Petitioner originally brought his complaints to the Commissioner in March 1995 in the form of correspondence, but he did not attempt to file a petition until October 1995. This petition was not accepted for filing because it did not meet the Department's filing requirements. It was refiled in October 13, 1995 in its present form.

After receiving correspondence from McKeon relating to his disputes with the Board, Deborah Antanaitis, Acting Director, Department of Controversies and Disputes, informed McKeon, in a letter dated September 28, 1995, that he had not filed a petition with the Department. Petitioner was also advised of the existence and the substance of the "ninety-day rule" and cautioned to file his petition on time.

A careful review of the final petition shows that the latest violation of the school laws alleged by McKeon followed the accident or injury of September 1994. The petition makes no mention of the injury of December 1994 or any violation of law by the Board related thereto. Violations subsequent to this date were alleged in various letters from petitioner to the agency prior to the unsuccessful October 1995 filing, but they do not seem to relate to disputes arising under the education laws. For example, the only request by McKeon to amend his allegations, which appear in a letter to the Commissioner dated September 20, 1995, is to add that the Board's worker's compensation carrier, Scibal Associates, made no payments to his physical therapists since June 1995 and that the Board had provided him with inaccurate W-2 statements for 1994. Even these do not appear in the final version of the petition. This matter was dismissed as to Scibal Associates at the prehearing conference.

I, therefore, CONCLUDE that the petition was not filed in a timely manner, pursuant to the ninety-day rule, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(C). McKeon's letters to the Commissioner of March 1994 show that he was aware that he had grievances against the Board at that time but never filed a petition with the Department of Education until he was advised by the Department to do so in September 1995. When finally filed in October 1995, the petition did not refer to Board violations related to any accident or injury after September 1994.

Consequently, I CONCLUDE that the petition should be dismissed as to all respondents because it was filed out of time. See Kaprow v. Bd. of Ed. of Berkeley Tp., 131 N.J. 572 (1993). He was required to file his petition with the Department of Education in accord with the ninety-day rule even though his cases are presently pending before the compensation court. Verneret v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Elizabeth, Union Co., EDU 3718 -91 (St. Bd., Jan. 4, 1995)

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the petition of James McKeon is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE for untimely filing.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate substantive arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), again contending, inter alia, that the Board wrongfully discontinued benefits which petitioner was receiving pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. Petitioner further avers that the ALJ's finding that this matter was, "in error [and] counter to the facts placed before the Commissioner which are Official State and Federal documents." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 4) Petitioner next provides a timeline of all events leading to his cessation of benefits. (Id. at p. 5)

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that the petition was not filed in a timely manner, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Kaprow, supra.[*] The law is clear that the requirement to file a Petition of Appeal on a timely basis remains even though similar claims are pending before the compensation court. Veneret, supra. As such, the Commissioner finds that no relaxation or waiver of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) is warranted in this instance.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the OAL that the instant Petition of Appeal be dismissed.

Respondent.

Aleese Simmons, Bishop and Mrs. Nathaniel Simmons, pro se

Joanne L. Butler, Esq., for respondent (Schenck, Price, Smith & King, attorneys)

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

On December 8, 1995, petitioners, Aleese Simmons and Bishop and Mrs. Nathaniel Simmons, filed a Petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking to require the Board of Education of the South Orange - Maplewood School District (Board) to provide her minor daughter, A.S., a free public school education in the district.

On December 27, 1994, the Board filed its answer and on January 10, 1996, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was scheduled for hearing on August 13, 1996 and notice was sent to the parties at the address provided.

The Board admitted A.S. as a pupil in the district pending the outcome of the appeal and filed a counterclaim against petitioners seeking payment of tuition for A.S. from the date of her admission into the school system.

Petitioners failed to respond to any of respondent's requests for discovery and did not appear on the scheduled hearing date. No explanation for this failure to appear was offered. I, therefore, CONCLUDE that petitioners no longer wish to pursue their appeal, and it is ORDERED that their petition is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I further CONCLUDE that petitioners do not contest the counterclaim for tuition filed against them by the district and, therefore, the Board's request for tuition should be granted by default.

The annual tuition for a student in the district, as set forth in the Affidavit of Resident and the Affidavit of Parent/Guardian filed by petitioners with the district in December 1995, is $9,370. The affidavits warn the resident and parent/guardian that they will be responsible for payment of this tuition in the event the information provided in the affidavits proves to be false. Copies of the affidavits were attached to respondent's Motion for Default, filed with this forum on July 22, 1995.

Since A.S. attended school in the district from December 1, 1995 through June 1996, the Board seeks to recover the prorated amount of tuition due. I FIND that this is seven-tenths of the full tuition for the year or $6,559. I CONCLUDE that petitioners are liable to the Board in this amount.

Consequently, it is ORDERED that petitioners pay to respondent $6,559 as tuition for A.S.'s attendance in the district's school between December 1, 1995 and the end of June 1996.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioners' exceptions and the reply thereto were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioners contend that they were not properly notified of the hearing which was scheduled for August 13, 1996. Since they were not aware of the hearing, and therefore failed to appear, they were assessed with tuition which they claim they are unable to pay. Thus, petitioners request that the Commissioner reschedule the hearing in order to permit them to present their case and to respond to the Board's counterclaim.

The Board finds it "curious" that petitioners did not receive a copy of their hearing notice, when same was sent to their correct address. (Board's Reply at p. 1) The Board further notes that, apparently petitioners received other correspondence, such as the Board's Interrogatories forwarded on or about July 12, 1996; the Board's Motion for Default Judgment, which was forwarded on or about July 22, 1996; a copy of the Board's August 6, 1996 correspondence to the ALJ; and a copy of the Board's Certification of Counsel regarding the amount of tuition owed, which was forwarded on August 13, 1996. None of these submissions, the Board avers, was returned to it as undeliverable. Accordingly, the Board requests that the Commissioner deny petitioners' request for a new hearing date.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner cannot concur with the ALJ's conclusion that this matter must be dismissed. In that petitioners attest they were not notified of the hearing date, and were unaware of such date, the Commissioner determines that, in the interest of fundamental fairness and A.S.'s ability to obtain an education, this matter must be returned to the OAL for further proceedings consistent with N.J.A.C. 1:1-1 et seq.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is reversed and this matter shall be returned to the OAL for further proceedings, along with a request that this matter be heard on an expedited basis as it involves a residency dispute.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board sought declaratory judgment on whether it was obligated to reimburse respondent Board member for legal expenses he incurred in defending charges that he violated the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21.

ALJ found that respondent was duly engaged in Board activity when he cast his vote that resulted in the filing of an ethics complaint against him. ALJ found no discernible difference between the defense of an ethics complaint and a civil matter for the purposes of recognizing legal fees pursuant to the indemnity statute. Both arise out of and during the course of one's duties as a member of the local Board of Education. Thus, the ALJ concluded that respondent was entitled to be reimbursed for the legal expenses incurred as a result of defending a charge that he violated the school ethics law when he voted on an expenditure matter.

Commissioner reversed the determination in the initial decision. Commissioner concluded that, in accordance with the standards set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20 and in light of existing case law, respondent herein was not entitled to reimbursement. As clearly stated by the State Board and the Appellate Division in the Drabich State Board decision and in In re Borrelli Appellate Division decision, although indemnification is provided for school employees in civil and criminal matters, there is no authority for extension of any of the education law indemnification statutes to a situation such as that involved in this case. Commissioner determined that unless and until the Legislature acts to enlarge the scope of indemnification, respondent, and similarly situated individuals, can claim no entitlement for expenses incurred in their defense of administrative charges.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF PASSAIC, PASSAIC COUNTY,

Petitioner,

v.

GERARDO FERNANDEZ, JR.

Respondent.

Matthew J. Michaelis, Esq., for petitioner

Xavier G. Rodriguez, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: March 22, 1996 Decided: August 20, 1996

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

On July 6, 1995 petitioner, the Passaic Board of Education (Petitioner or BOE) filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking a declaratory judgment on the issue of whether it was required to pay legal expenses arising out of a school ethics matter. On November 27, 1995, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the petition to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing. A prehearing conference was conducted and a briefing schedule was established. The record closed on March 22, 1996.

FACTS

I FIND the following to be undisputed and thus are adopted as the facts herein:

The respondent, Gerardo Fernandez, Jr., is a member of the Passaic BOE. During the course of a BOE public meeting, the respondent voted on the issue of the use of time clocks for the school district. As a result of casting said vote, a complaint was filed against the respondent alleging violations of the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-22. The complaint alleged that since the respondent had a family member who was employed by the Passaic Board of Education, he should not have voted on the use of time clocks by the district. (See Appendix, attached hereto). The complaint was subsequently dismissed and withdrawn by the school ethics commission.

As a result of defending the school ethics complaint, the respondent incurred attorneys fees for which he seeks reimbursement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:2-20. In support, respondent submits a certification of services detailing the legal fees.

DISCUSSION, FINDINGS AND CONCLUSION

The only issue presented herein is whether the BOE is obligated to reimburse the respondent for legal expenses he incurred in defending charges that he violated the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21.

Initially, it is noted that this is an issue of first impression. The relevant statute in this matter is N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20 that provides:

> Whenever a civil or criminal action has been or shall be brought against any person for any act or omission arising out of and in the course of the performance of his duties as > a member of a board of education, and in the case of a criminal action such action results in final disposition in favor of such person, the board of education shall defray all costs of defending such action, including, reasonable counsel fees and expenses, together with costs of appeal, if any, and shall save harmless and protect such person from any financial loss resulting therefrom. Any board of education may arrange for and maintain appropriate insurance to cover all such damages, losses and expenses.

Thus, the statute provides indemnification to school board members for legal actions arising out of and during the course of their duties when a civil or criminal matter is brought against them.

A school ethics complaint proceeding, however is neither a civil or criminal proceeding. Therefore, it is necessary to review the legislative intent underlying the statute. It is clear that the legislative purpose of the statute to assure that persons who desire to serve on local boards of education, for which there is no compensation, can do so without the fear of being subjected to costs of defending legal actions brought against them as a result of actions taken during the deliberate process of the Board. Errington v. Mansfield TP. Bd. of Ed., 100 N.J. Super 130 (App. Div. 1968). Quick v. Old Bridge Township Board of Education, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 116, 118, affirmed, (Commissioner of Education, October 30, 1995).

The School Ethics Act (Act) became effective April 15, 1992, some fourteen years after the effective date of the indemnity law. The purpose of the law is to ensure and preserve public confidence in the local school board. Thus, the Act set forth specific standards of conduct. Additionally, the Act provides for a disciplinary mechanism to ensure uniform standard among all local BOEs. Accordingly, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29 provides for the filing of a complaint and for a hearing thereon either by the School Ethics Commission or at the Office of Administrative Law, upon a finding of probable cause. The causes of action for filing a complaint are set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24 and are directly related to acts or omissions as a school board member.

In Errington v. Mansfield Tp. Bd. of Ed., supra, 100 N.J. Super 130, the court held that the purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20 is to make manifest the implied power of boards of education to provide for the legal defense of a member of the board who is sued individually for some action taken by him in furtherance of his prescribed duties. Those duties are prescribed by statute, by the rules and regulations of the board itself and of those who supervise its activities, and by resolutions of the board authorizing specific action to be taken. Errington, 100 N.J. Super at 137-138.

I FIND that respondent was duly engaged in Board activity when he cast his vote. I further FIND that as a result of his vote an ethics complaint was filed against him. I FIND no discernible difference between the defense of an ethics complaint and a civil matter for the purposes of recognizing legal fees pursuant to the indemnity statute. Both arise out of and during the course of one's duties as a member of the local Board of education. I, therefore, CONCLUDE that the respondent is entitled to be reimbursed for the legal expenses incurred as a result of defending a charge that he violated the school ethics law when he voted on an expenditure matter. As was held in Errington, when the board members, in a proper meeting duly assembled, vote upon a resolution relating to the expenditures of the board's funds, their act in doing so "arises out of and in the course of the performance of their duties" as members of the board. Errington, supra, 100 N.J. Super at 137.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF PASSAIC, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
GERARDO FERNANDEZ, JR.,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner cannot agree with the conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), that the Board is obligated to reimburse the within respondent for legal expenses he incurred in defending charges that he violated the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21. Rather, the Commissioner concludes that, in accordance with the standards set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20 and in light of existing case law, such respondent is not entitled to reimbursement. Initially, the Commissioner notes that the express language of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20 clearly specifies

> Whenever a civil or a criminal action has been or shall be brought against any person for any person for any act or omission arising out of and in the course of the performance of his duties as a member of a board of education, and in the case of a criminal action such action results in final disposition in favor of such person, the board of education shall defray all costs of defending such action, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses, > together with costs of appeal, if any, and shall save harmless and protect such person from any financial loss resulting therefrom.(emphasis added)

The Commissioner must specifically reject the ALJ's finding that "[there is] no discernible difference between the defense of an ethics complaint and a civil matter for the purposes of recognizing legal fees pursuant to the indemnity statute." (Initial Decision at p. 4) Although, as noted in the initial decision, the issue of a board's responsibility under this particular statute, within the context of the circumstances existing herein, has not previously been specifically addressed, it is clear from prior State Board and Appellate Division decisions with respect to similar statutes, i.e., N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, which, together, provide for indemnification of school employees in civil and criminal matters, that there is no authority for extension of any of the education law indemnification statutes to a situation such as that involved in this case. As noted by the State Board in Rose Drabich v. Board of Education of the Township of Hillsborough, Somerset County, decided by the State Board August 4, 1993, wherein petitioner was seeking indemnification, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, for a motor vehicle violation received after her involvement in an automobile accident while driving students, contending that such charge was quasi-criminal in nature, "the intent of the statutory framework involved here was to provide legal help under limited circumstances and there is no indication of any Legislative intent to include the kind of circumstances presented by this case." (Slip Opinion at p. 4) More specifically, in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of David C. Borrelli, Waterford Township Board of Education, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 163 where respondent sought, among other relief, legal fees for successfully defending tenure charges lodged against him, the Appellate Division stated

> N.J.S.A.* 18A:16-6 and N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, respectively, address reimbursement for civil actions and for criminal charges. There is no provision in the law for reimbursement for defending in an administrative  proceeding. Absent a legislative mandate incorporating administrative proceedings into the statute, a reimbursement award is inappropriate. (at 166)

As such, the Commissioner finds and determines that unless and until the Legislature acts to enlarge the scope of indemnification under these statutes, this respondent, and similarly situated individuals, can claim no entitlement for expenses incurred in their defense of administrative charges.

Accordingly, the Commissioner reverses the decision of the ALJ and, instead, finds that the Board is under no obligation to reimburse the within respondent for his expenses incurred in defending School Ethics charges lodged against him.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning mother and grandparents alleged minor child, A.S., was wrongfully denied a free public education in the District. ALJ dismissed petition for failure to appear. Commissioner remanded matter in the interest of fundamental fairness as petitioners attested they were unaware of hearing date.

ALJ concluded that petitioners did not carry their burden of proof that A.S. is not residing with her grandparents solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in the District. ALJ found there was no hardship and the mother was able to provide for A.S. ALJ found that petitioners were liable to the Board for prorated tuition for the period from December 1, 1995 through June 1996 and for 48 days in 1996-97 school year for a total amount due of $8,575. Petitioners were ordered to pay the amount due to the District.

Commissioner reversed the initial decision of the ALJ, finding that, notwithstanding the temporary nature of the living arrangement (A.S. lived with her grandparents while her mother, an entertainer, traveled), and irrespective of any deficiencies which may exist in petitioners' affidavits, A.S. was deemed to have been entitled to a free public education in the District until she returned to living with her mother in Maplewood.

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

On December 8, 1995, petitioners, A.S., on behalf of her minor daughter, A.S., N.S. and R.F.S., filed a Petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking to require the Board of Education of the South Orange and Maplewood School District (Board) to provide the child, A.S., a free public school education in the district. The matter was scheduled for hearing on August 13, 1996 and notice was sent to the parties at the address provided. Petitioners failed to respond to any of respondent's requests for discovery and did not appear on the scheduled hearing date.

The Board presented its evidence on its counterclaim and, on August 22, 1996, an Initial Decision was issued under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 1103-96. Following receipt of this decision, N.S. and R.F.S. wrote to the Commissioner of Education insisting that they did not receive notice of the hearing. On October 23, 1996, the Commissioner remanded the matter to OAL where it was rescheduled for hearing on March 31, 1997 under its present docket number.

At the hearing, N.S. and R.F.S, the child's grandparents, were present. A.S., the child's mother, did not appear and stated in a telephone call and a faxed message that she did not receive notice of the hearing. It is documented in the case record that A.S. was notified in a letter from the undersigned, dated December 18, 1996, that the hearing was scheduled for March 31, 1997. This letter was sent to her by both regular and certified mail at the address which she provided to this office on November 15, 1996. A.S. claimed the certified letter at the post office on December 20, 1996, and a copy of the receipt, signed by her, is in the record. The copy of the letter sent to her by regular mail was never returned. On December 6, 1996, a Notice of Plenary Hearing, stating that the hearing was to be held on March 31, 1996, was mailed to A.S., at the address she provided, by William G. Speziale, Deputy Clerk of the OAL. Based upon the above, I FIND that A.S. was served with notice of the scheduled hearing and failed to appear.

On March 25, 1997, the Board moved for relief because it never received answers to the interrogatories it served upon petitioners. The interrogatories were served upon N.S. and R.F.S. by regular and certified mail. The certified letter was returned unclaimed, but the copy sent by regular mail was not returned. At hearing, N.S. explained that he is a bishop who travels a great deal to establish his new church and does not always open his mail. Petitioners were allowed to testify at hearing but were not permitted to introduce any documents which were requested in discovery but not provided to the Board. Petitioners never provided the Board with discovery before the August 13, 1996 hearing in this matter either.

Dr. Jacqueline Cusack, Assistant Superintendent of Schools for the District, testified on behalf of the Board. She was the administrator responsible for the oversight of the registration process through July 1, 1996.

In December 1995, Cusack received affidavits of domicile from N.S., R.F.S. and A.S.. Based upon these affidavits, the Board was not required to provide a free education for the child, A.S. Her grandparents, N.S. and R.F.S., resided in South Orange, within the District, but her mother did not. The grandparents stated in their affidavit that they did not plan to claim the child as a dependent on their next tax return. The mother said that she did not claim the child as her dependent and did not plan to. Neither claimed that she had to live with her grandparents because her mother could not support her. A.S., the mother, stated that she planned to be traveling because she was trying to start a singing career and her daughter would live with her parents while she was gone.

At the end of 1995 or early in 1996, the District thought that A.S. was not traveling but had returned to New Jersey. Joan Melillo, the District Registrar, was notified by Columbia High School in South Orange that the school received an inquiry from a caseworker for the Union County Department of Human Services about the child, A.S. The caseworker wanted to know the child's address and guardian. This was followed by a written request for this information on May 15, 1996, at the insistence of the school. It appears that Arlene S., whom N.S. identified as his daughter-in-law and the child's aunt, had applied for Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) for the child, A.S., in Union County and stated on her application that A.S. lived with her in Rahway.

The District concluded, possibly erroneously, that the child's mother lived in Rahway and had applied for AFDC for her daughter. Nevertheless, the District had good reason to doubt the domicile and residence of the child.

N.S. and R.F.S. claim that they took in their granddaughter because she had nowhere else to live. They stated that they did not have a permanent address for their daughter and had no contact with her. They then admitted that she called her daughter occasionally but said she never told them where she was. N.S. said they supported the child until her mother moved back to Maplewood in June 1996 and took her daughter to live with her. He had no idea who paid for the child's health care while she lived in his house. A.S. did not provide any proof that her daughter lived with her in the District until after November 8, 1996. She had attended school for forty-eight days of the 1996-97 school year through that date.

I FIND that there is no evidence that N.S. and R.F.S. took their granddaughter into their home because there was hardship and her mother was unable to provide for her. N.S. testified that the child lived with them because her mother was traveling and she had nowhere else to go. The inquiry from the Union County welfare agency was caused by the application of the aunt, Arlene S., not the mother, A.S., for public assistance. There is nothing in the record to determine the ability of A.S. to support her daughter and A.S. chose not to appear at hearing.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b provides that a child over five and less than twenty years of age is entitled to a free public education from a school district, if the child "is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SOUTH ORANGE AND MAPLEWOOD SCHOOL DISTRICT, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON REMAND
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner determines to reverse the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), for the reasons set forth below.

The record is clear that A.S. was sent to live with her grandparents, not for the sole purpose of attending school in the District, but because her mother, an entertainer, was expected to be out of the state, and perhaps the country, for a period of 12 to 18 months. (Petition of Appeal at p. 1) Moreover, the mother attested in her affidavit of November 30, 1995 that she would not be earning a salary during that time. (Certification, August 6, 1996, Exhibit A at p. 3) The grandparents of A.S. affirmed in their joint affidavit of November 30, 1995 that they intended to assume all personal and financial obligations for the child, and would not be receiving any payments or contributions on behalf of the child. (Id. at pp. 3, 4) However, they straightforwardly affirmed that they expected A.S. to move out of their home on December 1, 1996. (Id. at p. 3) N.S. (grandfather) testified that he and his wife supported A.S. until her mother moved to Maplewood in June of 1996; thereafter, A.S. returned to living with her mother. (Initial Decision at p. 4)*

The record supports the conclusion, therefore, that A.S. had no reasonable possibility of attending school while her mother was traveling, were it not for the living arrangement with her grandparents. The grandparents testified that the child's mother did not provide them with a permanent address, did not contact them, and called A.S. only occasionally, but did not tell them where she was. (Initial Decision at p. 4) That the pertinent residency statute could be read to expect a child such as A.S. to either interrupt her education, or, at best, to move from school to school during the period of her mother's itinerancy is simply an untenable interpretation.

> The intent of the "affidavit student" law is not now, and never has been, to deny an education to a child whose living arrangements may not have been as contemplated by the statutory scheme when it is clear that the child has no home, or possibility of school attendance, other than with the non-parent district resident and that such resident is for all intents and purposes the sole caretaker and supporter of the child. Gunderson v. Board of Education of the City of Brigantine, 95 N.J.A.R. 2*d* (EDU) 39, 42.

Under these circumstances, to abrogate A.S.'s entitlement to have attended school in the Board's District would be tantamount to denying her the right to a free public education.

* The father of A.S. is apparently not in the picture and does not contribute to her support.

Thus, the Commissioner finds that, notwithstanding the temporary nature of the living arrangement, and irrespective of any deficiencies which may exist in the affidavits provided by petitioners to the Board, A.S.'s mother was not capable, due to circumstances which constitute family hardship, of supporting her daughter. A.S. is deemed to have been entitled to attend school in the Board's District, free of charge, from December 1995 until November 1996, when she apparently returned to living with her mother in Maplewood.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is reversed, as set forth herein. The counterclaim by the Board is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

OCTOBER 10, 1996

IN THE MATTER OF	:	BEFORE THE SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION
CYNTHIA A. SCALA	:
BASS RIVER BOARD OF EDUCATION	:	RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. authorizes the School Ethics Commission to recommend removal of any board member for failure to attend the board member training sessions required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.4; and

WHEREAS, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 requires new board members to attend training within one year of election or appointment to the board to gain the skills and knowledge necessary to serve as a school board member; and

WHEREAS, Ms, Scala was elected to the school board in April 1995 and

WHEREAS, the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA)advises prospective school board members of the training requirement in the "candidate kit" and advises new board members of the requirement in a letter congratulating them on their achievement; and

WHEREAS, the NJSBA mails correspondence in December to all new board members who have failed to register for or attend board member training and did mail such correspondence to this board member on December 15, 1995, advising that they have only three more programs to attend without being in violation of the Act; and

WHEREAS, at the request of the School Ethics Commission, the New Jersey School Boards Association published a notice entitled, "Last Chance to Meet Training Requirements" in the February 23, 1996 edition of School Board Notes advising that the March 16, 1996, session was the last that board members elected or appointed before June 1995 could attend without penalty; and

June 2-4, 1995
June 16-18, 1995
September 8-10, 1995
September 22-24, 1995
October 24, 1995
January 6, 1996
January 20, 1996
March 16, 1996; and

WHEREAS, the New Jersey School Boards Association continuously published the dates and locations of the training sessions and indicated that training was a state mandate; and

WHEREAS, the last training session to fulfill the requirements was March 16, 1996, yet the Commission allowed the June 1996 sessions to fulfill the requirement without setting precedent for future violations; and

WHEREAS, the above-captioned board member failed to attend training for well over the one-year allowed; and

WHEREAS, the School Ethics Commission issued an Order on April 25, 1996, directing the board member to Show Cause why he or she had not attended training up until that time; and

WHEREAS, the School Ethics Commission considered the board member's reply to the Order, but found same to be insufficient in light of the aforementioned notices and opportunities to attend training; and

WHEREAS, by letter dated June 4, 1996, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.3(i), the Commission notified said board member of the opportunity to appear before the Commission, be represented by counsel, and present witnesses on his or her behalf; and

WHEREAS, said board member chose not to appear, and

WHEREAS, the School Ethics Commissions finds that the failure to attend board member training from April 1995 to June 1996, constitutes a clear violation of N.J.S.A. 18A: 12-33 and warrants removal from the board,

NOW THEREFORE IT IS RESOLVED that the School Ethics Commission finds that despite adequate opportunities, the above-named board member has failed to attend the training program as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and thus violated that provision. However, the board member has raised concerns to indicate that removal from the board would be too harsh a penalty in light of the circumstances. Therefore, the Commission recommends to the Commissioner of Education that said board member be suspended from office until such time that she completes training. The Commission further recommends to the Commissioner that a copy of his decision removing the board member be transmitted to the board secretary of the district in which said board member serves and the county superintendent for the district.

IN THE MATTER OF CYNTHIA A. SCALA, :

BASS RIVER BOARD OF EDUCATION, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

BURLINGTON COUNTY. : DECISION

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission has acted pursuant to the authority granted to it by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. to recommend removal of the above-named Board member from office for failure to attend the Board member training sessions required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.4; and

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission sent ample notice to the above-named Board member for her failure to attend such training sessions; and

Whereas, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.3(i), on April 23, 1996, the Commission issued an Order to Show Cause why a penalty should not be imposed for such failure; and

Whereas, the above-named Board member responded to the Order to Show Cause by letter, dated May 15, 1996, explaining to the Commission that her child's chronic illness keeps her from traveling to or attending the mandated training classes and that she had planned to attend a one-day training seminar in Atlantic City, scheduled in October, but that "it will occur after [her] one year anniversary date of being a Board Member," which the Commission found unpersuasive; and

Whereas, the Commission voted on June 18, 1996, to recommend removal of the above-named Board member for failure to attend training sessions in violation of State statute, memorializing such decision through a resolution forwarded to the Commissioner, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29; and

Whereas, on June 20, 1996, the above-named Board member was afforded an opportunity to submit to the Commissioner a response to said resolution recommending removal; and

Whereas, the above-named Board member chose not to submit comments with respect to the Commission's recommended penalty for the Commissioner's consideration; and

Whereas, the Commissioner of Education has carefully considered the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission and finds that based on the Board member's demonstrated reasons for delay and her assertion that she planned to take the course in October, removal is not warranted at this point; however, some penalty is warranted in view of her insufficiently explicated delay in meeting statutory requirements; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED that the above-named Board member shall not be removed from office, subject to her attendance at an upcoming training session but, rather, is suspended from office for a period of two months, or until such time as training is obtained, whichever is longer, to commence as of the date of the Board's receipt of this decision.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning stepfather, R.N., challenged Board's residency determination concerning his stepdaughter, S.A.H. Even though he and S.A.H.'s mother were separated and S.A.H. lived with her mother, petitioner said that S.A.H. considered his home another residence for her and, thus, she was entitled to a free public education in Lawnside.

ALJ found that petitioner had not shown that S.A.H. was a domiciliary of Lawnside. The ALJ directed the Board to pursue an appropriate action before the Superior Court for the recovery of the tuition funds due it.

Commissioner concurred with the determination of the ALJ that S.A.H. was not a domiciliary of Lawnside. Commissioner, however, modified the decision only to the extent necessary to direct that petitioner be assessed with tuition due, as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq.

INITIAL DECISION

GRANTING SUMMARY JUDGMENT

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 4457-96

AGENCY DKT. NO. 128-4/96

R.N., ON BEHALF OF MINOR S.A.H.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF LAWNSIDE, CAMDEN COUNTY,

Respondent.

R.N., petitioner, pro se

Harvey C. Johnson, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: July 8, 1996 Decided: August 29, 1996

BEFORE KATHRYN A. CLARK, ALJ:

R.N., on behalf of a minor child, S.A.H., has filed a petition claiming that S.A.H. is entitled to a free public education from the schooled district of Lawnside, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

In his petitioner, R.N. states that S.A.H. is a student at Haddon Heights High School, and that she, along with her (S.A.H's) mother, B.N., live at 20 B. Terrace in Stratford, New Jersey. R.N. also states that he lives apart from his wife and S.A.H., but that his residence in Lawnside remains S.A.H.'s residence as well. R.N. argues that "residence" and "domicile" are synonymous, citing a California case, Cooper v. Cooper, 269 Cal. App. 2d 6, 74 Cal. Rptr. 439, 441.

S.A.H.'s mother, B.N., submitted a notarized statement in which she states that she and her daughter reside at 20 B. Terrace in Stratford, New Jersey. In her statement, B.N. admits that R.N. did not adopt S.A.H., and that S.A.H. is R.N.'s step-daughter. B.N. also says that while she and R.N. were together, R.N. provided for S.A.H. Now, B.N. says that S.A.H. "has keys to his (R.N.'s) house. She goes there whenever she wants, she eats, watches television, and picks up her mail there. R.N. still cares for her and treats her as before. She can come to him for finances, advice or just to talk. His home is still her home."

Lawnside Board of Education has moved for Summary Decision, under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, which provides that summary decision may be rendered when there is no genuine issue of material fact, and when the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.

The relevant statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, states that public schools shall be free to all domiciliaries of the school district, and also to any child who is "kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and (who) is supported by such other person gratis as if (she) were such other person's own child." Further, a showing is required that the domiciliary intends to keep and support the child without cost to the parent for a longer time than merely throughout the school term.

There seems to be no dispute in this matter that S.A.H. lives with her mother, B.N., in Stratford, which is not in the Lawnside School District. R.N. has admitted to this, in his petitioner. B.N. also states this in her submission.

The argument presented by R.N. that "residence" and "domicile" are synonymous is not supported by New Jersey law as it pertains to school districts. One may have many residences, but only one domicile. It is not asserted by R.N. that S.A.H. considers his home to be her domicile, but merely another residence, a place where she is free to come and go.

The above-cited statute, at N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b), allows for the education in district of a child who is kept in the home of another who is a domiciliary of the school district, and who is supported by that domicilary, as if that child were the domiciliary of the school district's own child.

However, no evidence was presented by R.N. that he is "keeping" S.A.H., or is supporting her. R.N. does not claim that his providing the principal financial support for S.A.H. that he provides the majority of her food and clothes, or that he deducts her as a dependent on his tax returns. No evidence was presented by R.N. that S.A.H. even has a room of her own in his home, or that she sleeps overnight there regularly. The kinds of support and guidance provided by R.N. to his separated wife's daughter are commendable, but are not equivalent to "keeping" her in his home or to "supporting" her.

The relevant standard of review on a motion for summary decision is that the decision sought may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

When a motion for summary decision is filed the "adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). If the adverse party fails to meet this burden, "a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered." Ibid.

In this matter, there is not a genuine issue as to any material fact. S.A.H. is clearly not a domiciliary of Lawnside. Even if R.N. is right that his home in Lawnside is S.A.H.'s residence as well, this would not entitle her to a free public education from Lawnside School District. R.N. makes no claim of, and therefore has not shown that, S.A.H. is "being kept" by him, or in other words, is living with and is being supported by him.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that S.A.H. is not domiciled in Lawnside. I further FIND and CONCLUDE that S.A.H. is not living with or supported by a domiciliary of Lawnside, as if she were that domiciliary's own child. I FIND and CONCLUDE that respondent is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.

Respondent may now pursue an appropriate action before the Superior Court for the recovery of the tuition funds due to it.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF LAWNSIDE, CAMDEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and the reply thereto were filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board takes exception only to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) failure to assess R.N. with tuition, in that the enabling statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq., mandates that, where the evidence in a residency dispute does not support the claim of petitioner, the petitioner shall be assessed tuition for the student, prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools in the district.

Petitioner essentially argues that he and his wife share custody of S.A.H., and are jointly responsible for her care and well-being. Petitioner affirms that removal of S.A.H from Haddon Heights High School would be devastating to her and detrimental to her future.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and modifies the initial decision only to the extent necessary to direct that petitioner be assessed with tuition due, as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq. Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is so modified; the Petition of Appeal is dismissed and petitioner is hereby directed to pay the Board tuition for S.A.H., prorated to the time of her ineligible attendance in the Haddon Heights School District, the receiving District to the Board of Education of the Borough of Lawnside.[1]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[1] In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq., tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning grandparent contested Board's determination that minor child, S.P., was not domiciled in the District and, thus, was not entitled to a free public education there.

In light of testimony of witnesses and evidence in the record, the ALJ concluded that S.P. was domiciled in Green Brook during the 1995-96 school year and was entitled to be educated by the Board gratis. Petitioner did show by a preponderance of credible evidence that S.P. was domiciled with her. Petitioner obtained guardianship of S.P. and, although S.P. spent time freely with her mother and her mother did provide some support, S.P.'s domicile was with petitioner. ALJ denied the Board's claim for tuition.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of respondent's determination that S.P. is not domiciled in the district and thus not entitled to a free public education. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Petitioner requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. During the pendency of proceedings respondent has continued to provide S.P. with a free education, but has counterclaimed against petitioner and S.D., mother of S.P., for tuition reimbursement. A hearing was conducted on May 14, 1996, and the last briefs were received on June 13, 1996, after which the record closed. An order of extension is in effect.

Certain facts are undisputed. S.P. is sixteen years old and completed eleventh grade in the 1995/96 school year at Watchung Hills Regional High School. Respondent sends its students to Watchung Hills at an annual cost of $10,285 per student. Petitioner is S.P.'s maternal grandmother and she has resided in her own home at 15 K. Drive in Green Brook for the last forty-four years. Her husband, grandson and great-grandson live with her. Petitioner derives her income from Social Security benefits (R-24). S.D. is petitioner's daughter and S.P.'s mother. S.D. and S.P. came to live with petitioner when S.P. was two years old. The extended family lived together at the Green Brook residence until September 1991, when S.D. married and moved to an apartment in Piscataway. S.P. has attended respondent's schools since first grade.

Petitioner became S.P.'s legal guardian on August 1, 1995 (P-1). On January 15, 1996, S.P. had a child. For approximately six weeks before the birth and for six weeks thereafter S.P. was tutored at the Green Brook address by a number of teachers. The Somerset County Board of Social Services lists her at this address (P-7; P-8), and this is where Muhlenberg Regional Medical Center contacted her in connection with her prenatal care (P-9). A number of neighbors provided letters saying that S.P. lives at the Green Brook residence (P-2 through P-6); this is also where she receives mail (P-21).

Petitioner testified that S.P. has lived with her continuously since she was a baby. S.P. does spend time at her mother's Piscataway residence – on weekends, on Mondays when her mother is off from work, and during the summer when she goes back and forth between the two homes. Her mother generally takes her to the doctor and other appointments. Petitioner testified that she provides support for S.P., although she could not give specifics, other than to say that she gives her lunch money. During S.P.'s pregnancy, her home tutors generally called petitioner to schedule visits. Petitioner testified that she was aware that an investigator from the school was staking out the house from time to time.

S.D. testified that her daughter and husband do not get along, and she felt it would be better if S.P. lived with petitioner. Additionally, S.D. said she worked two different jobs, and S.P. needed more supervision than she could provide. S.D. testified that she has a good relationship with S.P. and sees her frequently; S.P. generally stays at her apartment in Piscataway on weekends. She drives S.P. to appointments and contributes funds to her support. While S.P. was pregnant, S.D. often picked her up at the Green Brook residence and drove her to school. S.D. testified that she has claimed S.P. as a dependent for federal income tax purposes in years past, but not last year; the tax forms were not provided. S.D. testified that she has been aware of respondent's concerns for a few years, and knows that her mother's house has been under surveillance.

S.P. testified that she lives with her grandmother, grandfather, son and cousin. When her mother married five years ago S.P. decided to stay with her grandmother; she does not care for her stepfather. Nevertheless, she sees her mother daily and stays with her on weekends in Piscataway. In the fall of 1995, either her mother or her former boyfriend drove her to and from school, because the bus ride is bumpy. Since the birth of her baby she is more likely to take the bus to school.

Dr. Jeffrey Klein is the superintendent in respondent's district. He began to suspect that S.P. was no longer living in district when she was in eighth grade. When S.P. entered high school in the 1993/94 school year he received an anonymous telephone complaint from a resident concerned about this. He authorized a stakeout which confirmed his suspicions; a default judgment was obtained for tuition reimbursement. During the 1994/95 school year surveillance continued, but no further action was taken. In August 1995 petitioner became S.P.'s legal guardian, and respondent admitted her reluctantly.

In October 1995 Dr. Klein was contacted by C.D., the mother of the boy who was seeing S.P. at the time. She said that she always picked her son up at the Piscataway apartment, and this is where S.P. lived (R-7). Dr. Klein authorized a stakeout of the Green Brook premises through October and November 1995; no surveillance was undertaken in Piscataway. On October 24, 1995, at approximately 2:40 p.m. Dr. Klein was driving in his car and happened to observe S.D., S.P., and a young man in another vehicle. He followed them to the Green Brook address, where everyone entered the house. After ten minutes they came out with their book bags and belongings and drove to S.D.'s Piscataway residence. They did not exit that house before 3:45 p.m., when Dr. Klein left, and their car was still there when he passed by the residence at 5:00 p.m. R-6.

Francis J. Sills is a vice principal at Watchung Hills Regional High School. She testified that she had dealings with S.D. regarding S.P. on two occasions during the 1995/96 school year. S.D. inquired about the procedure for home instruction during S.P.'s pregnancy, and in the week prior to hearing came in to discuss a restraining order she was seeking against S.P.'s former boyfriend.

A series of records were presented through Ms. Sills. An absence excuse dated April 30, 1996, is signed by S.D. (R-11). A letter to S.P.'s teachers shows that S.D.'s name was given as the contact for purposes of home instruction during S.P.'s pregnancy, and the Green Brook address was given as her residence (R-13). A guidance department form (R-14), a medical emergency form (R-15), and a report card (R-16) list S.D. as S.P.'s parent/guardian and the Green Brook address as the home address. A health record lists the mother's first name and petitioner's surname as the responsible person, and the Green Brook residence as home (R-19). Ms. Sills acknowledged that this information is generally taken from registration files and may be dated. She indicated that the high school has never sent mail to the Piscataway address.

Ms. Sills has spoken with petitioner once; she telephoned the Green Brook address to give notice that S.P.'s medical excuse involving pregnancy was ending. She followed up the conversation with a letter (R-22). One home instructor, Martin Weber, informed Ms. Sills that he did not believe S.P. was living at the Green Brook address. Sometimes she was not there when he arrived and would appear after petitioner made a phone call.

Robert Debbie is a police officer in Plainfield and also acts as the attendance officer in Green Brook. He conducted a surveillance at the Green Brook premises on four dates in October 1995 and followed up three more times in November 1995 (R-3; R-4). In the 1995/96 school year, classes started at 7:40 a.m. and the school bus stopped on S.P.'s street at about 7:05 a.m.; it is about a twenty-minute trip from there to school. He arrived at the Green Brook address at approximately 6:45 a.m., stayed to see whether S.P. got on the bus, and left at about 7:15 a.m. He did not see S.P. on any of these occasions, yet she was in school on all but one of the days. Cross-examination revealed that Mr. Debbie was at the Green Brook residence on four days in the weeks prior to hearing, although he did not bring the records of this surveillance with him. He saw S.P. get on the bus on two of those days, she was absent from school on one of the days, and on the other day she was in school but did not get on the bus. He saw her get off the bus in the afternoon.

S.P. was recalled to say that C.D. had thrown her son out of the house in the week prior to Dr. Klein's conversation with her; C.D. did not much care for S.P.

This is the substance of the record.

Petitioner must show by a preponderance of the credible evidence that S.P. was domiciled in Green Brook during the 1995/96 school year, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). This has been done. Domicile is "home," and all relevant indicia must be weighed to determine which place of residence fits that characterization. In re Unamie, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374-78 (Law. Div. 1991). It is undisputed that S.P. lived in Green Brook with her mother and grandparents from the time she was two until her mother married and moved to Piscataway in September 1991. Petitioner, S.D. and S.P. testified credibly that Green Brook remains S.P.'s permanent home. In August 1995 petitioner became S.P.'s guardian, thereby acquiring the powers and responsibilities of a parent for her supervision and education. N.J.S.A. 3B:12-52. To obtain guardianship from the Somerset County Surrogate, petitioner had to establish that S.P. was domiciled in that County, R. 4:81-1(c); Piscataway is in Middlesex County. While this is not dispositive, D.W. v. Greater Egg Harbor Regional Board of Education, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 225, it is a significant factor. S.P. receives mail in Green Brook, neighbors say she lives there, and this is where social services agencies send her entitlements. When S.P. was pregnant, home instruction was provided in Green Brook. Finally, this is where her infant son resides.

There are some contrary indications. Respondent observed the Green Brook premises on seven scattered dates during the fall of 1995. S.P. did not get on the school bus, yet she was in school on six of these days, and respondent infers that she embarked from Piscataway. S.P. and S.D. explained that during her pregnancy, S.P. got a ride to and from school and did not take the bus; she may have been picked up before Mr. Debbie began his surveillance at 6:45 a.m., or after he left at 7:15 a.m. This explication is not unreasonable, and there is some support for it in the most recent stakeout data showing that S.P. does now use the school bus; respondent was not planning to present this information. Moreover, no surveillance was ever conducted at the Piscataway residence.

Watchung Hills Regional High School lists S.D. as the contact person regarding S.P., but Ms. Sills acknowledged that some of these records are dated. This is apparent from the fact that they continue to show S.D. as residing in Green Brook, though it is undisputed that she has not lived there for five years. In any case S.D. acknowledges continued involvement in her daughter's life.

S.P. spends weekends in Piscataway and sees her mother freely. This could lend support to respondent's assertions, but on the face of it need mean no more than that mother and daughter have maintained an ongoing relationship despite separate domiciles.

Respondent suggests that petitioner cannot be supporting S.P., and points to her limited income from Social Security. It argues that such support is required under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1). Our case is not governed by this subsection. N.J.S.A 18A:38-1(b)(1) applies to students living with persons other than a parent or legal guardian. In such circumstances, the student is not in his/her permanent home, and a series of criteria have been developed to assure that such arrangements are not merely a subterfuge to gain entry into a preferred district. In our case petitioner is S.P.'s legal guardian, and the question is S.P.'s domicile under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). Support is a factor, but only as one indication of domicile. The record reveals that S.D. is also a person of moderate means (R-23), and she acknowledges contributing to S.P.'s maintenance. This support is not inconsistent with domicile in Green Brook.

The hearsay comments of C.D., the mother of the boy whom S.P. was dating during her pregnancy, are clearly interested and of limited weight. Dr. Klein's sleuthing also added little substance.

Respondent's proofs give it some reason for suspicion, but there are substantial and tangible indicia of domicile in Green Brook, and little that points to domicile in Piscataway.

Based on the foregoing, I conclude that S.P. was domiciled in Green Brook during the 1995/96 school year and was entitled to be educated by respondent gratis. Respondent's tuition claim is DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

J.P., on behalf of her minor child, S.P.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF GREEN BROOK, SOMERSET COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by the Board and petitioner in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board disagrees with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that petitioner was domiciled within its School District and, therefore, entitled to a free public education. (Board's Exceptions at p. 1) The Board asserts that the ALJ failed to consider evidence showing that S.P. was not properly residing in Green Brook and that petitioner otherwise failed to meet her burden of proving that she obtained guardianship of S.P. It then cites examples of such evidence including testimony that S.P.'s mother admitted to providing support for S.P. and that S.P. was claimed on her mother's past tax returns. (Id. at pp. 1-2) In that this evidence and arguments were fully and fairly considered by the ALJ, they will not be addressed herein. The Board further notes that for legitimate reasons the Commissioner normally considers evidence of support being provided when determining domicile. (Id. at pp. 2-3) Despite the above, the Board avers that the ALJ places very little importance on the support of S.P. and that "his reliance on other evidence is misplaced." (Id.) The Board disputes the ALJ's finding that because S.P. spends weekends with her mother and sees her mother freely means only that mother and daughter maintain a relationship despite separate domiciles. In regard to this finding, the Board asks rhetorically, "then what is the point of transferring guardianship to the grandmother?" (Id. at p. 4)

In response, petitioner avers that the Board ignores the critical difference between a case in which the relative has guardianship and a case in which the relative has only custody. She further contends that > the Board ignores the undisputed fact that J.P. provides for all of S.P.'s shelter and utilities and most of her food. S.P.'s occasional contribution can not overcome the cost of S.P.'s essential basic needs, all of which are met by J.P. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 1)

Petitioner contends that in its exceptions the Board repeats only evidence favorable to its position and ignores the overwhelming evidence that S.P. is domiciled in Green Brook and that the Board is speculative in its exceptions. Petitioner asserts that the ALJ did not rely solely on the establishment of guardianship by S.P.'s grandmother, but on all of the evidence before him, assessing credibility and weighing testimony and exhibits. (Id. at p. 2)

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings of the ALJ that S.P. is domiciled with her grandmother, J.P., and is entitled to a free public education in the respondent School District. It is further observed that in reaching this decision, the Commissioner had no cause to question the ALJ's assessment of petitioner's credibility as such assessment is not belied by the record. It is further noted that challenges to the findings made by an administrative law judge regarding the weight accorded to proffered testimony require the party to supply the agency head with the relevant and necessary portions of the hearing transcript. See In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158 (App. Div. 1987).

Lastly, the Commissioner must emphasize that a parent, simply in maintaining a relationship with a child, is not establishing on a prima facie basis that the child is domiciled with that parent. Such a holding could dissuade parents who are otherwise unable to care for their children from maintaining contact with their children, a result which is both contrary to sound public policy and neither required nor intended by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Rather, as noted in the initial decision, many factors are reviewed in a proper determination of domicile and, in this case, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that S.P. is domiciled with her grandmother, J.P.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the ALJ's determination, finding S.P. entitled to a free public education and denying respondent's claim for tuition, is affirmed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF QUINTON, SALEM COUNTY,	:	DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, V.H., alleged her minor great grandchild, J.T., was wrongfully denied admission to school due to a residency dispute.

ALJ concluded J.T. was placed with his great grandmother in Quinton for the sole purpose of attending the Quinton School in school years 1994-95 and 1995-96. ALJ found that during that period J.T.'s parents resided in Salem and J.T. was supported by his father. Thus, J.T.'s parents and guardians were assessed tuition owed to the Board in the sum of $12,474.

Commissioner affirmed in part, reversed in part the initial decision. Commissioner found that J.T. was not entitled to a free public education in the District prior to the date when his parents granted legal custody to V.H. In accordance with the requirements set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1b(1), V.H. had to be assessed tuition for the particular period when J.T. was not eligible to attend school in the District. However, as of November 28, 1995, J.T. was entitled to a free public education in Quinton as the Board did not dispute that V.H. was a domiciliary of Quinton when she became his legal guardian as of said date. Petitioner was directed to pay the Board tuition for J.T., prorated from the start of the 1994-95 school year until November 27, 1995.

Record Closed: August 9, 1996 Decided: August 27, 1996

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed a complaint alleging that the minor student, J.T., was wrongfully denied admission to the Quinton School. The Board of Education (BOE) filed a petition seeking assessment for the student's period of ineligible attendance per N.J.A.C. 38.1. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The BOE conducted a hearing and determined that J.T. should be enrolled in the Salem School System and not in the Quinton School System. The child, J.T., resided with his great-grandmother who did not support the child. The child was supported by his father, a resident of Salem. The child was residing with his great-grandmother in Quinton for the sole purpose of attending the Quinton School. The child's father attended the Quinton School and believes it is superior to the Salem School.

The Superintendent of the Quinton School District, Donna Agnew, testified that she had calculated the tuition due to the Quinton BOE for the 1994/95 and the 1995/96 school years when J.T. attended the Quinton Schools and when his parents resided in Salem. She calculated the tuition to be as follows:

During the years in question J.T. was in the second and third grades at the Quinton School.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that J.T. was placed with his great-grandmother in Quinton for the sole purpose of attending the Quinton School in 1994/95 and 1995/96.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that during the 1994/95 and 1995/96 school years, J.T.'s parents resided in Salem and not in Quinton.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that during the 1994/95 and 1995/96 school years J.T. was supported by his father.

I ORDER that J.T.'s parents and guardian be assessed the amount of the 1994/95 and 1995/96 school tuition in the sum of $12,474.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." IN THE MATTER OF THE DISQUALIFICATION FROM SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT OF ELOISE WIGGS

Carleton A. Lewis, Esq., for petitioner
(Essex-Newark Legal Services, attorneys)

New Jersey Department of Education, appearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.6(a)

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

Appellant, Eloise Wiggs (appellant or Wiggs), was employed as a school custodian by the Lakeside School and the First Occupational Center of New Jersey. On January 30, 1994, the New Jersey Department of Education (Department) notified appellant that a fingerprint search conducted by the New Jersey State Police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) revealed that she was sentenced on October 28, 1982 to 90 days suspended jail time, one-year probation, and ordered to pay a $175 fine for possession of narcotics. Further, on November 29, 1984, she was sentenced to 15 years in a New Jersey state prison, with five years of mandatory time, for robbery. Appellant's record also indicated that she had other non-disqualifying offenses, such as the possession of a weapon, 1973; burglary, 1976, and public order crimes, 1977. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, the disqualifying convictions disqualified appellant from continuing employment with any school or other institution under the supervision of the Department.

Appellant appealed the decision of the Department to disqualify her from continued employment based on the grounds of rehabilitation. By decision dated August 2, 1995, the State Board of Education remanded the matter to the Commissioner of Education for hearing. Thereafter, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 20, 1995 as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-12 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

Appellant does not dispute her criminal record. Thus, I FIND the following as FACT:

1. On October 28, 1982, appellant was sentenced to 90 days suspended jail time, one-year probation and $175 fine for possession of narcotics.

2. On November 29, 1984, appellant was sentenced to 15 years in a New Jersey state prison.

3. Appellant was convicted of other nondisqualifying offenses, burglary, weapon possession, public order crimes, theft by deception and receiving stolen property. These latter convictions were committed from 1976 through 1991.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

Appellant presented four witnesses in support of her case. Roger Bedford, Senior Parole Officer of the New Jersey Department of Corrections, testified that he has been employed by the Department of Corrections for twenty-seven years and manages the repeat offenders caseload. He was assigned to the appellant's case in September 1992. Appellant's case was classified as in need of intensive supervision.

At that time, appellant was homeless and lived in a shelter for the intrinsic homeless. As a condition of parole, appellant was required to submit to random urinalysis during the first six months of her release. All her tests proved negative. He has observed the appellant advance herself out of homelessness and reunite with her family. In June 1996, appellant completed parole without missing any parole appointments.

Bedford submitted a report on the appellant wherein he gave her an extremely favorable rating (A-1).

Bedford defines rehabilitation as a complete change of heart, mind and attitude from a destructive, non-productive course to a productive community oriented person. In his opinion, Wiggs is rehabilitated.

Ms. Carol Price, Program Supervisor for the Bergen County School District - Special Services, formerly the Principal of the First Occupational Center of Orange (Center), also testified in support of the appellant. Price became acquainted with appellant when she was hired to work at the Center. Wiggs was hired as a grounds keeper and she supervised her work. Wiggs was very reliable and conscientious needed little supervision, and she was always early, left late and was never sick.

Price recalled that there were seventy students at the school some of whom were mentally disabled. Further, many of the students had been a part of the criminal justice system. The students trusted and valued Wiggs and would talk to her about their problems.

Price believes that Wiggs is not a danger to others. She, too, has absolute trust in Wiggs. She believes that Wiggs was rehabilitated when she came to the Center and thus she wrote a letter to the Department of Education on her behalf.

Hester Wiggs, mother of the appellant, confirmed her daughter's rehabilitation. She is well acquainted with her daughter's past. The appellant is a changed person. Her daughter visits almost daily and the two attend church together. Mrs. Wiggs concludes that her daughter has matured and is a beautiful, disciplined young woman of whom she is very proud.

Diane Melton, sister of the appellant, spoke of Wigg's efforts in mentoring their nephew and her loving relationship with the entire family. Melton recounted her sister's past and has witnessed a profound change in her. The appellant is now a caring individual who follows rules and regulations. She is free of prior bad associations and has displayed a tenacity to do the right thing. She has watched her sister under pressure and she did not break. Since her release from prison, she has not used drugs or committed any subsequent crimes.

Appellant, a high school graduate, spoke of past drug history. In 1982, she was using codeine. In 1983, she was addicted to heroin and committed robberies and other crimes to support her drug habit. She now attends Narcotics Anonymous (NA) three to four times weekly. Appellant also spoke of her employment with the Lakeside School. She was trained at the First Occupational Center for building services, a job which she thoroughly enjoys. Further, appellant states that she enjoys working with the kids. The kids need help and she can identify with many of their problems.

Appellant also works part time as a domestic for one of the teachers at the school. With respect to her past criminal record, the appellant takes full responsibility for her actions and expresses remorse for the victims and its impact on her life. She is now very involved in Zion Hill Baptist Church. In addition to attending services weekly, she is involved in a myriad of church activities.

In support of the appellant, many letters were sent to the DOE attesting to the appellant's rehabilitation. A few of these letters are summarized as follows:

> I have known Ms. Eloise Wiggs in a professional capacity for the past three years. Ms. Wiggs worked as a custodian at the Lakeside School, a division of the First Occupational Center of New Jersey, where I am employed as a school nurse.
> I have observed her in the school setting and have always found her to be reliable, trustworthy and very industrious. Ms. Wiggs presented herself with a professional attitude and took great pride in the quality of her work.
>
> Lakeside school is geared to special education students. Ms. Wiggs was always careful to provide a safe, clean environment for them, and served as a positive role model. The students admired her and knew that she cared about their well being.
>
> For the past two years, Ms. Wiggs has occasionally been employed by me as a day worker in my home. My family and I have complete confidence in her and trust her implicitly.
> I consider Ms. Wiggs to be a person with excellent moral values and I would not hesitate in recommending her for any position she might seek in the future.

> I am writing to attest to the character of Ms. Eloise Wiggs. I became acquainted with Ms. Wiggs as an employee of the Lakeside School. I observed her to be a person who was very thorough and efficient in her assigned responsibilities. More importantly, she was very concerned about the welfare of the students and made certain that their environment was kept clean and safe. She displayed a great degree of caring for the students and staff and was often invited to join in school activities.

Our school is one which teaches special education students life and job skills. Ms. Wiggs was an excellent role model and would not hesitate to shoe them the proper way to do things. She understood the students and they though of her as a friend, as did the entire staff. I would not hesitate to recommend her for any position and consider her to be a trustworthy, honest and caring individual.

Sincerely,
Rebecca S. Ross, M.Ed.

I have been Ms. Wiggs parole officer since her release from the Correctional Institution for Women, on 9/8/92. On that date she was released to the street homeless with only $150.00 in her pocket and with limited skills educationally or practically developed with which to seek meaningful employment.

Placed into a city shelter system from which few men emerge without emotional scars, she managed to survive free of alcohol and drug abuse, secured her own employment and training at the Occupational Center of Essex County in Orange, N.J. and through the auspices of the agency was placed into the position she now holds. I have seen her grow from a woman without hope or a future into a confident, self assured, reliable and productive contributor to the community.

It is my opinion that subjecting Ms. Wiggs to a loss of her present job would set her back developmentally and would, considering how far she has come, be an insurmountable injustice on the part of the system.

Therefore, should there be anything your agency can do to prevent her loss of position and allow her to continue within her present employment, I as her parole officer would appreciate it.

Respectfully,
By: R. Roger Bedford,
Sr. Parole Officer, DO #9

I am writing on behalf of Eloise Wiggs who is a Building Service Worker at our Lakeside Avenue School.

Eloise has been a model employee since coming to the First Occupational Center. She is honest, hard working, and sets a good example for the other workers. Eloise has taken advantage of our training program . . . she has progressed to become a staff person.

Eloise will have all the support systems she will need to continue her rehabilitation into society. Please do not allow this precious lady to go back to what was a disastrous period in her life, but to continue along life's highway as a productive and reformed citizen.

As the Community Resource Trainer, I will continue to work with Ms. Wiggs in any way possible to introduce her to resources available.

Very truly yours,
Reginald M. Reid,
Community Resource Trainer

It has been my pleasure to work with Eloise Wiggs this school year. Being the maintenance person at the school, Eloise has demonstrated competence, professionalism, and congeniality to both staff and students.

Eloise completes her responsibilities on time. She also has taken the initiative and suggested ways to keep the school safer and more comfortable. Eloise has also proven to be very flexible. This is a necessary quality when dealing with special students. She will drop her "normal" routine immediately when a special cleaning situation arises. This is quite helpful in keeping a classroom running smoothly.

Eloise has also demonstrated congeniality to both the staff and students. . . . She has taken an interest in the students and they enjoy interacting with her. Eloise is a good role model for the students and demonstrates proper work habits and behaviors.

Eloise Wiggs is an asset to the Lakeside School.

Sincerely,
Catherine Thyne,
Multiple Handicap Teacher

This letter is to certify that Ms. Wiggs has been a participant with the Vocational Rehabilitation Program since 1/11/93. The purpose of vocational rehabilitation is to render individuals "Whole Person."

Ms. Wiggs has been provided with an Individualized Vocational Rehabilitation since becoming employed, she has developed into a fine worker whose motivation and determination are especially commendable.

As a Vocational Rehabilitation Counselor, I strongly urge you to give Ms. Wiggs a chance to maintain her employment. . . . She will be an asset to the New Jersey Department of Education as she is a qualified vocationally rehabilitated individual.

Sincerely,
Anne Williams,
Sr. Rehabilitation Counselor

ISSUE

The issue is whether the appellant has demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence that she is rehabilitated.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

N.J.A.C. 18A:6-7.1 prohibits the employment by the Department of Education and Boards of Education of persons who have been convicted of certain crimes and offenses. However, if the individual has affirmatively demonstrated to the Commissioner clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation, the individual shall not be disqualified from employment. In determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation, the following factors shall be considered.

1. The nature and responsibility of the position in which the convicted individual would hold;

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense;

3. The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

4. The date of the offense;

5. The age of the individual when the offense was committed;

6. Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

7. Any social condition which may have contributed to the offense;

8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, participation in correctional work release programs, or the recommendations of person who have had the individual under their supervision.

Appellant seeks a position as a school custodian. It has been held that:

> A school janitor occupies a position of trust and responsibility necessitating high standards or dependability and morality. Its function far exceeds opening and closing the school house and keeping it clean and tidy. The safety and welfare of the children may depend on the proper discharge of his duties.
> [In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Joseph McDougall, 1974 S.L.D. 178.]

At the Lakeside School, appellant was recognized as a role model for the troubled students. Thus, she will serve as more than a custodian.

There is no doubt that the appellant's past criminal history is enough to disqualify her. However, the letters and the testimonies presented herein speak of a capable, competent and dedicated hard working woman. Indeed, the witnesses herein, Price, Melton, and Bedford, took time from their jobs to come to the hearing to testify on appellant's behalf. All of the witnesses openly displayed their love and hope for the appellant. I am persuaded that each of them has the utmost faith in the appellant and truly believe that she is rehabilitated.

Appellant was incarcerated for her crimes and has paid her debt to society. There is no reason to seek further retribution. In this instance, the criminal justice system has worked. It has exacted retribution and achieved rehabilitation. The last disqualifying offense was committed in 1984. It is true that the appellant slipped in 1991 but this nondisqualifying offense was committed prior to her receiving intensive supervision from the Parole Board and her participation in from Narcotics Anonymous. I am satisfied that the appellant's past criminal activity was driven by her addiction to drugs. I am further persuaded that the 1991 criminal conviction was her last criminal act.

In conclusion, I FIND that the appellant has demonstrated that she is rehabilitated. Her weekly participation in NA, completion of job training for building maintenance, her efforts to be independent by acquiring an apartment and a car, all point to a changed life. I FIND that the appellant is an engaged productive member of society. This is also evidenced by her active participation with the children of Lakeside who like her have a troubled history.

Based on the whole of the record, I CONCLUDE that appellant has affirmatively demonstrated her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e).

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the Department's action to disqualify appellant from employment with the Lakeside School and First Occupational Center is REVERSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

A-3 Letter from Rebecca S. Ross

IN THE MATTER OF THE	:
DISQUALIFICATION FROM SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
EMPLOYMENT OF E.W.	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner cannot concur with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the within appellant has demonstrated rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and is, therefore, qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws. Rather, in examining the evidence presented in the record and at the hearing against the statutory factors which must be considered, the Commissioner is unable to find appellant qualified for school employment at this time and, therefore, reverses the initial decision.

In reaching this determination, the Commissioner of Education is mindful of his obligation to review appeals of disqualification from school employment to determine whether an appellant has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. The burden of proving rehabilitation is, therefore, on the appellant.

Initially, it must be noted that appellant has the following disqualifying offenses on record: Possession of Narcotics on October 27, 1982, for which she was sentenced on October 28, 1982 to 90 days suspended jail time, one year probation, and ordered to pay a $175 fine; Robbery on February 15, 1983, for which she was sentenced on November 29, 1984 to 15 years in New Jersey State Prison, to serve a mandatory time of five years and ordered to pay a $25 penalty. Appellant's record further reveals nondisqualifying offenses including Possession of a Weapon in 1973, Burglary in 1976, Public Order crimes in 1977, Theft by Deception in 1984, and Receiving Stolen Property on February 13, 1991, for which she was convicted and sentenced to three years confinement.

In the initial decision, the ALJ justified appellant's recent nondisqualifying offense in stating that she > slipped in 1991 but this nondisqualifying offense was committed prior to her receiving intensive supervision from the Parole Board and her participation in Narcotics Anonymous. I am satisfied that the appellant's past criminal activity was driven by her addiction to drugs. (Initial Decision at p. 10)

Notwithstanding that appellant may be making commendable progress toward rehabilitation, the Commissioner is not persuaded that sufficient time has passed without incident since the date of appellant's 1991 offense to demonstrate rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence,* especially since appellant was only released from probation in June 1996. The Commissioner also finds it particularly disturbing that appellant's offenses are not, in fact, isolated but, instead, reflect a lengthy pattern of criminal behavior. Additionally, the Commissioner is continually mindful of his responsibility to ensure that the students in this state are provided with environments which are safe and drug free. See Larry Hall v. New Jersey State Department of Education, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 46, 47.

With respect to the nature and responsibility of the position appellant wishes to occupy, the Commissioner has consistently been mindful that a custodial position affords an individual significant and otherwise unsupervised access to children, a consideration which must not be minimized when examining rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. In the Matter of the Disqualification from School Employment of Gregory Campbell, decided by the Commissioner on January 30, 1996, affirmed by the State Board of Education on July 10, 1996. That appellant has assumed a direct role in working with troubled children through her work and as a part-time domestic for one of the teachers, as noted in the initial decision, underscores the Commissioner's concerns in this regard. (Initial Decision at p. 4)

Based on the above considerations, the Commissioner cannot be persuaded, as he must by law, that appellant has, at this time, demonstrated rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. This decision does not, however, preclude her from later seeking such a determination, after passage of sufficient time to demonstrate that she has removed herself from all criminal activity.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed herein, the Commissioner reverses the initial decision of the OAL and sustains appellant's disqualification from school employment.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $181,457 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 16, 1996.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line-item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the District, Commissioner determined to restore $75,625 for a total General Fund tax levy of $3,926,717 for 1996-97 school year.

For the Respondent: Thomas S. Ferguson, Esq.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on June 12, 1996, through the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the Lopatcong Board of Education (Board), seeking restoration of reductions to the school budget made by the Township Council of the Township of Lopatcong (Council) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 following defeat of the budget at the annual school election on April 16, 1996.

At that election, the voters rejected a public question proposing a General Fund tax levy of $4,032,549 for the 1996-97 school year. The 1996-97 budget submitted to the voters included an approved Commissioner's cap waiver of $458,296, deemed necessary due to increased tuition costs to sending districts.[1] On May 14, 1996, following consultation with the [1] This amount reflects the Cap Waiver Panel's reallocation of $11,897.

Board as required by law, the Council adopted a resolution determining to certify a General Fund tax levy of $3,851,092 as sufficient to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education (T & E) in the District. This amount represented a reduction of $181,457 from the tax levy proposed by the Board, and was effectuated through cuts in nine separate line items[2], for the reasons given in Exhibit A, attached to the implementing Council resolution. The Board determined to appeal these reductions and duly filed the within petition.

The amounts in dispute in this appeal are as follows:

Tax Levy Proposed by Board		Tax Levy Certified by Council
General Fund	$ 4,032,549	General Fund	$ 3,851,092

Amount of Reduction by Council		Amount of Reduction in Dispute
General Fund	$ 181,457	General Fund	$ 181,457

An answer to the Board's petition was filed by the Council on June 27, 1996. On July 19, 1996 and July 17, 1996, respectively, the parties filed position statements pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.8, followed by responsive statements on July 25, 1996 and July 26, 1996, and final summations on August 5, 1996 and July 30, 1996.

In addition, as the parties had previously been advised by letter from the Assistant Commissioner dated March 13, 1996, and distributed through the County Superintendent to boards and municipalities experiencing budget defeats, as part of the record of the within appeal, the Commissioner took official notice of the Board's revised budget and its June 30 financial report, the latter for the purpose of identifying whether the Board underestimated in its 1996-97 budget the amount of anticipated undesignated surplus.

Upon filing of the parties' final summations as noted above, the record of the appeal was closed.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such T & E to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line-item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of T & E. Board of Education of East Brunswick Council v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989). With respect to appeals involving cap waivers, before the Commissioner can direct restoration of any amount of a waiver defeated by the voters, the Commissioner must determine that such amount is both fully necessary for purposes of T & E and unable to be derived from further allocation within the base budget. Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Rutherford, Bergen County, State Board decision July 7, 1993; Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater, Bergen County, and

In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal of the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater, Bergen County, State Board Decision July 6, 1994.

Mindful, then, of the standard to be applied, the Commissioner makes the specific determinations set forth below.

GENERAL ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

As a general argument, the Board notes that its philosophy has always been to develop a zero-based budget each year, starting from scratch and raising taxes only when necessary, and to give back to the taxpayers in the form of tax cuts and/or the utilization of free balance in order to avoid the necessary tax increases. Consequently, no new programs or large equipment have been added.

The Board argues that while the Council asserts, infra, that the student/faculty ratio in the District is 11.6:1, compared to the state's average of the number 14.2:1, the statistic is misleading and has been misinterpreted. In reality, the Board continues, the "regular education" class sizes range from a low of 18 students to a high of 27 students. The Board explains that the student/faculty ratio is reduced pursuant to the mandated reduced number of students in special education classes. Excluding self-contained special education classes and "special" teachers, there are, according to the Board, 22.5 homeroom teachers and homerooms. There are no classrooms other than mandatory special education classes containing 11 students; rather, the Board notes the average class size is 23.6 students, as calculated by dividing the number of regular education students (531) by the 22.5 full-time educators.

Moreover, as to the Council's allegation that the estimated surplus for 1996-97 is $128,305, said figure was the projection when the budget was prepared and finalized in February of 1996. However, the Board argues, due to unanticipated expenditures and transfers, the recently completed audit on July 15, 1996, indicates that the Board has $13,268.79 in surplus or free-balance. The Board maintains that it has appropriated considerable amounts of surplus toward each year's budget in an effort to reduce and/or modify tax increases.

Further, the Board argues that the Council's assertions, infra, are based upon the premise that the Board's teaching staff are employed full-time but are actually working part-time, inasmuch as the Council finds that full-time teaching staff members can assume job functions performed presently by other staff members. Such is not the case, according to the Board. The Board maintains that all teaching staff members are working to capacity and cannot assume additional job duties without reducing or eliminating other job functions they presently perform.

The Board further affirms that, aside from the inaccuracies in the Council's assertions, there are many factors the Council legitimately cannot consider due to the ever-changing nature of the District. For example, during the summer of 1996, five new special education students were either recently classified or transferred into the District. Based upon this influx, the Board notes that it will be required to pay the Warren County Special Services School District an additional $38,624 and the Franklin Township Pre-School an additional $8,750, both of which are unanticipated expenses and must be factored into the budget. Thus, as a general argument, the Board contends that failure to restore these budget cuts will hamper, if not prohibit, it from maintaining T & E, and will have a significant detrimental impact upon the students of the District.

It is the position of the Township of Lopatcong Mayor and Town Council that the proposed budget cuts will not jeopardize the provision of T & E to the students of the Lopatcong School District, nor did the Lopatcong School Board demonstrate to the Council that the items were essential to T & E. It is the Council's position that the Board has failed to provide any data or specific criteria regarding how the cuts will detrimentally affect the educational needs of the School District.

The Council argues that the Board sought to increase the tax levy by $695,927 ($458,296 due to tuition increases and $237,631 general increases). This is a 21 percent increase in the school budget, 14 percent from tuition increases and 7 percent in general increases. Whereas, the 1994-95 school budget increased only 4 percent and the 1995-96 budget only 6.5 percent, the Council observes that the school budget has increased $1,021,638 since the 1993-94 school year, concluding that the 21 percent increase of the school budget in one year and the over $1 million increase in the last three years will create a hardship on the taxpayers of Lopatcong. While 14 percent of the increase could not be altered since it was due to an unanticipated tuition increase, it was necessary to look at the school budget with careful scrutiny of the educational needs of the District. In so doing, the Council contends it made the reductions it felt could be made without adversely affecting the educational needs of the District.

The Council further attests that, prior to the school budget being put to the voters, although defeated by a 5-3 vote by the school board, the Board itself considered cutting $181,457 for the school budget in the following areas: Teacher Salaries for K-8 and speech ($143,940); Other Purchased Services ($2,500); Support Service Salaries ($5,270); Employee Benefits ($19,847); General Supplies ($8,000); and Media/Library Supplies ($1,900). Thus, the Council reasons that the amount of the reductions made by the Council are no greater than those initially proposed and agreed with by at least some of the members of the Board.

The Council further avers that its reductions do not in any way affect the vital functions of the educational system. It notes that the reductions made were implemented with due consideration of the needs of the School District. The Council instructs that the student/faculty ratio at Lopatcong School is 11.6:1, compared to the state average of 14.2:1. This ratio, according to the Council, is not in jeopardy. Moreover, the Council points out that the complexity of the student population has not increased. According to the 1994-95 New Jersey School Report Card, the Lopatcong Elementary School has surpassed District Factor Grouping and state averages for Reading, Mathematics and Writing for 1993-94 and 1994-95. Accordingly, these programs have not, nor will they be, affected by any budgetary cuts. The Council contends that this is also in keeping with Governor Whitman's recommendation that these fundamentals be stressed in current education. The Council maintains that it did not reduce any of the school's educational programs when making its school budget reductions; it merely reallocated staff.

Additionally, the Council argues that the Board has been left with adequate discretion through the General Fund surplus balance which it may utilize to deal with any problems which may arise. The estimated surplus for the 1995-96 school year is $278,305 with $128,305 estimated surplus available for the beginning of the 1996-97 school year. The Council observes that there has been an abundance of surplus in the General Fund over the last few years.

The Board acknowledges that it presently employs one full-time vocal teacher and one instrumental teacher. The Council seeks to reduce the full-time music teacher's position to a half-time position. The Board indicates that although the Council argues that in addition to the full-time duties of the vocal teacher, said individual can also assume the teaching of basic music and music appreciation, in order for this to be accomplished, one must assume that the vocal teacher is not presently performing on a full-time basis. However, the Board notes that the vocal teacher currently works on a full-time basis performing the following functions: teaching formal music classes to all students in grade K-8 (559 students); conducting 5th/6th grade chorus (58 students); conducting 7th/8th grade chorus (48 students); preparing for a "kinder concert" with grades K-2; presenting a Holiday Concert involving both choruses; presenting a Spring Concert with grades 3 and 4; presenting a Spring Choral Concert in conjunction with the band concert; preparing students for a PTA Founders Day program; and implementing a music keyboard program.

The Board further notes that the responsibilities performed by the instrumental music teacher on a full-time basis are as follows: giving individual and small group instruction; conducting a junior band comprised of 32-35 students (5th/6th grades); conducting a senior band comprised of 75-80 students (6th through 8th grades); conducting a stage band comprised of 35 students; conducting a woodwind ensemble comprised of 20 students; conducting a Holiday Band Concert in conjunction with the vocal teacher; conducting a Spring Band Concert in conjunction with the vocal teacher; and preparing bands for marching in the Halloween Parade. Thus, the Board reasons that the job functions performed by the instrumental teacher can only be performed on a full-time basis, and the present job functions of the vocal teacher similarly require full-time employment, thereby precluding the teaching of basic music and music appreciation as recommended by the Council. Moreover, the Board argues that the recent Core Curriculum Content Standards emphasizes visual and performing arts. Without a full-time instrumental music teacher, the Board insists that it will be forced to reduce programs provided to its students in contravention of the Core Curriculum Content Standards, and its responsibility to provide T & E. The Board claims that it is the desire of the residents and the parents of students within Lopatcong Council, that the music program, which includes exceptionally strong support for the band, be maintained. In order to do so, the Board must maintain a full-time instrumental teacher.

As to the Council's reasoning for the reduction, infra, the Board notes that the Council cited to districts totally incomparable to the Board, in that Alpha, Pohatcong and Greenwich have student populations between one-half and two-thirds the size of the Board's student population. Moreover, the Board notes that Great Meadows School District is a K-6 district, while Lopatcong is a K-8 district, necessitating a greater workload. Additionally, the Board notes the inaccuracy of the Council's assertion, infra, that there are only 115 students who take instrumental lessons and its conclusion that the numbers cited by the Board are duplicative. Lastly, the Board contends that the Council inaccurately states that the sole responsibility of the instrumental music teacher is the teaching of individual instruments and band. The actual job duties, according to the Board, are stated, supra. Thus, the Board reasons, if this position was reduced to a part-time position, programs such as the woodwind ensemble, junior band and stage band would most likely be eliminated.

The Council observes that school's current music program consists of a regular music class conducted by a full-time chorus teacher and an instrumental music class conducted by a full-time teacher. It is the Council's position that the instrumental music program requires a part-time rather than a full-time teacher. The program currently involves between one-half hour to two hours per week of instruction, usually given as a group instruction, as well as one 45-minute session for all instrumental students for band rehearsal. The Council further notes that it is not uncommon in the local county school districts with similar student populations, such as Alpha, Pohatcong, Great Meadows, and Greenwich, for the instrumental music needs of the student body to be met by one part-time instructor.

Moreover, the Council argues that the vocal teacher is already performing a portion of the duties listed by the Board, teaching formal music to all students in grades K-8 and implementing a music keyboard program. Therefore, the Council reasons, the sole responsibility of the instrumental music teacher is the teaching of individual instruments and band. Despite the Board's listing of individual duties of the instrumental music teacher, the Council argues that she actually teaches instruments to the students which culminates in the performance of the songs learned in a Spring Concert, Holiday Concert and Halloween Parade. Also, contrary to the numbers provided by the Board, the Council avers, there are only 115 students who take instrumental lessons, and concludes, therefore, that the numbers cited by the Board must include duplications. The Council further contends that the Board fails to state how this reduction will adversely impact programs in contravention of Core Curriculum Content Standards or how it will prevent the Board from providing T & E. The Council concludes that the Board has failed to state any specifics regarding how this program will be adversely affected, electing to rely generally on the assertion that without full-time instruction it will be forced to reduce the programs and its responsibility to provide T & E.

Upon careful review, the Commissioner finds that the Board has not demonstrated that the Council's reduction will necessarily thwart its ability to offer T & E, particularly since the Council, in reducing these line items, has considered the size and composition of the District and how the proposed half-time music instructor's remaining functions may be fairly blended with those of the full-time vocal teacher. Accordingly, the Commissioner determines to sustain the reduction of $21,455.

06850	11-000-222-100	Salaries/School Library	$49,185	$32,710

Recognizing that the Council seeks to eliminate the position of school librarian, the Board notes that the librarian performs the following services: conducting two Book Fairs per year to help raise money to increase the book and library supplies accounts; controlling distribution use and maintenance of all audio-visual equipment; maintaining item control of all ordered media and arranging for cataloging and appropriate distribution of same; coordinating use of films and videos from the Warren County Audio-Visual Commission; scheduling the use of all audio-visual media in the District; and maintaining an interlibrary loan agreement with area libraries. Additionally, the librarian manages parent volunteers when they are available. The Board notes, however, that such volunteers are not reliable on a regular basis due to other work-related and family commitments and/or obligations. In 1995-96, approximately 20 parents signed up to volunteer, but only three were available on any consistent basis. The volunteer work force is not adequate to replace the school librarian.

The Board argues that if the sole responsibility of the librarian were to catalog and reshelve library materials, then the Council could possibly be correct that the job functions could be performed by "parental volunteers" who are not certified librarians. However, as the Board contends, the librarian is a teaching librarian who teaches library skills as per the Board's prescribed curriculum. Contrary to the Council's contention, the Board asserts that these skills cannot be taught by regular classroom teachers. As to the Council's argument that the teaching of library skills can be performed by the current grade school teachers in conjunction with a possible field trip to the local library for some instruction there by the local librarian, the Board asserts that, in order to reduce expenditures, it has eliminated all field trips from 1996-97, with the exception of the field trip to the Weller Health Center in Easton, Pennsylvania, since the PTA pays the admission fees to the Center.

Further, the Board notes that since the school librarian has certification as a school librarian and as an elementary teacher, she is utilized as either a reading teacher or a math teacher, rather than hiring additional staff when necessary. For example, in the 1995-96 school year, the librarian had one 7th or 8th grade reading class per day. In 1996-97, the Board posits that she may be responsible for a 4th or 5th grade math class each day, in addition to teaching library skills to K-6 grades and general library duties.

Finally, the Board argues that the Council's assertion that library skills could be taught by classroom teachers ignores the fact that if classroom teachers are required to teach library skills, they would, by necessity, be required to reduce the time spent on each skill area now taught, or would have to reduce the number of skill areas taught at the present time. The Board warrants that time cannot be taken by a classroom teacher for library skill instruction without reducing the time needed for another discipline. Without a school librarian, the Board concludes that it will be unable to provide its students with the library skills and media center necessary to provide T & E.

It is the position of the Council that the elimination of the full-time librarian position would not adversely affect the provision of T & E, given the student population and available alternatives. The Council argues that the teaching of basic library skills can be adequately performed by the current grade school teachers in conjunction with a possible "field trip" to the local free library for some instruction there by the local librarian, such as the Phillipsburg Public Library. It notes that in many of the comparable school districts, the schools do not maintain a full-time certified librarian but, rather, have a noncertified librarian aide who teaches library science under the supervision of the regular classroom teacher. The Council contends that the main use of the library on an elementary school level is for the purpose of book reports and possible short term papers/reports, and that said projects are performed under the direct supervision of the classroom teacher. Clearly, the Council reasons, a certified teacher is qualified to assist students in selections and basic research of library materials.

Additionally, the Council asserts that the other responsibilities of the school librarian can be more than adequately performed by parental volunteers, as has been done in the past. For many years now, the Council notes, parental volunteers have cataloged and reshelved the books at the library and this program has been very successful. In addition, monitoring of the library during student use can be performed under teacher supervision in conjunction with parental volunteers. These changes to the library, according to the Council, will not interfere with the students' access or utilization of library facilities.

The Council contends that the Board fails to provide any specifics as to why a certified teacher does not have the requisite ability to teach basic library skills to his/her elementary students, especially the lower grades. The Council asserts that it has never stated the "sole" responsibility of the librarian was to reshelve or catalog materials, although the Council attests that the Board concedes that this part of her functions can be performed by parental volunteers. As to the remaining functions which the Board lists as comprising the librarian's duties, such functions involve more of an oversight of providing films, audio-visual equipment, etc., as requested by teachers and staff. Surely, the Council claims, the signing in and out of equipment and requests can be made by each individual teacher. Also, maintenance of the interlibrary loan agreement can be just as easily performed by an administrator.

The Council further points out that the Board has failed to state that the librarian teaches a class in library skills but, rather, seems to indicate she merely assists students in the library. In addition, the Council contends that the Board fails to provide any specific information as to how or why having classroom teachers offer these skills will adversely impact other instruction. This is especially questionable given the fact that only grades 1-3 receive any formal type of instruction, with the other grades merely making use of the library as they would any other library.

Upon review, the Commissioner finds the Board has not demonstrated that the Council's elimination of the full-time school librarian's position will necessarily hinder its ability to offer its students in this K-8 elementary District the library skills and learning opportunities which they need. In that the Board's primary argument for retaining a full-time school librarian is that she teaches library skills, and inasmuch as the Council has reasonably demonstrated that such teaching functions can be assumed by classroom teachers, while other job responsibilities may be assumed by either aides, part-time staff or parental volunteers, as appropriate, the Commissioner declines to restore the reduction in this account. Accordingly, the Commissioner determines to sustain the reduction of $32,710.

Line No.	Account No.	Description	Amount Budgeted	Amount Cut
07010	11-000-240-103	Salary/Assistant Principal	$ 64,000	$ 64,000

The Council seeks to eliminate the position of assistant principal and assign the duties to the Chief School Administrator (CSA), or other administrators. The Board notes that while the Council alleges that the duties of the assistant principal may be performed by the CSA without affecting school administration, and that some of the assistant principal's duties may also be redistributed to other school staff/teachers, the Council fails to indicate what duties can be "redelegated" to which employees. Here, the Board asserts that the CSA and "other school staff/teachers" presently function in a full-time capacity and do not have the time to perform these other functions.

The Board observes that, in addition to representing the CSA when he is out of the District, and being responsible for the development and implementation of all class schedules, the assistant principal also holds the positions of affirmative action officer, liaison for drug and alcohol prevention and the Right to Know officer, functions which are traditionally performed by other employees/administrative staff in other school districts. In addition to these job functions, the assistant principal performs the following duties: developing, implementing and maintaining standards of conduct for all students; monitoring two of the four lunch periods; approving and arranging all field trips, assemblies, extracurricular activities and other similar student activities; arranging and coordinating all activities involving use of the school facility; assisting the CSA with the supervision and observation of all certified staff; developing and maintaining an appropriate transportation system; acting as attendance officer; coordinating the yearly tabulation of books, equipment and supply orders and recommending yearly purchases of same; acting as coordinator of local and state testing programs; assisting the CSA in the development of grants and with the preparation of the application for Improving America's Schools Act; and coordinating the Free/Reduced Lunch Program. Thus, the Board concludes that, contrary to the Council's contention, the Board requires a full-time assistant principal in order to provide T & E.

The Board argues that the Council has misconstrued and misunderstood the position of assistant principal, narrowing the time needed for the position's functions, alleging that this position is unnecessary and can be filled by other personnel. Here, the Board emphasizes that all other school personnel are maximizing time and effort in the performance of their own job functions. Other school personnel do not have the luxury, the Board warrants, to assume the significant additional responsibilities presently performed by the assistant principal.

For example, at the present time, the assistant principal resigned effective June 28, 1996, and the CSA is performing both assistant principal and CSA functions in an effort to meet many rapidly approaching deadlines. The School Business Official/Board Secretary is already inundated with preparation for the annual audit and upcoming School Comprehensive Audit and Financial Report, not including daily responsibilities of bills, correspondence, etc. Input sheets for payroll for the upcoming school year must be updated with adjustments, deductions, etc. Therefore, the Board argues that it is clear that neither the CSA, Board Secretary, or other school personnel are available to absorb the job duties and functions presently performed by the assistant principal.

Responding to the Council's arguments, infra, the Board denies that it has acknowledged that the job functions of the assistant principal can be performed by other teaching staff members. The Board indicates that the Council minimizes the responsibilities of this position. For example, in monitoring two of the four lunch periods, the assistant principal oversees approximately 120 students at each lunch period, with the assistance of only one cafeteria aide. With respect to his/her duty as the attendance officer, not only is the assistant principal responsible for the 558 elementary students, but is also responsible for the 240 high school students sent to the Phillipsburg High School on a tuition basis. In the 1995-96 school year, the assistant principal, on at least 15 occasions, was required to go to a student's house to bring the student to school.

The Council notes that the Lopatcong School District consists of one elementary school, including grades K-8, with 537 students projected for the 1995-96 school year. The school has one CSA/Principal who now performs the duties of the principal and one assistant principal. The main functions of the assistant principal are to develop and maintain a transportation schedule for busing, monitor the lunchrooms and discipline the students.

The Council maintains that the assistant principal's duties can be redistributed among other administrative personnel, teachers and parent volunteers. The principal's duties are not so diverse, argues the Council, that he/she cannot assume some of the duties of the assistant principal. The monitoring of the lunch room and bus arrival/departures can be undertaken by parental volunteers or teacher's aides, or current teachers. The scheduling of buses is not so unique a duty that it cannot be delegated to any one of the other personnel or staff. During the principal's absences, his duties can be fulfilled by an existing teacher, as is done in some other school districts.

The Council further contends that the District does not have the need for a full-time disciplinarian. Noting that there are only 547 K-8 grade students, the Council asserts that the culture of the school is not so diversified as to have problems regarding language or cultural bias. Here, the Council points out that English is the main language of all the students; the school is situated in a rural/agricultural District; and the District does not have its own high school.

According to the Council, many of the duties of administrative principal and assistant principal can be easily incorporated into one office. The basic duty of the assistant principal is to assist the principal in fulfilling his duties. Many of his other functions can be subsumed within the principal's job description or assigned to other administrative personnel, since they are basically record keeping or basic administrative functions: developing and maintaining standards of conduct for students; approving and arranging field trips, assemblies, extracurricular activities, etc.; arranging and coordinating activities involving use of the school; developing and maintaining a transportation system for students; acting as attendance officer; conducting two fire drills per month; coordinating yearly equipment and supply orders; requisitioning supplies and equipment, conducting inventories, maintaining records and checking receipts.

The Council notes that the principal is already responsible for most of these functions: making budgetary recommendations to the Board; preparing specifications for educational materials put out for bid; approving and forwarding all invoices and vouchers to the Board; supervising classroom instruction; making recommendations to the Board regarding transportation; and maintaining records regarding enrollment, personnel, etc. Moreover, the Council points out that the following functions performed by the assistant principal are functions also subsumed within the principal's job description: providing information to the principal on budgetary items; assisting in supervision of teachers and education process; attending sessions of the Board of Education; and representing the school at public meetings.

The Council contends that while N.J.A.C. 6:8-8.2(b) requires each school be assigned a nonteaching principal, it does not require each school to be assigned an assistant principal, thereby acknowledging that all the necessary administrative functions of a school can be adequately performed by one administrator.

Further, while the Board argues that discipline accounts for "a portion of each school day," it fails to give any particulars regarding the extent of the problem or the portion of the day consumed by this activity. In addition, the Council points out that while the Board states there are currently 559 students, the actual enrollment for 1995-96 was 547 and the projection by the 1996-97 school year was 537. Moreover, the Board fails to provide any support for its cited enrollment population, and particularly for its projection that the 1996-97 school year would see such a decline in kindergarten enrollment that one-half-day session could be eliminated.

Upon review, the Commissioner observes that the Board has sufficiently demonstrated that the job responsibilities of the assistant principal cannot reasonably be assumed by existing personnel. Noting the Board's attachment to its Petition of Appeal of a listing of staff members in the District, and considering the District's structure, its thin complement of administrators, and its relatively low administrative costs, the Commissioner finds that, absent the assistant principal's position, he is not persuaded that the District's critical supervisory, administrative and curricular functions will continue uninterrupted, so as to enable the District to maintain T & E. Accordingly, the Commissioner determines to restore the Council's reduction of $64,000.

The Board notes that the Council seeks to reallocate the duties associated with the gifted and talented (G & T) program to a current teacher whose position is being reduced. In so doing, the Board argues that the Council presumes that the program, which is currently performed by a part-time teacher, could be performed during one morning period by one kindergarten teacher. However, the Board contends that the job requirements go well beyond those presumed by the Council.

The Board observes that the G & T program teacher is required to perform the following duties: maintaining a long-standing multifaceted program; working in conjunction with all Phillipsburg cluster schools in a six-district Mind Flares Program; conducting an Annual Convocation serving 200-300 students from area schools; participating in annual "Mind-Flare-Offs" question-and-answer competition; arranging and chaperoning several field trips with Phillipsburg cluster schools to a location or activity in conjunction with the annual G & T theme; working with area gifted program staff to develop a theme, activities, field trips, exhibitions and Convocation; preparing students for participation in County and State Mind Flare Convocations; and meeting with students on a regular basis and providing academic challenges, as well as preparing for various cluster theme activities.

The Board notes that in an attempt to provide a G & T program, the position of G & T teacher grew from a one-day per week position to a full-time position. In the 1993-94 school year, the Board reduced this position to a four-day per week position for the 1993-94 and 1994-95 school years. For the 1995-96 school year, the Board further reduced this position to a half-time position in an effort to keep taxes down, while at the same time providing a quality program.

Additionally, the Board contends that the Council minimizes the impact of the elimination of the G & T teacher position. During the 1995-96 school year, 4th-8th students were involved in the program. Due to fiscal constraints and the need to utilize this teacher's services in other areas, during the 1996-97 school year, only 5th-8th grade students will be involved in the program. Involvement in the program may be reduced further because the proposed G & T teacher, who is also a half-time kindergarten teacher, will be expected to do some basic skills instruction.

Further, the Board notes that unexpectedly, it is anticipating the resignation of a 6th grade teacher. At this point in time, the Board does not anticipate hiring additional staff, which will then necessitate the current half-time G & T teacher becoming a full-time 6th grade teacher. Thus, the Board concludes that without the present G & T program staffing, it would be unable to continue to provide this program in a thorough and efficient manner.

The Council argues that it in no way seeks to eliminate the G & T program, but merely seeks to eliminate the G & T teacher, and to reassign those duties to an existing teacher whose duties are being reduced due to declining enrollment.[3] In this regard, it asserts that there are currently only 38 of 547 students (7 percent) in the program, thereby not requiring a full-time teacher. The needs of these students can be more than adequately met by a part-time instructor. The current program meets twice per week for 45-minute sessions. This is a pull-out program in which students are removed from a regular class on a rotating basis to participate. Various grade levels are combined for this program. The students work independently under teacher supervision. The basic duties of the program teacher are guidance and motivation. The basic theme of the program is selected in advance by the Mind Flares program in which six area schools participate.

Further, notwithstanding the list of functions cited by the Board as comprising the functions of the G & T teacher, the Council asserts that it fails to state that those functions listed are currently being performed on a part-time basis and will continue to be provided on a part-time basis. Therefore, the position which is currently part-time will continue to be a part-time position. Nor, the Council continues, does the Board state why the function of the G & T teacher cannot be reallocated to another teacher currently on staff. The Board provides no reason as to why or how these functions cannot be reallocated as prescribed by respondent.

In reply to the Board's arguments, the Council states that the Board has acknowledged the anticipated conversion of the current G & T teacher from a part-time teacher of this program to a full-time 6th grade teacher for the 1996-97 school year due to the anticipated resignation of the current 6th grade teacher. Therefore, the Council reasons that the Board's decision will leave the G & T teacher position vacant. The Board has stated it does not anticipate hiring additional staff. Under the Council's decision, a current full-time teacher who it was anticipated to be needed only on a part-time basis due to declining kindergarten enrollment, will be able to continue on a full-time basis. (Part-time kindergarten and part-time G & T program)

Even more importantly, according to the Council, the Council's decision will fill the now anticipated vacancy in the program without adversely affecting that program in any way. Thus, the Council concludes that its decision will fill this vacancy in a rational and economic manner with no impact on the program.

Upon careful review, the Commissioner finds that the Board has not established that the Council's reduction will jeopardize the existing program or the Board's ability to provide T & E, particularly in view of the fact that the G & T program serves a relatively small student population and is currently maintained on a part-time basis. Accordingly, the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $16,356.

07100	11-000-260-100	Op. & Maintenance Salaries	$ 102,950	$ 15,413

Recognizing that the Council seeks to reduce one custodian position to a half-time position, and to assign the duties to the remaining two custodians, the Board notes that it has already reduced its custodial staff; effective in the 1992-93 school year, it was forced to reduce the custodial staff from 3.5 full-time custodians to three custodians due to budgetary constraints. This reduced custodial staff is responsible for the Lopatcong School, which encompasses 55,000 square feet of building space, including an all purpose room, library and gymnasium which seats 350 people. Additionally, the Board notes that there are a total of 38 instructional areas plus four child study team offices and five central administration offices. According to the Board, the custodians are responsible for cutting and trimming 16 acres of grass and, during the winter, for snow removal from four parking lots and adjoining access roads in driveways. In reply to the Council's argument, infra, the Board notes that the Township does not do all the snowplowing, but only opens up both lanes of the school's driveways. A custodian in a school pick-up truck equipped with a plow does the parking lots and walkways as evidenced by the fact that the District paid $1,321.21 in overtime to its custodians for snow removal during 1995-96, not counting what was plowed during the course of a regular work day. This dollar figure does not include monies expended on a private contractor that petitioner called in for snow removal beyond the capability of its equipment. The head custodian also performs maintenance on another school owned by the District and rented to a special education private school. Additionally, contrary to the Councils' assertions, infra, the resident custodian is only responsible for cleaning. The head custodian is responsible for replacing light ballasts, plumbing and carpentry.

