement and excellence.

Now at a time of national crisis, New Jerseyans are leading the nation in confronting our security and economic challenges.

Last week I was in Iraq, where nearly 4,000 citizen-soldiers of our National Guard, Reserves, and active duty personnel are serving.

Today, we have the largest foreign deployment of New Jersey's National Guard since World War II.

With courage, discipline, and professionalism, our men and women in uniform are making steep sacrifices so that we might be safe. We are all grateful.

Major Dwayne Kelley was one of those citizen soldiers.

Last year, he went to Iraq for his third tour of duty.

He left behind a wife, two daughters, a mother, a sister and a brother – a family bursting with pride for him.

But his tours in Iraq weren't the only job in which Major Kelley put his life on the line for his fellow citizens.

Major Kelley was also Trooper Kelley.

Brought up in Willingboro ... raising his family in South Orange ... Kelley served more than 20 years in the State Police, where he attained the rank of detective sergeant first class as a counterterrorism expert, fluent in Arabic.

Major Kelley ... father and husband ... sadly was one of 10 people – 4 Americans – killed in a roadside bomb in Sadr City on June 24, 2008.

Our hearts go out to his family.

His widow, Manita, and their daughter, Mushirah, intended to join us here today, but they had to tend to a family emergency.

Words cannot express their sacrifice ... their fortitude ... or their loss. God bless them.

Whether it's the brave men and women I met in Iraq ... or the food pantry volunteers -- including Assemblywoman Coyle -- I joined several weeks ago in Bound Brook ... or the advocacy and faith-based groups counseling people on how to modify their mortgages and stay in their homes or small business owners struggling to meet payroll each week ...

New Jerseyans are tough, and resilient, and we are fighting back against a national economic recession exceeded in depth and duration only by the Great Depression of the 1930s.

We see that spirit in every public school, every senior center, every hospital, and in every place where people come together, day-by-day, to reaffirm a basic truth: 'We are our brother's keeper – we are our sister's keeper.'

People also came together last November 4th, when our citizens in record numbers voted overwhelmingly to elect Barack Obama our next president.

In doing so, our voters embraced a new vision for America – a progressive vision we share in New Jersey.

In fact, it's a vision we've been working to achieve for three years – ... a vision that we must responsibly share our economic bounty ... that all of our children deserve a thorough and efficient education ... that health care is a right ... that we have a moral responsibility to be good stewards of the Earth.

Barack Obama's vision is our vision.

And now, thankfully, starting next Tuesday, New Jerseyans have a partner in Washington – a partner who will join us in pursuing a common vision.

Change is in the air.

With that change, I truly believe that as a nation and as a state, our best days lie ahead.

That said ... it's impossible to ignore the deep challenges we face today.

We have been in the grips of a national recession since the fall of 2007.

Our country's financial system hovers near collapse.

Home values, personal savings, and the securities markets have plunged.

The national unemployment rate has soared to over 7%, with expectations of a 9% to 10% rate in the year ahead.

Our citizens' economic security has been compromised.

Our people did not cause this meltdown – its causes are beyond their control and are national even global in scope.

The cost of this colossal economic meltdown is far more than the trillions of dollars of lost value in the securities markets and economic production – it goes well beyond any batch of statistics. The cost must be understood in the pain and anxiety of our neighbors.

Last month, I attended an anti-poverty conference here in Trenton -- a conference where I heard three life stories of people struggling just to stay afloat in these troubling times.

A single mom told us that she lost her home to foreclosure because of a predatory mortgage.

She worked for 30 years as a corrections officer -- never did she imagine she would be out on the street.

A young man described how he lost his job, then his apartment, and then his ability to put food on his table.

A young woman told us how she struggled to get critical health care after she lost her job and her insurance, and was being forced toward bankruptcy.

These three people were prepared to work hard and play by the rules.

They were caught up in forces well beyond their control.

And when good people are at the end of their rope, they need to know that government is there to lend a helping hand.

I wish I could say the impact of the national recession is limited to a few stories ... but it's not.

- Food pantry calls are up 30% to 40%.

- 48,000 New Jerseyans received foreclosure notices in 2008, and their ranks are growing.

- The number of unemployed and uninsured is exploding.

It is in this context that we have made the economy Priority #1, Priority #2, and Priority #3.

It is in the human context that we have initiated efforts to combat hunger, to provide home heating and utility assistance, to offer legal aid, and to address the foreclosure crisis through mediation and financial assistance.

Our foreclosure prevention initiatives are a model for the nation.

Similarly, New Jersey is at the forefront of the nation's efforts to provide healthcare to our citizens.

When the Bush administration tried to kick 10,000 kids out of New Jersey's Family Care program ... we said 'no!'

Instead, we expanded our program to cover every child and enrolled more working and moderate-income families.

Thank you, Senator Vitale, for your leadership on broadening access to healthcare.

The Senator knows, and we know, that getting people insured saves money ... and saves lives.

Another critical element of our health system is our network of community health centers, which serve almost 350,000 uninsured or underinsured New Jerseyans.

We need these clinics today more than ever, as more people lose their insurance or struggle with their out-of-pocket expenses.

That's why we've increased our reimbursement rates and provided additional grant funding.

One network that will be receiving grant support is Community Health Care, which operates 17 facilities in Cumberland, Gloucester, and Cape May Counties.

Community will be using these funds to expand innovative prenatal care, helping women maintain healthy pregnancies while reducing infant mortality.

We are joined today by Dr. Michelle Torchia, who has made healthy pregnancies and babies her life's mission at Community.

Thank you, Dr. Torchia, for all that you do.

I'm proud that the State has been able to partner with private institutions like Community Health Care even as we had to make major cuts to balance the budget.

As you recall, the fiscal 2009 budget cut spending by $600 million year-over-year, as we anticipated a gathering national recession and shrinking revenues.

By the close of the calendar year, the deepening recession had required us to cut spending by another $800 million.

That's a total of $1.4 billion in cuts in this fiscal year alone.

