All of these things considered, the least absurd interpretation of the amended statute is that a nontenured officer or employee who is not recommended for renewal by the chief school administrator is to be deemed nonrenewed unless the employee exercises his or her right to an informal appearance before the board. In that circumstance, notwithstanding the earlier language, the board once again has the final say. It can agree, or not, with the superintendent. If the Board agrees, no employment contract will issue. If the Board disagrees, an employment contract will issue notwithstanding the superintendent's recommendation. With the minor difference that the employee now must request an informal hearing before the Board to trigger the Board's consideration, the procedure is unchanged from that in the prior statute.

Applying this to the petitioner's situation, it must first be decided whether the new but not very different procedure is to be invoked because the petitioner's matter had proceeded through all steps except the informal appearance before the Board, which occurred on July 5, 1995, clearly after the amendment was signed into law. It seems apparent that the legislative and gubernatorial intents were that the amended act take effect immediately. Given the interpretation of the amended act, above, and the intent of the legislative and executive branches, the posture is now this. The petitioner was notified by letter dated May 12, 1995 that he would not be offered a contract for the 1995-96 school year. Stipulation 6. The petitioner requested a statement of reasons why he was not being offered a contract. Stipulation 7. The respondent informed the petitioner of the reasons he was not offered a contract for the 1995-96 school year in a letter dated June 14, 1995. Stipulation 8. The amended act that is the subject of this ruling was signed into law and became effective on June 19, 1995. At that point, the petitioner and the respondent were subject to the mandates of the amended act.

The petitioner requested an informal appearance before the Board pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2. He appeared before the Board on July 5, 1995. Stipulation 10. By letter dated July 7, 1995, the petitioner was notified that the Board had determined not to reverse the earlier decision not to offer him employment for 1995-96. Stipulation 11.

The Board did not act by a recorded roll call vote not to offer the petitioner a contract for the 1995-96 school year. Stipulation 13. The respondent Board and its agents apparently believed that the new legislation deemed the petitioner nonrenewed unless the superintendent changed his original recommendation. Therefore, the Board's decision not to renew the petitioner's employment was not reflected in a vote after the petitioner's appearance on July 5, 1995. Stipulation 13.

As of June 19, 1995, both parties were subject to the requirements of the amended statute. The petitioner has done all that he is required or permitted to do under the statute. He has requested and has received a written statement of reasons for nonrenewal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2. He has requested an informal appearance before the Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(b). That appearance has been granted. There is no statutory requirement that the Board do more than listen. The petitioner has had the opportunity to try to convince the members of the Board to offer reemployment. Apparently that attempt was unsuccessful. The new section created by c. 125, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 simply provides, "The purpose of the appearance shall be to permit the staff member to convince the members of the Board to offer reemployment. The chief school administrator shall notify the officer or employee of the nonrenewal pursuant, where applicable, to the provisions of section 1 of [N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10]." All that this requires is that the superintendent timely convey the results of the Board's consideration to the nonrenewed employee.

Despite the volume of this analysis, it leads to a simple conclusion. The petitioner has received all consideration he is entitled to receive under the statute as amended. Coincidentally, the procedure is the same as it would have been under the statute before amendment. The fact that the legislative intent was different from the legislative product is not unimportant. However, whether because of unartful drafting, error or any other reason, the amended statute does not state the legislative intent. The statute says what it says. If the present language could be read in such a way as to harmonize it with the intent, I would be obligated to do so. No matter how the present language is viewed, there is no way to harmonize the language and the apparent intent without torturing the plain meaning of the words used.

The petitioner's motion for partial summary judgment on Count I of this petition, therefore is DENIED. The respondent Board's motion for partial summary judgment on Count I is DENIED. As the relevant statutes presently stand, I cannot remand the matter to the Brielle Board of Education with a directive that it render a decision on the issue of the petitioner's nonrenewal subsequent to the petitioner's appearance on July 7, 1955, because the Board has done all it is required to do in that respect. Nor can I grant the Board's request to render a decision that, in the absence of the superintendent's recommendation, the petitioner was deemed not renewed and that the Board may not vote on the petitioner's renewal, or not, in the absence of that recommendation. In point of fact, the posture of the case now is that it is over. The Board, perhaps accidentally, has done all it is required to do. The petitioner, also perhaps accidentally, has received the process he is entitled to receive. I therefore recommend to the Commissioner of Education that the present appeal be DISMISSED, because there is no relief that can be afforded to the petitioner and there is no useful direction that can be given to the Board. Ultimately, of course, the matter is one for legislative consideration. Until and unless that consideration is given, the present state of affairs obtains and, as the parties here will likely agree, that is an unsatisfactory condition.

This order may be reviewed by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION either upon interlocutory review, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10, or at the end of the contested case, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6.

ANGELO VELASQUEZ,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
PETITIONER,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
V.	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF BOROUGH OF BRIELLE, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

This matter has come before the Commissioner by way of request for interlocutory review, filed by petitioner on March 15, 1996, of the ALJ's initial decision on cross motions for partial summary decision.

In his request, which was unopposed by respondent, petitioner argues that a conflict exists between the ALJ's reasoning on the effect of the statutory amendment at issue and his application of that reasoning to the current factual situation. The two components of the initial decision, petitioner contends, cannot be juxtaposed and must be reviewed and corrected by the Commissioner so that this matter may proceed properly hereafter. Petitioner reasons:

> The Administrative Law Judge determined that despite the amendment, an employee may trigger the ultimate decision-making process to revert to the Board of Education by seeking reasons for his termination and requesting an appearance pursuant to N.J.S.A. 6:3-4.2 [sic]. As he concludes in his decision, "...the Board once again has the final say" (citation). Finally, he evaluates the amendment to indicate that the employee must simply request an informal hearing before the Board to trigger the Board's consideration and therefore, that portion of the procedure is unchanged from the procedure in the prior statute (citation).
> The Respondent [sic] concurs with the reasoning and submits that as a result of that decision, the Board then has an obligation to make a decision by voting on the issue of whether or not to re-employ the employee.
> The Order in this matter which denies the request to remand the case to the Board flies directly in the face of the reasoning set forth above. In fact, the accuracy of this argument is supported by the Board's cross motion for partial summary judgment which sought a declaration that it need not vote on the issue, absent a change in the Superintendent's recommendation. Clearly, both sides agree that the present procedural process utilized by the Board is inappropriate unless the decision-making power of the Board in a formal fashion is somehow altered by the statutory amendment. By concluding otherwise, the Administrative Law Judge cannot logically determine that the Board has "...done all it is required to do in that respect" (citation).

If the Commissioner does not review and correct the current order, a markedly incongruous result will take place. The language in the decision will support the position that the Board has the authority, after an informal hearing under N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2 to resolve the situation, but, also, that it need not vote on the issue if the Superintendent doesn't alter his recommendation. Therefore, although a majority of the Board may wish to re-employ the non-tenured party, they will be impotent to accomplish this intention after the hearing, because the Superintendent did not alter his recommendation. Clearly, that result would be at direct variance with the analysis of the amendment the Administrative Law Judge reached in his decision.

Therefore, both logic and law dictate that, in accordance with the analysis rendered by the Administrative Law Judge, the relief of remand in order for the Board to officially act on the issue of [petitioner's] re-employment by a vote on the issue, is required. (Letter Memorandum in Support of Request for Interlocutory Review, at pp. 3-5)

Thus, petitioner accepts and advocates the ALJ's basic interpretation of the statute at issue, but contends that such interpretation must lead to a different conclusion with respect to the Board's ability and obligation to vote following an employee's nonrenewal appearance.

Upon review and consideration, however, the Commissioner does not agree with the ALJ's underlying interpretation, holding instead that, contrary to the ALJ's assertion, the plain language of the statute does not force a result that is at odds with the overall legislative intent of P.L. 1995, c. 125.

Although the sponsor's statement to Assembly Bill 2410 does not specifically mention the Rotondo Appellate Division decision, the timing of its introduction and the stated purpose of the bill clearly indicate that it was proposed in response to that decision, as it seeks to modify statute to produce precisely the result sought by the Commissioner and the State Board prior to reversal by the Appellate Division:[1]

> This bill clarifies the role of the chief school administrator in school board employment decisions. The bill provides that a board of education would appoint, transfer or remove a certificated or non-certificated officer or employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board. In the case of a contract to be renewed, the bill requires the recommendation of the chief school administrator and a simple majority vote of the board.A nontenured officer or employee who is not recommended for renewal by the chief school administrator would be deemed nonrenewed. (Sponsor's Statement to Assembly Bill 2410)

Subsequent amendment by the Assembly Education Committee added language regarding a statement of reasons and the right to an appearance before the board, as well as requiring a recorded roll call (rather than a simple) majority vote for renewals. However, it left the overall intent of the bill intact, as indicated by the Assembly Education Committee Statement to Assembly Bill No. 2410 with Committee Amendments, which reiterated the sponsor's language as cited above.

Thus, it can be inferred that the intent of the Legislature was to follow the directive of the court stating that, notwithstanding considerations of educational policy, in as much as existing statutory provisions could not support the interpretation accorded them by the Commissioner and State Board of Education in their decisions in the Rotondo matter:

> "If a new answer is to be reached, it is the Legislature that has to reach it. It seems plain to us that in those specific circumstances in which the Legislature wanted the [chief school administrator] to control the appointment of professional personnel by granting or withholding approval, it clearly said so. The absence of such a provision in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1 seems dispositive to us."

The ALJ found that, notwithstanding the Legislature's intent, its inclusion of language entitling a nonrenewed employee to an appearance before the board for the purpose of permitting the employee to convince the board to offer reemployment compelled a conclusion that the board had an option to offer, or not offer, reemployment regardless of the recommendation of the superintendent. The ALJ then concluded that if the board chose the latter, as in the present situation, it need do nothing more, i.e., it need not specifically so vote and inform the employee, as it would if it opted to renew employment.

The Commissioner, however, finds that the law's statements of legislative intent as noted above, its legislative history and its undisputed origin as a response to the Appellate Division's decision in Rotondo, supra, require its language to be read in a way that will not permit a board to offer reemployment to a staff member not recommended by the superintendent, and that such a reading can be accomplished without doing violence to the plain language of the law.

As noted by the ALJ, the P.L. 1995, c. 125 establishes a framework wherein recommendations for specified personnel actions are to be made by the superintendent to the board; the board can then agree or not. In the case of contract renewal for nontenured staff, the law specifically provides that contracts shall be renewed only upon the superintendent's recommendation and a majority vote of the full board. That the Legislature chose to amend the original bill to retain the employee's existing right to a statement of reasons and appearance before the board in the event of a nonrenewal was not intended to, and does not, alter this result.[2] Rather, it simply provides a mechanism by which a staff member whose renewal has not been recommended by the superintendent can appeal to the board, on which the superintendent specifically sits as a nonvoting member pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A: 17-20, in the hope of persuading district decision makers to take favorable action on his or her renewal. In the case of the superintendent, that action would be a recommendation for reemployment, and in the case of the voting members of the board, an offer of reemployment based upon the superintendent's recommendation. To conclude from the statute's ultimate inclusion of this long-standing due process mechanism, as do petitioner and the ALJ (albeit the latter somewhat reluctantly), that the

[2] In fact, the Commissioner's decision in Rotondo expressly noted that, in cases of employee contract renewal, recommendation by the superintendent was a necessary prerequisite to any board offer of reemployment notwithstanding the employee's right to a hearing before the board, which might (and actually did in the Rotondo case) persuade a majority of board members to wish to offer reemployment contrary to the superintendent's recommendation.

Legislature intended, or that the statute permits, boards to offer reemployment to a staff member not recommended by the superintendent, ignores both the context of the specific language being relied upon and the overall scheme of the legislative enactment.

In the matter herein, then, as concluded by the ALJ but for different reasons, the Commissioner finds that petitioner has in fact received all that he is entitled to receive and there is no relief that can be granted with respect to Count One of the petition.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing Count One of the petition is modified as set forth above. The remainder of the petition, presently pending before the ALJ, shall proceed to disposition as appropriate in light of the Commissioner's ruling on Count One above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 11047-95

AGENCY REF. NO. DHP #460

GARY ROBINSON,

Petitioner,

v.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

Respondent.

Gary Robinson, petitioner, pro se

Department of Education, appearing without representation on the papers pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.6

Record Closed: January 10, 1996 Decided: February 21, 1996

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

This matter comes by way of a remand from a Commissioner of Education in order to allow petitioner to show evidence of rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 so as to contest his disqualification from school employment, specifically that of a school bus driver.

The decision remanding this case was dated August 4, 1995 and the matter was received at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 20, 1995 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A hearing was scheduled for January 10, 1995 at which time documents were entered into the record as well as testimony taken from the petitioner. On that date the hearing record closed.

FACTS

The facts in this case are not in dispute. The petitioner received a denial and disqualification of school employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6.7.1 based upon the results of a criminal history check which indicated the following offenses:

1. September 27, 1985, possession of marijuana. Sentence date October 9, 1985, required to pay $100 fine.

2. December 16, 1985, possession of marijuana. Sentence date, January 8, 1986, required to pay $100 fine.

These two offenses were considered by the Department of Education as disqualifying offenses for employment as a school bus driver. Additionally the Department of Education listed four other offenses which they felt fell into the "nondisqualifying" criminal history record. They are:

1. December 16, 1985, illegal possession of alcohol. Fine of $100 fine plus $25 court cost.

2. August 18, 1986, burglary. Sentence date, August 27, 1986, required to pay $525 fine.

3. November 14, 1986, receiving stolen property. Sentence date, December 23, 1986 to 30 days county jail suspended, $520 fine.

4. July 17, 1989, simple assault. Sentence date, July 31, 1989 with a sentence of 45 days in the county jail and a $225 fine.

The remand in this case is to allow petitioner a chance to establish a record in support of his contention that he has satisfied the statutory standard for rehabilitation. This is predicated upon the factors set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 which include "any evidence of rehabilitation."

Petitioner testified that he has been arrested and convicted of marijuana in his possession in a motor vehicle. He also acknowledges a disorderly persons offense of assault which occurred in 1989. The petitioner stated that he has put all of these adverse behaviors behind him and that he does not "hang" with people with drugs. His conditional driver's license (CDL) has been taken away and he is now almost 29 years of age. At the time of the majority of the offenses he was approximately eighteen. Since then he has gotten married, had a child, separated from his wife and is now divorced. He himself has custody of his son who is four years of age and the child stays with his parents and uncle.

Petitioner works for Wilkerson Transportation as an assistant which is a job created because he lost his CDL. He has lost a considerable amount of money due to this and feels that he has been rehabilitated. He attends church regularly and spends time with his son.

Petitioner explained that the assault charge arose out of a police officer hitting him at which time he was under the influence of alcohol. As a result he pled guilty to simple assault and did not appeal. No appeal has ever been filed nor is pending at this time.

Subsequent to this he moved to Virginia and moved in with his grandmother. He has been drug tested several times and each time has come up clean. He stated he does not use drugs. He also no longer fights. According to him he lost close to $40,000 due to the effects his behavior had on his work status.

Wilkerson Transportation handles only school buses. It is a family owned business and that is why he has had a job specially created for him. He indicated that he makes more money driving rather than acting as an assistant. Wilkerson handles school district contracts. He also works for a security firm and intends to continue doing so.

Petitioner stated adamantly that people can and do change. He stated that he no longer does the things that got him in trouble when he was eighteen years of age.

Petitioner has a job awaiting him but he is unable to get it if he is excluded from school employment and unable to drive a school bus.

Petitioner stated that he did not go to counseling because there was no requirement and he did not believe it was needed. The drug testing that he submitted to was at random through his employment, and on each occasion was negative.

DISCUSSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:6.7.1 provides in pertinent part:

> e. Notwithstanding the provisions of this section an individual shall not be disqualified from employment or service under this act on the basis of any conviction disclosed by a criminal record check performed pursuant to this act if the individual has affirmatively demonstrated to the Commissioner of Education clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. In determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation, the following factors shall be considered:
> (1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

(4) The date of the offense;

(5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;

(6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic and vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the individual under supervision.

Petitioner provided a number of letters on his behalf to attest to his good character. It is interesting to know that each of these letters indicates that he has been working in the security field for three years and that the individuals have known him for three years and find him to be reliable.

There is also an anomaly in this case. In the remand it indicates that the Deputy Commissioner considered the simple assault conviction as a "nondisqualifying" offense. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1 the law considers "assault" as a disqualifying offense for individuals seeking employment as school bus drivers, whether a disorderly persons offense or greater.

While the petitioner in this case has put forth a good case to show that he is working toward, and is in fact turning his life around, the convictions listed and most especially in 1989 assault conviction is troubling. Had the convictions been distant in time it would have been easier to determine whether or not rehabilitation had been established by the petitioner. Even with the letters on the petitioner's behalf the criminal history check weighs heavily and the 1989 assault conviction has not been overcome by the factors presented by the petitioner at the hearing.

As a result I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to satisfy the standards enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 for demonstrating rehabilitation. This determination is made taking into account all pertinent circumstances including any and all evidence of rehabilitation which was presented at the hearing by the petitioner. While petitioner points out that he is now 28 and that the majority of the offenses occurred when he was 18 it should be pointed out that the assault charge occurred in petitioner's 20s and cannot be attributed merely to youthful exuberance or inexperience.

This decision should not be meant to discourage the petitioner from continuing his efforts at rehabilitation at which time a new application may be brought for consideration to the Department of Education.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that, based upon a failure to provide sufficient proof of rehabilitation, the petitioner has not met his burden of establishing same by clear and convincing evidence and his petition is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision on this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that Mr. Robinson has not met his burden of establishing rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and is, therefore, not qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws.

Accordingly, Mr. Robinson's disqualification from school employment is sustained for the reasons clearly articulated by the ALJ in her initial decision. This matter is hereby transmitted to the State Board of Education which has retained jurisdiction pursuant to its decision of August 2, 1995.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent alleged her child, K.W.S., was arbitrarily denied admission to first grade. Board's entrance-age policy requires child to be six years of age by September 30; K.W.S.' birthday was October 5.

ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to establish that the Board's entrance-age policy was either arbitrary or selectively enforced. Petition was denied.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Moreover, Commissioner concurred that the Board was not obligated to admit K.W.S. to first grade as a transfer student in the absence of a separate policy for transfer students.

R.S., petitioner, pro se, on behalf of minor, K.W.S.

John D. Wade, Esq., on behalf of respondents (Ferreri and Wade, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 17, 1996 Decided: February 16, 1996

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a petition filed with the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. A hearing was conducted on January 17, 1996, after which the record closed.

The question presented is whether K.W.S. may now enter first grade in respondents' district.

Most of the facts are undisputed. K.W.S. was born on October 5, 1989; respondents' entrance-age policy requires children entering first grade to be six years old by September 30 (R-1). K.W.S. was denied entry into respondents' kindergarten program last year because of age, and he completed a private kindergarten program. R.S. brought a motion for emergent relief before the commencement of this school year seeking to have K.W.S. admitted into first grade in-district, but the motion was denied (see attached). K.W.S. attends first grade at a private school and in September can enter second grade in-district. This plenary hearing is to determine whether he may attend first grade in-district for the remainder of this school year.

R.S. testified and presented documentation showing that in 1986, 1990 and 1993, three children entered respondents' first grade without meeting the entrance-age requirement (P-1; P-2). If these children were admitted, then K.W.S. should be accepted as well. R.S. testified that she knows of other examples, but most parents do not wish to come forward.

Robert Suessmuth has been superintendent of schools since July 1991, and before that was personnel director in this district from 1974. He testified that the district has the largest K through 8 population in the state, numbering some 7,700 students. The kindergarten has approximately 850 children. Every year he receives numerous requests to except children from the entrance-age policy. He has never done so, nor has the Board of Education ever approved any such petition. Mr. Suessmuth testified that the use of other, more subjective criteria like maturity, teacher evaluation, or test scores is burdensome and likely to encourage more litigation. To change the cutoff date would only shift the debate to whatever date is chosen. Mr. Suessmuth testified that there is no distinction made between in-district and out-of-district students entering first grade; all must meet the same entrance-age requirement.

Mr. Suessmuth testified that he has no knowledge concerning any child that may have entered first grade in violation of the entrance-age policy in 1986. He is aware of the two children (sisters) mentioned by R.S. who entered first grade in 1990 and 1993 without having met the policy. He did not learn of the 1990 violation until the year was over. The mother asked the Board for a waiver of the entrance-age requirement in 1993 with respect to the second child. The request was denied, but during late winter or spring of that school year, Mr. Suessmuth learned that the child had somehow been placed in first grade. He wrote to the mother expressing his displeasure at what she had done, but decided that it might do the child harm to take action so late in the semester. Mr. Suessmuth testified that in the last three years computerization has mostly eliminated parental attempts to sneak children into first grade, but he acknowledged that his precautions probably do not foil every connivance. This is the substance of the record.

Respondents have broad policymaking discretion, and to prevail in this matter R.S. must show that the entrance-age requirement is intrinsically arbitrary or enforced in an arbitrary manner. N.A.C. v. Cedar Grove Bd. of Educ., 94 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 28; H.A.B. v. Manalapan-Englishtown Reg. Sch. Dist., Monmouth County, 92 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 640. This has not been done. The entrance-age policy provides simply that children cannot start first grade unless they will reach their sixth birthday by September 30. The worst that can be said is that the policy is rigid, yet that is what makes it attractive for respondents. Mr. Suessmuth credibly explained that in so large a district, a more flexible approach would create substantial new work and increase the likelihood of litigation. The fact that some parents have managed to skirt the policy over the years does not mean that it is enforced selectively. Respondents have never approved a waiver.

R.S. continues to maintain, as did her attorney at the emergent relief proceeding, that K.W.S. is a transfer student and thus that the entrance-age policy does not apply. As respondents have no separate policy for transfer students, K.W.S. must be admitted. I do not agree. There is nothing inherently wrong with a blanket policy for all students. If some boards of education differentiate along these lines, that is their prerogative. Mr. Suessmuth testified that as a result of this proceeding, the Board has amended the entrance-age policy to explicitly include transfer students.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that R.S. has failed to establish that respondents' entrance-age policy is either arbitrary or selectively enforced, and it is ORDERED that this petition be DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Record Closed: August 31, 1995 Decided: September 1, 1995

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a motion for emergent relief filed with the Commissioner of Education, seeking to have K.W.S. placed in first grade for the coming school year. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on August 22, 1995 and oral argument was heard on August 31, 1995.

The facts for purposes of the motion are undisputed. K.W.S. was born on October 5, 1989. He was denied entry into respondent's kindergarten program last year because of age and he attended and successfully completed a private kindergarten program. Petitioner now wants her son admitted to respondent's first grade. Respondent's policy on this issue has been in effect since 1978 and requires that children entering first grade be six years old by September 30. The affidavit of Robert A. Suessmuth, Superintendent of Schools, indicates that to his knowledge respondent has made no exceptions to this policy despite numerous requests to do so. Although counsel for petitioner suggested in argument that some parents have received special treatment, he acknowledged that firm proofs would have to await discovery. This is the substance of the record.

To prevail on a motion for emergent relief petitioner must first show that she is likely to succeed on the merits. Crow v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1992). This has not been done. Respondent might have approached this problem with greater flexibility, but it has chosen to draw a bright line and it is imbued with broad policymaking discretion. N.A.C. v. Cedar Grove Board of Education, 94 N.J.R. 2d (EDU) 28; H.A.B. v. Manalapan-Englishtown Regional School District, Monmouth County, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 640. Though K.W.S. would be almost seven if he waited to start first grade in respondent's system, I am at liberty to do no more then state that this seems late to start first grade. Petitioner argues that K.W.S. is actually transferring in from another district and thus that the policy concerning entrance age for first graders does not apply. However, it seems that in the absence of a separate procedure for transferees, the existing policy applies.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that petitioner has failed to establish a likelihood of success on the merits and it is ORDERED that the motion be DENIED. The matter is to be scheduled expeditiously for plenary hearing.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that petitioner has failed to establish that the Board's entrance-age policy is either arbitrary or selectively enforced and, therefore, the Board policy must be upheld. N.A.C., supra.; H.A.B., supra. Moreover, the Commissioner concurs that the Board is not obligated to admit K.W.S. to first grade as a transfer student in the absence of a separate policy for transfer students. Therefore, the Board acted within its discretion in denying K.W.S. admission to first grade upon learning that the minor's birthday fell outside of the Board's age cut-off date.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the OAL dismissing the within Petition of Appeal.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a claim that respondent, Salvatore Buono, violated the School Ethics Act by voting for his business partner's renewed employment contract and subsequent retirement proposal. The business partner, Richard Errigo, was the Transportation Director for the Pennsauken Board of Education. Complainant, Bernhard Kofoet, also alleges that respondent violated the Act when he voted in favor of the renewed employment of his emancipated daughter, Kim Buono Trace.

Bernhard Kofoet filed his complaint with the School Ethics Commission on October 19, 1994. The Commission received Mr. Buono's answer on November 18, 1994. After reviewing the answer, the Commission asked the parties to sign a Stipulation as to the Facts, which did not appear to be in dispute. Because both parties suggested that changes be made to the Stipulation, the Stipulation was revised. At its meeting of January 23, 1996, the Commission found probable cause of a violation of the School Ethics Act, specifically N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c). The Commission sent the parties a letter on January 24, 1996, advising them of the Commission's determination and enclosing the revised Stipulation of Fact. The Commission invited the parties to comment on the finding of a violation and the penalty the Commission should impose in written statements. The Commission received Mr. Buono's written statement on February 2, 1996.

FACTS

The parties have stipulated and agreed to the following facts:

1. Salvatore Buono is a member of the Pennsauken Township Board of Education.

2. Salvatore Buono is the co-owner of a business, "Catering by Nicholas". The name of the other owner is Richard Errigo.

3. Richard Errigo was the Transportation Director for the Pennsauken School District until his retirement in September 1994.

4. On the agenda for the June 17, 1993, board meeting was a resolution to re-employ Richard Errigo as Transportation Director for the 1993-94 school year at the salary of $65,000. Salvatore Buono was present at that meeting and voted in favor of the resolution. The resolution passed 8-0-1.

5. On the January 19, 1995, meeting agenda was the retirement proposal of Richard Errigo. The proposal included payment for 225 accumulated sick days @ $65.50 per diem and 23 vacation days @ $262.50 per diem. (See Attached) Salvatore Buono abstained on this resolution.

6. The approval of Mr. Errigo's retirement passed with two abstentions as part of a list of agenda items under the Superintendent's report.

7. "Catering by Nicholas" does not do business with the Pennsauken School District.

8. Kim Buono Trace is Salvatore Buono's emancipated daughter. She was married on June 19, 1993.

9. Kim Buono Trace was then and still is a teacher in the Pennsauken School District.

10. On June 17, 1993, a resolution was on the agenda to re-employ teachers for the 1993-94 school year. The list included Mrs. Trace at a salary of $31,450.00. Salvatore Buono voted in favor of this resolution. The resolution passed 8-0-1.

DECISION

The School Ethics Commission found probable cause that respondent potentially violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) by his vote. Subsection (c) provides:

> No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial or personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment.

In his written statement, respondent argues that his vote on July 17, 1993, was to re-employ all non-unit administrative personnel, of which his business partner happened to be a part. He notes that Mr. Errigo had been a board employee for 34 years prior to the resolution and his vote had no real impact on the outcome. Regarding his daughter, respondent argues that his daughter did not reside with him and therefore does not fall within the definition of "member of his immediate family" set forth in the statute. Further, he argues that his daughter's resolution was merely part of a general resolution to re-employ over 400 professional staff members. He urges the Commission to find that since the vote was again 8-0-1, that his vote was not a determining factor in her getting the job.

The Commission will address the business partner's resolution first. The Commission finds respondent's arguments to be unpersuasive regarding whether he violated subsection (c). The relevant inquiry is not whether he was the determining factor in passing the resolution or whether he was the sole name or one of many names on a list. The relevant inquiry is whether the public could reasonably perceive that Mr. Buono had a conflict of interest that would keep him from exercising independent judgment in voting for his business partner. The business, Catering by Nicholas, is a partnership where the partners' personal finances can be attached to pay debts of the partnership. Further, the voting for one's business partner, and ostensibly friend, creates appearance of favoritism that the Legislature intended the School Ethics Act to prevent. The conflict of interest is clear. Thus, the Commission finds that the public could reasonably perceive that Mr. Buono was not being objective ~~when~~ he cast his vote for the resolution. He easily could have asked the board to vote for Mr. Buono separately or abstained on the whole list. He chose neither and voted. In so doing, he violated the Act.

With regard to Mr. Buono's arguments, the Commission will consider them mitigating factors. There is no allegation that Mr. Errigo did not deserve to continue in his position as Transportation Director. For that reason, there is no finding that respondent secured an "unwarranted privilege" for Mr. Errigo in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b). The Commission finds that the mitigating factors that Mr. Errigo was a 34 year employee and part of a list of re-hires does not affect the finding of a violation; rather, the Commission should consider them in determining the penalty.

As stated above, the complainant initially alleged that Mr. Buono also voted for his partner's retirement package. However, the records obtained in the investigation of this matter showed that he abstained on that vote. Therefore, the Commission dismisses that portion of the complaint. The fact that he abstained on that vote, however, indicates an awareness of the conflict of interest in voting for any perceived benefit for his business partner.

Last, the Commission finds that the board member similarly should have abstained from voting on his emancipated daughter's appointment. The Act defines an immediate family member as a child residing in the school official's household. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-22. The Commission acknowledges that the daughter does not and did not at the time of the vote reside in the board member's household. However, the Act requires the Commission to scrutinize the board member's interest to determine whether the public could reasonably perceive that he had a personal or financial involvement that would prevent him from being objective in his vote. The Commission believes that there is certainly personal involvement, if not financial.

In the matter of Scannella v. Scudillo, C14-93, the Commission ruled that respondent's vote for her son-in-law's appointment as superintendent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c). There, the Commission found that even though the respondent did not vote for an immediate family member, she had a personal interest and involvement that the public would perceive as hindering her independence of judgment in voting for him. Thus, she should have abstained. The same her independence of judgment in voting for him. Thus, she should have abstained. The same analysis applies here.

Even though his daughter was emancipated, Mr. Buono has an interest in her continued employment with the Board. His desire for her to succeed does not diminish because she moves out of his house. Certainly, the fact that the daughter does not live with him would not convince the public that his vote was not evidence of nepotism. Thus, he has a personal involvement that the public could reasonably perceive would prevent him from being objective in voting for her. The Commission recognizes that the present case is unlike the Scannella matter in that respondent was not voting solely on his daughter. Rather, he voted in favor of the superintendent's appointments list of which she was a part. (See attached) This fact does not excuse him, but again will be considered in determining the penalty.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission finds that Mr. Buono violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c). Because the parties agree to the above facts, the Commission does not need to refer the matter for an OAL hearing. Rather, the Commission can recommend a penalty to the Commissioner of Education.

In the matter of Scannella v. Scudillo, the School Ethics Commission recommended a three-month suspension for her voting for her son-in-law. The Commissioner of Education increased the penalty to removal for her two combined offenses. Although the State Board of Education remanded the matter for a hearing, the penalty discussions are no less instructive. The Commissioner found that her vote for her son-in-law was a deliberate and flagrant violation of the Act. For the foregoing reasons, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education suspend respondent from the board of education for one month for his violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c).

Upon adoption of this decision by a formal resolution of the School Ethics Commission, the matter shall be transmitted to the Commissioner of Education for action on the Commission's recommendation for sanction pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29. Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which the Commission's decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written comments on the recommended sanction with the Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." IN THE MATTER OF	:
SALVATORE BUONO, BOARD	:
MEMBER, PENNSAUKEN TOWNSHIP	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION, CAMDEN	:	DECISION
COUNTY.	:

The initial decision of the School Ethics Commission, together with the recommended sanction adopted by the Commission, has been reviewed. This matter comes before the Commissioner of Education to impose a sanction, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), upon Salvatore Buono (Buono), member of the Board of Education of Pennsauken Township (Board), based upon a finding by the School Ethics Commission that Buono violated the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq.

BACKGROUND

At its meeting of January 23, 1996, the Commission found probable cause of a violation of the School Ethics Act, specifically N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c), by Salvatore Buono. The Commission determined not to transmit this matter to the Office of Administrative Law in that it found that no material facts were in dispute and, therefore, an evidentiary hearing was not warranted. At its meeting on February 20, 1996, the Commission concluded that Buono violated the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c), by voting for his business partner's renewed employment contract as Transportation Director with the Board and the renewed employment of his emancipated daughter as a teacher in the District. The Commission recommends Buono's suspension from the Board for a period of one month as the penalty in this matter. After the issuance of the Commission's decision, the parties were accorded an opportunity to submit comments to the record with respect to the Commission's proposed sanction for the Commissioner's consideration in his determination of an appropriate penalty herein. No comments were filed by either of the parties.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The School Ethics Commission found that Buono violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c)[1] by casting a vote for a Board resolution to reemploy his business partner as Transportation Director for the 1993-94 school year and casting a vote for a resolution to reemploy teachers in the District for the 1993-94 school year, one of which was his emancipated daughter.

With respect to the resolution dealing with Buono's business partner, the Commission considered Buono's arguments regarding the circumstances of his vote in connection with his business partner's reappointment, i.e., this particular vote "was to reemploy all non-unit administrative personnel, of which his business partner happened to be a part," the fact that this individual "had been a board employee for 34 years prior to the resolution and [because this resolution passed by a vote of 8-0-1] his vote had no real impact on the outcome." (School Ethics Commission Decision at p. 2) and found these to be mitigating factors which would be considered in determining penalty, but unpersuasive as to whether his action of casting a vote was violative of subsection (c). The Commission reasoned

[1] This provision specifies: "No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial or personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment."

> The relevant inquiry is not whether he was the determining factor in passing the resolution or whether he was the sole name or one of many names on a list. The relevant inquiry is whether the public could reasonably perceive that Mr. Buono had a conflict of interest that would keep him from exercising independent judgment in voting for his business partner. The business, Catering by Nicholas, is a partnership where the partners' personal finances can be attached to pay debts of the partnership. Further, the voting for one's business partner, and ostensibly friend, creates appearance of favoritism that the Legislature intended the School Ethics Act to prevent. The conflict of interest is clear. Thus, the Commission finds that the public could reasonably perceive that Mr. Buono was not being objective when he cast his vote for the resolution. He easily could have asked the Board to vote for [Mr. Errigo] separately or abstained on the whole list. He chose neither and voted. In so doing, he violated the Act.

With regard to Buono's vote on the resolution to reemploy teachers in the District for the 1993-94 school year, one of which was his emancipated daughter, the Commission similarly found that Buono should have abstained from voting and his failure to do so violated the Act. In so finding, the Commission posited >  the Act requires the Commission to scrutinize the board member's interest to determine whether the public could reasonably perceive that he had a personal or financial involvement that would prevent him from being objective in his vote. The Commission believes that there is certainly personal involvement, if not financial. (Id.)

The Commission concluded that, as a parent, Buono had an on-going interest in his daughter's success and continued employment with the Board, which was not lessened by virtue of the fact that she was not living in his home or was emancipated. As such, "he has a personal involvement that the public could reasonably perceive would prevent him from being objective in voting for her." (Id. at p. 4) The Commission likened Buono's "personal interest and involvement" to that which it found in Scannella v. Scudillo, C14-93, where the respondent voted for her son-in-law's appointment as superintendent. It did, however, recognize that the within matter was also distinguishable from Scannella, in that the vote cast by Buono was not solely for his daughter but he, rather, voted for a list of appointments recommended by the superintendent, one of which was his daughter. The Commission found that, although this circumstance did not justify Buono's vote, it should be a consideration in fashioning a penalty herein.

COMMENTS TO THE COMMISSION'S DECISION

As previously noted, neither party chose to submit comments with respect to the Commission's recommended penalty for the Commissioner's consideration.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Upon review of the Commission's findings of fact and conclusions of law, by which the Commissioner is bound in making his determination in this matter, and the penalty recommended by the Commission, the Commissioner concurs with the Commission that a one-month suspension of the within Board member is the appropriate penalty to be imposed in this matter.

Accordingly, IT IS hereby ORDERED that Board member, Salvatore Buono, be suspended from the Board of Education of Pennsauken Township for a period of one month from the date of this decision.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, unsuccessful applicant for principal's certificate, appealed State Board of Examiner's denial of certification.

ALJ found that where the Commissioner has the power of review, the Commissioner will not interfere with agencies or with local boards of education in the management of their missions unless they violate the law, act in bad faith or abuse their discretion in a shocking manner. ALJ found that the arbitrary and capricious standard did apply to the resolution of this matter. ALJ concluded that petitioner did not have the required master's degree in management or leadership nor did she hold the substantial equivalent in coursework in those areas. Thus, the decision of the State Board of Examiners may not be disturbed. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Marylee Fisher, petitioner, appeals from a State Board of Examiners' denial of her application for a principal certificate.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. After notice, a prehearing conference was held by telephone on October 31, 1995. It was agreed that the parties would stipulate all necessary facts and that the State would move for summary decision. A schedule was established and all papers were timely submitted.

STIPULATED FACTS AND EXHIBITS

The parties agree to and I adopt the following as FACTS in this matter.

1. Ms. Fisher received a Masters in Education from New York University in 1970.

2. After graduation, Ms. Fisher was a teacher at the Roosevelt School, Englewood Public Schools, in Englewood, New Jersey for a period of six years from 1970 to 1976.

3. Ms. Fisher completed 12 credits of postgraduate courses at Teachers College at Columbia University from 1974 to 1976. The courses included a class on problems in education administration and supervision for elementary schools.

4. In 1976, Ms. Fisher took six graduate credits in education at Rutgers University.

5. Ms. Fisher received a New Jersey Supervisor's Certificate in 1977 and worked as a Unit Leader for the McKnight Elementary School, East Windsor Regional School District, Hightstown, New Jersey. Ms Fisher held this position from September 1976 to June 1979.

6. Ms. Fisher led a "unit" of nine classroom teachers, extra ancillary staff, and 300 students. Part of her functions included (a) deploying professional and auxiliary staff, facilities, time and materials for students' instructional activities, (b) training all unit members (teachers, interns and aides), and (c) coordinating instruction including evaluation procedures.

7. In 1980, Ms. Fisher moved to California. She took a graduate course in education at San Jose University. Ms. Fisher received a California Administrator's Credential.

8. Ms. Fisher was a Coordinator in the Alum Rock Union District for five years from 1981 to 1986. The District consisted of 24 schools. The responsibilities of a Coordinator may include assisting with curriculum implementation and assisting in the teacher evaluation process.

9. In 1986, Ms. Fisher became the Principal of the Nimitz Elementary School, in the Cupertino Union School District and remained there for two years until 1988. She served as Principal in the Reed Union School District for a period of six years from 1988 to 1994. Her responsibilities included supervising and evaluating staff, developing and evaluating programs, managing school operations, developing and implementing budgets, and leading teachers and parents through curriculum changes.

10. During the 1993-1994 academic year, in addition to her Principal position, Ms. Fisher assumed the position of an Assistant Superintendent of the Reed Union School District. As Assistant Superintendent, she worked with the Board of Education in making district-wide decisions and policies.

11. On July 15, 1994, the Millburn Township Public Schools in New Jersey offered Ms. Fisher employment as the Glenwood Elementary School Principal for the 1994-1995 academic year. The offer was contingent upon Ms. Fisher obtaining the necessary New Jersey Certification for the position. Ms. Fisher submitted to the State Board of Examiners an application for a principal certificate.

12. On August 16, 1994, the Essex County Superintendent, Peter Carter, notified the Millburn Superintendent, Dr. Kohn, that Ms. Fisher could not serve as principal but could serve in a supervisory capacity until the certification process was completed.

13. On September 15, 1994, Superintendent Carter notified Superintendent Kohn that the Office of Licensing and Academic Credentials of the Department of Education determined that Ms. Fisher cannot receive a Principal's Certificate. Her application for a principal's certificate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5 was denied because the Office of Licensing and Academic Credentials found that she lacked the required master's degree in a recognized field of leadership or management and the required graduate level study in finance and law.

14. By letter dated September 22, 1994, Ms. Fisher contacted the Office of Licensing and Academic Credentials to request the procedures for the Board of State Examiners to conduct a review based on the substitution of alternative educational background and/or experience.

15. By letter dated September 27, Dr. Kohn requested Superintendent Carter to appoint Ms. Fisher as Acting Principal of Glenwood.

16. On September 30, Superintendent Carter approved Ms. Fisher as Acting Principal of Glenwood School for the period from October 1 to December 31, 1994. Ms. Fisher served as Acting Principal for this period of time.

17. By letter dated October 5, 1994, the Office of Licensing and Academic Credentials forwarded to Ms. Fisher the "Procedures for Credentials Reviews by the State Board of Examiners" for substitution of alternative experience to complete requirements for certification.

18. "Procedures for Credentials Review By the State Board of Examiners," discuss the Board's process for credentials review of substitution of alternative education and/or experience pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24. The Procedures provide, in pertinent part, that:

> Any applicant lacking required preparation may provide the State Board of Examiners with evidence of alternative education and/or experience except that such education and/or experience may not be substituted for a passing score on the State Certification test nor may the State Board of Examiners in any circumstances waive the test requirement.

> If you are presenting job experience as an alternative to required college study or other certification requirements. . . .

19. On December 6, 1994, Dr. Kohn requested Superintendent Carter approve Ms. Fisher as Acting Principal until the Board acts on her application for substitution of credentials.

20. On December 19, 1994, Superintendent Carter notified Dr. Kohn that the request to approve Ms. Fisher as acting principal of the Glenwood School after December 31, 1994 was denied. Ms. Fisher was so approved for a three month period in 1994 (October through December).

21. On January 3, 1995, Ms. Fisher submitted an application to the State Board of Examiners for substitution of alternative education and/or experience pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24.

22. On February 23, 1995 the State Board Examiners considered Ms. Fisher's application. Ms. Fisher was present at the meeting. Dr. Gerald W. Kohn, Superintendent of the Millburn Township Public Schools, Ms. Brenda Liss, Millburn Township School Board Attorney, and Dr. Willa Spicer (Ms. Fisher's sister), Assistant Superintendent of the South Brunswick School System were also present. Ms. Fisher and Dr. Kohn made oral presentations in support of Ms. Fisher's application.

23. On March 30, 1995, the Board denied Ms. Fisher's application by a vote of six to two with five members abstaining. The State Board of Examiners set forth its reasons for the denial in a decision dated April 3, 1995, attached hereto as Joint Exhibit 1. In its decision, the Board found that Ms. Fisher's specific experiences and education did present evidence of alternative experience with respect to the requirement of graduate level study in finance and law. Ms. Fisher did not have a master's or higher degree in one of the recognized fields of leadership or management as set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5.

24. On June 28, 1995, Ms. Fisher submitted the instant Petition to the Commissioner of Education.

The parties also stipulate the following exhibits which are entered as joint exhibits.

J-1 State Board of Examiners Decision dated April 3, 1995.

J-2 Ms. Fisher's application to the Board for substitution of alternative education and/or experience pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24. The application consisted of the following: Notarized Statement of Marylee Fisher, Certification Credentials Review Summary, Alternative Education/Experience sheet, Academic Background sheet, Summary of Evidence Submitted (Index), and Exhibits 1 through 28.

THE ARGUMENTS

State Board of Examiners

The petitioner was denied a principal's certificate because she lacked the master's degree or its equivalent from an accredited institution in one of the recognized fields of leadership or management required by N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5. The Board relied on the Commissioner's decision in David C. Williams v. State of New Jersey, Department of Education, State Board of Examiners, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 58. In Williams, the Commissioner agreed with the ALJ that:

> Work experience coupled with attendance and successful completion of courses at an accredited institution which do not lead to a master's degree or its equivalent from an accredited institution in one of the specified fields is not sufficient to comply with this requirement.

Accordingly, Williams lacked a master's degree in one of the recognized fields of leadership and the ALJ concluded that the Board had not acted arbitrarily or capriciously when it denied a principal certificate. The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's conclusions.

Fisher alleges that the Williams decision was wrong. This tribunal does not sit as an appeals court; it conducts a hearing for the agency. Williams was not appealed and this tribunal has no authority to overturn it. It is the law in effect and it was the law in effect at the time the Board made its decision in Fisher's case. It governs this matter.

The petitioner has failed to prove that she possess the required Master's degree or an equivalent degree. Thus, she is not entitled to a principal certificate. Because she cannot show that the decision was arbitrary or an abuse of the agency's discretion, the Board's decision must stand.

Williams held that work experience, even when combined with nondegree courses, may not be substituted for the required Master's degree in leadership or management. In accord with Kavanaugh v. Quigley, 63 N.J. Super. 153 (App. Div. 1966), the Board took account of the applicable law. Because the petitioner lacks the required degree, the Board did not and could not abuse its discretion nor be arbitrary when it denied the certificate.

N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5(a)1 states that a candidate for certification must hold a Master's degree or its equivalent in certain fields. The Honorable Joseph F. Martone, ALJ, correctly found in Williams that "it's equivalent" meant an equivalent degree. Specifically, the regulation states that the candidate "hold a Master's degree or its equivalent from an accredited institution . . ." Ibid. If the phrase "or its equivalent" did not refer to any equivalent degree, the modifying clause "from an accredited institution" would be a nullity.

The Board's refusal to equate the petitioner's work experience to a Master's degree in management or leadership is within the purview and expertise of the Board. It can review to determine if applicants under the rule have the equivalent of a particular course required for a certificate or if they have the equivalent of specific course work in related areas. The Board cannot determine what is the equivalent of a degree. The regulations governing teacher certification in all cases leave the determination of what is a degree to the only entity that has the expertise to establish what is necessary for a degree, that is, the accredited institution that grants the degree. For example, N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.5(b)1 requires that all candidates for the substance awareness coordinator endorsement possess a Bachelor's degree from an accredited institution in Health, Human Services, Psychology, Social Work or in a field leading to teacher certification. Should an applicant appear before the Board pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24 and claim that work experience, even if coupled with nondegree courses, is the equivalent of the Bachelor's degree in Health that is acceptable for receipt of the endorsement, it is beyond the Board's ability to decide if the work experience and education presented are the equivalent of a Bachelor's degree in the field from an accredited program. Only an accredited institution, which itself must be approved by accrediting agencies, can verify that the applicant has complied with the requirements for obtaining a degree in that area. To ask the Board to decide what is or is not the equivalent of a degree program is to ask the Board to make a determination outside its area of expertise.

Importantly, the witness for the Board in Williams testified that the Board has consistently interpreted the regulation to require a Master's degree or an equivalent degree. An agency's interpretation and application of its own regulations are entitled to due deference. See, Metro Media, Inc. v. Director of Div. of Taxation, 97 N.J. 313.(1984).

Although the petitioner has demonstrable experience, she does not meet the New Jersey degree requirement for certification. In Babicz v. State Board of Examiners, 1978 S.L.D. 937, aff'd 1979 S.L.D. 816, the applicant for a professional librarian certificate requested the Board to consider experience as the equivalent of the required Bachelor's degree she lacked. The Board rejected her application and the matter was appealed to the Commissioner. The Commissioner determined the petitioner had failed to show that the Board's action refusing to issue the certificate was an invalid exercise of its discretion. The Commissioner addressed the need for a degree:

> The experienced gained by petitioner in excess of twenty years of service is recognized by the prevailing salary scale and longevity payments. However, on-the-job experience cannot be presumed to supplant in such large measure the discipline of formal academic studies which broaden the perspectives and abilities of those who successfully complete approved degree programs. The commissioner so holds.

See, also, Joan Nolan v. New Jersey State Board of Examiners, 1987 S.L.D. 79. Nolan, who attempted to show equivalency with her experience, was denied certification because she lacked the required Bachelor's degree. The Board's decision in this case does not deviate from its longstanding emphasis on the importance of formal training. Such training would offer a comprehensive, sequential program of courses, as opposed to the petitioner's piecemeal collection of course and work experience.

Williams was correctly decided and sets out the law of this matter. The Board's decision denying the petitioner an endorsement because she lacked the required Master's degree was neither arbitrary nor capricious, nor an abuse of its discretion. The decision was based on settled practice. Work experience is not a substitute for a degree.

The Petitioner

The Board improperly applied Williams to prohibit consideration of any amount of education or work experience as a substitute for the formal preparation requirements, irrespective of how qualified the education and experience make the applicant for a principal position. The Board failed to distinguish between its role in reviewing an application in which it is claimed that the formal requirements for a principal's certificate have been met, and the petitioner's application under N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24, which called for the Board to consider whether her education and experience were a sufficient substitute for the specified preparation for a principal's certificate. The effect of the Board's failure was an interpretation of N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.2 which violated general rules of construction, frustrated the public policy sought and ignored prior precedent. The Board's decision must be vacated.

The education, experience and passing test score required of an applicant to receive the standard certificate for the principal position in New Jersey are set forth at N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5. However, applicants who lack the required preparation may still gain a certificate by substituting alternative education and/or experience for the formal requirements under the procedure set forth at N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24.

The petitioner was denied a principal certificate under 6:11-9.5 because she did not meet one of the preparation requirements; that is, a Master's degree or its equivalent from an accredited institution in one of the recognized fields of leadership or management. The petitioner did not appeal the denial. Instead, she filed an application under N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24.

As permitted by the regulation and Board procedures, the petitioner submitted evidence of experience and alternative education demonstrating that she was qualified to be a principal despite the fact that she did not have a Masters degree in the required area. Her twenty four years in education included eight successful years as a principal and one as an assistant superintendent. The petitioner further showed that, as for the one educational requirement she did not have, her Master's degree in education together with other graduate-level courses in administration, was comparable to a Master's degree in educational administration. The Board, however, reviewed her application only "to determine whether she holds an equivalent degree from an accredited institution" (J-1). The Board stated it could not consider work experience and courses that did not fulfill the requirements for the requisite Master's degree as equivalent to or substitute for the actual degree and thus denied the application (J-1). In so doing, the Board relied on Williams.

What the administrative law judge and the commissioner considered in Williams was the proper interpretation of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5. Williams contended his course of study constituted an equivalent to a Master's degree in one of the required fields. The ALJ found that under the specific language in N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5, the word "equivalent" meant "equivalent degree." Neither the decision of the ALJ nor that of the commissioner indicated any consideration of the scope of substitution under N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24. The petitioner does not claim to be entitled to a certificate or endorsement under N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5.

The decision in Williams was narrowly stated. The Commissioner agreed with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ that the decision reached by the Board denying issuance of a certificate to Williams because his credentials did not satisfy the criteria of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5(a)1 was sustainable. 95 N.J.A.R. 2d at 61. The Commissioner did not establish a principle of law that the requisite Master's degree in educational administration can never be supplanted by experience and alternative education. The Board's decision in Williams suggests to the contrary. This is consistent with precedent in which the Board, on a case-by-case basis, accepts work experience as a substitute for formal education if it is found that the applicant is qualified.

Administrative regulations are subject to the same rules of construction as statutes. State Dept. of Health v. Tegnazian, 205 N.J. Super. 160 (App. Div. 1985). In the construction of statutes, every effort must be made to harmonize provisions relating to the same subject matter. The provisions must be similarly construed when helpful to resolving doubts or uncertainties. State v. Green, 62 N.J. 547 (1973).

If the Board construes N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24(a) to have exactly the same interpretation as N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5(a), i.e., that work experiences and courses that did not fulfill the requirements for the requisite Master's degree could not be considered as substitutes for the degree in the specified area, N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24(a) is superfluous. The substitution provision has no independent meaning if there can be no substitute for the required preparation.

To avoid this result, the regulations should be read to give meaning to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24. The Board has interpreted the required preparation regulation, N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5(a), to mean that the requirement of a Master's degree or its equivalent cannot be met through work experience and courses that did not fulfill the requirements for the requisite degree. The regulation allowing for substitution, N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24(a), provides that any applicant lacking the required preparation may provide the Board with evidence of alternative education and/or experience. By the plain language of the regulation, the Board is required to consider whether work experience and courses that did not fulfill the requirements for their requisite Master's degree can make the applicant qualified to be a principal in New Jersey despite lacking required preparation.

This is consonant with the intent of the regulation. The overall policy and purpose of a statute provides additional assistance in its correct interpretation. The construction that best effectuates the statute's ultimate objectives is to be preferred. Cedar Cove, Inc. v. Stanzione, 122 N.J. 202 (1991). The clear purpose of the substitution regulation is to give the Board discretion to provide certificates to persons who are qualified for positions despite the fact that they do not have all of the required preparation. Under the Board's interpretation, no amount of education or experience as a principal could make a person eligible to be a principal in the State unless that person has a Master's degree in educational administration.

The petitioner suggests that a person who through years of experience as a principal became an acknowledged expert in the field of school administration and who wrote a textbook from which educational administration Master's degree candidates were taught, could not qualify for a certificate under the Board's interpretation without the requisite degree, clearly an absurd result.

A construction of N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24(a) that permits alternative education and experience to be substituted for required education also is consistent with the general rule of construction that provides that where express mention of one thing is made, the exclusion of others is implied. [Expressio unius est exclusio alterius.] Housing Authority v. Williams, 263 N.J. Super. 561 (Law. Div. 1993).

N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24(a) states that any applicant lacking required preparation may provide evidence of alternative education and or experience. There is a clear exception that such education and/or experience may not be substituted for a passing score on the state certification test. It is clear that alternative education and/or experience can be substituted for any other requirement in N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5. The Board, therefore, wrongfully failed to consider whether the petitioner's proof of alternative education and experience qualified her for a principal's endorsement.

The petitioner also argues that the Board's written decision makes it clear that it never considered whether or experience and alternative education qualified her to be a principal. The effect of this mistake was to deny her the availability of the procedure spelled out by N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24.

The petitioner should be granted a certificate as a principal based upon the evidence of alternative education and experience submitted to the Board. The issue was simply whether the petitioner is qualified to be a principal in New Jersey despite the fact that she does not have a Master's degree in educational administration. Once freed by the restrictions the Board imposed because of its misinterpretation, the conclusion is that the petitioner is qualified.

The petitioner had nine years of public school experience in New Jersey. She was certified as a teacher and a supervisor. This alone is probably sufficient to prove that she was prepared to be a principal. However, the petitioner submitted proof that she had a total of twenty four years' experience in education. And this experience included eight years as a principal in California and her experience as an acting principal in New Jersey for which she won high praise from everyone with whom she was associated. The only formal requirement the petitioner did not fulfill was the Master's degree in the field of educational administration. As proof of alternative education, as permitted by N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24(a) the petitioner prepared a comparison of the Montclair State University Master of Arts Degree in Administration and Supervisor to the graduate level credits she achieved in her Master's degree in education from Columbia University and her additional graduate level work at Stanford and Rutgers Universities. Further, the petitioner included actual work experience in the areas of study that were part of the Montclair State curriculum. The petitioner has demonstrated that she is not lacking any formal education required to be a good principal as is corroborated by her successful career as a principal.

Finally, the parties contest what the standard of review should be, whether the requirement of a Master's degree in administration or leadership is correct and supportable, and whether Fisher is qualified notwithstanding that her Master's degree is not in administration or leadership.

DETERMINATION

The parties do not dispute Fisher's experience. They differ on three main points. First, is whether the arbitrary and capricious standard should apply. Second, whether the absolute requirement of a Master's degree in management or leadership is correct and supported by authority. Last, although there is no dispute as to Fisher's experience, is whether she is qualified because of that experience.

Standard of Review

A valid agency rule has the force and effect of law. State By VanRiper v. Atlantic City Elec. Co., 23 N.J. 259 (1957). To be valid, a rule must be constitutional, reasonable, authorized by the Legislature and promulgated in accordance with the Administrative Procedures Act (APA). A rule may be declared invalid if it is arbitrary, capricious, unauthorized or procedurally defective, even if there is constitutional compliance. If the promulgating agency follows APA requirements, a challenger may invalidate procedurally perfect and presumably constitutional rules if they are arbitrary, capricious or legislatively unauthorized. Consolidated Coal Co. v. Kandle, 105 N.J. Super. 104 (App. Div. 1969), aff'd 54 N.J. 11 (1969). A reviewing body may not substitute its judgment as to the wisdom of an agency's rule. New Jersey Guild of Hearing Aide Dispensers v. Long, 75 N.J. 544 (1978). Arbitrary and capricious action is difficult to establish. Tribunals will allow the agency the benefit of any doubt and sustain rules that have a rational basis. Office of Inmate Advocacy v. Department of Corrections, 222 N.J. Super. 357 (App. Div. 1988). To invalidate a rule, the challenger must show that the agency's action was whimsical, irrational or illogical. In attacking a rule, there are a number of presumptions that must be overcome. An opponent claiming arbitrariness must overcome a presumption of reasonableness that attaches to rules. An agency rule is presumed reasonable when the rule is apparently within the agency's delegated authority. Bergen Pines County Hospital v. New Jersey Department of Human Services, 96 N.J. 456 (1984). Unless the rule is ultra vires on its face, the challenger must overcome what has been characterized as a strong presumption of validity. Cooper River Convalescent Center, Inc. v. Dougherty, 133 N.J. Super. 226 (App. Div. 1975).

The courts disfavor an ultra vires finding. When a rulemaking record is attacked, if any state of facts would sustain the rule, the existence of that state of facts is presumed. Consolidated Coal, supra. If the challenger bases an attack on alleged procedural irregularities, the challenger must overcome the presumptions that attach to a rule filed with the OAL. When challenging a rule's language, the challenger must overcome the presumption that the text of the rule published by the OAL is the text of the rule adopted.

Obviously, to prevail in a rule challenge, the proof submitted must rebut these presumptions. The effect is to place the burden of presented evidence on the challenging party. The agency need not present any evidence that its rule is reasonable for that it has substantially complied with APA requirements. In re Medicaid Long Term Care Services Bulletin, 84-2, 212 N.J. Super. 48 (App. Div. 1986), certif. den. 107 N.J. 31 (1986).

Where the Commissioner has the power of review, the Commissioner will not interfere with agencies or with local Boards of Education in the management of their missions unless they violate the law, act in bad faith (meaning acting dishonestly), or abuse their discretion in a shocking manner. It has been stated often that it is not the Commissioner's function in a judicial decision to substitute his judgment for that of the agency or local Board of Education when they speak on matters which are by statute delegated to them. Se, e.g., Kenney v. Board of Education of Montclair, 1938 S.L.D. 647 (1935), aff'd State Board of Education 1938 S.L.D. 649, 653 (1935); Boult and Harris v. Board of Education of Passaic, 1939-49 S.L.D. 7 aff'd State Board of Education 1939-49 S.L.D. 15, aff'd 135 N.J.L. 329 (Sup. Ct. 1947), 136 N.J.L. 521 (E & A 1948).

In consideration of the clear instruction in the above-cited cases and the applicable standard in administrative law generally, I FIND that the arbitrary and capricious standard does apply to the resolution of this matter.

Absolute Requirement of MA in Specific Fields

This part of the analysis requires a rational relationship between the rule and the stated goal. Briefly stated, the Board must have a worthy goal, its rule must further accomplishment of the goal and its rule must sweep no more broadly than is necessary to accomplish the goal.

Here, the worthy goal is to provide local school districts with a pool of talent from which to draw candidates for positions that require the principal certification. It is also a goal to reach beyond those who have had a purely traditional preparation, to those who still might possess good management and leadership skills but lack some of the traditional preparation. It is the State Board of Examiners' responsibility to determine just how far from the traditional standards it will go to qualify this pool of talented persons. Of course, this rule must be applied evenhandedly.

The petitioner offers In the Matter of the Application of Naomi Hill, State Board of Examiners decision, April 7, 1992 for the proposition that the State Board has addressed her circumstances in at least one other case. In Hill, the Board stated that the applicant satisfied the requirements toward certification except for graduate level coursework in finance and law. It then considered her experience to determine whether it demonstrated alternative experience equivalent to the coursework in finance and law. Hill had been a principal for eleven years in New York City, an assistant principal for four years before that and for five years an early childhood supervisor.

The decision states, "After a careful review of the documents submitted by the applicant the State Board of Examiners finds that the applicant has provided evidence of alternative experience with respect to finance and law to satisfy the certification requirement for Principal." The Board then decided that Hill's application for a Certificate of Eligibility to serve as principal should be granted.

These circumstances are not precisely the same as Fisher's. Hill's apparent deficiency was in coursework in finance and law. In Fisher's case, the Board does not point to such a deficiency. In fact, school law and finance are not at issue in this case at all.

The State Board denied Fisher's application because she did not have a Master's degree or the equivalent in one of the recognized fields of leadership or management. The denial was not based entirely on the failure to hold a Master's degree in management or leadership. It was based on that failure and the absence of the equivalent coursework in those areas. Thus, Hill is distinguishable from the present case.

In consideration of the foregoing, I FIND, in addition to the findings above, that this is an as applied challenge, not a facial challenge. I also FIND that the Board's action was not ultra vires on its face and was within the authority granted by the Legislature to the Board. The challenging party has presented evidence of other experience that she wishes the Board to accept in lieu of the degree in management or leadership or the substantial equivalent. The Board has reviewed her experience and has decided that it is insufficient basis for the Board to grant a Certificate of Eligibility to serve as Principal.

I CONCLUDE that Marylee Fisher does not have a Master's degree in management or leadership nor does she hold the substantial equivalent in coursework in those areas. Accordingly, the decision of the State Board of Examiners may not be disturbed. The motion to dismiss the petition of appeal is GRANTED. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

J-3 Credentials Review Procedure, State Board of Examiners, undated, 2 pp.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8035-95

MARYLEE FISHER,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS,	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Both petitioner's exceptions and the State Board of Examiners' (hereafter, "Board") reply thereto were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.[1]

Initially, petitioner finds objectionable the presumption that "[n]o matter how qualified an applicant may be by virtue of work experience as a principal, a master's degree in education, and graduate level studies in administration, the Commissioner of Education  has dictated a policy whereby an applicant may not receive a principal's certificate in this State if the applicant does not have a master's degree in one of the subject areas specified in N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5(a)(1)." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 1) Rather, petitioner proposes that N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24 establishes that a candidate for a principal's certificate by virtue of her work experience and alternative education need not be turned away because she does not have the formal preparation specified in the regulations.

Petitioner next contends that it was not the intent of the Commissioner in Williams to establish "an absolute standard" that work experience and alternative education may never suffice as a substitute for the type of master's degree specified in the pertinent regulations. Thus, petitioner reasons that the Board improperly applied Williams to conclude that it had no discretion in this matter. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 4) To the extent the Board believed it was so constrained, petitioner continues, it relied upon a faulty premise and improperly failed to consider her qualifications. (Id. at p. 14)

Petitioner further challenges that the Board failed to distinguish between its role in reviewing an appeal of a denial of a principal's certificate based on failure to meet the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5(a)(1) and its role in reviewing an application submitted pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24 to determine whether a candidate's alternative education and work experience may be substituted for the specified preparation for a principal's certificate. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 8) Thus, petitioner contends that "the Commissioner should clarify the correct scope of the Board's review under N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24(a) because the Board's interpretation of its scope of review rendered the rule superfluous, contrary to well-established rules of construction." (Id. at p. 10)

Petitioner maintains that she must be granted a principal's certificate based upon her evidence of alternative education and experience, as submitted before the Board. (Id. at p. 15) She reasons that N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24 was promulgated for persons in her situation, and concludes, "Public school students in New Jersey are not served by a system of regulations which turn away people as qualified as [she] because they lack some formal requirement for a position." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 19)

Finally, petitioner reasserts her argument that where an appeal is based upon grounds that the Board's legal interpretation of a rule and a decision of the Commissioner were incorrect, as in this matter, the standard of review is de novo.

By incorporation of its arguments contained in a Brief filed in OAL, the Board counters that petitioner's claim as to the necessity for de novo review "flies in the face of settled law" which holds that the Commissioner may only review the action taken by the State Board of Examiners to determine if such action was arbitrary or capricious, and an abuse of its discretion. (Board's Reply incorporating Brief at p. 1) The Board asserts that it conducted a full review of petitioner's record of documents before rendering a determination. After evaluating her documents, "the Board awarded petitioner credit for graduate level study in the areas of law and finance, to satisfy that requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5." (Id. at p. 2)

The Board further argues that, like petitioner, David Williams brought an application to the State Board of Examiners for review of his credentials pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24, after having been denied a principal's certificate subsequent to N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5(a)1. "Plainly, Williams did not argue that he had an equivalent degree, but rather that he had the equivalent of a degree." (emphasis added) (Id. at p. 3), The Board notes,

> The ALJ found that, when seeking in accord with N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24 to substitute a combination of work experience and education for the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5(a)1, "attendance at and successful completion of courses together with his work experience, is insufficient to meet the specific requirement of the regulation." (Id. at pp. 3-4, citing Williams, supra, slip. op. at 6)

Similarly, petitioner sought, under N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24, to prove that her course work and experience would be a sufficient substitute for the requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5. In that her case was indistinguishable from the petitioner's case in Williams, the Board affirms that it properly held that the Williams decision controls this matter. (Id.) The Board further explains that, since it was foreclosed by Williams from allowing petitioner to substitute her education and work experience for the required master's degree, > it did not analyze her application to see if it was equal to the cohesive sequential program that the formal training of a [master's] degree offers. It could, however, consider whether the documentation she submitted to the Board revealed that she possesses a degree that is equivalent to the required degree.  (emphasis added) (Id. at pp. 4,5)

Moreover, the Board argues that, contrary to petitioner's assertion, its decision "does not render nugatory the substitution process outlined in N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24." (Id. at p. 7) Here, the Board clarifies "it is beyond the expertise of the Board to determine if work experience and course work are the equivalent of a degree program.  It can not decide what is a master's degree." (Id. at pp. 7,8)

The Board maintains that Williams was correctly decided, that its decision was neither arbitrary nor an abuse of its discretion, and that its determination should, therefore, be affirmed. To decide otherwise, the Board asserts, would obligate it " to evaluate every application in which the individual claimed the equivalency of a degree, notwithstanding that it is beyond the scope of its experience to determine the composition of college degrees." (Board's Reply at p. 3)

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner finds petitioner's exception arguments, which essentially recast those made before the ALJ, to be unpersuasive. The Commissioner initially concurs with the ALJ that the arbitrary and capricious standard applies to the resolution of this matter. (Initial Decision at p. 15) Further, there being no finding that the Board abused its discretion or acted outside the scope of its authority, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that the decision of the State Board of Examiners may not be disturbed.

Accordingly, as the Commissioner may not substitute his judgment for that of the Board lawfully applied, the recommendation of the OAL dismissing the Petition of Appeal is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE MARIE P. SIMONELLI, A.L.J.

Petitioner appealed respondent's termination of her insurance, health and other benefits of employment.

The Department of Education transferred this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (the OAL) on June 23, 1995. The OAL scheduled a hearing for February 2 and 6, 1996.

Prior to the scheduled hearing date, the parties agreed to settle this matter. On February 22, 1996, they submitted the attached Stipulation of Settlement, dated February 15, 1996, which sets forth the terms of the settlement.

I have reviewed the record and settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the Judge and to the other parties.

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The parties hereto, desiring amicable resolution of the above-captioned litigation, do hereby stipulate and agree as follows:

1. The petitioner, Susan Cavallo (hereinafter "Ms. Cavallo") was employed by the Elizabeth Board of Education (hereinafter "Board") as a non-tenured teacher of Home Economics.

2. On February 17, 1994, Ms. Cavallo sustained a work-connected injury at the Holmes Middle School.

3. Ms. Cavallo returned to work as of March 14, 1994 and left in May, 1994.

She was operated on at Englewood Hospital on May 26, 1994 for the repair of a herniated disc and remained continuously out of work in excess of one year.

Based on the foregoing, the parties agree as follows:

1. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, Ms. Cavallo shall receive full salary for one calendar year from the date of her injury on February 17, 1994.

2. The Board shall pay the salary of $40,245.54 less salary payments and temporary disability payments made to Ms. Cavallo during the calendar year following February 17, 1994. That net amount equals $23,181.56.

3. The Board shall make all appropriate salary deductions and make appropriate payments to the Teachers Pension & Annuity Fund through February 17, 1995.

4. In return for compliance with this Agreement, Ms. Cavallo agrees to withdraw and dismiss the above-captioned litigation against the Board with prejudice.

5. This Agreement shall not constitute a contractual past practice or precedent for contractual purposes as to any person not a party hereto.

6. The parties respectively acknowledge that each has had ample opportunity to seek independent legal counsel or other advice regarding this Agreement, and that each is signing this Agreement freely and voluntarily, without coercion, duress or pressure from the other party. The February 14, 1996 Resolution of the Board approving this settlement and authorizing counsel to execute same is attached hereto.

7. By entering into this Agreement, each party releases and discharges the other with respect to all claims or rights arising out of the employment by the Board of Ms. Cavallo. This release does not apply to the right to enforce the terms of this Agreement.

8. This Agreement is subject to the approval by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education and will not take effect unless and until such approvals are received.

HEARING OF EVELYN Y. MOORE,	:

DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY.	:

District certified charges of unbecoming conduct and other just cause (excessive absenteeism) against respondent physical education teacher.

ALJ concluded that the District proved the charge of excessive absenteeism as a just cause for action against respondent in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -29. Respondent had received more than ample warning and counseling, but she did not respond positively, over a period of years, even in the face of increment withholdings. Thus, ALJ determined that the District had just cause for dismissing her.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own and ordered respondent dismissed from her tenured teaching position as of the date of this decision. Commissioner directed matter be forwarded to State Board of Examiners for further appropriate action.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10611-94

AGENCY DKT. No. 357-8/94

Respondent.

Gregory G. Johnson, Esq., for petitioner
State Operated School District the City of Newark, (formerly Board of Education of the City of Newark),

John L. Schettino, Esq., for respondent,
(Giblin & Giblin, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 12, 1996 Decided: February 26, 1996

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

This matter involves tenure charges filed by the petitioner, State Operated School District of the City of Newark, against respondent, a tenured teaching staff member, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -29. Petitioner seeks respondent's dismissal.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner, the then Board of Education of the City of Newark, (Board) certified and filed tenure charges against respondent, Evelyn Y. Moore, with the Commissioner of Education on August 31, 1994. The statement of charges alleges that respondent was guilty of "other just cause" (excessive absenteeism) which, if true, would warrant dismissal. One of the notification documents sent to the respondent referred to unbecoming conduct. However, the tenure charges and initial notification to Ms. Moore of the filing of such charges referred solely to excessive absenteeism, as "other just cause."

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) by the Commissioner of Education on October 31, 1994, for hearing and determination as a contested case pursuant N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

A prehearing conference was held at the OAL on March 7, 1995, identifying the issues, fixing hearing dates, providing for discovery, and regulating other procedural aspects of the forthcoming hearing. The resulting prehearing order is dated March 10, 1995.

The hearing was held in the OAL on November 15, 1995. The witnesses who testified and the documentary exhibits marked into evidence are listed in the appendix attached to this decision. The parties filed post hearing briefs, and the record closed on January 12, 1996.

ISSUES

The issues, as set forth in the prehearing order, are:

A. Did the acts or omissions of the respondent, as alleged in the charges (excessive absenteeism), constitute unbecoming conduct or other just cause for dismissal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -29?

B. If the charges are proved, is the penalty of dismissal justified, or should a different penalty be imposed?

The specific charges against the respondent, as set forth by the Board, are as follows:

CHARGES

(as certified and filed with the Commissioner of Education)

1. Other Just Cause (Excessive Absenteeism)

FIRST COUNT

(Excessive Absenteeism)

1. Evelyn Y. Moore is currently employed by the Board of Education of the City of Newark as a physical education teacher currently assigned to Dr. William H. Horton School, 291 North 7th Street, Newark, New Jersey 07103.

2. Ms Moore was employed as a physical education teacher as of September 1972 and in due course became tenured.

3. For the past several years of Ms. Moore's employment, she has been excessively, continuously and consistently absent from her assigned duties resulting in a wholesale disruption of the orderly process and administration of the schools to which she has been and is assigned.

4. During the ten (10) month period from September 1990 through June 1991, Ms. Moore was absent from her assigned instructional duties forty-seven (47) days.

5. During the ten (10) month period from September 1991 through June 1992, Ms. Moore was absent from her assigned instructional duties sixty-four (64) days.

6. During the ten (10) month period from September 1992 through June 1993, Ms. Moore was absent from her assigned instructional duties seventy-eight (78) days.

7. During the nine (9) month period from September 1993 through May 1994, Ms. Moore was absent from her assigned instructional duties forty-five (45) days.

8. Thus, while assigned as a physical education teacher, during the years 9/90 to 6/30/93, Ms. Moore has been absent thirty-five percent of the total possible days:

1990-91	Total days absent:	47
1991-92	Total days absent:	64
1992-93	Total days absent:	78

Three years total possible days -580

Days absent 189

9. Ms. Moore's attendance during much of her service with the Board has been deplorable at best and each year of her recorded absences (as highlighted above) is sufficient in and of itself to subject her to dismissal.

10. During Ms. Moore's service with the Board she was reminded on numerous occasions in past years that her attendance was a problem and must be improved.

11. Also, Ms. Moore's absence has substantially diminished the Board of Education of the City of Newark's ability to deliver a thorough and efficient education to the pupils assigned to Ms Moore's classes in that:

a. Such conduct has disrupted the continuity of the educational program in her assigned classes.

b. Such conduct has effectively deprived the children committed to her charge of valuable instructional time to which they are entitled.

c. Such conduct creates and leaves a poor example for the students committed to Ms. Moore's charge.

12. Also Ms. Moore's practices have established a poor precedent for other teaching staff employees of the District.

13. Additionally, Ms. Moore has created problems with various parents in that said parents have demanded that their children be removed from Ms. Moore's classes.

14. Moreover, Ms. Moore's absences evidence a complete disregard for Board policy and procedures and applicable law.

15. Although Evelyn Moore's increment has been withheld due to her excessive absenteeism, there has been no improvement.

16. The cumulative effect of Ms. Moore absences is such in that over a two and three-fourth (2 3/4) year period, Ms. Moore has been absent one hundred and eight-nine days or thirty-five (35%) percent of the available instructional time.

17. Ms. Moore's constant and consistent absences bespeak of the need to dismiss her as a teacher in the school district for to do otherwise could be perceived as the Board's condonation of this unprofessional conduct.

TESTIMONY AND EVIDENCE

At the beginning of the hearing counsel stipulated that there was no dispute as to the number of days that the respondent was absent, as set forth in the charges. Therefore, it is undisputed that the respondent was absent for forty-seven (47) days during the 1990-91 school year; sixty-four (64) days during the 1991-92 school year; seventy-eight (78) days during the 1992-93 school years and forty-five (45) days for the nine month period from September through May in the 1993-94 school year.

William Demetroulakos (Mr. D.) has been the principal of the elementary school, Dr. William H. Horton school, since the 1992-93 school year. Ms. Moore taught gym at the Horton school. Mr. D. testified that he formulated the charges against the respondent after she had demonstrated absenteeism of more than thirty to thirty-five percent, without improvement, for the two years during which he was her supervisor.

Mr. D. also produced the attendance records, evaluations and other documents marked in evidence that were used to support the charges. Some of these documents, in conjunction with Mr. D.'s testimony, provided the following information:

The annual teacher evaluation report for the 1993-94 school year completed in June 1994, states "[a]ttendance was so poor that the physical education program suffered greatly and many students expressed their discontent at not having gym classes. This is the second year in the row where the problem existed. . . . Any growth is difficult to assess due to the constant absences of Ms. Moore." Exhibit P - 16. As for the recommendations for the next school year, Mr. D. recommended that the respondent's increment be denied and tenure charges pursued. In her response to the above, Ms. Moore stated that she had taken measures over the past few months to improve attendance and she had taken steps to see that personal conflicts would not affect her job performance in the future.

In his testimony, Mr. D. said that he seriously doubted respondent's assurances of future improvement, because she made the same comments in the prior year but there was no improvement at all. In addition, Mr. D. indicated that he had engaged in numerous conferences with the respondent about her very poor, thirty-five percent, absentee record and told her, for the second consecutive year, that her increment would be denied. In addition, he continually advised her that the physical education program was suffering and causing problems with the students and their parents, who had complained to him. Many of the students, also complained to him, and they expressed disappointment at not having the gym classes they felt entitled to.

Referring to the June 1993 annual evaluation Mr. D. pointed to the section entitled "[a]reas needing attention or improvement," where he noted: "There is a sense of urgency present on the need to improve your attendance so that our children will have an on-going Physical Education Program; constant absences deter our students from the benefits of such a program." In another portion of the document, Mr. D. wrote that "due to excessive absences, action by the Board of Education has been recommended." Exhibit P-15. The respondent did not add any comments to the evaluation, and her increment for the coming year was withheld.

A Professional Improvement Plan accompanied the June 1993 evaluation. The plan also indicated that respondent needed to improve her attendance in order to maintain an ongoing physical education program. She was asked to improve her attendance by examining the reasons for her absences. Mr. D. testified that, despite these comments, Ms. Moore did not improve during the following year. As of the end of March 1994, she recorded forty-five absences.

Another exhibit demonstrating concern regarding respondent's attendance problems in the 1992-93 school year is the memo written by the principal, Mr. D., to the Director of the Physical Education Department on February 8, 1993. Exhibit P-9. In that memo, Mr. D. commented that Ms. Moore had created a serious situation due to her attendance. She had been absent fifty-six days by that time, and at that point she had been out of school sixty-six percent of the time. The entire school year contained 187 days. Mr. D. stated that the portion of the physical education program for which the respondent was responsible had basically become nonexistent, and the complaints were mounting from the staff, students and the president of the Parent-Teacher Organization. Mr. D. also stated in the memo that he had conferred with Ms. Moore and offered to help her. Nevertheless, after these conferences, she proceeded to be absent for the entire month of January 1993. The memo also referred to 1990-91, when respondent was absent a total of forty-seven (47) days, and 1991-92, indicating sixty-four (64) days absent. Concluding the memo, Mr. D. stated that Ms. Moore had been absent for thirty-seven percent of the school days from September 1990 to February 1993.

Mr. D. also said that a review of the school years that are included in the charges, 1990-91 through 1993-94, showed a steady increase in absences, and that they totaled thirty-seven percent of school days. He further noted that a pattern of absences could be discerned, with heavy emphasis on Mondays and Fridays.

Referring again to the 1992-93 school year, Mr. D. produced another memo to the respondent, dated November 25, 1992, relating her accumulated absences for only three months into the school year. This memo also contains hand-written notes of a conference Mr. D. held with the respondent at that time, when she told him that many of her absences were due to the fact that she was helping her sick mother. Mr. D. testified that he knew she had brothers and sisters, and he asked her to work out a schedule that would permit her to be more consistent at work, or in the alternative, to take a leave of absence. In conclusion, Mr. D. informed Ms. Moore that there could be adverse consequences if she did not improve her attendance. Exhibit P -8.

In November 1993, Mr. D. sent another memo to the respondent about her absences. Respondent had been absent for eleven days by November of that year. See Exhibit P-10.

Four months later on March 10, 1994, Mr. D. sent the respondent a detailed memo about the increasing number of her absences, and advised her that the Board of Education reserved the right to take action against her as a result of her attendance. He said that such an action might include tenure charges, disciplinary action, loss of increment or salary increase, or separation from employment. He asked her to see him immediately upon her return. In his testimony, Mr. D. noted that, at that point, Ms. Moore had been out for thirty-four days and had submitted only five doctor's notes.

In Exhibit P-12, Mr. D. noted that the respondent had been absent for forty-five (45) days up to March 25, 1994. Considering that school had been in session for approximately 120 days at that point, the absenteeism rate was thirty-eight percent. This memo indicated that a personal conference was held on April 6, 1994, when Ms. Moore returned to school. At that time, she said that she was in the process of relocating. Mr. D. reminded respondent of her responsibilities to the school and spoke about past attendance problems. The handwritten note at the bottom of the memo indicates that the respondent said that she would attempt to improve her attendance in the future.

Commenting about Ms. Moore's assurances over the years, Mr. D. said that the numerous conferences and suggestions made to her brought no positive result and that in fact, the absenteeism worsened continuously. He also said that administrators other than himself also met with her over the three or four year period involved in the charges. When asked about the conferences and counseling engaged in, Mr. D. stated that he had six to ten formal conferences with respondent during the years in question, plus many additional informal conferences. He repeated that she always said that she would attempt to improve her attendance, but she never did. According to Mr. D., he never experienced a worse case of absenteeism over the thirty years he had spent in education.

Speaking about the effect of the respondent's absenteeism on the physical education program, Mr. D. characterized it as chaotic, and he said that many children did not receive adequate gym classes for two years or more. In addition, Mr. D. said that he was compelled to retain substitutes for each day that Ms. Moore was absent. Even so, he explained that substitute gym teachers cannot use the facilities without being certified, and it was difficult and rare to find a substitute with the necessary certification. Therefore, the substitute teacher would often only remain in the classroom, without the usual equipment. Mr. D. also testified that, after complaints received from Parent/Teacher Organization officers, parents and children, he concluded that a lack of respect had developed for the physical education program, and many students just lost interest in it.

When cross-examined, Mr. D. again pointed to the successive increment denials imposed on Ms. Moore due to her absenteeism, without any positive results. However, he acknowledged that Ms. Moore's performance was generally satisfactorily when she was present. He also admitted that during the earlier problem years there had not been any recommendation to terminate her employment, but only to withhold increments.

Mr. D. also explained that there are only two gym teachers in the school, and Ms. Moore was one. When Ms. Moore was absent the remaining teacher would generally incorporate respondent's students into his classes but the quality of the program suffered. In addition, when classes are combined, seventy students are present in a small gymnasium, which results in a reduction in quality of instruction. Another teacher needs to be present when the classes are combined.

Finally, Mr. D. testified that he believed the respondent when she told him about her need to care for her sick mother. However, his necessary concern related to the quality of the physical education program.

Lawrence A. Guarino, Assistant Director of Physical Education testified that he observed the respondent during the 1993-94 school year and discussed her poor attendance with her. Mr. Guarino indicated that he strongly suggested that she try to get to school more often. The respondent also told him about her ill mother and her need to care for her.

Thomas H. Cooke, Jr. was the other gym teacher in the Horton school. , He had taught at Horton between 1972 and 1994. Mr. Cooke knows the respondent well, having taught alongside of her for seven years, ending in 1994. Mr. Cooke testified that the two gym classes were in the gymnasium together most of the time, even when Ms. Moore was there. He said that when respondent was absent there were seventy children in the gym, the same seventy children that were there when she was teaching her separate class.

Mr. Cooke praised Ms. Moore's teaching abilities, saying that she always led the combined classes well, and that the students were not really separated for some of the exercises. Referring to the days when the respondent was absent, Mr. Cooke said that he took over whenever she was not there, and he saw no significant disruption in activities. Mr. Cooke said that all of the children received a full program on such occasions. He also stated that no supervisor ever indicated to him that there were any problems with the curriculum during Ms. Moore's absences.

On cross-examination, Mr. Cooke acknowledged that he and the respondent are good friends. He also indicated that he was not present in school, but was on a sabbatical leave, for the entire 1993-94 school year. He did not know what was happening in gym classes during that year. Referring to earlier years, Mr. Cooke said that he thought the teaching was effective without Ms. Moore, but to a lesser extent.

The respondent, Evelyn Y. Moore testified in her own behalf. She repeated the earlier acknowledgment that the number of absences during the years in question were not disputed. However, she spoke about the reasons for her poor attendance. In 1990, she suffered several personal medical problems of her own. More importantly, her mother began to need more care, because she had congestive heart failure and diabetes.

Asked about any participation of her siblings in her mother's caretaking , Ms. Moore said that her brother was a paraplegic, and therefore unable to care for his mother. In fact, Ms. Moore had to render some care to her brother also. The respondent also indicated that she always kept the administration aware of the reasons for her absences, and no one told her it was inappropriate to combine the two gym classes into one. Ms. Moore denied that anyone suggested a leave of absence to her as an alternative.

Testifying about the four school years in question, Ms. Moore generally stated that the problems she had, with her own health and the need to care for her mother, were similar in each of those years, except that things kept getting worse. Her mother was more recently beset with kidney failure, which required dialysis. Then, after two strokes, the respondent's mother recently passed away. The respondent changed her residence afterward.

Ms. Moore acknowledged that she was clearly and repeatedly on notice that her attendance needed to be improved, during each of the years in question. She said that she attempted to do better, but knows that she did not.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having heard the testimony and observed the witnesses, and having reviewed the exhibits and considered the arguments of counsel, I FIND the following FACTS, by a preponderance of the credible evidence:

The uncontroverted facts stated in the foregoing discussion of the testimony in evidence are incorporated herein by reference. The most critical facts are as follows: The respondent is a tenured physical education teacher in an elementary school in the Newark School System. She began teaching in Newark in 1972.

In the 1990-91 school year, the respondent was absent for forty-seven (47) days.

In the 1991-92 school year, the respondent was absent for sixty-four (64) days.

In the 1992-93 school year, the respondent was absent for seventy-eight (78) days.

In the 1993-94 school year the respondent was absent for forty-five (45) days through May 1994.

The respondent's 234 days of absence during the four school years stated above constitute between thirty and thirty-five percent of the total number of school days in those four years (calculating a school year at approximately 187 days).

The respondent was informally counseled numerous times by her supervisors about her excessive absenteeism during the years in question. Many formal conferences to address the problems were also held between school administrators and Ms. Moore.

The respondent's increments and salary adjustments were withheld consecutively because of the excessive absenteeism, for at least two of the years in question.

In many instances the respondent failed to provide justifiable medical documentation for her absences.

A substantial number of the respondent's absences were due to the fact that she spent time caring for a seriously ill mother.

The respondent was warned, during the four years in question, that her absences could result in actions against her other than increment withholding, such as tenure charges and disciplinary action.

Although the school administration was aware of the fact that Ms. Moore was spending a substantial number of the absentee days caring for her mother, she was nevertheless advised, on numerous occasions, that other arrangements would need to be made, because the absences from school were adversely affecting the physical-education program. One of the alternatives suggested was a leave of absence. The respondent did not react positively to any of the suggestions given to her.

During the years in question, respondent recognized the problem caused by her excessive absenteeism, and she repeatedly promised to improve. Despite these assurances, her attendance did not improve. In her last two evaluations, 1993 and 1994, the problems caused by respondent's absenteeism dominated the reports. Respondent was clearly informed of the urgent need for improvement and the fact that the students were being adversely affected.

The physical education program at the school became seriously limited and lower in quality because of the respondent's absenteeism.

Aside from her excessive absenteeism during the four years in question, the respondent's evaluations showed that her work performance was satisfactory.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, dealing with the tenure of teaching staff members, provides:

> The services of all teaching staff members, including all teachers . . . shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and they shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecoming such a teaching staff member or other just cause . . .

See also, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -29.

In any case involving tenure charges, a board of education has the burden of proving the truth of the charge or charges by a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Arlene Dusel, School District of the Borough of Sayreville, Middlesex County, 1978 S.L.D. 526; In the Matter of the

Although there is a passing mention of unbecoming conduct in some of the documentation filed in this matter, the charges and proofs at the hearing dealt only with excessive absenteeism, as "other just cause" for dismissal. It is therefore unnecessary to consider a charge of incompetency, which is not supported by the proofs, or by the specifications set forth within the charges. In fact, but for the excessive absenteeism, the respondent's teaching service prior to the 1990-91 school year indicates generally favorable evaluations. Even during the four years in question, her evaluations, while containing some criticisms, do not reflect incompetency.

However, the allegation of excessive absenteeism is amply supported by the record, and it does constitute "just cause" for action against the respondent. The pattern of absences during the four school years discussed above is exceedingly severe, persistent and chronic. Furthermore, respondent's absenteeism continued to increase in frequency despite the withholding of increments, conferences, counseling and warnings that she could be subject to disciplinary action and tenure charges. It is obvious that the increment withholding and warnings did not prove to be effective sanctions.

It is axiomatic that a tenured teaching staff member must be available to teach on a consistent basis if he or she is to provide the services which the employer and students are entitled to expect. The respondent's consistent and pervasive pattern of absenteeism over the years, as contained in the charges, demonstrate that in her case neither the employer nor the students obtained the full benefit of the services to which they were entitled. The acknowledged record of the respondent's absenteeism was decidedly unacceptable and excessive.

It is unfortunate that some percentage of the absences were caused by medical reasons and personal problems involving her mother's care. Nevertheless, the respondent evidently did not choose to balance her personal problems against the entitlement of her employer and students to the educational benefits she was expected to render. The respondent received many stern and clear warnings about the problems her absenteeism was creating and the adverse effect it was having on the physical education program, to no avail. While it is noted that Ms. Moore was a long term employee, and there were earlier years when absenteeism was not a problem, she was warned and counseled over a period of three to four years, but the pattern of absenteeism did not improve. How many school years must elapse, how many increments must be withheld, and how many clear warnings must be given before the statutory sanction of dismissal must be applied to a long term employee?

> Frequent absences of teachers from regular classroom learning experiences disrupt the continuity of the instruction process. The benefit of regular classroom instruction is lost and cannot be entirely regained, even by extra effort, when the regular teacher returns to the classroom. . . . .The entire process of education requires a regular continuity of instruction with the teacher directing the classroom activities and learning experiences in order to reach the goal of maximum educational benefit for each individual pupil. The regular contact of the pupils with the assigned teacher is vital to this process. In The Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Catherine Reilly 1977 S.L.D. 403, 414.

The Commissioner concluded, in Reilly, that since pupils are required to be in regular attendance in the public schools, there should be no lesser requirement placed upon the teachers who are there to serve those pupils.

See also, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Lena White, 92 N.J.A.R.2d 157 (Dept. of Education); In the Matter of Tenure Hearing of Sheets, 1979 S.L.D. 790; State Operated School District of the City of Jersey City v. Pellecchio, 92 N.J.A.R.2d 267 (Dept. of Education).

There is no question that the facts and circumstances in this matter comport with the standards enunciated by the Commissioner of Education before a teacher can be dismissed for excessive absenteeism. In this case, it was shown that the absences were clearly excessive and unacceptable quantitatively, without improvement for a period of years. Before submitting the tenure charges the Board considered the particular circumstances of the absences. There was more than sufficient warning given to the respondent, over the long term, that her superiors were dissatisfied with the continuing absences. Perhaps most importantly, there was a clear showing that the respondent's chronic and excessive absenteeism had an extremely negative impact on the quality of the educational program. As set forth in the last two annual evaluations, the physical education program suffered greatly, to the point where the students were being deprived of a necessary aspect of their education.

The testimony of the respondent's coworker, friend and physical education associate, Mr. Cooke, was well intentioned in favor of Ms. Moore. However, his suggestion that there was no appreciable difference between having one instructor doubling up with seventy students, as opposed to two instructors who each taught half that number, cannot be accepted and leads to a dubious conclusion. If that testimony is believed, it is difficult to understand why the students, their parents, and officers of the Parent-Teacher Organization complained to the administration. It is certainly hoped that the second gym teacher, Ms. Moore, was a needed and useful teacher in the first place.

It is therefore CONCLUDED that the petitioner has proved the charge of excessive absenteeism as a "just cause" for action against the respondent, in accordance with the statute.

On the question of penalty, the Board should not be compelled to retain a teacher who has demonstrated such chronic, continuing, long-term and serious absenteeism. The respondent had more than ample warning and counseling, but she did not respond positively, over a period of years, even in the face of increment withholdings. While

Ms. Moore gave assurances of improvement, the situation only worsened and the educational deprivation became deeper. As for the personal problems that the respondent evidently placed on a higher plane of importance than the needs of her job, the tenure laws cannot be used to protect such a lack of attendance, beyond a reasonable amount of due process and consideration for the problems of the employee. The welfare of the students must be the first consideration.

It is unfortunate that a dismissal action must be taken after many years of teaching. However, the Board gave more than ample consideration to the length of service by the respondent. After several years of bona fide attempts, without results, to reverse the respondent's absenteeism, the Board's position became reasonable.

Therefore, in considering an appropriate penalty to be levied in this matter, I do not believe that a monetary sanction would be effective, given the fact that several increment withholdings proved to be unsuccessful in improving the respondent's attendance. There has been no showing of any likelihood that yet another monetary sanction would be any more successful than it was previously.

FINAL CONCLUSION

After having carefully considered the factual circumstances surrounding the respondent's absenteeism, it is CONCLUDED that the respondent has given the Board "just cause" for dismissing her and for causing a forfeiture of her tenure protection, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -29. Under the circumstances, the penalty of dismissal is not excessive or unreasonable.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that the respondent be DISMISSED from her position as a tenured teaching staff member employed by the State Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF EVELYN Y. MOORE,	:
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the District has proved its charges of excessive absenteeism and unbecoming conduct. Further, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the tenure charges, as proven, are sufficient to warrant respondent's termination from employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and 11.

Accordingly, for the reasons well-expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL and hereby orders that respondent be dismissed from her tenured teaching position with the District as of the date of this decision. This matter will be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for action as it deems appropriate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6.

MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

Board certified tenure charges against respondent custodian under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, alleging neglect of duty.

ALJ concluded that the Board had proven by a preponderance of the evidence that respondent neglected to perform the duties assigned to him. Moreover, respondent had been issued reminders and warnings detailing his failures and the principal's expectations, and respondent's increment was withheld in 1993-94, with no lasting improvement. ALJ ordered respondent dismissed from his position.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own and ordered respondent dismissed from his position as tenured custodian as of the date of this decision.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 6662-95

AGENCY DKT. NO. 191-5/95

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ADALBERTO MELENDEZ, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF LONG BRANCH, MONMOUTH COUNTY

J. Peter Sokol, Esq., for petitioner Board of Education of the City of Long Branch (McOmber & McOmber, attorneys)

Thomas W. Cavanagh, Jr., Esq., for respondent Adalberto Melendez (Chamlin, Rosen, Cavanagh & Uliano, attorneys)

Record Closed: February 7, 1996 Decided: February 27, 1996

BEFORE AUGUST E. THOMAS, ALJ t/a:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Board of Education of the City of Long Branch (Board) suspended Adalberto Melendez (respondent) without pay on April 28, 1995, and filed tenure charges against him with the Commissioner of Education which were received on May 30, 1995. On June 26, 1995, the Commissioner transferred this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A telephone prehearing conference was held on August 24, 1995. Hearings were conducted on December 4, 5 and 6, 1995, in the Allenhurst Borough Hall, Allenhurst. The record closed on February 7, 1996, after receipt of the attorneys' written closing arguments.

Respondent was terminated because of neglect of his regular duties as an elementary school custodian. He worked the night shift, from 2 to 10 p.m., and allegedly failed to perform his cleaning duties in a satisfactory manner. Twenty-seven documents were filed by the Board in support of its charge of neglect of duties. Additionally, four teachers, a custodial supervisor, and the Gregory School principal testified on behalf of the Board. Respondent testified on his own behalf.

ISSUE

At issue is whether respondent neglected to perform his duties in a satisfactory manner and, if so, whether this single charge of neglect is sufficient to warrant his dismissal.

MOTION

At hearing, respondent made a motion to dismiss this matter because of the Board's alleged failure to file its charge according to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, which provides for charges of "inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause," and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, which sets forth the procedure which must be followed when filing charges of inefficiency. Respondent argued that "neglect" is synonymous with "inefficiency," and that the charge must therefore be discussed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and 18A:6-13. He claimed that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, he was entitled to written notice of his alleged inefficiency, and should have been given ninety days in which to correct and overcome the inefficiency. Since the Board failed to use these statutory procedures, respondent demands that the charge be dismissed.

Charges in this matter were brought under the "Tenure of janitorial employees" statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, which reads:

> Every public school janitor of a school district shall . . . hold his office, position or employment under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and shall not be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation, . . . except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense and only in the manner prescribed by subarticle B of article 2 of chapter 6 of this title.

This statute obviously pertains to school custodians, and it sets forth the circumstances under which a custodial employee may be removed from his tenured position by a board of education. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 specifically mentions "neglect," and there was no showing by respondent that the Board had a mandate to file charges of "inefficiency" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. In fact, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 states very clearly that "Any charge made against any employee of a board of education under tenure during good behavior and efficiency shall be filed with the secretary of the board in writing" (emphasis added). The charge of "neglect" certainly qualifies as "[a]ny charge." Nevertheless, the statute also provides that "if the charge is inefficiency" (emphasis added), the employee must be given written notice and an opportunity to correct the inefficiency prior to the certification of the charge to the Commissioner. Respondent argued that when the two statutes are juxtaposed, it becomes clear that "neglect" is synonymous with "inefficiency." Accordingly, the respondent concluded that the Board failed to properly file its charge pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11.

Neither Funk and Wagnalls Standard College Dictionary (second printing 1967), nor Webster's New World College Dictionary (3d ed. 1996), nor Roget's International Thesaurus (3d ed. 1962) list "inefficiency" as a synonym for "neglect." The Board did not choose to file tenure charges of inefficiency against respondent, and there is no statutory or decision law requirement that it do so prior to the filing of tenure charges for other reasons. Further, the Commissioner has previously recognized charges of neglect of duties in In re Tenure Hearing of Ingram, 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 580, and in State Operated School District of the City of Paterson v. Cox, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 748. One premise of statutory construction is that statutes must be read so as not to render any statutory provision without effect. In that regard, respondent's argument, if credited, would nullify the wording of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, which clearly provides for the consideration of charges of neglect.

Based on this analysis, I FIND no impropriety in the manner in which the Board filed its charge of neglect against respondent. Consequently, respondent's motion to dismiss based on the Board's failure to file charges of inefficiency is DENIED.

DISCUSSION

It is stipulated that respondent is a tenured custodian. The Board's records show that he was employed on or about August 17, 1989, and that he acquired tenure with the district in September of 1992.

Respondent was recommended for tenure by the same principal who is now the chief witness against him, Dr. Donald T. Donofrio. The record shows that after respondent acquired tenure, he was given repeated notice and warnings by Dr. Donofrio concerning his lack of initiative and industriousness. Twenty-three of the twenty-seven documents in evidence (specifically, evaluations, memoranda and a Board resolution) are critical of respondent's job performance between his acquisition of tenure and the filing of the neglect charge. His job performance deteriorated so much after he acquired tenure that Dr. Donofrio recommended that his salary increment be withheld for the 1993-94 school year. In a memo to respondent dated March 15, 1993 (P-1), the principal informed respondent that his increment was being withheld due to his:

> failure to consistently respond to requests to clean various areas of the school without continued reminders each day and the overall general poor condition of the school on many occasions, and your failure to display the initiative to remain actively busy throughout the evening on the numerous tasks which could be done to bring about a major improvement in the condition of the school without undue supervision.

In an attachment to respondent's March 1993 evaluation (P-2), the principal notified respondent of observations that had been made by the school's director of buildings and grounds, Ted Janks, regarding areas of the school that needed more thorough cleaning; Mr. Janks's criticism of the general lack of custodial attention to many areas of the school was given "supportive administrative concurrence by the building principal."

Subsequent evaluations of respondent's job performance reveal that his poor work quality continued. He failed to take suggestions, his industriousness lagged and his initiative was weak (P-5, P-8). For the period September through December 1994, respondent's evaluation detailed his weaknesses in the categories of quality of work, cooperativeness, industriousness and initiative (P-13). He was repeatedly reminded about tasks that he neglected. Specifically, in a memo to respondent dated June 21, 1994, the principal reminded respondent that it was his responsibility to put liners in the wastepaper baskets throughout the school, which was not being done (P-7). Dr. Donofrio testified that the matter was brought to his attention by teachers who were unhappy with the cleanliness of the wastebaskets, i.e., they contained spilled milk, food, etc. Earlier in 1994, the principal had sent a memorandum to all custodians, including respondent, notifying them of areas of the school that needed improvement and reminding them of tasks that had to be done on a daily basis, e.g., repetitive cleaning of sinks and bathrooms (P-6). When complaints were received in October 1994 about the cleanliness of the school bathrooms, the principal wrote to respondent, in a memo dated October 26, 1994: "I alerted you to the need of those bathrooms to be in a clean condition each day after Latch Key children are dismissed" (P-9).

Dr. Donofrio testified that despite these repeated warnings, respondent's performance continued to be unsatisfactory. Wastebaskets were not emptied, stairways were left uninspected and the maintenance room and bathrooms were not being kept clean (P-10). Debris was swept into a hallway and left there, and offices were not cleaned regularly, in spite of Dr. Donofrio's previous verbal instructions (P-11). Once, the principal had to physically show respondent how to remove rust spots with steel wool, despite respondent's years of experience as a janitor.

According to Dr. Donofrio, the school's four kindergartens were particularly neglected. Each kindergarten had six tables, which were used for the pupils' snacks and projects. Consequently, at the end of the school day there was usually debris on the tables. Although these tables were to be cleaned during the day by a school matron, and at night by the custodian, the kindergarten teachers complained that they were frequently left dirty; the bathrooms and sinks were also often left unclean (P-14, P-15, P-16, P-18, P-23). In a memo to respondent dated February 21, 1995, the principal wrote, "I have seen you standing at the Wing Vestibule looking out on the playground for an extended period of time" (P-18). He advised respondent that there were things he should have been doing during that time, like cleaning the kindergarten tables the way he had been instructed. Also, he wrote that on one occasion a teacher found a chair in front of the t.v. in her room, and a milk carton with cigarette butts or ashes in it. Although respondent denied having any knowledge of the incident and blamed it on workmen, the principal pointed to the incident as another example of respondent's "failure to be responsible for the overall security of the building" (P-18).

The four kindergarten teachers also testified on behalf of the Board. The first teacher said that the tables in her room were often dirty when she arrived in the morning. They should have been cleaned each night and ready for the children to eat their breakfast. The second teacher testified that she had her children help her clean the tables in the morning, and that she had spoken to the principal about the cleanliness of her room. The third teacher was a beginning teacher, and although she experienced cleanliness problems in her classroom, she chose not to complain to the principal; she and her paraprofessional washed the tables themselves. The fourth teacher stated that by the end of the day "the cumulative effect" of the children's activities at the tables took a toll, i.e., there were spills and crumbs from snack time, as well as drops of paste and scraps of art project materials. The tables were clean and ready for the children in the morning only "on occasion." She testified that she had communicated these problems to the principal orally.

Because of their dissatisfaction with respondent's work performance, the principal and the superintendent asked a more experienced custodian, Daniel Rodriguez, to go to the elementary school to train respondent to perform his duties. Mr. Rodriguez testified that he was assigned to the maintenance shop; however, he had worked as a janitor in the middle school the previous school year and had prior work experience in the district before moving away and coming back. His job was to train new custodians. Mr. Rodriguez stated that the bathrooms were not clean when he arrived, and that he discussed scrubbing the toilets and using chemicals to control odors. Mr. Rodriguez also discussed mopping, dusting, spray buffing and other tasks respondent was expected to perform. He testified that he worked with respondent one week (five nights), and that respondent understood him and performed adequately while he was there. Respondent gave

Mr. Rodriguez excuses for why his duties hadn't been performed properly, or claimed that the duties belonged to someone else.

During the hearing it was suggested that respondent might not understand fully all directions given to him in English. An interpreter was used during the hearing; however, most of the colloquy at hearing was in English. Mr. Rodriguez testified that he spoke to respondent in English and in Spanish during his training week. Further, respondent does not suggest that his alleged failures to perform his duties were caused by an inability to understand the English language.

Respondent testified on his own behalf and essentially gave a reason for each of the alleged failings set forth by the principal. He claimed that there was too much work for one person. The school was large, with at least seventeen rooms, two portable classrooms, two large bathrooms, and six or more small bathrooms to clean. Additionally, there were hallways, three offices, and the nurse's room to be cleaned, chairs to set up for parent/teacher meetings, and spray buffing which had to be done. Respondent also complained that during one period of about forty-five days, a matron was absent and he had to pick up some of her duties.

The record shows that respondent was not expected to do every job assigned to him on every night. I CONCLUDE from Mr. Rodriguez's testimony that the work assigned to respondent was essentially the same as that assigned to other custodians in the district, given the differences between the elementary and middle schools and the types of programs conducted in each building.

CONCLUSION

Based on the testimony and the documents submitted as evidence, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Board has proven by a preponderance of the evidence that respondent neglected to perform the duties assigned to him.

Regarding penalty, one option is to reduce respondent's salary and allow him to return to work. Respondent has a second-grade education, he is fifty-eight years old, and on his evaluations there were many references to excellent cooperation with the principal. The principal even testified that respondent was always pleasant and cooperative. Respondent was also commended for punctuality and courtesy; he once fixed a VCR for one of the teachers, and he would help the teachers carry boxes to and from their cars on occasion. However, in reviewing the entire record, it is particularly troubling to see that among respondent's duties, he did not give priority to the routine cleaning of the kindergarten tables and of the bathrooms and sinks. Respondent had performed these duties without incident prior to earning tenure, and nothing in the record indicates that there was any drastic change in his job assignment in the years after he acquired tenure. The record does show, however, that the principal made frequent attempts to get respondent to perform his tasks. He withheld respondent's 1993/94 increment and repeatedly warned him verbally and in writing that future increment recommendations would be affected by his job performance. Additionally, he had a trainer assigned so that respondent would clearly understand his job, and he issued reminders and warnings to respondent detailing respondent's failures and the principal's expectations. The respondent improved for a time, but the improvement did not last. The principal eventually prevailed on the Board to file tenure charges of neglect. Although the respondent characterizes the Board's action as filing a single charge of neglect, the record shows that there are many charges of neglect of his duties. I might have reduced respondent's salary and reinstated him, had he not already been given so many chances to improve.

Based on all of the above, I CONCLUDE that Adalberto Melendez has neglected to perform his duties as a custodian in the City of Long Branch school district. Therefore, it is ORDERED that he be, and is hereby, dismissed from his position.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF ADALBERTO MELENDEZ,	:
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
THE CITY OF LONG BRANCH,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter, including transcripts of the hearing conducted by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.[1] Respondent's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions generally recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the ALJ, again contending, inter alia, that respondent's neglect of duty should be tempered by the procedures required for inefficiency charges as set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A: 6-10 et seq. and that respondent should not be removed from his position as a custodian as removal is an unduly harsh penalty. In that these arguments were fully and fairly considered by the ALJ, they are not discussed in detail herein.

Respondent further excepts to the ALJ's findings of fact, arguing that respondent's job performance had not deteriorated since March 1993, when his increment was withheld, but rather had improved and this, he avers, is supported by the Board's payment to respondent of a subsequent salary increment. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 4) Respondent further avers that the ALJ did not reference the various positive areas of testimony by the principal concerning respondent's scope of performance which is "salient" to an understanding of "the entire 'picture'." (Id. at p. 5) Additionally, respondent argues that the ALJ failed to reference several portions of evidence, including a Monthly Room Condition Report wherein eight of ten school rooms were reported as being in either excellent or good condition, and other exhibits which involve problems or criticisms that were written in respondent's March 1993 evaluation but, "never appear again in the written record." [2] Respondent further excepts that the ALJ did not consider the full evidence proffered by four kindergarten teachers, upon whose testimony the ALJ relied to demonstrate neglect, noting they described their classrooms as consistently less than clean. (Initial Decision at p. 6) Respondent contends that, " the references contained in the decision should be supplemented by additional testimony offered." (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 6) Specifically, he notes that two teachers did not know respondent was responsible for cleaning the bathrooms and that the other teachers found him to be cooperative and "good at fixing things." (Id. at p. 7)

Lastly, respondent avers that the ALJ did not carefully examine the testimony regarding the latch key, or other recreational programs and the role of the matron who often cleaned the kindergarten tables.

In reply, the Board argues that the ALJ's initial decision was correct and should be affirmed. (Board's Exceptions at p. 8) As to the contention that the principal noted some improvement with regard to respondent, the Board notes that respondent continued to be rated as exhibiting poor work quality following his increment withholding in subsequent evaluations. (Id. at pp. 2-3) The Board also avers that the Monthly Room Condition Report was inconsistently utilized by the teachers. It further responds that respondent repeatedly did not clean the kindergarten tables in spite of oral and written reminders. (Id. at p. 4) Further, the Board argues that specific instances, as documented, reveal that respondent "would neglect one task one evening and neglect a different task a second evening." (Id. at p. 5) The Board avers that respondent's specific instances of neglect were documented and noted by the ALJ. (Id.)

With regard to the exception that the school's latch key and recreational program had some type of effect on respondent's performance, the Board argues that respondent does not explain how he was able to satisfy these same tasks during his nontenure years in spite of recreational or other programs at the school building. Further, the Board submits that there is no causal connection between these programs and respondent's performance. (Id. at p. 6) Also, the Board avers that the evidence is that the kindergarten matron was pressed into daily cleaning duty because respondent had not cleaned the night before. The Board further submits that the balance of the matron's absences were sporadic and not coincident with respondent's specifically identified lapses. (Id. at pp. 6-7)

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that respondent's actions, and inactions, constitute neglect pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. Further, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the tenure charges, as proven, are sufficient to warrant respondent's termination from employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and 11.

In so ruling, the Commissioner finds that the ALJ correctly based his decision on a preponderance of the credible evidence in the record. The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that respondent is not entitled to a lesser penalty than recommended, since respondent was provided with several opportunities to improve his job performance prior to the Board's certification of tenure charges. To elaborate this point, the ALJ found,

> [the principal] withheld respondent's 1993/94 increment and repeatedly warned him verbally and in writing that future increment recommendations would be affected by his job performance. Additionally, he had a trainer assigned so that respondent would clearly understand his job, and he issued reminders and warnings to respondent detailing respondent's failures and the principal's expectations. (Initial Decision at p. 8)

Further, and contrary to respondent's exception that the ALJ did not consider testimony that respondent improved after receiving such warnings, the ALJ wrote, "the respondent improved for a time, but the improvement did not last." (emphasis added) (Id.)

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL and hereby orders that respondent be dismissed from his position as tenured custodian with the Board as of the date of this decision.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This Agreement is hereby made between SUSAN LAPIDUS (hereinafter referred to as "Lapidus") and the Board of Education of the Township of South Brunswick (hereinafter referred to as "the Board"):

WHEREAS, Lapidus filed a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education on December 5, 1994 (Agency Docket No. 474-12/94, OAL Docket No. EDUOR 00388-95S), alleging that she had obtained tenure as a teacher in the Board's employ; and

WHEREAS, Lapidus filed a Verified Complaint with the New Jersey Division on Civil Rights on December 1, 1994 (Docket No. EM21AE-38951-A) alleging age discrimination in employment; and

WHEREAS, the Board and Lapidus are desirous of reaching a settlement of the existing litigation between the parties; now therefore be it

RESOLVED, that the parties agree to the following terms of settlement:

1. The Board hereby recognizes Lapidus' status as a tenured teacher in the Board's employ.

2. The Board agrees to assign Lapidus to a one-half time basic skills teaching position, retroactive to September 1, 1995.

3. For the 1995-1996 school year, Lapidus will be compensated pursuant to the second year of Step 10 of the teachers' salary guide; her salary will be $20,450.00, representing one-half of a full-time teacher's salary at the second year of Step 10.

4. Effective September 5, 1995, the Board will also employ Lapidus as a one-half time paraprofessional aide, her duties to be performed during the regular school day.

5. The Board reserves the right to assign Lapidus to different school buildings to perform her teaching and paraprofessional duties.

6. Lapidus agrees that, upon ratification of this Agreement by the Board, she will withdraw with prejudice her Complaint currently pending in the New Jersey Division on Civil Rights (Docket No. EM21AE-38951-A).

7. Lapidus agrees that, upon ratification of this Agreement by the Board, she will sign a Stipulation of Dismissal with Prejudice as to her Petition of Appeal currently pending before the Commissioner of Education and Office of Administrative Law (Agency Docket No. 474-12/94, OAL Docket No. EDUOR 00388-95S).

8. The parties respectively acknowledge that each has had ample opportunity to seek independent legal counsel, regarding this Agreement, that each fully understands the terms of this Agreement and enters into it freely and voluntarily, without any coercion, duress or pressure from the other party.

9. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document contains the entire agreement of the parties and may not be altered, amended, modified or revoked except by instrument in writing executed by the parties.

Intending to be legally bound hereby, Lapidus and the BOARD execute the foregoing AGREEMENT this 9th day of October, 1995.

Petitioning Education Association and five tenured teaching staff members who were assaulted by students sought to have expulsion hearings conducted for those students. The District denied it was obligated to initiate expulsion proceedings and maintained that the petition was untimely filed.

ALJ concluded that the petition was not time barred. ALJ concluded the District failed to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 in regard to the incidents in question. The District failed to schedule an expulsion proceeding for each student and failed to keep the temporary suspension of each student in effect pending the expulsion proceeding. The ALJ directed the District to schedule expulsion hearings for the students with the exception of W.T., since he graduated. The District was ordered to strictly comply with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 in the future and to post notice about the compliance and to develop and implement an education program for all administrators responsible for compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1.

Having reviewed the record and transcripts of the hearing, the Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own with modification. Commissioner ordered District to conduct the hearings with due observance to state and federal guidelines pertaining to classified students and to submit revised policy and procedures to the Director, Urban Education and Policy in the Department of Education for review within 120 days of the date of this decision. Moreover, revised policy and procedures are to be adopted and made available to staff and students at or before the start of the 1996-97 school year.

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

This matter involves allegations by Nancy Garrity, Thomas Gladden, Balbir Paintal, James Ring and John Setteducato, who are high school teachers employed by the State-Operated School District of Paterson (respondent), that respondent failed to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1, which relates to the initiation of expulsion proceedings against a pupil who commits an assault as defined in N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1 upon a teacher, with respect to several incidents in which they were involved. The Paterson Education Association joins in the petition. Respondent denies that it was obligated to initiate expulsion proceedings under the circumstances of the incidents in question. Further, respondent maintains that the petition is untimely and therefore barred by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petition was filed with the Commissioner of Education on August 15, 1994, pursuant to the Commissioner's authority to hear and determine controversies concerning the school laws under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Respondent filed an answer on October 5, 1994, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on October 11, 1994 for determination as a contested case.

A hearing in this matter was conducted on October 2 and 11, 1995 at the Office of Administrative Law in Newark, New Jersey. At the outset of the hearing, the portion of the petition related to Thomas Gladden was withdrawn. The record closed on January 18, 1996, upon receipt of respondent's written summation.

ISSUES

This issues in this proceeding are as follows:

1. Whether the school district was required to initiate expulsion proceedings pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 under the circumstances of this case.

2. What standard should be applied to determine whether a school district must initiate expulsion proceedings under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1?

3. Whether the request to initiate expulsion proceedings is moot as to Balbir Paintal and John Setteducato, because the students were suspended and never returned to school.

4. Whether the petition was untimely under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

5. Whether the relief requested in this petition should be granted.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

a. John Setteducato

John Setteducato testified that he is employed by respondent as a mathematics teacher at Kennedy High School, where he is now in his eleventh year. On March 15, 1994, Setteducato encountered four students on the third floor of the building after the end of the school day. Setteducato directed the students to leave the building. As he was following them down the stairs, one of them turned and pointed an object that looked like a gun at Setteducato. At the time, Setteducato thought that the object was a gun. The students started laughing and ran down the stairs. Upon regaining his composure, Setteducato proceeded to the security office and filed a complaint. Setteducato did not know the students' names.

At the end of the following day, Setteducato saw the same students after his eighth period class and thought they were trying to intimidate him. On the next day, Setteducato went directly to Vice Principal Chase to report the situation. As a result, the students were located, and the police were called to the school. The students identified Fa.A. as the one who pointed the object at Setteducato. The police investigated further and found in one student's locker a cigarette lighter designed in the shape of a gun.

As a result of this incident, Fa.A. was charged with aggravated assault. Setteducato went to municipal court and agreed that Fa.A. should be given the opportunity to plead guilty to simple assault. In fact, Fa.A. pled guilty to simple assault.

Fa.A. was placed in an alternative program run by the City of Paterson. Setteducato was aware that Fa.A. was back at Kennedy High School in December 1994, but he was not sure when Fa.A. returned. Respondent never conducted a hearing to determine whether Fa.A. should be expelled from school.

b. James Ring

James Ring testified that he is employed by respondent as a mathematics teacher at Kennedy High School, where he has taught for twenty-two years. On March 22, 1994, there was an altercation outside his classroom among three students from his class. D.B. and another student was ganging up on the third student.

Ring went into the hallway and attempted to separate the third student and get him back into the classroom. As Ring did so, he and the third student slipped to the floor. At that point, one of the students began to kick Ring and the student who fell to the floor. Ring was kicked twice in the face and once in the right shoulder. On the third kick, Ring grabbed the leg and looked up to see that the student who was kicking him was D.B. D.B. kicked out of Ring's grasp and started down the hall. Ring followed D.B. and stopped him. Security guards arrived and took D.B. downstairs.

Ring was sent to the nurse's office because he had a laceration and a headache. Dr. Sampson, who was the building Principal, and Vice Principal DeChiarra came to the nurse's office to see him. Upon the suggestion of Dr. Sampson, Ring went to the Immedicenter where a doctor examined him but found no serious injuries. Ring stayed home one day and returned to work the following day. However, Ring experienced back spasms and was sent back to the Immedicenter. Upon the advice of the doctor, Ring took the rest of the week off from work.

During the afternoon of March 22, 1994, Ring returned to the high school and spoke with Vice Principal Roman. She informed Ring that D.B. would be placed on bedside, which generally refers to at-home instruction for students who are unable to attend school as the result of a prolonged illness or injury. Ring voiced his displeasure because D.B. was not an appropriate candidate for bedside. Ring also stated that he intended to press charges against D.B.

In fact, Ring went to the Paterson Police Department later that day and pressed charges. Because Ring was a teacher acting in that capacity at the time of the incident, D.B. was charged with aggravated assault. In June 1994, Ring discussed the case with the prosecutor, who was inclined to offer D.B. the opportunity to plead guilty to simple assault. Ring agreed with the prosecutor, but D.B. refused to plead guilty to simple assault. Ring went to court in October 1994, and D.B. was found guilty of aggravated assault.

In March 1994, D.B. was suspended for ten days rather than placed on bedside. D.B. did not return to school after the suspension, and he was dropped from the rolls after twenty days for chronic absenteeism. D.B. attempted to be readmitted as a student at Kennedy High School in September 1994, but Vice Principal Roman would not allow him to do so because his address indicated that he should attend Eastside High School in Paterson. Ring did not know whether D.B. attempted to enter Eastside High School. Ring was never involved in a hearing as whether D.B. should be allowed to return to school.

c. Balbir Paintal

Balbir Paintal testified that she is employed by respondent as a mathematics teacher at Eastside High School, where she is now in her seventh year. On April 18, 1994, several students remained in class after the bell rang to ask a question. Paintal was helping two students in the first row when she noticed something burning. Paintal looked around, and as she did, a student said that it was her hair. Paintal reached to the back of her head and a large amount of hair came off in her hand or fell to the ground. Paintal still was not certain exactly what happened, but she reported the situation to Vice Principal Veronica Maus, who sent her to the nurse's office.

Paintal experienced a headache after this incident, but she returned to work the following day. Her supervisor informed her that they had identified the student who had burned her and that it was F.H. Paintal pressed charges against F.H., who later admitted that she burned Paintal's hair with a cigarette lighter and pled guilty to the charges.

F.H. was suspended for ten days as a result of this incident. After the suspension, F.H. did not return to school. It became known that F.H. was pregnant, and she was placed in a shelter. Paintal was not certain whether F.H. ever returned to the school. However, Paintal never participated in any hearing before respondent concerning F.H.

d. Nancy Garrity

Nancy Garrity testified that she has been employed by respondent for twenty years as a foreign language teacher. She has been assigned Kennedy High School since September 1994. Prior to that time, she taught at Eastside High School for approximately ten years.

On March 15, 1994, Garrity was teaching a foreign language class, and on that particular day, she gave out warning notices. Among the students who received warning notices was W.T., who had transferred from another school in January. W.T. was not at the same level as Garrity's Spanish class, and in addition, he missed a number of classes due to activities related to social studies. Garrity described W.T. six feet two inches tall and weighing approximately 350 pounds.

Upon receiving the warning notice, W.T. responded by telling Garrity that it was her fault that he was failing because she was not teaching. When Garrity mentioned that W.T. had missed a number of classes and was not coming for extra help, W.T. approached Garrity's desk and told her that he would have his mother come to school and break her ass. Garrity responded by telling W.T. that perhaps his mother would be angry with him for failing. W.T. responded by telling Garrity that he would break her ass.

Garrity was afraid but she did not want to lose her composure in front of the class. In response to this situation, Garrity decided to take W.T. to the office.

Garrity told W.T. to come with her and proceeded to the foreign language office which was not far from the classroom and where she hoped to find Mrs. Lopas, who is the head of the department. As she left the classroom, Garrity motioned to a teacher on hall duty that she was leaving her classroom. Garrity entered the office but no one was there. Garrity told W.T. to sit on a bench in the office and proceeded through another door to a book room which leads to the teacher's room. Garrity told W.T. a second time to sit and thought he did so. As Garrity entered the book room, she noticed that W.T. was behind her and again told him to sit down. As she did so, he pushed her. Garrity was in the air for seven or eight feet and slid head first into the teacher's room. At the time, two teachers were in the teacher's room. Garrity asked them to call the police, and with that, W.T. ran away.

The teachers called Vice Principal Rios, who completed a report along with Ms. Lopas, who arrived shortly thereafter. After returning to her classroom, Garrity was escorted to the nurse's office by one of the teachers. After becoming aware that no one had called the police, Garrity did so from the nurse's office.

Before the police arrived one and a half hours later, Principal Charles Lighty visited Garrity in the nurse's office. Garrity found out later that Lighty had already met with W.T.'s mother who had come to the school. After the police arrived, Garrity proceeded to a conference room, where she met with Lopas, W.T. and his mother. The police officer tried to discuss the situation with W.T.'s mother, who accused Garrity of assaulting her son.

Later, Garrity went to the Immedicenter. Garrity was badly bruised and was given medication for pain. Garrity was unable to return for the rest of the school year, and she requested a transfer from Eastside High School. In September 1994, Garrity was transferred to Kennedy High School.

Garrity pressed charges against W.T., and W.T.'s mother charged Garrity with assault against her son. After two postponements, the charges against Garrity went to trial in October 1994, and she was found not guilty. After several postponements of the charges against W.T., he was allowed to plead guilty to a lesser offense. Specifically, W.T. pled guilty to simple assault. However, there was never a hearing at the school concerning the incident.

e. Peter A. Tirri

Peter A. Tirri testified that he is employed by respondent as a teacher but that he is currently serving as the full-time release President of the Paterson Education Association, which is the bargaining agent for the teachers and certain other employees in the Paterson public schools. In his capacity as President of the Paterson Education Association, Tirri became aware of the incidents concerning Setteducato, Ring, Paintal and Garrity.

By letter dated May 4, 1994, Tirri wrote to the State District Superintendent of Schools concerning the incident involving W.T. and Garrity. Tirri inquired about the length of the suspension of W.T. Tirri also inquired whether an expulsion hearing was held pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. Tirri requested a response to his letter. By letter dated May 25, 1994, Tirri requested essentially the same information in regard to the incidents involving Setteducato, Ring and Paintal along with two other individuals. Tirri never received a response to these letters, and to his knowledge, expulsion hearings never took place.

f. Lizzie Chase

Lizzie Chase testified that she is employed by respondent as a vice principal and that during the 1993-94 academic year, she served in that capacity at Kennedy High School. Chase testified as a witness for respondent concerning the incidents involving Ring and Setteducato.

Chase became aware of the incident involving Ring on March 23, 1994, which was the following day, when she received a telephone call at home from the principal, Dr. Sampson. Chase's understanding of the incident was that three students attacked another student and that Ring came to the defense of the student who was being attacked. One student pushed Ring, who fell to the floor, and the student, D.B., kicked Ring. Chase expressed a preference to refer to D.B. by his street name, M. Ring chased after M. and attacked M.

When Chase arrived at school the next day, she telephoned M.'s guardian and informed him that M. was suspended for ten days pending an expulsion hearing. Chase gave the guardian the alternative to withdraw M. from the building with the understanding that M. would never return to Kennedy High School again or any other Paterson school. The guardian chose to withdraw M. from the building. Their understanding was that M., who was sixteen at the time, would be sent to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Prior to the withdrawal, Chase discussed the matter with Dr. Sampson, who said that because Ring allegedly assaulted M. when he was injured, M. should be offered bedside. However, because of the withdrawal, M. never received bedside, and he was dropped from the rolls after twenty-one days. M. never attempted to reenter Kennedy High School. He could not have done so in September 1994, because he was in the penal system.

Chase became aware of the incident involving Setteducato on the day that it occurred. Setteducato reported the incident, but he did not recognize the students. As a result, Chase asked the security guard to be on the lookout for the students. Three days later, the security guard brought three students to Chase. During questioning, the students stated that F.A. had a cigarette lighter that looked like a twenty-two caliber gun. The lighter belonged to another student, but Fa.A. pointed it at Setteducato.

Fa.A. was given a ten-day suspension along with the other three students. Chase called the police and she also called Fa.A.'s grandmother. Fa.A:'s mother called the next day and advised that Fa.A. would be kept in a shelter because he violated his probation.

An expulsion hearing was never conducted for Fa.A., but he was placed in the Total Life Program. Chase was not certain how the student got into the Total Life Program, but she knew that it was operated in conjunction with the Paterson School District. As a result, Fa.A. was out of the building from March to November 1994.

Fa.A. was classified as socially maladjusted. Fa.A. returned to school on December 1, 1994 and was placed in a special education program.

g. Florence Lopas

Florence Lopas testified that she is employed by respondent and that during the 1993-94 academic year she was chairperson of the World Languages Department at Eastside High School. On March 15, 1994, Garrity reported the incident with W.T. to Vice Principal Aurea Rios, and Lopas spoke with Garrity at that time. W.T. had transferred from another school. He was having difficulty with Spanish, but he was doing well in all his other subjects.

Garrity gave W.T. a supplementary report indicating that his progress was not satisfactory. Lopas expressed the opinion that it was not necessary to remove W.T. from the classroom. However, Lopas acknowledged that she was not aware that W.T. told Garrity that he would break her ass. Lopas also expressed the opinion that Garrity used poor judgment by entering an unoccupied office and walking through the book room. In regard to the book room, Lopas stated that the flooring is an inch lower than the floor of the room which Garrity was entering, implying that she could have tripped. In sum, Garrity's poor judgment caused the whole situation to arise.

At a meeting attended by Lopas, Garrity, W.T., W.T.'s mother and Principal Lighty, W.T.'s mother alleged that Garrity grabbed W.T. in the book room. Lopas found confirmation of this allegation in a statement by one of the teachers in the teacher's room, Mrs. Beckerman, who said that she heard W.T. say "Don't touch me." Since the situation involved the word of one person against that of another and since Lopas had confidence in the integrity of both individuals, she could not come to a conclusion as to whether an assault occurred. Other teachers viewed W.T. as a fine, mannerly young man. Lopas stated that it was not within her authority to decide whether an expulsion hearing would be held.

h. Charles Lighty

Charles Lighty testified that he is employed by respondent and that during the 1993-94 academic year he was the principal of Eastside High School. Lighty testified as respondent's witness concerning the Garrity and Paintal incidents.

Lighty spoke with W.T. and Garrity on the date of the incident, and a vice principal conducted an investigation. W.T. told Lighty that he followed Garrity into the book room and that Garrity turned and put her hands on him as she said, "Don't come in here." W.T. said, "Lady, get your hands off of me." W.T. turned to leave, and when he looked back, Garrity was on the floor. W.T. denied that he pushed Garrity.

In Lighty's opinion, W.T. was a very good student, who represented Eastside High School at various conferences, and was generally a fine young man. W.T. subsequently graduated from Eastside High School.

Lighty did not doubt the integrity of W.T. or Garrity. However, he believed that W.T. was not capable of doing what Garrity said that he did. Lighty concluded that he did not have enough proof that an assault actually occurred. Nonetheless, because the teacher said that W.T. assaulted her, W.T. was automatically suspended for a period of ten days. Lighty called W.T.'s mother and informed her of the situation. Lighty weighed all of the evidence, and he made the decision not to conduct an expulsion hearing, because he had no evidence that an assault occurred. Garrity never returned to the school.

Lighty became aware of the incident involving Paintal minutes after it occurred. The police led the student out in handcuffs and took her to a shelter. John Sico, the chairperson of the mathematics department, suspended the student for ten days, and Paintal pressed charges against her.

The child study team evaluated F.H. and classified her as emotionally disturbed. The child study team recommended placement in a self-contained situation. Since F.H. was pregnant at the time, she was transferred to the alternative SAGE program for pregnant women.

F.H. is a ward of the State under the superivision of the Division of Youth and Family Services. F.H. moved to Hackensack, where she is living in a group home as an independent parent. At one point, F.H.'s aunt contacted the school and was told that if F.H. returned, she would be placed in a self-contained class. Lighty would have been comfortable with that arrangement, but F.H. never returned to school.

Asked about the Total Life Program in which Fa.A. from the Setteducato incident was placed, Lighty stated that it is operated by the City of Paterson with some participation by the Paterson School District.

FINDINGS

Setteducato, Ring, Paintal and Garrity (petitioners) had firsthand knowledge of the underlying facts and were fully credible. Their testimony as summarized above is FOUND AS FACT. Tirri testified as to two letters which he sent in regard to those incidents. His testimony was credible, and the above summary is FOUND AS FACT.

Respondent's witnesses did not have firsthand knowledge of the underlying incidents, but they were knowledgeable and testified truthfully as to the subsequent investigations, the information which they gathered, their assessments of the situations and their responses thereto. As a reflection of the latter, their testimony as summarized above is FOUND AS FACT. The accuracy and reliability of their assessments as well as the consistency of their handling of the situations with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 will be discussed below.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

The threshold issue in this proceeding is whether the petition is time barred by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), which provides as follows:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

The petition in this matter is clearly stamped as having been filed with the Commissioner of Education on August 15, 1994. The parties differ as to the date on which the ninety-day period begins to run.

Respondent argues that the ninety-day period begins to run on the date of the assault. The earliest incidents occurred on March 15, 1994 and involved Garrity and Setteducato. The latest incident occurred on April 18, 1994 and involved Paintal. Petitioners filed their consolidated petition 120 days after the latest incident and 156 days after the earliest incidents. Respondent concludes that the petition should be time barred for failure to comply with the ninety-day time limit set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

Petitioners contend that they never received notice of any order, ruling or other action from respondent upon which to act. The Paterson Education Association requested information concerning those incidents by letters dated May 4, 1994 and May 25, 1994. However, respondent never responded to those letters. Petitioners argue that respondent should not be allowed to claim that the petition was untimely filed when respondent would not advise petitioners of its decision despite specific requests therefor.

A remarkably similar issue arose in Markulin v. Neptune Township Board of Education, 92 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 406, in which Elizabeth Markulin, a teaching staff member, alleged that she was assaulted by a pupil and sought as relief, among other things, an order from the Commissioner of Education requiring the Neptune Township Board of Education to convene and conduct an expulsion hearing regarding the assault by the pupil pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. The facts which are pertinent for present purposes may be stated succinctly as follows. The incident involving the alleged assault took place on June 14, 1991. On August 28, 1991, a union representative wrote to the Superintendent of Schools requesting a date and time for the expulsion hearing. On September 4, 1991, the Superintendent responded that he had no record of any further proceedings in the matter. The petition was filed on January 27, 1992, which was 227 days after the June 14, 1991 incident and 206 days subsequent to the expiration of the twenty-one day limitation for instituting expulsion proceedings under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1.

The determination in Markulin was that the ninety-day period began to run on September 4, 1991, when the Superintendent advised that he had no record of any further proceedings in the matter. The ninety-day period did not begin on the date of the incident or upon the expiration of the twenty-one day limitation for instituting expulsion proceedings. In Markulin, the petition was untimely filed relative to September 4, 1991.

The determination in Markulin was consistent with Kaprow v. Board of Educ. of Berkeley Tp., 131 N.J. 572 (1993), wherein the Court stated:

> Adequate notice must be sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to know and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate. . . . Moreover, adequate notice under the regulation must be sufficient to further the purpose of the ninety-day limitations period. . . . A limitations period has two purposes. The first is to stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so that the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend, thus preventing the litigation of stale claims. . . . The second purpose is "'to penalize dilatoriness and serve as a measure of repose'" by giving security and stability to human affairs. (Citations omitted.) Id. at 587.

Here, respondent never issued any notice of a final order, ruling or other action which would alert petitioners to file a petition. Moreover, respondent did not respond to the specific request of the union representative for information concerning the matter. Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that the petition in this matter is not time barred by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

The main issue in this proceeding is whether respondent complied with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1, which at the time of the incidents provided as follows:

> Any pupil who commits an assault, as defined pursuant to N.J.S. 2C:12-1, upon a teacher, administrator, board member or other employee of a board of education, acting in the performance of his duties and in a situation where his authority to so act is apparent, or as a result of the victim's relationship to an institution of public education of this State, shall be immediately suspended from school consistent with procedural due process pending expulsion proceedings before the local board of education. Said proceedings shall take place no later than 21 calendar days following the day on which the pupil is suspended.

The statute refers to a "pupil who commits an assault, as defined pursuant to N.J.S. 2C:12-1, upon a teacher, . . . acting in the performance of his duties. . . ." Here, there is no doubt that each petitioner was a teacher acting in the performance of his or her duties at the times of the respective incidents. With respect to the question whether an assault occurred, the inference could be made from the fact that the students were suspended that respondent's representatives believed that an assault occurred in each instance. However, the testimony of respondent's witnesses indicates a measure of uncertainty as to whether an assault occurred, as in the Garrity incident, as well as a willingness to accept the parents' assertions, as occurred in the Ring and Garrity incidents, that the teacher assaulted the students. Under the circumstances, it is necessary to discuss the concept of assault as applied to these incidents.

An assault is defined in the pertinent part of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1 as follows:

> a. Simple assault. A person is guilty of assault if he:
> (1) Attempts to cause or purposely, knowingly or recklessly causes bodily injury to another; or
> (2) Negligently causes bodily injury to another with a deadly weapon; or
> (3) Attempts by physical menace to put another in fear of imminent serious bodily injury.
>
> • • •
> b. Aggravated assault. A person is guilty of aggravated assault if he:
>
> (5) Commits a simple assault as defined in subsection a. (1) and (2) of this section upon:
>
> (d) Any school board member or school administrator, teacher or other employee of a school board while clearly identifiable as being engaged in the performance of his duties or because of his status as a member or employee of a school board; . . . .

The term "bodily harm" means "physical pain, or temporary disfigurement, or impairment of physical condition." N.J.S.A. 2C:3-11(e). The term "serious bodily injury" is defined at N.J.S.A. 2C:3-11(d) as follows:

> "Serious bodily harm" means bodily harm which creates a substantial risk of death or which causes serious, permanent disfigurement or protracted loss or impairment of the function of any bodily member or organ or which results from aggravated sexual assault or sexual assault.

In the Setteducato incident, Setteducato reported that a student pointed a gun at him and placed him in fear of being shot. The students confirmed that Fa.A. pointed a cigarette lighter which was designed to look like a gun at Setteducato. Thus, respondent's representatives had ample reason to believe that Fa.A.'s conduct fell squarely within N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(a)(3), which makes it a simple assault to attempt by physical menace to put another in fear of imminent serious bodily injury.

In the Ring incident, Ring reported that D.B. kicked him twice in the face and once in the shoulder and that he was in pain as a result of the incident. This report clearly indicates that D.B. assaulted Ring by kicking three times and causing bodily injury. Evidently, respondent's representatives accepted D.B.'s claim that he was assaulted by Ring. However, there was no indication whatsoever that Ring caused bodily injury to D.B. or otherwise committed an assault against D.B.

In the Paintal incident, Paintal's report and respondent's investigation revealed that F.H. burned Paintal's hair with a cigarette lighter causing a large amount of hair to come off in Paintal's hand or fall to the floor. This circumstance could be viewed as bodily harm, an attempt to cause bodily harm or an attempt to place Paintal in fear of serious bodily injury since the burning could have spread to her scalp or face causing permanent disfigurement. Thus, respondent's representatives had ample reason to believe that an assault occurred.

In the Garrity incident, Garrity reported that W.T. pushed her to the floor and that she sustained an injury, However, this incident differs from the others in that W.T. denied that he pushed Garrity. Additionally, W.T.'s mother claimed that Garrity assaulted W.T. Evidently, Principal Lighty extended credence to W.T.'s denial and the allegation of W.T.'s mother that Garrity assaulted W.T.

With respect to the allegation that Garrity assaulted W.T., Lighty had a statement from W.T. that Garrity placed her hands on him. However, W.T.'s statement does not provide the slightest indication that W.T. suffered any bodily harm whatsoever. Under the circumstances, the notion that Garrity assaulted W.T. should have been dismissed out of hand.

In regard to Garrity's claim that she was assaulted by W.T., Lighty concluded that he had no evidence that an assault occurred. This statement cannot be accepted as accurate, since it is clear that Lighty was faced with conflicting evidence as to whether W.T. assaulted Garrity. This circumstance leads to the question as to the proper course of action when an administrator is faced with conflicting evidence as to whether an assault occurred.

A student has the right as a matter of procedural due process to a preliminary hearing prior to the imposition of a temporary suspension pending a full hearing. R.R. v. Bd. of Ed., Shore Reg. H.S., 109 N.J.Super. 337 (Chan. Div. 1970); Goss v. Lopez, 419 U.S. 565 (1975). At the preliminary hearing, the school officials should determine whether they have reasonable cause to believe that the student committed the alleged misconduct. R.R. v. Bd. of Ed., Shore Reg. H.S., 109 N.J.Super. at 347. The preliminary hearing may be completely informal and the student should be given the opportunity to persuade the school officials that there is a compelling reason, such as a mistake in identity, not to impose a suspension. Id. at 348. However, the focus of the hearing should be upon statements and any other evidence presented by the person asserting that an assault occurred. If a credible person, such as a teacher, describes circumstances that amount to an assault, the school administrator should impose a temporary suspension pending full hearing despite denials by the student in the absence of compelling circumstances as described above. Factual disputes should be resolved at the full hearing. Applying these principles to the Garrity incident, it is evident that W.T. should have been suspended pending a full hearing.

In each instance, respondent's representatives conducted a meeting either in person or by telephone with interested individuals that could be described as an informal preliminary hearing. Further, in each instance, respondent's representatives imposed a suspension. To this point, respondent's representatives complied with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 by imposing a suspension from school immediately consistent with procedural due process.

The statute further requires that the pupil "shall be . . . suspended . . . pending expulsion proceedings before the local board of education." In each instance, respondent imposed a suspension for a period of ten days. The finite length of the suspension implies that the student could return to school at the end of the suspension. However, respondent's representatives determined in three instances that as a practical matter, the students would not be returning to school. In the other instance, W.T. was allowed to return to school and graduated. The question is whether respondent's approach to these incidents complied with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1.

The use of the word "shall" in a statute is mandatory or imperative. Knox v. Krause, 152 N.J.Super. 278, 282 (Law Div. 1977). Here, respondent was mandatorily required to impose a suspension. Further, the expression "pending expulsion proceedings before the local board of education" means that the suspension remains in effect until the hearing on expulsion. However, respondent did not keep the suspension in effect until the expulsion proceeding and in fact never did schedule a full hearing. Respondent's informal approach was not consistent with the mandatory provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. Under the circumstances, respondent did not have the option to choose some other approach that may have seemed advisable at the time.

Respondent raises two additional arguments. First, respondent argues that an amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 allows for a suspension rather than an expulsion. Respondent reasons that in view of the amendment there is no requirement to hold an expulsion hearing.

The amended section of the statute provides that the pupil "shall be immediately suspended from school . . . pending suspension or expulsion proceedings before the local board of education." Respondent's argument is unpersuasive for two reasons. First, the substantive law in effect at the time of the incident is normally applied, and amendments are applied only prosectively. Gibbons v. Gibbons, 86 N.J. 515 (1981). Second, the amendment does not alter the requirement of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 that the temporary suspension remain in effect pending a proceeding before the local board of education. The amendment simply provides the option of a suspension as opposed to an expulsion. The amendment does not provide respondent with discretion not to schedule proceedings before the local board of education. Thus, respondent would not have complied with the amended version of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1, since it did not schedule any further proceeding and did not keep the temporary suspension in effect pending the full hearing.

Lastly, respondent argues that the matter is now moot with respect to expulsion proceedings since the students involved in the assaults are no longer in the School District. Respondent's argument is unpersuasive. First, as respondent acknowledges, Fa.A. eventually returned to school and was placed in a self-contained special education program. Second, the student who assaulted Paintal was fifteen years old at the time of the incident in April 1994 and therefore could conceivably attempt to return to school. Likewise, it cannot be said that the student who assaulted Ring can never attempt to return to school since it is not established that he would be ineligible due to age.

Finally, the Garrity incident cannot be said to be entirely moot in view of the lasting impression it seems to have made on administrators and very likely students as well. Lighty initially imposed a ten-day suspension, but it is evident that he did not really accept Garrity's version of the events as opposed to that of W.T. Even after court proceedings conclusively established that W.T. assaulted Garrity and that Garrity did not assault W.T., no action was taken against W.T. As late as the hearing in this matter on October 1995, administrators testified that Garrity was to blame for the incident because she exercised poor judgment. Moreover, the administrators' sympathy for W.T. as opposed to the teacher is not likely to be entirely lost on the other students. W.T. threatened Garrity with physical harm in front of the class and a few moments later assaulted her. The teacher never returned to Eastside High School due to her injuries, and yet the student was allowed to return to school and graduate. It seems evident that this course of events would send the wrong signal to the other students. Under the circumstances, the proceeding is not moot.

In view of all of the above, I CONCLUDE that respondent failed to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 in two respects in regard to each of the four incidents. First, respondent failed to schedule an expulsion proceeding for each student. Second, respondent failed to keep the temporary suspension of each student in effect pending the expulsion proceeding.

In addition to a determination that respondent failed to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 in regard to the incidents in question, petitioners request an order requiring respondent to conduct expulsion hearings for the students who assaulted Setteducato, Ring, Paintal and Garrity. Further, petitioners request an order requiring respondent in the future to strictly comply with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1, requiring respondent to advise all of its employees, through a posting on all school bulletin boards, that it will in the future comply with all of the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1, and requiring respondent to establish guidelines regarding staff and student physical contact, in particular when and to what extent staff must involve itself in student altercations. Lastly, petitioners request any other relief that may be appropriate.

In regard to the request for an order requiring respondent to conduct expulsion hearings, it is questionable whether such hearings will produce any significant results. However, this circumstance is without consequence in view of the mandatory nature of the expulsion hearing under the statute. Respondent must to the fullest extent possible comply with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. Under the circumstances, respondent must schedule expulsion hearings for the students in question with the exception of W.T., since he has now graduated. If nothing else, the expulsion proceedings will establish the point that respondent's compliance with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 is mandatory.

In view of respondent's failure to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 in the instances sub judice, respondent should be ordered to strictly comply with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 in the future. Further, in view of the unfortunate message which respondent's failure to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 in the past may have sent to staff and students, respondent will be required to post an appropriate notice on all school bulletin boards stating that in the future it will strictly comply with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. Finally, petitioners' request that respondent establish guidelines for physical contact between staff and students is peripheral to this proceeding and will not be ordered herein. However, it is evident that there is a need for an educational program for administrators responsible for compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. Respondent will be ordered to develop and implement such a program.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that:

1. It is determined herein that respondent failed to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 with respect to the incidents in question.

2. Respondent will conduct expulsion hearings vis-a-vis the students who committed assaults on Setteducato, Ring and Paintal.

3. Respondent will strictly comply with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 in the future.

4. Respondent will post an appropriate notice on all school bulletin boards stating that in the future it will strictly comply with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1.

5. Respondent will develop and implement an education program for all administrators responsible for compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

ORDER
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 9876-94
AGENCY DKT. NO. 340-8/94

NANCY GARRITY, THOMAS GLADDEN, BALBIR PAINTAL, JAMES RING, JOHN SETTEDUCATO AND THE PATERSON EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, Petitioners,

v.

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY,

Respondent.

This matter having been opened before the Office of Administrative Law by Bucceri & Pincus, attorneys for petitioners, Mary J. Hammer, Esq., appearing, on motion for sanctions, and responsive papers in opposition to the motion having been filed by Louis M. Flora, Esq., attorney for respondent, and it appearing that:

1. The prehearing order dated January 11, 1995 in this matter required that all dispositive motions be filed by April 4, 1995.

2. Respondent filed a dispositive motion to dismiss on the basis of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) on October 2, 1995.

3. Respondent unreasonably failed to comply with the prehearing order dated January 11, 1995, and therefore is subject to a sanction pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.14.

4. Since April 4, 1995, Mary J. Hammer, Esq., has spent 52.25 hours preparing the case and attending hearings at the Office of Administrative law. Her normal hourly rate is $185 per hour.

5. Attorney's fees in the amount of $9,666.25 would be an appropriate sanction, if respondent's motion to dismiss were granted. In that circumstance, petitioners' attorney would unnecessarily have devoted 52.25 hours to the case.

6. In the Initial Decision in this matter, I have concluded that respondent's motion to dismiss based upon N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) is without merit. Under this circumstance, the 52.25 hours which petitioners' attorney devoted to the case was necessary.

IT IS therefore on this 1st day of March 1996 ORDERED that:

1. Petitioners' motion for sanctions is denied, provided that in the ultimate outcome of this case, respondent's motion to dismiss on the basis of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) is denied.

2. In the event that in the ultimate outcome of this case, respondent's motion to dismiss on the basis of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) is granted, petitioners' motion for attorney's fees in the amount of $9,666.25 is granted.

This Order may be reviewed by the Director of the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(k)4.

NANCY GARRITY, THOMAS GLADDEN, BALBIR PAINTAL, JAMES RING, JOHN SETTEDUCATO AND THE PATERSON EDUCATION ASSOCIATION,	:
PETITIONERS,[1]	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions, and the reply thereto, were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent State-operated School District of Paterson (hereafter, "Paterson") initially contends that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) failed to discuss its motion to dismiss for mootness in the initial decision, erred in failing to grant said motion, and in ordering the District to conduct expulsion hearings. (Paterson's Exceptions at p. 1) Paterson maintains, as argued before the ALJ, that, since three of the four juveniles involved in the incidents are no longer in the Paterson school system, "the convening of expulsion hearings for students no longer in attendance is an exercise in futility." (Id. at p. 4) Instead, Paterson suggests as a prospective remedy that the District note the records of the students and preclude them from readmission, should they so attempt, unless a hearing is held. (Id.) Paterson further asserts, with respect to the four students, that Witness Chase and Petitioner Ring offered conflicting testimony regarding D.B.'s intent to return to school. Moreover, Paterson avers that, "Judge McGill failed to reconcile the conflicting testimony of Ring and Chase, both of which he found as fact." (Id. at p. 3)

Petitioners counter that "the ALJ specifically addressed the issue of mootness and found, for the reasons expressed on page 20 of the initial decision, that the matter is not moot." (Petitioners' Reply at p. 1) Petitioners warrant,

> The law mandates that the hearing take place within 21 days of the assault. The evidence presented at the hearing clearly proved that the district did not follow the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. Now respondent proposes waiting an additional unknown period of time . Its reason for this position is the same tired excuse it made repeatedly at the hearing: Other people have dealt with these problems (relatives, the criminal justice system, time), so why should we have to do anything? (Id. at pp. 1,2)

Paterson next asserts that the ALJ's order to develop and implement an education program and to post a notice that Paterson will comply with the pertinent law is inappropriate. (Paterson's Exceptions at p. 4) Paterson argues that such relief is inappropriate since it did not fail to comply with the law. Testimony supports the conclusion, Paterson attests, that the District was preparing for expulsion hearings. To order the District to post such a notice, Paterson continues, "is reminiscent of the parochial practice of having a child who chewed gum wear it on his nose. Surely, we have progressed beyond such forms of discipline." (Id. at p. 5)

Petitioners assert, however, that the ALJ's remedy was appropriate and necessary, inasmuch as the poor judgment of the administrators concerned the ALJ, and "caused him to believe that the administrators involved needed additional education regarding their obligations under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1." (Petitioners' Reply at p. 2) Petitioners liken this remedy to cases which arise under the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act "under which employers are frequently directed to post notices stating that they will comply with the law once they have been found guilty of an unfair labor practice." (Id.)

Paterson further excepts to the ALJ's ruling that the within petition should not be dismissed for failure to comply with the 90-day rule set forth under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). (Paterson's Exceptions at p. 5) As argued before the ALJ, Paterson maintains that the Petition of Appeal should have been dismissed since it was not filed "within 90 days of the occurrence or event which was the subject of their petition for relief." (Id.) Paterson asserts that petitioners had numerous occasions to discover the district's intent with respect to the conduct of the expulsion hearings. Paterson argues,

> In that all of the events occurred no later than April of 1994, it is clear that Petitioners, who had the opportunity on four separate occasions to obtain an answer to their alleged inquiries, sat on their hands with respect to the filing of the Petition. (Id. at p. 6)

Petitioners confirm that the Paterson Education Association (PEA) testified that it requested a response from Paterson with respect to its plans to conduct expulsion hearings on the four students. However, Paterson never responded to the PEA. Further, petitioners aver that Paterson presented no evidence at the hearing that it did not receive the PEA's request for information. Nor, petitioners continue, does Paterson "deny that it made no effort to inform anyone (the teaches [sic] involved, the PEA, the students) whether or not it intended to hold any expulsion hearing in any of the cases." (Petitioners' Reply at p. 3)

Paterson next argues that the ALJ erred in setting forth a separate Order concerning sanctions. (Paterson's Exceptions at p. 6) Here, Paterson asserts that the ALJ should have included its Order on the motion for sanctions in the initial decision, so as to be reviewable by the Commissioner. Petitioners counter that Paterson cites no case law to support its position that such an Order is not reviewable by the Commissioner; they believe that Paterson's assertion is "simply not true." (Petitioners' Reply at p. 3) Petitioners assert that the Commissioner has the authority to review the Order as well as the initial decision.

Finally, Paterson argues that the ALJ erred in determining that the amount of attorney fees to be awarded, were the Commissioner to grant Paterson's motion to dismiss pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), should be based upon the hourly rate of petitioners' counsel, rather than the actual rate charged to the litigant pursuant to contract. (Paterson's Exceptions at p. 7) Paterson contends that petitioners' counsel failed to disclose the contractual rate actually being billed to petitioners, and merely offered the firm's hourly rate. In response, petitioners argue that "[t]he ALJ followed the current case law regarding the award of attorney fees  to successful attorneys," (Petitioners' Reply at p. 3) and claim that Paterson offers "no case law in support of its position that petitioners may only be awarded out-of-pocket expenses." (Id.)

Upon careful and independent review of the record, which included transcripts of the hearing in this matter, the Commissioner determines to accept the findings and conclusions in the initial decision of the ALJ, with minor modification as to the relief set forth below.

Initially, the Commissioner rejects, for the reasons set forth in the initial decision, Paterson's contention that this matter should be time-barred pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). (Initial Decision at pp.13-15) The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that Paterson failed to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 in two respects; Paterson failed to schedule an expulsion proceeding for each student and also failed to keep the temporary suspension of each student in effect pending the expulsion hearing. (Initial Decision at pp. 20, 21) The Commissioner agrees that, with respect to Petitioners Setteducato, Ring and Paintal, the Paterson administration had ample reason to believe that an assault within the definition of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(a)(3) occurred, as the teachers reported. (Initial Decision at pp. 16, 17) Moreover, with respect to the alleged conflicting evidence present in the case of Petitioner Garrity, the ALJ aptly instructs,

> If a credible person, such as a teacher, describes circumstances that amount to an assault, the school administrator should impose a temporary suspension pending full hearing despite denials by the student in the absence of compelling circumstances as described above. Factual disputes should be resolved at the full hearing. Applying these principles to the Garrity incident, it is evident that W.T. should have been suspended pending a full hearing. (Id. at p. 18)

As to Paterson's contention that the ordered expulsion proceedings are merely an "exercise in futility" since three of the four students are no longer in the District, the Commissioner finds Paterson's position unpersuasive. As set forth by the ALJ, those students may, if still of eligible age and domiciled in the District, attempt to return to the District. Paterson's proposed remedy to conduct a hearing, should the students attempt to return, is simply untenable in view of the circumstances in this case.[2]

The Commissioner does not consider the parties' exception arguments with respect to the ALJ's Order, since sanctions under N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.14, including the ordering of attorney's fees, are not reviewable by the Commissioner, but rather by the Director of the OAL, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.2(c)4.