The Board illustrates that its custodial team is understaffed by noting a recent survey of comparably sized districts in and around Warren County. While the Council attempts to discredit the survey created and updated on a yearly basis by the Warren County School Administrators and School Business Officials for comparative purposes, as well as for negotiations, the Board observes that the Council has provided no documentation that the references to the survey are inaccurate. Thus, the Board concludes that it will not be able to maintain its facilities in proper condition with a further reduction in custodial staff.

The Council argues that the reduction of the custodial staff from three full-time custodians to two full-time custodians and one part-time custodian will in no way adversely affect the students of the Lopatcong School District. The Council observes that the school building currently consists of 55,000 square feet or 31 classrooms. The grounds are 16.1 acres of land or 700,446.6 square feet. It is the position of the Council that the health and safety needs of the school can be adequately met with this change. Those duties no longer performed by the now part-time custodian can be adequately taken up by the two remaining full-time custodians. Each remaining full-time custodian will be responsible for only an additional 3,667 square feet of building space and an additional acre of grounds. The Council notes that it was also mindful that no capital improvements have been made to the school, as well as the fact that all snowplowing is provided by the Township. Given these facts, it was the Council's conclusion that the reduction of the position would not adversely affect the students of the School District.

In reply to the Board's arguments, the Council indicates that the prior reduction of custodial staff occurred in the summer of 1993 as the result of action by the Board regarding the retirement of one of the custodians; the decision did not involve action by the Council. As to the Board's argument that the head custodian "performs maintenance" on another school leased to a private special education school by the Board, the Council notes that the leased property is comprised of approximately six rooms and the tenant employs a custodian to care for the facility. The head custodian's only function, according to the Council, is that of procuring repairs to the rental property as the landlord Board's agent, as needed. He is not the resident custodian for the property.

As to the survey cited by the Board, the Council observes that the Board fails to attach the actual survey, or to provide information as to who conducted the survey, the condition and overall age of the buildings surveyed, and further fails to note whether the survey included a complete listing of all area schools and how much land also comprises the included school districts. Additionally, the Council asserts that although the Board seems to place importance on the survey, the statistics did not appear to have influenced its decision in 1993 to reduce its custodial staff. Clearly, the Council reasons, the Board's prior decision indicates it does not find a stringent adherence to a particular regional custodial/square foot ratio necessary or indicative of providing T & E.

Upon review, the Commissioner finds the Board has not established the necessity for additional funds for a regularly employed, third full-time custodian in order to maintain the physical plant, as needed for the provision of T & E. Accordingly, the Commissioner determines to sustain the reduction of $15,413.

While the Board does not argue with the Council's contention that a reduction in personnel will result in employee benefit savings, it contends that such a reduction in personnel would inhibit, if not prohibit, petitioner's ability to provide T & E.

It is the Council's position that the reduction in staff contained in its reductions of the school budget will necessarily result in a comparable reduction in employee benefits.

Upon review, the Commissioner determined to restore 29 percent of the money budgeted for benefits since one full-time position out of the 3.5 full-time and part-time positions in question was determined to be necessary for T & E and it was not possible to determine precisely how much of each line item reflects each position. The Commissioner sustained a 71 percent cut to each account, however, since 2.5 of the 3.5 positions were not determined to be necessary. Accordingly, the Commissioner directs that $7,785 be restored to line-item number 7420 and sustains a cut of $19,061. Also, it is directed that $342 be restored to line-item number 7370 and a cut of $837 is sustained.

Disputed Line-Item Number 11

Line No.	Account No.	Description	Amount Budgeted	Amount Cut
02680	11-190-100-610	Reg. Prog/Gen'l Supplies	$ 66,810	$ 3,498

The Council seeks to reduce the above-noted account by $3,498. The Board argues that, contrary to the Council's contention, it has provided the Council with any and all requested details regarding the actual expenditures covered by this account. Noting that "General Supplies" covers several areas, the Board points out that there was no increase in this line item projected from the 1995-96 to the 1996-97 school year budget. The areas covered and the funds budgeted are General Office & School Supplies ($26,000); Classroom Workbooks; ($20,000); Art Supplies ($1,800); Science Supplies ($1,500); Music Supplies ($800); Physical Education Supplies ($600); Copier Paper ($6,000); Masters/Ink for Risograph ($3,000); Computer Supplies ($500); Teacher Classroom Allowance ($1,610); Miscellaneous Instructional Equipment ($3,000); Miscellaneous Noninstructional Equipment ($0); and Miscellaneous Supplies ($2000), for a total of $66,810.

The Board notes that one of the goals of the District is to review each curriculum area every five years, if possible. Within the past two years, the Board reviewed the Social Studies Curriculum, and the Curriculum Committee recommended enhancing its existing curriculum with maps and globes by replacing all outdated maps, etc., in all classrooms (Kindergarten through 8th grade). Thus, supplies are necessary to update maps and globes, since the configuration of many countries, i.e., the breakup of the Soviet Union, change in countries in Africa, etc., create the need for this purchase, which approximates $3,000. The remaining $2,000 is for miscellaneous items which need to be purchased during the school year. It is impossible, the Board asserts, to specify these necessities prior to the need for purchasing these items arising.

If the Board is to comply with the Core Curriculum Content Standards, as adopted by the State Department of Education, it argues that it cannot maintain the status quo with outdated materials, but must improve and update curriculum areas through updating materials used within each curriculum areas as necessary. Without restoration of these budget cuts, the Board concludes that its ability to comply with the Core Curriculum Content Standards will be difficult, if not impossible. The Council, the Board argues, has acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner, reducing its budget to the point where it will be severely hampered, if not prohibited, from providing its students with T & E.

The Council argues that the District's spending on general supplies and textbooks has exceeded the 2 percent state average over the last several years. These increases, the Council continues, have not been comparative to the general increase in student populations. In 1994-95 with only an additional six students, the District budget was increased $14,039. Of that substantial increase, the Board spent all but $297. The next year, 1995-96, however, with an increase in student population of 42 students, the District budgeted $3,964 less for this item.

The Council contends that it seeks a reduction of only $3,498, which will not jeopardize the students' right to T & E. This is a 12 percent increase from the 1993-94 figure or an increase of approximately $12.02 per student. Moreover, the Council argues that the Board has not justified the need for maintaining current spending levels as essential to T & E, given the declining budget requests in this appropriation over the last two years. The Council notes that the Board provides no details with respect to what "Miscellaneous Instructional Equipment" and "Miscellaneous Supplies" comprising $5,000 of the item budgeted entails, especially in light of the other specific items listed. Despite the Board's opinion to the contrary, the Council warrants, at least part of the Board determined this item could be reduced by $8,000 without an adverse impact. The Council contends that the Board fails to address or refute this point. This reduced figure of $63,312, the Council argues, is more consistent with the percentage increase in general supply spending commensurate with the percentage increase in student population since the 1993-94 school year.

Upon careful review, the Commissioner finds that the Board has duly demonstrated its need to hold its costs at the proposed level, recognizing that the costs are the same as those budgeted for 1995-96, and that neither state average increases nor student enrollment will necessarily serve as the sole indicator of need for new educational supplies. Accordingly, the Commissioner determines to restore the reduction of $3,498. Further, it is noted that the District has included items in its support of the budgeted appropriations in account number 11-190-100-610 that should have correctly been budgeted elsewhere. General office supplies would be properly budgeted under the applicable support function, and supplies for the duplication of instructional materials would be properly budgeted in account number 11-000-240-600. Thus, the Commissioner directs the Board to reclassify all miscoded appropriations to the proper accounts.

APPLICATION OF SURPLUS

In its advertised annual school district budget statement, the Board projected an unreserved surplus of $278,305 and allocated $150,000 as revenue, leaving $128,305 as undesignated unreserved surplus.

The Board's annual financial report filed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-10 (June 30 Board secretary's report) reveals that its surplus projection was overestimated. Based on the above, the Commissioner determines that no additional surplus revenues are available to fund restorations directed herein, subject to verification through the Board's 1996-97 annual year-end audit report.

SUMMARY

In summary, the Commissioner directs restoration or sustaining of the Council's line-item reductions to appropriations and/or increases to revenue in surplus accounts as set forth below. The Commissioner further notes that all restorations to line-item appropriations are restricted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:20-2A.11(b)3.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF FARMINGDALE,

Petitioner,

v.

ANNA POULOS,

Respondent.

James T. Hundley, Esq., for petitioner (Hundley, Parry & Hopkins, attorneys)

Stephen B. Hunter, Esq., for respondent (Klausner & Hunter, attorneys)

Record Closed: August 6, 1996 Decided: September 3, 1996

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Board of Education of the Borough of Farmingdale (BOE) brings tenure charges against respondent Anna Poulos, a teacher in the BOE's school system. Respondent has been absent from her teaching duties for substantial periods of time. For the past two school years, respondent has been absent almost every school day, and the BOE alleges that that she is incapable of performing her duties in the forseeable future. On these bases, the BOE submits that the respondent has exhibited "chronic absenteeism," "incapacity" and/or "conduct unbecoming a teacher," such that she must be dismissed from employment with the BOE N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

Respondent points out that her absences resulted, in part, from compensable injuries, and she alleges that she is now physically able to return to her teaching duties. On these bases, respondent submits she may not be dismissed.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On October 19, 1995, the BOE's tenure charges, etc., were filed with the Department of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. On November 22, 1995, the respondent's answer to the tenure charges was filed with the Department. The Department transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law where, on December 7, 1995, it was filed as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). On January 23, 1996, I sent out a scheduling order. On June 19, 1996, the BOE's papers in support of its motion for summary decision were filed. On July 5, 1996, the respondent's papers in opposition to the BOE's motion were filed. On August 6, 1996, the parties' additional exhibits were filed and the motion was the subject of a conference among the attorneys and me.

FINDINGS OF FACT

On March 1, 1986, respondent began employment as a teacher in the BOE's school system; thereafter, she attained tenure and her employment continued. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

During the 1985-86 school year (after March 1, 1986), respondent had 2 sick days and 2 personal days. During the 1986-87 school year, respondent had 15 sick days and 4 personal days. During the 1987-88 school year, respondent had 2 sick days and 4 personal days. During the 1988-89 school year, respondent had 10 sick days and 4 personal days. During the 1989-90 school year, respondent had 12.5 sick days and 3 personal days. During the 1990-91 school year, respondent had 19.5 sick days and 3 personal days. During the 1991-92 school year, respondent had 14 sick days and 3 personal days. During the 1992-93 school year, respondent had 17 sick days and 5.5 personal days. During the 1993-94 school year, up to February 16, 1994, respondent had 5 sick days and 1 personal day. P-1.

On February 16, 1994, i.e., during the 1993-94 school year, respondent reported to the school system that, on that day, while walking in the school parking lot, she slipped on ice, twisted her body and fell, injuring her right knee and right wrist. P-2. Thereafter, respondent did not return to her duties.

In the September 1, 1994 note of Anand Swaroop, M.D., who treated respondent; he wrote that respondent was unable to return to work until January 15, 1995. On September 1, 1994, respondent wrote to the school system, enclosing a copy of Dr. Swaroop's note, and notified the school system that, prior to her return to work, a re-evaluation of her physical ability would take place. P-3.

Based upon respondent's September 1, 1994 letter, on September 21, 1994, the BOE passed a resolution extending respondent's disability leave to January 15, 1995. P-4.

By letter dated January 4, 1995, Joseph G. Torrone, superintendent of the school system, notified respondent of the following: She should notify him of her status. If she was unable to work, she should submit a physician's note setting forth the physician's opinion in that regard. If she was able to work, she should submit a physician's note setting forth the physician's opinion that she could assume her full teaching responsibilities. This information was immediately necessary for the school system to plan for a smooth transition or to make substitute arrangements. P-5; N.J.S.A. 18A:30-4.

On January 3, 1995, Dr. Swaroop had written that respondent remained under his care and that she was unable to work until further notice and, on January 5, 1995, the respondent sent a copy of this note to the superintendent. P-6.

By letter dated January 31, 1995, Selective Insurance, the BOE's workers' compensation insurance company, notified respondent of the following: According to Dr. Jeffrey C. Pollock's

January 27, 1995 report, she had reached maximum benefit from medical care and no further treatment was required. She should be able to return to work. Workers' compensation temporary disability was paid up to February 5, 1995. After February 7, 1995, Selective Insurance would authorize no further medical care. P-7.

By letter dated February 9, 1995, respondent notified the superintendent that "as of February 17, 1995 and thereafter, [she would] not be using any of [her] sick leave during this time of disability." P-8.

On March 15, 1995, the BOE passed a motion requiring that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2, respondent undergo a physical examination by the BOE's physician. P-9. By letter dated March 16, 1995, the superintendent notified respondent of the following:

> 1. You will receive payment for your accumulated sick leave days; ten accumulated and twelve days for the current (1994-95 school year) and will receive no further sick leave benefits after your twenty-two days of sick leave have expired.
> 2. The [BOE] and I have concerns about your continued absences and its effect on the educational program in the special education class. The [BOE] has retained the services of a long-term substitute to cover your teaching duties during your absence. Thus far, two different substitutes have been utilized and a third will be necessary effective later this month.
>
> 3. The [BOE] is requesting that you file a physician's certificate with the [BOE] Secretary pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-4. This certificate must set forth a diagnosis, prognosis, and an anticipated date you will return to your full teaching duties.
>
> 4. At the March 15 [BOE] meeting, a resolution pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2 was adopted requiring you to undergo a physical examination by a [BOE]-appointed physician. You will be notified by March 30, 1995 as to the name of the physician. You will have thirty days in which to complete the examination and submit this report within forty-five days of March 30. The [BOE] will bear the cost of this examination.

In the superintendent's March 30, 1995 letter, he notified respondent of the following: In view of Selective Insurance's letter of January 31, 1995, a copy of which the BOE had received, the BOE no longer required her to undergo the physical examination. The superintendent was still awaiting a physician's certificate setting forth a diagnosis, prognosis and anticipated return-to-work date. A check for eight days of accumulated sick leave time was enclosed, and the remaining balance would be sent on April 15, 1995. P-11.

In the superintendent's April 13, 1995 letter, he notified respondent of the following:

> Enclosed is a check for fourteen days of accumulated sick leave time. Please be advised, you have exhausted all your accumulated sick leave days and will receive no further payment from the [BOE].
> In my March 16, 1995 letter and again in my March 30, 1995 letter I requested a physician's certificate setting forth a diagnosis, prognosis and an anticipated date you will return to your full teaching duties. As of this date, I have not received this information. Please submit this to me no later than April 28, 1995.
>
> The [BOE] and I remain concerned about your health. We have deep concerns regarding your continued absences and their effect on the children in the special education class.
>
> Please be advised that the arrangements have been made with Dr. John deJong, M.D., of Howell Township for you to receive a complete physical examination. The doctor has requested any medical reports available be sent to him or faxed prior to this examination. Please schedule this exam as soon as possible, preferably before April 28, 1995.

In Dr. Swaroop's April 14, 1995 note, he wrote the following: Respondent was under his care. Her diagnosis was herniated disc. He was "presently unable to give a return to work status or a prognosis." Respondent was scheduled for an appointment on April 25, 1995, at which time he would "discuss the possibility of the [respondent] receiving a myelogram." P-13.

On May 2, 1995, respondent was examined by Dr. deJong. In Dr. deJong's letter of that date, he wrote the following: Respondent alleged that, since her February 16, 1994 fall and injury to her back, she has had "constant back pain with radiation down her left leg and foot. She stated that her left foot has become numb." Dr. Swaroop had advised respondent that psychological treatment may benefit her relative to her "depression." Respondent alleged that she was taking medication to sleep and that she had "congestive heart failure three years ago." Respondent alleged that she had difficulty walking, bending and sleeping. A Jersey Shore Medical Center November 16, 1994 CT myelogram did not support the diagnosis of lumbosacral disc herniation. Respondent was thirty-five years old and obese: she was 70½ inches tall and her weight exceeded Dr. deJong's office scale's 360-pound capacity. Given respondent's "entirely subjective" symptomotology (complaints of low back pain with left leg radiation), an electromyography (EMG) was necessary for evaluation of her ability to return to her job. P-14.

In Selective Insurance's May 5, 1995 letter, it notified respondent of its offer of 10% permanent disability for residuals of her February 16, 1994 injury in settlement of her workers' compensation claim. P-15.

In the superintendent's May 18, 1995 letter, he notified respondent that arrangements had been made for Bruce Coplin, M.D., to administer an EMG for her and he notified her of the following:

> As you are aware, from a previous conversation we had on the phone, you are not on any approved leave of absence from the [BOE]. In fact you have not requested any leave since your previous leave expired on January 15, 1995. It has become impossible to plan a permanent solution to the substitute situation since your January 5, 1995 letter stated that you were, " . . . advised to stay out of work until further notice." This letter contained a note from Dr. Swaroop stating "Patient is under Dr.'s care and will be unable to work until further notice."
> As always, the [BOE] and I are concerned about your health and your ability to return to your full teaching responsibilities.

In Dr. Coplin's June 1, 1995 letter, he notified Dr. deJong that he had performed the EMG and that he determined that the findings were consistent with a normal study and there was no electrophysiologic evidence of a lumbosacral radiculopathy. P-17.

In Dr. deJong's June 5, 1995 letter to the superintendent, he notified him that, based upon Dr. Coplin's EMG study, respondent was able to return to work. P-18.

In the BOE's attorney's June 8, 1995 letter, he notified respondent of the following: Since February 16, 1994, she had been continually absent from her teaching duties. Her sick leave benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 had terminated on February 16, 1995. She had used all of her annual and accumulated sick leave. The BOE's last payment to her of salary or sick leave benefits was made on April 13, 1995. She had not requested and the BOE had not granted extended sick leave. Despite the superintendent's request, she had failed to supply a physician's certificate setting forth her diagnosis, prognosis and anticipated return-to-work date. In view of Dr. deJong's report that she was medically able to return to work and the detrimental effect of her continued absence, the BOE required that, within 30 days of the date of the letter, she submit (1) medical reports, records and documentation verifying the necessity of her continued absence and (2) an anticipated return-to-work date. If she failed to submit these items, the BOE would consider filing "tenure charges." P-19; see N.J.S.A.18A:6-11.

Respondent returned a copy of the BOE's attorney's June 8, 1995 letter, on which she had handwritten that on April 14, 1995, she had submitted the physician's certificate. P-20.

During the 1994-95 school year, respondent was continuously absent. P-1.

In respondent's attorney's July 6, 1995 letter, he notified the BOE's attorney that Dr. Swaroop had diagnosed a herniated disc and that the "minimal treatment she ha[d] received to date ha[d] done nothing to alleviate the pain and discomfort." Despite that diagnosis, it was "still not totally clear as to what problem [respondent] suffers from," and a return-to-work date could not be given. P-21.

In the BOE's attorney's July 17, 1995 letter to respondent's attorney, he reviewed the history of respondent's absences, etc. He wrote that, after February 16, 1995, the BOE paid respondent for 22 days of annual and accumulated sick leave, the last payment being on April 13, 1995, and stated that, since April 13, 1995, she had received no salary, sick leave benefits or other compensation from the BOE. He reviewed the BOE's request for a physician's certificate, etc., and Dr. deJong's determination that she could return to work. He wrote that, during the 1994-95 school year, four substitute teachers had been employed to cover respondent's special education (NI) class; to properly implement the special education program, it was necessary to have a full-time teacher for that class for the 1995-96 school year; and the BOE intended to retain a full-time teacher for the 1995-96 school year, no later than August 1, 1995. Consequently, respondent was to "immediately" inform the BOE and the superintendent of whether she would return to her teaching duties. Further, if she did not return, pursuant to the teachers' contract, she could apply for an unpaid extended sick leave. P-22.

In respondent's attorney's July 25, 1995 letter, he notified the BOE's attorney that he had reviewed respondent's options with her and that, on July 26, 1995, she would see her physician to determine her prognosis for returning to her teaching duties. P-23.

In the BOE's attorney's July 25 and August 9, 1995 letters, he notified respondent's attorney of the following: Because respondent did not apply for extended sick leave, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq., the sick days had been taken from her "sick leave bank." The BOE continued to believe that, for the 1995-96 school year, the special education program needs could only be met by employment of a full-time teacher. Respondent should consider an unpaid leave of absence for the 1995-96 school year. P-24; P-25.

With the BOE's attorney's August 16, 1995 letter to respondent's attorney, as authorized by BOE resolution during its August 16, 1995 meeting, he forwarded a proposed agreement between the respondent and the BOE whereby the respondent would receive an unpaid leave. P-26; P-27; P-28.

On August 28, 1995, at 10:00 p.m., respondent notified the superintendent's secretary by telephone that she intended to return to her teaching duties on September 5, 1995, for the 1995-96 school year. And, by the BOE's attorney's August 28, 1995 letter, he notified respondent's attorney of the telephone call and asked for respondent's position. P-29.

In respondent's attorney's August 29, 1995 letter, he notified the BOE's attorney that, the week before, respondent's physician informed her that she was able to return to her teaching duties. P-30.

In the BOE's attorney's August 31, 1995 letter to respondent's attorney, he recited that he had previously notified him that the BOE had approved a contract for a teacher to replace respondent for the 1995-96 school year, and that respondent's "last minute decision to return to her teaching duties ha[d] caused a great deal of difficulty for the [BOE]." Further, as respondent had notified the superintendent that she had physical restrictions on her ability to stand, sit, conduct class out-of-doors and climb stairs, prior to the beginning of school on September 5, 1995, she should submit medical documentation relative to such restrictions. P-31.

On August 31, 1995, the BOE adopted a resolution rescinding its (above-described) August 16, 1995 resolution and directed the superintendent to offer respondent a one-year contract. P-40. By the superintendent's letter of that date, he forwarded to respondent a contract and her schedule for the 1995-96 school year. P-32; P-33.

In the BOE's attorney's September 1, 1995 letter, he notified respondent's attorney that respondent had failed to submit medical documentation concerning any restrictions on her ability to perform her teaching duties. P-34.

On September 5, 1995, respondent telephoned the superintendent and reported the following: She had fallen at home and injured her ankle. She had two physician's notes; one said that she could return to work and one said that she had suffered a sprained ankle and that she was unable to work for five days. She felt she was unable to return to work (on September 5, 6, 7 and 8) and she would not work. She hoped to return to work on September 11, 1995. P-1.

In the superintendent's September 6, 1995 letter to respondent, he confirmed her September 5, 1995 telephoned report and requested that she send the physicians' notes as soon as possible. P-35.

In respondent's attorney's September 6, 1995 letter to the BOE's attorney, he wrote the following: Due to respondent's "back problems," she was not able to climb stairs, lift or carry heavy objects or walk long distances, and she was "concerned that she [might] not be able to perform the basic skills position given her physical limitations." P-36. With the letter was a copy of the above-described physician's note that said that she was unable to return to work for five days. P-38.

In the superintendent's September 7, 1995 letter to respondent, he recounted her past "excessive absenteeism" from her teaching duties; her "failure to provide the [BOE] with timely notice of the date of [her] return to [her] teaching duties" for the 1995-96 school year; and her continuous absence during the 1995-96 school year. He notified respondent that her absence had "draw[n] into question [her] continued employment" with the BOE, that the BOE would consider its "options" in that regard, and that she could submit to the BOE any information in that regard. P-39.

In the superintendent's September 8, 1995 letter, he notified respondent that she should report to Dr. deJong for an examination relative to whether she was able to perform her teaching duties, and that, until the BOE received such a report, she could not return to work. P-41.

In the superintendent's September 12, 1995 letter, he notified respondent of the following: Dr. deJong had determined that, due to her right ankle injury and her resulting pain, he could not perform the tests necessary to evaluate her ability to return to work. Dr. deJong had applied an air cast brace to her, and determined that she should not return to work for two weeks. Her absence would be charged against her sick leave time. In two weeks, Dr. deJong wanted to examine her again for her ability to return to her teaching duties. P-42.

In the BOE's attorney's letter of September 13, 1995, he notified respondent's attorney of the following: On September 12, 1995, respondent had appeared at Dr. deJong's office, but due to the condition of her foot, an examination could not be performed. Dr. deJong advised her that, due to the condition of her foot, she should remain out of work for two additional weeks. Respondent should notify the superintendent when her foot improved to the point that Dr. deJong could examine her, and he would then examine her. Respondent's September 5, 6, 7 and 8, 1995 absences would be charged against her sick leave; absences of September 11 and 12, 1995, would not be charged against her sick leave; and absences after September 12, 1995, would be charged against her sick leave. P-43.

On September 22, 1995, the tenure charges were signed by the superintendent, and on September 22, 1995, the tenure charges and statement of evidence were personally served on respondent. The BOE considered the charges during its meeting of October 11, 1995, and a majority voted that there was probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charges and that the charges were sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary. Also during that meeting, the BOE, as documented in its "Amended Certificate of Determination," voted not to suspend respondent, and on October 17, 1995, the Amended Certificate of Determination was personally served on the respondent. On October 19, 1995, the tenure charges, etc., were filed with the Department.

In the superintendent's September 22, 1995 letter to respondent, he confirmed that, although tenure charges had been served on her, she still was required to keep her September 26, 1995 appointment with Dr. deJong. P-44.

With the superintendent's September 22, 1995 interoffice memorandum to respondent, he forwarded to her "an updated version of [her] teaching schedule should the physician limit [her] utilization of stairs." P-45.

In the superintendent's September 26, 1995 letter to respondent, he confirmed the following: She had been examined by Dr. deJong and she would not be returning to her teaching duties for several weeks. Dr. deJong recommended a magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) be performed, and it was scheduled for September 28, 1995. She had three sick days remaining and the BOE would pay her for "three days (through September 29). After these days [were] paid, [she would] not be receiving any further compensation from the district." P-46.

In the superintendent's October 3, 1995 letter to respondent, he notified her that the MRI of her right ankle was "negative," and that Dr. deJong had authorized her return to work effective October 4, 1995, with no restrictions. He also notified her that, in an effort to have her return to work immediately, he had revised her schedule, so that she could remain on one floor, i.e., without climbing stairs, and that, when possible, i.e., when stair climbing was not necessary, she would be used as a substitute. He also recited that Dr. Glastein's August 28, 1995 certification showed that she was able to return to work on September 5, 1995, but with "no stair climbing - no heavy lifting." The superintendent noted that Dr. Glastein's certification "set no time frame for the limitations," and he asked that information about respondent's anticipated period of restriction be sent to him. Copies of the letter, certification and MRI report were enclosed with the superintendent's letter. P-47.

On October 12, 1995, respondent returned to her teaching duties. However, on that day, at 1:40 p.m., she contacted the superintendent (by intercom) and, upset and crying, told him that she was "emotionally and physically unable to stay for the rest of the day." The superintendent asked respondent to speak with the school nurse, to assure that she would be safe driving home, and by about 2:15 p.m., respondent had calmed down and left. P-49; P-50.

In the superintendent's October 20, 1995 letter to respondent, he notified her that, despite his October 3, 1995 letter requesting information relative to Dr. Glastein's (August 28, 1995) limitations on her return to work, she had failed to provide such information. He also offered copies of the MRI and EMG reports if Dr. Glastein needed them in that regard. P-51.

In a letter to the superintendent dated October 30, 1995, Harris N. Bram, M.D., stated that he had been treating respondent for several months; she has chronic left sciatica; and, to help "maintain" her, "stair climbing should be eliminated and ambulation between classes should be kept to a minimum." P-53. With respondent's attorney's November 8, 1995 letter to the BOE's attorney, he enclosed a copy of Dr. Bram's letter. P-52.

On November 13, 1995, at a school exit door, respondent tripped, lost her balance and caught herself, pulling her left leg and buttocks and causing her pain in her left back and difficulty walking. P-54.

Respondent has not worked since November 13, 1995. P-1.

In respondent's attorney's November 17, 1995 letter to the BOE's attorney, he requested that she not be assigned a schedule that required climbing stairs. P-55.

On November 22, 1995, the respondent's answer to the tenure charges was filed with the Department.

Following left knee arthroscopy, on May 31, 1996, Michael Cunningham, M.D., reported his impressions as follows: "1. Status post left knee arthroscopy with partial lateral menisectomy and debridement of chondralmalacia patella grade III. 2. Possible mild neuropraxia secondary to positioning in surgery." He recommended that respondent begin a "[p]hysical therapy program and remain out of work and follow up in three weeks for reevaluation." P-57.

In an undated form, Dr. Cunningham wrote that, in "Sept. of 96," respondent could "return to regular duty." R-1.

For the 1996-97 school year, the BOE and the teacher hired by the BOE in August 1995 to replace respondent in the special education NI class have entered into a contract for full-time teaching duties. P-59.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

To aid in establishment of a "thorough and efficient free public school system," the Legislature established tenure for teaching staff members. N.J. Const. art. VIII, §IV, ¶1; N.J.S.A. 18A:10-1; N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

More particularly, such tenure is intended to ensure the presence of a competent and efficient teaching staff by preventing boards of education from abusing their superior bargaining powers in contract negotiations and by preventing dismissal for unfounded, flimsy or political reasons. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63 (1982); Greenway v. Camden Bd. of Educ., 129 N.J.L. 46, 49 (Sup. Ct. 1942), aff'd, 129 N.J.L. 461 (E. & A. 1943); Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215 (App. Div. 1949); Redcay v. State Bd. of Educ., 130 N.J.L. 369 (Sup. Ct. 1943), aff'd, 131 N.J.L. 326 (E. & A. 1944). However, while a board of education has a responsibility to a teacher who is ill, its superseding responsibility is to provide the constitutionally mandated educational services to students in the school system. See In re Tenure Hearing of Green, 1991 S.L.D. 1103.

Continuity of instruction and regular contact between an assigned teacher and her students are vital to the public school education process. Conversely, a teacher's frequent absence from her students is disruptive to the learning process and results in a loss of instruction which may not be entirely regained even by extra effort when the teacher returns. And, where a tenured teacher's chronic or excessive absenteeism interferes with the school system's ability to provide the constitutionally mandated educational services, the teacher may be dismissed. In re Tenure Hearing of Reilly, 1977 S.L.D. 403, 414, where a teacher's absences ranged from 5 to 149 days a year over a ten-year period and she was dismissed.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 states:

> No person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation,
> > (a) if he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency in the public school system of the state, or

> (b) if he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency as a supervisor, teacher or in any other teaching capacity in the Marie H. Katzenbach school for the deaf, or in any other educational institution conducted under the supervision of the commissioner; > except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after a hearing held pursuant to this subarticle, by the commissioner, or a person appointed by him to act in his behalf, after a written charge or charges, of the cause or causes of complaint, shall have been preferred against such person, signed by the person or persons making the same, who may or may not be a member or members of a board of education, and filed and proceeded upon as in this subarticle provided.
>
>
> Nothing in this section shall prevent the reduction of the number of any such persons holding such offices, positions or employments under the conditions and with the effect provided by law.
> [Emphasis added.]

Chronic and excessive absenteeism is not necessarily the result of willful conduct by the teacher and may occur although the teacher's absence was caused by illness and although the teacher had been granted leaves of absence. In re Tenure Hearing of Kacprowicz, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 147; State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Jersey City v. Pellecchio, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 267; In re Tenure Hearing of White, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 157.

The determination of the point at which absenteeism is chronic or excessive is within the discretion of the board of education and, consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, subject to review by the Commissioner. Pellecchio, supra, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) at 270, citing In re Tenure Hearing of Sheets, 1980 S.L.D. 1536, rev'g 1979 S.L.D. 790.

The facts here are summarized as follows: For substantial periods of time, respondent has been incapable of performing her teaching duties and she has been absent from her teaching duties. Beginning with the respondent's first full school year of employment in the BOE's school system (the 1986-87 school year), she has averaged 54 absences (sick, personal and workers' compensation days) per year. During the three most recent (1993-94, 1994-95 and 1995-96) school years, respondent averaged 142 absences (sick, personal and workers' compensation days) per year. During the most recent (1995-96) school year, respondent was absent 152 days. Consequently, numerous times, the BOE requested that respondent submit her physician's opinion relative to her absence and whether and when she could resume her teaching duties. See, e.g., P-5; P-10; P-11; P-12; P-19; P-51. For substantial periods, respondent did not submit the requested opinion. Consequently also, the BOE was forced to use numerous substitute teachers to perform respondent's teaching duties. P-10; P-22. The BOE notified respondent that, given the unknown duration of her disability, it was "impossible [for the BOE] to plan a permanent solution to the substitute situation" (P-16); her absence adversely affected her students; and the BOE was considering tenure charges. P-12; P-19; P-39; P-22. These tenure charges were brought in September 1995. P-44. (Respondent's contention that, as of September 1996, she will be able to "return to regular duty" need not been determined here. R-1.)

For several years, the respondent's incapacity and absences prevented the regular contact with her students and continuity of instruction which are necessary for the public school education process and her incapacity and absences interfered with (or made "impossible") the BOE's planning for the constitutionally mandated educational services. P-16; P-31; see Reilly, supra, 1977 S.L.D. at 414. I agree with the BOE's determination that respondent's absenteeism was chronic and excessive. See Pellecchio, supra, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) at 270. That respondent's absenteeism was, in part, caused by compensable injuries is not a defense to these tenure charges. Kacprowicz, supra, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 147; Pellecchio, supra, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 267; White, supra, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 157. Compare Nagy v. Bergen County Util. Auth., 93 N.J.A.R.2d (CSV) 773, aff'd, No. A-1559-93T5 (App. Div. July 8, 1994), where a pending workers' compensation claim did not prevent removal of a civil service employee for cause, including the cause of "inability to perform duties." Given respondent's chronic and excessive absenteeism, the BOE's claim for her dismissal is appropriate.

A teacher's chronic absenteeism may also constitute "incapacity," "conduct unbecoming" and "just cause" for which dismissal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 is warranted. Trenton Bd. of Educ. v. Williamson, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 7335-85 (April 14), aff'd, Comm'r of Educ. (May 28, 1986). However, the "conduct unbecoming" charge here is merged with the "incapacity" charge.

R-1 Shore Rehabilitative Services/therapist Ellen Flashburg's letter, dated July 1, 1996; Dr. Michael J. Cunningham's note, undated

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 12504-95

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF ANNA POULOS, BOARD	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH	:	DECISION
OF FARMINGDALE, MONMOUTH	:
COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent initially registers outrage toward an initial decision, rendered without an evidentiary hearing, which failed to consider or to respond to her legal arguments, and which "exclusively relied upon the number of days [she] was absent during the prior three years " to determine that she should be dismissed from her tenured position. (Respondent's Exceptions at pp. 2, 3) Moreover, respondent notes that, contrary to the ALJ's finding that she has not taught in the District since November 13, 1995, she has, after recent surgery, rehabilitated herself to the extent that she has resumed her place as a teaching staff member in the Board's District. (Id. at p. 2) Respondent incorporates by reference her brief in opposition to the Board's Motion for Summary Judgment.

Respondent primarily excepts to the ALJ's granting of the Board's Motion for Summary Judgment without allowing an evidentiary hearing for arguments. The cases cited by the Board, respondent avers, actually support her contention that she is entitled to an evidentiary hearing. Respondent reviews the case law advanced by the Board and observes that the decisions rendered in those tenure matters followed evidentiary hearings. In particular, respondent cites In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Lena White, 1991 S.L.D. 940, which provides guidance for the evaluation of chronic absenteeism and physical incapacity issues presented to the Commissioner of Education in tenure proceedings:

> In each case the necessary focus is not merely the number of days of absence but a consideration of the nature of the absences themselves. Beyond that the particular circumstances must be looked into. The inquiry, however, does not stop there. It is necessary to also assess the impact that the absences have had on the continuity of instruction during the period of time in which the absences occurred. There also logically must be some form of warning given to the employee that his or her superiors were dissatisfied with the pattern of absences which has come forward. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 5, citing White, supra, at 955)

Respondent reasons that the ALJ could not possibly have considered the particular circumstances of her absences and their impact, if any, on the continuity of instruction during the relevant period. She avers that, in contrast to the cases cited by the Board, she has historically received excellent evaluations regarding her classroom performance. Moreover, she argues that the Board has not proffered any evidence to show that there were concerns about her classroom performance, or that she had been warned that her absences, which almost exclusively related to two service-connected injuries, were sufficient to warrant any form of disciplinary action. (Respondent's Brief at p. 15) Further, respondent claims that the Board failed to show that there was, in fact, a disruption in the continuity of education for her students, in that the Board appears to have secured the services of a capable substitute teacher during respondent's absence. (Id.)

Respondent next excepts to the ALJ's failure to acknowledge that past decisions concerning physical incapacity matters have analyzed the affected teaching staff members' ability to resume work as of the date of the holding of the tenure charge hearings as a critical component of the tenure charge process. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 6) Here, respondent notes that prior decisions have established that respondents in such tenure charge cases, where charges were sustained, were "unable to prove that their physical/psychiatric related problems had been remediated to an extent that their prognosis was positive in the future for satisfactory attendance as teaching staff members." (Id.) By contrast, respondent affirms that she was approved to return to work in the 1995-96 school year and now performs her duties in her usual, exemplary and professional manner. (Id. at p. 7)

Respondent's third exception asserts that the ALJ erred in concluding that the mere number of days of absence were dispositive in tenure charge proceedings dealing with physical incapacity and further erred by refusing to consider the nature of the absences themselves and their effect, if any, on the continuity of instruction. (Id.) Respondent notes that the initial decision > makes reference to one or two statements contained within Board generated documents, that  were not subject to cross examination, regarding the issue of continuity of education during one of the years at issue and apparently concludes that the Board of Education established uncontrovertedly that there was a disruption in the continuity of education of [her] students. (Id. at p. 8)

Thus, respondent reasons that she was deprived of the opportunity to challenge the Board's contentions there were serious problems with the continuity of education during the time at issue.

Respondent additionally excepts to the ALJ's failure to respond to her legal arguments set forth in her aforementioned brief which contend that the certification of tenure charges herein were proscribed by N.J.S.A. 34:15-39.1 and N.J.S.A. 34:15-39.2, as interpreted by the New Jersey Supreme Court, and further failed to respond to her arguments that the certification of tenure charges against her violated the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (LAD). (Id. at p. 9) Here, respondent contends that it appears that the Board's tenure charges are specifically directed at her worker's compensation benefit claims during the past three years. Respondent cites Lally v. Copygraphics, 173 N.J. Super. 162 (App. Div. 1980), aff'd 85 N.J. 668 (1981) to advance the proposition that retaliation is prohibited by the New Jersey Worker's Compensation Act, and to further comment that the remedies set forth in the Act are not exclusive. (Respondent's Brief at p. 23)

As to her discrimination claim, respondent argues that the LAD "has been extended to protect persons perceived or believed to be suffering from handicaps, whether or not the medical conditions from which they suffered, in fact, continue to handicap them." (Respondent's Brief at p. 25) Respondent notes that the ALJ has concluded, without factual support, that she was incapable of performing her duties "in the foreseeable future," while acknowledging that "the only medical documentation submitted to the Board of Education contemporaneously with the start of the 1996-97 school year unequivocally cleared Respondent for a return to work ." (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 10) Respondent claims that the Board's action is in contravention of the LAD, in that the Board seeks to terminate her on the basis of a medically undocumented perception that she will not be able to return to work. (Respondent's Brief at p. 26) Yet, respondent points out, she already has returned to work.

Thus, respondent requests that the initial decision be reversed and remanded to the OAL for an evidentiary hearing. Respondent further requests that, if remanded, this matter be heard by another ALJ, in that "Judge Tassini has obviously prejudged this case from the beginning starting with his suggestion to the Board of Education that a Summary Judgment Motion be filed during the course of a telephone pre-hearing conference." (Respondent's Exceptions at pp. 12, 13)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner finds that, inasmuch as the ALJ does not appear to have considered the arguments and claims advanced by respondent, notwithstanding that said arguments were fully briefed before him, this matter should be remanded for further proceedings as necessary to resolve the issues raised by respondent which were not considered herein. Further, if respondent maintains that the ALJ, who initially reviewed this matter, should not conduct further proceedings, she may so move before the ALJ, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.12.

Accordingly, the recommended order of the ALJ dismissing respondent from her tenured position is reversed for the reasons expressed herein. This matter is remanded to the OAL for further proceedings, consistent with the above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Respondent.	:

The parties to this proceeding have voluntarily resolved all disputed matters and enter into this Stipulation of Settlement containing the following settlement terms:

1. Respondent has agreed, in conjunction with its new bus company, to establish a bus stop on Henry Road effective as of the commencement of the 1996-97 school year. In establishing this bus stop, respondent will make its best efforts to locate the stop as close to petitioners' driveway as is permissible under the Policies and Procedures for Pupil Transportation promulgated by the New Jersey State Department of Education.

2. The parties expressly recognize that respondent's willingness and ability to establish the bus stop in question results from the conflicting expert reports received by the parties and the litigation uncertainty created thereby; and the new bus company's willingness to establish this bus stop and to alter the previously scheduled bus route to accommodate same, at no additional cost to respondent, something which could not have been achieved when this dispute arose and indeed not until the new bus company recently took over respondent's transportation contract.

3. The parties expressly agree that nothing in this settlement agreement shall be construed as altering or waiving either party's legal or factual positions, as constituting an admission that either party's positions are correct, or as establishing a precedent as to same or similar situations that may arise in the future.

4. Each party hereby expressly releases the other party as to any and all matters in controversy between them or any claims, arising at any time up to the date of this Stipulation of Settlement, including but not limited to attorneys fees, costs of litigation, and monetary damages.

5. Both parties have reviewed this Stipulation of Settlement with their attorneys, and represent that they fully understand the meaning of its provisions and their legal implications and enter into same knowingly and voluntarily. Both parties expressly represent that they enter into this Stipulation of Settlement freely and without fraud, undue influence or duress, and that they consider this agreement to be fair and reasonable.

6. Both parties have authorized their attorneys to sign this Stipulation of Settlement on their behalf, as permitted by N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 (a) 1. Both parties recognize that this Stipulation of Settlement will not become final and effective until the Administrative Law Judge issues an initial decision incorporating the full settlement terms and approving the settlement, and the initial decision becomes final in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act.

The Commissioner approves the settlement terms and adopts the settlement as the final decision in this matter. The Commissioner notes, however, that the terms of the settlement appear to already have been effectuated through respondent's establishment of a bus stop on Henry Road, effective at the start of the 1996-97 school year, and admonishes the parties that settlements of controverted matters are of no force or effect and may not be implemented absent the Commissioner's approval, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1

Petitioning guidance counselor appealed denial of her salary increment for unsatisfactory performance during the 1993-94 school year.

ALJ noted it was clear from all the testimony that petitioner was not performing her duties properly or promptly. Thus, ALJ affirmed the Board's withholding action, finding that petitioner failed to establish by a preponderance of credible evidence that the Board acted unreasonably in withholding her increment.

Commissioner adopted initial decision as his own. Petition was dismissed.

Record Closed: July 29, 1996 Decided: September 10, 1996

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

The petitioner, Betsy Kidd, appealed from the denial of an increment for the reason given by the respondent BOE that her performance during the 1993-94 school year was consistently poor. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case, pursuant to the Administrative Procedures Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, the act creating the OAL, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 and the regulation governing the withholding of salary increments. N.J.A.C. 6:24-4.1. The record remained open for an additional period of time due to petitioner's attorney's resignation from the bar after the plenary hearing was completed. Kidd did not elect to obtain new counsel.

In contested matters involving a school board's withholding of an increment, the burden of persuasion is on the teacher who must prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the Board's action in withholding the increment was unreasonable. Harrity v. Keansburg BOE, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 376. Nevertheless, in the interest of justice and judicial economy the BOE was directed to proceed first with the introduction of evidence in this matter. N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.6(l). The evidence produced by the Board was compelling.

Judith Bossa, Director of Special Services, identified Betsy Kidd as a Guidance Counselor. She worked with Kidd and supervised her. Bossa was a member of the Child Study Team since 1988. She became Director in 1993. She testified that Kidd did not adequately complete referral forms for special services. For instance, on a referral form for one D.R. born 10/30/80, Kidd did not provide the mother's and father's work phone numbers. Kidd also turned in sloppy work in that she would cut and paste rather than submit neatly typed referral forms.

In addition, according to Bossa, Kidd appeared not to know procedures for obtaining referrals which had been established and in place before Bossa was employed. Kidd had been at the school at least a year prior to Bossa's employment. Bossa also said that Kidd failed to obtain parents signatures on forms required for intervention and was unfamiliar with confidentiality requirements.

Roy Webb, the principal at Kidd's school testified. He showed copies of poorly typed referral forms prepared by Kidd. Kidd asked that the typist not be reprimanded. When Webb requested that Kidd have certain forms typed, she refused to do so.

Webb offered samples of Kidd's paperwork. Some examples listed the wrong teachers, others listed the wrong room numbers.

Webb recalled a parents night in which Kidd left early without telling him, although she denies that she failed to tell him she was leaving. Webb also commented on Kidd's professionalism. She was occasionally given to outbursts in which she raised her voice.

Webb said that the quality of Kidd's work was such that they actually eliminated some forms in order to assist her in getting her job done.

Kidd complained to Webb that the allocation of work between her and another guidance counselor was unfair. Kidd testified at the hearing that she performed the vast majority of referrals for the Child Study Team. Webb reviewed the number of referrals assigned. Kidd performed eleven referrals during the school year, her colleague performed ten.

Webb also noted that Kidd permitted too many students at one time in her office. He especially criticized her for discussing failing grades with one student while others were present in her office. He received a complaint from a student that this had occurred.

Webb also received complaints from teachers that Kidd did not reply to their referrals for student information. He had complaints from parents that Kidd did not return telephone calls.

Webb reported that Kidd did not advise him that a student complained of "improper touching" to her. When he confronted her with the information that a student had complained, she said she "seemed to recall such an incident."

Richard Egrie is a reading teacher at the Middle School. He is a negotiations consultant, and works for the New Jersey Education Association (NJEA). He assists persons with grievances and arbitration. He was asked by Kidd to assist her in her relationship with the Administration. He attended a meeting with her. He observed tension and noted that Kidd felt as though she was "under siege." He also noted that she felt gender harassment. He presumes that the Administration was correct in its criticism but he noted that members of the Administration were "angry." He said the Administration did not encourage Kidd when she did perform well.

Betsy Kidd testified that her work as a guidance counselor included counseling students, parent conferences, parent/teachers liaison, group counseling, progress reports and many additional duties. Kidd is an attractive, well dressed, middle-aged woman and obviously intelligent. She formerly worked for Judge Higginbotham. She evoked sympathy, however, because she was vague, sometimes appeared confused; even disoriented. She insisted that she performed the lions share of referrals to the Child Study Team, at least 80% of them. The records, however, clearly indicate that of the 21 referrals done in 1993-94, she did eleven and her colleague did ten.

She recalled the "touching" incident; said a female student was "getting even" with her boyfriend and that the complaint was "groundless." First she said she did not know she had to report every such incident to her principal. Later she said that she did know she had to report any such incidents.

She complained about Webb and said that he demeaned her and that she felt herself to be in a hostile, threatening atmosphere. She complained that the Administration changed procedures without anyone telling her. She said that she perceived "something was going on." She gave a long, involved rambling explanation about how she administered tests in the cafeteria. She said she went to see Richard Egrie because she "needed help." She said all she ever wanted were "clear and vivid copies." When confronted with errors on particular forms during cross-examination she said "it is so difficult to remember." She did remember that the Administration had a birthday party for someone and she wasn't invited. On another occasion she recalled going to a meeting and finding that everyone was eating Chinese food. Her feelings were hurt that no one had told her they would be eating take out.

In rebuttal Webb explained that he did not change procedures during the school year and in fact, he merely copied forms from old files of his predecessor to use for referral and retentions.

He recalled the birthday party. He said it was a surprise birthday party for him. He did not know about it in advance. He said staff often sent out for Chinese food.

It was clear from all the testimony that Kidd was not performing her duties properly or promptly. It was also clear that Kidd suffers from confusion. There was no attempt to explain her confusion by her or anyone else. Perhaps she is unaware that she is confused. She utterly failed to establish by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the Board's action in withholding her increment in 1993-94 was unreasonable. Her demeanor and vagueness at the hearing confirmed that the Board's action was correct.

I AFFIRM the action of the Board which withheld petitioner's increment for the 1993-94 school year.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that the Board's denial of petitioner's increment was not improper.

It is well-settled that actions concerning increment withholding may not be upset unless they can be demonstrated to be patently arbitrary, capricious, unlawful or induced by improper motive. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960) and Harrity, supra. Further, the burden of proof that an action was so deficient rests with the person challenging the decision. Kopera at 297. The Commissioner concurs that, based on the record before him, the District's decision to withhold petitioner's increment did not exceed the reasonable use of the District's broad discretionary authority. Moreover, the Commissioner concurs that petitioner has not met her burden of establishing otherwise.

Accordingly, for the reasons articulated therein and further explicated above, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the OAL and dismisses the instant Petition of Appeal.

ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY

Viji Sargis, petitioner, pro se

Louis M. Flora, Esq., for respondent School District of the City of Paterson

Record Closed: August 22, 1996 Decided: September 17, 1996

This is a transcript of the administrative law judge's oral decision rendered pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.2.

BEFORE: ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about April 24, 1995, petitioner Viji Sargis filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, requesting an inquiry into alleged violations of statutorily prescribed election procedures in the annual school election held in the School District of the City of Paterson. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on May 10, 1995, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The case was assigned to the undersigned judge on June 2, 1995, and a telephone prehearing conference was scheduled for July 6, 1995. That date was subsequently adjourned, and the telephone prehearing conference was held on August 22, 1995, at which time the issues were isolated. The issues, as stated in the prehearing order, are whether there were any improprieties and/or violations of law in the conduct of the school election held in the School District of the City of Paterson, Passaic County, on April 18, 1995, and, if so, what is the appropriate relief. Respondent was to file its answer to the petition on or before August 31, 1995. Respondent filed its answer to the petition on September 5, 1995. The parties were required to propound interrogatories and request the production of documents on or before September 29, 1995. Those interrogatories were to be answered on or before October 27, 1995. By letter dated August 31, 1995, enclosing a corrected copy of the prehearing order, the OAL notified the parties that the hearing was scheduled for March 22 and 29, and April 1 and 2, 1996

As stated above, the case was scheduled to be heard beginning March 22, 1996, at which point there was a pending motion filed by respondent in regard to the Commissioner's jurisdiction of this matter. Various cases pending before the OAL entailed the same jurisdictional issue. They were consolidated for determination by Chief Judge and Director Barbara Harned, who ruled that the Office of Administrative Law did in fact have jurisdiction over these cases. As a result, this matter was rescheduled for today's date. There is a motion, however, that is pending by respondent, the School District of the City of Paterson, and that motion originally related to the jurisdictional issue which has since been determined by Judge Harned. Still open, however, are the issues of mootness and dismissal of the claim due to petitioner's failure to provide discovery.

DISCUSSION

I have considered respondent's motion to dismiss on the grounds of mootness and failure to provide discovery, in addition to failure to respond to the motions and orders of this tribunal. Having done so, I am inclined to grant respondent's motion to dismiss on the basis of failure to provide discovery. Let me begin by saying that in regard to the issue of mootness, I am not now inclined to dismiss on that basis. Petitioner has alleged a number of improprieties which really have at this point in time not been addressed. It may be that petitioner's allegations are out of time, it may be that they are moot, it may be that if the facts were known there would be a proper motion for summary decision filed. At this point in time, I am not inclined to grant respondent's motion to dismiss on the basis of mootness, because I do not think that I have enough facts at this juncture to make that determination.

However, I do have enough facts before me to conclude that the appropriate sanction regarding failure to answer discovery is to dismiss this matter. Let me refer you to N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.1(a), which sets forth the purpose and function of discovery: "The purpose of discovery is to facilitate the disposition of cases by streamlining the hearing and enhancing the likelihood of settlement or withdrawal. These rules are designed to achieve this purpose by giving litigants access to facts which tend to support or undermine their position or that of their adversary." In the instant case, had petitioner provided discovery, perhaps respondent could have made a more appropriate motion in regard to petitioner's claim. This could not be done because petitioner did not answer respondent's discovery request.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.1(b) indicates that it is not ground for denial of a request for discovery that the information to be produced may be inadmissible in evidence if the information sought appears reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. If one looks at N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.2, any party may notify another party to provide discovery by one or more of the following methods: 1. written interrogatories; 2. production of documents or things; 3. (not relevant here) permission to enter upon land or other property for inspection or other purposes; and 4. requests for admissions, which were in fact requested here. Depositions can also be utilized under certain circumstances. But, of import here is N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4, which provides that the parties in any contested case shall commence immediately to exchange information voluntarily, to seek access as provided by law to public documents and to exhaust other informal means of obtaining discoverable material. The parties shall immediately serve discovery requests and notices and make discovery motions. No later than fifteen days from receipt of a notice requesting discovery, the receiving party shall provide the requested information, material or access or offer a schedule for reasonable compliance with the notice; or, in the case of a notice requesting admissions, each matter therein shall be admitted unless within the fifteen days the receiving party answers, admits or denies the request or objects to it pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4(d). Subsection (d) states that a party who wishes to object to a discovery notice shall place a telephone conference call to the judge and the other parties within ten days from receipt of the notice. A party who wishes to compel a response to a discovery notice shall place a telephone conference call to the judge and the other parties within ten days of the notice due date. A party who wishes to object to a discovery response shall place a telephone call to the judge and the other parties within ten days of receiving the response. If a party fails without good reason to place a timely telephone call, the judge may deny that party's objection or decline to compel the discovery. The parties shall complete all discovery no later than five days before the first scheduled evidentiary hearing or by such date ordered by the judge at the prehearing conference.

In the instant case, it is clear to me, and petitioner admits, that she in fact received respondent's discovery request. Whether that discovery request came on September 29 or on September 30, she has had the discovery request since on or about September 29, 1995, and has failed in almost one year to comply with that discovery request. We have had numerous conferences. There was a scheduled hearing date in March 1996, at which petitioner appeared, and still petitioner has failed to answer those interrogatories. In addition, a motion was filed by respondent seeking sanctions. Even after that motion was filed, and even at my request by telephone call of July 29 to respond to that motion, there has never been a response to respondent's set of interrogatories. In fact, there has never really been a real response to the motion from petitioner as to why she failed to answer those interrogatories. Petitioner says in the hearing today, "I failed to answer interrogatories because he already has the information." It is not petitioner's choice to proceed in that manner. I understand that petitioner is pro se. However, petitioner is able to cite numerous statutes, which she feels that respondent has not complied with and which establish improprieties. She has to then comply with the rules of this tribunal, and she has in fact failed to do that. Applicable as a result is N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.5, the sanctions provision, which provides that by motion of a party or on his or her own motion, the judge may impose sanctions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.14 for failure to comply with the requirements of this subchapter. Before imposing sanctions the judge shall provide an opportunity to be heard.

If one looks at N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.14, it indicates that (a) for unreasonable failure to comply with any order of the judge or with any requirements of this chapter, the judge may: 1. Dismiss or grant the motion or application; 2. Suppress a defense or claim; 3. Exclude evidence; 4. Order costs or reasonable expenses; or 5. Take other appropriate case-related action. In this case, I am going to dismiss the petition for failure to comply with discovery. The discovery was supposed to be completed by petitioner by October 27, 1995. It has not been completed to date. There has been no reasonable response by petitioner as to why that has not been accomplished and, as a result, I do not believe that I have any recourse but to grant respondent's motion. So, I will ask respondent to prepare an order under the five-day rule. This decision will be incorporated into a written decision dismissing petitioner's claim.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended oral decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended oral decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(a), in that the initial decision was mailed to the parties on September 24, 1996, and the exceptions were not filed until October 10, 1996. IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :

HEARING OF MICHELE SHUART, :

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

BOROUGH OF ELMWOOD PARK, : DECISION

BERGEN COUNTY. :

Petitioning Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against special education teacher for allegedly engaging in inappropriate conversation and touching with students.

ALJ found that the Board failed to prove the charges of unbecoming conduct by a preponderance of credible evidence. Moreover, in light of the testimony of the Board's witnesses, which testimony the ALJ found irrational, inconsistent or contradictory, the ALJ dismissed the tenure charges and ordered the Board to reinstate respondent with compensation.

Commissioner concurred with the conclusion of the ALJ that the Board did not meet its burden of proof with regard to the charges against respondent. Commissioner found no basis in the record to overturn the credibility assessments of the ALJ who observed the witnesses firsthand. In addition, the Commissioner concluded that the paucity of factual evidence in support of the charges necessitated their dismissal. Commissioner dismissed the tenure charges and directed that respondent be reinstated to her position and credited with all salary and emoluments due her.

BEFORE MARIE P. SIMONELLI, A.L.J.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, School District of the Borough of Elmwood Park, Bergen County (the District), filed tenure charges against respondent, Michele Shuart (Mrs. Shuart). The District seeks to dismiss Mrs. Shuart from her position as a tenured special education teacher on charges of unbecoming conduct.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 11, 1994, the District filed tenure charges against Mrs. Shuart. On June 21, 1994, the District suspended Mrs. Shuart without pay. On June 22, 1994, the District issued a Certificate of Determination to certify the charges to the Commissioner of Education and it filed a Statement of Charges and Statement of Evidence. On June 27, 1994, Mrs. Shuart filed an Answer. On July 28, 1994, the Department of Education transferred this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing.

On December 16, 1994, the parties entered into a Consent Order for Reinstatement of Pay. On November 13, 1995, Mrs. Shuart filed a Notice of Motion to Take Oral Depositions. On November 30, 1995, the undersigned entered an Order denying that motion. On December 22, 1995, Mrs. Shuart filed a Notice of Motion for Dismissal of Tenure Charges for failure to serve answers to interrogatories. On December 26, 1995, the undersigned entered an Order denying that motion and compelling the District to serve answers to interrogatories. On January 25, 1996, Mrs. Shuart filed a Notice of Motion for Dismissal of Tenure Charges Or, Alternatively, For Sanctions Including Counsel Fees. The undersigned denied that motion.

The undersigned held a hearing on March 4, 5 and 6, 1996. Prior to the start of the hearing, counsel for Mrs. Shuart moved for the sequestration of witnesses. The undersigned granted that motion and sequestered the witnesses.

The record closed on July 18, 1996, after the submission of all post-hearing Briefs.

THE CHARGES AGAINST MRS. SHUART

The District accuses Mrs. Shuart of engaging in unbecoming conduct with 3 students, A.E., J.N. and R.C. The District filed 15 Charges against Mrs. Shuart alleging as follows:

Charge #1: She entered into and encouraged sexually provocative conversations with A.E.;

Charge #2: She used sexually provocative language with A.E.;

Charge #3: She permitted A.E. and J.N. to inappropriately massage or otherwise come in physical contact with parts of her body, including her back, shoulders and upper chest area;

Charge #4: She inappropriately permitted R.C. to massage her back, upper shoulders and breasts on different occasions;

Charge #5: She inappropriately encouraged R.C. to kiss her on the lips;

Charge #6: She inappropriately permitted R.C. to grab and rub her buttocks;

Charge #7: She inappropriately encouraged and permitted R.C. to perform digital vaginal penetration;

Charge #8: She inappropriately grabbed and touched and/or rubbed R.C.'s groin area and/or penis;

Charge #9: She inappropriately sat on R.C.'s lap

Charge #10: She inappropriately sat on A.E.'s lap;

Charge #11: She inappropriately grabbed and rubbed A.E.'s groin area and/or penis;

Charge #12: She inappropriately, and on several occasions, massaged A.E.'s inner thigh;

Charge #13: She inappropriately grabbed and rubbed A.E.'s buttocks;

Charge #14: She inappropriately fondled R.C.'s penis with her foot; and Charge #15: She inappropriately allowed J.N. to massage her back, upper shoulders and neck.

At the close of the District's case, Mrs. Shuart's counsel moved to dismiss the Charges relating to R.C. because the District had not produced any evidence whatsoever to support those charges. The District's attorney admitted that the District presented no proofs with respect to these Charges. The undersigned granted the motion as to Charges #4, 5, 6, 7, 9 and 15 and dismissed those charges. These charges are very serious. The District accused Mrs. Shuart of inappropriately: (1) permitting R.C. to massage her back, upper shoulders and breasts on different occasions; (2) encouraged R.C. to kiss her on the lips; (3) permitted R.C. to grab and rub her buttocks; (4) encouraged and permitted R.C. to perform digital vaginal penetration; (5) grabbed and touched and/or rubbed R.C.'s groin area and/or penis; and (6) sat on R.C.'s lap. If Mrs. Shuart engaged in this very serious conduct, as the District alleged, it is incomprehensible to the undersigned that the District would present absolutely no evidence whatsoever to prove it.

Mrs. Shuart also moved at the close of the District's case to dismiss the charges relating to J.N. The District accused Mrs. Shuart of inappropriately allowing J.N. to massage or otherwise come in physical contact with parts of her body, including her back, shoulders and upper chest area. At the hearing, J.N. explained that on one occasion, Mrs. Shuart was in pain due to a pinched nerve in her neck. J.N.'s mother, who suffers from Lupus, also would get a pinched nerve in her neck and J.N. knew how to massage such pinched nerves. He offered to do so for Mrs. Shuart on that one occasion. Based upon this evidence, the undersigned granted Mrs. Shuart's motion and dismissed Charge #15 and part of Charge #3.

The only Charges remaining against Mrs. Shuart for determination are Charge #1 (that she entered into and encouraged sexually provocative conversations with A.E.), Charge #2 (that she used sexually provocative language with A.E.), part of Charge #3 (that she permitted A.E. to inappropriately massage or otherwise come in physical contact with parts of her body), Charge #8 (that she inappropriately grabbed and/or rubbed R.C.'s groin area and/or penis), Charge #10 (that she inappropriately sat on A.E.'s lap), Charge #11 (that she inappropriately grabbed and rubbed A.E.'s groin area and/or penis), Charge #12 (that she inappropriately and on several occasions, massaged A.E.'s inner thigh), Charge #13 (that she inappropriately grabbed and rubbed A.E.'s buttocks) and Charge #14 (that she inappropriately fondled R.C.'s penis with her foot).

STIPULATED FACTS

The parties stipulated the following which I FIND as FACTS in this case:

1. The District hired Mrs. Shuart on June 9, 1981, effective August 1, 1981.

2. Mrs. Shuart is a tenured teacher of Special Education.

3. Mrs. Shuart obtained tenure on September 1, 1984.

4. The District filed a Statement of Charges against Mrs. Shuart on May 11, 1994.

5. The District suspended Mrs. Shuart without pay on June 21, 1994.

6. The District certified the charges against Mrs. Shuart on June 22,1994.

DISCUSSION OF OTHER TESTIMONY AND EVIDENCE

Mrs. Shuart graduated from Felician College in May 1981 with a Bachelor of Arts Degree. She majored in Special Education. She is a certified Elementary School Teacher and a certified Teacher of the Handicapped. When Mrs. Shuart began her employment with the District in August 1981, the District assigned her to the Gilbert Avenue School where she taught students who were classified as emotionally disturbed. Mrs. Shuart taught at the Gilbert Avenue School until 1986. While there, she received many satisfactory evaluations. The District never disciplined her for any reason and never withheld her increment. She also had good interactions with the Gilbert Avenue students and their parents. She received tenure on September 1, 1984.

In 1986, the District transferred Mrs. Shuart to the Elmwood Park Memorial Junior/Senior High School. She taught English, Language Arts, Science, Math and Social Studies to special education students in a self-contained classroom. The District initially assigned Mrs. Shuart to Classroom 113. In the 1990-91 school year, the District assigned Mrs. Shuart to Classroom 100. She referred to this classroom as the "fishbowl" because it was located in a heavily traveled area. The administration offices were nearby, there was a bathroom next door and there was a public telephone directly across from the door of this classroom. People constantly walked past and stopped into the classroom, including students, administrators, Child Study Team members and parents.

For the 1991-92 school year, the District again assigned Mrs. Shuart to Classroom 100. This time, however, she had to share the classroom with a Resource Room teacher, Jeffrey Walensky (Mr. Walensky). To offset her area from Mr. Walensky's area, Mrs. Shuart placed a five foot blackboard in the middle of the classroom. Upon entering, Mr. Walensky's desk and students were located to the right of the blackboard and Mrs. Shuart's desk and students were located to the left of the blackboard.

Although Mrs. Shuart and Mr. Walensky initially got along with each other, within a short period of time problems arouse between them. Mr. Walensky's students distracted Mrs. Shuart's students because Mr. Walensky did not teach his students. He would sit at his desk and not engage in any lesson plan. His students would get loud and Mrs. Shuart would have to go over to his side of the classroom and ask his students to be quiet.

Placing the blackboard in the middle of the classroom did not prove adequate. Mrs. Shuart testified that the distractions from Mr. Walensky's students were unbearable, the noise was constant and Mr. Walensky provided no discipline. She stated, in pertinent part:

> [W]e'd get spitballs, rubber bands, paper clips flying over to our side. Students on his [Mr. Walensky's] side...they would walk away from his side to come onto my side and try to sit in with my class to learn. They complained [to] me. Mr. Walensky did nothing. He just sat at his desk, he read books, he was doing personal things at his desk. He just would not get up...He sat at his desk. So the noise level, because he didn't do anything for > discipline, created -- it was a war zone. It was very loud and the things being thrown over was very unbearable.

Mrs. Shuart complained about Mr. Walensky to several administrators, including the Director of Special Services, Mr. Garfole, and the Assistant Principal, Joe Castiglia (Mr. Castiglia). The District did not produce Mr. Garfole or Mr. Castiglia to contradict any of the testimony presented on Mrs. Shuart's behalf in this matter. The District also did not indicate that these people were unavailable to testify at the hearing. The Principal, Thomas Fedor (Mr. Fedor), testified on behalf of Mrs. Shuart. He testified that he had received no complaints about Mrs. Shuart and that he had no disciplinary problems with her or problems with her teaching style. He also testified that all of her evaluations were satisfactory.

In response to Mrs. Shuart's complaints, the District installed a divider in the classroom sometime in the beginning of January 1993. The divider did not reach the ceiling, nor did it extend from one end of the classroom to the other. It was about four to five feet from the front door and about two to three feet from the back wall. Mrs. Shuart could still see Mr. Walensky's desk when she sat at her desk on her side of the classroom and she and her students could still hear Mr. Walensky and his students. The divider did not alleviate the problems between Mrs. Shuart and Mr. Walensky and the problems worsened.

According to Mrs. Shuart, Mr. Walensky did not teach his students. As she described:

> Mr. Walensky in my opinion did never teach any of his students. He would allow them just to sit around either at their desks or this round table on this photograph here. There was never any learning going on. I tried my hardest to quiet them. A lot of times Mr. Walensky wouldn't even be in the room when the bell rang, he wouldn't even be at his post. Be out somewhere, in the bathroom or in the hallway. I would have to allow his students to come in because we were told by administrators never to allow the students to stay out in the hallway while the teacher's not in his or her room. So I brought them in and I said sit at your seats and please get to work. If you have something to do, something to catch up on, do it. Mr. Walensky would walk in after the second bell rang, he would just go right to his desk and not engage in any lesson plan. I started teaching my lesson and then noise level became so unbearable that I had to stop many a time in the middle of my > lesson to kindly go over to his side, talk to him to say, please quiet down or at least can I say it to the children. Quiet down, we're trying to learn on this side. My kids were getting so frustrated. My students sat there. They'd have a pen or a pencil in their hand. They'd knock it down and go like this, I can't hear, I can't learn.

In addition, Mr. Walensky showed his students war movies that had nothing to do with his lesson plan. He also allowed his students to eat in the classroom despite the fact that he knew that the District did not permit eating in classrooms. Mr. Walensky even had pizza, Blimpy's and other food delivered to the classroom through the back window.

In late October or early November 1991, A.E. became a student in Mr. Walensky's class. It was after this that the relationship between Mrs. Shuart and Mr. Walensky seriously deteriorated. A.E. was one of the captains of the football team and he was on the wrestling team. Although the relationship between A.E. and Mr. Walensky began as a teacher/student relationship, they soon became much more friendly and Mr. Walensky would attend A.E.'s football games and wrestling matches. According to Mrs. Shuart, A.E. and Mr. Walensky eventually became "buddy-buddies." A.E. was everything to Mr. Walensky and he would not pay attention to his other students when A.E. was around. Mrs. Shuart overheard Mr. Walensky and A.E. discuss sexual things and she saw Mr. Walensky allow A.E. to look at a book that contained pictures of naked women with large breasts. She also overheard them talk about gambling.

A.E. also was sexually provocative toward Mrs. Shuart. He commented about her chest and buttocks and he told her that she looked sexy. He also told her that he wanted to go out with her and that his penis was bigger than her husband's penis. Mrs. Shuart told A.E. to get away from her and to go back to his side of the classroom. On one occasion, A.E. went behind Mrs. Shuart's desk and starting touching her. Mrs. Shuart pushed him away and accidentally hit him in his crotch area. Mrs. Shuart went to Mr. Walensky about her problems with A.E. and asked him to talk to and control A.E. Mr. Walensky did nothing. Mrs. Shuart also reported A.E.'s and Mr. Walensky's behavior to Mr. Castiglia and Mr. Garfole, but they did nothing as well. This testimony is undisputed.

Mrs. Shuart also testified that A.E. would roam the hallways and walk in and out of the classroom. Every time A.E. would walk into the classroom, he would call her names such as "fat whale," "Shamu," "fat cow," "asshole" or "bitch." He also frequently used the "F" word. Mr. Walensky did nothing to stop A.E. from doing this. Mrs. Shuart also observed A.E. around female students. She testified that:

> He was always touchy-feely. He put his arm around them from behind. And they'd be like, A., get away from me. Hey, what's the matter, don't you like me today? Feel my muscles. Come on, come on, I want to date you. You know. And then he would, you know remark to -- about their chest and try to grab them, their buttocks and stuff all the time in the hallways. It was disgusting.

Things came to a head between Mrs. Shuart and Mr. Walensky after the District notified Mr. Walensky that it was not renewing his contract for the next school year. A.E. found out about it and blamed Mrs. Shuart. One day, A.E. wanted to use a VCR to watch a boxing video with Mr. Walensky. Mrs. Shuart would not permit him to do so. Mrs. Shuart described, in pertinent part:

> So the next thing I heard [A.E.] say out blatantly: Who the fuck does she think she is? This is not her machine. I'm going to my buddy Persi and reporting her. With that he got so hostile and he ran out of the room. And I believe he went towards the way of Mr. Persi's office. Mr. Walensky did nothing. He just sat at his desk...I went up to Mr. Walensky's desk and I asked him, why are you allowing [A.E.] to do this? You know he is an uncontrollable person. You have to discipline him. He looked at me in the blankest stare...and he said to me, I want to see how much [A.E.] hated you...

Mrs. Shuart reported this incident to Mr. Castiglia. She also met with Mr. Garfole to discuss her problems with Mr. Walensky and A.E. Mrs. Shuart also complained to other teachers about the situation with A.E. and Mr. Walensky. The District presented no evidence to contradict this testimony.

One of the District's witnesses, J.N., corroborated Mrs. Shuart's testimony about Mr. Walensky and her problems with him. It must be remembered that the witnesses in this case were sequestered. J.N. was a student in Mr. Walensky's class during the time the problems occurred. He testified that Mr. Walensky's class was not a good learning experience and that he did not learn anything in Mr. Walensky's class. He also testified that Mr. Walensky did not have control of the class and that Mr. Walensky would sometimes leave the class and go use the pay phone that was located across from the classroom. J.N also testified that Mr. Walensky did not teach his class and that sometimes J.N. taught the class and made entries into Mr. Walensky's plan book.

J.N. also testified that he had one period in Mrs. Shuart's class and that during that class, Mr. Walensky's students would be loud and obnoxious, making it hard for him to concentrate. J.N. also testified that he thought that Mr. Walensky and A.E. had a friendship outside of school because they would talk about things that they had done over the weekend. J.N. also testified that when A.E. was in the room, he and Mr. Walensky would "both go like a tag team against -- against her [Mrs. Shuart]" and they would call her a "fat whale" and "Shamu." It was clear to J.N. that Mr. Walensky and A.E. did not like Mrs. Shuart. In fact, J.N. heard A.E. say to Mrs. Shuart, "[I]'ll have your job. I'm going to go talk to my buddy, Mr. Persi [the Superintendent]."

With respect to A.E., J.N. testified that A.E. "is not a person that you'd trust for information." A.E. frequently talked about sex and he acted sexual toward girls. According to J.N., A.E. would touch girls and "He would grab their ass." He also heard A.E. talk to Mrs. Shuart about his body parts and say to her, "My penis is probably bigger than your husband's." Mrs. Shuart responded, "A.E. you're a disgusting little pig." J.N never observed Mrs. Shuart being friendly with A.E. in a sexual or improper way.

Another witness, L.R., corroborated J.N.'s and Mrs. Shuart's testimony. L.R. was a student in Mrs. Shuart's class at the time of the alleged incidents. She noticed that Mrs. Shuart and Mr. Walensky did not get along very well. and that they argued all the time. According to L.R., Mrs. Shuart "always has to discipline his [Mr. Walensky's] students because he obviously doesn't discipline -- he doesn't take care of his class." Mr. Walensky would allow students to come in late and he would allow them to leave without permission. Mr. Walensky's class was unorganized and very loud and he would allow J.N. to teach the class. According to L.R.:

> He [Mr. Walensky] would let people sit in his classroom, his side, talking aloud. He would make -- the students would be throwing -- fly objects across the room. It would be on our side. And doesn't do anything. So Mrs. Shuart would always have to respond, tell them to stop throwing things, start behaving, lower your voices or we're taking a test or really noise. They're really noisy. So she would tell them to like quiet down, we're taking a test.

At one point, L.R. heard Mrs. Shuart tell Mr. Walensky to start controlling his class. Mr. Walensky responded by getting mad and hitting a file cabinet. L.R. also testified that Mr. Walensky "looked like he was jealous" of Mrs. Shuart because students would talk to her and ask her for help.

L.R. also testified that Mr. Walensky was very friendly with A.E. She observed them in the hallway "arm in arm, you know, like a buddy." She testified that "They would talk about these weird conversations like sex or dirty laundry and girls and just -- something you wouldn't talk in school. Something that has nothing to do with school." Mr. Walensky also brought in a book that had a picture on its cover of a naked woman with two full-sized breasts. She saw Mr. Walensky hold up the book when students were in the classroom.

L.R. also testified that Mr. Walensky had a refrigerator and a coffee or tea pot on his side of the classroom. She also observed him doing his bills and reading catalogs during class. She also observed an incident between Mrs. Shuart, A.E. and Mr. Walensky where Mrs. Shuart would not permit A.E. to use a VCR to watch a boxing tape. According to L.R., "[A.]E. got very nasty with her and says, "Who the fuck do you think you are? This is not your fucking VCR." And he goes, "I'm going to my buddy, Mr. Persi and reporting this." L.R. further testified:

> [M]r. Walensky was just sitting there doing nothing. So Mrs. Shuart says who do you think you are letting a student yell to a teacher about a T.V. and a VCR, you should have no student yelling at anybody and swearing at anybody for something that's not your property. The next time you should discipline your student. And he told Mrs. Shuart that "I just wanted to see how much A.E. hated you."

L.R. also observed A.E.'s behavior toward Mrs. Shuart and Mrs. Shuart's behavior toward A.E. A.E. would sometimes grab Mrs. Shuart around the neck and she would push him off. She heard A.E. say to Mrs. Shuart, "[O]h Mrs. Shuart, I want to massage you, I love you." She also heard A.E. give Mrs. Shuart compliments about her breasts and Mrs. Shuart got mad and responded, "[Y]ou keep this up, A.E., I'm reporting you...get out of my side of the room, I don't want to see you, you're a pig." L.R. also never saw Mrs. Shuart encourage A.E. to come over to her side of the classroom or call A.E. to her side of the classroom and ask for a massage. She also heard Mrs. Shuart ask Mr. Walensky not to let A.E. come over to her side of the room, but Mr. Walensky did not listen. L.R. also never saw A.E. put his hands on Mrs. Shuart or saw Mrs. Shuart rub A.E.'s crotch area or thigh. She also never saw Mrs. Shuart do anything sexually inappropriate with a student and she saw Mrs. Shuart treat students as any professional teacher would.

With respect to A.E., L.R testified that "he's a pervert." He would say to girls "oh, your tits looks good today, want to feel my muscles, I want you." He also would touch girls and "the girls would push him off, they would say get away from me, I don't want to be touched by you." According to L.R.:

> He [A.E.] always had a dirty mouth. He would always swear a lot, like bitch. He would call the -- sometimes he would call them bitch, fuck you, up yours.
> He [A.E.] would be very loud and he would distract the class. He always walked in and out. Like he walks in and goes, hi, Mr. Walensky and meanwhile we're doing our work and she [Mrs. Shuart] was teaching.

L.R. also testified that A.E. treated teachers disrespectfully, especially Mrs. Shuart. L.R. stated:

> He [A.E.] would swear to them. He swear to the teachers he didn't like. Like there was this one incident that he would call Mrs. Shuart a fat cow.
> He called her a fat cow. Like I said, she had two nice full-sized breasts. A bitch. Fat whale. Fat whale.

According to L.R., Mr. Walensky never told A.E. not to talk to a teacher that way. In addition, L.R. testified that Mr. Walensky called her "sweet cakes, sugar lips, sexy" and that made her feel uncomfortable. She reported Mr. Walensky's conduct to Mr. Garfole. Again, it must be noted that the District never produced Mr. Garfole to testify at the hearing to dispute L.R.'s testimony.

L.R. also heard A.E. tell three of his buddies "that everything about Mrs. Shuart was a lie, it was just -- he was trying to get Mrs. Shuart fired and Mr. Walensky put him up to this." She also heard A.E. tell sexual type stories about other people and she described him as follows:

> [H]e's a pig because he would read books, sexual books, tasteless pictures, he's very flirtatious. He would talk sexually towards the female students. And he would treat them inappropriate. He talks -- he -- disrespects the teachers he doesn't like. He would call Mrs. Shuart bad names like bitch and fat cow, a whore. He's very -- he thinks he's a macho man. He's very conceited. He thinks he's like God's gift. He thinks he's better looking than anybody else. He would tell the girls to feel his muscles. He would tell the girls your tits look good today. He would make the girls feel very uncomfortable.

Finally, L.R. testified that on a few occasions, she saw Mr. Walensky have pizza delivered through the window of the room for himself and his students. She also admitted that she did not like A.E. and Mr. Walensky. Despite her dislike, she insisted that everything she said about them was the truth and that she would not lie about anybody.

Two teachers also testified, Dawn Sova (Ms. Sova) and Marlene Matsko (Ms. Matsko). Ms. Sova testified that she saw A.E. annoying girls in the hallway and being aggressive in touching them. A.E. would grab their buttocks, stomachs and sides and she would tell him to stop. A.E. stood out from other students in terms of his use of obscenities and his sexual groping type of behavior.

Ms. Sova also testified about an incident involving A.E. and 2 other students. Ms. Sova and 2 teachers were monitoring in-school suspension. Mr. Walensky also was present at the time. A.E. began to use profane language and she told him to stop. Ms. Sova then explained, in pertinent part:

> [F]inally, I think D.L. pulled a rubber finger out of his pocket. It was a rubber finger on a key chain and A.E. took it and said it was a great time to make use of it and he first raised it in the air as if it was his middle finger...Then he took it and started to stroke D.L. on the side of the face with it. Then he started to stroke his groin with it as if he were stroking his groin, right across his -- you know, his pants,...A.E. kept on playing with it, stroked around his buttocks a bit, around the front as if he were touching himself with a rubber finger...The other two teachers may have less strong stomachs than I do or maybe they just couldn't take it as -- you know, because one ran out of the room crying. She couldn't stand it any more. The other ran out to comfort her. Mr. Walensky sat in the corner and kept his head down.

Ms. Sova and the other teachers reported this incident. As a result, A.E. received an immediate suspension. Despite the suspension, A.E. remained in school. This concerned Ms. Sova because A.E.'s behavior was very erratic, he would fly off the handle and he was difficult to control. Ms. Sova also stated that A.E. was treated differently than other students.

Ms. Matsko testified about an incident she had with A.E. in the hallway. She described it, in pertinent part, as follows:

> [I]'ve had three babies in the past five years, so I guess I got a reputation for making babies, and he came up to me and said that I should have waited, he would have given me a baby. And in all the years, as well as I've known the students, that's been the most brazen remark. And I even told him that that was very inappropriate and I had reported it to Special Services. On occasion he would whistle at me or whatever and I told him that that made me feel very uncomfortable.

Ms. Matsko also testified that she observed A.E. stand in the hallway and "make grunts and groans and moans and physical and sexual gestures" to female students. She also heard him make graphic comments to some female students and she observed him walking around with a tape recorder and asking students to say graphic things into it. She further testified that A.E. was not intimidated by a teacher's presence and he liked attention.

Mrs. Shuart also spoke to Ms. Matsko about an incident between her, A.E. and Mr. Walensky. Mrs. Shuart stated to her that A.E. went on Mrs. Shuart's side of the classroom and she asked him to go back to Mr. Walensky's side. Mrs. Shuart was very upset because A.E. had yelled a profanity and Mr. Walensky found it humorous.

Ms. Matsko also testified that in all of her years of teaching she never heard of any sexual misconduct or inappropriateness by Mrs. Shuart toward students. She testified, in pertinent part, that:

> [I]'ve been there eighteen years and I knew [Mrs. Shuart] ever since she was there and that's what I found so surprising, why would things come out of the blue when she had had several students before that and I'm proud to say that I had a very, very close relationship with the kids and very often I hear things where the kids might not feel comfortable telling someone else.

Mr. Walensky, A.E., J.N. and P.F. testified on behalf of the District. The undersigned had an opportunity to closely observe all of these witnesses during their testimony. With respect to Mr. Walensky, the undersigned observed that during his testimony many of his answers were evasive and he clearly was uncomfortable and reluctant in giving his answers. The District may argue that Mr. Walensky acted this way because he was testifying under subpoena. Having had the opportunity to closely observe Mr. Walensky, however, the undersigned has determined that it was much more than that. Mr. Walensky was evasive, uncomfortable and reluctant because he simply was not telling the truth. This clearly is evidenced by the testimony of other witnesses, including the District's witnesses, who contradicted much of Mr. Walensky's testimony.

For example, the District did not permit refrigerators in the classrooms. Mr. Walensky testified that there was a refrigerator in the classroom but that it was located on Mrs. Shuart's side of the classroom, not on his side. The District's witnesses, A.E., J.N. and P.F. all testified that the refrigerator actually was on Mr. Walensky's side of the classroom. Although having a refrigerator in the classroom may appear to be a very insignificant issue in this matter, it is such a minor issue that lying about it raises doubt about the veracity of the remainder of Mr. Walensky's testimony.

Mr. Walensky also denied having brought any pornographic materials into the classroom, including the book with the picture of naked women with large breasts. A.E. testified, however, that Mr. Walensky did bring that book into the classroom and showed it to A.E. and to the other male students in the classroom. J.N. testified that he saw a deck of pornographic cards on Mr. Walensky's desk. Mr. Walensky also denied having called Mrs. Shuart a "fat cow," "fat whale," "fat bitch" and "Shamu." A.E. and J.N. testified that Mr. Walensky called Mrs. Shuart these names in front of other students. Mr. Walensky further denied having food delivered through the back window of the classroom. A.E. and J.N. testified that Mr. Walensky had food delivered through the back window.

In addition, Mr. Walensky claimed that he reported Mrs. Shuart's conduct to Mr. Garfole, but that Mr. Garfole would not listen to him. He also claimed that the day before the District dismissed him, A.E. gave him a tape recording of Mrs. Shuart that allegedly proved Mrs. Shuart's misconduct toward A.E. The witnesses kept mentioning this tape recording at the hearing, but the District did not produce it. If this tape recording actually proved the serious allegations against Mrs. Shuart, the District should have produced it.

The District's own witnesses contradicted much of Mr. Walensky's testimony. Due to these contradictions and due to Mr. Walensky's demeanor on the witness stand, it is impossible for the undersigned to believe any of his testimony. In addition, there was no testimony whatsoever from Mr. Garfole, Mr. Persi or any teacher or administrator from the District to corroborate any of Mr. Walensky's testimony. The District also did not produce the alleged tape recording. In view of the allegations made against Mrs. Shuart in this case, it is incomprehensible to the undersigned that the District did not produce such evidence. I, therefore, FIND, that Mr. Walensky's testimony is not credible.

A.E. testified that Mrs. Shuart would call him over to her side of the classroom and ask him to massage her. He would massage her on her side of the classroom while she was sitting at her desk. He massaged her shoulders and shoulder blades. After he massaged her, Mrs. Shuart would take his hands and pull them down to the tops of her breasts. A.E. also testified that Mrs. Shuart would pinch his buttocks or crotch area and that she touched his crotch area several times. Mrs. Shuart also would sit on his lap, rub his thigh with her left hand and grab his penis and testicles. There were other people in the classroom at the time, including Mrs. Shuart's students and Mr. Walensky, who saw what was happening. The District produced none of those students to testify at the hearing.

A.E. also testified that he and Mrs. Shuart talked about going to a hotel. She also would make comments about his body and said that he "had a good bulge." With respect to the tape recording of Mrs. Shuart, A.E. testified that he made the tape to have proof of what was going on in the classroom. He played the tape for Mr. Walensky. Mr. Walensky was upset about the tape recording because Mr. Walensky's voice was on it and because it sounded like a party was going on in the classroom. Curiously, A.E. did not say that Mr. Walensky was upset about the tape recording because it proved Mrs. Shuart's alleged conduct. A.E. also did not say that he no longer had the tape recording. Again, it is incomprehensible that the District made no attempt to produce it at the hearing if, in fact, it proved the allegations against Mrs. Shuart.

With respect to the incident described by Ms. Sova, A.E. denied using profanity towards the teachers. He also denied being suspended for that incident. A.E. admitted that the hallway in front of the classroom was a busy place and that other students and teachers would come into the classroom. Contrary to Mr. Walensky's testimony, A.E. also stated that J.N. taught Mr. Walensky's class once and that Mr. Walensky's students, including A.E., threw spitballs over the divider.

A.E. also admitted that he might have said to Mrs. Shuart that he was going to tell Mr. Persi what was happening. Contrary to Mr. Walensky's testimony, A.E. also stated that Mr. Walensky told him that Mrs. Shuart had it in for Mr. Walensky, she was trying to get him fired and she had complained to Mr. Garfole about him. A.E. also saw the problems between Mrs. Shuart and Mr. Walensky and he knew about a month before he made the allegations about Mrs. Shuart that Mr. Walensky would not be coming back the next year.

A.E. also admitted that Mr. Persi threatened that if he did not tell what was going on, he would take A.E. to Court and they would call the Division of Youth and Family Service. A.E. later fled from New Jersey to avoid testifying before a Grand Jury. He came back to New Jersey after his mother told him that the criminal case against Mrs. Shuart was not going any further.

P.F. testified that Mrs. Shuart would call A.E. over to her side of the classroom and ask him to massage her. Contrary to A.E.'s testimony, P.F. testified that the massages took place towards the center of the room by the door where all of them could see, that sometimes Mrs. Shuart was standing and that A.E. would massage her back and shoulders and sometimes she would pull down his hands to her breasts. On one occasion, he and most of the class observed Mrs. Shuart rub A.E.'s penis until he was erect. A.E. never mentioned this in his testimony. Mrs. Shuart also knocked on A.E.'s penis with a closed fist and said, "You're not a boy, you're a man." P.F. also testified that he heard A.E. and Mrs. Shuart having sexually oriented discussions. Mrs. Shuart would ask A.E. to sit on her lap and she would feel his chest. This always happened in the middle of the classroom and sometimes on her side. Again, A.E. never mentioned this in his testimony.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

The District charges Mrs. Shuart with unbecoming conduct. The District bears the burden of proving the charges of unbecoming conduct by a preponderance of the credible evidence. In re Tenure Hearing of Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 12 (App. Div. 1974). In determining whether this standard of proof has been met, the credibility of the witnesses must be weighed. Credibility contemplates an overall assessment of a witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and manner in which it hangs together with other evidence. In the Matter of Schulman, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (BDS) 16, 27, citing Carbo v. United States, 314 F. 2d 718 (9th Cir. 1963). The term has been defined as testimony that must proceed from the mouth of the credible witness and must be such as our common experience, knowledge and common observation can accept as probable under the circumstances.

Credibility does not depend on the number of witnesses and the finder of fact is not bound to believe the testimony of any witness. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Boyd, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 445, 451, citing In Re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514 (1950). The finder of fact may accept or reject, in whole or in part, the testimony of any witness. Id. at 452, citing Application of Howard Sav. Bank, 143 N.J.Super. 1 (App. Div. 1976).

In this matter, the District's case against Mrs. Shuart is based primarily upon the testimony of Mr. Walensky, A.E. and P.F. The undersigned already has found Mr. Walensky's testimony not credible. In evaluating the testimony of A.E. and P.F., it is clear to the undersigned that their testimony also is not credible. Their testimony is irrational and inconsistent and it is contradicted by each other's testimony and/or by other evidence presented at the hearing. In fact, A.E.'s testimony is so unbelievable that it is understandable why he fled from New Jersey to avoid testifying before a Grand Jury.

The undersigned also looked very closely at the testimony of the witnesses who had no personal interest in this litigation, including those witnesses produced by the District. Those witnesses corroborated Mrs. Shuart's testimony. They also painted a true picture of Mr. Walensky as an incompetent teacher and of A.E. as a student whom the District allowed to get away with improper conduct, including improper sexual behavior toward Mrs. Shuart and toward other female teachers and students. The only thing the District did, despite Mrs. Shuart's numerous complaints, was install a divider in the classroom. It never disciplined A.E. for his conduct toward Mrs. Shuart and it did nothing to prevent his improper behavior toward her.

In addition, as mentioned previously, the District could have and should have produced other evidence to prove the allegations against Mrs. Shuart. Their failure to do so leads the undersigned to conclude that witnesses, such as Mr. Persi, Mr. Garfole and other administrators whose names were mentioned throughout the hearing, could not corroborate the evidence presented by the District or they had evidence favorable to Mrs. Shuart. Again, with such serious charges, the District should have done everything possible to prove the allegations against Mrs. Shuart. If the charges had any merit to begin with, this should have been done.

Finally, Mrs. Shuart had a spotless record in the District. She never had a poor evaluation and the District never disciplined her for any reason. She was an exemplary teacher with no record of any improper conduct whatsoever. She also taught in a classroom that indisputably was a "fishbowl." Given the nature and location of this classroom, it is impossible to believe that Mrs. Shuart could have engaged in the conduct the District alleges she engaged in.

For all of the reasons set forth herein, I FIND and CONCLUDE that Mrs. Shuart did not engage in unbecoming conduct.

ORDER

I, therefore, ORDER that the tenure charges filed against Mrs. Shuart be and hereby are DISMISSED. I further ORDER the District to reinstate Mrs. Shuart to her teaching position and to pay her any and all benefits to which she would have been entitled if the District had not suspended her without pay, including, but not limited to, any and all back pay.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the Judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF MICHELE SHUART,	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOROUGH OF ELMWOOD PARK,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of the Board and replies thereto of respondent were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board excepts to the credibility determinations of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), averring that such determinations are not supported by the record and are based upon factual inaccuracies. In this connection it argues that the ALJ accepts respondent's testimony as true, notwithstanding numerous conflicts in testimony among respondent and the witnesses testifying on her behalf, while, at the same time, "the greater [consistency] of the three sequestered witnesses on behalf of the District is not even discussed by the ALJ." (Board's Exceptions at p.1) The Board points out as being significant in this matter that despite respondent's testimony that she repeatedly reported the conduct of A.E. to administrators who failed to act on her reports, respondent never contacted A.E.'s parents; she never sent him to the principal; and she never put any of her alleged reports to administrators in writing. It, therefore, contends that "[t]he lack of one writing of this nature and any disciplinary sanctions by respondent is sufficient to discredit all respondent's testimony that she reported to anyone." (Id. at p. 3)

The Board further asserts that the ALJ crossed the line between judge and advocate and "otherwise exhibited an intemperate demeanor in this action indicative of having prejudged its conclusion. (Id. at p. 6) As examples of this contention, the Board offers selected transcript citations where it avers: the judge questioned witnesses in a manner which was only appropriate for respondent's counsel; she argued with petitioner's attorney; she frustrated the cross-examination of Witness Dawn Sova by petitioner's counsel; she improperly allowed the production of A.E.'s pupil records, over the objection of petitioner's counsel, without a court order; she drew generic conclusions about A.E.'s classification and drew several improper conclusions about classified students; and she improperly sought to rehabilitate respondent's witness. The Board argues that, as a result of this obvious error, the Commissioner must make an independent determination on all the charges and the credibility of all of the witnesses.