Let me repeat -- $1.4 billion ... not in the rate of growth, but in absolute dollars.

It's been painful, and we've had to make many ugly choices.

But together with my partners in the Legislature, we are making the hard choices.

Senator Buono and Assemblymen Greenwald have been especially diligent in taking on this challenge, and I thank them for their partnership.

Just as we've taken action to discipline spending and shore up New Jersey's safety net for our most vulnerable ... we've also built a foundation for future economic recovery.

We began by offering small and mid-size businesses $3,000 for each new job created over the next year.

Additionally, wherever I go, small business owners tell me that they're having trouble getting loans.

That's why we're encouraging new lending through innovative credit facilities and placing deposits with New Jersey's community-oriented banks.

Most importantly, we are creating jobs by accelerating public investments in roads, bridges, school construction, and the new mass transit tunnel under the Hudson.

In the next year alone, we're committing $4.7 billion in high-return investments ... saving or creating as many as 42,000 New Jersey jobs.

We all know that infrastructure matters.

We saw the high cost of failure in Minneapolis and New Orleans.

These investments not only create jobs today -- they will provide returns for all New Jerseyans tomorrow.

Just talk to the students I visited at the Oliver Street School in Newark.

Their building is overcrowded and crumbling -- classes in English as a Second Language are held in the hallway -- special education classes are crammed into a windowless coat closet.

Oliver Street School was built in 1869. Ulysses S. Grant was president that year.

Can we really expect our children to learn and to grow to their fullest potential when their classrooms are in a closet?

That's why I fought to authorize $3.9 billion in new school construction funds --money that can be leveraged into $5.4 billion in investments across the state.

My hat goes off to Senator Rice and Assemblyman Coutinho, who stood with me to do right by New Jersey's school children.

Through all of these initiatives, we're planting the seeds for future prosperity.

We are positioning as many people and businesses as possible to survive the national recession ... and then thrive once the inevitable recovery begins.

We've structurally reformed our oft-criticized corporate tax code ... reforms that will encourage investment, and research & development ... reforms that will allow businesses to recoup operating losses and competitively align our rates with those of surrounding states.

These actions are especially beneficial to our core biotech, pharma, high-tech and alternative-energy sectors.

We've taken steps to expedite regulatory review and offer permit relief in this time of recession.

It is through this comprehensive approach that we expect to maintain a lower unemployment rate than the rest of the nation.

Today, New Jersey's unemployment stands at 6.1% – nationally, the rate is 7.2%.

Make no mistake –as long as one New Jerseyan is unemployed, we have work to do.

While we are reducing corporate taxes, we have also expanded the Senior Freeze on property taxes to include 70,000 additional senior households.

And, we have continued to expand the Earned Income Tax Credit ... making work pay.

Let me repeat -- getting our state through this national economic crisis is my Number One, Number Two, and Number Three priority.

Current economic circumstances dictate that we take steps which in normal times I would not.

It is regrettable that over a period of at least 15 years, when the sun was shining and the economy was strong, New Jersey failed to put its financial house in order ... particularly our public pension system.

It's only because of today's financial crisis that I've recommended giving local governments the option of deferring a percentage of their employee pension payments.

To be sure, I have demonstrated a commitment to the solvency of our pension system.

Over the past three years, we've contributed more money to that system than previous administrations have in the preceding 15 years combined.

Our plan doesn't require towns to put off pension payments -- it simply gives them a tool to work through this financial emergency.

Some may not need to exercise their option.

But others will have to either seek cap waivers, leading to significant property tax hikes, or impose unacceptable cuts in public safety and other vital services.

Yes, the economy and its harsh impact on our people remain our most significant challenges.

That said, we have not turned our back on long-term strategic goals like reforming and restructuring our state finances ... improving government ethics ...enhancing public safety and education ... and protecting the state's most vulnerable citizens.

Even as we've cut the budget by $1.4 billion, we've continued to reshape and reduce the size of government.

Today, there are nearly 4,000 fewer employees on the state payroll than when I took office and 3,000 fewer at our independent authorities.

That's 7,000 people! By comparison, nearly half of our municipalities have fewer residents than our personnel reductions.

We've also scrubbed line-by-line state government for inefficiencies and implemented departmental consolidations ...

We ended Christmas tree spending ...

We improved the timing and transparency of the budget process ...

We approved a constitutional amendment to give voters a greater voice on state borrowing ...

These ideas have been on the table for nearly two decades.

We made them happen.

Additionally, starting with the upcoming year's budget, I have through Executive Order required that recurring expenditures be matched with recurring revenues.

We're ending our dependency on gimmicks and one-shots.

Meaningful reforms are in place.

We are truly doing more with less.

This past year, we also made progress on ethics reform, although not enough to my liking.

As you know, I've taken steps through executive orders to close loopholes in the state pay-to-play ban ... including by extending that ban to state redevelopment contracts.

We created the office of Comptroller to audit the use of public money.

I put a former prosecutor, Matt Boxer, to work systematically searching for breakdowns in financial controls and government efficiencies.

Now I am asking you, the Legislature, to end pay-to-play, wheeling, and no-bid contracts at all levels of government ... to lower the limit on campaign contributions to county committees ... and to make the state ethics committee a public-member only body.

These initiatives come in addition to steps taken by the previous Legislature to end dual-office holding, among other measures.

I want to acknowledge the contributions of Senate President Codey who, as governor, helped enact one of the strongest state pay-to-play bans in the nation ... and the efforts of Speaker Roberts, who overhauled the Legislature's ethics commission and has been a champion of publicly-financed campaigns.

With continuing ethical and legal breakdowns by some, and with pay-to-play headlines unfolding in Alaska, Illinois, and other states, we must act to restore the public trust.

People deserve a government they can trust.

People have a right to know that when a decision is made, when a contract is awarded, when a law is passed, the officials in charge had only one thing in mind: the public good.

Let's complete our agenda on ethics because it's the right thing to do.