Finally, as to the remedy accorded in this matter, the Commissioner orders that Paterson: (1) Failed to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 with respect to the incidents in question

[2] The Commissioner herein notes that, to the extent there may exist factual inconsistencies in testimony with respect to the students' intent or actual attempts to return to Paterson, resolution of such discrepancy is immaterial to the outcome of this matter.

(Initial Decision at p. 22); (2) Will immediately conduct expulsion hearings vis-à-vis the students who committed the assaults on Setteducato, Ring and Paintal, with due observance to state and federal guidelines pertaining to classified students (Id.); (3) Will henceforth strictly comply with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 (Id.); (4) Will review its policy and procedures adopted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1, revise said policy and procedures as necessary, incorporating established guidelines for staff and student physical conduct, and will submit the policy and procedures to the Director, Urban Education and Policy in the Department of Education for review within 120 days of the date of this decision; (5) Will ensure that all staff and students are provided a copy of, or ready and reasonable access to, the revised policy and procedures adopted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 at or before the start of the 1996-97 school year; and (6) Will promptly develop and implement an education program for all administrators responsible for compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. (Id.)

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is affirmed, with modifications to the remedy ordered, as set forth above. The State-operated School District of Paterson is directed to comply with the above-specified orders. A copy of this decision shall be forwarded to the Director, Urban Education and Policy, for review.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

In 1991, the Paterson Diocesan Schools closed two nonpublic schools in the City of Paterson and relocated the students to the Pope John Paul Elementary School in Clifton. The relocation was intended to be temporary. Four years later, Petitioning Board Clifton sought Commissioner's determination as to whether it or respondent District Paterson was responsible for providing Chapter 192-193 services to nonpublic students attending Pope John Paul II Elementary School in its District pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:46-1 et seq., 18A:46-19.1 et seq. and 18A:46A-1 et seq. Paterson Diocesan Schools acted as a participant in the matter.

In the absence of specific indication of legislative intent which supports petitioner's claim, the Commissioner determined that Clifton is the district responsible for identification, examination and classification of handicapped pupils in the Pope John Paul II Elementary School (N.J.S.A. 18A:46-6 and 46-8 and N.J.A.C. 6:28-6.1 et seq.) and for providing remedial and auxiliary services to those students as specifically required by N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1 et seq. and 46A-1 et seq. Commissioner emphasized that Clifton's obligation to provide such services is limited to the amount of state aid which it receives for same.

For Petitioner, Clifton Board of Education, Anthony V. D'Elia, Esq.

For Respondent, State-operated School District of the City of Paterson, Louis M. Flora, Esq.

For Participant, Paterson Diocesan Schools, (Dwyer, Connell & Lisbona) Kenneth F. Mullaney, Jr., Esq., of Counsel

This matter comes before the Commissioner of Education by Petition of Appeal for Declaratory Ruling, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1, filed by Petitioner, Board of Education of the City of Clifton ("Clifton"), on July 25, 1995. Clifton requests that the Commissioner construe the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:46-1 et seq., 18A:46-19.1 et seq. and 18A:46A-1 et seq., and determine and declare that it is not required to provide Chapter 192 and Chapter 193 services to students attending the Pope John Paul II Elementary School in its District. (Petition for Declaratory Ruling at p. 4)

Respondent, State-operated School District of the City of Paterson ("Paterson"), filed its Answer on August 8, 1995. By correspondence from the Department dated August 17, 1995, the parties were informed that the Paterson Diocesan Schools, initially made a respondent, would be severed from this matter. However, the parties retained the right to request that the Paterson Diocesan Schools participate in these proceedings, and pursuant to a decision subsequently made by the ALJ below, the Paterson Diocesan Schools submit arguments herein as a participant.

While this matter was initially transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3 and was docketed under OAL DKT. NO. EDU 9498-95, the Commissioner subsequently requested, on December 1, 1995, that the matter be returned to the Department of Education for determination. The Commissioner found that the nature of the dispute herein was such that resolution prior to the final setting of the 1996-97 school budget, would be appropriate, if possible, and inasmuch as there did not appear to be factual disputes necessitating findings by an administrative law judge, it was in the best interest of the parties for the Commissioner to render a determination directly.

By letter dated February 29, 1996, the parties and participant were duly informed that the file had been returned from the OAL and the Commissioner would render a summary decision in this matter. Thus, parties and participant were invited to submit primary and reply briefs in accordance with a designated schedule. Having received primary and reply briefs from both parties, and having received a primary brief from participant, the record in this matter closed on March 19, 1996.

BACKGROUND

In 1991, the Paterson Diocesan Schools closed two nonpublic schools in the City of Paterson (St. John the Cathedral and St. Joseph School), and relocated the students from those two elementary schools to the Pope John Paul II Elementary School in Clifton. The relocation was intended to be temporary. Accordingly, on May 20, 1992, Commissioner John Ellis, granted a request that Paterson remain the designated location of the two nonpublic elementary schools relocated in Clifton, for funding of any entitlement programs. The letter further provided for an extension of the agreement until June 30, 1995 "if by June 30, 1993, the Paterson Diocesan Schools demonstrated to the Commissioner that it has secured or has an option to buy a building(s) in Paterson to which the relocated students will return no later than September 1, 1995 " (Paterson's Brief, Exhibit A, Letter of August 2, 1993 from Commissioner Fitzgerald, citing Commissioner Ellis' letter)

On August 2, 1993, Commissioner Mary Lee Fitzgerald approved an extension of the agreement to June 30, 1995, contingent upon the Paterson Diocesan Schools' diligent search for a suitable instructional facility in Paterson. (Id.) Acting Commissioner of Education Richard DiPatri approved an extension of the agreement for an additional year, until July 1996. To date, no suitable facility in Paterson has been found.

POSITIONS OF THE PARTIES AND PARTICIPANT

Petitioner, Board of Education of the City of Clifton

Clifton initially contends that Title 18A should not be literally construed so as to require Clifton to provide Chapter 192 and 193 services to students at the Pope John Paul II Elementary School when no Clifton residents are able to attend the school. Clifton asserts, that under the unique circumstances presented in this matter, it would be unreasonable to apply Title 18A literally; such application would frustrate the legislative intent to require local boards to provide educational services to students residing in the district. (emphasis in text) (Clifton's Brief at p. 3)

Clifton notes that P.L. 1977, c. 192, embodied in N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1 et seq., "authorizes the provision of auxiliary services to pupils enrolled full time in nonpublic elementary and secondary schools. Those auxiliary services are compensatory education, English as a second language and home instruction." (Id.) Further, N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-3 establishes that "...each local Board of Education of a district in which a nonpublic school is located shall provide for the receipt of auxiliary services by children between the ages of 5 and 20 residing in the state and enrolled full time in non-public school located within the district." (Id.)

Clifton further observes that P.L. 1977, c. 193, N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1 et seq., as amended, authorizes the provision of remedial services, including examination, classification, supplementary instruction and speech correction, for handicapped pupils enrolled full time in nonpublic elementary schools. (Id. at p. 4)

With respect to the services authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-3, Clifton argues that a 1984 amendment specifically deleted the requirement that the provision of auxiliary services would be based upon the residency of the student, and instead implemented the current "host district" provision. (Id.) However, Clifton argues that, had the Legislature been presented with the circumstances herein, it "would have provided some type of reasonable relief for the host district so as to prevent an absurd result." (Id.)[1]

Clifton cites a series of cases to advance its position that one must construe a statute in a manner which gives effect to Legislative intent, and that statutes are to be read sensibly rather than literally, with the presumption that the legislative intent is consonant with reason. (Id. at p. 6) Citing Schierstead v. Brigantine, 29 N.J. 220, 231 (1959), Clifton attests, "Where a literal reading of the statute leads to absurd consequences, the Court must restrain the words and seek the true legislative intent." (emphasis in text) Clifton affirms that although a literal reading of Title 18A > would seem to impose the burden of providing for the receipt of Chapter 192-193 services upon the local district, it cannot be argued that the Legislature would have considered it to be a "reasonable approach" to require the host district to provide for the receipt of auxiliary services by 800 students who reside out-of-district and who attend a non-public school which is closed to residents of the host district. (Id. at pp. 6,7)

Moreover, Clifton maintains that a literal reading is not consistent with Title 18A's "general reliance upon the concept of residency" to allocate responsibility for the provision of educational services for children in public schools, nor is it consonant with the Federal Law for Individuals with Disabilities Education Act mandating that a nonpublic school pupil's district of residence bears responsibility

[1] Anticipating that Paterson would argue that Clifton is already providing for the receipt of auxiliary services by nonresidents in eight other nonpublic schools located in the City of Clifton, Clifton asserts that the "vast majority" of the students in those eight nonpublic schools reside in Clifton. Thus, providing services pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-3 and N.J.S.A. 46-19.1 is not unreasonable. (Clifton's Brief at p. 8)

"for all special education services beyond those provided by local school districts under Chapter 192-193." (Id. at p. 7)

Clifton next argues, that assuming one construes the Act literally, N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1 et seq., requires that the district within which the child resides provide the services so authorized. Clifton avers, > Boards of Education are required to provide for the services of a certified speech and language specialist for a child attending a non-public school located within the school district and who is classified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-8.  In addition, a Board of Education is required to furnish transportation to any children found to be handicapped under the Chapter. ***

> Significantly, a school district is only required to provide for the examination and classification of children under Chapter 193 if the child actually resides in district and is enrolled in a non-public school located within that district.  (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 9, citing to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-6 and 46-8)

Clifton reasons, therefore, that it is not required to provide Chapter 193 services for children attending Pope John Paul II Elementary School since none of those children resides in Clifton and such children are, therefore, not required to be examined and classified by Clifton, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:46-8. Moreover, Clifton continues, since those children attending Pope John Paul II Elementary School do not reside in Clifton, "the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19 and 46-23 do not apply, since the children are not '...found to be handicapped under the Chapter,' as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:46-23." (Id. at pp. 9, 10)

In response to Paterson's arguments, infra, Clifton counters that, on the one hand, Paterson relies on the "strict language" of the statutes when citing to the provision of Chapter 192 services, yet, Clifton asserts, Paterson "ignores the express language contained in N.J.S.A. 18A:46-6, 46-8 and 46-19.4." (Clifton's Reply Brief at p. 1) Clifton continues,

> N.J.S.A. 18A:46-6 specifically provides that a Board of Education is required to "...provide for the identification of any children  residing in the district and enrolled in the public schools of the state or in a non-public school located in the district..." (emphasis added). N.J.S.A.

> 18A:46-8 specifically provides that "...[e]ach Board of Education shall provide for the examination and classification of each child residing in the district and identified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-6..." (emphasis added). (Id. at p. 2)

Clifton maintains that Paterson "conveniently ignores" the residency requirements cited above. Further, Clifton observes that N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.4 authorizes the services of a speech language specialist for children attending nonpublic schools "located in the school district and classified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-8." (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 2, citing N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.4) Thus, Clifton reasons, "[b]y its very language  N.J.S.A 18A:19.4 could not apply to any of those children attending Pope John Paul II Elementary School." (Id.)

Accordingly, Clifton urges that the Commissioner declare that it is not required to provide for the receipt of services authorized by Chapters 192-193 to those students attending the Pope John Paul II Elementary School.

Respondent, State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson

Paterson contends that Clifton, in its Petition for Declaratory Ruling, has failed to state a claim upon which relief may be granted. As Paterson notes, the petition requests, "...that the Commissioner construe the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:46-1 et seq. (sic), 18A:46-19.1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1 et seq. and determine and declare that the Petitioner is not required to provide Chapter 192-193 services to Pope John Paul II." (Paterson's Brief at p. 5, citing from Petition for Declaratory Ruling at p. 4) Paterson reviews the language of the pertinent statutes[2] and argues that they clearly establish that Chapter 192-193 services are to be provided by the district in which the nonpublic school is located. Accordingly, there is nothing for the Commissioner to "construe." (Id. at p. 8) Further, Paterson states, "The Commissioner is not empowered to contradict the clearly expressed statutory language of the above cited laws as such a change may only be effected legislatively." (Id.)

Paterson thus reasons that the relief requested is beyond the authority of the Commissioner under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.

Additionally, Paterson argues that Clifton is entitled to state aid to pay for the provision of Chapter 192-193 services. Although Clifton claims it has not yet received such aid, Paterson attests that the Commissioner can remedy this situation by ordering that all Chapter 192-193 aid to be received by Paterson be instead directed to Clifton. Paterson further observes that, with respect to Chapter 192 services, as per N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-15, "the provision of services is limited to the aid received from the state ." (Id.) Paterson asserts that it has likewise negotiated for the provision of Chapter 193 services through an outside agency and it is contractually obligated to pay no more for those services than it receives in state aid. Thus, Paterson reasons, > the Commissioner can order that proposed aid for Chapter 192-193 services for PJP students for the 1996-1997 year be remitted to Petitioner Clifton, subject to adjustment. The Paterson district can likewise permit the Clifton district to maintain the same contractual arrangement for all Chapter 192-193 services at PJP. (Id. at p. 9)

Finally, Paterson contends that N.J.S.A. 18A:46-8 requires that Clifton determine the location for the examination and classification of the students at Pope John Paul II Elementary School. (Id.) Paterson interprets this statute to, first, provide for examination and classification services to students who are residents of the district, with the exception that the board of education of a vocational school district must provide for such services for each child attending the county vocational school on a full-time basis, and who are identified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-6. Next, as for the examination and classification of nonpublic school children, Paterson argues that the statute places clear responsibility upon Clifton, as the local board of education in which the nonpublic school is located, for determining the place for such evaluation and classification services. Thus, Paterson contends "[i]t would be an absurdity to attempt to 'construe' a statute in derogation of its clear language as Petitioner requests be done in this instance." (Id. at p. 10)

In reply to arguments advanced by Clifton, Paterson challenges, upon information and belief, that > attendance at PJP is not  barred to residents of Petitioner Clifton per se, but is limited to parishioners of the two Paterson churches, St. John's and St. Joseph's. Accordingly, Clifton residents who wish to become parishioners of either of these two churches could also be admitted to PJP. This practice is relatively common within the Archdiocese of Newark, where, due to declining enrollments, parochial schools have been consolidated and parishioners of the churches whose schools were consolidated are permitted to attend the consolidated schools even though the consolidated school may be located outside the city or county in which the church is located. (Paterson's Reply at pp. 1, 2)[3]

Paterson suggests that there are students currently attending Pope John Paul II Elementary School who are receiving Chapter 192-193 services and are not residents of Paterson and, in some instances, are not residents of Clifton. This situation, Paterson continues, "raises the question as to admission policies and the claims of both the  Diocese and Petitioner, Clifton, that no one but a resident of Paterson does or may attend PJP." (Id. at p. 2) Nevertheless, Paterson concludes that the admissions policy of the Diocese is irrelevant to the purposes of this action. (Id.)

Paterson further counters that Clifton provides no authority for its position that a legislative directive which is clear on its face "may be abrogated by the Commissioner of Education" because Clifton believes the application of such law in this instance is "absurd." (Id.) Rather, Paterson maintains > there are sound reasons to have all legislatively mandated services provided to students within the physical boundaries of a school district by that same school district, not the least of which are efficiency and economy. (Id. at p. 3)

[3] Clifton's reply brief specifically refutes this claim. Clifton states, "Contrary to Paterson's assertions (and as established by the June 1995 correspondence of the New Jersey Catholic Conference (attached as Exhibit C to Petitioner's Primary Brief)), admission to Pope John Paul II Elementary School is denied to any Clifton resident." (Clifton's Reply Brief at p. 3)

Paterson also notes that it is appropriate that the Commissioner of Education take judicial notice of the fact that the Department of Education has interpreted the operative statutes to place responsibility for providing Chapter 192-193 services with the district in which the nonpublic school is located. Finally, Paterson reminds Clifton that the prior relief afforded, whereby Paterson was responsible for providing Chapter 192-193 services to Pope John Paul II students, was "extraordinary" and was permitted only because the students were expected to be in the City of Clifton on an interim basis. (Id.)

Participant, Paterson Diocesan Schools

It is the position of the Paterson Diocesan Schools that, inasmuch as the "vast majority" of students attending Pope John Paul II Elementary School are residents of Paterson, the responsibility for providing Chapter 192-193 services should remain with Paterson. (Paterson Diocesan School's Primary Brief at p. 1) In support of its position, Paterson Diocesan Schools attaches copies of the following: Paterson Diocesan Superintendent of Schools Frank A. Petruccelli's correspondence of June 6, 1995, addressed to Commissioner Klagholz; Mr. Petruccelli's correspondence of June 13, 1995, addressed to Mayor Pascrell; Mr. Petruccelli's correspondence dated June 22, 1995, addressed to Deputy Commissioner DiPatri; New Jersey Catholic Conference's Associate Director for Education Dr. George V. Corwell's correspondence of June 26, 1995, addressed to Ms. Michelle Doyle of the United States Department of Education; and Mr. Petruccelli's correspondence of June 28, 1995, addressed to Ms. Doyle. Essentially these letters avow that Paterson's retention of responsibility for providing Chapter 192-193 services is in the best interests of the students attending Pope John Paul II, and that such responsibility is consistent with legislative intent.

DETERMINATION

Upon careful review of the arguments presented in this matter, the Commissioner initially affirms that the Federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act places responsibility for ensuring that all handicapped children residing within the jurisdiction of the local educational agency who are in need of special education and related services are identified, located and evaluated. (emphasis added). (34 C.F.R. Part 300, Reg. 300.220) New Jersey statute and State Board of Education regulations are in accord.

Where, however, a parent unilaterally places a child in a nonpublic school, then the pertinent law states,

> Each board of education  shall provide for the identification of any children between the ages of five and 21 residing in the district and enrolled in the public schools of the state or in a nonpublic school located in the district . (emphasis added) (N.J.S.A. 18A:46-6)

Further, contrary to Clifton's assertion, the examination and classification of said nonpublic school child "shall be in a location determined by the local board of education of the district in which the nonpublic school is located ."[4] (emphasis added) (N.J.S.A. 18A:46-8) As established by N.J.A.C. 6:28-6.1 et seq., the district in which the nonpublic school is located must provide for, inter alia, "[i]dentification, evaluation, determination of eligibility, development of individualized education programs and provision of speech and language services, home instruction and supplementary instruction " (N.J.A.C. 6:28-6.2(a)) Regulation also provides, in pertinent part,

> The district board of education in which the nonpublic school is located shall provide to nonpublic school pupils the programs and services required by this subchapter by itself, or through joint agreements with other district boards of education or through contracts with educational services commissions or with clinics and agencies approved under N.J.A.C. 6:28-5.  (N.J.A.C. 6:28-6.1(b))

> When the provision of programs and/or services under this subchapter requires transportation, or the maintenance of vehicular classrooms, the board of education of the district in which the nonpublic school is located shall provide the transportation and maintenance and the cost shall be paid from State aid received under this subchapter by the district board of education. (N.J.A.C. 6:28-6.2(i))

[4] It is herein noted that the italicized portion of the statute, above, was specifically introduced by 1984 amendment. Both the Senate Education Committee and the Assembly Education Committee Statements affirm, "Under this bill, the responsibility for providing for the identification of handicapped pupils enrolled in nonpublic schools will rest with the district in which the nonpublic school is located, rather than with the district of residence of the pupil. The intention is to simplify the recordkeeping and the procedures involved." (See S525)

P.L. 1977, c. 192 was enacted "to insure that the State shall furnish on an equal basis auxiliary services to all pupils in the State in both public and nonpublic schools." (N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1) Similarly, P.L. 1977, c. 193 was enacted "to require that the State and local communities identify and provide remedial services for handicapped children in both public and nonpublic schools." (N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1) While the general rule for the provision of services to the handicapped relies upon student residency, N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1 et seq. specifically place responsibility for the provision of auxiliary and remedial services for pupils in nonpublic schools with the public district in which the nonpublic school is located.[5] To the extent that the services determined to be necessary to the child's education go beyond those which are authorized by these statutes to be offered by the local district to the nonpublic school student, then responsibility lies with the district of residency.[6]

Clifton asserts that Title 18A's "general reliance upon the concept of residency" should be determinative to a decree that it bears no responsibility for providing the students in Pope John Paul II with Chapter 192 and 193 services. (Clifton's Brief at p. 7) However, the Commissioner finds Clifton's arguments to be untenable in view of the clear and unambiguous language in N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18A46-19.1 et seq., together with their accompanying regulations (N.J.A.C. 6:28-6.1 et seq.) and statements of legislative intent. Where there is a conflict between general and specific provisions of a statute, the specific provisions will control. Wilson v. Unsatisfied Claim and Judgment Fund Bd., 109 N.J. 271, 278, (1988), citing Maressa v. New Jersey Monthly, 89 N.J. 176, 195 (1982), cert. denied, 459 U.S. 907, 103 S. Ct. 211, 74 L.Ed.2d 169 (1982). The Commissioner further observes,

> Ordinarily, we derive a statute's meaning by first looking to its plain language.  If the language's meaning is clear and unambiguous, it will be given effect "absent any specific indication of legislative intent to the contrary."

[5] As Clifton correctly notes, this provision was effected by statutory amendment in 1984.

[6] "The district of residence, as required by Federal law and regulation, shall maintain responsibility for providing a free, appropriate public education for pupils enrolled in nonpublic schools." (N.J.A.C. 6:28-6.1(a))

> Moreover, we presume that the Legislature is familiar with existing judicial statutory interpretations.  Chase Manhattan Bank v. Josephson, 135 N.J. 209, 225, 227 (1994)

Thus, in the absence of specific indication of legislative intent which supports Clifton's claim, the Commissioner declines to find that application of the plain meaning of the aforementioned statutes to the matter herein would effectuate an "absurd" result, as Clifton contends.

Accordingly, the Commissioner determines that Clifton is the district responsible for identification, examination and classification of handicapped pupils in the Pope John Paul II Elementary School (see N.J.S.A. 18A:46-6, N.J.S.A. 18A:46-8; and N.J.A.C. 6:28-6.1 et seq.) and for providing remedial and auxiliary services to those students as specifically required by N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1 et seq.[7] In so doing, the Commissioner emphasizes that Clifton's obligation to provide such services is limited to the amount of state aid which it receives for same. (See N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.8 and N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-15.) In view of the fact that budgets have already been fixed for the 1996-97 school year, the Commissioner directs the Division of Finance to pay to Clifton the funding anticipated by Paterson for provision of the above-specified services. Additionally, the parties are directed to review their respective applications for Chapter 192 and 193 funding for the 1996-97 school year, and to amend, as necessary, those applications to be consistent with the Commissioner's determination herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[7] The Commissioner herein notes that, to the extent a factual dispute may exist between the parties as to the admission policies of the Paterson Diocesan Schools, supra at footnote 3, said dispute is immaterial to the within matter and does not require resolution in this context.

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, April 18, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Anthony V. D'Elia, Esq.

For the Respondent-Respondent, Louis M. Flora, Esq.

For the Participant, Dwyer, Connell & Lisbona (Kenneth F. Mullaney, Jr., Esq., of Counsel)

The decision of the Commissioner of Education is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein. We, like the Commissioner, stress that the Clifton board's obligation to provide Chapter 192 and 193 services to students attending the Pope John Paul II Elementary School in the district is limited to the amount of State aid which it receives for the provision of such services.

Board certified tenure charges of incapacity and other just cause against respondent teacher.

ALJ determined that the parties had reached an amicable settlement of their differences in January 1994, prior to certification of the tenure charges. The settlement terms and conditions were transmitted from respondent's attorney to the Board's attorney and were explicit and unambiguous. The settlement included respondent's resignation from her tenured teaching position.

Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ and adopted them as his own. The parties' settlement agreement was held to be in full force and effect and the tenure charges were dismissed.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 7181-94

AGENCY REF. NO. 170-5/94

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF JUDITH RUSH, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF COMMERCIAL, CUMBERLAND COUNTY,

John T. Barbour, Esq., for petitioner, Board of Education

Carol H. Sapakie, Esq., for respondent, Judith Rush, (Selikoff & Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: August 29, 1995 Decided: March 4, 1996

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Board of Education of the Township of Commercial (Board) certified tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -18.1, charging that respondent Judith Rush, a tenured teaching staff member, with incapacity and other just cause, due to excessive and prolonged absence from her employment position, among other things. The Board seeks to have respondent removed from her tenured position. Respondent denies the Board's allegations alleging procedural deficiencies in the Board's charges against her together with the affirmative defense that the Board's action is in violation of the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (LAD), N.J.S.A. 10:5-4.1 and its related provisions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 13:13-2.5.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of the Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was held on April 3, 4, and 6, 1995, at the City of Vineland City Hall, Vineland, New Jersey. The parties requested and were granted leave to submit posthearing memoranda. The hearing record closed on August 29, 1995. Extensions were granted in order to execute this initial decision.

ISSUES

Pursuant to agreements reached at a prehearing conference held on November 7, 1994, and the Prehearing Order issued on November 16, 1994, the following issues are to be determined by this administrative tribunal:

1. Whether respondent entered into a settlement with the Board which incorporated her resignation from her tenured teaching position?

2. Whether the tenure charges, as certified, are true in fact?

3. Whether, by the Board instituting the tenure charges against respondent, the Board is in violation of the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (LAD)?

BACKGROUND FACTS

Based upon the testimony and other evidence adduced at the hearing, I FIND the following BACKGROUND FACTS in this matter:

Respondent witnessed her only son succumb to a fatal motor vehicle accident on December 27, 1991. Prior thereto, respondent suffered from a long term psychiatric disability where she was treated for emotional illness and was under psychiatric treatment. She was treated for approximately ten years with lithium, among other things.

Respondent was absent from duty from September 11, 1991 through November 21, 1991, under a physician's care due to a broken foot. Subsequent to respondent's son's death, on February 13, 1992, respondent requested personal leave days for February 28, 1992, March 2 and 3, 1992, to accompany her husband to Los Angeles, California, where he was to run in a marathon. Respondent's request for personal leave was denied. Respondent did not appear for duty on February 26, 1992, or thereafter.

On the evening of February 26, 1992, at 9:30 p.m., respondent's husband contacted respondent's building principal at his home to advise that respondent would be absent from duty on February 27 and 28, 1992. Respondent's husband further advised the building principal, among other things, that respondent was to visit a physician and seek a medical leave of absence for the remainder of the 1991-92 school year. Respondent did not appear for duty on March 2 and 3, 1992, nor did she advise anyone at her school she would not report for duty.

Respondent sent the Superintendent of Schools a memorandum, dated February 27, 1992, requesting a medical leave of absence beginning on February 26, 1992 and for the remainder of the 1991-92 school year. The memorandum was received by the Superintendent on March 2, 1992. The memorandum was not accompanied with a physician's report or recommendation for the leave of absence. Respondent advised the Superintendent that a letter from her doctor defining the need for the leave could be provided upon the Superintendent's request.

On March 24, 1992, at the Superintendent's request, Alan Kulick, M.D., performed a psychiatric examination of respondent. Dr. Kulick referred to a letter from Chris Wolf, Ph.D., respondent's psychologist who was then treating respondent for depression. Dr. Wolf asserted to Dr. Kulick that respondent was unable to work. After discussing respondent's work history with the Board, her long history of emotional illness and treatment and his diagnosis of respondent, Dr.

Kulick concluded that her request for medical sick leave should be granted. Dr. Kulick recommended that petitioner be granted permanent disability status.

The Board approved respondent's request for an unpaid medical leave of absence on August 11, 1992, retroactive to March 24, 1992. The Board's adopted Resolution provided, among other things, that respondent's long term leave shall continue until the Board's physician certifies, after an examination, that respondent is fit to return to her teaching duties. Respondent's leave continued through the 1992-93 school year.

On September 23, 1993, subsequent to the start of the 1993-94 school year, the Superintendent received a telephone call from respondent who indicated she was ready to return to duty on October 1, 1993. The Superintendent sent respondent a letter, dated September 23, 1993, in which he reminded respondent that she was required to be examined by the Board's psychiatrist for a psychiatric evaluation before respondent would be considered for reinstatement to her teaching duties.

On October 7, 1993, Dr. Alan Kulick sent a letter to Superintendent Barry Ballard in which Dr. Kulick asserted he performed a psychiatric examination of respondent as requested by the Superintendent. After a discussion of respondent's past history in the Board's schools, her emotional illness since 1985 and treatment thereof, Dr. Kulick concluded that respondent was very susceptible to the stress of teaching and that her return to such work would result in the recurrence of the same problems and symptoms she had manifested and which caused her to take long term medical leave of absence. It was Dr. Kulick's opinion that respondent lacked an understanding of the problem she experienced while a teacher in the Board's schools and lacked insight into the nature of her condition.

On or about November 30, 1993, Superintendent Ballard submitted his written statement in support of two tenure charges against respondent to the Board with a copy forwarded to respondent. The Superintendent alleged and charged respondent with incapacity and removal from her tenure teaching position on the grounds of just cause. Prior to the Board taking action on the Superintendent's tenure charges against respondent, the Board's attorney and respondent's attorney entered into settlement discussions and negotiations on behalf of their respective parties.

The Board had scheduled its regular monthly meeting for January 11, 1994. The Board was to consider the Superintendent's tenure charges against respondent at this meeting. On January 11, 1994, the Board's attorney was in receipt of a facsimile (fax) transmission from respondent's attorney which stated as follows:

> Confirming our conversation, it is my understanding that we have reached a settlement in the Judy Rush matter. The settlement consists of the following:
> 1. Payment of $7,500.00 to Judy Rush in the manner previously discussed;
>
> 2. Resignation of Ms. Rush to be tendered;
> 3. Ms. Rush to be granted a private appearance before the Board to present her views of her employment relationship with the Board, and for no other purpose. (P-2-SS).

The Board's attorney then transmitted the terms and conditions of the settlement to the Board's Superintendent. Superintendent presented the settlement to the Board at is regular monthly meeting in January 11, 1994, which then took the following action:

> Motion by Mr. Perrelli, seconded by Mr. Taylor, that the board go into executive session to discuss and act upon a personnel matter (8:51 p.m.)
> Motion by Mr. Perrelli, seconded by Mr. Taylor, that the board return to regular session at which time the following action was taken by the board while in executive session:
> Motion by Mr. Perrelli, seconded by Mr. Taylor, Resolved that the Commercial Township Board of Education agree to the settlement of the Judy Rush matter as set forth in the January 11, 1994 letter from Steven R. Cohen, Esquire. All were in favor by roll call vote - Carmichael, Robbins, Perrelli, Taylor, Beachaump, Van Dyke. (P-2 SS).

As a consequence of the settlement and resolution, the Board took no action concerning the Superintendent's tenure charges against respondent at its regular meeting on January 11, 1994.

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

RESIGNATION

In a matter essentially on point with this matter with respect to the issue of respondent's resignation, the Commissioner of Education has recently ruled that as a general rule, the resignation of a public employee becomes complete upon acceptance by the employing local board of education. Ralph Cutro v. Board of Education of Twp. of Hazlet, Monmouth County, 94 N.J.A.R. (EDU) 402. This decision is but one in a long line of similar decisions on this point. In Long Branch Board of Education v. Pizarro, Commissioner Decision #156-89 (June 1, 1989), the Commissioner held that a teacher's resignation is effective upon formal acceptance by the board of education. In Hanley v. East Brunswick Board of Education, 1988 S.L.D. 1149, the Commissioner held that a tenured teacher who does not formally rescind a resignation prior to the board of education's acceptance thereof is bound by that resignation. Likewise, in Fischer v. East Orange Board of Education, 1988 S.L.D. 31, it was held that an unambiguous resignation from employment duly accepted by a board of education, can not be unilaterally rescinded or modified by the resigned employee. A tendered resignation can not be withdrawn after being formally accepted by the local board of education. Klinka v. Florence Twp. Board of Education, Commissioner Decision #310-83 (September 1983), aff'd. State Board of Education Dkt. No. 103-83 (March 7, 1984), aff'd. N.J. Super., Appellate Division, A-3878-83T3 (March 21, 1985).

"The burden of proving the right of tenure is upon plaintiff [the teaching staff member] and ordinarily that right must be clearly proved." Canfield v. Board of Ed. of Pine Hill Borough, 51 N.J. 400, 401 (1968) reversing Canfield v. Bd. of Ed. of Pine Hill, 97 N.J. Super. 483 (App. Div. 1967) and adopting the dissenting opinion of Judge Gaulkin at 493. Herein, the respondent would have the burden of proving that her resignation through this settlement was not effective. Respondent has not carried that burden of proof in the instant matter.

Voluntary resignation terminates tenure rights. Kimless v. Board of Education, Woodbridge Twp. 78 S.L.D. 651; and, Misek v. Board of Education, Willingboro, 80 S.L.D. 98, aff'd. State Board of Education, 80 S.L.D. 104. A teaching staff member who resigns from district employment surrenders all rights of tenure and seniority. In Re Tenure Hearing of Trotta, North Bergen Township, Commissioner Decision #128-82 (May 10, 1982). Tenure and re-employment rights may be voluntarily relinquished, by either an employee directly or through her authorized attorney. See O'Toole v. Forestal, 211 N.J. Super. 394, 402-402 (App. Div. 1986), in reliance upon Lange v. Bd. of Ed. of Borough of Audubon, 26 N.J. Super. 83, 88 (App. Div. 1953).

Petitioner respectfully asserts that the settlement is a proven fact and is legally valid and binding.

NOTICE

It is conclusively established that the respondent through her attorney communicated what respondent believed to be a settlement between the parties on January 11, 1994. See Exhibit P2-RR and the attachments to Exhibit P2-SS. In the facsimile cover sheet from respondent's attorney attached to Exhibit P2-SS, the communication is specifically identified as:

"REGARDING: Judy Rush

MESSAGE: Settlement Confirmation"

Furthermore, the text of the body of the letter which accompanied that facsimile cover sheet states that:

"Confirming our conversation, it is my understanding that we have reached a settlement in the Judy Rush matter. The settlement consists of the following:

1. Payment of $7,500.00 to Judy Rush in the manner previously discussed;

2. Resignation of Ms. Rush to be tendered;

This letter does not speak of this settlement being conditional in any manner. Rather, the status is "that we have reached a settlement." In its formal action, in a duly convened public meeting, recorded in the formal and official minutes of the petitioner, that settlement was accepted by the petitioner with no modification. That acceptance became final and binding upon the closing of that January 11, 1994, meeting of the petitioner. At that time, the settlement was an enforceable right of both parties. Mutuality requires that such enforceability flows in both directions.

A local board of education only acts by a motion duly introduced and adopted by a vote recorded in its minutes. Companile v. Middletown Board of Education, Commissioner Decision 57-82, 2 March 82. This is precisely what occurred in the instant matter. See Exhibit P2-TT. The minutes of board meetings are the public records of board action. Lange v. Laurel Springs Board of Education. In Matawan Reg. Teachers Assoc. v. Matawan-Aberdeen Reg. Board of Education, 212 N.J. Super. 328 (Law Div. 1986), in an Open Public Meetings Act context, the Court confirms that the actions of a local board of education are recorded in its minutes, and the importance of those minutes to the public as the public record of board action. Likewise minutes of a public body's meetings and actions are public records under the Right to Know Law, N.J.S.A. 47:1A-2. South Jersey Publishing Co. vs. NJ Expressway Authority, 124 N.J. 478 (1991). Hence, the public minutes are the formal and official record, open to the public, of the official actions of a local board of education. Such minutes provide official and constructive notice to any and all parties of such actions. In this instance with nothing more, those minutes provided respondent with official and constructive notice of the petitioner's acceptance of the respondent's settlement on January 11, 1994. That constructive notice is fully sufficient for the settlement and resignation of respondent to have concluded this matter as of January 11, 1994.

Respondent's sole objection or defense is based upon respondent's now asserted claim that there never was any formal personal notice to respondent of the petitioner's acceptance on January 11, 1994. This objection or defense presents an argument which in essence is an estoppel based argument. See Kaprow v. Board of Educ. of Berkeley Twp., 131 N.J. 572, 589-590 (1933), where the Court held that "equitable estoppel is rarely invoked against public entities. O'Malley v. Department of Energy, 109 N.J. Super. 309, 316, 537 A. 2d. 647 (1987)." In Levin v. Woodbine, 181 N.J. Super. 61, 70 (Law Division 1981), it was held that "There is not only a pronounced reluctance to the judiciary to apply estoppel principles against governmental agencies, Summer Cottager's Ass'n of Cape May v. City of Cape May, 19 N.J. 493, 503, (1955); Boyd v. Institutions and Agencies Dep't, 126 N.J. Super. 273, 275 (App. Div. 1974), but such application is to occur only where 'the interests of justice, morality and common fairness dictate that course.' Anske v. Palisades Park, 139 N.J. Super. 342, 348 (App. Div. 1976)." It should be noted that in Levin, supra., the ultimate decision of the Court was to remove Mayor Levin from the office due to being absent for more than the statutory time period which was set for a vacancy to be declared. The Court refused to allow equitable estoppel arguments to be used to defeat the operation of the statute which set the time period for that vacancy to arise.

With respect to disputes between a local board of education and its employees, the Court has held that even when a statutory basis for notice exists, which is not present in the instant matter between respondent and petitioner, notice to public employees may be constructive rather than individual. See Jamison v. Morris Sch.Dist. Bd. of Educ., 198 N.J. Super. 411, 416 (App. Div. 1985); relying upon Oliveri v. Carlstadt-E. Rutherford Bd. of Education, 160 N.J. Super. 131 (App. Div. 1978).

In any event, the respondent's assertion is that through her attorney's letter dated March 29, 1994, Exhibit P2-XX, respondent attempted to rescind the settlement of January 11, 1994. Note, however, that in the very first paragraph of that same letter, Exhibit P2-XX, respondent attorney confirms that there had been communication, subsequent to January 11, 1994, but prior to March 28, 1994, from the petitioner's attorney with respect to the petitioner's acceptance of the January 11, 1994 settlement. Therefore, it is clear that respondent's claim of an attempt to rescind before receipt of personal notice of acceptance is not supported by the record.

RESPONDENT'S POSITION

PETITIONER HAS FAILED TO ESTABLISH THAT RUSH WAS REQUIRED BY ANY ENFORCEABLE AGREEMENT TO RESIGN HER EMPLOYMENT

Petitioner bears the burden of showing that respondent entered into an enforceable agreement to resign her tenured position. The credible evidence established that the settlement proposal under discussion between the attorneys in January 1994, was abandoned in March of that year, before it was accepted in the manner contemplated by both the attorneys and the Board, namely negotiation of a formal settlement agreement executed by both parties. Alternatively, Rush contends that any acceptance which the Board may have intended was not unambiguously manifested to herself or her attorney before they provided notice to the Board that she would not resign.

Though it is possible to establish an agreement through a less formal exchange of documents where the parties intend to be bound by such a process, there clearly was no such intent to the circumstances of this case. On or about November 30, 1993, Judith Rush was informed by Superintendent Ballard that he had filed the tenure charges against her which would be considered by the Board on December 14, 1993. Ex. J2-OO. Steven Cohen, as attorney for Rush, and John Barbour, as attorney for the Board, agreed to delay any Board action until January 11, 1994, while they discussed a settlement between their clients. Ex. J2-PP and J2-QQ.

It is undisputed that their discussions did not result in a single settlement agreement executed by all parties. The Board contends instead that an enforceable settlement arose when it approved a resolution to "agree to a settlement of the Rush matter as set forth in the January 11, 1994, letter from Steven R. Cohen", even though there is no evidence whatever that its decision was communicated to Rush or her attorney before continued efforts to settle the matter were abandoned.

A comprehensive view of the evidence establishes that Cohen's nine-line letter of January 11, 1994, outlined his understanding of a settlement proposal he was discussing with the Board's attorney, John Barbour. Subsequent events establish that both attorneys as well as the Board understood and intended that this offer to discuss settlement on the terms outlined would have to be reduced to a formal settlement document executed by both parties before it could become a final agreement.

On January 11, 1994, Cohen sent Barbour a brief, nine line letter "confirming our conversation" that "we have reached a settlement in the Judy Rush matter" which would consist of a $7,500 payment to her "in the manner previously discussed"; a resignation of Mrs. Rush "to be tendered," and Rush's private appearance before the Board. This short letter is no more than an outline. It was not signed personally by Cohen, although it was approved by him, and was telefaxed and mailed to Barbour by Cohen's secretary.[1] J2-44 and TR 4/3/95 at 140:9-24. If for no other reason, the absence of any provision releasing or retaining claims makes it clear that neither lawyer perceived this memo to be a comprehensive settlement offer which could become a final agreement by simple acceptance.[2]

Cohen's correspondence contains no instructions or directions as to how as to proceed. It is apparent, however, from what happened next that both attorneys anticipated that discussions would continue after the Board approved the concept, and that neither attorney anticipated that the Board could convert Cohen's memo into a binding agreement by simply accepting it. Specifically:

> -- In his transmittal of Cohen's letter to the Board, Barbour describes a "possible settlement" and states that "when all of the paper work is completed and the settlement is fully implemented, the terms of the settlement and the underlying dispute will be public information." (emphasis supplied). Ex. P2-SS. Barbour's letter to the Board directly contradicts Superintendent Ballard's testimony that there was nothing left to be done or concluded to bring the settlement about. Even a cursory review of its text also reveals that the petitioner's assertion that Barbour informed his client in Ex. P2-SS that the settlement was conditioned only upon the acceptance by the petitioner is simply false.

[1] The secretary's telefaxed transmittal memo which she labeled "settlement confirmation" was not included with the mailed correspondence, and does not provide persuasive evidence of Cohen's intent.

[2] The completeness is obvious. If the agreement were enforced it would leave Rush free to pursue all legal claims against the district, including her discrimination claim.

-- Having heard nothing, Cohen transmitted the draft of a seven page settlement agreement and release of all claims to John Barbour on January 20, 1994, and invited him to call if there was any problem.[3] Ex. J-UU. Several weeks passed during which Barbour did not respond to this letter or provide Cohen any information concerning his client's reaction to either the January 11, 1994, letter or the January 20, 1994, draft agreement. TR 4/3/95 at 143:24 to 144:3. If Barbour or the Board believed they already had a final agreement, they would have objected to Cohen's letter or returned the draft.

-- On February 22, 1994, Cohen wrote to Barbour asking him where matters stood. Ex. J-VV. Barbour responded to this inquiry with a telephone call to Cohen's office in mid-to-late March requesting another copy of the January 20, 1994, draft. TR 4/3/95 at 144:23 to 145:5. He also asked Superintendent Ballard to search the Board's files for any copy of the draft he may have transmitted to the Board. TR 4/3/95 at 122:17 to 123:12 and Ex. P1-ZZ. Again, if Barbour believed that his client already had a final agreement, he would not have requested another copy of the January 20, 1994, draft or sent his client hunting for it. He would have told Cohen where matters stood by tendering the Board's alleged obligations ($7,500 and an invitation to appear before the Board), and demanding Rush's resignation

-- Even after Cohen withdrew the settlement proposal on March 28, 1995, informed Barbour that Rush would not agree to resign, and asked Barbour to advise him as to the Board's position (see Ex. J2-XX), Barbour did not promptly object or inform Cohen that the parties had an enforceable agreement, tender any of the Board's obligations or demand Rush's resignation. TR 4/3/95 at 142:7-11. On April 7, 1994, Cohen again wrote to Barbour asking for information concerning the Board's position. Ex. J2-YY. Again there was answer until Cohen received a copy of the Board's Certification of Determination, forwarding to the Commissioner of Education on May 31, 1994, the tenure charges presented to the Board in December 1993. In the face of Cohen's repudiation in March, the Board's failure to have asserted earlier that the January 11, 1994, letter was a final settlement supports a conclusion that this was an after-the-fact rationalization inconsistent with its original intent to continue negotiations until there was a formal agreement executed by all the parties.

-- While claiming that he was not aware that anything further needed to be done to implement the alleged settlement, Superintendent Ballard > admitted that the Board never issued its settlement check to Judith Rush or invite her to appear at a Board meeting. TR 4/3/95 at 91:11 to 92:1 This failure also supports the conclusion that at the time the events were occurring, it did not believe it had an enforceable settlement agreement by which it was also bound.

[3] Because Barbour did not take the stand, there is no credible evidence that he did not receive this letter, even if he subsequently misplaced the enclosure.

Based on the evidence and inferences described above, this court should conclude that there was never a meeting of the minds on a final settlement. Both parties believed, and acted as though they believed, that they would have a deal "when all of the paper work is complete." It never was.

Alternatively, even if it could be established that the Board reasonably believed that it could convert Cohen's nine line letter into a final agreement by simple acceptance, the Board did not unambiguously accept the agreement, and did not inform Rush or her attorney of any alleged acceptance until after they rescinded any alleged offer to settle.

The Board's minutes of January 11, 1994, record a motion to resolve that the Board "agree to a settlement of the Rush matter as set forth in the January 11, 1994, letter from Steven R. Cohen." This is not an unambiguous acceptance. A valid acceptance of an offer must be unambiguous. Looman Realty Corp. v. Broad Street Nat. Bank of Trenton, 74 N.J. Super. 71 (App. Div. 1962), certif. denied 37 N.J. 520 (1962). In the context of unfolding events, the resolution could just as easily be interpreted as authorization for its attorney to continue negotiations on the basis of Cohen's proposal. Its ambiguity alone renders the Board's resolution defective as an acceptance.

Moreover, word of the Board's alleged acceptance was only communicated to Rush after May 31, 1994, long after her attorney had informed the Board's attorney she no longer wished to settle. Where the promisor receives no promise in return, there is no promissory contract. See Friedman v. Tappan Development Corp., 22 N.J. 523 (1956). Because the Board's alleged intention to accept was never manifested to Cohen or Rush by word or act, and was actually concealed in the face of repeated requests for information as to where matters stood, it is clear that there was no mutual exchange of promises. See Weichert Co. Realtors v. Ryan, 128 N.J. 427, 435-436 (1992); Johnson & Johnson v. Charmley Drug Co., 11 N.J. 526, 539 (1953); Looman, supra. 74, N.J. Super. at 82.

If the Board in fact intended its resolution as an agreement not to bring tenure charges against Rush, its failure to inform her or her attorney of its promise is inexplicable. Superintendent Ballard clearly knew how to communicate the Board's actions and resolutions concerning her employment to Rush. He did so with respect to her medical leave of absence (Ex. J-GG and TR 4/3/95 at 83:3-13) her increment withholding (TR 4/3/95 at 85:10-14) and the pendency of tenure charges (see Board's Certification of tenure charges). Superintendent Ballard did not, however, recall providing any confirmation to Rush or her attorney, verbal or written, that the Board had accepted her settlement offer. TR 4/3/95 at 85:15 to 86:1. He could recall no other occasion on which he had not informed Rush of any action taken by the Board concerning her employment. TR 4/3/95 at 91:1-6. He testified that he left this matter in the hands of the Board's attorney, John Barbour. TR 4/3/95 at 86:2-5.

There is no evidence whatever that Mr. Barbour communicated the Board's acceptance to Rush or her attorney. Superintendent Ballard did not recall receiving any written confirmation from Barbour that the Board's alleged acceptance had been sent to Rush or her attorney. TR 4/3/95 at 86:2-18. Cohen appeared at trial of this matter and testified that he did not receive any information concerning the Board's response to the understanding set forth in his letter of January 11, 1994, before he notified John Barbour on March 28, 1994, that his client was no longer willing to settle. TR 4/3/95 at 142:7-11; See Ex. J2-XX. Barbour did not take the stand, and Cohen's evidence stands uncontradicted.[4] See Duratron Corp. v. Republic Stuyvesant Corp., 95 N.J. Super. 527, 531 (App. Div. 1967) (adverse inference may be drawn from failure of party to testify). The unrefuted evidence therefore establishes that any alleged acceptance by the Board was never communicated to Rush or her attorney.

Apparently acknowledging that there was no direct communication of its so-called acceptance, the Board argues that direct communication of its acceptance was not necessary because its minutes provided respondent constructive notice of its action. See petitioner's brief at p.10. This argument is unsupported by any authority that a public body may form a contract through "constructive notice."[5] Moreover, even if the constructive notice argument might apply to district residents, it could not apply to Rush who lived in another community and was not then teaching in the district's school. Finally, the motion that the Board resolve to "agree to a settlement of the Rush matter as set forth in the January 11, 1994, letter from Steven R. Cohen" is ambiguous. It could reasonably be interpreted as authorization for its attorney to complete a settlement negotiation on the terms proposed. Where petitioner argues for constructive notice, such ambiguity is fatal.

Although an offer might still be accepted by rendering the requested performance where a mutual exchange of promises is not sought, creating a unilateral contract on the offered term, see Friedman, supra. the Board admits that in this case, it neither performed or tendered performance of any of the duties it claims to have assumed. Any offer, therefore, remained revocable at will. Id.; Gabel v. Manetto, 177 N.J. Super. 460 (App. Div. 1981).

Because the parties did not intend that a final settlement could occur on the basis of the January 11 letter alone, because the Board made no unambiguous acceptance of the understanding set forth there and because any acceptance was not communicated to Rush or her attorney before Cohen informed the Board's attorney on March 28, 1994, that his client was no longer willing to settle, this court should deny petitioner's request for a declaration that the January 11 letter created an enforceable agreement. Alternatively, if the court does enforce the agreement, it should enforce all its provisions, dismiss the Board's tenure charges and leave Judith Rush free to pursue her discrimination claims.

THE BOARD'S REPLY

[5] Petitioner's reliance on Jamison v. Morris School Dist. Bd. of Ed., 198 N.J. Super. 411 (App. Div. 1985) is misplaced. That case did not deal with contract formation. but the adequacy of notice to an untenured teacher that her position was being riffed. Although the court based its decision in part on constructive notice. it also relied upon the Board's power to correct an inadequate notice of this particular adverse action.

The Board's reply memorandum, summarized below, reiterates the fact that it held the tenure charges against respondent in abeyance until January 11, 1994, due to the ongoing settlement discussions between the parties. It counters respondent's assertion that the letter of January 11, 1994, to the Board's attorney from respondent's attorney was a settlement proposal rather than a settlement offer. It argues, among other things, that the letter was nothing less than an offer of settlement, which the Board accepted and executed a formal resolution in acceptance of respondent's offer. There is no evidence to support respondent's claim that the language of the letter was intended to be a step in the negotiating process. The language in the letter used by respondent's attorney was clear and unambiguous and expressed the terms of the offer of settlement.

A board of education acts only by motion duly introduced and adopted by a vote recorded in its minutes. Campanile v. Middletown Board of Education, Commissioner's Decision 57-82, March 2, 1982. An offer without consideration becomes irrevocable by subsequent act of the offeree in reliance thereon if such act was part of the performance bargained for, or was one which the offeror had reason to foresee as a result of the offer. American Handkerchief Corp. v. Frannot Realty Co., 17 N.J. 12 (1955).

In the instant matter the Board acted in two ways. First of all, it acted by the affirmative act of adoption of the motion to accept the offered settlement. Secondly, it acted by the act of refraining from action on the filed tenure charges. Under ordinary contract principles, the acceptance must be clear and unequivocal, through words, through acts, or through conduct, and if the acceptance of the offered contract is by conduct, the court looks to objective circumstances and not subjective intent of a party to determine whether the acceptance is clear and unequivocal. Ponzani v. Kraft General Foods, Inc. 774 F. Supp. 299 (D.C. N.J. 1991) aff'd 968 F. 2d. 14 (3rd. Cir. 1992). A contracting party is bound by the apparent intention he or she outwardly manifests; it is immaterial that he or she has a different, secret intention from that outwardly manifested. Hagrish v. Olsen, 254 N.J. Super. 133 (App. Div. 1992). Cohen's January 11, 1994, letter and the Board's January 11, 1994, resolution are clear, concise, and unequivocal in manifesting a mutual intent that this matter was resolved in accordance with the offer contained in Cohen's January 11, 1994, letter. There is no intent manifested that anything else yet remained to be accomplished. The respondent's attempts to argue to the contrary in her brief are unsupported and fly in the face of the evidence in the record in this matter.

Existence of a contractual obligation depends not on the so-called real but unexpressed intention of a party, but rather on the intention expressed by the party. The phrase "meeting of the minds" can only mean that agreement as expressed. Comerata v. Chaumont, Inc. 51 N.J. Super. 31 (App. Div. 1958). Intent as expressed, includes expression through words, through acts, or through conduct. Ponzani, supra.

Even where parties intend that there is to be a subsequent writing to memorialize a contract, where the parties intend to be bound by a preliminary agreement, the following written document becomes a mere memorization of their agreement, and they are bound by the preliminary agreement. Morales v. Santiago, 217 N.J. Super. 496 (App. Div. 1987). Therefore, even if there was any proof that as of January 11, 1994, there was any contemplation that a subsequent writing of the parties' contract was to be produced, that writing would only serve as a memorization of the agreement actually reached on January 11, 1994. Unless a specific legal requirement exists, such as the statute of frauds in a real estate context, which is not present here, a contract need not be expressed in writing so long as parties have mutually agreed to do something which they previously did not have an obligation to do. Radiological Soc. of NJ v. Sheeran, 175 N.J. Super. 367 (App. Div. 1980); and, Silverstein v. Dohoney, 32 N.J. Super. 357 (App. Div. 1954), followed in 35 N.J. Super. 303, aff'd 19 N.J. 1. Unless a legal requirement exists to the contrary, parties may bind themselves to an agreement by writing, by an oral understanding, or by acts, or a combination thereof.

The Board observes that respondent relies, in part, upon the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision in a matter concerning the interpretation of whether a "retailer of pharmaceutical supplies in interstate commerce is in the particular circumstances of a 'signer' of a minimum price-fixing agreement .... within the intendment of the Miller-Tydings Amendment of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act adopted August 17, 1937." While certainly not on point with the instant matter, the Supreme Court nonetheless issued general contract holdings which clearly support the petitioner's claim that a binding contract was agreed to by the parties in the instant matter. In that decision, with respect to the creation of a contract, the Court expressly states:

> a contract .... may be made in writing .... or by word of mouth, or partly in writing, and partly by word of mouth, or may be inferred from the conduct of the parties. .... assent may be indicated by acts as well as words.
> A contract is an agreement resulting in obligation enforceable at law; and it is basic to an agreement entailing obligatory legal consequences that the parties have a distinct intention common to both. Johnson & Johnson V. Charmley Drug Co. , 11 N.J. 526, 538, 539 (1953).

The Board argues that there was absolutely no ambiguity in its action on January 11, 1994, to accept respondent's offer of settlement, It cites in Looman Realty Corp. v. Broad Street, Nat. Bank of Trenton, 74 N.J. Super. supra. at 77, the Court quotes the alleged acceptance at issue in that matter having provided:

> Upon motion duly made, seconded and carried, approval was given to the recommendation of the committee, consisting of Messrs. Fell, Volpe and Williams, that we accept the offer to purchase the Bank building at 143-147 E. State Street, substantially upon the terms and conditions contained in the letter of Chas. N. Schragger, Inc. dated January 14, 1959, addressed to Mr. Scott M. Fell, President. It is further recommended that acceptance of the terms are [sic] subject to the execution of a formal contract to include miscellaneous details to be agreed upon by the parties. (Emphasis added)

In the instant matter, no such ambiguity is present despite the respondent's attorney's wrongful assertion in respondent's brief to the contrary. Rather, the uncontraverted facts in the instant matter are that the resolution of acceptance fits squarely within the form which the Court in Looman, Id. at 81 states "there appears to be little doubt that had the bank written, simply, 'We accept your offer upon the terms contained therein' there would have been a binding contract." To claim, otherwise, in the respondent's brief is without factual or legal basis.

The above quoted suggestion by the Court as to acceptance language which would not give rise to an ambiguity is precisely the format which the Board used in the instant matter to state its acceptance of Cohen's January 11, 1994, offer of settlement. Hence rather than providing support for the allegations of ambiguity as relied upon respondent, the Looman decision actually confirms that the parties in the instant matter had reach a binding settlement as of January 11, 1994. On that basis alone, a decision should issue in favor of the petitioner.

CONCLUSIONS

I FIND and CONCLUDE that the parties reached an amicable settlement of the matter in controversy on January 11, 1994. The evidence clearly demonstrates that respondent and her attorney were both aware that it was the Board's intent to certify tenure charges against respondent at its regular monthly meeting scheduled for January 11, 1994. Prior thereto, the parties had engaged in settlement discussions and negotiations. The settlement terms and conditions transmitted from respondent's attorney to the Board's attorney were explicit and unambiguous. The settlement was transmitted to the Board from respondent for the purpose of settling the dispute between the parties and to have the Board forebear from certifying tenure charges against respondent to the Commissioner. The Board did not certify the pending charges against respondent. Rather, it accepted respondent's offer of settlement as set forth by her attorney by a duly adopted resolution in public session. The Board accepted all of the terms and conditions set forth by respondent.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Board's analysis of the law, under the facts set forth hereinbefore, is correct and need not be repeated here.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that a settlement between the parties was reached on January 11, 1994, where respondent resigned from her tenured teaching position for consideration.

Having so concluded, it is not necessary for this tribunal to consider the arguments nor decide Issues Nos. 2 and 3 herein.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE there are no further justiciable issues to be determined.

ORDER

It is therefore, ORDERED that the settlement agreed upon between the parties on January 11, 1994, be enforced as to its terms and conditions.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that the within parties reached an amicable settlement of their differences on January 11, 1994, prior to certification of the tenure charges at issue herein. In that such settlement included respondent's resignation from her tenured teaching position, adjudication with respect to these tenure charges is unnecessary.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons articulated therein. The parties' settlement agreement is hereby held to be in full force and effect and the within tenure charges are dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

HUMAN SERVICES.	:	DECISION

Board certified tenure charge of unbecoming conduct against respondent, Teacher I at the Atlantic County Day Training Center, for alleged corporal punishment of a physically challenged student.

ALJ concluded there was no competent evidence to demonstrate that respondent committed an act of corporal punishment against a pupil. ALJ found respondent had reacted to a situation where she observed an aggressive pupil approaching a frail, delicate, undefended pupil who would have been bodily harmed without respondent's intervention. It was ordered that the tenure charge be dismissed and respondent be restored to her former position with all back pay and other emoluments due her, less mitigation.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own and directed respondent be restored to her position with compensation.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 2074-95

AGENCY DKT. NO. 487-12/94

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF JUDITH KULP, NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES.

Deborah Gottlieb, Deputy Attorney General, for petitioner, Department of Human Services, (Deborah T. Poritz, Deputy Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Bruce Gorman, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: October 18, 1995 Decided: March 11, 1996

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The New Jersey Department of Human Services (Department) certified tenure charges against respondent, Judith Kulp, before the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) seeking her dismissal from her tenured position of Teacher I, Atlantic County Day Training Center, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:60-2, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, in accordance with the procedures set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -18.1. N.J.A.C. 10:11-1.8 and incorporating N.J.S.A. 18A6-19 to -25.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was held on August 11 and 18, 1995, at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The parties requested and were granted leave to submit posthearing memoranda. The hearing record closed on October 18, 1995. Extensions were granted to execute this initial decision.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this tribunal are these:

1. Whether respondent committed an act of corporal punishment against a pupil? If so whether respondent's conduct constitutes conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member?

2. Whether the conduct warrants the removal of respondent's tenure rights and her termination?

BACKGROUND FACTS

Based upon the testimony and other evidence adduced at the hearing together with representations proffered by counsel for the parties, I adopt the following Background Facts as FINDINGS of FACT in this matter:

The Atlantic County Day Training Center (Center) located in Pleasantville, New Jersey, was, at the time of the alleged incident, a school for the developmentally disabled under the direction and control of the Department. The pupils enrolled at the Center were profoundly and severely retarded, unable to communicate using traditional methods. The pupils were partially or completely non-ambulatory, unable to feed themselves, unable to care for their personal hygiene and unable to clothe themselves. The pupils were all in need of individual attention and completely dependent upon those persons in their charge.

On the morning of November 28, 1994, respondent was working with two pupils; R.M., a male wheelchair bound and A.F., a wheelchair bound female. There were three other pupils in the classroom attended to by one assistant teacher, a speech therapist and a foster grandmother. Of the five pupils, four were in wheelchairs and one was ambulatory. Those adults in the classroom consisted of respondent; Brenda Ellis, assistant teacher; Kathryn Lewis, a volunteer-foster grandparent; and a speech therapist. Sharon Parker, the other assigned assistant teacher was not in the classroom when the alleged incident which gave rise to the herein tenure charges occurred.

Pupil R.M. was known to be aggressive and would exhibit his anger when frustrated. R.M. can walk with help and is considered to be a healthy boy. R.M. was ten years old on November 28, 1994. He was well nourished, weighing 107 pounds. R.M. is mentally retarded with a low frustration tolerance. He is paraplegic with no control of his legs although he has full motor control of his upper body. He is nonverbal but makes his needs and wants known by making a constant sound of "Aw." R.M. has not learned to use the wheels on his wheelchair, however, he is able to use the handrails in the Center to move his wheelchair.

A.F. is non-ambulatory, blind, deaf and suffers from respiratory illness and osteoporosis, a lack of bone density also known as "brittle bones." Pupil A.F. was 15 years old on November 28, 1994, and weighed approximately 69 pounds. She is severely mentally retarded, suffering with cerebral palsy. She is unable to hold her head upright and her biceps and triceps are spastic where she has no control of her upper extremities. A.F. is also blind and legally deaf. Her normal position has her arms positioned against her upper body with fisted hands directed outward.

The Center is no longer operating as a day training center. It currently functions as a facility serving troubled youth.

Carmine J. Limone, a State-wide manager for day training testified among other things, that in September 1993, there was chaos at the Center between parents and the Center's staff. Limone met with the staff, which included respondent, and learned that there was backbiting among the staff members which had separated into different factions. He had learned that certain files had left the Center, against the rules and regulations. Limone ordered that the files be returned to the Center or action would be taken. The files mysteriously reappeared. Limone instructed the staff members that their behaviors could not continue as in the past. In the event there was no improvement, the Center would be closed. He instructed the supervisor of the Center to improve the conditions at the Center.

Mr. Limone testified there were no problems related to respondent at the Center. Rather, the problems were between staff members.

Mr. Limone testified that on November 28, 1994, he received a telephone call from the Center's regular supervisor, Donald Hepner, who reported a serious incident which had occurred at the Center on that day. Mr. Hepner reported that one of the Center's teachers had allegedly struck a pupil three times and forcibly pushed the pupils wheelchair into a table. Mr. Limone instructed Mr. Hepner to complete an incident report; investigate the allegations; have witnesses execute statements of the alleged events; report the incident to the Public Information and the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS); and, advise the Employee Relations Office and Confidential Agent in Personnel. Limone recommended that respondent be removed from the Center, with pay.

Mr. Limone testified that the DYFS did not issue a complaint against respondent. He admitted that he did not conduct an investigation of the allegations nor did he know whether the Employees Relations Office conducted an investigation.

Donald Mangus, Assistant Director of Employee Relations, New Jersey Department of Humans Services, testified among other things, that he was familiar with the tenure charges filed against respondent. He testified at length concerning the Department's Disciplinary Action Program and in particular about Administrative Order: 4:08, Supplement 1., Part C. #3. "Physical or mental abuse of a patient, client, resident or employee," which calls for the removal of the employee on the first infraction (P-1).

On cross-examination Mangus asserted that respondent had been changed with physical abuse, not mental abuse. He stated that abuse was any improper act of striking a pupil; any inappropriate physical contact which could cause harm or injury. He conceded that Administrative Order: 4:08, Supplement 1., Part C. #5. "Inappropriate physical contact or mistreatment of a patient, client, resident or employee," called for a minimum penalty of an official reprimand to the maximum penalty of removal (P-1). He asserted that various factors are considered when charging an employee with an infraction; i.e., what was the contact and, touching a pupil inappropriately is not necessarily inappropriate physical contact.

SUMMARY OF TESTIMONY

Brenda Ellis testified on behalf of petitioner asserting, among other things, that on November 28, 1994, she was in the Center's classroom when she heard respondent yelling at pupil R.M. telling him to stop. Ellis's back was toward respondent when Ellis heard respondent shout to R.M. Ellis testified she turned around toward respondent where she observed respondent strike R.M.'s arm three times. She asserted that respondent picked up R.M.'s left arm with respondent's left hand and struck him three times on his forearm with her other hand. Ellis did not see anything thereafter concerning R.M. and respondent. She stated that she was in shock because she had never observed a teacher strike a pupil.

Ms. Ellis testified, on cross-examination, that Supervisor, Ronald Chuchola was standing in the classroom doorway and observed the incident between respondent and R.M. The supervisor then left the classroom without checking the pupil for injuries or making an inquiry of respondent concerning the incident. Nor did Ellis, or anyone else, check R.M. for injuries or call for a nurse or physician to check on R.M.

On redirect, Ellis asserted that respondent approached her to inquire as to whether the supervisor had observed respondent strike pupil R.M. Ellis testified she answered respondent with a "yes." Respondent was purported to have said, "Nice Knowing you."

Ronald T. Chuchola, Assistant Supervisor of Educational Programs for the Center, testified on behalf of petitioner asserting that at approximately 11:00 a.m. on November 28, 1994, he entered the classroom and observed respondent interacting with a pupil which he characterized as "mishandling." He observed the pupil in his wheelchair and respondent shouting "No! No! No!" He observed respondent move the pupils wheelchair which caused a whiplash of the pupils neck. He observed respondent go the back of the pupils wheelchair, pull the wheelchair in a backward motion and then push the wheelchair violently under a table. He observed the foster grandparent in the classroom facing respondent as well as Ellis facing respondent when he entered the classroom.

Mr. Chuchola testified that another pupil, R.A., was seated at a table near the door Chuchola entered. After his observation of respondent's involvement with R.M., Chuchola patted R.A. on his back and left the classroom. While walking in the Center's corridor, he encountered the school nurse, who was a substitute that day, and instructed the nurse to check on R.M. sometime during the day. He stated to the nurse that there was no emergency and that she should not interrupt her feedings of other pupils to check on R.M.

Subsequently, Chuchola telephoned Donald Hepner, the Center's Supervisor, and reported his observations of respondent's conduct at approximately 11:10 a.m. on November 28, 1994. Chuchola asserted it was Hepner's responsibility to take any action against respondent. Subsequently, Chuchola executed two written statements concerning the events on November 28, 1994. Exhibit P-3 states what Chuchola observed in the classroom on November 28, 1994 as set forth above. Exhibit P-4, describes a meeting held at 3:00 p.m. on the afternoon of November 28, 1994, as follows:

Meeting Report

> On the afternoon of 11/28/94, I was assisted Mr. Hepner in gathering information about an incident involving teacher, Judy Kulp. After the students had departed at the end of the school day, Ms. Kulp gave her version of the incident. Ms. Kulp was accompanied by union shop steward, Lyshiron Watford. With Mr. Hepner and myself was also Paul Riley from the Office of Education.
> At this time Mrs. Kulp made the statement that she hit student R.M. My recollection of her statement is: "I was working at the can crusher with B.J. I had A.F. and R.M. positioned behind me. I had given R.M. crackers. He dropped them on the floor. I saw him reach out for Amber's arm. I said, "No, R." I reached out for him. I hit him. I am sorry I hit him. (P-4)

Mr. Chuchola testified that on November 29, 1994, respondent was removed from the classroom and instructed to remain in the non-school area. On November 30, 1994, the Center received a facsimile from Carmine Limone with instructions to remove respondent from the Center's premises. Respondent was escorted off the Center's premises.

On cross-examination Chuchola admitted he did not observe respondent strike R.M. He further admitted he did not go to R.M. to examine the pupil's condition for any injuries. Nor did he invite any of the staff members out into the corridor to inquire about what they might have observed. He further admitted he told the nurse he passed her in the corridor that there was no emergency with respect to R.M. Chuchola took no steps to remove either respondent or R.M. from the classroom.

Mr. Chuchola admitted on direct and cross-examination that respondent had accused Chuchola of harassment. Chuchola testified that he did not recall Hepner telling Chuchola of respondent's harassment complaint, although a harassment grievance was filed against him.

Donald Hepner testified, among other things, that on the morning of November 28, 1994, he was in Cumberland County when he received a telephone call from Chuchola concerning an incident of a teacher shouting at a pupil in the classroom. Hepner left his Cumberland County assignment and traveled to the Center where he met with three staff members and the foster grandparent in the afternoon of November 28, 1994.

Mr. Hepner first talked with the foster grandmother in the presence of Chuchola and Paul Riley, Program Compliance Coordinator, Office of Education, Department of Education, who happened to be at the Center conducting a preprogram review of compliance of the pupils Individualized Educational Program (IEP) on November 28, 1994. The foster grandmother reported she looked up and observed respondent yell at a pupil, hit the pupil and wheel the pupil to another table in the classroom. Ellis reported the same circumstances, however, she stated she observed Chuchola in the classroom who observed respondent shout at R.M. and strike R.M.

Mr. Hepner also interviewed respondent who stated, in effect, that she did strike the pupil in question. He testified that respondent volunteered the statement that R.M. was reaching for another pupil when respondent accidentally struck R.M.'s hand out of the way. Hepner testified that respondent stated, "I'm sorry." Hepner's written statement essentially corroborates his sworn testimony (J-1). He admitted, on cross-examination, that respondent's statement revealed that she did not intend to cause R.M. any harm or injury.

Mr. Hepner also testified, among other things, that he met with respondent on October 1994, where respondent had complained to Hepner about Chuchola harassing respondent. Hepner testified he reported his conversation with respondent to Chuchola.

Mr. Hepner testified that it was the Center's policy for the supervisor to become involved when there is an injury to a pupil. The nurse is called immediately, the parents are notified and an incident report is generated by the supervisor. The supervisor is required to remove the offending staff member who is observed to have abused a pupil. He asserted that it was never appropriate to shout at or strike a pupil.

Kathryn Lewis, the volunteer foster grandparent, testified, among other things, that on November 28, 1994, she was in the classroom with respondent, other staff members and the pupils. She was standing beside a table in the classroom facing the table where respondent and pupils R.M. and A.F. were situated. She asserted that respondent was facing her. She noted that R.M. likes food and he was reaching for a soda cracker which was located on another table. When R.M. reached for the soda cracker his wheelchair moved because both wheels were not locked. Lewis asserted that respondent thought R.M. was going to attack A.F. rather than reaching for the food. That is when respondent shouted "No, No, No" at R.M. and struck him. Respondent then pushed R.M.'s wheelchair toward the table where the soda cracker was located. Lewis stated she left the classroom when Chuchola arrived on the scene. She subsequently wrote a statement of her perception of the events on that day (P-5).

Respondent testified on her own behalf asserting among other things, that she had never been disciplined prior to November 28, 1994, nor had she ever abused a client or pupil under her care.

On November 28, 1994, A.F. was in a bedchair which was reclined to a 45 degree angle. It is elongated with a footrest. R.M. was in a "sports" wheelchair with a low, nylon back. Respondent was with both pupils, and others, in the vocational classroom. The technician who works with respondent, Mrs. Parker, was on a rest break and not in the classroom to assist respondent.

Respondent was at the can crusher with pupil B.J. R.M. was upset and angry that he was required to be in the vocational room. Respondent asked R.M. to do three cans at the can crusher for three soda crackers. Respondent moved R.M. to a table after he completed the task and placed three crackers on the table with a napkin. Respondent then locked the left wheel of R.M.'s wheelchair. Respondent moved A.F.'s bedchair towards her while she worked with B.J. at the can crusher.

While respondent worked with B.J., R.M. had increased the volume of noise he was making and by jerking about in his wheelchair, had managed to move it next to A.F.'s left side where he was approximately four inches from A.F. R.M. reached toward A.F.'s left fist with his right hand. Respondent heard R.M.'s loud noise and looked over her shoulder to observe R.M.'s action. She quickly turned toward R.M. and A.F. and shouted "No" at R.M. She then reached for the left fist of A.F., believing that A.F. was in imminent danger of having her arm broken. Respondent immediately intervened and in doing so, accidentally struck R.M.'s hand. As a result of the accident, R.M. withdrew his hand from A.F. Respondent then moved behind R.M.'s wheelchair and moved it away from A.F. while admonishing R.M. Respondent locked both wheels of R.M.'s wheelchair while admonishing R.M. that there was to be no hitting in her class and that hitting others was not good behavior. Respondent made no contact with R.M. while she moved and admonished him.

Sometime during this exchange, respondent observed that Chuchola had entered the classroom, say something to pupil R.A. and then left. Mrs. Lillian Toben entered the classroom from another door. When she observed Chuchola in the classroom, Ms. Toben turned and left. Mrs. Parker, the technician, returned to the classroom after Chuchola had left.

Respondent testified that no one came to the classroom to inquire of or inspect R.M. The incident occurred at 11:05 a.m. Respondent was out of the classroom for 20 minutes, between 12:00 p.m. and 12:20 p.m. R.M. remained in respondent's classroom for the remainder of the school day. She testified that R.M. had been in her classroom for only two weeks prior to the incident.

At 3:00 p.m., Chuchola appeared at respondent's classroom to advise respondent that Hepner wanted to see her and also advised respondent that she would need her union representative to accompany her to the meeting. Those present at the meeting included respondent, her union representative, Hepner, Chuchola and Riley. Respondent explained the circumstances of the events concerning R.M. and A.F. She admitted that she had accidentally struck R.M. when attempting to protect A.F., and apologized for her actions.

Respondent testified about her professional relationship with Chuchola asserting that she had approached Hepner in mid-October 1994, to report that Chuchola was harassing respondent. Hepner advised respondent that he could do nothing until respondent had discussed her complaint with Chuchola. Respondent did not immediately discuss her concerns with Chuchola. She asserted that Chuchola continued to harass her. As a consequence, respondent and her union representative met with Chuchola in mid-October 1994. Respondent alleged that Chuchola was harassing her and that if it did not cease, she would report his actions to the Department's Affirmative Action Officer. Chuchola denied respondent's allegations at that meeting.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the testimony and other evidence adduced at the hearing and having given fair weight thereto, I FIND the following FACTS:

On November 28, 1994, at approximately 11:00 a.m., respondent was in the Center's vocational classroom in charge of three of its pupils; i.e., B.J., R.M. and A.F. R.M. was in his wheelchair near the can crusher, where respondent was working with pupil B.J. Pupil A.F. was in her bedchair near a table.

After R.M. completed his assignment of crushing three cans, respondent moved him to the table near A.F. where respondent had placed three soda crackers for R.M. to eat as a reward for completing his assignment. R.M. was upset and angry because he was required to attend the vocational class and made loud noises in protest. When respondent moved R.M.'s wheelchair from the can crusher to the table, respondent only locked the left wheel of R.M.'s wheelchair.

While respondent was working with pupil B.J. at the can crusher, she looked over her shoulder to observe that R.M. had moved his wheelchair, through body movements, close to where A.F. was located. Respondent observed R.M. reach toward A.F.'s left fist. Respondent shouted "No" to R.M. and immediately left the can crusher work station and moved toward A.F. where she intervened and accidentally struck R.M.'s hand to prevent R.M. from harming A.F. R.M. immediately withdrew his hand.

Respondent then went behind A.F.'s bedchair and moved R.M.'s wheelchair away from A.F., all the while admonishing R.M. that he was not to hit others. Respondent made no physical contact with R.M. when she moved R.M.'s wheelchair toward a table and locked its wheels.

Respondent's assistant, Technician Parker, was not in the vocational classroom to assist respondent when the incident occurred. She had left the classroom to take her morning break. The incident involving respondent, R.M. and A.F. was witnessed, in whole or part, by Technician Brenda Ellis, volunteer foster grandparent Kathryn Lewis and, Assistant Supervisor Ronald Chuchola.

Assistant Chuchola arrived on the scene while respondent was moving R.M.'s wheelchair away from A.F. and towards the table. He had heard respondent shout at R.M. while he was in the Center's corridor and prior to his entrance into the classroom. After he entered the classroom and observed respondent move R.M.'s chair away from A.F. and towards the table, Chuchola said nothing to respondent nor did he approach R.M. to determine whether or not R.M. had suffered any injury. Rather, Chuchola patted pupil R.A. and left the classroom. Subsequent to leaving the classroom, Chuchola encountered the substitute school nurse in the corridor and asked her to check on pupil R.M. Chuchola advised the nurse that it was not an emergency.

Assistant Supervisor Chuchola testified he was the Supervisor in charge of the Center's school in the absence of Supervisor Hepner. Supervisor Hepner was absent from the Center when Chuchola observed the incident involving respondent, R.M. and A.F. Chuchola did nothing at the time of the incident to intervene, ask questions about R.M.'s physical condition, remove respondent from the classroom or anything that would indicate that respondent had violated any rule or regulation. Rather, he subsequently telephoned Supervisor Hepner who was on assignment at the Cumberland County Day Training Center.

The Center had, while in operation, a policy of zero tolerance with respect to pupil abuse or corporal punishment. It also advised it's staff members that they were not to raise their voice with a pupil.

Supervisor Hepner called a meeting at 3:00 p.m. on November 28, 1994, where respondent was to attend with her union representative. In addition, Assistant Supervisor Chuchola and Program Compliance Coordinator Riley were in attendance. Respondent admitted she had accidentally struck pupil R.M.'s hand on the morning of November 28, 1994 and apologized for her actions.

On November 29, 1994, respondent was suspended from duty and tenure charges were subsequently certified to the Commissioner against her as a consequence of respondent's conduct on November 28, 1994.

Respondent had, in October 1994, advised Supervisor Hepner of alleged harassment of respondent by Chuchola. Hepner did nothing about the alleged harassment, advising respondent she was required to discuss the allegations with Chuchola. Respondent subsequently discussed the allegations with Chuchola in the presence of respondent's union representative. Chuchola denied the allegations. Although Hepner testified that he had, in fact, advised Chuchola of respondent's harassment allegations, Chuchola testified that he did not recall Hepner discussing the allegations with him.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The record clearly demonstrates that the Center had a policy of zero tolerance with regard to striking a pupil and trained its staff not to raise their voice with a pupil. Under New Jersey Education Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1 corporal punishment of pupils may not be inflicted except the application of force against a pupil may be used under certain circumstances. One such exception is found at N.J.S.A. 18:6-1 (1) where the pupil is found to be "...threatening physical injury to others." That is precisely the circumstance in the instant matter, however, respondent did not intend to punish R.M. Rather, respondent reacted to the situation where she observed an aggressive pupil approaching a frail, delicate, undefended pupil who, she believed, would be bodily harmed without her intervention. In her intervention to save A.F. from harm, respondent accidentally struck R.M.'s hand, which R.M. immediately withdrew.

Although the accident was observed by at least three staff members, none believed R.M. to be injured in any fashion. None of the staff members, including the Assistant Supervisor who observed part of the incident and who was in charge of the Center at the time, intervened or inquired as to R.M.'s condition. Consequently, it was a de minimis event.

Respondent admitted she struck R.M. and acknowledged that the action, although a reaction to what she perceived to be an emergency, was wrong and contra to the Center's policy. Respondent apologized for her actions, which were not intentional.

The Courts and the Commission have held that a single incident of impropriety by a teaching staff member may lead to his/her dismissal from a tenured teaching position. Redcay v. State Board of Education, 130 N.J.L. 369 (Sup. Ct. 1954), aff'd 131 N.J.L. 326 (E & A 1944). However, the Commissioner is assiduous to protect school personnel in their employment when the employee is subject to unfair or improper attacks. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Joseph A. Maratea, Township of Riverside, Burlington County, 1966 S.L.D. 77. Such is the case here. There is nothing in the record to demonstrate that respondent administered corporal punishment to R.M. Nor is there any proof that R.M. was injured or harmed in any manner. Rather, the record shows that her inadvertent action was to protect A.F.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Department has failed to carry its burden, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that respondent's conduct on November 28, 1994, was so egregious as to cause her to lose her tenure status.

I CONCLUDE that there is no competent evidence to demonstrate that respondent committed an act of corporal punishment against a pupil. Therefore, her conduct on November 28, 1994, did not constitute conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member and the tenure charges against her should be dismissed.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the tenure charge against Judith Kulp be DISMISSED and that she be restored to her former position with all back pay and other emoluments due her, less mitigation.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the Department failed to demonstrate that Ms. Kulp's actions constituted unbecoming conduct in that it was unable to prove that she committed an act of corporal punishment against a pupil. (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1) Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1(1), one has not inflicted corporal punishment where the pupil is found to be "threatening physical injury to others," which the ALJ found to be the situation in the instant matter, where a teacher reactively struck an aggressive pupil's hand who was approaching a frail, delicate, undefended pupil, who could have been bodily harmed without Ms. Kulp's intervention. (Initial Decision at p. 15)

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the OAL and finds that the tenure charge must be dismissed and respondent restored to her former position with all back pay and other emoluments due her, less mitigation.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SOUTHERN GLOUCESTER COUNTY REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, GLOUCESTER COUNTY,

Respondent.

Leonard J. Wood, Esq., for petitioner (Morelli and Rinaldi, attorneys)

Charles R. Iannuzzi, Esq., for respondent

This matter was commenced on April 23, 1996 when Sandra Hynes, an eighteen year old senior student at Delsea Regional High School, filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking a ruling that respondent's determination that she was guilty of misconduct was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Also filed on April 23, 1996, was an application for temporary emergent relief seeking a stay of imposition of all penalties pending resolution of the appeal process. On April 24, 1996 the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6. A return date for oral argument on the motion for temporary emergent relief was scheduled for April 25, 1996, at the Trenton office of the Office of Administrative Law and took place as scheduled. In addition to the motion papers which were filed with the Commissioner of Education on April 23, 1996. counsel for petitioner filed his own certification in support of the application to stay the decision of respondent. Counsel for respondent filed a letter brief and other supporting papers including a certification of Joseph S. Marrare. The following facts and procedural history appear from the papers filed and from the arguments of counsel on the record on April 25, 1996.

On April 10, 1996 while petitioner was at Universal Studios Theme Park in Orlando, Florida, participating in the senior class trip, adult chaperones Paula Chamberlain and Joseph Pepitone observed petitioner with a container of beer in her hand. During the investigation which followed that evening, petitioner advised the school officials who were in charge of the trip that she had been walking through the park with a group of students, including Linda Stephens and Ilene Holiday, and that as they passed another group of students including J. F. and Jen Matteis, J. F. thrust a cup of beer into her hand. She insisted that she had not asked for the beer, she was not expecting the beer, she did not want the beer and she did not intend to drink it. It is petitioner's position that as soon as she realized what it was, she immediately brought it to the closest trash container. A series of certifications from petitioner and from each of the other students involved were filed in support of the application for temporary emergent relief. Each certification supports petitioner's contention that petitioner was surprised when the container of beer was thrust into her hand and that she immediately disposed of it. The certification of J. F. acknowledges that she purchased the beer without the knowledge or consent of petitioner and gave it to petitioner without any foreknowledge on petitioner's part that it was coming. The certification does not explain why J. F. would do such a thing. A hand-written document, dated 4/10/96, signed by Paula Chamberlain and Joseph Pepitone, indicates that Ms. Chamberlain personally observed Jen Matteis and Kate Tinney standing at a beer vendor's cart. "Jen Matteis had a beer in one hand and money in the other. The vendor also had his hand on the money," the report recites. The report, apparently written by Ms. Chamberlain, indicates that she advised Joe Pepitone who was walking down the street at Universal Studios with her and instead of responding to her he had walked off toward their right, directly following which she heard him say, "Dump it." When she looked over she discovered that Mr. Pepitone was talking to petitioner. The report also recites that as Ms. Chamberlain was dealing with Ms. Matteis, Mr. Pepitone had "crossed over the street and dumped the beer." A certification filed by Joseph S. Marrare, a teacher who questioned the students on the evening of April 10, 1996, signed, but undated, provides in pertinent part:

> 3. During this interview, Mr. Sottosanti and Ms. Chamberlain asked me to remain with the students while they went to get J. F. for her interview.
> 4. At this time, I asked Sandy "if she would not have gotten caught, would she have consumed the beer?"
> 5. She then responded "yes"

On April 11, 1996, the parents of all the students involved in the incident were called and were advised that the students were not being permitted to participate in any of the remaining trip activities and that discipline pursuant to the policy in the student handbook would be imposed upon their return to school. The policy set forth in the student handbook, page 56, lists the following discipline for a first infraction of "possession or use of alcohol or other drugs":

> Police notification - parent conference with principal, vice-principal, and SAC* - mandatory 10 days internal suspension - mandatory counseling - loss of eligibility to participate in or attend extra curricular activities for one calendar year.

On Monday, April 15, 1996, petitioner (and presumably the other students involved) commenced a ten-day internal suspension. On Tuesday, April 16, 1996, high school vice-principal, Joe Sottosanti, interviewed petitioner about the April 10, 1996 incident. Petitioner was given a copy of the Student Assistance Program Student Contract Form, which begins, "As a result of being in violation of the Delsea Regional School District's Board of Education Policy on Substance Abuse, it is mandatory for you to be involved in a program to assist in the remediation of possible alcohol and/or other drug use and its related problems." Petitioner refused to sign the contract because she felt she had not done anything wrong. Mr. Sottosanti did not give petitioner a copy of the disciplinary report he prepared, although the form bears Mr. Sottosanti's signature and the signature of the principal. On the line for student signature under which appears the explanation "(My signature merely acknowledges my awareness of content)" only the date "4/15/96" appears. Since petitioner was not interviewed until April 16, 1996, what exactly that date means is not clear; it appears to be the date that Mr. Sottosanti signed the report. Under "Discipline Problems Described" on the report appears the following handwritten information, "Student seen in possession of a beer in the park. Two other students involved. Two adult chaperones witnessed behavior. Students interviewed to come up with complete story of all parties involved." The disciplinary report also indicates that the administrative action taken was a ten-day internal suspension and "mandatory conference with SAC and loss of eligibility to participate in extra curr. activities."

* Substance Abuse Counselor.

On April 18, 1996, Leonard J. Wood, Esquire, petitioner's attorney, called the high school and spoke with Mr. Sottosanti to ascertain the appropriate appeal process for the disciplinary action. Mr. Sottosanti indicated that Mr. Wood should look in the disciplinary handbook, that he did not have time to advise Mr. Wood concerning the procedures or forms to use. Immediately thereafter, Mr. Wood spoke with a secretary in the Superintendent's office and requested whatever form was necessary to appeal the decision of the vice-principal. He requested that the proper form be faxed to him. When he did not receive it later that day, he called the office of counsel to respondent, Mr. Iannuzzi. No form of appeal was forthcoming on Friday, April 19, 1996, however. On Monday, April 22, 1996, the superintendent's office (or perhaps respondent's counsel's office, this is not entirely clear) faxed the form to Mr. Wood's office at approximately 11 o'clock a.m. He filled it in and filed it the same day. On the following morning, April 23, 1996, the Superintendent's office advised Mr. Wood that he had used the wrong form and that the appeal had to be filed with the building principal. Promptly thereafter at approximately 8:30 a.m. counsel for petitioner forwarded the information which he had filed with the superintendent directly to the principal together with a letter indicating the nature of the appeal. Not until the morning of April 24, 1996, was Mr. Wood advised by a letter from the principal that he had "used the wrong form." The correct form was then provided.

At approximately 4:30 p.m. on April 24, 1996, the Office of Administrative Law Clerk's office scheduled oral argument on petitioner's application for temporary emergent relief seeking a temporary stay of the penalties for the following morning, April 25, 1996. As of 4:30 p.m. on April 24, 1996, no hearing date or time for the appeal before the school principal had been scheduled. During the oral argument the undersigned directed that immediately upon return to the school district the hearing before the principal which is provided for in respondent's disciplinary procedures should take place.

At 4:45 p.m., counsel for both parties advised the undersigned by telephone conference call that although the hearing had commenced and all of the adult witnesses and one student witness had been heard, it would be necessary for the hearing to continue on the morning of April 26, 1996, because some of the student witnesses had been under the age of 18 and parental consent for their testimony was required. Counsel anticipated that the hearing would conclude mid-morning on April 26, 1996 and that the principal's determination on the appeal would be available within a couple of hours thereafter.

Petitioner now seeks emergent relief in this forum because the disciplinary action which has been imposed prohibits her from attending the senior prom on April 26, 1996. Petitioner insists that she is innocent of any misconduct and that she is entitled to a temporary injunction prohibiting respondent from imposing further penalties, including precluding her from attending the prom. The criteria which must be established before the imposition of temporary injunctive relief are set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). One principle is that a preliminary injunction should not issue except when necessary to prevent irreparable harm. Harm is generally considered irreparable in equity if it cannot be redressed adequately by monetary damages. In certain circumstances, severe personal inconvenience can constitute irreparable injury justifying issuance of injunctive relief. Id. at 132-133. Petitioner notes that there is only one senior prom in any senior's life and not only will she be missing the prom, but so will her date. Wrongful deprivation of the prom experience is exactly the kind of irreparable injury which money damages cannot adequately compensate, she argues. I agree; a senior's senior prom is a once in a life-time experience which cannot be duplicated.

A second principle is that temporary relief should be withheld when the legal right underlying plaintiff's claim is unsettled. In the present matter, it is clear that absent the imposition of discipline, petitioner would be entitled to attend the prom. It further appears to the undersigned clear that respondent's own board policies concerning the appeal process in disciplinary actions for misconduct require the imposition of an automatic stay whenever the discipline imposed exceeds a suspension of three days. Board of Education Policy Number 5201 Subsection B entitled "Hearing of Appeals - Procedure" specifies the procedures to be followed when appealing from disciplinary actions imposed by the vice-principal. The first appeal is heard by the principal and the appeal process terminates with the superintendent; his determination at the district level is final. The second paragraph under Subsection B provides: "Short term suspensions of three days or less will be served immediately following the due process conference while the appeal process is in progress." Subsection C of the same board policy is entitled "Disposition of an Appeal" and provides:

> C. Disposition of an Appeal
> - The hearing officer will close the hearing when he/she has determined that all information appropriate to the appeal has been gathered. He/she will render a decision, in writing, within three school days on the form approved by the Board of Education.
>
> - Any action pending from the issue being appeal will be continued on the first school day following the written disposition of the hearing officer.
> - If an appeal is found in favor of the complainant, all suspension days will be expunged from the record.

hand for a period of time before it was deposited in the trash container, makes her guilty of the offense of possession. I CONCLUDE that disposition is simply wrong as a matter of law. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2, the statute which sets forth the conduct which shall constitute good cause for suspension or expulsion, requires "knowing possession" . . . of alcoholic beverages. Accordingly, if respondent's disciplinary action herein was imposed merely because it concluded that petitioner had a beer in her hand, even if she had not expected it or asked for it or intended to drink it, such a determination would be unreasonable as a matter of law. Of course the ultimate determination of the facts in this matter depends upon credibility determinations and I did not hear the witnesses or have an opportunity to observe them. Ultimately, petitioner may not prevail. She is, nevertheless, entitled to due process as provided in respondent's own Board Policy and case law. As of April 26, 1996, respondent's appeal process has not terminated with a final determination at the district level. Petitioner is still entitled to be heard by the superintendent and pursuant to respondent's own rules and regulations, the clear meaning of which can be ascertained merely from reading the policy, the discipline imposed as a result of the principal having denied the appeal is not scheduled to recommence until Monday, April 29, 1996. Furthermore, respondent's conduct in failing to facilitate the appeal process by providing counsel with information and forms concerning the proper procedures is directly responsible for the inability of the process to come to a final decision prior to commencement of the senior prom.

Therefore, for all of the foregoing reasons, the discipline imposed upon petitioner, including loss of eligibility to participate in or attend extra curricular activities, is hereby STAYED until Monday, April 29, 1996. It is my understanding that the next extra curricular activity is not scheduled until May 25, 1996 which will permit time for a proper determination on the merits. I will contact counsel on Monday, April 29, 1996 to schedule a plenary hearing.

Pursuant to the clear language of these policies, only short term suspensions of three days or less are to be served immediately following the due process conference while the appeal process is in progress. In other cases, after an appeal has commenced, it is clear that discipline is to be suspended until "the first school day following the written disposition of the hearing officer." The hearing officer at the first step is the principal and the undersigned received the principal's written disposition, which is attached hereto, at 11:01 a.m. on April 26, 1996. (Note that although the time indicator on the OAL fax machine says 10:01 a.m., the clock was never changed to reflect accurate Day-Light Savings Time.) Although principal Borelli's report does not specifically so indicate, I am advised that it was his determination that the appeal is denied. Therefore, pursuant to respondent's own rules, imposition of discipline upon petitioner should have ceased with the filing of her appeal to the principal and will recommence only on Monday, April 29, 1996.

Respondent has stated that petitioner's appeal was not filed in a timely fashion pursuant to this same Board Policy Number 5201 which requires an appeal to be filed in the principal's office by the third school day after the due process conference. It is clear that the appeal was not in fact filed on the proper form with the principal until April 24, 1996. The reason for the late filing, however, was vice-principal Sottosanti's failure to respond to the reasonable request of counsel on Thursday, April 18, 1996, when Mr. Wood called to ask the appeal process and to obtain the forms. Accordingly, respondent was fully aware as of April 18, 1996, that petitioner was appealing the determination of the vice-principal imposing this penalty. If Mr. Sottosanti had simply faxed the proper form to petitioner's attorney on the day when it was requested or even the next day, none of us would be in the current position of having to address this issue only hours before commencement of the event in question.

With respect to the third criterion in Crowe v. DiGioia, supra, at 133, that a preliminary injunction should not issue where all materials facts are controverted, thus requiring a petitioner to make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits, it is true that the facts in this matter are highly contested. Doubt as to the validity of the claim is not an adequate basis for refusing to maintain the status quo, however. Respondent has taken the position that even if petitioner is being truthful, the fact that she had the container of beer in her

DECISION ON MOTION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions were filed by respondent Board of Education immediately upon issuance of the initial decision, which essentially recast and reiterate arguments presented at hearing, while contending that petitioner has failed to meet the criteria for grant of emergent relief.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, authority to hear this matter has been delegated to the Assistant Commissioner.

Upon review of the record, the Assistant Commissioner affirms the determination of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that emergent relief is warranted in this matter. The Assistant Commissioner finds that, while deprivation of extracurricular activities does not normally rise to the level of irreparable harm, in the present instance petitioner will suffer such deprivation without having had the due process at the local level to which she is entitled; the Assistant Commissioner finds this particularly troublesome in that the ALJ found that petitioner's attorney made prompt and diligent efforts to obtain such due process, but was thwarted by the actions of district administrators. Additionally, petitioner has demonstrated a reasonable likelihood of success on the merits of this case based on the testimony presented at the hearing, and weighing of equities inures in petitioner's favor under the circumstances of this matter.

Accordingly, the Motion for Emergent Relief, wherein the discipline imposed upon petitioner is hereby stayed until Monday, April 29, 1996, is GRANTED and the matter shall proceed to hearing at the Office of Administrative Law as recommended by the ALJ.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education on February 26, 1996, through certification of charges of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member, insubordination, incapacity and other just cause against respondent[1], then a tenured teaching staff member in the employ of the Board of Education of the Township of Colts Neck; and

The Commissioner having directed respondent to file an Answer to the charges against her by notice dated February 27, 1996; and

Respondent having filed a response which did not comport with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4; and

The Commissioner having directed respondent to file an Answer to the charges against her by a second notice dated March 1, 1996; and

[1] The Board's initial submission included the Statement of Evidence and Certificate of Determination, which specified the charges filed against respondent and certified by the Board of Education on February 21, 1996. On March 18, 1996, the Board submitted a copy of the charges, which had inadvertently been omitted from the package mailed to the Commissioner.

The Commissioner having been informed by letter, dated March 18, 1996, from the Board Secretary that respondent unilaterally resigned from her tenured position with the Board by letter dated February 29, 1996; and

The Commissioner having received confirmation that the Board accepted said resignation at its meeting held on March 6, 1996; and

The Board being unable, as a result of respondent's resignation, to move forward with the above-referenced tenure charges before the Commissioner of Education; now therefore

District certified tenure charges of corporal punishment, unbecoming conduct, use of profane and inappropriate language, and insubordination against respondent music teacher.

ALJ determined that the District had not proven corporal punishment or unbecoming conduct with respect to two incidents with pupils, but had proven those charges with respect to an incident with one pupil (J.M.), in that J.M. was moved into a seat by physical means when not presenting a threat to himself or others. Thus, the physical movement of him became a matter of physical force, be it light, moderate or strong, and violated the ban on corporal punishment. The District did prove charge of use of profane and inappropriate language but did not prove insubordination. Thus, ALJ found that although respondent's conduct was serious and unprofessional, dismissal was not appropriate. ALJ ordered respondent's annual salary increment for school year 1996-97 withheld and respondent to attend an appropriate course or training program to heighten and enhance respondent's sensitivity.

In light of the record, the transcripts of the hearings, and In re Fulcomer, among other cites, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that respondent's conduct, although serious and unprofessional, did not warrant his dismissal from his tenured position. However, to impress upon respondent and others the seriousness of the conduct at issue, the Commissioner directed that in addition to the employment and adjustment increment withholding recommended by the ALJ, respondent forfeit the 120 days' salary withheld following certification of the within tenure charges. Given that the State Board recently ruled that imposing a general continuing education program as a punishment for unbecoming conduct was inappropriate, the Commissioner declined to impose such a requirement.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING ROBBIE MacDOWELL, STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY.

Gregory G. Johnson, Esq., for petitioner

Thomas W. Cavanagh, Esq., for respondent
(Chamlin, Rosen, Cavanaugh, & Uliano, attorneys)

Record Closed: September 15, 1995 Decided: January 29, 1996*

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

This matter concerns tenure charges brought against the respondent, Robbie MacDowell, which were certified by Laval F. Wilson, the State District Superintendent and served upon respondent on November 9, 1994. An answer was filed by respondent on November 29, 1994. On December 1, 1994 the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

An in-person prehearing was held in the matter on February 7, 1995 at which time the issues as well as the hearing dates were set forth. The hearing took place on eight separate days including April 12, 19, 20, 26, 1995 as well as May 17, 1995, June 2, 1995, July 13, 1995 and July 14, 1995.

At the conclusion of testimony the hearing record was left open until August 30, 1995 for both briefs and responsive filing. Due to difficulty in obtaining transcripts of all the hearing dates in a timely fashion a request was made to extend the time to file posthearing submissions. That request was granted and the hearing record closed upon receipt of the last submission on September 15, 1995. Ordinarily, the initial decision would have been due within 45 days however an order of extension was requested and granted extending the time for the initial decision until December 14, 1995 for good cause on the part of the undersigned due to an excessive case load as well as numerous transcripts to review and the length of the proceeding. A second extension was granted extending the time to January 28,1996 which, due to the fact it falls on a Sunday, would make the actual date for the Initial decision to be due Monday January 29,1996.*

STIPULATION OF FACTS

On the first day of hearing the parties entered into a stipulation of facts (J-1a) which was signed but also included handwritten corrections and notations. The stipulation of facts was then submitted in signed form incorporating those notations and corrections made by the parties (J-1b) and reads as follows:

The parties, petitioner Paterson Public Schools ("District") and Robbie McDowell, respondent, hereby stipulate to the following facts and exhibits:

1. The petitioner District hired the respondent as a music teacher on September 1, 1986. The respondent acquired tenure as of September 2, 1989.

2. During the 1989-90 school year, the respondent was assigned to Public School No. 4. At Public School No. 4 Vincent Caramico was the building principal, and Pasquale Migliaccio the vice-principal.

3. On October 2, 1989, the respondent was assigned to cafeteria duty in addition to his teaching responsibilities. Guidance counselor Daniel DiGiacomo and vice-principal Migliaccio was (sic) also assigned to cafeteria duty on that date.

4. On October 2, 1989, between the time period 11:20 a.m. to 11:40 a.m. Thabiti Wheeler and Clemente Marty, students, were involved in an altercation.

5. On October 2, 1989, at approximately 11:45 a.m. Thabiti was seen by the school nurse, Lucy Sheridan, for an examination. See student incident report attached as Exhibit J-1.

6. During the 1989-90 school year, Martha Bolds (now Martha Affessi) parent of Thabiti Wheeler was the president of the Home School Council. On October 2, 1989, Ms. Bolds visited school for after being called regarding the incident in the cafeteria. Later that day, Ms. Bolds called the Paterson Police Department and the copy of the police report emanating from that call is attached hereto as Exhibit J-2.

7. Ms. Bolds filed assault charges against the respondent. After a trial in the Paterson Municipal Court on May 9, 1990, Judge Fenster, P.M.C. found the respondent guilty of simple assault upon Thabiti Wheeler. See transcript as Exhibit J-3. On appeal, Superior Court Judge William J. Marchese rendered a decision on December 17, 1990 reversing the respondent's conviction. See transcript of judge's decision dated December 17, 1990 as Exhibit J-4.

8. No disciplinary action was taken by Principal Caramico or the former board of education against the respondent regarding the incident, nor at any other time during his eight year teaching career was disciplinary action undertaken against him, other than in connection with these charges.

9. On August 7, 1991, the State Board of Education issued an order taking control of the Paterson public schools. See order attached as Exhibit J-5.

10. During 1993-94 school year, the respondent was assigned to teach music at two schools: Public School No. 1, Monday through Wednesday and Public School No. 2, Thursday and Friday.

11. On or about May 6, 1994, the respondent was teaching music class at Public School No. 2. On this date the respondent taught Mr. Jackson's fifth grade class wherein Jose Marques was a student.

12. On or about May 6, 1994, Jose reported an incident involving the respondent and vice-principal Vitone discussed the incident with the respondent. A memo regarding the incident was drafted by vice-principal Vitone and dated May 11, 1994. See Exhibit J-6.

13. During May, resource room teacher Susan Gubar contacted vice-principal Vitone concerning a song written by the respondent. After a discussion between vice-principal Vitone and the respondent, a memo was drafted and dated May 11, 1994 regarding the meeting. See Exhibit J-7.

14. The auditorium in which the J.M. incident and the L.T. took place contains sixteen rows of seats, twelve on each side with a center isle. The right side seats are number 1 to 23 and the left side seats are numbered 2 to 24. See Exhibit J-8.

As both sides have agreed that these facts are underlying facts in this case as well as the referenced documents I hereby FIND them as FACTS with respect to this matter.

CHARGES AND FACTS

Having heard the testimony, and assesed the credibility of the witnesses as well as having reviewed the documentary evidence the discussion of the Facts which I Find in the case must proceed by each allegation stated in the tenure charges for clarity.

Charge One: Corporal Punishment

3. The respondent committed numerous acts of corporal punishment with the intent to discipline, harm punish intimidate or otherwise harass the pupils under his charge.

a) On or about October 2, 1989, while assigned to Public School No. 4, the respondent did injure pupil T. W. by grabbing his neck and pushing him into a table causing bruises on his neck, chest and back areas.

The testimony regarding the October 2, 1989 incident came from a number of sources including T.B.'s mother who also supplied photographs of bruising as well as her account of her visit after the incident. Additionally testimony from Mr. DiGiacomo, R. B.; L. C. and portions of the municipal court testimony were offered along with that of MacDowell. Noticeably absent was any testimony from T.W. who is now an adult or from C. M. who was engaged in the altercation preceeding this in 1989.

All agree and it is found as fact that T.W. and C.M. were engaged in an altercation that T.B.'s mother described as her son relating to her that they got into a "little battle" in the cafeteria. Both R. M. and L. M. who were students at that time saw MacDowell break up the fight.

While photographs of bruising on T. W. are in evidence there has been no direct link between MacDowell and those marks. While excessive force is alleged, those marks may have come from the fight between the two students. The lack of testimony of T. W. elicited to confirm or deny that there is any specific causation that distinguishes the two events coupled with the proofs causes the Districts case to fail to meet it's burden of proof of proof as to this portion of the tenure charges.

b. During the 1993-94 school year while assigned to Public school No. 2 the respondent engaged in the following conduct:

1. On or about May 11, 1994 the respondent grabbed pupil J. M. by the shirt and pushed him in his seat with force.

All of the testimony confirmed that J.M. had been misbehaving in class and he had been told to be quiet three or four times. E.B. stated that J.M. had been "acting up" in class. J. N., L. N. and E. B. all testified to the incident and to the moving of J. M as did the student himself. The testimony of each as well as MacDowell showed that, because of J.M.'s behavior he was asked to move. I find as fact, based on the credibility of the witnesses that MacDowell did take hold of J.M.'s shirt to move him to the back of the auditorium when he did not comply with MacDowell's direction. The only question is whether he was put into a seat with "force". The very fact that J.M. was moved by physical means when not presenting a threat to himself or others makes the physical movement of him a matter of physical force, be it light, moderate or strong.

I further find as fact that this was, at the very least embarrassing to the student and was done for the purposes of noncompliance. This conduct is in violation of the ban against corporal punishment.

2. On or about June 16, 1994, the respondent grabbed pupil L.T. and slammed him into the chair.

With respect to this charge we once again have an instance of two students, L.T., and R. O., engaging in an altercation. I Find that this arose out of R.O. "plucking" the ear of L.T. and the situation escalating into a fight or wrestling encounter. L.T., D. M., E. R. and A. L., all substiantiated this. Only one witness, Y. H. does not recall R. O. even being in the auditorium. All witnesses, although they differ on the positioning of the two boys agree that MacDowell told them to stop and then tried to stop the altercation and separate the boys. While MacDowell tried to hold them apart, they continued to try to get to each other. Ultimately MacDowell physically placed L.T. in a seat.

Due to the fact that the physical touching in this case arose out of MacDowell's attempt to stop an ongoing fight and injury to the two boys' the respondent's action's were reasonable and the District has failed to meet it's burden of proof as to this incident.

Charge Two: Conduct Unbecoming a Teacher

4.The charge of Conduct Unbecoming a teacher is based upon the same specifications as those set forth above in Charge One. Those specifications are hereby incorporated by reference.

As a result of the finding that only one charge had been supported by the facts in Charge One, that is also incorporated in these findings and the above charge is found only consistent with the above findings.

Charge Three: Use of Profane and Inappropriate Language

5. During the 1993-94 school year, the respondent referred to pupils in a demeaning and disrespectful manner by using profanity and other derogatory language.

a. On June 16, 1994 the respondent referred to pupil L.T. as "gay" and " a hell of a child"

Having heard the testimony and having assessed the credibility of the witnesses I Find that the respondent did use the words "one hell of a child" on that date but I further find insufficient proof that the word "gay" was used by respondent due to conflicting witness statements.

b. In May 1994, the respondent taught sixth graders a song containing derogatory language such as "faggots"

In composing and producing a musical for the school, respondent included a song which he had written which states verbatim:

Good to Me is Bad

Dressed like a mommy's (sic) boy what a joke they are to see Helping people in distress makes no sense to me
Everyone should be like us
we're so cool and mean
We are called the desparate (sic) eyes because we're ruthless and sheen

Dancing is for faggots, those boys should wear a dress
Being a nuisance makes us cool, illiteracy is just a word
Smoking, choking is the thing to do; intelligence is for the birds
Cursing, hurting, a street wise punk
There's nothing else that you need

After this song was distributed to the sixth grade class Ms. Gubar, who had been shown the song by a student who was upset by it, took it to Vice- Principal Liptak. MacDowell was later requested to remove the song from the show and did so without argument. A memo was sent to respondent stating the song was not appropriate for students to learn or sing. In that memo Vice Principal Vitone stated that she "appreciated" the song being removed from the play. (J-7)

This song, while not ultimately used in the play, was disseminated to sixth grade students and contained derogatory language. Although respondent claims it was to be used to illustrate a point the language was derogatory and should not be used with sixth grade students under any circumstances. It is the teaching of the song and it's language, not whether or not it was actually in the show that is the charge and as a matter of Fact it is sustained.

Charge Four: Insubordination

6. On or about May 11,1994, the respondent was directed to cease and desist from physically grabbing pupils. Despite this directive from Vice Principal Catherine Vitone, the respondent again grabbed and harmed L. T. pupil on June 16,1994.

The substance of the underlying facts have already been delineated above. Due to the fact that the District failed to meet it's burden of proof regarding the June 16, 1994 incident in which MacDowell broke up the fight in which L. T. was involved they have failed to meet their burden of proof regarding this charge.

As a result I FIND the FACTS consistent with the above narrative.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

Both sides agree that the respondent has no prior disciplinary history. Petitioner District requests dismissal of respondent from his tenured position based upon the charges. Respondent argues that dismissal is too severe a penalty and that the charges have not been proved.

As already indicated the District has failed to meet it's burden of proof in a number of those charges. For those already indicated that the District has proved the question becomes what the appropriate penalty is.

A careful and thoughtful weighing of those charges which have been sustained, the students welfare, the interests of the district and the absence of any prior disciplinary history on the part of respondent lead to the conclusion that an increment withholding rather than dismissal is appropriate in this case. This must be coupled with an appropriate course or training program to heighten and enhance respondent' sensitivity so that songs such as the one taught to the sixth grade will not take place. It is not sufficient that the song be removed from the program, once it has been circulated to the students the damage has been done.

Respondent must be made completely and fully aware that touching students when no dangerous situation presents itself will not be tolerated nor will inappropriate language or references which are in and of themselves offensive.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent have his annual salary increment withheld; and

It is further ORDERED that respondent attend an appropriate course or training program, consistent with the above, as determined by the Commissioner of Education.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision on this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF ROBBIE MAC DOWELL,	:
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of the State-operated School District of Paterson (District) and those of Robbie MacDowell (respondent) were timely filed,[1] as were respondent's reply exceptions.

Exceptions of the parties and reply exceptions of respondent recast and reiterate the arguments presented to the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in post-hearing submissions. Essentially, the District objects to, and respondent agrees with, the ALJ's determination that the District had not proven Charge One - Corporal Punishment and Charge Two - Unbecoming Conduct with respect to the T.W. incident and the L.T. incident. Exceptions and replies represent, in great detail, a recitation of the parties' respective versions of the facts surrounding these incidents, with each of them presenting a recapitulation of selected portions of elicited testimony which they contended support their particular version and each further suggesting the weight and credibility assessments which should be ascribed to all of the evidence.

[1] On February 14, 1996, counsel for the District requested an extension of time within which to file exceptions to the initial decision, asserting that his copy of such decision had been mailed to the wrong address and had just been received. By letter dated February 15, 1996, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes granted the extension request, according the District until February 21, 1996, for the filing of its exceptions and directing that any reply thereto be filed within five days of receipt of such exceptions.

With respect to the J.M. incident, respondent asserts that the "gravity" of this incident is best exemplified by testimony of the Vice Principal who stated "she conducted no investigation after hearing about the incident nor did she find it sufficient to bother to contact the central office or DYFS (11T 26 to 27, 62)," and testimony of the Principal who indicated "that when the matter came to her attention, she never made further inquiry about it nor did she even conduct an investigation, notify the central office, or consider the response of the Vice Principal any more than a 'warning' (1T 115 to 117)." (Respondent's Exceptions on p. 14)

Next, respondent contends that there is a procedural motion, fully addressed in his post-hearing brief, left unresolved here, which calls into question the fundamental fairness of this matter. He proffers that due to the unique status of this District as a state take-over district, there is an inherent potential conflict here. Rather than the tenure charges in the instant case having been certified by a board of education, they were certified by "the State Department of Education appointed District Superintendent , after receiving permission to do so from Dr. Peter B. Contini, an Assistant Commissioner of the Department of Education." (Respondent's Post-hearing Brief at p. 8) As such, respondent argues "the Department of Education would appear to be indirectly involved in certifying and processing the charges, as well as being the ultimate receptacle for the determination of those charges." (Id. at p. 9)

In conclusion, the District urges that respondent's conduct during the 1993-94 school year was totally inappropriate and inexcusable and fully warrants his dismissal from his tenured position, while respondent maintains that the ALJ correctly determined that his dismissal in this matter is unjustified given his unblemished eight-year teaching career in the District prior to the institution of these charges and the fact that he had no intent to harm or injure a student.

The Commissioner has conducted his own detailed examination of the entire record in this matter, which included transcripts of the eight days of hearings at the OAL. Initially, the Commissioner finds respondent's procedural argument with respect to the presence of an inherent conflict of interest in this matter to be without merit. The legislative scheme with respect to the governance and operation of state-operated school districts clearly contemplates the authority and ability of such a district to file tenure charges pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. Further, such legislative scheme is explicitly implemented in such a way as to avoid the potential of conflict alluded to by respondent. Specifically, the takeover legislation provides that a state-operated district remain a corporate entity despite the absence of a board of education. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-37. The legislation further delegates to superintendents in state-operated school districts the powers and authority previously granted to the local school board. "[T]he State district superintendent shall have the power to perform all acts and do all things consistent with law necessary for the proper conduct, maintenance and supervision of the schools in the district." N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-35e. This includes the express power to make all personnel determinations relative to all officers and employees of the district. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42a(3). Thus, it is clear that the State District Superintendent appointed for the district has the statutory authority to certify tenure charges against a teaching staff member. Moreover, recognizing that the Legislature saw fit in N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42a(3*)* to condition the superintendent's authority with regard to personnel matters as "subject to the approval of the commissioner or his designee," the departmental administrative process which was set into place to effectuate this statutory provision expressly precludes any possibility of a conflict, or even the appearance thereof, in those matters which call for a Department "approval," which must ultimately be followed by a department adjudication, i.e., tenure charges. Essentially, in this instance an Assistant Commissioner, with no role whatsoever in the adjudicative process of tenure matters, was appointed to act in the Commissioner's stead, in the required approval process with the Commissioner retaining the adjudicative function. In that the internal structure of the Department clearly segregates these two functions, N.J.A.C. 6:5-1.1 et seq., the Commissioner determines that respondent's concerns with regard to "fundamental fairness" being compromised by the existence of potential conflict of interest are unfounded.

With regard to the charges in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that Charge 1 - Corporal Punishment and Charge 2 - Conduct Unbecoming a Teacher have been established with respect to the J.M. incident on May 11, 1994. As aptly stated by the ALJ

> All of the testimony confirmed that J.M. had been misbehaving in class and he had been told to be quiet three or four times. E.B. stated that J.M. had been "acting up" in class. J.N., L.N. and E.B. all testified to the incident and to the moving of J.M. as did the student himself. The testimony of each as well as Mac Dowell showed that, because of J.M.'s behavior he was asked to move. I find as fact, based on the credibility of the witnesses that Mac Dowell did take hold of J.M.'s shirt to move him to the back of the auditorium when he did not comply with Mac Dowell's direction. The only question is whether he was put into a seat with "force". The very fact that J.M. was moved by physical means when not presenting a threat to himself or others makes the physical movement of him a matter of physical force, be it light, moderate or strong.
> I further find as fact that this was, at the very least embarrassing to the student and was done for the purposes of noncompliance. This conduct is in violation of the ban against corporal punishment. (emphasis in text) (Initial Decision at p. 6)

Notwithstanding respondent's attempts to minimize the "gravity" of this situation, the Commissioner does not find this to be the case as such minimization would serve to undermine the legislative philosophy of the corporal punishment statute (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1*)*. As noted in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Thomas Appleby, 1969 S.L.D. 159, 172-173, aff'd State Board, 1970 S.L.D. 448, citing In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frederick L. Ostergren, 1966 S.L.D. 185, 186

> While the Commissioner understands the exasperations and frustrations that often accompany the teacher's functions, he cannot condone resort to force and fear as appropriate procedures in dealing with pupils, even those whose recalcitrance appears to be open defiance. The Commissioner finds in the century-old statute prohibiting corporal punishment (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1*) an underlying philosophy that an individual has a right not only to freedom from bodily harm but also to freedom from offensive bodily touching even though there be no actual physical harm. (emphasis added)

Further,

> "that such a philosophy with its prohibition of the use of corporal punishment or physical enforcement does not leave a teacher helpless to control his pupils. Competent teachers never find it necessary to resort to physical force or violence to maintain discipline or compel obedience. If all other means fail there is always a resort to removal from the classroom or school through suspension or expulsion. The Commissioner cannot find any justification for, nor can he condone the use of physical force by a teacher to maintain discipline or to punish infractions. Nor can the Commissioner find validity in any defense of the use of force or violence on the ground that 'it was one of those things that just happen'. While teachers are sensitive to the same emotional stresses as all other persons, their particular relationship to children imposes upon them a special responsibility for exemplary restraint and mature self-control."

93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967), decided by the Commissioner 1967 S.L.D. 215.

With regard to the remaining charges, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ's conclusion that Charge Three - Use of Profane and Inappropriate Language was proven by the District. He specifically finds that respondent's conduct in teaching a song containing derogatory and inflammatory language to his sixth grade students, standing alone, fully supports the sustaining of this charge.

Finally, the Commissioner finds and determines, as did the ALJ, that the District has not met its burden of proof with regard to the charges as they relate to the T.W. incident, the L.T. incident or the charge of Insubordination. Although this matter turns to a certain extent on the credibility of witnesses and the weighing of evidence, the Commissioner is satisfied, based upon his review of the record, that the ALJ considered all testimony and weighed it according to the credibility of the witnesses and the plausibility of its content. The Commissioner finds no basis in the record for overturning the credibility assessments of the ALJ who had the benefit of observing the witnesses first hand.

With regard to evaluation/determination of the appropriate penalty to be imposed in this matter, the Commissioner is mindful that he is required to consider respondent's prior record in the District, the nature and gravity of his offenses under all the circumstances involved, any evidence as to provocation, extenuation or aggravation and must consider any harm or injurious effect which his conduct may have had in the maintenance of discipline and the proper administration of the school system. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 421-22 (App. Div. 1967). Having considered the proven charges and all of the remaining factors, the Commissioner concludes, as did the ALJ, that respondent's conduct, although serious and unprofessional, does not warrant his dismissal from his tenured position. Notwithstanding, he disagrees with the ALJ's recommendation that an increment withholding is a sufficient consequence for respondent's behavior. Therefore, to impress upon respondent and others the seriousness of the conduct at issue herein, the Commissioner directs that in addition to the employment and adjustment increment withholding recommended by the ALJ, respondent should suffer the loss of the 120 days' salary withheld pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 following certification of tenure charges.[2]

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein in all respects except as to penalty. The Commissioner hereby directs that respondent forfeit the 120 days' salary withheld following certification of the within tenure charges and that he be denied his salary and adjustment increments for the 1996-1997 school year.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[2] The ALJ also directed that respondent be required to complete a course or training program as part of her penalty recommendation in this matter. Given that the State Board recently ruled "imposing a general continuing education program as a punishment for the specific determination of unbecoming conduct made in these proceedings would be inappropriate and counter to the educational mission of such a program" (see In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Mary Ellen DiPillo, School District of the Township of Randolph, Morris County, 95 N.J.A.R 2d (EDU) 206, 208, (emphasis supplied)), the Commissioner declines to impose such a requirement.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board sought to change the method used by respondent Regional District to apportion financial contributions of its constituent municipalities from proportions based on the equalized valuation of each municipality to proportions based on per pupil enrollment.

ALJ concluded that genuine issues of material fact did not exist. ALJ further concluded that under N.J.S.A. 18a:13-23, the proposal to change the method of apportionment in the present matter must be deemed not approved where the voters of two of the three constituent municipalities defeated the motion. (Northern Burlington County Regional School District) Thus, ALJ granted respondent's motion for summary decision as a matter of law. Petition was dismissed. Petitioner's cross motion for summary decision was denied.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

INITIAL DECISION ON MOTIONS TO DISMISS
OAL DKT NO EDU-7260-95
Agency Docket No. 160-5/95

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF NORTH HALEDON

Petitioner,

v.

MANCHESTER REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT,

Respondent,

Record Closed: February 20, 1996 Record Decided: March 8, 1996

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

Petitioner, Borough of North Haledon (North Haledon), seeks to change the method used by respondent, Manchester Regional High School District, to apportion the financial contributions of its constitute municipalities from proportions based on the equalized valuation of each municipality to proportions based on per pupil enrollment.

On July 13, 1995, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On December 27, 1995, the respondent moved for summary decision. Petitioner opposed the motion and filed a cross motion for summary decision on February 7, 1996. Thereafter, respondent and Intervenor opposed petitioner's cross-motion.

The following facts are not disputed:

1. Respondent, Manchester Regional High School District, is comprised of three constituent municipalities: petitioner, North Haledon and intervenors, Boroughs of Haledon and Prospect Park. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23, a proposal was presented to the voters of the district at a special election held on April 18, 1995, to change the method used by respondent to apportion the financial contributions of its constituent municipalities from proportions based on the equalized valuation of each municipality to proportions based on per pupil enrollment.

2. The question put to the voters stated as follows:

> The Board of Education of the Manchester Regional High School District is hereby authorized, subject to the approval of the legal voters of the District, to modify the manner in which amounts to be raised for annual or special appropriations for the District, including the amounts to be raised for interest upon, and the redemption of, bonds payable by the district, are apportined among the district's constituent municipalities so that, at the end of a five year phase-in period, the district will apportion its appropriations among its constituent municipalities based upon the number of pupils enrolled in the district from each municipality. The progression of change from the equalized valuation to the per pupil enrollment basis during each fiscal year of the five year phase-in period shall be as follows:
> a. 1995-1996: Eighty percent (80%) equalized valuation and twenty percent (20%) pupil enrollment;
> b. 1996-1997: Sixty percent (60%) equalized valuation and forty percent (40%) pupil enrollment;
> c. 1997-1998: Forty percent (40%) equalized valuation and sixty percent (60%) pupil enrollment;
> d. 1998-1999: Twenty percent (20%) equalized valuation and eighty percent (80%) pupil enrollment;
> e. 1999-2000: One Hundred percent (100%) pupil enrollment.

EXPLANATION

Approval of this proposal would allow the Manchester Regional High School District Board of Education to change the method it uses to apportion the financial contributions of its constituent municipalities from proportions based solely on the equalized valuation of each municipality to proportions based solely on pupil enrollment. The change would take place on a graduated basis over a five year period so that beginning in the fifth year (1999-2000 school year) and for all subsequent years, each municipality's share of financial contribution to the regional school district will be on the basis of its pupil enrollment in the district.

3. The result of the votes cast on April 18, 1995, were:

	YES	NO
North Haledon	1,601	101
Haledon	114	337
Prospect Park	41	467
	1,756	914

Position of the Parties and Intervenors:

North Haledon asserts that the proposal carried because it received a plurality of the votes cast in the overall district.. Respondent and Intervenors argue that the proposal was defeated because passage requires that the proposal receive a plurality vote in each constituent municipality of the district. The proposal did not receive a plurality vote in Haledon and Prospect Park.

In this matter there is no genuine issue of material fact. The issue is whether voter approval of any change in the method of cost apportionment for existing regional district governed by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23 or N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5.

North Haledon asserts that the applicable section is N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5 which requires the majority vote of the regional district. Respondent and Intervenors assert that the applicable section is N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23 which requires the majority vote in each constituent municipality.

The Commissioner has already addressed this issue. The form of voter approval necessary to change from one method of apportionment to another is determined under N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23. The governing statute provides that:

> The annual or special appropriations for regional districts, including the amounts to be raised for interest upon, and the redemption of, bonds payable by the district, shall be apportioned among the municipalities included within the regional district, as may be approved by the voters of each municipality at the annual school election or a special school election, upon the basis of [equalized valuation, pupil enrollment or a combination of both].

In the Matter of the Special Election Held in the Northern Burlington Co. Reg. Schl. Dist., 94 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 385, dismissed, St. Bd. of Educ. (Oct. 5, 1995)[1], the facts were virtually identical to the facts in the present matter. In Northern Burlington, supra., the voters in one of the four constituent municipalities cast their votes against the proposal. Upon a review of the relevant statutory sections and legislative history, the Commissioner rejected the interpretation that a majority vote of the regional district overall is sufficient for passage of a referendum question on cost apportionment. Instead, the Commissioner determined that:

> N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23 requires approval by the majority of voters in each constituent municipality in order to change the manner in which costs are apportioned in a regional school district. [Id. at 387.]

[1] The appeal from the Commissioner's decision was dismissed by the State Board of Education for failure to file the appeal within the specific statutory time period set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28. In the Matter of the Special Election Held in the Northern Burlington Co. Reg. Schl. Dist., St. Bd. of Educ. (Oct. 5, 1995).

Therefore, the proposal to change the method used to apportion the financial contributions of the constituent municipalities was not approved. Ibid.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), summary decision is appropriate:

> if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.

Summary decision in administrative proceedings parallels summary judgment in the courts. The traditional concept of summary judgment is:

> designed to provide a prompt, business-like and inexpensive method of disposing of any cause which a discriminating search of the merits in the pleadings, depositions and admissions on file, together with the affidavits submitted on the motion, clearly shows not to present any genuine issue of material fact regarding disposition at a trial. [Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Company of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954)].

In administrative proceedings, as in the courts, it is "the movant's burden to exclude any reasonable doubt as to the existence of any genuine issue of material fact." Ibid. Thus, "[a]ll inferences of doubt are drawn against the movant in favor of the opponent of the motion, the papers supporting the motion are closely scrutinized and the opposing papers indulgently treated." Id. at 75.

Recently, the New Jersey Supreme Court in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co., 142 N.J. 520 (1995), applied the summary judgment standard employed by the federal courts and held that:

> when deciding summary judgment motions trial courts are required to engage in the same type of evaluation, analysis or sifting of evidential material as required by Rule 4:37-2(b) in > light of the burden of persuasion that applies if the matter goes to trial.

> Under this new standard, a determination whether there exists a 'genuine issue' of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The 'judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial.' Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 249, 106 S.Ct. at 2511, 91 *L.Ed.*2d at 212. Credibility determinations will continue to be made by a jury and not the judge. If there exists a single, unavoidable resolution of the alleged disputed issue of fact, that issue should be considered insufficient to constitute a 'genuine' issue of material fact for purposes of Rule 4:46-2. Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 250, 106 S.Ct. at 2511, 91 *L.Ed.*2d at 213. The import of our holding is that when the evidence 'is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law,' Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 252, 106 S.Ct. at 2512, 91 *L.Ed.*2d at 214, the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. [Id. at 540].

Under Brill once the movant has presented competent evidence tending to show the absence of any genuine issue for trial, the nonmovant must do more than simply create some doubts as to the material facts. Moreover, the nonmoving party cannot rely on disputed issues of fact that are insubstantial. Rather, Brill requires the nonmovant to raise a factual issue substantial enough to sustain a reasonable conclusion in the nonmovant's favor if a hearing was held. If the evidence, along with reasonable inferences, could sustain a judgment in favor of the nonmovant, the motion must be denied.

I CONCLUDE that genuine issues of material fact do not exist. I further CONCLUDE that under N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23, the proposal to change the method of apportionment in the present matter must be deemed not approved where the voters in two of the three constituent municipalities defeated the motion. Thus, respondent's motion for summary decision must be granted as a matter of law.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent's motion for summary decision is GRANTED and petitioner's appeal is DISMISSED with prejudice. It is further ORDERED that petitioner's cross motion for summary decision is DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF NORTH HALEDON, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE MANCHESTER REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioner's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), again contending, inter alia, that the language contained in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23 must be read in context with existing statutes of Title 18A, (Petitioner's Exceptions incorporating Brief at p. 2) and that the correct statute for analysis of this matter is N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5. (Id. at p. 6) Petitioner also argues that the Legislature's failure to reference N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5 in a bill adopted on February 1, 1993, amending N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23 [P.L. 1993, c. 67], requires N.J.S.A. 13-5 to control this matter. (Id. at pp. 13-15) Lastly, petitioner argues that the Commissioner's decision entitled, In the Matter of the Special Election Held in Northern Burlington County Regional School District, supra, was "illconsidered and erroneous," (Petitioner's Exceptions incorporating Brief at p. 16) In that these exception arguments represent a verbatim recitation of arguments presented in post-hearing briefs, already fully and fairly considered by the ALJ, they are not discussed in further detail herein.

In reply, respondent argues that petitioner's exceptions were not written in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(b). (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 2) Further, respondent asserts that the ALJ's initial decision was correct and should be affirmed. (Id. at p. 3)

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner finds petitioner's exceptions to be without merit and concurs with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ that in accordance with Northern Burlington, supra, approval is required by the majority of voters in each constituent municipality in order to change the manner in which costs are apportioned in a regional school district. The Commissioner reiterates that, > in light of both the overall statutory scheme governing regional districts and the legislative history of the specific controlling statute, it is simply not sustainable to conclude that the results of elections held to change a regional district's method of apportioning costs among its members should be reckoned according to the "overall majority" standard established by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5 for the general operation of a regional district. 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) at 388

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL for the reasons expressed therein and dismisses the instant Petition of Appeal.

BOROUGH OF NORTH HALEDON, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE PASSAIC COUNTY MANCHESTER REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 2, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Segreto & Segreto (James Segreto, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Fogarty & Hara (Gary Hall, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Intervenor Borough of Haledon, George Foster, Esq.

For the Intervenor Borough of Prospect Park, Hook, Smith & Myer (Gordon O. Meyer, Esq., of Counsel)

This is an appeal from a declaratory judgment issued by the Commissioner of Education that the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23 require a vote by a majority of the voters in each constituent municipality of a regional school district in order to change the method of apportionment of contributions among those municipalities. The Borough of North Haledon had petitioned the Commissioner for a declaratory judgment authorizing a change in the method used by the Manchester Regional High School District following the election in which a majority of the total vote cast in the regional district had approved the change, but a majority of the voters in each of the constituent municipalities had not approved the change.[1]

Basically, North Haledon asserts that it is absurd to bar a change in the method of apportionment under these circumstances and that the Commissioner's interpretation of the statute must be rejected. We do not agree. The words of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23 are clear that in order to change from one method of apportionment to another, such change must be approved "by the voters of each municipality." (Emphasis added.) While N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5 provides that generally, "the total vote of the entire regional district...shall be counted in determining the result of the election" in a regional school district, that statute also provides that this rule only governs "unless otherwise provided by this Title." As stated, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23, which applies specifically to the question presented to the voters in this matter, clearly provides otherwise. Thus, given the character of the question involved, we reject North Haledon's contention that this result is absurd.

September 4, 1996

[1] Of the three constituent municipalities, Haledon and Prospect Park had defeated the question. However, the change was approved by a sufficient number of voters in North Haledon to constitute a majority of the total votes cast in the regional district.

Record Closed: March 15, 1996 Decided: March 15, 1996

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of Facts

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on April 26, 1995 for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached stipulation indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

VERA P. ALLEN Petitioner vs. STATE OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK Respondent.	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW OAL Dkt. No. EDU 4234-95 Agency Dkt. No. 68-3/95 STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The parties, the petitioner Vera P. Allen ("Petitioner") and respondent State Operated School District of the City of ~~Paterson~~ Newark ("Respondent" or "District"), have voluntarily resolved all disputed matters and enter into the following settlement which fully disposes of all issues in controversy.

1. In March 1995, the petitioner, tenured teacher, filed a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education claiming the respondent former Newark Board of Education violated her tenure and seniority rights by hiring non-tenured supervisors.

2. The respondent filed an Answer to the Petition denying the petitioner's claims on or about April 12, 1995.

3. The Petitioner was promoted from a classroom teacher to the position of Curriculum Specialist on January 3, 1990. The Petitioner subsequently acquired promotional tenure on January 3, 1992, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.

4. In August, 1993, the respondent Board eliminated Petitioner's Curriculum Specialist position as a part of a reduction in force. Effective September 27, 1993, the Petitioner was reassigned to a teaching position.

5. On or about January 3, 1995, the Respondent hired Ruby Green as a Central Office Supervisor (Basic Skills). Ms. Green was a non-tenured supervisor.

6. On or about February 14, 1995, the Respondent hired Angela Chiaravalloti as a Central Office Supervisor (Cluster I). Ms. Chiaravalloti was a non-tenured supervisor.

7. On or about July 15, 1995, the State Board of Education issued an Order placing the Newark Public Schools under State operation, removed the top-level administrators, and abolished the former Board of Education.

8. A review of this matter indicates that in September 1993 the Petitioner was not placed on a preferred eligibility list for vacancies in supervisory positions in accordance with applicable regulations.

9. By March 11, 1996, the Petitioner will be reinstated to a supervisory position within the Office of Curriculum Services, Central Administration. She will be entitled to back pay, based upon a salary differential between her current salary on the Teacher's Guide and Salary Guide for Supervisors contained in the CASA Contract. According to the calculations, the Petitioner is entitled to back pay of $ 11,238.

10. The Petitioner understands that her position has been identified as administrative and supervisory pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44 and will be included in the State mandated central office reorganization.

11. This Agreement is subject to the approval of the State District Superintendent, Dr. Beverly L. Hall, Administrative Law Judge and Commissioner of Education.

12. In accordance with the Supervisor's salary Guide contained in the CASA contract, the petitioner's annual salary for the 1995-96 school year is $71,864 ($69,847, plus longevity $2,017 (step. 6)).

13. The respondent will endeavor to issue a retroactive salary payment within thirty days after approval of the settlement agreement by the Commissioner of Education.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent alleged Board wrongfully denied student, H.S., admission to school due to a residency dispute. Board submitted motion to dismiss based on untimely filing of the petition of appeal.

ALJ found that parent appealed Board's decision beyond the 21-day period mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. ALJ granted summary decision to the Board and dismissed matter as untimely.

Commissioner found that the record and any reasonable notion of fundamental fairness compelled a determination that the petition must be deemed as timely filed. He noted that, notwithstanding the clear directive contained in its own resolution, the Board failed to notify petitioner's attorney of the Board's determination in this matter until a full month after such decision was rendered and well past the 21-day appeal period. Commissioner further noted that counsel for petitioner promptly filed the petition upon receipt of notice. Thus, Commissioner reversed initial decision and ordered matter remanded to the OAL for hearing on the merits.

Record Closed: March 11, 1996 Decided: March 14, 1996

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

H.S., petitioner, appeals from a residency determination and alleges that the respondent Edison Township Board of Education wrongfully denied access to school to H.S., a minor.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. After notice, a prehearing conference was conducted by telephone on November 8, 1995. Among other things, it was determined that the Board would move for summary judgment. The matter was set down for hearing on February 29, 1996.

The Board submitted its moving papers on January 16, 1996. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.2(c), opposing parties have ten days after receiving the moving papers to file responsive papers. That period elapsed and no responsive papers were received.

The Board's motion to dismiss is grounded on untimely filing of the petition of appeal. The petition of appeal seeks relief from the Board's decision of April 10, 1995 and was filed on May 18, 1995.

H.S. was enrolled in the John Adams Middle School in Edison beginning on September 8, 1994. In February 1995 he was an eighth grade pupil. At that time, the building principal learned of facts indicating that H.S., although attending the school, was not domiciled in the Edison Township School District, that H.S. was not kept in the home of a resident of Edison Township and that the petitioners did not reside 892 Ellis Parkway as they had informed the Board.

The Board conducted a residency hearing in this matter. The Board fulfilled its obligation in respect of H.S. under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 by conducting the residency hearing on March 2, 1995. The petitioners were represented by counsel at the hearing and the hearing was memorialized by a certified shorthand reporter.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, the Board gave the petitioners the opportunity to present at hearing evidence of petitioners' alleged domicile in Edison. Following its review of the evidence presented at hearing and its consideration of the arguments of counsel, the Board determined that H.S. was not entitled to a free public education in the Edison Township Public Schools.

The petitioners were notified of this determination. The Board also informed petitioners of their right to contest the Board's determination before the Commissioner of Education within 21 days of the Board's determination, rendered on April 10, 1995. The petitioners failed to file their appeal within the 21-day period mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. The record shows that the petition was served on the Board on May 18, which is thirty-eight days after the Board's decision.

In Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995), the New Jersey Supreme Court stated that the essence of the inquiry in a summary judgment action is whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require submission to a jury or whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law. That set of circumstances clearly obtains in this case. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 provides, in pertinent part, that the public schools shall be free to certain persons over five and under 20 years of age. Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and who is supported by that other person gratis, as if he were the other person's own child, shall be admitted to attendance without charge upon filing by the other person with the secretary of the board a sworn statement that the pupil is domiciled within the district and that the other person is supported the child and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements, and further, that the person intends to keep and support the child for a longer time than simply through the school term.

The statute also provides that if the superintendent of a district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the district's school is not domiciled within the district and the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the district and supported by him gratis, the administrator may apply to the Board of Education for removal of the child. The parent or guardian is entitled to a hearing before the Board and, if in the judgment of the Board the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the district and the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the district and supported by that other person, then the Board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. The parent or guardian may contest the Board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in the statute.

All of the prescribed procedures have been followed except the last. The parent or guardian did not contest the Board's decision within the 21 days provided by statute. The Edison Board's decision is dated April 10, 1995. The petition of appeal was served on the Edison Board, through a deputy superintendent, on May 18, 1995. According to the pleadings received from the Commissioner of Education, the petition was not filed with the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes until June 7, 1995.

Under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, the Commissioner of Education has jurisdiction over controversies and disputes arising under the school laws, except those governing higher education. With this power, the legislature gave the authority to create rules and regulations to help carry out the legislative mandate. Generally, the petitioner must file a petition of appeal no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education which is the subject of the requested hearing. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). This rule has been strictly construed over the years. See, e.g., Riley v. Hunterdon Central High School Board of Education, 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980). However, the legislature can, and in this area did, create an exception to the 90-day rule. In N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)2, the legislative intent is clear: the parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision. That clearly did not happen in this case. Even if the date of service upon the Edison Board could be accepted, the 21 days required by statute cannot be demonstrated.

After the procedural history recited above and after this decision was written but not signed, the petitioner again made contact though counsel. I held this decision to allow an attempt at settlement. The attempt was made, but was unsuccessful and the record closed on March 11, 1996. Therefore, nothing above is modified.

Finally, upon issuance of a final decision by the Commissioner of Education or upon this decision becoming final by operation of law, the Edison Township Board of Education may move the Commissioner to assess the parent tuition for the pupil prorated to the time of the pupil's ineligible attendance. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)2.

In consideration of the clear and uncontroverted record, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the motion of the Edison Township Board of Education for summary decision must be GRANTED. Summary decision having been granted on the only issue in the case, I ORDER the matter DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
MELINDO A. PERSI AND THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EDISON, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter,[1] the Commissioner determines to reverse the recommended decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) granting Summary Decision to the Board based on an untimely filing of the Petition of Appeal in this case. Rather, even accepting, for purposes of this decision, that the 21-day period stipulated in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 operates as a bar to petitions filed outside this timeframe, the Commissioner finds, for the reasons detailed below, that the record before him and any reasonable notion of fundamental fairness compel a determination that the instant Petition of Appeal must be deemed as timely filed.

Initially, the Commissioner takes specific notice that it is uncontroverted that the within petitioner was, at all times relevant to this matter, represented by legal counsel.[2] It is

[1] A transcript of the hearing afforded petitioner by the Board of Education of Edison Township on March 2, 1995 is a component of this record.

[2] Petitioner's appeal contends that "On or about February 27, 1995, Ben W. Payton, an Attorney at Law, of the State of New Jersey, informed respondents by letter, delivered by courier, that he would be representing petitioners, with further observed that the Petition of Appeal filed by such counsel, on behalf of his client, on May 18, 1995 [3] raises explicit allegations with respect to the timeliness of the petition which were left totally unaddressed by the ALJ in his initial decision. Specifically, the petition contends

> 5. Respondents' resolution, dated April 10, 1995, in relevant part, stated, "BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the custodial parent of pupil Case No. 9495-3 and legal counsel be advised forthwith, in writing, of the Board's determination herein, and further advised that the Board's decision may be contested before the Commissioner of Education within 21 days of the adoption of this resolution..."
> [6.] Counsel for petitioners, was advised by respondents, of their April 10, 1995 determination, on or about May 15, 1995, well after the 21 day period for appealing respondents' determination had expired. (Petition of Appeal at p. 2)

In his prayer for relief, petitioner specifically requests that the Commissioner accept the Petition of Appeal as timely filed due to the failure of the Board to timely inform petitioner's counsel of its April 10, 1995 determination.

The Commissioner notes that the Board's apparent response to counsel's assertion is that because the relevant statutory provision does not directly speak to notification of counsel for the parent or guardian, such a requirement is unnecessary, in that the Board's Brief in Support of Motion for Summary Decision states

> Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, the Edison Board was required, at the time of its April 10, 1995 decision, to notify only the parent or guardian of pupil [H.S.] in writing of his right to contest the respect to their domicile and any related issues before them." (Petition of Appeal at pp. 1-2) It is noted that such pronouncement was at no time denied in any submission advanced by the Board.

[3] In his initial decision the ALJ states that "according to the pleadings received from the Commissioner of Education, the petition was not filed with the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes until June 7, 1995." (Initial Decision at p. 4) In that the record contains a letter to the parties in this matter, dated May 19, 1995, from the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes acknowledging receipt of the petition on May 18, 1995, and petitioner's Proof of Service included with his petition indicates that the petition was filed with the Commissioner by fax and regular mail on May 18, 1995, and hand delivered to the Board on this same date, the Commissioner concludes that the date to which the ALJ is referring is the date the hard copy of the petition was received by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes.

> decision within 21 days. As noted above, the Board did so by letter dated April 11, 1995, the day after it rendered its decision in this matter. (Board's Brief at pp. 8-9)

The Commissioner finds such a contention to be both a perversion of the spirit and intent of the statute and disingenuous in light of this Board's own declarations and actions in this matter. The Commissioner opines that it is fundamental that, as petitioner's recognized attorney,[4] his counsel herein was entitled to any and all information which would impact his client's interests in this matter. Moreover, the record substantiates, notwithstanding the Board's protestations to the contrary, that this Board recognized and accepted that it had an obligation to notify petitioner's counsel of the determination it had made in that its April 10, 1995 resolution, by its own terms, directed that notice of its decision be communicated to "the custodial parent and legal counsel." (emphasis added) (Board's April 10, 1995 Resolution at p. 2, Attachment A, Petition of Appeal) Further, even accepting, arguendo, that this Board reasonably believed that notification to petitioner's counsel was unnecessary, the Commissioner finds its ultimate transmittal of such notification to this individual by letter dated May 10, 1995 from Superintendent, Melindo A. Persi, (see Attachment B, Petition of Appeal), to be inexplicable.

It is clear that N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(2) compels a board to provide expeditious notice of its determination with respect to a child's eligibility for a free public education in its schools in that it states "The board of education shall, at the time of its decision, notify the parent or guardian in writing of his right to contest the decision within 21 days." (emphasis added) It is likewise clear that here, despite the Board's recognition that petitioner was represented by counsel and the clear directive of its own resolution, petitioner's attorney was not notified of the Board's determination in this matter until a full month after such decision had been rendered, and well past the 21-day appeal period specified in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. It is also noted that upon receipt of such notice, on or about May 15, 1995, counsel for petitioner promptly filed the within Petition of Appeal.

[4] Black's Law Dictionary defines an attorney as "an agent or substitute, or one who is appointed and authorized to act in the place or stead of another."

The Commissioner finds and determines that, under the circumstances existing in this matter, it would be unconscionable to allow this Board, which failed to effectuate its own lawful directive, to essentially utilize the specified statutory appeal period as both a sword and a shield, thereby depriving petitioner of his "day in court" as a result of its own negligence. Further, condoning such a consequence would send a message that compromising or eliminating a petitioner's due process rights under this statute will be tolerated. Therefore, the Commissioner determines that both the spirit and intent of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and any reasonable notion of fundamental fairness compel a determination that the within Petition of Appeal be accepted as timely filed.

Accordingly, the Commissioner reverses the initial decision of the ALJ granting Summary Decision to the Board and Orders that this matter be remanded to the OAL for hearing on the merits.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner claimed tenure and seniority entitlement to position of Executive Director of Pupil Personnel Services, which she contended encompassed the duties of her abolished position. (Count One) Alternatively, petitioner sought placement in the position of principal. (Count Two) District contended petition was untimely filed.

ALJ concluded that the petition violated the 90-day rule and dismissed it as untimely.

Commissioner reversed the initial decision and remanded matter for further proceedings. Commissioner found that Count One was not time-barred pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c); he found that matter arose upon the RIF which petitioner experienced in May 1994 not at time of Dr. Elias' hiring in August 1990. Commissioner remanded matter to OAL for factual findings and testimony as necessary to 1) Determine whether petitioner's service in the position of Director/Children's Partial Hospital Unit-Teenage Expectant Mother's Program (CPHU-TEMP) and/or the position of Director, Special Services, Department of Pupil Personnel Services, based upon required certifications and qualifications, as well as duties of position, accrues to the same category as that for the position of Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services, held by Dr. Elias; (2) Where such an identity is established between either one or both of the above-mentioned positions held by petitioner and the position of Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services, conduct a seniority analysis against petitioner's claim to the latter position; and 3) Determine petitioner's rights as asserted under Count Two of the Petition of Appeal.

Record Closed: March 12, 1996 Decided: March 12, 1996

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-MCCLOUD, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was commenced by way of petition from Jennifer C. Figurelli received August 3, 1994 by the Department of Education. An answer was filed on August 22, 1994 and, on August 30, 1994, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing was held on February 28, 1995 and an order was generated. That order was amended to reflect an extension of time for the filing of cross-motions for summary decision as well as responses to May 25, 1995. On September 18, 1995, the parties had oral argument on the motion and the undersigned reserved and dates were set for the hearing. On September 25, 1995, a supplemental letter brief was also received on behalf of petitioner in this case. The hearing dates were set for March 1996. Those dates were adjourned due to a conflict in the calendar of the undersigned. However, March 12, 1996 was reserved for an oral decision for the cross-motions on summary decision. On that date, an oral bench decision was given with respect to the cross-motions which granted respondent's motion for summary decision, denied petitioner's motion for summary decision, and thereby dismissed the petition in this matter. For the purposes of this motion and this motion alone, both sides entered into a joint stipulation of facts.

FACTS

For the purposes of this motion alone, the following are agreed to be Facts by both sides. Should this matter proceed beyond the cross-motions in this case, neither side is or shall be bound by these Findings of Fact as they are only for the purpose of making a determination as to the legal issues presented by the parties in the context of motions for summary decision. The Stipulation and agreed upon exhibits have been marked into evidence as C-1.

1. On April 4, 1990, Dr. Jennifer Figurelli's position as Director/Bureau Pupil Personnel Services was abolished, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44. The letter from Dr. Elena Scambio to Dr. Figurelli evidencing the abolishment of her position is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

2. On April 4, 1990, immediately upon abolishment of her position, Dr. Jennifer Figurelli was appointed Director/CPHU TEMP, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44 (Ex. A).

3. Dr. Sylvia Elias began employment with the State-Operated School District of Jersey City on August 27, 1990. At that time, she became the Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services.

4. On May 11, 1994, Dr. Jennifer Figurelli received notice that due to a reduction in force (RIF), her position as Director/Special Services-Department of Pupil Personnel Services was abolished.

5. The petition in this case before the court was filed on August 1, 1994.

6. The petition which gave rise to the instant matter was filed within ninety days of May 11, 1994.

7. The employment history of Dr. Figurelli with the Jersey City Public School District is set forth as follows: Throughout twenty-five years, Dr. Figurelli has held the following positions:

A) School Psychologist, September 1, 1970 through August 31, 1979

B) Chief School Psychologist, September 1, 1979 through August 31, 1980

C) School Psychologist, September 1, 1980 through January 31, 1981

D) Acting Director, Pupil Personnel Services, February 1, 1981 through August 31, 1982

E) School Psychologist, September 1, 1983 through September 17, 1985

F) Director, Bureau of Pupil Personnel Services, September 1, 1982 through August 31, 1983 (pursuant to Figurelli v. Jersey City Bd. of Ed., 87 S.L.D. 1318, aff'd, State Bd. of Ed., 84 S.L.D. 1319)

G) Director, Bureau of Pupil Personnel Services, September 18, 1985 through March 1, 1987 (pursuant to Figurelli v. Jersey City Bd. of Ed., 87 S.L.D. 2607). Dr. Figurelli obtained tenure in this position.

H) School Psychologist, January 6, 1986 through March 1, 1987

I) Director, Bureau of Pupil Personnel Services, March 1, 1987 through April 4, 1990

J) Director - CPHU/TEMP, April 4, 1990 through June 30, 1991

K) Director, Special Services, Department of Pupil Personnel Services, July 1, 1991 through August 31, 1994

L) Supervisor, Special Education/Student Services, September 1, 1994 to present

Dr. Figurelli holds the following certificates from the State Department of Education: School Psychologist (received June 1970); Supervisor (received January 1979); Principal/Supervisor (received January 1979); Director of Student Personnel Services (received January 1980); School Administrator (received August 1986).

8. Attached as Exhibit B to this motion is the job description for the position of Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services, which was in effect at the time of the RIF (May 11, 1994) and is in effect up until the time of the motion.

9. Attached as Exhibit C is the job description for Director, Special Services, which was the job description of the position held by Dr. Figurelli at the time of the RIF (May 11, 1994).

10. Attached as Exhibit D to this Initial Decision is the job description for the position of Director, CPHU-TEMP, which was Dr. Figurelli's job description upon the reorganization of the District until the time that the position was changed to Director, Special Services.

11. Exhibits E and F attached as evidence are memoranda from Louis Accocella, Hudson County Superintendent of Schools, which relate how the titles of Executive Director in the State-Operated School District of Jersey City are to be recognized.

As these facts have been stipulated to the parties for the purpose of this motion only, they are accepted as FACT.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

This case presently stands in the posture of cross-motions for summary decision. Summary decision may be granted when the facts are not in dispute if, as a matter of law, a party is entitled to judgment. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. Of America, 142 N.J. 520. In this case it should be noted that both parties are willing to agree to facts which they concede only for the purposes of this motion.

The threshold issue is whether or not petitioner's claim passes what is sometimes referred to as the 90-day rule found in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. In order to initiate a contested case pursuant to school law, a petitioner shall have no more than 90 days from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. This 90-day requirement is strictly construed and is not subject to expansion. No. Plainfield Ed. Ass'n v. Bd. Of Ed. Of No. Plainfield, 90 N.J. 587 (1984).

In this case, petitioner claims entitlement to the position of Executive Director of Pupil Personnel Services within the Jersey City schools. The Jersey City schools have been the subject of a State takeover and both sides agreed during oral argument that the takeover occurred in October 1989. Petitioner's original position was abolished as part of the reorganization by way of letter dated April 4, 1990. No petition was filed to place this as a matter in controversy before the Commissioner of Education. It was not until May 1994 when petitioner's most recent position was abolished.

Clearly, based upon the Stipulation of Facts, petitioner has tenure and seniority in a number of different positions. It is the subject of this matter that she asserts seniority and tenure in a position referred to as Director, Pupil Personnel Services, which is now held by Dr. Sylvia Elias. Petitioner claims that she had tenure and seniority rights to that position before Dr. Elias ever joined the Jersey City School District.

The State takeover legislation, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c), provides that a state district superintendent may hire an individual whose position is so abolished, based upon the evaluation of the individual and the staffing needs of the reorganized district staff. The statute specifically states that these individuals shall be hired with tenure if they had tenure in their prior positions.

The question presenting itself with respect to the 90-day rule is whether or not the 90 days runs from the date after the state takeover, specifically the April 4, 1990 letter to Dr. Figurelli by which her position was abolished or whether it runs in 1994 when Dr. Figurelli received a notice that due to a reduction in force her more recent position was abolished. In 1990, the position abolished which was held by petitioner was Director/Bureau Pupil Personnel Services and she was appointed as Director/CPHU-TEMP.

In 1994, Dr. Figurelli was sent a notice that due to a RIF, her position as Director/Special Services-Department of Pupil Personnel Services was abolished. At this juncture, petitioner asserts a right to the position held by Dr. Sylvia Elias who began employment in August 1990 as Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services.

Petitioner is correct in reading N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44 to mean that individuals such as petitioner retain tenure which has accrued. The State district superintendent has the ability to hire an individual whose position has been abolished based upon the evaluation of the individual and the staffing needs of the reorganized district staff. That is exactly what occurred in this case. At the time that Dr. Figurelli's position was abolished as of April 4, 1990, the district supervisor did just that, hire petitioner based upon an evaluation of Dr. Figurelli and the staffing needs of the district. Additionally, Dr. Figurelli has and retains tenure rights in those positions to which she had previously had tenure.

The difference which occurs is the difference regarding seniority. The words seniority and tenure are not interchangeable. The two words are used almost interchangeably by petitioner in this case. There is no question as to the tenure which is held by petitioner. The question that does arise is whether or not petitioner's seniority exceeds that of Dr. Elias. According to petitioner's brief, Dr. Elias did not have any tenure or seniority rights with the Jersey City Public School District at the time she was employed. She did acquire tenure and seniority within the district.

The very question of when the action arises is answered by answering the question of tenure and seniority. On April 4, 1990, Dr. Figurelli was appointed Director/CPHU-TEMP after her position as Director/Bureau, Pupil Personnel Services was abolished. While petitioner's tenure was carried with her in those positions in which she held tenure, seniority accrued only in positions which were held. In August 1990, Dr. Elias was appointed to the position of Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services. Whether 90 days is counted from the time that the action was taken in April 1990 when petitioner's position was abolished and she was appointed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c) or, even if counting from the time that Dr. Elias began service, the 90 days has been well exceeded by the 1994 petition.