In response, respondent contends that the Board's assertions with respect to the ALJ's credibility determinations are without foundation. Respondent advances that her June 18, 1996 brief and July 9, 1996 letter responding to the Board's submission to the ALJ, set forth specific transcript references clearly "demonstrating the lack of credibility of the [Board's] witnesses." (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at p. 1) She further maintains that the Board's contentions that the ALJ in this matter exhibited bias or advocacy and displayed an intemperate demeanor are similarly misplaced and are, in actuality, "merely attempts to bolster the general argument that credibility findings in the Court's decision are not supported by the record." (Id. at p. 2) Respondent argues that "[a] review of the transcript puts into focus the very apparent weakness of all [of petitioner's] Exceptions." (Id. at p. 5) Respondent urges that her unblemished record in the District and the total lack of evidence to support the Board's charges require the Commissioner to adopt the decision of the ALJ.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which included the transcripts of the three days of hearings, the Commissioner agrees with the conclusion of the ALJ that the within Board has not met its burden of proof with regard to the instant charges against respondent. Although this matter turns to a great extent on the credibility of witnesses and the weighing of evidence, the Commissioner is satisfied, based on the record as a whole, that the ALJ considered all testimony and weighed it according to the credibility of the witnesses and the plausibility of its content. The Commissioner finds no basis in the record for overturning the credibility assessments of the ALJ who, in addition to hearing all of the proffered testimony, had the benefit of observing the witnesses firsthand. As such, the Commissioner concurs that the Board has failed to establish by a preponderance of the credible evidence that respondent has engaged in unbecoming conduct, and the Board's exception arguments to the contrary are found to be without merit. With respect to the Board's protestation that the within ALJ crossed the line between judge and advocate and "otherwise exhibited an intemperate demeanor in this action indicative of having prejudged its conclusion" (Board's Exceptions at p. 6), the Commissioner finds and determines that a comprehensive reading of the hearing transcripts clearly belies such an assertion.*

The Commissioner initially emphasizes that he is assiduous in his belief that educators, by virtue of the unique position they occupy, must be held to an enhanced standard of

* Regarding the Board's exception argument that the records of A.E. were inadmissible in the within matter, the Commissioner finds that the ALJ's authority to access these records and the limited purpose for which such records were utilized were succinctly addressed by the ALJ in hearing transcripts. (See Tr. 2 (3/5/96) at pp. 112-117.)

behavior and must continually realize that they serve as role models to students and the community. When it is established that these individuals have failed to fulfill their obligations and violated the public trust, it is imperative, to assure the continued confidence of the students and the community in the state's educational system, that they be subject to appropriate penalty for their behavior. While fully mindful of the importance of these considerations, the Commissioner is also cognizant that teaching staff members should not be placed in the position of having to defend themselves against unwarranted charges. In the instant matter, the Commissioner observes that the Board brought 15 extremely serious charges of misconduct against respondent, while the totality of factual evidence it advanced in support of these charges was woefully deficient. As aptly stated by the ALJ:

> the District's case against Mrs. Shuart is based primarily upon the testimony of Mr. Walensky, A.E. and P.F. The undersigned already has found Mr. Walensky's testimony not credible. In evaluating the testimony of A.E. and P.F., it is clear to the undersigned that their testimony also is not credible. Their testimony is irrational and inconsistent and it is contradicted by each other's testimony and/or by other evidence presented at the hearing. In fact, A.E.'s testimony is so unbelievable that it is understandable why he fled from New Jersey to avoid testifying before a Grand Jury.
> The undersigned also looked very closely at the testimony of the witnesses who had no personal interest in this litigation, including those witnesses produced by the District. Those witnesses corroborated Mrs. Shuart's testimony. They also painted a true picture of Mr. Walensky as an incompetent teacher and of A.E. as a student whom the District allowed to get away with improper conduct, including improper sexual behavior toward Mrs. Shuart and toward other female teachers and students. The only thing the District did, despite Mrs. Shuart's numerous complaints, was install a divider in the classroom. It never disciplined A.E. for his conduct toward Mrs. Shuart and it did nothing to prevent his improper behavior toward her.
> In addition, as mentioned previously, the District could have and should have produced other evidence to prove the allegations against Mrs. Shuart. Their failure to do so leads the undersigned to > conclude that witnesses, such as Mr. Persi, Mr. Garfole and other administrators whose names were mentioned throughout the hearing, could not corroborate the evidence presented by the District or they had evidence favorable to Mrs. Shuart. Again, with such serious charges, the District should have done everything possible to prove the allegations against Mrs. Shuart. If the charges had any merit to begin with, this should have been done. (Initial Decision at p. 19)

Moreover, the Commissioner finds it particularly troubling that the Board, by its own admission, presented no evidence whatsoever to substantiate six of the 15 charges it had advanced. As such, the Commissioner finds and concludes that the paucity of factual evidence in support of the charges in this matter necessitates their dismissal.

In light of this legally mandated result, the Commissioner is compelled to remind this Board that prior to instituting tenure charges against a teaching staff member, a board, which must maintain the public trust and is accountable for the judicious use of public funds in the conduct of its activities, must be cognizant of, and pragmatic with respect to, the cost and consequences of advancing such charges in the face of insufficient evidence available to support them.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons clearly articulated therein. The within tenure charges are hereby dismissed and the Commissioner directs that respondent be reinstated to her position and credited with all salary and emoluments due her as a result of this decision.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF MICHELE SHUART,	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOROUGH OF ELMWOOD PARK,	:	DECISION
BERGEN COUNTY.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, November 1, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Glenn T. Leonard, Esq.

For the Respondent-Respondent, Wills, O'Neill & Mellk (Patricia L. Ratner, Esq., of Counsel)

After a thorough review of the record, including the transcripts of the hearings held in the Office of Administrative Law in this matter, we affirm the decision of the Commissioner of Education for the reasons expressed therein. We fully agree with the Administrative Law Judge and the Commissioner that the Elmwood Park Board has failed to meet its burden of demonstrating the truthfulness of the tenure charges certified against respondent by a preponderance of the credible evidence.

Moreover, in view of our concurrence with the Commissioner's finding that the testimony presented against respondent by Jeffrey K. Walensky, a teaching staff member formerly employed by the Elmwood Park Board, was not credible, and given the serious allegations made against Walensky during the hearing, including testimony that he had shown a pornographic magazine to students in class, we direct that this matter be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for any action against Walensky it deems appropriate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6. See Arthur Hansen v. Board of Education of the Township of Nutley, decided by the State Board, March 7, 1990, request for reconsideration denied, May 2, 1990.[1]

IN THE MATTER OF	:
EDWARD VANDERBECK, OAKLAND	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
BERGEN COUNTY.	:

IN THE MATTER OF	:
EDWARD VANDERBECK, OAKLAND	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION

Upon a Motion for Reconsideration filed before the Commissioner of Education on October 11, 1996, this matter again comes before the Commissioner in order that he may review the comments offered on behalf of Mr. Vanderbeck in response to the School Ethics Commission's recommendation that he be reprimanded for having violated the School Ethics Act. Although such comments were received outside the 13-day submission period provided by the Commission, in light of his counsel's certification that the lateness was "[d]ue to an error in [his] office " rather than any oversight on the part of Mr. Vanderbeck (Sayovitz Certification at pp. 1, 2), and mindful that it may be "contrary to the interests of justice" to deprive Mr. Vanderbeck of the opportunity to consider the arguments submitted on his behalf "because the law firm inadvertently failed to fulfill its responsibilities toward him," Arthur Krupp v. Board of Education of the Union County Regional High School District No. 1, Union County, 1991 S.L.D. 2568, 2569, the Commissioner granted the Motion for Reconsideration.

In that a good portion of the comments submitted on behalf of Mr. Vanderbeck recapitulate the material facts and argue against a finding that, under the particular circumstances of this matter, no violation of the Act should be found, the Commissioner, once again underscores that he is without jurisdiction to review the factual findings and conclusions of law of the Commission. Rather, where a violation is found, the Commissioner may only review the Commission's recommended penalty and "shall then act on the commission's recommendation regarding the sanction." N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29c. Accordingly, comments as to the Commission's recommended sanction are reviewed below.

Mr. Vanderbeck argues that, in the event a violation of the School Ethics Act is found, the imposition of any penalty upon him is excessive, in that the violation is de minimus. (Vanderbeck's Comment at p. 5) Here, Mr. Vanderbeck urges the Commissioner to note that his "single action" was a statement made after negotiations were completed. (Id.) The statement, continues Mr. Vanderbeck, was made against the interest of his spouse and he gained nothing. Moreover, the statement "was made in clear view of the public, guaranteeing that no undue influence could be achieved or perceived." (Id.) Mr. Vanderbeck reasons that "[t]he Commission's dismissal of the allegations that he attempted to influence the negotiation process is clear evidence of the Commission's own determination that [his] public action was immaterial." (Id.)

Mr. Vanderbeck further argues that it is unreasonable to impose a sanction upon him, since the Commission, if it wishes to announce a new, more stringent rule, must do so prospectively. (Id. at p. 6) Mr. Vanderbeck warrants that > it has been established in earlier decisions of the School Ethics Commission, the Commissioner, and our courts, that when a rule of law is initially announced, it must be applied prospectively. Interested parties must be given sufficient notice of new rules and should not be unfairly punished by retroactive application. (Id.)

Thus, Mr. Vanderbeck maintains that he "should not be punished for failing to anticipate more stringent interpretations of the Act." (Id.)

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner finds Mr. Vanderbeck's arguments as to the Commission's recommended sanction to be unpersuasive. Inasmuch as Mr. Vanderbeck admitted in testimony before the School Ethics Commission that he participated in the discussion of the collective bargaining agreement prior to the vote on the agreement (Commission's Decision of September 30, 1996, at p. 2), and in view of the Commission's published advisories relative to a board member's participation in negotiations where an immediate family member is a member of the local bargaining unit, as well as the broad language of the prohibiting statute (N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24c), the Commissioner accepts the Commission's recommendation that a reprimand is an appropriate sanction in this matter. Moreover, Mr. Vanderbeck's assertion that he was without notice of "the rule" applied by the Commission is belied by the record, notwithstanding that he may have been uncertain of the precise scope of the prohibitions set forth by the Commission.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Edward Vanderbeck be reprimanded as a school official to have violated the School Ethics Act.

Stephen E. Klausner, Esq., for respondent (Klausner and Hunter, attorneys)

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

This matter arises from charges brought by the petitioner, Holmdel Township Board of Education, against respondent Dorothy Theobald, on May 1, 1996, resulting in her suspension without pay during the pendency of the matter before the Commissioner of Education. The matter transmitted to and received by the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on July 23, 1996, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On August 12, 1996, the respondent submitted her resignation as a teacher for the Holmdel Township Board of Education, and the petitioner accepted her resignation at its regular meeting of August 21, 1996, effective immediately.

I CONCLUDE that because respondent has resigned as a teacher for the Holmdel Township Board of Education and, therefore, abandoned her tenure, this matter shall be DISMISSED, subject to the Board of Education's compliance with N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.5.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

OF DOROTHY THEOBALD, BOARD OF	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF	:	DECISION
HOLMDEL, MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner determines to adopt the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) dismissing the within tenure matter, inasmuch as respondent has resigned her position as a teacher at the Holmdel Township School District and has, therefore, abandoned her tenure acquired with the Board.

The Commissioner is mindful that the within tenure charges for unbecoming conduct and insubordination certified by the Board were brought pursuant to respondent's absence from the District and her attendance at the National Hockey Festival in California in November 1995 for three days, without prior administrative approval. (Board's Statement of Evidence at p. 1) The charges were further certified pursuant to respondent's participation as a coach in an Easter Field Hockey Tournament in the Netherlands from April 2, 1996 through April 11, 1996, notwithstanding that the administration denied her request for unpaid leave, by creating a "medical crisis" which ostensibly required a two-to-three-week recovery period during that time in April 1996. (Id. at p. 4)

By affidavit prepared on or about May 17, 1996, respondent replied that the former incident, in November 1995, was a "miscommunication" between herself and district administrators.

(Theobald Affidavit at p. 3) Respondent did not deny that she traveled to England on April 1, 1996 and did eventually participate in the Netherlands Tournament as a coach. (Id. at p. 8) Respondent acknowledged that she understood that she would have to abide by the administration's denial of her request for unpaid leave to be used in April 1996 to attend the tournament in the Netherlands. Nevertheless, she wished to be actively involved in such tournaments. (Id. at p. 5) She affirmed that she had been under a physician's care for months regarding knee problems and her condition worsened to the extent that an orthopedic surgeon strongly recommended in March 1996 that she immediately have surgery which would coincide, in part, with the Easter break. (Id. at p. 6) Inasmuch as respondent's physician provided clearance for her to travel abroad, with restrictions, but did not provide her with immediate clearance to return to work as a physical education teacher, respondent participated as a coach in the tournament in the Netherlands.

By letter, dated August 12, 1996, to the Superintendent of Schools, respondent resigned as teacher for the Board. The Board accepted the resignation, to be effective immediately, at its August 21, 1996 meeting.

Accordingly, in that respondent has unilaterally resigned prior to conclusion of tenure proceedings, the Commissioner adopts the recommendation of the ALJ that this matter be dismissed. The Commissioner underscores that such dismissal is subject to the Board's compliance with N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.5, which requires, upon the resignation of a teaching staff member accused of unbecoming conduct prior to the conclusion of the tenure proceedings, that the chief school administrator notify the State Board of Examiners of the alleged conduct, and that the district cooperate should the Board elect to take action against the staff member's certificate.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE LOWER CAMDEN COUNTY REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT,

No appearance by or for R.J., petitioner

Thomas M. Keeley-Cain, Esq., for intervenor B.J.

Robert E. Birsner, Esq., for respondent (Maressa, Goldstein, Birsner, Patterson, Drinkwater & Oddo, attorneys)

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

This matter was opened on February 13, 1996, when R.J., petitioner, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education challenging a decision of the Lower Camden County Regional District Board of Education to exclude from attendance A.B., minor daughter of R.J.

On March 18, 1996, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes wrote to R.J. and the Board's counsel stating, among other things,

> [I]t appears that Petitioner has admittedly continued to retain guardianship and support her child who resides in Sicklerville, notwithstanding that Petitioner resides in Philadelphia. Therefore, the Petitioner will be given the opportunity to submit to the Commissioner written arguments as to why this matter should not be dismissed for failure on the face of the petition to warrant entitlement under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.
> Consequently, we ask that Petitioner submit a response to this letter within ten (10) days of its receipt and that the Board file any reply submission it wishes to make within five (5) days of receipt of Petitioner's submission.

At about the same time, Thomas M. Keeley-Cain, Esq., filed papers on behalf of B.J., mother of R.J. and grandmother of A.B. B.J. is the person with whom A.B. resides. In support of her request to intervene, B.J. provided a certification by R.J. signed but not sworn, a copy of a residential lease for premises on H. Boulevard in Winslow Township and a sworn statement of her own in support of her motion to intervene.

On March 15, 1996, the Board filed an answer to the petition and a notice of motion for summary judgment with attached exhibits.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13.

A telephone prehearing conference was arranged, but R.J. could not be reached. On May 17, 1996, I conferred with Robert E. Birsner, Esq., counsel for the Regional School Board and Thomas M. Keeley-Cain, Esq., representing B.J. By letter dated May 20, 1996, I advised counsel that the matter was set down for hearing on Thursday, September 19, 1996; that B.J.'s motion for leave to participate was granted and that the Board's motion to dismiss would be held in abeyance until September 19, 1996. On the same day, I wrote to R.J. at two different addresses advising that the matter would be heard on September 19, 1996. In addition, R.J. was directed to advise my chambers of her present address and telephone number promptly. There is no record of her doing so. R.J. was also advised that she could represent herself at hearing or could be represented by an attorney admitted to practice in New Jersey. If she engaged an attorney, the attorney was advised to file her or his appearance promptly. The hearing would not be delayed if R.J. hired counsel late. R.J. was also advised of the Board's motion to dismiss her case and that the motion would not be decided before hearing on September 19, 1996. However, R.J. was warned that failure to appear on September 19, 1996, could lead to the Board's motion being granted. Finally, R.J. was advised that B.J. was granted leave to participate in the case but that B.J.'s participation did not affect in anyway R.J.'s responsibility to appear and to present her case.

On September 19, 1996, counsel for the participant and counsel for the Board appeared. Three persons also appeared who were prepared to testify for the Board. The participant's counsel represented that R.J. or B.J. or both had telephoned his office that morning at approximately 9 a.m. to ask for directions to the OAL facility.

With the kind indulgence of counsel, I waited until 10:30 a.m. before opening the record. It is OAL policy to wait thirty minutes beyond a stated hearing time before taking dispositive action. Because of the important interest present in this case, I relaxed and enlarged the waiting time.

Upon opening of the record, the Board's counsel made a brief argument in support of his motion. He pointed to letters from the Department of Education and this judge advising the petitioner of her responsibilities if she wished to proceed. In a letter written by R.J., she admits financial support of A.B. Although the Board is unable to ascertain a per diem per pupil cost at this time, it seeks back tuition from R.J.

No one spoke in opposition to the motion.

DETERMINATION

The Petition

Inasmuch as R.J. made no effort to contact the judge until the time and date of scheduled hearing despite the fact that she had adequate notice, I FIND that R.J. has been dilatory in prosecuting her appeal and unresponsive to communications from the Department of Education and this judge. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that R.J. has abandoned prosecution of her petition and has failed to show good cause why that failure should be excused.

The petition of appeal is DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

Tuition Reimbursement

The respondent Board asserts that the petitioner was advised of its decision to exclude A.B. from school on January 23, 1996. The Board did not receive a petition of appeal from the petitioner, but by letter dated February 22, 1996, received a copy of the letter petition from the New Jersey Department of Education. On March 11, 1996, the Board filed an answer through counsel. At the same time, the Board cross claimed for tuition in the amount of $16,588, less a per diem for the remaining school days in the 1995-96 school year subsequent to the exclusion of A.B. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)2.

When the Department of Education determined that R.J.'s letter constituted a petition of appeal, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 came into play. The statute provides, among other things, that no child shall be removed from school during the 21-day period in which the parent may contest the board's decision or during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. The Board complied and A.B. was not excluded while this matter pended.

The statute also provides that the Commissioner shall assess the parent or guardian tuition for the pupil pro rated to the time of the pupil's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district if, in the Commissioner's judgment, the evidence does not support the parent's or guardian's claim. The tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the Commissioner are enforced.

The dismissal of this petition had the same effect as if testimonial and other evidence were taken and, after making findings of fact and conclusions of law, the judge ruled for the Board. Therefore, the Board is entitled to assert its claim for tuition reimbursement.

During its presentation on September 19, 1996, the Board represented that it has been unable to ascertain the applicable per diem pupil cost at this time. In order to protect its interests herein, the Board shall file with the Commissioner of Education a certification of back tuition based on the best estimate it currently has of per diem pupil costs in the applicable school years. It may then amend that certification when final data are available. I do not retain jurisdiction over this issue. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions from the parties, nor explanation for nonappearance from petitioner, has been filed.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge for the reasons expressed therein that judgment must be entered against petitioner for failure to prosecute. The Commissioner further finds that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1., A.B. is not entitled to a free public education in the respondent School District.

Accordingly, the initial decision is affirmed and this matter is hereby dismissed. Petitioner is directed to remit to the Board the amount owed for the period of A.B.'s illegal attendance in the public schools of the Lower Camden County Regional School District as calculated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

The record and initial decision incorporating a joint Stipulation of Settlement and Consent Order rendered by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.

The Commissioner is unable to accept the written settlement agreement in its present form in that the language of such agreement, on its face, (Term 7) reveals that the settlement may not have been approved by the Board. Such language, making settlement contingent upon approval by the Board while expressly reserving the rights of both parties to pursue the matter further in the event of Board disapproval, reveals that the settlement is not "fully dispositive of all issues in controversy" as required under N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1(b). In that the Commissioner's approval would render this agreement a final decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1(c)2, the Commissioner finds that accord to its terms by all necessary entities must be accomplished prior to the Commissioner's approval of the settlement.

Accordingly, this matter is remanded to the OAL for revision of the settlement terms or other appropriate action in light of this decision.

Petitioner challenged the Board's actions placing him on mandatory paid administrative leave and transferring him from a high school principalship to a middle school principalship.

In light of testimony of witnesses and evidence in the record, the ALJ found that the Board did not act arbitrarily, capriciously or in bad faith in placing petitioner on mandatory leave. The Board had acted because of an accumulation of too many negative situations in the high school. Moreover, the Board had the absolute right to transfer petitioner to another principalship as long as it did not reduce his salary or do so in bad faith. Moreover, when a board acts within its authority, its decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be upset unless there is an affirmative showing that the decision was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. ALJ concluded that the Board had not acted arbitrarily, capriciously or in bad faith in transferring him.

Citing Williams, Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that the Board's actions were not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Commissioner found neither the Board nor its superintendent acted contrary to lawful authority in transferring petitioner to the middle school. Petition was dismissed.

The parties stipulated the following which I FIND as FACTS in this case:

1. The Board transferred Mr. Seyfarth from Principal of the High School to Principal of the Middle School, effective August 1, 1995.

2. Mr. Seyfarth's base salary remained the same.

3. Mr. Seyfarth held the position of Principal of the High School for over 20 years.

4. Mr. Seyfarth is now the Principal of the Middle School that is a kindergarten through 8th grade school.

5. No criminal, administrative or civil charges of any type have been brought against Mr. Seyfarth as a result of the criminal matter involving Jeanette Nixon (Mrs. Nixon).

6. When Mr. Seyfarth returned to work in August 1995, he found on his desk a memorandum drafted by Board President, Steven Montovano (Mr. Montovano). Mr. Montovano had hand delivered that memorandum to each Board member along with a copy of a press release prepared by Board Attorney Anthony P. Sciarrillo, Esq. (Board Attorney Sciarrillo).

7. Added to the hearing record as Exhibit C-1 are true and accurate transcripts of proceedings before the Honorable Edward W. Beglin, Jr., on March 17 and 24, 1995, in Cranford Board of Education v. Jeanette Flora Nixon, bearing Docket No. UNN-L-1610-95 in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Union County. These transcripts are introduced solely as evidence that the proceedings occurred, and not for the purpose of proving the truth or falsity of any of the underlying allegations in that matter.

DISCUSSION OF OTHER EVIDENCE AND TESTIMONY

The Cranford School District (the District) is a kindergarten through 12th grade, Type II school district located in Union County, New Jersey. Mr. Seyfarth served as Assistant Principal of the High School from December 1973 to July 1974, as Acting Principal from July 1974 to October 1974 and as Principal from October 1974 to August 1, 1995.

From 1977 to 1992, Mr. Seyfarth received evaluations from Superintendent Robert Paul (Dr. Paul). Mr. Seyfarth described his relationship with Dr. Paul as "interesting." According to Mr. Seyfarth, he and Dr. Paul "used to go at it a lot." They were two very strong personalities and Dr. Paul challenged his thinking. Dr. Paul also made Mr. Seyfarth do his homework and they frequently engaged in "verbal gymnastics."

There is little doubt that Dr. Paul viewed Mr. Seyfarth as an outstanding administrator. It is clear, however, that Dr. Paul had many problems with Mr. Seyfarth's intimidating administrative style. Mr. Seyfarth reacted to adverse situations by losing control, by yelling and screaming and by threatening to take legal action. In an evaluation in 1988, Dr. Paul wrote:

> Administrative Style: This is perhaps the most serious area of concern. As I have told you countless times in the past, I expect the high school principal to be an educational and administrative statesman. I do not expect him to fly off the handle, to yell at or intimidate people, to threaten people with legal action, and to do all the things I have so consistently found you doing over the years.

As a result of this evaluation, the Board voted to withhold Mr. Seyfarth's increment for the coming school year. A subsequent Board later restored the withheld increment.

Witnesses who testified at the hearing echoed Dr. Paul's comments about Mr. Seyfarth's intimidating administrative style. Of great significance to the undersigned was the testimony of 3 outstanding High School teachers and the testimony of Hanna Kit Ellenbogen, Esq. (Ms. Ellenbogen), from the Education Law Center, Inc. One of the teachers, Eileen Dachnowicz (Ms. Dachnowicz), has taught English at the High School for 17 years. In 1993, the Board awarded her its first "Cranford Teacher of the Year Award." She has received 3 national endowments to go to Harvard, Cornell and Oxford. She also received the Princeton University Citation for Teaching Excellence, a Rand Foundation citation for improving teaching and a Rutger's University citation for influencing young women. Several of her students have won the national competition for the National Endowment of Younger Scholars. The teachers are Richard Phillips (Mr. Phillips), who has taught Business Education at the High School for 17 years, and Diane D. Connelly (Ms. Connelly), who has taught Mathematics at the High School for 17 years. These witnesses were very impressive and forthright. They had nothing to gain, everything to lose and no ax to grind with Mr. Seyfarth. Along with Ms. Ellenbogen, they corroborated much of the testimony of Superintendent Emalene Fargnoli-Renna, Ed.D. (Dr. Renna).

Prior to 1993, a Faculty Advisory Committee (FAC) had been active at the High School. The FAC's purpose was to settle issues in the High School in a harmonious way and to keep lines of communication open between the faculty and the administration. Its members consisted of faculty members who had been at the High School for a long time and of Mr. Seyfarth and the Vice-Principals. It ceased to be active because the faculty members saw that Mr. Seyfarth's attitude toward it and his combative manner toward the faculty members on it precluded the FAC from accomplishing anything. Ms. Connelly described the FAC as a "waste of time. It wasn't serving any purpose. There was no movement." As Ms. Dachnowicz described, in pertinent part:

> [M]r. Seyfarth was highly combative, so that the person who presented the concern got yelled at, and the concern was vetoed. As a result, everybody else clammed up. In essence, it was an intimidating tone, and people really didn't want to belong to the FAC.

As Mr. Phillips described, in pertinent part:

> [W]e would go to these meetings and they would literally become screaming matches. We would bring up problems and nothing was ever accomplished, so it was literally like beating your head against the wall. [Mr. Seyfarth] would become very agitated and he would just take over the meeting, and he would not really let anyone speak, or the person would be put down to such an extent that no one else wanted to speak.

In the Spring of 1993, the faculty had an interest in reactivating the FAC because of serious problems occurring at the High School at the time. For example, there was a serious discipline crisis. The faculty felt that the administration of discipline was not as effective or efficient as it should be. The Vice-Principals, Frederick D'Antoni (Mr. D'Antoni) and Joan C. Wilde (Ms. Wilde), were not following the student code of conduct and they engaged in selective and "paper" discipline. There also were problems with teacher confidentiality and credibility. The administration openly discussed teachers and asked them what they had done to precipitate a disciplinary problem. Teacher morale also was very low. Teachers felt powerless and they had no way to communicate with the administration about their concerns.

Dr. Renna became the new Superintendent effective July 1, 1993. Dr. Renna endorsed synergy and change. She did not agree with a top-down management structure and she intended to implement her own policies and the Board's desire for a more open climate and more progressive educational improvements. She also intended to focus her energies immediately on changing and strengthening the middle school concept in the District. In the fall of 1993, Dr. Renna advised all administrators, including Mr. Seyfarth, of her plans to implement systemic change in the District. Mr. Seyfarth testified that he knew at the time that personnel changes might be a part of that process. In fact, during her first year as Superintendent, Dr. Renna made many personnel changes.

Prior to the time Dr. Renna became Superintendent, certain faculty members had met with her to discuss reactivating the FAC. Dr. Renna was very open and very receptive to change and she has a shared decision-making style. Mr. Seyfarth, on the other hand, has an authoritarian style. He alone made decisions and the faculty had to follow them. He regarded suggestions as criticism. As a result, he reacted to suggestions in a hostile manner. Dr. Renna knew of Mr. Seyfarth's authoritarian style, but she believed that he would work with her to make changes at the High School in accordance with her philosophies.

The FAC was reactivated in June 1993. In the fall of 1993, the FAC decided to conduct a poll of the various departments in the High School to determine what concerns the teachers had. The FAC found that the teachers who responded were very concerned about the lack of morale, the feeling of powerlessness, the lack of communication with the administration, the discipline problems and the facilities and staff development.

As a result of the poll, the FAC decided to conduct a survey of the entire faculty and staff. The FAC prepared a questionnaire and submitted it to the administration. It then distributed the questionnaire to 109 faculty and staff members. The FAC received 88 responses. Those who responded overwhelmingly substantiated the problems at the High School and the concerns expressed by the teachers previously polled by the FAC. A total of 87% of those responding agreed that teacher morale was a major concern. Other areas of significant concern were the administration's pattern of undermining teachers' authority in student disciplinary matters and the lack of staff professional development programming. In December 1993, Mr. Phillips submitted the survey results to Mr. Seyfarth. Mr. Phillips described Mr. Seyfarth's response as follows, in pertinent part:

> [I] handed him the results and I told him what they were. He proceeded to put them on the table and...he lost his temper completely. And he told me that as far as he was concerned, the survey was invalid...And he also indicated that this was a survey compiled specifically to make him look bad. I responded that the...purpose of the survey was to bring matters to light so that we could both, administration and staff, work on these problems to try to resolve them. And he did not perceive it in this way. He took it as a personal affront and that we had done this specifically to make him look bad. He was standing up. His voice became very loud. He turned red, and he did not stop literally screaming at me the entire time I was there.

In addition, at the first FAC meeting following Mr. Seyfarth's receipt of the survey results, he yelled at Ms. Dachnowicz for several minutes. He called her unprofessional and irresponsible. He also accused the FAC of being a force intended to drive disunity.

The FAC also submitted the survey results to Dr. Renna. She viewed the results as a "bombshell" that took her "majorly aback." Dr. Renna is a strong proponent of professional development. Prior to receiving the results of the survey, she had arranged for a professional consultant to work with all staff to avoid top-down management. In light of the survey results, she implemented additional programming to help administrators implement her shared decision-making policy and to address the problems identified in the survey. She also spoke to Mr. Seyfarth and offered him her assistance in helping to resolve the problems identified in the survey.

The survey results were not the only indication of the serious problems at the High School and of Mr. Seyfarth's confrontational and intimidating style. There were a number of special education students at the High School who had been suspended or threatened with being placed in the Cranford Alternative Program. In the fall of 1993, Ms. Ellenbogen contacted Dr. Renna about this pattern of violating the procedural rights of these special education students.

Also in the fall of 1993, a group of parents asked to have their children opt out of a sex education class that they found objectionable. Mr. Seyfarth would not permit this unless the students agreed to take physical education during that period. When the parents would not agree, Mr. Seyfarth became angry and threatened to go to Court. Dr. Renna contacted the County Superintendent to see whether the parents had the right to opt their children out of the sex education class. The County Superintendent advised Dr. Renna that the parents had the legal right to do this. The County Superintendent also advised Dr. Renna that Mr. Seyfarth had threatened legal action on more than one occasion instead of trying to amicably resolve issues. Dr. Renna concluded from this incident that when parents disagreed with him, Mr. Seyfarth became confrontational and did not have the ability to resolve matters out of Court. It was Dr. Renna's reputation and style and it was the Board's policy to resolve as many problems as possible out of Court, especially problems with parents.

In December 1993, the Board engaged George Mako (Mr. Mako) from New Choices Educational Services to serve as interim Director of Special Services. During the spring of 1994, Mr. Mako had numerous conversations with Dr. Renna about the distrust he saw between the faculty and the administration at the High School. He also reported to Dr. Renna that the teachers at the High School were afraid to express their concerns for fear of retribution from Mr. Seyfarth.

In June 1994, a professional development needs assessment survey revealed continuing problems similar to those expressed in the 1993 FAC survey. By this time, Dr. Renna began to have doubts as to whether her shared decision-making, non-confrontational and non-litigious style ever would come to fruition at the High School under Mr. Seyfarth's leadership. She continued, however, to remain positive and she wanted to give Mr. Seyfarth time to improve. She did so despite the fact that the Board was aware of the problems at the High School and that it was impatient and wanted her to take immediate reorganization action there.

Ms. Dachnowicz met with Dr. Renna in July 1994. She advised Dr. Renna that the High School was in chaos in terms of discipline. She also advised Dr. Renna that something had to be done because the High School had a faculty that was afraid of the Principal and intimidated by him, and it had a student body that was not afraid of anything. Dr. Renna stated to Ms. Dachnowicz that she was very concerned with the situation at the High School.

Also in July 1994, Ms. Ellenbogen sent a letter to Dr. Renna complaining about violations of students' rights by the High School administration. Ms. Ellenbogen detailed a series of serious allegations concerning the way the High School administration handled student discipline. The most serious of these allegations was a pattern of suspending special education students without prior notice to the Child Study Team and without any inquiry into whether the student's disability was the primary cause of the behavior. Ms. Ellenbogen sent a copy of the letter to Mr. Seyfarth.

Mr. Seyfarth never contacted Dr. Renna about Ms. Ellenbogen's letter. Dr. Renna, therefore, took the initiative and scheduled a meeting with Mr. Seyfarth, Mr. D'Antoni and Board Attorney Sciarrillo to discuss the contents of the letter. At that meeting, Mr. Seyfarth was angry over the allegations. He insisted that there was no validity to the allegations because he did not have the names of the students who made the allegations. Regardless of who made the allegations, Dr. Renna wanted the matter reviewed and corrected if any problems were found to exist.

For obvious reasons, Dr. Renna had to focus her attention on improvements at the High School during the 1994-95 school year. There had been no change in Mr. Seyfarth's administrative style and teacher morale was still very low. Dr. Renna's plans to improve conditions at the High School were preempted in the late fall of 1994 by a crisis in the District's Business Office involving Mrs. Nixon, the School Business Administrator. The District charged Mrs. Nixon with inept performance and unprofessional conduct and suspended her. As a result, Dr. Renna had to take over the operation of the Buisness Office. She later discovered evidence of criminal embezzlement by Mrs. Nixon. She turned the information over to the United States Attorney for further investigation.

In February 1995, the Board had its annual goal-setting meeting to establish priorities for the 1995-96 school year. Prior to that meeting, Board members completed an anonymous needs assessment survey. The survey revealed concerns the Board had about the High School administration and about Mr. Seyfarth's reluctance to change. At the meeting, the Board discussed what needed to be done at the High School and it unanimously approved 5 specific goals for the 1995-96 school year. The Board's main priority was to provide the best educational opportunities in order to maximize success for all High School students, to promote a learning environment at the High School that values differences and fosters respect for all individuals and to provide complete curriculum articulation and coordination throughout the District.

The investigation of Mrs. Nixon revealed that she and Mr. Seyfarth had a joint bank account at a local bank. On March 15, 1995, the FBI executed a search warrant at Mr. Seyfarth's High School office and his home. At a Board meeting that evening, the Board authorized Board Attorney Sciarrillo to commence civil proceedings in the Superior Court of New Jersey to recoup the District's funds. Also at that meeting, 2 Board members suggested placing Mr. Seyfarth on administrative leave. Dr. Renna disagreed and the Board took no action at that time.

On March 17, 1995, Board Attorney Sciarrillo applied to the Superior Court to freeze Mrs. Nixon's assets and the joint bank account. The Court granted the application. On that same day, Thomas Denny, a Board member, telephoned Dr. Renna and inquired whether she thought that placing Mr. Seyfarth on administrative leave and putting someone else in the High School would be a move that would build public confidence. Dr. Renna responded that she did not think that an administrative leave would be necessary and that they could continue educationally without it.

The Superior Court proceedings would no doubt attract media attention. As such, Board Attorney Sciarrillo prepared a press release regarding the Nixon matter and the FBI's search of Mr. Seyfarth's office. The object of the press release was to issue a single statement on behalf of the District. Dr. Renna did not completely agree with the Board's decision to issue a press release. She was not involved in its preparation and she did not see it until it had been disseminated to the press. On March 21, 1995, an article about the Superior Court proceedings appeared in the Star Ledger.

Mr. Seyfarth did not contact Dr. Renna to discuss the joint bank account. Instead, he contacted some Board members. On March 20, 1995, Dr. Renna asked Mr. Seyfarth to meet with her. She described the meeting as follows, in pertinent part:

> [H]e came in and...he said angrily to me, "Am I being accused of anything?" And I...responded, "No."...And he then seemed angry to me...his face was red and he...slapped his hands between themselves and said, "Because I am guilty of no wrongdoing and will take whatever action I need to take." And I assured him that I wasn't making any allegations, but that what we were dealing with > was an awkward situation because...there's potential here for public scandal and with the principal as the educational leader of the school, we need to handle this appropriately. I really did not want to discuss the particulars...and told him, I was shocked at what had occurred and didn't feel comfortable discussing anything more, that the primary goal was delivery of educational -- to the students and tried to keep it as calm and as non-adversarial as I could.

According to Ms. Dachnowicz, the publicity about the joint bank account caused a furor at the High School. Nevertheless, the Board took no action against Mr. Seyfarth because Dr. Renna wanted to maintain the status quo. She had hoped that the District could get through the remainder of the school year without any further problems at the High School. Dr. Renna's hopes were short-lived. On April 13, 1995, the Education Law Center wrote to Dr. Renna that it had joined forces with the Rutgers Constitutional Litigation Clinic (the Rutgers Clinic) to address the continuing problems at the High School. It also advised Dr. Renna that they would request an investigation by the United States Office of Civil Rights. The Rutgers Clinic also wrote to Dr. Renna on April 21, 1995, complaining that High School staff routinely denied parents access to their children's records in violation of state and federal law.

The Board met on April 24, 1995, and discussed the concerns raised by the Education Law Center and by the Rutgers Clinic. The Board instructed Board Attorney Sciarrillo to submit a written account of the District's activities. Before he could submit the account, on April 26, 1995, the Rutgers Clinic wrote to Dr. Renna complaining that the faculty and administration at the High School had prohibited students from talking about the FBI investigation of Mr. Seyfarth and that the students had been threatened with defamation lawsuits if they violated this prohibition.

The Rutgers Clinic sent a copy of this letter to Mr. Seyfarth. Dr. Renna waited a few days for Mr. Seyfarth to contact her about the letter, but he did not do so. When Mr. Seyfarth did not respond, Dr. Renna called the Rutgers Clinic and spoke to an attorney. The attorney advised Dr. Renna that the Rutgers Clinic planned to take legal action against the Board if the problems were not addressed. The attorney also advised Dr. Renna that someone improperly called her and requested the names of the students who had complained to the Rutgers Clinic.

Dr. Renna finally spoke to Mr. Seyfarth and told him that they had to discuss and address the letter from the Rutgers Clinic. She described that conversation as follows, in pertinent part:

> [H]e became angry and said none of this is true. And if they want to take...legal action, let them; and the [Mr. Seyfarth] will subpoena the information on all of the students who made these claims and we'll discuss it further in court.

Mr. Seyfarth flatly refused to take any action whatsoever to address the situation and his tone of voice was angry and offensive. After that conversation, Dr. Renna felt that there had been an accumulation of a number of situations sufficient to warrant her recommending to the Board that it place Mr. Seyfarth on administrative leave. It was "the straw that broke the camel's back." Dr. Renna viewed the administrative leave not as a disciplinary matter, but "as a calming down period to get through the school year and not be with additional litigation on our hands from Rutgers at that point." As Dr. Renna stated:

> [I]t [the Rutgers Clinic letter dated April 26, 1995] was the straw that broke the camel's back. I had been dealing with the controversy. I had hoped that Mr. Seyfarth would have been more cooperative and we could have worked together in it. And I had used that as an example of having to hear the reasons for the bank account by a board member and having to call him in the office, but I had been, during a very tumultuous time in the district, trying to keep things functioning as calmly as I could, addressing complaints from parents, from teachers, from the mayor of the community. And by the time [the Rutgers Clinic letter] came and saying to Mr. Seyfarth, what are we going to do about this, I would have hoped Mr. Seyfarth somewhere in that would have come to me and said, is there a way we can handle this short of subpoenaing the records and therefore making it, in my estimation, inevitable that we would be in court again.

The Board placed Mr. Seyfarth on mandatory paid administrative leave on May 8, 1995. In mid-May 1995, the Board engaged Mr. Mako to serve as interim High School Principal. In June 1995, Mr. Mako reported to Dr. Renna that there was a lack of improvement at the High School since the time he was there in 1994. Mr. Mako expressed to Dr. Renna his concerns about the discipline procedures, about the lack of professional development and about teaching strategies. He advised Dr. Renna that if she had any intention of making any improvements at the High School, she must change its structure. Dr. Renna responded to him, in pertinent part:

> [I]'ve been here two years. In the two years that I have been here, there was a Covey leadership training, there was Dr. Anthony Scanella's ongoing training with the administrators, there was a full year of professional development council with recommendations for change, there was Doug Brown that did monthly meetings with the administrators recommending a different perspective of how to do this. Do you see any signs of that? And he laughed at me and he said, based on what [he] observed in the last two months, [he] saw no evidence that any of these things ever occurred...

Mr. Mako also became aware of Mr. Seyfarth's authoritative and intimidating management style. He told Dr. Renna about the apprehension and fear that he saw, about the untrusting atmosphere, about how Mr. D'Antoni and Ms. Wilde appeared to follow Mr. Seyfarth's directives and about the lack of decision-making power of the Supervisors or the Director of Guidance. It was his impression that "the staff was accustomed to being told what to do and ordered and directed and not to be a part of the shared decision-making process within the high school." Mr. Mako also told Dr. Renna that the staff was surprised to see the openness under which he functioned. Staff members ongoingly came to him and told him how much better it was at the High School since he was there.

Mr. Mako concluded that a change in Principals should be made at the High School at that time because it would be less disruptive to the District to do so while there was an interim High School Principal. He looked at various people in the District and saw that Michael Blasucci (Mr. Blasucci) had a secondary background and had served for a number of years as Vice-Principal at the High School. He recommended that Mr. Seyfarth be transferred to the elementary program and that Mr. Blasucci be transferred to the High School. He also recommended that Gary Sorrentino (Mr. Sorrentino) be transferred to the High School to deal with the discipline issues because Mr. D'Antoni and Ms. Wilde were not effective in dealing with disciplinary problems.

In June 1995, matters had not improved. The Rutgers Clinic sent another letter to Dr. Renna on June 16, 1995, complaining of an illegal strip search of a High School student in the spring of 1994. In addition, by the end of June, a needs assessment survey distributed to the High School staff in the spring showed no meaningful change in the staff's attitude since the 1993 FAC survey. By the end of July 1995, Dr. Renna decided to make a number of administrative changes in the District, including, but not limited to, transferring Mr. Blasucci to the High School and transferring Mr. Seyfarth to the Middle School.

Dr. Renna requested a special Board meeting for August 1, 1995 to discuss the administrative changes and to discuss terminating Mr. Seyfarth's administrative leave. The week before that meeting, she attempted to contact all of the Board members by telephone to advise them of the subject of the special meeting. She was unable to contact all Board members. She also did not distribute a written report of her recommendations because she was concerned about confidentiality. The Board held the special meeting on August 1, 1995. Dr. Renna presented her recommendations for administrative changes to the Board. The Board voted 7 to 2 to approve Dr. Renna's recommendations. It also voted 9 to 0 to terminate Mr. Seyfarth's administrative leave effective August 2, 1995.

It is at this point that a controversy arose about whether or not the Board's attorney had advised Mr. Seyfarth's attorney that Dr. Renna would recommend to the Board transferring Mr. Seyfarth to the Middle School. The undersigned had scheduled a hearing for July 26 and 28, 1995. Prior to the hearing, the Board's attorney advised the undersigned that Dr. Renna would recommend that the Board terminate Mr. Seyfarth's administrative leave at the August 1, 1995 meeting. The Board's attorney, however, mentioned nothing about the transfer. The undersigned marked the matter settled only to later learn about the transfer. The undersigned was concerned about having canceled the hearing date when, in fact, the matter had not settled. The undersigned also expressed great displeasure at not having been informed that Dr. Renna would recommend Mr. Seyfarth's transfer. The undersigned came to realize at the hearing, however, that the failure to be so informed was due to the inadvertence of the Board's attorney and not to any improper behavior of Dr. Renna. The evidence presented at the hearing showed clearly that Dr. Renna always had planned to make personnel changes in the District, and Mr. Seyfarth knew it. The undersigned does not agree that Dr. Renna secretly planned Mr. Seyfarth's transfer.

The transfer of Mr. Blasucci and other administrative changes at the High School have supported Dr. Renna's recommendations. Ms. Dachnowicz testified that conditions have improved tremendously at the High School since Mr. Blasucci has been there. The FAC has been able to resolve issues that had been ignored for 17 years. The FAC also distributed the same questionnaire that it had distributed in 1993 and the results were diametrically opposite. Teacher morale had greatly improved and teachers had more input. As Ms. Dachnowicz stated, in pertinent part:

> [Mr. Blasucci] listens. He listens attentively to the concerns of the faculty. He listens to the students, too. If there is an issue, he's ready to work on it. I think, perhaps, and I didn't mention this, Mr. Blasucci is willing to change, and we found that the primary difficulty with Mr. Seyfarth was that he was not just resistant to change, but hostile to change.

Ms. Connelly also testified that there have been many positive changes since Mr. Blasucci's arrival. There was an increase in teacher enthusiasm and volunteerism. In fact, so many teachers had volunteered to serve on a certain committee that some had to be turned away. Mr. Phillips testified that there is now an open and cooperative working atmosphere at the High School.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

Mr. Seyfarth alleges that the Board's action in placing him on mandatory administrative leave with pay was arbitrary, capricious and in bad faith. He argues that the discovery of his name on a joint bank account with Mrs. Nixon did not negatively interfere with the educational process either at the High School or within the District. He claims that he was frustrated and angry about the speculation and rumors generated by the discovery of the joint bank account. He also argues that he was punished for his angry insistence upon his denial of any wrongdoing with respect to the Nixon matter and for his vow to use litigation to disclose whether there were any specifics behind the allegations made by the Rutgers Clinic. He further argues that Dr. Renna acted impulsively in recommending the administrative leave after she spoke to him in May 1995, about the letter from the Rutgers Clinic.

It is clear from the evidence in this case that Mr. Seyfarth was an autocrat at the High School and the High School was his kingdom. No one dared to question his authority and decisions. To do so would subject one to Mr. Seyfarth's wrath. Three long-time, respected teachers all testified that Mr. Seyfarth intimidated teachers, he yelled at them and he often lost his temper. They also testified that Mr. Seyfarth was an authoritarian and that he was not at all receptive to change. In addition, both Dr. Paul and Dr. Renna acknowledged that Mr. Seyfarth flew off the handle, he yelled at and intimidated people and he threatened legal action against those who disagreed with him. Mr. Seyfarth absolutely did not tolerate any challenge to his authority, including any challenge by Dr. Renna. Under the circumstances existing at the time at the High School, including the Nixon matter, this was no way for an administrator to act.

Dr. Renna had more than ample reason to recommend to the Board that it place Mr. Seyfarth on mandatory administrative leave with pay. The Board had more than ample reason to take such action. Mrs. Nixon had been accused of embezzling a substantial amount of money from the District. The FBI discovered her name on a joint bank account with Mr. Seyfarth. The FBI obviously saw a reason to investigate Mr. Seyfarth because it obtained a search warrant and searched his office and home on March 15, 1996. According to Ms. Dachnowicz, this caused a furor in the High School. Instead of contacting Dr. Renna to discuss the matter, Dr. Renna had to call Mr. Seyfarth to her office. Once there, instead of having a calm and reasoned discussion, Mr. Seyfarth reacted angrily and threatened legal action. He improperly excuses his conduct by claiming that he reacted in "frustration." Had he been more cooperative, however, he could have alleviated that frustration and amicably resolved the matter. Instead, he made matters worse by his combative conduct.

In addition, Mr. Seyfarth reacted similarly when Dr. Renna tried to discuss with him the allegations contained in the letters from the Rutgers Clinic. Instead of calmly discussing the matter, Mr. Seyfarth became angry and offensive, he flatly refused to take any action whatsoever and he threatened litigation. Dr. Renna did not want any further litigation and she wanted to calm matters down and get through the school year. It clearly was a last resort by Dr. Renna to recommend to the Board that it place Mr. Seyfarth on mandatory administrative leave with pay. Dr. Renna was forced to do so after it was clear to her that her attempts to calmly and amicably resolve the matter with Mr. Seyfarth never would be successful and that Mr. Seyfarth never would cooperate.

Dr. Renna also was more than generous in waiting the amount of time that she did before recommending the mandatory administrative leave with pay. She did not act impulsively and she gave Mr. Seyfarth every opportunity to discuss matters with her and to reach an amicable solution. Clearly, she made the recommendation because of an accumulation of too many negative situations and because she wanted to calm matters down to avoid further litigation. The undersigned is convinced by the evidence presented in this case that Dr. Renna and the Board did the right thing at the time. By reason of the foregoing, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Board did not act arbitrarily, capriciously or in bad faith in placing Mr. Seyfarth on mandatory paid administrative leave.

Mr. Seyfarth also alleges that the Board acted arbitrarily, capriciously and in bad faith in transferring him to the Middle School. He argues that the Board attempted to create the appearance, after the fact, of some kind of performance issue as the basis for Mr. Seyfarth's transfer. He also argues that prior to the discovery of the joint bank account, Dr. Renna never seriously considered transferring him, she never discussed it with the Board and she gave him positive evaluations that contained no criticism of his performance. He further argues that the transfer was a vendetta by the Board because it was frustrated at its inability to prove that he was involved in Mrs. Nixon's embezzlement.

The Board alone has the authority to manage the District in any way it deems necessary to promote the overall goal of providing its students with a thorough and efficient education. There is no requirement that a board must obtain community input or consent before it acts on any matter within its authority. As stated in Kenny v. Board of Education of Montclair, 1938 S.L.D. 647; aff'd State Board of Education, 649, 653:

> The school law vests the management of the public schools in each district in the local boards of education and unless they violate the law or act in bad faith, the exercise of their discretion in the performance of duties imposed upon them is not subject to interference or reversal.

When a board acts within its authority, its decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be upset unless there is an affirmative showing that the decision was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Thomas v. Morris Township Board of Education, 89 N.J. Super. 327, 322 (App. Div. 1965). In addition, a board has the authority to transfer a principal to another principalship as long as there is no reduction in salary. No disciplinary grounds or pre-transfer due process are required. A board may base the transfer solely upon its determination that an individual school may benefit by such a transfer. Thelma Bradley v. Board of Education of the Borough of Freehold, 1976 S.L.D. 590, 600.

In this case, the Board was not taking disciplinary action against Mr. Seyfarth. It merely voted 7 to 2 to transfer him to the principalship of another school. It does not matter whether or not Mr. Seyfarth was a good or bad administrator or whether or not he did anything wrong. The Board has the absolute right to transfer Mr. Seyfarth to another principalship as long as it did not reduce his salary or do so in bad faith. There is no evidence that the Board reduced Mr. Seyfarth's salary.

The evidence also shows that the Board acted in good faith in transferring Mr. Seyfarth. The Board also based its decision to transfer Mr. Seyfarth on its and Dr. Renna's determination that the transfer would benefit the High School. Although Mr. Seyfarth sees it otherwise, the evidence shows clearly that were serious problems at the High School while he was Principal. Teacher morale was very low, teachers felt powerless, there was a lack of communication with the administration, there were serious discipline problems and there were threats of litigation against the District stemming from incidents at the High School. The evidence also shows clearly that Dr. Renna took many steps to improve things at the High School and she gave Mr. Seyfarth every opportunity to change. Her efforts were thwarted by Mr. Seyfarth's absolute refusal to cooperate and his combative attitude. Clearly, it was time for a change at the High School. The change was made and the evidence shows that the High School has benefited greatly by that change.

By reason of the foregoing, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Board did not act arbitrarily, capriciously or in bad faith in transferring Mr. Seyfarth to the Middle School.

ORDER

I, therefore, ORDER that Mr. Seyfarth's Amended Petition be and hereby is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the Judge and to the other parties.

ROBERT SEYFARTH,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CRANFORD, UNION COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter, including hearing transcripts, and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner generally excepts to the initial decision that he received outstanding evaluations as high school principal, thereby contending that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) failed to consider and weigh all of the proofs to support his claims. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 2) He cites portions of the hearing transcript to support these statements. He further objects to the Board's "after-the-fact attempts" to create a performance issue to justify its punitive actions against petitioner where he claims none previously existed. (Petitioner's Exceptions at pp. 3-10) Petitioner further avers that he received virtually no notice that a transfer was going to take place, and that the Board's determination to transfer him was not a product of reasonable deliberation by the Board of Education based upon competent and credible information. As such, its determinations were arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable and were not taken in good faith. (Id. at p. 23) Lastly, petitioner analogizes the present case to Thomas v. Board of Education of Morris Township, 89 N.J. Super. 327 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd 46 N.J. 581 (1966), wherein it was held that a board's determination to rescind a superintendent's contract constituted an arbitrary and capricious action in that the minority board members and the public were denied any meaningful advance opportunity to learn about, consider and deliberate regarding the action approved by the majority. He avers that the similarities between the two cases are "virtually indistinguishable" and lists reasons to demonstrate that the present case provides "an even more compelling picture of an abuse of the power and authority of the Board of Education." (Petitioner's Exceptions at pp. 26-28) Thus, petitioner argues that the Board's transfer must be set aside.

In its reply, the Board asserts that the ALJ's initial decision was proper and should be affirmed. (Reply Exceptions at p. 1) The Board avers that with the passage of the Rotondo bill, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(a), effective June 19, 1995, the superintendent is the primary decisionmaker for appointments, transfers or removal of staff and, thus, when a transfer of a professional staff member is challenged before the Commissioner, the focus of the inquiry is on the superintendent's recommendation. (Reply Exceptions at pp. 1-2) The Board further avers that following a seven-day hearing, the ALJ had ample opportunity to assess credibility and concluded that the superintendent's recommendations were reasonable and necessary. (Id.) The Board next asserts that petitioner's exceptions studiously avoid mention of other testimony in the record contradicting petitioner's version of the facts. The Board continues stating, "[e]ven those excerpts relied on by petitioner are misparaphrased or otherwise taken out of context." (Id.) Further, the Board reminds the Commissioner that "where the testimony is directly in conflict [the ALJ's] credibility findings are entitled to great weight." (Id. at 3) The Board then purports to document the evidence in the record which supports the ALJ's findings that the superintendent's recommendation was made in good faith.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that the Board's actions, as proven, were not arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or an abuse of discretion and adopts the initial decision for the reasons expressed therein. The Commissioner finds that, for reasons well established on record, the superintendent recommended petitioner's transfer in his capacity as chief school administrator and that the Board duly approved such transfer in accordance with N.J.S.A 18A:27-4.1(a). Therefore, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner's claim fails in that a local board's action is entitled to a presumption of correctness. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960).

In so ruling, the Commissioner finds no reason to disturb the credibility determinations of the ALJ. He is satisfied that the transcripts, when reviewed in their full context, reasonably support such findings. See In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (App. Div. 1987).

The Commissioner is constrained to note, however, that even taking as true the statement in petitioner's exceptions that petitioner received outstanding evaluations as principal, neither the Board nor its superintendent acted contrary to lawful authority in transferring petitioner to the middle school. The law does not consider a transfer from the position of high school principal to the position of principal at another school within the school district invalid under the tenure statutes as long as the salary is not reduced, in that such is a proper transfer to a position of equivalent rank. Williams v. Plainfield Bd. of Ed., 176 N.J. Super. 154 (App. Div. 1980). In the Williams case, supra, the Appellate Division upheld the transfer of a high school principal to the position of elementary school principal despite her contention that her salary expectancy would be less as an elementary school principal than it would be as a high school principal. The Williams court rejected the notion that denial of an increment was, in effect, a reduction in salary in violation of that teacher's tenure rights holding that future increases in salary, or salary expectation, is not an appropriate factor to be considered when determining the validity of a transfer since tenured employees have no vested right in any future increases in salary.[1] Thus, the Board acted within its authority to make administrative changes among its district personnel.

Moreover, the Commissioner is not persuaded that the circumstances in Thomas, supra, lend support to petitioner's claim that the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner or abused its discretion reaching its transfer decision. In Thomas, the State Board and Appellate Division conclusion that the Board acted in an arbitrary manner was based on the fact that the majority bloc determined to rescind a contract which was > a drastic modification of a policy decision which had been previously made by the board after the most careful and deliberate consideration. (89 N.J. Super. at 334)

The effect of this action was to cut short a superintendent's probationary period, in order to give him an extended contract that would secure him tenure. In contrast, in the present matter, there was no contractual matter at issue nor evidence that the Board had made a previous thoughtful determination not to transfer petitioner. Rather, the Board acted to approve the superintendent's recommendation upon her exercise of managerial discretion to determine appropriate staff assignments for the school system. Moreover, the actions by the Board in the Thomas case would now be disallowed under the 1991 revisions to the laws regarding employment of superintendents by boards of education. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15.[2]

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the ALJ and dismisses the instant Petition of Appeal.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Rather, as stated in *Graham v. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 3, 1994, petitioner, Michael Santucci, was notified by the New Jersey Department of Education that due to his criminal conviction, he was disqualified from continued employment in his teaching position in any school or other institution under the supervision of the Department of Education. He was given thirty days to appeal the decision by filing a petition with the Commissioner of Education based on grounds of either rehabilitation or mistake in his criminal record. By letter dated March 1, 1994, petitioner appealed to the Commissioner of Education alleging rehabilitation. By letter dated January 30, 1995, Deputy Commissioner Richard A. DiPatri notified petitioner of his determination that petitioner was not qualified for employment as a teacher. DiPatri indicated that insufficient time had transpired since petitioner's conviction to demonstrate clear and convincing evidence of rehabilitation.

Apparently, on or about June 5, 1995, petitioner was served with an Order to Show Cause from the State Board of Examiners of New Jersey as to "why his New Jersey teaching certificate should not be revoked." By letter dated June 14, 1995, to the State Board of Examiners, petitioner's attorney requested a hearing to establish petitioner's rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.3.

By letter dated July 20, 1995, petitioner was advised by the Director, State Board of Examiners, that his formal request for a hearing to establish rehabilitation was properly an appeal of the Commissioner's final determination and was required to be directed to the State Board of Education, not the State Board of Examiners. He was advised that since the proceeding for revocation is based on the disqualifying charges, he should request that the State Board of Examiners hold his Order to Show Cause in abeyance until completion of the appeal of the Commissioner's determination. Apparently, by letter dated September 18, 1995, the stay of that revocation was confirmed by the State Board of Examiners.

By letter dated August 1, 1995, petitioner filed an appeal to the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, to establish his rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.3. On September 20, 1995, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) by the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on October 13, 1995, and a hearing was scheduled for June 6, 1996, at the OAL in Newark. Petitioner's attorney requested an adjournment of that hearing date, and the matter was rescheduled for hearing on August 6 and 7, 1996, at the OAL. The matter was heard on August 6, 1996, before the undersigned judge. Witnesses who testified are listed in the attached appendix. The record closed on August 13, 1996, after receipt of petitioner's brief.

TESTIMONY

Peter Abbaleo, a veteran of twenty-seven years in the Essex County Probation Department, was Mr. Santucci's probation officer. His duties are to supervise and monitor individuals in the community. Initially, he saw Santucci every week for four weeks. He later saw him a minimum of once per month. Abbaleo said that he had no problems with Mr. Santucci. He considered him to be an outstanding father and husband and noted that Santucci's children had a good rapport with him. Although Santucci had a two-year probationary term, Abbaleo determined to discharge him at the end of one year. Only about 5 percent of Abbaleo's parolees are released that soon. Santucci had no new offenses, had reported as required, was hard-working, and Abbaleo had not heard anything negative about him.

Andrew Hudson, a funeral director, testified that his family lived across the street from Santucci's family for thirty-four years. He has interacted with Santucci socially and knows Santucci's wife and children. He testified to the "very good" reputation Santucci enjoys in the Newark and Nutley communities. (He heard of Santucci's reputation in church.) He observed the type of father Santucci is and noted that he is "instrumental" in helping his widowed sister raise her children.

Andrew Hunton, an electrical engineer, has known Santucci since 1990. He was Santucci's son's cub scout leader and they serve on church committees together. He grew to know Santucci's children, and had contact with Santucci approximately once a week before and after cub scout meetings. Santucci is a good father and has a close family. His children are well-mannered and look up to him. Santucci is willing to lend a hand by serving on church committees.

Jeanette Armstrong has known Santucci for twenty years and has had contact with him over the last five years. She sees him socially, and also was his coworker at the Essex County Division of Welfare, where she is a social worker. She described Santucci as helpful, responsible and caring. Armstrong is a widow, and Santucci has always been there for her. He is a hard worker, a committed husband, and an excellent father.

Father Albert Malgeri is a Catholic priest and a parochial vicar (associate pastor) at the Holy Family Church in Nutley. He has known Santucci for two years. He met Santucci at mass, which Santucci attends every weekend. He described Santucci as a friendly, outgoing person, a good father, and a good Catholic man. He noted that Santucci "helps out" with church projects and activities. Santucci's four children attend Good Shepherd Academy, and Santucci teaches his children respect.

Victoria Michaels has been a secondary school administrator for twenty-five years at Barringer High School, where petitioner teaches,. She is a third-floor administrator involved in scheduling. She has known Santucci for over two years and oversees what he does. She sees him every period of every day. Michaels pointed out that Santucci is not a tenured teacher. She described him as respectful, polite and a "wonderful role model." The students realize that he is firm and wants them to learn. He smiles, pats them on the back and does not have discipline problems. She described how he appropriately handled a fight in the corridor by separating the students, putting one of them in the office and speaking to him. The elective course he is teaching, "Law in Action," is over-enrolled because Santucci is the teacher. She is "proud of him as a teacher." Michaels noted that Santucci says that his "hobby" is his family.

Anthony Tortorello is a social studies department chairman at Barringer High School. He has known Santucci since January 1995 and is Santucci's immediate supervisor. He sees Santucci interact with students every day. Santucci relates well, and Tortorello has never had to discuss anything with him. He is professional and expeditious. Santucci has an excellent relationship with his colleagues, and Tortorello has never heard an unkind word about him. His relationship with the parents is also excellent. Tortorello described Santucci as "a credit to Barringer." Of import, he stated that he has never seen Santucci angry or out of control.

Leonard Minatee is a retired detective of the arson squad of the Newark Fire Department, where he was employed for twenty-five years. He has known Santucci for fifteen years and has seen him in the last five years. He met Santucci when Santucci was in the bus business. Santucci is always concerned about the neighborhood and the kids. He brought them toys from home. Minatee met Santucci's family and became close to them. He contended that one could not meet a finer man than Santucci. Referring to the bus business, he indicated that Santucci was the owner of the regular route line. He ran the school operation. Minatee did not observe any difficulties between Santucci and the employees or customers. He always received praise and was well-liked. In fact, he hired employees to give them a chance.

Next to testify was Nicholas Liotti, a police officer with the Orange Police Department. Employed by the Department for twenty-two years, he is currently a detective sergeant. Liotti knew Santucci when Santucci was a police officer, and they worked together for eight years in a radio car. When Liotti was a new police officer, Santucci guided and helped him. Over the last six years, they maintained on-and-off telephone contact. He knew Santucci when he was single, and he now knows Santucci's family. He is aware that Santucci and his wife have a good relationship, and that Santucci has a nice relationship with his children. He noted that Santucci supervised twelve to fifteen police officers and had no difficulties as a police officer. He always supported his men and they looked up to him. He was well-liked and acted reasonably and responsibly.

Ralph Taliercio, a police captain with the Orange Police Department for twenty-five years, has known Santucci since his first day on the job. He supervised Santucci. He described Santucci as eager, energetic, willing to please, flexible, caring, firm, professional and dignified. He responds well, maintains control and is cognizant of his acts. He observed Santucci's interactions as a supervisor. Santucci motivated people and helped them if they needed it. Taliercio used Santucci to break in sergeants. Santucci interacted well in the community and handled crises professionally. A single parent of two daughters, Taliercio is "very cautious" about whom his young daughters associate with. He brings his younger daughter to socialize with Santucci's family. He noted that the neighborhood children spend lots of time in Santucci's yard playing basketball or in the pool. Both of his daughters would like to have Santucci as a teacher.

Santucci testified on his own behalf. He indicated that he has lived in Nutley, New Jersey, with his wife and four children, ages fourteen, thirteen, eleven and nine, since December 1979. He attends Holy Family Church in Nutley. For the last two years, he has been employed as a history teacher.

Santucci explained the particular facts and circumstances of the criminal offense. On November 3, 1989, his car was stolen. Some time after his car was stolen, his brother called him and advised him that he had seen the car in Verona, approximately eight blocks away. He went to the scene and observed a black male, thirty to thirty-five years old, in street clothes attempting to start his car and pull away. He noted that the key was in the ignition, the ignition was broken and the car was starting to roll. He opened the door of the car and the individual turned to him. The individual had a gun in his belt. Believing that the individual was going for his gun, and concerned about his life, Santucci hit him once on the left side of his head. He recalled that the individual became angry and that the situation was interrupted almost immediately by police officers who converged on him and handcuffed and arrested him. The individual who was in Santucci's car was an undercover police officer.

At the time of the incident, Santucci was operating a bus business. He lost a contract, and in March 1990 he lost the business. He lost everything and his family suffered. From January 1990 to December 1994, he worked in Union City part time, teaching adult education, history and law. He began teaching in Newark full time in December 1994. Santucci teaches five senior history classes. He participated in Law Day, and received bronze and silver medals. Of import, he indicated that he is comfortable with his situation and believes that he has finally found his niche. He testified to the personal satisfaction he receives from his work and his "immense love" of the teaching profession.

Joyce Santucci, Michael Santucci's wife and the mother of their four children, works part time for a doctor and as a waitress for a catering business. She testified that Santucci is calm, loves his job as a teacher, and attempts to show their children "how good they have it." She observed that students seek him out and, in fact, have come to their house. She described Michael Santucci as complacent, and noted that he gets involved in projects. He likes his job, which has had a positive effect on their children. Of import, she indicated that Santucci has always been calm. On the day of the incident, she was the one who was "hopped up." Since he does not get out of control, their children go to him if they have a problem. Even their children's friends love him.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I found the testimony adduced at the hearing and set forth above to be credible, consistent, overwhelming and worthy of belief. There has been no opposition to it or any evidence submitted which is at variance with it. That being so, I adopt the testimony set forth above as my Findings of Fact in this matter.

DISCUSSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(c) provides that a person is to be disqualified from employment as a teaching staff member if that person has a criminal history which includes a conviction for a crime or offense involving use of force upon a person, such as aggravated assault. The same statute provides that an individual shall not be disqualified from employment or service as a teacher on the basis of such a conviction if the individual demonstrates clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e).

In determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation, the following factors shall be considered.

1. The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense;
3. The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
4. The date of the offense;
5. The age of the individual when the offense was committed;
6. Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.

[N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e).]

In determining whether Santucci has demonstrated rehabilitation, I have considered the above-noted relevant factors.

1. The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold Santucci seeks to continue to serve as a teacher in the Newark public schools. Since this requires dealing with children, there is no doubt that it is necessary for one in this position to act appropriately and reasonably. It requires good moral character, a proper attitude, integrity, responsibility for one's actions, and the ability to act in a rational and controlled manner. Having considered the testimony of the witnesses in this light, I am of the opinion that Santucci possesses the characteristics and personality traits requisite to a teacher. The responsibilities of a teacher were recognized by Victoria Michaels and Anthony Tortorello, who have both supervised Santucci in school on a daily basis for the past two years. They both declared that Santucci has proven himself to have the character, attitude, aptitude, integrity and demeanor necessary to accept and carry out his responsibilities as a teacher in an exemplary manner. They have both clearly and convincingly declared that Santucci has proven he has earned the privilege of being a school teacher and is entirely suitable to maintain his teaching certificate. I am in agreement that Santucci's character, attitude, aptitude, and demeanor are consistent with the nature and responsibilities of the position. Moreover, I am convinced that Santucci has the ability to maintain himself in a calm and controlled manner, and thus possesses the required self-control to function appropriately as a teacher.

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense

In an effort to evaluate this criterion, I have considered the unique facts and circumstances attendant to the crime to which Santucci pled guilty. I am of the view that the circumstances mitigate the seriousness of the offense. Santucci clearly made a mistake, but his judgment was obviously affected by his belief that he was in danger by an individual that had stolen his car. Santucci's conduct was a result of fear and emotional stress under circumstances which were not created by him. He may have reacted poorly to the situation, but he was reacting to an extraordinary event.

As pointed out by petitioner, this criminal act was a single, isolated, spontaneous act. Apparently, the "victim" was not seriously injured. Moreover, it is observed that Santucci received the minimum sentence of no incarceration and two years' probation after a full evaluation of the case, including a pre-sentence investigation report. Further, the probation officer was impressed with Santucci; he determined that termination of probation after one year, warranted in only 5 percent of his cases, was appropriate here. In sum, the nature and seriousness of the offense support Santucci's "rehabilitation."

3. The circumstances under which the offense occurred

As discussed above, the offense occurred under circumstances which were not caused or created by Santucci. He stumbled upon a police undercover sting operation which involved a police officer playing the role of a car thief. In Santucci's mind, he was catching a thief and stopping a crime in progress. In fact, he was attempting to save an important possession of his, his car. He clearly considered himself to be a victim of criminal conduct. When he observed the individual in his car with a gun, he became concerned that he might be injured himself. As a result, he acted quickly and spontaneously and perhaps with not enough thought. Unbeknownst to him, he assaulted a police officer. As pointed out by Santucci, at that time and under those circumstances, he believed he was acting reasonably. He saw the gun in the belt of the "car thief" and reacted to protect himself.

Santucci's conduct demonstrates not a pattern of behavior but an aberration, a departure from the normal or typical. It is not likely that such conduct will be repeated in this form or any other form, as it is not likely that the circumstances under which the offense was committed will be repeated. Santucci has paid a severe price for this momentary lapse of self-control. As pointed out by Santucci's witnesses, Santucci is a man of good character and integrity. He is calm and exhibits self-restraint. The circumstances of the offense thus support "rehabilitation."

4. The date of the offense

The offense occurred in 1989. The evidence clearly and convincingly shows that in the almost seven years since the incident, Santucci has acted as a law-abiding and socially and professionally productive person. There have been no other incidents. On the contrary, the testimony establishes Santucci's positive contributions to his family, his school, his church, and his community. He has a strong commitment to those aspects of his life, and an excellent reputation in the community. Clearly, enough time has passed since the incident to support rehabilitation.

5. The age of the individual when the offense was committed Santucci is presently middle-aged. He was not a youngster when the offense was committed. His age does not serve as a relevant factor to substantiate or refute rehabilitation.

6. Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident

On June 22, 1984, Santucci pled guilty to a disorderly person's offense, possession of fireworks. He received a $125 fine. This offense and the 1989 offense discussed above are the only offenses on Santucci's record. Quite clearly, the 1989 offense is unrelated to the 1984 disorderly person's offense. Moreover, it is clear that the 1989 offense was an isolated incident of very brief duration. There is no indication, either from Santucci's record or his behavior since the incident, that this type of incident has been or will be repeated.

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense

As pointed out by Santucci, social conditions certainly contributed to his offense. I take judicial notice of the fact that there is criminal activity in the community, and that law enforcement personnel are required to utilize certain tactics to combat this criminal activity. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(b). I am also aware of the impact on the citizens who have to deal with such criminal activity in their community on an ongoing basis and the anger and fear which such criminal activity can engender. The sting operation utilized here, albeit necessary to combat criminal activity, caused Santucci to be involved in a situation which was not of his making and which he could not have known about. The criminal activity in the community made Santucci feel that he was a "victim," and perhaps caused him to respond in the manner that he did.

8. Evidence of rehabilitation

I am persuaded by the testimony of the witnesses that Santucci exhibits good conduct in the community, has successfully participated in a probationary program, and has achieved the recommendation of persons who have supervised him. The evidence of rehabilitation is overwhelming and impressive. Santucci has the confidence of the community that he is rehabilitated, and has functioned in the community in that manner.

I am persuaded that Santucci has shown clear and convincing evidence of his rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e). I am confident that Santucci is sufficiently rehabilitated to qualify him for employment as a teacher.

CONCLUSION

I CONCLUDE that Santucci has demonstrated clear and convincing evidence of rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e).

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's appeal is GRANTED and that Michael Santucci is not disqualified from employment as a teacher.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE :

DISQUALIFICATION FROM : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT OF M.S.: DECISION

_____:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review, and having accepted the credibility determinations of the ALJ, the Commissioner determines to affirm the initial decision of the ALJ, in that petitioner, having been provided the opportunity to supplement the record of his prior disqualification proceeding, has adduced evidence sufficient to meet the standard set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 et seq., rendering him eligible for school employment as a teacher.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons expressed therein.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, former Manager of Data Processing, contended his termination by the Board was in violation of statute and Board policy.

ALJ found that since all of petitioner's rights with respect to his employment by the Board were set forth in his written contract of employment, the dispute between the parties to the contract was not a controversy over which the Commissioner had jurisdiction. Thus, the ALJ concluded that the Board was entitled to an order granting summary decision dismissing the petition for lack of jurisdiction.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that this matter was contractually based. While the law is clear that a school board may enter into contractual agreements, it is clear that the Commissioner will not rule on the enforceability of a contract especially where, as herein, the interpretation of the contract was the primary issue at hand and not merely implicated in a question of the school laws. Petition was dismissed.

SUMMARY DECISION

ROBERT SMITH,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WILLINGBORO, BURLINGTON COUNTY,

Respondent.

Norman G. Matlock, Esq., for petitioner

James P. Granello, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: August 27, 1996 Decided: October 8, 1996

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter commenced on March 12, 1996 when Robert Smith (hereinafter petitioner) filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education seeking an order that the actions of the Board of Education of the Township of Willingboro (hereinafter respondent) terminating his employment as Manager of Data Processing without affording him a hearing violated Board policy, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, and petitioner's contractual rights. The petition sought reinstatement with back pay and benefits. An answer on behalf of respondent was filed on March 21, 1996 and on April 10, 1996 the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was conducted by telephone conference call on July 11, 1996 at which time it was determined that respondent would submit a motion for summary decision. Respondent's motion and supporting papers were received on July 17, 1996. Petitioner's brief in opposition to respondent's motion was received on August 23, 1996 and a letter memorandum in reply was received from respondent on August 27, 1996, whereupon the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The facts relevant to a disposition of this matter are not in dispute and I therefore FIND the following as uncontested facts.

On June 27, 1995, petitioner entered into his seventeenth annual contract of employment with respondent. Pursuant to the terms of the contract, petitioner agreed to perform the duties of "Manager-Data Processing" from July 1, 1995 through June 30, 1996, for an annual salary of $61,505. The contract further provided in pertinent part:

. . . .

> 3. The Board reserves the right to dismiss The Employee and to terminate this contract upon two weeks written notice if it is not satisfied with The Employee's performance of duties or personal deportment while on the job. The Board shall likewise have the option of paying said Employee a sum equivalent to two weeks salary and dismissal immediately.
>
> 5. It is understood by The Employee that this contract is for a fixed term as stated herein and the execution of subsequent contracts will not confer any additional benefits or employment security except as may be provided in said contract documents.

On December 4, 1995, petitioner was notified by his immediate supervisor, Wayne W. Thomas, School Business Administrator, that his employment was terminated effective immediately. Petitioner requested the opportunity to appear before the Board of Education; this request was denied and on December 18, 1995, respondent voted to terminate petitioner's employment.

Respondent's Policy No. 4117.54 entitled, "Suspension and Dismissal of Professional Staff Members" contains two subsections; the first is entitled "Tenure Teacher" and the second is entitled "Non-Tenure Teachers." The policy concludes:

> REQUEST FOR APPEARANCE BEFORE BOARD OF TEACHING STAFF MEMBER NOT RE-EMPLOYED
> Any teacher whose contract has not be renewed must make a written request for a statement of reasons within 15 calendar days after receipt of notice of non-reemployment. Subsequently, the Board must present that statement of reasons within 30 calendar days after receipt of the teacher's formal request.
> The teacher, having received the statement of reasons, must submit a written request for a formal hearing within 10 calendar days after said receipt. The Board will thereafter schedule that formal hearing within 30 calendar days from the teacher's receipt of the requested statement of reason.

Petitioner asserts that he is a professional staff member within the contemplation of this policy; however, petitioner acknowledges that he does not hold any certificate issued by the State Board of Examiners nor does his position title require that he hold such a certificate.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

The once classic statement of the standard for granting or denying summary judgment set forth in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954), was recently modified in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, and KRA Insurance Agency, Inc., 142 N.J. 520 (1995). Therein the Court held that the standard to be applied is now the same as the standard for determining motions for involuntary dismissal under R. 4:37-2(b) and for determining motions for judgment under R. 4:40-1 and R. 4:40-2. Trial courts considering motions for summary judgment are now required to engage in the same type of evaluation, analysis or sifting of evidential materials in light of the burden of persuasion that applies if the matter goes to trial. The Court explained:

> Under this new standard, a determination whether there exits a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." . . . Credibility determinations will continue to be made by a jury and not a judge. If there exists a single, unavoidable resolution of the alleged disputed issue of fact, that issue should be considered insufficient to constitute a "genuine" issue of material fact for purposes of Rule 4:46-2. . . . The import of our holding is that when the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law, . . ., the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. (citations omitted) Id. at 540.

The Court noted that to send a case to trial knowing that a rational decision-maker could reach but one conclusion was indeed "worthless" and would "serve no useful purpose." The purpose of this new standard, the decision explained, was to encourage trial courts not to refrain from granting summary judgment when the proper circumstances present themselves.

In the present matter, there is no dispute concerning any issue of material fact. Petitioner disputes the underlying reason for his termination from employment. That dispute, however, is not a fact material to a determination of the within matter because the basis for respondent's motion for summary decision, inter alia, is the Commissioner's lack of jurisdiction over contract disputes. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE this matter is ripe for summary decision.

Respondent first argues that even if the Commissioner does have jurisdiction over the within matter, the petition of appeal should be dismissed as untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) which requires the petition to be filed no later than 90 days after "receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education . . . which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing." Respondent asserts that the 90-day period of limitations should begin to run from December 4, 1995, when petitioner was advised by his direct supervisor that his employment was terminated. However, it is clear that respondent did not vote to terminate petitioner's employment contract until December 18, 1995. The contract specifically provides that notice of termination is to be in writing and that it must come from respondent. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the period of limitations did not begin to run until December 18, 1996, and therefore N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) provides no basis for dismissing the petition of appeal herein.

In the petition of appeal, petitioner claims that he was entitled to a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. That statute, however, governs dismissal and reduction in compensation of persons under tenure in public school systems. Since tenure is a statutory status and not a contractual one, petitioner must base his claims in this matter upon specific statutory provisions. Not all school board employees are protected by statutory job security. The education act makes specific provisions for tenure of teachers and other employees holding certificates issued by the State Board of Examiners (N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and 6); secretaries, assistant secretaries, business administrators, business managers,* secretarial and clerical employees (N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2); janitorial employees (N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3); and attendance officers (N.J.S.A. 18A:38-33). Currently no statutory provision provides tenure for managers of data processing. Accordingly, since petitioner neither had tenure nor is tenure-eligible in the district, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and the provisions which follow cannot provide any basis for the Commissioner's jurisdiction to hear the within matter. Likewise, petitioner's assertions that respondent violated its own Board policy by refusing to give him a hearing are without merit. The policy provisions, quoted hereinabove, apply only to teaching staff members, i.e., those holding a position which requires the employee to hold a certificate issued by the State Board of Examiners. N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2; 18A:27-2; 18A:28-5.

* Only Type I school districts are authorized to employ business managers. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-25 and N.J.S.A. 18A:9-2.

All of petitioner's rights with respect to his employment by respondent are set forth in his written contract of employment. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 provides that "the Commissioner shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. . . ." A dispute between parties to a contract who simply happen to be a school board and an employee does not present a controversy over which the Commissioner has jurisdiction. Sally v. Board of Education of the City of Newark, 1984 S.L.D. 1714. Such matters do not require the educational expertise of the Commissioner and are properly brought in a court of competent jurisdiction. Accordingly, based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that respondent is entitled to an order granting summary decision dismissing the petition of appeal herein for lack of jurisdiction.

Petitioner also cites N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 which requires that the removal of a non-certificated employee such as petitioner be recommended by the superintendent and be accomplished by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full Board. Petitioner offers no evidence or affidavit that this procedure was not followed, however. To defeat a motion for summary decision, an opponent must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing the existence of genuine facts which require a hearing. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). Petitioner has offered no such facts with respect to respondent's vote or the superintendent's recommendation, and accordingly, summary decision is appropriate.

For all the foregoing reasons, respondent's motion for summary decision is hereby granted and the petition of appeal is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that this matter is contractually based. While the law is clear that a school board may enter into contractual agreements, Remedial Educ. & Diag. Serv. v. Essex County Educ. Serv., 191 *N.J. Accordingly, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's determination for the reasons expressed therein and as further explicated herein, and hereby orders that the within Petition of Appeal be dismissed.

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This case concerns placement of a J.K., a 9th grade student, who with M.K., his mother, resides in the Borough of Oaklyn.

Respondent Board of Education of the Borough of Oaklyn (OBOE) operates a K through 9th grade school system. After the 9th grade, pursuant to a sending/receiving agreement between the OBOE and the Board of Education of the Borough of Collingswood (CBOE), Oaklyn students continue in 10th, 11th and 12th grades in the CBOE's high school, for which the OBOE pays tuition.

During the 1995-96 school year, J.K. was a 9th grade student in the OBOE's school system. J.K failed five of his subjects and the OBOE school system notified him that he would be retained in his grade. J-1. However, without authorization from the OBOE, the OBOE's school system principal represented to M.K. that, for the 1996-97 school year, J.K. would be placed in a 9th grade in the CBOE's school system (for which there would be liability for tuition.) J-2. J.K. began the 1996-97 school year in the CBOE's 9th grade and, in October 1996, the CBOE sent to the OBOE documentation showing that tuition was owed for J.K. The OBOE then learned that J.K. was in the CBOE school system and it notified M.K. that J.K. should return to the OBOE's 9th grade. OBOE-1.

M.K. alleges that J.K. was stigmatized in the OBOE's school system; he needs the "fresh start" that placement in the CBOE's school system will provide; and withdrawal from the CBOE's school system and placement in the OBOE's school system will disrupt J.K.'s education. M.K. claims that J.K. should be permitted to continue in the CBOE's school system and she moves for an order to that effect until a final decision can be issued in this case. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6.

The OBOE opposes the motion for reasons, including the following: The OBOE points out that the above-described representation by the principal was contrary to the sending/receiving agreement and unauthorized. The OBOE denies that its school system treated J.K. unfairly and/or stigmatized him. The OBOE alleges that, even in the CBOE's school system, J.K. has performed poorly and that, because the school year is young, withdrawal and return to the OBOE's school system will not irreparably harm J.K. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(f)2. Further, the OBOE submits, given the potential liability for tuition for the incorrect placement of J.K. and the interests of the Oaklyn taxpayers (who may be liable for such tuition resulting from continuing placement in the CBOE's school system), an emergent order should not be entered continuing the incorrect placement. Further, the OBOE also submits, the CBOE is a necessary party which must have notice and an opportunity to be heard before any relief, including the moved-for emergent relief may be ordered. N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.3(a), R. 4:6-2(f).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On October 23, 1996, M.K., pro se, filed a verified petition with the Department of Education and, on October 24, 1996, the OBOE's answer was filed. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The Department transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where, on October 24, 1996, it was filed as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). On October 29, 1996, in the OAL in Trenton (Hamilton Township), petitioner's attorney entered his appearance and the motion was heard. There was no record that the CBOE, which would have a claim for tuition for J.K.'s attendance in its school system, was notified of the case or that it had an opportunity to appear and represent its interests in the subject matter. N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.3(a), R. 4:6-2(f).

FINDINGS OF FACT

The OBOE operates a K through 9th grade school system. After the 9th grade, pursuant to a sending/receiving agreement between the OBOE and the CBOE, Oaklyn students continue in 10th, 11th and 12th grades in the CBOE's high school, for which the OBOE pays tuition.

M.K. is the mother of J.K., whose date of birth is October 8, 1980, and they reside in the Borough of Oaklyn where, beginning with the 1986-87 school year, J.K. was a student in the OBOE's school system.

Records maintained by the OBOE show the following: In the 1986-87 school year, when J.K. was in kindergarten; in the 1987-88, when he was in 1st grade; in the 1988-89 school year, when he was in the 2nd grade; in the 1989-90 school year, when he was in the 3rd grade; and in the 1990-91 school year, when he was in the 4th grade, his grades were very good. In the 1991-92 school year, when J.K. was in the 5th grade and in the 1992-93 school year when he was in the 6th grade, his grades fell to about average. In the 1993-94 school year, when J.K. was in the 7th grade and, in the 1994-95 school year, when he was in the 8th grade, his grades fell further and he failed some subjects. In the 1995-96 school year, when J.K. was in the 9th grade, his grades fell further; he failed more subjects; and he failed to attain sufficient points to advance to the 10th grade. J-1. (Apparently, J.K.'s parents have experienced marital difficulties and this may have contributed to his declining grades.)

In a letter, dated June 17, 1996, James J. Sanders, principal of the OBOE's school system, notified M.K. that J.K. had the "option" of attending summer school to make up classes so that "hopefully, in the future, [he would] be able to graduate with [his] class if [he] continued to make up credits" and, without authorization from the OBOE, he represented to M.K. that, for the 1996-97 school year, J.K. would be "placed in a 9th grade homeroom" in the CBOE's school system. J-2.

M.K. felt that J.K.'s declining grades had given him a poor reputation in the OBOE's school system and that a "fresh start" in the CBOE's school system would allow him to perform well and, relying on Mr. Sanders' letter, for the 1996-97 school year, J.K. enrolled in the CBOE's 9th grade.

J.K. began the 1996-97 school year in the CBOE's 9th grade and, in October 1996, the CBOE sent to the OBOE documentation showing that tuition was owed for J.K. OBOE-2. The OBOE then learned that J.K. was in the CBOE school system and it notified M.K. that J.K. should return to the OBOE's 9th grade. OBOE-1.

M.K. testified that she believed that J.K. was performing fairly well in the CBOE's school system. However, the OBOE's superintendent received a report from the CBOE school system that J.K. is again performing poorly in some subjects. That is to say, there is an issue of fact relative to whether J.K.'s performance in the CBOE school system has been substantially better than it was in the OBOE school system.

Certainly, the withdrawal of J.K. from the CBOE's school system and his return to and placement in the OBOE's school system will result in some disruption to his education. However, the petitioner has not proven that "irreparable harm will probably result" from the withdrawal, etc. This is an issue of fact that could not be resolved in the hearing on this motion. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(f)2. The school year is young and, with special attention by the school system staff of the OBOE (whose principal's letter caused J.K.'s placement in the CBOE's school system), the disruption can probably be minimized.

In any event, at this time, the "likelihood" is that J.K.'s placement in the CBOE's school system was contrary to the sending/receiving agreement between the OBOE and the CBOE and unauthorized by the OBOE. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(f)3.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Standards for the granting of a motion for emergent relief are well-established. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6; R. 4:52-1; Crowe v. DeGoia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-134 (1982).

Consistent with the "Findings of Fact," the petitioner has not, in the record made during the hearing on the motion, proven that "irreparable harm will probably result" from J.K.'s withdrawal from the CBOE's school system and return and placement in the OBOE's school system. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(f)2.

The "likelihood" is that J.K.'s placement in the CBOE's school system was contrary to the sending/receiving agreement between the OBOE and the CBOE and unauthorized by the OBOE, so that it would be unfair to the OBOE and the taxpayers of the Borough of Oaklyn to order that J.K. continue in the CBOE's school system, given the claim for tuition that will result from such an order. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(f)3.

Additionally, the CBOE has a claim for tuition for J.K.'s attendance in its school system. However, apparently, the CBOE was not notified of this case and had no opportunity to appear and represent its interests. It appears that the OBOE's principal's letter principal's caused J.K.'s placement in the CBOE's school system, so that the OBOE and not M.K. should be liable for J.K.'s attendance up to October 1996 (when the OBOE notified M.K. that J.K. should be returned to the OBOE's school system.) For any attendance after October 1996, the CBOE may claim tuition from the OBOE and/or M.K. and the CBOE should have notice and an opportunity to appear and represent its interests. Also, in a real-world sense, if the petitioner's motion were granted and an order were entered continuing J.K. in the CBOE's school system and if M.K. were to be held liable for tuition for that period of time, the CBOE might have difficulty collecting payment on its claim for tuition. All of these circumstances require the conclusion that the CBOE is a necessary party who must have notice and an opportunity to be heard before any relief, including the moved-for emergent relief may be ordered. N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.3(a), R. 4:6-2(f).

Finally, if the petitioner is confident in her case, she might enter into an agreement with the CBOE whereby, in consideration for her payment of tuition, J.K. could continue in the CBOE's school system.

Given the above, the petitioner fails to satisfy the above-cited standards and the motion for emergent relief may not granted. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(f)3.

ORDER

Consistent with the above, I DENY the motion for emergent relief.

I ORDER the following: (1) By November 15, 1996, M.K. will file in the OAL a motion to amend her petition to include the CBOE as a party (with a proposed amended petition) or she will file other evidence of notice to the CBOE of this case and its opportunity to appear and be heard. (2) By November 29, 1996, the parties may serve discovery requests. (3) By December 31, 1996, the parties will serve answers to the discovery requests. (4) A telephone conference to discuss the progress of the case and hearing dates will be set. (5) Most importantly, M.K. and the OBOE staff will meet and plan an education program to help J.K. end his declining grades and to provide an appropriate education for him. In this regard they should consider whether J.K. requires special attention from the OBOE's school system staff to assure an orderly return to that school system and they should consider whether J.K. requires classification, etc. See, e.g., N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.5(d)5.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this emergent matter, including the audio-cassette tape of the hearing, conducted on October 29, 1996, at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the Order of the ALJ have been reviewed. Upon such review, and in consideration of the standard for granting emergent relief as established by Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), the Commissioner determines to affirm the ALJ's Order denying petitioner's request for emergent relief in this matter, in that petitioner has failed to meet the requisite standard.

Accordingly, petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief is denied for the reasons expressed in the recommended Order, and the matter on the merits will proceed at the OAL, consistent with the recommendations of the ALJ.

NATURE OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about February 8, 1996, petitioner filed a petition with the State Department of Education (Department) contesting the results of a special election to the Board of Education of the Town of Irvington (respondent), an election in which he was a candidate. The Department transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 5, 1996 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On April 4, 1996, The Honorable Barbara A. Harned, Director and Chief ALJ of the OAL, issued an order consolidating this matter with others pending before the Department, solely regarding the issue of whether the Commissioner of the Department (Commissioner) has jurisdiction to determine the cases. A hearing in the current matter previously scheduled for April 30, 1996 was adjourned, pending a resolution of the issue of jurisdiction.

On June 11, 1996, Judge Harned issued an order, determining that the Commissioner has jurisdiction over the current matter, as well as the other pending matters which were consolidated. A hearing in the current case was scheduled for August 2, 1996.

A telephone conference was conducted on August 1, 1996, at which time petitioner stated that he intended to withdraw his petition. The scheduled hearing was therefore adjourned.

By letter dated August 19, 1996, referencing the prior telephone conference, this judge requested that petitioner file a letter of withdrawal or advise if he had changed his plans in that respect. Petitioner did not respond, and by letter dated September 10, 1996, I advised petitioner that if he did not respond within ten days, a decision dismissing his petition would issue. Petitioner did not respond to the latter letter, and the record is deemed to have closed on September 20, 1996.

FINDING AND CONCLUSION

Based on the above procedural history, I FIND that petitioner has failed to prosecute his petition in the current matter and CONCLUDE that his petition should be dismissed with prejudice.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the petition filed by petitioner with the Department on or about February 8, 1996 be and is hereby DISMISSED, with prejudice.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SYNOPSIS

In consolidated matters, petitioner alleged Board violated his tenure and seniority rights by failing to appoint him Supervisor of Extra-Curricular Activities for the 1994-95 school year and transferring him to an instructional position. Petitioner charged age discrimination and unlawful retaliation for filing his first petition.

ALJ concluded the Board did not discriminate against petitioner on the basis of age. ALJ concluded the Board wished to appoint persons at lower salaries. ALJ did find that following petitioner's claims, he did suffer an adverse employment action. ALJ concluded petitioner was entitled to assignment to one of the Supervisor of Extra-Curricular Activities positions commencing with the 1994-95 school year. The Board was ordered to place petitioner in one of those positions immediately and to pay him back pay and benefits based upon a salary of $74,500.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ's findings that petitioner was a tenured employee in a tenured position who was wrongfully not assigned to a supervisory position to which he was entitled by tenure right, which wrongful assignment was in retaliation for petitioner's filing an appeal of prior Board actions. Commissioner ordered petitioner placed in one of the Board's positions of Supervisor of Extra-Curricular Activities with compensation.