In addition to my fiscal and ethics reform agendas, no issue has been closer to my heart than education.

Our schools, from pre-K through college, rank among the very best in the nation.

This month, Education Week rated us as one of the top five systems for overall performance in the nation and number two in providing a chance for our graduates to succeed in life.

Test scores across the state reinforce their conclusion.

Results count.

We already lead the country in graduation rates and in access to quality pre-school.

While there are clear exceptions, New Jersey schools give most of our children an exceptional opportunity to build a bright future.

The new school funding formula for which we now are seeking court approval will only strengthen our commitment to success.

That formula recognizes that 50 percent of disadvantaged students live beyond the borders of Abbott districts.

The formula fulfills the state's obligation to provide a thorough and efficient education to all children, wherever they live.

In fact, even though we cut the overall state budget by $1.4 billion, we've held firm in increasing total spending on education by nearly $500 million.

Beyond our financial commitment, we're also working to upgrade standards, curricula, and graduation requirements in all of our schools.

We've been collaborating with Colin and Alma Powell's effort to substantially lower dropout rates.

Again, obviously, results matter, but outcomes are best measured in more than just statistics.

We educate our young people one student at a time.

We are joined today by one of New Jersey's bright hopes for the future.

Kamaris Loor came to New Jersey from Ecuador in 1995 and is on track to graduate this spring from Union City High School with a 4.2 grade point average – I didn't even know you could get a 4.2 GPA.

Kamaris is a county champion in the 100 meter butterfly – she did cancer research at the Susan Lehman Cancer Research Center -- and next year, Kamaris will attend Brown University to begin a joint undergraduate and medical degree program.

She is clearly on a track of success.

But ... behind every student's success is an exceptional teacher.

Nadia Makar is the science chairperson at Kamaris' high school, where she has been a career educator for 35 years.

Nadia is a prime example of the excellence you'll find among teachers in New Jersey's classrooms.

Kamaris isn't alone. In fourth, eighth, and eleventh grades -- and in both language arts and math -- test score improvements in Union City are beating the state average.

I'd like to ask Kamaris and Nadia to stand and be recognized -- not only for what they've achieved, but in recognition of all the great schools across New Jersey.

Beyond pre-K through 12, I need not tell you about the excellence of our county and state colleges and public universities.

They continue to provide an affordable path for our young people from all walks of life to access the American promise.

To that end, even in difficult times like the last three years, we've expanded financial aid for New Jersey's low- and moderate-income college students.

Now ... let me turn to another focus for success.

We've taken great strides in making New Jersey a safer place to live.

In 2007, we achieved a 7% statewide reduction in violent crime and an 11% reduction in murder.

In the first three quarters of 2008, we have achieved another 7% reduction in violent crime, and an additional 6% decrease in murders.

Eighteen months ago, I launched a statewide anti-crime plan in cooperation with local authorities to bring safety to our streets and neighborhoods.

We addressed the issue comprehensively through prevention, re-entry and enforcement initiatives.

Gangs were stealing young lives and leaving people in fear of letting their children play on our streets.

So ... we marshaled resources across state departments and local law enforcement agencies to focus on reducing gang, gun, and drug activity.

The results are showing up on the streets of Newark, Asbury Park, Vineland, and communities throughout the state.

I want to thank Assembly Majority Leader Watson Coleman for her leadership on this issue, and Mayor Booker for his hard work and cooperation.

Just as we are addressing crime, we have been tackling highway and pedestrian safety, and we've realized exceptional results.

One of our most important safety measures is increased awareness of seatbelt use.

As you can imagine, I have a personal stake in this issue.

I'm blessed to be here today, and if one more person decides to buckle up because of my poor example, then something good will have come from my mistake.

Through enforcement and education – particularly for teenage drivers – and with previously higher gas prices ... highway deaths dropped by 127 lives year over year – that's a drop of nearly 18%.

Highway deaths are down to a level not seen in the past 25 years.

Fewer drunk drivers on our roads, stricter licensing requirements on young drivers, and enforcement of seat belt laws have resulted in fewer accidents and fatalities.

Safer roads and better drivers should result in lower auto insurance rates and overall economic costs.

On another public safety front, the protection of our most vulnerable children remains one of our highest moral responsibilities.

Over the past three years, our newly created Department of Children and Families took a sometimes broken, understaffed, and flawed system and made it a ray of hope for at-risk kids.

The department found permanent homes for 4,200 children, drastically reducing the backlog and caseloads.

And the department recruited over 5,200 new foster and adoptive families – a net gain of more than 1,800 safe, stable, and loving homes for foster children.

We rebuilt a broken system and are on track to becoming one of the very best.

These efforts are driven by dedicated public employees – people like James Williams.

As a senior case worker at the Division of Youth and Family Services, James stands up every day for New Jersey's most vulnerable children.

So on behalf of all his colleagues, I'd like to invite James to stand up and accept the thanks of a grateful state for moving us from a position of weakness to a position of success in protecting our children.

These highlighted achievements and work in no way describe the entirety of our agenda and activities.

Keep in mind:

* We enacted a family leave insurance program -- the second in the nation.

* We strengthened our worker's compensation system.

* We continued reform of our public pension system.

* We appointed record numbers of women and minorities to the bench.

* We created the office of supplier diversity.

* We built and dedicated a long-overdue World War II memorial.

* We reformed the Charity Care funding formula to better protect health care for our most vulnerable, especially in our urban areas.

* We created an inter-agency Council on the Prevention of Homelessness.

* We finalized the Highlands Master Plan.

* We built and participated in a regional auction system for carbon credits.

* And ... we have delivered a nationally recognized Energy Master Plan as well as a Greenhouse Gas Reduction Plan.

No one has been more instrumental in shepherding environmental initiatives than my former DEP commissioner, Lisa Jackson.

I had hoped to introduce Lisa today, but tomorrow, I'm proud to say she is appearing before the United States Senate for her confirmation hearing as EPA Administrator.

