Governor Attends Anti-Violence Event with Joe Piscopo; Prepares for NJ Saver Property Tax Relief Check Distribution

Christie Whitman tomorrow will join entertainer Joe Piscopo at Pleasantville High School for a back-to-school anti-violence program. Piscopo is the founder of the Positive Impact Foundation, a group whose goal is to produce television programming highlighting successful young people in a positive and educational manner.

Four New Jersey teen groups dedicated towards spreading the message of violence free schools and communities will perform skits and dances at the program.

Later in the day the Governor will visit the processing center where property tax rebate checks are being processed for mailing under the NJ SAVER program for a photo opportunity.