* Extensions of time for issuing the initial decision were requested and granted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

The first of these consolidated matters commenced on September 22, 1994, when Cordell Reinhardt (hereinafter petitioner) filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education alleging that the Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District (hereinafter respondent) had violated his tenure rights by failing to appoint him to the position supervisor of extra-curricular activities. Petitioner also alleged that respondent's actions constituted unlawful discrimination on the basis of age in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10. The petition sought an order requiring respondent to appoint him to the position and to compensate him for back pay and benefits. An answer was filed on behalf of respondent on November 1, 1994 and on November 30, 1994, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The case was assigned OAL Docket No. EDU 11556-94. Petitioner filed a second petition of appeal on October 31, 1994, in which he reiterated the same allegations concerning respondent's failure to appoint him to a vacancy which had occurred in the position and added the assertion that respondent's failure to appoint him to the vacancy was the result of unlawful retaliation for filing the first petition of appeal. An answer to the second petition was filed on behalf of respondent on December 6, 1994 and on December 13, 1994 the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law where it was assigned OAL Docket No. EDU 11971-94.

A prehearing conference was conducted in both matters on February 16, 1995. The prehearing order which was issued as a result thereof on February 24, 1995 consolidated the two cases for hearing at the request of the parties and set forth the following as issues for determination:

1. Did petitioner have tenure/seniority rights which would entitle him to the position supervisor of extra-curricular activities for the 1994-95 school year?

2. Did respondent's actions transferring petitioner to an instructional position violate N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10?

3. Were respondent's actions unlawfully motivated by age discrimination in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10?

4. Was respondent's refusal to appoint petitioner to a vacant supervisor's position in October 1994 unlawful reprisal?

5. If the answer to any of the foregoing questions is yes, what are the appropriate remedies?

Hearing dates were scheduled for April 10, 11, 13, May 10, June 8 and 9, 1996, at the Trenton office of the Office of Administrative Law. The April dates were adjourned at petitioner's request. The hearing commenced on May 10, continued on May 12, 24, June 8, 9, August 2, 3, 4, September 7, 15 and concluded on November 1, 1995. Following the close of testimony the record remained open for the receipt of written submissions. A brief on behalf of petitioner was filed on March 8, 1996. Respondent's post-hearing brief was filed on March 13, 1996. Petitioner filed a reply brief on April 19, 1996 and respondent's reply brief was received on May 20, 1996, whereupon the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Most of the facts relevant to a determination of this matter are not in dispute and I therefore FIND the following as uncontested facts.

Petitioner was first employed by respondent for the 1970-71 school year as a teacher of social studies assigned to Marlboro High School. At that time and continuing until 1977 a single Athletic Director was responsible for athletic activities in all of the schools within respondent's district. In 1977, the Athletic Director, Harold Schank, retired and five new positions were created, one for each high school building in the district. These positions were posted and advertised as Building Supervisor of Athletics. The job description, which was developed for these new positions, listed the following qualifications:

1. Bachelor's Degree required, graduate degree or credits desired, but not mandated.

2. Valid teacher certification required.

3. Supervisor or Administrative certification preferred, but not mandated.

4. Five years successful teaching experience, including some coaching experience.

The full job description, P-2 in evidence, is attached hereto and made a part hereof as if set forth herein at length. The following individuals were hired by respondent as Building Athletic Supervisors commencing in September 1977:

Cal Dean Wilson	-	Freehold Borough High School
Frank Petrulla	-	Howell High School
Bernard Goldwater	-	Freehold Township High School
Richard Kane	-	Manalapan High School
Richard Skehan	-	Marlboro High School

Each of these initial appointees held full-time teaching and/or academic supervisory positions in the district. Mr. Petrulla, Mr. Goldwater and Mr. Skehan were health and physical education subject area supervisors and Mr. Wilson and Mr. Kane had full-time teaching responsibilities. In accordance with the posting of the position, departmental supervisors who were appointed to the Building Athletic Supervisor position were required to continue teaching one period; other teaching staff members were required to continue teaching three periods or two teaching periods with one assigned duty.

For a brief period of time following their appointments, these Building Athletic Supervisors (who were frequently and commonly still referred to as Building Athletic Directors) performed and prepared formal written evaluations pursuant to paragraph number two of their job description, which provides:

2. Directs, coordinates and evaluates the work of all staff members employed as coaches or assistant coaches in the athletic program, and makes appropriate recommendations to the high school principal for their continued reemployment or termination.

In or about 1979, however, the Freehold Township Education Association filed a grievance concerning these evaluations because Mr. Wilson and Mr. Kane did not possess proper supervisory certification, i.e., neither held any certificate or endorsement which would permit them to perform evaluations of teaching staff members. Thereafter, then superintendent of schools, H. Victor Crespy, made a determination that none of the five supervisors would prepare formal written evaluations. During the years which followed and up to 1994-95, none of the Building Athletic Supervisors performed formal written evaluations for submission to the administration, although Mr. Goldwater did prepare some written evaluations which he gave to the coaches for the coaches' benefit, and on one occasion petitioner prepared and submitted a formal written evaluation of the athletic trainer who was not a certificated teaching staff member. Although Mr. Kane earned a masters degree and received a supervisor's endorsement in 1980, Mr. Wilson never did either.

At its regular meeting on June 21, 1982, respondent adopted a resolution providing that the Athletic Supervisor in each building should receive one additional release period for athletic work, and, accordingly when petitioner was appointed to the position Building Athletic Supervisor at the Marlboro High School commencing with the 1982-83 school year, he should have been responsible for two teaching periods in addition to his duties and functions as the Athletic Supervisor. It was petitioner's recollection, however, that during the 1982-83 school year he taught three periods a day and that in succeeding school years he taught one period per day until the 1985-86 school year. Although respondent had not adopted any further formal resolution further reducing the teaching load of Building Athletic Supervisors, Superintendent Crespy had made a determination to assign fewer teaching responsibilities, and commencing with the 1986-87 school year, petitioner and the other Athletic Supervisors were assigned no teaching duties. From 1986-87 until the conclusion of the 1993-94 school year, petitioner functioned as a full-time Building Athletic Supervisor. He performed each of the duties set forth in the job description, P-2 in evidence, attached. His formal performance evaluations which were performed by his supervisor, the school principal, were prepared on forms developed for evaluation of supervisory staff. The evaluations were uniformly favorable. Respondent's "Fall reports" to the County Superintendent concerning certification of staff members, at least those for 1992-93 and 1993-94, listed petitioner as a full-time Supervisor of Athletics, coded 0310 under the supervisors category rather than code 0426 (non-supervisory coordinator of athletics) listed under the none-supervisory coordinators category. The Preliminary Listing of 1990/91 Certificated Staff, which was offered by respondent as exhibit R-8 in evidence, also shows job code 0310.* Petitioner's compensation each year was calculated on the basis of his appropriate step on the teacher's salary guide plus a stipend as Athletic Director plus a separately-approved fee schedule for summer employment (for two to four weeks depending upon the year) and site supervision fees which were individual payments based upon individual athletic activities supervised during the year. Of these several compensation components, only the teachers guide salary (or supervisors guide for the subject area supervisors) was reported to the Teachers Pension and Annuity Fund as creditable for pension purposes.

Respondent issued separate appointment letters to petitioner and the other Building Athletic Supervisors each year. Respondent also issued separate annual appointment letters to each for his teaching or subject area supervisory appointment. Separate letters were also sent concerning summer employment each year. At all times relevant to these proceedings petitioner has held an instructional certificate with a social studies endorsement and an administrative certificate with a supervisor's endorsement issued by the State Board of Examiners.

On July 6, 1993, respondent posted a notice of vacancy in a position entitled Building Athletic Director. This position had become vacant upon the death of Mr. Wilson, the Building Athletic Supervisor at the Freehold Borough High School. The job description for the posting listed the following qualifications:

1. Master's Degree required.

* R-8 also shows job code 0310 for Mr. Wilson.

2. Valid teacher certification required.

3. Supervisor or Administrative certification required.

4. Five years successful teaching experience, including some coaching experience.

5. Such alternative to the above as may be determined by the Superintendent of Schools.

The performance responsibilities remained the same as those listed on the 1978 description with the addition of an eighteenth item, "Performs any other duties as determined by the superintendent or his designee." At the time respondent appointed Richard Allen to fill this position, Mr. Allen possessed neither a masters degree nor an administrative certificate. His administrative certificate with a supervisor endorsement indicates that it was issued by the Board of Examiners in July 1994. Nevertheless, he functioned for the entire 1993-4 school year as a Building Athletic Director (or Building Athletic Supervisor as the position had been redesignated by the Board in 1977.) Those Building Athletic Supervisors who were not also subject area supervisors remained members of the Freehold Regional Education Association; they were not included as members in the Freehold Regional Supervisors Association. Neither Association negotiated compensation for the position Building Athletic Supervisor, however.

By memorandum dated June 2, 1994, respondent's superintendent of schools, Daniel McGuire, provided to the Board members for proposed action by the Board the following Monday evening a resolution eliminating the position of Building Athletic Supervisor/Director and creating the position of Supervisor of Extra-curricular Activities. The memorandum also enclosed the job description for the newly created position, and further provided in pertinent part:

> In executive session we will review with you the salary range for the new position of Supervisor of Extra-Curricular Activities which will be considerably below the current range.

The resolution, which was adopted by respondent as its regular meeting on June 6, 1994, provided:

> WHEREAS, the enactment of N.J.S.A. 34:13A-23 has imposed on local school districts the need to develop and maintain documentary record concerning the work performance of teachers holding athletic or other extracurricular assignments; and
>
> WHEREAS, the enactment of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2.1 has further indicated desirability that those serving as supervisor of athletic programs, under whatever title, be qualified as supervisors pursuant to the rules and regulations of the New Jersey State Department of Education; and
>
> WHEREAS, the position of building supervisor of athletics currently employed in the school district is not adequate, in terms of minimum job qualifications, designated responsibilities and requirements created by these legislative enactments; and
>
> WHEREAS, the scope of the required increase in supervisory workload is such that it cannot be adequately managed by other current administrative and supervisory staff;
>
> NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED by the Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District that the five (5) part-time positions of building supervisor of athletics be and herewith are abolished effective June 30, 1994; and
>
> BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that five (5) new positions entitled Supervisor of Extracurricular Activities be and herewith are established effective July 1, 1994, with the employment qualifications and job responsibilities for said positions to be accordance with the job description established for the job title which is on file in the Office of the Superintendent of Schools in accordance with Board Policy #4117, Section III; and
> BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Superintendent of Schools be and herewith is authorized and directed to take all necessary and appropriate steps to seek qualified candidates for these newly established positions.

On June 7, 1994, respondent posted the notice of vacancy in the position titles Supervisor of Extra-Curricular Activities. The job description for the posting listed the following qualifications:

1. Master's Degree required.
2. Supervisor's certification required.
3. Valid teacher certification required.
4. Five years successful teaching experience, including coaching experience.
5. Such alternatives to the above as may be determined by the superintendent of schools.

A full copy of the job description for Supervisor of Extra-Curricular Activities is attached hereto and made a part hereof as if set forth herein at length. There were approximately fifty applicants. Petitioner was one of twelve finalists interviewed for the position by a selection committee established by the Superintendent. At the time of the interview, petitioner was fifty-four years old. Interviewees were rated by each of the five committee members based on their responses to questions and their performance at the interviews in eight specific categories. The rating scale was one to five, with five being the highest and, accordingly, the highest total rating could be forty. Petitioner's ratings were 29, 26, 35, 37 and 32, making his average 31.8, placing him seventh out of the twelve applicants. Mr. Goldwater, who at the time was fifty-nine years old, received an overall score which placed him in the top four interviewees; however, he declined the position when he was advised that there was no guarantee that he would continue to be assigned to Freehold Township High School where his two sons played sports. Mr. Petrulla, who was fifty-three years old, declined to apply for the position. Nine of these twelve finalists were reinterviewed by the Superintendent, Dr. McGuire, and an Assistant Superintendent, Dr. Emmerman, and the final selection was made independently by Dr. McGuire. Those he selected were the same individuals who had been rated the highest by the committee. Mr. Kane, who was fifty-one years old and Richard Allen (thirty-four years old) were appointed to the newly created positions along with Ronald Sutter (age thirty-seven) Linda Rocco (age thirty-nine) and Rebecca White-Johnson (age fifty-one). Ms. White-Johnson was appointed to the position based upon respondent's determination that she had acquired tenure as a supervisor in the district which entitled her as a matter of law to appointment to this position when her own position in the central office was abolished. Petitioner received a letter from respondent stating only that the Board had selected another candidate for the position at issue "whose credentials and abilities are closer to fitting our needs."

Respondent established a salary range for the new position from $62,000 to $74,000. Mr. Kane's salary in the new position was set at $74,500 (a slight increase over his previous compensation) and the others received between $62,000 and $65,000. Mr. Goldwater and Mr. Petrulla had been earning in excess of $80,000 per year, and petitioner's compensation for 1993-94 had been approximately $74,000.

When Ms. White-Johnson resigned from the position in mid-September 1994, respondent posted the vacancy and conducted a second round of interviews. The same interview score form was utilized during September 1994 interviews; however, the printed questions which were utilized by the interviewors were different. The committee still had five members although only two had been on the earlier selection committee. Petitioner received scores of 27, 28, 24, 24 and 28, making his average score 26.2 and placing him in a tie for fourth place of the seven applicants. Linda Jewell (age forty-four) who received the highest average score was appointed to the position. If the list from the June 1994 interviews had been utilized, only one person would have been ranked ahead of petitioner, and that person had already accepted and started a full-time position in another district for 1994-95. During the 1994-95 school year petitioner was reassigned as a teacher of social studies and received a salary of $59,940. This concludes the uncontested facts.

The areas of factual dispute are two; the first relates to witness credibility on the issues of age discrimination and reprisal. The other relates primarily to conclusions to be drawn from the facts rather than to the facts themselves. There was also an extensive amount of testimony concerning the minute details of petitioner's performance of each of the responsibilities set forth in his job description, P-2 attached hereto. It is clear, however, that petitioner and the other Building Athletic Supervisors performed each and every one of the job responsibilities in the description, including, "Evaluat(ing) the work of all staff members employed as coaches or assistant coaches in the athletic program and mak(ing) appropriate recommendations to the high school principal for their continued employment or termination." As set forth in the uncontested facts above, these evaluations were not formal written evaluations, but rather were the results of the Building Athletic Supervisor's observations and were then reported as impressions to the building principals.

Several witnesses testified relevant to the issue of whether a supervisor's endorsement was "required" for the position Building Athletic Supervisor. Richard Kane testified that Dr. Crespy had advised him in 1977 that he would be appointing him Building Athletic Supervisor, but that he expected Mr. Kane to obtain both a masters degree and a supervisor's endorsement before the 1980-81 school year. Mr. Kane was unaware whether Superintendent Crespy had given the same instructions to Mr. Wilson. He did indicate that on numerous occasions he and Mr. Wilson discussed the possibility of Mr. Wilson's enrolling in a masters program to obtain a supervisor's endorsement. Mr. Wilson frequently indicated that he would be doing so "next fall;" however, as Mr. Wilson continued to say that over the years without enrolling in a masters program, the other Building Athletic Supervisors concluded that it was never going to happen, Mr. Kane testified.

Walter J. Zuber, former Assistant Superintendent for Personnel, now retired, testified that in his opinion the 1993 job description for "Building Athletic Director" did not change the qualifications for Building Athletic Supervisor even though the language in the job descriptions differed because item number five in the 1993 description, "such alternative to the above as may be determined by the superintendent of schools," gave the superintendent the discretion to waive the requirement for a supervisor's endorsement. He also testified that he had been primarily responsible for preparing the language in P-2 in evidence, the 1978 job description, and that the language was written the way it was because Mr. Wilson and Mr. Kane did not have supervisory endorsements.

With respect to this issue, I FIND that the appropriate certification for the performance responsibilities set forth in the 1978 job description was an administrative certificate with a supervisor's endorsement or some other endorsement which would permit the holder of the position to perform all of the duties set forth in the description, specifically, the descriptions which state that the holder "supervises: all coaches, equipment manager, officials, game personnel and student workers assigned to the athletic department" and "directs, coordinates and evaluates the work of all staff members . . . " In order to evaluate the work of teaching staff members as that word is generally used in the Education Regulations and in Board policy, i.e., a certain number of formal written evaluations depending upon the teaching staff members status, a teaching staff member must possess an administrative certificate with one of the specified endorsements.

As a practical matter and in actuality the supervisor's endorsement was required of each of the Building Athletic Supervisors by Dr. Crespy with the exception of Mr. Wilson. Mr. Kane was a candid, sincere and credible witness. I FIND that Dr. Crespy required him to obtain his masters degree and supervisor's endorsement within a period of three years of his initial appointment to the position. Whether Dr. Crespy also required this of Mr. Wilson is not known; what is known is that Mr. Wilson never acquired the supervisor's endorsement or began a masters program to work toward obtaining the endorsement. Nevertheless, for whatever reason, Mr. Wilson was permitted to continue in the position Building Athletic Supervisor performing all of the job responsibilities the same as the other properly certificated holders of the position. In fact, the properly certficated holders of the position were not permitted to perform the formal written evaluations which otherwise would have been required out of deference to Mr. Wilson who could not perform that function. Whether this deference to Mr. Wilson was because of his age (exhibit R-8 in evidence indicates he was born in 1938) his years of service, his ill health, his personal popularity or perhaps some affirmative action goal (R-8 in evidence indicates Mr. Wilson's race as Black) cannot be determined on the basis of the record in this matter. The reason for this de facto grandfathering of Mr. Wilson with respect to the supervisor endorsement requirement is not relevant to any issue in this matter, however. I FIND that the supervisor endorsement was in fact required to perform the duties of the position.

Also apparently in dispute was whether the position Building Athletic Supervisor was a full-time position. Why this issue is in dispute is not exactly clear; it is undisputed that from 1986-87 forward, Mr. Kane, Mr. Wilson and petitioner all devoted their full-time efforts to the performance responsibilities of the Building Athletic Supervisor. None of these individuals was assigned any teaching duties. During the same period of time, Mr. Goldwater and Mr. Petrulla performed all of the same performance responsibilities; in addition, however, they were responsible for performing whatever job duties were included in the position title Supervisor of Health and Physical Education. That fact, however, did not make petitioner a part-time Building Athletic Supervisor. What duties were assigned to department supervisors and the amount of time performance of those duties consumed cannot be determined from this record. The legitimate conclusion is that Mr. Goldwater and Mr. Petrulla had more work to do than Building Athletic Supervisors who were not also subject matter supervisors. That is undoubtedly why they were paid more.

As noted in the uncontested facts set forth hereinabove, the Fall Report to the county superintendent of schools submitted by respondent described petitioner as a full-time supervisor of athletics. The fact that the full-time nature of the duties for a period of seven years may not have been made apparent to the Board of Education as evidenced by the language in their June 6, 1994 resolution abolishing the "part-time position" does not change the full-time nature of the performance responsibilities. Also irrelevant is the fact that Dr. Emmerman thought that the duties of Building Athletic Directors were part-time and would constitute only a small portion of the duties of the newly created Supervisor of Extra-Curricular Activities. Obviously, Dr. Emmerman was misinformed about the full-time nature of the position and what percentage the position's duties would represent in the new position (Mr. Kane testified that most of his time in the new position is still occupied with supervising athletic activities and this is also apparent from a comparative review of the two job descriptions, P-2 and P-4 in evidence, attached). Dr. Emmerman was further misinformed about the position title (she thought that there was no position entitled Building Athletic Supervisor) and the specific performance responsibilities, e.g., the responsibility to "evaluate the work of all staff members employed as coaches, etc." Furthermore, even if the duties of Building Athletic Supervisor had been part-time in the sense that some periods of teaching duty were required, such a situation would not prevent the acquiring of tenure in a supervisory position; respondent certainly acknowledges that subject area supervisors are tenured supervisors in the district and their job duties require some teaching periods. With respect to this issue, based upon all of the foregoing, I FIND that the position Building Athletic Supervisor was a full-time position.

I do not find, however, that Dr. Emmerman's misunderstandings concerning petitioner's job duties and the job duties of the other Building Athletic Supervisors reflect negatively upon her credibility with respect to her testimony concerning instructions given to members of the committee to interview applicants for Supervisor of Extra-Curricular Activities or with respect to her testimony concerning her own personal knowledge of when petitioner filed the first petition of appeal in these matters. Dr. Emmerman's testimonial demeanor was that of a candid, sincere and credible witness. She certainly appeared certain that there was no such position as Building Athletic Supervisor and that the position of Athletic Director was only a part-time position. Clearly, she was incorrect about both of these issues, something which could easily be determined from a review of the record in this matter and therefore would have been a very foolish thing to purposefully misrepresent. I FIND that Dr. Emmerman testified truthfully when she indicated that neither she nor, to her knowledge, any of the other committee members had been given instructions to favor younger candidates. I FURTHER FIND that she testified truthfully when she stated that she had first learned of petitioner's filing of petition of a appeal with the Commissioner in the Spring of 1995, just before the hearings in these consolidated matters began. Her explanation that at the time the petition had first been filed in September of 1994, she had been involved in intensive litigation involving the expulsion of a student and had missed a number of Board meetings was a very plausible explanation for why an assistant superintendent of schools would have been unaware of newly filed litigation.

The testimony of Harold J. Wasser, the current Assistant Superintendent in charge of personnel who replaced Mr. Zuber, was not so clearly forthright on either of these issues, however. The testimonial demeanor of Mr. Wasser was that of a witness who was more concerned with providing an answer that would further respondent's position than with simply reporting the facts. His answers were frequently evasive, inconsistent or confusing, even in response to the questions asked by respondent's own attorney. For example, the following series of questions and answers on direct examination relates to his functions as chairperson of the interview committee which conducted the interviews of candidates for the position Supervisor of Extra-Curricular Activities in June 1994:

Q Okay. And after Dr. McGuire and Dr. Emmerman completed their interviews with those candidates, did Dr. McGuire have any further discussion with you prior to making recommendations to the board for appointment?

A Dr. McGuire asked me for the ranking of the committee, based on the scores that the individual received on the rating sheets.

Q Let me back up a moment. Didn't you give Dr. McGuire the rankings before he held those interviews?

A I don't recall the date which I gave him that.

Q Well, was it before or -- you said just now that after his interviews, he asked you for the rankings.

A It --

Q Didn't you give them to him before?

A It could have been close to the time when he was going to see the people. I don't recall the exact date.

Q Mr. -- Mr. Wasser --

A Uh-huh.

Q -- the question is, did you give Dr. McGuire your committee's rankings of the candidates before he conducted his interviews of after?

A I -- I gave him a sheet, I believe the memo was before he met with Dr. Emmerman and each of those individuals.

Q Okay. So, he had your rankings?

A Uh-huh.

Q But then after the interview, he again -- after his interviews, he again asked you about the rankings?

A He asked me about the ranking.

His testimony about selecting younger, lower paid applicants was also evasive:

Q And there was a determination, was there not, on the part of Dr. McGuire that individuals performing the duties of building athletic supervisors plus additional duties would be getting less than what they were receiving as building athletic supervisors. Is that correct?

A No, it's not correct.

Q. Did you speak with Dr. McGuire as to what was meant by his statement that the salary range for the new position of supervisor of extra curricular activities would be considerably below the current range?

A I -- I presented to Dr. McGuire, as I told you earlier, that I looked at the teacher's guide, the top of the teachers' guide, the supervisors guide, and what people were currently making and what people were making in that area. So I had a range in mind that I discussed with the Superintendent.

Q No.

THE COURT: That wasn't the question though. He wanted to know if Dr. McGuire had discussed with you what he meant by --

THE WITNESS: No.

THE COURT: -- considerably below the current range.

THE WITNESS: No. No, he didn't.

Q Did you ask him any questions once you received a copy of --

A No.

Q -- this letter?

A No

Q Did you receive a copy of this June 2, 1994, piece of correspondence? After all, it's addressed to Board members.

A I would have gotten that with the Board agenda on the Friday before.

Q You would have received it?

A Right.

Q Isn't it true that Mr. Kane, in fact, received a salary adjustment above what he was making as a building athletic supervisor when he was appointed to the supervisor of extra curricular activities position? Or did he receive the same salary?

A I believe it was very -- very similar. I don't think it was a significant --

Q Did he receive less?

A I --

MR. KENNEY: Mr. Hunter, I'll stipulate that it was a bit higher.

MR. HUNTER: It was a bit higher?

THE WITNESS: A bit higher.

Q Then how would Dr. McGuire know prior to the receipt of any resumes from anyone, prior to the interviewing process, that the salary range for the new position would be considerably below the current range?

A I can only make an assumption. But he knew two or three of the people were making in the 80's, 80 -- $80,000 or more.

Q Who were those two or three people?

A Mr. Goldwater; Mr. Petrulla, former AD. I don't -- Mr. Reinhardt's was in the higher -- I believe in the70's, mid-70's.

Q And he already knew as of June 2, 1994, that they weren't going to accept those positions or would not be offered those positions. Isn't that true? He was getting rid of all of the older supervisors of athletics. Correct?

A I don't -- what do you mean getting rid of all the older -- no. There was one --

Q Well, he makes the statement, the range --

A Right.

Q -- would be considerably less. He must have known that he could not unilaterally reduce the salaries of supervisors in the District.

A My interpretation of that statement, considerably less, was that there were people making in the 80's, this position was not going to pay in the 80's. That's what I interpret that to mean.

Also totally incredible was Mr. Wasser's testimony that he did not regard the Building Athletic Supervisor position to be a full-time position. Mr. Wasser had direct contact with the holders of the position and was fully aware of the fact that they had no teaching duties. In the following series of questions and answers on cross-examination by petitioner's counsel, Mr. Wasser could not explain why he would categorize the position as being part-time in his dealings with respondent:

Q Isn't it true, Mr. Wasser, that the Board of Education was always advised that the Supervisor of Athletics or Building Athletic Director positions were only part-time stipend positions?

A The positions in the Board agenda each met -- met each April, were appointments for a teacher, for Mr. Reinhardt, and for Mr. Kane and for Mr. Wilson at that time and for the other two gentlemen, Mr. Goldwater and for Mr. Petrulla, they were under the area of Building Department Supervisor for Phys Ed and Health.

MR. HUNTER: Your Honor, --

THE WITNESS: That was the position.

MR. HUNTER: -- could you please direct Mr. Wasser to answer the question? I believe it was a very simple question.

THE COURT: You have to listen to the question that's asked and only answer the question that's asked.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

Could you repeat the question?

BY MR. HUNTER:

Q Isn't it true, Mr. Wasser, that the Board of Education was only advised that the Building Athletic Director or Building Athletic Supervisor position was a part-time stipend position?

A The Athletic Supervisor position was appointed as an honoraria position.

I don't --

THE COURT: Yes. He wants to know whether it's true that the Board was only advised that it was a part-time stipended position.

THE WITNESS: I believe so, yes.

BY MR. HUNTER:

Q Was the Board of Education, during this time period the Building Athletic Supervisor position existed, advised that these individuals were teaching staff members employed within the district with instructional responsibilities?

A Three were teachers, two were supervisors, department supervisors.

Q Was the Board of Education -- ask the question again -- advised that the Building Athletic Supervisors were teaching staff members with instructional responsibilities?

A I don't know if they were told that specifically, with instructional responsibilities.

Q Isn't it true that no Building Athletic Supervisor had had instructional responsibilities within the Freehold Regional High School District since the 1986-87 school year?

A I believe when I started in the district they did not have instructional teaching responsibilities.

On August 3, 1995, when respondent's attorney questioned Mr. Wasser concerning his knowledge regarding the petition of appeal in the within matters, he claimed to be unaware of the September 22, 1994 filing of the first petition of appeal as of the time he was involved in conducting interviews on September 28, 1994 to fill the vacancy in the position created by the resignation of Ms. White-Johnson:

Q Mr. Wasser, as you know, the proceeding -- the -- which gave rise to the hearing that we're in today was initiated by a petition of appeal filed by Mr. Reinhardt. That petition of appeal was filed before the selection for the vacancy created by Ms. White-Johnson's resignation was filled. Were you aware of the fact that Mr. Reinhardt had filed a petition of appeal against the board at the time you conducted your interviews and gave your ratings and compiled other people's ratings, as well?

A No. I was not.

Q Did you become aware of Mr. Reinhardt's petition of appeal at some point in that process?

A Yes. I did.

Q When did you become aware of it?

A I had nothing in writing, because Mr. Zuber was still handling the personnel work.

Q Yeah.

A And there -- I heard, I believe, after the interviews that there was a possibility that Mr. Reinhardt was going to sue the board of education.

Q Okay. Who did you hear that from?

A In discussions with Mr. Zuber and the superintendent.

Q Okay. Were those discussions held in the context of your committee's recommendation for filling the vacancy?

A Yes.

Q Tell me what occurred. And who was the -- who was the -- this discussion with?

A With Dr. McGuire and Mr. -- and I believe Mr. Zuber was there.

Q All right. Tell me about the discussion.

A The discussion was related to that if Mr. Reinhardt received the position that was now vacated by Mrs. Johnson, that then we would not go into court and there would not be any law suit, if we gave him the position.

Q Okay. Were you aware that the law suit had already been filed?

A Not at that point, no.

Q Okay. And was this after you had completed your ratings --

A Yes.

Q Okay. Did this -- did Dr. McGuire ask you to modify your ratings to put Mr. Reinhardt at the top?

A Absolutely not.

When he testified on cross-examination on November 1, 1995, however, he stated that he did know that a petition of appeal had been filed by petitioner when he conducted the second round of interviews concerning the vacancy left in the position by Ms. White-Johnson's resignation. Based upon all of the foregoing, I FIND that Mr. Wasser was aware when he conducted the second set of interviews on September 28, 1994, that petitioner had filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education the week before. I FURTHER FIND that Mr. Wasser was aware at the times he conducted both sets of interviews that the goal in selecting persons to fill the new positions was to reduce the costs to respondent for salaries paid from those previously paid to holders of the title Building Athletic Supervisor.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

Petitioner asserts that he had tenure in the position Building Athletic Supervisor, that when respondent acted to abolish the position and to replace it with the position Supervisor of Extra-Curricular Activities, he had tenure rights to the new position and that, therefore, when respondent transferred him for the 1994-95 school year to the position teacher of social studies and reduced his compensation from approximately $74,000 per year to $59,940 , it violated his tenure rights. Respondent concedes that if petitioner held tenure in the position Building Athletic Supervisor, then he was entitled to appointment to the newly created position of Supervisor of Extra-Curricular Activities by reason of his tenure rights. It is respondent's position that petitioner never acquired tenure in any supervisory position, however, because: 1) no supervisory certificate was required of the position; 2) petitioner did not, in fact, perform supervisory duties; and 3) the position was a part-time extra-curricular position for which tenure could not be acquired.

Tenure is a legislative status, not a contractual one, and in order to be protected by the status, a teaching staff member must have met the precise conditions articulated in the statute. In order to acquire tenure in any position in the public schools in any district, the teaching staff member must be a citizen of the United States (N.J.S.A. 18A:28-3), must hold an appropriate certificate for the position, issued by the State Board of Examiners, in full force and effect (N.J.S.A. 18A:28-4) and, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, must hold employment in the district for:

> (a) three consecutive calendar years, or any shorter period which may be fixed by the employing board for such purpose; or
> (b) three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
> (c) the equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years.

Prior to amendment in 1962, the tenure statute set forth only four tenure eligible positions: teacher, principal, assistant superintendent, and superintendent, and no rights of tenure attached to any gradation within any one of those designations. See, Lascari v. Board of Education of Borough of Lodi, 36 N.J. Super. 426 (App. Div. 1955), wherein is was held that the position of vice principal had no tenure, and, therefore, where the teacher, after serving as vice-principal, was transferred to regular teaching duties without loss of salary, he was not deprived of his tenure status which was merely that of a teacher. This was specifically changed by the 1962 amendment to the statute which provided in pertinent part:

> The services of all teaching staff members including all teachers, principals, assistant principals, vice principals, superintendents, assistant superintendents, and all school nurses. . . and such other employees as are in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners . . . shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and they shall > not be dismissed or reduced in compensation. . . . (Emphasis added.)*

That tenure is acquired in a particular position is made clear by the effect of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6, which was also part of the 1962 amendment, and provides:

> Any such teaching staff member under tenure or eligible to obtain tenure under this chapter, who is transferred or promoted with his consent to another position covered by this chapter on or after July 1, 1962, shall not obtain tenure in the new position until after:
>
> (a) the expiration of a period of employment of two consecutive calendar years in the new position unless a shorter period is fixed by the employing board for such purposes; or
>
> (b) employment for two academic years in the new position together with employment in the new position at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
>
> (c) employment in the new position within a period of any three consecutive academic years, for the equivalent of more than two academic years;
> provided that the period of employment in such new position shall be included in determining the tenure and seniority rights in the former position held by such teaching staff member, and in the event the employment in such new position is terminated before tenure is obtained therein, if he then has tenure in the district or under said board of education, such teaching staff member shall be returned to his former position at the salary which he would have received had the transfer or promotion not occurred together with any increase to which he would have been entitled during the period of such transfer or promotion.

I have found as a matter of fact hereinabove that the position Building Athletic Supervisor required an administrative certificate with a supervisor endorsement as the appropriate certificate to hold the position. This conclusion is further supported by language in the Legislative Statement appended to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2.1, adopted in 1991, with an effective date of July 1, 1994, which requires all candidates for appointment to positions as "director of athletics" in any public secondary school to possess a supervisor's endorsement:

> This bill requires that newly employed high school directors of athletics must possess a supervisory certificate issued by the State Board of Examiners. This requirement would come into effect beginning with the third school year following the bill's enactment. Currently employed directors of athletics would be exempt from the new requirement.
> Athletics have become an increasingly significant component of the educational program in every school in the State. With the expanding emphasis on athletics has come a multidimensional expansion in the supervisory responsibilities and duties of athletic directors. These supervisory responsibilities include recruiting, selecting and evaluating coaches and trainers, ordering equipment, maintaining inventories, establishing crowd control and safety, reviewing eligibility, providing transportation and scheduling comprehensive physical examinations.

Petitioner's position as Building Athletic Supervisor included all the duties mentioned in the Senate Committee Statement; it was clearly a supervisory position. "Supervisor" is defined at N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(c), as "any school officer who is charged with authority and responsibility for the continuing direction and guidance of the work of instructional personnel."* The duties are spelled out in P-2 in evidence in language that even uses the word "supervises." Petitioner was evaluated by his supervisors on forms designed to evaluate supervisors because that form, not the teacher evaluation form, was most appropriate for his job duties. Petitioner performed all of the duties except the one he was not permitted to perform - preparing formal written evaluations. The fact that he did not perform that duty, however, does not require a conclusion that he was not a supervisor. In Euell v. Bd. of Ed. of the Princeton Regional School District, 1978 S.L.D. 666, 669, the hearing examiner, whose decision the Commissioner adopted as his own, explained:

* All coaches are required to hold a certificate issued by the State Board of Examiners, N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3, so those whom petitioner supervised are legitimately designated as instructional personnel. In Smith v. Jersey City Bd. of Ed., 1980 S.L.D. 1079; aff'd 1981 S.L.D. 1486, cited by respondent, those whom Smith supervised were not certificated instructional personnel and therefore Smith was not a "supervisor."

> Thus, is can be seen from the record and the testimony that petitioner performed some of the duties of an assistant principal except that she did not evaluate teachers during the 1972-73 school year and during May and June 1973. She became eligible for a principal's certificate as of May 19, 1973 and thereafter could have conducted teacher evaluations if so required. Although a certificate as a principal, supervisor or school administrator is required for any person evaluating a teacher's performance or supervising instruction, the holder of such a certificate is not always required to evaluate teachers as a condition to his/her administrative position. It is common knowledge that some school systems have assistant principals who act only as school disciplinarians and do not evaluate teachers and supervise instruction, although they may do so, if required.

Reiterating the well established principle that the duties performed rather than the title of a position must be controlling in determining whether a position is protected by tenure, the Commissioner concluded that Ms. Euell had acquired tenure as an assistant principal. The fact that she had not performed the formal evaluations she was qualified to perform did not preclude the determination.

In the present matter, petitioner held the appropriate certificate for the position and he held the position more than long enough to satisfy the statutory requirements for tenure. The fact that respondent issued a separate appointment letter every year is irrelevant; respondent also continued to issue a separate appointment letter for a teaching position each year to staff members who obviously had tenure in the position teacher! Nor is it relevant how respondent chose to characterize the components of petitioner's compensation package for pension purposes. Creditable salary for pension purposes is an issue for determination by the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund and has nothing to do with tenure. See Siri v. Board of Trustees, 262 N.J. Super. 147 (App. Div. 1993). Finally, Mr. Wilson's tenure or non-tenure status in the same position title may not affect petitioner's status. The fact that Mr. Wilson could not have obtained tenure in the position because he did not have the appropriate certificate has nothing to do with petitioner's tenure claim. Also relevant to the finding that petitioner is a tenured supervisor is the Commissioner's recent decision in Connor v. Bd. of Ed. of the Township of Cinnaminson, EDU 11973-94, decided July 18, 1996. The facts in that case were remarkably similar to those in the present matter, although the Board's legal theory of the case differed. In Connor the Board admitted that the petitioner (whose title had been "Athletic Director" before the position was "abolished" and replaced by the position "Director of Athletics and Activities") was a tenured supervisor.

Accordingly, the inescapable conclusion is that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(b), petitioner held tenure in the position Building Athletic Supervisor commencing with the beginning of the academic year following two full years in the position.

Petitioner also claims that respondent's actions violated N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10 which provides:

> Dismissals resulting from any such reduction shall not be made by reason of residence, age, sex, marriage, race, religion or political affiliation but shall be made on the basis of seniority according to standards to be established by the commissioner with the approval of the state board. (Emphasis added)

In evaluating petitioner's age discrimination claims the place to start is to refer to the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (N.J.S.A. 10:5-12(a)) which, in pertinent part, makes it an unlawful employment practice, or unlawful discrimination:

> For an employer, because of the . . . age . . . of any individual . . . to discriminate against such individual in compensation or in terms, conditions or privileges of employment.

The Federal Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA) 29 U.S.C.A. §621 et seq. also prohibits employers from treating employees differently because of their age.

In the recent New Jersey Appellate Division decision Kelly vs. Bally's Grand, Inc., 285 N.J. Super. 422 (1995), the Appellate Division held as follows concerning the applicable standards regarding age discrimination claims brought under New Jersey State statutes:

> As in other employment discrimination claims arising under the LAD, a multi-step testing procedure, involving burden shifting, is to be applied to plaintiff's claim that she was passed over for promotion on the basis of her age. See Waldron vs. S.L. Industries, Inc., 849 F.Supp. 996, 1000 (D.N.J. 1994).
> In Erickson vs. Marsh & McLennan, 117 N.J. 539, 550, 569 A.2d 793 (1990), our Supreme Court explained the initial analysis for LAD claims, as follows: plaintiff must demonstrate that he or she: (1) belongs to a protected class; (2) applied and was qualified for the position for which the employer was seeking applicants; (3) was rejected despite adequate qualifications; and (4) after rejection, the position remained open and the employer continued to seek applications for persons of plaintiff's qualifications. Ibid, (quoting Andersen vs. Exxon Company, 89 N.J. 483, 492, 446 A.2d 486 (1982). Of course, these factors provide only a general framework and must be modified where appropriate. Clowes vs. Terminix International, Inc., 109 N.J. 575, 597, 538 A.2d 794 (1988).
>
> The Federal Courts have articulated a specific test with regard to age discrimination, which is helpful in analyzing plaintiff's case:
>
> > [T]he plaintiff must prove by a preponderance of evidence that he was (1) a member of a protected class (here [or she], persons aged forty to seventy), (2) qualified for the position, (3) . . . not selected for [the] position, and (4) passed over in favor of a candidate sufficiently younger to permit an inference of age discrimination. [Waldron vs. S.L. Industries, supra, 849 F.Supp. at 1001].
> Once plaintiff has passed the above four part test, and has thereby established a prima facie case, discrimination is presumed on the part of the employer, and the burden shifts to the employer to articulate a legitimate, non-discriminatory reason for the employment action. Ibid; see also McDonnell Douglas vs. Green, 411 U.S. 792, 93 S.Ct. 1817, 36 L.Ed.2d 668 1973); St. Mary's > Honor Center vs. Hicks, ----U.S.----, 113 S.Ct. 2742, 125 L.Ed.2d 407 1993). If the employer articulates a legitimate reason for its employment decision, the burden again shifts to the plaintiff to show that the employer's articulated reason was not the true motivating reason, but was merely a pretext to mask the discrimination. Ibid.

Once a discrimination complaint proceeds to the stage where a respondent has articulated its asserted legitimate non-discriminatory reason for the employment action, as is the case here, "whether the plaintiff really [did make out a prima facie case] is no longer relevant." U.S. Postal Service Bd. of Govs. v. Aikens, 75 L.Ed.2d 403, 410 (1983). The task of the finder of fact at this point is to "decide which party's explanation of the employer's motivation it believes." Id. at 411. The complainant always retains the burden to persuade by a preponderance of the evidence that intentional unlawful age discrimination has occurred.

In the present matter, respondent has offered a number of reasons for its failure to appoint petitioner to the new position, including the one set forth in the letter to him that other candidates better satisfied respondent's needs, that qualified women were selected under affirmative action goals, that administrators were unhappy with petitioner's performance because of a couple of specific incidents outside the scope of his formal written evaluations, etc. Petitioner asserts, and the evidence in this matter confirms, that respondent's real motivation was to save money. Petitioner calls the sentence in the June 2, 1994 memorandum from Dr. McGuire to the Board members "a smoking gun." Clearly the "reasons" articulated in the June 6, 1994 resolution did not require that the position Building Athletic Supervisor be abolished and replaced. I CONCLUDE that respondent wished to appoint persons to these positions who would accept a lower salary than the compensation paid to Building Athletic Supervisors during 1993-94. Discrimination on the basis of high salary, however, does not equate with age discrimination. Although it may be true that older employees are more frequently the higher paid employees and therefore a policy of removing higher paid employees would have a disparate impact on the class of older employees, several courts have held that disparate impact claims are not cognizable under the ADEA. See Ellis v. United Airlines, Inc., 73 F.3d 999 (10th Cir. 1996); EEOC v. Francis W.

Parker School, 41 F.3d 1073 (7th Cir. 1994), cert. denied, --- U.S.----, 115 S.Ct. 2577, 132 L.Ed.2d 828 (1995); Martincic v. Urban Redevelopment Authority of Pittsburgh, 844 F.Supp. 1073 (W.D.Pa. 1994). See also DiBiase v. SmithKline Beecham Corporation, 48 F.3d 719, 732-34 (3d Cir.) (statement of Judge Greenberg) (stating that "it is doubtful that traditional disparate impact theory is a viable theory under the ADEA"). Plaintiffs in age discrimination cases must therefore prove intentional disparate treatment on the basis of age. The Court in Hazen Paper Company v. Biggins, 507 U.S. 604, 123 L.Ed.2d 388 (1993) explained:

> Disparate treatment, thus defined, captures the essence of what Congress sought to prohibit in the ADEA. It is the very essence of age discrimination for an older employee to be fired because the employer believes that productivity and competence decline with old age . . . . Congress' promulgation of the ADEA was prompted by its concern that older workers were being deprived of employment on the basis of inaccurate and stigmatizing stereotypes. Id. at 610.

In Sperling v. Hoffmann-LaRoche, Inc., 924 F.Supp. 1346 (D.N.J. 1996), Judge Ackerman further explained:

> In Hazen Paper, the Supreme Court emphasized that when an employer's decision is entirely motivated by factors other than age, the problem of inaccurate and stigmatizing stereotypes is not present. See id. This is the case even where the motivating factor is correlated with age. For example, pension status is typically correlated with age. However, if an employer fires an employee solely because the employee's pension is about to vest, the employer does not violate the ADEA, even if older employees are more likely to be close to having their pensions vest than younger employees. See id. at 609-13, 113 S.Ct. at 1706-07. This is because [t]he prohibited stereotype ("Older employees are likely to be . . .") would not have figured in this decision, and the attendant stigma would not be the result of an inaccurate and denigrating generalization about age, but would rather represent an accurate judgment about the employee--that he indeed is "close to vesting."
> Id. at 612, 113 S.Ct. at 1707. In other words, "[b]ecause age and years of service are analytically distinct, an employer can take account of one while ignoring the other, and thus it is incorrect to > say that a decision based on years of service is necessarily 'age-based.'" Id.

Several courts have noted that high salary is similar to years of service in that while, on average, those workers with the highest salaries are older workers, high salary and age are nonetheless analytically distinct, and therefore, termination decisions based on the employee's level of compensation are not violative of the ADEA. Thomure v. Phillips Furniture Company, 30 F.3d 1020, 1024 (8th Cir. 1994); Anderson v. Baxter Healthcare Corp., 13 F.3d 1120 (7th Cir. 1993). Based upon the foregoing, although I am persuaded that respondent's real reason for the actions herein was to save money, I CONCLUDE that respondent did not discriminate against petitioner on the basis of age.

The final issue for consideration is whether respondent retaliated against petitioner after he filed his petition of appeal in the within matter by failing to appoint him to the vacancy which occurred when Ms. White-Johnson resigned. The Law Against Discrimination prohibits acts of reprisal against a person because he or she has opposed any practice or act forbidden under the LAD, or because he or she has filed a complaint, testified or assisted in any proceedings under the LAD. N.J.S.A. 10:5-12d.; Velantzas v. Colgate Palmolive Co., 109 N.J. 189, 192 (1988). To establish a prima facie claim of unlawful reprisal, a complainant must demonstrate that (1) she engaged in a protected activity that was known by the alleged retaliator; (2) she thereafter suffered an adverse employment action; and (3) there was a causal connection between the protected activity and the adverse action. See Jamison v. Rockaway Tp. Bd. of Educ., 242 N.J. Super. 436, 445 (App. Div. 1990); see also Jalil v. Avdel Corp., 873 F.2d 701 (3d Cir. 1989), cert. den. 493 U.S. 1023 (1990); Wrighten v. Metropolitan Hospitals, Inc., 726 F.2d 1346, 1354 (9th Cir. 1984). The third element--the causal link--is often inferred from a close proximity in time between the protected activity and the adverse employment action. See, e.g., Weiss v. Parker Hannifan Corp., 747 F.Supp. 1118 [57 FEP Cases 216, 226] (D.N.J. 1990); Mandia v. ARCO Chemicals Co., 618 F.Supp. 1248 (W.D.Pa. 1985).

A respondent can rebut a prima facie case by articulating a legitimate, nonretaliatory reason for the action in question. The complainant is then entitled to demonstrate by a preponderance of the evidence that the articulated reason is pretextual in nature and that the employer's action was motivated by a discriminatory intent. If the complainant meets this burden, a presumption exists that the adverse employment action resulted from improper retaliatory intent. To rebut this presumption, the respondent must prove by a preponderance of the evidence that he or she would have taken the adverse action regardless of retaliatory intent. See Jamison, supra, 242 N.J. Super. at 445-46.

In this matter it is undisputable that petitioner engaged in a protected activity that was known by the alleged retaliators; namely, he asserted that they had discriminated against him on the basis of his age. It is also undisputable that shortly thereafter he suffered an adverse employment action: respondent conducted a second round of interviews for the vacant position and awarded the position to someone else. Respondent has not explained why it conducted a second round of interviews and simply did not use the list from the previous set of interviews which had occurred less than two months before at the end of the academic year. Since the determination to conduct a second round of interviews and ultimately to award the position to another applicant was Dr. McGuire's and Dr. McGuire did not testify to explain his reasons for awarding the position to someone else, respondent is left with the adverse inference which the finder of fact may draw in an administrative proceeding such as this one where a respondent chooses not to testify. State Department of Law and Public Safety v. Merlino, 216 N.J. Super. 579, 587-588 (App. Div. 1987), aff'd 109 N.J. 134 (1988); Wild v. Roman, 91 N.J. Super. 410 (App. Div. 1966). Perhaps Dr. McGuire simply did not like petitioner and would not have appointed him to the position under any circumstances. Since Dr. McGuire did not testify, however, we do not know that, and I CONCLUDE from his unexplained non-production that his testimony would have been unfavorable to respondent's case; i.e., that he was annoyed by petitioner's allegations of age discrimination and acted accordingly.

For all of the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that petitioner was entitled to assignment to one of the Supervisor of Extra-Curricular Activities positions commencing with the 1994-95 school year. Respondent is hereby ORDERED to place petitioner in one of those positions immediately, and to pay petitioner back pay and benefits based upon a salary of $74,500, the same salary which was assigned to Mr. Kane who also had previously held the position Building Athletic Supervisor.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. [1] Respondent's attorney initially requested an extension until October 28, 1996 within which to file exceptions attesting that a significant mail delay caused him to receive the initial decision only days before exceptions were due in this office. Respondent was granted only a three-day extension until October 25, 1996, to equal the amount of time respondent apparently lost. Exceptions were subsequently filed by respondent's attorney on October 29, 1996. In that such filing occurred four days after our initial extension deadline (and a day later than initially requested by respondent) the Commissioner finds them untimely filed. This is so despite the attorney's contention that the filing record with the collective bargaining agreement, filed on the same date as its exceptions, is denied in that respondent was accorded a full opportunity to provide such information at hearing and did not avail itself of such opportunity.[2] In so ruling, the Commissioner is constrained to note that admission of such agreement would not be determinative to the ultimate conclusion of this matter.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) for the reasons expressed therein. The Commissioner accepts the ALJ's findings that petitioner was a tenured employee, in a tenured position; and in that the Commissioner finds no reason to disturb the credibility determinations of the ALJ based on the total record presented, the Commissioner further finds petitioner was wrongfully not assigned to a position to which he was entitled by tenure right, and that such wrongful assignment was in retaliation for petitioner's action in filing an appeal of prior Board actions. See In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (App. Div. 1987).

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the OAL and orders that petitioner be placed in one of respondent's Supervisor of Extra-Curricular Activities positions, and that he be awarded back pay and benefits to the 1994-1995 school year based upon a salary of $74,500.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

was delayed until such time due to his sinus and upper respiratory infection and as no request for extension was made, or granted, prior to October 25, 1996, as required by regulation.

[2] Respondent avers that he only provided extracts from the collective bargaining agreement before Judge Duncan because in prior cases the judge indicated that she preferred not to receive bulky documents into evidence when only extracts were relevant. The Commissioner finds, in that it was respondent's responsibility to provide all relevant extracts or the entire agreement if relevant at hearing, that opportunity has passed.

Record Closed: January 29, 1998 Decided: February 9, 1998

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

This matter involves an aspect of prior administrative litigation between the Camden Board of Education and its former employee, John Hovington. Mr. Hovington, a teaching staff member in the 1980's, was indicted and subsequently suspended in 1988. He remained suspended during the pendency of three criminal trials on the same set of charges, and, after finally being acquitted in the third of the trials, was then charged with tenure violations. After an extensive hearing before this judge, he was found to have committed tenure violations and removed from his tenured position. The Commissioner of Education and the State Board of Education have affirmed the determination stripping Hovington of his tenure and removing him from his teaching position. However, the State Board remanded the proceedings to the Commissioner so that he could resolve Hovington's claims for indemnification of the costs of the legal defense of the criminal charges and for back pay for the period prior to the Commissioner's tenure decision. These claims had been asserted during the prior administrative process and in a Superior Court proceeding. The Commissioner chose to send the case back to the Office of Administrative Law to determine the issues and this judge was assigned to the matter. The parties entered into a Stipulation of Facts and filed briefs and reply briefs, the last of which was received on January 29, at which time the record was closed.

For the reasons set forth below, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Hovington is not entitled to receive back pay for the period during which he was suspended pending the disposition of the criminal indictment, from November 28, 1988, until the acquittal on his third criminal trial in September, 1994. Additionally, he is not entitled to receive indemnification for the attorneys' fees and costs associated with the criminal trials.

The Stipulated Facts reveal that Mr. Hovington was indicted by the Camden County Grand Jury on November 16, 1988, for two counts of aggravated sexual assault, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:14-2 (a)(2)(b), and one count of endangering the welfare of a child, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:24-4. At that time he was a tenured teacher and earned $28,678. The criminal charges alleged that he had been involved in sexual activity with P.B., who at the time of the alleged sexual activity was both a minor and a student/athlete at Woodrow Wilson High in Camden, where Hovington both taught and served as a track coach.

Mr. Hovington was tried on the indictment in October 1990. He was acquitted of the endangering a minor, but convicted of aggravated sexual assault. This conviction was reversed by the Appellate Division in December 1992. The Court remanded the case to the trial court for retrial. The Camden Board then denied Mr. Hovington's demand to be reinstated and refused to lift his suspension or resume his pay. He was again tried in January 1994 and the jury was unable to reach a verdict. Subsequently, he was tried a third time in September 1994 and this time the jury acquitted him of all charges. His October 1994 request for immediate reinstatement, back pay and reimbursement for his legal fees in connection with his defense of the criminal cases was refused by the Board. On March 28, 1995, the Board certified tenure charges to the Commissioner, asserting that Hovington had committed offenses requiring action against his tenure, namely, that he had maintained an improper relationship with P.B., including sexual activity, as originally charged in the criminal indictment. A hearing on these charges was held before this judge in 1996. On December 18, 1995, during that ongoing hearing, the Board certified additional tenure charges to the Commissioner, this time concerning an alleged improper relationship and sexual activity with another of Hovington's student/athletes, A.T. The Board also voted to initiate another 120-day suspension of pay following the filing of this second set of charges, relying again upon the statute. The Commissioner transferred this second tenure charge to OAL and the hearings on this tenure charge was consolidated with the initial set of tenure charges.

In the end, I concluded that Mr. Hovington had in fact engaged in inappropriate sexual relationships with both P.B. and A.T. and that his conduct grossly violated the standards of proper conduct for a teacher, thus requiring that he be stripped of his tenure and dismissed. As noted, this decision has been affirmed on review by the Commissioner and the State Board.

On August 22, 1995, Mr. Hovington filed a complaint in lieu of prerogative writ in the Superior Court against the Board, seeking to recover back pay. The Board moved to dismiss the complaint, and on October 27, 1995, Judge E. Stevenson Fluharty, J.S.C., ordered the Board to resume payment of Hovington's salary as of the lapse of 120 days following the filing of the tenure charge. However, on December 26, 1995, the Appellate Division granted the Board's motion for leave to appeal and summarily transferred the issues to the Commissioner of Education. Prior to the Appellate Division's Order, in November 1995, the Board paid a gross amount of fifty-thousand ($50,000) back wages, an amount subject to standard and ordinary deductions. The Board also agreed to hold an additional fifty-thousand ($50,000) in escrow, in view of the dispute over the amount of back pay entitlement.

Mr. Hovington contends that he is entitled to receive his full pay, including all increments to which he would have been entitled if he had not been suspended, for the period from the date of his original suspension until the date of the Commissioner's Final Decision, with the exception of the statutory period of 120 days following the certification of the tenure charges in the P.B. matter. This claim is based upon an interpretation of statutory and case law, for there is concededly no statute which mandates that a teacher be paid for a period when he or she has been suspended pursuant to the Board's statutory authority to suspend pending the disposition of an indictment. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3. In essence, counsel for Mr. Hovington argues that since no school teacher may be dismissed or reduced in salary until the Board has certified charges to the Commissioner and then successfully proven them to the Commissioner's satisfaction, any loss of pay for periods prior to the Commissioner's ruling, other than for the statutory 120 days, would amount to a premature and illegal reduction in pay. Support for this proposition is drawn from Romanowski v. Board of Education of Jersey City, 89 N.J. Super. 38 (App. Div. 1965). In Romanowski, a tenured employee was indicted for malfeasance in office. Five separate indictments were returned and he was tried on one of these and convicted. The conviction was later overturned. A second indictment was tried and Romanowski was acquitted. The Board then suspended him, citing the remaining three indictments. No written charges had yet been filed with the Commissioner. Unlike the present, at the time of the Romanowski case there was no authority for a suspension upon indictment, except where written charges had been brought against the tenured employee before the Commissioner. The Court found an inherent power to suspend for a criminal act, but said that if Romanowski were acquitted, he would be "entitled to compensation for the period of his temporary suspension." Id. at 41.

Other cases which have considered claims for back pay for periods of suspension pending the disposition of criminal indictments have relied upon equity as the basis for recovery. Beatty v. Newton Board of Education, 1991 S.L.D. 1001 ("fundamental fairness"); Griffin v. Paterson Board of Education, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d 822 (Dept. of Education). Thus, the determination of whether Mr. Hovington can recover the pay for the period he was suspended while under indictment, including any increments during that period, requires an examination of the facts relevant to his case to determine whether the equities lie with him. I CONCLUDE that they do not.

In neither Beatty nor Griffin did the respective Boards of Education pursue tenure charges to completion prior to the determination of the claim for pay withheld during the suspension imposed during the pendency of the criminal indictments, each of which had resulted in an acquittal. Thus, in judging the equities of the claimants in each of those cases, the Commissioner was presented with an employee who had never been proven to have engaged in inappropriate conduct, either to the satisfaction of the criminal proof standard of beyond a reasonable doubt or to the civil/administrative standard of preponderance of the evidence. Beatty and Griffin thus were apparently innocent persons, who had suffered a loss of pay while successfully defending themselves against what, at the time of the Commissioner's decision on the back pay claims, were presumptively unsupported and unproven allegations. Here, Mr. Hovington stands in an entirely different position. While the ultimate outcome of the criminal proceedings was an acquittal, and the charges were thus not proven beyond a reasonable doubt, they were amply proven in the tenure hearing, and in fact, a new allegation, never part of the criminal process, was also proven. Therefore, Hovington's position as a supplicant seeking equity from the Commissioner is far different than the presumptively innocent claimants in Beatty and Griffin. "Fundamental fairness," the touchstone of the Commissioner's reasoning in Beatty, hardly demands that this Board be required to pay this petitioner for six years in which he did not work for the Board, when in fact he was guilty of serious tenure violations committed before his suspension. If anything, "fundamental fairness" to the citizens and taxpayers of the City of Camden demands that he not be paid where he so flagrantly violated his trust as a professional educator.

One issue raised here is the delay in the Board's bringing any tenure charges from 1988 until after the final disposition of the indictment at the last of the three trials. It is true that had the Board brought tenure charges at the time of the indictment, or even after the first trial, which until the result was overturned had resulted in a conviction on the charge of aggravated sexual assault, the tenure charges could have been tried long ago. Had Hovington prevailed at that time on the tenure charges, then he would presumably still have been without pay while the criminal appeal and subsequent trials proceeded. When finally acquitted, he would have stood "innocent" of all criminal and administrative charges, and the equities would then surely favor that he receive the back pay. On the other hand, an "early" tenure hearing might well have resulted in a decision adverse to Hovington, just as the later tenure hearing did, and then, after his ultimate acquittal of the criminal charges, he would have stood as he does now, criminally free of guilt, but administratively proven as a sexual predator of students, long ago stripped of tenure. His removal would have cut off any right to be paid by the Board. His equity position would be no better than it is now, after a "late" tenure process.

As regards the $50,000 back pay payment made in November 1995, Hovington contends that the Board "acknowledged his right to back pay" as early as November 8, 1994, and then went on to pay him, thus calling into serious question the Board's present concern about its being forced to waste taxpayer money if it is required to pay Hovington any additional back pay. However, while the Board may have determined to pay Hovington some money prior to the conclusion of the tenure hearings, it is clear that there is no statutory compulsion under the law for the Board to do so. Its choice to make a partial payment (which it does not seek to recover) does not require it to make any additional payments, that is, so long as the equities do not otherwise support payment, as they did in Beatty and Griffin. They do not, and no additional back pay need be paid.

Finally, Hovington complains that the Board had no right to impose a 120-day suspension of his pay after the December 1995 filing of the tenure charges in the A.T. matter. He contends that the Board had, in essence, used up its allowable 120-day period when it filed the P.B. charges and suspended his pay for 120 days thereafter.

I am inclined to agree that in the context of this case, the use of a second 120-day suspension of pay was inappropriate. While the law allows a board to suspend pay for 120 days following the filing of tenure charges, here the second set of charges involving A.T. were filed only after I ruled that if the Board intended to present evidence in the P.B. case concerning sexual improprieties with A.T., (as it had attempted to do during the hearing) it would have to file tenure charges regarding the same. The Board did so, but as all of these charges were really a part of the ongoing probe into whether Hovington had engaged in such affairs with students in the 1980's, and the second charges were actually an adjunct of the hearing process already begun on the P.B. case, it would be unfair to allow the Board to deprive Hovington of the 120 days of pay which he was otherwise legally entitled to receive since the P.B. allegations had not been resolved within 120 days. Here, the equities favor Hovington, and while a strict reading of the law seems to allow seriatim charges and pay suspensions for separate 120 day periods, such a reading seems to be contrary to the spirit of the legislative determination to require that Boards resume pay after 120 days. Therefore the Board shall pay Hovington for the 120 days for which his pay was suspended subsequent to the filing of the December 1995 tenure charges.

COUNSEL FEES

Hovington's request for counsel fees is based upon N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

> Should any criminal action be instituted against any such person for any such act or omission and should such proceeding be dismissed or result in a final disposition in favor of such person, the board of education shall reimburse him for the cost of defending such proceeding, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses of the original hearing or trial and all appeals.

This statute is related back to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, which provides > Whenever any civil action has been or shall be brought against any person holding any office . . . , under the jurisdiction of any board of education . . . , for any act or omission arising out of and in the course of the performance of the duties of such office . . . , the board shall defray all costs of defending such action, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses, together with costs of appeal, if any, and shall save harmless and protect such person from any financial loss resulting therefrom; . . . .

In a recent decision the New Jersey Supreme Court considered this statute. In Bower v. Board of Education of East Orange, 149 N.J. 416 (1997), a kindergarten teacher appealed the denial by the State Board of Education of his claim for attorneys fees and costs resulting from criminal charges that he had sexually abused children in the bathroom attached to his classroom. The criminal charges had been dismissed after the State was unable to proceed at trial of a first indictment and a second indictment for the same charges was dismissed with prejudice. The parties agreed that he had thus met the second prong of the test under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, as he had received a final disposition in his favor. The question was then whether he met the first prong, that is that the charges of aggravated sexual assault and endangering the welfare of children were based upon "acts or omissions arising out of and in the course of the performance of the duties of such office." The Court noted that all agreed that indemnification could not be denied simply on the basis that if proven the criminal acts were surely beyond the scope of the teacher's assigned duties. The Court ultimately concluded that as no charges had been proven, and there was no administrative record since the Board of Education had not instituted tenure charges, all that could be determined was that Bower had performed actions which were appropriate to his duties as a kindergarten teacher. Therefore, reimbursement was proper. However, the Court noted that > (H)ad the local board seen fit to institute such dismissal proceedings, we assume that any evidence adduced at the hearing addressing these charges would have been material to the proceeding instituted by Bower for indemnification of his legal expenses . . . We detect from the record before us a sense of frustration on the part of the State Board, stemming no doubt from its concern that the allegations . . . although unproved, may have been true, in which event indemnification surely would be inappropriate.

> [Id. at 433]

While it is true that the Court's comments as to the materiality of evidence from a dismissal hearing were dicta, as no such hearing occurred in the Bower case, nevertheless, the Court's comment is a strong signal that if the Board can prove that the conduct alleged in the criminal indictment or other criminal proceeding did in fact occur and that it constituted a basis for dismissal, that "indemnification surely would be inappropriate." In the present action, the scenario envisioned by the Supreme Court actually occurred. While Hovington ultimately achieved the required favorable outcome of the criminal proceedings, his misconduct with the female student who was the subject of the allegations in the criminal case was proven in the tenure hearing. As opposed to the situation in Bower, where the Supreme Court noted that there was "no contradictory evidence in the record in the administrative proceeding" and therefore the only assumption could be that Bower committed "no acts other than to perform duties as a kindergarten teacher," the record here amply demonstrates that Hovington committed improper acts of a sexual nature with student/athletes who were minors, that these took place outside of the school, that they were, some or all, not actions which occurred in association with or in the course of duties and responsibilities of a teacher or coach, and that therefore any indemnification would be "surely. . . inappropriate."

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

For the reasons expressed, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the claims for back pay and indemnification are DISMISSED, with the exception of the claim for back pay for the 120-day period following the filing of the second set of tenure charges in December 1995. Counsel shall confer and determine the exact amount of this back pay, subject to appropriate mitigation, and shall advise the Commissioner within 15 days of this initial decision if there is a dispute as to the amount to be paid to Mr. Hovington.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JOHN HOVINGTON,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY	:	DECISION ON REMAND
OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY.	:
_____	:

This dispute was initially heard before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) and by decision dated October 2, 1996, wherein the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) recommended that respondent be dismissed from his tenured position as a teacher in that the tenure charges alleging unbecoming conduct were proven by the Board and sufficient to warrant his termination from employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and 11. The Commissioner, by decision dated November 18, 1996, affirmed the initial decision. The State Board of Education, by decision dated April 2, 1997, remanded this matter directing the Commissioner to set aside his decision on the merits of the tenure charges and remand this matter for consideration of respondent's exceptions, which had been previously deemed untimely, in determining those charges. (State Board Decision, Slip Opinion at p. 2) Respondent's exceptions were duly considered and the Commissioner's determination was reached to affirm the initial decision of the ALJ with regard to the tenure charges, dismissing respondent from his teaching position in the Camden public school district. The matter was then transmitted to the State Board of Examiners, pursuant to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, for action against respondent's certificate as appropriate.

The State Board, also on April 2, 1997, determined that the transfer to the Commissioner from Superior Court, Appellate Division, of a Complaint in Lieu of Prerogative Writ, on December 19, 1995, was sufficiently filed for the Commissioner's consideration. (State Board Decision, Slip Opinion, Footnote 1 on page 2) Further, in that there was no indication in the record that the Commissioner took any action to determine the issues raised in the Complaint in Lieu of Prerogative Writ in Superior Court, Law Division, in August 1995, in which respondent sought indemnification and back pay from the Board, the State Board requested that the Commissioner undertake further proceedings and render a final determination on those particular claims. (State Board Decision, Slip Opinion at pp. 2-3) Thus, the Complaint was transmitted to the OAL and the instant decision follows the Commissioner's receipt thereof.

The record of this matter, transcripts of the hearing, and the initial decision of the OAL have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. However, by letter dated March 5, 1998, and received in this office on March 16, 1998, respondent's attorney filed a letter with the Commissioner stating that > based on a resolution of the above-captioned matter between my client, John Hovington, and the Camden City Board of Education, I hereby withdraw the exceptions as were filed on my client's behalf on February 26, 1998.

Consequently, in that the only issue before the Commissioner herein pertains to the amount of back pay and indemnification owed to respondent, and in that respondent has expressly withdrawn any objection to entry of the order of the ALJ, the Commissioner finds no need to reach to the substantive merits of respondent's claims.

Accordingly, the order of the ALJ is entered as the final decision in this matter for the reasons expressed herein.*

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :

HEARING OF JOHN HOVINGTON, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY : DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent teacher and coach for allegedly engaging in an inappropriate sexual relationship with minor student P.B. A second set of charges alleged respondent engaged in inappropriate touching of student A.T.

Having considered testimony of witnesses and the evidence in the record, the ALJ concluded respondent's actions with A.T. did not warrant dismissal of respondent from his position. ALJ, however, concluded respondent's relationship with P.B. did warrant his removal of his tenure as he grossly violated his obligations as an educator.

Citing In re Morrison, the Commissioner found no basis to challenge the ALJ's credibility determinations and resultant conclusions. In light of In re Fulcomer, In re Beam, In re Tordo, In re Mantone and In re Galla, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that respondent's behavior constituted unbecoming conduct and that removal was the appropriate penalty. Commissioner dismissed respondent as of the date of this decision and ordered matter transmitted to State Board of Examiners for further appropriate action.

Respondent.

Record Closed: September 4, 1996 Decided: October 2 , 1996

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

The City of Camden Board of Education (hereinafter "petitioner" or "Board"), certified tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education against respondent John Hovington, on or about March 30, 1995. Mr. Hovington served as a teacher and coach in the District during the 1970's and 80's. The charges contained in the certification alleged that Mr. Hovington had engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher because during the years from 1985-88 he first propositioned P.B., then a 15-year-old high school student and member of the track team which Mr. Hovington coached, and then engaged in consensual sexual relations with her while she was still a student and a minor, and also because he improperly touched P.B. in the vaginal area, "while purportedly treating an injury."

The allegations regarding Mr. Hovington's alleged consensual sexual relationship with P.B. first became a matter of public knowledge in the spring of 1988, when P.B. was a senior at Woodrow Wilson High School in Camden. At the time, Mr. Hovington was employed by the Board as a physical education and health instructor in that school, and he also served as the woman's track coach. Ms. B. had been a member of the woman's track team for her last three years of high school. Mr. Hovington was indicted on criminal charges of aggravated sexual assault in 1988, and thereafter he was tried before a jury on three separate occasions. His first trial resulted in his conviction, but this verdict was overturned on appeal in 1992 and remanded. In a subsequent trial held in January 1994, the jury deadlocked. A final criminal trial was held in October 1994, and the jury returned a not guilty verdict. (P-6 in evidence).

Hovington was originally suspended without pay by the Camden Board of Education on November 28, 1988, and he remained suspended from his employment pending the outcome of the criminal charges. After the October 1994 verdict, the Board for the first time certified tenure charges relating to the alleged relationship with P.B. The Commissioner of Education transferred the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on April 28, 1995. A prehearing conference was held on June 7, 1995, and a prehearing order was issued on June 8, 1995. Hearings began on November 1, 1995, and continued on November 2, 1995, January 10 and 11, March 7, 13, 14, April 15, 16, 22, 30, May 8, June 13, 19 and 25, 1996.[1] During the early stages of the hearing, the Board presented the testimony of a former student of Mr. Hovington's at Woodrow Wilson, A.M., known during her school years and in this decision as A.T., and often referred to in the record as "Gwen," who testified regarding her knowledge of the allegations of a sexual relationship between P.B. and the respondent. However, on December 21, 1995, the Board filed a new set of tenure charges against Mr. Hovington, alleging that while a teacher and coach at Woodrow Wilson during the years 1980 to 1988, he had engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher by having engaged in sexually explicit conversations with female students and kissing and/or touching "various female track students in a sexual and inappropriate manner for a teacher and a coach. . . ." These charges were supported by Ms. A.T.'s affidavit. When the Commissioner transferred this second set of charges to the OAL, they were consolidated with the charges relating to P.B. The Board agreed that while the second set of charges referred to "various females," in fact the only allegations which it was prepared to present were those made by A.T. The continued hearing has since included additional testimony by A.T.

The final witnesses testified on July 3, 1996. Thereafter, counsel received final transcripts and filed closing summations. The record closed on September 4, 1996.

EVIDENCE

P.B. was born on August 2, 1970. She is currently employed by a Camden County public agency. She is a graduate of Rutgers University, with a Bachelor's Degree in Social Work. She attended the University of Maryland for her first year of college, and finished her college career at Rutgers in Camden, graduating in May 1994. She was a student at Woodrow Wilson High in Camden from September 1984, until June 1988. She was a very good student, was enrolled in the school's Gifted and Talented Program for all four years, and made the Honor Roll. In addition, she was a superior athlete, winning a state championship in track and participating in other sports as well. According to Ms. B., while a student at the high school she was very outgoing, popular, and well-liked. While at first she was "passive" in regard to dating, by the time she reached her senior year she had changed, had an "attitude," and was able to "express herself differently." She received money from her mother and/or grandmother for food and clothing, and was not without funds to eat lunch out while attending school.

Ms. B. first met John Hovington during basketball season of her freshman year. Ms. B. recalled that she would see Hovington around the gym during basketball practice. He was the coach of the indoor track team at the time, and testimony revealed that the team practiced inside the school most of the time. He spoke to her about the possibility of her participating in outdoor track, which was a spring sport.

During her freshman year, Ms. B. was dating M.B., a senior. She did not consider him to be her "boyfriend," because she did not believe that he considered her to be his girlfriend. She believes that they had "less than 3 dates." Nevertheless, they may have had intercourse. On several occasions, she and Hovington spoke about M.B., and he told her that M.B. was not "good for her," because he was a senior and probably had other girlfriends. However, Hovington did not ask her to stop seeing Mr. B.

Ms. B. joined the outdoor track team during the spring of her freshman year. She and Hovington had further conversations of a personal nature. He talked to her about birth control pills, and encouraged her to use them. This conversation was "probably" in regard to her relationship with Mr. B. She recalled that she also spoke to Hovington about a yeast infection from which she suffered during the track season.

During this freshman track season, Mr. Hovington did make physical contact with Ms. B. This occurred as part of the massaging and stretching activities which were a part of the track team's routine. Hovington instructed all of the team members about stretching techniques. Often athletes were themselves teamed up for this activity, but if an athlete was injured then Hovington would be "involved." As she recalled, massage was only used where there was an injury, such as she had in the latter part of the track season when she injured her quadriceps muscle. When Mr. Hovington massaged her during her freshman track season, she felt "uncomfortable." On at least one occasion that she "definitely" recalls, he touched her vaginal area as he massaged her with his fingers. She did not do anything when this occurred. He was explaining how the various muscles were connected. She does not remember whether she told anyone about this incident.

Ms. B. explained that Mr. Hovington was very personable, extremely easy to talk to, and was a father figure to some of the females. Each of the other former student/athletes who also testified in this proceeding confirmed this. He was both a coach, and to some of the witnesses a health teacher. The girls found it quite easy to talk to him, and it is evident from the testimony that some of them, including Ms. B, shared personal matters with him.

Ms. B. said that Mr. Hovington did not provide her with any money for lunch or buy her any clothing during her freshman year. She had no contact with him during the summer after that school year ended.

During her sophomore year Ms. B. participated in tennis, basketball and outdoor track. During the tennis season, Coach Hovington, who was not associated with the tennis program, came to some of the tennis practices. Ms. B. could not recall the number of these that he appeared at, but thought perhaps "a few." He also attended "5 or less" of the tennis meets, but she could not recall if any which he attended were held away from the school ("away meets"). During the basketball season, he would be around the gym. According to the witness, at this point in time she and Hovington were "friends." Their conversation was "general" in nature. However, the relationship began to change. During the fall of her sophomore year, he began to make comments about her body. He noticed that she shaved her legs and complimented her on how nice she looked. One day as he was in a car with her driving her home from either a practice or a meet, he asked her if she shaved her pubic area, and lifted the top part of her shorts. When he did this, she did "absolutely nothing," as she did not know how to react. She was "surprised," and took the matter as more like a "joke or whatever." He made it "light, not serious." Nothing else happened that day.

Probably in the fall season of her sophomore year, Ms. B. and Mr. Hovington were in his car as he took her home from what she thinks was probably a basketball practice, , Mr. Hovington put his finger into her vagina.. They spoke about his personal life and about his girlfriend Tina, who incidentally is now his wife and was a witness in this hearing. He made a comment to B., saying "so don't try to take me in your house and ravish me." He seemed interested in having some "contact relationship" with B. Eventually, Hovington asked her if they could be "special friends." He said that he wanted to put his penis there and put her "in warm water and things like that." He never defined what he meant by their being "special friends," but he did say that they would each have to understand the other "being with someone else." Once he made the proposition about being "special friends," he persisted and made advances. She kept asking him why he wanted "this," as he already had an attractive woman. He told her that it did not matter how attractive the woman was, but how he felt when he was with her. She understood that "special friends" involved sex and eventually she said "yes." Either near the end of tennis season, but more likely during the early portion of the basketball season, they began to kiss and caress. Usually this occurred in his car when he would drive her home from practice or a game, which he would occasionally do, sometimes also taking her friend C. C. On other occasions the basketball coach would drive her and other team members home. (Testimony showed that the general practice of driving students home after practice, especially in the dark late fall and winter months, was not at all unusual.) P. was always the last student dropped off because of where her home was located in relationship to the school and the homes of the others in the car. At that time of the year it was already dark and she and Hovington would park in different locations about three blocks from her home, which was located under the Camden side of the Benjamin Franklin Bridge.

Ms. B. recalled that the first instance of intercourse with Mr. Hovington took place after an indoor track meet held at Widener University. She went to the meet as a spectator at Hovington's invitation, traveling to the meet on the bus with the indoor track team. She returned on the bus, and then sometime after midnight he drove her and others home. He dropped the others off and then parked two blocks from P.'s house. They then had consensual vaginal intercourse in the back seat of the car, which, as she explained on cross-examination, they had climbed back into rather than exit from the car and then reenter. P. claimed that Mr. Hovington had initiated this encounter. At that time Ms. B. was taking birth control pills which she had obtained from Planned Parenthood after Hovington had spoken to her about getting on the pill, and he had told her that they had to wait to have intercourse until she had been on the pill for 30 days. She could not recall how long they remained in the car, but she arrived home after 1:00 A.M. On cross-examination, she described the encounter as "very brief," recalling that someone bumped or banged on the side of the car and this caused them to stop, climb back to the front, and drive to her home, where she exited the vehicle and he left.

Ms. B. told C. C. about the sexual encounter the next day, writing her a note to advise her. She and Hovington continued to have intercourse during the remainder of sophomore year, at least more than five times, although she was not sure whether more than ten times. She recalled one time which occurred at Hovington's house before a boy's basketball playoff game. This was the first time that she was at his house, which she described as a one-bedroom, one-floor apartment with a small entry foyer. The trip to his house was prearranged, although she was not sure now whether they had planned to have sex. After girl's basketball practice ended that day, she and Hovington met his son, J., and his father, Mr. K. J., who B. thought was probably in junior high school at the time, got into Hovington's car and sat in the back. She sat up front with Hovington, who drove them to the apartment. J. sat on a couch in the living room, watching television. Hovington entered the bedroom, and then he called her to come in and join him. They eventually had intercourse on the bed, on which a towel had been placed. Hovington initiated the sex, which lasted for ten to fifteen minutes. They were not in the bedroom for a very long time, and when she emerged after showering, J. was still watching TV. She was not certain if Hovington also showered, but after he came out of the bedroom they went to McDonald's Restaurant and to the basketball game. Hovington then drove her home with J. in the car.

While she could not recall precisely which track awards or meets she had won during her sophomore year, Ms. B. did remember that she had won something, and that Mr. Hovington bought her long and short tights, and maybe some other items. He also began to give C. C. and her small amounts of money, two or three dollars at a time, if they were going to lunch, and if he asked her to buy him cookies, she would keep the change.

Ms. B. testified that during a summer after her sophomore year (but not necessarily the summer immediately following the sophomore year), Mr. Hovington drove a charter bus route to Atlantic City for the summer. She would meet him and spend time with him after he would return from Atlantic City. On at least one occasion that she recalled he picked her up on the way to the bus storage lot and they drove to either Echelon or Voorhees, where he had parked his car. They were "intimate" on the bus, although she did not remember if they had intercourse on that occasion. He then parked the bus in its assigned lot and drove her home in his car. On another occasion during her senior year they had intercourse on a bus that he had driven to either Great Adventure or King's Dominion (which is located in Virginia) on a school sponsored trip. After all the students and accompanying staff where dropped off, he drove the bus to wherever the charter vehicle had to be delivered and they then had intercourse in the bus. By this time it was dark outside.

The sexual relationship continued through Ms. B.'s junior year at Wilson. She recalled being in his apartment on several occasions; once, he showed her pictures of the trip he and Tina had taken to Maui, and on another occasion, Tina had gone to New York to a funeral. He never introduced her to Tina, although as will be detailed below they did eventually meet. She did meet his sister B., who lived upstairs from Hovington and who once came home with a friend at the same time that P. and Mr. Hovington were emerging from his apartment. He introduced her to his sister at that time.

The witness recalled that she and Hovington had intercourse in his hotel room when she, several other teammates who had qualified, and Hovington traveled to North Jersey for a State championship track meet held in Plainfield. The girls sat in the hall for a while talking and he invited her into his room.

According to the witness, she continued to discuss her relationship with Hovington with C. C. throughout its existence. In fact, C. once covered for her when she stayed for a night at his sister B.'s apartment during her senior year, an episode which will be detailed below. At some time or another she also told A.T., who was also a track star and who was two years ahead of her in school, about Hovington and the incident when he placed his finger in her vagina. She continued to talk to Hovington on her private phone line, calling him at his apartment at least once a week, often on Saturdays. She was aware that Tina did not always live in the apartment. She testified that at the time she considered that she and Hovington were "close friends, bonded" and that they "cared about each other," although she was not sure if she loved him, or if he ever said how he felt about her. She added that at least once he did say that he loved her, and he often said that things would be "better" once she turned eighteen, as they would not have to hide and be secretive. Only in her senior year did she "get up the courage" to tell him that she did not want him to bring her home right away when they were together. Otherwise, she was generally not very "vocal" in the relationship, and felt "uncomfortable."

Coach Hovington attended several of the away basketball games during her time on the basketball team. On one occasion she suffered a leg cramp during a game, and Hovington, who was not associated with the basketball program, nevertheless came out of the stands and attempted to treat the cramp. The basketball coach at the time was Cary Savage, who was present at the game.

Ms. B. discussed her relationship with Mr. Hovington with Cary Savage and with Karan Phillips, another teacher/coach, but could not remember whether this happened during her junior or senior year. Savage was another person to whom she and others felt close and in whom they could confide. She told him that she was having sex with Hovington. She explained that saying this to Savage served as a "release" for her; he was "someone she could talk to who would listen to what she had to say." He was "surprised," "concerned." She asked that he keep the information in confidence. She also told Phillips, during a conversation which occurred during her senior year outside near the track bleachers or on the back steps of the school. Again, she was seeking a "release," but was not asking for advice. Phillips suggested that P. should tape record conversations with Hovington as a way to get proof, but Ms. B. did not agree with this and did not do so. During her senior year P. also related information about the relationship to Charles Iepson, a teacher and coach at Wilson in whom she felt she could confide. Iepson told her that he had previously asked Hovington if he was involved with her and Hovington had denied that he was. P. also told Carol Ellerbee about the relationship, but believes that this occurred sometime after she had started college. Ellerbee was the basketball coach at Rutgers Camden while P. was a student at that school.

By her senior year the relationship with Hovington had begun to affect B.'s life. She "felt emotionally attached" and "began to question a lot of things." She played tennis, but did not play basketball. Instead she participated in indoor track, which Hovington had encouraged her to switch to although she insisted at the hearing that the decision to switch was hers. This resulted in a conflict with Mr. Savage, who she said had made comments about her mother during the summer basketball league. She did not recall having had any specific discussion about her relationship with Hovington at that time, but felt that Savage may have had some hint about it.

During her junior year Hovington purchased a school jacket exclusively for her, and also bought her a warmup suit, an outfit for the homecoming pageant and a tape recorder to use for dance practice for the pageant. During the fall of her senior year she visited Lafayette College and the University of Maryland. Hovington took her to and from the train station, and he gave her $100 to buy some things when she went to Maryland. He also gave her money during senior year so that she could purchase something for her grandmother for Christmas, to purchase two bathing suits around the time of the senior class trip, a gym bag, and also spending money. He also continued to give her money for an occasional lunch.

Ms. B. testified that during the spring of her junior year there had been some conversation about whether the relationship would continue after she graduated. During her senior year, Hovington told her that he loved her. As noted earlier, B. testified that during her senior year she became more open in regard to initiating attempts to get Hovington to spend more time with her. On one occasion during the football season, probably in October 1987, when she tried to initiate conversation about this and he could not stay, she took it very personally. At the time, she was also having problems with her relationship with her mother, who had gone to the South for a lengthy period during B.'s high school years, both to deal with a substance abuse problem and to care for B.'s great-grandmother. P. felt that she did not matter, that she was "insignificant." She questioned what had been happening to her over the past three years, felt that she was not in control of her life and had no "say so" in the Hovington relationship. As a result of these factors, B. resolved to attempt suicide. She took muscle relaxants which had been prescribed for a neighbor. However, after she spoke with friends on the telephone and they noticed a change in her demeanor, she was taken to Cooper Hospital. While in the hospital that night, she was visited by C. C. and other friends. She was released later that evening. The next day she went to school with Ms. C. They went to the lower gym to eat something which they had purchased at a store, and on the way there they saw Hovington. He said something to her and she fell forward. He took her into the health office and spoke to C. He then took B. to the lower gym and put her in the boy's locker room lounge. While she cannot recall the specifics, he apparently had learned of her suicide attempt from C., and he kept her in the office for the day and then arranged for her to stay the night at his sister's apartment. Hovington picked her up on the street corner near her house after school and after a visit to Rancocas Valley Hospital to see Hovington's then hospitalized mother they went to his apartment complex. P. stayed with his sister in her apartment. It was all very "hush, hush," and an arrangement was worked out so that C. would cover for her and say that P. was staying at C.'s house. P. had not asked anyone for a place to stay, and she was not sure why Hovington made these arrangements.

The next morning, Hovington's sister left for work, and Tina called and invited P. down to Hovington's apartment for breakfast. While reluctant to go "because of the situation," she eventually went. She chose not to stay another night. Hovington drove her back to her home, and they may have had intercourse on the way back, but she cannot recall.

The sexual relationship continued even after the suicide attempt. However, in the Spring when she had occasion to see Tina at an outdoor track practice and saw Hovington kiss her, which was the first time that P. had seen him be "physical" with another woman, she was disturbed. She spoke to Hovington on the telephone later that evening, with several hang ups and follow up calls occurring. After this incident, P. questioned herself as to how he could say that he loved her if he had another person in his life. The relationship was now more than an infatuation, but something she "had really become involved in . . . ." It was "taking more from me emotionally." She "wanted more from him, and I wasn't so easily ready to settle for whatever was given." The next day she went to the office of Dean of Students Epps and asked to use the phone. She asked to call Sgt. (or Det.) Murray of the Camden Police Department Juvenile Bureau, whose name she claimed to have known from a prior telephone call (which she believed occurred during her sophomore year) which her mother at first told her she had received from someone who had told her mother that she and P. had to come to the police department to speak to Murray about a report concerning some girls who "wanted to jump" P., but which her mother later told her was in reference to someone having said "that he (Hovington) was forcing me to have intercourse with him." (While not exactly certain of the timing, P. testified that she had met with Murray and denied the allegation). Dean Epps got the officer on the phone. Epps asked P. if the call was in reference to Hovington, but she did not respond verbally. An appointment was arranged with Murray, but she never met with him.

In May someone contacted DYFS, although at the time she did not know who. Hovington told her that the DYFS person was going to contact her, as he explained that Dean Epps had been speaking in a bar about Hovington's relationship with her and saying that he was finally going to get Hovington. Hovington told her that she did not have to say anything to DYFS. When Ms. B. met with Mr. Martini of DYFS in her mother's presence, she told him that Hovington was just a coach to her, or words to that effect. When he asked if they had sexual relations, she denied that they had and also denied that she had told Mr. Epps that they had. She did not want the relationship to end, and Hovington had told her that she did not have to tell DYFS anything.

Sometime near the end of May in her senior year, she was called to school principal Herbert Factor's office and asked if the rumors about her having a relationship with Hovington were true. She acknowledged that they were, and Factor said that he would not say anything, but that Hovington could no longer drive her home.

After the DYFS meeting there was at least one additional occasion on which she had intercourse with Mr. Hovington. This occurred in June before her graduation when he took her to the Woodbine Inn for a South Jersey Track Banquet and they then went to Camden County Park in Cherry Hill and had intercourse on a picnic table sometime around midnight.

Towards the end of her senior year, Ms. B. had a confrontation with Hovington and Tina at his apartment. This actually occurred after graduation, sometime in late June. Two days after graduation, she was to have met Hovington who was to be driving the bus. The meeting did not take place. She tried to call him, got his answering machine, and then went to his apartment. They had a conversation in which he spoke of her losing interest in him when she went to college and how he had to keep Tina because he did not want to start over. This conversation occurred on the apartment steps, and Tina was inside. He asked Ms. B. to leave, and she did not want to do that. He went inside, and she knocked on the door. Tina answered and invited her inside. He asked what was going on and P. said that he should tell Tina. He then told Tina that P. was "madly in love with me." He looked up at the ceiling and said that he did not love P. As P. prepared to leave, Tina asked how long this had been going on. P. was trying to regain her composure, and having exited the apartment, she drove off "a bit." Hovington then approached the car and told P. that he did love her, but that he could not say so in front of Tina, "because she was a grown woman." P. said that she was going to "tell the truth," and he replied that she was not being fair. She departed, and later they then had a long telephone conversation in which he complained that she was not being fair and spoke of how he had assisted her. She did not see him after this incident until the first criminal trial.

A.T., who is now married, attended Virginia State and then Delaware State College. She is currently employed as an accountant for a federal agency in New Jersey. Initially, she testified as a Board witness in support of Ms. B.'s allegations. In that regard, she testified that she was a student at Woodrow Wilson High from 1982 through 1986, thus she was two years ahead of Ms. B., whom she knew from their association on the women's track team during Ms. T.'s last two years of school. Ms. T. was a highly successful athlete, state champion in the indoor 55-meter hurdles, during her senior year. Mr. Hovington served as her coach for all four years. According to Ms. T., Mr. Hovington paid "special attention" to her during the years 1983 through 1985 because she was a star. He often drove her and other track team members home, as there were no school buses at that hour. He bought her "things," such as a "regular" jacket and other clothing, and he also arranged for the team to receive jackets reflecting the honors which it won. He sometimes gave her money to get food at track meets. She did not know if he did this for other athletes as well. Sometimes they went out to eat after practice.

Ms. T. recalled that during the track season, while athletes would often stretch each other, Hovington would also stretch some of the athletes. In fact "he stretched everyone on the team who needed to be stretched." In addition, he would massage some of the women's legs, using a lubricating and heating substance known as a balm. When he massaged her, she would be lying on her stomach. Sometime in her junior year, or perhaps during the indoor season of her senior year, he started the massage on the lower portion of her buttocks, or as she later clarified, in mid-buttocks. She was "offended," and her expression conveyed this to him. He explained that the hamstring muscle was located in this area, showing her a book on muscles. He did not touch her buttocks again.

Ms. B. called Ms. T. sometime during the winter of either T.'s junior or senior year and told her about B.'s relationship with Hovington. B. explained that that same day he had driven B. home and they had parked behind the Rutgers campus, where he touched B.'s thigh and then her vagina, pointing out the "parts" of the vagina and inserting his finger into it and then making a remark about pulling up his pants before he did "something I don't want to do." When B. spoke to Ms. T. she sounded upset and asked "what she should do." T. told her tell her mother or grandmother, but B did not want to do this. She never discussed the matter with B. again.

After Ms. T. completed her testimony in November 1995, the Board filed the additional tenure charge which alleged that Mr. Hovington had been involved in improper conduct with Ms. T. She was then recalled to the stand by the Board on April 15, 1996. She testified about an incident when she was engaged in spring track practice and had occasion to mention in front of Mr. Hovington and other male and female members of the team that she was not wearing a bra. (She could not recall the context for this discussion). He responded that she "didn't have much, just put tape on your rosebuds." When Hovington responded in this fashion, Ms. T. said nothing. She was unable to recall during which school year this incident occurred. She explained that it was common to wear a bra during track practice. She often wore her regular bra, but there was a support bra that could be worn. The fact that she even mentioned the fact that she was not wearing a bra was not unusual for her, for she talked about a "lot of things." A lot of the girls confided in Hovington, some saw him as a "father" or "mother" figure.

On another occasion during her junior year she went to see Coach Hovington in his office after she had won the state indoor hurdles championship. He was sitting on his desk and she was standing. He said that she was his first champion and proceeded to kiss her on the mouth while he held her cheeks in his hands. She left the room after he kissed her. She was upset and shocked. She told her friend B.L. about what had happened immediately after it occurred, but told no one else. Describing the incident on cross-examination, Ms. T. explained that when it happened, Hovington "hugged" her towards him. The kiss on the mouth was what bothered her. It was "momentary" and all occurred in a split second.

Referring to the massage incident which was the subject of her November testimony, Ms. T. explained that it occurred after the kissing incident, during the senior year indoor season. She had suffered from a continuing hamstring injury since her sophomore year. On cross-examination she noted that at the time of the massaging of her buttocks, Hovington had responded to her "look" by showing her a book which he had in his trunk and which he used to try to explain the location of the hamstring, but she was "upset" and "did not even hear what he was saying." She could not recall whether she had ever gone to the Temple Sports Clinic for her hamstring injury, or whether she went there only for her broken collarbone and dislocated shoulder. She does not recall that Hovington told her that the doctors or other personnel at the Sports Clinic had told him how to deal with the hamstring injury.