As you know, Lisa is the only state commissioner to be nominated by President-elect Obama for his Cabinet -- and I know you'll join me in wishing her great success.

Now, as we look toward fiscal year 2010, it's probable that the national recession will continue to take a toll on our revenues, and in March, I will undoubtedly propose additional, painful cuts.

Even with these harsh realities, we must continue to do everything we can to limit the impact of budget cuts on the state's most vulnerable citizens, our children's education, and public safety.

Some of our work outside of the budget will be complex and controversial.

A case in point -- today, I am sending formal instruction to the Local Finance Board to firmly enforce the 4% tax levy cap.

Last year, we saw 80% of reporting municipalities come in over the cap.

In fact, 30% came in with increases of 10% or more.

We need to reverse that trend, and that's why it's important that we enact the pension deferral bill to give towns the tools they need.

I will also ask Commissioner Doria to request, for both the Legislature and myself, concrete recommendations on cost saving from shared services and consolidations to be submitted from the Consolidation Commission by March 31st.

I will also direct the COAH board to allow for maximum flexibility and ample time for collaborative review of all the 240-plus affordable housing plans submitted by the 80% of the required municipalities who did the right thing and filed plans by December 31st.

Finally, recognizing the economic realities and pressures of the current economic environment, I am calling today for a one-year moratorium on the 2.5% developer's COAH fee while additionally exempting projects that were in the pipeline before the fee was instituted.

I look forward to working with Speaker Roberts, and Senators Codey and Lesniak, who all support this initiative.

A second area of vital importance and concern is open space preservation, which has always been one of New Jersey's priorities ... and which should be addressed before June 30th.

It is my preferred approach that we put in place a long-term funding solution.

That said ... we need, at a minimum, an interim bonding question for November's ballot to extend the financing the voters approved in 2007.

Between the budget, ethics, and job creation for the economy, I will need bipartisan cooperation to address the people's agenda.

My door is always open to anyone who is seriously interested in putting good ideas ... intellectually honest ideas ... on the table.

One good idea I like ... is the posting of our state expenditures on the Internet as suggested by a number of Republican legislators.

I think this is a credible way to increase accountability and transparency in our budget process, and so I have directed the Comptroller to review how to undertake this initiative.

In closing, three years ago, I came to Trenton to make our state a better place for all our people ... to move an agenda on fiscal responsibility ... on ethics ... on early childhood education ... on the environment ... and on health care.

We've made important strides ...

There surely is more work to do ... and I'm committed to finishing the job.

We don't choose the circumstances in which we govern.

Let me repeat ... my first priority -- my second priority --and my third priority -- is to get our state through these challenging economic times.

Our job is to help our citizens cope with this crisis, and lay a foundation for a strong recovery.

Great crises, through necessity, make us think clearly and practically about the most important responsibilities of government.

Necessity forces us to choose our most important objectives.

Necessity focuses us on our most vital legacies.

In 2008, my second and third grandchildren were born.

When I look at those two boys -- and when I think of the young men they'll one day become -- when I think about the world we're creating for all of our children and grandchildren -- I'm certain that the work we're doing is important.

We must strive for universal pre-school, so that all of our children have a chance to succeed in a competitive world.

We must do our part to fight climate change by investing in energy conservation, alternative power, and mass transit ...

We must flat-out build the new mass transit tunnel between New Jersey and New York -- doubling the number of passenger trains that cross the Hudson each day.

We must work with county executives, freeholders, mayors, and school boards to make New Jersey more affordable by holding the line on local property taxes.

In the coming year, we must build on our commitment to healthy children and healthy parents ...

I entered public life because I believe that government matters, that government can play a constructive role in people's lives. I'm sure you feel the same.

Almost 35 years ago, I chose to live in New Jersey because of its great strengths.

I raised my children here, and through good times and bad, I have always been able to count on my community to stand together.

Today ... we must stand together.

In ordinary times, ours is a tough job ... but these are no ordinary times.

Given the magnitude of the national economic crisis, the challenges we face are unprecedented and daunting.

I've never run from a challenge, and I'm not running from this one.

Everywhere I go, people ask me two questions: How long will this recession last? Have we seen the worst of it?

I wish the answers were easy. They're not.

The national recession undoubtedly will intensify in the next few months and will likely last beyond 2009.

New Jersey is faring better than other states by most standards.

But when one worker loses his job -- when one family loses its home -- when one child goes without health care -- our work is incomplete.

Hubert Humphrey once offered that society's character is measured by how it treats those in the dawn of life -- its children ... how it treats those in the twilight of life -- its seniors ... and how it treats those in the shadows of life -- those with special needs, the sick, and the forgotten.

New Jerseyans have a strong character, because New Jerseyans believe in our common good.

That's why I have confidence that if we pursue the common good -- together -- we will get through these difficult times and emerge even stronger.

Let me say this to the people of New Jersey: I may not always say what's popular, but you can be sure that what I say comes from the heart.

I know that government can be a force for good in people's lives.

Members of the Legislature, we may not always agree ... but we must, always ... share ... a common commitment to making the world a better place for this generation, and the beyond.

It's fitting that on this 200th anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth, we conclude with his hope:

"With firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right ... let us strive on to finish the work we are in."

Thank you and may God bless New Jersey and America!

2009 Budget Message

Good afternoon, and thank you all for attending today's budget address.

Reverend clergy; Senate President Codey; Speaker Roberts; Chief Justice Rabner; Judge Glen Grant; Members of the Legislature; Members of the Cabinet; Former governors Byrne and DiFrancesco; Honored guests and fellow New Jerseyans.

Every day, across New Jersey, across America, millions of people are sitting down at their kitchen tables and sorting out their family budgets.

On the backs of envelopes ... with pencils and calculators in hand ... surrounded by stacks of bills and receipts ... families are figuring out how to balance their income and expenses ...

And they're doing this amid alarming economic circumstances.

You pick up the newspaper and see the national unemployment rate rising above 8%.