It is important to note that on May 11, 1994, petitioner received a notice of RIF and that her position was abolished. As a result, she asserted rights in the position held by Dr. Elias. Those rights that she asserted were both tenure and seniority. The position of Director of Pupil Personnel Services to which petitioner is now asserting a right did not exist prior to the State's takeover of the Jersey City Public Schools. As a practical result, no seniority can accrue with respect to petitioner. One cannot claim seniority, which is a timeline only, in a position which did not exist prior to 1994. Dr. Elias, on the other hand, has obtained seniority based upon the time spent in that position.

One of petitioner's claims is that this is an ongoing violation. That very argument shows that the matter is time barred by operation of the 90 day rule and should be dismissed. There cannot be seniority in a position which did not exist in 1990. If, however, one could argue that an ongoing violation existed, then the time to bring the matter would have been in 1990. In April 1990, petitioner had notice of final agency action. At no time until the 1994 RIF did petitioner assert her tenure and seniority rights. During the 1990 reorganization, the position of Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services, was filled by Dr. Elias. If petitioner had wished to she could have petitioned the Commissioner of Education for the position at that time. The 90 days began upon the first notice of final action in April 1990. To assert in 1994 that seniority exists in a position which did not exist in 1990 is disingenuous. Additionally, to find otherwise would mean that any person who is the subject of a reduction in force could assert a claim at any time rather than within the 90 days permitted. This would be an incorrect reading of the 90 day rule and an incorrect result.

For the foregoing reasons and having taken into account the briefs, affidavits and stipulation of facts (C-1) with appended exhibits, I CONCLUDE that the petition in this matter is out of time and violates the 90-day rule. Petitioner has not complied with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 and as such the petition in this instant matter must be DISMISSED.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED petitioner's motion for summary decision be and hereby is DENIED. It is further ORDERED that respondent's cross-motion for summary decision be and hereby is granted and that the petition in the instant matter be and hereby is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who, by law, is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with marked COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

C-1 Joint Stipulation of Facts for purposes of summary judgment only with appended Exhibits A through F

JENNIFER C. FIGURELLI,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioner contends that the initial decision misapplies the 90-day rule in three ways. First, petitioner avows that the initial decision erroneously dismissed Count Two of the petition for failure to comply with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2, in the absence of facts on the record and without argument from respondent, which would serve as a basis for said dismissal. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 3) Petitioner argues that the facts, as stipulated, were relating only to Count One. "When there are no facts before a tribunal to support a dismissal, summary judgment cannot be granted." (Id. at p. 4, citing Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995)) Moreover, petitioner continues,

> The 90-day rule could not possibly apply to bar [her] from asserting a claim to the position of principal, since [she] could not challenge a violation of her seniority rights until after a RIF occurred. No RIF occurred affecting her entitlement to this position until May 14, 1994. (Id. at pp. 4, 5)

Second, with respect to Count One, petitioner avers that, since she filed the petition within 90 days of the elimination of her position as Director, she complied with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2.

(Id. at p. 5) Petitioner maintains that she retained her position as Director without a substantial change in her duties when respondent hired Dr. Elias to her current position in 1990. In hiring Dr. Elias, petitioner reasons, it took no action which affected her position. (Id. at p. 6)

> Rather, the district only acted illegally in reducing [her] to a supervisor position and preventing her from asserting her seniority entitlement to the remaining director position entitled Executive Director of Pupil Personnel Services. To hold otherwise is to misapply the established law governing the vesting of seniority rights which permit an aggrieved employee to challenge the elimination of a position and retention of a less senior individual pursuant to a RIF. (emphasis in text) (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 8)

Petitioner's third exception with respect to the 90-day rule as applied in the initial decision concerns the ALJ's discussion of the continuing violation, as pleaded by petitioner. Here, petitioner asserts,

> The Initial Decision incorrectly states that, by pleading a continuing violation, [she] acknowledges that she did not meet the requirement to file within the 90-day time period. However, the Petition provides "these violations have occurred for the 1994-95 school year and will continue to recur in each and every subsequent year in which Respondent wrongfully prevents Petitioner from assuming the position of Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services [as well as the position of principal]." (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 11)

Petitioner maintains that this language applies to the violation of her rights as a result of the reduction in force (RIF) which occurred in May 1994 and to the violation of her rights which may be anticipated for every school year in which she is not appointed to the position to which she has superior tenure and seniority rights. (Id. at pp. 11, 12)

Petitioner next argues that the initial decision misapplies, in three respects, the regulations governing the application of seniority in the instant matter. (Id. at p. 13) Petitioner first attests that respondent was required to credit her with seniority she earned in her prior tenured positions. (Id.) Although she maintains that her seniority for the position of Director, Pupil Personnel Services, arguably dates back to the early 1980's when she first held the position, she does assume, for the purpose of these exceptions, that, inasmuch as she was considered a "new hire" by the District as of April 4, 1990, her seniority in that position began to accrue as of that date. (Id. at p. 15)

Next, with respect to the application of seniority principles to the instant matter, petitioner reasserts her argument, as presented to the ALJ, that she is entitled to the position of Director, Pupil Personnel Services, since the position of Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services, is recognized by the title of Director, Pupil Personnel Services. (Id. at pp. 15-17)

Finally, petitioner maintains that, even if the title Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services, is not recognized as the title of Director, Pupil Personnel Services, her seniority nevertheless entitles her to the position. Noting the regulations which govern seniority found at N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1, petitioner observes,

> A director acquires seniority in an individual position based on the qualifications and endorsements required.  As is also clear from the record, [she] holds an Educational Services Certificate with the School Psychologist and Director, Student Personnel Services endorsements. She also held the positions of School Psychologist and Director, Pupil Personnel Services. Accordingly, she has tenure and accrued seniority in each of these positions. She would also have tenure and seniority to any position requiring either or both of these endorsements; this includes the position of Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services. (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 19)

Petitioner concludes that she began accruing seniority in these positions on April 4, 1990; whereas Dr. Elias' seniority dates to August 27, 1990. Thus, since petitioner has four months' greater seniority to the position of Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services, she contends that her seniority rights have been violated by the District's refusal to place her in that position. (Id. at pp. 19, 20)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner determines to reverse the initial decision and remand this matter for further proceedings, as set forth below.

Initially, the Commissioner finds that Count One of the Petition of Appeal is not time-barred pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Rather, the Commissioner concurs with petitioner that her tenure and seniority rights under the particular circumstances herein were not implicated upon the hiring of Dr. Elias on August 27, 1990 but, rather, arose upon the RIF which petitioner experienced on May 11, 1994, together with the District's resultant refusal to place petitioner in a position to which she claimed entitlement by seniority. Thus, it was petitioner's demotion to the position of Supervisor, Special Education, and the District's concomitant refusal to honor her claim to a Director's position which establish the cause of action set forth in Count One, which was, therefore, timely taken to the Commissioner.

The Commissioner further finds that petitioner was properly considered a "new hire" on April 4, 1990, in the position of Director/Children's Partial Hospital Unit-Teenage Expectant Mother's Program (CPHU-TEMP) pursuant to pertinent statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44, which governs the abolishment of central office positions upon operation of a local district by the State. (District's Brief, Exhibit R-1) The Commissioner agrees with the District that, "Once Dr. Figurelli began employment in the new position, her seniority began to accrue in that position as of her first day in that position." (District's Brief at p. 7) Notwithstanding that petitioner maintained upon appointment to her new position the tenure and seniority credit accrued in other respects prior to State operation and abolishment of her former position, the pertinent statute clearly provides, "No employee whose position is abolished by operation of this subsection shall retain any right to tenure or seniority in the positions abolished herein." N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c). See also Van Dyke v. State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 43, 45.

Finally, the Commissioner finds that the record supports petitioner's assertion that Count Two of the petition was improperly dismissed for failure to comply with the 90-day rule.

Consequently, the Commissioner remands this matter to the OAL for factual findings and testimony as necessary to: (1) Determine whether petitioner's service in the position of Director/CPHU-TEMP and/or the position of Director, Special Services, Department of Pupil Personnel Services, based upon required certifications and qualifications, as well as duties of position, accrues to the same category as that for the position of Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services, held by Dr. Elias; (2) Where such an identity is established between either one or both of the above-mentioned positions held by petitioner and the position of Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services, conduct a seniority analysis against petitioner's claim to the latter position; and 3) Determine petitioner's rights as asserted under Count Two of the Petition of Appeal.

Accordingly, this matter is reversed and remanded to the OAL for further proceedings as set forth under the above-specified parameters.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

PETITIONER-RESPONDENT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
THE STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 2, 1996

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Maria M. Lepore, Esq.

For the Respondent-Appellant, Ken Iwama, Esq.

On April 4, 1990, the State district superintendent of the State-operated School District of Jersey City (hereinafter "State-operated District") abolished the position of Dr. Jennifer Figurelli (hereinafter "petitioner") as Director, Bureau of Pupil Personnel Services and appointed her as Director, CPHU-TEMP.[1] Such action was taken pursuant to the reorganization of administrative and supervisory staff following the creation of a State-operated school district in Jersey City. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44. In August 1990, the State district superintendent appointed a non-tenured individual as Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services. In July 1991, petitioner's position was changed to Director, Special Services, Department of Pupil Personnel Services. On

May 11, 1994, petitioner received notice that her position was being abolished as the result of a reduction in force ("RIF").

On August 3, 1994, petitioner filed a two-count petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, claiming that she was entitled to reinstatement as the Executive Director of Pupil Personnel Services (Count One) or as a principal (Count Two) by virtue of her tenure and seniority rights. Petitioner alleged that the State-operated District had "failed to demonstrate good cause for the alleged abolition of [her] position as Director of Pupil Personnel Services and its failure to permit her to assume the position of Executive Director of Pupil Personnel Services to which she has tenure and seniority rights." Petition of Appeal, at 3. Petitioner maintained that the Executive Director position was "ostensibly the same as the position of Director of Pupil Personnel Services." Id. at 2. Petitioner also claimed that she had achieved tenure as a principal by virtue of her service as the Director, CPHU-TEMP. The parties filed cross-motions for summary decision, along with a joint stipulation of facts for purposes of summary decision only.

On March 12, 1996, the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") recommended granting the State-operated District's motion and dismissing the petition, concluding that the petition had not been filed in a timely manner. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).[2] The ALJ determined that the 90-day rule had begun to run when petitioner's position as Director, Bureau of Pupil Personnel Services was abolished in April 1990.

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

On May 2, 1996, the Commissioner rejected the Initial Decision, finding that the petition was not time-barred. The Commissioner concluded that petitioner's rights arose in May 1994 when her position as Director, Special Services, Department of Pupil Personnel Services was abolished and the State district superintendent refused to place her in a position to which she claimed entitlement by virtue of seniority. The Commissioner stressed that it was the State district superintendent's refusal to honor petitioner's claim to a director's position which established the cause of action set forth in the petition. Noting, however, that petitioner retained no tenure or seniority rights in her abolished position, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44, the Commissioner remanded this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for such proceedings as were necessary to determine whether petitioner's service as the Director/CPHU-TEMP and/or as the Director, Special Services, Pupil Personnel Services accrued to the same seniority category as Executive Director, Pupil Personnel Services and, if so, whether she was entitled to the Executive Director position by virtue of seniority. The Commissioner also remanded for further proceedings on Count Two of the petition, in which petitioner claimed entitlement to a principal's position.

The State-operated District has filed the instant appeal to the State Board, arguing that the Commissioner erred in determining that petitioner's claim to the Executive Director position was filed in a timely manner.[3] [3] We note that the State-operated District did not appeal the Commissioner's determination to remand this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings on petitioner's claim to a principal's position.

After a thorough review of the record, we affirm, as clarified herein, the Commissioner's ultimate determination to remand this matter to the Office of Administrative Law.

Since this case arises from the reorganization of administrative staff following the creation of a State-operated school district in Jersey City, it is necessary to consider the statutory provisions governing the creation and operation of State-operated districts. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c) provides in pertinent part:

> Notwithstanding any other provision of law or contract, the positions of the central administrative and supervisory staff...shall be abolished upon the reorganization of the State-operated school district's staff. The State district superintendent may hire an individual whose position is so abolished, based upon the evaluation of the individual and the staffing needs of the reorganized district staff....Employees or officers not hired for the reorganized staff shall be given 60 days' notice of termination or 60 days' pay. The notice or payment shall be in lieu of any other claim or recourse against the employing board or the school district based on law or contract....Any employee whose position is abolished by operation of this subsection shall be entitled to assert a claim to any position or to placement upon a preferred eligibility list for any position to which the employee may be entitled by virtue of tenure or seniority within the district. No employee whose position is abolished by operation of this subsection shall retain any right to tenure or seniority in the positions abolished herein. (Emphasis added.)

It is clear from the express language of the statute that petitioner retains no tenure or seniority rights in her former position as Director of Pupil Personnel Services, which was abolished in April 1990 following the creation of the State-operated District. See Van Dyke v. State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, decided by the Commissioner, 91 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 43, aff'd by the State Board, 91 N.J.A.R.2d

We stress, however, that the abolishment of petitioner's position was effectuated by operation of law. Moreover, pursuant to the clear language of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c), petitioner did not retain any right to her abolished position even if it were re-created, as she now contends. Cirasa v. State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson, Docket #A-2408-93T2 (App. Div. 1995). N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44 "does not mandate the rehiring of any of those [displaced administrative and supervisory staff] in the reorganized district. The statute clearly places that decision within the power of the State district superintendent....N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c) evinces a legislative intent to permit the State district superintendent to assemble the best possible central administrative and supervisory staff to move the school district toward the required goal of providing a thorough and efficient education to its students." Id., slip op. at 10-11. Since the statute is permissive rather than mandatory with respect to the rehiring of individuals displaced in a reorganization, petitioner had no entitlement to reappointment in the newly-established Executive Director position by virtue of her service in the abolished Director of Pupil Personnel Services position, even if the duties were "ostensibly the same," as she now contends.

[4] Although petitioner contends in her petition that the State-operated District "allegedly" abolished her position of Director of Pupil Personnel Services in May 1994, the parties stipulated for purposes of summary decision that such position was abolished on April 4, 1990. Exhibit C-1, in evidence.

In any event, we note that petitioner did not challenge the abolishment of her Director of Pupil Personnel Services position until August 1994, after her position as Director of Special Services was abolished. As a result, any claim she might have to the Executive Director position is time-barred to the extent that it is predicated on the validity of the statutorily-mandated reorganization of administrative and supervisory staff in 1990. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). See Kaprow v. Berkeley Twp. Bd. of Ed., 131 N.J. 572 (1993). Moreover, under the circumstances, we find that petitioner has provided no basis for relaxation of the 90-day rule. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15.

Consequently, while we agree with the Commissioner that petitioner's instant claim arose in May 1994 when her position as Director of Special Services was abolished and the State district superintendent refused to appoint her to the Executive Director position, we grant in part the State-operated District's motion for summary decision and dismiss Count One of the petition to the extent that it is predicated on a challenge to the reorganization of administrative and supervisory personnel following the creation of a State-operated school district in Jersey City in 1990.

In view of such determination, we affirm, as clarified herein, the ultimate determination of the Commissioner to remand this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings in order to determine whether petitioner's employment in the district subsequent to the abolishment of her Director of Pupil Personnel Services position in 1990 accrued to the same regulatory category as that of Executive Director,

Pupil Personnel Services, N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(g), and, if so, whether she had any entitlement by virtue of seniority to the Executive Director position at the time of the RIF in May 1994.[5]

We do not retain jurisdiction.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

[5] Since the instant appeal is limited to the Commissioner's determination to remand this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings on petitioner's claim to the Executive Director position, we have not addressed that portion of the Commissioner's decision remanding this matter for further proceedings on Count Two of the petition, in which petitioner claimed entitlement to a principal's position.

DR. JENNIFER C. FIGURELLI, Petitioner, v. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY, Respondent.	OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW STATE OF NEW JERSEY AGENCY REF. NO. 321-8/94 OAL DOCKET NOs. [redacted], EDUOA 05230-96N STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

In consideration of the mutual promises and undertakings contained in this settlement (hereinafter "Agreement") Petitioner, Dr. Jennifer C. Figurelli and Respondent, State-Operated School District of Jersey City, improperly pleaded as the Board of Education of the State-Operated School District of Jersey City, Hudson County, hereby agree that the above-captioned matter and any and all other claims, rights and obligations between the undersigned parties shall be resolved as follows:

1. The parties agree that this Agreement represents the compromise of disputed claims and is not an admission of liability, negligence or wrongdoing by either party. The Agreement was reached by the parties as a business judgment bearing in mind the cost, disruption and uncertainty of litigation.

2. Dr. Jennifer C. Figurelli withdraws with prejudice the petition, including any amendments thereof, against the State-Operated School District of Jersey City, entitled Dr. Jennifer C. Figurelli, v. Board of Education of the State-Operated School District of Jersey City, Hudson County, bearing OAL Docket Nos. EDUOA 08377-94N and EDUOA 05230-96N and Agency Ref. No. 321-8/94.

3. Dr. Figurelli withdraws, with prejudice, all outstanding grievances regarding the withholding of her salary increments for school years 1995-1996 and 1997-1998.

4. Dr. Figurelli hereby releases and forever discharges the State-Operated School District, its successors and assigns, and its past, present or future officers, directors, agents or employees, from all claims, causes of action, suits, grievances, etc., which she has now or has ever had against the State-Operated School District of Jersey City, arising from the withholding of her 1995-1996 and 1997-1998 salary increments and from the abolishment of her position as Director, Special Services in 1994 and her subsequent placement in the position of Supervisor, Special Education/Student Services.

5. The State-Operated School District of Jersey City shall reverse Dr. Figurelli's 1995-1996 salary increment withholding. The parties agree that, due to administrative error, Dr. Figurelli received the monies from her 1995-1996 increment. The District agrees not to make any claim to recoup the erroneously paid monies.

6. The parties to this Agreement acknowledge that they have been represented by independent legal counsel of their own choice throughout all of the negotiations that preceded the execution of the Agreement and that they are satisfied with their representation. The parties acknowledge that they have carefully read and understand all of the provisions herein and that they have voluntarily executed same without coercion and duress. The parties further acknowledge that they are not taking any medication nor are they suffering from any physical or mental disabilities which would affect their understanding or the terms of this Agreement or their decision to enter into this Agreement.

7. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement with respect to the subject matter hereof and shall not be amended, modified or amplified except in writing signed by both parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF CARMEN QUINONES,	:
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, including corporal punishment, against respondent physical education teacher.

ALJ concluded that Board failed to prove that respondent used corporal punishment against two students. ALJ did find that respondent left a student in a park and left a class unattended, thus, warranting disciplinary action. ALJ concluded respondent's improper conduct did not warrant dismissal but that forfeiture of 120 days' salary already withheld was appropriate penalty.

Having reviewed the record, including transcripts of the hearing at OAL, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's conclusions and directed the forfeiture of the 120 days' salary already withheld.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF CARMEN QUINONES, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY

Gregory G. Johnson, Esq., attorney for petitioner

John L. Schettino, Esq., attorney for respondent (Giblin & Giblin, attorneys)

Record Closed: February 22, 1996 Decided: March 11, 1996

BEFORE MARIE P. SIMONELLI, A.L.J.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, School District of the City of Newark, Essex County (the District) filed tenure charges against respondent, Carmen Quinones (Ms. Quinones). The District seeks to dismiss Ms. Quinones from her position as a tenured physical education teacher on charges of unbecoming conduct.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On June 10, 1994, the District filed tenure charges against Ms. Quinones. On June 27, 1994, the District certified the charges and suspended Ms. Quinones without pay. On June 28, 1994, the District issued a Certificate of Determination to certify the charges to the Commissioner of Education and it filed a Statement of Evidence and Tenure Charges.

On July 21, 1994, the Department of Education transferred this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing. The hearing was held on January 22, 23, 24 and 25, 1996. Prior to the start of the hearing, counsel for Ms. Quinones moved for sequestration of witnesses. The undersigned granted that motion and sequestered the witnesses.

The record closed on February 22, 1996, after the submission of all post-hearing Briefs.

FACTS

The parties stipulated the following which I FIND as FACTS in this case:

1. Ms. Quinones is a tenured physical education teacher.

2. Ms. Quinones was assigned to the Roberto Clemente School and the South Seventeenth Street School from 1991 to the date of her suspension.

3. On April 16, 1992, Ms. Quinones met with Joyce A. Kornegay, the Vice-Principal at the South Seventeenth Street School (Vice-Principal Kornegay), about allegations of abuse concerning a student, L. H.

4. On June 10, 1992, Ms. Quinones met with Vice-Principal Kornegay about allegations of abuse concerning a student, S.H.

5. On January 27, 1993, Ms. Quinones met with Vice-Principal Kornegay and the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS) about allegations of abuse concerning a student, Y.W.

6. On June 17, 1993, Ms. Quinones met with Vice-Principal Kornegay about allegations of abuse concerning a student, A.P.

7. On September 28, 1993, Ms. Quinones met with Vice-Principal Kornegay about allegations of leaving a class unsupervised.

8. On June 10, 1994, the District filed charges of unbecoming conduct against Ms. Quinones with the Office of the Executive Superintendent.

9. On June 27, 1994, the District certified the charges and suspended Ms. Quinones without pay.

In addition to the above, having heard the witnesses and reviewed the Exhibits, I FIND the following FACTS:

Ms. Quinones is accused of inflicting corporal punishment on L.H., Y.W. and S.H., of leaving A.P. unsupervised in West Side Park and of leaving a class unattended on one occasion. With respect to the corporal punishment allegations, Ms. Quinones is accused of hitting L.H. in the head with a ball, of hitting Y.W. in the mouth and of pulling S.H's hair. With respect to the remaining allegations, at the hearing, Ms. Quinones admitted that she left A.P. at West Side Park and that she left a class unattended on September 24, 1993. She denied inflicting corporal punishment on any student.

THE INCIDENT INVOLVING L.H.

There is no dispute that Ms. Quinones hit L.H. in the head with a ball. The question is whether she did it to punish L.H.or whether it happened inadvertently when she was playing a game with her class. On April 1, 1992, Ms. Quinones was participating in a game with her students. Ms. Quinones testified that the game involved positioning the students and throwing a ball at them. If she hit a student, that student had to sit down. Whoever was left was the winner and a new game started. Ms. Quinones called this game "monkey-in-the-middle" or "tag." Other witnesses called it either "monkey-in-the-middle" or "duck-duck-goose." Whatever the name, Ms. Quinones and her students were playing a game at the time of the incident involving L.H.

The problem with respect to this incident is that three students, including L.H. and his sister, R.H., gave three different accounts of what happened. One of the students, P.B., was 8 years old at the time of the incident. He testified that the class was not playing a game at the time of the incident. According to P.B., the class was sitting down and Ms. Quinones had asked them to be quiet. L.H. was standing at the window and the window was down. P.B. testified that Ms. Quinones told L.H. to sit down and he did not do so. P.B. also testified that he saw Ms. Quinones throw a basketball at L.H. and hit him in the forehead over his left eye. He saw blood coming from L.H.'s head, but he did not see the cut. P.B. stated that L.H. was facing Ms. Quinones at the time she threw the basketball at him.

L.H.'s sister, R.H., was 6 years old at the time of the incident. She took gym with L.H. Contrary to P.B.'s testimony, R.H. testified that prior to the incident L.H. was playing basketball and Ms. Quinones was participating. R.H. was playing jump rope. L.H. stopped playing basketball and went to the window to talk to another sister who was outside the window. R.H. testified that Ms. Quinones told L.H. to get back and finish the game and that L.H. said that he was tired and did not want to play anymore. According to R.H., Ms. Quinones then threw the basketball at L.H. and hit him in the back of the head. L.H. then hit his head on a piece of metal that was sticking out of a gate on the window. R.H. testified that L.H. cut his head, that the blood came out heavy and that Ms. Quinones did not help L.H. Instead, L.H. went back to class with blood running down his face and his classroom teacher, Lynn Irby-Jackson (Ms. Irby-Jackson), took him to the nurse. R.H. went with them to the nurse.

Although on direct examination R.H. was crystal clear on what happened to her brother, on cross-examination she curiously was not able to remember certain things. She admitted that she "forgets things fast." She also admitted that the District's attorney had to help her remember what happened and that he put a few words in her mouth.

L.H. testified that Ms. Quinones told him to sit down. Contrary to P.B.'s testimony, L.H. testified that he was playing basketball with P.B. and other students. He went to the window to talk to a sister because he was bored and tired of playing. Ms. Quinones told him to get away from the window. Contrary to P.B.'s testimony, the window was up, he did not see the ball coming because he was facing the window and talking to his other sister and the ball hit him in the back of the head. Ms. Quinones called his name and then threw a basketball at him. Contrary to the testimony of R.H., L.H. testified that he hit his left eyebrow area on the window sill, that he cut his head but it did not bleed much and that Ms. Quinones took him to her office and put a tissue on the cut.

Ms. Irby-Jackson testified about the incident on April 1, 1992. She corroborated that the students were playing a game in gym and that L.H. was hit with a ball. She also testified that she saw blood on L.H.'s forehead when he returned from gym on the day of the incident. Although there was blood, it was not gushing and the cut was not large. It was noticeable to her and she got a towel to put on it and the bleeding stopped. Contrary to R.H.'s testimony, Ms. Irby-Jackson did not take L.H. to the nurse because the nurse was not in that day. Ms. Irby-Jackson also testified that she did not report the incident to anyone. She further testified that prior to this incident, no student complained of any problems with Ms. Quinones and Ms. Quinones controlled her class. The students enjoyed taking gym and were not reluctant to do so. In fact, L.H. continued to take gym with Ms. Quinones after this incident.

The most startling testimony came from L.H.'s mother, F.H. F.H. testified that Ms. Quinones allegedly had previously struck one of her other children with a ruler. With respect to that previous incident, F.H. testified that she went to the school with a pine stick to go after Ms.

Quinones. The Principal of the school stopped her and, from that time on, would not let F.H. get anywhere near Ms. Quinones. F.H. also testified that she has a great deal of animosity and ill-feeling toward Ms. Quinones and that she intends to sue the District over the incident involving L.H. after the conclusion of this matter. She already has consulted several lawyers. She also complained about Ms. Quinones to the Division of Youth and Family Services.

Ms. Quinones testified that, on the day of the incident, she started the class with exercises. She then played the game she described as tag with the class. L.H. was one of the last students remaining. He was standing by the window. She threw the ball at him. He saw her throw the ball and he tried to get out of the way so as not to get hit and have to sit down. The ball hit him in the head. Ms. Quinones administered First Aid to L.H. and she cleaned the cut. She did not throw the ball at him as punishment. She was playing tag and she merely tried to hit him as part of the game.

THE INCIDENT INVOLVING Y.W.

Ms. Quinones is accused of hitting Y.W. in the mouth on January 20, 1993. Y.W. testified that her class was on the way to the gym. The class was on the stairs leading to the outside of the gym. The class was lined up and she was the first one in line. Ms. Quinones was in front of her getting ready to take the class outside. Y.W. was talking to a friend. Y.W. testified that Ms. Quinones told her to be quiet and then turned around, swung her hand back and "smacked" Y.W. in the mouth. Ms. Quinones did not smack her real hard, but Y.W. claimed that it did hurt. Y.W. took gym that day. She admitted that she got mad and told Vice-Principal Kornegay and her parents about it. The parents then came to school and met with Ms. Quinones and Vice-Principal Kornegay.

Ms. Quinones testified that on the day of the incident, Y.W. started fighting with another student and she was cursing and screaming. Ms. Quinones moved Y.W. to the front of the line and she moved the other student to the back. Y.W. continued arguing and screaming. Ms. Quinones then put two fingers on Y.W.'s lips and told her to be quiet. Ms. Quinones did not smack Y.W. Y.W. took gym that day and she went to Vice-Principal Kornegay. Vice-Principal Kornegay testified that Y.W. had no physical sign of being hit in the mouth. She checked Y.W.'s mouth and did not see anything.

THE INCIDENT INVOLVING S.H.

The District offered no testimony from S.H. as to the allegation that Ms. Quinones pulled her hair. It only offered hearsay testimony from Vice-Principal Kornegay. Vice-Principal Kornegay admitted that Ms. Quinones denied pulling S.H.'s hair. Pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5, there must be some legally competent evidence to support a finding that Ms. Quinones pulled S.H.'s hair. No such evidence exists with respect to this allegation.

MS. QUINONES' EMPLOYMENT WITH THE DISTRICT

Ms. Quinones began her employment with the District in September 1988. The District initially assigned her to the Harriet Tubman Elementary School. The Principal of that school observed Ms. Quinones during the 1988-89 school year and gave her an overall rating of satisfactory in all categories. The Principal also stated that Ms. Quinones was a talented person and that she had the skills "to make our school's Phys Ed program the best in the City." (R-1)

During the 1989-90 school year, the District assigned Ms. Quinones to the Wilson Avenue School and to the South Seventeenth Street School (the South Seventeenth Street School). The Vice-Principal of the South Seventeenth Street School at that time and the Assistant Director Office of Physical Education and Extra-Curricular Activities, Lawrence A. Guarino (Assistant Director Guarino), observed Ms. Quinones during that school year. They gave her an overall rating of satisfactory in all categories. The Vice-Principal of the South Seventeenth Street School also commented that "Ms. Quinones displays enthusiasm and vitality. She is doing an excellent job." Assistant Director Guarino commented that "Ms. Quinones had good control of the class." (R-2 and R-3)

During the 1991-92, 1992-93 and 1993-94 and 1994-95 school years, the District assigned Ms. Quinones to the Roberto Clemente School (the Roberto Clemente School) and to the South Seventeenth Street School. At the Roberto Clemente School, Ms. Quinones taught physical education to grades K through 4 on Mondays and Tuesdays. At the South Seventeenth Street School, she taught physical education to grades K to 8 on Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays.

In her annual evaluation at the South Seventeenth Street School in June 1991, Ms. Quinones received satisfactory ratings in all categories. The evaluator noted that she was a "Receptive and cooperative staff member," she "Portrays completence (sic) in subject area," and her "Pupils portrays (sic) evidence of having been taught well." (R-4)

The Principal of the Roberto Clemente School, Fidiberto Soto (Principal Soto) testified at the hearing. He observed Ms. Quinones during the 1991-92, 1992-93, 1993-94 and 1994-95 school years. He rated Ms. Quinones satisfactory in all categories during those school years. (R-5, R-11, R-14, and R-21). He also noted that Ms. Quinones "served as a motivator by being part of the activity" in her class (R-11), she "monitored her students continuously," she "maintained good discipline" (R-14) and her class "was well behaved and very much involved in the lesson presented." (R-21)

. Principal Soto also testified that, as a teacher, Ms. Quinones performed satisfactorily and was a good teacher. He had recommended her for a full-time position. (R-17) He received no complaints from any teachers or students about Ms. Quinones, he received no complaints that Ms. Quinones abused or struck students and he observed that she maintained control and discipline of her classes. He also testified that Ms. Quinones went above and beyond her duties while at the Roberto Clemente School and that she was always there to help. She even received a Teacher Recognition Certificate in May 1994 for her "commitment, dedication and responsibility for our children during the school year." (R-22). Principal Soto rated Ms. Quinones between 8 to 10 as a teacher on a scale of 1 to 10 because of the way she worked with the students, the staff and the administration. Mr. Soto still wants Ms. Quinones to teach at the Roberto Clemente School.

Assistant Director Guarino also testified at the hearing. He is the supervisor of all Physical Education teachers in the District, including Ms. Quinones. He observed her on several occasions and he gave her satisfactory ratings in all categories. (R-3, R-9, R-10, R-22). In his Observation Reports, he noted that Ms. Quinones "had good control of the class" (R-3), "her students were attentive and enthusiastic" (R-9) and "she has excellent rapport with her students" (R-22). In another report in February 1994, Assistant Director Guarino stated that "Ms. Quinones plans very well for her classes and displays boundless energy and enthusiasm." (R-18)

Assistant Director Guarino also testified that, in his opinion, Ms. Quinones is a very good teacher. She has a reputation as a very good teacher and he received no complaints about her. He never saw Ms. Quinones being abusive toward her students, he never heard her be negative and he thought that she did an outstanding job. He rated Ms. Quinones an 8 or 9 as a teacher on a scale of 1 to 10.

The other Assistant Director of Physical Education and Extra-Curricular Activities, Leonard Moore (Assistant Director Moore) also testified at the hearing. He supervised Ms. Quinones when she taught at the South 17th Street School. He observed her and rated her satisfactory in all categories. (R-15 and R-23). He testified that Ms. Quinones always maintained control of her students, she always participated in the class activities and her students enjoyed her classes. He rated Ms. Quinones an 8 and he stated that he would rehire her. He also testified that, other than a complaint about leaving a student in the park, he received no other complaints about Ms. Quinones.

Three teachers at the South Seventeenth Street School testified, Marie Love (Ms. Love), Violet Campos (Ms. Campos) and Dorothea Ryles-Williams (Ms. Ryles-Williams). Each of these teachers were 3rd grade teachers at the South Seventeenth Street School at the time Ms. Quinones taught there. Ms. Quinones was the Physical Education teacher for their classes. Ms. Love testified that her students liked Ms. Quinones and responded to Ms. Quinones in a favorable manner. Ms. Love also testified that Ms. Quinones had good control of her classes and never had problems with Ms. Love's students. Ms. Campos testified that, although her class was a difficult class, Ms. Quinones was able to control and discipline the students in it. Ms. Campos also testified that none of her students complained about Ms. Quinines striking them. Ms. Ryles-Williams testified that her students liked Ms. Quinones and responded to her in a favorable manner. Ms. Quinones had good control of the class and had no problems with any students.

Two other teachers at the South Seventeenth Street School also testified, Timothy Solomon (Mr. Solomon) another Physical Education teacher, and Felicia Smith (Ms. Smith), an ESL teacher. Mr. Solomon and Ms. Quinones taught together. He testified that he observed Ms. Quinones frequently and she always was well prepared, she got along with the students and she had good control and discipline of her classes. He never saw Ms. Quinones hit or abuse a student. He also testified that he was walking through the gym at the time of the incident involving L.H. He corroborated that the students were playing monkey-in-the-middle and that Ms. Quinones was participating in that game.

Ms. Smith's room connected with the gym and Ms. Quinones's office. Ms. Smith observed Ms. Quinones a number of times and Ms. Quinones always had control of her classes, she always was orderly with her activities and she never saw a student get out of hand. She also testified that she never saw Ms. Quinones hit or abuse a student. She saw Ms. Quinones embrace a child and she stated that students were overjoyed at seeing Ms. Quinones.

Vice-Principal Kornegay also testified at the hearing. With respect to the incident involving L.H., she testified that the incident occurred on April 1, 1992 and that she met with Ms. Quinones on April 16, 1992 to discuss the matter. She took no disciplinary action against Ms. Quinones at that time. The incident with Y.W. occurred on January 20, 1993. Vice-Principal Kornegay spoke to Ms. Quinones on January 27, 1993 about this incident, but she took no disciplinary action against Ms. Quinones at that time. The incident involving leaving A.P. in West Side Park occurred on June 17, 1993. Vice-Principal Kornegay met with Ms. Quinones on June 17, 1993 to discuss the matter. Again, she took no disciplinary action against Ms. Quinones at that time.

The incident involving leaving a class unattended occurred on September 24, 1993. Vice-Principal Kornegay met with Ms. Quinones on September 28, 1993 to discuss that matter. The District did not bring tenure charges against Ms. Quinones until June 10, 1994, after she already had taught the entire 1993-94 school year without any further incidents.

Vice-Principal Kornegay gave Ms. Quinones an overall unsatisfactory rating in only one Observation Report in December 1993. (P-10). This occurred seven months after the incidents involving L.H. and Y.W. Prior to and after that December 1993 report, Vice-Principal Kornegay gave Ms. Quinones overall satisfactory ratings. (R-7, P-8, R-12 and R-20). Nearly all of these reports were made after the incidents involving L.H. and Y.W. and one was made after the incidents involving leaving A.P. in West Side park and leaving a class unattended. In fact, in an Observation Report, dated March 23, 1994 (R-20), three months before the District suspended Ms. Quinones, Vice-Principal Kornegay gave her an overall satisfactory rating and satisfactory ratings in the following categories:

1. Consistently administers control and understanding, firmness, and consideration for the rights of others.

2. Organizes and utilizes classroom time effectively.

3. Demonstrates wholesome rapport with students/has sympathetic understanding.

4. Displays enthusiasm and vitality.

5. Uses effective instructional techniques.

6. Uses motivational techniques appropriate to the learner and objectives.

7. Selects objectives and gives directions which are clearly stated and appropriate to the learner.

8. Encourages student leadership and responsibility. Develops student skills in individual and group decision making.

9. Provides activities which develop critical thinking, resourcefulness, responsibility and creativity. (R-20)

The District initially attempted to substantiate the corporal punishment charges against Ms. Quinones by introducing evidence of DYFS investigations. Such evidence is inadmissible under N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.10(a)(b)(5) and cannot be used to prove those charges against Ms. Quinones. Matter of Tenure Hearing of Tyler, 236 N.J. Super. 478, 487 (App. Div. 1989); certif. den., 121 N.J. 615 (1990). Thus, a determination must be made as to whether or not the evidence presented at the hearing proves that Ms. Quinones used corporal punishment against L.H. and Y.W.

The use of corporal punishment is prohibited by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1. Corporal punishment is defined in Black's Law Dictionary as "Physical punishment as distinguished from pecuniary punishment or fine; any kind of punishment of or inflicted on the body." In Craze v. Allendale Board of Ed., 1938 S.L.D. 585, 586, the Commissioner of Education defined corporal punishment as "any punishment causing or intended to cause bodily pain or suffering." Corporal punishment is a teacher's use of force and fear in dealing with students and unnecessary and inappropriate physical contact. In Tenure Hearing of Lomakin, 1971 S.L.D. 331, 334.

The District bears the burden of proving the charges of unbecoming conduct by a preponderance of the credible evidence. In re Tenure Hearing of Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 12 (App. Div. 1974). In determining whether this standard of proof has been met, the credibility of the witnesses must be weighed. Credibility contemplates an overall assessment of a witness' story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and manner in which it hangs together with other evidence. In the Matter of Schulman, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (BDS) 16, 27, citing Carbo v. United States, 314 F. 2d 718 (9th Cir. 1963). The term has been defined as testimony which must proceed from the mouth of the credible witness and must be such as our common experience, knowledge and common observation can accept as probable under the circumstances.

Credibility does not depend on the number of witnesses and the finder of fact is not bound to believe the testimony of any witness. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Boyd, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 445, 451 (1992), citing In Re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514 (1950). Testimony may be disbelieved but it may not be disregarded. Id. at 451-451, citing Middletown Tp. v. Murdoch, 73 N.J. Super. 552 (App. Div. 1962). The finder of fact may accept or reject, in whole or in part, the testimony of any witness. Id. at 452, citing Application of Howard Sav. Bank, 143 N.J. Super. 1 (App. Div. 1976). The Commissioner also recognizes the need to examine the testimony of children with great caution. Id. at 451.

In this case, the District presented the testimony of three children, L.H., R.H. and P.B., to prove that Ms. Quinones used corporal punishment against L.H. The credibility of the testimony of L.H. and R.H. is questionable. Their mother, F.H., made it crystal clear during her testimony that she had a great deal of animosity toward Ms. Quinones and that she intended to sue the District after the conclusion of this matter. F.H. even testified that on one occasion, she went to the school with a pine stick with the intention of going after Ms. Quinones.

In addition, L.H., R.H. and P.B. gave conflicting testimony. P.B. testified that the class was sitting down. L.H. and R.H. testified that some of the class and Ms. Quinones were playing basketball and R.H. was jumping rope. P.B. testified that the window was down. L.H. and R.H. testified that the window was up and L.H. was talking to another sister who was outside the window. P.B. testified that Ms. Quinones told L.H. to sit down. R.H. testified that Ms. Quinones told L.H. to get back and finish the basketball game. P.B. testified that Ms. Quinones hit L.H. in the forehead and that L.H. was facing her at the time. L.H. and R.H. testified that Ms. Quinones hit L.H. in the back of the head and L.H. testified that he was facing the window when he got hit. R.H. testified that L.H. hit his head on a piece of metal that was sticking out of a gate on the window. L.H. testified that he hit his head on the window sill. R.H. testified that L.H. cut his head and the blood came out heavy. L.H. testified that the cut did not bleed much. R.H. testified that Ms. Quinones did not help L.H. L.H. testified that Ms. Quinones took him to her office and put a tissue on the cut. Finally, R.H. testified that L.H.'s classroom teacher, Ms. Irby-Jackson, took her and L.H. to the nurse. Ms. Irby-Jackson testified that the nurse was not in that day.

In addition to the obvious bias of L.H. and R.H., there are too many inconsistencies in the testimony of all three children to make their testimony believable. Furthermore, there is no credible evidence that Ms. Quinones threw the ball at L.H. as punishment intended to cause him bodily pain or suffering. Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that Ms. Quinones did not use corporal punishment against L.H.

With respect to Y.W., the District did not present the testimony of any eyewitness other than Y.W. Y.W. testified that Ms. Quinones turned around, swung her hand back and "smacked" Y.W. in the mouth. Y.W. testified that it hurt when Ms. Quinones smacked her in the mouth. Y.W. complained to Vice-Principal Kornegay who admitted that she checked Y.W.'s mouth and saw no physical sign that Y.W. had been hit. Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that Ms. Quinones did not use corporal punishment against Y.W.

Ms. Quinones admitted that she left A.P. in West Side Park and that she left a class unattended on one occasion. Although she explained the reasons for so doing, her conduct cannot go unpunished. A teacher cannot leave a student in a park or a class unattended under any circumstances. The question is whether dismissal is the appropriate penalty. I CONCLUDE that it is not.

Except for one evaluation, Ms. Quinones received satisfactory evaluations, even after the incidents in question. She is regarded as a good teacher by her supervisors and colleagues and her students liked her. Except for the allegations of L.H. and Y.W., no one ever had complained that Ms. Quinones struck or abused any of her students. Although her conduct in leaving a student in a park and of leaving a class unattended warrants disciplinary action, her otherwise unblemished service in the District must be recognized. Dismissal is an unduly harsh penalty under the circumstances.

I, therefore, CONCLUDE that Ms. Quinones's conduct does not warrant her dismissal. A forfeiture of 120 days' pay already withheld is a sufficient penalty.

ORDER

I ORDER that Ms. Quinones shall be continued in her tenure status as an employee of the District and she shall forfeit 120 days' pay already withheld.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 7009-94

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF CARMEN QUINONES,	:
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The District's exceptions were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. No reply exceptions were filed by respondent.

The District raises four objections to the initial decision: (1) That the ALJ incorrectly characterizes the District's charges as corporal punishment, while the Statement of Charges alleges respondent committed several acts of conduct unbecoming a teacher; (2) That the ALJ failed to credit the testimony of Vice Principal Kornegay with respect to the L.H. incident of April 2, 1992; (3) That the ALJ incorrectly found that respondent did not smack pupil Y.W. on January 20, 1993, and that respondent was not guilty of unbecoming conduct; and (4) That the ALJ improperly blames Vice Principal Kornegay for failing to take disciplinary action against respondent immediately after each reported incident. (District's Exceptions at p. 1)

In support of its contentions, the District essentially recasts its arguments as presented to the ALJ. The District adds to its position that, inasmuch as respondent admitted she threw the ball at L.H. because he did not want to come to class, such admission should be given due weight. (Id. at pp. 3, 4) Additionally, the District argues that respondent's version of the Y.W. incident is "not trustworthy," and that, given respondent's admission that she placed her fingers over Y.W.'s mouth, "her conduct constitutes improper touching or conduct unbecoming." (Id. at p. 5) Finally, the District avers that the ALJ places undue emphasis on respondent's evaluations while criticizing the vice principal for failing to take timely disciplinary action against respondent. (Id. at p. 6, citing Initial Decision at p. 10) Thus, the District maintains that respondent should be terminated from her tenured position.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which included the transcripts from the hearing at the OAL, the Commissioner finds no basis either in the transcripts or in the record as a whole to challenge the ALJ's credibility determinations and resultant conclusions and, therefore, concurs that the District has failed to prove by a preponderance of credible evidence that respondent used corporal punishment against L.H. and Y.W. (Initial Decision at pp. 13, 14)[1] That the District contends the ALJ improperly characterizes the charges as corporal punishment, rather than unbecoming conduct, is without consequence where the District's own testimonial and documentary evidence support such characterization, and where such evidence, in view of respondent's attestations, fails to establish that respondent is guilty of improper conduct with respect to the L.H. and Y.W. incidents.

[1] In so doing, the Commissioner notes that the District's exception arguments recount respondent's "admission" as to her conduct concerning L.H., yet the testimony is not respondent's own testimony, but rather the (admissible) hearsay testimony of Vice Principal Kornegay. (Transcript of January 22, 1996 at p. 66, lines 19-23) However, respondent specifically refutes that she threw the ball at L.H. as punishment, maintaining in her testimony that she threw the ball at L.H. in the course of a game of tag. (Transcript of January 24, 1996 at p. 49 line 25, p. 50, lines 1-4, pp. 66-67)

As to the finding that respondent left her class unattended and left a student unattended in the park (Id. at p. 14), the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that such conduct is improper, but further agrees that these incidents do not, in view of respondent's overall employment record with the District, provide sufficient basis for termination.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL, directing that respondent forfeit the 120 days' pay already withheld, is adopted for the reasons expressed therein as the appropriate penalty in this matter.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

THEODORE BOURELOS, WENDY KORENSTEIN, BIRDIE LEE POWELL, YVETTE MORRIS, MARY ROBINSON, DOROTHY HOWARD, BETTE JOHNSON, ANITRA MARTIN, MARY CATLIN, DORIS MORANEY, JOHN PORTEE, AND SATYA DAS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
PETITIONERS,	:	DECISION
V.	:
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, 12 tenured teaching staff members, appealed the withholding of their increments for alleged unsatisfactory performance in the 1993-94 school year. One petition was dismissed for petitioner's failure to appear; one petitioner withdrew her petition; and one petitioner's case was transferred to consolidated OAL cases.

ALJ concluded the State District Superintendent appointed for the District has the statutory authority to withhold increments consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. Moreover, ALJ concluded that the evaluation procedures were consistent with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3. Citing Kopera, the ALJ stated the scope of review on appeal is limited to whether there existed a reasonable basis for the District's decision to withhold. ALJ concluded in all cases but that of Petitioner Das that petitioners failed to meet their burden of proof by a preponderance of credible evidence that the District's action to withhold was unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious. ALJ ordered District's determination to withhold Petitioner Das' increment for school year 1994-95 reversed and relief be granted to Petitioner Das.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ concerning State District Superintendent's authority and concerning the District's evaluation procedures. Commissioner also affirmed ALJ's determination that the District properly withheld petitioners' salary increments. Commissioner, however, reversed ALJ's finding as to Petitioner Das. Commissioner could not, on the basis of the record before him, find the District's decision to withhold Das' salary increment was unreasonable since as of the date of the District's decision to deny his increment, Das had received two unsatisfactory evaluations. Thus, ALJ's decision was adopted in part, reversed in part.

STATEMENT OF CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners, Theodore Bourelos, Anitra Martin, Mary Catlin[1], Dorothy Howard, Bette Johnson, Doris Moraney[2], Yvette Morris, John Portee[3], Birdie Lee Powell, Mary Robinson, Satya Das and Wendy F. Korenstein appeal the decision by the State Operated School District of Jersey City, Hudson County (District) to withhold their salary increment for unsatisfactory performance during the 1993-94 school year.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 1, 1994, as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to - 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Hearings were held on March 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10, 1995. At the conclusion of the hearing, the parties filed post hearing briefs. The record closed on August 8, 1995. The forty-five (45) day statutory period within which to file the initial decision with the Department of Education expired on September 22, 1995. Based on the administrative law judge's voluminous case load and the extensive record in this matter, three extensions of time to complete the initial decision were granted. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8. The date for filing the initial decision is February 2, 1996.

ISSUE

Petitioners' employment and salary increments were withheld for unsatisfactory performance ratings during the 1993-94 school year. Thus, the issue is whether petitioners are entitled to the salary increment for 1994-1995 school year. The scope of review on appeal is limited to whether there exists a reasonable basis for the District's decision.

---

[1] On March 9, 1995, the ALJ granted respondent's motion to dismiss the petition of Mary Catlin for failure to appear at the scheduled hearing.

[2] On March 9, 1994, counsel for petitioners informed the ALJ that Doris Moraney withdrew her petition.

[3] The petition of John Portee has been transferred to the consolidated cases OAL DKT Nos. EDU-8491-94 and EDU. 8490-94.

FINDINGS OF FACTS

The District uses the "Jersey City Public Schools Instructional Observation Report" to rate the performance of staff. The evaluation covers five performance areas:

1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
3. Employs effective organization and planning.
4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
5. Addresses affective domain.

There are four ratings for each performance area:

S - Satisfactory
N.I. - Needs Improvement
U - Unsatisfactory
N/A - Not Applicable

Based on a review of the evidence in each petition I FIND the following as FACT.

THEODORE BOURELOS

Bourelos was hired by the District in 1983. He is certified in English and social studies and for the 1993-94 school year he was assigned to Dickinson High School. Bourelos had been on a disability leave since November 29, 1990.

On October 14, 1993, Rosalie Anglin, the building supervisor for social studies conducted an informal observation of Bourelos. After the class, Anglin discussed her comments and suggestions with Bourelos.

On January 6, 1994, Anglin formally observed Bourelos. She reviewed his roll book, attendance book, and lesson plan book. The average class has thirty students. There were eighteen students in class and only few were prepared to participate in the lesson. Bourelos mostly lectured and responded only to the six students who sat in the front and participated in class. The other students were inattentive and some sat with their heads on the desk.

Based on her observations she rated Bourelos performance in January (J-1) and February (J-3) as follows:

S 1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
N.I. 2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U 3. Employs effective organization and planning.
N.I. 4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
S 5. Addresses affective domain

On March 7, 1994, John Greco evaluated Bourelos's ninth grade World History and Culture class. Greco has been employed by the District for twenty-five years. The evaluation was consistent with the procedure which requires that the District supervisor observe the teacher after he or she has received an unsatisfactory rating. There were twenty-two students in the class. Greco has previously evaluated Bourelos several times and rated his performance excellent and good.

Greco rated Bourelos performance (J-4), as follows:

S 1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
U 2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U 3. Employs effective organization and planning.
N.I. 4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
S 5. Addresses affective domain.

On March 30, 1994, Francis Dooley, principal, notified Bourelos that he recommended withholding of Bourelos's increment for school year 1994-95 based on unsatisfactory evaluations.

WENDY KORENSTEIN

Wendy Korenstein has been assigned to Dickerson High School for twenty-two years. She is certified to teach math and trained in "New Jersey Algebra Project Program." On March 23, 1994, she was evaluated by Francis Dooley, principal. Dooley rated Korenstein's performance (J-9), as follows:

S	1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
U	2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U	3. Employs effective organization and planning.
U	4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
N.I.	5. Addresses affective domain.

On April 13, 1994, Dooley notified Korenstein that he requested that her increment be withheld for the 1994-95 school year.

Richard Woodall, a mathematics teacher for twenty-six years and the building supervisor of mathematics at Dickinson High School, evaluated Korenstein on April 21, 1994. Woodall found Korenstein deficient in several areas. Her roll book showed no recorded grades since March. There was no evidence that homework assignments were consistently checked. Additionally, Korenstein taught a remedial class and each student had an individual improvement program (ISIP). However, the students' ISIP had not been updated since December 1993. Moreover, he found Korenstein's desk area cluttered and messy and the overhead projector poorly positioned. Woodall rated Korenstein's performance (J-11), as follows:

S	1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
N.I.	2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.

S 3. Employs effective organization and planning.
S 4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
S 5. Addresses affective domain.

Dooley reviewed Woodall's evaluation of Korenstein and determined that her performance had not improved. Dooley considered Korenstein's overall performance for the school year and then he concluded that there was no reason to change his prior decision to recommend that Korenstein's increment be withheld.

Frances Brill completed Korenstein's instructional annual written performance report dated June 17, 1994. Brill rated Korenstein's performance (J-13), as follows:

S 1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
U 2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U 3. Employs effective organization and planning.
N.I. 4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
U 5. Exhibits professional attitudes and manner.
S 6. Establishes rapport with pupils, staff and/or parents and community.
U 7. Implements and enforces school rules, administrative regulations and Board policy.

Korenstein was recommended for reemployment but she was not recommended for salary increment based on the unsatisfactory ratings.

BIRDIE LEE POWELL

Birdie Powell, employed by the District since 1979, is certified to teach elementary education and special education. She taught basic skills to elementary school students at P.S. No. 24. A basic skills program is designed for pupils whose proficiency in basic communications and computational skills is below the Statewide standard. Its interim goal is "to assure reasonable progress toward the goal of achievement by each pupil of at least the Statewide standard of proficiency." N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-7. Powell retired on disability in 1994.

David Meluso, principal of P.S. No. 24 evaluated Powell on February 3, 1994. He rated her performance (J-15), as follows:

N.I.	1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
N.I.	2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U	3. Employs effective organization and planning.
U	4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
S	5. Addresses affective domain.

Arlene Onnembo, the supervisor of basic skills, evaluated Powell on March 22, 1994. The first grade reading class contained five students. Onnembo rated Powell's performance (J-17), as follows:

U	1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
U	2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
N.I.	3. Employs effective organization and planning.
N.I.	4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
S	5. Addresses affective domain.

Meluso completed Powell's annual performance report (J-19), and rated her performance as follows:

N.I.	1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
N.I.	2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U	3. Employs effective organization and planning.
U	4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
S	5. Exhibits professional attitudes and manner.

S 6. Establishes rapport with pupils, staff and/or parents and community.
S 7. Implements and enforces school rules, administrative regulations and Board policy.

YVETTE MORRIS

Yvette Morris, a health and physical education teacher, has been employed in the District since 1988. Delores Curtis, district supervisor of health and physical education, has been employed by the District for thirty-five years. She evaluated Morris's second grade class on September 29, 1993, and rated her performances (J-20) as follows:

S 1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
U 2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
N.I. 3. Employs effective organization and planning.
N.I. 4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
S 5. Addresses affective domain.

Classes began on September 7, 1993, although Morris' attendance book indicated that the first class was on September 27, 1993. The roll book was blank. There was no record of the students' names, attendance or grades. The first marking period extended from September 7 through October 15.

Morris was evaluated on October 6, 1993, by Diana R. Harmon, the building principal. Harmon rated Morris's performance (J-22), as follows:

S 1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
U 2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U 3. Employs effective organization and planning.
N.I. 4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
U 5. Addresses affective domain.

The class that Harmon observed was scheduled to begin at 1:15 p.m. but did not start until 1:42. Harman saw Morris sitting in the courtyard waiting for the children to arrive but made no effort to determine why they had been delayed. No teaching occurred for twenty-two minutes. After the students arrived in the courtyard, Morris took the attendance while the students performed warm-up exercises. The lesson involved trapping a ball with their feet. The class ended at 1:58.

David Meluso, principal of P.S. No. 24, evaluated Morris on February 7, 1994. He rated her performance (J-24), as follows:

S	1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
S	2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U	3. Employs effective organization and planning.
N.I.	4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
S	5. Addresses affective domain.

Meluso completed Morris's annual performance report (J-27). He rated her performance as follows:

S	1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
S	2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U	3. Employs effective organization and planning.
U	4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
N.I.	5. Exhibits professional attitudes and manner.
S	6. Establishes rapport with pupils, staff and/or parents and community.
S	7. Implements and enforces school rules, administrative regulations and Board policy.

Meluso recommended her for reemployment but recommended that she not receive a salary increments based on the prior evaluations.

MARY ROBINSON

Mary Robinson, employed by the District for sixteen years, was assigned to P.S. No. 39 and taught second grade for school year 1993-94. Michael DiGenova, District mathematics supervisor, evaluated Robinson on December 2, 1993. He reviewed Robinson's plan book and roll book. He acknowledged that Robinson maintained good records of students' work and tests. In class she explained the objective of the lesson to the students and demonstrated a professional attitude and good rapport with the students. DiGenova rated Robinson's performance (J-28) as follows:

N.I.	1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
N.I.	2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
N.I.	3. Employs effective organization and planning.
N.I.	4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
S	5. Addresses affective domain.

The students used the first eight minutes of class time to sharpen pencils and had to be told three times to get their books. During the lesson the class responded to questions in chorus. At times, the students called out incorrect answers and did not listen to the teacher. Notwithstanding their misbehavior, Robinson continued to teach the lesson and merely wrote the correct answer on the chalk board.

Dorian Skeete, principal of P.S. No. 39, evaluated Robinson on March 25, 1994. Robinson was teaching her second grade class a reading lesson from the Open Court Reading/Writing reader, the District's program for students in grades one through five. Skeete rated Robinson's performance (J-29), as follows:

N.I. 1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
U 2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U 3. Employs effective organization and planning.
U 4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
N.I. 5. Addresses affective domain.

On March 29, 1994, Skeete notified Robinson that she was recommending that her increment be withheld based on her evaluations; she had not made a satisfactory improvement of her performance. (J-31).

Skeete completed Robinson's annual performance report in June (J-33), and rated her as follows:

N.I. 1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
U 2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U 3. Employs effective organization and planning.
U 4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
S 5. Exhibits professional attitudes and manner.
NI 6. Establishes rapport with pupils, staff and/or parents and community.
S 7. Implements and enforces school rules, administrative regulations and Board policy.

Skeete recommended that Robinson's salary increment be withheld. (J-33)

DOROTHY HOWARD

Howard, employed with the District for twenty-two years, was assigned to teach grade six at school No. 17 annex, for the 1993-94 school year.

Assistant Principal Cassandra Hansen was assigned to supervise the staffs' activities and their teaching performance. Hansen, employed with the District for nineteen years, evaluated Howard's performance. Howard felt nervous about the pending observation and asked Hansen to postpone the evaluation for several weeks. Hansen agreed and conducted the evaluation on March 11, 1994. She rated Howard's performance (J-45), as follows:

U	1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
U	2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
N.I.	3. Employs effective organization and planning.
N.I.	4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
S	5. Addresses affective domain.

Twenty-five students were enrolled in Howard's sixth grade math class. Hansen questioned several students and discovered that they were confused about the lesson. Additionally, Howard's plan book was not updated and unorganized. Hansen had prior discussions with Howard about her teaching strategies and had suggested improvements. She also wrote several memos to Howard about her need for improvement. Hansen noted that Howard failed to timely submit report cards during the first and second marking period.

Hansen also observed a lack of discipline in Howard's class. A disruptive class made teaching and learning very difficult. She described the students behavior as a "free for all." She described several incidents of students' misbehavior: four students were involved in throwing a compass in the classroom, and one student gathered the snow from the window sill, made a snowball and threw it inside the class. During a fight, a student was injured and required medical assistance from the school nurse. On another occasion, a teacher assigned to a classroom next to Howard's class sent Hansen a note complaining that Howard's classroom was noisy and disrupting other classes.

BETTE JOHNSON

Bette Johnson, an elementary school teacher, has been employed by the district for twenty years. She taught kindergarten at P.S. No. 28 in school year 1993-94. Mark Hayes, principal of P.S. No. 28, conducted an informal observation of Johnson's performance on January 24, 1994. When the class had not settled down after fifteen minutes, he agreed to return on another day. On February 7, 1994, Hayes returned and observed Johnson teaching a math lesson. Johnson's class included twenty-eight students and two teacher's aides. One aide was required by law because the class exceeded the minimum twenty-five students, and the other aide was assigned to assist approximately five to eight basic skill students in the class.

Johnson taught a lesson on measurement. Hayes believed that Johnson was unfamiliar with the textbook series because she referred to a worksheet, rather than the textbook. He watched Johnson instruct the children to measure the length of the blackboard with "bunny hops." After they returned to their seats, she began another exercise to measure furniture and then stopped the lesson because the children were not on task. Hayes believed that the lesson lacked continuity. The children appeared to be unfocused and off task and misbehaved. During the lesson some students were playing in the closet area. Moreover, there was minimal use of the teacher's aides. The aides sat at tables during the lesson. Hayes acknowledged that poor student behavior impacted the class. Johnson's roll book was not available for Hayes to review until February 10, because she left it home.

Hayes rated Johnson's performance (J-50), as follows:

N.I. 1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.

U 2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U 3. Employs effective organization and planning.
U 4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
S 5. Addresses affective domain.

Between January and February, Haynes requested Patricia Noonan, supervisor of early childhood education, to assist Johnson in improving her teaching technique. Noonan conducted an informal observation of Johnson's class and made recommendations including that she rearrange the classroom seating. On March 24, 1994, Noonan conducted a formal observation.

Johnson implemented the recommended changes. However, Noonan found her teaching unsatisfactory. For example, during "Circle Time" the children were seated on the floor but cramped too close together. Consequently, they were not as attentive as they could have been and poked each other during the lesson. Noonan also observed instruction on the letter "L." Johnson did not instruct or inform the children what they would be doing. Nor did she have the material ready for the lesson. Consequently, the children did not become immediately involved in the lesson. Noonan rated Johnson's performance (J-51), as follows:

N.I. 1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
S 2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
N.I. 3. Employs effective organization and planning.
U 4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
S 5. Addresses affective domain.

During school year 1993-94, Jorges Fernandez, assistant principal, made several informal observations of Johnson's class. The students were noisy and they misbehaved. Pupils left their seats and roamed the bathroom, hallways and school yard. On several occasions, Fernandez suggested that Johnson try to keep the children on task with planned activities and that she use the teacher's aides more often to control the class. Fernandez conducted a formal observation on May 31, 1994, and he noted disorganization, lack of discipline and no use of teacher's aides basically no improvement. Based on the unsatisfactory ratings (J-54), Principal Mark Hayes recommended that Johnson's increment be withheld for 1994-95.

ANITRA MARTIN

Anitra Martin had been employed by the District for five years and was assigned to teach kindergarten for the 1993-94 school year at P.S. No. 9.

Wendy Perez, principal of P.S. No. 9, received several complaints between September and October from parents about the lack of instruction and students' misbehavior in Martin's class. Consequently, Perez spoke to Martin about her lack of control in the classroom and while monitoring the children in the hallway. She informed Martin of her concerns regarding Martin's ability to manage her students and her professional demeanor.

On January 18, 1994, Perez visited Martin's class with the intent to conduct a formal evaluation. When Perez arrived she observed a disruptive class. When it appeared as if Martin could not control the class Perez interceded and told the children to stop fighting. Martin became upset and began to cry and scream. She asked Perez to leave her classroom or else she would call a union representative. A union representative entered the room to calm Martin. Perez documented the incident and her concerns regarding Martin's teaching effectiveness and suggested improvements. (R-1) Perez also reprimanded Martin for her emotional outburst and for asking her to leave the room and stated, "Let this be the first and last time that you question my authority with the threat of Union Intervention." (R-1) Additionally, Perez admonished Martin about leaving the class unattended during her lunch hour. Perez also suggested that Martin seek professional help to deal with "your inability to control your emotions and implusivity.Unable to control [B], you grabbed him, and started to shake him in a rough and unacceptable manner." Ibid.

Messano was the assistant principal and he has been employed by the District for 24 years. He has observed Martin informally and formally in the classroom and in the hallways. Messano admonished Martin for leaving the children unattended on December 20, 1994. He warned her not to ever leave the children unattended and to notify the office "as soon as possible" if her aide did not appear. He also reminded her that "the welfare and safety of the children must supersede your lunch time commitment. Your lunch can always be adjusted to accommodate the students in your class." (R-2) In a memorandum dated January 13, 1994, Messano reiterated his discussion with Martin about leaving the children unattended while she went to lunch. (R-6).

Messano evaluated Martin on January 28, 1994, and rated her performance (J-60) as follows:

N.I.	1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
U	2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U	3. Employs effective organization and planning.
U	4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
N.I.	5. Addresses affective domain.

Messano observed the class of twenty-five to thirty students and a teacher's aide. One activity involved cutting letters. Messano saw the children running throughout the room with the scissors in their hands. Another activity included a reading lesson. Martin read a poem to the children who were seated in a circle. The class was inattentive. Martin reprimanded one student by asking him to leave the group but did not explain why he was being disciplined.

Patrician Noonan, supervisor of early childhood education, met with Martin several times during the school year at the request of Perez. Martin disclosed feelings of being overwhelmed. Noonan evaluated Martin on April 29, 1994, and rated her performance (J-62), as follows:

U	1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
N.I.	2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U	3. Employs effective organization and planning.
U	4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
N.I.	5. Addresses affective domain

Noonan observed Martin reading a story about Jesse Owens to the children. During the lesson, the children looked at other story books and played games.

SATYA DAS

Satya Das has been a mathematics teacher at Lincoln High School since 1979. He is also qualified to teach advanced math, advanced physics, advanced chemistry, and advanced computer science. For the 1993-94 school year, Das was assigned to teach math orientation, a remedial math class.

Belinda Stokes, math supervisor in the building, conducted informal observations of Das on September 30, 1993, and January 12, 1994. On her second informal visit, Stokes noticed some students spitting seeds on the floor and other students engaged in private conversations. Stokes conducted a formal evaluation of Das's performance (J-67), on February 17, 1994, and rated his performance as follows:

S 1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
U 2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
U 3. Employs effective organization and planning.
U 4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
U 5. Addresses affective domain.

Arlene Farrell, vice principal, evaluated Das on March 29, 1994. Her ratings of Das's performance was similar to Stokes. (R-7).

Charles Cooper, principal of Lincoln High, informed his staff to expect informal and formal observations throughout the school year. He also instructed the teachers to present their lessons employing "cooperative learning, discovery learning, limit lecturing," and to apply the lesson to life. At the hearing, he revealed that 15% of the students were "socially disaffected." Thus, he also informed his staff that if the students felt uncomfortable in the classroom and misbehaved, the teacher should refer the student for crisis intervention. On March 30, 1994, Cooper informed Das that based upon his evaluation for the 1993-94 school year, he was recommending that Das's increment be withheld. (J-69).

On May 10, 1994, Anita DeRosa, district supervisor of mathematics, observed Das's math orientation class and evaluated his teaching performance. She rated his performance (J-68), as follows:

S 1. Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter.
S 2. Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils.
N.I. 3. Employs effective organization and planning.
N.I. 4. Utilizes effective instructional techniques.
S 5. Addresses affective domain.

DeRosa reviewed Das's roll book and plan book; they were both up to date. Sixteen students were registered in the class. The grades recorded for a test given the week of April 25, 1994, showed that thirteen students or eighty-one percent of the class had passed the test. DeRosa had no input in the determination to withhold Das's increment. DeRosa concluded that those students had mastered the lessons taught on adding polynomials.

I

Petitioners first claim that "the school District, as presently constituted, lacks the authority necessary to withhold increments." Petitioners' Brief at 33. Petitioners acknowledged that the Order entered by the State Board of Education allowed the takeover of the Jersey City Board of Education, created of the State-Operated School District, and authorized the Commissioner of Education to appoint a State District Superintendent to direct all operations of the new district. However, petitioners submit that N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 was not superseded or abolished by the State takeover legislation. Petitioners further submit that to permit the superintendent "to deny increment without first allowing the affected teacher to plead his/her case, amounts to a denial of appellant's due process as one of the statutorily prescribed procedure[s] has been effectively removed." Id. at 34. Petitioners argue that the statutory authority granted to the state district superintendent does not include the power to act in lieu of a board of education. Petitioners also submit that "the State District Superintendent did not have the authority to rule by fiat and deny [petitioners their] due process rights by making the unilateral decision to file the within tenure charges. Id. at 36.[4]

[4]Also, petitioners asserted that the action taken by the District against them in denying the increments is void because the District failed to comply with the Open Public Meetings Act. N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to -21. Petitioners aver that the State Superintendent of Schools, denied petitioners' increments without any

I have considered and reject petitioners' challenge to the superintendent's power to withhold their increments. N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 provides that the board may withhold the employment increment or salary adjustment of any member based on insufficiency or other good cause by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board. The District asserts that "all of the powers and authority of a board of education are exercised by the State District Superintendent appointed for the District. N.J.S.A. 18A: 7A-15.1. This includes the express power to make all personnel determinations relative to all officers and employees of the District." N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42a(3). Respondent's Brief at 1. I agree. The takeover legislation delegates to superintendents in state operated school districts the authority previously granted to the local school board. Pursuant to N.J.S.A.. 18A:7A-35e, "the State district superintendent shall have the power to perform all acts and do all things consistent with law necessary for the proper conduct, maintenance and supervision of the schools in the district." Consequently, a district superintendent is empowered to engage in all necessary activities to allow the district to be fully functional. This necessarily includes the power to act on a recommendation to withhold an increment. See Brown v. State-Operated School Dist. of Jersey City, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d. 875 (Dept. of Ed.). Thus, I FIND and CONCLUDE the State District Superintendent appointed for the District has the statutory authority to withhold increments consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.

action taken at a public meeting of the Board of Education. Petitioners did not assert this issue in their pleadings, but raised it in post hearing briefs. Therefore, it will not be addressed.

II

Petitioners also contend that the withholding of their increment was procedurally defective because the District did not establish or adopt policies to evaluate tenured teaching personnel as required by N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3. Thus, petitioners submit that "no one, not the teachers or the evaluators knew what policy and/or procedure to follow in making these evaluations." Petitioners' Brief at 37.

Respondent counters that "[t]he actual teaching performance of each petitioner was observed by supervisory staff during 1993-94 school year and evaluated according to five performance factors indicated on the District's standard form for instructional observation." Respondent's Brief at 3.

I have reviewed carefully the evaluation procedures used for each petitioner. The District uses the "Jersey City Public Schools Instructional Observation Report" to rate the performance of staff. The evaluation covers five performance areas: (1) Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter; (2) Assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils; (3) Employs effective organization and planning; (4) Utilizes effective instructional techniques; and (5) Addresses affective domain. Additionally, the District applies four ratings to measure each performance area: S -Satisfactory; N.I. -Needs Improvement; U - Unsatisfactory; N/A -Not Applicable. Moreover, in many cases the evaluators made formal and informal observations and then rated the teacher on his or her cumulative performances. This method of evaluating teachers was reasonable because it allowed the evaluator to consider the cumulative assessment of teacher, and not rely merely one day's performance. The District recognized that although a teachers may perform well on one day, that performance is not reflective of their overall ability. Conversely, a teacher's poor performance on one day does not necessarily reflect his teaching ability. I FIND and CONCLUDE that the evaluation procedure was consistent with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3.

III

Petitioners contend that the denial of their increments predicated upon unsatisfactory evaluations were without basis. Petitioners also assert that the evaluations were punitive.

Respondent counters that the increments of all the petitioners were withheld for unsatisfactory performance during the 1993-94 school year. Therefore, if it was not unreasonable for the evaluators to conclude from the underlying facts that a staff member's performance during that school year was unsatisfactory, the increment withholdings must be sustained.

I have considered the claim of each petitioner, the underlying facts, and the arguments of the parties. The individual claims presented in this consolidated matter each challenged the District's procedure in conducting the evaluation of the teacher's performance. I agree with petitioners' assertion that evaluators apply subjective criterion in their assessment. Indeed, respondent's administrators did not refute that subjectivity played a role in the evaluator's judgment. Therefore, in each appeal I have carefully considered the teacher's overall performance for the 1993-94 school year and the remarks of each supervisor who observed the teacher and reviewed the instructional reports. For example in Powell's appeal, I considered any action which followed Meluso's evaluation of Powell's performance including the observation by Onnembo. Notably, Korenstein in her appeal relies on action taken subsequent to Principal Dooley's evaluation of her performance on March 23, 1994. Specifically Korenstein noted the observation conducted by Woodall on April 21, 1994, and asserted that "portions of Woodall's observation/evaluation were glowing. This evaluation was subsequent to that of Mr. Dooley's, the school principal." Petitioners' Brief at 7.[5] Thus, it is appropriate that petitioners seek to admit a showing of improved performance through favorable evaluations which were conducted after there had been a decision to recommend denial of their increment. Conversely, it is equally appropriate to consider unfavorable evaluations conducted after the recommendation hads been made to deny the increment.

N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 provides that a teacher's salary increment may be withheld for inefficiency or other good cause. Conversely, the approval of a "salary increment is 'a reward for meritorious service.'" Probst v. Haddonfield Bd. of Educ., 127 N.J. 518, 527 (1992). Indeed, the purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 is "to reward only those who have contributed to the educational process thereby encouraging high standards of performance." Bernards Twp. Bd. of Ed. v. Bernards Twp. Ed. Ass'n, 79 N.J. 311, 321 (1979). Consequently, an annual increment is not a statutory right; it is a reward for good performance and the acknowledgment that the teacher's overall performance has met the high standards of performance required by the District. North Plainfield Ed. Ass'n v. North Plainfied Bd. of Ed., 96 N.J. 587, 594 (1984)

The Legislature has vested local boards and state district superintendents with the power to withhold increments from teachers who have not performed satisfactorily during the previous year. Probst v. Haddonfield Bd. of Educ., supra, 127 N.J. at 526. Indeed, a decision to withhold an increment is a matter of management prerogative. North Plainfield Educ. Ass'n v. North Plainfield Bd. of Educ., supra, 96 N.J. 587; Bernard Twp. Bd. of Educ., v. Bernard Twp. Educ.

[5] Principal Dooley did review Woodall's evaluation report and determined that Korenstein's performance had not improved. After Woodall considered Korenstein's overall performance for the school year, he then concluded that there was no reason to change his prior decision to recommend that her increment be withheld.

Ass'n, supra, 79 N.J. 311. Accordingly, the Commission is prohibited from substituting his judgment for that of the board or state district superintendent.

The scope of review on appeal is limited to whether there exists a reasonable basis for the District's decision. The exercise of discretionary powers may not be upset unless it is patently arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). Thus, the Commissioner must determine: "(1) whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluation claimed, and (2) whether it was reasonable for them to conclude as they did upon those facts, bearing in mind that they were experts." Id. at 296-97. The burden proof proving that the increment withholding was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable rests with the person challenging the decision. Kopera at 297.

THEODORE BOURELOS

Anglin described deficiencies in several areas of Bourelos teaching performance. In assessing the needs and progress of pupils, she noted that the grades recorded in the roll book did not match the students' performance. There was no indication how Bourelos would help those students who appeared to be struggling to learn. Although High School Proficiency Test (HSPT) skills were noted in the lesson plan book, she observed no skills, e.g., skills that develop critical thinking, being taught during the lesson. Additionally, she found that Bourelos had scheduled tests weeks in advance. Anglin found it unacceptable to schedule tests weeks in advance if students had not mastered the subject.

Anglin found Bourelos deficient in effective organization and planning. The objective of the lesson was too broad and unclear. Bourelous' lecture/question and answer teaching method was repetitive and lacked motivation.

Anglin testified that Bourelos needed to employ teaching methods that met the needs of all his students. Instead, he focused on only a few students seated in the front of the class and he was not attentive to those students who did not participate in the lessons. She also noted that the lesson ended fourteen minutes prior to the end of the period. Although the students were given time to work on their assignments, she did not observe Bourelos assisting the students.

Anglin believes that teaching is an art, not a science, and therefore the lesson must focus on the needs of the student. The question and answer technique does not serve the best method of teaching students who have different levels of learning ability. A more appropriate method of instruction is a cooperative learning approach that will induce all students to participate in the lessons. Students who function on a higher level will be the leaders of the group and those who have difficulties will work closely within the group, express their concerns and ask questions. Anglin observed Bourelos again on February 23, 1994, and found deficiencies similar to those which she observed in January. Bourelos had scheduled tests weeks in advance without any indication that the students had mastered the lesson. His teaching method was repetitive and lacked motivation. His plan book and the lesson plan objectives were unclear. Bourelos's roll book lacked clarity, organization, and accuracy.

Bourelos denied favoring the few students who sat in the front of the room. He contended, however, that some students were lazy and that some did not speak English or could not read. These handicaps "contributed to their lack of participation in the classroom." Bourelos claimed to have used the same but several teaching methods and strategies for many years. He found that the most effective method was the question and answer instruction. He maintained that he also motivated his students with pep talks, giving them extra work before and after school and conferring with parents. He has never received a poor evaluation for his teaching performance. Also, he has used the same method in preparing his plan book. Bourelos believed that Anglin's evaluations of his performance were a form of harassment because he had been on disability leave. Following the post observations conferences with Anglin, Bourelos wrote a memo to John Greco, supervisor of social studies, stating his disagreement with Anglin's evaluations.

John Greco observed and evaluated Bourelos on March 7, 1994. Greco found that Bourelos objectives listed in the plan book were unclear and Bourelos's teaching was inconsistent with the objectives. Additionally, the plan book was unclear and had been amended. Greco believed that the plan book should cover one week at a time to avoid numerous corrections. Further, the roll book lacked clarity, organization, and accuracy. It was difficult for Greco to "decipher" the information contained in it. (J-4)

Greco also criticized Bourelos for using the form tests which were supplied by the textbook publishers rather than teacher-made tests or a combination of the two. Because the students' level of ability differ in each class, generic tests compiled by the publisher may not fit into the needs of the students in a particular class. Therefore, teachers should tailor the test to meet the needs of each class.

Based on the careful review of the record, I CONCLUDE that the District had reasonable basis for its action to withhold Bourelos's employment and adjustment increment.

I further CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet his burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that the District's action was unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious.

It is hereby ORDERED that the District's determination to withhold petitioner's increment for school year 1994-95 for unsatisfactory performance is AFFIRMED and the petition of appeal be DISMISSED.

WENDY KORENSTEIN

Dooley acknowledged that Korenstein was knowledgeable about the subject matter (math), however, she did not demonstrate an ability to teach the students. Dooley also concluded that Korenstein was not able to assess the pupils' progress because she administered only two tests and did not record all the test scores in the marking book. Thus, he rated her unsatisfactory in assessing and evaluating the needs of the pupils.

Dooley also rated Korenstein unsatisfactory in effective organization and planning because she did not have a lesson plan in her book for the day she was observed. Instead, Korenstein was using a plan book from the 1991-92 school year. Because students change, proficiencies change and strategies change from year to year, Dooley further concluded that lessons plans for 1991-92 may not be applicable for the current year. Moreover, Korenstein's failure to have a current lesson plan was a violation of her teaching contract and thus, unacceptable.

Dooley rated Korenstein unsatisfactory in effective instructional techniques. During the class period, Korenstein reviewed twelve homework problems on the chalkboard but did not introduce a new topic to the students. Thus, Dooley concluded that because Korenstein had no plan, she had no objective to achieve. Additionally, she used an overhead projector with a dirty overlay as a teaching tool and the presentation was difficult to read.

In the area of "addresses affective domain" Dooley found that the overall appearance of the classroom and clutter were not conducive to positive learning experience. For example, the bulletin board had Halloween borders in March and there was an accumulation of papers and cardboard in the corner. Because homework was left on the chalkboard from the previous class, the students had to write their homework answers around assignments which had not been erased. Dooley recommended that Korenstein remove all unessential items and improve the appearance of the classroom. Dooley also noted that Korenstein used positive reinforcement and the class behaved respectfully towards her. (J-9)

Korenstein candidly testified about her teaching performance on March 23, 1994. Korenstein maintained that she had serious medical problems during that period and she fell behind schedule on some of her administrative tasks. She conceded that her usual work product was not up to par. Korenstein claimed, however, that when Dooley observed her class she gave him two plan books; one was the current school year and the other was a 1991-92 plan book. However, the lesson plans for the current school year were one week behind. Therefore, she referred to a 1991-92 plan book. Additionally, the students' ISIP were not updated because of her medical problems.

Korenstein also maintained that she changed the planned lesson and decided to review the homework assignment because five students were absent. With one-fifth of the class absent, she believed that it was better to review homework problems rather than to begin a new lesson. She denies that the overhead projector was dirty. Moreover, because the teacher's desk was "waxed to the floor," the cart which holds the projector was "situated as far over in front of the overhead screen as it can possibly go." (P-2) Korenstein also disputed that the room was decorated with Halloween decorations. She maintained that the teacher who shares the room decorated it with a purple and black spider figure border. Additionally, there were "math oriented charts around the room, math related cartoons, and school related flyers" decorations. (P-2)

After she was observed by Dooley, Korenstein told him about her medical problems. Further, in her post observation rebuttal statement, Korenstein imputed some of her performance ratings to her medical problems. She stated that:

> Sometime in late February, 1994 I started having a great deal of difficulty seeing and made an appointment with my physician to have the problem checked out. It turned out that I have a medical condition, diabetes, which would cause my eyesight to become worse before it could improve. The cause was discovered on March 3, 1994 and it would take 6 weeks before it could be reevaluated. Being the dedicated teacher I am, I chose to do the best I could under the circumstances and work around my disability be coming to work and teaching every day.

Korenstein candidly testified that her medical problems made it difficult for her to complete the administrative tasks and that her teaching was not up to par.

I am persuaded by the evidence that Dooley and Woodall provided a candid assessment of Korenstein's teaching performance. She was a knowledgeable math teacher, however, she was deficient in organization and planning. Korenstein administered only two tests and did not record all the test scores in the marking book. She failed to have a current lesson plan on the day she was observed and used a plan book from 1991-92 school year. She did not maintain her classroom in a neat and orderly manner. She used an overhead projector with a dirty overlay making the presentation difficult to read. The classroom environment was not conducive to learning.

Based on the careful review of the record, I CONCLUDE that the District had reasonable basis for its action to withhold Korenstein's employment and adjustment increments.

I further CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet her burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that the District's action was unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious.

It is hereby ORDERED that the District's determination to withhold petitioner's increment for school year 1994-95 for unsatisfactory performance is AFFIRMED and the petition of appeal be DISMISSED.

BIRDIE LEE POWELL

Meluso observed Powell teaching a basic skills reading class, consisting of three students in grade levels three and four. The lesson involved the use of the telephone book but Powell did not state the objective of the lesson. Meluso believed that using a telephone book is a good motivational technique. However, the skills that Powell sought to address were questionable and the students appeared to be confused by the examples they were given. The basic skills instruction is designed to help pupils pass the standardized tests. Meluso concluded that the lesson was disorganized and that the students knew how to use the telephone book. Therefore, Meluso rated Powell "NI" in demonstrates proficiency in subject matter and "NI" in assessing the needs of the students. He believed the lesson was not thought out. He also found that Powell's lesson plan book was not up to date. Additionally, Powell should have encourage the students to participate more in class.

Meluso rated Powell unsatisfactory in employing effective organization and planning. Powell visited the class on a Thursday, but the lesson scheduled for Tuesday was taught. Meluso also rated Powell unsatisfactory in using effective teaching techniques. The lesson lacked direction and progressed with some difficulties. The activity seemed to drag and the students appeared to be restless and bored. When the students appeared reluctant to answer questions, Powell should have rephrased the questions or asked individual the student to respond. Meluso concluded that they were capable of doing more work and at a faster pace. He also concluded that more activities which required creative thinking should have been incorporated into the lesson. Meluso attached a questionnaire with objectives for improving teaching performance to the evaluation report. (J-15) On March 14, 1994, Meluso notified Powell that based on unsatisfactory evaluations for 1993-94, he was recommending that her increment for the 1994-95 school year be withheld. (J-16).

Onnembo rated Powell unsatisfactory in "demonstrates proficiency in subject matter." Powell read a story from the "Open Court Reader" program but made no use of the phonics components of the program. She demonstrated little knowledge of current instructional techniques. For example, neither reading nor writing were taught as a process. Additionally, Powell consistently mispronounced the words and used incorrect grammar and pronunciation when reading to the students. For example, the sentence in the book was, "they'll eat the cake," Powell misread the sentence as follows, "they ate the cake." (J-17) Also, Powell told the children that the story was about Pete's birthday, but it was about Sue's and Bert's birthday. She misread the title of the story as "Birsday," the actual title is "The Birthday." Onnembo did not believe that Powell had a speech impediment or that English was her second language. Onnembo concluded that Powell did not understand the story she was reading.

Onnembo rated Powell unsatisfactory in "assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils." Although there were only five pupils assigned to the class, Powell did not know their names and referred to one pupil as "Room 109," his homeroom. Onnembo saw no evidence throughout the lesson that Powell assessed or addressed the various needs of each of the students.

Onnembo rejected Powell's reason for not having a lesson plan. Although Powell received materials from each pupil's classroom teacher daily, Powell should plan added activities to address first graders' short attention span. Thus, Onnembo rated Powell "NI" in employs effective organization and planning. Onnembo did acknowledge that Powell did an effective job in applying the lesson to the pupils life experience. However, Onnembo admonished Powell because she read the entire story to the pupils and did not instruct the students to read from the book.

Powell claimed that she taught the correct lesson on the day she was observed by Meluso and that she taught the lesson as he instructed. She also asserted that she maintained each student's work in a separate folder. She also disputed Onnembo's conclusions about her performance. Powell maintained that Onnembo directed her how to teach the lesson. In response to Onnembo's criticism that Powell did not instruct the students to read from the book, Powell claimed that she was addressing the pupils listening skills.

I have considered the disputed facts concerning Powell's performance on February 3 and March 22, 1994. During her testimony, Powell's verbalization was consistent with the demeanor described by Meluso and Onnembo. For example, Meluso noted that Powell misspelled "physician" and Onnembo observed her misread sentences from a book. At the hearing, Powell's poor grammar was evident.

Petitioner has the burden of proof. The term "burden of proof" refers to the "burden of persuasion." The burden of persuasion entails more than merely producing evidence to establish a state of equilibrium with respect to whether a certain fact exists. This tribunal must "decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to the reasonable probability of the truth." Jackson v D.L. & W.R.R. Co., 111 N.J.L. 487, 490 (E. &

A. 1933). Preponderance is the greater weight of credible evidence in the case, not necessarily dependent on the number of witnesses, but having the greater convincing power. State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47 (1975). The evidence must be such as to lead a reasonable cautious mind to a given conclusion. Bornstein v. Metropolitan Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958). Where the standard is reasonable probability, that is, preponderance of the evidence, the evidence must be such as to "generate belief that the tendered hypothesis is in all human likelihood the fact." Loew v Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div 1959).

I have observed the demeanor of the witnesses, and I FIND and CONCLUDE that the lesson taught by Powell on February 3, 1994, was scheduled in her plan book for another day; her plan book was not current; she had no lesson plan for March 22, 1994, and was not prepared for class on that day. Further, I FIND and CONCLUDE that Powell did not have her roll book on February 3, 1994, and she did not know the names of the five students in her class.

Based on the careful review of the record, I CONCLUDE that the District had reasonable basis for its action to withhold Powell's employment and adjustment increments.

I further CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet her burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that the District's action was unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious.

It is hereby ORDERED that the District's determination to withhold petitioner's increment for school year 1994-95 for unsatisfactory performance is AFFIRMED and the petition of appeal be DISMISSED.

YVETTE MORRIS

Curtis believed that students' performance should be graded and recorded because this progress is based on achievement in activities and skills taught daily. Morris had no record for evaluating each student's achievements in activities and skills. Consequently, Curtis rated Morris "unsatisfactory" in assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils because her roll book lacked evaluation documentation. Although classes started on September 7, 1993; there were neither names nor grades in Morris' roll book as of September 27, 1994.

Curtis rated Morris "NI" in employs effective organization and planning, and in utilizes effective instructional techniques. Curtis found no formal instruction in place nor could she ascertain the identity of the instructional focus. Curtis believed that Morris's lesson plan "to develop locomotive skills," should "describe what the students will learn and how it will be learned." (J-20; J-21) Curtis also believed that performing windmills, sit-ups, jogging and relays were "good for warm-ups and lead-up activities for advanced activities for sports." (J-20) Curtis also found instructional techniques deficient. Students only responded to the instructions after they were repeated by Morris. Curtis believes that all tasks should be modeled and the movement demonstrated for the students by the teacher when possible. (J-20) Curtis also noted that the class should end about four minutes before dismissal; Morris ended the class eight minutes early.

Harmon believed that Morris needed to improve her time on tasks techniques. Too much time was wasted on roll call and making comments about who was not present. Further, the lesson taught did not provide sufficient time for the students to practice the skill. The activity was not well prepared and showed signs of inadequate planning to meet the individual needs of the students. Harmon recommended that Morris (1) work with the District supervisor to improve her lesson planning and preparation techniques; (2) visit another school and observe a master teacher's class; and (3) attend a summer academy for teachers to improve her planning techniques.

In February 1994, Meluso rated Morris "unsatisfactory" in organization and planning because her lesson plans were not up to date. Melusso stated that planning is essential for good teaching and that the teacher can use her preparation period to complete this task. Additionally, the plan should include long and short term goals. An unplanned lesson results in an inefficient lesson.

Morris believed that the negative ratings of her performance by Curtis were a form of criticism, and they offered her no constructive advice. Morris requested help from Curtis who responded by making informal "drop-ins" and gave her "tips." Morris conceded that the attendance book had not been updated on the day she was observed by Curtis. However, Morris explained that during the first three weeks of school, she was assigned to three different classes. Therefore, she had no time to evaluate or test the students. Furthermore, she did not keep a roll book because her class schedule had changed each week. She did, however, keep a list of the children's names on a separate piece of paper. Curtis found this method of record keeping unacceptable.

On the day she was observed by Curtis, Morris planned to teach a lesson on locomotives skills. The skill allowed the children to jump from heights. At the hearing, Morris demonstrated a leaping motion similar to frogs leaping.

Morris filed exceptions to Harmon's evaluation, (J-23) Morris noted that the classroom teachers are required to escort the pupils to and from physical education. Therefore, Morris waited for her class to arrive in the courtyard where lesson was scheduled. Harmon observed a class that included "Special education students." Morris disputed Harmon's observation that she was just sitting in yard waiting for her class. Morris claimed that while she was sitting on her chair, she was "taking attendance of the special education students who were in the courtyard when I arrived, however, they were not visible to Mrs. Harmon, because there were no spots to assign them on outside, so they stood up against the gate." (J-23) Morris conceded that she "did not immediately make an effort to find out where the students were," but she eventually sent another student to the school basement to see if the class was there. Ibid. Morris attributed the delay in the start of her lesson to the classroom teacher's failure to escort the students to the courtyard. Morris also claimed that she conducted the class for thirty minutes.

Morris conceded she did not have a lesson plan on February 7, 1994, the day she was observed by Meluso, because they had just come back from a snow day. She candidly admitted that she did not know everything and asked for technical assistance in areas where she was deficient.

Based on the careful review of the record, I CONCLUDE that the District had reasonable basis for its action to withhold Morris's employment and adjustment increments.

I further CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet her burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that the District's action was unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious.

It is hereby ORDERED that the District's determination to withhold petitioner's increment for school year 1994-95 for unsatisfactory performance is AFFIRMED and the petition of appeal be DISMISSED.

MARY ROBINSON

District Mathematics Supervisor Michael DiGenova's major concern was the students' misbehavior in Robinson's class and how this hampered learning. He described the class he observed . During the this class, Robinson appeared to be very frustrated, raised her voice, became louder and talked over students' voices. The sequence of the lesson was procedurally deficient and Robinson had problems keeping the students on task. DiGenova believed that Robinson should have found effective techniques for dealing with the discipline problems. For example, she should have contacted the parent, talked to the student and if these attempts failed, notify the principal. DiGenova acknowledged that performance ratings included the subjective viewpoints of the evaluators. However, he uses a team approach to evaluate teachers. The procedure includes follow-up evaluations by the building principal.

Dorian Skeete, principal of P.S. No. 39, agreed that the evaluator inherently imputes subjective views to the teacher's performance. Moreover, the evaluator's expectations of the teacher's ability to be effective is based on the evaluator's experience and the experience of the teacher. Skeete could not determine the object of the lesson that she observed because the students continuously disrupted the lesson. When Robinson tried to discipline them they ignored her, showed no interest in the lesson, and continued to talk above Robinson's voice. Some students had private conversations during the lesson and others left their seats and walked around the classroom. Robinson appeared to have no structure or procedure to bring the students on task.

Skeete noted that a disruptive class prohibits the teacher from monitoring and assisting the other children.

Skeete believed that Robinson demonstrated poor organization and planning. The pace of the lesson was too slow for the students and not educationally constructive. Moreover, Robinson did not have her grade book because she left it at home. Skeete also rated Robinson "unsatisfactory" in using effective instructional techniques. Robinson failed to use question and answer techniques to engage students in the learning process. Robinson did not call on the students by name, therefore they responded to questions in chorus. Skeete maintained that students should be called by their name because this discourages calling out and confusion. Indeed, good questions encourages students to think critically and draw conclusions, read between the lines, draw inferences and evaluate what they have read. High levels of comprehension are achieved by silent reading and good questioning. The lesson must then be summarized so that the students understand how conclusions are reached.

Skeete rated Robinson "NI" in affective domain noting that the atmosphere in the classroom did not reflect mutual support between the teacher and students. Expectations to learn and acceptable standards of behavior must be set by the teacher and clearly understood by the students. (J-29)

Mary Robinson, employed by the District for sixteen years, has taught from the first grade through fifth grade. Her class of approximately twenty-two students included several students who were referred to the child study team for evaluation for special education. Robinson acknowledged that student misbehavior was a problem in the classroom. She described the behavior of three students as "outrageous." The children ranged in ages between seven to ten years old; some were on class level and some had been retained. The older children were often frustrated by being with younger children.

Robinson explained the sequence of events on December 2, 1993, the day she was observed by DiGenova. DiGenova came to observe her class after an assembly program. Robinson had decided to review a lesson she previously taught for clarity. She acknowledged that the children may have been bored, but the review was necessary. She also conceded that the math program that she taught was new, and that she was not as familiar with the program as she should have been. She was also unprepared for an evaluation. Although her plan book was up-to-date, her roll book did not have the updated grades because she recorded the children's grades on separate pieces of paper each day and then would insert them in the roll book.

Although Robinson disputed Skeete's conclusions, she acknowledged the discipline problem and claimed to have spent most of her time dealing with it. The children often left their seats without permission. In fact, they would deliberately break their pencil points for an excuse to leave their seats and sharpen them. She had a consultant from the "open court program" visit her classroom approximately three times. On the day that she was evaluated, Robinson asserted that she left her grade book at home because she was recording grades for the marking period. Robinson also conceded that that she was unprepared to be observed by Skeete and she asked her to return at "another time." Robinson believed that Skeete's refusal to reschedule the evaluation was unfair. (J-30). Robinson preferred teaching grades four and five and requested a transfer to P.S. No. 39.

Based on the careful review of the record, I CONCLUDE that the District had reasonable basis for its action to withhold Robinson's employment and adjustment increments.

I further CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet her burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that the District's action was unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious.

It is hereby ORDERED that the District's determination to withhold petitioner's increment for school year 1994-95 for unsatisfactory performance is AFFIRMED and the petition of appeal be DISMISSED.

DOROTHY HOWARD

Cassandra Hansen, assistant principal of P.S. No. 17, found that Howard failed to employ effective strategies for teaching. There was no stated objective, no motivation for learning, no logical development of the lesson, no ongoing assessment of pupil progress and meaningful closure. (J-45) Howard's teaching method was "vague" and she appeared to have limited knowledge of the subject matter.

Hansen observed that the students were disruptive, and she suggested several methods to improve student discipline. For example, Howard should contact the parents, ask the parents to sit in the class with their children, and as a last resort, recommend suspension. Hansen believed that students must learn to follow a code of conduct which has to be set by the teacher and that Howard should have been more assertive in taking charge of the students. She should verbally outline the rules for the students and post the rules. Further, the students should be told the consequences of breaking rules. Hansen acknowledged that Howard did inform the administration of the discipline problem in her classroom, contacted parents and placed other students on detention. Hansen realized that Howard had several disruptive students in her class and she removed five students for behavioral problems. Hansen provided credible and believable testimony about her observation of Howard's performance.

Dorothy Howard took over the class on November 3, 1993, after returning from one and one-half years of administrative leave. Howard testified that the transition from the prior teacher to her assignment to the class was smooth. The class was well behaved for the first ten days; the students were quiet and there were no distractions. Within two weeks after she began teaching, the students became disruptive and began to misbehave. In December 1993, another teacher, Mrs. Lawrence was assigned to mentor Howard and assist her in lesson planning, recordkeeping, and in other areas that would improve Howard's performance.

Howard explained her approach to teaching. She believed that the students' behavior had previously been the result of some "artificial control" by the former teacher. Howard does not believe in "artificial control." Contrary to Hansen's assertion, Howard claimed that she took steps to discipline her students. For example, she implemented after school detention and used a community aide. Howard's request to implement early morning detention was denied. Howard also maintained that Hansen denied her request for aid. Howard acknowledged that five students were transferred from her class, but not all for disciplinary reasons. Two students were doing well, one student was transferred at the parent's request and two students were removed for misbehaving. Howard also claimed that each student had a copy of the class rules. She maintained that the rules were posted on the wall, but they fell down. Howard maintained that she implemented various discipline strategies like requiring students to write paragraphs on conduct

Howard further explained why she was late issuing report cards. She had to evaluate the students' progress and include their attendance. Howard described her class as difficult. Some students were "resource class students" and needed special attention, others had "deep" social problems and some had academic problems. She was satisfied, however, that they were learning and showed achievement.

Based on the careful review of the record, I CONCLUDE that the District had reasonable basis for its action to withhold Howard's employment and adjustment increments.

I further CONCLUDE that Howard has failed to meet her burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that the District's action was unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious.

It is hereby ORDERED that the District's determination to withhold petitioner's increment for school year 1994-95 for unsatisfactory performance is AFFIRMED and the petition of appeal be DISMISSED.

BETTE JOHNSON

Noonan candidly testified that evaluators use different perspectives including the subjective criteria to observe a teacher's performance. Nevertheless, different styles of teaching must meet the criteria for successful learning. Noonan explained that a national standard for teaching involves hands on experience. Noonan observed Johnson's instruction on the letter "L." Johnson should have used pictures of the letter "L" and "L" words. Moreover, Johnson did not have the materials ready for the lesson and she did not instruct the students about the objectives of the lesson. Johnson ignored these standards and was unprepared to begin the lesson. This resulted in too much waiting time. Omiting the "visual" and "touch" learning was another departure from acceptable teaching methods. Noonan noted that Johnson was responsive to the needs of the children and displayed a "very warm and gentle tone throughout the lesson." (J-51)

Fernandez had many discussions and made informal observations of Johnson. Therefore, he expected to see planned activities, students on tasks and an orderly class. Instead, he saw disorganization, no discipline, no clear rules of behavior and no use of teacher aides. Fernandez observed no improvements from his prior informal observations. Principal Mark Haynes considered the informal and formal evaluations conducted by Noonan and Fernandez before recommending that Johnson's increment be withheld for the 1994-95 school year based on unsatisfactory ratings. (J-54).

Johnson did not recall much about Hayes's visit to her classroom in January. However, she remembered the observation conducted on February 7, 1994. She recalled that the students were distracted and the aides sat on the side "as normal." Johnson agreed that the two aides should have assisted her, but they did not. She described the relationship between herself and the two aides as a "conflict of interest." She described their demeanor as having an "attitude." Johnson believed that the aides had agreed between themselves that they would not to help her. Thus, they did as they pleased. She also believed that their failure to help hindered her job performance. Johnson tried but was not able to work out their differences.

Johnson stated that she tries to keep the children on task by maintaining eye contact with them, but she was not successful. She directed children who were playing around the cabinet area without permission to return to their seats. Johnson attributed the class behavior, in large part, to the diverse background of her students . She described the class as the most usual class she has taught in twenty years. She believed that some students should have been classified for special education and others referred to outside counseling. Johnson also mainted that the five to eight basic skills students had a negative impact on her class. She used various techniques to discipline the children. For example; she contacted the parents, spoke to the students outside the classroom and sent them to the corner for "time out" when they misbehaved. Johnson appreciated Noonan's assistance. She believed the children's behavior improved after Noonan intercession. Johnson disputed, however, Noonan's assertion that she failed to use pictures to demonstrate the letter "L."

Based on the careful review of the record, I CONCLUDE that the District had reasonable basis for its action to withhold Johnson's employment and adjustment increments.

I further CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet her burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that the District's action was unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious.

It is hereby ORDERED that the District's determination to withhold petitioner's increment for school year 1994-95 for unsatisfactory performance is AFFIRMED and the petition of appeal be DISMISSED.

ANITRA MARTIN

Based on his observation of the lesson on January 28, 1994, Messano concluded that Martin failed to use a variety of teaching techniques. She did not involve the students in cooperative learning which requires more discussion among the children and relating the subject matter to everyday experience. Instead, the lesson was teacher oriented and did not encourage critical thinking or develop comprehension skills. Additionally, Messano described the classroom as "sterile and unorganized." (J-60) The students' work was not displayed; there were no visual aids "depicting the lessons or skills" being taught. Ibid. Messano concluded that the unorganized and uninviting learning center was indicative of "lack of structure, organization and learning." Ibid.

Noonan observed a class where Martin was reading the story about Jesse Owens which Noonan believed was more appropriate for grade six and seven, not kindergarten. The story was above the maturity level of the students, it was too long, and it was not aligned to the curriculum.

Noonan saw that Martin maintained anecdotal records on each child's progress but did not have them available for Noonan's review. Noonan also found Martin's plan book incomplete and inconsistent with the classroom activities. The children were not engaged in any meaningful educational activities during the time she observed the class. Noonan observed Martin informally three or four times prior to this evaluation; she saw no improvement in Martin's ability to manage the class.

Martin conceded that there were some behavioral problems in the class, but she attributed this to the lack of classroom materials. The assigned classroom lacked many materials and supplies used for kindergarten. Many of the parents complained about the lack of materials. Thus, Martin purchased some equipment and used her bulletin board for the class. Martin disputed Noonan's account of students' misbehavior. With regard to the incident that occurred on December 20, 1993, Martin explained that her teacher's aide was scheduled report to her class at 11:00 a.m., but did not show up. At 11:45, Martin escorted her class to the cafeteria. She saw several teachers and aides in the lunch room. Martin seated the students and then left to keep an appointment outside of the building. Martin asserts that, "she had no idea that her children would be unsupervised." Petitioner's Brief at 31. Martin did not display the students' work around the room because one student would destroy the display. She also explained that she could not display the their work above the students' reach because it would block the sensor to the burglar alarm.

Based on the careful review of the record, I CONCLUDE that the District had reasonable basis for its action to withhold Martin's employment and adjustment increments.

I further CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet her burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that the District's action was unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious.

It is hereby ORDERED that the District's determination to withhold petitioner's increment for school year 1994-95 for unsatisfactory performance is AFFIRMED and the petition of appeal be DISMISSED.

SATYA DAS

Stokes acknowledged that Das demonstrated proficiency in the subject matter and presented the math problems "in a logical and sequential manner." (J-67) She believed, however, that Das could improve his communication with the students and suggested that he "rephrase" his lecture. She also believed that Das did not allow enough time to assess the needs of the students, presented the material in a hurried fashion, spent too much time disciplining the students rather than teaching, and attempted to actively involve the students "from bell to bell." Ibid. She suggested that "rather than give the students a 'Do Now' with six examples, reduce the number." (J-67) Stokes described the classroom as an undisciplined learning environment and attributed several weaknesses to Das poor teaching performance, e.g., poor management of time, lack of student discipline, lack of effective communication with students, and poor rapport with students. Stokes conceded that although Das addressed the discipline problem, it appeared as if he "begged" and "cajoled" the students to "be good." However, the students did not respond. Thus, Stokes concluded that Das was not able to successfully discipline the pupils. Stokes also criticized Das because he did no teach the students an alternate method to solve math problems.

DeRosa has held the position of math supervisor in the District for ten years. Her duties include supervising the teachers and she is the District Supervisor for Basic Skills. Contrary to Stokes opinion that Das reduce "Do Now" practice math problems to less than six problems, DeRosa believed that Das gave the students too few "Do Now" examples and that he spent too much time reviewing easy problems. Consequently, Das's students completed the practice math problems in a short period of time and then had free time to do nothing. Thus, DeRosa believed that Das should have increased the "Do Now" math problems to ten practice math problems. DeRosa also believed that Das's instruction technique was too teacher oriented.

Cooper reviewed the Instructional Observation Report (J-67), completed by Stokes. Cooper was concerned with Das' quality of instruction and discipline. He consulted with Stokes and Ferro and then he recommended that Das's increment be withheld. At the hearing, Cooper candidly disclosed that he was alarmed that Das received four unsatisfactory ratings from Stokes. Moreover, he believed that it was "highly unusual" to receive four out of five "U's" unless the teacher could not teach. Cooper conceded the wide disparity between the evaluations conducted by DeRosa and those conducted by Stokes and Ferro. Although he claimed that he saw no marked improvement in the three evaluations, he conceded, however, that there was a marked improvement in the evaluation conducted by DeRosa. However, he did not consider DeRosa's report in recommending to withhold Das' salary increment on March 30, 1994.

Das acknowledged the poor student behavior in his class but disputed that his class was out of control. When students misbehaved Das called parents, sent letters home and issued detention. Das also conceded that he used one method to solve a math problem rather than teach alternative solutions. In order to avoid confusing the students he used one consistent method, rather than different terms, to resolve math problems. Das believed in the success of his teaching method because 43% of his students passed the HSPT test compared to the 26% to 30 % of the student body.

Consequently, petitioner Das urges that this tribunal note the evaluation conducted after the decision had been made to withhold his increment. Petitioner believes that action following the principal's notice about withholding an increment was relevant "since the evaluation by [Anita] DeRosa was a marked improvement." Petitioner's Brief, June 15, 1995, at 4-5. I agree. DeRosa rated Das' performance "S" in three ares and "NI" in two areas. (J-68). Petitioner correctly notes that Cooper was "stunned by the evaluation." Petitioner's Brief, June 15, 1995, at 5. However, Cooper did not consider DeRosa's evaluation. Although student misbehavior was apparent, the evidence supports petitioner's claim that the students mastered the subject on adding polynomials. Indeed, over eighty percent of the class passed the test. Furthermore, the District did not refute that 43% of his class passed the HSPT test compared to the 26% to 30% of the student body.

Considering the disparate evaluations of Das, Cooper's candid response to the disparity, and the students' test scores which demonstrated that the majority of students in the class were learning from Das, I CONCLUDE that the underlying facts do not support the District's action to withhold Das's increment.

I further CONCLUDE that petitioner has met his of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that the District's action was unreasonable.

It is hereby ORDERED that the District's determination to withhold petitioner's increment for school year 1994-95 for unsatisfactory performance is REVERSED and the requested relief of petitioner be GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONERS,	:	DECISION
V.	:
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioners[1] and the District, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioners initially set forth objections pertaining to the evaluation procedures established by the District, and to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) discussion of these procedures in the initial decision. Here, petitioners first assert the ALJ did not address the issue of the District's failure to abide by N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3. (Petitioners' Exceptions at p. 2) Rather, petitioners contend, the ALJ "cavalierly determined" that the District's evaluation procedure met administrative code requirements. (Id.) Yet, petitioners maintain that the District's policy is deficient in this regard.

[1] Exceptions were filed on behalf of Petitioners Bourelos, Martin, Howard, Johnson, Morris, Powell, Robinson and Korenstein. (Petitioners' Exceptions at p. 1) On March 9, 1995, the ALJ granted respondent's motion to dismiss the petition of Petitioner Catlin for failure to appear at the scheduled hearing. (Initial Decision at p. 2., n.1) On March 9, 1994, counsel for petitioners informed the ALJ that Petitioner Moraney withdrew her petition. (Id. at n. 2) The petition of John Portee has been transferred to the consolidated cases of OAL Docket Numbers EDU 8491-94 and EDU 8490-94. (Id. at n. 3)

Petitioners next aver that the ALJ failed to realize that the District has not established standards by which either the evaluator or the teaching staff member can be evaluated. (Id. at p. 4) Thus, petitioners reason, "the basis upon which the teachers in question were denied their increments greatly varies." (Id.) The lack of standards, petitioners continue, is particularly evident in the cases of Petitioners Das and Korenstein. Petitioners illustrate,

> Mr. Das was the only petitioner who succeeded in having the District's determination reversed by the ALJ. Mr. Das received one "S" and for [sic] "U's" on his initial evaluation (J-67). Thereafter, he was evaluated on March 29, 1994 and he was scored with three "U's", one "N.I." and one "S" (R-7). His final evaluation, (J-68), scored three "S's" and two "N.I.'s." Here, the improvement, as reflected in Das' final evaluation was not so great as the improvement received by Korenstein . However the ALJ using no discernible standard at all determined that the district acted wrongfully in denying his increment. (Id. at pp. 4, 5)

Lastly as to procedural violations, petitioners maintain that the ALJ failed to recognize that the District did not abide by their due process protections. Here, petitioners essentially recast their argument as presented to the ALJ in their post-hearing brief. Accordingly, the argument is not herein summarized.

Petitioners next take exception to the treatment of their individual cases by the ALJ. In so doing, significant portions of their arguments are as presented before the ALJ. To the extent the arguments are supplemented or amplified, they are reviewed below.

Petitioner Bourelos asserts that the ALJ failed to properly weigh the evidence before her, and argues that it is "patently unfair" for the District to "change the rules" without advising him of the changes, then to determine his instruction was deficient when he merely

"continued to do things as he always did them." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 7) Petitioner Johnson similarly claims that the ALJ improperly weighed the evidence before her. (Id. at pp. 12, 13)

Petitioner Korenstein contends that the ALJ failed to appreciate the marked improvement between the two evaluations conducted and, thus, concludes that the evaluations were used for punitive purposes, rather than as an instructional tool. (Id. at p. 8)

Petitioner Powell argues that "the ALJ erred in allowing the district to make a farce of the evaluation procedure," in that the administration's decision to deny Powell her salary increment was based on a single evaluation conducted on February 3, 1994. Powell continues,

> As the ALJ pointed out [on] page 4 of her opinion, in her Findings of Fact, the procedure in the district requires that the District Supervisor observe the teacher after he or she has received an unsatisfactory rating. Thereafter, on March 22, 1994 she was evaluated again . There is no question but that Onnembo's evaluation was worse than Meluso's; but that is of no consequence in light of the fact that Meluso determined, prior to Onnembo's evaluation, that he would recommend denial of her increment. (Id. at p. 9)

Petitioner Morris similarly warrants that "the ALJ failed to recognize that the evaluation process was perverted by the district." (Id. at pp. 9,10)

Petitioner Robinson also alleges that the ALJ failed to recognize that the District was using its evaluation process to discipline its personnel rather than to promote effective instruction. (Id. at p. 9) Robinson further illustrates the subjective nature of the evaluation procedure by indicating that when Mr. DeGenova evaluated her, he observed, "Mrs. Robinson has a very professional attitude and maintains a good rapport with her students." (Id. at p. 11) However, when Ms. Skeete evaluated Robinson, she noted, inter alia, "The atmosphere in the classroom does not reflect a climate of mutual respect between Ms. Robinson and her students." (Id.)

Petitioner Howard affirms that the District violated its own policy in that it made the decision to withhold her increment based on a single evaluation. (Id. at pp. 11, 12) Howard contends, "[t]he fact that she received an unfavorable evaluation and there was no follow up flies in the face of the policy of the district as espoused in the Bourelos case and set forth by the ALJ at page 4 of her opinion." (Id. at p. 12)

Petitioner Martin attests that the ALJ failed to take into consideration that her room was not properly equipped when she received unsatisfactory evaluations. (Id. at p. 13) Her argument in this respect is a reiteration of that which is embodied in the post-hearing brief.

The District's exceptions contend that the ALJ erred in reversing its decision to withhold the salary increment of Petitioner Das. Here, the District asserts that the ALJ applied the incorrect legal standard in evaluating the decision to withhold Das' increment. (District's Exceptions at p. 1) Citing Kopera, supra, the ALJ stated that the Commissioner must determine,

> (1) whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluation claimed, and (2) whether it was reasonable for them to conclude as they did upon those facts, bearing in mind they were experts. (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 1, citing Initial Decision at p. 24)

Rather, the District argues, the Kopera standard requires the Commissioner to determine "whether it was unreasonable for the evaluators to reach the stated conclusion." (emphasis in text) (Id.)

With respect to Petitioner Das, the District further argues that the ALJ failed to credit testimony and evidence showing that Das failed to achieve a satisfactory performance evaluation during the 1993-94 school year. (Id. at p. 2) The District recounts that Das received three evaluations during the 1993-94 school year:

> In the first, on February 17, 1994, petitioner received four Unsatisfactory ratings. In the second, on March 29, 1994, petitioner received three Unsatisfactory ratings and one Needs Improvement. In the third, on May 10, 1994, petitioner received two Needs Improvement ratings. All three evaluations demonstrated that petitioner failed to achieve and sustain a satisfactory level of teaching performance throughout the 1993-1994 school year. Therefore, it could not have been "unreasonable" for the district to determine that petitioner's increment should be withheld. (Id.)

The District contends that the ALJ improperly substituted her judgment for that of the District's evaluators. Moreover, the District underscores that the decision to withhold Das' increment was made on March 30, 1994, at the time his performance was severely deficient.

Finally, the District asserts that the ALJ erroneously credited unsubstantiated statistical testimony offered by Das. (Id.) Specifically, the District attests that Das failed to substantiate with appropriate documentation his claim as to the percentage of students in his class who pass the HSPT, as contrasted with the student body as a whole. Here, the District underscores Petitioner Das' burden of proof, stating the District "was not required to 'refute' petitioner's data, as further erroneously stated by the Administrative Law Judge." (Id.)

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner initially concurs with the ALJ's determination that the State District Superintendent has the statutory authority to withhold increments consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. (Initial Decision at p. 20) The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ that the District's evaluation procedures used for petitioners were reasonable. (Id. at p. 21) That petitioners contend such procedures are not in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.5 is not necessary to reach herein.[2]

As to the specific objections raised by petitioners[3], the Commissioner finds such objections unpersuasive, and determines that the ALJ properly upheld the District's decisions to withhold their salary increments. With respect to Petitioner Das, the Commissioner notes that, as of the date of the District's decision to deny his salary increment, Das had received two evaluations. In the first evaluation performed on February 17, 1994, Das received four Unsatisfactory ratings and a single rating of Satisfactory in the first category, "Demonstrates proficiency in subject matter." (Id. at pp. 17, 18) In the second evaluation performed on March 29, 1994, Das received three Unsatisfactory ratings, one Needs Improvement rating, and a Satisfactory rating in the same category as the first evaluation. (R-7) Hence, the Commissioner cannot, on the basis of the record before him, find that the District's decision to withhold Das' salary increment was unreasonable.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted in part, and reversed in part as set forth herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[2] Here, the Commissioner notes that petitioners' allegation as to the District's noncompliance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3 et seq. is nowhere contained in their Petition of Appeal and, accordingly, the record contains no counterarguments from the District as to this claim.

[3] As noted above (footnote 1), exceptions were not advanced on behalf of Petitioner Das.

Francis X. Journick, Jr., Esq., for petitioner (Wilentz, Goldman & Spitzer, attorneys)

No appearance by or on behalf of respondent

Record Closed: April 19, 1996 Decided: April 22, 1996

BEFORE KATHRYN A. CLARK, ALJ:

This is the matter of Board of Education, Township of Edison v. Edward Renaud, OAL Docket Number EDU 2697-96. This matter was brought before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) by way of application for emergent relief, under N.J.A.C. 1:61A-12.1, and was transmitted to the OAL on April 10, 1996. Oral argument was heard on April 19, 1996, at the Office of Administrative Law, 9 Quakerbridge Plaza, Hamilton, New Jersey. There was no appearance by respondent, and no contact was made by respondent or anyone purporting to represent him to this Office. After waiting approximately 50 minutes, this application for emergent relief was heard in his absence.

Petitioner (Township of Edison Board of Education, hereinafter "Board") seeks an order directing respondent to submit to psychiatric and physical evaluations, or, in the alternative, to suspend respondent without pay, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:1-2. At the commencement of the proceedings, petitioner withdrew its request in the alternative, i.e., its request to suspend respondent without pay. The matter proceeded solely on the issue of whether respondent should be ordered to submit to a psychiatric evaluation and a physical evaluation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2.

Counsel for petitioner stated that respondent is a tenured teacher, who teaches shop classes in high school. Counsel for petitioner further stated that the Board adopted a resolution on January 25, 1996, finding that respondent has shown evidence of deviation from normal, physical and mental health, and directed the Board's superintendent of schools to require respondent to undergo physical and psychiatric evaluations. Further, counsel for petitioner stated that the superintendent of schools sent a letter dated January 31, 1996 to respondent directing respondent to undergo physical and psychiatric evaluations by doctors retained by the Board. The names, addresses and telephone numbers of the doctors appeared in the letter of January 31, 1996. To date, respondent has not complied with the January 25, 1996 order of the Board, or the January 31, 1996 letter of the superintendent. Neither respondent's January 23, 1996 letter to the Board, nor his April 3, 1996 letter to Joseph Jankowski, Esq., indicate any intention on respondent's part of complying with Board' direction to undergo physical and psychiatric evaluations.

Respondent has not been at work since November 30, 1995, and has been suspended with pay since February 5, 1996.

The granting of emergent relief is an extraordinary remedy which can only be awarded based upon a showing that irreparable harm will result if it is not granted, and a further showing that there is a likelihood of success on the merits. See, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6.

The expanded criteria for determination of an application for emergent relief have been set forth in Crowe v. Degioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-34 (1982). Four standards are articulated:

1. The relief should not be granted unless it is necessary to prevent irreparable harm.

2. Such relief should not be granted when the legal rights underlying the claim are unsettled.

3. In order to prevail on an application for temporary relief, a party must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits.

4. The relative hardship of the parties in granting or denying the relief sought should be considered.

Irreparable injury has been defined as "substantial injury to a material degree coupled with the inadequacy of money damages." Judice's Sunshine Pontiac, Inc. v. General Motors, Inc., 418 F. Supp. 1212 (D. N.J. 1976); John Tully v. Mott Supermarkets, Inc., 337 418 F. Supp. 834 (D. N.J. 1972). I FIND that money damages will not now address petitioner's concerns in this matter. I further FIND that the Board is continuing to pay respondent with funds that cannot be recovered should respondent be later deemed unfit or unable to continue his employment. Additionally, I further FIND that there has been a showing of "substantial injury to a material degree" by respondent's failure to comply with the January 25, 1996 resolution of the Board, or the January 31, 1996 letter of the superintendent, both of which directed respondent to submit to a physical evaluation and to a psychiatric evaluation.

The legal rights underlying the claim are not unsettled. Rather, they are very clear. I FIND that the Board has the right to require a physical evaluation and a psychiatric evaluation, if it finds that an employee has shown evidence of deviation from normal, physical or mental health. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2. The supertinendent had the obligation to comply with the direction of the Board, and to direct respondent to submit to a physical evaluation and to a psychiatric evaluation.

Thirdly, the petitioner must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits. As the petitioner is merely asking for an order directing respondent to comply with a direction the Board had the right to issue under law, i.e., under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2, I FIND that there is more than a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits.

Lastly, balancing the harms to be suffered by the parties, I FIND that the harm to the respondent is negligible - he will be required to undergo a physical evaluation and a psychiatric evaluation. The harm to be suffered by the Board should their request be denied could be extreme, beyond even the monetary consequences of continuing to pay an employee who may not be fit or able to work.

In sum, I FIND the request of the Board to be appropriate, justifiable and reasonable. Consequently, I ORDER that petitioners' request for relief should be GRANTED, and that respondent be ORDERED to submit to a physical evaluation and to a psychological evaluation. Further, I ORDER that the Board schedule appointments for a physical evaluation and a psychiatric evaluation for respondent with a medical doctor and a psychiatrist of the Board's choosing, during the medical doctor's and the psychiatrist's regular office hours. I further ORDER that the Board advise respondent in advance, by telephone (if possible), and by certified and regular mail, of these scheduled appointments. Should these scheduled appointments be inconvenient for respondent, respondent may contact the Board prior to the date scheduled for the appointment, and the Board is to reschedule the complained-of appointment at a time convenient to respondent (and to the doctor), and to advise respondent accordingly. Should respondent not be satisfied with the either the medical doctor or the psychiatrist chosen for the evaluations, the respondent may contact the Board and provide the name of a medical doctor, or of a psychiatrist, suitable to respondent. If suitable and appropriate, the Board will make the necessary arrangements and advise respondent. Counsel for the Board has advised this tribunal that, should respondent choose another medical doctor or a psychiatrist, the Board will pay for the examination to be conducted.

This is an order on emegent relief only. Any findings by the undersigned are made only to the extent necessary in order to decide the temporary relief. The underdersigned will retain juridiction of the underlying case unless otherwise directed by the Commisssioner of the Department of Education.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by THE COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT 0F EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If THE COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT 0F EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter and the Order Granting Motion for Emergent Relief of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. By letter dated April 25, 1996, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes accorded the parties until close of business on Tuesday, April 30, 1996, to file exceptions to the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), and until close of business on Friday, May 3, 1996, for filing reply exceptions. No exceptions were filed by the parties.[1]

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, including the audio tape of the hearing conducted at OAL on April 19, 1996,[2] the Commissioner agrees with the findings

[1] On May 1, 1996 the within Board filed "exceptions" in support of the ALJ's Order. In that this submission was filed outside the stipulated exception filing period and did not conform to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, it is not herein considered.

[2] It is noted that the within respondent neither attended the hearing in this matter nor did he, or anyone on his behalf, offer any justification for his nonattendance.

and conclusion of the ALJ that the Board's emergent application should be granted for the reasons clearly articulated in the Order.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the ALJ granting emergent relief is adopted as the final decision on motion. Respondent Edward Renaud is hereby directed to submit to physical and psychiatric evaluations, to be scheduled forthwith by the Board, with the cost of such evaluations being borne by the Board. This matter is hereby returned to the OAL for such further proceedings as may be necessary, consistent with the recommendation of the ALJ.

Petitioner, Board member appointed by outgoing mayor, sought to compel Board to seat him and sought declaration that subsequent appointment of another person to the same position by a new mayor was invalid.

ALJ determined that petitioner was validly appointed by the outgoing mayor in compliance with the statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-7, wherein the mayor had 30 days to select a qualified person to serve out the unexpired term Thus, the subsequent refusal of the Board to seat petitioner was improper and contrary to law, as was the new mayor's subsequent appointment of another person to fill the seat to which petitioner was entitled. Petitioner's claim to indemnification was denied as the action did not arise out of the performance of his duties as a board member. ALJ ordered the Board to seat petitioner as a member for the remainder of the term that began on May 16, 1995.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own and ordered petitioner seated as of May 16, 1995, and the subsequent appointment of any other individual null and void as of the same date.

him. He also seeks a declaration that a subsequent appointment of another person to the same position by a new mayor was invalid.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Mr. Cordasco filed his verified petition with the Commissioner of Education on May 24, 1995, and the respondent filed an answer on June 2, 1995. On June 6, 1995 the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was held on October 23, 1995, and a prehearing order was filed, defining the issues to be decided, fixing hearing dates, providing for discovery, and regulating other procedural aspects of the forthcoming hearing.

The hearing, which consisted of oral argument by counsel and testimony taken from two witnesses, was held on December 22, 1995. An itemized list of the documentary exhibits marked in evidence and identification of the two witnesses who testified are attached to this decision as an appendix. The parties filed post-hearing briefs and memoranda, and the record closed on March 8, 1996.

A Joint Stipulation of Facts, with exhibits attached, was filed by counsel at the beginning of the hearing. The stipulated facts, which are not contested, are as follows:

1. Petitioner Francesco Cordasco resides at 6606 Jackson Street, West New York, New Jersey.

2. The Respondent, West New York Board of Education, is a Type I school district whose members are appointed pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-5 et seq.9.

3. The West New York Board of Education consists of five board members, each of whom is appointed by the Mayor of the Town of West New York, the chief executive officer of the town constituting the school district.

4. By correspondence dated April 5, 1995, James P. Verbist, Secretary to the West New York Board of School Estimate advised Mayor Anthony M. DeFino of a trustee vacancy on the West New York Board of Education to occur on May 16, 1995. (Exhibit 1).

5. On April 13, 1995, in accordance with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-8, Mayor DeFino appointed George Rodriguez as trustee to the West New York Board of Education for the term to commence on May 16, 1995 and expire on May 15, 2000. (Exhibit 2).

6. On April 21, 1995 George Rodriguez declined his appointment as trustee to the West New York Board of Education. (Exhibit 3).

7. On April 21[sic], 1995, Mayor DeFino appointed the Petitioner Francesco Cordasco to serve as a trustee of the West New York Board of Education for the term to commence on May 16, 1995 and expire on May 15, 2000. (Exhibit 3).

8. On May 1, 1995 a resolution was adopted by the Commissioners of the Town of West New York noting the appointment of Francesco Cordasco as a trustee of the West New York Board of Education to replace the previous appointee, George Rodriguez. (Exhibit 4).

9. On May 16, 1995 the term of office of Mayor DeFino expired.

10. On May 16, 1995 the Honorable Albio Sires succeeded Anthony DeFino as Mayor and Chief Executive Officer of the Town of West New York.

11. On May 16, 1995 Mayor Sires appointed Ricky Solares to succeed Mr. Rodriguez as a trustee to the Board of Education.

12. On May 16, 1995, the West New York Board of Education refused to permit petitioner to assume his appointed office as trustee of the West New York Board of Education and permitted Mr. Sires [sic] appointee to assume that appointed position.

ARGUMENT OF COUNSEL AND TESTIMONY

The petitioner claims that he was validly appointed on April 28, 1995, by Mayor DeFino (whose term expired on May 16, 1995) to fill the vacancy created when the prior appointee, George Rodriguez, declined his appointment. The petitioner was appointed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-7.

The respondent alleges that the appointment of George Rodriguez on April 13, 1995, was void from its inception because he was not qualified to be a Board member. The qualifications are set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-1, which requires that each member of a board of education shall be able to read and write. Although not mentioned in the statute, respondent argues that the ability to read and write must be interpreted to mean read and write in the English language.

Secondly, respondent alleges that Mayor DeFino, whose term was due to expire on May 16, 1995, was prohibited from making an appointment to the Board because the new Board member's term would commence on May 16, 1995, the same day on which Mayor DeFino's term would expire.

George Rodriguez testified about the circumstances of his appointment by Mayor DeFino on April 13, 1995. Mr. Rodriguez accepted the appointment, and he told that to Mayor DeFino. About a week later he reconsidered. Mr. Rodriguez testified that he hesitated because he does not speak, read or understand English too well. After informing Mayor DeFino about his concerns, on April 21, 1995 Mr. Rodriguez decided to decline the appointment.

The respondent first questioned the validity of the Mr. Rodriguez's residence in West New York at the time of his appointment. However, Mr. Rodriguez testified that he was a resident of West New York at the time and remained a resident until June 1995, when he moved to Guttenberg. Although he had sold his West New York house in June 1994, Mr. Rodriguez continued to reside in that home, paying rent, until he moved in June 1995. Additionally, he was a registered voter in West New York at the time of his appointment. This testimony, relating to his residence, was uncontested.

James P. Verbist, Business Administrator and Secretary of the West New York Board of Education, testified that he never saw an oath of office or written resignation from Mr. Rodriguez resigning his position as a Board member. He thought that any such documentation should have been sent to him for transmittal to the Mayor. Mr. Verbist said that, although he knew of the initial appointment, he first found out, on April 28, that Mr. Rodriguez had resigned. See Exhibit J-2, the written appointment by Mayor DeFino of George Rodriguez. This document, dated April 13, 1995, is addressed to James Verbist, Secretary/Business Administrator.

See also Exhibit J-3, a written appointment of Francesco Cordasco, in place of George Rodriguez, the previous appointee. This document, dated April 28, 1995, was also addressed to James Verbist, Secretary/Business Administrator. Mr. Verbist further testified that he was aware of the fact that Mayor DeFino's term ended on May 16, 1995, that the newly elected mayor's term (Albio Sires) began on May 16, 1995, and that the term of the newly appointed board of education member also began on May 16, 1995.

The petitioner applied for indemnification of his counsel fees and costs, in accordance with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The pertinent statutes relating to appointments to boards of education are as follows:

> N.J.S.A. 18A:12-8. When appointed; Commencement of Terms
>
> In districts, other than those in cities of the first class, the members of the board shall be appointed between April 1, and April 15, and their terms of office shall begin on May 16, next succeeding, and in districts in cities of the first class they shall be appointed during the month of June and their terms of office shall be begin on July 1, next succeeding. [Italics added].
>
> N.J.S.A. 18A:12-7. Boards; Appointments; Vacancies
> The boards of education shall be appointed by the mayor or other chief executive officer of the municipality constituting the district. Any vacancy occurring in the membership of the board shall be reported forthwith by the secretary of the board to the mayor or other chief executive officer of the municipality, who shall within 30 days thereafter appoint a qualified person to fill the vacancy for the unexpired term.

In the instant matter, Mayor DeFino appointed George Rodriguez on April 13, 1995, within the permitted time and otherwise in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-8. See Exhibit J-1, in which Mr. Verbist, Secretary to the Board, notified the mayor of the need to make this appointment, replacing a member whose term was due to expire on May 16, 1995. The newly appointed Board member or trustee would take office on May 16, 1995, in accordance with the statute.

When Mr. Rodriguez unexpectedly resigned on April 21, 1995, that date was beyond the April 15th deadline for appointments in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-8. Instead, the circumstances fit the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-7. A vacancy had occurred, and the mayor had 30 days thereafter to appoint a qualified person. This was done on April 28, 1995. See Exhibit J-3. In addition, the mayor and board of commissioners certified the appointment of Mr. Cordasco in a resolution passed at a meeting on May 1, 1995. See Exhibit J-4. This was followed by a certification by the Secretary of the Board of Education, Mr. Verbist, confirming that Mr. Rodriguez declined to accept his appointment. See Exhibit J-5.

All of the material facts are substantially set forth in the foregoing stipulation of facts of both parties. Several additional FACTS, needed in order to reach the conclusions to follow, are:

George Rodriguez speaks, reads, writes and understands English, albeit not fluently and accented. He answered questions and otherwise testified in English, without assistance, and he was easily understood.

George Rodriguez was a resident of West New York at the time of his appointment by Mayor DeFino and remained a resident until June 1995, when he moved out of the district to Guttenberg.

The Business Administrator and Secretary of the West New York Board of Education, James P. Verbist, performed his assigned duties and was the recipient of the appointments of both George Rodriguez and the petitioner. He was at all times notified of each action taken by Mayor DeFino in making the appointments in accordance with the applicable statutes.

The respondent claims that the initial appointment of George Rodriguez was void for lack of qualification because he was not able to read and write can be disposed of quickly. It was uncontested that Mr. Rodriguez was fully literate in Spanish. However, even if the respondent's argument, that the unexpressed intent of the applicable statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-1, is to require literacy in English is accepted, it nevertheless is CONCLUDED that Mr. Rodriguez is also literate in the English language. This was proved at the hearing, and has been found to be a fact. The respondent cannot, in good conscience, claim that such linguistic ability must comply with a minimum standard or be measured with such clarity and precision that would preclude a person whose ability to communicate in English may be accented or halting.

Despite argument engaged in by the parties dealing with their respective interpretations of related or collateral case law, the clear fact remains that the petitioner's appointment by Mayor DeFino was validly accomplished in strict compliance with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-7. The statute contains no condition or prohibition against being exercised by a lame-duck mayor.

Georgia v. Suruda, 154 N.J. Super. 439, (Law Div. 1977), Bownes v. Meehan, 45 N.J.L. 189 (Sup. Ct. 1883) and Downey v. Board of Education of Jersey City, 74 N.J. Super. 549 (App. Div. 1962) do not deal primarily with the subject at hand. The most extensive of these cases, Georgia v. Suruda, supra, concerns a municipality organized under the Faulkner Act, N.J.S.A. 40:69A-1 to -210, whereas the Town of West New York is a Walsh Act (N.J.S.A. 40:70-1 to 78-5) municipality. The controversy in Suruda revolved around two seemingly contradictory statutes, one of which clearly dealt only with Faulkner Act municipalities. No such contradiction is presented here. A similar problem was considered by the Appellate Division in Downey, which involved an appointment made by a mayor who was a holdover from a previous form of government. Again, that complication is not a part of this case.

In Suruda, an appointment was made by an outgoing mayor on the same day that his successor was to take office. The case at hand is clearly different. Here, Mr. Cordasco was validly appointed by Mayor DeFino in clear compliance with the statute, N.J.S.A. 18A;12-7, on April 28, 1995. The making of the appointment by the mayor is not the same as the date on which the appointee's term is to begin. If respondent's interpretation is to be accepted, a mayor's appointment powers would virtually be removed for a substantial period of time before he or she leaves office, under circumstances where a different person has been elected for the next term. It is CONCLUDED that the statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-7, is not intended to be interpreted in that manner. See Thomas v. McGrath, 145 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1976) (rev'd on other grounds).

It is therefore CONCLUDED that the petitioner's appointment by Mayor DeFino was valid. It necessarily follows that the subsequent refusal of the Board to seat Mr. Cordasco was improper and contrary to law, as was Mayor Sires' subsequent appointment of another person to fill the seat to which Mr. Cordasco was entitled.

As for the petitioner's claim for indemnification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20, that statute does not seem to be applicable to Mr. Cordasco's claim.

> Whenever a civil or criminal action has been or shall be brought against any person for any act or omission arising out of and in the course of the performance of his duties as a member of a board of education, and in the case of a criminal action such action results in final disposition in favor of such person, the board of education shall defray all costs of defending such action, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses, together with costs of appeal, if any, and shall save harmless and protect such person from any financial loss resulting therefrom.
> N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20.

In the case at hand, no civil or criminal action has been brought against the petitioner arising out of and in the course of the performance of his duties as a member of a Board of Education. Instead, Mr. Cordasco himself has brought a civil action against the Board of Education, which refused to install him as a member. He is not defending any action. The petitioner seeks to become a member of the Board of Education, believing that he was unlawfully deprived of such membership. In Suruda, supra, the plaintiff was indemnified because he had been appointed by a lame-duck mayor to fill a vacancy on the Board, and he successfully defended against and withstood a challenge raised by a new mayor who sought to make a different appointment. That action rose out of the performance of the plaintiff's duties as a member of the Board of Education.

The circumstances here do not comport with the statute, which does not provide indemnification for a challenge against a Board of Education by one who seeks to become a member.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED and DECLARED:

That petitioner Francesco Cordasco is the duly appointed member of the West New York Board of Education by virtue of his appointment by Mayor DeFino on April 28, 1995.

That petitioner Francesco Cordasco be immediately inaugurated and seated as a member of the West New York Board of Education for the remainder of the term that began on May 16, 1995.

That the Board of Education of the Town of West New York should cease and desist from interfering with the petitioner's right to be a member of said Board.

That any subsequent appointment of another individual to the seat on the Board of Education to which petitioner is entitled is null and void from and after May 16, 1995.

That the petitioner's claim to indemnification in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20 is denied.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

FRANCESCO CORDASCO,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF WEST NEW YORK, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions and reply exceptions were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Although petitioner submitted on April 30, 1996, a response to the Board's reply exceptions, there is no provision for such a reply in either statute or regulation. Accordingly, this April 30, 1996 submission is not herein considered.

Petitioner excepts to the portion of the initial decision that denies his claim for indemnification of legal costs and expenses relying on N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20, which states,

> Whenever a civil or a criminal action has been or shall be brought against any person for any act or omission arising out of and in the course of the performance of his duties as a member of a board of educationthe board of education shall defray all costs of defending such action, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses, together with costs of appeal, if any, and shall save harmless and protect such person from any financial loss resulting therefrom.

Petitioner avers that

> [t]he undisputed factual record in this case establishes that the Respondent Board of Education refused to permit Petitioner to assume his legal statutory duties as a duly appointed member of the West New York Board of Education . The record also > demonstrates that the Board of Education acted in bad faith in refusing to seat the Petitioner. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 2)

Consequently, petitioner argues that the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) determination is "illogical and inconsistent with the construction of the statute as applied by our courts in Suruda and in Kolbeck, supra(id. at p. 3) and that "Respondent should be held accountable for its refusal to recognize [petitioner's] lawful appointment." (Id. at pp. 5-6) In summation, petitioner requests modification of the ALJ's determination with regard to the issue of legal costs on the ground of equitable estoppel. (Id. at p. 8)

In its reply exceptions, the Board first recasts an argument included in its Summation Brief that government officials are not allowed to make prospective appointments. (Board's Reply Exceptions at pp. 3-7) In that this argument was already considered and dismissed by the ALJ as inapplicable to the instant matter, it is not more fully set forth herein.

The Board next challenges the ALJ's finding that petitioner's predecessor accepted the outgoing mayor's appointment to the Board when, it avers, he declined the appointment on April 21, 1995. (emphasis in text) (Exceptions at p. 7) It argues that,

> [allowing the outgoing mayor] to select a person at random during the selection period, allow the deadline to pass, and then have the potential appointee to decline the appointmentabrogates the entire process by permitting the mayor to extend the time he legislatively is entitled to find someone who would accept the position. (Id.)

The Board concludes that the ALJ erroneously found a vacancy existed and was subsequently filled pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-7, in that there was no vacancy because petitioner's predecessor never accepted nor held a position on the Board. (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 8)

The Board further argues that common law was not abrogated in favor of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-8 and

> [t]herefore, the appointing requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-8 are superseded by the Common Law when the Common Law states that an outgoing official is prohibited from making prospective appointments when said appointments are to commence on or after the outgoing mayor is to leave office. (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 9)

Thus, the Board contends, the Court erred in not considering the legislative history for amending the appointment dates of Board of Education appointees. (Id.)

Lastly, the Board contends that the Court properly found that petitioner is not entitled to indemnification and costs "arising out of and in the course of his duties as a member" of the Board, in that petitioner "never commenced a term of office as trustee of the Board." (Id.)

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ. The ALJ correctly construed the circumstances herein to conclude that a vacancy existed and that petitioner's appointment by the outgoing mayor was validly accomplished in strict compliance with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-7.[1] This statute provides that a vacancy, "shall be reported forthwith by the secretary of the board to the mayor" who then has 30 days to select a qualified person to serve out the unexpired term. In so ruling, the Commissioner agrees that N.J.S.A. 18A:12-7 contains no condition or prohibition against this authority being exercised by a "lame-duck mayor." (Initial Decision at p. 8) See Georgia v. Suruda, supra.[2] To hold otherwise, the Commissioner concurs, would create a situation that could not have been contemplated by statute or case law. As illustrated by the ALJ,

> If respondent's interpretation is to be accepted, a mayor's appointment powers would virtually be removed for a substantial period of time before he or she leaves office, under circumstances where a different person has been elected for the next term. (Initial Decision at p. 8 and Thomas v. McGrath, supra)

Therefore, contrary to the Board's arguments, the Commissioner concurs that petitioner's appointment was not prospective and should not be construed as such.

With regard to legal fees, the Commissioner affirms the ALJ's finding that N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20 indemnifies a board member only in defense of an action brought against him or her. In the case at hand, no civil or criminal action has been brought against petitioner

[1] Although the Board challenges the factual findings that a vacancy existed, the existing record provides no cause to challenge any of the determinations or credibility assessments made by the ALJ nor may the Commissioner properly reject such findings of fact without reviewing those portions of the transcript(s) where such findings were reached. Rowley v. Board of Education of Manalapan-Englishtown, 205 N.J. Super. 65, 75 (App. Div. 1985); In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158 (App. Div. 1987). Additionally, it is the responsibility of those challenging such determinations to provide the Commissioner with such portions of the transcript, Morrison at 158, and no obligation arises for the Commissioner to review them before rendering a final decision regarding the findings and recommendations of the ALJ.

[2] The Commissioner notes that the Suruda case involved the City of Jersey City, a city governed by provisions of the Faulkner Act, unlike the Town of West New York. This distinction, however, does not alter the proposition for which this case is cited.

and, thus, he is not entitled to indemnification for the within challenge. In view of this finding, it is not necessary to address the claim that petitioner never served as a board member.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision and orders:

That Petitioner Francesco Cordasco be immediately inaugurated and seated as a member of the West New York Board of Education for the remainder of the term that began on May 16, 1995;

That the Board of Education of the Town of West New York cease and desist from interfering with petitioner's right to be a member of said Board;

That any subsequent appointment of another individual to the seat on the Board of Education to which petitioner is entitled is null and void as of May 16, 1995; and

That petitioner's claim to indemnification in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20 is denied.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: January 18, 1996 Decided: March 14, 1996

BEFORE MARIE P. SIMONELLI, A.L.J.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on October 18, 1995, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties agreed to settle this matter and set forth the following settlement terms on the record:

1. Petitioner shall pay respondent a sum equal to three (3) months salary in one lump sum gross payment as severance pay. Said payment will be reported on a 1099 form with a copy to be provided to respondent.

2. The payment shall be made on or after April 1, 1996.

3. Respondent's employment contract with petitioner, dated June 22, 1995, for the period July 1, 1995, through June 30, 1996, is terminated effective September 10, 1995.

4. James Campbell, Superintendent of Schools of the Borough of Little Ferry shall provide respondent with a letter of recommendation from him concerning his positive interpersonal relationship with respondent.

5. The parties further agree that this settlement shall serve as a mutual release for any and all claims relating to or arising out of respondent's employment contracts with petitioner.

After being placed under oath, respondent stated that he fully understood and consented to all of the terms and conditions of the settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of the settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement on the record.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this settlement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL :

SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

SCHOOL DISTRICT OF TEANECK, : DECISION

BERGEN COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, defeated candidates for school membership, alleged there were improprieties and violations of law in the conduct of the school election. Petitioners claimed the Board's public relations director improperly asked for preferential treatment for a certain candidate by asking for and receiving a 20% discount for advertising in a publication which has since ceased to publish.

ALJ concluded that petitioners had not met their burden of establishing a violation of school election laws. Further, petitioners acknowledged that they were unable to show that any item which they brought out was sufficient to show that the will of the people was thwarted and would have changed the outcome of the election. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

Record Closed: December 26,1995 Decided: March 25, 1996*

BEFORE: MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

This case comes by way of a petition originally incorrectly filed in April 1995. Subsequently a second petition was properly filed on June 6, 1995 with the Commissioner of the Department of Education and stamped and dated June 6, 1995.

The matter was scheduled for a hearing on November 29, 1995 at the Bergen County Courthouse, Hackensack, NJ. At the conclusion of the testimony the hearing record remained open until December 26, 1995 at the request of both sides to submit memoranda of law as well as a transcript of March 29, 1995 of remarks of Dr. Morris in lieu of his live testimony (C-1). As a result the Initial Decision would have been due on February 9, 1996. An Order of extension was granted for good cause due to the undersigned's heavy caseload as well as the undersigned's Jury Duty obligation. The Order extended the time to file the Initial Decision until Monday, March 25, 1996.*

The original matter had been filed by petitioner Marvin Markman by way of an undated letter expressing complaints regarding the conduct of Judith Distler, a public relations Director for the Teaneck Board of Education. After ultimately being forwarded to the Commissioner of Education and the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, the matter was then transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 on September 8, 1995.

FACTS

This matter arises out of a complaint filed with the Commissioner of Education by Marvin Markman (Markman) and joined by Beverly Lefkowitz (Lefkowitz) by way of an undated letter. The letter is entitled "Complaint against Judith Distler". This letter alleges that the actions of Judith Distler (Distler) as public relations director for the Teaneck Board of Education were improper in that Distler asked for preferential treatment for a certain candidate in the school board election. The alleged preferential treatment was in the form of allegedly asking for and receiving a 20% discount for advertising in a publication called the "Consumer Advocate" which has since ceased to publish.

It must be noted at the outset that the petitioners conceed that, while they feel that certain improprieties occurred, they have no indication nor are they able to show that the actions complained of thwarted the will of the people or changed the outcome of the election.

Paul Cohen testified that he was the editor of the "Consumer Advocate" and was also the owner. This was a publication which was mailed to the population of Teaneck. Prior to the School Board election Mr. Cohen contacted Judy Distler with whose assistant he had previously dealt regarding advertisements for the Community School. He was attempting to generate advertising for his publication which was experiencing financial difficulty. A 20% discount was arranged for candidates for the school board election. Mr. Cohen did not know how the candidates were to be informed of the discount.

Cohen stated that he spoke with candidate Markman prior to arranging the discount but recalls that Markman said he would not place an ad because he had no money available for advertising. Cohen stated that candidates got preferable placement based upon when they had placed their order. Ms. Ostroth got half a page located on the second page because she had reserved around the second week of March. He also confirmed that he called Mr. Amdur who placed Ostroth's ad again after he spoke with Judy Distler. The other candidates had been called to generate advertising before his conversation with Ms. Distler.

On March 22, 1995 he received a phone call from Dr. Morris, the District Superintendent, and was asked if Ms. Distler had asked for a discount for only her candidate. He testified that the discount was for all candidates and not specifically for a candidate supported by Ms. Distler.

Mr. Cohen explained that his publication has ceased to exist due to financial reasons as a result he was hopeful for all advertising to keep the paper going. For that election he did receive an ad placed by Mr. Amdur on behalf of Ms. Ostroth and also as ad for Tasha Morton. He was unable to recall where the ad from Tasha Morton was generated. The magazine was published monthly and came out in the beginning of March and April. While there would ordinarily have been a deadline for the taking of ads, the financial situation was so precarious that it made it such that he would take ads up to "the last minute." The last date to place an ad for the April edition was April 1, 1995. Other than Ostroth and Morton none of the other candidates placed ads. This included Markman and Lefkowitz whom he had originally contacted about purchasing ad space before the discount, as well as his conversation with Markman after the discount had been secured.

During Cohen's first conversation with Markman the candidate stated that he did not have money for advertising. The second conversation on March 21, 1995 with Markman once again did not indicate any intention to place an ad. When Cohen contacted Lefkowitz she left a message on his machine that she was not going to place an ad. Cohen did not recall specifically advising Morton, Wilburn or Houston, other candidates, of the discount.

Judy Distler testified that she is the coordinator of school community relations and is responsible for ads such as those dealing with the budget. She has worked for the Board of Education for 22 years and has occupied this position for 15 or 16 years.

Ms. Distler testified credibly that she contacted two publications to see about a discount for candidates. These were the Consumer Advocate and The Connection. She did not contact The Suburbanite but does think she may have contacted someone at The Standard regarding rates. Ms. Distler acknowledges having made the calls to The Connection and the Consumer Advocate from her office in the Township but does not recall the time. She also did not discuss these call and ads with Dr. Doyle. She was unaware of any responsibility to inform him of these matters. Her only official responsibility was to publicize the election date.

Ms. Distler did not originally discuss a discount with the Connection but she got a call back and a discount was offered.

Ms. Distler stated candidly that she did not intend to inform the candidates of the discount that she had secured for them. She felt she "had done a good deed." It was her impression that the individual candidates would find out when they called to place ads. She did speak with Mr. Amdur because she was aware he was securing advertising through the Consumer Advocate. The witness acknowledges calling The Connection on school time but does not recall if she called Mr. Cohen on school time. None of this was discussed with the board of Education. She did make an announcement in her office prior to the complaint being made. Ms. Distler felt she was doing this as a concerned Teaneck citizen. She states that she does not punch a clock there and sometimes works from 8am until 7pm. As a result her personal calls appear on her phone bill along with those official calls from her office.

Ms. Distler testified that when she made the calls she did not do so on behalf of only one candidate. She did not know how the candidates would become aware of the discount other than by calling the publication. Nothing was set up by which they would all be apprised in the same manner.

Petitioner Markman also testified that he spoke with Mr. Cohen of the Consumer Advocate. During this conversation Cohen stated that Ms. Distler had obtained a 20% discount but that Markman would not be able to receive prime placement since others had reserved first. This was the second conversation Markman had with Cohen and occurred around March 20 or 21, 1995. The first conversation took place several weeks earlier and Markman had indicated that he did not have funds for advertising.

Although Markman attempted to speculate that the discount was for only one candidate, that of Ms. Distler, he produced no supporting evidence of this at the hearing. He also stated at the hearing that he would not have placed an ad, with or without the discount since his funds did not permit it.

The parties also stipulated a transcript which was supplied to the undersigned of the remarks of Dr. Morris at an executive session of the Teaneck Board of Education taking place on March 29,1995. (C-1) His remarks confirmed that he had contacted Mr. Cohen in response to a complaint from Ms. Lefkowitz. He stated that Mr. Cohen confirmed a conversation with Ms. Distler who had called about placing ads for candidates. Cohen confirmed to him that had no time had Distler used her position to obtain such a discount.

Dr. Morris also confirmed that what employees do on their own time regarding the election process was up to them. He also made clear that campaigning on school time should not occur.

Having listened to the evidence, observed the demeanor of the witnesses and having reviewed the exhibits, I FIND the preceding to be the operational facts of this case.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

This matter arises out of a complaint by Lefkowitz and Markman against Distler, not the Board of Education. At no time has any evidence been adduced that the Board of Education has participated in or acted in an improper manner or had anyone do so on their behalf. There is only a speculative view that Ms. Distler acted for a candidate she supported. The proofs in this case do not support that mere speculation.

It is clear from the allegations in the petition that nothing, as a matter of law is alleged to be linked to the school district itself nor someone acting as agent for the Board. The Commissioner of Education specifically is limited to jurisdiction in matters arising under the school laws pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. In this case we are talking about a school election but the actions alleged in the petition are beyond the scope with which either the school district and the board, nor its authorized representatives, have the authority to deal.

Distler obtained an advertising discount for all candidates. She concedes that she never informed them and assumed they would find out when calling the individual publications. This hardly seems the best approach, however, that is not the issue here. Hindsight is always 20/20. If a benefit is obtained for all candidates it would be best if all candidates were simultaneously advised. Nonetheless, no cognizable violation has been proven in this matter.

Additionally, it is clear that the school Board does not condone the use of paid school time for campaigning. No concrete proof that this has occurred was brought forth in this case. While these may be issues for the Board and issues of policy to make school Board elections run more smoothly and evenly they are insufficient as proof to invalidate the election.

Additionally, there is no reference to the statutorily prescribed procedure about which is being complained. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12 the Commissioner of Education shall inquire into alleged violation of statutorily prescribed procedures for school elections. As a result the petition must hereby be dismissed as failing to state a cause of action cognizable in this forum and by the Commissioner of Education. It should be pointed out that even in cases where irregularities are shown it is well established that elections are to be given effect whenever possible and are not to be set aside unless it can be shown that the will of the people was thwarted, was not properly expressed, or could not fully be determined. In the Matter of the Annual School Election held in the Township of Pitsgrove, Salem County, 1976 S.L.D. 585 at 589. Here, even the petitioners acknowledge that they are unable to show that any item which they brought out was sufficient to show that the will of the people was thwarted and would have changed the outcome of the election.

Conclusion

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the proofs in this case do not give rise to a cause of action within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education and that the petition in this case must be dismissed.

Order

It is hereby ORDERED that the petition be and hereby is dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL :
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF TEANECK, : DECISION
BERGEN COUNTY. :

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioners' exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioners' exceptions take issue with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) conclusion that there was no cognizable violation of election procedures in the within matter. They argue that the record and testimony elicited at the hearing clearly belie such a conclusion. Petitioners assert "Ms. Distler admitted to working with and informing only one candidate. The claim that she was attempting to get discounts for all the candidates is a subterfuge." (Petitioners' Exceptions at p. 2) Further, they assert that this individual > us[ed] Board facilities, working for a personal candidate on Board time, and when calling from the Board, on Board time the callers could only assume that she was acting in her capacity as public relations director of the Board. (Id.)

In response, the Board contends that petitioners' exceptions have failed to set forth any basis, other than their mere disagreement with the outcome, which would warrant the reversal of the ALJ's decision in this matter. The Board argues that during the hearing the ALJ

"had the opportunity to review all documentary evidence, as well as listen to the oral testimony of witnesses and to observe the demeanor of those witnesses" and, based on this totality, properly concluded that "no evidence had been adduced 'that the Board of Education has participated in or acted in an improper manner or had anyone do so on their behalf'." (Board's Exceptions at pp. 2, 3, citing Initial Decision at p. 6)

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioners have not met their burden of establishing any violation of the school election laws which thwarted the will of the people or changed the outcome of the election and, therefore, the petition is properly dismissed.*

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the recommended decision of the OAL for the reasons expressed therein and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* It is noted that P.L. 1995, c. 278 repealed N.J.S.A. 18A:14-1 through 104 inclusive, and further states that "For the purposes of this Title, controversies and disputes concerning the conduct of school elections shall not be deemed to arise under the school laws." The Commissioner, therefore, does not find it necessary to reach to the ALJ's conclusion with respect to the appropriate scope of inquiries brought under N.J.S.A. 18A:14-1 et seq.