In addition to the incidents described above, the witness related that during high school she had a boyfriend for three years. She had had a sexual relationship with this boy, John, and Hovington knew that because she had made "comments." He also knew that she was taking birth control pills, as she did not consider this information a particularly private matter and had probably told him. She learned during her senior year that John was seeing another girl on the track team. This fact was apparently well known, and one day when Hovington was taking her to the Meet of Champions somewhere in North Jersey, he told her that "You don't need a boyfriend, I'll be your boyfriend." He said that if he wanted "to take her to a motel, no one could say a thing." She was 18 at this time. The "motel" comment "did not come out of the blue," but instead was made in some "context." She recalled that she had at some time prior to that day mentioned to Hovington that she and a "male friend" had "been to the Hilton." As for the comment, she "laughed it off as a joke," believing that he was trying to console her and aware that Hovington "could joke around with her." Ms. T. was "friendly" with Hovington during high school, bringing him her school problems and discussing her grades with him. He "did a lot" for the girls on the team. He kidded around a lot, and was often joking. In fact, she testified that at that time, as a teenager, she "took everything as a joke," and was a selfish stubborn "star." She saw Hovington only as a coach, to whom she went for guidance about colleges, when to get letters for the schools, grades, etc. Even when she testified in the criminal case, she appeared because she felt "she had to be there," but "now" she "had gone back and looked at her clippings and felt that" she "had to be truthful."

Queried further as to the circumstances of her having brought her complaints about Hovington's conduct to the attention of Board representatives, the witness claimed that prior to the November testimony she told Ms. Salcedo-Alonzo, an attorney associated with Ms. Murray's firm which represents the Board, about the hotel comment, the comment regarding her breasts and the massage issue. She had not mentioned the kiss, as she didn't bother to think about it and was "nonchalant," until after she testified.

After high school Ms. T. kept in touch with Hovington. She sent him postcards, called him on occasion, and had nothing against him.

Mary Carol Ellerbee, a health and physical education teacher for many years at Woodrow Wilson, and a coach of girl's softball and in the mid-1980's an assistant coach for Mr. Hovington for one year, related that on one occasion she observed Hovington and P.B. together at the Cherry Hill Mall, and she also noted that he attended "more than one" away girls basketball game when she was coaching that sport and P. was a player. She saw Hovington leave the games with P. "more than once." The away contests were attended by "hardly any" Wilson fans. He also attended home games. On one occasion, which she believed happened during P.'s sophomore year, P. suffered a leg cramp during a game, and Hovington, who was not in any way associated with the team, but was present in the stands, came onto the floor and proceeded to massage P.'s leg. He "beat" the team coaches to the floor. He had no business doing this, and was "totally out of line," but Ellerbee was "too shocked to say anything to" him. Others have on occasion come on to the floor to call a paramedic when someone is injured, but she never saw anyone do so and also be a "hands on" participant. She conceded that it was not unusual for coaches to attend the games of other teams besides those that they coached, and she herself had been to dozens of football games.

In addition to this information, the witness explained that she had seen P. come by the health office and Hovington would give her money, but Ellerbee did not know how much or why. This was something which Ellerbee never did, and P. never asked her for any.

Commenting upon warm up drills and stretching, the witness said that while she did not often use her hands on students to stretch them, Hovington would do so if he was partnered with a female athlete during the stretching time, and he helped them to stretch their groin area and major muscles. She did express some concern about comments by girls regarding their being uncomfortable about him touching them in the groin or thigh area, which she herself felt was "inappropriate, especially when she doesn't have on sweats, she has on the short shorts . . ." She related that unless there was a cramp, massage of the buttocks was not the way to stretch. Commenting upon her experience with the basketball team, Ms. Ellerbee noted that Coach Cary Savage preferred that he not touch or massage the female athletes, and when a massage was appropriate, as it often was, he preferred that she perform it. She did see Savage put his arm around female athletes after a great play or some similar event. This was done to "show approval."

At one time when Ms. Ellerbee was the assistant basketball coach she had a relationship with Hovington. During this time she saw a note from Planned Parenthood which he had. She was aware that he "helped" girls to get on birth control, which she felt was the responsibility of parents and not of teachers and coaches. However, when she was recalled to the stand, this time as a witness for Hovington, Ellerbee related that while she did not encourage students to use birth control, she was aware of some students who were sexually active and she would suggest to them the use of the condom as a protection against sexually transmitted diseases ("STDs"). She would provide information if students asked "outside of class" about where to go for birth control..

The witness served as Hovington's assistant track coach for one year. They were not working well together as coaches because he would not let her feel as if she were a part of the program. Although she testified that it was her decision not to continue as his assistant, he "played a role" in her no longer doing so. (He testified that she had no experience and was not prepared for the job.) She was apparently not happy in this role, and acknowledged that although she "believed" the complaints made regarding his touching of girls, she said nothing to anyone about them, as she just wanted to finish the season and "get off coaching with Hovington." As a result, she told athletes that they were mistaken about the touching, even though she did not believe that this was the case. All in all, she did not "think that it was a big enough issue to bring to Hovington and knowing what his response would be."

Carey Lawrence Savage, a math teacher at Woodrow Wilson, has taught there for fourteen years. He was the boys and girls tennis coach in 1983-84 through 1985-86 and the head girls basketball coach from 1983 through 1992, with a year off in 1989-90. He coached P. B. in both sports. She participated in tennis in her freshman and sophomore years and in basketball in her first three years in school. She did not play in her senior year.

Savage described Hovington as "cocky and arrogant," "underhanded," "subversive" "not a friend," but instead an "adversary." This particular description arose from occasions where Hovington had attempted to lure Savage's athletes, including P.B., to his own teams. Savage felt that Hovington was "trying to build himself up at my expense." Hovington was "always bad mouthing" Savage's program and Savage himself. He heard that Hovington was "ridiculing" him. This "pissed me off a lot," yet he believed that the conduct was a form of insecurity on Hovington's part. Since Savage knew "where it was coming from," he could deal with it, and despite these expressed views of Hovington, Savage insisted that it was not true that he did not like Hovington very much. Yet, he related that he did speak to Hovington about his conduct regarding Savage and his teams and got "angry" when he believed that Hovington had opened Savage's mail. They "almost came to blows."

During her freshman year, Savage would on occasion observe P. talking to Mr. Hovington, and Hovington sometimes would "show up" during basketball practice, where he would talk to P. and others on the team. This continued during her sophomore year. Savage would see Hovington every day with the indoor track team and Hovington would sometimes stop to talk, more often to P. than to others. Throughout the four years, Hovington appeared at quite a few away games. No other coaches attended as many away games as Hovington did. Sometimes he offered to take P. and her friend C.C. to their homes after games. He recalled the "cramp" incident which Ms. Ellerbee related, and this was the only time that Savage saw this type of occurrence.

Toward the end of her junior year, or as he later said, sometime during the latter part of the basketball season which ended in March, Ms. B. came to Coach Savage and related that she was having sexual relations with Mr. Hovington. He cannot recall who initiated this conversation, but at the time, although she was normally cheery and outgoing, he told her that she seemed "bothered." He characterized her as "an emotional person" who "would go up and down," but not more emotional than the other members of the team. He had noticed that her performance was being affected, she seemed "withdrawn," and she tended to "internalize when her expectations were not being met." He wanted to know why. She was, in his words, "disturbed," as "things were not going the way she had planned." She related that the relations had been going on for a "period of time," but he could not recall whether she said that it was for three years. She related that Hovington had said something to the effect that they would get married after she turned eighteen. This conversation with Ms. B. lasted for five to ten minutes.

Thereafter, they "talked about it from time to time." They talked about involvement by the Division of Youth and Family Services ("DYFS") and about a few others knowing what was happening. Some of these conversations may have taken place after her junior year. Toward the middle of her senior year they started to talk again, and Hovington would usually come up in the discussion. He'd ask what was going on, and she would relate that "it was having problems."

According to Savage, he never spoke to Hovington about any of this and never told anyone else. Although he claims to have moved from initial shock to ultimate belief in P.'s claims, he did not report the matter to the school administration, as he felt that this "would not be in the best interest of the student." Although he testified that B. asked him to keep the matter of her relationship with Hovington "a secret," he discussed the matter with Ms. Ellerbee and with Karan Phillips, another teacher/coach.

Mr. Savage explained that as a teacher and coach relating to students and student/athletes, it was not his "interest" to be involved with matters that were not "school related." However, if a student came to him with a non-academic or non-athletic problem, he would be concerned and would respond, giving advice "where appropriate," that is, where he subjectively "felt that he could be effective," helping the student. This was appropriate for a teacher in 1984-88 and was "part of the nature of teaching." At that time teachers were more willing to "go the extra mile for kids," but today they are far more cautious.

Savage confirmed Ms. Ellerbee's testimony that he did not touch his female athletes in order to stretch them. He acknowledged that on occasion he gave students lunch money if they were in need of it, as did other coaches. This was an acceptable practice, the "decent thing to do." The amount of money was small and the frequency not enough to be of concern.

C.S.J., formerly C.C., a friend of Ms. B.'s since third grade and a graduate of Woodrow Wilson High and Rowan College, was an athlete and a talented student. The two were "like sisters," but since graduation from college they have had "more disagreements."

Ms C. recalled that she had seen Mr. Hovington massage Ms. B. at track practice, although he never massaged Ms. C. Ms. B. had a hamstring injury during her freshman year.

Ms. C. recalled an incident which she remembered as having occurred during freshman year when she and Ms. B. were having lunch in the Den, a restaurant located near school. Mr. Hovington came up and said, "P., did you do that yet?" C. inquired of B. as to what he was talking about and B. replied that he had encouraged her to get on birth control. C. herself never heard Hovington actually tell B. to get birth control, but this is what B. reported to her. At the time Ms. B. was dating a senior, M.B. At some point, C. was aware that B. was having sex with M.B., but she now recollects that this was sometime after B.'s freshman year. Ms. C. was then dating someone as well, but Hovington never mentioned birth control to her, nor did she ever hear him do so to other students. At some point in time which she cannot now pinpoint, Ms. C. accompanied Ms. B. to Planned Parenthood, where Ms. B. obtained birth control pills.

In addition to this incident, Ms. C. testified that Ms. B. had told her during freshman year that Mr. Hovington had told her that he wanted them to have a "special friendship," which meant that they would "have their own lives, but also have lives together." She also related that B. told her that on one occasion, Hovington had asked her if she shaved her legs and pubic hair and pulled at her pants "to see." B. told C. that she was "embarrassed" to tell this to her. C. also recalled that during freshman year, B. did not tell her that she had any sexual relations with Hovington, but there was a mention of a massage which touched the inner leg and pubic area. She also related that during the summer after their freshman year, Hovington was driving a bus and would come near B.'s house, which was located just below the Ben Franklin Bridge. B. did not mention anything about any sexual activity occurring during these visits.

The first time that B. related to C. that she had had sexual intercourse with Mr. Hovington was during sophomore year, when one day during second semester they were in English class and had a substitute teacher. Ms. C. and Ms. B. were exchanging notes in class and C. related a personal matter. In response, B. wrote that she and Hovington had slept together in his car behind B.'s house. According to C., she learned that the two had regular sex in the back of the car. The girls then discussed these events at lunch and C. described her friend as "shocked, excited, happy." B. reported that she was on birth control. She also had told A.T. about this incident before revealing it to Ms. C. After this event, B. continued to tell C. that they were having relations on school holidays or breaks and when Mr. Hovington's girlfriend had to work. Ms. C. "covered" for B. on occasion, as B. would tell her grandmother that she was at C.'s house when in fact she was with Hovington.

C. noted that Hovington would drive B., and only B., to away track meets. He also would ask her if she needed money when he would see her in the school hallways. She actually observed money pass from him to B. This happened "more than ten times," and she never saw him do this with other students. During the junior and senior years, Hovington bought B. a jacket, a pink leotard for a dance she was involved in for a school event and a radio to play the music on, and gave her money for the class trip.

The reports of sexual activity continued during the junior year, and by this time, "all knew about it," including teachers who B. told.

The witness related her knowledge regarding Ms. B.'s suicide attempt. At the time, she "knew" that it happened because of B.'s concerns regarding the Hovington relationship and "other problems," but at this time she cannot recall what these other matters might have been. She knew that B.'s mother had been out of the house at some point, but did not know exactly why, and is not sure if she was living in the home at the time of the suicide attempt. As for her feelings about Hovington, Ms. C. believed that P. thought that she was in love with Hovington, but as C. saw the situation, B. was under age, and Hovington was manipulating her and taking control of her life. B. was in love, and C. could not tell her that the relationship was not going to work out. However, C. further explained that at the time she herself believed that Hovington was a good coach, a good person, and although she knew that the sexual relationship was wrong and that after the suicide attempt he should have halted the relationship, she, that is, C. was young and did not know how to deal with it. As far as C. knew, Hovington did not know that C. was aware that he and B. were involved.

C. maintained contact with Hovington after graduation.

Karan Phillips, a teacher of Health and Physical Education at Wilson during the years in which Ms. B. was a student, explained that sex education conducted as a part of the Health course did include some discussion of birth control, but no detailed instructions as to the use of the contraceptives. No instructions were ever given that the students should be instructed to use birth control.

Ms. Phillips attended track meets held at the school and also went to relay meets which were held at other schools. She recalled that she had observed Hovington massaging a cramp, which in and of itself was not unusual, or something which she herself had not done, except that she noted that he was rubbing P.B. too close to the private area. The student was on her stomach, and Hovington was rubbing the quadriceps, but doing so very high "above the quads," which seemed unusual to her. The following Monday she spoke to the athletic director, Mr. McColghan, and mentioned that she had noted this unusual rubdown. McColghan responded, "You haven't seen nothing, I've seen other positions." He laughed and walked away. She did not know if his response was in reference to Hovington and Ms. B. On cross-examination, the witness agreed that the hamstring muscle extends under the gluteus maximus and that she has had experience with athletes who have suffered cramps high up in the hamstring. However, the "rubbing" that she witnessed was more "inside" the thigh, perhaps an inch from the vaginal area, although she did not see any contact with the vaginal area itself.

During P.'s senior year, Phillips noticed that P.'s personality had changed. She kept to herself, and did not appear as happy as she had been in the past. Phillips spoke to her about this, and B. confided that she was involved in a sexual relationship with Hovington. She explained that she had looked upon him as a father figure and that the relationship had become sexual during her sophomore year, the first incident occurring in his car. She said that she loved him and that he had spoken of marriage when she graduated. P. was not sure if she wanted to press charges against Hovington, and Phillips suggested that P. should tell someone other than herself if she wanted to do something. Phillips suggested that P. tape an "episode" if she was going to make the relationship public. After this discussion, Ms. Phillips thought about what she had learned, knew it was improper and illegal conduct, but did not know what to do and never determined to handle this information. However, a day or two later Hovington and B. were called to the school office, and she understands that DYFS was contacted. When this happened, P. came to Phillips and asked her if she had told anyone, which Phillips had not.

The Board produced William Michael Wright, Jr., presently employed at Camden High School where he has served as the coach for indoor and outdoor track and cross-country for seven years, who qualified as an expert witness. Mr. Wright testified concerning the reasons for, nature of and management of stretching and massaging. He opined that it was not appropriate to stretch a hamstring while the athlete was laying on her stomach. The proper procedures for stretching do not require that any touching of the vaginal or buttocks area occur.

Massaging, which is performed with a balm which is "hot," is in his view really a psychological aide more than a physical one. Many athletes believe it to be helpful. Wright performs all of the massaging for his athletes. If one is massaging a hamstring, the proper technique is to place the thumbs at the insertion point of the muscle in the leg at the back of the knee and work the thumbs upward to the bottom of the athlete's shorts, at the line of the glutei, but he stops one to one and a half inches below the shorts. There is no reason to massage the buttocks. He has used this procedure with females. This same technique is used for the quads, from the front of the leg, and no vaginal contact is involved here either. Wright does not go as far up as the origin point of the hamstring, which is located underneath the gluteus. If he did, then no doubt he would have a full grasp of the gluteal and have his hand up to the pubic area. As a result, and for his own protection, it is his policy not to go "anywhere near" the origin point. However, it is possible to have an injury and pain at the origin point and he has seen a few injuries high up on the hamstring.

Muscle cramps occur frequently, the majority in the hamstrings. The treatment requires an immediate stretch of the affected muscle. The affected athlete could do this by herself, but cramps can at times be very painful and it is hard to say how successful this might be. A buddy will therefore usually assist the injured athlete. Wright has not seen any cramps in the buttocks, but this can occur.

Mr. Wright detailed the expenditures that he has personally undertaken over the years for items of equipment, clothing, an assistant coach (he paid someone $500.00), support services, etc., which he has provided for his teams beyond the limited funds available from the school budget for such items. Rewards are used as incentives for the athletes. These might include Twizzlers for a personal best performance, movies for the team, parties at his home, spaghetti dinners, coupons for hoagies, etc. He has spent an average of $1,500 a year of his own money for these purposes, including gas, hotels, shoes, etc. However, he has not bought presents of personal clothing, but he did give his first student athlete $100 at graduation and he has provided athletes with spending money for trips to colleges. Part of all of this effort is to motivate the athletes, and the witness agreed that motivation is more of an art than a science and that there are different approaches to achieve motivation. The use of different methods is necessary and is dependent upon the time and circumstance. It is often said that it is harder to coach females than males, but he does not believe this to be true.

Students often come to Wright to discuss all sorts of problems and concerns, such as family, money, disciplines and restrictions, "anything that you can read in the papers." Any issues that come up with his athletes regarding contraception are passed on to his new female assistant coach. Once, a female told him that she was "on the pill" and was nauseous. He told her about his personal feeling regarding the pill and spoke to the department chair about its affects.

RESPONDENT'S WITNESSES

The respondent presented K. D., a student and athlete at Woodrow Wilson from 1982 to 1986, who was coached by Mr. Hovington and has remained in contact with him ever since, describing him as a "personal friend." She is now a manager for a security company and does some track coaching at Wilson. She had no father at home during her high school years, and Mr. Hovington served as a father figure to her and to many of the other girls. She spoke to him about personal and family problems and he helped her with a "whole lot of things," as he did for "everyone" on the team, many of whom also "brought their problems to him. He gave answers "as best as he could." In addition, the witness related that a "whole lot of girls" had crushes on Hovington.

D. was an outstanding, champion athlete. She received rubdowns from Hovington and she saw him give rubdowns to others as well. "Most of the time" he used balm, which was messy, gritty, smelly and burned, and which he did not like to apply, but did. She suffered a hamstring injury during her senior year cross-country season, which injury ran from the bottom of her buttocks down her leg. He applied the balm from the "bottom of (her) buttocks." As she recalled, he "always explained himself," because sometimes athletes had to go home and have someone else help with the injury. In doing this he would sometimes show the whole team the musculature and discuss the need to stretch or massage.

Ms. D. recalled that the team would take a bus to away meets, and sometimes Hovington drove the bus. When the team won the state sectional title, he personally purchased jackets for the team members, as the Board would only purchase jackets for state champions. He also bought her and others sneakers, sweats and T-shirts, as the Board did not "give much, so coaches did." He gave her money, "a couple of dollars," "whenever she asked if he had it." He gave money to others, and the team would sometimes ask for him to treat them, which he would do. He once transported D. to a scholarship awards ceremony in North Jersey held by the Masons which her father could not take her to because he was already at the meeting. He never said anything inappropriate to her and she felt comfortable with him.

Ms. D. was a teammate of Ms. B. for Ms. D.'s last two years at Wilson. They were friends, as were all the members of the track team. However, they have not spoken for some years now, and are no longer friends, because B. ended the relationship and, as D. put it, D. was "sitting here in this seat (the witness chair) against her word." She remembered that B. told her about problems at home with her mother, and also told her during D.'s junior year, which was B.'s freshman year, that Hovington liked B. and wanted to have a "relationship" with her, which she took to mean a romantic one. This was when D. was involved in indoor track and B. with basketball. This continued during the next year, D.'s senior, with B. reporting that he was interested in her, she in him and that they were in fact having a relationship, but D. "never saw it." She later clarified this testimony, indicating that the report of an actual relationship was given to D. when she was already in college, which would have been sometime during B.'s last two years of high school. According to the witness, when B. first reported this interest, on more than one occasion, D. told her that she should tell her parent, but B. said that she could not. D. did not know whether to believe the story.

Ms. D. denied that she ever heard the coach refer to anyone's breasts as "rosebuds," and appeared quite sincere when she said that had she ever heard that comment, she would have remembered it.

Mr. Hovington's sister, Belinda Vivian Smith, who is a registered nurse, testified that she recalled the incident when P.B. stayed in her apartment after she had taken pills, as Belinda was told by her brother. He said that the principal had recommended that he find some place where B. could gather herself. They picked P. up on a street corner in Camden and then went to the hospital to visit with their mother.

Tina Louise Hovington, the respondent's wife since November 1988, and his girlfriend and housemate during various times relevant to this case, testified that she has known her husband for eleven or twelve years. She estimated that when Belinda and she resided with him in the Millbridge Apartments in Clementon during some of the time when P. was in high school that she, Tina, was actually in the apartment 90% of the time, and was there 100% of the time after Belinda moved upstairs to her own apartment. She was sometimes in the car with John when he would drive athletes home from practice, because on occasion if her car was not working she would borrow his and come to pick him up after practice. Amongst those whom she saw during these trips were A.T., C.J. and P.B. She knew that he would give students money if they were selling candy at school, and he would call colleges for both male and female students, drive them to the SAT tests, help them complete college applications, etc.

Mrs. Hovington also understood that P. came to Belinda's apartment after the suicide attempt to "get a different environment" and "get herself together." She listened through the mail slot as John and P. spoke the day after graduation when P. appeared at the apartment. John then told Tina that P. thought that he was in love with P. P. left and then came back, telling John that he should tell Tina who he loved, to which he replied that he "loved Tina and I've been telling you that." P. then threatened to tell DYFS. When P. finally left, Tina asked John what was going on and he said that P. was in love with him, and that it was not true that he had any relationship with P. Mrs. Hovington described herself as a "nosy" person, who listened in on calls that John would receive from students because of her "nosiness," not out of any "concern" regarding John.

J. M. J., Mr. Hovington's son, is now 23 years old. He attends Rutgers University. In the mid-1980's he met P.B., whom he knew to be one of the athletes his father coached. In fact, he explained that his father held her up as a role model, in that she was an honor student and a very successful athlete. He recalled attending a basketball playoff game with her and his father which was held in the evening at a neutral site at the Washington Township High School in Gloucester County. Mr. J. did not reside with his father and that afternoon J.'s grandfather brought him to the school so that he could meet his father. After his father concluded indoor track practice, they drove some students to their homes. P.B. was in the car. The three then proceeded directly to Hovington's apartment, where both his father and Ms. B. had to shower and change out of their sweats. J. sat in the living room of the small one-bedroom residence, watching television. Either his dad or Ms. B. went into the bedroom and showered in the bathroom first while the other remained in his view, and then they switched. The bedroom door was fifteen feet from where he sat in the living room. He cannot recall whether he spoke with Ms. B. during the time that he and she were alone in that room while his father showered. According to Mr. J., his father and Ms. B. were never together in the bedroom, one was always in his sight throughout the whole time that the three of them were in the apartment prior to departing for the basketball game. At the game, Ms. B. sat apart from them. After the game they dropped her off at her home and returned to Mr. Hovington's apartment, where J. then spent the weekend.

On cross-examination Mr. J. said that they had probably arrived at his father's apartment at some time between 6:00 and 6:30 P.M. and that the basketball game was at either 7:00 or 7:30 P.M. He estimated that they were at the apartment for 30-45 minutes and left between 6:45 and 7:00 P.M. He estimated that each took six minutes to shower and change. However, in his 1990 testimony in the first criminal trial, he said that they were in the apartment for about an hour. The trip from the apartment to the game took 20-30 minutes and he recalled arriving at the gym at about 7:15 P.M., when the teams were warming up.

John W. Hovington holds a Bachelor of Science in Education from Temple and started as a teacher in the Camden school district in September 1973. After teaching at the Hatch Middle School for seven or eight years he transferred to Woodrow Wilson in 1981. He taught health and physical education and was the head coach for indoor track for boys and girls and spring girls track in his first year at the school. He took a college level course in coaching. He also attended track and field coaching clinics. These addressed performance, training, diet and injuries. He also received information from doctors and trainers at the Temple Sports Medicine Clinic regarding injuries, prevention and treatment.

Hovington would demonstrate stretching techniques to the athletes and assist them with these procedures. It was important to control the amount of force applied, and it was possible for students to injure another athlete if they applied the force improperly while stretching them. He used books and other visual aids to illustrate the mechanics involved and to help his athletes to be knowledgeable.

At one time or another Hovington had an assistant coach, either Carol Smeltzer or Carol Ellerbee. The track program had no trainer and the coaches would deal with injuries which occurred in meets or practices.

The indoor track team practiced in the school's lower gym, when possible in the main gym and the hallways. The boys and girls basketball teams practiced in the main gym and it was necessary to walk through this gym to go to practice. It was not at all unusual for Hovington and/or his athletes to stop and watch the basketball players practicing or playing a game and he sometimes had to look in the gym in order to find some of his personnel.

Many of the students at Wilson were economically and/or socially deprived. Hovington gave money to students on occasion, for lunch, for a lost book at graduation time, or for sneakers that an athlete needed but could not afford. He also purchased tights for the females so that they could keep warm, although he cannot recall if he ever did so for P.B. In the case of the tights, he would ask the students for $10 and if they claimed that they did not have the money, he would probably buy the tights himself. He did these things for both boys and girls and was not reimbursed. No rule or regulation existed which said that he could not purchase these items for students or athletes. Many of the athletes did not work, and this was his way of saying "thank you." They were told that if they became state champions he would buy them sneakers. He arranged to have a local businessman pay for the purchase of jackets for his state sectional championship team, as the Board would only do so if they won the state championship itself. He was never told that this was an invalid or prohibited form of motivation. He knew that the basketball coach at Wilson purchased sneakers for members of his team. He had booster cards made up for the students to sell to cover the cost of rooms for the trips to state championship meets. He did give P.B. perhaps $10 or $15 when she paid a visit to a college, as he asked her if she had any money for non-track-related clothing.

The respondent acknowledged that star athletes such as P.B. and A.T. were given more attention, as were other stars and participants in certain events, such as the high jump.

Students often came to Mr. Hovington to discuss their problems, and P.B. often did this. He claimed that in his first year as a coach he lost 50% of his squad to pregnancy, and as a result of this experience he spoke to other coaches and administrators about the issue. He discussed birth control with athletes outside of the health and family life courses. Board policy placed limitations upon the nature and extent of the discussions which could take place in these classes regarding this topic. He told the athletes that if they were "playing the game they had to play by the rules," referring to the dangers of sexually transmitted diseases (STDs) and pregnancy.

One of the athletes Hovington coached was M.B., who talked in the locker room about having sexual relations with P.B. As a result of M.B.'s discussions, Hovington spoke to P.B. and told her that if she was sexually active that she had to protect herself or she would not finish the school year because she would get pregnant. He specifically referred to birth control. Ms. B. did not actually acknowledge the sexual activity, but she did appear to have heard about the pill. He never took her, or anyone else, to Planned Parenthood or anywhere else so that she could obtain birth control pills, but he did tell students where it was located.

Hovington, who during the period of concern in this case lived in Gloucester Township, explained that after practice in the late fall and winter it was dark and the students could not use bus passes after a certain hour. He often drove P. and other students home. The students usually sat in the back of the car. Because of the distance which she lived from the school as compared to others he drove, P.B was usually the last student dropped off. For a couple of years he also regularly drove Coach Charles Iepson home during track and basketball season, as Iepson's wife, who was a city police officer, often had their car. Hovington, who is 6 feet tall and weighed about 220 pounds, drove a white, two-door Toyota Celica GTS. He claimed that he could not easily get into the rear seat of the car. (He also related that while he had been in the back seat with his daughter when she was one year old, there was not room in the back for him and another teenager or adult).

The respondent said that he always tried to keep the atmosphere surrounding his athletes loose, and as such he would often joke around with them. They had a tendency to get very nervous and tight before meets and he would try to keep them relaxed. Several of his athletes continued to contact him after they graduated, and several cards, postcards and other correspondence received by him were presented in evidence.

A.T. ran track for Hovington for four years. He joked with her, gave her money and bought her sneakers when she won the state title. He may have purchased tights for her. He denied that he ever made any comment about her breasts, but agreed that he did make comments regarding undergarments to students, explaining that at the beginning of the track season he would tell the boys that they had to wear jockstraps for safety and to avoid embarrassment. Girls were told that they needed to wear sports bras, which provided more support for the breasts. He does not recall any individual conversation with A.T. about this subject, or any "rosebud" comment, or any remark about Dolly Parton, nor ever trying to embarrass A.T. in front of any other athletes. It was not uncommon for both male and female athletes to make their comments about their or one another's body parts, such as the size of breasts or buttocks.

A.T. suffered a pulled hamstring at some time, which Mr. Hovington believed might have been February of her senior year. Mr. Hovington used balm and wrapped A.T.'s leg. As for massages, these were essentially performed for their psychological effect upon the athletes, who believed that they were effective. He would use balm as a lubricant, which had a pungent odor and which burned and would irritate the eyes if he rubbed them before thoroughly cleaning his hands and also would irritate the genitalia if any came too close thereto, as happened if he went to the bathroom after using it and not completely removing it by thorough washing. He doesn't know if he ever got any of the balm on or near the vaginal area of any athlete. He denied that he ever touched the vaginal area of either of the complaining witnesses. As for massaging A.T.'s buttocks, this supposed event did "not ring a bell" with him, but he did recall using an anatomy book to show her what her injury was and how it was treated. He "usually" did this if he was treating an injury. He told her how far up the injury went, where the hamstring was attached, but this did not occur in response to her being upset about anything, and she never communicated to him that she was upset about either any comment that he made or the way in which he touched her. He never grabbed her, never kissed her on the lips or pulled her towards him. However, he did hug her at track meets. He never told her to tape her breasts and he never told her that he could take her to a motel when she became 18 years old. He "absolutely" denied ever making any sexually explicit comments to her.

As for P.B., Hovington said that after observing her, he saw by the end of freshman year that she had promise as a track performer. At the time, his concentration was on others, such as A.T. and K.D. By her junior year he was concentrating more on P.B., spending more time with her as far as her events were concerned. He would see her in the hallways at school during each of her four years, and she first approached him regarding personal matters during either her freshman or sophomore year. He heard comments from her about her grandfather being drunk, and she came to him about a vaginal discharge, which in itself was not very unusual for girls on the team. They would discuss pregnancy, vaginal warts, periods; boys would talk openly about girls and sexual activity. Probably during her sophomore year, he learned about P.'s difficulties with her mother, who was sometimes very quiet and sometimes very loud. P. said that her mother was "high," using cocaine. Somewhere in this time period her mother left home, supposedly going to the South to care for a relative, and she was in and out of the home for a lengthy period of time. P. also talked about her boyfriends. Hovington felt that she related to him as a "father" or "big brother," seeking advice and information on how to pursue boys she liked.

Referring to the suicide attempt during P.'s senior year, Hovington related that he saw P. and C.C. walking down the hall in school the morning after the event, which he first learned about that morning. C. advised him that P. had attempted suicide by taking muscle relaxants, and he was "shocked" by this. He spoke with school principal Herbert Factor, and the principal suggested that she needed to get out of the "environment" for a day or two so that she could "get herself together." Hovington knew that P.'s mother was not around and that she was not getting along with her well. Her aunts and uncles all lived in the same house with P. He told P. to go to the sofa in the back office in the gym, and she remained out of her classes that day. He denied that the doors could be locked. He thinks that after classes ended P. went home. He had told her what Factor had suggested, and later on that day Hovington and his sister picked P. up at the street corner near her house. His mother and grandmother were coincidentally hospitalized at the time, and the three went to visit them at Rancocas Valley Hospital before going to his apartment complex, where P. stayed for the night in his sister's apartment.

Asked about his recollections of P. attending any winter indoor track meets in which she was not herself a participant, the witness said that these were always held on a Friday night or

Saturday and never during the week. He did remember that probably in her junior year she had attended such a meet, traveling on the team bus to the meet after she asked if she could and he saw no problem with such a request. On the way back to school after the meet, the bus driver would drop students at major intersections or at their homes. This is the only instance that he can recall where she attended such a meet. He denied that any sexual activity occurred after this or any other such meet held at Widener. As for her claim that they had sex in the car within blocks of her house, she lived one block off the Rutgers campus, and he had observed that the area was patrolled by police officers from Camden City, Rutgers, Riverfront State Prison, Delaware River Port Authority ("DRPA") and also by RCA/GE security personnel. He once told her that she lived in the safest neighborhood in the city.

Hovington explained the circumstances of the trips to Central and North Jersey for championship meets. His assistant coaches would also attend these meets. He roomed with Coach David Cade, the boy's track coach. The students were assigned four to a room. He denied ever having sex with P. on any of these occasions. As for the summer bus driver job which he had, he worked for Greyhound out of New York City until March 1987, also working some weekends. He then drove for Frank's Bus Service, out of Lindenwold. He drove all over the East Coast. He denied any meetings with P. during the summer, or any sex in the buses. He never had sex with her in his apartment at any time, never propositioned her for sex, never told her not to "ravish" him, never inserted his finger in or even touched her vagina and specifically denied that any sexual activity occurred on the occasion when he took her and his son J. to the playoff basketball game. In this instance, P. had asked if she could have a ride to the game, claiming that she did not have money for the ticket for the student bus. He agreed to drive her, and after practice the three went to his apartment. He showered, and having showed her where the bathroom was and provided her with a washcloth and towel, he exited the bedroom and she then presumably showered. She had clothes in a bag, the same ones she had worn to school that day, and she put these on to go to the game. No sexual activity of any kind occurred. They were not together out of J.'s sight. All told, they were in the apartment for 30-45 minutes. He thinks that they had stopped at a McDonald's Restaurant. P. sat apart from Hovington and his son at the game and then they drove her to her home.

Hovington denied that he attended P.'s away basketball games, as they conflicted with his indoor track activities. However, since it was on his way home, it was possible that he might have stopped by to view away games held at Highland High School. He did attend home games. He observed other coaches from other sports at these games. One time P. sustained a cramp in her calf and he went onto the floor and massaged it, as it happened right in front of him and Coach Savage just "stood there." Hovington saw nothing unusual about his conduct, explaining that when he saw her go down with the cramp, he "just reacted."

In regards to the incident at his apartment after graduation, Hovington testified that in June 1988, P. drove to his apartment, rang the bell, and when he went to the door and asked her "what's up," she said that she wanted to get something straight. She "wanted to know if you love me or not." He told her that while he did not love her, that "he cared for you a lot." He explained to Tina that P. thought that he was in love with her. P. never said anything about sex. A couple of weeks before this episode, P. had told him that she would be graduating soon, that she really cared for him, that she had more feelings for him than simply as a coach, and that she wanted something more than a student-coach relationship. In his view she wanted a "romantic" relationship, and this was "absolutely" the first time that she had raised this. He told her that while he cared for her, he didn't see her "that way," and there could never be anything more than that for several reasons, such as the age difference. Additionally, at that point he told her that stories that she had previously heard about him and her mother having had a sexual relationship, stories the truth of which he had previously denied to her, were in fact true. (He explained at the hearing that he dated her mother once in the Spring of 1985, after she called him. They had sex on this one date). In response to this revelation P. said that she was going to "get" him. He just looked at her, may have wished her good luck for graduation, and "just walked away." Shortly after this, in May of 1988, he was contacted by school authorities regarding P. He was aware that DYFS came to the school, and he was called to Mr. Factor's office. Mr. Martini of DYFS asked him if he was having an affair with P., which Hovington denied in Factor's presence. At the time, he was not aware what transpired between Martini and P. He later learned that she had denied that there was any relationship. However, Mr. Factor told him not to drive any students home any more, and he did not do so thereafter. Hovington told P. that "this was ridiculous," he didn't need the aggravation. She said that she believed Dean Epps had contacted DYFS.

On cross-examination Hovington explained in regard to his claim of significant losses from the track team due to pregnancy that he did lose one indoor track member. In addition, A.T. had told him in 1985-86 that she was pregnant and had nevertheless completed the track season. He does not know whether she was in fact pregnant. Before she told him of her pregnancy she had come to him and discussed her involvement in sexual activities. He told her to abstain or find a way to prevent STDs or pregnancy. One evening sometime after this discussion she called him in regard to nausea which she was experiencing when she took the pill. He told her to see a doctor.

M. B. and other boys came to him to discuss birth control. M. told him that he thought that he had gotten someone pregnant, and Hovington spoke to him about responsibilities and that if he was sexually active, he needed to worry about STDs and pregnancy. When he learned that M. was having regular sexual activity with P.B., he may have approached her and spoken about her reputation, the need to abstain or to protect herself if she chose not to abstain. He was "very protective" of his girls, and he once approached M. and told him that he was a "junk yard dog, sniffing skirt tails." When he asked M. if he was having sex with P., the boy acknowledged that he was. However, despite his concern, Hovington denied that he ever approached P. in C.C.'s presence in an off-campus lunch spot to inquire about whether P. was as yet on birth control.

Hovington denied purchasing a tape recorder or a Homecoming outfit for P., or bathing suits for her senior trip. He did give her some money so that she could get her grandmother something for Christmas. He knew and respected this lady, and when he asked P. what she was giving her for the holiday and P. said that she had no money for a gift for her, he provided somewhere between $10 and $20, but not $50.

Several character witnesses testified on behalf of the respondent. These included Dr. Marie Antoinette English, a professor of psychology at Camden County College, who has known Mr. Hovington for 22 years as a friend, educator and teacher. Hovington used to teach at the same school as her husband, who now teaches at Camden High School. She has socialized with him perhaps twice a year, usually at athletic functions. She described his reputation in the educational community for honesty and integrity as "extremely honorable." He is known as a sincere, dedicated teacher, who goes out of his way to help.

Dr. Arnold W. Webster, the current Mayor of the City of Camden and the former Superintendent of its school system for eight years and Assistant Superintendent for 14 years before holding the Superintendency, knows Mr. Hovington through his professional position in the school district and through their mutual interest in sports. However, they have not socialized in any other fashion. Webster had no direct professional contact with Hovington, but did appear as a character witness for him in the criminal proceedings and wrote a letter on his behalf to the judge. (R13).

Reverend Calvin Ronald Woods, pastor of St. John's United Methodist Church in Berlin, New Jersey and a clergyman for thirty-one years, has known the respondent for eight or nine years. He met and counseled with Tina and John before their marriage. Hovington is involved in the Church's men's group, the gospel choir and serves on its administrative counsel. His reputation for honesty and truthfulness is such that others respect and look up to him. Reverend Woods, who first learned of the criminal indictment about four or five years ago, has the same personal opinion of Mr. Hovington.

Herbert M. Factor, employed by the Board of Education for 35 years and currently the principal of Broadway School, was the principal at Wilson High from December 1986, until June 1994. As he recalled the incident with DYFS and P. B., he was called to report to some location in the school building where he found a distraught P., "crying hysterically," incoherent" and "refusing to speak about what was upsetting her." The Dean of Students, Mr. Epps, said that P. was saying "certain things" and Factor, who claimed that he only heard that she was having problems and concerns, and that there was some problem about jealousy between P. and her mother regarding some relationship which the student felt her mother had with Hovington which upset the student, and who does not recall if Mr. Epps raised any concerns of a sexual nature, decided that it was necessary to get an outside agency involved, so he contacted DYFS. She never told Factor that she was in a sexual relationship with Hovington. After the DYFS visit, P. came to see him, but he does not recall telling her that he would not get involved, but he might have said this, explaining to her that DYFS was now in the picture. As for Mr. Martini, Factor cannot recall if the gentleman asked him whether she said that she was involved sexually. He is not aware what P. told Martini. No administrative action resulted from this DYFS visit. Factor only learned of the sexual allegations when the criminal charges were brought. He had not heard any rumors, for if he had he would have investigated their source. He does not remember Ms. Ellerbee ever mentioning any "questionable" rubdown, or she or Cary Savage ever telling him about an alleged sexual relationship between P. and Hovington.

Factor recalled that there was a time in 1986-87 when he was aware that Mr. Hovington and the girl's basketball coach were "competing" for P.'s participation on their teams. He never received any complaints about Hovington's conduct with Ms. B. He does not recall that Hovington ever told him about any suicide attempt on P.'s part. He also said that he did not know that Hovington was driving P. home and does not think that he ever told him to stop this practice.

Deborah DeRemigi Iepson, now an employee of the Audubon Board of Education, was a teacher and track and field coach at Wilson who has known the respondent since 1986. She described herself as not a social friend of Hovington, but Charles Iepson, her husband since May 1994, was and remains a social friend of the respondent. As a coach, Mrs. Iepson dealt with injuries, touching both male and female athletes when doing so. She has massaged males who suffered severe muscle cramps, even touching both men and woman in the groin area, which can get very tight. It is possible that she has touched the pubic area in some of these instances.

In rebuttal, the Board presented Patricia E. Cook, now the principal of Wilson High, and the assistant principal of that school from the summer of 1983 until September of 1985. While it is possible that Hovington spoke to her about his female athletes talking about their problems at home, she denied that Hovington ever spoke to her about birth control, as he claimed he did in regard to his supposed concerns about the risk of pregnancy and the loss of his athletes. She "absolutely" recalls no such conversation, or giving any advice to him about getting the girls to use birth control. This was a subject which she would not have discussed had it come up, and she would remember if it had. She would have referred anyone who raised the topic to the school nurse or the principal.

James R. Epps, now an administrative assistant at Pine Street Middle School, but formerly the Dean of Students at Wilson where he was responsible for the school climate, discipline and attendance, recalled that sometime in April-May 1988, P. B. came to see him. She was upset, and this was not usual for her. He questioned her about this. She was not incoherent, and did not refuse to talk. She had confided to friends about her "personal situation" (Epp's term) with Hovington and he asked her about it. She confirmed that there was a personal relationship, although he isn't sure that "sexual relationship" was used. They spoke and then Epps went to Principal Factor, telling him what she had said and asking him what he intended to do. Epps denied that he told Factor anything about P. speaking of jealousy, a problem with her mother, or her home life. Factor felt that DYFS should be involved.

Lieutenant Herbert Foltz of the Camden Police Department and Captain Guy Michael Still of the Rutgers University Police Department, who is assigned to the Camden Campus, each testified regarding patrol patterns and levels of criminal activity in the area of the campus and the surrounding neighborhood in the mid-1980's. Lt. Foltz, who was assigned to the police tactical unit at the time, worked alone in a motorized patrol. He described the area, which covered ten square blocks located on the North side of Camden and included within the patrol area the Camden side of the Ben Franklin Bridge property, as predominantly residential, except near the river where there was mainly business property. The area was "quiet," gave him "few problems," and was "extremely quiet" during the winter. In addition to his tactical patrol unit, there was a regular patrol officer on duty in the area as well, who he would see perhaps three to five times during a typical patrol over a five hour period. However, it was not at all unusual for the tactical patrol car, and often even the regular patrol officer as well, to be pulled out of the area to attend to other more pressing police business in other parts of the city. In fact, Foltz claimed that there was "never" an evening in four years when he was not pulled out of the patrol area at least once during his shift, for periods that ran from "minutes" to "hours." There was also limited patrol of the area by the Delaware River Port Authority Police. The Rutgers Police patrolled part of his tactical patrol area, but not as far as Point Street where P.B. lived. RCA transported its security personnel around its properties in a van, which may have had overhead lights.

Captain Small described the areas of patrol for the Rutgers Police and said that the area of Point Street and the Bridge property was part of Zone 3, which he described as "pretty much of a safe area," "basically quiet." He agreed that his officers would check suspicious vehicles.

DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

Laches Defense

The present matter involves a series of charges which involve events over a decade old. Unlike cases where allegations are first made many years after the alleged incidents, at least as respects the claims presented by P.B., the claims surfaced in 1988, within only a few years of the alleged commencement and only shortly after what P.B. claims to have been the last episode in that alleged sexual relationship. Thus, while it is true that the Board's tenure charges are of quite recent vintage, the long running saga surrounding the nature of the friendship between P.B. and John Hovington is not new.

Laches is an equitable defense which is premised upon the concept that a party may lose its right to assert its otherwise possibly valid legal position if it has been guilty of > neglect, for an unreasonable and unexplained length of time, under circumstances permitting diligence, to do what in law should have been done. More specifically, it is inexcusable delay in asserting a right. Atlantic City v. Civil Service Commission, 3 N.J. Super. 57, 60 (App. Div. 1949)

The delay in the institution of tenure charges for events now at least eight years old is, in this case, entirely understandable and by no means fatal, and laches is not an available defense to these charges. Extremely serious criminal charges were pending against Mr. Hovington as early as 1988, and as noted, the criminal process here has been complex and lengthy. Suspension pending the discharge of criminal charges lies within the Board's discretion. Conviction on the criminal charges would have in all likelihood obviated the need to pursue a tenure charge, as forfeiture of the teaching position could well have been automatic since the allegations of a sexual liaison with a minor student certainly involved activities which touched upon the duties of the public employment. N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2. Throughout the period of the ongoing criminal process Mr. Hovington has had every reason to fully prepare for defense against the allegations of sexual activity with Ms. B., prior grand jury presentations and criminal trials have preserved testimony, and no evidence has been presented which would suggest that the delay in the institution of tenure charges has acted to deprive the respondent of evidence, witnesses, etc. Since it is essentially conceded that a final result in the criminal process which included a criminal conviction based upon the existence of a sexual relationship, or even upon a sexual encounter, with P.B., would have without doubt resulted in a subsequent loss of tenure, the failure of the Board to immediately file a tenure charge in 1988 or thereafter can hardly be said to have led the respondent to believe that the Board was not intending to file such charges. Under these circumstances, there is no neglect, no unexplained delay and no basis whatsoever for invoking the equitable doctrine of laches to prevent the Board from pursuing these tenure charges.

The Charges Involving P.B.

As the parties correctly state, the determination of this case is entirely dependent upon a determination of the credibility of witnesses. Further, the evidence does not include any claim that anyone other than the alleged participants witnessed actual sexual encounters. The witnesses other than P.B. and Mr. Hovington can only report hearsay, general observations and the like, but the real proof that the relationship either was sexual or was not must ultimately be drawn from the testimony of the two primary witnesses themselves.

The test applicable to the evidence in this civil administrative proceeding is whether the charges have been proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence. It is important to keep this is mind, as the three previous attempts by public authorities to prove that Hovington had a sexual relationship with a minor were subject to the much more demanding test of proof beyond a reasonable doubt which is applicable to criminal charges. Here, reasonable doubts may exist after all of the evidence is analyzed, and yet the charges may be deemed proven. The difference in the test to which the evidence is subjected reflects the difference between the serious consequences of a loss of tenure and the even more serious and potentially devastating consequences of a criminal conviction for a crime of moral turpitude.

The evidence strongly supports certain general conclusions about the general nature of the relationship of Coach Hovington and his female athletes. In general, many of them viewed the coach as a father figure, or perhaps as an older brother, and they confided in him about school matters, personal health issues, family life, relationships, etc. The record suggests that at least some, or perhaps even many, of these woman did not have a male presence in their homes, and perhaps this led to the reliance upon an obviously willing and apparently sympathetic listener in Coach Hovington. Whatever may be felt about the nature of the subjects which the women chose to discuss with this adult male, in and of itself the close nature of the friendships and the confidential communication on topics relating to the important, and the then seemingly important, aspects of their lives with their coach is not all that troublesome. Indeed, even where the conversations may have entered the emotional area of birth control, it is very understandable that these teenagers were concerned about their emerging sexuality, their relationships and the dangers inherent in them, and it would be surprising if Mr. Hovington, who like any good coach, worked daily and tirelessly with his athletes, was immune from caring about the health and well being of his charges, who, it must be noted, clearly were often quiet anxious to talk openly about what to many adults would seem to be very private matters. That the conversations may have touched upon the use of birth control and the available methods is not so shocking, but more important, this case is not about whether Mr. Hovington should have allowed himself to refer to birth control issues in his conversations with student/athletes in the mid-1980's, or whether he should have avoided conversations about other personal matters with his charges. Instead, this case is about what, if anything, he said to P.B. on the subject of birth control, and whether his motivation for any comments and advice was self-serving in nature. Whatever the proprieties may have been in regard to his suggesting that P.B. use birth control if she was sleeping with M.B., or anyone else, the only relevant issue here is whether he intended to foster his chances at his own sexual relationship with her and protect his own interests by inducing her to use protection. Similarly, the propriety of driving students home after practice or games, or the provision to them of small amounts of money for lunch, a lost book, etc., or the buying for them of a pair of tights, etc., or even the provision of some cash for pocket money during a college visit, is not a relevant issue in this case, except where such events are shown to have been performed for self-serving reasons related to the attempt to foster and to continue an illicit relationship. There is ample proof in the record that each of these activities were regular events involving this and other coaches and teachers, the Board's expert coach detailed his own personal expenditures for team and individuals, and while Mr. Hovington may have been a more generous giver, a softer touch, or may have built up his own ego by providing for his charges, such considerations are not of any import here unless they add to the picture of a predatory adult.

P.B.'s story is one of a growing relationship between herself and the coach of the track team she joins as a freshman, a growing insistence on his part that she use birth control, an initial sexual contact in his car one evening, an initial act of intercourse in the back seat of the car on a city street late one night, an ongoing and frequent series of sexual encounters during her sophomore, junior and senior years, with sex occurring in cars, in hotels, on picnic tables, in his apartment, etc., even with his son present in the same apartment. While all of this goes on, her feelings for him grow stronger, and he leads her on with talk of what will be after she comes of age. It all culminates in her senior year, during which she experiences feelings of loneliness and lack of control in her life and in the Hovington relationship, attempts suicide, continues her sexual relationship, and finally suffers the twin blows of learning that her lover has slept with her own mother and then of his rejection of her at the very doorway of his house when he proclaims to his live-in girlfriend, "in P.'s face," that while P. is all confused about their friendship, he is not, and whatever P. thinks, he is only in love with Tina. Both sides have analyzed the details of this story, seeking in it either telling inconsistencies and outright lies, or elements of sincerity and confirmation.

In defending against Ms. B.'s claims, the respondent has generally denied that he ever, in any manner, engaged in any form of sexual contact with Ms. B. He simply says that whatever she says about the details of the assorted sexual incidents she has described is pure fantasy, whatever she may have told friends and school officials, teachers and coaches during her high school years or thereafter are merely the musings and creations of a warped imagination, perhaps the result of a "crush" gone mad, that she was a child deprived of love and comfort at home who in some strange way sought in mind and/or action to establish a close bond, indeed even more than that, with a caring, concerned and ultimately victimized adult. As for the few specific incidents which she has described, whatever truth there is to the general circumstances which surrounded these events, the stories of sexual abandon are lies, pure and simple.

In general, the defense places reliance upon what it sees as the unbelievability of certain of P.'s claims as the key to a more general condemnation of her story as unworthy of belief. For instance, the idea that intercourse occurred while his 13-year-old son sat in the living room of the small, one-bedroom apartment between the time that the three arrived from school until they left for the playoff game is seen as an incredible tale. Yet, the testimony makes it clear that J.'s perception of the time that the events in the apartment took may be questioned; he was after all only 13 years old at the time, and the simple application of logic to these events, which is the respondent's basis for challenging Ms. B's description, may not be a very good yardstick for measuring truth when sex is involved. Unfortunately, common experience demonstrates that the fear of discovery, the lack of "time," the close proximity of others, the risk of ultimate shame and punishment, etc., do not always dissuade people from engaging is sexual activity, whether illicit or otherwise, and there are no "rules" which dictate the length of sexual intercourse, the noise involved in the encounter, or the attention to extraneous activity of a 13-year-old watching television. While "logic" may well dictate that even if Hovington were intimately involved with Ms. B. that he avoid relations with her on this occasion, human experience does not compel the conclusion that, in the face of desire and even with less than optimum opportunity, logic must necessarily have overcome desire.

Much the same can be said in regards to other suggestions by the respondent that the facts, or logic and common sense, dictate the conclusion that P. lied. Would Hovington have been able to climb to the back of the car and engage in intercourse with her, despite his size and purported physical ailments? Would he do so on the streets of Camden, despite the possibility of discovery by the several police agencies and security forces on patrol in the area? Would he continue any relationship after the school authorities and DYFS had been alerted? Would he even get involved with P. in the first place, considering the grave risk that such an event could pose to his career and to his relationship with Tina? The respondent poses these questions and argues that analysis of the record necessitates a negative response to each and thus a conclusion that the Board has failed to prove its case. While it is surely true that an argument can be made that the logic and common sense of the situation argues against these things occurring, the possibility that sexual desire and whatever feelings of love or other motivating factors may have accompanied it overcame constraints of caution, discomfort and logic cannot be simply dismissed. As counsel for the Board correctly points out, when it comes to sexual relations, humans can be very inventive, and as common experience shows, very willing to indulge regardless of the difficulties and risks presented. That Hovington slept with P.'s mother while dating Tina, even if only once, does not prove that he was evil or that he was prone to sexual risk taking, but it does suggest that his relationship with Tina was not in his mind necessarily a barrier to other sexual experience. That the Camden police and other such organizations patrolled the area where P. lived certainly does not prove that a willing and desirous couple would not indulge their passions on occasion. (Indeed the evidence suggests that the patrols were not as pervasive as Hovington would have led us to believe). As for his physical condition, while no medical evidence supports his contentions of injury, no one suggests that he did not have some injuries, aches and pains, but it might take a lot to cause him to refrain from the chance at sex with Ms. B., and while the idea of his climbing into the back seat is perhaps amusing, given the desire and the goal it cannot be discounted. In short, while consideration of the several questions recited above might well raise some reasonable doubt in the mind of a fact finder about the likelihood that Ms. B.'s allegations are true, none of them stands as anything near an insurmountable barrier to the truth of her statements, especially when that truth must be measured against the preponderance, rather than against the reasonable doubt standard.

One of the interesting aspects of this entire situation is that whether any of P.'s claims of a sexual relationship were true, they were nevertheless claims which she openly made from early on in her high school career, first to friends and then to others who might be, or should perhaps have been, authority figures. They are not claims first made after her graduation, first spoken to anyone after her "rejection" at Hovington's hand in June, or even in May, of her senior year. Of course, not all of the witnesses are in agreement as to what they were told, if anything, or exactly when. As for the teachers and administrators, their testimony must be carefully scrutinized, for in some cases if it is determined that they were in fact aware of the claims that a relationship existed, it is possible to be very concerned about the way in which they reacted to the news that a teacher and coach was sexually involved with a minor student. Of course, merely because an adult is told by a student that the student is sexually active with another adult does not mean that the listener must or will believe the claim. If a teacher or administrator simply dismissed the statements out of hand as the wild imaginings and fantasies, or the spiteful accusations, of an immature minor, then perhaps the adult has little, if any, obligation to report the claims to those in a position to determine the truth of the claims or to bring the information to the proper legal authorities. But if the listener is willing to entertain the thought that the claim may be true, the listener, if a professional in the educational community, cannot simply ignore the matter and must instead advise those in authority of what they have been told. Here, Mr. Savage, who acknowledged that he was told by P. of the sexual nature of her relationship with Hovington, claimed that he did not know what to do or did not want to get involved, and this presented him with an understandable dilemma perhaps, but in the end he appears to have resolved to do nothing. His explanation does not suggest that he did not believe P., merely that he was unwilling to act on what he heard. As for Charles Iepson, P. claimed to have told him of the sex, and he told her that, having heard rumors, he had once asked Hovington about them and received a denial from him. Iepson himself denied in testimony that P. ever told him anything about the sex, and denied having posed any such question to Hovington. Yet, while he stated that he would have remembered such a conversation with P. and would have been obliged to report the information, his present motive for denying the conversations cannot be overlooked. Honest and sincere persons such as Mr. Savage and Ms. Phillips openly acknowledged that they were unsure about what to do in spite of being told, and clearly concerns for their colleague and/or friend affected their judgment, as perhaps any lingering doubts as to the truthfulness of P.'s claims may have. It is certainly possible, even understandable, that Mr. Iepson was also troubled and confused about the revelation that his friend was involved in an alleged illicit, albeit apparently consensual, sexual relationship with a mid-teenage minor, and that as a result he did nothing. That he is not honest enough today to acknowledge that he too was told and hesitated to act upon the information is certainly regrettable. As for P.'s claim that she told Iepson, the likelihood that she did not testify truthfully as to this fact is reduced by the fact that her claims to have told other teachers, such as Savage and Phillips, and later Ms. Ellerbee, were generally confirmed by them. Why she would have added Iepson to the list of those she told if it were not true is not clear.

As for Herbert Factor, he denied the conversation about P.'s suicide attempt or having told Hovington to get her out of the "environment." He also denied that he was aware of the sexual nature of the relationship or the reasons for Ms. P.'s "hysterical" condition at the time that he was alerted by Dean Epps to her having a problem, except that it was something about "jealousy" and her home situation. Epps recalled that he told Factor what she had said about the "personal" nature of the Hovington relationship, but he could not recall that she mentioned a sexual component. Nevertheless, Epps clearly refuted Factor's testimony, claiming quite effectively that he told Factor about a "personal" relationship with serious implications and denying that the problem was home based. That Factor called in DYFS is perhaps the best evidence that whatever he now claims to recall, at the time he knew that something very serious and of a highly questionable character might be involved, for he did not take the matter to an in-school committee, but instead to DYFS, a very serious action indeed. Factor appears to have attempted to downplay his knowledge and his role in regards to both the suicide information and the events just prior to the DYFS referral, but his testimony was not particularly impressive. In fact, he even denied that he told Mr. Hovington to stop driving students home, while Hovington specifically recalled this direction being given by the Principal. Overall., Mr. Factor's testimony is not deserving of much credence.

Another issue is Ms. B.'s denial to DYFS investigator Martini of a sexual relationship with Mr. Hovington. That she denied the crucial element of sex in the relationship with Hovington is important information, but by no means does it prove that at that time she was truthful about the subject. Conversely, that she may have lied to Martini does not lead to the inevitable conclusion that her subsequent testimony of the existence of the sexual component in both this and the criminal trials was false. She clearly had strong feelings for Hovington at the time that she was brought before Martini, she did not request that DYFS become involved, she was not a "voluntary" witness before him, she did not wish to end the relationship, the final confrontations, including the revelation as to the prior sexual contact with her mother, had not yet occurred, and it is therefore not at all surprising that she denied that she and the coach were sex partners. That she later said that they were, after the matters had become public, after she perceived that he had lied to her and spurned her, after her unrealistic perceptions were shattered and after the criminal charges were brought, does not mean that her later claims were false. Freed from the need to "defend" Hovington and "protect" the relationship to which she still clung, she was able to truthfully describe the full nature of the voluntary, albeit improper, relationship.

Ultimately, determination of the charges involving P.B. resolves to a decision about the truthfulness of the "complainant." Given the clear and uncontradicted evidence that she told people, beginning in her sophomore year, that she was sexually involved with Hovington, it must be asked whether these comments were merely figments of her overactive imagination. I think not. I see no evidence here which would support the conclusion that beginning in her second year of high school, Ms. B. was actively fantasizing a sexual relationship, that she was "boasting" of a non-existent physical connection, that she was creating, and even telling others, of a series of events which had no basis in reality. It is certainly true that teenagers have been known to tell peers of sexual events which did not really happen, but the evidence here does not convincingly lead to the conclusion that this was what motivated Ms. B. to report that she and Hovington were lovers. Further, whatever her motivations were for telling her friends, and later teachers, that she and the respondent were sexual partners, it surely was not spite, hatred or because he had shunned her advances, for he himself does not relate that she came on to him until very late in her senior year, and neither he nor she relates that he told her of the relationship with her mother until then either. Thus, if in her sophomore, junior and most of her senior year she was telling others of the relationship, it must have been either because it was happening, or because she was creating the story out of her desires and fantasies.

While Mr. Hovington has denied that any of these untoward events occurred, the totality of the evidence, including an assessment of his own credibility, demonstrates otherwise. While Mr. Hovington certainly was a concerned coach who gave much to his athletes, I am convinced and FIND that at least in this child's case, he crossed the line, he took advantage of her trust, he converted a friendship which might have well served her during her high school years into an improper relationship. That she was a willing partner in this, that she cared for him, that the sex was consensual, is all ultimately irrelevant. While perhaps to some Ms. B. may appear less than innocent, and it is certainly unfortunate that Mr. Hovington's career has been destroyed by this incident, as a teacher and coach, as well as a supposedly responsible adult, John Hovington had a great responsibility toward the athletes and students in his charge. In Ms. B.'s case, I FIND that he perverted that trust, he took what could have been a wholesome coach/athlete relationship and allowed it to become something very different, something which she, in her immaturity and perhaps in her ultimate loneliness, surely felt that she desired, but which he had to know was wrong. Based upon the record here I CONCLUDE that he committed the tenure offenses charged in the first and the third allegations of the Statement of Charges and that removal of his tenure is an appropriate and fully warranted sanction for this clear gross violation of his obligations as an educator.

Charge Two in the Statement of Charges alleges that Mr. Hovington was guilty of misconduct in that he touched Ms. B. in an improper manner when he touched her vaginal area.

This charge apparently relates to the purported contact which is said to have occurred during a massage. While the disposition of the charges contained in Charges One and Three relating to the proposition for and actual sexual relations with Ms. B. are dispositive of the issue of Mr. Hovington's tenure, and the question of whether he inappropriately touched her vagina is as a practical matter subsumed by the finding that he went far beyond that level of contact and had full sexual intercourse with the minor student, it should nevertheless be noted that as regards the massage during which the contact is alleged to have occurred, it does not appear that Mr. Hovington was, at that time, seeking either to gratify himself or Ms. B. sexually I FIND that contact did occur, but I FIND that it was inadvertent. This is not to say that the massage was properly limited in scope, but simply that the vaginal contact, which of course was outside the clothing, was not the result of a deliberate act on his part which can be viewed as being a proper subject for discipline, at least if the removal of tenure is sought for this incident in isolation. However, given the conclusions stated above, the second charge is not a significant factor in this decision.

The Charges Involving A.T.

Similar to the second Charge concerning Hovington and P.B., the disposition of the allegations contained in the second Statement of Charges relating to A.T. (as later agreed by the Board), becomes irrelevant to the final outcome of this case, as the removal of tenure is the inevitable result of the determination that this respondent was involved in sexual relations with a minor student. However, it is appropriate to state the conclusions in regard to A.T.'s claims.

Once again, Mr. Hovington is charged with inappropriately touching a portion of a female's anatomy, here, Ms. T.'s buttocks, once again while he was massaging this track athlete. From the evidence, I FIND that he did massage the lower portion of her buttocks while he massaged her leg to treat her hamstring injury. While she was uncomfortable with the contact when it reached her buttocks, and told him so, and he responded by attempting to illustrate the reason for massaging the buttocks, I do not believe that he was attempting to obtain any sexual gratification, nor was he attempting to provoke a sexual response from Ms. T. I FIND, as the expert witness said, that his massage of the lower buttock to treat this injury was unnecessary and inappropriate, but the question here is really whether the inappropriately located massage is a proper subject for discipline which would impact upon Mr. Hovington's tenure. It is not easy, even in light of the findings regarding his sexual misconduct with Ms. B., to ascribe nefarious motives to this isolated incident of a massage too high up on the anatomy. In isolation such an event might call for some form of education to assure that the coach fully understood the necessary and proper limits of massage therapy, and perhaps a warning or other limited sanction to assure that the coach fully understood the need to avoid any touch which might bring understandable discomfort to the athletes. Whether high school coaches should be barred from massaging athletes of the opposite sex, or for that matter any athletes, is not a proper subject for this hearing. Simply put, as to the touching of Ms. T.'s buttocks, I CONCLUDE that a written warning would suffice and that tenure should not be affected by this incident.

The incident involving the purported kiss in the office after Ms. T's state championship performance is much more disturbing. While it is not uncommon for coaches to hug an athlete or to pat them on the back for an effort, a mouth kiss of a high school age minor by an adult coach, accompanied by a holding of the recipient's cheeks, can never be an appropriate gesture of support, encouragement, or recognition. As I FIND that Mr. Hovington did kiss Ms. T. as she described, I CONCLUDE that this incident would be a proper subject for some level of discipline. Would it support removal of tenure if it stood by itself? Once again, I believe that if the incident were viewed in isolation, it would be an excessive level of discipline to remove the tenure of an otherwise good teacher for one kiss given in an unfortunate show of appreciation for the outstanding achievement of a student/athlete whom the teacher/coach had been so involved in instructing. Here, in light of the devastating effect on tenure of the sexual relationship with Ms. B., the level of discipline appropriate for the kiss of Ms. T. pales in comparison. The "rosebud" comment, which I FIND was made in front of others, was I FIND, a joking response to Ms. T. and was unfortunately, in keeping with the kind of anatomical and "underclothing" "humor" and "comments" which the coach explained often occurred amongst the athletes, at least some of which he entered in a light-hearted fashion. Clearly he should not have said this, his conduct in saying this was simply not in accord with professional standards, and discipline is appropriate. When combined with the "kiss" incident, these would call into question whether a coach should be retained in the coaching position. As for the tenure, I believe that if these existed by themselves, a withholding of an increment would be appropriate. Removal of tenure for these two isolated incidents, occurring under the circumstances in which I find they did, would, I believe, be excessive punishment.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated, I CONCLUDE that John Hovington's tenure as a teacher must be revoked. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JOHN HOVINGTON,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY	:	DECISION
OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter, transcripts of the hearing, and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were filed on an untimely basis and, therefore, such exceptions and the replies submitted thereto, are not considered herein.[1]

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that respondent's actions, as proven, constitute unbecoming conduct for the reasons expressed therein. In so ruling, the Commissioner is satisfied that the ALJ considered all testimony and weighed its content according to the credibility of the witnesses. Thus, he finds no basis to challenge the ALJ's credibility determinations and resultant conclusions with respect to the charges against respondent. See In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (App. Div. 1987).

With regard to evaluation/determination of the appropriate penalty to be imposed in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the tenure charges, as proven, are sufficient to warrant respondent's termination from employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and 11. In reaching such determination, the Commissioner is aware that he is required to consider the totality of respondent's record in the District, the nature and gravity of his offenses under all the circumstances involved, any evidence as to provocation, extenuation, or aggravation and must consider any harm or injurious effect which his conduct may have had in the maintenance of discipline and the proper administration of the school system. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of David Fulcomer, Holland Township, Hunterdon County, 1962 S.L.D 160, 162, remanded State Board of Education 1963 S.L.D. 251, decided by the Commissioner 1964 S.L.D. 142, affirmed State Board of Education 1966 S.L.D. 225, reversed and remanded 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967), decided by the Commissioner 1967 S.L.D. 215, aff'd N.J. Superior Court 220.

[1] Respondent's exceptions, due on October 21, 1996, were received in the Office of the Commissioner on October 22, 1996. In that there was no indication by respondent that they were faxed or proof that they were otherwise filed on October 21, 1996, they may not be considered pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(a). Additionally, a motion on related issues was filed on November 12, 1996. However, in that this motion was filed only six calendar days prior to the due date of the within decision, leaving insufficient time for the Board's reply and careful consideration by the Commissioner, the motion is being addressed in a separate letter decision.

The Commissioner has stated that "[b]eing a teacher requires a consistently intense dedication to civility and respect" (In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Robert H. Beam, School District of the Borough of Sayreville, Middlesex County, 1973 S.L.D. 157, 163), and that teachers "must exhibit a high degree of exemplary behavior" (In re Tyler, 13 N.J.A.R. 297, 308 (1991). This is so in that > Teachers are public employees who hold positions demanding public trust, and in such positions they teach, inform and mold habits and attitudes, and influence the opinions of their pupils. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Ernest Tordo, School District of the Township of Jackson, Ocean County, 1974 S.L.D. 97, 98.

In the present matter, there is no question that respondent's behavior constituted unbecoming conduct based on the finding that he had sexual contact with a student on a repetitive basis. As such, removal is the appropriate penalty in that respondent "misused his authority and clearly betrayed the trust of his students, his school district, and his community."[2] See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Robert Mantone, State-operated School District of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU)322, 326, aff'd State Board 789.[3]

[2] The ALJ also finds that respondent inappropriately massaged and kissed another student. The Commissioner need not consider the ALJ's conclusion that alone such incidents might not warrant removal in that, when taken as part of the present record, there is no question that removal is the appropriate sanction for this respondent.

The Commissioner, in the past, has not hesitated to remove a teacher for similar behavior. In In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Charlotte Galla, School District of the Township of Irvington, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner August 5, 1996, "a tenured teacher with many years of experience, engaged in a pattern of improper interaction and sexual contact over several years with a minor student whose interest she was mandated to safeguard." (Slip Opinion at p. 16) Consequently, the teacher was removed from her position. In rendering that decision, the Commissioner issued the following statement which, based on the totality of this respondent's behavior as proven, is no less applicable today:

> Teachers are expected to exercise exemplary restraint and mature self-control. Consequently, it is appropriate to sanction teachers who behave with impropriety or the appearance of impropriety. Indeed, the Commissioner has not hesitated to dismiss an employee whose behavior involved sexually intimate contact with a student. (Galla Slip Opinion at p. 15)

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein. Respondent is hereby dismissed from his teaching position in the Camden School District as of the date of this decision. This matter shall be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners, pursuant to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, for further action against respondent's certificate as it deems appropriate.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JOHN HOVINGTON,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY	:	DECISION ON REMAND
OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent teacher and coach for allegedly engaging in inappropriate sexual relationship or touching with minor students. Citing In re Fulcomer, In re Beam, In re Tordo, In re Mantone and In re Galla, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's conclusion that respondent's actions with student P.B. constituted unbecoming conduct and warranted removal of his tenured employment as a teacher. State Board remanded matter to the Commissioner for consideration of respondent's exceptions, which Commissioner had found to be untimely filed, and to determine issues relating to back pay and indemnification raised in a Complaint in Lieu of Prerogative Writ (Complaint) filed in Superior Court, Law Division, in August 1995 and later transferred to the Commissioner.

On remand, the Commissioner found nothing in respondent's exceptions that would warrant the Commissioner to reverse his prior determination with regard to the finding that respondent's actions, as proven, constituted unbecoming conduct for the reasons expressed in the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), as further explicated in the Commissioner's prior decision. Commissioner affirmed his previous decision finding that the Board did prove its tenure charges and that the doctrine of laches did not apply herein. Commissioner further concurred with the ALJ that the tenure charges, as proven, were sufficient to warrant respondent's termination from employment. Commissioner remanded the matter to the OAL for further proceedings on the issues raised in the Complaint, and, in that the pleadings before the Court were not a part of the within record, the parties were directed to reconstruct such record. Additionally, the matter was transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for further appropriate action as a result of the Commissioner's determination on the tenure charges.

AGENCY DKT. NOS. 66-3/95 & 484-12/95

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JOHN HOVINGTON,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY	:	DECISION ON REMAND
OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY.	:

This dispute was heard before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) and by decision dated October 2, 1996, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) recommended that respondent be dismissed from his tenured position as a teacher, finding that the tenure charges of unbecoming conduct proven by the Board were sufficient to warrant respondent's termination from employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and 11. The Commissioner, by decision dated November 18, 1996, affirmed the initial decision. The State Board of Education, by decision dated April 2, 1997, remanded the matter, determining:

> to set aside the Commissioner's decision on the merits of the tenure charges and to remand this matter to the Commissioner for consideration of respondent's exceptions in determining those charges. (State Board Decision, Slip Opinion at p. 2)

Additionally, in that the Commissioner had not determined the issues raised in a Complaint in Lieu of Prerogative Writ in Superior Court, Law Division in August 1995, in which respondent sought indemnification and back pay from the Board, the State Board directed that the Commissioner undertake further proceedings and issue a final determination on those claims. (State Board Decision, Slip Opinion at pp. 2-3)

In considering this matter in accordance with the State Board's directive, the Commissioner has reviewed the record, including transcripts of the hearing, and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law, as well as respondent's exceptions and the Board's replies.

Respondent sets forth a list of exceptions which generally deny that he committed the offenses as charged. Therein, he avers that he should not have been removed from his position as a teacher, that he should not have an increment withheld, and that the equitable doctrine of laches should apply to bar the Board from filing tenure charges seven years after it became aware of the allegations which formed the basis for the tenure charges. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 1)

Respondent then sets forth specific arguments to support each exception. With regard to the allegations of sexual intercourse, he contends that P.B. was not specific in nature as to the location and dates of these encounters. (Respondent's Exceptions, Exhibit A, at p. 1) He notes that there is testimony in the record that directly disputes the claims of P.B. Respondent then offers a general denial of P.B.'s accusations and presents arguments questioning the credibility of P.B.'s testimony concerning certain alleged sexual encounters. (Respondent's Exceptions, Exhibit A, at pp. 1-10) He urges the Commissioner to reject all of P.B.'s claims if he finds any of these specific incidents to refute her testimony, pursuant to the doctrine of "false in one, false in all."

Respondent next generally denies improperly touching P.B. and A.T., questioning the credibility of both witnesses. (Id. at p. 13)

Lastly, respondent contends that the ALJ erroneously concluded that the doctrine of laches does not apply herein in that the Board officials have known of these allegations since 1988. (Id. at pp. 13-14)

In reply, the Board argues that respondent's exceptions were untimely and otherwise improperly filed in that they do not conform to the specifications set forth in N.J.A.C.:1-18.4 et. seq. As to the contention that the credibility of the Board's witnesses was questionable, the Board notes that it is not the role of the reviewing body to draw inferences and conclusions, or to resolve conflicts therein. Rather, citing Nesmith v. Walsh Trucking Co., 247 N.J. Super. 360, 365 (App. Div. 1989), the Board contends that the Commissioner must give deference to the trial judge's view of the intangibles such as witness credibility, demeanor and the "feel of the case." (Board's Exceptions at p. 5)

With respect to the remaining issues, the Board asserts that the ALJ's initial decision was correct and should be adopted in its entirety. (Id. at p. 9)

Initially, the Commissioner finds that he need not reach to the issue of timeliness of respondent's exceptions, based on the State Board's decision directing that such exceptions be considered. [1]

Moreover, upon careful review and in consideration of the State Board's directive, the Commissioner finds nothing in the parties' exceptions that would warrant the Commissioner to reverse his prior determination with regard to the finding that respondent's actions, as proven, constitute unbecoming conduct for the reasons expressed in the initial decision of the OAL, as further explicated in the Commissioner's prior decision. Therefore, in reiterating his satisfaction that the ALJ considered all testimony and weighed its content according to the credibility of the witnesses and evidence in the record, and in finding no basis to challenge the ALJ's findings and resultant conclusions, the Commissioner affirms his previous decision finding that the Board proved its tenure charges against respondent and that the doctrine of laches does not apply herein. In the Matter of Raymond Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (App. Div. 1987). The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ that the tenure charges, as proven, are sufficient to warrant respondent's termination from employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and 11. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of David Fulcomer, 1962 S.L.D 160, 162, remanded State Board of Education, 1963 S.L.D. 251, decided by the Commissioner 1964 S.L.D. 142, affirmed State Board of Education 1966 S.L.D. 225, reversed and remanded 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967), decided by the Commissioner 1967 S.L.D. 215, aff'd N.J. Superior Court 220; In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Robert Mantone, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU)322, aff'd State Board 789; and In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Robert H. Beam, 1973 S.L.D. 157, 163.

Finally, consistent with the State Board's directive with regard to the Complaint in Lieu of Prerogative Writ, transferred from the Appellate Division to the Commissioner on December 19, 1995, this matter shall be remanded to the OAL for further proceedings solely with respect to the issues raised in that Complaint. The Commissioner herein notes that, notwithstanding respondent's provision of a transfer order from the Court, no pleadings were ever forwarded to this agency by the Court, nor did respondent provide them directly, either as filed in Court or in the form of a petition of appeal. Accordingly, such pleadings are not a part of the within record and the parties are directed to reconstruct them so that further proceedings may ensue at OAL in accordance with the State Board's decision. [2]

Accordingly, as in the Commissioner's prior decision, the initial decision of the ALJ is affirmed with regard to the tenure charges and respondent is hereby dismissed from his teaching position in the Camden Public School District as of the date of this decision. This matter shall be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners, pursuant to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, for action against respondent's certificate as it deems appropriate. The issues raised in the Complaint in Lieu of Prerogative Writ are remanded to the OAL for further proceedings in accordance with the direction of the State Board of Education decision dated April 2, 1997.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[2] The Commissioner additionally notes that failure to consider the matters included in the Prerogative Writ was not raised in respondent's exceptions, nor was it brought to the Commissioner as an issue until the filing of a motion six calendar days before the statutory due date of the final Commissioner's decision. The Commissioner found the motion to be inappropriately filed at that time, and, by letter dated November 19, 1996, denied its consideration in the context of the present proceeding, instead inviting submission of a new petition.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF JOHN HOVINGTON, : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE : DECISION
CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY. :

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, November 18, 1996

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Murray, Murray & Corrigan (Karen A. Murray, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Zarrillo & Sappacosta (Anthony J. Zarrillo, Jr., Esq., of Counsel)

John Hovington (hereinafter "respondent"), a tenured teaching staff member, has filed an appeal to the State Board from a decision of the Commissioner of Education dismissing him from his tenured employment with the Board of Education of the City of Camden (hereinafter "Board") for unbecoming conduct. Respondent contends that the Commissioner erred in determining that his exceptions to the initial decision had not been filed in a timely manner, and also in failing to consider his claims for indemnification and back pay. Respondent reserved argument on the merits of the tenure charges until the Commissioner properly considered his exceptions.

The Board has filed a motion to strike those portions of respondent's appeal brief in which he claims entitlement to indemnification and back pay, arguing that such issues were not considered during the proceedings below.

After a careful review of the record, we remand this matter to the Commissioner for further proceedings consistent with our decision herein.

We find initially that respondent's exceptions to the initial decision were filed with the Commissioner in a timely manner. A delivery receipt from the filing service utilized by respondent clearly indicates that his exceptions were accepted by a mailroom representative of the Department of Education at 3:50 p.m. on October 21, contrary to the Commissioner's assertion that the exceptions were not received until October 22. Given such information, we grant respondent's request to set aside the Commissioner's decision on the merits of the tenure charges and to remand this matter to the Commissioner for consideration of respondent's exceptions in determining those charges.

The record further indicates that respondent had filed a Complaint in Lieu of Prerogative Writ in Superior Court, Law Division in August 1995, in which he sought indemnification and back pay from the Board. On December 19, 1995, the Appellate Division entered an order summarily transferring that case to the Commissioner. Despite such order, however, there is no indication in the record that the Commissioner took any action to determine the issues raised in that Complaint or to transmit it to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case.[1] In that respondent's claims to indemnification and back pay were not litigated below, we are also compelled to [1] We note that respondent filed a motion with the Commissioner on November 12, 1996 requesting reimbursement and back pay. The Acting Commissioner responded by indicating that the motion was filed too late during the course of these proceedings and that respondent would have to file a separate petition of appeal raising such claims. However, given the Court's order of December 19, 1995 transferring the Complaint in Lieu of Prerogative Writ to the Commissioner, the Commissioner should have acted on the claims contained therein without the necessity of respondent filing another petition.

remand this matter to the Commissioner for further proceedings and a final determination on those particular claims.

In summary, we remand this matter to the Commissioner for consideration of respondent's exceptions in determining the merits of the tenure charges certified against him, and for further proceedings and a final determination on respondent's claims to indemnification and back pay. In view of our decision to remand this matter, we find it unnecessary to address the Board's motion to strike those sections of respondent's appeal brief raising the indemnification and back pay claims.

We do not retain jurisdiction.

HEARING OF WILLIAM KOLLER, :

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SHORE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, : DECISION

MONMOUTH COUNTY. :

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent high school teacher for allegedly consuming alcohol on school grounds.

ALJ concluded that the Board did prove that respondent consumed alcohol on school grounds. However, the ALJ concluded that forfeiture of tenure for this single incident was not warranted and would violate the protections afforded by the Law Against Discrimination to handicapped persons. But the incident was serious enough to justify disciplinary action. ALJ ordered respondent to forfeit any right to repayment of the 120 days' pay withheld pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision with modification. In light of the seriousness of the incident, the Commissioner determined that respondent should not only forfeit his right to repayment of the 120 days' pay withheld, but should also forfeit his right to his upcoming salary increment, if any. Commissioner cautioned against placing any significance on the fact that respondent's students were evidently unaware of the incident. Rather the Commissioner's determination relied upon respondent's demonstration that he was addressing his alcohol addiction problem. Commissioner, therefore, directed that respondent, in conjunction with the Board's Employee Assistance Program (EAP), develop a plan for the maintenance of his recovery efforts, to be regularly monitored by the EAP in accordance with established District policies.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 801-96

AGENCY DKT. NO. #32-1/96

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF WILLIAM KOLLER, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SHORE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, MONMOUTH COUNTY

Dennis Collins, Esq., for Charging Party

Arnold M. Mellk, Esq., for respondent (Wills, O'Neill & Mellk, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 1, 1996 Decided: September 30, 1996

BEFORE BARBARA A. HARNED, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On January 26, 1996, the Shore Regional Board of Education, County of Monmouth (Board) certified charges against respondent William Koller, a tenured teacher, with the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner). The Board charges conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member and seeks removal of respondent from his tenured position. On February 13, 1996, respondent filed an Answer to the Tenure Charges. On February 29, 1996, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held on April 9, 1996, at which time hearing dates of July 1, 2 and 3, 1996 were established. The hearing commenced and concluded on July 1, 1996 and the record closed on that date.[1]

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

Unless otherwise noted, the following testimony is undisputed and I adopt such undisputed testimony as FINDINGS OF FACT. Disputed facts are noted followed by findings as to those disputed facts. Respondent, William Koller, received his Bachelor's degree with a major in English and a minor in History from St. Peter's College in 1970. In 1973 he received his Master's degree in Literature from Seton Hall University. In September, 1970 he commenced employment with the Shore Regional High School District (Shore Regional) as an American and English Literature teacher. During his twenty five years of employment with the District he has also taught history, drama and theater arts. During the 1970's he team taught history to a class of emotionally disturbed students. In addition, he has coached the debating team and assisted with school play productions.

Dr. Daniel Sorkowitz, who testified for the Board, has been employed at Shore Regional for thirty years and has known William Koller for twenty six years. Dr. Sorkowitz is the Assistant Principal of Shore Regional and the Supervisor of the English Department. He has been Mr. Koller's immediate supervisor since 1986. Dr. Sorkowitz described Mr. Koller as a "gifted English teacher" and one who had been "a wonderful teacher until a few years ago." In the past few years, Mr. Koller's performance suffered as his attendance became poor. He took twenty sick days during the 1994/95 academic year and thirteen sick days between September and December, 1995. While Mr. Koller's performance suffered some deterioration, a classroom observation report prepared by Dr. Sorkowitz on September 28, 1995 was primarily positive and reported, inter alia, that Mr. Koller "conducted an effective discussion on the critical attributes of Romanticism, related current learning to previous learning, asked focused, probing questions, led students through an interesting explication of the poem, and made a reading and writing assignment that required students to practice new learning." (R-1). During his teaching career at Shore Regional, Mr. Koller never had an increment withheld and never had tenure charges filed against him until the instant matter.

[1] An Order of Extension within which to render this Initial Decision until September 30, 1996 was entered.

Mr. Koller admits to being an alcoholic with a history of alcohol dependency starting at age 16. (R-3, page 5). When he drinks, it is usually either a pint of vodka or wine (R-3, page 5). In the winter of 1992, he sought and received help through the Employee Assistance Program. He also joined Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) and found a sponsor. He was sober for seventeen months but had a relapse in early 1994. He returned to AA thereafter and was sober again until his birthday on November 10, 1995. Mr. Koller had been very depressed because he and his estranged wife were engaged in a bitter custody battle and as a result he had had no contact with his four sons since August, 1995. In the fall of 1995 he sought medical help and was under a physician's care for hypertension, depression and insomnia. His doctor prescribed Toprol once a day for his hypertension; Zoloft twice a day for his depression and Restoril one hour before going to bed for his insomnia.

On November 10, 1995, Mr. Koller was particularly depressed because he spent his birthday alone and had no contact with his sons. He relapsed on November 10, 1995; had two weeks of sobriety thereafter and relapsed again in late November. At that time he was admitted to the Jersey Shore Medical Center for what Mr. Koller described as medical reasons involving nausea, stomach pains and dehydration. Mr. Koller denied he was admitted for detoxification and while the Board seems to suggest that was the reason for the admission, no medical records were entered into evidence as to this admission. In the absence of any evidence to the contrary, I FIND that Mr. Koller's hospital admission in late November, 1995 was not for purposes of detoxification. Following his second relapse in late November, 1995, Mr. Koller continued to drink through December, 1995. Mr. Koller testified that he had no problems at school during this time period until December 22, 1995 and the Board did not present any evidence of a problem other than attendance. While Mr. Koller did not dispute Dr. Sorkowitz' testimony that he had been out sick for thirteen days between September and December 1995, the Board did not charge Mr. Koller with excessive absenteeism and therefore testimony as to his absences, while useful for background purposes, is irrelevant to the tenure charge at issue.

During the evening of December 21, 1995, Mr. Koller attended a holiday party in Ocean Township. He drank alcoholic beverages, including wine, champagne and mixed drinks, from 9 p.m. until 2:30 or 3:00 a.m. The following morning he was responsible for providing a holiday breakfast for the Shore Regional teachers as part of his duties as Treasurer of the Shore Regional Education Association. Before school that morning, he went to a bakery, a doughnut shop and a convenience store to pick up the breakfast items and arrived at school at 6 a.m. to set up the cafeteria. It was a very hectic morning for him and he was very tired.

On December 22, 1995, the first two periods of the school day, from 7:40 a.m. to 9:17 a.m., were free periods for Mr. Koller. He then taught a History class and an English honors class during periods three and four from 9:21 a.m. to 10:53 a.m. He was in the cafeteria between 10:53 a.m. and 11:23 a.m. on lunch duty. Dr. Sorkowitz was also on lunch duty and spoke with Mr. Koller who had a normal demeanor at that time. Dr. Sorkowitz observed nothing unusual about Mr. Koller during the lunch duty and did not smell any alcohol on Mr. Koller at that time. Mr. Koller did tell Dr. Sorkowitz that he was very tired and that it had been a hectic morning.

Following lunch duty, Mr. Koller taught two History classes during periods six and seven from 11:27 a.m. to 12:11 p.m. One of these classes is freshman history, his most stressful class. The students that day were very boisterous. The following period, from 12:15 to 12:59, was a free period for Mr. Koller. Mr. Koller testified that at 12:15 he went to the staff bathroom. He did not remember whether he had taken his morning dose of Zoloft and so he took two doses. He then went to the staff room. At 12:45 he went up to his classroom. He was starting to feel very queasy with sweaty palms; tunnel vision and headache, so he went to the nurse's office for a Tylenol. When she was not in the office, he returned to his classroom.

The Board presented a very different picture of Mr. Koller's demeanor and appearance following his free period. Dr. Robert Stemplinger is the Supervisor of Special Education and Child Study at Shore Regional. He has known Mr. Koller since 1974 but has little daily interaction with him beyond chatting in the hallway. On December 22, 1995, Dr. Stemplinger saw Mr. Koller in the school corridor around 12:50 p.m. The corridor is about ten feet wide with lockers on one side and cinderblocks on the other. Dr. Stemplinger was returning to his office when he saw Mr. Koller walking toward him. He said hello to Mr. Koller and asked how he was doing. He received no response from Mr. Koller who just walked past him. Dr. Stemplinger thought this was strange and turned around to watch Mr. Koller. He observed Mr. Koller cross diagonally across the corridor; bump into the wall and cross diagonally again. Dr. Stemplinger then called Mr. Koller's supervisor, Dr. Sorkowitz, and told him that something was wrong with Mr. Koller and that he was staggering in the hall.

Dr. Sorkowitz corroborated that Dr. Stemplinger had called him at approximately 1 p.m. and told him that Mr. Koller was staggering in the hall. Mr. Koller was scheduled to teach a United States history class from 1:03 to 1:45 p.m. Dr. Sorkowitz then went into the hall by the library and saw Mr. Koller at the door of his classroom talking to the school librarian and nurse. Dr. Sorkowitz did not see any students in the hallway at the time. Mr. Koller then walked away from his classroom with the librarian and nurse and towards the nurse's office. The principal, Mr. Schanppauf, met Dr. Sorkowitz in the hall and asked him to prepare a report. According, Dr. Sorkowitz went to the nurse's office.

When Dr. Sorkowitz entered the nurse's office, he observed Mr. Koller speaking loudly with the school librarian and using exaggerated gestures. The school nurse told Dr. Sorkowitz she was concerned and was going to call Jersey Shore Medical Center. Dr. Sorkowitz was aware of Mr. Koller's November admission to Jersey Shore and went to his office to obtain the date of admission and the name of a counselor Mr. Koller had seen during that admission. When he returned to the nurse's office he gave the information to the nurse who then called Jersey Shore. Dr. Sorkowitz then starting speaking with Mr. Koller to try to convince him to go with the first aid squad to the emergency room. Mr. Koller was speaking loudly and gesturing wildly. He appeared distraught and smelled of alcohol. Dr. Sorkowitz thought Mr. Koller was very drunk. Mr. Koller spoke to Dr. Sorkowitz of his marital and custody problems and said he wanted to kill himself because he could not stand the pain. Dr. Sorkowitz tried to console Mr. Koller and told him he was a gifted teacher. When asked on cross examination if he was intoxicated on December 22, 1995, Mr. Koller responded that "clinically, perhaps" he was intoxicated, and that intervention was probably called for but that he felt he was capable of teaching his last two classes.

The first aid squad arrived at the school at 2:45 p.m. Dr. Sorkowitz asked the squad to wait until the students were dismissed before coming to the school. Mr. Koller walked to the ambulance and was taken to the Medical Center. A substitute teacher taught Mr. Koller's ninth and tenth period classes. Mr. Koller was treated in the Medical Center emergency room and was discharged the following morning (CP-1).

Richard Saferstein, Ph.D., was qualified as an expert in the analysis of alcohol in the blood and testified on behalf of the Board. Dr. Saferstein was the Chief Forensic Scientist for the New Jersey State Police from 1970 until 1991 when he retired. He now serves as a Forensic Science Consultant and teaches at two colleges and a law school in Delaware. Dr. Saferstein reviewed the medical records of Mr. Koller's December 22, 1995 admission to Jersey Shore Medical Center. Mr. Koller's serum alcohol level concentration at 6:31 p.m. was 0.268% (CP-1, 13th page). Dr. Saferstein explained that whole blood alcohol concentration is another method of reporting blood alcohol and that a serum alcohol level concentration of 0.268% converts to a whole blood alcohol concentration of 0.23%. Dr. Saferstein further testified that .015% of alcohol burns off from the blood every hour. Applying a process called extrapolation which basically adds .015% to the blood alcohol level for each elapsed hour, Dr. Saferstein determined that Mr. Koller's blood alcohol level at 1 p.m. would have been 0.31%. According to Dr. Saferstein, a person with a 0.31% blood alcohol level is highly to severely intoxicated. Such an individual would be highly impaired and would have great problems with physical and muscular coordination as well as suffer a deterioration in judgment. Dr. Saferstein reached his conclusions within a reasonable degree of medical certainty. Respondent attempted to challenge the validity of Dr. Saferstein's conclusions because he testified he is not familiar with Zoloft medication and did not know Mr. Koller's weight. Respondent, however, did not present any expert testimony as to the potential effect, if any, of Zoloft or his weight, on the conclusion reached by Dr. Saferstein that his blood alcohol concentration level was .31% as of 1 p.m. on December 22, 1995. Accordingly, I FIND that Mr. Koller's blood alcohol concentration as of 1 p.m. on December 22, 1995 was .31% and that as a result, he was severely intoxicated. Furthermore, I reject respondent's contention that the alcohol in his blood was due to his drinking of the previous night and that his condition at 1 p.m. on December 22, 1995 was caused solely by the ingesttion of two doses of Zoloft. I base this finding rejection on Dr. Sorkowitz' credible testimony that respondent did not smell of alcohol during lunch duty and exhibited a normal demeanor while he did smell of alcohol at 1 p.m. after his free period. In addition, respondent presented no medical testimony that the ingestion of two doses of Zoloft would cause the type of behavior described by Dr. Sorkowitz.[2] Accordingly, I FIND that respondent consumed alcohol between 12:15 and 12:59 p.m. on December 22, 1995 while on school grounds.

While at Jersey Shore Medical Center on December 22 and 23, 1995, Mr. Koller asked about treatment programs and decided to enter a program given by the Carrier Clinic. He was evaluated at Carrier on December 23, 1995 during a three hour session. It was determined that inpatient treatment was not clinically indicated and that he would enroll in a partial hospitalization program (PHP) held in Toms River. While in the PHP, Mr. Koller spent 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Mondays through Saturdays in treatment at the clinic. Evenings and Sundays, he was released to a "safe house" which in his case was his mother's home. Mr. Koller successfully completed the PHP on January 16, 1996 (R-2). He then enrolled in and completed a ten-week Phase II program called Outpatient Addictive Treatment Services (OATS) which met Monday to Friday from 6 to 9:30 p.m. This program consisted of a group process with classes in coping and the pharmacology of addiction. The OATS program also requires that patients become part of a twelve step program such as Alcoholics Anonymous (AA). At the time of hearing, Mr. Koller was planning on enrolling in a Phase III Carrier Clinic program which meets one night a week from 6 to 8 p.m. This program was scheduled to start sometime in July, 1996 and Mr. Koller testified he would attend the program "for the foreseeable future." Mr. Koller also rejoined AA, has a sponsor and two home groups where he attends from seven to ten meetings a week. If Mr. Koller returned full-time to teaching, he intends to continue in the Phase III program one night a week as well as attend at least four AA meetings a week.