You see neighbors losing their jobs, their homes and their health care.

People worry they might be next.

The economy may not be "in shambles" as Warren Buffet remarked last week, but it is clear that this is no ordinary recession.

And the costs of this economic crisis are exacting a serious, human toll.

People from all walks of life are tightening their belts.

Around the kitchen table, every family knows what it means to make tough choices in these tough times.

But people also understand the importance of making the right choices.

They identify their most important priorities, and they change their spending habits to live within their means.

That's exactly what those of us in this chamber must do in this budget season.

I come before you today to speak candidly and directly about our state's finances - not just to you, but also to the people of New Jersey.

Make no mistake: because of where the world is right now, we must move in directions we might not otherwise choose.

Tough times require that we make the right choices, and that we do the right thing for the common good.

By making the right decisions now, New Jersey can and will emerge from this national economic crisis stronger, sooner, and more prosperous.

To that purpose, the budget I am proposing for FY 2010 totals $29.8 billion - that's $1 billion less than the first budget I presented in 2006.

Stop and think about it, since 1947, every governor before me has grown spending over their four years.

With this proposal, we will have reduced spending two years in a row and will literally spend less than in the first budget I presented in 2006.

This isn't a matter of debate or nuance.

It's a fact.

It is also a measure of the times in which we live.

It is a demonstration that here in Trenton, we are dealing with the state's finances exactly as every family in New Jersey is dealing with theirs.

We are living within our means.

We are not spending more than we are taking in.

We are making the tough choices to do the right thing.

And ... just like the choices that a family makes around the kitchen table about its spending, the decisions I have made in laying out this budget reflect a clear ranking of my priorities and a core values.

These priorities and values are the same ones that have guided my administration since I took office.

Those values reflect a lifetime of experience and are informed by the voices of our fellow citizens, not just the loudest voices, but those who too often don't have a voice.

Yes, we are cutting the size of government, but because of our values, we have made it a priority to continue: Nurturing our children, honoring seniors, protecting the most vulnerable among us, and I want to make it clear that we must maintain these priorities at the same time that we work to minimize the tax burden on our citizens.

We've been able to enshrine these values in a leaner budget because, for three years, we governed responsibly.

We eliminated the gimmicks and one-shots that past administrations used to paper over the state's debt.

We reduced and streamlined state government.

We funded state employee pensions and the unemployment trust fund.

We were the first state in the nation to respond to the global recession with a comprehensive economic recovery program.

Because we chose to do the right things yesterday, we are able to keep doing the right things today.

In FY 2009, declining revenues required cuts of over $2 billion in state spending, as it turns out, that was just the start.

The global recession took a further toll on our revenues, so we have cut almost $4 billion in baseline spending from this year's budget.

But before we cut, we made a value-based judgment to take some things off the table.

There are certain parts of our government's work that we must sustain.

In New Jersey, we recognize the importance of our children, they are our bright hope for the future.

To that purpose, in this budget, we have increased, rather than cut, classroom funding for K-12 education.

And with the federal government's help, we're giving our children a jump-start on a lifetime of learning.

This budget funds Pre-K education for 50,000 kids - an important down payment on our commitment to universal early childhood education.

Our increase in classroom funding allows the state to press ahead with a new formula for school aid that is rooted in educational needs and fairness -- not zip codes.

Our formula recognizes that half of all "at-risk" children live outside of Abbott districts.

The state's school aid allows communities, rich and poor, urban and suburban, to hire talented educators who fire up our children's minds and imaginations, because here in New Jersey we believe that every child has a right to be inspired and challenged every day in schools that are among the world's best.

School aid is just one reflection of the value we have placed on learning.

Today, I want to again congratulate the legislature for passing the $3.9 billion school construction program that is about to put 15,000 to 20,000 New Jerseyans back to work while modernizing schools for hundreds of thousands of children.

Every generation of children has the right to schools that offer a clean, safe, and stimulating environment for learning.

Just as we value our kids' education, we value their health.

That's why we've expanded our Family Care program to include a child mandate and enrolled many thousands more kids and their families - particularly mothers seeking pre- and post-natal care.

Providing health care for our children is a priority in this budget, just as it has been in years past.

On this point, I have been clear.

When the Bush administration tried to cut 10,000 kids out of New Jersey's Family Care program, we said "no."

We even went to court and made it a "federal case".

Throwing kids off health care is not the way we do business in New Jersey.

Now, with the help of key members of New Jersey's congressional delegation, we can be certain of advancing children's health in partnership with the federal government.

And just as with education and health care, we are spending wisely to improve the lives of children who require placement outside of their homes.

Our Division of Children and Families has gone from being among the most poorly-rated in the country, to among the very best.

Our budget priorities make it clear kids count!

We are also protecting seniors in this budget because we believe that, as a community, we have a responsibility to honor our parents and grandparents.

Not only does this budget preserve the senior property tax freeze, it expands it.

We have also preserved all homestead rebates for senior homeowners and renters.

We want to make sure that our parents have a choice of staying in the homes where they have raised their families.

And we want to make sure that our grandparents can live where they're most comfortable and where long-term care is most affordable.

Seniors have a right to live in dignity and comfort ...that's why my administration has found ways to increase assistance for home heating and senior health care.

This budget also reflects the view that when people who have played by the rules fall on hard times. When they get sick, or lose their jobs, or stumble into a run of bad luck government will help them get back on their feet - with a hand up, not a hand out.

This budget provides that helping hand by maintaining emergency funds for food banks, avoiding cuts to charity care, investing in worker re-training, expanding the earned income tax credit, funding our groundbreaking efforts to stave off home foreclosures, through mortgage mediation and loan modification, and by preserving funding for the developmentally disabled and community providers.

We must not - and we will not - balance this budget on the backs of people, who through little or no fault of their own, have been caught in the rip-tide of the economic tsunami.

Let me repeat: Even as we cut the cost of government in unprecedented and historic amounts, we are doing so in the right way -- the way that sustains our abiding commitment to those core values.