RESPONDENTS.	:

For Petitioners, Hankin, Sandson and Sandman (Robert S. Sandman, Esq.)

For Respondents, George G. Frino, Esq.

This matter comes before the Commissioner of Education by way of Petition of Appeal with Motion for Emergent Relief, filed on April 29, 1996, by three members of the respondent Atlantic City Board of Education, all of whom are representatives of sending districts appointed to membership on the receiving Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 et seq. Petitioners were seeking a directive compelling the Board to consider, at a meeting to be held that night, their evaluative comments regarding the Superintendent, Board Business Administrator and Board Solicitor in the same manner as are all other Board members' comments. Petitioners' expectation that this would not occur was based on a legal opinion rendered by Board counsel, submitted as part of petitioners' application. However, Petitioners' application was received too late in the day to permit response by the Board or adequate hearing prior to the meeting in question, and the parties were so notified. Thereafter, petitioners sought renewal of their application on grounds that the expected evaluative discussions had not occurred on April 29, 1996 as planned, but were now expected to occur at a meeting to be held on May 14, 1996. Accordingly, the Board was directed to file responsive papers and the matter was set down for summary determination on the application for emergent relief.

In their papers, Petitioners argue that any attempt to prevent their participation in the evaluation of the Superintendent would violate a prior emergent order of the Deputy Commissioner restraining the Board from taking any action on the contract of the Superintendent without the inclusion of Petitioners. In particular, they note the Deputy's directive that > respondent Board must either postpone or include petitioners in, and provide them with pertinent background materials for, any discussions or votes on the superintendent's employment contract held pending issuance of the Commissioner's decision on the merits of this matter. Emphasis added. (Affidavit of Carol J. Callowhill at p. 2)

With respect to all three positions at issue, Petitioners argue that they will be irreparably harmed by the Board's failure to consider their evaluative input, as they will then be unable to make any meaningful contribution to the processes and documents upon which subsequent employment decisions, including contracts, for these positions will be based, and on which, in the cases of Superintendent and Business Administrator, Petitioners contend they are entitled to vote. As to the merits of their appeal, Petitioners essentially reiterate the argument of their prior motion as to the applicability of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 to the position of Superintendent, and contend that this statute is equally applicable to the Business Administrator, who is by law a certificated member of the professional teaching staff. Finally, Petitioners argue that, notwithstanding the related but separate question of their ability to vote on positions covered by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, as full members of the Board they may not be precluded from discussions and deliberations even on positions on which that statute does not give them the authority to vote.

In reply, the Board initially reiterates the argument of its filings on the prior motion that the Commissioner of Education is without jurisdiction to decide this matter, as it fundamentally arises from a facial attack on the controlling statute's improper apportionment of voting power and dilution of protected class membership voting in violation of the U.S. and State Constitutions. The Board also reiterates that its narrower interpretation of the statute as it now exists is fully supported by the legislative history of the enactment, particularly the Governor's veto message, and that administrative Department of Education memoranda interpreting the statute in a broader fashion are both erroneous and of no legal import. Instead, the Board avers that notwithstanding that the Commissioner may not decide the statute's constitutionality, "[his] obligation is to uphold the law in a manner that supports its validity and avoids an unconstitutional application" (Board's Reply Brief at p. 12). Moreover, "Allowing sending districts to vote on matters not strictly based upon the use of facilities or direct receipt of personnel services, would lend great force to the likelihood of a successful constitutional attack." (Board's Reply Brief at p. 13) Finally, the Board argues that it has in all respects complied with the Deputy Commissioner's prior order in that it has indefinitely postponed all discussion of the Superintendent's contract. Thus, Petitioner's cannot meet the standard for grant of injunctive relief and their application must fail.

Pursuant to his authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33, the Commissioner has designated the Deputy Commissioner to hear and decide this emergent matter. Upon consideration of the parties' arguments and the standards for appropriate granting of emergent relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), the Deputy finds that, in light of his prior determination as to the scope, pending full adjudication on the merits, of sending board members' authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, it would be inconsistent to hold that Petitioners may vote on the Superintendent's contract, but then have no concomitant entitlement to participate in the evaluations underlying that action. If Petitioners were to be precluded from such participation, even if it were later granted them prior to any impending contract vote, they would be severely disadvantaged in having been foreclosed from deliberations to that point; alternatively, if it is found on the merits that participation was not envisioned by controlling statute, the Board may discount any prior documents or discussions in making its ultimate contractual determination. A similar situation exists with respect to the School Business Administrator, whose placement under the purview of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 is consistent with the Deputy's understanding of the intended scope of that statute. With respect to the Board Solicitor, however, where no entitlement to vote on the underlying contract has been shown, even for the purposes of an emergent relief application, no directive compelling participation in evaluative discussions will issue.[1]

[1] The Deputy Commissioner notes that the matter underlying this application was brought by Petitioners as a Request for Declaratory Judgment, expressly requesting the Commissioner to construe the provisions of a specific school law, consistent with N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1 et seq. While the Board may raise Constitutional defenses and seek to characterize the underlying matter

Accordingly, petitioners' Motion for Emergent Relief is GRANTED with respect to the positions of Superintendent and School Business Administrator, but DENIED with respect to the position of Board Solicitor. The Atlantic City Board of Education is, therefore, directed to accept and consider Petitioners' evaluative input for the specified positions in the same manner in which it accepts and considers the evaluative input of all other Board members; or alternatively, to refrain, pending resolution of the appeal on the merits, from the conduct of any evaluation of the Superintendent or Business Administrator that does not include Petitioners.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case by the Department of Education on December 13, 1995 with a request for an expedited hearing in light of the fact that the matter involved the question of entitlement to attend the respondent's public schools. See N.J.S.A. 18:38-1 et seq.

An amendment to the original petition subsequently was filed in January 1996 by counsel and an answer to the amended petition was submitted in response.

Hearings were scheduled to commence on March 4, 1996 and to continue until March 6, 1996. However, on the first hearing date counsel conferred with the undersigned administrative law judge and with their respective clients and an agreement tentatively was reached to settle the case.

Thereafter, a stipulation of settlement was submitted to the undersigned, which document is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

I have reviewed the terms and conditions of the proposed settlement as set forth in the stipulation attached hereto and FIND as follows:

1. The parties voluntarily have agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures of counsel which appear on the amended settlement agreement;

2. The settlement as set forth in the amended settlement agreement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with law.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the (title of agency head) does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The matter was opened on January 16, 1996. The petitioner filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education challenging the Board's determination. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. The transmission included a request, treated as a motion, for emergent relief. The motion for emergent relief was argued on January 29, 1996, at the Office of Administrative Law in Trenton.

An order denying emergent relief issued on January 31, 1996. The Commissioner reviewed the order and remanded the matter for a hearing on the merits, particularly evaluation of the petitioner's circumstances under the regulations governing homeless students. The Commissioner also requested further fact finding as to domicile. O.O. was readmitted to the Board's schools pending outcome of this matter.

The matter was rescheduled for March 18, 1996 at the Bound Brook Municipal Court. Notices of hearing were mailed on March 4, 1996. No notice was returned as undelivered or undeliverable. At the appointed time, the Board's counsel and witness appeared. There was no appearance by or for the petitioner.

After waiting for more than thirty minutes, I took limited testimony from the Board's Director of Student Personnel Service. His responsibilities include dealing with and placing homeless pupils.

The witness stated that N.O. met with the Crim Road School principal on March 13, 1996. N.O. informed the principal that she would take residence at 119 [B] Court. The principal advised N.O. that the address N.O. provided was in the attendance area of the Hamilton Elementary School. The principal reviewed N.O.'s options. O.O. could remain at Crim School for the balance of the year with the superintendent's permission. O.O. could begin attendance at Hamilton School.

Later, the parent advised the principal that O.O. would attend the Hamilton School. The principal advised N.O. that she would need documentation. The principal advised N.O. of the need for documentation several times. No documents were forth coming.

On the morning of hearing, March 18, 1996, N.O. attempted to enroll O.O. at the Hamilton School. She presented a lease for premises at 119 [B] Court, Bridgewater. However, the lease is in the name of another person and identifies a total of three persons who will occupy the premises, none of whom is the petitioner, the petitioner's husband or O.O.

The witness also testified that Hamilton School will continue to pursue the matter and will get documentation if possible. It is the Board's intent to keep O.O. in attendance, provided it has sufficient proof that the pupil has, in fact, returned to the district, after decision in this matter.

The present circumstances are these. The case came on for hearing on request for emergent relief on January 29, 1996. On January 31, 1996, an order issued denying the emergent relief based on N.O.'s testimony that the family was moving from place to place every few weeks and that none of the places the family stayed was within the district or within Somerset County.

N.J.A.C. 6:3-8.3(b) provides, "Additionally, a child or youth shall be considered homeless if he or she is: . . . 6. The child of a homeless family which is out of necessity living with relatives or friends; . . . ." It is arguable that this language means living with relatives or friends in a fixed place. Thus, once the "stay put" provisions of the statute were exhausted, a district of responsibility could be determined. That analysis, which might provide useful guidance, will await another day.

The petitioner has failed to appear for a hearing of which she was properly noticed. N.J.S.A. 1:1-14.4 provides that, if, after appropriate notice, neither a party nor a representative appears at any scheduled proceeding, the judge shall hold the matter for one day before taking any action. If the judge does not receive an explanation for the non-appearance within one day, the judge may, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b)(c), direct the Clerk to return the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition. In consideration of the petitioner's pro se status, and pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.6(h), I allowed one week for N.O. to contact the judge. She did not.

Accordingly, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the petition of appeal has been abandoned. I direct the Clerk of the Office of Administrative Law to return the matter to the Department of Education for appropriate disposition.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) for the reasons expressed therein. The Commissioner concurs that the ALJ made a reasonable determination to dismiss this matter pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4 after petitioner failed to appear for a hearing for which she was properly noticed and offered no explanation for such non-appearance. In so ruling, the Commissioner is also mindful that petitioner has not filed exceptions nor offered reasons for her failure to appear following the ALJ's issuance of the initial decision.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision and the within appeal is hereby dismissed.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board sought emergent relief compelling the testing of respondents' son, D.F., for tuberculosis or compelling other suggested schooling alternatives if the parents refuse to do so.

ALJ granted emergent relief finding: 1) considerable harm has occurred as D.F. has been without public or private education for three months; 2) State law plainly calls for application of the Mantoux test in the instance of a child transferring into a school from outside the State without a record that such test occurred within the previous six months; 3) none of the material facts outlined by the Board and supplemented by affidavit have been controverted by respondents; 4) there is reasonable probability that the Board will prevail if the case advances to plenary hearing. ALJ ordered respondents to permit the Board physician to administer the Mantoux test or have their personal physician administer the test. If respondents refuse, the ALJ ordered them to resume D.F.'s education immediately by either placing him in a private or parochial school or the initiation of Board-approved home schooling according to school law. ALJ ordered scheduling of plenary hearing.

Commissioner reversed ALJ's order and denied Board's Motion for Emergent Relief. Commissioner did not agree with the ALJ that irreparable harm had been established in that the Board had not established that D.F. cannot be provided with a thorough and efficient education during the pendency of this matter through normal mechanisms for the provision of education to children precluded from school attendance for medical reasons, i.e., home instruction pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:28-4.5. Further, the Commissioner did not agree that Board would likely succeed on the merits, as this case represents a novel issue of law, application of the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993, which remains to be addressed at plenary hearing. Board was ordered to provide home instruction pending the final determination.

THE EMERGENT MOTION

Petitioner, the Middletown Township Board of Education (Board) asks for emergent relief. It moves for an order to compel the testing of D.F. for tuberculosis, or for an order compelling other suggested schooling alternatives if the parents refuse to do so.

Respondents, D.F. and R.F., the parents of D.F., contest the motion, arguing that federal law prohibits the order for which the Board applies.

Today's order grants the Board's motion.

ANALYSIS

Background:

Respondent parents and their three children moved to the Middletown Township school district from Staten Island, N.Y. at some time prior to the onset of the 1995-96 school year. For that year, they enrolled their two daughters in the seventh and eighth grade of Thompson Middle School. Their son, D.F., was placed in the first grade of Nut Swamp School. The immunization records from the family's private physician requested by the district showed that the two girls had undergone Tuberculin testing on May 3, 1995. D.F., in contrast, had been tested well before this, on May 3, 1994. The timing of the girls' testing satisfied the school requirements for pupils transferring from out of state. The son's did not. His test was more than six months preceding transfer.

After inquiries by the school nurse and later the principal of Nut Swamp School, it became clear that respondents were not going to provide the records of necessary Tuberculin evaluation for D.F., nor would they permit their son to undergo the test imposed on the girls. The test in issue is the Mantoux Tuberculin Test (Mantoux Test), and it is mandated by the State Department of Health in a document entitled "Mantoux Tuberculin Testing in Public Schools Required in 1995-1996." The parents justified their refusal by relying on their religious beliefs. Eventually, after much discussion and some delays to accommodate the parents, the principal excluded the child from the Nut Swamp School on February 8, 1996, for failure to document or to have administered the Mantoux Test.

Since that time the child has not formally been placed in private school, nor have arrangements been made to put home instruction in place. Consequently, D.F. has been without thorough and efficient education, apart from informal efforts by D.F.'s mother. For that reason, the Board now moves in its petition for Mantoux testing, or, in the alternative, those other courses of action discussed below.

Arguments of the Parties:

The Board's argument:

In support of its petition, the Board contends that nothing short of emergent relief can remedy the educational deprivation of D.F. With the parents insisting the Mantoux Test is a prohibited exercise of religion by the government, i.e., imposing the "religion" of medicine, which the parents refuse to allow, D.F. has already been denied almost three months of the schooling required by law for thorough and efficient education. The Board believes these circumstances will not change. Consequently, the Commissioner must impose his authority on the parents, as a matter of law. Part of his authority is found in statutes and rules cited in the Board's brief which support the imposition of the Mantoux test for children transferring into a school from outside the state.

The parents' reply:

Through the mother, R.F., the parents argue that their membership in the religious group known as the "Congregation of Eternal Wisdom" exempts them from the test. They believe federal law, as cited in documents prepared by Minister David J. Dalton, Doctor of Chiropractic, (and now part of this record), interdicts the operation of State law and rules on their son's circumstance, notwithstanding that their two daughters had undergone the Mantoux test. Recalling that she herself had served as a volunteer in the school without being tested, R.F. testified that this arrangement was inconsistent with the Board's avowed fear of contagious disease.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Board seeks emergent relief under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5(b). The standard for application of emergent relief calls for the following considerations:

1. Is the emergency relief necessary to prevent irreparable harm?
2. Is the legal right underlying the petition unsettled in the law?
3. Are all material facts controverted?
4. Is there a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits?

[N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(f); Crowe v. Di Gioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-33 (1982)]

Applying that standard, the Board's motion must be granted, for the following reasons:

First, D.F. is well into his third month without public or private education. The informal efforts referred to by his mother are insufficient to persuade that the home instruction anticipated by law is taking place. This suggests that considerable harm has already occurred, which should be cured at the earliest possible time.

Second, the law is not unsettled on this subject. It plainly calls for application of the Mantoux test in the instance of a child transferring into a school from outside the state without a record that such test occurred within the previous six months. N.J.A.C. 6:29-2.3, implementing N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2 and N.J.S.A. 18A:40-16, as well as the State Department of Health document entitled "Mantoux Tuberculin Testing in Public Schools Required in 1995-1996." Similarly, the law permits exclusion of a child whose parents do not comply with this or similar legal requirements. N.J.S.A. 18A:40-18, N.J.S.A. 26:4-6, N.J.S.A. 18A:35-4.8, Mountain Lakes Bd. of Educ. v. Maas, 56 N.J. Super. 245 (App. Div. 1959). The citations to federal law of Minister Dalton, D.C., do not offset the foregoing.

Third, none of the material facts outlined in the Board's petition and supplemented by the affidavit of Marilyn Cohen, Assistant Superintendent for Pupil/Personnel Services of the Middletown Township Board of Education have been controverted by respondents.

Fourth, in the face of the foregoing, there is a reasonable probability that the Board will succeed on the merits if the case advances to plenary hearing.

ORDER

I ORDER therefore that pending plenary hearing on the full merits of the Board's petition:

1. The parents of D.F. must now (a) permit the Board physician to administer the Mantoux test, or (b) have the Mantoux test administered by their personal physician, as a condition to re-entry to the Nut Swamp School.

2. If the parents choose not to do this, they must resume D.F.'s education immediately, either through placement in a private or parochial school, or through initiation of home-based education as regulated by school law and its implementing rules.

3. Plenary hearing now must be scheduled on the full merits.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
D.F. AND R.F., individually and as guardians of D.F.,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial Order Granting Emergent Relief of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondents' exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with the time schedule established for the filing of such exceptions.

Respondents' exceptions initially recast and reiterate what they contend is the fundamental issue advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in this matter, erroneously left unaddressed by his Order. Essentially, they maintain that because medicine is a "religion" involving false gods and goddesses, the State and the Board are precluded by federal law from requiring the Mantoux test for tuberculosis as a condition for their son's school admission. Respondents argue that under the "Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993," such a requirement is a prohibited exercise of religion by the government, i.e., imposing the "religion of medicine." Respondents maintain that D.F. was "ejected" from school "because we would not except (sic) the State of New Jersey's illegal religion, 'the religion of medicine'." (Respondents' Exceptions at p. 2) Consequently, D.F. has been denied three months of education to which he is constitutionally entitled due to this illegal requirement.

Respondents further assert that the Board has in the past accommodated students who are unable to attend school because of injury or illness and contend that "the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment requires the same accomodation (sic) for [their] child." (Id.) They suggest that the Board should provide a TV line from school and testing by a teacher as an alternative educational method for D.F.

Finally, notwithstanding their assertion that the Board has an affirmative obligation to assure D.M.'s constitutional entitlement to an education through accommodation, respondents dispute the ALJ's finding that the education he is currently receiving from them at home is "insufficient to persuade that the home instruction anticipated by law is taking place." (Respondents' Exceptions at p. 4, quoting the Initial Decision at p. 3) Rather, they aver that D.F.'s teacher and another mother have been giving them his homework and classwork and they have been utilizing these materials to teach D.F. Respondents urge

> The Fact is [we were] following the home policy formally allowed by the school to accomodate (sic) the educational need of homebound students, a common practice. Therefore as already stated and established, the teacher provided the work and the plan/schedule and [we] merely implemented it. Therefore, [the] Judge's representation that D.F.['s] education was inadequate is Clearly a Plain Error and an out an[d] out misrepresentation of the facts. (Respondents' Exceptions at p. 4)

In reply, the Board argues that its exclusion of respondents' minor son, D.F., was "an appropriate exercise of its statutory authority," citing N.J.S.A. 18A:40-18, N.J.S.A. 26:4-6, N.J.S.A. 18A:35-4.8 and Mountain Lakes Board of Education v. Maas, 56 N.J. Super. 245 (App. Div. 1959) as its support for this proposition. (Board's Reply Exceptions at pp. 2-9)

The Board next asserts that, contrary to respondents' apparent position that they are complying with the Compulsory Education Laws by providing D.F. with "home schooling," they are not, in fact, in compliance with such laws in that respondents have "failed to produce any documentary or testimonial evidence which would support [their] contention that [they are] providing [their] minor son D.F. with an equivalent instruction at home and/or that a certain teaching staff member in the District is assisting [them] in the implementation of a home schooling program." (Id. at p. 10)

Moreover, the Board avers that respondents have, through their actions, precluded the Board from "carrying out its obligation to provide D.F. with the public education to which he is constitutionally and statutorily entitled." (Id. at p. 12) While recognizing that the relationship between a child and the school district is mandatory in nature and firmly established, (Jackson v. Hankinson and the Board of Education of New Shrewsbury, 51 N.J. 230, 235 (1968)), the Board maintains that "such a relationship cannot exist where a parent refuses or fails to send a child to school." (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 12) Further elaborating, it asserts

> In other words, attendance by the child is a condition precedent for the existence of this relationship. It therefore follows that, if this condition is not met, the local school district is under no obligation to continue with its efforts to provide a student with a public education and, more importantly, that it should not be held liable for failure to provide the child with a public education. (Id.)

As such, the Board charges that, due to the unreasonable, protracted actions of respondents, D.F. has, for the past three months, remained at home without the benefit of a thorough and efficient education.

The Board next proffers that, notwithstanding respondents' arguments to the contrary, the ALJ properly categorized this matter as a dispute arising under school law. Although respondents allege that in deciding this matter, the ALJ erred in failing to consider relevant federal law, they fail "to set forth any legal analysis which would explain how Federal law impacts upon the instant matter and, furthermore, [fail] to demonstrate how Federal law would pre-empt the State law relied upon by [the] ALJ in reaching his decision." (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 13)

Finally, the Board's reply exceptions review its arguments advanced before the ALJ with respect to its satisfaction of the Crowe standard for the granting of emergent relief in this matter which, it contends, the ALJ rightfully recognized and accepted in granting his Order.*

Upon consideration of the record in this matter, including the audio tape of the proceedings before the ALJ on April 23, 1996, the Commissioner determines to reverse the Order of the ALJ granting the Board's request for emergent relief as he finds that the Board has not met the standards necessary for the granting of such extraordinary relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) for the reasons detailed below.

Initially, the Commissioner does not agree with the ALJ's determination that irreparable harm has been established herein, in that he finds that the Board has not demonstrated that D.F. cannot be provided with a thorough and efficient education during the pendency of this matter through normal mechanisms for the provision of education to children precluded from school attendance for medical reasons, i.e., home instruction pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:28-4.5. Contrary to the Board's exception assertions, while a child may be forestalled from day-to-day

*It is noted that the Board's reply exceptions also raised procedural objections with respect to respondents' exceptions. The Board initially alleges that although respondents were directed to submit their exceptions in this matter no later than noon on Friday, May 3, 1996, the Board was not served with its copy of such exceptions until Monday, May 6. The Commissioner observes that the Board raised such argument with the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes upon its receipt of the exceptions, whereupon it was granted two extensions of time within which to file reply exceptions. As such, it is determined that the Board experienced no undue prejudice from any "delay" in respondents' service of exceptions. The Board also contends that respondents' exceptions "incorporate and refer to a number of factual representations which [they] failed to make during oral argument," in violation of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(c). (Board's Reply Exceptions at pp. 1-2) In this regard, it is not clear what "factual representations" are being referenced. Notwithstanding, the Commissioner's determination in this matter did not rely on any factual representations which were not a part of the record before the ALJ.

school attendance for medical reasons, this does not in itself constitute a termination of the Board's obligation to provide such child a free public education. With respect to likelihood of success on the merits, the Commissioner concludes that the fundamental question as to application of the federal law relied upon by respondents to the within situation represents a novel issue of law which remains to be addressed through plenary proceedings, particularly in view of the fact that the primary law cited, the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993 at Sec. 3(c) Judicial Relief, specifies

> A person whose religious exercise has been burdened in violation of this section may assert that violation as a claim or defense in a judicial proceeding and obtain appropriate relief against a government. ***

Finally, the Commissioner determines that a weighing of the equities in this matter favors respondents in that requiring the Board to provide homebound instruction for D.F. does not impose an extraordinary effort or hardship on the Board. Moreover, in that D.F. is not physically present in the school, the Board's concerns with regard to the safety and well-being of its students and employees due to possible exposure to a communicable disease are not compromised.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the ALJ is reversed and the Board's Motion for Emergent Relief is denied. This matter is hereby returned to the OAL for an expeditious plenary hearing on the merits as contemplated by the ALJ in his Order. Further, the Board is ordered to provide home instruction to minor child, D.F, until such time as the Commissioner's final determination on the merits of this matter has been rendered.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 14, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Kenny & Gross (Robert J. Pruchnik, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondents-Respondents, D.F. and R.F., pro se

This is an appeal by the Board of Education of the Township of Middletown (hereinafter "Board") from the determination of the Commissioner of Education to deny its application for emergent relief.

The underlying controversy between the Board and respondents developed after respondents moved to New Jersey from Staten Island and enrolled their three children in the Middletown School District in September 1995. Review of the immunization records provided by respondent at that time indicated that although the Mantoux Intradermal Tuberculin Test ("Mantoux Test") had been administered to respondents' two oldest children in May 1995, D.F., who was entering the first grade, had not been tested since May 1994. Since the State Department of Health's guidelines required that out-of-state transfer students be tested if the Mantoux Test had not been administered to them within the previous six months, the District attempted to obtain respondents' consent to administer the test. When respondents notified the District that the family's religious beliefs prohibited vaccination or medical testing by the State, they were advised that D.F. would be excluded from school if they did not have him tested by January 22, 1996. That deadline was extended to February 5, 1996, and when respondents had not complied by February 8, D.F. was excluded from school. Since that point, the only education D.F. has received has been provided informally by his mother.

In April 1996, the Board filed a petition with the Commissioner seeking a declaratory judgment that it had acted properly in excluding D.F. from school and that respondents could not claim an exemption from the testing requirement on the basis of their religious principles. The Board also sought a directive from the Commissioner that respondents either permit administration of the Mantoux Test to D.F. or resume his education at a private school or through home schooling. At the same time, the Board filed an application for emergent relief with the Commissioner seeking the same relief as requested in its petition.

The Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") recommended that emergent relief be granted to the Board pending the outcome of a hearing on the merits of its petition to the Commissioner. The Commissioner rejected the ALJ's determination, directing instead that the Board provide home instruction to D.F. pending the outcome of hearings on the merits of the underlying matter.

The Board filed the instant appeal to the State Board.

On July 5, 1996, the Board filed its brief in support of the appeal, arguing that it had met the standards entitling it to the emergent relief it had sought from the Commissioner. Although respondents' answer brief was due on July 25, 1996, respondents did not file their response until August 19, and the Board objected to such late filing.

After reviewing the record developed thus far and the arguments made by the Board, we deny its application for emergent relief substantially for the reasons expressed by the Commissioner. In so doing, we agree that the question of whether the Religious Freedom Restoration Act would apply in this case so as to permit D.F. to be exempted from the Mantoux Test is a novel one. We also concur with the Commissioner that the Board has not demonstrated the necessity of relieving it from its obligation to provide D.F. with a thorough and efficient education during the pendency of this matter, and we affirm the Commissioner's directive that the Board provide D.F. with home instruction until he renders his final determination on the merits. We also join the Commissioner in requesting that the Office of Administrative Law conduct the hearings in this matter on an expeditious basis.

In view of our determination, we do not find it necessary to relax the regulatory time limits so as to consider respondents' answer brief.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board sought summary decision compelling the testing of respondents' son, D.F., for tuberculosis or compelling other suggested schooling alternatives if the parents refuse to do so.

ALJ granted summary decision to the Board. ALJ ordered respondents to permit the Board physician to administer the Mantoux test to D.F. or have their personal physician administer the test. If respondents refuse, the ALJ ordered them to enroll D.F. in either a private or parochial school or to initiate Board-approved home schooling according to school law, thus, ending the Board's current home instruction obligation.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own, finding that the Mantoux test meets a compelling state interest and, therefore, regardless of respondents' religious beliefs, D.F. would be required to undergo tuberculin testing in order to attend public schools. (Grigas; Spano) Commissioner found that the Board met constitutional standard and that the present decision and order were not inconsistent with the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993.

BEFORE JOSEPH LAVERY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, the Middletown Board of Education moves for summary decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. It asks (a) that the testing of D.F. for tuberculosis be ordered, or (b) that other suggested schooling alternatives be compelled, if the parents refuse to do so.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This appeal by the Board was filed in the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on April 10, 1996. After hearing, an order dated April 23, 1996 issued, granting the emergent relief sought. The Commissioner of Education reversed and remanded on May 14, 1996. The Board moved for reconsideration on May 28, 1996, and to the State Board of Education on June 14, 1996. The results of those appeals are not of record here.

When the matter again came before the administrative law judge (ALJ), petitioner moved (a) to deny the Board's request for prehearing, (b) to adjourn the next scheduled date, and (c) for recusal of the ALJ. By order of August 6, 1996, the ALJ acted only on the recusal request, and denied the motion. That order was affirmed by the Director and Chief Administrative Law Judge, OAL on September 23, 1996.

By letter of September 14, 1996, appellant moved before the Commissioner for "forced compliance" with his order of May 14, 1996. Since home instruction was instituted by Board on September 30, 1996, the Commissioner dismissed the motion as being moot, by order of October 18, 1996.

After conference, a draft prehearing order was presented to the parties by the ALJ in a letter of November 22, 1996. After replies by the parties, that order issued in final form on December 5, 1996, with hearing dates calendared for December 12 and December 17, 1996, as well as for February 18, 1997.

On December 5, 1996, a telephone conference concluded with the cancellation of the December 12 date, and conversion of December 17, 1996, to an in-person prehearing conference, which would address respondent parents' wish to move for summary decision, and perhaps include oral argument. On December 8, respondents appealed interlocutorily from the final prehearing order.

During the subsequent December 17 conference, it was agreed that further briefs would be submitted on the motion brought December 16, 1996, by respondents for summary decision, with hearing to convene on February 18, 1997, if the matter could not conclude summarily.[1] On December 20, 1996, the Commissioner declined to review respondents' interlocutory appeal from the prehearing order.

Additional letter briefs on the motion for summary decision followed, the last of which was filed by respondents on January 27, 1997. On February 4, 1997, the undersigned advised the parties that the hearing date of February 18, 1997 was adjourned, because the case would conclude summarily.

ANALYSIS OF THE RECORD

The material facts are not in dispute:

Respondent parents and their three children moved to the Middletown Township school district from Staten Island, N.Y., at some time prior to the onset of the 1995-96 school year. For that year, they enrolled their two daughters in the seventh and eighth grade of Thompson Middle School. Their son, D.F., was placed in the first grade of Nut Swamp School. The immunization records from the family's private physician requested by the district showed that the two girls had undergone Tuberculin testing on May 3, 1995. D.F., in contrast, had been tested as well, but that had occurred earlier, on May 3, 1994. The timing of the girls' testing satisfied the school requirements for pupils transferring from outside the state. The son's did not. His test was more than six months preceding transfer.

After inquiries by the school nurse and later the principal of Nut Swamp School, it became clear that respondents were not going to provide the records of necessary Tuberculin evaluation for D.F., nor would they permit their son to undergo the test imposed on the girls. The test in issue is the Mantoux Tuberculin Test (Mantoux Test), and it is mandated by the State Department of Health in a document entitled "Mantoux Tuberculin Testing in Public Schools Required in 1995-1996." The parents justified their refusal by relying on their religious beliefs. Eventually, after much discussion and some delays to accommodate the parents, the principal excluded the child from the Nut Swamp School on February 8, 1996, for failure to document or to have administered the Mantoux Test.

This appeal followed, and was dealt with procedurally as outlined above. The child, D.F., continues under the home instruction begun September 30, 1996, pending its outcome.

Arguments of the Parties:

The Board's argument:

The Board advances its argument through a post-motion brief and documents, and from that brief and accompanying documents submitted with the Board's earlier motion for emergent relief, as well as included affidavits.

The Board contends that by any judicial measure, reflected in the cases it cites, the standard for summary decision has been satisfied. In its view, respondents' case turns on what they have proffered as an irrefutable "fact." Specifically, the Board states that respondents have maintained that administering the Mantoux test to their child amounts to the practice of medicine. In turn, the practice of medicine is also the practice of religion, in their view, and consequently, the "Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993" (the Act) has been violated. The Board disagrees.

Addressing the Act, the Board insists that its legislative intent was only to reinstate a strict standard of constitutional review, namely, the "compelling interest" standard. Since New Jersey courts have never departed from use of this standard, the existing New Jersey laws and rules continue unaffected. This would include settled case law upholding the compelling interest of the State to regulate public health, safety, and welfare of children. Prior decisions of the Commissioner of Education, relying on this compelling interest, have upheld the statutes and regulations mandating Mantoux testing in the public schools, the Board emphasizes.

Since the record is uncontroverted, and respondents have not come forward with any material fact in issue, the Board maintains, the legal controversy must be resolved through reference to unvarying State law. On that basis, it asks that summary judgment should be awarded.

Respondents' reply:

Respondents agree that decision should be issued summarily, but insist that the decision should uphold their refusal to have the Mantoux test administered to their child. Respondents answer that the State has come forward with no documentation, e.g., medical text or dictionary definitions, that the practice of medicine is not the practice of religion, even though the Hippocratic oath demonstrates that it is. Consequently, under authority of the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution, the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993, and assorted case law, their right to decline the medical test in controversy should be upheld.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Ripeness for Summary Decision:

This dispute is ripe for summary decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5:

Respondents, though not joining in an executed stipulation of facts, do not contest those which are material to a decision here.[2] Instead, respondents

[2] See, respondent's proposed Stipulation of Facts, dated December 16, 1995.

> [R]equest a Summary Decision as to whether there are "gods and goddesses" etc. et. al. in the "religion of medicine" and as to whether the prescription Rx prayer exist, and that whether Pharmacy "is a practice of witchcraft and the practice of sorcery and whether or not, the religious icon of the Physiciain [sic], the god Hermes's, caduceous, god Hermes "inventer [sic] of Medicine"/ "founder of the occult "/satanism, the religion of medicine, exist and the god Asclepius, the god of Medicine's staff of Aesculapius, "on the religion of Medicine's" temples/hospital etc. et. al., therefore medicine is as historically described and documented a religion. Therefore, prima facie an Issue Of Law, irrefutable under the law. Prima facie historic facts, see attached Pro Se Respondent's documentations/proofs.

Respondent R.F. has represented that the foregoing inquiry would be all that she would attempt in questioning witnesses, were a hearing to be held.[3]

The rule governing summary decision, cited supra, states:

> The motion for summary decision shall be served with briefs and with or without supporting affidavits. The decision sought may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. When a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. If the adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered.

[3] Respondent listed her intended witnesses in a letter to her adversary dated July 8, 1996. These witnesses included the Governor, respondent's representatives in the United States Senate and House of Representatives, the Commissioner of Education, and members of her Board of Education, among others.

Additionally, the facts must be considered in the light most favorable to the opposing party, Boyer v. Anchor Disposal, 135 N.J. 86 (1994).

Moreover, under the most recent guidelines delivered by our New Jersey Supreme Court, summary judgment is encouraged when the proper circumstances present themselves. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 541 (1995). The court there elaborated on its intent:

> Under this new standard, a determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 249, 106 S.Ct. at 2511, 91 L.Ed.2d at 212. Credibility determinations will continue to be made by a jury and not the judge. If there exists a single, unavoidable resolution of the alleged disputed issue of fact, that issue should be considered insufficient to constitute a "genuine" issue of material fact for purposes of Rule 4:46-2. Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 250, 106 S.Ct. at 2511, 91 L.Ed.2d at 213. The import of our holding is that when the evidence " is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law," Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 252, 106 S.Ct. at 2512, 91 L.Ed. 2d at 214, the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment.

The Commissioner's Order Denying Emergent Relief, Dated May 14, 1996:

In his order denying emergent relief, the Commissioner established the paramount issue to be addressed at plenary hearing:

> [T]he Commissioner concludes that the fundamental question as to application of the federal law relied upon by respondents to the > within situation represents a novel issue of law which remains to be addressed through plenary proceeding, particularly in view of the fact that the primary law cited, the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993, Sec. 3(c) judicial Relief, specifies

Considering this issue, it must be remembered that respondents are the parties who have raised the Act as a defense. Consequently, to support its preeminence, they must demonstrate factually and legally that the federal Act has been violated by the operation of existing New Jersey law. The facts are not in dispute. The matter must therefore be resolved through reliance on legal argument. For the reasons which follow, summary decision should be awarded the Board:

The Continuing Validity of New Jersey Law:

New Jersey authorizes the Mantoux test, as this tribunal noted in disposing of the Board's initial motion in this case, which sought emergent relief:

> Second, the law is not unsettled on this subject. It plainly calls for application of the Mantoux test in the instance of a child transferring into a school from outside the state without a record that such test occurred within the previous six months. N.J.A.C. 6:29-2.3, implementing N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2 and N.J.S.A. 18A:40-16, as well as the State Department of Health document entitled "Mantoux Tuberculin Testing in Public Schools Required in 1995-1996." Similarly, the law permits exclusion of a child whose parents do not comply with this or similar legal requirements. N.J.S.A. 18A:40-18, N.J.S.A. 26:4-6, N.J.S.A. 18A:35-4.8, Mountain Lakes Bd. Of Educ. v. Maas, 56 N.J. Super. 245 (App. Div. 1959). The citations to federal law of Minister Dalton, D.C., do not offset the foregoing.
> [Emphasis added; Order Granting Emergent Relief, April 23, 1996; See also, Kolbeck v. Kramer, 84 N.J. Super. 569, 571-72 (App. Div. 1964) upholding the Commissioner's power to impose tuberculosis tests]

In the same vein, the Commissioner of Education himself most recently has held that:

> [R]eligious exemption for inoculation does not apply to the Mantoux test for tuberculosis because the Mantoux test is merely a screening device, for which there is a compelling need, overriding claims for exemption on the basis of religious belief.
> [Spano v. Jackson Tp. Bd. of Ed., Ocean Cty., and N.J. Dept. of Education, 1988 SLD 1007, 1017. Emphasis added]

Respondents do not argue that New Jersey law is otherwise, but instead appear to contend that State law has been barred by the U.S. Constitution, specifically in its implementation by the Religious Freedom Restoration Act, 42 U.S.C.A. 2000bb -1 through -4 (the Act).

The Commissioner, in his order of May 14, 1996, asks for a ruling on whether respondents correctly interpret the legal effect of the Act. The answer is no, they do not. The reasons for this conclusion are as follows.

Congressional intent in the Act is unambiguous:

> The Congress finds that --
> (1) The framers of the Constitution, recognizing free exercise of religion as an inalienable right, secured its protection in the First Amendment to the Constitution;
> (2) Laws "neutral" toward religion may burden religious exercise as surely as laws intended to interfere with religious exercise;
> (3) Governments should not substantially burden religious exercise without compelling justification; . . .
> [42 U.S.C.A. 2000bb(a)]

Further, the Act states:

> The purposes of this chapter are --
> (1) To restore the compelling interest test as set forth in Sherbert v. Verner, 374 U.S. 398 (1963) and Wisconsin v. Yoder, 406 U.S.

> 205 (1972) and to guarantee its application in all cases where free exercise of religion is substantially burdened; and
> (2) to provide a claim or defense to persons whose religious exercise is substantially burdened by government.
> [42 U.S.C.A. 2000bb(b)]

The Act then goes on to describe both the rule which it intends, and the exception which is permitted:

> (a) In General
>
> Government shall not substantially burden a person's exercise of religion even if the burden results from a rule of general applicability, except as provided in subsection (b) of this section.
>
> (b) Exception
>
> Government may substantially burden a person's exercise of religion only if it demonstrates that application of the burden to the person --
> (1) is in furtherance of a compelling governmental interest; and
> (2) is the least restrictive means of furthering that compelling governmental interest.
> [42 U.S.C.A. 2000bb(1)]

Finally, the reach of the Act extends to the States:

> This chapter applies to all Federal and State law, and the implementation of that law, whether statutory or otherwise, and whether adopted before or after November 16, 1993.
> [42 U.S.C.A. 2000bb-3]

Against this legal background, the question becomes whether New Jersey School Law, in particular Spano, supra, and the Board policy which implements it, are prohibited by the Act. There can be no such prohibition, because, as the Board correctly argues, the "compelling interest" test, which the Congress sought to restore through the Act, was never abandoned in this State. Judge Pressler's decision in Essex Cty. Welfare Div. v. Harris, 189 N.J. Super. 479 (App. Div. 1983) is illustrative. There, she ruled:

> [I]n the context of governmental impingement upon religious beliefs which interdict particular medical procedures, it is well settled in this State that the practice of such beliefs is not immune from a modicum of governmental restraint where the governmental interest is compelling. See, e.g., John F. Kennedy Memorial Hosp. v. Heston, 58 N.J. 576 (1971), and State v. Perricone, 37 N.J. 463 (1962), cert. den. 371 U.S. 890 (1962), 83 S.Ct. 189, 9 *L.Ed.*2d 124 (1962), requiring blood transfusions contrary to religious beliefs. And see, requiring vaccination, Mountain Lakes Bd. of Ed. v. Maas, supra: Sadlock v. Carlstadt Bd. of Ed., 137 N.J.L. 85 (Sup. Ct. 1948).
> [Id. at 482. Emphasis added]

The next considerations then are (a) whether tuberculin testing is a compelling governmental interest overriding the private interest of protecting religious belief, and (b) whether that testing is undertaken through the least restrictive means. 42 U.S.C.A. 2000bb(1)(b). Here too, in both instances, the answer is yes.

Testing to avoid the introduction and spread of tuberculosis in our public schools on its face qualifies as a compelling interest anticipated by the Act as an exception. Yet, beyond that, there are in this undisputed factual record recitations of how serious a need there is for such medical prevention, and how "least restrictive" and unintrusive the Mantoux test actually is. (Affidavit of Marilyn Cohen, Assistant Superintendent for Pupil/Personnel Services, Middletown Township Board of Education, dated March 29, 1996 and affidavit of Kenneth L. Shilkret, Chief, Tuberculosis Control Program, New Jersey Department of Health and Senior Services.)

The test itself is not a medical procedure akin to vaccination or immunization. Instead, it is a screening device, subject to guidelines imposed on grade schools such as Nut Swamp by the State (Cohen affidavit, at p. 2, par. 5 and p. 5, par. 12; Shilkret affidavit, at p. 13, par. 46). The seriousness and transmissibility of tuberculosis has been established (Shilkret affidavit, at pp. 3-6 and pp. 10-12, pars. 35-39). The test itself, an intradermal injection of 0.1 ml. of purified protein derivative (PPD) tuberculin identifies even those who are not ill, thus alerting the child's parents as well as the school that preventive therapy is needed.

More importantly, the Mantoux test is the only means of identifying infection before it progresses to disease, and it is the only identifying screen for groups and individuals (Id. at pp. 6-8). It does not contain live virus vaccine, and cannot transmit or cause tuberculosis (Id. at p. 13, par. 46). The procedures for and scope of testing are constantly under review by the State, and effected in the least invasive manner. At present, the Mantoux test, endorsed by the American Thoracic Society, American Lung Association and Centers for Disease Control, is the most restricted method of screening (Id. at pp. 8-10 and pp. 12-13).

The import of the foregoing record is that both the first and second prongs of the standard for exception, at 42 U.S.C.A. 2000bb(1)(b), have been satisfied: the Board and the State have turned to the least restrictive means in furthering a compelling governmental interest, which is to prevent the introduction and spread of tuberculosis in the public schools.

ORDER

I ORDER, therefore, that the petitioner Board's appeal be GRANTED, and

1. That D.F. be screened through administration of the Mantoux tuberculin test, to be undertaken by the Board, or by respondents' personal physician, or in the alternative,

2. That respondents forthwith (a) enroll their child in private or parochial school, or (b) begin education of D.F. through "home schooling" under the applicable State laws and implementing rules, and,

3. That if respondents elect to undertake home schooling, that they immediately submit an appropriate educational plan, with a proposed timetable for prompt initiation of home schooling, thus ending the Board's current home instruction obligation.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
D.F. AND R.F., individually and as guardians of D.F.,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

Respondents' voluminous exceptions generally recast and reiterate arguments raised previously throughout this litigation and, therefore, are not summarized in detail herein. Respondents' general contention is that because medicine is a religion involving "medical gods and goddesses," the order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) and the Board requiring D.F. to undergo the Mantoux test for tuberculosis, violates the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment, prohibiting laws respecting the establishment of religion, and the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993 ("Act"). (Exceptions at pp. 1-3) Respondents also contend that the ALJ's determination improperly places the burden of proof upon them, as defendants, rather than upon the Board, which they also aver to be contrary to the Act. Additionally, respondents assert that the material facts in this matter were in dispute in that the ALJ did not address the issue as to whether medical gods and goddesses exist in the practice of medicine and that summary judgment was improperly granted. (Exceptions at pp. 4-5 and 7-8)

In reply, the Board contends that Respondent R.F., who steadfastly maintains that performance of the Mantoux Test upon her son, D.F., "constitutes a medical procedure which is a religion with 'satanic cult pagan false Gods and Goddesses,'" has failed to distinguish between opinion and fact. (Reply Exceptions at p. 1) The Board then cites Kopp, Inc. v. United Technologies, 223 N.J. Super. 548, 554-555 (App. Div. 1988), for the proposition that summary judgment is appropriate where the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and affidavits, if any, show that there are no genuine issues as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Further, the Board notes, disputes as to the conclusions to be drawn from the facts, as opposed to the facts themselves, will not defeat a motion for summary judgment. Lima & Sons, Inc. v. Borough of Ramsey, 269 N.J. Super. 469, 478 (App. Div. 1994). The Board summarizes its argument that Respondent R.F.'s subjective belief with regard to the Mantoux test cannot create the existence of a material fact.

The Board next reiterates that the Commissioner has ruled in previous cases that there can be no religious exemption to the Mantoux test and that the religious beliefs of parents must yield to the compelling interest test of the State to insure the health, safety and welfare of children, including students in public schools, citing In the Matter of the Joint Application of Kathleen Grigas and Appellant Board of Education of the East Windsor Regional School District, 1983 S.L.D. 775 and Margaret Spano v. Board of Education of the Township of Jackson, Ocean County and the New Jersey Department of Education, 1988 S.L.D. 1017. (Reply Exceptions at p. 3) The Board avers that "the legitimacy of both decisions has not been undermined by Respondent's reliance upon the [Act], for the Act merely reaffirms the 'compelling interest' standard of constitutional review [and] this is the same standard of review relied upon by the Commissioner in both Grigas and Spano." (Reply Exceptions at p. 5) Thus, it urges the Commissioner to affirm the initial decision and Order of the ALJ.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision and Order of the ALJ. As noted by the ALJ, the Commissioner has determined previously, in Grigas, supra, and Spano, supra, that the Mantoux test serves a compelling governmental interest, i.e., screening students for tuberculosis in order to insure the health, safety and welfare of students in the public schools, in the least invasive manner available. The Act requires that such compelling governmental interest exist in order for a challenged action to withstand constitutional scrutiny. Therefore, the Commissioner finds that the Board has met the constitutional standard and that the present decision and Order are not inconsistent with the Act.

In so ruling, the Commissioner finds that it is not necessary to reach to the question as to "whether there are gods and goddesses etc. et. al [sic] in the religion of medicine," in that the Mantoux test meets a compelling state interest and, therefore, regardless of respondents' religious beliefs, D.F. would be required to undergo tuberculin testing in order to attend the public schools. Consequently, the Commissioner affirms the determination that summary judgment was proper in this instance.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the OAL and enters summary decision in favor of the Board.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 14, 1996

Decided by the State Board of Education, October 2, 1996

Decision on motion by the Commissioner of Education, December 20, 1996

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, June 3, 1997

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Kenny & Gross (Robert J. Pruchnik, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondents-Appellants, D.F. and R.F., pro se

The underlying controversy in this matter between respondents and the Board of Education of the Township of Middletown (hereinafter "Board") developed after respondents moved to New Jersey from Staten Island and enrolled their three children in the Middletown school district in September 1995. Review of the immunization records provided by respondents at that time indicated that although the Mantoux

Intradermal Tuberculin Test ("Mantoux test") had been administered to respondents' two oldest children in May 1995, D.F., who was entering first grade, had not been tested since May 1994. Since the State Department of Health's guidelines required that out-of-state transfer students be tested if the Mantoux Test had not been administered to them within the previous six months, the District attempted to obtain respondents' consent to administer the test. When respondents notified the District that the family's religious beliefs prohibited vaccination or medical testing by the State, the Board excluded D.F. from school and filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking a declaratory judgment that it had acted properly and that respondents could not claim an exemption from the testing requirement on the basis of their religious principles. The Board also sought a directive from the Commissioner that respondents either permit administration of the Mantoux test to D.F. or resume his education at a private school or through home schooling. At the same time, the Board filed an application for emergent relief with the Commissioner seeking the same relief as requested in its petition.

The Commissioner denied the motion for emergent relief and directed the Board to provide home instruction to D.F. pending the outcome of hearings on the merits of the underlying matter.

On appeal, the State Board affirmed the Commissioner's determination, agreeing that the Board had not demonstrated the necessity of relieving it from its obligation to provide D.F. with a thorough and efficient education during the pendency of this matter. Consequently, we affirmed the Commissioner's directive that the Board provide D.F. with home instruction until the Commissioner rendered his final determination on the merits.

When the matter came before an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") for consideration of the merits, the Board moved for summary decision compelling D.F. to submit to testing for tuberculosis or directing other schooling alternatives if D.F.'s parents refused to comply. The ALJ granted the Board's motion and directed that D.F. obtain a Mantoux test in order to enter public school or, in the event his parents refused, that they either enroll him in a nonpublic school or initiate home schooling.

By decision of June 3, 1997, the Commissioner adopted the ALJ's determination, concluding that the Mantoux test served the compelling State interest in screening students for tuberculosis in order to insure the health, safety and welfare of students in public schools in the least invasive manner available. The Commissioner found that such testing therefore met the constitutional standard and that the ALJ had properly concluded that D.F.'s re-entry into public school was contingent on obtaining an appropriately administered Mantoux test. In so ruling, the Commissioner found that the Board had not violated the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993 and concluded that it was not necessary for him to decide other questions raised by D.F.'s mother, including her allegation that there were gods and goddesses in the "religion" of medicine.

D.F.'s parents appealed to the State Board, renewing their previous arguments.

After the parties had filed their briefs, the counsel for the Middletown Board advised us by letter that D.F.'s father had provided the Board with appropriate documentation that a Mantoux test had been administered to D.F. by a private physician on September 2 and that the result was negative. On October 16, the Board formally moved for dismissal of the matter on grounds of mootness.

D.F.'s mother opposes the Board's motion, arguing that she had no control over the actions taken by D.F.'s father to comply with the Commissioner's determination and that the public interest demands resolution of her claims, including her contention that medicine is a religion.

After reviewing the arguments made by the parties, the State Board dismisses this matter as moot. E.g., Oxfeld v. New Jersey State Board of Education, 68 N.J. 301 (1975). Notwithstanding the fact that D.F.'s mother does not agree with the decision made by D.F.'s father to comply with the Commissioner's directive, the Mantoux test has been administered to D.F. and, as a result, he is able to re-enter public school. Furthermore, the specific allegations made by D.F.'s mother with respect to either the course taken by D.F.'s father or the entanglement of religion with the medical profession are not wrongs which are capable of repetition yet evading review in the proper forum. Nor do we find that any of the issues remaining in this case are of such transcendent public importance as to compel resolution by this agency. State v. Allen, 73 N.J. 132, 138-39 (1977). We therefore agree with the Board that this matter has been rendered moot, and dismiss the appeal.

Docket No.: EDU4693-95

Dear Judge Gerson:

Please be advised that the application made by the respondant in this matter appears to indicate that they are at this time willing to give full membership rights pursuant to the statutory limitations to the sending district's representative.

Based upon this perception, it would appear that the outstanding matter has therefore been resolved. Therefore, petitioner hereby withdraws the Petition in this matter and consents to having the pending matter dismissed.

Naturally, this action is without prejudice should the respondant fail to accord the appropriate rights and powers to the representative from the sending district. In that event, petitioner will be free to re-open this matter and seek appropriate relief.

On behalf of the petitioner, please accept our appreciation for the time and consideration which you have given to this matter.

Very truly yours,

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CRANBURY, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision incorporating a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.

The Commissioner is unable to accept the written settlement in its present form to the extent that the language of the Settlement Agreement on its face (Term 6) reveals that the settlement may not have been approved by the Board. Such language, making settlement contingent upon approval by the Board while expressly reserving the rights of both parties to pursue the matter further in the event of Board disapproval, reveals that the settlement is not "fully dispositive of all issues in controversy" as required under N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1(b). In that agency approval would render this agreement a final decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1(c) 2, the Commissioner finds that agreement to terms by both parties is necessary prior to the Commissioner's approval of settlement.

Accordingly, this matter is remanded to the OAL for revision of the settlement terms or other appropriate action.

DECISION ON MOTION

The tape-recorded proceedings in this matter, which concerned D.O.G's attendance at the senior prom and participation in graduation ceremonies, and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

The Deputy Commissioner was designated to hear and decide this matter pursuant to the Commissioner's authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33.

Upon review, the Deputy Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) denying emergent relief as petitioner failed to meet the standards for such relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982).

Accordingly, the Motion for Emergent Relief is denied for the reasons expressed by the ALJ and this matter shall duly proceed on its merits in accordance with the ALJ's recommendation.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE WOODBURY SCHOOL DISTRICT, GLOUCESTER COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT.	:

For Petitioners, Suzanne Pallante Buckley, Esq.
For Respondent, John L. White, Esq. (George, Korin, Quattrone, Blumberg & Chant)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on May 14, 1996, by way of a Petition of Appeal and Motion for Emergent Relief filed by petitioners seeking an order permitting W.M.B. to attend a junior-senior prom. On May 15, 1996, the Board denied petitioners' appeal of its determination that W.M.B. was ineligible to attend his prom because of his asserted failure to achieve 27.5 credits and, therefore, had insufficient credit to participate in senior events, including the senior trip and the senior prom. M.B. is the girlfriend of W.M.B. and has filed because W.M.B. is her intended prom date.

On May 16, 1996, after petitioners attempted to resolve this matter on the local level at a Board hearing, petitioners sought and received permission to supplement their initial filing, and the Board was given the opportunity to respond. Parties were notified telephonically and by facsimile letter dated May 16, 1996 that this motion would be decided on the papers submitted. Petitioners and respondent filed additional submissions on May 17, 1996. As no provision was made for any additional filings beyond May 16, 1996, the May 17, 1996 submissions are not considered herein.

The Deputy Commissioner was designated to hear and decide this matter, pursuant to the Commissioner's authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33.

This matter arose after the Board denied petitioners' appeal to it under the provisions set forth in the Student Co-Curricular Eligibility Policy (hereinafter referred to as "School Policy") and as set forth in the Student Handbook 1995-96 (hereinafter referred to as "Student Handbook"). The school policy states in pertinent part that,

> Eligibility for participation in Woodbury Junior-Senior High School's co-curricular activities is determined on the basis of a student's academic performance, attendance and conduct. Activities in this co-curricular category include [s]everal social/educational activities  specifically the junior-senior prom. (emphasis in text) (Student Policy 6145.1, Student Handbook at p.48)

The Board requires its pupils to achieve a 27.5 credits in order to attend the senior prom.

The Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) standards required petitioners to show that W.M.B. and M.B. would be irreparably harmed if not permitted to attend the senior prom, that W.M.B. and M.B. have a substantial likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the claim, and that in balancing the interests of the parties, the harm to W.M.B. and M.B. would be greater than the harm to the Board of Education should the requested relief not be granted. Petitioners assert that W.M.B. would be irreparably harmed if not permitted to attend his senior prom as would M.B., his "high school sweetheart," who would not attend without W.M.B.

Petitioners aver that the Board's refusal to allow W.M.B. to attend the prom was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. (Petition of Appeal at pp. 6-7) They cite a recent recommended order on motion issued by Administrative Law Judge Kathleen Duncan entitled, Sandra Hynes v. Board of Education of the Southern Regional School District, Gloucester County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 2897-96, which recommended order stated that "[missing one's] senior prom is a once in a lifetime experience which cannot be duplicated" thus constituting irreparable harm to the student. (Petitioners' Motion for Emergent Relief at p. 2) Petitioners also argue that they have a likelihood of success on the merits in that W.M.B.'s requests to drop Chemistry class in the first marking period were ignored (Petition of Appeal at p. 3) while he could still replace the course with another for credit (id. at p. 4)and when he finally dropped the course, he was never advised that he would fall below the number of credits needed for participation in the senior event. (Id.)

Petitioners further assert they were denied due process on the local level in that discovery was not permitted prior to the Board hearing and petitioners' counsel was unable to prepare for the hearing in advance. (Petitioners' Supplemental Submission at pp. 1-2)

They also aver that the school policy is selectively enforced and that W.M.B. was misled into believing he could not appeal his case. (Petition of Appeal at pp. 4-5 and Motion for Emergent Relief at p. 3)

In response, the Board argues that petitioners are guilty of laches and that W.L.B.'s ineligibility status has been an issue since October 1995. (Answer at p. 1 and Board's Supplemental Response at p. 4) Moreover, W.M.B. had received notice of his inability to attend the junior-senior prom because of academic deficiencies in that the consequences of violating the policy are contained in the District's student handbook which was provided to petitioners prior to the commencement of the school year. The Board points out that M.B. was assured that she was eligible and welcome to attend the prom. It further argues that the policy applies to all seniors.

The Board also avers that the Superintendent never denied any forum of communication with any parents but, rather, returned all phone calls. (Board's Supplemental Response at p. 2) The Board also granted petitioners a hearing wherein it avers that petitioners' attorney had all documentation for more than one hour and did not request to keep additional documentation. (Id.)

Lastly, it avers that a Board must focus first on the academic preparation and success of its pupils and that the current policy aligned with NJSIAA requirements and the State Board of Education directive has been enforced since 1989. (Board's Supplemental Response at p. 3)

A weighing of the arguments of the parties leads the Deputy Commissioner to conclude that petitioners have not demonstrated entitlement to injunctive relief as set forth in Crowe, supra. The Commissioner has long held that prohibition from attending one's senior prom does not constitute irreparable harm and the State Board of Education has affirmed this finding, writing,

> "the memories [petitioners] will have foregone as a result of not participating in ...extracurricular activities," do not provide [them] with the requisite harm warranting the extraordinary relief requested. (Domacasse at p. 2)

Martin A. Domacasse v. Board of Education of the North Warren Regional School District, Warren County, decided by the State Board April 17, 1996.

In this regard, the Commissioner specifically disavowed ALJ Duncan's finding in the Hynes decision that missing one's senior prom constituted irreparable harm, stating > while deprivation of extracurricular activities does not normally rise to the level of irreparable harm, in the present instance petitioner will suffer such deprivation without having had due process at the local level to which she is entitled; the Assistant Commissioner finds this particularly troublesome in that the ALJ found that petitioner's attorney made prompt and diligent efforts to obtain such due process, but was thwarted by the actions of district administrators. (emphasis supplied) (Hynes Slip Opinion at p. 10)

Hynes v. Board of Education of the Southern Regional School District, Gloucester County, decided by the Commissioner on April 26, 1996. Moreover, M.B. is not prevented from attending the prom simply because W.M.B. is ineligible and, therefore, not only is her standing to bring this action in question, the notion that she would be entitled to the extraordinary relief sought is disingenuous at best.

Further, petitioners have made no showing of a likelihood of success on the merits. It is well-settled that the Board's policy concerning participation in its senior events may not be upset unless it can be demonstrated to be patently arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). It has also been held that the burden of proof that an action was so deficient rests with the person challenging the decision. Kopera at 297.

This case is distinguishable from Hynes, in that petitioner in that matter had demonstrated that the board refused to give her the hearing to which she was entitled by board policy despite her attorney's numerous attempts to invoke established due process procedures. She had also demonstrated a likelihood of success on the merits based on a unique and compelling factual record, which included the fact that her board denied her the hearing required under its own policies and procedures. In the instant matter, a hearing was held by the Board providing petitioners with an opportunity to be heard. As previously established,

> Due process is flexible and calls for such procedural protections as the particular situation demands.Consideration of what procedures due process may require under any given set of > circumstances must begin with a determination of the precise nature of the government function involved as well as of the private interest that has been affected by governmental action. (Ivory at 73)

Ivory v. Ocean Twp. Board of Education, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 70, 73, quoting New Jersey Parole Bd. v. Byrne, 93 N.J. 192 (1983). It is further noted that as a general proposition, the Commissioner may not interfere in a board's implementation of its own policies as the standard set forth in Kopera, supra, would not permit him to substitute his judgment for that of the board. Moreover, petitioners herein have not met their burden of proving that this policy was arbitrary. Rather, the Deputy Commissioner finds, as has been the rule in many similar prom and graduation cases, > such activities as attending a school-sponsored prom or graduation ceremonies are special privileges. As such these privileges can be revoked for infractions of school rules, of school policy and of state law. (R.F. at 82)

R.F., et al., and L.H., et al v. Board of Education of Park Ridge, Bergen County, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 79 (1992), aff'd State Board 416 (1993). Finally, the Deputy Commissioner notes that due process procedures of the type to which petitioners claim entitlement are normally reserved for serious penalties such as long-term suspension from school. See R.R. v. Bd. of Ed., Shore Regional High School, 109 N.J. Super. 337 (App. Div. 1970).

Lastly, the Deputy Commissioner finds that harm to the Board would be greater than that to petitioners if the present motion were granted in that the Board has an important interest in enforcing its policies in order to effectively operate its schools and ensure academic achievement.

Accordingly, the Motion for Emergent Relief is denied.

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on July 21, 1994, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached stipulation indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

THIS AGREEMENT dated March 29, 1996, between Dr. Katherine A. Trimarco ("Trimarco"), Dr. Daniel Gerardi ("Gerardi"), and the Caldwell-West Caldwell Board of Education ("Board").

W I T N E S S E T H

WHEREAS, Trimarco filed a Petition with the Commissioner of Education on June 16, 1994 against the Board, and the Board filed an Answer denying the allegations in the Petition and raising affirmative defenses (and this matter is hereinafter referred to as the "Administrative Action"); and

WHEREAS, the Administrative Action was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on July 21, 1994 and assigned OAL docket number EDU-07003-94 and Agency reference number #250-6/94; and

WHEREAS, Trimarco filed a civil complaint in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Essex County, against Gerardi and the Board, docket number ESX-L-3612-95, and Gerardi and the Board filed an Answer denying the allegations in the Complaint and raising affirmative defenses (and this matter is hereinafter referred to as the "Superior Court Action"); and

WHEREAS, the hearing of the Administrative Action began on April 10, 1995 before the Honorable Ken R. Springer, ALJ and continued for six additional non-consecutive days thereafter; and

WHEREAS, without any admission as to the truth, falsity or legal effect of any allegation in the Administrative Action or the Superior Court action, Trimarco, the Board, and Gerardi wish to enter into an amicable agreement to settle all disputes between and among them; and

WHEREAS, on September 27, 1995, at the continuation of the Administrative Action, the parties set forth before Judge Springer and on the record a settlement agreement; and

WHEREAS, the terms of the settlement placed on the record on September 27, 1995, with modifications subsequently agreed to by the parties, have been set forth herein below;

NOW, THEREFORE, for good, complete and adequate consideration it is agreed as follows:

(1) Trimarco shall take any and all action necessary to dismiss with prejudice and without costs the Administrative Action and the Superior Court Action, and shall execute a general release which shall release the Board and Gerardi from all claims she may have against them, whether known or unknown, up to the date of such general release.

(2) The Board and Gerardi shall remove from Trimarco's personnel file, or any other file relating to Trimarco, any and all documents regarding Trimarco and/or Trimarco's employment with the Board except as follows:

(i) Dr. Trimarco's letter of interest in obtaining position of Principal, dated July 29, 1993;

(ii) Dr. Trimarco's resume;

(iii) Dr. Trimarco's Employment Eligibility verification;

(iv) Physical examination form;

(v) Mantoux tuberculin test verification form;

(vi) Dr. Trimarco's Principal Certificate;

(vii) Letter of recommendation from Clark Public Schools, dated February 11, 1992;

(viii) Letter of recommendation from Seton Hall University, dated June 2, 1992;

(ix) Letter of recommendation from Montclair State College;

(x) Letter of Recommendation from State of New Jersey HSPT Committee;

(xi) Employment Contract with the Caldwell-West Caldwell Board of Education;

(xii) September 21, 1993 letter to Dr. Trimarco from Dr. Gerardi;

(xiii) Administrator's Evaluation, dated October 21, 1993;

(xiv) Administrator's Evaluation, dated January 28, 1994;

(xv) Memo dated March 7, 1994 to Dr. Gerardi from Dr. Trimarco reference the Organization of Wilson School for the 1994-1995 School year;

(xvi) Accident Report of April 14, 1994, reference Basketball game;

(xvii) Letter dated June 29, 1994 confirming Approval of Request for additional sick leave;

(xviii) Trimarco's Worker's Compensation file. This file is subject to a review of its contents by the law offices of Chapman, Henkoff, Kessler, Peduto & Saffer (attorneys for Trimarco). Any documents contained therein which are to be removed pursuant to the terms of this Agreement shall be removed from said Worker's Compensation file and turned over to the law offices of Chapman, Henkoff, Kessler, Peduto & Saffer to be kept in their litigation file.

Any and all documents either typed or handwritten which are to be removed shall be turned over to the law offices of Chapman, Henkoff, Kessler, Peduto & Saffer, 425 Eagle Rock Avenue, Roseland, New Jersey. These documents shall be sealed and kept in their litigation file. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the memorandum by Nancy Graham dated March 7, 1994, entitled "Conversation with Board Member 2/17/94" ("Nancy Graham Memorandum") shall not be turned over to Chapman, Henkoff, Kessler, Peduto & Saffer.

(3) Any and all documents not listed in Paragraph 2(i)-(xviii) above, which were identified and/or marked in evidence during the trial of the Administrative Action shall be turned over to the law offices of Chapman, Henkoff, Kessler, Peduto & Saffer and kept in their litigation file.

(4) Any documents not listed in Paragraph 2(1)-(xviii) above which are in the possession of McCarter & English, attorneys for the Board, which were obtained from Trimarco's personnel file or any other file maintained by the Board relating to Trimarco shall be turned over to Chapman, Henkoff, Kessler, Peduto & Saffer, except that the Nancy Graham Memorandum and any copies thereof shall not be turned over. The documents to be turned over shall be kept in the storage facility maintained by Chapman, Henkoff, Kessler, Peduto & Saffer and marked as a McCarter & English file. A letter shall be attached to said file indicating that it is a McCarter & English file and will only be turned over to McCarter & English with an appropriate Court Order or with the approval of Trimarco. This file shall be kept for a minimum of seven years and shall not be destroyed without the authorization of McCarter & English.

(5) Any and all copies of the Nancy Graham Memorandum which are in the possession of Trimarco or Chapman, Henkoff, Kessler, Peduto & Saffer shall be turned over to McCarter & English.

(6) In the event that the Board receives a request from any source for a recommendation of Trimarco, the Board's response shall be limited to a letter in the form attached hereto as Exhibit 1. Said letter shall be typed on Board letterhead and signed by Gerardi.

(7) In consideration of Trimarco's release of claims against the Board and Gerardi, including the release of those claims raised in the Superior Court Action, the Board shall deliver to the offices of Chapman, Henkoff, Kessler, Peduto &

Saffer a settlement draft or drafts in the amount of $27,500.00 (twenty-seven thousand five hundred dollars) made payable to Trimarco and Chapman, Henkoff, Kessler, Peduto & Saffer.

(8) This Agreement is subject to dismissal of the Administrative Action by the Commissioner of Education. The terms of this Agreement and all actions to be taken by all parties as set forth in paragraphs 1 through 8, including the filing of a stipulation of dismissal of the Superior Court Action, shall be completed within 10 days of receipt of the final decision of the Commissioner of Education dismissing the Administrative Action, except that payment pursuant to paragraph 8 above shall be made within 21 days of receipt by the Board of the executed general release and stipulation of dismissal of the Superior Court Action. This Agreement shall not be considered fully implemented until all such terms and actions as set forth herein are fully complied with by the parties to this Agreement.

(9) Trimarco, Gerardi and the Board each agree to keep this Agreement confidential to the extent permitted by law. Each party agrees and promises that he/she/it will not undertake to issue or publish any writing in any way concerning or referring to this Agreement. Either party may make application to seek an Order sealing and protecting from the public the documents which are a part of the Superior Court Action and Administrative Action. It is hereby agreed that upon such application, the non-applying parties shall not oppose said motion.

(10) This Agreement contains the entire agreement among the parties hereto with regard to the matters set forth herein and shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the executors, administrators, personal representative, heirs, successors and assigns of each party.

(11) This Agreement shall be construed and interpreted in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.

EXHIBIT 1

Letter of Recommendation

To whom it may concern:

Dr. Katherine Trimarco was employed as an Elementary School Principal for the 1993-1994 school year at Wilson School. She satisfactorily performed her instructional leadership duties as Principal of Wilson School. Her determination of the organization of the Wilson School from multi-ago to straight-grades was implemented for the 1994-95 school year.

COUNTY.	:

For the Board, Thomas W. Sumners, Jr., Esq., (Sumners, Council, George & Dortch)

This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education on January 5, 1996, through certification of tenure charges of abandonment of position, excessive absenteeism and unbecoming conduct against a tenured custodian of the Board of Education of the City of Trenton, Mercer County; and

The Commissioner having directed respondent via both certified and regular mail on January 10, 1996 and February 2, 1996, to file an Answer to the tenure charges against him; and

On February 15, 1996, respondent having filed a letter in response to such tenure charges, which did not conform to the requirements for an Answer, in that such submission did not specifically admit or deny each of the Board's charges as required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4; and

Respondent having been advised on February 16, 1996, March 11, 1996, and via both certified and regular mail on March 25, 1996, that his submission must be amended to conform to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4, and having been invited on each of these occasions to contact the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes if he had any questions in this regard; and

Respondent having failed as of this date to comply with the directive of the Commissioner or even to seek filing guidance, each count of the charges against him is deemed to be admitted, now therefore

IT IS ORDERED THIS 20th day of May 1996 that summary judgment shall be granted to the Board, and Lonnie McIntyre shall be dismissed from his tenured position as a custodian in the Board's employ as of the date of this order.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF CARTERET, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner sought reinstatement to a full-time tenured position following Board's actions eliminating her tenured position of Teacher-Coordinator of Cooperative Vocational-Technical Education (COE): Business Education and abolishing the position of Coordinator of Cooperative Marketing Education in order to establish a new, consolidated position of COE/Marketing Education Coordinator.

ALJ found summary judgment was appropriate. ALJ concluded administrators' recommendations to the Board that a reduction in force and a consolidation of academic courses take place were appropriate and that petitioner was not dismissed from her position by reason of her gender (male teacher was appointed to new position). ALJ concluded that petitioner was not entitled to the new position because she did not hold the two endorsements required and she never taught a Cooperative Marketing Education class. Board's motion to dismiss was granted.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ that the Board's "RIF" of petitioner and abolishment of two positions in order to establish new consolidated position were within its authority and discretion. However, Citing Dennery, the Commissioner remanded matter solely to determine, by stipulation or testimony, the job duties of the position of COE/Marketing Education Coordinator so as to assess the certification(s) required for the position, as well as petitioner's claim to the position.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 384-9/94

MARY KOPKO,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF CARTERET,

Respondent.

Stephen E. Klausner, Esq., for petitioner (Klausner, Hunter & Seid, attorneys)

Viola S. Lordi, Esq., for respondent (Wilentz, Goldman & Spitzer, attorneys)

Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., for intervenor, John L. Scally (Lake and Schwartz, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 7, 1996 Decided: April 3, 1996

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Mary Kopko, petitioner, seeks reinstatement to a full-time, tenured position and claims the Carteret Board of Education, respondent, has failed and refused to recognize her tenure and seniority rights. She also demands sixty days' termination pay and reimbursement of any salary wrongfully withheld and she further alleges gender discrimination in the reduction in force that led to her loss of position.

The matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. A prehearing conference was held by telephone and the matter was calendered for hearing on June 29, 1995, in Highland Park Municipal Court. The Board had moved to exclude a proposed expert report and the petitioner filed responsive papers. In addition, John L. Scally, the person holding the controverted position, announced he wished to be represented by counsel. He was given time to have an appearance filed on his behalf.

The judge heard oral argument on the motion to exclude the proposed expert testimony. Further, the Board moved for summary judgment on the second count of the petition dealing with sixty days' notification and pay. The judge reserved decision on that motion.

On July 25, 1995, an order issued granting the petitioner's motion to admit her expert's report and testimony.

Similarly, the Board's motion to dismiss Count II of the petition was granted.

After two procedural delays that were overcome by the cooperation of counsel, the matter proceeds to summary judgment on the papers. The intervenor joined the Board's motion to dismiss.

THE ARGUMENTS

The Board and Intervenor

The respondents urge that the Board's action abolishing the position of the Teacher-Coordinator of Cooperative Vocational-Technical Education: Business Education, also known as Office Education, and referred to as COE Coordinator was reasonable and violated no statute or code. The petitioner asserts that the Board has created a single class where instruction allegedly will be given by one teacher at the same time in business education and cooperative distributive education, sometimes called cooperative marketing education. The petitioner also asserts that, as a result of the Board's actions, she has been denied the opportunity to exercise her seniority in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:28-11, -13 and N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10. The First Count asserts the Board has assigned the duties of the petitioner's full-time position to a person who does not have tenure and seniority in the COE Coordinator position.

The Third Count alleges that the petitioner's nontenured replacement is a male and that the petitioner was terminated in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10, which prohibits dismissals resulting from any such reduction to be based upon gender.

All of the petitioner's allegations are without merit.

The Board conducted a reduction in force (RIF) for reasons of economy and the determination to consolidate COE and the marketing education classes was based on economy. Until June 1994, the Board offered both COE and the marketing course. By spring 1994, however, enrollment in both classes had declined to the point that continuing to offer either course alone could not be justified financially. Based on long experience, and with the advice of the County Superintendent of Schools, the Board's administrators determined that COE and marketing education are compatible for the purpose of classroom instruction in a single class by a single teacher-coordinator.

On that basis, the superintendent recommended consolidation of the course and creation of the position of Cooperative Office Education/Marketing Education Coordinator to the Board. The individual serving in the new position would be required to hold endorsements in both Cooperative Office (business) Education and Cooperative Marketing Education.

In June 1994, the Board abolished the COE Coordinator and Coordinator of Cooperative Marketing Education positions and it offered a consolidated COE/Cooperative Marketing Education Course to be taught by the new COE/Marketing Education Coordinator. The Board required that the new COE/Marketing Education Coordinator hold both endorsements discussed above.

The petitioner began her tenured teaching in the Carteret District in September 1971. In September 1973, she assumed duties as the COE/Coordinator. From September 1973 until June 1994, she continued as a tenured business teacher with responsibility for teaching business classes and as the COE Coordinator. She taught one Cooperative Education: Business Education class and supervised the Cooperative Education: Business Education Program. The Petitioner holds an instructional certificate with Teacher-Coordinator of Cooperative Vocational-Technical Education Program: Business Education endorsement. By memorandum dated June 30, 1994, the Board notified the petitioner of its decision on June 29, 1994 to take the above-recited actions for economy reasons. It abolished the full-time position of Marketing Education Coordinator, then held by the intervenor. It established a newly created COE/Marketing Education Coordinator requiring both subject matter certifications or endorsements. The petitioner acknowledge receipt of the memorandum of June 30, 1994.

Following abolition of the COE Coordinator position, the petitioner continued as a tenured business teacher at Carteret High School with a full-time assignment of teaching business classes, effective September 1994.

The intervenor began his tenure service in April 1974, having been hired in 1971. He began as a business teacher at Carteret High School and later taught Marketing (also known as Distributive Education) and Cooperative Education: Marketing. The latter course was also known as Distributive Education II and Marketing II. In 1977, he became head of the business department. He holds an instructional certificate with teacher-coordinator of Cooperative Vocational-Technical Education Program, Business Education, and Teacher Coordinator of Cooperative Vocational-Technical Education Program, Distributive Education endorsements. He also has endorsements covering General Business Studies, Distributive Occupations and Bookkeeping and Accounting.

On June 29, 1994, the Board appointed the intervenor to the newly-created position of COE/Marketing Coordinator. The intervenor had the instructional certificate endorsements required for the position. The petitioner was not offered the position because she had not earned instructional certificate endorsements in both Cooperative Business Education and Cooperative Marketing Education.

The Board argues it should be granted summary decision dismissing the balance of the petition because the undisputed facts and documentary evidence bar the claims set forth. Application of the legal principles surrounding summary judgment indicate the Board is entitled to summary decision. The petitioner is not qualified for the new position of COE/Marketing Education Coordinator because that position requires endorsements in both Cooperative Office (Business) Education and Cooperative Marketing Distributive Education. An individual accrues seniority rights only in positions in which she or he has actually served. Therefore, the petitioner cannot demonstrate that she was entitled to the COE/Marketing Education Coordinator position on the basis of seniority. The Third Count of the petition alleges that the petitioner was dismissed from her position of COE/Coordinator by reason of gender and in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10. That statute provides:

> Dismissals resulting from any such reduction [in force] shall not be made by reason of residence, age, sex, marriage, race, religion or political affiliation but shall be made on the basis of seniority according to the standards to be established by the commissioner with the approval of the state board.

The petitioner has failed to show that abolition of her position and the appointment of Scalley, instead of her, to the new position was made by reason of gender. The petitioner merely alleges that because a male teacher was appointed to the new position, she was discriminated against by reason of gender.

The Board's RIF of the Teacher/Coordinator positions in Business and Distributive Education and its creation of the new COE/Marketing Education Coordinator position for economy reasons was entirely within the Board's authority. It is a procedure provided for by statute. In N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, the Legislature has clearly stated, "Nothing in this title . . . shall be held to limit the right of any board of education to reduce the number of teacher staff members employed in the district whenever, . . . it is advisable to abolish any such positions for reasons of economy . . . ."

In June 1994, the Board determined it could not justify offering both cooperative education classes because of low enrollments. The Board was completely within its statutory authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 to consolidate the two cooperative education classes for reasons of economy.

The petitioner's seniority rights that accrued in her position as COE/Coordinator are not transferable to the newly-created position in which capacity she has never served. N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(l)17i provides, "any person holding an instructional certificate with subject area endorsements shall have seniority within the secondary category only in such subject area endorsement(s) under which he or she has actually served." While the petitioner would have superior seniority rights in her position as COE/Coordinator if she and the intervenor were both seeking that position, she is not entitled to superior seniority rights in respect of the newly-created position because her seniority accrued only in the COE/Coordinator position in which she actually served.

Therefore, even though the intervenor, who holds an endorsement in COE does not have seniority in COE because he has never actually served in that position, neither the petitioner nor the intervenor may claim seniority rights in respect of the newly created position precisely because it is new. Seniority at the secondary school level depends upon actual service in a position. The abolition of the petitioner's position and subsequent creation of the new position means that the newly-created position was not a position in which the petitioner could claim superior seniority rights because she has accrued seniority only in her previous position as COE/Coordinator. The petitioner's seniority rights were not violated by the Board's appointment of the intervenor to the COE/Marketing Education Coordinator position.

The petitioner is not qualified for the new position by reason of the fact that she does not have the two endorsements required. While the statutes and code protect carefully the seniority rights of teachers, N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.4(a) expressly gives authority to boards of education to determine the types of background experiences and personal qualities, if any, that the district requires or prefers successful candidates for specific positions to possess in addition to appropriate certification. Furthermore, the requirements may emphasize the nature of experience and the quality of individual achievement desired as opposed to the amount of experience held.

If the present case, the Board determined that the new position should require a teacher to hold dual endorsements, that is, in both Cooperative Office Education and in Cooperative Marketing Education.

The certificates and endorsements of the petitioner and the intervenor are set forth above. It is undisputed that the petitioner does not hold an endorsement in Marketing Education. The intervenor does and has also taught other business classes and has been the Business Department Head for seventeen years. The petitioner was not appointed to the new position, not by reason of her gender, but rather because she is not qualified for the new position on the basis of endorsements held.

Any argument that the intervenor is not tenured in the position of COE Coordinator is irrelevant. It is seniority, not tenure, that is at issue. Both the petitioner and the intervenor are tenured with respect to the COE Coordinator position because both are tenured under their respective instructional certificates. The issue regarding the new position is seniority, not tenure. The petitioner does not have seniority with respect to the newly-created position because seniority depends upon actual service in a particular position, and she has never served in that position. Although tenure rights transfer to all endorsements under a particular certificate, the petitioner does not have seniority in Cooperative Marketing education under her instructional certificate because she does not hold a Cooperative Marketing endorsement. Nor has she ever taught a Cooperative Marketing education class.

The Petitioner:

The petitioner argues that the Board's assertion of declining enrollment in both Cooperative Office Education and Cooperative Marketing Education is not supported by any evidence. The petitioner intends to show that ten students were enrolled in the COE course. This number was in the range that had previously existed and ten students was not an unacceptably low number. In fact, the Marketing/Distributive Education course was no longer viable or justified because that course had only six pupils enrolled.

When a teacher contests the validity of the reason given by a board for an RIF, a hearing on the issue was necessary. The Board asserts that it relied on the long experience of its administrators and the advise of the County Superintendent of Schools. But the Board has submitted no evidence that those administrators had any training or experience in teaching business education courses. There is no evidence that any study, whether done internally or by reviewing the curriculums, goals and objectives of both courses, or by interviewing the teachers who taught the courses was done. Thus, a non-arbitrary, reasonable decision could not have been made. No outside expert was contacted or retained to evaluate the feasibility of consolidating the two courses. The Board did not change the curriculums of the two courses nor did it develop a curriculum for the new course. Rather, two curriculums are being used simultaneously. This has the effect of giving short shrift to pupils in both areas by fifty percent of their time each day. The petitioner's expert has written a report critical of the merger.

The Board's administrators do not have the expertise to rebut the petitioner's expert and have not retained an expert to challenge her statements and conclusions. Nor has the intervenor attempted to explain why, if at all, the petitioner's expert is incorrect.

The petitioner urges that the issue is whether the Board acted arbitrarily, capriciously or unreasonably by consolidating the two courses. The tribunal can, after a trial, easily find arbitrariness, capriciousness or unreasonableness in the Board's actions.

The petitioner also urges that similar cases have held that were dual certification is required, a determination must be made as to whether the duties of the new position are substantially the same as abolished position or positions. See, e.g., Dennery v. Passaic County Regional High School District, 131 N.J. 626 (1993). In the present case, the tribunal cannot find without a factual record that the Board did not act arbitrarily, capriciously or unreasonably.

As to her discrimination count, the petitioner asserts that even though there are no cases relating to the issue of gender being the basis for an RIF, cases interpreting the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (LAD) are analogous. The uniqueness of the context of this case requires the tribunal to modify the traditional McDonald-Douglas test. The issue of qualifications that normally must be proved by a petitioner in an LAD case does not operate here, because the employer was able to sidestep this requirement by its conduct. It is undisputed that the petitioner is a tenured female and clearly qualified to teach Cooperative Office Education. It is also clear that the Board, without evidence supplied to this tribunal, created a consolidated position and retained a male teacher, whose program had become educationally non-viable. The petitioner need not provide direct evidence that the employer had discriminatory reasons in order to survive summary judgment. She need only point to sufficient evidence to support an inference that the employer did not act for its proffered reasons. See, Josey v. John R. Hollingsworth, Corp., 996 F. 2d. 632 (3rd Cir. 1993).

The petitioner contests the Board's articulated reason for combining the two courses. The petitioner also contests the validity of the RIF of her position, the method used to reach the conclusion to RIF and the educational viability of the decision. If, after trial, the court agrees, than the petitioner has met her burden.

DETERMINATION

Initially, I FIND that the Board's decision to eliminate separate Office Education and Marketing Education classes based on low enrollments was within the compass of authority given to the Board by the Legislature. The fact that low enrollments may have been countenanced in the past does not mean that those standards necessarily apply now. As budgets have become more straitened, boards of education have had to rethink virtually every aspect of school operation including course offerings and the related question of minimum enrollments. "The School Law vests the management of the public schools . . . in the local boards of education, and unless they violate the law, or act in bad faith, the exercise of their discretion in the performance of the duties imposed upon them is not subject to interference or reversal." Kenney v. Board of Education of Montclair, 1938 SLD 647 (1935), aff'd St. Bd. of Ed. 649, 653 (1935), and > decision to substitute his judgment for that of the board members on matters which are by statute delegated to the local boards. Finally, boards of education are responsible not to the Commissioner, but to their constituent for the wisdom of their actions. Boult and Harris v. Board of Education of Passaic, 1939-49 SLD 7, 13, aff'd St. Bd. of Ed. 15, aff'd 135 NJL 329 (Sup. Ct. 1947), 136 NJL 521 (E&A 1948).

Common experience and common sense dictate that as resources become increasingly scarce, boards of education will search constantly and diligently for ways to effect savings. The type of action complained of here is commonplace throughout the State. More importantly, however, it is an action precisely provided for by statute. The petitioner's argument that a non-arbitrary, reasonable decision could not have been made must be rejected.

Similarly, there is no requirement that administrators have business education experience. Administrators could not possibly have experience in all areas for which they have responsibility. The responsibility exists, nonetheless.

The Board's motion for summary decision dismissing the First count of the petition must be granted because the petitioner has raised no genuine issue of material fact. This judge is aware that the standards for grant of summary decision should be applied with discriminating care so as not be defeat a summary judgment where the movant is entitled to that relief. The New Jersey Supreme Court in Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995), has held that for summary judgments the proper test is whether there exists a genuine issue with respect to a material fact which requires the judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party in consideration of the applicable evidentiary standard, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the nonmoving party. This assessment of the evidence is to be conducted in the same manner as that required under Rule 4:37-2(b).

In other words, the same standard of proof, here, a simple preponderance, as is used for the merits is to be applied to the summary judgment decision. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 states that when a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. For the reasons cogently set forth by the Board, above, I FIND and CONCLUDE that summary judgment should issue.

The only material facts in this matter are that the Board eliminated the part-time teacher/coordinator positions in Business Education (COE) and Distributive Education (Marketing Education) and the Board created the new COE/Marketing Education Coordinator position and that these actions were entirely within the Board's authority to affect a reduction in force pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9.

The petitioner did not accrue seniority rights in the COE/Marketing Education Coordinator position because she never served in that position. The Board's decision to appoint the intervenor to the newly-created position was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable because he holds endorsements in both areas and the petitioner does not.

A mere assertion to the contrary does not constitute a germane issue of fact.

The Third Count of the petition alleges that the petitioner was dismissed from her COE Coordinator position by reason of gender in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10. However, the petitioner has failed to demonstrate any nexus between the abolition of her position and the appointment of the intervenor, instead of her, by reason of her gender. The mere allegation that a male teacher was appointed to the position does not constitute discrimination by reason of gender and does not constitute a material fact. Nevertheless, the petitioner has put forward no evidence whatsoever to support an inference that the Board acted based on gender when it appointed the intervenor.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that the petitioner was not entitled to the position because she did not have the endorsement required and has never taught a Cooperative Marketing Education class. Thus, she could not have accrued seniority in that position and her gender has absolutely nothing to do with the intervenor's appointment.

I further FIND and CONCLUDE that the administrators' recommendations to the Board were a proper exercise of their powers and duties. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20 provides that the chief school administrator shall have general supervision over the schools of the district and N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3 require that superintendents and assistant superintendents have a school administrator endorsement. This endorsement authorizes a superintendent and an assistant superintendent to direct the formulation of district goals, plans, policies and budgets; to recommend their approval by the district board of education; to direct their implementation; to recommend all staff appointments and other personnel actions for Board approval; to direct district operations and programs; to supervise and evaluate building administrators and central office staff; and to oversee the administration and supervision of school-level operations, staff and programs. It is clearly beyond argument that the superintendent and the assistant superintendent have both the statutory and regulatory authority to determine the appropriateness of recommendations to a board of education that a reduction in force and a consolidation of academic courses take place.

To the extent that the petitioner relies on Klinger v. Cranbury Township Board of Education, 190 N.J. Super. 354 (App. Div. 1982), that reliance is misplaced. The issue in Klinger was whether the reduction in Klinger's duties as a teacher from full-time to .7 time, with a corresponding reduction in salary, violated his tenure and seniority rights. Id. at 355. The Appellate Division held that whether of tenured or nontenured teachers, a reduction in force is entirely within the authority of the Board if done for reasons of economy. Id. at 357.

Klinger simply does not stand for the proposition that when a teacher contests the validity of the reason proffered by the Board for an RIF, a hearing on the issue is necessary. As the Appellate Division noted in respect of the Cranbury Board's physical education program which constituted the subject matter, "the fact that . . . [the Board] preferred two teachers instead of one is no concern to the courts, and so long as petitioner was not treated inferiorly upon reduction in force, he has no legitimate complaint." Id. at 358. I have read Klinger and I find no requirement of a hearing therein.

Nor does Dennery v. Board of Education, 131 N.J. 626 (1993) require a hearing. To the extent the petitioner relies on Dennery, it offers her no support.

In summary, making all inferences that fairly may be made in favor of the petitioner, there still is not enough to block the Board's appropriate motion for summary decision. In consideration of the foregoing, I FIND for the Respondent Board and GRANT the motion to DISMISS. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF CARTERET, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 in that the initial decision was mailed to the parties on April 11, 1996, and the exceptions were filed with the Commissioner of Education on April 25, 1996. Accordingly, neither petitioner's exceptions nor the Board's and intervenor's replies thereto are considered herein.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner determines to adopt in part the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), and to remand this matter solely on the issue defined below.

Initially, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that Counts II and III of the petition are properly dismissed. As to the first count of the petition, the Commissioner agrees that the Board's decision to eliminate petitioner's tenured position of Teacher-Coordinator of Cooperative Vocational-Technical Education ("COE"): Business Education and to also abolish the position of Coordinator of Cooperative Marketing Education in order to establish a new, consolidated position, COE/Marketing Education Coordinator, was within its authority and discretion, notwithstanding that petitioner's expert witness is critical of the Board's action.

However, the Board now requires that the new COE/Marketing Education Coordinator hold endorsements in both Cooperative Office Business Education and Cooperative Marketing Education. Petitioner does not hold the latter endorsement; Intervenor Scally holds both endorsements.

Petitioner correctly argues that the outcome herein rests, in part, on an analysis of the job duties of the new position. (Initial Decision at p. 8) As Dennery, supra , instructs,

> When the duties of the position in which a teaching-staff member has acquired tenure are substantially identical to those of the position that the person seeks, a local school board may not sidestep an educator's tenure rights by simply renaming the position or tacking on additional meaningless requirements. (Dennery at 639)

The Commissioner finds nothing in the record of this matter to indicate that an analysis of the COE/Marketing Education Coordinator job duties has been effectuated so as to satisfy him that the Board has properly set a requirement for dual certification.[1] Thus, this matter is remanded solely to determine, by stipulation or testimony, the job duties of the position of COE/Marketing Education Coordinator so as to assess the certification(s) required for the position, as well as petitioner's claim to the position.

Accordingly, the initial decision is adopted in part, as set forth above, and remanded to the OAL for further proceedings in accordance with the parameters established herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

[1] While the record demonstrates that the parties stipulated, that "Respondent had abolished [petitioner's] tenured position and had 'established a newly created COE/Marketing Education Coordinator [position] requiring subject matter certification in both Marketing Education and Cooperative Office Education for the purposes of economy'" (Parties' Stipulation of Facts, dated June 28, 1995), this stipulation appears to merely affirm that the event took place, rather than to evidence the parties' agreement that the new position rightfully requires dual certification.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner sought reinstatement to a full-time tenured position following Board's actions eliminating her tenured position of Teacher-Coordinator of Cooperative Vocational-Technical Education (COE): Business Education and abolishing the position of Coordinator of Cooperative Marketing Education in order to establish a new, consolidated position of COE/Marketing Education Coordinator.

In prior decision, ALJ found summary judgment was appropriate. ALJ concluded administrators' recommendations to the Board that a reduction in force and a consolidation of academic courses take place were appropriate and that petitioner was not dismissed from her position by reason of her gender (male teacher was appointed to new position). ALJ concluded that petitioner was not entitled to the new position because she did not hold the two endorsements required and she never taught a Cooperative Marketing Education class. Board's motion to dismiss was granted. Commissioner concurred with ALJ that the Board's "RIF" of petitioner and abolishment of two positions in order to establish new consolidated position were within its authority and discretion. However, citing Dennery, the Commissioner remanded matter solely to determine, by stipulation or testimony, the job duties of the position of COE/Marketing Education Coordinator so as to assess the certification(s) required for the position, as well as petitioner's claim to the position.

On remand, the ALJ concluded that the job duties of the COE/Marketing Education Coordinator properly demanded that the instructor hold the two endorsements the Board required. As petitioner did not possess the two endorsements, there was no justiciable issue here and the petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 6804-96
AGENCY DKT. NO. 384-9/94
(ON REMAND EDU 10298-94)

MARY KOPKO,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF CARTERET,

Respondent.

Stephen E. Klausner, Esq., for petitioner (Klausner and Hunter, attorneys)

Viola S. Lordi, Esq., for respondent (Wilentz, Goldman and Spitzer, attorneys)

Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., for intervenor John L. Scally

Record Closed: July 18, 1997 Decided: September 11, 1997[1]

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Mary Kopko, petitioner, seeks reinstatement to a full-time, tenured position and claims the Carteret Board of Education, respondent, has failed and refused to recognize her tenure and seniority rights. She also demands sixty days' termination pay and reimbursement of any salary wrongfully withheld and she further alleges gender discrimination in a reduction of force that led to her loss of the position.

The matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. Following a prehearing conference and the addition of an intervenor, the matter proceeded on the papers. An initial decision was issued on April 3, 1996. On May 22, 1996, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that Counts II and III of the petition were properly dismissed. As to the first Count, the Commissioner agreed that the Board's decision to eliminate the petitioner's tenured position of Teacher-Coordinator of Cooperative Vocational-Technical Education (COE): Business Education, and also to abolish the position of Coordinator of Cooperative Marketing Education in order to establish a new, consolidated position, COE/Marketing Education Coordinator, was within its authority and discretion.

However, the Board requires that the new COE/Marketing Education Coordinator hold endorsements in both Cooperative Office Business Education and Cooperative Marketing Education. The petitioner does not hold the latter endorsement. Intervenor Scally holds both endorsements.

The matter was remanded for reconsideration of that part of Count I that goes to the duties of the new position as they relate to the endorsements required. The judge ordered limited hearing and that was accomplished on June 25, 1997. Between the remand and the second hearing, Intervenor Scally left the Board's employ.

At hearing, the sole issues were (1) What are the job duties of the COE/Marketing Education Coordinator and (2) Do these duties properly demand the certifications now required for the position.

The board supplied the certifications of Joseph A. Torre and S. Louis Panigrosso concerning deliberations and decisions made by the Carteret Board relevant to this matter.

S. Louis Panigrosso, superintendent of schools since July 1994, testified concerning the courses of study for Cooperative Business Education and Marketing II (Exhibits A and B). All courses are readopted by the Board in August of each year. The witness could not say when these courses were first adopted. When the two courses were consolidated, a new job was created. The course objective proficiencies are not the same. The Board voted to combine the two courses. As far as the witness was concerned, that incorporated all goals and proficiencies from the two courses.

The witness did not observe Scally after the merger of the two courses. That is the job of others. The witness met with the high school principal and discussed the courses. Among the job duties are provision of Cooperative Business Education, Marketing Education and outside experience. After the Board moved to combine the two courses, the witness looked at the certifications and endorsements required and believed both were necessary to teach the combined course. He consulted the New Jersey Administrative Code and spoke to the County Superintendent of Schools by telephone. He reviewed the certifications and endorsements of all business teachers.

After the merger was accomplished, the course was entitled Cooperative Business Education and Marketing II. Credit was given under either course title. Instruction was given in the same class however, to approximately fourteen pupils.

The Assistant Superintendent/Business Administrator testified. He was the high school principal in June 1994 when the Board adopted the change. He reviewed his certification of August 27, 1996 (R-2) and adopted it as his direct testimony.

The witness stated that in the early 1990's, the office education coordinator did classroom teaching, monitored outside jobs, helped secure jobs and also serve as a troubleshooter. The Marketing II teacher had similar duties as to marketing and distributive education. The witness described the job descriptions for the two courses as different and overlapping. Course proficiencies differ in the main, but there is some overlap. The responsibility of pupils to be employed is the same in both courses. However, secretarial skills are not the same as cashier skills.

The Board decided in June 1994, while he was high school principal, to make changes. No one wanted any pupil denied an opportunity. On August 1, 1994, the witness became assistant superintendent.

The objectives of each course focused on skills that did not necessarily relate to skills in the other course. Reference is to courses of study. The goals are different. In effect, two separate curriculums are offered in one class. Some goals continue to be separate, some continue to be similar or the same. There are differences in course objectives. There are similar or parallel district goals. No new course description was drafted for the merged course. He refers in paragraph seven of his certification to significant differences in objectives.

At the superintendent's direction, he contacted the County Superintendent of Schools. Inasmuch as the title for the consolidated position was not an unrecognized title, the County Superintendent's approval was not required prior to the appointment of Scally to the position. The witness nevertheless obtained the oral approval of the County Superintendent. Because N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.1(a) requires each teaching staff endorsement be held for the corresponding teaching assignment, the Board determined that both endorsements should be required of a teaching staff member assigned to teach and coordinate a consolidated course covering Cooperative Business (office) Education and Cooperative Marketing Education.

DETERMINATION

The scope of the remand is to determine what the job duties of the COE/Marketing Education Coordinator are and whether these duties properly demand the certifications now required for the position. The short answer is that the job duties are virtually unchanged from what they were before the positions were consolidated. These duties properly demand the dual certification the Board required.

Exhibit A, Cooperative Business Education, focuses on a well-rounded training program to prepare the student for an office position upon graduation. Exhibit B, Marketing II, is designed to provide students with an out-of-school afternoon session. The inductive method of instruction, such as conferences and discussions based on actual working experience of the trainees, is a unique feature of the course. Thus, one basic difference is that the instruction in Marketing II is ongoing and derives to a great extent from the pupil's experience, while the pupils in Cooperative Business Education are taught various skills and theories in the classroom and they attempt to transfer these to job situations. At the same time, district-wide goals for the two courses are the same.

The combination of differences and similar characteristics may be shown graphically.

COURSE OBJECTIVES
(PROFICIENCIES)

	Cooperative Business Education		Marketing II
1.	To allow students to apply the various skills and theories learned in the classroom to actual on the job situations.	1.	To offer instruction in distribution, marketing and management.
2.	To provide a method for students to explore various office positions thereby aiding them in their selection of a proper occupation.	2.	To provide an opportunity for the student to select and prepare for a career in the areas of distribution.
3.	To provide realistic business experiences that are not readily available in the classroom.	3.	To afford students the opportunity to develop marketable skills.
4.	To further enhance the ability of the student to secure permanent employment in the area of choice upon graduation.	4.	To upgrade the competence of students to the maximum.
5.	To develop desirable personality traits, such as cooperation, tact, initiative, mental alertness, dependability and punctuality in order to get along with others and to handle office work competitively.	5.	To aid in the improvement of the techniques of distribution.
		6.	To assist persons already employed to do a more effective job.
		7.	To develop a broader understanding of the social and economical responsibilities of those engaged in distribution in a free, competitive society.

(CAREER EDUCATION)

1.	The students will learn to establish goals that are important to them.	1.	The students will become proficient in using resource information to make career decisions.
2.	The students will recognize that their educational experiences are a part of their career development.	2.	The students will develop the skills required to identify the task, specify resources required, outline procedures, perform operations and evaluate the product.

3.	The students will understand the relationship between career and lifestyle.	3.	The students will recognize the implication of working, with or without supervision independently, and with others.
4.	The students will understand the range of social and economic benefits associated with various occupations.	4.	The students will understand the roles of leisure and the air of achieving self-satisfaction.
5.	The students will identify personal goals as part of making career decisions.
6.	The students will become familiar with the use of basic tools, equipment, and materials associated with business, commercial, and industrial activities.
7.	The students will relate information about themselves in selecting, learning or performing duties.
8.	The students will understand and appreciate the relationship of work, continual learning, the arts, and leisure in achieving social responsibility and self-satisfaction.

The Comprehensive Business Education endorsement on an instructional certificate authorizes the holder to teach business education subjects in all schools. These subjects include bookkeeping and accounting, secretarial studies, general business, consumer education, business mathematics and business English. N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)4i. There is an endorsement for bookkeeping and accounting that authorizes the holder to teach bookkeeping, accounting and business mathematics. N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)4ii. The general business endorsement authorizes the holder to teach general business studies including, but not necessarily limited to business law, economic geography, economics, social business studies, consumer education[,] sales, retailing and advertising. N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)4iv. The secretarial studies endorsement authorizes teaching of shorthand, typewriting, office procedures, business machines and business English. N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)4v. The marketing and distributive occupations endorsement authorize the holder to teach marketing and distributive occupations which include sales, advertising and retailing. N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)4vii. Clearly, the comprehensive business education endorsement subsumes the endorsements for bookkeeping and accounting and for secretarial studies. It does not subsume the marketing and distributive occupations endorsement. Thus, the person assigned to teach the combined course at Carteret High School would have to hold two endorsements to be authorized to cover all areas the course presents.

The foregoing are found as FACTS.

It must be noted that the Board's administrators contacted the County Superintendent of Schools while the consolidation was under consideration. The Board and its administrators took reasonable steps under the circumstances. While it would have been better if they had asked for the County Superintendent's opinion in writing, the steps they took were appropriate to the circumstances.

It must also be noted that the petitioner's objection to the administrators' lack of business education experience is not relevant. It would be impossible for high school and district administrators to have experience in all areas of instruction. It is sufficient that they hold supervisory and administrative certifications and endorsements.

In consideration of all the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that the job duties of the COE/Marketing Education Coordinator properly demand that the instructor hold the two endorsements the Carteret Board of Education requires.

The petitioner herein does not possess the two endorsements.

Therefore, there is no justiciable issue before me. The petition of appeal is DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and were considered by the Commissioner in rendering the within decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the Board has demonstrated that the job duties of the COE/Marketing Education Coordinator are such that it has appropriately required dual certification in order to hold that position, notwithstanding that the Board, apparently, has not yet developed a single job or course description to accommodate the consolidated Cooperative Business Education and Marketing II courses.[1] The certifications and testimony of both Joseph A. Torre and S. Louis Panigrosso fairly establish that the COE/Marketing Education Coordinator is responsible for teaching two distinct occupational areas, i.e., the broader study of business education, and the more narrow field of marketing education.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein.[2] The Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF EAST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY, : DECISION

RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction, challenged abolishment of his position pursuant to a reduction in force in August 1994. Petitioner sought reappointment to another position in the District in keeping with his tenure and seniority rights.

Citing recent Superior Court decision in Gittleman, ALJ concluded that petitioner was entitled to fill any vacant administrative position or any administrative position held by a nontenured individual in accordance with his tenure and seniority rights because the Court held that "[an] educator who has attained tenure by virtue of the requisite service in a specific position will have tenure with respect to all positions under the particular certificate" regardless of whether that educator had actually served in the area (Dennery; Ellicott). Moreover, the ALJ concluded that petitioner should receive back pay from October 18, 1994 to August 14, 1995 at the highest level administrative position to which he was entitled in accordance with his tenure and seniority rights, minus the $7,000 he earned as a consultant.

Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that petitioner's tenure and seniority rights were violated when he was terminated from employment with the Board due to a reduction in force. Commissioner found, in light of the April 29, 1996 Appellate Division decision in Nelson, it is no longer tenable to interpret Gittleman, and Dennery to permit concepts of separate tenurability based on N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Based on Nelson, Commissioner affirmed the ALJ's position that based on Gittleman, petitioner was entitled to hold any vacant administrative position or any administrative position held by a nontenured individual in accordance with his tenure rights. Commissioner ordered that petitioner receive mitigated compensation.

BEFORE MARIE P. SIMONELLI, A.L.J.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Robert L. Jefferson (Dr. Jefferson) appealed the abolition of his position as Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction with respondent, Board of Education of the City of East Orange, Essex County (the Board), based upon an alleged reduction in force. Dr.

Jefferson sought re-establishment of and appointment to that position or appointment to another position within the District in keeping with his tenure and seniority rights.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On November 15, 1994, Dr. Jefferson filed a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education. The Board filed an Answer on November 23, 1994. On November 21, 1994, Dr. Jefferson filed a Motion for Emergent Relief. On December 23, 1994, the Honorable Richard McGill entered an Order denying the motion. On June 30, 1995, Dr. Jefferson filed a Motion for Partial Summary Decision. The Board filed its opposition thereto on March 3, 1995. On March 8, 1995, the undersigned entered an Order denying the motion.

The undersigned held a Prehearing Conference and entered a Prehearing Order on April 4, 1995. The parties appeared for the hearing on December 4, 1995. Prior to the start of the hearing, Dr. Jefferson filed another Motion for Summary Decision. The undersigned reserved decision on that motion and permitted the Board to file a Brief in opposition thereto. Dr. Jefferson also withdrew this claim for re-establishment of and reinstatement to the position of Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction or appointment to a position within the District in keeping with his tenure and seniority rights. Dr. Jefferson seeks back pay.

The hearing was held on December 4, 5, 6 and 7, 1995. The record closed on February 16, 1996, after the submission of all post-hearing Briefs.

FACTS

The parties stipulated the following which I FIND as FACTS in this case:

1. Dr. Jefferson was a tenured teaching staff member.

2. Dr. Jefferson holds an Administrative Certificate with a School Administrator endorsement.

3. The Board hired Dr. Jefferson in August 1987 as an Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction.

4. Dr. Jefferson served as Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction until August 1994

5. During the 1991-92 school year, Dr. Jefferson served on an interim basis as Superintendent.

6. Following the abolition of Dr. Jefferson's position as Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction, the Board did not conduct an analysis of whether there were other administrative positions in the District into which Dr. Jefferson could be placed.

7. Prior to the abolition of Dr. Jefferson's position, Dr. Jefferson consistently received positive evaluations.

8. John J. Howard, Jr., Ph.D. (Dr. Howard) became Superintendent in about July 1992.

9. At about the time the Board abolished Dr. Jefferson's position, it appointed Dariel Haythe to the position of Supervisor of Evaluation and Dr. Loretta Osakwe to the position of Supervisor of Social Studies.

10. On about December 4, 1994, the Board advertised in the Star Ledger vacancies for the positions of Supervisor of Evaluation and Unique School Supervisor.

11. The Board voted four to three in favor of Dr. Howard's appointment as Superintendent.

12. The following positions were vacant at the time the Board abolished Dr. Jefferson's position or became vacant after that time:

a. School Business Administrator/School Board Secretary;
b. Supervisor of Construction;
c. Unique School Supervisor;
d. Supervisor of Secondary Language Arts;
e. Supervisor of Child Study;
f. Supervisor of Speech;
g. Supervisor of Grants;
h. Assistant Principal of East Orange High School;
i. Supervisor of Child Study;
j. Supervisor of Physical Education;
k. Supervisor of Physical Education, Health and Drivers Education;
l. Supervisor of Language Arts;
m. Supervisor of Mathematics;
n. Department Head of Performing Arts at East Orange High School;
o. Assistant Principal of Cicely Tyson School;
p. Assistant Principal of Lincoln Elementary School;
q. Supervisor of Evaluation; and
r. Supervisor of Health Services.

13. At the time the Board abolished Dr. Jefferson's position, non-tenured individuals held the following administrative positions:

a. Director of Secondary Education;
b. Principal position held by Seymour Lerner;
c. Superintendent position held by Dr. Howard;
d. Assistant Principal position held by Joyce Eldridge-Howard;
e. School Business Administrator/Board Secretary;
f. Director of Community Education Center;

g. Supervisor of reading, grades 7 to 12;

h. Principal position held by Yvette Peacock;

i. Assistant Principal position held by Michael Banks;

j. Assistant Principal position held by Gloria Watson;

k. Supervisor of Good Start;

l. Assistant Principal position held by Azel Colston, Jr.

m. Assistant Principal position held by Sadie Vincent;

n. Supervisor of Social Studies position held by Loretta Osakwe;

o. Supervisor of Evaluation position held by Dariel Haythe;

p. Supervisor of Evaluation position held by Maurice Rybowski;

q. Director of Staff Development;

r. Principal of East Orange High School;

s. Principal of Truth Middle School;

t. Principal of Stockton Elementary School;

u. Assistant Principal of East Orange High School;

v. Assistant Principal of Washington Elementary School;

w. Assistant Director of Special Education;

x. Assistant Director of Student Personnel Services;

y. Supervisor of Bilingual/Bicultural & Foreign Languages

z. Supervisor of Language Arts, grades 7 to 12;

aa. Supervisor of Mathematics, grade 3 to 5; and

bb. Supervisor of Mathematics, grades 6 to 8.

14. Each of the Supervisor positions listed in paragraphs 12 and 13 above require an Administrative Certificate with a School Administrator endorsement or a Supervisor endorsement.

15. The School Business Administrator position listed above required an Administrative Certificate with a School Administrator endorsement or a School Business Administrator endorsement.

16. Each of the Principal or Assistant Principal positions set forth in paragraphs 12 and 13 above required an Administrative Certificate with a School Administrator endorsement or a Principal endorsement.

17. The Superintendent position required an Administrative Certificate with a School Administrator endorsement.

18. The Director of Secondary Education, Director of Community Education and Director of Staff Development positions required an Administrative Certificate with a Director endorsement;

19. Dr. Jefferson had the necessary Certificate and endorsement to fill each of the positions listed in paragraphs 12 and 13 above.

20. Since the time the Board abolished Dr. Jefferson's position, it failed to offer him another administrative position in the District.

(See: C-1 and C-2.) The parties also stipulated during the hearing that Dr. Jefferson's performance during his employment in the District was outstanding or above average.

In addition to the above, having heard the witnesses and reviewed the Exhibits, I FIND the following FACTS:

Dr. Jefferson received his Ph.D. in 1982. He holds a School Administrator Certificate under N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3. Prior to Dr. Jefferson's employment in the District, the State had taken over the District's fiscal operations. The State also had refused to certify the District and had placed it into a Level II status due to deficiencies in the areas of curriculum and instruction in reading, writing and mathematics. The Board advertised for an Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction. Dr. Jefferson applied for the position and the Board appointed him to it on August 28, 1987. His job was to remove the deficiencies and to get the District out of Level II status. Dr. Jefferson obtained tenure in the 1991-92 school year.

During the 1991-92 school year, Dr. Jefferson served as Interim Superintendent while the Board conducted a nationwide search for a new Superintendent. Dr. Jefferson applied for the position. He and Dr. Howard were the only finalists. In April 1992, the Board selected Dr. Howard and appointed him to the position of Superintendent effective July 1, 1992.

Dr. Jefferson returned to his tenured position of Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction. He oversaw the Director of Staff Development, the Teachers on Special Assignment, the Director of Secondary Education, Chapter 1, the Supervisor of Secondary Reading, the Supervisor of Secondary Language Arts, the Supervisor of Secondary Math, the Supervisor of Middle School Math, all Principals, the Director of Instruction Services, Science and Technology, the Supervisor of Gifted & Talented, the Supervisor of Bilingual, the Supervisor of Social Studies and Music Art, the Supervisor of Technology and Science, the Director of Elementary Education, Chapter 1, the Supervisor of Elementary Reading, the Supervisor of Elementary Language Arts, the Supervisor of Elementary Math and the Supervisor of Targeted Skills (P-13).

Prior to the time Dr. Howard became Superintendent, the District still was in a Level II status and was in jeopardy of a State takeover. When Dr. Howard began his employment, his main objective was to correct the deficiencies and to get the District into Level I certification status. To accomplish his objective, Dr. Howard began to restructure the District. As a result of the restructuring, Dr. Jefferson's duties changed during the 1992-93 school year. He no longer oversaw the Director of Staff Development, the Teachers on Special Assignment, the Director of Secondary Education, Chapter 1, the Supervisor of Secondary Reading, the Supervisor of Secondary Language Arts, the Supervisor of Secondary Math, the Supervisor of Middle School Math, the Director of Elementary Education, Chapter 1, the Supervisor of Elementary Reading, the Supervisor of Elementary Language Arts and the Supervisor of Targeted Skills (P-28 and R-6).

Dr. Jefferson's duties further changed during the 1993-94 school year. He no longer oversaw the Supervisor of Vocational Education/Science, the Supervisor of Social Studies and Music Art, and the Supervisor of Technology and Science (P-28 and P-16). By the 1994-95 school year, Dr. Jefferson's position no longer existed (P-21). The Board abolished Dr. Jefferson's position on August 16, 1994. By letter, dated August 17, 1994, the Board formally notified Dr. Jefferson of its decision (P-24). Dr. Jefferson filed an appeal on November 15, 1994.

At the time of the abolition of Dr. Jefferson's position, there were vacant positions or positions held by non-tenured individuals as set forth in the paragraphs 12 and 13 in the stipulated facts above. Although Dr. Jefferson held the necessary Certificate and endorsement for all of those positions, the Board did not advise him of any re-employment rights, nor did it offer him any of those positions.

After the abolition of Dr. Jefferson's position on August 16, 1994, the Board continued to pay his full salary until October 17, 1994 at the rate of $89,378 per year. He also earned $7,000 as a consultant and he sought other employment. On August 14, 1995, Dr. Jefferson was appointed to the position of Superintendent by the Board of Education of Englewood. His salary in that position is $110,000 per year.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

The Board argues for the first time in its post-hearing Brief that Dr. Jefferson's appeal should be dismissed because it was untimely filed. The Board claims that Dr. Jefferson filed his appeal one day late. A cause of action for a claim based upon termination of employment because of a RIF accrues when an employee receives written notice that his or her position was abolished. The employee has ninety days from receipt of the written notice to file an appeal. Mullen v. Boonton Town Bd. of Ed., 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 583, 589; aff'd, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 591; Sasse v. Bd. of Ed. of the Borough of Point Pleasant, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 339; aff'd, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 345.

In this case, the Board produced no evidence at the hearing as to when Dr. Jefferson actually received the Board's letter, dated August 17, 1994, which formally notified him of its decision to abolish his position Absent such evidence, the undersigned relies upon New Jersey Court Rule 1:3-3 which adds three days to the period of time after service by mail. Assuming that the Board mailed the letter to Dr. Jefferson on August 17, 1994, he is deemed by this Court Rule to have received it by August 20, 1994. He filed his appeal on November 15, 1994. This was within the ninety day period required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

With respect to the remaining claim, Dr. Jefferson holds a School Administrator Certificate under N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3. He is tenured under that regulation. In addition to qualifying to serve as an Assistant Superintendent, N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3 also qualifies Dr. Jefferson to serve as an Executive Superintendent, a Director, a Principal, a Supervisor and a School Business Administrator. The parties stipulated that Dr. Jefferson had the necessary Certificate and endorsements for the positions set forth in paragraphs 12 and 13 of the stipulated facts that either were vacant or were filled by non-tenured employees at the time the Board abolished his position.

In Dennery v. Board of Education, 131 N.J. 626 (1993), the New Jersey Supreme Court stated, in pertinent part:

> An educator who has attained tenure by virtue of the requisite service in a specific position will have tenure with respect to all positions under that particular certificate. Tenure under any one endorsement entitles an educator to tenure under all endorsements obtained under his or her certificate... Thus, an educator with tenure in any endorsement that he or she posses can, in effect, extend or transfer that tenure to other endorsements that are subsumed under the same Certificate. (Citations omitted).

Id. at 634.

The Commissioner of Education disagrees with the holding in Dennery. In Nelson v. Board of Ed. of the Tp. of Old Bridge, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 257, the Administrative Law Judge held that the language in Dennery mandated that the petitioner, who had obtained tenure under one Certificate, was entitled to another position requiring the same Certificate. Even though the petitioner never held that other position, his tenure attached to that position. The Commissioner disagreed and held that statutory and case law support the proposition that positions under an Administrative Certificate are separately tenurable.

The Commissioner also relied upon N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 which provides, in pertinent part:

> The services of all teaching staff members including all teachers, principals other than administrative principals, assistant principals, vice principals, assistant superintendents, and all school nurses including school nurse supervisors, head school nurses, chief school nurses, school nurse coordinators, and any other nurse performing school nursing services and such other employees as are in positions which require then to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of education, excepting those who are not the holder of proper certificates in full force and effect, shall be under tenure...

The Commissioner held that this statute delineates those positions which are separately tenurable.

The Commissioner also held that the Dennery court did not address the separately tenurable positions specifically enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, nor did it consider whether tenure could be transferred across endorsements to the administrative certificate at issue herein, as an examination of these was unnecessary in the case before it. Nelson, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d at 261. The Commissioner reasoned that the Dennery court based its decision on a long line of cases that support the notion of separately tenurable positions. The Commissioner contended that the New Jersey Supreme Court had no intention of eliminating the requirement of separate tenure.

The Appellate Division's recent decision in Gittleman v. Board of Education of the Township of Hamilton, Mercer County, (Docket No. A-3659-93T5, decided January 2, 1996), is contrary to the Commissioner's position. Gittleman involved the reassignment of the petitioner from the position of Director of Elementary Education to the position of High School Principal due to a reduction in force. The petitioner claimed that the reassignment violated her tenure rights because it resulted in a decrease in her salary and because a nontenured person continued to be employed in the position of Director of Elementary Education. The petitioner also claimed that she had more seniority in the position of Director of Elementary Education and that she had tenure and seniority in the position of Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services.

An Administrative Law Judge ruled that each Director position was a separate seniority category and, because petitioner had more seniority as Director of Elementary Education than the person who had been moved into that position, the petitioner should be reinstated to that position.

The Acting Commissioner adopted the Administrative Law Judge's ruling and, by way of modification, held that petitioner had tenure as a Principal because that was "both the designated legal title of the Director position for tenure purposes and the certificate required to hold it pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3(b)." Since the position of Director of Elementary Education had been eliminated, the Acting Commissioner ordered that the petitioner must "be assigned to either a principalship within her entitlement or the appropriate preferred eligibility list."

The petitioner appealed further to the State Board of Education. She argued that the governing regulations qualified a teaching staff member who possessed a Principal's Certificate to serve in an Assistant Superintendent position. She, therefore, argued that she had tenure as an Assistant Superintendent rather than as a Principal. The State Board affirmed the Acting Commissioner and, for reasons different from those relied upon by the Acting Commissioner, it agreed that the petitioner had accrued seniority as a Director of Elementary Education rather than as a Director.

On appeal to the Appellate Division, the petitioner argued that she had tenure entitlement to the position of Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services when her former position was abolished in a reduction in force. The Appellate Division held that under N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(b), the petitioner was qualified and entitled to hold the position of Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction. The Appellate Court also held that the petitioner had tenure in that position because "an educator who has attained tenure by virtue of the requisite service in a specific position will have tenure with respect to all positions under the particular certificate" regardless of whether that educator had actually served in the area. Slip. Op. at p. 9, citing Dennery, 131 N.J. at, 634 and Ellicott v. Board of Education, Tp. of Frankford, 251 N.J. Super. 342, 349 (App. Div. 1991).

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that Dr. Jefferson was entitled to fill any vacant administrative position or any administrative position held by a non-tenured individual as set forth in paragraphs 12 and 13 of the stipulated facts in accordance with his tenure and seniority rights. I further CONCLUDE that Dr. Jefferson shall receive back pay from October 18, 1994 to August 14, 1995 at the rate of the highest level administrative position to which he was entitled in accordance with his tenure and seniority rights, minus the $7,000 he earned as a consultant. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

ROBERT L. JEFFERSON,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF EAST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Although petitioner submitted on March 27, 1996, a reply to the Board's submission, there is no provision for such a reply in statute or regulation. Accordingly, petitioner's submission of March 27, 1996 is not herein considered.

Petitioner's exceptions stress that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) erred in calculating damages for petitioner in that "[he] lost approximately 10 months of service credit and employer contributions to the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund and social security fund and 15 days of vacation time." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 2) Petitioner argues that such damages should be granted as a result of the ALJ's finding that his tenure and seniority rights were violated. (Id.)

Petitioner cites case law including Board of Education, City of Newark, Essex County v. Levitt, 197 N.J. Super. 239 (App Div 1984), to stand for the proposition that the Commissioner has broad power to fashion an appropriate remedy, including the award of specific items of compensatory damages not expressly enumerated by statute. Petitioner further cites Takakjian v. Fairview Borough Bd. of Ed., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 184 (Feb. 18, 1993) to illustrate that the Commissioner has, in past cases, awarded damages including lost salary, medical benefits, contributions to the pension fund and social security benefits, where a petitioner's tenure or seniority rights have been violated by a local school district. Therefore, petitioner argues, he is entitled to the full breadth of compensatory relief. (Id.)

In reply exceptions, the Board argues that the decision of the ALJ is in error and cites numerous Commissioner and State Board decisions which have consistently interpreted N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 as a provision which requires separate tenure under each endorsement listed in statute in order for an individual to claim entitlement to a school position outside of his or her endorsement. (Board's Reply Exceptions at pp. 1-4) The Board distinguished the present case from the decision in Dennery, supra, wherein a guidance counselor with an educational services certificate and an administrative certificate attempted to transfer tenure rights obtained under the educational services certificate to the administrative certificate. In Dennery, the Supreme Court held that tenure could not be transferred between certificates. In contrast, the Board notes that

> Dennery did not address the separately tenurable positions specifically listed in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and Dennery also did not consider the issue presented in the instant case whether tenure may be properly transferred among endorsements to the administrative certificate. (emphasis in text) (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 5)

Further, the Board argued that the Gittleman, supra, decision was decided on a limited portion of Dennery, supra, which stated that "[a]n educator who has attained tenure by virtue of the requisite service in a specific position will have tenure with respect to all positions under the particular certificate." Dennery at 634. (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 5) The Board avers that the ALJ should not have relied on Gittleman in the instant matter in that a teacher position is not at issue in the present case and that the term educator does not apply to administrators. (Board's Reply Exceptions at pp. 5-6) The Board then cited the Commissioner's decision in Nelson, supra, to advocate that Dennery was not intended to overturn the long-established precedent of tenure law in that it did not address the separately tenurable positions specifically enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, nor did it consider whether tenure could be transferred across endorsements to the administrative certificate at issue herein. Thus, the Board avers that there was no indication in any reasonable reading of Dennery that the Supreme Court intended to reverse prior holdings in this area. (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 6)

The Board next avers that the ALJ erred in providing the Board with a mitigation credit of $7,000 in that it was owed $10,000 from petitioner for unemployment received between October 18, 1994 and August 14, 1995. (Id.)

Lastly, the Board argued that the ALJ erred in hearing this case in that it was time-barred. (Id. at p. 7) In that this issue was fairly considered and addressed by the ALJ, this argument is not more fully set forth herein.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that petitioner's tenure and seniority rights were violated when he was terminated from employment with the Board due to a reduction in force. Although the Board construes the law in a manner consistent with prior Commissioner and State Board decisions, in light of the Court's ruling in G. Michael Nelson v. Board of Education of the Township of Old Bridge, decided by the New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division, on April 29, 1996, (A-6441-94T5), it is no longer tenable to interpret Gittleman, supra, and Dennery, supra, to permit concepts of separate tenurability based on N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Therefore, in light of Nelson, the ALJ's position, based on Gittleman that petitioner was entitled to hold any vacant administrative position or any administrative position held by a nontenured individual in accordance with his tenure rights, must be affirmed.

With respect to damages, the Commissioner affirms the ALJ's determination that the Board reimburse petitioner back pay at the rate of compensation of the highest level administrative position to which he was entitled and further clarifies the phrase back pay to include emoluments such as medical benefits, seniority rights and contributions to the pension fund and Social Security, as these are normally contemplated when ordering a petitioner to be made whole following a violation of employment rights. Additionally, the Commissioner affirms the ALJ's calculation of mitigation credit as $7,000, based on credible testimony that petitioner had not received $3,000 owed to him by the Board.

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL and orders that petitioner immediately be reimbursed for salary and emoluments at the highest level administrative position to which he was entitled from October 18, 1994 to August 14, 1995, in accordance with his tenure rights, minus the $7,000 earned as a consultant.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning resident and taxpayer contended that the Board's proposed building project for a new middle school was sufficiently different from that approved by referendum so as to render such approval void.

ALJ denied without prejudice the Board's motion for summary decision, finding that there was genuine issue of material fact as to whether construction according to the one-story plan would contravene the voters' approval of a two-story plan. Moreover, ALJ directed parties to attempt to develop a plan for construction of the new middle school that addresses petitioner's concerns in order to avoid costs of full litigation. Upon interlocutory review of the decision, the Commissioner affirmed ALJ's order denying the Board's motion for summary judgment without prejudice, with modification. Commissioner concurred with ALJ that given petitioner's specific allegations and supporting certifications, this matter clearly raised genuine issues of material fact that precluded its being decided on a summary basis. Commissioner did not concur with the ALJ's directive concerning settlement of the matter; the Commissioner will encourage settlement efforts but not order them to a specific end.

Following hearing complete with testimony and numerous exhibits, the ALJ dismissed the petition, finding that petitioner did not prove that the Board's exercise of its discretion in its choice of the one-story plans was unlawful or arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. ALJ determined that petitioner did not present evidence that the majority of voters intended their approval of the referendum to limit construction to the two-story schematics.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own, finding that the ALJ's consideration of extrinsic evidence to the extent that it may or may not have formed the basis of voter approval of the referendum was appropriate. Petition was dismissed.

David W. Carroll, Esq., for respondent (Carroll & Weiss, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 28, 1996 Decided: April 10, 1996

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, a resident and taxpayer of Montgomery Township, claims that the Montgomery Township Board of Education (BOE) should be enjoined from construction of a new middle school according to one-story plans and ordered to construct the school according to two-story schematics previously considered but abandoned by the BOE. The BOE submits that it may proceed according to the one-story plans.

The facts are summarized as follows: Consistent with educational specifications approved by the New Jersey Department of Education's Bureau of Facility Planning (Bureau), the BOE's architect prepared schematics and cost estimates for school buildings, including schematics and a cost estimate for a two-story new middle school. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-16; N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.1 to -5.5. The BOE then adopted a resolution providing for a special election on a referendum authorizing issuance of bonds to fund construction of the school buildings. N.J.S.A. 18A:20 -4.2(d), 18A:22-33. Copies of the schematics, including schematics for a two-story new middle school, were displayed in public buildings in the township. During BOE meetings, the schematics and possible sites were described as subject to change. The schematics were subjected to public comment, input from school professionals, and study by the BOE. The BOE mailed to Township voters brochures explaining the referendum with copies of the schematics, including the schematics for a two-story new middle school. Copies of the schematics, including the schematics for a two-story new middle school, were displayed near an entrance to the referendum election polling place. Township voters approved the referendum. Thereafter, the schematics and possible sites were subjected to further public comment, input from school professionals and study by the BOE and, as directed by the BOE, consistent with the approved educational specifications, the architects prepared schematics for the one-story new middle school. The architect then developed one-story preliminary plans, which were approved by the Bureau and from which the BOE intends to develop final plans for construction of the new middle school. N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.5, -1.6.

The petitioner's position is summarized as follows: He contends that the referendum voters intended to limit construction to the building described in the two-story schematics and that the one-story plans constitute an entirely new and different concept, unlike that explained to the public before the referendum. He contends that, compared to a school constructed pursuant to the two-story schematics, the school constructed pursuant to the one-story plans will have significantly increased construction, operation, maintenance and renovation costs. He contends that construction pursuant to the one-story plans would contravene the will of the referendum voters. The petitioner claims that the BOE should be enjoined from proceeding with construction of the new middle school pursuant to the one-story plans, and ordered to proceed with construction pursuant to the two-story schematics.

The BOE's position is summarized as follows: The BOE denies that the referendum proposal incorporated or was limited by any specific schematics. The BOE contends that the pre-referendum schematics were subject to change, so long as they were consistent with the approved educational specifications. The BOE points out that the one-story plans are consistent with the approved educational specifications and that they provide as many classrooms, educational features, etc., as the two-story schematics. The BOE points out that construction pursuant to the one-story plans will be within the cost estimate approved by the Bureau, which cost estimate was a component of the total authorized by way of the referendum vote. Further, the BOE alleges, the one-story plans provide additional features that are superior to the two-story schematics. The BOE denies that, compared to a school constructed pursuant to the two-story schematics, the school constructed pursuant to the one-story plans would constitute an entirely new and different concept and denies that it will have significantly increased construction, operation, maintenance and renovation costs. Consequently, the BOE denies that construction pursuant to the one-story plans would contravene the law and/or the will of the voters; it contends that construction pursuant to the one-story plans is consistent with the referendum vote; and it submits that the petition should be dismissed with prejudice.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On August 22, 1995, the petitioner's verified petition was filed with the Department of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. In a letter filed with the Department on September 18, 1995, the petitioner set forth enumerated allegations and argument by which he attempted to demonstrate that he met the standards for the granting of a motion for emergent relief, i.e., an injunction. On September 27, 1995, the BOE's answer to the petition was filed with the Department. The Department transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where, on September 28, 1995, it was filed as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). The OAL's clerk treated the petitioner's letter as a motion for emergent injunction of the BOE and notified the parties that, on October 5, 1995, the "motion" would be argued. On October 5, 1995, the parties appeared and the motion was argued. On October 6, 1995, I issued an order denying the petitioner's motion; and, on October 23, 1995, the Commissioner issued a Decision on Motion concurring with my order. On October 18, 1995, the BOE filed and served papers in support of its motion for summary decision; and, on November 1, 1995, the petitioner's responding papers were filed. On November 2, 1995, I issued an Order Denying (the BOE's) Motion for Summary Decision; and, on December 6, 1995, the Commissioner issued a Decision on Motion affirming the denial of the BOE's motion. On February 7, 8, 9 and 21, 1996, the case was heard in the OAL Trenton (Hamilton Township). The parties submitted written summations, and the record was closed with the receipt of the parties' memoranda on the issue of the effect of N.J.S.A. 19:60-1. The petition involves educational issues, e.g., whether the one-story plans satisfy educational specifications approved by the Bureau and whether the one-story school constitutes an entirely new and different concept. The petition does not claim, e.g., irregularities in the conduct of the election. Therefore, the statutory changes do not remove jurisdiction of this case from the Commissioner of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The petitioner is a resident and taxpayer of Montgomery Township.

Montgomery Township is being developed. Consequently, the township's population is growing and it is expected to continue to grow. This has caused increasing demands for governmental services, including school services, and the question of whether to construct additional school buildings to accommodate the growing student population, as well as questions about the costs, locations and features of such buildings, have been among the most important facing the BOE.

The BOE's type II school district is K-12, and the BOE operates two elementary schools and a junior-senior high school, serving grades 7 through 12. The schools are on contiguous sites located on the corner of Burnt Hill Road and Orchard Road: The Burnt Hill Elementary School fronts on Burnt Hill Road, and the Orchard Road Elementary School fronts on Orchard Road, and both are located at the southern end of the BOE property. The junior-senior high school is located at the northern end of the BOE property and fronts on Burnt Hill Road. To the rear and east of the high school is BOE land known as the "Rosepopa" property. P-1A at 103.

In 1991, Township voters rejected a referendum that proposed construction of school buildings to accommodate the growing student population. However, thereafter, the question of the need for such construction continued.

The BOE considered another referendum authorizing funding for school construction. Jamie Savedoff, Ph.D., superintendent of the BOE's school system, reviewed the planning, referendum and construction process with the BOE: Educational specifications would have to be approved by the Bureau; schematics would be prepared according to the approved specifications; cost estimates, based on the schematics, would be prepared and approved by the Bureau; voters would vote on another referendum proposing funding for construction; and plans, which may involve changes from the schematics, would be prepared for bidding and construction. N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.1 to -5.5. Preparation of final plans is time-consuming and extremely expensive. Normally, before a referendum vote approving funding for construction, much information, such as site conditions, upon which the final plans depend, is not known. Consequently, normally, unless and until voters authorize funding for construction, final plans would not be prepared.

In July 1993, the BOE created a "Building Project Ad-Hoc Committee," including members of the community, the BOE and the school administration. P-30. The committee's mission was to study the need for increased school services; to collect information; and, based upon criteria including "completion time, flexibility to meet changing population and program needs, site availability and cost," to prepare a report including a recommended plan of action to "resolve current facilities problems and meet the long-term needs of the students of the community." P-1A at 3, 1; P-32; N.J.S.A. 18A:33-1.

During the twelve months after its creation, the committee collected information, met twenty-two times, and held public meetings on March 23, 1993, May 24, 1994, and June 28, 1994. P-1A. The committee considered demographics, education philosophy, the middle school concept and grade organization. The committee consulted with demographers; Faridy Thorne Fraytak, P.C., the BOE architect; Dr. Savedoff; and James Strimple, the BOE's business administrator. Relative to a new middle school, the committee considered linking a new middle school building to the existing high school building, and considered an independent new middle school building. Because of concerns related to the location of flood plains, wetlands and wetlands buffer zones regulation, at first it was unknown whether the Rosepopa property was practical for an independent new middle school building. Preliminary educational specifications, i.e., verbal descriptions of, e.g., the number of and types of rooms, were prepared, approved by the superintendent and BOE, and, on June 8, 1994, submitted to the Bureau. N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.2, -1.4. Based upon the preliminary educational specifications, the architect prepared "conceptual drawings," a/k/a schematics, including schematics for a two-story new middle school. The "New Middle School Addition" schematics showed a basically H-shaped two-story school that adjoined and coordinated visually with the existing high school. In the H-shaped schematics, the center (cross-bar) of the first floor contained a media center. On one side of the media center (on the first floor) was an "8th grade cluster" of classrooms and a "7th grade cluster" of classrooms. On the other side of the media center (on the first floor) were a gymnasium, a cafetorium, an industrial technology area, and art and music areas. On the second floor was a "6th grade cluster." P-67. The "New Middle School" schematics showed a two-story building that was basically square with an open center, known as the "square doughnut," and independent of other buildings. P-1A.

On June 21, 1994, the committee received the architect's cost estimates for the possible projects.

On September 7, 1994, the committee presented its report to the BOE. The report included the committee's meeting minutes, recommendations, and the schematics of possible school buildings. J-1. In the report, the committee recommended a substantial construction project, including construction of a new middle school. The committee did not recommend a specific schematic and/or design for the middle school (serving 800 students in grades 6-8), but recommended:

> a) a configuration that permits clustering of academic classrooms by grade level, e.g., a sixth grade cluster, seventh grade cluster and eighth grade cluster to allow for academic teacher teams or houses to meet student needs. Particular attention should be paid to school layout in terms of traffic flow and access to the media center, computer labs and related arts classes.

b) science laboratories and preparation areas appropriate to the curriculum at each grade level.

c) support for technology including, computers in classrooms, computer labs, wiring in each classroom for video, cable and satellite learning.

d) small group instructional spaces for speech, BSIP and resource room instruction.

[P-1A at 7.]

The schematics (drawings) were preceded by the following statement:

ARCHITECT'S CONCEPTUAL DRAWINGS

The following drawings are intended to conceptually illustrate how the needs of the district might be met.

These drawings provide a concrete model and are subject to change.

[P-1A at 91; emphasis added.]

The statement about the nature of the architect's conceptual drawings was followed by a number of schematics, including the two-story New Middle School Addition (H-shaped) and the two-story New Middle School (square doughnut) schematics. Possible site plans showed the New Middle School Addition and the New Middle School on different locations, including the Rosepopa property. P-1A at 96-103.

On September 12, 19 and 26, 1994, the BOE held public meetings relative to the committee's report and the elementary school, middle school and high school options. The possible location of the new middle school (by the high school or on the Rosepopa property) was discussed. Dr. Savedoff recommended the Rosepopa property and public comment was allowed. P-47; P-48.

On September 26, 1994, the BOE decided on construction options relative to the elementary and high schools and decided to build the new middle school on the Rosepopa property. (That is, the BOE decided not to construct the H-shaped two-story New Middle School Addition.) Dr. Savedoff described the resolution as calling for a $31,367,339 referendum for all projects, $17,925,000 of which was for the new middle school. P-63. The BOE passed a resolution (1) to hold a special election on November 29, 1994, for the authorization of school bonds to fund the construction and improvement of the schools; (2) to authorize the architect to apply to the Department of Education, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.2, for approval of educational specifications and schematic plans; (3) to authorize the BOE secretary to contact the planning board for its recommendations; (4) to authorize the BOE secretary to arrange for publication of absentee ballot notices for the special election; and (5) to authorize Dr. Savedoff, the BOE secretary, et al. to take actions necessary for the special election and authorization of bonds to finance the project. R-8.

During the October 10, 1994 meeting, the BOE passed a resolution providing for a special school district referendum election to be held on November 29, 1994, during which election the following proposal would be submitted:

> The [BOE] is authorized (a) to provide for the construction of an addition to connect the Burnt Hill Road School and the Orchard Road School to provide core facilities and the renovation of and the construction of additions to each school to provide additional space, other interior improvements and additional parking, the construction of renovations and additions to the High School to provide for science laboratories, locker room and auditorium improvements, expansion of the library and other interior improvements and the construction of a new middle school on land owned by the [BOE], including play fields and, for all of the above, including site work, acquisition and installation of equipment and furnishings and related work, and (b) to issue bonds of the School District for such purpose in the principal amount of $31,368,000.
> [R-1, emphasis added.]

The architect presented to the BOE an outline entitled "Techniques for Referendum Promotion," and, between October 10, 1994, and November 29, 1995, the project was the subject of additional public debate. P-16.

By letter dated October 20, 1994, Jamil Faridy, the architect's lead partner, notified Dr. Savedoff that, having received a report relative to flood plains, wetlands and wetlands buffer zones regulation, a (one-story) new middle school (with a larger footprint than a two-story school) and parking could be located on the Rosepopa property. P-59; N.J.S.A. 13:9B-8.

In a letter published in the October 21, 1994 edition of The Princeton Packet, a local newspaper, the BOE vice president and chairman of the BOE Building Committee characterized the proposed buildings' plans as "preliminary schematics." P-3, emphasis added.

During the BOE's October 24, 1994 meeting, Dr. Savedoff stated that the "schematics [were] based on the Educational Specifications previously approved by the [BOE] . . . and approved by the Department." R-3a. However, he also stated:

> "these plans may be and probably will be altered at a later date when the staff becomes involved in the process. The intent of these plans is to show that there is sufficient space to accommodate the plans and spatial relationships.
> [R-3a, emphasis added.]

Also during the BOE's October 24, 1994 meeting, Mr. Faridy presented to the public plans for the project, including the schematics showing the "proposed [two-story] middle school layout." Many circumstances, such as site conditions, upon which the final plans depend, were not known, and both Dr. Savedoff and Mr. Faridy described the schematics as preliminary and not final. P-4; P-14; R-3.

At Dr. Savedoff's direction, enlargements of the schematics, including the schematics for the H-shaped two-story New Middle School Addition, were displayed in the three BOE schools, the municipal building and a local public library. These displays enabled members of the public and school professionals to contribute comments and information relative to the possible project and to suggest changes to the schematics. P-67A; P-67B; P-67C.

In November 1994, the high school's newspaper, The Paw Print, included copies of schematics for the project, including schematics for the H-shaped two-story "New Montgomery Middle School." P-62.

Dr. Savedoff gave presentations to Township residents at coffee-klatches, etc., during which he explained the project, including the fact that the schematics were "preliminary and will change." R-14, emphasis added.

Mr. Faridy has been licensed by the State of New Jersey and has practiced as an architect for over twenty years. He has participated in the design of over four hundred schools and numerous other public buildings. Mr. Faridy's firm has about fifty employees; about 80 percent of its work involves public schools and about 95 percent of those schools are in New Jersey. Using the square footage of the new middle school schematics and information from the numerous school construction bids with which his firm has been constantly involved, Mr. Faridy prepared a total cost per square foot analysis. By reviewing component bids by separate prime contractors in the major trades (steel, electrical, plumbing and HVAC), the analysis was refined and he developed a cost estimate for the new middle school. On November 2, 1994, Mr. Faridy's firm submitted to the Bureau a completed "Project Cost Estimate Form" for the new middle school, wherein it estimated $14,107,000 as its "Construction Cost," i.e., exclusive of contingency, architect's fees, legal and bonding costs, site development, and movable furniture and equipment. P-63; N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.4. (With contingency cost, the architect's estimate was $14.1 to $15.1 million.) The Bureau reviewed the Project Cost Estimate Form and schematics and approved them (before the referendum election).

During a November 9, 1994 Montgomery Township governing body meeting, Dr. Savedoff "stress[ed]" that the schematics were "only . . . preliminary plans." He said that the BOE's architect would be discussing the plans with the school professionals and the BOE; that "things may move"; that "[s]ome rooms may move to make it a more efficient building"; and that "the actual shape or where some of the classes are may be moved to make it more efficient and more effective." R-13, emphasis added.

In mid-November 1994, the BOE mailed to voters a referendum brochure which referred to, e.g., the current enrollment and "need" for additional facilities for current and/or expected enrollment, (if the referendum was not approved and the project did not go forward) the possibility of a "disruptive" "split session plan," the "cost" of available options, etc. The brochure also included copies of schematics for the project, including schematics for the H-shaped two-story "New Montgomery Middle School." P-7; P-14.

In a letter published in the November 18, 1994 edition of The Princeton Packet, a BOE member wrote that the "plan recommended by the ad hoc facilities committee and approved by the [BOE] is the most effective option available to meet our district's needs," and she urged voter approval of the proposal. P-5.

In a letter published in the November 22, 1994 edition of The Princeton Packet, Dr. Savedoff wrote, inter alia, "The plan is not vague, . . . rather it is quite detailed. The educational specifications upon which the architect's drawings are based are several hundred pages of detailed descriptions of every space to be built renovated or modified." P-6.

On November 29, 1994, from 9:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m., the election was held in the Burnt Hill Road School multipurpose room, also known as its gymnasium. A parking lot on Burnt Hill Road serves the building, and about 90 percent of the voters walked from the parking lot through outside school doors that led directly into the multipurpose room. About 10 percent of the voters walked through the school lobby and then through an inside door to the multipurpose room; in the corridor, about fifteen feet away from the door to the multipurpose room, copies of the schematics, including the New Middle School Addition schematics, remained on display. P-8. The voters approved the referendum: 1,857 voted for it and 1,270 against it. J-5.

Following approval of the referendum, the schematics remained on display and the BOE continued to collect information relative to the project. The architect held a series of meetings ("charettes") with school professionals to collect their reactions and suggestions relative to the plans. Teachers wanted areas where there could be "teacher-teamwork" and group activities. A two-story school's traffic flow would require use of stairs or an elevator and would complicate communication and sharing of resources among grades. The one-story school's grade level "pod" design and traffic flow would be simpler and more conducive to communication and shared resources. The one-story plan's "interior court[s]" would allow for "teacher-teamwork."

The architect also obtained more information relative to the sites, including, in February 1995, a survey and wetlands delineation of the Rosepopa property. The survey and delineation showed it to provide more area than was previously thought available, i.e., enough for the larger footprint of the one-story middle school. P-70. With this information, consistent with the educational specifications the architect prepared schematics for a one-story new middle school. P-72. (John Garcia, deputy director of the Bureau, testified that site and design details are costly and frequently unavailable before referenda votes. Consequently, he has frequently seen changes from pre-referendum schematics to post-referendum plans, including changes from two-story to one-story plans. His view is that changes which are consistent with educational specifications and not inconsistent with a referendum proposal are lawful.)

During the BOE's March 27, 1995 meeting, the BOE continued the discussion of "middle school philosophy" and its relation to the design of the new middle school. The architect presented the plans for the one-story new middle school. J-6. In the center of the one-story plans are a media center and areas for science, language, industrial arts, etc. Three basically similar pods (one each for the sixth, seventh and eighth grades), each of which has an "interior court," extend off of the center. On the other side of the center is a wing including a gymnasium, a cafetorium, and industrial technology, etc., areas. The one-story plans have the same number and size of classrooms, educational spaces, office spaces and storage spaces as the two-story schematics and they satisfy the approved educational specifications. Because of the one-story plan's interior courts, the one-story plan's area (121,700 square feet) is somewhat greater than the two-story schematics' area (118,870 square feet). P-72; P-91A; P-91B(1); P-91B(2). The BOE and the public considered the one-story plan relative to future growth capacity, total square footage, student capacity of building, seating capacity of the cafetorium and gymnasium, location, flexible classroom space, location and use of the science rooms, and location of student lockers. There was "extensive discussion" of whether the new, one-story plans were "significantly different" than the two-story schematics. J-6.

During the BOE's April 24, 1995 and May 22, 1995 meetings, the question of whether the new one-story plans were "significantly different" than the two-story schematics was again discussed. Also, the referendum process and the question of commitment to specific plans were discussed. And, by a vote of seven to one, the BOE approved the new one-story plans for the middle school; thereafter, the plans were submitted to, reviewed by, and approved by the Bureau. J-7; J-8; N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.5.

By letter dated August 8, 1995, the Bureau notified the BOE that the revised educational specifications and preliminary plans (for the one-story) building had been "educationally reviewed and approved" and that the BOE could submit "final plans" for review. R-9.

Mr. Faridy explained that, given the scale of the construction (pursuant to either the two-story schematics or the one-story plans) and other factors, costs for the one-story and two-story schools would be the same. Construction of a two-story new middle school would include costs not included in construction of the one-story school, and construction of the one-story school would include costs not included in construction of a two-story school. Construction access to a second floor is more difficult and expensive. Construction of a two-story school would require strengthened (more expensive) bearing walls to support the second floor. A two-story school would require features (costs) such as an elevator and stairs that would not be necessary with the one-story school. Once the contractors have built one of the one-story school's classroom clusters (pods) and are familiar with its layout, etc., they will more efficiently build the other pods, thereby saving time and costs compared to a two-story school. On the other hand, the one-story middle school would include, e.g., greater costs for its larger slab and foundation and roof. Mr. Faridy's cost estimate for the one-story middle school was $14,107,000, i.e., the amount submitted to the Bureau before the referendum election (when the two-story schematics were under consideration). P-63. Considering the scale of construction, operation and future additions, etc., the costs of the two-story and one-story schools would be substantially the same.

Anthony T. Baionno testified for the petitioner relative to construction costs. Since 1961, he has been licensed as an architect by the State of New Jersey; he has prepared designs for educational and commercial buildings and he has performed construction cost estimates relative to schools and other public buildings. Only two bids have come in over his cost estimates.

(Interestingly, until 1989, the BOE's architect retained him for preparation of construction cost estimates.) However, Mr. Baionno has not performed design work for schools for over ten years. P-91.

Mr. Baionno used the two-story schematics and the one-story preliminary plans to prepare cost estimates for construction of a new middle school. P-91A; P-91B; P-91B(1). In preparing cost estimates, he considered the size and shape of the proposed buildings and he used a dollar cost per square foot or cost per perimeter (measured by foot) for, e.g., slab and foundation. To the slab and foundation cost he added line item costs: floor construction; roof construction; exterior walls & glazing; partitions; doors, frames, & hardware; finishes & millwork; miscellaneous specialties & equipment; stairs & elevator; plumbing; HVAC; and electric. P-91. Because specific line item materials were not available, he assumed that similar materials and workmanship would be used in each school, e.g., brick and block cavity walls and a "good" HVAC system. For the two-story middle school, he calculated 98,630 square feet and multiplied that area by a $9 cost factor, equaling $887,670 for grade slab and foundations. To that he added line items, resulting in a total estimated cost of $11,828,484 for the two-story school. In such cost estimation there is a margin of error, and he allowed a range of $11.8 to $13 million. P-91 at 10; R-12. For the one-story middle school, he calculated 123,110 square feet and multiplied that area by a $10 cost factor, equaling $1,231,100 for grade slab and foundations. To that he added line items, resulting in a total estimated a cost of $13,003,720 for the one-story school. (Mr. Baionno did not estimate cost for a one-story middle school according to 121,700 square feet, the lesser area that Mr. Faridy had calculated. Use of the 121,700 area would, of course, have resulted in a lower cost estimate by Mr. Baionno.) He allowed a range of $13.0 to $14.3 million for the one-story school.

The one-story school would require a larger slab and foundation area and a larger roof, resulting in greater costs. Mr. Baionno's line item cost estimates were almost all lower for the two-story school than for the one-story school. For example, costs of doors, frames, and hardware for a two-story school were estimated at $228,000, and for the one-story school were estimated at $297,000; costs of finishes and millwork for a two-story school were estimated at $1,188,700, and for the one-story school were estimated at $1,231,100; costs of miscellaneous specialties and equipment for a two-story school were estimated at $1,129,500, and for the one-story school were estimated at $1,231,100; cost of plumbing for a two-story school was estimated at $564,750, and for the one-story school was estimated at $615,500; and cost of electric for a two-story school was estimated at $1,188,700, and for the one-story school was estimated at $1,231,100. There was no apparent cost for the greater bearing strength needed for support of a two-story school's second floor. These differences in line item cost estimates were explained as resulting from the generalization that the one-story construction has higher costs; but this explanation was not well detailed.

Relative to construction costs, the one-story plans and the two-story schematics may be compared and contrasted as follows: Using the estimate of Mr. Faridy, whose breadth and depth of experience and data is greater and more current than Mr. Baionno's, the costs would be about the same for construction of the one-story school or the two-story school. Mr. Baionno did not use Mr. Faridy's area calculation, which would have resulted in a lower cost estimate for construction of the one-story school than he presented. Accepting Mr. Baionno's cost estimates, the one-story school would be more expensive, but still within the amount ($14,107,000) submitted to the Bureau in the Project Cost Estimate Form and within the estimate described by Dr. Savedoff at the time of the BOE's vote to hold the election on the referendum. P-63; R-12.

Relative to educational features and functions, the one-story plans and the two-story schematics may be compared and contrasted as follows: The one-story plans and the two-story schematics have the same number of classrooms and other educational features. However, in a two-story school, traffic flow would require use of stairs and/or an elevator. In a two-story school, communication among school professionals would require more use of telephones, and use of stairs and/or an elevator. In a two-story school, access to resources among grades would require use of stairs and/or an elevator. That is, a two-story school would make traffic flow, communication and access to resources more complicated and difficult. The one-story school's traffic flow would be simpler and more conducive to communication and access to resources, e.g., the media center and cafetorium. P-91B(1). In the event of fire or similar emergency, evacuation from a two-story school would be more difficult. The one-story plans provide interior courts within which group activities can be conducted, and there would be easier travel to and from classrooms. A two-story school's elevator would require construction, maintenance and inspection, with annual costs estimated at $2,000-$3,000. The one-story school's greater footprint would result in a greater slab and foundation area and resultant costs, its greater roof area would result in greater costs, and it would have a $5,000 greater annual HVAC operational cost. If necessary, the one-story school can be expanded by way of a second story; however, the elevator and stairs (which would already be present in the two-story school) would then be needed. Considering the scale of construction, operation and future additions, etc., the two-story schematics' costs and one-story plans' costs are substantially the same.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Generally, the board of education of a type II school district (such as the BOE here) has the power to "[p]erform all acts and do all things, consistent with law and the rules of the state board, necessary for the lawful and proper conduct, equipment and maintenance of the public schools of the district." N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1d. Such a board of education must "provide . . . suitable educational facilities including proper school buildings." N.J.S.A. 18A:33-1.

When a board of education contemplates school construction, consistent with its general powers, it may adopt "educational specifications" and "schematic plans" for a proposed school building which, with a cost estimate, are submitted to the Bureau for approval. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-16; N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.2, -1.4(a) to -1.4(d). But the district's voters' authorization, by way of approval of a referendum proposal, is required for the board of education to issue a bond to fund school construction (or land acquisition). N.J.S.A. 18A:24-12, 18A:20-4.2(d).

As found above, after the drawing of the (pre-referendum) schematic plans, frequently, a board needs substantial time to collect information and to decide on appropriate plans, and a board would incur substantial expense in preparation of (post-approved-referendum) "preliminary plans" and "final plans" (which are more detailed than the schematics). N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.5, -1.6.

District voters must be "acquaint[ed] . . . with the [referendum] proposal," and that is accomplished by way of the educational specifications, schematic plans and public statements; but, before the referendum election, there is not a "commitment to a firm final plan." Borough of Farmingdale v. Board of Educ. of Farmingdale, 1981 S.L.D. 130, 135 (quoting Kearby v. Bd. of Educ. of Watchung, 1963 S.L.D. 73, 75). Voters may not approve a referendum proposal and, therefore, the board is not required to have expensive "preliminary plans" and "final plans" prepared before the referendum election. "[F]ollowing local funding authorization," there may be changes from the schematics to the "preliminary plans" and "final plans" (which are submitted to the Bureau for approval and which must include details suitable for bidding and construction). N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.5, -1.6. However, the board may not contravene the will of the voters by substituting school plans which are entirely different in concept from those presented to the voters before the election. Durgin v. Brown, 37 N.J. 189, 197-98 (1962); Farmingdale, supra, 1981 S.L.D. 136 (quoting Kearby, supra, 1963 S.L.D. at 75.