The parties stipulated that Mary Kilgannon, PHP Coordinator for Carrier Clinic, would have testified as to Mr. Koller's successful efforts at rehabilitation (see R-3). She further would have testified that in order for Mr. Koller to remain successful, he must attend an addictive behavior program once a week and continue going to AA.

[2] I note that Dr. Sorkowitz testified that on January 2, 1996, the first day back to school after the holiday recess, he went to Mr. Koller's classroom and observed the school librarian remove an almost empty bottle of vodka from Mr. Koller's locker. Respondent objected to this testimony and without any other evidence as to how long the bottle was there or whether any one else could have placed the bottle in the locker, I find the testimony unreliable and therefore will not base any findings on such testimony.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 provides that no person under tenure in the public school system "shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation . . . except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause." The conduct of respondent described above is serious, certainly unprofessional and does amount to conduct unbecoming. However, for the following reasons I do not recommend forfeiture of his tenured position. Respondent has been charged with one incident in a career spanning twenty-five years of "gifted" teaching. As noted by the Appellate Division, "[a]lthough such conduct certainly warrants disciplinary action, the forfeiture of the teacher's rights after serving for a great many years in the New Jersey school system is, in our view, an unduly harsh penalty to be imposed under the circumstances." In re: Fulconer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 421 (App. Div. 1967). In addition to the singularity of the tenure charge, I am persuaded by the fact that the Board presented no evidence that any students saw Mr. Koller in this condition or were aware in any way of the situation.

Moreover, I CONCLUDE that forfeiture of tenure under these circumstances would violate the protections afforded by the Law Against Discrimination (LAD) to handicapped persons. In similar circumstances the State Board of Education has held tenure charges of excessive absenteeism caused by alcoholism could not be sustained under the LAD when a teacher demonstrated that she was "successfully addressing the underlying cause of her past absenteeism and that she is able to return to work." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Dorothy Howard, State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d 788, 789 (EDU), aff'd 95 N.J.A.R. 2d 301 (EDU) (App. Div. 1995). While the Board contends that Howard does not apply to this case because the case is not about alcoholism but rather respondent getting drunk during school hours, I do not find that argument persuasive. The underlying cause of respondent's drunkenness was alcoholism and as in Howard he has demonstrated that he is addressing his problem and intends to continue in his successful program of recovery.

While not sufficient to support forfeiture of tenure, the charge against respondent is serious enough to justify disciplinary action. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, respondent was not paid for 120 days while this proceeding was pending. In light of the seriousness of his actions on December 22, 1995, I ORDER that respondent forfeit any right to repayment of the 120 days' pay withheld.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I ORDER that the respondent be continued in his tenure status as an employee of the Shore Regional High School District and that he forfeit 120 days' pay already withheld.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF WILLIAM KOLLER,	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SHORE	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which did not include a transcript of the hearing at the OAL, the Commissioner determines to affirm the initial decision of the ALJ, with modification. The Commissioner concurs that respondent is guilty of conduct unbecoming a tenured teaching staff member in that he consumed alcohol on school grounds and in the course of the school day on December 22, 1995. (Initial Decision at p. 7) The Commissioner further agrees that, under the particular circumstances herein, and in regard for what has apparently been, until now, a lengthy and successful career without discipline, as well as in consideration of the limitations of the Law Against Discrimination, respondent should not forfeit his position as a tenured teacher on the basis of the single incident established herein.

However, the Commissioner determines that it is nevertheless appropriate that respondent should not only forfeit his right to repayment of the 120 days' pay withheld pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, but should also forfeit his right to his upcoming salary increment, if any.

In this regard, while the Commissioner finds some consolation in the fact that respondent's students were evidently unaware of the situation which occurred on December 22, 1995, he nonetheless cautions against placing any significance on that fact with respect to the penalty to be imposed on respondent as a result of this incident. For example, in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Sondra Yaniello, Board of Education of the City of Millville, Cumberland County, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 262, the Commissioner explicitly rejected the significance placed by the ALJ on the fact that students were not exposed to respondent's addictive behavior, as well as the fact that respondent voluntarily reported her use of an illegal substance to the district, while seeking assistance from a treatment facility. There, the Commissioner noted that "[s]uch rationale would permit repeated use of an illegal substance, provided the employee did not allow students to be exposed to such use, and provided [that], following every 'slip,' the employee voluntarily reported the action and sought assistance." (Yaniello, supra, at 271) Further, the Commissioner notes that his determination relies upon respondent's demonstration that he is currently addressing his alcohol addiction problem and that he intends to continue in his program of recovery. (Initial Decision at p. 8) For this reason, the Commissioner herein directs that respondent, in conjunction with the Board's Employee Assistance Program (EAP), develop a plan for the maintenance of his recovery efforts, to be regularly monitored by the EAP in accordance with established District policies.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is affirmed in part, and modified as stated. The Board is hereby ordered to reinstate respondent, subject to the terms outlined above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: October 30, 1996 Decided: October 31, 1996

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a dispute between petitioners and the respondent Board of Education as the result of a petition filed with the Department on October 25, 1996. In conjunction with that petition was an application for emergent relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The application for emergent relief was set down for October 30, 1996 at 1:30 p.m. at the OAL, 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey. At that time oral argument was heard as to the question of emergent relief regarding busing of petitioner's son who, for the purposes of oral argument only, is conceded to fall within the two-mile designation.

Having reviewed the documents submitted and having listened to oral argument in this matter I FIND the following:

1. Petitioner has failed to demonstrate a reasonable likelihood of success on the merits in this case.

2. Petitioner has not made the requisite showing of irreparable harm.

3. There has been no showing of unreasonable expense or substantial inconvenience rising to the level cognizable in this matter.

4. I further FIND that for the purposes of this motion no material facts were in dispute.

As a result of the above, petitioner's application for emergent relief in obtaining busing for his son is DENIED for the reasons stated on the record on October 30, 1996.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF HAWTHORNE, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter, including the audiotape of emergent proceedings by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), and the Initial Decision on Motion for Emergent Relief of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ denying emergent relief as petitioners failed to meet the standards for such relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6, R. 4:52-1.

Further, upon review of the facts and arguments presented in the petition and answer, and in reviewing both parties' arguments as to petitioners' likelihood of success on the merits, it is plain from the existing record and arguments presented at the emergent hearing that the Board advanced several reasonable grounds upon which it denied petitioners' request to carve an exception in its policy and bus G.J. to and from school for safety reasons although he lives less than two miles from school. Thus, the Commissioner finds that petitioners cannot demonstrate that the decision arrived at by the Board was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable as is required by law in order for it to be reversed, so that no purpose would be served by further proceedings in this matter.

Accordingly, the ALJ's determination to deny emergent relief is adopted for the reasons expressed therein, and the Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed. Consistent with this holding, the Commissioner directs that the file of this matter be returned to the agency by OAL in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(a).

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner sought, inter alia, reassignment to the position of Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services with all back pay and emoluments owed, averring that the Board violated her tenure and seniority rights. Appellate Court remanded matter so that a determination could be made as to whether the "respondent's (Board's) assistant superintendency for instructional services" was "the local equivalent of the regulatory assistant superintendency of curriculum and instruction to which petitioner has a tenure entitlement by reason of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(b)." Board contended recent amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 significantly affected the rights of the parties, said amendment was passed specifically in response to Appellate Division's decision in Nelson.

ALJ concluded that petitioner could not be tenured in the assistant superintendency in the District, as she had not served the requisite time in that separately tenurable position, in accordance with the requirements established in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. ALJ canceled the scheduled evidential hearing and dismissed the contested case.

Commissioner concurred that petitioner could not be tenured as the Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services in the District. Matter was dismissed.

Record Closed: September 16, 1996 Decided: October 3, 1996

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

This matter comes before the Office of Administrative Law following an Appellate Division remand to the State Board of Education of a prior contested case determination which the court determined required further proceedings, Gittleman v. Board of Education of the Township of Hamilton, Mercer County, A-3659-93T5, Unreported Decision of Appellate Division, Decided January 2, 1996. The lengthy procedural history of the matter need not be repeated in full here, as the appellate decision amply describes it. The Court remanded so that a determination could be made as to whether the "respondent's (Board's) assistant superintendency for instructional services" was "the local equivalent of the regulatory assistant superintendency of curriculum and instruction to which petitioner has a tenure entitlement by reason of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(b)." It also asked "if so, what is the appropriate remedy in the extant circumstances?" and what effect, if any, did the petitioner's resignation from the District on September 1, 1993, have upon her rights?

Following a prehearing conference, the respondent Board of Education filed a brief, arguing that a recent amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 significantly affected the rights of the parties; indeed, the Board argues that the statute as it currently reads following its amendment by P.L. 1996, c. 58, resolves the case in favor of the Board and eliminates the necessity for evidential hearings. The amendment was passed specifically in response to the Appellate Decision's unpublished opinion in Nelson v. Old Bridge Board of Education, A-6441-94T5, which was decided on April 29, 1996, subsequent to the court's decision in this matter. As will be detailed, the Board of Education contends that the Gittleman court relied upon the same analysis and precedents which were at the heart of the Nelson decision in determining that Dr. Gittelman had any tenure claim to the assistant superintendency and that the Legislature's action in effectively overruling the Nelson opinion has effectively overruled the Gittleman decision, for its theoretical support is no longer valid. The Board argues that the amendment was clearly intended to have retroactive effect, and that the petitioner's claim to any tenure as an assistant superintendent must therefore be resolved against her. The intervenor supports the Board's analysis.

The petitioner's brief contends that her tenure rights were effectively fixed by the appeals court decision. While claiming that the Nelson case is distinguishable from her case and that therefore the amendment is not properly applied against her, Dr. Gittelman also contends that the later amendment to the statute cannot be applied retroactively to defeat her rights, both because the amendment was not meant to have retroactive effect, and even if it were, because application to her case would result in a manifest injustice.

THE APPELLATE DECISIONS IN GITTLEMAN AND NELSON

Gittleman

In order to analyze the legal positions of the parties, it is necessary to understand exactly what the Appellate Division's decision determined. In its opinion, the court recognized that the State Board of Education had determined that Dr. Gittelman "was entitled to tenure protection as a principal." While the State Board had declined to consider her argument that as such she had tenure protection as Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services, the appellate court determined that, as the result of the amendment to N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(b), which included the position of "assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction among the positions that a principal's endorsement qualifies one to hold," Dr. Gittelman "as of October 15, 1990 . . . was qualified to hold the position of assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction. . . ." Slip Opinion, at Page 9. The Court then held that she "had tenure in that position" under the law as determined in Dennery v. Board of Education, Passaic Regional High School, 131 N.J. 626, 634 (1993), which held that "[a]n educator who has attained tenure by virtue of the requisite service in a specific position will have tenure with respect to all positions under the particular certificate [,]," and that, pursuant to Ellicott v. Board of Education, Tp. of Frankford, 251 N.J. Super. 342, 349 (App. Div. 1991), this tenured status was achieved "regardless of whether one has actually served in the area." Id.

Nelson

In Nelson, supra., a teacher who had an administrative certificate with both principal and supervisory endorsements and was tenured as the department chairperson of the Industrial Arts Department and had never served in a position under his principal endorsement, sought the position of elementary school principal and claimed that he had a priority to that position over a non-tenured appointee. The appellate court, relying upon its understanding of Dennery, supra., determined that tenure gained in a position held pursuant to an endorsement under an administrative certificate extended to all other positions one was qualified to hold under that certificate, even those for which a different endorsement was required. The court rejected arguments by the respondents, who contended that based upon "the longstanding administrative practice of granting tenure only with respect to the specific position or endorsement noted in the statute" that transfer of tenure earned under one endorsement to a "separately tenurable" position enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 was not permitted, holding that the statute "does not make any distinction between positions in terms of "separate tenurability . . . ."

The Legislative Response to Nelson

Acting in response to the Nelson decision, Assemblyman John Rocco introduced a bill on June 10, 1996, which specifically stated that the Legislature was acting because of a need to clarify N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 following the interpretation of that statute announced by the Nelson court. The statute, as amended by this legislation which was approved on June 28, 1996, now reads,

> 1. (New section) The Legislature finds and declares that, due to the interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 by the Appellate Division in the case of Nelson . . . a clarification of that statute is necessary in order to continue the traditional practice of providing that tenure is acquired in one of the specifically enumerated positions only if the individual has served for the requisite statutorily required period of time in that position.
> 2. N.J.S. 18A:28-5 is amended to read as follows:
>
> 18A:28-5. The services of all teaching staff members employed in the positions of teacher, principal, other than administrative principal, assistant principal, vice-principal, assistant superintendent, and all school nurses . . . and such other employees as are in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners, . . . shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency . . . .
>
>
> (b)
>
> For purposes of this chapter, tenure in any of the administrative or supervisory positions enumerated herein shall accrue only by employment in that administrative or supervisory position . . . and nothing herein shall limit or restrict tenure rights which were or may be acquired pursuant to N.J.S. 18A:28-6 in a position in which the individual actually served.

> 3. This act shall take effect immediately and shall apply to all individuals who have acquired tenure pursuant to N.J.S. 18A:28-5 or any prior statute.

In this amended legislation, the Legislature made it clear that it understood that each of the specifically enumerated administrative or supervisory positions, that is, teacher, principal, assistant superintendent, etc., carried its own tenure, and that merely because one achieved tenure by service of the requisite length in any one of the enumerated positions, one did not thereby gain tenure in any of the other specifically enumerated positions in which the individual had not served for the requisite time.

The Effect of the Amendment Upon Dr. Gittelman's Claim

In its decision in Gittleman, the court concluded that Dr. Gittelman was entitled to tenure as an assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction because she had tenure as a principal, a position which, like that of an assistant superintendent, fell within the administrative certificate. Both the position of principal and the position of assistant superintendent are specifically enumerated positions in the amended version of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Thus, on its face, it would appear that application of the amendment to this case would prevent a holding that Dr. Gittelman's tenured status as a principal could be extended to provide her with tenure as an assistant superintendent, a position in which she never served, except for a brief service as an acting assistant superintendent in 1983-84. Since the Appellate Division did not hold that she had tenured status as an assistant superintendent arising independently from her tenure as a principal, it would appear that, if applied here, the amended legislation would in effect overrule the court's holding that Dr. Gittelman had any tenured status as an assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction.

Is Nelson distinguishable?

Dr. Gittelman contends that the statutory change does not affect her case because the facts in Nelson were different from those involved in her case, and the amendment simply does not apply to the reasoning which motivated the Gittleman court's decision. In Nelson the petitioner held principal and supervisory endorsements to his administrative certificate. He had never served as a principal. He sought appointment to the position of elementary school principal, but the post was given to a non-tenured person. Nelson sought to transfer the tenure rights which he acquired as a department chair under the "supervisor" endorsement to the principalship, which required a different endorsement, that of "principal," based upon the fact that both endorsements fell under the same "administrative" certificate. In contrast to this Dr. Gittelman says that she does not seek to transfer her tenure right to a position requiring a different endorsement, for the same "principal" endorsement is required for both the director's position which she held and the assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction position which she seeks.

Dr. Gittelman argues that from the very outset of the original case she has claimed that her tenure, which the State Board determined was achieved as a principal, actually accrued in "the then unrecognized title of Director of Elementary Education" which "had to be made to fit into the most similar 'recognized' title which she asserted was the title of Assistant Superintendent . . . ." However, while the Appellate Division agreed that this had always been her claim, what the court actually held was that she was a certified principal who had achieved tenure in that position (as the State Board had held). Since she could serve as an assistant superintendent under the "principal" endorsement pursuant to the amended version of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(b) which had become effective before the prehearing conference held on November 16, 1990, under the Dennery concept of "tenure in all positions under the certificate," coupled with the Ellicott concept of "tenure without actual service in the position," she was therefore also a tenured assistant superintendent. The court did not separately find that she was tenured as an assistant superintendent because she had served in that position for the requisite time.

The recent amendment makes it abundantly clear that tenure achieved in one of the several enumerated positions provides tenure in that position only. This appears to directly respond to the Nelson court's statement that "N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 does not make any distinctions between positions in terms of "separate tenurability, ..." Under the amended statute, Dr. Gittelman, having achieved tenure in the enumerated position of "principal," could not by that acquisition also achieve tenure in another of the separately enumerated positions, that of "assistant superintendent." The difference in the facts of Nelson and Gittleman is of no moment. The amendment addresses itself specifically to the facts in Dr. Gittelman's case, just as it does to those in Mr. Nelson's case.

Retroactivity

The amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 is, by its terms, to be effective immediately. As such, a simple application of the law as it exists as of the time of this decision ("the time of decision" rule) would compel the conclusion that the petitioner could not be tenured as an assistant superintendent since she had not served in such capacity for the requisite time. This decision would carry out the clear legislative command to treat each of the separately enumerated positions separately when determining tenure status. However, counsel for the petitioner contends that application of the amendment to this case is improper, arguing that the "immediate" language simply signifies that the amendment is not to be accorded retroactive effect, but only prospective application, and that application of the amendment to this case would be an unconstitutional interference with vested rights and a manifest injustice, as this long-standing dispute has been the subject of adjudication which has fixed the petitioner's rights. Twiss v. State of New Jersey, et al., 124 N.J. 461, 467 (1991).

Courts generally favor prospective application of statutes. Phillips v. Curiale, 128 N.J. 608, 615 (1992). But it is clear from the very wording of the new section of the statute that the Legislature saw this amendment as a curative enactment, meant to reverse an errant court decision which it believed had improperly strayed from the "traditional practice." Here, the Legislature was not making new law, but was instead merely reaffirming the law as it was meant to be applied, and as the Legislature found that it had traditionally been applied. Thus the "immediate" language simply signifies that there is to be no delay in the implementation of the corrective impact of the statute. It does not suggest that the application is be prospective only.

As for whether retroactive application would interfere with "vested rights," or be "manifestly unjust," it must be remembered that the court only determined that Dr. Gittelman's service as a tenured principal had given her the right to be tenured as an assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction, but the court did not determine whether the position of assistant superintendent for instructional service which exists in the district is the equivalent of the regulatory position. Whether the district actually has an assistant superintendency which matches the position which the court said she qualified for is the very subject of the remand. Dr.

Gittelman's "right" to tenure on a specific, existing assistant superintendency in the District is not yet fixed. As such, to apply the law which the Legislature has now reaffirmed by its clarification of the statute does not work any manifest injustice. It simply assures that the correct interpretation of the law is applied to the petitioner. There is as yet no judgment, or final administrative adjudication, which holds that Dr. Gittelman is the tenured assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction in this District, or that she is the tenured holder of an actual position in the District which sufficiently matches this recognized regulatory position such that it is proper to accord anyone tenure in the existing position. The appellate ruling merely says that if the position does exist, then she is the person with tenure rights to it. If the existing position does not adequately match the post which the court said that she had a tenure right to, she has nothing. She has an expectation, but as of yet, nothing more. There is no manifest injustice in applying the existing law, which merely is the law as the Legislature has declared it always has been, to this case.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner cannot be tenured as the assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction in the Hamilton School District, as she has not served the requisite time in that separately tenurable position, in accordance with the requirements established in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. The scheduled evidential hearing is therefore canceled and the contested case is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

VIRGINIA GITTELMAN,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAMILTON, MERCER COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON REMAND
RESPONDENT,	:
AND	:
WILLIAM DE FEO,	:
INTERVENOR.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed, as was the reply of intervenor, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Board failed to comply with the regulations for requesting an extension of time in which to file replies, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8. Therefore, its reply is considered untimely and is not considered herein.

After presenting a complete review of the procedural history in this matter, petitioner argues that the ALJ erroneously permitted relitigation of the issues, in that the Appellate Court's decision that she had tenure as an assistant superintendent was a final determination on the merits of her claim. Petitioner asserts > the Court said that [she] "possessed a tenure entitlement to the position of assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction." That does not mean as Judge Masin found that [she] had a right to be tenured as an assistant superintendent. It means that she was tenured as an assistant superintendent. It does not mean as Judge Masin found that [she] merely had an "expectation" to be tenured as an assistant superintendent. The Court did not issue an advisory opinion concluding that [she] was tenured as an assistant superintendent. It issued a final determination on the merits of [her] claim which is not subject to being overruled retroactively by the Legislature, and certainly not subject to being overruled by a court of lower jurisdiction. ***

> Having achieved tenure in the regulatory assistant superintendent title, the Court said that before it could determine if this meant that [she] and not [Dr.] DeFeo should have been the District's assistant, the Commissioner would have to determine if the two assistant superintendent titles - the one in the regulation and the one in the District - were equivalent. If they were, then [she] was entitled to the position because as of the April 1990 or May 1991 reorganization she was tenured as an assistant superintendent and [Dr.] DeFeo was not. (Petitioner's Exceptions at pp. 7, 8)

In this regard, petitioner maintains that the only aspect of the case which remained to be decided was the remedy to be afforded her. (Id. at p. 8)

Petitioner's second and third exceptions are essentially the same arguments as those raised before the ALJ. Petitioner again contends that the Nelson amendment should be given only prospective effect (id. at p. 9) and that this matter is distinguishable from Nelson, supra. (Id. at p. 10) In that the Commissioner finds such arguments were fully and fairly considered by the ALJ, they are not summarized herein.

Finally, petitioner argues that this matter should be stayed, inasmuch as the Board has made application before the Appellate Court to have the time for reconsideration of this case extended. (Id. at p. 12) Petitioner notes that, after receiving the initial decision from the OAL, she has decided to join in the application, as reconsideration may clarify the Appellate Court's prior ruling and avert "further complications in this case." (Id. at pp. 12, 13)

Thus, petitioner concludes that the initial decision of the ALJ should be reversed. In the alternative, she urges the Commissioner to stay this matter until the Appellate Court decides the Board's application to extend the time to reopen this matter. (Id.)

In reply, intervenor avers that the initial decision of the ALJ was well-reasoned and should be adopted as the final decision in this matter. (Intervenor's Reply at p. 6) In this regard, intervenor asserts that Judge Masin's decision to deny petitioner's tenure claim was within the scope of the instant remand in that > nowhere in the Appellate Division's decision does it state that Petitioner has a tenure entitlement to the position of Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services in Respondent's district. The Appellate Division found only that Petitioner may have a tenure entitlement to that position. This issue was left unresolved pending the instant remand. (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 8)

Moreover, intervenor argues that petitioner conveniently neglects to mention both the Appellate Division's order on remand to consider the "[extant] circumstances" in resolving this matter (id.), together with the State Board's direction to the Commissioner, on remand, to resolve this case "'in conformity with the Appellate Division's remand, as well as the applicable law.'" (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 9)

Secondly, intervenor argues that, contrary to petitioner's assertions, it was proper for the amendments to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 to be applied retroactively to this matter. (Id. at p. 11) Noting that the Commissioner has already applied the Nelson amendment retroactively in the matter entitled White v. Bd. of Education of the Twp. of Bloomfield et al., Commissioner decision No. 299-96 (July 12, 1996), thus, preventing a tenured supervisor from claiming rights to a principal's position in which he never served (id.), intervenor rejects petitioner's contention that a retroactive application amounts to changing the "ground rules" governing this dispute. (Id. at p. 12) Rather, intervenor maintains that the statutory amendment > makes it clear that contrary to Petitioner's assertion, during the entire pendency of this litigation, the Legislature intended that tenure be acquired in specifically enumerated positions, only if an individual has served for the requisite statutorily required period in that position. It is well established that courts are not free to disregard legislative intent. Phillips v. Curiale, 128 N.J. 608 (1992). (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 13)

Intervenor next argues that any differences between the instant matter and the Nelson decision are insignificant and have no bearing on the outcome of this case. (Id. at p. 16) Intervenor notes that while there are factual differences, the "real import" of the two cases is that the Appellate Division twice "ignored the well-established concept of 'separately tenurable' positions ." (Id. at p. 17) Intervenor further points out that petitioner attained tenure as a principal, a separately tenurable position, and seeks tenure in an assistant superintendency, which is also a separately tenurable position. Thus, for petitioner to argue that Nelson is distinguishable is without merit. (Id. at p. 18)

Finally, intervenor argues that petitioner's request to stay this matter is moot because the Appellate Division has already ruled on the Board's application for reconsideration. (Id. at p. 20) Intervenor observes that on September 20, 1996, before the ALJ rendered an initial decision in this matter, the Board filed an application for reconsideration. However, by Court Order dated October 17, 1996, the Board's motion for reconsideration was denied. (Id.) Thus, intervenor concludes that petitioner's argument is moot and her request to stay this matter must be denied.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner affirms the conclusion of the ALJ that petitioner does not hold tenure as the Assistant Superintendent of Instructional Services in respondent's District. In so affirming, the Commissioner notes that to the extent the ALJ may have rendered findings which contradict petitioner's view of the scope of the Appellate Court's remand, the Commissioner herein determines it unnecessary to reach such findings, for the reasons set forth below.

Even assuming, arguendo, that this matter had progressed in accordance with petitioner's preference and that, on remand, the ALJ conducted a factual analysis, finding that the District's assistant superintendency for instructional services was the local equivalent of the regulatory assistant superintendency for curriculum and instruction, the Commissioner, nevertheless, concludes that such a determination by the ALJ would not alter his view that the amendments to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 must be applied retroactively in this matter.

The Commissioner recognizes that statutes are not generally given retroactive effect "'unless such an intention is manifested by the Legislature in clear terms.' The purpose of this rule is to give people fair notice of the law that they are expected to follow." (citations omitted) D.C. v. F.R., 286 N.J. Super. 589, 603 (App. Div. 1996) Three exceptions to the general rule, however, have been articulated by the New Jersey Supreme Court:

> First, a statute should be applied retroactively where the Legislature has either explicitly or implicitly expressed such an intent.  Second, statutes said to be "ameliorative" or "curative" may be applied retroactively.  Third, the expectations of the parties may warrant retroactive application of a statute. (Id. at 604, citations omitted)

The Commissioner finds that the Legislature sufficiently expressed its intent that the amendments to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 were to be retroactive. The statute indicates that it " shall take effect immediately and shall apply to all individuals who have acquired tenure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 or any prior statute." (emphasis added) (P.L. 1996, c. 58,) Further, the Legislative findings demonstrate that the unequivocal intent of the Nelson statutory amendment was to clarify N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, so as to maintain the traditional practice of providing that tenure is acquired in one of the specifically enumerated positions only if the individual has served for the statutorily required period of time. As the ALJ apply noted, the enactment was designed to be curative in nature. (Initial Decision at p. 7) "Under this exception the new statute is intended simply to explain and to clarify the existing law rather than to change the meaning of the original law. Looked at in that light, no retroactive application is necessary because the meaning of the original statute has always been the same." Carnegie Bank v. Shalleck, 256 N.J. Super. 23, 40 (App. Div. 1992), citing Kendall v. Snedeker, 219 N.J. Super. 283, 287, 530 A. 2d 334 (App. Div. 1987). Here, the Nelson amendment neither expands nor restricts the tenure rights which an employee possessed by virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 in its original form; it merely clarifies the original body of rights.

Finally, the Commissioner recognizes that a statute may not be subject to retroactive application if such application would result in "manifest injustice" to the parties. Gibbons v. Gibbons, 86 N.J. 515, 523 (1981). Again, assuming, arguendo, that petitioner's right to the District's assistant superintendency for instructional services was found to be a fixed right prior to the Commissioner's review, such a conclusion obviously constitutes a clear departure from the traditional application of tenure laws. As such, the Commissioner cannot be persuaded that the consequences of petitioner's reliance, if any, upon such an aberrant result could possibly be "so deleterious and irrevocable that it would be unfair to apply the statute retroactively." Gibbons at 523, 524.

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner cannot be tenured as the Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services in the Hamilton Township School District, "as she has not served the requisite time in that separately tenurable position, in accordance with the requirements established in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5." (Initial Decision at p. 8) This matter is hereby dismissed.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board sought to sever its sending-receiving relationship with respondent Board.

ALJ found that the termination of the sending-receiving relationship between petitioner and respondent would not result in any substantial negative racial, educational, or financial impact. Thus, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13, the ALJ approved the withdrawal from the relationship.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Petitioner's application for severance from its sending-receiving relationship was granted with withdrawal being phased out over a four-year period, commencing with the 1997-98 school year beginning September 1997.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

The Board of Education of the Township of Logan (Logan Board) is in a sending-receiving relationship with the Board of Education of Paulsboro (Paulsboro Board) and the Board of Education of the Kingsway Regional School District to provide educational services to its pupils in grades nine through twelve. The Logan Board seeks an order from the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) to terminate its sending-receiving relationship with the Paulsboro Board. The Paulsboro Board objects.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Six days of hearing were held at the Fairfield Township Municipal Court, the Paulsboro Borough Municipal Court, the Bridgeton City Municipal Court and the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey.

BACKGROUND FACTS

The following background facts were adduced from the pleadings, testimony and documents presented into evidence at the hearing and are hereby adopted, in part, as my FINDINGS of FACT in this matter.

The Logan Board operates an elementary school district in one physical school plant, grades kindergarten through eight. The school building is located on a 46 acre site and was completed in 1991. Prior to 1991, pupils in kindergarten through grade three attended what was then known as the Bridgeport School in Logan Township while grades four through eight attended school in a leased facility known as the Nehaunsey School located in the township to the north of Logan Township.

Logan Township is located in the northwest corner of Gloucester County, New Jersey. It is bound on the northeast by Greenwich Township, on the southeast by Woolwich Township, on the southwest by Salem County, and on the northwest by the Delaware River. The sending-receiving relationships between the Logan Board, the Paulsboro Board, the Kingsway Board and where the boundary lines determining which school the Logan pupils attended were developed many years ago for reasons that no longer remain clear. Logan Township was, in the not too distant past, primarily agricultural in nature and the families which resided south of Raccoon Creek were, for the most part, farmers. At that time, Logan pupils attended Swedesboro High School, which offered, among other things, an agricultural program. Swedesboro no longer operates a high school. Its pupils now attend Kingsway Regional High School together with pupils from Logan Township, East Greenwich Township, South Harrison Township and Woolwich Township.

Pupils who live in the area of Logan Township known as Bridgeport attend Paulsboro High School. Bridgeport was once the population center of the township. There are three distinct areas of the township where the pupils attend Kingsway Regional High School. The largest of the three is known as the Bennett tract and represents the shift in population away from Bridgeport. The two other areas of the township where the pupils attend Kingsway appear to be triangles invading the Bridgeport, or Paulsboro sending portion of the school district. The triangles to Kingsway are separated by geographic areas where pupils are sent to Paulsboro.

In the 1994-95 school year, the Logan Board had 274 pupils attending two high schools to which it paid tuition; i.e., 36 pupils attended Paulsboro High School seven miles to the north, and 238 pupils attended Kingsway Regional High School three miles to the east of Logan Township. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.2.a.(2) the Logan Board has one representative on the Kingsway Regional Board. However, because Logan, as a sending district, has less than ten percent of the total enrollment of the pupils attending Paulsboro High School, the receiving district, it has no representation on the Paulsboro Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.2.a.(1).

In 1960, the population of Logan Township, according to the census, was 1,924 people, in 1980 the census was 3,078 and the 1990 census places the population of Logan Township at 5,147 people. Since 1990, 195 additional building permits have been issued and it is projected within the next five years an additional 340 building permits will be issued. All of the growth that has taken place in housing since 1960, and that which was projected through to the year 2000, is located south of the Raccoon Creek, the area designated as the sending area for Kingsway Regional High School.

The population growth of the municipalities which compose the sending and/or constituent districts to Kingsway Regional High School, excluding Logan Township, are shown as follows:

Years	1960	1980	1990
East Greenwich	2,722	4,144	5,258
South Harrison	974	1,486	1,919
Swedesboro	2,449	2,030	2,024
Woolwich	1,235	1,129	1,459

The Logan Board and the Kingsway Board have engaged in preliminary discussions with respect to permitting Logan to join the Kingsway Regional School District as a constituent school district rather than a sending district. No formal action has been taken by either party to formalized the regionalization process. The Logan Board now seeks to sever its sending-receiving relationship with the Paulsboro Board in order that all of the Logan pupils will attend one high school where the Logan Board will have representation with Kingsway Regional High School in a complete sending-receiving relationship. In order for Logan to accomplish this task, it must meet the statutory provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13.

The withdrawal from Paulsboro and a change of designation of a high school to Kingsway Regional for the Logan Township pupils is controlled by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13, which provides as follows:

> No such designation of a high school or high schools and no such allocation or apportionment of pupils thereto, heretofore or hereafter made pursuant to law, shall be changed or withdrawn, nor shall a district having such a designated high school refuse to continue to receive high school pupils from such sending district except upon application made to and approved by the commissioner. Prior to submitting an application the district seeking to sever the relationship shall prepare and submit a feasibility study, considering the educational and financial implications for the sending and receiving districts, the impact on the quality of education received by pupils in each of the districts, and the effect on the racial composition of the pupil population of each of the districts. The commissioner shall make equitable determinations based upon consideration of all the circumstances including the educational and financial implications for the affected districts, the impact on the quality of education received by pupils, and the effect on the racial composition of the pupil population of the districts. The commissioner shall grant the requested change in designation or allocation if no substantial negative impact will result therefrom.

The Logan Board has completed its feasibility study, as required by statute. Donald E. Beineman, Ed.D., former Superintendent of the Camden County Schools, New Jersey Department of Education, conducted the feasibility study and published his work entitle, "A Study of the Feasibility of Withdrawing Logan Township Pupils from Paulsboro High School." The Logan Board relies, in major part, upon Dr. Beineman's report in support for its application to terminate the sending-receiving relationship with the Paulsboro Board.

SUMMARY OF THE PARTIES POSITIONS

EDUCATIONAL IMPLICATIONS

The record demonstrates that there has been an ongoing articulation program between Logan and Kingsway through a Regional Curriculum Planning Committee (RCPC) composed of staff members and administrators from both school districts. A purpose of the RCPC is to offer well sequenced and well ordered courses of study between the two schools to diminish the problems of transition from grade eight at Logan to grade nine at Kingsway. There is no such ongoing program between Logan and Paulsboro. The incident of articulation between Logan and Paulsboro has been informed and infrequent, rather than structured and ongoing.

There are some course offerings which differ between the two high schools. Latin I is offered at the eighth grade level at Logan and a pupil may continue his/her study of Latin at Kingsway. However, Paulsboro does not offer Latin. Kingsway also offers more college level advance placement (AP) courses than Paulsboro. While Paulsboro offers AP calculus, Kingsway offers AP in calculus, English literature, English composition I and II, United States history and physics. Kingsway offers four years of Latin and five years each of Spanish and French, while Paulsboro offers two years of French and three years of Spanish. Kingsway offers six art courses not available at Paulsboro. Paulsboro, on the other hand offers four years of art with an Art Gifted and Talented program which is not available at Kingsway. Paulsboro offers Advanced Office Technology I and II and Advanced Computer Applications which are not offered by Kingsway.

A comparison of test results shows that the eighth grade pupils from the three school districts performed as follows on the Early Warning Test (EWT). The purpose of the EWT is to identify and provide remediation for eighth grade pupils moving into high school in order that they succeed with all the requirements and graduate from high school. The median scores of the EWT for 1995 are as follows:

School	Reading	Mathematics	Writing
Logan	157.8	148.8	187.3
Kingsway	148.4	136.5	156.7
Paulsboro	136.1	129.8	130.5	(P-11)

The EWT results of percentage of pupils passing:

Logan	100.0	92.2	100.0
Kingsway	94.9	82.1	87.8
Paulsboro	88.6	82.6	77.1	(P-12)

The State Board of Education requires that each pupil in the eleventh grade take and pass a High School Proficiency Test (HSPT) in order to graduate. Special education pupils are exempt. The HSPT scores for Kingsway and Paulsboro for the 1992-93 and 1993-94 school year are as follows:

School	Year	Reading	Mathematics	Writing	Percentage Passing
Paulsboro	1993	355.7	371.9	359.8	70.0

Paulsboro	1994	351.9	363.5	335.9	63.1 (P-9)

A comparison of the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) between Kingsway and Paulsboro with the New Jersey State average is shown below for 1995.

School	Verbal	Mathematics
Kingsway	422	478
State Average	418	481
Paulsboro	377	442 (P-10)

The percentage of pupils attending four year colleges and universities subsequent to high school graduation is shown for the graduating classes of 1992 through 1995. It also shows the percentage of Logan pupils attending Kingsway and Paulsboro who go on to four year institutions following graduation.

School	1992	1993	1994	1995
Paulsboro Total	20.0	28.0	28.0	34.0
Kingsway Total	38.0	41.0	32.0	42.0
Logan at Paulsboro	16.0	12.5	37.5	17.0
Logan at Kingsway	68.0	53.0	65.0	72.5 (P-20)

Dr. Beineman opines that the EWT demonstrates that Logan is producing a better product as evidenced by the test results. He further opines that all of the above test data reflects sufficient evidence for the Logan Board to petition the Commissioner to provide the opportunity for its pupils to attend Kingsway Regional High School.

The Paulsboro Board counters Dr. Beineman's opinion by first observing that Paulsboro is classified in the District Factor Group (DFG) as an "A" on a scale from "A" to "J." A DFG - "A" is the lowest socio-economic rating for a school district while a "J" school district is the wealthiest. It means, among other things, the school district has a high incident of welfare cases, where the school provides free and reduced price lunches to its pupils. A DFG - "A" designation is the next closest classification to a special needs school district, i.e., Camden, Newark, among 28 others. It contends that Kingsway Regional High School has a DFG of "D-E."

Paulsboro contends that its pupils compare favorably with Kingsway Regional pupils in its attendance at school. It asserts that DFG - "A" classified schools traditionally have lower pupil attendance than the other classifications. It observes that each high school must maintain a 90 percent attendance for the last three years and the average for the State of New Jersey has been 91.6 percent. The following chart shows the percentage of pupil attendance for Paulsboro High School and Kingsway Regional High School for the school years 1992-93 through 1995-96.

1992-93	91.1		93.7

(R-9)

Paulsboro contends that its pupil attendance is comparable to Kingsway although they have significantly different DFG's.

In a comparison of the 1995 Iowa Test of Educational Development (Iowa) for all Paulsboro High School pupils and Logan Township pupils attending Paulsboro High School, the mean test scores appear to be similar as demonstrated by the chart below:

TEST	PAULSBORO HIGH SCHOOL	LOGAN TOWNSHIP STUDENTS ATTENDING PAULSBORO H.S.
Mathematics	61.2	62.9
Reading	57.6	55.3
Language	57.6	57.4

(R-8)

The following illustration is a comparison of Paulsboro High School to Kingsway High School and the percentage of pupils who passed the HSPT in grade eleven. It also compares the DFG with the State average for the 1992-93 school year.

	PAULSBORO DFG "A"			KINGSWAY DFG "D-E"

(R-10)

Similarly, the following chart makes the comparison for the school years 1993-94 through 1995-96 of the percentage of the pupils passing the HSPT at the end of grade eleven, excluding pupils exempt from taking the HSPT, i.e., special education, educationally disabled pupils, among others.

Paulsboro asserts it serves potentially 120 pupils in courses it offers but not offered to Kingsway pupils, as compared to 23 pupils potentially served at Kingsway with courses not offered to Paulsboro pupils. Every Paulsboro pupil is required to take at least one course in computers but there is no such requirement at Kingsway.

RACIAL IMPLICATIONS

Dr. Beineman's report sets forth the following analysis of the racial impact upon Paulsboro High School in the event Logan pupils withdraw from the sending-receiving relationship.

RACIAL/ETHNIC COMPOSITION OF PAULSBORO HIGH SCHOOL 1994-95*

Category	Number	Percent

(P-7)

Dr. Beineman asserts that if all Logan pupils were withdrawn from Paulsboro High School at the same time, the percentage of black pupils in the high school population would increase by 1.91 percent to a total of 25.28 percent.

Dr. Beineman continues to observe that if one were to project the enrollment of all districts attending Paulsboro High School by moving up each grade level into grades 9-12 while eliminating those students who would be graduate, the following is an approximation of the racial/ethnic make-up of the student population for each of the next four years.

Dr. Beineman concludes that:

> Over a period of four years, the percentage of black students in Paulsboro High School will change from 23.27% in 1994-95 to approximately 27.22% in 1998-99, or double the percentage increase that would occur if Logan pupils were to withdraw at the end of the current year. This increase will be due largely to the number of black students in grades 5-8 in the Paulsboro schools moving into the high school.
>
> It is evident that the percentage of black students in Paulsboro High School will increase whether or not Logan pupils remain in the school.

Paulsboro also observes that its minority population will increase while the percentage of its white pupil population will decrease. It sets forth a comparison of racial balance between Paulsboro High School and Kingsway Regional High School as of October 15, 1995, in grades nine through twelve:

PERCENTAGE OF STUDENTS BY RACE

	White	Black	Other
Status Quo Logan	83.7	12.9	3.4
All Logan Attend Kingsway	84.4	12.1	3.5

Difference	+0.7	-0.8	+0.1

PAULSBORO

	White	Black	Other
Status Quo Logan	69.1	29.1	1.8
All Logan Attend Kingsway	67.0	31.4	1.6
Difference	-2.1	+2.3 (R-16)	-0.2

Paulsboro asserts that it, Greenwich Township and Logan Township could form a regionalized or consolidated school district. In so doing, the Paulsboro High School would enroll a pupil population of approximately 3,000 pupils. There has been no formal feasibility study, however, informally Paulsboro has determined that there is some underutilized building space. It admits that additional building space would be required to meet the expanded demand. It contends, moreover, that such an arrangement would be cost effective and would work economically.

FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS

Logan asserts that in the event it is permitted to withdraw from the sending-receiving relationship there would be no significant reduction of the Paulsboro High School staff. It asserts that Paulsboro would lose $6,696 per pupil or, a total loss in revenues of $267,840 in tuition. That is, $6,696 times 40 pupils. However, a gradual or staged withdrawal over a four year span of time would lessen the financial impact. The Logan Board applied the estimated tuition of $6,696 for the 1996-97 school year and set forth the following cumulative effect in a four year staged withdrawal and the tax implications for Paulsboro:

1996-97	35 pupils equals $19,505 loss to Paulsboro results in a .82 cents increase in tax rate;
1997-98	23 pupils remaining would result in $69,954 in loss with a 2.06 cent increase in taxes to Paulsboro;
1998-99	12 pupils remaining would be a $114,336 in loss with a 1.98 cent increase increase in taxes;
1999-2000	no pupils remain. $167,400 in loss to Paulsboro with a 2.255 cent net increase in taxes to the sending district.

Logan asserts that its withdrawal from the sending-receiving relationship would result in an increase of 7.41 cents in taxes per $100 valuation for Paulsboro over the four periods of the withdrawal. It observes, moreover, that the Paulsboro current expense budget on June 30, 1992, shows an estimated balance of $559,440. For the 1993-94 budget year the Paulsboro Board appropriated $77,689 to reduce the tax rate which should have left remaining, $481,761. However, at the conclusion of the 1993-94 budget year, Logan asserts that Paulsboro ended with a balance of $2,178,999. It further asserts that the balance from the audited 1994-95 budget was $1,243,076 or, $700,000 more than estimated. A total of $736,034 was applied to reduce the local tax rate.

Logan contends that with such balances there will be no significant fiscal impact on Paulsboro with the withdrawal of 40 Logan pupils over the next four years. In addition, Logan contends, if the withdrawal plan is implemented, Paulsboro would receive an increase in State aid. Logan further asserts that its withdrawal will have no impact on Paulsboro's educational program. Paulsboro will, however, have to make a determination as to whether it will offer courses where the class enrollment may fall below ten pupils.

Paulsboro counters by asserting it will lose $275,000 in regular tuition revenues if Logan is permitted to withdraw, plus an additional loss of $34,000 in special education tuition which was not accounted for in the Logan Board's calculations. It further asserts that the average tuition cost per Logan pupil is now $6,705, which includes special education pupils, rather than the $6,696 per pupil used by Logan to arrive at its total cost of loss to Paulsboro. The Paulsboro Board will charge the Logan Board $301,729 for tuition for the 1996-97 school year.

The Paulsboro Board disputes Dr. Beineman's calculations with respect to the impact upon its tax rate under a withdrawal of Logan pupils. It contends that the effect would be a 13 cent increase in the tax rate if all the pupils were withdrawn in one year. It asserts that the withdrawal will have an cumulative effect where, at the end of four years, the loss to Paulsboro will be $1,200,000.

Paulsboro Board contends that the $300,000 plus loss of revenues by way of tuition from Logan would be devastating. It asserts that the voters rejected its budget with an increase of .07 cents for the 1995-96 budget year. Again, for the 1996-97 budget year the voters rejected its proposed .04 cent increase.

On cross-examination, Paulsboro revealed that it owed Logan $62,000 in overcharged tuition payments and did not adjust the $301,729 when it calculated its loss of tuition revenue. Now, it asserts, that the loss would be only $240,000 for the first year if the total withdrawal occurred in one year. Therefore, the loss is reduced by 20 percent or by .06 cents for the first year tax rate. Paulsboro further admits that some of the $240,000 loss in tuition from Logan would be made up through increased tuition to Greenwich Township.

The Paulsboro Board further concedes that on June 30, 1995, its 1994-95 budget shows a balance of $1,542,965. The subsequent audit, however, shows a $2,595,049 balance. Its 1996-97 budget reflected an unexpended amount of $1,500,000 rather than the actual $2,500,000. Of the $2,500,000 unexpended funds, $848,120 was applied to its revenue side of the budget to reduce the tax rate for 1995-96. The remaining $1,800,000 is reserved for its subsequent budget.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The evidence clearly demonstrates that the Logan Township is divided into four unequal parts for the purpose of its long standing sending-receiving relationships with the Paulsboro Board and the Kingsway Regional Board. The facts also show an unequal distribution of Logan pupils between the two high schools. Of the approximately 278 Logan pupils attending grades nine through twelve during the 1994-95 school year, approximately 40 of those pupils attended Paulsboro while the remaining 238 attended Kingsway Regional High School. The percentage of distribution of Logan pupils for 1994-95 was approximately 15 percent attending Paulsboro and 85 percent attending Kingsway Regional High School.

The evidence also demonstrates that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38.8-2.a(2), the citizens of Logan Township will maintain a membership on the Kingsway Regional High School Board where it will have legal representation and in-put with regard to the quality of education of its pupils. Logan Township does not qualify for such representation on the Paulsboro Board. Consequently, its considerations for educational programs is limited to its school administration and staff members to persuade the Paulsboro school administration and/or Board to address Logan's educational concerns.

The quality of education offered by the Paulsboro High School is not in question or at issue. The evidence reveals that it offers a diversity of courses and a comprehensive educational program. Kingsway Regional High School, on the other hand, also provides such diversity and comprehension. Kingsway provides the opportunity for Logan pupils to continue their study of Latin from grade eight while Paulsboro does not. Kingsway offers more years of other foreign languages; i.e., five years of Spanish and French while Paulsboro offers two years of French and three years of Spanish. Kingsway also offers more college level AP courses than Paulsboro. Paulsboro offers AP calculus while Kingsway provides AP in calculus, English literature, English composition I and II, United States history and physics. The record shows that there would be no significant impact upon the Paulsboro High School educational program with the withdrawal of the 40 Logan pupils from Paulsboro over a four year withdrawal period. I so CONCLUDE.

A significant consideration for the termination of a sending-receiving relationship is "... the effect on the racial composition of the pupil population of each of the districts." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13. Our courts observe that "... the mandate of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 that racial balance is an important consideration in evaluating the potential destabilizing effect on severance. Indeed, that language was engrafted onto the statute specifically to avoid withdrawals for discriminatory purposes which would have the effect of recreating segregated schools systems with their inherent inequality of educational opportunity." Englewood Cliffs v. Englewood, 257 N.J. Super. 413, 464 (App. Div. 1992); appeal granted 130 N.J. 590 (1993); appeal granted 130 N.J. 590 (1993); cert. granted 130 N.J. 600 (1993); aff'd. 132 N.J. 327 (1993); cert. den. 114 S. Ct. 547, 126 L. Ed. 449. There has been no showing in the instant matter that there is any potential racial destabilizing effect upon Paulsboro High School with the gradual withdrawal of the Logan pupils from the sending-receiving relationship. The effect, if any, is minimal and in no manner would have the effect of creating a segregated school system. The percentage of increase in black pupils in the Paulsboro High School over a four year period of withdrawal would be less than four percent.

I CONCLUDE that there has been no showing of a negative or significant impact upon the Paulsboro High School educational program with the withdrawal of the Logan pupils. Nor has there been a showing that Logan's application to withdraw from the Paulsboro sending-receiving relationship is for discriminatory purposes. I CONCLUDE that the statutory imperative has been met with regard to the effect of the racial composition of the pupil population of each of the school districts and that the withdrawal should be allowed. Englewood Cliffs v. Englewood, supra.

With regard to the financial implications, the record demonstrates that Paulsboro has managed to create substantial unexpended balances over and above Logan's tuition payments during the course of the past few years. Notwithstanding that Paulsboro would lose approximately $267,840 in tuition over the next four years with a gradual withdrawal of the Logan pupils, it has ended with balances of $2,178,999 at the end of the 1993-94 budget year and $1,243,076 for the audited 1994-95 budget year.

Although Paulsboro argues that its loss in tuition revenue is cumulative, it also admits that some part of that loss will be recouped with increase tuition costs to the other sending school districts to its high school. The potential also exists that Paulsboro may be entitled to additional State financial aid. I CONCLUDE that while the Paulsboro Board will lose tuition revenues as a consequence of the Logan pupils withdrawal from its high school over a period of four years, the loss is insignificant given the Paulsboro Board's present financial condition. It is also projected that the Paulsboro Board may recoup part of the lost Logan tuition through increased tuition payments from the remaining sending districts as well as increased State financial aid.

Based upon all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the Logan Board has establish that no substantial negative impact will result in its gradual withdrawal from its sending-receiving relationship with the Paulsboro Board. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the withdrawal should be approved.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the Logan Township Board withdraw its pupils from the Paulsboro Board's High School, over a four year period, commencing with the 1997-98 school beginning September 1997. Those pupils completing the Logan Board's eighth grade in June 1997 will be assigned to the Kingsway Regional High School rather than the Paulsboro High School. Each succeeding eighth grade class will do likewise until the termination of the sending-receiving relationship with the Paulsboro Board is complete.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the termination of the sending-receiving relationship between Logan and Paulsboro will not result in any substantial negative racial, educational, or financial impact. As such, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13, severance of the relationship must be granted.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter, for the reasons expressed therein. Logan's application for severance from its sending-receiving relationship with Paulsboro is hereby granted, with withdrawal being phased out over a four-year period, commencing with the 1997-98 school year beginning September 1997.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, November 29, 1996

Decision on motion by the Commissioner of Education, January 14, 1997

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Zane & Lozuke (Raymond J. Zane, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Dilworth, Paxson, Kalish & Kauffman (Suzette D. Bonfiglio, Esq., of Counsel)

The Board of Education of the Borough of Paulsboro (hereinafter "Paulsboro") seeks a stay of the Commissioner of Education's decision of November 29, 1996 in this matter. In his decision, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that termination of the sending-receiving relationship between Paulsboro and the Board of Education of the Township of Logan (hereinafter "Logan") would not result in any substantial negative impact with respect to the educational and financial implications for the districts involved, or on the quality of education and the racial composition of the affected districts. Accordingly, the Commissioner adopted the ALJ's determination granting severance of the relationship pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13. By letter decision dated January 14, 1997, the Commissioner denied Paulsboro's motion for a stay of that decision.

In support of its motion to the State Board, Paulsboro contends that it will suffer irreparable harm as a result of the loss of tuition for the students who will be withdrawn if the decision is not stayed. Paulsboro argues that it will not be able to reduce expenditures to compensate for this loss and will be forced to pass on the increased costs to its taxpayers and its other sending district. It maintains that in addition to a "devastating" financial impact, termination will result in a significant negative impact on the racial composition of its pupil population by increasing the black student population from 29.1% to 31.4%. Additionally, it asserts that because the Commissioner did not have the benefit of the transcripts when he made his decision, he did not consider material facts which weigh against the ALJ's findings. Finally, Paulsboro urges that while it will "face extinction" if the Commissioner's decision is given effect, Logan will not suffer any hardship if the decision is stayed.

Inasmuch as we agree with the Commissioner that Paulsboro's application fails to meet the standards that would entitle it to relief under Crowe v. De Gioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), we deny its motion for stay. In this respect, we stress that pursuant to the Commissioner's decision, withdrawal will occur on a four year phase-out basis commencing with the 1997-98 school year and that while Paulsboro will lose approximately $267,840 in tuition over the next four years, its audited free balance for 1994-95 was $1,243,076.

On November 29, 1996, the Commissioner of Education issued a decision in which he granted the request of the Board of Education of the Township of Logan to terminate its sending-receiving relationship with the Board of Education of the Borough of Paulsboro (hereinafter "Paulsboro Board").

On December 20, 1996, the Paulsboro Board filed a notice of appeal with the State Board of Education. On December 26, 1996, the briefing schedule was placed in abeyance at the request of the Paulsboro Board pending its receipt of transcripts from the hearing held in the Office of Administrative Law in this matter.[1] The Paulsboro Board was also given until January 6, 1997 to file a substitution of attorney. A substitution of attorney was thereafter filed on December 30, 1996.

On January 24, 1997, the Paulsboro Board filed a motion for a stay of the Commissioner's decision, along with a brief in support of its motion. On April 2, 1997, we denied that motion.

On October 9, 1997, the director of the State Board Appeals Office notified the counsel for the Paulsboro Board that the briefing schedule in its appeal was being re-established "[i]n view of the amount of time that has been provided to you to obtain transcripts...." The Paulsboro Board was given until November 3, 1997 to file a brief in support of its appeal. The Paulsboro Board failed to file a brief by that date. By letter dated November 11, 1997, the counsel for the Paulsboro Board was advised that no appeal brief had been filed and that this matter was therefore being referred to the Legal Committee of the State Board for consideration of its failure to perfect the appeal.

The Paulsboro Board has still failed to file a brief in support of its appeal, more than two months after the extended deadline for such filing. Nor has the Paulsboro Board offered any explanation for its failure to file a brief or requested an additional extension of time for such filing.

The State Board of Education therefore dismisses the appeal in this matter for failure to perfect. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.12(a). See Paszamant v. Board of Education of the Petitioner, administrator of District's child care program, alleged she acquired tenure in her position and Board had "constructively discharged" her from that employment. Board contended petitioner was ineligible for tenure as she was not serving in a position for which certification was required and she voluntarily resigned from her position.

ALJ concluded petitioner voluntarily resigned from her employment over salary dispute and, thereby, relinquished whatever tenure rights she might have possessed. ALJ granted Board's motion to dismiss the petition.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioner failed to establish that her resignation was involuntary or amounted to a "constructive discharge." Petition was dismissed.

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal by a former school employee who resigned from her position with the Randolph Township Board of Education ("Board"). Basically, petitioner alleges that her resignation was involuntary and that she was "constructively discharged" from employment without having been afforded the protections to which she is entitled under the tenure law. In her petition, she seeks reinstatement to her position, together with "all salary and other benefits that were rightfully due her from September 1, 1994 to the present." The Board contends that petitioner was not serving in a position for which certification was required and, therefore, that she was ineligible for tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. More importantly, the Board asserts that it is unnecessary to decide the tenure claim because petitioner voluntarily resigned from her position and, therefore, waived whatever tenure rights she might have. Additionally, the Board raises the affirmative defense that the bringing of this action is barred by the applicable period of limitations.

Procedural History

On December 16, 1994, petitioner Joanne Cleffi-Miller filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") alleging her "wrongful termination" from employment. Respondent filed its answer on January 11, 1995 and an amended answer, adding the affirmative defense of timeliness, on May 19, 1995. Subsequently, on January 24, 1995, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case.

Prior to commencement of the hearing, the Board filed a motion for summary decision, together with supporting certification and brief, on September 13, 1995. Petitioner filed her opposing papers on October 19, 1995. By order entered on October 25, 1995, the OAL denied the summary decision motion because it appeared on the papers "that there are disputed material facts which must be developed at a full hearing[.]" Thereafter, the OAL held two full days of hearing on October 31 and November 1, 1995 and scheduled the matter for a third day of hearing on January 24, 1996. On the second day of hearing, petitioner concluded her proofs and rested her case.

At the outset of the hearing on January 24, 1996, the Board moved for involuntary dismissal of the petition.[1] Meanwhile, on October 24, 1995 the New Jersey Supreme Court had reexamined traditional summary-judgment practice and clarified the conditions under which summary judgment (the judicial counterpart to a summary decision motion in administrative law) should be granted.[2] In Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co., 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995), the court held that, in determining whether a genuine issue of material fact exists, the motion judge must consider > . . . whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party in consideration of the applicable evidentiary standard, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed fact in favor of the non-moving party. This assessment of the evidence is to be conducted in the same manner as that required under Rule 4:37-2(b).

Inevitably, the process involves "a kind of weighing that involves a type of evaluation, analysis and sifting of evidential materials." Brill, at 536. Nonetheless, the judge must avoid "assessing the preponderance or credibility of evidence" and "grant all the favorable inferences to the non-movant." Id.

[1] New Jersey Uniform Administrative Procedural Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6, do not specifically provide for the bringing of a motion for involuntary dismissal. However, in the absence of a rule, an administrative law judge "may proceed in accordance with the New Jersey Court Rules, provided the rules are compatible with simplicity and procedure, fairness in administration and elimination of unjustifiable expense and delay." N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.3(a). R. 4:37-2(b) permits a defendant to move for dismissal at the conclusion of the plaintiff's proofs on the ground that "the plaintiff has shown no right to relief." The standard is quite a mechanical one. "The trial court is not concerned with the worth, nature or extent (beyond a scintilla) of the evidence, but only with its existence, viewed most favorably to the party opposing the motion." Dolson v. Anastasia, 55 N.J. 2, 5-6 (1969).

[2] N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) provides that summary decision may be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law."

Furthermore, the New Jersey Supreme Court in Brill directed that the new rule "shall apply to this case and all cases pending in the trial and appellate courts involving unresolved issues concerning summary judgment, including those cases in which summary judgment was denied previously." Brill, at 545-546. Accordingly, the opportunity is now presented to reconsider the prior summary judgment ruling under the Brill standards, together with the added benefit of having heard all of petitioner's proofs. Under that standard, it must be concluded that a reasonable factfinder could not find in favor of petitioner and, therefore, that the Board is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.

Findings of Fact

Only one witness, Mrs. Cleffi-Miller herself, testified on petitioner's behalf at the hearing and, at this stage of the proceedings, her factual testimony and all reasonable inferences drawn therefrom must be accepted as true. It is unnecessary to dwell on the details, since the outcome turns on whether or not Mrs. Cleffi-Miller voluntarily resigned from her job. Some background facts are necessary, however, to put the case in its proper perspective.

Joanne Cleffi-Miller was employed by the board as an administrator of a highly innovative and effective child care program. While not legally obligated to do so by law, the district offers before and after-school child care services as an accommodation to working parents and others in need of adult supervision for their children. Mrs. Cleffi-Miller had previously worked for the district as a Title I teacher prior to 1980 and was rehired as a "head teacher" or "group leader" of the child-care program in September 1984.[3] Throughout her employment, Ms. Cleffi-Miller held an elementary-teacher certificate, although there is a factual dispute between the parties as to whether such certification was a condition of employment. In or about 1986, petitioner became the "program coordinator" of the child-care program, a position which involved more administrative and less direct-care duties. She did not, however, hold the type of educational certificate required for an administrative position. Initially, petitioner worked without any written agreement, but during the last three school years (1991-1992, 1992-1993; and 1993-1994) she and the board entered into formal written contracts for successive one-year terms.

It is undisputed that Ms. Cleffi-Miller was a dynamic and dedicated organizer of the district's child care program. She endeavored to make the child-care program "more than just baby-sitting" and sought to arrange structured activities to help children develop "cognitively, emotionally, socially and physically." In her capacity as coordinator, Ms. Cleffi-Miller had responsibility for recruiting and training staff, reviewing activity plans, supervising child-care providers, ordering materials and supplies, and evaluating the effectiveness of the program. Her last evaluation noted approvingly that Ms. Cleffi-Miller "continue[s] to manage the child care staff and curriculum very well" and "works tirelessly to help parents with questions, complaints and suggestions." An active member of school-age child care organizations at the national, state and county levels, she made a name for herself in the field and brought recognition to the district for the quality of its child-care services. When the district's "latch-key" program started in 1984, it was a limited operation furnishing after-school care to some twenty-four children at a single location. Under Ms. Cleffi-Miller's able leadership, the program has "evolved" into an elaborate undertaking at four different schools, serving one-hundred fifty children in the morning and more than one hundred in the afternoon.

At the time that Ms. Cleffi-Miller started in the child-care program, she had been willing to accept low wages of "maybe $6.00 per hour" because she loved the work and "didn't care" how much she was paid. As the complexity of her responsibilities and the amount of time devoted to the task increased, her compensation package also changed. By 1990, the Board was paying her a regular salary, providing health insurance coverage and contributing to her pension. In one year alone, she requested and received a substantial raise which nearly doubled her base salary, from $8,800 in 1990-91 to $16,000 in 1991-92. Her base salary for 1993-94 was $18,000. On top of that, she earned a $3,000 stipend in 1993 for running a full-day "holiday fun" program while school was on vacation.

All of the facts necessary for disposition of this case come from Ms. Cleffi-Miller's own testimony at the hearing. She acknowledges, as she must, that in or about late April 1994 the Board made a written offer to renew her contract for the upcoming 1994-95 school year at a proposed base salary of $18,900. This represented a five percent increase over her base salary in the prior school year. Nevertheless, Ms. Cleffi-Miller rejected the board's contract offer because of her belief that the amount was "unsatisfactory" in light of her greater responsibilities and the time commitment required to perform her duties. Undeniably, the scope of Ms. Cleffi-Miller's job duties was expanding, due partly to her own enthusiasm for her job. Since the school system was planning to incorporate the sixth grade classes into the Middle School, she submitted a proposal to extend the child-care program to that older group of students who were presently without services. In addition, the district had asked her to take over an existing after-school program independently run by the Ironia School Parent Teachers Association.

Ms. Cleffi-Miller genuinely felt that her efforts were unappreciated and that she was being undercompensated for the value of her services. Consequently, she jotted down a series of thoughts for a meeting with her immediate supervisor, Nancy Clancy, on July 6, 1994. In this document, which she handed to her boss at the meeting, Ms. Cleffi-Miller enumerated various reasons why she thought she deserved more money, including her added responsibilities and heavier workload, her ability to take the initiative, her ten-years of experience, and her involvement in child-care organizations. According to Ms. Cleffi-Miller, her supervisor "threw up her hands" and told her she "didn't know where the money was to come from." While she doubts that she mentioned it to her supervisor, Ms. Cleffi-Miller had already decided by July 6, 1994 that she would not sign the proposed contract "unless the salary was adjusted."

Although she was not paid for working over the summer, Ms. Cleffi-Miller usually spent part of her summer preparing for the next school year by interviewing candidates for employment in the child-care program, orienting and training staff and student aides, taking inventory of supplies, and planning future programs. She had begun these activities in July 1994, but was reluctant to continue without a contract. On July 19, 1994, she hand-delivered another note to Nancy Clancy, reminding her that she "still [didn't] have a contract for the coming school year" and outlining the items which still needed to be done to get ready for the fall. Most of the items on the list were matters that Ms. Cleffi-Miller had always handled herself, without much input from her supervisor. Pointing out that she normally would take care of these responsibilities over the summer, Ms. Cleffi-Miller added that she would "generally have a contract by the time my previous one expires." After reiterating that her job was took more time and carried more responsibility than the Board was "currently acknowledging with my salary," she requested "a contract more commensurate with the responsibility of this position[.]" Stressing the importance of "the timely and well-organized operation of these programs," she concluded by saying that she "hope[d] to begin again soon." The clear inference is that Ms. Cleffi-Miller intended to withhold her services until her salary demands were met. Indeed, she testified that her intention was to convey the idea that she "would not continue with [her] usual summer activities unless [she] had signed a contract."

Shortly thereafter, on or about July 20, 1994, Ms. Cleffi-Miller had another conversation with Nancy Clancy about salary concerns and the uncertainties regarding the coming year. Although her supervisor was willing to discuss the possibility of a stipend for extra duties, such as the Middle School and Ironia programs, Ms. Clancy made it clear that the base contractual salary "would stand at $18,900." Moreover, Ms. Clancy only promised "to get back to [her]," but made no firm commitment about additional compensation.

Not hearing anything further from her supervisor, Ms. Cleffi-Miller tendered a written letter of resignation to her supervisor on August 9, 1994. This letter, Ms. Cleffi-Miller explained, was "heart-felt" and "extremely difficult for me to write." She thought about it for "at least a couple days" and maybe as long as a week. Before submitting the letter, she discussed the pros and cons of resignation with her husband and adult children. Her decision to resign "emerged as a consensus among my family." She also may have mentioned it to a professional colleague and to her mother. Apparently Ms. Cleffi-Miller believed that if she offered her resignation, someone would listen to her and ask, "Why is she making this noise?" Her intent in submitting her resignation was to cause her supervisor and the Board "to take a serious look at my salary and responsibilities." In her own words, she viewed the threat of resignation as a "tactic" to bring about discussion. While she may not have fully considered the possible consequences of her action, there is no evidence that she was under duress or suffered from any mental condition that might impair her judgment.

The tone of her letter of resignation suggests that her decision was not made lightly or on the spur of the moment. It reads, in pertinent part:

> As originally submitted, your contract proposal to me was not acceptable. This was especially so since it did not reflect the increased responsibility with the inclusion of two more programs for September 1994. You had, at first, told me there would be an adjustment in the contract and later changed your mind. After our discussion on the twentieth, you were going to get back to me regarding salary, duties and responsibilities and the Ironia and Middle School programs. Thus far, you have not.
> Your failure to discuss this matter further and/or offer a new contract has stirred serious thought and consideration regarding my position. I, therefore, respectfully submit my resignation.

Ms. Cleffi-Miller left the letter on her supervisor's desk and delivered copies to the superintendent of schools and to the residences of all Board members, along with a packet containing copies of various written recommendations dating back as far as March 1993. These job references show that Ms. Cleffi-Miller had been thinking about seeking other employment for a considerable period of time. Initially, Nancy Clancy appeared "outraged" at her sudden resignation, but later that afternoon she told Ms. Cleffi-Miller that it might be better for her to be in charge of her own program someplace else. One or two days later, Nancy Clancy informed Ms. Cleffi-Miller that the district was advertising for her replacement at a salary of $25,000. However, Ms. Cleffi-Miller did not express any interest in accepting that amount because she "felt rejected" and "was waiting for them to come to me." In her salary negotiations, Ms. Cleffi-Miller had conveyed the impression that she was asking for a minimum salary of $30,000. Since the new school year was fast-approaching, the district had little choice but to search for someone else to manage the child-care program.

On or about August 29, 1994, Ms. Cleffi-Miller held a meeting with schools superintendent Robert Gordon in his office. By that time her successor had already been chosen but not yet appointed by the Board. Ms. Cleffi-Miller, who had requested the meeting, announced to Mr. Gordon that she "wasn't there to grovel for [her] job," but that she "wanted to make him aware of [her] accomplishments." Again, Ms. Cleffi-Miller failed to give any indication of her interest in returning to work. Finally, the Board voted at its regularly-scheduled meeting on September 19, 1994 to accept her resignation. During the intervening one and-a-half months before the Board accepted her resignation, Ms. Cleffi-Miller made no attempt to revoke her resignation.

The defining moment in the hearing came during cross examination of Ms. Cleffi-Miller into her motives for rejecting the Board's reemployment offer. Candidly, Ms. Cleffi-Miller admitted that she would have continued working as program coordinator if she had been offered a salary in the range of $25,000 to $32,000. However much she may have objected to an increase in her work load or to an alleged breakdown in communications with her supervisor, she nevertheless would not have quit if the Board had acceded to her salary demands. Thus, her resignation was not due to intolerable working conditions or harassment on the job. Instead, she resigned merely because of a disagreement with her employer over the amount of her salary.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that, accepting petitioner's proofs as true, a reasonable fact-finder must find that Ms. Cleffi-Miller voluntarily resigned from her employment and, thereby, relinquished whatever tenure rights she might possess.

It is unnecessary to decide the issue of whether or not Ms. Cleffi-Miller actually acquired tenure in her position. Even if Ms. Cleffi-Miller had attained tenure, she nonetheless was entitled to surrender her employment rights. Tenure and reemployment rights may be voluntarily relinquished. O'Toole v. Forestal, 211 N.J. Super. 394, 402, (App. Div. 1986), certif. den. 107 N.J. 123 (1987). Accord, Lange v. Bd. of Educ. of Audubon, 26 N.J. Super. 83, 88 (App. Div. 1953). See also, Adler v. John Carroll Univ., 549 F. Supp. 652, 656 (N.D. Ohio 1982), holding that a college teacher who voluntarily resigned from his position was not a victim, but rather "generated his own fate." Ms. Cleffi-Miller's own testimony demonstrates that she clearly understood what she was doing and knowingly delayed signing the proposed contract in order to induce the Board to increase her compensation. Significantly, her ultimate decision to resign was not made impulsively, but came after careful reflection and discussion with her family. When she tendered her resignation less than one month before the start of the new school year, she must have known that the Board would be put in the difficult position of finding a replacement on short notice. See N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8, requiring a tenured teaching staff member to give her employer at least sixty-days notice of her intention to relinquish her position.[4]

[4]Likewise, it is unnecessary to rule on the Board's argument that the petition is untimely under N.J.A.C. 6:24.1.2(c), which provides that an appeal to the Commissioner must be filed "no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education[.]" For purposes of this motion, it will be assumed that the limitation period started to run on September 19, 1994, the date on which the Board accepted petitioner's resignation and, therefore, that the petition filed eighty-eight days later on December 16, 1994 is timely.

Endeavoring to avoid the consequences of her voluntary resignation, Ms. Cleffi-Miller argues that the Board's actions amount to a "constructive discharge." Constructive discharge occurs when working conditions become so intolerable that a responsible employee would be forced to resign. Federal courts in the Third Circuit have adopted an "objective test," which focuses on the impact of an employer's action, whether deliberate or not, upon the 'reasonable' employee." Muench v. Township of Haddon, 255 N.J. Super. 288, 302 (App. Div. 1992). The standard is met when "the conduct complained of would have the foreseeable result that working conditions would be so unpleasant or difficult that a reasonable person in the employee's position would resign." Schafer v. Pittsburgh Bd. of Educ., 903 F. 2d 243, 249 (3rd Cir. 1990); Goss v. Exxon Office Systems Co., 747 F. 2d 885 (3rd Cir. 1984). Of necessity, the inquiry is highly fact-sensitive. Levendos v. Stern Entertainment, Inc., 860 *F.*2d 747 1227., 1230 (3rd Cir. 1984).

Cases giving rise to the doctrine of constructive discharge are readily distinguishable on their facts. Many of the situations involve violations of state or federal anti-discrimination statutes. In Muench, for example, a female police dispatcher was subjected to a pervasive pattern of sexual harassment by a male officer, including making disparaging remarks about her to strangers, belittling her over the police radio, refusing to train her, leaving lip prints on her window and bragging to her of his sexual prowess. Because of her health and the frustration, she had no other choice but to resign. Similarly, in Goss, a successful female sales representative had to resign after being given a less lucrative territory because she wanted to have a baby. Ms. Cleffi-Miller may have felt overworked and underpaid, but she makes no credible allegations of discriminatory treatment or demeaning behavior toward her by Board employees.

Another type of constructive-discharge situation involves employees forced to resign in order to avoid the stigma of being fired. Illustratively, in Kass v. Brown Boveri Corp., 199 N.J. Super 42 (App. Div. 1985), an employer breached the employment contract by demoting a manager to a lesser job involving nonmanagerial duties. Holding that his forced resignation did not bar the manager's suit for breach of contract, the Appellate Division declared that he had been "unjustifiably placed in the position of submitting to his discharge, accepting a demotion or resorting to a resignation so that he might obtain employment in the future without the stigma of discharge." Kass, at 50. Here, of course, Ms. Cleffi-Miller was in no apparent danger of being demoted or discharged. To the contrary, the Board had offered her a contract for reemployment on more generous terms and was planning on expanding her responsibilities. She resigned due to dissatisfaction with the progress of negotiations over increased compensation for additional duties.

On one occasion, the New Jersey Supreme Court ordered reinstatement of a teacher on general "equitable principles" under the "peculiar circumstances" of the case. Evaul v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Camden, 35 N.J. 244, 249 (1961). Evaul involved a tenured teacher with twenty-five years of service who spontaneously submitted her resignation after a "heated and acrimonious" meeting with school officials. Unknown to her, the Board accepted her resignation a few hours later at a special meeting that had been previously called for another purpose. Two days later, the teacher attempted to rescind her resignation, but was advised that her resignation had already been accepted. Deciding in the teacher's favor, the Court relied on the "extraordinary" combination of events, including the teacher's "impetuous act" prompted by her distraught condition and the "fortuitous circumstance" that a special meeting of the board was scheduled to be held a few hours after she wrote her resignation. Equally important, the Court noted that the school board had not taken any action in reliance on her resignation. Evaul, at 249-250.

Unlike the situation in Evaul, Ms. Cleffi-Miller's resignation was not done impulsively, but was a deliberate and calculated choice on her part. She consulted with family members and thought about it over an extended period before deciding to resign. Afterwards, she had at least two meetings with top school administrators where she missed the opportunity to signal her interest in returning to work. In the meantime, the Board substantially changed its position by hiring a replacement to fill her position when the new school year began. In short, Ms. Cleffi-Miller's proofs show that she voluntarily quit her job because she was unhappy with her salary and wanted a bigger increase. None of the case law, however, stands for the proposition that mere dissatisfaction with one's compensation can support a claim of constructive discharge.[5]

Order

It is ORDERED that the Board's motion to dismiss the petition is granted.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

[5]Petitioner contends that she is entitled to a higher salary as a tenured teacher from the date of her initial hire in 1984. The short answer is that her petition seeks reinstatement for wrongful discharge and back pay "from September 19, 1994," but does not clearly set forth a claim for ten years of damages. In any event, her claim for past salary would be barred by the ninety-day rule, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63 (1990) does not dictate a different result. There the Supreme Court awarded retroactive pay to successful litigants who had established a new rule of law. Its rationale does not extend to a school employee who voluntarily resigned her position because the board refused her request for higher future salary.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that this matter is properly dismissed in that petitioner has failed to establish that her resignation from the Board's school system was involuntary or amounted to a "constructive discharge." Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein, and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

SYNOPSIS

This matter was initiated in 1983 and was the subject of a number of Commissioner and State Board decisions since that time. At issue was a determination of the amount of damages (back pay minus mitigation) due petitioners, reinstated supplemental instructors whose positions had been eliminated during reductions in force in 1983 and who had had greater seniority than teachers retained. By interlocutory decision in August 1995, the Commissioner remanded matter to OAL for fact finding and argument with respect to the correctness of petitioners' contention that their service under their purportedly "void" contract would not have been credited by Newark or East Orange under the collective bargaining agreements in place in those districts during the time periods at issue. Commissioner also remanded for revision of the back pay calculations as necessary.

In March 1996, the State Board reversed the Commissioner and determined that petitioners' supplemental teaching service must be included in their "prior teaching experience" when calculating salary guide credit under the Newark and East Orange teacher contracts. State Board found that petitioners' contention that the group contract, under which they served in West Orange, was invalid to be "immaterial to the outcome of this matter." State Board remanded matter to the Commissioner for determination of damages due petitioners.

On remand, Commissioner determined that with two minor errors noted, the ALJ's initial decision of July 7, 1995 correctly calculated the back salary awards due petitioners. Commissioner directed Board to remit such back pay to petitioners.

For Petitioners, Bernard Star, Esq.
For Respondent, Stephen J. Christiano, Esq.

This matter has come before the Commissioner of Education on remand from the State Board of Education, pursuant to its decision of March 6, 1996. On this date, the State Board reversed the Commissioner's August 22, 1995 interlocutory decision wherein he had determined that, given the nature of arguments advanced in petitioners' exceptions, there was insufficient factual information to allow him to make a determination with respect to the correctness of petitioners' contention that their service under their purportedly "void" contract would not have been credited by Newark or East Orange under the collective bargaining agreements in place in those districts during the time periods at issue herein. The Commissioner, therefore, remanded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further fact finding and argument on this question and revision of the back pay calculations as appropriate.

On March 6, 1996, the State Board, in reversing the Commissioner, determined that petitioners' supplemental teaching service must be included in their "prior teaching experience" when calculating salary guide credit under the Newark and East Orange teacher contracts. Further, the State Board found that petitioners' contention that the group contract, which they served under as supplemental teachers in West Orange, was invalid to be "immaterial to the outcome of this matter." (State Board Decision at p. 6) Accordingly, the State Board remanded the matter to the Commissioner for a determination of damages due petitioners "in conformity with our decision of May 4, 1994." (Id. at p. 8)

On May 16, 1996, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes provided the parties 30 days to submit briefs with respect to their positions on damages due petitioners in this matter, in light of the State Board's decisions of May 4, 1994 and March 6, 1996. The parties were further accorded 10 days from receipt of their adversary's brief for reply submissions. Petitioners' brief and that of the Board were timely filed in accordance with the established timeline. No reply submission was filed by either party.

After a full review of the July 7, 1995 Initial Decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in this matter (attached), the State Board's directive of March 6, 1996, and consideration of the arguments of the parties made in their submissions herein, the Commissioner finds and determines that, with two minor errors noted below, the ALJ's initial decision correctly calculated the back salary awards due petitioners. As such, the Commissioner adopts as his own and incorporates by reference herein the discussion and calculations of the ALJ on pages 14-19, as modified below. Consequently, the back salary award due each of the petitioners[1] is as follows:

[1] It is noted that the parties agreed that Constance Afromsky was due $9,148 in back salary. The Board reports that Ms. Afromsky has received payment and has provided the Board with a release. As such, her award will not be herein addressed.

	Back Salary Due
Shirley Blank	$ 11,080
Florence Berk	$ 17,558[2]
Barbara Davis	$ 46,819
Rita Peretz	$ 7,265
Paula Kolin	$ 14,852
Florence Shifman[3]	$ 13,893
Edith Ratner	$ 9,594
Doris Passner	$ 1,750

Accordingly, the Commissioner hereby orders the Board to remit back pay to petitioners, for the periods of time subject to this remand, as itemized herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

ACTING COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

This matter was brought as the result of a decision of the State Board of Education dated May 6, 1994. It was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law

[1] An initial decision was to be filed by February 24, 1995 however an extension was granted for good cause. A second extension was granted at the request of the administrative law judge until May 25, 1995 to complete the initial decision in the instant matter as well as to the complexity of the case and her voluminous caseload. Unfortunately, a third extension of the time limit to complete the initial decision in the instant matter was requested and granted for good cause, due to the voluminous caseload as well as the complexity of the case and the double-booking schedule of the undersigned. This made the new time for the filing of the initial decision July 9, 1995.

(OAL) on July 28, 1994 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The State Board of Education decision begins its own procedural history by saying "Once again, we are confronted with a dispute in this case involving the amount of the damages to which the petitioning supplemental instructors are entitled." See West Orange Supplemental Instructors et al. v. Board of Education of the Township of West Orange decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 9, 1991, rev'd and remanded by the State Board of Education April 1, 1992, appeals dismissed, Dkt. No. A-4383-91T2 and No. A-4497-91T2 (App. Div. 1992).

Before getting into the detailed history of the case one must point out that the State Board's observation that we are once again confronted with this dispute is very much like an old song from the Beatles which had a most apropos line "The long and winding road which leads me back to you."

The matter was initiated in 1983 following the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision in Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 62 (1982) that supplemental and remedial teachers were teaching staff members within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 and were, therefore, supplemental instructors whose positions had been eliminated by the Board of Education of the Township of West Orange (hereinafter "Board") during reductions in force ("RIF"). These individuals sought reinstatement along with all compensation and emoluments afforded other teaching staff members. The State Board subsequently directed the Board to reinstate the petitioners "with back pay minus mitigation" in the event that they had greater seniority than any of the staff members who had been retained by the Board. West Orange Supplemental Instructors Association v. Board of Education of the Township of West Orange, Essex County, decided by the State Board, 1987 S.L.D. 2758, aff'd, Dkt. No. A-5792-86T8 (App. Div. 1988), cert. denied, 114 N.J. 487 (1989).

Thereafter, on December 14, 1989, thirteen of those supplemental teachers filed the instant petition, alleging that, while the Board had reinstated them for the 1989-90 school year as directed, it had not made any back salary payments since the parties had been unable to agree on the specific amounts by which their damages should have been reduced under mitigation principles.

On January 9, 1991, the Commissioner determined that five of the petitioners had fully mitigated their damages and were entitled to back pay minus mitigation from the date of the RIF's through 1989 when they were reinstated. He found that the remaining eight petitioners had made adequate efforts to secure other employment only during a limited period immediately following their RIF's. He awarded the latter group damages only for those periods of time in which he found that they had exercised proper diligence.

On April 1, 1992, the State Board affirmed in part and reversed in part the decision of the Commissioner. The State Board found that the Commissioner had misapplied the legal principle of mitigation in limiting the petitioners' damages only to those periods in which they had made reasonable efforts to mitigate. The State Board stressed that the failure of any of the petitioners to exercise reasonable diligence to mitigate their damages during a portion of the period following their RIF's did not vitiate their entitlement to be made whole during such periods for their wrongful discharge. Rather, the State Board explained, mitigation principles would apply to those period in which the petitioners had not exercised the required diligence so as to reduce, rather than eliminate, the back pay awards for such period by any amount which petitioners should have been earning in other employment had they made reasonable efforts to secure other employment.

The State Board also modified the Commissioner's determination as to the period of time following the RIF during which petitioner Shirley Blank had properly mitigated her damages. State Board concluded that, under the circumstances, Blank had reasonably lowered her sights in November 1985 when she accepted a part time position in Montclair. They therefore concluded that she had adequately mitigated her damages through June 1987 when such employment terminated rather than November 1985 as found by the Commissioner. The State Board further modified the Commissioner's decision so as to reduce the petitioner Constance Afromsky's damages for the period from August 1987 through September 1, 1989 by that amount which she would have earned had she not voluntarily accepted a reduction by leaving her teaching position in Newark and accepting a position in Florida, rather than by her actual lower earnings in Florida. In all other respects, the Board affirmed the Commissioner's determination of the award entitlements of the petitioners. In accordance with their decision the Board directed that the West Orange Board of Education pay petitioners their salaries which would have been earned in West Orange less the actual earnings during the specific periods following their RIF's in which they had found that the individuals had exercised reasonable diligence in seeking other suitable positions. In addition the State Board remanded to the Commissioner for (1), a determination of the salary petitioner Afromsky would have earned from August 1987 through September 1, 1989 had she not voluntarily accepted a reduction in salary by relocating to Florida, and (2) for a determination of the salaries petitioners Berk, Blank, Davis, Ratner, Passner, Peretz, Kolin and Shifman reasonably should have earned in other employment during those specific periods in which the Board had determined that they had not made reasonable efforts to mitigate, and for a resultant computation of their back pay awards for such periods. The Board's remand was thus strictly limited to the amount of the damage entitlements of nine of the petitioners during those specified periods in which they had found that those individuals had not taken reasonable steps to mitigate their damages. In essence, their awards were to be computed by deducting the amounts it was determined they should have been earning in other positions, had they made reasonable efforts to secure such employment, from the salaries they would have earned in West Orange had they not been improperly dismissed.

On July 1, 1992, the State Board denied the West Orange Board of Education's motion for a stay of their decision of April 1, 1992 pending determination of the parties' motions for leave to appeal to the Appellate Division, finding that the board of education had failed to meet standards that would entitle it to relief under Crowe v. Degioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982).

On August 13, 1992 the Appellate Division denied the Board's motion for a stay of the State Board's decision. The court also denied the parties' cross motions for leave to appeal.

On May 19, 1993 the undersigned computed petitioner Afromsky's damage entitlement for 1987-88 and 1988-89 by reducing her damages by the amount of her actual earnings in Florida. The undersigned computed the awards of the remaining eight petitioners for the periods affected by the remand by reducing their damages by $13,000 per year. In doing so, the undersigned noted that the State Board "seems to have accepted $13,000 as adequate to show due diligence in mitigating damages." Initial Decision on remand, slip op. at 26.

On July 21, 1993 the Commissioner rejected the ALJ's salary computation for all nine of the petitioners affected by the State Board's remand. Citing the express language of that remand, Commissioner found that the undersigned had "erred in applying petitioner Afromsky's Florida earnings as her measure of mitigation for 1987-88 and 1988-89 rather than utilizing the salary she would have earned in Newark had she continued to remain employed there during this period." Commissioner's decision on remand, slip op. at 35. Applying the salary she would have earned in Newark, the Commissioner determined that Afromsky was entitled to back pay in the amount of $10,765 rather than $22,421 determined by the undersigned.

The Commissioner also rejected the undersigned's across the board application of a $13,000 mitigation figure for the remaining eight petitioners. The Commissioner thereupon determined that it was reasonable for one additional petitioner, Florence Berk, to have lowered her sights and had accepted less than comparable employment in March 1985 as a substitute teacher in West Orange. Consequently, the Commissioner determined that Berk had adequately mitigated her damages through September 1, 1989, rather than April 1, 1985 as previously determined by the State Board.

Acknowledging that there was "no 'single perfect' way, in retrospect to establish salaries that individuals should have been earning." Id. at 39, the Commissioner determined that the most equitable method of computing back salaries in this instance would be to utilize an average of the salaries of the petitioners which they would have earned in East Orange and Newark, which were large districts close to West Orange and which had a large number of available teaching positions during the relevant periods. The Commissioner also concluded that each of the petitioners would initially have place on the first step of those districts salary scales, reasoning that "it would be absurd to make the assumption that Newark and East Orange would have granted the petitioners' for prior service in establishing their salary levels.' Id. at 41.

The Commissioner thereupon made the necessary computations and determined that the petitioners herein were entitled to back salary awards for the time periods at issue on remand in the amounts found on page eight of the State Board of Education decision.

On September 21, 1993, the Commissioner granted the Board's motion for a stay of the decision. The Commissioner found that she could not, in good conscience place the Board in jeopardy by ordering payment of back salaries at that time given that such payments would have reduced the district's surplus account to a precarious level.

She directed the Board to take immediate steps to assure that sufficient funds were available to pay any forthcoming judgment ordered by the State Board on appeal.

The State Board filed the instant appeal from the decision of the Commissioner. The Board argues that the Commissioner went beyond the scope of the remand in concluding that petitioner Berk had adequately mitigated her damages and that the Commissioner erred in computing damages based on the assumption that petitioners initially would have been placed on the applicable first step of the salary guides in Newark and East Orange, resulting in a lesser reduction from their damages. The West Orange Board further contends that, rather than averaging the salaries petitioners could have earned in Newark and East Orange, the petitioners' damage awards should have been reduced by the greater of the salary they would have earned in Newark or East Orange. The West Orange Board also maintained that errors were made by the Commissioner in specific computations of several of the petitioners, including placing petitioner Blank on the bachelors degree level of the Newark and East Orange salary guides when she actually held a bachelors degree plus 32 credits.

Petitioners filed a cross-appeal, arguing, inter alia, that the Commissioner erred in rejecting the undersigned's use of the $13,000 as a yearly mitigation figure. In response to the Board's contention that the Commissioner incorrectly placed petitioner Blank on the bachelors degree of the Newark and East Orange salary guides, petitioners point out that the parties had also erroneously stipulated as to the specific salary Blank would have earned in West Orange. Petitioners have also filed a motion for leave to appeal from that portion of the Commissioner's decision of December 21, 1993 denying post judgment interest and a motion to dissolve the stay ordered by the Commissioner in that decision. In addition, they have moved to supplement their motion to dissolve this stay, and have also filed a motion for leave to supplement their appendix on appeal.

Petitioners specifically request supplementation in response to the Board's argument regarding petitioner Blank, contending that the proposed exhibits indicate the correct salary Blank would have earned in West Orange in 19876-88 and 1988-89, as well as the Board's acceptance of such figures. The Commissioner's decision noted that the petitioners improperly appended documents to their supporting brief which were not part of the record in this matter and subsequently requested supplementation. See page 10, State Board decision dated May 6, 1994. The petitioners also sought to supplement the record that the document they claim rebuts the Board's example that one of the petitioners was given credit for her prior teaching experience when she accepted a teaching position in Newark.

As in the State Board's prior decision of April 1, 1992 in this matter, the sole issue before them remained the amount of damages which the petitioners are entitled to receive. The State Board determined after a review of the record that the record was sufficient to permit resolution of the issues involved in this appeal on which petitioners seek supplementation. Therefore, the State Board denied the petitioners' motion to supplement the record on appeal.

Ultimately, the State Board affirmed in part and reversed in part the decision of the Commissioner.

The State Board affirmed the Commissioner's determination as to petitioner Afromsky's damage award. The State Board's remand specifically provided that her damages were to be reduced for the period from August 1987 through September 1, 1989 "by that amount which she would have earned had she not voluntarily accepted a reduction in salary [by leaving her teaching position in Newark and accepting a lower paying position in Florida], rather than by her actual lower earnings in Florida." State Board's decision, slip op. at 11. Thus, the Commissioner was correct in rejecting the undersigned's use of Afromsky's salary in Florida during that period and the State Board also found the Commissioner's computation of Afromsky's damage entitlement in the amount of $10,755 to be accurate.

The State Board's also concurred that the Commissioner's rejection of the undersigned's across the board application of a $13,000 figure for the remaining petitioners in the case. Noting that the computation for petitioner Blank had properly taken into account her lowered sights by accepting a position that paid her approximately $13,000 in 1986 and expressly predicated on the specific facts and circumstances in the record applicable to petitioner Blank only, and, consequently, cannot be used as a general representation of adequate mitigation. The applicability of the lowered sights principle is dependent upon "the circumstances peculiar to the individual involved." The State Board's determination regarding Blank was not intended in any way as a general endorsement of $13,000 as adequate to show the other petitioners' due diligence in mitigating damages.

In that regard, however, the State Board rejected the Commissioner's belated analysis of the applicability of the lowered sights principle to the petitioners in the case and the Commissioner's resultant determination that petitioner Berk had properly mitigated her damages through September 1, 1989, rather than through April 1, 1985 as determined by the State Board's decision of April 1, 1992. The State Board's decision fully determined the periods following their RIF's during which each of the petitioners had made reasonable efforts to mitigate. According to the State Board what the Commissioner failed to recognize is that mitigation includes the lowered sights principle and that the State Board's final determination on mitigation necessarily included analysis of the lowered sights principle. The State Board found that only petitioner Blank had reasonably lowered her sights and that petitioner Berk had made reasonable efforts to mitigate her damages only for the period from her RIF through April 1, 1985. As a result the State Board directed her damages to be reduced for the period from her RIF through April 1, 1985 by her actual earnings and for the period from April 1, 1985 through September 1, 1989 by the amount she should have been earning during that time had she made reasonable efforts to mitigate. The State Board's remand was expressly limited to a determination of the salary Berk should have earned during that period and for a resultant computation of her damage award. By addressing the applicability of the lowered sight doctrine to the petitioners herein, the Commissioner exceeded the scope of the State Board's remand and, in doing so, determined issues which were finally decided in the State Board's decision of April ;1, 1992 and, in the case of petitioner Berk, reached a determination in direct contradiction to the State Board's decision.

As to the amounts that the individuals should have been earning elsewhere, petitioners challenge the Commissioner's utilization of the average of the salaries they would have earned in Newark and East Orange in transitory fashion only, captioning a point heading of their supporting brief: "Although the petitioners disagree with the Commissioner of Education in using the salary steps and guides in East Orange and Newark in determining the awards of the petitioners ..., the petitioners herein agree with the Commissioner's placement of the petitioners on the steps set forth by the petitioners in East Orange and Newark, if East Orange and Newark are to be used ..." Brief in support of cross-appeal, at 9. Thereunder, petitioners respond to the Board's argument that the Commissioner incorrectly placed them on the first step of the Newark and East Orange guidelines. Petitioners do not otherwise dispute the Commissioner's use of the average of the salaries they would have earned in Newark and East Orange, offer any justification or further explanation for their "disagreement" for such method, or propose a measure of their earnings that would be more appropriate.

The specific positions the petitioners would have obtained had they taken reasonable steps to secure comparable employment elsewhere cannot be determined with certainty. The Board has, however shown that ample employment opportunities for the petitioners had been available nearby in Newark and East Orange, and petitioners have neither indicated nor demonstrated how the method used by the Commissioner for determining their salaries, i.e., averaging the salaries they would have earned in Newark and East Orange, was improper or inequitable. Consequently, under the circumstances, while the State Board recognized that the averaging methods employed by the Commissioner did not result in an existing salary figure, the State Board rejected the petitioners' cursory challenge to such a measure of their earnings.