Again, nurturing our children, honoring our seniors, and protecting the most vulnerable.

These are the basic values I have held for the past decade as I've fought for New Jersey families on the floor of the United States Senate and here in the State House.

Throughout those years, I have guided my judgment by doing only what is best for New Jerseyans.

Whether the question has been balancing the budget, or sending our soldiers to war, or holding corporations accountable, I may not have always done what was popular in the moment, but you can be damn sure I have always done what I thought was right.

But it's not just me. I take great pride in my administration.

Even in the face of this dire financial circumstance, people have stayed true to our core values.

From the cabinet members on down, this administration has refused to look for the easy way out.

Even so, I don't need to remind you that the current economic crisis has taken a sharp toll on our revenues, as it has in every state across the nation.

The difference is New Jersey is weathering the storm with better outcomes than many.

Our unemployment rate is below the national average.

And as of January, at least 18 states had higher jobless rates than New Jersey -- often, significantly higher.

Our incomes are nearly the highest in the nation, and while our budget gap is among the larger, we are managing that challenge without shuttering government, like California, or missing a payroll, like Kansas, or ignoring the unemployed, like South Carolina.

Now, let's lay out the numbers in basic terms.

This fiscal year, which runs through June, the state will take in about $30 billion - about $3 billion less than we originally planned.

In the coming FY 2010, we're projecting base revenues of only $28.5 billion.

Even with important help from the federal government – the declining revenue meant we had to make deep cuts in spending to balance the 2010 budget.

With respect to budget cuts, there are two ways to compare the numbers: in absolute terms; as I just outlined - or in terms that reflect baseline growth.

In absolute terms, we need to cut $3 billion to bring this budget into balance.

In baseline growth, we need to find a "staggering" $7 billion in spending and revenue solutions.

As you all can appreciate, baseline growth is a more practical measure of the state's budget gap.

Baseline numbers include increases that are mandated by statute, contract, and the courts - contractual wage increases, for instance.

A baseline comparison also includes increases in health care and energy costs, supplemental school funding, debt service and court-mandated actions that increase child-welfare expenses.

A family sitting around the kitchen table understands the real pressures in baseline growth.

Their health care costs are going up every year their energy costs soared in 2009 and the cost of nearly everything else - from food, to child care, to college tuition - continues to rise.

The state budget is no different.

In fact, if we did nothing to curtail growth or adjust our contractual, statutory, and court-mandated obligations, the FY 2010 budget would come in just under $36 billion.

As I noted, that's more than $7 billion over projected revenues.

Fortunately, President Barack Obama understood the pressure on states to meet these shortfalls while still keeping teachers in the classroom and police on the street.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act provides New Jersey about $2 billion in aid to be used for current operations on education and health care.

That still leaves a $5 billion gap in the budget, which we have attacked with $4 billion in cuts to programs, rebates, pension payments, and state worker salaries.

In all, over 850 line items in the budget have been cut.

The largest cuts will come from reductions in a scaling back of homestead rebates by $500 million, and reducing by another $500 million payments to the pension fund.

I am proposing to save $400 million in personnel costs through a wage freeze and furloughs for employees.

This approach calls for shared sacrifice, but I believe it is far better for employees to share in these reductions and continue working than it is for savings to be achieved by the layoff of up to 7,000 workers.

It most certainly is better to keep people at work and insured, than in the unemployment lines and on the Medicaid rolls.

I'm sure state workers understand the household principle, just as we do, that when a family's income drops everybody has to tighten their belts.

We all have to share the responsibility of keeping our financial house in order.

Now, let me take a moment to briefly describe some of the options we sought to balance through this budget in hundreds of hours of meetings over the past few months.

In these discussions, we would have preferred not to reduce rebates or pension contributions but we chose to preserve our children's health care and education funding.

We would have preferred not to cut funding for the arts and humanities but we chose in this financial emergency not to close hospitals or eliminate senior prescription drug assistance.

We didn't want to cut funding for tourism advertising and beach replenishment but we chose to maintain safe neighborhoods, safe highways, and homeland security.

During those discussions, even as we cut spending, and cut, and then "cut some more", we also came to a decision that we had to preserve as much property tax relief as possible, given the severe financial pressure middle-class New Jersey homeowners are experiencing.

For instance, this budget has less than a two-percent cut in municipal aid - a small amount in comparison to other line items but one that recognizes that municipalities took a big hit last year.

Further, in order to help municipalities balance their budgets and stabilize property taxes, I recommended the much-debated, optional pension deferral.

This deferral will provide many communities with enough breathing room to avoid layoffs of police and firefighters.

Following the same reasoning, my budget preserves homestead rebates for over one million moderate and middle-income families earning $75,000 or less.

Protecting rebates as much as possible is consistent with one of the most basic priorities of my administration, providing direct property tax relief on a progressive basis.

With this budget, my administration will have provided more direct property tax relief in four years than any other governor in New Jersey's history - nearly $7 billion put directly into the pockets of homeowners.

This substantial commitment recognizes the heavy burden property taxes place on New Jersey families.

It also recognizes the power and traditions of home rule.

Obviously, no governor can single-handedly fix New Jersey's local property tax problem.

Our state's 566 towns and 616 school districts need to rationalize their cost structures and hold spending under the cap.

They need to share and consolidate services.

Until these actions broadly take hold, the underlying problem will remain.

Simply put, New Jersey has too many layers of government.

To the credit of many, the process of restructuring is gaining momentum across the state, and we will continue to promote consolidation and shared services wherever and whenever they make sense.

There are incentive dollars in this budget that do just that.

In the meantime, however, rebates remain the primary tool by which the state can ease the property tax burden on individual citizens.

That is why we should restore the rebates for higher income families as soon as the recovery of state revenues allows.

Make no mistake – a $1,000 rebate check is more than meaningful for families who are working out their finances around the kitchen table.