The BOE argues as follows: Voter approval of a referendum proposal is "basically a voter-enacted form of [local] law." Like a municipal ordinance, the approved referendum proposal should be construed using the same rules as are used in construing a statute. White Castle v. Planning Bd., 244 N.J. Super. 688, 691 (App. Div. 1990); certif. denied, 126 N.J. 320 (1991). If a statute is "clear and unambiguous on its face and admits of only one interpretation," its literal meaning manifests the Legislature's intent. GE Solid State v. Director, Taxation Div., 132 N.J. 298, 307 (1993), quoting State v. Butler, 89 N.J. 220, 226 (1982). Further, "[w]here the words of the statute are clear and explicit, courts should not resort to extrinsic material to determine that the Legislature intended something other than what it actually expressed." Gauntt v. City of Bridgeton, 194 N.J. Super. 468, 483 (App. Div.); certif. denied, 99 N.J. 148 (1984). "Extrinsic aids are never used to create an ambiguity, only to resolve one." Myers v. Cedar Grove Tp., 36 N.J. 51, 61 (1961). And, "although statements of legislative committees may serve as aids in construing ambiguous or conflicting terms of a statute," they should not be used to ascribe to it "a meaning not fairly within its word and purposes." N.J. Civil Service Ass'n v. State, 88 N.J. 605, 615 (1982). Because the two-story schematics were not appended to the referendum proposal, use of the authorized funding is not limited by the two-story schematics and the funding may be used for construction of the one-story new middle school.

The material facts are summarized as follows: The educational specifications were publicly described as "detailed descriptions of every space to be built renovated or modified." P-6. The two-story new middle school schematics were publicly displayed and included in the brochure which was mailed to the voters explaining the referendum. However, the schematics were repeatedly characterized, on the BOE record and elsewhere, as (merely) "preliminary," etc.; it was repeatedly publicly stated that "classes may be moved," etc.; and it was repeatedly publicly stated that the schematics would "change." P-1A; P-3; R-3a; R-13; R-14. The new middle school cost estimate was a component of the total funding proposed to be authorized in the referendum election. The two-story schematics (among others) were displayed about fifteen feet from an entrance to the referendum polling place. However, that entrance was used by only about 10 percent of the voters, i.e., far less than a majority of voters. The referendum proposal, as stated, did not incorporate or refer to particular schematics. The petitioner did not present evidence that a majority of voters intended their approval of the referendum to limit construction to the two-story schematics. After approval of the referendum proposal and after receipt of information relative to the site and input from school professionals, the BOE decided to proceed according to the one-story plans. The one-story plans and the two-story schematics have the same number of classrooms and other educational features, both satisfy the approved educational specifications, and both are within the cost estimate for the new middle school which was a component of the funding authorized by the referendum vote. The one-story plans are superior in traffic flow, opportunities for professional communication, and opportunities for group activities. Considering their scale, costs of construction, operation, maintenance, renovation and future additions, etc., would be substantially the same for schools constructed pursuant to the two-story schematics and the one-story plans.

The educational specifications, the two-story schematics and the repeated public statements served to "acquaint the voters with the proposal" of construction of a new middle school. Farmingdale, supra, 1981 S.L.D. at 135 (quoting Kearby, supra, 1963 S.L.D. at 135). These (extrinsic) materials are necessary for an understanding of the referendum proposal, i.e., the will of the voters. Farmingdale, supra, 1981 S.L.D. at 135 (quoting Kearby, supra, 1963 S.L.D. at 135). Further, given the repeated public statements that the schematics would "change," etc., the petitioner has not proven that voters intended to limit funding to construction according to the two-story schematics. R-14. To the contrary, because the one-story plans satisfy the educational specifications and because construction pursuant to the one-story plans will be within the new middle school cost estimate component of the authorized funding, construction according to the one-story plans is consistent with the will of the voters.

A board of education has broad discretionary authority and its actions are entitled to a presumption of lawfulness and good faith. Schinck v. Westwood Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 448 (App. Div. 1960); Quinlan v. North Bergen Bd. of Educ., 73 N.J. Super. 40, 46 (App. Div. 1962). Consistent with these notions, the petitioner bears the burden of proof that the BOE acted unlawfully and that its choice of the one-story plans was unlawful and/or arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

The BOE determined that a school constructed pursuant to the one-story plans will be educationally superior to one constructed pursuant to the two-story schematics and the cost, etc., of construction of the one-story school will be substantially the same as that of the two-story school. And the petitioner has not proven that the BOE's exercise of its discretion in its choice of the one-story plans was unlawful or arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

ORDER

I ORDER the petition DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8772-95

CHRIS SHUSTER,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MONTGOMERY, SOMERSET COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Both petitioner and respondent Board filed timely exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Board also filed a reply to petitioner's exceptions.

Petitioner's exceptions, in pertinent part, challenge three aspects of the initial decision: 1) The failure of the ALJ to rely on particular case law; 2) The ALJ's use of exhibits to buttress the Board's position when, in fact, certain documents support petitioner's case; and 3) The ALJ's disregard of testimony which reinforces petitioner's case. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 1)

Petitioner's exceptions assert that the ALJ "apparently ignored the key aspect" of Borough of Farmingdale v. Board of Education of the Borough of Farmingdale, 1981 S.L.D. 130 in that the ALJ in Farmingdale found that "once preliminary [building] plans are presented to the voters the Board no longer has the discretionary authority to substantially change those preliminary plans ." (emphasis in text) (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 2) Although petitioner's exceptions include a detailed review of Farmingdale, the Commissioner finds it unnecessary to review the case herein, inasmuch as that case, along with Durgin v. Brown, 37 N.J. 189 (1962) and Kenneth Kearby v. Board of Education of the Borough of Watchung, Somerset County, 1963 S.L.D. 73, was part of the record before the ALJ in this matter.

In reply, the Board contends that "Petitioner's discussions of case law reflect a complete misunderstanding of the use [of] legal precedent and an inability to determine the holding of a case." (emphasis in text) (Board's Reply at p. 2) For example, the Board indicates that petitioner's reading of Farmingdale fails to consider the Commissioner's affirmance language therein which places importance on the wording of the referendum in that matter. The Board argues that, unlike Farmingdale, the wording of the referendum in the instant matter was general and was, therefore, "not violated by the ultimate board action adopting a one-story plan for the middle school." (Id.) Similarly, the Board asserts that petitioner misreads Kearby, supra, and extracts language from Durgin, supra, without consideration for the factual backdrop of that case. The Board concludes that "Nothing in [Durgin] provides any meaningful basis for a holding that the Board in this case is not implementing the actual referendum proposal approved by the voters ." (Id. at p. 3)

As to the exhibits and testimony adduced at the hearing, petitioner asserts, inter alia, that the ALJ apparently relied upon the Board's testimony "seemingly at the exclusion of all the other evidence." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 4) Specifically, petitioner contends that the ALJ failed to rely on the "totality of the information" contained within Superintendent Savedoff's letter of November 22, 1994, as published in the Princeton Packet.

(Id. at pp. 3, 4) This letter, petitioner claims, induced voters to believe that they were voting for a two-story plan. Next, petitioner contends that the ALJ "apparently ignored" an inter-Board memorandum from Dr. Savedoff (Exhibit P-50) and misconstrued the message offered by Vice President of the Board, Mr. Kling, in his letter which appeared in the Princeton Packet on October 21, 1994. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 5, referring to Exhibit P-3) Acknowledging that both letters use the phrase "preliminary" with regard to the Board's schematics presented to the voters, petitioner nevertheless insists that these letters, as well as other exhibits relied on by the ALJ, when taken in their entirety, do not support the ALJ's conclusion that the electorate could reasonably anticipate a change from a two-story to a one-story building plan. (Id. at p. 8)

Moreover, petitioner asserts that the ALJ's conclusion that only ten percent of the voters saw the schematic blow-ups situated outside the polling places is unsupported by the evidence adduced at the hearing (id. at pp. 10, 11), as is the ALJ's conclusion that, " costs of construction, operation, maintenance, renovation and future additions, etc., would be substantially the same for schools constructed pursuant to the two-story schematics and the one-story plans." (Id. at p. 14, citing Initial Decision at p. 18)

The Board counters that petitioner has improperly furnished the Commissioner with purported recitations from the transcripts, without furnishing the actual hearing transcripts. Moreover, as to the analysis of evidence the Board maintains, inter alia, that "the ALJ's analysis of the evidence was balanced, and he made appropriate and rational findings of fact and credibility." (Board's Reply at p. 3) The Board argues that, while petitioner attempts to discredit the testimony of Principal Smith concerning the likelihood of the schematics being seen by the voters, he ignores Smith's point "that the reason the voters were unlikely to have seen the schematics on election day was that the 'most direct and convenient access' to the polling place was to park alongside the gym ." (Id. at p. 4) The Board observes, "There is no reasons [sic] to think that pattern of convenience, observed by Mr. Smith over a 36 year period as principal, would have changed at any time during the day on November 29, 1994." (Id.)

Finally, petitioner maintains that the extrinsic materials in this matter were necessary for an understanding of the referendum proposal and, therefore, were properly considered by the ALJ. Petitioner argues,

> Referendum proposals are typically general in wording due to the space constraints on the ballot and therefor[e] both the Board and the public rely on "extrinsic aids" to further define the proposal. To decide otherwise would allow Boards to propose a general question, define it with factual information (intrinsic aids) and then proceed to do something contradictory with that information. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 15)

In reply, the Board contends that petitioner fails to articulate a "single, practical standard" which should be employed by the Commissioner in this matter. (Board's Reply at p. 1) Rather, the Board asserts,

> [P]etitioner variously refers to several very amorphous standards (e.g. what was the voters' "basis;" what was "internally incorporated" into the referendum; what was their "understanding;" and  whether there was a "continuum of spirit" between the two plans[)]. (Board's Reply at p. 1, citing to Petitioner's Exceptions at pp. 1, 2, 6, 13)

The Board, however, urges the Commissioner, in adopting the ultimate conclusion of the ALJ, to apply a different test from that which was employed by the ALJ in reaching his conclusion. (Board's Exceptions at p. 1) Incorporating by reference its post-hearing brief presented before the ALJ, the Board argues, inter alia, that the determination of voter intent in this matter should be based on the wording of the referendum, and "[o]nly if the referendum proposal is ambiguous should the Commissioner look to 'extrinsic evidence' as to voter intent." (Id. at pp. 1, 2) The Board's conclusion that such a test is appropriate "is grounded in the education statutes and regulations and in judicial precedent for interpreting legislative as well as electoral actions." (Board's Post-hearing Brief at p. 24)

Arguing that the ALJ failed to address its argument with respect to its proposal for a narrower standard of review in this matter, the Board affirms that the ALJ instead "focused on a factual analysis of what plans were presented prior to the election, and whether those plans differed substantially from what the Board ultimately implemented after the election." (Board's Exceptions at p. 2) The Board contends that the ALJ, rather than relying on the wording of the referendum, looked instead to the extrinsic evidence which petitioner argued formed a basis upon which the electorate cast its votes. (Id.) However, the Board maintains,

> The only question submitted to the voters in this case was what type of school to build (a new middle school), where to site in (on land already owned by the Board) and how much to borrow for all three projects. No aspect of such approved referendum question has been violated by the Board's actions in this case. Hence, the will of the voters was not contravened. (Id.)

Thus, the Board urges the Commissioner to adopt "the traditional statutory interpretation test utilized by the courts" whereby the meaning of a referendum's proposal is first determined by the language of the proposal, and where that language is clear and unambiguous on its face, no further inquiry into the literal terms of the proposal in order to devise the voters' intent is made. (Id. at p. 5) This test, the Board reasons, "is consistent with the statutes which vest authority in the Board to adopt (and therefore modify) schematics and educational specifications," and obviates the need for a costly, time-consuming factual inquiry. (Id. at pp. 2, 3)

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner finds no basis in the record to challenge the ALJ's credibility determinations and resultant conclusions, and, therefore, concurs that petitioner has failed to establish that the Board's exercise of discretion in the choice of a one-story building plan was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable, or otherwise unlawful. In so holding, the Commissioner declines to accept that the test proposed by the Board is the appropriate standard to be applied in this matter but, rather, finds that the ALJ's consideration of extrinsic evidence to the extent that it may or may not have formed the basis of voter approval of the referendum was appropriate.

As to petitioner's exceptions, the Commissioner finds them to be unpersuasive, and herein notes that, to the extent petitioner's challenge to the findings of the ALJ relies on proffered testimony, he cannot in the absence of hearing transcripts, ascertain the merits of petitioner's claims. In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 157, 158 (App. Div. 1987).

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons expressed therein, and the Petition of Appeal in this matter is dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

The parties in this appeal have voluntarily resolved all disputed matters and have prepared this settlement agreement which fully disposes of all issues in controversy between the Petitioner and the Respondent.

1. Petitioner withdraws his appeal and request for a hearing, and the Respondent agrees to place on the Board's agenda of April 23.,1996 the acceptance of the children I.T., E.T. and E.T. as tuition students.

2. The Petitioner will pay to the Board the following amounts:

On or before April 16, 1996	$3,000
On or before May 16, 1996	3,000
On or before June 16, 1996	$4,840

This amount will satisfy in full tuition for the 1995- 1996 school year for I.T, E.T. AND E.T. If payment is not made on or before the aforementioned dates or if the check is dishonored, the total tuition due and owing from the date of enrollment to the date of exit is acknowledged and agreed pursuant to the per pupil daily cost of $36.76 for I.T. and E.T. and $38.94 for E.T.

3. As of June 21, 1996 the children will either continue as tuition students or be issued transfer cards. This agreement does not prevent I.T. from independently establishing residency for the 1996- 1997 school year.

4. Any agreements as to future tuition will be governed by standard Board contract.

5. Nothing in this agreement shall be deemed to be an admission of liability on behalf of either party. This agreement shall not constitute a precedent in matters involving other pupils.

6. Both parties waive the right to file exceptions and cross exceptions.

7. This agreement will only become effective when it is approved by the BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF UNION, UNION COUNTY AND THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION. Doris Moraney, pro se

Record Closed: March 20, 1996 Decided: April 9, 1996

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City certified charges of inefficiency against respondent, Doris Moraney. Moraney is a tenured teacher employed by the District. On January 20, 1995, the District found probable cause to certify the tenure charge of inefficiency which, if true, would warrant Moraney's termination. On June 8, 1995, the District filed the written charges with the Commissioner of Education.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on July 21, 1995 for a determination as a contested case pursuant to

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on January 31, 1996, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. This matter was scheduled for hearings on February 20, 21 and 22, 1996. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

The parties have agreed to a settlement of the matter, subject to the approval by the Commissioner. In accordance with the decision of the State Board of Education in Cardonick v. Brookline Board of Education, 1990 S.L.D. 842, the record of any proposed settlement must include:

> [T]he nature of the charges, circumstances justifying the settlement, consent or authorization by the board of education and the teacher to the proposed agreement, the Administrative Law Judge's findings that the teacher entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights and that the agreement is consistent with the public interest. Cardonick at 850-51.

On March 20, 1996, the OAL held a public hearing on whether the proposed settlement was in the public interest and therefore should be accepted. Also, the parties submitted a written stipulation dated March 20, 1996 setting forth the terms of the agreement.

Based on my review of the record, I FIND that the proposed settlement is consistent with the public interest because it will save significant legal expenses and costs as well as time expended by administrators and witnesses. I further FIND that Moraney had full opportunity to consult with legal counsel to explain the meaning of the settlement to her prior to entering into the agreement. Moraney is aware that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, the Commissioner may refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners for any action which he may deem appropriate. Further, Moraney was informed by counsel that, notwithstanding, the parties agreement to settle this matter, Commissioner must approve the agreement. Thus, any execution of the settlement prior to the approval by the Commissioner is done at the peril of the parties.

I CONCLUDE that the proposed settlement fully disposes of all issues and controversies. I further CONCLUDE that the terms of this settlement are in the public interest.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that upon approval by the Commissioner that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that the proceedings are hereby CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

District certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, unlawful use of physical force, use of profanity and making improper sexual remarks to students against respondent health and physical education teacher.

Having considered the record including the testimony of witnesses, the ALJ concluded that respondent's actions did constitute unbecoming conduct in that he struck a student with a pointer and he used inappropriate language. The District did not prove that he made inappropriate sexual remarks. ALJ determined that the proven charges were insufficient to warrant respondent's termination from employment. ALJ recommended the penalty of withholding respondent's increment for the 1993-94 school year.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ's findings and conclusions that respondent's actions, as proven, constituted unbecoming conduct. However, the Commissioner disagreed with the ALJ's recommendation that an increment withholding was sufficient penalty in light of the serious and unprofessional nature of his actions. Citing In re Fulcomer, In re Appleby, In re Tyler and In re Campbell, the Commissioner directed that in addition to the denial of respondent's salary and adjustment increments for the 1996-97 school year, respondent forfeit the 120 days' salary withheld following certification of the tenure charges.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 7008-94
AGENCY DKT. No. 261-6/94

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF JOSEPH TRAWICK, STATE OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY

Gregory G. Johnson, Esq., for petitioner, State Operated School District of the City of Newark

John L. Schettino, Esq., for respondent (Giblin & Giblin, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 10, 1995 Decided: April 4, 1996

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Respondent, Joseph Trawick is a tenured teacher employed by the Newark Board of Education now the State Operated School District of the City of Newark (District). On June 28, 1994, the District filed with the Commissioner of Education certified tenure charges against Trawick alleging conduct unbecoming a teacher, unlawful use of physical force, use of profanity and making improper sexual remarks to his students. The District suspended Trawick without pay and seeks his removal. Respondent denies the allegations.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 21, 1994, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the certified tenure charges to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case. Plenary hearings were held on March 21, 24, April 27, 28 and May 5, 1995. On July 5, 1995, the State Board of Education seized control of the Newark Public Schools and all Board personnel were removed from their positions by operation of law. The record remained open to allow the respondent to substitute counsel and for the submission post hearing briefs. The initial decision was due in this matter on November 27, 1995. On March 20, 1996 the undersigned requested an extension of time to file this decision.

OVERVIEW OF THE CHARGES

First count, unbecoming conduct, paragraph three states that Trawick conducted himself in a manner unbecoming a teaching staff member as follows:

a. On April 21, 1993 Trawick struck pupil G.D. on the back with a wooden pointer as a means of discipline.

b. An investigation revealed that other pupils claimed that Trawick used physical force as a means of ongoing discipline.

c. On December 3, 1993, two eight grade females, N.H. and S.G., complained to a vice principal that during class Trawick used profanity and made sexual remarks about them and other females.

d. On December 10, 1993, Trawick touched the breast of an eight grade female, L.C., after commenting about her chest.

e. During the investigation of the L.C. incident other students confirmed that Trawick commented about sexual matters and the female anatomy in an offensive manner.

f. Other pupils have accused Trawick of cursing at them.

g. On several occasions beginning in September, 1993 Trawick failed to supervise his students.

4. Trawick's inappropriate interaction with pupils endangers their well-being and makes him unfit to be a teacher.

Second Count charges:

Trawick's conduct constitutes just cause for his immediate dismissal.

At the conclusion of the District's direct testimony, I granted respondent's motion to dismiss the charges contained in paragraph 3b, use of physical force on an ongoing basis and 3g failure to properly supervise students.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

I FIND the following facts undisputed facts:

Joseph Trawick was hired as a health and physical education teacher on September 10, 1990. Prior to this employment with the District, he was employed in private industry by Supermarkets General and The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company. Trawick's first teaching assignment for the District was at Westside High School where he was the tenth grade physical education instructor for two years. Additionally, Trawick coached the freshman football team and he was the assistant coach for the varsity football team. He also coached the girls softball team. At Westside Trawick received satisfactory evaluations.

Trawick expressed a desire to teach elementary school students and for the 1992-93 school year he was transferred to the Sussex Avenue Elementary School (Sussex Avenue). There, he was assigned to teach health to the third, sixth, and eight grade students and physical education to students in grades four to eight. Sussex Avenue did not have a defined physical education curriculum. Trawick instituted a curriculum and an after school program called "Class Against Class " The program consisted of intramural sports where classes competed against each other. Forty to fifty students participated in the program.

The school cafeteria doubled as the gym. Some of the female students complained about the general conditions of the gym; the area was considered generally unclean and inadequate. Further, other students would frequently refuse to change into their gym uniforms and to participate in class. Trawick obtained permission for the girls to dress in sweat pants in lieu of the formal gym attire. This measure led with limited success.

The students were not used to gym classes and some were uncooperative. Consequently, disciplinary problems were frequent and severe. Thus, on December 7, 1992, Trawick wrote a memorandum to the school's principal, Mr. Johnson, and requested that a plan be developed to deal with ongoing disciplinary problems in his gym and health classes (R-2). The memorandum was copied to Eugene Campbell, superintendent of the District, Marilyn Bowles and Anthony Orsini, vice principals at Sussex and Leonard Moore, Trawick's immediate supervisor. Additionally, Trawick requested that a female gym instructor be assigned to the school. Lawrence Guriano, Assistant Director of Physical Education and Extracurricular Activities, confirmed that Trawick had expressed that there were "big problems" at Sussex. The girls refused to get dressed for class and were generally unruly. Trawick did not receive any response to his requests for assistance.

On April 21, 1993, Vice Principal Marilyn Bowles, heard a commotion in Trawick's third-grade class. Bowles went to the class and observed that a student,

G.D., was out his seat and Trawick standing nearby with a pointer in his hand. The students were yelling that Trawick hit G.D. with a pointer. Bowles got G.D. to take his seat. Subsequently, G.D.'s mother reported that Trawick had hit G.D.. The school nurse examined G.D. and found a bruise on his back. But, it is not alleged that G.D. was seriously hurt.

Trawick conceded that he "popped" G.D, but alleged that he did not intend to harm the student. Trawick explained that G.D. was hitting other students disrupting the entire class, and presented a danger to himself and to others. Moreover, G.D. refused to take his seat even though he had been instructed to do so at least six times. G.D. was a problem student who would start fights and run around the classroom. Further, Trawick had previously discussed G.D.'s behavior with Bowles.

After the incident, Trawick enrolled and successfully completed a class on classroom behavior control at Jersey City State College.

On December 13, 1993, Mr. T., the stepfather of two Sussex Ave students, L.C. and S.C., lodged a complaint with Vice Principal Anthony Orsini. Mr. T. reported that Trawick had spoken to his daughters in an inappropriate manner and had touched L.C.'s breast. Orsini questioned Trawick and the students and then notified the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS). DYFS also conducted an investigation. Orsini also conducted an investigation for the District wherein he interviewed L.C., S.G., N.H., A.S. and Z.W. These students were not asked and they did not give him any dates as to when the alleged events took place. Orsini concluded his investigation with a memorandum to the assistant superintendent. (P-2).

SUMMARY Of THE TESTIMONY ON DISPUTED FACTS

Count One, paragraph 3 sections c, d, e and f of the petition charges that Trawick engaged in unbecoming conduct. Specifically, it is alleged that Trawick made inappropriate sexual remarks to female students, used profanity and touched the breast of an eighth grade female student. The charges of inappropriate touching and making sexual remarks will be discussed separately from the charge of using profanity.

Inappropriate touching and making sexual remarks:

A.S. is presently sixteen years old and a ninth grade student at Clifford Scott High School. She attended Sussex Avenue school from the fourth to eight grades. Trawick was her seventh grade physical education instructor.

A.S. claimed that Trawick said that she had "a fat pussy" and that she was "pleasantly plump." A.S. could not recall when Trawick made the alleged remarks to her but she recalled that S.G. and N.C. were present. At that time S.G. was her best friend and N.H. was "like a friend." She did not consider L.C. a friend.

A.S. also claimed that Trawick told her "if she was older or he younger, he would take her to lunch." Because of these remarks, she stopped participating in gym class and would sit on the sidelines of the gym in her street clothes. She did not tell anyone about Trawick's remarks until an incident occurred with L.C. A.S. then told her mother about Trawick's remarks.

Under cross-examination, A.S. conceded that in January 1993, she was assigned to Trawick's gym class. At that time, she had a C-B average in gym. A.S. did not recall that she was in danger of failing gym in the seventh and the eighth grades. Rather, A.S. believed that she continued to maintain her grade average in the seventh grade and that she was medically excused from gym in eighth grade. A.S.

acknowledged that she spoke with S.G. about this case but denied that she discussed the matter with N.H.

N.H. is presently a fifteen year old ninth grade student at Barringer Prep. She attended Sussex Avenue and Trawick was her eighth grade gym teacher. In the beginning of the school year, she though that Trawick was "cool." Her positive feelings changed because Trawick made sexual remarks during gym class. Specifically, N.H. stated that during an exercise that required the students to bend down and touch their toes, she heard Trawick tell A.S. "if your boyfriend tells you to go down further, you would go down." N.H. believed that this was a sexual comment.

N.H. also alleged that Trawick told her that "he liked her shirt and what was inside the shirt." On that day she was wearing large oversized big cotton T-shirt. She also heard Trawick say that "someone had a fine body." L.C. was with her when Trawick made the remark. N.H. did not recall any comments that Trawick made with respect to another student's lips.

N.H. testified that she was a B-C student while at Sussex. She was good friends and "hung around" with L.C. and S.G. She received a C in gym but admitted that along with L.C. and S.G. she did not always participate in class activities. A.S. took gym class everyday and would lead the class in exercises. However, A.S. did not have Trawick's permission to lead the class exercises.

L.C. is a fifteen year old ninth grader at Barringer Prep. She attended Sussex Avenue for the eight grade and was assigned to Ms. Webster's homeroom. L.C. thought Trawick was "cool" and liked him until he started saying "nasty stuff." She did not recall when or why Trawick told her that she had "big thighs," but she remembered that he made the comment. L.C. claimed that she had reported to Ms. Webster that Trawick had a "nasty mouth."

L.C. recalled that she and Z.W. were in Trawick's class observing a third grade basketball game. Trawick approached her and told her to leave the class "before I touch your chest." She and Z.W. were leaving the gym when Trawick put his right arm over her shoulder and touched her left breast. She told Trawick to "stop playing." L.C. then told Z.W. what Trawick said to her.

Under cross-examination, L.C. stated that she attended Avon Avenue school in the seventh grade and was suspended for fighting. She was also suspended in eight grade from Sussex for using profanity towards a substitute teacher. Further, L.C. admitted that on the day of the alleged touching she did not have permission to be in Trawick's class. Indeed, she had been sent to the principals office and left the office without permission.

Further, she conceded that she did not like Trawick before the touching incident but she was not afraid of him. Rather, she "didn't care." L.C. also admitted that S.G. is her best friend and N.H. was a good friend. The two have always been there for her and she would tell them her problems.

S.G. is presently enrolled at Barringer Prep with L.C. and N.H. She was a student at Sussex Avenue from kindergarten through eight grade. Ms. Webster was her eight grade homeroom teacher and Mr. Trawick was her gym teacher. Initially, she considered Trawick a friend and called him "Coach T." At the beginning of the I term in the eighth grade, she came prepared for gym because she wanted to graduate. However, by November she was unprepared for class since she would forget her gym clothes at home. Subsequently, she stopped dressing for class because of Trawick's language.

S.G. claimed that in A.S.'s presence Trawick told her that her "lips were big and juicy." He also told her that her mother was "fine" and that he would like to "take her (mother) to his house and do a couple of things."

S.G. asserted that in December 1993 Trawick had said to A.S. that she had a "fat pussy," and that Trawick said this in front of S.N,. L.S., C.F. and M.M. They reported Trawick's comment to Ms. Webster.

It was after Christmas of the 1993-1994 school term that she heard Trawick tell A.S. that she had a "fat ass." The remark was made when she and A.S. were standing by Trawick's office. A.S. had been hit with a basketball and she went after the boy with the ball. When A.S. returned, Trawick's made the remark and A.S. laughed at the comment. Trawick would make similar remarks when the girls were dressed in tight shorts or tight jogging pants.

Under cross-examination, S.G. admitted that she had failed gym before Trawick's assignment as her gym instructor. Further, Trawick had failed her in the seventh grade gym because she was unprepared for class. She was also failing in the eight grade and was apprehensive about not graduating. After Trawick left Sussex, she was promoted. She further admitted that at this time she considered A.S. and L.C. as her best friends and N.H. as a friend.

Trawick then recounted his unsuccessful efforts to obtain assistance in handling the disciplinary problems at the school. The students were told that if they were unprepared for gym five times in any given marking period that they would receive a "F." He was aware and concerned that many of the students came from single parent homes. Trawick believed that he developed a "brotherly" relationship with the girls because they came to him for counseling. For example, Trawick noted that he counseled A.S. when her friend died.

A.S., N.H., L.C. and S.G. were all students in his gym classes and they formed their own "clique". N.H., L.C. and S.G. were in the same class. A.S. was older than the other students and was a "bully" who ran the playground. She was given an incomplete and was in danger of failing for absenteeism and being unprepared. (R-3 and R-4). A.S. was not medically excused from gym and on occasion did participate in the class. Trawick does not recall meeting with A.S.'s mother and noted that she did not attend parent teacher meetings.

In December 1993, when L.C. came to his third grade gym class Trawick instructed her to leave. She returned twice and was directed to leave each time. Trawick denied touching L.C. in any inappropriate manner. He believed that L.C. is easily influenced by A.S. who was the leader of the clique.

Trawick denied making an inappropriate comment to N.H. Rather, on the day of the alleged incident N.H. was being teased by the students about an oversized flannel shirt that she was wearing. N.H. asked him "Coach T. do you like my shirt?" He responded "of course I like your shirt and I like who's wearing the shirt." N.H. did not leave the class or express any distress in response to his remark.

Trawick recalled that S.G. was continuously unprepared for gym and was given a "F" the seventh and eight grade. Her mother came to school to bring her son's sneakers to class; not to complain about any alleged incident. Trawick denied expressing any desire about S.G. or her mother.

DYFS investigated the charge that Trawick inappropriately touched L.C. The agency concluded that there was insufficient evidence to substantiate the allegations.

J.S., a fifteenyear old former student of Trawick, testified that he was in Trawick's seventh and eight grade physical education classes. Gym classses were scheduled twice a week and Trawick would begin the class with an exercise. J.S.'s assigned place was in front of the gym class facing Trawick. J.S. stated that he never heard Trawick say "if your boyfriend tells you to go down further, you would go down." Further, he did not hear Trawick make any sexual remarks to any student. Moreover, J.S. did not hear any "gossip" about the alleged incidents.

J.S. recalled that N.H., L.C. and A.S. were all good friends. A.S. and S.G. always ate lunch together. He was friends with N.H. but was not friends with L.C., S.G.

and A.S. J.S. admitted that he liked Trawick and found him easy to talk too. J.S. participated in the "Class against Class" program and had a B average while at Sussex.

T.M. a sixteen year old testified that she was in Trawick's seveth and eight grade gym classes. In the seventh grade she was assigned to second or third row in the front of the class. She was an A student . T.M. maintained that she never heard Trawick utter any sexual remarks. She was friends with N.H., A.S. and S.G. A.S. and S.G did not tell her that Trawick had made sexual remarks to them. Rather, A.S. and S.G. told her that they did not take gym because the gym was dirty or that they had menstrual "pains."

T.M. described the gym class as a "bad class" where the students would fight, run around and curse. Further, she described A.S. as "more than a bully," she was a "nasty girl" who would touch boys in their "private parts." T.M. recalled that L.C. came to Sussex in the eight grade. In the beginning, A. S. would "beef"(e.g., to establish that L.C. could fight) L.C. to see if she had any worth. Subsequently, L.C. and A.S became friends and they both would lie to teachers.

T.M. became aware of the allegations against Trawick after L.C. reported that he had touched her chest. Thereafter, N.H. "got in it" followed by A.S. and S.G. T.M. overheard L.C. tell N.H., S.G. and A.S. about Trawick. Thereafter, the these students spread the allegations throughout the school. At this time, she and N.H. were no longer friends.

S. B., a rebuttal witness for the District, testified that she also heard Trawick comment that a particular girl had a "nice ass, nice breast" and "nice legs". She too complained to Ms. Palmeri but did not tell Mr. Orsini. S.B. admitted that she was not always prepared for gym.

Mrs. C.S., mother of A.S. testified that she is employed by the District and she was previously assigned to the Sussex Avenue School as a food service substitute worker. Her daughter told her that Trawick called her "thick," made remarks about her chest, and said that he wanted to take A.S out. Mrs. C.S. claimed that when she spoke with Trawick about these remarks, he responded that A.S. was a liar and belittled her daughter. Consequently, she told Trawick that any future incidents would result in her "bring[ing] her husband to see him but not to talk." After speaking with Trawick she saw Orsini about the incident who directed her to report the incident to the District.

Mrs. C.S stated that her daughter was an average student. She recalled that A.S. had failed math, English and science. Further A.S. had to repeat the seventh grade, primarily because of inappropriate behavior, such as, fighting and talking. She also believed that her daughter was medically excused from gym in the eight grade. Ms. C.S. further acknowledged that she considers S.G. as a second daughter.

Use of Profanity:

A.S. alleged that Trawick would use words like "shit," damn," and "f--k" on a daily basis. When Trawick used these words some students would laugh and others appeared shocked because teachers did not curse or "tried not to." A.S. has only heard other teachers curse when they were very angry. She reported Trawick's cursing to Ms. Palmer, her homeroom teacher.

N.H. recalled that Trawick would frequently curse when aggravated by a student. He would use words like that "f-----g child" when referring to O.G. However, she acknowledged that O.G. was very disruptive in class and would not listen to Trawick.

L.C. stated that Trawick would curse using words like "goddamn" and "sit your ass down." Trawick would also curse at Z.W. She did not know O.G. and therefore, she does not know if Trawick cursed at him. But, she did ask Trawick why he cursed around the students. S.G. recalled that Trawick would regularly use the word "shit" and sometimes "ass".

J. S. testified that he did not hear Trawick use any profanity. J.M stated that Trawick would occasionally use the word "damn" when he was unable to get the students to "respect" him. HE never heard Trawick use the words "god damnit" and "f--k." Rather, the students would curse at him.

The District presented the rebuttal testimonies of S.B., H.P. and S.D., who were students in Trawick's seventh or eight grade gym classes. They generally confirmed hearing Trawick use the word 'damn" and "ass." S.B. also heard him use the word "mother f----r" and "bitch."

Trawick conceded that he used the word "damn" when he saw some students climbing on top of the fence in the playground. He believed that they were in danger of falling. However he denied using any other profanity.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 provides that no tenured teacher shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation "except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause." Petitioner bears the burden of proving the charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence. In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982). The resolution of this matter depends on the credibility of the witnesses. Thus, careful scrutiny was given to each witness and their respective testimony. Testimony was evaluated for its believability and the probability of its occurrence under the circumstances. In re Perrone's Estate, 5 N.J. 514 (1950).

It is important to note that the girls testified that Trawick openly made the remarks sexual remark to them in the presence of others. Thus, one factor to be considered is element of consistency in the testimony. I am mindful that the hearing in this matter took place almost two years after the time that the alleged incidents occurred and thus some absence in recall is to be expected.

It is also equally important to consider that A.S., S.G., N.H. and L.C. were very good friends who basically associated with each other on a daily basis. Further, with the exception of N.H., they were in danger of failing gym and therefore they would not graduate from elementary school to high school. Thus, there existed a motive to fabricate the charges. Consequently, motive is one factor that must be considered in the determination as to which party's version of an incident has the reasonable probability of the truth. "The interest, motive, bias or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness in disbelieving his testimony." State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div. 1952) ; State v. Bicanich, 132 N.J. Super. 393 (App. Div. 1973).

I FIND that the District failed to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Trawick uttered inappropriate sexual remarks to A.S. A.S.'s statements at this hearing and those given during the school's investigation were blatantly inconsistent.

Although the testimonies of A.S. and S.G. are minimally consistent, the two students were best friends. Moreover other factors were presented which exposed the witnesses' bias against their teacher. A.S. received a D in gym after Trawick became her teacher. In the eighth grade, Trawick gave her an incomplete and she was in danger of receiving an F. (J-1 and J-2). Contrary to her testimony, she was not medically excused from gym in the eight grade. Rather, she was only excused on an as needed basis in 1991 and 1992. (R- 6). S.G. failed gym in the seventh grade and was in danger of failing gym in the eighth grade. It is undisputed that neither would graduate if they were to fail gym. Thus, A.S. and S.G. had strong motives to fabricate the charges against Trawick. Both knew that a teacher could be removed from the class because another teacher had been replaced based on student complaints.

The testimony from A.S. is also unbelievable. A.S. was an older student who was far wiser than her chronological years. Her statements and demeanor appear to be tailored to her audience. When speaking with the vice principal, she presented Trawick's remarks as openly vile and sexual. In contrast her statements to her mother and at the hearing were substantially different in substance from the statements that she gave to Orsini. The only consistent statement made by A.S. is that Trawick called her "pleasantly plump." I FIND credible the testimony of T.M. that it was only after the incident with L.C. that A.S., N.H., and S.G. chimed in with their complaints that Trawick had made sexually offensive remarks to them.

I FIND that the District failed to prove the allegations by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Trawick uttered inappropriate sexual remarks to N.H. With respect to Trawick's comments about N.H.'s shirt, no other student testified to this comment, although it was made during gym class. Trawick did not deny making a similar comment but argued that no sexual connotation was intended. I FIND the testimony of Trawick to be credible on this issue. His statements were directed at N.H. as a person and did not refer to any part of her anatomy. N.H.'s demeanor suggests that she is a likable child. Indeed based on testimony of witnesses, N.H. was a very different student from A.S., L..C., and S.G. both academically and temperamentally. Moreover, I conclude that N.H. was simply trying to keep up with the "wrong crowd."

N.H.'s testimony about the alleged remarks that Trawick made to A.S. when she was leading the class in exercise is consistent with the statement that she gave to Orsini. (P-2). It is also consistent with S.G.'s statement to Orsini. However, the remark was made in open class but neither J.S., T.M. or the rebuttal witnesses corroborated hearing this remark. Thus I do not FIND N.H.'s testimony to be credible. The credibility of N.H. and S.G. is also tempered by their relationship; they are very good friends and had an opportunity to conspire with each other. Further, N.H. was good friends with S.G. and A.S. who were on the verge of failing gym and thus had a motive to have Trawick removed from his position. T.M. acknowledged that the class had already been successful in removing one teacher whom they perceived as unfair. Based on the lack of any independent corroboration that Trawick made the alleged statement, the evidence does not support the charge against Trawick.

I also reject L.C.'s claims that Trawick told her in the presence of S.G. that she had big thighs. S.G. did not corroborate this remark in her testimony. Having had an opportunity to view L.C. I do not find her testimony to be credible. Nor am I persuaded that Trawick touched L.C.'s breast. L.C.'s testimony at the hearing about the incident was inconsistent with the statement that she gave to Orsini. In P-2, Orsini reports that L.C. stated that Trawick told her to "get out of this gym before I put my hands on your boobs."

Further, L.C. did not explain why she was observing Trawick's third grade class, when she claimed that she did not like him. The alleged touching is highly dubious and certainly was not supported by a preponderance of the credible evidence. The alleged remark testified to at the hearing is nothing other than childish gibberish and is simply incredulous. Where the standard is reasonable probability, that is, preponderance of the evidence, the evidence must be such as to "generate belief that the tendered hypothesis is in all human likelihood the fact." Lowe v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959).

S.G.'s testimony at the hearing was also inconsistent with the statement that she gave to Orsini. (P-2). Further, A.S. and S.G. were such close friends that Mrs. S. considered S.G. as a second daughter. Absent some independent corroboration S.G.'s testimony is highly suspect.

I am persuaded that Trawick did not made any sexual comments about S.G.'s mother. S.G.'s version of the circumstances surrounding the remark is not credible. It has been held that:

> Testimony to be believed must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness but must be credible in itself. It must be such as the common experience and observation of mankind can approve as probable in the circumstances. . .
> [In re Perrone's Estate, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950)]

Based on the record, I am not persuaded that Trawick made any sexual remarks to any of his students. I have further considered the testimony of the J.S. and T.M. who were also students of Trawick. I FIND their testimony credible and trustworthy. These two witnesses were able to provide simple details about the gym class that none of the charging students could recall. Further, I am convinced that the charging witnesses had selective memories and had previously discussed this matter among themselves.

On Count one, paragraph three c I FIND that Trawick used the words damn and ass. The testimony of the witnesses establishes a probability of the fact. The Matter of the Tenure Hearing of James Schafer, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 5288-82 (Jan. 20, 1983) aff'd Comm'r(March 4, 1983), at 12. Trawick acknowledged that he used the word damn when he perceived a student to be in danger. The testimony supports that he uttered the word "damn" and "ass" when he was angry. However, I FIND that Trawick did not use any other inappropriate language.

I further FIND that the charge of striking G.D. is not disputed and thus Trawick is guilty as charged. The issue that remains is what is the appropriate penalty. Should Trawick be removed from his position for striking a student and using inappropriate language.

In determining the appropriateness of a teacher's conduct, the Commission of Education has often stressed "that those persons who enter the teaching profession exercise a significant influence upon those they teach and . . . must exhibit a high degree of exemplary behavior." In Re Tyler, 13 N.J.A.R. 297, 308 (1991). In The Matter of the Tenure of Eddie Lee Harrell, 1979 S.L.D. 497, the Commissioner concluded that while Harrell's single act of slapping a student could not be condoned, it did not warrant dismissal. Subsequently in The Tenure Hearing of Harrell, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (387 (Dept. of Ed.), a series of subsequent corporal punishment charges were sustained. It has been held that unfitness to remain a teacher may be shown by a single incident, if sufficiently flagrant, but is best evidenced by a series of incidents. In Re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967); Redcay v. State Bd. of Ed. 130

N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943) aff'd, 131 N.J.L. 326 (E. & A. 1944). Thus, the issue is whether Trawick's striking of G.D. with a pointer is sufficiently flagrant to justify his dismissal.

The facts show that G.D. was disruptive student not only on the day of the incident but prior thereto. Trawick had sought Bowles assistance in dealing with G.D. His request went unanswered. G.D. was not injured. There is no contention that Trawick intended to inflict bodily harm. Rather, he "popped" G.D. with the pointer. I FIND that the conduct was inappropriate and manifested poor judgment. The evidence shows that this was an isolated incident. Indeed, there is no suggestion of prior or subsequent conduct or that Trawick intended to harm G.D. Moreover, Trawick did seek help in dealing with unruly students when he enrolled in and completed a course at Jersey City State College. I conclude that the striking of G.D. by Trawick with a pointer does not justify his removal under the circumstances of this case.

The next issue is whether Trawick's use of profanity justifies removal. It is undisputed that at the Sussex Avenue School there were generally many problems ranging from poor facilities to unruly and dysfunctional students. In the words of the students the school was unclean and the students behaved badly. The record reflects the students threw books in the cafeteria and caused a homeroom teacher to leave because of what they perceived to be unfair punishment. There were many substitutes after Ms. Webb left and as one student stated that is when the "class got bad."

Based on totality of the record herein, it appears that chaos reigned and at times Trawick was at his wits end. Considering the totality of the circumstances, I FIND that the utterances of "damn" and "ass" although inappropriate were spontaneous. Thus, I CONCLUDE that the conduct does not constitute sufficient reason for removal.

I CONCLUDE that the appropriate penalty is to withhold Trawick's increment for the 1993-1994 school year.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JOSEPH TRAWICK,	:
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF THE CITY OF NEWARK,	:	DECISION
ESSEX COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter, transcripts of the hearing, and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that respondent's actions, as proven, constitute unbecoming conduct for the reasons expressed therein. In so ruling, the Commissioner is satisfied that the ALJ considered all testimony and weighed its content according to the credibility of the witnesses and, therefore, finds no basis to challenge the ALJ's credibility determinations and resultant conclusions with respect to the charges against respondent.

With regard to evaluation/determination of the appropriate penalty to be imposed in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the tenure charges, as proven, are insufficient to warrant respondent's termination from employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and 11. Notwithstanding, the Commissioner disagrees with the ALJ's recommendation that an increment withholding is sufficient penalty in light of the findings that he struck a student with a pointer and used inappropriate language--actions which are both serious and unprofessional. In reaching such determination, the Commissioner is aware that he is required to consider the totality of respondent's record in the District, the nature and gravity of his offenses under all the circumstances involved, any evidence as to provocation, extenuation, or aggravation and must consider any harm or injurious effect which his conduct may have had in the maintenance of discipline and the proper administration of the school system. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 421-22 (App Div. 1967).

Although the ALJ afforded great weight to the evidence of provocation, extenuation and aggravation, in considering that > there were generally many problems ranging from poor facilities to unruly and dysfunctional students. In the words of the students the school was unclean and the students behaved badly.

>
> Based on totality of the record herein, it appears that chaos reigned and at times [respondent] was at his wits end.
> (Initial Decision at p. 18)

The Commissioner has stated that corporal punishment is not appropriate for a teacher under any circumstance, even with provocation. As stated in prior case law,

> [w]hile the Commissioner understands the exasperations and frustrations that often accompany the teacher's functions, he cannot condone resort to force and fear as appropriate procedures in dealing with pupils, even those whose recalcitrance appears to be open defiance. (Appleby at 172-173)

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Thomas Appleby, School District of Vineland, Cumberland County, 1969 S.L.D. 159, 172-173, aff'd State Board 1970 S.L.D. 448, aff'd N.J. Superior Court 1972 S.L.D. 662 (App. Div. 1972), citing In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frederick L. Ostergren, School District of Franklin Township, Somerset County, 1966 S.L.D. 185, 186.

> [P]rohibition of the use of corporal punishment or physical enforcement does not leave a teacher helpless to control his pupils. Competent teachers never find it necessary to resort to physical force or violence to maintain discipline or compel obedience. If all other means fail, there is always a resort to removal from the classroom or school through suspension or expulsion. While teachers are sensitive to the same emotional stresses as all other persons, their particular relationship to children imposes upon them a special responsibility for exemplary restraint and mature self-control. (Fulcomer at 162)

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of David Fulcomer, Holland Township, Hunterdon County, 1962 S.L.D 160, 162, remanded State Board of Education 1963 S.L.D. 251, decided by the Commissioner 1964 S.L.D. 142, aff'd State Board of Education 1966 S.L.D. 225, rev'd and remanded 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967), decided by the Commissioner 1967 S.L.D. 215.

Moreover, although the ALJ classifies respondent's use of profanity as "inappropriate but spontaneous," the Commissioner has stated that "[b]eing a teacher requires, inter alia, a consistently intense dedication to civility and respect." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Robert H. Beam, School District of the Borough of Sayreville, Middlesex County, 1973 S.L.D. 157, 163, and that teachers "must exhibit a high degree of exemplary behavior." In re Tyler, supra.

See also In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Ward Campbell and Ward Campbell v. Board of Education of the Princeton Regional School District, Mercer County, decided by the Commissioner 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 196, aff'd State Board 604, aff'd N.J. Superior Court, Appellate Division 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 211.

Therefore, based on the totality of respondent's behavior as proven, the Commissioner directs that in addition to an employment and adjustment increment withholding as recommended by the ALJ, respondent must forfeit the 120 days' salary withheld pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. Such penalty the Commissioner has found to be appropriate in similar cases. See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Robbie Mac Dowell, State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson, Passaic County, decided by the Commissioner on May 2, 1996.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein except as modified with respect to penalty. The Commissioner hereby directs that respondent forfeit the 120 days' salary withheld following certification of the within tenure charges and that he be denied his salary and adjustment increments for the 1996-97 school year.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY, : DECISION

RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent contested Board's refusal to provide round-trip transportation for District student, S.F., to attend Marine Academy of Science and Technology (MAST) in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-7.

ALJ concluded petitioner established by a preponderance of credible evidence that the Trenton Board was obliged to provide S.F. the transportation to MAST and back as N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-7 provides that pupils who attend the MAST must be provided transportation "by the district in which the pupil resides." ALJ further ordered the Trenton Board to reimburse K.F. for the cost borne by her in transporting S.F. from January 22, 1996 to the point when she was no longer capable of financing such cost.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own and directed the reimbursement.

BEFORE STEVEN C. REBACK, ALJ:

On or about February 27, 1996, the petitioner, K.F., on behalf of her minor child, S.F., through counsel, requested that the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) afford K.F. emergent relief in the form of compelling respondent, the Board of Education of the City of Trenton (Trenton), to undertake the responsibility of providing round-trip transportation for S.F. to attend the Marine Academy of Science and Technology (MAST) located in Sandy Hook, County of Monmouth, New Jersey. On the following day, February 28, 1996, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for disposition. Oral argument and testimony, as well as Trenton's brief were submitted on March 4, 1996 at which time the record closed. On March 6, 1996, my office issued a 9-page ruling and order granting K.F.'s request for the emergent relief described. Thereafter, Trenton submitted its exceptions to the Commissioner of Education and on or about March 15, 1996, the Commissioner issued a 4-page decision on motion in which he affirmed my ruling and order for the reasons which were expressed in my decision.

Thereafter, at the request of Mr. Thomas W. Sumners, Jr., Esquire, counsel for Trenton, I convened a telephone conference with him and Mr. Holland, counsel for K.F., to discuss the procedures to be subsequently employed. Following conference calls which were conducted both on March 19, 1996 as well as in early April 1996, it was finally agreed by the parties that the best fashion to proceed was for me to issue an initial decision that would essentially be reiterative of the analysis that I articulated in my emergent ruling, based upon a stipulation that the facts serving as the basis for the initial decision were the same as those which I set forth in the emergent ruling and that the Trenton Board of Education would then have available to it a plenary decision from which it could take any appeal it felt appropriate. I asked Mr. Sumners to memorialize that agreement by letter, and that it include a representation that both he and Mr. Holland stipulated to the facts and agreed to the procedure discussed. That letter was received by my office by fax on April 15, 1996, at which time the record closed. The original letter was received the following day.

THE FACTS AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

The following is a substantial and at times verbatim reiteration of the substance of the ruling and order which was issued by my office on the petitioner's request for emergency relief.

The Marine Academy of Science and Technology (MAST), located at the tip of Sandy Hook in Monmouth County, New Jersey, is a 4-year secondary school with a high-school curriculum designed to accommodate the needs of students interested in marine science technology. For the 1995-96 school year it has an enrollment of 233 students from 39 school districts from throughout Monmouth County and other counties in New Jersey (of the 233 full-time students, 20 are out-of-county). MAST has stringent admission requirements and a rigorous curriculum. In its 1995-96 school profile MAST indicates that "the Marine Academy of Science and Technology is opened to male and female students throughout the State of New Jersey. Daily transportation is provided by the resident districts." (at page 8).

S.F. has demonstrated high grades at MAST, scoring into the mid-high 90s in several of his courses, and receiving comments indicating, "outstanding performance" in these as well as "doing well" in a variety of his other courses. The guidance counselor of MAST in a letter directed to respondent, dated February 13, 1996, describes S.F. as:

> a bright young man who went through an extremely competitive application process. . . He has flourished here as evidenced by his academic record. In spite of having to deal with difficult and trying family issues, [S.F.] is well adjusted, focused and diligent. S.F. is a dedicated student who wants very much to continue his education here. To the best of my knowledge, [MAST] is the only public school in New Jersey that can offer him the specialized curriculum and it would be sad to deny him this opportunity. [Letter, Ann Marie Klecak, Guidance Counselor, MAST, February 13, 1996.]

Last year, when S.F. was a freshman at MAST, he and presumably his mother and father, resided in the Freehold School District, located in Monmouth County, and presumably Freehold undertook all the obligations imposed upon it to pay for S.F.'s attendance at MAST. S.F.'s parents are divorced and have joint custody of S.F. S.F. continued to live with his father in Freehold until January 14, 1996, when he was compelled to leave that residence because of parental abuse. He currently resides with his mother in Trenton, New Jersey, where on January 18, 1996 he was enrolled in the school district.[1]

In spite of informal efforts to have Trenton undertake the responsibility of transporting S.F. to MAST and back to his home, the district maintains it has no obligation to do so. That decision was apparently arrived as of January 22, 1996. As a consequence, and since that date,[2] K.F. had undertaken the obligation to transport her son to MAST. She had done so by personally taking time off from her employment and drove him part-way and then paid someone to drive him the rest of the distance and return him to a location near Trenton where K.F. returns him home. Her certification and testimony were that the cost of transporting her son in this fashion had been $200 per week. As of March 1, 1996, K.F. indicated that she was no longer able to afford to pay for transportation and that as a consequence, her son would no longer be able to attend MAST after that date. She also indicated that the Freehold Board of Education terminated S.F.'s transportation to MAST effective January 18, 1996.

The emergent relief order and ruling which was upheld by the Commissioner, directed Trenton to provide S.F. with an appropriate form of transportation from his home to MAST and back from January 22, 1996, the date that I determined that S.F.'s mother was no longer capable of undertaken that obligation. The basis under which I made that ruling under the emergent relief test was to first determine that were such relief denied, S.F. would suffer immediate and irreparable harm. It was then determined that the relief requested would be as narrowly defined as possible so as to not cause unreasonable expense to Trenton and/or substantial inconvenience to it. Neither of those issues is relevant to the plenary disposition of this matter and I will refer the reader to those portions of the emergent relief motion at which those issues were addressed with more particularity.

It was also determined as part of the emergent relief ruling that S.F., through K.F., was able to demonstrate a reasonable probability of prevailing on the merits of this appeal. Since no further legal arguments were submitted or requested to be submitted by the parties on the legal issue, the analysis which was utilized in my emergent order still adheres; however, it has also, in my view, met the higher standard necessary for a plenary disposition of these proceedings in that, in my judgment, it has been established by a preponderance of the relevant, credible evidence that S.F. should prevail.

[2] Until the order on emergent releif was implemented.

A review of the relevant statutes and the Commissioner's decision in R.H. and E.H. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Freehold Reg. High Schl. Dist., 1985 S.L.D. 282, makes this apparent.

The legislation which established a Marine Academy of Science and Technology was enacted in 1982 and is codified at N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-l to -7. The Act provides that > [u]pon the request by a board of education of a regional school district ..., the State Board of Education is authorized to establish a Marine Academy of Science and Technology under the local area vocational-technical school for the purpose of providing education to students throughout the State of New Jersey in the fields of marine sciences, marine trades, marine technologies and related courses, as well as academic courses.

> [N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-1.]

The State of New Jersey currently has only one MAST which is located in Sandy Hook, Monmouth county. It operates "under the auspices" of the Monmouth County Vocational-Technical School (MCVTS). N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-4. The board of education of the MCVTS determines the admission policies of the MAST. N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-6. Pupils who attend the MAST must be provided transportation "by the district in which the pupil resides." N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-7.

Contrary to the Trenton's position in the present matter, it appears that the legislation requires all school districts to provide transportation for its students who attend a MAST. The plain language of N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-7, supra, makes no distinction between pupils who reside in the same county where a MAST has been established and those who live out-of-county.

The statewide nature of the MAST program was recognized by the Commissioner in R.H. and E.H., supra, in which he adopted the ALJ's conclusion that "the resident school board's authority over the attendance of a pupil accepted at MAST on a full-time basis has been preempted by statute and, thus, the residential board of education is without jurisdiction over the MAST program." R.H. and E.H., supra, 1985 S.L.D. at 295 (resident school board could not require its resident pupil to enroll in its local school program for the academic courses of study while also enrolled in and attending the MAST program for the marine sciences and technologies on a shared-time basis). The Commissioner emphasized the availability of the program to all New Jersey pupils in the reasons set forth for his adoption of the ALJ's decision.

> The enabling legislation enacted relative to the Marine Academy of Science and Technology (MAST) is clear and unambiguous in its intent to establish a full-time instructional program available to New Jersey pupils. Admission procedures and operation of the MAST program fall under the jurisdiction of the Monmouth County Vocational-Technical School. Hence, there is no statutory authorization in N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-1 et seq. granting local boards the power to establish their own admission/attendance policies for those pupils in their districts who desire to attend this unique educational program.
> A board policy which would serve to unilaterally restrict pupils' attendance merely to a shared-time program would contravene clear legislative intent to have a full-time program available to New Jersey's pupils. If such a policy were allowed to be enacted by the Freehold Regional High School Board of Education or other boards of education, it would unquestionably undermine the legislative intent and purpose for a full-time instructional program to be operated... A board policy which prevents access to the MAST program on a full-time basis would serve to deprive those pupils of a statutory entitlement created by N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-1 et seq. Therefore, it is determined that any policy of the Freehold Regional Board restricting a pupil's attendance in the MAST program to shared-time is hereby declared null and void.
>
> Petitioner's son was accepted for full-time attendance in the MAST program. Therefore, there can be no impediment raised by the Board which precludes his right to attend a full-time educational program established by legislation, irrespective of how cost effective the rationale may be from the Board's perspective.

The Commissioner ordered that the Board be permanently restrained from restricting the pupil's attendance at MAST and that it provide transportation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-7. Id. at 298. This decision was affirmed by the State Board of Education. Ibid.

Even though R.H. and E.H. involved a school district located within the same county as the MAST, like the language of the MAST legislation nothing in the Commissioner's decision can be read to limit its application to within county school districts. The language of the decision clearly speaks to all New Jersey pupils and school districts. Respondent's determination that it is not obligated to provide transportation for S.F. to attend the MAST has no other effect but to "preclude his right to attend" this educational program established by legislation. Accordingly, that determination must be declared null and void.

In support of its position, Trenton relies to a great extent upon the 1990 amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-4, *L.*1990, c. 52, which transferred the assets of a MAST to the county vocational school board it operates under and directed that the costs for operating the program "be paid in the same manner as the costs are paid for other county vocational school programs pursuant to the provisions of chapter 54 to Title 18A." N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-4. Citing a section in the referenced title, N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1, the Respondent concludes that the "intertwining" of the MAST and county vocational school statutes exempts out-of-county local school districts from the obligation to provide transportation for its students who attend the MAST.

Trenton's interpretation is not supported. The impetus for changing the manner in which costs are paid for operating a MAST was the Quality Education Act of 1990 (QEA), N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-1 to -37. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-4; N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1; Committee statement to Senate, No. 272l, L.1990, c. 52, N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-1. The purpose of the QEA was to establish a new system for distributing state aid to the school districts. The 1990 amendment to the MAST legislation is more accurately characterized as housekeeping in that it was part of the Legislature's effort to fit the many funding statutes in Title 18A within the new system established by the QEA. The amendment does not reduce a school district's obligations to a student who is accepted and attends a MAST.

As the Commissioner stated in R.H. and E.H., the MAST is a unique educational program available to all New Jersey pupils. There is no language in that decision or the relevant statutes that would exempt a local school district from the requirements of the MAST legislation.

It is my view that the Legislature never anticipated the circumstances that are presented in this case, i.e., wherein a student seeks application to MAST who is located in a school district which is significantly off-shore and geographically far from MAST's location. Nevertheless, that the Legislature may have failed to anticipate such circumstance cannot and does not change the clear and express mandate of the statute. It is not the ALJ's job to rewrite the legislation; should the Legislature determine that the circumstances in this matter, which may very well occur in other instances, were never intended to be embraced by the statute at issue, then it is left to it to amend the legislation to reflect its intentions.

It is also my judgment, as an aside, that it ostensibly seems to be an unfair burden to place upon a local school district, such as Trenton, to bear the costs of transporting a student to MAST - a school opened to those qualified and interested on a statewide basis - when the costs could reasonably be considered greater than tuition to a university for a full year. The consequence in my view, is an additional result of the Legislature failing to assume that a scenario such as the current one would occur. Perhaps those in authority should apprise the Legislature of these circumstance and perhaps the appropriate resolution would be to provide some additional or other sources of funding for transportation rather than placing the burden exclusively on a local school district which typically is already short of funds.

Accordingly, and based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established by a preponderance of the relevant, credible evidence that the Trenton Board of Education is obliged to provide S.F. with transportation to MAST and back to his home. It is therefore ORDERED that Trenton comply with this directive[3]. It is further ORDERED that Trenton reimburse K.F. for the cost borne by her in transporting S.F. to and from her home to MAST from January 22, 1996 through to when she was no longer capable of undertaking this obligation.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

[3] I have been advised that Trenton has and continues to provide for the transportation requested since the emergent relief motion was decided.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and petitioner's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. As noted by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in his initial decision, for purposes of this plenary hearing, the within parties agreed to rely on testimony and prior submissions advanced in connection with the emergent relief motion in this matter, decided by the Commissioner March 15, 1996. In that the parties exceptions merely reiterate their respective positions addressed in the Commissioner's previous decision, it is unnecessary to revisit such arguments herein.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ that petitioner has established by a preponderance of the relevant, credible evidence that the within Board is responsible for providing S.F. with round-trip transportation to attend the Marine Academy of Science and Technology (MAST) located in Sandy Hook, County of Monmouth, New Jersey.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter for the reasons clearly articulated therein. The Trenton Board of Education is hereby directed to provide S.F. with round trip transportation between his home and MAST. The Board is further directed to reimburse Petitioner K.F. for the cost she incurred in providing S.F.'s transportation to this program for the period January 22, 1996 through to the point when she was no longer capable of financing such cost.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board sought approval of its policy banning backpacks in the classrooms, in the hallways and in the school cafeteria in the face of respondent E.M.'s refusal to comply.

Following review of the record and in light of testimony presented, the ALJ concluded that the ban on backpacks was a valid exercise of the Board's discretion and E.M.'s First and Fourteenth Amendment rights were not violated. Board's ban was rationally based. ALJ ordered the continuation of the policy.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the backpack ban was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable and that the Board's ban was rationally based and may continue in place.

Record Closed: March 29, 1996 Decided: April 12, 1996

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a petition filed by the Bernards Township Board of Education (Board), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, seeking the Commissioner's approval of its policy banning backpacks in the face of E.M.'s refusal to comply. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. The Board sought emergency relief which I denied and the Commissioner granted. A plenary hearing followed.

The questions presented are whether the backpack policy is arbitrary and capricious under the school law and whether it violates the First and Fourteenth Amendments of the United States Constitution.

Certain basic facts are undisputed. On January 2, 1996, Joan Tonnarelli, the principal of William Annin Middle School, implemented a policy barring the use of backpacks during the school day. Students may now bring their backpacks into the building, but then must store them in school lockers until the end of the day. School begins at 7:55 a.m. and concludes at 2:20 p.m. There are three minutes between periods for students to retrieve books from their lockers. From October 24 to November 8, 1995, a trial period was held, during which the faculty and principal monitored student behavior with their backpacks. On or about November 13, a ban went into effect and E.M., an eighth-grade student, was disciplined for her refusal to comply. After discussing the ban with Dr. Dalen Showalter, the superintendent of schools, Ms. Tonnarelli reopened the matter and a second trial period commenced on or about December 4, 1995. She brought parents up to date with a letter reading, in part, as follows:

> [T]hree weeks ago students were reminded of rules concerning backpacks and given a chance to use them more responsibly. When there was little improvement, I suspended their use during the school day only. . . .
> My decision to ban backpacks from the classroom was not made lightly. . . . Staff members compiled a list of concerns regarding the use of backpacks in class and presented them to me. This list included safety issues, such as fire and emergency egress problems. Since there have been many journal articles expressing concern about the effect of the backpack's weight on growing bodies, it also included health issues. Time management issues were also represented. . . . Lastly, backpacks are dangerous in hallways, classrooms, the cafeteria because of the space they require, and the imbalance they can cause when students turn quickly and hit others with this dangling weight.

> The students now have a second opportunity to respond responsibly during the month of December. We ask you to encourage your child to carry only the books needed for one/two classes so that their backpack will fit appropriately and safely under their seats. The staff and I will then confer and make a definitive decision for the New Year.

Ms. Tonnarelli received minimal response to this letter. During the second test period, Ms. Tonnarelli, Dr. Showalter and members of the student council spoke to the student body over the intercom and exhorted them to be careful with their backpacks. At the end of the test period the faculty voted by a substantial majority for an immediate ban (P-11). Parents were notified by letter of December 22, 1995, that a permanent ban would take effect when school reconvened after the new year (P-12). E.M., with the support of her parents, continued to resist and the question came before the Board on January 15, 1996. After a hearing, the Board voted 7-2 to uphold Ms. Tonnarelli's decision.

Petitioner presented a series of witnesses. Regina W. Townsend teaches seventh grade at William Annin and is vice-president of its teachers' association. In early 1994 she began to notice a growing use of backpacks at school and the teachers began talking about this at their team meetings. Students were storing their backpacks under their seats, and backpack straps as well as the backpacks themselves often spilled out into the aisles. Ms. Townsend testified that she walks up and down the aisles regularly to check homework and the like, and the backpacks were becoming an obstacle. By the beginning of the 1995/96 school year there were more and larger backpacks in use and the problem was becoming acute. Since the ban, students carry their books loosely and keep them in a basket under their seats or under their desks. Instead of cramming all of their belongings into their backpacks, they must plan ahead and thereby learn a lesson in organization. Less class time is now consumed packing and unpacking. Ms. Townsend has observed no problems since the ban and the safety concern has been eliminated.

James S. Buist is a guidance counselor at William Annin. He testified that initially students were encouraged to use backpacks because it was thought they might promote efficiency. As their use multiplied, teachers began to complain that students were swinging them in the hallways and dropping them carelessly in the cafeteria at lunchtime. He had the backpacks stored on shelving along a wall in the cafeteria and at two lunch tables set aside for this purpose. This created a lot of pushing and shoving as students sought to exit the cafeteria after lunch. Mr. Buist testified that some teachers experimented with storing backpacks in the rear of their classes, but this too resulted in a lot of bumping at the bell. Additionally, some of the older students have used their backpacks to intimidate younger students.

Mr. Buist acknowledged that during a bomb scare at the building prior to the ban, evacuation proceeded without incident. He also testified that individual students were not disciplined for misbehavior in connection with misuse of their backpacks, because it is difficult to assess blame in such incidents.

Four William Annin teachers testified concerning mishaps they had during the last year involving backpacks. Leslie P. Henry tripped over the straps of a backpack in class; she was not hurt. Sandra A. Hyde was struck in the face twice by backpacks while walking through the hallway. In both instances a student immediately in front of her turned abruptly and hit her. She testified that she was not really hurt, but experienced some discomfort after these accidents. She began to feel defensive as she walked through the building. Dorothy J. Norris tripped and fell over a large backpack while teaching a class. She hurt her right ankle and the injury remained painful for many weeks. A workers' compensation claim was filed on her behalf (P-1). Elaine S. Lent tripped on a backpack strap in class, fell forward and hit her thigh against her desk. A black-and-blue mark developed and the injury hurt for a few days. This occurred during a photography lesson while the students were mixing chemicals. A second incident occurred while she was on crutches as a result of a bicycle accident. After the school day was over she tripped over a backpack and fell against a row of lockers; she did not hit the ground.

Julie M. Eger is president of the Parent/Teacher Organization (PTO). A Parent Advisory Council, made up of twelve parent representatives and Ms. Eger, meets monthly with Ms. Tonnarelli to discuss school business. Ms. Tonnarelli raised the backpack issue at one of their meetings in the spring of 1995 and then again in a November 1995 meeting (P-9). Ms. Eger testified that at the spring meeting, Ms. Tonnarelli simply said that backpacks were being used increasingly and that the faculty was concerned. By November she reported that the faculty had become more insistent that a solution be found. Ms. Tonnarelli noted that the assistant fire marshall walked through the building with her and had concerns that backpacks might be an obstacle during an emergency. She also noted that there were health issues relating to the weight of backpacks on growing bodies, and she mentioned the disorganization and loss of instructional time associated with students fumbling through their packs to get at their materials. The council decided to support the principal and faculty.

Deborah A. Karuppan is the school nurse at William Annin. She reviewed her records going back to the beginning of the 1994/95 school year to see how many student injuries were attributable to backpacks. An accident report was filed on November 28, 1995, involving D.S., a sixth grader (P-2). He had been "fooling around" with a friend at approximately 7:20 a.m., before the school day began, and was hit in the face with a backpack. He complained of dizziness and a headache and had a bruise on the bridge of his nose. On October 27, 1995, C.W., a seventh grader, was walking down the hall at approximately 12:50 p.m. and felt an impact on the left side of her head and fell backwards on her backpack (P-3). She did not know what hit her. K.S., mother of C.S., wrote a note to Ms. Karuppan on January 19, 1996, seeking to have her daughter excused from gym class because she had injured her back the day before, lifting her backpack (P-4). This incident occurred after the ban went into effect. Ms. Karuppan's log book also shows that L.K. reported being hit on the wrist by a backpack on October 13, 1994 (P-5). We do not know the time of day. On September 21, 1995, at approximately 12:50 p.m., M.T. hit her right elbow against her own backpack (P-6). On November 3, 1995, D.M. was hit in the left eye with a backpack. She saw Ms. Karuppan at 7:55 a.m.; presumably the injury occurred before then (P-7).

Ms. Karuppan testified that students were carrying too much weight on their backs and they labored under the burden; they also did not center the backpacks, which exacerbated the strain. Ms. Karuppan was not offered as a medical expert on this subject.

Joan C. Tonnarelli has been the principal at William Annin for seventeen years. Faculty complaints about the proliferation of backpacks had been building since 1994, and by the fall of 1995 it became necessary to address these concerns. In November she met with faculty representatives (P-8) and the Parent Advisory Council (P-9); the former group pressed for a permanent ban, the latter supported it. Ms. Tonnarelli testified that during this period Joseph Moscello, the assistant fire marshall, accompanied her from class to class and commented that the backpacks in the aisles might pose a problem in an emergency.

Respondent also presented a number of witnesses. Ralph Dorio is the chief fire official in Bernards Township. Work at the school over the summer made it necessary for him to conduct a series of inspections to determine compliance with the uniform fire code. He was in the building for this purpose on August 14, September 5, September 20, November 13 and November 22, 1995, and he made a final inspection on February 1, 1996 (R-3). He cited various violations, including some for blocked means of egress. Mr. Dorio testified that none of these infractions were attributable to backpacks. Joan Tonnarelli contacted him sometime in the fall of 1995 to express concern about the safety of backpacks. He told her they presented no fire code violation. He made a copy of the egress sections of the code for Ms. Tonnarelli. Later, C.M. contacted him and was curious about his interaction with Ms. Tonnarelli.

Michael J. Byrne is a member of the Board of Education who voted against the ban. He did not believe the administration established that backpacks were a significant problem. The documentation appeared to him to be a post hac creation.

B.W.M. is C.M.'s son. He is a college freshman, but attended William Annin as a junior high school student. He testified that backpacks were the norm then; use of backpacks at the school is not a new phenomenon.

E.M. testified in her own behalf. She wore her backpack to class during the initial ban in November 1995, but Ms. Tonnarelli told her that the school had been cited by the fire marshall for egress violations relating to backpacks and that the issue was out of her hands. Ms. Tonnarelli gave her a copy of the regulation (R-7). She returned to class without her backpack, but when she subsequently reviewed this material with her father she learned that it was not a citation, but merely a copy of the egress provisions of the fire code. The next day E.M. confronted Ms. Tonnarelli and told her that she felt deceived.

E.M. testified that during the trial periods students were more careful with their backpacks, but the teachers were predisposed to finding problems. E.M. also felt that if some students abuse the right to carry a backpack they should be punished, and if some carry oversized backpacks, then these should be regulated. She thought that three minutes between classes was insufficient time for many students to retrieve materials from their lockers. Presently, students leave books all over their desks and on the floor, and to E.M., this system is no improvement.

Ms. Tonnarelli returned to the stand in rebuttal to say that she never told E.M. that there had been a citation from the fire marshall. She told E.M. about her conversation with the assistant fire marshall. E.M. asked for a copy of the fire code sections that were of concern to Mr. Moscello and she provided it. This is the substance of the record.

Boards of education enjoy wide policymaking discretion and their decisions may not be disturbed unless arbitrary and capricious. Thomas v. Morris Bd. of Educ., 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965); Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). The evidence on behalf of the backpack ban is not overwhelming, indeed some of it is contrived. Nevertheless, at bottom there is a nexus between the ban and the interests of safety. Ms. Henry, Ms. Hyde, Ms. Norris and Ms. Lent testified that they were hit by backpacks or tripped over them. More generally, these witnesses were troubled by the need to be on guard against such perils and they appear to be representative of a majority of the faculty. Nurse Karuppan searched her files back to the fall of 1994 and reported that a few students had been injured by backpacks. Guidance counselor James Buist testified that bunched backpacks in the cafeteria caused pushing and shoving after lunch, and that teachers who tried storing backpacks in the rear of their classrooms reported similar problems. Moreover, students inclined to bullying or horseplay found backpacks a useful aid. This testimony from the faculty was credible and I accept as fact that teachers and students have been injured by backpacks, that at least some teachers became apprehensive as a result, that backpacks have posed storage problems and that some students have used them irresponsibly.

Respondent points out that one of Ms. Lent's accidents occurred after the school day and that approximately half of the six reported student mishaps also took place at times when the present ban would not have averted the injuries. This is true, but that still leaves a small number of incidents attributable to backpack use during the school day. Respondent suggests that teachers exercise greater caution in order to avoid backpack accidents, that students who abuse the backpack privilege or any other privilege be disciplined as individuals, that oversized backpacks be regulated, and that retrieval of backpacks after lunch or class be better planned in order to prevent turmoil. Any measured solution, respondent argues, would be preferable to the sweeping proscription now in effect. These are reasonable views and with study might deliver a good result. We are not here, however, to chaperon local action. Boards of education are statutorily authorized to manage the public schools and their decisions may not be disturbed unless patently unreasonable.

Some aspects of the record are troubling. In her December 4, 1995 letter to parents, Ms. Tonnarelli marshalled the arguments against backpacks, two of which are that backpacks present an emergency egress problem and that "many journal articles" raised concerns about the weight of backpacks on growing bodies. She also made these points in a November 1995 meeting with the Parent Advisory Council. When E.M. inquired in November about the reason for the ban, Ms. Tonnarelli responded that the backpacks were a fire hazard. At the January 15, 1996 hearing before the Board, Ms. Tonnarelli alluded to her conversation with the assistant fire marshall about the hazards of backpacks in an emergency (J-1). The problem here is that Ms. Tonnarelli specifically sought out Mr. Dorio's view on the subject, and when he did not provide the desired response, she opted not to reiterate his opinion. Though Mr. Dorio is the chief fire prevention official in Bernards Township and he undertook a series of inspections at William Annin over a course of months, Ms. Tonnarelli preferred to relate Mr. Moscello's comments. Although I take no adverse inference from petitioner's failure to call Mr. Moscello, the observations attributed to him are hearsay and we do not know whether he holds this opinion seriously, or was merely making an aside. In any case, this record provides scant support for representations to anyone, let alone the Board, that backpacks pose an emergency egress problem.

Further, the "many journal articles" expressing concern about backpacks turn out to be two newspaper pieces and a letter to the editor and reply from the author of an article on the topic, published in the New England Journal of Medicine (R-4). These materials are mainly distant hearsay and were not received in evidence to focus the medical question. Rather, they reveal that the quantum and quality of materials relied upon by the administration gave it little basis for implying that the ban was undergirded by a serious body of medical literature.

Under some circumstances, a remand might be in order to give the Board an opportunity to reconsider in light of the evidence as it is. My review of the record, however, leads me to conclude that respondent cannot prevail on the merits, and little would be served by extending this debate. The Board is, of course, free to reconsider at any time.

Respondent also argues that E.M. has First and Fourteenth Amendment rights to carry a backpack throughout the school day. These arguments have not been sharply joined and I will not attempt to construct a position for respondent. As support for the constitutional rights argument, respondent relies first on Tinker v. Des Moines Independent Community School District, 393 U.S. 503, 21 L. Ed. 2d 731, 89 S. Ct. 733 (1969), a seminal case on the subject of symbolic speech. The high court found that students who wore black armbands to school in protest against the Vietnam War were exercising First Amendment rights. This record does not disclose what protected speech is represented by backpacks and I do not see the parallel. Respondent has also referred to New Jersey v. T.L.O., 469 U.S. 325, 83 L. Ed. 2d 720, 105 S. Ct. 733 (1985), apparently for the proposition that E.M. has been deprived of property. That case set search and seizure standards for students and is inapposite. E.M. is free to carry her backpack into and out of school each day; she may not carry it in crowded school hallways, into classrooms, or into the cafeteria. As previously indicated, the rule is rationally based and respondent was heard before the Board. On the face of it, I see no constitutional deprivation of property.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that the ban on backpacks is a valid exercise of discretion and that the policy may continue. So ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BERNARDS, SOMERSET COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
C. M., individually and as parent of minor child, E. M.,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondents' exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate his arguments advanced before the ALJ, again contending that any safety concerns established by the Board in support of its ban on backpacks are scant. Moreover, respondent notes that although the ALJ stated that boards enjoy a wide latitude in their policy making determinations and "their decisions may not be disturbed unless arbitrary and capricious," (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 1, quoting Initial Decision at p. 7), he also recognized that some of the evidence presented by the Board with respect to the backpack ban was "contrived" and some areas of the record were "troubling." Respondent argues that when a record is " 'contrived' and 'troubling,' the ban is not only arbitrary and capricious, it is also patently unreasonable." (Id. at pp. 1-2)

Respondent highlights in detail those aspects of the record which the ALJ found "troubling," specifically, the Board's assertion that backpacks pose an emergency egress problem.

Respondent also asserts that much of the Board's "evidence" with respect to the safety concerns surrounding backpacks arose after E.M.'s suspension on November 16 and 17, i.e., the journal articles first appeared in a letter to parents dated December 4, 1995, and the problem of backpacks not fitting in wire baskets under desks was first mentioned at a Board hearing on January 15, 1996. Respondent states that on November 13, 1995, when the backpack ban was imposed, the only reason advanced for such ban was the "fire and emergency egress problems" (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 4), which the ALJ all but discounted in his initial decision.

Respondent maintains that the ALJ's decision makes clear that any concerns of the Board regarding safety with respect to the use of backpacks are minimal and, therefore, he urges that the Board's action in instituting the ban was arbitrary and capricious and should be overturned.

In response, the Board asserts that respondent lifted two words out of the initial decision (e.g., "contrived" and "troubling") and imposed his own, out-of-context, interpretation to such words. Further, the Board argues that "the Judge's use of the (sic) those words is wholly gratuitous and without factual support in the record." (Board's Reply Exceptions at pp. 1-2). It contends

> In the same paragraph in which Judge Metzger states that "some" of the evidence presented on behalf of the backpack ban is "contrived", see Initial Decision (Decision), p. 7, he also unequivocally holds that "at bottom there is a nexus between the ban and the interests of safety." Id. Moreover, he finds the testimony from the faculty "credible" and "accept[s] as fact that teachers and students have been injured by backpacks, that at least > some teachers became apprehensive as a result, that backpacks have posed storage problems and that some students have used them irresponsibly." Id. In contrast to this clear articulation of facts supporting the backpack ban, nowhere does the Judge indicate which evidence he found contrived." (Id. at p. 2)

The Board maintains that, contrary to respondent's interpretation, the ALJ's use of the word "troubling" was indicating only that he was unpersuaded by the Board's evidence that backpacks pose an emergency egress problem and that their weight posed a health risk to students. The Board again proffers that the ALJ correctly "'accepted as fact' that backpacks have caused injuries, posed storage problems and have been used irresponsibly by students. Decision, p. 7. All of these reasons were cited by the Board in support of the ban." (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 2) It further argues that these accepted facts, "[s]tanding alone, clearly demonstrate that the Board's imposition of the ban is a thoroughly appropriate exercise of its discretion." (Id.)

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concludes that the Board has established, and respondent has failed to disprove, that its backpack ban is not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable; thus, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that such ban is a valid exercise of the Board's discretion. It is axiomatic that a board of education enjoys broad policy-making discretion in that "[w]hen such a body acts within its authority, its decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be upset unless there is an affirmative showing that such decision was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable." Thomas v. Board of Education of the Township of Morris, 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965). Further, it must be remembered that in such matters the scope of the Commissioner's review is extremely narrow in that he may not substitute his judgment for that of those who made the decision but, rather, can only determine whether they had a reasonable basis for their conclusions. (emphasis added) See Kopera v. Board of Education of the Town of West Orange, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 296 (App. Div. 1960).

The Commissioner finds that the record supports the Board's contention, and the ALJ's finding, "that teachers and students have been injured by backpacks, that at least some teachers became apprehensive as a result, that backpacks have posed storage problems and that some students have used them irresponsibly." (Initial Decision at p. 7) As such, the Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's determination that the Board's action in banning backpacks "is rationally based(Initial Decision at p. 9), and must, therefore, be sustained.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The within Board's ban on backpacks is determined to be a valid exercise of its policy-making discretion and, therefore, it is hereby ordered that such ban may continue in place.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON REMAND

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teacher who retired from the position of English Teacher on an accidental disability pension but was later found fit by TPAF to return to employment, appealed Board's refusal to appoint her pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40 to vacancy in position of media specialist, which she held prior to her transfer to English Teacher and in which she had been tenured. In prior initial decision, ALJ concluded she had effectively resigned and forfeited her tenure rights by accepting disability pension; thus, the Board had no obligation to reemploy her and petition was dismissed. Commissioner set aside initial decision, finding in light of Superior Court decisions in Allen and in DiMuzio that N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40 obliged District to reemploy petitioner when a vacancy arose in her former position of English Teacher; any other offer of employment was discretionary on part of the Board. Commissioner remanded matter for findings and recommendations on question of whether Board's refusal to appoint petitioner to media specialist position was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

On remand, ALJ found that petitioner failed to demonstrate that the Board's action not to employ her for the position of media specialist was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. ALJ concluded that the evidence showed the Board's action was grounded upon professional judgment and was within its discretion. Petition was dismissed.

Citing Bringhurst and Kornacki, Commissioner adopted initial decision as his own.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter is on remand from the Commissions of Education (Commissioner) where he set aside the initial decision in the above captioned matter, and holding, in light of the Superior Court's decisions in IMO John J. Allen 262 N.J. Super. 438 (App. Div. 1993) and Board of Police Commissioners, City of East Orange v. PFRS, Di Muzio, (App. Div. Docket No. A-2629-87T8, unpublished opinion, May 18, 1989), that N.J.S.A. 18A: 66-40 obligated the Point Pleasant Borough Board of Education (Board) to reemploy petitioner, who had retired on an accidental disability pension from the position of tenured English Teacher, when a vacancy arose in her former position. The Commissioner further held that the Board had discretion to offer any other employment to petitioner, including the position of Librarian which she formerly held. The Commissioner remanded the matter for findings and recommendations on the question as to whether the Board's refusal to appoint petitioner to the Librarian position was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

The plenary hearing was held on March 8, 1995, at the Point Pleasant Beach Municipal Court. The parties were granted leave to supplement the record by way of briefs and memorandum of law. The record closed on December 27, 1995. Extensions were granted in order to execute this initial decision.

STIPULATION OF FACTS

The Stipulation of Facts entered into by the parties and set forth in the original Initial Decision are repeated here:

Petitioner, Christine Bublin, was hired by the respondent, Point Pleasant Borough Board of Education, in September of 1969 as a teaching staff member, and, at the time of this employment, became enrolled in the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, commonly referred to as TPAF. Petitioner received tenure as a teaching staff member in September of 1972. At all times while in the employ of the respondent, petitioner was properly certified as a teacher of English and teacher librarian by the State Department of Education. During the term of her employment, petitioner served first as an elementary school staff member under her teacher-librarian endorsement and thereafter, under the same endorsement in the high school, until June 30, 1981, when she was assigned to duties as an English teacher in the High School.

Petitioner continued on active status until January 18, 1982, which was the last day petitioner reported for work. At that time, petitioner was acting in the capacity of an English teacher. After January 18, 1982, until she received her disability retirement, petitioner was out on Worker's Compensation.

By certification filed on September 14, 1982 the Board certified to the TPAF that petitioner was permanently and totally disabled. On September 14, 1982, petitioner certified to the TPAF that she was incapacitated for further service as a teacher. On October 21, 1982, petitioner's disability retirement was confirmed by the TPAF to be effective November 1, 1982, and, on appeal, petitioner was finally awarded an accidental disability retirement.

By letter dated March 12, 1991, the Point Pleasant Borough Board of Education received notice from the State of New Jersey, Department of the Treasury, Division of Pensions, that the Board of Trustees of the Pension Fund had found that petitioner's disability had diminished to the point that she could resume her former duties as a teacher without restriction. Petitioner had also received a letter, dated March 11, 1991, advising that she was able to resume her duties as a teacher. At that time, there was no position available, either as an English Teacher or as a teacher librarian, and the Board neither contacted petitioner, nor did petitioner contact the Board of Education. Petitioner, however, accepted employment as a librarian with the South Amboy Board of Education beginning April 8, 1991, and sought reinstatement in the Teacher's Pension and Annuity Fund, which was granted. Petitioner was assigned a new TPAF number.

Since April 8, 1991, petitioner has remained in the employment of the South Amboy Board of Education, and has been offered a contract for the 1993-94 school year.

Thereafter, by letter dated April 13, 1992, petitioner applied for a position of elementary school librarian, which had become open in the Borough School system. By letter dated June 8, 1992, from the Board, petitioner was advised that she would not be hired for the position, and on August 14, 1992, petitioner filed this action, seeking the position of elementary school librarian for which she applied, together with other relief.

SUMMARY OF TESTIMONY

Petitioner testified on her own behalf asserting, among other things, that her educational background included: high school diploma from Manasguan High School; B.S. degree from Monmouth College in secondary English; 18 years of post graduate work at Newark State (now Kean) College for Media Specialist Certification. She commenced her employment with the Board in 1968 or 1969, prior to the completion of her undergraduate degree, as a teacher-librarian under a substandard certificate. The substandard certificate was subsequently converted to a standard certificate. Petitioner possesses teaching certificates in Secondary Education-English and an Associate Educational Media Specialist Certificate-Grades K through 12. The Associate Educational Media Specialist endorsement was issued to petitioner in 1991, where she was employed by the south Amboy Board of Education.

Petitioner testified that during the thirteen years in which she was employed by the Board, she was never subject to tenure charges, increment withholding, nor any type of disciplinary action. Petitioner testified that she was never advised or warned of, or disciplined, for her attendance record.

The two criticisms to which petitioner testified she received, regarded her use of prep time. The first criticism occurred during the 1976-1977 school year, from her then supervising principal, Mr. Moran. As a result of that criticism, an agreement was reached whereby petitioner would eat her lunch first and then use her prep period. Subsequent observation records prepared by Mr. Moran noted the organized condition of the library and do not contain any references to prep period conditions.

A second criticism occurred during the 1981-82 school year, at which time the vice principal, Mr. Phebus, expressed concern over the location of petitioner's prep period. These concerns were addressed when petitioner agreed to and commenced utilizing the library for her prep periods in accord with Mr. Phebus' request.

Petitioner testified that while she was employed by the South Amboy Board of Education during the 1992-93 school year, she observed a newspaper advertisement in the Asbury Park Press where the Board was seeking applications for a media specialist. She telephoned the number listed in the advertisement and spoke with Carol Clark, who knows nothing about petitioner. Petitioner follow up the telephone call with Ms. Clark by submitting a letter and resume' dated April 13, 1992.

Subsequently, in June 1992, petitioner received a standard form letter from the Board advising her that the position she sought had been afforded to another person. Petitioner contends she was never called for an interview nor did she talk with a principal or any other administrator prior to the Board's selection of someone other that petitioner.

Subsequently, petitioner contacted the New Jersey Education Association (NJEA) who referred her to present counsel. During the summer of 1992, petitioner advised Superintendent of Schools George Kane, that she was legally entitled to the position of Media Specialist, pursuant to advise petitioner had received from the NJEA.

Over objection by the Board's Counsel, petitioner's counsel offered a letter from Mr. Popovitch, Esquire, to Mr. Friedman, Esquire, dated October 18, 1994, which was moved into evidence as Exhibit P-2, and states:

> Please accept the following as a Statement of Reasons why the Board of Education chose not to re-hire Christine Bublin as a Librarian/Media Specialist.

> First, her performance as a Librarian, during the time she was a teaching staff member in the Point Pleasant Borough School System, was not satisfactory, which was a principal reason why her position was changed from Librarian to English Teacher in 1981, which was the last position she held in the School System. Her former principal, Dr. Carl Perry, would be able to offer testimony as to the problems that occurred, including her interaction with other personnel and her failure to use her preparation periods for preparatory work in the library, for which, she was reprimanded by a letter from Dr. Perry dated June 12, 1980.
>
> Second, Mrs. Bublin holds a Certificate as a Teacher of English and a Teacher Librarian. She does not hold the more current Certificate of Media Specialist which was the position sought to broader training in the use of all media, including audio visual aids and the like.
>
> Third, the Administration assumed that since under prior law her retirement was considered tantemount to resignation, the district had no obligation to offer the position to her.
>
> Fourth, in prior years, Mrs. Bublin had a less than satisfactory attendance record. In most recent years, she used practically all of her sick days as well as her personal days.
> All of the foregoing reasons would be supported by testimony, as indicated, as well as the documentation available in her personnel file. (P-2)

Petitioner testified, among other things, that she did not resign her employment position when she was granted disability retirement. Nor, she testified, did Ms. Clark or the Superintendent express to her any of the reasons set forth in P-2 when she applied for the media specialist position in 1992. She contends there was no interview prior to her receipt of the form letter advising her that another person had been selected for the position of media specialist.

On cross-examination, petitioner did not recall the receipt of a letter addressed to her from former Superintendent of Schools, Lawrence DeBellis, dated June 28, 1992, which stated that petitioner had been released to return to duty on March 9, 1982 by the Board's Worker's Compensation insurance company, however, petitioner failed to return to duty or give an explanation for her reasons not to return. (R-1) The document (R-1) was in petitioner's personnel file and was made available to her through discovery for this case.

Petitioner did recall receiving a letter from Dr. Carl L. Perry, Principal of Point Pleasant High School, dated June 12, 1980, in which Dr. Perry confirmed one of the recommendations he made to petitioner concerning her preparation work. Dr. Perry stated, among other things, that he would expect petitioner to spend the majority of her preparation time in the library in view of the fact that library work is very specialized which required access to library materials. (R-2)

Petitioner also recalled a Teacher Observation Record prepared by William Moran, dated February 1, 1977, wherein he stated, among other things, that:

> Suggestions have been made by me to help Mrs. Bublin use her working hours more efficiently, especially during times when children are not in the library. Since these suggestions were made I have not seen enough effort by Mrs. Bublin to make better use of time before classes in the morning, during preparation periods or after classes in the afternoon.
>
> When the class period had ended and the children left the library Mrs. Bublin had put on her coat and hat and left the room and the building explaining that she was, "going out to get a sandwich." This was done during her preparation period. I have sent Mrs. Bublin written directions explaining that staff-members were not permitted to leave the building during preparation periods.
> I recommend that Mrs. Bublin spend more time in planning and preparing lessons and work projects so that children derive maximum experiences there and routine library organization duties are carried out more efficiently.

> I am seriously concerned about the effect these deteriorating library conditions are having on the community. I hope Mrs. Bublin does everything possible to improve conditions. (R-3).

Petitioner submitted a response to Mr. Morvan's observation stating, in part, that:

> I have always eaten lunch first lunch even though the schedule lists that as prep. Since the students have been in all winter due to bad weather several 5th graders help in the library after lunch at 12:10 during their recess time. By eating lunch first period I am there to supervise them. Mr. Moran has now agreed to a change in the schedule to first lunch. (R-3)

Petitioner admitted she had received notice of the issue of her preparation time within a three year period. She also acknowledged receipt of a memorandum from Principal Moran, dated December 2, 1976, with respect to improving her efficiency in the library. (R-4)

Petitioner presented a Teacher Observation Record from Mr. Moran, dated March 7, 1977, in which Mr. Moran was generally complementary of petitioner's performance. (P-5) In a subsequent Teacher Observation Record, dated February 21, 1978, Mr. Moran made no reference concerning petitioner's preparation periods. (P-6) This observation indicated that the library appeared to be in better order.

Petitioner admitted that the letter she received from the TPAF, dated March 31, 1991, which granted her request to terminate her disability did not advise petitioner of any available position with the Board. (R-5) Petitioner also admitted that she had acquired a tenure status with the South Amboy Board of Education.

Superintendent Kane testified, among other things, that he had no knowledge that petitioner had applied for the position of Media Specialist. Rather, the procedure in effect for filling vacancies at that time involved the Board's Supervisor of Personnel who would arrange for a screening committee to accept applications for positions for which advertisements had been placed. The screening committee conducted a paper screen of all the applications, conduct interviews, and then recommended between three to five candidates to the Superintendent. Superintendent Kane did not serve on the screening committee.

Under normal circumstances, Superintendent Kane would receive the files of the finalist where he would conduct the reference check and follow up with a secondary interview. With respect to petitioner, since she was a former employee, a reference check was conducted early in the selection process. Superintendent Kane personally conducted the reference check of petitioner by contacting Dr. Perry, petitioner's last supervisor and principal in the Board's school district. Dr. Perry specifically stated to Superintendent Kane that the Board should not employ petitioner. Dr. Perry did not give Superintendent Kane a reason for not employing petitioner nor did Superintendent Kane did not ask Dr. Perry for a reason. Superintendent Kane ruled petitioner out as a candidate after speaking with Dr. Perry.

As far as Superintendent Kane knows, the screening committee considered petitioner's application for employment. Superintendent Kane made no recommendation to the screening committee regarding petitioner. Nor did he discuss her candidacy with the screening committee. It was his understanding that petitioner was not interviewed by the screening committee. Petitioner was neither interviewed by Superintendent Kane or the Board.

The Board acted upon Superintendent Kane's recommendation to employ a candidate other that petitioner for the position of Media Specialist. Superintendent Kane relied solely upon Dr. Perry's recommendation not to employ petitioner for the position. Superintendent Kane did not rely upon petitioner's past performance as illustrated by the observation's and evaluations in petitioner's personnel file. He asserted that petitioner's application for the position was treated no differently that any other application. The only difference was that Superintendent Kane checked with petitioner's last supervisor, Dr. Perry, because petitioner was a former employee.

I hereby adopt as my FINDINGS OF FACT the testimony of the above two witnesses.

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

PETITIONER'S POSITION

POINT I

THE BOARDS FAILURE TO REEMPLOY MS. BUBLIN IN THE POSITION OF MEDIA SPECIALIST WAS ARBITRARY, CAPRICIOUS AND UNREASONABLE

While the discretionary determinations of local school boards are presumed valid and reasonable, a local board's decision will be subject to scrutiny and correction by the Commissioner of Education if the decision is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Colts Neck v. Freehold High School, 270 N.J. Super 497, 505 (App. Div. 1994), Parsippany Troy-Hills Education Association v. Board of Education of the Township of Parsippany-Troy Hills, 188 N.J. Super 156 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 94 N.J. 527 (1983); Thomas v. Morris Township Board of Education, 89 N.J. Super 327, 332 (App. Div.) aff'd, 46 N.J.

246 (1965); Ramapo-Indian Hills Education Association v. Ramapo-Indian Hills Board of Education, 176 N.J. Super 35, 45 (App. Div. 1980); Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super 288, 294-95 (App. Div. 1960). This is particularly and obviously true, where as here, the Commissioner has remanded an ALJ's decision and directed that the Board's action be measured against this standard, and the law, as will be demonstrated infra, prohibits the Board from arbitrarily denying a recovered pensioner a vacant position.

The law governing this matter is set forth in Board of Police Commissioners, City of East Orange v. PFRS, DiMuzio, (App. Div. Docket No. A-2629-87T8, unpubl. op. May 18, 1989). In DiMuzio, the Court held that a recovered disability retirant must be appointed to his/her former position when there is a vacancy. The Court also addressed the issue of a recovered disability retirant's entitlement to other positions, and held that in some circumstances, the retirant may be entitled to such positions. The Court stressed that the legislative policy which underscores the disability retirement statue is to assure the reemployment of able bodied employees and to avoid the unnecessary expenditure of pension resources by paying disability benefits to a pensioner who is no longer disabled.[1] The Court in DiMuzio concluded that the employer may not arbitrarily refuse to assign the recovered retirant to such duty or position, nor may it defer action until he is no longer available.

In view of the Court's holding in DiMuzio, and the legislative intent as explained by the Court in DiMuzio, the statute requires that a recovered disability retirant be returned to any available duty, not just his former duty, unless there is a persuasive reason to deny such appointment. Otherwise, the legislative policy, i.e., to assure that able bodied employees be employed and avoid unnecessary expenditure of pension resources, would be frustrated.

[1] In DiMuzio, the Court interpreted the PFRS statute, N.J.S.A. 43:16A-8.2. However, that statute is worded identically to the TPAF statute, and consequently, the same considertions and statutory construction apply with equal force to the statute at issue in this matter.

Accord, In the Matter of John J. Allen, 262 N.J. Super 438, 444-445 (App. Div. 1993). (Police sergeant seeking reinstatement following disability retirement was returned to duty as an officer and not a sergeant and was denied seniority status. Reviewing the PFRS statute, the Appellate Division held that the law mandates that the recovered employee be returned to his former position).

In accord with DiMuzio, the Commissioner directed that the Board's refusal to appoint Ms. Bublin to the position of media specialist be reviewed by this Court to determine whether it was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

In deciding whether an agency has acted arbitrarily, the factors to consider include:

> (1) "Whether the agency's action violated the enabling act's express or implied legislative policies;
>
> (2) Whether there was substantial evidence in the record to support the findings on which the agency based its action;
> (3) Whether in applying the legislative policies to the facts, the agency clearly erred by reaching a conclusion that could not reasonably have been made after weighing the relative factors. Williams v. Department of Human Services, 116 N.J. 102, 107 (1989; See also Non-Profit Affordable Housing v. Coatt, 265 N.J. Super 475, 479 (App. Div. 1993); Accord, Public Service Electric & Gas Co. v. New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection, 101 N.J. 95, 103 (1985).

The record in this matter demonstrates that the Board's actions were contrary to the statutory policy underlying the TPAF disability statue. Under N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40, when a retiree on ordinary disability retirement recovers, he or she shall report to her former duty or any other comparable duty which his/her former employer is willing to assign him or her. N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40(a).[2] Similar to the identically worded PFRS statute and in accord with DiMuzio and the Commissioner's first decision in this case, Ms. Bublin was entitled to be reinstated to either the position of English teacher, or if that position is unavailable, to the next available position, media specialist, unless there was a persuasive reason to deny such appointment.

The testimony at the hearing demonstrates that the Board acted arbitrarily and unreasonably in refusing to appoint Ms. Bublin to such duty. Ms. Bublin recovered from her disability and was certified by TPAF as capable of resuming her duties. The Board ignored her status as recovered (indeed, it argued that she had resigned), failed to consider her application. Moreover, it was not until this litigation that the Board attempted to justify its actions, and even then, the Board relied upon inapplicable statutes and caselaw.

Given the statutory policy articulated in DiMuzio, it is clear that the Board acted arbitrarily and unreasonable; rather than reemploying an able bodied pensioner and saving scarce pension resources, it rejected her application without any real reason. The arbitrary nature of the Board's action is compounded by the fact that even if the Court ignores the legislative policy set forth in DiMuzio and measures the Board's conduct by narrower notions of arbitrary action, the Board acted arbitrarily because it failed to consider Ms. Bublin's credentials or past performance. The record is lacking in any evidence, much less substantial evidence, to justify the Board's action.

[2] N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40(a) provides as follows:

> If the report of the medical board shall show that such beneficiary is able to perform either his former duty or other comparable duty which his former employer is willing to assign him, the beneficiary shall report for duty.

The above conclusion is both underscored and demonstrated by the record evidence. The Board and the Selection committee relied solely upon Mr. Kane's unsubstantiated and unfounded recommendation not to rehire Ms. Bublin. Mr. Kane's reference check was cursory, devoid of any supporting factual basis, and based upon a conclusory, unstantiated statement. Although Ms. Bublin's resume included several references, Mr. Kane instead informally contacted only her former principal, Dr. Perry, by telephone. During a brief telephone conversation, and without providing any reasons, nor commenting on Ms. Bublin's' abilities or her past performance, Dr. Perry advised Mr. Kane simply "not to hire her" (T:81). Without ever reviewing Ms. Bublin's resume, personnel file, personally interviewing her or obtaining her side of the story; resting his recommendation solely upon Dr. Perry's concluory opinion, Mr. Kane decided not to consider her application (T:85). The Selection Committee and the Board then acted on the recommendation of Mr. Kane (T:87). The Board's failure to consider such factors prior to reaching its decision to deny Ms. Bublin the position was not only unfair, it was patently arbitrary, capricious and contrary to statutory policy favoring the return of recovered disability retirants to active duty. These considerations prove the error of the Board's actions.

In addition, the arbitrary and unreasonable nature of the Board's action was compounded by the Board's sorry attempt to justify its actions in discovery, when it proffered a list of reasons why Ms. Bublin was not offered the vacant position. Those reasons were wholly unsubstantiated; indeed they were proven false.

The Board asserted that its decision to deny Ms. Bublin the position was justified in light of her alleged history of unsatisfactory performance, lack of proper endorsement for the position, alleged poor attendance history and the Board's belief that Ms. Bublin's retirement constituted a formal resignation. But the Board offered no proof that such circumstances existed, nor that such circumstances were considered when the Board decided not to offer Ms. Bublin the position. Indeed, Mr. Kane admitted that he did not consider those reasons at all (T:85).

For example, although the Board contended that Ms. Bublin had a history of poor performance, the record is devoid of any such evidence, and Mr. Kane admitted that neither he nor the Board relied upon such "record" (T:85). Indeed, the primary complaint concerning Ms. Bublin throughout her lengthy tenure at the Board was directed at her use of prep time (T:40-43), and on the two occasions on which this issue was raised, Ms. Bublin and her supervisor resolved the problem in a practical and expeditious manner (T:24-26, 40-43, 72-73).

The Board also contended that M. Bublin had a poor attendance record (P-2). But neither the Board nor Mr. Kane considered her attendance record in their decision (T:78-100), and Ms. Bublin testified without contradiction that at no time during her employment was her attendance record ever questioned (T:24).

As to the Board's assertion that Ms. Bublin lacked that proper endorsement, Ms. Bublin's application informed the Board that she had the proper endorsement (associate educational media specialist), and therefore that "reason" is similarly absurd.

Finally, the Board's reliance upon a claimed resignation is likewise unreasonable, since not such resignation exists, and the law is that a disability retirement does not constitute a resignation in this context. Thus, the record demonstrates that the Board ignored the legislative policy and acted unreasonably, and that even if the Board had considered the reasons it claimed it relied upon in discovery, it could not have reasonably denied Ms. Bublin the vacant position.

In sum, the arbitrary and unreasonable nature of the Board's action is underscored by its failure to prove the very reasons that it proffered in discovery to support its action; indeed its implicit admission that it did not rely upon them at all. Thus, with our consideration of the statutory policy, the Board's conduct was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. But if there can be any doubt, when measured against the applicable legislative policy, i.e., to return a recovered disability retirant to work and not waste pension funds, the Board's action was clearly arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, disregarded that policy, and was contrary to the legislative policy. Accordingly, Ms. Bublin was and is entitled to the position in dispute.

THE BOARD'S POSITION

POINT I

THE ACTIONS OF THE BOARD WERE NOT ARBITRARY, CAPRICIOUS OR UNREASONABLE

The primary reason why the Board did not re-hire Christine Bublin was set forth in as a first reason in the statement of reasons dated October 18, 1994. It was the opinion of her last supervisor, Dr. Carl Perry, who was her principal at the high school where she had previously been a Librarian and an English teacher, that her performance was less than satisfactory, and that he would not recommend her for a position.

The Superintendent, George Kane, testified as to the procedure in effect for filing vacancies in the school at the time. Mr. Kane indicated that there was a supervisor of personnel who would set up a screening committee to accept applications, and the screening committee would do a paper screen and then recommend three to five candidates to the Superintendent of Schools for interviews. (T76-22 to T77-7) Mr. Kane went on to testify that since Ms. Bublin was a former employee, it was easy to do a reference check on her, and that he contacted her last supervisor and principal, Dr. Carl Perry, to obtain Dr. Perry's recommendation. (T78-20 to T79-22) Mr. Kane testified that he relied upon Dr. Perry's recommendation, or lack of it, in eliminating Ms. Bublin as a candidate for the position. (T86-9 to 12)

Mr. Kane also testified that Mrs. Bublin's resume had come in and did go to Mrs. Clark's committee (T88-25 to T89-2). Mr. Kane also testified that the normal procedure for hiring was followed, and that Mrs. Bublin's name was never submitted for an interview based upon the committee review. (T90-1 to 24) Mr. Kane testified too that he was the one to actually perform the background check, and that it was his normal procedure, if an application involved a teaching position to go to the former employer and try to speak to the principal in the place they worked. (T94-9 to 21) Thus, the only testimony adduced throughout the entire hearing, from Mr. Kane, who Mr. Friedman made his own witness, was to the effect that all of the normal hiring procedures were followed, and that Mrs. Bublin's name was not put forth by the Committee, and that he had also advised the committee of the negative reference from her prior principal, Dr. Perry.

The fact that Mr. Kane did not go behind Dr. Perry's recommendation, and make an independent review of Ms. Bublin's record himself, is really of no consequence, since Mr. Kane was following the procedure that had been put in place by a Board policy for all hiring practices.

Indeed, the record amply substantiates Dr. Perry's refusal to recommend her for the position. In 1976, her then principal, Mr. Moran, gave Mrs. Bublin a letter with specific written directives for improving the organization and working of the library. (R-4 in evidence) In a February 1, 1977 evaluation (R-3 in evidence), Mr. Moran noted that he had not seen enough effort by Ms. Bublin to improve conditions, or to make better use of her time. On June 12, 1980, Ms. Bublin was again reprimanded for failure to spend her preparation period in the library. Finally, on June 28, 1982, the then Superintendent, Dr. Lawrence DeBellis, wrote to Ms. Bublin notifying her that she had been released to return to duty on March 9, 1982 by the Workers Compensation carrier and yet had not returned, and asked for reasons for her failure to return. (R-1 in evidence)

Mrs. Bublin testified that her only recollection of a concern being expressed about the use of her prep time was either the last year or prior to the last year that she worked. (T24-22 to T25-4) However, as already noted, the record reflects that the proper use of her prep time was an obviously related to the December 2, 1976 directive from Mr. Moran marked R-4 into evidence.

Simply because the decision to re-hire was based upon a subjective evaluation made by Dr. Perry, and related to the Superintendent, does not mean that it is arbitrary or capricious. In this case, the Board's actions would have to be considered as similar to the refusal to renew a non-tenured teacher. In such circumstances, the Commissioner and the State Board have recognized that the hiring authority, the district board, has wide discretionary authority, and that the subjective judgment of the administration could not be set aside absent a showing of bad faith. Bringhurst v. Cape May City Board of Education, 81 S.L.D. 564 (State Board of Education 1982) Further, the Court noted in Dennery v. Board of Education, 131 N.J. 626 (1963):

> "Courts will be vigilant to assure the proper application of the school laws and to forestall capricious or arbitrary administrative action. However, the Courts cannot supplant educators; they are not at liberty to interface with regulatory and administrative judgments of the professionals in the field of public education unless those judgments are palpably arbitrary or depart from governing law." (p. 643)

Although that case dealt with the question of tenure and creation of a new position, the principal is essentially the same. The administration of the school district must consider many factors in making a decision to hire or not to hire. The Superintendent, Mr. Kane, has indicated that great reliance is placed on a recommendation from a person's previous supervisor. There is nothing to suggest that reliance on such a recommendation is in any way arbitrary, capricious or even misplaced. To argue that the evaluation was subjective really has not merit, since, of necessity in any hiring situation, the administration must make a subjective evaluation to some extent. The fight credential alone do not necessarily make one eligible for a position.

There has been no showing of bad faith certainly, nor does it even appear that a claim of bad faith is being made. In the absence of such a showing, and the respondent having shown valid and substantial reasons for the refusal to hire, the claim of the petitioner should be dismissed.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

In his Decision and Order of Remand, the Commissioner clearly interpreted the controlling statute and case law arising from analogous statutes in other public pension systems to contemplate a mandatory return to the duties and status held by a disabled retiree at the time of his or her retirement, when those duties are available (Commissioner's emphasis, slip opinion at 26). The Commissioner further held that the retirees return to other duties in the absence of a vacancy in the former position, was solely at the discretion of the employing Board. Thus, petitioner, herein, is entitled to a position of teacher of English when it becomes available. However, the Board had discretion as to whether or not it may choose to employ petitioner in a position other than that held by petitioner prior to her retirement. The standard to which the Board is required apply under DiMuzio supra. is that it "may not arbitrarily refuse" to assign petitioner to the alternative position but a refusal must be on a reasonable basis.

Here, the Board, through its Superintendent, established a procedure for screening candidates for positions with the Board which had been advertised. The Board's Supervisor of Personnel assigned a committee to conduct a paper screen, i.e., eliminate those applicants which did not meet the Board's criteria for the position. The screening committee conducted the initial interviews with those candidates which demonstrated the most promise for the school district and then recommended between three to five candidates to the Superintendent for his review. The Superintendent would conduct a background check and then interview those finalist he believed would make a contribution to the school district.

In the instant matter, however, the Superintendent recognized that petitioner had been a former employee of the Board. He believed that the prudent and effective method of learning more about petitioner's professional status was to contact petitioner's most recent supervisor in the school district for an assessment. Superintendent Kane telephoned Dr. Perry, petitioner's last supervisor and principal while employed by the Board, who advised the Superintendent not to employ petitioner to the position of Media Specialist. Superintendent Kane trusted Dr. Perry's professional judgment and, therefore, made no further inquiry. As a consequence, petitioner was not one of the finalist for the position of Media Specialist and was not recommended to the Board for the position by Superintendent Kane. Superintendent Kane relied upon Dr. Perry's professional integrity as the one who had observed and supervised petitioner during her last employment with the Board. A recommendation not to employ was sufficient for Kane. Also, petitioner did not pass the initial screen by the screening committee. She did not meet the Board's requirements for the position.

Our Supreme Court, when discussing the rationale for the probationary period under the tenure statutes, said in Cammarata v. Essex County Park Comm'n, 26 N.J. 404, 412 (1958) that:

> It is difficult to evaluate the character, industry, personality, and responsibility of an applicant from his performance on a written examination or through cursory written examination or through cursory personal interviews. Knowledge and intelligence do not alone (suffice).....
>
> The crucial test of his fitness is how he fares on the job from day to day when suddenly confronted by situations demanding a breadth of resources and diplomacy.....

Such an assessment is applicable here where Dr. Perry measured petitioner's fitness for the position because he had first hand knowledge of her day performance. Dr. Perry's rejection of petitioner was neither arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable but, rather, grounded upon professional judgment.

Petitioner had failed to demonstrate that the Board's action, through its Superintendent, was anything less than a reasonable decision. The decision not to employ petitioner was grounded upon the professional judgment of an educational leader who had the opportunity to work with petitioner, to observe and assess her performance, and to arrive at the conclusion that she was not the person for the position.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioner has failed to demonstrate that the Board's action not to employ her for the position of Media Specialist was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. I CONCLUDE that the evidence shows the contrary.

I CONCLUDE, that the action of the board, not to employ petitioner to the position of Media Specialist was within its discretion and, therefore should stand.

ORDER

Accordingly, the action of the Point Pleasant Borough Board of Education not to employ petitioner Christine A. Bublin to the position of Media Specialist upon her return from disability retirement is hereby AFFIRMED and the herein Petitioner of Appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.		COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF POINT PLEASANT, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON REMAND
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply were filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner initially excepts to the Commissioner's conclusion in his prior decision, issued January 26, 1994, that she is not, as a matter of law entitled to the position of media specialist which became vacant and which the Board subsequently filled in 1992. (Petitioner's Exceptions at pp. 1, 2) Further, petitioner objects to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) conclusion that the Board's decision not to appoint her to the disputed position was not arbitrary and capricious. (Id. at p. 2) In this regard, petitioner references her post-hearing brief which was well summarized in the initial decision on remand.

In its reply, the Board affirms its disagreement with the Commissioner's prior decision ordering a remand of this matter, in that the Board maintains there was no obligation to rehire petitioner since she had obtained employment in another school system. The Board further urges the Commissioner to adopt the initial decision of the ALJ on remand.

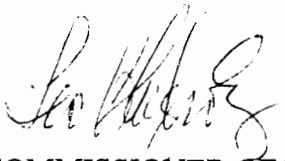
Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which included a transcript of the hearing, the Commissioner finds no cause to disturb his prior ruling that petitioner's statutory entitlement to reemployment, upon TPAF's determination that she was able to return to work, is to the position of teacher of English, when those duties are available, as that is the position which petitioner held at the time of her retirement. Where the position from which petitioner retired is not vacant, she may be returned to other duties at the discretion of the Board.

As to the Board's refusal to appoint petitioner to the media specialist position, the Commissioner cannot find, under the circumstances herein, that the Board's apparent reliance upon the adverse recommendation of petitioner's former principal and supervisor was unreasonable, arbitrary or capricious. "It is  well established that the school administrators and the Board have the right to make subjective judgments so long as they do so in good faith." Ellen Bringhurst and Susan Kornacki v. Board of Education of the City of Cape May, Cape May County, 1981 S.L.D. 564, 565.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL on remand is adopted for the reasons expressed therein, and the petition is dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.



COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning school bus driver contended the Board's action withholding her increment for the 1995-96 school year for alleged excessive absenteeism was unreasonable.

Citing Kopera and N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the Board did not, in fact, have a reasonable basis for its increment withholding action or that the Board's action was arbitrary or capricious. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 9794-95

AGENCY DKT. NO. 311-7/95

SHAWNA D. WEBB,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,

Respondent.

Shawna D. Webb, petitioner, pro se

Stephen J. Christiano, Esq., for respondent,

Record Closed: April 1, 1996 Decided: April 12, 1996

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

The petitioner, Shawna D. Webb, is a bus driver employed by the respondent, Board of Education of the town of West Orange, Essex County. On July 14, 1995, the respondent (Board) acted to withhold the petitioner's salary increment for the 1995-1996 school year. This is an appeal by Ms. Webb of the Board's action.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed her verified petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education on July 31, 1995, alleging that the Board's withholding action was unreasonable because of failure to give her adequate notice and failure to afford her an opportunity to discuss or improve her absenteeism during the 1994-95 school year. An answer, denying the substantive allegations of the petition, and asserting affirmative defenses, was filed by the respondent on August 18, 1995.

On September 7, 1995, the matter was transmitted by the Commissioner of Education to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A hearing was held on April 1, 1996, in the OAL, Newark, New Jersey. The petitioner testified in her own behalf. Respondent did not call witnesses, but relied on ten exhibits that were marked in evidence, as identified in the exhibit list attached to this decision. Counsel for respondent also argued orally in summation. The record closed on April 1, 1996.

ISSUE

The issue to be resolved in whether the Board had a reasonable basis for the underlying factual conclusions that led to the withholding of petitioner's salary increment.

DISCUSSION OF THE EVIDENCE AND TESTIMONY

Testifying in her own behalf, the petitioner stated that she did not dispute the number of days she was absent from her duties as a bus driver during the 1994-95 school year. However, she alleged that the Board failed to follow its standard of disciplinary procedures in her case.

According to Ms. Webb, the usual disciplinary procedure consists of three written warnings after verbal counseling, followed by suspensions and then termination. She did not mention increment withholding as an option. Petitioner said that she only received one written warning, in April 1995. Ms. Webb stated that she was not suspended afterwards, but was simply notified that her salary increment for the following school year was being withheld. The petitioner also said that the disciplinary procedure related above was part of her union contract, as well as being a matter of Board policy. Ms. Webb questioned why the Board did not adhere to those standards. However, when asked, the petitioner said that she did not have a copy of the Board's policy or the union contract to illustrate the procedures that she said should have been applied to her absenteeism.

The petitioner also questioned the manner in which the Board calculated her absenteeism. She said that employees were allotted ten sick days each year. These ten sick days, all of which she had used, were added to the thirteen additional days that she was absent. Ms. Webb felt that the twenty-three days of calculated absenteeism should not have included the ten permitted sick days.

The petitioner noted that, while her salary increment was withheld because of twenty-three days of absence, another employee who had been absent for thirty days was terminated. However, she did not know if the procedure used to terminate that employee followed the policies she believed to have been violated. It seemed that Ms. Webb was arguing that she should have been suspended (although she did not suggest for how long) instead of having her increment withheld.

The respondent cross-examined Ms. Webb by utilizing documents that were marked in evidence. In her testimony, the petitioner acknowledged their accuracy. Exhibits R-1, R-2, and R-3 are warning notices relating to three days in June 1995, when the petitioner was late for work and did not call or did not appear for work after calling to say that she would be late. Exhibits R-4, R-5 and R-7 are memoranda that itemize each date during which the petitioner punched-in late for work during the 1994-95 school year. Reviewing these exhibits, Ms. Webb noted that many of the late entries show that she punched-in late by no more than one or two minutes. The petitioner explained, logically, that on most of the late entries she was due at work at 1:30 p.m., but her punch-in time is recorded as 1:31 or 1:32. This was caused by the fact that many people lined up and waited up to use either one of the two available time clocks. She then appeared to be one or two minutes late, after waiting on line for at least several minutes. Ms. Webb said that the time clocks were not available for use before 1:30.

Exhibit R-6 shows that the petitioner received another notice of warning for not calling and not appearing for work on February 8, 1995.

The petitioner also acknowledged that her supervisor spoke to her individually about lateness at several meetings that were held during the year to discuss that subject.

Exhibit R-8 is a notice of a two-day suspension given to the petitioner on November 23, 1994, for receiving a speeding ticket and failing to report it. This notice also provided a history of seven warnings that were given to Ms. Webb between October 1993 and November 1994 for various infractions. Exhibit R-9 is a chart of the petitioner's attendance record for 1993-1994. It shows that she was absent from work for eighteen days during that school year. Assuming that the school year contains approximately 180 days, eighteen days of absence equals a ten percent absenteeism rate.

Exhibit R-10 is a chart of Ms. Webb's attendance record for the 1994-95 school year. This shows that she was absent for nineteen and one-half days plus one personal day; a rate of absenteeism of more than ten percent. Ms. Webb pointed out that in each of the two years discussed above, she was allotted ten sick days, so that in 1993-94, she had eight days of excessive absence above the ten allotted days, and in 1994-95 she was out nine and one-half days over and above the ten allotted sick days, excluding the personal day.

When asked about the reasons for her absences, Ms. Webb stated that she could not point to anything in particular, but she has three small children and has had occasional trouble with her car. She is aware of the fact that when she does not appear for work a spare driver must be used. She also admitted that her 1994-95 attendance record did not improve from the previous year.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having heard the testimony, having reviewed the exhibits and considered the argument of counsel, I FIND that all of the facts stated in the foregoing discussion of the testimony and evidence were uncontroverted. Therefore, such facts are incorporated herein as findings of FACT.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

A single statute controls a decision by a board of education to withhold a salary increment.

> Any board of education may withhold, for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education. It shall be the duty of the board of education, within 10 days, to give written notice of such action, together with the reasons therefor, to the member concerned. . . .
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.]

The leading case defining the factors to be weighed by the Commissioner of Education with respect to an increment withholding is Kopera v. Board of Education of West Orange, 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). The court there stated:

> [T]he scope of the Commissioner's review is, as respondents say, not to substitute his judgment for that of > those who made the evaluation but to determine whether they had a reasonable basis for their conclusions.

>
> . . .
> [T]he burden of proving unreasonableness is upon the appellant. Id. at 296-97.

The foregoing standards have been analyzed and commented upon frequently:

> The purpose of the statute is thus to reward only those that have contributed to the educational process thereby encouraging high standards of performance. In determining whether to withhold salary increment, the local board is therefore making a judgment concerning the quality of the educational system. It is reasonable to assume that an adversely affected teacher will strive to eliminate the causes or bases of "inefficiency." The decision to withhold an increment is therefore a matter of essential managerial prerogative which has been delegated by the Legislature to the Board. (citations omitted)
> [Board of Education, Bernards Township v. Bernards Township Education Association, 79 N.J. 311, 321 (1979).]

As stated above, the only question open for review is whether the Board had a reasonable basis for its factual conclusions. One who challenges the action of the Board that has withheld a salary increment must sustain the ultimate burden of demonstrating that the complained of withholding was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable because the Board did not have a reasonable basis for its factual conclusion. The Board's determination may not be otherwise reversed.

The findings of fact above clearly underline the excessive absenteeism that adversely affected the petitioner's performance as an employee. On the question of the notice given to her, the documentary evidence shows that she received more than ample notice of her attendance problems, and she did not improve the clearly excessive absenteeism. (The many instances of lateness by one or two minutes, as shown on exhibits R 4, 5 and 7 do not lead to adverse inferences, because of the appellant's uncontested explanation.)

Although Ms. Webb claimed that the Board did not follow standards of progressive discipline, those standards were not proved, nor were they shown to be rigid guidelines that must be applied. In any event, it does not seem to be logical that the Board would limit its discretionary and statutory authority to withhold an increment.

It is therefore CONCLUDED that the petitioner failed to prove, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that the Board did not in fact have a reasonable basis for its increment withholding action, or that the Board's action was arbitrary or capricious.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that the respondent's action withholding the petitioner's 1995-96 employment increment be affirmed, and the petition is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that the Respondent Board's determination to withhold petitioner's increment did not exceed the reasonable use of the Board's discretionary and statutory authority, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 and Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the OAL for the reasons expressed therein and finds that the within Petition of Appeal must be dismissed.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, nontenured curriculum coordinator, challenged Board's nonrenewal of her employment contract for the 1994-95 school year. Petitioner alleged the Board's action was in retaliation for having filed a grievance regarding gender discrimination in salaries paid to male and female administrators. Petitioner further alleged the Board's failure to continue her employment violated the Conscientious Employee Protection Act (CEPA), N.J.S.A. 34:19-1 to -8.

ALJ concluded that 1) the bringing of petitioner's CEPA action constituted a waiver of her retaliatory discharge claim before the Commissioner; 2) any failure by the Board to provide petitioner with a statement of reasons for her nonrenewal had been cured by discovery provided in this litigation; 3) the vote by a quorum of the Board was a valid legislative act; and 4) the Board was not obligated to accept the recommendation of its superintendent of schools in deciding not to renew petitioner's contract. (Rotondo) Board's motion for summary decision was granted; petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal by a non-tenured school administrator who challenges the non-renewal of her employment contract for the 1994-95 school year. Originally, petitioner Maureen Lally ("Lally") advanced several legal theories in support of her claim for relief. Counts One, Two and Three of her petition alleged that respondent

Clark Board of Education ("Board") failed to renew her contract in retaliation for her having filed a grievance regarding alleged disparities in the salary paid to male and female administrators. Count Three further alleged that the lack of parity in pay constituted gender discrimination in violation of federal and state law.[1] Count Four alleged that the Board's failure to follow the recommendation of the superintendent of schools that her contract be renewed was "without any basis in fact and contrary to its legal authority." Count Five alleged that a vote by less than the full membership of the Board violated Lally's rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1. Count Six alleged that the Board's decision should be overturned because petitioner received less than the three performance evaluations per year mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.1.[2] Nine months after bringing her appeal to the Commissioner, Lally instituted a separate action in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division, in which she alleges that the Board's failure to continue her employment violated the Conscientious Employee Protection Act ("CEPA"), N.J.S.A. 34:19-1 to -8.

Presently, the matter comes before the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on the Board's motion for summary decision in its favor. At the outset, the Board contends that the waiver provision of CEPA, N.J.S.A. 34:19-8, precludes Lally from pursuing a substantially similar retaliatory-discharge claim before the State administrative agency. Additionally, Lally maintains that the remaining education issues properly before the

[1]Petitioner alleged that the Board's salary policies violated her rights under the Equal Pay Act, 29 U.S.C.A. § 206, as well as the Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 to -42. In February 1995, petitioner notified the OAL that she was voluntarily withdrawing the pay-parity issue set forth in Count Three of the petition. While there was disagreement at oral argument regarding the scope of this withdrawal, the OAL determined on March 8,1995 that this withdrawal represented an acknowledgment that: "Petitioner is not contending in this forum that she received a lower salary due to gender discrimination. In the event that petitioner is awarded damages, any calculation will be based on existing salary. However, petitioner reserves the right to argue that the nonrenewal of her contract for the 1994-95 school year was in retaliation for having asserted a discrimination claim."

[2] In her opposing papers, petitioner acknowledges that she did in fact receive three written evaluations during the 1993-94 school year. Therefore, she voluntarily withdrew Count Six.

Commissioner can be decided as a matter of law, without the need for any hearing to develop the facts. For the reasons which follow, the Board's motion for summary decision should be granted in its entirety.

Procedural History

On August 8, 1994, Lally filed her verified petition of appeal with the Commissioner. Respondent Board filed its answer on September 9, 1994. Thereafter, on September 19, 1994, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the OAL for hearing as a contested case. Much later, on or about May 10, 1995, Lally filed her complaint and demand for jury trial in the Superior Court. On July 6, 1995, the Board filed a notice of motion, together with a supporting brief and exhibits, seeking to dismiss the administrative proceedings. Lake & Schwartz, petitioner's attorneys in the administrative matter, filed opposing papers on July 24, 1995. Counsel for the Board filed a reply on August 1, 1995. At the request of the OAL, petitioner's attorney in the court proceeding, Wiley, Malehorn & Sirota, filed a letter memorandum regarding the waiver defense on September 15, 1995. Board counsel and petitioner's two attorneys presented oral argument before the OAL on September 18, 1995.

Findings of Fact

All of the relevant facts needed for disposition of this motion are undisputed. For purposes of this motion, it will be assumed that the factual allegations set forth in the petition filed with the administrative agency are true. On the basis of that assumption, I FIND:

Maureen Lally began her employment as a curriculum coordinator in the Clark school district in July 1991. She served in that position for 1991-92, 1992-93 and 1993-94 school years. Since her contract was not renewed for 1994-95, she did not acquire tenure in the district.[3] In December 1993, Lally filed a grievance objecting that male administrators were receiving higher salary increases than female administrators for the 1994-95 school year. Insofar as the record reflects, that grievance was never fully resolved on its merits. Apparently Lally pursued the grievance to the sixth step of appeal set forth in the district's affirmative action grievance procedure.

Meanwhile, Lally received three favorable evaluations of her job performance as curriculum coordinator during the 1993-94 school year. In the final evaluation for March 1994, Superintendent of Schools Paul J. Ortenzio commented that her service over three years had been "exceptionally productive" and advised her of his intention "to present [her] name in nomination as a tenured employee in the Clark Public Schools[.]" On May 10, 1994, Superintendent Ortenzio notified Lally in writing that her employment would be discussed by the Board in closed session at its meeting on May 10, 1994. In addition, the letter advised Lally of her right "to request that this matter be discussed in public" and "to [attend] if you wish."[4]

The Board consists of nine members. Minutes for the meeting held on May 10, 1994 reflect that only eight members were present and one member was absent. Votes on the proposed resolution to accept the superintendent's recommendation to reappoint Lally as curriculum coordinator for the 1994-95 school year were as follows:

Ayes - 4
Nayes - 2
Abstentions - 2

---

[3] Teaching staff members do not acquire tenure unless they satisfy the strict statutory requirements, in this case employment for three consecutive years and one day. N.J.S.A. 18A28-5. Picogna v. Cherry Hill Bd. of Educ., No. A-18-95 (N.J. Sup. Ct. Feb. 22, 1996).

[4] It was conceded at oral argument that Lally did not avail herself of the opportunity to attend the May 10, 1994 board meeting.

Since the proposal failed to garner at least five votes in favor, the resolution was recorded as having failed passage. One week after the board meeting, on May 17, 1994, Lally wrote to the present of the Board requesting a written explanation of the reasons for her nonrenewal. On May 25, 1994, Superintendent Ortenzio sent her a letter advising that her reappointment had not been approved because, "[p]ursuant to statute, a reappointment must be made by a majority of the full Board." In reply to Lally's inquiry, Board counsel sent a letter on June 7, 1994 informing her that "the decision to non-renew your employment for the 1994-95 school year was deemed to be in the best long-range educational interest of the School District." Insofar as the existing record discloses, Lally never sought further clarification or requested an opportunity to address the Board. On June 14, 1994 the Board accepted the recommendation of its superintendent to abolish the position of curriculum coordinator "in order to implement its new administrative configuration." Shortly thereafter, on August 8, 1994, Lally instituted the present administrative proceeding seeking reinstatement to the curriculum coordinator position "or its equivalent."

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE: (1) that the bringing of Lally's CEPA action constitutes a waiver of her retaliatory discharge claim before the Commissioner; (2) that any failure by the Board to provide Lally with a statement of reasons for her nonrenewal has been cured by discovery provided in this litigation; (3) that the vote by a quorum of the Board is a valid legislative act; and (4) that the Board was not obligated to accept the recommendation of its superintendent of schools in deciding not to renew Lally's contract.

(1) Waiver of the Retaliatory Discharge Claim

Boards of education possess broad discretion in deciding whether or not a particular nontenured teaching staff member should be reengaged. Donaldson v. North Wildwood Bd. of Educ., 65 N.J. 236, 246 (1974). There is no legal duty on the part of a board to re-employ a teacher at the end of a contract term, except to the extent of constitutional or statutory limitations. Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65, 75, cert. den. 371 U.S. 956, 83 S. Ct. 508, 9 L. Ed. 2d 502 (1963). Of course, a board cannot resort to discriminatory practices prohibited by statute or refuse to hire a teacher because of the exercise of constitutionally-protected rights. Donaldson, at 242. Absent constitutional constraints or legislation affecting the tenure rights of teachers, however, local boards of education have an almost complete right to terminate the services of a teacher who has no tenure and is regarded as undesirable by the local board. Dore v. Bedminster Twp. Bd. of Educ. 185 N.J. Super. 447, 456 (1982). Even a wrongful termination will not result in tenure, unless state or federal anti-discrimination laws have been violated. Picogna v. Cherry Hill Bd. of Educ., No. A-18-95, slip op. at 14 (N.J. Sup. Ct. Feb. 22, 1996). Moreover, a school board's decision to reduce staff for economic reasons is a managerial prerogative that is nonnegotiable and nongrievable. Jamison v. Morris Sch. Dist., 198 N.J. Super. 411, 415 (App Div. 1985); In re Maywood Bd. of Educ., 168 N.J. Super. 45, 55 (App. Div. 1979), certif. den. 81 N.J. 292 (1979).

Here the thrust of Lally's petition is that she was not rehired in retaliation for having brought her gender-discrimination complaint. As petitioner's counsel aptly observes, "[t]he issue of retaliation runs throughout the petition." (petitioner's opposing papers, at 2). If Lally is successful in proving that the Board retaliated against her for demanding equal pay for women employees, then it would appear to be exactly the type of statutory violation where the Commissioner has jurisdiction to grant appropriate relief. See N.J.S.A. 10:5-12(d), declaring it to be unlawful "for "any person to take reprisals against any person because that person has opposed any practices or acts forbidden under [the Law Against Discrimination.]" However, the Board argues that Lally waived her right to seek relief before the Commissioner by asserting her CEPA claim in the Superior Court.

Enacted in 1986, the CEPA protects employees who "blow the whistle" on employers engaged in illegal or harmful activity. Abbamont v. Piscataway Twp Bd. of Educ., 138 N.J. 405, 417-418 (1994). It prohibits employers from taking any retaliatory action against an employee who "discloses or threatens to disclose" any activity, policy or practice which the employee reasonably believes is in violation of law or "who objects to or refuses to participate in" such activity, policy or practice. N.J.S.A. 34:19-3(a) and (c). Courts view the CEPA "as a reaffirmation of this state's repugnance to an employer's retaliation against an employee who has done nothing more than assert statutory rights and protections and a recognition by the Legislature of a preexisting common-law tort cause of action for such retaliatory discharge." LePore v. National Tool & Mfg. Co., 224 N.J. Super. 226, 470 (App. Div. 1988), aff'd 115 N.J. 226 (1989), cert. den. 493 U.S. 954, 110 S. Ct. 366, 107 L. Ed. 2d 353 (1989).

The CEPA contains a waiver section, N.J.S.A. 34:19-8, which provides:

> Nothing in this act shall be deemed to diminish the rights, privileges, or remedies of any employee under any other federal or State law or regulation or under any collective bargaining agreement or employment contract; except that the institution of an action in accordance with this act shall be deemed a waiver of the rights and remedies available under any other contract, collective bargaining agreement, State law, rule or regulation or under the common law. N.J.S.A. 34:19-8.

Recently, the New Jersey Supreme Court ruled that this waiver provision should be construed narrowly to effectuate the overall legislative purpose of "mak[ing] it easier, nor harder, for a former employee to prevail on a retaliatory discharge claim." Young v. Schering Corp., 141 N.J. 16, 24-26 (1995). Former employees should not be forced to choose between a CEPA claim and "other legitimate claims that are substantially, if not totally, independent of the retaliatory discharge claim." Young, at 25. Persuaded that the Legislature intended the waiver exception to curtail essentially cumulative remedial actions, the Court held that it "applies only to those causes of action that require a finding of retaliatory conduct . . . actionable under CEPA" and "does not apply to those causes of action that are substantially independent of the CEPA claim." Once a CEPA claim is instituted, however, any rights or claims for retaliatory discharge, regardless of the legal theory on which it is based, "are all waived." Young, at 29. In Young, the Court upheld the dismissal of plaintiff's common-law retaliatory discharge claim, but preserved her right to pursue a separate contract claim for severance pay and various tort claims, such as defamation, slander and malicious interference with prospective employment opportunities, "that do not resemble the alleged CEPA violation and require different proofs than those needed to substantiate the CEPA claim." Young, at 31.

Other courts interpreting the waiver clause have reached the same result. Illustratively, in Casper v. Paine Weber Group, Inc., 787 F. Supp. 1480, 1508-1510 (D.N.J. 1992), the federal district court determined that the CEPA waiver bars the plaintiff from also bringing a RICO claim "where the only injury alleged . . . is retaliatory discharge," but does not preclude employment discrimination and tort claims "based on separate and distinct legal theories from the statutory claim for retaliatory discharge." Similarly, in Flaherty v. The Enclave, 255 N.J. Super. 407, 412 (Law Div. 1992), the court declared that the CEPA waiver refers "specifically to the rights and remedies available if an employee is wrongfully discharged as a result of his or her disclosure activities" and does not extend to other causes of action involving different elements of proof. See also, Blakey v. Continental Airlines, Inc., No. 93-2194, slip op at 5 (D.N.J. June 16, 1995), holding that the CEPA waiver does not preclude discrimination claims that "derive from separate sets of facts."

Although Lally makes vague generalizations about the Board's arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable action, the substance of the first three counts of her petition is that she was not reappointed as punishment for having complained about unequal pay. That contention is virtually identical to the charge in her CEPA complaint that the Board failed to renew her employment contract in retaliation for her affirmative action grievance. Both cases require proof of retaliatory discharge. In both cases, the primary remedy sought is reinstatement together with back pay. The remedy recoverable by a prevailing party in the Superior Court is at least as generous as the remedy recoverable before the Commissioner. Indeed, the Superior Court can award additional components of damage which the Commissioner may be unable to grant, including compensation for emotional distress, punitive damages, and counsel fees. Accordingly, since Lally's wrongful discharge claim is substantially similar to her CEPA claim, Lally must be deemed to have waived her right to seek the relief requested in Counts One, Two and Three of her administrative appeal. See Picogna v. Cherry Hill Bd. of Educ., 249 N.J. Super. 332 (App. Div. 1991).

(2) Failure to Provide Statement of Reasons for Nonrenewal

Under the caselaw, a nontenured teacher whose contract will not be renewed for the following school year may ask the school board to furnish a written statement of reasons. Donaldson, 65 N.J. at 245. This doctrine is codified at N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2, which entitles any teaching staff member who will not be offered a contract to:

> . . . request in writing a statement of the reasons for such nonemployment which shall be given to the teaching staff member in writing within 30 days after the receipt of such request.

When Lally wrote to the Board requesting such a statement, she received an uninformative reply from respondent's legal counsel that nonrenewal of her contract was in the district's "long-range educational interests." At this stage of the proceeding, it will be presumed, but not decided, that this contentless statement does not satisfy the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2. But see, Cirullo v. Hopewell Valley Reg. Sch. Dist, 1989 S.L.D. 1186, 2291 (Comm'r March 6, 1989), holding that mere disagreement of opinion between petitioner and a school board regarding her skills does not rise to the level of a justiciable issue. Even if Lally were to prevail on this issue, the remedy would be to direct the Board to furnish her with a more specific statement of reasons, rather than the reinstatement which she is seeking. More to the point, Lally has already had full opportunity to utilize the discovery tools available in administrative matters to explore the Board's reasons for not continuing her employment. N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.1 to -10.6. Therefore, her request for a more specific statement of the reasons for her nonrenewal has become moot. See Donaldson, at 242, recognizing that a teacher who brings suit alleging nonrenewal on impermissible grounds would readily obtain a statement of reasons "in the course of customary discovery proceedings."

(3) Lack of a Vote by the Full Membership of the Board

Next, Lally argues that the Board's action is invalid because the full membership of the Board was not present at the time of the vote. In support of this assertion, Lally relies solely on N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1, which reads:

> No teaching staff member shall be appointed, except by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education appointing him.

Preliminarily, it should be observed that language of the statute applies to staff members who are "appointed" and, therefore, has no bearing on Lally's situation of nonrenewal. As used in the statute, the phrase "majority vote of the full membership" means that more than half the membership must vote in the affirmative, not that every member of the board must vote. Cf. Sellers v. East Orange Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 6756-81 (Comm'r Jan 26, 1983) (so construing identical language in N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14). Where, as here, the board is comprised of nine members, a motion must pass by at least five affirmative votes. It is irrelevant that Lally might have been appointed if the absent board member had attended and voted in her favor. The fact is that the motion to reappoint Lally did not garner enough votes to be adopted.

Only a quorum of the Board is necessary to hold a meeting. Absent a statute to the contrary, the common law rule in New Jersey and elsewhere is that "a majority of a public body constitutes a quorum." Matawan Teacher's Ass'n v. Matawan Bd. of Educ., 223 N.J. Super. 504, 507 (App. Div. 1988). If Lally were right and a board cannot act without all members being present, then a single member could thwart the majority will simply by not showing up for the meeting.

(4) Failure to Follow Superintendent's Recommendation

Despite the superintendent's favorable recommendation, the Board failed by one vote to reappoint her. Lally urges that the Board lacked authority to reject the superintendent's recommendation without articulating a rational basis for its action. Again, Lally's interpretation is premised on a misreading of the legal precedents. Earlier Commissioner's decisions had suggested that a board of education could only hire staff members recommended by the superintendent. That would have effectively vested the superintendent with veto power over any nomination. See, e.g., Rotondo v. Carlstadt-East Rutherford Reg. High School Dist., 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 376, 378 (Comm'r May 11, 1992), aff'd 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 622 (St. Bd. May 8, 1992), holding that the chief school administrator controls "the flow of candidates" from which school boards may choose. Nonetheless, the board was never bound to select whatever candidate the superintendent happened to propose. Recognizing the board's "ultimate authority" to make appointments, the Commissioner acknowledged that the board was free to reject the initial nominee and request that the superintendent recommend another candidate. See Brescia v. Pemberton Bd. of Educ., 1991 S.L.D. 506, 517 (Comm'r April 1, 1991). Thus, even under the most restrictive line of cases, the Board would have no legal obligation to reappoint Lally, regardless of whether she happened to be the superintendent's first choice for the job.

Subsequently, the Appellate Division reversed the Commissioner's ruling in Rotondo that would have limited a school board to the superintendent's choices, holding that such restrictions contravene the board's statutory power to make appointments. Rotondo v. Carlstadt-East Rutherford Reg. High Sch. Dist., 276 N.J. Super. 36 (App. Div. 1994). Comparing a school board's general appointment powers conferred by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1 to other areas in which a superintendent is given a greater role, the Appellate Division declared that if the Legislature had wanted the superintendent to control the appointment process it would have clearly said so.[5] [5]Recently, the Legislature amended the law to add that a board of education shall appoint, transfer or remove a school employee "only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator." L. 1995, c. 125. Generally, the legislative intent behind the amendment was seen as an effort to overturn the Appellate Division holding in Rotundo and to bar a local board from appointing a teaching staff member without the affirmative recommendation of the chief school administrator. School Law Reporter (Dec. 1995) Since the new act did not take effect until June 19, 1995, it does not govern the present situation where the decision not to reappoint Lally was made on May 10, 1994.

Applied to the present case, the reasoning of the Appellate Division strengthens the conclusion that the Board did not act arbitrarily, capriciously or unreasonably merely by failing to adopt the recommendation of the chief school administrator. In any event, support by the superintendent for Lally's reappointment is far from unambiguous. Just one month after the vote on Lally's reappointment, the superintendent recommended and the Board adopted a resolution to abolish the position of curriculum coordinator as of June 24, 1994. The Board may well have decided that it would be pointless to offer Lally a contract for an unneeded position which was soon to be abolished. Aside from the retaliatory discharge allegations which are duplicative of the CEPA claim, Lally points to no specific circumstances which tend to show that the Board acted arbitrarily, capriciously or unreasonably. A school board is not under any legal obligation to renew the contracts of all nontenured teaching staff members who do a good job. Wyckoff Bd. of Educ. v. Wyckoff Educ. Ass'n, 168 N.J. Super. 497, 501 (App. Div. 1979).

Order

It is ORDERED that the Board's motion for summary decision is granted.

And further ORDERED that Lally's petition before the Commissioner is dismissed, without prejudice to any claims raised by her in the Superior Court action.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

MAUREEN LALLY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.		COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CLARK, UNION COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the reply thereto were filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner asserts in her exceptions to the initial decision that: 1) She was not given a statement of reasons for her nonrenewal; 2) Her action before the Superior Court of New Jersey does not bar her from having an evidentiary hearing before the Commissioner of Education; and 3) The Board must articulate valid and sustainable reasons for rejecting the superintendent's recommendation to continue her employment. Petitioner's exception arguments essentially recast those presented before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ). To the extent the arguments are supplemented or amplified, they are reviewed below.

Petitioner objects to the ALJ's conclusion that her claim of entitlement to a statement of reasons (with specifics) was rendered moot by the Board's compliance with petitioner's discovery request during the course of the litigation. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 1) Petitioner reasons, > while it is true that the Respondent answered discovery requests by the Petitioner, that doesn't somehow absolve the Respondent from its responsibility under the N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2. If it did, than [sic] no Petitioner would be able to move a case to a hearing once a board answered interrogatories.

>
> The Court's decision  undermines the purpose of the statute  and opens the way for boards to abuse their authority.

Petitioner further asserts that she "never alleged that the Respondent did not have the right to reject the Superintendent's recommendation." (Id. at p. 4) Rather, petitioner argues that she has maintained all along that once the Board chose to reject the superintendent's recommendation, it was obligated to articulate a basis for the rejection. (Id. at pp. 4, 5) That it did not "articulate a rational legal basis" for its decision is evidence, petitioner contends, that the Board's action was taken in bad faith, and was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. (Id. at p. 5)

In its reply, the Board initially corrects two factual findings made by the ALJ. Here, the Board contends that, contrary to the ALJ's finding, petitioner received written notice by letter, dated May 4, 1994, of the Board's May 10, 1994 meeting. Additionally, the Board asserts that the ALJ erred in finding that petitioner did not attend the May 10, 1994 meeting. To the contrary, the Board states that it is undisputed, and the record so reflects, that petitioner did attend the May 10, 1994 meeting at which time her employment was not renewed by the Board. (Board's Reply Exceptions at pp. 1, 2)

The Board maintains that, contrary to petitioner's contentions, she received an adequate statement of reasons for her nonrenewal. Noting its responsibility to provide such a statement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2, the Board notes, "Judge Springer properly concluded that the Board satisfied its obligation under the statute." (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 2) Moreover, the Board argues that, notwithstanding petitioner's assertions, "the obligation imposed  under N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2 is not somehow heightened in circumstances where the board rejects the recommendation of the school district superintendent." (emphasis in text) (Id.) Additionally, the Board warrants that the ALJ properly concluded that any deficiencies in the Board's statement of reasons were cured by the information which petitioner received during discovery. The Board continues,

> The Court's determination does not in any way undermine the purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-3.2, as contended by Lally.  In reviewing the Court's determination, the Commissioner is also urged to note that Lally does not contest the sufficiency of the information received during discovery, i.e., she does not contend that that information fails to provide her with an adequate "statement of reasons" for her nonrenewal. Lally's mere disagreement with the stated reasons does not amount to a justiciable controversy.* (emphasis in text) (citations omitted)

The Board further indicates that petitioner's exceptions fail to note that, even if the Commissioner determines the Board did not comply with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2, petitioner is not entitled to reinstatement or monetary damages. (Id. at pp. 3, 4)

The Board next argues that petitioner's action before the Superior Court of New Jersey precludes an evidentiary hearing before the Commissioner of Education on her claim of unlawful retaliation. (Id. at p. 4) Here, the Board asserts the ALJ properly found an identity between petitioner's claims in her Conscientious Employee Protection Act (CEPA) complaint before the Superior Court and in the within Petition of Appeal. Accordingly, the Board avers that CEPA's waiver provision is applicable, notwithstanding petitioner's belief that its applicability hinges "upon a claimant's explicit citation of CEPA in his or her pleadings." (Id. at p. 5) Rather, the Board argues, > the waiver provision encompasses all causes of action (regardless of the underlying theory) which require a finding of retaliatory conduct actionable under the CEPA.  In the decision below, Judge Springer properly determined that the retaliation claim contained in the petition of appeal is identical to that contained in Lally's Superior Court Complaint instituted under the CEPA.  The facts underlying the two claims are identical. Accordingly, the instant situation presents a case which falls squarely within the parameters of N.J.S.A. 34:19-8. (emphasis in text) (citations omitted) (Id.)

Finally, the Board argues that, contrary to petitioner's exceptions, it has stated valid reasons for rejecting the superintendent's recommendation for renewal, both at the time of the nonrenewal and during the course of discovery. (Id. at p. 6) The Board maintains that its "reasons for rejecting the Superintendent's recommendation are one and the same as those given to Lally, in response to her requests for a statement of reasons under N.J.S.A. 27-3.2 ." (Id.) Thus, the Board concludes that, inasmuch as its rejection of the superintendent's recommendation is not a constitutional violation or a statutory rights violation, petitioner, as a nonrenewed staff member, is not entitled to an evidentiary hearing before the Commissioner.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner finds petitioner's exception arguments to be unpersuasive, and determines to affirm the initial decision of the ALJ.[1]

Initially, the Commissioner concurs that petitioner has waived her right to an evidentiary hearing before the Commissioner by filing the action in Superior Court under CEPA since her Petition of Appeal does not present a cause of action which is "substantially

[1] The Commissioner notes that the Board's two factual corrections are supported by the record of this matter and, therefore, the initial decision is affirmed with such modifications.

independent" from that of the CEPA claim. Young v. Schering Corp., supra, at 29. The ALJ notes, "the thrust of Lally's petition is that she was not rehired in retaliation for having brought her gender-discrimination complaint." (Initial Decision at p. 6) Indeed, as the ALJ further observed, it is petitioner's own submission which asserts that "[t]he issue of retaliation runs throughout the petition." (Petitioner's Response to Respondent's Motion for Summary Decision, July 24, 1995 at p. 2)

The Commissioner, however, rejects the Board's assertion that "Judge Springer properly concluded that the Board satisfied its obligation under the statute." (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 2) Rather, the ALJ stated,

> When Lally wrote to the Board requesting such a statement [of reasons], she received an uninformative reply from respondent's legal counsel that nonrenewal of her contract was in the district's "long-range educational interests." At this stage of the proceeding, it will be presumed, but not decided, that this contentless statement does not satisfy the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2.  (emphasis added) (citations omitted) (Initial Decision at p. 9)

Contrary to the Board's reading of the initial decision, the ALJ declined to determine whether the Board's statement was in compliance with the pertinent statute, finding, instead, that any failure by the Board to provide petitioner with a statement of reasons for her nonrenewal has been cured by discovery provided in this litigation and petitioner's request for a more specific statement of reasons has now become moot. (Id. at pp. 5, 9) That the Commissioner also declines to rule on the Board's reply to petitioner's request is not, however, to be read as tacit approval of the vacuous statement which the Board boldly characterizes as a statement of reason(s) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2.[2] Such a statement could in fact be used to account for most actions taken

[2] The statement provided by the Board's counsel to petitioner reads as follows: "Dear Ms. Lally: This correspondence is in response to your letter sent to Martin Axelrad, Board President of the Clark Board of Education, dated 5/17/94. Your correspondence was referred to the undersigned for response on behalf of the Board by the Board and does not offer the degree of disclosure to which a professional is entitled when a decision is made not to continue employment. See Donaldson v. Board of Education of North Wildwood, 65 N.J. 236, 245 (1974).

As the ALJ correctly determined, and petitioner no longer disputes[3], the Board was not required to accept the superintendent's recommendation to renew petitioner's employment. However, while the Board is compelled to provide, if requested, "a statement of the reasons for such nonemployment" N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2, it is not required to articulate its basis for rejecting the superintendent's recommendation, if it chooses to do so.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons expressed therein and the within petition is dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Very truly yours, " (Respondent's Brief in Support of Motion for Summary Decision, Exhibit 13)

[3] Notwithstanding the language in petitioner's exception arguments, her Petition of Appeal alleges, "The Respondent's action in rejecting the Superintendent's recommendation was without any basis in fact and contrary to legal authority." Record Closed: April 12, 1996 Decided: April 12, 1996

BEFORE MARIE P. SIMONELLI, A.L.J.

Petitioner appealed respondent's use of non-employees to provide educational services in the Gifted and Talented Program.

The Department of Education transferred this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (the OAL) on November 20, 1995. The OAL scheduled a hearing for July 29 and 30, 1996.

Prior to the scheduled hearing date, the parties agreed to settle this matter. On April 12, 1996, they submitted the attached Stipulation of Settlement, dated March 21, 1996, which sets forth the terms of the settlement.

I have reviewed the record and settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

MAYWOOD EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, and MAYWOOD BOARD OF EDUCATION.	BEFORE STATE OF NEW JERSEY PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION DOCKET NO. CO-96-172 STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

WHEREAS, the Maywood Education Association (hereinafter referred to as the "Association") filed a Verified Petition with the Commissioner of Education on or about November 20, 1995 alleging that the Maywood Board of Education's (hereinafter referred to as the "Board") use of non-employees to provide educational services in its Gifted & Talented Program is not authorized by law or regulation; and

WHEREAS, the Board filed an Answer on or about November 3, 1995 and an Amended Answer on or about November 4, 1995 to the Verified Petition denying the allegations and stating that it had not violated law or regulation when in contracted with an independent contractor for the provision of instructional services for its Gifted & Talented Program for grades four through eight for the 1995-1996 school year; and

WHEREAS, on or about December 11, 1995 the Association filed an unfair practice charge with the Public Employment Relations Commission alleging that the Board violated the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act, when it contracted with an independent contractor to provide service for its Gifted & Talented Program in grades four through eights during the 1995-1996 school year; and

WHEREAS, the Board filed a Statement of Position on behalf of the Board on or about January 24, 1996 in response to the unfair practice charge stating that its actions were in all respects proper and in accordance with statute, caselaw and school law decisions in this State, and therefore did not violated the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act; and

WHEREAS, the parties wish to amicably resolve these disputes in the best interest of the Maywood School District, and upon certain terms and conditions to be stipulated in this Stipulation of Settlement;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the aforementioned mutual premises and the mutual promises and covenants of the parties set forth below, it is hereby agreed:

1. The Board agrees that it shall not renew its contract with Gifted Spectrum, Inc. or any other independent contractor or hire any non-employees for the provision of instructional services for the Gifted & Talented Program for the 1996-1997 school year.

2. The Association shall withdraw its Petition before the Commissioner of Education bearing OAL Docket No. EDUOT 12038-95N and Agency Reference No. 412-10/95.

3. The Association shall withdraw its unfair practice charge before the Public Employment Relations Commission bearing Docket No. AR-CO-96-172.

4. This Stipulation of Settlement is the compromise of disputed claims and shall never be treated as an admission of liability by either party for any purpose. It is expressly said that both parties reserve their rights with regard to the underlying actions before the Commissioner of Education and the Public Employment Relations Commission. This Stipulation of Settlement and its terms shall not be introduced in any subsequent litigation by any party to this Stipulation of Settlement for any purpose whatsoever.

5. The parties recognize that each has been represented by counsel of its own choosing and that they sign this Agreement as their own voluntary act indeed, and that they fully understand the duties and obligations contained herein. This Agreement shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

6. The undersigned representatives of the Board hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized by the Board to sign this Agreement and bind the Board to its terms.

7. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended, or modified except by an instrument executed in writing by the parties.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals the date and year aforesaid.

The record and initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

The Commissioner approves the settlement terms and adopts the settlement as the final decision in this matter. Such approval, however, is contingent upon the clause in Term 4, wherein "both parties reserve their rights with regard to the underlying actions" as being interpreted and applied with the understanding that the parties' reservation of rights is only applicable in the event of a breach of the within settlement agreement and that the settlement otherwise reflects a final disposition in this matter. The Commissioner notes that this language is not intended to alter the settlement in violation of Term 7 but, rather, to clarify its intent.

Accordingly, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement as clarified herein.

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner alleged his minor grandchild was wrongfully denied admission to school due to a residency dispute.

Having considered the record, the testimony of witnesses, some false statements by petitioner and T.P's mother, the ALJ found that petitioner failed to present a prima facie case. Petition was dismissed and the Board was directed to assess petitioner for tuition for T.P.'s attendance in its school system pursuant to pertinent statute.

Commissioner concurred with the credibility determinations, findings and conclusions of the ALJ. Citing Gunderson, Commissioner adopted initial decision as his own and directed petitioner to pay the Board tuition for T.P., prorated to the time of her ineligible attendance in the school district.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8928-95

AGENCY DKT. NO. 324-8/95

S.C.,

ON BEHALF OF T.P., A MINOR,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

OF THE BOROUGH OF POINT PLEASANT,

Respondent.

Diana Anderson, Esq., for petitioner (Hiering, Hoffman & Gannon, attorneys)

Daniel Popovitch, Esq., for respondent (Popovitch & Popovitch, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 26, 1996 Decided: April 16, 1996

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, T.P.'s grandfather, alleges the following: Since at least 1983, T.P. has been "domiciled" in his residence in Point Pleasant Borough. Since at least 1983, he has been "supporting [T.P.] gratis and will assume all personal obligations for [T.P.] relative to school requirements and . . . he intends . . . to keep and support [T.P.] gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1). Due to "family or economic hardship," J.P.D. (petitioner's daughter and T.P.'s mother) is "not capable of supporting or providing care" for T.P. and T.P. is not residing with the petitioner "solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education" in the respondent Point Pleasant Borough Board of Education's (BOE's) schools. Ibid. Based upon these allegations, the petitioner claims that T.P. should continue in the BOE's school system. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

The BOE submits that the petitioner has failed to make a prima facie case of compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. That is, the BOE submits that the petitioner failed to submit the "sworn statements," etc., proving that T.P. has been and/or is domiciled in the petitioner's residence and that T.P. has a right to a free public education in the BOE's school system. The BOE claims that the petitioner should pay tuition for T.P.'s attendance in its school system, and claims that T.P.'s attendance in its school system should be ordered discontinued.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On August 18, 1995, the petitioner's letter (treated as a petition for relief) was filed with the Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Education. On September 28, 1995, the BOE's answer and defenses were filed with the Department. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The Department transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law where, on October 6, 1995, it was filed as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). On March 25, 1996, the case was heard in the Pine Beach municipal building. At the conclusion of the petitioner's case, the BOE moved for an order dismissing the case with prejudice for failure to make a prima facie case.

FINDINGS OF FACT

From 1950 to 1983, the petitioner, his wife and J.P.D., their daughter, resided in Hillsdale, New Jersey. In 1981, J.P.D. married D.P. and, because J.D.P. and D.P. were not economically self-sufficient, D.P. also moved in with the petitioner and his wife. T.P., J.P.D. and D.P.'s daughter, was born on November 3, 1981, while J.D.P. and D.P. were living in the petitioner's Hillsdale house. While they all resided in Hillsdale, the petitioner paid T.P.'s private school tuition.

In 1983, the petitioner and his wife moved to Bayberry Lane in Point Pleasant Borough, and J.P.D., D.P. and T.P. remained in northern New Jersey.

By the spring of 1988, J.P.D. was separated from D.P. Thereafter, J.P.D. and D.P. were divorced and D.P. was ordered to pay weekly child support of $38. In 1988, J.P.D. and T.P. began to reside with the petitioner and his wife in the Point Pleasant Borough residence and T.P. entered the BOE's kindergarten. J.P.D. had no earned income, and the petitioner testified that he provided the "bulk" of T.P.'s support.

In late 1988 or early 1989, J.P.D. found employment as a part-time waitress and met W.D. She began to spend a few nights a week in W.D.'s residence, a single-family, two-bedroom residence in a borough adjacent to the Borough of Point Pleasant, about a half mile from the petitioner's residence. (The petitioner's attorney represented that there have been difficulties between J.P.D. and D.P. and, at her request, J.P.D.'s actual address will not be stated in this decision.) In 1994, J.P.D. and W.D. were married and J.P.D. gave birth to a son and, since 1994, J.P.D., W.D. and their son have resided in W.D.'s residence.

Given the breakup of J.P.D. and D.P. and their bad relationship thereafter, T.P. has endured a difficult childhood. To their credit, the petitioner and his wife have made some of their resources available to T.P. J.P.D. has hoped to avoid the disruption of a change in T.P.'s school. P-2.

The petitioner refused the BOE's request for copies of his tax returns. During the hearing of this case, the petitioner's attorney stipulated that J.P.D. claimed T.P. as a dependent on her tax returns for 1993 and 1994, and that the petitioner has not claimed T.P. as a dependent on his tax returns.

The petitioner testified that, from 1990 to 1994, T.P. spent no time at J.P.D.'s residence. However, later in his testimony, the petitioner said that because he was often "on the road," so that he did not really know whether T.P. spent time at J.P.D.'s residence.

The petitioner also testified that, until 1994, he was the only one involved with T.P.'s teachers, and that in 1994 he advised J.P.D. that she should become involved with them. However, contrary to the petitioner's testimony, the BOE's "Conference Record" shows the following: In April 1988, J.P.D. attended a conference with T.P.'s kindergarten teacher, and there is no record of the petitioner's involvement in any conference with the teacher. In November 1988, J.P.D. attended a conference with T.P.'s first-grade teacher, and there is no record of the petitioner's involvement in any conference with the teacher. In November 1989, J.P.D. attended a conference with T.P.'s second-grade teacher, and there is no record of the petitioner's involvement in any conference with the teacher. In September 1990, the petitioner attended a conference with T.P.'s third-grade teacher, and in November 1990, J.P.D. attended a conference with T.P.'s third-grade teacher. In November 1992 and April 1993, J.P.D. attended conferences with T.P.'s fifth-grade teacher, and in January 1993, the petitioner attended a conference with T.P.'s fifth-grade teacher. BOE-1.

Given J.P.D.'s residence outside of Point Pleasant Borough and her assumption of "obligations for [T.P.] relative to school requirements," the BOE (of which the petitioner was and is a member) raised the issue of T.P.'s domicile. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1).

By memorandum dated April 7, 1995, George Kane, superintendent of the BOE's school system, notified the petitioner of the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and notified him that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, he and J.P.D. were required to submit sworn statements and documentation supporting their contention that T.P. was domiciled with the petitioner. BOE-5.

The petitioner and J.P.D. failed and/or refused to submit sworn statements to the BOE and, during the BOE's April 25, 1995 meeting, it determined that T.P. was not domiciled within the district and she should be removed from the BOE's school system. Consistent with the BOE's determination, by letter dated April 27, 1995, Mr. Kane notified J.P.D. of the following:

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, he had applied for removal of T.P. from the school system; she had a right to a hearing on the matter of domicile; and she had a right to appeal (to the Commissioner of Education) from the BOE's action relative to T.P.'s domicile, etc. BOE-6.

By letter to J.P.D. dated May 9, 1995, Mr. Kane confirmed the following: No hearing had been requested in response to his letter dated April 27, 1995; effective May 26, 1995, T.P. would be removed from the BOE's school system; and there was a right to appeal the removal to the Commissioner of Education. BOE-7.

By letter to J.P.D. dated May 12, 1995, Mr. Kane confirmed the following: On May 11, 1995, the matter of T.P.'s attendance in the BOE's school system had been reviewed; "[a]s a consequence of [the] meeting" he notified the principal of T.P.'s school that T.P.'s records should show her address to be J.P.D.'s (out-of-district); he would bring to the BOE's attention J.P.D.'s request that the BOE consider allowing T.P. to attend school in the BOE's system for the 1995-96 school year; and, since T.P. had "not been legally domiciled" in Point Pleasant Borough during the 1994-95 school year, "questions about tuition [would have] to be resolved." BOE-8.

The petitioner consulted with an attorney who, based upon information the petitioner provided, prepared an affidavit for submission to the BOE. On June 1, 1995, the petitioner and his wife executed an affidavit which was then submitted to the BOE. In the affidavit, the petitioner stated falsely that, in 1983, J.P.D. "came to reside" with him and his wife in Point Pleasant. In the affidavit, the petitioner also stated falsely that, since 1983, T.P. had "continued to reside" with him and his wife. In the affidavit, the petitioner also stated falsely that he and his wife "provide[d] for all of [T.P.'s] expenses including food, clothing and any incidental expenses." BOE-1, emphasis added. On June 1, 1995, also, J.P.D. signed a letter which was then submitted to the BOE; in the letter, J.P.D. stated falsely, "My ex-husband, while ordered to pay child support, rarely does and I do not believe I have received a payment from him in many years." P-2.

Consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, after receipt of the petitioner's affidavit the BOE requested documentation, including tax returns, to support the contentions of petitioner and

J.P.D. However, the petitioner refused to submit them. (As noted above, during the hearing it was revealed that J.P.D. and not the petitioner claimed T.P. as a dependent, and that J.P.D. has received substantially all of the child support due from T.P.'s father.)

On T.P.'s "Emergency Health Card," dated September 6, 1995, J.P.D. was listed as one of three persons who could be contacted (at J.P.D.'s residence outside of Point Pleasant Borough) "[i]n case of emergency, illness or accident"; the other listed contacts were "nearby relative" M.K., and "neighbor or babysitter" K.A. The petitioner and his wife were not identified as persons to be contacted in an emergency. BOE-3.

By letter dated September 6, 1995, the assistant principal of the BOE's Memorial Middle School transmitted the school's "agenda book" to the students' "Parents." The letter stated that it was "very important" that each parent review the rules and regulations contained in the agenda book with his or her child. W.D. signed as T.P.'s parent, acknowledging review of the agenda book. BOE-4.

The school system sent to school students' parents the BOE's "Drug Abuse Policy" with a request that each parent read it, and W.D. signed as T.P.'s parent, acknowledging that he had read it. BOE-2.

The petitioner was not familiar with the above-noted "agenda book" and "Drug Abuse Policy." When asked to identify T.P.'s homeroom teacher, the petitioner could not do so.

J.P.D. testified as follows: Presently, she is employed as a part-time waitress and bartender and W.D. is a "subcontractor" carpenter. Her income is about $5,000 annually and W.D.'s income is about $25,000 annually. She, W.D. and their son reside in a single-family, two-bedroom house in a borough adjacent to the Borough of Point Pleasant. Her son suffers from a "medical problem" involving breathing difficulties, and he sleeps in J.P.D.'s and W.D.'s bedroom. T.P. has a bed in the other bedroom; however, J.P.D. described the second bedroom as her son's. She first testified that D.P. paid only about "half" of the child support ordered; however, later she admitted that D.P. has paid most of the child support. The child support is sent to J.P.D. at her residence in the borough adjacent to the Borough of Point Pleasant. J.P.D. buys clothes for T.P. and provides her with "spending money." T.P. has had CPR training so that she can care for her stepbrother, and she does so several days a week; occasionally, T.P. stays overnight in J.P.D.'s home.

The findings of fact here are, in part, dependent upon the witnesses' credibility. Credibility depends upon the demeanor of a witness, but must also be credible in itself. Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546, 554-55 (1954).

Expecting that the BOE would rely upon it, the petitioner executed and submitted to the BOE an affidavit with significant relevant false statements regarding the domicile and support of T.P. and regarding assumption of all obligations for T.P. relative to school requirements. Expecting that the BOE would rely upon it, J.P.D. signed and submitted to the BOE a letter with a significant false statement regarding her ability to support and provide care for T.P. The petitioner refused to submit to the BOE "documentation" to support his affidavit ("sworn statement"), and J.P.D. refused and/or failed to submit a "sworn statement" and refused and/or failed to submit to the BOE "documentation" to support her statements in her letter. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1). The petitioner's testimony regarding the domicile and support of T.P. and regarding assumption of all obligations for T.P. relative to school requirements was contradicted by the above-described exhibits and by J.P.D.'s testimony. Given these circumstances and inconsistencies and based upon my observation of their demeanors, the petitioner and J.P.D. were incredible in significant parts of their testimony.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 states, in pertinent part:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under 20 years of age:
>
> a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district;
> b. (1) Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term, and a copy of his lease if a tenant, or a sworn statement by his landlord acknowledging his tenancy if residing as a tenant without a written lease, and upon filing by the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. The statement shall be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements, information from or about which shall be supplied only to the board and only to the extent that it directly pertains to the support or nonsupport of the child. If in the judgment of the board of education the evidence does not support the validity of the claim by the resident, the board may deny admission to the child. The resident may contest the board's decision to the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner on the validity of the claim and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. The board of education shall, at the time of its decision, notify the resident in writing of his right to contest the board's decision to the commissioner within 21 days. No child shall be denied admission during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. In the event the child is currently enrolled in the district, the student shall not be removed from school during the 21-day period in which the resident may contest the board's decision nor during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the resident, he shall assess the resident tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the school district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced. Nothing shall preclude a board from collecting tuition from the resident, parent or guardian for a student's period of ineligible attendance in the schools of the district where the issue is not appealed to the commissioner;

> (2) If the superintendent . . . of a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district and the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. The parent or guardian shall be entitled to a hearing before the board and if in the judgment of the board the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the district or the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. The board of education shall, at the time of its decision, notify the parent or guardian in writing of his right to contest the decision within 21 days. No child shall be removed from school during the 21-day period in which the parent may contest the board's decision or during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the parent or guardian, the commissioner shall assess the parent or guardian tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced. Nothing shall preclude a board from collecting tuition from the parent or guardian for a student's period of ineligible attendance in the schools of the district where the issue is not appealed to the commissioner.

In considering this motion for dismissal for failure to make a prima facie case, the evidence must be viewed most favorably to the party who opposes the motion. N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.3(a), -12.1(a); R. 4:37-2(b); Dolson v. Anastasia, 55 N.J. 2, 5-6 (1969).

For almost two months (from Mr. Kane's April 7, 1995 memorandum notifying the petitioner of the requirement of the sworn statements, etc., until the submission of the petitioner's affidavit and J.P.D.'s letter in June 1995), the petitioner and J.P.D. refused and/or failed to submit "sworn statement[s]" and "documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements" as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1). When the petitioner did submit his affidavit ("sworn statement") to the BOE, he refused to submit supporting "documentation," and J.P.D. continued to refuse and/or fail to submit a sworn statement and documentation as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1). Consequently, the petitioner knowingly failed the requirements of submission to the BOE of the "sworn statement[s]" and "documentation" supporting the claim that T.P. was domiciled with the petitioner. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1).

Also, since 1994 J.P.D. has conferred with T.P.'s teachers more often than the petitioner. BOE-1. J.P.D. and her friends, and not the petitioner, have been listed as persons to be contacted "[i]n case of emergency, illness or accident" involving T.P. BOE-3. W.D., and not the petitioner, has reviewed the school's "agenda book" and "Drug Abuse Policy" with T.P. BOE-4; BOE-2. J.P.D. has accepted substantial child support and declared T.P. a dependent, and the petitioner has not declared T.P. a dependent. Even if the petitioner's and J.P.D.'s testimony are considered to be credible and considered to supplement the affidavit and letter, nunc pro tunc, the petitioner has not "assume[d] all personal obligations for [T.P.] relative to school requirements," and J.P.D. is "capable of supporting [and] providing care" for T.P. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1).

Given the above, the petitioner has failed to present a prima facie case.

ORDER

I ORDER the petition and the petitioner's claims DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

The BOE may assess the petitioner for tuition for T.P.'s attendance in its school system. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2).

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." S.C., on behalf of his minor grandchild, T.P.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF POINT PLEASANT, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner filed timely exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Board's reply, however, was untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(d) and is, therefore, not considered herein.

Petitioner maintains that he has satisfied the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-lb(1) so as to permit his granddaughter to be eligible for a free public education in the Board's school system. Petitioner asserts that the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) decision interprets the pertinent statute to require " a parent who is financially unable to support their [sic] child [to] abdicate all parental responsibility in favor of the party supporting the child." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 2) Petitioner continues,

> The court found, as a matter of fact, that the child's mother participated in parent/teacher conferences. Nowhere in the statute is it required that a parent refrain from participating in the child's life simply because he or she is unable to support the child. The court further noted that the child's mother received the drug policy and agenda book on September 6, 1995 . However, the court failed to note that the home address of the child was changed for the 1995-1996 school year as a result of the within matter, and that prior to this matter, all school notices were sent to petitioner's home. (Id. at p. 3)

Petitioner further contends, as to the letter which J.P.D. signed and submitted to the Board (Initial Decision at p. 5), that the letter was not a sworn statement and was prepared by an attorney for T.P.'s mother. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 4) Petitioner attests that the "inaccuracies" which were revealed regarding T.P.'s residency in 1983 concern a time which is not relevant to the within petition. (Id.)

As to J.P.D.'s ability to support her daughter, petitioner argues that J.D.P. receives $38 per week in child support, or $1,976 annually. Thus, petitioner contends that J.D.P.'s total annual income is approximately $6,976 per year which is "an amount clearly insufficient to provide for all of the needs of the mother and a growing teenage girl." (Id.)

Petitioner concludes,

> The court has ruled that the petitioner failed to present a prima facie case because the child's mother still maintained contact and exercised some parental control over the child, and because the petitioner failed to submit the proper documentation as requested. However, these factors are irrelevant to the proceeding and contrary to the intent of the statute. The most important factor, the actual domicile of the child, was left unanswered. (Id. at pp. 4,5)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which did not include a transcript of the hearing, the Commissioner concurs with the credibility determinations, findings and conclusions of the ALJ. The Commissioner initially finds that petitioner's argument that the ALJ failed to consider the issue of domicile is misplaced. This matter comes before him as an examination of petitioner's claim that he meets the statutory burden imposed by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1). Contrary to petitioner's assertion, this provision does not require an examination of the student's domicile, but rather offers a "test" which must be met by the resident, a domiciliary of the district, to affirm that the student, commonly referred to as an "affidavit student," is entitled to a free public education in the district. In this regard, the Commissioner determines that the ALJ properly found that petitioner failed to meet his required burden of proving by a preponderance of credible evidence that T.P. is entitled to a free public education in the district.

The Commissioner further finds nothing in the initial decision to support petitioner's contention that the ALJ reads the pertinent statute to require the parent or guardian of an affidavit student to "abdicate all parental responsibility." Rather, the Commissioner notes that the statute is intended "to ease the burden on local boards of education attempting to remove illegally enrolled students, specifically  those living with a person other than the parent or guardian in order to obtain the benefit of a free public education in a district other than that of their entitlement by parental domicile." Gunderson v. Bd. of Education of the City of Brigantine, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 39, 42, citing Sponsor's Statement, Senate Education Committee Statement and Governor's Conditional Veto Message to Senate Bill No. 1447 of 1993, enacted as c. 380. Moreover, as Gunderson established, the Commissioner will not unreasonably place form over substance by demanding that the mandated documents be produced where he is satisfied that other evidence sufficiently demonstrates the underlying requirements of the law are being met. Gunderson at 42. However, in the instant matter, petitioner fails to adduce evidence to so satisfy the Commissioner.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. The Petition of Appeal is dismissed and petitioner is hereby directed to pay the Board tuition for T.P., prorated to the time of her ineligible attendance in the school district.[1]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[1] In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1), tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF POINT PLEASANT, OCEAN COUNTY,

RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, June 6, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Kalac, Newman, Lavendar & Campbell (Francis J. Campbell, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Popovitch & Popovitch (Daniel S. Popovitch, Esq., of Counsel)

On June 6, 1996, the Commissioner of Education issued a decision dismissing the petition filed in this matter by S.C. (hereinafter "appellant"), who alleged that the Pt. Pleasant Board had wrongfully denied his grandchild a free public education in the district. The Commissioner directed appellant to pay tuition to the Board for the period of his grandchild's ineligible attendance in the district.

On July 8, 1996, appellant filed a notice of appeal with the State Board of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.11(a), appellant's brief in support of his appeal was due on July 29, 1996, 20 days after the appeal was filed. On July 26, 1996, appellant requested a ten-day extension, until August 8, to file his brief. However, appellant failed to file a brief by that date. Consequently, by letter dated August 13, 1996, the Counsel for the State Board notified appellant that no appeal brief had been filed and that this matter was being referred to the Legal Committee of the State Board for consideration of his failure to perfect the appeal. Appellant has still failed to file a brief in support of his appeal. Nor has he requested an additional extension of time for such filing.

The State Board of Education therefore dismisses the appeal in this matter for failure to perfect. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.12(a).

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE VILLAGE OF RIDGEFIELD PARK, BERGEN COUNTY, : DECISION

RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent contested punishment given to daughter, D.O'G., senior who allegedly assaulted a teacher. Punishment consisted of denial of attendance at senior prom, denial of participation in senior privileges and in graduation ceremonies.

ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to sustain her burden of proof in challenging the Board's determination. ALJ found that the actions of the Board were entirely within the parameters of its authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ.

Record Closed: May 30, 1996 Decided: May 31, 1996

BEFORE MARIA M. LA FIANDRA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, on behalf of her daughter (D.O'G.) challenged the determination of the Ridgefield Park Board of Education (Board or BOE) barring her from attendance at the senior prom and from participation in graduation ceremonies on account of an assault by D.O'G. on a teacher who was clearly identifiable as being in the performance of her duties. The student, D.O'G., was suspended by the school administration, pursuant to statute and was barred from participation in those extracurricular activities in which she was then participating.

A Superintendent's hearing was held on January 16, 1996 at which time D.O'G. and her parents were advised of the mandatory expulsion hearing before the Board of Education.

At the expulsion hearing held on January 23, 1996, the Board determined that an assault did in fact occur and determined, in addition to the penalties already imposed, to bar D.O'G. from participation in all senior privileges, senior week activities and graduation. She was not expelled. On April 22, 1996, a petition was filed with the Commissioner of Education, alleging due process violations and excessive punishment. The petition was accompanied by an application for emergent relief. The matter was transmitted by the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 on April 24, 1996. The application for emergent relief was heard on April 30, 1996, and an order denying the relief sought was entered on May 15, 1996. A plenary hearing was scheduled for May 29, 1996.

On May 21, 1996, a prehearing telephone conference was held, the purpose of which was to clarify the scope of the plenary hearing. At that time, an order was entered stating that, because of the time constraints involved, the plenary hearing scheduled for May 29 would be treated as an appeal of the determination of the BOE and a hearing de novo, which would be curative of any due process violations, would be conducted.

The issues to be resolved by the hearing were threefold:

a) did an assault occur?

b) was D.O'G. afforded due process?

c) was the penalty imposed by the B.O.E. unreasonable and arbitrary?

The burden of proving the assault by a preponderance of the evidence was the Respondent's; the burden then shifted to the Petitioner to demonstrate a failure of due process and for that the penalty imposed was arbitrary and unreasonable.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I make the following factual determinations, which are essentially uncontroverted, in this matter.

1. There was a meeting held at the Ridgefield Park Jr.- Sr. High School January 11, 1996 to discuss the cheerleaders' participation in a competition in Florida.

2. The meeting was permeated by tension and hostility despite the efforts of the administration to limit the scope of the discussion to whether the team would participate in the competition.

3. There was an altercation at the end of the meeting which involved, at minimum, petitioner, her daughter, and Ms. DeFlora, the former cheerleaders' coach who would be accompanying the team to Florida.

4. As a result of the altercation, the following day, D.O'G. was suspended by the high school administration for a ten-day period of time, from January 11 through January 26, 1996 and barred from those extracurricular activities in which she was then participating.

5. A meeting was held by the Superintendent of the Ridgefield Park Schools on Tuesday, January 16, which the student and parents attended, and at which the Superintendent informed them of the mandatory expulsion hearing.

6. The Board held the expulsion hearing on Tuesday, January 23, at which time it was determined that D.O'G. would not be expelled, but would be barred from participation in all senior activities, including the prom and graduation, in addition to the penalties imposed by the high school administration.

In addition to the foregoing uncontroverted factual determinations, based on the testimony and documentary evidence presented at the hearing, as well as on the opportunity to observe the witnesses and assess their credibility, I make the following further factual determinations:

7. The student, D.O'G., at minimum, attempted to strike Ms. DeFlora; however, it is clear from the testimony of the two parent witnesses, Ms. Bassano and Ms. Murray, as well as from the transcript of the Board proceedings, that D.O'G. did, in fact, strike Ms. DeFlora.

8. The student and her parents were notified of her due process rights by letter dated January 19, 1996. I find particularly unpersuasive the statement by Petitioners that she never saw the letter, in light of the testimony by her husband that he signed for it, brought it home, and gave it to her.

DISCUSSION AND LEGAL CONCLUSIONS

The statutory requirement that an expulsion hearing be held where an assault on a teacher has occurred is found at N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 which provides, in pertinent part:

> Any pupil who commits an assault as defined pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1, upon a teacher . . . acting in performance of [her] duties . . . shall be immediately suspended from school consistent with procedural due process pending expulsion proceedings before the local boe. (Emphasis supplied).

As defined by N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1, a person is guilty of assault if she attempts to cause or knowingly or purposely causes bodily injury to another. In this case, there is no question, based on the testimony of Ms. Bassano and Ms. Murray, that D.O'G.'s actions were deliberate, purposeful, and that D.O'G. attempted to, and did, in fact, strike Ms. DeFlora. Although Petitioner did testify that her daughter shoved her, the petitioner, into Ms. DeFlora, that action can be construed as a purposeful act. At the time of the expulsion hearing, Ms. DeFlora stated that she had suffered bodily injury. (R-2 at p.4).

Petitioner sought to rely on discrepancies in the testimony of the respondent's eye witnesses to the incident to cast doubt upon whether or not an assault actually occurred. The discrepancies were adequately explained by the fluidity of the occurrence as well as by the logistics, i.e., the location of the various parties in relation to each other and the furnishings in the room.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that an aggravated assault, as defined by N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(5)(d) did occur, although the Board has elected to proceed on the basis of simple assault. Thus, the Board had no alternative but to convene an explusion hearing, pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1.

At the heart of Petitioner's challenge of the Board's action is the claim that D.O'G. was not afforded procedural due process. Although a factual determination has been made that D.O'G. and her parents were advised by letter dated January 19, 1996 of the procedural safeguards afforded a student facing expulsion, the argument that petitioner and her daughter relied on the advice of Dr. Rightmyer that counsel was not necessary must be addressed. This issue can only be resolved by analysis of the contradictory testimony of the O'G.'s and Dr. Rightmyer.

Petitioner and her husband both claimed repeatedly to have been told by the Superintendent of Schools that an attorney was not necessary at the expulsion hearing. I do not find this testimony to be credible for several reasons: First, the parents testified that they were of the opinion that the only penalty to be imposed was contained in the letter from Principal Koterba dated January 16, 1996. They further testified that at the meeting with the Superintendent on January 16, he advised them that the expulsion hearing was required. It is just not credible that parents receiving the news that their child faced expulsion would rely on a letter of even date to set the parameters of the penalty to be imposed. Furthermore, the testimony was that the O'G.'s asked Dr. Rightmyer several times if counsel was required; however, no testimony was offered to the effect that, upon receiving the letter dated January 19, 1996, in which the students' due process rights were set forth, the inquiry was renewed. Thus, the testimony of the O'G.'s is that although they had received Koterba's letter of January 16, 1996 and, subsequently, the letter of January 19, 1996, which were contradictory of each other, they felt comfortable relying on the purported advice of Dr. Rightmyer in resolving the serious matter of possible explusion. According to Dr. Rightmyer, prior to this time, he did not know D.O'G.; it is, therefore, a reasonable inference to be drawn, that he did not know the parents or have an ongoing relationship with them. It is unfathomable that parents would rely on such advice in a situation which could conceivably affect their child's future, not only at Ridgefield Park Jr./Sr. High School, but with respect to admission to college.

Furthermore, Petitioner's mother, D.O'G.s grandmother, has been a member of the Board, intermittently, over the past 12 or 13 years. It is inconceivable that she would not know and advise her family members of the seriousness of the hearing they were facing.

It must also be noted that in an attempt to characterize the actions of the Board as unreasonable and arbitrary, testimony was offered that D.O'G. was told by Rightmyer that she was a political scapegoat; her grandmother also testified that there were factions against her on the Board and that this was not the first incident of "scapegoatism" she had endured. If Dr. Rightmyer did make such a statement and if there were other instances in which members of Mrs. DiArchangel's family were made scapegoats, the question arises: why would these parents go into an expulsion hearing without the protection of counsel?

For all of the foregoing reasons, I FIND that the testimony of both O'G.'s, mother and father, regarding their discussions with Dr. Rightmyer about the need for counsel is not credible and, therefore, is given no weight.

On the other hand, Dr. Rightmyer displayed a professional attitude, including a concern for the welfare of D.O'G. His demeanor was straightforward and his answers on both direct and cross-examinations were clear, firm and consistent. Furthermore, they were consistent with the documentary evidence presented by Respondent.

Thus, based on the evidence before me with respect to whether or not the O'G.'s were advised of the due process rights, I CONCLUDE that D.O'G. and her family were adequately advised by the letter dated January 19, 1996.

Finally, Petitioner argues that the punishment meted out by the Board in addition to the administrative penalties imposed far outweighs the seriousness of the act giving rise to the hearing. Petitioners' challenge of the Board penalty is predicated first on their contention that Petitioner believed, based on conversations with the Superintendent, that the only penalty which would be imposed was that outlined in Principal Koterba's letter of January 16, 1996, and second on the belief that the Board actions were unreasonable, arbitrary and politically retaliatory.

With respect to Petitioner's contention that the O'G.'s had received assurances from Dr. Rightmyer that D.O'G. would not be expelled and, further, that no additional penalty would be imposed, for the reasons set forth in full above, the testimony of the parents is not credible and, therefore, given no weight. There being no other legally competent evidence to support the Petitioner's contention, and in view of Dr. Rightmyers' testimony, I CONCLUDE that no such assurances were made.

The second prong of Petitioner's challenge of the Board action is the assertion that it is unreasonable, arbitrary and disparate. It is well recognized that a presumption of reasonableness attaches to Board action, Boyle v. Riti, 175 N.J.Super. 158, 166 (App. Div. 1980) and when a BOE acts within the parameters of its authority, its actions will not be disturbed absent a finding that the action was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. N.A.C. v. Cedar Grove BOE, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d 28. With respect to the reasonability of the Board's action, the obvious must be noted: the penalty is considerably more lenient than that which the Board was empowered to impose. Notwithstanding the fact that the cumulative penalties were severe, albeit, the act for which they were imposed can only be characterized as egregious, the Board exercised its discretion in imposing a less severe penalty than permitted by statute. On its face, the action of the board was reasonable in the context of this factual predicate.

As support for the contention that the Board action was arbitrary and disparate, Petitioner presented evidence of another incident at the junior-senior high school last year in which a teacher was struck and injured while attempting to break up a fight among students. Apparently, the students involved were not subjected to an expulsion hearing. This evidence is unpersuasive for two reasons: first, it was presented as hearsay; although hearsay is permitted in this forum, there must be a residuum of legally competent evidence to support each ultimate finding of fact to an extent sufficient to provide assurances of reliability. UAPR 1:1-15.7. In this instance, the only evidence presented with respect to the incident last year, through the testimony of Mr. Tondi, the RPEA President who became aware of the incident in his official capacity, was hearsay. There was no eyewitness or documentary evidence presented to support either the nature of the incident or the disciplinary action which followed.

The second reason this evidence is unpersuasive is on account of the differences in the circumstances of the two incidents. The incident last year involved a teacher injured because she was purportedly trying to break up a fight; the incident giving rise to this appeal, based on the testimony of Ms. Bassano and Ms. Murray in regard to the nature of D.O'G.'s behavior and demeanor as well as the aura of tension which permeated the meeting, was premeditated and deliberate. In addition, I find totally credible the testimony of Ms. DeFlora with regard to the student's behavior at a football game where she threw money and confetti at the teacher as well as using profanities; thus, the incident in question was the result of an ongoing series of confrontations of Ms. DeFlora by D.O'G, as well as deliberate, purposeful, premeditated behavior by D.O'G.

Thus, I CONCLUDE that the actions of the Board were entirely within the parameters of its authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 and that there was no abuse of discretion.

The Petitioner also argues that the action of the Board was, somehow, politically retaliatory because D.O'G.'s grandmother is a member of the BOE. In order for this argument to be successful, Petitioner would first have to demonstrate that the actions of the Board were unreasonable or arbitrary. In view of the foregoing conclusions, this argument is entirely without merit.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to sustain her burden of proof in challenging the Board's determination and I ORDER that the action of the BOE be AFFIRMED and the appeal be DISMISSED, with prejudice.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision will be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE VILLAGE OF RIDGEFIELD PARK, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) as articulated in the initial decision. The ALJ concluded, and the Commissioner concurs, that the School District acted within the scope of its authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. The Commissioner further concurs that petitioner failed to demonstrate by a preponderence of evidence that the exclusion of D.O'G. from senior activities, including graduation, was arbitrary, capricious, improper or taken in bad faith.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ROBERT REED, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EGG HARBOR, ATLANTIC COUNTY.

Paul J. Carr, Esq., for the Board of Education (Murray & Carr, attorneys)

Allen S. Zeller, Esq., for respondent (Freeman, Zeller & Bryant, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 7, 1996 Decided: April 11, 1996

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Board of Education of Egg Harbor Township (Board) certified tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) pursuant to the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -25, alleging that Robert Reed, a teaching staff member in the Board's employ, engaged in conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to the Administrative Procedures Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, and the act creating the OAL, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held at which, among other things, the issues to be determined were agreed upon by the parties and hearing dates were established. The hearing was held on March 7, 1996, at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The hearing record closed on March 7, 1996.

Prior to the hearing, held on March 7, 1996, the Board and respondent had been engaged in settlement discussions and negotiations. The terms of the Settlement Agreement, approved by the Board at its January 23, 1996, regular meeting, are set forth in pertinent part as follows:

1. Egg Harbor Township Board of Education will withdraw and dismiss the tenure charges filed against Robert Reed with prejudice and said charges cannot thereafter be the subject of any future disciplinary action against Robert Reed but will remain in his file solely as an explanation of the 120 days suspension already imposed.

2. Robert Reed will be reinstated to the 7th grade Silver Team teaching position effective no later that the beginning of the third marking period in 1996 and he will have restored to him all benefits, emoluments and prerequisites in accordance with the contract and statutes with the exception of the loss of pay for the 120 days suspension period already served by him; subject to Administrative Law Judge approval and with no effect on Administrative or Board managerial prerogatives in accordance with law.

3. Mutual releases will be executed by both parties with regard to this matter and any civil litigation surrounding this matter.

4. Mr. Reed will issue the following statement once this matter is fully resolved, the tenure charges are dismissed and the settlement is approved by the Administrative Law Judge and Commissioner of Education.

> As a teacher and educator in the Egg Harbor Township School District for twenty-two (22) years, I wish to make a statement concerning my suspension.
>
> In April of 1994 an incident occurred in my seventh grade homeroom class where a student refused to participate in the salute to the American flag with other members of the homeroom class. The student also refused to either stand or sit quietly at her desk in accordance with my instructions to her; rather she became loud and argumentative and tried to leave the room, thus disrupting the flag salute and disobeying my instructions to her. As a result of the incident, I said the words, "Go back from where you came." These words were interpreted by the student and parents as a racial slur. I did not intend these words to be racial, but just a directive for her to return to her seat. In retrospect I should have used a better choice of words which could not have been misinterpreted. Because of this, major discrepancies arose and regrettably, the matter has escalated into a major controversy involving not only the Board and myself but the community as well.
> It is my sincere hope that all parties involved in this matter can reach a just and responsible settlement and avoid the indefinite perpetuation of any ill will that this dispute has generated. I wish to extend my sincerest thanks to all of the dedicated veterans and citizens who gave me their generous assistance and loyal support in this matter. (J-1)

At the hearing, respondent testified in a similar matter. He asserted he was aware of the charges against him and that he understood the terms and conditions of the settlement agreement, which he entered into voluntarily. He further understood that the settlement must be approved by the Commissioner before it may be full force and effect and, if approved, he waived his rights to any further hearings.

The parties stipulate that of the nine counts in the Statement of Charges against respondent, Counts one through Seven are background counts, all at which have been resolved. Count Nine is a catchall count and only Count Eight is the Statement of Charges.

CONCLUSIONS

It is recognized by this tribunal and the parties to this litigation that the Commissioner has exclusive authority to decide matters which arise under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -25. Pursuant to such authority, the Commissioner shall review and evaluate any settlement of tenure charges. It is the Commissioners exclusive authority to approve or disapprove of any settlement agreements reached by the parties involving tenure matters. In re Cardonick, 1983 S.L.D. at 849.

Having carefully considered the Cardonick criteria, as set forth by the State Board of Education. I CONCLUDE that the herein settlement agreement meets all requirements therein and is in the public interest. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the herein settlement disposes of all the issues in controversy and should be approved.

Accordingly, I recommend that the Commissioner approve the terms and conditions of the herein settlement agreement and that the matter be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

RE: Egg Harbor Board of Education v. Robert Reed
Our File No. 1341-121-94

Dear Mr. Carr:

I am in receipt of your letter of January 26, 1996 indicating that the Board has accepted the settlement offer proposed by Mr. Reed with a slight modification to paragraph 2 of the settlement proposal. As I understand it from our conversation and your letter of January 26, 1996, the request for the modification to paragraph 2 is to insure that the Board is not waiving its managerial prerogatives in this settlement; for example the Board will not be precluded at some time in the future to reassign Mr. Reed from the "Silver Team" if staffing or other reorganizational needs so require. With this understanding, I have no objection to including the requested change to paragraph 2.

Accordingly, please accept this letter as the terms of the Settlement Agreement reached by the parties and as approved by the Board during its meeting of January 23, 1996. As I understand it, this Agreement will be incorporated into the Board's resolution and will be submitted to Judge Law as well and can be made a part of his initial decision if he so chooses:

1. Egg Harbor Township Board of Education will withdraw and dismiss the tenure charges filed against Robert Reed with prejudice and said charges cannot thereafter be the subject of any future disciplinary action against Robert Reed but will remain in his file solely as an explanation of the 120 days suspension already imposed.

2. Robert Reed will be reinstated to the 7th grade Silver Team teaching position effective no later than the beginning of the third marking period in 1996 and he will have restored to him all benefits, emoluments and perquisites in accordance with the contract and statues with the exception of the loss of pay for the 120 days suspension period already served by him; subject to Administrative Law Judge approval and with no effect on Administrative or Board managerial prerogatives in accordance with law.

3. Mutual releases will be executed by both parties with regard to this matter and any civil litigation surrounding this matter.

4. Mr. Reed will issue the following statement once this matter is fully resolved, the tenure charges are dismissed and the settlement is approved by the Administrative Law Judge and Commissioner of Education.

"As a teacher and educator in the Egg Harbor Township School District for twenty-two (22) years, I wish to make a statement concerning my suspension.

In April of 1994 an incident occurred in my seventh grade homeroom class where a student refused to participate in the salute to the American flag with other members of the homeroom class. As a result of the incident, I said the words, 'Go back from where you came.' These words were interpreted by the student and parents as a racial slur. I did not intend these words to be racial, but just a directive for her to return to her seat. In retrospect I should have used a better choice of words which could not have been misinterpreted. Because of this, major discrepancies arose and regrettably, the matter has escalated into a major controversy involving not only the Board and myself but the community as well.

It is my sincere hope that all parties involved in this matter can reach a just and responsible settlement and avoid the indefinite perpetuation of any ill will that this dispute has generated. I wish to extend my sincerest thanks to all of the dedicated veterans and citizens who gave me their generous assistance and loyal support in this matter."

Please contact me upon receipt of this letter so that we can arrange a conference with Judge Law to advise him as to the settlement reached in this matter.

Very truly yours,

Allen S. Zeller, Esquire

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF ROBERT REED,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE	:	DECISION
TOWNSHIP OF EGG HARBOR,	:
ATLANTIC COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Commissioner finds that he cannot approve the settlement terms, inasmuch as they do not comport with the Cardonick standards for review of settlements in tenure matters. In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846.

First, the Commissioner finds that the settlement terms do not sufficiently set forth the nature of the charges, which the Commissioner notes included unbecoming conduct a teaching staff member, as well as corporal punishment and other just cause. Cardonick at 850. Second, the parties fail to provide the circumstances which justify settlement of these charges in the manner so agreed. (Id.) Third, there is no finding by the ALJ that this settlement is in the public's interest. (Id. at 850, 851) Such a finding is particularly relevant given the nature of the charges. It is well established that, having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, the Board may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges can no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue the charges. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenneth Smith, School District of the City of Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner March 22, 1982, decision on remand June 16, 1983, affirmed with modification by the State Board on November 2, 1983, affirmed N.J. Superior Court Appellate Division January 30, 1986.

Moreover, it appears that the terms of the settlement have already been effectuated through respondent's return to school "no later that [sic] the beginning of the third marking period in 1996 " (Initial Decision at p. 2) and the parties are, therefore, admonished that settlement agreements of controverted matters are of no force and effect and may not be implemented absent the Commissioner's approval pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1.

Accordingly, the proposed settlement is rejected for the reasons expressed herein. The Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the OAL for further settlement negotiations consistent with the concerns set forth above. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to plenary hearing on the merits.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 361-9/94

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ROBERT REED, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EGG HARBOR, ATLANTIC COUNTY

Paul J. Carr, Esq., for the charging Board of Education (Murray & Carr, attorneys)

Allen Zeller, Esq., for respondent (Freeman, Zeller & Bryant, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 30, 1997 Decided: March 6, 1997

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

This matter is on remand from the Commission of Education (Commissioner) who rejected a settlement between the parties asserting, among other things, that the settlement terms and conditions did not comport with the Cardonick standard for review of settlements in tenure matters. In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1992, aff'd State Board April 6,1993. 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846.

Specifically with respect to the instant matter, the Commissioner first:

> . . . finds that the settlement terms do not sufficiently set forth the nature of the charges, which the Commissioner notes included unbecoming conduct a teaching staff members, as well as corporal punishment and other just cause. Cardonick at 850. Second, the parties fail to provide the circumstances which justify settlement of these charges in the manner so agreed. (Id.) Third, there is no finding by the ALJ that this settlement is in the public's interest. (Id. at 850, 851) Such a finding is particularly relevant given the nature of the charges. It is well established that, having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, the Board may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges can no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue the charges. (Citation omitted) (Slip op. at p.8, 9.)

The Commissioner further admonished the parties for returning respondent to his employment position reminding the parties that settlement agreements of controverted matters are of no force and effect and may not be implemented absent his approval pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1. The Commissioner's ORDER OF REMAND is dated June 10, 1996.

On January 30, 1997, a hearing was held at the Atlantic City Office of Administrative Law (OAL) at which the parties spread upon the record the following stipulation:

I. INFORMATION RELATING TO THE STATEMENT OF CHARGES:

A. Counts One and Nine. These Counts were intended to be included in the Statement of Charges as "catch all" Counts of alleged conduct; the specific allegations of which were included and set forth in Counts Two through Eight.

B. Count Two: This involved a 1974 incident which related to the failure of Respondent to appear at bus duty during a snow storm. Respondent alleged that he had a lack of information and knowledge concerning the bus schedule. A reprimand was issued by the Principal.

C. COUNTS THREE AND FOUR: These Counts involve allegations of inappropriate restraint and contact with students in 1976. The facts relating to these incidents were never established. A written reprimand were issued by the Principal and Superintendent.

D. COUNT FIVE: This Count involved a 1977 allegation regarding misuse of sick days and failure to submit proper lesson plans. Respondent was docked one day of pay.

E. COUNT SIX: This Count involved a 1984 allegation of improper supervision of two students who were fighting amount themselves. The Board voted to withhold one year pay increment.

F. COUNT SEVEN: This Count involved a 1987 allegation of inappropriate minor contact with a student. The Board imposed a sanction of withholding a pay increment for one year. A petition of appeal contesting the Board action was filed by Respondent with the Commissioner of Education. The petition was subsequently withdrawn and the Administrative Law Judge in an initial decision in July, 1989 approved the withdrawal of the Petition under Docket No: EDU-7552-88. The Commissioner of Education also approved the Administrative law Judge's initial decision.

H. COUNT EIGHT: Count Eight involved a 1994 allegation of unbecoming conduct. This is the basis for the within certification of present tenure charges. The specific conduct alleged was detailed by the Administrative Law Judge in his decision on page 3, paragraph 4 and as set forth in Exhibit "J-1" marked in evidence. A statement was made by Respondent to a student from the doorway of his homeroom facing outward into the hall where the student had walked. The statement was not heard by any other student in the homeroom class nor was the statement within earshot of any students.

The parties further stipulate that upon completion of discovery in this matter and based upon all of the evidence, Respondent's comment was not a racial slur as originally alleged.

II. CIRCUMSTANCES WHICH JUSTIFY THE SETTLEMENT:

By stipulation and acknowledgment of the Board of Education and the Respondent, the allegation that Respondent uttered a racial slur to a student did not, in fact, occur. Rather, Respondent acknowledged using a poor choice of words which were misinterpreted by a disobedient student. The student ignored Respondent's proper request during homeroom period that she refrain from being loud and disruptive and that she return to her seat during the recital of the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. The student ignored Respondent's request and commenced to leave the classroom during the Pledge of Allegiance. Respondent's comment occurred while the student was outside the homeroom and was not heard by any other student. The student was sent to the Principal's office. The Principal imposed punishment of four hours of detention for her defiant and disrespectful conduct toward the Respondent as a result of her refusal to return to her seat after being directed to do so.

After completion of all pretrial discovery, the Board acknowledged and agreed that the circumstances of the Respondent's choice of words did not warrant certification of tenure charges but, rather, warranted a fine of 120 day's pay.

The parties further stipulate that under further disclosure of the facts, the Board does not feel that a poor choice of words would warrant a tenure dismissal.

The Board further acknowledged that final action has previously been taken in a proper manner regarding Counts two through Seven.

III. CONSENT OF THE PARTIES:

The Board approved the within settlement by a vote of eight in favor an one opposed at its meeting on January 24, 1996. Respondent has approved and consented to the settlement as set forth in the transcript of March 7, 1996. The parties further acknowledge that the settlement is in the public interest.

The parties further stipulate that Exhibit J-1 be entered in evidence and that the transcript of the March 7, 1996 proceeding be entered in evidence as Exhibit J-2.

The parties further stipulate that Respondent received full salary beginning the 121st day after the suspension and that Respondent did not have any other employment during the suspension period.

At the hearing held on January 30, 1997, the parties made reference to the transcript of the hearing held on March 7, 1996, where, among other things, respondent was thoroughly examined and cross-examined by counsel and by this tribunal concerning the charges and the consequences related thereto, together with the admonition that a settlement may not be effected until such time as the Commissioner sets forth his approval of its terms and conditions. Respondent was also advised that the Commissioner is obligated to advise the Board of Examiners of the tenure charges against him and that it may take further action against his teaching credentials.

The parties and especially the Board, represented that there was no intention to adopt the settlement terms and conditions prior to the Commissioner's approval. The Board asserted, credibly, that it returned respondent to his employment position prior to the Commissioner's approval for reasons of economy.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

Based upon the testimony and the representations of counsel, together with other evidence adduced at the hearing and having given fair weight thereto, and having assessed the credibility of respondent's testimony. I FIND the following FACT and make following CONCLUSIONS in this matter.

Pursuant to the Commissioner's concerns that, first, the Board's charges against respondent included unbecoming conduct as well as corporal punishment, the record demonstrates that facts related to these incidents were never established. Therefore, these charges were unsubstantiated and not material to the herein mater. I so FIND and CONCLUDE.

The Commissioner's second concerns, under Cordonick that the parties failed to provide the circumstances which justify a settlement of the instant charges is fully set forth in Section II above. I FIND and CONCLUDE that the circumstance which justifies the settlement is warranted and should be approved.

With regard to the Commissioner's third concern as to no finding by this tribunal that the settlement is in the public interest, I FIND and CONCLUDE that it is in the public interest to adopt the herein settlement agreement. This is so due to the fact that the charges are unclear and in dispute, with no corroborating supportive evidence to warrant a dismissal of respondent from his tenured employment position. While respondent admits he made a statement to a pupil which was a poor choice of words, there is no evidence that the speech was heard by anyone other than the pupil nor is there any evidence that the words were intended to be a racial slur, as alleged. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the settlement is in the public interest and need not go forward to a hearing at the public expense.

Having considered the entire controversy in light of Cordonick, I CONCLUDE that the herein settlement agreement meets all of the requirements therein and is in the public interest for its adoption. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the settlement disposes of all issues in controversy and should be approved.

Accordingly, I recommend that the Commissioner approve the terms and conditions of the herein settlement agreement and that the matter be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, brother and sister-in-law of minor student N.L., alleged N.L. was wrongfully denied admission to school due to residency dispute.

ALJ dismissed matter for failure of petitioners to appear for the conference or otherwise prosecute the matter.

Commissioner set aside ALJ's conclusion that this matter must be dismissed. Based on letter sent by petitioners objecting to the dismissal, the Commissioner determined that there appeared to be some measure of confusion as to the timing of parties' telephone conference and, further, there was a Board motion left outstanding in the matter. Thus, interests of fundamental fairness require that this matter be returned to OAL for further proceedings.

Record Closed: March 20, 1996 Decided: April 23, 1996

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

Petitioners, A.L. and N.L., on behalf of N.L., appeals the April 1994 decision of the South Orange-Maplewood Board of Education that denied N.L. admission to its school district.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing on December 13, 1995. A telephone prehearing conference was scheduled for February 2, 1996. At that conference, the respondent was available but the petitioners were not. Petitioners have failed to contact the undersigned and have failed to answer the counterclaim. On March 20, 1996, respondent filed a certification and a proposed Order seeking a default judgment against the petitioners.

After a review of the this matter, I FIND that petitioner failed to appear for the conference or otherwise prosecute this matter. I further FIND that petitioner has been duly notified. It is therefore ORDERED that this matter be and is hereby DISMISSED with prejudice. (Exh. A).

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the (title of agency head) does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

A.L. AND N.L., on behalf of minor, N.L.,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SOUTH ORANGE AND MAPLEWOOD SCHOOL DISTRICT, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) dismissing the instant petition for petitioners' failure to appear for conference or otherwise prosecute this matter have been reviewed. On May 13, 1996, petitioners filed a letter objecting to the ALJ's dismissal of this matter. By letter, dated May 14, 1996, from the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, the Board was accorded an opportunity to respond to petitioners' submission and it duly filed such response on May 20, 1996.

Petitioners' contend that a telephone conference in this matter, originally scheduled "on or about January 29, 1996 at 4:00 p.m." was subsequently postponed and rescheduled for February 2, 1996. Petitioners' maintain that they were available for the telephone conference on this date but it never took place. They further assert that when they telephoned the ALJ the following week, they were informed that a new date for the conference would be established but heard nothing further. Petitioners urge that they "have every intention of pursuing and prosecuting the case and ask that the case be reinstated to the active case list." (Petitioners' Letter at p. 1)

In response, the Board contends that, to the best of its belief, petitioners were unavailable for the scheduled conference call. It asserts that it is unable to respond to petitioners' contentions with respect to a conversation with the ALJ, but urges that it is highly unlikely that "circumstances were as alleged by Petitioner[s]" (Board's Reply Letter at p. 1), and urge that the ALJ's dismissal of this matter, under the circumstances, is entirely appropriate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4 and -14.14. The Board observes, however, that although in her decision the ALJ references the Board's motion seeking default judgment against petitioners for their failure to respond to its counterclaim in this matter, she erroneously failed to take any action with respect to this motion in her decision. The Board urges, that under the circumstances existing here, the Commissioner should uphold the dismissal of the petition and grant the Board default judgment on the counterclaim.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner cannot concur with the ALJ's conclusion that this matter must be dismissed. In that petitioners' letter raises allegations of the existence of some measure of confusion with respect to the timing of the parties' telephone conference, and in that there is also a Board motion left outstanding herein, the Commissioner determines that interests of fundamental fairness require that this matter be returned to the OAL for further proceedings consistent with N.J.A.C. 1:1-1 et seq.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is reversed and this matter shall be returned to the OAL for further proceedings, along with a request that this matter be heard on an expedited basis as it involves a residency dispute.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on June 18, 1996 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A hearing was scheduled for March 12, 1997 at the OAL in Newark, New Jersey. At the request of the parties, the hearing was adjourned for purposes of settlement discussions and an agreement was reached. A stipulation of settlement was signed by the parties and was filed on March 19, 1997. The stipulation of settlement is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

IN THE MATTER OF THE CERTIFICATION OF DR. COLUMBUS SALLEY.	:
AND	:
DR. COLUMBUS SALLEY AND THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ORANGE TOWNSHIP, ESSEX COUNTY, PETITIONERS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION ON MOTION
V.	:
STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS, NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, RESPONDENT.	:

For Petitioners-Movants, Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso and Kessler (Nicholas Celso, III)
For Respondent, Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General (Michelle Lyn Miller, DAG)

This interim matter was opened by way of a motion filed on May 31, 1996, wherein petitioners (Dr. Salley and the Orange Board of Education) sought a stay of the Commissioner's letter determination of March 27, 1996, presently on appeal before the State Board of Education, advising that Dr. Salley was approved to serve as Acting Superintendent pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:5-3.1 only until June 30, 1996, and that no further extensions of this approval would be granted. Specifically, petitioners seek approval for Dr. Salley to serve as Acting Superintendent until a final agency decision is reached on the underlying certification issue presently in dispute before the Commissioner, and, in the event that such decision is adverse to Dr. Salley, the Commissioner's permission to have Dr. Salley remain in his acting capacity until such time as he can complete the test required by the Board of Examiners in order to issue a school administrator endorsement. Concurrently, petitioners also sought emergent relief in the form of issuance by June 30, 1996 of a Commissioner's decision on Dr. Salley's appeal, filed on April 29, 1996, of the State Board of Examiners' determination not to issue him a provisional school administrator certificate.

Briefly summarized, the factual background of this matter is as follows: Dr. Salley was offered a contract for employment by the Board as Superintendent of Schools, effective January 2, 1996. On or about December 29, 1995, the Acting County Superintendent advised that Dr. Salley could not assume the superintendency because he did not possess the required school administrator's endorsement, possessing instead, as the Board was aware and deemed appropriate, certification issued in 1981 as an executive superintendent. The Board then requested that the Commissioner permit the appointment of Dr. Salley in an acting capacity, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:5-3.1, for 90 days or until the certification issue was resolved. By letter dated January 2, 1996, the Commissioner responded to the Board's request, granting approval until April 1, 1996, on the condition that Dr. Salley immediately initiate the process for issuance of the required certification.

Dr. Salley received, on or about January 4, 1996, a determination from the Office of Teacher Certification and Academic Credentials in the Department of Education that he did not qualify for the present school administrator endorsement, together with instruction as to what requirements remained for him to satisfy; on or about January 31, 1996, he appealed this determination to the State Board of Examiners. Because the appeal was not resolved prior to April 1, the Board requested, and the Commissioner granted, in order to avoid "possible disruption during a critical period of the school year," a further extension of Dr. Salley's acting capacity until June 30, 1996; in doing so, however, the Commissioner noted that no extensions would be granted thereafter and that the district must take steps to procure an appropriately certified superintendent for the 1996-97 school year. On April 15, 1996, the Board of Examiners affirmed the Office of Teacher Certification's determination that Dr. Salley did not qualify for the school administrator endorsement. The above-referenced appeal to the Commissioner was filed soon thereafter, as was the appeal to the State Board of Education of the Commissioner's letter determination, at issue herein, not to grant further extensions beyond June 30, 1996. Additionally, on or about April 25, 1996, petitioners filed an action in Superior Court, Law Division, where, on May 28, 1996, Judge Alvin Weiss dismissed their application for emergent relief, but retained jurisdiction over petitioners' complaint, scheduled a hearing for June 25, 1996, and, according to petitioners' papers, directed petitioners to seek emergent relief from the Commissioner in the interim.

In addressing the criteria for grant of both a stay and emergent relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), petitioners argue that, in the absence of the requested relief, they will suffer irreparable harm. They further contend that they have a likelihood of success on the merits of the underlying appeal, and that the equities weigh in their favor. With respect to irreparable harm, petitioners argue that the Board will be deprived of the services of its chosen educational leader, and that loss of Dr. Salley's administrative expertise will adversely affect both operations and the children of the district in a manner that cannot be recompensed through monetary means. Dr. Salley, in turn, will lose his ability to practice his profession, and will be effectively deprived of his professional license, hence a valuable property interest, without due process of law. This has resulted, petitioners argue, both from the Department of Education's manner of applying its regulations so as to exclude persons certified as executive superintendents, and from the Commissioner's refusal, through imposition of a June 30, 1996 termination date, to accord Dr. Salley sufficient time to pursue his right to the administrative hearing which he never received from the Board of Examiners and to which he is entitled upon effective revocation of his certificate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6. (Petitioners' Brief at 4-9)

With respect to likelihood of success on the merits, petitioners argue that they will prevail on their underlying certification claim, in that the requirements Dr. Salley had to fulfill to obtain executive superintendent certification either meet or exceed those required for the present school administrator endorsement, and Dr. Salley certainly would have qualified for the school administrator endorsement as it existed at the time he received his executive superintendent certification. Moreover, petitioners contend, the legislative history of applicable statutes and regulations leads to the inescapable conclusion that executive superintendent is a higher level of certification which authorized, and authorizes in perpetuity, its holder to perform not only all the duties of a superintendent, but additional duties which the holder of the lesser school administrator endorsement cannot perform. (Petitioners' Brief at 9-14)

With respect to the equities, petitioners argue that the only hardship herein will flow to Dr. Salley and the Board, which will be forced to initiate a search for a new superintendent and operate the district with a less qualified person in command. The Department, in contrast, must merely make an accommodation of time to permit Dr. Salley to pursue the due process to which he is clearly entitled. (Petitioners' Brief at 14-15)

In reply, the State Board of Examiners (SBOE) initially notes that it takes no position on petitioners' request for a decision on the underlying certification matter by June 30, 1996, but that it "trusts the Commissioner will note the intricacies of the issues involved and the time lines accorded by the pertinent administrative regulations and will exercise his discretion in granting this motion accordingly." (Respondent's Reply Brief at 2) Additionally, SBOE notes that petitioners' request for a "stay" is illogical, and that the proper course of action would have been to ask the Commissioner to consider renewing, for an additional three-month term, his permission for Dr. Salley to serve in an acting capacity. Should that request have been denied, the issue would be ripe for appeal to the State Board of Education and application for stay by the Commissioner. (Id. at 5)

In addressing petitioners' arguments on the Crowe standards, SBOE contends that petitioners have improperly addressed the merits of their underlying certification appeal, when the decision they are seeking to stay is that of the Commissioner not to extend the deadline for Dr. Salley's service in an acting capacity. With respect to that decision, the record clearly demonstrates that the Commissioner's action was neither arbitrary nor improper, and was instead based on a determination to preserve the district's administrative continuity through the spring while ensuring action to obtain a fully certified chief school administrator by the opening of school in the fall. Therefore, petitioners cannot succeed on the merits of their appeal to the State Board. Additionally, petitioners have failed to show irreparable harm, in that Dr. Salley's possible employment crisis is of his own making, he cannot show any entitlement to his position beyond the three-month extension already granted by the Commissioner, and the Board's contention that it cannot find a comparable educational leader does not rise to the level of irreparable harm sufficient to warrant emergent relief. Finally, with respect to equities, the community of Orange and the public interest generally will certainly be harmed by impeding procuration of a fully certified superintendent, and any harm to the Board is caused solely by its own failure to employ such a superintendent within the adequate time allotted. (Respondent's Reply Brief at 6-10)

Upon review and consideration, the Commissioner initially determines to construe petitioners' motion for stay as a request for reconsideration of the Commissioner's prior determination to deny a further three-month extension of permission for Dr. Salley to serve as superintendent in an acting capacity and as a request for such extension. He does so because he cannot "stay" the expiration of his approval under the terms of the controlling regulation, but can merely approve three-month extensions for a total period of up to one year, with any subsequent extension requiring action by the State Board of Education. N.J.A.C. 6:5-3.1.

Having so construed petitioners' motion, the Commissioner determines to grant the requested extension. The Commissioner finds that his earlier decision not to further extend Dr. Salley's termination date was well-grounded based on the circumstances as they existed at the time of the decision, when the State Board of Examiners had not yet ruled on Dr. Salley's qualifications and no appeal of the Board's decision had been filed with the Commissioner. However, the Commissioner also finds that subsequent events warrant reconsideration of that decision, given that the Board's determination was adverse to Dr. Salley and that petitioners' have, within the context of the present motion, offered arguments on the merits of the underlying certification appeal which reveal that their position is not a frivolous one, and which support their contention that Dr. Salley should be permitted to continue on his path of pursuing remedy before the Commissioner.

Accordingly, the Commissioner hereby vacates his prior determination not to renew Dr. Salley's service as acting superintendent beyond June 30, 1996 and extends this service for an additional three-month period, i.e., until September 30, 1996. Moreover, in order to effectuate prompt resolution of the underlying certification appeal, which is not amenable to hearing and determination by the imminent date (June 30, 1996) requested by petitioners, a copy of this decision shall be forwarded to the Clerk of the Office of Administrative Law so as to advise that the Commissioner is requesting priority scheduling pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-9.3 and, further, that the Commissioner consents to accelerated proceedings, should the parties and judge agree to such proceedings pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-9.4. Should proceedings before the Commissioner on the underlying appeal not be concluded by September 30, 1996, the Commissioner will entertain a request from petitioners for an additional three-month extension pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:5-3.1, to be assessed by the Commissioner based upon circumstances as they exist at that time.[1]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent sought emergent relief permitting daughter, D.C., to participate in graduation ceremonies. D.C. was barred from participation due to insufficient course credits as student had violated Board's truancy policy.

Commissioner denied emergent relief, finding petitioner failed to meet Crowe standards. As to merits of the matter, Commissioner found that petitioner failed to demonstrate that the Board's action was unreasonable, arbitrary and capricious or taken in bad faith. Commissioner found that the Board provided D.C. not only with avenues of appeal, but with the opportunity to modify her conduct so as to be permitted to graduate in June 1996. Petition was dismissed.

For Respondent, Marie-Laurence Fabian, Esq. (Dillan, Bitar & Luther)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on May 20, 1996, by way of a Petition of Appeal filed by D.S., on behalf of her daughter, D.C. On May 22, 1996, petitioner filed a Motion for Emergent Relief seeking an order permitting D.C. to participate in graduation ceremonies from Parsippany High School on June 20, 1996.[1] Principal Melvin Zirkes, Ed.D., determined to bar D.C. from participation in graduation ceremonies due to insufficient course credits. It is herein noted that this matter was filed before the Commissioner prior to the Board's opportunity to take action to uphold the principal's decision. However, inasmuch as petitioner asserts that the Board has not responded to her request to appeal this matter, and in view of the need to expeditiously resolve this issue, the [1] Petitioner's initial submissions erroneously identify the graduation date as June 15, 1996.

Commissioner determines to entertain petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief, notwithstanding that there has been no final Board determination pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Additionally, the Board does not challenge petitioner's having taken appeal in this forum.

The Commissioner finds that this matter is appropriate for summary judgment in that no material facts are in dispute. Further, the Commissioner determines that the nature of the dispute is such that resolution of both the emergent question and the merits of this matter is best effectuated concurrently.

The Commissioner finds the following material facts. D.C. is a senior at Parsippany High School. Her credits in three courses, Physical Education, Cooperative Education (COE) and Drawing I, were withheld on or about December 1, 1995 pursuant to the District's published policy against truancy. D.C. appealed the withdrawal of her credits to the Board. By letter to the Board's Appeals Committee dated December 6, 1995, D.C. states, in pertinent part, "I understand that I made a serious mistake by being truant on Friday, December 1, 1995." (D.C.'s letter to Board's Appeals Committee, December 6, 1995) The Appeals Committee agreed to restore the credits in all D.C.'s subjects, provided that D.C. met the terms of a "student contract" setting forth behavioral expectations. D.C. signed the contract on January 22, 1996, as did Principal Zirkes, Vice Principal Meehan, and D.C.'s guidance counselor. D.C.'s mother signed the contract on January 23, 1996.

Thereafter, D.C. "broke the contract" by violating school rules. The Board asserts that, on March 27, 1996, D.C. left school premises in contravention of school policy. D.S. does not dispute that D.C. "went off school property on her free period to get something to eat." (Petition of Appeal at p. 1) However, D.S. asserts that D.C. was unaware that she was not permitted to leave the campus on her free period. (Id.) D.S. and D.C. were then notified that violation of the student contract resulted in the loss of credits in all three courses, as identified above. However, pursuant to an informal appeal by D.S., and by letter dated April 18, 1996, Dr. Zirkes informed D.S. and D.C. that he was removing D.C.'s credit from Physical Education, but allowing her to receive credit for Drawing I and COE, if she did not violate any school rules between that date and the end of the school year. Dr. Zirkes informed D.C. that she could take Physical Education in summer school and receive her diploma upon receiving the results of the summer classes. Dr. Zirkes further notified D.C. that she could not march in the Parsippany High School June graduation exercises.

PETITIONER'S POSITION

Petitioner asserts that D.C. is entitled to emergent relief in that the punishment issued by the Board is harmful to D.C.'s self-esteem and educational growth. Petitioner further asserts that the potential harm to her daughter is more severe than the possible harm to the Board, inasmuch as the negative effects of D.C.'s failure to graduate in June will be "long term." (Petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief) Petitioner affirms that her daughter is a good student who is liked by her teachers and her peers. She argues that a decision regarding a student's graduation " should be based solely on academic merit ." (Id.)

As to the merits of the case, petitioner acknowledges that D.C. failed to attend school one day when she instead visited the Fairleigh Dickinson University Campus. (Petition of Appeal at p. 1) Petitioner further acknowledges that, later, D.C. "went off school property on her free period to get something to eat ." (Id.) However, petitioner contends that these incidents are not serious enough to warrant barring D.C. from participation in graduation ceremonies. Petitioner further asserts that her pleas to the District "have fallen on deaf ears." (Id. at p. 2) Moreover, petitioner urges the Commissioner to be mindful of the hardships which D.C. has suffered and the significant progress she has made in school under difficult circumstances.

As to the student contract which D.C. signed in January, petitioner appears to argue that she was assured it would merely be a "scare tactic" and that D.C. would graduate in June. (Id.) When D.S. was informed that D.C. would not be graduating in June, she met with Principal Zirkes, and further asserts that she tried to speak with the superintendent, as well as to appeal this matter to the Board. Petitioner concludes,

> I feel that the punishment should fit the crime in any situation and this punishment is too severe and will only teach my daughter to have more anger and feel more let down. I am sure they can pick a punishment that will serve a purpose and will have less harmful effects in [sic] my daughter's education. (Id. at p. 3)

RESPONDENT'S POSITION

In response to petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief, the Board argues that R.F. v. Park Ridge Board of Education, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 79, 81 establishes that participation in a graduation ceremony is a privilege which "can be revoked for infractions of school rules ." (Board's Brief in Opposition to Petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief at p. 5) The Board contends that D.S. fails to establish that D.C. will experience irreparable harm if she is not permitted to march in the June graduation ceremonies, and "Petitioner has in no way established a likelihood of success on the merits."[2] (Id.) The Board further notes that "[P]etitioner's assertions regarding harm to D.C.'s self esteem and educational growth are totally unsupported." (Id.) The Board continues,

[2] The Board's arguments as to the merits of this case are fully developed, infra.

> In weighing the relative hardships to the parties in this matter, the Commissioner must consider the goal of the school district when it disciplined D.C. Petitioner's position ignores the valuable lesson to be learned by D.C. and her peers that one must suffer the consequences of one's actions. The granting of emergent relief in this matter would unfairly strike a death blow to respondent's disciplinary policy. (Id. at pp. 5, 6)

As to the merits of the instant matter, the Board offers affidavits from Principal Zirkes and Vice Principal Meehan attesting to the facts. Principal Zirkes provides the following rationale for his decision:

> I was aware that D.C. intended to attend Morris County College in September and I did not wish to prevent her from starting college at that time. On the other hand, I wanted her to realize that she must accept responsibility for her actions. Moreover, it was important that she be dealt with in such a way that would send a message to the student body that repeated violations of school rules will not be tolerated. Therefore, I told her that she could obtain the necessary physical education credit to graduate over the summer and still begin college in September. (Zirkes' affidavit at pp. 2, 3)

Here, the Board asserts that D.C. first failed to comply with its anti-truancy policy and, later, with the Board's closed campus policy as published in the Parsippany High School Student and Parent Handbook. Thus, the Board maintains that it is within its discretionary power to appropriately discipline D.C. (Board's Brief at p. 4) Moreover, the Board warrants, "It is well established that the action of a Board of Education which 'lies within the area of its discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives.'" (Id., citing Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960)

The Board also argues that the student contract which D.C. signed in January clearly indicated that violations of school rules would result in the loss of credit for the three courses noted in the contract, COE, Drawing I and Physical Education. Nevertheless, Principal Zirkes permitted D.C. to maintain her credits in COE and Drawing I. (Id. at p. 1)

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

In accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5, a grant of emergent relief is considered an extraordinary remedy which can only be issued upon a finding that petitioner has met the four-pronged standard set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). The Crowe standard requires petitioner to demonstrate that D.C. will be irreparably harmed if not permitted to attend and participate in the graduation ceremony; that the legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled; that petitioner has a substantial likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the claim; and that in balancing the interests of the parties, the harm to D.C. will be greater than the harm to the Board should the requested relief not be granted.

The Commissioner finds that petitioner has failed to meet any of the prongs set forth in Crowe and, thus, petitioner has not demonstrated entitlement to emergent relief. D.C.'s alleged injury from nonparticipation in graduation ceremonies does not constitute irreparable harm sufficient to warrant such extraordinary remedy. Moreover, it is noted D.C.'s status as a high school student does not afford her the legal entitlement to participate in extracurricular activities, such as a graduation ceremony. See Martin A. Domacasse v. Board of Education of the North Warren Regional School District, Warren County, State Board of Education decision dated April 17, 1996, citing Camden City Board of Education v. NJSIAA, Docket #A-2802-91T2 (App. Div. 1992); Burnside et al. v. NJSIAA, 1984 S.L.D. 1695 (App. Div. 1984), cert. denied 101 N.J. 236 (1985). Clearly, the equities in this matter lie on the side of the Board which has adopted and published the pertinent policies and which has a significant interest in ensuring that its disciplinary policies are implemented in such a way that violators understand there will be consequences for their misconduct.

As to the merits of this matter, the Commissioner observes that he cannot disturb the decision as to the denial of D.C.'s Physical Education credit unless D.S. has shown that it was unreasonable, arbitrary and capricious for the Board to have acted as it did under the circumstances. In the instant matter, petitioner has failed to demonstrate that the Board's decision was unreasonable, arbitrary and capricious or otherwise taken in bad faith. To the contrary, the Commissioner finds that the Board has provided D.C. not only with avenues of appeal, but with the opportunity to modify her conduct so as to be permitted to graduate in June 1996. Unfortunately, D.C. elected not to avail herself of this opportunity.

Accordingly, the Motion for Emergent Relief is denied and there being no outstanding issues requiring further resolution on the merits, the petition is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE DANIEL B. MCKEOWN, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on September 20, 1995, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to a settlement based upon their signatures and have prepared a stipulation indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the case record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures of their respective counsel.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF FRANCIS SABO, ALBERT C. WAGNER YOUTH CORRECTIONAL FACILITY	)
	)	SELLETMENT AGREEMENT

The parties agree to settle this matter in accordance with the following terms:

1. Petitioning Department of Corrections shall withdraw the tenure charges against Respondent Sabo (Respondent).

2. Respondent's personnel file shall reflect that the tenure charges filed against him were withdrawn by the Department under a Settlement Agreement.

3. Respondent shall retire from his employment as a teacher with the Department of Corrections and he agrees not to seek renewal of active employment with that Agency.

4. The parties agree that this Settlement Agreement resolves all issues in controversy between them and that all such claims and counterclaims which may have arisen from such issues are mutually waived.

5. The Department of Corrections will pay Respondent $5,849.10 back pay for the period beginning December 11, 1995 and ending after the first half of the January 26, 1996 work day. In addition, the Department of Corrections agrees to compensate respondent for unused accumulated vacation and sick days.

6. The respondent will not receive any counsel fees, costs or any other monetary relief as a result of this settlement.

7. Between the date this Settlement Agreement is signed by the parties and its approval by the Commissioner of Education, Respondent agrees to use his accumulated vacation time. In the event his accumulated vacation time is exhausted, Respondent agrees to be placed on an approved leave of absence without pay by the Department of Corrections until the date of the Commissioner of Education's decision.

8. The parties agree to waive the filing of exceptions to the initial decision which would recommend the approval of the Settlement Agreement as a complete and final disposition of the matter.

9. Nothing contained within this Agreement shall be considered as precedent in other existing or future cases by the Department of Corrections.

10. The Department of Corrections agrees to submit a letter to the State Health Benefits Commission to suggest that respondent be compensated for insurance premiums paid by him between December 11, 1995 and the first half of January 26, 1996. However, the Department of Corrections has no authority or control over the ultimate decision of the State Health Benefits Commission.

11. The Department of Corrections will permit respondent to return to the Albert C. Wagner Youth Correctional Facility so that he may retrieve his personal belongings. Respondent must first provide at least 24 hours notice of his intent to enter the Facility and must do so during a regular day and during regular work hours. Respondent will be accompanied by an escort when he enters the Facility and retrieves his belongings.

12. The parties acknowledge that this Settlement Agreement may not be consummated until approval by the Commissioner of Education. Any disapproval by the Commissioner of Education shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue this matter further.

13. The Department of Corrections will respond to inquiries about the Respondent from prospective employers, other than the New Jersey Department of Corrections, by indicating only that respondent is retired and by stating the position he held, how long he held it and the salary he was paid.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement have been reviewed.

Upon careful and independent review of the full record of this matter and the terms of the proposed settlement agreement, the Commissioner is compelled to reject such agreement as it is currently structured since he cannot be satisfied by the present record that the proposed settlement meets the Cardonick standards for settlement of tenure matters. In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, affirmed State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846. Specifically, the proposed agreement provides no indication that the respondent teaching staff member was advised of the Commissioner's duty, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of certificate.

Accordingly, this matter is remanded to the OAL for modification, as above noted.

Record Closed: April 10, 1996 Decided: April 29, 1996

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

This matter involves the settlement of a contested case before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) that had been consolidated with a related State Board of Examiners matter. The relevant details are as follows:

In July 1992 the School District of the Township of North Bergen, Hudson County, (North Bergen Board) filed a petition and Order to Show Cause with the State Board of Examiners (State Board) for revocation of respondent Mary Ann Bauer's teaching certificate, based on allegations that the petitioner claimed credit hours and pay for home instruction that was not provided. The matter was transmitted to the OAL by the State Board of Examiners on October 5, 1992 as a contested case. OAL DKT. EDE 7696-92.

The School District of the Township of North Bergen subsequently prepared tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and other just cause against the respondent, based on the same allegations of misconduct that were contained in the State Board of Examiners matter.

After certification, the tenure charges were forwarded to the Commissioner of Education, who transmitted the matter to the OAL as a contested case in May 1993, approximately nine months after the petition had been filed with the Board of Examiners, asking for revocation of the teaching certificate.

Following several status conferences and prehearing procedures, the Board of Examiners case was placed on the inactive list, pending disposition of the tenure charge matter. However, it was later decided that it would be more expeditious to consolidate the two cases for hearing, since both matters were based on identical factual allegations against the petitioner.

The consolidated hearing began on February 7, 1994. A substantial period of delay interrupted the hearing because of substitution of counsel for respondent, additional conferences, illness of counsel and other interim proceedings. The hearings resumed at the end of 1994 and continued through August 24, 1995, for an aggregate total of ten days. Additional conferences and other proceedings followed, into 1996.

On the last day of plenary hearing, counsel for the North Bergen Board and for the respondent arrived at a settlement between them in the tenure case, wherein the respondent would resign immediately, effective July 1, 1996, with a sabbatical leave to begin on the first day of the 1995-96 school year. Other terms and conditions were incorporated into the agreement.

begin on the first day of the 1995-96 school year. Other terms and conditions were incorporated into the agreement.

Since the respondent's resignation would effectively end her position and tenure in the school district, and since, by virtue of the interim sabbatical leave, the respondent would no longer resume any instructional duties, the North Bergen Board indicated that such a resolution would put an immediate end to the considerable amount of time, effort, legal expense and administrative costs involved. The Board further stated that, because its objective was fully realized without a continuation of such costs and expenses, it was in its best interest to settle.

A copy of the stipulation of settlement between the school district and the respondent, filed in the OAL on April 10, 1996, is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

It is particularly noted that the settlement between the North Bergen Board and the respondent does not terminate or otherwise affect the continuation of the proceeding by the State Board of Examiners at the OAL against the respondent, relating to her teaching certificate. That matter will proceed to a conclusion.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement, and I FIND:

1. The parties, School District of the Township of North Bergen and the respondent have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement, after severance of the case from the continuing Board of Examiners matter, fully disposes of the issues in controversy between these two parties.

I therefore CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER the parties to comply with the

IN THE MATTER OF MARY ANN BAUER, A TENURED TEACHING STAFF MEMBER, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF NORTH BERGEN HUDSON COUNTY.

Civil Action

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The parties to the above matter have agreed to an amicable resolution of this litigation. The resolution is based upon agreement as to the following:

1. The Respondent, Mary Ann Bauer, was employed by the Petitioner, School District of North Bergen as of September 1, 1982, and in due course became tenured.

2. It is alleged by the Board of Education that on a number of occasions during her employment, the Respondent submitted improper home instruction vouchers. It is alleged by the Respondent that this did not begin until prior practices by the Board led to an unfortunate misunderstanding between the parties.

3. As a result, the Board voted on March 17, 1993, to certify tenure charges against the Respondent, Mary Ann Bauer.

4. In addition to the time, legal and related administrative costs regarding the continuation of this matter, it is in the best interest of the school system to settle this matter, and the factual issues that legitimately exist and the teacher within the public interest and adequately address the concerns of the school district and not reflect adversely on Mrs Bauer.

Based on the aforementioned, the parties hereby agree to resolve this matter on the following basis:

1. Mary Ann Bauer will immediately resign effective ~~the July 1st 1995 end of the 1993-1994 school year~~ July 1st 1996.

2. The Board shall respond in writing to any written request regarding the employment history of Mary Ann Bauer and shall ~~only~~ provide the following information:

(a) Starting date/ending date of her SALARY for 1996.

(b) Position held,

(c) A letter ~~from~~ the Language submitted by her Atty

3. Mary Ann Bauer shall be ~~entitled to receive all rights and benefits provided for in the parties' collective Bargaining Agreement, including but not limited to accumulated sick leave and pension~~ granted effective the 1ST DAY of the 1995-1996 school year A SABBATICAL LEAVE AT 25% PAY WITH ALL BENEFIT According to the Collective BARGAINING Agreement for People on SABBATICAL.

4. This Agreement represents a complete resolution of all issues outstanding between the parties. Neither party shall be entitled to any relief in this matter, other than the relief set forth in this Agreement, nor will the Board initiate or participate in placing further charges against Mary Ann Bauer.

5. The provisions of the Stipulation of Settlement are specifically conditioned on the approval by the Commissioner of Education of the acceptance of this Stipulation and the approval of any Order of Dismissal which may be recommended by the Administrative Law Judge. If the Commissioner shall reject the provisions of this Stipulation of Settlement and/or an Order of the Administrative Law Judge, then the parties shall revert to the CONCLUDE that this matter is no longer a contested case before the Office of Administrative Law. It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the terms of settlement and that these proceedings be and hereby are concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EDISON, MIDDLESEX COUNTY, Petitioner, v. ROBERT A. LILLO, Respondent.	On Referral from the Commissioner of Education, New Jersey Department of Education STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT AND DISMISSAL WITHOUT PREJUDICE

The petitioner, Board of Education of the Township of Edison (the "Board"), and the respondent, Robert A. Lillo ("Lillo"), having conferred with respect to this matter and having mutually agreed upon certain terms by which this matter may be settled, such terms being set forth herein, it is hereby stipulated and agreed by and between the Board and Lillo as follows:

1. Lillo shall retire from the employ of the Board effective as of November 16, 1995. Within 10 days of the execution of this Stipulation of Settlement and Dismissal Without Prejudice by the parties, Lillo shall (1) formally notify the Board in writing of his retirement from its employ as of November 16, 1995 and (2) if he has not already done so, file an application with the Public Employee Retirement System ("PERS") for disability retirement as of November 16, 1995, which may include such other retirement benefits as may be available to Lillo from PERS. The Board shall cooperate in Lillo's application for disability retirement to PERS.

2. Within 15 days of the Board's receipt of the notice of retirement and a copy of the completed and executed retirement application filed with PERS required by Paragraph 1, the Board shall, consistent with law and the terms of the collective bargaining agreement which pertains to Lillo's employment by the Board, pay to Lillo (a) the sum of $20,543.60, less the usual tax and other salary deductions, which the parties agree represents the value of retroactive salary due to Lillo for the period from May 26, 1995 to November 16, 1995, and (b) the sum of $1,281.06, less the usual tax and other salary deductions, which the parties agree represents the value of Lillo's accumulated and unused vacation days as of November 16, 1995.

3. Lillo hereby waives all rights to continued employment or reemployment by the Board, including but not limited to any and all rights based on tenure and/or seniority and any and all rights to be recalled to employment by the Board or appear on any recall or other list of employees eligible for employment or reemployment by the Board. Lillo also hereby waives and releases any and all claims, whether known or unknown, against the Board which arise out of or relate to his employment by the Board, including but not limited to claims for unpaid salary or other employment benefits. Similarly, the Board hereby waives and releases any and all claims, whether known or unknown, against Lillo which arise out of or relate to his employment by the Board.

4. This matter is hereby dismissed without prejudice. Notwithstanding the foregoing and any provision in this Stipulation of Settlement to the contrary, should PERS deny Lillo's application for retirement, then (a) Lillo's retirement and notice thereof referred to in Paragraph 1 above shall be of no force nor effect, (b) the Board shall have the right to reinstate tenure charges against Lillo seeking the termination of his employment with the Board and/or such other relief as may be appropriate, including, but not limited to the recovery of the payment referred to in Paragraph 2 above, and (c) the waivers and releases referred to in Paragraph 3 above shall be of no force nor effect and shall not be binding upon Lillo or the Board.

HEARING OF ROBERT A. LILLO,	:

TOWNSHIP OF EDISON,	:	DECISION
MIDDLESEX COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement have been reviewed.

Upon careful and independent review of the full record of this matter and the terms of the proposed settlement agreement, the Commissioner is compelled to reject such agreement as it is currently structured since he cannot be satisfied by the present record that the proposed settlement meets the Cardonick standards for settlement of tenure matters. In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, affirmed State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846.

It is well established that, having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, the Board may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges can no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue them. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenneth Smith, School District of the City of Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner March 22, 1982, decision on remand June 16, 1983, affirmed with modification by the State Board November 2, 1983, affirmed N.J. Superior Court, Appellate Division, January 30, 1986. The present record contains no such explanation.

Moreover, it appears that the terms of the settlement have already been effectuated through respondent's retirement from the employ of the Board as of November 16, 1995, and his formal notification of the Board of same within ten days of the parties' execution of the within stipulation. (Stipulation of Settlement at p. 2, Item 1) The parties are, therefore, admonished that settlement agreements of controverted matters are of no force and effect and may not be implemented absent the Commissioner's approval pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1.

Accordingly, the proposed settlement is rejected, and the Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the OAL for revision of the document and expansion of the record consistent with the concerns herein expressed. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to a plenary hearing on the merits.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

BOROUGH OF WOOD-RIDGE, : DECISION

BERGEN COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent Board Secretary/Business Administrator due to alleged mishandling of funds.

By order of Superior Court, respondent entered into pre-trial intervention program, conditioned upon several requirements, including resignation. ALJ dismissed matter and ordered it forwarded to State Board of Examiners for consideration of the revocation of respondent's certificate. ALJ did find that respondent was entitled to compensation for the period of October 12, 1994 to October 31, 1994 as respondent was entitled to resumption of full salary after the expiration of 120 calendar days from the certification of charges pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and ordered award of compensation and forwarding of matter to State Board of Examiners.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8018-94

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF MICHAEL COLUCCI, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF WOOD-RIDGE, BERGEN COUNTY

Cherie L. Maxwell, Esq., for petitioner
(Sills, Cummis, Zuckerman, Radin, Tishman, Epstein & Gross, attorneys)

Paul E Griggs, Esq., for respondent
(Paul E. Griggs, attorney)

Record Closed: November 6, 1995 Decided: May 2, 1996

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

This matter concerns the disposition of tenure charges filed by petitioner, the Wood-Ridge Board of Education (BOE) against the respondent, Michael Colucci (Colucci). The BOE charged Colucci with unbecoming conduct in his position of secretary/business administrator, of the BOE. An answer to the charges was filed by Colucci on May 18, 1994. On June 14, 1994, the BOE suspended Colucci without pay. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, the BOE certified tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education. On August 18, 1994, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the OAL for hearing as a contested case.

A prehearing conference was held at the OAL on October 13, 1994. Hearing dates were established for March, 1995. Prior to scheduled hearings, Colucci moved to have this matter placed on the OAL's inactive list for six months because of a pending indictment in Bergen County. Colucci contended that his testimony in this matter could impact his rights against self-incrimination. On March 16, 1995 an order of inactivity was entered by the undersigned.

On October 19, 1995, petitioner filed a motion seeking an order directing that the BOE pay him salary compensation for the period of October 12, 1994 through March 15, 1995. On November 6, 1995, the BOE filed an answer in opposition to the motion.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

The tenure charges alleged that Colucci engaged in inappropriate financial practices and actions involving the diversion and or payment of public funds in contravention of BOE policy and generally accepted accounting procedures. Specifically, Colucci was charged with diverting $1,334 from the student activities account for his personal use. Colucci did not record the transaction in the BOE financial records. Further, Colucci was charges with diverting a stipend from Region VII to the school district for personal use. Colucci accepted $500 from the BOE and failed to inform the BOE and the Region VII that he had previously paid himself $2,500 by writing an off-line check from the stipend for the 1989-90 school year. Colucci received $1,000 in excess compensation.

Thereafter, in July 1990, Colucci again wrote an off-line Region VII check payable to himself for $3,000. Said payment was contrary to established practice and policy. In 1992-93, Colucci unilaterally incorporated a #,500 Region VII stipend into his annual salary. He reported an inflated base salary to the State pension system in contravention of both state pension and BOE policy. Colucci also misrepresented his salary to the BOE during his contract negotiations for the 1992-93 school term.

Colucci was also charged with submitting requests to the BOE for reimbursement for undocumented travel and activities outside the scope of his employment. Colucci allegedly failed to file 1099 forms for non-salary income derived from the BOE. Colucci also arranged for payment to himself from the BOE nonreimbursable insurance costs.

The amended statement of charges Colucci was charged with two counts of authorizing construction work in excess of bid amounts and without BOE approval, authorized and processed a purchase order without bidding. While the tenure charges were pending, Colucci was arrested and indicted on November 1, 1994 on charges of theft and official misconduct. Colucci was again suspended without pay effective as of the November 1, 1994 indictment. N.J.S.A. 18:6-8.3.

By order of the Superior Court of New Jersey on October 6, 1995, Colucci entered in the Bergen County Probation Department's pre-trial intervention program (PTI). Colucci's participation in said program was conditioned upon several requirements, including: a) Colucci was to immediately submit his resignation of employment from the Wood-Ridge School District b) The issue of possible revocation of Colucci's certificates was to be submitted to the State Board of Examiners for consideration c) Colucci is prohibited form using his certifications during the two-year period of pre-trial intervention; and d) Colucci was to repay to the Wood Ridge BOE the sum of $1,334.00.

Colucci submitted his resignation and it was accepted by the Wood-Ridge Board of Education. The BOE requests that the tenure proceedings be withdrawn and forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for consideration of the revocation of Colucci's education certification pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.5.

ARUGMENT

Colucci asserts that he is entitled to back pay for October 11, 1994 through March 15, 1995. This period represent the time that he was suspended without pay. Colucci seeks the sum of $2,379.77. (R-1). In support of the motion, Colucci relies on N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 which provides:

> ". . . the board may suspend the person against whom such charge is made with or without pay, but, if the determination of the charge by the commissioner of education is not made within 120 calendar days after the certification of the charges, excluding all delays which are granted and the request of such person, then the full salary (except for said 120 days) of such person shall be paid beginning on the one hundred twenty-first day until such determination is made..."

It is contended that because petitioner has withdrawn the tenure charges, a determination of the charges cannot be made for the period of suspension when respondent was entitled to be paid the amount of money demanded. Moreover, the repayment of funds by Colucci as a condition of his participation in the pre-trial intervention program (PTI) is not in any way related to the matter before the Commissioner, which involves an alleged violation of school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, sets forth that the "The Commissioner shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine . . . all controversies and disputes arising under school law . . ." Enforcement of the obligation under PTI can only be through the Bergen County Probation Department or in a civil action, not through the Commissioner of Education.

Petitioner argues that Colucci has "unclean hands" since he has not made restituion as ordered by the PTI program. Further, petitioner asserts that the motion is out of time.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, respondent was suspended without pay on June 13, 1994 after the petitioner certified tenure charges against him. As an unindicted school employee who was subject to a tenure charge, respondent was expressly entitled to a resumption of his full salary after the expiration of 120 calendar days from the certification of charges. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.

Therefore, respondent was entitled to have his full salary reinstated on October 12, 1994. Nevertheless, the reinstatement of respondent's salary ceased on October 31, 1994 because the petitioner subsequently acted to suspend respondent without pay pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3, effective as of respondent's November 1, 1994 criminal indictment.[i] As a result, respondent is entitled to receive the amount of salary he would have earned from October 12, 1994 through October 31, 1994. This amount, however, is to be reduced by any earnings respondent received during that period as a result of his being employed. Furthermore, respondent's salary should be diminished by an amount equal to the restitution mandated by the conditions of the respondent's PTI agreement ($1334.00).[ii]

Based on the above, I FIND that respondent is entitled to compensation for the period of October 12, 1994 to October 31, 1994 less an offset for wages earned during this period and any moneys owed the petitioner for restitution pursuant to the Superior Court Order.

It is therefore ORDERED that respondent pay the petitioner any compensation due after the offset. This matter is hereby DISMISSED and shall be forwarded to State Board of Examiners for the consideration of the revocation of respondent's certificates.

[i] The 120 day time limit of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 only applies to suspensions based upon tenure charges, not those grounded upon criminal indictments.

[ii] It should be noted that the respondent's participation in PTI does not entitle him to back pay for the period he was suspended as a result of his criminal indictment. See, Siciliano v. Camden County Vocational-Technical School Board of Education, 93 *N.J.A.R.*2d 94, 96 (EDU) (Public policy is not served by awarding a school employee who entered PTI back pay when the employee was not improperly suspended).

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOROUGH OF WOOD-RIDGE,	:	DECISION
BERGEN COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) for the reasons expressed therein. In so ruling, the Commissioner affirms the ALJ's calculation of damages pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 and 6-14 and in consideration of the conditions of respondent's pre-trial intervention program (PTI) agreement.

IT IS hereby ORDERED that respondent be awarded compensation for the period of October 12, 1994 to October 31, 1994, less an offset of wages earned during this period and any moneys owed petitioner for restitution pursuant to the Superior Court Order. This matter is hereby dismissed and will be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for action as it deems appropriate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6.

BEFORE STEVEN C. REBACK, ALJ:

This is an order resulting in an initial decision granting the respondent's motion to dismiss the petitioner's appeal as moot. For the following reasons the motion is GRANTED.

I

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) on November 29, 1995, as a result of the filing of a petition by DEC Electric, Inc., (DEC) seeking, among other remedies, emergent relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6.

Prior to the submission of the foregoing, DEC submitted directly to the Office of Administrative Law on November 17, 1995, a motion for substantially the same interim relief. Immediately thereafter respondent, Board of Education of the Southern Gloucester City Regional High School District (hereinafter "Southern Gloucester") on or about November 27, 1995 challenged the jurisdiction of the Office of Administrative Law to entertain DEC's motion, which challenge, in my opinion, was proper in that pursuant to the foregoing regulation, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6, an application for emergency relief must be made directly to the agency head - the Commissioner of Education - rather than to the Office of Administrative Law. Presumably recognizing the technical flaw in its motion, DEC submitted a supervening petition with the Commissioner of Education on November 27, 1992, which cured the jurisdictional defect and the matter was transmitted as noted. In addition, the subsequent petition also properly named as a respondent to the motion for interim relief not just Southern Gloucester (the only named respondent in the original petition) but also USA Electrical Contractors, Inc. (USA). USA did not submit a response to the motion for interim relief until moments before oral argument was conducted on December 4, 1995. Counsel for USA served both petitioner and co-respondent with the motion in advance of oral argument and presumably their arguments addressed the issues raised by Mr. Zabel. Oral argument was conducted at the Office of Administrative Law, Mercerville, New Jersey at 1:30 p.m. on December 4, 1995 at which time the record closed.

On December 6, 1995, I issued an order denying DEC's request for emergent relief which order is incorporated herein in its entirety. While I determined, pursuant to the dictates of Crowe v. De Gioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-33 (1982) that the movant, DEC, was able to establish 2 of the 3 prongs necessary in order to grant such motion - the reasonable likelihood that it would prevail on the merits of a full plenary disposition of these proceedings, and that the remedy sought would be limited in scope and as temporary as possible so as to allow the parties opposing the motion not to suffer undue harm - I also concluded that DEC was unable to establish that it would suffer immediate and irreparable harm.

In substance the application for emergent relief sought by DEC was to restrain and/or enjoin respondent, Southern Gloucester County Regional High School District (Southern Gloucester) from effectuating the award of an electrical contract to respondent, USA Electrical Contractors, Inc. (USA) to perform a portion of the phase IV additions and alterations to Southern Gloucester Delsea Regional High School. DEC had alleged that USA, which submitted the lowest bid, was not Division of Buildings/Construction (DBC) qualified at the time the bids were opened and therefore was unfit as a matter of law to be awarded the contract. Because petitioner was DBC qualified and its contract bid was deemed the second lowest bid, DEC requested that the contract be awarded to it, as well as costs and reasonable counsel fees. DEC asserted that failure to grant the petition would cause immediate and reparable harm.

In the order denying emergent relief, it was held that USA did indeed fail to meet the statutory requirements for qualifications on November 2, 1995, the date the bids were opened. Specifically, USA lacked the required DBC qualification. It was therefore ordered that the contract awarded to USA was annulity. It was then provided in the order denying emergent relief:

> Given the foregoing conclusion however, does not result in a determination that DEC is entitled to the emergent relief requested. DEC has not and is unable to demonstrate that as a result of the nullity of the contract entered into between USA and Southern Gloucester, it has or will suffer immediate and irreparable harm. DEC does not have an entitlement to step into the shoes of USA and become the contracting party with Southern Gloucester on the contract.
> [DEC Electric, Inc. v. Southern Gloucester County Reg. High Schl. Dist. Bd. of Educ. and USA Electrical Contractors, Inc., OAL DKT. EDU 10833-95, Order Denying Emergent Relief, (Dec. 6, 1995).]

Case law supports the conclusion that DEC was not automatically entitled to the contract particularly where the disparity between bids is significant, and DEC's bid exceeded USA's by more than $200,000[1]. Citing George Harms v. Boro. of Lincoln Park, 161 N.J.Super. 367 (Law Div. 1978)[2], my order also concluded that case law strongly suggested that Southern Gloucester had the option of either awarding the contract to DEC or reopening the bidding process. In view of these options it was determined that DEC had not suffered immediate and irreparable harm.

> If Southern Gloucester has decided to reopen the bidding process if it lost its argument in respect to the validity of the contract entered into between it and USA, as it implied it would at oral argument, petitioner has suffered no irreparable harm. Petitioner may be in an even better position than it was prior to the commencement of this litigation: DEC now has the opportunity to study the other submitted bids. Such knowledge could aid the petitioner if it decides to redraft its own bid. Therefore, in my view DEC has been unable to demonstrate under these circumstances irreparable or immediate injury.
>
> Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that DEC has failed to establish that as a result of the contract entered into between USA and Southern Gloucester being a nullity, it has suffered immediate and irreparable harm.
>

The Commissioner of Education, by decision dated December 26, 1995, adopted the order denying Petitioner's application for emergent relief "for the reasons expressed by the ALJ and this matter shall duly proceed for a hearing on the merits." DEC Electric, Inc. v. Southern Gloucester County Reg. High Schl. Dist. Bd. of Educ. and USA Electrical Contractors, Inc., OAL DKT. on the contract continued, which prompting DEC to attempt to have the Commissioner's decision enforced in Superior Court.

Two additional Commissioner's decisions have been rendered in this matter. The latter decision, dated March 26, 1996, explains the remaining procedural history to date and the Commissioner's position on the rebid of the contract, as follows:

> [The superior court judge was unwilling] to infer from the Commissioner's decision an explicit intent to declare the contract null and void notwithstanding his denial of emergent relief. Hence petitioner's motion for clarification, and the Commissioner's decision on motion dated February 8, 1996.
>
> In that decision, the Commissioner determined to reconsider his earlier determination because the ALJ's recommendation to deny emergent relief, which had been affirmed by the Commissioner, was clearly predicated on his belief that the Board would rebid the contract if emergent relief were denied. Indeed, having found the USA/Board contract a nullity, the ALJ expressly denied emergent relief because petitioner, which could not facially demonstrate an absolute entitlement to the contract at issue, was unable to show that it would be irreparably harmed by a rebid. However, the record on motion made it plain that, contrary to the Board's representations to the ALJ that it would rebid the project if emergent relief were denied, the Board did not rebid the project upon such denial but, instead, proceeded to pursue its contract with USA and allow it to begin electrical work at Delsea High School. Thus, the basis for both the ALJ's recommendation and the Commissioner's decision to affirm it had been so substantially altered that the Commissioner reconsidered petitioner's claim of irreparable harm, and found that petitioner had now succeeded in such a showing, thereby warranting emergent relief in the form of an express prohibition of further work on the disputed contract.
>
> As a consequence of the Commissioner's February 8, 1996 decision, the Board rebid the disputed contract and again determined to award it to respondent USA ..., rather than petitioner. Petitioner then applied for a Temporary Restraining Order in Superior Court, contending that the Commissioner's February 8 decision had prohibited a rebid. This request was denied. Petitioner then, through the present application, sought a "clarification" of the February 8 decision with respect to the Board's right to rebid, and a stay of any awarding and/or implementation of the contract resulting from the Board's proposed rebid. Responses to petitioner's motion were filed by both respondents.
> Upon review of the record of this matter and the papers filed with the present application, it is clear that the sole basis for petitioner's motion attacking the validity of any rebid contract is the erroneous belief that the Commissioner's > decision of February 8, 1996 acted to prohibit the Board from rebidding the originally disputed contract. Given the history of this matter, such an interpretation would make little sense. To the contrary, the entire basis for the Commissioner's reconsideration of his earlier denial of emergent relief was the fact that the Board had continued with work on the contract rather than rebidding, as it was represented to the ALJ that the Board would, thus undercutting the underlying basis for both the ALJ's initial decision denying emergent relief and the Commissioner's subsequent affirmance thereof. Rather, the Commissioner's decision of February 8, as correctly construed by respondents, acted to give the Board a choice between a stay of work altogether or rebidding, the latter possibility clearly contemplated, permitted and even expected by both the ALJ and the Commissioner. That the Board chose the option of rebidding was a matter entirely within its own lawful discretion.

>
> Accordingly, there being no basis stated in the moving papers upon which to warrant stay of any rebid contract or resulting work, petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief is DENIED and the underlying matter shall continue to proceed on its merits at the Office of Administrative Law as directed in the Commissioner's prior decision.
> [DEC Elec., Inc. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Southern Gloucester County Reg. High Schl. Dist. and USA Electrical Construction Contractors, Inc., Decision denying Motion for Emergent Relief, Commissioner of Education (Mar. 26, 1996).]

Interspersed between the various decisions issued by the Commissioner and the issuance of this ruling were the submission of a variety of documents - both to the administrative law judge as well as to the Commissioner - some of which were at my request and other were unsolicited. The final submissions were received by my office on May 7, 1996, the date on which the record in respect to respondents' motion to dismiss closed.

II

The issues raised by DEC are undoubtedly moot. If Southern Gloucester had chosen the option of staying the work, a hearing would be necessary to determine, among other things, who would complete the project. This option was not chosen, however, and the contract was rebid. Only USA and DEC submitted new bids. USA was again the lowest bidder and was awarded the contract. There is no issue as to USA's qualifications at the time of the rebid and it does not appear that DEC challenges the award of the rebid contract on such basis. Petitioner's position continues, rather, to focus on the initial contract award.

In its letter brief in opposition to Respondents' respective motions to dismiss, Petitioner asserts that it "cannot lose its opportunity to argue that it was entitled to the award of the initial contract in this matter ... While the BOE has been allowed to rebid, it cannot be maintained that this was a ruling on DEC's entitlement to the contract on the merits, and the Commissioner's decisions expressly recognizes this." Petitioner's Letter Brief in Opposition to the Motions to Dismiss, dated April 9, 1996. Petitioner places great emphasis upon the Commissioner's statement at the conclusion of each decision that the "matter shall duly proceed for a hearing on the merits." The merits of the case, however, originally transmitted, which questioned the right or wrong of the first contract award, no longer exist because the contract was nullified and a new contract was entered into through a rebid of the project.

It is a well established doctrine of the courts "that questions that have become moot or academic prior to judicial scrutiny generally have been held to be an improper subject for judicial review," Anderson v. Sills, 143 N.J.Super. 432, 437 (Ch. Div. 1976), the reasons being

> First, for ... judicial economy and restraint, courts will not decide cases in which the issue is hypothetical, a judgment cannot grant effective relief, or the parties do not have concrete adversity of interest. Second, it is a premise of the Anglo-American judicial system that a contest engendered by genuinely conflicting self-interests of the parties is best suited to developing all relevant material before the court. Therefore, where there is a change in circumstances so that a doubt is created concerning the immediacy of the controversy, courts will ordinarily dismiss cases as moot, regardless of the stage to which the litigation has progressed.

This doctrine is also adhered to by the Commissioner of Education who will not decide moot issues. Pinkham v. Bd. of Educ. of the Boro. of South River, 1974 S.L.D. 1103, 1110, modified and affirmed, 1975 S.L.D. 1119. The Commissioner has embraced > the policy of the courts to refrain from advisory opinion, from deciding moot cases, or generally functioning in the abstract, and to decide only concrete contested issues conclusively affecting adversary parties in interest.

> [Pinkham, supra, 1974 S.L.D. at 1110-1111 (quoting Moss Estate, Inc. v. Metal & Thermit Corp., 73 N.J.Super. 56, 67 (Ch. Div. 1962)).]

Since the first contract between the Respondents in this matter has been deemed null and void, it is no longer a "concrete contested" issue which affects the parties in this matter. The issue of Petitioner's entitlement to that contract is, therefore, moot. Thus, Petitioner's request to "be allowed an opportunity to be heard, for the first time, on the issue of its entitlement to the contract" should be dismissed.

Further support for the conclusion that this matter should be dismissed as moot may be found in the fact that DEC has requested relief in the form of damages and counsel fees which are unavailable. Damages are specifically prohibited by the Public Schools Contracts Law which provides:

> No action for damages shall lie against the State board, any State official, or any board of education or any of its officers because of any action taken by virtue of the provisions of this chapter.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-46.]

The public policy reasons for prohibiting the recovery of damages in a challenge to an award of a public contract were discussed in M.A. Stephen Const. Co. v. Boro. of Rumson, 125 N.J.Super. 67 (App. Div. 1973), in which the court said:

> [A] bidder claiming to be entitled to the award of a contract for public work has long been held to have sufficient standing to challenge the rejection of his bid or the letting of the contract to another bidder, and to compel the award of the contract to him. But such standing was granted simply and solely in order that the public interest might be served by compelling the lax > or erring public official to properly perform his public trust. It was not thereby intended to create or establish in the bidder entitled to the award of the contract a right which, if violated, would render the public agency liable in damages to the bidder.

>
>
> Nor should it be overlooked that, to allow the lowest responsible bidder to recover damages not only would violate and run counter to sound and long established principles of law, but also would invert the very policy and reasons which gave rise to the obligation of the public official to accept the bid proposal which best serves the pubic interest. Thus, where a public authority improperly rejects the lowest bid and awards the contract to the next lowest bidder, who performs the contract work before the ultimate resolution of the legal propriety of the rejection, to permit the low bidder to recover damages would simply twice penalize the public.

See also, Bokey, Inc. v. Bd. of Educ. of Frenchtown Boro., 93 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 118 (where the Hon. Joseph Fidler determined that the petitioner was not entitled to recover damages due to lost profits because the Public School Contract Law and case law prohibit any action for damages).

It is also well settled that the Commissioner's "jurisdiction to hear and determine, without cost to the parties, all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws," N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, does not include the authority to award counsel fees. Balsley v. North Hunterdon Reg. High Sch., 225 N.J.Super. 221, 225 (App. Div. 1988). The Balsley court found that "[s]ince 1948, New Jersey has consistently adhered to the general principle that 'legal expenses, whether for the compensation of attorneys or otherwise, are not recoverable absent express authorization by statute, court rule, or contract'." Id. at 226 (citing State, Dept. of Environmental Protection v. Ventron Corp., 94 N.J. 473, 504 (1983)). An award of attorney fees is, therefore, unavailable in education matters.

Finally, DEC argues that there was no "cogent and compelling" reason to rebid the contract. Not only is this argument contrary to each of the Commissioner's three decisions in this matter, it is improperly asserted at this juncture of the case. As indicated in his March 26, 1996 decision, supra, the option of rebidding was a matter entirely within Southern Gloucester's own lawful discretion. If Petitioner disagreed with that part of the Commissioner's decisions, which was binding, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.14(b), it should have appealed to the State Board of Education as provided by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.14(b) and 6:2-1.1. Petitioner had three opportunities to appeal but failed to do so. Consequently, the issue is again rendered moot since no effective relief can be granted.

The challenged first contract to which Petitioner claimed entitlement was declared null and void at every stage in this matter. As such, that contract is no longer a concrete contested issue for which any form of relief can be granted. Moreover, the relief requested by Petitioner, damages and attorney fees, is not available. Actions for damages are prohibited by the Public School Contract Law and the Commissioner lacks the jurisdiction to award attorney fees. Hence, the matter herein is moot and the motions to dismiss should be granted.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the respondents have established by a preponderance of the relevant, credible evidence that DEC's appeal be and is hereby moot. Accordingly, the motion by respondents to dismiss the matter be and is hereby GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that this matter is now mooted and that no damages are available, nor warranted, in the instant matter.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parents claimed entitlement to safe busing for their children pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 and N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3.

Having considered testimony of witnesses and exhibits submitted, ALJ concluded that petitioners established that the decision not to extend minibus service to their homes was arbitrary and capricious. ALJ ordered Board to consider alternative possibilities for service for petitioners and to choose one within 60 days of final agency action.

Commissioner set aside initial decision of the ALJ. Citing Schrenk, the Commissioner found that travel to and from the bus stop was hazardous, but the provision for safe conditions of travel to and from bus stops is a municipal function. Commissioner found that petitioners failed to establish by a preponderance of credible evidence that the Board's decision lacked a rational basis or that the Board was treating petitioners' children differently from other children similarly situated. There was no allegation that the bus stop itself was unsafe. Thus, the Commissioner could not intervene and the initial decision must be reversed and the petition dismissed.

Record Closed: March 26, 1996 Decided: May 7, 1996

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of petitioners' application to compel the Holland Township Board of Education (Board) and its superintendent, Robert Soprano, to change their children's bus stop. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. A hearing was conducted on March 7 and 15, 1996, and the record closed on March 26, 1996, with receipt of the last post-hearing memorandum.

The question presented is whether the Board's refusal to accommodate petitioners' request was arbitrary and capricious.

Most of the facts are undisputed. Mr. and Mrs. Shrewsbury have two children, ages ten and nine, who attend school in Holland Township, and John Gattuso and Carla Jardim have children who will attend next year. They are neighbors on Shire Road. Holland Township is in a rural area that is characterized by a hilly topography; the Board does not permit school buses to travel on some Township roads, and that includes the portion of Shire Road along which petitioners reside. In 1991 the Board asked engineering consultant John F. Mullen, P.E., to review proposed routes on Bellis, Shire and Adamic Hill roads. He found that each contained steep slopes and sharp curves that were inappropriate for school-bus travel (R-11). Presently, a minibus stops some three-tenths of a mile south of petitioners' homes at the top of a hill in front of the Case driveway. There, it turns around and proceeds on its route. The minibus is designed for twelve students and two special education students.

Petitioners prepared a video of the section of Shire Road at issue (P-2). Although objections were sustained to comments from the camera operator, who was not a witness, the accuracy of the film itself was not contested. Shire Road has a 25 mph speed limit, but warning signs suggest a speed of 10 mph on the hill. From the hill crest, the road drops in grade, bends left, straightens, and then bends right and straightens, before reaching the Shrewsbury driveway. The sight distances from the driveway are approximately 200 feet in either direction (P-1). The road then banks right and straightens again before reaching the Gattuso/Jardim driveway. The sight distances from this area are approximately 400 feet in each direction. Further north there is a proposed turnaround on the side of the road, below which there are S curves. There is no suggestion that the minibus travel through these; there are no children to pick up beyond the Gattuso/Jardim house. Shire Road is 17 to 18 feet wide at its narrow points and there are grades of up to 18 percent. There are neither sidewalks nor shoulders on Shire Road, and embankments and a retaining wall approaching the hill crest make it necessary to walk in the roadway. There are some yards that the children could walk across to their bus stop, but the owners have not been willing to permit such transit. Woods behind the houses that might serve as a path are leased by a hunting club.

The video also included other roads on which the Board's buses travel, for comparison purposes. The film shows Mr. Shrewsbury making a K turn on Bellis Road with a minibus. He testified that respondents make this turn with a full-size bus. During much of the turn the bus cannot see, or be seen by, oncoming traffic. The minibus also traveled down what is known as the "narrows" along River Road. This is a two-way, one-lane road that is steep and narrow. Mr. Shrewsbury again indicated that respondents permit this trip with a full-size bus. Petitioners also followed a full-size district school bus down Alfalfa Hill Road, another steep and winding Township road.

The Shrewsburys have been pressing for a change since 1988 when their oldest child was to begin kindergarten. In 1993 they offered to construct a turnaround on their property at their expense to accommodate a minibus. The estimated cost of this work was $3,500. In response the Board again retained Mr. Mullen as a consultant. His report of August 5, 1993, found that with clearing and paving, installation of proper signs and a few other minor changes, "a minibus could operate at this site" (P-1). He noted that this was a preliminary assessment and that further study might suggest additional requirements. This solution was under active consideration and was to come before the Board at its September 1993 meeting (P-7). Before that time, Mr. Soprano telephoned the Shrewsburys to make clear that the district's minibus was purchased primarily to transport special education students as required by law, and that if a time came when such children needed routes that did not make it convenient to travel Shire Road, the service would have to be discontinued. Upon hearing this the Shrewsburys withdrew their proposal. They remain willing to undertake the turnaround project if they are given assurances that the minibus will stop there.

Elwood B. Croll was the postmaster in Milford for twenty-three years and he delivered mail to Holland Township. Mr. Croll testified that he never had a problem on Shire Road. He had to be careful, though, in the area from the top of the hill down to the Shrewsbury home because the roadway is barely wide enough for two vehicles to pass. He testified that this part of Shire Road presents concerns similar to those he had when driving on Crab Apple Hill and Alfalfa Hill roads.

Sandra LePoidevin has been driving a sanitation truck up and down Shire Road weekly for the last ten years, and although the road is narrow, she has never had any difficulty.

Geoffrey Shrewsbury is an airline pilot and he and his wife also operate a small bus company that transports special education students. He usually carries one or two children at a time in an automobile, but he has owned a twelve-seat minibus that was parked on his property. Mr. Shrewsbury testified that he has never had a problem driving a minibus on Shire Road. He has also driven as a substitute driver for respondents on Alfalfa Hill and Crab Apple Hill roads, and these routes present more difficult line-of-sight problems and have steeper grades than Shire Road. Mr. Shrewsbury testified that he does not allow his children to walk to the bus stop. When he is available he drives them to school; otherwise Mrs. Shrewsbury, a district bus driver, takes them along on her route.

Cecilia VanSyckle Shrewsbury testified that she begins her bus route at approximately 7:45 a.m. Her children often come with her, but the bus is full and frequently they have no seats. Their scheduled pickup time at the Case driveway is 8:35 a.m., and it would be a ten-minute trip to school. Mrs. Shrewsbury drives on Crab Apple Hill and Alfalfa Hill roads, and she believed these were roughly equivalent to Shire Road. She has no problems driving a minibus on Shire Road.

Gary W. Dean is a civil engineer and he was admitted as an expert in traffic safety. Mr. Dean testified that the absence of sidewalks or shoulders and the presence of a retaining wall and mounded areas between petitioners' homes and the existing bus stop require the children to walk in the roadway, which is dangerous. This is particularly the case near the crest of the hill, where pedestrians cannot be seen by oncoming traffic.

Mr. Dean felt that there were a few safe and feasible alternative bus stops. A dedicated turnaround in the Shrewsbury driveway would avoid any maneuvering in the roadway, and with some clearing would create adequate sight distances in either direction. A stop between the Shrewsbury and Gattuso/Jardim homes would provide sight distances of 400 feet in either direction, which is more than sufficient stopping distance for oncoming vehicles. A safe turnaround could be provided further north on Shire Road, off to the side of the road before the S curves. At that point, sight distances looking south would be about 350 to 400 feet, and looking north would be about 150 to 200 feet.

Mr. Dean was on Crab Apple Hill and Alfalfa Hill roads where respondents' buses do stop. Although he made no calculations there, his impressions were that these roadways presented sight-distance and grade problems comparable to or worse than those on Shire Road.

Arthur Cyphers has been the police chief in Holland Township since 1977. He acknowledged that he is not a traffic safety expert, but over time many plans have been floated to provide bus service for the Shrewsbury children, and he has been consulted by both sides. In 1993 he was asked about the possibility of a minibus turnaround on the Shrewsbury property. He testified that he did not think a minibus could traverse the hill safely to get to and from the turnaround. In a letter of June 21, 1993, he wrote to respondents as follows:

> It seems that now Mr. Shrewsbury has offered to provide an adequate turnaround off Shire Road on his property so that the minibus can pull into his driveway, turn around and then exit his driveway without the driver needing to back up anywhere on Shire Road. . . .
>
> Certainly, the use of a minibus changes the picture somewhat compared to September 1990 when I was asked my opinion of running (full size) school buses on Shire Road. We simulated a bus stop using Mr. Shrewsbury property on Tuesday morning and found that with a little work, a good line of sight in both directions > could be obtained. This would probably allow a minibus to pull in and out of this location, under ideal situations, in a safe manner.

>
> There is still a serious consideration with this location in that the steep downhill grade at the driveway location, loose gravel, and weather conditions will all affect stopping distances for any traffic traveling north.
>
> I am somewhat concerned that an argument supporting the use of this location is that we have others more dangerous as apparently researched by Mr. Shrewsbury. This line of thinking could be dangerous and risky, as I would rather see the approach be, let's make these other stops safer or eliminate them entirely.
>
> If you are finding this somewhat inconclusive, you are indeed correct, for I believe you have difficult considerations and responsibilities to your transportation needs. It certainly would be easier to set a standard on safety if the responsibility of analyzing school bus stops was given to one person or group of persons who would scrutinize each stop based on a given formula or standard.
>

To the extent that his correspondence might lead to a conclusion that he thought the minibus stop on the Shrewsbury property acceptable, Chief Cyphers explained that the turnaround was a better solution than others suggested, but he was still not ready to endorse it.

Chief Cyphers wrote in a letter dated September 21, 1990 (R-3) that between 1980 and 1990, there were two one-car accidents and four two-car accidents on Shire Road. Since 1990 there has been one additional accident. Chief Cyphers acknowledged during cross-examination that some of these incidents did not involve injuries, and that some may have occurred on portions of Shire Road not involved in the instant appeal.

Kenneth M. Waisempacher has been head bus driver and mechanic in this district for ten years. The stop at the Case residence is as close to the Shrewsbury property as he can safely travel. Over the years he has done a few trial runs down the hill to various driveways, but the sight distances were always a problem. Shire Road is particularly bad in snow. He testified that there is excellent visibility on Crab Apple Hill Road. Adamic Hill Road is similar to Shire Road, and he does not travel down Adamic Hill Road.

Gerald Philkill serves as the municipal engineer in Holland Township. Although he has conducted a few traffic studies, this is not his area of specialization and he was admitted as an expert professional engineer. Mr. Philkill testified that the grades on Shire Road from the crest of the hill to the Shrewsbury property are approximately 15 to 16 percent, which means that for every 100 feet there is a 15- to 16-foot drop. This is fairly steep and a mechanical failure on the hill would be disastrous. A vehicle traveling at 25 mph on a 15 percent grade would scarcely have enough time to stop for a minibus standing at the Shrewsbury driveway. A turnaround in the driveway would be much safer. Adamic Hill and Crab Apple Hill roads are also hazardous.

Robert Soprano has been superintendent of schools in this district for twelve years. Safety is the primary concern in setting routes and he has been guided by Chief Cyphers, Mr. Waisempacher and Mr. Philkill. There are thirteen other students who live on S curves in the Township who are not presently served, and if the Board grants the Shrewsburys' door-to-door service, the families of these students will make like demands. This is the substance of the record.

Boards of Education have broad policymaking discretion and their decisions may not be disturbed unless arbitrary and capricious. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960); Peary v. Barnegat Bd. of Educ., 93 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 798. It is undisputed that it is dangerous for children to walk along Shire Road, particularly in the area approaching the crest of the hill. The Board argues, however, that it has a Hobson's choice – either it must leave the Shire Road families north of the hill crest to their own devices, or place the children already on the bus in danger. That scenario would make for a difficult decision, but the facts are more subtle. Broken down, the risks that concern the Board are steep grades, winding curves limiting sight distances, narrow road widths that allow vehicles to wander into opposing traffic lanes, and turning within the roadway. The video in evidence makes fairly clear that Shire Road is not ideal for cruising; that is why it has a posted speed limit of 25 mph and a recommended speed of 10 mph on the hill (R-3). We know, however, that this is a hilly, rural community and in that context it does not appear that Shire Road is especially perilous. A minibus turnaround on the Shrewsbury property with clearing of vegetation would eliminate the sight distance and turnaround problem. The Board's first engineering consultant, Mr. Mullen, approved this choice. Even Mr. Philkill could find little fault with this alternative. If a bus stop were established between the Shrewsbury and Gattuso/Jardim homes, sight distances would increase to 400 feet in either direction, and a safe turnaround is available at the side of the road before the S curves begin. That leaves some worry about the grade and curves near the top of the hill.

The law has a strong aversion to interference with local action, and had the record merely investigated Shire Road in isolation, I might still be required to defer to the Board's safety concerns. The video, however, is critical here. The Board authorizes other trips and maneuvers that are patently more risky then a ride down Shire Road. The K turn on Bellis Road is scary. For most of that operation the driver cannot see oncoming traffic or be seen. The Board allows a full-size bus to travel "the narrows" along River Road, which appears to be a harrowing ride. Alfalfa Hill Road is at least as steep, narrow and winding as Shire Road, and is probably worse. So long as the Board uses these routes, it cannot convincingly argue that it will not travel Shire Road out of an abundance of caution.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that petitioners have established that the decision not to extend minibus service to their homes is arbitrary and capricious. The record provides a few alternatives. The Shrewsburys have offered a minibus turnaround on their property. This is acceptable, but to make it work the Board must provide reasonable assurances that service will continue for the duration of the Shrewsbury children's tenure in the district. A stop between the Shrewsbury and Gatusso/Jardim driveways with a K turn to the north is also feasible. The Board has had ample time to consider these possibilities and it must choose one within 60 days of final agency action. There was some discussion of the dangers of Shire Road during foul weather. Under such circumstances the Board is free to apply any general policy it may have concerning roadway safety, as it would for other bus routes. So ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

GEOFFREY AND CECILIA SHREWSBURY, JOHN GATTUSO AND CARLA JARDIM,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HOLLAND, HUNTERDON COUNTY, AND ROBERT J. SOPRANO, SUPERINTENDENT,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and petitioners' reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board initially argues that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) failed to properly apply the law to the facts in the instant matter. (Board's Exceptions at p. 1) Underscoring that the responsibility for ensuring a safe roadway is a municipal, rather than an educational, concern, the Board asserts that there is no allegation by petitioners that the bus stop itself is unsafe. (Id.)

In reply, petitioners contend that the ALJ properly applied the facts to the law in this matter, in that the ALJ recognized that a board, while generally accorded the discretion to establish bus routes and bus stops, cannot adopt a policy which is discriminatory, arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. (Petitioner's Reply at pp. 1, 2) Petitioners assert that, contrary to the Board's written policy, the evidence adduced at trial clearly established that the stop provided by the Board was not the closest point to petitioners' homes where the "hazardous condition no longer exists." (Id. at pp. 2, 3) Petitioners continue,

> Indeed, Judge Metzger  found that a number of reasonable and safe alternatives were available, including a stop and turnaround at the Shrewsbury driveway and a stop between the Shrewsbury and Gatusso/Jardim driveways with a K turn on Shire Road to the north.  These alternatives would not entail bus travel on Shire Road's "S" curves and would save the Petitioners' children from the treacherous walk to their present bus stop. (Id. at p. 3)

Petitioners further claim that the Board's refusal to address this matter "is motivated by the personal dislike for the Shrewsburys and their outspoken commitment to this safety issue." (Id., note 1)

The Board next argues that although the ALJ did not find that it discriminated against petitioners by treating them disparately from other parents in the District, the ALJ nevertheless reasoned that inasmuch as there are other "risky" bus routes in the Township, the Board has acted arbitrarily and capriciously by refusing to extend bus service to petitioners' door. (Board's Exceptions at p. 2) Citing Walters v. Mendham Township Board of Education, Morris County, 1977 S.L.D. 854, the Board contends that the ALJ's conclusion violates precedent. In Walters, petitioners alleged that the route to the student's bus stop was hazardous and " that the Board's failure to accede to their demands to pick up the discharge their children at their respective driveways is prima facie arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable." (Walters, supra, a 855) However, the Board argues Walters established that "the board may evaluate condition in various areas in the school district and it was not the function of the Commissioner to substitute his judgment for that of the board of education." (Board's Exceptions at p. 2)

Petitioners counter that the Board misstates and misconstrues the initial decision. The ALJ's reasoning was not, asserts petitioners, predicated upon a finding that since there are other "risky" bus routes in the Township, then the Board's decision not to extend the bus route to the door of petitioners is arbitrary and capricious. (Petitioner's Reply at p. 4) Rather, petitioners argue that the ALJ was not persuaded that the Board's "purported safety concerns formed a legitimate basis for denying Petitioners' request for a new bus stop." (Id.) Moreover, citing language from the initial decision found at page 8, petitioners contend that the ALJ did find that the Board treated them in a disparate manner from other parents in the District. (Id.) Petitioners reason that "the Board's inconsistent and disparate application of its own policy is evident and merely exposes the arbitrariness and capriciousness of its decision ." (Id. at p. 5)

The Board further warrants that the initial decision would require it to offer minibus services to the door of petitioners and to guarantee such bus service in good weather. (Board's Exceptions at p. 3) Here, the Board asserts,

> It is not in dispute that a full sized school bus cannot traverse this roadway where Petitioners' homes are located. The Superintendent testified, also without dispute, that the minibus currently stopping .3 mile from Petitioners' residences was purchased for physically handicapped children, although it does serve other students if convenient and appropriate. The ALJ has improperly invaded the domain of the Board of Education in determining that the district must provide minibus service to these homes. (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 3)

In reply, petitioners maintain that the ALJ did not improperly invade the domain of the Board by requiring that it establish a bus stop at one of the two proposed alternative sites.

(Petitioner's Reply at p. 6) The Board already utilizes a minibus, petitioners assert, to service the existing route. Additionally, petitioners have offered the use of their vehicle in the event it is needed. (Id.)

Finally, the Board argues that it has fully complied with its statutory mandate to provide pupil transportation in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1. It maintains that there is no allegation that the disputed stop is unsafe. (Board's Exceptions at p. 3) Therefore, the Board concludes that its decision not to extend bus service to the doors of petitioners is based upon legitimate safety concerns and is made within its considerable sound discretion. Urging the Commissioner to reverse the initial decision of the ALJ, the Board affirms, "The safety of other students on the minibus should not be jeopardized because the ALJ feels on the basis of a homemade videotape that there are other unsafe bus stops in the district, not the subject of this litigation, which may equal or exceed Petitioners' unsafe roadway conditions." (Id. at pp. 3, 4)

Petitioners maintain that the Board has not complied with its obligation to provide transportation to their children as required by law. (Petitioner's Reply at p. 7) Thus, petitioners reason, the ALJ's conclusion is "amply supported in the record and did not rest merely on [their] so-called 'homemade videotape,' but was also firmly grounded upon the substantial weight of factual and expert testimony and the law." (Id.) Accordingly, petitioners urge the Commissioner to affirm the initial decision of the ALJ.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner determines to reverse the initial decision of the ALJ, for the reasons set forth below. Initially, the Commissioner notes it is axiomatic that he cannot interfere with a board's decision where that decision is not prove unreasonable. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 296, 297. T

Commissioner further recognizes that local boards maintain "wide discretion to promulgate pupil transportation policies, including school bus routes and stops, [although] they may not discriminate or act in a manner that is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable." Peary, supra, at 798. The question herein is whether the Board's refusal to accommodate petitioners' request to change their children's bus stop constitutes an abuse of discretion. (Initial Decision at p. 2)

The Commissioner cannot find that the District's reliance upon the guidance of Chief Cyphers, Mr. Waisempacher and Mr. Philkill (id. at p. 7) as a basis for its decision is unreasonable. As to the evidence adduced at trial of other roads in the township on which the Board's buses travel, the Commissioner determines that such evidence consists essentially of competing impressions of comparably hazardous road conditions[1] and, consequently, is insufficient to overcome the Board's presumption of reasonableness, or to invalidate the Board's safety concerns regarding travel on Shire Road. Moreover, in view of the Board's undisputed testimony that there are thirteen students who, like petitioners, are living on "S" curves in the Township and are not presently served (id.), the Commissioner cannot find that the Board's policy discriminates against petitioners.

While it is undisputed that travel to and from the assigned bus stop is hazardous, as correctly noted by the Board, the provision for safe conditions of travel to and from bus stops is a municipal function. Howard Schrenk et al. v. Board of Education of the Village of Ridgewood, Bergen County, 1960-61 S.L.D. 185, 187. Further, as the Board indicates, there is no allegation that the bus stop itself is unsafe.

[1] Indeed, petitioners' civil engineer indicates that he made no calculations in this respect, but his impressions were that the Crab Apple Hill and Alfalfa Hill Roads presented sight-distance and grade problems comparable to or worse than those on Shire Road. (Initial Decision at p. 5)

Accordingly, in that petitioners have failed to establish by a preponderance of credible evidence that the Board's decision lacks a rational basis or that the Board is treating petitioners' children differently from other children similarly situated, the Commissioner cannot intervene, and the initial decision must, therefore, be reversed. The within petition is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

PETITIONERS-APPELLANTS,

V.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HOLLAND, HUNTERDON COUNTY AND ROBERT J. SOPRANO, SUPERINTENDENT, RESPONDENTS-RESPONDENTS.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, July 21, 1996

For the Petitioners-Appellants, Bivona, Cohen, Kunzman, Coley, Yospin, Bernstein & DiFrancesco (Judith A. Babinski, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondents-Respondents, McDonald, Rogers & Rizzolo (Michael J. Rogers, Esq., of Counsel)

This case involved a challenge by Geoffrey and Cecilia Shrewsbury, John Gattuso and Carla Jardim (hereinafter "petitioners"), residents of Shire Road in Holland Township, to the refusal by the Board of Education of the Township of Holland (hereinafter "Board") to relocate their children's bus stop closer to their homes.

As summarized by the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ"), Holland Township is a rural area characterized by a hilly topography, and the Board does not permit school buses to travel on some Township roads, including that portion of Shire Road on which petitioners reside. A minibus currently stops approximately three-tenths of a mile south of petitioners' homes near the crest of a hill, where it turns around and continues on its route. From the hill crest, Shire Road drops in grade and bends twice before reaching the Shrewsbury driveway. There are no sidewalks or shoulders on Shire Road between the Shrewsbury home and the crest of the hill, and, due to embankments and a retaining wall, it is necessary to walk in the roadway to get to and from the existing bus stop.

In 1993, the Shrewsburys offered to construct a turnaround on their property at their own expense to accommodate a minibus. They, however, withdrew their proposal after being informed by the district superintendent that any bus service to their home would have to be discontinued if route schedules did not make it convenient to travel on Shire Road. As indicated by the ALJ, the Shrewsburys remain willing to undertake the turnaround project if they have assurances that the minibus will continue to stop in front of their home during the duration of their children's attendance in the district's schools.

On May 7, 1996, the ALJ concluded that petitioners had established that the Board's refusal to extend minibus service to petitioners' homes was arbitrary and capricious. Taking into consideration the fact that Holland Township is situated on hilly terrain, the ALJ observed that the portion of Shire Road between the crest of the hill and petitioners' homes did not appear to be especially perilous for a minibus. Moreover, he found that a turnaround on the Shrewsbury property would eliminate any sight distance and turnaround problems. The ALJ further observed that the Board had authorized other bus routes and maneuvers that were patently more risky than a ride down Shire Road. Accordingly, he recommended that the Commissioner direct the Board to choose one of the alternative possibilities for extending minibus service to petitioners' homes within 60 days of final agency action.

On June 21, 1996, the Commissioner rejected the ALJ's recommendation. The Commissioner found that there was no allegation that the bus stop itself was unsafe and stressed that the provision of safe conditions for children traveling to and from bus stops was a municipal function. Accordingly, he dismissed the petition, concluding that petitioners had failed to establish by a preponderance of credible evidence that the Board's action lacked a rational basis or that it was treating petitioners' children in a manner different than other children similarly situated.

Petitioners Geoffrey and Cecilia Shrewsbury filed the instant appeal to the State Board.[1]

After a careful review of the record, including the video tape submitted into evidence by petitioners,[2] we reverse the decision of the Commissioner. We agree with the ALJ that petitioners have demonstrated that the Board's action in refusing to extend its minibus service to their home was arbitrary and capricious under the circumstances.

As we stated in Peary v. Board of Education of the Township of Bamegat, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 798:

> Although district boards have wide discretion to promulgate pupil transportation policies, including school bus routes and stops, they may not discriminate or act in a manner that is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Our review of the Board's action herein is not limited to the relative safety of the school bus stop...or the Board's jurisdiction over safety

[1] We note that John Gattuso and Carla Jardim, petitioners in the proceedings below, have not joined in the instant appeal. Consequently, our determination herein pertains only to petitioners Geoffrey and Cecilia Shrewsbury.

[2] Like the ALJ, we have not considered the commentary of the camera operator in determining this matter. See Initial Decision, slip op. at 2. We note further that the parties have not provided this agency with transcripts from the hearings held in the Office of Administrative Law in this matter.

> conditions of sidewalks and roadways within the Township. Rather, the broader issue is whether the Board abused its discretion in denying petitioner's request to reestablish the former bus stop...in this particular case.

See also Board of Educ. v. Kraft, 139 N.J. 597 (1995) (the State Supreme Court recognized the relevance of student safety in determining whether a walkway could be included in calculating remoteness from school); Nichols v. Board of Education of the Township of Wayne, Docket #A-3526-93T5 (App. Div. 1995), cert. denied, 142 N.J. 449 (1995) (where the route marked for measurement of remoteness had existing sidewalks and marked crosswalks, then the measurement must be based on the assumption that the children should use them).

Given the particular circumstances in the record before us, we agree with the ALJ that petitioners have demonstrated that the Board's action in this instance was arbitrary and capricious, particularly in view of the Shrewsburys' offer to construct a minibus turnaround on their property at their expense. As previously noted, our review herein is not limited to the safety of the existing bus stop or the Board's jurisdiction over safety conditions on the Township's roads. Rather, the standard is whether the Board abused its discretion in refusing to extend minibus service to petitioners' home.

As found by the ALJ, a minibus turnaround on the Shrewsburys' property would alleviate the Board's concerns regarding a sight distance and turnaround problem. It would also eliminate the need for a bus to continue down Shire Road or to navigate the sharp "S" curves located beyond petitioners' home. Moreover, while Shire Road between the current bus stop and petitioners' home does bend twice and drop in grade, we agree with the ALJ that it does not appear to be particularly perilous for a minibus.

Indeed, an engineering study conducted for the Board in 1993 concluded that, with certain specifications regarding the turnaround on petitioners' property, a minibus could safely operate to their home. Exhibit P-1, in evidence.

Nor do we find it reasonable for the Board to refuse to extend minibus service to petitioner's home on the basis of the potential hazards of this portion of Shire Road in poor weather conditions. As stressed by the ALJ, the Board is free to apply any general policy it may have concerning roadway safety in bad weather, as it would for other bus routes.

Accordingly, under the circumstances presented herein, we agree with the ALJ that petitioners have demonstrated that the Board's action in refusing to extend its minibus service to their home was arbitrary and capricious.[3] We therefore reverse the decision of the Commissioner and direct the Board to select one of the proposed alternatives for extending such service to the home of petitioners Geoffrey and Cecilia Shrewsbury.

S. David Brandt opposed.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

April 2, 1997

Date of mailing APR 02 1997

[3] Contrary to the contention of the Board in its exceptions to the report of our Legal Committee, our decision herein is not predicated upon a finding that there are other bus routes in the Township that are more dangerous than the road at issue in this case. We note further that our decision is limited to the specific facts in the record before us involving these particular petitioners. Thus, the Board's assertion in its exceptions that "13 [other] students who do not receive bus services in circumstances similar to petitioners will inevitably now insist upon door to door bus service" is immaterial to our determination.

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges against respondent school secretary based on alleged chronic absenteeism. Respondent did not appear at hearing.

Having considered the undisputed facts, the ALJ concluded that the record established that respondent's absenteeism was chronic and excessive and warranted her removal from her tenured position.

Commissioner concurred with the conclusion of the ALJ and directed respondent's termination from her position.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 6583-95
AGENCY DKT. NO. 173-5/95

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF LINDA LATONA, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF PASSAIC, PASSAIC COUNTY

Matthew J. Michaelis, Esq., for petitioner Passaic Board of Education

No appearance by or on behalf of respondent Linda Latona

Record Closed: April 30, 1996 Decided: May 14, 1996

BEFORE: ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about May 19, 1995, the Passaic Board of Education certified charges of chronic and excessive absenteeism against respondent, Linda Latona. On June 1, 1995, respondent filed an answer denying the charges. Thereafter, on June 23, 1995, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on July 10, 1995, and a telephone prehearing conference was scheduled for August 3, 1995. The prehearing conference was adjourned to August 21, 1995, at the request of respondent's counsel at the time, Louis P. Bucceri, Esq. On that date, the issues were isolated and a hearing was scheduled for March 15 and 18, 1996, at the OAL, 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey. Notice of hearing dated November 30, 1995, was sent by the OAL to the parties' counsel.

Subsequent thereto, Mr. Bucceri moved to be relieved as counsel for respondent. After appropriate notice and opportunity to respond, he was relieved as counsel by order of the undersigned dated January 17, 1996. On the scheduled hearing date, March 15, 1996, respondent did not appear. The Certification in Lieu of Affidavit submitted with Mr. Bucceri's motion and served on Ms. Latona indicated that the hearing was scheduled to begin on March 15, 1996. Despite notice of the hearing from the OAL to Mr. Bucceri prior to his being relieved as counsel, and additional notice of the hearing from Mr. Bucceri to respondent, respondent failed to appear. The hearing proceeded in her absence. Respondent did not notify the OAL on that date or any date thereafter as to reasons for her nonappearance. On March 20, 1996, petitioner filed a memorandum of law which was sent to respondent by both regular mail and certified mail, return receipt requested. Respondent has not responded to this filing. The record closed on April 30, 1996.

The facts essential to a determination here are essentially undisputed. They may be summarized as follows:

1. Linda Latona is a secretary employed by petitioner, Passaic Board of Education, Passaic, New Jersey. Pursuant to the applicable contract respondent is entitled to 10 days sick time and 5 days personal time per fiscal year.

2. For the period September 1990 to March 14, 1996, respondent was absent 447 days.

3. For the period September 1990 through December 1990, respondent was absent 5 days.

4. For the period January 1991 through December 1991, respondent was absent 30 days.

5. For the period January 1992 through December 1992, respondent was absent 35 days.

6. For the period January 1993 through December 1993, respondent was absent 106 days.

7. For the period January 1994 through December 1994, respondent was absent 99 days.

9. For the period January 1995 through December 1995, respondent was absent 151 days.

10. For the period January 1996 to March 14, 1996, respondent was absent 21 days.

11. Respondent's absences exceed the contract allowance.

12. Respondent was made aware of the fact that her sick days and days out exceeded the contract allowance.

13. Respondent did not receive payment for her days absent in excess of the contract allowance.

Having considered the undisputed facts, I CONCLUDE that respondent's absenteeism was chronic and excessive and warrants her removal from her tenured position. See In re Tenure Hearing of Crockett, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 49 (wherein respondent had a total of 592½ days absent from 1979 until June 1993, and the same was determined to constitute excessive absenteeism); see also Camden Bd. of Educ. v. Rucker, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 190 (wherein the administrative law judge concluded and the Commissioner of Education concurred that the principle of res ipsa loquitur applied, and respondent's chronic and excessive absenteeism warranted her removal from her tenured position); In re Tenure Hearing of Ingram, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 580.

Order

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent's appeal is dismissed and respondent is terminated from her position as secretary, Board of Education of the City of Passaic, for chronic and excessive absenteeism.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF EGG HARBOR TOWNSHIP, ATLANTIC COUNTY,	:	STIPULATIONS OF SETTLEMENT
Respondent	:

This matter having been brought before Honorable Bruce R. Campbell, A.L.J. on May 2, 1996, upon Petitioner's request for emergent relief, and in the presence of John M. Capasso, Esq., appearing on behalf of Petitioner and Paul J. Carr, Esq. of the firm of Murray & Carr appearing on behalf of Respondent; and the parties having testified as to the voluntariness of entering these stipulations and their satisfaction of representation by counsel, and Honorable Bruce R. Campbell, A.L.J. having been satisfied that the stipulations serve the best interest of S.H. and the best interest of the Egg Harbor Township School District as well as the public, and for good cause shown the parties do enter the following stipulations:

1. S.H. will remain on home bound instruction through the end of the 1995/1996 school year.

2. S.H. will re-enter the full program of the Egg Harbor Township 11th grade for the 1996/1997 school year beginning September, 1996 subject to successful participation in extra curricular programs, i.e. football, which participation shall become effective July 1, 1996. The athletic director at Egg Harbor Township School District will be notified of this stipulation immediately and S.H. will be notified of the program recommendations by the football coach now so he may participate at his own expense and at a place off campus prior to July 1, 1996.

3. S.H.'s participation in any extra curricular activities will not interfere with his home bound instruction which will remain a priority until his return to the full program.

4. Petitioner's family will continue counselling through a licensed certified psychologist with a written interim report to be supplied to Respondent concluding that it is appropriate for S.H. to re-enter the school system. Counselling shall be at the cost of Petitioner.

5. If and when S.H. is discharged by his counsellor, a final report will be supplied to Respondent.

The foregoing represents all stipulations placed on the record in the presence of Honorable Bruce R. Campbell on May 2, 1996 as agreed to by the parties.

BEFORE: ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

Statement of Facts

On January 25, 1996, L.Y. on behalf of E.Y., filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that L.Y. had filed a complaint for guardianship and custody of E.Y. Petitioner asked that E.Y. be admitted into the school district of South Orange and Maplewood. On February 21, 1996, respondent filed an answer, alleging that petitioner failed to satisfy the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and E.Y.

was not entitled to a free public education in respondent's school district . Respondent further asserted that L.Y. was responsible for the tuition costs for the period of ineligible attendance for pupil E.Y. pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b). On March 5, 1996, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on April 24, 1996, and a telephone prehearing conference scheduled for July 16, 1996. As a result of settlement conferences held between the parties, a settlement was reached and the prehearing conference was adjourned.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached Stipulation of Settlement indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This Agreement, made and entered into this 9th day of May, 1996, by and between JOHN COLLIER, III (hereinafter referred to as "employee") and the CAMDEN BOARD OF EDUCATION (hereinafter the "Board") to resolve amicably the dispute between the parties relating to John Collier III v. Camden Board of Education, EDU-7278-95S.

For the mutual covenants and considerations set forth below, the employee and the Board do hereby agree as follows:

1. The Board agrees to pay to the employee the gross amount of Eight Thousand Two Hundred Eleven Dollars and Eighty Cents ($8,211.80), subject to the standard and ordinary deductions. The net amount will be Four-thousand Seven Hundred and Six Dollars and One cent ($4,706.01).

The gross sum represents the difference between Fourteen Thousand Eight Hundred Four Dollars and Eighty Cents ($14,804.80), which is what the employee would have earned between September 1, 1994 and December 31, 1994, and Six Thousand Five Hundred and Ninety-Three Dollars ($6593.00), which represents the employee's unemployment compensation received from and including September 3, 1994 through January 7, 1995.

r The net amount represents the difference between Eight Thousand Two Hundred and Eleven Dollars and Eighty Cents ($8,211.80) and Three Thousand Five Hundred and Five Dollars and Seventy-Nine cents ($3,505.79), which represents the sum of the standard and ordinary deductions.

The breakdown of said deductions are as follows:

Federal Tax:	$2,023.64
State Tax:	$ 385.65
FICA:	$ 628.20
Unemployment Tax:	$ 24.86
Pension:	$ 410.59
Life Insurance:	$ 32.85

2. The Board agrees to recognize and credit the employee with seniority retroactive to September 1, 1994, and all seniority acquired prior to June 30, 1994.

3. The Board agrees to reimburse the Department of Labor, Bureau of Benefits Payment Control the unemployment payments received by the employee from and including September 3, 1994 through January 7, 1995.

4. The employee is entitled to all benefits, which include sick leave, pension credit and personal days, retroactive to September 1, 1994, and all benefits acquired prior to June 30, 1994.

5. The employee agrees to pay his share of the pension contribution and shall not be liable for the employee's share. The Board will contribute the employer's share as determined by the State.

6. This Settlement Agreement resolves all claims between the parties arising from the reduction in force at issue in this case.

7. This Agreement contains all of the terms of the parties' agreement and cannot be modified or changed unless all parties agree to do so in writing.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have signed, sealed, delive: and acknowledged this Agreement.

Record Closed: May 6, 1996 Decided: June 5, 1996

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

On February 16, 1995 the petitioner, Matthew Denson, filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of Education, claiming that he rescinded his resignation as a teacher in the respondent school district. The petitioner sought reinstatement and back pay. He also asserted a violation of the Americans with Disabilities Act. Respondent filed an answer on March 13, 1995, denying the substantive allegations of the petition and asserting affirmative defenses.

On March 23, 1995, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

In a telephone conference with counsel on November 20, 1995 Mr. Denson's attorney advised that the petitioner had decided to withdraw his petition and to unconditionally resign his teaching position, subject only to reimbursement of the cost he had incurred for COBRA health insurance coverage.

On May 6, 1996 the parties filed a document entitled Stipulation of Settlement and Dismissal, signed by the petitioner and by the respondent's Board Secretary. The stipulation confirms the petitioner's unconditional written resignation and withdrawal, and it recites the foregoing reimbursement of health insurance coverage costs.

Based on the foregoing, it is CONCLUDED that sufficient cause has been shown by the petitioner for withdrawal of the petition that he filed against respondent.

It is therefore ORDERED that the withdrawal of the petition and dismissal of this contested case be approved, subject to approval by the Commissioner of Education.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and Petitioner, former tenured superintendent who resigned from his position, contested Board's refusal to compensate him for accumulated vacation days. Board counterclaimed, asserting that petitioner owed tuition paid for his continuing education benefits.

ALJ found that petitioner resigned in conformity with statute and the Board accepted his resignation. Further, the Board had paid accumulated vacation time to others who left in similar circumstances. ALJ concluded that petitioner was entitled to reimbursement for vacation time in the amount of $5,862.09. As to the tuition owed, the ALJ found that petitioner must reimburse the Board for tuition advanced on his behalf in 1992-93 in the sum of $5,200 as the counterclaim was filed in time, within the 90 days subsequent to the filing of the petition.

Commissioner affirmed in part, reversed in part the initial decision of the ALJ. Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the Board must pay petitioner the reimbursement for vacation time. Commissioner found, however, that the Board's counterclaim was untimely filed. Board should have filed its claim for reimbursement within 90 days of the notice sent by petitioner's attorney rejecting the Board's demand for reimbusement. (Kaprow)

Respondent.

Margaret C. Murphy, Esq., for petitioner

Louis J. Greco, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: February 20, 1996 Decided: March 25, 1996

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner, Dr. Victor Gilson, contested the Dennis Township Board of Education's (Board) refusal to compensate him for accumulated vacation days after his resignation. The Board counterclaimed for tuition benefits it paid on petitioner's behalf.

The Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on July 27, 1994, for determination as a contested case pursuant to the Administrative Procedures Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, the act creating the OAL, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 and the act granting the Commissioner authority to determine controversies under the school law, N.J.A.C. 18A:6-9.

FACTUAL AND LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Petitioner was employed by the Board in 1987 as a principal in the district. He was promoted to the position of superintendent approximately one year later and, one year thereafter, he was given tenure in that position. He resigned from the position of superintendent, effective March 11, 1994, to become assistant superintendent in his hometown district, Bridgeton, New Jersey. At the time of his departure, Dr. Gilson submitted a letter of resignation which the Board accepted without objection.

The Board stipulated that petitioner had accumulated 19.5 vacation days as of the date he left the district and that the per diem rate of payment for those days was $300.62. Petitioner, therefore, alleges that the Board owes him $5,862.09 in payment for unused vacation time ($300.62 x 19.5 = $5,862.09).

The Board's refusal to pay petitioner for this unused vacation time is because he left his employment prior to the expiration of the school year notwithstanding the fact that petitioner resigned his position in conformity with N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8 by providing "at least 60 days written notice of his intention, ..."

The Board supports its contention that it does not owe petitioner accrued vacation time by reference to its Policy 4252 which appears to condition payment for vacation upon the employee serving the full term of his or her contract. It states in pertinent part:

> .... if an employee has served the full term of his/her contract and his/her contract with the district will not continue for any reason, the district shall > grant either vacation time or salary in lieu of vacation, whichever the administration determines is in the best interests of the district.

In this case, petitioner resigned in conformity with the statute and the Board accepted petitioner's resignation. The petitioner's agreement with the Board is silent on the ability of an employee who resigns in conformity with the statute to receive accrued vacation time. This is similar to the circumstances in Lowe v. BOE City of Orange, Essex County, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 789, aff'd 95 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 139 (App. Div. 1995).

The conditional phrase in the Board's policy must be directed to those situations in which an employee leaves his or her employment without giving the notice required by the statute. There was also some evidence that the Board had paid accumulated vacation time to others who left in similar circumstances and this was not rebutted.

I therefore, FIND and CONCLUDE that the petitioner is entitled to reimbursement of the 19.5 vacation days he had accumulated upon his resignation from the district.

I FURTHER FIND and CONCLUDE that this amount is the sum of $5,862.09.

The Board alleges that petitioner must reimburse it in full for tuition payments advanced on behalf of the petitioner because he did not complete his portion of the bargain. The agreement the petitioner made with the Board for tuition repayment requires the petitioner to work two years for each year tuition was advanced to him for continuing education. However, it also required that only the last years' tuition be reimbursed. The Board paid petitioner's tuition for three years as follows:

1990-91	$ 4,600.00
1991-92	4, 800.00
1992-93	5, 200.00
Total	$14, 600.00

In the meantime, petitioner worked for the Board until March of 1994 when his resignation was accepted. He, therefore, did not fulfill his obligation to work two years for every year his tuition was paid. He worked from 1990/91 through 1992/93, a total of three years. He did not complete the fourth year. His tuition was paid in three of these years. However, unless excused the petitioner must reimburse the Board the previous years' tuition. The previous years' tuition was $5,200. That this is the intent of the agreement is evident in the last line of the agreement: "should an employee resign (emphasis supplied) prior to fulfilling the one year obligation, (sic) the previous years Doctoral fees paid by the Board of Education will be reimbursed by the employee." The dispute centers on whether the obligation was excused.

Boards of Education are a "body corporate" and may only transact business according to law and regulation. N.J.S.A. 18A:10-1 et seq. The petitioner's contract and obligations thereunder, to have legal effect, must be adopted by resolution of the Board or be required by law.

No statute or regulation promulgated by the Commissioner or State Board of Education requires that tuition be advanced to an employee or, if advanced, to be repaid. If such an agreement exists it must be approved by the Board in regular session. The Board adopted a resolution approving petitioner's contract with the tuition agreement. It never adopted a resolution relieving the petitioner of his obligation to reimburse the Board.

Petitioner argues that the resolutions appearing in the Minutes of December 9, 1992 and November 10, 1993, support his position that the Board relieved him of any obligation to repay tuition advanced on his behalf under his contract of employment. The pertinent part of the Minutes are as follows:

> Mr. Gilson requested that the official Minutes for this meeting reflect that all references concerning his NOVA expenses/obligations would no longer appear in his contract.
> Furthermore, Mr. Gilson was to be given a fourth (sic) week's vacation as part of his contract agreement between himself and the Board of Education. Following this discussion, Mr. Penkethman moved, and Mrs. Payne seconded a motion to approve the salary adjustments for unrepresented staff, for the 1992-93 school year, as follows:

Superintendent
H. Victor Gilson	$67,261.000
.....
.....
Roll Call Vote	Motion Carried

One (1) "No" vote by Mr. LaPidus.

This paragraph merely reflects the fact that petitioner asked that his obligation to repay tuition "no longer appear in his contract" and that he be given a "fourth week's vacation." The resolution adopted salaries for petitioner and the rest of the school's unrepresented staff. These salaries were set forth in the Minutes, no document was attached or made a part of the resolution. This is not a resolution terminating petitioner's obligation under his contract. It is a resolution adopting employees salaries.

Testimony also reveals that in the blank space in the paragraph repeated above, between the words "... contract." and "Furthermore ...." There is a "white-out." In other words something was covered up with a white fluid used to hide mistakes in a typed document. Under the white out the impression of the following words can be seen according to testimony and a copy of the original document still in the hands of a Board member: "There was discussion on this matter but no formal vote was taken." It also appears that the word "fourth" in italics was typed over a whited out "third."

Thomas Cushane, the principal of the Dennis Township school, was the School Business Administrator and Board Secretary on December 9, 1992. He testified that he is the person who changed the Minutes by whiting out the words referring to a "discussion" but "no formal vote" and adding "fourth" over "third."

Cushane does not recall who directed him to make these changes. He suggested that it may have been the "attorney for the Board .... it may have been a member of the Board or the Board as a whole, you know, in executive session. I'm not sure."

He is not sure when it was done but "after his (petitioner's) departure, after notification was -- tending his resignation."

This change was not authorized in any Minute book of the Board.

In support of the petitioner's contention that the Minute book authorizes his release from liability for repayment of tuition, petitioner obtained the testimony at this hearing of only two of the eight Board members who were present at the meeting who think they voted to absolve him of liability. This is not even a majority.