The State Board also rejected the Board's proposal to reduce the petitioners' damages by the greater of the salaries each of the petitioners would have earned in Newark or East Orange. The Board has not demonstrated in which of these two districts the individual petitioners were more likely to obtain jobs had reasonable efforts been made to do so. Thus, perfunctory application of a higher salary would be unjustified based on the record.

The State Board did however agree with the Board that the Commissioner utilized the improper measure in reducing petitioners' damages using salaries they would have earned based on their initial placement on the first step of the salary schedules in Newark and East Orange. Initial placement on a district salary guide is, as pointed out by the State Board's decision, predicated upon the terms of the district's collective negotiations agreement. The Commissioner's reliance upon her conclusion that the West Orange Board did not credit petitioner Segler for prior teaching experience when it subsequently employed her as a resource room teacher is therefore, according to the State Board, misplaced. For purposes of determining salaries would have earned in Newark and East Orange, the express terms of the collective negotiations agreement in those districts are controlling. Upon review of such documents by the State Board they have determined that the petitioners would have been entitled to credit in both of those districts for their prior teaching experience. As a result, the State Board rejected the commissioner's conclusion that petitioners initially would have been placed step of the salary schedules in Newark and East Orange. The State Board therefore reversed her ultimate determination of their damages based upon such placement and the State Board remanded for determination of the steps on which they would have been placed in Newark and East Orange in light of their prior teaching experience and for a resultant computation of their damages in accordance with the State Board decision.

The parties also have disagreed on the proper placement of petitioner Blank on the salary guides of West Orange, East Orange and Newark during the period at issue. The Board argues that, in light of the parties' stipulation on remand that Blank held a "bachelors degree plus 32 credits," see, stipulation of facts, at 2, the Commissioner incorrectly placed Blank on the bachelors degree level of the Newark and East Orange salary guides for the 1987-88 and 1988-89 school years rather than on the appropriate bachelors degree plus graduate 32 credits level. Petitioner Blank, in turn, asserts that if that particular modification is to be made then it must also be recognized that the stipulation of facts incorrectly established the salary she would have earned in West Orange during those years, basing her specific salary on the bachelors degree level of that district schedule rather than on the district's "B.A. +32" level. The Board does not dispute the existence of such an error in the stipulation but argues that petitioner should be bound by the figures agreed upon therein.

Upon the State Board's review of the record they have found that petitioner Blank is correct in her contention that the stipulation credits her with a bachelors degree plus 32 graduate credits but establishes the specific salary she would have earned in West Orange in 1987-88 and 1988-89 at the amount shown on the bachelors degree level of that district's guide rather than at the higher "B.A. +32" level. Under the circumstances and given such inconsistency in the stipulation of facts that the Board does not dispute that Blank holds a bachelors degree plus 32 credits the State Board has modified, in the interest of justice, the amount Blank would have earned in West Orange to reflect the correct figures; $39,200 in 1987-88 and $41,515 in 1988-89. Exhibit P-3 in evidence. Accordingly in computing petitioner Blank's damage entitlement for 1987-88 and 1988-89, and has directed the use of these figures, in addition to the appropriate salary figures on the Newark and East Orange guides which properly recognize that Blank held a bachelors degree plus 32 credits.

In light of the State Board's determination that the Commissioner incorrectly placed petitioners on the first step if the Newark and East Orange guides, it is unnecessary for the State Board to address the Board's remaining allegations regarding the Commissioner's computations of the specific salaries several other petitioner would have earned in those districts.

The State Board concludes, in summary, that they affirm the Commissioner's determination on the remand as to petitioner Afromsky only and direct payment to her in the amount of $10,765. As to the remaining eight petitioners, the State Board reverses the Commissioner's determination of their damage entitlements and remands to the Commissioner for determination of their awards in accordance with the Board's decision of May 6, 1994.

Lastly the State Board has affirmed the Commissioner's determination to deny the petitioners' request for post-judgment interest for the reasons expressed therein. Beyond that, given the State Board's determination of this matter, they have denied as moot the petitioners' motion to dissolve the stay granted by the Commissioner pending a decision by the State Board.

Subsequently this case was remanded on July 28, 1994 to the OAL. It should be noted that in light of the State Board's decision and attempts to appeal by the parties' this matter was sent to the OAL prior to the July 28, 1994 date. That case was returned to the agency at the request of the Department of Education by way of computer-generated notice of July 11, 1994. The case was returned to the OAL on July 28, 1994 for disposition based upon the remand by the Department of Education and was therefore granted a new docket number and proceeded in the normal course.

After several conferences with the attorneys for both sides no solution was able to be reached as to the amount due each of the petitioners and the parties were directed on November 14, 1994 to file simultaneous submissions of their calculations by January 10, 1995.

Additionally on December 29, 1994 a letter was received for counsel for one of the petitioners, Constance Afromsky, indicating that she had accepted the West Orange Board of Education's figure of $9,148 and was no longer participating in the case. Accompanying that letter was a computation by counsel for the remaining petitioners.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

In the State Board decision it was necessary to look at the contract language (State Board decision pages 14 and 15) for both Newark and East Orange.

The 1983-85 Newark contract (Exhibit R-2) for teachers relating to credit for previous teaching experience read as follows:

> "Credit on the salary schedule for prior service will be given to all teachers for years of accredited teaching, military, or accredited substitute experience in the Newark public schools according to the following formula:
> 1. For credit on a year for year basis for four years of prior service;
> 2. Five years credit for six years of prior service;
> 3. Six years credit for eight years or more of prior service
> In crediting previous teaching experience for salary purposes, completion if the full academic year is required for recognition."

For the 1985-88 as well as the 1988-91 Newark contracts (Exhibit R-1), the language on credit for prior teaching experience was amended as follows:

> 1. For credit on a year for year basis for up to ten (10) years of prior service;
>
> Credit pursuant to this agreement shall not be retroactive but rather entitle each teacher to the right to receive credit commencing with the effective date of this agreement.

In dealing with the East Orange teachers contract (Exhibit R-4), on credit for prior teaching, which remained unchanged from 1983 through and including 1989 it states as follows:

> 1. For credit on the current teachers salary guide it shall be given to all new teachers for all verified contracted previous satisfactory teaching experience in a duly accredit public and/or private elementary or secondary school.
>
> 2. Each teacher shall be placed on his proper step on the current teacher salary guides upon verification of all contracted previous satisfactory teaching experience in a duly accredited public and/or private elementary or secondary school by the chief school administrator, or his/her designated representative, of the school(s) or school district(s) in which he/she was previously employed.
> 3. To receive edit for one year of teaching experience, the teacher shall have been under contract for at least four months of the school year."

While the petitioners were employed as supplemental teachers by respondent, the petitioners worked under a contract. (See No. 37 of stipulation of facts) which stated that during their employment as supplemental teachers with respondent, petitioners worked under a group contract, not individually. This fact was stipulated to by both parties.

As for the individual supplemental instructors and based upon the remand decision I come to the following conclusions.

1. Teacher Constance Afromsky.

Both parties agree that Afromsky is due $9,148 in back salary. The remaining estimated back salary awards are as follows:

WHEREAS, the parties, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark ("District"), and Caridad Rivera, a tenured teacher, and residing at 37 Cherry Street, Jersey City, New Jersey 07305, hereby stipulate and agree as follows:

1. Ms. Rivera hereby agrees to immediately resign her tenured teaching position, and relinquish any rights to such position under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Attached is a copy of the signed Letter of Resignation (Exhibit "A"). Upon the final approval of the signed Agreement and Letter of Resignation, the District shall and hereby does withdraw the Tenure Charges of Excessive Absenteeism and Incapacity certified on November 22, 1994.

2. The District agrees to compensate Ms. Rivera for the 120 day unpaid suspension previously served in the following manner. Ms. Rivera shall be restored to the payroll retroactively from September 16, 1996 and will receive her salary and benefits as an employee through January 12, 1997. By Order of the Administtrative Law Judge, the District removed Ms. Rivera from the payroll for the period January 18, 1996 to September 16, 1996, upon granting Ms. Rivera a hearing adjournment request. Ms. Rivera will not be required to return to active service. The salary rate to be paid will continue at the same rate paid during the 1995-96 school year, with no increment or increase.

3. As of January 13, 1997, all of Ms. Rivera's employment rights, including, but not limited to salary, insurance coverages, tenure and seniority, will permanently end. Ms. Rivera expressly waives and gives up any right to tenure in the District and agrees never to seek employment with the District in the future. She will not contest the District's action to terminate her employment or otherwise seek reinstatement.

4. The District will not pursue tenure charges against Ms. Rivera as long as this settlement remains in effect and is not voided by any court of competent jurisdiction or agency with jurisdiction over this matter. However, if the settlement is voided, the District retains the right to file and consider for certification tenure charges against Ms. Rivera, including such charges which have previously been filed by the District against Ms. Rivera.

5. The parties respectively acknowledge that each has had ample opportunity to seek independent legal counsel, financial or other advice regarding this Agreement, and that each is signing this Agreement freely and voluntarily, without coercion, duress or pressure from the other party.

6. This Agreement constitutes the full Agreement between the parties.

7. The undersigned representatives of the parties hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized by the respective parties to sign this Agreement and bind their principals to its terms.

8. By entering this Agreement, each party releases and discharges the other with respect to all claims (except workers compensation) or rights that either party may have against the other. This includes all claims, including those of which either party is not aware and those not mentioned herein. The releases by each party apply to all claims resulting from anything which has happened up to now. It specifically includes, without limitation, all claims which Ms. Rivera may have respecting tenure, discrimination on any basis, rights under any collective bargaining agreement, disability payments, sick leave, salary or any other matter pertaining to her employment.

9. This Agreement is subject to approval by the State District Superintendent and Commissioner of Education.

HEARING OF CARIDAD RIVERA,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL	:	DECISION
DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:
NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY.	:

The record and initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner cannot be satisfied by the present record that the proposed settlement in this matter meets the Cardonick standard for settlement of tenure matters In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, affirmed State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846.

It is well established that, having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, the Board may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges can no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue them. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenneth S. Smith, School District of the City of Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner March 22, 1982, decision on remand June 16, 1983, affirmed with modification State Board of Education November 2, 1983, affirmed N.J. Superior Court, Appellate Division, January 30, 1986. The present record contains no such required explanation. Further, there is no indication that the within teaching staff member was advised of the Commissioner's duty pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of certificate. While the Commissioner does not preclude the possibility of settlement in this matter, he must be assured that any settlement is consistent with appropriate standards for setting aside of tenure matters as expressed in Cardonick, supra.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is remanded for revision of the settlement document and expansion of the record consistent with the concerns expressed herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

In the Matter of D.S. on Behalf of Daughter D.C.
v.	SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT
Board of Education of the Township of Parsippany-Troy Hills	OAL Dkt. No. EDU 7213-96

This Settlement Agreement is entered into between Deborah Saro and the Parsippany-Troy Hills Board of Education ("the Board").

WHEREAS, on May 20, 1996 Ms. Saro filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education challenging disciplinary action taken against her daughter for violations of school rules that resulted in a loss of credit and the need for her daughter to complete a course in summer school prior to graduating from High School; and

WHEREAS, on May 22, 1996 Ms. Saro applied to the Commissioner for emergent relief seeking an order rescinding the Board's decision and allowing her daughter to graduate with her class on June 20, 1996; and

WHEREAS, the Commissioner denied Ms. Saro's request for emergent relief and dismissed her petition of appeal; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Saro appealed to the State Board of Education for an order allowing her daughter to obtain her diploma without the need to complete additional coursework in summer school; and

WHEREAS, the State Board of Education concurred with the Commissioner's decision to deny the request for emergent relief but remanded the matter for a decision regarding the need to complete additional coursework prior to graduation; and

WHEREAS, while this matter was being processed by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes and the Office of Administrative Law, Ms. Saro's daughter enrolled in summer school and successfully completed the coursework necessary to allow her to receive a diploma, thereby making it unnecessary to seek an order allowing her daughter to graduate without the need to complete additional coursework ; and

WHEREAS, during a Prehearing Conference with the judge assigned to this matter, it was determined that the only relief available to Ms. Saro in this matter would be damages in the amount of the $197.00, representing the amount of tuition she paid for summer school; and

WHEREAS, in light of the relatively small amount of damages at issue, both parties wish to avoid the additional time, delay and expense inherent in the further litigation of this matter;

NOW THEREFORE, the undersigned agree that this matter shall be amicably settled upon the following terms and conditions:

1. For and in consideration of the sum of ONE HUNDRED NINETY-SEVEN DOLLARS ($197.00) to be paid by the Board, Ms. Saro agrees to withdraw the petition filed with the Commissioner of Education and to release the Board from any and all claims arising from or attributable to the disciplinary action it took against her daughter.

2. Ms. Saro acknowledges and agrees that the aforesaid payment does not in any way constitute an admission by the Board of any wrongdoing relative to the disciplinary action it took against her daughter.

3. As a condition of this agreement, Ms. Saro represents that neither she nor her daughter have, nor will they, in any manner publicize the terms of this agreement to anyone, including former and present students and parents of students in the Parsippany-Troy Hills School District, other than to indicate that the matter has been resolved and the petition withdrawn.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAZLET, MONMOUTH COUNTY, RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, November 27, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, New Jersey Protection & Advocacy, Inc. (Joseph M. Ciccone, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Kenney & Gross (Michael J. Gross, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter was initiated on November 1, 1996 when petitioners, the parents of a 6-year-old who is classified and has an individualized educational program ("IEP"), filed an application for emergent relief with the Department of Education's Office of Special Education Programs ("OSEP"), alleging that the Board of Education of the Township of Hazlet (hereinafter "Board" or "Hazlet Board") had violated the Individuals with Disabilities Act ("IDEA"), 20 U.S.C. Sec. 1415 et seq., and other special education laws. Specifically, petitioners sought emergent relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:6A-12.1, including transportation for their son from their care provider's home to school pursuant to his IEP, an IEP meeting to develop a compensatory education plan, and the reimbursement for costs incurred as the result of the district's failure to provide appropriate transportation, as well as attorney's fees pursuant to 20 U.S.C. Sec. 1415(e)(4)(B).

As set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.7, the Office of Special Education Programs transmits applications such as the one involved here to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for an impartial hearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:6A-1.1 et seq. However, in this instance, the Office of Special Education Programs transferred the application instead to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes for determination by the Commissioner. The matter was then transmitted to OAL as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2 et seq.

On November 21, 1996, the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") issued a determination under the standard established in N.J.A.C. 1:6A-12.1(e), granting the application for emergent relief pending full disposition of the matter through an IDEA due process hearing to be conducted pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:6A-1 et seq. However, because the matter had been transmitted to OAL by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, the ALJ's decision was transmitted to the Commissioner as a recommendation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.1 et seq. for his decision, rather than becoming the final determination as codified in N.J.A.C. 1:6A-1 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:28-1 et seq.

The Commissioner rejected the determination which the ALJ had made under the standard articulated in N.J.A.C. 1:6A-12.1(e). Instead, the Commissioner determined that petitioners were not entitled to emergent relief because the application did not meet the standards of Crowe v. De Gioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). In doing so, the Commissioner found that he had jurisdiction over the matter to the extent that petitioners alleged that the Board had acted improperly in not providing transportation for their son from a locale other than that designated in the IEP. At the same time, the Commissioner concluded that he did not have the jurisdiction to decide the merits of the case because the matter involved an IDEA dispute.

Petitioners filed the instant appeal to the State Board. While they have also refiled their substantive claim with OSEP, and it has been transmitted to OAL for decision on the merits pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:6A-1 et seq., petitioners seek a determination by the State Board that the Commissioner should not have taken jurisdiction over any aspect of this case, but, rather, that OSEP should have transmitted the case to OAL for decision as a special education matter.

The Hazlet Board contends that the appeal is moot since the Commissioner's decision on the emergent relief application did not foreclose them from refiling for relief with OSEP and the underlying matter is being heard at OAL as a special education case.

Petitioners counter that the due process hearing cannot correct the error that was made in this case and that such error is capable of repetition and evading review. Moreover, they stress that their son has not obtained the interim relief they sought since the Commissioner improperly took jurisdiction over the application.

We agree with petitioners that this appeal raises an issue of public interest which may well reoccur but escape review. Hence, we find it falls within an exception to the mootness doctrine. See Zirger v. General Accounting Insurance Company, 144 N.J. 327, 330 (1996).

Review of the substance of appellant's application leaves no question that it should have been transmitted by the Office of Special Education Programs to OAL when it was filed for consideration as a special education matter. Quite simply, because the application facially argues violations of the IDEA and other special education statutes, and specifically requests relief under N.J.A.C. 1:6A-12.1, the application should have been transmitted to OAL pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:6A-12.1 et seq. for determination under the standard set forth in N.J.A.C. 1:6A-12.1(e), which is applicable to matters such as this.[1] See also 20 U.S.C. Sec. 1415.

Hence, we reverse the Commissioner's determination that he had jurisdiction to review the application for emergent relief in this case, and we set aside his decision denying such relief. However, in that neither the Commissioner nor the State Board of Education has the jurisdiction to review the ALJ's determination that petitioners were entitled to emergent relief under the standards of N.J.A.C. 1:6A-12.1, we dismiss the appeal.

[1] Under N.J.A.C. 1:6A-12.1(e), an ALJ may order emergency relief in special education matters if he determines that: 1) the applicant has a reasonable probability of ultimately prevailing on the merits, 2) either serious harm will result to a student if relief is not granted or the student's education program will be terminated or interrupted, and 3) the relief requested is narrowly defined to prevent the specific harm and will not cause unreasonable expense and substantial inconvenience. In contrast, the standard under Crowe v. De Gioia, supra, requires an applicant for emergency relief to show 1) irreparable harm, 2) that the legal right underlying the claim is unsettled, 3) a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits, and 4) that the harm to the applicant if the relief is not granted outweighs any harm to the other parties.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning teacher and association of the Union County Regional High School District No. 1, scheduled to dissolve as of July 1, 1997, sought declarations that staff who have met or will meet the statutory conditions for acquisition of tenure during the 1996-97 school year will be deemed fully entitled to exercise tenure and seniority rights, rather than be deemed nontenured because employment rights for regional staff were fixed on the date (May 14, 1996) of the dissolution referendum, at which time they had not yet acquired tenure; that the tenure and seniority rights of teachers presently employed by the regional district will extend to all positions in any of the six constituent withdrawing districts, regardless of whether or not available high school positions have been filled; that those withdrawing consistent districts, presently K-8, which will operate high schools upon dissolution of the regional district will be deemed "new districts" within the intent of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 et seq., so that the provisions of that section will govern employment rights and the terms and conditions of regional district employment will become the terms and conditions of employment for all teachers in the "new" K-12 districts; that, if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.4 et seq. is found to be not applicable, then N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 will ensure retention of prior benefits such as carry over of accumulated sick days and payment on retirement for unused sick days, and in either case, that the law will not permit tenured teachers to be reduced in compensation; and that tenured teachers will be entitled to be paid, as to both actual salary and guide placement, upon employment in any constituent district as if their entire period of employment had been with that district.

Commissioner held that constituent K-12 districts resulting from dissolution do not constitute "new" districts within meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 et seq., and that statute governing employment rights (N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64) must be read in a manner which honors the employment rights of regional staff without needlessly disrupting the stability and continuity of existing districts. Commissioner held that regional staff members' right to continued employment is fully honored by accommodating them, by preference and seniority, within identified constituent high school positions, with "bumping" into elementary and middle school positions required only where there is no high school position available, and that their right to preserved tenure and seniority is honored by retaining, and being entitled to assert upon subsequent RIF, all prior credit once employed in a constituent district. Commissioner held that date of dissolution election must control fixing of employment rights for purposes of initial assignment, except in cases where an employee will have met the statutory conditions for acquisition of tenure prior to dissolution; in those cases, seniority credit will be reckoned as of the date of the election, but as of the date of tenure acquisition, the employee is entitled to all the protections of tenure in the regional and subsequent constituent district. Finally, Commissioner held that existing constituent contracts will control for regional employees, with the proviso that salaries of tenured regional staff may not be reduced and that all rights of pension, leave and other similar benefits are preserved as required by law.

For Respondent Garwood, William S. Jeremiah, Esq. (Buttermore, Mullen, Jeremiah & Phillips)
For Respondent Union County Regional District, Lawrence S. Schwartz, Esq. (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso & Kessler)

This matter arises from the impending dissolution of the Union County Regional High School District No. 1 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-51 et seq., effective July 1, 1997, and from the ensuing lack of agreement surrounding the employment rights of affected staff members. The matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a petition for declaratory judgment and motion for stay filed by petitioners on September 24, 1996 and amended to include an additional count on October 9, 1996. Following receipt of answers and briefs from the various parties, the Commissioner determined, by letter decision dated October 22, 1996, to stay the staff selection process scheduled to begin on November 1, 1996, pending his determination on the within petition.

Petitioners' filings include a total of five counts, which seek the following declarations: That staff who have met or will meet the statutory conditions for acquisition of tenure during the 1996-97 school year will be deemed fully entitled to exercise tenure and seniority rights, rather than be deemed nontenured because employment rights for regional staff were fixed on the date (May 14, 1996) of the dissolution referendum, at which time they had not yet acquired tenure (Count I); that the tenure and seniority rights of teachers presently employed by the regional district will extend to all positions in any of the six constituent withdrawing districts, regardless of whether or not available high school positions have been filled (Count II); that those withdrawing constituent districts, presently K-8, which will operate high schools upon dissolution of the regional district will be deemed "new districts" within the intent of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 et seq., so that the provisions of that section will govern employment rights and the terms and conditions of regional district employment will become the terms and conditions of employment for all teachers in the "new" K-12 districts (Count III); that, if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.4 et seq. is found to be not applicable, then N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 will ensure retention of prior benefits such as carry over of accumulated sick days and payment on retirement for unused sick days, and in either case, that the law will not permit tenured teachers to be reduced in compensation (Count IV); and that tenured teachers will be entitled to be paid, as to both actual salary and guide placement, upon employment in any constituent district as if their entire period of employment had been with that district (Count V).

PRELIMINARY DETERMINATIONS

Initially, the Commissioner finds that Assistant Commissioner Peter B. Contini is neither a necessary nor an appropriate respondent in these proceedings, for the reasons set forth by the DAG on motion and incorporated by reference herein; thus, Dr. Contini is hereby severed as a respondent in this matter. Further, in the interest of not extending proceedings, the Commissioner declines to consolidate this matter with the pending petition filed by the Clark Education Association, which shall proceed to decision as a separate matter notwithstanding the Commissioner's recognition that his determinations below will have a bearing on its outcome. Finally, finding it alternatively outside the scope of his jurisdiction or not necessary to resolution of the matters raised in the within request for declaratory judgment, the Commissioner declines to entertain the cross/counter/third party petition filed by the respondent regional district, which sought declarations that 1) the district's financial obligations to its employees end as of the effective date of the dissolution, 2) employees accepting positions with a constituent district are, for pension purposes, not retirees of the regional district and 3) the regional district has no bargaining obligation with any representative of regional or constituent district staff as to successor agreements for its current employees.[1]

DETERMINATIONS ON THE MERITS

In determining the application of the statutes at issue to the particular facts of this matter, consistent with his authority under N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1 et seq., the Commissioner finds as follows:

Initially, the Commissioner finds that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 et seq. is not applicable herein. As defined in that act,

> "new school district" means a local school district, regional school district, a county vocational school district, a jointure commission, a county special services school district, or an educational services commission.
> In the event that the school district of a municipality or districts in a group of municipalities are abolished and a subsequent district formed, the district subsequently formed shall constitute a new school district under this act and the previously existing school district or districts shall be considered the affected or constituent district under this act. (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3)

[1] On December 2, 1996, a motion for intervention was filed on behalf of the six employee organizations representing teaching staff members currently employed in constituent districts. The Commissioner declines to entertain this motion, as it was filed well beyond the time set for briefing of this matter and subsequent to formulation of the Commissioner's determinations herein. This holding does not, however, preclude such organizations from reasserting their claim to a right of intervention should this matter be appealed to the State Board of Education.

The present situation is not one where "new" districts are being created as the result of one or more districts being abolished and a subsequent district or districts being formed where no prior entity existed, as would occur, for example, in dissolution of an all-purpose regional district; nor is it one where an existing entity is subsumed under, or transformed into, a newly constituted entity, as occurs when a regional district is created. Rather, what confronts us here are constituent districts which already exist as autonomous entities and will continue to exist exactly as presently constituted, but with the expanded purpose of providing, either directly or on a sending basis, K-12 programs rather than K-8. Thus, dissolution of the limited purpose regional district herein will result not in the creation of new districts, but in an expansion of purpose for existing ones.

Given this view, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, which establishes the rights of employees affected by dissolution of a limited purpose district, must be applied in a manner which preserves the continued employment and accrued rights of such staff, but does not result in the wholesale disruption of existing districts. The statute provides:

> All employees of the regional district shall continue in their respective positions in the withdrawing district, or in each of the constituent districts in the event of a dissolution, and all of their rights of tenure, seniority, pension, leave of absence and other similar benefits shall be recognized and preserved and any periods of prior employment in the regional district shall count toward the acquisition of tenure to the same extent as if all such employment had been under the withdrawing district or in any of the constituent districts in the event of a dissolution.(N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64)

To interpret the statute in the manner suggested by petitioners, that regional staff members may assert claims to any constituent district position K-12 held by less senior staff, addresses employment rights to the exclusion of competing, but equally legitimate considerations and is, therefore, unreasonable under the circumstances. The statute in question may not reasonably be found to create an open market where all positions in all constituent districts are subject to preferential claim by staff from the dissolving district, as such a finding would create potential chaos, confer extraordinary rights upon regional staff and effectively usurp the managerial prerogative of the constituent boards of education. Rather, the statute must be read to ensure that, for staff affected by the dissolution of their employing district, employment in their current position ("teacher") will be maintained and all previously accrued tenure and seniority rights will transfer to the district of future assignment.

This end may be accomplished, in effect, by distinguishing between the rights attached to initial assignment and those attached to subsequent tenure/seniority entitlements. Upon dissolution of the regional district, a staff member is entitled to continue in the position of teacher, as it would have existed had the regional district not been dissolved. This does not create an absolute entitlement for a displaced staff member to choose a particular initial assignment, any more than a particular assignment could have been chosen or rejected had employment continued in the regional district and a transfer been lawfully made by the board of education, whether in subject area within the scope of the staff member's certificate or in building assignment. Once the initial assignment has been made and the statutory right to continued employment thus honored, however, the regional staff member becomes an employee of the constituent district, with all periods of regional employment fully credited for tenure and seniority purposes as if the entire term of employment had been with the constituent district, and with the employee subject to transfer within the scope of his or her certificate as are all other teaching staff members.

In the present circumstances, then, the statutory scheme and the competing interests of employees and constituent districts would most reasonably and fairly be balanced by a process that would identify all available teaching positions in the respective constituent high schools, ask regional staff to rank building and subject preferences within the limits of their certification, and fill positions according to ranked preferences with superior seniority as the determining factor where multiple requests are received for a single position; only in those instances where a regional staff member could not be accommodated within his or her certification by any available high school position would there be an entitlement to "bump" less senior or nontenured staff in a constituent district. Upon assignment to and employment by a constituent district, however, regardless of the actual area of assignment, regional staff members would carry with them all accrued tenure and seniority rights, fully assertable in the employing constituent district upon any subsequent reduction in force (RIF). In this manner, regional staff "continue in their respective positions" and retain "all of their rights of tenure, seniority, [etc.]" as required under the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, without needlessly disrupting the stability and continuity of existing constituent districts.

As to the date of fixing the scope of entitlements for affected staff, established precedent is clear that an individual's rights upon abolishment of a position are set as of the date action is taken to bring about the abolition, not upon its effective date. Francey v. Salem Bd. of Ed., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 347. By analogy, it is reasonable and appropriate to extend this principle from abolitions resulting from RIF upon vote by a local board of education to abolitions resulting from dissolution of a district upon vote by citizens at the ballot box. As the rule will apply evenly to all affected staff, and to existing staff in those instances (presumably few or none) where the continued employment rights of regional staff cannot be accommodated without "bumping" into current constituent district positions, there is no prejudice to any staff member, nor are the participants in the regional reconfiguration process treated in a manner inconsistent with their local district counterparts during RIF.

An exception to this general rule, however, is required in the case of teaching staff members such as the individually named petitioner herein who will have met the statutory conditions for acquisition of tenure (N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5) subsequent to the date of the dissolution vote but prior to the effective date of the dissolution. In these instances, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, prior case law governing fixing of employment rights, and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 must be harmonized to permit petitioner and others similarly situated to assert the same right to available positions as is possible for other tenured staff, that is, ranked preference within area(s) of certification, with multiple claims to be resolved by seniority, which must be reckoned in the interest of a level playing field as of the date of the dissolution vote. It must also be read to require that, during the current year and upon employment in a constituent district, petitioner and others similarly situated will be deemed tenured, that is, unable to be dismissed or reduced in salary except in accordance with applicable law and entitled to preference as against nontenured staff, and that all seniority credit earned during their entire period of employment with the regional and constituent districts will be assertable in the event of a subsequent reduction in force.

As to benefits and salary guide placement, given that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.4 has been found not to be applicable herein, determination on will turn on N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, which requires that pension, leave and other benefits are to be preserved, and on the protections of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, which will not permit a reduction in salary for tenured staff members. The Commissioner has previously addressed this issue in the matter of Board of Education of the Central Regional High School District v. Board of Education of Lacey Township et al., Ocean County, 1980 S.L.D. 553. Therein, the Commissioner specifically directed that staff transferring to a withdrawing constituent district from a regional district were to be placed on the salary guide of the constituent district at the step and level appropriate for their years of service in the regional district, that their rights of leave and other similar benefits were to be preserved, and that they were to be accorded all other benefits held by employees of the constituent district. In effectuating this transfer, however, the salary of a tenured teaching staff member may not be reduced; rather, in those instances where the appropriate step and placement would result in a reduction in salary, the affected staff member must be retained at the current salary level until such time as that level would be reached through ordinary guide movement, whereupon the staff member would be placed "on guide" and accorded normal movement thereafter.

Accordingly, the Commissioner dissolves the previously granted stay of the staff selection process resulting from the dissolution of the Union County Regional High School District No. 1, and directs that such process now move forward consistent with the parameters set forth above. The Commissioner emphasizes the importance of this movement taking place as quickly and efficiently as possible, so as to permit continuation of the planning and preparation necessary to effectuate the dissolution on the scheduled date.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

This matter was initiated by Jennifer Stagaard, a teacher employed by the Union County Regional High School District No. 1 (hereinafter "regional district"), and the American Federation of Teachers, Local 3417 (hereinafter "AFT"), the collective negotiations representative for teachers employed by the regional district, following approval for the dissolution of the regional school district as provided for by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-51 et seq. Petitioners sought a declaratory judgment from the Commissioner of Education with respect to the employment rights conferred by the education laws on teaching staff members upon dissolution of the regional high school district.

By decision issued on December 6, 1996, the Commissioner rejected the AFT's position that dissolution of the regional school district would result in the creation of new school districts under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 et seq., finding instead that dissolution would result in an expansion of purpose for the six school districts that had been part of the regional district (hereinafter "constituent districts"). The Commissioner further declared that upon dissolution of the regional district, staff members had a statutory right to "continue in the position of teacher, as it would have existed had the regional district not been dissolved." Commissioner's Decision at 5. Distinguishing between a teacher's rights in initial assignment and tenure rights, the Commissioner found that regional district staff members would become employees of the constituent districts upon dissolution of the regional district, with all periods of their employment credited for tenure and seniority purposes as if the entire term of their employment had been in the constituent district.

In establishing the operative date for determining the tenure rights of the regional teachers, the Commissioner analogized the situation to one involving district board action to reduce staff under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. On this basis, the Commissioner declared that the operative date for determining the scope of entitlements for affected staff would be May 14, 1996, the date on which the voters approved dissolution of the regional district. The Commissioner, however, carved out an exception for teachers who would meet the statutory conditions for tenure acquisition after the date of that referendum but prior to July 1, 1997, the date which the Commissioner had determined would be the effective date for dissolution of the regional district as provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-59.

The Commissioner then made the determination that N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 and statutory tenure protections would govern the salary benefits which must be preserved upon transfer of regional staff to the constituent districts. Accordingly, he found that regional district staff members are to be placed on the salary guide of a constituent district at the step and level appropriate for their years of service in the regional district. In that the salary level of tenured staff may not be reduced, such teaching staff

Events relating to implementation of the selection process subsequent to the Commissioner's declaration were not before the Commissioner and are therefore not material to our review of the questions addressed by him. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.9. This matter was initiated by Jennifer Stagaard, a teacher employed by the Union County Regional High School District No. 1 (hereinafter "regional district"), and the American Federation of Teachers, Local 3417 (hereinafter "AFT"), the collective negotiations representative for teachers employed by the regional district, following approval for the dissolution of the regional school district as provided for by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-51 et seq. Petitioners sought a declaratory judgment from the Commissioner of Education with respect to the employment rights conferred by the education laws on teaching staff members upon dissolution of the regional high school district.

By decision issued on December 6, 1996, the Commissioner rejected the AFT's position that dissolution of the regional school district would result in the creation of new school districts under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 et seq. Rather, the Commissioner concluded that because the six school districts that had been part of the regional district (hereinafter "constituent districts") would continue to exist as autonomous entities, although with the expanded purpose of providing programs in grades K-12, they would not constitute new school districts within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 et seq.[1]

The Commissioner further declared that upon dissolution of the regional district, staff members had a statutory right to "continue in the position of teacher, as it would have existed had the regional district not been dissolved." Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 5. Distinguishing between a teacher's rights in initial assignment and tenure rights, the Commissioner found that regional district staff members would become employees of the constituent districts upon dissolution of the regional district, with all periods of their employment credited for tenure and seniority purposes as if the entire term of their employment had been in the constituent district.

The Commissioner, however, found that the operative date for determining the entitlements of regional staff to continued employment under N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 should be May 14, 1996, the date of the voter referendum approving the dissolution, rather than June 30, 1997, the date which he had determined would be the effective date for the dissolution pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-59. In doing so, the Commissioner analogized this situation to one involving district board action to reduce staff under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, to which Francey v. Salem Bd. of Ed., decided by the State Board, August 3, 1994, aff'd, 286 N.J. Super. 354 (App. Div. 1996), would be applicable. Under Francey, the scope of the tenure protection to which a tenured teaching staff member is entitled is determined as of the date on which the district board acts to abolish his or her position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, rather than the date on which the reduction in staff is actually effectuated.

[1] We note that although only four out of the six districts will operate high schools, the other two districts will be responsible for providing a high school education to their students by such means as establishing a sending-receiving relationship.

The Commissioner then made the determination that N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 and statutory tenure protections would govern the salary benefits which must be preserved upon transfer of regional staff to the constituent districts. Accordingly, he found that regional district staff members should be placed on the salary guide of a constituent district at the step and level appropriate for their years of service in the regional district. In that the salary level of tenured staff may not be reduced, such teaching staff members would be held at their current salary level in those instances in which proper guide placement would result in a reduction of salary.

The Commissioner then dissolved the stay he had previously granted and directed that the staff selection process move forward within the parameters of the declaratory judgment.

The AFT appealed and the six constituent districts cross-appealed.

By its appeal, the AFT sought to reverse those aspects of the Commissioner's declaration which: 1) interpreted the right to continued employment conferred by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 so as to limit the entitlement of a teacher employed by the regional district to claim a K-8 position in a constituent district to those situations in which there is not a vacant position at the high school level for which that teacher is certified, 2) held that the constituent school districts will not constitute "new school districts" under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3, and 3) did not delineate the other "similar benefits" to which regional staff would be entitled under N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64.

In their cross-appeals, the constituent districts objected to that portion of the Commissioner's declaration construing N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 as requiring them to place the former staff members of the regional district on the appropriate salary guides of the constituent districts at the step and level appropriate for their years of service in the regional district. The constituent districts also challenged that portion of the Commissioner's ruling that might permit former regional staff members to exercise tenure and seniority rights in the constituent districts in those instances in which there is no vacancy at the high school level for which such staff members are certified.

By decision of February 5, 1997, the State Board granted a motion to intervene which had been made by the counsel for the six education associations in the constituent districts (hereinafter "NEA").

The intervening NEA locals contended that the operative date for establishing the tenure and seniority rights of teachers who had been employed by the regional district should be June 30, 1997, the effective date of the dissolution, rather than May 14, 1996, the date of the voter referendum approving the dissolution. In contrast to the AFT, the NEA locals argued that claims to continued employment under N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 should be restricted initially to the school where the regional staff member's current assignment is located as that school will be constituted in 1997-98. If there is no such position, the staff member could then assert a right to a position at the high school level of the other constituent districts. Tenure and seniority could next be asserted K-8 in the constituent district where such member's current assignment is located, and finally to elementary positions in the other constituent districts.

On June 4, 1997, our Legal Committee issued its report in this matter. That report stressed that the appeal before us was from a declaratory judgment granted by the Commissioner. Because such declaration is intended to afford relief from uncertainty concerning a party's rights, the report also stressed that it could not be used to decide or declare rights upon a state of facts which were future, contingent and uncertain. Cf. N.J. Home Bldrs. Ass'n. v. Civil Rights Div., 81 N.J. Super. 243, 251 (Ch. Div. 1963); Lucky Calendar Co. v. Cohen, 36 N.J. Super. 300, 304 (Law Div. 1955), aff'd, 20 N.J. 451, 454 (1956). Hence, as we concluded in our decision of February 5, 1997, because events relating to implementation of the selection process subsequent to the Commissioner's declaration were not before him, the report did not consider them in reviewing the questions he had addressed. Further, while the supplemental briefs submitted by the parties had eliminated any doubt as to the standing of the employee associations involved here to bring this action and to litigate this matter, the report emphasized that our decision would not preclude subsequent adjudication of individual claims arising from the selection process.

The Legal Committee's report then recommended affirmance of the Commissioner's determinations with certain modifications. However, after the parties filed their exceptions, two opinion letters directed to the Commissioner by the Attorney General's office were brought to our attention. The first had been issued on March 27, 1995. 95-0036. Although that opinion letter was included in the appendix to appellant's brief to the State Board, it had not been part of the record before the Commissioner when he rendered his declaratory judgment. The second was issued on June 18, 1997. 97-0115. Consequently, the Commissioner had not had the benefit of this letter either when he made his determination. In that these opinion letters might have bearing upon the instant appeal, we reviewed them as we considered the Legal Committee's first report in light of the exceptions filed by the parties. Additionally, we closely examined the legislative history with respect to the pertinent statutes in order to assure that we had arrived at a proper understanding of the Legislature's intent in enacting them.

Our review process resulted in revisions to the Legal Committee's initial report. Those revisions were embodied in a second Legal Committee Report, which was then mailed to the parties.

The AFT filed exceptions to the second report, objecting to the extent that the determination recommended therein was based on the opinion letter from the Attorney General's Office dated June 18, 1997. In addition, the AFT continues to argue that, upon dissolution of the regional district, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 confers on the regional employees the right to continue their employment by selecting positions at any grade level in any constituent district on the basis of their tenure status.

We reject those arguments. In so doing, we stress that, while we have reviewed the opinion letters from the Attorney General's Office, our determination in this matter is predicated on the reasons embodied in this decision.

As set forth in our Legal Committee's report, dissolution of a limited purpose regional school district such as that involved here is controlled by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-51 et seq. Under this statutory framework, once the Board of Review has consented to an application for dissolution, see N.J.S.A. 18A:13-56, the county superintendent fixes the date for a special school election at which time the voters of each of the constituent districts decide the question. N.J.S.A. 18A:13-57. If the voters approve the question,

N.J.S.A. 18A:13-59 provides that the dissolution "shall become effective upon a date to be determined by the commissioner of education."

The date which the Commissioner establishes as the effective date for the dissolution pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-59 determines: 1) the date of expiration of the terms of the members of the regional board, N.J.S.A 18A:13-60; 2) the date on which title and control of school grounds, buildings, and furnishings is to change and on which indebtedness is assumed by the constituent districts, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-61.1; 3) the date on which the division of assets and liabilities occurs, N.J.S.A 18A:13-62; and 4) the date on which those assets and liabilities devolve upon the respective constituent district, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-63. The statute is silent, however, as to the controlling date for the allocation of personnel.

The specific statutory provision at issue in this case is N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, which establishes the rights of all employees of a regional district in the case of a withdrawal from or dissolution of a regional district. That statute provides in its entirety that:

> All employees of the regional district shall continue in their respective positions in the withdrawing district, or in each of the constituent districts in the event of a dissolution, and all their rights of tenure, seniority, pension, leave of absence and other similar benefits shall be recognized and preserved and any periods of prior employment in the regional district shall count toward the acquisition of tenure to the same extent as if all such employment had been under the withdrawing district or in any of the constituent districts in the event of a dissolution. In the event of a withdrawal, any tenured employee in a school located in the withdrawing district who desires to remain in the employ of the regional district, and whose seniority under existing tenure laws so permits, may apply for and shall be granted a transfer to a position with the regional district for which he is certified which is vacant, held by a tenured employee with less seniority or by an employee without tenure; applications for such transfers shall be made within 45 days of the date of > the special school election at which the withdrawal was approved.

Review of the legislative history indicates that until 1975, there had been no procedures providing for either withdrawal from or dissolution of a regional district. At that time, the Legislature adopted legislation setting forth the conditions and procedures for a constituent district to withdraw from a limited purpose regional school district. Senate Education Committee Statement to Assembly Bill No. 825 (October 6, 1975). In addition, the legislation provided for the transfer of teachers who preferred to remain in the regional district. Id.

In 1989, Article 13 of Chapter 13, "Regional School Districts," of Title 18A was amended to provide procedures for the withdrawal of a municipality from an all purpose regional district. N.J.S.A. 18A:13-66. Although not directly applicable to the instant case, the Senate Education Committee Statement which accompanied the legislation reflects that this legislative action was intended to provide a procedure "similar to that provided for withdrawal from a limited purpose regional school district" by application of the statutory provisions set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-51 et seq, including N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64. The Statement also indicates that the procedure embodied in those statutory provisions was intended to insure that "all employees [would be] held harmless in the event of withdrawal, and all tenure, seniority, pension and similar rights and benefits [would be] recognized and preserved." Id.

Finally, the Legislature again amended N.J.S.A. 18A:13-51 et seq. in 1993 to establish a procedure for the dissolution of a limited purpose regional school district. The Statement accompanying this legislation reflects that the Legislature intended to establish a procedure which "parallels the procedure provided for the withdrawal of a district from a limited purpose regional district." The Statement further indicates that the legislation was intended to establish "a mechanism for the allocation of debt, property and personnel among the constituent districts" and to insure that "all employees are held harmless in the event of a dissolution and all tenure, seniority, pension and similar rights and benefits are recognized and preserved."

We recognize that construction of a statute is ultimately a judicial, and not an executive, function. Middle Dept. Inspection Agency, Inc. v. New Jersey Dept. of Community Affairs, Div. of Housing and Development, 278 N.J. Super. 573 (App. Div. 1995), certif. denied, 140 N.J. 329 (1995); MCG Associates v. Department of Environmental Protection, 278 N.J. Super. 108 (App. Div. 1994). We further recognize that because administrative agencies such as our own exercise executive power in administering legislative authority which has been selectively delegated by statute, administrative adjudication does not constitute the exercise of judicial authority. City of Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1, 28-30 (1980). However, we are also aware that courts generally accord substantial deference to the interpretation given by an administrative agency to a statute which that agency is charged with enforcing. E.g., GE Solid State, Inc. v. Director, Div. of Taxation, 132 N.J. 298 (1993). Hence, we have been attentive to the judicial principles applicable in this context as well as appreciative of our executive nature and regulatory concerns as we reviewed the declaratory judgment in this case. Hackensack v. Winner, supra at 29-30.

Our duty in construing the statute involved here is to determine and effectuate the intent of the Legislature. E.g., Jacobitti v. Jacobitti, 135 N.J. 571 (1994);

St. James v. Department of Environmental Protection and Energy, 275 N.J. Super. 342 (App. Div. 1994). The principal source of such intent is the legislation itself. Midlantic Nat. Bank v. Peerless Ins. Co., 253 N.J. Super. 137 (App. Div. 1992). However, the policy behind the statute, concepts of reasonableness and the legislative history are also among the sources to be used to determine legislative intent. E.g., Lesniak v. Budzash, 133 N.J. 1 (1993); Coalition of Concerned Nurses v. New Jersey Dept. of Higher Educ., 243 N.J. Super. 65 (App. Div. 1990).

We have therefore reviewed the statute at issue with close and careful consideration of its language, structure, purpose and history, as well as prior decisional law. Fiore v. Consolidated Freightways, 140 N.J. 452 (1995). We remain convinced that the Commissioner properly determined the scope of the employment rights of the employees of the regional school district upon dissolution of that district.

Again, the Commissioner distinguished between the rights attached to initial assignment and subsequent tenure/seniority entitlements. As articulated by the Commissioner:

> Upon dissolution of the regional district, a staff member is entitled to continue in the position of teacher, as it would have existed had the regional district not been dissolved. This does not create an absolute entitlement for a displaced staff member to choose a particular initial assignment, any more than a particular assignment could have been chosen or rejected had employment continued in the regional district and a transfer been lawfully made by the board of education, whether in a subject area within the scope of a staff member's certificate or in building assignment. Once the initial assignment has been made and the statutory right to continued employment thus honored, however, the regional staff member becomes an employee of the constituent district....

Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 5.

This is consistent with the construction of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 set forth in the Commissioner's decision in Board of Education of the Central Regional High School District v. Board of Education of Lacey Township and the Central Regional Education Association (hereinafter "Central Regional"), 1980 S.L.D. 553. Central Regional involved the withdrawal of the Lacey Township Board from the regional high school district. The voters approved the withdrawal on December 14, 1977, to be effective July 1, 1978, and the Lacey Board sought a declaratory judgment from the Commissioner with respect to the rights of the parties.

The withdrawal in that case was to be effectuated when Lacey began to operate its schools in the 1980-81 school year to include grades seven and eight, which students would otherwise have attended Central Regional High School. Then, commencing with 1981-82, Lacey would provide an educational program for all of its students K-12. Central Regional, in turn, had stated its intentions to act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 to reduce its staff by twenty-six teachers in 1980-81 and to reduce its staff again in 1981-82 when Lacey Township opened its high school.

The Administrative Law Judge found that N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 provided equal, if not greater, protection to employees of a withdrawing school district than did numerous other statutes in Title 18A which protected employment rights, especially those of tenured teachers, in a variety of other situations. Stressing that N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 protected the employment rights of all employees, the ALJ found it necessary for Central Regional to establish the "seniority" status for tenured and non-tenured personnel in its employ. Accordingly, the ALJ declared that "those employees of the Central Regional School District, who were employed prior to July 1, 1978 and who [would] be the subject of a reduction in force as the result of the withdrawal of the Lacey Board...shall be granted a transfer to the Lacey Board's Middle School for the 1980-81 school year and to the Lacey Board's Senior High School for the 1981-82 school year." 1980 S.L.D. at 568.

The Commissioner accepted the ALJ's recommendations, but clarified that because the employment entitlements of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 applied to all employees, rather than only to tenured teaching staff members, the "seniority" lists created for purposes of effectuating the transfer were not to remain in force beyond the point at which the transfer of personnel between the two districts had been accomplished.

Although Central Regional involved a withdrawal rather than a dissolution, the legislative intent of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, as previously discussed, is identical in both situations in that the purpose of the statute is to insure that all employees will be held harmless in the event of either a withdrawal or a dissolution. However, in contrast to Central Regional, there is no indication that the regional district in this case has acted to reduce its staff pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. Accordingly, we have not been called upon to resolve any questions relating to such action in the context of this dissolution.

As the Commissioner determined in the case now before us, we find that the right conferred by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 on teachers employed by the regional district prior to July 1, 1997 is initially to continued employment as a teacher in one of the constituent districts. Because the entitlement to continued employment conferred by that statute does not depend on tenure status, regional staff do not have the right under the education law to claim a particular assignment in a constituent district following dissolution, and the prerogative to determine the initial placement of former regional staff members ultimately lies with the constituent districts. Hence, the responsibility for effectuating such initial placements within the parameters of the law also rests with the boards of education of the constituent districts. Central Regional, supra at 572.

As the Commissioner recognized, the selection process in this case could properly be effectuated by allowing employees to select assignments which would be available in the constituent districts on the basis of the employees' relative length of service in the regional district at the point at which the dissolution was approved by the voters. Further, in that selections made on the basis of such comparisons do not implicate statutorily-derived seniority rights, such lists do not constitute determinations of seniority within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 and may not be used for such purposes by any of the constituent districts after the dissolution is effected. Central Regional, supra. At the same time, we stress that the constituent districts must implement their selection process so as to effectuate the employment rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 of all regional staff members employed on the effective date of the dissolution. Central Regional, supra.

Again, in the absence of a reduction in staff under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 by the regional district prior to its dissolution, see Central Regional, supra, the initial assignments of the former regional teaching staff members by the constituent districts do not turn on tenure status or implicate statutory seniority rights. However, as the Commissioner recognized, once a constituent district employs the former staff member by appointing that individual to a position within the scope of his or her certification, the statute requires that it must recognize and preserve all rights of tenure and seniority accrued by that individual by virtue of service with the regional district. This requires that in any subsequent personnel action, each of the constituent districts must credit teaching staff members who were previously employed by the regional district for all of their service to the regional district up to the date upon which the dissolution is effected.

We reiterate that initial appointments in each of the constituent districts made by the district board of those districts must be made in conformance with the parameters of the education law. Hence, we again stress that an individual aggrieved by such appointment may pursue a claim under the education laws by initiating proceedings before the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.

In all other respects and for the reasons expressed in the Commissioner's declaration, we affirm his decision in this matter, including his determination that the constituent districts are required to maintain the salary of tenured staff members when establishing their level of compensation under the salary guides of those districts. In so doing, however, we decline in this context to delineate what, if any, additional benefits former employees of the regional district may be entitled to under the education laws beyond those expressly enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64. See Hyman v. Board of Education of the Township of Teaneck, decided by the State Board, March 6, 1985, aff'd, Docket #A-3508-84T7 (App. Div. 1986), cert. denied, 104 N.J. 469 (1986).

MARY ELLEN DI PILLO,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF RANDOLPH, MORRIS COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, teaching staff member who was restored to her position following tenure proceedings, sought resolution of dispute with Board over the amount of back pay due.

ALJ determined that the matter was not time-barred. ALJ found that the only monetary and/or other benefit deprivation which petitioner should suffer was the sanction of six months' loss of pay imposed by the State Board. Thus, the ALJ ordered the Board 1) to restore to petitioner the increments withheld for the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years, together with post-judgment interest from July 8, 1995; 2) to restore credit for 10 additional sick days per year for the school years 1990-91, 1991-92 and 1992-93; and 3) to restore credit for 3 personal leave days and to direct that 5 personal leave days be credited to the compassionate leave bank.

Commissioner affirmed in part and reversed in part the initial decision. Commissioner concurred that matter was not time-barred. Citing State Board decision in Barshatky, Commissioner found inasmuch as salary increments are a reward for meritorious service, such increments need not have been awarded to petitioner as a suspended employee following certification of tenure charges. In that petitioner did not prevail on the merits of the Board's tenure claims, she possessed no entitlement to be made whole through retroactive restoration of her salary increments and it was unnecessary to consider ALJ's assignment of post-judgment interest. As to sick leave time and personal leave time, the Board was directed to credit petitioner consistent with the terms of her contract.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Pending before me in this matter are cross-motions for summary decision. As the result of the filing and pendency of those motions, a plenary hearing scheduled for October 3 and 4, 1996 was adjourned. The following constitutes my initial decision granting petitioner's motion and denying respondent's cross-motion.

By way of background, this matter commenced with the filing by the petitioner, Mary Ellen DiPillo, of a Verified Complaint contending that the respondent, Randolph Board of Education, improperly had withheld salary and other benefits from her in 1991-92 and 1992-93 during the pendency of a tenure case brought against her by the Board in 1990. Details with respect to the outcome of that earlier case may be found in: (a) the initial decision of the undersigned administrative law judge, dated September 2, 1992; (b) The decision by the Commissioner of Education modifying, in part, my decision with respect to the penalty to be imposed; and (c) the decision by the State Board of Education which further modified the penalty imposed by the Commissioner. See, Randolph Twp. Bd. of Ed. v. DiPillo, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 13, modified by the Commissioner, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 24, modified by the State Board of Education, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 206. The major issue before me in the instant case arises out of certain language contained in the final decision of the State Board of Education; to wit, "Consequently, we increase the penalty in this case to forfeiture of six months' salary, [two more than the Commissioner imposed] as well as the loss of salary increments for 1990-91." Randolph Bd. of Ed. v. DiPillo, supra, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 206, 208. (Emphasis added). According to petitioner, the Board's determination not only to withhold the petitioner's increment for 1990-91, but also its refusal to pay her increments for the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years while she remained suspended with pay was contrary to the State Board decision. Furthermore according to petitioner, if the respondent wished to withhold her increments for those two school years it could have attempted to so but in that event was obliged to follow the procedure set out in N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, which it failed to do.

Petitioner also maintains that in addition to the improper withholding of her 1991-92 and 1992-93 increments, the Board exacerbated her predicament by also failing to credit her with ten sick leave and three personal days for the three school years between 1990-91 and 1992-93. According to petitioner, had she not been suspended during those school years she would not have used any of those sick or personal days. Finally, petitioner maintains that in light of respondent's conduct toward her, any award of back pay and/or other benefits should take into account her entitlement to pre-judgment interest and, in addition, post judgment interest from July 8, 1995, the 61st day following the date of the filing of the State Board decision from which no appeal was taken. See N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16. Petitioner therefore concludes that, taken together, she is entitled to improperly withheld increments in the amount of approximately $26,000, plus interest, together with credit for her ten sick leave and three personal days for each of the school years in question.

The Randolph Board, both in response and in support of its own cross-motion for summary decision, raises a variety of claims. First, it insists that a necessary prerequisite for the award of any increment is meritorious service. Thus, any teaching staff member who, like petitioner, was suspended on charges, should not be rewarded for the period he or she was on suspension and therefore not providing any services. Simply put, the Board maintains that if a teacher, like DiPillo, did not engage in teaching, there was no performance which even could be evaluated and, therefore, no way to determine if she was deserving of an incremental increase. Thus, with regard to DiPillo's claim that she should prevail in light of the fact no formal action pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 was taken with respect to her entitlement to increments for the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years, the Board argues that the statute is irrelevant given the fact that she was not teaching during those school years. Moreover, according to the Board, petitioner was aware that increments were not being awarded to her for the school years in question and her time to challenge that action had long expired by the time she filed the instant petition in July 1995. See N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

Next, with respect to her claim for credit for personal and sick leave days that she did not take during the period of her suspension, the Board maintains that, historically, petitioner always used her full three personal day entitlement and continued that pattern when she returned to work for the 1994-95 school year.[*] So too, with respect to her claim to be credited for ten sick days per year, the Board notes that in light of petitioner's subsequent pregnancy, it is not unreasonable to assume that she likely would have stopped working, at the latest, two weeks before she gave birth. Therefore, the Board argues it may deduct from her entitlement the number of sick days she likely would have utilized had she been employed.

[*]DiPillo was on family leave in 1993-94.

Finally, with respect to her claim for pre-judgment and/or post-judgment interest, the Board maintains that the cited regulation does not apply for the following reasons. First, with respect to pre-judgment interest, there must be a showing of "bad faith" in order to assess that remedy against a public entity and such circumstances do not exist here. With regard to post-judgment interest, the Board argues that the regulation requires there be a final adjudication of the amount to which the person claiming post-judgment interest is entitled, which is the very issue to be adjudicated in this case. Thus, as the Board puts it, the instant case presents a matter of first impression -- whether, as a matter of law, a teacher under suspension with pay is during that period even eligible for employment and adjustment increments and other benefits thereby requiring the Board to invoke the statutorily prescribed procedural steps set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. Since those issues were not addressed in the original proceedings before me, or by the Commissioner or to the State Board, there is no "final adjudication" to which any post-judgment interest can yet attach.

DISCUSSION

The essential facts necessary to a determination in this case are not in dispute. As noted above, petitioner was the subject of tenure proceedings first brought against her by respondent at the end of the 1989-90 school year. In August 1990, the Board formally determined to certify various tenure charges to the Commissioner. When the certification to the Commissioner was made, petitioner was suspended without pay. Following the running of the 120-day period applicable to tenured teaching staff members, her pay was resumed. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.

At the time of her suspension in August 1990, petitioner was on Level 4, Step 9, of the 1989-90 salary guide. During the period of her suspension with pay during part of 1990-91, and all of 1991-92 and 1992-93, while the tenure charges were being heard, decided and appealed, her salary remained the same. As noted, the tenure proceedings ultimately concluded with the May 1995 decision of the State Board of Education which imposed a six-month suspension without pay and loss of the 1990-91 employment and adjustment increments.

In the interim, pending the State Board decision on her appeal, and beginning in the 1993-94 school year, petitioner was reinstated to an active teaching status, and her salary was adjusted to Level 6, Step L. However, as noted, petitioner did not actually commence teaching in September 1993. Rather, she took eight days' paid disability leave, followed by a one-year unpaid child rearing leave. In September 1994 she returned to an active teaching status. In late May 1995, following the State Board decision, petitioner's counsel wrote to the Board's attorney demanding that DiPillo be credited with additional salary, restoration of her increments, and credit for sick leave and personal leave days. As a result of the Board's rejection of that demand, the instant petition was filed.

In my view, resolution of the major legal issue in this case is not a complicated task. Although the tenure proceedings against DiPillo, which began in June 1990 and did not end until May 1995, arose out of the certification of various tenure charges, part and parcel of that litigation was the issue of an appropriate penalty, if any, to be imposed in the event one or more of the charges was found to be true. Thus, I as the administrative law judge who heard the case, then the Commissioner, and then the State Board, in our respective decisions all devoted attention to the penalty issue in light of our findings of misconduct on some of the counts of the tenure certification. Thus, the Board's claim that our determinations as to sanction were merely tangential to the underlying tenure proceedings are not persuasive.

Of course, the final agency arbiter of the penalty to be imposed upon petitioner for charges found to be proved was the State Board of Education. Thus, its May 3, 1995 decision it spoke directly to that subject in clear and unambiguous language -- that the penalty to be imposed upon DiPillo should be increased to a forfeiture of six months rather than four months' salary. This limited modification, of course, left intact the Commissioner's modification of my original initial decision regarding the status of her future increments; namely, that in light of the flagrant nature of the misconduct found to have been proven there was no compulsion placed upon the Board automatically to restore the increments after 1990-91, even in light of DiPillo's additional loss of four months' pay. Thus, the Commissioner's decision as to penalty, and the modification by the State Board, seem to me clearly to have left the parties in a position whereby the usual withholding of increment procedures had to be followed. The Commissioner did not say that the Board should not restore petitioner's increments in subsequent years. To the contrary, he even italicized his reference to the fact that the Board would not be placed under any mandatory requirement that it do so. The result, therefore, of the subsequent language of the State Board seems to me to lead inextricably to the conclusion that while the Board would continue to be free to determine not to restore petitioner's increments at some subsequent date, if it wished not to do so it was obliged to follow the statutory procedure set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. The Board was not free simply to have decided unilaterally to withhold restoration of DiPillo's increments in 1991-92 and 1992-93 and thereby deprive her of the statutory due process opportunity to challenge that withholding in a fair hearing context.

I concede that at first blush the respondent's argument that increments are a reward for meritorious performance and a teacher while suspended, by definition, cannot meet that standard makes sense. However, this argument overlooks the statutory requirement that all boards must follow in connection with withholding actions. For example, even though the Commissioner took pains to point out that the Randolph Board should not be required to restore DiPillo's increments because of the "flagrant" nature of some of the violations committed by her, had she timely been served with notice that her 1991-92 and/or 1992-93 increments were to be withheld she at least would have been afforded the opportunity to hear the Board's position and be able to respond to it. While the ultimate outcome of any such hearing arguably may have been a foregone conclusion, that is speculation. It is not outside the realm of possibility that if given the opportunity for such a hearing, petitioner conceivably could have made a variety of good arguments; e.g., that the sanction of continued increment withholdings during subsequent years was too severe in light of the particular circumstances, or that in light of her financial status, or for any one of a number of other ameliorative reasons which could have been proffered, continued withholding would be too severe. That opportunity is what a hearing is for -- an opportunity DiPillo never had.

Thus, by failing to follow statutorily prescribed procedures for withholding her 1991-92 and 1992-93 increments, the Board deprived a tenured teaching staff member of protections which the Legislature has determined were due her. However sympathetic one may be with the Board's rationale, it cannot override the exercise of legislative judgment in this area. Indeed, the Legislature, if it wished, could have addressed the subject of whether or not a teacher under suspension with pay also should be deprived of his or her increments without following the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. It apparently chose not to do so.

None of the cases relied upon by the Board with respect to this issue convince me to the contrary. While I agree that the holdings in various cases relevant to the issue stress that the withholding of increments is to prevent the unjust reward of teachers who have failed to display the requisite standards of performance, and arguably if one is not performing one cannot meet those standards, that still does not excuse a total disregard of the statutorily prescribed procedures. Nor is there anything in any relevant collective negotiations agreement between the Board and the Randolph Education Association which dictate a contrary decision. While they, too, refer to the fact that increments are not automatic but are based upon satisfactory service, etc., they cannot be relied upon to override the statutory requirements cited above.

Thus, I disagree with the Board's claim that failure to follow the notification and other procedural requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 is irrelevant, or that DiPillo's claim would "elevate form over substance." As noted in the reply memorandum from DiPillo's counsel, the decision in Marshall v. Bd. of Ed. of So. Ocean Cty. Reg., Dist., 1978 S.L.D. 593, does not hold to the contrary. Indeed, as counsel pointed out in that memorandum, Marshall actually involved to a substantial degree the application of the procedures under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, unlike the present case where no official action of any sort was ever taken by the respondent with respect to DiPillo's salary increments for 1991-92 and 1992-93.

Nor, as respondent also claims, is petitioner's right to the restoration of her increments time-barred by virtue of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Indeed, until the decision by the State Board was rendered in May 1995, it was conceivable that the sanction could have been modified so as to avoid the need to challenge any increment withholding for the two school years in question. It was not until late May 1995 that petitioner knew that she now would have to challenge the Board's decision not to restore her increments and her petition, in that light, certainly was timely filed.

Thus, with respect to a calculation of the amount to which petitioner is entitled by virtue of the Board's failure properly to follow statutory procedural requirements in connection with the withholding of her increments, I will adopt the petitioner's mathematical calculations as set forth in her brief in support of the motion for summary decision, as slightly modified. Specifically, that calculation is as follows. For 1991-92, DiPillo should have been placed at Step 10, Level 6 on the 1991 salary guide and received a salary of $42,832. In addition, she was entitled to a $200 longevity payment, making her total compensation $43,032, rather than the $29,215 she was paid.

With respect to the 1992-93 school year, DiPillo should have been placed at Step 11, Level 6, calling for a salary of $46,832. In addition, she should have received a $400 longevity payment. Thus, her total compensation for that school year should have been $47,232 rather than $29,215. The differences for the two school years were $13,817 and $18,017, respectively, or a total of $31,834. Then, to be "credited" back to the Board against this amount is the additional two months' suspension without pay added by the State Board, or a total of $5,803. Although the balance following that deduction is $26,031, the petitioner's supplemental memorandum of August 16, 1996 demands payment in the amount of $25,991, plus interest. I will accept that latter figure for purposes of this decision.

Insofar as pre-judgment interest is concerned, the level of "bad faith" which must be shown in order to justify that severe sanction against a public entity has not even been approached in this case. The Board, I believe, has taken its position in this case in perfect good faith and with a sincere conviction that petitioner would have been unjustly enriched. While I have determined, as a matter of law, that the Board was mistaken, that does not convert its stance to one of bad faith. Thus, pre-judgment interest is denied.

With respect to post-judgment interest, the final adjudication from which post-judgment interest would have to be assessed did not come into being until May 8, 1995, the date the State Board decision was filed. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c)2 and (d)2, post-judgment interest therefore shall be awarded as of and in accordance with the prevailing rate of interest established by the Court Rules on July 8, 1995.

With regard to petitioner's claim that she also is entitled to credit for unused annual personal days and/or sick leave days during the period of her suspension, I agree they should be credited to her. The Board's claim that, historically, petitioner used those days, while perhaps factually accurate, is purely speculative insofar as whether she would have continued to use them during the subsequent school years. In this respect, I return, again, to the State Board decision which imposed a sanction of six months rather than four months' loss of pay. That is the only monetary and/or other benefit deprivation which petitioner should suffer. Thus, for each of the school years in question, petitioner's sick bank should be credited ten days. For each of the school years in question she also should be credited with three personal days. However since personal days are not cumulative (like sick days are), the maximum allowable credit to petitioner would only be three days and under the collective negotiations agreement unused personal days may be applied to a compassionate leave bank to a maximum of five days. Thus, five of the six days which petitioner lost should be credited to that compassionate leave bank.

Accordingly, by way of recap, I have determined to grant DiPillo's motion for summary decision, except for pre-judgment interest, and to deny the Randolph Board's cross-motion and to ORDER that the respondent:

(a) Restore to petitioner withheld increments for 1991-92 and 1992-93 in the net amount of $25,991.00, together with post-judgment interest from July 8, 1995, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c)2 and (d)2;

(b) Restore to petitioner credit for ten (10) additional sick days per year for the school years 1990-91, 1991-92 and 1992-93; and

(c) Restore to petitioner credit for three (3) personal leave days and to direct that five (5) personal leave days be credited to the compassionate leave bank.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

MARY ELLEN DI PILLO,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and petitioner's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board initially excepts to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) erroneous application of the requirements set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 to conclude that petitioner was entitled to a retroactive award of salary increments. In this regard, the Board maintains that salary increments are in the nature of a reward for meritorious service and that petitioner was neither entitled to, nor eligible for, said increments for the years in which she did not work. (Board's Exceptions at p. 6) The Board insists that the ALJ's ruling is erroneous in three respects

> [F]irst, the lack of formal notification is irrelevant given [petitioner's] lack of eligibility for the increments; second, the ALJ elevated form over substance, a result the Commissioner has eschewed in the past; and third, the ALJ erroneously believed that petitioner had a right to a hearing before the Board and speculated > that, had petitioner received notice of a proposed increment withholding, she would have been able to convince the Board to award her an increment even though she was on suspension while the Board was pursuing proceedings to fire her. (Id. at p. 8)

The Board argues that it contradicts common sense that it would actively seek to remove one of its employees and, yet, award that employee a salary increment which is conditioned upon a successful year of teaching. (Id. at pp. 9, 10) Citing In re Tenure Hearing of Anthony Castaldo, Union County Reg. H.S. No. 1, Union County, 1986 S.L.D. 3026, the Board contends that it was entitled to maintain petitioner at the status quo pending the tenure proceedings without taking formal action. (Id. at p. 10) Moreover, the Board warrants that neither the Commissioner's decision nor the State Board's decision on the tenure proceedings dealt with whether petitioner was eligible for, or was entitled to, increments for the 1991-92 or the 1992-93 school year. Thus, the ALJ erroneously concluded that these prior decisions compelled him to award retroactive salary increments to petitioner. The Board concludes,

> To the extent, if any, that petitioner may have had any claim to restoration of the 1991-92 and 1992-93 increments upon her reinstatement, she was made whole when she was placed at Level 6, Step L upon her return to active service in 1994-95, the level where she would have been had she never been suspended and had she received increments all along except for 1990-91. Nothing in the Commissioner's or the State Board's decisions in the tenure proceedings remotely suggests that petitioner also was to receive the 1991-92 and 1992-93 increments on a retroactive basis. She is entitled to nothing more. (Id. at pp. 13, 14)

In reply, petitioner argues that, notwithstanding that upon her return to work in 1994, the Board placed her at the step on the salary guide which she would have attained had her increments been timely granted for 1991-92 and 1992-93, she is still entitled to be "made whole" for that period of time during her suspension in which her salary remained static. (Petitioner's Reply at p. 2) While petitioner recognizes that the Board was authorized, pursuant to Castaldo, supra, to withhold her increments during her suspension, she asserts that, upon issuance of the State Board's decision in May 1995, she was entitled to be made whole. Nor does petitioner find statutory support for the Board's implication that she is not entitled to retroactive restoration of increments unless she prevailed in the tenure proceedings. (Id. at footnote 1)

The Board next argues that petitioner's claims for the withheld salary increments are barred by the 90-day limitation period, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Here, the Board maintains that the ALJ should have concluded that petitioner's claim accrued when she learned that she did not receive the increments, which was upon receipt of her first paycheck in the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years. (Board's Exceptions at p. 17) The Board reasons that, notwithstanding that the ultimate decision in the tenure proceedings might have superseded or extinguished petitioner's claim, said claim nonetheless accrued according to the Board's timeline. (Id.)

In reply, petitioner maintains that her claims for restoration of increments did not arise until after the State Board issued its decision in May 1995. That is, petitioner argues that although she received her paychecks, absent increments, in the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years, she was still on suspension. Petitioner avers that "[she] had no way of knowing that respondent would refuse to pay her 1991-92 and 1992-93 salary increments until June of 1995, when the Board refused to pay what [she] believed was due her in accordance with the State Board decision." (Petitioner's Reply at p. 4)

With respect to the award of personal time, the Board again asserts that petitioner's pattern of using personal days in prior school years, as well as in the 1994-95 school year, demonstrates that she would have used all three of her personal days each year and would not have accrued unused days to the bank. (Board's Exceptions at p. 19) As for sick time, the Board notes that each employee, by contract, is entitled to 10 sick leave days each school year. (Id.) However, the Board points to petitioner's supplemental answers to interrogatories wherein she indicated that she gave birth to her first child on October 4, 1990, while on suspension, and she would not have been available to return to work until October 30, 1990. (Id. at p. 20) Thus, the Board reasons that, assuming petitioner was capable of working up to and including October 3, 1990, it is entitled to deduct the 18 days which petitioner admittedly was unable to work and which would have been charged to her sick bank had petitioner not been on suspension. The Board further finds it doubtful that petitioner would have worked up until the day before delivery, and posits, therefore, that petitioner would reasonably have stopped working two weeks before delivery of her child. The Board, thus, concludes that it should rightfully deduct 28 days from any sick leave which may be credited to petitioner.[1] (Id.)

Petitioner counters that the Board's speculation as to the sick leave or personal time she might have taken is irrelevant. (Petitioner's Reply at p. 6) Moreover, petitioner contends that the Board's argument regarding the sick leave time which the Board posits she would have taken for the birth of her first child is without merit, since she was suspended without pay from August 7, 1990 until December 6, 1990. Thus, petitioner reasons that the Board cannot charge her for paid sick days "when she received no pay during the time she was unable to work." (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 6)

[1] The record shows that, as of June 30, 1990, petitioner had 39.5 days in her sick bank. She received another 10 days at the beginning of the 1993-94 school year. (Brief in Support of Motion for Summary Decision on Behalf of Respondent, Randolph Township Board of Education, Exhibit E, Letter dated May 30, 1995 from petitioner's counsel to Board at p. 2)

The Board next contends that the ALJ erroneously awarded petitioner interest from July 8, 1995, essentially amounting to pre-judgment interest, rather than post-judgment interest, absent a finding of bad faith. (Board's Exceptions at p. 20) As per N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c)(2), post-judgment interest, the Board instructs, "shall be awarded when the respondent is determined through adjudication to be responsible for a payment, the precise amount of which was established or could have been established, and has failed to satisfy its obligation." (emphasis in text) (Id. at pp. 20, 21) Thus, the Board concludes that the ALJ's finding that post-judgment interest should run from the date of the judgment in another proceeding, rather than the date of the initial decision in this matter, is erroneous. (Id. at p. 21)

Petitioner reasons that the ALJ's assignment of post-judgment interest was appropriate since it is from the May 8, 1995 filing date of the State Board's decision that the Board knew how much it owed to petitioner. (Petitioner's Reply at p. 8)

Finally, the Board affirms that the ALJ should have permitted it to amend its answer so as to assert a separate recoupment defense and counterclaim. The Board's recoupment defense and counterclaim were based on the fact that while petitioner was on suspension, she gave birth to her first child. The Board asserts that, based upon petitioner's actions following the birth of her second child, she would have taken an unpaid child-rearing leave following the birth of her first child. Yet, she was being paid while on suspension. Thus, the Board maintains that petitioner received a windfall. By interlocutory order, the ALJ denied the Board's motion on the grounds that the issues raised by the Board should have been raised in the initial proceedings, as compelled by the Entire Controversy Doctrine. However, the Board notes that the present controversy was not a component of the tenure action and was not necessary to its resolution.

The recoupment defense and counterclaim, the Board avers, relate to the instant matter, and not to the tenure dismissal issue. (Board's Exceptions at p. 22) In any event, the Board also recognizes that, "[t]o the extent proven, the recoupment defense would offset petitioner's recovery but would not entitle the Board to recover monies over and above any recovery by petitioner." (Id. at p. 24) Thus, the Board concludes that the ALJ abused his discretion by denying the Board leave to amend. The Board urges the Commissioner to reject the initial decision of the ALJ and to dismiss the petition.

In reply, petitioner warrants that "[t]he ALJ's decision regarding the assertion of a separate recoupment defense and counterclaim are now the law of the case and may not be reversed at this level." (Petitioner's Reply at p. 9) In opposition to the Board's attempt to assert such claims, petitioner essentially argues that the claims are barred by the Entire Controversy Doctrine and should have been raised in the prior action to terminate her employment. (Petitioner's Reply at Exhibit G, Petitioner's Brief in Opposition to Respondent's Motion, at pp. 1-5) Petitioner also argues that the Board's proposed counterclaim is based upon incorrect information and mere speculation, that is, the Board had no reason to believe that petitioner was disabled due to the pregnancy of her first child at any time that she was on the payroll. (Id. at Exhibit G, at p. 6) Moreover, the Board merely speculates that because petitioner took a one-year child-rearing leave after the birth of her second child, she would have done so after the birth of her first child. (Id. at Exhibit G, at p. 7) Finally, petitioner asserts that the Board "undoubtedly would have insisted on hearing dates to explore this speculative counterclaim . This additional drain on the judicial system  is exactly the sort of abuse the Entire Controversy Doctrine was designed to prohibit." (Petitioner's Reply at p. 10) Petitioner, therefore, urges the Commissioner to affirm the initial decision.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner determines to affirm in part, and reverse in part, the initial decision of the ALJ. Initially, the Commissioner finds that the within matter is not time-barred, for the reasons set forth by the ALJ in the initial decision. With respect to salary increments withheld during the period of time in which petitioner was suspended pending a determination on the tenure charges, the Commissioner agrees with the Board that, inasmuch as salary increments are a reward for meritorious service, such increments need not have been awarded to petitioner as a suspended employee following certification of tenure charges by the Board. This principle was recently affirmed by the State Board of Education in a consolidated tenure proceeding and challenge to the employing board's withholding of the tenured employee's salary increments. The State Board noted,

> We stress that respondent had no entitlement to receive a salary amount that included an award of increments during his suspension following the Board's certification of tenure charges in August 1992. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Anthony Castaldo, decided by the State Board, 1986 S.L.D. 3026. In requiring resumption of an employee's full salary 120 days after certification of tenure charges, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 does not provide for automatic raises from year to year while the litigation is in progress. "In that increments are intended to reward only those who have contributed to the educational process, Bd. of Education of Bernards Tp. v. Bernards Tp. Ed. Assn., 79 N.J. 311, 321 (1979), the mandate of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 cannot be construed as conferring an entitlement to automatic raises during suspension." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of John Eberly, decided by the State Board, 1988 S.L.D. 2441, 2445. (In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Jerry Barshatky, School District of the Freehold Regional High School District and Jerry Barshatky v. Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District, Monmouth County, decided by the State Board May 1, 1996, Slip Opinion at p. 4)

In that petitioner did not prevail on the merits of the Board's tenure claims, she possesses no entitlement to be made whole through the retroactive restoration of her salary increments for the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years. Barshatky, supra, at p. 7. Further, inasmuch as there is no monetary recovery for petitioner herein, the Commissioner finds it unnecessary to reach to the Board's arguments regarding the ALJ's assignment of post-judgment interest, or to the ALJ's refusal to grant the Board leave to amend its answer to assert a counterclaim and recoupment defense argument as an offset mechanism.[2]

As for petitioner's sick time withheld by the Board for the 1990-91, 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years, the Commissioner finds that both the terms of her contract (Board's Exceptions at p. 19) and the language set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 et seq. establish an entitlement to 10 sick leave days per year. However, inasmuch as N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 appears to contemplate that the employee will be on pay status at the time of eligibility to accrue sick leave,[3] it was not improper for the Board to stay the accrual of petitioner's sick leave during the period of time when she was suspended without pay. Nor should petitioner be entitled, for this period of time, to any retroactive credit of sick leave time, since she did not prevail on the merits of the tenure claim. Barshatky, supra, at p. 7. Consequently, the Commissioner finds that the Board must credit petitioner's sick leave bank with 10 sick days for the 1991-92 school year, and 10 sick days for the 1992-93 school year. Further, the Board is directed to prorate petitioner's

[2] It is noted herein that, contrary to petitioner's assertion, "all judges' orders are reviewable by any agency head in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10 or when rendering a final decision under N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6." (emphasis added) (N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.9(b))

[3] The statute reads, in pertinent part, "All persons holding any office, position or employment in all local school districts  who are steadily employed by the board of education or who are protected by tenure in their office, position, or employment under the provisions of this or any other law,  shall be allowed sick leave with full pay for a minimum of 10 school days in any school year." (emphasis added) (N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2)

sick leave entitlement for the 1990-91 school year in accordance with the period of time in which petitioner was on pay status.[4]

Similarly, in accordance with petitioner's contractual entitlement, the Board is directed to credit petitioner with personal leave, consistent with the terms of her contract, for the 1991-92 school year and the 1992-93 school year. For the 1990-91 school year, petitioner's personal leave is to be prorated consistent with the ultimate restoration of her pay status, as noted above. In this regard, the Commissioner rejects as speculative the Board's contention that petitioner historically used all of her personal days each year and, therefore, had she been working during the years of her suspension, she would have had no personal days to bank.[5]

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is modified as set forth above. Petitioner's claim for retroactive restoration of her 1991-92 and 1992-93 increments is dismissed, and the Board is directed to credit petitioner with sick leave time and personal leave time in accordance with the parameters set forth herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

December 12, 1996
Date of Mailing, December 12, 1996

[4] Notwithstanding that the Board resumed petitioner's pay status as of December 6, 1990, in accordance with the State Board's decision, petitioner was directed to forfeit an additional two months' salary. Accordingly, she is deemed to have been removed from pay status for six months. Further since petitioner is receiving no credit for sick leave during this unpaid period of time, the Commissioner finds it is unnecessary to reach to the Board's argument regarding the sick leave which petitioner would have taken at the time of the birth of her first child on October 4, 1990.

[5] Although the Commissioner recognizes that petitioner's accrual of personal leave time is governed strictly by the terms of her bargaining agreement, in that such emolument is closely tied to petitioner's claims for restoration of her salary increments and her sick leave time, and the overriding issue in the instant matter is one of "statutory interpretation or educational policy" as to the effect of tenure proceedings, the Commissioner finds his intervention is not improper. MARY ELLEN DI PILLO,

PETITIONER-APPELLANT,

V.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF RANDOLPH, MORRIS COUNTY, RESPONDENT-CROSS/APPELLANT.

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 12, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Bucceri & Pincus (Sheldon H. Pincus , Esq. and Mary J. Hammer, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Cross/Appellant, Vogel, Chait, Schwartz & Collins (Aron M. Schwartz, Esq., of Counsel)

In August 1990, the Board of Education of the Township of Randolph (hereinafter "Board") certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against Mary Ellen DiPillo (hereinafter "petitioner"). Following a hearing, the Commissioner of Education adopted the finding of the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") that petitioner had exposed a fourth-grade student to humiliation by directing him to get down on his knees in front of his schoolmates to ask for the return of a textbook he had left in another classroom. The Commissioner determined the appropriate penalty for such conduct to be the loss of 120 days' salary and forfeiture of petitioner's salary increments for the 1990-91 school year.

On appeal, we found that the Board had also demonstrated a charge of corporal punishment against petitioner. That charge involved an incident in which petitioner had caused a nine-year-old student to hit the back of his head against a wall when she forcibly lifted his chin in order to get him to look at her. Stressing the gravity of the offense, we modified the penalty imposed by the Commissioner, directing that petitioner forfeit six months' salary, as well as her salary increments for the 1990-91 school year.

In July 1995, petitioner filed the instant petition with the Commissioner, alleging that the Board had improperly withheld her salary increments and other benefits for the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years, during the pendency of those tenure charges.

On October 25, 1996, an ALJ recommended granting petitioner's motion for summary decision and directing the Board to restore petitioner's increments for 1991-92 and 1992-93, along with post-judgment interest. The ALJ also recommended crediting petitioner with sick and personal leave days for those years.

On December 12, 1996, the Commissioner accepted in part and rejected in part the ALJ's decision. Citing In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Jerry Barshatky, decided by the State Board of Education, May 1, 1996, the Commissioner stressed that petitioner had no entitlement to an award of increments during her suspension following the certification of the tenure charges. The Commissioner noted that since petitioner had not prevailed on the merits of those charges, she had no entitlement to be made whole through retroactive restoration of salary increments. The Commissioner agreed with the ALJ, however, that petitioner was entitled to sick leave and personal leave time for 1991-92 and 1992-93.

Petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board.

After a careful review of the record, we affirm the decision of the Commissioner with the following clarification.

We reject petitioner's contention that her salary increments for the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years are required to be restored since our decision of May 3, 1995 did not direct the withholding of those increments. As pointed out by the Commissioner, a tenured teaching staff member has no entitlement to salary increments during his or her suspension while tenure proceedings are pending. Barshatky, supra. Nor is a district board required to take formal action to withhold increments during such period. Id. In this case, the Board's failure to provide petitioner with increments in 1991-92 and 1992-93 was not before us in the tenure case, and our decision on those charges did not address that issue, determine petitioner's entitlement to increments, or direct restoration of those increments. Moreover, since petitioner did not prevail on the merits of the tenure charges, she has no entitlement to such relief as is necessary to make her whole, including back pay for the period of her initial suspension and retroactive restoration of her increments.

Accordingly, with the above clarification, we affirm the decision of the Commissioner.

Petitioner parent challenged Board's residency determination that his son was a nonresident of the District and, thus, not entitled to a free public education.

ALJ determined that petitioner did not prove by a preponderance of credible evidence that his son was a domiciliary of Paramus during the 1994-95 school year and, thus, tuition moneys were owed to the Board for the period of A.A.'s ineligible attendance. Moreover, the ALJ concluded that due to the fact that A.A. graduated from the school system, no continuing problem existed as to the appropriate school district based upon domicile and reimbursement was the only question which had to be answered for the period of ineligibility.

Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ in the initial decision. Commissioner found petitioner did not satisfy requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Petitioner was directed to remit to the Board $9,986, less any tuition collected for the 1994-95 school year. Petition was dismissed.

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises out of a petition of appeal contesting the determination of the Paramus Board of Education (Board) with respect to petitioner's minor son. This petition was filed on June 2, 1995 with the Department of Education and an answer and counterclaim requesting reimbursement for tuition expenses was filed with the Department of Education on June 20, 1995.

On June 29, 1995 the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held in the matter on November 30, 1995 at which time the petitioner was represented by counsel.

A motion for summary decision was filed by the respondent Board requesting judgment in its favor on its counterclaim and dismissing petitioner's appeal in its entirety. This was filed on October 13, 1995. Certification of service was also filed with this motion. No response was received by petitioner's attorney within the time frame set forth in N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.3 however, upon discussion of the matter at the in-person prehearing on November 30, 1995 it was determined that, in the interest of justice, petitioner would be allowed until December 6, 1995 to file appropriate responding papers should petitioner wish to do so.

The motion for summary decision was denied on the basis that the material facts in this case were in dispute and therefore summary decision could not be rendered.

The hearing was scheduled for April 29, 1996. On April 25, 1996 the petitioner made an appearance at the OAL and advised the guard located at the front desk of a death in the family and requested an adjournment of this matter from the April 29, 1996 date. At that time he also advised the staff of the OAL that Kenneth J. Hall, Esq., who had previously been representing him, was no longer was his attorney. That same date a letter was sent both by fax and regular mail to Kenneth J. Hall, Esq., indicating the circumstance and that, unless a substitution of attorney were filed, his appearance would be expected on April 29, 1996 in order to place his position or any request on the record. The letter specifically indicated that the matter was not adjourned and that all parties were required to be present absent proper steps being taken to secure an adjournment. A copy of this letter was also sent to the petitioner.

On April 29, 1996 Kenneth J. Hall, Esq., appeared in the place of petitioner and counsel for the Board also appeared. At that time little information was available and no affidavit or letter had been produced by or on behalf of petitioner. Based upon the representations by Mr. Hall and in the interest of justice an adjournment was granted and the matter was set down for September 3, 1996.

A letter was subsequently received and dated May 1, 1996 from petitioner indicating the reasons for his failure to appear at the April 29, 1996 hearing date. From that point in time until August 27, 1996 no contact was made by petitioner with the staff of the undersigned regarding representation or how this matter would proceed. As a result, on August 27, 1996 a conference call was held between the undersigned, Kenneth Hall, Esq., representing the petitioner, and Peter Schultz, Esq., representing the respondent-counterclaimant Board of Education. At that time it was determined that the hearing scheduled for September 3, 1996 would proceed as scheduled and that no further adjournments would be granted. Additionally, insofar as formal application for substitution of attorney on behalf of petitioner had yet to be submitted, notwithstanding a period of four months from the most recent scheduled hearing date within which to do so, as well as correspondence from the OAL, Mr. Hall would remain as counsel for the petitioner and appear in that capacity on the September 3, 1996 hearing date unless formal substitution papers were submitted to the undersigned and opposing counsel before the hearing date. It was further ordered that even if formal substitution was properly filed prior to the hearing date the matter would not be adjourned having had sufficient time to have this accomplished. Lastly, it was determined that should the petitioner fail to appear on September 3, 1996 he would be deemed to have abandoned any claims that he might otherwise have in this matter and the undersigned would then consider all papers filed by the respondent-counterclaimant in support of its counterclaim. These terms were memorialized by letter to all parties.

On September 3, 1996 both counsel for the Board as well as Kenneth Hall, Esq., were present however petitioner was not. At 9:20 a.m. petitioner called the undersigned's chambers and indicated he would be approximately one-half hour late. At approximately 10:45 a.m. petitioner finally appeared for this hearing. Upon arrival petitioner stated that he wished to represent himself pro se and Kenneth Hall Esq. was released. On that date testimony was taken and the hearing record closed.

*The time the Initial Decision in this matter would have been due was October 18, 1996 however an Order of extension was granted and entered for good cause due to the undersigned's heavy caseload. This extended the time to file the Initial Decision until December 2, 1996.

ISSUE

The issue in this case is whether or not, petitioner was a domiciliary of the Borough of Paramus during the 1994-1995 school year.

If it is determined that he was not so domiciled then the issue of assessed tuition brought by respondent's counterclaim would be addressed.

BURDEN OF PROOF

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 a Board's decision denying a free public education within the district may be appealed to the Commissioner of Education. The challenging party shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. No child shall be denied admission during the pendency of such proceedings before the Commissioner and in the event the child is currently enrolled in the district, the student shall not be removed from school during the pendency of the proceedings. If however, in the judgment of the Commissioner, the evidence does not support the claim of the resident, he shall assess the resident tuition for the student prorated to the time the student's ineligible attendance in the school district.

As a result of the current law cited above the burden rests on the petitioner by a preponderance of the evidence to show that domicile did in fact exist in the district in which the child attended school.

TESTIMONY

The petitioner, Syed Ahmed, testified that he had been living in Paramus. He states that his sister moved to Ridgewood and has been living there between 1994 and the time of the hearing. He testified that he is single and was working with Burger King in the state of Connecticut. His belongings were with a cousin in Paramus and his son was living with his sister in Ridgewood.

Petitioner explained that he spent approximately 90 percent of his time in Connecticut for work purposes and approximately 10 percent in the state of New Jersey. Approximately four to five months prior to the hearing his work changed and he is now working in New Jersey in the town of Fair Lawn.

The petitioner acknowledges that his son was living in Ridgewood during the 1994-95 school year in question but stated that he, as the father, had an apartment rented in Paramus with his cousin, the cousin's wife her mother who lived at the Paramus address.

On cross-examination he stated that he had been staying in a hotel in Connecticut. He also confirmed that he slept there sometimes five or ten days in a row. It was in the end of 1995 that he returned to the state of New Jersey. He stated that he paid rent to a Mr. Sheik who is his cousin and that rental payments were made in cash. He had no receipts. At the time he was making approximately $30,000 per month and he was paying $350 per month for an apartment with the cousin, wife and her mother living there.

Petitioner's son is presently attending school in Yale. He testified that he had never reviewed the documents his son submitted for application to colleges but that his brother did. The petitioner was shown R-1EV. which he confirmed was sent to Yale University and is entitled "Additional statement by the custodial parent." This was signed by the petitioner. At this time petitioner acknowledged that he had participated in the process and had signed the letter. Petitioner also recognized the application for undergraduate admission filled out by his son and submitted to different schools.(R-2)

In the additional statement by the custodial parent which was sent to Yale University and signed by petitioner it states the following regarding his sister living in Ridgewood in the second paragraph: "Both A. and I have been living in her household for a number of years, and all our financial needs have been met by her, by way of a private loan." The application submitted by petitioner's son also lists the addresses of the various parties. The address listed for petitioner's son as his permanent home address is that of petitioner's sister in Ridgewood. On the second page of the exhibit petitioner confirmed that the application states under father's full name a line which is entitled "home address if different from yours". The response was "currently the same address" referring back to the Ridgewood address.

Additionally, although petitioner stated that he had been living with his sister for four or five years previous to her move to Ridgewood he never obtained a New Jersey driver's license but always retained a New York driver's license where he states he was not a resident. He owned a white Toyota Tercel but traveled by train to Connecticut. Petitioner testified that the car was always garaged at the Paramus address and that nobody else drove this vehicle.

Petitioner also testified that while living in Connecticut he stayed at the Paramount Hotel and he gave the hotel his home address as being the address in Ridgewood.

That concluded all testimony on behalf of petitioner.

Respondent produced the testimony of Jerome Bohnert who is a school business administrator and secretary to the Board of Education. He is involved in support activities as well as residency problems which are referred for verification. He stated that he had received several inquiries regarding petitioner and his address. Petitioner's son was a senior who graduated at the end of the 1994-95 school year. The tuition for that school year was $9,986.

According to this witness it was the position of Paramus that petitioner was either a resident and domiciliary of Connecticut or Ridgewood but not of Paramus where his son attended school. In March 1994 tuition was assessed and petitioner's brother paid for approximately one month of tuition. At that time Mr. Asad came back with a bank statement and the school district "gave him the benefit of the doubt."

Subsequently they received information that petitioner's son was in the process of filling forms and that his aunt in Ridgewood was in fact paying the fees. When they received the applications which were to go out at the end of the school year they saw the amount paid and that both petitioner and his son were, according to the application, living with and dependent upon petitioner's sister in Ridgewood for support.

According to the witness petitioner's son had told a guidance counselor that if he moved to Ridgewood, although an excellent student, his class rank would go down slightly.

The witness confirmed that although phone calls were received that petitioner was not domiciled in Paramus that merely started the investigation. Several investigations were conducted which included two locations in Paramus as well as the Ridgewood location.

The next witness who testified for the school board was Ben Campagnone. Detective Lieutenant Campagnone is employed by the Paramus police department and is in charge of the juvenile bureau. He is also employed by the board of education as the attendance officer. In that capacity he deals with truancy and residency/domiciliary questions. The witness testified that he has been doing investigative work for approximately 33 years for the police department.

Campagnone was advised by the board of education that there was a question regarding residency and as a result he went to the house given by petitioner as the location of his domicile in Paramus. Lieutenant Campagnone went approximately 25 times, sometimes early in the morning, and sometimes very late such as 1:00 a.m. On one occasion he rang the doorbell and spoke with a teenage girl in the home. She stated that she was the homeowner's niece. At first when asked if the petitioner was there she did not respond. Finally she stated that she was unable to say when he would return and was also unable to say when he had left.

Lieutenant Campagnone also testified that on his trips to the house which petitioner states he had been renting room in, he looked in the garage a number of occasions. At no time did he ever see a white car at the location.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having heard the testimony of the witnesses, and having assessed their credibility as well as having reviewed the documentary evidence I FIND the following to be fact:

1. During the 1994-95 school year petitioners son lived with his aunt in Ridgewood.

2. During the same period of time petitioner lived out of state approximately 90% of the time.

3. Although petitioner claims his actual domicile was in Paramus insufficient credible evidence was presented to support this.

4. No rent receipts were provided at the hearing, nor was testimony of any individual other than petitioner offered.

5. Surveillance visits were conducted and at no time was petitioner ever located at the address in Paramus which he had provided.

6. Petitioner testified that at all times pertinent to this cases he owned a white Toyota vehicle that was always garaged at the Paramus address and never moved, nor did anyone else use the vehicle. Surveillance showed that at none of Det. Lt. Campagnone's visits was the car garaged as claimed by petitioner in his testimony. Det Lt. Campagnone's testimony was clear concise and credible.

7. Petitioner's son filled out college applications stating that his father lived in Ridgewood with him at his aunt's house.

8. Petitioner also filed a letter as a statement of the custodial parent in which he stated that they had been living with and dependent on his sister who resided in Ridgewood.

9. Tuition for the 1994-95 school year for petitioner's son was $9,986.

10. Petitioner has failed to show that he was in fact domiciled in Paramus during 1994-95.

11. Petitioner shall be assessed $9,986 in tuition costs less any payments already credited on the counterclaim which has been proven by respondent.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, public schools shall be free to persons over five and under twenty years of age who are domiciled within the school district. While there are certain exceptions this case is not a case of exceptions but instead a case of questioned domicile. It is the position of petitioner that he was, at all times pertinent to this case, domiciled in the district of Paramus.

The burden of proving that petitioner is domiciled within the school district of Paramus falls squarely upon petitioner. It is petitioner's burden to show that he was domiciled in Paramus and that his son was appropriately attending school there.

The proof in this case by petitioner falls well short of meeting the burden. Petitioner stated he was, during the majority of the time of the 1994-95 school year, working in Connecticut and spending approximately ten percent of his time in New Jersey. He stated that his domicile was in Paramus and that he paid rent in cash to a cousin. No other individual was called to testify that he had any link with that location in Paramus. No other witness, relative, neighbor, nor were any rent receipts produced. In fact, no record of any transaction was produced for the benefit of the undersigned.

The records that were persuasive in this case went to the school board's rebuttal of petitioner's sworn testimony. In petitioner's son's application for college it states clearly that petitioner was living at the pertinent time with his sister in Ridgewood. No mention is made in the application of any address in Paramus. While that alone might not be dispositive, other factors shown by the school board clearly and convincingly rebutted the testimony of petitioner.

The trips by Lieutenant Campagnone approximately 25 times to the address given by petitioner are perhaps most illustrative. Upon knocking at the door on one occasion he was told by the homeowner's daughter that she did not know when petitioner had left nor when he would return. The most telling portion of Lieutenant Campagnone's testimony was that on a number of occasions he checked the garage to see if the car registered to petitioner was located there as Ahmed had insisted it was while testifying. In each instance Lieutenant Campagnone found no car.

Based upon the credibility of the witnesses and the burdens assessed in this case it is clear that petitioner has not met the burden of proving that he was domiciled in Paramus during the pertinent period of time. As a result the next question presented is that of tuition reimbursement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 10:38-1 which permits the assessing of a parent or guardian tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district.

In this case the tuition for the 1994-95 school year was $9,986. There was however testimony that one month's tuition was paid to the district. It is unclear whether or not, upon receipt of the information at that time whether the money either was retained by the district or was returned to petitioner. As a result the appropriate award on the counterclaim is tuition reimbursement in the amount of $9,986 for the 1994-95 school year. It should be noted that if the one month's tuition that was paid was in fact retained by the school district that amount shall be credited as an offset against the total award.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the foregoing I hereby CONCLUDE that petitioner has not met the burden of proof applicable here, that of a preponderance of the credible evidence, that he was domiciled in the city of Paramus during the 1994-95 school year. I further CONCLUDE that the Paramus Board of Education is entitled to reimbursement of tuition costs in the amount of $9,986 less credit for any tuition which may have been paid during that school year. I further CONCLUDE that, due to the fact that petitioner's son has graduated from the school system no continuing problem as to the appropriate school district based upon domicile exists at this time and reimbursement is the only question which has been answered for the period of ineligibility.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's claim be and hereby is DISMISSED. It is further ORDERED that respondent's counterclaim for tuition reimbursement be and hereby is GRANTED for tuition reimbursement of $9,986 less any tuition already collected for the 1994-95 school year.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision on this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton,

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) for the reasons well-expressed therein. In so finding, the Commissioner concurs that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, A.A. is not entitled to a free public education in the Paramus School District, and that petitioner must reimburse respondent for the period of A.A.'s ineligible attendance.

Accordingly, petitioner is directed to remit to the Board $9,986, less any tuition already collected for the 1994-95 school year, in accordance with the ALJ's recommendation, and the within appeal is hereby dismissed.

WHEREAS, the litigation now before the Commissioner of Education will result in substantial costs and fees incurred by both parties; and

WHEREAS, the parties wish to amicably resolve all issues emanating from this matter;

NOW, THEREFORE, Rockaway and Lawrence Chammings, agree as follows:

1. In consideration for the dismissal of the action brought by the Petitioner, Lawrence Chammings, and in the event that Mr. Chammings retires by the conclusion of June 30, 1998, notice of which shall be given to Rockaway no later than June 30, 1997, Rockaway shall compensate Mr. Chammings in the sum of $8,000.00. PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EXAMINERS, NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner alleged that Respondent State Board of Examiners' denial of a school administrator endorsement was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Petitioner had previously served as chief school administrator in the Newark public school system and possessed an administrative certificate with the endorsement of executive superintendent. However, respondent determined that a superintendent of schools must hold an administrative certificate with a school administrator endorsement, Applying current regulations effective September 1, 1992, respondent ruled that petitioner had to pass a national test and complete a mentorship program before becoming eligible for the school administrator endorsement.

Upon de novo review, ALJ determined that petitioner was authorized to serve as superintendent of schools in any New Jersey public school district by virtue of his executive superintendent endorsement which he was issued in 1981. ALJ determined that the executive superintendent endorsement necessarily subsumes the regular school administrator endorsement as requirements for the former were more rigorous than for the latter. Moreover, ALJ found that if petitioner's credentials are now deficient to acquire a school administrator endorsement, because they fall short of the common requirements for obtaining an administrative certificate, then he should have never received an administrative certificate with executive superintendent endorsement in 1981. Thus, the ALJ found that given the internal logic of the regulatory plan, persons who earned a valid executive superintendent endorsement prior to September 1, 1992 fall within the intended coverage of the grandfather clause and are exempt from the testing and mentorship requirements applicable to newcomers.

In light of the record of this matter including transcripts of the proceedings, the Commissioner determined to affirm the factual findings of the ALJ, as well as his ultimate conclusion. Commissioner noted that in 1981, petitioner was issued a lifetime administrative certificate with an executive superintendent endorsement. Respondent's assertion that petitioner could not have met the requirement for the school administrator endorsement, which serves as the basis for its denial of his present application, was based solely on the logic that his credentials fell short of the common certificate requirements, a conclusion which, on its face, was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, given the regulations in effect at the time and respondent's prior awarding of an executive superintendent endorsement under the same certificate. Having set aside respondent's decision as arbitrary and capricious, Commissioner did not reach to remaining issues, but found petitioner eligible to invoke the grandfather clause found at N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.4(h). Commissioner directed respondent to issue forthwith the school administrator endorsement to petitioner's administrative certificate so as to authorize him to serve as chief school administrator of the City of Orange Township School District or of any other school district in this State.

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal from a ruling by the State Board of Examiners ("Examiners") that petitioner Dr. Columbus Salley lacks the appropriate license necessary to become superintendent of schools for the City of Orange. The Orange Board of Education ("Board"), which last January hired him as its superintendent of schools, joins Dr. Salley in bringing this appeal. Dr. Salley had previously served as chief school administrator in the Newark public school system. He possesses an administrative certificate with the endorsement of "executive superintendent."[1] However, the state licensing agency determined that a superintendent of schools must hold an administrative certificate with a "school administrator" endorsement. Applying current regulations which took effect on September 1, 1992, the state agency ruled that Dr. Salley had to pass a national test and complete a mentorship program before becoming eligible for the school-administrator endorsement.

First, Dr. Salley contends that the Examiners' interpretation of the regulations is inconsistent with the enabling legislation that created the position of executive superintendent, N.J.S.A. 18A:17A-1 to 11. Second, he maintains that he fulfills the requirements of the grandfather clause for issuance of a school-administrator endorsement under the current regulations, N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.4(h). Last, he challenges the Examiners' decision as arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, both substantively and procedurally. He alleges numerous procedural irregularities in the proceedings before the Examiners which, he says, contributed to an erroneous result.

Procedural History

By letter dated December 29, 1995, the Essex County Superintendent of Schools notified Dr. Salley that he did not possess the proper endorsement needed to assume the office of superintendent of schools in Orange. One week later, on January 4, 1996, the Office of Licensing & Academic Credentials ("Office of Licensing") issued a written evaluation identifying certain deficiencies which must be remedied in order for [1] There are three types of regular certificates that an educator may acquire: instructional, administrative, and educational services. N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.3. Each certificate may be marked with various special "endorsements." These endorsements coincide with educational subjects or positions that share common attributes and thus are grouped under a particular certificate. Dennery v. Bd. of Educ. of Passaic Cty. Reg. High Sch. Dist. #1, 131 N.J. 626, 633 (1993). For a fuller explanation, see Howley v. Ewing Bd. of Educ., 6 N.J.A.R. 509, 513-512 (Comm'r Dec. 20, 1982).

Dr. Salley to obtain a school-administrator endorsement. On January 31, 1996, petitioners filed a petition for review of the evaluation by the Examiners. Pending the outcome of this review, the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") entered orders allowing Dr. Salley to continue serving as acting superintendent, initially to April 1, 1996 and later to June 30, 1996. Meanwhile, the Examiners considered petitioner's appeal at their regular meeting on March 28, 1996. Subsequently, on April 15, 1996 the Examiners issued a written decision denying the requested relief. Thereafter, on April 29, 1996, petitioners filed an appeal to the Commissioner. Respondent filed its answer on May 13, 1996.

On June 12, 1996, the Commissioner entered an order extending Dr. Salley's authorization to serve as acting superintendent until September 30, 1996 and forwarding the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for an expedited hearing. While the matter was pending before the OAL, Dr. Salley received permission to file an amended petition on July 30, 1996 and respondent filed an amended answer on July 31, 1996. The OAL held hearings on September 3 and 4, 1996. Both parties submitted post-hearing briefs on October 1, 1996. Witnesses and exhibits are listed in the appendix.

Findings of Fact

All of the material facts needed to resolve this dispute were developed at the administrative hearings. I FIND:

Dr. Columbus Salley majored in intermediate education at Chicago Teacher's College and earned his bachelor of science degree in December 1965. Chicago Teacher's College, now called Chicago State University, has been approved since at least 1981 by the State of Illinois for certificate programs in elementary and secondary education. Additionally, Chicago Teacher's College was and is accredited by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education ("NCATE").[2] From January through June 1996, he taught eighth-grade mathematics in the Chicago public school system. Throughout his teaching career, he taught under a regular teacher's certificate issued by the City of Chicago.[3] For the 1966-67 academic year, Dr. Salley taught a self-contained sixth grade class, with emphasis on mathematics and language arts, at another Chicago public school. Over the summer of 1967, he developed and produced a set of videotapes for teaching mathematics to inner-city children. In 1967-68, he returned to the sixth grade classroom for another academic year. Altogether, Dr. Salley has a total of two full academic years and seven or eight months of teaching experience in the Chicago public schools.

After leaving the Chicago school district, Dr. Salley worked for a major educational publishing company, first as a sales representative and later as an editor. While working in the publishing field, he attended graduate school part-time at Loyola University of Chicago and received his master's degree in educational administration in 1970. Loyola's program was approved by the State of Illinois and accredited by NCATE. During 1969-70, Dr. Salley taught courses in sociology and psychology at Trinity College in Deerfield, Illinois.

Dr. Salley became one of a select number of students chosen as a Ford Fellow at the University of Pennsylvania. Ford Fellowships are grants from the Ford Foundation to train educational leaders in urban centers across the country. As part of his training, Dr. Salley served as administrative assistant to the principal at a

[2]NCATE is a national accreditation entity, comprised of representatives of various professional organizations, which sets standards for college teaching programs. Although New Jersey currently uses a different accreditation system known as the National Association of State Directors of Teacher Education and Certification ("NASDTEC"), that organization's standards are not as "comprehensive" or "professionally rigorous" as NCATE's standards. State witnesses concede that NCATE is "top of the line" and that NASDTEC is "not as strong."

Philadelphia public high school, where he implemented a model curriculum and administered the daily operations of a secondary school program. He graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1974, with a doctoral degree in educational administration.

Following graduation, Dr. Salley held a number of prominent positions. Initially, he was employed by the Consortium For Educational Leadership ("CLE"), a nonprofit group of seven leading universities, funded by the Ford Foundation and dedicated to training educational leaders and conducting research related to leadership training and practice. Starting as deputy executive secretary, Dr. Salley enjoyed what his supervisor termed "a superb apprenticeship for top level educational leadership." Among other duties, he helped prepare a highly-regarded scholarly study on the effectiveness of school principals. Ultimately, in 1976, he rose to executive secretary in charge of the entire operation, including recruiting candidates for training, editing publications and planning seminars. In 1977, Dr. Salley left CLE to accept a Rockefeller internship at the University of Chicago's Industrial Relations Center. There he expanded his earlier academic research into a similar study on the role of the superintendent of schools. He had the opportunity to gain practical experience in financial planning and budgeting, personnel matters, contract negotiations, collective bargaining and grievance procedures..

Three years later, in the fall of 1980, Dr. Salley went to Washington to take a post as director of policy, planning and program development at the United States Department of Education. In that capacity, he had primary responsibility for the formulation of a $4.8 billion budget for federal aid to elementary and secondary education, including the Title I and Headstart programs for economically disadvantaged children. An important part of his job was to monitor the efficacy of these programs to ensure that the money was well spent.

When administrations changed in Washington, Dr. Salley came to New Jersey to become executive superintendent of the Newark public school district. In the interim, he also did consulting work for various clients, including Virginia State University and school districts in New Orleans and Miami. He served as executive superintendent in Newark from 1981 through 1985. At that time, the Newark school system had about 65,000 students, 8,500 employees and a budget of $300 to $400 million. As executive superintendent, Dr. Salley had oversight responsibility over all instructional, managerial and financial activities of the district. In order to qualify for the position, Dr. Salley had to apply to the New Jersey licensing authorities for the appropriate administrative certificate. Before issuing the certificate, state officials requested written documentation of Dr. Salley's prior work experience and questioned him about his teaching background. Satisfied with his answers, the Examiners issued him a standard administrative certificate with the "executive superintendent" endorsement in October 1981.

Upon completion of his employment in Newark, Dr. Salley left the field of education and worked in private enterprise for the next ten years. In November 1995, he applied for the position of superintendent of the Orange school district. The Orange Board of Education had retained a consultant from the New Jersey School Boards Association to provide technical assistance in its search for suitable candidates. During the screening process, the consultant reviewed Dr. Salley's credentials and informed him that everything was "in order." Shortly thereafter, the Board and Dr. Salley entered into a four-and-one-half-year contract for Dr. Salley to serve as superintendent, effective January 1, 1996.

Just two days before Dr. Salley was due to take office, Rene Rovtar, acting Essex County superintendent of schools, notified the Board of her concern that Dr. Salley possessed the wrong endorsement. Elizabeth Strother, an assistant director of the Office of Licensing who does thousands of evaluations every year, reviewed Dr. Salley's file and concluded that he did not satisfy the present requirements for issuance of a school-administrator endorsement. Looking only at his graduate-school records, she determined that Dr. Salley's qualifications were deficient in two essential respects. He had not attained a passing score on the state-mandated test of knowledge and he had not completed a one-year mentorship program under a provisional certificate.[4] Literature describing the state-mandated test says that it is "intended primarily for those who are candidates for master's degrees or who already possess a master's degree and are seeking first appointments as administrators or supervisors."[5] Ms. Strother's analysis was limited to whether Dr. Salley is eligible for the school-administrator endorsement. It was beyond her authority to determine whether Dr. Salley could act as superintendent under a different endorsement. Since the regulations expressly provide that the test requirement could not be waived, Ms. Strother did not feel she had the authority to overlook the defect.

On appeal, the Examiners upheld the determination below that Dr. Salley is ineligible for a school-administrator endorsement. Further, the Examiners ruled that Dr.Salley could not "circumvent" the requirements for obtaining a school-administrator endorsement "by suggesting that his former endorsement is equivalent or worthy of substitution." Despite Dr. Salley's complaint that he never received formal notice of their meeting, he was admittedly aware at least two weeks in advance that the Examiners would be discussing his case on March 28, 1996.[6] Proceedings before the Examiners are tape-recorded. Ida Graham, who serves the dual function of secretary of the Examiners and director of the Office of Licensing, outlined the circumstances concerning Dr. Salley's application. A transcript reveals that the Examiners adopted the recommendations of Ms. Graham with little public discussion. There is no indication on the public record that the Examiners conducted their own independent

[4]In addition, a deficiency check list filled out by Ms. Strother indicates that Dr. Salley had not "agree[d] to undergo an assessment of performance" and that he did not have "an offer of employment in a position requiring the school-administrator endorsement." At the hearing, Ms. Strother conceded that the assessment measure does not exist, so that nobody is being held to that standard. When completing the check list, she was unaware of the Board's employment offer.

[5] Dr. Salley, of course, has a doctoral-level degree and has served as chief school administrator in the state's largest school district review of Dr. Salley's written submissions. At one point, the Examiners went into executive session to discuss the merits of Dr. Salley's appeal. No reason for this action is set forth on the record of the public meeting. Minutes of the meeting recite that the Examiners "voted to convene in executive session to discuss legal matters." Testimony indicates that during such executive session the Examiners sought legal advice from their deputy attorney general.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's executive-superintendent endorsement allows him to serve as school superintendent of any public school district in New Jersey.

At the outset, it is necessary to clarify the scope of the Commissioner's review of a decision made by the Examiners. Controversies and disputes arising under the school laws may be "heard" by the Commissioner. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Citing several administrative decisions, the Examiners argue that their decision can only be set aside if shown to be arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. But the leading case on the subject holds that, where the proceedings before the Examiners do not constitute a full and fair "hearing" of evidence and argument, then the right of appeal to the Commissioner "signifies a completely de novo and independent decision on the facts." In re Masiello, 25 N.J. 590, 606 (1958). If it appears to the Commissioner "that an interpretation by the Board of Examiners of any rule of the Board of Education is violative of the letter or spirit of such rule, the proper discharge of his duty requires corrective action." Masiello, at 607. Until the OAL level, Dr. Salley did not receive a full trial-type hearing, including the right to representation, broad discovery and subpoena power. See J.E. on Behalf of G.E. v. Dep't of Human Servs., 131 N.J. 552 (1993). Hence, the proper standard to be applied is a completely fresh appraisal of both facts and the law. On a hearing de novo, the appellate tribunal is not restricted to the "abuse-of-discretion" or "arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable" test, but must make independent findings and conclusions of its own. Grasso v. Borough Council of Glassboro, 205 N.J. Super. 18, 25 (App. Div. 1985), certif. den. 103 N.J. 453 (1986).[7]

The title "executive superintendent" is an invention of the New Jersey Legislature. Alarmed by "the increasingly intolerable chaos infecting the Newark public school system," the Legislature responded in 1975 by enacting a special organizational structure applicable to "districts in cities of the first class with a population over 325,000." L. 1975, c. 196. Gibson v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 205 N.J. 48, 50 (App. Div. 1985). Newark is the only school district fitting that description. Sponsor's Statement to Senate Bill. 3166 (1975). Conditions leading to the creation of the new management system had "existed over a very long period" and the reform was preceded by a number of study commissions and investigatory bodies, including an emergency task force appointed by the Commissioner. Report of the Special Agent Appointed by Commissioner Fred G. Burke to Oversee the Implementation of Fiscal Reforms in the Management of the Newark School System, 1-8 (1975) (hereafter "Report of the Special Agent"). In general, "the legislative scheme created for Newark was the so-called unit control system, achieved by the creation of the unique office of executive superintendent exclusively responsible for the day-to-day educational, fiscal and operational activities of the district and the concomitant allocation to the Newark Board of Education . . . of a role limited to policy making." Gibson, at 50.

By legislative design, the powers and duties of an executive superintendent exceed those of a regular superintendent of schools in other districts. Rotondo v. Carlstadt-East Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 276 N.J. Super. 36, 40 (App. Div. 1994). N.J.S.A. 18A:17A-2 specifies, in part, that, "No person shall be appointed, or act as, or perform the duties of, executive superintendent, unless he holds an appropriate certificate as prescribed by the State board; provided, however that in addition to State certification requirements the executive superintendent shall meet additional criteria as shall be determined by the board of education." Further, N.J.S.A. 18A:17A-3 directs that the executive superintendent shall be "the chief executive officer and administrator of the district" and shall have supervisory authority "over the organization and the educational, managerial, and fiscal operations of the district" as well as "over all officers and employees, professional and nonprofessional, . . . all of whom shall report to him[.]" Most important of all, N.J.S.A. 18A:17A-4 abolished most of the central office staff in the Newark district and instead provided that "the executive superintendent shall perform all the duties and possess all the powers heretofore and hereafter assigned to the superintendent of schools, secretary of the board of education, school business administrator, school business manager, and assistants and clerks thereto[.]"

One of the main purposes of the legislation was to establish a new position "in lieu of the position of superintendent of schools as chief school officer and vest in him complete authority over the educational, managerial and fiscal operations of the school district." Sponsor's Statement. Or, as the Appellate Division aptly observed, the Act created a "super" superintendent. Rotondo, at 40. See also, Gibson v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 1986 S.L.D. 3044 (St. Bd. May 6, 1986), aff'd No. A5209-83T6 & A-3111-84T5 (N.J. App. Div. Oct. 15, 1986), where the State Board of Education remarked that the enabling legislation entrusts to the executive superintendent "a level and scope of responsibility beyond that imposed upon superintendents of any other district." (at 3059).

Implementing regulations reinforce the view that an "executive superintendent" is a superintendent with special qualifications and extra responsibilities. Common provisions applicable to all administrative certificates in 1981 required possession of a standard New Jersey teacher's certificate "or its equivalent" and "[t]hree years of successful teaching experience." N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.2(a)(3) (1977). Thus, when Dr. Salley applied for his administrative certificate in 1981, an executive superintendent was subject to exactly the same teaching requirements as any other school superintendent. Former regulations, adopted in 1975 as N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.12 and still in effect in 1981, required, among other things, that the executive superintendent "possess and be able to demonstrate a knowledge of the complex problems of an urban community, involving the educational, societal, fiscal and political aspects" and "have five years of administrative experience in which three years must be in an organization of comparable complexity and magnitude." [7 N.J.R. 459(b) (Oct. 9, 1975); 7 N.J.R. 547(a) (Dec. 4, 1975). Significantly, Commissioner of Education Fred G. Burke wrote at the time that, "The requirements for Executive Superintendent embrace wide areas of knowledge and are designed to accommodate a generalist who would be recognized as a peer by New Jersey Superintendents." Explanatory Summary of Fred G. Burke (Oct. 27, 1975) (Emphasis added.) In comparison, a regular superintendent in 1981 did not need to demonstrate actual knowledge in any particular area and need only have "three years of educational administrative or supervisory experience." N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.7 (1977).

Statutes should not be read to reach an absurd result. State v. Provenzano, 34 N.J. 318, 322 (1961). A statute must, if reasonably possible, be accorded a construction which is sensible and "consonant to reason and good discretion," rather than one which, though literal, "leads to absurd consequences." In re Petition of Gardiner, 67 N.J. Super. 435, 444 (App. Div. 1961). When construing a statute, "every effort should be exerted to avoid . . . an anomalous result." Reisman v. Great Am. Recreation , Inc., 266 N.J. Super. 87, 96 (App. Div. 1993), certif. den. 134 N.J. 560 (1993). Since the enabling statutes and the implementing regulations contemplate that an executive superintendent must meet a higher level of expertise than an ordinary superintendent, it would be illogical to assume that an executive superintendent is qualified to manage the largest and most complicated school district in the State but no other district. Rather, the sensible interpretation of the law, keeping in mind the legislative purpose behind unifying separate administrative functions in a single individual, is that the executive-superintendent endorsement necessarily subsumes the regular school-administrator endorsement. Such interpretation is consistent with the hierarchical nature of administrative endorsements, whereby in 1981 the holder of a school-administrator endorsement was authorized to do everything that a principal can do and the holder of a principal endorsement was authorized to do everything that a supervisor can do. Compare N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.4(a), (b) and (c) (1977).

Nonetheless, the Examiners argue that Dr. Salley would not have been entitled to a school-administrator endorsement had he applied for it in 1981. Specifically, they assert that New Jersey does not recognize his Chicago teaching certificate as the equivalent of a New Jersey teaching certificate and that he has not completed three full academic years of teaching. That reasoning is flawed, however, because those particular requirements were common to all types of administrative endorsements. If Dr. Salley were deficient in teaching experience, he should never have received his executive-superintendent endorsement in the first place. Certainly no allegation is made that Dr. Salley ever misrepresented the type of certificate he holds or the length of his prior teaching experience in the Chicago school system. Therefore, the record demonstrates that whoever reviewed Dr. Salley's teaching credentials in 1981 was willing to accept them as being in substantial compliance with the existing regulations. Testimony shows that the State of Illinois itself recognizes the city-issued certificate as valid to teach in that city and that New Jersey licensing authorities have discretion to look at the quality of teacher preparation in deciding whether to grant recognition to an out-of-state certificate. It would be grossly unfair to question Dr. Salley's teaching background now, after he has served for five years in Newark under the executive-superintendent endorsement.

In light of the fact that three years of teaching is a common requirement for both endorsements, it is unclear exactly what the Examiners meant by their comment that qualifications for the executive-superintendent endorsement "can be construed as having been less demanding of educational/classroom experience" than the school administrator endorsement. An applicant for the school-administrator endorsement had to complete certain academic coursework, N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.7 (1977), while an applicant for the executive-superintendent endorsement had to be able to demonstrate knowledge of various problems of an urban school setting, including the "educational" aspects. N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.12 (1977). Moreover, the distinction itself may not be particularly helpful. In one of the reports leading to formation of the unit control system in Newark, the author noted:

> The conception that fiscal and educational management can be held separate and distinct is no longer valid in the modern world. To a major extent, the educational quality of a school system is shaped by budgetary decisions, by the employment of computerized learning aids, and is the result of resource - both people and money - allocations. Report of the Special Agent, at 30.

Likewise, the Examiners' reliance on Marshello v. N.J. State Bd. of Examiners, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 378 (Comm'r May 12, 1992) as additional grounds for their ruling is misplaced. In that case, the Commissioner upheld the Examiners' refusal to recognize an accountant's work experience as a substitute for the academic course work necessary to qualify for a school-business administrator endorsement. Mr. Marshello claimed that his eight years of service as auditor general of the Newark school district required him to engage in all aspects of the district's business affairs. Proofs showed, however, that he had inadequate exposure in the area of school buildings or school business administration and "very little involvement in those aspects of school business operations which necessarily involve academic considerations and decision-making." (at 381). Even his own expert was "less than enthusiastic about Marshello's credentials." (at 380). Insofar as the reported decision reflects, Mr. Marshello had no formal academic preparation in any field of education and held no certificates entitling him to work in any school district. Consequently, the situation is vastly different from the present case, where Dr. Salley has a doctoral-level degree in educational administration, holds a valid New Jersey administrative certificate and has amply documented his teaching and administrative experience.

An overhaul of the certificate regulations in 1990 made substantial changes in the requirements for school administrators. [22 N.J.R. 1873(a) (June 18, 1990); 22 N.J.R. 3240(a) (Oct. 15, 1990). Current requirements for the school-administrator endorsement include issuance of a provisional certification, the holding or a master's degree or its equivalent, a one-year residency program under the direction of a State-approved mentor, and a passing score on a written examination. N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.4. Under the new regulations, an applicant may apply to the Examiners for permission to substitute alternative education or experience for required preparation, except that a passing score on the state-mandated test cannot be waived. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24. Ironically, teaching experience has been eliminated as a requirement, so that today a candidate with appropriate academic credentials, such as a master of business degree, can obtain a school-administrator endorsement without any teaching experience whatsoever.

As part of the recent revision, the regulations pertaining to the separate executive-superintendent endorsement were repealed. In their place, the school-administrator endorsement is now required for any position that involves services as a district-level administrator, including executive superintendent.[8] N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.2(a) (1990). Explanatory comments accompanying this change indicate that, "The proposed amendments eliminate the special endorsement that is currently issued to persons who hold the title of executive superintendent pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17A-1. Holders of this title would be required to possess the chief school administrator endorsement." 22 N.J.R. 1875 (June 19, 1990).

Although the new requirements for a school-administrator endorsement were adopted in 1990, they did not take effect until September 1, 1992. Pursuant to a grandfather clause, the new requirements do not apply to "persons who earn the school administrator endorsement before that date." N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.4(h) (1990). Since his old endorsement authorizes him to serve as superintendent of schools in Orange, it does not really matter whether Dr. Salley can claim the benefit of this grandfather clause. Nevertheless, Dr. Salley urges that his service as executive superintendent of Newark under a valid administrative certificate fulfills the spirit, if not the letter, of the grandfather clause. It has already been pointed out that the requirements needed for an executive-superintendent endorsement were more rigorous than those for a school-administrator endorsement. Clearly it would be incongruous if someone who met the easier requirements before September 1, 1992 were automatically entitled to a school-administrator endorsement, whereas someone who met the more difficult requirements were not. Given the internal logic of the regulatory plan, persons who earned a valid executive-superintendent endorsement prior to September 1, 1992 fall within the intended coverage of the grandfather clause and are exempt from the testing and mentorship requirements applicable to newcomers.

[8]Due to the local board's failure to provide the children of Newark with a thorough and efficient education, the State took over operation of the Newark school district in July 1995. Contini v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 196 (Comm'r July 5, 1995). Presently the operation of the district is under the supervision of the State district superintendent. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-35. Presumably, the post of executive superintendent will resume when the district eventually returns to local control. See N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-49.

Finally, Dr. Salley raises a variety of alleged procedural and due-process infirmities, including: the failure of the Examiners to give him adequate notice of the meeting at which his petition would be discussed; the failure to provide him an opportunity to be heard at that meeting; the failure to develop a full factual record; and several violations of the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to -21, particularly the Examiners' meeting in executive session to consider Dr. Salley's qualifications. In response, the respondent maintains that appeals to the Examiners from improper rulings by the Office of Licensing are submitted wholly on the papers, as compared to requests for substitution of alternate education or experience where the applicant is allowed to make an oral presentation (Compare N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.15 with N.J.A.C. 6:11-3:24 to -27); that its written decision issued on April 15,1996 fully sets forth the factual basis for its ruling; that a public body is legally permitted to convene in executive session to consult its attorney; and, in any event, that the Open Public Meeting Act claims were not brought within forty-five days as required by N.J.S.A. 10:4-15.

Since Dr. Salley has received a de novo hearing before the OAL, it is unnecessary to address his allegations of procedural irregularities below. While Dr. Salley is entitled to a fair and impartial hearing on the merits of his appeal, courts "will not undertake to say . . . at what level of operations it shall be provided." In re Masiello, 25 N.J. at 605. Put differently, the prejudice, if any, which may have existed below is cured by the de novo appeal to the OAL, where new findings of fact and conclusions of law have been made. In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 151 (App. Div. 1987). Dr. Salley recognizes as much by the type of relief he is seeking. Even if reversible error was committed, Dr. Salley does not want the case to be remanded to the Examiners for reconsideration. Instead, he merely asks that the Commissioner review the entire record, including the facts developed at the hearing before the OAL, and reach his own independent judgment on the merits of the case.

DR. COLUMBUS SALLEY AND THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ORANGE TOWNSHIP, ESSEX COUNTY,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EXAMINERS, NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions, and the reply thereto, were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent initially takes exception to the ALJ's application of a de novo standard of review in this matter, pursuant to the limited holding in Masiello, supra, thereby supplanting "agency interpretation of regulations and knowledge of long-standing practices with that of the opinion of the Administrative Law Judge." (Respondent's Exceptions at pp. 1, 2) Respondent takes the position that Masiello cannot be read in a vacuum. Rather, the line of cases following Masiello establishes the basis for respondent's contention that the ALJ applied the incorrect standard of review in this matter. Here, respondent cites Kopera v. Board of Education of the Town of West Orange, Essex County, 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960) to advance the proposition that the Courts have established a "three class" approach to the resolution of administrative cases, and that the instant matter falls within the purview of the "third class," wherein "the scope of the Commissioner's review is . . . not to substitute his judgment for that of those who made the evaluation but to determine whether that had a reasonable basis for their conclusions." (Id. at pp. 3-4, citing Kopera, supra, at 296) In this regard, respondent further emphasizes that the facts in this matter, i.e., Dr. Salley's background, academic credentials and experience, were not contested; rather, the controversy arose upon the State Board's discretionary application of the facts to the regulations. (Id. at p. 6) Respondent determines that the regulatory interpretations rendered by the State Board of Examiners were not accorded due deference. (Id. at p. 7)

In reply, petitioners assert that the de novo standard of review applied by the ALJ was correct and appropriate, considering the relevant legal precedents and the record in this matter. (Petitioners' Reply at p. 2) Here, petitioners contend that "the record clearly demonstrates that the parties unequivocally understood that [the ALJ] would apply the de novo standard of review." (Id.) However, respondent failed to state any objection on the record. Accordingly, petitioners reason that respondent has waived its right to "appeal" that aspect of the case. (Id. at p. 3) As to respondent's cited "three class" approach, petitioners counter that respondent's reasoning is flawed.

> First, petitioners do not agree that the issues presented in the present matter fall neatly into any of the three categories mentioned. Rather, they involve mixed matters of law, fact and agency discretion and, as the record clearly reveals, the Examiners: (1) misconstrued and misapplied the relevant law; (2) misrepresented and misunderstood the relevant facts, and (3) exercised their discretion in an arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable manner. In order for the Commissioner fully to appreciate the magnitude of these errors, detailed analysis of the record in this matter, especially the documentary evidence and testimony presented to the ALJ, is imperative. (Id. at p. 6)

Petitioners call attention to the Examiners' decision, Exhibit J-8, which "contains numerous errors of law and fact, several of which bear directly upon contested issues concerning

Dr. Salley's credentials, background and experience." (Id. at p. 7) Consequently, petitioners contend it is "ludicrous" for respondent to assert that Dr. Salley's credentials and experience were not contested. (Id. at p. 9) However, they conclude that even assuming, arguendo, that the instant matter should have been analyzed as a "third class" discretionary matter, the Examiners' decision should nonetheless be determined arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable.[1] (Id. at p. 10)

Respondent next objects to the ALJ's finding that the executive superintendent endorsement could be used by an individual to take the position of superintendent in a district other than the (now) State-operated School District of the City of Newark (hereafter, "Newark"). (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 7) Rather, respondent argues that the executive superintendent endorsement was to be restricted to cities which meet the criteria established pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17A-1, which effectively limits the use of the position to Newark. Nor does respondent find that the enabling statute, as cited, confers powers and duties upon the executive superintendent which exceed those of the regular superintendents of schools in other districts. (Id. at p. 8) Respondent maintains that the creation of an executive superintendent position was for the unique purpose of vesting that individual with "the duties formally vested with the board of education, thereby limiting the role of the board of education ." (Id. at p. 9) Moreover, respondent contends that the sponsor's statement for the legislation evidences an intent to create a structure enhancing fiscal management and accountability, rather than focusing on traditional classroom experience. (Id.) Accordingly, the regulations establishing the executive superintendent endorsement were similarly concentrated.

[1] Petitioners cite as cause for such a proposed finding: that the Examiners' decision "sets forth as its legal foundation the blatant misrepresentation that the Legislature abolished the executive superintendent endorsement " (Petitioners' Reply at p. 10); that the Examiners failed to make any findings of fact on the record but, rather, accepted the recommendation of the Director of the Office of Certification (id. at p. 11); that the Examiners' deliberation took place in private (id. at p. 12); that the only reasons offered for the Examiners' decision are facially invalid (id. at p. 13); that the Examiners' interpretation should not be accorded due deference since it is illogical, considering the hierarchical relationship between administrative endorsements in effect at the time (id. at p. 14); and that the Examiners fail to cite any authority for their conclusion that the regulations for the executive superintendent endorsement were less demanding of educational/classroom experience (id.).

In reply, petitioners argue that the ALJ was correct in his conclusion that the executive superintendent endorsement entitles the holder to serve as superintendent in any New Jersey school district. (Petitioners' Reply at p. 15) Indeed, petitioners counter that there are no words of limitation in the enabling statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:17A-1. Moreover, respondent's reliance upon the bill sponsor's statement is, petitioners add, unpersuasive. Petitioners aver that, instead, the sponsoring statement evidences an intent "at the outset to make the executive superintendent a 'super-superintendent' (see Rotundo, supra, 276 N.J. Super. at 40)." (Petitioner's Reply at p. 16) Further, petitioners underscore the language in the enabling legislation which provides that the executive superintendent "shall perform all the duties and possess all the powers heretofore and hereafter assigned to the superintendent of schools ... in Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes." N.J.S.A. 18A:17A-4. Petitioners reason,

> Assuming, as the Commissioner must, that the State Board of Education was fully cognizant of the above stated Legislative command when the State Board promulgated the former regulations, N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.1 through 6:11-10.14, then it necessarily follows that the regulations were intended to permit the holder of the executive superintendent endorsement to do at least as much as any other superintendent legally could do, and then some. (Id. at p. 17)

Thus, petitioners attest that Dr. Salley met and/or exceeded the then requirements for the school administrator endorsement. (Id. at p. 18)

Respondent, however, maintains that Petitioner Salley was not qualified to earn the school administrator endorsement in 1981 when he applied for the executive superintendent's endorsement, contrary to the finding of the ALJ. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 12) That is,

Dr. Salley could not have met the "common requirements" set forth at N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.2, which were then in effect. (Id. at p. 14) Respondent continues,

> [T]he Office of Licensing did not utilize the common requirements indicated at N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.2 in reviewing applications for the executive superintendent endorsement.  Rather,  an applicant for the executive superintendent endorsement was not required to hold a New Jersey teaching certificate or the equivalent, nor have three years teaching experience. (emphasis in text) (Id. at pp. 10, 11)

Petitioners assert that respondent's "revelation that it did not utilize the common requirements mandated by N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.2 in reviewing applications for the executive superintendent endorsement in 1981 is  a scathing admission, indicative of its cavalier disregard for the regulations ." (Petitioners' Reply at p. 18) Here, petitioners observe that there is no language in the regulations pertaining to the executive superintendent endorsement which permits the Examiners to forego application of the common requirements. (Id.) Petitioners find this argument of respondent to be further revealing of its "selective manner" of applying the common core requirements of the State Board of Education regulations. (Id. at p. 20)

Respondent next excepts to the statements in the initial decision cited from the New Jersey Register which are taken out of context and are interpreted contrary to their plain meaning. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 14) Respondent argues that the plain meaning of the statements found at 22 N.J.R. 3249-3250, 22 N.J.R. 1875, and 22 N.J.R. 1874 indicate "[t]hat a person in possession of the 'special' executive superintendent endorsement would now be required to hold a chief school administrator endorsement." (Id. at pp. 14-15) The statements do not, respondent claims, direct that one can use the executive superintendent endorsement in lieu of the school administrator endorsement.

Petitioners counter that there is nothing taken out of context or misinterpreted by the ALJ. (Petitioners' Reply at p. 21) The plain language of the statement cited by respondent "specifies the endorsement that would be necessary in the future for anyone who wishes to hold the position of executive superintendent." (Id. at p. 22) Petitioners observe that the statement does not provide "[t]hat a person already in possession of the executive superintendent endorsement is disenfranchised." (Id.) Petitioners reason that the change was prospective, rather than retroactive, and it was not, therefore, improper for the ALJ to consider their argument that Dr. Salley's executive superintendent endorsement was encompassed by the grandfathering provision of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.4(h) of 1990. (Id.)

Respondent next takes exception to the ALJ's characterization of the State Board of Examiners' meeting held on March 28, 1996. That the ALJ insinuates that the written decision of the Examiners was flawed by virtue of a "less than lengthy discussion" is, according to respondent, erroneous. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 16)

In reply, petitioners note that the transcript of the Examiners' meeting speaks for itself. (Id. at p. 23) Petitioners attest that "[t]he record of the Examiners' public conduct is compelling and clearly warrants the ALJ's conclusion that the Examiners [sic] decision was inadequately developed and fatally flawed." (Id. at p. 24)

Finally, respondent objects to the ALJ's failure to apply as controlling in the instant matter the holding in Thomas J. Marshello v. New Jersey State Board of Examiners, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 378, aff'd Commissioner of Education, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 381. There, an applicant who was auditor general for eight years in the Newark School District was determined not to meet the requirements for a school business administrator endorsement, and was so denied the endorsement. Marshello appealed that decision, arguing that he was qualified to perform the duties of a school business administrator. Respondent recounts that Marshello, like petitioner, maintained that he had as much, if not more, experience than any other certified school business administrator. The Court found that, notwithstanding the quality and quantity of Marshello's experience, it was compelled to apply an "arbitrary and capricious" standard of review and uphold the denial of the endorsement. (Id. at p. 17) Respondent, thus, concludes,

> Whether an applicant could or could not perform the duties of a particular position is not considered by the Office of Licensing or the Examiners. Rather, these bodies are restricted to evaluate applications on criteria found in the Code. Moreover, the Examiners are constrained in its [sic] ability to waive or substitute requirements, also by Code provision.  However, this does not render [the] determination by the Examiners unreasonable.  Here, Dr. Salley's experience  cannot be used as a substitute for a passing score on the national examination or satisfactory completion of a mentorship program, much like the failed attempt to substitute experience for required course work in Marshello.
> (Id. at p. 18)

In reply, petitioners argue that the conduct of the Examiners, as stated above, "lends strong support to the ALJ's determination not to apply the standard of review embraced in [Marshello, supra]." (Petitioners' Reply at p. 24) Here, petitioners advise that, unlike Marshello, the present matter requires statutory interpretation. Additionally, in the instant matter, Dr. Salley was never afforded a hearing prior to the proceeding at the OAL, and, consequently, were the de novo standard now to be set aside, Dr. Salley would be deprived of a property interest in violation of his due process rights. Finally, petitioners contend that, in the present matter, the Examiners "abdicated their responsibility" by "failing to develop an adequate record deserving of deference." (Id. at p. 25) Thus, petitioners conclude that the ALJ was "virtually compelled" to apply a de novo standard of review so as to cure "the procedural and substantive infirmities inherent in the proceedings of the Examiners." (Id. at p. 26) The initial decision of the ALJ, petitioners urge, should be affirmed in its entirety.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which included transcripts of the proceedings conducted on September 3, 1996 and September 4, 1996, the Commissioner determines to affirm the factual findings of the ALJ, as well as his ultimate conclusion, for the reasons set forth herein.

Assuming, arguendo, that respondent is correct in its position that the decision of the State Board of Examiners is entitled to a presumption of correctness and must not be disturbed absent a finding that it was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, then the Commissioner's analysis is limited to determining: (1) whether the underlying facts in this matter were as the State Board of Examiners claimed, as the body that conducted the review, and (2) whether it was unreasonable for the Examiners to conclude as they did upon those facts, bearing in mind that they possess the requisite expertise. (Kopera, supra, at 296, 297) The burden of proving unreasonableness rests with the parties challenging the State Board of Examiners' action. (Id. at 297) Setting aside for the purpose of this discussion the broader inaccuracies cited by petitioners in the Examiners' decision,[2] the Commissioner notes that the essential facts in this matter do not markedly differ from those which the State Board of Examiners recognized and utilized as the basis of its decision. However, the Commissioner finds that the Examiners' conclusion, based on these particular facts, was inherently unreasonable.

As the ALJ noted, "Common provisions applicable to all administrative certificates in 1981 required possession of a standard New Jersey Teacher's certificate 'or its equivalent' and '[t]hree years of successful teaching experience.' N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.2(a)(3) (1977)." (emphasis in text) (Initial Decision at p. 10) There is no dispute that in 1981, Dr. Salley was issued a lifetime administrative certificate with an executive superintendent endorsement which, by regulation, encompassed these "common requirements." Yet, respondent takes the position that while Dr. Salley met the requirements for the executive superintendent endorsement in 1981, he could not have met the requirements for the school administrator endorsement because he does not hold a standard New Jersey instructional certificate, or its equivalent, and he also did not demonstrate three years of successful teaching experience. Thus, as the ALJ correctly observes, respondent finds Dr. Salley's credentials to ostensibly be deficient with respect to these "common requirements" associated with all administrative certificates. (Initial Decision at p. 12) Yet, as the ALJ further finds, respondent's reasoning is flawed because "those particular requirements were common to all types of administrative endorsements. If Dr. Salley were deficient in teaching experience, he should have never received his executive-superintendent endorsement in the first place." (Id.)

The record shows that, before issuing Dr. Salley his administrative certificate in 1981, the Office of Licensing questioned Dr. Salley and requested additional documentation. Dr. Salley was then issued an administrative certificate, notwithstanding that the Office of Licensing apparently did not evaluate his credentials against the common requirements then found at N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.2(a). Respondent's assertion that Dr. Salley could not have met the requirements for the school administrator endorsement, which serves as the basis for its denial of his present application, is based solely on the logic that his credentials fall short of the common certificate requirements, a conclusion which, on its face, is arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, given the regulations in effect at the time and respondent's prior awarding of another endorsement under the same certificate. Respondent advances no arguments contending that Dr. Salley's credentials are in any manner insufficient to meet the then-existing requirements for acquiring the school administrator endorsement, N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.7[3]; nor does it provide an explanation for why the common requirements were "not utilized" in 1981 in reviewing the applications for the executive superintendent endorsement, but should now be determinative of Dr. Salley's eligibility for the school administrator endorsement.

Having thus determined that respondent's decision was arbitrary and capricious, the Commissioner finds it unnecessary to reach to the remaining issues raised in this matter. Instead, on the basis that it was arbitrary and capricious, the Commissioner sets aside respondent's decision and finds that Dr. Salley, by virtue of his having been previously found qualified for an administrative certificate which he still holds and which remains in full force and effect, and by virtue of his having met the requirements as they existed in 1981 for the school administrator endorsement, is deemed eligible, under the unique circumstances herein, to be awarded a school administrator endorsement and to invoke the "grandfather" clause set forth at N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.4(h).[4]

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is affirmed as to its fact finding and ultimate conclusion, on the basis of analysis as modified herein. Respondent is directed to issue forthwith the school administrator endorsement to Dr. Salley's administrative certificate so as to authorize him to serve as chief school administrator of the City of Orange Township School District, or of any other school district in this State.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning aunt alleged that her niece, M.L., was wrongfully denied access to school due to residency dispute.

ALJ found that M.L. was not residing with her aunt in order to receive a free education in West Orange; instead, petitioner established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that M.L was domiciled in West Orange pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1a -- petitioner had power of attorney and a custody order. ALJ ordered that M.L. was entitled to a free public education in the District.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioner met her burden under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 that M.L. was domiciled in respondent's District and that M.L. was entitled to a free public education in the District.

Record Closed: September 11, 1996 Decided: October 28, 1996

BEFORE DIANA C. SUKOVICH, ALJ:

NATURE OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

At a meeting held on October 9, 1995, the Town of West Orange (West Orange) Board of Education (Board or respondent) determined to deny the application of L.A. (petitioner) to enroll M.L., a minor child, as a student in the district. The Board formally advised L.A. of its determination by letter dated October 10, 1995. L.A. filed a petition with the State Department of Education (DOE) on November 14, 1995, contesting the denial. The DOE transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on December 8, 1995 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A hearing was conducted on June 25, 1996. At the close of the hearing, respondent's counsel presented oral argument. It was agreed that petitioner would be permitted to subsequently file a written reply. The Board filed an exhibit unavailable at the hearing on June 26, 1996 (Exhibit R-2). Petitioner filed a written reply to respondent's position on July 9, 1996, and the Board filed a response thereto on July 17, 1996.

At the hearing and in their initial filings, the parties focused on whether petitioner meets the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b). Subsequently, after further considering the matter, by letter dated August 19, 1996, this judge requested that the parties file supplemental memoranda, within ten days, addressing the question of whether petitioner meets the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). Respondent filed supplemental letter memoranda on August 29, 1996 and on September 11, 1996, the latter document addressing a newly discovered decision of the Commissioner of the DOE (Commissioner). Petitioner did not file a supplemental memorandum, and the record is deemed closed on September 11, 1996.

The issue to be decided, broadly, is whether M.L. meets the requirements for enrollment in respondent's schools, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon a review of the entire record, including credibility assessments, I FIND the following to be facts.

M.L. was born on October 24, 1981. R.B. is her mother, and L.M. is her aunt. M.L.'s father has been deceased for at least thirteen years.

R.B., who is single, resides in Brigantine, New Jersey (Brigantine). She is employed at the Showboat Casino in Atlantic City, New Jersey (Atlantic City).

Prior to approximately November 1995, M.L. attended public schools in Brigantine. Brigantine has a kindergarten through eighth grade public school system. Public school students residing in Brigantine attend high school in Atlantic City.

Petitioner moved to West Orange on October 1, 1995. She has several children, including a daughter. M.L. has resided with petitioner in West Orange since October 1, 1995.

On October 2, 1995, R.B. executed a document giving a power of attorney to L.A. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit P-3. The document states, in pertinent part, that R.B. "gave L.A. full power and authority over my minor child, M.L.," who would be residing with petitioner in West Orange (Exhibit P-3, p.1).

On or about October 3, 1995, petitioner filed a Civil Action Complaint for Custody of M.L. in the Chancery Division, Family Part, Essex County, Superior Court of New Jersey. L.A.'s stated reasons for seeking custody of M.L. were that petitioner believed such was in M.L.'s best interest and "L.A. wants custody of her niece so that she can go to school here. M.F.R. is deceased" (Exh. P-2, p.2). The court issued an order on October 6, 1995, granting custody of M.L. to L.A. The order noted that M.L.'s father had been deceased for 13 years, that M.L. had resided with petitioner since October 1, 1995, and that L.A. requested custody of M.L. and agreed to provide for M.L.'s well-being and accept complete responsibility for her welfare.

Thomas J. Scharf (Scharf) has been employed by respondent for 20 years. He is in charge of the district's child custody team and is responsible for the provision of medical services, the evaluation of records, central office registration matters, and school eligibility matters generally.

It is the Board's practice to require certain registration documents, including affidavits from parents and other relevant individuals, when someone seeks to enroll a child who is not that individual's adopted or natural child in respondent's school system.

In September or October 1995, Scharf received from petitioner a completed and signed Affidavit for Non-Resident Pupil Enrollment form in relation to an application by L.A. to enroll M.L. in respondent's school system. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit P-5. Petitioner stated, in part, that M.L. was solely supported by L.A. "gratis" and that petitioner would assume all personal obligations for M.L. Petitioner also stated that M.L. had been living with L.A. since October 1, 1995, that M.L. did not live with her mother during any part of the week, that M.L. would live with her mother during the summers, and that petitioner had never declared M.L. as a dependent for federal income tax purposes. Petitioner did not complete a portion of the form which requested the date until which the child in question would continuously live with L.A.

Scharf's secretary is a notary public in New Jersey. Scharf concluded that petitioner had not established an economic or family hardship in support of her application to enroll M.L. He therefore did not "accept" petitioner's affidavit, and, as a result, it was not dated nor notarized (Scharf's direct testimony).

In reaching this conclusion, Scharf also considered an affidavit which had been executed by R.B. on October 6, 1995. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit P-4. In response to a question asking for the specific reasons supporting a position that the applicant was not capable of supporting or providing care for the child in question, R.B. stated the following:

ODD WORK SCHEDULE

M.L FEELS LONELY

GREAT ATTACHMENT TO HER AUNT AND COUSIN M.

MY STRONG BELIEF THAT L. IS MORE THAN MOTHER TO HER.

R.B. did not provide with her affidavit, as requested in the document, documents in support of her position that she could not support or provide care for M.L. R.B. attested in the document, which was notarized, to statements that petitioner would support M.L. "gratis" and assume all personal obligations for her relative to school requirements, that L.A. would keep and support M.L. ". . . for a longer time than merely through the school term (September through June)," and that R.B. was not placing M.L. with L.A. solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in West Orange. (Id. at p.2).

By letter dated October 10, 1995, petitioner was advised that the Board had denied her application to enroll M.L. in the district's school system. L.A. filed a petition with the DOE contesting the denial on or about November 14, 1995. M.L. was enrolled in respondent's schools, in an eighth grade class, commencing in either November or December 1995. She was not a classified student.

The West Orange School District consists of six elementary schools, two middle schools, and a high school. The enrollment rate has recently substantially increased. During the 1995-96 school year, there were a total of between 5,500 and 6,500 students in the district schools. Four years previously, there was a total of 3,500 students. One of the middle schools is at 112 percent of capacity. Class sizes generally are between 32 and 33 students, a situation previously "unheard of" (Scharf's direct testimony).

At least in part because of this situation, the Board has recently made efforts to identify and remove children improperly enrolled in its schools. During the 1994-95 school year, respondent took action to remove 80 to 85 students. Respondent has recently experienced an increase in enrollments based on affidavit situations. More than eighty students were so enrolled during the 1995-96 school year, compared to a total of 25 to 30 annually in prior years.

The Board only accepts as tuition students children who are classified. The annual tuition cost for the 1995-96 school year for grades six through eight was $8,525.

DISCUSSION

The Commissioner of the DOE (Commissioner) generally has jurisdiction to hear and determine controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 (Supp. 1996). Pertinent statutory provisions address residence requirements relative to attendance at local district schools.

Public schools are required to provide a free education to individuals between the ages of five and twenty--five years in certain circumstances, including to individuals who are domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:-38-1(a) (Supp. 1996).

Local school districts must also provide a free education to individuals who are kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by such other person gratis, as if he/she were such other person's own child, upon the filing by that person with the board of education of a sworn statement. Such statement shall, if so required by the board, state that he/she is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements. The sworn statement must also state that he/she intends to keep and support the child gratuitously through the school term. A copy of the lease, if a tenant, or a sworn statement by a landlord acknowledging tenancy, if residing as a tenant without a written lease shall also be filed. The child's parent or guardian shall file with the local board of education a sworn statement that he/she is incapable of supporting or providing care for the child because of a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education therein. The statement shall be accompanied by documentation supporting the validity of the sworn statements. If in a board's judgment the evidence does not support the validity of the resident's claim, the board may deny admission to the child. Id. at §(b)(1).

Pertinent statutory provisions also address procedures if a local board denies admission. The resident may contest a decision to the Commissioner and shall be entitled to a hearing on the validity of the claim. The resident shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the statutory criteria. No child shall be denied admission during the pendency of such proceedings. If the child in question is then currently enrolled in the district, he/she shall not be removed during the period in which the resident may contest the board's decision nor during the pendency of the proceedings before the Commissioner. Ibid. If in the judgment of the Commissioner the evidence does not support the resident's claim, the Commissioner shall assess tuition for the student, prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the district. Ibid.

Traditionally, the domicile of a child for school law purposes was viewed as that of the natural parent. Mansfield Twp. v. State Bd. of Ed., 101 N.J.L. 474 (Sup. Ct. 1925) (Mansfield). Mansfield involved an individual residing in Mansfield Township who used her residential home to board children and provide an education as far as the eighth grade. The parents of the child in question, who wished to attend high school in the Township, resided in New York City for many years, although at the time of the Court's decision, they were separated. For ten years, the child had been placed under the care of an individual who resided in the Bronx, New York, until sent by her father to the Mansfield home. The father paid $60 monthly for board and tuition and provided the child with necessities. Mansfield at 476.

The Court found that the child was not domiciled in Mansfield and therefore was not entitled to a free public education in that town. The Court noted in this respect that the fact that the child > . . . intends to remain in the home of Miss Towner during her attendance at the high school, or for an indeterminate period, does not make her residence a permanent one, especially since it does not appear that she was emancipated or was under the legal control of Miss Towner, but, on the contrary, it appears that she was in neither situation, and that her father, who was domiciled and actually resides in the state of New York, will continue to make provision for her future support and comfort.

The Court found that the general principal that a resident includes any person who comes into the State and remains with the intention to make it his/her permanent abode does not apply to a child who was brought or sent into the State by a parent or guardian who was a non-resident, for the purpose of receiving an education in the public schools of this State. "The permanent residence of the father is that of the child, until the latter is emancipated and chooses a place of residence of its own." (Ibid.)

However, in its analysis, the Court placed emphasis upon the concept of "legal control" of a child as relevant to determining domicile issues. Id. at 478-479. The Court noted in this respect that 'other persons having legal control' > would manifestly include foster parents who have lawfully adopted children or those to whose care and custody children are committed by operation of law, & c. . . . the persons indicated by this section, as those having legal control, must have the legal status of parent or guardian.

> [Id. at 479.]

Finally, the Court stressed that

> [A] child, in law, can have no residence of its own, and can only lawfully acquire one when it has been emancipated. Its residence under the School Law follows that of its parent or guardian or other person having legal control of it."
> [Id. at 479-480.]

Discussion and application of the traditional approach to domicile questions was addressed by Judge LeFelt in V.R. on Behalf of A.R. v. Bd. of Ed. Bor. of Hamburg, 2 N.J.A.R. 283 EDU (1980), aff'd State Bd., 1981 S.L.D. 1533, rev'd on other grounds, Rabinowitz v. N.J. State Bd. of Ed., 550 Fed. Supp. 481 (D.N.J. 1982) (V.R.). Petitioner, a New York resident, sought an order compelling the Borough of Hamburg Board of Education to provide a free education to his minor handicapped daughter, whose all-year-round continuous dwelling had been in Hamburg since 1975. For four years prior to the litigation, the child had not attended nor been enrolled in any educational program. She lived, since 1975, with an unrelated resident in Hamburg, who was paid by V.R. for looking after A.R., and was therefore unable to affirm a willingness to support A.R. gratis, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b). The ALJ acknowledged that the traditional approach was not absolute:

> The law establishing an infant's domicile seems based on the rationale that an unemancipated person receives his or her custody, support and maintenance from the father, regardless of the child's physical location. . . . Changing times should, therefore, affect the domicile law only when the factual situation undercuts this rationale.
> [V.R.. at 286 (citations omitted).]

In determining that the child did not qualify for a free public education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), the judge noted that:

> The fact that a third person provides the day-to-day care and control of A.R. at the request of A.R.'s parents seems insufficient to overturn normal domicile principles. Thus, in the absence of a legal termination of parental responsibility, a finding that A.R.'s domicile is in New York would not be mechanical, but rather would be a reasonable application of the general rule. Wherever A.R. is placed by her parents, until emancipation, > her domicile must remain in New York, as long as her parents live there. Control, in a legal sense, over A.R.'s life clearly rests with her parents.

> [Id. at 287 (citations omitted).]

I am persuaded that, if applicable, petitioner has not demonstrated compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b). The record does not establish that R.B. is incapable of supporting or providing care for M.L. because of a family or economic hardship. R.B. is employed, and M.L. resided with her prior to October 1995. Mere preference to reside with one family member rather than another is not sufficient pursuant to the statutory provision in question.

However, I am persuaded that petitioner has established, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that M.L. is currently domiciled in West Orange pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) and is therefore entitled to a free public education in West Orange pursuant to that provision.

As noted in V.R., supra., the traditional notion that a child's domicile automatically follows that of a natural parent is still applicable but not strictly, depending on the circumstances of a particular case. In both Mansfield, supra., and V.R., the concepts of custody and legal control were deemed pivotal in determining whether domicile is established for purposes of obtaining a free public education. In addition, as noted in both cases, the existence of a custody order may be an indication that legal control is with an individual other than the natural parent.

The October 2, 1995 power of attorney and, more significantly, the custody order of October 6, 1995 lend support to a conclusion that M.L. is domiciled in West Orange pursuant to the school laws. L.A.'s relationship with M.L. lends some support to such a conclusion, although it is not determinative. At this time, L.A. clearly has legal control over M.L., even if M.L. may visit her mother during the summer. I am also not persuaded that M.L.'s and R.B.'s motives pertinent to the custody order are determinative. The order must be accepted on its face.

Respondent relies on Cranford Twp. Bd. of Ed. v. M.C.G., 95 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 74 (1994), in which the presiding administrative law judge, and subsequently the Commissioner, rejected a claim that a custody order, by itself, gave students, who allegedly lived with their grandmother in Cranford, a right to a free public education in Cranford. I note, parenthetically, that the custody order was of a temporary nature. More importantly, however, the ALJ's and the Commissioner's analyses focused on N.J.S.A. 13A:38-1(b), not N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), and their analyses regarding issues of legal control seems somewhat at odds with the analyses in Mansfield and V.R.

CONCLUSION

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that M.L. is domiciled in West Orange, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), and that respondent is therefore required to provide her with a free public education pursuant to that provision.

ORDER

Respondent is hereby ORDERED to provide M.L. with a free public education. It is also ORDERED that neither petitioner nor R.B. be required to reimburse respondent for the cost of educational services provided by respondent to M.L. to date.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) contending, inter alia, that this matter should be decided under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, rather than N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1a, in that M.L. is not domiciled in respondent's School District, so that the order granting L.M. custody of M.L. is not determinative to this case. (Respondent's Exceptions at pp. 1-3) Rather, respondent avers, the matter should be decided in accordance with Cranford Twp. Bd. of Ed. v. McG., 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 74 (1994), which was decided pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, despite petitioner's possession of a custody order. (Respondent's Exceptions at pp. 3-4) Respondent states,

> Here, as in Cranford, the petitioner's acquisition of a custody order should not permit her to circumvent the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b). As the Commissioner well knows, these custody orders are easily obtainable. They are used by the holders, the affidavit hosts, to gain admission to school districts for their affidavit pupils. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 4)

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, M.L. is domiciled in respondent's District. In so ruling, the Commissioner is satisfied that the ALJ considered the applicability of the Cranford decision to the present case, as well as related case law and pertinent statutory provisions. The Commissioner further finds that the facts in Cranford, supra, are clearly distinguishable from the present case in that R.B. has legal and physical custody of M.L.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL that M.L. is entitled to a free public education and that neither petitioner nor R.B. is required to submit reimbursement to respondent for the cost of educational services provided to M.L. prior to the date of this decision.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teaching staff member, challenged her school evaluation as English Department Building Supervisor as arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. District contended petition was untimely filed.

ALJ concluded that, notwithstanding whether petitioner's pro se letter which preceded her petition or her actual petition of appeal was considered, her claim was time-barred by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2.

Commissioner adopted findings and conclusion of the ALJ as his own. Petition was dismissed as untimely filed.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This case comes by way of verified petition filed with the Department of Education on October 31, 1995. An answer was filed on November 20, 1995 and on November 27, 1995 the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law

(OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A settlement conference was held in the matter on June 19, 1996 and a hearing date was scheduled for September 12, 1996. The hearing date was adjourned and the matter was determined to be decided upon the papers.

MOTION FOR SUMMARY DECISION BY RESPONDENT

This matter comes by way of a petition filed challenging an evaluation received by petitioner in the course of her employment on June 15, 1995. The respondent filed a motion to dismiss the petition and requested summary decision in the matter on the basis that the filing of the petition was not timely and did not fit the 90-day rule found in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 regarding filing and service of petition.

The facts in this case necessary to make a determination with respect to timeliness are not in dispute. Although petitioner's counsel argues in his papers that his client originally filed a letter with the Department of Education and that the subsequent petition of October 27, 1995 which was filed on October 30, 1995 is essentially, the embodiment of a timely letter to the Commissioner. The pro se letter which preceded the actual petition in this matter was stamped "filed" at the Office of the Commissioner of Education October 16, 1995 at 10:37 a.m. The envelope in which it was mailed indicates a postage date of October 11, 1995.

The question is one of timeliness. It is clear that whether counting from the time of the pro se letter or from the time of the petition both of these items complaining of the evaluation were filed outside the 90 days. The evaluation took place on June 15, 1995 and no letter of complaint or petition was filed by September 13, 1995. In fact the letter of complaint which was the deficient document and was returned to petitioner who then consulted with an attorney was not stamped "filed" with the Department of Education until October 16, 1995. That is more than one month beyond the 90-day period.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 in order to initiate a contested case for the Commissioner's determination the petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing. The 90-day requirement has been strictly construed by the Commissioner of Education, the State Board of Education and the courts. North Plainfield Education Association v. Board of Ed., 96 N.J. 587, 96 N.J. 587, 594 (1984).

While counsel argues that the only defect is that petitioner filed a letter in time but did so defectively that clearly is not correct.

Counsel argues that in a case such as this it should be treated as though petitioner wrote the letter timely and then upon receiving a letter from the Commissioner advising her how to correct any defects she then, through her attorney, filed an appropriate petition. The argument however is predicated upon the timeliness of the original letter to the Commissioner. The documentation shows that the original letter was not timely nor was the subsequent petition.

As a result the petitioner must be dismissed as not meeting the constraints of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) and as being outside the 90 days required by the rule.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent's motion for summary decision be and hereby is GRANTED and that the petition in the instant matter be and hereby is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon such review, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that, notwithstanding whether petitioner's pro se letter which preceded her petition or her actual petition of appeal is considered, her within claim is time-barred by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. The Commissioner further concludes that neither the circumstances of this case nor any argument advanced by petitioner presents any equitable grounds or meritorious factual explanation to justify the relaxation of this rule.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons expressed therein. Summary decision is hereby granted to respondent and the instant Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

BEFORE: ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about October 23, 1995, respondent, Lakeland Regional High School District moved for an Order to Show Cause by the Commissioner of Education seeking the suspension of the teaching certificate of respondent for unprofessional conduct pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10. The Commissioner of Education signed the Order to Show Cause on November 16, 1995. By letter dated November 16, 1995, Deborah M. Antanaitis, Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, advised counsel for petitioner that the Order was to initiate proceedings to consider the suspension of respondent's certificate for resigning from employment with petitioner on inadequate notice. On January 2, 1996, respondent filed an answer to petitioner's Order to Show cause, and on January 18, 1996, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The case was assigned to the undersigned judge on February 23, 1996, and a telephone prehearing conference scheduled for May 1, 1996. The prehearing conference was adjourned at the request of respondent and held on May 28, 1996. On that date the issues were isolated, and a hearing scheduled for September 24, 1996 at the Office of Administrative Law. The parties filed a joint stipulation of facts on September 13, 1996 and appeared for hearing on September 24, 1996. On that date, settlement conferences were held and a settlement was reached. Thus, the hearing was not held.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached Stipulation of Settlement, indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement, and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

The record and initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

The Commissioner approves the settlement terms and adopts the settlement as the final decision in this matter. The Commissioner notes, however, that the terms of the settlement appear to already have been effectuated through the Board's appointment of petitioner to a 12-month secretarial position commencing July 1, 1996, and by her reporting to work on November 11, 1996. The Commissioner, thus, admonishes the parties that settlements of controverted matters are of no force or effect and may not be implemented absent the Commissioner's approval, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board contested Department's determination that it was responsible for paying educational costs of M.M., minor child in a residential treatment center, for the 1993-94 school year. Matter was remanded by the Commissioner for additional fact-finding as necessary to clarify discrepancy in critical testimony.

In light of testimony of witnesses and the record in this matter, the ALJ found that there was no evidence that M.M.'s mother, V.M., resided in Wildwood on October 15, 1993. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 provides that the school district responsible for a child's education is the "present district of residence" of the parent or guardian, which is the residence of the parent as of the last school day prior to October 16. ALJ could not determine where V.M. resided on October 15, 1993, but he was satisfied by the evidence that she did not reside in Wildwood on that date. Therefore, ALJ concluded that the State was the proper party to assume financial responsibility for M.M. during the 1993-94 school year and not the Wildwood Board.

Commissioner set aside the initial decision of the ALJ. Commissioner found that the Board failed to meet its burden of proving that Wildwood was not responsible for M.M.'s educational costs. Commissioner noted it was of no import that V.M. did not reside in Wildwood on October 15, 1993, since, if the finder of fact cannot determine where V.M. resided as of that date, as the ALJ could not, then, according to N.J.S.A. 18A:7b-12b, Wildwood, as the district of prior residence, was responsible for M.M.'s tuition for the 1993-94 school year.

JoAnn Fitzpatrick, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent, (Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: September 3, 1996 Decided: September 27, 1996

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent, New Jersey State Department of Education (DOE), charged the petitioner, Board of Education of Wildwood (W.W.) with the cost of the education of M.M., a minor child, at Bonnie Brae Residential Treatment Center (B.B.), for the 1993-94 school year.

M.M. was placed at B.B. by the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS). The basis of the charge was that at the time of placement on November 23, 1992, M.M.'s mother resided in Wildwood, New Jersey. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 provided that the school district responsible for a child's education is the present district of residence of the parent or guardian. If this cannot be determined, then the responsible district is the district is which the child resided prior to placement. If the district of residence of the parent cannot be determined according to the following criteria or if the district of residence is outside the state, the State shall assume fiscal responsibility for the child's education. The criteria identifies the "present district of residence" as the residence of the parent as of the last school day prior to October 16. N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.3.

An Initial Decision was rendered in the matter on August 17, 1995. On October 6, 1995, the Commissioner ordered that the matter be remanded to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) so that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) could "reconcile" the contradiction between witness Lewis' written comments and his telephonic testimony. The matter was transmitted to the OAL on October 17, 1995. The parties agreed that a transcript of Lewis' testimony would help to resolve the problem and transcripts were ordered. The record closed thereafter on September 3, 1996.

During the plenary hearing the parties agreed that M.M.'s mother resided in W.W. on November 23, 1992, when she signed the necessary authorizations for DYFS to enroll M.M. in B.B.

The DOE called Glenn Daisey as its witness. He was the DYFS worker who obtained M.M.'s mother's signature on November 23, 1992, and who was the case worker assigned to M.M.'s family. He testified after November 23, 1992 that he never again saw M.M.'s mother.

Daisey did attempt to track M.M.'s mother after she left W.W. He obtained information that she resided in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania in December of 1992; her other son of whom she also had custody was registered in a Philadelphia school at that time.

Daisy next learned that M.M.'s mother enrolled him (her other son) in the Millville School system in 1994. Daisy tracked down her landlord in Millville who told him that M.M.'s mother lived in Millville until January 1994.

This was the total proof offered by the DOE and clearly indicates no basis whatsoever to find that M.M.'s mother resided in W.W. on October 15, 1993. There is not a hint in the testimony that she was even seen in Wildwood again after November 23, 1992. All the inferences are that she was not in Wildwood after that date. Her son who remained with her and in her custody was enrolled in schools in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania and Millville, New Jersey, not Wildwood, New Jersey.

W.W. however, employed a private detective who did locate M.M.'s mother. He located her in Orlando, Florida through her landlord Paul Lewis. The detective interviewed Lewis by telephone and sent him a Certification to sign. Paul Lewis signed the Certification prepared by the private detective which requested that Lewis fill in the dates M.M.'s mother resided at 1261 23rd Street in Orlando. Lewis did fill in the dates. In the blank following the word "FROM DATE," Lewis wrote "Prior to Sept. '94." In the space following "TO" he wrote "Oct. 1, 1994." Then Lewis signed the document and added a footnote. The footnote reads in its entirety as follows: "Last year app. 6/93 thru 9/93 they rented from me @1261-23rd St." Thereafter he affixed another signature.

During his telephone testimony at the OAL hearing, Lewis clearly identified the family of which he spoke as V.M. (M.M.'s mother) her son (not M.M.) and her paramour. In fact, it was through the paramour that Douglas was able to trace the family because the paramour (now deceased) was receiving dialysis.

Lewis is a landlord who operated approximately 100 properties for approximately 200 tenants in 1993 and 1994. He kept records for his accountant and then disposed of anything not required by the IRS.

He distinctly recalled that V.M. and her family lived at 1216-B Twenty Fifth Street, a one bedroom apartment. When a two bedroom apartment opened up at 1261 23rd Street in "six of '93" they moved in and remained there until "nine of '93" at which time the family left and moved to "1245 Twenty-third Street."

Lewis said he subsequently purchased 1245 Twenty-third Street in August of 1994. Sometime after he purchased it, V.M. moved out.

The testimony of Lewis clearly explains what appears to be a gap in his written response to Douglas' form. At sometime she lived in a property he did not own and at a different address than Douglas listed on the form.

Lewis' testimony can be summarized as follows: V.M., her son, and her paramour rented a one bedroom apartment from him prior to June 1, 1993, at 1216-B Twenty-fifth Street in Orlando, Florida. From there they moved to 1261 Twenty-third Street in June of 1993 and remained there until September of 1993. Lewis owned both of these properties. In September of 1993, the family moved to 1245 Twenty-third Street, a property Lewis did not own. They remained there until at least August of 1994, because in August of 1994, Lewis purchased 1245 Twenty-third Street and shortly after he purchased it, she moved out. On the form provided by Douglas only the address of 1261 23rd Street appears, obviously a mistake.

It is clear that all the evidence in this case points to the fact that V.M. has not resided in W.W. since at least December of 1992. The DOE produced evidence that V.M. was residing in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania in December of 1992. The DOE also provided evidence that M.M.'s brother was enrolled in school in Millville, New Jersey for one week. The DOE's witness located V.M.'s landlord in Millville, New Jersey, who said she left there in January of 1994. Perhaps she came north from Orlando on a holiday visit, we do not know. But it is clear she was back in Orlando shortly thereafter. Lewis saw her in 1245 Twenty-third Street when he was buying the property and she left shortly after he bought the property in August of 1994.

As a result I FIND that there is absolutely no evidence that M.M.'s mother resided in W.W. on October 15, 1993.

I FURTHER FIND that all the evidence produced by the parties compels one to the belief that M.M.'s mother left W.W. by at least December 1992, when she resided in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Furthermore, I FIND that M.M.'s mother resided in Orlando, Florida from sometime prior to June 1993 until August of 1994, except for a short stay in Millville, New Jersey in January 1994.

I cannot determine where V.M. resided on October 15, 1993, but I am satisfied by the evidence produced at this hearing that she did not reside in Wildwood, New Jersey on that date.

I CONCLUDE that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(d) the State is the proper party to assume financial responsibility for M.M. during the 1993-94 school year and not the Wildwood Board of Education.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF WILDWOOD, CAPE MAY COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION ON REMAND
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent asserts that the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) "does not rest on substantial, credible evidence in the record and also misinterprets the statutory and regulatory requirements for determining the district of residency for years subsequent to [M.M.'s] original placement" in November 1992. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 1) In this regard, respondent contends that the ALJ incorrectly applied the pertinent statute and regulations. Respondent considers the ALJ's statement that he could not determine where V.M. resided on October 15, 1993, yet was satisfied that she did not reside in Wildwood on that date.

>  Moreover, the ALJ noted that the testimony of Glenn Daisey, M.M.'s DYFS caseworker, indicated that there was no basis whatsoever to indicate that V.M. lived in Wildwood, New Jersey on October 15, 1993. These two statements alone demonstrate that the ALJ has misinterpret [sic] the criteria to the extent that the respondent must prove that M.M. was living in Wildwood as of October 15, 1993 and, if it cannot, then the DOE is liable. This is clearly incorrect since, as the above criteria indicates [sic], if the residence of V.M. as of this date cannot be proved, then her district of residency as of M.M.'s initial placement, Wildwood, is the district which is responsible for the 1993-94 school year. (Id. at p. 3)

Citing Board of Education of the City of Atlantic City v. New Jersey Department of Education, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 545, 550 (1992), respondent warrants that the burden of proof should properly be placed upon the Board to challenge respondent's determination that Wildwood is the district responsible for the educational costs for M.M. for the 1993-94 school year. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 3) However, respondent argues that the Board's burden has not been met in that crucial testimony from Paul Lewis, a landlord in Orlando, Florida, "was inconsistent, not credible and cannot support a finding that V.M. resided in Orlando as of October 15, 1993." (Id. at p. 4) In this regard, respondent points out that Mr. Lewis had no documentation to support his conclusions or to verify where V.M. was on October 15, 1993; rather, he "was clearly relying on his memory when he stated that he saw V.M. at the 1245 23rd Street address some time after September of 1993 and could not even give the month in which he saw her." (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 6) Respondent concludes that the "haziness" of Lewis' testimony and the lack of documentation, but for "a contradictory unsworn statement from Lewis" compel a finding that the Board has failed to meet its burden and the Commissioner must, therefore, reverse the initial decision of the ALJ. (Id. at p. 7)

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, including the transcripts of the hearings held on March 31, 1995 and July 10, 1995, the Commissioner determines to reverse the initial decision of the ALJ, for the reasons set forth herein.

Initially, the Commissioner concurs with respondent that the ALJ incorrectly interpreted the pertinent statute in this matter. Specifically, it is of no import that V.M. did not reside in Wildwood on October 15, 1993, since, if the finder of fact cannot determine where V.M. resided as of that date, as the ALJ could not (initial decision at p. 5), then, according to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b, Wildwood, as the district of prior residence, is responsible for M.M.'s tuition for the 1993-94 school year.

As respondent properly notes, the burden of proof in this matter rests with petitioner to establish, by a preponderance of credible evidence, that the Department's determination to assign responsibility to the Board for M.M.'s tuition for the 1993-94 school year was either contrary to mandate, or was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. See Board of Education of the City of Atlantic City, supra. As respondent notes, the testimony of Paul Lewis is critical to the outcome of this matter, particularly given the paucity of documentary proofs to support the Board's claim. Had there been no evidence that V.M. was in Millville in January of 1994, then the Commissioner could find it more probable than not, even given the weaknesses in Lewis' testimony, that V.M. was in Orlando from approximately June 1993 until August 1994 when Lewis purchased the 23rd Street property V.M. had been renting. However, since there is credible evidence that V.M. left Florida at some point, and returned to New Jersey, the Commissioner cannot confidently rely on the record as it stands to determine, with any degree of certainty, that V.M. resided in Florida on October 15, 1993, so as to absolve the Board, as the district of prior residence, from responsibility for tuition payments in this matter.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is reversed for the reasons set forth herein, and M.M.'s residence for the 1993-94 school year is determined to be within the jurisdiction of the Board by virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b. The Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed and the Board is ordered to remit tuition payment, as determined by respondent to be due and owing for the 1993-94 school year.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

This case concerns a parent's appeal from a grade placement made by the Gloucester City Board of Education.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on September 3, 1996, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This Settlement Agreement ("Agreement") is made by and between Lori Walker (L.W.) on behalf of George Walker (G.W.), a minor child ("Petitioners"), and the Gloucester City Board of Education (Respondent") in L.W., on behalf of G.W. v. Gloucester City Board of Education, venued in the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") (EDU 8115-96).

WHEREAS, Petitioners filed a Petition of Appeal and Application for Emergent Relief seeking, in pertinent part, an Order directing that the Respondent: (1) award credit toward graduation for certain courses taken while G.W. was in the eighth grade at the Moorestown Friends School during the 1995-96 school year; and (2) place G.W. in the tenth grade for the 1996-97 school year in Gloucester City Public Schools;

WHEREAS, the Emergent Application was denied by Order dated September 9, 1996 which reserved the credit and placement issues for a plenary (full) hearing;

WHEREAS, the court supervised a Scheduling Conference convened on September 20, 1996 at which time the parties discussed and agreed to a settlement of these outstanding issues;

WHEREAS, the Petitioners and Respondent have determined to resolve this matter amicably and without resort to time consuming and costly litigation;

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties enter into this compromise Settlement Agreement and agree as follows:

1. G.W. will be placed in the tenth grade home room for the 1996-97 school year at Gloucester City Public Schools. His curriculum for the 1996-97 school year will be that which was agreed to and set forth in paragraph 3 of the Court's Order of September 9, 1996, subject to G.W.'s ability to continue demonstrating proficiency in undertaking the stipulated courses of study.

2. Petitioners agree that placement of G.W. in the tenth grade home room for the 1996-97 school year has no bearing on G.W.'s eligibility for graduation. Eligibility for graduation will be determined on the basis of G.W. satisfying the Respondent's graduation requirements, including the mandate that G.W. obtain the required number of high school credits toward graduation.

3. Respondent agrees to consider awarding credits toward graduation for high school or college courses taken by G.W. outside the Gloucester City Public Schools provided that:

(a) G.W. gives sufficient notice to Respondent of his intention to take a particular course to permit Respondent to adequately consider the course selection for the purpose of making a preliminary determination of whether the course warrants an award of credit toward graduation.

(b) G.W. obtains preliminary approval from Respondent for the course in advance of taking same, said determination being within the discretion of the school district.

(c) The course selection meets the standards of Respondent and the State Department of Education in terms of content, faculty credentials, number of hours, school accreditation, credit and other relevant factors.

(d) G.W. demonstrates proficiency in the subject matter of the course selection and successfully completes the course as determined by Respondent in accordance with its standards.

4. Petitioners understand and agree that petitioners will bear the entire cost of any course selection taken at an educational institution other than Gloucester City Public Schools.

5. Petitioners agree to dismiss the Petition of Appeal with prejudice and without costs. Petitioners understand that this will bar the graduation credit and placement claims raised by the Petition of Appeal from being raised in the future.

6. Petitioners hereby release and give up any and all claims and rights arising from the Petition of Appeal, including but not limited to, claims for credit toward graduation for courses G.W. took at Moorestown Friends School during the 1995-96 school year and for placement in the tenth grade for the 1996-97 school year in the Gloucester City Public Schools.

7. Nothing set forth in this Agreement, nor the execution of same, shall be construed or considered an admission of liability by the Respondent. The Respondent expressly denies any liability relating to Petitioner's claims.

8. This Agreement shall be executed and delivered, and it is intended to be performed, in the State of New Jersey, and all provisions hereof and all rights, obligations and liabilities arising hereunder shall be covered by and construed and enforced in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey without regard to any principles of choice of law that may otherwise be applicable.

9. This Agreement is binding upon and shall enure to the benefit of the Parties hereto and their respective heirs, executors, administrators, personal or legal representatives, successor and/or assigns.

10. If any Party by its actions or admissions, waives or is adjudged to have waived any breach of this Agreement by any other Party, any such waiver shall not operate or be construed or asserted as a waiver of any other or subsequent breach of this Agreement.

11. Except as may be otherwise provided by this Agreement, this Agreement can only be changed or modified by a written document executed by the Parties or by their respective heirs, executors, administrators, personal or legal representatives, successors and/or assigns.

The Parties hereto have set their hands and seals on this First day of November, 1996.

Lori Walker, on behalf of George Walker, a minor child

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parents alleged their daughter, E.S., was wrongfully denied admission into the sixth grade honors program for gifted and talented students.

ALJ concluded that the removal of E.S. from the District ended the controversy between the parties. ALJ found there was no immediate adversity herein to sustain a justiciable controversy. Matter was dismissed as moot.

Commissioner adopted the initial decision as his own, dismissing the matter as moot and concurring that the issues raised, concerning the Board's denial of E.S. to an honors program, are not of such substantial importance to otherwise mandate judicial review.

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

Petitioners filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"), alleging that their daughter was wrongfully denied placement in the Westwood Regional School District (District) honors program for gifted and talented students. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on January 18, 1996, for hearing. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. An in-person prehearing conference was held on May 20, 1996, and a prehearing order was issued on June 4, 1996. Pursuant to that Order, petitioners amended the petition to include the District and the Westwood Board of Education as respondents and to seek monetary relief as an alternate remedy.[1]

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND the following as FACT:

Petitioners' daughter, E.S., was enrolled as a fifth grade student in the District's Ketler Elementary School. The respondents are The Westwood Regional Board of Education ("Board"), the superintendent, Dr. Fisler and June Clark, the secretary of the Board. The respondents are responsible for operating the District schools. The District is comprised of the Borough of Westwood and Township of Washington. The District provides a sixth grade honors program as part of its gifted and talented program. Additionally, the District as an enrichment plan for its five elementary schools.

In 1990, the Board adopted a gifted and talented policy. It delegated to the District superintendent the authority to coordinate the development of criteria for the identification and acceptance of pupils into the honors program. The input of other members of the administration and teaching staff was solicited.

Placement in the honors program was based on an assessment of the highest score achieved on a matrix developed by the District and was also dependent on the proportionate number of students deemed eligible for the program. Each year, the principals of the five elementary schools in the District collectively recommended to the superintendent a cutoff matrix score for admission into the honors program. Since the students' matrix scores varied from year to year, the cutoff scores would change each year. For the 1994-1995 school year, the matrix scores of the enrolled students ranged from 37 to 57. For the 1995-1996 school year, the matrix scores of the enrolled students ranged from 52 to 72.[2]

[1] Petitioners' original petition named the secretary and the superintendent as the respondents. Further, the petitioners requested that E.S. be provided with a special advanced curriculum during the 1994-95 school year. By the time the matter was scheduled to be heard, E.S. no longer resided in the district.

In the 1994-1995 school year, E.S. had a matrix score of 46, and this was below the required matrix score of 52. Consequently, E.S. was not accepted into the 1995-96 honors program. The petitioners sought reconsideration by the superintendent and the board. The denial was subsequently affirmed by the board.

ARGUMENT

Petitioners allege that E.S. was improperly denied admission into the sixth grade honors program. Specifically, petitioners allege that E.S. is a "gifted and talented" child for whom special programs must be provided consistent with N.J.A.C. 6:8-4.5(4). Respondents have implemented an arbitrary and capricious selection process that violates N.J.A.C. 6:8-8.4.54. Petitioners request that the District be required to provide written administrative procedures for the identification of pupils with gifted and talented abilities before the next program participants are identified. Further, the petitioners request that respondents provide them with "funds" to enroll E.S. in a comparable gifted and talented program.

Respondents move to dismiss this matter on the grounds that the petitioners no longer reside in the district, and therefore the matter is moot.

DISCUSSION, FINDINGS AND CONCLUSION

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 provides for summary decision when the papers and discovery, together with the affidavits, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. An adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. Recently, in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurnce Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1985), the New Jersey Supreme Court set forth a more definitive standard for determining whether summary decision should be granted. The motion judge, after granting all favorable inferences to be drawn from the facts to the non-movants, is to engage in an analytical process essentially the same as that necessary to rule on a motion for a directed verdict:

> ". . . whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require submission to a jury or whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law. That weighing process requires the court to be guided by the same evidentialry standard of proof -- by a preponderance of the evidence or clear and convincing evidence -- that would apply at the trial on the merits when deciding whether there exists a "genuine" issue of material fact.
> [Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 533-34; citations omitted]

Finally,

> when the evidence is "so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law," the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment.
> [Id. at 540; citation omitted]

Applying the Brill standard to this matter, I FIND that summary decision is appropriate. I further FIND that the petition is moot and should be dismissed.

An action is considered moot when it no longer presents a justiciable controversy because the issues involved have become academic. A case is moot when a determination is sought on a matter which, when rendered, cannot have any practical effect on the existing controversy." Victoria v. Bd. of Ed. of the Twp. of Woodbridge, 1982 S.L.D. 1. Courts will not usually hear moot cases, for two reasons:

> First, for reasons of judicial economy and restraint, courts will not decide cases in which the issue is hypothetical, a judgment cannot grant effective relief, or the parties do not have concrete adversity of interest. Second, it is a premise of the Anglo-American judicial system that a contest engendered by genuinely conflicting self-interests of the parties is best suited to developing all relevant material before the court.

Anderson v. Sills, 143 N.J.Super. 432, 437-38 (Chan.Div. 1976). An exception to the general rule exists when issues are presented that "are of substantial importance and are capable of repetition yet evade review." In the Matter of J.I.S. Indus. Serv. Co. Landfill, 110 N.J. 101, 104 (1988). See also, Handabaka v. Div. of Consumer Affairs, 167 N.J.Super. 12, 14 (App.Div. 1979).

Likewise, the Commissioner of Education does not decide moot cases. J.B. v. Bd. of Ed. of Asbury Park, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 7940-87 (Oct. 12, 1988). In Feldman v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Linwood, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 1665-94, (Oct. 14, 1994), the petitioners therein argued that their child was being deprived of the opportunity to attend a gifted and talented program as required by N.J.A.C. 6:8-4.5(4), because the respondent school district did not have an honors program for first graders. During the pendency of the hearing, the petitioners transferred their child to a private school. It was held that the removal of A.F. from the Linwood school system and its policies and dictates destroyed the concrete, immediate adversity necessary to sustain a justiciable controversy. In F.G. v. Bd. of Ed. of Caldwell-West Caldwell, 76 S.L.D. 582, the beginning of a new school year mooted the issue of whether a child was properly placed in a combined grade classroom.

In Pinkham v. Bd. of the Borough of South River, 74 S.L.D. 1103, the petitioner failed a physical education course and consequently did not graduate. Petitioner sought relief seeking a diploma, alleging that a school requirement that female, but not male, physical education students take written exams constituted sex discrimination. This issue was held moot because the petitioner attended summer school and received her diploma. See Polskin v. North Plainfield Bd. of Ed., 1968 S.L.D. 217, (mooted because of changed circumstances, where the conclusion of the tennis season mooted a student's challenge of his exclusion from the team); Oxfeld v. N.J. State Bd. of Ed., 68 N.J. 301 (1975) (mooted by the New Jersey Supreme Court because the students had already graduated and were not subject to the regulation). In Prout v. Erickson, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 6980-80 (March 4, 1981), (the petitioner demanded that the alleged harassment of her children while in school be stopped. The matter was held moot because her children were no longer enrolled in the school. In Hulej v. Keyport High School, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 0893-79 (March 25, 1980), (a petition challenging respondent's "student behavior code" was dismissed for mootness when it was revealed at the hearing that petitioner removed her son from the public high school).

As in the Feldman case, E.S.'s enrollment in another school district destroys the concrete, immediate adversity necessary to sustain a justiciable controversy. The relief requested by petitioners, that respondent be required to approve written administrative procedures for identifying gifted and talented students, would have no effect on their daughter's education at another school. Therefore, the petitioners' interest in the outcome of the case is negated, and a ruling on the merits herein amounts to an impermissible hypothetical opinion.

Further, this matter is not one of substantial importance that demands a judicial review. See In the Matter of J.I.S. Indus. Serv. Co. Landfill, 110 N.J. 101, 104 (1988). In Handabaka v. Div. of Consumer Affairs, 167 N.J. Super. 12, 14 (App. Div. 1979), the court held that there is no "bright-line rule" for determining when a case is important enough to justify review despite its mootness. Thus, it has been found that an issue regarding who should pay costs for additional costs incurred in the cleanup of a landfill is important enough to justify review, J.I.S. Landfill, supra, while the issue of whether a regulation impinged on free-speech in a public school was not, Oxfeld, supra.

Petitioners' claim for money damages for private tutoring of their daughter does not alter the moot nature of this dispute, because such damages cannot be awarded by the Commissioner. Generally, the "award of damages to a person suffering monetary loss as the result of the unlawful action of a third party has traditionally been limited to judicial proceedings. Power to award damages will not be extended to an administrative body unless the legislative purpose to grant such power is plainly indicated." Jackson v. Concord Co., 101 N.J.Super. 126, 133 (App.Div. 1968).

The award of money damages in education cases occurs in a limited number of cases, such as for lost earnings, McLean v. Bd. of Ed. of Glen Ridge, 1977 S.L.D. 311, or restoring an increment improperly withheld, Smith v. Bd. of Ed. of Hamilton, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5468-87, adopted in part and rejected in part on other grounds, Comm. of Educ. (April 21, 1988). Further, the Commissioner cannot award punitive damages, North Bergen Fed. of Teachers v. Bd. of Ed. of Bergen, 1975 S.L.D. 461.

The Commissioner has authorized tuition reimbursement in special education cases, but such reimbursement is authorized by regulation. N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1(h). See also, J.B. v. Hamilton Twp. Bd. of Ed., 95 N.J.A.R.2d 64, 72. Tuition reimbursement has not been upheld unless specifically authorized. VM/O T, 1974 S.L.D. 420, 429 holding that the Commissioner can find no authority of law whereby, under those circumstances, he could order the Board to pay an award of monetary damages to the parents of T for expenditures for educational services they have privately obtained rather than availing themselves of the instructional program provided by the school district.

Neither N.J.A.C. 6:8-4.1 nor N.J.A.C. 6:8-4.5(a)(4) provides the Commissioner with the authority to award tuition reimbursement. Indeed, the latter regulation was not intended to impose greater substantive burdens on local districts. Rather, the intent was to recodify existing authority that the State standards for gifted and talented programs are guidelines and not a monitoring checklist. Kanter v. Mountain Lakes Bd. of Ed., 95 N.J.A.R.2d 454, 456, quoting Humcke v. Tinton Falls Bd. of Ed., 1981 S.L.D. 165.

Therefore, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the removal of E.S. from the Westwood Regional School District ended the controversy between the parties. There is no immediate adversity here to sustain a justicable controversy. Accordingly, the matter is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge to dismiss this matter as moot because petitioners no longer reside in respondents' District. The Commissioner further concurs that the issues raised, concerning the Board's denial of petitioners' child to an honors program for gifted and talented students, are not of such substantial importance to otherwise mandate judicial review. See In the Matter of J.I.S. Indus. Serv. Co. Landfill, supra.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the OAL and dismisses the instant Petition of Appeal.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