We know that's absolutely true for fixed-income seniors, many of whom could receive as much as $2,500 – combining both their senior freeze and homestead rebates.

And, as family members lose jobs or see their hourly wages fall, the number of taxpayers making less than $75,000 grows.

For those citizens, rebates count.

To help pay for the rebates, we have proposed eliminating the property tax deduction next year on state income taxes for everyone but seniors.

Now, as I commented, New Jersey faces difficult challenges, but from a better position than many states.

One of the reasons is that, together, we've taken serious steps toward fiscal responsibility.

As we all understand, for 15 or 20 years, New Jersey budgetary decisions had often gone in another direction - reflecting expediency rather than responsibility.

For many of those years, our government chose to meet its constitutional obligation to balance the budget by using one-shots and gimmicks.

Whether it was raiding the unemployment trust fund, borrowing to fill unfunded pension liabilities or securitizing tobacco settlements for current spending.

These gimmicks and others undermined the state's long-term financial strength and stability.

At the time, they were easy fixes.

They didn't require tough choices about what the state could and could not afford.

They were actions that didn't require telling the public the truth.

Even worse, they saddled future generations with the cost of that irresponsibility.

With your help, I stopped it.

You can't correct 15 or 20 years of bad decisions in 38 months, but the steps we've taken have put our state's finances on more solid ground.

Over the past three years, we've contributed more money to the public pension system than did our predecessors in the preceding 15 years, combined.

Regrettably, in the current crisis we need to temporarily reduce pension funding so that we can sustain our first priorities - our children, seniors, and the most vulnerable.

In better times, such an action would be unacceptable.

But this is a time of unprecedented economic stress.

It is the right choice to make.

Similarly, over the 14 years before I took office, repeated raids of the unemployment trust fund - totaling nearly $5 billion - were used to balance the state's operating budgets.

My administration stopped the raids and in fact bolstered the fund by over $400 million, which avoided sharply higher payroll taxes - over $650 million to be exact - that would have fallen hardest on small businesses.

The unemployment trust fund is now under even more stress, and it would take as much as $500 million dollars in additional spending to avoid a dramatic payroll tax increase.

We cannot make that kind of payment while still maintaining our priorities and preserving property tax relief.

But we will make a significant payment that will soften the impact on employers.

And we will also seek legislation to require a tax decrease when the fund recovers in a growing economy.

In this budget, we continue in our effort to make state government do more with less, and to hold ourselves accountable to the taxpayers.

My administration has reduced the payrolls of the state and its authorities' by almost 7,000 employees.

We have eliminated departments.

We negotiated with public employees and asked them to contribute toward the cost of their health care.

We extended the retirement age to 62 and capped the pensions of new state workers.

We recognized that sustainable employee benefit programs require serious restructuring to avoid future breakdowns.

The measures we have taken will save the state and local governments $6.4 billion over 15 years.

Those dollars count in a year like this.

This kind of restructuring needs to be adopted across all levels of government in New Jersey.

We have scrubbed departments for inefficiencies - line by line - and implemented consolidations.

We've sold cars, cut up state credit cards, and moved out of half-filled, leased warehouse space.

By measures big and small, we have reshaped and resized state government.

We have also confronted and put an end to the entrenched ways of doing business in the State House.

We ended Christmas tree spending.

We approved a constitutional amendment to give voters a voice on state borrowing.

And by executive order, I required that recurring expenditures be matched with recurring revenues.

Other governors have talked about doing these things.

I did them.

This budget continues a 4-year pattern of making the right choices - choices that may not be politically popular today, but which put our state on a stronger footing for tomorrow.

In a time of crisis, we must all share in the responsibility for balancing our finances and that's why I'm asking those who are the most fortunate among us - the one percent of New Jerseyans with incomes of a half-million dollars or more - to carry a little more of the burden.

To this end, I am proposing a one-year, only, rate increase of three quarters of a percent for those earning more than $500,000.

This new revenue, along with small increases in alcohol and cigarette taxes, will allow us to finish closing that $7 billion gap.

As I've said repeatedly, the unprecedented circumstances of our national economic crisis requires choices we might not otherwise make.

Our responsibility requires us to have the courage to meet these challenges, deliberately, honestly, with compassion and good judgment.

And that is precisely what we have done in crafting this budget.

We faced down a $7 billion shortfall with roughly $4 billion in spending cuts, $2 billion in federal aid, and $1 billion in new revenue.

That left us with $29.8 billion in which to prioritize our children, our seniors, and those who play by the rules but find themselves in dire straits.

I'm asking you all to review the proposed budget.

Offer alternatives where you find them - as long as those alternatives honestly meet the challenges of full funding, meet legal requirements, and fit within the broad priorities laid out.

I welcome ideas from everyone.

I only ask that the ideas be real, be specific, and be fiscally responsible.

The last thing that New Jersey needs in today's environment is political posturing.

Posturing won't save one job, it won't help one family with property taxes, it won't improve a single school or save a single business.

As I close, let me be clear, this budget is one part - only one part - of our responsibility to meet head-on the challenges of the global economic crisis.

It is not our first step - and it won't be our last.

Last fall, when the banking and credit sectors collapsed, my administration was ahead of the curve in dealing with the global economic crisis.

We were the first state in the nation to pass a comprehensive economic recovery plan.

I thank the legislature for your forceful and timely response in passing the nine pieces of legislation that made up that recovery package.

Our mortgage mediation and modification program is stabilizing our state's housing sector, and now, other states - and the federal government - are making similar efforts.

With our Invest New Jersey initiative, we offered a $3,000 grant for every new job created and sustained for at least a year, along with a sales tax exemption for the purchase of new business equipment.

In the ten weeks since that grant program has been in place, we've received over 800 applications representing 20,000 jobs and hundreds of millions of dollars in investment.

Each of those 20,000 people represents a New Jerseyan who has the opportunity to wake up every day, knowing that he or she has a job.

We also reformed New Jersey's corporate tax code to make our state more business friendly.