Finally, the Minutes of November 10, 1993, ".... approve raises for support staff members as listed. This list is attached to, and considered part of these Minutes." The list is a schedule of school employees indicating annual salaries 1992-93 either ten month or twelve month, the rate, the percentage increase, the dollar increase, and the 1993-94 salary. There is a place indicating "Other Conditions." That place next to petitioner's name is blank, but after petitioner's name and salary appears the following notations:

1.	T.S.S.	$2,000
2.	Vacation	4 weeks
3.	School Calendar
4.	Doctoral Program	NO OBLIGATION

Cushane, who prepared this document and the Board Minutes testified that the Board discussion and vote was concerned with "raises." He also said the Board approved "everything listed in the attached paper, which I did indicate was part of the Minutes." However, he clearly indicated that the Board's action and discussion concerned the adoption of raises. This could not have included a contractual term as unusual as is the term under consideration; the abatement of a tuition repayment agreement. A similar statement for another employee with a tuition repayment agreement reads " _____ obligation." This indicates, since it is blank, that at least this person's obligation was not discussed. There is, therefore, no reason to think petitioner's obligation was discussed either.

It is as though the petitioner asked the Board for the moon and sixpence. The Board granted him sixpence. He cannot now complain that they meant to give him the moon. He was the Superintendent of the School. He had input into the agenda. If the Board Minutes of December 9, 1992, did not accurately reflect the Board's action in his opinion, a motion to correct the Minutes at the next Board meeting would have been the proper procedure to follow. A certified School Superintendent is charged with knowing the procedure.

The last issue remaining to be resolved is the petitioner's claim that the Board's counterclaim is untimely because it was not asserted within the 90 day Rule. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). The 90 days cannot begin to run until a controversy or dispute appears. There must be a wrongful act. Nissman v. BOE of Long Beach Island, Ocean County, 272 N.J. Super. 373, cert. denied. 137 N.J. 315. In this case, the facts do not establish when the accrual of the Board's action began to run. It had a contract indicating only that the petitioner would have to reimburse the Board for tuition if petitioner failed to complete two years of employment for each year of tuition paid on his behalf. The contract was silent as to repayment. A dispute arose when petitioner filed his petition for reimbursement of accrued vacation. This counterclaim for tuition reimbursement was filed within the 90 days subsequent to the filing of the petition.

I therefore FIND and CONCLUDE that the petitioner must reimburse the Board for tuition advanced on his behalf in 1992-93 in the sum of $5,200. The Board may set off his claim for vacation pay against this debt. The balance is due petitioner.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

H. VICTOR GILSON,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF DENNIS, CAPE MAY COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Reply exceptions were not filed by the Board.

Petitioner's exceptions challenge the factual findings of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), with regard to the issue of reimbursement of tuition payments, contending that there are a number of factual inaccuracies in the initial decision and that petitioner is not required to repay the Board of Education for tuition received in that the debt was discharged, or alternately, forgiven. (Petitioner's Exceptions at pp. 2-6) As an alternative argument, petitioner contends that the Board's policy for repayment of tuition must be applied to all similarly situated employees in the same manner, i.e., on a pro-rata basis, and offers a recalculation of tuition to be repaid. (Id. at pp. 9-11) In that this argument was advanced and considered by the ALJ, it is not more fully set forth herein.

Petitioner further excepts that the Board's counterclaim for tuition owed by petitioner is untimely in that it was filed beyond the 90-day filing period for appeals before the Commissioner as set forth at N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). In support of this contention, petitioner avers that the Board knew on February 23, 1994, that petitioner did not intend to repay the Board for tuition when it received a letter from Bruce Gorman, an attorney, which stated that petitioner rejected its proposal for tuition repayment. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 12) Moreover, petitioner avers that the Board absolutely knew on March 11, 1994 that petitioner was not going to repay the tuition allegedly owed when he left the District's employ without making such repayment to the Board. (Id.) As the 90 days had run from March 11, 1994, as of June 9, 1994, the Board's counterclaim is time barred.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, including transcripts of the hearings, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's finding that petitioner is entitled to reimbursement for vacation pay but reverses the conclusion of the ALJ who found that back tuition is owed to the Board in that the Board's counterclaim for tuition was untimely filed. The language of N.J.A.C 6:24-1.2(c) requires that actions brought before the Commissioner of Education be filed "no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual partywhich is the subject of the requested contested case hearing." This rule, which was promulgated by the State Board of Education, "represents a fair and reasonably necessary requirement for the proper and efficient resolution of disputes under the school laws." Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley Twp., 131 N.J. 572, 582 (1993). "In addition, it represents a reasonable procedural requirement." (emphasis in text) Kaprow at 583.

In the initial decision, the ALJ dismissed petitioner's argument concerning this 90-day rule, finding that, "the facts do not establish when the accrual of the Board's action began to run." The ALJ then determined that, the "dispute arose when petitioner filed his petition for reimbursement of accrued vacation." (Initial Decision at p. 7)

The Commissioner disagrees and finds that the Board had ample notice that petitioner was rejecting its demand to reimburse the Board for tuition by the letter dated February 23, 1994 from its attorney, Mr. Gorman. The Board should thus have filed its claim for reimbursement within 90 days of such notice. It has been established that even an unofficial and informal letter is sufficient to constitute adequate notice to a litigant and trigger the 90-day limitations period. Kaprow at 588. In Kaprow, a letter from the secretary of the local board constituted adequate notice under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) and such was determined to constitute adequate notice. See, also, Morris-Union Jointure Commission v. Board of Education of the Borough of South River, Middlesex County, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 453 (letter to a board's attorney was deemed sufficiently unambiguous to constitute notice of action to commence the running of the 90-day statute of limitations) and Nissman v. Board of Education of the Township of Long Beach Island, Ocean County, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 621 (letter of termination constituted adequate notice). Even assuming that the letter of February 23, 1994 was ambiguous, however, the Board should have filed its claim within 90 days of petitioner's departure from employment with the District on March 11, 1994. Only after petitioner filed for reinstatement of vacation pay did the Board assert as a counterclaim its claim for reimbursement of tuition. Thus, the Board's counterclaim was clearly untimely.

Lastly, no relaxation of the 90-day rule is warranted in this instance. As noted by petitioner's counsel, case law suggests that the applicable regulation must be construed strictly. See, e.g., North Plainfield Education Association v. Bd. of Ed., 96 N.J. 587 (1984) and J.R. Transportation Company, Inc. and A & A Charter Service, Inc. v. Board of Education of the State-Operated School District of Jersey City, Hudson County, decided by the Commissioner March 8, 1996. The Commissioner has held that, "[e]xceptions to the 90-day rule should however, be granted sparingly, and only where there exists compelling circumstances to justify enlargement or relaxation of the time limit." Morris-Union, supra at 455, quoting Riely v. Bd. of Ed. of Hunterdon Cent. H.S., 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980). The Commissioner has described these circumstances as follows:

> Where a substantial constitutional issue is presented, where judicial review is sought of an informal administrative determination, and where a matter of significant public interest is involved. (citations deleted) Miller v. Morris School District (Feb. 25, 1980).
> (Morris-Union at 455)

This present case involves a monetary dispute with facts decidedly not compelling enough to meet these stringent criteria. Further, the record does not present an explanation by the Board sufficiently compelling to justify its delay in filing its claim for reimbursement of tuition it believed to be due and owing.

Accordingly, the decision of the ALJ is affirmed in part and reversed in part and the Board is ordered to pay to petitioner $5,862.09, as calculated by the ALJ, as the full amount of his unused vacation time.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ROY TERRANOVA, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WAYNE, PASSAIC COUNTY

Stephen R. Fogarty, Esq., for petitioner
(Fogarty & Hara, attorneys)

Kathleen Naprstek, Esq., for respondent,
(Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 23, 1996 Decided: May 23, 1996

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

This matter involves tenure charges of unbecoming conduct certified by the Board of Education of the Township of Wayne ("Board") against Roy Terranova under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -18.1.

Roy Terranova is a tenured teaching staff member employed by the district. By resolution adopted on January 23, 1996, the Board found the existence of probable cause to certify tenure charges which, if true, are sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary. Basically, the charges, as amended, allege that Terranova committed various acts constituting sexual harassment during the 1991-92 to 1994-95 school years. As a result of its determination, the Board suspended Terranova, without pay, effective January 24, 1996.

On January 25, 1996, the Board filed its written tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"). Respondent Terranova filed an answer on February 26, 1996. Subsequently, on February 29, 1996, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for determination as a contested case.

Both parties have agreed to a proposed settlement, subject to approval by the Commissioner. In accordance with the decision of the State Board of Education in Cardonick v. Brooklawn Bd. of Educ., 193 S.L.D. ___ (St. Bd. April 6, 1983), the record of any proposed settlement must include:

> . . . the nature of the charges, circumstances justifying the settlement, consent or authorization by the Board of Education and the teacher to the proposed agreement, the Administrative Law Judge's finding that the teacher entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights, and [a finding] that the agreement is consistent with the public interest.

On May 23, 1996, the OAL held a public hearing on the issue of whether or not the proposed settlement should be accepted. Counsel for both parties set forth on the record the reasons why settlement would be in the public interest. Terranova testified that he fully understood and voluntarily agreed to the terms of settlement. In addition, the parties have prepared a stipulation of settlement, which is attached and fully incorporated in this decision. The Board passed a resolution approving the settlement terms on April 29, 1996.

Based on my review of the records, I FIND that the proposed settlement is consistent with the public interest for the following reasons:

1. It is predicted that the hearing in this matter would be long and arduous. The Board has filed a voluminous statement of evidence in support of its charges. OAL has scheduled the matter to be heard on nine consecutive dates in November 1996. Board counsel advises that this estimate of the length of the hearing is unduly optimistic and that a hearing would be likely to last twice as long. Petitioner anticipates calling twenty-six witnesses to prove its charges.

2. Eight of the Board's intended witnesses are female students, between the ages of twelve and fourteen years old, who are alleged victims of sexual harassment. Another twelve children of tender years would be called by the Board as witnesses. Several parents have contacted Board counsel to express concerns about the emotional impact on their children of having to testify against their teacher.

3 Whether justified or not, some of the children have fears of retaliation in the event that the charges against their teacher are dismissed and he returns to a position of classroom authority over them.

4. Under the proposed terms of settlement, Terranova would resign from his position effective June 30, 1996. In exchange, he would receive his salary from January 24, 1996 through June 30, 1996 in the amount of $34,703. Since N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 requires the Board to resume paying Terranova's salary after 120 days, which period is about to expire on June 24, 1996,* Terranova is legally entitled to compensation of $8,263 through the end of the current school year. Therefore, the net salary cost to the Board is $26,440.

5. In addition, the board has agreed to restore Terranova's salary increment for 1995-96 in the amount of $1,501 and to reimburse him for out-of-pocket expenses of $1,076 which he incurred to continue his health insurance coverage. In sum, the total cost of the settlement to the Board will be $29,017.

* Sentence should read,"Since N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 requires the Board to resume paying Terranova's salary after 120 days, which period [is about to expire on June 24, 1996,] expired on May 24, 1996, Terranova is legally entitled to compensation of $8,263 through the end of the current school year. [Office of Administrative Law memorandum dated June 11, 1996.]

6. If the tenure matter proceeds to hearing, Board counsel conservatively estimates that Board's legal fees will be around $63,000. Moreover, Terranova has brought a separate grievance proceeding relating to the withholding of his 1995-96 salary increment and the Board is preparing to apply for a scope proceeding before the Public Employment Relations Commission. Board counsel estimates that legal fees for the increment withholding matter will be an additional $20,000. Thus, a realistic estimate of the Board's total legal fees to bring this matter to conclusion would be about $83,000.

7. Even under the best of circumstances, it is unlikely that the tenure hearing will be concluded before late fall or early winter. Then the administrative law judge will have forty-five days to prepare an initial decision and the Commissioner will have an additional forty-five days for review and issuance of a final decision. Regardless of whether it won or lost, the Board would incur the additional expense of paying Terranova's annual salary of $63,000 for the better part of the 1996-97 school year.

8. An essential provision of the agreement obligates Terranova to surrender all licenses and certificates authorizing him to teach in the State of New Jersey. Further, Terranova agrees that he will not oppose any action by the State Board of Examiners to revoke his teaching licenses or certificates and that he will not apply in the future for restoration of his teaching licenses and certificates.

9. Before entering into this agreement, Terranova fully understood his rights and had an adequate opportunity to consult with legal counsel.

10. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy.

I CONCLUDE that the terms of settlement are in the public interest.

It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that the proceedings are hereby CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

COUNTY
	SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

WHEREAS, petitioner, Board of Education of the Township of Wayne (hereinafter referred to as the "Board") certified tenure charges against respondent, Roy Terranova (hereinafter referred to as "Terranova") for unbecoming conduct and suspended Terranova without pay on January 24, 1996; and

WHEREAS, said charges for unbecoming conduct were filed by petition with the Commissioner of Education on January 25, 1996; and

WHEREAS, Terranova filed an Answer to the petition on February 26, 1996, denying the charges filed against him; and

WHEREAS, the Board has withheld the salary increments of Terranova for the 1995-1996 school year based on Terranova's unbecoming conduct; and

WHEREAS, the parties agree that a settlement would benefit all witnesses, particularly young students, by allowing them to avoid the embarrassment and humiliation associated with testifying to the allegations against Terranova; and

WHEREAS, further litigation of these charges would necessitate the disruption of the Board's educational program due to the necessary absence of administrators and teachers for testimony at the hearing; and

WHEREAS, the Board would incur substantial financial costs by continuing this litigation that would significantly exceed the cost of this settlement; and

WHEREAS, the parties wish to amicably resolve their differences without the need to resort to any further litigation;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the aforementioned mutual premises and the mutual promises and covenants of the parties set forth below, the parties hereby agree as follows:

1. Terranova hereby resigns his position of employment with the Board, together with all tenure and seniority rights, effective June 30, 1996, subject only to approval of this Agreement by the Board, the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. Terranova submits his resignation knowingly, voluntarily and irrevocably, free of coercion or duress, after consulting with counsel and receiving advice as to its ramifications. Terranova will sign an irrevocable letter of resignation from all employment with the Board in a form attached hereto as Exhibit A.

2. The Board, by resolution, will publicly accept the resignation of Terranova at its next regularly scheduled meeting. The form of the Board's resolution is attached hereto

SC

as Exhibit B.

3. The Board agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, its tenure charges in the above-captioned matter bearing O.A.L. Docket No. EDUTH 01906-96 and Agency Ref. No. 26-1/96, subject to the approval of this Agreement by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

4. The Board will retroactively restore the salary increment of Terranova for the 1995-1996 school year, and such retroactive monies previously withheld by the Board in the amount of $1,501 will be paid to Terranova, after normal payroll deductions, upon final approval of this Agreement.

5. The Board will retroactively pay Terranova a sum equal to payments made by Terranova for insurance coverage under the Consolidated Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1986 ("COBRA") during the period of his suspension without pay in the amount of $1,076.

6. The Board agrees to pay Terranova his full salary, from the date of his suspension without pay (January 24, 1996), including salary increment for the 1995-1996 school year, through June 30, 1996, the effective date of his resignation, in the amount of $34,703. All retroactive monies due Terranova from the date of his suspension without pay until final approval of this Agreement will be paid, after normal payroll deductions, upon final approval of this Agreement. Any remaining payments shall be paid in the normal course of business, net of normal payroll deductions.

7. Terranova shall surrender any licenses and/or certificates that he may have or possess to teach in the public schools of the State of New Jersey, with the distinct understanding that the within matter will be transferred to the State Board of Examiners for purposes of revoking his certificate, and that he does not oppose such revocation. For the purpose of expressly demonstrating acceptance of the terms of this paragraph, an Affidavit of Terranova is attached hereto as Exhibit C.

8. Terranova agrees that he will at no time in the future apply for the restoration of his licenses and/or certificates and further agrees that he will at no time in the future teach or seek employment in any school, public or private, in the State of New Jersey or any other state in the United States of America.

9. Terranova hereby agrees to waive any and all claims he has, or could have, against the Board, its agents, employees, and representatives, including, but not limited to, claims for discrimination; contract, tort or constitutional violations; or attorneys' fees. Terranova shall execute a General Release in favor of the Board releasing the Board from all claims, liabilities or expenses to which it may be subject, arising from any claims or rights of Terranova. The form of this General Release is attached hereto as Exhibit D. Nothing in this Agreement or the documents referenced herein shall preclude either party from bringing an action to enforce performance of any term of this Agreement should there be a default in performance.

10. Terranova agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, his action appealing the Board's decision to withhold the salary increments of Terranova for the 1995-1996 school year in the matter before the State of New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission bearing the caption of Wayne Township Board of Education and Wayne Education Association, Docket No. AR-96-076 (R. Terranova/1995-96 Increment), subject to the approval of this Agreement by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

11. The parties acknowledge that this Agreement shall be submitted to the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education for review and approval, and that the terms of this Agreement are expressly made subject to and contingent upon such review and approval. In the event that either agency disapproves and/or rejects any of the terms contained herein, this Agreement shall be null and void and the parties shall return to the same positions which they held prior to this Agreement.

12. The parties recognize that each has been represented by legal counsel or a representative of his or its own choosing and that they sign this Agreement as their own voluntary act and deed, and that they fully understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein. This Agreement shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

13. The undersigned representatives of the Board hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized by the Board to sign this Agreement and bind the Board to its terms.

14. Terranova hereby declares that he is of sufficient physical, mental and emotional capacities to understand and agree to all of the terms and conditions of this Agreement and agrees that he is and will continue to be bound by these terms and conditions in the future.

15. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended, modified or revoked except by an instrument executed in writing by the parties.

IN WITNESS, WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals the date and year aforesaid.

Re: Letter of Resignation

Dear Mrs. Vreeland:

Pursuant to the terms of the Settlement Agreement between the Township of Wayne Board of Education and myself, I hereby submit my irrevocable resignation from the position of teacher, effective June 30, 1996. This resignation is expressly conditioned upon the Board's compliance with the aforesaid Settlement Agreement and is of no force or effect, even if accepted, unless said Agreement is fully performed by the Board.

Sincerely,

Roy Terranova

Dated: 4/24/96, 1996

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

AND

FULL AND FINAL RELEASE OF ALL CLAIMS

This Agreement is made and entered into this _____ day of April, 1996 by and between the Brigantine Board of Education (hereinafter the "Board"), the Brigantine Principals' Association (hereinafter the "Association"), and Donald Marrandino (hereinafter "Marrandino").

WHEREAS, Marrandino has instituted two separate actions before the Commissioner of Education of New Jersey, which allege that the Board wrongfully withheld Marrandino's salary and adjustment increments for the 1994-1995 school year and the 1995-1996 school year, and which actions were assigned OAL Docket Numbers EDU-05451-95S and EDU-07843-95S respectively, and both of which seek from the Board restoration of Marrandino to the appropriate step on the salary guide, back pay, pension credit, benefits and any other relief the Commissioner deems equitable; and

WHEREAS, the Association filed a Request for Submission of a Panel of Arbitrators with the Public Employment Relations Commission (the "Commission") on July 12, 1995, which alleges that the Board's withholding of Marrandino's 1995-1996 increment should proceed to binding arbitration; and

WHEREAS, the Board has instituted a Petition for Scope of Negotiations Determination with the Commission, Docket NO. SN-96-50, which alleges that binding arbitration of Marrandino's claim pertaining to the withholding of his 1995-1996 increment should be restrained; and

WHEREAS, the Board contends that the aforesaid claims filed by Marrandino and the Association are without merit and denies engaging in any wrongful, unlawful or improper conduct; and

WHEREAS, the Board, the Association and Marrandino, while asserting their respective contentions in good faith, realize the uncertainty and time-consuming nature of litigation and desire to enter into a compromise agreement in order to avoid this uncertainty and the time and expense of litigation, which settlement will terminate all features of the claims for relief or causes of action which any party may have relating to the withholding of Marrandino's 1994-1995 and 1995-1996 increments.

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises of the parties to this "Settlement Agreement and Full and Final Release of All Claims", the receipt and sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, the parties agree as follows:

I. The Board will do as follows:

A. Effective July 1, 1995, the Board shall increase Marrandino's base salary by the sum of three thousand five hundred dollars ($3,500.00), which amount is in addition to the longevity Marrandino normally would receive, in compromise of all claims for damages in connection with Marrandino's allegations against the Board that the Board wrongfully withheld his 1994-1995 and 1995-1996 salary and adjustment increments.

II. In return for the above commitments, Marrandino and the Association will do as follows:

A. Marrandino shall, through his attorney, dismiss with prejudice, as against the Board, OAL Docket No. EDU-05451-95S and OAL Docket No. EDU-07843-95S, filed with the Commissioner of Education of the State of New Jersey, and will not refile same following dismissal, and will not file any new complaints and/or charges against the Board for claims pertaining to the withholding of Marrandino's 1994-1995 and/or 1995-1996 salary and adjustment increments, except as necessary to enforce this Agreement; and

B. The Association shall, through its attorney, withdraw its Request for Submission of a Panel of Arbitrators, which was filed with the Public Employment Relations Commission, and will not refile same following dismissal, and will not file any new complaints and/or charges against the Board for claims pertaining to the Board's withholding of Marrandino's 1994-1995 and/or 1995-1996 salary and adjustment increments, except as necessary to enforce this Agreement; and

C. Marrandino and the Association irrevocably and unconditionally release and discharge the Board of and from any and all debts, obligations, claims, demands, judgment, or causes of action of any kind whatsoever, arising prior to the execution of this Agreement, in tort, contract, by statute or on any other basis, for compensatory, punitive or other damages, expense reimbursements, attorneys' fees or costs of an kind, including but not limited to all rights and claims, whether in law or in equity, which Marrandino or anyone acting on his behalf, or the Association or anyone acting on its behalf, has or might otherwise have had or asserted, pertaining to the Board's withholding of Marrandino's 1994-1995 and/or 1995-1996 salary and adjustment increments.

III. The provisions of this Agreement are severable and if any part is found to be unenforceable, the other portions shall remain fully valid and enforceable.

IV. It is understood and agreed by all parties that this Agreement is a settlement of disputed claims and that neither it nor the fact of settlement constitutes an admission of liability or wrongdoing or breach of duty on the part of any party.

V. The facts and circumstances giving rise to this dispute, the nature and terms of this Agreement, the discussions and negotiations leading thereto, and any subsidiary undertakings required by this Agreement, shall not be disclosed hereafter by Marrandino, or anyone acting on his behalf, (except that Marrandino can discuss this agreement with members of his immediate family and attorneys) or by the Association, or anyone acting on its behalf, (except that the Association can discuss this agreement with its attorneys) without prior written consent of the Board, unless in response to a valid subpoena or an order of court.

VI. This Agreement contains and constitutes the entire understanding and agreement of the parties and supersedes and cancels all previous negotiations, agreements, commitments, and writings in connection herewith. The recited consideration constitutes the extent of the consideration for this Agreement and the releases read together are contractual and not a mere recital. This Agreement may not be released, discharge, abandoned, supplemented, changed or modified in any manner, orally or otherwise, except by an instrument in writing of concurrent or subsequent date signed by a duly authorized officer or representative of the parties to the lawsuit.

VII. This Agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.

WHEREAS, the Board, the Association and Marrandino have reviewed this Settlement Agreement and have consulted with their respective attorneys; and

WHEREAS, the governing body of the Association and the governing body of the Board have approved the terms and conditions of this Agreement; and

WHEREAS, Marrandino has approved the terms and conditions of this Agreement;

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals the day and year first above written.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF JANET WAGNER, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF IRVINGTON, ESSEX COUNTY

Jeffrey A. Bennett, Esq., attorney for petitioner (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso & Kessler, attorneys)

Sanford R. Oxfeld, Esq., attorney for respondent (Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 17, 1996 Decided: May 17, 1996

BEFORE MARIE P. SIMONELLI, A.L.J.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, the Board of Education of the Township of Irvington (the Board), filed tenure charges against respondent, Janet Wagner (Ms. Wagner), a tenured Elementary School Teacher, for her termination on charges of chronic and excessive absenteeism.

On September 20, 1995, the Commissioner of Education transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing as a contested case. A hearing was scheduled for May 13, 1996.

At the hearing, the parties agreed to settle this matter and set forth the following settlement terms on the record:

1. Ms. Wagner shall submit to the Board an irrevocable letter of resignation resigning from her position as an Elementary School Teacher effective June 30, 1996;

2. The Board shall respond to any employment inquiry for Ms. Wagner and shall provide Ms. Wagner's length of service, final salary and a statement that her performance as a teacher was satisfactory. The Board shall not mention the tenure charges;

3. The Board will cooperate in providing whatever information is necessary for Ms. Wagner's pension or disability application;

4. The tenure charges are withdrawn and will not be mentioned by the Board;

5. The Superintendent shall recommend to the Board that it approve this settlement and that it pay to Ms. Wagner her increment for 1995; and

6. This settlement is subject to the approval of the Commissioner and the Board. The Board will meet on May 16, 1996 and the Board's attorney shall notify the undersigned by May 17, 1996 of the Board's determination.

After being placed under oath, Ms. Wagner stated that she fully understood and consented to all of the terms and conditions of the settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of the settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement on the record.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Therefore, I ORDER that the parties comply with the terms of the settlement and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent challenged Board's determination that his daughter, G.P., was not eligible for a free education in the District due to residency dispute.

ALJ found that although petitioner has a residence in the District, neither he nor G.P. is domiciled in the District. Thus, ALJ determined that until such time as petitioner is entitled to have his daughter attend the schools in the District free of charge pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, he has no right to free or reduced tuition. ALJ ordered petitioner to compensate the Board in the amount of $3,425, representing out-of-district tuition for the 1995-96 school year.

Commissioner concurred with the findings and determination of the ALJ and directed payment. Petition was dismissed.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE

BOROUGH OF METUCHEN,

MIDDLESEX COUNTY,

Respondent.

S. P., petitioner, pro se

James E. Stahl, Esq., for respondent (Borrus, Goldin, Foley, Vignuolo, Hyman & Stahl, attorneys)

Record Closed: April 3, 1996 Decided: May 20, 1996

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter commenced on December 11, 1995 when S.P. as parent and guardian of G.P. (hereinafter petitioner) filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education contesting the November 29, 1995 determination of the Board of Education of the Borough of Metuchen (hereinafter respondent) pursuant to P.L. 1993, Chapter 380, that G.P. was not permitted to attend the public schools of the district free of charge. An answer was filed on behalf of respondent on January 2, 1996 and on January 18, 1996, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was conducted on February 28, 1996, at which time the following were identified as the issues for determination at hearing:

1. Is G.P. entitled to attend the schools in respondent's district free of charge pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1?

2. If the answer to the previous question is no, is petitioner entitled to reduced tuition charges?

3. If the answer to question 1 is no, what is the amount of tuition payments owed by petitioner to respondent for the time of the student's ineligible attendance?

A hearing was scheduled for April 3, 1996, and took place as scheduled, whereupon the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The facts relevant to a disposition of this matter are not in dispute and I therefore FIND the following as uncontested facts.

Prior to 1993 petitioner resided with his wife and daughter, G.P., at 64 C. Street in Metuchen, New Jersey. After that time his wife and daughter continued to live in the residence until February 1995, when divorce proceedings between petitioner and his wife were finalized. In February 1995, petitioner's former wife and his daughter moved to Edison, New Jersey.

Petitioner became the sole owner of the property at 64 C. Street. After February 1995, the property has been occupied by petitioner's tenants.

Pursuant to the divorce decree, petitioner and his former wife have joint custody of G.P., "with the wife having primary physical and residential custody." G.P. spends Wednesdays and week-ends with petitioner at his current residence in Highland Park. During the other four days she resides with her mother in Edison. Petitioner's driver's license lists his Highland Park address. The last time petitioner voted in Metuchen was approximately five years ago. Petitioner has filed his income tax returns from his Highland Park address for the last two years.

Notwithstanding the fact that G.P. had moved with her mother to Edison in February of 1995, she continued to attend the public schools of Metuchen. By letter dated September 14, 1995, Edward M. Joyce, Principal of the Edgar School under the jurisdiction of respondent, wrote to petitioner's former wife as follows:

> We are writing to inform you, that in consultation with the office of the Business Administrator, we have determined that G. is not eligible to attend the Metuchen Public Schools. Our decision is based on the fact that G. resides with the custodial parent in Edison. Also, even though her father owns property within the district, this does not make her eligible. Of course, you may able to have her attend as a tuition student. You would need to make that decision sooner rather than later.
> Unfortunately, we must request that you make a decision in this matter, prior to September 22, 1995. We have both a legal responsibility and one of fairness in protecting the obligations of the community. We will consider the above date, as G.'s last day of attendance at Edgar School.
>
> Please call, if you have any questions, or if we can be of assistance.

Petitioner then contacted respondent by undated letter as follows:

> It was my pleasure speaking to you today, and thank you for faxing me the by-laws. As discussed, I wish to appeal your decision > regarding tuition owed for my daughter, G., to attend Metuchen schools, which she has done for the last five years. As you know, my ex-wife, D.S., now resides in Edison. G. stays with me on weekends and we visit on Wednesdays. I have joint legal custody and claim her on my income taxes. I own the house on 64 C. Street, Metuchen, New Jersey, and pay the property taxes, which the school board benefits from. I pay more than 50% of G.'s support ($440.00 per month). Considering all of the above and also that I do wish G. to continue to attend the Metuchen schools and that my economical situation is poor, I request a reconsideration of your request for fee tuition of $3,425.00 per year. Any statements made above can be documented upon request (i.e. tax returns, deed, divorce decree, etc.). Please refer to section 18A:38-3, "If eligible except for residence may be admitted . . . with consent of the Board . . . with or without payment of tuition."

>
> Please reconsider your decision based on the above and per our discussion, my understanding is that G. may attend school without interruption pending your decision. I truly hope we can resolve this to all parties satisfaction at this level.
>
> Thank you for your time and consideration.

Respondent replied by letter dated September 21, 1995, as follows:

> Reference is made to your letter, received yesterday, requesting relief in the payment of tuition for your daughter. I spoke with Mr. Stahl, our Board attorney, who reiterated the Board's past position in cases of this nature.
>
> It is my understanding that your daughter, for whom you share joint custody with your former wife, currently resides in Edison (with her mother). It is also my understanding that your daughter stays with you on the weekends. Since you have rented your Metuchen property to a third party, the assumption is that your daughter, when with you, is at your Highland Park address. In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, the child must be domiciled within the district in order to attend the district's public schools. Since the child is domiciled outside of the district -- in Edison with her mother, or in Highland Park with you, she cannot attend the Metuchen Public Schools unless it is as a tuition paying student. If you wish for your daughter to continue attendance in Metuchen

> Public Schools, it will be necessary for you to enroll her as a tuition student.
> In the event that this decision is not acceptable, you have the right to request a hearing before the Board. Please advise as to how you wish to proceed in this matter.

A hearing before the Board of Education was held on November 7, 1995, following which Gennaro Lepre, Superintendent of respondent's district, wrote to petitioner, as follows:

> It is my responsibility to inform you that, although several members of the Board of Education sympathize with your situation and all considered the matter very carefully, sufficient support to authorize a forgiveness or reduction in tuition for G.'s attendance at Edgar School this year did not develop. For that reason, Board of Education Secretary Ellen Johnson has been asked to make a formal request for the tuition currently owed, and to establish a payment schedule for the rest of the school year. You should be hearing from her this week.

The within matter followed.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, the statute relevant to a determination in this matter, provides in pertinent part:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over 5 and under 20 years of age:
>
> (a) Any person who is domiciled within the school district;
> . . .

> (b)(2) If the superintendent or administrative principal of a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district and the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the superintendent of administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. The parent or guardian shall be entitled to a hearing before the board and if in the judgment of the board the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the district or the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. . . .
>
>
> (d) Any person whose parent or guardian, even though not domiciled within the district, is residing temporarily therein, but any person who has had or shall have his all-year round dwelling place within the district for one year or longer shall be deemed to be domiciled within the district for the purposes of this section.
> . . .

An individual may have many residences, if he or she is financially able to do so, but can have only one domicile. Miller vs. U.S. Fidel. & Guar. Co., 127 N.J. Super. 37, 42 (App. Div. 1974); Contínos v. Parsekian, 68 N.J. Super. 54, 58-59 (App. Div. 1961); DiFiore v. Erie-Lackawanna R.R. Co., 67 N.J. Super. 267 (Law Div. 1961).

> The domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which > whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving. . . . Home is the place where a person dwells and which is the center of his domestic, social and civil life. . . . Thus, the concepts of home and domicile mean more than physical residence. They also embody the subject's objective and subjective relationship to that residence. Matter of Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374-5 (Law Div. 1991); See also, In re Jaffe, 74 N.J. 86, 90-91 (1977).

Petitioner acknowledges that his daughter's situation does not fit into any of the definitions set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. He has not been domiciled in Metuchen since 1993; she has not been domiciled in Metuchen since February 1995, and although petitioner originally contended that he was entitled to have his daughter attend the public schools free of charge pursuant to subparagraph (d), because he had his "all-year round dwelling place within the district for one year or longer" up until 1993, it is clear that paragraph (d) refers to someone who currently maintains a dwelling place within the district but occasionally resides elsewhere. Petitioner does not fit within this category either.

Respondent argues that notwithstanding the fact that N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 does not permit his child to attend the schools free of charge that he should be afforded some tuition relief because a large portion of his property taxes are comprised of school taxes (approximately $2,200) per year. He therefore requests that he not be required to pay the entire out-of-district tuition which respondent seeks to impose for the 1995-96 school year (respondent makes no claim for tuition for the months of March through June 1995) but rather that he be granted an offset of $2,200, representing the school taxes he pays as part of his property tax bill. Respondent asserts that since it is a small, well-managed school district, many parents who do not live in Metuchen would like to send their children to the Metuchen schools and therefore no waiver, reduction, or exception is possible in petitioner's case because many others, including owners of businesses in Metuchen who reside elsewhere, would then seek like setoffs for the portion of their property taxes attributable to school taxes. Although it is true, as petitioner points out, that N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3 provides that a non-resident may be permitted to attend the schools of the district with the consent of the Board of Education upon such terms and with or without payment of tuition as the Board may prescribe, that statute clearly gives discretion to make those decisions to the Board of Education. Where an issue is one involving the exercise of a local board's discretion, the scope of the Commissioner's review is "not to substitute his judgment or that of those who made the evaluation but to determine whether they had a reasonable basis for their conclusions." Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). Actions of local boards of education which lie within the area of their discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Quinlan v. Board of Ed. of North Bergen, 73 N.J. Super. 40 (App. Div. 1962); Thomas v. Morris Township Board of Education, 89 N.J. Super. 327 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd 46 N.J. 581 (1966); K.L. Matawan/Aberdeen High School Dist., 91 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 74; M.G. v. Monmouth Regional High School, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 38. Respondent's conclusion that to grant petitioner's request would open a flood gate of similar requests cannot in any way be judged arbitrary or unreasonable. Until such time as petitioner is entitled to have is daughter attend the schools in respondent's district free of charge pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, he has no right to free or reduced tuition.

For all of the foregoing reasons, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner compensate respondent in the amount of $3,425.00, representing out-of-district tuition for the 1995-96 school year.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.*

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) for the reasons well expressed therein. In so finding, the Commissioner concurs that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, G.P. is not entitled to a free public education in the Metuchen School District, and that petitioner must reimburse the District for the period of G.P.'s ineligible attendance.

Accordingly, petitioner is directed to remit to the Board $3,425 representing out-of-district tuition for the 1995-96 school year in accordance with the ALJ's recommendation, and the within appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

*Just prior to issuance of this decision, petitioner filed exceptions requesting the Commissioner to exempt him from the provisions of the applicable statute. However, the Commissioner is without authority to grant such relief.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, July 3, 1996

Decision on motion by the Commissioner of Education, July 25, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, S.P., pro se

For the Respondent-Respondent, James B. Smith, Esq.

S.P. (hereinafter "petitioner") seeks a stay of the Commissioner of Education's decision in this matter dated July 3, 1996. In his decision, the Commissioner adopted the Administrative Law Judge's conclusion that petitioner's daughter, G.P., was not entitled to a free public education in the Metuchen school district and that petitioner, as a result, was obligated to pay $3,425 to the Metuchen board representing out-of-district tuition for the 1995-96 school year. On July 25, 1996, the Commissioner denied petitioner's request for a stay of that decision.

In support of his motion, petitioner contends that requiring the payment of tuition for his daughter to attend public school in Metuchen is "grossly unfair and should be illegal." Petitioner alleges that he and his daughter will suffer irreparable harm in the event a stay is not granted in that "our quality of life would be irreparably affected." Petitioner alleges that the harm to his daughter in being uprooted from the "secure and constant knowledge that she may continue to attend the school and environment she loves" would outweigh any harm to the Board. Petitioner further maintains that since he is paying property taxes on a rental property he owns in Metuchen, his daughter would not be getting a "free ride."

Inasmuch as we agree with the Commissioner that petitioner's application fails to meet the standards that would entitle him to relief under Crowe v. De Gioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), we deny his motion for a stay.

Like the Commissioner, we find that petitioner has failed to demonstrate a reasonable probability of prevailing on the merits of his appeal. Petitioner does not claim to be domiciled within the Metuchen school district, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), and he has provided no legal basis under any other provision of that statute for his contention that his daughter is entitled to a free public education in that district. The mere fact that petitioner owns a rental property located within the district does not, under the terms of the statute, provide his daughter with a legal entitlement to attend the public schools of Metuchen free of charge. See Board of Education of the Borough of Fort Lee v. Kintos, decided by the State Board of Education, April 13, 1994, aff'd with modification, Docket #A-4944-93T5 (App. Div. 1995), reconsidered and clarified, Docket #A-4944-93T5 (App. Div. 1995).

In addition, G.P.'s preference to remain in the Metuchen school district does not demonstrate irreparable harm justifying the extraordinary relief sought. There is no dispute that G.P. can continue to attend public school in Metuchen as a tuition student. Moreover, any financial harm to petitioner resulting from such attendance can be adequately addressed by monetary damages in the event that he ultimately prevails on the merits of his case.

Accordingly, for the reasons stated, we deny petitioner's motion for a stay of the Commissioner's decision dated July 3, 1996.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

N.C., on behalf of her minor Niece, M.C., appeals the determination of the South Orange-Maplewood Board of Education denying M.C. permission to continue to attend schools in the district. This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) from the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on January 23, 1996, for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

The matter was set down for hearing on July 3 and July, 16, 1996. Prior to the scheduled hearing dates, the parties amicably agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached settlement indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceeding be and are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, private citizen and taxpayer, sought removal of two Board trustees for improperly approving expenditures of public funds by the former superintendent.

ALJ concluded that petitioner did have standing as a taxpayer and citizen to petition the Commissioner to remove respondents. ALJ, however, found that petitioner did not allege any facts which would disqualify respondents from serving on the Board under the school laws, the recall election statute, or the forfeiture law. Thus, the ALJ concluded that there was no genuine issue of material fact and petitioner was precluded as a matter of law from asserting an Open Public Meetings Act violation. Respondents' motion to dismiss was granted; petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BERGEN COUNTY SPECIAL SERVICES SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY, BRUNO ARIETTA AND PHYLLIS HAY,

Respondents,

Shirley Feldman, pro se

Scott K. McClain, Esq., for respondents
(Winne, Banta, Rizzi, Hetherington & Basralian, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 14, 1996 Decided: May 15, 1996

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

Petitioner, Shirley Feldman, seeks the removal of respondents, Bruno Arietta and Phyllis Hay, from the Board of Education of the Bergen County Special Services School District (Board). Petitioner contends that in their capacities as trustee of the Board, Arietta and Hay improperly approved expenditures of public funds by the former Superintendent James Lederer.

Respondent asserts that petitioner lacks standing to pursue an administrative action against respondents, Arietta and Hay. Respondent also maintains that the alleged facts do not support a basis for removal of a school board member.

On June 26,1995, the matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On February 20, 1996, the Board moved for summary decision. Petitioner filed a response on March 15, 1996.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The following facts are not disputed:

1. Petitioner is a resident of Waldwick, New Jersey.

2. Respondent Board was established by the Bergen County Board of Chosen Freeholders for the education and treatment of handicapped children. N.J.S.A. 18A:46-29.

3. The Board consists of six persons appointed by the Director of the Board of Chosen Freeholders and two ex officio members.

4. Respondent Hay was appointed as a trustee of the Board and her term expires on June 30, 1996.

5. Respondent Arietta was appointed as a trustee of the Board and his term expires on June 30, 1997.

6. In July 1994, an independent CPA firm issued a report on its review of the fiscal policy of the Board and questioned certain excessive spending by the then Superintendent of Schools, James B. Lederer. Thereafter, the Board hired special counsel to investigate the allegations of misspending.

7. The Bergen County Prosecutor's Office conducted an investigation of alleged official misconduct by Lederer. In July 1995, the Bergen County Grand jury indicted Lederer for theft. The State's criminal charges against Lederer are pending.

8. The Department of Education, Office of Compliance (Department), conducted an investigation to determine whether Lederer abused the Board's American Express charge card. During the course of the investigation, the scope broadened to include a number of other allegations of abuse in the district. In November 1995, Department issued its report.

The Department made the following findings:

> Dr. Lederer abused his position by converting district assets to his own personal use.
>
> District records relevant to the above findings were deliberately destroyed at Dr. Lederer's instructions.
>
> Neither the board nor the business administrator proved effective as a control over Dr. Lederer's abusive spending.
>
> The activities in which the district became involved indicate that the board failed to govern and provide oversight in the district, and the administration did not manage district affairs in compliance with State statute and code, and district policies and procedures.
>
> In almost every interview, each board member praised Dr. Lederer and treated the matter under investigation as a minor miscue for which they share no responsibility.
>
> [Investigative Report, State of New Jersey, Dep't of Educ., Office of Compliance, Investigation Unit, Bergen County Special Services District, (Nov. 1995).]

Additionally, the Department made the following recommendations to specific findings:

FINDING: The superintendent abused his district charge card privileges.
RECOMMENDATION: The board, having failed to exercise appropriate oversight of the personal expenditures credited to the district, is directed to take the following action:

1. Close out all accounts on those existing district charge cards distributed for individual use;

2. Amend board policy, as necessary, to reflect elimination of the use of district charge cards. Employees may use their personal charge cards and submit expense vouchers for reimbursement; and

3. Review the superintendent's travel and expense vouchers prior to payment. This will eliminate the problem of having a subordinate approve a superior's travel and expense vouchers.

FINDING: The superintendent and business administrator failed to maintain documentation of incurred district expenses.

RECOMMENDATION: The board is directed to establish, implement and monitor those procedures relevant to travel and reimbursement of travel and business expense pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:19-2.
[Investigative Report, State of New Jersey, Dep't of Educ., Office of Compliance, Investigation Unit, Bergen County Special Services District, (Nov. 1995).]

9. Based on the facts which gave rise to the indictment of Lederer, petitioner filed a petition on April 9, 1995, before the Commissioner of Education seeking to remove Hay and Arietta from the Board.

Position of Petitioner:

Petitioner alleges that Hay and Arietta, acting in their capacities as trustees of the Board, improperly approved expenditures of public funds by former Superintendent Lederer. Specifically, between 1988 to 1994, Lederer inappropriately charged personal expenses to the Board's American Express credit card account. Petitioner further contends that the Board Trustees routinely approved the charges and expense account reimbursements submitted by Lederer without supporting documentation.

Petitioner submits that the conduct of Hay and Arietta violated school laws and demonstrated a pattern of waste, mismanagement, and misappropriation of public funds. Thus, petitioner urges the Commissioner to remove respondents Hay and Arietta from office.

Petitioner also alleges that on December 20, 1994, the Board improperly went into closed session and discussed and revised the district's policy regarding public inspection of non-exempt records. Petitioner submits that the Board's action violated the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-1 to -21.

Respondents' Positions:

Respondents assert the following affirmative defenses: (1) that the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction in this matter; (2) that petitioner lacks standing; (3) that petitioner has failed to state a claim upon which relief may be granted; and (4) that petitioner has failed to comply with the statutory prerequisites to make a valid challenge of the Board's action under the Open Public Meetings Act.

DISCUSSION

I

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), summary decision is appropriate:

> if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.

Summary decision in administrative proceedings parallels summary judgment in the courts. The traditional concept of summary judgment is:

> designed to provide a prompt, business-like and inexpensive method of disposing of any cause which a discriminating search of the merits in the pleadings, depositions and admissions on file, together with the affidavits submitted on the motion, clearly shows not to present any genuine issue of material fact regarding disposition at a trial. [Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Company of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954)].

In administrative proceedings, as in the courts, it is "the movant's burden to exclude any reasonable doubt as to the existence of any genuine issue of material fact." Ibid. Thus, "[a]ll inferences of doubt are drawn against the movant in favor of the opponent of the motion, the papers supporting the motion are closely scrutinized and the opposing papers indulgently treated." Id. at 75.

Recently, the New Jersey Supreme Court in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co., 142 N.J. 520 (1995), applied the summary judgment standard employed by the federal courts and held that:

> when deciding summary judgment motions trial courts are required to engage in the same type of evaluation, analysis or sifting of evidential material as required by Rule 4:37-2(b) in light of the burden of persuasion that applies if the matter goes to trial.
> Under this new standard, a determination whether there exists a 'genuine issue' of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The 'judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial.' Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 249, 106 S.Ct. at 2511, 91 *L.Ed.*2d at 212. Credibility determinations will continue to be made by a jury and not the judge. If there exists a single, unavoidable resolution of the alleged disputed issue of fact, that issue should be considered insufficient to constitute a 'genuine' issue of material fact for purposes of Rule 4:46-2. Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 250, 106 S.Ct. at 2511, 91 *L.Ed.*2d at 213. The import of our holding is that when the evidence 'is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law,' Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 252, 106 S.Ct. at 2512, 91 *L.Ed.*2d at 214, the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. [Id. at 540].

Under Brill, once the movant has presented competent evidence tending to show the absence of any genuine issue for trial, the nonmovant must do more than simply create some doubts as to the material facts. Moreover, the nonmoving party cannot rely on disputed issues of fact that are insubstantial. Rather, Brill requires the nonmovant to raise a factual issue substantial enough to sustain a reasonable conclusion in the nonmovant's favor if a hearing were held. If the evidence, along with reasonable inferences, could sustain a judgment in favor of the nonmovant the motion must be denied.

II

The Board asserts that petitioner lacks the requisite standing to seek removal of Arietta and Hay. Petitioner, a private citizen and taxpayer, does not have an actual stake in the matter and cannot demonstrate that she will be personally harmed as a result of allegedly wrongful actions by respondents. Thus, the petition must be dismissed.

Petitioner avers that funding for the school district is provided by state and county tax dollars and local districts. Thus, as a citizen, taxpayer and a resident of Waldwick, she has a vested interest in the State public schools.

The New Jersey Administrative Procedure Act permits "any interested person" to challenge the applicability of any statue or rule enforced or administered by an agency, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-8. The law is based upon a venerable tradition of liberal application of standing criteria. Crescent Park Tenants Ass'n v. Realty Equity Corp. of N.Y., 58 N.J. 98 (1971). Standing inheres to "all persons who are directly affected by and aggrieved as a result of the particular action sought to be brought before the courts for review." Elizabeth Federal S.&L. Assn. v. Howell, 24 N.J. 488, 500 (1957). Moreover, "in cases involving substantial public interest, the courts have held that 'but slight public interest, added to and harmonizing with the public interest' is sufficient to give standing." Id. at 499

Taxpayer status has been recognized as the basis for standing. Silverman v. Board of Ed., Tp. of Milburn, 134 N.J. Super. 253 (Law Div. 1975), aff'd., 136 N.J. Super., 435 (App. Div. 1975). Further, taxpayers and citizens were found to have standing to challenge the manner in which funds were used by a government entity. Vail Mut. Assoc. v. Speaker of House, 107 N.J. Super. 517, 527 (App. div. 1969), aff'd. 58 N.J. 40 (1971), and Albert F. Ruehl Co. v. Bd. of trustees, Industrial Ed., 85 N.J.

Super. 4 (Law Div. 1964). Spending questions and the exercise of power by public bodies are issues that taxpayers have traditionally raised and challenged. See Essex Cty. Wel Bd. v. Dept. of Inst. and Agencies, 147 N.J. Super. 546 (App. Div. 1977); Karcher v. Brenden T. Byrne, 146 N.J. Super. 532 (Law Div. 1977).

The evidence supports petitioner's assertion that respondents Arietta and Hay, in their capacity of board members, repeatedly approved the expenses charged to the district's American Express credit card account by Superintendent Lederer. Moreover, they approved the expenditures without supporting documentation to substantiate that the expenses were district related. Indeed, the Department's Investigative Report found that the "board failed to govern and provide oversight in the district, and the administration did not manage district affairs in compliance with State statute and code, and district policies and procedures". Moreover, "neither the board nor the business administrator proved effective as a control over Dr. Lederer's abusive spending". Further, "each board member praised Dr. Lederer and treated the matter under investigation as a minor miscue for which they share no responsibility."

The improper expenditure of funds and payment of claims by local school boards violate school laws and policies; and, directly affects the public interest. I CONCLUDE that petitioner has standing as a taxpayer and citizen to petition the Commissioner to remove respondents Arietta and Hay.

III

Petitioner maintains that the public "is entitled to a reasonable expectation that an appointed school trustee will be held accountable for their improper approval of funds." Petition at 16. Thus, the Commissioner "has a duty to ferret out appointed trustees who demonstrate a pattern of waste, mismanagement and misappropriation". Ibid.

The Board asserts that there are no statutory or other means by which private citizens may remove members of boards of education. Specifically, petitioner does not allege any facts which would disqualify respondents Arietta and Hay from serving on the board under the school laws, the recall election statute, or the forfeiture law,.

Respondents Arietta and Hay have been appointed to fixed terms of service pursuant to law. The power of the appointing authority to remove the holder of a public office during his term must be expressly conferred upon the appointing authority by the Legislature. Golaine v. Cardinale, 142 N.J. Super. 385 (Law Div. 1976), aff'd. 163 N.J. Super. 453 (App. Div. 1977). Moreover, considering "the overriding demand of public policy that officers be protected in the performance of their offices during their terms, the power to remove, once conferred, may only be exercised in strict compliance with the procedural and substantive provisions of the applicable statute". Id. at 393-394.

The criteria for removal of members of boards of education are explicitly set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-3. Board membership ceases when the member no longer resides within the District, has missed three consecutive meetings of the board without cause, or holds another office in a county governing body. Ibid. Board members who are convicted for any indictable offense and lose their right to vote under N.J.S.A. 19:4-1 or have been convicted of false swearing under N.J.S.A 18A:12-2.2 become disqualified to hold office. I also agree that the stringent criterion to recall an elected official under N.J.S.A. 19:27A-1 provides the relief sought by petitioner. Moreover, respondents Arietta and Hay have not been convicted of any crimes under N.J.S.A. 2C:51-1. Thus, they are not disqualified under the forfeiture of office law.

I have also considered petitioner's position that board members are subject to removal for prohibited conduct under the "School Ethics Act", N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21. Indeed, the Legislature finds and declares that:

> a. In our representative form of government it is essential that the conduct of members of local boards of education and local school administrators must avoid conduct which is in violation of their public trust or which creates a justifiable impression among the public that such trust is being violated.

> b. To ensure and preserve public confidence, school board members and local school administrators should have the benefit of specific standards to guide their conduct and of some disciplinary mechanism to ensure uniform maintenance of those standards among them.

Standards of ethical conduct require the local school board members act consistent with school laws and policies. The Commissioner can sanction board members with reprimand, censure, suspension or removal. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29. Petitioner has not filed a complaint with the school ethics commission; thus, respondents cannot be removed for an alleged violation of this act.

Under the Public School Education Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-15, the Commissioner and the State Board have broad powers to implement whatever measures they deem appropriate to remedy educational deficiencies within the district. "The responsibility for specifying such measures is explicitly placed upon the State board and there is nothing in the statute or elsewhere in Title 18A which suggests that the State board may not carry out this responsibility through its designated agents." In re Trenton Bd. of Ed., 176 N.J. Super. 553, 564 (App. Div 1980).

Here, the State Department of Education has already dealt with the conduct of the board members. The Department documented official misconduct by the former superintendent and fiscal mismanagement by board members. Specifically it found that the board did not demonstrate effective control over Dr. Lederer's abusive spending, failed to exercise appropriate oversight of the personal expenditures credited to the district, failed to govern and provide oversight in the district and, in almost every interview, each board member praised Dr. Lederer and treated the matter under investigation as a minor miscue for which they share no responsibility. Therefore, the Department concluded that the Board "failed to exercise appropriate oversight of the personal expenditures credited to the district" and ordered the Board to adopt a corrective action plan. The Department reviewed and accepted the Board's corrective action plan.

Thus, I CONCLUDE that there is no genuine issue of material fact.

I further CONCLUDE that petitioner is precluded as a matter of law from asserting an OPMA violation. Remedies for nonconforming action under the OPMA, N.J.S.A. 10:4-15 provide:

> a. Any action taken by a public body at a meeting which does not conform with the provisions of this act shall be voidable in a proceeding in lieu of prerogative writ in the Superior Court, which proceeding may be brought by any person within 45 days after the action sought to be voided has been made public; provided, however, that a public body may take corrective or remedial action by acting de novo at a public meeting held in conformity with this act and other applicable law regarding any action which may otherwise be voidable pursuant to this section; and provided further that any action for which advance published notice of at least 48 hours is provided as required by law shall not be voidable solely for failure to conform with any notice required in this act.
> b. Any party, including any member of the public, may institute a proceeding in lieu of prerogative writ in the Superior Court to challenge any action taken by a public body on the grounds that such action is void for the reasons stated in subsection a. of this section, and if the court shall find that the action was taken at a meeting which does not conform to the provisions of this act, the court shall declare such action void.

Petitioner has not satisfied the time limitations which require the petition to be filed within forty-five days after the action sought to be voided has been made public. Petitioner's claim is also time-barred under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). The regulation requires petitioner to file a petition no later the 90th day from action by the district board of education which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that respondent's motion to dismiss the petition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 be GRANTED and petitioner's motion is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that petitioner has proffered no basis on which the Commissioner can grant the relief she seeks.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law and finds that the within Petition of Appeal must be dismissed.

Re: Bayonne Bd. of Educ. v. State Bd. of Educ., et al.
OAL Dkt. No. EDU 6021-94
Hackensack Bd. of Educ. v. State Bd. of Educ., et al.
OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5721-94

Dear Counsel:

Statement of the Case

These consolidated cases involve similar constitutional challenges to the method of distributing state school aid from 1993-94 to the present. Both petitioners attack the constitutionality of the Public School Reform Act of 1993 ("PSRA"), L. 1993, c. 7, and the 1994 Appropriation Act, L. 1994, c. 67, as applied to their particular facts. Petitioner Bayonne Board of Education ("Bayonne") contends that the State's use of outdated enrollment figures in determining a local district's share of foundation aid and categorical aid violates the thorough and efficient clause ("T & E") of the state constitution, N. J. Const., art VIII, §4, para. I, as well as the equal protection clauses of the federal and state constitutions, U.S. Const., amend XIV and N.J. Const., art VII, §4, para. 1 and 5. In addition, Bayonne alleges that state education officials abused their discretion by adopting an arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable interpretation of the applicable legislation. Petitioner Hackensack Board of Education ("Hackensack") contends that the State's use of outdated enrollment data in determining categorical aid violates T & E and the equal protection clauses.

The matter now comes before the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on a motion by respondents State Board of Education ("State Board"), Dr. Leo Klagholtz, Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") and Brian W. Clymer, State Treasurer, to dismiss the petitions on four grounds: (1) that the claims are moot because the Quality Education Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:8d-1 to 37, has already been declared unconstitutional; (2) that the petitions fail to state a claim for which relief can be granted under the T & E clause; (3) that the petition fails to allege facts sufficient to support an equal protection claim; and (4) that the Department of Education was merely performing a ministerial duty and lacked any discretion in the distribution of state aid.

For the reasons which follow, the motion to dismiss the T & E and abuse-of-discretion claims will be granted and the motion to dismiss the equal protection claims will be denied.

Procedural History

On April 14, 1994, Hackensack filed a petition with the Commissioner. One month later, on May 11, 1994, Bayonne filed a petition seeking similar relief. In June 1994, the Commissioner transmitted both cases to the OAL for a consolidated hearing. Prior to hearing, on December 1, 1994, respondents filed a notice of motion to dismiss, together with supporting certification and brief. Bayonne filed opposing papers, consisting of certification and brief, on February 28, 1995 and Hackensack on March 2, 1995. Respondents filed a reply brief and supplemental certification on March 28, 1995. The OAL conducted oral argument on May 2, 1995.

General Background Facts

Understanding of the issues requires familiarity with certain terminology of school financing law. In response to a series of court challenges culminating in Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990) (Abbott II), which declared the Public School Education Act of 1995, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-1 to -33, unconstitutional as applied to poorer urban districts, the Legislature enacted the Quality Education Act of 1990, N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-1 to - 37, ("QEA"). [1] State aid under QEA includes foundation aid, categorical aid, and transportation aid.

[1]Thirty poor urban districts have been identified as "special needs districts" by demographic measurements of low socioeconomic status. Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990) at 335 n. 15. Special needs districts have unique requirements for supplemental education programs and services that are greater than of wealthier districts. Abbott v. Burke, 136 N.J. 444 (1994), at 453-454.

Foundation aid, which supports regular education, is distributed according to the relative wealth of local districts. It is designed to bridge the gap between each district's "maximum foundation budget" and its "local fair share." A district's maximum foundation budget, an amount representing the typical cost of providing a quality regular education, is determined by a statutory formula based on a district's "resident enrollment," weighted to reflect the increase in cost of educating pupils as they advance to higher grades. N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-6. The "fair share" which each district is expected to fund from local appropriations is derived by a calculation ranking all districts in terms of equalized property values and aggregate personal income of their residents. N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-7. In general, foundation aid is the primary type of funding under QEA to carry out the Supreme Court's directive of achieving substantial equivalence between the richer and poorer districts in per-pupil expenditures for regular education. Abbott v. Burke, 136 N.J. 444, 449 (1994) ("Abbott III). Bayonne received foundation aid in 1993-94 and 1994-95, but Hackensack did not qualify since its residents are above the statewide average in property wealth and personal income.[2]

"Categorical aid" is geared to specific programmatic categories, such as special education, N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-16 and -17, bilingual education, N.J.S.A. 7D-21, county vocational education, N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-21.1 and a category previously called "compensatory education" and now known as "at-risk pupils." N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-20. Regardless of wealth, each district receives a fixed amount of categorical aid to defray the excess costs of meeting the special needs of students in these categories. Although tied to a particular program for funding, categorical aid is unrestricted so that a district may allocate such money for other educational purposes. Transportation aid is distributed according to a formula which reflects the typical cost of transporting students, and includes various elements, such as population, density of the region and district size. N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-18.

Historically, allocation of state aid has been based on resident student enrollment in each local district on October 15 of the prebudget year. Put differently, there has always been a one-year time lag in enrollment data used for state-aid distribution. During the first two years under QEA (1991-92 and 1992-93), this practice continued. Petitioners have no problem with the use of such relatively current data. They do not challenge their aid allotment for 1992-93, which was based on enrollment figures as of October 15, 1991.

Starting in 1993-94, however, the State effectively froze future aid at the enrollment figures previously existing on October 15, 1991. Under the Public School Reform Act of 1993, each district which is not a special needs district was entitled to foundation aid "in an amount equal to the product of the foundation aid which the district received in the 1992-93 school multiplied by 1.04." L. 1993, c. 7, §2d. Similarly, each district was entitled to categorical aid "in an amount equal to the amount of [categorical aid] which the district received in the 1992-93 school year." L. 1993, c. 7

[2] Hackensack did receive "transition aid," a declining annual subsidy intended to grant every district a 6% increase in 1991-92 and phase in the QEA over several years. N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-33.

§2b. Each district was entitled to transportation aid "in the amount the district received in the 1992-93 school year" plus its proportionate share of a $4 million increase in that aid category. L. 1993, c. 7, §2b.

Likewise, the Appropriations Act for 1994-95 provided that, except for special needs districts, foundation aid "shall be the same as for the entitlement amount for the district in 1993-94." L. 1964, c. 67. Entitlements for categorical aid and transportation aid for 1994-95 were also "the same as for the entitlement amount for the district in 1993-94." As a practical matter, this meant that the October 1991 enrollment figures used to calculate state aid for 1992-93 also formed the basis for most state aid in 1993-94 and 1994-95.

(1) Mootness

Respondents maintain that the relief sought by petitioners is moot because the New Jersey Supreme Court in Abbott III has already declared the Quality Education Act unconstitutional and has given the Legislature until September 1996 to enact a new formula to be implemented by the 1997-98 school year. Accordingly, respondents contend that it is unnecessary to declare the same act unconstitutional twice. Further, respondents urge that existing funding mechanisms are merely "interim measures" and, since the contours of any new funding formula are unknown at the present time, could only be reviewed hypothetically.

Contrary to respondents' assertions, Abbott III is not dispositive of the particular issue raised by petitioners in this litigation. In Abbott III, the Supreme Court dealt with the lack of parity of educational expenditures between the special needs districts and more affluent districts. Neither Bayonne nor Hackensack are special needs districts covered by the remedy fashioned by the Supreme Court in Abbott III. Instead, they seek to litigate an entirely separate concern, whether the freezing of state aid without regard to changes in student enrollment violates the constitutional rights of districts that have experienced increased enrollment. Bayonne highlights this distinction by emphasizing that it is not complaining about inequalities in the QEA's first two years of operation, which was the focus of the Court's attention in Abbott III, but rather about subsequent amendments which severed the link between funding and enrollment. Abbott III did not address this question, which was never before the Court.

While respondents make a strong argument that relief awarded by courts in school-funding disputes has consistently been prospective, that is not a persuasive reason for dismissing petitioners' claims at this early stage of the proceedings. For one thing, it is premature to speculate on the nature of a possible remedy before the facts are fully known or any legal rights have been established. In some circumstances, courts have awarded retroactive relief limited to those litigants who have incurred the burden and expense of challenging an illegal practice that affects others as well. See Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 83 (1982) (tenure rights for part-time, remedial and supplemental teachers). See also, Ramirez v. Amsted Indus., 86 N.J. 332, 357 (new standard of liability for successor corporation).

Even if retroactive relief were unavailable, petitioners would still be entitled to an authoritative ruling to provide guidance for future aid allotments. Unless the State can offer assurances that the objected-to feature will be eliminated in future funding mechanisms, petitioners are entitled to create a record before the administrative agency so that a court might render a determination of their rights. Petitioners are not asking for an advisory opinion on some abstract or theoretical question. Both Bayonne and Hackensack assert that they were shortchanged in state aid in 1993-94 and 1994-95 and will continue to receive less than their fair share in the foreseeable future. Thus, as Hackensack's counsel aptly phrased it, the continuing controversy over the method of aid distribution is "alive and well."

(2) Failure to State a Claim Under the T&E Clause

New Jersey's State Constitution mandates that "[t]he Legislature shall provide for the maintenance and support of a thorough and efficient system of free public schools for the instruction of all the children in the State between the ages of five and eighteen years." N.J. Const., art VIII, §4, para. 1. Both Bayonne and Hackensack allege in Count I that the QEA is unconstitutional as applied because it does not furnish sufficient funding to provide a thorough and efficient education to the children in their respective districts.

Generally, a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim should be granted "in only the rarest of instances." Printing Mart v. Sharp Electronics, 116 N.J. 739, 772 (1989). When reviewing pleadings to determine whether or not they state a claim, "the inquiry is limited to examining the legal sufficiency of the facts alleged on the face of the complaint." Printing Mart, at 746. Administrative agencies should follow the example of courts, which carefully search the complaint "in depth and with liberality to ascertain whether the fundament of a cause of action may be gleaned even from an obscure statement of claim, opportunity being given to amend if necessary." Lieberman v. Port Auth., 132 N.J. 76, 79 (1993). As one case articulated the legal standard, the test is whether a cause of action is "suggested" by the facts. Velantzas v. Colgate-Palmolive Co., 109 N.J. 189, 192 (1988). However, dismissal is mandated where the factual allegations are palpably insufficient to support a claim upon which relief can be granted. Rieder v. N.J.. Dep't of Transp., 221 N.J. Super. 547, 552 (App. Div. 1987).

Successful challenges to the funding system on T&E grounds have been brought on behalf of disadvantaged children who have demonstrated that the education they are receiving does not adequately "equip a child for his role as a citizen and as a competitor in the labor market." Abbott II, at 313. See also Robinson v. Cahill, 62 N.J. 473, cert. den. sub. nom. Dickey v. Robinson, 414 U.S. 976, 94 S.Ct. 292, 38 L.Ed. 2d 219 (1973). Illustratively, the record in Abbott II reflected that none of the poor urban districts met the state standard for mastery of basic skills and drop-out rates in some urban high schools were as high as 47%. Abbott II, at 369-70.

In marked contrast, the petitioners in this litigation make no claim that they are delivering an inferior education to their own students. Far from it, Bayonne acknowledges in paragraph 16 of its petition that:

> Despite its low per pupil expenditures and the disproportionate number of special needs students, [Bayonne] has managed to provide an excellent education to its public school students. The Bayonne school district has passed Respondent State Board of Education's monitoring process both times it has been subjected to this scrutiny, and Bayonne High School has passed its most recent Middle States Evaluation.

Using similar language, Hackensack asserts in paragraph 17 of its petition that:

> Despite financial pressures faced by the district due to Respondents' actions, students from Hackensack High School continue to excel. Eighty-eight percent of its graduates go on to post secondary education, including some of the finest colleges in the nation. Petitioner's drop out rate is under 4%. More than 90% of the students pass the High School Proficiency Test for the first time, and all pass by their senior year. SAT scores of college bound students exceed 1000. Petitioner's students have been successful in both academic and athletic competitions and have won awards in both arts and theater.

Viewed most indulgently and affording petitioners the benefit of every favorable inference, the pleadings simply do not allege any facts that might conceivably support a finding of a T&E violation. Unlike the plight of the urban districts in Abbot II, petitioners do not portray a level of education "of significantly inferior quality" and "tragically inadequate." (at 357-359.) At oral argument, petitioners suggested that they are unable to plead the facts with any greater degree of specificity, especially before completion of discovery, because they do not really know the legal definition of what constitutes "a thorough and efficient education." Analytically it is difficult to comprehend how petitioners can claim that their students are being deprived of a thorough and efficient education without knowing what one is. Whatever substantive meaning may be given to that term, the constitutional standard cannot be said to have been violated in the case of students who are receiving "an excellent education" or who "continue to excel" in academic and co-curricular pursuits.

Since the parties have presented matters outside the pleadings, respondents' motion should be treated, in the alternative, as one for summary decision. See R. 4:6-2. Like its summary-judgment counterpart in a judicial proceeding, a motion for summary decision should be granted where the papers, including any affidavits or certifications filed by the parties, "show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). Recently, the New Jersey Supreme Court adopted a new approach making it easier for courts to grant summary-judgment motions. Essentially, the judge must consider "whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party . . . are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 533 (1995). Succinctly stated, the inquiry is "whether the evidence is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law." Brill at 533. While credibility determinations still belong solely to the factfinder, the motion judge must engage in a certain amount of sifting and evaluation of evidential materials. If there exists a single unavoidable resolution of the alleged disputed issue of fact, that issue should be considered insufficient to constitute a "genuine" issue of material fact. Brill, at 540.

Careful review of the papers filed by petitioners reveals the complete absence of any factual underpinning for the alleged T&E violations. In his affidavit, Bayonne Business Administrator Clifford Doll offers a detailed recitation of the district's increasing enrollment and its static state aid, but does not connect this data to any perceived decline in the quality of education which its students enjoy. Assistant Superintendent Peter Capone of Hackensack points to numerous budget cuts which the district has incurred over five years, but also fails to establish any adverse effect on its ability to prepare students for the duties of citizenship or to compete successfully on the job market. Nothing in petitioners' documents provides any basis for finding that either district is delivering a substandard or inadequate education. Indeed, Bayonne's brief argues that it has been able to attract a large influx of transfer students by offering an educational system so good that it many parents move into the district. Accordingly, the facts are so one-sided that petitioners' T&E claim must be dismissed.

(3) Equal Protection of the Law

In Count II of their petitions, Bayonne and Hackensack allege that the state aid-distribution formula contravenes the equal-protection guarantee under both federal and state constitutions. While their constitutional claims are substantially similar, the two districts emphasize different classifications.

Bayonne draws a distinction between local districts with declining enrollment (which continue to receive categorical aid based on students no longer there) and districts with increasing enrollment (which receive no additional categorical aid but must educate a larger number of students.) According to Bayonne, this policy of rewarding declining districts at the expense of growing districts is irrational and serves no identifiable state interest. In particular, Bayonne asserts that such disparate treatment cannot be justified on the basis of fiscal constraints, since the same amount of state aid could be distributed more fairly and equitably.

Hackensack, on the other hand, draws a line between students receiving programmatic services, such as special, remedial or bilingual education, and students "in the non-categorical portion of plaintiff's educational program." Basically, Hacksack argues that the requirement to deliver state-mandated services without adequate state funding has forced it to make severe budget cuts in its regular education program.

Notwithstanding that these categories are overlapping (since students eligible for categorical programs may also participate in the regular program), Hackensack's point is that the funding formula causes an unfair diversion of money from regular education to make up the shortfall in the costs of unfunded mandates. Hence, the distribution method does not promote the stability in funding which respondents say it is intended to achieve.

Much of respondents' argument in support of its motion deals with the standard of review applicable in this particular context. Respondents urge that the situation is governed by the "rational-basis" test, rather than the stricter level of scrutiny pertaining in cases involving "fundamental interests" or "suspect categories." It is unnecessary, however, to decide what level of scrutiny is appropriate in this setting. Even if one assumes that the state need only show a rational basis to uphold the legislative judgment, petitioners have made a preliminary showing that the classification operates to harm their students without advancing any legitimate state objective. It is not a satisfactory answer to say that petitioners have the ability to raise funds through local taxation and, if necessary, can seek a cap waiver. Although the Legislature does not necessarily have to appropriate any specific amount of categorical aid in the first place, it cannot adopt a distribution system that discriminates against some school districts for no rational purpose. Nor does the lack of restrictions on a district's use of categorical funds serve to immunize the scheme against constitutional attack. Instead, it underscores the inequity of letting districts with fewer categorical students devote categorical-aid money to other uses, while districts with more such students must take money away from their regular educational programs. At the least, petitioners are entitled to develop a factual record before the state administrative agency, so that later they may attempt to persuade the judicial branch of government that the aid-distribution formula should be declared unconstitutional. Abbott v. Burke, 100 N.J. 269 (1985); Paterson Redev. Agency v. Schulman, 78 N.J. 378, 386 (1979).

(4) Abuse of Discretion By State Officials

Lastly, Bayonne alleges in Count III of its petition that respondents' "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable" interpretation of the controlling legislation constitutes an abuse of discretion by state officials. Respondents maintain that the statutory language confers no discretion and that state officials are merely performing a ministerial act.

Apart from vindication of an underlying constitutional principle, Bayonne has no independent right to demand that the Legislature appropriate any particular sum of money for support of its local school system. Bayonne tacitly recognizes as much when it argues that its abuse-of-discretion claim must necessarily be adjudicated as part of its equal protection challenge. Viewed in this light, Bayonne's abuse-of-discretion issue is a variation of the general proposition that an administrative agency may be able to resolve a dispute entirely on statutory grounds, and thereby avoid the need for judicial review of any constitutional questions. Schulman, 78 N. J. at 387. If an ambiguous statute is susceptible of two interpretations, one consistent with constitutional doctrine and the other not, then the interpretation which is constitutional must be adopted. Otherwise, however, the state officials cannot refuse to enforce a legislative enactment which they regard as undesirable or unwise. Since Count III adds nothing to the issues already raised as part of the equal protection claim in Count II, the additional count is unnecessary and detracts attention from the real issue in this case.

Order

It is ORDERED that respondents' motion to dismiss Count I of both petitions and Count III of Bayonne's petition is granted.

And further ORDERED that respondents' motion to dismiss Count II of both petitions is denied.

Very truly yours,

This order may be reviewed by the Commissioner, Department of Education, either upon interlocutory review, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10, or at the end of the contested case, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF HACKENSACK, BERGEN COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:
NEW JERSEY STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION ET AL.,	:
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the order of the ALJ have been reviewed on an interlocutory basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10, by request of respondents made on June 14, 1996 and granted on June 24, 1996. Opposing papers were filed by the petitioning Bayonne Board of Education.

In their moving papers, respondents (hereinafter "the State") urge affirmance of the ALJ's order in most respects, but seek reversal of that portion of the order denying the State's motion to summarily dismiss petitioners' equal protection claim. That claim, the State contends, should have been dismissed, as were petitioners' thorough and efficient clause and arbitrary and capricious action claims, rather than being permitted to go forward to hearing.

Initially, the State contends that the ALJ erred in finding petitioner's equal protection claims to be severable from their thorough and efficient (T&E) claims. In their pleadings or supporting papers, the State argues, both petitioners had specifically premised their equal protection claims on the purported denial of a thorough and efficient education that resulted from the State's alleged violation. Thus, when petitioners' thorough and efficient claims were found to be without merit and dismissed, so, too, should have the equal protection claims based upon them.

The State then renews its arguments as to the applicable standard for judging an equal protection claim in this context, contending once again that, as the "disadvantaged class" does not constitute a suspect class, the State need only show that a rational basis exists for the challenged action in order to prevail against petitioners. In this regard, after noting that there is no requirement for state aid to necessarily be distributed on a per pupil basis, the State argues that

> For the past few years, during this interim period between the QEA and the soon to be enacted permanent funding formula, the Legislature made a decision not to fund strictly on a per pupil basis but rather to base funding, in large part, on the prior years' entitlement. Providing this level of stability in state school funding during a transitional period can hardly be viewed as "irrational". While petitioners may not agree with the wisdom of the course selected the Legislature, that disagreement does not convert a school aid distribution scheme based on prior years' funding into a constitutionally defective one. Barone (citation omitted) ("As long as the classification scheme by the Legislature rationally advances a legitimate governmental objective, it need not be the wisest, the fairest, or the one we would choose. It is not for the courts to determine if there is a better way to allocate resources under these programs.")

(Respondents' Letter Request, at 11; citations and references to prior briefs omitted)

A further basis for dismissing petitioners' equal protection claims, the State contends, is found in the doctrine of justiciability. These claims should be considered non-justiciable both because the form of relief petitioners seek either has already been provided (i.e., a declaration that QEA is unconstitutional) or is not available in this forum, as retroactive payments cannot remedy the alleged "harm" to the constitutional rights of affected students. Moreover, viewing this case as an opportunity to obtain "guidance for future aid allotments" in effect constitutes an advisory opinion which should not be provided, and, in any event, such "guidance" would be merely speculative. This is so in that the provisions at issue cannot be examined in a vacuum, and interim aid measures have changed in each year since QEA was declared unconstitutional, with a new, permanent formula soon to be in place.

In opposing papers, the Bayonne Board of Education (hereinafter "Bayonne") initially contends that respondents' request should be rejected as untimely filed, and that there is no extraordinary circumstance herein that would justify the extreme remedy of summary dismissal on an interlocutory basis rather than after the conduct of a full factual hearing, which has been scheduled for three days in November and will not impose a significant burden on respondents. Bayonne then posits that the ALJ correctly decided the equal protection issue, so there is no basis for reversal in any event. Specifically, the ALJ correctly found that there was an independent basis for petitioners' equal protection claims separate and apart from their T&E claims, i.e., whether the State action challenged had any rational basis, and that petitioners had made a preliminary showing sufficient to move those claims forward to hearing. Bayonne urges the Commissioner to reject the State's vague and unsubstantiated claim of "stability," contending that > Respondents are in effect asking the Commissioner of Education to accept that their unexplained one word rational basis - "stability" - is sufficient, as a matter of law and without providing any factual content to the one word, to dismiss a constitutional equal protection claim. Under any jurisprudential standard of constitutional litigation, such a decision would be dangerous to say the least. Would any judge dismiss an equal protection claim based upon a factual conclusion that there was a rational basis for the State's action without the State providing that basis, and without any facts having been offered to establish the basis? Again, the question answers itself, but that is exactly what Respondents are asking the Commissioner of Education to do in this case.

> (Bayonne's Letter Memorandum in Opposition to Request, at 7-8)

With respect to the State's justiciability arguments, Bayonne posits these to have been fully addressed in prior briefs, and properly assessed by the ALJ.

Upon review and consideration, the Commissioner reaches a conclusion different from that of the ALJ. The Commissioner instead finds that the State has, in its papers before the ALJ and on interlocutory review, established a rational basis for its challenged actions, so that petitioners cannot succeed in their equal protection claim and no purpose would be served by proceeding to full factual hearing.

Initially, the Commissioner rejects Bayonne's argument that the request for interlocutory review was untimely filed. N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10 expressly provides that such applications are to be made within five working days from a party's receipt of a the written or oral order at issue, a regulation clearly intended to compel prompt action upon first knowledge of an adverse ruling. There is no contention here that any oral order or other notice preceded the ALJ's written decision, which was received by the State's representative on June 7, 1996, notwithstanding that it may have been received by Bayonne on May 30, 1996. Within the context of the controlling regulation (cf., for example N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4), mailing dates or calculations of constructive receipt are not applicable; thus, the State's request of June 14, 1996 was timely filed on the fifth working day following actual receipt of the ALJ's order. The Commissioner further finds that where an unsuccessful motion for summary judgment has been made, it is not inappropriate for the movant to seek review of, or for the Commissioner to reverse, denial of such motion in the interest of avoiding the time and expense of plenary hearing, where a sufficiently compelling basis for the proposed action is set forth in the papers on interlocutory appeal.

As to the substance of parties' positions on petitioners' equal protection claims, the Commissioner concurs, and the parties do not dispute, that the appropriate test to be met by the State is ability to demonstrate a rational basis for its actions. In the Commissioner's view, the following excerpts from the State's motion papers amply provide such a basis:

> In the instant case, it is clear that the funding scheme for the past two years has been driven by economic concerns. The Legislature has provided some short-term stability in State aid to districts while dealing with severe fiscal restraints and making progress in terms of the Abbott mandates. By funding based on last year's entitlements, the Legislature has protected districts from reductions in aid during a difficult fiscal period when Statewide aid to schools, for the first time in recent history, is not increasing. Clearly economic and administrative concerns support the Legislature's actions.
> Over the past two years, the Legislature has chosen to provide State aid for public education based on prior years' aid. Although this might not be optimum public policy and may result in certain inequities, it is certainly not an irrational way of proceeding. Any unfairness in the distribution scheme is far outweighed by the economic need and administrative convenience of proceeding in this manner on an interim basis while the Legislature undertakes the difficult task of creating a new funding formula consistent with the mandates of Abbott II and III.
>
> [Petitioners claim] that the Legislature's decision to provide level funding to districts that have experienced enrollment declines is completely arbitrary and therefore makes the funding scheme irrational.Providing school districts some stability in State aid during transition periods is neither irrational nor arbitrary. Hold harmless aid provides an opportunity for districts to adjust to decreasing enrollments over time and further recognizes that gains and losses in student enrollment do not automatically result in incrementally corresponding budget changes.
> (Respondents' Brief in Support of Motion to Dismiss, at 22-25; Respondents' Reply Brief, at 12-13; citations omitted)

The Commissioner thus is not persuaded by petitioners' contention that use of prior enrollment data, or holding districts harmless through level funding, is inherently arbitrary because it benefits districts with declining enrollment while harming districts with increasing enrollment. While the scheme at issue herein may in fact result in some inequity in individual cases, and while petitioners may believe, and may even be prepared to demonstrate, that there are better and more fair means to accomplish the ends sought by the Legislature, as set forth above, there clearly exists a rational basis for the Legislature to have proceeded as it did. Mere disagreement with the means chosen by the Legislature cannot serve as a basis to overturn the scheme it has designed to create fiscal predictability and administrative ease during a transition period between funding laws, and the existence of some disparity through application of that scheme cannot rise to the level of constitutional violation on equal protection grounds where it has already been established that no showing was made of inability to provide T&E as a result of the alleged violation.

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the determination of the ALJ to dismiss petitioners' thorough and efficient and arbitrary action claims, but reverses the determination not to dismiss petitioners' equal protection claims and instead dismisses the petition in its entirety. There being no further proceedings necessary in this matter, the file is requested to be returned to this agency by the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Acting Commissioner of Education, July 5, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant Board of Education of the City of Bayonne, Apruzzese, McDermott, Mastro & Murphy (James L. Plosia, Jr., Esq., of Counsel)

For the Petitioner-Appellant Board of Education of the City of Hackensack, Sills, Cummis, Zuckerman, Tischman, Epstein & Gross (Cherie L. Maxwell, Esq., of Counsel)

12/4/96

For the Respondents-Respondents, Nancy Kaplen, Deputy Attorney General (Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey)

This matter was initiated by separate petitions, one filed on April 14, 1994 by the Hackensack Board of Education and one filed on May 11, 1994 by the Bayonne Board of Education. The cases were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing, where they were consolidated because both involved constitutional challenges to the method by which the Department of Education distributed State aid from the 1993-94 school year to the present.

Before hearing, the Deputy Attorney General representing the State respondents[1] filed a motion to dismiss both petitions. By decision of May 28, 1996, the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") directed dismissal of petitioners' claims that the distribution of foundation and categorical aid for the years in question had been in violation of the State constitution's mandate for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of public schools. He also directed dismissal of Bayonne's claim that State education officials had abused their discretion by their interpretation of the applicable legislation when distributing State aid during the years in question. However, finding that petitioners were at least entitled to develop a factual record, the ALJ denied that part of the motion to dismiss which related to the equal protection clause of the State and Federal constitutions.

[1] Petitioners named the Commissioner as respondent in his capacity as the chief executive officer of the Department of Education and official agent of the State Board. Petition of Hackensack Board of Education dated April 13, 1994, and Petition of Bayonne Board of Education, dated May 9, 1994. Petitioners also named the State Board as the statutory head of the Department vested with general powers to supervise and control public education in New Jersey. Id. Additionally, Hackensack named State Treasurer Brian W. Clymer because he is "responsible for making [S]tate aid payments to local school districts." Petition of Hackensack Board of Education, dated April 13, 1994. It however appears that the State Board and the State Treasurer were named only nominally and that, therefore, neither has been involved in the litigation in this matter.

State respondents sought interlocutory review of the ALJ's determination from the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10. The Commissioner granted such review and, on July 5, 1996, Acting Commissioner Richard DiPatri rendered his decision on behalf of the Commissioner. See N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 and N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34. The Acting Commissioner affirmed that part of the ALJ's determination dismissing petitioners' claims that the State respondents had violated the constitutional mandate for a thorough and efficient education and those claims relating to abuse of discretion by State education officials. However, he reversed the ALJ's determination that petitioners were entitled to litigate their equal protection claims and, instead, dismissed the petitions in their entirety.

Both petitioners appealed to the State Board of Education from the Acting Commissioner's determination to dismiss their equal protection claims.

After carefully reviewing the arguments of the parties and the record that has been developed so far in this matter, we reverse the Acting Commissioner's determination to dismiss petitioners' equal protection claims and remand this matter to him for such proceedings as are necessary to resolve these claims.[2]

We do not retain jurisdiction.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Acting Commissioner of Education, July 5, 1996

Remanded by the State Board of Education, December 4, 1996

Decision on remand by the Commissioner of Education, September 2, 1997

3/4/98

For the Petitioner-Appellant Board of Education of the City of Bayonne, Apruzzese, McDermott, Mastro & Murphy (James L. Plosia, Jr., Esq., of Counsel)

For the Petitioner-Appellant Board of Education of the City of Hackensack, Sills, Cummis, Zuckerman, Tischman, Epstein & Gross (Cherie L. Maxwell, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondents-Respondents, John Worthington, Deputy Attorney General (Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey)

This matter was initiated by separate petitions, one filed on April 14, 1994 by the Hackensack Board of Education and one filed on May 11, 1994 by the Bayonne Board of Education. The cases were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing, where they were consolidated because both involved constitutional challenges to the method by which the Department of Education distributed State aid from the 1993-94 school year to the present.[1]

After the matter had been scheduled for hearing in OAL, the Deputy Attorney General representing the State respondents[2] filed a motion on their behalf seeking dismissal of both petitions. By decision of May 28, 1996, Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") Ken Springer directed dismissal of some of petitioners' claims, specifically those alleging that the distribution of foundation and categorical aid for the years in question had been in violation of the State constitution's mandate for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of public schools and Bayonne's claim that State education officials had abused their discretion by their interpretation of the applicable legislation when distributing State aid during the years in question. However, Judge Springer denied that portion of the State respondents' motion to dismiss petitioners' claims related to the equal protection clause of the State and Federal constitutions, finding that petitioners were at least entitled to develop a factual record based on those claims.

[1] Specifically, petitioners challenged distribution of State aid under the Public School Reform Act of 1993, L.1993, c.7, and the Appropriations Act for 1994-95, L.1994, c. 67.

[2] Petitioners named the Commissioner as respondent in his capacity as the chief executive officer of the Department of Education and official agent of the State Board. Petition of Hackensack Board of Education, dated April 13, 1994, and Petition of Bayonne Board of Education, dated May 9, 1994. Petitioners also named the State Board as the statutory head of the Department vested with general powers to supervise and control public education in New Jersey. Id. Additionally, Hackensack named State Treasurer Brian W. Clymer because he is "responsible for making [S]tate aid payments to local school districts." Petition of Hackensack Board of Education, dated April 13, 1994. It appears, however, that the State Board and the State Treasurer were named only nominally and that neither, therefore, has been involved in the litigation in this matter.

The State respondents sought interlocutory review of Judge Springer's determination from the Commissioner of Education. The Commissioner granted such review and, on July 5, 1996, the Acting Commissioner rendered a decision on behalf of the Commissioner. The Acting Commissioner affirmed that part of Judge Springer's determination dismissing petitioners' claims that the State respondents had violated the constitutional mandate for a thorough and efficient education and those claims relating to abuse of discretion by State education officials. However, the Acting Commissioner reversed Judge Springer's determination that petitioners were entitled to litigate their equal protection claims and, instead, dismissed the petitions in their entirety.

Both petitioners appealed to the State Board of Education from the Acting Commissioner's determination to dismiss their equal protection claims.

On December 4, 1996, after carefully reviewing the arguments of the parties and the record that had been developed thus far in the matter, the State Board reversed the Acting Commissioner's determination to dismiss petitioners' equal protection claims. We then remanded this matter to the Commissioner for such proceedings as were necessary to resolve petitioners' remaining claims, including those claims pertaining to the method by which the Department of Education had distributed State aid during the years in question and whether the Department had acted arbitrarily in applying that method to petitioners. See State Board's decision, slip op. at 3, n.2.

The matter was then transmitted once again to the Office of Administrative Law, and plenary hearings were scheduled for October 7, 1997. However, prior to hearing, a Deputy Attorney General made renewed efforts on behalf of the State respondents to obtain dismissal of this matter by filing two separate motions to dismiss. Administrative Law Judge Stephen Weiss denied both of these motions in a letter decision dated August 5, 1997.

Judge Weiss rejected the State respondents' argument that the claims involved had been rendered moot as a result of the enactment of the Comprehensive Educational Improvement and Financing Act ("CEIFA"). In doing so, he found that the issue had been decided when the State Board remanded the matter to be heard so that a full and adequate record could be developed. As expressed by Judge Weiss:

> With regard to the State's argument that the equal protection claim lodged by [petitioners] is moot, I adopt the position...that in fact this very issue was intended by the State Board of Education in its remand to be heard at the OAL so that a full and adequate record could be made. The fact that the Legislature recently enacted a new, permanent funding formula does not negatively impact the need to decide the issues remanded to me even though the funding formulas challenged in the original petitions were interim in nature and no longer obtain. The fact that the challenged funding mechanisms no longer exist does not, in my view, contra-indicate a hearing to determine whether or not their implementation during the school years in question visited legal harm on the [petitioners]. If they did, appropriate relief, even now, would be warranted. The general proposition that relief in school funding litigation generally has been prospective only does not apply with full force and effect to the instant context which, I submit, is more narrowly confined to the specific alleged deficiencies that were visited upon petitioners. The fact that the State now is moving > forward with a revised, permanent funding formula (albeit recently found to be deficient in some parts) is not dispositive.

Letter Decision of ALJ Weiss, dated August 5, 1997, slip op. at 1-2.

Judge Weiss also rejected the State respondents' contention that retroactive relief could not be granted because it would require the appropriation of amounts greater than those provided in the new funding formula and could not change the impact of a violation under the interim funding schemes.

He further found that the petitioning school districts did not lack standing, rejecting the State respondents' argument that as "creatures of the Legislature," rather than "persons," district boards of education lacked standing to bring actions such as this against the State. In addition, Judge Weiss stressed that accepting the State respondents' approach would require him to ignore both Judge Springer's decision and the direction provided by the State Board in its remand.

In rejecting the State respondents' arguments, Judge Weiss emphasized that "the essential purpose of an OAL hearing is to establish a factual record for the agency to review, and possibly the courts thereafter," and reiterated that "to grant the State's motion at this point would forever deprive petitioners of an opportunity for a hearing which, I believe, the State Board has required be given to them." Id. at 2.

The State respondents then sought interlocutory review from the Commissioner, who once again granted their request. Characterizing the State Board's decision as an affirmance of ALJ Springer's decision, the Commissioner found that Judge Springer's decision that the matter was not moot clearly flowed from his concern that petitioners could not be denied the opportunity to address the eventuality that they would not receive their fair share in the foreseeable future. The Commissioner then found that CEIFA fundamentally altered the posture of petitioners' claims in that regard so that the State Board's affirmance of Judge Springer's decision no longer had any validity. Concurring with the State respondents that no retroactive relief could result from the proceedings, and finding that "no purpose would be served by such proceedings," Commissioner's decision, dated September 2, 1997, slip op. at 3, the Commissioner reversed the determination of Judge Weiss and dismissed the petitions. As a result, he found it unnecessary to reach Judge Weiss' conclusions on standing.

Both Hackensack and Bayonne have once again appealed to the State Board. After closely reviewing the arguments of counsel, as well as the decisions of Judges Springer and Weiss, we once again remand this matter to him for transmittal to OAL for initial determination.

We stress that, as pointed out by Judge Weiss, Judge Springer was specific in addressing the issues presented to him by the State respondents when, in his letter decision of May 28, 1996, he denied their motion to dismiss this matter in its entirety. As set forth in Judge Springer's decision:

> Contrary to respondent's assertion, Abbott III [Abbott v. Burke, 136 N.J. 444 (1994)] is not dispositive of the particular issue raised by petitioners in this litigation....Neither Bayonne nor Hackensack are special needs districts covered by the remedy fashioned by the Supreme Court in Abbott III. Instead they seek to litigate an entirely separate concern, whether the freezing of state aid without regard to changes in student enrollment violates the constitutional rights of districts that have experienced increased enrollment. Bayonne highlights this distinction by emphasizing that it is....[complaining] about subsequent amendments [to the QEA] which severed the link between funding and enrollment. Abbott III did not address this question, which was never before the Court.

Letter Decision of ALJ Springer, dated May 28, 1996, slip op. at 4.

Judge Springer also rejected the State respondents' arguments that the award of prospective relief by courts in the ongoing school-funding litigation warranted dismissal, finding that:

> [This argument] is not a persuasive reason for dismissing petitioners' claims at this early stage of the proceedings. For one thing, it is premature to speculate on the nature of a possible remedy before the facts are fully known or any legal rights have been established. In some circumstances, the courts have awarded retroactive relief to those litigants who have incurred the burden and expense of challenging an illegal practice that affects others as well. (Citations omitted.)

Id.

Judge Springer further concluded that:

> Even if retroactive relief were unavailable, petitioners would still be entitled to an authoritative ruling to provide guidance for future aid allotments. Unless the State can offer assurances that the objected-to feature will be eliminated in future funding mechanisms, petitioners are entitled to create a record before the administrative agency so that a court might render a determination of their rights. Petitioners are not asking for an advisory opinion on some abstract or theoretical question. Both Bayonne and Hackensack assert that they were shortchanged in state aid in 1993-94 and 1994-95 and will continue to receive less than their fair share in the foreseeable future. Thus...the continuing controversy over the method of aid distribution is "alive and well."

Id. at 5.

As Judge Weiss concluded, if petitioners establish that the method used by the Department of Education for distributing State aid in 1993-94 and 1994-95 violated any applicable requirements of law or that the Department acted arbitrarily in applying that method, the issue of whether the enactment of CEIFA has in fact corrected such deficiencies may nonetheless remain.

Therefore, for the reasons stated herein, as well as those expressed by Judge Weiss, we once again remand this matter to the Commissioner for transmittal to the Office of Administrative Law for such proceedings as are necessary to develop a record and to resolve petitioners' claims.[3] At the same time, based on advice to us from the Attorney General's Office, we direct that the proceedings before the ALJ clarify the precise nature of the claims being asserted by these two school districts at this point so as to permit the Commissioner, and the State Board in the event of an appeal from that determination, to settle all questions relating to their standing. In this respect, we specifically direct that the proceedings consider and resolve whether, and to what extent, the parties are raising State or federal constitutional claims, including equal protection violations under the New Jersey and United States Constitutions, and to what extent their claims are being pursued on behalf of the districts themselves or the districts' students.

Daniel J. P. Moroney opposed.

Date of mailing MAR 06 1998

[3] We note that such claims appear to pertain to both the method by which the Department of Education distributed State aid during the years in question and whether the Department acted arbitrarily in applying that method to petitioners. We note also that in the event petitioners prevail on the merits of their claims, the relief to which they ultimately would be entitled would be subject to any limitations imposed by law.

IN THE MATTER OF WAYNE WURTZ,	:
BOARD MEMBER, PAULSBORO	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOROUGH, GLOUCESTER COUNTY.	:	DECISION

JULY 9, 1996

IN THE MATTER	:	Before the School
	:	Ethics Commission
OF	:
	:	Docket No.: C01-96
WAYNE J. WURTZ, SR., Respondent	:
PAULSBORO BOARD OF ED.	:	DECISION

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

James Sabetta filed the above-captioned complaint with the School Ethics Commission on January 22, 1996. Commission staff forwarded the complaint to Wayne Wurtz for a response on February 2, 1996. The School Ethics Commission received Mr. Wurtz's answer on February 23, 1996. Because respondent appeared to admit to the allegations in the complaint, although he denied the legal ramifications, respondent and complainant were asked if they were in agreement that the facts set forth were accurate. The Commission received no response and followed up with telephone calls. Neither party's attorney raised any factual issues that would require a hearing before the Office of Administrative Law.

The Commission initially scheduled the case for the April meeting of the Commission, but it postponed hearing the case due to other pressing matters. The Commission informed the parties that their case would be heard on May 28, 1996, and they had the right to appear and present witnesses if they so desired. Neither expressed interest in doing so.

FACTS

On the basis of the pleadings and the records submitted, the Commission finds the following facts to be undisputed.

1. Respondent was elected to the Paulsboro Board of Education on April 18, 1995. He was seated as a board member at the meeting of April 25, 1995. He had not previously served as a board member in any district.

2. At the time of his election, his wife was employed by the Paulsboro Board of Education as a classroom aide. She had previously been employed by the board as a lunch aide and served in that capacity from approximately 1978 to 1987, when she was hired as a classroom aide.

3. At the June 13, 1995, meeting of the Paulsboro Board of Education, the Superintendent recommended employment of substitute teachers and teacher's aides for the 1995-1996 school year. The recommendation was to hire 32 aides including Mrs. Wurtz. The Superintendent recommended Mrs. Wurtz for employment at $8.11/hour for 5.5 hours per day, 5 days per week.

4. Two other board members moved and seconded the recommendation of the Superintendent. Mr. Wurtz voted for the resolution accepting the Superintendent's recommendations including the hiring of his wife. The nine board members present passed the resolution unanimously.

5. Mr. Wurtz later realized that he should not have voted and acknowledged his error at the November 14, 1995, board meeting.

ANALYSIS

Complainant set forth that respondent violated N.J.S.A.18A:12-24 of the School Ethics Act, but did not set forth a particular subsection of the act. The subsections that are applicable to the above facts are N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b), (c), and (f).

Subsection (b) provides:

> No school official shall use or attempt to use his official position to secure unwarranted privileges, advantages or employment for himself, members of his immediate family, or others.

The facts set forth indicate that Mrs. Wurtz had been employed by the district for many years as an aide. She continued to receive an hourly wage for the work that did not increase substantially. There are no facts to indicate that she was unqualified for the position nor that she would not have acquired the position if it were not for her husband's position on the board. Therefore, her employment by the board was not unwarranted and we cannot find that respondent misused his position in such a way as to violate subsection (b).

For similar reasons, we cannot find a violation of subsection (f). Subsection (f) provides:

> No school official shall use, or allow to be used, his public office or employment, or any information, not generally available to the members of the public,..., for the purpose of securing financial gain for himself, any member of his immediate family, or any business organization with which he is associated.

There are no facts to indicate that Mr. Wurtz tried to influence anyone in the hiring of his spouse or otherwise took any action to have her recommended for the position. The facts actually indicate that Mrs. Wurtz was entitled to the employment as an aide with the board of education and she would have received the position without any assistance from Mr. Wurtz. Thus, we can not find that he used his public office to secure financial gain for himself or his spouse in violation of subsection (f).

In contrast, subsection (c) focuses on the public's perception of a conflict. It provides:

> No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial or personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment.

Even if Mr. Wurtz did not see his wife's name within the resolution to hire aides, he knew that she was an aide and that alone should have alerted him to check for her name within the list. He then had the choice to either abstain on the vote for the entire list or to ask that his spouse be considered separately so that he could abstain on her appointment. His failure to do so resulted in his voting on a matter in which the public reasonably perceived that he had a direct financial and personal involvement that impaired his objectivity or independence of judgment

For the foregoing reasons, the School Ethics Commission finds probable cause of a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c).

DECISION

The Commission has considered respondent's defense that his vote for his spouse was inadvertent and partially caused by his lack of experience on the school board at the time he voted. It has also considered the length of his spouse's employment with the board and the fact that no significant promotion was at stake. Last, the Commission notes that all board members were in favor of the appointment without any influence by Mr. Wurtz. For all of the foregoing reasons, the Commission finds that respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) but recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose the lowest penalty of a reprimand for the violation.

This matter shall be transmitted to the Commissioner of Education for action on the Commission's recommendation for sanction pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29. Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which the Commission's decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written comments on the recommended sanction with the Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

Respectfully submitted,

IN THE MATTER OF WAYNE WURTZ,	:
BOARD MEMBER, PAULSBORO	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

The initial decision of the School Ethics Commission together with the recommended sanction adopted by the Commission have been reviewed. This matter comes before the Commissioner of Education to impose a sanction, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), upon Wayne Wurtz (Wurtz), member of the Board of Education of Paulsboro (Board), based upon a finding by the School Ethics Commission that Wurtz violated the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq.

BACKGROUND

The Commission determined not to transmit this matter to the Office of Administrative Law in that it found that no material facts were in dispute and, therefore, an evidentiary hearing was not warranted. At its meeting on May 28, 1996, the Commission concluded that Wurtz violated the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c), by voting for his wife's employment as a classroom aide in the District. The Commission recommended reprimand as the appropriate penalty for the violation. The parties were accorded thirteen (13) days from the date on which the Commission's decision was mailed to them[1] to submit comments to the record with respect to the Commission's proposed sanction for the Commissioner's consideration in his determination of an appropriate penalty herein. No comments were filed by either of the parties.

[1] The record indicates that the Commission's decision was mailed to the parties on May 30, 1996.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The School Ethics Commission found that Wurtz violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c)[2] by casting a vote for a Board resolution to employ classroom aides for the 1995-96 school year, one of which was his wife. The Commission reasoned

> Even if Mr. Wurtz did not see his wife's name within the resolution to hire aides, he knew that she was an aide and that alone should have alerted him to check for her name within the list. He then had the choice to either abstain on the vote for the entire list or to ask that his spouse be considered separately so that he could abstain on her appointment. His failure to do so resulted in his voting on a matter in which the public reasonably perceived that he had a direct financial and personal involvement that impaired his objectivity or independence of judgment.

Although concluding that the casting of such vote violated the Act, the School Ethics Commission duly considered Wurtz' defenses in this matter as mitigating factors with respect to the imposition of a penalty. Specifically, his contention that his vote was inadvertent and, to some extent, caused by his lack of experience as a board member at that particular time, the long length of his wife's prior employment with the Board, along with the fact that this particular vote did not accord her any significant promotion, and, finally, in that the appointing resolution was unanimously passed by the Board without influence of any kind being exerted by Wurtz, led the Commission to recommend that the least severe penalty, reprimand, be imposed.

---

[2] This provision specifies: "No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial or personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment."

COMMENTS TO THE COMMISSION'S DECISION

As previously noted, neither party chose to submit comments with respect to the Commission's recommended penalty for the Commissioner's consideration.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Upon review of the Commission's findings of fact and conclusions of law, by which the Commissioner is bound in making his determination in this matter, and the penalty recommended by the Commission, the Commissioner concurs with the Commission's recommendation. Under the circumstances existing herein, the Commissioner agrees that the least severe penalty, reprimand, which consists of a letter from the Commission rebuking respondent for having breached the standards of conduct prescribed by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. (N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.2), is the appropriate penalty to be imposed.

Accordingly, IT IS hereby ORDERED that Board Member Wayne Wurtz be reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, former Supervisor of Physical Education and Health whose position was abolished in 1992, alleged he was entitled to the newly created position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (K-8) held by a nontenured teaching staff member, Intervenor Rosamilia, or to any principal position held by three other intervenors.

ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to establish by a preponderance of credible evidence that he was entitled by virtue of tenure either to the position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (K-8) held by Intervenor Rosamilia or to the principal positions held by the other intervenors. ALJ concluded that petitioner's claim to the position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (K-8) had to be rejected as petitioner did not possess the requisite elementary education endorsement. ALJ further found that petitioner could not claim the position of principal if he never served in that position as principal is one of the separately tenurable positions specifically enumerated in the statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. (Nelson) Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in the initial decision as his own, noting that even though Nelson, as cited in the Initial Decision, was recently reversed by the Superior Court of New Jersey, the Legislature adopted, and the Governor signed into law, A-2153, amending N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 to clarify that tenure in the enumerated positions (including the separately tenurable position of principal) shall accrue only by employment in the particular position.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter originally was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education as a contested case in January 1994. Thereafter, the petitioner filed an Amended Petition, and the Board filed an Answer to the Amended Petition. An Answer to Amended Petition also was filed by the four intervenors. Their intervention stemmed from the fact that the administrative positions put in jeopardy by the Amended Petition where those which were held by the intervenors, three of them being principal positions and the fourth the position of supervisor held by Ms. Rosamilia.

The Amended Petition alleged that for a period of two years and ten months prior to June 30, 1992, when it was abolished, Mr. White served as Supervisor of Physical Education and Health and that the Board, in September 1993, in derogation of his tenure and seniority rights, named a nontenured teaching staff member, Rosamilia, to the newly created position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (K-8). Since September 1992, following abolition of his position, White had taught physical education at Bloomfield High School. The essence of the answers filed by the Board and the four intervenors was that the personnel actions taken in the case about which petitioner complained were all accomplished in accordance with applicable laws and regulations. In addition, the Answers alleged that the duties and responsibilities as well as the job qualifications for the position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (K-8) which was awarded to intervenor Rosamilia, were different in quality from the position held by White and, secondly, that in any event he was not qualified either to hold the supervisor's position or any principal position held by the three other intervenors.

A plenary hearing was conducted by me on October 30, 1995 and testimony was received on that date from petitioner on his own behalf and, on behalf of the respondent Board, by Dr. Tryjankowski who had been the Assistant Superintendent in charge of curriculum during the period of time when the abolition of White's position took place and the new supervisory position was created.

Following the conclusion of the testimonial portion of the hearing I established a schedule for the filing of briefs. The issuance of this Initial Decision has been delayed by the fact that the running of time for me to decide the case temporarily was "tolled" in order to permit the parties to address an issue which I raised, sua spontae, concerning whether the new position was an "approved" title. I wrote to counsel and all replied that in their judgment there was no issue with respect to the concern I raised, at least none that required any further attention by us in this case. The issue I raised had to do with whether or not the new position needed the County Superintendent's approval under N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3(b). That concludes my summary of the procedural history. I will now briefly summarize the testimony.

TESTIMONY

Mr. White testified first. However, prior to taking the stand all counsel entered into a detailed Joint Stipulation of Facts with several attached exhibits which I will incorporate by reference at this juncture. The transcript of my oral decision will, at this point set out the Joint Stipulation of Facts. That Joint Stipulation, which contains twenty two paragraphs and thirty four documents attached as exhibits, was marked as Exhibit J-1 in evidence just before Mr. White testified.

A. Joint Stipulation (Exhibit references deleted)

1. The Petitioner, Frank James White (herein, "Mr. White"), holds the following certificates issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners:

   (a) Instructional Certificate, with the following endorsements: Physical Education teacher (in the elementary and secondary schools) and Automobile Driver Education teacher and,

   (b) Administrative Certificate, with the following endorsement: Principal/Supervisor .

2. The Intervenor Gina Rosamilia (herein, "Ms. Rosamilia") holds the following certificates issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners:

   (a) Instructional Certificate, with the following endorsement: Elementary School teacher; and,

   (b) Administrative Certificate, with the following endorsement: Supervisor .

3. The Intervenor Salvatore Goncalves (herein, "Mr. Goncalves") holds the following certificates issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners:

   (a) Instructional Certificate, with the following endorsements: Elementary School teacher; and,

   (b) Administrative Certificate, with the following endorsement: Principal/Supervisor

4. The Intervenor William Icklan (herein, "Mr. Icklan") holds the following certificates issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners:

   (a) Instructional Certificate, with the following endorsement: Elementary School teacher; and,

   (b) Instructional Certificate, with the following endorsement: Teacher of Art; and,

   (c) Administrative Certificate, with the following endorsement: Principal

5. The Intervenor Darlene Mattia (herein, Ms. Mattia") holds the following certificates issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners:

(a) 1958-59 and 1959-60 school years: Physical Education teacher at the elementary school level;

(b) 1960-61 school year through November, 1989: Physical Education teacher (including Health and Automobile Driver Education) at the high school level; and,

(c) November, 1989 through 1991-92 school year: Supervisor of Health (grades 9-12) and Physical Education (grades K-12); and,

(d) 1992-93 school year through the present: Physical Education teacher at the high school level.

7. A copy of Mr. White's employment/position card, reflecting his employment history through the 1994-95 school year, is attached . . . ."

8. Mr. White's position of Supervisor of Health and Physical Education was abolished by the Respondent, pursuant to a legitimate reduction in force, undertaken at the conclusion of the 1991-92 school year. As a result of the abolishment, Mr. White reverted to the position of Physical Education teacher at the high school level, the position which he held prior to his appointment to the aforesaid supervisory position. A copy of the resolution reflecting the aforementioned actions taken by the Respondent are attached hereto . . . ."

9. Mr. White has never been employed in the Respondent's School District in the position of Principal, at any grade level.

10. Mr. White has never been employed in the Respondent's School District in a position of Elementary School teacher requiring the Elementary Education endorsement described at N.J.A.C.. 6:11-6.2(a)6, but [for two school years] he has been employed as a physical education teacher in the elementary school. See paragraph 6(a).

11. Mr. White has never been employed in the Respondent's School District in a position with a twelve (12) month term of employment.

13. The following is the employment history of Ms. Rosamilia in the Respondent's School District:

    (a) 1980-81 through 1992-93 school year: Elementary School teacher (grades 1 and 6); and,

    (b) 1993-94 school year through the present: Supervisor of Elementary Education (grades K-8).

14. A copy of Ms. Rosamilia's employment/position card, reflecting her employment history through the 1994-95 school year, is attached . . . ."

15. The Respondent advertised the position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (grades K-8) during the summer of 1993. Attached hereto is a copy of the following documentation evidencing the advancement:

(a) in-District posting, dated June 29, 1993; and,

(b) invoice, dated July 4, 1993, from The Star Ledger, and copy of advertisement appearing in The Star Ledger .

16. In response to the aforementioned advertisement, Mr. White submitted an application for appointment to the position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (grades K-8). Attached hereto is a copy of the following documentation evidencing Mr. White's application and the School District's response to same:

(a) Letter from Mr. White to Dr. Elaine Tryjankowski, Assistant superintendent of Schools (herein, "Dr. Tryjankowski to Mr. White, dated July 12, 1993; and,

(b) Letter from Dr. Tryjankowski to Mr. White, dated July 29, 1993; and

(c) Letter from Mr. White to Dr. Tryjankowski, dated August 5, 1993, together with Mr. White's resume as an attachment thereto.

17. In response to the aforementioned advertisement, Ms. Rosamilia submitted an application for appointment to the position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (grades K-8). Attached hereto is a copy of the following documentation evidencing the application: letter from Ms. Rosamilia to Dr. Tryjankowski, dated July 12, 1993, together with Ms. Rosamilia's resume as an attachment thereto.

18. At its regularly-scheduled meeting of August 30, 1993, the Respondent voted to appoint Ms. Rosamilia Supervisor of Elementary Education (grades K-8) for the 1993-94 school year, effective September 1, 1993. Attached hereto is a copy of the following documentation evidencing the appointment:

    (a) minutes of Respondent's August 30, 1993 meeting (relevant sections); and,

    (b) Letter from Dr. Edward J. Glickman, Superintendent of Schools, to Ms. Rosamilia, dated August 31, 1993.

19. Since the start of the 1992-93 school year, to the present, Mr. Goncalves has been employed by the Respondent as Principal of the Berkeley Elementary School. A copy of Mr. Goncalves' employment/position card, reflecting his employment history through the 1994-95 school year, is attached hereto.

22. Attached hereto is a copy of the job description for each of the following positions:

(a) High School Principal; and,

(b) Middle School Principal; and,

(c) Elementary School Principal

B. For Petitioner

Petitioner, as noted, testified that at the beginning of September 1992, following the abolition of his previous position as Supervisor of Physical Education and Health, he was employed as a physical education teacher in a ten month position at Bloomfield High School. He also testified that while serving as a high school physical education teacher he had sought employment in other school districts, both in and outside New Jersey.

On cross-examination he first identified some of districts to which he had applied for employment. He also noted that during the summer he earns approximately $2500 to $3,000 operating a basketball camp for elementary school age children at Bloomfield High School. Essentially, that was the sum and substance of his testimony at the hearing since the Joint Stipulation contained the vast array of facts necessary to my making a decision in the case.

C. For Respondent

The Board then presented the testimony of Dr. Elaine Tryjankowski who, during the school years in question, was the Assistant Superintendent in charge of Curriculum and Staff Development. Prior to coming to Bloomfield she had held supervisory positions in Freehold Township, Middletown Township, Orange and West New York. A primary function carried out as the Assistant Superintendent included the obligation, as she put it, to consider the task of restructuring the administrative apparatus in the Bloomfield public schools in order more effectively to deliver educational services to its students. She especially identified a need to overhaul and redevelop the elementary

K-8 structure in order more effectively to deal with the fact, as she put it, that Bloomfield was a district in transition from a "somewhat suburban" to a "somewhat urban" school district which was reflected by the rise in minority enrollment and also the infusion of many students who spoke languages other than English. Those changes in the nature of the district, she said, required that special attention be given to the need to restructure the elementary aspect of the program and so, as a result of that study, a new position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (K-8) was established which I will discuss shortly. Prior to the creation of that position it is my understanding that the only elementary level supervisory position was a K-8 Supervisor of Mathematics. Therefore, in order to carry out what she identified as the Board's need to respond to changes in the make up of the student body, and to make the transition smoother, it was suggested that a broad elementary supervisory position be created to be filled by someone who could demonstrated what she described as a "depth and breadth" of knowledge in teaching urban elementary school students, including familiarity with the concepts, for example, of cooperative learning and the delivery of basic skills instruction.

Accordingly, during the summer of 1993 the position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (K-8) was developed and publicly advertised by way of job description posting and advertisements in the newspaper. The position required two certificates, supervisory and instructional. Several candidates applied for the position, including Mr. White. Tryjankowski, and the then Superintendent of Schools, interviewed two of the candidates as finalists: the intervenor-respondent Gina Rosamilia (who was awarded the position) and a Ms. Andioli. Both Rosamilia and Andioli had been employed in Bloomfield for several years as elementary classroom teachers and were certified as supervisors, but neither held supervisory positions. Although Mr. White applied for the position he was screened out of the finals since, according to the testimony of Ms. Tryjankowski, it was not felt he had the type or kind of credentials that the senior administrators believed necessary for the new position.

Following their review of the final two candidates, the Superintendent and Dr. Tryjankowski jointly recommended Rosamilia's appointment to the position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (K-8) even though Andioli also had a strong instructional experiential background. As Dr. Tryjankowski put it, it was "a hard choice". However, both she and the Superintendent jointly felt that Rosamilia clearly had demonstrated leadership in the classroom and had particularly good instructional skills. This latter aspect was felt to be particularly important because the new supervisor was to be involved heavily in staff development, including the mentoring of teacher performance in the classroom. So too, the area of writing skills was felt to be especially important and an experienced classroom teacher was sought in light of the ongoing curriculum transition from "whole language" to "holistic writing". This was of special concern since Bloomfield's K-8 students, according to the witness, had begun to demonstrate some inadequacies on the State's early warning tests and the witness believed that extensive training in the holistic method would be needed. Moreover, the new position required that the person to be appointed have experience and involvement in text book selection and it was felt that after thirteen years experience Ms. Rosamilia would certainly have the necessary background in that respect as well.

Other critical aspects of the newly created position also particularly commended Rosamilia for the appointment according to the witness since she was familiar with K-8 students from her long experience in the classroom and she knew how to test their ability to apply their skills to every day tasks. Rosamilia also was knowledgeable in basic skills testing and had worked as well with the academically talented. On balance, then, her background, her classroom teaching experience and her other credentials, according to the witness, marked her as the best candidate for the new position. On cross examination the witness agreed that she had never interviewed White as a final candidate for the new position. In addition, she conceded that the job description for the position did not literally require either elementary teaching experience or elementary supervisory experience.

That concludes my review of the rather limited testimony in the case - that's not meant as a criticism - the very detailed Joint Stipulation of Facts went a long way toward eliminating the need for a lot of testimony.

DISCUSSION

The following then is my discussion of the issues in the case. This case turns on the question of whether White, who was a tenured employee who held supervisory and instructional certificates, should have been appointed to the position instead of Rosamilia who had never served in a supervisory capacity although she was certified. Thus, it is important to analyze the requirements of the new position very closely. The posted job description sets forth that the following credentials were required; (a) a New Jersey "Supervisor Certificate"; (b) a New Jersey "Instructional Certificate"; (c) a Master's Degree; and (d) five or more years of "Elementary (K-8) Teaching and/or Elementary Supervisory Experience". In addition, a variety of performance responsibilities were articulated in writing and included: supervision of Middle School and Elementary School Instruction in Language Arts, BSIP, A/T, Social Studies and Library; a working knowledge and experience in Cooperative Learning and Whole Language; In-service Training in areas of responsibility; and assistance in budget preparation and inventory control. Those performance responsibilities are set out in Exhibit 21 of the Joint Stipulation. In addition to those, there was a wide range of other performance responsibilities set forth in Exhibit 19 of the Joint Stipulation which I will list below:

Performance Responsibilities

1. Supervise instructional programs. Responsible for district supervision of elementary curriculum, instruction, and use of instructional materials.

2. Program coordination. Coordinate programs of instruction between various elementary schools and the Middle School.

3. Curriculum. Conduct an on-going analysis of courses with each program with regard to scope, structure, content, and method of presentation, and where change or improvement is deemed necessary for more effective learning, make recommendations accordingly.

4. Materials. Make recommendations in the selection and use of textbooks, instructional materials, and equipment.

5. Use of instructional aids, special programs. Provide direction in effective use of such special instructional aids as audio-visual presentations, and in the integration of specialized subject areas.

6. Stimulation. Encourage staff in areas of experimentation, innovation, enrichment, and analysis of course objectives.

7. Work cooperatively with the BSIP Coordinator in overseeing BSIP related activities.

   a. Provide information to the BSIP coordinator for the timely completion of BSIP applications and evaluations.

   b. Observe and evaluate the performance of BSIP teachers.

   c. Make recommendations for the acquisition of necessary instructional supplies and materials.

   d. Assist in the development of preparations for Chapter I monitoring.

   e. Assist in the identification, placement and evaluation of students in need of remedial instruction.

8. Articulation. Work cooperatively with secondary supervisors in order to ensure district wide articulation of curriculum and instructional materials.

9. Curriculum assistance. Assist the classroom teachers in the development of course outlines and content.

10. Recruiting, screening. Assist in the recruiting, interviewing, screening, and assigning of professional job applicants.

11. Guidance of Principals. Work cooperatively with the principals of the elementary schools in effective supervision and evaluation of staff.

12. Orientation. Work cooperatively with the Principals in the orientation of new teachers and student teachers.

13. In-service training. Conduct in-service training programs in various areas of the program as required.

14. Observe and evaluate teachers as assigned and integrate with observations or evaluations performed by administrative staff. Develop intervention strategies for instructional improvement as needed.

15. Testing. Provide leadership and coordination in analyzing and interpreting student achievement in district and state testing programs.

16. Meetings, literature. Keep abreast of trends and practices in various subject areas through attendance at professional meetings, liaison with other districts, and continual perusal of professional literature.

17. Counsel staff. Serve as a counselor to he elementary staff on matters of curriculum and instruction, including discussion of any individual problems they may have in the area.

18. Assist in budget preparation and inventory control in assigned areas.

19. Assist in upholding and reinforcing administrative regulations and Board policy.

20. Perform other duties as assigned by the Director of Curriculum and Instruction (Joint Stipulation, Exhibit 19).

The main argument offered by petitioner is that although respondent contends to the contrary, it is quite clear that an instructional certificate with an elementary educational endorsement was not explicitly required by the Board with respect to the qualifications needed for the new position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (K-8). He insists that since he met all of the explicit literal qualifications for the position, and it is not disputed that as of September 19, 1993 he had tenure as a supervisor and Rosamilia had not, he, and not she, was entitled to have been appointed to the new position. Beyond that, he also argues that even if I determine that either expressly or by clear implication an elementary education endorsement was required for the new position; nevertheless, pursuant to several decisions of the Commissioner of Education in, for example, Timko v. Bridgewater-Raritan Regional School District; 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 475, adopted/rejected, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 481, Dec. on remand, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 1484, adopted 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 12; Herbert v. Middletown Township Board of Education; 1989 SLD _____, dec. 7/25/89; Schaffer v. South Orange-Maplewood Board of Education, 1988 SLD _____, dec. 3/14/88, and other cases such a requirement constituted a prohibited "local qualification" which could not be used by the Board to interfere with or to undermine his overriding statutory entitlement to the position by virtue of his tenure.

The Board, on the other hand, takes the position contrary to White's claim that first of all he lacks one of the minimal requirements for the appointment to the new position in that he does not possess the required elementary education endorsement on his instructional certificate. That, of course, is an issue whether or not such a requirement is either literally or by implication in the job description. In this respect, the Board also relies on the decision in the Timko case, supra, as well as the decision in Polo v. Board of Education of the Vocational School of the County of Bergen, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 498, adopted 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 36, aff'd 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 105. According to the Board, a teaching staff member who, like petitioner, has been "riffed" simply may not assert a tenure and/or seniority claim to a position when he or she does not possess the appropriate certificate (including endorsement) for the position. The Board believes that the cases relied upon by White are distinguishable since the petitioners in all those cases, in fact, did possess the requisite certification, including endorsements, for service in the position.

A seminal case in this area, of course, is the Appellate Division's decision in Capadilupo v. Board of Education of West Orange, 218 N.J. Super 510 (App. Div. 1987) in which the Appellate Division assessed the rights of tenured versus nontenured employees and held that a tenured teacher seeking reinstatement is entitled to preference in a RIF as against a non-tenured applicant with the same certification. In order, therefore, for White to make a valid tenure entitlement claim to the position he must demonstrate, according to the Board, that the position is one for which both by certification and endorsement he qualifies. Since it is not disputed that petitioner does not possess an elementary endorsement, disposition of this case as I indicated will be determined largely by whether such a requirement existed and/or was properly imposed.

Petitioner certainly is correct that neither the job description, the in-district posting nor the newspaper advertisement clearly and expressly indicate that one of the requirements for the new position was an elementary education endorsement. Indeed, some confusion regrettably was introduced with respect to this issue beyond that already included by the fact that the minimum requirement set forth in the both the in-district posting and in the newspaper advertisement differed from the actual job description. Specifically, the first two required "and/or elementary/supervisory" whereas the job description omitted the word "elementary" from that phrase. On cross examination, Tryjankowski explained that the omission was an inadvertent oversight and that elementary supervisory experience obviously was intended to be included as demonstrated by the fact that both the in-district posting and the newspaper advertisement did contain that critical term.

Based upon my consideration of the testimony and the documentary evidence, I entertain little doubt, at the very least, that an elementary educational endorsement implicitly was required as witnessed by the clear description of the need for five or more years of elementary teaching and/or elementary supervisory experience. While it is true that the phrase "Elementary Teaching and/or Elementary Supervisory Experience" is somewhat ambiguous, the ambiguity was cured by Tryjankowski's explanation during the course of her testimony that in creating the supervisory positions the administration unquestionably considered an elementary education endorsement a necessary minimal requirement for the job. Her very description of why Rosamilia and Andioli were the final two candidates following a careful screening process adds emphasis to that conclusion. However, this finding does not end the inquiry. At further issue is whether the criterion was proper.

As the New Jersey Supreme Court noted in Dennery v. Board of Education of Passaic County Regional School District, 131 N.J. 626 (1993), broad discretion generally is afforded to the local administration in its decision to establish certification requirements for certain positions unless competent evidence is produced to demonstrate that the exercise of this discretionary authority in establishing the particular certification requirements were "anomalous, arbitrary or irrational". Dennery, supra, 131 N.J. at 638. It is clear that given the circumstances and the nature and qualities of the duties of the new supervisory position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (K-8), it was neither arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or irrational for the Board to require as a condition for the newly created position that the successful applicant should have an elementary educational endorsement. The areas of responsibility subsumed in the new position included, as I noted, language arts, basic skills and several other critical areas, not to mention whole language and cooperative learning. Clearly, the educational areas of responsibility for this vital new position had to include common branch subjects under the elementary endorsement, including reading, writing, arithmetic and spelling.

Moreover, the listed performance responsibilities further reinforce that view. Although some were generally administrative, such as policy development, several of the others emphatically are instructional in nature. Some of them I have mentioned are generally those which include the necessity for oversight, review and analysis of what takes place in the classroom and also in-service training and the evaluation of classroom teachers. As Tryjankowski observed during her testimony, the new supervisor would be expected not only to provide sample lessons to aid in staff development, but equally as important the need for follow through in the classroom in order to mentor teachers through the process. So too, other enumerated performance responsibilities obviously call for instructional experience and knowledge at the elementary level, including curriculum assistance, development of intervention strategies and so forth. Possession of a elementary education endorsement clearly is important for this new position.

However, even though I find that it is important and was an appropriate requirement and was contained in the postings by reasonable implication, at least, the question nevertheless remains whether or not the imposition of this qualification can be relied upon to, as Mr. White put it, usurp or undermine his claimed superior statutory right to the supervisory position by virtue of his tenure. We cannot lose sight of the fact that he was a tenured supervisor who served in such a position while Rosamilia did not.

It is well established that while the school laws permit local boards to establish qualifications beyond the threshold criteria set forth in the statute and regulations for promotion to a particular assignment, see, e.g., N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38; and N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.1 et seq., the desire to employ or retain individuals, no matter how well intentioned, with additional qualifications locally created cannot be used to defeat tenure and seniority rights conferred by the legislature on teaching staff members. See, e.g., Herbert v. Middletown Board of Education, supra. However, in the circumstances of this case, White's argument with regard to his challenge to the imposition of a "local qualification" must fail. In particular, his reliance upon the decisions in the Herbert and other cases seem to me to be misplaced in light of the State Board of Education decision in Timko, supra. In that case the two petitioners alleged that the respondent violated their tenure rights when it abolished their respective supervisory positions incident to a reorganization and failed to appoint them to either of two newly created positions: Supervisor of Fine Arts and Music (K-12) and Supervisor of Staff Development (K-12). Both of those new positions required both a supervisory endorsement and a relevant instructional certificate. The Commissioner, relying upon the State Board holdings in the Herbert and South River cases, reversed the Initial decision of the administrative law judge and held, as to Mr. Timko that imposition of the additional requirement of an instructional certificate with corresponding endorsements constituted unlawful local requirements that could not be permitted to override his statutory tenure rights. The State Board, in reversing and remanding to the Commissioner for further fact finding, determined that the Commissioner had not correctly interpreted and applied the Herbert and South River cases and explained its view as follows:

> "In South River, the District Board sought to employ a teacher of Computer Literacy (K-5), with qualifications that included, in addition to the required instructional certificate, at least nine credits in Computer Science. We concluded that the petitioners therein, tenured teachers with instructional certification in elementary education would have been dismissed in a reduction in force, had entitlement under the school laws and implementing regulations to the controverted assignment notwithstanding their lack of the computer science credits desired by the Board. We found no authority that would permit the Board to establish qualifications beyond those established by the regulations controlling certification so as to render inapplicable categories established by the seniority regulations themselves.
>
> "In Herbert, the District Board sought to employ a supervisor of special services who not only possessed certification as a supervisor but also was qualified to teach in the special education field. The record in that case, however, did not provide any indication that the duties attending that particular assignment were of a such character to require possession of an instructional certification in special education in addition to supervisory certification. Thus, citing the South River case the State Board in Timko concluded in the Herbert case that the desired requirement by the Board of expertise could not defeat the statutory tenure rights of the petitioner. The State Board then concluded that in Herbert we determined only that instructional certification was not required for service in that particular supervisory assignment".

> That language is contained in Timko, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) at 482-483.

In the Dennery case the Supreme Court held that a dual certification requirement imposed by the Board did not unlawfully infringe upon the tenure rights of teaching staff members. In her appeal, Dennery questioned the legality of that local dual certification requirement and in upholding the local requirement the Supreme Court noted as follows:

> The dual-certification requirement is not expressly authorized by any regulation. . . . Neither, however, is that requirement prohibited by any regulation. The Commissioner and State Board approved the establishment of this position. They were satisfied in this case that the dual certification requirements for the position of class supervisor as established by the district was sound. Consequently, the courts need not and should not second guess the educational expertise and wisdom of the administration in approving the creation of the new position and prescribing its qualifications. Dennery, supra, 131 N.J. at 638. (Emphasis added).

Thus, both the State Board of Education in Timko, and the New Jersey Supreme Court in Dennery, have recognized that additional requirements in the context of newly created supervisory positions, even if locally imposed, do not necessarily infringe upon statutory tenure rights. Thus, I conclude that the Board's requirement in this case, either expressly and most certainly by reasonably clear implication, of an elementary education endorsement with respect to the new position in my judgment was perfectly appropriate and lawful and does not constitute a prohibited local qualification. To the contrary, that requirement seems to me to be so basic as to be among the essence of the new position.

Another possible ground for rejecting petitioner's claim is the Board's argument that the petitioner does not even have the requisite five (5) years of elementary teaching and/or elementary supervisory experience required in the in-district posting and job description listings. The Board points out that White's employment history reveals that he taught physical education at the elementary level for just two years - in 1958-59 and 1959-60 - and beginning in September 1960 through November 1989 his physical education teaching experience is at the secondary level only. From November 1989 through the end of the 1991-92 school year, of course, he was Supervisor of Health and Physical Education (grades 9-12 for Health and K-12 for Physical Education) and when that position was abolished, as I previously noted, he reverted to his previous position as teacher of physical education, but again at the secondary level, where he has remained since. According, therefore, to the Board, White does not have five or more years of elementary teaching and/or elementary supervisory experience since even a cursory review of his employment history reveals that he served for only two years as a elementary school teacher and accrued less than three years as a supervisor at the elementary level.

Although the Board's argument has much to commend it, I am reluctant to embrace it. While I have determined pursuant to the Timko and Dennery decisions that additional certification and endorsement qualifications may be imposed so long as they are educationally appropriate and not prohibited by any statute or regulation, it is arguable that they should not be stretched to situations where, as here, temporal experiential qualifications, in this case five years, beyond certification and endorsement are involved. In other words, while a minimum number of years of elementary teaching experience might make some good common sense vis-à-vis the position in issue, I am not ready to agree that that is a local qualification that can pass muster under any circumstances. So, while I see its merit, I am not relying upon the Board's argument with respect to its claim that Mr. White did not meet that requirement.

Accordingly, then, based upon the stipulated facts and the testimony of Tryjankowski and for the additional reasons set forth in this oral decision, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's claim to the position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (K-8) must be rejected.

Petitioner also is claiming entitlement to any one of the principal positions held by the other three intervenors, Goncalves, Icklan and Mattia. Reliance for this claim is placed upon the language from the decisions in Ellicott v. Bd. of Educ. of Frankford, 251 N.J. Super. 342 (App. Div. 1991), and in the Dennery and Capadolupo cases, to wit; an educator who has attained tenure by virtue of his requisite service will have tenure with respect to all positions under the particular certificate.

In my view, none of the cases relied upon by the petitioner support the proposition, in particular, the decision in Ellicott. In any one of the separately tenurable positions specifically enumerated in the statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, including principal, tenure, I believe, can accrue only as a result of actual work experience in the position within the scope of the certificate. In this respect I would direct counsel to the decision in Nelson v. Oldbridge Township, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d, (EDU) 257. In this case, as in the Nelson case, to hold that White has a claim to the position of principal, a position in which he has never served, cannot be accepted. The decision in Nelson referred to the claim there as "ludicrous". I am not willing to go that far but I would agree that to uphold White's claim to the principal's position would, as the Nelson decision pointed out, result in a situation that is "detrimental to sound educational policy". Indeed, Nelson is one of the most recent in a long line of decisions at the administrative agency level determining with respect to tenure rights attached to the positions specifically enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 that a person actually must serve the requisite three years with commencement of a fourth year in order to obtain tenure with respect to the enumerated position (exclusive of a promotion when the time frame is shortened). I would cite counsel, in that respect, to the decisions in Schaefer v. Lakewood Bd. Of Ed., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 741; Halpern v. Delran Bd. of Ed., 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 22; and Skowronski v. Jackson Township Bd. of Ed., 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 208. There are, of course, many others. Incidentally, with respect to the decision in Skowronski, although I alerted counsel to the possibility that I may want to ask them about it before rendering this oral decision, I determined not to do that. However, I would note that in the State Board decision in the Skowronski case, which was rendered on June 7, 1995, the State Board determined to reject the claims of, I believe, two intervenors represented by Mr. Schwartz (Wetzel and Pollack) that they should have had a superior claim to the supervisory titles in which they actually were retained. The language in Skowronski that interests me is as follows:

> "The record indicates that petitioner had achieved tenure as a supervisor by March 17, 1992, the date of the RIF and that the intervenors Wetzel and Pollack had not. The job descriptions adopted by the Board for the supervisory titles in which Wetzel and Pollack were retained did not include a requirement for an instructional certificate in addition to possession of an administrative certificate qualifying the individual to serve as a supervisor. Nor does the Board contend that the duties are such as to require possession of a particular instructional endorsement. Consequently, inasmuch as petitioner [Skowronski] was tenured as a supervisor and possesses the appropriate certification qualifying him for the supervisory assignments at issue, he had entitlement based upon his tenure status to be retained in those assignments following a RIF as against non-tenured individuals". (Emphasis added).

Thus, the State Board ordered Skowronski reinstated to one of the supervisory positions held by Wetzel and Pollack. The point here is that the State Board reinforced the notion that it is perfectly appropriate for boards of education to locally impose sound, educationally defensible local conditions - it's not new law but it is yet another reference to the fact that boards have those rights and, as I indicated earlier, the so-called local qualification imposed here - the elementary endorsement - fits squarely within that category. I think that the State Board in Skowronski was saying - they did not address the issue because the Jackson Board did not pursue it - but by even mentioning that the board could have done so it seems to me to lend further credence to the propriety of local qualifications which do not literally stem from the statute or the regulations but make good sense in an education context. Therefore, the petitioner's tenure in this matter, as I have determined, is one of supervisor only and since he has never served as a principal he therefore holds no entitlement by virtue of his tenure to the positions held by intervenors Goncalves, Icklan and Mattia.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Accordingly, in light of the stipulated facts, the testimony and the applicable case law I reviewed, as well as other decisions, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to establish by a preponderance of the credible evidence that he is entitled by virtue of tenure either to the position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (K-8) held by Rosamilia or to the principal positions held by Goncalves, Icklan and/or Mattia. Accordingly, I ORDER that his amended petition of appeal be DISMISSED.

That concludes my oral determination. In accordance with the provisions of Title 1 of the Administrative Code (N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.2) a transcript of this oral transcript will be prepared and mailed to the parties.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

END OF TRANSCRIPT

I, Marie V. Hackett, certify that the foregoing is a true and accurate transcript, to the best of my ability, of Judge Stephen G. Weiss' oral decision rendered in the above matter on Thursday, March 28, 1996.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner argues in his exceptions that: 1) As a tenured supervisor, he is entitled to the position of Supervisor of Elementary Education (SEE); and 2) His tenure as a supervisor arising under his administrative certificate entitles him to the position of principal held by nontenured teaching staff members. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p.1) To the extent petitioner merely recasts and reiterates his contentions already on record before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), neither those arguments, nor the Board's reply thereto is summarized herein.

Petitioner initially asserts that the ALJ's failure to recognize his tenure entitlement to the SEE position on the basis of his lack of an elementary endorsement is both factually and legally erroneous "because the job description on which the qualifications for the position ought to be predicated did not require an Elementary Endorsement, and  the court gave a greater entitlement to a nontenured staff member over that of a tenured staff member" absent a showing that the elementary endorsement was necessary to perform the duties of the position. (Id. at pp. 4, 5) Petitioner then recites the holdings in Timko, supra; Herbert, supra; and Galbraith v. Board of Education of the Lenape Regional High School District, decided by the Commissioner January 12, 1996, to buttress his claim of entitlement to the SEE position by virtue of his tenure and seniority (over Intervenor Rosamilia) as a supervisor, and because possession of an elementary education endorsement was not established to be necessary to perform the job. (Id. at pp. 5-8) Petitioner concludes,

> That the Board may have desired that the successful applicant have the Elementary Endorsement is of no consequence. That the nontenured person appointed has more elementary experience  is irrelevant. What is relevant is that the Supervisor Endorsement qualifies the Petitioner to serve as a Supervisor of Elementary Education as much as it qualifies him to serve as a Supervisor of Secondary Education. Not unlike the Principal Endorsement which is also K-12 and also without grade level delineation, the Supervisor Endorsement is K-12 and does not have any subject area specialization." (Id. at pp. 8, 9, citing to Schienholz v. Ewing, 1990 S.L.D. 1809)

The Board's reply arguments assert, inter alia, that it presented both testimonial and documentary evidence which clearly support the ALJ's finding that the SEE position properly required possession of an Elementary Endorsement. (Board's Reply at pp. 3, 4, 5)

The Board maintains that the initial decision is consistent with the principles articulated in Capodilupo, supra, and Dennery, supra, in that petitioner does not hold a tenure entitlement to the SEE position or to a principal's position. (Id. at p. 3) The Board, therefore, reasons

> Given the overwhelming amount of evidence proffered by the Board, Judge Weiss properly concluded that the required possession of an Elementary Education endorsement, in addition to supervisory certification, was within the Board's prerogative and was neither arbitrary, capricious nor unreasonable.
> In so ruling, Judge Weiss did not give a nontenured teaching staff member greater rights than those possessed by a tenured staff member. Rather, the ruling is consistent with the well-settled principle that a riffed teaching staff member cannot assert a tenure entitlement claim to a position for which he/she does not possess the requisite certification.  (citations omitted) (emphasis in text) (Id. at pp. 5, 6)

The Board further contends that petitioner misconstrues the holding in Timko, supra, and that petitioner's reliance upon Herbert, supra; Galbraith, supra; and Schienholz, supra, is misplaced in that these cases are factually distinguishable. (Id. at pp. 6, 7)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner determines to adopt the initial decision of the ALJ. Initially, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner's claim to the SEE position fails, in that the Board's requirement for an elementary education endorsement was an appropriate and lawful prerequisite to the position, and it is undisputed that petitioner does not hold such an endorsement. (Initial Decision at pp. 20, 21) The Commissioner finds petitioner's exception arguments in this regard to be unpersuasive.

The Commissioner further concurs that petitioner is not entitled, by virtue of his tenure acquired under his supervisory endorsement while serving in the position of Supervisor of Physical Education and Health, to claim one of the principal's positions held by the intervenors. This conclusion, the Commissioner notes, is compelled by recent amendments to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, which clarify that the positions enumerated in the amended statute, including that of principal, are "separately tenurable."[1]

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the ALJ, with clarification as noted above, and dismisses the Petition of Appeal in this matter.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[1] By letter dated May 7, 1996, the parties and intervenor were notified that the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division had reversed the holding in G. Michael Nelson v. Board of Education of the Township of Old Bridge, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 257, thereby abandoning the long-standing administrative practice of recognizing the positions specifically enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 as "separately tenurable." See G. Michael Nelson v. Board of Education of the Township of Old Bridge, decided by the Superior Court of New Jersey April 29, 1996, Appellate Division, A-6441-94T5. The parties and intervenor were therein provided 10 days from receipt of said notice to submit arguments to the Commissioner as to the relevancy of the Nelson holding on the instant matter. The Board filed timely arguments. However, petitioner's arguments were untimely filed on May 29, 1996, having received his notice on May 10, 1996, return receipt number Z-291-596-619. Intervenors' arguments were also untimely filed on May 28, 1996, since they received notice on May 10, 1996, return receipt number Z-291-596-617. Accordingly, neither petitioner's not intervenors' arguments were reviewed. However, on June 10, 1996, a bill was introduced into the Legislature amending N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 to clarify that tenure in the enumerated positions shall accrue only by employment in the particular position. The bill, A-2153, was signed into law on June 28, 1996.

Decision on motion by the State Board of Education, February 5, 1997

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Robert M. Schwartz, Esq.

For the Respondent-Respondent, Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso & Kessler (Nathanya G. Simon, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Intervenor-Respondent, Rottkamp & Flacks (Robert J. Rottkamp, Esq., of Counsel)

For the amicus curiae New Jersey School Boards Association, Michael F. Kaelber, Esq.

Frank James White (hereinafter "petitioner"), a tenured teaching staff member, alleged that the Board of Education of the Township of Bloomfield (hereinafter "Board") had violated his tenure rights when it abolished his position as Supervisor of Physical Education and Health during a reduction in force and failed to reappoint him as either a principal or as the Supervisor of Elementary Education, positions held by nontenured individuals. Petitioner challenged the Board's requirement for possession of an instructional certification in elementary education, in addition to certification as a supervisor, in order to serve as the Supervisor of Elementary Education.

On April 9, 1996, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") recommended dismissing the petition, finding that petitioner had failed to demonstrate his entitlement to the claimed positions. The ALJ found that possession of an elementary endorsement, in addition to certification as a supervisor, was required by "reasonably clear implication" in the Board's job postings for the Supervisor of Elementary Education position, and that it was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable for the Board to include such a requirement. The ALJ observed that some of the duties of the position were instructional in nature, including the oversight, review and analysis of classroom activities, in-service training and the evaluation of teachers. The ALJ found that possession of an elementary endorsement "clearly is important for this new position." Initial Decision, slip op. at 18. Consequently, the ALJ concluded that petitioner had failed to demonstrate his entitlement to the Supervisor of Elementary Education position.

The ALJ also recommended rejecting petitioner's claim to a principal's position, stressing that "principal" was a separately tenurable position under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and that petitioner had not achieved tenure in that position.

On July 12, 1996, the Commissioner of Education adopted the findings and conclusions of the ALJ, and dismissed the petition. The Commissioner agreed that petitioner's claim to the Supervisor of Elementary Education position failed "in that the Board's requirement for an elementary education endorsement was an appropriate and lawful prerequisite to the position." Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 29. The Commissioner also concurred with the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner had no entitlement to a principal's position. The Commissioner noted that although the Appellate Division had recently abandoned the long-standing practice of recognizing the positions specifically enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 as separately tenurable, Nelson v. Board of Educ. of Old Bridge, Docket #A-6441-94T5 (App. Div. 1996), rev'd, __ N.J. __ (1997), recent amendments to that statute had clarified that the positions enumerated in the statute, including principal, were indeed separately tenurable.

Petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board.

After a careful review of the record, we affirm in part and remand in part the determination of the Commissioner.

Initially, we agree with the Commissioner's determination that petitioner had no entitlement by virtue of tenure to a principal's position. We add only that, subsequent to the Commissioner's decision in this matter, the state Supreme Court reversed the decision of the Appellate Division in Nelson, supra. The Court held that our interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, requiring service in the separately-listed positions in order to achieve tenure in them, represented a proper interpretation of the statute and sound educational policy. The Court also found that there was no "manifest injustice" in applying the amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 retroactively. Consequently, petitioner herein, who had not achieved tenure as a principal, had no entitlement to reinstatement as a principal.

However, we set aside the Commissioner's determination rejecting petitioner's claim to the Supervisor of Elementary Education position, and remand for further proceedings in accordance with our decision herein. It is now well established that while the school laws permit a district board to establish qualifications beyond the threshold qualifications established by statute and regulation for employment in a particular assignment, the desire to employ or retain individuals with such additional qualifications cannot defeat the tenure and seniority rights conferred by statute on teaching staff members. South River Education Association v. Board of Education of the Borough of South River, decided by the State Board, November 4, 1987; Herbert v. Board of Education of the Township of Middletown, decided by the State Board, August 1, 1990.

In this case, the fact that possession of an instructional certification in elementary education may be "important" for service as the Supervisor of Elementary Education, or that the Board required such certification by "reasonably clear implication," or that the inclusion of such a requirement was not "arbitrary and capricious" is not determinative of petitioner's challenge to that requirement. Rather, the standard is whether the duties attending the Supervisor of Elementary Education position at issue were of such character as to require possession of an elementary education endorsement, in addition to certification as a supervisor, in order to be authorized by statute and regulation to perform such functions. Timko v. Bridgewater Raritan Regional School District, decided by the State Board, 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 481,

83. Inasmuch as the Commissioner did not determine whether the specific duties of the position were of such nature as to require possession of an endorsement in elementary education, we find it necessary to remand this matter to him for a determination of petitioner's claim to the Supervisor of Elementary Education position under the proper legal standard.[1]

We therefore affirm the Commissioner's determination to dismiss petitioner's claim to a principal's position, and remand this matter to the Commissioner for further proceedings consistent with our decision herein regarding petitioner's claim to the Supervisor of Elementary Education position.

We do not retain jurisdiction.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

In consolidated matters, petitioning parents contested Board's determination that their children, J.M. and J.M., were not domiciled in Freehold Township and, thus, not entitled to free public education in the Township. Board sought to dismiss petition and to assess petitioners tuition payments for ineligible period of attendance.

ALJ found that petitioners' children were not domiciled within the Township Board's school district and should be excluded from the Board's schools at the conclusion of the 1995-96. ALJ ordered the Borough Board of Education to accept and enroll the children for the 1996-97 school year and thereafter. ALJ concluded that the claim of equitable estoppel against the Board was not appropriate herein. ALJ further concluded that under the facts and circumstances of this matter, petitioners should not be assessed any tuition payments for the period J.M. and J.M. attended the Township Board's schools.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision with modification. Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioners failed to meet their burden of proving by a preponderance of credible evidence that their children were entitled to a free public education in the Township Board's school district. He found that petitioners, pursuant to the requirements set forth under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(2), were liable for tuition for the period of time in which their children were ineligible to attend school in respondent's system. Commissioner agreed with the ALJ that the doctrine of equitable estoppel was not appropriate to employ in this instance. Petition was dismissed and petitioners were ordered to compensate Board for period of ineligible attendance.

Record Closed: May 9, 1996 Decided: May 16, 1996

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners, the parents of J.M. and J.M., two minor children, claim that they pay real estate taxes to both Freehold Borough and Freehold Township and, therefore, their children should be permitted to attend the public schools governed by the Board of Education of the Township of Freehold (Township Board) tuition free. The Township Board, in its Answer and Counter Petition of Appeal, denies that petitioners are domiciled in its school district. The Township Board seeks an order from the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) to dismiss petitioners' petition and assess tuition payments for all periods petitioners' children attended the Township Board's schools when they were ineligible to do so.

The matters were transmitted to the Office of Administrative law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. By way of an order issued by this tribunal dated August 22, 1995, the matters were consolidated. Prehearing conferences were held on December 24, 1995 and June 15, 1995. The hearing scheduled for November 13, 1995, was adjourned and rescheduled for April 29 and 30, 1996. The hearing was held on April 29, 1996, and the parties requested leave to submit post hearing memoranda. The last submission was received on May 9, 1996, which constitutes the closing of the hearing record.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this tribunal are these:

1. Whether petitioners are domiciled within the jurisdiction of the Township of Freehold?

2. If not, what tuition is due and owing the Township Board for the education of petitioner's children?

FINDINGS OF FACT

Base upon the testimony and other evidence adduced at the hearing and having given fair weight thereto, I FIND the following FACTS:

Petitioners, Harry Scott Mount and Lorelei Mount, husband and wife, in or about August 23, 1988, purchased the property known as 134 Center Street, Freehold, New Jersey. The property consists of two parcels known as Lot 46, Block 43, Tax Map of the Township of Freehold; Lot 3, Block 70, Tax Map of the Borough of Freehold (P-4). The two story frame dwelling sits on Lot 3, Block 70 in the Borough of Freehold (R-1, R-2). The dwelling is located approximately 20 feet from Center Street with a concrete walk leading to a wood covered porch. Behind the dwelling lies a wood deck attached to the rear of the house. There is also an above ground swimming pool located on Lot 3, Block 70, in Freehold Borough. On the Township side of the property, Lot 46, Block 43, are two truck containers used as sheds (R-2).

In February or March 1991, Petitioner Lorelei Mount enrolled her daughter, J.M., in the Township Board's public kindergarten school. She testified that the children of the prior owners of the property known as 134 Center Street, attended the Township public schools, which was a consideration for the purchase of the property. When petitioner enrolled J.M. in the Township school she was required to submit J.M.'s medical records, birth certificate and proof of residence. Petitioner supplied the school with all of the necessary documentation, supplying it with copies of her utility bills and driver license issued by the New Jersey Department of Motor Vehicles. The driver license and utility bills indicated petitioner's residence to be 134 Center Street, Freehold, New Jersey. There was no distinction between the Township or Borough indicated on the documents petitioner presented to the Township Board's authorities nor was there any indication by the Township school authorities that J.M.'s enrollment was improper.

J.M. attended the Township Board's schools for kindergarten and grade one without any notice that her attendance was improper. J.M. traveled to her school by way of the Township Board's school bus, which stopped in front of petitioner's home. When J.M. attended school in September 1993, for her second grade education, the school authorities did not advise petitioner that J.M.'s attendance was improper.

In October 1993, while J.M. was enrolled in second grade, petitioners received a letter, dated October 13, 1993, from the Township Board's attorney. The Board's attorney advised petitioners that their home was located in Freehold Borough and, therefore, J.M. was not entitled to attend the Township's schools (P-3).

Petitioner Lorelei Mount testified, without any proofs, that subsequent to receipt of the Board's attorney's letter of October 13, 1993, she spoke with a principal of the Borough's schools. She asserted that the Borough school principal would not accept J.M. as a pupil because there was no change of address.

Subsequent to petitioner's receipt of the attorney's October 13, 1993 letter, petitioner Lorelei Mount registered her son, J.M., at the Township Board's Burlington Elementary School where his sister, J.M. attended. Petitioner asserted she registered her son upon the advise of the school's principal.

Petitioner admits that she is registered to vote in Freehold Borough and that she and her husband pay taxes on their home to Freehold Borough. They also pay taxes to Freehold Township on the parcel of land that contains the sheds.

LEGAL ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

PETITIONER'S POSITION

POINT I

NOTIONS OF EQUITABLE ESTOPPEL PRECLUDE RESPONDENT FROM PREVENTING JESSICA AND JOSEPH MOUNT FROM CONTINUING THEIR EDUCATION IN THE FREEHOLD TOWNSHIP SCHOOL SYSTEM FOR THE REMAINDER OF THE 1995/1996 SCHOOL YEAR.

The doctrine of equitable estoppel is applied "only in very compelling circumstances," Timber Properties, Inc. V. Chester Twp., 205 N.J. Super. 273, 278 (Law Div. 1984): where the interests of justice, morality and common fairness clearly dictate that course. Gruber v. The Mayor and Township Comm. Of Raritan Twp., 39 N.J. 1, 13 (1962). See also Palantine I v. Planning Bd., 133 N.J. 546, 560 (1983).

In In Re Allstate Insurance Co., 179 N.J. Super. 581, 583 (App. Div. 1981), the New Jersey Appellate Division recognized that estoppel may be evoked against public bodies "to prevent manifest wrong and misjustice and where it would not hinder or prejudice essential governmental functions."

The New Jersey Supreme Court in Palantine, supra., set forth the requisite elements for establishing a claim of equitable estoppel. The Palantine Court stated that a plaintiff needs to prove substantial detrimental reliance, justified and reasonable reliance, and prejudice sufficient to permit a Court to apply the estoppel doctrine in order to fairly balance the competing interests of the parties. Palantine I, at 563.

In the instant matter, Mr. and Mrs. Mount certainly have justifiably and reasonably relied on the Freehold Township school officials' initial acceptance and registration of J.M. as a student in the Township school system. J.M. enrolled in kindergarten in the Township school system in 1991. Upon completing the necessary registration forms, Mrs. Mount provided the Township school officials with her correct address. Moreover, Mr. and Mrs. Mount received their first notice from the Township Board regarding J.M.'s ineligibility more than two (2) years after J.M.'s enrollment at the Township school. In addition, this tribunal must take note of the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Mount and J.M. are greatly prejudiced by the action taken by the Board in that had Mrs. Mount known prior to enrolling J.M. in the Township school that she belonged in the Borough school, the Mounts could have enrolled their children in the Borough system. However, as a result of the Board's failure to bring the present matter to the Mounts' attention at the appropriate time, i.e., upon Mrs. Mount registering J.M. into kindergarten at the Township school, the Borough schools will not now accept the Mount children.

Mrs. Mount spoke with a Freehold Borough school official to inquire whether she could transfer J.M. to the Freehold Borough school. The Borough school official informed her that he believed the Borough school would not accept J.M. for two reasons: (1) the Township school had already accepted J.M. in 1991; and (2) the Borough schools accept transfer students upon a change of residence. The Mounts have resided at the same address during these entire proceedings.

It is apparent that the only persons who are looking out for the best interests and well being of J.M., the daughter, and J.M., the son, are their parents. J.M., the daughter, has been attending the Township school for four (4) years now, and J.M., the son enrolled in the Township school at the start of the present school year. J.M. and J.M. are both familiar with the Township school and have established friendships with their fellow students and with their teachers. Also, the Mount children are involved in activities and developed many interests. J.M. the daughter is now nine years old. J.M. the son has already begun kindergarten. It would be quite disruptive, to say the least, if J.M. and J.M. were forced to transfer schools in mid-school year. Moreover, a Township school official advised the Mounts to register J.M. the son in the Township school and allow the instant matter run its course.

As there is no New Jersey case law on point regarding equitable estoppel as it applies to school districts and their policy regarding alleged non-resident students, the Court may look to other jurisdictions for guidance.

In Burdick v. Independent School Dist., 702 P. 2d 48, 53 (Okla. 1985), the Court held that two school districts were estopped from compelling the threatened transfer of the children from the one school district to another. This holding was predicated on the fact that the children obtained the status of de facto students of a school district.

The issue in Burdick was whether under the facts of such case, there was some prevailing public interest which will except it from the Oklahoma rule that estoppel does not apply against the State, political subdivisions or agencies, unless such action would further some principal of public policy or interest. New Jersey case law also recognizes a similar principle. The Burdick Court stated that facts and circumstances surrounding the Burdick children's situation "...impel us to conclude that the students occupied the status of de facto Mid-Del students." Burdick, at 53.

The Court in Burdick noted that "protection of such a de facto status implicates sufficient public policy considerations to afford here a basis for interposing estoppel against a public agency." Burdick, at 54. The Burdick Court defines de facto student as follows:

> One who, upon full and truthful disclosure of information concerning his entitlement to the educational services sought, was accepted, without reservation, as legally qualified for enrollment, although there was then in existence a later-discovered legal infirmity. Id. At 53.

The facts in Burdick are as follows:

The Burdick children attended school in the Mid-Del School District for a five-year period. Burdick, at 51. During such period, their attendance was unquestioned. Id. at 52. Upon learning that the Burdicks lived in District 89, and not in the Mid-Del School District, the officials at the Mid-Del School District informed the Burdicks that their children could not attend their schools "because the boundary line on which they lived had been changed." Id. Furthermore, the Court in Burdick, noted that "the Burdicks," after full and truthful disclosure, entertained an honest belief, kindled and acquiesced on by Mid-Del and District 89 officials, that they lived in the Mid-Del School District." Id. at 53. The Burdicks purchased their home and enrolled their children in the Mid-Del school district based upon their belief that this was the proper school district. Id. at 55. Additionally, the Burdick court took into consideration that the Mid-Del school buses passed right by the Burdicks' house; the Burdick children rode the Mid-Del buses; and the Burdicks voted in Mid-Del School District elections. Id. at 53.

In Burdick, the District 89 School District argued that the application of the estoppel argument was contrary to Oklahoma's public policy regarding school districts in that "students generally must attend schools maintained by the school district in which they reside." Id. However, the Burdick, Court reasoned that:

> the public interest clearly favoring the position of the Burdicks is that of ... promoting continuity of attendance once a residential status had been honestly established and openly maintained in a given school system, and there has been no intervening change in its legal boundaries. Id. at 54.

The Burdicks "honestly established and openly maintained" a residential status in the Mid-Del school district. Clearly, there are many similarities between the case at bar and Burdick. In the instant case, a minor child was enrolled in the Township school for two years before the Freehold Township school district sought any action. Even though the time frame in Burdick was a five-year period, (Burdick, at 52) the Mount child has suffered detrimental reliance in that she spent two years enrolled in the Freehold Township school system, which the Court must regard as a significant amount of time, especially considering the age of the child.

As in Burdick, J.M.'s attendance at the Township school during this two-year period was unquestioned. The children, in Burdick, rode the Mid-Del bus. The Mount children ride the Freehold Township school buses to school. In addition, as in Burdick, the Mounts disclosed all information regarding the location of their residence and did so honestly and openly. Therefore, when the officials at Freehold Township school district noted the Mounts' address, it should have questioned them as to whether they lived in the Borough or the Township. In Burdick, the Burdicks enrolled their children in the Mid-Del school district based upon the belief that that was the proper school district. Likewise, the Mounts enrolled their children in the Township schools base upon the belief that they were eligible to attend such schools; Mr. and Mrs. Mount pay taxes to Freehold Township, and their property located in Freehold Township is adjacent to the Borough property and has improvements on it, i.e., a vegetable garden, toys, etc.

The New York Supreme Court, Appellate Division, addressed a similar issue in Crowe v. McFarland, 525 N.Y.S. 2nd 429 (App. Div. #3 Dept. 1988). The Crowe court held that the motivation of land owners in purchasing an adjoining lot in another school district, so that the school district boundary would run between two parcels, was immaterial with respect to their right to choose the district in which they would enroll their children. Crowe, at 431. The court in Crowe also held that the fact the deed by which the land owners conveyed the two lots to themselves as a single parcel might be inoperative, it did not alter the fact that they owned land on which their residence was located and through which the school district boundary ran. Id.

The issue in Crowe was whether the petitioners, the land owners, qualified for the statutory designation under Education, Law Section 3230(1). Id. at 430. Education Law Section 3203(1) provides in relevant part:

> ...when the division line between adjoining school districts intersects property on which a single-family dwelling unit is located, the owner-occupant of such dwelling may designate a school in either of such districts as the school his children will attend, with all of the school privileges afforded resident pupils, without payment of tuition. Crowe at 430.

The facts surrounding the Crowe matter are as follows:

In June, 1995, the petitioners purchased a single-family home located on a 4-acre parcel in Canajorharie, Montgomery County, New York. They resided there with their three children. Id. at 430. According to the Real Property Tax Map of Montgomery County, the 4-acre parcel was located wholly within the Cherry Valley School District, within the boundary line between the Cherry Valley School District and The Canajorharie School District (hereinafter "Canajorharie") running along a part of the eastern boundary line of petitioner's land. Id. In July 1985, petitioners gave the required statutory notice naming Canajorharie as the school district of choice for their children to attend during the 1985-1986 school year. Id. On September 26, 1985, after their children already began classes at Canajorharie, the respondent, the Board of Education of Canajorharie Central School District (hereinafter "Board"), rejected the designation on the basis that the petitioners property was "bounded" but not intersected by the boundary line between the two school districts." Id. Therefore, the Board assessed non-resident tuition against the petitioners and allowed their children to attend Canajorharie for the entire 1985-1986 school year.

On January 15, 1986, petitioners purchased a 0.1-acre parcel which adjoined their 4-acres on the East, along the boundary lines separating the two school districts. The following day, petitioners executed a deed as grantors conveying the land that they previously owned and the additional parcel bought the day before to themselves as grantees. The deed described the parcels as one single parcel. According to Montgomery County's Real Property Tax Map, the boundary line between the two school districts thus intersected petitioners' original 4-acres and the 0.1-acre lot purchased in January 1986.

In July 1986 petitioners again gave written notice to the Board naming Canajorharie for attendance by their children in the 1986-1987 school year. However, the Board refused to admit the children unless the petitioners paid the prior year's tuition bill. Id. at 430. The Crowe court, upon review of the statutory language, agreed that the motivation of an owner in purchasing in an adjoining parcel which crosses a school district boundary is immaterial. Id. at 431. While the Crowe court noted the Lower Court's concern that the Board's tuition would be frustrated by such a transaction, the Court observed that the Education Law provided a mechanism to ensure that any school taxes collected be forwarded to the school district actually providing the education services. Id. at 431.

The Board in Crowe argued that since the petitioners' residence was located only on the original parcel, the statutory intersection requirement was not satisfied. Id. However, the Crowe court recognized that the petitioners "do own taxable property, albeit required through separate deeds, on which their residence is located and through which the boundary line between the two school districts run." Id. The court in Crowe, in defining relevant taxable property owned by the petitioners, recognized that the entire contiguous parcel on which the residence is located, i.e. both the 4-acre and 0.1 acre parcels should be considered. Therefore, the Crowe court found that according to the Montgomery County Real Property Tax Map, the boundary line between the two school districts intersects the contiguous lots owned by petitioners on which their home is located. Thus, the Crowe court found that according to the Montgomery County Real Property Tax Map, the boundary line between the two school districts intersects the contiguous lots owned by petitioners on which their home is located. Thus, the Crowe court compelled the Board to admit petitioners' children as resident students of the Canajorharie School District. Id. at 430-31.

The facts in Crowe are similar to the facts in the instant matter with respect to the ownership of taxable property. In Crowe, the petitioners' own taxable property on which their residence is located and through which the boundary line separates the school districts. Likewise, the Mounts' property lies in both Freehold Township and Freehold Borough. The Mounts' property is listed in a single deed as being "in the Township of Freehold and in Freehold Borough." Moreover, the Mounts pay property taxes to the Township of Freehold, which include an assessment for school tax. Therefore, this tribunal must order the Board to admit J.M. and J.M. as resident students of the Township of Freehold School District.

Although there is not an ordinance in New Jersey that provides the relief provided in Education Law Section 3203 (1) Crowe court's rationale is instructive.

Accordingly, equity requires that the Board be estopped from requiring the children to transfer school in mid-year. Mr. and Mrs. Mount honestly believed that their children belonged in the Township school for the aforementioned reasons. However, if this tribunal finds that that J.M. and J.M. are ineligible and should not remain in the Freehold Township school system, then this tribunal should order the Borough schools' Board of Education to accept the Mount children. In addition, Mr. and Mrs. Mount should not be assessed any tuition for the years J.M. and J.M, attended the Freehold Township schools in that the Mounts detrimentally relied upon the Township's initial acceptance of J.M. into their schools.

POINT II

ASSUMING ARGUENDO, THAT THE COURT FINDS THAT THE MOUNT CHILDREN ARE NON-RESIDENTS OF FREEHOLD TOWNSHIP, THE BOARD MUST BE EQUITABLY ESTOPPED FROM COLLECTING BACK TUITION AND PREJUDGMENT INTEREST FROM MR. AND MRS. MOUNT.

The Freehold Township Board of Education must be equitably estopped from collecting tuition and prejudgement interest allegedly owed by Mr. and Mrs. Mount for their children's allegedly improper enrollment in the Township schools. As previously noted in Point One Petitioners' Brief, the Mounts enrolled J.M. in the Township school after the school officials granted her application. The Mounts could have attempted to enroll their daughter in the Freehold Borough school system had she been advised immediately by the Township school officials that an issue existed as to which school system the children belonged. The Board accepted J.M. as a student in the Township school for the two years following her initial registration. In 1993, the Board, for the first time, informed the Mounts that they must remove their child from the Township school and pay tuition for those two years during which she was allegedly ineligible as a student.

Again, as there is no New Jersey Case Law regarding this issue we may look to other jurisdictions for guidance. In Teel v. Hamilton-Wendlam Regional School Dist., 433 N.E. 2nd 907 (App. Div. 1982), the Appeals Court of Massachusetts concluded that the Teel child was not a resident of Hamilton but that the school district was not entitled to reimbursement for tuition. In 1971 the Teels purchased a house located on a Hamilton-Essex town line. Although portions of their house are located in Hamilton and in Essex, the house itself is almost fully located in Essex. On May 3, 1971, Mrs. Teel filled out an application from for her son's attendance in kindergarten class in the Hamilton public school system. Teel at 908. In 1975, she sought her daughter's enrollment in kindergarten.

In late August of 1975, a bus driver for the Hamilton School District, while laying out his bus routes for the kindergarten children, noticed that the town line had to be crossed to pick up the Teel's daughter. He notified the school authorities, who then notified Mrs. Teel and commenced an action to exclude the Teel children from its schools. Id. At 909. During the proceedings, Mrs. Teel testified that, "I do everything I can do within the law, as far as I know, to reside in Hamilton." Id.

The Teel Court examined the Trial Judge's findings and noted that:

> The Judge found that from 1971 forward '[e]veryone here involved has acted in good faith' and that the '[p]laintiff has not mislead the defendent.' As to [the Teel's son's] educational cost from 1971 through 1975, the judge further found that 'a separate reason for such denial is that all the facts were available to both parties during these years, yet the defendant educated [the Teel's son] as a resident of Hamilton.' [The trial Judge] concluded '[s]ince both parties treated [the Teel son] as a resident of Hamilton during those years, the defendant cannot now ask for payment for that education.' Id. at 910.

The Teel court held that the school district was not entitled to recover tuition for a student's attendance where the student's ineligibility to attend that school district was based on good faith but incorrect assumption that the student was a resident of that district. The Teel court stated:

> 'the blunders now being corrected, the verities of the transaction are revealed as they were from the beginning. We think the better view is that in the light of its present knowledge the court will stay its hand and leave the parties where it finds them.' Teel at 912, quoting Atlantic Coast Line RY v. Florida, 295 U.S. 301, 314, 55 S. Ct. 713, 718, 79 L. Ed. 1451 (1935).

Therefore, the Hamilton School District was not entitled to recovered tuition for the Teel child's attendance.

The instant matter and the Teel action are similar in that the children's attendance in their respective school districts was based on a good faith but incorrect assumption that the children were residents of that school district. The Petitioners' Brief provides a thorough account of the facts and events which led the Mounts to believe that their daughter and son were properly attending the Township School System.

It is respectfully submitted that the Board's request for tuition for those periods of time when J.M. and J.M. were allegedly ineligible to attend the Township school is beyond all notions of justice and fairness for several reasons.

Mr. and Mrs. Mount pay property taxes to the Township of Freehold, which includes an assessment for school taxes.

Furthermore, the Board did not decide that J.M. was no longer to be enrolled as a pupil in the Township school until 1993. This tribunal should not permit the Board to collect tuition for the time period the Mount children attended the Township school as both the Board and the Mounts believed that J.M. was properly enrolled in the Township school.

Moreover, J.M. and J.M. should be permitted to attend the Township school tuition-free until this matter is resolved. It would not be in the best interests of either child to remove them from school during these proceedings as it would greatly disrupt their education and learning experience. Moreover, the Freehold Borough schools would not accept J.M. as a transfer student because she initially enrolled and was accepted into the Township school system in 1991. Also, a Township school official advised the Mounts to enroll J.M. the son in the Township school system. Therefore, where were J.M. and J.M. supposed to attend school?

In addition, the Board is not entitled to pre-judgment interest pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16 as is claimed in the Board's Counter-Petitioner. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16 states in pertinent part:

> pre-judgment interest shall be awarded by the Commissioner when he or she has concluded that the denial of the monetary claim was an action taken in bad faith and/or had been determined to have been taken in deliberate violation of statute or rule.

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c). The evidence will show that the Mounts have neither acted in bad faith nor deliberately violated a statute or rule as required by the Code. At all times, the Mounts have been open and forthright with their address. The record is devoid of any facts which would support a pre-judgment interest award.

Therefore, the Board should be estopped from collecting tuition from Mr. and Mrs. Mount for the years 1991 to the present. The Board's inaction, coupled with the honesty of the Mounts in disclosing their proper address, as well as their payment of property taxes (which includes school taxes) prohibits the Board from seeking of back tuition for the attendance of J.M. and J.M. in the Township of Freehold school system.

THE BOARD'S POSITION

POINT I

THE PHYSICAL LOCATION OF THE PETITIONER'S HOUSE IN FREEHOLD BOROUGH IS DISPOSITIVE OF THE ISSUE OF DOMICILE.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b), petitioner bears the burden of establishing domicile within the respondent's school district by a preponderance of the evidence. The uncontroverted evidence of the respondent placing the petitioner's abode entirely within the boundaries of Freehold Borough is prima facie evidence of domicile.

In Laufer v. Board of Education of the Township of Scotch-Plains-Fanwood Regional School District, 1970 SLD 424, the Commissioner was faced with a situation where petitioners property straddled two municipalities. The entrance to the property was in Scotch Plains, but the home itself was located entirely in Plainfield. The Commissioner observed:

> In the instant matter, it is clear that petitioners' true permanent home is entirely situate on land in Plainfield. The Commissioner holds that the fact that another piece of land in another municipality is contiguous with the land on which petitioners house rests, the whole comprising petitioners property, is of no importance in a determination of where petitioners children are domiciled. Their domicile is clearly in Plainfield. In this place, the family abides, and the fact is prima facie evidence that this is the place of their legal residence. Lea v. Lea, 28 N.J. Super. 290 (1953); Snyder v. Callahan, 3 N.J. Mis. Rep. 269; Brueckmann v. Frignica, 152A 780, 9 N.J. Mis. 128 (1931); Marsteller v. White, 1938 S.L.D. 30, Laufer 1970 S.L.D. at 427.

In Duckett v. Max Shaw Superintendent of Schools and Board of Education of South Orange-Maplewood, 1978 S.L.D. 411, the Commissioner followed Laufer notwithstanding stipulated facts demonstrating ties by the petitioner to the district in which they sought to have their children educated.

Petitioner in Duckett voted in South Orange, their property received municipal services from South Orange and fronted on South Orange. Petitioners attended church in South Orange and their social, personal and business affiliations were all in South Orange. Their property was in both South Orange and in the City of Orange. However, petitioners home was entirely located in the City of Orange. Notwithstanding all the other indicia of domicile to the contrary, the Commissioner held:

> The Commissioner finds that petitioners true permanent home is entirely situated on land in the City of Orange (J-1). The Commissioner determines that the facts in the instant matter are so similar to those in Laufer supra. To render petitioners claims stare decisis and so holds. Accordingly, the petitions dismissed and the Commissioner enters summary judgment on behalf of the South Orange Maplewood Board of Education. 1978 S.L.D. at 412-413.

POINT II

IF THE PETITIONERS HAVE NOT PROVEN THEIR DOMICILE IN FREEHOLD TOWNSHIP, TUITION AND PREJUDGMENT INTEREST MUST BE AWARDED.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) states in pertinent part as follows:

> ...If in the judgment of the Commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the resident, he shall assess the resident tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the school district. See also Fort Lee Board of Education v. Kintos93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU 837, 843) (Commissioner has power to assess tuition).

The term "shall" when used in a statute is construed as being mandatory and imperative not directory and there is no discretion to do otherwise than the statute commands. Swiney v. Department of Treasury, Division of Pensions, 84 N.J. Super. 186 (App. Div. 1984), State v. Duva, 192 N.J. Super. (Law Div. 1983).

The statute requires payment for all periods of ineligible attendance. As the statutory notes to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 indicate, the district is:

> ... required to be paid for period of ineligible attendance rather than for periods of time beginning with the board's request for a sworn statement.

While the statutory note deals with the situation contemplated by a child living with one other that the parent pursuant to a sworn statement, the intent is clear that the Board's inaction is not an estoppel or bar to recovery. In this case, the Board can not be estopped for periods of time prior to the board's discovery of the non-domiciling status of the petitioner.

Even from a purely equitable rather than legal viewpoint, it would make no sense to do otherwise. Where as here the petitioners only indicated their residence as Freehold rather than Freehold Township or Freehold Borough as between the two parties, petitioners were in a better position to know the true municipality of domicile. In fact, R-1 in evidence, the survey obtained by the petitioners on purchasing their property, clearly shows petitioners abode as being in Freehold Borough. The petitioner possessed this knowledge at the time of registration of their first child and are chargeable with knowledge of the legal effect of the survey.

Estoppel prohibits a party from repudiation of a previously taken position when another party has relied on that position to his detriment. Housing Authority of the City of Atlantic City v. State, 188 N.J. Super. 145 (Ch. Div. 1983). The idea being that it is inequitable for a party to change the rules of the game after inducing the other to rely on something else. Here the petitioner led the Board to believe she was a domiciliary by failing to disclose her true status for which she is chargeable with knowledge. She can not now be heard to say that because the Board was duped into acquiescence, that this acquiescence is binding on the Board. Finally, in regard to prejudgment interest, the same should be awarded pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c)1 as there was no basis for the Mount's to deny payment of tuition to the Board due to the fact that petitioners knew from the time they obtained their survey in 1988 that their home was entirely situate in Freehold Borough and have presented no evidence in contravention. This litigation served only to prolong the period of time that petitioners children would attend respondent's school district.

DISCUSSIONS AND CONCLUSIONS

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, petitioners have the burden of proof, by a preponderance of the evidence, that their children are eligible for a free public education in the Board's schools. Petitioners failed to carry their burden in the instant matter. Rather, petitioners contend that there was no question of impropriety raised by the Board's personnel when they enrolled their daughter, J.M., in the Board's elementary school. In fact, they assert, they were led to believe that their conduct was at all times proper and in accordance with the law when the Board continued to allow J.M. to be enrolled in its schools. As a consequence of the Board's actions, petitioners now claim that it is estopped from asserting its claim that their children are illegally enrolled or that petitioners are responsible for any tuition payments to the Board.

Equitable estoppel operates to prevent a party from disavowing its previous conduct if such a repudiation would violate the demands of justice and good conscience. Carslen v. Masters, Mates and Pilots Pension Plan Trust, 80 N.J. 334, 339 (1979); Connel v. American Funding Ltd., 231 N.J. Super. 409, 416 (Ch. Div. 1987). Equitable estoppel can arise from any type of "conduct of a party, using that word in its broadest meaning as including his spoken or written words, his positive acts, and his silence or negative omission to do anything." State v. U.S. Steel Corp., 22 N.J., 341, 358 (1956), quoting from 3 Pomeroy on Equity Jurisprudence ξ802 (5th ed. 1941); Royal Association v. Concannon, 200 N.J. Super. 84, 92 App. Div. 1985) (Landlord's express permission to allow tenant to obtain and keep dog was sufficient to bind landlord).

Petitioners acknowledge that estoppel is not applied as readily against a governmental entity as against a private party. See Guidebook to Chancery Practice in New Jersey, Hon. William A. Dreier, J.A.D. (3rd ed. 1991). Notwithstanding, petitioners contend that the Board's inaction for two years while their daughter J.M. attended its schools and its school bus picked up and delivered J.M. to school and home precludes the Board from now excluding both of their children from its schools or from assessing any tuition payments from them.

The facts in this matter demonstrate that petitioners' children are not bona fide residents nor domiciled within the Board's school district. The facts clearly show that petitioners' residence lies within the jurisdiction of Freehold Borough and not within Freehold Township. Petitioners have failed to show that the Board or its agents knew that petitioners' children were attending its school illegally. In the matter of I.P. v. Leonia Borough Board of Education, 63 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU)128, the parents of a nonresidential pupil were ordered by the Commissioner to pay tuition for the period the pupil illegally attended the respondent's schools.

Having carefully considered the entire record before me, and in light of the Commissioner's holding in Laufer, supra., I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioners' children, J.M. and J.M., are not domiciled within the Board's school district.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioners' children should be excluded from the Board's schools at the conclusion of the 1995-96 school year and enrolled in the Board of Education of the Borough of Freehold public schools commencing with the 1996-97 school year.

I CONCLUDE that the claim of equitable estoppel against the Board is not appropriate here and, therefore, petitioners' arguments in support thereof are hereby rejected.

I FURTHER CONCLUDE that, under the facts and circumstances of this matter, petitioners should not be assessed any tuition payments for the period J.M. and J.M. attended the Board's schools. Nor should petitioners be liable for any prejudgment interest costs.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that petitioners children shall be excluded from attendance at the Board's school commencing at the close of the 1995-96 school year.

It is ORDERED that the Board of Education of the Borough of Freehold accept and enroll petitioners children for the 1996-97 and thereafter as legally domiciled within the Borough of Freehold.

It is FURTHER ORDERED that the Board of Education of the Township of Freehold assess no penalties or tuition payments against petitioners.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF FREEHOLD, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and petitioners' reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board excepts to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) failure to assess petitioners with penalties and tuition. Underscoring the non-discretionary language set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(2)[1], the Board argues, "The term 'shall' when used in a statute is construed as being mandatory and imperative  and there is no discretion to do otherwise [than] the statute commands." (citations omitted) (Board's Exceptions at p. 2) Thus, inasmuch as the ALJ concluded that petitioners had not met their burden to demonstrate that their children were entitled to a free public education, and the ALJ further found that the doctrine of equitable estoppel was not appropriately applied in this matter, the ALJ should have assessed petitioners tuition. In this regard, the Board further asserts that the ALJ failed to note in his initial decision that document R-3, "a summary of calculations prepared and testified to by the Respondent's Business Administrator, W. Mark Horvath, which calculated Respondent's claim for tuition for the two children involved at $32,706.00 through April 16, 1996 " was admitted into evidence. (Id. at pp. 1, 2)

[1] The statute reads, in pertinent part, "If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the parent or guardian, the commissioner shall assess the parent or guardian tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district." (emphasis added)

In response, petitioners assert that the ALJ properly concluded that neither penalties nor tuition should be assessed in this instance. Petitioners identify the following findings of fact which, they contend, support the ALJ's conclusion: that L.M. enrolled her daughter in the Board's school system in 1991; that L.M. testified the prior owners of her home sent their children to respondent's school system; that, upon enrolling J.M., L.M. provided all necessary documentation; that L.M.'s driver's license and utility bill offer no distinction between Freehold Township and Freehold Borough; that J.M. attended kindergarten and first grade in the Township without any notice that her attendance was improper; that the Board's bus picked up J.M. in front of petitioners' home each day; that after receiving the Board's notice of October 13, 1993, petitioner was told by the Borough's school principal that J.M. would not be accepted to a school in the Borough; that petitioners' son was registered in the Board's school system after its notice of October 13, 1993; and that petitioners pay taxes to Freehold Township on the parcel of land they own which contains several sheds. (Petitioner's Reply at pp. 1, 2)

Petitioners further claim that they have been "unduly prejudiced by the Township's excessive delay [in] notifying them as to this issue ." (Id. at p. 3) Petitioners emphasize that they have not intentionally or fraudulently sent their children to the Township schools, knowing that they reside in another district. Rather, they relied upon the Board's acceptance of their daughter, J.M., into its system and the subsequent acceptance of their son when "the Township was fully aware of its position as to the [M.] children's alleged inability for enrollment there." (Id.) Thus, petitioners urge the Commissioner to adopt the initial decision of the ALJ.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner determines to affirm the initial decision of the ALJ, with modification. While the Commissioner concurs that petitioners have failed to meet their burden of proving by a preponderance of credible evidence that their children are entitled to a free public education in respondent's school system, he finds and determines that petitioners, pursuant to the requirements set forth under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(2) are liable for tuition for the period of time in which their children were ineligible to attend school in respondent's system.

The Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that the doctrine of equitable estoppel is not appropriate to employ in this instance. (Initial Decision at p. 22) As petitioners themselves recognize, estoppel may be applied "against public bodies only to prevent 'manifest wrong and injustice' ." In re Allstate Insurance Co., supra, at 593. The Commissioner notes that "[t]he applicability of the doctrine of estoppel against public agencies and officials is quite limited, [so as] to guard against use thereof to injure the public interest." Tubridy v. Consolidated Police and Fireman's Pension Commission, 84 N.J. Super. 257, 264 (App. Div 1964). Thus, it is necessary to weigh the nature and extent of petitioners' reliance upon the Board's action or inaction against the public interests involved. (Id.) In the instant matter, it is undisputed that the Board accepted and enrolled J.M. in its school system for the 1991-92 school year and that petitioners provided the requisite documents upon such enrollment. That the Board, however, was silent until October 13, 1993 does not necessarily justify the operation of estoppel, absent a showing by petitioners that the Board was aware of petitioners' violation and did not act, (see Kennedy v. City of Newark, 29 N.J. 178, 191,192 (1959)), or that petitioners reasonably relied on the Board's (or its agent's) affirmative representation that enrollment in the District, given petitioners' residency status, was proper.[2] See Atlantic City Housing Auth. v. State, supra, at 149; Foley Machinery Co. v. Amland Contractors, Inc., 209 N.J. Super. 70, 75 (App. Div. 1986). Here, mere acquiescence is insufficient to buttress an estoppel claim.

Further, petitioners were aware upon the purchase of their property in 1988 that the property straddled the Borough and Township lines (Exhibits P-1 and P-4). They do not dispute that their dwelling is entirely situated in the Borough of Freehold. Additionally, petitioners pay taxes on their home to Freehold Borough, and petitioner L.M. admits that she is registered to vote in the Borough. (Initial Decision at p. 4) As the Board indicates, the petitioners were, therefore, in a better position to know the true municipality of their domicile. (Id. at p. 19)

The Commissioner finds that under the circumstances in this matter, to prevent the Township Board from taking action to remove petitioners' children from its school system, or to prevent the Board from collecting tuition, by application of estoppel would offend the public's interest in ensuring that local boards of education are charged with educating only those children

[2] The record shows that petitioners' sought to have their son admitted for the 1995-96 school year, after the initial Petition of Appeal was filed in this matter. On July 18, 1995, the Board notified petitioners that their son could not be admitted, in that he was not domiciled in the District. (Petitioner's Post-hearing Brief at p. 2 and Board's Post-hearing Brief at p. 1) The Board advised petitioners of their right to contest its determination, stating also, "You should be further advised that if the Petition is filed and the child is admitted, the Board will seek tuition from you for all periods of ineligible attendance in the event that the Commissioner rules in favor of the Board." (Board's letter dated July 18, 1995) Petitioner then filed a second Petition of Appeal on behalf of her son, which was later consolidated with the first petition, at the request of the parties. The Board warrants, "Petitioner's son was admitted to the Freehold Township Schools pending a determination on these matters." (Board's Post-hearing Brief at p. 1)

whose parents/guardians are domiciliaries of the district. Consequently, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(2), the Commissioner must find that petitioners are liable to the Board for tuition for J.M. and J.M. from the start of the 1991-92 school year through the end of the 1995-96 school year.[3] However, in consideration of the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16 for awarding pre-judgment interest, the Commissioner declines to so assess petitioners.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is affirmed, with modification, as set forth above. The Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed, and petitioners are ordered to compensate the Board in an amount equal to tuition due and owing for the attendance of J.M. and J.M. in the Board's School District, prorated to the time of their ineligible attendance.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[3] It is herein noted that the Board, while informing petitioners by letter dated October 13, 1993 that J.M. was ineligible to attend school in the District, did not provide petitioners with a hearing until August 24, 1994. Although petitioners do not claim, and the Commissioner will not find, that such delay justifies application of the doctrine of laches to prevent the Board from removing petitioners' children and claiming tuition due, the Commissioner nonetheless admonishes the Board to expeditiously attend to the requirements set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

PETITIONERS-APPELLANTS,

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF FREEHOLD, MONMOUTH COUNTY,

RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, July 15, 1996

For the Petitioners-Appellants, Ronald W. Sage, Esq.

For the Respondent-Respondent, Martin J. Anton, Esq.

In August 1988, petitioners, H.M. and L.M., purchased a property on Center Street in Freehold. The property consisted of two parcels, one of which was located in Freehold Township and the other in Freehold Borough. The house was situated entirely on the parcel located in the Borough. The parcel located on the Township side of the property contained two truck containers used as sheds. In 1991, petitioners enrolled their daughter, J.M., in kindergarten in the Township's public schools for the 1991-92 school year and supplied the district with proof of residency.

In October 1993, petitioners received a letter from the attorney for the Freehold Township Board of Education (hereinafter "Board" or "Township Board") advising them that since their house was located in Freehold Borough, J.M. was not entitled to attend school in the Township. In August 1994, following a hearing, the Township Board determined that petitioners were not domiciled in the Township and ordered the removal of J.M. from the Township's schools.

In September 1994, petitioners filed the instant petition with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that J.M. should be permitted to attend school in Freehold Township. In July 1995, petitioners filed a second petition, which was consolidated with their initial petition, alleging that their son, J.M., should also be permitted to attend the Township's schools. The Township Board filed a counter-petition seeking tuition from petitioners for the period of their children's ineligible attendance.

On May 16, 1996, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") found that petitioners were not domiciled in the Township since their residence was located within the jurisdiction of Freehold Borough and that petitioners had failed to show that the Township Board had known that their children were attending its schools illegally. Consequently, he recommended that petitioners' children be excluded from the schools of Freehold Township at the conclusion of the 1995-96 school year. The ALJ further found that equitable estoppel was not applicable to these facts. However, he concluded that, under the particular circumstances herein, petitioners should not be assessed tuition.

On July 15, 1996, the Commissioner adopted the ALJ's recommended decision with modification. The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioners had failed to demonstrate that their children were entitled to a free public education in the Township's schools. As a result, the Commissioner concluded that petitioners were liable to the Board for tuition for the 1991-92 through 1995-96 school years, the period during which their children had attended school in the Township. The Commissioner also agreed that equitable estoppel was not applicable in this instance, noting that the Board's silence until October 1993 did not necessarily justify the operation of estoppel absent a showing that the Board had been aware of petitioners' violation and failed to act or that petitioners had reasonably relied on an affirmative representation by the Board that their children's enrollment in the district was proper. The Commissioner found "mere acquiescence...insufficient to buttress an estoppel claim." Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 28.

Petitioners filed the instant appeal to the State Board, contending that the Board should be equitably estopped from recovering tuition for the period at issue under the unique circumstances presented herein.

After a thorough review of the record, including the transcript of the hearing held in the Office of Administrative Law in this matter,[1] we reverse that portion of the Commissioner's decision that directed petitioners to pay tuition to the Township Board for the period of their children's attendance in the Township's schools.

Petitioners' property, as previously noted, consisted of two parcels, one of which was situated in Freehold Township, the other in Freehold Borough. Petitioners provided the Township Board with all requested proofs of residency at the time they enrolled their daughter, J.M., in kindergarten in 1991, and there is nothing in the record to indicate that petitioners had acted with fraudulent intent to mislead the Board into permitting their children to attend school in the Township. Moreover, we stress that petitioner L.M. testified without contradiction that the children of the previous occupants of their home had attended public school in the Township. Tr. 4/29/96, at 15. She indicated that such information was a consideration in their purchasing the property. Id.

Under these particular circumstances, we find that petitioners reasonably relied upon the Township Board's acceptance of their daughter, J.M., as a student in 1991, and conclude that fundamental fairness dictates that the Township Board be estopped from collecting tuition from petitioners for the years of their children's attendance. See East Orange v. Bd. of Water Com'rs., etc., 41 N.J. 6, 19 (1963) (equitable principles of estoppel may be applied against public bodies where the interests of justice, morality and common fairness dictate that course); State, Dept. of Envir. Protection v. Stavola, 103 N.J. 425, 436 n.2 (1986) (any administrative agency in determining how best to effectuate public policy is limited by applying principles of fundamental fairness). Cf. Whasun Lee v. Board of Education of the Township of Holmdel, Docket #A-653-95T5 (App. Div. 1996); Board of Education of the Borough of Fort Lee v. Kintos, Docket #A-4944-93T5 (App. Div. 1995).

Accordingly, we reverse that portion of the Commissioner's decision directing petitioners to pay tuition to the Township Board for the 1991-92 through 1995-96 school years.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

Anthony F. James, petitioner, pro se
New Jersey State Department of Education, respondent, appearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.6

Record Closed: May 15, 1996 Decided: May 29, 1996

BEFORE STEVEN C. REBACK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 5, 1995, the State Board of Education (Board) rendered a decision which remanded this matter to the Commissioner of Education for a hearing in order to provide the petitioner, Anthony F. James, the opportunity to establish a record in support of his contention that he has satisfied the standard for rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. Rehabilitation pursuant to the foregoing statute directs itself to an individual who seeks school employment and who has a criminal history record. Presumably, the Commissioner of Education had determined in advance of the State Board's remand that Mr. James was unable to establish rehabilitation and the Board granted Mr. James's request for a full hearing on the issue, noting in passing that the statute at issue expressly requires consideration of the date of the offense rather than the date of the conviction, which had apparently been relied upon by the Deputy Commissioner when his decision denying Mr. James's effort at demonstrating rehabilitation was rendered. Thereafter, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case on September 20, 1995.

Mr. James's appeal was scheduled to proceed to plenary hearing at the Office of Administrative Law on November 14, 1995. Mr. James did not appear at that time and the matter was returned to the agency as required under N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4. On December 20, 1995, the Commissioner of Education remanded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, indicating that "the record reveals that prior to the hearing, on November 13, 1995, petitioner filed notification that he would not be present at the November 14, 1995 hearing because of job responsibilities." Decision on remand, December 20, 1995 at 1.[1] Thereafter, the matter was rescheduled and heard at the Office of Administrative Law on May 15, 1996, at which time the record in these proceedings closed.

[1] My office never received any communication, of any kind, from Mr. James prior to the November 14, 1995 hearing, or thereafter. In addition, the file does not contain such communication. Had such communication been received by my office, I would have perfunctorily granted the adjournment, given that no appearance by the respondent is necessary in this matter, and no inconvenience would have resulted. I am not at all suggesting that Mr. James did not submit such letter, but I am indeed curious as to how the Commissioner determines that letters sent requesting adjournments to the Office of Administrative Law are indeed sent and are indeed received.

ISSUES AND BURDEN OF PROOF

In order for an individual to demonstrate that he has been rehabilitated such that he is no longer disqualified from school employment or service because of a prior criminal conviction, he must demonstrate the following under subdivision e of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1

> Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, an individual shall not be disqualified from employment or service under this act on the basis of any conviction disclosed by a criminal record check performed pursuant to this act if the individual has affirmatively demonstrated to the Commissioner of Education clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. In determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation, the following factors shall be considered:
> (1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
> (4) The date of the offense;
> (5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;
> (6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
> (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense:
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.

In respect to establishing his rehabilitation, the burden rests solely and exclusively on the petitioner: Mr. James must prove by clear and convincing evidence that he shall no longer be disqualified from school employment on the basis of his prior criminal record.

THE FACTS

Unless otherwise noted, the following is a substantially uncontradicted narrative of the operative facts in these proceedings. If a factual dispute presents itself, I shall set forth its adversarial basis, arrive at an explicit finding of fact, and give reasons to support that finding.

Accordingly, I FIND:

Anthony James, the petitioner, has a criminal record. In or about 1971, while a full-time student at Rutgers University, James was charged with breaking and entering with intent to kidnap. He "turned himself in," according to his testimony, and was placed on 3-months probation. Mr. James was 23 years-old at the time of the charge. Now, some 25 years later, at the age of approximately 48, Mr. James explained the circumstances of the charge.

The incident occurred during the epicenter of the civil rights revolution. On campus during this period was an Organization of Black Students (OBU).[2] James explained that it was an extremist organization and that one of its objectives was to separate Black students from their white counterparts, particularly when members of different races shared a common dormitory. One of its tactics was to harass and threaten Black students, such as James who did share a room with a white student. James and others, after being victimized by this kind of activity, physically entered the room of one of these students and took him out and essentially held him hostage for approximately 4 hours. He admitted that during this time he and others threatened this individual with bodily harm, although no physical harm was ever inflicted. After 4 hours the student was released. As a result of this conduct, James was charged with the crimes previously enumerated, and after he surrendered himself to authorities he was placed on 3 months probation. In addition, Rutgers University suspended him for 1 month and following that suspension in 1973, he was awarded a bachelor of arts degree with a major in political science.

[2] The name of the group is based on my recollection and may not be entirely accurate.

Following his graduation from college, James sunk into a dark hole. During his last years at Rutgers University, he became addicted to heroin, first "mainlining" drugs and then inhaling the substance. As a result of his addiction and the need to support his habit, he became involved in drug trafficking. In 1979, James was arrested and charged with possession heroin with intent to distribute, possession of marijuana, and possession of a weapon - what is described as a sawed-off shotgun.

James explained that the shotgun was an antique family heirloom and although it was operable, it was found in his house as an incident to a search warrant executed by law enforcement and it was unloaded.

It took 3 years for these charges to result in a conviction. In 1982 James was sentenced to 4 years each of the weapons charge and for the heroin charge and 3 years for possession of marijuana, the sentence to run concurrently. In spite of what on the surface are very serious charges, he received a modified sentence on January 8, 1982 handed down by the Honorable Arthur S. Meredith, J.S.C. The sentence and the reasons for it are part of the case file submitted by respondent. It is noted in passing that the judge indicated inter alia that while James had initially denied being a drug user, he since that original denial had admitted his heroin addiction. As a result the Court indicated:

> In light of your otherwise good background and further, in view of the fact that the court is convinced that you are serious about curing your addiction by successfully completing a residential drug program, this court will suspend the sentence heretofore imposed and place you on probation on the condition that you successfully complete a residential drug program.

As a consequence of this sentence, the petitioner entered a drug rehabilitation program, the Integrity House, in Newark, New Jersey and on June 9, 1984 was awarded a certificate of graduation from the program. Based upon his testimony, the petitioner has been drug free since the early 1980s through the intervention of Integrity House and his successfully completing its program. Indeed, from 1982 through February of 1983, Mr. James was employed by Integrity House as intake interviewer/counselor and was responsible for drug counseling and making recommendations to the courts in respect to individuals who were admitted to the program because of substance abuse.

The 1979 offenses previously discussed were the last criminal convictions Mr. James sustained.[3]

From 1985 through 1988 Mr. James served as the Director of the Alternative to Juvenile Incarceration Program under the auspices of the Urban League of Union County. In this capacity, the petitioner was responsible for working with a variety of youngsters who were referred by the Department of Corrections, the Probation Department, the public school system, the courts as well as the Division of Youth and Family Services. These youths presumably had gotten into trouble with the criminal justice system and became part of the Alternative to Juvenile Incarceration Program, in lieu of the possibility of going to prison. Mr. James's resume notes that as Director of the program, he was responsible for developing and supervising its various components; training and developing a program of guided group intervention; creating a model program; and a variety of other aspects of the overall organization.

Sometime previous to this employment, Mr. James also held 2 positions for a short period of time. From 1983 through early 1984, he was employed as an employment specialist/career counselor for the Morrow Project, in New Brunswick, New Jersey. In this capacity Mr. James worked with individuals who had gone through the criminal justice process to assist them in a variety of areas of need such as job placement, trouble shooting, and conducting motivation and self-awareness seminars. At about that same time he also held a position as the Director of training and placement services for the Epilepsy Foundation of New Jersey. The petitioner indicates in his resume that as part of his responsibilities he interfaced with various corporations and the private sector on behalf of his clientele to fight against discrimination in employment and [3] I note that in the file transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, the documents indicate that on October 27, 1993 James was charged with possession of "certain weapons" and the matter was pending in Union Municipal Court. The file nevertheless indicates that the Office of the Prosecutor of Union County dismissed these charges against Mr. James on January 12, 1994, in their entirety. A note in the file also indicates that James's assertion was that there was a knife found in the glove compartment of a family member's automobile. In any event, the 1983 arrest and charges associated with them were withdrawn by the county prosecutor and should not be viewed as evidence of any wrongdoing by the petitioner.

was also responsible for acting as a spokesperson for the Foundation through news conferences, lectures and networking.

From 1988 through to 1990, Mr. James served as the Director of the Youth Partnership Program at the Grant Avenue Community Center in Plainfield, New Jersey. In this position, he worked with high school age youngsters - presumably troubled - referred through the same entities who had referred individuals to the Alternative to Juvenile Incarceration Program. Mr. James was responsible for a variety of the aspects of the program, including its educational component, budgeting, developing a family crisis intervention procedure, and networking with the various public entities from whom the youngsters were recommended.

Mr. James indicated that his last position as the Director of the Youth Partnership Program, ended in 1990 because the political administration under whom he served changed and he was replaced by a representative of the new political administration.

It is clear that from the time that Mr. James successfully completed his drug rehabilitation program and began his employment as an intake interviewer and counselor for that program - Integrity House - the petitioner's professional goals were intertwined with social consciousness, reform, and working within the system to assist troubled youngsters and those in need. He continued to maintain this objective following the loss of his position as Director of the Youth Partnership Program but, as he indicated in his testimony, as the decade of the 90s began the source of funding for many of these publicly funded programs simply evaporated. As a consequence, he experienced enormous difficulties in continuing his pursuit of employment in the areas of social reform and public service.

At about this same time, James married Deborah E. Williams-James and they purchased a home - fulfilling the American dream - and with it assumed a significant mortgage. In order to make ends meet and to earn a living, James was forced to find employment in areas in which, while he may not have had the passion, he had the need. He worked several jobs at the same time - selling automobiles. He, with the assistance of his wife, published a book (its my recollection that it was published by Vintage Press) in 1989 and has begun a cottage industry in marketing greeting cards and other ventures. It is perhaps because of the nature of his employment from 1990 to the present, that he was unable to provide the Deputy Commissioner with the kind of recommendations that were alluded to in the letter of February 6, 1995, in which the latter notes that "the letter submitted on your [petitioner's] behalf are primarily general letters of reference which are dated from 1983 through 1988, and do not specifically address the subject of your appeal." [Letter Richard A. DiPatri, Deputy Commissioner to petitioner, February 6, 1995].

It should also be noted that indeed Mr. James was previously employed as a full-time substitute teacher from 1973 through 1976 with the Plainfield public school system working in the high school and teaching courses ranging from physical education to history. It is my understanding that in none of the positions which Mr. James occupied was he ever terminated.

Mrs. James testified on his behalf. Of course, one would expect a wife to testify to support her husband; nevertheless, I found her candor, articulateness, intelligence and honesty to significantly override any assumption that one might make that a wife's testimony on behalf of her husband is inherently unbelievable and should be disregarded.

Mrs. James is a success story in her own right. She holds a bachelor of arts degree in marketing management and has been employed for over twenty years in the pharmaceutical industry, fifteen of those for Johnson & Johnson and for the last 5 years for Bristol-Meyers where she has been primarily performing the function of training professional staff in a variety of areas. She attested to the validity of Mr. James rehabilitation as well as his strength. She noted for example that he has 2 grown children born out of wedlock and that he is close to both of them, particularly his son who is 26 years of age. Indeed, Mr. James has recently become a grandfather. She noted his responsibilities in respect to his children - when one of them was experiencing difficulties, James took him into his home. She also noted that both her and Mr. James's parents are suffering from terminal illnesses and that she and her husband are both dedicated to maintaining the best care possible for them. She further indicated that in spite of the various pressures placed upon Mr. James, both private and professional, he has never wavered and never, never has he on any level, physically, emotionally or intellectually, even remotely felt a desire to return to drugs. James confirmed this, indicating that not since 1982, when he satisfactorily completed his drug rehabilitation program, has he had any desire or need to turn to drugs.

In my opinion, Mr. James has affirmatively demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence, that he has been rehabilitated from his criminal record and he should no longer be disqualified from school employment in the capacity of a substitute teacher. The offenses for which Mr. James was found guilty, are serious. Nevertheless, the explanation in respect to the first offense - breaking and entering with intent to kidnap - sounds far more serious than it actually are. Holding a Black extremist on Rutgers University campus hostage for 4 hours and threatening him with bodily harm if he, or his group, continued to harass James and other Black students who elected to room with white students, is indeed wrong and criminal but, it is also a far cry from what one typically thinks of in terms of burglarizing a residence and kidnapping an individual. Apparently, the criminal justice system viewed this in the same light when it imposed a 3-month suspended sentence on Mr. James for these crimes. The University also did not deem his conduct to be significantly relevant when it imposed a 1-month suspension and permitted James to continue his matriculation and eventually awarded him a bachelors degree in political science.

It will also be recalled at the time James was 23 years of age, and in 1971, America was in the midst of a civil rights revolution of which, to some extent James's conduct was a part.

James's involvement with heroin speaks for itself. What reduced him to that level was never explained. Drugs, of course, are an abomination in our culture and have been for approximately a half-century. Drugs are pandemic and heroin was the drug of choice by so many inner-city youths in the late 60s and early 70s. Mr. James was but one such youth. He became addicted and, according to his testimony, which was unrebutted, began selling drugs to support his addiction. He initially denied being an addict when faced the possibility of incarceration, he owned up to his addiction and in respect to all of the charges - including the possession of the shotgun - was permitted to serve a period in a residential rehabilitation facility. James recovered from his addiction. He has been drug free for approximately 14 years. The offense itself occurred some 17 years ago. It will be recalled that pursuant to the remand the Board properly noted that it is the date of the offense, not the date of the sentencing, that is to be measured when assessing rehabilitation. While I was disturbed about the weapons charge, I accept Mr. James's representation that it was a family heirloom, that it was unloaded, and that it was simply in his house when police exercised their search warrant to find drugs. Moreover, the criminal justice system, which obviously had a more intimate involvement with the charge than I, concluded that its severity was not commensurate with incarcerating Mr. James.

Mr. James's offenses were isolated in respect to their nature, and neither was ever repeated.

Mr. James's experience and activities following his successful defeat of his addiction have already been chronicled. He served honorably and passionately for a variety of social programs, most of which had as their objectives helping kids, such as James, who had gotten into trouble, either through use of drugs or otherwise. He intervened with the cooperation of various public agencies to give those kids a second chance without having to face jail. Those social programs appear to have become significantly extant as a result of the evaporation of public sector funds. As a result James, rather than sinking back into a hole, did all he could to earn a living and pay his mortgage. He sold use cars. He wrote a book. He is engaged, with the assistance of his wife, in the creation of a home industry involving greeting cards and other pursuits. He is doing all he can to keep going. He is fortunate to have a loving, supportive, and strong wife who stands by him and with him in this regard. Now he wants to continue the activities, which are dear to his heart, involving young people and keeping them out of trouble. It is my judgment, that Mr. James having been an addict some fifteen years ago can play as significant a role in teaching high school youngsters, as can his knowledge of political science or other subject areas. In a strange and ironic way, James is a role-model. As a young Black man growing up in the midst of the civil rights revolution, he struggled to obtain the distinction of a college degree and in doing so he literally was brought face-to-face with racism and he responded to it inappropriately. He then confronted the anathema of heroin addiction and overcame that. Since those early years, his middle years have been spent productively and since 1990 he has found himself at sea. But he has not drowned. He is still searching for a way to become a productive, passionate citizen and to contribute to his society in a fashion that will benefit it as well as reward him. He has elected to that do that by attempting to become a substitute teacher in the public school system. In my view, whatever risks there may be in allowing Mr. James to pursue that endeavor - and I believe the risks are few if any - are far out weighed by the talents that he brings to bear, his experiences, his dedication, and the passion and energy that he demonstrates.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e) he has been rehabilitated from his criminal history record. It is therefore ORDERED that the petitioner is no longer disqualified from employment in the public school system as a substitute teacher.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE	:
DISQUALIFICATION FROM	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT OF A.F.J.	:	DECISION ON REMAND

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner adopts the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the within appellant has demonstrated rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and is, therefore, qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws.[1] It is observed that in reaching this decision, the Commissioner had no cause to question the ALJ's assessment of appellant's credibility as such assessment is not belied by the record. Moreover, it was the ALJ who had the opportunity to hear appellant's sworn testimony and to observe his demeanor, so that he was in the optimum position to make such determination.

[1] In affirming the ALJ's decision, the Commissioner is constrained to note that the remand of the instant matter, on December 20, 1995, was based upon a letter in the record that was forwarded to the Commissioner for review, from appellant to Judge Reback, dated October 27, 1995 and stamped in as received by the OAL on November 13, 1995. This letter stated that appellant would not be present at the November 14, 1995 hearing because of job responsibilities. While the Commissioner recognizes that the ALJ may never have received this notification, it was and remains a part of the record considered by the Commissioner in reaching both his prior determination and the present determination.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision as the final decision in this matter and appellant is deemed qualified for school employment as a substitute teacher. The file for this matter is herewith forwarded to the State Board of Education, as it has retained jurisdiction in the within matter in its decision dated July 5, 1995.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF FINANCE,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board disputed budget reduction made by respondent Department of Education. The Department reduced the Board's state aid for the 1994-95 school year, but deferred the reduction until the 1996-97 school year. The aid reduction occurred because the "1994-1995 Appropriations Act required that the statewide total for debt service had to be maintained at the same amount as the 1993-1994 level ...." Board claimed the state aid reduction would prevent it from providing its pupils with a thorough and efficient education as constitutionally mandated.

ALJ found that the Board opposed the Department's summary decision motion but failed to raise any issues of material fact that warrant a plenary hearing. ALJ concluded that the Department successfully argued that the reduction in state aid comported with the State's funding provision which, although declared unconstitutional, still must be relied upon until September 1996. ALJ found that the application of equitable estoppel was inappropriate as the Board was timely notified of the reduction. In addition, a $925,000 municipal donation was properly considered as miscellaneous revenue. ALJ concluded that the Board's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education was not inexorably threatened by the reduction.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the Department was entitled to summary judgment and adopted the findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8275-95

AGENCY DKT. NO. 336-8/95

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE

TOWNSHIP OF LACEY, OCEAN COUNTY,

Petitioner,

v.

NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

OFFICE OF FINANCE,

Respondent.

Christopher J. Vaz, Esq., for petitioner (Arthur Stein and Associates, attorneys)

John K. Worthington, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General of New Jersey)

Record Closed: May 14, 1996 Decided: May 29, 1996

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

The Lacey Township Board of Education ("Board"), petitioner, requested the Commissioner of Education to resolve a dispute between the Board and the Department of Education ("Department"), respondent.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. After notice, a prehearing conference was held by telephone on November 17, 1995. The parties subsequently stipulated all facts necessary and the matter proceeds on cross motions for summary judgment.

After filing of its final papers, the Board wrote to the judge on May 9, 1996, asking to supplement the record. The supplemental papers indicate the voters of Lacey Township defeated the proposed school budget for 1996-1997 at the polls on April 16, 1996, by 525 votes; 12% of the proposed increase in the amount to be raised by tax levy is attributable to the Department's decision to reduce debt service aid to the Lacey District for 1996-1997; the district faces pupil population growth and facilities expansion; salaries and operational costs are rising, and all of this is exacerbated by the Department's decision to reduce debt service aid. In 1994, the municipal government donated funds to the school budget with the express intent to reduce local property tax increases. The Department's reduction of debt service aid unreasonably contravenes that goal.

The Department immediately responded, arguing that the submission was out of time, the Department is entitled to judgment as a matter of law, the effect on the tax rate is irrelevant and the Board in any event fails to show a nexus between the asserted tax increase and the reduction of debt service aid. Because no competent evidence has been submitted on pupil population growth or the other assertions, even if the tribunal were to determine that the budget defeat has any bearing on the case, the absence of any proofs renders the argument meaningless and the Board's submission still must be rejected.

For the reasons set forth in the analysis to follow, the additional submission, even if accepted, has no effect on the outcome of the main issue.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The Department reduced the Board's aid for the 1994-1995 school year, but deferred the reduction until the 1996-1997 school year. The aid reduction occurred because the "1994-1995 Appropriations Act required that the statewide total for debt service had to be maintained at the same amount as the 1993-1994 level . . .." Respondent's moving papers, February 16, 1996, at 1. The immediate and practical result was that the Department had to recalculate the aid it would provide to all school districts. The Lacey Board's aid was reduced by $274,273. The Department contends that the reduction would not have been so severe were it not for a large donation from the governing body. The Township gave $925,000, designated for debt reduction. It appears that the reduction in aid would have been less drastic had the $925,000 been appropriated to the Board's current expense budget.

The Board says the Department's decision is flawed for several reasons. First, the Department based the reduction on the Quality Education Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-1 through -37 (QEA), which the New Jersey Supreme Court declared unconstitutional in Abbott v. Burke, 136 N.J. 444 (1994). Second, the Department failed to given the Board timely notice of the reduction. The Board had, in fact, set its 1994-1995 budget. Consequently, the Board argues, the Commissioner should equitably estop the Department from reducing State aid. Third, the Department erroneously determined that a municipal donation was not local tax effort for debt service aid purposes. Last, the Department's actions will have a deleterious effect on the Board's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education.

The Department counters that the QEA is the only procedure it has to determine State aid for debt service. The Board's equitable estoppel argument must fail because the Office of Administrative Law is not authorized to exercise equitable powers. New Jersey courts recognize that the application of equitable estoppel against governmental entities should be avoided in most instances. The Department also contends that the Board did have timely notice of the reduction because it would not occur until a subsequent budget year. The Board's contention that the Township's donation should be labeled local taxes, not miscellaneous revenue, also must fail because the Board itself labeled the funds as miscellaneous revenue. The Township appropriated funds to the Board from the local tax levy and then separately donated funds to debt service from another source. Last, the district's pupils will not be denied a thorough and efficient education because of the aid reduction. The Board can recoup the lost funds, if necessary, through a tax increase.

DETERMINATION

Does the Commissioner of Education have jurisdiction?

It is well settled that the Commissioner does not have jurisdiction unless the controversy comes under the school laws. In Balsley v. North Hunterdon Bd. of Educ., 117 N.J. 434, 438 (1990) the Court held "The State's education laws provide that the Commissioner of Education has jurisdiction to determine all controversies and disputes arising under those laws." This comports with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 which, in relevant part, provides that "[t]he Commissioner shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine . . . all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws . . . ."

The question, then, is whether any provision of the school laws vests jurisdiction in the Commissioner to determine this matter. The QEA provides the necessary basis. The language of the act suggests the Commissioner should take an active role in funding decisions. For example, N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-26 provides that each year, "within seven days following the transmittal of the budget message to the Legislature by the Governor . . ., the Commissioner shall notify each district of the maximum amount of aid payable to the district . . .." This is a school law. Logically, the Commissioner would have concomitant authority to hear disputes that arise under it.

Other grounds exist for finding jurisdiction in the Commissioner. The Board claims the State aid reduction will prevent it from providing its pupils with a thorough and efficient education as constitutionally mandated. The ability, or not, of the Board to provide that education vests jurisdiction in the Commissioner. In fact, the New Jersey Supreme Court held that "although the Commissioner has no express authority to order the budget increases, the power was derived from his duty to assume that every school district provides a thorough and efficient education." Board of Educ. v. Mayor and Council, 116 N.J. 305, 319 (1989), citing In re Upper Freehold Regional School Dist., 86 N.J. 165, 272 (1981). Whether the State aid reduction affects the Board's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education raises issues requiring the Commissioner's expertise, thus vesting jurisdiction in the Commissioner.

Should Either Motion for Summary Decision be Granted?

The Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 through -21.6, provide that a motion for summary decision may be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). To rebut a motion for summary decision, an adverse party "to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. If the adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered." Id. The administrative rule governing summary decision is essentially the same as the New Jersey Court Rule that provides for summary judgment. See, R.4:46-2. The legal principles that have developed relating to summary judgment apply to administrative proceedings.

In Brill v. The Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995), the New Jersey Supreme Court addressed grants of summary judgment and stated the following standard:

> Under this new standard, a determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial . . .."

See also, Contini v. Board of Educ. of Newark, 286, N.J. Super. 106, 122 (1995) in which the court applied the Brill standard to matters heard in the administrative forum.

In the present case, the Department's motion for summary decision will be granted. The Board has failed to raise any issue of material fact. This conclusion is reached by application of the Brill standard: the evidential materials presented are insufficient to resolve the dispute in the Board's favor and fail to raise any material fact issues warranting plenary hearing.

A. Quality Education Act

The Board claims the Department's funding decision was based on the QEA and any funding decisions made under the act are invalid because the Supreme Court declared the act unconstitutional. The Department recognizes that the QEA has been declared unconstitutional, but maintains that it has no other mechanism for determining State aid and thus must rely upon certain parts of the act.

The Board is correct about the high court's ruling. The QEA has been declared unconstitutional; however, the Legislature and the Governor do not have to adopt a replacement funding mechanism until September 1996. The Abbott Court stated that ". . . if a law assuming such substantial equivalence, approximating 100%, for school year 1997-1998 and providing as well for special educational needs is not adopted by September 1996, we will consider applications for relief." Abbott at 449. The QEA remains the only basis the Department has to determine funding decisions, at least until September 1996 or until a new funding procedure is in place. Furthermore, because the funding decision in controversy relates to the 1994-1995 school year, the QEA would control.

B. Equitable Estoppel

The Board urges that the Department be equitably estopped from reducing aid to the Board. The Department contends this argument is inapplicable in the present context. The Department relies on a number of decisions suggesting that courts should, in most cases, refrain from applying equitable estoppel against governmental entities. Respondent's moving papers at 10.

New Jersey courts start with the same premise as the Third Circuit: equitable estoppel should not be invoked against public entities except to prevent manifest injustice. W.V. Pangborne & Co. v. N.J. Dept. of Transportation, 116 N.J. 543, 553 (1989), held the Department of Transportation was not estopped from asserting a statute of limitations defense to an electrical contractor's claim for further work done pursuant to an already completed contract. The New Jersey Supreme Court has adopted the Restatement (Second) of Torts definition of equitable estoppel by stating that equitable is > the effect of the voluntary conduct of a party whereby he is precluded, both at law and in equity, from asserting rights which might perhaps have otherwise existed . . . as against another person, who has in good faith relied upon such conduct, and has been led thereby to change his position for the worse . . .. Carlsen v. Masters, Mates & Pilots Pension Plan Trust, 80 N.J. 334, 339 (1979).

Therefore, the basic requirements for claiming equitable estoppel against another--intentional misrepresentation and detrimental reliance thereon--must be proved against the State. Citizens for Equity v. N.J. Dept. of Environmental Protection, 252 N.J. Super. 62, 79-80 (App. Div. 1990), aff'd. 126 N.J. 391 (1991).

However, since estoppel against the government may be detrimental to the public interest and could interfere with essential governmental functions, O'Malley v. Dep't of Energy, 109 N.J. 309, 316 (1987), New Jersey courts require a claimant to prove more than just the basic elements of estoppel. (In O'Malley, the court held that the Department of Energy was not estopped from returning an employee to his permanent position, when a promotional examination was not administered between the date of his provisional appointment and date of "demotion". The court referred to the Civil Service Act of 1986, N.J.S.A. 11A:1, in holding that a failure to administer a timely civil service examination does not vest a provisional appointee with the right to retain the provisional appointment until such time as the examination is given. Id. at 316.). Courts have focused on the intentional misrepresentation requirement. The party to be estopped must have "knowingly and intentionally [misrepresented] . . ." Id. at 317. This intent can be seen where the governmental agent "engages in conduct that is calculated to mislead the plaintiff . . ." W.V. Pangborne & Co. v. N.J. Dept. of Transportation, 116 N.J. 543, 553 (1989). Even if the conduct itself does not mislead, however, intentional misrepresentation by the government can be found if a public official knew or should have known of materials facts, but that official acted as if he or she did not have this knowledge (thus causing a misrepresentation). State Dept. of Environmental Protection v. Ventron Corp., 94 N.J. 473, 499 (1983) (public officials with knowledge of material knowledge of material facts could ratify the action of private parties, and that ratification could effect an estoppel by a third party.)

Moreover, the "intent" requirement is further defined by the Court's ruling that "the party seeking the benefit of estoppel [against the State] has the burden of establishing that an officer of the State, conscious of the State's true interest and aware of the private owner's misapprehension, stood by while the private owner acted in detrimental reliance." Newark v. Natural Resources Council, Dept. of Environmental Protection, 82 N.J. 530, 545 (1980) (citing O'Neill v. State Highway Dept., 50 N.J. 307 (1967)). Words such as "conscious" and "aware[ness]" connote intentional conduct.

Thus, in addition to the traditional equitable estoppel elements, New Jersey state courts also require a showing of intentional misrepresentation or other intentional misconduct - or at least a negligent disregard as to the consequences (detrimental reliance) of the acts - by the government in order for a claimant to be able to assert equitable estoppel against the government. This requirement is nearly tantamount to the "affirmative misconduct by the government" standard promulgated by the Third Circuit. Therefore, even though New Jersey state courts have not expressly adopted the precedent established by the Third Circuit, the state courts' standards parallel those of the Third Circuit. Due to the policy reasons discussed earlier, New Jersey has therefore imposed a great burden on any individual who desires to equitably estop the government.

With this standard in mind, equitable estoppel cannot succeed against the State. The Board indeed may have detrimentally relied on the initial State aid amount announced; however, there is no indication that the Department knowingly and intentionally lulled the Board into reliance thereon. In fact, evidence indicates that the initial aid figure the Department gave the Board was preliminary and, thus, subject to change. Specifically, N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-26 provides:

> Annually, within seven days following the transmittal of the budget message to the Legislature by the Governor, . . . the Commissioner shall notify each district of the maximum amount of aid payable to the district under the provisions of P.L. 1990, c.52 . . . in the succeeding year and shall notify each district that is subject to the provisions of section 85 of P.L. 1990, c. 52 . . . of the district's maximum permissible local levy budget for the succeeding year. The actual aid payment to each district shall be determined after the district's budget is adopted. [Emphasis added.]

Although school districts adopt final budgets based on the preliminary aid figures, they know that any State aid reduction will not affect that year's budget. Instead, the district takes the reduction from a subsequent budget. This gives the school district time to prepare for the revenue loss.

C. Donation

The Board claims the Township gave the Board the additional $925,000 in order to avoid or reduce a tax levy. The Board relies on the transcript of the Township Council meeting at which the donation was discussed. The transcript does show that council members as well as citizens viewed the donation as a mechanism for tax relief. Petitioner's moving papers, March 15, 1996, at 8.

The Department does not dispute the intent of the donation. However, the funds were taken from surplus sources in the municipal budget rather than raised by local tax levy. Respondent's reply papers of March 19, 1996, at 3. Consequently, the funds reduced the Board's State aid amount. The Department argues that the clear language of N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-3 supports its contention. The statute says

> "Net debt service" means the balance after deducting all revenues from the school debt service budget of the school district and the school debt service amount included in the municipal budget, except the amounts to be raised by local taxation and State aid.

The language is clear. Net debt service is determined after deducting all revenues from the debt service budget. The only exceptions are funds raised through local taxation and funds from State aid. In this case, the funds did not come from an appropriation of tax monies to school debt service accounts. The funds came from municipal budget surplus. In the 1994-1995 school year, approximately $13 million was appropriated to the schools from local tax revenue. An additional $925,000 was given to the schools, but it did not come from local taxation or a school debt account, whether school or municipal. It came from another source. The Department correctly labeled this miscellaneous revenue and properly considered it in determining the Board's State aid amount.

D. Thorough and Efficient Education

The Board maintains that the reduction in State aid will negatively affect its ability to provide a thorough and efficient education to its pupils because it will either have to cut programs or raise taxes. The Department disagrees and asserts the Board need only seek a slight tax increase to recover the lost revenue. Although this will detrimentally affect the taxpayers, it does not detrimentally affect the Board's pupils.

Of all the issues raised by the Board, this might raise fact questions. However, applying the Brill analysis, the Board's argument must fail. Even viewing the evidence in a light most favorable to the Board, the evidence suggests that the reduction in State aid will not automatically prevent the Board from providing a thorough and efficient education. As it has conceded, the Board need only raise its school taxes if it believes that the aid reduction will cramp its ability to provide this level of education. And, as a final note, not even a budget defeat at the polls automatically and ipso facto makes this impossible.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

The Board opposes the Department's summary decision motion but fails to raise any issues of material fact that warrant plenary hearing. The Department has successfully argued that the reduction in State aid comports with the State's funding provision which, although declared unconstitutional, still must be relied upon until September 1996 and in any event was in place at the time the present controversy arose. The application of equitable estoppel is inappropriate here: the Board was timely notified of the Department's reduction decision. In addition, the $925,000 municipal donation was properly considered as miscellaneous revenue. Finally, the Board's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education is not inexorably threatened by the reduction.

Summary judgment is entered for the New Jersey Department of Education. The petitioner of appeal is DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LACEY, OCEAN COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF FINANCE,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and the Department's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), contending, inter alia, that the Board is not able to advance a thorough and efficient education to its pupils based on the Department's reduction of its state aid. It argues that "the Department of Education and the Administrative Law Judge misinterpreted and misapplied N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-3" in that it, "does not on its face require that municipal surplus be included as 'revenue' for purposes of debt service aid calculations." (Board's Exceptions at p. 5) From these arguments, the Board infers that the Department must be precluded from reducing the Board's state aid for debt service.

The Board further excepts that the Department's interpretation and application of N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-3 was made without sufficient notice to petitioner. It argues that the ALJ limited its argument concerning notice in the initial decision in that, > the "insufficient notice" alleged by Petitioner was intended to allege that the Department of Education's interpretation of N.J.S.A.

> 18A:7D-3, insofar as it did not consider a municipal donation from municipal surplus as local tax effort, was made without sufficient notice. (Board's Exceptions at p. 8)

The Board further avers that the ALJ misapplied the summary judgment standard as set forth in Brill, supra. (Board's Exceptions at p. 10) The Board contends that the ALJ's statement that the evidence suggests that the Board can provide its students a thorough and efficient education without the money at issue is an insufficient basis to decide the case. Lastly, the Board states that the ALJ misapplied the Doctrine of Equitable Estoppel, which protects public entities except where it would result in manifest injustice, because "[P]etitioner is not a private party and does not stand in the shoes of a private party." It further argues that the Board relied to its indisputable detriment on the initial aid calculations supplied by the Department. (Id. at p. 11)

In reply exceptions, the Department attempts to refute each point raised in the Board's exceptions first stating that the donation by the Board to the school district was intended for debt service. The Board could have appropriated the amount required for debt service from local taxation but chose not to do so. "Instead," it avers, "the Petitioner sought to reduce taxes and must live with the consequences of that decision." (Department's Reply Exceptions at p. 8) With regard to the Board's claim of improper notice, the Department avers that the Board's state aid was adjusted in the prior year and, thus, petitioner was aware of the process and that adjustments would be made to the state aid for debt service after the school districts completed their budgets. Thus, based on the Board's previous experience, the Department argues that the Board's "argument concerning a lack of notice must be rejected." (Id. at p. 9)

The Department next sets forth reasons why the ALJ correctly applied the proper summary decision standard. (Id. at p. 10) First, it argues that the Board offered no evidence to demonstrate that its students would be denied a thorough and efficient education without the money at issue. Secondly, it points out that both parties moved for summary decision and, therefore, the Board cannot argue that it was inappropriate in this case.

Finally, the Department contends that the Doctrine of Equitable Estoppel was not incorrectly applied in this case. Moreover, it argues that "regardless of the estoppel standard applied, Petitioner failed to establish that the Department concealed or misrepresented a material fact that was relied upon by the Petitioner to its detriment" but rather applied the definition of "net debt service" in N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-3 as written. (Department's Reply Exceptions at p. 12)

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that the Department is entitled to summary judgment based on applicable law. See N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-3 and Brill, supra, and Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Company of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954).

The Commissioner is further satisfied that the ALJ sufficiently addressed the timeliness and estoppel issues in the initial decision and that the Board's exceptions in this regard are without merit.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL and dismisses the within Petition of Appeal.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LACEY, OCEAN COUNTY, PETITIONER-APPELLANT,

V.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF FINANCE,

RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, July 18, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Arthur Stein & Associates (Christopher J. Vaz, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, John K. Worthington, Deputy Attorney General (Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey)

The decision of the Commissioner of Education is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

December 4, 1996

petitioner's desire to rescind his resignation was after receipt of the July 17, 1995, letter from his attorney which is attached hereto as Exhibit "F". This firm, as counsel for the respondent Board, responded to petitioner's counsel letter by letter, dated July 31, 1995, attached hereto as Exhibit "G"). This letter to petitioner's attorney merely reiterated that the respondent Board had formerly accepted petitioner's resignation letter on August 30, 1994, effective July 1, 1995. Accordingly, petitioner's attorney was advised that the respondent Board considered petitioner retired effective July 1, 1995.

On or about October 26, 1995, petitioner filed a Petition of Appeal to the Commissioner of the Department of Education seeking to rescind his employment resignation and reinstatement to a position with the respondent Board of Education. On or about March 15, 1996, petitioner filed an Amended Petition of Appeal again seeking reinstatement with the respondent and also back-pay, salary, other benefits and attorney fees. By this Motion for Summary Decision, respondent seeks dismissal of the Petition of Appeal for the reasons provided herein.

POINT I

THE PETITIONER OF APPEAL IS TIMED BARRED PURSUANT TO THE PROVISIONS OF N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(C)

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) is essentially a statute of limitations for school controversies and disputes and provides as follows:

> The petitioner shall file a petitioner no later that the 90th day from he date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling, or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

It is now well-settled law in the State of New Jersey that the Commissioner of the Department of Education, and the State Board of Education, have the authority to adopt the so-called 90 day rule and that said rule is a valid enforceable regulation. Kaprow v. Berkeley Township Board of Education, 225 N.J. Super. 76 (App. Div. 1992), aff'd 131 N.J. 572 (1993); Nissman v. Board of Education, 272 N.J. Super. 373 (App. Div. 1994). In fact, the Commissioner of Education and the Courts have held on numerous occasions that failure to comply with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) must result in dismissal of a Petition of Appeal. Kaprow, Id; Nissman, Id. North Plainfield Educ. Ass'n v. Board of Educ. North Plainfield Borough, 96 N.J. 587 (1984); Riely v. Hunterdon Central High School Board of Education, 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980); Portee v. Newark Board of Education, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 381; Raymond v. River Edge Borough Board of Education, 94 N.J.A.R 2d (EDU) 203; Sasse v. Board of Education Borough of Point Pleasant, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 339. Thus, the focus of this Court is properly placed upon the application of the so-called 90 day rule to the particular facts of this case.

Each and every one of the petitioner's allegations of wrongful acts by respondent emanates from the meeting conducted on January 15, 1994. Petitioner asserts that respondent wrongfully placed him under duress at this meeting and that as a result of such duress, or misrepresentations by respondent, petitioner submitted his resignation letter of February 10, 1994. Petitioner admits knowing that respondent would not act upon this resignation letter until its August 1994 meeting. (See Point 25, page 7 of petitioner's amended appeal.) Furthermore, petitioner admits that as of September 1, 1994, he had knowledge of the acceptance of his resignation by the respondent Board of Education. (See Point 27, page 7 of petitioner's amended appeal and letter to petitioner from Michael J. Ritacco dated, August 31, 1994, attached hereto as Exhibit "D").

Assuming arguendo the veracity of petitioner's allegations, it is respectfully submitted that the respondent Board took final action on the subject of petitioner's resignation at its August 30, 1994 meeting. Furthermore, the August 31, 1994 letter of on which the consequences of the act is directly felt by the employee ..." Thus, it is respectfully submitted that the proper focus of this Court is upon the allegedly wrongful act of respondent's acceptance of a resignation letter which emanates from alleged acts of duress and/or misrepresentation.

It is not necessary for this Court to decide whether the Board acted correctly at its August 30, 1994 meeting. Rather, this Court must acknowledge that the respondent Board had the right to know within 90 days whether its action would be challenged. Nissman, supra. at page 380. "The limitation period gives school districts the security of knowing that administrative decisions regarding the operation of the school cannot be challenged after 90 days. Moreover, because local school boards operate on a cash basis, claims must be filed promptly so that the local board can anticipate any back-pay requirements." Kaprow, Supreme Court Decision, supra. at page 582.

In our case, the respondent formally acted upon petitioner's resignation letter. The petitioner's admits prior knowledge of this action as well as subsequent notification by letter dated August 31, 1994. Petitioner does not allege any additional wrongful acts by respondent subsequent to its final action on August 30, 1994. In fact, petitioner's resignation letter (Exhibit "C") and rescission letter (Exhibit "E") do not reference any alleged duress or misrepresentations. Rather, petitioner's rescission letter is premised upon his failure to obtain other employment due to medical reasons. Allegations of duress and misrepresentations do not arise until the filing of the petitioner in question which of course was subsequent to the attainment of legal counsel. In any event, the respondent School Board has the right to proceed with the administration of its large school district without litigation occurring over one year subsequent to its final action.

The 90 day rule provides finality in education matters. Kaprow, supra. at page 583. It provides a measure of repose essential to the proper and efficient administration of the school laws. Id. at page 582. Certainly, it provides a school Board with some stability in dealing with its financial affairs. It has stood the test of numerous reviews from the Commissioner and Courts of our State, including the Supreme Court. See Kaprow Id. at page 583. It is respectfully submitted that the petitioner in this case had ample opportunity to file a claim within the allotted 90 day period. He failed to do so. The respondent has the right to expect the benefits provided to a school Board by virtue of the time honored 90 day rule.

In view of the above, it is respectfully submitted that petitioner failed to file his Petition of Appeal within 90 days from the date of his receipt of notice of the Board's final action, namely, September 1, 1994 and, therefore, said petition is barred pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

POINT II

THE PETITION OF APPEAL IS BARRED BY OPERATION OF LAW

It is well-established law in the State of New Jersey that a resignation and/or retirement may not be unilaterally rescinded once same is accepted by a local school board. An acceptance effectively terminates employment and, therefore, the withdrawal of the resignation is ineffectual. Andrews v. Lamb, supra; Cutro v. Hazlet Township Board of Education supra; Fisher v. East Orange Board of Education, C.D. 5-88, 11 Jan. 88; Hanley v. East Brunswick Board of Education, C.D. 157-88, 9 Jun. 88. Of note, cases in this area include resignation for the purposes of retirement. Sathan v. North Brunswick Board of Education, supra.; and Murray v. Northern Highlands Regional Board of Education, supra. On the other hand, it is likewise well-established that a resignation may be withdrawn before it is accepted. Kozak v. Board of Education of the Township of Waterford, 1976 S.L.D. 633.

There are several cases which consider factual circumstances that affect the application of the above established general rule. In Hall v. Jefferson Township Board of Education, 125 N.J. 299 (1991), the Court held that an early retirement notice could be rescinded. The primary basis for this holding was the past practices of the Board. Apparently, such rescissions had generally been routinely permitted. In addition, the Court noted that the ability to rescind could be impacted by provisions of a collective bargaining agreement. In Cutler v. Parsippany Troy Hills Board of Education, N.J. Super. (App. Div. A-1464-90T3, 27 Jan 92 rev's 1990 S.L.D. 725), the Court permitted rescission of an early retirement because the notice represented a conditionally tended resignation pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement provision. The operation of the condition was permitted to result in rescission of the notice. Petitioner does not allege any obligations by the Board pursuant to the terms of a collective bargaining agreement, or past Board practices and, thusly, Hall and Cutler are not applicable to the instant case.

In view of the above, and petitioner's appeal, it is assumed that petitioner will argue that he should be permitted to withdraw his resignation based upon the equitable remedy of rescission. The primary case supporting use of such an equitable remedy in cases of retirement and/or resignation appears to be Evaul v. Board of Education of City of Camden, 35 N.J. 244 (1961). In this case, petitioner was a tenured teacher with twenty-five years of service. She had differences with her supervisor and staff members, over her workload and other issues, which lead to a meeting with the school principal, Superintendent, and the President of the Local Board of Education. The forty minute-meeting was heated and acrimonious." Evaul, supra. at page 246. The petitioner was extremely distraught and later the same day, a Friday, met with the Superintendent and announced "I can't take anymore of this and I have a few thousand, I'll resign." Ibid. at page 247. The Superintendent advised her not to be hasty and to think it over until Monday. However, the petitioner wrote a resignation note, placed it on the secretary's desk and left. The resignation note refers to false accusations and attacks on her reputation. Id. The petitioner was unaware that a special meeting of the school board was scheduled for that very night. It was at this meeting that the local board accepted petitioner's resignation.

Despite the above factual circumstances the Evaul Court noted, at page 249, that "the record does not disclose any conduct by the school officials which amounts to duress." However, the Court ordered reinstatement because "It was an extraordinary concatenation of events which resulted in a loss to appellant of her tenure, seniority and pension rights acquired during twenty-five years of service." Id. The Court summed up the events by mentioning the emotional meeting with her department head followed immediately by the unanticipated and tempestuous confrontational meeting noted above. The resignation was an impetuous act induced by a distraught condition. The emotionally charged words used in the resignation note evidence of her condition. Unknown to petitioner, the Board met and accepted her resignation that very night. Without such a meeting, her prompt attempt at rescission, two days later, would have been effective. Lastly, the Court noted that her prompt rescission resulted in the Board not taking any action in reliance upon her resignation.

It is especially submitted that the instant case is easily distinguished from Evaul, the leading case for equitable rescission of resignations. In the instant case, the meeting of January 15, 1994 was not an impromptu affair. Rather, it was a prearranged meeting at which petitioner was represented by the President of the employee union. Certainly, the head of the union was aware of petitioner's rights and alternatives. At the very least the Union President could assure that petitioner was not railroaded as alleged in his Petition of Appeal. In any event, petitioner's resignation was not an impetuous act. He took about a month to think things over before submission of his resignation on February 10, 1994. Furthermore, he was aware that respondent Board was not going to act upon the resignation until its August meeting. Thus, petitioner had ample time to reconsider and was not surprised by the Board's acceptance of his resignation on August 30, 1994. It is also noteworthy that petitioner's resignation letter (Exhibit "C"), as well as his rescission letter (Exhibit "E") do not bear any evidence of duress or emotional distress resulting from the meeting of January 15, 1994. Lastly, unlike Evaul, where rescission was attempted two days later, the petitioner waited until July 28, 1995, some one and a half years, to attempt rescission. Additionally, petitioner did not file his Petition of Appeal until October 1995 over one year since the date of the Board's acceptance of the resignation.

In view of the above, it is respectfully submitted that for purposes of this Motion undisputed facts lead to the conclusion that the equitable remedy of Evaul is not applicable to the present case. Under circumstances more disturbing that those alleged in the instant case, the Evaul Court noted no duress, and the instance case lacks the unique compilation of circumstances noted in Evaul. Thus, the record is void of sufficient allegations to properly justify utilization of the equitable remedy of rescission. Therefore, it is concluded that the general rule of law which prohibits unilateral rescission after a Board's acceptance of a resignation and/or retirement must as a matter of law be applied to the instant case.

Assuming arguendo that this Court accepts an argument from petitioner that the 90 day period of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) begins with the alleged July 1995 denial of rescission, it is respectfully submitted that, in such event, the general rule of law which prohibits rescission of resignations or retirements after a Board's acceptance must still be applied. A conclusion that the 90 day period emanates from the date of the alleged July denial of petitioner's rescission request can only be reached if the Court concludes that the Board's denial of rescission is the wrongful act which this appeal. If the allegations of duress or misrepresentations trigger the appeal, it would be barred by the 90 day rule as discussed in Point I herein. Certainly, it would be inequitable for this Court to allow petitioner to argue that the alleged wrongful act of refusal to rescind applies for purposes of the 90 day rule, but the alleged acts of duress or misrepresentation, inapplicable for the 90 day rule, still apply to avoid the general rule that a resignation or retirement cannot be unilaterally rescinded after a Board's acceptance. It would seem that such a result effectively allows petitioner to have his cake and eat it too.

In view of the above, it is respectfully submitted that the general rule of law which prohibits unilateral rescission of a resignation and/or retirement after a Board's acceptance must be applied to the instant case and, therefore, the Petition of Appeal should be dismisses.

POINT III

THE PETITIONER OF APPEAL IS BARRED BY EQUITABLE PRINCIPLES

The doctrine of laches is an equitable principle which has been defined by the Courts as a "delay for a length of time, which unexplained and unexcused is unreasonable under the circumstances and has been prejudicial to the other party." Old Republic Insurance Company v. Currie, 284 N.J. Super. 571, 577 (Ch. Div. 1995); citing West Jersey Title and Guaranty Company v. Industrial Trust Company, 27 N.J. 144 (1958).

In the instant case, petitioner filed his resignation on February 10, 1994. Obviously, petitioner was well aware of the events which had occurred at the January 15, 1994 meeting. He was represented at the meeting by the President of the union. It would seem reasonable that the purpose of the union President at the meeting was to advise petitioner of all his rights as an employee of respondent school Board. In any event, petitioner was present at the meeting and, therefore, had one month subsequent to the meeting petitioner filed his resignation letter.

The one month period between the date of the meeting and petitioner's resignation letter provided ample opportunity for consideration of all available options. There was sufficient time to discuss the matter with union officials, or other, and obtain advice. Certainly, there was more than enough time to consider the events of the meeting of January 15, 1994.

Petitioner readily admits knowledge of the fact that the Board was not to act upon his resignation letter of February 10, 1994 until its August 1994 meeting. Without being repetitious, it is respectfully submitted that again this time duly provided petitioner ample opportunity to consider all options and weigh his alternatives. It should also be remembered that in June of 1990, petitioner's former position as food services instructor had been eliminated. Thus, he had personal knowledge of all the relevant procedures and employee rights resulting from such an elimination.

Despite the above, petitioner's resignation letter contains no hints of duress or misrepresentations. In fact, at its August 30, 1994 meeting, the Board had every reason to believe petitioner had simply retired. The petitioner had not provided a single shred of evidence or indication to the contrary. Thus, the Board fairly relied upon the submitted retirement/resignation letter, and inaction by the petitioner, in acting to accept the submitted letter. The respondent relied upon this retirement in proceeding with administrative plans for its schools. If petitioner had notified the Board, prior to its August 30 meeting of his intent not to retire, the Board may have gone through the required procedures for elimination of his position for reasons of economy. At such time, petitioner would have been afforded all his rights as a tenured teacher, just as he was on the prior occasion. However, the petitioner's silence deprived the Board of the opportunity to consider all options and take appropriate action the best interests of the school district.

Petitioner despite prior knowledge of his rights and the circumstances of the meeting of January 15, 1994, chose to sleep on his rights. He admits prior knowledge of the Board's August 1994 consideration of his resignation and formal receipt of notification of the Board's acceptance of his resignation on September 1, 1994. Still he continued to sleep on his rights through the entire 1994-1995 school year. It was not until July 28, 1995, that an attempt was made to rescind his resignation. Even his resignation letter did not inform the Board of any alleged acts of duress or misrepresentation at the meeting of January 15, 1994. These allegations first appeared only in the Petition of Appeal filed on October 26, 1995, or nearly two years after the January 1994 meeting.

Often denial of a claim based upon the equitable doctrine of laches hinges upon reasonable reliance to its detriment by the adverse party. State, DEPE v. Dopp, 268 N.J. Super. 165, 176 (App. Div. 1993); citing Lavin v. Hackensack Board of Education, 90 N.J. 145 (1992); Notch View Associates v. Smith, 260 N.J. Super. 190, 207 (Law Div. 1992). The Board in the present case reasonably relied upon the petitioner's resignation letter and acted accordingly. It treated the petitioner properly in light of his retirement and administered its schools accordingly. Yet petitioner through his appeal seeks retroactive application of tenure rights, back-pay and reinstatement. Thus, reliance upon the actions of petitioner has obviously placed respondent in a position of potential detriment.

As discussed by the Court in Notch View, supra. at page 207, the same factual circumstances that result in application of the doctrine of laches can effectively create an estoppel. "Estoppel by laches" is defined as a failure to do something which should be done or to claim or enforce a rift at a proper time." Id. Petitioner in the present case with full knowledge of the events of January 15, 1994, union representation, and personal knowledge of the position elimination process allowed respondent to rely upon his resignation letter. Furthermore, petitioner continued to sleep on his rights for nearly two years. Petitioner now seeks to punish respondent for its good faith reliance by retroactive application of tenure claims, back-pay and reinstatement. It is respectfully submitted that application of such rights at this time is barred in equity. The delay by petitioner is too inequitable and operates as an estoppel against his present claims. Id.; State v. DEPE. Supra, at pages 175-176.

"Equitable remedies are distinguished for their flexibility, their unlimited variety, their adaptability to circumstances, and the natural rules which govern their use." Sears Mortg. Corp. V. Rose, 257 N.J. Super. 33, 47 (App. Div. 1992), rev'd on other grounds, 134 N.J. 26 (1993). Whether the argument contained herein is classified as laches, estoppel by laches or equitable estoppel is really immaterial. The important fact is that it is simply unfair for this Court to allow petitioner or assert his appeal at this time. The delay is filing the appeal is inexcusable and unreasonable under the factual circumstances as described above. Respondent Board, in good faith, relied upon the resignation letter, and the inaction of petitioner relative to same. Permitting the petitioner, some two years later, to assert claims will unfairly prejudice respondent.

In view of the above, it is respectfully submitted that the Petition of Appeal is barred by equitable principals and, therefore ,should be dismissed.

PETITIONER'S POSITION

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Petitioner, Charles E. Willson, III ("Petitioner") (DOB 5/31/44) was initially employed on or about September 1, 1970 by the Toms River Regional Schools Board of Education as a certified teacher. Petitioner was subsequently tenured and served primarily, although no exclusively, as a food services instructor until February 10, 1992 when he as transferred to the respondent's Alternate School Learning Center ("Alternate School") as an employment orientation/food program teacher. The Alternate School served special needs pupils in grades nine to twelve who had experience serious learning and/or conduct problems in the conventional high school program. See Affidavit which is attached hereto made a part hereof and marked Exhibit "A". Petitioner's annual evaluations, since his initial employment, were in all instances, prior to this assignment, satisfactory. Exhibit "A".

Petitioner held at the time of this assignment and still holds, a valid New Jersey Instructional Certificate with the endorsements of: teacher of baking; teacher of commercial food/serving; teacher of production, personal or service occupations; teacher of commercial food preparation. Petitioner also held at the time of this assignment, and still holds, a valid Educational Services Certificate with endorsements of: coordinator of apprentice programs; coordinator cooperative industrial education and a valid Administrative Certificate with endorsements of: supervisor, principal/supervisor; and, assistant executive superintendent/specialization in supervision and curriculum. Exhibit "A".

Petitioner's duties in this position were generally to provide pupils with an instructional program in food preparation and, as a part of an outcome of the instructional program, to feed each day approximately fifty (50) pupils and ten (10) adult staff members. Exhibit "A". Steven Finkelstein ("Finkelstein") was the Director and Administrator of the Alternate School. Petitioner's evaluation for the 1992-93 school year, which included his performance in this new assignment was satisfactory. Exhibit "A".

Petitioner subsequent to this new assignment and prior to January 15, 1994, several times expressed concern to Finkelstein regarding the problems associated with petitioner's dual responsibilities of providing an instructional program for his special needs pupils and at the same time, feeding all pupils and staff members in the Alternate School. Exhibit "A". Also petitioner, during this period, expressed concern to Finkelstein regarding funds which had been budgeted for petitioner's instructional program and then reallocated to other school-wide purposes, thereby increasing the tension between the aforementioned responsibilities of petitioner in his assignment. Exhibit "A".

During this same period and continuing to on or about January 15, 1995, Finkelstein was critical of petitioners teaching performance expressing concern about such and sending at least two (2) memoranda critical of petitioner's performance as a teacher. Exhibit "A". A copy of these memoranda are attached hereto, made a part hereof and marked Exhibit "B". Finkelstein made no classroom observations of petitioner. Exhibit "A".

On or about January 1, 1994, petitioner was informed by Finkelstein that Finkelstein and Senior Assistant Superintendent John Garrabrant ("Garrabrant") were to meet with petitioner regarding alleged problems that petitioner was having teaching pupils.

Exhibit "A". Petitioner requested that Jay Wilkinson ("Wilkinson"), President of the Toms River Education Association, attend the meeting as he believed it was to be a disciplinary meeting. Exhibit "A". On or about January 15, 1994, petitioner was summoned to a meeting which included Garrabrant, Finkelstein, Robert Rapp ("Rapp"), who was Supervisor of Business and Technology and petitioners immediate supervisor and Wilkinson. Exhibit "A". At all times pertinent to this matter Finkelstein, Garrabrant and Rapp were agents, employees, and officers of respondent. Exhibit "A". During the meeting Garrabrant who was the spokesperson for respondent informed petitioner that petitioner was to submit his resignation effective at the end of the 1994-95 school year, or respondent will curtail petitioner's institutional program and terminate petitioner effective the end of the current year in June 1994. Exhibit "A". Petitioner was also informed by Garrabrant that he was not qualified for any other positions with respondent and consequently he would be unemployed upon termination. Exhibit "A". Respondent continues to state that determination in its answer to the petitioner's petition. Petitioner was also informed that resignation at the end of his twenty-fifth year of service (June 1995) was desirable as he obtained additional benefits upon retirement after twenty five years of service. Exhibit "A". Respondent did not offer petitioner an option to be placed on a preferred eligibility list if he was terminated as he is entitled to under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 et seq. and indeed this option was precluded by implication of Garrabrant's statement that there were no other positions for which he was qualified. Exhibit "A". Petitioner was given no option other than those stated to him by Garrabrant. Exhibit "A". Petitioner was 48 years old at the time of the meeting. Exhibit "A". Petitioner is not eligible to retire with benefits until he is 55 years of age in 1999. Exhibit "A". Petitioner faced the loss of employment upon termination at the end of school year 1993-94 or loss of employment at the end of school year 1994-95. Petitioner was aware of respondent's animus toward him as embodied in Finkelstein's conversation and memoranda. Exhibit "A". Petitioner's wife was, at the time of this meeting and is now, an employee of respondent and he was concerned that she remain uninvolved in any issues he might raise with respondent. Exhibit "A". Under the duress of these threatening statements and conditions and on the basis of there threatening statements and conditions, petitioner had no alternative but to submit is resignation on or about February 10, 1994. Exhibit "A".

Petitioner subsequent to submitting his resignation was informed that his resignation would be acted upon by respondent Board at the August 1994 school board meeting and such resignation was acted upon by respondent Board at the August 30, 1994 meeting.

These threatening statements and conditions in full force and affect upon petitioner from January 15, 1994 to the end of the school year 1994-1995. Exhibit "A". Petitioner was still subject to termination by respondent. Exhibit "A". The animus of Finkelstein continued. Exhibit "A". See letter of October 6, 1994 from Finkelstein to petitioner which is attached here and made a part hereof and marked Exhibit "C". Petitioner was still years away from eligibility for retirement with benefits and his wife was still employed by respondent. Exhibit "A". On March 29, 1994 and January 15, 1995, petitioner was injured when he intervened to stop a fight between students at the Alternate School and petitioner continues to experience pain from these injuries. Exhibit "A".

Prior to June 30, 1994, Rapp observed petitioner's classroom performance and met with petitioner to discuss the observation and his evaluation for school year 1993-94, which evaluation was determined by Rapp to be satisfactory. Exhibit "A". During that conference, petitioner also inquired of Rapp whether the respondent was still insisting on petitioner's resignation and was informed by Rapp that as far as he knew such was the case. Exhibit "A".

Petitioner received notice of the respondent's acceptance of is resignation on or about September 2, 1994.

On or about June 27, 1995, petitioner in an effort to remedy his situation, requested in writing that his resignation be rescinded. Exhibit "A". Respondent denies receiving the letter but admits receiving a copy of such letter on July 17, 1995. A true and correct copy of petitioner's request and proof of delivery by Federal Express is attached hereto, made a part hereof and marked Exhibit "D".

On or about July 17, 1995, the petitioner requested a letter confirming petitioner's continuing employment by the respondent, a copy of this letter is attached hereto, made a part hereof and marked Exhibit "E".

On or about August 2, the petitioner received a letter from respondent which in effect denied: petitioner's rescindment of his resignation; petitioners reinstatement and, in effect terminated his employment. A copy of this letter is attached hereto, made a part hereof and marked Exhibit "F". Petitioner seeks other employment but has not been successful in obtaining a satisfactory position. Exhibit "A".

On or before August 30, 1994, the date of respondent's acceptance of petitioner's resignation, the Board had a vacant position titled Community Action Program Coordinator ("CAP") for which petitioner is qualified. Exhibit "A". Respondent did not disclose such vacancy to petitioner. Exhibit "A".

On October 26, 1995, petitioner filed his Petition of Appeal.

Petitioner learned upon receipt of answers to interrogatories from respondent on March 3, 1996 that petitioner is qualified for the CAP position by virtue of his certification, experience and tenure. Exhibit "A". See correspondence dated June 9, 1995 from Garrabrant to Wilkinson which is attached hereto, made a part hereof and marked Exhibit "G".

Also petitioner learned since filing his petition that respondent has an individual named Joseph Arminio who is employed at respondent's East High School in a position which was present in the school district during the 1994-1995 school year and for which petitioner is qualified for by tenure, certification and experience. Exhibit "A".

Petitioner has through supplementary interrogatories sought to obtain additional information regarding other positions within respondent's school district, for which petitioner may be qualified, but as yet has not received answers to these interrogatories. Exhibit "A".

Petitioner filed an Amended Petition of Appeal on March 15, 1996. Petitioner seeks reinstatement, backpay, salary and other benefits, and attorneys fees based upon two causes of action; duress (Count I) and in the alternative Misrepresentation (Count II).

POINT I

THE PETITION OF APPEAL IS NOT BARRED BY OPERATION OF LAW AS PETITIONER SEEKS RELIEF THROUGH THE EQUITABLE POWERS OF THE COURT IN THAT HIS RESIGNATION IS VOID AND, IN THE ALTERNATIVE, VIOLABLE BECAUSE OF RESPONDENT'S WRONGFUL CONDUCT

Petitioner seeks relief in this matter on the basis of the Court's equitable powers to set aside petitioner's resignation as void or rescind (Rescission) petitioner's resignations as voidable and grant petitioner reinstatement among the relief.

Petitioner's resignation is void in that it was submitted under circumstances which constitute duress and in the alternative is voidable because petitioner was induced to submit his resignation by an equitable misrepresentation made by respondent's agents.

Petitioner submitted his resignation on February 10, 1994, which was effective July 1, 1995. Petitioner's resignation was submitted under duress by respondent and therefore is void and not binding. Gobac v. Davis, 62 N.J. Super., 148 (Law Div. 1960); Brunnquell v. Scotch Plains Reg. Board of Education, 1987 S.L.D. (rem'd of St. Bd. of ed.); Milk Drivers & Dairy Emp. Local No. 680, 133 F. Supp. 336 (D.C.N.J. 1955).

In the alternative petitioner and respondent entered into a contract which was executory based upon the terms offered by respondent in the meeting of January 15, 1994 whereby petitioner was to submit his resignation, effective July 1, 1995, and in consideration respondent was not to terminate petitioner.

Petitioner then submitted his resignation effective July 1, 1995, and respondent did not terminate petitioner at the end of the 1993-1994 school year. Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Ed., at 290-291, "Contract" Cohn v. Fisher, 118 N.J. Super. 286 (1972).

Petitioner's resignation pursuant to this agreement was induced by a material misrepresentation and is voidable. Jewish Center of Sussex Cty. V. Whale, 86 N.J. 619.(1981) Restatement (Second) of Contracts ξξ 159, 161, 162 (2) and 164 (1).

In Gobac the plaintiff, a tenured investigator for the New Jersey Division of Alcoholic Beverages who, during an interview with his superior, arranged for the purpose of discussing his complaints regarding working conditions, was presented with a request to submit his resignation or face dismissal because he allegedly "tipped off" a license of the Division about a pending investigation. The defendant cited the advantages of a resignation over a termination. Plaintiff submitted his resignation at the conclusion of the conference which was accepted by defendant. Plaintiff was not offered the opportunity for a termination hearing which he was entitled to as a tenured employee. Plaintiff subsequently rescinded his resignation and requested reinstatement which was refused by defendant. Plaintiff then sued for reinstatement and back pay. The Court determined that the resignation was obtained under duress, declared it void, and reinstated plaintiff. The Court's analysis is instructive in this matter. In defining duress the Court stated:

> Duress in its more extended sense means that degree of constraint or danger, either actually inflicted or threatened and impending, sufficient in severity or in apprehension to overcome the mind or will of a person of ordinary firmness, according to the earlier rule, but now, by the weight of modern authority, such as in fact works control of the will.  In the modern view, moral compulsion or psychological pressure may constitute duress, if, thereby, the subject of the pressure is overborne and he is deprived of the exercise of his free will. The question is whether consent was coerced; that is, was the person complaining "induced by the duress or undue influence to give his consent, and would not have done so otherwise."  The tendency of the more recent cases, and the rule comparing with reason and principal, is that any "unlawful threats" which do "in fact overcome the will of the person threatened, and induce him to do an act which he would not otherwise have done and which he was not bound to do, constitute duress."

Gobac at 157 citing to Rubenstein v. Rubenstein 20 16t 359.

Discussing the test to be invoked in the determination of whether or not duress was employed, the court further stated:

> It would seem to be basic to the legal concept of duress, proceeding as it does from the unreality of the apparent consent, that the controlling factor be the condition at the time of the mind of the person subjected to the coercive measures, rather than the means by which the given state of mind was induced, and thus the test is essentially subjective.

Id. at 157 citing to Rubenstein.

The Court stated:

> The test of duress is not so much the means by which the party was compelled to execute the contract as it is the state of mind induced by the means employed - the fear which made it impossible for him to exercise his own free will. Threat must be of such a nature and made under such circumstances as to constitute a reasonable and adequate cause to control the will of the threatened person, and must have that effect; and the act > sought to be avoided must be performed by such person while in such condition.

Id. at 158 citing to Fountain v. Bigham, 235 Pa. 35, 84A. 131 (Sup. Ct. 1912).

The Court determined that an essential element of duress is that the threat or pressure exerted upon the individual is wrongful. Id. In considering wrongful the Court stated:

> The act or conduct complained of need not be "unlawful" in the technical sense of the term; it suffices if it is "wrongful in the sense that it is so oppressive under given circumstances as to constrain one to do what his free will would refuse." It was said in a recent case that duress is tested, not by the nature of the threats, but rather by the state of mind induced thereby in the victim. And the "state of a man's state of mind is as much a fact as the state of his digestion."

Id. at 158 citing to Rubenstein.

In Brunnquell the Court heard the matter on remand of the State Board of Education in an evidentiary hearing to determine whether a resignation was a product of duress. Petitioner Brunnquell submitted his resignation to respondent Board and it was accepted. Approximately five months after such acceptance petitioner filed a petition seeking rescission of his resignation on the basis of its involuntariness.

The Court opined:

> It is basic that a resignation from one's employment, thereby waiving all accrued rights to employment, must be knowingly and voluntarily proffered without duress or coercion. A resignation may be withdrawn at any time before it is accepted, but after the resignation has been accepted it is effective as against the subsequent attempt to withdraw, even though the teacher attempts to withdraw before the effective date of his resignation. If duress is established then the resignation and acceptance may be void.

Brunnquell at 16 (emphasis added).

The facts in this matter are analogous to Gobac. Like Gobac, petitioner was a tenured employee. Exhibit "A". Petitioner had rendered satisfactory service for 23 years. Id. Following a change in administrators petitioner then found himself subject to critical evaluation and animus from Finkelstein despite his previous record of satisfactory performance. Id. As in Gobac was informed that his teaching problems were to be subject of a meeting with his superiors all of whom were administrative officers of respondent Board. Id. As in Gobac, petitioner was told to resign with an effective date in the future or he would be terminated prior to that effective date. Id. As in Gobac, petitioner was given no other choices. Id. Respondent did not offer to place petitioner on a R.I.F. list if he was terminated at the end of the school year 1993-1994 or at the end of the 1994-1995 school year. Id. Petitioner has this right as a tenured teacher. Id. Moreover, petitioner was told that there were no positions for which he was qualified thus precluding any reasonable consideration by petitioner of placement on a R.I.F. list as an alternative to resignation. Id. Petitioner has since discovered that he is qualified for, at least, two positions. Id. As in Gobac, petitioner was advised of the benefits of resigning as opposed to being terminated. Id. This conduct was clearly so oppressive in petitioner's circumstances as to constrain his free will to refuse respondent's offer to resign. Id. The duress continued in full force and effect from January 15, 1995, when petitioner sought to rescind his resignation and return to work. Id. Petitioner was still subject to termination by respondent. The criticism by Finkelstein continued. Id. and Exhibit "C". Petitioner was still years away from retirement and his wife was still employed by respondent. Id. Petitioner was injured in two school related matters. Id. Rapp informed him that respondent still insisted on his resignation. Id. As in Gobac the circumstances under which petitioner resigned constitute duress and, petitioner requested his letter of resignation be withdrawn prior to its effective date. Id. As in Gobac, respondent Board refused such request of petitioner and petitioner was wrongfully terminated.

Respondent cites Eval v. Board of Education of City of Camden, 35 N.J. 244 (1961) in its argument that rescission should not be granted in this matter. Petitioner does contend that upon closer examination, the Court in Eval recognized a plaintiff's right to set aside or rescind, based upon equitable principles including duress among others when it stated "Although the record does not disclose any conduct by the school officials which amounts to duress  we think that the circumstances of this case required the reinstatement of the appellant on equitable principles." Id. at 249. Consequently petitioner's resignation was submitted under duress and should be set aside as void. Gobac; Brunnquell.

In Jewish Center of Sussex County v. Whale, supra., plaintiff, a religious congregation, sought rescission of its contact of employment with defendant, a rabbi. Defendant applied for the position of rabbi with plaintiff congregation. He submitted a brief resume to plaintiff and met with the congregation. Defendant's application stated that he was employed during the years of 1970-1977.

Following negotiations the parties entered into an employment contract. Approximately four months after entering into this agreement, plaintiff discovered that defendant was a convicted felon who, within the period wherein he reported employment on his resume, had been convicted and confined to a federal penitentiary, and disbarred as an attorney.

After discovering these additional facts about defendant, plaintiff rescinded the employment contract and notified defendant. Plaintiff filed suit alleging fraudulent misrepresentation. There were no allegations of unsatisfactory service against defendant. The trial court granted plaintiff summary judgment.

Defendant appealed arguing that plaintiff had failed to establish materiality of the misrepresentation and, defendant's intent to defraud or any injury suffered by plaintiff as a result of defendant's conduct. The Appellate Court affirmed and defendant appealed. In affirming, the New Jersey Supreme Court stated the following:

> Every fraud in its most general and fundamental conception consists of the obtaining of an undue advantage by means of some act or omission that is unconscientious or a violation of good faith. Id. at 64 citing to 3 J. Pomeroy, A Treatise on Equity Jurisprudence 421 (5th ed. 1941).
>
> Depending on the remedy sought, an action for fraud may be either legal or equitable in nature. Id. citing to Commercial Cas. Ins. Co. v. Southern Sur. Co., 100 N.J. E.q., 92, 96 (Ch. 1926), aff'd, 101 N.J. E.q. 738 (E.& A. 1927); 3 J. Pomeray, at 419.
>
> A misrepresentation amounting to actual legal fraud consists of a material representation of a presently existing or past fact, made with knowledge of its falsity and with the intention that the other party rely thereon, resulting in reliance by that party to is detriment. Id. citing to Foont-Freehendeld v. Electro-Protective, 126 N.J. Super. 254 at 257 (App. Div. 1973), aff'd 64 N.J. 197 (1974).
> The elements of scienter, that is, knowledge of the falsity and an intention to obtain an undue advantage therefrom  are not essential if plaintiff seeks to prove that a misrepresentation constituted only equitable fraud. Id. at 625 citing to Equitable Life Assurance Soc'y v. New Horizons, Inc. 28 N.J. 307 at 314 (1958) and Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Tarnowski, 130 N.J. E.q. 1,3 (E. & A. 1941).

The Court's reasoning is instructive in our matter. The Court stated that plaintiff had met its burden of proving equitable fraud as it sought an equitable remedy, rescission of the employment agreement and therefore scienter did not have to be proved. Id. Further, defendant's application contained false representation as to his experience during 1970-1977. Id. The court determined that the representation was material in that it related to plaintiff's defendant intended plaintiff's to rely on the information in the application in considering its employment decision. Id.

Further proof of reliance, the Court reasoned, was that plaintiff had made no inquiry of defendant which would have reasonably required defendant to advise plaintiff of his disbarment and conviction. Id. at 626.

With respect to defendant's allegations that plaintiff suffered no damage, the Court stated:

> He contends that inasmuch as plaintiff failed to prove actual damage, its motion for summary decision based on fraud must fail. This argument misconstrues the nature of equitable fraud. Actual loss in the financial sense is not required before equity may act: equity looks not to the loss suffered by the victim but rather to the unfairness of allowing the perpetrator to retain a benefit unjustly conferred. Thus in awarding an equitable remedy like rescission, the claimant's actual damage is only one factor to be considered.

Id. at 626 citing to Prosser, The Law of Torts at 732 (4th ed. 1971).

Petitioner's situation in this matter is analogous to the plaintiff in Jewish Center. Petitioner, like plaintiff in Jewish Center, entered into an agreement with respondent's agents pertaining to his employment. Black, Cohn. Like plaintiff in Jewish Center he was offered as an inducement a misrepresentation which was material and upon which it was reasonable for him to rely, given the person making the assertion. In Jewish Center, the misrepresentation it was the defendant regarding his past work experience upon which it was reasonable for plaintiff to rely in determining whether to employ defendant. In our matter it was Garrabrant's assertion that there were no positions for which petitioner was qualified and Garrabrant's failure to disclose prior to August 30, 1994.

In summary, the Petition of Appeal is not barred by operation of law as petitioner seeks relief through the equitable powers of the Court in that his resignation is void and in the alternate voidable because of respondent's wrongful conduct.

POINT II

THE PETITION OF APPEAL IS TIMELY UNDER N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) AND, IN THE ALTERNATE, WARRANTS RELAXATION OF THE 90 DAY RULE IN ACCORDANCE WITH N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15.

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c) states in pertinent part "the petitioner shall file a petition no later that the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final ... ruling to other action by the district board ... which is the subject of the requested case hearing." Id.

Petitioner's resignation is void and without legal effect in that it was submitted under duress and in the alternate voidable in that it was induced by a misrepresentation by respondent. Point I. The duress continued until at least the end of the school year 1994-1995. Point I; Exhibit "A". The misrepresentation was discovered March 2, 1996. Id.

In this matter the notice of final ruling and/or action of the respondent was received on August 2, 1995. Exhibit "F". Petitioner's Petition of Appeal was filed on October 26, 1995 and thereby timely.

Petitioner rescinded his resignation and sought reinstatement on June 27, 1995 Exhibits "A" & "D". Further, petitioner sought confirmation of his continued employment in his counsel's letter of July 17, 1995. Exhibits "A" & "E". Petitioner was notified on August 2, 1995 that: his resignation was not rescinded; that he was not reinstated and he was considered retired which terminated petitioner's employment. Exhibit "A".

It is the notice petitioner received on August 2, 1995, from which petitioner appeals to the Commissioner of Education. However, one of the wrongful acts which has its source in respondent's conduct, on January 15, 1995 and from which appeal is made is respondent's precluded from going forward with his claim. Martin v. Rochells Park Twp.,

144 N.J. Super. 216 (App. Div.) 1976. The same should be true in this matter and N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) should not bar petitioner's Amended Petition from a hearing on the merits.

Respondent relies on Nissman v. Board of Ed. 272 N.J. Super. 373 (App. Div. 1994) in support of its agreement that the final act giving rise to a claim for relief by petitioner is that notice of acceptance of petitioner's resignation which was received by petitioner on or about September 1, 1994. This case is to be distinguished from our matter. In Nissman the petitioner was a non-tenured employee who claimed she had earned tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. In our matter petitioner is a tenured employee whose rights have been abrogated by the wrongful conduct of the respondent wherein the resignation submitted under duress and induced by a material misrepresentation.

In the alternate if the Court determines that petitioner's Petition is barred by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), and petitioner maintains that it is not, then the 90 day rule should be relaxed in these circumstances to avoid an inappropriate and unjust preclusion of petitioner's appeal.

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5 states in pertinent part "The rules may be relaxed or dispensed with in any case where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed appropriate  or injustice may result."

Equitable consideration can trigger N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5. Polaha v. Buena Reg. Sch. Dist. 212 N.J. Super. 628 (App. Div.) 1986. Brunnquell v. Scotch Plains School Dist. 1987 S.L.D. 327 (on rem'd of St. Bd. of Ed.). In this matter petitioner seeks the equitable relief setting aside his resignation as void because it was submitted under duress and in the alternate granting his rescindment because the resignation was induced by a material misrepresentation. Point I.

Based upon the facts of this matter to preclude petitioner from going forward with his Petition and being heard by the Court, could be inappropriate and unjust.

Consequently, it is respectfully submitted that the within Petition of Appeal is timely and not barred by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) and, in the alternative, the Court should relax the 90 day rule of response as provided for in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15.

POINT III

RESPONDENT'S ARGUMENT THAT PETITION OF APPEAL IS BARRED BY LACHES OR PRINCIPLES OF ESTOPPEL IS WITHOUT MERIT

Respondent contends that the equitable doctrines of laches and estoppel bar petitioner's claim.

In defining laches, the New Jersey Supreme Court stated that this equitable principle which maybe invoked as a defense when a party delays in acting on his rights "involves more that mere delay, and mere lapse of time. There must be a delay for a length of time which unexplained and inexcusable, is unreasonable under the circumstances and is prejudicial to the other party," West Jersey Title and Guaranty Company v. Industrial Trust Co. 27 N.J. 144 at 153 (1958).

Clearly laches is not an affirmative defense in this matter. Petitioner submitted his resignation under duress by respondent which continued until he requested rescindment and sought reinstatement. Point I, Exhibit "A".

Petitioner did not sleep on his rights before or after the August 30, 1994 acceptance of his resignation by respondent he remained under the duress which resulted in his submitting his resignation to respondent. When petitioner requested rescindment of his resignation on June 27, 1995 this delay in exercising his right was merely nine (9) months after he received notice of respondent's acceptance on or about September 2, 1994. Exhibits "A" & "D". The delay was excusable and reasonable under the circumstances.

Furthermore petitioner did not learn the Garrabrant's assertion that he was not qualified for any other position with respondent was not in accordance with the facts, and a misrepresentation, until March 2, 1996 when he promptly thereupon amended his petition without delay.

The delay of time (9) months was not prejudicial to respondent. Respondent's agents knew that there was at least one other position for which petitioner qualified. Respondent had ample time to consider its options and take appropriate action in its best interest after petitioner's request for rescindment and reinstatement. Respondent had opportunity to grant or deny petitioner's request for rescindment. If granted then it had ample time to reinstate petitioner and/or terminate him and place him on an R.I.F. list providing him opportunity to exercise his rights as a tenured teacher including his seniority rights to the position(s) for which he was qualified by certification and experience.

Respondent argues further that petitioner's claim is barred by laches when this doctrine hinges upon equitable estoppel and cites to State, DEPE v. Dopp, 268 N.J. Super. 165 (App. Div. 1993). The Court in Dopp defined equitable estoppel as "the effect of the voluntary conduct of a party whereby the party is absolutely precluded, both at law and in equity, from asserting rights which might have otherwise existed, as against the other person, who has in good faith relied upon such conduct and has been led thereby to change his position for the worse." Id. at 176.

Equitable estoppel does not apply in our circumstances. Petitioner's conduct in not asserting his right to rescindment was not voluntary. It was the result of duress. Point I; Exhibit "A". Respondent was not prejudiced by petitioner's notice of rescindment. Moreover, respondent did not reasonably rely in good faith upon petitioner's resignation.

It knew that at the time of, and/or before respondent accepted petitioner's resignation that its assertion that petitioner was not qualified for any other position was not in accordance with the facts and it knew or should have known that petitioner was coerced into submitting his resignation. Point I; Exhibit "A".

Therefore, the Petition of Appeal filed by petitioner is not barred by laches or laches combined with equitable estoppel and should not be dismissed. West Jersey Title Company; Dopp.

POINT IV

SUMMARY DECISION IS NOT WARRANTED AS THERE EXIST ISSUES OF MATERIAL FACT AND RESPONDENT IS NOT ENTITLED TO JUDGMENT AS A MATTER OF LAW

Respondent's motion for Summary Decision is brought pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.1 et seq.

Summary Decision should be granted where there are issues of material fact and the moving party is not entitled to judgments as a matter of law. The Court in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. Of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954) stated: "The role of the judge in [summary decision] ... is to whether there is a genuine issue as to a material fact, but not to decide the issue if he finds it exist" Judson 73. The rule in Judson has been embodied into Court Rule 4:46-2 wherein states:

> The motion for summary judgment shall be  rendered forthwith if the pleading, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions  show that there is no genuine issue of matter fact challenged and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Id.

The language of R. 4:46-2 has been further incorporated into N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) which in pertinent point provides:

> [Summary Decision] may be rendered if the papers  filed together with the affidavits, if any, show there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. When a motion for summary judgment decision is made and supported an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding.

Id. at 74.

All inferences of doubt are drawn against the movant in favor of the opponent of the motion. Id. at 75.

In the recent decision of Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995), the Court set the standard to be applied when deciding a Motion for Summary Judgment.

> The determination whether there exists a genuine issue with respect to a material fact challenged requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party in consideration of the applicable evidentiary standard, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the nonmoving party.

Id. at 523.

Application of these rules shows that there are issues of material fact in this and respondent is not entitled to Summary Decision as a matter of law. Plaintiff in his verified petitioner and in his Affidavit has stated material facts to show that his resignation was a product of duress which continued until he requested rescindment. Point I. Exhibit "A".

Duress is an ultimate fact pervading all respondent's arguments for Summary Decision and petitioner's opposition to respondent's motion.

Petitioner was told to resign effective the end of the school year 1995 or he would be terminated at the end of the school year 1993-1994. Id. Respondent contends that it suggested that petitioner resign at the end of the 1995 school year because he would have attained the twenty-five years necessary for retirement. This is a material fact in controversy which goes to the element of duress.

Further the ultimate fact of duress is in conflict. Petitioner has stated facts which constitute duress. Respondent does not dispute the facts which go to duress but nevertheless concludes that duress is not an element in its motion. Duress is a subjective matter and therefore to be determined in an evidentiary hearing by the trier of fact. Gobac at 157 citing to Rubenstein; Shanley & Fisher, P.C. v. Sisselman, 215 N.J. Super. 20 (App. Div. 1987).

Respondent's misrepresentation is an ultimate fact in pervading all respondent's arguments for Summary Decision and petitioner's position to respondent's motion. Petitioner has stated facts which show that there was a misrepresentation made by respondent which induced petitioner's resignation. Point I, Exhibits "A" & "F". Respondent does not dispute the facts going to the misrepresentation but concludes nevertheless that misrepresentation is not an element in this motion. Misrepresentation is an element to be determined in an evidentiary hearing by the trier of fact. Judson at 76.

Petitioner seeks answer by way of interrogatories to other positions which are present in the school district and may provide additional argument in support of misrepresentation if not opportunity for his employment. Exhibit "A". These interrogatories have not as yet been answered and should be prior to a decision on this motion. Id.

Consequently, respondent's motion for Summary Decision should be denied as there are genuine issues of material fact and respondent is not entitled to judgment as a matter of law.

DISCUSSIONS AND CONCLUSIONS

In Kaprow, supra. Justice Garibaldi, writing for the Court, observed and stated:

> The Legislature's broad delegation of power to the Commissioner and the State Board, particularly N.J.S.A. 18A:6-26, encompasses the authority to establish a time limitation for the resolution of disputes under the school laws. The limitations period provides a measure of repose, an essential element in the proper and efficient administration of school laws. It stabilizes the relationship between teachers and the administration. Because education disputes frequently involve conflicting claims to one teaching position, the remedy is to award the prevailing party the position with back pay. The limitation periods gives school districts the security of knowing that administrative decisions regarding the operation of the school cannot be challenged after ninety days. Moreover, because local school boards operate on a cash basis, claims must be filed promptly so that the local board can anticipate any backpay requirements. Certainly, for the Commissioner to find that the efficient administration of a school system requires the stability offered by the ninety day limitation period is reasonable. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) represents a fair and reasonably necessary requirement for the proper and efficient resolution of disputes under the school laws. It falls within the scope of statutory authority granted to the Commissioner and the State Board and is valid. Id. at 582.

Thus, the authority of the State Board to promulgate, adopt rules, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) among them, is clearly established.

Further at 587, Justice Garibaldi continued to observe and hold that:

> Adequate notice must be sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to "know and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate. See, Burns v. West Am. Corp., 137 N.J. Super. 442, 446, 349 A.2d. 142 (Dist. Ct. 1975). Moreover, adequate notice under the regulation must be sufficient to further the purpose of the ninety day limitations period. See, Apex Roofing Supply Co. v. Howell, 59 N.J. Super. 462, 467, 158 A. 2d. 49 (App. Div. 1960). A limitations period has two purposes. The first is to stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so that the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend, thus preventing the litigation of stale claims. Ochs v. Federal Ins. Co. 90 N.J. 108, 112, 447 A. 2d. 163 (1982). The second purpose is to " 'penalize dilatoriness and serve as a measure of repose' " by giving security and stability to human affairs. Ibid. (quoting Farrell v. Votator Div. 62 N.J. 111, 115, 299, A. 2d. 394 (1973)).
>
> When a plaintiff knows or has reason to know that he has a cause of action against an idenitifiable defendant and voluntarily sleeps on his rights so long as to permit the customary period of limitations to expire, the pertinent considerations of individual justice as well as the broader considerations of repose, coincide to bar his action. [Farrell, supra. 62 N.J. at 115, 299 A 2d. 394]
> Adequate notice under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 should accommodate both purposes. That is, the notice requirement should effectuate concerns for individual justice by not triggering the limitations period until the tenured teachers have been alerted to the existence of facts that may equate in law with a post RIF cause of action. See, Burd v. New Jersey Tel. Co., 76 N.J. 284, 291, 386 A.2d. 1310 (1978). At the same time, it should further considerations of repose by establishing an objective event to trigger the limitations period in order "to enable the proper and efficient administration of the affairs of government." Borough of Park Ridge v. Salimone, 21 N.J. 28, 48, 120 A.2d. 721 (1956).

The uncontested facts of this matter clearly demonstrates that on February 13, 1990, the Board adopted a resolution to abolish petitioner's position of Food Services Instructor, effective June 30, 1990, for reasons of economy pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. Petitioner's name was placed on the Board's eligibility list for re-employment in the event the position was re-established by the Board. Petitioner was then assigned as a permanent substitute at the Board's High School East at his prior level of pay and benefits. On or about February 10, 1992, petitioner was transferred and assigned as an employment orientational food program teacher at the Board's Alternate Learning School Center. Subsequently, the Board considered the abolition of petitioner's position.

Petitioner attended a meeting on January 15, 1994, with his union representative and members of the Board's administrative staff. Petitioner was advised that the food service at the Alternative School would continue for one additional academic year, which would provide petitioner with 25 years of service in the pension system. On February 10, 1994, petitioner submitted his resignation for purposes of retirement, effective July 1, 1995. On August 30, 1994, the Board, at its regular monthly meeting, accepted petitioner's resignation effective July 1, 1995. Petitioner was so advised by letter, dated August 31, 1994.

Pursuant to the holding in Kaprow, petitioner's receipt of the Board's action by letter dated August 31, 1994, triggered petitioner's "receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling, or other action" by the Board. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Notwithstanding that petitioner continued in the Board's employ subsequent to its action to accept his resignation, for retirement purposes, the Board's action on August 30, 1994, was final. Thus, petitioner was given adequate notice of the Board's action. Accordingly, any challenge to the Board's action by petitioner was required to be filed before the Commissioner on or before November 29, 1994. Petitioner did not file his Petition of Appeal before the Commissioner until October 27, 1995, eleven months subsequent to the date which he was required to have filed his complaint.

Petitioner's attempt to rescind his resignation by way of letter dated June 28, 1995, did not act as a bar to the 90 day rule. As the Court said in Kaprow, > Kaprow's attempt to resolve his claim through negotiations with the Local Board is irrelevant. It does not negate the fact that he received adequate notice on February 23, nor does it toll the running of the limitations period. (Citations omitted) Id. at 588.

Thus, petitioner was advised of the Board's action of August 30, 1994, on August 31, 1994. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), he had ninety days in which to challenge the Board's action. He did not do so in a timely manner. Petitioner's attempt to rescind his resignation is, pursuant to Kaprow, irrelevant. Id. 588. Even if it was not, his attempt to rescind the Board's action was out of time.

There is nothing in the herein record to indicate any duress applied to petitioner in order to provide him with the opportunity to resign for retirement purposes. The record is too the contrary, where petitioner is complementary to the Board.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), and the holding in Kaprow, supra., that petitioner's challenge to the Board's action in accepting his resignation for the purpose of retirement is out of time.

I CONCLUDE that as a matter of law, petitioner is precluded from advancing his claim. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that it is not necessary to address the remaining issues of this matter.

I CONCLUDE that summary decision should be entered on behalf of the respondent Board and that the herein matter should be DISMISSED.

ORDER

Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) and the holding in Kaprow, supra., it is ORDERED that SUMMARY DECISION be ENTERED on BEHALF of the BOARD of EDUCATION of the TOMS RIVER REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT.

It is FURTHER ORDERED that the herein matter be and is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

CHARLES E. WILLSON, III,	:
PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOMS RIVER REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), i.e., that the Board induced his resignation by misrepresentation and, therefore, the 90-day time limitation of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) should not be applied. The Commissioner determines that petitioner's exception arguments were fully considered and correctly addressed by the ALJ in his initial decision and these will not, therefore, be revisited herein.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ that petitioner's challenge to the Board's action of accepting his resignation for retirement purposes is out of time for the reasons articulated by the ALJ in his initial decision.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CINNAMINSON, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, former Athletic Director (AD) now in the newly created position of Director of Athletics and Activities (DAA), alleged the Board transferred him to the new position for the 1994-95 school year and improperly reduced his salary. Petitioner alleged the Board violated his tenure rights as the two positions were basically the same.

ALJ concluded that petitioner's .6 tenured position as AD was not abolished but continued intact. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioner continued to hold his tenured supervisory position on at least a .523 basis, and because N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 provides that tenured employees may not be dismissed or reduced in compensation from or in their tenured positions (in the absence of removal pursuant to tenure charges -- not an issue in this matter), he found that the Board could not pay petitioner less for performing the very same duties than it paid him for performing them in the 1993-94 school year. It was ordered that the Board compensate petitioner in an amount equal to the difference between the salaries which he actually received in the 1994-95 and the 1995-96 school years and $69,318, the salary he should have received per annum.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions. Commissioner agreed that the record supported the conclusion that the AD position continued to exist intact, notwithstanding the Board's contention as to the more expansive nature of the DAA position, which the Commissioner found to be sufficiently addressed by the ALJ. Commissioner, like the ALJ, placed no reliance upon the Nelson Appellate Division decision. Commissioner directed Board to compensate petitioner.

RICHARD F. CONNOR,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CINNAMINSON, BURLINGTON COUNTY,

Respondent.

Nathanya G. Simon, Esq., for respondent (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso and Kessler, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 17, 1996 Decided: June 3, 1996*

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter commenced on October 26, 1994, when Richard F. Connor (hereinafter petitioner) filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education seeking a determination

---

* Extensions of time for issuing the initial decision were requested and granted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

that the Board of Education of the Township of Cinnaminson (hereinafter respondent) had violated his tenure rights by reducing his annual salary. An answer and affirmative defenses were filed on behalf of respondent on December 6, 1994, and on December 13, 1994, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was conducted on June 6, 1995. Pursuant to respondent's request, a prehearing order which had been issued on June 9, 1995, was amended on June 21, 1995 and the amended order set forth the following issues for determination at hearing:

1. Did respondent impermissibly reduce petitioner's salary in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and 28-6?

2. If the answer to issue number one is yes, what is the appropriate remedy?

3. Is the petition time-barred by the provisions of N.J.A.C.* 6:24-1.2(c)?

4. Is the petition barred by the doctrines of waiver and/or estoppel?

The hearing was scheduled for October 18, 1995 and took place as scheduled. Following the close of testimony, the record remained open for the receipt of written submissions. Simultaneous initial submissions were filed on behalf of each party on January 5, 1996. Respondent's post-hearing reply brief and petitioner's letter memorandum reply were both received on January 17, 1996, whereupon the record closed.

* Respondent has specifically abandoned this issue and accordingly, it will not be addressed herein.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Prior to the commencement of testimony, the parties entered into the following stipulations:

1. The Petitioner holds the following certificates issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners:

   (a) Instructional Certificate as Secondary School Teacher of German (Exhibit J-1); and

   (b) Principal/Supervisor Certificate (Exhibit J-2).

2. For the 1968-69 school year through the 1971-72 school year, the petitioner was employed in the Cinnaminson School District as a high school teacher of German, on a full-time basis, pursuant to his Instructional Certificate. During the 1971-73 school year, the petitioner was not in the District, as he was a Fulbright Exchange Teacher in Germany. The petitioner returned to the District, as a full-time teacher of German, for the 1973-74 school year and he continued to serve in that position through the 1989-90 school year.

3. As a result of his years of service in the position, the petitioner acquired tenure as a teacher. During his period of employment as a teacher of German, the petitioner was compensated in accordance with the salary guide established for teachers.

4. For the 1990-91 school year through the 1992-93 school year, the petitioner was employed by the Cinnaminson School District in a hybrid position: part of the petitioner's work day was spent teaching high school German in the middle school and part of the work day was devoted to service as the Athletic Director at Cinnaminson High School (herein, "AD"). For the 1993-94 school year, the petitioner was employed by the Cinnaminson School District in a hybrid position: part of the petitioner's work day was spent teaching high school German and part of the workday was devoted to service as the AD. The petitioner's service as

AD was rendered pursuant to his "Supervisory Certificate". A copy of the job description for the AD position is attached hereto as Exhibit J-3.

5. As a result of his years of service in the AD position, the petitioner acquired tenure as a Supervisor. A copy of the letter from Dr. Joseph Carol (former Superintendent of Schools) to the petitioner, dated May 7, 1992, wherein the aforementioned tenure acquisition is recognized, is attached hereto as Exhibit J-4.

6. During his period of employment as part-time AD and part-time teacher of German, the petitioner's annual salary was based upon his placement on the negotiated teachers' salary guide plus a stipend, which stipend was paid on a semiannual basis (i.e., twice per year: December and June) during the 1990-91 school year. For the 1990-91 school year, the AD position was an extra-duty position under the Cinnaminson Education Association Agreement (1989-1991) and, the stipend was not part of the petitioner's total annual salary. Beginning with the 1991-92 school year and continuing through the 1993-94 school year, while the AD position was a 10-month plus 10 days position, for which a stipend was added to the teacher guide salary, the stipend was included in the petitioner's 10-month annual salary, payable over a 12-month time period, pursuant to the negotiated agreement between the respondent and the Cinnaminson Supervisor's Association. See Exhibit J-5.

   Beginning with the 1994-95 school year, as a result of his appointment as Director of Athletics and Activities (herein, "DAA"), the petitioner was no longer included in the Supervisor's bargaining unit of the School District.

7. For the 1993-94 school year, the petitioner worked a 10-month, 10 day school year and received an annual salary of $62,704.00, based upon the following service: .6 (AD) and .4 (teacher of German). Memoranda from Mr. Timothy R. Wade, the Superintendent of Schools, to the petitioner, dated June 29, 1993 and August 2, 1993, reflecting the aforementioned service and salary, are attached hereto as Exhibits J-6 and J-7, respectively.

8. During the spring and summer of 1994, the petitioner had numerous conversations and meetings with Superintendent

Wade and Dr. Harold Melleby, Jr., the Principal of Cinnaminson High School, regarding the abolishment of the AD position and the creation of a new, full-time position entitled Director of Athletics and Activities. The petitioner participated in the development of a job description for the DAA position, making recommendations about the job description's content and wording. Also, in his conversations with Superintendent Wade, among other things, the petitioner was informed and knew about the salary to be established for the DAA position.

9. Principal Melleby requested the creation of the DAA position, which was approved by the Respondent's Personnel Committee. A copy of the "Personnel Requisition Form", and cover memorandum, authored by Principal Melleby are attached hereto as Exhibit J-8.

10. The abolishment of the AD position, and the creation of the DAA position, was based upon the following needs of the School District: the need to consolidate high school activities, the need to reduce the high school vice principal's duties (in order to allow that individual to work more with technology, which was the intended primary focus of that position) and the need to remedy lost teaching time (during the 1993-94 school year, the petitioner missed over 40 teaching periods, as a result of his AD duties). A copy of the memorandum from Superintendent Wade to the respondent, dated July 22, 1994, setting forth the rationale for the aforementioned reorganization, is attached hereto as Exhibit J-9 (relevant portions only).

11. The Cinnaminson School District advertised the DAA position in or about July of 1994, with employment in said position to commence on September 1, 1994. A copy of the posting for the DAA position is attached hereto as Exhibit J-10. The petitioner applied for appointment to the DAA position. A copy of a memorandum from the petitioner to Superintendent Wade, dated June 28, 1994, wherein the petitioner expresses his ". . . intention to accept the new supervisory position (i.e., the DAA position . . .", but does not waive his right to protest the salary reduction of approximately $7,000.00, is attached hereto as Exhibit J-11. Also attached hereto is a "letter of interest" submitted by the petitioner to Principal Melleby, dated "received" July 15, 1994 (Exhibit J-12).

12. Following Principal Melleby's receipt of several applications for the position, and the conduct of interviews, the petitioner was recommended by Dr. Melleby for appointment as DAA. A copy of the memorandum from Dr. Melleby to Mr. Wade, dated July 25, 1994, containing the recommendation, is attached hereto as Exhibit J-13. Mr. Wade subsequently recommended the petitioner to the respondent for appointment to the DAA position.

13. At its regularly-scheduled meeting of July 26, 1994, based upon the recommendation of Superintendent Wade, the respondent approved the following items: the abolishment of the AD position, the creation of the DAA position, a twelve month position, (together with the adoption of a job description for said position) and the appointment of the petitioner as DAA for the 1994-95 school year, effective September 1, 1994, at an annual salary of $58,000.00. A copy of the minutes from the respondent's meeting (relevant portions only), and the job description for the DAA position, are attached hereto as Exhibits J-14 and J-15, respectively.

During the summer of 1994, without creating any legal entitlement, and as an accommodation to the petitioner, Superintendent Wade and the respondent agreed that the pro-rata payment to the petitioner, for the months of July and August, would be based on the annual salary of $64,999.00, and that, effective September 1, 1994, with his appointment to the new DAA position, the petitioner's annual salary would be $58,000.00, pro-rated through June 30, 1995.

14. The petitioner received written notification of the action taken by the respondent at its July 26, 1994 meeting, by way of a letter from Superintendent Wade, dated August 1, 1994, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit J-16. The petitioner's appointment as DAA, for the 1994-95 school year, was confirmed in a memorandum from Superintendent Wade, dated August 8, 1994, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit J-17.

15. The respondent has not certified any tenure charges against the petitioner.

16. After being notified of his appointment as DAA for the 1994-95 school year, and his annual salary in that position, the petitioner did not seek alternative employment elsewhere.

17. For the 1995-96 school year, the petitioner continues to serve as the DAA and receives an annual salary of $60,030.00.

In addition to the foregoing, the following additional relevant facts appeared from the testimony of the only witness at the hearing, Timothy R. Wade, respondent's Superintendent of Schools, and from the documents marked into evidence.

At the conclusion of his first year as principal of the high school Harold Melleby, Jr., spoke to Mr. Wade, Superintendent of Schools, about a possible reorganization of his staff. As a result of this discussion, the position of Director of Athletics and Activities was created, the purposes behind which were confirmed by Mr. Wade in his weekly update to the Board of Education on July 22, 1994 as follows:

> This position was approved by the Personnel Committee and was requested by the High School Principal. The current Athletic Director also teaches German two periods per day. His Athletic Director duties caused him to miss over 40 class periods per last year. This loss of teaching time combined with the need to remove duties from the Vice Principal and to consolidate all of the activities at the High School is the reason for the position. The development of the Director of Athletics and Activities will take work away from the Vice Principal and give him time to work with technology which was the basis for the position.
> The combined cost, both teaching and athletic director, was over $65,000 last year. The new position salary was set between $55,000 and $60,000. We had hoped to reduce the Department Chair cost to the point where we would accomplish this. The main cost for the position is the cost for .4 German teacher to take the teaching load of the athletic director, this is about $20,000. We did have some savings from the Department Chair negotiations and we will save the cost of the substitute teacher used to cover the > German class. There is an extra cost of $11,000 which is reflected in the total listed above. (J-9 in evidence)

The position was posted as a vacancy for September 1, 1994. The posting read in pertinent part:

> Director of Athletics and Activities at Cinnaminson High School to oversee and coordinate the High School's athletic and extracurricular activities. Twelve month position with salary in accordance with the provisions of the negotiated agreement and Board policy. Applicants must have experience as a classroom teacher (minimum of three years) and coach, Masters Degree or equivalent, and New Jersey certification as an administrator. . . . (J-10 in evidence)

Mr. Wade testified that "certification as an administrator" was commonly understood in his district to mean an Administrative Certificate with a principal endorsement. In a memo dated July 25, 1994, Dr. Melleby reported to Mr. Wade that four persons had applied for the position; one was not interviewed because he did not possess a principal endorsement. The memo concluded with the following recommendation:

> I am recommending that Rich Connor be employed as Cinnaminson High School's Director of Athletics and Activities. Of the candidates interviewed, Mr. Connor was superior. Rich's experience as an Athletic Director, outstanding organizational skills, effective oral and written communications skills and human relation skills will assist him greatly in serving in this new capacity.
> If you have any questions, please contact me. (J-13 in evidence)

It was Mr. Wade's opinion that the new position "Director of Athletics and Activities" was similar to the position Vice Principal. The basis for this opinion appeared to be the fact that a number of the performance responsibilities listed in the job description for Director of Athletics and Activities had previously been responsibilities of the vice-principal. The job descriptions for

"Director of Athletics and Activities" as well as the position previously held by petitioner, "Athletic Director," are attached hereto and made a part hereof as if set forth herein at length.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

Petitioner asserts that the position "Director of Athletics and Activities" is actually the same position as "Athletic Director" and that, therefore, when respondent transferred him for the 1994-95 school year to the position Director of Athletics and Activities and reduced his salary from $64,999 to $58,000, it violated his tenure rights.

Tenure is a legislative status, not a contractual one, and in order to be protected by the status, a teaching staff member must have met the precise conditions articulated in the statute. In order to acquire tenure in any position in the public schools in any district, the teaching staff member must be a citizen of the United States (N.J.S.A. 18A:28-3), must hold an appropriate certificate for the position, issued by the State Board of Examiners, in full force and effect (N.J.S.A. 18A:28-4) and, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, must hold employment in the district for:

> (a) three consecutive calendar years, or any shorter period which may be fixed by the employing board for such purpose; or
> (b) three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
> (c) the equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years.

Prior to amendment in 1962, the tenure statute set forth only four tenure eligible positions: teacher, principal, assistant superintendent, and superintendent, and no rights of tenure attached to any gradation within any one of those designations. See, Lascari v. Board of Education of Borough of Lodi, 36 N.J. Super. 426 (App. Div. 1955), wherein is was held that the position of vice principal had no tenure, and, therefore, where the teacher, after serving as vice-principal, was transferred to regular teaching duties without loss of salary, he was not deprived of his tenure status which was merely that of a teacher. This was specifically changed by the 1962 amendment to the statute which provided in pertinent part:

> The services of all teaching staff members including all teachers, principals, assistant principals, vice principals, superintendents, assistant superintendents, and all school nurses. . . and such other employees as are in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners . . . shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and they shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation. . . . (Emphasis added.)*

That tenure is acquired in a particular position is made clear by the effect of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6, which was also part of the 1962 amendment, and provides:

> Any such teaching staff member under tenure or eligible to obtain tenure under this chapter, who is transferred or promoted with his consent to another position covered by this chapter on or after his consent to another position covered by this chapter on or after July 1, 1962, shall not obtain tenure in the new position until after:
>
> (a) the expiration of a period of employment of two consecutive calendar years in the new position unless a shorter period is fixed by the employing board for such purposes; or
>
> (b) employment for two academic years in the new position together with employment in the new position at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
> (c) employment in the new position within a period of any three consecutive academic years, for the equivalent of more than two academic years;

* Further amendments were made to this statute in 1991 but are not relevant to a determination of the issues herein.

> provided that the period of employment in such new position shall be included in determining the tenure and seniority rights in the former position held by such teaching staff member, and in the event the employment in such new position is terminated before tenure is obtained therein, if he then has tenure in the district or under said board of education, such teaching staff member shall be returned to his former position at the salary which he would have received had the transfer or promotion not occurred together with any increase to which he would have been entitled during the period of such transfer or promotion.

The parties have stipulated, correctly, that petitioner has tenure in the district as a teacher and as a Supervisor (Athletic Director).

Respondent denies, however, that petitioner has tenure rights to the position Director of Athletics and Activities and repeatedly recites in its written argument that the position Director of Athletics and Activities differs materially from the former position Athletic Director in nearly all respects, including job duties and certification requirements. Respondent's position in this regard is compromised somewhat by the imprecise language used in the posting and job description, however. There is no "administrator's certificate" or "certification as an administrator." Consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38, the State Board of Examiners issues only three educational certificates: the Instructional Certificate, the Administrative Certificate and the Educational Services Certificate. All other "certificates" referred to in case law and by educators are actually "endorsements" on one of the foregoing three certificates. The following four endorsements may be issued on a New Jersey Administrative Certificate:

> (a) School administrator: This endorsement is required for any position that involves services as a district-level administrative officer. Such positions shall include superintendent, assistant superintendent, executive superintendent and director. Holders of this endorsement are authorized to direct the formulation of district goals, plans, policies, and budgets, to recommend their approval by the district board of education, and to direct their district-wide implementation. Holders of this endorsement are authorized to recommend all staff appointments and other personnel actions, such as terminations, suspensions, and compensation, including the appointment of school business administrators, for approval by the district board of education. Holders of this endorsement are authorized to direct district operations and programs, and to supervise and evaluate building administrators and central office staff, including school business administrators. They are also authorized to oversee the administration and supervision of school-level operations, staff and programs.

(b) Principal: This endorsement is required for any position that involves service as an administrative officer of a school or other comparable unit within a school or district. Such positions shall include assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction, principal, assistant principal, vice-principal and director. Holders of this endorsement are authorized to direct the formulation of goals, plans, policies, budgets and personnel actions of the school or other comparable unit, to recommend them to the chief district administrator, and to direct their implementation in the school or other comparable unit. Holders of this endorsement also are authorized to direct and supervise all school operations and programs, to evaluate school staff, including teaching staff members pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.19 and 1.21, and to direct the activities of school-level supervisors.

(c) Supervisor: This endorsement is required for supervisors of instruction who do not hold a school administrator's or principal's endorsement. The supervisor shall be defined as any school officer who is charged with authority and responsibility for the continuing direction and guidance of the work of instructional personnel. This endorsement also authorizes appointment as an assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum and/or instruction.

(d) School business administrator: This endorsement authorizes the holder to perform duties at the district level in the areas of financial budget planning and administration, insurance/risk administration, purchasing and financial accounting and reporting, and may include other responsibilities as: plant planning, construction and maintenance; personnel administration; administration of transportation and food services; and central data processing.

Notwithstanding the word "Director" in petitioner's former job title, the certification required was an Administrative Certificate with a Supervisor's endorsement. See also, N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2.1, effective July 1, 1994, which requires all candidates for appointment to positions as "director of athletics" in any public secondary school to possess a supervisor's endorsement, not a principal's endorsement. Although petitioner also holds a principal's endorsement, his service in the district prior to appointment to the position in question had never been in a position requiring a principal endorsement, and accordingly if the position title Director of Athletics and Activities actually requires a principal endorsement, pursuant to recent decisions of the Commissioner, upon the reduction in force, petitioner would not have been able to transfer his tenure rights obtained under his Administrative Certificate, supervisor's endorsement, to claim a position requiring a principal's endorsement (notwithstanding the fact that he actually possessed the principal's endorsement.) Schaefer v. Bd. of Educ. of Lakewood, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 741. See also language in Halpern v. Bd. of Educ. of Delran, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 22 and Brenner v. Bd. of Educ. of Middlesex, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 81. The more difficult question, and the legal analysis involved, concerning whether petitioner would have been entitled to claim tenured entitlement to the entire 1.0 position entitled Director of Athletics and Activities need not be addressed under the facts of the within matter,* however, because I CONCLUDE that petitioner's .6 tenured position, Athletic Director, has not been abolished but continues to exist intact. This conclusion is supported by a simple review of the two job descriptions attached hereto. Each and every one of the 26 performance responsibilities set forth on the Athletic Director job description appears verbatim on the Director of Athletics and Activities job description. Clearly, some of the additional performance responsibilities of the Director of Athletics and Activities relate to supervision of other extra-curricular activities, but some others appear to be merely restatements or rewordings of the duties of the former Athletic Director position; see, for example, #37, advises the principal as to personnel performance, particularly when district standards are not met, and #39, makes recommendations for non-renewal or termination of employment. Even spreading petitioner's Athletic Director responsibilities over a 12-month period, rather than 10 months and 10 days, the total commitment still equals more than half of the job responsibilities in the new title (ten months and ten days equals .872 years x .6= .523). Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner continues to hold his tenured supervisory position on at least a .523 basis, and because N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 provides that tenured employees may not be dismissed or reduced in compensation from or in their tenured position (in the absence of removal pursuant to tenure charges - not an issue herein), I further CONCLUDE that respondent may not pay petitioner less for performing these very same duties than it paid him for performing them in the 1993-1994 school year.

* If it were necessary to address the issue, since the position "Director" is not an enumerated position title in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, I would hold that pursuant to Ellicott v. Board of Educ., 251 N.J. Super. 342 (App. Div. 1991) an employee who holds tenure under an Administrative Certificate by virtue of service rendered under a supervisor's endorsement should be able, in a RIF, to transfer tenure rights to claim the position Director, a State Board created position, as long as the employee also holds an endorsement appropriate for the position, i.e., either the School Administrator or Principal endorsement. See discussion in Brenner v. Middlesex Township Board of Education, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 81, 83-84. Although the Commissioner has agreed that "Director" does not equal "principal" for tenure purposes, Brenner, supra, (and therefore would presumably reject respondent's argument herein that "Director" equals "vice principal" for tenure and seniority purposes) on previous occasions he has disagreed that tenure rights under the Administrative Certificate may be transferred to any other position (even State Board created) for which the employee holds an appropriate endorsement. See Halpern and Schaefer, supra.

J-7 in evidence shows that petitioner's compensation for the 1993-94 school year, during which he served as .4 teacher of German and .6 Athletic Director, was calculated as follows:

1992-93	Base Salary	$50,076
5.1%	Increase	2,554
Stipend A.D.		10,074
1993-94 Salary		$62,704

Although the word "stipend" is used in these calculations, the evidence, including Superintendent Wade's testimony, clearly establishes that the additional money was simply treated as salary for all intents and purposes; the respondent recognized petitioner's tenure rights to the .6 A.D. position as a supervisor and even recognized that in reality the position consumed more than .6 of petitioner's time (note that he missed teaching over 40 German classes during 1992-93 because of his AD duties). Therefore, the portion of his 1993-94 salary attributable to his AD duties may be calculated as follows: .4 x $52,630 (base salary) = $21,052 as .4 German Teacher; $62,704 - 21,052 = $41,652 as AD.

Based upon all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that respondent must compensate petitioner for the 1994-95 school year and thereafter in an amount not less than $41,652 for .523 of his Director of Athletics and Activities position. The remaining .477 of the position, if compensated at a prorated portion of the $58,000 annual salary awarded to the entire position by respondent, would command a salary of $27,666, making petitioner's total annual salary $69,318, commencing with the 1994-95 school year.

Respondent's affirmative defenses are hereby DISMISSED as totally without merit. The idea that petitioner should somehow be responsible for failure to mitigate damages makes no sense at all when viewed in the context of the 12-month nature of the DAA position, in which, respondent's Superintendent candidly acknowledged, petitioner has been doing more work for less pay than in past years; when, exactly, was petitioner supposed to do other work in mitigation? Respondent's estoppel/waiver defense is likewise without merit; J-11 in evidence, dated June 28, 1994 clearly articulates petitioner's acceptance of the DAA position, subject to his continuing right to protest his salary reduction of approximately $7,000.* Petitioner did not waive this right or take any action which would bar him from pursuing it in the future.

Although respondent's purpose in setting the annual salary for Director of Athletics and Activities, i.e., to curtail budgetary costs, is a laudable one, it may not accomplish its purpose at the expense of its tenured employee. Nevertheless, I do not believe that there is any evidence to establish that respondent's actions herein were motivated by bad faith or were taken in deliberate violation of petitioner's tenure rights. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has not established entitlement to pre-judgment interest pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c)1.

* Petitioner's calculation of $7,000 was apparently based upon $64,999, the salary he would have received for the 1994-95 school year if he had continued to function as .4 teacher of German and .6 AD.

For all of the foregoing reasons, it is hereby ORDERED that respondent compensate petitioner in an amount equal to the difference between the salary which he actually received in the 1994-95 school year ($58,000) and $69,318, plus an amount equal to the difference between the salary he actually received in the 1995-96 school year ($60,030) and $69,318. It is further ORDERED that respondent continue to compensate petitioner in an amount not less than $69,318 per annum for performance of these duties.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 11973-94

RICHARD F. CONNOR,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CINNAMINSON, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by both petitioner and the Board. Replies were also timely filed by both parties in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board initially objects to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) factual finding on page eight of the initial decision with respect to the nature of the newly created Director of Athletics and Activities (DAA) position. The Board contends that the ALJ "implies that Mr. Timothy Wade  was the only individual to view the [DAA] position as being akin to a vice principalship." (Board's Exceptions at p. 2) However, the Board asserts that this view was shared by Principal Melleby, as well, which is "particularly noteworthy," since Dr. Melleby, along with Mr. Wade, created the position and established its performance responsibilities. (Id.)

The Board next takes exception to the ALJ's finding that "it used 'imprecise language' in the DAA posting and job description, when describing the minimum qualifications for holding the position." (Id.) Notwithstanding that both the posting and the job description employ the phrase, "certification as an administrator," (J-10 and J-15, in evidence), the Board maintains that Mr. Wade's unrefuted testimony established that the phrase "is commonly understood to mean possession of a Principal's Endorsement on the Administrative Certificate." (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 3) The Board further argues that petitioner, as a long-time employee of the District was "undoubtedly aware" that the DAA position required possession of a principal's endorsement rather than a supervisor's endorsement. (Id.) Thus, the Board affirms that the ALJ's "insinuation that the DAA position does not 'actually require' possession of a Principal's Endorsement" is without factual basis. (Id.) Moreover, the Board argues the ALJ's insinuation is without legal basis in that the administrative nature of the position compels the possession of a principal's endorsement. (Id.)

In response to the ALJ's discussion of petitioner's hypothetical tenure claim to the position of DAA found at the footnote on page 13 of the initial decision, the Board argues,

> [W]here the director's position requires possession of a Principal's Endorsement, the Commissioner has held that the position is a principalship, or vice-principalship, for the purposes of tenure acquisition and reemployment rights.  Given these rulings, the Board submits that its position in this case, i.e., that the DAA position is the tenure equivalent of a vice principalship, is legally and factually sound. (citations omitted) (Id. at p. 4)

The Board further objects to the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner's tenured position as Athletic Director (AD) "...has not been abolished but continues to exist intact." (Id. at p. 4, citing Initial Decision at p. 13) Here, the Board argues, inter alia,

> While it is true that the performance responsibilities contained on the AD job description also appear on the DAA job description, they are not repeated verbatim. Although Judge Duncan alluded to this fact,  she failed to expressly recognize that the job duties previously assigned to the AD have been expanded in two separate > respects: the DAA's duties extend beyond athletics and beyond the confines of the high school . (emphasis in text) (Id.)

> In comparing the AD and DAA job descriptions, Judge Duncan failed to note the substantial difference in the number of duties required to be performed in these positions. The DAA is charged with 42 job duties, whereas the AD was only required to perform 26 functions. The increased number of duties is attributable to the fact that, in addition to performing the duties previously assigned to the AD, the DAA is also charged with performing duties previously assigned to the high school vice principal, such as building-wide budgeting and scheduling functions. (Id. at p. 5)

The Board identifies additional evidence which supports its claim that the DAA position is materially different from the AD position: The DAA position requires possession of a Principal's endorsement, whereas the AD position required possession of a supervisor's endorsement; the AD position was a part-time, ten-month, plus two weeks, position, while the DAA position is a full-time twelve-month position; the AD's duties were confined to the high school, while the DAA's duties extend beyond the high school; and petitioner, while in the AD position was a member of the supervisor's collective bargaining unit, but ceased to be a member after his appointment to the DAA position. (Id. at pp. 5, 6) Thus, the Board maintains that the AD position was properly abolished and the DAA position is an entirely new position, akin to that of a vice principalship "for purposes of tenure acquisition and reemployment rights." (Id. at p. 6) In that petitioner did not have a tenure entitlement to the DAA position, the Board reasons that his tenure rights were not violated when it appointed petitioner to the DAA position at an annual salary which was lower than he previously received in the AD position. (Id. at pp. 6, 7)

In reply to the Board's exceptions, petitioner insists there is nothing in the record which supports the Board's claim that he was aware that the DAA position required the possession of a principal's endorsement rather than a supervisor's endorsement. (Petitioner's Reply at p. 3) Moreover, petitioner argues that the ALJ properly conducted a review of the job performance responsibilities of the DAA and AD, inasmuch as the job description for the DAA position does not specify what endorsement on the administrative certificate is required, and because the certification issue is in dispute. (Id. at pp. 3, 4)

As to the job performance analysis, petitioner contends, notwithstanding that the DAA's position contained 42 listed duties and the AD's position identified 26 duties,

> Respondent has never demonstrated that Petitioner did not perform those [additional] duties while in the [AD] position or that performance of those additional duties requires a principal's endorsement rather than a supervisor's endorsement. Mr. Wade, himself, testified at the hearing that he could not delineate what the DAA's duties are, nor could he determine what percentage of Petitioner's time is now spent on duties he previously performed as Athletic Director and what percentage of time is spent on "new" duties. Moreover, most of the additional duties set forth in the DAA job description, such as preparing purchase requests, recruiting scholarships and interviewing and selecting coaches are the types of duties mentioned in the Senate Education Committee statement which accompanied Senate Bill No. 2343, L.1991, c.17, codified at N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2.1. That act requires all candidates for appointment to positions as "director of athletics" in any public secondary school  to posses a supervisory certificate . (Id. at pp. 4, 5)

Petitioner's exceptions consist essentially of a concurrence with the initial decision, together with an alternative legal basis for affirmance. Petitioner provides,

> [T]he ALJ's decision is supported and compelled by the recent decision of the Superior Court, Appellate Division in Nelson v. Bd. of Ed. of Old Bridge Township[1], Superior Court, Appellate Division (Unreported, 1996). The Nelson decision buttresses and supports the ALJ's decision, and constitutes an additional ground