We enabled businesses to carry forward tax loss benefits for up to 20 years.

We eliminated the Throw-Out and Regular Place of Business Rules that penalized companies headquartered in New Jersey.

We enacted permit extension provisions.

We created a clean energy fund and put in place incentives for public investments in energy efficiency.

All of these measures have cushioned us against the blow of this global recession.

These actions may even produce growing revenues for future state budgets.

Now, I've taken some heat from our neighbors -- particularly up north.

Some have accused me of trying to steal their companies.

I get accused of a lot of things, but this is one offense I'm willing to cop to.

Let's be clear - our economic recovery plan sends a clear and unequivocal message to employers: New Jersey is a great place to do business.

When we move legislation to expand the urban hub tax credits, when we pass the revenue allocation district act, when we move forward on allowing license site professionals to certify brownfield cleanups, we'll lay an extraordinary foundation for New Jersey's strong economic recovery.

When the global and national economy rebounds, New Jersey will be in a stronger position than its neighbors and competitors.

We will prosper tomorrow because of the decisions we make today.

Now, I'd like to close by citing President Obama, who reminded us two weeks ago in his address to Congress that we are in the eye of an economic storm, the likes of which we haven't seen since the breadline days of the 1930's.

That said -- with a strong national recovery program, and with a true partner for New Jersey in the White House, we will come through this storm.

While today's crisis is challenging and often painful, we will pull together as a community and a nation and build for a more prosperous tomorrow.

History is clear - the economy will turn.

With the talent, the work ethic, and the strong character of our people, New Jersey will lead the way.

I believe in our common desire to do what is right.

I hope and expect to see that spirit reflected in the final budget, a budget that values children, seniors, and the most vulnerable, and asks a little more from the rest of us.

Thank you.

May God bless each of you, and God bless New Jersey.

ASSEMBLY BILL NO. 1645

(Third Reprint)

To the General Assembly:

Pursuant to Article V, Section I, Paragraph 14 of the New Jersey Constitution, I am returning Assembly Bill No. 1645 (Third Reprint) with my recommendations for reconsideration.

This bill would amend and supplement the current New Jersey statutes, including the Local Public Contracts Law, that govern the role and qualifications of local purchasing agents. I support the concept of this bill, which is intended to professionalize the purchasing functions undertaken by counties, municipalities, and other affected local units. I am concerned, however, that the bill as currently drafted does not adequately address the substantive issues raised throughout the legislative process by the Division of Local Government Services in the Department of Community Affairs, the entity charged with implementing the provisions of the bill, as well as some of the legitimate concerns identified by the New Jersey State League of Municipalities and the dozens of individual local units that passed resolutions expressing opposition to this bill. I believe that the amendments recommended below appropriately accommodate the most significant of these concerns while, at the same time, promoting the laudable goals of the legislation.

Accordingly, I herewith return Assembly Bill No. 1645 (Third Reprint) and recommend that it be amended as follows:

ASSEMBLY BILL NO. 3317

(Second Reprint)

To the General Assembly:

Pursuant to Article V, Section I, Paragraph 14 of the New Jersey Constitution, I am returning Assembly Bill No. 3317 (Second Reprint) with my recommendations for reconsideration.

A. Summary of Bill

This bill would change the requirements governing the electrical contracting permitting process, to narrow the current exemption provisions concerning work performed on public facilities. Current law provides an exemption from permitting requirements for work performed by regular employees of the State, a municipality, county, or school district on premises or property owned or occupied by the State, municipality, county, or school district. Specifically, the bill would narrow the current law by providing that this exemption would apply only if the employee performing the work also is a registered qualified journeyman electrician or if the employee holds a civil service title with a job description that includes electrical work. In addition, the bill provides that any regular employee of the State or of a municipality, county, or school district who has submitted his or her registration application to the State Board of Examiners of Electrical Contractors for registration as a qualified journeyman electrician would be permitted to continue to perform work until such time as the board acts upon his application. The bill also provides that any applicant whose registration application is not approved by the board would no longer be permitted to perform electrical work.

Under current law, an exemption from electrical contracting permit requirements is provided for any electrical installation, repair, or maintenance work performed by regular employees of the State or of a municipality, county, or school district on the premises or property owned or occupied by the State, a municipality, county, or school district, without regard to the journeyman status or job description of the employee performing the work.

B. Recommended Action

I commend the sponsors of this bill for their efforts in crafting this legislation, which has a salutatory public safety purpose, to enhance safety in schools, community centers, libraries, and other public buildings across the State by ensuring that electrical work is performed by properly trained individuals. I am advised, however, that it would be preferable and consistent with the intent of the legislation to use additional criteria to clarify that the bill also would exempt employees who have completed a federally approved electrical apprenticeship program, and thus have received appropriate training and education in this field. For this reason, I recommend that this bill also exempt individuals employed by a State authority who have completed an electrical apprenticeship program approved by the Office of Apprenticeship of the United States Department of Labor.

Accordingly, I herewith return Assembly Bill No. 3317 (Second Reprint) and recommend that it be amended as follows:

After "thereto" insert " , or any employee of a State authority who has completed an apprenticeship training program approved by the United States Department of Labor, Bureau of Apprenticeship Training, that deals specifically with electrical work, and is of a minimum duration of three years”

To the General Assembly:

Pursuant to Article V, Section I, Paragraph 14 of the New Jersey Constitution, I am returning Assembly Bill No. 2754 with my recommendations for reconsideration.

I support the sponsors of this bill, the "Jobs, Trade and Democracy Act," in their efforts to establish a formal role for the Legislature with respect to international trade agreements. In this regard, it is appropriate to create a citizens' commission to advise and assist the Governor and the Legislature concerning the effects of trade agreements on State and local laws, as well as to provide a forum for citizens and legislators to voice their concerns and make recommendations to protect

New Jersey's jobs and business environment from potential negative impacts of trade agreements.

Accordingly, I herewith return Assembly Bill No. 2754 and recommend that it be amended as follows:
