OF JAMES A. COX. : DECISION

The record of this matter and advisement of appellant's failure to appear for hearing on his appeal of disqualification from school employment under criminal history record check laws have been transmitted to the Commissioner by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4. Additionally, a copy of the notification sent to appellant by OAL on December 2, 1995, providing him ten days to submit an explanation for such nonappearance, have been reviewed. There being no explanation filed by the appellant, this case is no longer deemed to be a contested matter before the Commissioner and is hereby dismissed with prejudice. Accordingly, the February 28, 1995 letter of the Deputy Commissioner finding that appellant had not demonstrated rehabilitation so as to be qualified for school employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 et seq., shall stand as the final decision in this case.

This matter is hereby transmitted to the State Board of Education which has retained jurisdiction pursuant to its decision of September 6, 1995.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON REMAND

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, fully certificated teaching staff members employed by the Board, claimed that the Board violated N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 by appointing the holder of a county substitute certificate to a coaching position for which they were qualified.

By decision dated September 16, 1994, Commissioner affirmed the determination that the above-cited regulation was violated and directed implementation of the relief recommended by the ALJ, i.e. Board was directed to review petitioners' applications and to select one of them to be paid the applicable stipend plus interest. Commissioner, however, remanded matter for limited fact-finding and argument on petitioners' entitlement to additional relief for subsequent seasons.

On remand, the ALJ found sufficient evidence in the hearing record that petitioners asserted and presented testimony on their claim of rights in the wrestling seasons after the 1991-92 season. ALJ concluded petitioners' claims to further relief for 1992-93 and 1993-94 were appropriately raised.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that, under the circumstances herein, petitioners were entitled to the same relief for 1992-93 and 1993-94 wrestling seasons, as afforded for the 1991-92 seasons. Commissioner directed that the Board follow the same procedures administering relief for the 1992-93 and 1993-94 school years as ordered by the decision dated September 16, 1994 for the 1991-92 school year.

Record Closed: October 23, 1995 Decided: November 17, 1995

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Richard Harris and Kenton Garay, petitioners, are teaching staff members employed by the respondent Hunterdon Central Regional High School District Board of Education who sought an order vacating the head wrestling coach position, awarding the position to "a fully qualified permanent staff member who applied for the position," and full back pay and emoluments to that person.

The matter was opened on two separate petitions before the Commissioner of Education. Both were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. The matters were consolidated, heard, and an initial decision issued on August 2, 1994.

The initial decision found that the district suspended three wrestling coaches in 1991 after a rules infraction was discovered; the district posted and advertised the positions of head wrestling coach and assistant wrestling coach on October 1, 1991; several applications were received and reviewed by the high school principal and the director of student administration; four persons were interviewed, Gibble, Garay, Harris and Holcombe; the interviewers reached a consensus and recommended Gibble to the Superintendent; the Superintendent accomplished the necessary application through the County Superintendent of Schools because Gibble, although he worked for the district, held only a county substitute certificate, and there was no procedural defect in the approval process. The decision concluded that Harris and Garay were not legitimately ruled out.

It was ordered that the petitioners be granted relief in the following way: the Board was to review the applications of both petitioners and, if necessary, interview both petitioners; the Board would then select one of the two petitioners based on its assessments of their backgrounds and abilities; that person would be paid the stipend lost, plus interest since the last day of the 1991-92 wrestling season. No other moneys were to be paid because the petitioners limited their petition to the 1991-92 season.

The Commissioner agreed with the findings and conclusions with the exception of limitation of remedy to the 1991-92 school year and remanded for determination of the question whether relief should be so limited.

A second initial decision issued on April 6, 1995. On May 25, 1995, a second remand sought conclusions concerning the 1992-93 and 1993-94 school years, particularly whether the petitioners' failure to amend the pleadings bars their claim to further relief. Necessary to that determination is the certificate status of Gibble. Counsel agreed to the history that is marked C-1.

Preliminary, I FIND sufficient evidence in the hearing record that the petitioners asserted and presented testimony on their claim of rights in the wrestling seasons after the 1991-92 season. I therefore CONCLUDE that the petitioners' claims to further relief for 1992-93 and 1993-94 are appropriately raised.

The certification of Stephen Gibble (C-1) shows:

1992-1993	-	Substitute Certification No. 0050048
1993-1994	-	Substitute Certification No. 73223
1994-1995	-	Provisional Certificate, Teacher of Social Studies No. 00143213
1995-1996	-	Permanent certification is being processed by the State of New Jersey

True copies of the certificates were supplied and the tribunal is satisfied that the certification is correct in all particulars.

As to relief, N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(c) controls. That subsection provides:

> (c) In the event there is no qualified and certified applicant, the holder of a county substitute certificate is authorized to serve as an athletic coach in the district in which he or she is employed . . . provided that:
> 1. The district chief school superintendent demonstrates to the county superintendent that:

i. The vacant coaching position had been advertised; and

ii. There was no qualified applicant based on the written standards of the board of education;

2. The district chief school administrator will provide a letter to the county superintendent attesting to the prospective employee's knowledge and experience in the sport in which he or she will coach; and

3. Approval of the county superintendent shall be obtained prior to such employment by the district board of education. The 20-day limitation noted in N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.4(I) shall not apply to such coaching situations.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that under the circumstances of this case the petitioners are entitled to the same relief for 1992-93 and 1993-94 wrestling seasons as they were afforded for the 1991-92 season. Gibble ceased working under a substitute certificate at the end of the 1993-94 school year. This means that all facts and circumstances operative in 1991-92 were operative in 1992-93 and 1993-94. The hearing record shows the petitioners continued to apply for the position of head wrestling coach in those years. Given the identity of facts and circumstances, the same relief must flow.

The August 2, 1994 initial decision in the matter under docket numbers EDU 1945-92 and EDU 2223-92 (consolidated) ordered the Board to review the applications of both petitioners and, if necessary, interview both petitioners. The Board then was directed to select one of the petitioners based on its assessment of their backgrounds and abilities. That person was to be paid the stipend lost, plus interest from the last day of the wrestling season. This part of the initial decision was adopted by the Commissioner on September 16, 1994. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the same procedures be followed for the 1992-93 and 1993-94 school years.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RICHARD HARRIS AND KENTON P. GARAY,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE HUNTERDON CENTRAL REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, HUNTERDON COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON REMAND
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and Petitioner Garay's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board's exceptions assert that petitioners' failure to amend their pleadings is a bar to relief beyond the 1991-92 school year. In this regard, the Board essentially recasts its arguments raised before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), and attaches for reference a copy of its brief on the issue. Additionally, the Board argues that the ALJ, in his most recent decision, > makes no attempt to address the arguments raised by the Board of Education as to why the petitioners had to amend their petitions in order to be entitled to additional relief. Rather, he finds that petitioners asserted and presented testimony on their claim of rights. (Board's Exceptions at p. 2)

Accordingly, the Board claims that the ALJ has chosen "to ignore this issue" and find that petitioners were entitled to relief subsequent to 1991-92.

In reply, Petitioner Garay argues that both he and Petitioner Harris testified at the hearing regarding the years subsequent to 1991-92; the Board therein had the opportunity to cross-examine petitioners on the issue of relief for subsequent years. Petitioner Garay further points to N.J.A.C. 1:1-6.2(a), which provides,

> Unless precluded by law or constitutional principle, pleadings may be freely amended when, in the judge's discretion, an amendment would be in the interest of efficiency, expediency and the avoidance of overtechnical pleading requirements and would not create undue prejudice.

Petitioner further asserts that the Board "ignores Roberts v. Keansburg Board of Education, 5 NJAR 208 (1983) which holds that the first pleading may be amended anytime, even after presentation of proofs." (Petitioner's Reply at p. 2) Thus, Petitioner Garay concludes that the Board's arguments must be rejected.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner is satisfied that the ALJ finds in the hearing record, sufficient evidence "that the petitioners asserted and presented testimony on their claim of rights" to conclude that such claims for relief for 1992-93 and 1993-94 are appropriately raised. (Initial Decision at p. 3) The Commissioner herein determines that, inasmuch as the parties were provided the opportunity to submit arguments before the ALJ concerning the threshold question of whether failure to amend a pleading is a bar to further relief in this matter, his direction on remand is satisfied, notwithstanding that the ALJ's treatment of said issue in his initial decision is conclusory. Additionally, in light of the certification of Stephen Gibble, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that, under the circumstances herein, petitioners are entitled to the same relief for 1992-93 and 1993-94 wrestling seasons, as afforded for the 1991-92 seasons.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the ALJ for the reasons expressed therein, and directs that the Board follow the same procedures administering relief for the 1992-93 and 1993-94 school years as ordered by the decision dated September 16, 1994 for the 1991-92 school year.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges of inefficiency and unbecoming conduct to the Commissioner in February 1992 against respondent English teacher. Partial initial decision in September 1992 dismissed the inefficiency charge because of Board's failure to comply with statutory and regulatory requirements mandated when bringing charges of inefficiency. Matter was returned to OAL to proceed on remaining charges of unbecoming conduct.

ALJ found that, in this matter, respondent continuously failed to perform the duties of his position, in that he failed to discipline, control or teach the students in his charge. ALJ ordered respondent removed from his position as a tenured teaching staff member.

Commissioner concurred with the conclusion of the ALJ that the record made it abundantly clear that respondent should not be continued in his tenured teaching position and directed his dismissal as of the date of this decision.

Record Closed: February 14, 1995 Decided: October 6, 1995

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter involves a hearing under the Tenure Employees Hearing Act seeking the removal of respondent, a teaching staff member, on charges of inefficiency and unbecoming conduct. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 24, 1992, for hearing as contested case. The matter was assigned to the undersigned Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) on March 6, 1992, and a prehearing conference was scheduled for April 21, 1992. The scheduled prehearing conference was adjourned and rescheduled because of the unavailability of attorney for respondent. The prehearing conference was rescheduled to May 13, 1992, and on that date a prehearing conference was held and concluded and a prehearing order was entered on June 1, 1992, settling the procedures to be followed in the matter.

Pursuant to the prehearing order, attorney for respondent filed a motion to dismiss the charge of inefficiency against respondent because of petitioner's alleged failure to comply with N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1(c)(4), and to dismiss the charge of unbecoming conduct because of petitioner's alleged failure to comply with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-13 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1(b)(4), (5) and (6). This motion to dismiss was filed on July 17, 1992, and petitioner responded on August 5, 1992. By a Partial Initial Decision dated September 21, 1992, the ALJ dismissed the charge of inefficiency but denied respondent's motion to dismiss the charge of unbecoming conduct. This Partial Initial Decision was submitted to the Commissioner of the Department of Education for immediate review pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(e) and respondent also appealed the denial of his motion to dismiss the unbecoming conduct charge. By decision dated October 21, 1992, the Commissioner of the Department of Education affirmed the Partial Initial Decision. Petitioner then appealed this decision to the State Board of Education and by its decision dated February 2, 1993, the Commissioner's affirmation of the Partial Initial Decision was affirmed by the State Board of Education.

The matter was then scheduled for hearing on October 22 and 27, 1992, November 6, 7, and 12, 1992, February 16, 1993, which hearing date was adjourned at the request of attorney for petitioner due to a death in the family, on February 22, 1993, March 15, 1993, August 11, 1994, which date was adjourned at the request of attorney for respondent due to his unavailability, and on September 22 and 27, 1994. At the conclusion of the hearing, the parties requested the opportunity to submit briefs and requested that the scheduling of the submission of these briefs be held in abeyance until the receipt of all transcripts of these proceedings. After the submission of briefs and reply briefs, the record closed on February 13, 1995.

As a result of extensions, the time within which this Initial Decision is to be submitted was extended to October 6, 1995.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The essential facts in this matter are disputed by the parties. The following is not intended to be a verbatim account of the testimony and evidence in this matter. It is intended to be a summary of the testimony found to be relevant as to the issues.

The first witness to testify for respondent was Lula Mae Rivers. Ms. Rivers indicated that she was respondent's immediate supervisor and his primary evaluator for the 1989-90 and 1990-91 school years. She testified as to her educational background and prior work experience. She was the English Department chairperson for nine years and also was employed as an adjunct professor at Keans College, Rutgers University. As the chairperson of the English Department, it is her responsibility to supervise the staff in order to ensure that it fulfilled its duties to prepare students. Petitioner was an English teacher assigned to her supervision for more than three years.

Ms. Rivers testified to an observation she conducted on October 11, 1989 (Exhibit P-1), in which she gave respondent an overall unsatisfactory rating. This was based upon respondent's lack of control in the classroom and lack of classroom management. During the observation students were talking and walking around the classroom at will and were socializing rather than performing their educational tasks. It appeared to Ms. Rivers that the students were accustomed to doing this. Respondent exhibited a nonchalant and uncaring attitude and there was no effort on his part to ask them to sit, to do their assignments, or otherwise to control their actions. There was no motivational technique used by respondent to implement the lessons and respondent failed to motivate the students to get involved in their lessons. The respondent did not pay any attention to the fact that the students were not paying attention. At the post-observation conference, Ms. Rivers indicated that she suggested to respondent various ways to provide a better learning environment. He did not respond to her suggestions in any way.

Ms. Rivers identified a memorandum sent to respondent on October 17, 1989 (Exhibit P-2), which discussed problems in respondent's classroom and gave him the suggestions that he give more challenging lessons and that he take off credit if a child disregards his directions.

Ms. Rivers testified to an informal observation on October 25, 1989 (Exhibit P-3), in which she observed that the lesson plans were not on the teacher's desk as required by the school district, respondent provided no attention to students, he did not direct instructional activity, and he paid no attention to classroom appearance. After this informal observation, Ms. Rivers indicated she never saw respondent use any of the techniques she suggested.

Ms. Rivers testified to an informal observation on November 28, 1989 (Exhibit P-4), and again she saw a lack of control on the part of respondent. The students were engaged in irrelevant conversations and respondent ignored these actions. She recommended more challenging lessons but never saw respondent attempt to implement this recommendation.

Ms. Rivers testified that she sent a memorandum to respondent on December 2, 1989 (Exhibit P-5), because of his failure to submit essays or writing samples from the students. She acknowledged that other teachers also submitted them late.

Ms. Rivers testified to a formal observation which she conducted on January 24, 1990 (Exhibit P-6), in which she again gave respondent an unsatisfactory overall rating. She indicated that it was difficult to determine what respondent's objective was for that class. She observed students talking among themselves and a lack of concern by the students. They were not paying any attention to respondent and respondent did not address this fact. There was an unsatisfactory student-teacher rapport and she felt that the students should be respectful to one another and to the teacher. Respondent failed to use study guides and failed to determine whether the students were comprehending the lesson. He failed to use any technique whatsoever in order to implement the lessons. In addition, he failed to begin the class promptly and he was working on paperwork at the beginning of the class. She indicated that the lesson should be started first and then paperwork could be done. Ms. Rivers testified that she discussed this observation with respondent and suggested that he use a directed reading lesson, that he use a seating chart, and that he make it clear that the students will be tested and will be responsible for the material. Respondent again failed to follow these suggestions or to use any of the recommendations.

Ms. Rivers testified that on January 29, 1990, she sent a memo to respondent (Exhibit P-7) requesting that he inform her how the district's literature textbook would be included in the lesson plans. She testified that each teacher is given a Course Proficiency and Course Outline which must be followed, and there was no indication he was doing so.

Ms. Rivers testified that she conducted an informal observation of respondent on January 31, 1990, (Exhibit P-8) at which time respondent was five minutes late for class. He eventually started the lesson ten minutes late. She indicated that respondent had been late previously, although there were no written memos confirming his prior lateness.

Ms. Rivers also testified to a memo given to respondent on February 22, 1990 (Exhibit P-9), at which time she observed students sitting on the steps waiting for the start of a voluntary class because respondent was late arriving. She indicated that there were other occasions when no one was in respondent's classroom when the class should have been held. She also indicated that respondent's tardiness did not improve after the memo.

Ms. Rivers testified to an informal observation on February 22, 1990 (Exhibit P-10), when respondent arrived late. After he arrived the students continued to walk around the classroom and to talk and socialize. Some of the students were using radios under their hats.

Ms. Rivers testified that she sent a memo to respondent on March 2, 1990 (Exhibit P-11), acknowledging that he had sent her a list of names of problem students and advising him that she would be supportive of him in taking disciplinary action against these students. She eventually determined that respondent simply sent the list of problem students to her but did not call any of the parents to attempt to resolve the disciplinary problems or take steps to deal with these students. He also never approached her concerning the disciplining of any of the students. Respondent denied that he ever received this memo.

Ms. Rivers indicated that on March 9, 1990 (Exhibit P-12), she conducted an informal observation in which she observed students singing while others engaged in other activities while respondent should have been conducting class. There was no attempt by respondent to maintain order and there was no seating organization. The students gathered their chairs in a corner and were singing. She again suggested to respondent that he have a seating chart. However, she never observed that he made an orderly arrangement of seats.

Ms. Rivers indicated that on March 13, 1990, she sent a memo to respondent (Exhibit P-13) confirming the providing of a demonstration lesson to show respondent how to control his classroom. She indicated that students had been given exercise or "ditto" sheets and that it is not appropriate conduct for a teacher to give "dittos" five days a week. Many of the students found the lessons to be boring and they wanted their classroom changed. She also identified a memo sent to respondent on March 29, 1990 (Exhibit P-14). She indicated that respondent was using ditto sheets rather than the literature book mandated by the school district, which respondent indicated was too difficult for the students. Ms. Rivers noted that the teacher's copy of the required book is annotated and suggests adjustments based upon the abilities of the students. As a result, Ms. Rivers came up with a list of alternate books which she set forth in her memorandum. She also stated that respondent did not indicate that the required literature book was too difficult until the dittos that respondent repeatedly gave to the students were questioned by Ms. Rivers.

Ms. Rivers identified the Annual Evaluation Report of June 1990 (Exhibit P-15). She indicated that respondent's overall rating in this report was unsatisfactory because the items listed as unsatisfactory were consistently unsatisfactory throughout the school year on the part of respondent. There was no effort made by respondent to improve or change his behaviors. The areas needing attention or improvement were that the students were not paying attention in class, the teacher was not paying attention to the students, the students were bored with their class and were cutting classes, the students' expectations from class were low, the students lost interest and many were failing, respondent failed to investigate techniques for effective classroom discipline and management and he failed to engage in extracurricular activities. There was no follow-through by respondent on her suggestions. She recommended a refresher course on new teaching techniques. The second page of the Annual Evaluation is a Professional Improvement Plan (PIP) for the upcoming year, which is developed between the teacher and the supervisor. This suggested improvements in respondent's skills and the timeline when the improvements were to be completed.

Ms. Rivers testified that after the beginning of the next school year on September 19, 1990, she wrote a memo to respondent reminding him that writing samples were to be submitted to her. She explained that a certain number of writing samples must be submitted and that this is a district policy. However, no writing samples were submitted by respondent. She identified a follow-up memo of October 15, 1990 (Exhibit P-17), which reminded respondent of his failure to submit writing samples. None were ever submitted.

Ms. Rivers identified a memo of October 17, 1990 (Exhibit P-18), regarding respondent's lesson plans and the Board directives that were provided to respondent. Subsequently, respondent did not submit lesson plans to her satisfaction, and in some instances the elements required of lesson plans were missing. She indicated that lesson plans are due every payday and that respondent repeatedly failed to submit lesson plans on time (Exhibit P-19 and P-20). Eventually, respondent requested a sample incorporating elements of a proper lesson plan, and this was provided to him in a memo of November 15, 1990 (Exhibit P-21). She indicated that parts of his lesson plans were consistently missing.

Ms. Rivers testified to an informal observation on November 19, 1990 (Exhibit P-22), at which time she observed that graffiti was located in respondent's classroom bulletin boards, there were writing with magic marker around the room, and that the room was very depressing. In addition, there was students walking around the class and there was disruptive classroom behavior on the part of some of the students. She spoke to respondent afterwards concerning these items but no subsequent improvement was made or attempted by him.

Ms. Rivers testified that on November 19, 1990, she sent a memo to respondent indicating that the writing samples due in September 1990 had not yet been provided (Exhibit P-23). She also indicated that it is mandated by the school district that a practice High School Proficiency Test (HSPT) be given for diagnostic purposes to determine student needs. She sent a memo to respondent on November 20, 1990, and indicated that respondent never gave a practice test and never gave the results of such a test to her (Exhibit P-25).

Ms. Rivers testified to an observation report of November 20, 1990 (Exhibit P-26). On that occasion, respondent was excessively late. When he arrived he used a ditto for the lesson. During the lesson two girls were talking and one of the girls was combing the other girl's hair. The respondent said nothing to them. Ms. Rivers indicates that she admonished the girl, when this should have been the responsibility of respondent. When respondent handed out the dittos, a student in the classroom said "We have had this ditto a million times." Ms. Rivers testified that she then examined the ditto and recognized it as one that had been handed out to this class before. She also indicated that she had previously recommended getting the students interested and not just handing out a ditto. She concluded that respondent had failed to use any suggested strategies, that he used exactly the same ditto three times in a row. In the post-observation conference when this was discussed, respondent listened and signed the report but did not state he would use any of the discussed strategies.

Ms. Rivers indicated that on November 26, 1990, she again wrote a memo to respondent concerning the fact that his lesson plans were late (Exhibit P-27). She indicated that it was very rare that she received lesson plans from respondent when they were due. She also testified that respondent never came to her and gave any explanation or reasons for his failure to submit lesson plans on time.

Ms. Rivers testified that on November 12, 1990, she sent a memo to respondent listing various areas of concern (Exhibit P-28). However, she still did not receive lesson plans from respondent on time and he did not comply with the memo. She testified to an informal observation on December 2, 1990 (Exhibit P-29), when she saw a female student sitting on respondent's desk during class. There was no instruction going on at the time and students were socializing. A student was playing in respondent's hair. Another informal observation was conducted on December 3, 1990 (Exhibit P-30), and Ms. Rivers found the class to be so noisy that the noise could be heard in the hall. She went into the classroom and found respondent there and felt that this disruptive class behavior should have been controlled by him.

Ms. Rivers testified that on December 10, 1990, she again gave him a memo concerning his failure to submit lesson plans (Exhibit P-31). He never explained the reason for the failure and never provided the lesson plans. She sent another memo on the same date (Exhibit P-32), in which she again reminded him that he failed to provide writing samples for September, October, November, and December, 1990. She also testified that on December 13, 1990, she conducted an informal observation (Exhibit P-33) at which time she saw classroom chairs in disarray, books were thrown about the classroom, no student work on exhibit, no posters, and nothing to enhance the learning environment. The students were disruptive and were walking, talking, playing, and socializing. Respondent was tardy to class in first period and she was in the hall and saw him arriving late. She also testified that by memo of January 7, 1991 (Exhibit P-34), she again reminded respondent that his lesson plans. However, they were not submitted after this memo. She also identified a memo of January 8, 1991 (Exhibit P-35), reminding respondent that at least four writing samples were due and that he had submitted none. She again sent him a memo on January 21, 1991, reminding him that he failed to submit lesson plans (Exhibit P-36). Another memo with respect to lesson plans was sent on February 4, 1991 (Exhibit P-37).

Ms. Rivers testified that she conducted an informal observation on February 18, 1991 (Exhibit P-38). Respondent was late for class and the classroom was noisy. The students were not responding to respondent's lesson, they were not paying attention, and respondent did nothing to get the students to pay attention. Ms. Rivers testified to an informal observation on February 19, 1991 (Exhibits P-39), in which she observed disruptive classroom behavior. This was the first period and when she went into the class, the teacher was not there on time. As a result, the students were uncontrolled and disruptive.

Ms. Rivers testified to a formal observation on February 20, 1991 (Exhibit P-40), in which respondent's overall rating was unsatisfactory. She indicated that there were serious areas of concern which had not been addressed by respondent, including classroom discipline, classroom atmosphere, the classroom physical environment, and the teaching strategies used by respondent. During the observation, respondent handed out a ditto sheet without adequate preparation and without explaining the basis or reasons for the ditto sheet or lessons. There was no teacher, direction or control. The strategies that Ms. Rivers previously suggested that respondent used to control the classroom and to direct the lesson were not used. She did not see any effort to employ these strategies as recommended by her. The activity in the classroom was inconsequential and lacked meaning to the students. There was no relationship to the building of writing skills. The ditto was performed by the students within a few minutes and without giving it any importance. There were no lesson plans visible and the literature book was underused. She felt that the students were not being prepared to take the HSPT. There was excessive use of dittos and the students complained to her about the class being boring and about the use of dittos. She indicated that the literature book is district-oriented and it must be used to prepare the students to take the HSPT. After this observation, Ms. Rivers met with respondent and went over the observations and suggestions. Respondent refused to sign the observation report. He also continued to fail to comply with the due dates for the lesson plans. (Exhibit P-40).

Ms. Rivers testified that she sent the memo of February 25, 1991 (Exhibit P-41), to respondent reminding him that five writing samples were due and had not been submitted. Respondent did not explain the delay in providing these. Another memo dated March 11, 1991 (Exhibit P-42), again reminded respondent that he failed to provide lesson plans. He did not submit these or explain the delay. Another memo with respect to unsubmitted lesson plans and writing samples was sent to respondent on March 25, 1991 (Exhibit P-43).

Ms. Rivers testified that she gave respondent an Annual Evaluation Report in June 1991 (Exhibit P-44). She considered respondent's overall rating to be unsatisfactory because of the unsatisfactory areas observed during the entire school year. There was a lack of effort on the part of respondent to improve, to motivate students, to maintain student decorum, and a failure to comply with Board of Education directives and requirements. She recommended that respondent's employment be discontinued because she felt she had done all that she could to motivate respondent to teach students. She had made herself available to assist respondent and had offered the resources of the district, and in response respondent did not use the resources and made no effort to improve. He failed to have the attention of the class focus on him, failed to give adequate direction to the students, and failed to supervise students. His students cut class at will and disrupted classes. Respondent never addressed the students' discourtesy, rudeness, or disruptions. She made suggestions as to strategies and they jointly developed a PIP. However, he failed to motivate his students, failed to deal with or treat the students based on their ability or skill, and there were excessive failures in his classes. In addition, respondent was made aware of disciplinary procedures available to him to deal with problem students, but he rarely used them.

Ms. Rivers testified that the English Department held meetings in September, 1991 (Exhibit P-45a) and October, 1991 (Exhibit P-45), during which they discussed innovative teaching strategies, the district requirement that homework be required of all students, and the requirement that lesson plans must be up-to-date and visible on the teacher's desk at all times. She indicated that respondent attended these meetings and he signed-in. In addition, a pacing guide was established by the district to assist teachers. At the November meeting (Exhibit P-45c), strategies were discussed that required teachers and students to work together. The attendance sheet for that meeting indicated respondent attended. Ms. Rivers also identified a package of documents which she compiled to show how to get students to develop and improve their study habits and these were handed out to the teachers (Exhibit P-45d). There was also a discussion regarding students' study skills and teachers were requested to take steps to instill good study habits in the students (Exhibit P-45e). In addition, the school district established guidelines for teachers' performance (Exhibit P-45f). This document was distributed to all teachers on the very first meeting in September 1991, and lists what the principal expected of all teachers. A second copy of this was given to respondent by Ms. Rivers, after she observed the starkness of his classroom (Exhibit P-45g). Additional documents given to respondent as well as to all the English teachers were referred to and identified by Ms. Rivers (Exhibits P-45h and P-45i). She also provided an HSPT method for scoring of the test and indicated that it was important for the teachers to understand this in order to require students to write during the year (Exhibit P-45j). Teachers were provided with materials discussing cooperative learning methods, where students are placed in a group and everyone is assigned a task. She indicated that this increases participation and motivation (Exhibits P-45l).

Ms. Rivers testified that by memo dated September 26, 1991 (Exhibit P-46), she advised respondent of a preobservation conference and indicated that a number of items were discussed. This was given to respondent to point out the areas to be discussed and observed. These included proper rapport with students because she felt that respondent needed to develop better control over the students. In addition, there were suggestions as to how to improve respondent's instruction techniques. Ms. Rivers felt that respondent was not using proper techniques to keep the students interested and involved. In addition, she did not see any of the suggested techniques being used. She also recommended class activities that encouraged student responsiveness and leadership because his student involvement was very low.

Ms. Rivers sent a memo to respondent on October 4, 1991 (Exhibit P-47), advising respondent that she had reviewed his lesson plans and indicating that the plans he submitted did not utilize the course outline established by the district to be used throughout the district. Every ninth grader was to be responsible for the outlined subject matter and the supervisors were required to check to see if the lesson plans complied with the course outline. When she later checked she found no indication that respondent was using the course textbook in his lesson plans. She continued to observed him using the grammar dittos.

Ms. Rivers testified that on October 7, 1991, she conducted a formal observation (Exhibit P-48). The classroom seating was out of order and the seats were arranged by students so as to sit next to friends. There was no student work displayed and no motivation. Some of the lights in the classroom were out and it was not a pleasant environment. There were no posters and no indication that it was an English classroom. Respondent was in this particular classroom for five classes each day. This class did not start promptly and students were walking around, congregating and socializing. Once the class was started there was no serious concern for time on task. Respondent failed to demonstrate a wholesome rapport with the students. When respondent walked into the room, the students ignored him and he was not recognized as an authority figure. He failed to use a variety of materials for instruction but simply used a ditto. There was no effort to use these materials to meet the varying needs of individual students. His lesson plans were not available and he passed out the dittos to the students without discussing them. The students answered the dittos in a haphazard way and showed no concern about how their responses were completed. Ms. Rivers commented that respondent was not concerned about student seating, that one student had a hat on, and that there was congregating. There was no concern on respondent's part to deal with this. The lesson on the board was appropriate for second graders and not tenth graders. The work on the ditto was not challenging and if the students asked respondent for the answers to the questions on the ditto, he simply gave them the answers.

Ms. Rivers testified that respondent failed to submit student writing samples due on October 4, 1991 (Exhibit P-49).

Ms. Rivers also testified that she sent a memo to respondent on October 21, 1991, because she saw no effort on respondent's part to incorporate the course outline required by the district into his lesson plans (Exhibit P-51). She sent a memo on October 23, 1991 (Exhibit P-53), asking respondent to use the course outline and pacing guide and she reviewed his subsequent lesson plans and saw no evidence of any attempt to comply with these district requirements. She indicated that she did not consider respondent's students to be hard-core discipline problems. The students are grouped by basic skills and she did not observe the same conduct by students in other classes.

On cross-examination, Ms. Rivers indicated that 80 percent of the students required a basic skills class, since 80 percent are unable to pass the HSPT. Most come into reading a year or two below grade level. Separate teachers teach basic skills and, in essence, they are elementary school teachers.

The English I or ninth grade course subject areas including grammar and literature. The student must become proficient in certain skills in the texts. There is no single grammar text but there is a series of texts. The mandate is to teach grammar to the students through literature rather than through isolated grammar studies. One of the criteria in selecting the literature book was its ability to teach grammar through literature. The literature book was first used starting in 1990-91 school year. Prior to 90-91 texts were generated by the Board of Education. The average class size was 25 or less. The course outline is a separate outline promulgated by the school district.

Ms. Rivers testified that the policy of the school district is to teach grammar based on writing. The teacher must gear lessons to the needs of the students. The literature course outline covers various skills required by the HSPT. Activities for gifted students and for slower students are included in the course outline. Every student has a literature book and the needs of the students are assessed by having them write a writing sample and by reviewing this.

Ms. Rivers acknowledged that there are problems with student attendance and that the current goal is eighty percent attendance. She indicated that there has been an improvement but that 40 to 50 percent attendance is not correct.

Ms. Rivers indicated that while she eventually received respondent's lesson plans, they were not provided on the dates they were due. The district mandates that every teacher have lesson plans and they are due to be submitted to a supervisor every payday. The purpose is to determine what is being taught and how it aligns with the course outline. Each lesson plan must have goals, objectives, procedures, activities, and homework in order to achieve the goals of the lesson. There is Board of Education directive requiring lesson plans.

Ms. Rivers indicated that in Newark, homework has always been a mandate, since it is one of the methods used to assist teachers in instruction. A bulletin was issued with respect to mandatory homework, although she is not sure when it was issued.

With respect to respondent's lesson plans, they are reviewed by her and initialed to indicate her review. If there is no comment, the plan is approved. If there is a comment, a note is given to the teacher. If the plans are handed in at the end of the year, they are given to the main office. Respondent's plan do not appear to have been submitted to the main office because they were never submitted to her.

Ms. Rivers acknowledged that most of the classrooms are shared and there is usually someone else in the same classroom at different times during the day. There are established procedures for the care and use of materials and equipment in the classroom.

Ms. Rivers was generally cross-examined with respect to her evaluation. She indicated that on October 11, 1989 (Exhibit P-1), the overall lesson was not satisfactory and she was dissatisfied with student behavior on that day. She advised respondent to call the parents of a particular student who was a troublemaker, but she does not know if he called the parents. The student was never brought to her attention again by respondent and she assumes that the problem in class was rectified.

Ms. Rivers testified that teachers are not required to address problems in the hallway after the bell rings. The teacher should attempt to get his students from the hallway into the classroom and that on occasion a teacher may be required to marshall students. However, she never observed respondent gathering students. A teacher is not responsible for security. She did acknowledge that there are hall sweeps where students who are not in class are gathered .

Ms. Rivers indicated that with respect to writing samples, she expected to receive eight of them from respondent and actually got only one sample. A teacher is supposed to maintain two or three writing samples per student per week.

Ms. Rivers was cross-examined regarding her observation of January 24, 1990 (Exhibit P-6). She indicated that respondent handed out an activity sheet containing typed paragraphs and one the student was directed to read orally. However, the others students were not paying attention. Respondent then started to ask questions, to which the students gave oral responses. The remaining questions were given for homework or for independent work. No other materials were used that day.

Ms. Rivers indicated that she made the comment on the memo of January 29, 1990 (Exhibit P-7), because a high percentage of respondent's lesson plans related to grammar and not enough were related to the literature portion of the course work. She also indicated that respondent started class by taking attendance of students. She indicated that attendance must be taken on a daily basis but not necessarily at the beginning of the class.

Ms. Rivers testified that the zero period class (Exhibit P-9) is strictly voluntary and is a makeup class for students who missed an English class because respondent failed to show up for this class he did not continue to teach it. Ms. Rivers also stated that she did not observe the same kind of student conduct and disruptions in other classes and in the hallways as she observed in respondent's class.

Ms. Rivers testified that the union contract states that a teacher may request a demonstration lesson (Exhibit P-13). She also recalls that respondent was advised to use the ninth grade literature book "Adventures in Reading," which is designed for ninth grade students. It can be taught to students who are a little above and a little below grade and there are supplemental materials used by the English Department. The book has an array of materials arranged in difficulty from sixth through tenth grade. Ms. Rivers recalls that she did not observe respondent teaching literature-related activities at all or very little. There was concern about respondent not teaching literature, but nothing raising this concern is listed on any evaluation form.

Bulletin 32 (Exhibit P-18) was issued to all high schools and the district was reinforcing the proper procedure for instructional objectives. She indicated that respondent had the ability to prepare lesson plans in objective terms but he was not consistent. On occasions he prepared a plan which was in proper form but then would go back to his old habits.

Ms. Rivers testified that with respect to November 20, 1990 observation (Exhibit P-26), respondent gave the students a ditto relating to a grammar exercise which she recalled seeing previously.

Harry Laub, School District Director of Reading and Language Arts testified in this matter. He testified to his educational background and experience. He indicated that he was called in to evaluate respondent because the school principal wanted an outside opinion. He made an observation of respondent on November 20, 1991 (Exhibit P-71). He found the classroom disorganized with the seats in no formal arrangement. The bulletin board was empty and unwashed. There was no attempt to give instruction to the students. The students were walking around the room and there was no direction given to them. Respondent was giving a ten question multiple choice test which was a 15 minute test. The students were given 40 minutes to complete the test. There were no instructions given about the test and the students were not taking the test seriously. There was no give and take with the students. The test was given as an open book test and it should not have been open book. There was no questions of the students, no introduction of the lesson to the students, and no motivation given to the students by respondent. Mr. Laub indicated that this was the first year of a new literature series book and an outline guide had been developed. Respondent was doing the first or second story in the book and this should have been completed in September of the school year rather than in November. Respondent indicated that his lesson plans and study guide had been left home when he was asked to provide them. There was no attempt by respondent to engage the students and the students were not given any directions as far as lesson implementation. Mr. Laub's overall rating of respondent was unsatisfactory

Mr. Laub indicated that the Committee on Curriculum selected the literature book and this book was to be used by all grade nine students. On cross-examination, he acknowledged that a significant percentage of the students were reading below grade level. He acknowledged that there had been a problem with getting student programs going for the first several weeks of the school year. However, he did not know if there was a problem distributing the literature books. Only 3 of the 15 students in the class brought the textbook with them to class. The book was being utilized by respondent, but not efficiently.

Mr. Laub testified that the building principal was very general in his comments requesting this observation, and he was not aware of any charges pending against respondent. Respondent was not attending to clerical duties at the beginning of class but simply handed out the test. He observed students wander in and talk to some friends and walk out. Respondent allowed this to occur and did not discipline any students. He indicated that despite respondent's request for a demonstration lesson, he did not provide it because it is inappropriate for an outside teacher to come in and do so. On redirect examination, Mr. Laub indicated that he would have expected the students to progress beyond the first or second story in the literature text.

Doris Culver, who was the Principal of University High School at the time of the hearing, testified that when she was Vice Principal at Central High School she evaluated respondent both with informal observations and formal observations. She conducted an observation on November 28, 1989 (Exhibit P-59). The students were seated wherever they wished and there was no attempt by respondent to engage the students in their lesson. There was no order in the class when the students should have been actively engaged in the lesson. The bulletin board was bare. The teacher handed out a homework sheet and she indicated that this was not an effective use of time. The students were not involved with the lesson but respondent took no action to have them involved. There was no positive relationship, but merely a handing out of material. The curriculum guide was not used. She gave respondent unsatisfactory ratings in lesson implementation because none of the required activities were engaged in by the respondent. Her overall evaluation of respondent was unsatisfactory. She indicated that direct classroom instruction should have occurred during this observation but instead the students were doing homework. The lesson was not challenging to the students and the students were not involved.

Ms. Culver testified to a second announced observation on January 17, 1990 (Exhibit P-60). She observed some student work on the bulletin board but the lesson implementation had not changed. Not all students were involved and the class and class time was not used effectively. There was no attempt on the part of respondent to engage the students and there was no exchange between teacher and student. There was no indication that respondent was using the curriculum guide, and he merely handed out worksheets. There was no attempt to motivate students to become involved. A student was disrupting the class and respondent permitted her to continue. In addition, it was not clear to the students what was to be done by them. The students were disengaging themselves from the class but the teacher did nothing about this. Homework is a mandate from the school district but none was given to the students. Respondent simply distributed materials to the students and gave no direction or follow-through. Her overall rating of respondent was unsatisfactory.

On cross-examination, Ms. Culver indicated that respondent did not refuse to follow her suggestions and he was not insubordinate to her. However, did not implement her suggestions and effective classroom instruction did not occur. Only 8 or 9 of the 12 to 20 students were present. The plan book was present. Respondent had the information available to present a lesson but did not present it in an efficient manner.

Carl L. Gregory, Principal of Central High School testified that at the beginning of the 1990-91 school year, all teachers and students had been provided schedules and that there had been no delay in giving out materials at the beginning of the year. All teachers were advised that they are to be at their door between classes and on February 9, 1990 (Exhibit P-66), respondent failed to comply with this directive. He indicated that on at least five or ten occasions respondent was not at the door and not in his class. He also indicated that on a number of occasions he would hear noise coming from respondent's class with no one supervising. At that point, he would go on and restore order.

Mr. Gregory testified to an observation he conducted on March 27, 1990 (Exhibit P-67). The room was not neat and it was in disarray. Classroom rules were not posted. There were no learning centers, no posting of student work and the bulletin board was bare. Some students had their heads down, other students were looking out the window, and other students came in late. Respondent had no control over the students. He was seated in a chair at the front desk and students were walking around the room. Once the period began, instruction should have begun but did not. Respondent handed out an exercise and the students were finished with it in two or three minutes. Respondent waited 10 or 15 minutes when he should have been giving instructions to the students. Mr. Gregory indicated he saw no instruction during his observation. There was very little interaction with the students and respondent merely distributed dittos. Respondent did nothing about the students not paying attention. Based on his observation during this lesson, there was nothing done connected with the lesson plan and curriculum guide. There was no checking to see if the students understood the subject matter of the lesson. He gave respondent an overall unsatisfactory rating.

Mr. Gregory testified that a teacher should always check for student understanding in order to adjust the teaching methods and approach to the students. Respondent did not do so nor did he take any steps to correct student conduct. There was also no evidence of homework being given either the day before or the day of the observation. A worksheet would be appropriate if given with instruction but there was no instruction given by respondent. There was very little teaching going on in this class.

On cross-examination, Mr. Gregory testified that respondent was given a 90-day period to improve his performance (Exhibit P-69). Respondent had the skills to teach but was he was not effective as a teacher. During the observations, respondent spent no time correcting student behavior and at no time addressed inappropriate behavior. He would do nothing to correct student behavior but would refer the students to others. Mr. Gregory was most concerned with respondent's ineffective teaching. He also viewed respondent's lesson plans and indicated there was nothing in them showing methodology, procedures, or homework. He recounted one incident when respondent was 20 minutes late getting to class. By way of explanation, respondent indicated that he was getting his paycheck.

Irene Miller Graves testified that she is the English Department chairperson at Westside High School. Respondent was a member of the staff at Westside from 1985 to 1988, when he left. She conducted an evaluation of respondent on June 10, 1987 (Exhibit P-61), in which gave him an overall unsatisfactory rating. She indicated that respondent failed to take into account the individual needs and abilities of the students. He used one set of lesson plans for both ninth and tenth grade and there was no distinction made for student abilities. His instructional methods were not sufficient, he simply distributed dittos. This method was both inefficient and insufficient. The only resources used by respondent were the dittos which he prepared. There was no use of textbooks or other resources. She observed students were late, students who did not belong in the class, and students who were making noise outside of the class, all of which should have been taken care of by respondent but were ignored by him. Respondent failed to appraise his own teaching methods and failed to function as part of the school program. There was no contact with colleagues and no participation in school activities. Respondent needed improvement in a number of areas. He failed to motivate students. Students did not wait for instruction or direction but simply started working on the dittos which he handed out. There was no teaching taking place in his class. There was very little interest or concern shown on the part of respondent. He spoke in a monotone and walked around the room looking out the window. There was no attempt to engage his students or to capture their attention. It did not matter to him if the students were listening. With respect to punctuality, respondent was tardy 43 times the prior year and 51 times in the current year.

Ms. Miller testified to an observation she conducted of respondent on November 9, 1987 (Exhibit P-62). The lesson consisted of four separate and totally unrelated concepts, where there being no continuity or sequence. There was no purpose or objective to the lesson and the skills being taught did not relate to each other. The classroom was in disarray with no seating arrangement. Respondent made no attempt to administer control and did not address any classroom discipline problems in any way. The class began five or ten minutes late and respondent started class five or ten minutes after he arrived, which left only 20 minutes for instruction. Respondent failed to use anything other than a ditto, when there were additional materials and resources he could use. Respondent displayed a lack of interest in teaching methods or procedures and he failed to relate to differing student abilities. He provided no motivation to students. He failed to state the objective of the lesson and he provided no instruction, that is, there was no attempt to actually teach the students the concepts being dealt with in the ditto. Respondent also did not attempt to make use of any textbooks assigned for use by the students.

Ms. Miller made an observation of respondent on January 19, 1988 (Exhibit P-63). Some of the students arrived late but respondent failed to find out why and failed to administer discipline. Respondent also arrived late and he did other things before starting class. He failed to implement the lesson by failing to engage in instructional techniques and methods addressing the individual needs of students. A teacher is required to in part knowledge, therefore, the teacher must consider the students' abilities and needs, and respondent failed to do so. One student was listening to a portable radio which was against school regulations. The students did not know the title of the textbook and, according to one student, textbooks had not been assigned to them. While respondent was at the board writing instructions, the students were not paying attention but were working on the ditto. Respondent should have gotten the students' attention and explained the concepts he was dealing with. He failed to follow-up in order to assure that the students were getting a clear understanding of the concepts he was teaching.

Ms. Miller conducted an observation on February 29, 1988. She found the classroom disorganized and disorderly. There was no attempt to use the full 40 minutes of class time for teaching. Despite her prior recommendations, respondent again failed to use the assigned textbook and other resources. There was no attempt to use proper methods for implementing the lesson. A single prepared ditto lesson is not sufficient to meet the needs of all the students. Respondent had not made any attempt to incorporate the suggestions she had previously made to him into any of his lessons. There was an improvement by respondent in trying to focus on one area only. However, there was no indication by respondent as to the lesson objective and there was very little teaching taking place. She indicating that filling in information on a ditto is not teaching and there was no explaining, showing concepts, or instructions. Respondent was assigned the Arrivals textbook but he did not use it. He gave no advance directions or instructions as to what was required of the students to complete the dittos handed out. There was insufficient verbal communication between respondent and the students and he failed to engage the students.

Ms. Miller testified that on May 18, 1988, she provided the respondent's Annual Evaluation (Exhibit P-65), wherein she considered all observations made during the year. This indicated that there was no clearly established procedure on the part of respondent for planning or for considering the abilities of students. The only instructional method used by respondent was the ditto. There was no other teaching method, strategy, or technique used by him. There was no attempt by respondent to use resources or supplemental materials. The same types of discipline problems occurred even at the end of the year.

On cross-examination, Ms. Miller indicated that respondent was assigned to the ninth, which is the lowest level in the school. The students were probably reading on a fourth grade to seventh grade level and it was unlikely that any of them were reading on a eighth or ninth grade level. She indicated that in the 1986-87 school year the students were assigned an individual literature anthology to take home. The same was true in the 1987-88 school year, with each student having been assigned a separate textbook. These were distributed within the first two or three weeks of the school year. The teacher has the option not to use textbooks at the beginning of the school year. She cannot recall if the textbooks were given to respondent. She indicated that she reviewed respondent's lesson plan books and that her signature indicated her approval of the plans. The textbook was included in respondent's written lesson plans but she saw no textbooks being used during her observations. The dittos used by respondent appear to be teacher-made.

Ms. Miller recalls that respondent referred some disciplinary problem students to her but respondent did not spend an inordinate amount of time on discipline. She indicated that respondent was late to school for 51 of the 180 school days based on documents provided to her. She also admitted there is nothing wrong with ditto method of instruction but other methods also should have been used. She acknowledged that respondent indicated he had to use dittos because the required materials were too difficult for the students. She also admitted that respondent was competent and had ability, and that he was knowledgeable. He had the requisite skills but was not performing in an efficient manner. She indicated that she never felt that respondent behaved in an insubordinate way or in an unbecoming manner during all of the time that he was her subordinate. She acknowledged that at some time during the year, a VCR and television were stolen and could not be used. On redirect she indicated that respondent did not make a serious attempt to incorporate all available materials in his teaching. There was no connection between the lesson and the skills being taught.

Dr. Jean Sharp Adilifu testified that she became familiar with respondent as a teacher of English at Central High School. She performed observations and evaluations in early 1991 because it had come to her attention that there had been three years of unsatisfactory performances by respondent.

Dr. Adilifu conducted an observation and prepared a Teacher Observation Summary on January 23, 1991 (Exhibit P-73). This was not a formal observation. The lesson and conduct of respondent were disjointed and unfocused. The students entered and left the classroom at will and were not provided any direction. The teacher's remarks were given in an off-handed manner with no pitch or tone to his voice. There was no connection to responses given to the teacher by students. Respondent chewed gum during this class, which she did not consider to be professional deportment, especially since his pronunciation was hampered by the gum in his mouth. She arrived at the beginning of the period and respondent arrived late. There was no immediate direction given by respondent to the students upon his arrival. Respondent had no lesson plans in written form. It was remarkable to Dr. Adilifu that the students were not defiant and that some were actually following directions. She spoke to respondent after the class. She felt that the respondent should assume the role of instruction leader and felt that there was a lack of professional behavior on his part. There were typographical errors in the material he supplied to the students. He only used a single instructional modality, which was a handout. She felt that students needed verbal instruction, engagement in question and answers, and other directions.

Dr. Adilifu conducted an observation of respondent on March 21, 1991 (Exhibit P-74). She found the teacher-controllable situations, including seating arrangement and orderliness, to be unsatisfactory. There was no display of student or teacher materials and no attempt to make the classroom learning-attractive. The respondent entered the class late and did not start promptly. There was no direction or time frame given to the students for the lesson. She observed a lack of substantive given-and-take between respondent and the students. Respondent did not use multiple teaching strategies but gave the students written work only. Respondent lacked a wellmodulated voice and spoke in a detached monotone which lacked enthusiasm. There was minimal eye contact, minimal verbalization, and minimal qualitative teacher-student exchange. Respondent used no board-approved curriculum guide, instructional strategies, stimulation of students, or lesson plans for the lesson being addressed. The students were not paying attention to him. He simply remained at his desk during the class when he should have been actively engaged in teaching. Respondent's increment was denied, based on his continued unsatisfactory performance (Exhibit P-75). Based on the three years of unsatisfactory performance, tenure charges were filed.

On cross-examination, Dr. Adilifu indicated that she observed respondent twice. On March 21, 1991, she recalls that respondent gave no instructions to the students. He simply delivered a ditto to the students and thereafter did very little instruction. The students ushered respondent into the classroom by telling him that he had a visitor and he might want to come into the classroom. She does not know what respondent was doing outside of the classroom. After he came in he handed out preprinted information. He was involved only with imperative sentences for the entire period. The plan book said that the lesson was for HSPT writing. She indicated that when she spoke to respondent afterwards respondent was not disrespectful and was not insubordinate toward her. She gave him suggestions and recommendations but indicated that these were not presented as direct orders. There was no failure to abide by orders given by her to respondent. She indicated that the suggestions she made to respondent were to cause him to perform in an efficient and satisfactory manner.

Carmela H. Pallotta testified that she is Vice Principal at Westside High School and she provided her educational background and experience. She was asked to evaluate respondent at Westside High School. She conducted an observation on December 3, 1991 (P-70), during which she was very confused about the subject of the lesson. The classroom environment was unsatisfactory because the students were calling out answers and banging on the file cabinets, and their unwillingness to behave and pay attention was not addressed by respondent. The classroom was completely bland and there was no evidence of any teaching activity. The lesson had no beginning, middle, or end and there was no organization to the lesson at all. At the conclusion of the class, the students ran out of the classroom before respondent could give a homework assignment. He did not attempt to communicate with the students and there was very little interaction. Respondent passed out a sheet of paper which did not match the classroom discussion. He failed to communicate with the students and would utter only two or three sentences. There were no lesson plans in sight and when she asked respondent for lesson plans, he did not answer. His lesson implementation was generally unsatisfactory because no lesson took place. Respondent left the room twice and returned and began handing out books, but gave no explanation. This was not a lesson. It consisted merely of 40 minutes of marking time and filling up space. The students had no books or pencils and some came in late.

Ms. Pallotta indicated it is not good teaching practice to have students shout out answers. Respondent passed out blue paper with no explanation and she could not understand what was going on. In addition, respondent is not supposed to leave the room because it violates the teacher contract and there was no reason for leaving the room. Almost all of the students were unprepared. Respondent sat at his desk and said very little if anything. He asked undirected questions which were ignored by the students. She indicated that when one student was banging on the file cabinet and was disruptive, respondent did nothing, and eventually another student asked the disruptive student to stop. Students must understand the assignment and it is not teaching to simply to pass out a piece of paper. What took place in respondent's classroom was not teaching and respondent did not even bother to talk to the students. There was also no structure to the seating arrangement in class. She does not agree that respondent spent an inordinate amount of time disciplining students on the day of her observation. She felt that his conduct bordered on insubordination. The few words that he deigned to utter were not with a raised voice. The subject of the handout (attachment to P-70) was with respect to the lesson which should have been covered months prior. It did not match what respondent was saying during class, which should have been studied months earlier. She indicated that respondent is a very bright man but she does not know if he has the skills to be an effective teacher. She felt that he was inefficient on December 3, 1991. When she questioned him about what happened in the classroom he did not answer and he simply smiled at the Observation Report but did not read it.

Respondent testified that he has been employed as a teacher in the Newark school system for 20 years and has a certificate as an English teacher. He testified that Ms. Rivers supervised him prior to October 1989, and that in 1987-1988 she provided satisfactory evaluations (Exhibit R-40, R-41, R-42, and R-43). Respondent testified that Ms. Rivers would review his plan book once every two weeks (Exhibit R-1). He would hand in the plan book to her every payday and she would return it the following Monday indicating her approval of the plans. On occasion, Ms. Rivers would hold onto the lesson plan longer. He recalls that there was one occasion when he was observed that Ms. Rivers had not returned his plan book to him.

Respondent testified that the source of the requirement for teaching of grammar is found in the school district's Book of Course Proficiencies for English 1 (Exhibit R-5) and for English 2 (Exhibit R-7). The course proficiencies for English 1 (Exhibit R-5) required that he teach grammar. Course proficiencies for English 2 is a separate document (Exhibit R-7). He used these as far as planning and implementing his lessons. He indicated that Ms. Rivers was aware that he was using ditto forms to teach grammar, including fundamentals of verbs (Exhibit R-9). This ditto was consistent with course proficiencies. Ms. Rivers had no problem with his use of these materials, which he prepared. When the students used his materials discipline and interest were less of a problem. There was always a problem keeping the attention of the students because they all had reading deficiencies. As ninth grade students, they generally had a reading level of fourth or fifth grade. Respondent indicated that there were well over 100 proficiencies in the course proficiencies booklet (Exhibit R-5) and that he compiled each of the ditto forms (Exhibit R-46) by taking district books and materials and using them to try to cover at least four proficiencies each day. These forms would also serve as homework, which could be finished at home. These forms used district textbooks for all pages except the answer sheet. Respondent also testified that he engaged in providing exercises by handing out dictionaries and having students use them (Exhibit R-47).

Respondent testified that Ms. Rivers did not remain in class for the entire period on October 11, 1989. A student was being disruptive and respondent admonished him a number of times. Ms. Rivers intervened, got into an argument with the student, and removed him. Therefore, she did not remain in the class for the entire period.

Respondent also testified that the exercise he used on January 24, 1990 (Exhibit P-6), was given to a class that consisted of approximately six or seven students. He explained that cutting classes was a problem at Central High School when the exercise was provided (Exhibit R-48). Respondent identified the absence list for a number of days starting with November 22, 1989

(Exhibit R-27). He indicated that the Central Office prepares a list of absences every day and places them in the teacher's mailboxes. Absences have always been a problem and it is not an easy problem to solve. Respondent also identified lists of Lefts and Transfers, which is also prepared by the Central Office (Exhibit R-28), and a Suspension List (Exhibit R-29), all of which interrupted the continuity of classes. Finally, he identified an Entry/Withdrawal Summary (Exhibit R-26). With student absences, there were some days when no students would show up for a class.

Respondent admitted that he received a packet of memos regarding student absences (Exhibit R-31). If a student arrived late for class, the student was to be allowed to come into the class. He always warned students as to the tardiness policies and admonished students afterwards. It had become a routine matter for students to come to class late. The Department chair, principal, and vice principals were supposed to be in the halls, but very often they were not. If they were there, the students disregarded their presence.

Respondent testified that hall sweeps were utilized from time to time. These were conducted during class time. The administrators were to deal with discipline and three to four minutes passing time between classes was permitted. However, hall sweeps are disruptive to the classes

Respondent testified that there were many last minute notices of changes in the daily schedule. He provided a number of copies of memos showing changes in the school schedule and shortening of classes (Exhibit R-25). This interrupted the normal routine of the school day and many students used this as an opportunity to leave school early. This would occur once every two weeks.

With regard to the observation of January 24, 1990 (Exhibit P-6), respondent testified that he asked Ms. Rivers for a demonstration of a directed reading lesson. He disagreed with her assessments and felt that they were not true. He did not understand the basis for the unsatisfactory ratings given to him.

Respondent then addressed the observation of November 20, 1990 (Exhibit P-26). He identified the worksheets for that class (Exhibit R-49) and indicated that the students' writing skills were "pretty bad." However, he indicated his exercise was in line with and was consistent with course requirements. He indicated that he recalls November 20, 1990, very well and that there was much confusion in the halls and in the classrooms. He frequently remained in the hall to get the students into the classrooms. It is very possible that the students were combing each other's hair; however, he indicated that he delivered his lesson for that day.

Respondent addressed the observation report by Mr. Gregory dated March 27, 1990 (Exhibit P-67), and Ms. Rivers' observation report of October 13, 1988 (Exhibit R-40). He indicated that there was a similarity in exercises given to both classes involving verbs and verb tenses. On March 27, 1990, he had made copies of certain pages of the HSPT for an instruction technique and he was familiarizing students with prior tests. He believes his instructional techniques on that date were effective, that the students were motivated to pass the test in order to get a diploma, and that the students understood completely what he was doing. He indicated that the Post-Observation Conference report (Exhibit P-7, paragraph VI.a.6) is contradicted by the policy to ignore tardiness unless it was dealt with later and that no student was to be denied access to the classroom. He felt that all the concepts he was using for instruction that day were in accordance with curriculum guidelines and study guides. He does not know the factual basis for Mr. Gregory's unsatisfactory ratings and he testified that he made every attempt to comply with these items. He felt that the post-observation conference was very brief because Mr. Gregory was in a hurry. He made the point that respondent had not made the lesson objective clear.

Respondent testified that Ms. Rivers' Observation Report of January 30, 1989 (Exhibit R-42), the Observation Report of February 29, 1988 (Exhibit P-64), and the Observation Summary of January 23, 1991 (Exhibit P-73) all dealt with the same lesson on these three dates, which was imperative sentences. He identified the class work on the date of the observation of January 23, 1991 (Exhibit R-56). This exercise required that the students write an imperative sentence, deal with outlining, pronouns, and antecedents. All of the concepts dealt with in the lesson are in line with the curriculum guides. He used the imperative sentence ditto for each of the three lessons on the different dates indicated. He felt that Ms. Rivers was very pleased by the lesson. The materials were drawn from district supplemental workbooks. He personally formulated the materials on imperative sentences.

Respondent addressed the Teacher Observation Report of February 29, 1988 (Exhibit P-64), and in particular the unsatisfactory classroom environment and management. He explained that the classroom was dilapidated, windows were broken, the fixtures and desks were dented, beat up, old, and had not been painted in quite some time. With respect to teaching characteristics, he disagrees and feels he handled the class pretty well. He felt that his teaching and lesson implementation was effective. He provided materials for the general level of the class, which was poor and was at a fourth or fifth grade level. He indicated that the suggestions for improvement mentions a lesson found at page 76 in Warriners English Grammar and Composition Third Course, which is a standard English textbook. He indicated that he used a similar exercise. However, students were not at grade level and he had to redesign the materials to get the concepts across to below-grade students. He was attempting to use effective techniques, he attempted to motivate the students, he questioned the students thoroughly throughout the lesson, and he attempted to have the students think independently. He denies that the students were unaware of the objective of the lesson and he indicated he gave the students examples as well as the ditto stating what is expected of the students. He indicated that he designed these materials to suit this lower level class. He testified that even the Arrivals textbook was too difficult for the students and that it was not applicable to a grammar lesson on the imperative sentence. Ms. Miller never told him he was insubordinate.

Respondent testified that if he was late arriving at class, it was because he had to use his passing time to change his room. He also indicated that if there is a disturbance in the hall, it is a judgment call whether the teacher should respond to the disturbance or report to the classroom. Administrators were assigned to various areas to keep the halls clear but many times administrators were not present and teachers had to perform this function. It was very rare that students were in the classroom with the starting bell. He acknowledged that if he ever commenced class late, it was because he was in the hall attempting to get students into the classroom.

Respondent testified that he disagrees with Dr. Adilifu's observation (Exhibit P-73) in its entirety. He denies mumbling and asserted that the entire class could hear him. He denies the accuracy of this observation. He does not recall if he was four minutes late but indicates that it was always a problem getting students into the class. The material gone over was the same material as the previous school day. He also indicated that when there is a visitor in the classroom, the students get edgy. He also testified that workbooks had not been provided to the students and that he had to copy them. Respondent also indicated that the lesson plan book had been provided two weeks in advance but he felt he was not required to redo the plan book if he was not able to meet the objectives because of outside interruptions. He denies that seats were randomly arranged and denies that no lesson plans were present. He began class promptly and indicated that pacing guides did not come up until the next school year. He felt that his voice was loud and clear and that his directions were clear.

Respondent relied upon a Teacher Observation Report of May 6, 1985 (Exhibit R-62), to indicate that he used the same or similar materials previously and his performance was found to be satisfactory. He also indicated that he was complying with the PIP of June 4, 1985, by developing exercises (Exhibit R-63). He also relied upon an Instructional Survey of May 16, 1985 (Exhibit R-64), with respect to dittos.

Respondent also relied upon an Annual Evaluation of June 17, 1986 (Exhibit R-61). He testified that he did nothing different in 1986, when he was evaluated as satisfactory, than what he did in subsequent years.

Respondent testified that he generally submitted lesson plans on time, and that occasionally they may have been submitted late if he was absent. He felt that late submission of lesson plans was an exception. He also testified that Ms. Rivers never told him not to use the materials he used. He indicated that any time Ms. Rivers requested a change in the format of the lesson plans, he attempted to comply.

Respondent acknowledged receiving a memo from Ms. Rivers dated November 18, 1991 (Exhibit R-18), with respect to student writing samples. Respondent testified that he obtained writing samples from the students, although he indicated it was very difficult to get the students to provide these writing samples (Exhibits R-12(a), R-12(b), R-12(c), R-12(d), and R-12(e)). He also provided copies of writing samples for ninth grade (Exhibits R-13(a) and R-13(b)). He also provided additional writing samples to satisfy the requirements for writing samples (Exhibits R-14(a), R-14(b), R-14(c), R-14(d), and R-14(e)). He additionally relied upon copies of book reports by students in response to handouts of the school district (Exhibits R-15(a), R-15(b), R-15(c), R-15(d), and R-15(e)). Students were assigned a book report per cycle, with four cycles in each school year. He also had the students write a friendly letter and indicated that more students responded to the friendly letter than to an open-ended essay, and that they responded better to a strongly specific exercise (Exhibits R-16(a), R-16(b), and R-16(c)). He indicated that mid-term essays are required as part of the mid-term grade and that the students were required to write about an aspect of a particular story (Exhibit R-17).

Respondent testified that he introduced literature concepts little-by-little and that he would introduce something new and would also reinforce prior materials at the same time (Exhibit R-10). Those students who were slow in class and could not complete the ditto would take it home as homework. He also identified samples of reading proficiency exercises level 2 and indicated that the better students used these in 1988-89, in 1989-90 or later (Exhibit R-8). He also identified random samples of exercises he used at Central High School geared to weaker students with weak reading ability at grades four to six level (Exhibit R-6). He used these materials and they were all taken from textbooks supplied by the district. He found and compiled these materials himself. There were changes and modifications to them and the strategies that worked were kept by him and those that did not work were changed by him.

Respondent identified an Observation Report on October 28, 1986 (Exhibit R-38). He testified that he attempted to use Ms. Miller's recommendation as set forth in the Observation Report and his lesson plan book after this shows that he followed her comment to use Arrivals. He identified the materials he used during the October 11, 1989 observation (Exhibit R-46). This material was the same as that which he used in prior years. With regard to the observation on November 17, 1989 (Exhibit P-4), he identified the materials he used on that day (Exhibit R-47). He indicated that it is possible that students engaged in irrelevant conversation at the beginning of the class. The job of the teacher is to get the students settled in and quieted down and to pay attention to the lesson. For this lesson he used a set of dictionaries provided by the district, the objective being to show the dictionary as an abundant source of general information.

Respondent next referred to the observation of November 28, 1989, by Ms. Culver (Exhibit P-59). In general, he felt that the class was participating, that posters had been placed in the classroom, and that his instructional techniques were satisfactory. He was polite in the post-observation conference and he responded in writing by a memorandum on February 7, 1990 (Exhibit R-55).

Respondent next testified concerning the observation on January 17, 1990 (Exhibit P-60). The lesson that day dealt with finding evidence and focused on reading skills. He felt that the students participated very well and that all materials he used were in line with Board of Education curriculum guides and teacher guides. He feels that there is no factual basis upon which Ms. Culver could have concluded her unsatisfactory rating. The students responded to the lesson very well and his teaching effectiveness has been the same throughout his career.

Respondent addressed the Teacher Observation Report of March 27, 1990, by Mr. Gregory (Exhibit P-67). He indicated that the lesson given that day was the same lesson as the prior year when Ms. Rivers gave him a satisfactory rating.

Respondent testified by indicating that Ms. Rivers' memo of March 29, 1990 (Exhibit P-14), dealt with respondent's mentioning to Ms. Rivers that the assigned ninth grade text, Adventures in Reading, was too difficult for the students. Ms. Rivers suggested ten other textbooks. However, Ms. Rivers did not follow-up on the memo of March 29, 1990. It should be noted that it was the responsibility of respondent rather than Ms. Rivers to follow-up on this memo.

Respondent testified that there was no factual basis for the unsatisfactory rating in his Annual Evaluation of June 1990 (Exhibit P-15). He testified that he used the same strategies and materials that he used the prior year. However, as a result of this evaluation, he attempted several different strategies. The supervisors made suggest as to the use of materials, but did not require him to follow their suggestions. He denies that he engaged in any willful disregard of directives.

He never refused to obey any order or directive and did not disregard Board of Education regulations or any law. He indicated that he complied with his PIPs.

Respondent testified with respect to the Observation Report of November 20, 1990 (Exhibit P-26). He identified the materials used during the lesson on that day (Exhibit R-49). He indicated that these materials involved diagrams to familiarize students with the characteristics of English verbs. This was part of the curriculum guides and criteria. He responded to this evaluation with a memo of December 10, 1990 (Exhibit R-50). He indicated that very similar lessons were marked satisfactory in the prior school year by Ms. Rivers. He also indicated that on that date there was quite a bit of disruption in the halls and during the school day, and disruption has a negative effect on the lesson. He felt that he was involved in an effective use of time and in an effective lesson. He indicates that Ms. Rivers never provided him with a demonstration lesson, as requested by him in his memorandum. He acknowledged that Ms. Rivers did provide two demonstration lessons but not for the period one class.

Respondent testified that the Observation Report of March 21, 1991 (Exhibit P-74), is factually incorrect because he was not engaged in imperative sentences on that date. He identified copies of answer sheets relating to the HSPT booklet to confirm this fact (Exhibit R-57).

Respondent indicated that the Observation Report of February 20, 1991 (Exhibit P-40), indicates that the ditto sheet used that day was similar to numerous others seen by the observer on other occasions. Respondent denied using the same ditto over and over again. He testified that these ditto sheets or exercises are designed to be incremental. He denies that there was any factual basis for the unsatisfactory evaluation. The students responded very well to the exercises and they were consistent with the curriculum from district-provided books. He considered the suggestions made by Ms. Rivers. However, he indicated that beginning a class promptly is a serious problem throughout the high school. He also indicated that because Ms. Rivers did not observe him using literature and other textbooks does not mean that he is not using them. Respondent also testified that classroom discipline is a fact of life for all teachers at Central High School.

Respondent indicated that as to the Annual Evaluation Report of June 1991 (Exhibit P-44), that he never told Ms. Rivers that he would not comply with the recommendations. He was concerned about the level of performance by students but denies that there was any factual basis for the unsatisfactory rating. He denies that he willfully disregarded directives, that he committed insubordination, that he disregarded Board of Education procedures or law, or that he created a poor precedent.

Respondent testified that in the 1991-92 school year, he was subjected to four class changes from the tentative schedule given to him in spring of 1991 (Exhibit R-68). There was a big scheduling "glitch" in September 1991 and many students had no schedules. The schedule was eventually worked out in the first week in October, but there was an enormous amount of confusion in the meantime. Ms. Roseta Holiday was in charge of resolving the scheduling problems. Subsequent to October 7, 1991, respondent was still getting schedule changes and there were also changes in the levels of classes. There was also no continuity in lesson planning and the Prentice Hall series of assigned textbooks had not been distributed until mid-October 1991. Students had not yet been assigned lockers. Prentice Hall was new to all English materials and it was not until October 1991, that a meeting was scheduled to discuss a course outline and pacing charts (Exhibit R-69). He also indicated that there were in-service workshops with respect to the Prentice Hall materials to familiarize teachers with them in October, November, and December 1991. Thus, at the time of the observation of October 7, 1991 (Exhibit P-48), respondent had been in the classroom about one week or less and he was required to use materials he had used previously because of this confusion. As of that date, it was not possible to use the Prentice Hall materials because they had not yet been given to students and that teachers were not yet familiar with them. Even so, the lesson went very well that day. Respondent identified an exhibit containing Prentice Hall materials together with updated class lists indicating that the class lists had only been finalized at that time (Exhibit R-53). It was at this point that respondent began to incorporate the Prentice Hall materials into his classes.

Respondent testified as to demonstration lessons provided to him pursuant to the union contract (Exhibit R-22 and R-52). Ms. Rivers provided a demonstration lesson in a remedial class for students having difficulty with reading. The students' reactions were mixed and they read a story throughout the class period. However, they were disruptive during the class. Respondent indicated that he felt the demonstration lesson was irrelevant to Ms. Rivers' criticisms of his performance and he wrote a lengthy memorandum concerning this (Exhibit R-23).

Respondent testified that the observation by Mr. Harry Laub on November 20, 1991, included a criticism to the effect that this lesson should have been taught much earlier in the school year. However, respondent indicated that when he and the students got the materials, he chose those materials that the students would have an easier time with. This was tenth grade but the students were far below the tenth-grade level. Mr. Laub was not aware of the practical problems experienced by Central High School. The students were having a difficult time with the materials and he tried to force the students to use the recommended materials but was not successful. They could not manage the district materials with any degree of comprehension. He provided the students' responses with respect to the materials (Exhibit R-58).

Respondent testified that during the observation by Ms. Pallotta on December 3, 1991 (P-70), the subject of the lesson would not have been unclear if Prentice Hall materials had not been used. He disagrees with this observation report in its entirety. He also indicated that he stepped out of the classroom to let another teacher into an adjoining classroom.

On cross-examination, respondent testified that he developed the exercise sheets or dittos because students could not handle the selected materials from the district-provided materials. The Journeys and Arrivals textbooks were not used because there were insufficient number of these books for each student. However, he denies that his expectations of the students was too low. He started at a low level and eventually tried to challenge the students. His strategy was to start where the student was capable of performing. There were varied levels of difficulties in the materials he provided. He testified that the photocopied materials worked well because this assured that each student would have a copy of the appropriate materials each day. Copies are acceptable to use if they are directed to a skill required by the students.

Respondent testified that he does not think it is possible to have the students progress one year. He does not know the cause of their low academic performance. He denies that he had a low expectation, just a realistic expectation. Many of the students came to school with problems and his expectation is to meet the student where he or she is and to move them as far as possible.

He admitted that he used the imperative sentence lesson on grades nine, ten and eleven, but this was because all three grades consisted of students who were not functioning at grade level. He considered the imperative sentence lesson to be an introductory lesson.

With respect to writing samples that were due on September 19, 1990, he did not know if he submitted any writing samples that year because the assignments were not done by the students. As he continued to give this assignment for writing samples to the students, he got less and less cooperation. He admitted that he did not always submit writing samples and he admitted that he did not give either writing samples or corrected writing samples to the Department chair. He admitted that he gave writing assignments and got some writing samples from the students but did not submit them to Ms. Rivers. He identified corrected writing samples (Exhibit R-14(a)).

Respondent testified that he used the assigned textbooks in a manner that the students could manage. He acknowledges that the observation of October 28, 1986 (Exhibit R-38), of January 19, 1988 (Exhibit P-63), and of February 29, 1988 (Exhibit P-64) indicated that the use of dittos is not acceptable. However, he takes the position that the dittos he used were taken from textbooks. Even though the evaluators all recommended against the use of dittos, he was aware of this but pointed out that dittos were copies of Board-approved materials.

Respondent disagrees with Ms. Culver's observation of November 28, 1989 (Exhibit P-59) and her assessment, as well as her assertion that he failed to handout homework. He eventually indicated that he disagrees with all his evaluators and he should not have been rated unsatisfactory.

With respect to the Prentice Hall textbook, Dr. Laub indicated that it was selected by the teachers in the school district. However, respondent stated that it was a very difficult textbook and the teachers from three or four high schools were aghast and said that it could not be used. However, the Board of Education wanted to have a uniform curriculum. He felt that the students could not manage the Prentice Hall textbook and his materials supplemented the Board's and are designed to make it easier for the students to learn the concepts set forth in the curriculum.

Lula Mae Rivers was called as a rebuttal witness. She testified that she never observed respondent assisting in getting students out of the hallways. She explained that hall sweeps were to get lingering students into the classroom after the classes have started. This was not considered to be the responsibility of teachers but that of school administrators.

Ms. Rivers identified Adventures in Reading (Exhibit P-80). She indicated that there is a range of reading levels and that all students could use this text with proper instruction. There are various strategies that could be used to match student levels with the text. She also indicated that a sufficient number of books were available to be provided to all students and that there were no shortages. She did acknowledge that there are losses of copies of books every year.

Ms. Rivers testified that the reasons why she gave satisfactory evaluations in prior years and then unsatisfactory ratings in subsequent years was that at first she was just getting to know respondent and trying to understand his teaching strategies. This takes a while and eventually she saw a deterioration in respondent's performance. He was arriving late and his encouragement of students was deteriorating. She saw too much grammar being taught in his classes and not enough focus on the rest of the curriculum. Providing grammar lessons without putting them into practice is not acceptable.

On cross-examination, Ms. Rivers indicated that the Adventures text was the only Board mandated textbook for Central High School. There were other resources but this was the specified textbook. She also indicated that she always gives the teacher and herself a chance to get to know each other before giving an unsatisfactory rating. She admitted to rating respondent satisfactory for the 1988-89 school year.

Irene Miller Graves testified that the Journeys textbook was ordered for those students reading below grade level. She disagrees that the abilities of the students vary. She indicated that she checked with the publishers to make sure that the text was not too difficult for below-grade readers. She indicated that the Arrivals text is designed for grades 2.5 to 5.6. She also indicated that there were a sufficient number of books available for all students.

Respondent testified to rebut the testimony of the witnesses. He identified the two textbooks and indicated that he tried to use them but had very little success. He denies that Adventures in Reading (Exhibit P-80) was a required textbook. Ms. Rivers gave him a curriculum booklet (Exhibit R-72), which lists Adventures in Reading as a recommended text. He attempted to use Adventures in Reading but was not able to do so.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

The Commissioner of the Department of Education has jurisdiction to hear and determine all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The discipline of tenured school employees is authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, which generally provides that no tenured school employee shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation during good behavior and efficiency except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after a hearing.

The original charges in this matter which were certified by the school district on January 29, 1992, included a charge of inefficiency and a charge of unbecoming conduct. By a Partial Initial Decision dated September 21, 1992, in this matter, the undersigned granted respondent's motion to dismiss the inefficiency charge, but denied the dismissal of the unbecoming conduct charge. This was affirmed by the Commissioner of Education on October 21, 1992, and affirmed by the State Board of Education on February 2, 1993. Thus, the sole charge to be considered in this matter is whether respondent engaged in unbecoming conduct.

The tenure charges filed by respondent in this matter allege that respondent has engaged in conduct which is unbecoming of a teacher in that:

(a) Respondent spends inordinate amounts of time disciplining his students such that said students are deprived of effective instructional techniques and the proper environment for learning. (It is noted that this allegation was dismissed by the ALJ at the hearing.)

(b) Respondent has caused the administration to consume an inordinate amount of time seeking to address his conduct.

Respondent has willfully disregarded expressed and implied directives to conform his conduct to the level expected of teaching staff members.

Respondent has displayed insubordinate conduct, in that he has refused to obey the orders/directives by his superior(s) and/or department administrators who are entitled to give and have said directives obeyed.

Respondent's conduct and behavior evidence a complete disregard for board procedures and applicable law, and establishes a poor precedent for other teaching staff members of the school district.

Each of the above actions singularly constitutes conduct unbecoming of a teacher; however, the aggregate of the above actions evidences gross and harmful conduct unbecoming a teacher.

The essence of respondent's argument, as set forth in respondent's Brief and Reply Brief is that an examination of the proofs in this matter reveals that petitioner has failed to prove the above assertions by a preponderance of the evidence. Respondent argues that petitioner failed to prove that respondent caused the administration of the school district to consume an inordinate amount of time seeking to address his conduct. It is pointed out that none of the seven witnesses who testified against respondent mentioned spending an inordinate amount of time seeking to address his conduct. It is also observed that it not clear from the record whether the expenditure of inordinate amounts of time by supervisors and administrators is an element of proof in establishing unbecoming conduct.

Respondent additionally argues that the school district failed to establish that the respondent refused to obey the directives or orders of his superiors either expressed or implied. Respondent further argues that petitioner has failed to establish that respondent displayed insubordinate conduct by refusing to obey the orders/directives by his superiors and/or department administrators. In this regard, only one of the seven witnesses who testified in support of petitioner's case against respondent indicated in any way that respondent acted in an insubordinate manner. I generally agree with respondent's arguments as to these issues.

Finally, respondent argues that petitioner produced no evidence of gross and harmful conduct on the part of respondent. In order to determine whether the petitioner met the elements of this charge, it is necessary to discuss what is intended by the term, "unbecoming conduct".

There is no single definition of the term unbecoming conduct. In Laba v. Newark Board of Education, 23, N.J. 364, 384 (1957), it was made clear that the touchstone of the charge is a teacher's fitness to discharge the duties and functions of one's office or position. See also, In re Tenure Hearing of Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 28-29 (App. Div. 1974), certif. denied, 65 N.J. 292 (1974). There are numerous cases in which specific conduct was found to be unbecoming conduct. For example, the use of physical force by a teacher to maintain discipline was held to be unbecoming conduct. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967). A teacher with an uncontrollable temper who verbally and physically abused students was found to have engaged in unbecoming conduct. Matter of Tenure Hearing of Cowan, 224 N.J. Super. 737, 741 (App. Div. 1988).

Outside the field of education, unbecoming conduct on the part of public employees is conduct which adversely affects the moral or efficiency of the agency of which the employee is a member, which has a tendency to destroy public respect for government employees and confidence in the operation of governmental services, or which violates an implicit standard of good behavior. City of Asbury Park v. Dep't. of Civil Service, 17 N.J. 419 (1955). A finding of unbecoming conduct does not require that any specific rule or regulation have been violated but may be based primarily on a violation of an implicit standard of good behavior. In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960); Newark v. Massey, 93 N.J. Super. 317, 323 (App. Div. 1967).

In an educational setting, unbecoming conduct has been held to be demonstrated by a series of incidents indicating a pattern of behavior, or by a single incident if sufficiently flagrant. See Redcay v. State Board of Education, 130 N.J.L. 369 (Sup. Ct. 1943), affirmed o.b. 131 N.J.L. 326 (E.&A. 1944). In that mater, a school principal was found guilty of the charges of inefficiency, incapacity, insubordination, lack of cooperation, unfitness and conduct generally unbecoming a principal. See, 128 N.J.L. 281, 282 (Sup. Ct. 1942). The court stated:

> Unfitness for a task is best shown by numerous incidents. Unfitness for a position under the school system is best evidenced by a series of incidents. Unfitness to hold a post might be shown by one incident, if sufficiently flagrant, but it might also be shown by many incidents. Fitness may be shown either way. (130 N.J.L..at 371.)

Generally, in order for the charging party in a tenure hearing to prevail, the truth of the charges must be established by a preponderance of the credible evidence. In re Phillips, 117 N.J. 567, 575 (1990); In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143, 149 (1962).

This general statement concerning the burden of proof raises the question how to deal with unsatisfactory teacher evaluations which were not previously challenged by respondent in a prior proceeding before the Commissioner of Education. From this follows the additional question whether a teacher such as respondent in the within matter may challenge an unsatisfactory evaluation and its factual underpinnings where they form the basis for a tenure charge or are submitted in evidence in support of the charge, if the teacher failed to challenge the original evaluation within 90 days of its issuance pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

Challenges to unsatisfactory ratings generally arise when a school district withholds an annual salary increment. In such cases, the courts have made it clear that the responsibility of the Commissioner is to determine whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluation claimed, and whether it was unreasonable for the evaluators to conclude as they did upon those facts, bearing in mind that they were experts, admittedly without bias or prejudice and closely familiar with the mise en scene. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 296-297 (App. Div. 1960). In any event, the burden of proving the unreasonableness of the evaluation is upon the teacher challenging the evaluation. Id.

There is no authority which I have been able to locate dealing with these issues either way. In view of the salutary purpose of the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to - 25, which is to protect teachers and other school employees against arbitrary dismissal, I FIND and CONCLUDE that a respondent has the right to challenge the facts underlying an unsatisfactory evaluation. However, the burden of proving the unreasonableness of the evaluation remains upon the respondent. Kopera, supra.

The proofs submitted by petitioner in this matter were extraordinarily detailed and extensive and required considerable analysis in order to reach certain conclusions. There were 16 formal observations in this matter made between October 11, 1989 and December 3, 1991 (Exhibits P-1, P-6, P-26, P-40, P-48, P-71, P-59, P-60, P-67, P-61, P-62, P-63 and P-64). These 16 formal observations were conducted by seven different individuals, including five by Ms. Rivers, one by Mr. Laub, two by Ms. Culver, one by Mr. Gregory, four by Ms. Miller, two by Dr. Adilifu and one by Ms. Pallotta. In many respects these formal observations are consistent with each other in many of their conclusions as to respondent's deficiencies. In 14 of the 16 formal observations, respondent was given unsatisfactory ratings because he was found to be unsatisfactory in disciplining and controlling student behavior. In 12 of these observations respondent was given unsatisfactory ratings because of unsatisfactory teaching or no teaching whatsoever. On 11 of the formal observations respondent was given unsatisfactory ratings for unsatisfactory lesson implementation or no lesson implementation whatsoever. In ten of the observations respondent was given unsatisfactory ratings based on his failure to use either mandated or recommended textbooks or other resources rather than an exercise sheet or "ditto". Eight of these observations rated respondent unsatisfactory based on his failure to attempt to motivate his students. Seven of the observations gave respondent unsatisfactory ratings because of poor classroom atmosphere or environment. In six of these observations, respondent was reported to have been late either arriving in class or late in actually starting the class. In five of the observations respondent was given unsatisfactory ratings based upon his lack of interest or concern in dealing with his class, his failure to have his lesson plans available and his failure to respond to or to follow prior recommendations or suggestions for his improvement as a teacher. The remainder of the unsatisfactory ratings generally dealt with the findings that respondent's lesson objectives or subject matter was unclear, that he did not use his teaching time effectively, or that he gave no homework assignment to the students as mandated by school district policy. One of the observations indicated that respondent reused a ditto which he had previously used for the same class.

The Annual Evaluations given to respondent (Exhibits P-15, P-44 and P-65) each rated respondent as unsatisfactory and each one generally found the same or similar deficiencies. In these, it was indicated that there was a lack of discipline and control of the students by respondent, there was a use of dittos as the only resource with no other materials, teaching methods, strategies or techniques being utilized, and there was a failure to use effect classroom teaching techniques. They also indicated that respondent failed to follow the directives and requirements of the school district, including a failure to use assigned text books, and that he failed to use resources or supplemental materials other than the dittos. Finally they generally indicated that there was a failure on the part of respondent to make any efforts to improve his teaching methods or to follow through on suggestions and recommendations for the improvement of his teaching.

Petitioner also relied upon 12 "Informal Observations" made of respondent on a casual basis between October 1989 and February 1991. These Informal Observations apparently involve incidents or situations observed by a supervisor of a staff member. The supervision places the observation writing so as to notify the staff member of the incident, deficiency or problem, and so as to keep a written record of the observation. There was no indication in the record what procedure is available to a staff member who disagrees with the contents of an Informal Observation. It is presumed that upon receipt of an Informal Observation, the staff member has the opportunity to respond in writing either disputing the contents of the observation or explaining the circumstances under which the incident occurred. In this matter, Ms. Rivers provided 11 of the Informal Observations (Exhibits P-3, P-4, P-8, P-10, P-12, P-22, P-29, P-30, P-33, P-38, and P-39), and Mr. Gregory provided one of the Informal Observations (Exhibit P-66). Each of these informal observations generally included more than one deficiency which was observed by the supervisor. With respect to the Informal Observations relied upon petitioner in this matter eight of them related to incidents in which they found that respondent exercised no discipline and control of the students in his classes. Five of the informal observations generated by Ms. Rivers related to incidents of lateness on the part of respondent, and the one observation generated by Mr. Gregory reported an incident when respondent failed to be at his classroom door in accordance with district policies. Four of the Informal Observations related to failures on the part of respondent to follow up on recommendations and suggestions for the improvement of his teaching methods and four related to his failure to provide lesson implementation and direction to his classes. Three related to problems of classroom appearance and one involved respondent's failure to have lesson plans available in the classroom. It should be noted that there is reflected nowhere in the record any responses on the part of respondent to these Informal Observations.

Ms. Rivers testified to 27 memos or other writings given by her to respondent, 26 of which involved deficiencies or other problems relating to respondent's performance. Of these, ten dealt with respondent's failure to provide student writing samples as mandated by district policy, nine involved respondent failing to submit lesson plans for approval on a timely basis, five dealt with deficiencies regarding respondent's teaching methods, two dealt with deficiencies in the lesson plans submitted by respondent and one involved a response to a memo from respondent dealing with the discipline of students.

In response to foregoing testimony and evidence, respondent testified that Ms. Rivers supervised him prior to October 19, 1989 and that in the 1987-88 school year she gave him satisfactory evaluations (Exhibits R-40, R-41, R-42 and R-43) when he was using the same teaching methods and materials that he used in subsequent years when he was given unsatisfactory evaluations. He also testified that there were occasions when Ms. Rivers would hold the lesson plans which he submitted to her and that, as a result, he would not have them available to him when he was teaching a particular class.

Respondent testified that he prepared and used exercise or ditto forms to teach grammar as required by the district. These dittos were consistent with district course proficiencies and were based upon and copied from recommended or required texts provided by the school district. He indicated that Ms. Rivers approved of the use of these materials and that these dittos were better than the district-suggested or mandated textbooks because they kept the attention of students, all of whom had reading deficiencies.

Respondent testified that Ms. River did not remain in the class for the entire evaluation of October 17, 1989, because of a disruptive student. He indicated that Ms. Rivers got into a dispute with the student and she removed the student. He also testified that absences from class because of students cutting class, transfers and withdrawals of students were also disruptive of his classes and caused a decline in the number of students attending. He also stated that at least once every two weeks all classes were disrupted by assemblies which shortened class periods. In addition, hall sweeps which were conducted by school administrators for the purpose of removing students from the halls and placing them in their proper classes were also disruptive to the classes and interfered with instruction.

Respondent testified that he frequently remained in the hallway in order to get the students into the classrooms, and this was believed to be the reason why he was late arriving at his classes. He also indicated that student discipline was a serious problem and a fact of life in all of the school district high schools, and that this problem caused disruptions in all classes. Respondent felt that the unsatisfactory ratings given to him because of his alleged failure to deal with students who were tardy was contradicted by the policy of the school district requiring the teacher to accept the student into the class and deal with the tardiness after the class.

Respondent denied Ms. Rivers' conclusion that the same ditto or exercise was used by him in the same class on prior occasions. He explained that his use of dittos is incremental and that it is necessary for him to go over a subject a number of times in order to teach the students in a proper manner.

Respondent addressed the various allegations of unsatisfactory classroom environment by explaining that the classrooms are dilapidated, windows are broken, fixtures and desks are dented, beat up and old, and there has been no painting of classrooms for quite some time.

Respondent indicated that because of the below-grade level of all students, he could not use the recommended or, in later years, required text books. As a result, it was necessary for him to use materials which would match the students' abilities in order that he could get the concepts across to below-grade students. He asserts that he was using effective teaching techniques and that he was attempting to motivate his students. He disagrees with the assertion that he did not question the students to determine if they were learning and he testified that he questioned the students thoroughly throughout lessons and he attempted to have them think independently. He generally denied that the students were unaware of the objective of the lessons and he indicated that in some cases he was on the same lesson for several days so that the students were fully aware of what the lesson involved. He asserts that the textbooks which were recommended and were eventually mandated by the school district were too difficult for the students and they could not be used to teach principles or grammar.

Respondent testified he the disagrees with Dr. Adilifu's observation of January 23, 1991 (P-73) in its entirety. He testified that it was on this occasion that the material gone over in class was the same material that was used on the previous school day. He indicated that work books had not been provided to the students and that he was required to copy them. He denied that he mumbled in speaking to the class, and he stated that he felt that his voice was loud and clear and that his directions to the students were clear. He relied upon a Teacher Observation Report of May 6, 1985 (R-62), when he used the same or similar materials as those he was using when he was observed by Dr. Adilifu, and on the prior occasion, his performance was found to be satisfactory. He indicated that he was complying with a PIP requirement by developing exercises and by creating dittos.

Respondent testified that he submitted his lesson plans generally on time, although they may have been submitted late on occasion if he were absent. Therefore, he denies Ms. Rivers' testimony that he was consistently late in submitting his lesson plans. He indicated that it was very difficult to get students to provide writing samples and he admitted that there were some occasions when he had writing samples from students which he did not submit to Ms. Rivers.

Respondent relied upon various materials showing the class work of his students for the purpose of establishing that he was complying with school district requirements as to curriculum. He disagrees with each of his observers by asserting that there was no factual basis for their arriving at their conclusions. He testified that he felt he felt that he was teaching in an effective and satisfactory manner. In essence, he relies upon evaluations in prior years during which he asserts he used the same or similar type of teaching strategies and techniques and was given satisfactory ratings and in comparison he was given unsatisfactory ratings in subsequent years.

Respondent specifically testified with respect to Mr. Laub's observation on November 20, 1991 (Exhibit P-71). In his report Mr. Laub indicated that respondent was teaching a lesson in November which should have been taught at the beginning of the school year. Respondent answered this by testifying that there was a scheduling "glitch" in September 1991 which caused an enormous amount of confusion. In addition, the Prentice Hall materials had not been provided until mid-October and there were no in-service workshops with respect to these materials until October, November, and December, 1991. It was for these reasons that there was a delay in his dealing with the subject-matter of the lesson on that date. He also indicated with respect to Ms. Pallotta's observation on December 3, 1991 (Exhibit P-7) that there would have been much less confusion but the materials had just been passed out and he had just begun to incorporate them into his classes.

It was previously indicated that when dealing with unsatisfactory evaluations, the burden of proving the unreasonableness of the evaluation is upon the teacher or staff member challenging the evaluation. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. Of Education, supra. The reason for imposing this burden on the challenging teacher is apparent, and appears in the statement by the court in Kopera that it is to be born in mind that the evaluators are experts admittedly without bias or prejudice and are closely familiar with the situations they are observing. Thus, the burden on the challenging teacher is to establish that the underlying facts were not as set forth by those who made the evaluations.

In this matter, I have heard the testimony of Ms. Rivers, Mr. Laub, Ms. Culver, Mr. Gregory, Dr. Adilifu and Ms. Miller on behalf of the school district. I have closely scrutinized their testimony as well as the written evaluations they provided. I have been unable to discern any improper motivation, bias or prejudice on their part which would cause them to be anything less than truthful in this matter. In this regard, respondent argued that two of the school district witnesses, Ms. Rivers and Ms. Miller, lacked credibility, citing numerous examples. However, my specific recollection of the testimony of these two witnesses was that their testimony was credible under the circumstances. There were certain inconsistencies in their testimony, but these were understandable based on the passage of time and acknowledging the fact that no one's memory is perfect. It was also clear that when testifying as to respondent's deficiencies as a teacher, both witnesses were entirely consistent in their testimony. In addition, while the seven witnesses/evaluators of respondent did not always use the same words in describing respondent's teaching deficiencies, they were entirely consistent in the impressions they gave of respondent's conduct. In particular, with respect to Mr. Laub, Ms. Culver and Dr. Adilifu, they were called in to observe and evaluate respondent not as his direct supervisors, but as independent evaluators for the purpose of providing an independent evaluation of his teaching methods.

In response to these evaluations, respondent generally indicated that he was not aware of the factual basis for the unsatisfactory evaluations. He relied upon written materials, all of which were submitted in evidence, to show that he attempted to follow the curriculum. Respondent generally denied their assessments that he lacked effectiveness as a teacher, lacked discipline and control of the students, failed to use resources other than dittos, lacked interest or concern, failed to motivate students, and generally that he failed to teach.

I found respondent's testimony to be incredible and, in most cases, entirely missing the point of the unsatisfactory evaluations. At no time did respondent address his failure to teach his students other than by using the excuses that his students were discipline problems, they were absent from class, and they were below grade level in their reading skills. At no time did respondent address his failure to use various teaching strategies and techniques in order to attempt to motivate his students, other than by asserting that the dittos he employed were based on district textbooks and materials, and were appropriate because of the below-grade levels of the students. At no time did respondent dispute the testimony of virtually all of his evaluators that when they arrived in his class he was usually late, usually less than prompt in starting the lesson, and that the lesson usually consisted of him merely passing out a ditto form with no directions or instructions, and having the students return the ditto forms to him at the end of class. At no time did respondent address the fact that he was only rarely observed using any resources or materials other than the ditto forms. At no time did respondent address the consistently observed fact that students in his class were disruptive, unruly and undisciplined, and that he made no effort to correct these disruptions and discipline problems. At no time did respondent address the real issue in this matter which is his lack of classroom discipline and control and failure to engage in the teaching of his students.

Is it unbecoming conduct for a teacher to fail to maintain classroom control and to fail to teach his students? It seems axiomatic that a person who fails to perform a duty which is imposed by law or is clearly inherent in the nature of the position is guilty of unbecoming conduct. Compare, N.J.S.A. 2C:30-2b.

Respondent argues that the evaluations in this matter actually deal with the charge of inefficiency rather than unbecoming conduct. However, I FIND that the failure of a teacher to discipline and control the students in his charge, the failure of a teacher to teach his students in an effective manner, or in this case, in any manner whatsoever, is clearly unbecoming conduct. In this matter, I FIND that respondent has continuously failed to discipline and control the students in his charge, has failed to teach his students in an effective manner and on many occasions has continuously failed to teach his students in any manner whatsoever. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that respondent is guilty of unbecoming conduct.

The next issue to be resolved is the appropriate remedy or penalty based on the finding of guilt in this matter. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Elizabeth Merkooloff, School District of the Twp. of Washington, 1980 S.L.D. 1370, the Commissioner stressed again that which he previously said in Clinton F. Smith et al. v. Bd. of Ed. of the Boro of Paramus, 1968 S.L.D. 62:

> The public schools were not created, nor are they supported, for the benefit of the teachers therein, . . . but for the benefit of the pupils and the resulting benefit to their parents and the Community at large. . . (at 67).
> (at 1371).
>
> The Commissioner also stated at 1371 in Merkooloff:
>
> The Commissioner believes that these young pupils in their formative years surely deserve the best education possible with as complete continuity as can be accorded them. . . .

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Joseph A. Maratea, Twp. of Riverside, 1966 S.L.D. 77, the Commissioner said:

> The Commissioner is assiduous to protect school personnel in their employment when they are subjected to unfair or improper attacks or when they are unable to > perform effectively because of conditions not of their own making or beyond their control. An employee is not entitled to the protection of tenure, however, when, by his own acts or failures, he creates conditions under which the proper operation of the school is adversely affected. When the responsibility for the conditions unfavorable to the effective operation of the school rests with the employee then, the Commissioner holds, the protection of tenure is forfeit (at 106).

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Jacque L. Sammons, School District of Black Horse Pike Regional, 1972 S.L.D. 302, the Commissioner said:

> [T]hey [teachers] are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of tens of thousands of school children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each individual child. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment. As one of the most dominant and influential forces in the lives of the children, who are compelled to attend the public schools, the teacher is an enormous force for improving the public weal. Those who teach do so by choice, and in this respect the teaching profession is more than a simple job, it is a calling. (at 321).

It was also stated In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Herman B. Nash, School District of the Twp. of Teaneck, 1972 S.L.D. 284:

> A teacher, as any citizen, who decides to take any form of action or inaction does so at his own risk. No matter what the ultimate objective sought, the individual must accept the responsibility for his actions . . and must accept the consequences of his actions.
> The Commissioner's basic and fundamental concern must be in the welfare of the students in the Teaneck School System and, therefore, in the proper administration of that School System.(at 296).

In this matter, it is clear to me that it is not in the best interest of the students of the Newark School District that respondent remain as a teacher. Respondent has, over an extended period of time, clearly and consistently failed to provide his best efforts to teach the children of the school district. His consistent and continuous failure to impose discipline on the students and his consistent and continuous refusal to attempt to teach his students effectively leads me to the conclusion that his removal is in the best interests of the children of the school district.

Therefore, I FIND and CONCLUDE that respondent should be removed as a teacher in the School District of the City of Newark.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing I FIND respondent guilty of the charge of unbecoming conduct and I ORDER his removal as a teaching staff member of the School District of the City of Newark.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF PETER LORIA, STATE- : OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE :
CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY. :

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent (hereinafter "Loria") filed timely exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. No reply was filed by the District.

Loria's exceptions primarily recast and reiterate his argument made in post-hearing submissions to the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), i.e., that all of the evidence presented by the District in this matter supports its previously dismissed charges of inefficiency rather than the charge at issue here, unbecoming conduct.

After his careful and independent review, which included transcripts of the nine days of hearings conducted at the OAL, the Commissioner concurs with the conclusion of the ALJ that the record of the within matter makes it abundantly clear that Loria should not be continued in his tenured teaching position with the State-operated School District of Newark.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Loria is hereby dismissed from his tenured position as of the date of this decision.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF PETER LORIA, STATE-	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE	:	DECISION
CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 11, 1996

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Gregory Johnson, Esq.

For the Respondent-Appellant, Bucceri & Pincus (Sheldon H. Pincus, Esq., of Counsel)

On January 11, 1996, the Commissioner of Education adopted the recommended decision of the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") sustaining tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against Peter Loria (hereinafter "respondent"). The Commissioner directed that respondent be dismissed from his tenured employment. Respondent filed the instant appeal to the State Board of Education.

After a careful review of the record, we reverse the decision of the Commissioner and remand for further proceedings in accordance with our decision herein.

Although the ALJ acknowledged the Board's burden of proof in this matter, he also indicated, in reliance upon Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960), that respondent had the burden of proving the unreasonableness of the performance evaluations placed into evidence by the Board. Kopera, however, did not involve a district board's certification of tenure charges, but, rather, a staff member's challenge to a board's action in withholding his salary increments. The only question open for review in such cases is whether the district board had a reasonable basis for its factual conclusion, id. at 295, and the burden of proving unreasonableness is on the party challenging the board's action. Id. at 297.

In contrast, the burden of proof in tenure proceedings lies not with the staff member, but with the district board certifying the charges, which is required to establish the truth of those charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence. In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982). In requiring respondent to have proven the unreasonableness of his performance evaluations, the ALJ improperly shifted that burden.

Accordingly, under the circumstances, we reverse the Commissioner's decision, which adopted the ALJ's findings and conclusions, and remand this matter to the Commissioner for a determination of the charges under the correct standard, i.e., whether the Board has established respondent's unbecoming conduct by a preponderance of the credible evidence. While we are mindful of the protracted nature of these proceedings, we find such action necessary in order to provide the Commissioner with the opportunity to determine this matter under the proper legal standard. See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Patrick Caporaso, Docket #A-4558-85T6 (App. Div. 1987).

District certified tenure charges of inefficiency and unbecoming conduct to the Commissioner in February 1992 against respondent English teacher. Partial initial decision in September 1992 dismissed the inefficiency charge because of District's failure to comply with statutory and regulatory requirements mandated when bringing charges of inefficiency. Matter was returned to OAL to proceed on remaining charges of unbecoming conduct. Thereafter, the ALJ found that the failure of a teacher to discipline and control the students in his charge and the failure of a teacher to teach his students in an effective manner are clearly unbecoming conduct. ALJ found that, in this matter, respondent continuously failed to discipline and control the students in his charge, failed to teach his students in an effective manner and, on many occasions, continuously failed to teach his students in any manner whatsoever. Thus, ALJ concluded that respondent was guilty of unbecoming conduct. ALJ ordered respondent removed from his position as a tenured teaching staff member. Commissioner concurred with the conclusion of the ALJ that the record made it abundantly clear that respondent should not be continued in his tenured teaching position and directed his dismissal as of the date of the decision.

State Board reversed and remanded matter, finding that the ALJ improperly shifted the burden of proof from the District to respondent. State Board directed determination of the charges under the correct standard of whether the District established respondent's unbecoming conduct by a preponderance of credible evidence.

On remand, the ALJ, having considered the testimony and evidence mindful of the burden of proof, concluded that respondent was guilty of unbecoming conduct as he continuously failed to impose discipline on his students and refused to teach his students effectively. ALJ found that removal from his position was warranted. ALJ also ruled on claim for back salary and benefits, finding that respondent was underpaid by three days, that the District had to provide proof of payment for unemployment benefits, that pension contributions were due from respondent and that respondent was due post-judgment interest.

Upon careful review of the record, including transcripts of nine days of hearing and exhibits consisting of a number of observations made of respondent, the Commissioner agreed with the determination of the ALJ that respondent was guilty of unbecoming conduct warranting his dismissal. In light of the State Board's remand, the Commissioner concluded that the documentary and testimonial proofs advanced established, by a preponderace of the credible evidence, Charges 2 and 3 of the District's unbecoming conduct charges. Citing Bradley, the Commissioner noted not only respondent's unsatisfactory behavior but also the impact of this behavior on the students. Commissioner directed that respondent be dismissed from his position and the matter be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for further appropriate action. As to the money issue, the Commissioner found that the existing record did not provide the necessary detail to enable him to make the conclusive determinations required. Therefore, he remanded that issue to the OAL for expansion of the record and determination on this limited issue.

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter involves the remand on an Initial Decision which was affirmed by the Commissioner of Education sustaining tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent and dismissing respondent from his tenured employment as a teacher after a hearing under the Tenure Employees Hearing Act. The matter was originally transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 24, 1992, for hearing as contested case and was assigned to the undersigned Administrative Law Judge (ALJ). By a Partial Initial Decision dated September 21, 1992, the ALJ granted respondent's motion to dismiss the charge of inefficiency but denied respondent's motion to dismiss the charge of unbecoming conduct. This Partial Initial Decision was submitted to the Commissioner of the Department of Education for immediate review pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(e) and by decision dated October 21, 1992, the Commissioner affirmed the Partial Initial Decision, and by its decision dated February 2, 1993, the Commissioner's affirmation of the Partial Initial Decision was affirmed by the State Board of Education.

The matter was then heard at a series of hearings held between October 1992, and September 1994, and the record closed on February 13, 1995. By an Initial Decision dated October 6, 1995, the ALJ sustained tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent and directed that he be dismissed from his tenured teaching position. On January 11, 1996, the Commissioner of Education adopted the recommended decision of the ALJ (96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 379). The respondent filed an appeal to the State Board of Education, and by a Decision entered on June 5, 1996, the State Board of Education reversed the decision of the Commissioner and remanded the matter for further proceedings in accordance with its decision. In particular the State Board of Education required a determination of the charges against respondent under the correct standard, that is, whether the school district has established respondent's unbecoming conduct by a preponderance of the credible evidence.

This matter was then transmitted on remand to the OAL on July 2, 1996, for hearing as contested case and was reassigned to the undersigned ALJ on July 12, 1996. The matter was scheduled for a prehearing conference which was held on August 12, 1996, and a schedule for further proceedings was established. On that date, attorney for respondent indicated his intention to file a motion for recusal of the ALJ. Further proceedings in the matter were held in abeyance pending this motion for recusal. A schedule for submission of the motion and response thereto was established.

On September 4, 1996, attorney for respondent filed a motion to compel petitioner to reinstate respondent's full salary and benefits, and to pay immediately to respondent back pay and benefits with interest. In response, attorney for petitioner filed a motion to stay respondent's reinstatement. These motions were decided by the ALJ on October 3, 1996, by an Order Granting Motion for Reinstatement and Denying Motion for Stay. Respondent then filed a motion for interlocutory review by the Commissioner of Education. The Commissioner granted the motion and by a determination issued on November 4, 1996, the Commissioner ruled the petitioner was required to continue respondent's paid suspension and that respondent isnot required to return to his teaching duties during this period.

By a Letter Order entered on October 7, 1996, respondent's request for an opportunity to present additional testimony and evidence was denied and a schedule was established for the filing of written submissions.

In the meantime, on September 4, 1996, attorney for respondent filed a notice of motion for recusal, and on September 11, 1996, attorney for petitioner responded thereto. By an order denying motion for recusal entered on September 24, 1996, respondent's motion was denied. On October 2, 1996, respondent filed a motion for interlocutory review by the Director of the OAL. On October 9, 1996, an order granting interlocutory review was entered by the Director and by final order of affirmance entered on October 21, 1996, the order denying the motion for recusal was affirmed. Following this, on or about November 5, 1996, attorney for respondent filed a notice of motion for leave to appeal with the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellant Division. By an order entered on December 16, 1996, respondent's motion for leave to appeal was denied. Because neither the OAL nor the ALJ was aware of this denial, further proceedings in this matter were held in abeyance until February 4, 1997, when a copy of the order of the Appellate Division was provided to the ALJ.

Thereafter, the parties engaged in a series of disputes and disagreements with respect to the calculation of amounts due and owing to respondent by petitioner for back salary less unemployment benefits in mitigation, benefits and reimbursement for expenditures by respondent, pension deductions and post judgment interest. The parties have submitted this dispute for determination as a part of this matter, and this dispute will be dealt with herein.

After the parties were given a full opportunity to submit argument as to their respective positions both with regard to the back pay and benefits dispute as well as the underlying tenure charges, the record was closed by the ALJ on September 15, 1997.

CLAIM FOR BACK PAY AND BENEFITS

There is no dispute that respondent is entitled to payment of back salary from the period from January 12, 1996, through December 6, 1996. It is the calculation of this payment that is causing the difficulty in this matter.

It is undisputed that respondent's annual salary is $47,070. The parties agree that as a teacher, respondent is a ten-month employee. According to respondent's certification, teacher salaries in Newark are paid based on a per diem rate determined by dividing the teacher's annual salary by an agreed upon number of days and 21 checks are then issued on specified pay dates. The total of these checks is to equal the annual salary.

For the 1995-96 school year, respondent's per diem rate was determined by dividing his annual salary of $47,070, by 211 days resulting in a per diem rate of $233.08. For the 1996-97 school year, respondent's total salary was divided by 214 days resulting in a per diem rate of $219.95. The parties do not dispute these per diem rates.

It is not disputed that by a check issued on December 13, 1996, respondent was paid a total of $25,877.28 representing 116 days from Janaury 12, 1996 to June 23, 1996 at $223.08 per day. It is also not disputed that petitioner should have paid to respondent an additional three days pay from June 23 through June 26, 1996 or a total of $669.24.

There is a dispute concerning the additional portion of the check of December 13, 1996. Petiitoner's certifications establish that this check included a payment of $12,947.05 representing payment of salary for 59 days from September 3, 1996 to November 22, 1996 at $219.95 per diem. In addition, this check included respondent's regular two weeks pay of $2,230.80 for the period from November 23, 1996 to December 6, 1996.

With respect to the amounts included in the check issued to respondent on December 13, 1996, I FIND that petitioner has underpaid respondent by three days representing the period from June 24 through June 26, 1996, for a total underpayment of $669.24. In addition, I FIND, notwithstanding the contents of respondent's certification, petitioner has made payment to respondent for a total period of 69 days from September 3, 1996 through December 6, 1996, these amounts having been included in the check issued on December 13, 1996. As I understand it, it does not appear to be disputed that respondent has been receiving his regular pay checks after December 13, 1996, and it is not necessary to become involved in the correctness of these subsequent payments.

Respondent also seeks reimbursement for amounts he has expended out-of pocket for his healthcare insurance coverage in the amount of $4,959.51. By letter dated May 1, 1997, attorney for petitioner indicated that this amount has been paid.

There is no dispute as to the amount to be set off from any payment to respondent by petitioner for unemployment benefits received by respondent and to be reimbursed to petitioner. The only dispute concerning this is the request by respondent that petitioner provide proof that any sums withheld were actually transmitted to the Division of Unemployment Insurance. I agree with this request and it is ORDERED that proof of such payments shall be provided by petitioner to respondent.

Respondent additionally asserts that petitioner is required to deduct from the salary still due to him a total of $1,820.69 in pension deductions. Petitioner, through the certification of Michelle Revey dated March 5, 1997, indicates that total pension contributions due for respondent's share is $1,634. based on this certification, it is ORDERED that this pension contribution shall be made and respondent may either forward a check in this amount to petitioner or advise petitioner to deduct the same from his payroll check for payment.

In addition, I FIND that respondent is entitled to post judgment interest. However, my finding is based upon respondent's entitlement to three days pay of $669.24, and reimbursement for out of pocket health insurance expenditures of $4,959.51. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that post judgment interest shall be calculated based on these amounts only.

1. Correct standard to be applied to the proofs.

In the original Initial Decision in this matter it was indicated that generally, in order for the charging party in a tenure hearing to prevail, the truth of the charges must be established by a preponderance of the credible evidence, citing In re Phillips, 117 N.J. 567, 575 (1990); In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143, 149 (1962). However, the following questions were raised by the ALJ: (1) How to deal with unsatisfactory teacher evaluations which were not previously challenged by respondent in a prior proceeding before the Commissioner of Education? (2) Whether a teacher such as respondent may challenge an unsatisfactory evaluation and its factual underpinnings where they form the basis for a tenure charge or are submitted in evidence in support of the charge, if the teacher failed to challenge the original evaluation within 90 days of its issuance pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

Challenges to unsatisfactory ratings generally arise when a school district withholds an annual salary increment. In such cases, the courts have made it clear that the responsibility of the Commissioner is to determine whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluation claimed, and whether it was unreasonable for the evaluators to conclude as they did upon those facts, bearing in mind that they are experts, admittedly without bias or prejudice and closely familiar with the mise en scene. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 296-297 (App. Div. 1960). In any event, the burden of proving the unreasonableness of the evaluation is upon the teacher challenging the evaluation. Id.

No authority was found dealing with the two specified issues either way. In view of the salutary purpose of the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -25, which is to protect teachers and other school employees against arbitrary dismissal, I found that a respondent has the right to challenge the facts underlying an unsatisfactory evaluation. However, the burden of proving the unreasonableness of the evaluation remains upon the respondent. Kopera, supra.

However, in its decision, the State Board of Education indicated that the Kopera case did not involve a district board certification of tenure charges, but rather a staff member's challenge to a Board's action in withholding his salary increment. The only question opened for review in such cases is whether the district board had a reasonable basis for its factual conclusion, Id., at 295, and the burden of proving unreasonableness is on the party challenging the board's action. Id., at 297. the State Board indicated that in contrast, the burden of proof in tenure proceedings lies not with the staff member, but with the district board certifying the charges, which is required to establish the truth of those charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence, citing In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982). The State Board found that by requiring respondent to prove the unreasonableness of his performance evaluations, the ALJ improperly shifted that burden. Accordingly, the State Board reversed this decision and remanded this matter for a determination of the charges under the correct standard, i.e., whether the Board has established respondent's unbecoming conduct by a the preponderance of the credible evidence. The Board found such action necessary in order to provide the Commissioner with the opportunity to determine this matter under the proper legal standard.

In view of this decision by the State Board of Education, and after considering the guidance given by the Board in its decision, I have reviewed the testimony and evidence mindful that the burden of proof is upon the Board of Education to establish the charges of unbecoming conduct by the preponderance of the legally competent and credible evidence.

2. Discussion of the testimony and evidence.

I have reviewed by bench notes as well as the factual discussion as set forth in my original Initial Decision in this matter. The essential facts in this matter with respect to the alleged unbecoming conduct of respondent are disputed by the parties. The following is not intended to be a verbatim account of the evidence, but is intended to be a summary of that evidence found to be relevant as to the issue of unbecoming conduct.

The first witness for respondent was Lula Mae Rivers. Ms. Rivers was respondent's immediate supervisor and his primary evaluator for the 1989-90 and 1990-91 school years. She was the English Department chairperson for nine years and also was employed as an adjunct professor at Kean College, Rutgers University. As the chairperson of the English Department, it is her responsibility to supervise the staff of the Department in order to ensure that it fulfilled its duties to prepare students. Petitioner was an English teacher assigned to her supervision for more than three years.

Ms. Rivers testified to an observation she conducted on October 11, 1989 (P-1), in which she gave respondent an overall unsatisfactory rating. This was based upon respondent's lack of control in the classroom and lack of classroom management. During the observation students were talking and walking around the classroom at will and were socializing rather than performing their educational tasks. It appeared to Ms. Rivers that the students were accustomed to doing this. Respondent exhibited a nonchalant and uncaring attitude and there was no effort on his part to ask them to sit, to do their assignments, or otherwise to control their actions. There was no motivational technique used by respondent to implement the lessons and respondent failed to motivate the students to get involved in their lessons. The respondent did not pay any attention to the fact that the students were not paying attention. At the post-observation conference, Ms. Rivers indicated that she suggested to respondent various ways to provide a better learning environment. He did not respond to her suggestions in any way.

Ms. Rivers identified a memorandum sent to respondent on October 17, 1989 (P-2), which discussed problems in respondent's classroom and gave him the suggestions that he give more challenging lessons and that he take off credit if a child disregards his directions.

Ms. Rivers testified to an informal observation on October 25, 1989 (P-3), in which she observed that the lesson plans were not on the teacher's desk as required by the school district, respondent provided no attention to students, he did not direct instructional activity, and he paid no attention to classroom appearance. After this informal observation, Ms. Rivers indicated she never saw respondent use any of the techniques she suggested.

Ms. Rivers testified to an informal observation on November 28, 1989 (P-4), and again she saw a lack of control on the part of respondent. The students were engaged in irrelevant conversations and respondent ignored these actions on the part of the students. She recommended more challenging lessons but she never saw respondent attempt to implement this recommendation.

Ms. Rivers testified that she sent a memorandum to respondent on December 2, 1989 (P-5), because of his failure to submit essays or writing samples from the students. She acknowledged that other teachers also submitted them late.

Ms. Rivers testified to a formal observation which she conducted on January 24, 1990 (P-6), in which she again gave respondent an unsatisfactory overall rating. She indicated that it was difficult to determine what respondent's objective was for that class. She observed students talking among themselves and a lack of concern on the part of the students. They were not paying any attention to respondent and respondent did not address this fact. There was an unsatisfactory student-teacher rapport and she felt that the students should be respectful to one another and to the teacher. Respondent failed to use study guides and failed to determine whether the students were comprehending the lesson. He failed to use any technique whatsoever in order to implement the lesson. In addition, he failed to begin the class promptly and he was working on paperwork at the beginning of the class. She indicated that the lesson should be started first and then paperwork could be done. Ms. Rivers testified that she discussed this observation with respondent and she suggested that he use a directed reading lesson, that he use a seating chart, and that he make it clear that the students will be tested and will be responsible for the material. Respondent again failed to follow these suggestions or to use any of the recommendations.

Ms. Rivers testified that on January 29, 1990, she sent a memo to respondent (P-7) requesting that he inform her how the district's literature textbook would be included in the lesson plans. She testified that each teacher is given a Course Proficiency and Course Outline which must be followed, and there was no indication he was doing so.

Ms. Rivers testified that she conducted an informal observation of respondent on January 31, 1990, (P-8) at which time respondent was five minutes late for class. He eventually started the lesson ten minutes late. She indicated that respondent had been late previously, although there were no written memos confirming his previously being late.

Ms. Rivers also testified to a memo given to respondent on February 22, 1990 (P-9), at which time she observed students sitting on the steps waiting for the start of a voluntary class because respondent was late arriving. She indicated that there were other occasions when no one was in respondent's classroom when the class should have been held. She also indicated that respondent's tardiness did not improve after the memo.

Ms. Rivers testified to an informal observation on February 22, 1990 (P-10), when respondent arrived late. After he arrived the students continued to walk around the classroom and to talk and socialize. Some of the students were using radios under their hats.

Ms. Rivers testified that she sent a memo to respondent on March 2, 1990 (P-11), acknowledging that he had sent her a list of names of problem students and advising him that she would be supportive of him in taking disciplinary action against these students. She eventually determined that respondent simply sent the list of problem students to her but did not call any of the parents to attempt to resolve the disciplinary problems or take any other steps to deal with the disciplinary problems being caused by these students. Respondent also never approached her concerning the disciplining of any of the students. Respondent denied that he ever received this memo.

Ms. Rivers testified that on March 9, 1990, she conducted an informal observation (P-12) in which she observed students singing during class while others engaged in other activities while respondent should have been conducting class. There was no attempt by respondent to maintain order and there was no seating organization. The students gathered their chairs in a corner and were singing. She again suggested to respondent that he have a seating chart. However, she never observed that respondent made an orderly arrangement of seats.

Ms. Rivers testified that on March 13, 1990, she sent a memo to respondent (P-13) confirming the providing of a demonstration lesson to show respondent how to control his classroom. She indicated that students had been given exercise or "ditto" sheets and that it is not appropriate conduct for a teacher to give "dittos" to the students five days a week. Many of the students found the lessons to be boring and they wanted their classroom changed. She also identified a memo sent to respondent on March 29, 1990 (P-14). She observed that respondent was using ditto sheets rather than the literature book mandated by the school district, which respondent indicated was too difficult for the students. Ms. Rivers noted that the teacher's copy of the required book is annotated and suggests adjustments based upon the abilities of the students. As a result, Ms. Rivers came up with a list of alternate books which she set forth in her memorandum. She also stated that respondent did not indicate that the required literature book was too difficult until the dittos that respondent repeatedly gave to the students were questioned by Ms. Rivers.

Ms. Rivers identified respondent's Annual Evaluation Report of June 1990 (P-15). Respondent's overall rating in this report was unsatisfactory because the items listed as unsatisfactory on the part of respondent were consistently unsatisfactory throughout the school year. Ms. Rivers testified that there was no effort made by respondent to improve or change his behaviors. The areas needing attention or improvement were that the students were not paying attention in class, the teacher was not paying attention to the students, the students were bored with their class and were cutting classes, the students' expectations from class were low, the students lost interest and many were failing, respondent failed to investigate techniques for effective classroom discipline and management and he failed to engage in extracurricular activities. Ms. Rivers stated that there was no follow-through by respondent on her suggestions. She recommended a refresher course on new teaching techniques. The second page of the Annual Evaluation is a Professional Improvement Plan (PIP) for the upcoming year, which is developed between the teacher and the supervisor. This suggested improvements in respondent's skills and the timeline when the improvements were to be completed.

Ms. Rivers testified that after the beginning of the next school year in September 1990, she wrote a memo to respondent reminding him that student writing samples were to be submitted to her. She explained that a certain number of student writing samples must be submitted and that this is a district policy. However, no writing samples were submitted by respondent. She identified a follow-up memo of October 15, 1990 (P-17), which reminded respondent of his failure to submit writing samples. None were ever submitted.

Ms. Rivers identified a memo of October 17, 1990 (P-18), regarding respondent's lesson plans and the Board directives that were provided to respondent. Subsequently, respondent did not submit lesson plans to her satisfaction, and in some instances the elements required of lesson plans were missing. She indicated that lesson plans are due every payday and that respondent repeatedly failed to submit lesson plans on time (P-19 and P-20). Eventually, respondent requested a sample incorporating elements of a proper lesson plan, and she provided this sample to him in a memo of November 15, 1990 (P-21). She indicated that parts of his lesson plans were consistently missing.

Ms. Rivers testified to an informal observation on November 19, 1990 (P-22), at which time she observed that graffiti was located in respondent's classroom bulletin boards, there were writings with magic marker around the room, and that the room was very depressing. In addition, there were students walking around the classroom and there was disruptive classroom behavior on the part of some of the students. She spoke to respondent afterwards concerning these items but no subsequent improvement was made or even attempted by respondent.

Ms. Rivers testified that on November 19, 1990, she sent a memo to respondent indicating that the writing samples due in September 1990 had not yet been provided (P-23). She also indicated that it is mandated by the school district that a practice High School Proficiency Test (HSPT) be given for diagnostic purposes to determine student needs. She sent a memo to respondent on November 20, 1990. She testified that respondent never gave a practice test to his students and never gave the results of such a test to her (P-25).

Ms. Rivers testified to an observation report of November 20, 1990 (P-26). On that occasion, respondent was excessively late. When he arrived he used a ditto for the lesson. During the lesson two girls were talking and one of the girls was combing the other girl's hair. When the respondent said nothing to them, Ms. Rivers admonished the girl. She felt that this should have been the responsibility of respondent. When respondent handed out the dittos, a student in the classroom said "We have had this ditto a million times." Ms. Rivers testified that she then examined the ditto and recognized it as one that had been handed out to this class before. She also indicated that she had previously recommended getting the students interested and not just handing out a ditto. She concluded that respondent had failed to use any of the strategies which she had suggested, and that he used exactly the same ditto three times in a row. In the post-observation conference when this was discussed, respondent listened and signed the report but did not state he would use any of the discussed strategies.

Ms. Rivers testified that on November 26, 1990, she again wrote a memo to respondent concerning the fact that his lesson plans were late (P-27). She stated that it was very rare for her to receive lesson plans from respondent when they were due. She also testified that respondent never came to her and to give any explanation or reasons for his failure to submit lesson plans on time.

Ms. Rivers testified that on November 12, 1990, she sent a memo to respondent listing various areas of concern (P-28). However, she still did not receive lesson plans from respondent on time and he did not comply with the memo or address any of the concerns.

Ms. Rivers testified to an informal observation on December 2, 1990 (P-29), when she saw a female student sitting on respondent's desk during class. There was no instruction going on at the time and students were socializing. A student was playing in respondent's hair. Another informal observation was conducted on December 3, 1990 (P-30), and Ms. Rivers found the class to be so noisy that the noise could be heard in the hall. She went into the classroom and found that respondent was present. She felt that this disruptive class behavior should have been controlled by respondent.

Ms. Rivers testified that on December 10, 1990, she again gave respondent a memo concerning his failure to submit lesson plans (P-31). He never explained the reason for his failure to do so and never provided the lesson plans. She sent another memo on the same date (P-32), in which she again reminded respondent that he failed to provide writing samples for September, October, November, and December, 1990. She also testified that on December 13, 1990, she conducted an informal observation of respondent (P-33) at which time she saw classroom chairs in disarray, books thrown about the classroom, no student work on exhibit, no posters, and nothing to enhance the learning environment. The students were disruptive and were walking, talking, playing, and socializing during class. Respondent was tardy to class in the first period and she was in the hall and saw him arriving late. She also testified that by memo of January 7, 1991 (P-34), she again reminded respondent that his lesson plans had not been submitted. However, they were not submitted by respondent after this memo. She also identified a memo of January 8, 1991 (P-35), reminding respondent that at least four writing samples were due and that he had submitted none. She again sent respondent a memo on January 21, 1991, reminding him that he failed to submit lesson plans (P-36). Another memo with respect to lesson plans was sent to respondent on February 4, 1991 (P-37).

Ms. Rivers testified that she conducted an informal observation on February 18, 1991 (P-38). Respondent was late for class and the classroom was noisy. The students were not responding to respondent's lesson, they were not paying attention, and respondent did nothing to get the students to pay attention. Ms. Rivers also testified to an informal observation on February 19, 1991 (Exhibits P-39), in which she observed disruptive classroom behavior. This was the first period and when she went into the class, the teacher was not there on time. As a result, the students were uncontrolled and disruptive.

Ms. Rivers testified to a formal observation of respondent which she conducted on February 20, 1991 (P-40), in which respondent's overall rating was unsatisfactory. She indicated that there were serious areas of concern which had not been addressed by respondent, including poor classroom discipline, classroom atmosphere, the classroom physical environment, and the teaching strategies used by respondent. During the observation, respondent handed out a ditto sheet without adequate preparation and without explaining the basis or reasons for the ditto sheet or lessons. There was no teacher direction or control. The strategies that Ms. Rivers previously suggested that respondent use to control the classroom and to direct the lesson were not used by him. She did not see any effort by respondent to employ these strategies as recommended by her. The respondent's activity in the classroom was inconsequential and lacked meaning to the students. There was no relationship of his activities to the building of writing skills. The ditto was performed by the students within a few minutes and without giving it any importance. There were no lesson plans visible and the literature book was underused. She felt that the students were not being prepared to take the HSPT. There was excessive use of dittos and the students complained to her about the class being boring and about the use of dittos. She indicated that the literature book is district-oriented and it must be used to prepare the students to take the HSPT. After this observation, Ms. Rivers met with respondent and went over the observations and suggestions. Respondent refused to sign the observation report. He also continued to fail to comply with the due dates for the lesson plans. (P-40).

Ms. Rivers testified that she sent the memo of February 25, 1991 (P-41), to respondent reminding him that five writing samples were due and had not been submitted. Respondent did not explain the delay in providing these. Another memo dated March 11, 1991 (P-42), again reminded respondent that he failed to provide lesson plans. He did not submit these or explain the delay. Another memo with respect to unsubmitted lesson plans and writing samples was sent to respondent on March 25, 1991 (P-43).

Ms. Rivers testified that she gave respondent an Annual Evaluation Report in June 1991 (P-44). She considered respondent's overall rating to be unsatisfactory because of the unsatisfactory areas observed during the entire school year. There was a lack of effort on the part of respondent to improve, to motivate students, to maintain student decorum, and there was a failure by respondent to comply with Board of Education directives and requirements. She recommended that respondent's employment be discontinued because she felt she had done all that she could to motivate respondent to teach students. She had made herself available to assist respondent and had offered the resources of the district, and in response respondent did not use the resources and made no effort to improve. He failed to have the attention of the class focus on him, failed to give adequate direction to the students, and failed to supervise students. His students cut class at will and disrupted classes. Respondent never addressed the students' discourtesy, rudeness, or disruptions. She made suggestions as to strategies and they jointly developed a professional impprovement plan (PIP). However, he failed to motivate his students, failed to deal with or treat the students based on their ability or skill, and there were excessive failures in his classes. In addition, respondent was made aware of disciplinary procedures available to him to deal with problem students, but he rarely used them.

Ms. Rivers testified that the English Department held meetings in September, 1991 (P-45A) and October, 1991 (P-45), during which they discussed innovative teaching strategies, the district requirement that homework be required of all students, and the requirement that lesson plans must be up-to-date and visible on the teacher's desk at all times. She indicated that respondent attended these meetings and he signed-in. In addition, a pacing guide was established by the district to assist teachers. At the November meeting (P-45C), strategies were discussed that required teachers and students to work together. The attendance sheet for that meeting indicated respondent attended. Ms. Rivers also identified a package of documents which she compiled to show how to get students to develop and improve their study habits, and these were handed out to the teachers (P-45D). There was also a discussion regarding students' study skills and teachers were requested to take steps to instill good study habits in the students (P-45E). In addition, the school district established guidelines for teachers' performance (P-45F). This document was distributed to all teachers on the very first meeting in September 1991, and lists what the principal expected of all teachers. A second copy of this was given to respondent by Ms. Rivers, after she observed the starkness of his classroom (P-45G). Additional documents given to respondent as well as to all the English teachers were referred to and identified by Ms. Rivers (Exhibits P-45H and P-45I). She also provided an HSPT method for scoring of the test and indicated that it was important for the teachers to understand this in order to require students to write during the year (P-45J). Teachers were provided with materials discussing cooperative learning methods, where students are placed in a group and everyone is assigned a task. She indicated that this increases participation and motivation (Exhibits P-45L).

Ms. Rivers testified that by memo dated September 26, 1991 (P-46), she advised respondent of a preobservation conference and indicated that a number of items were discussed. This was given to respondent to point out the areas to be discussed and observed. These included developing proper rapport with students because she felt that respondent needed to develop better control over the students. In addition, there were suggestions as to how to improve respondent's instruction techniques. Ms. Rivers felt that respondent was not using proper techniques to keep the students interested and involved. In addition, she did not see any of the suggested techniques being used. She also recommended class activities that encouraged student responsiveness and leadership because his student involvement was very low.

Ms. Rivers sent a memo to respondent on October 4, 1991 (P-47), advising respondent that she had reviewed his lesson plans and indicated that the plans he submitted did not utilize the course outline established by the district to be used throughout the district. Every ninth grader was to be responsible for the outlined subject matter and the supervisors were required to check to see if the lesson plans complied with the course outline. When she later checked she found no indication that respondent was using the course textbook in his lesson plans. She continued to observed him using the grammar dittos.

Ms. Rivers testified that on October 7, 1991, she conducted a formal observation of respondent (P-48). The classroom seating was out of order and the seats were arranged by students so as to sit next to friends. There was no student work displayed and no motivation. Some of the lights in the classroom were out and it was not a pleasant environment. There were no posters and no indication that it was an English classroom, although espondent was in this particular classroom for five classes each day. This class did not start promptly and students were walking around, congregating and socializing. Once the class was started there was no serious concern for time on task. Respondent failed to demonstrate a wholesome rapport with the students. When respondent walked into the room, the students ignored him and he was not recognized as an authority figure. He failed to use a variety of materials for instruction but simply used a ditto. There was no effort to use these materials to meet the varying needs of individual students. His lesson plans were not available and he passed out the dittos to the students without discussing them. The students answered the dittos in a haphazard way and showed no concern about how their responses were completed. Ms. Rivers commented that respondent was not concerned about student seating, that one student had a hat on, and that there was congregating of students. There was no concern on respondent's part to deal with this. The lesson on the board was appropriate for second graders and not tenth graders. The work on the ditto was not challenging and if the students asked respondent for the answers to the questions on the ditto, he simply gave them the answers.

Ms. Rivers testified that respondent failed to submit student writing samples which were due on October 4, 1991 (P-49).

Ms. Rivers testified that she sent a memo to respondent on October 21, 1991, because she saw no effort on respondent's part to incorporate the course outline required by the district into his lesson plans (P-51). She sent a memo on October 23, 1991 (P-53), asking respondent to use the course outline and pacing guide and she reviewed his subsequent lesson plans and saw no evidence of any attempt to comply with these district requirements. She indicated that she did not consider respondent's students to be hard-core discipline problems. The students are grouped by basic skills and she did not observe the same conduct by students in other classes.

On cross-examination, Ms. Rivers indicated that 80 percent of the students required a basic skills class, since 80 percent are unable to pass the HSPT. Most come into reading a year or two below grade level. Separate teachers teach basic skills and, in essence, they are elementary school teachers.

The English I or ninth grade course subject areas including grammar and literature. The student must become proficient in certain skills in the texts. There is no single grammar text but there is a series of texts. The mandate is to teach grammar to the students through literature rather than through isolated grammar studies. One of the criteria in selecting the literature book was its ability to teach grammar through literature. The literature book was first used starting in the 1990-91 school year. Prior to the 1990-91 school year, texts were generated by the Board of Education. The average class size was 25 or less. The course outline is a separate outline promulgated by the school district.

Ms. Rivers testified that the policy of the school district is to teach grammar based on writing. The teacher must gear lessons to the needs of the students. The literature course outline covers various skills required by the HSPT. Activities for gifted students and for slower students are included in the course outline. Every student has a literature book and the needs of the students are assessed by having them write a writing sample and by reviewing this.

Ms. Rivers acknowledged that there are problems with student attendance and that the current goal is eighty percent attendance. She indicated that there has been an improvement but that 40 to 50 percent attendance is not correct.

Ms. Rivers indicated that while she eventually received respondent's lesson plans, they were not provided on the dates they were due. The district mandates that every teacher have lesson plans and they are due to be submitted to a supervisor every payday. The purpose is to determine what is being taught and how it aligns with the course outline. Each lesson plan must have goals, objectives, procedures, activities, and homework in order to achieve the goals of the lesson. There is Board of Education directive requiring lesson plans.

Ms. Rivers indicated that in Newark, homework has always been a mandate, since it is one of the methods used to assist teachers in instruction. A bulletin was issued with respect to mandatory homework, although she is not sure when it was issued.

With respect to respondent's lesson plans, Ms. Rivers testified that they are reviewed by her and initialed to indicate her review. If there is no comment, the lesson plan is approved. If there is a comment, a note is given to the teacher. If the plans are handed in at the end of the year, they are given to the main office. Respondent's plans do not appear to have been submitted to the main office because they were never submitted to her.

Ms. Rivers acknowledged that most of the classrooms are shared and there is usually someone else in the same classroom at different times during the day. There are established procedures for the care and use of materials and equipment in the classroom.

Ms. Rivers was generally cross-examined with respect to her evaluations. She indicated that on October 11, 1989 (P-1), the overall lesson was not satisfactory and she was dissatisfied with student behavior on that day. She advised respondent to call the parents of a particular student who was a troublemaker, but she does not know if he called the parents. The student was never brought to her attention again by respondent and she assumes that the problem in class was rectified.

Ms. Rivers testified that teachers are not required to address problems in the hallway after the bell rings. The teacher should attempt to get his students from the hallway into the classroom and that on occasion a teacher may be required to marshall students. However, she never observed respondent gathering students. A teacher is not responsible for security. She did acknowledge that there are hall sweeps where students who are not in class are gathered .

Ms. Rivers indicated that with respect to writing samples, she expected to receive eight of them from respondent and actually got only one sample. A teacher is supposed to maintain two or three writing samples per student per week.

Ms. Rivers was cross-examined regarding her observation of respondent on January 24, 1990 (P-6). She indicated that respondent handed out an activity sheet containing typed paragraphs and one of the students was directed to read it orally. However, the others students were not paying attention. Respondent then started to ask questions, to which the students gave oral responses. The remaining questions were given for homework or for independent work. No other materials were used that day.

Ms. Rivers indicated that she made the comment on the memo of January 29, 1990 (P-7), because a high percentage of respondent's lesson plans related to grammar and not enough were related to the literature portion of the course work. She also indicated that respondent started class by taking attendance of students. She indicated that attendance must be taken on a daily basis but not necessarily at the beginning of the class.

Ms. Rivers testified that the zero period class (P-9) is strictly voluntary and is a makeup class for students who missed an English class. Because respondent failed to show up for this class he did not continue to teach it. Ms. Rivers also stated that she did not observe the same kind of student conduct and disruptions in other classes and in the hallways as she observed in respondent's class.

Ms. Rivers testified that the union contract states that a teacher may request a demonstration lesson (P-13). She also recalls that respondent was advised to use the literature book "Adventures in Reading," which is designed for ninth grade students. It can be taught to students who are a little above and a little below grade and there are supplemental materials used by the English Department. The book has an array of materials arranged in difficulty from sixth through tenth grade. Ms. Rivers recalls that she did not observe respondent teaching literature-related activities at all or very little. There was concern about respondent not teaching literature, but nothing raising this concern is listed on any evaluation form.

Ms. Rivers testified that Bulletin 32 (P-18) was issued to all high schools and the district was reinforcing the proper procedure for instructional objectives. She indicated that respondent had the ability to prepare lesson plans in objective terms but he was not consistent. On occasions he prepared a plan which was in proper form but then would go back to his old habits.

Ms. Rivers testified that with respect to her November 20, 1990 observation of respondent (P-26), he gave the students a ditto relating to a grammar exercise which she recalled seeing previously.

Harry Laub, School District Director of Reading and Language Arts testified in this matter. He testified to his educational background and experience. He indicated that he was called in to evaluate respondent because the school principal wanted an outside opinion. He made an observation of respondent on November 20, 1991 (P-71). He found the classroom disorganized with the seats in no formal arrangement. The bulletin board was empty and unwashed. There was no attempt by respondent to give instruction to the students. The students were walking around the room and there was no direction given to them by respondent. Respondent gave the students a ten question multiple choice test which was a 15 minute test, but the students were given 40 minutes to complete the test. There were no instructions given about the test and the students were not taking the test seriously. The test was given as an open book test and it should not have been open book. There was no give and take between respondent and the students, there was no questions of the students, no introduction of the lesson to the students, and no motivation given to the students by respondent. Mr. Laub indicated that this was the first year of a new literature series book and an outline guide had been developed. Respondent was doing the first or second story in the book and this should have been completed in September of the school year rather than in November. When he was asked to provide his lesson plans and study guide, respondent indicated that they had been left home. There was no attempt by respondent to engage the students and the students were not given any directions as far as lesson implementation. Mr. Laub's overall rating of respondent was unsatisfactory

Mr. Laub indicated that the Committee on Curriculum selected the literature book and this book was to be used by all grade nine students. On cross-examination, he acknowledged that a significant percentage of the students were reading below grade level. He acknowledged that there had been a problem with getting student programs going for the first several weeks of the school year. However, he did not know if there was a problem distributing the literature books. Only 3 of the 15 students in the class brought the textbook with them to class. The book was being utilized by respondent, but not efficiently.

Mr. Laub testified that the building principal was very general in his comments requesting this observation, and he was not aware of any charges pending against respondent. Respondent was not attending to clerical duties at the beginning of class but simply handed out the test. He observed students wander in and talk to some friends and walk out. Respondent allowed this to occur and did not discipline any students. He indicated that despite respondent's request for a demonstration lesson, he did not provide it because it is inappropriate for an outside teacher to come in and do so. On redirect examination, Mr. Laub indicated that he would have expected the students to progress beyond the first or second story in the literature text by November of the school year.

Doris Culver, who was the Principal of University High School at the time of the hearing, testified that when she was Vice Principal at Central High School she evaluated respondent both with informal and formal observations. She conducted an observation of respondent on November 28, 1989 (P-59). The students were seated wherever they wished in the classroom and there was no attempt by respondent to engage the students in their lesson. There was no order in the class when the students should have been actively engaged in the lesson. The bulletin board was bare. The teacher handed out a homework sheet and she indicated that this was not an effective use of time. The students were not involved with the lesson but respondent took no action to have them involved. There was no positive relationship, but merely a handing out of material. The curriculum guide was not used. She gave respondent unsatisfactory ratings in lesson implementation because none of the required activities were engaged in by the respondent. Her overall evaluation of respondent was unsatisfactory. She indicated that direct classroom instruction should have occurred during this observation but instead the students were doing homework. The lesson was not challenging to the students and the students were not involved.

Ms. Culver testified to a second announced observation of respondent which took place on January 17, 1990 (P-60). She observed some student work on the bulletin board but the lesson implementation had not changed. Not all students were involved in the class and class time was not used effectively. There was no attempt on the part of respondent to engage the students and there was no exchange between teacher and student. There was no indication that respondent was using the curriculum guide, and he merely handed out worksheets. There was no attempt by respondent to motivate students to become involved. A student was disrupting the class and respondent permitted her to continue. In addition, it was not clear to the students what was to be done by them. The students were disengaging themselves from the class but the teacher did nothing about this. Homework is a mandate from the school district but none was given by respondent to the students. Respondent simply distributed materials to the students and gave no direction or follow-through. Her overall rating of respondent was unsatisfactory.

On cross-examination, Ms. Culver indicated that respondent did not refuse to follow her suggestions and he was not insubordinate to her. However, he did not implement her suggestions and effective classroom instruction did not occur. Only 8 or 9 of the 12 to 20 students were present. The plan book was present. Respondent had the information available to present a lesson but did not present it in an efficient manner.

Carl L. Gregory, Principal of Central High School testified that at the beginning of the 1990-91 school year, all teachers and students had been provided schedules and that there had been no delay in giving out materials at the beginning of the year. All teachers were advised that they are to be at their door between classes and on February 9, 1990 (P-66), respondent failed to comply with this directive. He indicated that on at least five or ten occasions respondent was not at the door to his classroom and was not in his classroom. He also indicated that on a number of occasions he would hear noise coming from respondent's classroom with no one supervising. At that point, he would go in to the classroom and restore order.

Mr. Gregory testified to an observation of respondent which he conducted on March 27, 1990 (P-67). The classroom was not neat and it was in disarray and classroom rules were not posted. There were no learning centers, no posting of student work and the bulletin board was bare. Some students had their heads down, other students were looking out the window, and other students came in late. Respondent had no control over the students. Respondent was seated in a chair at the front desk and students were walking around the room. Once the class period began, instruction by respondent should have begun, but it did not. Respondent handed out an exercise and the students were finished with it in two or three minutes. Respondent waited 10 or 15 minutes during which time he should have been giving instruction to the students. Mr. Gregory indicated he saw no instruction during his observation. There was very little interaction by respondent with the students and respondent merely distributed dittos. Respondent did nothing about the students' not paying attention. Based on his observation during this lesson, Mr. Gregory felt that there was nothing done by respondent connected with the lesson plan and curriculum guide. There was no checking by respondent to see if the students understood the subject matter of the lesson. He gave respondent an overall unsatisfactory rating.

Mr. Gregory testified that a teacher should always check for student understanding in order to adjust the teaching methods and approach to the students. Respondent did not do so nor did he take any steps to correct student conduct. There was also no evidence of homework being given either the day before or the day of the observation. Giving a worksheet to the students would be appropriate if it were given with instructions but there was no instructions given by respondent. There was very little teaching going on in this class.

On cross-examination, Mr. Gregory testified that respondent was given a 90-day period to improve his performance (P-69). Respondent had the skills to teach but was he was not effective as a teacher. During the observations, respondent spent no time correcting student behavior and at no time did he address inappropriate behavior. He would do nothing to correct student behavior but would refer the students to others. Mr. Gregory was most concerned with respondent's ineffective teaching. He also viewed respondent's lesson plans and indicated there was nothing in them showing methodology, procedures, or homework. He recounted one incident when respondent was 20 minutes late getting to class. By way of explanation, respondent indicated that he was getting his paycheck.

Irene Miller Graves testified that she is the English Department chairperson at Westside High School. Respondent was a member of the staff at Westside from 1985 to 1988, when he left. She conducted an evaluation of respondent on June 10, 1987 (P-61), in which gave respondent an overall unsatisfactory rating. She indicated that respondent failed to take into account the individual needs and abilities of the students. He used one set of lesson plans for both ninth and tenth grade and there was no distinction made for student abilities. His instructional methods were not sufficient, and he simply distributed dittos. This method was both inefficient and insufficient. The only resources used by respondent were the dittos which he prepared. There was no use of textbooks or other resources. She observed students who were late, students who did not belong in the class, and students who were making noise outside of the class, all of which should have been taken care of by respondent but were ignored by him. Respondent failed to appraise his own teaching methods and failed to function as part of the school program. There was no contact by respondent with colleagues and no participation in school activities. Respondent needed improvement in a number of areas. He failed to motivate students. Students did not wait for instruction or direction but simply started working on the dittos which he handed out. There was no teaching taking place in his class. There was very little interest or concern shown on the part of respondent. He spoke in a monotone and walked around the room looking out the window. There was no attempt to engage his students or to capture their attention. It did not matter to him if the students were listening. With respect to punctuality, respondent was tardy 43 times the prior year and 51 times in the current year.

Ms. Miller testified to an observation she conducted of respondent on November 9, 1987 (P-62). The lesson consisted of four separate and totally unrelated concepts, there being no continuity or sequence. There was no purpose or objective to the lesson and the skills being taught did not relate to each other. The classroom was in disarray with no seating arrangement. Respondent made no attempt to administer control and did not address any classroom discipline problems in any way. The class began five or ten minutes late and respondent started class five or ten minutes after he arrived, which left only 20 minutes for instruction. Respondent failed to use anything other than a ditto, when there were additional materials and resources he could use. Respondent displayed a lack of interest in teaching methods or procedures and he failed to relate to differing student abilities. He provided no motivation to students. He failed to state the objective of the lesson and he provided no instruction, that is, there was no attempt to actually teach the students the concepts being dealt with in the ditto. Respondent also did not attempt to make use of any textbooks assigned for use by the students.

Ms. Miller made an observation of respondent on January 19, 1988 (P-63). On that occasion, some of the students arrived late but respondent failed to find out why and failed to administer discipline. Respondent also arrived late and he did other things before starting class. He failed to implement the lesson by failing to engage in instructional techniques and methods addressing the individual needs of students. A teacher is required to impart knowledge, therefore, the teacher must consider the students' abilities and needs, and respondent failed to do so. One student was listening to a portable radio which was against school regulations. The students did not know the title of the textbook and, according to one student, textbooks had not been assigned to them. While respondent was at the board writing instructions, the students were not paying attention but were working on the ditto. Respondent should have gotten the students' attention and explained the concepts he was dealing with. He failed to follow-up in order to assure that the students were getting a clear understanding of the concepts he was teaching.

Ms. Miller conducted an observation of respondent on February 29, 1988. She found the classroom disorganized and disorderly. There was no attempt to use the full 40 minutes of class time for teaching. Despite her prior recommendations, respondent again failed to use the assigned textbook and other resources. There was no attempt to use proper methods for implementing the lesson. A single prepared ditto lesson is not sufficient to meet the needs of all the students. Respondent had not made any attempt to incorporate the suggestions she had previously made to him into any of his lessons. There was an improvement by respondent in trying to focus on one area only. However, there was no indication by respondent as to the lesson objective and there was very little teaching taking place. Ms. Miller indicated that filling in information on a ditto is not teaching and there was no explaining, showing concepts, or instruction. Respondent was assigned the Arrivals textbook for use by his class, but he did not use it. He gave no advance directions or instructions as to what was required of the students to complete the dittos handed out. There was insufficient verbal communication between respondent and the students and he failed to engage the students.

Ms. Miller testified that on May 18, 1988, she provided to the respondent his Annual Evaluation (P-65), wherein she considered all observations made during the year. This indicated that there was no clearly established procedure on the part of respondent for planning or for considering the abilities of students. The only instructional method used by respondent was the ditto. There was no other teaching method, strategy, or technique used by him. There was no attempt by respondent to use resources or supplemental materials. The same types of discipline problems continued to occur even at the end of the year.

On cross-examination, Ms. Miller indicated that respondent was assigned to the ninth grade class, which is the lowest level in the school. She admitted that the students were probably reading on a fourth grade to seventh grade level and it was unlikely that any of them were reading on a eighth or ninth grade level. She indicated that in the 1986-87 school year the students were assigned an individual literature anthology to take home. The same was true in the 1987-88 school year, with each student having been assigned a separate textbook. These were distributed within the first two or three weeks of the school year. The teacher had the option not to use textbooks at the beginning of the school year. She cannot recall if the textbooks were given to respondent. She indicated that she reviewed respondent's lesson plan books and that her signature indicated her approval of the plans. The textbook was included in respondent's written lesson plans but she saw no textbooks being used during her observations. The dittos used by respondent appeared to be teacher-made. She admitted that there is nothing wrong with ditto method of instruction but other methods also should have been used. She acknowledged that respondent indicated he had to use dittos because the required materials were too difficult for the students.

Ms. Miller recalled that respondent referred some disciplinary problem students to her but respondent did not spend an inordinate amount of time on discipline. She indicated that respondent was late to school for 51 of the 180 school days based on documents provided to her. She also admitted that respondent was competent and had ability, and that he was knowledgeable. He had the requisite skills but was not performing in an efficient manner. She indicated that she never felt that respondent behaved in an insubordinate way or in an unbecoming manner during all of the time that he was her subordinate. She acknowledged that at some time during the year, a VCR and television were stolen and could not be used. On redirect examination Ms. Miller indicated that respondent did not make a serious attempt to incorporate all available materials in his teaching. There was no connection between the lesson and the skills trying to be taught.

Dr. Jean Sharp Adilifu testified that she became familiar with respondent when he was a teacher of English at Central High School. She performed observations and evaluations in early 1991 because it had come to her attention that there had been three years of unsatisfactory performances by respondent.

Dr. Adilifu conducted an observation and prepared a Teacher Observation Summary of respondent on January 23, 1991 (P-73). This was not a formal observation. The lesson and conduct of respondent were disjointed and unfocused. The students entered and left the classroom at will and were not provided any direction. The teacher's remarks were given in an off-handed manner with no pitch or tone to his voice. There was no connection to responses given to the teacher by students. Respondent chewed gum during this class, which she did not consider to be professional deportment, especially since his pronunciation was hampered by the gum in his mouth. She arrived at the beginning of the period and respondent arrived late. There was no immediate direction given by respondent to the students upon his arrival. Respondent had no lesson plans in written form. It was remarkable to Dr. Adilifu that the students were not defiant and that some were actually following directions. She spoke to respondent after the class. She felt that the respondent should assume the role of instruction leader and felt that there was a lack of professional behavior on his part. There were typographical errors in the material he supplied to the students. He only used a single instructional modality, which was a handout. She felt that the students needed verbal instruction, engagement in question and answers, and other directions.

Dr. Adilifu conducted an observation of respondent on March 21, 1991 (P-74). She found the teacher-controllable situations, including seating arrangement and orderliness, to be unsatisfactory. There was no display of student or teacher materials and no attempt to make the classroom learning-attractive. The respondent entered the class late and did not start promptly. There was no direction or time frame given to the students for the lesson. She observed a lack of substantive given-and-take between respondent and the students. Respondent did not use multiple teaching strategies but gave the students written work only. Respondent lacked a well-modulated voice and spoke in a detached monotone which lacked enthusiasm. There was minimal eye contact, minimal verbalization, and minimal qualitative teacher-student exchange. Respondent used no board-approved curriculum guide, instructional strategies, stimulation of students, or lesson plans for the lesson being addressed. The students were not paying attention to him. He simply remained at his desk during the class when he should have been actively engaged in teaching. Respondent's increment was denied based on his continued unsatisfactory performance (P-75). Based on the three years of unsatisfactory performance, tenure charges were filed.

On cross-examination, Dr. Adilifu indicated that she observed respondent twice. On March 21, 1991, she recalls that respondent gave no instructions to the students. He simply delivered a ditto to the students and thereafter did very little instruction. The students ushered respondent into the classroom by telling him that he had a visitor and he might want to come into the classroom. She does not know what respondent was doing outside of the classroom. After he came in he handed out preprinted information. He was involved only with imperative sentences for the entire period. The lesson plan book said that the lesson was to be for HSPT writing. She indicated that when she spoke to respondent afterwards respondent was not disrespectful and was not insubordinate toward her. She gave him suggestions and recommendations but indicated that these were not presented as direct orders. There was no failure to abide by orders given by her to respondent. She indicated that the suggestions she made to respondent were to cause him to perform in an efficient and satisfactory manner.

Carmela H. Pallotta testified that she is Vice Principal at Westside High School and she provided her educational background and experience. She was asked to evaluate respondent at Westside High School. She conducted an observation on December 3, 1991 (P-70), during which she was very confused about the subject of the lesson. The classroom environment was unsatisfactory because the students were calling out answers and banging on the file cabinets, and their unwillingness to behave properly and pay attention was not addressed by respondent. The classroom was completely bland and there was no evidence of any teaching activity. The lesson had no beginning, middle, or end and there was no organization to the lesson at all. At the conclusion of the class, the students ran out of the classroom before respondent could give a homework assignment. He did not attempt to communicate with the students and there was very little interaction. Respondent passed out a sheet of paper which did not match the classroom discussion. He failed to communicate with the students and would utter only two or three sentences. There were no lesson plans in sight and when she asked respondent for lesson plans, he did not answer. His lesson implementation was generally unsatisfactory because no lesson took place. Respondent left the room twice and returned and began handing out books, but gave no explanation. This was not a lesson. It consisted merely of 40 minutes of marking time and filling up space. The students had no books or pencils and some came in late.

Ms. Pallotta indicated it is not good teaching practice to have students shout out answers. Respondent passed out blue paper with no explanation and she could not understand what was going on. In addition, respondent is not supposed to leave the room during a class because it violates the teacher contract, and there was no reason for leaving the room. Almost all of the students were unprepared. Respondent sat at his desk and said very little, if anything. He asked undirected questions which were ignored by the students. She indicated that when one student was banging on the file cabinet and was disruptive, respondent did nothing, and eventually another student asked the disruptive student to stop. Students must understand the assignment and it is not teaching to simply to pass out a piece of paper. What took place in respondent's classroom was not teaching and respondent did not even bother to talk to the students. There was also no structure to the seating arrangement in class. She does not agree that respondent spent an inordinate amount of time disciplining students on the day of her observation. She felt that his conduct bordered on insubordination. The few words that he deigned to utter were not with a raised voice. The subject of the handout (attachment to P-70) was with respect to the lesson which should have been covered months prior. It did not match what respondent was saying during class, which should also have been studied months earlier. She indicated that respondent is a very bright man but she does not know if he has the skills to be an effective teacher. She felt that he was inefficient on December 3, 1991. When she questioned him afterwards about what happened in the classroom he did not answer, and he simply smiled at the Observation Report but did not read it.

Respondent testified that he has been employed as a teacher in the Newark school system for 20 years and holds a certificate as an English teacher. He testified that Ms. Rivers supervised him prior to October 1989, and that in 1987-1988 she provided him with satisfactory evaluations (R-40, R-41, R-42, and R-43). Respondent testified that Ms. Rivers would review his lesson plan book once every two weeks (R-1). He would hand in the lesson plan book to her every payday and she would return it the following Monday indicating her approval of the plans. On occasion, Ms. Rivers would hold onto the lesson plan longer. He recalls that there was one occasion when Ms. Rivers had not returned his plan book to him.

Respondent testified that the source of the requirement for teaching of grammar is found in the school district's Book of Course Proficiencies for English 1 (R-5) and for English 2 (R-7). The course proficiencies for English 1 (R-5) required that he teach grammar. Course proficiencies for English 2 is a separate document (R-7). He used these as far as planning and implementing his lessons. He indicated that Ms. Rivers was aware that he was using ditto forms to teach grammar, including the fundamentals of verbs (R-9). This ditto was consistent with course proficiencies. Ms. Rivers had no problem with his use of these materials, which he prepared. When the students used his materials discipline and interest were less of a problem. There was always a problem keeping the attention of the students because they all had reading deficiencies. As ninth grade students, they generally had a fourth or fifth grade reading level.

Respondent indicated that there were well over 100 proficiencies in the course proficiencies booklet (R-5) and that he compiled each of the ditto forms (R-46) by taking district books and materials and using them to try to cover at least four proficiencies each day. These forms could also be finished at home as homework if the students were unable to finish them in class. These forms used district textbooks for all pages except the answer sheet. Respondent also testified that he engaged in providing exercises by handing out dictionaries and having students use them (R-47).

Respondent testified that Ms. Rivers did not remain in his class for the entire period on October 11, 1989. A student was being disruptive and respondent admonished him a number of times. Ms. Rivers intervened, got into an argument with the student, and removed him. Therefore, she did not remain in the class for the entire period.

Respondent also testified that the exercise he used on January 24, 1990 (P-6), was given to a class that consisted of approximately six or seven students. He explained that when the exercise was provided cutting classes was a problem at Central High School (R-48). Respondent identified the absence list for a number of days starting with November 22, 1989 (R-27). He indicated that the Central Office prepares a list of absences every day and places them in the teachers' mailboxes. Absences have always been a problem and it is not an easy problem to solve. Respondent also identified lists of Lefts and Transfers, which is also prepared by the Central Office (R-28), and a Suspension List (R-29). He indicated that all of these interrupted the continuity of classes. Finally, he identified an Entry/Withdrawal Summary (R-26). With student absences, there were some days when no students would show up for a class.

Respondent admitted that he received a packet of memos regarding student absences (R-31). If a student arrived late for class, the student was to be allowed to come into the class. He always warned students as to the tardiness policies and admonished students afterwards. It had become a routine matter for students to come to class late. The Department chair, principal, and vice principals were supposed to be in the halls, but very often they were not. If they were there, the students disregarded their presence.

Respondent testified that hall sweeps were utilized from time to time. These were conducted during class time. The administrators were to deal with discipline and three to four minutes passing time between classes was permitted. However, hall sweeps are disruptive to the classes

Respondent testified that there were many last minute notices of changes in the daily schedule. He provided a number of copies of memos showing changes in the school schedule and shortening of classes (R-25). This interrupted the normal routine of the school day and many students used this as an opportunity to leave school early. This would occur once every two weeks.

With regard to the observation of January 24, 1990 (P-6), respondent testified that he asked Ms. Rivers for a demonstration of a directed reading lesson. He disagreed with her assessments and felt that they were not true. He did not understand the basis for the unsatisfactory ratings given to him.

Respondent addressed the observation of November 20, 1990 (P-26). He identified the worksheets for that class (R-49) and indicated that the students' writing skills were "pretty bad." However, he indicated his exercise was in line with and was consistent with course requirements. He recalled November 20, 1990, very well and there was much confusion in the halls and in the classrooms. He frequently remained in the hall to get the students into the classrooms. It is very possible that the students were combing each other's hair; however, he indicated that he delivered his lesson for that day.

Respondent addressed the observation report by Mr. Gregory dated March 27, 1990 (P-67), and Ms. Rivers' observation report of October 13, 1988 (R-40). He indicated that there was a similarity in exercises given to both classes involving verbs and verb tenses. On March 27, 1990, he had made copies of certain pages of the HSPT for an instruction technique and he was familiarizing students with prior tests. He believes his instructional techniques on that date were effective, that the students were motivated to pass the test in order to get a diploma, and that the students understood completely what he was doing. He indicated that the Post-Observation Conference report (P-7, paragraph VI.a.6) is contradicted by the policy to ignore tardiness unless it was dealt with later and that no student was to be denied access to the classroom. He felt that all of the concepts he was using for instruction that day were in accordance with curriculum guidelines and study guides. He does not know the factual basis for Mr. Gregory's unsatisfactory ratings and he testified that he made every attempt to comply with these items. He felt that the post-observation conference was very brief because Mr. Gregory was in a hurry. Mr. Gregory made the point that respondent had not made the lesson objective clear.

Respondent testified that Ms. Rivers' Observation Report of January 30, 1989 (R-42), the Observation Report of February 29, 1988 (P-64), and the Observation Summary of January 23, 1991 (P-73) all dealt with the same lesson on these three dates, which was imperative sentences. He identified the class work on the date of the observation of January 23, 1991 (R-56). This exercise required that the students write an imperative sentence, deal with outlining, pronouns, and antecedents. All of the concepts dealt with in the lesson are in line with the curriculum guides. He used the imperative sentence ditto for each of the three lessons on the different dates indicated. He felt that Ms. Rivers was very pleased by the lesson. The materials were drawn from district supplemental workbooks. He personally formulated the materials on imperative sentences.

Respondent addressed the Teacher Observation Report of February 29, 1988 (P-64), and in particular the unsatisfactory classroom environment and management. He explained that the classroom was dilapidated, windows were broken, the fixtures and desks were dented, beat up, old, and the room had not been painted in quite some time. With respect to teaching characteristics, he disagreed and felt that he handled the class pretty well. He felt that his teaching and lesson implementation were effective. He provided materials for the general level of the class, which was poor and was at a fourth or fifth grade reading level. He indicated that the suggestions for improvement mentions a lesson found at page 76 in Warriners English Grammar and Composition Third Course, which is a standard English textbook. He indicated that he used a similar exercise. However, students were not at grade level and he had to redesign the materials to get the concepts across to below-grade students. He was attempting to use effective techniques, he attempted to motivate the students, he questioned the students thoroughly throughout the lesson, and he attempted to have the students think independently. He denied that the students were unaware of the objective of the lesson and he indicated he gave the students examples as well as the ditto stating what was expected of the students. He indicated that he designed these materials to suit this lower level class. He testified that even the Arrivals textbook was too difficult for the students and that it was not applicable to a grammar lesson on the imperative sentence. Ms. Miller never told him he was insubordinate.

Respondent testified that if he was late arriving at class, it was because he had to use his passing time to change his room. He also indicated that if there is a disturbance in the hall, it is a judgment call whether the teacher should respond to the disturbance or report to the classroom. Administrators were assigned to various areas to keep the halls clear but many times administrators were not present and teachers had to perform this function. It was very rare that students were in the classroom with the starting bell. He acknowledged that if he ever commenced class late, it was because he was in the hall attempting to get students into the classroom.

Respondent testified that he disagrees with Dr. Adilifu's observation (P-73) in its entirety. He denies mumbling and asserted that the entire class could hear him. He denied the accuracy of this observation. He does not recall if he was four minutes late but indicated that it was always a problem getting students into the classroom. The material which he went over was the same material as the previous school day. He also indicated that when there is a visitor in the classroom, the students get edgy. He testified that workbooks had not been provided to the students and that he had to copy them. Respondent also indicated that the lesson plan book had been provided two weeks in advance but he felt he was not required to redo the plan book if he was not able to meet the objectives because of outside interruptions. He denied that seats were randomly arranged and denied that no lesson plans were present. He began class promptly and indicated that pacing guides did not come up until the next school year. He felt that his voice was loud and clear and that his directions were clear.

Respondent relied upon a Teacher Observation Report of May 6, 1985 (R-62), to indicate that he used the same or similar materials previously and his performance was found to be satisfactory. He also indicated that he was complying with the PIP of June 4, 1985, by developing exercises (R-63). He also relied upon an Instructional Survey of May 16, 1985 (R-64), with respect to dittos.

Respondent also relied upon an Annual Evaluation of June 17, 1986 (R-61) to show that his performance was satisfactory. He testified that he did nothing different in 1986, when he was evaluated as satisfactory, than what he did in subsequent years.

Respondent testified that he generally submitted lesson plans on time, although they may have been submitted late occasionally if he was absent. He felt that late submission of lesson plans was an exception. He also testified that Ms. Rivers never told him not to use the materials he used. He indicated that any time Ms. Rivers requested a change in the format of the lesson plans, he attempted to comply.

Respondent acknowledged receiving a memo from Ms. Rivers dated November 18, 1991 (R-18), with respect to student writing samples. Respondent testified that he obtained writing samples from the students, although he indicated it was very difficult to get the students to provide these writing samples (Exhibits R-12(a), R-12(b), R-12(c), R-12(d), and R-12(e)). He also provided copies of writing samples for ninth grade (Exhibits R-13(a) and R-13(b)). He also provided additional writing samples to satisfy the requirements for writing samples (Exhibits R-14(a), R-14(b), R-14(c), R-14(d), and R-14(e)). He additionally relied upon copies of book reports by students in response to handouts of the school district (Exhibits R-15(a), R-15(b), R-15(c), R-15(d), and R-15(e)). Students were assigned one book report per cycle, with four cycles in each school year. He also had the students write a friendly letter and indicated that more students responded to the friendly letter than to an open-ended essay, and that they responded better to a strongly specific exercise (Exhibits R-16(a), R-16(b), and R-16(c)). He indicated that mid-term essays are required as part of the mid-term grade and that the students were required to write about an aspect of a particular story (R-17)

Respondent testified that he introduced literature concepts little-by-little and that he would introduce something new and would also reinforce prior materials at the same time (R-10). Those students who were slow in class and could not complete the ditto would take it home as homework. He also identified samples of reading proficiency exercises level 2 and indicated that the better students used these in the 1988-89 school year, in the 1989-90 school year or later (R-8). He also identified random samples of exercises he used at Central High School geared to weaker students with weak reading ability at grades four to six levels (R-6). He used these materials and they were all taken from textbooks supplied by the district. He found and compiled these materials himself. There were changes and modifications to them and the strategies that worked were kept by him and those that did not work were changed by him.

Respondent identified an Observation Report on October 28, 1986 (R-38). He testified that he attempted to use Ms. Miller's recommendation as set forth in the Observation Report and his lesson plan book after this shows that he followed her comment to use Arrivals. He identified the materials he used during the October 11, 1989 observation (R-46). This material was the same as that which he used in prior years. With regard to the observation on November 17, 1989 (P-4), he identified the materials he used on that day (R-47). He indicated that it is possible that students engaged in irrelevant conversation at the beginning of the class. The job of the teacher is to get the students settled in and quieted down and to pay attention to the lesson. For this lesson he used a set of dictionaries provided by the district, the objective being to show the dictionary as an abundant source of general information.

Respondent next referred to the observation of November 28, 1989, by Ms. Culver (P-59). In general, he felt that the class was participating, that posters had been placed in the classroom, and that his instructional techniques were satisfactory. He was polite in the post-observation conference and he responded in writing by a memorandum on February 7, 1990 (R-55).

Respondent next testified concerning the observation on January 17, 1990 (P-60). The lesson that day dealt with finding evidence and focused on reading skills. He felt that the students participated very well and that all of the materials he used were in line with Board of Education curriculum guides and teacher guides. He feels that there is no factual basis upon which Ms. Culver could have concluded her unsatisfactory rating. The students responded to the lesson very well and his teaching effectiveness has been the same throughout his career.

Respondent addressed the Teacher Observation Report of March 27, 1990, by Mr. Gregory (P-67). He indicated that the lesson given that day was the same lesson as the prior year when Ms. Rivers gave him a satisfactory rating.

Respondent testified by indicating that Ms. Rivers' memo of March 29, 1990 (P-14), dealt with respondent's mentioning to Ms. Rivers that the assigned ninth grade text, Adventures in Reading, was too difficult for the students. Ms. Rivers suggested ten other textbooks. However, Ms. Rivers did not follow-up on the memo of March 29, 1990. It should be noted that it was the responsibility of respondent rather than Ms. Rivers to follow-up on this memo.

Respondent testified that there was no factual basis for the unsatisfactory rating in his Annual Evaluation of June 1990 (P-15). He testified that he used the same strategies and materials that he used the prior year. However, as a result of this evaluation, he attempted several different strategies. The supervisors made suggestions as to the use of materials, but did not require him to follow their suggestions. He denied that he engaged in any willful disregard of directives. He never refused to obey any order or directive and did not disregard Board of Education regulations or any law. He indicated that he complied with his PIPs.

Respondent testified with respect to the Observation Report of November 20, 1990 (P-26). He identified the materials used during the lesson on that day (R-49). He indicated that these materials involved diagrams to familiarize students with the characteristics of English verbs. This was part of the curriculum guides and criteria. He responded to this evaluation with a memo of December 10, 1990 (R-50). He indicated that very similar lessons were marked satisfactory in the prior school year by Ms. Rivers. He also indicated that on that date there was quite a bit of disruption in the halls and during the school day, and disruption has a negative effect on the lesson. He felt that he was involved in an effective use of time and in an effective lesson. He indicated that Ms. Rivers never provided him with a demonstration lesson, as requested by him in his memorandum. He acknowledged that Ms. Rivers did provide two demonstration lessons but not for the period one class.

Respondent testified that the Observation Report of March 21, 1991 (P-74), is factually incorrect because he was not engaged in imperative sentences on that date. He identified copies of answer sheets relating to the HSPT booklet to confirm this fact (R-57).

Respondent testified that the Observation Report of February 20, 1991 (P-40), indicates that the ditto sheet used that day was similar to numerous others seen by the observer on other occasions. Respondent denied using the same ditto over and over again. He testified that these ditto sheets or exercises are designed to be incremental. He denied that there was any factual basis for the unsatisfactory evaluation. The students responded very well to the exercises and they were consistent with the curriculum from district-provided books. He considered the suggestions made by Ms. Rivers. However, he indicated that beginning a class promptly is a serious problem throughout the high school. He also stated that because Ms. Rivers did not observe him using literature and other textbooks does not mean that he was not using them. Respondent also testified that classroom discipline problems are a fact of life for all teachers at Central High School.

Respondent testified that as to the Annual Evaluation Report of June 1991 (P-44), that he never told Ms. Rivers he would not comply with the recommendations. He was concerned about the level of performance by students but denied that there was any factual basis for the unsatisfactory rating. He denied that he willfully disregarded directives, that he committed insubordination, that he disregarded Board of Education procedures or law, or that he created a poor precedent.

Respondent testified that in the 1991-92 school year, he was subjected to four class changes from the tentative schedule given to him in spring of 1991 (R-68). There was a big scheduling "glitch" in September 1991, and many students had no schedules. The schedule was eventually worked out in the first week in October, but there was an enormous amount of confusion in the meantime. Ms. Roseta Holiday was in charge of resolving the scheduling problems. Subsequent to October 7, 1991, respondent was still getting schedule changes and there were also changes in the levels of classes. There was also no continuity in lesson planning and the Prentice Hall series of assigned textbooks had not been distributed until mid-October 1991. Students had not yet been assigned lockers. Prentice Hall was new to all English materials and it was not until October 1991, that a meeting was scheduled to discuss a course outline and pacing charts (R-69). He also indicated that there were in-service workshops with respect to the Prentice Hall materials to familiarize teachers with them in October, November, and December 1991. Thus, at the time of the observation of October 7, 1991 (P-48), respondent had been in the classroom about one week or less and he was required to use materials he had used previously because of this confusion. As of that date, it was not possible to use the Prentice Hall materials because they had not yet been given to students, and teachers were not yet familiar with them. Even so, the lesson went very well that day. Respondent identified an exhibit containing Prentice Hall materials together with updated class lists indicating that the class lists had only been finalized at that time (R-53). It was at this point that respondent began to incorporate the Prentice Hall materials into his classes.

Respondent testified as to the demonstration lessons provided to him pursuant to the union contract (R-22 and R-52). Ms. Rivers provided a demonstration lesson in a remedial class for students having difficulty with reading. The students' reactions were mixed and they read a story throughout the class period. However, they were disruptive during the class. Respondent indicated that he felt the demonstration lesson was irrelevant to Ms. Rivers' criticisms of his performance and he wrote a lengthy memorandum concerning this (R-23).

Respondent testified that the observation by Mr. Harry Laub on November 20, 1991, included a criticism to the effect that this lesson should have been taught much earlier in the school year. However, respondent indicated that when he and the students got the materials, he chose those materials that the students would have an easier time with. This was tenth grade but the students were far below the tenth-grade level. Mr. Laub was not aware of the practical problems experienced by Central High School. The students were having a difficult time with the materials and he tried to force the students to use the recommended materials but he was not successful. They could not manage the district materials with any degree of comprehension. He provided the students' responses with respect to the materials (R-58).

Respondent testified that during the observation by Ms. Pallotta on December 3, 1991 (P-70), the subject of the lesson would not have been unclear if Prentice Hall materials had not been used. He disagreed with this observation report in its entirety. He also indicated that he stepped out of the classroom to let another teacher into an adjoining classroom.

On cross-examination, respondent testified that he developed the exercise sheets or dittos because students could not handle the selected materials from the district-provided materials. The Journeys and Arrivals textbooks were not used because there were insufficient numbers of these books for each student. However, he denied that his expectations of the students was too low. He started at a low level and eventually tried to challenge the students. His strategy was to start where the student was capable of performing. There were varied levels of difficulties in the materials he provided. He testified that the photocopied materials worked well because this assured that each student would have a copy of the appropriate materials each day. Copies are acceptable to use if they are directed to a skill required by the students.

Respondent testified that he did not think it is possible to have the students progress one year. He does not know the cause of their low academic performance. He denied that he had a low expectation, just a realistic expectation. Many of the students came to school with problems and his expectation was to meet the student where he or she is and to move them as far as possible. He admitted that he used the imperative sentence lesson on grades nine, ten and eleven, but this was because all three grades consisted of students who were not functioning at grade level. He considered the imperative sentence lesson to be an introductory lesson.

With respect to writing samples that were due on September 19, 1990, he did not know if he submitted any writing samples that year because the assignments were not done by the students. As he continued to give this assignment for writing samples to the students, he got less and less cooperation. He admitted that he did not always submit writing samples and he admitted that he did not give either writing samples or corrected writing samples to the Department chair. He admitted that he gave writing assignments and got some writing samples from the students but did not submit them to Ms. Rivers. He identified corrected writing samples (R-14(a)).

Respondent testified that he used the assigned textbooks in a manner that the students could manage. He acknowledged that the observation of October 28, 1986 (R-38), of January 19, 1988 (P-63), and of February 29, 1988 (P-64) indicated that the use of dittos is not acceptable. However, he took the position that the dittos he used were taken from textbooks. Even though the evaluators all recommended against the use of dittos, and he was aware of this, he pointed out that dittos were copies of Board-approved materials.

Respondent disagrees with Ms. Culver's observation of November 28, 1989 (P-59), and her assessment of his performance as well as her assertion that he failed to hand out homework. He eventually indicated that he disagrees with all his evaluators and he should not have been rated unsatisfactory.

With respect to the Prentice Hall textbook, Dr. Laub indicated that it was selected by the teachers in the school district. However, respondent stated that it was a very difficult textbook and the teachers from three or four high schools were aghast at its selection and said that it could not be used. However, the Board of Education wanted to have a uniform curriculum. He felt that the students could not manage the Prentice Hall textbook. His materials supplemented those of the Board and are designed to make it easier for the students to learn the concepts set forth in the curriculum.

Lula Mae Rivers was called as a rebuttal witness. She testified that she never observed respondent assisting in getting students out of the hallways. She explained that hall sweeps were to get lingering students into the classroom after the classes have started. This was not considered to be the responsibility of teachers but that of school administrators.

Ms. Rivers identified Adventures in Reading (P-80). She indicated that there is a range of reading levels and that all students could use this text with proper instruction. There are various strategies that could be used to match student levels with the text. She indicated that a sufficient number of books were available to be provided to all students and that there were no shortages. She did acknowledge that there are losses of copies of books every year.

Ms. Rivers testified that the reasons why she gave satisfactory evaluations to respondent in prior years and then unsatisfactory ratings in subsequent years was that at first, she was just getting to know respondent and trying to understand his teaching strategies. This takes a while and eventually she saw a deterioration in respondent's performance. He was arriving late and his encouragement of students was deteriorating. She saw too much grammar being taught in his classes and not enough focus on the rest of the curriculum. Providing grammar lessons without putting them into practice is not acceptable.

On cross-examination, Ms. Rivers indicated that the Adventures text was the only Board mandated textbook for Central High School. There were other resources but this was the specified textbook. She also indicated that she always gives the teacher and herself a chance to get to know each other before giving an unsatisfactory rating. She admitted to rating respondent satisfactory for the 1988-89 school year.

Irene Miller Graves testified that the Journeys textbook was ordered for those students who were reading below grade level. She disagreed that the abilities of the students vary. She indicated that she checked with the publishers to make sure that the text was not too difficult for below-grade readers. She indicated that the Arrivals text is designed for grades 2.5 to 5.6. She also indicated that there were a sufficient number of books available for all students.

Respondent testified to rebut the testimony of the rebuttal witnesses. He identified the two textbooks and indicated that he tried to use them but had very little success. He denied that Adventures in Reading (P-80) was a required textbook. Ms. Rivers gave him a curriculum booklet (R-72), which lists Adventures in Reading as a recommended text. He attempted to use Adventures in Reading but was not able to do so.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

The Commissioner of the Department of Education has jurisdiction to hear and determine all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The discipline of tenured school employees is authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, which generally provides that no tenured school employee shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation during good behavior and efficiency except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after a hearing.

The original charges in this matter which were certified by the school district on January 29, 1992, included a charge of inefficiency and a charge of unbecoming conduct. By a Partial Initial Decision dated September 21, 1992, in this matter, the undersigned granted respondent's motion to dismiss the inefficiency charge, but denied the dismissal of the unbecoming conduct charge. This was affirmed by the Commissioner of Education on October 21, 1992, and affirmed by the State Board of Education on February 2, 1993. Thus, the sole charge to be considered in this matter is whether respondent engaged in unbecoming conduct.

The tenure charges filed by respondent in this matter allege that respondent has engaged in conduct which is unbecoming of a teacher in that:

(a) Respondent spends inordinate amounts of time disciplining his students such that said students are deprived of effective instructional techniques and the proper environment for learning. (It is noted that this allegation was dismissed by the ALJ at the hearing.)

(b) Respondent has caused the administration to consume an inordinate amount of time seeking to address his conduct.

Respondent has willfully disregarded expressed and implied directives to conform his conduct to the level expected of teaching staff members.

Respondent has displayed insubordinate conduct, in that he has refused to obey the orders/directives by his superior(s) and/or department administrators who are entitled to give and have said directives obeyed.

Respondent's conduct and behavior evidence a complete disregard for board procedures and applicable law, and establishes a poor precedent for other teaching staff members of the school district.

Each of the above actions singularly constitutes conduct unbecoming of a teacher; however, the aggregate of the above actions evidences gross and harmful conduct unbecoming a teacher.

The legal and factual issues on remand of this matter are:

1. Whether, upon reexamination of the record of testimony and evidence in this matter, the school district has met its burden of establishing the truth of the charges of unbecoming conduct on the part of respondent by the correct standard of the preponderance of the credible evidence?

2. If, upon such reexamination, some or all of the charges are sustained, what is the appropriate penalty?

The essence of respondent's argument, as set forth in respondent's Brief and Reply Brief is that an examination of the proofs in this matter reveals that petitioner has failed to prove the above assertions by a preponderance of the evidence. Respondent argues that petitioner failed to prove that respondent caused the administration of the school district to consume an inordinate amount of time seeking to address his conduct. It is pointed out that none of the seven witnesses who testified against respondent mentioned spending an inordinate amount of time seeking to address his conduct. It is also observed that it not clear from the record whether the expenditure of inordinate amounts of time by supervisors and administrators is an element of proof in establishing unbecoming conduct.

Respondent additionally argues that the school district failed to establish that the respondent refused to obey the directives or orders of his superiors either expressed or implied. Respondent further argues that petitioner has failed to establish that respondent displayed insubordinate conduct by refusing to obey the orders/directives by his superiors and/or department administrators. In this regard, only one of the seven witnesses who testified in support of petitioner's case against respondent indicated in any way that respondent acted in an insubordinate manner. I generally agree with respondent's arguments as to these issues.

Finally, respondent argues that petitioner produced no evidence of gross and harmful conduct on the part of respondent. In order to determine whether the petitioner met the elements of this charge, it is necessary to discuss what is intended by the term, "unbecoming conduct".

There is no single definition of the term unbecoming conduct. In Laba v. Newark Board of Education, 23, N.J. 364, 384 (1957), it was made clear that the touchstone of the charge is a teacher's fitness to discharge the duties and functions of one's office or position. See also, In re Tenure Hearing of Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 28-29 (App. Div. 1974), certif. denied, 65 N.J. 292 (1974). There are numerous cases in which specific conduct was found to be unbecoming conduct. For example, the use of physical force by a teacher to maintain discipline was held to be unbecoming conduct. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967). A teacher with an uncontrollable temper who verbally and physically abused students was found to have engaged in unbecoming conduct. Matter of Tenure Hearing of Cowan, 224 N.J. Super. 737, 741 (App. Div. 1988).

Outside the field of education, unbecoming conduct on the part of public employees is conduct which adversely affects the moral or efficiency of the agency of which the employee is a member, which has a tendency to destroy public respect for government employees and confidence in the operation of governmental services, or which violates an implicit standard of good behavior. City of Asbury Park v. Dep't. of Civil Service, 17 N.J. 419 (1955). A finding of unbecoming conduct does not require that any specific rule or regulation have been violated but may be based primarily on a violation of an implicit standard of good behavior. In re Emmons, 63

N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960); Newark v. Massey, 93 N.J. Super. 317, 323 (App. Div. 1967).

In an educational setting, unbecoming conduct has been held to be demonstrated by a series of incidents indicating a pattern of behavior, or by a single incident if sufficiently flagrant. See Redcay v. State Board of Education, 130 N.J.L. 369 (Sup. Ct. 1943), affirmed o.b. 131 N.J.L. 326 (E.&A. 1944). In that matter, a school principal was found guilty of the charges of inefficiency, incapacity, insubordination, lack of cooperation, unfitness and conduct generally unbecoming a principal. See, 128 N.J.L. 281, 282 (Sup. Ct. 1942). The court stated:

> Unfitness for a task is best shown by numerous incidents. Unfitness for a position under the school system is best evidenced by a series of incidents. Unfitness to hold a post might be shown by one incident, if sufficiently flagrant, but it might also be shown by many incidents. Fitness may be shown either way. (130 N.J.L. at 371.)

As was previously indicated, in order for the charging party in a tenure hearing to prevail, the truth of the charges must be established by a preponderance of the credible evidence. In re Phillips, 117 N.J. at 575; Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. at 149; In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. at 560. It should be noted that in the Polk case, the fact finder, as an additional factor to determine the truth or falsity of the charges, examined and compared the testimony of all of the witnesses and determined that they shared a common core in their factual allegations. Id. at 558

The proofs submitted by petitioner in this matter were extraordinarily detailed and extensive and required considerable analysis in order to reach certain conclusions. There were 16 formal observations in this matter made between October 11, 1989, and December 3, 1991 (Exhibits P-1, P-6, P-26, P-40, P-48, P-71, P-59, P-60, P-67, P-61, P-62, P-63 and P-64). These 16 formal observations were conducted by seven different individuals, including five by Ms. Rivers, one by Mr. Laub, two by Ms. Culver, one by Mr. Gregory, four by Ms. Miller, two by Dr. Adilifu and one by Ms. Pallotta. In a number of significant respects the testimony of these observers and the writings which document their observations are consistent with each other in many of their conclusions as to respondent's deficiencies. In 14 of the 16 formal observations, respondent was given unsatisfactory ratings because he was found to be unsatisfactory in disciplining and controlling student behavior. In 12 of these observations respondent was given unsatisfactory ratings because of unsatisfactory teaching or no teaching whatsoever. On 11 of the formal observations respondent was given unsatisfactory ratings for unsatisfactory lesson implementation or no lesson implementation whatsoever. In ten of the observations respondent was given unsatisfactory ratings based on his failure to use either mandated or recommended textbooks or other resources rather than an exercise sheet or "ditto". Eight of these observations rated respondent unsatisfactory based on his failure to attempt to motivate his students. Seven of the observations gave respondent unsatisfactory ratings because of poor classroom atmosphere or environment. In six of these observations, respondent was reported to have been late either arriving in class or late in actually starting the class. In five of the observations respondent was given unsatisfactory ratings based upon his lack of interest or concern in dealing with his class, his failure to have his lesson plans available and his failure to respond to or to follow prior recommendations or suggestions for his improvement as a teacher. The remainder of the unsatisfactory ratings generally dealt with the findings that respondent's lesson objectives or subject matter was unclear, that he did not use his teaching time effectively, or that he gave no homework assignment to the students as mandated by school district policy. One of the observations indicated that respondent reused a ditto which he had previously used for the same class.

The Annual Evaluations given to respondent (Exhibits P-15, P-44 and P-65) each rated respondent as unsatisfactory and each one generally found the same or similar deficiencies. Ms. Rivers indicated that as to respondent's Annual Evaluation Report of June 1990 (P-15), his overall rating was unsatisfactory because the items listed as unsatisfactory were consistently unsatisfactory throughout the school year. She explained that there was no effort made by respondent to improve or change his behaviors. Ms. Rivers also testified that she gave respondent an unsatisfactory Annual Evaluation Report in June 1991 (P-44) because of the unsatisfactory areas observed during the entire school year. There was a lack of effort on the part of respondent to improve, to motivate students, to maintain student decorum, and there was a failure by respondent to comply with Board of Education directives and requirements. Ms. Miller testified as to respondent's Annual Evaluation of May, 1988 (P-65). She considered all observations made during the year and indicated that respondent had no clearly established procedure for planning or for considering the abilities of students, the only instructional method used by respondent was the ditto and there was no other teaching method, strategy, or technique used by him. There was no attempt by respondent to use resources or supplemental materials.

The testimony and evidence concerning each of the annual evaluations was consistent. The same types of student discipline problems which occurred at the beginning of each school year continued to occur even at the end of the year. It was indicated that there was a lack of discipline and control of the students by respondent, there was a use of dittos as the only resource with no other materials, teaching methods, strategies or techniques being utilized, and there was a failure to use effect classroom teaching techniques. It was also indicated that respondent failed to follow the directives and requirements of the school district, which included a failure to use assigned text books, and that he failed to use resources or supplemental materials other than the dittos. Finally, it was generally indicated that there was a failure on the part of respondent to make any efforts to improve his teaching methods or to follow through on suggestions and recommendations for the improvement of his teaching.

Petitioner also relied upon 12 "Informal Observations" made of respondent on a casual basis between October 1989 and February 1991. These Informal Observations apparently involve incidents or situations observed by a supervisor or a staff member. The supervisors followed the practice of placing the informal observation writing so as to notify the staff member of the incident, deficiency or problem, and so as to keep a written record of the observation. There was no indication in the record what procedure is available to a staff member who disagrees with the contents of an Informal Observation. It is presumed that upon receipt of an Informal Observation, the staff member has the opportunity to respond in writing either disputing the contents of the observation or explaining the circumstances under which the incident occurred. In this matter, Ms. Rivers testified as to 11 of the Informal Observations which she made (Exhibits P-3, P-4, P-8, P-10, P-12, P-22, P-29, P-30, P-33, P-38, and P-39), and Mr. Gregory testified as to one of the Informal Observations (P-66). Each of these informal observations generally included more than one deficiency which was observed by the supervisor. With respect to the Informal Observations testified to by Ms. Rivers and Mr. Gregory in this matter, eight of them related to incidents in which they found that respondent exercised no discipline and control of the students in his classes. Five of the informal observations generated by Ms. Rivers related to incidents of lateness on the part of respondent, and the one observation generated by Mr. Gregory reported an incident when respondent failed to be at his classroom door in accordance with district policies. Four of the Informal Observations related to failures on the part of respondent to follow up on recommendations and suggestions for the improvement of his teaching methods and four related to his failure to provide lesson implementation and direction to his classes. Three related to problems of classroom appearance and one involved respondent's failure to have lesson plans available in the classroom. It should be noted that there is reflected nowhere in the record any responses on the part of respondent to these Informal Observations.

Ms. Rivers testified to 27 memos or other writings given by her to respondent, 26 of which involved deficiencies or other problems relating to respondent's performance. Of these, ten dealt with respondent's failure to provide student writing samples as mandated by district policy, nine involved respondent's repeated failure to submit lesson plans for approval on a timely basis, five dealt with deficiencies regarding respondent's teaching methods, two dealt with deficiencies in the lesson plans submitted by respondent, and one involved a response to a memo from respondent dealing with the discipline of students.

In response to foregoing testimony and evidence, respondent testified that Ms. Rivers supervised him prior to October 19, 1989. He indicated that in the 1987-88 school year Ms. Rivers gave him satisfactory evaluations (Exhibits R-40, R-41, R-42 and R-43) when he was using the same teaching methods and materials that he used in subsequent years when he was given unsatisfactory evaluations. He also testified that there were occasions when Ms. Rivers would hold on to the lesson plans which he submitted to her and that, as a result, he would not have them available for his use when he was teaching a particular class.

Respondent testified that he prepared and used exercise or ditto forms to teach grammar as required by the district. These dittos were consistent with district course proficiency requirements and were based upon and copied from recommended or required texts provided by the school district. He indicated that Ms. Rivers approved of the use of these materials and that these dittos were actually better than the district-suggested or mandated textbooks because they kept the attention of students, all of whom had reading deficiencies.

Respondent testified that Ms. River did not remain in the class for the entire evaluation of October 17, 1989, because of a disruptive student. He indicated that Ms. Rivers got into a dispute with the student and that she removed the student. He also testified that absences from class because of students' cutting class, and because of transfers and withdrawals of students were also disruptive to his classes and caused a decline in the number of students attending. He also stated that at least once every two weeks all classes were disrupted by assemblies which shortened class periods. In addition, hall sweeps which were conducted by school administrators for the purpose of removing students from the halls and placing them in their proper classes, were also disruptive to the classes and interfered with instruction.

Respondent testified that he frequently remained in the hallway in order to get the students into the classrooms, and he believed this to be the reason why he was late arriving at his some of his classes. He also indicated that student discipline was a serious problem and a fact of life in all of the school district's high schools, and that this problem caused disruptions in all classes. Respondent felt that the unsatisfactory ratings given to him because of his alleged failure to deal with students who were tardy were contradicted by the policy of the school district requiring the teacher to accept the tardy student into the class and deal with the tardiness after the class.

Respondent denied Ms. Rivers' conclusion that he used the same ditto or exercise in the same class on prior occasions. He explained that his use of dittos is incremental and that it is necessary for him to go over a subject a number of times in order to teach the students in a proper manner.

Respondent indicated that because of the below-grade reading level of all students, he could not use the recommended or, in later years, required textbooks. As a result, it was necessary for him to use materials which would match the students' abilities in order that he could get the concepts across to below-grade students. He asserted that he was using effective teaching techniques and that he was attempting to motivate his students. He disagreed with the assertion that he did not question the students to determine if they were learning. He testified that he questioned the students thoroughly throughout lessons and he attempted to have them think independently. He generally denied that the students were unaware of the objective of the lessons and he indicated that in some cases he was on the same lesson for several days so that the students were fully aware of what the lesson involved. He asserted that the textbooks which were recommended and were eventually mandated by the school district were too difficult for the students and they could not be used to teach principles of grammar.

Respondent testified that he disagreed with Dr. Adilifu's observation of January 23, 1991 (P-73), in its entirety. He testified that it was on this occasion that the material gone over with the students in class was the same material that was used on the previous school day. He indicated that work books had not been provided to the students and that he was required to copy them. He denied that he mumbled when speaking to the class, and he stated that he felt that his voice was loud and clear and that his directions to the students were clear. He relied upon a Teacher Observation Report of May 6, 1985 (R-62), when he used the same or similar materials as those he was using when he was observed by Dr. Adilifu, and on the prior occasion, his performance was found to be satisfactory. He indicated that he was complying with a PIP requirement by developing exercises and by creating dittos.

Respondent testified that he submitted his lesson plans generally on time, although they may have been submitted late on occasion if he were absent. Therefore, he denied Ms. Rivers' testimony that he was consistently late in submitting his lesson plans. He indicated that it was very difficult to get students to provide writing samples and he admitted that there were some occasions when he had writing samples from students which he did not submit to Ms. Rivers.

Respondent relied upon various materials showing the class work of his students for the purpose of establishing that he was complying with school district requirements as to curriculum. He disagreed with each of his observers by asserting that there was no factual basis for their arriving at their conclusions. He testified that he felt he was teaching in an effective and satisfactory manner. In essence, he relied upon observations and evaluations made of his performance in prior years during which he asserted that he used the same or similar types of teaching strategies and techniques and was given satisfactory ratings, and in comparison he was given unsatisfactory ratings in subsequent years.

Respondent specifically testified with respect to Mr. Laub's observation on November 20, 1991 (P-71). In his report Mr. Laub indicated that respondent was teaching a lesson in November which should have been taught at the beginning of the school year. Respondent answered this by testifying that there was a scheduling "glitch" in September 1991 which caused an enormous amount of confusion. In addition, the Prentice Hall materials had not been provided until mid-October and there were no in-service workshops with respect to these materials until October, November, and December, 1991. It was for these reasons that there was a delay in his dealing with the subject-matter of the lesson until that date. He also indicated with respect to Ms. Pallotta's observation on December 3, 1991 (P-7), that there would have been much less confusion but the materials had just been passed out and he had just begun to incorporate them into his classes.

In this matter, I have carefully considered the testimony of Ms. Rivers, Mr. Laub, Ms. Culver, Mr. Gregory, Dr. Adilifu and Ms. Miller on behalf of the school district. I have closely scrutinized their testimony in light of the written evaluations they provided. I have been unable to discern any improper motivation, bias or prejudice on their part which would cause them to be anything less than truthful in this matter. In this regard, respondent argued that two of the school district's witnesses, Ms. Rivers and Ms. Miller, lacked credibility, citing numerous examples. However, my specific recollection of the testimony of these two witnesses was that their testimony was credible under the circumstances. While there were certain inconsistencies in their testimony, these were understandable based on the passage of time and acknowledging the fact that no one's memory is perfect. It was also clear that when testifying as to respondent's deficiencies as a teacher, both of these witnesses were entirely consistent in their testimony. In addition, while the seven witnesses/evaluators of respondent did not always use the same words in describing respondent's teaching deficiencies, they were entirely consistent in the impressions they gave of respondent's conduct. In particular, with respect to Mr. Laub, Ms. Culver and Dr. Adilifu, they were called in to observe and evaluate respondent not as his direct supervisors, but as independent evaluators for the purpose of providing an independent evaluation of his teaching methods.

In response to these evaluations, respondent generally indicated that he was not aware of or disputed the factual basis for the unsatisfactory evaluations. He relied upon written materials, all of which were submitted in evidence, to show that he attempted to follow the school district's policies, directives and curriculum. Respondent generally denied the repetitive assessments of his evaluators that he lacked effectiveness as a teacher, lacked discipline and control of the students, failed to use resources other than dittos, lacked interest or concern, failed to motivate students, and generally that he failed to teach.

I found respondent's testimony to be incredible and, in most cases, entirely missing the point of not only the unsatisfactory evaluations, but also of the testimony of the witnesses who conducted the evaluations. Respondent did not address his failure to teach his students other than by using the excuses that his students were discipline problems, they were absent from class, and they were below grade level in their reading skills. Respondent did not address his failure to use various teaching strategies and techniques suggested to him by his supervisors and others in order to attempt to motivate his students, other than by asserting that the dittos he employed were based on district textbooks and materials, and were appropriate because of the below-grade reading levels of the students he was teaching. Respondent failed to dispute the testimony of virtually all of his evaluators that when they arrived in his class he was usually late, usually less than prompt in starting the lesson, and that the lesson usually consisted of him merely passing out a ditto form with no directions or instructions, and having the students return the ditto forms to him at the end of class. Respondent failed to address the fact that he was only rarely observed using any resources or materials other than the ditto forms. Respondent failed to address the consistently observed fact that students in his class were disruptive, unruly and undisciplined, and that he made no effort to correct these disruptions and discipline problems. Respondent failed to address the real issue in this matter which is his lack of classroom discipline and control and his failure to engage in the teaching of the students assigned to his classes.

Respondent argues that the proofs in this matter actually deal with the charge of inefficiency rather than unbecoming conduct. However, I FIND that the failure of a teacher to discipline and control the students in his charge, the failure of a teacher to teach his students in an effective manner, or in this case, in any manner whatsoever, is clearly unbecoming conduct. I FIND that a person who fails to perform a duty which is imposed by law or which is clearly inherent in the nature of the position is guilty of unbecoming conduct. Compare, N.J.S.A. 2C:30-2b. In this matter, I FIND that respondent has continuously failed to discipline and control the students in his charge, has failed to teach his students in an effective manner and on many occasions has continuously failed to teach his students in any manner whatsoever. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that respondent is guilty of unbecoming conduct.

The next issue to be resolved is the appropriate remedy or penalty based on the finding of guilt in this matter. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Elizabeth Merkooloff, School District of the Twp. of Washington, 1980 S.L.D. 1370, the Commissioner stressed again that which he previously said in Clinton F. Smith et al. v. Bd. of Ed. of the Boro of Paramus, 1968 S.L.D. 62:

> The public schools were not created, nor are they supported, for the benefit of the teachers therein, . . . but for the benefit of the pupils and the resulting benefit to their parents and the Community at large. . . (at 67).
> (at 1371).
> The Commissioner also stated in Merkooloff at 1371:
> The Commissioner believes that these young pupils in their formative years surely deserve the best education possible with as complete continuity as can be accorded them. . . .

In In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Joseph A. Maratea, Twp. of Riverside, 1966 S.L.D. 77, the Commissioner said:

> The Commissioner is assiduous to protect school personnel in their employment when they are subjected to unfair or improper attacks or when they are unable to perform effectively because of conditions not of their own making or beyond their control. An employee is not entitled to the protection of tenure, however, when, by his own acts or failures, he creates conditions under which the proper operation of the school is adversely affected. When the responsibility for the conditions > unfavorable to the effective operation of the school rests with the employee then, the Commissioner holds, the protection of tenure is forfeit (at 106).

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Jacque L. Sammons, School District of Black Horse Pike Regional, 1972 S.L.D. 302, the Commissioner said:

> [T]hey [teachers] are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of tens of thousands of school children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each individual child. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment. As one of the most dominant and influential forces in the lives of the children, who are compelled to attend the public schools, the teacher is an enormous force for improving the public weal. Those who teach do so by choice, and in this respect the teaching profession is more than a simple job; it is a calling. (at 321).

It was also stated In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Herman B. Nash, School District of the Twp. of Teaneck, 1972 S.L.D. 284:

> A teacher, as any citizen, who decides to take any form of action or inaction does so at his own risk. No matter what the ultimate objective sought, the individual must accept the responsibility for his actions . . and must accept the consequences of his actions.
>
> The Commissioner's basic and fundamental concern must be in the welfare of the students in the Teaneck School System and, therefore, in the proper administration of that School System.(at 296).

In this matter, it is clear to me that it is not in the best interest of the students of the Newark School District that respondent remain as a teacher. Respondent has, over an extended period of time, clearly and consistently failed to provide his best efforts to teach the children of the school district. His consistent and continuous failure to impose discipline on the students and his consistent and continuous refusal to attempt to teach his students effectively leads me to the conclusion that his removal is in the best interests of the children of the school district. Therefore, I FIND and CONCLUDE that respondent should be removed as a teacher in the School District of the City of Newark.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, I FIND respondent guilty of the charge of unbecoming conduct and I ORDER his removal as a teaching staff member of the School District of the City of Newark.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT. NOS. EDU 7220-96 and EDU 1364-92 (ON REMAND)
AGENCY DKT. NO. 32-2/92

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF PETER LORIA, STATE-	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF	:	DECISION ON REMAND
THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX	:
COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and were duly considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein. No submission was filed by the District.

Upon a careful and thorough review, which included transcripts of the nine days of hearing conducted at the OAL,[1] the Commissioner agrees with the conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the within respondent is guilty of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member warranting his dismissal from his tenured position in the District. In his consideration of this matter, the Commissioner concludes that the documentary and testimonial proofs advanced herein establish, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, Charges 2 and 3 of the District's unbecoming conduct charges,[2] and he, therefore, categorically rejects, for the

[1]Hearing in this matter took place on November 6, 12 and 17, 1992, October 22 and 27, 1992, March 15, 1993, September 22 and 27, 1994, and October, 24, 1994.

[2] The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's dismissal of Charge 1a., as the within record establishes that respondent, rather than spending an inordinate amount of time disciplining his students, spent virtually no time whatsoever engaging in this endeavor. The Commissioner also accepts that b of this Charge has not been established by the District. With respect to Charges 4 and 5, he finds that these are more appropriately categorized as conclusory statements rather than charges. (See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of April Renee Bradley, Board of reasons which follow, the ALJ's apparent agreement with respondent's arguments that these have not been proven. (Initial Decision at p. 46) Specifically, these charges state:

> 2. He has willfully disregarded express and implied directives to conform his conduct to the level expected of teaching staff members;
> 3. Mr. Loria displayed insubordinate conduct, in that he has refused to obey the orders/directives by his superior(s) and/or department administrators who are entitled to give and have said directives obeyed.

Initially, in his review, the Commissioner observes that the record reflects that, at the beginning of each school year, the District disseminates to its teaching staff members a document entitled "Guidelines for Instructional Staff Performance," prepared by District administrators, which states on its face that it is intended "to clarify the rules under which each staff member of Central High School is expected to function ." (See Exhibit P-45G and H.) Pursuant to this document, inter alia, teachers are expected to report to class on time; should have regular lesson plans available at all times when teaching; should give students homework every day; are expected to submit timely reports; should establish the rules and regulations of the class; are expected to follow the recommendations of supervisors; and should be located at their classroom doors during the passing of classes to minimize improper student activities in the halls. (It is noted that this last requirement is also specifically mandated by the teacher's union contract - See Exhibit P-79B at 9B.)

The within record confirms that a large number of observations were made of respondent, both formal and informal, over a protracted period of time, by his supervisor and other administrative staff members, and reports prepared by these individuals, and shared with respondent, uniformly and repeatedly detail certain consistent behavior of the respondent which reflected significant deviation from that which is required and expected of teaching staff members in the District, i.e., lateness in arriving to class (Exhibits P-8, P-38, P-39, P-44, P-46, P-61, P-64, P-65, P-73), failure to have and/or display lesson plans (Exhibits P-3, P-48, P-73), failure to be present at his classroom door during the passing of classes (Exhibits P-66, P-67), failure to assign homework to students (Exhibit P-60), a total failure to even attempt to control or conduct his class (Exhibits P-4, P-8, P-10, P-12, P-26, P-30, P-33, P-46, P-59, P-62, P-64, P-65, P-67, P-71), and use of dittos as his sole teaching source rather than in conjunction with textbooks and other materials mandated by the District. (Exhibits P-62, P-67). The Commissioner rejects as untenable any argument that the reports of these evaluators, detailing such behavior, were merely suggestions for improvement of his teaching style and, therefore, that respondent's complete refusal to alter his behavior as a result of these was not a failure to respond to "directives." Rather, he concludes that the observation reports, presented to respondent and discussed with him, irrespective of the nomenclature or vernacular utilized on the evaluation forms themselves, which notified this teaching staff member that he was observed engaging in conduct which he knew or should have known is violative of conduct expected of a teaching staff member in the District, must be viewed, at a minimum, as implied directives to cease such behavior. It is observed that despite all of the warnings received by respondent that his conduct was in violation of what was recognized to be comportment required of teaching staff members in the District, the record reflects that he totally ignored such directives and continued his discordant behavior. As such, the Commissioner finds and determines that Charge 2 has been amply demonstrated through respondent's refusal to conform his conduct to that demanded of all teaching staff members by District policies and their teaching contract.

Moreover, it is further noted that the testimony of respondent's immediate supervisor, Lula Mae Rivers, confirmed by exhibits in the record, detailed numerous memos which she sent to respondent advising that he was not complying with certain District mandates and directing him to do so. These include his repeated failure to submit student writing samples (Exhibits P-16, P-17, P-23, P-28, P-32, P-35, P-41, P-43, P-49; failure to submit lesson plans for approval on a timely basis and to display and use such plans as required (Exhibits P-19, P-20, P-27, P-28, P-31, P-34, P-36, P-37, P-42, P-43); failure to remain at his door during the changing of classes (Exhibits P-28, P-66), failure to address discipline in his classroom (Exhibits P-29, P-33, P-38); his lateness to class (Exhibits P-9, P-38); and failure to utilize the District Literature outline in preparing lesson plans (Exhibit 51). Ms. Rivers further testified that, for the most part, respondent neither complied with her directives nor did he offer any reason or excuse for not doing so. (Tr. 10/22/92, pp. 40, 74-75, 127-128, 130, 140, 146, 152; Tr. 10/27/92, pp. 7, 18, 19)

That this deliberate disobedience constituted insubordinate conduct is undeniable. In this connection, the ALJ's agreement with the advanced argument of respondent, contending that because there was no testimony which established that he engaged in any overt exhibition of disrespect or verbal refusal to perform duties required of his position, the District had not proven that he displayed insubordinate conduct in his failure to obey the orders/directives of his superiors or department administrators, is misplaced. Rather the Commissioner determines that the lack of "overt" insubordinate behavior is not dispositive in the substantiation of the charge here. Rather, he finds that insubordinate conduct, in the context of the unbecoming conduct charge in the instant case, is fully established by respondent's willful and intentional disregard of the lawful and reasonable directives of his duly authorized supervisor, which were not casual suggestions but requirements expected of all teaching staff members and with which he was compelled to adhere. (See Board of Education of the Township of Teaneck, Bergen County v. Leon Wilburn, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 48, aff'd State Board, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 328.)

The Commissioner's comprehensive review in the instant matter further leads him to concur with the ALJ's assessment of the credibility of the District's witnesses (Initial Decision at p. 53) and, likewise, to find respondent's testimony herein, which consisted of categorically denying and/or disagreeing with deficiencies and behavioral aberrations observed by each of his evaluators and which attempted to attribute any perceived less than exemplary behavior on his part to the shortcomings and proclivities of his students, uncooperative administrators, lack of provision of materials, and dilapidated classroom conditions, wholly "incredible." (Id. at p. 54)

Respondent's exceptions in this matter vehemently argue, as he has throughout this protracted case, that all of the evidence advanced goes to inefficiency and does not rise to the level of unbecoming conduct warranting his dismissal. The Commissioner finds this contention without merit. As stated by the New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division, in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Walter Driscoll, School District of Woodstown-Pilesgrove Regional High School, Salem County, decided October 25, 1983, Docket No. A-748-82T2

> N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 provides for dismissal of a tenured teacher for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause. Whether the charges fall under any of the categories is a determination for the Commissioner to make. Regardless of the label placed on the conduct charged and proven "the touchstone is fitness, to discharge the duties and functions of one's office and position." (emphasis added) In re Tenure Hearing of Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13 (App. Div. 1974), certif. den. 65 N.J. 292 (1974); Redcay v. State Board of Education, 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (1943), aff'd. 131 N.J.L. 326 (E&A 1944). (Slip Opinion at p. 3)

As such, the Commissioner concludes that the necessary focus does not stop with respondent's established behavior, it is also highly significant to look at the impact this behavior had on students. Here, the totality of the record establishes that respondent's conduct amply portrays a teaching staff member who exhibits total disregard for fulfillment of the requisite responsibilities of his position, the authority and directives of the District, administrators, his supervisor, and, most importantly, the welfare of his students, with the resultant consequence of depriving these students, in one of the neediest districts in the state, of that to which they are legally entitled, a thorough and efficient education, a situation which cannot be tolerated. The Commissioner views this matter as similar to that which existed in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of April Renee Bradley, Board of Education of the City of Newark, 1990 S.L.D. 790, affirmed in part, reversed in part, by the State Board, 1991 S.L.D. 2521, wherein the Commissioner and the State Board both found

> Bradley's conduct demonstrated contempt, disregard, and a lack of confidence in the professional judgment of her immediate supervisor and others who attempted to assist her. The resultant effect created an intolerable working relationship which interfered with the efficient management and operation of the Clinton Avenue School. The most significant impact unfortunately falls on children. Commissioner decision at 822; State Board decision at 2525, a finding which is totally apropos in the instant case and which amply supports respondent's dismissal from his tenured position.

Also particularly troubling in this matter is the uniform observation of respondent's evaluators that he evidenced a nonchalant, uncaring attitude toward his students and his teaching. (Tr. 10/22/92, p. 10; Tr. 11/6/92, pp. 7-8, 127; Tr. 11/12/92, p. 13; Tr. 3/15/93, p. 15); the testimony of his supervisor which reported

> I didn't find any effort on the part of Mr. Loria, to fulfill his obligations as a teacher to comply with the Board's mandate to perform certain functions, such as submitting his lesson plans, submitting writing samples which is mandated by the Board to perform certain clerical matters that related to tasks that we were mandated to do in preparation--in preparing the students for tests, or improvement in classroom management, so that the  time in the classroom could be better used for teaching purposes. Tr. 10/22/92, p. 153

> I found that the students felt that because of the kind of situation that was prevalent in this class, that they didn't have to come to class on time, they didn't have to be respectful, they didn't > have to do the homework, they didn't have to comply with  whatever they were told to do, because nothing would happen, they thought. But at the end of the year, I found that a vast majority of those students failed. Tr. 10/22/92, pp. 157-158;

and respondent's own testimony which demonstrates his cavalier attitude with respect to satisfying the requirements of his position where, although admitting that he was required to submit writing samples of his students every month, when queried as to whether he had submitted such samples he replied "some I did, some I did not." (Tr. 9/27/94, p. 113, L9-16)

With respect to the moneys which may be due the parties in this matter, the Commissioner finds that the arguments and proffered evidence advanced are inconsistent in this regard and, therefore, he finds that the existing record does not provide the necessary detail to enable him to make the conclusive determinations required.[3] As such, he concludes that this matter must be remanded to the OAL, on this singular issue, for expansion of the record sufficient to allow such determinations to be made.

Accordingly, the Commissioner accepts the recommendation of the OAL that respondent be dismissed from his tenured employment with the District for conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member and adopts the initial decision as the final decision in this matter for the reasons expressed therein as amplified above. He hereby directs that the issue of moneys which

[3] As examples, it is noted that, although the record indicates that the parties agree that the District was entitled to an additional set-off of $2,920, representing unemployment benefits paid to respondent during the period September 22, 1996 through November 30, 1996, the May 1, 1997 letter of the District's counsel, Gregory G. Johnson, indicates, without explanation, that $2,230 was the amount actually set-off. Additionally, this same letter, which, it is observed, contains computation errors, states that the District paid $224.10 in post-judgment interest but provides no details as to how this figure was calculated. Finally, it is also noted that the Certification of Kamal Diyandidh, Coordinator of Safety and Health Insurance, dated March 5, 1997, states

> The District is self-insured for unemployment compensation. When Mr. Loria applied for and received unemployment compensation from the Department of Education, the district was charged for the costs of Mr. Loria's benefits (See attached Exhibit "B"). In simple terms, for every dollar Mr. Loria was paid the District was charged. (See Diyandidh Certification at p. 4.)

As such, it would appear, absent any further clarifying information, that such a situation would obviate the need for the transmission of recouped unemployment insurance moneys to the New Jersey Department of Labor, Division of Unemployment Insurance, as was demanded by respondent and ordered by the ALJ.

may be due and owing the parties in this case be severed from the tenure matter herein and that this sole issue be remanded to the OAL for expansion of the record and necessary determinations consistent with his expressed concerns. The tenure matter will be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners, pursuant to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a), for action as it deems appropriate.

V. : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE LENAPE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BURLINGTON COUNTY, : DECISION

RESPONDENT. :

Petitioning riffed supervisor claimed violation of her tenure rights in the Board's failure to appoint her to a vacant supervisory position. Board contended petitioner did not possess the requisite certification for the position.

ALJ found that petitioner was entitled to the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Music/Art over a nontenured supervisor by virtue of her tenure and seniority as a supervisor in the Board's employ. (N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10 and 28-12) Commissioner has held that there is no such entity as a subject matter supervisor certificate. Rather, a supervisory certificate is general in nature and not specific to a subject area. (Rogers) While there is nothing to prevent a local board from establishing additional instructional certification requirements, absent a showing that instructional certification is necessary to perform the duties of the position at issue, such requirements cannot sidestep the educator's tenure rights on a preferred eligibility list of supervisors. Board was ordered to place petitioner in the position with compensation retroactive to September 1, 1994.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own and directed placement of petitioner with compensation.

Petitioner,

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE LENAPE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BURLINGTON COUNTY,

Respondent.

Wayne J. Oppito, Esq., for petitioner,

William H. Kenney, Esq., for respondent, (Archer & Greiner, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 5, 1995 Decided: November 20, 1995

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, a tenured supervisor in the employ of the Board of Education of the Lenape Regional High School District (Board) was subject to a reduction in force (RIF) alleges, among other things, that the Board failed to assign her to a position of supervisor over a non-tenured supervisor in violation of petitioner's tenure rights. The Board denies the allegations contending, among other things, that petitioner did possess the requisite certification for the position.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Pursuant to prehearing conference, the parties agree and jointly move for summary disposition of the matter under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, and the criteria set forth in Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954).

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this administrative tribunal, as agreed to by the parties, are these:

1. Whether petitioner, a riffed Supervisor in the Board's employ, is entitled to the position of Supervisor of Humanities, or any other supervisor position held by a nontenured supervisor, which was vacant subsequent to petitioner's reduction in force?

2. Whether petitioner holds the appropriate certificate to qualify for the position of Supervisor of Humanities?

3. Whether the Petition of Appeal is time barred by the applicable period of limitations?

The parties hereby stipulate to the following fact:

1. Lenape Regional High School District is a limited purpose regional school district for grades nine (9) through twelve (12) and includes three high schools, Lenape, Cherokee and Shawnee.

2. Lynn Galbraith has been employed in the Lenape Regional High School District since on or about January 1, 1974. Her employment history in the school district is as follows:

1974 - 1990	Teacher of English Lenape High School

1976 - 1990	Community Relations Coordinator
1990 - 1994	Supervisor of Curriculum/ Community Relations
1994 - present	Teacher of English Shawnee High School

3. Lynn Galbraith has the following certificates/endorsements issued by New Jersey Department of Education:

Instructional certificate
Teacher of English endorsement

Administrative certificate
Principal endorsement
Supervisor endorsement

4. At a meeting on May 18, 1994, Lynn Galbraith was informed by the Superintendent that he would be recommending to the Board of Education that her position be abolished. The Superintendent indicated that it was the opinion of the school district that Ms. Galbraith has tenure as a Supervisor of Curriculum/Community Relations and does not have rights to any other supervisor position. The Superintendent further indicated that if the Board of Education did abolish her position, Ms. Galbraith would be reassigned as a teacher.

5. On June 21, 1994, the Board of Education eliminated the position of District Supervisor of Curriculum/Community Relations. Lynn Galbraith was notified of the Board's action in a letter dated June 23, 1994. (Exhibit 1)

6. As a result of a retirement, on or about July 5, 1994, the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music became vacant at Cherokee High School.

7. In a letter to the Superintendent of Schools, Daniel Hicks, dated July 8, 1994, Lynn Galbriath requested placement in the vacant position. In a letter dated July 11, 1994, Mr. Hicks denied Ms. Galbraith's request. (Exhibit 2 and 3)

8. For the 1994-95 school year, the Board of Education employed eight (8) supervisors in each of the three high schools, for a total of 24 supervisors. Each high school had the following supervisory position:

Supervisor	English/Foreign Language
Supervisor	Mathematics/Science
Supervisor	Industrial Arts/Home Economics and Business
Supervisor	Social Studies/Art/Music
Supervisor	Student Personnel Services
Supervisor	Physical Education and Health
Supervisor	Special Services
Supervisor	Educational Media Services

Job Descriptions are attached as Exhibits 4 through 11

9. During the 1994-95 school year, one Supervisor - Special Education taught one class during the first semester only. None of the other supervisors taught any classes during the second semester of the 1994-95 school year.

10. On or about September 1, 1994, the Board of Education employed a person not previously employed in the school district as a supervisor and with no tenure rights as a supervisor into the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music at Cherokee High School.

POSITION OF THE PARTIES

PETITIONER'S STATEMENT OF FACTS AND ARGUMENT

The facts and documents in this matter have been stipulated and are attached hereto.

Essentially, petitioner is tenured as a teacher and supervisor in respondent school district as a teacher and supervisor. Her employment history is set forth in the stipulation. On or about June 21, 1994, respondent eliminated petitioner's position of District Supervisor of Curriculum/Community Relations. As a result of a retirement, on or about July 5, 1994, the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music became vacant. On or about September 1, 1994 respondent employed a non-tenured supervisor to the aforesaid position. For the 1995-95 school year, petitioner was employed as a teacher of English.

Petitioner contends that as a tenured supervisor, she is entitled to the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music over a non-tenured supervisor. Respondent contends that petitioner does not have rights to the position in that petitioner does not have an instructional certificate with an endorsement in Social Studies, Art or Music. Petitioner has an instructional certificate with a Teacher of English endorsement.

SUMMARY DECISION IS APPROPRIATE IN THE MATTER SUBJUDICE

Summary decision is appropriate when there is no genuine issue as to a material fact. Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954). Administrative agency procedures for summary decision are set forth in N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5.

In the matter sub judice, there is no issue of any material fact and the parties have stipulated the relevant facts to render a determination. A review of the petition and answer indicates that there is no controversy as to the substantive facts in this matter. Respondent has admitted all the factual allegations in the petition. Respondent has denied the allegations in paragraph 8. The allegations in that paragraph present the legal issue of whether petitioner has tenure rights to the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music. Therefore, since there is no issue as to material facts, summary decision is appropriate.

POINT II

PETITIONER IS ENTITLED TO THE POSITION OF SUPERVISOR-SOCIAL STUDIES/ART/MUSIC BY VIRTUE OF HER TENURE RIGHTS

It is petitioner's contention that the appointment of a person non-tenured as a supervisor to the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music is a violative of petitioner's tenure rights. It is uncontroverted that petitioner was a tenured supervisor in the Lenape Regional High School District, when her position was abolished on or about June 21, 1994, effective August 31, 1994. On or about September 1, 1994, respondent employed a non-tenured supervisor to the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music. Respondent's failure to employ petitioner in the aforesaid position is violative of her tenure rights. The overwhelming body of decisional law clearly holds that untenured personnel cannot be retained or hired over a tenured individual with reference to a position for which the tenured individual is certified. Capodilupo v. West Orange Twp. Ed. Bd., 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987); Bednar v. Westwood Bd of Ed., 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987).

For example, in Capodilupo, supra., the Appellant Division affirmed the reinstatement of an individual who had obtained tenure as a Physical Education teacher to the position of elementary school Physical Education teacher despite the fact that the teacher had no demonstrable experience in the elementary school position over an untenured, certified teacher with actual experience in the position. In its decision, the Appellate Division upheld the State Board of Education's determination that:

> seniority provides a mechanism for ranking all tenured teaching staff members so that reduction among the tenured force can be effected in an equitable fashion and in accordance with sound educational policies. See Lichtman v. Ridgewood Bd. of Ed., supra., 93 N.J. at 368. 218 N.J. Super. at 514.

The court further averred "a tenured teacher, however, is entitled to retention as against a non-tenured teacher under the tenure law. To hold otherwise would be to defeat the purpose of tenure which was to give a measure of security to teachers after the prescribed number of years of service." See Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Ed., 5 N.J.Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949)."

218 N.J. Super. at 514-15. Accordingly, the Court upheld the State Board's determination that "a tenured teacher seeking reinstatement with the endorsements on his or her certificate is entitled to preference in a RIF as against a non-tenured applicant with the same certification." 218 N.J. Super. at 515.

Similarly, in Bednar v. Westwood Bd of Ed., supra., the Appellate Division reversed the judgment of the State Board of Education which had denied the claim of the tenured elementary Art teacher that respondent's reduction of petitioner to a part-time elementary Art teaching position, while retaining a non-tenured individual in a middle school or high school position, violated his tenure rights. In reversing the State Board's determination, the Appellate Division recognized that:

> The tenure statute authorizes the creation of seniority regulations to rank the job rights of tenured teaching staff in a RIF. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-13. Lichtman v. Ridgewood Bd. of Ed., 93 N.J. 362, 368 n.4 (1983); Capodilupo v. West Orange Twp. Ed. Bd., 218 N.J. Super. 510, 514 (App. Div. 1987). The statue does not create or authorize the Commissioner to create competing rights for non-tenured teachers. 221 N.J. Super. at 242.

Moreover, the Court stated that the tenure statue "surely does not contemplate use of the seniority regulations to justify retaining a non-tenured teacher in a position within the certificate of a dismissed tenured teacher." 221 N.J. Super. at 242.

Recognizing that the State Board perceived a tension between tenure and seniority, the Appellate Division specifically held:

> The defect in the Board's approach is this. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10 declares only the rights inter sese of tenured teachers in RIF. Among them, seniority is determinative. But, the statue does not authorize regulatory dilution of tenure rights by affording a non-tenured "seniority". The tension perceived by the State Board between tenure and seniority is one the board created. Its only proper resolution is to rule that the rights conferred by the tenure statute may not be dissolved by implementing regulations. 221 N.J. Super. at 243.

Finally, the Court determined:

> The State Board's approach may or may not represent sound educational policy. However, it erodes tenure rights which appear plain on the face of the statue which we are bound to recognize and which can be removed only by the Legislature. See In re Jamesburg High School Closing, 83 N.J. 540, 547 (1908).

Subsequent to the Bednar and Capodilupo decisions, school law decisions have consistently and emphatically held that tenured individuals are entitled to positions held by non-tenured individuals within the area of a tenured individual's certification. For example, in Mirandi v. Bd. of Ed. of Twp. of West Orange, Essex County 1988 S.L.D. 1988, aff'd as mod. State Bd. 1989 S.L.D. 3057, petitioner, a tenured high school assistant principal who had been "riffed" and assigned to a position of high school social studies teacher, was held to be entitled to the position of middle school assistant principal despite having no experience in the latter position as against a non-tenured individual with actual experience.

Likewise, in Burke v. Bd. of Boro. of Union Beach 1988 S.L.D. 1318, petitioner, a tenured school social worker who had been "riffed", was found to be entitled to the position of Student Assistance Counselor as opposed to a non-tenured individual who was employed in that position. Moreover, in Burke, the Commissioner recognized that where a petitioner has "a statutory entitlement to [a] position by virtue of her tenure status... [i]t [is] the Board's duty to recognize her tenure status and notify her of the fact it was available to her."

While a faithful, logical reading of Bednar and Capodilupo and the school law decisions cited by petitioner in and of itself is indicative of petitioner's rights to the controverted position, the decisions articulated in Schaeffer v. So. Orange-Maplewood Bd. of Ed. 1988 S.L.D. 553, aff'd State Bd. 1990 S.L.D. 3077 and Herbert v. Middletown Bd. of Ed., 1989 S.L.D. 2148, aff'd State Bd. 1990 S.L.D. 1759, aff'd App. Div. A-318-90T1, May 22, 1991, squarely address the analysis advanced by petitioner.

In Schaeffer supra., petitioner, a tenured junior high school and middle school department chairperson for English who had been "riffed" and reassigned to a classroom teaching position, was found to be entitled to the district-wide position of Director of Language Arts/English (K-8) as opposed to a non-tenured individual who was employed in that position.

While, in Herbert, supra., the Commissioner affirmed the decision that a tenured Supervisor of Elementary Education who had been "riffed" was entitled to the position of Supervisor of Special Services, a highly regulated and substantially complicated area, as against a non-tenured supervisor. As the Administrative Law Judge determined:

> As the line of cases discussed above makes clear, the tenure law grants the tenured teaching staff member a right over a non-tenured teaching staff member to any position for which the tenured staff member qualifies him or her. The tenure laws do not contain any exemptions or exceptions. The Legislature has determined that a person who obtains an endorsement is qualified for all positions under that endorsement. To allow subjective educational reasons to override the tenure law is to ignore the law and is clearly impermissible.
> The incumbent undoubtedly is qualified for the position. The Board may believe that she would perform better than the petitioner as Supervisor of Special Services. But the law gives the petitioner an unequivocal right to the position. He cannot be deprived of his tenure rights by virtue of the Board's impression that the incumbent would do the job better. This approach may not be the best educational policy, but it is the law, and only the Legislative can change the law. That the position in this case may differ from the petitioner's prior positions more than the positions at issue in Bednar or Mirandi does not alter the outcome. The tenure laws cannot be modified by a board's belief that a particular position is somehow unique. The point of Bednar and Mirandi is that the tenure laws must apply despite the particular experience or inexperience of the person involved. Not only is there no measurable way of determining when a position is unique to a degree that would allegedly exempt it from the strictures of the tenure law, the law simply does not permit that type of analysis or exemption.
> The petitioner is entitled as a matter of law to the position held by the nontenured incumbent. He must be instated, with retroactive seniority, to that position with all back pay.

As it is uncontroverted that petitioner, F. Lynn Galbraith, is tenured as a supervisor. It is eminently clear that she is entitled to the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music as opposed to a non-tenured supervisor. See also Schienholtz et al. v. Ewing Bd. of Ed., 1989 S.L.D. 1860 aff'd State Bd. 1990 S.L.D. 1809.

In each of the above referenced decisions, the Commissioner of Education found Bednar, supra., and Capodilupo, supra., directly on point that a non-tenured person cannot be employed over a tenured person. Respondent contends that petitioner is not entitled to the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music because, although she has tenure as a Supervisor of Curriculum/Community Relations she does not hold an instructional certificate with an endorsement in social studies, art or music and is, therefore, not certified for the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music. This contention flies in the face of Herbert, supra. As the Appellant Division determined in Herbert, supra., at page 5:

> Likewise, in this case, the problem lies with the fact that supervisor certificates are issued without regard to the differences which may exist in the requirements to perform the various jobs and duties of such personnel.

In Rogers v. Highland Park Bd. of Ed., 1990 S.L.D. 685, aff'd State Board 1990 S.L.D. 691, petitioner attained tenure as a supervisor in the position of Department Chairperson-Social Studies. As a result of a reorganization the position was abolished and a position of Cultural and Social Studies Supervisor was created. The new position included the Social Studies Department, Foreign Languages and ESL. When the Board appointed a teacher to the new position, Mr. Rogers petitioned the Commissioner seeking the position based upon his tenure rights as a supervisor. In affirming the Administrative Law Judge, the Commissioner determined:

> Firstly, it must be emphasized that there is no such entity as "an English supervisor certificate." (emphasis supplied) (Id., at page 3) Unlike the seniority regulations wherein each supervisor position is a separate category, a supervisory certificate is general, i.e., not specific to a subject area.

Accordingly, respondent is incorrect in its contention that petitioner only has tenure as a Supervisor of Curriculum/Community Relations. It is clear that petitioner has tenure as a supervisor. Furthermore, respondent is incorrect that petitioner is not entitled to the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music. The Commissioner determined at page 689:

> While the Board is correct in arguing that a supervisor must have served and acquired tenure under such certificate, it is in error when maintaining that a tenured supervisor subject to a reduction in force could not make a > claim to a supervisory position related to English if it were held by a nontenured supervisor had not served in the area of English.

> In the instant matter, petitioner has acquired tenure as a Supervisor and is, therefore, in a reduction in force circumstance entitled to any position held by a nontenured supervisor. (emphasis in the original)

The State Board in affirming the Commissioner further emphasized the above holding at page 691:

> The decision of the Commissioner of Education is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein. We reiterate that, having achieved tenure in the separately tenurable position of "supervisor". Petitioner was entitled to tenure protection following a reduction in force in any supervisory assignment for which he was qualified by virtue of his certification as against individuals with no tenure as supervisors. See Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den., 110 N.J. 512 (1988); Capodilupo v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den., 109 N.J. 514 (1987); Herbert v. Board of Education of the Township of Middletown, decided by the State Board of Education, August 1, 1990.

In So. River Education Association v. So. River Bd. of Ed. 1985 S.L.D. 1384, rev'd State Bd. 1987 S.L.D. 2727, aff'd. App. Div. A-1695-87T8, April 16, 1990, the board of education has elementary teachers who were on a preferred eligible list as a result of a reduction in force. Subsequently, a teaching vacancy occurred in a position entitled computer literacy teacher with qualifications that encompassed an instructional certificate and 9 credits, the board of education hired an out-of-district candidate. The ALJ recommended that the petition be dismissed. The Commissioner agreed. However, the State Board of Education reversed and the Appellate Division affirmed the decision of the State Board. The State Board determined:

> Although the education laws permit a district board to establish qualifications beyond the threshold qualifications established by statute and regulation for employment in or promotion to a particular position title...we find that [the respondent's] desire to employ or retain individuals with such additional qualifications cannot defeat the seniority rights conferred by statue on teaching staff members. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10,; N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12.

> would undermine the seniority system by permitting the creation of positions distinct for seniority purposes based on distinctions in subject matter beyond those made by the certification rules.

Unfortunately, in the matter of Timko and Mikush v. Bridgewater-Raritan Bd of Ed., 1991 S.L.D. 967, remanded State Bd. July 1, 1992, Initial Decision on remand, April 27, 1994, Comm. dec. June 13, 1994, aff'd State Bd. Nov. 2, 1994, a final resolution of this issue was not made. In Timko, supra., petitioner, Timko was a tenured supervisor assigned to social studies. Timko had a supervisor endorsement. Mikush was a tenured supervisor, assigned to Industrial Arts. Mikush did not have a supervisor endorsement. Rather, he had a limited supervisor of industrial arts certificate issued under prior rules. Therefore, Mikush, by certification, could only supervise industrial arts. As a result of a reorganization, the positions held by Timko and Mikush were eliminated. As part of the reorganization, other supervisory position, were created and non-tenured supervisors were selected. Timko and Mikush petitioned the Commissioner averring that they were entitled on the basis of tenure and seniority to the positions. The Board argued that in addition to the supervisor endorsement, it also required an instructional certificate which neither petitioner possessed.

The Commissioner rejected the Initial Decision and determined that Timko was entitled on the basis of his endorsement as a supervisor and his tenure as a supervisor to one of the new positions. Unfortunately for Mr. Mikush, his certificate was limited to supervising industrial arts and he was, therefore, not certified and hence, not qualified for any of the new positions. The Commissioner based his decision on Herbert, supra., and So. River, supra.

The State Board remanded for a determination as to the particular duties which would require an instructional certificate. Prior to the hearing on remand, Timko and the Board of Education settled the controversy and dispute between them and Timko withdrew his petition. The ALJ, the Commissioner and the State Board all determined that the issue of the instructional certificate requirement was rendered moot by Timko's withdrawal.

In the matter sub judice, there are sufficient stipulated facts and documentation on the record to support a finding and determination by the ALJ that there are not enough substantial duties for the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music to allow the local requirement of an instructional certificate in one of those areas to defeat petitioner's tenure rights as a supervisor. The record shows that for the 1994-95 school year, the board employed 24 supervisors, 8 in each of its 3 high schools. Each high school had a supervisor in the areas set forth in paragraph #4 of the Stipulation. During the entire 1994-5 school year, one Supervisor - Special Education taught one class during the first semester only. No other supervisor taught any other classes. None of the three Supervisors-Social Studies/Art/Music taught my classes. Historically, the supervisors in the school district do not teach classes. Therefore, there is no necessity for the supervisor to teach students in the Lenape Regional High School District.

Furthermore, for the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music, the job description requires an instructional certificate with an endorsement in social studies, art or music. Therefore, the school district is not requiring someone be a subject specialist because a music or art person qualifies to supervise the social studies teachers which are the overwhelming majority of the teachers to be supervised by the aforesaid position. Clearly, someone like petitioner, with an English background is just as qualified to supervise social studies teachers as a person with an art or music background. The State Board of Education recognized this by the fact that the supervisor endorsement is general and generic. It authorizes the holder to supervise any subject matter and/or any grade level. It is similar to a high school principal or assistant principal with a background in English. The principal on the basis of his/her certificate can observe and evaluate a Physics teacher or a Russian language teacher. The principal is not the subject matter specialist. The teacher is. However, the principal can observe and evaluate good teaching. The same is true in this matter. The supervisor observes and evaluates teaching and teaching methods. In fact on each of the attached job descriptions, this is clearly stated:

> The major function of the supervisor is to provide assistance in the development of an improved teaching-learning situation.

Petitioner, by virtue of her tenure as a supervisor and her possession of supervisor endorsement is qualified to perform the duties of the position. Accordingly, respondent's requirement of an instructional certificate with an endorsement in social studies, art, or music cannot override petitioner's tenure rights as a supervisor. Respondent should be ordered to employ petitioner as the Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music.

THE BOARD'S STATEMENT OF FACTS AND ARGUMENT

STATEMENT OF FACTS

The facts pertinent to consideration of this matter are set forth in the Stipulation of Facts, and in the documents attached thereto.

Petitioner is tenured as a teacher of English, and has been employed in the Lenape Regional High School District ("Lenape") since 1974. She also served as Community Relations Coordinator from 1976 through 1990, at which time she was appointed to the then newly established position of Supervisor of Curriculum/Community Relations, which position she held until it was eliminated by Board action on June 21, 1994.

The job description for the position to which petitioner here lays tenure claim, Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music at Cherokee High School (one of the three high schools in the Lenape District), sometimes referred to in the literature as Director of Humanities and the job descriptions for each of the other content area supervisors' positions (Exhibits 4 through 11 to the Stipulation of Facts) lists the qualifications to include an administrative certificate with endorsement as Supervisor and, as well, an instructional certificate endorsed in at least one of the disciplines to be supervised. In this particular case, the qualifications include an instructional certificate with endorsement in social studies, art or music. (Exhibit 7 to Stipulation of Facts.) Each of these job descriptions, save the Student Personnel Services and Educational Media Services positions, had been in existence since 1971.

None of the supervisors' job descriptions has been changed, in any material respect, since 1989.

Petitioner has known, since May 18, 1994, that respondent took the position that petitioner had acquired tenure as a Supervisor of curriculum/Community Relations, but that this tenure did not afford her any rights to other existing supervisory positions in the Lenape District. (Stipulated Fact No. 4). Respondent's position in this regard was confirmed for Petitioner in the July 11, 1994, letter of Superintendent Daniel F. Hicks (Exhibit 3 to Stipulated Facts).

Each of the supervisory job descriptions lists, among the various duties to be performed by the Supervisor, the following:

> "Performs other duties which may be within the scope of his/her employment and certifications as may be assigned by his/her superior(s) under authority of the Board of Education." See, e.g., Exhibit 7, at page 4, paragraph 24.

ARGUMENT

Petitioner suggests, in Point 1 of her brief, that the allegations in paragraph 8 of the Petition present the single legal issue to be decided: whether petitioner has tenure rights to the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music at Cherokee High School. Respondent agrees this is the single claim raised by the Petition. However, petitioner lacks the certifications required in the job description for the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music, and this is not a disputed fact. The job description does, and at all times relevant herein did, list the requirement of a teaching certificate endorsed in one of these subject matter areas. Again, this fact is not disputed. Knowledge of the qualifications for each of the supervisor positions can be imputed to petitioner since those qualifications were listed in the Respondent's Book of By-Laws and Policies.

Petitioner admits being informed of the Respondent's position at a meeting on May 18, 1994, concerning her tenure rights vis-a-vis the subject area supervisory positions. Moreover, petitioner admits that the respondent's position in this regard was clarified for her in a letter from Superintendent Hicks dated July 11, 1994 (Exhibit 3) which unequivocally states that petitioner did not possess the qualifications for the position of Supervisor-Humanities or Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music, which qualifications include a requirement that the applicant hold a teaching certificate endorsed in one of the disciplines over which the appointee would exercise supervision.

Still, petitioner chose not to challenge the validity of the qualifications set forth in the job description.

The Petition is a plain vanilla tenure claim. No more, no less. Petitioner's brief, however, breaks out into two specific arguments: first, a straight tenure claim argument which totally ignores the additional certification requirements in the description of the job at issue; and, second, an attack on the validity or propriety of the "local requirement of an instructional certificate" in the qualifications for this position. The second argument is made despite the fact that the Petition does not challenge the validity of the job description or local certification requirement.

> (a) Petitioner did not put the validity of the job description, or the propriety of the job description, or the propriety of the local requirement for additional certification in issue in her petition and she is now time-barred from so doing, either by amendment to the Petition or by simply attempting to argue the point on motion;
> (2) Petitioner does not possess the certificates required for this position and cannot, therefore, lay claim to the position;
> (3) The "any other duties" provision in the job description, generally interpreted broadly enough to include teaching duties, is sufficient justification for inclusion of the additional certification requirements of the supervisory position at issue here;
> (4) There is nothing to suggest that the local certification requirements set forth in each of the supervisory position job descriptions was drafted for purposes, in whole or in part, of frustrating possible tenure claims of others, and petitioner has failed to meet her burden to show that the respondent's acts were arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

For all the foregoing reasons, the Petition must be dismissed.

POINT ONE

PETITIONER'S ATTACK UPON THE VALIDITY OF THE SUPERVISORY POSITION IS TIME BARRED

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) sets the limitations period for filing Complaints with the Commissioner of Education, and provides that a Petition shall be filed "no later that the ninetieth day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the District Board of Education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing."

The order, ruling or "other action" here challenged occurred, at the latest, on or about September 1, 1994, when respondent appointed another to the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music at Cherokee High School (Stipulated Fact No. 10).[1] In Halpern v. Bd. of Ed. of Twp. of Delran, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU 22), Petitioner, a tenured Coordinator of Child Study Team, who worked under an educational services certificate with a school psychologist's endorsement and an administrative certificate with a supervisor's endorsement, filed a Petition challenging his failure to be appointed to the position of Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services, into which he sought to "bump" following elimination of his Coordinator of Child Study Team position as a result of a reduction in force. While attempting to reach agreement on stipulated facts, so that the matter could be presented for decision, petitioner sought to assert that the position of Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services was an unrecognized position title, that the procedures necessary to recognition of such a title (which required possession of a principal's endorsement) had not been followed, and suggested that testimony would be necessary on the issue of why the Respondent Board of Education concluded that the principal's endorsement was required for this position.

[1] The action of hiring another for the position gives rise to petitioner's claim, as set forth in her Petition. The additional claims which petitioner seeks to set forth via her brief, challenging the validity of the position itself and the inclusion of additional certification requirements, are actions of which Petitioner had notice as early as May 18, 1994. Respondent's action of determining that Petitioner did not possess the required certifications for this supervisory position was known to petitioner on or about July 11, 1994.

The process set forth in Halpern is strikingly similar to the process in the instant matter. In Halpern, the Administrative Law Judge required petitioner to move for leave to amend the petition "to include the assertions with respect to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3(b)." That motion was then denied and petitioner was precluded from challenging the validity of the newly created position, or the propriety of the requirement for possession of a principal's endorsement on the administrative certificate, by reason of the untimeliness of the claim. In that regard, the judge said "No challenge is made to the timeliness of the original Petition (filed February 3, 1992) ... Unquestionably absent from that Petition, however, is any allegation that the title 'Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services' is an unrecognized position title requiring approval of the County Superintendent of Schools." Id. at 23. Again, the similarity to the instant matter is striking.

Continuing, the Administrative Law Judge held Petitioner to have been aware of the actions of which he now complained, as early as October, 1991, when the Board first attempted to abolish his position and establish the new, allegedly unrecognized position. The Court also noted that the job description for the new position was approved and posted in November, 1991, again suggesting that this implies knowledge, on the part of petitioner, whom the Court noted was "also charged with knowledge of the regulatory provisions ... published in the Administrative Code." On these grounds, the Administrative Law Judge held petitioner's efforts to raise these claims by amendment in 1993 to be timed-barred. Once again, the similarities are striking.

The final parallel between these two cases involves the commencement of discussions between counsel for the parties concerning the issue of the County Superintendent's role in determining the appropriate certification for the position at the heart of the Petition. In Halpern, the court noted that "the fact that (the attorneys) commenced having discussions about (County Superintendent's role) in or about May, 1992, does not alter the determination (to time-bar the amendment) since an attempted amendment, asserting additional claims, in May, 1992, would also have been time-barred." Id. at 23.

Here, the first discussion between counsel for the parties concerning the issue of recognition of the title, Director of Humanities, or Director of social Science/Art/Music, and the related issue of the propriety of the local requirement for additional certification, took place on January 6, 1995, during the course of the pre-hearing conference. In response to the Court's invitation to petitioner's attorney to file any amendments which might be in order, respondent's attorney noted that respondent would object to any attempt to amend the Petition to assert claims challenging the propriety of the job title or description.

The only subsequent discussion in these regards occurred while counsel for the parties were attempting to reach accord on the stipulated facts. As set forth in the attached Certification, petitioner's efforts to include the facts set forth in paragraphs 8 and 9 in the Stipulation were met with objection on the grounds that they were irrelevant to the claims made in the Petition. Counsel for the parties eventually agreed to include these facts, as stipulated, with the understanding that respondent considered these facts irrelevant and would assert the time-bar defense, on the grounds that no challenge to the propriety of the position or its certification requirements had been set forth in the Petition.

That said, even if an amendment had been sought (and the parties were offered the opportunity to move to amend their pleadings) following that January 6, 1995 discussion, such amendment would have been out of time with respect to any of the operative dates: the September 1, 1994, hiring of another for the position; the August 10, 1994, filing of the Petition; or the July 11, 1994, letter, from Superintendent Hicks to Petitioner Galbraith.

A function of a statue of limitation is a measure of repose. Ochs v. Federal Insurance Co., 90 N.J. 108 (1982). Even under egregious circumstances, such as those seen in Kaprow v. Berkeley Twp. Bd. of Educ., 255 N.J. Super. 76 (App. Div.1992), where respondent board of education failed, for several years, to maintain an eligibility list for the position of Assistant Superintendent (from which position petitioner had been RIFFED six years earlier), despite acknowledging its duty to do so, and failed to inform petitioner of positions for which he had tenure rights, again despite a request from (and commitment to) petitioner to do so, the importance of an even-handed application of the limitations period has been recognized. While it was the board in Kaprow whose inaction's precipitated the claim, petitioner's failure to file his claim until seven days after the ninety-day period had expired proved fatal. The circumstances here do not even hint at any culpable conduct, animus, or intentional wrongful conduct, and call for an evenhanded application of the limitations period.

In short, petitioner's efforts to now amend her petition, either actually on leave granted, or impliedly through the arguments raised in her brief, is time-barred and must be rejected.

POINT TWO

PETITIONER DOES NOT POSSESS THE REQUIRED CERTIFICATION FOR THE POSITION

The position of supervisor of Social Studies/Art/Music requires not only an administrative certificate, with supervisor's endorsement, it also requires a teaching certificate with an endorsement in one of the three subject areas to be supervised. Petitioner admits that her teaching certificate, with endorsement for English, is not endorsed for social studies, art or music. She is not entitled to the position.

In Point II of her brief, petitioner cites several cases in apparent support for her claim that she is entitled to the Humanities position. Her argument ignores the requirement of an appropriately endorsed teaching certificate. The petitioner's reliance upon the cited cases is misplaced. None of the cases relied upon by petitioner involves certification requirements for the sought-after position which differ from those of the eliminated position. It is in this distinguishing regard that each of these cases makes reference to petitioner's entitlement to a position "for which he/she is certified," or "for which the tenured staff member qualifies."

Capodilupo v. West Orange Twp. Ed., 218 Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987), for example, involved a physical education teacher, whose tenure was earned as a high school teacher, laying a tenure claim to the same position at the elementary school level. No different or additional certification requirements were involved. The Appellate division upheld the State Board's determination that petitioner had tenure "in all positions for which his instructional certificate qualified him." Id. at 514. (Emphasis added).

Similarly, petitioner in Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 221 Super. 239 (App. Div.1987), had tenure as a result of teaching art for seventeen years at the elementary level. His position was reduced to part time as a result of a RIF. The Court, reversing the State Board, held that Bednar's tenure entitled him to bump into a full time position as a high school art teacher, over the rights of a non-tenured occupant of that position.

In Mirandi v. Bd. of Ed. of Twp. of West Orange, Essex County, 1988 S.L.D. 1988, aff'd as mod. State Board, 1989 S.L.D. 3057, petitioner's principal's certificate entitled him to lay a tenure claim to a position as assistant principal of the middle school, even though he had only served in the position of high school assistant principal. His principal's certificate was held to be "valid for all levels," giving him tenure in "a position for which such person shall be qualified." Id. at 3062.

Petitioner principally relies upon Schaeffer v. Bd. of Ed. of South Orange-Maplewood, 1988 S.L.D. 553, aff'd State Bd. 1989 S.L.D. 3077, and Herbert v. Middletown Bd. of Ed., 1989 S.L.D. 2148, aff'd State Bd. 1990 S.L.D. 1759, aff'd App. Div. (unpublished opinion attached to petitioner's brief). Neither case deals with additional/different certification requirements. Neither furthers petitioner's cause.

Schaeffer was a tenured junior and middle school English Department Chairperson. He was held entitled, by tenure, to the new position of district-wide Director of Language Arts/English (K-8). Both the RIFFED position and the new position required a supervisor's certificate, which Schaeffer possessed. Nothing disqualified petitioner from the new position.

Herbert is similarly unenlightening. The job description for the new position of Supervisor of Special Services called for a supervisors endorsement to an administrative certificate and three years experience in special education. Petitioner had the required certificate and tenure as a supervisor. The appointee was certified and had the experience called for, but was not tenured as a supervisor. The three years experience requirement was an invalid attempt to place seniority above tenure rights. Locally imposed requirements for background experience or personal qualities, perhaps appropriate for screening purposes, cannot be used to defeat a riffed, tenured employee's claim to a position. See, South River Educ. Assoc. v. South River Bd. of Ed., 1987 S.L.D. 2724.

Petitioner attempts to convert the singular principle sustained in the cases discussed above - tenure under a certificate entitles one to a position requiring that certificate over one who does not have tenure under the certificate - into an argument that respondent cannot require two certificates for the position at issue - Supervisor of Social Studies/Art/Music at Cherokee High School. There is no nexus between the line of cases offered by petitioner and this theory. Moreover, there is no legal authority for this proposition.

In Dennery v. Bd. of Ed., 131 N.J. 626, 638 (1993), the Supreme Court said it was "unable to conclude ... that the requirement of two certificates to qualify for a single education position is anomalous, arbitrary, or irrational. Nor is it unlawful or invalid." Thus, on its face, the requirement for two certificates for the position at issue in this matter is not invalid, and does not afford petitioner any basis to claim a tenure claim that the position is invalid, the only basis for overturning the respondent's action would be a finding of facial invalidity of the two certification requirement. Such a finding would be inconsistent with Dennery.

Nonetheless, petitioner argues that there are sufficient stipulated facts upon which this tribunal can determine that "there are not enough substantial duties for the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music to allow the local requirement of an instructional certificate in one of those areas to defeat petitioner's tenure rights as a supervisor." (petitioner's brief, page 12.) This is simply not true.

First, petitioner chose to go forward without setting out any challenge to the validity of the position or its requirements as contained in the long standing job description. As discussed in Point I, supra, Petitioner is now barred from asserting that challenge. Second, petitioner chose to proceed on the record as set forth in the stipulated facts. Those stipulated facts are a plainly insufficient basis upon which this Court could determine to overturn the decision of Respondent Board of Education to require that subject area supervisors be qualified to teach in the area of supervision. The record simply does not allow a finding that the respondent's actions are arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of its discretion, or unreasonable.

In that regard, there is nothing to suggest any ill motive or purpose in the drafting of the job description at issue. Indeed, the job description and the two certification requirement predate this petition by two decades. The subject area teaching certification requirement is applied across the board - to all twenty-four supervisors positions.

An arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable analysis focuses on the reasons for the challenged action and petitioner bears the burden of proving that the challenged action deserves one of these adjectives. Petitioner has failed to meet her burden here. In Gargano v. Bd. of Ed. Twp. of Union, Union County, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 670, the board's decision to assign petitioner, a supervisor, to teach three (rather than the usual two) classes in addition to performing his supervisory duties, was held to be based upon fundamentally sound educational reasons, including: his familiarly with the curriculum (having helped develop it); the fact that he had taught in the past; budget considerations and the concomitant need for flexibility in staffing decisions; and various logistical considerations.

> "In short, while one legitimately may take issue with the exercise of the managerial judgment made in Gargano's case, there were fundamentally sound educational reasons to support that decision. It was Gargano's burden, not that of respondent, to prove that the decision was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable, and he failed to do so." Id. at 673.

The same can be said here. Petitioner may disagree with respondent's decision, but she has failed to show that there is any basis to overturn it.

For all of the foregoing reasons, the Petition should be dismissed.

PETITIONER'S REPLY

The facts in this matter are essentially uncontroverted and are stipulated. Petitioner has attained tenure as a "supervisor" in the Lenape Regional High School District. Respondent erroneously contends that petitioner has tenure as a "supervisor of curriculum/Community Relations." Petitioner clearly and unequivocally has tenure as a "supervisor". See all cases cited petitioner's brief.

The other relevant facts are that on June 21, 1994, respondent abolished the position of district supervisor of Curriculum/Community Relations and notified petitioner that she would be reassigned to her former position as teacher. As a result of a retirement on or about July 5, 1994, the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music became vacant. The qualifications for the aforesaid position as set forth in the job description requires an administrative certificate with an endorsement as supervisor, principal or school administrator and an instructional certificate with an endorsement in social studies, art or music. It is equally uncontroverted that petitioner is the holder of the administrative certificate with an endorsement as principal and supervisor. In fact, petitioner has attained tenure as a supervisor under this certificate and endorsement. It is also uncontroverted that petitioner has an Instructional certificate with a Teacher of English endorsement and has attained tenure as a teacher. Petitioner does not have an endorsement in social studies, art or music.

The issues in this matter are set forth in the Prehearing Order and are:

1. Whether petitioner, a riffed Supervisor in the Board's employ, is entitled to the position of Supervisor of Humanities, or any other supervisor position held by a nontenured supervisor, which was vacant subsequent to petitioner's reduction in force?

2. Whether petitioner holds that appropriate certificate to qualify for the position of Supervisor of Humanities?

3. Whether the Petition of Appeal is time barred by the applicable period of limitations?

With regards to Issue #3 as to whether this matter is time barred. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) indicates that petitions are to be filed no later than the 90th day after notice of the action by the district board of education. Respondent abolished petitioner's position on June 21, 1994 and notified petitioner in a letter, dated June 23, 1994. On June 5, 1994, the position at issue in this matter became vacant. (See stipulations). The petition was filed on August 11, 1994. By all measures, the petition was clearly filed within the 90 day period of limitations.

Respondent argues that petitioner had notice on May 18, 1994, that the superintendent would be recommending the abolishment of her position. It is well established in New Jersey school law that the superintendent's recommendation does not constitute action by a district board of education. However even assuming arguendo, but not conceding, that the May 18, 1994, meeting placed petitioner on notice and started the clock ticking, the petition was filed on the 85th day from May 18 and is still within the regulatory timeline. Therefore, respondent's affirmative defense that the matter is time barred is unfounded and fails.

There is no basis for respondent to contend that petitioner did not put the propriety of the local requirement of additional certification at issue in the petition. Petitioner's contention that she is entitled to a supervisor position held by a non-tenured supervisor is set forth in paragraphs 6 and 8 of the petition. Respondent admits in paragraph 6 of its answer that petitioner is not certified for the position and the issue is enumerated in the prehearing order. Respondent has opined from the onset of this matter that due to petitioner's lack of a subject matter endorsement in social studies, music or art, she is not entitled to the supervisor position at issue. Petitioner has opined that her tenure as a supervisor entitles her to the position over a non-tenured supervisor. The issue was known to respondent from the onset of this matter, (Stipulations - Exhibit 2; admitted paragraph 6 of Answer), respondent raised the issue as an affirmative defense in its answer and the issue is clearly enumerated in the prehearing order. There is no merit whatsoever to respondent's argument that the question of whether the local requirement of an instructional certificate can thwart petitioner's tenure rights as a supervisor is somehow time barred.

With regards to issue #1 as to whether petitioner is entitled as a tenured supervisor to any supervisor position held by a non-tenured supervisor, the long line of cases set forth in petitioner's brief supports the position that she is entitled to said position. The cases further hold that a person attains tenure as a "supervisor" and not as respondent incorrectly contends as a "supervisor of something," in this matter Supervisor of Curriculum/Community Relations. It is well-established in the caselaw cited in petitioner's brief that a person attains tenure as a "supervisor" because that endorsement is generic and authorizes the holder to supervisor any subject matter and any grade level. See N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(c).

The issue for the Administrative Law Judge to decide is issue #2, whether petitioner holds the appropriate certificate for the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Music/Art. Respondent in its brief essentially relies on two decisions, Halpern v. Delran Bd. of Ed., 94 N.J.A.R. 2d 22 and Dennery v. Passaic Co. Reg. Bd. of Ed., 131 N.J. 626 (1993) for its argument that petitioner does not have appropriate certification. The facts in Halpern, were that the Board of Education eliminated Halpern's position of Coordinator, in which he was tenured as a supervisor, and created a position of Director because the latter position required a principal endorsement which is a separately tenurable position under the school law. The facts in the Halpern matter are not analogous to this matter and an application of Commissioner's holding in Halpern is irrelevant to this matter.

In the current matter, the issue revolves around the local requirement of two certificates and the endorsements under those certificates. The cases dealing with this issue are few. The cases relevant to deciding this issue are Dennery, supra., Tinko et al v. Bridgewater-Raritan Bd. of Ed., supra., So. River Ed. Assn. v. So. River Bd. of Ed., supra., and Herbert v. Middletown Bd. of Ed., supra. Petitioner has analyzed the decision in Timko, supra., So. River, supra., and Herbert, supra., in her brief and shall rely upon that analysis herein. Timko, supra., is the only decision dealing with the same set of facts as in this matter. It must be noted that the Commissioner determined on page 20 of the slip opinion of the June 19, 1991 decision that:

> As to the arguments raised about local certification requirements, it must be emphasized that there is nothing to prevent a board of education from having such requirements but those requirements cannot thwart the tenure rights of a staff member on a preferred eligibility list.

The State Board remanded on page 9 of its slip opinion of its decision for a determination of whether the duties were of such a nature to require an instructional certificate in addition to supervisor in order to be authorized to perform the duties. Petitioner has addressed this issue in her brief.

The other question then becomes whether this matter is distinguishable from the Supreme Court decision in Dennery, supra. For the reasons that follow, petitioner contends that Dennery is distinguishable. In Dennery, the Board of Education abolished the positions of guidance counselor and replaced those positions with Area Supervisors, a position which required an administrative certificate. In Dennery, petitioner had attained tenure under her educational services certificate, but had no actual experience under the administrative certificate. In this matter, it is uncontroverted that petitioner has tenure and actual experience under her administrative certificate as a supervisor. It is equally uncontroverted that petitioner has tenure and actual experience as a teacher under her Instructional certificate. (Stipulation of Facts, #2). In respect to tenure and actual experience under two certificates, petitioner has both. The Supreme Court went on to state:

> The Legislature has delegated the responsibility for the regulation and administration of public education tenure to the State Board. The State Board, in turn, has established comprehensive and detailed regulations governing tenure. Those regulations cover the certification of education personnel. N.J.A.C. 6:11. The state board of examiners is authorized to "grant appropriate certificates to teach or to administer, direct or supervise, the teaching, instruction, or educational guidance in public schools." 131 N.J. at 633.

The State Board of Education has authorized the holder of an administrative certificate with a supervisor endorsement "with authority and responsibility for the continuing direction and guidance of the work of instructional personnel." N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(c). The endorsement is generic. It authorizes the supervision of any subject matter and any grade level. Petitioner, by holding this endorsement, is properly authorized to supervise teachers of social studies, art, music or any other subject discipline. In the vernacular, petitioner is properly certified for the position.

With regards to petitioner's instructional certificate, she has actual service under that certificate and has attained tenure as a teacher. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. It is uncontroverted that petitioner has attained tenure as a teacher under her instructional certificate. This fact distinguishes this matter from Dennery. Ms. Dennery had attained tenure under her educational services certificate, but she had no actual experience under her administrative certificate. The Supreme Court determined that Dennery could not transfer her tenure under her educational services certificate, since she had no actual experience under the administrative certificate. In this matter, petitioner has actual service under both her administrative certificate and her instructional certificate. In fact, she has tenure as both a supervisor and a teacher.

The Court went on to note that the State Board of Education is authorized by the legislature "to fashion standards and promulgate guidelines concerning the qualification and certification of public educators within the State." 131 N.J. at 637. In the instant matter, the State Board has authorized the holder of the administrative certificate with the supervisor endorsement to supervise any subject matter and any grade level. Petitioner is the holder of said certificate and endorsement. Accordingly, she is properly certified to hold the position of Supervisor of Social Studies/Art/Music and is entitled to the position based upon her tenure as a supervisor. As noted by the commissioner in Timko, supra., the local requirement on an instructional certificate cannot thwart petitioner's tenure rights as a supervisor.

For all the foregoing reasons, petitioner respectfully requests that the Administrative Law Judge find and determine that petitioner holds the appropriate certificate and is entitled to the position of supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music. It is further requested that the ALJ Order respondent to employ petitioner in the aforesaid position with all salary, benefits and emoluments, retroactive to September 1, 1994.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The Commissioner's decision in Rogers v. Highland Park Bd. of Ed., 1990 S.L.D. 685, aff'd State Board 1990 S.L.D. 691, sums up the law and regulations with respect to the instant matter. In Rogers, supra., the Commissioner expressly held that there is no such entity as a subject matter supervisor certificate. Rather, a supervisory certificate is general in nature and not specific to a subject area. The Commissioner further held in Rogers that with the acquisition of tenure as a supervisor, and a subsequent reduction in force which affects that tenured supervisor, the riffed supervisor is entitled to any position held by a nontenured supervisor. Id. at 689. The State Board affirmed the Commissioner's decision at 1990 S.L.D. 691.

Here, it is uncontroverted that petitioner has acquired a tenure status as a supervisor and was subject to a reduction in force. It is equally clear that subsequent to petitioner's reduction in force, the Board engaged a nontenured supervisor for the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music and bypassed petitioner for the position. The Board asserts that petitioner is not qualified for the supervisory position because petitioner lacks an instructional certificate with an endorsement in social studies, art or music. As with the Board in Highland Park in Rogers, the herein Board is mistaken. Petitioner is entitled to the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music over the nontenured supervisor by virtue of her tenure and seniority as a Supervisor in the Board's employ.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioner, Dr. F. Lynn Galbraith, is entitled to the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music by virtue of her acquired tenure and seniority as a supervisor with the Board.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that petitioner, Dr. F. Lynn Galbraith, be placed into the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music immediately with all salary benefits and other emoluments to which she is entitled, retroactive to September 1, 1994.

It is further ORDERED that Summary Decision be ENTERED on behalf of petitioner and the Board's motion for Summary Decision is hereby DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE LENAPE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Respondent Board's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), contending, inter alia, that petitioner is not entitled to superior seniority rights entitling her to the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music. The Board argues that "the position  requires an instructional certificate endorsed in one of the subject areas to be supervised --a requirement which Petitioner admittedly does not satisfy." (Board's Exceptions at p. 2) It argues, citing Halpern, supra, that petitioner can thereby only succeed in her claim by having the position title declared invalid, that petitioner did not assert a challenge of the local requirements within the regulatory timeline and, thus, petitioner failed to meet her burden of proof not having developed the record necessary to support the conclusion she seeks. (Board's Exceptions at pp. 2-3) Additionally, the Board states that the petition was filed in an untimely manner. (Id. at p. 1)

In her reply, petitioner argues that the ALJ's initial decision was correct and should be affirmed. (Petitioner's Reply Exceptions at p. 1) Petitioner distinguishes the facts in Halpern, supra, from the present case by pointing out that the case involved a supervisor seeking a position requiring a principal endorsement, a separately tenurable position. Petitioner contends that Halpern is not analogous to the present case involving a tenured supervisor seeking a supervisor position and is, therefore, irrelevant. (Petitioner's Reply Exceptions at p. 2)

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that petitioner is entitled to the position in question based on applicable laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10; N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. The law is well-settled that a supervisor endorsement is generic and authorizes the holder to supervise any subject matter and any grade level. N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(c); Rogers, supra. Moreover, while there is nothing to prevent a local board from establishing additional instructional certification requirements, absent a showing that instructional certification is necessary to perform the duties of the position at issue, such requirements cannot sidestep the educator's tenure rights on a preferred eligibility list of supervisors. See Dennery, supra, at 639, 640 and Timko, supra.

In so finding, the Commissioner is satisfied that the ALJ squarely addressed the issues requested for clarification in the Board's exceptions, including timeliness, and that he need not address such issues further. See Initial Decision at pp. 24-25.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law and orders that Petitioner F. Lynn Galbraith be immediately placed in the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music with back pay and compensation for benefits lost retroactive to September 1, 1994.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE LENAPE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 12, 1996

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Wayne J. Oppito, Esq.

For the Respondent-Appellant, Archer & Greiner (William H. Kenney, Esq., of Counsel)

The decision of the Commissioner of Education concluding that the district Board had violated the tenure rights of petitioner, a tenured teaching staff member, when it failed to appoint her to the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music is affirmed as modified herein. We find no indication in the record that the duties attending the controverted position are of such character as to require possession of an instructional certification in the subject field in addition to certification as a supervisor in order to be authorized by statute and regulation to perform such functions. See Herbert v. Board of Education of the Township of Middletown, decided by the State Board, August 1, 1990, aff'd, Docket #A-318-90T1 (App. Div. 1991); Timko and Mikush v. Board of Education of the Bridgewater-Raritan Regional School District, decided by the State Board, July 1, 1992, decision on remand by the Commissioner, June 13, 1994, aff'd by the State Board, November 2, 1994. Nor is there any indication in the record that the County Superintendent had determined that dual certification was appropriate for this particular unrecognized position title. See N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3.

However, we correct the Commissioner's assertion that the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") "squarely addressed" the Board's contention that the petition herein was time-barred under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). The ALJ's review of the timeliness issue, including that section of the initial decision cited by the Commissioner, was simply a verbatim recitation of the parties' arguments set forth in their briefs. The ALJ neither addressed the issue further nor rendered a determination thereon. Nonetheless, given our authority as the ultimate administrative factfinder and decision-maker in school matters, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Lynn Jenisch Tyler, 236 N.J. Super. 478, 485 (App. Div. 1989), certif. den., 121 N.J. 615 (1990); Dore v. Bedminster Tp. Bd. of Ed., 185 N.J. Super. 447, 452 (App. Div. 1982), we have conducted our own review.

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) requires a petition to be filed with the Commissioner "no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education...which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing." The facts in this case, as stipulated by the parties, indicate that the Board abolished petitioner's supervisory position in a reduction in force on June 21, 1994. On or about July 5, 1994, a vacancy occurred in the position of Supervisor-Social Studies/Art/Music. In a letter dated July 8, 1994, petitioner wrote to the Superintendent of Schools requesting placement in that position by virtue of her tenure rights as a supervisor. In a reply letter dated July 11, the Superintendent denied petitioner's request, stating that petitioner was not qualified for the position since the job description adopted by the Board required possession of an instructional certificate with an endorsement in social studies, art or music, in addition to certification as a supervisor. Petitioner filed the instant petition on August 11, 1994, alleging that the Board had violated her tenure rights in failing to assign her to that position. On or about September 1, 1994, the Board assigned a non-tenured individual to the position.

In that petitioner filed her petition with the Commissioner within 90 days after the Superintendent rejected her tenure claim to such position, we conclude that she complied with the terms of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), and we reject the Board's contention that the petition was not filed in a timely manner. The fact that the petition does not specifically challenge the Board's dual certification requirement for that position does not alter the result. The petitioner expressly claimed that the Board had violated her tenure rights by failing to appoint her to the vacant supervisory position at issue herein.

We therefore affirm the decision of the Commissioner as modified herein.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning private, for-profit school for the handicapped, together with its owner/operators, contended that the State Board and State Department of Education improperly adopted and applied to them a regulation (N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)47) excluding certain rental costs from the rate of tuition chargeable to public school districts, specifically, excess rental charges attributed to a sale and leaseback arrangement, wherein a facility is sold to another entity and then leased back at a cost higher than would have been incurred had the facility not been sold. Petitioners contended that their rental arrangement did not constitute a sale and leaseback.

ALJ found that petitioners' rental arrangement did in fact constitute a sale and leaseback within the purview of the regulation, so that the State Department acted properly in applying the regulation to petitioners. ALJ further found no impropriety in State Board's adoption of the regulation at issue. Petition was dismissed.

Based on independent review of record, Commissioner concurred with ALJ's conclusions and dismissed appeal.

Record Closed: May 25, 1995 Decided: June 30, 1995

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

The petitioners, who operate a private, for profit school for exceptional pupils charge that the State Board and State Department of Education improperly adopted and applied to them certain regulations concerning certain costs calculations and affecting the maximum tuition the school may charge.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. One day of hearing was held on April 10, 1995, and the last post hearing submission was received on May 25, 1995.

Coastal Learning Center, Inc. (Coastal) is a New Jersey for profit corporation that operates a private, state-approved school for the handicapped pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-14(g). Coastal began operation in or about 1974. The school presently has three campuses: one in Howell, Monmouth County; one in Morganville, Monmouth County and one in Tuckerton, Ocean County. The clientele is children who have been classified as emotionally disturbed. The classification is made by Child Study Teams (CSTs) employed by local boards of education. Coastal receives tuition monies from the local public school districts that send children to it. The State Board of Education regulates the calculation of tuition. N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.1 through -4.11.

In 1990, the State Board limited the amount of rent that may be included in the tuition rate charged by a private school for the handicapped when its facility is sold and leased back. See, 22 N.J.R. 2637-2639 and 22 N.J.R. 3738-3740.

Coastal's fiscal year (FY) runs from July 1 through June 30, as does the FY of most public school districts. Coastal must provide at least 180 days of pupil instruction. N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.1(a)1. Coastal is given a tentative tuition rate from the Commissioner prior to the start of the school year. N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.1(f). Coastal charges the public school districts this tentative rate during the school year. After the school year ends, but before November 1, Coastal must file a certified audit with the Department. N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.8. The audit serves two purposes. First, the auditor calculates the school's actual cost per pupil, N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.8(c), and second, during this process, the auditor verifies that the school spent the tuition monies it received on "allowable costs."

This dispute focuses on N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)47. The rule addresses non-allowable costs. It states that a cost which is not allowable in the calculation of the certified actual cost per pupil includes the following . . . "47. Rental costs under sale and leaseback arrangements in excess of the amount that would be incurred had the organization continued to own the property." The parties differ as to what this means.

PAROL AND DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE

Ronald Boedart, a shareholder and officer of Coastal, testified that Coastal has rented the Howell Township facility since 1980. The facility contains approximately 8,000 square feet and sits on approximately five acres. It has ten classrooms and office space. Coastal leased the facility from Metedeconk Enterprises, Inc., from 1980-1982. Coastal leased the facility from Penta Associates from 1982-December 31, 1986. It leased from Arnold Associates from January 1, 1987 through the present. At no point between 1980 and 1990 did the Department disallow the lease amounts that Coastal paid to any of the lessors.

The leases between Coastal and Penta Associates for the term July 1984-June 1989 and the agreement between Coastal and Arnold Associates, December 30, 1986-June 30, 1997 were introduced into evidence as P-3 and P-4, respectively. Boedart gave the ownership history of the property. It was originally purchased by Metedeconk in 1979 or 1980. Metedeconk constructed the school building by substantially renovating an existing structure. Boedart also stated he was a shareholder of Metedeconk and that Metedeconk is a New Jersey corporation. The other shareholders of Metedeconk are Joseph Scalabirini, Robert Viscomi, Frank Viscomi and John Bruenig. The five shareholders of Metedeconk are also the five shareholders of Coastal. Penta Associates is a New Jersey partnership and the same five persons are the partners of Penta.

In or about 1982, Metedeconk deeded the Howell school building to Penta. No money was exchanged in the transaction and the transfer was made based upon advise from the group's then attorney. Penta sold the Howell building to Arnold on December 31, 1986 for $685.000 (P-

1). The December 31, 1986 deed transferring the property was introduced as P-2. The agreement of sale is between First Dover Properties, Inc. and Penta Associates. Boedart testified that prior to the closing, First Dover assigned its contractual rights to Arnold. The witness stated that paragraph 18 of the sales agreement (P-1) permits such an assignment. The record shows that the actual document that assigned First Dover's rights in the contract to Arnold was provided to the respondents at hearing. The deed (P-2) is from Penta to Arnold which verifies that the sales transaction was from Penta to Arnold.

Boedart further testified that Bruce Bowe, Don Jump and Francis P. Piscal are the partners comprising Arnold. Bowe was Coastal's certified public accountant prior to 1986, but not after. Boedart stated that no one associated with Coastal - or close family members - has an interest in Arnold or First Dover. He also stated that the transfer between Penta and Arnold was an arms-length transaction and that no one associated with Penta has any right to purchase the facility in the future. No one associated with Coastal has any right to purchase the facility in the future. I take this to mean that there are no reverter clauses and I further take this mean that although there is no right to repurchase neither is there any prohibition against repurchase.

Boedart also testified that Coastal at no time owned the Howell building property. Exhibit R-1, Consent to Corporate Action dated January 30, 1979, states in pertinent part:

> WHEREAS, this corporation, having changed its name from Garden State Educational Consultants, Inc., is the contract purchaser of a contract dated March 29, 1978 between Robert W. and Theresa J. Sellers and this corporation;
> NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED the Board of Directors of the corporation consider it to be in the best interest of the corporation to transfer its entire right and interest in the March 29, 1978 contract to Metedeconk Enterprises, Inc.

Boedart further testified Arnold did not assume Coastal's lease with Penta, which lease term expired in June 1989. Coastal and Arnold entered into a separate lease agreement that extends the lease from 1989 to 1997 (P-4). The lease amounts Coastal paid to Arnold were comparable to what Coastal pays for its Morganville property. Coastal desired a lease extension with Arnold in order to ensure that it had a secure location for the future. Coastal had "lost" its school building in Lakewood in 1980. The idea of a secure location was thus much in Coastal's collective mind.

Boedart also stated that Penta sold the property for several reasons. The capital gains tax law was being repealed as of December 31, 1986. Therefore, there were tax advantages in selling the property on or before that date. The effective capital gains tax rate was approximately 15 percent compared to the 30 percent plus rate in effect after that date.

Paragraph ten of the Contract of Sale provided that Penta could cancel the deal if closing did not occur on or before December 31, 1986. In September 1986, the State Board added an additional non-allowable cost item concerning leasehold charges in transactions between related parties. The regulation limited the amount of rent a private school could include in its tuition rate in related party transactions to the related party landlord's actual cost of ownership. This seemed to be an disincentive for related party transactions. The Penta partners each had personal reasons for wanting to sell the property. The witness had two children going to college and would certainly need money for that purpose.

Coastal engaged a certified public accountant (CPA). The accountant is also a Public School Accountant. He testified that he had performed audits for seven private schools for handicapped children since 1986. He was recently appointed chair of the New Jersey Society of CPA's Government Auditing and Accounting Committee. The witnesses' six-page report was submitted in evidence in lieu of direct testimony (P-7). The sole issue to which the CPA testified was whether or not the sale from Penta to Arnold was a sale-leaseback arrangement. The witness stated this was the type of issue that a private school auditor would address during an audit. In his report and in other examination, the witness stated that, in his professional opinion, the sale from Penta to Arnold on December 31, 1986 was not a sale-leaseback arrangement. He relied for his conclusion primarily upon generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP). N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.3(a)(1) sets forth that private schools' accounts must be kept in accordance with GAAP unless the regulations specifically modifiy GAAP. In this case, the regulations provided no specific definition of the term "sale and leaseback arrangement" and, hence, did not modify GAAP. He concluded that in this case, GAAP should be used to provide assistance in defining the term.

The witness stated he reviewed the following documents and relied on the following facts in reaching his conclusion:

1. The verified complaint;
2. The agreement of sale between Penta and First Dover (P-1). Scott testified he understood this contract was assigned by First Dover to Arnold;
3. The deed transferring the property from Penta to Arnold (P-2);
4. The summary of comments prepared by the Department of Education which define the term (P-3);
5. The fact that Penta did not lease the premises subsequent to the sale to Arnold on December 31, 1986;
6. The fact that there were no reverter clauses involved in the sale from Penta to Arnold;
7. The fact that Coastal never owned of the property.

The witness also stated he had not specifically reviewed the leasehold agreement between Coastal and Arnold, although he was aware of the fact that Coastal was currently leasing the property from Arnold. A review of the lease was not necessary, in his opinion, because he was asked to determine whether or not the Penta sale to Arnold was a sale-leaseback.

The witness also stated he reviewed Coastal's answers to Department interrogatories, Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) Statements 66 and 98 and the facts in his report, P-7. If any assumed facts were incorrect, it could have affect his opinion.

Scott's report opines that a sales-leaseback includes a reverter clause. There are eight criteria for determining the existence of a sales-leaseback arrangement. They are not present in this transaction so the witness believes there is no sale and leaseback here.

The witness knew that the Penta owners and the Coastal owners were the same persons. On page 3 of his report he notes the December 31, 1986 sale from Penta to Arnold. "Arnold" does not appear in the contract. The witness looked at the substance of the transaction more than the form. Based on what he knew, the owners of Arnold were three distinct individuals. He deduced this from the documents, however, having had no discussion with Boedart, Scalabirini, Bruenig or Viscomi. The deed recites that this is an at arms-length transaction.

The witness did not know who did prior audits. Neither did he know that Boedart had written to the Department. Because he saw no reverter, or reserved future interest, he made an inquiry and asked for any addenda or codicils to the papers he had reviewed. None were forthcoming. The lease cites a term of ten years. It actually is ten and one-half years, ending on December 31, 1997. The witness stated that for the years 1980-1985, Penta charged Coastal rent based on a comparable commercial square footage rental rate. This was submitted to the Commissioner in the school's annual budget for tuition rate approval. The annual budgets were approved as submitted. The allowability for the rent was based on N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.1(a)1. The witness was not aware of the adoption date of that rule, but stated it was used for the period 1980-1985. On page 4 of his report, he cites the rule again and states that it became effective in September 1986. The witness began special education audits in 1986, after the rule changes.

In reference to FASB Bulletins 66 and 98, the witness stated that 66 addresses accounting of sales of real estate and sets forth criteria for each transaction and illustrates how each should be reported. Publication 98 deals with accounting for leases including sale-leasebacks and sales-type leases and the document defines lease term. The glossary defines sale-leaseback accounting. The accounting literature defines sale-leaseback. Here, GAAP are modified by regulations. Coastal presently is putting all rent into the tuition calculation. Coastal had had a stay of the regulation, but the stay was dissolved. The witness conceded a certified audit is not the final word in matters of this type. He did not look at the subject lease. He looked at accounting literature concerning sale-leasebacks and concentrated on the risk and reward being transferred to the purchaser.

The objective of a sale-leaseback is for the seller to sell at fair market value and retain the right to repurchase at the end of the lease term at a favorable price. The seller gains cash flow and only temporarily surrenders ownership. Fair market value is generally understood to be appraised value or the price that a willing seller would pay to a willing buyer in an arm's length transaction. Not all sale-leasebacks have reverters and not all allow the seller to repurchase.

The subject regulation implies reverter, in his opinion, in its definition of sale-leaseback, although the actual words do not appear. He believes the same to be true as to any way in which the original seller takes back the property.

In GAAP for governments, there is no requirement of a reverter to be in a sale-leaseback but there are other criteria applied that come from FASB publication 98. The witness stated he defines sale-leaseback using the criteria from FASB publication 98.

The deputy attorney general examined the witness on FASB publication 98. The witness acknowledged and the document shows that under Criteria for Sale-Leaseback Accounting, sale-leaseback accounting shall be used by a seller-lessee only if a sale-leaseback transaction includes all of the following: ". . . Payment terms and provisions that transfer all of the other risks and rewards of ownership as demonstrated by the absence of any other continuing involvement by the seller-lessee described in paragraphs 11-13 of this Statement . . . ." [Emphasis in original.] The witness stated much depends on how much risk is transferred to the purchaser.

A normal leaseback in defined in the publication as "a lessee-lessor relationship that involves the active use of the property by the seller-lessee in consideration for payment of rent, including contingent rentals that are based on the future operations of the seller-lessee and excludes other continuing involvement provisions or conditions . . . ." The publication clearly uses the word "excludes." The witness stated he believes this to be a typographical error and that the word should be "includes." In his opinion, the ten factors referred to are those that a normal sale-leaseback must include. FASB publication 98 says in a normal leaseback one must exclude these factors.

Concerning paragraph 9 on page 5 of the publication, the witness stated he has seen sale-leasebacks without reverters. These usually have to do with equipment, not real property. A capital lease would be treated under FASB publication 13. N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)47 is not limited to real estate.

A normal sale-leaseback could vary because he uses the modifier "normal period." There could be several accounting methods applied. Using his judgment, according to GAAP he consulted the FASB glossary. He also consulted the Bureau of National Affairs (BNA) tax management materials. The witness knew this question was previously litigated but did not know that a consultant at that time said this sale was a sale-leaseback.

The administrative code is not clear in that it gives no definition of sale-leaseback. Therefore, the witness relied on GAAP. The language in New Jersey Administrative Code is the same used by the Federal Government. The witness was familiar with federal circulars and stated that they give no more definition than does the New Jersey Administrative Code.

The witness reviewed the Department Education Matrix (P-5). He cannot say what the legal effect is and he cannot say if it was adopted when published by the State Board. He took the exhibit as fact. If a particular part is not factual or correct, that could influence his outcome.

Regulations have little effect on his opinion even if he cited them wrongly. When he applies paragraphs 11-13 of FASB publication 98, this transaction is not a sale-leaseback. The buyer/lessor owns the property. The buyer/lessor has not alienated the property to the witness' knowledge. All risks were transfer to the new owner, Arnold. There is no leaseback from Arnold. Subsection 47 says "had the organization continued to own the property." The witness did not ask about any other lease. The only transaction he examined was between Penta and Arnold. The witness conceded that a related party could include only operating costs plus 2.5 percent in its calculations.

The witness also answered a series of questions concerning regulation changes, transfer to a related corporation for lease holding purposes and spinning off an asset while retaining common control of the asset.

DETERMINATION AND ORDER

Petitioners' Arguments

The petitioners assert that Penta's sale of the Howell property to Arnold is not a sale-leaseback arrangement according to GAAP. Therefore, N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)47 does not apply to Coastal's lease arrangement with Arnold. The code clearly says, "A cost which is nonallowable in the calculation of the certified actual cost per pupil includes the following: . . . 47. Rental costs under sale and leaseback arrangements in excess of the amount that would have been incurred had the organization continued to own the property." According to the petitioners, the crucial language is the phrase "sale and leaseback arrangement." If a leasehold arrangement is not a sale-leaseback, the regulation is not triggered. The petitioners state that the sale from Penta to Arnold is not a sale-leaseback arrangement. The regulation does not apply to Coastal's lease from Arnold.

Because the regulations do not provide a definition of sale-leaseback, reference to GAAP is necessary. N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.3(a)1 states that "Accounts shall be kept in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP) as defined by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, except as already modified in the rules."

The petitioners' CPA testified that Penta was not actively using the property after the sale, there was no repurchase agreement or option to repurchase, and the risk of ownership passed from Penta to Arnold at closing of title. The CPA correctly stated the elements of the GAAP definition of sale-leaseback. He also cited the BNA definition that says a sale-leaseback typically involves execution of two transactions.

The petitioners cite Y.A.L.E. School v. Department of Education, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU 571 (1992)). In that case, the allowability of a number of cost items was addressed. One item was landscaping expenses. The amount paid was $4,425 and Y.A.L.E. charged it as a teaching supply. The Department disallowed the cost during an audit, stating that the amount should have been capitalized and depreciated as an improvement to the school facilities. N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.3(a)3. That code section states that a fixed asset expenditure of $1,000 or more shall be capitalized and depreciated. At hearing, Y.A.L.E. argued counter to this and stated that according to GAAP, only expenditures which increase "the capacity or operating efficiency of an asset should be capitalized and minor expenditures should be expensed." Y.A.L.E., above at 578. Despite the specific reference in code, Y.A.L.E. claimed that this item should be expensed and not capitalized. The judge cited N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.3(a)1 and noted that GAAP applied to the accounting and bookkeeping systems for private schools for the handicapped. However, the judge took further note that in certain cases GAAP maybe modified by the rules, stating that "where the regulations themselves modify accounting principles which might otherwise be defined by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, the rules and regulations take precedence." Ibid.

In Y.A.L.E., the judge agreed with the Department analysis and pointed out that the code specifically sets forth that a "fixed asset expenditure of $1,000 or more shall be capitalized and depreciated . . . ." The judge then held that "generally accepted accounting principles as they apply to the treatment of fixed asset expenditures of $1,000 or more are superseded by N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.3[a]3." Based on this ruling, the remaining issue was whether landscaping and planting were fixed assets which would trigger the capitalization rule. The deputy attorney general cited an accounting text that stated landscaping and planting constitute a fixed asset. Thus, the Department's counsel obviously looked outside the regulations and to GAAP standards regarding the definition of the term fixed asset because the regulations did not provide otherwise.

In the present case, GAAP are not superseded because the regulations do not explicitly provide a definition of sale-leaseback. In fact, the regulations provide no guidance at all. In this case, GAAP must be used to define the term.

The petitioners also assert that the history of the regulation shows that the Penta sale to Arnold is not a sale-leaseback arrangement and thus, the regulation does not apply to Coastal's lease with Arnold. On September 4, 1990, the rule was proposed in the New Jersey Register. 22 N.J.R. 2633. The essence of the statements was that the nonallowable cost items were being proposed to prohibit business practices which were inconsistent with the administration of public funds dedicated to special education. There was no mention as to what the term sale-leaseback arrangement met. Exhibit P-6, prepared by the Department, defines the term sale-leaseback as "a seller agrees to sell a property to a third party on the condition that the property is leased back to the original owner." The definition adds that "typically at the end of the lease the property is generally sold back to the original seller at a nominal sum" thus allowing the owner to obtain profit twice.

Even if this tribunal rules that N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)47 applies to the Coastal and Arnold lease, the regulation still is void because it impairs Coastal's contractual rights. Coastal cites Penta Associates II and Coastal Learning Center v. New Jersey Department of Education, 1989 S.L.D. 1682 (Mar. 23, 1989), aff'd Comm'r of Ed. 1989 S.L.D. 1708 (May 22, 1989), aff'd St. Bd. 1990 S.L.D. 1784. The State Board discussed the contract clause and how it applies to private school leases for school buildings. Penta II leased an office and gymnasium building to Coastal. The lease term was February 14, 1984 through February 13, 1987. On September 8, 1986, the State Board enacted nonallowable cost item N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(8)45 which limited the amount of rent a private school could include in its tuition rate in a lease with a related party to the related party's "actual cost of ownership." The regulation specifically defined actually cost of ownership.

In Penta II, Coastal and Penta II argued that the related party rule violated the contract clause. The State Board acknowledged that the authority to abridge existing contracts between private schools is subject to limits. However, the State Board held that the impact in that matter was minimal because the regulation was enacted on September 8, 1986 and Penta II's lease expired on February 7, 1987.

The State Board noted that the regulation was aimed at furthering the broad interest in insuring that tuition paid by public schools for handicapped students to attend private schools represents the actual costs of providing the education. The State Board acknowledged that twenty-one private schools for the handicapped were engaged in related party transactions at that time. The related party rule regulation was needed to deal with a potentially broad problem.

In the present case, Coastal and Arnold entered into a lease beginning on January 1, 1987 and running through June 30, 1997. Coastal obligated itself to make lease payments as set forth in an addendum to the lease. In the years 1987-1990, Coastal paid Arnold in accordance with the lease. The payments were never disallowed by the Department. Now the Department wants to apply N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)47 to the lease agreement and presumably wants to disallow some of the rent charges. The period of disallowance would be from October 1992 (the date the injunction was lifted) until the end of the lease term, June 30, 1997.

If the regulation is applied to Coastal's lease, there is a chance that a portion of Coastal's rent could be deemed a nonallowable cost. If the phrase "organization" contained in the regulation means Penta, the former owner of the property, then the rent charge would be calculated by applying the related party rule because Penta and Associates are related parties. Boedart testified that the related party rule would limit Coastal's allowable rent cost to Penta's "actual cost of ownership as defined by regulation." This would include mortgage interest, straight line depreciation, property insurance, real estate taxes and maintenance. He also stated that because Penta had not owned the property since 1986, it would difficult to project Penta's actual cost of ownership as of 1995. Nonetheless, Boedart noted Penta's mortgage payment was approximately $50,000 in 1986 and, even after adding depreciation, insurance, taxes and maintenance to this figure, the amount would be less than Coastal is obligated to pay Arnold. If any of Coastal's rent was disallowed, Coastal would incur financial hardship. If the regulation is applied to Coastal, it will impair Coastal's contractual rights with Arnold.

Respondents were under the obligation to prove that there is a significant and legitimate public purpose behind the regulation. They put forth no proof that there is such purpose. The rule proposal offered no statement that the rule was being proposed to effect a significant and legitimate public purpose. The only stated purpose for the regulation is found in Exhibit P-6 in which the Department stated that the regulation was needed to prevent property sellers from profiting twice inasmuch as the Department believed that in a sale-leaseback arrangement, the seller-tenant receives the property at the end of the lease for a nominal sum. As noted previously, there are no reverter clauses in this case. The stated policy provision is not applicable here.

Even if the rule applies to Coastal's lease with Arnold, the rule is void for vagueness because it is impossible to calculate the allowable rent charged. Assuming, arguendo, the Coastal and Arnold lease is a sale-leaseback arrangement, the regulation then limits Coastal's allowable rental charge to an amount not in excess of the amount that would be incurred had the organization continued to own the property. "Organization" is not defined. There is no guidance provided regarding how to calculate the allowable rental charge. It would appear that the word organization refers to the former owner of the property inasmuch as the phrase "continued to own the property" follows it.

In this case, Penta is the former owner of the property. Penta and Coastal are related parties. N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)45 would apply and Coastal's allowable rent would be limited to Penta's actual cost of ownership as defined. However, Penta has not owned the property since December 31, 1986. It would be difficult even to approximate Penta's actual cost of ownership.

There is an anomaly in the regulation. The term "actual cost of ownership" assumes that an entity owns the property. Since Penta does not own the property, it would be impossible to calculate its actual cost of ownership. One would have to speculate as to the mortgage interest to be included inasmuch as interest rates have changed and inasmuch as the principal amount of a loan is unknown. It would be pure speculation to project what the maintenance charges would have been if Penta owned the property.

Respondent's Arguments

On August 6, 1986, after execution of the lease between Coastal and Penta, the State Board promulgated N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)45, which limits inclusion in the tuition for rental charges and lease transactions between related organizations to 2.5 percent above the actual cost of ownership. The regulation states, in pertinent part:

> A cost which is not allowable in the calculation of the certified actual cost per pupil includes the following:
> 45. Costs related to transactions between parties in which one party to the transaction is able to control or substantially influence the action of the other. Such transactions are defined by the relationship of the parties and include, but are not limited to, those between divisions of an institution; institutions or organizations under common control through common officers, directors or members; and an institution and a director, trustee, officer, or key employee of the institution or his or her immediate family either > directly or through corporations, trusts, or similar arrangements in which they hold a controlling interest. Such costs shall include:

> > i. Rental costs for buildings and equipment in excess of the actual allocated costs of ownership (such as straight line depreciation, mortgage interest, real estate taxes, property insurance and maintenance costs) incurred by the related property owner including a 2.5 percent return calculated on the actual cost of ownership incurred by the related party . . . a regulation limiting the rent that could be charged by related party landlords has been recommended by the New Jersey Commission on Investigation (SCI) which in 1978 issued a report on the misuse of public funds in the operation of non-public schools for handicapped children . . . .

In the summary published with the introduction, the State Board cited the ability of certain operators to use rental costs as a means of creating increased profit. It further referred to the fact that certain private schools for the handicapped had set up commonly owned corporations whose sole purpose was to purchase assets.

> The related corporations collect rentals from the private school for the use of the fixed assets. Such rentals can exceed the cost of ownership that would be allowable had title to the fixed assets vested in the private school. This procedure also allows the related corporation to sell the fixed assets without reimbursing the program for tuition funds expended for such fixed assets. Such transactions between related parties are entered at less-than-arm's length.
> It appears that the only purpose or activity of these corporations is renting buildings and equipment to the related private schools for the handicapped. Such corporations give the appearance of being straw corporations used solely to disguise activities that would otherwise be non-allowable under N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4.
> [18 N.J.R. 1237.]

Accordingly, beginning in the 1986-87 school year, the amended rule prohibited private schools from including in the tuition the full rent charged by the related party landlord. They were permitted to include in the tuition only those costs that they would have borne if the school had harmed the property and a 2.5 percent profit. The regulation was found to be facially valid and valid as applied to the lease between Coastal and Penta II. Penta Associates, II, above.

When N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a) was adopted, Coastal was renting a property from Penta Associates, which was comprised of the same five people who were the shareholders of Coastal and Penta II. Coastal included in the tuition calculation the rental charged by its related corporation. If the five shareholders had placed the property in the name of Coastal, they would have been able to include in the tuition only the costs of ownership of the facility, but not the profit the owners earned by renting to themselves. With the promulgation of the August 1986 regulation, the only portion of the rent Penta II charged that Coastal could include in the tuition calculation was the actual cost of ownership and a 2.5 percent rate of return on the cost. The school could no longer include the full rental that the owners, as Penta, were charging themselves as Coastal.

In this circumstance, the lessor had a guaranteed tenant and the tenant would always pay the rent. Rental costs were included in the tuition rate paid by public school districts that sent their pupils to the school. The shareholders' acquisition of their asset was completely at public expense. All costs of the property, including the mortgage, were guaranteed by and paid for by State funds; nonetheless, when the property was sold, the owners divided the profits among themselves.

The Department of Education saw the need to control related party transactions. The regulation at issue in this matter, N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)47, was adopted on December 17, 1990. It disallows rental costs under sale and leaseback arrangements in excess of the amount that would be incurred had the organization continued to own the property. The Office of Management and Budget has issued Circular A-122, "Cost Principles for Non-Profit Organizations," which identifies those expenditures that may be included in contracts or grants. The language of the circular is identical to the regulation. Circular A-122 also contains a restriction on rental costs between related parties that is nearly identical to paragraph 1 of N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)45.

The regulation is not limited to whether the school continued to own the property, but, whether the "organization" continued to own the property. The organization plainly refers to related parties under common control through common officers, directors or members. It is undisputed that Penta and Coastal are organizations under common control. As the judge noted in Penta II, above, the State Board was concerned with addressing the problem of straw transactions in which corporations providing private schooling for the handicapped created partnerships or corporations for the sole purpose of acquiring property and later renting it to themselves in the form of another partnership or corporation. By limiting the rent charged in a sale and leaseback transaction entered by the "organization" rather than by "the school," the regulation limits the amount of rent that a school is able to charge the State after its straw corporation sells the property and the purchaser leases it back to the school. If the regulation were not addressed to the "organization," it would encourage creation of straw corporations and transfer of assets to them followed by taking profits by having the straw corporations enter sale and leaseback arrangements.

The transaction here comes within the definition set forth in the regulation, notwithstanding that Coastal technically was not the seller of the property. Coastal is, in fact, a part of the organization that consists of the school and its two related party landlords and is governed by the regulation. While the property may have been sold by Penta, Penta was merely a straw corporation for Coastal. Its only purpose was to own property that it leased to the school, thereby inflating the tuition that could be charged and increasing the profit of the related party owners.

As a condition of the property sale to First Dover by Penta, a tenant under the lease, Coastal, was required to sign the contract "in order to indicate their assent to the execution of that lease" (P-1 at 8). Coastal's owners, the same individuals who are the shareholders in Penta, therefore signed the contract of sale. If Coastal had merely been an unrelated tenant, neither the seller nor the purchaser of the property could compel the tenant to participate in the sale. Compelling Coastal to assent to the sale was a recognition that Coastal was more than an unrelated tenant.

The Department also asserts that, as further proof that Penta was merely a shell corporation, exhibit R-1 demonstrates that Coastal transferred the contract for sale on the property to Metedeconk Enterprises, the precursor of Penta. There must be a reason for a transfer. The petitioner's offered no valid reason for the transfer. The owners were merely transferring the contract to themselves. However, by doing so they increased the amount that they would earn from tuition monies over what they would have received if Coastal continued to own the asset. The entire transaction was undertaken by entities comprised of related parties. Notwithstanding the petitioners' expert's opinion, the regulation applies to the lease. If the State Board had not imposed the restriction it did, the organization would compel the State to fund the property twice - once by paying the mortgage and other associated costs and a second time by paying rental costs.

The petitioners do not understand an "as applied" challenge to a regulation. Thus, they have improperly relied on documents not at issue. By constructing their case on a comment in the Department's matrix, they have failed to comprehend that the transaction at issue is a sale and leaseback within the purview of the regulation.

Moreover, the petitioners eliminated their challenge to the facial validity of the regulation when they amended their petition. They cannot now challenge the regulation as unclear or vague. By accepting the regulation, the petitioners do not contest the regulation itself, they only challenge how it is employed as to them. If, as petitioners contend, the regulation does not include definitions of sale and leaseback or organization, then the petitioners could have mounted a facial challenge to the regulation. By failing to do so and relying on an as applied challenge, the petitioners must accept the regulation on its face. Contrary to the petitioners' apparent understanding, in an as-applied challenge, it is not necessary to look to prior history to interpret the regulation. The language of the regulation herein plainly applies to the sale and leaseback transaction. Comments made pending adoption of the regulation are of no import.

The respondents also attack the petitioners' expert. They cite testimony which they contend lessens his credibility. Even if he is an expert in the areas of accounting and auditing, those areas are not at issue in this case. This challenge concerns the application of a regulation to a transaction. The respondents press the fact that the witness defined sale and leaseback in accounting terms and that that definition does not cover the issue before this tribunal which must decided whether the sale and leaseback at issue represents a sale and leaseback for regulatory purposes. The petitioners also argue that N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)47 does not violate the contract clause of the United States Constitution or of the New Jersey Constitution because the subject contract is not impaired. The lease between Coastal and Arnold has not been impaired. The parties retain all rights and obligations under the contract after the promulgation of the regulation that they did at the time they entered into the lease (P-4). That contract remains enforceable.

The only difference resulting from the promulgation of the regulation is a limitation on how much of the rent that was agreed to in a legally binding contract may be included in the tuition rate calculation. The regulation at issue merely limits the portion of the rent to be born by the public schools to those costs which could have been included in the tuition rate had the organization not elected to sell its facility and then lease it back. A decision to limit the amount of an expenditure that will be reimbursed from State funds does not impair the contract between Coastal and Arnold. There has been no impairment of the contract at issue and, therefore, the State had no obligation to show that there was a significant and legitimate purpose behind the regulation.

Petitioners claim they have been harmed by operation of the regulation. The fact that application of a rule may yield a harsh or undesirable result in a particular case does not make the rule invalid. Moreover, the petitioners' problem is of their own making. They signed a lease for ten years, confident they could sell the property acquired at State expense, make a profit on the sale of the property and then continue to charge the State for rent. They entered into a ten-year lease without any provision to terminate or renegotiate. They disregarded the fact that, as a highly regulated entity, the school was subject to regulations that could change.

The petitioners have failed to prove that the regulation is void for vagueness. Although they contend that the regulation is void for vagueness, their arguments do not make clear if they challenge the regulation facially or as applied. The petitioners have amended their petition to remove any facial challenge to the regulation. Therefore, the only remaining claim is that the regulation is faulty as applied.

The proofs here are weak. The director of the school testified he did not know how to calculate what would be allowable costs. The fact that he had difficulty arriving at a figure does not make the regulation vague. He is an educator, not an accountant. He conceded that he did not seek guidance from the Department of Education when he was attempting to calculate the allowable costs. With no more than the testimony of a person unskilled in accounting, this tribunal cannot find the regulation void for vagueness as applied.

The petitioners' contention that there is anomaly in the regulation is a challenge to the facial validity of the regulation. But the petitioners must accept the language of the regulation, which is identical to the mandate in all federal cost recovery contracts. If the petitioners believed the regulation was unclear, they could have and should have challenged the validity of the regulation. They chose not do so, and, therefore they may prove only that the clear language of the regulation violates their rights.

No matter what the petitioners argue, they cannot remove themselves from requirements of the regulation because the director of the school found calculation to be difficult. Nor can they be made exempt from the regulation because they entered a sweetheart deal to dispose of the property financed by public funds. They have failed to prove that the language of the regulation has violated any of their rights.

Determination

The petitioners allege that the State Board and State Department of Education improperly adopted and applied to them certain regulations concerning cost calculations and affecting the maximum tuition their school may charge. The first part of the allegation must be dismissed immediately. There has been no showing that the adoption of the regulation was in any way improper or beyond the authority invested in the State Board and the State Department by the Legislature. It is black letter law that an agency may act only when it has statutory or incidental authority to act. When a challenge is mounted, however, it is not the burden of the agency to show that it has statutory authority. Rather, it is the burden of the challenger to show that the agency either does not have suitable statutory or incidental authority or has exceeded the statutory authority it has. Neither of these circumstances has been demonstrated. So much of the petition as speaks to improper adoption of N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.1 through -4.11, or any part thereof, is DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

What is left is the question whether the regulations applied to Coastal by the respondents were in any manner improperly applied. For the reasons that follow, I FIND that there was no misapplication.

First, I FIND that the various corporate and partnership forms and embodiments are related organizations. As the State correctly points out, the challenged regulation is not limited to whether the school continued to own the property, but whether the "organization" continued to own the property. Whether one applies traditional state caselaw standards or Internal Revenue Code Standards (see, Section 267), a related party includes a corporation that is controlled by the regulated entity. Penta, Metedeconk and Coastal are organizations under common control. They are, in fact, the same entities in different garb. Arnold is a stalking horse of another color.

The present regulation and its predecessor, N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)39, came into being to prevent precisely the situation that exists here. Penta Associates, II and Coastal Learning Center v. State of New Jersey, Department of Education, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 1425-87 (Mar. 23, 1989), aff'd Comm'r of Ed. (May 22, 1989), aff'd St. Bd. (Feb. 9, 1990), aff'd No. A-3631-89T1 (App. Div. July 8, 1991). Thus, it is well settled that the regulation is valid and related organizations are subject to it. Ronald Boedart's testimony establishes that the sale and leaseback were created for several reasons, not the least of which was financial advantage. Making a profit is not a crime and trying to maximize profits is not a transgression. Playing musical chairs with business organizations in order to circumvent a regulation, however, is not permitted.

Preliminarily, the petitioners' assertion that the word organization is not defined in regulation and, therefore, acts as a sort of bar to the State in this action does not withstand scrutiny. If the language is plain, unambiguous and uncontrolled by other parts of the regulation, a court cannot give other than the ordinary meaning to a word or phrase. This standard of interpretation has been employed by New Jersey courts consistently. Fahey v. Jersey City, 52 N.J. 103 (1968); Duke Power Co. v. Patten, 20 N.J. 42 (1955); Imbracco v. State Civil Service Comm'n, 150 N.J. Super. 105 (App. Div. 1977). All of these arguments and those discussed above are subsidiary to the central issue. If the State Department misapplied the rule to Coastal, then Coastal must prevail. If the rule was not misapplied, the State must prevail. The arguments about words are largely without substance. Professor Melvin Eisenberg produced an excellent article twenty years ago that is as perceptive and applicable today as when written. "Legal Models of Management Structure in the Modern Corporation: Officers, Directors, and Accountants" 63 Cal. L. Rev. 375, 417-429 (1975). Among other things, Eisenberg addressed generally accepted accounting principles:

> It might seem reasonable to expect that the essential standard for certifying the acceptability of an accounting principle would be that the principle presents fairly the transaction it describes. The accountants, however, do not so interpret the matter. In their view, a principle can be certified as "generally accepted" merely on the basis of pass use in other financial statements or support in the literature. Since accounting principles are selected by management, however, the test of pass use need only mean that a few accountants have agreed not to object . . . ."

Thus, the discussion of word definitions, while entertaining, is not central. The void for vagueness and as applied questions having been put to rest and the semantic arguments having been put aside, the circumstances are these: a sale and leaseback can exist and does exist in the absence of a reverter clause; statutes, ordinances and regulations change fairly often; business organizations seek advantageous positions, and there is often friction between and among these elements. The United States Supreme Court said in Village of Belle Terre v. Borass, 416 U.S. 1 8 (1974), "But every line drawn by a legislature leaves out what might well have been included. That exercise of discretion, however, is a legislative, not a judicial, function." The same reasoning applies to regulations. Wherever a line is drawn, there will be those who argue that they should be just on the other side.

An administrative agency's interpretation of its regulations is entitled to substantial weight. Simon v. Board of Trustees, 233 N.J. Super. 186 (App. Div. 1989); Petition of Adamar of New Jersey, 222 N.J. Super. 464 (App. Div. 1989). The agency's interpretation can be overcome, but the task is a difficult one. That job has not been accomplished in this case. Administrative agencies may pass regulations in light of current or future requirements of the public interest. There is no vested right in the continuation of any regulation. St. Joseph's Hospital and Medical Center v. Finley, 153 N.J. Super. 214 (App. Div. 1977).

In addition to the findings, above, I FIND:

1. Coastal and Arnold are not related parties in the sense discussed above;

2. Coastal and Arnold did not enter an at-arm's-length ten-year lease;

3. As a condition of the property sale by Penta to First Dover, Coastal was required to sign the contract "in order to indicate their assent to the execution of that lease" (P-1);

4. Involvement of Coastal in the sale bespeaks Coastal's position as more than an unrelated tenant;

5. The series of transactions in this case were not unlawful per se;

6. The effect of this series of transactions was an attempt to circumvent N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)47.

Coastal and Arnold are not the same entities in different clothes. They are clearly related, however. I CONCLUDE that the series of the moves had as its major object, if not sole object, circumvention of the rule. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the State Department of Education correctly applied N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)47 to Coastal Learning Center, Inc. I further CONCLUDE that the petition is without merit. Accordingly, the petition is DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

NEW JERSEY STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION, COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, AND STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, DIVISION OF FINANCE,	:
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioners in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.18, as were replies thereto by respondents.

In their exceptions, petitioners contend that the ALJ erred in a number of his conclusions, which are neither properly explained nor supported by facts and evidence. First, petitioners argue that the regulation the ALJ accuses them of trying to circumvent was enacted four years after the transactions which form the basis of the purported circumvention. (Petitioners' Exceptions at pp. 3-4) Second, petitioners argue that the ALJ erred in determining that a sale and leaseback existed in the instant circumstances; specifically, he failed to recognize that the terms of regulation at issue must be defined in accordance with GAAP, and ignored petitioners' additional evidence, including explanatory comments presented to the State Board by the Division of Finance at the time the regulation was adopted, that a reverter clause is a necessary precondition to any sale and leaseback arrangement. (Id. at pp. 4-10) Third, petitioners contest the ALJ's finding that the 10-year lease entered into by Coastal Learning Center (Coastal) and Arnold Associates (Arnold) was a less-than-arm's length transaction, as the fact that this lease happened to be negotiated at the same time as Arnold and Penta Associates (Penta) were negotiating sale of the leased building is irrelevant in view of the undisputed lack of relationship between Arnold and Coastal, the fact that both parties acted independently and in their own self-interest, and the unquestioned fairness of the amount of rent being paid to Arnold by Coastal. (Id. at pp. 11-16)

Finally, petitioners urge that the ALJ made several other unsupported findings and conclusions, including 1) reading the regulation at issue to be triggered not by the existence of a sale and leaseback arrangement, but by the existence of an "organization" which would have continued to own the property had it not been sold; 2) assuming that having common owners makes three separate corporate entities a single "organization" and ignoring the fact that a fourth, unrelated, entity actually owns the property at issue; 3) imputing, without any basis in fact, that Arnold Associates is somehow part of a larger scheme or pretextual arrangement operative among the parties; 4) confusing the intent of the "less-than-arm's length" landlord-tenant regulation with the regulation at issue herein, which acts solely to prevent taxpayer subsidy of profits from a "double sale" arrangement; 5) ascribing arguments to petitioners that they did not make, such as the lack of definition of the term "organization" acting as a bar to State action; 6) ignoring petitioners' argument that the regulation at issue impairs Coastal's rights under the Contracts Clause of the United States and New Jersey Constitutions, in that Coastal entered into the instant lease in 1986 with the expectation of recouping its rental costs through tuition, and the 1990 regulation, if applied in this case, would create the devastating result that Coastal must substantially absorb these costs itself; and 7) implying that Arnold and Coastal are in some manner related, even as he states that they are not "related parties." (Petitioners' Exceptions at pp. 16-27)

In reply, respondents (the State) argue that petitioners have confused "as applied" challenge with facial challenge. In the former type of case, the facial validity of a regulation is assumed; the Court is not required to justify the regulation, interpret it, or explore its history; it merely determines if the regulation was properly applied to a given circumstance. The State avers that the fundamental question to be resolved in this case is a simple one, i.e., whether N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)(47) applies to the petitioners' lease arrangement, or put another way, whether the lease arrangement at issue was a sale and leaseback, and whether the various entities involved constituted an "organization" within the purview of the regulation, so as to invoke the State's application of the regulation. (Respondents' Reply Exceptions at pp. 1-4) With respect to petitioners' contention that their arrangement is not a sale and leaseback because the controlling agreement lacks a reverter clause, petitioners cannot add a term to the regulation which is not expressly contained within the language adopted by the State Board; neither can they attribute to the Board any intent or interpretation beyond what is stated in the actual regulation as adopted, including requirements that GAAP or real estate principles will control for purposes other than accounting. (Id. at pp. 4-6) With respect to the parties' constituting an organization, the State notes that Coastal, Penta and Metedeconk are all related parties under the control of the same five shareholders, notwithstanding their individual corporate identities, so that they are clearly an "organization" within the purview of the regulation at issue. (Id. at pp., 3) The State further argues that, while petitioners' may not, as a matter of history, have created their lease arrangement for the specific purpose of circumventing a regulation that did not yet exist, their machinations nonetheless created an arrangement to which the regulation, once adopted, applied. (Id. at p. 6)

Additionally, the State contends that the entire lease proceeding undertaken by the parties was plainly a less-than-arm's length transaction, as evidenced by facts such as 1) Bruce Bowe, whose corporation came into existence solely to purchase the property at issue, having written to the Department of Education on behalf of Coastal, which he was then serving as certified public accountant, to advise that he would tell the school to enter a sale and leaseback arrangement if related party regulations went into effect in 1986 as proposed; and 2) no appraisal was ever done of the property prior to sale, as Bowe and Boedart simply decided what the selling price should be and anticipated that it would be recouped via public school tuition payments. (Respondents' Reply Exceptions, at pp. 6-7) Finally, the State avers that petitioners' federal and state contract clause arguments were correctly ignored by the ALJ, in that they do not apply to a matter where the contract at issue remains in full force and effect, as Coastal's contract with its landlord does herein. (Id. at p. 7)

Upon independent review and consideration of the record, including the transcript of hearing, the Commissioner is satisfied that the ALJ fully and fairly summarized the testimony and arguments of the parties, and correctly concluded from these that the lease arrangement operative among petitioners herein fell within the ambit of N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)47.

In so holding, the ALJ inherently rejected, and the Commissioner herein expressly rejects, petitioners' contention that the meaning of the regulatory provision at issue is controlled by GAAP, real estate practice or any other external consideration over and above what is stated in the regulation on its face, accorded its ordinary meaning, so as to impose technical requirements not specifically embodied in the rule (e.g., that a reverter clause is a necessary component of a sale and leaseback). The Commissioner further finds petitioners' claim of distinct corporate entities to be disingenuous in light of the fact that the corporations in question are undisputedly owned by the same five people, all closely engaged in various business arrangements with each other; likewise unpersuasive is petitioners' reliance on the "nonrelated" status of Arnold Associates, when the record clearly establishes that one of that firm's three partners is the former accountant for Coastal. Finally, while the ALJ did not, in his determination, specifically address petitioners' arguments based on state and federal contract law, he did summarize both parties' positions and may be presumed not to have been persuaded by petitioners' claims, as the Commissioner is not for the reasons given by the State in its post-hearing submission (referenced in Initial Decision at pp. 18-19).

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms determination of the ALJ to dismiss the Petition of Appeal, based on his conclusions that N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)47 was properly adopted and applied to petitioners, and that State respondents acted appropriately in excluding affected rental amounts from the tuition rate at which Coastal Learning Center is permitted to charge public school districts contracting for its services.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning private, for-profit school for the handicapped, together with its owner/operators, contended that the State Board and State Department of Education improperly adopted and applied to them a regulation (N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)47) excluding certain rental costs from the rate of tuition chargeable to public school districts, specifically, excess rental charges attributed to a sale and leaseback arrangement, wherein a facility is sold to another entity and then leased back at a cost higher than would have been incurred had the facility not been sold. Petitioners contended that their rental arrangement did not constitute a sale and leaseback.

ALJ found that petitioners' rental arrangement did in fact constitute a sale and leaseback within the purview of the regulation, so that the State Department acted properly in applying the regulation to petitioners. ALJ further found no impropriety in State Board's adoption of the regulation at issue. Petition was dismissed.

Based on independent review of record, Commissioner concurred with ALJ's conclusions and dismissed appeal.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, February 12, 1996

For the Petitioners-Appellants, Timothy N. Middleton, Esq.

For the Respondents-Respondents, Arlene G. Lutz, Deputy Attorney General (Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General of New Jersey)

The State Board of Education affirms the Commissioner's determination that petitioners' rental arrangement constituted a sale and leaseback arrangement within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)(47) so that the State Department of Education acted properly in applying the regulation to them. In so doing, we stress that as the Appellate Division has found, and contrary to petitioners' claims in these proceedings, Coastal Learning Center and Penta are essentially one entity. Penta Associates II and Coastal Learning Center v. State of New Jersey, Department of Education and the Commissioner of Education, Docket #A-3631-89T1 (App. Div. 1991). Hence, and substantially for the reasons expressed by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) and the Commissioner, we affirm the Commissioner's ultimate determination that the New Jersey Department of Education properly disallowed rental costs from the calculation of tuition that were in excess of those that Coastal would have incurred had Penta continued to own the property. N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)(47). We also stress that pursuant to its express terms, N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)(47) applies to all sale and leaseback arrangements so that whether or not Arnold and Coastal are considered to be "related parties" by virtue of the fact that Coastal's former accountant is a general partner in Arnold is not determinative of the result in this case.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the State Board of Examiners, October 19, 1995

Decision on motion by the State Board of Education, June 5, 1996

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Arlene G. Lutz, Deputy Attorney General
(Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General of New Jersey)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Shawn R. Hines, pro se

This matter is before us by virtue of an appeal filed by Shawn R. Hines (hereinafter "respondent") from a decision made by the State Board of Examiners revoking a county substitute certificate issued to him on October 23, 1993, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.5.[1] The proceedings that resulted in that decision were initiated when the Commissioner of Education notified the State Board of Examiners that a criminal history record review conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 had revealed that

[1] N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.5 provides in pertinent part that:

> (a) Persons who do not hold a standard instructional certificate issued by the State Board of Examiners but who can present a minimum of 60 semester-hour credits...may be granted a county substitute certificate for day-to-day substitute teaching in the county which grants the certificate.
> (b) Each district board of education shall submit to the county superintendent for review and approval, each applicant's official transcripts, oath of allegiance, and credentials.
> (c) The certificate will be issued for a three-year period, but the holder may serve for no more than 20 consecutive days in the same position during the school year. Such certificates, which are issued by the county superintendent of schools, are to be granted only when the supply of properly certificated teachers is inadequate to staff the school....

respondent had been convicted of criminal assault.[2] On May 30, 1995, the State Board of Examiners issued an order to show cause why respondent's county substitute certificate should not be revoked on the basis of this conviction.[3] When respondent did not respond to that order, the State Board of Examiners deemed him to be in default and voted to revoke his county substitute certificate.[4]

On March 10, 1996, respondent filed an appeal to the State Board of Education from the decision of the State Board of Examiners, claiming that he had not received the Board of Examiners' decision until February 12, 1996,[5] and maintaining that he had never received notice of the proceedings that resulted in the Board of Examiners' determination to revoke his county substitute certificate. He also argued that the Board of Examiners' decision should be reversed because the State Board of Education had found that his conviction for simple assault was not a disqualifying offense under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 in the absence of bodily injury.[6] In the Matter of the Disqualification

[2] N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.3 requires the Commissioner of Education to furnish the State Board of Examiners with the names of those individuals who are disqualified from employment under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and their disqualifying offense.

[3] N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(2) provides that the State Board of Examiners may authorize the issuance of an order to show cause upon knowledge of any criminal conviction as described in N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2(a) involving a certificate holder.

[4] N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(b) provides that cases which are not contested are to be referred to the Secretary of the Board of Examiners for determination of revocation.

[5] Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6, appeals to the State Board of Education must be filed within thirty days of the filing date of the decision being appealed.

[6] The State Board of Education, however, remanded that matter to the Commissioner for a determination as to the outcome of an arrest for the possession of marijuana which had been revealed by review of the record. In a decision issued on December 6, 1995 pursuant to our remand, the Deputy Commissioner found that the marijuana charge had been vacated and all fines paid. The Deputy Commissioner therefore concluded that respondent was "qualified" for school employment. By decision of June 5, 1996, we clarified the Deputy Commissioner's decision and dismissed the appeal.

from School Employment of Shawn Hines, decided by the State Board of Education, September 6, 1995.

On April 3, 1996, the State Board of Examiners filed a motion to supplement the record in this matter with a certification by Ida B. Graham, Director of the Office of Licensing and Credentials, detailing the steps taken by the Board of Examiners to notify respondent of the revocation proceedings and of its determination. By decision of June 5, 1996, the State Board of Education granted the motion, and the briefing schedule was reestablished. After both parties had submitted their briefs, the matter was placed before the State Board and scheduled for our consideration.

However, pursuant to the terms of N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.5(c), respondent's county substitute certificate expired on October 23, 1996, three years from its date of issuance. See supra n.1. Hence, this matter is now moot. In the absence of any significant public interest, we therefore dismiss the appeal. In so doing, we stress that county substitute certificates, in contrast to standard certificates, are issued by the county superintendent rather than by the State Board of Examiners and, as the State Board of Examiners acknowledged in its brief in support of its motion to supplement the record, are not teaching certificates.

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER	:
APPEAL FOR THE BOARD OF EDUCA-	:
TION OF THE WALLINGTON SCHOOL	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY.	:	DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 12, 1996

This matter was initiated by a request made by the Board of Education of the Wallington School District (hereinafter "Board") to the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) to exceed its maximum permissible budget for 1996-97 by $216,580. The Commissioner approved $168,188 of the request, and denied $48,392.

On appeal, the Board is seeking a modification of the Commissioner's determination so as to increase the amount awarded by $29,450. This portion of the waiver was intended to permit the Board to make computer hardware purchases as planned under its five-year technology plan. In denying this portion of the Board's request, the Commissioner accepted the County Superintendent's recommendation. That recommendation was based on the rationale that since this was a "[p]roposed increase for equipment which had been deferred this year...then [it was] not essential and [could be] defer[red] again." 1996-1997 Cap Waiver Request, County Superintendent's Budget Review and Reallocation Analysis, at 16.

The Board argues that technology is an integral part of a thorough and efficient education. It contends that this is demonstrated by the fact that technology-based education is a common theme throughout the proposals being made by the Department of Education, such as those for core curriculum standards. Consequently, it is the Board's position that the Commissioner should not have accepted the County Superintendent's recommendation to deny this portion of the waiver.

In order to convince us to increase the amount of the cap waiver approved by the Commissioner, the Board must demonstrate that it is necessary to further increase its maximum permissible budget in order for the school district to be able to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students. In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal for the Board of Education of the Hopewell Valley Regional School District, decided by the State Board, April 5, 1995, appeal dismissed, Docket #4098-94T2 (App. Div. 1995); cf. Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater and In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal of the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater, decided by the State Board, July 6, 1994.

After carefully reviewing the documentation, we agree with the Board that a waiver for the additional amount is necessary in this instance. Again, the Board sought this portion of the waiver in order to continue implementing its five-year technology plan. That plan had been developed during 1992-93, and the Board began implementing it in 1994-95. Review of the plan shows that it is a modest plan, aimed at meeting the technology needs of the students in a K-12 district whose enrollment has increased from 1,111 students in 1993 to 1,199 in 1995.

We do not agree with the County Superintendent that the proposed equipment purchases should be deferred this year. The fact that they had been deferred last year due to budgetary constraints indicates to us that it is prudent to enable the school district to make the purchases this year. There is no question that the need for this equipment remains and deferring the purchases once again will only compound the situation. In our view, this portion of the waiver requested by the Board represents funding for an existing program. Moreover, as the Board has highlighted, technology-based education is a common theme throughout all of the proposals for educational improvement being made by the Department of Education, including the core curriculum standards which the State Board is now considering. We find that the expenditures planned by the Wallington School District in order to be able to provide such an education are more than warranted at this point.

Therefore, for the reasons stated, we modify the Commissioner's determination so as to increase the amount of the cap waiver granted to the Board of Education of the Wallington School District by $29,450. In so doing, we stress that the funds generated by this waiver must be dedicated by the school district to the specific purchases of computer hardware that the Board proposed in seeking the waiver.

PETITIONER-APPELLANT, :

V. : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE WESTWOOD REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY, : DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 17, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Paul McVeigh, pro se

For the Respondent-Respondent, Fogarty & Hara (Rodney T. Hara, Esq., of Counsel)

On January 10, 1996, Paul McVeigh (hereinafter "petitioner") filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education seeking to set aside the results of a bond referendum conducted by the Board of Education of the Westwood Regional School District (hereinafter "Board") on December 19, 1995. On January 17, 1996, the Commissioner dismissed the petition, finding that petitioner had failed to file within 20 days of the election as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:24-65.

Petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board of Education. The Board filed an answer brief, along with a motion seeking an expedited decision by the State Board.

After a careful review of the record, we reverse the determination of the Commissioner that the petition was not filed in a timely manner.

N.J.S.A. 18A:24-65 provides that:

> No action to contest the validity of any proceeding or election authorizing the issuance of any bonds...shall be commenced after the expiration of 20 days from the date of...the holding of such election.

Since the challenged election in this instance was held on December 19, 1995, petitioner was required to have filed his petition with the Commissioner by Monday, January 8, 1996. The record indicates that petitioner mailed his petition by certified mail on Friday, January 5. However, as the result of a blizzard which occurred during the weekend of January 6-7, the Governor issued an executive order declaring a statewide State of Emergency, and State offices were closed on January 8. Although the State of Emergency was lifted the next day, Tuesday, January 9, we have ascertained that there was no mail delivery that day to the Department of Education offices in the building occupied by the Commissioner because of the severe weather conditions. Consequently, it was not possible to file anything with the Commissioner by mail on either January 8 or January 9. The petition was, in fact, received by the Commissioner the following day, Wednesday, January 10, the first day after the storm when such filing was possible. Additionally, we have learned that January 8 was deemed the same as a legal holiday for purposes of computing time periods under the Rules of Court. Notice to the Bar from Chief Justice Robert N. Wilentz, dated January 19, 1996. Under these circumstances, fairness dictates that the petition be deemed filed in a timely manner on January 10.

Accordingly, inasmuch as we conclude that petitioner filed his petition with the Commissioner in a timely manner, we reverse the decision of the Commissioner dismissing the petition and remand this matter to him for further proceedings.[1] Given the amount of time which has already passed, however, we direct that such proceedings and a final determination by the Commissioner be rendered on an expedited basis.

We do not retain jurisdiction.

Date of mailing MAY 03 1996

[1] We note that while the Commissioner made reference in his decision to the fact that petitioner had failed to submit the signatures of ten qualified voters in filing his petition, N.J.S.A. 18A:14-64, his determination to dismiss the petition was not predicated on such failure. We therefore do not pass upon the applicability of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-64 to this matter or the effect of such failure upon the petition.

Paul McVeigh (hereinafter "petitioner") filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education seeking to set aside the results of a bond referendum conducted by the Board of Education of the Westwood Regional School District (hereinafter "Board"). On August 12, 1996, the Commissioner dismissed the petition.

On September 13, 1996, petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board. He thereafter filed a motion to supplement the record on appeal pursuant to N.J.A.C.

6:2-1.9, and, on October 3, 1996, we placed the briefing schedule in abeyance pending our decision on that motion.

After careful review, we deny petitioner's motion. Petitioner has not demonstrated that the information he now seeks to offer was not available to him during the earlier proceedings in this matter. Cf. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of David Borrelli, decided by the State Board, July 6, 1994. Nor has he shown that the proposed submissions are material to the issues on appeal. We further find that the record established below is sufficient to permit a fair determination of this matter. Consequently, we find no basis for supplementation in this instance.

Accordingly, we reestablish the briefing schedule and direct that petitioner file a brief in support of his appeal within twenty days from the date of this decision. The Board shall file its responsive brief within twenty days thereafter.

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER	:
APPEAL FOR THE BOARD OF EDUCA-	:
TION OF THE HALEDON SCHOOL	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT, PASSAIC COUNTY.	:	DECISION

This matter was initiated by a request made to the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) by the Board of Education of the Haledon School District (hereinafter "Board") to exceed its maximum permissible budget for 1996-97 by $168,422. The Commissioner approved $119,643 of the request, and denied $48,779.

On appeal, the Board is seeking modification of the Commissioner's determination so as to increase the amount awarded. The Board specifically challenges the amount of $40,500 denied by the Commissioner. This portion of the waiver included $24,000 to permit the school district to purchase computers and supporting equipment as planned under its five-year technology plan, and $16,500 for renovation of a shop room to create two new student areas to accommodate therapy sessions and physical education programs for preschool handicapped and autistic classes, and to provide group instruction and activities for combined special education classes.

In denying these portions of the Board's request, the Commissioner accepted the County Superintendent's recommendation, which was based on the rationale that "[p]urchase of two computers can be deferred @ $12,000 = $24,000," and that the "District does not need two classes from renovated shop for 1996/97. Leave in $6,500 to start process for 1997/98 school year use." 1996-1997 Cap Waiver Request, County Superintendent's Budget Review and Reallocation Analysis, at 16-17.

The Board argues that technology is essential to its provision of a thorough and efficient education and that the renovations to its shop room are essential in order to maintain programs for its increased population and special education students. Consequently, it is the Board's position that the Commissioner should not have accepted the County Superintendent's recommendation to deny these portions of the waiver.

In order to convince us to increase the amount of the cap waiver approved by the Commissioner, the Board must demonstrate that it is necessary to further increase its maximum permissible budget in order for the school district to be able to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students. In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal for the Board of Education of the Hopewell Valley Regional School District, decided by the State Board, April 5, 1995, appeal dismissed, Docket #4098-94T2 (App. Div. 1995); cf. Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater and In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal of the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater, decided by the State Board, July 6, 1994.

After careful review of the documentation, we affirm the Commissioner's determination granting approval to the Board to exceed its maximum permissible budget by $119,643 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) and, in addition, modify that decision so as to increase the amount of the Board's request approved by the Commissioner by an additional $24,000. We agree with the Board that a waiver in the additional amount of $24,000 is necessary in this instance for implementation of its five-year technology plan. Review of that plan shows that it includes modest goals aimed at meeting the technology needs of the school district's students. The Board's stated goals for 1996-97, the first year of its written plan, include supplying the fourth, fifth and sixth grades with a computer and printer in each classroom. That plan had been developed during the 1995-96 school year, and the Board has already begun implementing it with purchases of computers for the library and selected classrooms. The Board also indicates that it received a funding grant in the amount of $5,911 from the State for technology development.

We do not agree with the County Superintendent that the proposed purchases should be deferred. There is no question that the need for this equipment remains and deferring the purchases will only compound the situation. Moreover, technology-based education is a common theme throughout all of the proposals for educational improvement being made by the Department of Education, including the core curriculum standards which the State Board is now considering. We find that the expenditures planned by this school district in order to be able to provide such an education are more than warranted at this point. We note further that the County Superintendent erred in indicating that the Board proposes purchasing two computers at $12,000 each. The $24,000 represents two capital outlay line items in the amount of $12,000 each, and the Board's five-year technology plan calls for providing the fourth, fifth and sixth grades with a computer and printer in each classroom in 1996-97.

We, however, concur with the Commissioner's determination to deny the Board's request for $16,500 to renovate a shop room to create two new student areas. We find that the Board has failed to demonstrate that it is necessary to further increase its maximum permissible budget by such amount in order for the school district to be able to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students.

Thus, for the reasons stated, we modify the Commissioner's determination so as to increase the amount of the cap waiver granted to the Haledon School District by $24,000. In so doing, we stress that the school district is required to dedicate the funds generated by this waiver to the purchase of technology equipment and that such funds must be utilized in a manner which is consistent with the specific goals set forth for 1996-97 in its five-year plan.

For the Appellant, Dennis A. Maycher, Esq.

This appeal challenges a decision made by the Commissioner of Education which denied in full the request made by the Board of Education of the Carlstadt-East Rutherford Regional High School District (hereinafter "Board") pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) to exceed its maximum permissible budget for 1996-97 by $74,813. The Commissioner's decision was based on his determination to reallocate $100,790, which included $506 from the general fund free balance and $65,667 from surplus balances.

On appeal, the Board is seeking modification of the Commissioner's determination denying its request. The Board now seeks a waiver in the reduced amount of $36,390.

After careful review, the State Board of Education affirms the Commissioner's determination denying approval to the Board to exceed its maximum permissible budget pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e). We stress that the Board was required to demonstrate to us that an increase beyond its maximum permissible budget was required in the amount it had requested in order for the school district to be able to provide a thorough and efficient education. In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal for the Board of Education of the Hopewell Valley Regional School District, decided by the State Board, April 5, 1995, appeal dismissed, Docket #4098-94T2 (App. Div. 1995); cf. Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater and In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal of the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater, decided by the State Board, July 6, 1994.

After reviewing the documentation, we are not convinced that it is necessary for the Board to increase its maximum permissible budget as requested. We note in so doing that the Board has failed to demonstrate that the amounts reallocated from surplus by the Commissioner would leave it with insufficient funds to meet any unexpected circumstances or in any way impede its ability to provide a thorough and efficient education.

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER :
APPEAL FOR THE BOARD OF EDUCA- :
TION OF THE WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP: STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY. : DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 12, 1996

This matter was initiated by a request made by the Board of Education of the Washington Township School District (hereinafter "Board") to exceed its maximum permissible budget for 1996-97. By its request, the Board sought approval to place before the voters a budget which would exceed its permissible budget by a total of $938,932. $815,086 of this amount was included in the Board's request to the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e). In addition, the Board sought approval to exceed its permissible budget by another $204,816 to fund other items it deemed necessary to the provision of a thorough and efficient education. It also proposed to seek voter approval pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) to raise the amount of the tax levy beyond its maximum permissible net budget by another $99,030 in order to fund items that it desired, but which were not essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient education.

By letter of March 12, 1996, the Commissioner granted the Board a waiver of its budget limitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) in the amount of $785,352. The Board has appealed that determination to the State Board.

By this appeal, the Board is seeking to fund additional items totaling $164,550 above the amount of the cap waiver granted by the Commissioner under N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e). Specifically, the Board is seeking a determination by the State Board that the additional items it wishes to fund are necessary for a thorough and efficient education. The Board would then submit the question to the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f).

However, as set forth in our decision in Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater and In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal of the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater, decided by the State Board, July 6, 1994, all amounts that are essential in order for a given school district to provide a thorough and efficient education are to be included in that portion of the proposed education budget placed before the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-7 et seq., and none of those amounts should be included in proposals made under authority of N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f). Edgewater, supra, at 14. Hence, to the extent we find any of the items at issue in this case to be necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient education, the proper course is to direct an increase in the amount of the waiver which the Commissioner has granted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e), rather than to permit the Board to place the question before the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f).

In this respect, we stress that although this school district met the criteria specified by N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) in order for a district board to be eligible to request a waiver of its budget limitation from the Commissioner, the terms of that provision did not entitle the Board to a waiver for any specific amount. In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal for the Board of Education of the Hopewell Valley Regional School District, decided by the State Board, April 5, 1995, appeal dismissed, Docket #4098-94T2 (App. Div. 1995). Similarly, the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) do not limit the authority of the Commissioner of Education to determine the amount by which it is necessary for a board that meets the statutory criteria to exceed its maximum budget in order to provide a thorough and efficient education.

We have carefully reviewed each of the items which the Board contends is necessary in order for it to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students, and we have scrutinized the amounts it claims are necessary to fund those items. Among those items is an increase of .4 for a guidance counselor position ($15,000) to allow this one person to provide services to 819 students in three locations. It also seeks the funds to support the first year of a lease purchase arrangement ($8,000) to obtain a truck in order to facilitate sharing cleaning equipment and snow removal among its three buildings.

On the basis of the documentation that has been provided and the arguments submitted by the Board in support of its appeal, we conclude that the Board has demonstrated the necessity to direct a further increase in the school district's maximum permissible budget by an additional $8,000 to support the lease purchase arrangement by which it proposes to obtain a truck with a snowplow to ensure that its students will have access to school during periods of snow. We also find that the Board has demonstrated the need for an additional $15,000 to meet the school district's need for guidance services at its three schools. However, the Board has not convinced us that it is necessary to fund the other items it desires in order for the school district to provide a thorough and efficient education in 1996-97.

Accordingly, we direct that the Commissioner's determination be modified so as to increase by $23,000 the amount of the cap waiver granted the Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e). In so doing, we stress that the funds generated by this waiver must be dedicated by the school district to the purposes for which they have been awarded by this decision. We further stress that the Board may seek to fund those items which we have not found essential by including them in the proposal it is submitting to the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f).

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER :
APPEAL FOR THE BOARD OF EDUCA- :
TION OF THE NORTH ARLINGTON : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY. : DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 12, 1996

For the Appellant, Fogarty & Hara (Stephen R. Fogarty, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter was initiated by a request made to the Commissioner of Education by the Board of Education of the North Arlington School District (hereinafter "Board") pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) to exceed its maximum permissible budget for 1996-97 by $222,050. The Commissioner approved $132,781 of the request, and denied $89,269.

On appeal, the Board is seeking modification of the Commissioner's determination so as to increase the amount awarded. The Board specifically challenges the amount of $27,000 denied by the Commissioner. This portion of the waiver includes $10,000 to cover a deficit in the North Arlington School District's food services account, $10,000 for professional educational services, and $7,000 to convert a guidance services secretary to full-time. The Board contends that such additional amounts are necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient education.

After careful review, the State Board of Education affirms the Commissioner's determination granting approval to the Board to exceed its maximum permissible budget by $132,781 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) and denying it approval to further exceed its permissible budget. In so doing, we stress that the Board was required to demonstrate to us that an increase beyond its maximum permissible budget was required in the amount it had requested in order for the school district to be able to provide a thorough and efficient education. In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal for the Board of Education of the Hopewell Valley Regional School District, decided by the State Board, April 5, 1995, appeal dismissed, Docket #4098-94T2 (App. Div. 1995); cf. Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater and In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal of the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater, decided by the State Board, July 6, 1994.

After reviewing the documentation, we find that the Board has failed to demonstrate that an increase beyond its maximum permissible budget is required in the amount requested on appeal in order for the North Arlington School District to be able to provide a thorough and efficient education. Consequently, we are not convinced that it is necessary for the Board to increase its maximum permissible budget beyond the amount of the increase approved by the Commissioner.

OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

v.

NEW JERSEY STATE

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

Respondent.

Ralph McCullough, petitioner, pro se

Respondent, appearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.6(a)

Record Closed: November 14, 1995 Decided: November 30, 1995

BEFORE STEVEN C. REBACK, ALJ:

This matter arises as a result of a decision issued by respondent, State Board of Education (Board) on or about July 5, 1995, remanding these proceedings to the Commissioner of Education for a hearing. The purpose of the hearing is to provide Mr. McCullough with an adequate opportunity to establish a record in support of his contention that he has satisfied the statutory standard for "rehabilitation" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e), following his conviction of crimes which disqualified him from school employment. Following the remand by the Board to the Commissioner of Education, the latter transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 on September 20, 1995. The matter was heard at the Office of Administrative Law, Mercerville, New Jersey on November 14, 1995 at which time the record closed.

ISSUE AND BURDEN OF PROOF

The sole issue to be determined in these proceedings is whether pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18:6-7.1(e) the petitioner can demonstrate that he should not be disqualified from school employment on the basis of his criminal record in that he may demonstrate that he has been rehabilitated. In respect to this issue, the burden rests exclusively on the petitioner: Mr. McCullough must affirmatively demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that he has been rehabilitated.

THE FACTS

I FIND:

Based on the Board's review of the submissions made by Mr. McCullough to the Deputy Commissioner of Education, the former found that Mr. McCullough "has shown significant evidence of rehabilitation on that basis alone." Board remand order July 5, 1995 at 2. The purpose of the OAL proceedings therefore is to give Mr. McCullough an even greater opportunity to reinforce the decision already arrived at by the Board.

The facts in this matter are not in dispute. Mr. McCullough is a 36 year-old man who has acknowledged that he has had a history of alcohol and drug abuse dating from the mid-1980s when he was in his late twenties. He indicated that he was the product of a divorced family in which his father was volatile and, in which he, the petitioner, was not welcome in the home. He lived mostly on the streets at that time and occasionally at home.

Mr. McCullough, as a result of his acknowledged alcohol difficulties, was involved in a variety of petty crimes including shoplifting for which he was arrested on February 23, 1984 and found guilty on March 29, 1984. His sentence was a fine of $325 and one-year of probation. Apparently there was another shoplifting charge accompanying the foregoing for which he was also found guilty on the same date, March 29, 1984 and he was sentenced to the Mercer County Work House for what appears to be 30 days. He was also assessed a fine in the amount of $275.[1] Earlier, on November 8, 1978, Mr. McCullough was arrested and charged with possession of amphetamines. No disposition is indicated on the document eluded to; however, Mr. McCullough represents that the charges were dismissed.

The two charges which ostensibly resulted in Mr. McCullough's disqualification from school employment occurred in 1987. On April 11, 1987, he was arrested for possession of dangerous drugs. He indicated in his testimony that it was crack cocaine. On October 22, 1987 he was arrested and charged with possession of narcotic equipment, which he indicated was a small crack pipe. He was found guilty on both charges and sentenced to a fine of $225 and, although not found in the documents, Mr. McCullough indicated that he also served a short period, perhaps 12 to 13 days, in the Mercer County Workhouse and placed on probation. This was the last criminal conviction of Mr. McCullough for any crime.

On November 30, 1993, Mr. McCullough, as an incident to his application for employment within the school system, completed an application authorization and certification with the New Jersey State Department of Education Office of Criminal History Review. To the best of Mr. McCullough's recollection, he applied for and was accepted as a custodian in an elementary school in East Windsor Township, New Jersey, the Kreps Elementary School. After what he believed to be several months, perhaps two to three months in that position, he was formally advised that he was terminated as a consequence of his disqualification from school employment based upon his criminal record.

[1] The arrest and conviction record to which I refer was contained in the transmittal documents and is a printout with a cover letter of January 31, 1994, by a representative of the Office of Criminal History Review.

Thereafter, as was noted in the procedural history of this matter, the Board, overruling the administrative decision made by the Deputy Commissioner of Education concluded "on the papers" that Mr. McCullough had demonstrated through his submissions his rehabilitation pursuant to the applicable criteria set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

Subdivision (e) of that statue provides as follows:

> Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, an individual shall not be disqualified from employment or service under this act on the basis of any conviction disclosed by a criminal record check performed pursuant to this act if the individual has affirmatively demonstrated to the Commissioner of Education clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. In determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation, the following factors shall be considered:
> (1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
> (4) The date of the offense;
> (5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;
> (6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
> (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendations of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e)]

Mr. McCullough's rehabilitation began shortly after his arrest and convictions for crack cocaine and a crack pipe in 1987. Shortly thereafter, pursuant to his testimony, while wandering the streets of Trenton, a car pulled along side him driven by the Reverend Perkins Broach, Sr., pastor to the Trenton Deliverance Church. The Reverend took Mr. McCullough under his charge, and since that time Mr. McCullough has literally turned his life around. To this day he continues to be actively involved with Rev. Broach and the Trenton Deliverance Church indicating that he attends church three times weekly and that he also actively participates in counseling kids on the streets of Trenton in respect to drugs. This is confirmed by a letter submitted by Reverend Broach on March 25, 1994 (P-2) indicating that the petitioner has been a member of his church for the past six years. He notes "he has changed his life with the assistance of the Lord." Reverend Broach confirms Mr. McCullough's very active participation with the substance abuse program at the Church. The Reverend continues that the petitioner "has demonstrated consistently a life of one who is gone into the work force and has maintained sobriety." Ibid.

As part of his rehabilitation, the petitioner in or about December 19, 1993, satisfactorily completed and was awarded a high school diploma (P-6). Mr. McCullough attended Mercer County Community College in a program of microcomputer repair which began July 22, 191 and was completed in May of 1992. That program was satisfactorily completed by the petitioner (P-4). Indeed, Mercer County Community College awarded Mr. McCullough a certificate of achievement for his successful completion of that program on June 1, 1992 (P-7). In addition, the petitioner has recently completed a full-time program involving office automation at the Cittone Institute, which he indicated was in Princeton, New Jersey. The registrar of the program writes on March 4, 1994 that at that time he was a student in good standing and indicates that the program was a full-time program. On November 29, 1994, the petitioner was awarded a certification indicating that he had successfully completed the program in office automation and was certified as a "specialist."

Mr. McCullough indicated that he was able to pursue his training by returning to live with his mother who took him back following his complete sobriety and by receiving general assistance and an additional grant as a consequence of an injury which he had sustained.

More recently, Mr. McCullough has been working on a temporary basis wherever his skills have permitted him to do so. He has also indicated that as of July of this year he was married and that he and his wife have adopted three children whose mother was a crack addict living in Philadelphia. Prior to his marriage, his wife, then Lucy M. Perry, wrote a letter on March 9, 1994, attesting to his love for then her three adopted daughters and his strong family orientation and spirituality. Ms. Perry, now Mrs. McCullough, is employed full-time at the New Jersey Housing and Mortgage Financing Agency and met Mr. McCullough at the Trenton Deliverance Church.

At the hearing, Mr. McCullough submitted an additional document, a letter dated October 27, 1995, from a Mr. Lloyd Plummer, who served as head custodian at the Kreps Elementary School when Mr. McCullough was employed for that short period of time as a custodian. Mr. Plummer indicates, among other things, that the petitioner "was no doubt a good worker, respectful, caring and [a] somewhat mysterious and mature young man. "Mr. Plummer reiterates and confirms Mr. McCullough's narrative concerning the dramatic change in his life following his late night meeting with the Reverend Perkins Broach. Mr. Plummer and Mr. McCullough have maintained a friendship since the petitioner's termination from his employment, Plummer notes that although the petitioner is much younger than he, Mr. McCullough has helped him a great deal through his inspirational and spiritual instruction. He also confirms Mr. McCullough's continuous, deep and profound involvement with the church and his active participation in the drug abuse program and helping the homeless. He notes that on a recent occasion he was advised that Mr. McCullough allowed two homeless people to sleep in his new car, leaving the keys so they could warm themselves through the cold night. Unfortunately, they stole his car and his belongings. In spite of that McCullough was not concerned about the car but grieved instead about the souls of the homeless persons. Mr. Plummer provides further additional information about Mr. McCullough's charitable side and concludes, "isn't [Ralph]['s] story why we as tax payer['s] pay our taxes and contributions to the government so that the government which constructs programs and men like Ralph [who] would be helped and hopefully live a clean productive life. This young man is a success story." (P-1 at 2).

ANALYSIS

Examining the various criteria of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e) it is clear in my judgment that Mr. McCullough has demonstrated that each of the factors that must be considered are those which satisfactorily demonstrate the enormous strides that he has made following the drug-related offenses of which he was found guilty in 1987. Clearly, the position which he occupied, custodian, does not involve direct involvement with students, although frankly if he is to be believed, and I do believe him, I think his story and his remarkable transition can serve as an inspiration for children. The offense was a serious one, although the amount of crack cocaine involved, based upon Mr. McCullough's testimony and the sentence, was small. Nevertheless, drugs, especially crack cocaine and heroine - are anathema to our society and raise the gravest concerns amongst our children. Mr. McCullough's testimony and that which confirms it are that ever since his chance meeting with Reverend Broach, he not only underwent a profound spiritual and religious transition, but has never since consumed drugs, alcohol, tobacco, or any other substances which might by viewed as toxic. The criminal incidents occurred some eight years ago, not an insufficient period of time, given the clean record of the petitioner since. While the offense itself was isolated, Mr. McCullough candidly acknowledged that he was a "bum" at that time. He consumed alcohol, drugs, committed petty thefts, at one time was involved a domestic dispute, but never, even when he was at his most desperate, did he assault, rob or burglarize anyone. Certainly, the social conditions in which he found himself -the child of divorced parents whose lives became volatile, wandering the streets of Trenton - are typical of too many young people in America. Finally, Mr. McCullough's life experiences since his conviction have been remarkable. He has completed his high school education, obtained specialized education from Mercer County Community College as well as a private computer school. He has married and adopted three children. His wife, based on the documents, appears to be an articulate, intelligent, hard working, dedicated person who may very well be remarkable in her own right. I was also impressed with Mr. McCullough's demeanor. He was articulate, respectful, insightful, pleasant and seemed genuinely and sincerely appreciative of my efforts to provide him a forum to demonstrate his rehabilitation. Of course, judges as fact finders can be deceived, can be "conned" by a street smart individual who knows how to push the right buttons. While I certainly cannot guarantee that I was not taken in by McCullough's charm and sincerity, his record over the past eight years strongly suggests the contrary. As Mr. Plummer indicated in his letter, it would certainly seem at this time at least that Mr. McCullough indeed "is a success story." I hope for his sake, the sake of his wife, and three children that that story has only begun.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence and pursuant to the criteria set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and consistent with the conclusion arrived at by the Board that he has been rehabilitated. It is therefore ORDERED that the petitioner's criminal history no longer disqualifies him from school employment as a custodian.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the within petitioner has demonstrated rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and is, therefore, qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws. The Commissioner does, however, observe that notwithstanding the fact that the position petitioner seeks to occupy, i.e., custodian, "does not," as noted by the ALJ, "involve direct involvement with students" (Initial Decision at p. 6) in that these individuals are not responsible for the care, supervision or instruction of students, such a position nevertheless affords the individual significant and otherwise unsupervised access to children, a consideration which should not be minimized when examining rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The within petitioner is deemed qualified for school employment as a custodian for the reasons clearly articulated in the initial decision. This matter is hereby transmitted to the State Board of Education which has retained jurisdiction pursuant to its decision of July 5, 1995.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board appealed assignment of tuition responsibility for institutionalized child, L.L., for the 1992-93 school year. Matter involved the question of which governmental entity was financially responsible under the State Facilities Planning Act of 1979, N.J.S.A. 18A:17B-1 to -13, for the education of a child placed in a private school by the State child welfare agency, the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS).

ALJ concluded that petitioner was the "district of residence" of L.L. within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 as subsection (b) specified that the district of residence for children in residential State facilities or who have been placed by a State agency in group homes, private schools or out-of-state facilities "shall be the present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived prior to his most recent admission to a State facility or most recent placement by a State agency." ALJ found, however, that DYFS exceeded its legitimate authority when it unilaterally placed L.L. in an out-of-district private school without consultation with the local child study team. Thus, absent a showing that DYFS obtained any educational evaluation whatsoever, there was no legal basis on which to impose the tuition costs for this unauthorized placement upon the petitioning school district. ALJ ordered that the petitioning Board was not responsible for the education costs of L.L. for June 1992 and the 1992-93 school year.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioning Board was the district of residence for L.L. With respect to the Board's responsibility for payment of tuition for the period in question, however, the Commissioner was unable to concur with the ALJ that the District should not be held responsible for payment. Commissioner remanded matter for further fact-finding concerning the circumstances surrounding the placement of L.L., specifically to determine whether L.L.'s placement was emergent in nature, and for proofs as to whether the instant placement situation justified nonconformance with the specific terms of the applicable regulation (N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)5(ii)) on the part of the State.

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal by a local school district from the assessment of private-school tuition expenses for an institutionalized child in June 1992 and the 1992-93 school year. It involves the question of which governmental entity is financially responsible under the State Facilities Planning Act of 1979, N.J.S.A. 18A:17B-1 to -13, for the education of a child placed in a private school by the state child welfare agency, the Division of Youth & Family Services ("DYFS"). Basically, the Department of Education ("Department") contends that Prospect Park school district is responsible as "the present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived prior to his most recent admission to a State facility or most recent placement by a State agency." N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b). In applying this statute, the Department maintains that the relevant dates are June 15, 1992, the date on which the child was most recently placed in the school, and October 15, 1992, the date of the annual school census for 1992-93.

Petitioner Board of Education of the Borough of Prospect Park ("Board") urges that the relevant dates for ascertaining district of residence are either November 2, 1990, when DYFS originally obtained custody of the child, or March 7, 1991, when the child was initially placed at the school. Alternatively, the Board argues that the responsible district is "the district in which the parent or guardian last resided prior to becoming homeless" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(c) or that DYFS is financially responsible as the agency with legal custody of the child. In addition, the Board urges that the Department's belated efforts at collecting payment are barred by the equitable doctrines of estoppel and laches.

Procedural History

By letter dated May 26, 1993, Melvin L. Wyns, director of the Bureau of School Finance in the Department of Education, notified the Board of his determination that the Prospect Park school district is responsible for the educational costs of "a child who was placed by DYFS in Holley Center [in Hackensack, New Jersey] on June 2, 1992." Further, the letter explained that the mother "is residing at 76 Struyk Avenue, Prospect Park, New Jersey, and has been a resident at that address since the date of placement." After exhausting an intermediate level of review, the Board filed an appeal to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") on November 12, 1993. On January 4, 1994, the Attorney General's Office filed an answer on behalf of the subagencies in the Department of Education and DYFS (collectively the "State respondents"). Subsequently, on March 30, 1994, the Commissioner transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case. Although the Board had joined various other local school districts and service providers as respondents, these parties have been dismissed by voluntary stipulation. The OAL held hearings on December 13 and 14, 1994 and March 9, 1995. Both sides filed post-hearing briefs on April 21, 1995. Witnesses and exhibits are listed in the appendix.

Most of the relevant facts are undisputed. I FIND:

L.L is a thirteen year old child currently under the physical and legal custody of DYFS.[1] In or about 1990, L.L's mother, L.P., lived in the Borough of Oakland in Bergen County. Insofar as the record reflects, L.L. lived primarily with her mother at that time, although the child may have been left occasionally with other caretakers. No record exists that L.L. ever lived with her father, whose identity is unknown.[2] Due to allegations of sexual abuse and concerns about the mother's transient lifestyle, DYFS conducted an investigation into the circumstances of L.L, then only eight years old, in April 1990. On November 2, 1990, the mother voluntarily consented to placement of her child in foster care.[3] Shortly thereafter, on December 10, 1990, DYFS obtained the first of a series of successive court orders awarding it temporary custody of L.L.[4]

[2] The mother gave three different names of possible fathers, including one man to whom she was apparently married at the time of L.L.'s birth. Since DYFS was never able to locate the whereabouts of any of these men, paternity could not be established through scientific testing.

[3] N.J.S.A. 30:4C-11 authorizes DYFS to accept a parent's voluntary surrender of custody where it appears that "the child's welfare will be endangered unless proper care or custody is provided."

[4] Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 30:4C-12 the Superior Court, Chancery Division, Family Part may place a child "under the care and supervision" of DYFS for various reasons, including that the parent has "fail[ed] to provide such child with proper protection, maintenance and education or is endangering the welfare of such child. Such protective-service orders must be renewed at six-month intervals and do not permanently sever parental rights Final termination of parental rights can only be achieved through a separate guardianship proceeding where the parent's unfitness now and in the foreseeable future is demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence. N.J.S.A. 304C-15. In re Guardianship of J.C. 136 N.J. 546 (1994).

DYFS records reveal that L.L. stayed in a foster home until November 26, 1990, when she was admitted to Bergen Pines County Hospital in Paramus. At some later date, L.L. left the hospital and entered Holley Center, a private residential facility in Hackensack. It is difficult to pinpoint the exact date with accuracy. Gwendolyn Sifford, the DYFS social worker presently assigned to the case, testified from the case file that L.L. went to Holley Center for the first time "around December 15, 1990." Court papers, however, suggest that L.L. remained at Bergen Pines through at least February 10, 1991 and, according to a report by the child placement review board, that the "date of placement" at Holley Center was March 7, 1991. In any event, it is uncontroverted that L.L. resided at Holley Center until her discharge on August 29, 1991, after which she was placed consecutively at two different foster homes "somewhere in Bergen County." Leaving foster care again, L.L. stayed briefly at a shelter for two weeks until a bed became available at Holley Center.

On June 15, 1992, L.L. returned to Holley Center, where she has been living ever since. Holley Center is affiliated with the George Washington School, both of which are operated by an outfit known as Youth Consultation Service.[5] L.L. eats her meals and sleeps at Holley Center and receives her education at George Washington School. DYFS pays for L.L.'s room and board at Holley Center, but not for her educational expenses at George Washington School. Tuition costs at George Washington School amounted to $1,376 for June 1992 and $20,201 for 1992-93, or a total of $21,577.

Meanwhile, in January or February 1992, the mother, L.P., had become homeless and was, by all accounts, "living in a car." Reportedly, she had little or no possessions other than "the clothes on her back." Sometime prior to March 13, 1992, L.P. accepted an offer of Regina Johnson to move into a house at 76 Struyk Avenue in Prospect Park and take care of Mae Doorn, an elderly bedridden woman who occupied the first floor. That date can be fixed with certainty because Ms. Johnson, a close friend of the Doorn family, was present when L.P. witnessed Ms. Doorn's living will on March 13, 1992. Essentially, L.P. agreed to serve as caretaker for Ms. Doorn in exchange for a place to stay. Ms. Johnson testified that L.P. and a male companion, whom she had assumed to be L.P.'s husband, lived in the home in Prospect Park for over a year and that L.P. "had no other residence." On her daily visits to the Prospect Park property, Ms. Johnson regularly observed L.P. at various times of the day and night. Moreover, L.P. received her mail at the Prospect Park address.

Toward the end of 1992, L.P. stopped doing her job properly and often left the helpless old lady in her charge unattended for hours. When Ms. Johnson asked her to leave, however, L.P. refused to comply. Ms. Johnson's attorney advised her that L.P. had acquired the rights of a tenant. Consequently, Ms. Johnson had to institute eviction proceedings to regain possession of the property. It took months to reach a settlement, whereby L.P. agreed to vacate the premises by June 3, 1993.

After verifying that L.P. had moved out of Bergen County, DYFS transferred the case file to Passaic County where the parent now lived. Numerous official records kept by DYFS in the ordinary course of business corroborate that L.P. was living at the Prospect Park address in June 1992 and for one year thereafter. For example, an information sheet dated June 18, 1992 lists the mother's address as "c/o Mae Doorn, 76 Struyk Ave., Prospect Park, N.J." Similarly, an assessment report covering May 1 to November 1, 1992 refers to the same address in Prospect Park. A contact sheet chronicles that on August 12, 1992 a DYFS worker "went to 76 Struyk Ave., Ist floor, Prospect Park and picked up mother" for a visit to her daughter at Holley Center. An envelope in what appears to be L.P.'s own handwriting gives the Prospect Park residence as her return address. As late as April 3, 1993, a DYFS record still shows L.P. as living in Prospect Park. Likewise, a court report prepared on March 18, 1993 confirms that L.P. "continues to reside at the same address" in Prospect Park. [6]

[6]Board counsel made a point of a single DYFS document showing a computer-generated address in the City of Paterson, but that address was crossed-out and the correct Prospect Park address handwritten alongside it. Social worker Gwendolyn

The Board was unaware that it might be charged for L.L.'s education until Mr. Wynn's letter dated May 26, 1993. By that time, of course, the 1992-93 school year was nearly over. Prior to receipt of that letter, the school administration "didn't even know of her existence." Thus, the district did not have a meaningful opportunity to check the mother's residence in Prospect Park. More importantly, the district's child study team did not have any input into the decision to enroll L.L. at George Washington School.[7] Indeed, the record is barren of the details of L.L's particular handicapping condition or the rationale for placing her in a private school approved for emotionally-disturbed children[8]

DYFS itself candidly acknowledges that it failed to follow the usual practice of consulting with local education officials about the appropriate educational placement of children entrusted to its care and supervision. Henry Lawton, a DYFS field worker with twenty-three years of experience, declared that he always conferred with the local child study team "to ask for available [pupil] records" and "[to] solicit their cooperation" in making a residential educational placement. Working with the local school system "is supposed to be an overall way of DYFS operating" When deciding whether to remove a child from his home, DYFS considers a variety of noneducational factors, such as how the child functions in the family and community and the nature of any emotional problems. However, Mr. Lawton did not know of any DYFS-connected child study team which could properly assess a child's educational needs.[9]

Schools superintendent Thomas Vannatta expressed similar sentiments based on his own past dealings with state agencies. Previously, whenever a state agency wanted to put a child residing in Prospect Park in an outside placement, "it would notify us." In one particular instance, Mr. Vannatta recalled, the child study team reviewed a recommended residential placement for a preschool child and concurred in the result. Since the local school district bears "ultimate responsibility" for a child's educational program, Mr. Vannatta reasoned that the school district "should become part of any placement [decision.]"

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Prospect Park is the "district of residence" of L.L. within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12; and, further, that the DYFS exceeded its legitimate authority when it unilaterally placed L.L. in an out-of-district private school without consultation with the local child study team.

N.J.S.A. 18A:7b-12 prescribes the method for determining "district of residence" for school funding purposes of certain children who are not residing with their parent or guardian. Subsection (a) provides that the district of residence for children in foster homes "shall be the district in which the foster parent resides." Subsection (b), applicable here, specifies that the district of residence for children in residential state facilities or who have been placed by a state agency in group homes, private schools or out-of-state facilities "shall be the present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived prior to his most recent admission to a State facility or most recent placement by a State agency." Subsection (c) of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 adds that the district of residence for children whose parent or guardian temporarily moves from one school district to another as a result of being homeless "shall be the district in which the parent or guardian last resided prior to becoming homeless." Lastly, subsection (d) creates a catch-all category where the district of residence cannot be determined according to the foregoing criteria, in which case "the State shall assume fiscal responsibility for the tuition of the child."

Here L.L. was placed in a private school by a state agency, so the pertinent portion of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 is subsection (b). Implementing regulations clarify that the "present district of residence" referred to in subsection (b) shall mean, for the first school year, the New Jersey district of residence of the child's parent or guardian "as of the date of the child's initial placement by the State agency" and, in subsequent years, the New Jersey district of residence of the child's parent or guardian "as of the last school day prior to October 16." N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.3 (b). Hence, the key dates are June 2, 1992, the date on which the child was "most recently placed" at George Washington School, and October 15, 1992 for the subsequent school year. Proofs clearly demonstrate that the district of residence of the mother on both those dates was Prospect Park, where she was working full time as a live-in caretaker. Unrefuted evidence shows that on the relevant dates the mother slept at the Prospect Park address, received mail there, used it as her return address on outgoing mail, and was picked up there for a visit to her daughter. In order to evict her from the premises, the owner had to resort to court action. Accordingly, it is immaterial whether the living arrangement happened to be made "as an incident of the employment." What matters is that the mother was actually living in Prospect Park on the two key dates.

Petitioner's efforts to shift the inquiry to other possible dates are unavailing. Pointing to the phrase "initial placement" in the regulation, N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.3(a)(2), the Board argues that the focus should be on November 2, 1990, when the mother originally consented to placement of her child, or March 7, 1991, when the child had been previously placed at Holley Center. But the regulatory language should not be read out of context.. As noted, the underlying statute uses the words "most recent" rather than "initial" placement. Moreover, the regulation draws a distinction between "initial" placement associated with the current institutionalization as opposed to continuing placement "in subsequent years." Viewed in its correct context, the term "initial placement" in the regulation must mean the latest or most recent time when the child was placed in a state facility or private school and not an earlier placement that occurred years ago and has been superseded by intervening events. Subsequent to her previous placement at Holley Center, L.L. has been to at least two foster homes and a temporary shelter before her readmittance to Holley Center on June 2, 1992. Support for such interpretation is derived from N.J.S.A. 18:7B-12(a), which provides that, "If a child in a foster home is subsequently placed in a State facility or by a State agency, the district of residence of the child shall then be determined as if no such foster placement had occurred." Any contrary interpretation would run directly counter to the express statutory language and thereby exceed the agency's proper rule-making authority. Administrative regulations cannot alter the terms of a legislative enactment or frustrate the policy embodied in the statute. N.J. Chamber of. Commerce v. N.J. Election Law Enforcement Comm'n, 82 N.J. 57, 82 (1980); Kingsley v. Hawthorne Fabrics, Inc., 41 N.J. 521, 528 (1964).

Similarly, the mother cannot be considered homeless in the sense of "temporarily lack[ing] a fixed, regular and adequate residence" as contemplated by N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(a). While that description may well fit her situation immediately before March 13, 1992, by that date she had taken up permanent residence in Prospect Park and had a stable and constant abode. Her period of genuine homelessness lasted only a few months in early 1992.

Apart from its interpretation of the statute, the Board also urges that the state respondents should be equitably estopped from imposing tuition costs on the school district because of alleged "knowing and intentional misrepresentation" by DYFS workers. Equitable estoppel is the doctrine that voluntary conduct may preclude someone from asserting rights "as against another person, who has in good faith relied upon such conduct and has been led thereby to change his position for the worse." W. V. Prangborne & Co. v. N. J. Dep't of Transp. 116 N.J. 543, 553-54 (1989); Somerset Hills Sch., Inc. v. Ellis, No. A-3087-93T2, slip op. at 13 (N.J. App. Div. Aug. 3, 1995).

"estoppel connotes a change in position by a person to his detriment in reliance upon the word or conduct of another." Rossum v. Jones, 97 N.J. Super. 382, 392 (App. Div. 1967). Certain elements must be established in order for the defense of estoppel to be invoked. First, there must be some conduct on respondent's part amounting to a misrepresentation or concealment of material facts. Either silence or omission can constitute "conduct" where there is a duty to speak or act. Second, the party being estopped must have knowledge of the facts, or the circumstances must be such that knowledge is necessarily imputed to him. Third, the truth concerning these facts must be unknown to the party claiming the benefit of the estoppel. Fourth, the conduct must be done with the intention, or at least with the expectation, that it will be acted upon by the other party. Fifth, the conduct must be relied upon by the innocent party and, sixth, his reliance must have caused him to change his position for the worse. Feldman v. Urban Commercial, Inc., 70 N.J. Super. 463, 474-475 (Ch. Div. 1961), aff'd 87 N.J. Super. 391 (App. Div. 1965).

Equitable estoppel is rarely applied against public entities, particularly when estoppel would interfere with essential governmental functions. Nonetheless, equitable estoppel considerations are relevant to assessing governmental conduct, Skulski v. Nolan, 68 N.J. 179, 198 (1975), and may be invoked to prevent manifest injustice or unfairness. O'Malley v. Dep't of Energy, 109 N.J. 309, 316 (1987); Vogt v. Borough of Belmar, 14 N.J. 195, 205 (1954). See also, Somerset Hills, slip op. at 15. Generally, the issue is "extremely fact-sensitive." Airwork Service Div. v. Dir., Div. of Taxation, 97 N.J. 290 , 297 (1984), cert. den. 471 U.S. 1127, 105 S. Ct. 2662, 86 L. Ed. 2d 278 (1985).

With respect to the first element of an estoppel, the only alleged "misrepresentation" was DYFS having misidentified the parent's district of residence. The record clearly demonstrates, however, that DYFS made a good faith effort to apply the statute in a rapidly-changing situation. As previously discussed, Prospect Park is the parent's district of residence in accordance with the governing standards. Even if DYFS had made an error, it would hardly rise to the level of a purposeful attempt to mislead the school district. At worst, it was be nothing more than an innocent mistake.

Absent misrepresentation or concealment of material facts, done with the intention or expectation that an innocent party will rely on it, equitable estoppel should not arise against a governmental agency. Somerset Hills, slip op. at 17. Accord, Boyd v. Dep't of Institutions & Agencies, 126 N.J. Super. 273, 275 (App. Div. 1974).

Another missing element is detrimental reliance on the part of the Board. Petitioner has not done anything differently as the result of any action or nonaction by the State respondents. If the statute requires that a particular school district must bear the costs of a child's education, then that district remains financially obligated, regardless of whether or not it was aware of her existence on October 15 of the year in question. Significantly, the Board has not shown that it actually suffered any loss of state aid due to its inability to include this child on its 1992-93 census. Distribution of state aid for the 1992-93 school year was based on the census taken on October 15th of the prebudget year or October 15, 1991. Since Prospect Park did not become responsible for L. L. until June 1992, the district could not possibly have received any additional aid on her behalf for 1992-93. Categorical aid for 1993-94, including aid for special education, bilingual education and county vocational education, was "frozen" at the amount which the district received in the 1992-93 school year. L. 1993. c. 7. §2a. Foundational aid for 1993-94 was also frozen at 1992-93 levels, multiplied by a factor of 1.04. L. 1993, c. 7 §2d. Thus, Prospect Park did not lose any state aid for 1993-94.

In addition, the Board argues that the State respondents are barred by laches from imposing extra costs on a school district after the budget for that year had been adopted.[10] Laches is defined as "the neglect, for an unreasonable and unexplained length of time, under circumstances permitting diligence, to do what in law should have been done" or, more succinctly, as "inexcusable delay in asserting a right." Lavin v. Hackensack Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 145, 151 (1982).. It occurs "when there is a delay, unexplained and inexcusable, in enforcing a known right, and prejudice has resulted to the other party because of that delay." Rolnick v. Rolnick , 262 N.J. Super. 343, 364 (App. Div. 1993). Knowledge and delay are essential prerequisites to application of the doctrine of laches. Notch View Associates v. Smith, 260 N.J. Super. 190, 207 (Law Div. 1992). When deciding whether to apply laches, courts look at "[t]he length of the delay, reasons for delay, and changing conditions of either or both parties during the delay." Lavin, at 152. Because the central issue is whether it is inequitable to enforce the claim, "the change in conditions or relations of the parties coupled with the passage of time becomes the primary determinant." Lavin, at 153.

[10]Mr. Vannatta testified that the school budget is prepared early in the prebudget year for the upcoming year. See N.J.S.A. 18A:22-32, -33. By the time that L.L. entered George Washington School in June 1992, it was already too late to include her projected tuition costs in the 1992-93 budget.

Although state respondents waited until May 1993 to seek payment of expenses which had begun accruing in June 1992, the lapse of time is reasonable under the circumstances. Given the mother's high mobility and her relocation to a county serviced by a different DYFS district office, it took awhile to identify her district of residence. A delay of less than one year in this context cannot be considered excessive. Compare, e.g., Lavin (claim for teacher's military service credit not made until more than nine years after her employment commenced) or Notch View Associates (delay of nearly two years before bringing suit to rescind partnership agreement). Again, it must be emphasized that the Board has not suffered any genuine harm as a result of the mere passage of time. Prospect Park would not have been entitled to any greater amount of state aid if it had known earlier about its potential liability. Even if DYFS had immediately notified the district as soon as the child enrolled in George Washington School, it would already have been too late for tuition costs to be included in the 1992-93 school budget. While its legal analysis is couched in terms of estoppel and laches, the Board's real objection is not to the delay itself, but rather to having to expend limited taxpayer funds for the education of a child with such tenuous ties to the local community.

More problematic is the question of whether DYFS is authorized to enroll a child in an approved private placement without prior consultation with the school district responsible for providing a free and appropriate public education to children with special needs. Although the Board discusses this issue as if it were a matter of estoppel and laches, it is really a question of the statutory authority vested in DYFS.

Foster care is one of several social services that DYFS is empowered to provide to troubled families. In re Guardianship of J.C., 129 N.J. 1, 7 (1992). "Care" means "cognizance of a child for the purpose of providing necessary welfare services, or maintenance, or both." "Custody" means "continuing responsibility for the person of a child . . . for the purpose of providing necessary welfare services, or maintenance, or both." N.J.S.A. 30:4C-2(c) and (d). Presumably, DYFS, is entitled to enroll a child committed to its care and custody in a public school district to the same extent as if it were the parent or guardian of the child. But the question arises whether DYFS possesses greater rights than a parent to decide what is the appropriate educational placement for a handicapped child. Delivery of educational services to children with educational disabilities is governed by "a complex scheme of federal and state statutes and administrative regulations." Lascari v. Ramapo Indian Hills Reg. High Sch. Bd. of Educ., 116 N.J. 7, 33 (1989). It is primarily the local child study team which evaluates the eligibility of a child for special education and related services and develops an individualized education program. N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.3. Lascari, at 35. Parents have the right to be involved at important stages in the decision-making process. Burlington Sch. Comm. v. Mass Dept. of Educ., 471 U.S. 359, 105 S. Ct. 1996, 85 L. Ed. 2d 385 (1985). Lascari, at 33. If parents are dissatisfied with the placement recommendation of the child study team, they may request an impartial due process hearing. 20 U.S.C.A. §1415(b)(2); N.J.A.C. 6:28-2,7. Burlington, 471 U.S. at 369. Lascari, at 37. In the alternative, parents may unilaterally enroll the child in a particular placement at their own financial risk and sue the school district for reimbursement. Burlington, at 373; Lascari, at 49-55.

DYFS has not cited any statute or other legal authority for overriding the central role of the district's child study team in making special education placements. To the contrary, DYFS's standard practice of consulting with local child study teams before making such placements suggests the value of input from the educational experts. Several policy considerations also strongly favor this approach. Above all is the desirability of an informed and rational decision about what is educationally appropriate. Apparently DYFS does not conduct its own independent educational evaluation. Consequently, the placement determination would be made without consideration of the child's educational needs if involvement of the local child study team is circumvented. Moreover, it is fiscally irresponsible for a state agency to pass along whatever the costs of private placement may happen to be, without adequate consideration of whether comparable educational services are available at less cost. Cf. Essex Cty. Educ. Servs. Comm'n v. N.J. Dept. of Educ., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol 4A) 522, 525 (Comm'r June 8, 1993), aff'd (St. Bd. Dec. 1, 1993), disapproving of a public body's "practice of routinely charging whatever the market will bear." In essence, DYFS is writing a blank check for the local school board to pay. [11]

Statutes which relate to the same subject matter "are to be construed together as a unitary and harmonious whole, in order that each may be fully effective." Clifton v. Passaic Cty. Bd. of Taxation, 28 N.J. 411, 421 (1958). Lawrence v. Butcher, 130 N.J. Super. 209, 212 (App. Div. 1974). Where the Legislature has established a mechanism for determining a child's district of residence, it cannot be assumed that such enactment was intended to allow a state agency to ignore the procedures under federal law for placement of a handicapped child. In the event of any conflict between federal and state requirements, federal law would be clearly controlling. New Jersey's receipt of federal funding to assist state and local agencies in educating handicapped children is conditioned on the State's compliance with federal law. Lascari, at 33. The Individuals With Disabilities Education Act, 20 U.S.C.A. §1401 to 1461, "provides federal money to assist state and local agencies in educating handicapped children, and conditions such funding upon a State's compliance with extensive goals and procedures." Hendrick Hudson Central Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. v. Rowley, 458 U.S. 176, 179 102 S. Ct. 3034, 73 L:. Ed. 2d 690 (1982). It is unnecessary to decide such questions as whether DYFS could have conducted its own child study team evaluation or whether DYFS was obligated to request a due process hearing if its professional staff disagreed with the recommendations of a local child study team. Absent a showing that DYFS obtained any educational evaluation whatsoever, there is no legal basis on which to impose the tuition costs for this unauthorized placement upon the Prospect Park school district.[12]

[11] The same problem does not occur in the event of placement in another public school district, where tuition costs are fixed at "an amount not in excess of the actual cost per pupil as determined under rules prescribed by the commissioner and approved by the state board." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-19. Nor does the problem occur in the event of placement in a state facility, where the district's share of the financial burden is limited to "an amount equal to the State foundation amount plus the appropriate special education aid." N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-2.a.

It is ORDERED that the Board of Education of the Borough of Prospect Park is not responsible for the education costs of L.L. for June 1992 and the 1992-93 school year.

[12]Ironically, state respondents suggest that the "logical" child study team to conduct an evaluation was Teaneck, where the child had been placed "in a failed foster home." However, there is no indication on the record that DYFS ever sought an evaluation by the Teaneck child study team.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF PROSPECT PARK, PASSAIC COUNTY, PETITIONER, V. STATE OF NEW JERSEY, DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, DIVISION OF FINANCE; STATE OF NEW JERSEY, DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, BUREAU OF SCHOOL FINANCE; DIVISION OF YOUTH AND FAMILY SERVICES,BERGEN COUNTY DISTRICT OFFICE, NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES; DIVISION OF YOUTH AND FAMILY SERVICES, PASSAIC COUNTY DISTRICT OFFICE, NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES; HOLLEY CHILD CARE AND DEVELOPMENT CENTER OF YOUTH CONSULTATION SERVICE; GEORGE WASHINGTON SCHOOL OF YOUTH CONSULTATION SERVICE; THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF TEANECK, BERGEN COUNTY; THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF OAKLAND, BERGEN COUNTY; AND L.P., RESPONDENTS.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondents' exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Petitioner's primary and reply exceptions were untimely filed as they were not received by the Commissioner until November 21, 1995 and, therefore, are not considered herein.

The exceptions of State Respondents concur with the determination that Prospect Park was the district of residence of L.L.'s parent but take exception to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) determination that the conduct of the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS) precludes the imposition of tuition costs upon the Board of Education of Prospect Park. Respondents aver that the sole statutory requirement for financial responsibility for L.L.'s education is determined by the residency of the parent, L.P. and, thus, Prospect Park must pay for the educational costs of L.L. (Exceptions at p. 2) Respondents argue that once the court determined residence, that should have been the end of the inquiry as the statute does not provide for any defenses such as estoppel or improper placement. (Id.) Also, respondents argue that the ALJ's finding is contrary to the legislative intent of the statute which does not authorize a penalty if the State agency fails to confer with a local district over placement of a child, (Id. at p. 5) notwithstanding that the ALJ may be displeased with the effect of the statutory scheme. (Id. at p. 7) Moreover, respondents argue that if affirmed, the ALJ's initial decision "[would] have dangerous precedential value" requiring DYFS to secure the approval of the district of residence prior to a child's placement since emergency situations arise where emergency placement is necessary. (Id.)

Respondents Holley Center et al. file exceptions further arguing that the statute and applicable regulations contain no requirement that the State obtain a child study team evaluation from a local school district before placing the child in a residential facility or "private school" and, in reality, it is usually not possible to obtain such an evaluation prior to placement (Exceptions at p. 4), a requirement that would create a hardship in emergency cases. They also argue that the ALJ imposed an additional burden onto the statutory and regulatory scheme that is not, and should not, be present. Further, they argue that that there is no precondition to payment stating that the child study team must first evaluate (Id. at pp. 5-6) and that when a child is placed with DYFS, the child cannot always wait until the mother's district of residency is determined, as in this case, where it took almost one year for such determination to be made, for a child must be educated and cannot be expected to wait for the determination of the district responsible for his/her education. (Id.).

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ that Prospect Park is the "district of residence" of L.L. within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12. The ALJ reviewed the facts of the mother's residency and found that L.P. was a resident of Prospect Park, both at the time L.L. was initially placed in the Holley Center on June 15, 1992 and on October 15, 1992. The existing record provides no cause to challenge any of the determinations or credibility assessments made by the ALJ with regard to the residency of L.L., nor may the Commissioner properly reject such findings of fact without reviewing those portions of the transcript(s) where such findings were reached. Rowley v. Board of Education of Manalapan-Englishtown, 205 N.J. Super. 65, 75 (App. Div. 1985); In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158-159 (App. Div. 1987).[1] Accordingly, not having been provided with transcripts and accepting the findings of the ALJ, the Commissioner determines that Prospect Park is the district of residence for Respondent L.L from October 15, 1992 through June 30, 1993.

[1] It is the responsibility of those challenging such determinations to provide the Commissioner with challenged portions of the transcript, Morrison at 158-159. In that no transcripts were provided in the instant case, no obligation arises for the Commissioner to review them before rendering a final decision regarding the findings and recommendations of the ALJ.

With respect to Prospect Park's responsibility for payment of tuition for this period, however, the Commissioner is unable to concur with the ALJ on the present record that the District should not be held responsible for payment. Regulation does require at N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)5(ii) that where a pupil with an educational disability is placed in an approved residential private school by a public agency, other than the district board of education, the agency must consult with the school district prior to placement. That section states, "the Chief School Administrator or his or her designee shall participate with the public agency in the placement decision if the district board of education is to be responsible for the special education costs." While the State may not have acted in strict conformance with this regulation in the instant situation, the Commissioner hesitates to render a determination waiving district responsibility for payment without further fact-finding as to whether an emergency existed that would have justified L.L's placement without participation of the petitioning Board, as the State and Respondent Holley Center contend in their exceptions.

Therefore, the Commissioner remands this matter for further fact-finding concerning the circumstances surrounding the placement of L.L., specifically to determine whether L.L.'s placement was emergent in nature, and for proofs as to whether the instant placement situation justified nonconformance with the specific terms of the applicable regulation on the part of the State.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner affirms in part the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law and remands in part for further fact-finding consistent with the parameters set forth above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

In prior decision, Commissioner had found petitioning district to be the district of residence for tuition purposes for institutionalized child L.L., who had been placed in a private school by the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS) without consulting petitioner as required by regulation. Commissioner remanded for factual findings as to whether emergency circumstances existed such as would justify DYFS's apparent noncompliance with rule.

On remand, the ALJ elicited testimony and evidence and concluded that DYFS had ample time within which to consult with petitioner prior to placing L.L. in the private school, but failed to do so.

Commissioner adopted factual findings of ALJ and held that petitioner is in fact L.L.'s district of residence and, as such, is generally responsible for her education. However, under the particular circumstances established herein, which clearly demonstrated noncompliance by DYFS with rules regarding consultation prior to placement, Commissioner declined to hold petitioning district responsible for tuition for period at issue (June 1992 and 1992-93 school year).

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is the continuation of a hearing regarding whether a local school district is financially responsible for tuition costs of an institutionalized child placed in a private school by the Division of Youth & Family Services ("DYFS"). Whenever a child with an educational disability is placed in an approved residential school by a public agency other than the district board of education, state regulations prescribe that:

> The chief school administrator or his or her designee shall participate with the public agency in the placement decision if the district board of education is to be responsible for the special education costs. N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)(5)(ii).

In an initial decision issued on October 23, 1995, I recommended that the Board of Education of Prospect Park ("Board") should not be held liable for tuition costs because of DYFS's failure to consult with the local school district about the appropriateness of the proposed educational placement. On January 18, 1996, the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") remanded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") "for further fact-finding concerning the circumstances surrounding the placement" of the child identified as L.L.[1] In particular, the Commissioner instructed that findings be made on "whether L.L.'s placement was emergent in nature" and "whether the instant placement situation justified nonconformance with the specific terms of the applicable regulation on the part of the State."

Procedural History

By a letter dated May 26, 1993, the Department of Education notified the Board that the Prospect Park school district is responsible for the educational costs of L.L.'s private placement for two weeks in June 1992 and the 1992-93 school year. Respondent appealed that determination to the Commissioner on November 12, 1993.

[1] However, the Commissioner adopted that portion of the initial decision which found that Prospect Park is the parent's district of residence.

Subsequently, on March 30, 1993, the Commissioner transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing. After three days of testimony, the OAL issued an initial decision on October 23, 1995. Thereafter, on January 15, 1995, the Commissioner remanded the matter to the OAL for further fact-finding. The OAL held an additional day of hearing on April 1, 1997. Exhibits previously marked at the earlier hearings retain the same numbers. New exhibits and witnesses are listed in the appendix.

All of the factual findings set forth in the prior initial decision are incorporated herein as if set forth at length. Of particular significance is the admission by DYFS caseworker Henry Lawton that his normal practice is to solicit the cooperation of the local school child study team in making residential placements and that consultation with school officials "is supposed to be an overall way of DYFS operating." Prospect Park Bd. of Educ. v. State of New Jersey, et als., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3045-94 (Oct. 23, 1995), slip op. at 7. Mr. Lawton is assigned to the residential-placement unit of the Bergen district office and is familiar with its operations.

Another DYFS employee, Nathalie Caminiti, was L.L.'s "primary caseworker," and the person who arranged for L.L.'s residential placement in June 1992. She is assigned to intake and investigations in Bergen County and does not ordinarily become involved in making residential placements. Indeed, this case was the first and only emergency residential placement that she has ever handled. Ms. Caminiti's involvement began prior to November 1990, when she investigated a complaint that L.L., then only nine years old, had been assaulted by her mother's boyfriend, whom L.L. regarded as her father. Ultimately, her attacker was convicted of a criminal offense and put in jail. L.L. was traumatized and "needed therapy." On November 2, 1990, her mother signed a voluntary agreement granting DYFS custody of the child. Initially DYFS placed her in a foster home, but she became so "disruptive" that DYFS quickly moved her to a second foster home. By the end of November, L.L. had to be hospitalized at Bergen Pines Hospital because of "suicidal ideation."

L.L. remained at Bergen Pines through March 1991, and appeared to do well "in a structured setting." On March 7, 1991, she was discharged to Fisher Hall at the recommendation of the hospital's professional staff. Fisher Hall is a therapeutic facility operated by Youth Consultation Services, the same outfit that also operates the private school where L.L. was later placed. According to Ms. Caminiti, Fisher Hall was the only real option at the time. Other available facilities were either too restrictive or served an older population. L.L.'s condition continued to improve at Fisher Hall. After six months, she was ready to try a less formal setting. On August 29, 1991, she transferred to an "aftercare-treatment home," a specialized foster home run by caretakers with intensive training in dealing with difficult children. Since her new foster home was in Teaneck, she attended special-education classes in the Teaneck public schools. Meanwhile, Fisher Hall continued providing therapy to L.L and her mother.

L.L. had always hoped one day to return to her natural mother. A major setback occurred when L.L. had a disastrous meeting with her mother, which "put her over the edge." After this meeting, L.L.'s condition rapidly deteriorated. She began to urinate and defecate in her clothing and to hide her feces around the house. In late May 1992, L.L. ran away from her foster home, took a ride in a stranger's car, and contacted her natural mother. Her foster mother refused to take her back and demanded that DYFS find another placement. Although Ms. Caminiti tried to get her to reconsider, the foster mother wanted L.L. out of her home "immediately."

Again, the options were limited. L.L. was too young for the Bergen County children's shelter and had already been unsuccessful in three foster homes. Both Ms. Caminiti and her supervisor decided to place L.L. in Holley Center, which is affiliated with Youth Consultation Services.[2] Before she was formally admitted into the residential treatment program, L.L. went into "respite care" at Holley Center for two weeks so that a psychiatric evaluation could be obtained and her medical records could be reviewed. Holley Center was not certain that it would accept L.L. and there was still time to look for other placements. Significantly, DYFS made no attempt during this two-week hiatus to plan for her educational needs. DYFS never explored any educational alternatives because children at Holley Center automatically go to George Washington School. Although the regular school year was almost over, DYFS failed to contact Teaneck school officials in order to avoid disruption of her education. Instead, L.L. did not receive any educational services during the two-week respite period. After she had been accepted at Holley Center on June 2, 1992, she entered the George Washington School for the final two weeks before summer vacation. Thus, L.L. was removed from her familiar educational setting and plopped into new school surroundings just as the current school year was coming to an end. She not only suffered instability in her home life, but she lost the support of her school as well.

Although Ms. Caminiti knew that the natural mother lived in Prospect Park, she made no effort to contact that school district to discuss L.L.'s immediate transfer or make arrangements for the upcoming school year. Ms. Caminiti admitted that she personally knew by March 25, 1992, if not sooner, that the natural mother was living in Prospect Park. In addition to a case record prepared by Ms. Caminiti herself on that date showing the mother's address in Prospect Park, the DYFS file also contains an envelope postmarked March 25, 1992 with the mother's return address. Generally, it is not within the scope of her duties for Ms. Caminiti to make residential placements. She has no educational expertise and "[does] not get involved with the educational component of a residential placement." Ms. Caminiti did not realize a school district must develop an individualized educational program as a prerequisite to delivery of special-education services. When placing L.L in a private school, she did not follow any written guidelines or refer to the DYFS manual. Rather, she merely discussed the case with her supervisor and did "what we felt was expedient."

At first, Ms. Caminiti indicated that she was too busy during the two-week respite period to contact Prospect Park school officials for advice. Later, however, she acknowledged that it would have taken only "about twenty minutes" to make a telephone call to the superintendent of schools. Further, she had ample time over the summer to write to the Prospect Park district about suitable educational placements when school resumed in September.

I FIND that emergent conditions do not justify the admitted failure of DYFS to comply with the legal requirement to solicit participation of Prospect Park school representatives "if the district board of education is to be responsible for the special education costs." Even if unusual circumstances necessitated the immediate removal of the child from her foster home, proofs establish that there was a two-week hiatus during which DYFS had sufficient time to gather other materials preparatory to actual placement. While collecting such other information, DYFS could easily have sought input from local school officials. DYFS knew where the mother was living at the time, but neglected to notify the responsible school district of its preparations for the child's educational future. Afterwards, DYFS missed a second opportunity to confer with school authorities during the long summer vacation. DYFS has no excuse for such omission, since any genuine emergency had now ceased and the agency had more than two months before school would open again. Had DYFS followed proper procedure, the district's child study team would have had a chance to evaluate L.L.'s educational functioning and make recommendations concerning appropriate educational placements. As it turned out, there is no expert testimony that the George Washington School is a suitable educational placement or that other less-restrictive placements do not exist.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts, I CONCLUDE that the circumstances do not warrant waiver of the regulatory requirement that DYFS consult with the responsible school district about placement of L.L. in a residential private school.

At the outset, the Board questions the inherent authority of the Commissioner to waive application of a valid rule. Waiver by an administrative agency of its own rules on a case-by-case basis subverts the uniform application of published standards and runs the risk of "hamper[ing] efficient rule application." Dougherty v. Human Serv. Dep't, 91 N.J. 1, 9 (1982). Fundamental fairness requires that an administrative agency use its rulemaking power to establish the standards it intends to enforce by adjudication. Bower v. Director, Div. of Taxation, 97 N.J. 313 (1984). Ad hoc tinkering with rules increases the chances of unequal application in similar situations. Where the Commissioner recognizes exceptions to a general rule, he knows how to set forth specific grounds on which a waiver may be granted. E.g., N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.14 (relaxation of procedural rules); N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.1 (exception to requirement that out-of-state private school must be approved). Pointing out that waiver of a rule is typically used as a "shield" to relieve someone of an onerous requirement, the Board argues that waiver should not be used as a "sword" to impose a financial burden where none otherwise exists.

Implicit in the Commissioner's remand order is the assumption that he possesses the power to waive a rule in appropriate emergent circumstances. This tacit ruling represents the law of the case. The Commissioner is not asking for advice on the scope of his authority, but simply for development of a factual record on which to decide whether or not to exercise his discretion. Any attack on the Commissioner's authority must be raised directly with the Commissioner and cannot be considered at this level. For purposes of this initial decision, it must be presumed that the Commissioner could waive the rule in the interests of justice. Here, however, the factual record clearly demonstrates that DYFS had plenty of time to consult with the school authorities before finalizing L.L.'s educational placement and, therefore, that the rule requiring participation of the Prospect Park school superintendent should not be waived.

I hereby certify these additional factual findings to the Commissioner for consideration together with the facts determined in the prior initial decision.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision on remand of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner determines to adopt the factual findings and conclusions of the ALJ. These have been derived in response to the Commissioner's prior directive to ascertain whether emergency conditions might have existed surrounding the placement of L.L., so as to justify the failure of DYFS to comply with N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b)5(ii) by conferring with petitioner's chief school administrator prior to L.L.'s placement in the George Washington School.

This question having now been answered in the negative, the Commissioner concurs with the conclusion of the ALJ's earlier initial decision that the Commissioner may not hold petitioner responsible for the educational costs associated with L.L.'s placement during the period at issue. Notwithstanding that the statutory scheme requires such costs to be borne by the district of residence, that provision is qualified by regulation requiring that the chief school administrator (or designee) of that district is to be consulted prior to any placement for which it may be held fiscally responsible. The Commissioner recognizes that circumstances may arise where such consultation is not strictly possible, as observed by respondents; there the intent of the law would be met by compliance at the earliest date feasible under the circumstances.* Here, however, there clearly was ample opportunity for DYFS to have consulted with petitioner prior to its placement of L.L. in the George Washington School, so that the controlling regulation was honored neither in letter nor intent, and, thus, the precedent condition for ultimate district responsibility was not met.

Accordingly, the initial decision of October 23, 1995 and the within decision on remand, as amplified by the Commissioner's prior decision and herein, are affirmed. The Prospect Park Board of Education is held to be the district of residence for L.L. and, as such, is the district generally responsible for her education; however, under the circumstances herein established, the Commissioner declines to hold the district responsible for L.L.'s educational costs for June 1992 and the 1992-93 school year.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

ACTING COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* The Commissioner here notes that allowing for a finding of substantial compliance with this rule by taking operative individual circumstances into account does not constitute a "waiver" of the rule, as suggested by the Board (Initial Decision, at p. 7).

Petitioning Student Athlete challenged Board's denial of credits needed to complete sophomore year and participate in fall cross-country and spring track events.

ALJ concluded that the Board's failure to allow petitioner to take two Spanish make-up quizzes and to change petitioner's failing grade to a passing grade was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. ALJ found that petitioner failed to establish any right to relief as he did not satisfy his responsibilities as a student to ensure that all work which was missed when he was absent was made up. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and conclusion in initial decision as his own.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8781-95

AGENCY DKT. NO. 389-9/95

J.M., BY HIS GUARDIAN, D.M.,

Petitioner,

v.

HUNTERDON CENTRAL REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, HUNTERDON COUNTY,

Respondent.

Robert A. Ballard, Jr., Esq., for petitioner

James P. Granello, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: October 27, 1995 Decided: December 4, 1995

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter commenced on September 28, 1995 when D.M., the guardian of J.M. (hereinafter petitioner) filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education seeking a determination that the actions of the Hunterdon Central Regional High School District (hereinafter respondent) refusing to change petitioner's Spanish II final grade to a passing grade or to permit him to take a make-up test, were arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable; the petition also requested an order from the Commissioner determining that petitioner had completed the necessary credits to complete his sophomore year and should be deemed eligible to participate in Fall cross-country and Spring track events. Also on September 28, 1995, petitioner filed a motion for emergent relief scheduling the plenary hearing on an expedited basis and allowing petitioner to participate in Fall cross-country pending a determination on the merits. An answer on behalf of respondent was filed on October 3, 1995. A prehearing conference was conducted on October 4, 1995 at which time it was noted that the school district which petitioner currently attends, North Hunterdon Regional High School District, and the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Assocation (NJSIAA) had not been named in the petition or served with any papers, and accordingly no emergent relief permitting petitioner to participate in Fall cross-country events pending a determination on the merits herein could be contemplated. The plenary hearing was scheduled for October 13, 1995 and October 26, 1995, at the Trenton office of the Office of Administrative Law.

The hearing commenced as scheduled and concluded on October 13, 1995. Following the close of testimony the record remained open for the receipt of written submissions. A letter memorandum on behalf of petitioner, dated October 19, 1995, was received on October 20, 1995. A letter memorandum on behalf of respondent, dated October 17, 1995, was also received on October 20, 1995. No reply having been received to either initial submission within the time allocated, the record closed on October 27, 1995.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Some of the facts relevant to a determination of this matter are not in dispute and I therefore FIND the following as uncontested facts.

In May 1995 petitioner, who has been a star athlete in both cross-country and track events, was a sophomore at Hunterdon Central Regional High School. On May 12, 1995, another student, C.S., and petitioner collided; petitioner suffered a broken collar bone. Petitioner was absent from school as a result of his injury on May 12, a Friday, and May 15, 16, 17, and 18, Monday through Thursday of the following week. Because he wanted to attend a dance at the school on Friday evening May 19, he did go to some of his classes on May 19, 1995, including his Spanish II class. Thereafter he was absent again on May 22, 1995, a Monday. For the balance of the school year from May 23, 1995 to June 22, 1995, he attended all of his Spanish II classes. Hunterdon Central Regional High School issued final report cards on June 22, 1995. Petitioner's report card, R-1 in evidence, indicates that he passed English II, and U.S. History II (semester I), with grades of 72 and 78, respectively. (70 is the passing grade at Hunterdon Central Regional High School). He passed Biology with a final grade of 79 and Accounting I with a final grade of 81. His final grade in U.S. History (semester II) was 63 and in Geometry 67 and in Spanish II, 67, and accordingly, he received no credit for any of those courses. He also failed Driver Education and therefore received no credit for that course. Including five credits which he received for Physical Education, he earned 22.5 credits during his sophomore year. Assuming petitioner's report card as issued was correct, petitioner was ineligible to participate in extra-curricular activities, including sports. In order to be eligible to participate in sports during his junior year, he needed to have earned 27.5 credits during his sophomore year.

In late May 1995 petitioner's parents filed a notice of tort claim concerning the injury petitioner had suffered on May 12, 1995.

During the summer of 1995, petitioner's mother moved petitioner to petitioner's grandmother's house and enrolled petitioner in North Hunterdon Regional High School. Sometime during August petitioner's mother placed a telephone call to respondent and left a message on the voice mail of Frank DeCavalcante, Director of Curriculum, wherein she requested an explanation for the calculation of petitioner's Spanish grade. Mr. DeCavalcante relayed the message to Patricia Wilkinson, who had been petitioner's Spanish II teacher during the school year.

On September 8, 1995, when petitioner was at cross-country practice at North Hunterdon Regional High School, he was approached by a newspaper reporter who stated that petitioner was ineligible to participate in sports.* On Monday, September 11, 1995, petitioner and his mother had a meeting at respondent's high school with Principal Linda Batz and Ms. Wilkinson. Ms. Wilkinson indicated that the reason petitioner had received a final grade of 67 for Spanish II was his failure to make-up two quizzes which he had missed when he was absent because of his collar-bone injury. There is some dispute concerning whether one missed quiz or two missed quizzes were discussed, but petitioner's position was that he had in fact made up the missed quiz or quizzes and Ms. Wilkinson's position was that he had not made up either quiz. Ms. Wilkinson had calculated petitioner's final average for the fourth marking period as 58 using the following grades: 82, 1, 70, 1, 60, 60, 85, 85, 70, 70; the "ones" represent missed quizzes since "one" is used as a place-holder in the computer rather than zero. Petitioner's final grade for the year in Spanish II was calculated as follows:

Mid-term	78 (x 1)
Final	68 (x 1)
First quarter	61 (x 2)
2nd quarter	71 (x 2)
3rd quarter	72 (x 2)
4th quarter	58 (x 2)

670 divided by 10 = 67.

Petitioner and his mother requested if respondent would not change petitioner's Spanish II grade based upon petitioner's representations that he had made up the quizzes that he be given the opportunity to re-take the quizzes. Respondent declined to permit petitioner to take the quizzes in September 1995 and also declined to change petitioner's grade. The within matter followed. This concludes the recitation of uncontested facts.

* Presumably the basis for this conclusion was that petitioner had insufficient academic credits. Petitioner stipulates that he filed no Transfer Waiver Form pursuant to NJSIAA rules Article V, Section 4K(5) or (6); the parties in this case disagree concerning whether one was required to be filed, but that is not an issue for determination herein.

Petitioner testified on his own behalf. He indicated that running cross-country and track were activities which were very important to him because he hoped to obtain a college scholarship based on his athletic abilities. He testified concerning his winning achievements in the sports up until spring 1995 when he suffered the collar-bone injuries which prevented him from continuing in the Spring 1995 track season. He also testified concerning letters of inquiry he had received from various colleges and universities based upon their interest in his athletic achievements. Although his injuries were such that his doctors would not permit him to continue to participate in Spring track events, he testified that he had recovered sufficiently that he could have participated in Fall cross-country activities at his new school, North Hunterdon Regional High School. He testified that on September 8, 1995, when the newspaper reporter had approached him during practice, he was somewhat surprised because his coach had not said anything to him about not being eligible to participate in cross-country events. After his coach checked with the athletic director that day, however, the athletic director had confirmed that he was ineligible. When questioned by the undersigned, petitioner admitted that he was fully aware all along that he needed 27.5 academic credits to be eligible to participate in sports his junior year. He also admitted that he was aware on August 7, 1995 that he had failed Spanish II; he testified that his mother received a post card from respondent on that date which stated that he had failed both geometry and Spanish II and that she had called him at his friend's house to tell him. According to petitioner, he saw the post card later and it said nothing about his having failed history or any other course. Accordingly, petitioner admitted, he was aware on August 7, 1995, that he had earned only 22.5 academic credits during his sophomore year and that he was ineligible to participate in sports during his junior year.

Petitioner acknowledged that during the meeting with Ms. Batz and Ms. Wilkinson on September 11, 1995, he told them that he had taken two make-up quizzes which he had missed and that he had received 100 on each quiz. During his testimony in the within matter, however, he testified that he had no recollection of taking a quiz concerning "Spanish-speaking nations;" he insisted he took the quiz on "Chapter 14-commands," but he could not remember when he had taken it. He remembered having a conversation with Ms. Wilkinson on May 19 about a missed quiz. One of the make-up quizzes he had taken during a regular class period when all of the other students were doing other homework, he indicated. He could not remember the subject matter of that test. He testified that when he got the quiz back he had received a 100 for a grade; he took the test home and his mother put it on the refrigerator where it stayed for four or five days after which it was disposed of, he testified. Concerning whether there were one or two quizzes given during the time he was absent because of his injury, he testified that he only recalled taking one quiz which he had missed as a result of his injury. He did recall taking another quiz and getting a 100 on it some other time, he said. During another portion of his testimony he admitted that he had been questioned by Ms. Wilkinson about making up test(s), "I made them all up", he testified.

Petitioner indicated that he was very surprised in August when his mother told him he had failed Spanish II; he knew that he had failed geometry because his teacher had advised him that he would not be passing that course, he said. He was unaware that Spanish II was not offered in summer school. He knew he could have taken geometry in summer school but he decided not to do so because he assumed he was passing Spanish and would have the necessary 27.5 credits. On cross-examination when asked by counsel for respondent whether Ms. Wilkinson had indicated to him that he had two quizzes to make-up, he responded, "I can't remember back that far." He finally admitted that he had only made up one quiz which he had missed while he was absent because of his collar bone injury; however, when asked by the undersigned whether he had ever gotten a 100 on a quiz before or after, he responded that there had been one other quiz where he had received 100 before the quiz he made up in May.

Petitioner also testified concerning a conversation he had with one of respondent's administrators when he had been sent to the office by Ms. Wilkinson for coming in late to Spanish class. Petitioner explained that he had been late to class; however, he had a pass from the nurse because after his collar bone injury he was not supposed to be in the halls the same time as the other students. Ms. Wilkinson knew this, he indicated, because he had come into class late on other days after the injury, but she nevertheless sent him to the office because she thought he had an attitude. According to petitioner the vice-principal had complained to him that since he had filed a tort claim notice, the parent of the other child was in the office every morning. Petitioner testified that he had said that he did not care since the other child was not the one who had lain in the hospital with the injury and was forced to miss participating in sports activities. Finally, after he indicated that he first learned that he had failed Spanish when his mother received a post card on August 7, because no final report card had been sent home, the undersigned asked him whether he had not been curious at the end of June to know why had had not received his report card, and he responded, no."

Petitioner's mother, S.M., also testified on his behalf. She specifically recalled seeing a 100 percent written in red ink on a Spanish quiz paper which petitioner brought home at the end of May. She testified that she had put the quiz on the refrigerator for a few days until it had to be moved to make way for other papers. She recalled seeing only one quiz paper with a 100 percent on it, she acknowledged. She testified that after petitioner had gone back to school following his injury, she had telephoned Ms. Frascella, petitioner's guidance counselor, and had asked her how petitioner was doing. According to S.M., Ms. Frascella told her that petitioner needed some tutoring in geometry but that it was not necessary for him to go to summer school. She testified that his final report card for the 1994-95 school year had never come in the mail. She first saw it on September 11, 1995, when Ms. Batz produced it, she testified. She had made no effort at the end of the school year when she did not receive the report card to find out where it was because she was so disgusted with respondent she just wanted to get her son out of that school and get him a fresh start. She testified that she felt that she had never received any help for her son from respondent and that matters were even worse after C.S., who did not like it that petitioner ran faster than he did, had smashed petitioner to the ground and broke petitioner's collar bone. She remembered having received one interim report of progress, not the one dated March 3, 1995, which was marked as R-3 in evidence, but an earlier one. After receiving the report, she had made arrangements with the guidance office for periodic progress reports and had regularly checked and signed petitioner's work. After that petitioner's grades improved, she said. She had no idea that he was failing Spanish II and was very surprised when she received the notice on August 7, she said. She also recalled having a conversation with the guidance counselor wherein she had advised Ms. Frascella that she was not receiving petitioner's report cards. She testified that she had asked Ms. Frascella to send the report cards home with petitioner rather than mail them. She was certain that petitioner had not intercepted the reports from the mail box because her mail comes in the morning and petitioner never returns from school before late afternoon or early evening.

Ms. Wilkinson testified that her lesson plans indicate that on May 18, she gave petitioner's class a quiz on "Spanish-speaking nations" and on May 22, she had given petitioner's Spanish II class a quiz on "Chapter 14 Command Forms of Verbs. Her attendance records indicate that petitioner was absent from class on May 18 but that he was present on May 22 but did not take the quiz with the class. She acknowledged that her attendance records could be incorrect, especially since she had been present in the court room and had heard petitioner's mother testify that he had been absent on May 22, a Monday, because of the pain from his injury. In any event, she was sure that he had not taken either quiz. She indicated that petitioner was advised on May 19 that he had missed the Spanish-speaking nations quiz and all quizzes were announced ahead of time so he would have learned on May 19 about the quiz coming up on Monday, May 22. Ms. Wilkinson testified that during the meeting on September 11, 1995, petitioner had stated that another student, L.R., had observed him taking the make-up test. She testified that Ms. Batz had then gone to speak with the student, L.R., and reported back that the student recalled seeing petitioner get back some quiz and that he had complained that the grade was not a good one. She was also sure that she had advised petitioner several times that he needed to come and make up the quizzes and that he always responded that he would; however, he never did, she testified. Nevertheless, she allowed him to take the final exam because there was no reason to prevent him from taking it, she said. She assigned him a failing grade rather than an incomplete because it was her opinion that he had plenty of time after May 22 and before June 22 to make-up the quizzes and she assigns incomplete as a grade only when there was insufficient time to make-up the work. Petitioner never asked her for more time to come and make-up the quizzes, she said.

Ms. Wilkinson acknowledged that she had received a message from Dr. DeCalvalcante at the end of August that petitioner's mother was questioning his grade. She did not call petitioner's mother that day because she did not have her grade book at home, she said, but two days later after she had retrieved her grade book she tried to call one time in the morning and received no answer. There was no answering machine so she could not leave a message, and she never tried again. When asked by the undersigned whether she would have been surprised if petitioner received a grade of 100 percent on both missed quizzes, she said she would be surprised because both of the quizzes had been "challenging"; none of the students in petitioner's class who took either quiz received a grade of 100 percent. The highest grade on each was 92. She acknowledged that petitioner had received a 100 percent on a quiz in March covering material in chapter 10 and that no other student had received a 100 percent on that quiz. It was Ms. Wilkinson's opinion that petitioner should not be permitted to take the quizzes months later after the school year was over simply because he chose not to make them up at the appropriate time. She described petitioner as having been sometimes uncooperative during the school year. There were times when he exhibited no real desire to learn or to want to listen in class or to study and cooperate in general. She thought he was capable of doing much better than his grades indicated. She acknowledged at times she was not happy with him. When she was asked whether she had issued an interim report for the fourth marking period indicating that petitioner was doing poorly, she could not recall whether she had issued one or not, although she thought most likely she would not have given an interim report for the fourth marking period because at the time it would have been issued petitioner would not yet have missed either of the quizzes in question.

Carol Frascella, petitioner's guidance counselor during the time he was a student at respondent's school district, testified that she had been unable to locate an interim report of progress for petitioner for the fourth marking period. She indicated that all of the interim reports which had been issued for the fourth marking period for her students had been together in a pack in her office and she had them when she had prepared letters to parents on June 2, 1995. She identified the form letter which she had sent to petitioner's parents, R-7 in evidence. Ms. Frascella denied that she had ever told petitioner's mother that he did not need to go to summer school or to have a tutor in Spanish II class. She said that she would have no more information about how petitioner was doing in Spanish II at the beginning of June than petitioner's mother. The only conversation she remembered having with petitioner's mother during the fourth quarter report period concerned his mother's perception that he was not being treated fairly in regard to the injury he had suffered when the other student, C.S., had knocked him over. She could not recall any discussion regarding academics at that time.

Dr. DeCalvalcante testified and confirmed that he had received a message from petitioner's mother in late August questioning calculation of the Spanish II grade. He testified that he had called Ms. Wilkinson who was on vacation and had asked her to handle the inquiry. After Ms. Wilkinson indicated that she would call petitioner's mother, Dr. DeCalvalcante did not call petitioner's mother back himself.

With respect to the facts in dispute, I found respondent's witnesses to be far more credible than petitioner's. Ms. Wilkinson was candid in admitting that her attendance records could be in error, that she could have inadvertently failed to mark petitioner absent on Monday, May 22. She was also candid in acknowledging that she did not know whether she had sent home an interim report during the fourth marking period. She also candidly acknowledged that she had no specific recollection of saying to petitioner that he had to come and make up the missed quizzes, although she was sure that she had done so because she always does. Petitioner's testimony, on the other hand, was confused and confusing. At one point he testified that he was fully aware that he needed 27.5 credits in order to be eligible to play sports and at another point in his testimony he claimed to be surprised when the newspaper reporter told him that he was not eligible to participate. He said he could not remember whether he had missed one quiz or two while he was out because of his collar bone, but he admitted that he had told Ms. Batz and Ms. Wilkinson on September 11, 1995, that he had taken two quizzes and had gotten 100 on each. Perhaps this is simply the result of a misunderstanding rather than deliberate fabrication, since it appears that he did finally testify in the within matter that he had taken only one make-up quiz as a result of having missed the quiz while he was absent because of his collar bone injury and the other make-up quiz upon which he claims to have received 100 percent was taken at a different time as the result of an absence not attributable to his collar bone. The uncontested evidence reveals that he did receive a 100 percent in March on chapter 10 material. Therefore, if he did in fact take one of the two quizzes which he missed during May, probably the chapter 14 quiz on commands since he testified that he had no recollection of having taken a test on Spanish-speaking nations, then he would have received two 100 percents. Since there was also a test, as opposed to just a quiz on chapter 14, it could also be that he is simply remembering having taken the test (which he did on May 24) and not the quiz which he missed on May 22. Whether he took one of the two missed quizzes, however, is not determinative of the outcome. What is determinative is the fact which I find that he failed to make-up at least one of the quizzes. While I believe it is possible that Ms. Wilkinson could have failed to record one make-up grade, it is not likely that she would have failed to record two make-up grades. In addition, petitioner does not recall making up the test on Spanish-speaking nations. I FIND that petitioner was aware on May 19 that he had missed a quiz on May 18 and that there would be another quiz on May 22. I further FIND that Ms. Wilkinson on several occasions reminded him to come in to make up the quizzes and that, for whatever reason, he failed to make-up at least one of them.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

The rule is well settled that actions of local boards of education which lie within the area of their discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). The burden of proving by a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence that his failing grade in Spanish II was the result of respondent's arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable actions is upon petitioner. Petitioner argues in his post-hearing written submission that the Commissioner should change his grade to a passing grade because he took one make-up quiz and received a 100 percent on it and because Ms. Wilkinson could not indicate where she had recorded the grade of 70 which she awarded for petitioner's oral presentation of his report on Spanish-speaking nations; "it is entirely possible that J. could have taken that quiz and received a 70 on it." Petitioner's post-hearing submission, page two. Petitioner also argues in his post-hearing submission that the Commissioner should conclude that he took the quiz on chapter 14 which was given on May 22, because Ms. Wilkinson had him marked present for that day and she could not satisfactorily explain why he would not have taken the quiz with the class. By petitioner's own evidence, however, he was absent on May 22, 1995. His mother testified she had to take him to the hospital and get additional medication for him on that date because of pain associated with the injury. In fact, Ms. Wilkinson never said she could not indicate where the score for the oral report was recorded; it is clearly apparent on R-5 in evidence. What she indicated was that she could not say when he gave the oral report because the oral reports by the rest of the class were given on May 11 and May 12, dates which she had him marked absent.

Petitioner also states at page four of his written post-hearing summary, "As the Court is aware, J. merely needed to obtain grades of 60 on each of the two alleged missed quizzes in order to receive a passing grade for the fourth semester, which would have permitted him to pass the course for the year." This statement is simply inaccurate as a matter of basic mathematics. Ten grades were used to calculate the average for the fourth quarter. The test on chapter 13 counted double (two 60's); the test on chapter 14 counted double (two 70's), and the Spanish-speaking-nations written report counted double (two 85's). The other grades were a chapter 13 vocabulary quiz (82), Spanish-speaking nations oral report (70) and the two missed quizzes, one on Spanish-speaking nations the other on Chapter 14, Commands. In order to receive a passing grade for the quarter which would also permit him to pass the course for the entire year, the ten numbers would have to add up to at least 730, not 700, because his grade for the quarter would have had to have been 73 in order to end up with a 70 average for the entire year. See calculations on page 4 above. Accordingly, petitioner needed to have grades on the two quizzes which when added together totaled 148; in other words the two quiz grades had to average 74.

Petitioner's theory is that respondent was annoyed with him for filing a tort claim notice over the injury caused by C.S. and was further annoyed because their star track/cross-country star was transferring to North Hunterdon Central and therefore, it made no effort to ensure that petitioner made up his quizzes and refused to allow him to make them up after the failing grade had already been issued. There is simply no evidence to support this theory, however. The Spanish grade was not calculated by respondent; it was calculated by Ms. Wilkinson, petitioner's Spanish teacher. There is not one bit of evidence that Ms. Wilkinson had any interest in or even knew about the potential law suit against respondent because of petitioner's injuries. The only issue remaining for determination herein is whether respondent's failure in September 1995 to allow petitioner to take two Spanish quizzes which should have been taken in May or June of 1995, prior to calculation of petitioner's final grade, was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. I CONCLUDE that it was not. To permit students to neglect to make-up work which they have missed until after the final grade has been issued and then, when the grade is failing, to require the administration of special make-up tests to see whether the grade could be changed to a passing grade, would do nothing but encourage student irresponsibility. What incentive would there be to find out what you had missed while you were absent and make it up if you knew that in the event your omissions resulted in a failing grade, you could then make it up.? Perhaps respondent could have done more in this matter to ensure that petitioner's grade in Spanish II would have been a passing one. Respondent did enough to satisfy its responsibilities, however. It is petitioner who failed to satisfy his responsibilities as a student to ensure that all work which was missed when he was absent was made up. It appears that he simply assumed that because he is an excellent athlete somehow his failure in Spanish II would be remedied and he would be permitted to participate in sports. He has failed in the context of these proceedings to establish any right to relief, however, and accordingly, the petition of appeal is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that the Respondent Board's refusal to change petitioner's failing grade to a passing grade may not be upset unless it can be demonstrated to be patently arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Dear Counsel:

MARTIN A. DOMACASSE V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE NORTH WARREN REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, WARREN COUNTY, STATE BOARD DOCKET #26-96

Following a hearing held on February 7, 1996, the Board of Education of the North Warren Regional School District (hereinafter "Board") determined that Martin A. Domacasse (hereinafter "petitioner"), a senior at North Warren Regional High School, had assaulted and used obscene language towards a teacher during a student demonstration at the school, and had intentionally destroyed a badminton net. As a result, the Board suspended petitioner from school for the third marking period of the school year and barred him from all extracurricular activities until the end of the school year.

On March 5, 1996, petitioner filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education challenging the Board's action. On March 19, petitioner filed a motion for emergent relief with the Commissioner, requesting that the Board's action be rescinded and that he be permitted to return to school immediately. In a letter decision dated April 4, 1996, the Commissioner denied petitioner's request for emergent relief and transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings.

On April 9, 1996, petitioner filed the instant application for emergent relief with the State Board of Education, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-2.4. That application was received by the State Board on April 11. Inasmuch as petitioner was permitted to return to school on April 3, his application challenges only the Board's action in excluding him from extracurricular activities for the duration of the school year. In support thereof, petitioner argues that "money cannot replace the memories he will have foregone as a result of not participating in the daily and extra-curricular activities of a high school senior nor the right to attend his senior prom and his high school graduation." Brief in support of application for emergent relief, at 6-7. Petitioner further contends that he has a "legal right" to participate in extracurricular activities and that he is likely to prevail on the merits of the case since his contact with the teacher was "an involuntary defensive reaction to her unwarranted advances" and "minimal at most." Id. at 7-8.

In a brief filed in opposition to petitioner's application, the Board argues that petitioner has failed to demonstrate a basis for emergent relief or to satisfy the applicable standard for such relief.

Inasmuch as we agree that petitioner's application fails to meet the standards that would entitle him to emergent relief under Crowe v. De Gioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), we deny his application.[1]

We reject petitioner's contention that he will suffer irreparable harm in the event his application is denied. Like the Commissioner, we find that "the memories [petitioner] will have foregone as a result of not participating in...extracurricular activities," brief in support of application for emergent relief, at 6, do not provide him with the requisite harm warranting the extraordinary relief requested. Moreover, the fact that petitioner "resides in the district with his parents who are taxpayers," id. at 7, does not, as petitioner urges, afford him a "legal right" to participate in extracurricular activities. See Camden City Board of Education v. NJSIAA, Docket #A2802-91T2 (App. Div. 1992); Burnside v. NJSIAA, 1984 S.L.D. 1696 (App. Div. 1984), cert. denied, 101 N.J. 236 (1985). Nor do we find any basis in petitioner's submissions for concluding that he is likely to prevail on the merits of this matter.

Accordingly, for the reasons stated, we deny petitioner's application for emergent relief.

The record and initial decision in the form of an acceptance of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Upon careful and independent review of the record, which includes as part of the initial decision a document identified as a Stipulation of Dismissal with Prejudice, the Commissioner finds that the terms of the proposed settlement are nowhere spread on the record. Consequently, because this case was transmitted to the OAL as a contested matter pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B, the parties may not settle their controversy without the Commissioner's consideration of the terms of the settlement accord, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1. Therefore, the Commissioner must remand the matter for explanation of the terms of the amicable resolution reached by the parties.

Accordingly, the instant initial decision must be rejected and the matter remanded to the Office of Administrative Law for further action consistent with this determination.

IN THE MATTER OF THE DISQUALIFICATION FROM SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT OF LONDELA Y. BRYANT.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, March 15, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Londela Y. Bryant, pro se

The decision of the Deputy Commissioner of Education disqualifying petitioner from school employment as a teacher's aide following a criminal history record review conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 is affirmed substantially for the reasons expressed therein. We add that while the statute regards a conviction for simple assault to be disqualifying only if it involved "the use of force which results in bodily injury," the criminal complaint filed against petitioner in June 1985, which resulted in her conviction for simple assault, charged petitioner with purposely and knowingly causing bodily injury to the complainant by striking her in the head and arm with a wooden stick. Consequently, petitioner's 1985 conviction for simple assault constituted a disqualifying offense under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

Moreover, while the record before us does not include the results of a criminal record check conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, see N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, the criminal history review in the record, conducted by the State Bureau of Investigation, reveals a disqualifying offense under the statute, and we agree with the Deputy Commissioner that petitioner has failed to demonstrate her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.

Petitioner's request for oral argument is denied as not necessary for a fair determination of the case. N.J.A.C. 6:2-3.2.

PETITIONERS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION ON MOTION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ATLANTIC CITY, MARVIN HILL, PRESIDENT, AND DR. CHARLES B. HAWN, JR., SECRETARY, ATLANTIC COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENTS.	:

For Petitioners, Hankin, Sandson and Sandman (Robert S. Sandman, Esq.)

For Respondents, George G. Frino, Esq.

This matter comes before the Commissioner of Education by way of Petition of Appeal with Motion for Emergent Relief, filed on January 22, 1996, by three members of the respondent Atlantic City Board of Education, all of whom are representatives of sending districts appointed to membership on the receiving Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 et seq. Petitioners contend that the Board has improperly denied them the right to participate in discussion and voting pertaining to the employment contract of the current superintendent, which contract is scheduled to be the subject of deliberations at an executive session of the Board at 5:00 this evening. The Board in turn contends that the deliberations at issue are outside the purview of the law's intent, so that the petitioning Board members have no right to participate in such deliberations.

In their papers, petitioners seek the following reliefs:

1) injunction against the Atlantic City Board of Education from proceeding with tonight's meeting and from any further meeting or discussion on the proposed superintendent's contract pending a final ruling in this matter;

2) Explanation and tabulation of how the Board counted sending district votes from April 1995 to present;

3) Access to all legal opinions pertaining to sending district participation in board discussion or voting, as well as all opinions pertaining to the proposed superintendent's contract; and

4) Commissioner interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 to determine what issues sending district representatives may generally discuss and vote upon under that law.

On January 22, 1996, pursuant to his authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33, the Commissioner delegated the emergent aspect of this matter to the Deputy Commissioner for immediate hearing. A telephonic conference was conducted and the arguments of the parties were heard.

Having heard the arguments of the parties and considered the standard for grant of extraordinary relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), the Deputy Commissioner rules as follows:

With respect to the meeting scheduled for this evening, the Deputy Commissioner finds, as indicated verbally at hearing, that petitioners have met the standard for grant of emergent relief. In so ruling, the Deputy Commissioner finds that irreparable harm would come to petitioners should they later be found entitled to participate in discussions and voting, and a meeting were to have occurred where significant deliberations took place without their participation. He moreover finds that, for purposes of a temporary injunction, petitioners have demonstrated a sufficient likelihood of success on the merits, and that greater harm would come to petitioners were a short stay not granted than would come to the Board if it were required to temporarily postpone discussions which it does not wish to open to petitioners. Accordingly, the respondent Board is restrained from any discussion or vote on the superintendent's employment contract that does not include petitioners while the merits of this matter are pending before the Commissioner.

With respect to petitioners' request for tabulation of prior votes as they relate to counting of sending district representatives, that request is denied, as the question at hand is one of law rather than practice and prior voting patterns will have no bearing on the outcome of either the emergent matter or the merits in full.

With respect to petitioners' request for access to legal opinions, that request is granted to the extent that the opinions in question were provided to other Board members and pertain specifically to the employment contract at issue, solely in the event the Board elects to proceed with discussions including petitioners rather than suspend further discussions until the Commissioner's final ruling. Access to the other requested opinions is denied, as these rulings would effectively constitute respondents' defense on the merits of the matter under dispute and petitioners will have ample opportunity to hear and respond to these defenses during subsequent briefings as set forth below.[1]

With respect to petitioners' request for interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 et seq. so as to generally set forth the issues that sending district board members may discuss under that law, this request shall be treated as an application for declaratory judgment pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1, and the Commissioner shall determine in due course whether or not he will entertain such application.

Accordingly, petitioners' Motion for Emergent Relief is granted to the extent that the respondent Board must either postpone or include petitioners in, and provide them with pertinent background materials for, any discussions or votes on the superintendent's employment contract held pending issuance of the Commissioner's decision on the merits of this matter. That decision shall issue as soon as practicable following submission of an answer to the petition by the Board and briefs by both parties in accordance with an expedited schedule to be forthwith established and communicated to the parties by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DEPUTY COMMISSIONER

January 22, 1996

[1] It is noted that one particular legal opinion, on petitioners' right to attend the meeting at issue herein, was faxed to the Deputy Commissioner a few moments before the hearing in anticipation of the apparent likelihood that Board counsel might be unavailable during the scheduled telephonic conference. However, in the event, Board counsel was able to make argument orally, and while the Deputy Commissioner acknowledged receipt of the document during the course of proceedings, he read it neither prior to nor during the hearing, did not consider it in rendering his decision, and has determined not to make it part of the record herein.

Petitioner contested her involuntary transfer with reduction in salary from Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services to Individualized Education Program (IEP) Facilitator. Petitioner claimed transfer violated her tenure rights as supervisor.

ALJ concluded that petitioner did achieve tenure in a supervisory capacity under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 by virtue of her service in the Special Services position, which, while designated as "Acting," was, in fact, full service in a vacant position, for more than two years while holding the requisite certificates. Moreover, the ALJ found that the IEP facilitator-teacher duties were not supervisory in nature. Thus, the ALJ concluded that service as an IEP facilitator-teacher did not inure to the service necessary to acquisition of tenure or seniority in a supervisory capacity. However, the ALJ determined that absent a showing that petitioner's supervisory seniority of two years and five days was superior to the seniority enjoyed by others, particularly by intervenor, there was not enough in the record to support the relief petitioner sought. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner determined to adopt in part and reverse in part the ALJ's decision. Commissioner concurred with ALJ that petitioner acquired supervisory tenure by virtue of her service as Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services from March 24, 1992 until March 28, 1994. Commissioner also concurred that petitioner's IEP facilitator-teacher duties were not supervisory in nature and, therefore, do not inure to the service necessary to acquire tenure in a supervisory capacity. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1 wherein each supervisory category is considered a separate category for the purpose of calculating seniority, Commissioner found petitioner had seniority in the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services while intervenor did not have seniority in that position having no service in that role prior to her appointment on March 28, 1994. Therefore, Board was ordered to restore petitioner to said position with compensation from the effective date of her transfer.

PENNY WEBB,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WILLINGBORO,

Respondent.

Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., for petitioner (Lake and Schwartz, attorneys)

James P. Granello, Esq., for respondent

Wayne J. Oppito, Esq., for intervenor, Alma Singleton

Record Closed: October 24, 1995 Decided: December 8, 1995

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

The petitioner, Penny Webb, contests her involuntary transfer from Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services to Individualized Education Program Facilitator and says (1) she has tenure as Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services, (2) the transfer violates her tenure rights and (3) the transfer will result in reduction of her salary, which also violates her tenure rights.

The Board denies the allegations and sets forth affirmative defenses:

1. The petitioner did not acquire tenure as Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services;

2. The petitioner had no tenure rights and was bumped by others who exercised their tenure and seniority rights;

3. The petitioner's salary is consistent with the labor contract;

4. A dispute under the collective bargaining agreement must be arbitrated (N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.3);

5. The person appointed Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 is a necessary party to this matter;

6. The petitioner has failed to state a claim on which relief may be granted.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. After notice, a prehearing conference was held by telephone on September 14, 1994. The petitioner's counsel and the Board's then counsel agreed to submit a stipulation of facts which, if accepted by the judge, would form the basis for cross motions for summary judgment. Thereafter, Wayne J. Oppito, Esquire, moved to intervene on behalf of Alma Singleton, now holding the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services. The motion to intervene was granted.

On February 23, 1995, all three counsel met with this judge. Counsel agreed on all documents to be presented in this matter. The judge directed a stipulation of facts to be drawn and submitted. It was further directed that Petitioner Webb would move for summary judgment, papers being due March 24, 1995 and that the Respondent Board would cross move for summary judgment, papers due April 14, 1995. The intervenor's papers were also due on April 14,1995. No reply briefs were anticipated.

Thereafter, there was a substitution of counsel. The previously announced schedule was modified only slightly and the record closed on May 15, 1995.

STIPULATION OF FACTS

The three parties stipulate the following:

1. Petitioner, Penny Webb, began her employ in the Willingboro School District on or about September 1, 1970.

2. From September 1, 1970 through March 23, 1992 petitioner served at various times as a classroom teacher and as an IEP facilitator. Neither position required a supervisor endorsement.

3. On or about March 24, 1992 petitioner entered into an employment contract with the Willingboro Board of Education for the position of Acting Supervisor, Special Services with a term from March 24, 1992 through June 30, 1992. See Exhibit 33W.

4. On or about June 8, 1992 the Board considered adopting a Motion to reappoint petitioner to the position of Acting Supervisor "Secondary Special Education (Substitute Position)." The Motion failed and was not adopted. See Exhibit 46W

5. The Board of Education again considered a Motion to reappoint petitioner to the position of Acting Supervisor of Special Education on or about June 22, 1992. The Motion again failed. See Exhibit 47W.

6. On or about June 30, 1992 the Board again considered a Motion to reappoint petitioner to the position of Acting Supervisor of Special Education to be made effective July 1, 1992. This time, the Motion carried and was adopted by the Willingboro Board of Education. See Exhibit 50W. The Board minutes on the reappointment state: "Mr. Smith offered an Amendment to the motion to reappoint this position for 30 days until the administration sort out what employee would be legally entitled to this position . . . . Mr. Schmidt [the Acting Superintendent] stated he spoke with the board's solicitor and how we (the district) do have a number of people who served as department chairpersons in the past who are on a recall list for any supervisory position." See Exhibits 34W through 36W which are memoranda dated June 12, 1992 from supervisory employees on the recall list indicating interest in the position of Supervisor of Special Services.

7. On July 13, 1992 the Board tabled a recommendation that P. Webb be appointed Acting Supervisor of Secondary Special Education effective August 1st. The minutes note: "It is recommended that P. Webb be appointed Acting Supervisor of Secondary Special Education at a salary of $53,706.00 effective August, pending the outcome of the board's appeal to the Commissioner of Education regarding status of claims by tenured supervisors. Salary to be prorated." See Exhibit 52W.

8. On or about July 27, 1992 the Board adopted a Motion to reappoint petitioner to the position of Acting Supervisor of Secondary Special Education effective August 1, 1992. See Exhibit 53W.

9. On or about July 28, 1992 petitioner entered into an employment contract made effective August 1, 1992 with the Willingboro Board of Education for the position of Acting Supervisor of Special Education. See Exhibit 54W.

10. On or about May 10, 1993 the petitioner was reappointed for the 1993-1994 school term to the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services. See Exhibit 55W.

11. On or about May 13, 1993 petitioner entered into an employment contract with the Willingboro Board of Education for the position of Acting supervisor of Special Services made retroactive from July 1, 1993 through June 30, 1994. See Exhibit 56W.

12. On or about November 12, 1993 Superintendent Geraldyn O. Foster corresponded with Petitioner advising her that the District was replacing all individuals serving in an "acting" capacity with permanent appointments. Petitioner was advised that she would be returned to her former position of IEP Facilitator 60 days from November 23, 1993. See Exhibit 57W.

13. Petitioner was notified on or about January 31, 1994 of her "transfer" from the position of Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services (interchangeably referred to as Special Education) to IEP Facilitator. This was a result of action taken by the Willingboro Board of Education on or about January 24, 1994. The effective date of Petitioner's transfer was March 28, 1994. See Exhibits 58W, 59W and 60W.

14. Joyce Brown had been named to the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services for the period September 1, 1991 through June 30, 1992. See Exhibit 22B/S.

15. James Semmel was appointed to the position of Elementary Principal at Hawthrorne School the period September 1, 1991 to June 30, 1992. See Exhibit 23B/S/

16. On or about December 17, 1991 Mr. Semmel corresponded with the then Acting Superintendent, Mr. Austin Gumbs, advising Mr. Gumbs that he was tendering his resignation from his employ with the Willingboro School District effective March 31, 1992. See Exhibit 24B/S/ In this regard, a Certification of Service and Final Salary for Mr. Semmel was filed with the Teachers Pension and Annuity Fund on or about January 27, 1992 confirming that Mr. Semmel's service with the Willingboro Board of Education terminated March 31, 1992. See Exhibit 25 B/S.

17. On February 24, 1992 the Board appointed Joyce Brown as Acting Principal at Hawthorne School effective 4/1/92. See Exhibit 26 B/S. On February 25, 1992 Joyce Brown signed an employment contract appointing her Acting Principal from April 1, 1992 to June 30, 1992. See Exhibit 29 B/S.

18. On or about March 23, 1992, the Board of Education adopted a resolution appointing Petitioner as Acting Supervisor of Secondary Special Education. See Exhibit 27B/S. At the same meeting, on March 23, 1992, the Board of Education adopted a resolution to "set the salary for Joyce Brown" as acting principal at the Hawthorne School. See Exhibit 28B/S. On April 27, 1992 the Board reappointed petitioner IEP teacher. See Exhibit 43W.

19. On or about June 8, 1992 Joyce Brown was named "Principal" of the Hawthorne Elementary School effective July 1, 1992, with a notation "(presently Acting Principal @ H.)". See Exhibit 32B/S.

20. Intervenor, Alma Singleton, served as a Home Economics Department Head at the Willingboro Memorial Junior High School for the 1979-80 school term. The position of Department Head required a "supervisor" endorsement. See Exhibit 3S.

21. Intervenor, Singleton continued to serve as a Home Economics Department Head for the school years 1981-82, 1982-83, 1983-84, 1984-85, 1987-88 an 1989-90. See Exhibits 6S through 11S.

22. During the 1982-83 school term Intervenor's title was Vocational Education Chairperson. See Exhibit 7S. During the 1988-89 school term Intervenor was referred to as a department chairperson. See Exhibit 11S. During the 1989-90 school term Intervenor was referred to as "supervisor." See Exhibit 12S.

23. On or about April 9, 1990 the Willingboro Board of Education adopted a resolution approving the reduction in force which encompassed the position held by the Intervenor Singleton. See Exhibit 14S through Exhibit 17S.

24. Upon petitioner's transfer from the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services to the position of IEP Facilitator, Intervenor Singleton was appointed to the title of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services effective March 28, 1994. Intervenor Singleton had been serving as a Home Economics teacher at the Willingboro Memorial Junior High School. See Exhibit 19S.

25. Petitioner currently holds a supervisor's endorsement and a certificate as a teacher of the handicapped.

26. Intervenor Singleton currently holds a supervisor endorsement but does not hold any special education certificate and/or endorsement.

27. The Willingboro Board of Education job description for the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services is attached.

28. The job description for IEP Facilitator-Teacher is attached.

Following receipt of the stipulations and correspondence from counsel, the judge determined to hold a limited hearing on the question of dates of Joyce Brown's service as Supervisor of Secondary Special Education. Testimony on the limited issue was heard on October 2, 1995, at the Office of Administrative Law, Trenton. Counsel were allowed a further submission and the record closed on October 24, 1995.

PAROL AND DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE

Penny Webb testified that she began service as Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services on March 24, 1992. The prior supervisor, Joyce Brown, was not present on that day. Webb moved her offices to what had been Brown's offices and began her duties on March 24. There was no transition period.

On March 24, 1992, the Director of Pupil Personnel circulated a memorandum (P-1) stating:

> Please be advised that Penny Webb was appointed the Acting Supervisor of Secondary Special Education to fill the position > vacated by Joyce Brown. Ms. Webb will serve in this position for the remainder of the school year. Your cooperation with her would be appreciate and we look forward to a smooth last quarter of this year. Thank you.

The petitioner testified that at the time the memo was circulated, there were two supervisors, one serving the elementary population and the other serving the secondary population. There was some confusion over titles and the titles were, sometimes, used interchangeably.

The witness had been District I.E.P. Facilitator. At that time, she was required to hold a supervisory certificate. That requirement no longer is in effect. The witness served approximately fifteen years as the IEP facilitator. She also served as a special education resource teacher and a first and second grade teacher.

According to Webb, the title included the word acting because there was a list of supervisors of instruction, they were considered middle level management, there was some question concerning the group's status and rights to bump, and litigation was pending concerning the group's status and rights. Webb was told she had to take the acting title. The district had no personnel manager at the time. The district referred to her as acting until it got direction.

The petitioner states she was never told that her position could be affected by the outcome of the litigation. She served in an acting capacity for two years, more or less. She held her first appointment until June 30, 1992. She was reappointed acting supervisor effective July 1, 1992. The Board minutes of June 8, 1992 show that a motion to reappoint Webb failed. However, the motion to appoint past at a later meeting and the petitioner replaced Joyce Brown who had become a school principal. See Stipulations paragraphs 17-19 and exhibits 27-29.

Webb also testified that when she was reassigned in March 1992, the IEP facilitator needed only teacher certification with a teacher of the handicapped endorsement. This change in certification requirements was the result of an earlier reorganization. When Webb was appointed, the IEP facilitator needed and she held supervisory certifications or endorsements. She did not learn until some five years later that that supervisory endorsement was no longer required. The witness believed she held tenure. She stated there was no change in her salary when the position qualifications changed.

Joyce Brown testified that she was appointed acting principal of the Hawthorne school effective April 1, 1992. See exhibits 26, 29 and 30. Brown replaced a principal who retired. She began at Hawthorne's school on March 23, 1992. She physically moved her offices to Hawthorne school on that date and assumed her new and different duties as principal.

Because the former principal retired and actually left the district, Brown had to assume the job before the official April 1 starting date. See exhibits 24, 25 and 32. The prior principal's resignation became effective March 31, 1992, but he was not physically present beginning on March 23. On May 12, 1992, Brown was appointed principal, not acting principal, effective July 1, 1992.

THE PARTIES' ARGUMENTS

The Petitioner

At hearing on October 2, 1995, Joyce Brown, who had served as Supervisor Secondary Special Education prior to the petitioner's service in that position, testified that as of March 24, 1994 the date on which Webb began her service as Supervisor of Secondary Special Education, Brown had already begun serving as the principal of the Hawthorne Elementary School. Brown acknowledged that on March 24, 1992, when Webb began serving, Brown was not present in the office or in the building where Webb's office was housed.

In addition, the petitioner testified that when she served as the IEP supervisor, the position required a supervisory endorsement. Webb stated she initially served in the position of IEP facilitator for a period of approximately five years, under a supervisory endorsement. Thereafter, the requirement was dropped.

The former job description requires a supervisory endorsement. Based on Webb's unrebutted testimony as well as the job description submitted on October 13, 1995, the petitioner now asserts that she not only had tenure a supervisor when she was removed from the Supervisory of Secondary Special Education position on March 28, 1994, but that she had tenure as a supervisor when she was appointed to that position on March 23, 1992.

With the submission of the old job description for the position of IEP facilitator dated February 1984 which clearly requires a supervisory endorsement, Webb's unrebutted testimony that the endorsement was required when she initially served as IEP facilitator for approximately five years shows she enjoyed a tenured status as a supervisor when appointed to the position of Acting Supervisor of Special Services. This has been acknowledged by the Board by way of the October 13, 1995 submission.

Because the Board and petitioner agreed that she acquired tenure as a supervisor prior to her appointment as the acting supervisor of special services, the only question is whether her reassignment to the IEP facilitator position on or about March 28, 1994 was a violation of her tenure rights.

While the Board acknowledges the petitioner's tenure as a supervisor, the Board also asserts that Webb's return to the IEP facilitator position was merely a "reassignment within the certifications under which she acquired tenure without loss of pay or benefits." The Board also asserts that the petitioner's tenure rights in the position of IEP facilitator continue to accrue under both her supervisory and teaching certifications as they did when the Board amended the job description by deleting the requirement of a supervisory certificate for individuals hired after the adoption of the new job description. The revision of the job description did not alter the petitioner's vested rights. She continues to accrue tenure in both certifications.

Webb asserts the Board is correct. She continues to accrue tenure under both certifications. Service in the facilitator position does not now require a supervisory endorsement. However, that does not change the fact that the petitioner has tenure as a supervisor. Whether the petitioner continues to accrue tenure as a supervisor even if she serves is a non-supervisory position does not face the question of what her tenure entitles her to. Whether she experienced a loss of salary when she was returned to the facilitator position and irrespective of whether she continues to accrue tenure, by not assigning Webb to a supervisor position which she is entitled to hold and in which she is entitled to serve, the Board violated her tenure rights. Reassigning a tenured supervisor to a non-supervisory position, a position that does not even require a supervisory endorsement is as much as tenure violation as the reassignment of any teaching staff member from one separately tenurable position to another.

As to the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services, currently held by Singleton, Webb alleges she has greater seniority. The parties agree that the petitioner served in the supervisory position now held by the Intervenor from March 24, 1992 until March 28, 1994. As of March 28, 1994, the intervenor had never served as Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services or in any other title the position has been called. The intervenor's seniority was limited to Home Economics Department Head and Vocational Department Chair.

Because the intervenor never served in the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services, she did not have seniority to the Supervisor of Pupil Personnel position to which she was appointed on March 28, 1994. According to N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1, seniority is calculated based on the years of service in the anumerated categories set forth. Each supervisory title is a separate category.

The petitioner was tenured as a supervisor when she was appointed to the Supervisor of Special Services position on March 23, 1992. She served in the position for two years and five days. The petitioner had two years and five days of seniority in the position of Supervisor of Special Services, also known as the Supervisor of Secondary Special Education and Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services when she was reassigned to the IEP facilitator position on March 28, 1994.

The Board

At the judge's direction, the Board submitted a copy of the previous IEP facilitator job description (R-1). The qualifications demand a supervisory certificate and one of the following certifications: school psychology, counselor, social worker, learning disability teacher-consultant, teacher of the handicapped, school nurse or speech correctionist. The present job description does not require supervisory certification. The petitioner testified that she was initially employed under the previous job description and was required to hold a supervisory certificate. She did work under the previous job description for a period of at least five years. The second stipulation of facts states that the petitioner served from September 1, 1970 through March 23, 1992 at various times as a classroom teacher and as a IEP facilitator. Neither position required supervisory endorsement. This stipulation is contrary to the petitioner's testimony and does not take into consideration the existence of the provisions in the IEP facilitator job description.

The petitioner having served for an initial period in excess of three school years as an IEP facilitator, which required her to have both supervisory and teaching certification, it is obvious that the petitioner did acquire tenure as an IEP facilitator under her supervisory and teaching certification. She has been returned to the IEP facilitator position as of January 31, 1994. This was a reassignment within certifications under which she held tenure without loss of pay or benefits. Her time served as "Acting Supervisor of Special Services" did not give rise to new tenure rights. These rights had already vested after three school years in the position of IEP facilitator under the old job description.

The stipulation of facts submitted by the parties must be amended to conform to the testimony of the petitioner. The judge must consider the legal effect of the petitioner having served in the IEP facilitator position for five years and being required to be the holder of supervisory certification. The petitioner's tenure rights in the IEP facilitator position continue to accrue under both her supervisory and teaching certifications as they did when the Board amended the job description and deleted the requirement of supervisory certification. The job description revision did not change the petitioner's vested tenure rights. She continues to accrue tenure in both certifications.

The petitioner concedes she served as IEP facilitator under a job description that required her to hold both certifications and that she served in excess of five years. She never was RIF'ed from this position and only being reassigned to an acting supervisor's position in Special Services, her rights to tenure were not affected by reason of her reassignment to the IEP facilitator position. It is true the current IEP facilitator job description does not require supervisory certification. This does not mean that the petitioner's tenure rights to the former IEP facilitator position are affected.

The petitioner has no right to claim a particular position within the district as long as her tenure rights have not been violated.

The petitioner has no right to claim the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services when she presently holds a position under which she acquired tenure in both supervisory and teaching categories.

The Intervenor

The intervenor argues that the petitioner has not obtained tenure as a supervisor. Thus, she has no claim to the position of Supervisor of Special Services. Subpart (c) of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 provides that a person obtains tenure upon transfer or promotion with:

> employment in the new position within the period of any three consecutive academic years, for the equivalent of more than two academic years.

N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 provides:

> In each district the board of education may designate some person to act in place of any officer or employee during the absence, disability or disqualification of any such officer or employee subject to the provisions of section 18A:17-13.
> The act of any person so designated shall in all cases be legal and binding as if done and performed by the officer or employee for whom such designated person is acting but no person so acting shall acquire tenure in the office or employment in which he acts pursuant to this section when so acting.

The petitioner did not serve the requisite time to attain tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 because the time she spent in an acting capacity did not count toward the time necessary. The petitioner was an acting supervisor from July 1, 1992 through March 27, 1994. Joyce Brown was appointed acting principal in March 1992 to replace a person who retired effective April 1, 1992. Joyce Brown was not appointed principal until July 1, 1992. Giving the petitioner the greatest benefit of time, she was a supervisor at best from April 1, 1992 through March 27, 1994. This does not constitute more than two academic years as required N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(c). The period from April 1, 1992 through June 30, 1992 is the period in which Brown was acting principal.

When the former principal left his position at Hawthorne School, Brown was appointed his replacement and designated acting principal. Webb was named acting supervisor in place of Brown. The principal position did not become vacant until April 1, 1992. In the time between March 23 and March 31, 1992, the former principal was still the principal whether present in school or not. Brown was the acting principal, substituting for him. No vacancy existed until the principal officially retired effective April 1, 1992. Therefore, during that time, Brown was still Supervisor of Special Education although acting as principal. For the time March 23 through March 31, 1992, Webb was acting supervisor substituting for Brown. This time does not count toward the acquisition of supervisory tenure by the petitioner. If the principal position did not become vacant until April 1, 1992, then the supervisor position did not become vacant until April 1, 1992.

On June 12, 1992, the Board advised supervisors on the preferred eligibility list that there was a vacancy in the position for Supervisor of Special Services, the position Brown had held and vacated upon appointment as principal. The vacancy was effective July 1, 1992. A number of tenured supervisors expressed interest in the position.

In Lammers v. Board of Education, Borough of Point Pleasant, 134 N.J. 264 (1933), the Supreme Court determined that an absence, even for an extended period, does not create a vacancy. As explained above, the supervisor position did not become vacant at the earliest, until the former principal's retirement on April 1, 1992. Assuming that the petitioner could begin accruing time toward tenure in the position of Acting Supervisor of Special Education on April 1, 1992, she did not serve two calendar years in a vacant position as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.

The intervenor also argues that the petitioner did not obtain tenure as a supervisor through her service as an IEP facilitator-teacher. In pertinent part, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 provides:

> If any teaching staff member shall be dismissed as a result of such reduction [in force], such person shall be and remain upon a preferred eligible list in order of seniority for reemployment whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which such person shall be qualified and shall be reemployed by the body causing dismissal, ...

A tenured teaching staff member whose position is abolished in a reduction in force is entitled by virtue of tenure to a position as against a non-tenured individual. When the supervisor position become vacant either on April 1, 1992 or more appropriately on July 1, 1992, tenured supervisors on the preferred eligibility list had claim to the position. The tenured, reduced supervisors were entitled to the position as against the non-tenured petitioner.

In Willingboro, the tenured supervisors on the preferred eligibility list did not waive or abandon their interest in being considered for the vacancy when it occurred in the summer of 1992. They responded to the Personnel Department's inquiry. The intervenor also responded to the Personnel Department's memorandum concerning the anticipated opening for Supervisor of Special Services for the 1992-93 school year. The Board was aware that the petitioner was not eligible for the position because the teaching staff members who were on the recall list had tenure, and thus seniority, which the petitioner did not enjoy. Singleton was appropriately recalled from the preferred eligible list and appointed the position.

The petitioner's employment as an IEP facilitator-teacher does not equate to tenure as a supervisor. The title of IEP facilitator-teacher is not a recognized title pursuant to Department of Education rules. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3 requires Boards of Education to assign position titles contained in the rules. If a district wants to use an unrecognized title, it must submit a written request to use the proposed title to the county superintendent of schools. The request must include a detailed job description. The county superintendent's role is to approve the title and make a determination as to the appropriate certification for the position. The county superintendent's decision is binding on future seniority determinations.

The current job description for the position of IEP facilitator-teacher does not include a requirement for a supervisory endorsement; the previous job description does contain such a requirement. But there is nothing in the record to indicate that the Board submitted either the current or previous job descriptions to the county superintendent for approval and a determination as to the certification required for the position. In the absence of county superintendent approval, there is nothing to indicate that the IEP facilitator-teacher position is a supervisory position. Because "teacher" is an integral part of the title, in the absence of county superintendent approval, this is a teacher position. Furthermore, in the former job description, the college degree requirement contradicts the need for a supervisory endorsement. The college degree requirement set forth in the previous job description is a Bachelor's degree. By regulation, N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.2(a)1, a Master's degree is a necessary requirement for the supervisor endorsement. At no time before October 2, 1995 has there been any claim that the petitioner is tenured as a supervisor as a result of being IEP facilitator-teacher. The petitioner's claim is that she met the years of service requirement to obtain tenure as a supervisor while being employed as an acting supervisor.

Conversely, if the petitioner has tenure as a supervisor because of her years of service as IEP facilitator-teacher, her transfer back to that position does not violate her tenure as a supervisor. Rather, that transfer would constitute a reassignment to a position in which she has tenure and thus, there is no violation of her tenure rights.

Lammers, above, holds that a teacher's one-year leave of absence does not create a vacancy or a temporary vacancy under the statute requiring that qualified tenure teachers, terminated or demoted as a result of a reduction in force, be considered to fill a vacancy on the basis of seniority. Clearly, no leave of absence was involved in the present case. In Sayreville Education Ass'n v. Board of Education of Sayreville, 193 N.J. Super. 424, 474 (App. Div. 1984), the Appellate Division had to decide whether a local Board of Education could fill a teaching staff vacancy occurring after the start of the academic year by appointing a substitute teacher for the balance of the year pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1. To resolve that issue, the court had to distinguish between absences and vacancies. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 provides for the hire of temporary employees "to act in place of any officer or employee during the absence, disability or disqualification of any such officer or employee."

The Appellate Division found that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 applied "when the services of a substitute teacher are required because of the temporary absence, even protracted, of a regular teacher whose return to duty is contemplated." 193 N.J. Super. at 428. The court also explained that the plain meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 clearly implies a temporary arrangement. That is, the "place" which is the intended subject of the statute is the place of another which that other will reclaim when his period of absence is over. If that other employee has, however, terminated his employment, then the place which the appointee "substitute" is filling is not the place of the other but a vacant place, and the statute ordinarily does not apply. Ibid.

The distinction recognized by the Appellate Division in Sayreville between a vacancy and an absence is unmistakable. An absence exists when the missing teaching staff member is scheduled ultimately to return to the position. A vacancy exists when the teacher leaves the position permanently, as in the case of a resignation or a retirement. Lammers at 268.

The language and reasoning in Sayreville accords with well-established law. In a 1952 case, Fiscella v. Nulton, 22 N.J. Super. 367 (App. Div. 1952). The court examined several cases and resorted to Black's Law Dictionary (4th Ed.) for definition of vacancy in the case of an election, defining it as an existing office without an incumbent. Other state courts interpreting similar education statutes have reached the same conclusion with regard to the meaning of vacancy. A teacher taking a sabbatical leave, for example, does not create a vacancy. A person retiring or resigning from position creates a vacancy. The word vacancy is commonly understood to mean an unoccupied position to which an incumbent does not intend to return.

As in Lammers, above, this tribunal recognizes that tenure laws are to be construed liberally. Nonetheless, liberal construction must be reasonable in light of the plain language of the controlling statutes.

In consideration of the foregoing, I FIND in addition to the stipulated facts:

1. Webb's dates of service in the Special Services position were March 24, 1992 through March 28, 1994, a period of two years and five days;

2. Although designated acting, Webb filled the position formerly held by Brown in the same manner that Brown filled the position formerly held by Hawthorne School principal James Semmel;

3. Webb and Brown both filled vacancies. In neither situation was there an incumbent who intended, sooner or later, to return to the position;

4. Webb served for a period greater than two years thus satisfying the requirement of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.(c).

Not absence or disability or disqualification were involved. Semmel's former position was vacant. Brown's former position was vacant. Whatever the Board's reasons for using the acting designation, they do not square with the statute and there is nothing in the record to indicate county superintendent approval of the use.

I CONCLUDE that Webb achieved a tenure status in the Special Services position. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63 (1982).

The remaining question is whether Webb enjoyed tenure as a supervisor when she was appointed to the Special Services position by virtue of her IEP facilitator service. Exhibit R-1 is the job description in effect when Webb assumed the IEP facilitator position. The document refers to the title as individual education plan (IEP) facilitator-teacher. A subscript on the second page indicates that the document was typed in February 1984. No date of adoption or amendment is indicated.

Under responsibility, the document states, "The IEP Facilitator-Teacher shall be responsible to the Director of Pupil Personnel Services." Under function, the documents states, "The IEP facilitator-teacher will coordinate the scheduling, implementation, and revision of IEP's for all classified students in their division." The documents lists twenty seven duties. Among them are providing training sessions for all staff in the writing of IEP's, systematic follow-up for all assigned programs and schools in the implementation of IEP's, determining if IEP's conform to the intent of state and federal guidelines, ascertainment of appropriateness of IEP's to the needs of the pupil, scheduling reviews and/or revisions of IEP's when changing circumstances warrant and serving as a member of the District Placement Review Board, among others.

The qualifications are stated as:

1. New Jersey Certificate -

   Supervisor and one of the following: School Psychology, Counselor, Social Worker, LDTC, Teacher of Handicapped, School Nurse, Speech Correction

2. College Degree required -

   Bachelor's

3. Prior job experience required -

   a. 3 years in Teaching under one of the above Certificates

The duties set forth in the job description do not require supervisory certification. The IEP facilitator-teacher does not evaluate other persons. The duties are ministerial, supportive and statistical in nature. A broad knowledge of special education is clearly necessary. Supervisory certification clearly is not. The Board, realizing this, amended the job description by deleting the supervisory certification requirement.

In Grasso v. Board of Education of Hackensack, 1960-61 S.L.D. 137, the Commissioner stated:

> Administration deals with the planning, organizing and directing of the day-by-day management and operation of the public schools to achieve the objectives of public education in conformance with law, State Board of Education rules, and local board of education rules and policies.
> Supervision deals with the development and maintenance of high standards of curriculum, instruction and guidance and the continuous improvement thereof. It includes, among other things, > the observing, advising and directing of teachers in their instructional and guidance activities inside and outside the classroom. Through advice, either upon request or otherwise, through programs of in-service training and through curriculum improvement activities, the supervisory staff acquaints the classroom teachers with the aims, materials and methods of education and encourages and assists them to achieve the objectives of the schools. Supervisory staff is also available to the administrative staff as consultants on educational problems.

There are times when teachers are assigned duties that may border on what might be considered supervisory or administrative areas. As the Commissioner stated in Grasso, at 140, "Any conclusion in such a case would have to rest on what the teacher actually did and the degree to which the activity went beyond teaching or clerical work to decision-making and the directing of others."

I FIND the wisdom expressed in Grasso, above, very much to the point of this case. Applying the Grasso standard, I FIND the IEP facilitator-teacher duties were not supervisory in nature. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that service as IEP facilitator-teacher does not inure to the service necessary to acquisition of tenure in a supervisory capacity. I also CONCLUDE that the petitioner did achieve tenure in a supervisory capacity by virtue of her service in the Special Services position for more then two years while holding the requisite certificates. Where there is tenure, seniority follows. However, the petitioner's supervisory seniority comprises only two years and five days. Absent a showing that this is superior to the seniority enjoyed by others, and particularly by the intervenor, there is not enough in this record to support the relief the petitioner seeks.

The petition of appeal is DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PENNY WEBB,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WILLINGBORO, BURLINGTON COUNTY.	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioner argues that she has seniority in the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services[1] by virtue of her service for two years and five days in that role. Citing N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1, petitioner reasons that since Intervenor Singleton, who currently holds the Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services position, did not serve in that capacity prior to her appointment on March 28, 1994, intervenor did not have seniority in the position at the time of her appointment. Consequently, petitioner asserts she was entitled to continue to serve as the Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services as of March 28, 1994.

Additionally, petitioner maintains that she acquired tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her services as an Individualized Education Program (IEP) facilitator, contrary to the determination of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ). Petitioner argues that she relied upon the fact that the Board required, at the time, that she hold a supervisor's certificate in order to serve as the IEP facilitator. Petitioner concludes that having served in a position requiring a supervisor endorsement, and having met the statutory requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 et seq., she acquired tenure as a supervisor while serving as the IEP facilitator. Moreover, given the Board's agreement as to petitioner's acquisition of tenure while serving in that role, petitioner asserts the ALJ was "without authority to discount the Board's requirement during the mid 1980's that the position of IEP facilitator require a supervisor endorsement." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 4)

While intervenor requests that the Commissioner affirm the ALJ's dismissal of the petition, she excepts to that part of the initial decision which found that petitioner attained tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her service as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services. Inasmuch as intervenor essentially recasts her argument as set forth before the ALJ, her position is not herein summarized.

The Board in its reply simply urges that the Commissioner adopt the initial decision of the ALJ in its entirety and dismiss the within petition for failure to demonstrate that petitioner is entitled to relief.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner determines to adopt the initial decision in part, and to reverse the decision in part, as set forth below. Initially, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner has acquired supervisory tenure by virtue of her service as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services from March 24, 1992 until March 28, 1994. Further, the Commissioner is satisfied that the record supports the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner's IEP facilitator-teacher duties were not supervisory in nature, and, therefore, do not inure to the service necessary to acquire tenure in a supervisory capacity. (Initial Decision at p. 20) Having determined that petitioner is a tenured supervisor, and there being no dispute as to intervenor's protected status as a tenured supervisor, the remaining question is whether petitioner was entitled to the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services over intervenor. Said question requires a seniority analysis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1.

New Jersey Administrative Code provides that "[s]eniority  shall be determined according to the number of academic or calendar years of employment  in the school district in specific categories as  provided." (N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1) Each supervisory category is considered a separate category for the purpose of calculating seniority. Here, petitioner served as Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services for two years and five days. (Initial Decision at p. 17) There is no showing that Intervenor Singleton served in the role of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services prior to her appointment on March 28, 1994, nor does intervenor dispute petitioner's assertion in this regard. Accordingly, as of March 28, 1994, the date of intervenor's appointment to a position in which she had no seniority, petitioner had seniority in that position, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1, and was entitled to be appointed to said position over intervenor.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted in part, as indicated above, and reversed in part as herein provided. The Board is hereby directed to restore petitioner to the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services, with all back pay and emoluments owed from the effective date of her transfer from the position.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

PENNY WEBB, :

PETITIONER-RESPONDENT, :

V. : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WILLINGBORO, BURLINGTON COUNTY, : DECISION

RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT. :

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 25, 1996

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Lake & Schwartz (Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, James P. Granello, Esq.

For the Intervenor-Appellant, Wayne J. Oppito, Esq.

The convoluted facts of this matter can be summed up as follows. Penny Webb (hereinafter "petitioner") began her employment with the Board of Education of the Township of Willingboro (hereinafter "Board") in September 1970. Thereafter, she served at various times as a classroom teacher and an Individual Education Program ("IEP") Facilitator-Teacher through March 23, 1992.

On or about December 17, 1991, James Semmel ("Semmel"), the principal at the Hawthorne Elementary School, tendered his resignation effective March 31, 1992. On February 24, 1992, the Board appointed Joyce Brown ("Brown"), who had been employed as Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services, as the acting principal at the Hawthorne School effective April 1, 1992. However, since Semmel was absent from the district beginning on March 23, 1992, Brown moved her offices to the Hawthorne School on that date and assumed her duties as acting principal one week prior to the effective date of her appointment.

On March 23, 1992, the Board appointed petitioner as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services for the period from March 24 through June 30, 1992.[1] She was reappointed as the Acting Supervisor for 1992-93 and 1993-94. However, on January 24, 1994, the Board took action to "transfer" petitioner back to an IEP Facilitator-Teacher position, effective March 28, 1994. The district superintendent had indicated in an earlier letter to petitioner that the acting positions in the district had been created "to fill vacancies on an emergency basis. They were never designed to be long term assignments; consequently, permanent appointments are being made to eliminate the acting situations." Exhibit 57W, in evidence. Alma Singleton (hereinafter "intervenor") was appointed Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services effective March 28, 1994.

Petitioner thereupon filed the instant petition with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that she had achieved tenure in the district as a supervisor as a result of her service as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services and that the Board had violated her tenure rights in removing her from her supervisory position and reducing her salary.

[1] We note that the Board used the titles Supervisor of Special Services, Supervisor of Special Education and Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services interchangeably. See Stipulation of Facts, at 3. For purposes of our decision, all references herein will be to the position title "Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services."

On December 8, 1995, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") concluded, upon review of the job description for the IEP position, that petitioner had not achieved tenure as a supervisor as the result of her previous employment as the IEP Facilitator-Teacher since the duties thereof were not of such character as to accrue towards the achievement of tenure as a supervisor. He did, however, find that petitioner had achieved tenure in a supervisory position as a result of her service as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services. The ALJ observed that both petitioner and Brown had filled vacancies during the final week in March 1992 and that, in neither case, was there an incumbent who intended to return to the position. As a result, he concluded that petitioner had accrued tenure as a supervisor during the entire period from March 24, 1992 through March 28, 1994, more than two academic years within a period of three consecutive academic years, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(c), and had therefore achieved tenure status in such position. Nonetheless, the ALJ recommended dismissing the petition, finding that there was not enough in the record to support the relief sought since there was no showing that petitioner's seniority was superior to that of any other tenured supervisors.

On January 25, 1996, the Commissioner adopted in part and rejected in part the ALJ's recommendations. The Commissioner agreed with the ALJ that petitioner had not achieved tenure as a supervisor as the result of her previous service as the IEP Facilitator-Teacher but that she had achieved tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her service as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services for the period from March 24, 1992 through March 28, 1994. However, stressing that each supervisory category is considered a separate category for seniority purposes, the Commissioner concluded that petitioner was entitled to reinstatement as the Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services as against the intervenor. The Commissioner observed that while the petitioner had served as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services for over two years, there was no showing that the intervenor, who had previously served as a department chairperson, had ever been employed in that specific assignment prior to her appointment thereto on March 28, 1994. As a result, the Commissioner found that the intervenor had no seniority in the particular regulatory category applicable to such assignment prior to her appointment thereto. He therefore directed the Board to reinstate petitioner as the Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services with back pay and emoluments.

The intervenor filed the instant appeal from the decision of the Commissioner, contending that the Commissioner improperly concluded that petitioner had achieved tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her service as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services.

On August 21, 1996, our Legal Committee issued a report in this matter which recommended reversing the determination of the Commissioner that petitioner had achieved tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her employment as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services.

The Board filed exceptions to that report, requesting the State Board to address whether the intervenor was to be reinstated as the Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services and whether the Board had the right to recover moneys paid to petitioner as a result of the Commissioner's decision. Petitioner also filed exceptions, contending that she had achieved tenure as a result of her service as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil

Personnel Services and that, in any event, she had achieved tenure as a supervisor as a result of her previous employment as an IEP Facilitator-Teacher.[2]

Given the questions raised by these exceptions, we found it necessary to issue a revised report in this matter on October 24, 1996.

After an exhaustive review of the record, including the exceptions filed by the parties to the reports of our Legal Committee, we reverse the determination of the Commissioner that petitioner had achieved tenure in the district as the result of her service as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services. For the reasons that follow, we find that petitioner's employment as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services during the period from March 24 through March 31, 1992 cannot be credited towards the achievement of tenure as a supervisor. However, in that we are unable to determine on the record before us whether petitioner had previously achieved tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her employment as an IEP Facilitator-Teacher, we remand this matter to the Commissioner for further proceedings in accordance with our decision herein.

Tenure is created by statute, and the Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 et seq., defines with specificity the conditions under which teaching staff members are entitled to the security of tenure. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63, 72 (1982). In order to achieve tenure, the precise statutory conditions must be met. Zimmerman v. Bd. of Educ. of Newark, 38 N.J. 65, 72 (1962).

[2] Although the Board filed a reply to petitioner's exceptions, our regulations do not permit the filing of additional papers without leave of the Legal Committee. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.17. Consequently, we have not considered the Board's reply in determining this matter.

> In each district the board of education may designate some person to act in place of any officer or employee during the absence, disability or disqualification of any such officer or employee....[N]o person so acting shall acquire tenure in the office or employment in which he acts pursuant to this section when so acting.

We stress initially that a teaching staff member appointed to an acting title would not receive tenure credit for such service in those instances in which he or she is, in actuality, acting "in place of any officer or employee during the absence, disability or disqualification of any such officer or employee." N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1. (Emphasis added.) However, the use of an acting title by a district board does not necessarily preclude the staff member employed in such capacity from achieving tenure as a result of that service. Rather, the accrual of tenure in such instances is dependent upon whether the staff member is serving in an acting capacity as authorized by the statute.

Given the circumstances herein, we find that petitioner was acting in the place of Brown during her absence from her supervisory position during the period from March 24 through March 31, 1992. Notwithstanding the fact that Brown began to perform her duties as acting principal on March 23, 1992, her appointment thereto was not effective until April 1, 1992, the effective date of Semmel's retirement. Semmel continued to occupy the position of principal until April 1 despite his absence from the district during the last week in March, and Brown remained the Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services. There is no indication in the record that the Board took any action to modify the commencement date of Brown's appointment as acting principal. Indeed, to the contrary, on March 24, 1992, the same day that the Board entered into a contract with petitioner to be the acting supervisor, it entered into a substitute contract with

Brown designating her specific salary as the acting principal and again establishing a commencement date of April 1 for such employment. Exhibit 30B/S, in evidence.

Consequently, we conclude that Brown continued to occupy the supervisory position in Pupil Personnel Services until April 1, 1992 and that petitioner was acting in place of Brown during her absence therefrom during the last week of March 1992. As a result, petitioner's service during that period could not be credited towards the achievement of tenure as a supervisor. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1. Cf. Lammers v. Bd. of Educ., 134 N.J. 264 (1993); Sayreville Education Ass'n v. Board of Education, 193 N.J. Super. 424 (App. Div. 1984). As a consequence of such determination, petitioner did not accrue tenure as a supervisor for more than two academic years within a period of three consecutive academic years, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(c), in satisfaction of the precise statutory conditions for the achievement of tenure as a supervisor.

Accordingly, we reverse the Commissioner's determination that petitioner had achieved tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her employment as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services.

In view of such determination, we find it necessary, in order to properly effectuate our decision herein, to address whether petitioner had achieved tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her previous service as an IEP Facilitator-Teacher.[3] However, on the basis of the record before us, we find that we are unable to determine whether petitioner had achieved tenure as a supervisor as the result of such employment and, if so, whether her tenure rights were properly effectuated when the Board "transferred" her back to an IEP position in March 1994.

[3] We note that petitioner, who was found to be tenured as a supervisor by the Commissioner and granted the relief sought, did not file a cross-appeal from that portion of the Commissioner's decision determining that she had not achieved tenure as a supervisor as a result of her previous service as an IEP Facilitator-Teacher.

The confusion in this area results from the fact that petitioner had been employed for a portion of her service as IEP Facilitator-Teacher under a job description which required certification as a supervisor, despite the parties' stipulation prior to hearing that the IEP position had not required certification as a supervisor. See Stipulation of Facts, at 1. That particular job description was not submitted into evidence by the Board until after the hearing in this matter.

The ALJ, as noted, concluded that petitioner had not achieved tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her previous service as the IEP Facilitator-Teacher. That determination, which was adopted by the Commissioner, was based upon a review of the duties listed in the former job description for that position.[4] Exhibit R-1, in evidence. That job description, which is undated, requires certification as a supervisor, in addition to possession of one of the following endorsements: "School Psychology, Counselor, Social Worker, LDTC, Teacher of Handicapped, School Nurse, Speech Corection [sic]." However, the specific period of time during which this job description was in effect cannot be determined on this record. Nor can we determine how long petitioner actually served under that particular job description.

Petitioner testified, as summarized by the ALJ,[5] that she had been employed for approximately 15 years as an IEP Facilitator-Teacher and that the elimination of the supervisory certification requirement in the job description:

[4] We note that the specific duties listed in the former and current job descriptions for IEP Facilitator-Teacher are identical.

[5] We note that the parties did not provide us with transcripts of the hearing held in this matter.

> was the result of an earlier reorganization. When Webb was appointed, the IEP facilitator needed and she held supervisory certifications or endorsements. She did not learn until some five years later that that supervisory endorsement was no longer required.

Initial Decision, slip op. at 8.

Petitioner indicated that at the time she was appointed the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services in 1992, she was serving under the IEP job description which did not require certification as a supervisor. Id.

The ALJ based his determination that the responsibilities of the IEP Facilitator-Teacher were not of such character as to require certification as a supervisor upon a review of the duties shown in the job description. There is no indication in the record that the Board submitted that job description or the revised job description for the unrecognized position title of IEP Facilitator-Teacher to the county superintendent for approval and determination of the appropriate certification, N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3(b), and the actual duties of the IEP position as performed by petitioner were neither stipulated by the parties nor litigated at hearing.

If petitioner had not achieved tenure as a supervisor prior to her appointment as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services, then, pursuant to our determination herein, the Board properly returned her to her former IEP position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. However, in the event that petitioner had achieved tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her previous employment as the IEP Facilitator-Teacher, the Board could properly have reassigned her within that tenured "position," but could not have transferred her to another separately tenurable "position" without her consent. Capodilupo v. W. Orange Tp. Ed. Bd., decided by the State Board, 1986 S.L.D. 3010, 3015-16, aff'd, 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987), certif. denied, 109 N.J. 514 (1987). Nor could the Board have dismissed petitioner or reduced her in compensation except for just cause after a hearing held pursuant to the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et. seq., or as the result of a reduction in force, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9.

Consequently, if it is determined that petitioner did achieve tenure as a supervisor as a result of her previous employment as the IEP Facilitator-Teacher, it would also be necessary to determine whether the Board properly recognized petitioner's tenure rights when it "transferred" her back to an IEP position in March 1994. We note in that regard that since the job description for IEP Facilitator-Teacher had been revised at some point by the Board so as to eliminate the requirement for supervisory certification, it cannot be determined on the basis of this record whether the actual duties of the unrecognized IEP position in March 1994 required certification as a supervisor, and, as a consequence, whether the Board's action in "transferring" petitioner back to an IEP position was a proper recognition of her tenure rights. The record does indicate, however, that petitioner's salary was reduced when she was "transferred" back to an IEP position. Her compensation as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services during 1993-94 had been $55,818, exhibit 56W, in evidence, and her salary upon return to the IEP position in March 1994 was $54,823, exhibits 58W and 60W, in evidence.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed herein, we reverse the Commissioner's determination that petitioner achieved tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her employment as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services, and remand to the Commissioner for the limited purpose of determining whether petitioner had achieved tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her previous employment as the IEP Facilitator-Teacher and, if so, whether the Board properly effectuated those tenure rights when it "transferred" petitioner back to an IEP position in March 1994.[6]

We do not retain jurisdiction.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

December 4, 1996

Date of mailing DEC 0 6 1996

[6] Given our determination to remand this matter to the Commissioner, we do not find it necessary to address the Board's exceptions concerning reinstatement of the intervenor and recovery of moneys paid to petitioner as a result of the Commissioner's decision.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner contested her involuntary transfer with reduction in salary from Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services to Individualized Education Program (IEP) Facilitator. Petitioner claimed transfer violated her tenure rights as supervisor. ALJ concluded that petitioner did achieve tenure in a supervisory capacity and that the IEP facilitator-teacher duties were not supervisory in nature. Thus, the ALJ concluded that service as an IEP facilitator-teacher did not inure to the service necessary to acquisition of tenure in a supervisory capacity. However, the ALJ determined that absent a showing that petitioner's seniority of two years and five days was superior to the seniority enjoyed by others, particularly by intervenor, there was not enough in the record to support the relief petitioner sought. Petition was dismissed. Commissioner determined to adopt in part and reverse in part the ALJ's decision. Commissioner concurred with ALJ that petitioner acquired supervisory tenure by virtue of her service as Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services from March 24, 1992 until March 28, 1994. Commissioner also concurred that petitioner's IEP facilitator-teacher duties were not supervisory in nature and, therefore, do not inure to the service necessary to acquire tenure in a supervisory capacity. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1 wherein each supervisory category is considered a separate category for the purpose of calculating seniority, Commissioner found petitioner had seniority in the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services while intervenor did not have seniority in that position having no service in that role prior to her appointment on March 28, 1994. Board was ordered to restore petitioner to said position with compensation from effective date of her transfer.

State Board reversed Commissioner's decision that petitioner achieved tenure as a supervisor. However, in that the State Board was unable to determine whether petitioner achieved tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her previous employment in the District, the State Board remanded the matter to the Commissioner for further proceedings.

On remand, based on an analysis of her duties, the ALJ determined petitioner failed to show that she achieved tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her service in the District as an IEP Facilitator. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

Record Closed: March 21, 1997 Decided: June 4, 1997[1]

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Penny Webb, petitioner, contested her involuntary transfer from Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services to Individualized Education Program Facilitator and alleged she had tenure as Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services, the transfer violated her tenure rights and the transfer will result in reduction of her salary which also violates her tenure rights. The Board denied the allegations and set forth affirmative defenses. The matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. A prehearing conference was held, Wayne J. Oppito, Esq. moved to intervene on behalf of Alma Singleton who holds the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services, the motion to intervene was granted and the matter proceeded on stipulated facts and briefs.

An Initial Decision was issued on December 8, 1995. On January 25, 1995, the Commissioner adopted in part and remanded in part as follows. The Commissioner agreed that the petitioner had not achieved tenure as a supervisor as the result of her previous service as the I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher, but that she had achieved tenure as a Supervisor because of her service as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services for the period March 24, 1992-March 28, 1994. However, the Commissioner concluded that the petitioner was entitled to reinstatement as the Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services as against the intervenor, Singleton. The Commissioner observed that while the petitioner had served as the Acting Supervisor for over two years, there was no showing that the intervenor who had previously served as a Department Chairperson, had ever been employed in that specific assignment before her appointment to it on March 28, 1994. The Commissioner found that the intervenor had no seniority in the particular regulatory category applicable to the assignment prior to her appointment to the assignment. He directed the Board to reinstate the petitioner as the Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services with backpay and emoluments.

The intervenor filed an appeal from the decision of the Commissioner before the State Board of Education. On August 21, 1996, the State Board Legal Committee issued a report that recommended reversing the Commissioner's determination that the petitioner had achieved tenure as a Supervisor by virtue of her employment as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services. The Board filed exceptions to that report and requested that that the State Board address whether the intervenor was to be reinstated as the Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services and whether the Board had the right to recover monies paid to the petitioner as a result of the Commissioner's decision.

The petitioner also filed exceptions and contended that she had achieved tenure as a result of her service as the Acting Supervisor and that, in any event, she had achieved tenure as a supervisor as a result of her previous employment as an I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher.

After reviewing the exceptions, the State Board found it necessary to issue a revised report on October 24, 1996. After a complete review of the record, the full Board reversed the determination of the Commissioner that the petitioner had achieved tenure in the district as a result of her service as the Acting Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services. The State Board found that the petitioner's employment as the Acting Supervisor in the period March 24-March 31, 1992 could not be credited toward the achievement of tenure as a supervisor. However, the State Board was unable to determine whether the petitioner had previously achieved tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her employment as an I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher. The State Board remanded the matter for further proceedings to develop the necessary facts.

Upon receiving the State Board of Education's December 4, 1996 decision, I scheduled a hearing to determine "the actual duties of the I.E.P. position as performed by petitioner." Counsel appeared on February 28, 1997 at which time additional testimony and documents were received.

Penelope Webb stated that she began as I.E.P. Facilitator in September 1980. The Supervisor endorsement was required. She did not learn for some five years that a Supervisor endorsement was no longer required for the position. Webb also testified that during the initial years in which she served in this position, she observed and evaluated teaching staff members in the special education area.

The Board does not dispute that evaluations were done by I.E.P. Facilitators during at least one year, the 1981-82 school year. The Board presented correspondence from Fred Price, then Director of the Division of Field Services, dated October 17, 1980, to the Burlington County Superintendent of Schools, in which the recommendation was that a Supervisor certificate or endorsement was appropriate for the I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher position. The Board's job description of 1984 also required Supervisory certification or endorsement. Joint Exhibit D.

Webb argues that she had been employed for approximately fifteen years as an I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher. A Supervisor endorsement, which she held, was required. The Board has agreed that evaluations were done by I.E.P. Facilitators in at least one year, the 1982-82 school year. After hearing concluded, the Board produced the Price letter of October 17, 1980. This confirmed Webb's testimony and the district's job description dated 1984.

Webb also presented evaluations of persons in the special education area which, she says, confirmed her evaluation responsibilities in years other than 1981-82.

In the Initial Decision in this matter, the judge concluded that the petitioner's employment as an I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher did not equate to tenure as a supervisor. During the first hearing of this matter, the job description offered did not include a requirement for a Supervisor endorsement. Subsequently, a job description that did contain such a requirement was submitted. Further, the judge did not have any evidence that the County Superintendent had approved either the title of I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher or made a determination as to appropriate certification for the position.

Webb asserts that we now know the I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher position was submitted to the County Superintendent and that a recommendation was made by the County Superintendent that a Supervisor certificate or evaluation be required of the position. As an I.E.P. Facilitator, Webb was involved in the evaluations and observations of both tenured and non-tenured staff members.

Webb served in an I.E.P. Facilitator position for fifteen years. For more than two years of that time, a Supervisor certificate or endorsement was required. That requirement had been approved by the County Superintendent. For more than two years, Webb either directly or indirectly observed and evaluated both tenured and non-tenured teaching staff members. Therefore, she met the precise requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 and acquired a tenured status as a Supervisor.

Alma Singleton, the intervenor, argues that the manner in which tenure is obtained in a position is set forth in three criteria:

> 1. A certificate issued by the State Board of Examiners is required;
>
> 2. The person in the position holds the required certificate, and,
> 3. The person has been employed in the position for the time set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.

Based on the letter from Dr. Price to the County Superintendent, it appears that the Supervisor certificate or endorsement was required for the position during the 1980-81 school year and that Webb possessed this certificate or endorsement at the time of her hire.

The question is whether Webb met the statutory time requirements for attaining tenure set forth in the statute. Although Webb served as I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher for fifteen years, she testified that, at some time, the requirement for Supervisory certification or endorsement was discontinued. If it was discontinued in the 1982-83 school year, Webb did not attain tenure as a Supervisor. All the subsequent documentation concerning staff evaluations that has been introduced demonstrates that Webb had input into the evaluations, but that the building principals signed the evaluations. Furthermore, Webb testified that she did evaluations for a short time and then was informed by central administration that she should discontinue doing them because of a grievance filed by the Willingboro Education Association, the teacher's union to which Webb also belonged. Margaret J. Woolford, the current Director of Pupil Personnel Services, testified that when she became an I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher in September 1983, she was told not to do evaluations. If the position did not require the Supervisory certificate or endorsement in the 1982-83 school year, it was an auxiliary position in which tenure as a Supervisor could not be attained. Input into evaluations is not sufficient for attaining tenure as a Supervisor.

The Board relies on its earlier arguments. At one time, the job qualifications demanded a Supervisory certificate or endorsement and one of the following certifications or endorsements:

School Psychology, Counselor, Social Worker, Learning Disability Teacher/Consultant, Teacher of the Handicapped, School Nurse or Speech Correctionist. The present job description does not require Supervisory certification or endorsement. Webb worked under the previous job description for at least five years. The petitioner having served for an initial period in excess of three school years as an I.E.P. Facilitator, which required her to have both Supervisory and Teaching certification, the petitioner did acquire tenure as an I.E.P. Facilitator under her Supervisory and her Teaching certifications. She has been returned to the I.E.P. Facilitator position as of January 31, 1994. This was a reassignment within certifications under which she held tenure without loss of pay or benefits. Her time served as Acting Supervisor of Special Services did not give rise to new tenure rights. These rights had already vested after three school years in the position of IEP Facilitator under the old job description.

The petitioner's tenure rights in the I.E.P. Facilitator position continue to accrue under both her Supervisory and Teaching certifications as they did when the Board amended the job description and deleted the Supervisory certification requirement. The job description revision did not change the petitioner's vested tenured rights. She continues to accrue tenure in both certifications.

The petitioner had no right to claim the position of Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services when she presently holds a position under which she acquired tenure in both Supervisory and Teaching categories.

DETERMINATION AND ORDER

Tenure is created by statute and is defined with specificity. In order to achieve tenure, the precise statutory conditions must be met. Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Ed., 38 N.J. 65, 72 (1962).

If Webb served as a Supervisor for more than three years in the I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher position, she has achieved tenure as a Supervisor. If she achieved tenure as a Supervisor, it must then be considered if her tenure rights were properly recognized when the Board replaced her in an I.E.P. position in March 1994.

Webb was employed for part of her service as an I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher under a job description that required Supervisory certification or endorsement. However, it is the duties of the job, not the job title that determine tenure rights. See, e.g., Elizabeth v. North Bergen Bd. of Ed., 1974 S.L.D. 805, 814:

> The Commissioner must be vigilant to protect those who are entitled to tenure from the erosion of their tenure rights by subterfuge and evasion. He must be equally vigilant against the employment of devices to confer tenure upon those who are not entitled to its protection. The duties performed rather than the title of a position must be controlling in determining whether a position is protected by tenure. Nomencolatures may not be the deciding factor.

See, also Arthur L. Page v. Trenton Bd. of Ed., and Pasquale A. Maffei, 1975 S.L.D. 644:

Here, the evidence tends to show that Webb did evaluate teaching staff members for one academic year, 1981-82. The evidence also tends to show that Webb had input, but not ultimate observation and evaluation responsibilities in other academic years. Thus, if Webb has achieved tenure in a Supervisor capacity it must be on the basis of other duties.

In Webb's own tenure evaluation, the evaluator, Dr. Brian G. Gross, commented on her important duties.

> You continue to meet your responsibilities in a most effective, enthusiastic, and professional manner. As the I.E.P. Facilitator for the Elementary Special Instruction Department, you are an important link between the department and the child study teams, thus insuring that each classified youngster has a current I.E.P.
> In your role as I.E.P. Facilitator, you do a fine job as a member of the Placement Board, assisting with both in and out-of-district placements. You play a key role in the I.E.P. mandated mainstreaming process for classified children and you have been instrumental in helping to implement the new pass/fail grading > policy. Your assistance in developing this year's class lists was most appreciated.

>
> The responsibilities of the I.E.P. Facilitator are varied and demanding. Record keeping tasks are a vital part of the position. In a well organized manner, you have kept track of classified students who are suspended. You have also been instrumental in processing I.E.P. Revision Forms from the classroom teachers through to the terms and in scheduling monthly I.E.P. conferences.
>
> In-services presented by you, earlier this school year, on the current grading policy and the departmentalization of resource room programs were well planned, informative, and interesting.
>
> It should also be noted that you assisted in writing the District's Annual Special Education Plan. You also wrote forty-three tenure and non-tenure evaluation inputs that were placed in 1985-1986 teacher evaluations for the department. All of this was done with your usual efficiency and thoroughness.
> You maintain excellent communication with both the teaching staff in the department and with building administrators. During your monthly I.E.P. monitoring visits to each of the ten elementary schools, you have been most helpful and professional.

While this is laudatory, the language bespeaks support, liaison and facilitation functions rather than supervisory duties. The job description, Joint Exhibit D, states the responsibility of the position as follows:

> The I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher shall be responsible to the Director of Pupil Personnel Services.

The function is described as follows:

> The I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher will coordinate the scheduling, implementation, and revision of I.E.P.'s for all classified in their division.

Twenty-seven duties are specified. Evaluation of teaching staff members is not specifically mentioned. Of course, the last duty, "Perform such other duties related to programs for the handicapped as specified by the Director of Pupil Personnel Services," is a catch-all, and could be read as admitting evaluative work, provided such was assigned by the Director of Pupil Personnel Services.

Viewing the evidence in its entirety, I FIND insufficient support for the proposition that Webb achieved Supervisory tenure status by service in the I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher position. This is somewhat circumstantial; it is at least deductive. However, it is the petitioner who carries the burden of persuasion in an administrative proceeding. The party bearing the burden of proof in an administrative hearing must prove the case by a preponderance of the evidence. This tribunal, therefore, must "decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to the reasonable probability of truth." Jackson v. D.L. and W.R.R., 11 N.J.L. 487, 490 (E. & A. 1933). The evidence is found to preponderate if it "establishes 'the reasonable probability of the fact'." Jaeger v. Elizabethtown Consolidated Gas Co., 124 N.J.L. 420, 423 (Sup. Ct. 1940). The evidence must be such as to "generate belief that the tenured hypothesis is in all human likelihood the fact." Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super.; 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959).

In consideration of the foregoing analysis and of the entire record, I CONCLUDE that Penny Webb has failed to show that she achieved a tenure status in the Supervisory category by virtue of her service with the Willingboro Board of Education as I.E.P. Facilitator-Teacher.

This conclusion having addressed the sole issue of the State Board of Education on remand, the petition of appeal is DISMISSED. It is ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WILLINGBORO, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON REMAND

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

In petitioner's exceptions, she renews her assertion that the supervisory nature of the Individualized Education Program (IEP) Facilitator position is evidenced by her undisputed writing of evaluations for the 1981-82 school year, and for her "evaluative responsibilities" for the 1982-83, 1983-84, 1984-85, 1985-86 and 1986-87 school years. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 4) Petitioner reasons that, absent a supervisory endorsement, she could not have participated in the evaluation process, either as the primary evaluator, or by having input into the evaluations written by the principals. (Id. at p. 5) Moreover, petitioner claims that the supervisory nature of the IEP Facilitator position is substantiated by the initial job description, as well as correspondence from a former Director of the Division of Field Services to the County

Superintendent of Schools recommending that a supervisor's endorsement was appropriate for this position. (Id. at p. 4)

Petitioner contends that, by his decision, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) has "collaterally attacked" a decision rendered by the County Office of the Department of Education seventeen years prior. "Petitioner maintains that Judge Campbell is without authority at this juncture to substitute his judgment for that of the Director of Field Services of the County Superintendent of Schools." (Id. at p. 5) Having performed these supervisory functions, and having held a title which required a supervisory endorsement, petitioner reasons that she has met the two-year statutory requirement to acquire tenure as a supervisor. (Id. at p. 6)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to establish by a preponderance of credible evidence that, except for the 1981-82 school year, she performed duties such that she was required to hold a supervisor's endorsement. Therefore, petitioner could not have met the statutory requirement under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6, as claimed, for acquiring tenure as a supervisor by virtue of her service as the IEP Facilitator.

Moreover, as to petitioner's contention that a prior certification decision rendered by the county office should be determinative in this matter, the Commissioner emphasizes that > While the county superintendent is charged with responsibility in the first instance for determining the appropriate certification for service in an unrecognized position title based upon the specific duties required to be performed, the State Board of Education has the ultimate administrative authority for determining appropriate certification, South River Education Association v. Board of Education of the Borough of South River, decided by the State Board, November 4, 1987, aff'd, Docket #A-1695-87T8 (App. Div. 1990); Pezullo v. Board of Education of the Township of Willingboro, decided by the State Board, March 1, 1989, appeal dismissed, Docket #A-4006-88T1 (App. Div. 1989), . John Zachau v. Burlington County Vocational and Technical Schools,

Burlington County, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 4, decided by the State Board September 4, 1996. (State Board Slip Opinion at p. 3)

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the ALJ's conclusion and recommended order that the within Petition of Appeal be dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent sought stay of the NJSIAA's determination that his son, D.M., was ineligible to participate in interscholastic contests (basketball) until February 1, 1996, by application of Article V, Section 4E (academic credit rule). District contended D.M. failed to earn requisite academic credits. Petitioner claimed D.M.'s failure to earn the credits was beyond his control as the District did not provide a tutor, as requested, and did not apprise D.M. that his eligibility was jeopardized by failure to earn requisite academic credits since that requirement was not included in the District's Handbook in the 1994-95 school year.

Citing Burnside, Commissioner concluded that D.M. was afforded the due process to which he was entitled and that the Eligibility Appeals Committee's determination was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable so as to warrant the Commissioner's intervention. Thus, the Commissioner affirmed the NJSIAA's decision. Petition was dismissed.

For Petitioner, G. M., Pro Se

For Respondent, Picco, Herbert, Kennedy (Michael J. Herbert, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter has come before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal and Motion for Emergent Relief filed by petitioner on December 22, 1995, seeking a stay of the determination by the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) that D.M. is ineligible to participate in interscholastic contests until February 1, 1996, by application of Article V, Section 4E (academic credit rule). Respondent NJSIAA submitted its Answer and Reply Brief on December 29, 1995, together with the record of proceedings before NJSIAA. It was determined that the Commissioner would decide the merits of this matter on an accelerated schedule, thereby obviating the need to decide the Motion for Emergent Relief.

The Commissioner decides the merits of this matter under the standard of review articulated by the courts in reviewing appeals from determinations of NJSIAA. That standard holds that the Commissioner will not substitute his judgment for that of the Association, even if he were to decide differently in a de novo hearing, where due process has been provided and where there is an adequate basis for the decision reached by the NJSIAA Committee. See, e.g., Dam Jin Koh and Hong Jun Kim v. NJSIAA, decided by the Commissioner February 3, 1987.

The facts in this case are undisputed. D.M., currently a high school senior in the Central Regional School District, initially enrolled in seven classes, for a total of 36 credits, for the 1994-95 school year. With his parents' approval, D.M. withdrew from a five-credit course early in the school year. Thereafter, he failed a Geometry course, thereby falling short of the requisite 27.5 credits needed to remain eligible to play basketball. The record shows that D.M. consulted with his counselor during the course of the year about his progress. He was offered the opportunity to attend summer school, but declined the offer. The District concedes that the academic credit requirement was not included in the District's Handbook in the 1994-95 school year, and there may have been some confusion about the import of petitioner's actions with respect to his sports eligibility.

Petitioner asserts that NJSIAA's decision to exclude D.M. from basketball games until February 1, 1996, the start of the new semester, is arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Petitioner argues that the academic credit rule should be waived in this instance, since D.M.'s failure to earn the necessary credits was beyond his control. Here, petitioner contends that the District did not follow through in providing D.M. with a tutor, as requested. Moreover, petitioner argues that D.M. was never fairly apprised that his eligibility was jeopardized by failure to earn requisite academic credits.

NJSIAA counters that petitioner has failed to demonstrate the existence of circumstances beyond D.M.'s control, such that the granting of a waiver of Article V, Section 4E of the NJSIAA bylaws is appropriate. With respect to petitioner's argument that the academic credit rule was not contained in the District's Handbook and that he was not properly advised by school staff, NJSIAA observes

> This is precisely the argument that was made and rejected by both the Commissioner of Education and the Appellate Division in the Burnside case.  There, the NJSIAA had changed to its current academic restrictions, but some member schools did not adopt appropriate alterations in their student Handbook. The Commissioner and the Appellate Division held that any such inaction by the member school could not constitute the basis of an eligibility waiver. To make absolutely certain that appeals are not prosecuted on such a basis, the NJSIAA specifically provided that schools should advise appealing students and their parents of their rights as set forth in the NJSIAA Handbook. In addition, at page 61 of the Handbook, it is clearly stated:
> > Misinterpretation of NJSIAA eligibility regulations or the failure by the school's staff to properly advise a Student-Athlete will not be considered grounds for waiver of the eligibility requirements. (Emphasis in original) (NJSIAA's Reply Brief at pp. 9, 10)

After a thorough consideration of the record, which includes petitioner's documentation submitted to the Eligibility Appeals Committee (EAC), the transcript of the hearing below, as well as the written decision of the EAC, the Commissioner is persuaded that the hearing of the NJSIAA's EAC on December 6, 1995 fully provided petitioner with the due process to which he is entitled, and that the EAC's determination was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable so as to warrant the Commissioner's intervention. Thus, the Commissioner concludes that petitioner has failed to meet his burden under the appropriate standard of review, and the NJSIAA's decision must, therefore, be affirmed.

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the decision of the NJSIAA in this matter and hereby dismisses the Petition of Appeal with prejudice.

GREGORY T. CAMPBELL,

Petitioner,

v.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

Respondent.

Richard A. Friedman, Esq., for petitioner (Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak, attorneys)

Respondent appearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.6(a)

Record Closed: November 29, 1995 Decided: December 14, 1995

BEFORE STEVEN C. REBACK, ALJ:

This matter arises as a result of a remand by the State Board of Education (Board) to the Commissioner of Education for a hearing in order to provide the petitioner with an adequate opportunity to establish a record in support of his contention that he has satisfied the statutory standard for rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18a:6-7.1(e) following his convictions for crimes which disqualified him from school employment. The remand followed a determination arrived at by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, which concluded that Mr. Campbell had not been rehabilitated. Following the remand by the Board to the Commissioner of Education the latter transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 on September 20, 1995. The matter was originally scheduled to proceed to hearing on November 14, 1995; Mr. Friedman did not appear indicating that he had not received notice of the matter. The case was then rescheduled and heard on November 29, 1995 at the Office of Administrative Law, Mercerville, New Jersey at which time the record closed.

ISSUE AND BURDEN OF PROOF

The primary issue to be determined in these proceedings is whether, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18:6-7.1(e), the petitioner can demonstrate that he should not be disqualified from school employment as a custodian on the basis of his criminal record in that he has been rehabilitated. In respect to this issue the burden rests exclusively with the petitioner: Mr. Campbell must affirmatively demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that he has been rehabilitated.

In addition, as part of the remand, the Board specifically asked for clarification in respect to the circumstances surrounding the petitioner's incarceration in or about 1989. See Board remand. July 7, 1995 at 2. The Board notes that "This information is particularly critical in view of the deputy commissioner's conclusion, based on his statement that the petitioner was convicted of "possession of narcotics" in 1989, that insufficient time has lapsed for him to have been convinced of petitioner's rehabilitation." Id at 2-3.

THE FACTS

The facts are not in dispute. I FIND:

The petitioner, Gregory T. Campbell, is 41 years of age and for the past year and one-half has resided with a woman who he has described as his "fiancee" in Hampton, New Jersey. He is divorced and has two children, daughters ages 20 and 18. One of them is employed and the other is a student at college. He indicates that he has a good, close relationship with both of them. His fiancee has three children, sons, and they apparently have been living in familiar relationship for at least 18 months. They have not set a date in respect to marriage. His fiancee earns income as a baby-sitter. She is a recovering alcoholic.

Mr. Campbell's criminal record is not in dispute. On or about January 7, 1982, following a July 8, 1981 indictment, Campbell entered a plea of guilty to a violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1) and 2C:2-6a, b, and c, aiding and abetting the distribution of a controlled dangerous substance. As part of his sentence he was incarcerated for 90 days with the opportunity for work release on weekdays and he was also placed on one year's probation. The drug involved in the offense was cocaine and it was Mr. Campbell's testimony that he was arrested in a bar where he was employed for possessing approximately one gram of cocaine. He acknowledged that part of the reason for his conduct was that he was "mixed in with the wrong crowd."

Some two years later, in 1984, Mr. Campbell was arrested for possession of methaemphetamines in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20A-1 and possession with intent to sell in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a-1. On May 6, 1985 he entered a plea of guilty to the former charge which was dispositive of all charges. He was sentenced to four years probation and in addition served nine months in Hunterdon County Jail.

As was requested in the remand of this matter by the Board, Mr. Campbell's incarceration in 1989 was clarified. That incarceration did not result from any arrests for a substantive criminal offense and in no way involved an arrest and/or conviction for any drug-related offense. The 1989 incarceration resulted from his parole violation. Campbell acknowledged that as an incident to his 1985 conviction he was sentenced to four years probation and that he frequently, if not systemically, failed to meet with his probation officer. As a consequence of his failure to do so he was incarcerated at the Mountainview Youth Correctional Facility from February 10, 1989 to June 9, 1989 when he was placed on parole. He was discharged from parole on March 17, 1990.

In addition, he successfully completed as part of his parole, random urinalysis testing. Consequently, the inquiry by the Board on remand in respect to Mr. Campbell's 1989 incarceration reveals that he was not involved in any narcotics-related offense based upon his criminal record subsequent to his conviction in May of 1985. There is therefore more than a decade in which Mr. Campbell has not been convicted of any crime related to a controlled dangerous substance; indeed, he has not been convicted of any crime within that period of a substantive nature but for his culpability which resulted in additional incarceration because he failed to meet his probation obligations.

Campbell has acknowledged that through 1984-85 he suffered from a severe alcoholic problem he has received counseling for that which was mandated by his release after his 1989 incarceration. This counseling has been documented. See, exhibit P-3, which is a letter from the Reverend Richard A. Miller of the Stanton Reformed Church, dated August 8, 1995. Reverend Miller notes that he counseled Mr. Campbell for approximately six months at weekly sessions for one hour each. He notes that the counseling was alcohol rehabilitation oriented. Reverend Miller describes Campbell's response as being receptive, that he recognized his alcoholism. Campbell also acknowledged that he had a drug abuse problem for which he also received counseling. He did however deny that he was ever addicted to drugs or that he was ever an alcoholic. He indicates that he does not drink regularly; perhaps once or twice a year he will have a drink. The Reverend Miller's letter also notes that once Campbell began working as a custodian he abstained from alcohol completely.

Mr. Campbell dropped out of high school in his junior year but in 1980 obtained a graduate equivalent diploma. After applying for a position as a custodian in the Reddington School District, Hunterdon County, Campbell was hired in that capacity and worked as a custodian from April 19, 1994 through May 1995 when he was terminated from his position because of his criminal record.

ANALYSIS

In order to demonstrate that an individual has rehabilitated himself such that he is no longer disqualified from school employment, he must satisfy the applicable criteria set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

Subdivision (e) of that statue provides as follows:

> Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, an individual shall not be disqualified from employment or service under this act on the basis of any conviction disclosed by a criminal record check performed pursuant to this act if the individual has affirmatively demonstrated to the Commissioner of Education clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. In determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation, the following factors shall be considered:
> (1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
> (4) The date of the offense;
> (5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;
> (6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
> (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendations of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e)]

Mr. Campbell's efforts at rehabilitation in one sense began after his conviction for possession of methaenphatimes in 1985. In another sense however, he really did not begin his rehabilitation at that time. It is my judgment that the inference must be drawn that his violation of probation reasonably was correlated to either gross irresponsibility on his part or behavior which was motivated in part by alcohol and/or substance abuse. Certainly, to have violated probation to the extent that he served nine months in state prison in 1988-89, is a serious infraction. The ten-year gap between Mr. Campbell's last criminal drug-related conviction and his disqualification from his employment is a significant period of time. There is also, looking at the case in the darkest light possible for Mr. Campbell, a period of at least six years when he has been drug and alcohol free, has undergone counseling and has made what appears to be a good faith effort to create a family life and a home life for himself, his fiancee and her children. By his testimony he also has indicated that he maintains a good fatherly relationship with his natural children. Mr. Campbell's explanation as to the circumstances of his convictions - that he was mixing with the wrong kind of people - is understandable but in my view does not in any way justify criminal or drug-related behavior. Neither is his explanation in respect to his probation violation. He indicated in his testimony that a primary reason for his failing to appear at his probation office was that his probation officer too often failed to make his appointments. I reject that explanation. It seems to me that even if (and I do not know this for as fact) a probation officer is not present, a responsible convict would see to it that a record is made that he did appear so as not to jeopardize the possibility of having return to jail. Thus I am somewhat concerned that Mr. Campbell has not accepted and taken full responsibility for his misconduct both as it relates to drugs as well as to his probation violation. Nevertheless, the record of his conduct outweighs what might be some ambiguity in respect to his state of mind. Petitioner has submitted a significant number of letters attesting to his strong family ties, his responsible attitude, his sense of purpose in life and his successful ability to come to grips and conquer his alcohol problems.

In addition, Mr. Campbell has submitted letters from the former administrator of Mountainview Youth Correctional Facility (P-6 & P-7). They unambiguously indicate that his stay at that institution was a successful one from the perceptive of his response to the rules and to the rapport which was established between himself, staff and other inmates. His adjustment was characterized as excellent.

In addition and significantly, letters were submitted by other employees at the Reddington Middle School where Mr. Campbell worked for approximately one year as custodian. One of those letters, from a mathematics teacher, (P-2) noted that Mr. Campbell was a "conscientious hard working" man. He was characterized as thorough and efficient and maintained a positive attitude with administrators, supervisors, teachers and students. The letter concludes "I would not hesitate to recommend Greg Campbell for a position as a custodian. I am sure he would be a cooperative addition to any custodial staff. P-2. The letter is dated July 13, 1995.

The nature and responsibility of the position which the individual holds is also a significant factor in assessing his rehabilitation. Clearly, the greater the relationship that a convicted criminal has to students, the greater the risks present and the more scrupulous one must be in assessing the various other factors set forth under the statute. Here as a custodian Mr. Campbell has minimal contact with students. From his testimony however, one learns that he for the past one and a half years, has been residing with his fiancee and her three sons and there was no indication whatever that in this most intimate environment in respect to children - the home - that there have been any adverse consequences on the children based upon Mr. Campbell's prior drug-related criminal history.

Based upon all the foregoing, it is my judgment that the petitioner has met the burden of the statute. While the a fact finder can of course be duped into accepting the credibility of an individual who is earnest and appears responsible and candid - and I am no different from any fact other finder in that regard - the record in this matter, which is punctuated by some six years of complete uninvolvement with the criminal justice system, supports and reinforces Mr. Campbell's sworn testimony.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence and pursuant to the criteria set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 that he has been rehabilitated. It is therefore ORDERED that the petitioner's criminal history no longer disqualifies him from school employment as a custodian.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE	:
DISQUALIFICATION FROM	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT OF	:	DECISION
GREGORY T. CAMPBELL.	:

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner cannot concur with the conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that Mr. Campbell has demonstrated rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and is, therefore, qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws. Rather, in reviewing the evidence presented in the record and at the hearing against the statutory factors which must be considered in reviewing an individual's assertion of rehabilitation, the Commissioner is unable to find Mr. Campbell qualified within the intent of the statute at this time.

Initially, the Commissioner observes that although Mr. Campbell's last offense occurred over 10 years ago, he was not a youth, but a 31-year-old man at that time. Further, this offense was not an isolated incident but, rather, a repeated occurrence of serious criminal misconduct involving drugs. In this connection, the Commissioner must remain continually mindful of his responsibility to ensure that the students in the state are provided with environments which are safe and free of alcohol and drugs. The Commissioner's determination is further influenced by the recitation of the details of Mr. Campbell's incarceration in 1989 for violation of the terms of his probation as such belie his assertion that his efforts at rehabilitation began after his conviction for possession of amphetamine in 1985.

With respect to the nature and responsibility of the position Mr. Campbell wishes to occupy, although a custodial/maintenance position is not one where the incumbent has direct involvement with students in that he/she is responsible for their care, supervision or instruction, the Commissioner has been consistently mindful that such a position nevertheless affords an individual significant and otherwise unsupervised access to children, a consideration which must not be minimized when examining rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

Based on the above considerations, the Commissioner cannot be persuaded, as he must by law, that Mr. Campbell has demonstrated rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is reversed and Mr. Campbell's disqualification from school employment is sustained. This matter is hereby transmitted to the State Board of Education which has retained jurisdiction pursuant to its decision of July 5, 1995.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: November 2, 1995 Decided: December 18, 1995

BEFORE DIANA C. SUKOVICH, ALJ:

NATURE OF THE CASE

George Watson, Jr. (petitioner or Watson) was previously employed as a transportation coordinator by the East Hanover Board of Education (Board or respondent) pursuant to a contract executed on December 15, 1993. The term of employment was December 15, 1993 to June 30, 1994. On approximately June 1, 1994, petitioner requested an appointment as a substitute school bus driver. At a regular meeting held on June 14, 1994, the Board adopted a resolution terminating petitioner's employment from the position of transportation coordinator, effective July 1, 1994. At a regular meeting conducted on June 28, 1994, respondent approved petitioner's appointment as a substitute bus driver, pending submission of certain documents and a criminal history record check.

The current matter pertains to claims raised by petitioner regarding the action by respondent terminating him and his status as a substitute driver. On October 17, 1995, counsel for the Board moved for dismissal of the petition. The case has a protracted procedural history. Consideration of this history, as well as the nature of the issues raised by the parties, are relevant to consideration of the motion.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On approximately September 15, 1994, Watson filed a petition for declaratory judgment with the Commissioner of the Department of Education (DOE) regarding the termination of his employment by and his status as a substitute driver with the Board. The DOE required resubmission of the petition, and the filing was perfected on approximately November 18, 1994. The Board filed an answer and affirmative defenses on October 14, 1994, in which it raised, in part, the affirmative defense that Watson's petition was barred because it was not timely filed.

Subsequent to the submission of briefs by the parties, on December 13, 1994, the Commissioner of the DOE issued a letter order, determining, in part, that the matter would be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). The DOE transmitted the matter to the OAL on December 28, 1994 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was conducted on March 19, 1995, and a prehearing order issued on April 10, 1995. The prehearing order was subsequently amended by an order issued by this judge on June 28, 1995, on motion by the Board.

As reflected in the April 10, 1995 prehearing order, hearings were initially scheduled for September 21 and 22, 1995. The order stated that no adjournments would be granted except in strict accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-9.6. In January 1995, petitioner had improperly served discovery on various individuals, including current and former employees of respondent, contrary to N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.2(a). Respondent had previously served discovery on petitioner in January 1995. As reflected in the prehearing order, respondent's counsel, who had copies of petitioner's discovery, agreed to provide responses within thirty days. Petitioner agreed to provide responses to the Board's discovery within thirty days. The June 28, 1995 order amending the prehearing order did not affect the scheduled hearing dates, the procedure applicable to adjournment requests, and the discovery deadlines. However, although the Board served responses to Watson's discovery, petitioner did not serve responses to the Board's discovery until October 1995.

In the interim, a telephone conference was conducted on May 31, 1995. During the course of the conference, this judge requested that the parties appear that day for an in-person conference, which they subsequently did. An in-person conference was conducted, on the record, later in the day on May 31, 1995.

During the in-person conference, Watson represented that he had decided to withdraw his petition and requested that a withdrawal be processed with a "transfer" to other related matters, which he had indicated had been filed in federal district court. I requested that petitioner file a letter of withdrawal, stating his request with specificity, which Watson agreed to do by facsimile transmission. The parties were allowed one week to file letters citing authority for and against transfer jurisdiction, and petitioner agreed to provide a copy of the cover letter effectuating the filing of his petition in federal court, but did not agree to file a copy of the petition itself.

On June 8, 1995, the Board filed a letter brief in opposition to petitioner's notice of withdrawal. Watson did not file a letter of withdrawal, and subsequent to several letters from this judge to the parties regarding the status of the case, and in response to subsequent telephone communications from petitioner, a telephone conference was conducted on June 23, 1995. Watson represented that he had decided not to withdraw his petition in the current matter.

In the interim, on April 25, 1995, the Board filed a motion to dismiss. Petitioner filed a reply in opposition to the motion, and the Board filed a response to the reply. On August 11, 1995, I issued an order granting and denying, in part, the Board's motion to dismiss.

The pleadings filed by petitioner are somewhat unclear on their face. However, as noted in the order issued on August 11, 1995, Watson's initial petition raised apparent claims and allegations pertaining to the conduct of the June 14 and 25, 1994 Board meetings; Watson's status as a substitute driver; alleged discrimination by respondent against bus drivers on the basis of race; a claim that bus routes and classes in the district are designed in a discriminatory manner, on the basis of race; the claim that Watson had so informed the Board, and that he was terminated in retaliation; and claims that the Board generally discriminated against Watson, who is African American, on the basis of race. In reference to the June 14 and 28, 1994 Board meetings, respondent claimed violations of the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-1 to 21.

In my order of August 11, 1995, I dismissed all claims of petitioner other than those that respondent discriminated and retaliated against Watson in terminating him on June 14, 1994 and those pertaining to his status as a substitute driver. I also ordered that the Board file responses to petitioner's interrogatories no later than August 31, 1995, which respondent did; the Board had refrained from doing so pending a ruling on its motion.

Watson subsequently called this judge's office, advising that a stay of the proceedings of the current matter would be issued by federal district court. However, no such documents were ever filed with the OAL.

On September 5, 1995, this judge issued a letter order directing that the parties be prepared to commence hearings on September 21, 1995 and that petitioner serve responses to respondent's discovery no later than September 12, 1995. The September 22, 1995 hearing was adjourned, at the request of respondent. Petitioner did not file an objection to the request, although given an opportunity to do so.

A telephone conference was conducted on September 20, 1995, and a letter order issued on September 21, 1995, confirming rulings which had been rendered. Because of pending motions, the hearing scheduled for September 21, 1995 was adjourned. The order stated that hearings remained scheduled for October 11, 17, and 20, 1995, which hearings had previously been scheduled. In the interim, the Board filed a motion to dismiss for failure to comply with discovery directives on September 18, 1995. Petitioner filed a reply and cross-motion on September 20, 1995. Respondent ultimately filed a response to petitioner's reply on September 25, 1995.

During the September 20, 1995 conference, petitioner represented that his prior letter of September 18, 1995 constituted his reply to respondent's motion to dismiss. Watson was directed to file copies of all interrogatories served by him, no later than September 29, 1995, which he did not do. Petitioner represented that he intended to file a motion for reconsideration of the order issued on August 11, 1995. This judge directed that he file any such motion no later than September 29, 1995 and that any motion filed after that date would not be considered, unless good cause for any delay were established.

On October 6, 1995, this judge issued an order on respondent's motion to dismiss and petitioner's reply and cross-motion. Although noting that respondent had advanced a persuasive case for dismissal, I ruled that both parties should serve responses to certain interrogatories no later than 11:00 a.m. on October 13, 1995. The hearing scheduled for October 11, 1995, only, was adjourned. Thereafter, this judge issued a supplemental letter order pertaining to the discovery to which respondent was directed to respond. Previously, on July 6, 1995, the OAL had mailed to the parties a formal notice of the hearing scheduled for October 11, 17 and 20, 1995.

Neither petitioner nor a representative on behalf of Watson appeared for the hearing scheduled for October 17, 1995. The record was opened at approximately 10:10 a.m. Counsel and three witnesses appeared on behalf of the Board. No communications were received by or on behalf of Watson regarding his nonappearance. Counsel for respondent orally moved for a dismissal of the petition.

By letter dated October 17, 1995, this judge directed that the parties file, no later than 2:00 p.m. on October 18, 1995, written positions directed to the question of whether the petition should be dismissed; and written replies, no later than 1:00 p.m. on October 19, 1995. This letter was sent by facsimile transmission as well as regular mail. However, for reasons not apparent, the facsimile transmission to Watson could not be effectuated, although he was advised by telephone communication to his answering machine that a transmission was imminent.

By letter dated October 19, 1995, I advised the parties that the hearing scheduled for October 20, 1995 was adjourned and that a ruling on the motion to dismiss would thereafter issue. A letter was sent to both parties by regular and facsimile transmission. Watson did not file initial nor responsive positions on the motion to dismiss within the scheduled deadlines.

On November 2, Watson filed a communication, by mailgram, regarding his prior nonappearance. This communication read as follows:

> 10-31-95 PLEASE BE ADVISED THAT I DIDN'T ATTEND YOUR MEETING BECAUSE OF MY FILING AN APPEAL TO THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION FOR INTERLOCKETORY (SIC) REVIEW AND STAY OF YOUR PROCEEDINGS.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND the procedural history, as stated hereinabove, to be facts for purposes of consideration of respondent's motion to dismiss.

DISCUSSION

The Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules (UAPR), which govern the conduct of contested cases, shall be interpreted to achieve fair results, simplicity in procedure, fairness, and the elimination of unjustifiable expense and delay. N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.3(a). Hearings and other proceedings shall proceed with all reasonable expedition. The parties shall promptly advise the presiding judge of any event which will probably delay the conduct of a case. Id. at § 14.2.

Applications for adjournments shall be made to the presiding judge. Id. at §9.6(a). Adjournments shall be granted only in exceptional situations which cannot have reasonably been foreseen or prevented. Id. at §(d).

If after notice, neither a party nor a representative for that party, appears on any proceedings scheduled by a judge, the judge shall hold the matter for one day before taking action. If the judge does not receive an explanation for the nonappearance within one day, the judge may direct the clerk to return the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition. Id. at §14.4(a) If the judge concludes from any written explanation subsequently filed regarding the nonappearance that the nonappearing party or representative was intentionally attempting to delay the proceedings, the judge may refuse to reschedule the matter and shall issue an initial decision explaining the basis to the conclusion. Id. at §(b)2.

In general, a presiding judge's powers include the scheduling of any form of hearing in a proceeding. Id. at §14.6(a). In a particular case, the judge may schedule additional hearing dates, declare scheduled hearing dates unnecessary, or schedule any number of in-person or telephone conferences. Id. at §(c). The judge may also render any ruling or order necessary to decide any matter presented which is within the jurisdiction of the transmitting agency. Id. at §(h). In addition, the judge may take any actions necessary for the proper, expeditious and fair conduct of the hearing or other proceedings, development of a record, and rendering of a decision. Id. at §(p).

In general, an order or ruling of a presiding judge may be reviewed interlocutorily by an agency head at the request of a party. Id. at §14.10(a) Either the presiding judge or the agency head may order a stay of the proceedings. Applications for stays should be made in the first instance to the presiding judge. Id. at §(i).

For unreasonable failure to comply with any order of a judge or any requirements of the UAPR, the presiding judge may dismiss or grant a motion or application, suppress a defense or claim, exclude evidence, order costs or reasonable expenses, or take any other appropriate case-related action. Id. at §14.14.

I am persuaded that respondent's motion to dismiss should be granted with prejudice. As discussed hereinabove, administrative proceedings are to proceed with reasonable expedition, and adjournments shall not be generally granted. In addition, the fact that petitioner acted to appeal rulings of this judge on an interlocutory basis was not a basis per se for an adjournment of the hearing in question. In any event, petitioner, pursuant to the applicable regulations, should have requested an adjournment of this judge, not simply not appear for the scheduled hearing.* Pursuant o the applicable rules, petitioner's nonappearance at the hearing scheduled for October 17, 1995 could have been treated as an abandonment. However, Watson was given an opportunity to subsequently file a position on whether his petition should be dismissed, which was not filed until November 2, 1995, subsequent to the deadlines established by this judge.

*By letter dated October 24, 1995, the DOE advised petitioner that it was unable to determine what action the motion was requesting the Commissioner to take. Petitioner was requested to file a clarification and supporting documentation within 20 days.

Petitioner's failure to appear at the hearing, which, as indicated hereinabove, was not based on a valid reason and was contrary to the principles reflected in the UAPR, as well as the procedural history of this case, support the imposition of the sanction of dismissal of his petition, with prejudice, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. I am persuaded that the record evidences, at a minimum, an extreme dilatoriousness by petitioner or, at the worse, intentional delay. It may be inferred from petitioner's involvement in the current matter, including the filing by Watson of various documents, motions, and replies to motions filed by the Board, as well as his involvement in a prior administrative proceeding, George Watson, Jr., v. Marlboro Board of Education, et al, 1990 S.L.D. 1663 (Marlboro), that petitioner, although not represented by counsel, was aware of his obligations in the context of administrative proceedings. It is noted in this respect that the Board relied on Marlboro, supra, in the current matter in support of a prior motion to dismiss.

CONCLUSION

I CONCLUDE that the Board's motion to dismiss Watson's petition because of petitioner's nonappearance at the hearing scheduled for October 17, 1995 should be granted and that the petition filed by Watson with the DOE on September 15, 1994, which filing was perfected on November 18, 1994, should be dismissed with prejudice.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent's motion to dismiss be and is hereby GRANTED and that the petition filed by Watson on September 15, 1994 with the DOE, which filing was perfected on November 18, 1994, be and is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EAST HANOVER, MORRIS COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that dismissal of this matter was proper based on petitioner's failure to comply with court rules in that Office of Administrative Law judges are authorized to proceed under the New Jersey Court Rules, according to N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.3. The Commissioner further finds that after receiving proper notice, petitioner's failure to appear for a hearing in the within matter sufficiently warranted dismissal of the instant case.

In making this determination, the Commissioner is mindful that petitioner was afforded a full opportunity to present his allegations at a judicial hearing and refused to comply with court rules so as to avail himself of this opportunity. Thus, the Commissioner finds that the ALJ's determination achieves the aim of "elimination of unjustifiable expense and delay" pursuant to the above-cited regulation governing judicial construction.

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law for the reasons expressed therein, dismissing the within Petition of Appeal with prejudice.

By letter dated March 29, 1996, the counsel to the State Board notified appellant that his request to place the briefing schedule in abeyance pending his receipt and transmittal of transcripts from the proceedings held in the Office of Administrative Law in this matter had been granted. On October 1, 1996, the district Board filed a request to dismiss the appeal on the basis of appellant's failure to provide the State Board with those transcripts or to offer any explanation for the delay. In that appellant has now provided us with copies of the transcripts and filed his appeal brief, we deny the Board's request to dismiss the appeal. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF CLIFTON, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, guardians of E.O., contested Board's determination that E.O. was not domiciled in the District and, therefore, was not entitled to a free public education in the District.

In light of Gunderson, ALJ concluded that E.O. was entitled to a free public education in the District and that the failure of E.O.'s father to submit a sworn statement that he was "not capable of supporting or providing care for the child" (N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1)) would not bar petitioners from obtaining relief.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

Record Closed: December 18, 1995 Decided: December 20, 1995

BEFORE MARIE P. SIMONELLI, A.L.J.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioners contest the determination of respondent, Board of Education of the City of Clifton, Passaic County (the Board) that the child, E.O., is not domiciled in the district and is, therefore, not entitled to a free public education therein.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On September 8, 1995, petitioners submitted an application to the Board to enroll E.O. as a student in the district. On September 13, 1995, the Board disapproved the application on the grounds that E.O. was not domiciled within the district. On September 19, 1995, petitioners filed a Verified Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education on behalf of E.O.

On November 20, 1995, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing as a contested case. A hearing was held on December 14, 1995. The record closed on December 18, 1995.

FACTS

The FACTS in this case are undisputed. I, therefore, FIND as follows:

E.O. is the ten year old son of J.O., the mother, and D.O., the father. J.O. and D.O. are divorced. Pursuant to the divorce papers, D.O. and J.O. have joint custody of E.O. and another son, K.O. The children were living with J.O. in Nevada after the divorce.

J.O. is a drug addict. She was arrested and incarcerated on drug charges. She subsequently was confined to a drug rehabilitation center and is now in a drug rehabilitation program. After J.O.'s incarceration, D.O. took the children to live in Idaho with him and his new wife and her child. D.O. cannot read or write and he is collecting welfare benefits.

In May 1995, D.O. telephoned petitioners and cried to them that he was unable to control his sons' behavior at home and in school. Petitioners agreed to take E.O. into their home. K.O., who has a learning disability, went to live with relatives in Utah. On September 8, 1995, D.O. agreed to give temporary custody of E.O. to petitioners, commencing September 12, 1995. On September 12, 1995, E.O. came to live with petitioners. When he arrived, E.O. weighed fifty-five pounds and his clothes were filthy. A box of clothing that E.O. had brought with him had to be immediately disposed of because they also were filthy. E.O. later told petitioners about his life with D.O. E.O. stated that he was forced to sleep on the floor and he was physically and emotionally abused by D.O.

Since September 12, 1995, D.O. has not supported E.O and has sent no funds for E.O.'s support. D.O. also has not seen E.O. since September 12, 1995 and only has spoken to him by telephone on three occasions. E.O. has expressed to petitioners that he never wants to go back to live with his father and that he will commit suicide if he is forced to do so. Although E.O. wants to someday return to live with his mother, he cannot do so at this time because she is in a drug rehabilitation program for at least a year.

Petitioners have been domiciled in the district for many years. E.O. has continuously lived with them since September 12, 1995. Since he came to live with them, petitioners have been supporting E.O. gratis as if he were their own child. They have been paying for his food, shelter and clothing and they receive no contribution from E.O.'s parents. They also have assumed all personal obligations for E.O. relative to school requirements. They intend to keep and support E.O. gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term. Petitioners submitted a sworn statement to the Board attesting to the above. D.O. has refused to provide a sworn statement.

On November 22, 1995, petitioners filed a Complaint for legal guardianship of E.O. in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Chancery Division, Family Part, Passaic County, bearing Docket No. FD-001622-96. That matter shall be scheduled for a hearing within 90 days. Petitioners intend to obtain legal guardianship of E.O. and to take all necessary legal steps to keep him with them.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, certain proofs must be presented to the Board in order for an individual child to receive a free and public education in the district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1) provides, in pertinent part:

> Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term...and upon filing by the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district.

Petitioners have filed the required sworn statement with the Board and have presented proofs under oath at the OAL hearing as to their compliance with the above statute. They also have submitted proofs that J.O. is in drug rehabilitation and incapable of supporting and caring for E.O. and that D.O. cannot read or write, has refused to provide any sworn statement and is financially incapable of supporting and caring for E.O. The failure of D.O. to submit a sworn statement shall not alone preclude the granting of the relief sought by petitioners. See: Gunderson v. Board of Education of the City of Brigantine, Atlantic County, OAL Docket No. EDU 2000-94 (1994).

Based upon the facts of this case, I CONCLUDE that petitioners have demonstrated by a preponderance of the credible evidence that E.O. is entitled to a free and appropriate education within the Clifton school system. For whatever reason, D.O. does not want to submit a sworn statement. In every other way, however, he has relinquished control of E.O. to petitioners and has relegated E.O.'s everyday care and maintenance to them. D.O. and J.O also are not providing any financial support to E.O. All financial support comes solely from petitioners.

ORDER

It is, therefore, ORDERED that E.O. is entitled to a free and appropriate education within the Clifton school system so long as there is no change in his or petitioners' circumstances that would alter such entitlement.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF CLIFTON, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that E.O. is entitled to a free public education in the Clifton School District. The Commissioner further concurs that the failure of E.O.'s father to submit a sworn statement that he is "not capable of supporting or providing care for the child" (N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1)) will not alone bar petitioners from obtaining the relief they seek herein. (Initial Decision at p. 4) As set forth in Gunderson,

> The intent of the "affidavit student" law is not now, and never has been, to deny an education to a child whose living arrangements may not be contemplated by the statutory scheme when it is clear that the child has no home, or possibility of school attendance, other than with the non-parent district resident and that such resident is for all intents and purposes the sole caretaker and supporter of the child. Neither is its parental affidavit provision meant to act as a bar to a child who, [due] to particular circumstances, cannot produce such an affidavit but provides evidence that the underlying requirements of the law are being met. To hold otherwise harms a party the Legislature never meant to penalize, unreasonably places form over substance and overlooks the substantial State interest in ensuring the education of all its children. (citations omitted) Gunderson v. Board of Education of the City of Brigantine, Atlantic County, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 39, 42.

Under the circumstances presented herein, where the petitioners receive no financial assistance from E.O.'s father, where E.O.'s mother is in drug rehabilitation and incapable of supporting and caring for E.O., and where petitioners have supported E.O. gratis, as if he were their own child, since September 12, 1995, and are taking steps to establish legal guardianship of E.O., the Commissioner is satisfied that the statutory purpose is being effectuated and accepts the above indicia in lieu of the affidavit required by the Board. Gunderson, supra at 42.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein, and the Board is hereby ordered to admit E.O. into its public school system, so long as there is no change in petitioners' circumstances that would alter E.O.'s entitlement.

OF RHONDA A. SREBNICK. :

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, April 26, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Rhonda A. Srebnick, pro se

The decision of the Deputy Commissioner of Education disqualifying petitioner from school employment as a bus driver following a criminal history record review conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1 is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein. Like the Deputy Commissioner, we find that petitioner has failed to affirmatively demonstrate her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. We clarify only that petitioner was convicted of simple assault, rather than "Assault (Bodily Injury)" as the Deputy Commissioner indicates. Moreover, while there is no indication in the record that petitioner's offense involved bodily injury, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1, unlike N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, does not require the use of force resulting in bodily injury in order for a simple assault conviction to be disqualifying.

WHEREAS, the tenure charges were certified to the Commissioner of Education on April 7, 1995; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Montgomery's attorney filed an Answer and Cross-Petition denying said charges on April 13, 1995; and

WHEREAS, in lieu of proceeding with the tenure charges in accordance with the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, the District and Ms. Montgomery desire to resolve the matter without resort to full litigation, which would require substantial expense of the time and resources of both parties; and

WHEREAS, the public interest would best be served by resolving the present controversy:

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises of the parties and in exchange for the consideration more particularly noted below, it is hereby agreed:

1. The District agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, the tenure charges of unbecoming conduct bearing Agency Docket No. 84-4/95 and OAL Docket No. EDU 4235-95N.

2. Ms. Montgomery agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, all claims asserted in her Answer and Cross-Petition to the tenure charges, filed for determination under the above mentioned docket numbers, including the appeal of the withholding of her salary increment for the 1995-1996 school year.

3. Ms. Montgomery agrees to forfeit the 120 days' pay withheld as a result of her suspension without pay from the date of certification of the tenure charges, April 7, 1995, through August 6, 1995.

4. The District and Ms. Montgomery agree that the withdrawal of the tenure charges and Cross-Petition, and Ms. Montgomery's acceptance of the 120 days' suspension and increment withholding, will serve as full and final settlement of the tenure matter. The District will return Ms. Montgomery to active employment status.

5. The parties further agree that neither party will initiate or respond to any media requests for information or comment about any facts relevant to this matter.

6. The District and Ms. Montgomery acknowledge that the terms of this Agreement are contingent upon the review and approval of both the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. In the event that either agency disapproves of the terms of the settlement, this Agreement shall be null and void and the parties shall return to the same positions which they held prior to this settlement.

7. The parties recognize that each has been represented by legal counsel of her or its own choosing and that each signs this Agreement as their own voluntary act and deed, and that they fully understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein.

8. This Agreement shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

9. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended, modified or revoked except by an instrument executed in writing by the parties.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals the date and year aforesaid.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF DIANE MONTGOMERY, :
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT : OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY. :

DECISION

The record and initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

After a careful and independent review of the full record of this matter and the terms of the proposed settlement agreement, the Commissioner is compelled to reject such agreement as it is currently structured as he cannot be satisfied by the present record that the proposed settlement meets the Cardonick standard for resolution of tenure matters (In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, affirmed State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846).

It is well established that, having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, the Board may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges can no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest ot to pursue them. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenneth S. Smith, School District of e City of Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner March 22, 1982, decision on remand June 16, 1983, affirmed with modification State Board of Education November 2, 1983, affirmed Superior Court January 30, 1986. The present record contains little explanation except that the settlement was reached in order to hold down litigation costs. Further, in this case there is no indication that the teacher was advised of the Commissioner's duty pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of certificate. Disclosure should be part of this agreement. Cardonick,supra.

The Commissioner notes that his determination in this regard was influenced by the sensitive nature of the charges, i.e., allegations that petitioner made racially inflammatory remarks. While the Commissioner does not preclude the possibility of settlement in this matter, he stresses that in order for him to meet his own obligation to the school children of this State, he must be assured that any settlement is consistent with appropriate standards for setting aside of tenure matters as expressed in Cardonick, supra.

Accordingly, the proposed settlement is rejected for the reasons expressed herein. The Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further settlement negotiations consistent with the concerns herein expressed. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission, the matter shall proceed to a plenary hearing on the merits.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: August 27, 1996 Decided: August 29, 1996

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on April 26, 1995 as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties agreed to settle the matter and prepared the attached Settlement Agreement.

Having reviewed the record and the settlement terms, I FIND:

1. The parties have agreed to the settle the matter as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the settlement be approved. It is further ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that the proceedings in this matter be concluded.

Petitioner,	:	SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT
v.	:
DIANE MONTGOMERY,	:
Respondent.	:

This agreement is made this 26th day of August, 1996, by and between the State Operated School District of Jersey City, New Jersey 07305, hereinafter referred to as the "District,"

AND

Diane Montgomery, whose home address is 29 East 46th Street, Bayonne, New Jersey 07002, hereinafter referred to as "Ms. Montgomery."

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, Ms. Montgomery has been employed by the District since 1983, and

WHEREAS, Ms. Montgomery's employment continued in said district when it became the State-Operated School District of Jersey City on October 4, 1989; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Montgomery was alleged to have made a comment of a racially insensitive nature, resulting in the certification of tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against Ms. Montgomery by Frank M. Sinatra, Interim State District Superintendent, on March 20, 1995; and

WHEREAS, the tenure charges were certified to the Commissioner of Education on April 7, 1995; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Montgomery's attorney filed an Answer and Cross-Petition denying said charges on April 13, 1995; and

WHEREAS, in lieu of proceeding with the tenure charges in accordance with the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, the District and Ms. Montgomery desire to resolve the matter without resort to full litigation; and

WHEREAS, the public interest would best be served by resolving the present controversy; in that the witnesses to the alleged incident were seniors at the time of the occurrence, and have since graduated, and the school district perceives some difficulty in securing their presence for hearing;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises of the parties and in exchange for the consideration more particularly noted below, it is hereby agreed:

1. The District agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, the tenure charges of unbecoming conduct bearing Agency Docket No. 84-4/95 and OAL Docket No. EDU 4235-95N.

2. Ms. Montgomery agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, all claims asserted in her Answer and Cross-Petition to the tenure charges, filed for determination under the above mentioned docket numbers, including the appeal of the withholding of her salary increment for the 1995-1996 school year.

3. Ms. Montgomery agrees to forfeit the 120 days' pay withheld as a result of her suspension without pay from date of certification of the tenure charges, April 7, 1995, through August 6, 1995.

4. Ms. Montgomery neither admits nor denies the allegation, but out of concern and interest to resolve the situation, Ms. Montgomery agrees to attend a workshop concerning the teaching of children with Multiple Intelligences, including a component on sensitivity in teaching students of diverse cultures, to be held as part of the District's Teacher's Academy in late August or September 1996.

5. The District and Ms. Montgomery agree that the withdrawal of the tenure charges and Cross-Petition, and Ms. Montgomery's acceptance of the 120 days' suspension and increment withholding, and Ms. Montgomery's attendance at the aforementioned workshop, will serve as full and final settlement of the tenure matter. The District will return Ms. Montgomery to active employment status.

6. The parties further agree that neither party will initiate or respond to any media requests for information or comment about any facts relevant to this matter.

7. Pursuant to In re Cardonick, Commissioner's Decision April 7, 1982 aff'd State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846, Ms. Montgomery has been advised of the Commissioner's duty pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of certificate.

8. The District and Ms. Montgomery acknowledge that the terms of this Agreement are contingent upon the review and approval of both the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. In the event that either agency

BEFORE ROBERT S. MILLER, ALJ:

On July 7, 1995 the above-entitled matter was submitted to the Office of Administrative Law, at the request of the petitioner, challenging the Edison Township Board of Education's determination prohibiting a minor from graduating as arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. A telephone prehearing conference was scheduled on October 16, 1995. Petitioner either failed or refused to make herself available, or thereafter to explain her failure or refusal to participate. Accordingly, I requested respondent's attorney to move to dismiss this matter for lack of prosecution and mootness.

Respondent's motion to dismiss has not been opposed by petitioner. Good cause appearing, I hereby dismiss with prejudice the petition of appeal filed in this matter.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. Respondent.	:

WHEREAS, the above-captioned Petition of Appeal was filed on July 29, 1992, before the Commissioner of Education by Petitioner, a tenured Principal, after he was denied appointment to a vacant principalship position in the Atlantic City School District; and

WHEREAS, on September 13, 1994, in contemplation of a settlement and dismissal of this matter, Respondent appointed Petitioner as principal of Chelsea Junior High School; and

WHEREAS, Petitioner and Respondent have agreed to a settlement of this Petition of Appeal, which they believe is in the best interests of all concerned parties;

NOW THEREFORE, it is hereby agreed and stipulated that the entire controversy and dispute of all matters concerning the above-captioned Petition of Appeal before the Commissioner of Education shall be SETTLED and RESOLVED in the following manner:

1. Petitioner shall continue his employment as principal of the Chelsea Junior High School during good behavior and shall promptly and faithfully comply with and respond to all directives issued by the Atlantic City Board of Education, the Commissioner of Education, and the Superintendent of Schools for the Atlantic City School District.

2. Petitioner shall remain employed with the Respondent as principal of the Chelsea Junior High School until September 13, 1996, as per his contract (which includes provisions for vacation and pay until September 13, 1996), subject to the Petitioner's said good behavior and compliance with the directives set forth in Paragraph 1,

3. The parties agree that on the said date of September 13, 1996, Petitioner shall have no continuing duty and/or obligation to perform under the contract. Further, Respondent shall have no continuing duty and/or obligation to employ the Petitioner beyond September 13, 1996.

4. The parties agree that Petitioner shall have no further entitlement or claim to his current position, or any other position in the Atlantic City School District by virtue of tenure, seniority, or otherwise, after September 13, 1996.

5. The parties further agree that as of the date of the execution of this agreement, Petitioner shall submit a letter of resignation to the Superintendent of Schools and the Atlantic City Board of Education, effective September 13, 1996 and contingent upon the Commissioners approval of this Settlement Agreement.

6. The parties further agree that in exchange for Petitioner's letter of resignation as referenced in Paragraph 5, Respondent shall pay Petitioner a sum of one-half (1/2) of what would have been Petitioner's salary for the 1996-1997 school term, a sum which the parties agree amounts to $43,995.00. The sum shall be paid to Petitioner on or before April 1, 1996.

7. It is further agreed that the Petitioner's failure to submit said letter of resignation shall in no way imply or infer the Petitioner's entitlement to continue employment beyond said date of September 13, 1996.

8. The parties further agree that neither party shall have any legal claims against the other for compensation for services rendered pursuant to this litigation and settlement and that each party hereto shall personally bear the cost of its own legal fees, court costs, and expenses.

9. The parties further agree that this settlement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties and that no other terms not herein embodied shall be permitted to be admitted in any court of law or administrative proceeding to refute the express terms recited herein.

10. The parties further agree that this settlement is subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Education if the Commissioner rejects this settlement the matter will be referred to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings. An approval by the Commissioner is equivalent to adjudication on the merits and an informal decision.

11. The parties further agree and stipulate to the dismissal of the above-captioned petition with prejudice, subject to the above terms.

The record and initial decision incorporating a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

The Commissioner approves the terms of the settlement with the exclusion of specified language set forth in Paragraph 10 which states, "An approval by the Commissioner [of this settlement] is equivalent to adjudication on the merits and an informal decision." With this modification, the Commissioner adopts the settlement as the final decision in this matter. The Commissioner specifically excludes the above-stated language in Paragraph 10 because the Commissioner's acceptance of a settlement in no way equates to any adjudication on the merits; rather, it merely indicates that the parties have resolved their differences in a manner not inconsistent with law and sound educational policy. Further, there is no provision in law for the Commissioner to render an "informal" decision in a controverted matter.

Accordingly, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement as herein modified.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, March 15, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Rose M. Morgan, pro se

On March 15, 1996, the Deputy Commissioner of Education affirmed the determination of the Office of Criminal History Review disqualifying Rose M. Morgan (hereinafter "appellant") from school employment as a substitute teacher following a criminal history record review conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.[1] The Deputy Commissioner determined that appellant had failed to affirmatively demonstrate her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.

On May 20, 1996, appellant, acting pro se, filed a notice of appeal to the State Board of Education. By letter dated May 22 from the Counsel to the State Board, appellant was advised that her appeal had been due within 30 days of the filing date of the Commissioner's decision, and that this matter was being referred to our Legal Such authority expressly includes assignment by the Commissioner of the "hearing and determination of controversies and disputes which may arise under the school laws...." N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34.

Committee for consideration of the effect of her failure to file timely notice. Appellant was given until June 5 to file an affidavit setting forth the circumstances of her late filing.

In response thereto, appellant filed a letter on June 4, in which she stated:

> In receipt of your letter dated May 22, 1996. I must begin this letter with an apology to you. This position is very important to me and that's why I'm embrassed [sic] to have forgotten the deadline of appeal. No disrespect to you or the board. Sir could you please forgive me this time and I promise this will never happen again. Thanking you in advance.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, appeals to the State Board must be taken "within 30 days after the decision appealed from is filed." The State Board may not grant extensions to enlarge the time specified for appeal. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5(a). In contrast to the period for filing petitions to the Commissioner of Education, see N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2; N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the time limit within which an appeal must be taken to the State Board is statutory, and, given the jurisdictional nature of the statutory time limit, the State Board lacks the authority to extend it. Mount Pleasant-Blythedale Union Free School District v. New Jersey Department of Education, Docket #A-2180-89T1 (App. Div. 1990), slip op. at 5.

We conclude that the statutory filing requirement with which appellant failed to comply is of such significance that we dismiss the appeal. In Yorke v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1988, aff'd, Docket #A-5912-87T1 (App. Div. 1989), the Court upheld the dismissal of an appeal by the State Board where it found that the notice of appeal had been filed one day late by appellant's counsel, who alleged that he had misread or misunderstood the applicable regulations. The Court added that even if the statute could be construed to permit enlargement of the time for filing an appeal, the appellant therein had failed to establish good cause.

In this case, the Deputy Commissioner's decision was rendered on March 15, 1996 and mailed to appellant on that date. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4, the decision appealed from was deemed filed on March 18, 1996, three days after it was mailed. Therefore, as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, see N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(a), as computed under N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(b), appellant was required to file her notice of appeal to the State Board on or before April 17, 1996. Appellant's notice of appeal was dated May 20,1996 and filed on that date, more than a month after the filing deadline.

Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 can be construed to provide us with the authority to enlarge the time limit for filing an appeal, we find no substantive basis to warrant doing so in this particular instance. While we are mindful of appellant's pro se status, the fact that she forgot the deadline for filing her appeal to the State Board does not excuse her compliance with the statutory requirement.

Accordingly, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to file notice thereof within the statutory time limit as computed under the applicable regulations.

Re: Weber, George vs. Board of Education of the Borough of Wood-Ridge et als

Dear Judge Gerson:

I have conferred with Mark Janeczko, Esquire, attorney for Respondents in the above-captioned matter, relative to the hearing returnable December 11, 1995 before your Honor.

Your Honor's decision of March 30, 1995 clearly indicates that the within matter has been settled. Nevertheless, to supplement the record in this matter in accordance with the Commissioner's decision of May 15, 1995, I am enclosing herewith for filing the Stipulation of Settlement which has heretofore been filed in the Superior Court, Chancery Division.

I should also confirm my telephone advice to your Honor that the matters in dispute are now moot in as much as the settlement has been consummated, and the acts required to be done by the parties have been done.

Accordingly, I am respectfully requesting that the enclosed be appended to the record in this matter and will consent to your Honor's disposing of the matter on the papers.

Yours very respectfully,

Alan S. Goldberger

DOCKET NO. C-351-94E

CIVIL ACTION

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The parties having amicably adjusted all matters in dispute with respect to the plaintiff's Complaint and all parties intending to be legally bound hereunder, they agree and stipulate as follows:

1. This settlement agreement shall not constitute, and shall not be construed as an admission by any of the defendants of liability or of the validity of any claim made by the plaintiff. This settlement agreement is solely entered into by the parties as an expeditious and businesslike resolution of the matters in difference between the parties. Specifically, the defendants do not by the execution of this Stipulation and by the fulfillment of its terms, admit that any claim as alleged in the Complaint was true. The parties defendant believe that the actions of the Board of Education and its agents, servants and employees as alleged in the Complaint were in good faith and without malice. The plaintiff believes that his actions as alleged in the Complaint were in good faith and without malice.

2. Defendant, Wood-Ridge Board of Education, agrees to cause the plaintiff to be paid the sum of $4,438.00.

3. Defendant, Wood-Ridge Board of Education, agrees to cause the plaintiff to be appointed to the position of assistant baseball coach for the Spring 1995 semester at the previously negotiated stipend of $2,773.00 for the plaintiff's appropriate participation as assistant baseball coach.

4. This Stipulation shall also act as a release by the plaintiff running to each and every defendant; and by each and every defendant running to the plaintiff. The dismissal of the subject Complaint with prejudice releases any and all claims which any party may have against any other party which were raised or could have been raised in the within matter.

5. In consideration of the settlement of this matter and the mutual promises made in this Stipulation of Settlement, plaintiff agrees to relinquish any and all tenure rights to position of Athletic Director or Acting Athletic Director as such positions were and are promulgated by the Wood-Ridge Board of Education. Plaintiff acknowledges that any tenure and all seniority rights with regard the positions of Athletic Director or Acting Athletic Director are terminated effective immediately. Plaintiff further agrees not to submit an application for such positions in the event they should become vacant in the future.

6. Plaintiff agrees to simultaneously with the filing of this Stipulation of Settlement cause to be filed with the Office of Administrative Law, a Stipulation of Dismissal With Prejudice regarding the action filed by the plaintiff as petitioner therein bearing Docket No. EDUOA 10603-94N.

7. The parties agree that, except as necessary to effectuate the terms of the settlement of this matter, they will not at any time talk about, write about or otherwise publicize the terms or existence of this Stipulation of Settlement or any facts concerning its negotiation, execution or implementation.

8. Each party agrees to be responsible for its own attorney fees incurred in this matter.

9. All parties executing this instrument represent that they have full authority to execute this Stipulation of Settlement and consummate all of the transaction hereby contemplated.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties or their respective attorneys for such party and on behalf of each party have signed this Stipulation of Settlement.

N.O. ON BEHALF OF HER MINOR CHILD, O.O.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BRIDGEWATER-RARITAN SCHOOL DISTRICT,

Respondent.

N.O., petitioner, pro se

Daniel C. Soriano, Jr., Esq., for respondent (Soriano & Soriano, attorneys)

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

N.O. (petitioner) seeks review of the Bridgewater-Raritan Board of Education (respondent) decision that her son be denied attendance under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 and -12.1.

The matter was opened on January 16, 1996, when the petitioner filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education challenging the Board's determination. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. The transmission included a request, treated as a motion, for emergent relief.

The motion for emergent relief was argued on January 29, 1996, at the Office of Administrative Law in Trenton.

N.O. asserts that she, her husband and their two children resided at 10 Hilltop Road until evicted in December 1994 for being two months late in payment of the $2,500 per month rental. The lease, however, was in her mother's and brother's names, not hers and her husband's. She represents she and her husband were represented by an attorney and that she still is trying to reach an understanding with the owner of the property. N.O. also asserts there was a lease-purchase agreement, she and her husband have approximately $75,000 invested in the house and the lease-purchase agreement is not memorialized in the lease document.

N.O. is employed as a medical assistant. Her husband is self-employed in the antique restoration business he operates from a store for which he pays $600 per month in rent.

N.O. also represents that she and her family have lived with relatives for varying amounts of time since being put out of their rented home. December 1994-February 1995 were spent with a sister in Belleville, Essex County; from early February-March with a sister in Springfield, Union County; then a period of at least two months with a brother in South Brunswick, Middlesex County, and most recently the family stayed in Belleville.

N.O. sent many letters to various officials, but apparently not until her son was ordered by the Board to cease attending the Crim Primary School. She did not respond to the Board's offer of a hearing, exhibit R-2, extended on November 29, 1995. The first letter in the record from N.O. is addressed to the Commissioner and is stamped received in his office on January 10, 1996. Exhibit R-6.

The Board argues it has acted lawfully in all respects in this case. It became apparent approximately a year ago that O.O. was not living in the district and was being dropped off each school day at the Crim School. The district attendance officer investigated and determined that the parents were not residing at the Hilltop Road address, but were living with various relatives outside of the district. The attendance officer believed both parents were gainfully employed. For some time, the parents represented to the district that they were going to resume residence on Hilltop Road. At some point, N.O. alleged the family was homeless.

The district referred the questions of homelessness and what its responsibilities would be if the family were in fact homeless to the County Superintendent of Schools. In his reply, the County Superintendent states that neither the family nor the child meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:3-8.3, a part of the regulations carrying out the statutory requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 and -12.1. Exhibit R-1. The regulation states:

> Determination of homelessness
> (a) A child or youth shall be considered homeless for purposes of this program if he or she resides in any of the following:
>
> 1. A supervised publicly or privately operated shelter designed to provide temporary living accommodations, including:
>
> i. Welfare hotels;
>
> ii. Congregate shelters;
>
> iii. Transitional housing for families; and
>
> iv. Transitional housing for the mentally ill;
>
> 2. An institution that provides a temporary residence for individuals intended to be institutionalized; or
>
> 3. A public or private place not designed for or ordinarily used as a regular sleeping accommodation for human beings.
>
> (b) Additionally, a child or youth shall be considered homeless if he or she is:
>
> 1. Living with a parent in a domestic violence shelter;
>
> 2. A runaway living in a shelter;
>
> 3. A school-aged mother residing in a home for adolescent mothers;
>
> 4. Sick or abandoned and residing in a hospital and would otherwise be released if he or she had a permanent residence;
>
> 5. Abandoned and therefore has no permanent residence;
>
> 6. The child of a homeless family which is out of necessity living with relatives or friends; or
> 7. The child of a migrant family which lacks adequate housing.

> (c) When a dispute occurs regarding the determination of homelessness, the involved districts shall immediately notify the county superintendent of schools, who shall decide the status of the child within 48 hours.

The Board conferred with counsel upon receipt of the County Superintendent's opinion and decided to afford N.O. a hearing before the Board. The district superintendent wrote to N.O. at a post office box that N.O. used and continues to use in Bridgewater, exhibit R-2, advising of the county superintendent's conclusion, enclosing of copy of the County superintendent's letter and advising of N.O.'s opportunity for a hearing if she notified the superintendent in writing by December 6 that she requested a hearing.

When a week passed after December 6 without reply, the superintendent again wrote to N.O. and advised her that the Board ordered on December 12 the removal of O.O. from the Crim School. The letter also advised that the Board would stay its order for 21 days, the period in which N.O. could file an appeal with the Commissioner of Education. Exhibit R-3.

On January 10, 1996, the Commissioner received a letter from N.O. Exhibit R-6. The letter states N.O. received a letter (from the superintendent) on December 22, 1995 concerning a meeting held (by the Board) without her presence and at which the Board decided against her son's education. N.O. requests a hearing. She does not mention the first letter sent by the superintendent (R-2).

The Bureau of Controversies and Disputes in the Department of Education decided a letter it received from N.O. on January 16, 1996, Exhibit R-7, constituted a petition of appeal. The Board's counsel wrote to the Bureau on January 17, 1996 objecting to acceptance of the petition because it was time barred by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b.(2). Exhibit R-8. The pertinent language in the statute is:

> (2) If the superintendent or administrative principal of a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district and the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the > person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. The parent or guardian shall be entitled to a hearing before the board and if in the judgment of the board the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. The board of education shall, at the time of its decision, notify the parent or guardian in writing of his right to contest the decision within 21 days. No child shall be removed from school during the 21-day period in which the parent may contest the board's decision or during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner.

On the same day, the Bureau responded, Exhibit R-4. Among other things, the letter stated that N.O. would be given the opportunity to show that her petition was timely. The letter also states:

> In the alternative, if petitioner concedes that her appeal was, in fact, filed beyond the 21-day time period which would trigger operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, she may apply for an order granting her son's admittance to school during the pendency of residency proceedings through submission to the Commissioner of a Motion Requesting Emergent Relief in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5. Pursuant to this section, the Commissioner may issue a decision on emergent relief only upon filing of this motion, accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the standard to be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). This means that the petitioner must demonstrate that:
> 1. Irreparable harm will be experienced if the relief is not granted;
> 2. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the claims;
> 3. The petitioner will suffer greater harm than the Board of Education if the relief is not granted; and > 4. Public interest compels the granting of emergent relief.

> In view of the need for prompt resolution of petitioner's son's status during the pending appeal, we ask that petitioner submit the filings requested within five (5) days of receipt of this letter and serve them upon the Board of Education or its attorney, Mr. Soriano. The Board may then file any reply submissions it may wish to make within three (3) days of receipt of petitioner's submission.

On January 23, 1996, N.O. filed copies of a series of letters, most of which are discussed above, and copies of certified mail receipts. N.O. concedes she has sent the same letter with different inside addresses, not copies, to more than one person on several occasions. No letter memorandum or brief was filed. The Board, with nothing to respond to, nevertheless presented a three-page memorandum at hearing. The Board also moved for summary decision at the conclusion of argument.

N.O. has conceded that she, her husband and their two children spend varying amounts of time, but usually of two or three months' duration, with relatives in communities other than Bridgewater or Raritan. It is admirable that such a sense of family and assistance to family exists. Yet it is precisely this candid admission that undercuts her position.

The applicable statutes and implementing regulations have the salutary goal of maintaining the educations of homeless children and, quite properly, they define what constitutes homelessness. I FIND the subject pupil meets no statutory or regulatory criterion regarding homelessness. If it were possible for the family to stay in one place for more than one to three months, domicile could be established and O.O. could properly be admitted to attendance, whether as an affidavit pupil or a "regular" pupil. Even if the caring relatives were willing to provide the affidavits, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, -2, the results would be pernicious. The child could not approach a semblance of normal, continuous education.

The parent appears to see herself and her child as victims of animosity and, perhaps, prejudice. As to the child, I agree he is a victim of circumstances he did not make. As to the parent, I FIND nothing in the record to support a finding of less than evenhanded treatment. If the circumstances satisfied any statutory or regulatory criterion, there would be no hesitation to place the pupil. That is, after all, the goal of the statutes, the regulations and sound public policy.

In consideration of the entire record, I CONCLUDE that emergent relief is inappropriate here. The four principles actually expressed in Crowe v. DeGioia, are:

1. emergent relief should not issue except when necessary to prevent irreparable harm;

2. emergent relief should be withheld when the legal right underlying the claim is unsettled;

3. emergent relief should not issue where all material facts are controverted; that is, the pleader must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits; and

4. in considering the grant, or not, of emergent relief, the relative hardships to the parties must be weighed.

90 N.J. 132-134.

Assuming without deciding that N.O. could prevail on the first, second and fourth prongs of the test, there is no way she can prevail on the third.

Accordingly, the request for emergent relief is DENIED. It is so ORDERED.

This leaves two issues unanswered. By far the more important is the education of O.O. So long as his parents chose to move him from place to place and school district to school district, their only option is a tuition arrangement, either with a public school district or with a nonpublic school. Inasmuch as the Commissioner cannot require this arrangement and he cannot exert any control over the parents' movements, this judge recommends that the Commissioner send a copy of his order in this matter to the Division of Youth and Family Services, Department of Human Services.

As to the Board's motion for summary decision, that is governed by Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995). The test is whether there exists a genuine issue with respect to a challenged material fact that requires the judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials in the record, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party in consideration of the applicable evidentiary standard (here, a simple preponderance), are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged dispute in favor of the non-moving party. This assessment of the evidence is to be conducted in the same manner as that required under Rule 4:37-2(b). In other words, the Court has applied the same evidentiary standard of proof to the summary judgment motion as applies in a hearing on the merits in deciding whether genuine issues of material fact exist.

Before applying this, however, fundamental fairness requires that the non-moving party, N.O., have an opportunity to argue against the Board's motion in light of the new test and the newness of the test. It is noted that the petitioner is pro se and that Brill is not yet in a bound volume of New Jersey Reports. Although a pro se takes on all the burdens and responsibilities of an attorney, it would be affront basic notions of fairness to expect her to be aware of ruling so fresh.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that N.O. submit in writing her arguments as to why summary judgment should not be granted to the Board not later than 10 days following receipt of this order from the Commissioner of Education. If she does not so respond, the judge will grant the motion, ending the case. If N.O. does respond, the Board may file and serve further papers responding to any matter raised by N.O. not later than five days after receiving N.O.'s papers.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

PETITIONER,	:
V.
	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BRIDGEWATER-RARITAN SCHOOL DISTRICT, SOMERSET COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT.

N.O., petitioner, pro se

Daniel C. Soriano, Jr., Esq. for respondent (Soriano & Soriano, attorneys)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal contesting the Board's decision to exclude O.O. from attendance in the Bridgewater-Raritan School District on the basis of his failure to meet the residency requirements set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Counsel for the Board responded with a written objection to said Petition of Appeal, asserting that the petition was untimely filed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, and accordingly, O.O. was not entitled to attend school in the District during the pendency of the proceedings before the Commissioner. Petitioner thereafter filed what is deemed to be a Motion for Emergent Relief before the Commissioner, seeking that O.O. be immediately reinstated as a full-time pupil in the District, pending a final determination as to petitioner's claim that O.O. was improperly removed from school on the basis of residency.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner finds and determines that it is unnecessary for him to reach to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) determination on Emergent Relief, inasmuch as the pupil, O.O., is hereby deemed entitled to attend school during the pendency of the proceedings by operation of law. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

Upon review of the record, and in light of testimony, arguments and evidence adduced at the hearing on emergent relief, the Commissioner finds that petitioner was not dilatory in her attempt to appeal the residency determination made by the Board. Specifically, petitioner asserts that she did not receive notice of the Board's residency decision until December 22, 1995. (Order, page 4)[1] On January 11, 1996, petitioner filed with the Commissioner of Education a letter, which, while not constituting a perfected Petition of Appeal, evidences her clear intent to appeal the Board's determination. Thus, in the interest of justice to a pro se petitioner, and in accordance with the Commissioner's authority under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15 to relax the technical requirements governing the filing of petitions, petitioner's submission of January 11, 1996 is deemed to constitute a Petition of Appeal before the Commissioner of Education. Inasmuch as petitioner asserts she first received notice of the Board's decision on December 22, 1995, the petition was, therefore, timely filed in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, and petitioner's son is entitled, by operation of law, to attend school in the Board's District during the pendency of the proceedings on the merits of this case.

Further, with respect to the ALJ's determinations and order, including his recommendation that this matter be brought to the attention of the Division of Youth and Family Services (Order, at p. 8) and his order that petitioner submit arguments as to the granting of [1] Petitioner did not attend the Board hearing on December 6, 1995. The letter informing petitioner of the Board's decision to remove her son from the District is dated December 13, 1995. The letter indicates that the Board would stay its decision to remove her son from school for 21 days, until January 2, 1996, allowing her time to appeal its decision to the Commissioner of Education.

summary judgment (Id.), are found to be of no force and effect in that they reach the merits of this case which were not before the ALJ on a Motion for Emergent Relief. Moreover, said determinations and orders shall not be determinative in the subsequent hearing on the merits.

Finally, the Commissioner determines that the ALJ's specific finding that O.O. meets no statutory or regulatory criterion regarding homelessness (Id. at p. 6) is misplaced in an order on emergent relief, and therefore, as stated supra, is without force and effect. The Commissioner, in remanding this matter to the Office of Administrate Law for a hearing on the merits, directs that the ALJ reevaluate petitioner's circumstances under the regulations governing homeless students, found at N.J.A.C. 6:3-8.3, particularly 6:3-8.3(b)6, which states that a child shall be considered homeless if he is the child of a homeless family which is out of necessity living with relatives or friends. Additionally, in remanding this matter to be heard on its merits, the Commissioner directs that further argument and fact-finding be made in light of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, which demands an analysis of domicile, rather than residency, as well as the pertinent case law. (See Fort Lee Board of Education v. Kintos, decided by the Commissioner 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 96 and 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 837, affirmed by the State Board 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 316, affirmed with modification by the Appellate Division October 13, 1995, A-4944-93.)

Accordingly, the Commissioner directs that O.O. be readmitted forthwith to the Board's public school system. The Commissioner further directs that this matter proceed at the Office of Administrative Law for an expedited hearing on its merits, in accordance with the parameters set forth above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE DISQUALIFI- : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
CATION FROM SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT : DECISION OF CHRISTOPHER J. FIORE. :

Decided by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, May 4, 1995

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Christopher J. Fiore, pro se

On May 4, 1995, the Deputy Commissioner of Education upheld the determination of the Office of Criminal History Review disqualifying Christopher J. Fiore (hereinafter "appellant") from school employment as a substitute teacher following a criminal history record review conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 which revealed two convictions for possession of marijuana. The Deputy Commissioner determined that appellant had failed to affirmatively demonstrate his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.[1]

On June 13, 1996, appellant, acting pro se, filed a notice of appeal and arguments in support of his appeal with the State Board of Education. By letter dated July 1, 1996 from the Counsel to the State Board, appellant was advised that his appeal

[1] We note that N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 authorizes the Commissioner to "designate an assistant commissioner as deputy commissioner with full power to act in his place and stead during any absence or inability of the commissioner and at such other times as the commissioner may designate." Such authority expressly includes assignment by the Commissioner of the "hearing and determination of controversies and disputes which may arise under the school laws...." N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34.

had been due within 30 days of the filing date of the Deputy Commissioner's decision, and that this matter was being referred to our Legal Committee for consideration of the effect of his failure to file timely notice. Appellant was given until July 10 to submit a written explanation of the reasons for his late filing. Appellant did not respond to that letter.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, appeals to the State Board must be taken "within 30 days after the decision appealed from is filed." The State Board may not grant extensions to enlarge the time specified for appeal. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5(a). In contrast to the period for filing petitions to the Commissioner of Education, see N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2; N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the time limit within which an appeal must be taken to the State Board is statutory, and, given the jurisdictional nature of the statutory time limit, the State Board lacks the authority to extend it. Mount Pleasant-Blythedale Union Free School District v. New Jersey Department of Education, Docket #A-2180-89T1 (App. Div. 1990), slip op. at 5.

We conclude that the statutory filing requirement with which appellant failed to comply is of such significance that we dismiss the appeal. In Yorke v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1988, aff'd, Docket #A-5912-87T1 (App. Div. 1989), the Court upheld the dismissal of an appeal by the State Board where it found that the notice of appeal had been filed one day late by appellant's counsel, who alleged that he had misread or misunderstood the applicable regulations. The Court added that even if the statute could be construed to permit enlargement of the time for filing an appeal, the appellant therein had failed to establish good cause.

In this case, the Deputy Commissioner's decision was rendered on May 4, 1995 and mailed to the appellant on that date. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4, the decision appealed from was deemed filed on May 7, 1995, three days after it was mailed. Therefore, as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, see N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(a), as computed under N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(b), appellant was required to file his notice of appeal to the State Board on or before June 6, 1995. Appellant's appeal, however, was not filed until June 13, 1996, more than a year after the filing deadline.[2]

Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 can be construed to provide us with the authority to enlarge the time limit for filing an appeal, we find no substantive basis to warrant doing so in this particular instance. In his papers filed with the State Board on June 13, 1996 in support of his appeal, appellant indicated, inter alia, that:

> On May 4, 1995, I received a letter from [the Deputy Commissioner] denying my appeal of disqualification from school employment. I was told that I could appeal that decision by submitting all of my materials to your office, which I did promptly. A few weeks later I called the office to see if a decision had been made, and was told that I would have to wait for a reply. When I called your office a few weeks ago I was told that the materials I had submitted for an appeal had never reached your office.

While we are mindful of appellant's pro se status, he has provided nothing to support his contention that he had submitted an appeal to the State Board "promptly" after receiving the Deputy Commissioner's decision in May 1995. Nor does the record in this matter reflect any such filing.

[2] Although appellant's notice of appeal was not dated, the envelope was postmarked on June 13, 1996.

Accordingly, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to file notice thereof within the statutory time limit as computed under the applicable regulations.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EDISON, MIDDLESEX COUNTY, AND DR. WILLIAM SURIANO, RALPH BAYARD, JOHN TUDOR, DAVID DICKINSON, NANCI GULYA AND PHILIP LABASI, INDIVIDUALLY AND IN THEIR OFFICIAL CAPACITIES, RESPONDENTS.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

Petitioning Board member alleged respondents violated the Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA) in that a majority of Board members continued to discuss Board business after a Board meeting was formally adjourned and some Board members had left the building.

In light of findings of fact and testimonial evidence presented at hearing, the ALJ concluded that the record was completely barren of any support for the allegation that any Board business was improperly discussed after the adjournment of the Board meeting in question. Thus, there was no violation of OPMA. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

Record Closed: December 4, 1995 Decided: December 14, 1995

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

This matter concerns an Open Public Meetings Act complaint against the Edison Township Board of Education by one of its members. This matter was transferred from the Superior Court of New Jersey to the Commissioner of Education by order of the Honorable Richard S. Rebeck, J.S.C., December 5, 1994.

The Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. After notice, a prehearing conference was held by telephone on April 6, 1995. Among other things, it was settled that the issue to be resolved was whether a violation of the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 through -21, by the Edison Board of Education occurred, and, if so, what the appropriate relief would be. There were no discovery problems. The matter was scheduled for hearing on July 113, 1995. After two adjournments for good cause, the matter was heard on November 9, 1995, in the Perth Amboy Municipal Building. I kept the record open until December 4, 1995 to allow the parties an opportunity to resolve the matter amicably. On December 4, 1995, I received a letter from petitioner's counsel indicating that the matter was not susceptible of settlement.

STIPULATED FACTS

Counsel submit the following joint stipulation of facts:

1. Respondent Edison Township Board of Education ("Board") is a public body which operates the public schools of Edison Township in accordance with Title 18A of New Jersey statutes.

2. At all relevant times, Respondents Dr. William W. Suriano, Ralph Bayard, John Tudor, David Dickinson, Nancy Gulya, and Philip Labasi were elected members of the Edison Board of Education.

3. At all relevant times, Petitioner Gwynne Kesselman was an elected member of the Board.

4. At all relevant times, Joseph LaCorte and Barry Miller were also elected members of the Board not parties to this action.

5. On July 21, 1994, all of the Board Members were in attendance, except Barry Miller, and convened a special public meeting ("July 21, 1994 Meeting") for the purpose of considering candidates for the position of School Superintendent.

6. Notice of the July 21, 1994 Meeting was properly provided in accordance with the requirements of the New Jersey Open Public Meetings Act ("O.P.M.A."), N.J.S.A. 10:4-6, et seq.

7. The July 21, 1994 Meeting was convened in the office of the Superintendent of Schools. There were no members of the public in attendance.

8. Minutes of the July 21, 1994 Meeting were taken and maintained by Daniel Machaud, Secretary of the Edison Board.

9. The July 21, 1994 Meeting Of the Board was called to order at 6:00 p.m. and the Board adjourned into executive session at 6:05 p.m.

10. The executive session of the July 21, 1994 Meeting was adjourned at 11:45 p.m.

11. At the conclusion of the July 21, 1994 Meeting, Petitioner and Board Member Joseph LaCorte left the Board of Education building.

12. At the conclusion of the July 21, 1994 Meeting, Respondents remained in the Board of Education building for a period of time.

13. After the July 21, 1994 Meeting, Board Secretary Machaud left the Board of Education building at approximately 12 midnight.

14. At the July 21, 1994 Meeting, the Board interviewed three candidates: Dr. Leonard Elowitz, Dr. David Witmer, and Dr. Keim. None of these candidates were ever appointed Superintendent.

15. There were several other meetings properly convened under the O.P.M.A. to consider candidates for the Superintendent position both before and after the July 21, 1994 Meeting at issue, including on May 12, 1994, May 16, 1994, May 18, 1994, May 23, 1994, June 1, 1994, June 3, 1994, August 31, 1994, September 22, 1994 and October 10, 1994.

16. The Board first interviewed Melindo A. Persi ("Persi"), the person eventually appointed Superintendent of Schools, at the August 31, 1994 meeting.

17. The Board gave Persi a second interview at the September 22, 1994 meeting.

18. The Board passed a resolution appointing Persi the Superintendent of Schools at the October 10, 1994 Board meeting.

TESTIMONIAL EVIDENCE

The petitioner testified that she attended a scheduled Board meeting on July 21, 1994. The meeting ended at approximately 11:45 p.m. The witness went downstairs and exited the building with Board member LaCorte. After a few minutes of conversation, the two went across the street to a diner.

The meeting had been held in a second floor office of the administration building. The superintendent's or interoffice was the site of the meeting. A secretary's or outer office lay between the superintendent's office and the hallway. There was a stairway outside the superintendent's office leading to the parking lot.

After repairing to the diner, the witness returned to the superintendent's office to find something she had left behind. She found the superintendent's office door closed. Other board members were inside. She left the building immediately.

Before the next board meeting, she asked the board secretary what had been discussed by other board members after she left. The board secretary advised the petitioner that he had left the building at approximately the same time she did.

At the next board meeting, in closed session, she asked each board member what they had discussed on July 21. Each replied that nothing had been discussed and none denied being present.

The petitioner is now the board president. She knows the provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA) and knew them generally in July 1994. She knows of the personnel exception to open meetings and has participated in many meetings dealing with personnel including interviews and discussions.

The petitioner alleges no other OPMA violations. She stated the meeting was formally adjourned at 11:45 p.m. and that doors invariably are opened and left open upon adjournment. She did not enter the superintendent's office upon return. She does not know with certainty who was in the office. She saw no one leave the building, but did not check other areas and did not ask other board members of they were in the superintendent's office at all times. Neither did she check to see if the superintendent's door was locked when she returned to the building. The petitioner left voluntarily upon adjournment.

The petitioner had no knowledge of any action at or as a result of the unlawful meeting she says took place after adjournment of the July 21 meeting. The petitioner had no knowledge of what, if any, Board matters were discussed.

The petitioner was part of all subsequent deliberations on Superintendent selection. The candidate ultimately selected was not interviewed until late August. The petitioner had no knowledge of any decision reached at the alleged unlawful meeting.

Joseph LaCorte testified that the executive session on July 21, 1994 ended at approximately 11:45 p.m. He and the petitioner left the building and went to the parking lot. A few minutes later, they decided to go to a diner across the street. The petitioner returned to the building. When she met the witness again at the diner, she was upset. He advised the petitioner to let wiser heads prevail and suggested that she ask the Board secretary for information and guidance.

At the next Board meeting a few days later, the Board secretary told the witness that the office door was closed, some board members were present, that the board secretary's telephone pager sounded a signal and the board secretary went to make a telephone call.

The witness said that the secretary reported that Board member Suriano advised the secretary that he was no longer needed. The secretary told the witness that he made a telephone call from the outer office. The door to the interoffice remained closed.

The petitioner brought up the question at the next Board meeting. LaCorte's recollection is very much the same as the petitioner's. He also asked which of the Board's members were present and all who were present stated that no business had been discussed. Board member Suriano stated that perhaps a couple of things were discussed. At that point, the agenda was moved and the witness's follow-up question (what were you discussing) was drowned out.

The witness heard no discussion of Board matters after the adjournment on July 21. He had no personal knowledge of what if anything concerning board business was discussed. Nothing leads him to believe any votes or other actions were taken.

The witness spent "a couple of minutes" speaking with Kesselman in the parking lot. He saw no other Board members leave. However, the complex is large and has several exits and more than one parking lot.

The Board secretary who is also the Business Administrator testified. He has attended all board meetings since 1987 unless ill or on vacation. He is responsible for minutes of public and closed meetings.

The witness attended the July 21, 1994 public session and the executive session that followed. The executive session, called to discussed superintendent selection, ended at approximately 11:45 p.m. Upon conclusion of the executive session, there was return to public session. Two board members left and the balance of board members remained. He waited a few moments because he usually straightens the area after each meeting. There were some small discussions going on about the room.

The witness's telephone pager sounded a signal and the witness observed, "There's my daughter." At this point, Board member Suriano said, "We're pretty much finished. You can leave."

The witness went to the outer office and called his home. The door to the interoffice closed behind him. While the witness was on the phone, Suriano twice looked out through the door and closed the door again.

The secretary saw no board member leave while he was on the telephone. He cannot say with certainty which board members remained in the room. He believes the number was less than four. His telephone call lasted three to five minutes. He cleaned up the outer office where refreshments had been laid out, went to his own office, closed up, turned out the lights and locked exterior doors. He locked the doors from the hallway to the superintendent's offices so that they would lock when the last person left. The witness did not know if anyone left before he did at approximately midnight. He could not see the superintendent's offices while he was in his own office area.

The Board called William Suriano, a member from 1993-96. He attended the July 21, 1994 session. He served as Board president at the time. The closed session was dedicated to candidate interviews and discussions. There were prior and subsequent meetings concerning superintendent choice. There were two group interviews, the second being held on July 21, 1994.

So far as the witness knows, no one from the first group subsequently was considered for selection. The witness believes he attended all meetings concerning superintendent selection. Each Board member had a rating form and after each session of interviews there was discussion based on the Board members' individual ratings.

The July 21, 1994 session ended at about 11:45 p.m. Everyone rose and moved about the room. The witness was aware that Kesselman and LaCorte left, but could not specify the time at which they left. There was no group discussion among remaining Board members of any Board matter. There were small conversations of one or two persons concerning various matters of personal nature. The vice-president and the witness spoke about a personal matter having to do with a summer home.

The witness does not recall whether the door to the Superintendent's office was opened or closed. He did go to the door and observe the secretary on the telephone. He knows the Board secretary is a single parent and he expressed some concern. He recalls saying at some point to the secretary that the secretary could leave. Board member Dickinson also used the telephone in the outer office. The witness got a sandwich from the outer office.

At a subsequent meeting, Kesselman and LaCorte asked what had occurred after they left the July 21 meeting. He replied that many topics were discussed and that there was no group discussion of Board business.

After eating a sandwich and engaging in more small talk, the witness picked up his materials from the Superintendent's area and left. He probably said good night to those present.

The Superintendent's office is relatively small. It contains a desk, shelves, two couches and two large conference tables with ten to twelve chairs. The room was quite crowded.

David Dickinson was present at the July 21, 1994 executive session meeting. He recalled that the petitioner and LaCorte left. He remained for about fifteen minutes, but not in the office at all times. At the end of the meeting, he called a friend, visited the men's room and returned to the office. He can recall no group discussion of any Board matter, no votes, no actions and no decisions after Kesselman and LaCorte left.

Philip Labasi also attended the July 21, 1994 executive session. He stated that Kesselman and LaCorte left at approximately 11:45 p.m. He stood and stretched and than went to the outer office for a sandwich. He put the sandwich at his place at table in the interoffice and went to the men's room in another corridor. He returned to the superintendent's office to clean up his area and to eat the sandwich.

The witness believes he was in the building approximately fifteen minutes after Kesselman and LaCorte left. He was out of the superintendent's office for probably ten minutes of that time. Before he left the superintendent's office, he spoke to someone about the Simpson trial and about a time-share condominium he had just purchased. Upon his return from the men's room, he recalls Board member Dickinson mentioned something about Army Reserve duty. There was no discussion of Board business.

DETERMINATION

Having reviewed the entire record in this matter, I FIND:

1. No reading of the stipulated facts can support a finding of any violation of OPMA;

2. The testimony presented supports no finding of any violation of OPMA.

The petitioner may have belief, but she has no knowledge of an impropriety. She had no knowledge of any action at or as a result of the alleged meeting following the scheduled July 21, 1994 meeting. She has no knowledge of what, if any, board matters were discussed at the alleged meeting.

The purpose of the regular meeting was superintendent candidate interviews and discussion of superintendent candidates. The person ultimately selected for the position had not yet been interviewed on July 21, 1994.

In sum, I CONCLUDE that the record is completely barren of any support for the suspicion, charge, allegation or hunch that any Board business was improperly discussed after the adjournment of the July 21, 1994 meeting at approximately 11:45 p.m.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the petition of appeal is without merit and I ORDER it DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EDISON, MIDDLESEX COUNTY, AND DR. WILLIAM SURIANO, RALPH BAYARD, JOHN TUDOR, DAVID DICKINSON, NANCI GULYA AND PHILIP LABASI, INDIVIDUALLY AND IN THEIR OFFICIAL CAPACITIES, RESPONDENTS.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and respondents' reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and 1:1-18.8.

Petitioner's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), again contending, inter alia, that respondents violated the Open Public Meetings Act, (OPMA), N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to 21, in that a majority of members continued to discuss Board business after a Board meeting was formally adjourned and some Board members had left the building. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 1) Petitioner further contends that the ALJ erred in concluding that the testimonial evidence as presented at the hearing did not support a finding that the OPMA was violated. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 4)

Respondents' reply exceptions support the conclusions of the ALJ that the Board did not violate the OPMA following the conclusion of a regular meeting. The Board further urges rejection of petitioner's claim that the ALJ failed to correctly assess the testimonial evidence at hearing asserting that the ALJ "properly concluded that this testimony supported no finding of any violation of the OPMA. " (Respondents' Reply Exceptions at p. 3)

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that the within petition does not evidence a violation of the OPMA.

The existing record provides no cause to challenge any of the determinations or credibility assessments made by the ALJ with regard to this matter, nor may the Commissioner properly reject such findings of fact without reviewing those portions of the transcript(s) where such findings were reached. Rowley v. Board of Education of Manalapan-Englishtown, 205 N.J. Super. 65, 75 (App. Div. 1985); In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158 (App. Div. 1987). [1]

Accordingly, in accepting the factual findings of the ALJ, the Commissioner determines that petitioner did not meet her burden of proof that a violation of the OPMA occurred.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the within Petition of Appeal.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

1 Additionally, it is the responsibility of those challenging such determinations to provide the Commissioner with such portions of the transcript, Morrison at 158, and no obligation arises for the Commissioner to review them before rendering a final decision regarding the findings and recommendations of the ALJ.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Department of Human Services, Division of Juvenile Services, certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent teacher for alleged sexual harassment of a coworker.

ALJ concluded that the Division presented compelling evidence to support its tenure charges of unbecoming conduct. Moreover, having considered the Department's policy of progressive discipline, the ALJ affirmed the Division's imposition of a 60-day suspension without pay on respondent due to respondent's prior incidents.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 188-5/95

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF PAUL ASH, DIVISION OF JUVENILE SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES, STATE OF NEW JERSEY

Timothy Crowley, Deputy Attorney General, for the petitioner (Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Raymond A. Ash, III, Esq., for the respondent

Record Closed: November 13, 1995 Decided: December 27, 1995

BEFORE CAROL LASKIN, ALJ t/a:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 22, 1995, the Department of Human Services, Division of Juvenile Services (petitioner, Division or Department) certified to the Commissioner of Education its determination of tenure charges against Paul Ash (respondent) alleging conduct unbecoming a tenured teacher, specifically charging Ash with sexual harassment of a coworker (C-1). The Division simultaneously imposed its determined discipline, a suspension without pay for sixty days. Respondent denies all charges, asserts procedural deficiencies and claims this a matter of retaliation--the fury of a "woman scorned" (C-2).

After the Commissioner transferred the matter on June 23, 1995, to the OAL as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., the telephonic prehearing conference was conducted on August 15, 1995. Said conference resulted in an order scheduling the matter for hearing on September 28 and 29, 1995.

At hearing five witnesses and eight exhibits were presented by the Division; nine witnesses and one exhibit offered by the respondent. The certified tenure charges and answers thereto were entered jointly as Commissioner's exhibits C-1 and C-2. Upon conclusion of the hearing, the parties waived oral argument requesting a briefing schedule. Said schedule was extended upon joint request of the parties. To ensure the opportunity for respondent Ash to reply to the Division's initial brief, receipt of which by the undersigned was delayed due solely to an error of the postal service, the record closed on November 13, 1995.

CHARGES PROFFERED AND EVIDENCE PRESENTED.

Paul Ash is a tenured teacher, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:60-1.2, with the Department of Human Services assigned by the Division of Juvenile Services to instruct physical education. Mr. Ash, on a regular weekly schedule, travels to provide educational services to juveniles enrolled in various programs throughout the State. Petitioner does not allege improper conduct towards any student or juvenile. Nor does it assert that any of the alleged conduct unbecoming a teacher interfered with Mr. Ash's performance of his teaching duties. Rather, Mr. Ash is charged was the sexual harassment of a coworker, Ella Ruth Tenant.

As outlined by the certified tenure charges, the specifications are as follows:

a. Mr. Ash tried to pull another employee, Ella Tenant into empty rooms on the pretext he just wanted to talk.

b. Mr. Ash admitted he had shown up at Ms. Tenant's home to bring her flowers.

c. Mr. Ash had given out Ms. Tenant's telephone number to a male friend without her permission.

d. Mr. Ash stated to Ms. Tenant while at work: "Um, um, look at that body, look at that body."

e. Mr. Ash made other inappropriate sexual remarks towards Ms. Tenant.

f. On November 15, 1994, Mr. Ash stood behind Ms. Tenant while she was climbing into a van and was staring at her buttocks.

g. On February 14, 1995, Mr. Ash took advantage of a situation at work, when the building was almost empty, to force his presence upon Ms. Tenant. Mr. Ash refused to leave and stayed in the area for approximately one hour. Even though Ms. Tenant has requested that he leave, he stayed and was watching every movement Ms. Tenant made." (C-1)

The burden of production and persuasion to establish by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Mr. Ash committed the offenses charged and that the resulting sixty-day penalty was appropriate herein rests on the Division.

To meet this burden, the Division first presented George Anthony Burgos, an affirmative action officer for the Department of Human Services, to outline the Department's sexual harassment policies, P-2 and P-3. Only upon response to specific questions on cross-examination did Mr. Burgos identify two other coworkers, Sandra Mahoney Still and Peggy Lee DeShields, who alleged like inappropriate conduct. Thus, in addition to Ms. Tenant, both Peggy Lee DeShields -- a Division employee at the Cumberland Day Treatment Program and Sandra Mahoney Still -- a social worker at the Cumberland Day Treatment Program, testified. Each identified conduct of respondent which they reasonably believed created an intimidating, hostile work environment which interfered with their work productivity. (See P-4, P-5 and P-9.) As its final witness, the Division presented Donald Mangus, Assistant Director of Employer Relations for the Department of Human Services, who identified the Department's corrective/disciplinary action for acts of sexual harassment, P-7, P-6 and reviewed both the instant investigation and determination to impose the sixty-day penalty.

To refute the evidence proffered by the Division, respondent along with eight other witnesses, testified. Robert Dayton -- a building trades teacher of the Division, Mark Chiappini -- a teacher familiar with respondent's work at the Camden Prep Program, and Alvin Herron -- a recreation supervisor at the Camden Prep Program each testified as to respondent's positive work habits and their lack of knowledge of any inappropriate or unprofessional behavior. Likewise, Lawrance Herdegen -- a vocation teacher at Camden House, Kathlyn M. Gray, a learning disability teacher/child study team case manager at Gloucester Day Training, and Loris Davis -- an employee at Camden House, testified they never witnessed any inappropriate conduct. Moreover, each of those witnesses claimed respondent at all times acted professionally and courteously towards them.

Sylvester Wade, Jr., a physical education teacher of the Division, who knows both Ella Tenant and Mr. Ash also provided testimony. Wade disclosed that after Ella Tenant called him on two occasions to seek out personal information about Ash, he teasingly informed respondent that Ms. Tenant had a "fatal attraction" towards him. Susan Ash, respondent's final witness and wife, recounted her happy years of marriage.

With the sole exception of Paul Ash, I find that the testimony and documentary evidence presented by each of the witnesses is credible. Only respondent's demeanor and testimony do I FIND to be incredulous. Mr. Ash denied each and every specified charge, listed above, C-1, claiming that Ella Tenant fabricated everything and that "nothing ever happened." Ash suggested that Ella Tenant was an angry and scorned woman. With regard to co-employee DeShields, even after begrudgingly admitting authorship of P-5, Ash swore that he never had an intimate relationship with DeShields. Likewise, Ash claimed that she too was pursuing him. The absurdity and vacillation of respondent's testimony in regard to the allegation of inappropriate conduct made by Ms. Mahoney Still patently reveal respondent's lack of credibility. Again, only after being presented with his letter of apology, P-9, did respondent concede that he "pecked" the social worker on the cheek in front of her supervisor.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Upon reflection of the testamentary and documentary evidence presented and upon review of the record in its entirety, I make the following Findings of Fact:

1. In or around August 1993, the Department of Human Services issued its Corrective/Disciplinary Action for Acts of Sexual Harassment, P-7. This disciplinary directive identified Administrative Order 4:09 as defining, "sexual harassment," P-2, and Administrative Order 4:08 sec. E.1., as classifying the appropriate range of penalties for acts of "sexual harassment," P-6.

The articulated definition of sexual harassment mirrored that contained in N.J.A.C. 4A:7-1.3, Prohibition of sexual harassment in State government.

2. In or around September 1, 1993, the Department of Human Services provided to each of its employees P-3, the statewide Policy on Sexual Harassment. The definition or Sexual Harassment therein likewise mirrored N.J.A.C. 4A:7-1.3. Thus each employee, was informed, inter alia, as to the department's understanding of harassment:

> (a) Sexual harassment is defined as unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors and other verbal or physical conduct based on the gender of the employee affected when: . . .
> 3. Such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an employee's work performance or creating an unreasonably intimidating, hostile or offensive working environment. This type of sexual harassment includes, but is not limited to:

i. Generalized gender-based remarks and behavior;

ii. Inappropriate, unwanted, offensive physical or verbal sexual advances and comments;

iii. Solicitation of sexual activity or other sex-linked behavior or promise of reward;

iv. Coercion of sexual activity by threat of punishment; and

v. Gross sexual imposition such as touching, fondling, grabbing or assault. . . .

(c) Conduct under (a)3 above by a supervisor, other superior or by (coworkers) constitutes prohibited sexual harassment when a reasonable person of the same sex in the employee's position would consider it sufficiently severe or pervasive to alter the conditions of employment or to create an intimidating, hostile or offensive work environment. [emphasis supplied]

3. Respondent, Paul Ash, was provided a copy of The Statewide Policy on Sexual Harassment, P-3, in or around September 1, 1993.

4. Ella Tenant met coworker Paul Ash at the Department's facility in Camden in or around July 1994. Ms. Tenant was interested in dating Ash, believing him to have recently moved to Southern New Jersey. Ms. Tenant and Mrs. Ash went out to lunch together on a few occasions. Thereafter, seeking personal information about respondent, Ms. Tenant on at least two occasions called Sylvester Wade. While Mr. Wade was not helpful, Ms. Tenant did learn from others that Mr. Ash was married and a long established resident of Southern New Jersey. Thereafter, Ms. Tenant informed respondent that she would not date a married man and requested only that they have a "working relationship."

5. Mr. Ash, refusing to accept Ms. Tenant's decision not to have other than a "working relationship" engaged in a course of conduct which interfered with her work performance and created an unreasonably intimidating work environment. See N.J.A.C. 4A:7-

1.3(a)3(c), P-3. Specifically, with the exception of 6b [Mr. Ash admitted he had shown up at Ms. Tenant's home to bring her flowers], I FIND that respondent committed the conduct alleged in the specifications of the tenure charges, C-1, listed verbatim above. While I do not FIND that any single act committed above falls within the definition of sexual harassment of a coworker, P-3, I FIND that the pervasive continuation of the conduct viewed in its entirety supports Ms. Tenant's feeling of fear of Mr. Ash. Thus, I FIND that a reasonable female co-employee would consider Mr. Ash's conduct as creating an intimidating, hostile work environment.

6. On November 16, 1994, Ms. Tenant made a written complaint regarding respondent's conduct with the van (6.f, C-1) and on February 22, 1995, she completed a Formal Discrimination Appeal Processing Form, C-1, C-2, regarding the February 14, 1994 incident.

7. On or about October 25, 1994, at the Cumberland Day Program, Paul Ash inappropriately touched the arm of coworker Sandra Mahoney Still and kissed her, without consent, in the presence of Ms. Mahoney Still's supervisor, P-9. Ms. Still, prior to the instant tenure hearing, was unaware of the allegations of Ella Tenant. After an investigation resulting from the complaint of Ms. Mahoney Still, on January 10, 1995, the Department conducted a counseling session with Paul Ash, issued an Oral Warning Notice, and required respondent to attend training on sexual harassment on January 24, 1995. Soon after attending the January 24, 1995 training on sexual harassment, respondent made improper gestures and sexual comments to Ms. Tenant concerning his appreciation of her body. (Expressions such as: "My, My, don't I like that behind; and, "I would love to have that body.")

8. Peggy Lee DeShields is a teacher aide of juvenile boys at the Cumberland Day Treatment Facility in Bridgeton, New Jersey. In or around late summer, 1993, she met coworker Paul Ash. She ceased engaging in a consensual personal relationship when she learned that respondent was married. Respondent refused to accept that the relationship was over and engaged in escalating course of conduct which intimidated Ms. DeShields. This conduct including, inter alia, statements of a sexual nature, touching and groping or grabbing. Ms. DeShields never informed her supervisors of the offensive conduct. Petitioner learned of Ms. DeShields' concern during the investigation of Ms. Tenant's discrimination appeal.

9. Upon receipt of the discrimination appeal processing form executed by Ms. Tenant and supporting documentation, George Anthony Burgos conducted an investigation to determine whether there was probable cause to credit Ms. Tenant and whether or not her allegations constituted sexual harassment, P-3. Mr. Burgos was involved in the prior investigation which led to the issuance of P-1, record of counseling and oral warning upon the complaint of Sandra Mahoney Still. During the course of the instant investigation, Burgos interviewed, inter alia, respondent, Ms. Tenant, Peggy DeShields, and Sylvester Wade. Mr. Burgos' investigation was ultimately reviewed by Donald Mangus, Assistant Director of Employee Relations. Upon reflection, Mangus determined only to institute filing of tenure charges upon the allegations of Ms. Tenant, and not Ms. DeShields. Thus, by letter dated May 4, 1995, respondent was notified of the Department's intention to impose a 60-day suspension, was provided with supporting documentation and instructed that he had 15 days to file a written response.

On May 22, 1995, at 11:30 a.m., after consulting with the Director of Employee Relations, Donald Mangus determined that there was probable cause and imposed a sixty-day suspension without pay deeming it appropriate progress discipline. Later that same day, at 4:06 p.m., respondent timely filed his reply, C-2. Donald Mangus persuasively testified that he personally viewed respondent's reply and found nothing therein to change his recommendation to the Director to certify the instant charge. This review was made prior to forwarding the certified tenure charges to the Commissioner of the Department of Education

10. In or around late February, 1995, upon the filing of Ms. Tenant's discrimination appeal, respondent's work locations were reassigned; he no longer reports to Camden House. On May 24, 1995, the sixty-day suspension penalty was imposed. Respondent returned to work in late August, 1995.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

A. Procedural Issue

Respondent's first argument that the instant charges must be dismissed based upon N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 due to a "clear lack of jurisdiction and blatant disregard for proper procedure" (respondent's brief at 2) fails. The tenure statute clearly provides for suspension upon certification of charges. See, Slater v. Board of Education, 237 N.J. Super. 424 (App. Div. 1989). And, while it would serve the Division well to insure that its employees have had full opportunity to present written rebuttal evidence prior to a certification of charges, I FIND that any diminimis procedural defect was cured by the Assistant Director of Employee Relations, Donald Mangus, when he reviewed respondent's rebuttal evidence prior to forwarding the certificate of determination to the Commissioner of Education. The process for filing and certifying the instant tenure charges against respondent, a tenured teacher within the Department of Human Services, did comply with N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.4.

B. Merits of the Charge:

As articulated above, I CONCLUDE that the Division presented compelling evidence to support its tenure charges. Respondent's action towards coworker Ellis Tenant constituted sexual harassment within the meaning of the Department's policies (P-2, P-3, and P-7) and N.J.A.C. 4A:7-1.3(a). While Paul Ash may not have intended to offend, his inappropriate remarks, touching and staring created an intimidating, hostile and offensive working environment. Lehmann v. Toys 'R Us, Inc., 132 N.J. 587, 603-604 (1993); Brown v. Trenton Psychiatric Hospital, 94 N.J.A R. 2d (CSV 41), aff'd 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (CSV 233) (App. Div.).

C. Penalty:

The Department disciplinary action program, Administrative Order 4.08, P-6, outlining offenses and application of penalty, clearly advances a philosophy of corrective rather than punitive discipline. Progressive discipline and consideration of mitigation factors are incorporated. It's table of offenses and penalties reveals that a penalty for a first offense of sexual harassment can range from counseling to removal; the second offense from a five-day suspension to removal; the third offense mandates removal. P-6, Administrative Order 4.08E.1.

Respondent asserts that these considerations of corrective discipline require a penalty of no greater than two weeks of loss of pay herein, while Assistant Director Don Mangus reasoned that only a sixty-day penalty for the second offense would be consistent with the Department's policy of progressive discipline.

My concern in determining the appropriate remedy herein involves examination of the timing of the infractions committed by Mr. Ash. Most of the conduct I found to be sexual harassment took place prior to Mr. Ash's January 24, 1995 training session (P-1). As it is not the Department's policy to punish its employees, any penalty must be imposed with the view of Mr. Ash's conduct after he had been provided the opportunity to understand what is acceptable work place behavior. Upon this reflection, I nevertheless find that the penalty imposed by the Division is warranted. See, In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967).

The Division has acted in the spirit of corrective discipline and took a reasonable and enlightened position by providing Mr. Ash with only a oral warning and instructional counseling for the conduct he committed towards Ms. Sandra Mahoney Still. Respondent egregiously disregarded the instruction when he made sexual offensive remarks and gestures towards Ms. Ella Tenant only a day or so after the counseling instruction. Mr. Ash's denial of any culpability at hearing even in the face of documentary evidence to the contrary adds further support for the penalty. Accordingly, finding that Mr. Ash's action constitute conduct unbecoming a tenured employee within the Department of Human Services and that the evoked penalty was warranted, I ORDER that the decision of the Division to impose a sixty-day penalty be AFFIRMED. As the Division seeks corrective and progressive discipline, cognizant of its intention to remove respondent in the event of a third infraction, I further recommend that Mr. Ash be provided with an opportunity for additional training in sexual harassment.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF PAUL ASH, DIVISION	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES,	:
STATE OF NEW JERSEY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Although respondent submitted exceptions on January 23, 1996, said exceptions were untimely filed, pursuant to both N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) instructions in the initial decision, which was mailed to the parties on January 3, 1996. Respondent did not request an extension of the time limit for filing exceptions in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8(b). Therefore, the exceptions are not considered herein.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and credibility determinations set forth by the ALJ, together with her conclusion that the Department of Human Services presented compelling evidence to support the tenure charges brought against respondent. Thus, the conduct alleged in the specification of tenure charges having been established (Initial Decision at p. 7), the Commissioner determines that respondent's 60-day suspension and concomitant reduction in salary imposed by the Division of Juvenile Services were warranted under the circumstances and authorized pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law affirming the decision of the Division to impose a 60-day unpaid suspension is adopted for the reasons expressed therein.

PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SOUTHERN GLOUCESTER COUNTY REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, GLOUCESTER COUNTY, AND USA ELECTRICAL CONTRACTORS, INC.,	:	DECISION ON MOTION

For Petitioner, Richard W. Hunt, Esq. (Almeida & Hunt)

For the Board, Charles R. Iannuzzi, Esq.

For USA Electrical Contractors, Inc., Matthew A. Zabel, Esq. (Zabel & Associates)

This matter has come before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Motion for Clarification filed by petitioner on January 5, 1996. In this motion, petitioner seeks an explicit statement from the Commissioner as to his intention, in his decision of December 26, 1995, in affirming the ALJ's order denying emergent relief for the reasons expressed therein. Specifically, petitioner seeks an express affirmation of the ALJ's finding that the disputed contract between respondents, Board of Education and USA Electrical Contractors, Inc. ("USA"), was null and void from the outset due to USA's lack of qualification under applicable bidding laws. The ALJ had, in his initial decision, made such a finding, but gone on to deny emergent relief on other grounds; this decision was adopted by the Commissioner for the reasons expressed by the ALJ. Seeing that work continued on the disputed contract notwithstanding the ALJ's (and Commissioner's, by affirmance) finding of contractual nullity, petitioner attempted to have the Commissioner's decision enforced in Superior Court. This attempt, however, was thwarted by the judge's unwillingness to infer from the Commissioner's decision an explicit intent to declare the contract null and void notwithstanding his denial of emergent relief. Hence petitioner's motion for clarification.

Replies to petitioner's motion were timely filed by the Board and USA, in accordance with established briefing schedules. In its reply, the Board argues that the Commissioner's decision was limited to the emergent relief aspect of the matter only, that petitioner's request for such relief was denied, and that the matter is being scheduled for a hearing on the merits, all of which must lead to a conclusion that the validity of the contract is still at issue and that there is no impediment to proceeding with performance. The Board further argues that substantial time and money would be lost by the Board if the electrical project were to cease at this point. In its own papers, USA also argues that substantial time and money would be wasted if the electrical phase of the project were to be rebid, and that the ALJ's determination on motion should have been limited to the emergent relief aspect alone and not to the qualification of USA as a bidding party. Further, USA renews its contention that it was a properly qualified bidder, in that the prequalification renewal process was strictly an extension of existing prequalification and did not materially change nor affect the bidding process.

Upon review of the record and the arguments of the parties on motion, the Commissioner determines, under the particular circumstances of this matter, to treat petitioner's Motion for Clarification as a Motion for Reconsideration. Having so determined, the Commissioner finds that, under the standards established in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), emergent relief must be granted and that no further work may ensue in furtherance of performance of the disputed contract.

The Commissioner so finds because the ALJ's recommendation to deny emergent relief, affirmed by the Commissioner, was clearly predicated on his belief that the Board would rebid the contract if emergent relief were denied. Indeed, having found the USA/Board contract a nullity, the ALJ expressly denied emergent relief because petitioner, which could not facially demonstrate an absolute entitlement to the contract at issue, was unable to show that it would be irreparably harmed by a rebid. However, the record on motion has now made it plain that, contrary to the Board's representations to the ALJ, initial decision at p. 10, that it would rebid the project if emergent relief were denied, the Board did not rebid the project upon such denial but instead proceeded to pursue its contract with USA and allow it to begin electrical work at Delsea High School. Thus, the basis for both the ALJ's recommendation and the Commissioner's decision to affirm it has been so substantially altered that the Commissioner has reconsidered petitioner's claim of irreparable harm, and finds that petitioner now succeeds in such a showing, as it is well established that damages or other comparable remedy are not available to petitioner should it ultimately succeed on the merits of its case. See, for example, M.E. Stephen Construction Constr. Co. v. Borough of Rumson, 125 N.J. Super. 67, 75 (App. Div. 1973)

As to those merits, the record clearly establishes USA's facial lack of qualification on the date its bid was submitted. While the effect of that lapse under the circumstances remains to be determined on the merits, for purposes of emergent relief, petitioner has plainly demonstrated a sufficient likelihood of success to succeed on the second prong of the Crowe analysis.

Finally, upon weighing the equities, the Commissioner finds that, under the unique circumstances herein, more harm would inure to the public than would to the Board and USA if petitioner were not awarded a stay. Although the Board will undoubtedly lose valuable time and incur cost in rebidding this project or discontinuing work pending final determination, as both it and USA argue, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that part of the problem was created by a Board which, > knew, or reasonably should have known, that by accepting USA's bid it was assuming a significant risk that if USA's bid resulted in a contract there would be a strong likelihood that it would be challenged." (Initial Decision at p. 8)

More importantly, and more disturbingly, the Board in this matter has also proceeded to act contrary to the representations it made before the ALJ, representations upon which he, and subsequently, the Commissioner, relied in denying petitioner's request for restraints. The public can have no confidence in the force and integrity of the bidding laws, or in the fundamental fairness and validity of the appeal process, if a situation such as has occurred herein is allowed to pass without impunity.

Accordingly, upon reconsideration, petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief is GRANTED for the reasons expressed above and this matter shall duly proceed to a prompt hearing on the merits at the Office of Administrative Law.[1]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[1] The Commissioner notes that, should the parties and ALJ so determine pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-9.4, in the interest of resolving this matter so as to delay the Board's construction work as little as possible, the Commissioner consents to accelerated proceedings in this matter.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF CONSTANT MONTILUS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
CITY OF ORANGE TOWNSHIP SCHOOL	:	DECISION
DISTRICT, ESSEX COUNTY	:

For the Board, Joseph R. Morano, Esq.

This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education on November 15, 1995 through certification of tenure charges of unbecoming conduct a teacher staff member, insubordination, abandonment of position and other just cause against respondent, a tenured teaching staff member in the employ of the Board of Education of the City of Orange Township; and

The Commissioner having directed respondent by two notices[1] and by letter dated December 22, 1995 sent via regular and certified mail to file an Answer to the charges against him; and

The certified mail notices dated November 17, 1995 and December 22, 1995 having been returned unclaimed, yet there being no indication that the notices sent via regular mail did not reach respondent; and

As of this date, neither respondent nor any attorney on his behalf having filed an Answer to the tenure charges against him and each count of the charges against respondent having been deemed to be admitted; now therefore

[1] Dated November 17, 1995 and December 12, 1995.

IT IS ORDERED this 9th day of February 1996 that summary judgment shall be granted to the Board and that respondent shall be dismissed from his tenured position as a teacher in the district's employ as of the date of this decision.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, this matter shall be forthwith referred to the State Board of Examiners for review and action as it deems appropriate.

v.	ORDER
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF SOUTH ORANGE AND MAPLEWOOD, Respondent

THIS MATTER having come before the Court on February 5, 1996 upon the application of Bell, Adubato & Ligham, P.C., counsel for Petitioner, seeking an Emergent Relief Order requiring the Respondent South Orange/Maplewood Board of Education to admit the pupil, M.C., into District schools pending the Commissioner's determination regarding a Petition filed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, and Joanne L. Butler, Esq. of Young, Dimiero & Sayovitz, P.C., counsel for Respondent, appearing, and the Court having considered the submissions of the parties, and having heard oral arguments of counsel and limited testimony, and f good cause shown;

IT IS ON THIS 6th day of February, 1996;

ORDERED that the Petition for Emergent Relief be and hereby is granted; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, at the plenary hearing relative to the Petition, Petitioner shall be responsible for obtaining an interpreter to enable testimony from A.C., the parent of the pupil, at Petitioner's sole cost and expense.

THIS ORDER on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the Commissioner of Education who, by law, is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this Order. If the Commissioner of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this Order within forty-five days, this recommended Order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

RESPONDENT.	:

For Petitioner, Jeffrey I. Bronson, Esq. (Bell, Adubato & Ligham)

For Respondent, Joanne L. Butler, Esq. (Young, Dimiero & Sayovitz)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal filed on January 12, 1996, contesting the Board's decision to exclude M.C. from attendance in the South Orange-Maplewood School District on the basis of her failure to meet the residency requirements set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Counsel for the Board responded with a written objection to said Petition of Appeal, asserting that the petition was untimely filed in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. On January 18, 1996, petitioner filed a Motion for Emergent Relief before the Commissioner, seeking that M.C. be immediately reinstated as a full-time pupil in the District, pending a final determination as to petitioner's claim that M.C. was improperly removed from school on the basis of residency. The Board's brief in opposition to the motion was filed the same day. The matter was thereafter transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law. On February 5, 1996, oral arguments were heard before the ALJ; on February 6, 1996, the ALJ issued an Order granting petitioner's request for emergent relief.

Exceptions to the Order were filed by the Board on February 8, 1996. The Board contends that the ALJ's granting of emergent relief in this matter effectively waives the 21-day statute of limitations contained in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. The Board argues,

> By ordering readmission of the pupil, the Court has acknowledged that the late-filed Petition is valid; that the pupil should be readmitted during the pendency of the matter; and that the twenty-one day statute of limitations has been waived. The statute of limitations is intended to require prompt action and bar review to those who violate it. (Board's Exceptions at p. 2)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which included the audio cassette tape of the oral arguments by the parties, and in consideration of the appropriate standard for granting emergent relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), the Commissioner determines to affirm the Order of the ALJ granting petitioner emergent relief.

Temporary relief may be granted where necessary to prevent irreparable harm, where the legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled, where petitioner demonstrates a likelihood of success on the merits and where the relative hardship to petitioner favors granting such relief. Crowe, supra. The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's judgment that the potential for irreparable harm to M.C. is the most compelling aspect of petitioner's argument for emergent relief. Harm is generally considered irreparable if it cannot be adequately redressed by monetary damages. Here, as the ALJ noted, M.C. has been out of school since mid-December. Every day that she is barred from attending school constitutes a loss which can never be compensated by merely awarding damages. M.C.'s educational needs weigh heavily in favor of granting the relief herein.

Additionally, relief should only be granted where the legal rights underlying the claim are settled and where there is a likelihood of success on the merits. Here, the ALJ determines, and the Commissioner so affirms, that although there are weaknesses as to petitioner's position at this stage of the proceedings, these weaknesses are not so great as to deny petitioner the relief he seeks. As Crowe instructs,

> [T]o prevail on an application for temporary relief, a plaintiff must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits. That requirement is tempered by the principle that mere doubt as to the validity of the claim is not an adequate basis for refusing to maintain the status quo. (Crowe, supra at 133)

As the ALJ observes, the only way to maintain the status quo is to keep M.C. in attendance at school.

Finally, the equities weigh on petitioner's side. As the ALJ comments, the Board is not prejudiced by M.C.'s attendance in the District. Should the Board ultimately prevail, it has an adequate remedy at law; the Board may assess the petitioner for tuition for M.C., prorated to the time of her ineligible attendance in the School District. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. In contrast, there is no such remedy for a child who is improperly denied access to her education.

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the Order of the ALJ granting petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief. The Commissioner notes that granting such relief does not prevent the Board from raising its contention as to the statute of limitations at the hearing on the merits.

The Commissioner directs the Board to immediately readmit M.C. to its public school system during the pendency of proceedings before the Commissioner.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, former Supervisor of English/Social Studies, alleged she was assigned to and performed the duties of her supervisory position in June 1990 and throughout the summer prior to her technical appointment date of September 1, 1990, and, as such, acquired tenure in this position before the Board rescinded her appointment in June 1992. Petitioner claimed entitlement to ten positions awarded to others subsequent to the rescission of her appointment.

ALJ concluded that the supervisory work performed in the summer of 1990 was not required by the Board but was, rather, voluntarily performed and, therefore, did not count towards tenure in the position of Supervisor of English/Social Studies. Thus, the ALJ found petitioner's RIF was proper and petitioner was not entitled to appointment with back pay to any of the positions at issue in this matter. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted initial decision with clarification. Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's determination that petitioner did not meet the requisite time period for achieving tenure in her supervisory position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. Therefore, the Commissioner found it unnecessary to reach to the ALJ's subsequent discussion with respect to petitioner's "entitlement" claims to the ten positions at issue or the timeliness of such claims.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On September 14, 1992, petitioner, Michele DeMaio filed a petition before the Commissioner of Education contesting the action of the New Providence Board of Education (Board or respondent). Petitioner alleged that she acquired tenure in the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies and that Board's action to rescind her appointment to the position through a "reduction in force" (RIF) violated her tenure and seniority rights. Petitioner also alleged that respondent's failure to give her "Rice" notice of the RIF violated her due process rights. Petitioner claimed entitlement to the positions of Supervisor English/Social Studies, Coordinator of Curriculum and Instruction, and Pupil Personnel Services.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 1, 1992, as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to-15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Prehearing conferences were held in the above-entitled matter on December 2, 1992 and April 4, 1995.

On June 2, 1994, the Board moved for summary decision alleging that as a matter of law, petitioner did not acquire tenure in the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies. Further, petitioner was not entitled to an individual notice of the Board meeting at which the Board rescinded her appointment to the position of supervisor.

Petitioner argued that she was assigned to and performed the duties of the Supervisor English/Social Studies in June 1990 and throughout the summer. Therefore, she had acquired tenure in the position before the Board rescinded her appointment to the position on June 18, 1992, for the 1992-93 school year.

On October 5, 1994, I granted the Board partial summary decision. However, I concluded that factual issues existed. If petitioner was required to perform the duties of the supervisor position during the summer of 1990, she may be entitled to tenure credit

2. Did petitioner have seniority rights to the positions described above and, if so, were those rights violated by granting the positions to other persons?

3. Is petitioner entitled to appointment to one of the positions described above with back pay?

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the evidence, the following relevant facts are adopted as FACT;

1. Petitioner, Michele DeMaio, possesses two educational certificates; an instructional certificate and an administrative certificate. She has been issued endorsements for English, social studies and mathematics on the instructional certificate and endorsements for principal and supervisor on the administrative certificate.

2. DeMaio began her employment with the Board as a teacher in 1966.

3. On June 28 1990, the Board promoted DeMaio to the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies effective September 1, 1990.

4. DeMaio's predecessor in the Supervisor English/Social Studies position did not officially vacate that position until June 30, 1990.

5. The position of Supervisor English/Social Studies is a ten-month position from September through June.

6. On April 28, 1992, the Board voted to grant tenure to DeMaio in the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies effective September 1, 1992.

7. On April 28, 1992, the Board abolished the position of Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services, held by Dorothy Grandey, effective July 1, 1992, and replaced the position with two new coordinator positions; Coordinator of Curriculum and Instruction, and Coordinator of Pupil Personnel Services/Psychologist.

8. On June 4, 1992, Dr. Grandey, notified Dr. David A. Sousa, Superintendent, that she was asserting a tenure claim to the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies held by DeMaio. Grandey's claim to the position was based on her status as a tenured supervisor in the district. DeMaio was the only nontenured supervisor at the time Dr. Grandey asserted her claim to the position.

9. At the Board's meeting on June 18, 1992, Sousa recommended that the Board appoint Grandey to the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies for the 1992-93 school year instead of the DeMaio because Grandey was tenured as a supervisor and the petitioner was not a tenured supervisor. During the public session of that meeting, the Board rescinded DeMaio's appointment as Supervisor English/Social Studies for the 1992-1993 school year and appointed Grandey to the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies. Also, the Board appointed DeMaio to her former tenured position as teacher for the 1992-1993 school year.

10. On June 17, 1992, DeMaio applied for one of the new coordinator positions, Coordinator of Curriculum and Instruction and Coordinator of Pupil Personnel Services/School Psychologist. She was not offered either position.

11. James Hyers was granted the position of Coordinator of Curriculum and Instruction, and Gerald McCaffrey was granted the position of Coordinator of Pupil Personnel Services/School Psychologist.

12. The position of Coordinator of Curriculum and Instruction required a school administrator endorsement.

13. The position of Coordinator of Pupil Personnel Services/School Psychologist required a supervisor and school psychologist endorsement.

14. In March 1993, the Board renamed the title of Coordinator of Curriculum and Instruction to Director of Curriculum and Instruction; the new title also required a school administrator endorsement.

15. The Board terminated James Hyers in December 1993, effective January 1994. Hyers duties were redistributed among the superintendent, school principals and the Coordinator of Pupil Personnel Services/School Psychologist.

16. In November 1992, Dr. Grandey resigned from the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies and she was replaced by a tenured supervisor chosen from a preferred eligibility list of staff members who had been subject to RIF.

17. The Board renamed the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies to Supervisor of Foreign Languages and Language Arts and added responsibility for foreign languages to the position. The position was granted Charles Zucker.

18. The Board transferred supervisory responsibilities for social studies from the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies to Delasandro, middle school vice principal/supervisor. Delasandro was also assigned to supervise special education.

19. In April 1993, the position of Middle School Principal was posted at the middle school where DeMaio was assigned.

20. In May 1993, Francis Delasandro was appointed to the position for the 1993-94 school year. The appointment was announced in the Superintendent's Byline, a document distributed throughout the school district. The position required a principal's endorsement.

21. In July 1993, Lois Capobianco was appointed to the position of Administrative Assistant for Curriculum and Instruction; the position required a principal's endorsement. Capobianco's appointment was announced in the Superintendent 's Byline.

22. In September 1993, the position of Administrative Assistant was renamed Coordinator of Educational Services. The position required a principal's endorsement.

23. Hyers, who held the position Director of Curriculum and Instruction was terminated in December 1993. He was not replaced and the duties were redistributed among several other positions including school principals and Capobianco's position as Coordinator of Educational Services.

24. In November 1994, the Board changed Capobianco's position to Director of Educational Services. The position required a school administrator's endorsement.

25. In September 1994, the Board appointed David Steffan as principal of the high school. DeMaio applied for, but was not offered, the position. The position required a principal's endorsement.

26. DeMaio applied for the position of Salt Brook School Principal no later than October 1994. She was not offered the position.

27. In November 1994, Capobianco's title was changed from Coordinator of Educational Services to Director of Educational Services. This position required either a principal or school administrator endorsement.

28. In February 1995, notice was provided that the Salt Brook School Principal was to be named. Mariann Helfant was appointed in February 1995. The position required a principal's endorsement.

DISCUSSION

I

Whether petitioner was granted tenure or conditional tenure in the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies:

Petitioner stated in her certification that she was "actually assigned and performed all of the supervisory duties required of [her] position beginning in June of 1990 and throughout the entire summer." Thus, for purposes of tenure she commenced employment more than two consecutive calendar years prior to the Board's June 18, 1992 resolution rescinding her employment or more than two academic years within a three year period.

Petitioner testified that she began performing the supervisor's duties on June 13, 1990. A substitute teacher was assigned to take over her class to allow petitioner to interview teacher candidates. Petitioner believed that she had been directed to leave her classroom and conduct the interviews. DeMaio interviewed several candidates in June, including Barbara Balsam and Lisa Capone. In July and August, DeMaio performed various administrative tasks. For example, she updated a reading list and wrote letters and memorandum concerning the 1990-91 school year. She met with Victor Bucossi about curriculum, and had several meetings with Barbara Balsam about curriculum and book orders. Joan Goncznik and Joyce Kenny are secretaries who either worked with or observed DeMaio during the summer. DeMaio conceded, however, that she did not perform certain supervisory duties prior to September 1990. DeMaio claimed that between June 13 to September 1, 1990, she spent 195.5 hours in the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies.

Testimony about DeMaio's duties between June and September 1, 1990, was also presented by Delasandro and Grandey. Delasandro testified that DeMaio was not directed by Robert Lachenauer, the district's former superintendent, to participate in the interviews. When petitioner chose to participate in the process, Lachenauer arranged for a substitute to cover her class until the last day of school, June 21, 1990. Grandey corroborated Delasandro's testimony that Lachenauer did not specifically direct DeMaio to participate in the interview process. Indeed, when Lachenauer requested DeMaio to interview the candidates she sought Grandey's advice about Lachenauer's request. Grandey also acknowledged that it was common practice for teachers to interview candidates and that it was very difficult to refuse a request made by your boss. Grandey maintained that supervisors were ten-month employees. If they failed to complete their assignments between September and June, the work was done during the summer. Although the work done in the summer was voluntary, supervisors received compensation time for their service.

Lachenauer also provided testimony about DeMaio's duties between June and September 1, 1990. He approved DeMaio's compensation time in lieu of payment for "several days of additional time--some to get acquainted with the job and other days at my request for interviews and attending a 2-day conference." P-2. Although Lachenauer told DeMaio to do whatever she had to do to get ready for the new position, he was "surprised" and "alarmed" to learn that she put in 195 hours during the summer. Many of the tasks performed by petitioner during the summer. For instance, memorandums to language arts/social studies staff which DeMaio prepared on August 3, and 29, could have waited until after school began in September 1990. (P-4, P-16-, P-17). Also, DeMaio's response to a memorandum regarding a mentorship program for new teachers was not due until September 15; DeMaio responded on August 28, 1990. (P-5). Lachenauer acknowledged that DeMaio was a dedicated employee and at times volunteered to assume extra duties during the school year. Further, it was common practice for ten month administrators and teachers to voluntarily complete certain tasks during the summer. Lachenauer maintained that the work petitioner performed during the summer of 1990 was voluntary, not a condition of her employment to the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies.

Petitioner has the burden of proof by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian 37 N.J. 143 (1962).

> The term "burden of proof" refers to the "burden of persuasion"... The burden of persuasion entails more than merely producing evidence which would tend to put the court's mind in a state of equilibrium with respect to whether a certain fact exists or not and if, at the close of the evidence, this is the situation, then the decision must go against the > party who has the burden of persuasion on the particular issue in question.

> [Johnson v. Barton, 251 F. Supp. 474, 476 (W.D. Va 1966).]

I am persuaded by the credible evidence that DeMaio mistakenly believed that her work during the summer was required by the Board as a condition to the appointment of Supervisor English/Social Studies. Several employees testified that teachers and administrators participate in the interview process. Additionally, ten-month employees often perform administrative tasks during the summer to prepare for the school term. Thus, petitioner's summer work was not necessarily conditioned on her new position as supervisor. I am mindful that the credibility of some witnesses' testimony may be influenced by interest, motive or biases. "A trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible, or because . . . it is overborne by other testimony." Congleton v Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958). Of all the witnesses who testified about the scope of duties which petitioner performed from June to September 1, 1990 and nature of the supervisory position, I am more persuaded by the testimony of Grandey and Lachenauer. They were knowledgeable about the duties performed by teachers and ten-month supervisors. Moreover, these former employees appeared to have had a positive working relationship with petitioner and held no interest in her claim to the positions sought in this matter. Petitioner's testimony that she was required to perform the duties of the supervisor during the summer of 1990 is overborne by the credible testimony that the work was voluntary.

Based on the evidence, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's work in June through the summer of 1990 was not required by the Board. Instead, she chose to participate in interviewing candidates in June and volunteered to perform certain administrative tasks in July and August. I CONCLUDE therefore, that petitioner's appointment to the title of Supervisor English/Social Studies was effective on September 1, 1990. I also CONCLUDE that the work performed by petitioner prior to September 1, 1990 did not count towards tenure in her position of Supervisor, English/Social Studies. See, Flood v. Jersey City Bd. of Ed., 1984 S.L.D. 74 (when summer service is required by the board of education as a condition of regular employment and when the employee does not receive any additional compensation beyond his annual salary, such time is countable toward tenure); Mihatov v. Bd. of Ed. of Boro. of Woodcliff Lake, 1977 S.L.D. 1 (neither short summer seminars and workshops nor voluntary summer work performed by a teacher in preparation for the important duty of teaching count toward obtaining tenure).

Additionally, I CONCLUDE that the Board's vote on June 18, 1992, to rescind petitioner's appointment to the position of supervisor for the 1992-93 school year, which would have been her third year in the supervisory position, precluded petitioner from acquiring tenure as a supervisor. Further, I CONCLUDE that the rescission of petitioner's appointment was based on a reduction in force in the school district effective July 1, 1992. Dr. Grandey, a tenured supervisor whose position as Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services was abolished by the RIF, claimed entitlement to petitioner's position of Supervisor English/Social Studies. Because petitioner would not acquire tenure in the position before the effective date of the RIF, the rescission effectuated a "bumping" of petitioner in favor of Grandey's superior tenure claim. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Board's vote to rescind petitioner's appointment was appropriate.

I further CONCLUDE that the only tenure accrued by the petitioner is in the position of teacher. Petitioner was appropriately reappointed to her tenured teacher position when the Board rescinded her appointment as supervisor on June 18, 1992, due to the tenure claim asserted by Dr. Grandey, a tenured supervisor. Thus, I CONCLUDE that the Board has not violated any tenure rights relative to the ten[1] positions petitioner has claimed entitlement to in this matter.

Petitioner's Entitlement Claims

Petitioner claims she should have been appointed to one of the following positions:

a. Supervisor English/Social Studies held by Dr. Grandey
b. Coordinator of Curriculum and Instruction,held by James Hyers

[1] Based on petitioner's Petition of Appeal and her post-hearing brief dated June 12, 1995, she claimed entitlement to ten positions, three more than the seven indicated in the Amended Pre-Hearing Order dated April 5, 1995.

c. Director of Curriculum and Instruction held by James Hyers

d. Coordinator of Pupil Personnel Services/School Psychologist held by Gerald McCaffrey

e. Administrative Assistant for Curriculum and Instruction, held by Lois Capobianco

f. Coordinator of Educational Services held by Lois Capobianco

g. Director of Educational Services held by Lois Capobianco

h. Middle School Principal held by Francis Delasandro

i. New Providence High School Principal held by David Steffan

j. Salt Brook School Principal held by Mariann Helfant

Petitioner's Seniority Rights

Seniority is a right which only applies to tenured personnel. Camilli v. Bd. of Ed. of the Northern Highlands Reg. High Schl. Dist., 1985 S.L.D. 1, 6. A reduction in force provides a mechanism for ranking all tenured teaching staff members in an equitable fashion and in accord with sound educational policies. Capodilupo v. W. Orange Twp. Bd. of Ed., 218 N.J. Super. 510, 514 (App. Div. 1987)

When there has been a RIF, as in the present matter, one's right to a preference in reemployment is predicated on her status as a tenured employee. "Chapter 28 of Title 18A  does not purport to create employment rights for non-tenured employees." Kaprow v. Bd. of Ed. of Berkeley Twp., 131 N.J. 572, 585 (1993). Because petitioner did not acquire tenure in the supervisor position she had no right to seniority nor to a place on the preferred eligibility list for such a position. See, Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 586. Petitioner has only acquired tenure as a teacher. Thus, she had no right to be placed on a preferred eligibility list for any of the positions to which she has claimed an entitlement. The Board, therefore, had no duty to notify petitioner of vacancies in the positions listed above. Therefore, adequate notice which commences the running of the 90-day limitation is that which is sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that the communicating party has a duty to communicate. Id. at 587.

I CONCLUDE that because petitioner has not accrued tenure in any of the positions she has claimed entitlement to, she also has no seniority rights in those positions.

The Board's and Intervenors' Motion To Dismiss Petitioner's Claims Against Capobianco and the Principals:

Board and intervenors have moved to dismiss the claims against Capobianco and the principals. Respondent and intervenors contend that petitioner is time barred by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. Further, it is asserted that the petitioner's claims to a majority of the positions were never properly filed. Thus, the Board and intervenors submit that petitioner's claims to the positions held by Capobianco and the principals must be dismissed.

Petitioner argues that the Board has raised the "90 day rule" at the eleventh hour and thus, the defense is disingenuous and without merit. There has been no showing of surprise or prejudice. Further, petitioner avers that pursuant to an administrative reorganization in 1993, the supervisor positions were abolished and the supervisory job functions were assigned to various principals (intervenors) after the petition was filed. Therefore, the "90 day rule" does not apply to positions created or placed in controversy after the initial petition was filed timely and before the proceeding concluded.

The regulation provides, in pertinent part, that in order to initiate a contested case "a petitioner shall serve a copy of a petition upon each respondent," N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(a), and that:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.
> [N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).]

Moreover, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 requires that a petition of appeal be filed within 90 days of notice of a ruling affecting a petitioner. Formal notice of the school board's action is not necessary to raise a claim. Indeed, the Commissioner has held that a letter from the local board secretary which provided clear and unambiguous notice of the local board's final action triggered the 90-day limitation. K*aprow v. Board of Educ. of Berkeley Twp.*, 255 N.J. Super. 76 (App. Div. 1992), cert. granted, 130 N.J. 16, aff'd, 131 N.J. 572 (1993). The 90- day rule is to be strictly applied, Gordon v. Passaic Twp. Bd. of Ed., 1985 S.L.D. 1929, aff'd, No. A.-3294-84 (App. Div. May 27, 1986), cert. den., 105 N.J. 534 (1986). The Commissioner has the authority, however, under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15 to relax the rule; but such authority is rarely invoked. See Kaprow v. Board of Educ. of Berkeley Twp., supra.(where court held discretionary waiver of limitations period was not appropriate where the petition was not filed in timely manner). Moreover, relaxation of the regulation is generally unsuccessful unless there are compelling reasons justifying relaxation or where circumstances are such that strict adherence would be inappropriate, unnecessary or where injustice would occur, Gordon, supra, 1985 S.L.D. at 1931.

There are no compelling reasons in the present matter to justify a waiver or relaxation of the 90-day limitations period of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). DeMaio had been actively employed in respondent's school district when the Board made the appointments to which she claimed entitlement. Petitioner interviewed for some of the positions and others were announced and distributed in the school. Thus, she knew about the appointments of Capobianco and the principals. Although petitioner's initial petition was filed and transmitted for hearing to the OAL in 1992, she must timely assert her claim to positions created subsequent to the initial petition. Informal and unofficial notice of the Board's action is sufficient to trigger the 90-day limitation. Kaprow v. Board . of Educ. of Berkeley Twp., supra.

I CONCLUDE that under the circumstances of this matter, the 90-day period for commencing an action to assert a claim of tenure entitlement to these positions was triggered by the date on which the appointments were made.

I have also considered the Board's and intervenors' allegations that petitioner has not amended her Petition of Appeal nor filed a new petition which includes these claims. Petitioner did not amend her Petition of Appeal nor file a new petition claiming tenure entitlement to Capobianco's and the three principals' positions. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.3 requires that "the name and address of each petitioner, the name and address of or a description sufficient to identify each party respondent, and a statement of the specific allegation(s) and essential facts supporting them which have given rise to a dispute under the school laws," must be included in the petition and verified by oath. The regulation also proposes the form of the of the petition. Ibid.

Here, in the form of a letter dated February 24, 1995, DeMaio asserted a superior tenure claim to the positions of Middle School Principal held by Francis Delasandro, New Providence High School Principal held by David Steffan and Salt Brook School Principal held by Mariann Helfant. Petitioner contended that the positions and or titles did not exist at the time of the initial petition, but they were successor positions/titles or congruent positions to those which were named in the initial petition. Further, the Board made the appointments after the initial petition was filed. Consequently, petitioner claimed seniority and entitlement to the principal positions and the positions held by Capobianco.

I am persuaded by petitioner's argument that filing a formal amended petition is essentially a technical deficiency under the circumstances. Petitioner has claimed entitlement to several positions "which are successor positions/titles or which are congruent positions to those which are specifically named in the Petition." Petitioner's letter, dated February 24, 1995. Form and procedure should be relaxed when sufficient notice has been given to the affected persons. Indeed, failure to amend a petition to comply with the caption and format requirements of the regulation may prevent an otherwise legitimate claim to go forward. Under the circumstances a formal amended pleading to the initial petition for each separate claim was not fatal. Respondent and intervenors and participant were "sufficiently on notice regarding full scope of the petitioner's claims, based upon a fair reading of the language of the Petition, as well as the notice and opportunity to respond which the [ALJ] has afforded the respondent repeatedly throughout the discovery and hearing phases of this case." Petitioner's Brief at 2, June 26, 1995. Thus, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's failure to serve "a specific and discrete written amendment" to the initial petition regarding her claim to each title and position while the proceedings were pending does not warrant the claims defective.

Petitioner's claims of tenure entitlement to positions a. through j. are disposed of as follows:

a. Supervisor English/Social Studies held by Dr. Grandey

Dr. Grandey was appointed to the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies at the public session of the Board's meeting on June 18, 1992. Petitioner's appointment to this position was rescinded that same day. In her September 14, 1992 petition, petitioner claimed entitlement to the supervisor position. This petition was filed within 90-days of Grandey's appointment to the position. Thus, petitioner's claim to the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies was timely.

Petitioner did not, however, accrue tenure as a supervisor in the position of Supervisor English/Social Studies before it was rescinded on June 18, 1992. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that when Dr. Grandey asserted entitlement to the supervisor position for the 1992-93 school year subsequent to the abolishment of her position, the Board's appointment of Grandey to that position instead of petitioner was in accord with the tenure laws.

Furthermore, when Dr. Grandey resigned from the supervisor position in November 1992, petitioner's claim to the position remained insupportable. Petitioner did not possess tenure as a supervisor. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Board acted appropriately when it replaced Grandey with another tenured supervisor chosen from a preferred eligibility list of staff members who had been subjected to a RIF.

b. Coordinator of Curriculum and Instruction held by James Hyers

The position Coordinator of Curriculum and Instruction was one of two positions created by the Board to replace the position of Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services; the latter position was abolished on April 28, 1992. The new position was effective July 1, 1992, and was held by James Hyers.

Petitioner claimed entitlement to the position of Coordinator of Curriculum and Instruction in her September 14, 1992 petition. For purposes of the 90-day rule, her claim was timely because the date from which compliance should be calculated was the rescission of petitioner's appointment as supervisor on June 18, 1992.

This position of Coordinator of Curriculum and Instruction required a school administrator endorsement which the petitioner does not possess. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that she was not qualified for the position and her claim of entitlement to this position is DENIED.

c. Director of Curriculum and Instruction

In March 1993, the position of Coordinator of Curriculum and Instruction was renamed Director of Curriculum and Instruction. The position continued to require a school administrator endorsement. Petitioner does not possess a school administrator endorsement. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that she was not qualified for the position and her claim of entitlement to this position is DENIED.

d. Coordinator of Pupil Personnel Services/School Psychologist

The second position created by the Board to replace the position of Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services was Coordinator of Pupil Personnel Services/ School Psychologist. Petitioner claimed entitlement to this position in her September 14, 1992 petition. Therefore, I CONCLUDE the petition was timely under the 90-day rule because the date from which compliance is calculated was the rescission of petitioner's appointment as supervisor, June 18, 1992.

The position of Coordinator of Pupil Personnel Services/School Psychologist required a supervisor and school psychologist endorsement. Petitioner holds the supervisor endorsement, but she is not tenured. Moreover, she does not hold an endorsement as school psychologist, and therefore, she does not meet all of the qualifications for the position. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that her claim of tenure entitlement to the position is DENIED.

e. Administrative Assistant for Curriculum and Instruction
f. Coordinator of Educational Services
g. Director of Educational Services

Petitioner has claimed tenure entitlement to three positions held by Lois Capobianco: Administrative Assistant for Curriculum and Instruction; Coordinator of Educational Services and Director of Educational Services. These claims were first asserted by petitioner on at the hearing on November 21, 1994, and then reiterated in petitioner's February 24, 1995 letter.

Capobianco was appointed to the position of Administrative Assistant for Curriculum and Instruction in July 1993 The position was renamed Coordinator of Educational Services in September 1993. The Board changed Capobianco's position to Director of Educational Services in November 1994. Therefore, petitioner's claim on November 21, 1994, goes well beyond the 90-day limitation for the positions of Administrative Assistant for Curriculum and Instruction and Coordinator of Educational Services. Indeed, Capobianco's appointment to these positions in July 1993, and September 1993, respectively, precedes petitioner's claim by more than one year. Petitioner's claim to the position of Director of Educational Services is not time-barred because that appointment occurred in November 1994. Nevertheless, on the merits petitioner has no tenure entitlement to any of the positions held by Capobianco.

Each of Capobianco's positions required a principal's endorsement. The requirements for the Director of Educational Services would also have been satisfied by a school administrator endorsement. Petitioner does possess a principal's endorsement, however, she has not accrued tenure in the position. The same result applies even if petitioner was a tenured supervisor because supervisors and principals are separately tenurable positions under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-, and require actual work experience in the position to acquire tenure. See, Ellicott v. Frankford Twp. Bd. of Ed., 1990 S.L.D. 1714, aff'd, 251 N.J. Super. 342 (App. Div. 1991); Nelson v. Bd. of Ed. of the Twp. of Old Bridge, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (Vol. 4B) 257 (Dept. of Ed.). Thus, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has no tenure entitlement to the positions held by Capobianco.

h. Middle School Principal
i. New Providence High School Principal
j. Salt Brook School Principal

Petitioner asserted a superior tenure claim to the Middle School Principal position held by Francis Delasandro, the New Providence High School Principal position held by David Steffan and the Salt Brook School Principal position held by Mariann Helfant by letter dated February 24, 1995.

Delasandro was appointed in May 1993 and Steffan was appointed in September 1994. Consequently, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's claim to these two principal's positions is time barred. I CONCLUDE that petitioner's claim to the Salt Brook School Principal position was timely because Mariann Helfant was appointed to the position in March 1995. However, petitioner is not tenured as a principal for the same reasons discussed regarding Capobianco, supra. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that her claims of entitlement to the principals' positions must be DENIED.

ORDER

For the reasons discussed above, I have concluded that petitioner did not accrue tenure in the position of supervisor. She possesses tenure rights only in the position of teacher which she achieved prior to her appointment as Supervisor English/Social Studies and to which she was reappointed by respondent upon rescission of the supervisor position. Thus, I further CONCLUDE that petitioner is not entitled to appointment with back pay to any of the positions at issue herein.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that each of petitioner's claims of tenure entitlement be DENIED and the petition DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF NEW PROVIDENCE, UNION COUNTY,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION
AND	:
MARIANN HELFANT, FRANCIS DELA SANDRO AND LOIS CAPOBIANCO,	:
INTERVENORS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the reply thereto of the Board and Intervenor Lois Capobianco were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. On December 15, 1995, petitioner filed an additional submission entitled "Supplemental Letter Exceptions." As there is no statutory or regulatory authority for such a submission, it will not be herein considered. Finally, on January 2, 1996, Intervenors Mariann Helfant and

Frank DelaSandro submitted a letter memorandum urging the Commissioner's adoption of the initial decision as it relates to petitioner's claim to the position of principal.*

Petitioner's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate her assertion, advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), that she was assigned to and performed the duties of Supervisor of English/Social Studies in June 1990 and throughout the summer and, therefore, acquired tenure in this position before the Board rescinded her appointment. In this regard, petitioner asserts that her characterization of the nature and extent of the duties she performed during this period was borne out by her testimony and that of her witnesses. She avers that such testimony underscored the depth and duration of her supervisory activities that summer and confirmed her presence, availability and supervisory responsibilities during this time. Petitioner further objects to the ALJ's portrayal of hearing testimony averring

> [Superintendent Robert Lachenauer] did not state that the work performed by Petitioner during the Summer of 1990 was voluntary, but merely conceded that she was not compensated during the months of July and August. Likewise, there is simply no factual basis in the record [for] the ALJ's conclusion that "DeMaio mistakenly believed that her work during the summer was required by the Board as a condition to the appointment as Supervisor of English/Social Studies." (Initial Decision at page 10). Neither Dr. Grandey nor Superintendent Lachenauer challenged the preponderance of detailed testimony by the Petitioner and other independent corroborating witnesses regarding her functioning as a supervisor during the summer in question. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 4)

* Given the Commissioner's ultimate determination in this matter, it is unnecessary to consider or address the timeliness of this memorandum.

In reply, respondents Board and Ms. Capobianco argue that petitioner's claim that she accrued tenure as a supervisor, a 10-month position with service beginning in September 1990 and extending to the following June, because she commenced her duties in the summer of 1990 is without foundation. Respondents maintain that testimony proffered by Mr. Lachenauer and corroborated by that of Mr. DelaSandro, is clear that petitioner was not requested or directed to perform whatever preparatory tasks she undertook during the summer at issue but rather performed them voluntarily. As such, respondents urge the adoption of the initial decision.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner finds that the ALJ fully considered and addressed petitioner's exception arguments at pages 8-11 of the initial decision, where she concluded that the work performed by petitioner during the summer of 1990 was not a condition of her appointment to the position of Supervisor of English/Social Studies but, rather, performed voluntarily. As such, the ALJ determined that petitioner did not acquire tenure in this supervisory position. The Commissioner concurs with this determination.

With respect to petitioner's assertions regarding testimony advanced at the hearing, the Commissioner notes that without a review of the hearing transcripts in this matter, which were not a part of the record before him, it is not possible to reconcile the parties' claims regarding such testimony. (See In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158 (App. Div. 1987).) However, it is clear that the existing record provides insufficient cause to challenge any of the factual determinations or credibility assessments made by the ALJ.

Given that the Commissioner has found that the within petitioner did not meet the requisite time period for achieving tenure in her supervisory position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6, he finds it unnecessary to reach to the ALJ's subsequent discussion with respect to petitioner's "entitlement" claims to any of the ten positions at issue or the timeliness of such claims.

Accordingly, with the clarification noted above, the Commissioner affirms the decision of the OAL dismissing the instant Petition of Appeal.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, February 15, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Richard J. Kaplow, Esq.

For the Respondents-Respondents, Martin R. Pachman, Esq.

For the Intervenors, Lake & Schwartz (Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Participant, David A. Staffan, pro se

After a thorough review of the record, including the transcripts of the hearings held in the Office of Administrative Law, the State Board of Education affirms the decision of the Commissioner of Education to dismiss the petition in this matter. We find nothing in the transcripts, which were not included in the record before the Commissioner, to alter the Administrative Law Judge's determination that the work performed by petitioner in the summer of 1990 was not required as a condition of her 10-month supervisory assignment. Consequently, we agree that petitioner did not achieve tenure as a supervisor pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.

12/4/96

C.M., INDIVIDUALLY AND AS PARENT OF MINOR CHILD, E.M.,
Respondent.

Louis R. Franzese, Esq., for petitioner (Sills, Cummis, Zuckerman, Radin, Tischman, Epstein & Gross, attorneys)

C.M., respondent, pro se, on behalf of minor child, E.M.

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of an application for emergent relief filed with the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. Oral argument was heard on January 29, 1996.

The pertinent facts are undisputed. E.M. is a thirteen-year-old student attending eighth grade at the William Annin Middle School in Basking Ridge. On January 2, 1996, the principal of the middle school, Joan Tonnarelli, implemented a policy barring backpacks in the classrooms, in the hallways, and in the school cafeteria. Students may bring backpacks into the building, but then the backpacks must be placed in school lockers. There are three minutes between periods for students to retrieve any books they need from their lockers. Ms. Tonnarelli feels that backpacks pose a danger to students and teachers and create a potential fire hazard. There are affidavits in the record which indicate that a few teachers have been struck with backpacks or have tripped over backpacks in the classrooms. James S. Buist, a guidance counselor at William Annin, certifies that he has observed large numbers of backpacks on the floor in the rear of the cafeteria, which cause jams of students when they need to exit. This could exacerbate an emergency.

E.M. has refused to abide by the rule since its implementation. Her parents were informed of this by the school, but they support her position. Each day that E.M. arrives to class with her backpack she is given a detention slip for disobedience; she refuses to serve detention. In his certification, superintendent of schools Dr. Dalen Showalter expresses "grave concerns" that this continued open defiance will undermine the school's authority.

On January 15, 1996, petitioner convened a hearing to review the matter. At the conclusion of the proceeding, it supported the rule and upheld the ongoing discipline being imposed. The ruling has not altered E.M.'s conduct. This is the substance of the record.

To establish entitlement to emergency relief, petitioner must show a reasonable likelihood of success on the merits, that there is no adequate remedy at law, that it will suffer greater hardship if relief is denied than will E.M. if relief is granted, and that in the absence of redress, it will be irreparably harmed. Crowe v. De Gioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-34 (1982). I do not believe that petitioner has established irreparable harm. A few injuries at the school have been attributed to backpacks and there are some references in the record to petitioner's fire safety concerns. This latter question would seriously join the issue, but petitioner has not supported its assertion with an affidavit from an appropriate fire prevention official. C.M. placed into the record reports of recent fire safety inspections conducted at William Annin which note egress violations, but say nothing of backpacks as the source of the problem.

Petitioner argues finally that open defiance of school policy threatens a broader breakdown of discipline. There is nothing in the record to support such foreboding. This is a case about an eighth grader resisting authority over a minor school rule. I am not persuaded that immediate and total conformity is urgently required. If other parents and children do not understand, then it is the kind of learning opportunity that civics teachers pray for.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that petitioner has failed to establish the prerequisites for emergency relief and it is ORDERED that this petition be DENIED. An expedited plenary hearing will be scheduled for March 12, 1996.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

OAL. DKT. NO. EDU 261-96

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF BERNARDS TOWNSHIP, SOMERSET COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
C.M., individually and as parent of minor child, E.M.,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this emergent matter and the initial decision and Order of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. By letter dated February 1, 1996, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes accorded the parties until February 7, 1996 and February 8, 1996, respectively, for the filing of exceptions and reply exceptions to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) decision and Order. Exceptions of petitioner Board (hereinafter Board) were timely filed as were replies thereto by respondents.

The Board's exceptions urge that the ALJ erred in categorizing the issue herein as a student's infraction of a "minor" rule, thereby denying the within motion on the basis of the Board's failure to establish irreparable harm. In reaching this conclusion, the Board asserts that the ALJ failed to accord proper consideration to the certifications, included in its emergent application, attesting to the injuries which have occurred and the hazards created by students' use of backpacks in the school. The Board asserts that such certifications substantiate its contention that permitting E.M.'s continued use of her backpack compromises the Board's ability to assure the safety and well-being of the students entrusted to its care. The Board further argues that, contrary to the apparent belief of the ALJ, irreparable harm has been established in that permitting E.M.'s continued defiance of a Board rule seriously jeopardizes the Board's ability to preserve school authority which is essential to the effective operation of its school. It contends > this is not simply a case about an eighth grader resisting authority over a minor school rule. This is a case about an eighth grader undermining the entire spectrum of school authority by both refusing to obey the school rule and by refusing to accept the discipline for such resistance. This blatant defiance extends beyond the parameters of one "minor" rule and impacts the overall ability of the school to maintain authority. At the very least, the principal's ability to discipline its students becomes questioned by the students and ultimately weakened. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 4)

As such, the Board maintains that it has satisfied the standards required for the granting of its requested relief and, therefore, urges the Commissioner to overturn the ALJ's Order.

In reply, respondents contend that the Board has not established irreparable harm in that the one backpack involved here can hardly constitute the injury risk alleged by the Board or "exacerbate an emergency" by blocking exits. (Respondents' Reply Exceptions at p. 2); and, although the Board asserts that respondents' position has impaired the principal's ability to discipline its students, it presents no specific instances where this has occurred. Moreover, E.M.'s certification "also indicates that school authority has not been eroded." (Id. at p. 3) Respondents further continue to challenge the foundational validity of the research and basis for the rule and object to E.M. currently being inappropriately disciplined in violation of Board policy.

Upon consideration of the record in this matter, including the audiotape of the proceedings before the ALJ, and the standards for granting of emergent relief as set forth in Crowe v.

DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), the Commissioner determines to reverse the Order of the ALJ and grant the Board's request for relief for the reasons set forth below.

Initially, with regard to the threshold question of the establishment of irreparable harm in this case, beyond which the ALJ did not reach, the Commissioner disagrees with the ALJ's conclusion that such harm has not been demonstrated. Rather, the Commissioner finds that categorization of this matter as simply "a case about an eighth grader resisting authority over a minor school rule" (Initial Decision at p. 3) unduly minimizes the situation which actually exists herein. Indeed, the Commissioner determines that, under the particular circumstances of this matter, irreparable harm is inherent and continuing and concludes that to find otherwise imposes an undue injustice upon the Board and the other students in the school and would be violative of the strong public interest in the fair administration of justice.

Specifically, the Commissioner observes that it is axiomatic that local boards of education have the authority and obligation to establish and maintain rules and regulations to assure the orderly operation of their schools. Further, students are expressly required to comply with such rules and to "submit to the authority of the teachers and others in authority over them." (See N.J.S.A. 18A:37-1.) Moreover, it is also axiomatic that duly promulgated board rules are entitled to a presumption of correctness, unless and until they are successfully challenged. In this regard, it is specifically noted that there is an established administrative mechanism in place for individuals who wish to challenge a board rule as unnecessary, unjust, or unfairly applied through the filing of a Petition of Appeal before the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24 et seq.

In the instant matter, rather than utilizing the available procedures in place to challenge a board determination with which they disagreed, respondents, instead, simply elected to defy the rule and further refused to accept the disciplinary consequences of such defiance. The Commissioner finds that to allow such acts of willful disobedience to continue creates an inherent irreparable harm in that it seriously compromises the Board's legitimate interest in assuring that rules, which it deems essential to the maintenance of order and the fulfillment of its duty to provide an environment conducive to teaching and learning, are obeyed by all students until such rules are found arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable on legitimate challenge through proper processes.

Further, the Commissioner concludes that to ignore the continued violation by this one student exacerbates the inherent irreparable harm in that such failure is inequitable and unjust to the other students in the school who are conscientiously abiding by the rule. The Commissioner notes that if a substantial number of other students were to follow the example being set by the behavior of respondent and unilaterally decide to disregard this or any other school rule with which they are displeased, the resultant effect for the District would be chaos.

Finally, public interest in the fair administration of justice further confirms the existence of inherent irreparable harm necessitating the enjoining of respondents' behavior. As previously noted, administrative remedies of review are clearly available providing respondents with an acceptable method of challenging the Board's restriction of conduct. As such, it is not unreasonable to expect compliance with the established rule herein unless and until it is successfully challenged through the appropriate procedures. (See Matter of Felmeister, 95 N.J. 431, 446.)

With respect to the remaining requirements under Crowe, supra, necessary to the granting of emergent relief in this matter, i.e., the probability of succeeding on the merits and the balancing of the equities, the Commissioner finds and determines that these have also been satisfied in the case at bar. Specifically, in order to succeed on the merits, the within Board is required to prove that the rule at issue was within its discretionary power, duly adopted, and not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The Commissioner concludes that, for purposes of emergent relief, the certifications submitted by the Board in support of its emergent application made a sufficient facial showing that this rule was duly promulgated and has a rational basis. As such, the Board has established a significant probability of prevailing on the merits of this matter.

A weighing of the equities involved here demonstrates that a greater harm would inure to the Board by permitting respondents' conduct to continue during the period prior to an ultimate determination on the merits of this matter than that which would accrue to respondent, E.M., by being enjoined from the freedom to carry her backpack throughout the school during this period.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the ALJ is reversed and the Board's Motion for Emergent Relief is granted. Respondents are hereby ordered to immediately comply with the rule herein at issue. It is further directed that this matter move forward for the scheduled expedited hearing at the OAL on the underlying merits of the Board's claims.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* The Commissioner notes that the matter of discipline imposed between the time the rule here was under appeal to the Board of Education up to the time of the Commissioner's decision, raised by respondents in their reply exceptions, is a matter to be heard on the merits and is not appropriately addressed in this emergent application.

PETITIONERS,	:	DECISION
V.	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BERLIN, CAMDEN COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parents and natural guardians of E.L. and J.N. appealed Board's determination that the children were not entitled to attend the Berlin District's schools free of charge.

Having considered the evidence and testimony presented in this matter, the ALJ concluded that petitioners were at all times domiciled in Berlin although for a period of time the father resided in Lindenwold to protect that residence from vandals. ALJ concluded E.L. and J.N.were entitled to attend the public schools in Berlin free of charge, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a).

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 86-4/95

CAROL LOMBARDO NORCROSS AND WILLIAM NORCROSS,

Petitioners,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BERLIN,
CAMDEN COUNTY,

Respondent.

Carol Lombardo Norcross and William Norcross, petitioners, pro se

William R. Powers, Jr., Esq., for respondent (Moss, Powers & Posternock, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 16, 1995 Decided: January 5, 1996*

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter commenced on April 10, 1995, when Carol Lombardo Norcross and William Norcross, as parents and natural guardians of E.L. and J.N., (hereinafter petitioners) filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education contesting the March 20, 1995

---

* An extension of time pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c) was requested and granted.

determination of the Board of Education of the Borough of Berlin (hereinafter respondent) that E.L. and J.N. were not entitled to attend the public schools of the district free of charge. An answer was filed on behalf of respondent on May 9, 1995. On May 19, 1995, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was conducted on July 19, 1995 at which time the following were identified as issues for determination at hearing:

1. Have petitioners been domiciled continuously in respondent's school district from September 1994 through the present?

2. If the answer to the previous question is no, were petitioners' children nevertheless entitled to attend the schools in respondent's district free of charge, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1d or otherwise?

3. If the answers to issues number one and two are no, what is the amount of tuition payments owed by petitioners for the time of their students' ineligible attendance in the schools?

A hearing was scheduled for September 12, 1995 at the Trenton office of the Office of Administrative Law and took place as scheduled. Following the close of testimony respondent submitted the certification of Robert Stead, Board Secretary and Business Administrator for respondent. No objection having been received to the certification, the document was marked as R-6 in evidence on October 16, 1995, whereupon the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Most of the facts relevant to a determination of this matter are not in dispute and I therefore FIND the following as uncontested facts.

Carol Ann Lombardo and William A. Norcross were married on June 18, 1988. Ms. Norcross is the mother of E.L., who was born on March 2, 1984. She is also the mother of J.N., who was born on July 27, 1988. William Norcross is the father of J.N. Prior to 1992, Mr. & Mrs. Norcross and the two children resided at 32 New Freedom Road, with Mrs. Norcross's mother, Marion Lombardo, who is the owner of that property. In or about 1990, Marion Lombardo had purchased another property at 2119 Brighton Avenue, Lindenwold, New Jersey. That property was purchased as an investment; the purchase price was $52,000 and the intention was to fix up the house and to sell it and make money. At first the property was not habitable and Mr. Norcross would travel back and forth from the house in Berlin to work on the property. After the property became habitable, a friend of Mrs. Norcross and the friend's two children stayed in the property; Mr. Norcross continued to work on improving it. When Mrs. Norcross's friend and her children moved out of the property, Mr. Norcross moved in to protect the property from vandalism while he continued to work on the improvements. Shortly thereafter, Mrs. Lombardo listed the property for sale with a real estate broker. Mr. Norcross continued to reside in the property to protect it from vandals.

Commencing with the time Mr. Norcross first moved into the Brighton Avenue property, Mrs. Norcross would pick the children up after school in Berlin and take them to the Brighton Avenue property where Mr. Norcross would watch them while she continued to work at her job as a travel agent. After work Mrs. Norcross would join her husband and children for dinner at the Brighton Avenue property; after dinner she returned the children to the house in Berlin. Sometimes Mrs. Norcross would spend the night in Berlin and sometimes she would spend the night in Lindenwold. The children never slept at the house in Lindenwold nor did they have any clothes there. Petitioners continued to support their children; Mrs. Lombardo did not contribute to their support. At sometime during 1992 Mrs. Norcross had the Brighton Avenue address put on her driver's license. Her automobile registration remained at the New Freedom Road address in Berlin. The telephone at the Brighton Avenue property was listed in the name C.A. Lombardo from approximately 1992 to 1994. Mr. and Mrs. Norcross each received mail at both addresses. Although the property has been listed for sale with real estate brokers for quite some time, it remains unsold.

By letter dated December 22, 1993, Carolyn Baechtle, Ed. D., Superintendent of respondent's school district, wrote to petitioners as follows:

> It has been brought to our attention that your family does not live in Berlin Borough. As you know, only legal residents of the Borough can attend Berlin Community School. We can assist you in the transfer process providing transfer cards and discussing the academic programs with the staff in the proper school district. Should you have any questions regarding this matter, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Petitioners responded with a certification of Marion Lombardo dated January 6, 1994, which provided:

> This is to verify Carol Ann Lombardo Norcross family, mother to E.L. and J.N., have always and do reside with me at 32 New Freedom Road, Berlin, New Jersey 08009

Apparently there was no further inquiry on behalf of respondent until December 7, 1994 when Dr. Baechtle again wrote to petitioners questioning their residence. The December 7, 1994 letter was sent to petitioners at the Brighton Avenue address. The certified mail return receipt card was signed Carol Ann Norcross on December 19, 1994. On February 22, 1995, counsel for respondent wrote to petitioners at the Brighton Avenue address and advised them that respondent would be considering the issue of their residency at a meeting on March 16, 1995. The certified mail return receipt card for that letter was signed on February 23, 1995. Petitioners did not attend the March 16, 1995 meeting. Thereafter by letter dated March 20, 1995, sent to petitioners at the Brighton Avenue, Lindenwold address, respondent's counsel advised that petitioners' children were no longer entitled to attend respondent's schools free of charge. The within matter followed. This concludes the recitation of uncontested facts.

Carol Ann Lombardo Norcross testified that the property at Brighton Avenue, Lindenwold, is still for sale. Because of the within proceedings, however, her husband no longer stays in that house; it is vacant and it has been vandalized, she said. She testified that she and her husband never intended to live in the house; the arrangement was one merely to protect the property until it was sold. She offered as P-10 in evidence a copy of a Bell Atlantic telephone bill for a telephone she had installed at 32 New Freedom Road in her name in May 1995. She also offered copies of her driver's license which has listed her residence again as 32 New Freedom Road since December 19, 1994. She also indicated that she had registered to vote from 32 New Freedom Road in May 1995; prior to that time she had not been registered to vote anywhere. She noted that R-4 in evidence, the letter from respondent's counsel dated March 20, 1995, erroneously recites that she had admitted to Dr. Baechtle that she was living in Lindenwold. She indicated that this was not an accurate statement of fact, that after she had received either Dr. Baechtle's December 19, 1994 letter or Mr. Powers' February 1995 letter she had gone to Dr. Baechtle's office but it was to show her that her current driver's license listed her address as 32 New Freedom Road.

William A. Norcross testified that he moved out of the home in Lindenwold in May 1995 and since that time he has always stayed at the 32 New Freedom Road address. He indicated that it had never been his intention to remain in the house in Lindenwold on any permanent basis; he said he did not even like the house. He indicated that he had listed the Brighton Avenue address on his driver's license at the advice of his insurance agent, and he acknowledged that in fact his license still says Lindenwold because he has not changed it yet. Finally, he indicated that in January or February 1995 all of the insurance records had been changed back to reflect 32 New Freedom Road as his address.

Both Carol Ann Lombardo Norcross and William A. Norcross were candid, sincere and credible witnesses. Respondent offered no evidence to controvert either of their testimony. I therefore FIND the facts set forth in their testimony as additional relevant facts in this matter.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, the statute relevant to a determination in this matter, provides in pertinent part:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over 5 and under 20 years of age:
>
> (a) Any person who is domiciled within the school district;
>
> . . .
>
> (b)(2) If the superintendent or administrative principal of a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district and the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the superintendent of administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. The parent or guardian shall be entitled to a hearing before the board and if in the judgment of the board the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the district or the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. . . .

Respondent contends that William A. Norcross was domiciled in Lindenwold during the 1994-95 school year. Respondent then concludes that petitioners' daughter J.N. was therefore also domiciled in Lindenwold regardless of where she actually lived, citing Mansfield Twp. Bd. of Ed. v. State Bd., 101 N.J.L. 474 (Sup. Ct. 1925) for the proposition that "(t)he permanent residence of the father is that of the child, until the latter is emancipated and chooses a place of residence of its own." Respondent also cites Lea v. Lea, 18 N.J. 1 (1955) and argues that E.L.'s domicile was also Lindenwold even though Mr. Norcross is not his father because he would take his domicile from his mother and the "domicile of a wife and children is that of her husband, in the absence of a marital offense which would create in her a right to a separate domicile." Respondent also cites, inter alia, Kowalski v. Wojtkowski, 19 N.J. 247 (1955), wherein the Court stated, "The domicile of origin 'comes into being as soon as the child becomes at birth an independent person; and if the child is legitimate the domicil is that of the father,' but if the child is illegitimate it takes its mother's domicile; . . ." Id. at 258. It is petitioners' position, on the other hand, that at all times they have been domiciled at 32 New Freedom Road, Berlin, although for a time period preceding May 1995, Mr. Norcross did reside at 2119 Brighton Avenue, Lindenwold, and Mrs. Norcross occasionally resided there also. The uncontroverted evidence in this matter clearly supports petitioners' position.

An individual may have many residences, if he or she is financially able to do so, but can have only one domicile. Miller vs. U.S. Fidel. & Guar. Co., 127 N.J. Super. 37, 42 (App. Div. 1974); Continos v. Parsekian, 68 N.J. Super. 54, 58-59 (App. Div. 1961); DiFiore v. Erie-Lackawanna R.R. Co., 67 N.J. Super. 267 (Law Div. 1961).

> "The domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving. . . . Home is the place where a person dwells and which is the center of his domestic, social and civil life. . . . Thus, the concepts of home and domicile mean more than physical residence. They also embody the subject's objective and subjective relationship to that residence." Matter of Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374-5 (Law Div. 1991); See also, In re Jaffe, 74 N.J. 86, 90-91 (1977).

Although petitioners' burden in this matter requires them to establish entitlement to attend the public schools free of charge only by a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence, the evidence in this matter clearly and convincingly demonstrates that petitioners never intended to make 2119 Brighton Avenue, Lindenwold their home; the purpose of Mr. Norcross's temporary residence was merely to keep the property safe while it was being improved and pending sale. The fact that petitioners used 2119 Brighton Avenue, Lindenwold, as a temporary residence does not deprive their children of the right to a free public education from the district in which they are domiciled. As the Court explained in State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 251 (1955):

> "Residence, on the other hand, though parallel in many respects to domicile, is something quite different in that the elements of permanency, continuity and kinship with the physical, cultural, social and political attributes which inhere in a 'home' according to our accepted understanding, are missing. Intention adequately manifested is the catalyst which converts a residence from a mere place in which a person lives to a domicile. Where a person has two homes in which he lives and between which he divides his time, it is still his intention which creates one or the other as his domicile."

Because I have CONCLUDED that William Norcross and Carol Ann Lombardo Norcross have at all times been domiciled at 32 New Freedom Road, Berlin, it is not necessary to address the cases cited by respondent which set forth rules for determining a child's domicile. I note, however, that extreme care should be exercised in citing those "rules;" wives and children are no longer considered property of the husband and in fact those rules are generally useful only when the child actually resides with neither parent. As Judge LeFelt commented in V.R. On Behalf of A.R. v. Bd. of Ed. of Boro. of Hamburg, 2 N.J.A.R. 283 (1980):

> The law establishing an infant's domicile seems based on the rationale that an unemancipated person receives his or her custody, support and maintenance from the father, regardless of the child's physical location. E.g., Commonwealth ex. rel Human v. Hyman, 64 (1949); Commonwealth ex. rel Welsh v. Welsh, 96 Pa. Super. 426 (1929); Pieretti v. Pieretti, 13 N.J. Misc. 98 (Ch. Div. 1935). Changing times should, therefore, affect the domicile law only when > the factual situation presented undercuts this rationale. For example, the rising recognition of women's independence is reflected in the Conflict of Law Restatement, Second Sec. 21 (1971) where a wife, under special circumstances, may have a different domicile from her husband, even if she is living with him. Thus, in cases where a child lives with either parent who is separated from a spouse, the rationale that custody, support and maintenance rests with the father in all cases may be undercut by the facts. Walton v. Board of Education of the City of Brigantine, 51 S.L.D. 39 (1950-51). (Sic) . . .

See also, M.A.M., as Parent and Natural Guardian of M.M., v. Board of Education of the Black Horse Pike Regional School District, 1974 S.L.D. 845 for an excellent discussion of the difference between domicile and residence as it applies to the right of children of a father who is temporarily residing elsewhere to attend the schools of their actual domicile free of charge. In that case the children were even residing with the father temporarily elsewhere while the mother remained in the domicile.

For all of the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that petitioners' children are entitled and at all times relevant have been entitled to attend the public schools in respondent's district free of charge, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a).

For the reasons expressed herein, respondent is ORDERED to permit E.L. and J.N. to continue to be enrolled in their schools free of charge.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the appeal of the petitioner, June A. Seifred, from her disqualification from employment as a school bus driver pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and 18A:39-19.1.

By letter dated May 12, 1995, the Department of Education (Department) determined that the petitioner was disqualified from employment as a school bus driver. The petitioner filed an appeal and on August 2, 1995, the State Board of Education remanded the matter to the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) for a hearing. On September 25, 1995, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The hearing took place on November 22, 1995, and the record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND the facts in this matter are not in dispute.

In December 1994, the petitioner got a job as a school bus driver with the George Dapper Bus Company. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and 18A:39-19.1, school bus drivers are subject to a criminal history record check. Through this check, the Department was informed that the petitioner was arrested for the possession of narcotic equipment and dangerous drugs on March 22, 1985, and was ordered on January 14, 1986, to pay a $1,750 fine. On October 5, 1985, the petitioner was arrested for the possession of marijuana and was sentenced on March 6, 1986, to one year of probation and a $175 fine. On November 23, 1985, the petitioner was arrested for the possession of dangerous drugs and was sentenced on May 30, 1986, to five years of probation and a $150 fine. By letter dated October 30, 1995, Florence Caporaso stated that she was a probation volunteer and that Ms. Seifred reported to her while on probation. Ms. Caporaso stated that while on probation, Ms. Seifred got married and had a daughter, and that she demonstrated that she is well-organized and a devoted mother. According to Ms. Caporaso, the petitioner's excellent attitude resulted in the early termination of her probationary period (three years instead of five). Also, the petitioner presented a certificate of rehabilitation with a declaration that the petitioner's employment as a school bus driver would not be incompatible with the welfare of society, signed by Dennis W. Beyes, chief of probation (R-1p).

By letter dated February 10, 1995, the Department notified the petitioner that its check had revealed a criminal record and gave the petitioner the opportunity to challenge the accuracy of the criminal record or to establish rehabilitation.

In response to the Department's letter, the petitioner admitted the convictions but argued that she has been rehabilitated. As stated, the Department decided that the petitioner was disqualified due to the drug convictions and that she had not shown rehabilitation. The petitioner filed an appeal with the State Board of Education. In its decision, the State Board of Education concluded that the petitioner's written submission presented significant evidence of rehabilitation; however, the board remanded the matter for a hearing so that the petitioner would have ample opportunity to present a record to support her representation of rehabilitation.

Ms. Seifred filed a request for a stay which was granted by the Department by letter dated May 31, 1995. Ms. Seifred is still employed by George Dapper Inc. Margaret McGinness, the assistant manager of the company, in a letter dated August 11, 1995, wrote that Ms. Seifred is a good worker and there have been no complaints regarding her driving. Also, Russell H. Mancino, a fellow employee and friend, wrote that Ms. Seifred acts in a professional manner while at work and that he has seen no indication that she uses any drugs.

At the hearing, Ms. Seifred stated that she is thirty-four years old, divorced and supports her eight-year-old daughter. According to Ms. Seifred, in 1985 she was using drugs and had friends who used drugs. She said that since then, she has completely changed her life; she has new friends who do not use drugs, and she has devoted her life to being a good mother and participating in her daughter's school-related activities. Ms. Seifred introduced into evidence a certificate documenting her involvement in a workshop conducted by the Effective Parenting Information for Children group and a certificate of appreciation for service during the 1994-95 school year issued by the Woodbridge Township Board of Education.

For several years prior to getting a commercial driver's license and becoming a bus driver, Ms. Seifred worked as a baby-sitter for a number of people. Three parents submitted letters attesting to her competency and responsibility as a baby-sitter. In addition, two of her neighbors submitted letters indicating that Ms. Seifred is a good mother and does not now use drugs.

Carmel and Robert Garrone, the petitioner's parents, testified that the petitioner was involved in drugs and associated with drug users in 1985. They both testified that she has changed her life-style, now has different friends and is an excellent mother. The petitioner currently lives with her parents, and they both testified that she no longer uses drugs.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e), a person with a criminal record will not be disqualified from being a school bus driver if said person shows clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. This section sets forth a number of factors to be considered in determining whether the person had affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation. These factors are:

(1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense:

(3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

(4) The date of the offense;

(5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;

(6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.

Having reviewed the testimony and the documents admitted into evidence, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation.

Although Ms. Seifred had three drug convictions, the criminal activity occurred during one year - 1985, and she has had no arrests or convictions since then. She has successfully completed her probationary period and she no longer uses drugs. Since 1985, the petitioner has become a mother and has shown her commitment to being an excellent mother. She has also shown that she was a responsible baby-sitter for several years and now is a competent school bus driver.

Therefore, I ORDER that the petitioner is not disqualified from employment as a school bus driver.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE	:
DISQUALIFICATION FROM		COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT OF	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner adopts the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that Ms. Seifred has demonstrated rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1 et seq. and is, therefore, qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Ms. Seifred is deemed qualified for school employment as a bus driver for the reasons articulated in the initial decision. This matter is hereby transmitted to the State Board of Education which has retained jurisdiction pursuant to its decision of August 2, 1995.

Petitioner,

v.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

Respondent.

Ernest W. Chester, Jr., petitioner, pro se

New Jersey State Department of Education, respondent appearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.6(a)

Record Closed: November 22, 1995 Decided: January 5, 1995

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the appeal of the petitioner, Ernest W. Chester, Jr., as to his disqualification from school employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

By letter dated March 2, 1995, the Department of Education (Department) determined that the petitioner was disqualified. The petitioner filed an appeal and on July 7, 1995, the State on July 7, 1995, the State Board of Education remanded the matter to the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) for a hearing. On September 20, 1995, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The hearing took place on November 22, 1995, and the record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND the facts in this matter are not in dispute.

In 1991, the petitioner got a job as a counselor/teacher aide with the Family Guidance Center Corporation (Center), a private school for handicapped students. Mr. Chester was an assistant group leader for boys from ages eight to twelve. The school is under the supervision of the Department and pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, all employees of the school are subject to a criminal history record check. This check revealed that the petitioner had been arrested for the possession of marijuana in July 1989 and pled guilty to the offense on June 12, 1991. He was ordered to pay fines and costs totaling $605 and his driver's license was suspended for six months. The petitioner did not pay the $605, and a warrant was issued against him on January 16, 1992.

By letter dated July 11, 1994, the Department notified the petitioner that its check had revealed a criminal record and it gave the petitioner thirty days in which to challenge the accuracy of the criminal record or to establish rehabilitation. Mr. Chester did not respond within thirty days, and in September 1994 the Center was notified of his disqualification from school employment. The Center terminated Mr. Chester's employment due to the disqualification letter and his use of drugs during the period he was employed by the Center.

Mr. Chester submitted a letter to the Department dated October 25, 1994, in which he admitted that he had been arrested for the possession of marijuana and pled guilty, and that initially he was financially unable to pay the fine. According to the petitioner, he was not aware that a warrant had been issued against him and he paid the fine on October 12, 1994. Also in his letter, the petitioner stated that he was almost twenty-four years old at the time of his arrest and that he "was not in the habit of abusing substances on a regular basis" and had "not been in any trouble with drugs or any other dangerous substance" (R-1h). Along with his letter, Mr. Chester submitted a letter from Princeton House dated November 14, 1994, stating that he was in its Intensive Outpatient Program for chemical dependency, and a letter from the Center dated November 23, 1994, stating that any future employment was conditioned on the completion of his rehabilitation program and the outcome of the disqualification appeal.

As already stated, the Department decided that the petitioner was disqualified from school employment due to the drug conviction pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(b), and that he had not shown rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e). While the petitioner's appeal was pending before the State Board of Education, Deputy Attorney General Geraldine Callahan submitted a brief in which she argued that the disqualification should be upheld since the petitioner did not present clear and convincing evidence of rehabilitation. She noted that Mr. Chester had a recent drug conviction and that as a teacher aide he would work closely with young students. Also, Ms. Callahan noted that while the letter Mr. Chester submitted from Princeton House clearly states that he has a chemical dependency problem, in his October 25, 1994 letter to the Department Mr. Chester denied being a substance abuser.

At the hearing, Mr. Chester stated that he is now thirty years old, single and helps support his three-year-old daughter. According to Mr. Chester, he had to leave college during his second year and slowly started to use drugs because of his disappointment about not completing college. At the time, all of his friends were using drugs. He said that up until his suspension from the Center, he had been in denial; he had refused to admit that he had a problem. He went to Princeton House in November of 1994 for an evaluation of his drug problem and Princeton House recommended its Intensive Outpatient Program for twelve weeks. Mr. Chester was unable to complete the program because his insurance ran out; however, he now attends Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) and Narcotics Anonymous (NA) meetings and goes to a Trenton detox center.

According to Mr. Chester, he has been drug-free for about one year, and he has changed his life. He no longer associates with friends who use drugs. Currently he is working for a temporary employment service, and he would like to get his job back with the Center, which he said was the best job he ever had. Mr. Chester feels that he can help the students entrusted to him.

Mae Chester-Hall, the petitioner's mother, testified that she initially did not know that her son had a drug problem. She said that her son has recognized his problem and has changed his life-style. He is about to become a father for the second time, and his desire to be a good father and to work with children at the Center prompted this behavior change.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e), a person with a criminal record will not be disqualified from school employment if said person shows clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. This section sets forth a number of factors to be considered in determining whether the person had affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation. These factors are:

(1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense:

(3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

(4) The date of the offense;

(5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;

(6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.

Having reviewed the testimony and the documents admitted into evidence, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation at this time.

Although Mr. Chester's only conviction for possession of drugs was several years ago, he admittedly continued to use drugs until 1994, including times he was working with children at the Center.

Mr. Chester did not complete the chemical dependency program at Princeton House; however, he states that he has been drug-free for one year and that he is still getting help by attending AA and NA meetings. He claims that he has stopped associating with friends using drugs and recognizes that he needs to be drug-free to be a good father and to get another job working with children. Although Mr. Chester has shown that he has taken affirmative steps towards rehabilitation, insufficient time has past since he stopped using drugs for him to show rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. This is true especially since Mr. Chester wants a job counseling children.

Therefore, I ORDER that the petitioner is disqualified from school employment.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8585-95

IN THE MATTER OF THE	:
DISQUALIFICATION FROM	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT OF	:	DECISION
ERNEST W. CHESTER, JR.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions submitted by Mr. Chester were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. l:1-18.4.

Mr. Chester's exceptions request the Commissioner to overturn the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) decision disqualifying him from school employment. He states that he is currently attending counseling sessions at the Catholic Charities in Trenton and advises that he would agree to be tested for drugs at any time in order to remain in his school position which challenges him in so many creative ways.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner adopts the findings and conclusion of the ALJ that Mr. Chester has not demonstrated rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and is not, therefore, qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws. In so concluding, the Commissioner was particularly cognizant of the nature of the position

Mr. Chester seeks to occupy, i.e., counselor/teacher aide, one with direct responsibility for the care, supervision or instruction of students with behavioral problems. Further, the observation made by the ALJ on page 5 of her initial decision "Although Mr. Chester's only conviction for possession of drugs was several years ago, he admittedly continued to use drugs until 1994, including times he was working with children at the Center." (emphasis added) was particularly troubling given the Commissioner's obligation to ensure that the students of this state are provided with school environments which are safe and free of alcohol and drugs.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL sustaining Mr. Chester's disqualification from school employment is affirmed for the reasons stated therein. This matter is hereby transmitted to the State Board of Education which has retained jurisdiction pursuant to its decision of July 5, 1995.

IN THE MATTER OF THE DISQUALIFI- : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
CATION FROM SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT : DECISION OF W.M.M.B. :

Decided by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, July 26, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, W.M.M.B., pro se

W.M.M.B. (hereinafter "petitioner"), who was employed as a teacher's aide at a private, non-profit school for autistic children, was disqualified by the Office of Criminal History Review of the Department of Education from continued employment in the State's schools when a fingerprint search conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 revealed that she had been arrested in March 1988 and subsequently convicted for possession of cocaine. The record review also revealed convictions following arrests for several nondisqualifying offenses: larceny/forgery in 1987, larceny in 1988, and shoplifting in December 1991. Petitioner sought to overturn her disqualification on the basis of rehabilitation.

In a letter decision dated July 26, 1996, the Deputy Commissioner of Education upheld the disqualification,[1] concluding that petitioner had failed to demonstrate clear

[1] We note that N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 authorizes the Commissioner to "designate an assistant commissioner as deputy commissioner with full power to act in his place and stead during any absence or inability of the commissioner and at such other times as the commissioner may designate." Such authority expressly includes assignment by the Commissioner of the "hearing and determination of controversies and disputes which may arise under the school laws...." N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34.

11/6/96

and convincing evidence of her rehabilitation as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. The Deputy Commissioner found that petitioner's evidence of rehabilitation was "significantly less persuasive...given your recent and subsequent nondisqualifying conviction which occurred in 1991."

Petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board of Education.

After a thorough review of the record, we reverse the decision of the Deputy Commissioner. We find that petitioner has demonstrated clear and convincing evidence of her rehabilitation.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 provides, in pertinent part:

> e. Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, an individual shall not be disqualified from employment or service under this act on the basis of any conviction disclosed by a criminal record check performed pursuant to this act if the individual has affirmatively demonstrated to the Commissioner of Education clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. In determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation, the following factors shall be considered:
>
> 1. The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;
> 2. The nature and seriousness of the offense;
> 3. The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
> 4. The date of the offense;
> 5. The age of the individual when the offense was committed;
> 6. Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
> 7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
> 8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.

Petitioner's submissions to the Deputy Commissioner include a letter from the Director of Education at the school in which she had been employed prior to her disqualification, who indicates that petitioner "has been a responsible, caring and dependable worker. She has demonstrated patience and commitment to her students. I feel she is an asset to our program and hope she can continue to work for us." The teacher in whose classroom petitioner had served as an aide praises her as "a very conscientious and hard-working person. In the classroom [petitioner] has shown empathy and caring towards my students....[Petitioner] was and is an asset to my classroom."

The owner of a restaurant in which petitioner had been employed for four years commencing in 1990 lauds her as "a very hard and dedicated worker." He notes that "[petitioner] has worked very hard to be where she is today despite what troubles she had gone through in the past."

Petitioner's supervising probation officer indicates that she was compliant while on probation following her cocaine conviction and satisfied her obligations. He also confirms that petitioner successfully completed an outpatient substance abuse program at Children's Psychiatric Center in Eatontown.

In addition, petitioner's submissions to the Deputy Commissioner reveal that she received an associate degree from Brookdale Community College in May 1994. One of petitioner's professors underscores her academic achievements and commends her as exhibiting "maturity and understanding of the mistakes she had made in her life." Petitioner indicates that she is continuing her education at Monmouth University and expects to graduate next year. There have been no further arrests since December 1991.

Petitioner acknowledges the "poor judgments" and "bad choices" she made after moving out of her parents' house at the age of 16 in order to escape a physically abusive father. In her appeal brief, petitioner explains the shoplifting conviction by indicating that a friend, unbeknownst to her, had placed some merchandise under the seat of her stroller while they were out shopping with petitioner's child.

While the gravity of petitioner's offenses is apparent, we find that further penalization of this individual is neither a just result nor warranted under the terms of the statute. Given the uncontradicted evidence in the record, including the recommendations of petitioner's supervisors, her successful completion of a substance abuse program and her efforts to obtain a college education and work experience, we conclude that petitioner has convincingly demonstrated her rehabilitation under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e). We note further that the drug and larceny charges occurred while petitioner was 19- and 20-years-old, and that the evidence of rehabilitation submitted by petitioner covers the period subsequent to her 1991 shoplifting arrest. We note, in addition, that, as a teacher's aide, petitioner would be under the supervision of a classroom teacher.

Accordingly, in view of our finding that petitioner has demonstrated clear and convincing evidence of her rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e), we reverse the decision of the Deputy Commissioner disqualifying petitioner from service in the schools of New Jersey as a teacher's aide.

For the Board, Gloria L. Buxbaum, Esq.

This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of Petition of Appeal filed on November 3, 1995, seeking tuition reimbursement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38- 3; and

The Commissioner having directed respondents by notices dated November 9, 1995, December 12, 1995 and January 2, 1996 to file an Answer to the charges against them; and

The certified mail notice, dated January 2, 1996, having been returned unclaimed, yet there being no indication that the notices sent via regular mail did not reach respondents; and

As of this date, neither respondents, nor any attorney on their behalf, having filed an Answer to the charges against them, and each count of the charges against respondents having been deemed to be admitted; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED on this 20th day of February 1996 that summary judgment shall be granted to the Board of Education and that respondents shall pay tuition in the amount of $1,950 due the Board for the period of April, May and June of 1995 when respondents' daughter, M.B., attended free public school in Livingston as a nonresident pupil. There being no provision for the grant of attorney's fees or costs within the Commissioner's authority, said fees and costs are not herein granted. Pascack Valley Regional High School District v. NEW JERSEY STATE INTERSCHOLASTIC ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION, : DECISION

RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning student-athlete appealed action of NJSIAA prohibiting him from playing in a state championship football game to Superior Court, Chancery Division, which accepted jurisdiction of the matter and denied emergent relief. Petitioner then appealed to Superior Court Judge Michael P. King, who ordered a stay of the NJSIAA regulation and set the matter for a full appellate panel. J.C., who was disqualified for "flagrant unsportsmanlike conduct," played in the state championship game and contributed significantly to the victory. The following week, Judge King transferred the case to the Commissioner of Education for review as a controversy and dispute under school laws.

Commissioner found that petitioner failed to demonstrate by substantial credible evidence that the disqualification rule was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or that the rule was improperly applied in this case. Petition was dismissed.

J.C.,
PETITIONER, :

V. : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

NEW JERSEY STATE INTERSCHOLASTIC ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION, : DECISION

RESPONDENT. :

For Petitioner, Henry G. Broome, Jr., Esq. (Broome & Bellucci)
Harry E. Franks, Jr., Esq. (Franks & Tripician)

For Respondent, Steven P. Goodell, Esq. (Picco Herbert Kennedy)

This matter has come before the Commissioner of Education by way of an Order of Transfer from Superior Court with cover letter, supporting brief and record of court proceedings, including pleadings, on December 15, 1995, following the issuance of a stay of a New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) ruling by Judge Michael P. King, Superior Court of New Jersey, issued on December 8, 1995, restraining the NJSIAA from prohibiting a minor athlete, J.C. (Petitioner), from playing in a state championship football game. The NJSIAA decision was based on a finding that J.C. violated Special Sport Regulation set forth at Rule 2, Note 4, which states:

> a. Any Student-Athlete or coach disqualified before, during or after an interscholastic event for unsportsmanlike and flagrant verbal or physical misconduct will be disqualified from the next two (2) regularly scheduled games/meets, with the exception of football which will carry a one (1) game disqualification, at that level of competition and all other game(s)/meet(s) in the interim at any level in addition to any other penalties which the NJSIAA or a league/conference may assess.

> CL Once a coach/player has been disqualified, NO appeals will be honored from the player, coach, official or any other party. Disqualification is a judgement call and officials must be certain the act warrants disqualification. All complaints against an official must be directed to the official's Chapter Secretary and the NJSIAA. (emphasis added) (NJSIAA Handbook, 1995-6 at 81-82)

Petitioner argues that the above-stated rule (hereinafter disqualification rule) is arbitrary and capricious, thereby prohibiting the NJSIAA from imposing any suspension thereunder without first providing for an appeal process.

NJSIAA seeks for the Commissioner to uphold the disqualification rule as applied, finding that J.C. was ineligible to participate in the state championship game.

Upon careful consideration of the briefs of counsel, the videotape of December 1, 1995, Mainland-Ocean City football game, the requirements set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1 et. seq., and the Commissioner's established standard of review in NJSIAA matters, the Commissioner determined to decide this matter on the papers submitted. Upon review, the Commissioner determines that the NJSIAA's decision to deny J.C.'s eligibility did not exceed the reasonable interpretation of NJSIAA's Bylaws.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

On December 1, 1995, Mainland Regional High School played Ocean City High School in the NJSIAA South Jersey, Group III Semi-Final Championship game. Larry McKeever, one of the game officials, issued a penalty against J.C. for allegedly punching another player. J.C. was then disqualified. The game was won by Mainland, qualifying them for the state championship game the following week against Camden Woodrow Wilson High School.

Because J.C. was disqualified for reason of "flagrant unsportsmanlike conduct," J.C. was declared ineligible to play in the following week's state championship under the NJSIAA disqualification rule. (NJSIAA'S Brief at p. 5)

J.C. appealed this disqualification directly to Superior Court, Chancery Division, which accepted jurisdiction of the matter and denied emergent relief. Plaintiff then appealed to Superior Court Judge Michael King, who conducted an evening hearing where he reviewed the videotape and heard oral argument and entered a stay of the NJSIAA regulation. Judge King then set the matter for decision by a full appellate panel.

The following day, J.C. played football and, according to published reports, contributed significantly to Mainland's ultimate victory. The following week, Judge King remanded the case to the Commissioner of Education for decision.

APPLICABLE LAW

The NJSIAA is a voluntary association. The Commissioner's scope of review in NJSIAA determinations is an appellate one. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3; Board of Education of the City of Camden v. NJSIAA, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 182, 188. The Commissioner may not overturn an action by the NJSIAA in applying eligibility rules absent a finding that the Association applied the rules in a patently arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner. B.C. v. Cumberland Regional School District, 220 N.J. Super. 214, 231-232 (App. Div. 1987). Further, the burden of proof that an action was so deficient rests with the person challenging the decision. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 297 (App. Div. 1960). In such cases, the Commissioner may not substitute his judgment for that of the Association, even when he might judge otherwise in a de novo review. Dam Jin Koh and Hong Jun Kim v. NJSIAA, 1987 S.L.D. 259.

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

In his papers, J.C. first argues that the disqualification rule is arbitrary and capricious. J.C. requests that in reviewing this rule, the Commissioner remain mindful that it evolved from the National Federation Soccer Rules, which fact is critical, in that soccer officials utilize a yellow card warning system, which provides individuals with a warning prior to issuance of a red card ejection. In NJSIAA's application of the rule, no warning was issued and there is no provision for any yellow card warning system or its equivalent under NJSIAA rules. (Petitioner's Brief at pp. 3-4)

J.C. further avers that game officials are provided with no objective criteria in applying the rule to determine whether to eject a student-athlete. The rule only requires that "prudent judgment" be exercised, which was not utilized in the present case. (Id. at p. 4) J.C. argues that the rule proscribes "a right without a remedy" which is disfavored in the law.

NJSIAA argues that the Commissioner of Education has jurisdiction over this matter, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3, and that Superior Court should not have accepted jurisdiction.

NJSIAA next argues that the disqualification rule has been consistently upheld by the Commissioner as reasonable and that it was created for several important purposes which are set forth below along with petitioner's arguments to invalidate such reasons.

NJSIAA's first stated reason is that the rule discourages unsportsmanlike conduct and warns players and coaches "upfront" of possible problems if they don't govern themselves accordingly, thus, preventing dangerous or harmful acts from occurring in the first place. (NJSIAA's Brief at p. 10) Petitioner states that there is no indication that J.C. even participated in unsportsmanlike conduct and, therefore, the rule is not applicable. Further, J.C. argues that the rule does not differentiate between offenses and this alleged conduct should not be equated with the more serious conduct of instigating a melee or possession of a weapon. (Petitioner's Brief at p. 5)

NJSIAA next argues that the rule helps insulate officials from pressure by partisan fans to change or reverse a judgment call since all disqualification decisions are "hotly contested." NJSIAA's Brief at p. 10) Petitioner, in contrast, argues that while the aforementioned argument may apply to the game in which alleged unsportsmanlike conduct occurred, it certainly does not apply to subsequent games. Moreover, petitioner argues that the pressure must be balanced against the harm to student-athletes. (Petitioner's Brief at p. 5)

Thirdly, NJSIAA avers that the rule allows for the game to be decided on the field -- not in the courts, so that the game results are final and not subject to revision. (NJSIAA's Brief at p. 10) Contrarily, petitioner argues that the disqualification rule should only apply in the game where the alleged unsportsmanlike conduct occurred and not to subsequent games. It is J.C.'s contention that an independent review should be conducted before subsequent game suspension. (emphasis in text) (Petitioner's Brief at p. 5) J.C. further argues that NJSIAA's contention that games should be decided on the field is disingenuous in that NJSIAA's director has stated his intention to institute legal action to strip Mainland Regional of its championship -- a position clearly at odds with any claim that games be "decided on the field." (emphasis in text) (Petitioner's Brief at p. 6)

Fourth, NJSIAA argues that the rule prevents second guessing of judgment calls by people who were not in a position to see what the official saw at the time. Videotapes are invariably inconclusive as they do not show the event from the same perspective that the game official had. (NJSIAA's Brief at p. 11) Petitioner contends this argument is arbitrary in that it assumes the game official was in the position to know the tenor and atmosphere of the contest at the time of the ejection. J.C. avers, rather, that officials should be able to revise their determinations upon further review. (Petitioner's Brief at p. 7)

The NJSIAA's fifth and sixth reasons in support of the rule are that providing hearings for each of the 732 yearly disqualifications is burdensome and costly. (NJSIAA's Brief at p. 11) Petitioner, however, disagrees and proposes a balancing test. J.C. says the Court must first look at the burden upon the student wrongfully barred from participating in the state championship game because it is hurtful -- a student is being denied the opportunity to perform before college scouts, etc. Furthermore, J.C. contends the cost factor should not relieve NJSIAA from providing hearings as it contends discovery would discount NJSIAA's claim that it has insufficient funds to provide hearings (Petitioner's Brief at p. 8) J.C. further argues that the cost of hearings would not bankrupt the NJSIAA if it changed its rule to require each member school to provide a representative to conduct two reviews of automatic suspensions per year. This would create only a minimal burden on representatives and no cost to NJSIAA. (Id. at p. 9)

Seventh, NJSIAA says the rule prevents the imposition of harsher and more severe penalties for improper conduct because in some instances a student could be expelled for unsportsmanlike conduct rather than simple suspension from subsequent athletic contests. (NJSIAA's Brief at p. 12) It also argues that the rule is essential and has been soundly endorsed by its member schools. It argues that when J.C. and other interscholastic athletes and coaches voluntarily participate in NJSIAA contests, they do so with full knowledge of the disqualification rule. (Id.)

NJSIAA continues by citing several cases wherein the Commissioner upheld the validity of the NJSIAA disqualification rule. Petitioner distinguishes the cases discussed by NJSIAA as inapplicable in this case. Petitioner argues, in the instant case, the facts are contested, in that J.C. did not participate in the alleged unsportsmanlike conduct whereas, in the cases presented by NJSIAA students did undertake the alleged unsportsmanlike conduct.

NJSIAA summarizes stating that the disqualification rule must be enforced since a camera is unable to go where the game official is able to go and that the game films show that the official was positioned to make his call. Moreover, it argues that the official's position had not changed after viewing the films. (NJSIAA's Brief at p. 17) Thus, the NJSIAA argues that the disqualification rule was properly applied against J.C. on December 1, 1995. (Id.)

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Upon careful consideration of the arguments presented and review of the record, the Commissioner finds that the record herein is sufficient to establish that the NJSIAA's determination was not arbitrary, capricious or otherwise improper and that the Association's reasons set forth for enacting the disqualification rule are rational and purposeful.

In so finding, the Commissioner notes that it is not his position to determine whether the unbecoming conduct occurred, as the NJSIAA rule delegates this determination to game officials and therefore, no review is warranted, or proper, in this forum.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth herein, the Commissioner finds that petitioner has failed to demonstrate by substantial credible evidence that the disqualification rule is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or that the rule was improperly applied in the instant case. Thus, the Commissioner adopts as his own those findings and conclusions of the NJSIAA in this matter and dismisses the Petition of Appeal.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, residents of the District and parents of pupils attending nonpublic schools, sought a determination that the Board failed to provide a reasonable, safe bus stop for their children who were transported by the Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1. Matter was opened before the New Jersey Superior Court, Law Division and transferred to the Commissioner of Education who transmitted the matter to OAL.

ALJ found that under the circumstances of this matter, the transportation policy of the Board was discriminatory on its face. No public school pupil in the District was forced to walk on an unsafe county highway as the nonpublic pupils were. Although safety is the responsibility of the municipality, not the school district, the Board should have known when it established the bus stops that there was no safe way to walk to those stops. ALJ concluded the Board must provide safe transportation to qualifying nonpublic school pupils or reimburse the parents in the amount of $675 per pupil per year or the amount determined pursuant to Section 2 of P.L. 1981, c. 57 (N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1a), effective September 1, 1995.

Commissioner modified the initial decision and remanded the matter to OAL for further proceedings. Commissioner found that the Board did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 and did not act in bad faith with respect to its statutory obligations. Commissioner reiterated that the provision for safe conditions of travel to and from the bus stops is a municipal function. Commissioner did remand matter to OAL for resolution as to the scope of the issue(s) remanded by the Superior Court, and, specifically, for a determination of whether petitioners' constitutional claim as to differential treatment of nonpublic pupils was properly before the ALJ.

Record Closed: November 27, 1995 Decided: January 11, 1996

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

The petitioners, residents of Bernards Township and parents of pupils attending nonpublic schools, seek a determination that the respondent Board of Education has failed to provide a reasonable, safe bus stop for their children who are transported by the respondent Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 and regulations adopted to further the legislative intent.

This matter was opened before the New Jersey Superior Court, Law Division, the Honorable Katherine R. Dupuis, JSC, presiding. Judge Dupuis transferred the matter to the Commissioner of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. The matter was heard on October 26, 1995 in the Bridgewater Municipal Court. Counsel timely filed posthearing submissions and the record closed on November 27, 1995.

PAROL AND DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE

Virginia Darche, one of the petitioners, testified. She has resided at 50 Butternut Lane since June 1993. She and her husband have five children ranging in age from six months to nine years. In June 1993, her oldest child finished first grade. Before the family moved into the development, the witness called the district's transportation supervisor and asked where her children's bus stop would be. She was informed that it would be at the corner of Childs and Hardscrabble Roads. The witness believed the area was unsafe and drove her child to school for the last three weeks of the term.

In August 1993, the witness applied for transportation services for her children. She received a bus pass in the mail. The bus stop for 1993-94 was designated as Childs Road and Lakeside Slope. This is further from the petitioner's home than the originally designated bus stop. The new bus stop is approximately 1.1 miles from the petitioner's home.

The petitioner traced the path a child would walk from her home to the designated bus stop (P-1). There are no sidewalks in the development and none on the county road upon which the children would have to walk. Hardscrabble Road is narrow, winding, wooded and has no real shoulder on either side.

The island formed at Childs and Hardscrabble Roads is surrounded by paved roads and has a utility pole on it. The witness advised the Board and stated at hearing that an automobile cannot safely stop to let off a child at the small triangle which is perhaps four feet on a side.

The area at the next assigned stop, Lakeside Slope at Childs Road, has a small island area formed where Lakeside Slope splits to meet the county highway. There are no curbs or sidewalks in the immediate area. To the right side of the triangle is a pond and there are three homes nearby on Hardscrabble Road. Lakeside Slope is unpaved at that point. To the left there are newspaper and mailboxes. Again, the witness did not use the assigned bus stop because she believed it to be unsafe. She would not let her children walk to that point nor would she drop them off at that point. Visibility is poor at a bend in the road. There is no supervision and there is no place for an automobile to wait safely.

Throughout the 1993-94 and 1994-95 school years, the witness continued to drive her children to school. In summer 1994, she again applied to the Board for transportation. The same bus stop was designated and the witness again refused to use it.

In the 1993-94 school year, the witness tried to get the location of the bus stop changed. She was advised that the designated stop was within one and one-half miles of her home and that it satisfied legal requirements. The witness than called Assistant Superintendent Evans. She asked for information such as route data and says the information was not supplied.

Other school children in the neighborhood are picked up in the neighborhood. See P-2 through -2c. There is a cement slab approximately ten feet by twelve feet on Butternut Lane that serves as the neighborhood school bus stop.

The witness again contacted the transportation supervisor and asked why a van for children being transported to the local parochial school could not be provided. The witness says she was told that vans were full with the exception, perhaps, of one seat. It would be too expensive to bring in a van for the parochial pupils. The witness further testified that the assistant superintendent told her that the district may not lawfully exceed a cost of $675 per child per year and that bringing in a van to transport the parochial school pupils would exceed that amount.

In August 1984, the witness met with the assistant superintendent who said he could not help. The witness asked what would happen if one or more public school pupils moved into the development. The assistant superintendent said he would have to provide transportation irrespective of the cost. The witness could recall no discussion of minibus capacity.

In the prior summer, the witness had requested that the bus that serves parochial pupils on Childs Road come into the neighborhood. She was told that the bus was too big to negotiate the area. The witness has seen "regular" school buses on Hardscrabble Road, but not in the development.

Mary Hobin, also a petitioner, testified similarly. She has two children who attended parochial school grades two and three at the time she moved into the area. She recalls receiving no mailed notice of her children's school bus stop. She believes she was told orally that it would be at the island where Childs and Hardscrabble Roads meet. She has never used that bus stop because she believes it to be unsafe. Children cannot walk there and there is no place to park. The triangle is at best ten feet by eight feet.

At the end of the 1992-93 school year, the witness spoke to the district's transportation supervisor concerning minibuses. She was told that they were full, but that the supervisor would see what she could do for the 1993-94 school year. The witness filled out and submitted transportation forms for 1993-94. She received word that the bus stop assignment was at Hardscrabble and Childs Road. She immediately called Board offices.

The witness was angry because her children would be picked up at a place she considered both remote from the development and unsafe. She spoke to the assistant superintendent, explained the situation and asked for a safer stop. The assistant superintendent either wrote or called her and notified her that the bus stop would be at 236 Childs Road, which is the foot of a private driveway. The witness did not use this stop for the reasons she had already stated. Hardscrabble Road is unsafe for walking.

The witness made one attempt to use the 236 Childs Road designated spot. She parked in front of the home, but her automobile blocked traffic. It was difficult for a child to exit the car on either the left or the right side. The witness never used that stop again.

The witness again contacted the Board. A Board agent said that they would work on it. The witness also called county and state offices and asked that the situation be looked into. At this point, the $675 cap had not yet been mentioned to the witness.

The witness drove her children to school for the balance of the year. She did receive a letter from the Board standing by the assistant superintendent's decision.

The witness contacted local police and asked an officer to walk to route to the designated spot. He said that would be unnecessary because the route is plainly unsafe. The witness received a letter from the Chief of Police dated June 15, 1993 (P-4) that verifies that the area that the children would walk and the areas of the two designated stops are clearly unsafe. The witness sent a copy to the Board.

The witness later learned from the assistant superintendent and the State Department of Education that there is a $675 per pupil cap on nonpublic school pupil transportation. District officials said it would cost more than $675 per child per year to operate a minibus.

A series of letters followed. On August 28, 1992, the assistant superintendent wrote to the witness (R-1) stating it is not possible for a bus to enter Butternut Lane and that he was at that time willing to consider only a relocation of the bus stop. On October 30, the assistant superintendent again wrote stating that Township Police had confirmed that the assigned stop at 236 Childs Road is safe. If the witness did not chose to use that bus stop, no transportation reimbursement would be possible. In or about August 1993, the witness contacted the State Department of Education and expressed safety concerns. She also wrote to the Commissioner of Education. By letter dated August 18, 1993 (R-3), the State Director of Pupil Transportation appeared to agree with the District. A letter from an assistant commissioner dated September 22, 1993 (R-4), stated that safety was a concern but that the Bernards Township Board of Education was acting within the law.

The witness than wrote to the Township Engineer. A draft of her letter (R-5) was produced. She stated that for about a year and a half, her children had been assigned to an unsafe bus stop. The Board had no intention of using a small van to serve these children. In accordance with N.J.S.A. 40:48-2, the Engineer had the right to make sidewalks and street lamps available to the children for safety reasons.

The district presented its former assistant superintendent of schools. Among his duties were public and nonpublic pupil transportation. Remote pupils are eligible for transportation if they are in elementary grades and live two miles or more from school or if they are in secondary grades and live two and a half miles or more from school. There is no obligation to transport pupils under those limits. The district did have a courtesy busing program. It transported pupils within the limits, but for safety concerns. This was changed from a courtesy to a subscription program. Courtesy busing is not reimbursed by the State.

Under an agreement with the municipality, the Township pays half and the interested parents pay half of the costs of subscription busing.

Bus stops were assigned before the petitioners' case was brought. The designated stops were Lakeside at Childs and Hardscrabble at Childs. The stops were based on the number of children in an area, the time it took to reach school and safety considerations, although Board powers are limited in these areas. The Board has no control over roadways, traffic or road shoulders. It does have an obligation to bus the petitioners' children.

Transportation provided had to be within the $675 per pupil cap. There is no such limit on public pupil transportation costs.

In 1992-93, the witness became aware of complaints concerning the stop at Hardscrabble and Childs Roads. There is no place to park and wait. According to policy, the Board asked Township Police to view the area and make recommendations. Police agreed that the stop was safe. The same applied to the Lakeside at Childs stop.

A home on Lakeside Road was approved as a stop. The transportation supervisor had secured the homeowner's agreement to use that driveway.

The second location was chosen after complaints about the first. He and two other staff went to the spot and determined it to be feasible. A parent could pull in and park. Other children used that spot as a bus stop.

Minibuses serving the Butternut Lane development cost more than $675 per pupil per year. This figure is used as the basis or cost of a contracted minibus serving the area. The annual cost is divided by the number of pupils.

Board-owned vans (two) already are in use on established routes. It would be a matter simply of moving costs from one line of the budget to another. The district also advertised the route for nonpublic school pupils, but received no bids.

The witness conceded that "regular" buses are not used in the development because of their size. One end of Hardscrabble Road contains a sharp, steep turn. At the other of the road is the triangular island at which pupils would be picked up. It is not appropriate to a large bus. The witness asked the township engineer about removing the island. He took the engineer, police personnel and board employees to the area. It could not be negotiated with a 54-passenger bus. The witness asked the Township to have the island removed. This apparently created a furor as there is some historical significance to the island. In short, the Township declined to remove it.

The witness wrote to the township engineer concerning the problem on September 1, 1993 (R-6). He wrote again on the next day (R-7) concerning an emergency access lane that links Lakeside Slope and Butternut Lane. Although the road exists on paper, building material waste has been dumped in this area. The witness pointed out that it is a potential walking path to the bus stop on Childs Road. It would be beneficial and cost effective if this became a safe walkway.

On September 7, 1993, the assistant superintendent wrote to the Mayor (R-8). He recites the basic difficulties, mentions his conversations with the township engineer and states that using a shared van to transport pupils to the parochial school and the public school appears to be a reasonable arrangement. There were then three parochial pupils who would benefit from the service. The assistant superintendent estimated the annual cost of the transportation would be $520 per pupil, "more than the Board can legally spend." (R-8 at p. 2). The assistant superintendent asked that Township to consider subsidizing the difference. An arrangement along the lines of the current subscription program might serve these circumstances.

The assistant superintendent spoke to the County School Bus Administrator. He was advised he could not spend more than $675 per pupil and that the distance to the assigned bus stop was satisfactory. An in lieu payment of transportation costs to the parents of parochial pupils would be possible only if the Board could not do the job for $675 per pupil per year or less. The administrator pointed out that there were one or more parochial pupils living on Childs Road.

The district transportation supervisor called the State Department for advice. The advice offered by the County administrator was reaffirmed. The Board cannot pay the parents of parochial pupils an in lieu payment if the Board can provide appropriate transportation.

The assistant superintendent emphasized that he would have put the parochial pupils on minivans if he could do it for a cost of $675 per pupil per year or less. Money was the only question. He did not expect the petitioners' children to walk to assigned stops. He knows Hardscrabble Road and, in his opinion, it is unsafe for walking. He anticipated that pupils would be driven to and from the stops. The witness also discussed bid information and calculation of costs with staff.

The witness identified exhibit P-11, the 1993-94 route V data. It is consistent with his understanding. It advertises a pick up of three parochial school pupils at the entrance to Butternut Lane. It specifies a van is to be used. No bids were received. Exhibit P-12 is a communication from the County School Business Administrator to all transportation supervisors in the county. It states, among other things, that transportation shall not be provided when the cost of the lowest bid exceeds the per pupil allowance ($675 for 1993-94). However, transportation shall be provided when the per pupil cost of the lowest bid is equal to or less than the per pupil allowance. The memorandum also suggests that transportation supervisors refer to the memorandum and follow the guidelines as they solicit bids for nonpublic transportation services.

The memorandum also states at paragraph 2 "While the bid specification must include the route description, the number of students to be transported should not be part of the bid data provided by the board." The witness stated he was not aware of this provision until testifying today.

The witnesses' staff had calculated nonpublic pupil transportation costs based on $12,000 to $15,000 per year for a 14-seat van/bus. A 14-seat van is the most common configuration. The witness located no 14-seat vans on exhibit P-7. The witness repeated that only 54-pupil capacity buses serve the parochial school and he is convinced he could not serve the parochial school pupils in the area at or below the $675 per year figure.

He and staff discussed the possibility of using a Board-owned 19-seat van. Either a 19- or 54-seat vehicle would work out to approximately $675 per pupil or less. A calculation does not tell the entire story. Availability of vehicles and location of pupils must also be considered. The district does have a 19-seat van (P-7). There are three subscription bus pupils.

The transportation coordinator decides what pupils go on what buses. The factors include safe egress. The witness relied on his experienced staff. He trusted the judgment of both and relied on them as a matter of course.

The district called a licensed professional engineer. He specializes in traffic engineering and safety. He does, among other things, traffic impact studies, traffic investigations and traffic engineering plans. He performed a safety analysis for the Board and exhibit R-9 is his report. He describes both intersections. His report also states:

> Of critical importance to the safety of a school bus stop location is the availability of safe sight distance in either direction approaching the bus stop location. Although Childs Road is on an curve through the intersection with Lakeside Slope, the bus stop location is located on the outside of the curve.

This, in his opinion, gives good visibility.

The report also states:

> Observations indicate that there is more than adequate room to park a vehicle on Lakeside Slope Road such that it would not interfere with traffic entering or exiting . . . or interfere with traffic along Childs Road. The 24 foot wide width of gravel area on either side of the island enables a vehicle to easily make a U-turn solely within Lakeside Slope Road, even if a vehicle is parked on Lakeside Slope Road.

The witness concludes there is enough room to allow more than one vehicle to park there and that the road is a very low volume roadway serving only about six homes. In his opinion, parents could safely stop and park their vehicles on Lakeside Slope Road to drop off their children at the designated bus stop.

The final paragraph in the report states:

> It is approximately one mile from Butternut Lane traveling along Hardscrabble Road and Child's Road to the subject school bus stop location. Both Hardscrabble Road and Child's Road are narrow two lane roadways approximately 18 feet in width providing no curb, sidewalk, or shoulder area for pedestrians to walk. Both roadways also carry commuter traffic traveling towards Route 202 and Interstate 287 during the morning peak periods when school children are normally present. Along these roadways, there are a number of obstructions, i.e., fences, trees, undergrowth, etc. in close proximity to the paved roadway which did not permit a pedestrian to walk in an area other than the traveled way of these roads. Given these conditions, it is my opinion these routes are considered unsafe for school age children.

ARGUMENT SUMMARIES

The petitioners state there are no crossing guards and no supervision at any of the Board-designated bus stops. Neither family would use the bus stops because they believed the stops to be unsafe. The former assistant superintendent agreed that safety was a factor in assigning bus stops and providing transportation. It is undisputed that safe egress was considered for the public school children, but not the nonpublic school children. Joint stipulations 68, 93. The respondents, including the former assistant superintendent, represented to the parents that their children could not be bused in the same manner as public school children because they attended nonpublic schools and there was a $675 per pupil per year cap. The assistant superintendent was not clear as to how the Board calculated that it could not bus the nonpublic school children for $675 per year or less. He was led to believe that the Board estimated the cost at $15,000 and it divided the cost by 14 seats for a minivan and established a per pupil cost of more than $1,000.

The assistant superintendent conceded that the majority the Board's minivans contains 19 seats, not 14. He was not sure where the number 14 came from. He believed he obtained it from his transportation supervisor and that it represented the number of seats in a majority of the minivans.

Safe transportation on the minivans could have been provided to the subject children for less than $675 per year. The Board owns two minivans that can provide that transportation, although they presently are assigned to other routes.

Bus route 6001, which travels into the Butternut Lane development, had a per pupil cost of $603.38. The assistant superintendent conceded there are four public school pupils bused on route 6001 who are not entitled to busing under the statute, but are subscription pupils.

The Board's engineer testified that none of the assigned bus stops were safe for the children to walk to. He also stated it was unsafe to have a child walk to the bus stop or to drop the child off and leave the child unattended.

There is no evidence that the Butternut Lane minivans are dedicated to special needs children. The route document demonstrates that the van used had 19 seats and traveled into the Butternut Lane neighborhood to pick up public school children. The corresponding transportation cost document established that the per pupil cost for the 6001 bus route was $603.38. The transportation cost document also confirmed that there were four empty seats on the route 6001 van and that the Board decided to give the seats to public school children that were not statutory entitled to busing, rather than to assign them to the nonpublic school children who are entitled to statutory busing.

The Board treated the subject pupils differently simply because they are nonpublic school children. The Board admits that if these children attended public school, they than would receive safe transportation to school irrespective of cost.

The Board states that the full Board has been unable to agree regarding resolution of the matter. Therefore, it is necessary for the parties to seek the Commissioner's and judge's intervention. The appropriate standard is not whether the Board made a perfect decision regarding the subject transportation or even the best decision under the circumstances. The standard is whether the actions were arbitrary or capricious or both. Given the many attempts made by the Board to solve this problem, it cannot be said that the Board was arbitrary or capricious. The development in which the petitioners live was a new housing development. The petitioners children were the first nonpublic school pupils in the neighborhood. The roadway leading to the petitioners' homes winds and at the intersection of Hardscrabble and Childs Road there is a large island that prohibited a full-size school bus from negotiating a turn to gain access to the neighborhood. These facts left the Board with two choices: they could attempt to put the nonpublic school children on smaller minivans that could negotiate the neighborhood roads or they could assign the children to the traditional, full-size school buses that had established routes and bus stops within a mile of this neighborhood. The Board sought bids and conducted a cost analysis. There was no acceptable manner in which to place the petitioners' children on the minivans without exceeding the $675 cap. Therefore, the Board made the only logical choice. It assigned the established bus stop at the intersection of Lakeside and Childs. This decision can not be disturbed under the circumstances and does not rise to the level of arbitrary and capricious.

The Board owned two minivans that were used primarily for special needs children throughout the entire area of the District. The two minivans, obviously, had limited seating. The petitioners insist that they should have placed on these vans. The Board made a determination that they were not going to disrupt numerous other established bus routes and the needs of many other children throughout the entire school district. The only bus stop at issue in this matter is located at the intersection of Lakeside and Childs Roads. The matter transferred from the Superior Court complains only with regard to the 1993-94 school year. The petitioners allege that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 in assigning a stop a Childs and Lakeside. The petitioners also allege that the assignment violated their equal protection and other constitutional rights. The plaintiffs allege in a notice of claim filed November 2, 1993 that the bus stop assigned to them was dangerous and at the actions of the Board violated their constitutional rights as well as the statute. However, the petitioners have presented no evidence that the bus stop at Lakeside and Childs is unsafe. The assistant superintendent testified at hearing that each bus stop assigned to the petitioners had been reviewed by the local police department and found safe. Admittedly, the roads between the petitioners' homes and the bus stops were not desirable for school children to traverse. The safety of roadways, the question of crossing guards and other municipal safety issues are not the obligation of the Board of Education. The petitioners have established nothing with regard to the only relevant bus stop to show that it was anything other than safe.

Given these facts, the evidence produced at hearing shows no violation has occurred.

DETERMINATION

The law is clear that transportation of public and nonpublic school pupils living remote from school appears to mandatory. See, West Amwell Board of Education v. State Board of Education of New Jersey, 5 N.J. Misc. 152 (Sup. Ct. 1927); Woodbury Heights Board of Education v. Gateway Reg'l High School, 104 N.J. Super. 76 (Law. Div. 1968); West Morris Reg'l Bd. of Ed. v. Sills, 58 N.J. 464 (1971), cert. den. 404 U.S. 986 (1971). This busing is required by N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1. In West Morris, the New Jersey Supreme Court construed N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 and held that a school district must transport public school pupils living more than remote and, if such transportation is thus required, the district then also must provide transportation for pupils living within the district who attend a remote nonprofit, private school. The Supreme Court pointed out in West Morris that a private pupil will or will not receive transportation depending on the district of his residence. If a district does not transport remote public school pupils, it has no obligation to transport remote nonpublic school pupils. It must be noted that West Morris did not deal with the issue of courtesy busing; that is, transporting children living not remote to private schools nor did it deal with an interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1a.

To limit transportation of nonpublic school pupils situated similarly to public school pupils is discriminatory on its face. Donlyn v. Merchantville Board of Education, 1979 S.L.D. 140. A district must apply its transportation policies evenhandedly and provide nonpublic school pupils within the district with transportation similar to that provided its own pupils. Essential to interpreting classification such as public school versus nonpublic school is the absence of invidiously disparate treatment between or within classifications of pupils similarly situated. Treating similarly situated pupils differently is a violation of the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. I FIND and CONCLUDE that under the peculiar circumstances of this matter, the transportation policy of the Bernards Township Board of Education is discriminatory on its face. No public school pupil is forced to walk on an unsafe county highway. Only those pupils living in the Butternut Lane development and attending nonpublic schools are required to do so. Reason dictates that it violates the Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection Clause to treat public school pupils differently from similarly situated remote nonpublic school pupils. Nothing in the statutes or the cases interpreting them indicates a different result.

It is true that unsafe conditions such as the absence of safe walkways is the responsibility of the municipality, not the school district. Yet neither may a board turn a blind eye to such situations when establishing school bus stops. The short answer is that if the nonpublic school pupils could safely walk to either of the bus stops established by the Board, the Board would be entitled to judgment. That is not the case.

The Board knew or certainly should have known when it established the school bus stops that there was no safe way for the nonpublic school pupils to walk to those stops. It is entirely reasonable for a Board to exclude a full size school bus from an area, such as Butternut Lane, in which narrow streets would make operation potentially unsafe or might require that the bus be turned around. Mandaglov v. Mendham Township Board of Education, 1990 S.L.D. 1380. This clearly is a safety consideration and should be paramount in Board decisions affecting the types of vehicles used to provide pupil transportation to and from a given residential area.

There seems to be no dispute in this matter concerning the general requirements for nonpublic school transportation. N.J.A.C. 6:21-2.1 through -2.7. What remains is purely and simply a safety issue. The Bernards Township Board of Education, much like every other political subdivision of the State, no doubt is experiencing budget problems. Bodily safety of pupils is not a budgetary issue. Having reviewed the entire record, I FIND that pupils resident in the Butternut Lane development cannot safely walk to either school bus stop discussed in this case. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Board must provide transportation to qualifying nonpublic school pupils from the intersection of Butternut Lane with Hardscrabble or some point within the Butternut Lane development. In the alternative, the Board may reimburse the parents of qualifying, nonpublic school pupils in the amount of $675 per pupil per year or the amount determined pursuant to section 2 of P.L. 1981, c. 57 (N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1a), which ever is the smaller amount. This matter having been filed in March 1995, this decision shall apply as of September 1, 1995 unless the Commissioner of Education shall establish some other day. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

R.D. AND V.D., on behalf of C.D., a minor; AND M.H. AND M.H.,on behalf of M.H. and S.H., minors,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BERNARDS, ADRIENNE O'NEILL, SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS, AND HARRY EVANS, ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions were timely filed by petitioners, as was the Board's reply thereto, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Although petitioners submitted on February 5, 1996 a reply to the Board's submission, there is no provision for such a reply in either statute or regulation. Accordingly, petitioners' submission of February 5, 1996 is not herein considered.

Petitioners stress that the initial decision rendered by the ALJ should apply to all bus stops assigned by the District from August 1992 to the present, as raised in their pleadings, inasmuch as each of these stops was deemed unsafe by the Court, as well as the Board and its expert. (Petitioners' Exceptions at p. 1) Here, petitioners recount the bus stops which were assigned by the District for the 1992-93 and 1993-94 school years, asserting that the Hardscrabble/Childs Road triangle stop was determined to be "at best ten feet by eight feet" and deemed by the Board's expert witness to be unsafe to walk to or to use; that the 236 Childs Road stop was deemed unsafe by the Chief of Police and was also deemed by the Board's expert to be unsafe to walk to or to use; and that the Lakeside Slope/Childs Road stop was found by the Board's expert as unsafe to walk to and unsafe "if the child stood on the island or in the front of the island." (Id. at pp. 2, 3) It is the latter stop at Lakeside Slope/Childs Road which petitioners warrant was determined unsafe by the ALJ, and which was also assigned for the 1994-95 school year. Petitioners note that for the 1995-96 school year, they were assigned use of either the Lakeside/Childs stop or the Hardscrabble/Childs Road triangle stop. (Id. at p. 3)

Petitioners conclude,

> Since Judge Campbell found both bus stops to be unsafe as applied in 1995, it is unquestionable that the same bus stops were also unsafe in 1992-1994. No one disputes that all bus stops are too unsafe for children to walk to, even the Respondents' expert admits that the bus stops are unsafe to access. As the Judge recognized, each bus stop can only be accessed by using Hardscrabble Road which is an unsafe road. Since 1992, the public school children on Butternut Lane have been provided safe transportation (some of whom were not even entitled to statutory bussing), while the Parochial School Children could only receive statutory bussing by accessing unsafe roadways. Despite their complaints, the Petitioners did not receive safe transportation or the $675 stipend. (Id. at p. 5)

Petitioners further point to the assistant superintendent's admission that there were four public school pupils being bussed on the 6001 route who were not entitled to statutory bussing. Thus, petitioners attest that there were available seats for their nonpublic school children who were denied those seats. Petitioners urge the Commissioner to extend the initial decision rendered by the ALJ to include all bus stops from 1992 to present, and to deem such stops unsafe for the reasons set forth in the initial decision.

The Board excepts to the ALJ's finding that its bussing policy is discriminatory on its face. Rather, the Board warrants that the evidence adduced at the hearing establishes that the Board could not contract to transport petitioners' children by minivan without exceeding the statutorily imposed $675 cap. Additionally, while the Board considered the possibility of using one of its two minivans for that purpose, the Board states,

> The availability of these vehicles and their ability to make only limited runs is acknowledged by all parties.The Board measured available possibilities, found that there were established bus routes within two miles of petitioners' homes and determined to assign the petitioners to those routes rather than upsetting already established and available bus routes. (Board's Exceptions at pp. 1-2)

The Board cites Walters v. Board of Education of Mendham, 1977 S.L.D. 854, for the proposition that the Commissioner should not interfere with the management of local boards of education where those boards are not violating the law or acting in bad faith. Further, the Board cites a 1965 decision rendered by the Commissioner of Education, Livingston v. Bernards Township Board of Education, 1965 S.L.D. 29, which upheld the Board's determination to change petitioners' bus service "from a stop at the bottom of their driveway to a location which required their travel over heavily travelled roadways without sidewalks." (Board's Exceptions at p. 2) In Livingston, the Commissioner found that petitioners' allegation that their children were being treated differently from other similarly classified students failed to reach the magnitude of improper classification. The Commissioner observed, > it is obviously impossible to schedule a school bus route so that every child has the same walking distance over exactly similar terrain and other like conditions in order to arrive at the bus stop. If this idea of discrimination were to prevail, it would render the selection of a bus route impossible as a practical matter. (Id. at p. 3, citing Livingston, supra)

Here, the Board maintains there is no evidence of discrimination on its part, so as to permit the ALJ's finding and conclusion. Rather, the Board argues that it was faced with a difficult decision and elected to "refrain from upturning established bus schedules." (Id. at p. 3)

Moreover, the Board excepts to the ALJ's reaching in his decision to the very issue of discrimination, inasmuch as this matter was transferred from Superior Court for decision by the Commissioner of one issue: "whether the Bernards Township Board of Education violated the New Jersey Pupil Transportation Statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1." (Id.) The Board asserts that all parties to this matter understood that the scope of the issue to be decided in this forum was whether the Board violated the Pupil Transportation Statute; all other issues, argues the Board, were stayed in the Law Division of Superior Court. The Board concludes, therefore, that the ALJ exceeded his jurisdiction when he decided the issue of discrimination. It reasons that it will be severely prejudiced if the ALJ's decision were allowed to stand, in that the Board did not brief, nor present evidence on, the issue of discrimination and petitioners' constitutional claims. "To rise to the level of a constitutional violation," the Board contends with respect to its policies, "evidence of discriminatory intent must be shown given that plaintiffs are not within a suspect classification. No such evidence was established." (Id. at p. 4)

Finally, the Board takes exception to the ALJ's conclusion regarding the safety of the route between the assigned bus stop and petitioners' homes. The Board argues,

> In essence, Judge Campbell makes the determination that if the roadways between a child's home and an established bus stop are unsafe, a Board of Education must pick that child up at the bottom of his or her driveway and/or on the exact street in which he or she resides. Not only is such a finding legally incorrect, the ramifications are astounding. (Id.)

Here, the Board cites Schrenk v. Ridgewood Board of Education, 1949-1961 S.L.D. 185 (1961) and underscores the Commissioner's determination therein that provisions for safe conditions of travel are a municipal function. The Board, paraphrasing Schrenk, warrants, "A Board of Education  does not have the authority to enforce traffic laws, to provide sidewalks, traffic lights, crossing guards, police patrols or to meet the requirements of safe travel for school children." (Id. at pp. 4,5) Thus, the Board concludes that the ALJ's determination violates established precedent, and if enforced, would affect "hundreds of children:"

> Bernards Township is a growing area where new developments and roadways are common. Enforcement of Judge Campbell's decision would require the Bernard Township Board of Education to ensure that every student, whether public or non-public, has safe transport from their home to their assigned bus stop. A Board of Education in a growing municipality could not shoulder such a burden; nor are they obligated to do so under Schrenk v. Ridgewood Board of Education, [Supra], and the various other Commissioner decisions. (Id. at p. 5)

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner determines to modify the initial decision of the ALJ, and to remand this matter to the OAL for further proceedings, as set forth below. Initially, the Commissioner observes that the Pupil Transportation Statute, N.J.S.A. 18:39-1 et seq., obligates the local board to provide transportation to remote pupils in "other than a public school"[1] when it provides transportation to its remote public school students, "provided the per pupil cost of the lowest bid received does not exceed $675 for the 1992-93 school year ." There is no finding that the Board failed to meet its statutory obligation to provide nonpublic school students with access to transportation, nor that the Board's provision of services, which employs established routes used by public school students, as well as nonpublic, violates the intent of the legislation.

Further, the Commissioner is not persuaded that the record supports the conclusion that the assigned bus stops are unsafe. While the record does support the conclusion that the travel to and from the assigned stops may be considered hazardous, as the Board correctly instructs, and the ALJ affirms, the provision for safe conditions of travel to and from the bus stops is a municipal function, and not the responsibility of the local Board. (Initial Decision at p. 14) Thus, there being no finding that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, and there being no showing that the dispute herein is the result of actions taken by the Board which were arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or otherwise taken in bad faith with respect to its statutory obligations, the Commissioner determines that the Board of Education acted in compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.

The Commissioner further finds, however, that the record of this matter with respect to the scope of the remand ordered by the Superior Court is unclear. Therefore, the Commissioner remands this matter to the OAL for resolution as to the scope of the issue(s) remanded by the Superior Court, and, specifically, for a determination of whether petitioners' constitutional claim as to differential treatment of nonpublic students was properly before the ALJ. If the Court's remand did, in fact, encompass petitioner's constitutional claim, the Commissioner directs that the parties be provided opportunity for additional argument and briefing on this issue before the ALJ, who shall then make such findings and conclusions as he deems appropriate.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is modified, as set forth above, and this matter is remanded to the OAL for further proceedings consistent with the directions herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, February 22, 1996

For the Petitioners-Appellants, Pitney, Hardin, Kipp & Szuch (Dennis T. Kearney, Esq. and Loryn Riggiola, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondents-Respondents, Hurley & Vasios (Michael R. Speer, Esq., of Counsel)

In March 1994, petitioners, residents of Butternut Lane in Basking Ridge, New Jersey, located within the Bernards Township school district, instituted an action in Superior Court, Law Division, against the Board of Education of the Township of Bernards (hereinafter "Board"), claiming that the Board had violated their rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 and the state and federal Constitutions by failing to provide a safe bus stop for their children, students at a nonprofit private school, as it had done for similarly situated public school children.[1] In February 1995, the Court denied the Board's motion for summary judgment, but referred this matter to the Commissioner of Education and placed the case on the inactive list.

Petitioners are the parents of children attending a nonprofit private school approximately four miles from their homes. The Board's former acting superintendent indicated that the Board considered safety as a factor in assigning a bus stop to public school children, including the route the children were required to take in getting to and from the bus stop. Stipulation of Facts, at 5-6; tr. 10/26/95, at 174. He indicated that egress safety concerns were not considered by the Board in assigning a bus stop to petitioners' children. Stipulation of Facts, at 6. He further indicated that several minibuses travel from Hardscrabble Road into the Butternut Lane neighborhood to pick

> Whenever in any district there are elementary school pupils who live more than two miles from their public school of attendance or secondary school pupils who live more than 2½ miles from their public school of attendance, the district shall provide transportation to and from school for these pupils.
> When any school district provides any transportation for public school pupils to and from school pursuant to this section, transportation shall be supplied to school pupils residing in such school district in going to and from any remote school other than a public school, not operated for profit in whole or in part, located within the State not more than 20 miles from the residence of the pupil...provided the per pupil cost of the lowest bid received does not exceed $675 for the 1992-93 school year or the amount determined for subsequent years pursuant to section 2 of P.L.1981, c.57 (C.18A:39-1a), and if such bid shall exceed that cost then the parent, guardian or other person having legal custody of the pupil shall be eligible to receive $675 for the 1992-93 school year or the amount determined pursuant to section 2 of P.L.1981, c.57 (C.18A:39-1a) for subsequent years toward the cost of his transportation to a qualified school other than a public school, regardless of whether such transportation is along established public school routes.

up nonremote public school children.[2] Stipulation of Facts, at 7. He asserted that the minibuses pull into Butternut Lane because of heavy traffic and safety egress concerns on Hardscrabble Road. Stipulation of Facts, at 7, 14-15; tr. 10/26/95, at 153.

Petitioners' children have never been assigned to those minibuses. Instead, they have been assigned several different bus stops since 1992, ranging in distance from approximately one-half mile to one mile from their homes. In each case, petitioners' children would be required to walk down Hardscrabble Road, a heavily traveled road with no sidewalks or shoulders, to get to the bus stop.

The Bernards Township Chief of Police indicated in a letter dated June 15, 1993, exhibit P-4, in evidence, that it was not safe for petitioners' children to walk from their homes to the bus stop established for them by the Board. He stated that:

> Hardscrabble Road is narrow, there are no sidewalks, and the shoulders are not hard packed. Children would have to walk along the edge of the roadway and taking into account the commuter traffic that would be present at the time children would be walking to the bus stop, I consider the route unsafe.

He indicated that Hardscrabble Road was also not safe for full-sized school buses due to the road's "twisting and turning." As a consequence, the Board uses minibuses to pick up public school children on Butternut Lane.

Petitioners made repeated requests to the Board to allow their children to be transported on the minibuses which pick up public school children on Butternut Lane. The former acting superintendent indicated that the Board had declined to provide petitioners' children with the same travel accommodations as public school children because of the existence of the $675 cap in N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1. Stipulation of Facts, at 16-17, 21; tr. 10/26/95, at 135, 149. He testified that if petitioners' children were public school children, he would have put them on one of the minibuses or gotten another minibus, if necessary. Stipulation of Facts, at 21. He claimed that his hands were tied since the estimated cost of transportation for use of the minibuses was approximately $1,000 per pupil. Id. at 16. Consequently, petitioners' children were assigned to a bus stop utilizing a full size school bus, which, as noted, were not permitted to use Hardscrabble Road due to safety concerns. The former acting superintendent acknowledged that the walk from petitioners' homes to the existing bus stop is unsafe. Tr. 10/26/95, at 154.

On January 11, 1996, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") found that, under the particular circumstances herein, the Board's policy was discriminatory on its face. The ALJ observed that the transportation of public and nonpublic school pupils living remote from school was mandatory. West Amwell Board of Education v. State Board of Education of New Jersey, 5 N.J. Misc. 152 (Sup. Ct. 1927); West Morris Reg. Bd. of Ed. et al. v. Sills, 58 N.J. 464 (1971), cert. den. 404 U.S. 986 (1971). The ALJ stressed that a district must apply its transportation policies evenhandedly and provide nonpublic school pupils residing within the district with transportation similar to that provided to public school students. He found that no public school pupil was forced to walk on an unsafe public highway. Only those pupils living in the Butternut Lane neighborhood and attending nonpublic schools were required to do so.

While acknowledging that unsafe roadway conditions were the municipality's function, the ALJ stressed that "neither may a board turn a blind eye to such situations when establishing school bus stops." Initial Decision, slip op. at 14. The ALJ found that students residing in the Butternut Lane neighborhood could not safely walk to the bus stops established by the Board for petitioners' children. Accordingly, he concluded that the Board was required to provide transportation to qualifying nonpublic school pupils from some point within the Butternut Lane neighborhood or to reimburse the parents of qualifying nonpublic school students in the amount of $675 per pupil per year or the amount determined pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1a.[3]

On February 22, 1996, the Commissioner modified the ALJ's decision and remanded to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for further proceedings. The Commissioner observed that there had been no finding that the Board had failed to meet its statutory obligation to provide nonpublic school students with access to transportation or that the Board's provision of such services violated the intent of the legislation. The Commissioner was "not persuaded that the record supports the conclusion that the assigned bus stops are unsafe. While the record does support the conclusion that the travel to and from the assigned stops may be considered hazardous...the provision for safe conditions of travel to and from the bus stops is a > Beginning in the 1993-94 school year and in each subsequent year, the maximum amount of nonpublic school transportation costs per pupil provided for in N.J.S. 18A:39-1 shall be increased or decreased in direct proportion to the increase or decrease in the State transportation aid per pupil in the year prior to the prebudget year compared to the amount for the prebudget year. As used in this section, State transportation aid per pupil shall equal the total State aid payments made pursuant to section 16 of P.L.1990, c.52 (C.18A:7D-18) divided by the number of pupils eligible for transportation.

municipal function, and not the responsibility of the local Board." Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 22. Consequently, the Commissioner concluded that the Board had acted in compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.

However, since he found the record unclear with respect to the scope of the remand ordered by Superior Court, the Commissioner remanded this matter to OAL for resolution of the scope of the issues remanded by the Court and, specifically, for a determination of whether petitioners' constitutional claim as to differential treatment of nonpublic school students was properly before the ALJ.

Petitioners filed the instant appeal to the State Board.

After a thorough review of the record, including the transcript of the hearing held in the Office of Administrative Law in this matter,[4] we reverse the decision of the Commissioner. We agree with the ALJ that petitioners have demonstrated that the Board's action in this instance was arbitrary and capricious.

As we stated in Peary v. Board of Education of the Township of Barnegat, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 798:

> Although district boards have wide discretion to promulgate pupil transportation policies, including school bus routes and stops, they may not discriminate or act in a manner that is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Our review of the Board's action herein is not limited to the relative safety of the school bus stop...or the Board's jurisdiction over safety conditions of sidewalks and roadways within the Township. Rather, the broader issue is whether the Board abused its discretion in denying petitioner's request to reestablish the former bus stop...in this particular case.

See also Board of Educ. v. Kraft, 139 N.J. 597 (1995) (the State Supreme Court recognized the relevance of student safety in determining whether a walkway could be included in calculating remoteness from school); Nichols v. Board of Education of the Township of Wayne, Docket #A-3526-93T5 (App. Div. 1995), cert. denied, 142 N.J. 449 (1995) (where the route marked for measurement of remoteness had existing sidewalks and marked crosswalks, then the measurement must be based on the assumption that the children should use them).

Thus, our review herein is not limited to the safety of the existing bus stop or the Board's jurisdiction over safety conditions on the Township's roads. Rather, the standard is whether the Board abused its discretion in refusing petitioners' request to relocate their children's bus stop or, in lieu thereof, to pay them for their transportation costs in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 and 18A:39-1a.

N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, as previously noted, provides that whenever a school district provides transportation for public school pupils, it must also provide transportation or payment in lieu of transportation to nonpublic pupils in the school district residing remote from their nonprofit private school of attendance. There is no dispute herein that the Board provides transportation for public school pupils. Nor is it disputed that petitioners' children live remote from their nonprofit private school and are therefore also entitled to transportation. Rather, it is the Board's failure to provide those nonpublic students with transportation comparable to that provided to similarly-situated public school students that is at issue.

In the landmark case of Everson v. Board of Education of Ewing Tp., 133 N.J.L. 350 (E. & A. 1945), aff'd, 330 U.S. 1, 18, 67 S. Ct. 504, 91 L. Ed. 711 (1947), the United States Supreme Court observed that New Jersey's school transportation statute, "as applied, does no more than provide a general program to help parents get their children, regardless of their religion, safely and expeditiously to and from accredited schools." "The Legislature chose to extend to the private school student a right to transportation on the same basis upon which transportation would have been available if he attended public school in his district, i.e., remoteness from the school, and in that way to deal evenly with him and the public school student within that district." West Morris Reg. Bd. of Ed., supra, at 479. In Bd. of Ed. Woodbury Hts. v. Gateway Reg. H.S., 104 N.J. Super. 76, 86 (Law Div. 1968), the Court observed that "the Legislature has deemed it to be an essential public purpose to benefit children living remote by guarding them against the hazards attendant upon traveling to school. The Legislature...did not choose to distinguish between whether a child had to travel to a public school or a nonpublic school, for a child is a child and the hazards of travel do not depend upon the school which the child attends."

Under the particular facts in the record before us, we agree with the ALJ that petitioners have demonstrated that the Board's action in this case was arbitrary and capricious. The record reveals that the Bernards Township Board does not allow public school children to enter or exit minibuses on Hardscrabble Road due to safety concerns and yet, citing the $675 cap in N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, exposes nonprofit private school students to the dangers of walking on Hardscrabble Road to a bus stop. Given the history and purpose of the statute, the $675 cap in N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 cannot reasonably be viewed as permitting district boards to treat nonprofit private school students in a manner which denies them the same basic safety considerations afforded similarly-situated public school students. In the event the costs of providing such considerations to nonpublic students exceeds $675 per child, then the parents of such children are entitled to payment in the amount of $675 per pupil per year or the amount determined pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1a.

We therefore reverse the decision of the Commissioner and direct the Board to establish a bus stop for petitioners' children within the Butternut Lane neighborhood or, in the event the cost to do so would exceed $675 per pupil, to pay petitioners $675 per pupil per year or the amount determined pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1a.

Given our determination herein under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, we find no need for the remand directed by the Commissioner regarding petitioners' constitutional claims.

KENNETH LUDVIKSEN,	:
PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF NORTH ARLINGTON, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, August 2, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Kenneth Ludviksen, pro se

For the Respondent-Respondent, Fogarty & Hara (Dennis J. Madigan, Esq., of Counsel)

On August 2, 1996, the Commissioner of Education dismissed a petition of appeal filed by Kenneth Ludviksen (hereinafter "appellant") challenging the North Arlington Board's denial of his request to attend North Arlington High School.[1] The Commissioner found that appellant had failed to allege a violation of school law or regulation, stressing that the decision to admit pupils over 20 years of age was discretionary with each district board. The Commissioner further observed that appellant had failed to file his petition within 90 days after he had received notice of the Board's action, as required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Consequently, he also found that

[1] The Board based its denial upon the fact that appellant exceeded the age for which it was required to provide high school admission.

any claim appellant was making based upon the Board's alleged abuse of discretion was untimely.

On September 18, 1996, appellant, acting pro se, filed a notice of appeal to the State Board of Education. Since his notice of appeal was filed more than 30 days after the filing date of the Commissioner's decision, appellant also filed an explanation for that late filing. By letter dated September 24 from the Counsel to the State Board, appellant was advised that his statement explaining the reasons for his late filing was being referred to our Legal Committee for consideration of the effect of his failure to file his notice of appeal in a timely manner. Appellant was also directed to provide proof of service of his filing on the Board by October 3. Appellant provided such proof on September 30.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, appeals to the State Board must be taken "within 30 days after the decision appealed from is filed." The State Board may not grant extensions to enlarge the time specified for appeal. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5(a). In contrast to the period for filing petitions to the Commissioner of Education, see N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2; N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the time limit within which an appeal must be taken to the State Board is statutory, and, given the jurisdictional nature of the statutory time limit, the State Board lacks the authority to extend it. Mount Pleasant-Blythedale Union Free School District v. New Jersey Department of Education, Docket #A-2180-89T1 (App. Div. 1990), slip op. at 5. The Appellate Division has "consistently concluded" that appeals must be timely filed and that "neither an agency nor our court on appeal may expand a mandatory statutory time limitation." In the Matter of the Special Election of the Northern Burlington County Regional School District, Docket #A-1743-95T5 (App.

Div. 1996), slip op. at 3, citing Scrudato v. Mascot Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 50 N.J. Super. 264 (App. Div. 1958).

We conclude that the statutory filing requirement with which appellant failed to comply is of such significance that we dismiss the appeal. In Yorke v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1988, aff'd, Docket #A-5912-87T1 (App. Div. 1989), the Court upheld the dismissal of an appeal by the State Board where it found that the notice of appeal had been filed one day late by appellant's counsel, who alleged that he had misread or misunderstood the applicable regulations. The Court added that even if the statute could be construed to permit enlargement of the time for filing an appeal, the appellant therein had failed to establish good cause.

In this case, the Commissioner's decision was rendered on August 2, 1996 and mailed to appellant on that date. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4, the decision appealed from was deemed filed on August 5, 1996, three days after it was mailed. Therefore, as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, see N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(a), as computed under N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(b), appellant was required to file his notice of appeal to the State Board on or before September 4, 1996. Appellant's notice of appeal was not filed until September 18.

Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 can be construed to provide us with the authority to enlarge the time limit for filing an appeal, we find no substantive basis to warrant doing so in this particular instance. Appellant acknowledges in his letter explaining his late filing that when the Commissioner dismissed his petition, he was told that he could file an appeal to the State Board. Appellant indicates that he then "appealed" to the Governor to "override" the State Board's requirement that parties file 17 copies of all briefs, motions, applications and exceptions. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.10(b). While we are mindful of appellant's pro se status, his request to the Governor does not excuse his failure to comply with the statutory requirement, which provides that a notice of appeal must be filed with the State Board within 30 days of the Commissioner's decision.

Accordingly, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to file notice thereof within the statutory time limit as computed under the applicable regulations.

IN THE MATTER OF THE DISQUALIFI- : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

CATION FROM SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT : DECISION

OF TRAVIS HANKS. :

Decided by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, December 15, 1995

Decision on reconsideration by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, February 20, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Travis Hanks, pro se

On December 15, 1995, the Deputy Commissioner of Education affirmed the determination of the Office of Criminal History Review disqualifying Travis Hanks (hereinafter "appellant") from school employment as a substitute teacher following a criminal history record review conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.[1] The Deputy Commissioner determined that appellant had failed to affirmatively demonstrate his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. On February 20, 1996, the Deputy Commissioner declined to reconsider this matter and reaffirmed his decision of December 15, 1995. The Deputy Commissioner expressly indicated in both decisions that an appeal could be taken to the State Board pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq.

[1] We note that N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 authorizes the Commissioner to "designate an assistant commissioner as deputy commissioner with full power to act in his place and stead during any absence or inability of the commissioner and at such other times as the commissioner may designate." Such authority expressly includes assignment by the Commissioner of the "hearing and determination of controversies and disputes which may arise under the school laws...." N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34.

On September 27, 1996, appellant, acting pro se, filed a notice of appeal to the State Board of Education, along with an explanation for his late filing. Appellant stated therein that:

> The reason I waited so long to send my appeal letter was because [the Deputy Commissioner] stated in his denial letter that one of the reason [sic] for his decision was because my simple assault misdemeanor charge was so resent [sic]. I thought if I waited a considerable amount of time, while making some positive advancement with myself as well as in my community, which I've done, I would stand a better chance of having [the] decision overturned by your Board.

By letter dated October 7, 1996 from the Counsel to the State Board, appellant was advised that his appeal had been due within 30 days of the filing date of the Commissioner's decision, and that his letter explaining the late filing was being referred to our Legal Committee for consideration of the effect of his failure to file timely notice.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, appeals to the State Board must be taken "within 30 days after the decision appealed from is filed." The State Board may not grant extensions to enlarge the time specified for appeal. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5(a). In contrast to the period for filing petitions to the Commissioner of Education, see N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2; N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the time limit within which an appeal must be taken to the State Board is statutory, and, given the jurisdictional nature of the statutory time limit, the State Board lacks the authority to extend it. Mount Pleasant-Blythedale Union Free School District v. New Jersey Department of Education, Docket #A-2180-89T1 (App. Div. 1990), slip op. at 5. The Appellate Division has "consistently concluded" that appeals must be timely filed and that "neither an agency nor our court on appeal may expand a mandatory statutory time limitation." In the Matter of the Special Election of the Northern Burlington County Regional School District, Docket #A-1743-95T5 (App. Div. 1996), slip op. at 3, citing Scrudato v. Mascot Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 50 N.J. Super. 264 (App. Div. 1958).

We conclude that the statutory filing requirement with which appellant failed to comply is of such significance that we dismiss the appeal. In Yorke v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1988, aff'd, Docket #A-5912-87T1 (App. Div. 1989), the Court upheld the dismissal of an appeal by the State Board where it found that the notice of appeal had been filed one day late by appellant's counsel, who alleged that he had misread or misunderstood the applicable regulations. The Court added that even if the statute could be construed to permit enlargement of the time for filing an appeal, the appellant therein had failed to establish good cause.

In this case, the Deputy Commissioner's decision was rendered on December 15, 1995 and mailed to appellant on that date. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4, the decision appealed from was deemed filed on December 18, 1995, three days after it was mailed. Therefore, as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, see N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(a), as computed under N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(b), appellant was required to file his notice of appeal to the State Board on or before January 17, 1996. Appellant's notice of appeal was filed on September 27, 1996, more than eight months after the filing deadline.[2]

[2] We note that while appellant's request for reconsideration to the Deputy Commissioner did not stay his obligation to file a notice of appeal to the State Board within 30 days after the December 15, 1995 decision, the Deputy Commissioner's decision on appellant's request for reconsideration was rendered on February 20, 1996, and appellant still did not file his notice of appeal to the State Board until more than seven months thereafter.

Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 can be construed to provide us with the authority to enlarge the time limit for filing an appeal, we find no substantive basis to warrant doing so in this particular instance. While we are mindful of appellant's pro se status, his decision to wait for additional time to pass before filing a notice of appeal with the State Board does not excuse his compliance with the statutory requirement, which was made clear to him by the Deputy Commissioner.

Accordingly, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to file notice thereof within the statutory time limit as computed under the applicable regulations. In so doing, we note that appellant can reapply to the Office of Criminal History Review and, given the passage of additional time since his last offense, seek a determination from the Commissioner that he is now qualified for school employment on the basis of rehabilitation.

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on December 1, 1994, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have consented to a settlement and have prepared an agreement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Sharon Cantone (hereinafter "Ms. Cantone"), residing at 18 Old Jug Court, Harrington Park, New Jersey 07640, and the Hoboken Board of Education (hereinafter the "Board"), with offices at 1115 Clinton Street, Hoboken, New Jersey 07030-3201, hereby stipulate and agree as follows:

1. In return for compliance with this Agreement, Ms. Cantone agrees to the dismissal of the above-captioned litigation, with prejudice.

2. The Board agrees to:

(a) Pay Ms. Cantone back salary in the amount of One Thousand Four Hundred Fifty-Seven and 04/100 ($1,457.04) for the 1994-95 school year. Said money shall be subject to all normal payroll deductions. The net amount shall be paid within 30 days of the approval of this Agreement by the Commissioner of Education; and

(b) Retroactively credit Ms. Cantone's seniority for the 1994-95 school year in the elementary category to include service for September 1 through 11, 1994. This is based on a conclusion that Ms. Cantone has more seniority than an employee recalled before her for the 1994-95 school year.

3. Ms. Cantone acknowledges that she has hereby been advised in writing that she has the right to consult with an attorney or a representative of her own choosing prior to signing this Agreement and that she signs this Agreement as her own voluntary act and deed, and that she fully understands the terms enumerated herein.

THOMAS HOPEWELL,	:
PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF FRANKLIN, WARREN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, September 20, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Klausner & Hunter (Stephen B. Hunter , Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Broscious & Glynn (James W. Broscious, Esq., of Counsel)

Thomas Hopewell (hereinafter "petitioner"), a tenured teaching staff member employed by the Board of Education of the Township of Franklin (hereinafter "Board"), filed a petition of appeal and petition for declaratory judgment, along with a request for emergent relief, with the Commissioner of Education. In so doing, petitioner challenged the Board's action in placing him on an involuntary administrative leave in May 1996 and, subsequently, on involuntary medical leave. The Board took this action following a psychiatric examination it ordered petitioner to undergo pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2. Petitioner claimed that the education laws precluded the Board from taking such action without filing tenure charges against him, and he sought emergent relief in the form of immediate reinstatement to a paid teaching position.[1]

On September 20, 1996, the Commissioner denied petitioner's request for emergent relief, concluding that petitioner had failed to satisfy the standards for such relief set forth in Crowe v. De Gioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). However, the Commissioner transmitted the petition of appeal to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings on the merits of the matter.

Petitioner thereupon filed the instant motion for emergent relief with the State Board pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-2.4, alleging that the Franklin Township Board has "de facto suspended a teaching staff member without pay for purported conduct unbecoming a teacher without initiating tenure charges against the Petitioner, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq."

We have carefully reviewed the submissions of counsel. While petitioner maintains that the Board was precluded from placing him on leave and continuing that leave once his accumulated sick leave was exhausted without bringing tenure charges against him, our own review of the applicable law leads to a result contrary to that urged by the petitioner. Initially, we find that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-4, rather than the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, governs this matter. That statute provides that:

> If the result of any such [psychiatric] examination [directed by the district board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2] indicates mental abnormalities...the employee shall be ineligible for further service until proof of recovery, satisfactory to the board, is furnished, but if the employee is under contract or has tenure, he may be granted sick leave with compensation as provided by law and shall, upon satisfactory recovery, be permitted to complete the term of his contract, if he is under > contract, or be reemployed with the same tenure as he possessed at the time his services were discontinued, if he has tenure, unless his absence shall exceed a period of two years. (Emphasis added.)

In this case, petitioner submitted to a psychiatric examination by Dr. Alvin Friedland on February 19, 1996. By letter to the District dated March 6, 1996, Dr. Friedland reported the results of his examination, indicating that petitioner was presenting signs of depression with an underlying personality disorder requiring treatment and that petitioner's condition was not being controlled medically in that he was taking a number of medications with contradictory effects. As embodied in its letter of May 13,1996, the Board placed petitioner on administrative leave on the basis of further allegations by faculty members concerning his behavior, as well as on the basis of Dr. Friedland's report and his response to the District's subsequent inquiry, in which he indicated that petitioner should not be in contact with children.

By letter dated July 31, 1996, petitioner's counsel submitted to the Board a letter from Dr. Corazon Guerra, petitioner's treating physician. That letter indicated that Dr. Guerra had modified petitioner's medication and that petitioner had started individual therapy with Dr. David Veleber. Dr. Guerra expressed the opinion that petitioner had made sufficient progress and that he saw no problem with his being reinstated to a full-time teaching position in September 1996.

In response, counsel for the Board wrote that a reevaluation would be conducted expeditiously if Dr. Friedland felt that such reevaluation was in order. At the same time, counsel for the Board stated that the Board did not intend to jeopardize the safety of the District's children, "unless and until it is satisfied that there is a return to normal health."

Petitioner's Exhibit J, dated August 9, 1996. On August 26, 1996, counsel for the Board provided petitioner with the results of Dr. Friedland's review of Dr. Guerra's report. Dr. Friedland expressed concerns as to the contents of that report, observing that it did not indicate petitioner's condition and that the behavior which had caused him difficulties in the classroom had not been addressed. Dr. Friedland concluded that he would need further information regarding petitioner's mental status and treatment before he could consider recommending that he be returned to his teaching position. Petitioner's Exhibit K.

In essence, petitioner is contending that he has recovered and that, in the absence of tenure charges, he must be permitted to return to work. However, as we stated In Bybel v. Board of Education of the City of Englewood, decided by the State Board, March 6, 1985, slip op. at 5-6:

> ...where a board, as here, grants a leave of absence to a tenured teaching staff member for medical reasons, the board may not permit him to return to work until it is satisfied that the staff member has recovered. Once the board has reached a decision as to whether or not recovery is satisfactory, it will be presumed sound and may be disturbed on appeal only if found to be arbitrary or capricious....We further emphasize that when a board assesses a teacher's fitness, it is under a duty to protect students from a significant danger of harm, whether physical or otherwise. Gish v. Bd. of Ed. of Paramus, 145 N.J. Super. 96, 104-105 (App. Div. 1976), cert. denied, 74 N.J. 251 (1977), cert. denied, 434 U.S. 879 (1977).

Quite simply, the Board is not satisfied that petitioner has recovered, and we find nothing in petitioner's submissions to convince us that its conclusion is arbitrary. Given that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-4 clearly provided the Board with the authority to place petitioner on leave and to continue such leave even after he had exhausted his accumulated sick leave, we find that petitioner has failed to demonstrate a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of his claim that the Board improperly placed him on leave without filing tenure charges. Furthermore, in that any entitlement petitioner has under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-4 to return to work is predicated on the Board's satisfaction as to the sufficiency of his recovery, and because petitioner has not demonstrated to us that the Board acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner in requiring further proof of recovery before returning him to the classroom, petitioner has failed in these proceedings to show a likelihood of succeeding on the merits of this claim. Nor has petitioner demonstrated that continuing his leave will cause him to suffer irreparable harm outweighing that which his students may suffer were he to return prematurely. Thus, for the reasons expressed herein, and given the public interest in avoiding harm to students, we deny petitioner's motion for emergent relief. Crowe v. De Gioia, supra.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning teacher alleged Board did not enforce N.J.S.A. 26:3D-17 and the school district's smoking policy, resulting in medical problems for her.

ALJ concluded the enforcement of the statute against a district is not within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education since it does not arise under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 26:3D places enforcement squarely within the responsibility of the Department of Health or a local board of health with jurisdiction over the proceedings vested in the municipal court. Petition was dismissed before the Commissioner of Education for lack of jurisdiction.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF RAHWAY, UNION COUNTY,

Respondent.

Michael T. Barrett, Esq., for petitioner (Bergman & Barrett, attorneys)

Andre Schramenko, Esq., for respondent (Fitzpatrick & Waterman, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 6, 1995 Decided: November 30, 1995

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

On July 21, 1994, petitioner, Constance Bauder, a tenured teacher in the science department at Rahway High School, filed a Verified Petition with the Commissioner of Education alleging that the Rahway Board of Education was not enforcing N.J.S.A. 26: 3D-17 and the Rahway school district smoking policy promulgated thereunder. She claims that the Board's failure to prevent smoking in and around the school building to which she is assigned has resulted in the creation of medical problems for her and the exacerbation of her existing ones.

Respondent filed its answer on August 31, 1994 and on September 13, 1994, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was held with the parties on December 2, 1994, and it was determined that the following were the issues to be resolved at hearing:

a. Has the board failed to enforce its no smoking policy and take all reasonable measures to insure that there is no smoking in or around the high school building?

b. If not, to what relief, if any, is petitioner entitled?

c. Is the enforcement of no smoking laws within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 26:3D-21?

d. Does petitioner have standing to enforce the law prohibiting smoking in educational institutions?

A hearing was scheduled for April 6 and 7 1995, but was adjourned several times because of the unavailability of the parties. The hearing was held on November 6, 1995, and the record closed on that date.

The Board raised as an affirmative defense the threshold issue of the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education to render a decision on the subject matter of this petition. On the date of hearing, petitioner was allowed to present a portion of her case in order to determine whether any of her allegations were encompassed within the authority delegated to the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, as follows:

> The commissioner shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine, without cost to the parties, all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws, excepting those governing higher education, or under the rules of the state board or of the commissioner.

N.J.S.A. 26:3D-17b requires the board of education of each school district to make and enforce regulations to prohibit the smoking of tobacco anywhere in its buildings except as part of a classroom instruction or a theatrical production. This statute supersedes any other statute, ordinance, rule or regulation relating to smoking on the premises of schools with certain exceptions, not applicable here. N.J.S.A. 26:3D-19b.

Enforcement of the statute against the administration of a school is the responsibility of the State Department of Health or the local board of health or its equivalent. N.J.S.A. 26:3D-20b. In fact, no one except the Commissioner of Health or the local board of health may bring an action against a school district to enforce the statute. N.J.S.A. 26:3D-21. N.J.S.A. 26:3D-20c further states that such an enforcement action shall only be brought in the municipal court.

Based upon a review of the statutory framework of the control of smoking in public places, I CONCLUDE that the enforcement of the statute against a district is not within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education since it does not arise under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 26:3D places enforcement squarely within the responsibility of the Department of Health or a local board of health with jurisdiction over the proceedings vested in the municipal court.

Petitioner testified as to instances when she smelled smoke in the school building or observed people smoking. She also testified as to the adverse impact the second-hand smoke had on her health and her attempts to make the district enforce its smoking policy. When it became apparent that none of her complaints were cognizable under the school laws, a request was made for a proffer of the content of the remainder of her testimony. After confirming from the proffer that Bauder intended to continue to offer evidence only as to other incidents of smoking, or perceived smoking, their effect upon her, and the alleged failure of the district to enforce its policy, the record was closed. No findings were made as to the merits of her complaints against the district since this was not the appropriate forum in which to litigate them. The motion of the respondent to dismiss the petition because the Commissioner of Education lacked jurisdiction over the subject matter was then granted.

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that the petition of Constance Bauder before the Commissioner of Education should be DISMISSED for lack of jurisdiction.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE DISQUALIFICATION FROM SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT OF TONI WILLIAMS.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, April 12, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Toni Williams, pro se

In a letter decision dated April 12, 1996, the Deputy Commissioner of Education affirmed the determination of the Office of Criminal History Review disqualifying Toni Williams (hereinafter "appellant") from school employment as an instructional assistant following a criminal history record review conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.[1] The Deputy Commissioner determined that appellant had failed to affirmatively demonstrate her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. The Deputy Commissioner advised appellant that an appeal could be taken to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq.

On October 10, 1996, appellant, acting pro se, filed a notice of appeal dated September 17, 1996 with the State Board. By letter dated October 21, 1996, the counsel to the State Board advised appellant that her appeal had been due within 30 days of the filing date of the Commissioner's decision, and that this matter was therefore being referred to our Legal Committee for consideration of the effect of her failure to file timely notice. Appellant was given until November 4, 1996 to provide a written explanation of the reasons for her late filing.

[1] We note that N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 authorizes the Commissioner to "designate an assistant commissioner as deputy commissioner with full power to act in his place and stead during any absence or inability of the commissioner and at such other times as the commissioner may designate." Such authority expressly includes assignment by the Commissioner of the "hearing and determination of controversies and disputes which may arise under the school laws...." N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34.

On November 4, appellant filed her explanation, in which she indicated that she had come to the Department of Education in person on September 18, 1996, and had given her appeal papers to an unidentified employee.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, appeals to the State Board must be taken "within 30 days after the decision appealed from is filed." The State Board may not grant extensions to enlarge the time specified for appeal. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5(a). In contrast to the period for filing petitions to the Commissioner of Education, see N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2; N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the time limit within which an appeal must be taken to the State Board is statutory, and, given the jurisdictional nature of the statutory time limit, the State Board lacks the authority to extend it. Mount Pleasant-Blythedale Union Free School District v. New Jersey Department of Education, Docket #A-2180-89T1 (App. Div. 1990), slip op. at 5. The Appellate Division has "consistently concluded" that appeals must be timely filed and that "neither an agency nor our court on appeal may expand a mandatory statutory time limitation." In the Matter of the Special Election of the Northern Burlington County Regional School District, Docket #A-1743-95T5 (App. Div. 1996), slip op. at 3, citing Scrudato v. Mascot Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 50 N.J. Super. 264 (App. Div. 1958).

We conclude that the statutory filing requirement with which appellant failed to comply is of such significance that we dismiss the appeal. In Yorke v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1988, aff'd, Docket #A-5912-87T1 (App. Div. 1989), the Court upheld the dismissal of an appeal by the State Board where it found that the notice of appeal had been filed one day late by appellant's counsel, who alleged that he had misread or misunderstood the applicable regulations. The Court added that even if the statute could be construed to permit enlargement of the time for filing an appeal, the appellant therein had failed to establish good cause.

In this case, the Deputy Commissioner's decision was rendered on April 12, 1996 and mailed to appellant on that date. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4, the decision appealed from was deemed filed on April 15, 1996, three days after it was mailed. Therefore, as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, see N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(a), as computed under N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(b), appellant was required to file her notice of appeal to the State Board on or before May 15, 1996. Appellant's notice of appeal was dated September 17, 1996 and filed on October 10.

Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 can be construed to provide us with the authority to enlarge the time limit for filing an appeal, we find no substantive basis to warrant doing so in this particular instance. While we are mindful of appellant's pro se status, we emphasize that her notice of appeal was dated September 17, 1996 and that, even accepting appellant's contention that she had brought her appeal papers to the Department of Education on September 18, she was still more than four months past the filing deadline at that time.

We therefore dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to file notice thereof within the statutory time limit as computed under the applicable regulations.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teaching staff member, alleged the Board had violated the provisions of N.J.S.A. 6:29-3.3 by failing to appoint him to the position of Boys' Basketball Head Coach for the 1993-94 school year.

ALJ concluded that pursuant to regulations and the job description, the Board was permitted, after advertising, to hire the person it deemed to be best qualified for the position as long as that person was also the holder of a valid certificate issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners. Moreover, ALJ concluded that since no allegations of proscribed conduct were set forth in the petition, no right to a hearing existed under the school laws. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision with modification. Commissioner found it unnecessary to reach to the conclusions of the ALJ concerning the hearing rights of petitioner. Petition was dismissed.

Record Closed: December 4, 1995 Decided: January 12, 1996

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter commenced on February 7, 1994, when Raymond McLoughlin (hereinafter petitioner) filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education seeking a determination that the Middletown Township Board of Education (hereinafter respondent) had violated the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 by failing to appoint him to the position Boys' Basketball Head Coach for the 1993-94 school year. An answer on behalf of respondent was filed on February 24, 1994. On March 14, 1994, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F- 1 to -13. A prehearing conference was conducted on June 13, 1994 at which time the following was identified as the issue for determination at hearing:

> Did respondent violate N.J.S.A. 6:29-3.3(a) or (b) by failing to appoint petitioner to the position Boys' Basketball Head Coach?

A hearing was scheduled for October 25, 26 and 27, 1994 at the Trenton office of the Office of Administrative Law. However, prior to that date, on September 19, 1994 respondent filed a notice of motion for summary decision with supporting papers. On October 11, 1994 petitioner filed a response and notice of cross-motion for summary decision with supporting papers. On October 28, 1994 respondent filed a letter memorandum in response to petitioner's cross-motion for summary decision. By letter dated December 8, 1994 the undersigned wrote to the parties advising that the record was being reopened for the purpose of permitting counsel to comment upon the effect of an Appellate Division opinion issued on December 6, 1994 in Krupp v. Board of Educ. of Union Cty. Reg. High Sch. District No. 1, Union County, 278 N.J. Super. 31 (App. Div. 1994), certif. den. 140 N.J. 273 (1995). Counsel for respondent replied by letter dated January 6, 1995, advising that Krupp had been approved for publication and arguing that it was therefore a binding precedent in favor of respondent's position. Petitioner replied by letter dated January 17, 1995, advising that a petition for certification had been filed in Krupp and noted that the effect of Krupp would depend upon the outcome of that appeal. By letter dated March 6, 1995 the undersigned requested that the parties advise, inter alia, whether this matter should be placed upon the inactive list pending a determination by the Supreme Court. Respondent replied by letter dated March 13, 1995 agreeing that the case should be held in abeyance pending the Supreme Court's determination of the cross-petitions for certification in Krupp, but arguing that even in the event that the petitions were denied, respondent is entitled to summary decision. Petitioner filed a letter memorandum on April 19, 1995, addressing the questions posed in my March 6, 1995 letter. The cross-petitions for certifications were each denied on March 22, 1995.

Thereafter oral argument was conducted on the cross-motions in the within matter by telephone conference call on April 19, 1995. At that time it was agreed that petitioner could file an amended petition adding allegations concerning the 1994-95 school year. Petitioner filed an amended petition on May 19, 1995, together with a letter memorandum in support of the allegations in the petition. Respondent filed an answer to the amended petition on June 12, 1995, together with a letter memorandum addressing petitioner's arguments concerning the amended petition. By letter dated July 25, 1995, the undersigned transmitted a copy of the State Board of Education decision, dated June 9, 1995, remanding the Krupp case "to the Commissioner of Education pursuant to the Appellate Division's decision in order for him to determine in the first instance whether petitioner satisfied the standards for appointment to the coaching position he sought and for a decision on the merits of his claim that he would have been entitled to the position on that basis." The undersign's July 25, 1995 letter requested that the parties advise whether the within matter could still be decided on cross-motions for summary decision. No reply from either party having been received in response to the July 25, 1995 letter, the undersigned wrote again on November 8, 1995 directing that any further written submission concerning the effect of Krupp should be filed no later than November 27, 1995. Respondent replied by letter dated November 22, 1995, received the same day. Petitioner replied by letter dated November 30, 1995, received on December 4, 1995, whereupon the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The facts relevant to a determination of this matter are not in dispute and I therefore FIND the following as uncontested facts.

Petitioner has been employed full time as a teacher in respondent's district since 1976. From the 1978-79 school year through 1984-85, he coached freshmen boys' basketball. From 1985-86 through 1988-89, he coached the junior varsity boys' basketball team at High School North. Beginning in 1989-90 school year and continuing through 1992-93 school year, he was the Boys' Basketball Head Coach at High School North. On April 27, 1993 respondent posted Administrative Bulletin #61, requiring applications for all extracurricular positions, including Boys' Basketball, High School North, to be submitted no later than Monday, May 10, 1993. Petitioner applied for the position Boys' Basketball Head Coach High School North.

The job description prepared by respondent for the position Head Coach lists the following qualifications:

1. Full time teaching assignment in Middletown Township Public Schools.

2. At least five years of successful coaching experience in his/her chosen coaching area.

3. Such alternatives to the above qualifications as the Board may find appropriate and acceptable.

Respondent did not appoint petitioner to the position he had applied for. Instead respondent re-posted the position on October 21, 1993 and advertised to fill the position by placing an advertisement in the Newark Star Ledger on Sunday, October 24, 1993. Petitioner reapplied for the position. One other certified teacher employed by respondent, John DeGenito, also applied. Respondent hired Edward H. Leibowitz, the holder of a valid Instructional Certificate with a social studies endorsement issued by the State Board of Examiners in June 1975, who had applied by letters dated October 8, 1993 and October 18, 1993 in response to the Star Ledger advertisement. Although the dates on both letters pre-date the October 24, 1993 advertisement, Mr. Leibowitz's October 24, 1994 certification explains that the application letter he sent is a form letter which is in his computer and which he sends to all school districts and although he had changed the inside address to respondent's address, he had not changed the dates on the previous letters which he had sent to other districts. At the time he was hired Mr. Leibowitz was not a full-time teacher in respondent's district or in any other district. He was also not employed as a full-time teacher in any district during the 1993-94 school year while he was employed by respondent as Boys' Basketball Head Coach.

After respondent had posted and advertised the position of Boys' Basketball Head Coach for the 1994-95 season, petitioner again applied for the job. Respondent employed instead a teacher who held a valid certificate issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners but who was employed full time as a teacher in a parochial school. On May 19, 1995 petitioner filed an amended petition challenging respondent's hiring of a head coach for the 1994-95 season who was not employed full time as a teacher in a public school district.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

The once classic statement of the standard for granting or denying summary judgment set forth in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954), was recently modified in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, and KRA Insurance Agency, Inc., --- N.J. --- decided October 24, 1995. Therein the Court held that the standard to be applied is now the same as the standard for determining motions for involuntary dismissal under R. 4:37-2(b) and for determining motions for judgment under R. 4:40-1 and R. 4:40-2. Trial courts considering motions for summary judgment are now required to engage in the same type of evaluation, analysis or sifting of evidential materials in light of the burden of persuasion that applies if the matter goes to trial. The Court explained:

> Under this new standard, a determination whether there exits a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." . . . Credibility determinations will continue to be made by a jury and not a judge. If there exists a single, unavoidable resolution of the alleged disputed issue of fact, that issue should be considered insufficient to constitute a "genuine" issue of material fact for purposes of Rule 4:46-2. . . . The import of our holding is that when the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a > matter of law, . . ., the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. (citations omitted) Slip. opinion pp. 25-26.

The Court noted that to send a case to trial knowing that a rational decision-maker could reach but one conclusion was indeed "worthless" and would "serve no useful purpose." The purpose of this new standard, the decision explained, was to encourage trial courts not to refrain from granting summary judgment when the proper circumstances present themselves. In the present matter petitioner has offered no facts to contradict respondent's logical explanation for the dates on the application letters sent by Mr. Leibowitz in response to the Star Ledger advertisement. I therefore CONCLUDE that there is no genuine issue of material fact concerning Mr. Leibowitz's application and since there are no other facts in dispute, this matter is ripe for summary decision.

N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3, the regulation governing a determination of the within matter, provides:

> (a) Any person not certified as a teacher and not in the employ of a district board of education shall not be permitted to organize public school pupils during school time or during any recess in the school day for purposes of instruction, or coaching or for conducting games, events or contests in physical education or athletics.
>
> (b) School districts shall be permitted to employ any holder of a New Jersey teaching certificate to work in the interscholastic athletic program provided that the position has been advertised.
>
> (c) In the event there is no qualified and certified applicant, the holder of a county substitute certificate is authorized to serve as an athletic coach in the district in which he or she is employed for a designated sports season, provided that:
>
> 1. The district chief school administrator demonstrates to the county superintendent that:
>
> i. The vacant coaching position had been advertised; and
> ii. There was no qualified applicant based on the written standards of the district board of education;

2. The district chief school administrator will provide a letter to the county superintendent attesting to the prospective employee's knowledge and experience in the sport in which he or she will coach; and

3. Approval of the county superintendent shall be obtained prior to such employment by the district board of education. The 20-day limitation noted in N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.4(i) shall not apply to such coaching situations.

Until December 1994 the above quoted provisions had been consistently interpreted by the Commissioner and the State Board of Education to mean that if any teaching staff member within a district applied for a coaching position, then an employee of the district would have to be appointed and only if no in-district employee had applied could an out-of-district applicant be considered. See, e.g., Chambers v. Board of Education of the Township of Neptune, 1985 S.L.D. 1363; Norcross v. Board of Educ. of Hunterdon Regional High Sch. Dist., 1991 S.L.D. 1154. On December 6, 1994, however, the Appellate Division decided Krupp v. Board of Edu. of Union Cty Regional High School, 278 N.J. Super. 31 (App. Div. 1994) wherein it determined that the Commissioner and State Board had been misinterpreting the 1983 amendments to N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 (then designated N.J.A.C. 6:29-6.3). The court in Krupp reviewed the regulatory history of the 1983 amendments to the regulation and concluded that the amendments were intended to remove the absolute preference for an in-district employee. The court noted that subsection (b) of the amended regulation is clear on its face and permits districts to "employ any holder of a New Jersey teaching certificate" provided that the local board has advertised the vacant position. Explaining its conclusion, the court said:

Until November 7, 1983, N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(b) provided that:

> Every person appointed subsequent to June 1, 1960, to coach, teach or train individual pupils or school teams for inter-school athletic competition shall be a certified member of a school faculty in that school district and shall be employed full-time during the regular day when classes are in session.
> [15 N.J.R. 1152(b), 1153 (July 18, 1983)].

> This language was deleted and replaced with the language in subsection (b), quoted supra (at pp. 38-39, 650 A.2d at p. 370), which contains no intra-district hiring preference. Generally, the deletion of a specific requirement and substitution of broader language is considered a clear indication of intent to eliminate the excised restriction. Moreover, the clear contrast with the language of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(c), as well as the pre-1983 language in subsection (b), indicates that a distinction can be clearly made when so intended.

The Court then makes the following statements which have given rise to the issue herein whether all athletic coaches hired for the inter-scholastic athletic program must also be employed in some school district:

> Subsection (a) of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 as amended, requires that all athletic coaches be: (1) certified teachers; and (2) employed by a school district in New Jersey. Subsection (a) of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 does not state that coaches must be certified teachers employed by "the" school district in which they are employed. Use of the article "a" in this case, therefore, is akin to using the word "any." Under this "reasonable reading," the employment of Hennessy by the Johnson School was authorized in subsection (a) and the employment of Krupp was not mandated by that section. Id. at 41-42.

> Subsection (a) of necessity must be read in context with subsection (b). As noted, after the 1983 amendment, subsection (b) permits districts to "employ any holder of a New Jersey teaching certificate," provided that the local board has advertised the vacant position. See N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(b), supra.

Petitioner argues that paragraph a and paragraph b, when read together, require athletic coaches hired to work in the inter-scholastic athletic program to be (a) certified teachers and (b) employed by some school district in New Jersey. Since it is undisputed that the parochial school teacher was not employed by "a school district" and that Mr. Leibowitz was not employed by any school district either at the time he was hired by respondent or at any time during his 1993-94 coaching duties, petitioner claims that he is entitled to judgment as a matter of law, reimbursing him for the stipends which should have been his. Respondent points out, however, that paragraph (a) and paragraph (b) address two entirely different situations; paragraph (a) regulates persons who "organize public school pupils during school time or during any recess in the school day for purposes of . . . coaching . . ." and paragraph (b) specifically addresses the inter-scholastic athletic program which invariably is conducted during hours other than school time or recesses during the school day. As noted by the court in Krupp, an administrative agency in construing its regulations must apply the same rules of construction as those guiding statutory construction by the courts. Also as noted by the Krupp court, the language of the regulation is not ambiguous. There is, therefore, no reason to resort to rules of construction. N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(a) was not amended in 1983 when the other subsections, (b) through (f), were replaced. A careful reading of subsection (a) reveals that it applies only to persons who coach or conduct instruction or athletic activities "during school time or during any recess in the school day." It would therefore appear that subsection (a) had nothing to do with the hiring of either Arthur Krupp or Walter Hennessy since the position in question, Head Girls' Basketball Coach, did not involve activity during school time or during any recess in the school day; Walter Hennessy taught full-time in a different district, and therefore the duties of Head Girls' Basketball Coach could not have been performed during school time or during any recess in the school day. Clearly, the position in Krupp was one in the Inter-Scholastic Athletic Program. Prior to the 1983 amendments to this regulation subsection (b) through (f) governed hiring in the Inter-Scholastic Athletic Program. The pre-1983 regulations are the source of the requirement that an athletic coach be employed full-time during the regular school day in some school district. That language was completely eliminated in the 1983 amendments. After 1983 the only requirements imposed by the regulation are that a coach in the Inter-Scholastic Athletic Program be the holder of a New Jersey Teaching Certificate and that the job be awarded only after the position has been advertised.

Subsection (c) of the amended regulation applies only if "no qualified and certified applicant" exists. In the within matter it is undisputed that both the parochial school teacher and

Mr. Leibowitz are the holders of a New Jersey Teaching Certificate. Petitioner argues that Mr. Leibowitz was not "qualified" because he did not satisfy the requirements in respondent's job description. As respondent accurately points out, however, pursuant to paragraph #3 in the job description (quoted hereinabove), respondent has the ability to waive the requirements set forth in paragraphs #1 and #2. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that pursuant to the regulations and its own job description, respondent was permitted, after advertising, to hire the person it deemed to be best qualified for the position as long as that person was also the holder of a valid certificate issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners. Petitioner had no right pursuant to the regulations to be reemployed in the position.

It is possible that petitioner may have had some right to reemployment in the position pursuant to the negotiated agreement between the Middletown Township Education Association and respondent. N.J.S.A. 34:13A-23, effective January 4, 1990, provides:

> All aspects of assignment to retention in, dismissal from, and any terms and conditions of employment concerning extracurricular activities shall be deemed mandatory subjects for collective negotiations between an employer and the majority representative of the employees in a collective bargaining unit, except that the establishment of qualifications for such positions shall not constitute a mandatory subject for negotiations. If the negotiated selection procedures fail to produce a qualified candidate from within the district the employer may employ from outside the district any qualified person who holds an appropriate New Jersey teaching certificate. If the employer is unable to employ a qualified person from outside of the district, the employer may assign a qualified teaching staff member from within the district.

Whatever rights, if any, petitioner has/had to the position would arise under this statute. Which brings us to the one remaining issue in the within case, whether the Krupp decision somehow creates the right to a hearing before the Commissioner of Education for unsuccessful applicants for coaching positions in the Inter-Scholastic Athletic Program. The Appellate Division in Krupp did remand the case to the State Board of Education "for a determination on the merits not inconsistent with the construction of the regulation set forth herein." As previously noted, the State Board has remanded the matter to the Commissioner of Education for a hearing. These remands are puzzling in light of the holding that a board of education has discretion to employ any holder of a New Jersey teaching certificate after the position has been advertised. Perhaps there was something unique about the facts in Krupp which caused the court and the State Board to remand the matter for a hearing. Since coaches in the Inter-Scholastic Athletic Program do not earn tenure in those positions, I CONCLUDE that whatever rights to a hearing might exist arise under N.J.S.A. 34:13A-23 and not under the school laws, unless, of course a petitioner provides adequately-detailed allegations of proscribed conduct, i.e., unlawful discrimination, deprivation of constitutional rights, etc. See Nasuti v. Bd. of Ed. of West Amwell, 1979 S.L.D. 11, 18. There have been no such allegations set forth in the petition in this matter.

For all of the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that respondent is entitled to the relief which it seeks as a matter of law. Accordingly, respondent's motion for summary decision is GRANTED. Petitioner's motion for summary decision is DENIED and the petition of appeal herein is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), contending, inter alia, that petitioner is entitled to the position of Boys' Basketball Head Coach over those appointed by the Board to coach in 1993-94 and in 1994-95. Specifically, petitioner argues that he is entitled to the position in that the other appointees are not employed in any school district. Petitioner argues that such employment must be a qualification for the position which is consistent with the decision in Krupp, supra. Petitioner further argues that to find otherwise, as did the ALJ, would be incorrect in that it would allow boards to operate on "pure whim," or "legalized anarchy." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 9)

In its reply, the Board argues that the ALJ's initial decision was correct and should be adopted in its entirety. The Board avers that the ALJ's construction of applicable regulation, Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, as modified above, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law and dismisses the within Petition of Appeal.

IN THE MATTER	:
		STATE OF NEW JERSEY
OF	:
		SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION
JOHN HARRISON	:
		DECISION
_____	:	DOCKET NO: C13-94

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This case comes before the School Ethics Commission (Commission) by way of Complaint filed by Ronald Ungarini against Ewing School Board Member John Harrison on August 24, 1994. Mr. Harrison filed his Answer and Certification on September 19, 1994. The Complaint alleges that Mr. Harrison violated the School Ethics Act by voting for a 48-day penalty-free extension for the construction of a new Parkway School while he was concurrently a partner in a firm subcontracted as the consulting structural engineer by the architect on the same project. Mr. Harrison denies having received any benefit as a result of that vote and denies that the extension was penalty-free to anyone other than the general contractor and thus, neither he nor the architect gained any financial benefit from the granting of the extension.

The matter was placed on the agenda of the Commission for December 1994. After considering the allegations in the Complaint, the responding affidavits and the exhibits submitted in support of both, the Commission determined at its November 16, 1994 meeting that there was probable cause to find that the School Ethics Act, specifically N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24a, b, and c, had been violated. The Commission further determined that the material facts were not in dispute and thus there was no need for a factual hearing. The Commission set forth its findings in a letter dated November 23, 1994. In that letter, the Commission invited the parties to submit briefs setting forth their positions as to the applicability of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24a, b, and c and the appropriate penalty. The parties were to file their briefs no later than December 13, 1994 and their reply briefs no later than January 4, 1995; however, due to staff shortages, the matter was not placed on the Commission's agenda again until December 14, 1995.

A final decision was rendered on that date, finding that respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) and (a). The Commission recommends to the Commissioner of Education that a censure be imposed as the appropriate penalty.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The Commission has determined from the pleadings, affidavits and exhibits that the following facts are undisputed:

- The Ewing Township Board of Education entered into a design contract with an architect in 1990 for the design of the new Parkway Elementary School.

- The Architect for the project was Faridy Thorne Fraytak. The Architect subcontracted the structural engineering design work to Harrison-Hamnett, P.C.

- John Harrison is a partner in Harrison-Hamnett, P.C.

- John Harrison was elected to the Ewing Township Board of Education and took office on April 25, 1994. Thus, the contract between the Architect and Harrison-Hamnett was entered into before Mr. Harrison became a board members.

- When John Harrison filed his personal/relative disclosure statement, he answered the question, "Are you or any relative employed by or receiving compensation from any business which is a party to a contract with the school district in which you hold office or employment?" by saying "Yes" and providing the name Faridy Thorne Fraytak, P.C. as the name of the business from which he received compensation.

- The contract between the owner, the Mercer County Improvement Authority, and the Construction Manager provides in Article 2 that:....

  > The Architect shall visit the site not less than twice per week while work is in progress, and as often as necessary and appropriate to the stage of construction, to inspect the site and work; to familiarize himself with the progress and quality of the work; to determine for the owner's benefit and protection if the work is proceeding in accordance with the intent of the contract documents and construction schedule. On the basis of his on-site observations and inspections as an Architect, the architect shall keep the Owner informed of the progress and quality of the work he shall use reasonable care to guard the owner against defects and deficiencies in the work and against the Contractor's failure to carry out the work in accordance with the intent of the construction documents and the construction schedule. [Agreement @ 2.6.5].

- The Construction Manager for the project was Lehrer McGovern Bovis. The general contractor had sought an extension of time to complete the project for 70 days, and that request was reviewed by the Construction Manager. The Construction Manager (Lehrer McGovern Bovis) recommended granting a 48-day extension.

The Commission finds that the action of Mr. Harrison to vote for the construction extension creates an impression among the public that he cast this vote in self-interest rather than the interest of the public, especially in light of the fact that the extension would cause the school to not be completed by the start of the school year. It was also a vote in which Mr. Harrison had an indirect personal and financial involvement that could reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity and independence of judgment. The contract between the owner and the construction manager provides that the architect "shall use reasonable care to guard the owner against defects and deficiencies in the work and against the contractor's failure to carry out the work in accordance with the intent of the construction documents and the construction schedule." Thus, the contract indicates that the architect could be held accountable for delays by the contractor and therefore, the penalty free extension to the contractor benefited the architect with whom the board member has a financial and personal involvement.

Based on foregoing, the Commission finds that Mr. Harrison's conduct would not be acceptable to the public nonallowable under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c).

Mr. Harrison, through his attorney, strenuously denies having violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) which prohibits board members from "using their official positions to secure unwarranted privileges for themselves, members of their immediate family, or others." The Commission disagrees with Mr. Harrison's assertion that there was no benefit to the architect from the vote to extend the deadline. This disagreement is due to the contract language set forth above that indicates that if litigation ensued between the contractor and the owner because the extension was denied, the architect could easily be named in the litigation for failing to adequately guard the owner against the contractor's failure to comply with the contract schedule. Nevertheless, the Commission is persuaded that it does not have sufficient evidence before it to determine that the privilege was "unwarranted" in light of the facts presented.

The determination as to whether the extension was an unwarranted privilege would turn on whether the factors which lead to the need for an extension had actually occurred and whether they fell within the contractual language setting forth what reasons for delay would be excusable. While the Commission agrees that it does not have adequate expertise or evidence in this particular case to find a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b), it does not agree that it does not have jurisdiction to form an opinion as to whether the general contractor was entitled to the extension of time. As long as the determination was made in the context of deciding whether a violation of a provision of the School Ethics Act occurred, the Commission could make such a ruling. However, it would need an expert report and witness testimony to do so and the Commission is not so prepared at this time.

Mr. Harrison, through his attorney, also denies that his action in voting for the extension violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(a). He states that in prior cases before the Commission, the Commission has ruled that the provision was not violated in cases in which abstaining from the vote would cure the conflict. Thus, he argues that he should

- On July 25, 1994, the Board unanimously approved an extension of 48 days from August 1, 1994 to October 7, 1994 "for the substantial completion of the new Parkway School" as set forth in the Board minutes.

- Mr. Harrison seconded the motion to approve the extension of time and voted for it.

- The Architect's performance has never been raised as an issue with respect to any extension of time request.

- When a question was raised shortly after the July 24 meeting as to whether Mr. Harrison should have participated in the vote, Mr. Harrison asked the board attorney for a legal opinion. The board attorney orally rendered an opinion at the next Board meeting on August 22, 1994 advising that Mr. Harrison should have abstained and recommended de novo action by the Board. The Board voted de novo on the matter without any participation by Mr. Harrison and the extension was unanimously reaffirmed. The Board attorney's oral opinion was later reduced to writing and is included in the record.

- Mr. Harrison has ever since abstained on all matters dealing with the district's ongoing construction projects.[1]

DECISION:

Mr. Harrison, through his attorney, admits that his voting for the 48-day extension is a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c). that section sets forth:

> No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial or personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment.

The Commission finds that N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) was violated when Mr. Harrison seconded the motion and cast a vote in favor of granting a 48-day extension to substantially complete the construction on the new school, based on his partnership with a firm subcontracted by the architect on the project. In considering this case, the Commission examined pertinent sections of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. as well as the facts of this case and relevant case law.

[1] The contractual relationships were actually a further step removed from the Board, in that none of the construction or consultant contracts were with the Board, but rather were with the Mercer County Improvement Authority (MCIA), which bid, advertised, financed and directly managed the project under a lease purchase arrangement.

not be disqualified from acting on other matters that come before the board because of his interest in Harrison-Hamnett. We find his argument to miss the point. Subsection (a) provides as follows:

> No school official or member of his immediate family shall have an interest in a business organization or engage in any business transaction or professional activity, which is in substantial conflict with the proper discharge of his duties in the public interest.

The Commission agrees that from this point forward respondent's abstention from voting in matters involving Harrison-Hamnett will cure his conflict of interest. However, that determination does not in any way absolve respondent of the violation of subsection a that already occurred. The Commission must look at the fact that in the matter presently before the board, respondent did not abstain from the vote as his own counsel recognizes he should have. Rather he voted in a matter in which his business interest and the board's interest were in substantial conflict. Mr. Harrison's activity as partner in Harrison-Hamnett was in "substantial conflict" with the proper discharge of his duties as school board member when he voted on the extension and indeed, when he votes on any matters which involve his company's contract with the board, whether directly or indirectly. Thus, only as applied to the particular facts that are presently before the board, the Commission finds that N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(a) was violated.

SANCTION

Respondent submits that a reprimand is the logical penalty given his lack of experience on the school board and thus, his lack of intent to violate the Act. However, the School Ethics Commission believes that a higher penalty is in order based on the nature of the violation and the fact that his answer to the personal/relative disclosure statement showed that he recognized the connection between his business and the architect. Therefore, the Commission recommends to the Commissioner of Education that Mr. Harrison be publicly censured for his action.

Censure is "a formal public action read into the record of the School Ethics Commission to rebuke a school official..." N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.2. This sanction is stronger than a reprimand because the sanction is publicly announced. The Commission is of the opinion that Mr. Harrison's actions warrant such public declaration. His vote created the situation where the public could reasonably perceive that he was acting for his own interest rather than that of the public he serves. He also created a situation in which his two roles as partner in a structural engineering firm and board member were in substantial conflict. The public should be aware that the Commission will not allow such a situation to exist.

The complainant has requested that Mr. Harrison be removed from the board; however, because Mr. Harrison was a new board member and had not yet attended his orientation for new board members, the Commission does not feel that his conduct warrants such severe punishment. As set forth above, the Commission will not allow the fact that he was recently elected to the board to absolve him completely, but it is a factor taken into account in determining that a censure is the most appropriate penalty.

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission recommends to the Commissioner of Education that the penalty of censure be imposed.

IN THE MATTER OF	:
	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
JOHN HARRISON.	:
	:	DECISION

The initial decision of the School Ethics Commission, together with the recommended sanction adopted by the Commission, has been reviewed. This matter comes before the Commissioner of Education to impose a sanction, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), upon John Harrison (Harrison), member of the Board of Education of Ewing Township (Board) based upon a finding by the School Ethics Commission that Harrison violated the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq.

BACKGROUND

After finding probable cause of a violation of the School Ethics Act by John Harrison, the School Ethics Commission determined not to transmit this matter to the Office of Administrative Law, in that the Commission found that no material facts were in dispute, and an evidentiary hearing was, therefore, not warranted. At its meeting on December 14, 1995, the Commission determined that Harrison violated the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(a) and (c), by voting for a 48-day penalty-free extension for the construction of a new Parkway School while he was concurrently a partner in a firm subcontracted as the consulting structural engineer by the architect on the same project. The Commission recommends that censure is the appropriate penalty in this matter. After the issuance of the Commission's decision, the parties were provided an opportunity to submit comments to the record regarding the Commission's proposed sanction for the Commissioner's consideration in his determination of an appropriate penalty herein. Comments on behalf of Harrison were filed on January 29, 1996.[1]

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The School Ethics Commission found that Harrison violated N.J.S.A.18A:12-24(c)[2] when he seconded the motion and cast a vote in favor of granting a 48-day extension to substantially complete the construction on the new school, based on his partnership with a firm subcontracted by the architect on the project.[3] The Commission determined such action created a public impression that such vote was cast in self-interest rather than in public interest. Further, it found that Harrison also "had an indirect personal and financial involvement that could reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity and independence of judgment." (School Ethics Commission Decision at p. 4) It noted that the contract existing between the owner and the construction manager placed an obligation on the architect to guard against defects and deficiencies in the work performed and against the contractor's failure to complete work in accordance with construction documents and the construction schedule. Thus, the Commission concluded

[1] On January 5, 1996, counsel for John Harrison advised the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes that he did not receive a copy of the Commission's December 19, 1995 decision until January 3, 1996. He, therefore, requested and was granted an extension of time within which to file his comments.

[2] This provision specifies: "No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial or personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment."

[3] The Commission noted that Harrison admitted that his action was violative of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c).

> the contract indicates that the architect could be held accountable for delays by the contractor and therefore, the penalty free extension to the contractor benefited the architect with whom the board member has a financial and personal involvement. (Id.)

The Commission further found Harrison's actions violative of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(a).[4] The Commission noted that

> Mr. Harrison's activity as partner in Harrison-Hamnet was in "substantial conflict" with the proper discharge of his duties as school board member when he voted on the extension and indeed, when he votes on any matters which involve his company's contract with the board, whether directly or indirectly. (School Ethics Commission Decision at p. 5)

Although the Commission found that for any future board matters which involve Harrison's company, abstention from voting would cure his conflict of interest, it held that this determination does not absolve him of the instant violation.

Finally, the Commission declined to find that Harrison's actions violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) which prohibits board members from using their official positions to secure unwarranted privileges for themselves, members of their immediate family, or others. The Commission saw potential benefit to the architect from the vote which extended the deadline in that if such deadline had not been extended the architect might incur liability pursuant to the contract between the contractor and owner which obligated him to guard against failure of the contractor to comply with the construction schedule. Notwithstanding this, the Commission

[4] This provision states: "No school official or member of his immediate family shall have an interest in a business organization or engage in any business, transaction, or professional activity, which is in substantial conflict with the proper discharge of his duties in the public interest."

determined that "it does not have sufficient evidence before it to determine that the privilege was 'unwarranted' in light of the facts presented." (School Ethics Commission Decision at p.4)

With respect to penalty, the Commission recommends that Harrison be publicly censured for his actions. It believes that the nature of the violation and the fact that Harrison's answer to the personal/relative disclosure statement recognized the connection between his business and the architect warrant such public declaration.

COMMENTS TO THE COMMISSION'S DECISION

Comments submitted by Harrison urge that the facts in this matter do not warrant a penalty as severe as censure. Initially, he compares this matter to Ronald Dilzer v. Karen Sweet, decided by the Commissioner November 17, 1995, a recent ethics decision wherein the Commissioner rejected the Commission's recommendation of censure and instead imposed a reprimand as the appropriate penalty. Harrison argues that in this matter, as in Sweet, "the respondent did not in any way benefit, personally or financially, from the disputed action" and "the violation was unintentional, in that neither respondent realized that their actions were violative of the Act, and both were acting in good faith." (Harrison's Comments at p. 2) Moreover, Harrison asserts that this matter is even more compelling for a mitigated penalty than that of Sweet, since at the time of the violation he had only been a Board member for three months and had not yet had an opportunity to attend the Board member training mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:[12-33]. Sweet, on the other hand, was board vice president and had been on the board for a number of years at the time of her violation.

Further, Harrison contends that objective indicia substantiating his assertion that he acted in good faith in this matter is evident from > the fact that he requested an objective opinion from the board attorney immediately after a question was raised about his vote. This was on his own initiative and occurred before the instant ethics complaint was filed with the Commission. (emphasis in text) (Harrison's Comments at p. 3)

Harrison continues, subsequent to the receipt of the Board attorney's opinion, that he should have abstained from voting, the Board took de novo action and, without his participation, voted to readopt the original resolution.

Harrison next observes that in making its penalty recommendation, the Commission cited the nature of the violation and the fact that his answer to the personal/relative disclosure statement showed that he recognized the connection between his business and the architect as justification for the severe penalty of censure. He argues:

> Granted that he knew of his firm's relationship to the Architect, but neither the Architect's performance nor the Architect's recommendation was before the Board on July 25! The matter is even further removed in that all the contracts were actually with the Mercer County Improvement Authority (MCIA) not the Board, and the Board had no direct contracts with any of the parties at the time the vote was taken.  Moreover, the recommendation before the Board came from the Construction Manager  not the Architect, and the extension itself involved neither of those firms' performance, but only that of the General Contractor.  The relationship of respondent's firm to this particular action is very obscure and indirect, and these circumstances should be factors in determining the "nature of the violation" and the resulting sanction. (Harrison's Comments at pp. 3-4)

Lastly, Harrison urges the Commissioner to consider that he has already suffered as a result of this matter in that he has "been the victim of scurrilous newspaper reporting containing false allegations that I financially benefited from the Board's action which is absolutely untrue." (Id. at p. 4) He notes that counsel has advised him that he has no recourse against this particular newspaper because he is a "public figure." Harrison further proffers that > as a volunteer board member who has pledged a substantial amount of time toward the education of children in my school district, I do not believe that I should be subject to [the] penalty [of censure] for an innocent error from which I obtained no benefit and which was righted as soon as it was brought to my attention.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Upon review of the Commission's findings of fact and conclusions of law, by which the Commissioner is bound in making his determination in this matter, the recommended penalty of the Commission and the comments of Harrison as to penalty, the Commissioner declines to accept the Commission's recommendation that censure is appropriate in this matter since censure calls for formal public action read into the record of the School Ethics Commission rebuking the school official who was determined to have violated the School Ethics Act. (N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.1 et seq.)

Rather, the Commissioner determines that the fact that Harrison was a new Board member who had not yet received the Board member training course; that he was the individual who sought and received a legal opinion with respect to this matter before the filing of the instant charges; that the Board subsequently unanimously sanctioned the July 25 vote, absent participation from Harrison; and that the record confirms an extremely remote connection between the interests of Harrison's company and the particular vote taken at the meeting of July 25, are all relevant considerations to his obligation to fairly render a determination of the appropriate sanction in this matter. The Commissioner concludes that the totality of these considerations warrants mitigation of the penalty recommended by the Commission. Accordingly, the Commissioner finds that reprimand, which consists of a letter from the Commission rebuking Harrison for having breached the standards of conduct prescribed by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. (N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.1 et seq.), is the appropriate penalty to be imposed in this matter.

IT IS hereby ORDERED that John Harrison be reprimanded as a School Board Member found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

RONALD N. TRISUZZI,

Petitioner,

v.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

Respondent.

Ronald Trisuzzi, pro se, petitioner

Department of Education relied on documents submitted pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.6

Record Closed: December 18, 1995 Decided: January 18, 1996

BEFORE JEFFREY A. GERSON, ALJ

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Ronald Trisuzzi was employed as a custodian at Chancellor Academy II in Rockaway, New Jersey. After a criminal history review by the Office of Criminal History Review of the Department of Education, Mr. Trisuzzi was notified that he was disqualified from employment in the State schools.

Mr. Trisuzzi appealed the disqualification and the Deputy Commissioner of Education on behalf of the Commissioner issued a letter decision on March 13, 1995 affirming Mr. Trisuzzi's disqualification and forwarded the matter to the State Board of Education. The State Board of Education, after a thorough review of the record, remanded the case to the Commissioner of Education in order to provide Mr. Trisuzzi with an adequate opportunity to establish a record in support of his contention that he had satisfied the statutory standard of proof of rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1

The Commissioner of Education forwarded this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a full hearing. The hearing was conducted and concluded on December 18, 1995.

BACKGROUND

In September 1993, Ronald Trisuzzi was hired as Building Maintenance Manager and Custodian by Chancellor Academy II in Rockaway, New Jersey. Prior to commencing his employment in September, he had voluntarily worked for the Academy during the months of July and August. His successful employment during the "two month trial period" led to his hiring in September.

A routine fingerprint search conducted by the Criminal History Division of the Department of Education revealed a conviction for aggravated assault on May 5, 1990.

Subsequent investigation disclosed that the aggravated assault had been downgraded to simple assault, a simple assault in which no bodily injury occurred, and a conviction for possessing less than 25 grams of marijuana, a disorderly person's offense.

An examination of the actual complaints filed in the municipal court confirms that Mr. Trisuzzi pled guilty to simple assault and possession of less than 50 grams of marijuana.

The facts surrounding this incident which occurred on May 2, 1990, are as follows: Mr. Trisuzzi was returning from his employment as a truck driver when his motor vehicle was stopped by the Fairfield Police for having an overdue inspection sticker. After the police requested Mr. Trisuzzi's motor vehicle paperwork and license, he was asked to step out of the vehicle and he was searched. The search of Mr. Trisuzzi's person proved fruitless, but the arrival of a second police unit and a search of the vehicle resulted in the discovery of a small marijuana "roach".

The discovery of the "roach" led to Mr. Trisuzzi's arrest, an arrest which in his view was unwarranted and unnecessary. When it came time to handcuff Mr. Trisuzzi, his fear and his immaturity caused him to refuse to allow the officer to place the handcuffs on his wrists. A minor struggle ensued, at which point Mr. Trisuzzi, albeit reluctantly, submitted to the arrest.

On October 4, five months later, Mr. Trisuzzi appeared in court with an attorney, apparently provided to him by his parents, whose name he could not recall. Mr. Trisuzzi did recall pleading guilty to the amended charge of simple assault and to the amended charge of possession of less than 25 grams of marijuana. He also remembered being surprised that his license was revoked for six months.

A review of the Fairfield Municipal Court's records concerning Mr. Trisuzzi confirms his guilty pleas and, surprisingly, appear to indicate that he had requested First Offender Treatment with respect to the marijuana charge. The penalty with respect to that charge is, in fact, exactly what he would have gotten had he actually been treated as a First Offender. For some unknown reason, no notification was sent to any criminal justice agencies confirming Mr. Trisuzzi's successful completion of his six month probation.

THE LAW

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 in pertinent part states as follows:

> An individual . . . shall be disqualified from employment or service under this act if the individual's criminal history record check reveals a record of conviction of any of the following crimes and offenses:
>
> (a) In New Jersey, any crime or disorderly person's offense: (1) bearing upon or involving sexual offense or child molestation as set forth in N.J.S.A.2C:14-1. et seq. or, (2) endangering the welfare of children or incompetence as set forth in N.J.S.A. 2c:24-4 and N.J.S.A.2C:24-7.
>
> (b) A crime or offense involving the manufacturer, transportation, sale, possession or habitual use of a "controlled dangerous substance" as defined in the "New Jersey Controlled Dangerous Substances Act," N.J.S.A. 2C: 24:21-1 et seq., or
> (c) (1) a crime or offense involving the use of force or the threat of force to or upon a person or property including: armed robbery, aggravated assault, kidnapping, arson, manslaughter and murder, or (2) a simple assault involving the use of force which results in bodily injury.

Since the simple assault to which Mr. Trisuzzi pleaded guilty did not involve the use of force which resulted in bodily injury, the only disqualifying offense which appears on his record is the possession of a "controlled dangerous substance".

N.J.S.A.18A:6-7.1(e) provides:

> Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, an individual shall not be disqualified from employment or service under this Act on the basis of any conviction disclosed by a criminal record check performed pursuant to this Act, if the individual has affirmatively demonstrated to the Commissioner of Education clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. In determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation, the following factors shall be considered:
>
> (1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;
>
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;
>
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
>
> (4) The date of the offense;
>
> (5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;
>
> (6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
>
> (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
>
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition or additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the individual under their supervision

DISCUSSION

The following is an analysis of the eight factors which were addressed and considered at the time of the hearing concerning whether or not there was clear and convincing evidence of Mr. Trisuzzi's rehabilitation.

Concerning the nature and responsibility of his position, Mr. Trisuzzi as a maintenance man would have relatively little contact with the student body at the Academy. Though his responsibility for the physical condition of the building would be significant, there is little doubt from the testimony and the written submissions from personnel at the Academy that Mr. Trisuzzi has more than adequately met those responsibilities.

With respect to the nature and seriousness of the offense, one can never characterize any drug offense as something other than serious, but in the overall spectrum of possible drug offenses, possession of one small "roach" certainly falls at the very lowest level of that spectrum. It was in fact pointed out by Mr. Trisuzzi that the "roach" itself was not found on his person, but rather in the car, and though he accepted responsibility for what the law would consider possession, he maintained that it was not he who had smoked the "roach".

Since the circumstances under which the offense occurred have already been detailed, the next element to be considered is Mr. Trisuzzi's personal circumstances at the time of the incident. When his motor vehicle was stopped and the subsequent arrest took place, Mr. Trisuzzi was no longer living at home with his parents who had recently gone through a divorce. A little more than a year prior to the incident, the relationship with his father had deteriorated to the point where Mr. Trisuzzi gave up his schooling and moved out of his father's house. He started living with various friends over the period of the next year until the apartment which he was occupying just prior to the incident was subject to an eviction action which left him basically "living out of his car". It was at this disheveled time of his life that Mr. Trisuzzi had, what he indicated was, his first and only contact with the criminal justice system.

He was only 18 at the time the offense was committed, but had suffered through hardship of a man considerably older.

In analyzing not only the factual circumstances surrounding Mr. Trisuzzi's arrest and subsequent conviction but also all of the documentation that he submitted (attached hereto) and having had the opportunity to personally see and hear his testimony, I am convinced that his offense in May 1990 was an isolated event which is unlikely to ever occur again.

Though I have already mentioned the social conditions which may have contributed to Mr. Trisuzzi's arrest, I also note that Mr. Trisuzzi, prior to becoming an employee of Chancellor Academy II, had been a student there in the middle to late 80's. Chancellor Academy II accepts students who are emotionally handicapped.

The evidence of Mr. Trisuzzi's rehabilitation is compelling, clear and convincing.

Not only did he successfully complete his six months probationary period, but he has, since the arrest and conviction, obtained his "Black Seal" license from the State which allows him to work on boilers. In order to get the license, he had to attend a training school for 12 weeks and pass a test. He did so successfully.

He is presently engaged in a home study course which will provide him with a high school equivalency diploma in June. His grades have been excellent.

Not only has Mr. Trisuzzi taken educational and employment steps to improve his plight, he has reestablished a relationship with his father which he had lost when he moved out of the house and quit school. He has unquestionably broken the pattern of disappointment which had alienated him from his father.

Undoubtedly the question of whether or not Mr. Trisuzzi had some type of drug problem is a question that should be addressed directly and has been. At least five drug tests over a period of time from his first date of employment in 1993 until this month have all come back negative. The reason these drug tests are being conducted was that Richard A. Sheridan, the Director of Chancellor Academy II, wanted to be absolutely sure that Mr. Trisuzzi would present no risk to the students of Chancellor Academy II if he was employed as a maintenance man.

Not only has Mr. Trisuzzi established himself as being drug free by way of the drug tests, but he has also been receiving "informal" counseling from Doctor James Sherwood, a licensed psychologist employed by Chancellor Academy II.

The evidence presented at the hearing clearly established that Mr. Trisuzzi has done all that could possibly be asked to ensure that the remainder of his life travels a much more beneficial path than the first 18 years did. He finds his employment as a maintenance man to be fulfilling and enjoyable and it has the added ingredient of surrounding him with professionals who have known him for several years and who not only closely monitor his activities, but also admire his dedication to his responsibilities.

CONCLUSION

Ronald Trisuzzi has, by clear and convincing evidence, established his rehabilitation. He should not be disqualified from his present employment as a maintenance man and custodian for Chancellor Academy II, a job which he has performed admirably for a period of approximately two and one-half years.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by THE COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE	:
DISQUALIFICATION FROM	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT OF	:	DECISION
RONALD N. TRISUZZI.	:

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner adopts the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that Mr. Trisuzzi has demonstrated rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and is, therefore, qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws.

The Commissioner, however, does find a need to clarify a comment made by the ALJ on page 4 of the initial decision wherein he states "Concerning the nature and responsibility of his position, Mr. Trisuzzi as a maintenance man would have relatively little contact with the student body at the Academy." The Commissioner has been consistently mindful that, notwithstanding the fact that the custodial position Mr. Trisuzzi seeks to occupy is not one where the incumbent has direct involvement with students in that he is responsible for their care, supervision or instruction, such a position nevertheless affords an individual significant and otherwise unsupervised access to children, a consideration which must not be minimized when examining rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is hereby adopted, for the reasons clearly articulated therein, and Mr. Trisuzzi is deemed qualified for school employment as a custodian. This matter will be transmitted to the State Board of Education which has retained jurisdiction pursuant to its decision of September 6, 1995.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE DISQUALI- :
FICATION FROM SCHOOL EMPLOY- : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
MENT OF R.M.R. : DECISION

Decided by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, October 11, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, R.M.R., pro se

R.M.R. (hereinafter "petitioner"), who was employed as a substitute custodian by the Board of Education of the Township of Edison, was disqualified by the Office of Criminal History Review of the Department of Education from continued employment in the State's schools when a fingerprint search conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 revealed that he had been arrested in July 1989 on charges of burglary, theft and arson, and that he had subsequently entered a guilty plea. Petitioner sought to overturn his disqualification on the basis of rehabilitation.

In a letter decision dated October 11, 1996, the Deputy Commissioner of Education upheld the disqualification,[1] concluding that petitioner had failed to demonstrate clear and convincing evidence of his rehabilitation as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. The Deputy Commissioner observed that petitioner had been "convicted of, not one, but three separate crimes, and that [his] disqualifying offense of Arson was recent and of a very serious nature." Deputy Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 2. The Deputy Commissioner concluded that insufficient time had passed since the date of petitioner's last offense to convince him of petitioner's rehabilitation.

[1] We note that N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 authorizes the Commissioner to "designate an assistant commissioner as deputy commissioner with full power to act in his place and stead during any absence or inability of the commissioner and at such other times as the commissioner may designate." Such authority expressly includes assignment by the Commissioner of the "hearing and determination of controversies and disputes which may arise under the school laws...." N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34.

12/4/96

Petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board.

After a thorough review of the record, we reverse the decision of the Deputy Commissioner.

We stress initially that, contrary to the finding of the Office of Criminal History Review and the Deputy Commissioner, petitioner was not convicted of arson. Rather, the record reveals that the arson charge, filed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:17-1a(2), was downgraded to criminal mischief, N.J.S.A. 2C:17-3a, a crime which is not expressly listed as disqualifying in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. That statute defines disqualifying offenses to include:

> c.(1) A crime or offense involving the use of force or the threat of force to or upon a person or property including: armed robbery, aggravated assault, kidnapping, arson, manslaughter and murder....

Since the Deputy Commissioner proceeded on the mistaken belief that petitioner had been convicted of arson, the record was not developed in such manner as to permit a determination regarding whether petitioner's criminal mischief conviction in this particular instance was of such nature as to constitute a "crime or offense involving the use of force or the threat of force to or upon a person or property."

However, after careful review of the record, we find that no purpose would be served by remanding this matter for a determination of whether petitioner's conviction for criminal mischief was disqualifying under the statute. Given our authority as the ultimate administrative decision-maker and fact finder in school matters, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Tyler, 236 N.J. Super. 478, 485 (App. Div. 1989), certif. den., 121 N.J. 615 (1990); Dore v. Bedminister Tp. Bd. of Ed., 185 N.J. Super. 447, 452 (App. Div. 1982), we find that, even if criminal mischief constituted a disqualifying offense in this particular case, petitioner has demonstrated clear and convincing evidence of his rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e).

Illustrative of petitioner's endeavors towards rehabilitation is the fact that he enrolled as an adult student at the Middlesex County Vocational and Technical High School in September 1993 and graduated in June 1995 as valedictorian of his class, receiving certificates for outstanding achievement in both science and physical education. A letter signed by the school's principal and four teachers commends petitioner as "a diligent worker...who, we believe, has become rehabilitated because of his personal desire and hard work." The head custodian at the school in which petitioner had been employed prior to his disqualification praises petitioner as "a very good worker...[who] would be welcome back in our school any time," and the service manager for a real estate company in which petitioner had been employed indicates that petitioner had "proved himself to be of excellent characture [sic], morals and an outstanding worker."

Petitioner successfully completed "with improvement" the terms of his probation, which included restitution, a substance abuse evaluation and 100 hours of community service, and there have been no further arrests since 1989, when he was 19-years-old. We note also that petitioner's convictions, although involving three separate criminal offenses, all stemmed from a single incident. Moreover, we stress that petitioner was disqualified from employment as a substitute custodian, a position which does not include responsibility for the care, supervision or instruction of students. Given these circumstances, we find that further penalization of this individual is neither a just result nor warranted under the terms of the statute.

Accordingly, we correct the Deputy Commissioner's assertion that petitioner had been convicted of arson and, in view of our finding that petitioner has demonstrated clear and convincing evidence of his rehabilitation, we find no need to remand this matter for a determination of whether his criminal history includes a disqualifying offense. Rather, based upon our finding of rehabilitation, we reverse the decision of the Deputy Commissioner disqualifying petitioner from service in the schools of New Jersey as a substitute custodian. LETTER ORDER
DENYING EMERGENT RELIEF

John D. Wade, Esq.
1250 Chews Landing Road
Laurel Springs, NJ 08021

RE: D.C. v. BLACK HORSE PIKE REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 577-96
AGENCY DKT. NO. 37-1/96

Dear Counsel:

I have considered petitioner's application for emergent relief and supporting papers seeking D.C.'s immediate reinstatement to classes and respondent's memorandum and affidavits in response as well as the oral argument presented by each of you on February 20, 1996.

To establish entitlement to emergent relief petitioner must demonstrate, inter alia, a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits. Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 120 (1982). N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2(d) identifies "physical assault upon another pupil" as conduct which shall constitute good cause for suspension or expulsion of a pupil from the public schools in New Jersey. The fact that D.C. physically assaulted another pupil (who was not then assaulting D.C. and who at the time was even being restrained by a teacher) is not in dispute. Respondent afforded D.C. a preliminary hearing prior to the imposition of an administrative suspension which lasted for 15 days, and a full-blown hearing before the Board was conducted prior to expelling him from school. Petitioner complains that the notice of the charges was deficient in that it did not advise petitioner of his right to cross-examine Board witnesses; this appears to be true, but the deficiency was corrected by respondent's attorney at the very beginning of the hearing before the Board (and again a little later on in the hearing.) The notice did advise petitioner of his right to call his own witnesses at the hearing, and any argument that he had insufficient time to arrange for their testimony is wholly without merit; the parties voluntarily waived their rights to a full hearing within 21 days and so D.C. had more time than usual, not less, to prepare. The argument that the sanction imposed was too harsh is not one which is likely to prevail in this kind of a case. K.I. v. Matawan/Aberdeen High School District, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 74.

The appropriate standard of review of the Board's action in this matter is set forth in Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education 60 N.J. Super. 28 (App. Div. 1960). Where the issue is one involving the exercise of a local board's discretion, the scope of the Commissioner's review is "not to substitute his judgment for that of those who made the evaluation but to determine whether they had a reasonable basis for their conclusions." Id. at 297. Actions of local boards of education which lie within the area of their discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Quinlin v. Board of Ed. of North Bergen, 73 N.J. Super. 40 (App. Div. 1962); Thomas v. Morris Township Board of Education, 89 N.J. Super. 327 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd 46 N.J. 581 (1966); K.L. v. Matawan/Aberdeen High School Dist., 91 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 74; M.G. v. Monmouth Regional High School, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 38. Although it is possible that petitioner may meet this standard following a plenary hearing, it is by no means "reasonably probable" on the basis of the facts in the emergent relief papers. Accordingly, the motion for emergent relief must be DENIED.

Please let my secretary know if you wish to schedule the plenary hearing herein for February 29, 1996. If that is not convenient, please speak with her and arrange an alternate date.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the Commissioner of the Department of Education, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Very truly yours,

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON MOTION

The record of this matter, including the audiotape of proceedings before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), and the initial decision on Motion for Emergent Relief of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ denying emergent relief as petitioner failed to meet the standards for such relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6, R. 4:52-1.

Accordingly, the Motion for Emergent Relief is denied for the reasons expressed by the ALJ and this matter shall duly proceed to a hearing on its merits.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, paraprofessional aide, alleged Board wrongfully charged her for use of sick time in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.

ALJ concluded that the petition was filed out of time. ALJ found that the Board had given petitioner adequate notice of its use of her accumulated sick leave and personal day and that, pursuant to Kaprow, the initiation of negotiations did not toll the 90-day rule. Petition was dismissed as untimely.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BARBARA CONKLIN,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF OLD BRIDGE,
Respondent.

Randi Doner April, Esq., for the petitioner (Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell and Cohen, attorneys)

Francis X. Journick, Jr., Esq., for the respondent (Wilentz, Goldman and Spitzer, attorneys)

Record Closed: December 13, 1995 Decided: January 18, 1996

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the petition filed by Barbara Conklin, the petitioner, alleging that she was not provided appropriate sick leave benefits pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. The respondent, the Board of Education of the Township of Old Bridge (Board), denied the allegation. On July 27, 1995 the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14f-1 to -13.

There was a telephone prehearing conference on October 16, 1995 at which time the parties agreed that the issues in the matter are:

1. Whether the Board complied with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1.

2. Whether the petition in this matter was filed timely in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.3(c).

During the prehearing conference, it was decided that the parties would submit briefs as to the second issue, which would be decided before any hearing in the matter. The parties have submitted briefs, and the record in the matter closed on December 13, 1995.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

The petitioner was employed as a paraprofessional aide by the Board, and on November 28, 1988, she had a work-related injury. This injury was the subject of a workers compensation settlement. In accordance with the settlement and the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, the Board paid the petitioner for the time she was out of work during the 1988-89, 89-90, 1990-91 and 1991-92 school years.

The petitioner had another injury on September 24, 1993, and she was out of work from that day to the end of the 1993-94 school year. Ms. Conklin did not file a workers compensation appeal as to this injury. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, the Board paid the petitioner's full salary between September 24, 1993 and January 20, 1994. The Board stopped the N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 benefits on January 20, 1994 since it received a report from one of its consulting physicians stating that Ms. Conklin could return to work. Since Ms. Conklin did not return to work after January 20, 1994, the Board used her accumulated sick leave and personal days to continue her salary payments until April 30,1 994. By letter dated May 2, 1994, the Board informed the petitioner that she would not receive any salary payments for absences after April 30, 1994.

On October 26, 1994, the petitioner had a telephone conversation with Nancy M. Mongon, a Board employee, who is responsible for maintaining the Board's records concerning workmen's compensation claims, the accumulation and use of sick leave and personal days. During this conversation, Ms. Mongon informed the petitioner that the Board had used the petitioner's accumulated sick leave and personal days for her salary payments between January 20, 1994 and April 30, 1994. In her affidavit dated November 13, 1995, Ms. Mongon indicated that the petitioner told her that the Board should not have used her sick leave and personal days for this purpose, and that she had prepared a memorandum memorializing her conversation with the petitioner.

After she got this information, the petitioner contacted Glenn R. Johnson, the then president of the Old Bridge Education Association and told him that the Board had used her sick and personal days to pay her salary during part of the 1993-94 school year. In his certification, Mr. Johnson stated that he initiated negotiations with the Board in order to get the petitioner's sick and personal days reinstated, and after 18 months of negotiations, he thought the matter was settled and that the petitioner was credited for the days. Mr. Johnson stated that neither he nor the petitioner learned that the matter was not settled until the petitioner had requested an unpaid medical leave on April 3, 1995. Mr. Johnson stated that after they determined that the matter had not been settled Ms. Conklin filed the petition with the Commissioner on June 27, 1995.

The Board decided not to rehire the petitioner for the 1995-96 school year and she did not challenge the decision.

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

The Board filed the motion to dismiss on the basis that Ms. Conklin's petition was not filed within the time period set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). This section provides:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of the final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

The Board stated that on October 26, 1994, the petitioner was told that her sick leave and personal days were used to pay her salary and it agreed that the ninety day period started to run from that date. The Board argued that the information received by the petitioner from Ms. Mongon gave her sufficient and adequate notice of the Board's action. Chamings v. Rockaway Tp. Bd. of Ed., 1989 S.L.D. 2260 (Comm. Ed. Aug. 22, 1989), aff'd, 1990 S.L.D. 1706 (St. Bd. of Ed., Jan. 3, 1990), Cade v. Ewing Tp. Bd. of Ed., 1989 S.L.D. 2522 (Comm. Ed., Sept. 18, 1989), aff'd, 1990 S.L.D. 1693 (St. Bd. of Ed., Jan. 3, 1990), aff'd, Dkt. No. A-2881-89T5 (App. Div. 1990) (unreported).

The Board argued that the enforceability of the ninety day rule has been clearly established by the courts and that such a provision is necessary in order to provide a finality in educational matters. North Plainfield Ed. Ass'n v. Bd. of Ed., 96 N.J. 587 (1984); Riely v. Henderson Central High Bd. of Ed., 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980). In addition, the Board argued that the courts have recognized that attempts to resolve claims by negotiation are irrelevant and that the petitioner should have filed her petition within ninety days of her conversation with Ms. Mongon. Specifically, the Board noted that in Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley Township, 131 N.J. 572, 588 the courts stated:

> That notice, although it was unofficial and informal, was sufficient to trigger the ninety day limitation period. It is clear that Kaprow learned that the local board had in fact taken final and formal action. Kaprow obviously believed that his tenure status entitled him to one or both of these positions under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 and the notice he had received was adequate to enable him to pursue his claim . . . Kaprow's attempt to resolve his claim through negotiations with the local board is irrelevant. It does not negate the fact that he received adequate notice of February 23, nor does it toll the running of the limitations periods.

The Board recognized that the courts have held that the ninety day rule should be relaxed if its enforcement would be inappropriate, unnecessary or result in any injustice, Scotch Plains Ass'n. v. Scotch Plains Bd. of Ed., 5 N.J.A.R. 175 (Comm. Ed. August 1, 1980), Bergenfield Ed. Ass'n. v. Bergenfield Bd. of Ed., 6 N.J.A.R. 150 (Comm. of Ed., October 29, 1980). In this matter, the Board argued that the petitioner has offered no excuse or explanation as to why she did not file the petition within the ninety days and has presented no showing of any injustice that would result from the enforcement of the ninety day rule.

On behalf of the petitioner, Randi Doner April argued that the ninety-day period did not begin to run after the October 26, 1994 conversation, since Ms. Mongon's statement did not serve as adequate notice of the Board's use the petitioner's accumulated sick leave and personal days. Ms. April argued that a secretary does not have the authority to bind the Board. Further, Ms. April argued that the petitioner was under the impression that the matter had been settled and that her petition was filed within ninety days after she found out that the Board had not agreed to the settlement.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Having reviewed the arguments of the parties, I agree with the Board's argument that the ninety day period started to run after the October 26, 1994 conversation. On that date, the petitioner found out that her accumulated sick leave and personal days had been used to make her salary payments prior to April 30, 1994, and since she disputed this action by the Board she should have filed her petition within ninety days thereafter. Ms. Mongon as the person responsible for sick leave and personal day records was the appropriate person to give this information to the petitioner. Ms. Mongon was not making a policy decision but rather was telling the petitioner that her accumulated sick leave and personal days have been used. Pursuant to the holding in the Kaprow case, it is clear that the initiation of negotiations between the parties did not toll the ninety day provision. As to the petitioner's argument that she thought the matter was settled and therefore did not file the appeal, there was no persuasive showing of any agreement of settlement and further it appears that any such agreement was reached after the ninety-days had run since Mr. Johnson stated the negotiations with the Board took eighteen months. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the petition in this matter was filed out of time. Therefore, I ORDER that the petition be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BARBARA CONKLIN,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF OLD BRIDGE, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioner's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), again contending, inter alia, that she was not provided appropriate sick leave benefits pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2, nor was she provided with adequate notice from the Board that her accumulated sick time was being depleted during her period of leave. (Petitioner's Exceptions at pp. 3-4) Additionally, petitioner excepts to the ALJ's decision that she should have been properly placed on notice that her sick time was being utilized after a conversation she had with a secretary in October in that, "[the secretary] had no authority to bind the Board nor were her conversations with [petitioner] intended to be binding ." (Id. at p. 3)

The Board's reply exceptions support the conclusions of the ALJ's decision (Board's Exceptions at p. 5), asserting that petitioner was given appropriate notice that her sick leave was being counted during her period of absence. Further, the Board asserts petitioner did not act within regulatory timelines, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), in filing her Petition of Appeal against it. The Board asserts that, as such, enforcement of the 90-day rule in this matter would not be inappropriate, unnecessary or result in injustice. (Board's Exceptions at pp. 8-9)

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that the Petition of Appeal was filed out of time and that no relaxation of regulation is warranted in this instance. The Commissioner accepts the ALJ's findings that petitioner was given appropriate notification and that, pursuant to Kaprow, supra, the initiation of negotiations would not toll the 90-day rule.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the OAL that the instant Petition of Appeal be dismissed.

For the Commissioner of Education, Nancy Kaplen, Deputy Attorney General (Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey)

For the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Bernard K. Freamon, Esq.

This matter is before us today by virtue of a motion filed by the Englewood Board of Education, seeking an order from the State Board requiring the Commissioner of Education to make his final report with respect to the regionalization study embodied in our resolution of July 3, 1991, within sixty days of the date of the order. Additionally, counsel for the Englewood Cliffs Board has filed a motion to admit William Bradford Reynolds, Esq., pro hac vice so as to permit him to represent the Englewood Cliffs Board in this matter.

In seeking Mr. Reynold's admission, Englewood Cliff's current counsel of record, Stephen R. Fogarty, has indicated that his firm, Fogarty & Hara, has a conflict in this matter in that the firm also represents several school districts implicated in the regionalization study at issue. Since the terms of R. 1:21-2 require that local counsel sign all papers filed and "be held responsible for them and for the conduct of the cause...", it would not be appropriate for us to permit Fogarty and Hara to act as local counsel for Mr. Bradford in this matter given Mr. Fogarty's statement that a conflict exists. That being the case, we deny the motion without prejudice.

Englewood's motion focuses solely on the regionalization study conducted pursuant to our resolution of July 3, 1991. However, the genesis of the directive set forth in that resolution was the State Board's decision of April 4, 1990. Pursuant to the administrative order appended to the decision and executed on April 5, 1990, the Commissioner of Education was responsible for overseeing a series of activities and for reporting to the State Board as to the status of implementation of those activities and his recommendations for additional measures. As part of the first report to us, the Commissioner recommended, among other measures, that a regionalization study be undertaken. At that time, we acted by resolution dated July 3, 1991 to adopt the Commissioner's recommendation with some modifications. However, nothing in that action or any subsequent action taken by the State Board altered either the terms or the scope of our original order executed on April 5, 1990. It is in this context that we have considered the filings of the various parties in the instant matter.

In response to the Englewood Board's motion, Commissioner Klagholz has indicated that he intends to finalize his consideration of the regionalization study and all other options considered and will make his final report to the State Board on or before February 5, 1997. That being the case, we see no necessity for us to take further action in order to insure implementation of our order of April 1990 and resolution of July 1991, which resulted in the regionalization study at issue and the other activities upon which the Commissioner will be reporting. The State Board therefore denies the motion.

For the Board of Education of the City of Englewood, Kraemer, Burns, Mytelka & Lovell (Arnold K. Mytelka, Esq., of Counsel) and Decotiis, Fitzpatrick & Gluck (Agnes I. Rymer, Esq., of Counsel) and Paul L. Tractenberg, Esq.

For the Board of Education of the Borough of Tenafly, Riker, Danzig, Scherer, Hyland & Perretti (James S. Rothschild, Esq., of Counsel)

On December 4, 1996, we denied a motion by the Englewood Cliffs Board to admit William Bradford Reynolds, Esq. pro hac vice so as to permit him to represent the Englewood Cliffs Board in this matter.

3/5/97

In seeking Mr. Reynold's admission, the then counsel of record for Englewood Cliffs, Stephen R. Fogarty, indicated that his firm, Fogarty & Hara, had a conflict in this matter in that the firm also represented several school districts implicated in the regionalization study at issue. Since the terms of R.1:21-2 require that local counsel sign all papers filed and "be held responsible for them and for the conduct of the cause," we found that it would not be appropriate for us to permit Fogarty & Hara to act as local counsel for Mr. Reynolds in this matter given Mr. Fogarty's statement that a conflict existed. That being the case, we denied the motion without prejudice.

On February 3, 1997, Joseph L. Mecca, Jr. notified us that he had been engaged by the Englewood Cliffs Board to act as special counsel for the purpose of bringing another motion for Mr. Reynolds' admission pro hac vice. In that the Englewood Cliffs Board has cured the conflict which originally concerned us by engaging Mr. Mecca to serve as local counsel in this matter, and upon review of the papers filed, the State Board of Education grants the motion for the purpose of allowing Mr. Reynolds to represent the Englewood Cliffs Board before the State Board with respect to the current matter.

MATTHEW J. GAMBALE,

Petitioner,

v.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

Respondent.

Matthew J. Gambale, pro se

New Jersey State Department of Education, proceeding without representation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.6

Record Closed: December 6, 1995 Decided: January 18, 1996

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

This matter stems from a determination by the New Jersey State Department of Education (respondent) that Matthew J. Gambale (petitioner) was disqualified from continued employment as a school bus driver. Respondent advised petitioner of the disqualification by letter dated April 4, 1995, and petitioner submitted additional information by letter dated April 16, 1995. Petitioner also submitted an undated letter requesting a stay of the disqualification.

Deputy Commissioner of Education Richard A. DiPatri affirmed the disqualification by letter dated May 26, 1995, and petitioner appealed to the State Board of Education by letter dated June 2, 1995. While the appeal was pending, the parties submitted a Consent Order which provided that the matter would be remanded to the Commissioner of Education for a hearing on the issue of rehabilitation with respect to the disqualification determination. By Decision dated August 2, 1995, the State Board of Education granted the request of the parties to remand the matter to the Commissioner of Education in regard to rehabilitation.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on September 20, 1995 for determination as a contested case. A hearing was conducted on December 6, 1995 at the Office of Administrative Law in Newark, New Jersey, and the record closed on the date of the hearing.

It is undisputed that petitioner was convicted of simple assault in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1a(1), which is a disqualifying offense for a school bus driver under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1(c). However, an individual who affirmatively demonstrates his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence will not be disqualified on the basis of a conviction. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e). The issue in this proceeding is whether petitioner has demonstrated his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.

In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e), the following factors must be considered in determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation:

(1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

(4) The date of the offense;

(5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;

(6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the individual under supervision.

The first factor to be considered is the nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold. Petitioner worked as a school bus driver for Taranto Bus Company in Englewood, New Jersey from February 1994 to May 1995. Petitioner worked full-time from thirty to fifty hours per week. Petitioner picked up students in Englewood, Englewood Cliffs and Fort Lee and drove them to Horace Mann High School in the Bronx, New York. As a school bus driver, petitioner was responsible for the safety of the students.

The second factor is the nature and seriousness of the offense. Petitioner was convicted of simple assault in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1a(1), which is a disorderly persons offense.

The third factor relates to the circumstances under which the offense occurred. On October 19, 1992, petitioner and his brother, Vincent, were scheduled to go for a fitting in preparation for Vincent's wedding. They were waiting for Vincent's fiancee, Anna Marie Monterri, and petitioner's girlfriend, Barbara Pidi, but Monterri and Pidi did not arrive on schedule. As a result, petitioner became upset. Monterri and Pidi eventually arrived, and they all left in Pidi's car. Petitioner felt that he had to say something about the lateness of Monterri and Pidi, and an argument ensued. Petitioner asked several times to get out of the car, but Pidi would not stop until she arrived at the home of petitioner's parents. Petitioner and Pidi got out of the car and engaged in a physical confrontation. As a result, Pidi filed a complaint against petitioner, who was convicted of simple assault.

The next two factors are the date of the offense and age of the individual when the offense was committed. The incident occurred on October 19, 1992, at which time petitioner was thirty years old. Under the circumstances, the offense cannot be regarded as a youthful indiscretion. Petitioner should have known better than to engage in this type of misconduct.

The next factor is whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident. Here, petitioner has not been convicted of any other offense. Thus, petitioner's conviction relates to an isolated offense.

The next factor is whether any social conditions may have contributed to the offense. Petitioner was born in 1961 in Brooklyn, New York, and at the age of eight, he moved with his parents to Westwood, New Jersey. Petitioner lived in West New York, New Jersey from 1987 to 1989 and in Mahwah, New Jersey from 1989 to 1990. Petitioner lived in his parent's home from 1990 to 1993. Since that time, he has lived in Bergenfield, New Jersey. Under the circumstances, it does not appear that social conditions contributed to the offense.

The last factor concerns evidence of rehabilitation. As a result of his conviction, petitioner received a fine, but he was not placed on probation. Since that time, petitioner has held various jobs. Petitioner drove a bus for County Bus Lines in Mahwah, New Jersey, for two years, but he left that job due to unacceptable working conditions. Petitioner then worked as a temporary employee doing warehouse work for several months. Thereafter, petitioner worked for seven months as a permanent employee in a warehouse through September 1993. Petitioner performed construction work from October 1993 through January 1994. In February 1994, petitioner worked for Taranto Bus Company until his disqualification in May 1995. Petitioner collected unemployment benefits from May 1995 to September 1995. Petitioner then found employment with A-1 Table Cloth Company in Hackensack, New Jersey, where he is still employed. In sum, petitioner has been able to maintain employment more or less continuously since his offense.

Petitioner currently lives alone, but he speaks by telephone weekly with his parents who have retired to Florida. Petitioner also stays in touch with his four brothers who continue to live in the Bergen County area.

Petitioner presented several letters in support of his case. Robert R. Burroughs, Chief of Police in the Borough of Westwood, states that prior to the offense in 1992, petitioner was never in any trouble in Westwood, and there have not been any problems since that incident.

The Reverend Stephen S. Feehan, Pastor of St. Andrew's Church in Westwood, states that petitioner comes from a good family background and has a good sense of values. Petitioner's conviction was a one-time aberration. Rev. Feehan believes that petitioner is not a threat to anyone and that he will fulfill the responsibilities of his position without any incident.

Stephen J. Gambale, who is petitioner's brother, describes petitioner as a caring and likable person, who would not intentionally hurt anyone or anything. Further, petitioner handles his responsibilities with the utmost seriousness and integrity. Stephen Gambale feels that petitioner has suffered enough and should be allowed to continue to drive a school bus.

JoAnn Moreno, dispatcher for Taranto Bus Company, states that petitioner is a very loyal employee and that he is cooperative with his co-workers. He accepts any and all assignments that are given to him, and he performs his work in an exemplary manner.

Cindy J. Rostolder, who describes herself as a personal friend of petitioner and his family, states that petitioner is a kind individual who puts others before himself. Petitioner is an extremely hard worker who would not hesitate to help others in time of need. Petitioner would like to put the 1992 incident behind him.

Petitioner's landlord, Norman Friedman, states that petitioner is a good tenant and pays his rent on a regular basis. Petitioner has not caused any problems, and he is a very orderly type of individual.

The key consideration in this case is that petitioner's offense was an isolated incident. Petitioner is now thirty-four years old, and he has never had any other offense. Several letters submitted in this proceeding indicate that the incident that led to petitioner's conviction was out of character for him. Further, the conviction was a disorderly persons offense as opposed to a crime and evidently was the result of unusual circumstances that caused him to act out of anger. There is no indication of a calculated intention to cause injury or to violate the law. Moreover, petitioner has maintained more or less continuous employment since his offense, and the letters written in support of petitioner show confidence in his reliability, integrity and good character. Finally, at the hearing, petitioner displayed a thorough appreciation of the responsibilities of a school bus driver and the need to comply with the law. Under the circumstances, I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner has demonstrated his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the disqualification of petitioner as a school bus driver is reversed.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that Mr. Gambale has demonstrated rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1 et seq. and is, therefore, qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons clearly articulated therein, and Mr. Gambale is deemed qualified for school employment as a bus driver. This matter will be transmitted to the State Board of Education which has retained jurisdiction pursuant to its decision of August 2, 1995.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board sought tuition for respondent parents children, alleging ineligible attendance in its schools.

ALJ found that in this shared custody matter the two children were domiciled in Clifton until March 3, 1994 and, thus, they were entitled to a free public education in that school district from the first day of school in September 1993 through March 3, 1994. ALJ concluded that thereafter the children resumed living primarily with their mother in Passaic and that both parents were liable to the Board for tuition at the statutory per diem rate from March 3, 1994 to the date of their removal in June 1994. ALJ ordered that the parents were jointly and severally liable to the Board for tuition for their children from March 3, 1994 to the date of removal at the per diem rate of 1/180 of the annual per pupil cost to the local district, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own, noting it was respondents' choice of domicile for their children during the operative time period, rather than their choice of school districts which was the determinative act herein, inasmuch as entitlement to free education flows directly from domicile.

Record Closed: July 24, 1995 Decided: January 22, 1996

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is a suit by the Clifton Board of Education ("Board") seeking payment of tuition for two children who attended the district's school system in the 1993-94 academic year. Mr. and Mrs. Sauro, parents of the two children, are divorced and live apart in different municipalities. The Board contends that the children were living with their mother in the City of Passaic and, therefore, were not domiciled with their father in the City of Clifton. Both respondents maintain that they had agreed to share custody and that their children spent an equal amount of time in each household. Three issues are raised by the pleadings: (1) Whether the children were domiciled in Clifton within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), which obligates a school district to offer a free public education to "any person who is domiciled within the school district;" (2) Whether the Board waived its right to collect tuition by allowing the children to remain in school with full knowledge of the split living arrangements; and (3) Whether the statutory formula for calculating the amount of tuition owed violates the Eighth Amendment prohibition against excessive fines.

For the reasons that follow, the parents are only liable for tuition accruing after March 3, 1994, the date on which an ongoing custody dispute was resolved by court order.

Procedural History

On July 15, 1994, the Board filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") demanding assessment of prorata tuition against respondents "for the number of days of ineligible attendance." Mildred Sauro filed her answer on August 2, 1994 and Vincent Sauro filed his separate answer on September 14, 1994. Meanwhile, on August 16, 1994, the Commissioner transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case.

On January 3, 1995, Vincent Sauro filed a motion to dismiss the petition for lack of jurisdiction. Thereafter, on January 10, 1995, Mildred Sauro joined in the father's request. By order entered on April 18, 1995, the OAL denied respondents' motion. The OAL held three days of hearing on April 18, May 24 and May 25, 1995. Each of the parties filed legal briefs by July 14, 1994. The Board filed its reply on July 24, 1995.

Findings of Fact

Apart from the issue of domicile, most of the relevant facts are undisputed. Vincent and Mildred Sauro were divorced by final judgment of the Superior Court of New Jersey, Chancery Division, entered on December 11, 1990. There are two children of the marriage, Danielle, born March 3, 1980, and Vincent Jr., born April 10, 1982. Under the original court order, the wife was awarded "custody of the minor children" and the father granted "liberal and reasonable rights of visitation." It is stipulated that the divorce was "not amicable" and that the parents have been engaged in a "bitter" custody battle. Nonetheless, both parents are sincerely interested in their children's welfare and have cooperated in trying to give them the best possible education.

Seven years ago, the father moved out of the home at 11 Parkview Place in Passaic and went to live with his girlfriend and her two school-aged sons in an apartment at 271 Harding Avenue in Clifton. Although the lease and gas bill were in the girlfriend's name, Vincent Sauro contributed more than half the rent. Mildred Sauro remained in the marital home in Passaic. Mr. Sauro, who is self-employed in the bathroom-remodeling business continued to maintain a business office on an upper floor of the Passaic house. The Board does not seriously deny that the father is domiciled in Clifton. Rather, the factual dispute centers on whether the children spent more time with their father or their mother.

In spring of 1993, the mother began to experience increasing difficulty in controlling the behavior of the two children. She enrolled in a parenting-skills course in an effort to learn how to manage her children. Reportedly, behavior problems occurred both at home and at school. As a result, the father assumed a more active parenting role, offering "to take [his children] some of the time and to help them with their school work." Realizing that the father was the stronger disciplinarian, the mother acquiesced to letting the children spend more time with him. She conceived this to be in the best interests of the children, even though she was worried about the possible adverse effect on her custody rights. Starting in late spring or early summer 1993, the children slept overnight at their father's apartment "on a regular basis." There was no fixed schedule, the number of nights per week depending on the father's work schedule and the children's needs.

During the prior school year of 1992-93, both children had attended a parochial school in Rutherford. Over the summer, the parents conferred about their children's education and agreed to send them to the Clifton public schools for the upcoming school year. According to the mother's testimony, she was under the impression that the father had made the necessary arrangements to enroll them in the Clifton school system. On the first day of classes in September 1993, the mother brought the son to attend fifth grade at School No. 3 and the father brought the daughter to the high school. When it turned out that the son was not yet registered in the Clifton school district, the mother was asked to fill out several forms, including an application for the school lunch program. In the space for the household's home address, she put down the father's address in Clifton. In the space for home telephone, however, she used her own unlisted telephone number, which has a Passaic exchange. It was this apparent discrepancy which roused the suspicions of Rita Cadorin, principal of School No. 3, and caused her to request an investigation into the family's living circumstances.

At the administrative hearing, Mrs. Sauro explained that she didn't use the father's telephone on the lunch form because "if they needed to contact me, that is the number where I could be reached." Furthermore, in the course of a telephone conversation on or about September 22, 1993, Mrs. Sauro told Mrs. Cadorin that she and her ex-husband were engaged in a custody dispute, that her son was living in Clifton, and that the telephone number on the lunch form was her own.

Much of the proof at the hearing was devoted to the amount of time which the children lived with one or the other parent.[1] Since parents do not keep time sheets and must rely on imperfect memory, the allocation of how much time a child spent with a particular parent is necessarily an estimate. Of all the witnesses, the mother was the most forthcoming and believable. Mrs. Sauro testified that when school opened in September 1993 the children "were still splitting their time between us," staying three or so days per week in Clifton and the rest of the time in Passaic. She emphasized that the specific arrangements in any one week depended on the father's business demands, but that custodial responsibility remained "pretty equal" until mid-March 1994, when the father's business "picked up."

Her testimony at the administrative hearing is consistent with her earlier statements made to the Board on June 7, 1994, when Mrs. Sauro explained that her former husband "would take Danielle and Vincent, one or two, three times a week" on weekdays. While Board counsel tried to make it appear that the children spent less than half the time with their father, it is clear from the context that Mrs. Sauro was referring to Monday through Friday only and that the children spent additional time with their father on weekends. During the regular work week, the father frequently "took the children after 3:00 [p.m.]" and "they slept overnight" at his apartment. Next morning, the father would go to his office located at Mrs. Sauro's house and would "take them to [her] and [she] would drive them to school." (Transcript of Board removal hearing, page 48).

Alleged discrepancies between Mrs. Sauro's testimony and her comments to the elementary principal, Rita Cadorin, are easily reconciled if the time frame is taken into consideration. Mrs. Cadorin recalled that Mrs. Sauro had confided that she was having [1] Although respondents criticize the Board's failure to follow its own written procedures requiring three documents as proof of residence, that requirement is not germaine here where the fact that the father resides in Clifton is not genuinely in dispute. Instead, the critical issue is whether the children spent more time living with the father in Clifton or with the mother in Passaic.

> . . . the children share their time between the two households, spending 3 or four days at each household each week[,] making it an effective shared custody, until such a time as a court date and decision are given on the children's custody issue.

Mr. Mascari did not rely on the parents' representations alone, but ordered an independent investigation into the family's living circumstances. Significantly, the results of the Board's own investigation substantiated that Vincent Jr. was residing with his father. Richard Tuminello, an investigator working for the district, visited the Clifton address on October 2, 1993 and spoke with Mr. Sauro, who repeated his story about the shared-custody arrangements and the pending custody dispute. While touring the premises, Mr. Tuminello noted the presence of a young boy whom Mr. Sauro identified as his son.[3] Mr. Tuminello was shown a bed in either the living room or dining room, which Mr. Tuminello assumed was being used by Vincent Jr. Mr. Sauro pointed out, however, that Mr. Tuminello was somewhat confused, because Danielle slept in the bed in the dining room, whereas Vincent Jr. shared a separate bed room with the two other boys in the household. [4] Information gathered by Mr. Tuminello convinced him that Vincent Jr. must be regarded as "a resident for the purpose of attending Clifton Public Schools." Barry Mascari reviewed the investigation report and concurred with Mr. Tuminello's recommendation. Mr. Mascari decided not to uproot the children when it appeared that the father might ultimately be granted legal custody.

Unknown to the school authorities, on March 3, 1994 the Superior Court entered a consent order directing that Mrs. Sauro "retain custody of the infant children born of the marriage, subject to [Mr. Sauro's] rights to reasonable and liberal visitation" and that she be entitled "to remain in occupancy of the marital residence . . . until the youngest child born of the marriage shall attain the age of 18 years[.]" At or about the same time, Mr. Sauro's business activities increased and, by all accounts, the children

[3] Mr. Tuminello did not look for the daughter because he was only assigned to check the residence of the son.

[4] Although Mr.Tuminello mistakenly believed that "the boy spends weekends with the mother and weekdays with the father," Mr. Sauro denies ever suggesting that Vincent Jr. spent all five weekdays at his apartment.

difficulty raising her children and that "both kids were living with her and visiting the father on weekends." Although Mrs. Cadorin recalled these conversations as having occurred in November or December 1993, she did not pinpoint the date with any degree of accuracy. Mrs. Sauro confirmed the substance of the conversations, but recalled them as having taken place "much later in April or May," by which time Mr. Sauro's work load had increased and "the kids were staying mainly with [her]." Similarly, the fact that Mrs. Cadorin had observed the mother delivering her son to and from school does not conflict with Mrs. Sauro's testimony that Mr. Sauro worked during the day and dropped the children off at her house in the morning.

Essentially, Mr. Sauro corroborated his former spouse's testimony that for most of 1993-94 the children lived with him some "two to five days per week," depending on his work schedule. He elaborated that the children spent more time with him during the winter months, when his work load is "lighter," and less time during the spring, his "busiest season." Soon after the start of the 1993-94 academic year, Mrs. Cadorin referred the matter to Barry Mascari, the supervisor responsible for residency investigations. Initially, Mr. Mascari was only aware of the son and did not realize that a daughter was also involved. On several occasions in September, Mr. Mascari met with the father, who purportedly assured him that Vincent Jr. was living with him "for a majority of the time." [2] In addition, Mr. Sauro told Mr. Mascari that he had filed formal court papers seeking a change in custody and that, in the event the court granted him legal custody, the son would remain with him in Clifton. At Mr. Mascari's request, Mr. Sauro obtained a letter from Andrew R. Bolduc, Esq., his attorney in the matrimonial litigation. That letter, dated November 9, 1993, confirmed that a custody dispute against his former spouse was pending in Passaic County and that "a final hearing in this matter shall be scheduled shortly." Mr. and Mrs. Sauro also submitted a written statement, signed by both and notarized on December 3, 1993, attesting that they had reached a voluntary agreement whereby:

[2]Mr. Sauro recalls the colloquy somewhat differently, claiming that he told Mr. Mascari that his son stayed with him "a couple days a week." It is evident from the totality of Mr. Sauro's testimony, however, that the actual number of days per week was considerably greater than two and was not limited to weekends.

began spending more time with their mother in Passaic. Neither parent informed the school district of these changed circumstances. Indeed, both parents seemed reluctant to let school officials know that the custody dispute had been resolved.[5]

Meanwhile, in mid-March 1994, the district reopened its investigation as a result of a routine review of its files. On March 14, 1994, Mr. Tuminello revisited the father's address in Clifton to look for Danielle and ascertained from a child about ten years old who answered the door that "Danielle went back to her mother's house." One day later, Mr. Tuminello proceeded to Mrs. Sauro's house in Passaic and found Danielle alone at home. Danielle told him that her parents and brother "were out." Returning on March 16, 1994, Mr. Tuminello encountered Mrs. Sauro and her son Vincent Jr. at the Passic address. Mrs. Sauro admitted to him that the children were now spending "most nights" in Passaic. When the Board adopted a resolution removing both children from the Clifton public school district in June 1994, neither Mr. nor Mrs. Sauro took an appeal to the Commissioner.

I FIND that Mr. and Mrs. Sauro voluntary agreed to the shared custody of their two children for most of the 1993-94 school year. While the division of responsibility is impossible to determine with mathematical precision, the preponderance of the credible evidence indicates that the children spent roughly equal time with their father in Clifton and their mother in Passaic until March 3, 1994. Notwithstanding the Board's efforts to cast the situation in the worst possible light, respondents' inability to trace the children's whereabouts on a day-by-day basis merely reflects the strained relationship between separated marriage partners and the chaotic nature of a broken home. More importantly, the record clearly establishes that, whatever differences they might have, both parents intended that Clifton be regarded as the children's main home and the only district in which the children would attend school. The single home visit by the

[5]Two weeks after the custody dispute had been settled, Mrs. Sauro led Mr. Tuminello to believe that the custody dispute was still pending. Mrs. Sauro insists, however, that she referred to the custody proceedings in the past tense. Several months later, in May 1994, Mr. Sauro told another investigator, Ruth Stein, that the court date for the custody hearing would be "sometime in June or July."

Board's investigator in October 1993 only served to substantiate parents' assertion that the children frequently slept overnight at their father's house in Clifton during that time period.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that respondents' two children were domiciled in Clifton until March 3, 1994 and, thus, that they are entitled to a free public education in that school district from the first day of school in September 1993 through March 3, 1994. Further, I CONCLUDE that thereafter the children resumed living primarily with their mother in Passaic and that both parents are liable to the Board for tuition at the statutory per-diem rate from March 3, 1994 to the date of their removal in June 1994.

N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1(a) declares that public schools shall be free to anyone over five and under twenty years of age "who is domiciled within the school district." Recently, the Legislature amended the law to enhance a school district's authority to remove students not legally domiciled within that district. L. 1993. c. 380. Most significantly, the amendment places an affirmative obligation on a parent or guardian to challenge a school board's contention that a child is not entitled to attend school in that district. In a conditional veto message of the proposed amendments ultimately enacted in revised form, Governor Florio explained that the bill specifically addresses two types of students:

> a child living in the district with a person who is not the child's parent or guardian (commonly referred to as an "affidavit student") and a child living with a parent or guardian who claims to be, but in fact is not, residing in the district (commonly referred to as a "non-domiciled student.") Governor's Statement on Senate Bill No. 1447 (Jan. 10, 1994).

Thus, the lawmakers' attention was on students staying with friends or relatives and on parents whose claimed residence in the district is bogus. When making it easier for school boards to remove ineligible students, the Legislature did not focus on the precise problem involved here, namely children buffeted back and forth between divorced parents, one of whom genuinely resides in the district.

"Domicile" generally is used to mean the place where a person "has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment." State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 250 (1955). Put differently, domicile is "the place with which a person has a settled connection for certain legal purposes, either because his home is there or because the place is assigned to him by law." In re Est. of Gillmore, 101 N.J. Super. 77, 86 (App. Div. 1968), certif. den. 52 N.J. 175 (1968).. Essentially, domicile is "a question of residence and intention." It is the place to which, "whenever he is absent, [a person] has the intention of returning." Benny, at 251. Intention is the catalyst which converts a mere residence into a domicile. "Where a person has two homes in which he lives and between which he divides his time, it is still his intention which creates one or the other as his domicile." Ibid. A very short period of residence in a given place may be sufficient to acquire domicile. Domicile is established by the "concurrence, even for a moment, of physical presence at a dwelling place with the intention of making it a permanent abode." Lyon v. Glaser, 60 N.J. 259, 264 (1972).

Persons legally incapable of choosing domicile acquire domicile by operation of law. Gillmore, 101 N.J. Super. at 87. Under the common law, the domicile of an child was said to follow that of the father "until the child is emancipated and chooses a place of residence of its own." Mansfield Twp. v. State Bd. of Educ., 101 N.J. L. 474, 478 (Sup. Ct. 1925). See also, Pieretti v. Pieretti, 13 N.J. Misc. 98 (Ch. 1935) and Rinaldi v. Rinaldi, 13 N.J. Eq. 14 (Ch. 1922). Accord, Lea v. Lea, 18 N.J. 1, 11 (.1935). In more modern language, a child's domicile is equated with the domicile of the parent or guardian "having legal control of the child." Mansfield Twp., at 479. At least one Commissioner's decision put determinative weight on court-ordered custody and held that, in the case of the divorce of its parents, a minor child's domicile

> . . . is that of the parent to whose custody it has been legally given; and if there has been no legal fixing of custody, its domicile is that > of the parent with whom it lives, but if it lives with neither, it retains [the] father's domicile. C.K.F. v. Upper Twp. Bd. of Educ., 1975 S.L.D. 723, 723-24 (Comm'r Sept. 22, 1975).

Concepts of domicile, however, are not immutably fixed and the term "may have different content and shades of meaning depending upon the context in which it is used." Gillmore, at 86-87. Application of the these legal principles must be flexible enough to adjust to new problems not readily resolved by traditional rules conceived in a less transient society. Gillmore, at 93. Board witnesses recognized the tremendous stresses on a growing number of children who are the product of broken homes. Ms. Cadorin, herself a single parent, expressed empathy with the plight of a parent raising a child without a partner.

Courts also have begun to develop sensitive approaches to meet the needs of children caught between the competing pulls and tugs of separated parents. Illustratively, in Roxbury Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. Milford Bd. of Educ., 283 N.J. Super. 505 (App Div. 1995), a father transferred physical custody of their son to the mother after she had remarried and moved to new home in a different community. Validating the choice of the parents, the Appellate Division upheld the lower court's ruling that "parents were perfectly capable of coming to an agreement as to [their child's] physical custody without court approval." Roxbury, at 521. Like that of any child who changes school districts during a school year, responsibility for educating a child "is placed with the district where the parent with whom the child resides moved." Roxbury, at 522. To prevent parents from randomly switching school districts, the court added that "divorced parents had to have a united intent to establish a district as their child's district, and their decision would be determinative if reasonable and based on good faith considerations." Ibid.

Generally in the area of family law, courts are reluctant to interfere where the parties have managed to resolved their differences fairly and equitably. See, e.g., Berkowitz v. Berkowitz, 55 N.J. 564 (1970) (voluntary agreements between separated spouses for the purpose of settling the issue of support for the wife and child are specifically enforceable); Lepis v. Lepis, 83 N.J. 139 (1980) (same standard of "changed circumstances" applies to modification of support and maintenance obligation reached either by consensual agreement or by court decree.)

Here too, Mr. and Mrs. Sauro have risen above any personal disagreements and presented a united front with respect to the education of their children. Their decision to enroll the children in the Clifton school district was reasonable and made in good faith. Unrefuted evidence establishes the children spent a substantial amount of time with each parent, approximating an equal sharing of custody.[6] Mr. Sauro has clearly made his home in Clifton and has the requisite links to that community to acquire domicile.[7] Both children had beds in the Clifton apartment and the district's investigator verified that the son was truly living at that address. Since the children were living with their father for much of the time and both parents intended that they attend school in the father's district, the children were properly domiciled in Clifton within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1(a).

After March 3, 1994, when the court reaffirmed the mother's custody and the children resumed living mainly with her in Passaic, Clifton's legal responsibility to educate the children ended. Respondents' argument that the Board waived its rights to collect tuition by allowing the children to remain in the district is without merit. Waiver is the intentional relinquishment of a known right. East Orange v. Bd. of Water Comm'rs, 41 N.J. 6, 17 (1963). Proofs show that Board employees reasonably relied on the parents' repeated representations that a custody dispute was pending and that the children were spending roughly half their time with the father. Soon after discovering in mid-March 1994 that the children were now living mostly with their mother in Passaic, the Board promptly initiated proceedings which led to removal of the children in June 1994. No showing has been made that the Board should have known earlier that the children were not domiciled in Clifton and delayed bringing an action to remove them. Compare Fort Lee Bd. of Educ. v. Kintos, No. A-4944-93T5 (N.J. App. Div. Oct. 13, 1995), where a school board was barred from recovering full tuition payments because it waited two and one-half years after having reason to believe that the parents did not reside in the district.

[6]The Board's insistence that it is not obligated to educate the children unless they spend "a majority of time" with their father is logically untenable. If the children divided their time equally between both parents, they would not spend a majority of time with either and, under the Board's reasoning, no district would be responsible for their education.

[7]Although he does not own real property in Clifton, Mr. Sauro correctly described himself as a local "taxpayer" because a portion of the landlord's property taxes are passed along in the rent which Mr. Sauro pays.

Finally, respondents raise a constitutional attack on the facial validity of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 insofar as it relates to the relief requested by the Board. In assessing the amount of tuition due, the Board sought to apply the statutory formula that "[t]uition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance[.]"[8] Respondents contend that calculation of tuition by this method constitutes imposition of an excessive fine in violation of the Eighth Amendment to the United States Constitution. Administrative agencies lack jurisdiction to adjudicate a statute unconstitutional on its face, since that function belongs exclusively to the judicial branch of government. Brunetti v. Borough of New Milford, 68 N.J. 576, 591 (1975). The preferable procedure for a facial attack is for the challenger merely to note its constitutional claims on the record in order to preserve its right to subsequent judicial review. Christian Bros. Inst. v. No. N.J. Interscholastic League, 86 N.J. 409, 416 (1981).

[8]At the time of the hearing, the actual per-pupil costs for the 1993-94 school year were not yet available. The estimated per-pupil costs for 1993-94 were $6,108 per year at the fifth-grade level and $6,453 per year at the high-school level.

Order

It is ORDERED that Mr. and Mrs. Sauro are jointly and severally liable to the Board for tuition for their two children from March 3, 1994 to the date of removal at the per-diem rate of l/180 of the annual per-pupil cost to the local district.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 7870-94

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF CLIFTON, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
VINCENT SAURO and MILDRED SAURO,	:
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by the Board and by Respondent Mildred Sauro, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board initially contends that, assuming arguendo, respondents' children spent an equal period of time between September 1993 and March 1994 with Mr. Sauro (in Clifton) and Mrs. Sauro (in Passaic), domicile, for school purposes, should have been vested in Passaic. The Board avers that > since the children could only have one domicile and since the parties could not establish that the children lived in Clifton a majority of the time, then one could only conclude that the children were properly "domiciled" with that parent who had sole legal custody since December of 1990 - Mrs. Sauro. (emphasis in text) (Board's Exceptions at p. 2)

The Board argues that the ALJ erroneously concludes that, since both parents intended that the children attend school in Clifton from September 1993 to March 1994, then the children were domiciled in Clifton. The ALJ, the Board affirms, "re-writes a fundamental maxim of law - that one can only have one domicile at a time." (emphasis in text) (Id.) Moreover, the Board contends that the ALJ "[c]uriously" cites to Roxbury, supra, which affirmed that a person cannot have more than one domicile. In this matter, the Board continues, the Sauro's children could not have had more than one domicile between September 1993 and March 2, 1994.

Although the Board agrees with the ALJ's view that domicile "...may have different content and shades of meaning depending upon the context in which it is used," it asserts that the ALJ's conclusion in this case "would allow divorced parents to effectively pick and choose children's domicile regardless of which party has judicial custody of the children and regardless of whether the children live with either parent a majority of the time." (Id. at p. 3)

The Board next asserts that the ALJ's factual findings that respondents' children lived with the parties a substantially equal amount of time is unsupported by the evidence. Here, the Board contends that the ALJ "misconstrues much of the testimony and improperly dismisses the credibility of Petitioner's witnesses." (Id. at p. 4) The Board reviews the conduct of respondent Mildred Sauro in registering her son for school in Clifton and in completing the Application for Free and Reduced Priced Meals or Free Milk, as well as the testimony of Rita Cadorin, and concludes,

> In dismissing Mrs. Cadorin's testimony, [ALJ] Springer felt it was significant that Mrs. Cadorin could not pin-point the dates in November and December of 1993 with any degree of accuracy . In so doing, Judge Springer unfairly dismisses Mrs. Cadorin's testimony and the reasons for her specific recollection as to what was and wasn't said in October, November and December of 1993. Curiously, Judge Springer does not address the specific hearing testimony of Respondent Mr. Sauro. In his testimony, Mr. Sauro specifically was asked  whether it was "...true that the children were with you (Mr. Sauro) in Clifton > at least half of the time?" Mr. Sauro responded, "I couldn't say that. They were with me a couple days a week but I couldn't say that it was at least half the time." (Board's Exceptions at p. 5)

Thus, the Board concludes that, in light of Mr. Sauro's admission and the statements made by respondents to Ms. Cadorin between September and December 1993, the ALJ's findings of fact were not based on "sufficient or substantial credible evidence present in the record." (Id. at p. 5)

Respondent Mildred Sauro asserts that the ALJ erroneously concluded that she and Mr. Sauro "presented a united front with respect to the education of their children," and that, therefore, both respondents were jointly and severally liable for the school tuition from March 3, 1994 through the end of the school year. (Respondent Mildred Sauro's Exceptions at p. 1) Mrs. Sauro contends that "[t]here is simply no support for such a premise in the hearing record." (Id.) Rather, she avers that she and Mr. Sauro did not reach a mutual decision to enroll the children in Clifton schools. Mrs. Sauro claims she > relied upon her former husband's representations that he had made inquiry of the school district personnel; that he had truthfully set forth the facts; that he had been informed that the children were eligible to attend the Clifton Schools; and that he had already legally enrolled them in school. She acquiesced in Vincent Sauro's decision, nothing more." (Id. at p. 2)

Mrs. Sauro further asserts that, inasmuch as she was relying on Mr. Sauro's representations, she did not know, prior to the Board meeting held at the end of the 1993-94 school year, that the District suspected any impropriety. Thus, Mrs. Sauro concludes that the record is "abundantly clear" that, contrary to the ALJ's findings, she did not act in concert with Mr. Sauro, and it is inappropriate to hold them "co-equally liable" for the tuition due. (Id. at p. 3)

Mrs. Sauro next excepts to the ALJ's determination that the School District did not waive its rights to pursue its tuition claim by permitting the Sauro children to remain in the District. Here, respondent essentially recasts her arguments as presented before the ALJ. Accordingly, said arguments are not summarized herein.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner initially concurs with the ALJ that respondents' argument that the Board waived its right to collect tuition by allowing the Sauro children to remain in school throughout the 1993-94 school year is without merit. (Initial Decision at p. 13) Further, the Commissioner agrees that respondents' constitutional claims with respect to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 are not properly considered in this forum.

Based on the ALJ's findings of credible testimony and evidence adduced at the hearing, the Commissioner concurs that the Sauro children were domiciled in Clifton from the first day of school in September 1993 through March 3, 1994. (Initial decision at p. 9) In so finding, the Commissioner notes that an analysis of domicile need not necessarily be guided by a "majority of time" paradigm, as argued by the Board. See Fort Lee Board of Education v. Kintos, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 837 (Commissioner, October 14, 1993), affirmed 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 316 (State Board, April 13, 1994), affirmed with modification by Appellate Division, October 13, 1995, A-4944-93T5. Additionally, the Commissioner rejects the Board's contention that the ALJ's analysis permits the conclusion that the Sauro children were effectively granted two domiciles. (Board's Exceptions at p. 2) Moreover, as to the factual findings and credibility determinations of the ALJ which the Board calls into question, the Commissioner recognizes that he cannot properly reject the ALJ's findings of fact without reviewing those portions of the transcript(s) relevant to the Board's exceptions. Rowley v. Board of Education of Manalapan-

Englishtown, 205 N.J. Super. 65, 75 (App. Div. 1985); In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158 (App. Div. 1987). Inasmuch as it was the Board's duty to provide the Commissioner with such portions of the transcript, Morrison at 158, and the Board did not do so, no obligation arises for the Commissioner to review them before rendering a final decision regarding the findings and recommendations of the ALJ.

The Commissioner, therefore, concurs that respondents are jointly and severally liable to the Board for tuition for their two children from March 3, 1994 to the date of removal, at a per diem rate of 1/180 of the annual per pupil cost to the local District[1], notwithstanding Mrs. Sauro's allegation that the decision to enroll the Sauro children in the Clifton schools was not mutually reached. Here, the Commissioner confirms that it is respondents' choice of domicile for their children during the operative time period, which Mrs. Sauro does not dispute, rather than their choice of school districts, which is the determinative act herein, inasmuch as entitlement to free education flows directly from domicile.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted for the reasons expressed therein and as amplified above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[1] The Board noted in its exceptions that a supplemental certification clarifying the per diem cost for each student would be forthcoming. (Board's Exceptions at p. 5) The Board filed supplemental certifications on February 22, 1996 (cover letter dated February 13, 1996), demonstrating the actual per diem cost for grades one through five and for grades nine through twelve for the 1993-94 school year. A copy of the certifications was duly submitted to respondents' counsel. On the basis of said certifications, the Commissioner determines the actual amount due and owing by respondents is $5,214.40.

OF W.W. :

Decided by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, November 1, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, W.W., pro se

W.W. (hereinafter "petitioner"), who was employed as a custodian for a private school operated by Cerebral Palsy of New Jersey, was disqualified by the Office of Criminal History Review of the Department of Education from continued employment in the State's schools when a fingerprint search conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 revealed three convictions following arrests between June 1991 and May 1993 for possession and distribution of controlled dangerous substances. Petitioner sought to overturn his disqualification on the basis of rehabilitation.

In a letter decision dated November 1, 1996, the Deputy Commissioner of Education upheld the disqualification,[1] concluding that petitioner had failed to demonstrate clear and convincing evidence of his rehabilitation as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. The Deputy Commissioner stressed in so doing that petitioner's criminal history was "extremely serious and relatively recent."

[1] We note that N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 authorizes the Commissioner to "designate an assistant commissioner as deputy commissioner with full power to act in his place and stead during any absence or inability of the commissioner and at such other times as the commissioner may designate." Such authority expressly includes assignment by the Commissioner of the "hearing and determination of controversies and disputes which may arise under the school laws...." N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34.

Petitioner, acting pro se, filed the instant appeal to the State Board.

We note initially that petitioner has submitted letters in support of his appeal which were not included in the record before the Deputy Commissioner. Although petitioner has not filed a motion to supplement the record on appeal, N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.9, given petitioner's pro se status, we have supplemented the record sua sponte and have considered those letters in determining this matter. While those submissions reveal that petitioner is making significant progress towards rehabilitation, we affirm the decision of the Deputy Commissioner disqualifying petitioner from service in the schools of New Jersey, particularly in light of the fact that his recent convictions include Possession with Intent to Distribute Controlled Dangerous Substances Within 1,000 Feet of School Property and that the drugs at issue in that case were heroin and cocaine. Given the recent nature and extreme seriousness of petitioner's disqualifying offenses, see N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e)(2), we are unable to conclude at this time that petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated clear and convincing evidence of his rehabilitation.

Accordingly, we affirm the decision of the Deputy Commissioner disqualifying petitioner from service as a custodian in the schools of New Jersey. We note in so doing that nothing in our decision herein precludes petitioner from reapplying to the Office of Criminal History Review once additional time has passed and seeking a determination from the Commissioner that he is qualified for school employment on the basis of rehabilitation.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

Respondent.

Bradley D. Butler, petitioner, pro se

State Department of Education, respondent, appearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.6(a)

Record Closed: December 13, 1995 Decided: January 29, 1996

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter concerns the appeal of Bradley D. Butler (hereinafter petitioner) from the determination of the New Jersey State Department of Education (hereinafter respondent) that he is disqualified from employment as the result of a criminal history record check conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. Petitioner was advised of respondent's determination by letter dated January 11, 1995. He responded by letter dated February 14, 1995, asserting that he was rehabilitated and enclosing a confirmation of attendance at a rehabilitation program at East

Orange General Hospital, a letter of personal reference from a welfare representative for the Township of Irvington, a letter attesting to petitioner's rehabilitation from the Founder and Director of the Friends of the Lifer's Youth Corp. and two letters of character reference from personal friends. On March 6, 1995 Richard A. Di Patri, Deputy Commissioner, issued a determination on the appeal which provided as follows:

> Having reviewed your appeal of disqualification from school employment which resulted from a Department of Education criminal history record check conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 et seq., Bradley D. Butler v. New Jersey State Department of Education, DHP #24-95, I determine you are not qualified for employment as a school custodian.
>
> The record indicates that in September, 1992 you were convicted of possession of narcotic equipment, for which you were sentenced to 91 days confinement, a $650 fine and a six-month suspension of your driver's license. Although you present letters attesting to your personal achievement from a welfare representative, the Director of the Friends of the Lifer's Youth group and two long-standing acquaintances, I nonetheless conclude that insufficient time has transpired since your conviction to find clear and convincing evidence of your rehabilitation.
> Accordingly, pursuant to applicable law, your disqualification from school employment is affirmed. Any appeal of this determination must be filed with the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq.

Petitioner filed an appeal from the determination by letter dated April 1, 1995. Thereafter, the parties executed a Consent Order agreeing to a remand of the matter to the Commissioner of Education for a plenary hearing on the issue of rehabilitation. The Consent Order was received by the State Board of Education on May 22, 1995, and on July 7, 1995, the State Board issued a decision remanding the matter to the Commissioner for a plenary hearing. On September 20, 1995, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for a determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The plenary hearing was scheduled for November 29, 1995 and was conducted as scheduled. At the conclusion of testimony petitioner requested that the record remain open for two weeks for him to obtain and submit additional written recommendations. Nothing further having been received, however, the record closed on December 13, 1995.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Some of the facts relevant to a determination of this matter are not in dispute and I therefore FIND the following as uncontested facts.

Petitioner was employed as a substitute school custodian by the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional Board of Education from October 1994 until January 17, 1995. His employment there was interrupted because of the initiation of the within proceedings. The criminal history record check which is required to be done for any employee of a board of education who has direct contact with students under the age of eighteen revealed convictions for the following offenses:

2/28/80	Possession of Marijuana Sentenced 5/27/80 to sixty days suspended confinement and $100.00 fine.
3/31/82	Possession of Cocaine Sentenced 3/18/83 to four years suspended confinement and three years probation
2/9/86	Heroin Sentenced 8/25/86 to two years probation.
9/13/92	Possession of Narcotic equipment Sentenced 9/13/92 to 91 days confinement Hudson County Penitentiary; jail time credit four days, $650.00 fine and driver's license suspended six month.

The letters of recommendation and character reference which petitioner had forwarded to the Commissioner of Education in February 1995 in support of his appeal were included in the file which respondent forwarded pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.6(a) in the within matter. They provide as follows:

I have known the above referenced individual for approximately sixteen years, and I can honestly say that it is a pleasure to recommend him for a position with the Board of Education.

Because individual character and the ability to handle important decisions are all important in considering an applicant, I feel that Mr. Butler is the prime candidate for any position.

During the years, Mr. Butler has proven himself to be an overcomer, strong-minded and has shown determination in accomplishing tasks; decisions that have been placed in his path have been carefully and intellectually handled. And above all, his responsibility as a husband and father shows true maturity and leadership.

If you are in need of further information, or would like to discuss this any further you can contact me at the address listed above. And I do remain, sincerely,

I have known Mr. Bradley Butler for approximately twelve years; and I feel, very strongly, that he deserves "the second chance" to prove his commitment to self-reform.

Over the years, Mr. Butler has proven himself to be a: responsible human being (and father), a motivated problem solver, and one that possesses appropriate behavior and attitude. These are my reasons for considering him a prime candidate for a position with the Board of Education.

In addition to the strengths listed above, Mr. Butler has successfully completed a detoxification, and substance abuse program.

This concludes the recitation of uncontested facts.

Petitioner testified on his own behalf. He testified that his employment as substitute custodian required him to vacuum, wash chalk boards, clean the cafeteria and take out the garbage; he worked at night after school was closed. In addressing the statutory factors for consideration in assessing rehabilitation, petitioner testified concerning the particulars of each offense. He testified that in 1980 and 1982 he was using drugs off and on and hanging with the wrong crowd. In February 1986 he was experimenting with heroin, he said. The 1992 offense was the result of being in the wrong place at the wrong time; petitioner testified that he did not have drug paraphernalia on him but those who were with him did and the arresting officer had said he was just as guilty as they were. He testified that he was sentenced to 91 days for contempt of court as the result of an outburst in the courtroom when he was trying to explain.

Petitioner further testified that he has been drug-free since the end of 1993, a period of almost two years at the time of the hearing. He attributed his past mistakes to hanging with the wrong crowd. He has learned in recovery that it is necessary to change people, places and things. For the past one and one half years he has lived in Plainsboro with his parents. Prior to that he had moved out of Jersey City to Irvington to live with his sister. It was at that time that he had attended the rehabilitation program at East Orange General Hospital. He currently attends meetings two times per week, either there or at one of the other locations at Essex County College or in Plainsboro. For the past six months he has been working with a company, BFI, which repairs 40-yard dumpsters. Petitioner operates a bulldozer for the company. Petitioner further testified that he is positive there will be no sliding back in in his future. He feels that God is on his side; he now gets high on exercise, he said, and he even quit smoking cigarettes about a year ago.

Curiously, petitioner did not mention that he has a wife who lives in Jersey City until after his father, Charles Butler, testified. Mr. Butler testified that the wife and two children were in Jersey City because she works there and petitioner is staying in Plainsboro because his job is there. Charles Butler further testified that his son is trying to turn his life around. He indicated that petitioner has been going to church with them while he has been staying in Plainsboro. Mr. Butler indicated that he has not observed any involvement with drugs during this time period.

Petitioner's date of birth is November 6, 1955. Accordingly, the criminal offenses described hereinabove occurred when he was twenty-four, twenty-six, thirty-two and thirty-seven, respectively.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, the statute relevant to a determination of the within matter, provides in pertinent part:

> An individual other than a school bus driver shall be disqualified from employment or service under this act if the individual's criminal history record check reveals a record of conviction of any of the following crimes and offenses:
>
> . . .
>
> b. A crime or offense involving the manufacture, transportation, sale, possession, or habitual use of a "controlled dangerous substance" as defined in the "New Jersey Controlled Dangerous Substances Act," P.L. c. 226 (C.24:21-1 et seq.); or
>
> . . .
> e. Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, an individual shall not be disqualified from employment or service under this act on the basis of any conviction disclosed by a criminal record check performed pursuant to this act if the individual has affirmatively demonstrated to the Commissioner of Education clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. In determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation, the following factors shall be considered:

(1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

(4) The date of the offense;

(5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;

(6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.

The phrase "clear and convincing evidence" means more than a preponderance. State v. Cale, 19 N.J. Super. 397, 400 (App. Div. 1952). Under the standard the fact finder must be reasonably certain or have a firm belief or conviction that the contested factual assertion is true. Aiello v. Knoll Golf Club, 64 N.J. Super. 156, 161 (App. Div. 1960). What is clear in this matter is that petitioner was convicted of several offenses which are listed as disqualifying offenses under the statute: four drug-related offenses, occurring in February 1980, March 1982, February 1986 and September 1992. In 1993 he began to take steps to turn his life around. The evidence indicates that he is having some success in this regard. However, I am concerned that he failed to mention his wife and children in Jersey City until after his father's testimony, and the absence of any input herein from his wife, even after petitioner was given an additional two weeks after the hearing to submit supplemental references, also raises questions. Petitioner's father appeared as a candid, sincere and credible witness, but his testimony projected cautious optimism with respect to his son's rehabilitation rather than clear conviction. Considering petitioner's many years of drug involvement, I am not persuaded that two years of being drug-free clearly and convincingly establishes that petitioner has achieved his goal, although he certainly seems to be working toward it.

If the standard of proof of rehabilitation which petitioner is required to meet in these proceedings were a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence, I might be inclined to agree that petitioner is probably rehabilitated. The legal standard I must apply to the facts in this matter, however, is clear and convincing and because of the doubts and reservations I have expressed I am unable to find that petitioner has established his rehabilitation as required by the statute. The Legislature has made a policy determination that convictions for certain kinds of offenses disqualify persons from employment which involves direct contact with school children. That disqualification can only be lifted where the evidence makes it clear and reasonably certain that rehabilitation has occurred. The proofs in this case do not rise to that high standard.

For all of the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that petitioner is disqualified from employment in the public schools pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE	:
DISQUALIFICATION FROM	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT OF	:	DECISION
BRADLEY D. BUTLER.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that Mr. Butler has not met his burden of establishing rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and is, therefore, not qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws.

Accordingly, Mr. Butler's disqualification from school employment is sustained for the reasons clearly articulated by the ALJ in her initial decision. This matter is hereby transmitted to the State Board of Education which has retained jurisdiction pursuant to its decision of July 5, 1995.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE	:
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF RAMAPO	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
INDIAN HILLS REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL	:	DECISION
DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, defeated candidate for Board membership, alleged there were improprieties and violations of law in the conduct of the school election.

ALJ found that as to the allegations in the petition, as a matter of law there was no citation of a statutory violation nor was there any allegation in the petition the statements in question were attributable to the Board or to those under its direct supervisory control nor by the other candidate Mr. Crystal. ALJ concluded the petition did not allege actions which would give rise to a cause of action within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education and that the petition in this case must be dismissed.

Commissioner determined that petitioner failed to meet his burden of establishing a direct nexus between the alleged improprieties and the specific outcome of the election. Petition was dismissed.

INITIAL DECISION
GRANTING RESPONDENT'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 4705-95
AGENCY DKT. NO. 116-4/95

INQUIRY IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF RAMAPO INDIAN HILLS REGIONAL, BERGEN COUNTY

John J. Segreto, Esq., for petitioner

Allen Dzwilewski, Esq., for respondent,
Ramapo Indian Hills Regional High School District

Steven B. Crystal, pro se, respondent

Record Closed: December 18,1995 Decided: January 19, 1996

BEFORE: MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

This motion for summary decision comes by way of motion papers filed by the respondent school district on August 4, 1995. Response in opposition by the petitioner was received on September 15, 1995. Although that submission indicated that a copy of a video tape was being served upon both the respondent school district as well as respondent Steven Crystal (Crystal) a telephone conference was conducted at the request of the parties on October 2, 1995 at which time respondents indicated that they had not received the videotape and that it would be forwarded via overnight mail. On October 17, 1995 a letter was received by respondent Crystal indicating that the videotape had not yet been received.

Subsequently the videotape was produced for the parties and oral argument, as well as a viewing of the videotape for the purposes of uniformity, was set for December 18, 1995. On that date the record closed for the purposes of this motion for summary decision.

The original matter had been filed by petitioner Joseph A. Medici by way of letter dated April 21, 1995. The matter had been transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 on May 10, 1995. Initially, the parties consisted of petitioner Medici and respondent school district. It became apparent that respondent Crystal was a necessary party in this matter and respondent Crystal consented to his addition as a party in this case and as such was added.

A bench decision was given on January 19, 1996 which is memorialized by this written decision.

Statement of Facts

Solely for the purposes of the motion for summary decision filed by respondents both sides agree that even if all of the allegations set forth in the petition are deemed to be material facts they do not state a cause of action. As a result, for this motion only, those facts are deemed true and uncontested. They are as follows:

1. The regional board has local cable TV access, which transmits Franklin Lakes matters on behalf of the regional board and are required to be cleared and authorized by the local superintendent of schools. A candidate's night taped TV program was taped for broadcast with the authorization of the superintendent. The mayor of Franklin Lakes,

Thomas Donch, taped a six-minute address in which he attacked the candidacy of Joseph A. Medici, making partisan false accusations and fraudulently untrue statements. The mayor had prior thereto publicly endorsed the candidacy of the other candidate. The tape attacking the candidacy of petitioner was broadcast on local cable access TV the day before the election. It ran for several hours until it was removed from broadcast by the superintendent upon the complaint of petitioner Medici. The superintendent indicated that the mayor's taped address had, unknown to the superintendent and without his authorization, been broadcast and had been included on the tape of the candidate's night. Someone had taken the candidate's nights tape which had been authorized to be broadcast and edited into the tape the aforementioned comments of the mayor. After the superintendent ordered the removal of the mayor's comments from the tape, someone then, without authorization, removed the candidate's night tape from further broadcast.

2. On election day candidate Joseph A. Medici pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-15 acted as challenger and wore and displayed his challenger's badge at the polling area.

3. While petitioner was present at the polling place on election day, George Katz, a supporter of the other candidate, made accusatory statements in a loud, audible and offensive manner asserting that petitioner was acting illegally and unethically in being at the polling place and fraudulently asserting that he was a supporter of petitioner. Katz made other statements regarding petitioner in the presence of a number of voters who were then assembled. The business administrator was called and he explained to Katz that petitioner had a right to serve as a challenger. The county superintendent's officer further confirmed the advice of the business administrator. Katz, despite being informed of the views of the business administrator and the county superintendent's office continued the conduct complained of. Subsequently the local police arrived at the polling place in the presence of voters and accusing comments were made by Mr. Katz and Mr. White in a voice audible to those voters present.

4. For the purposes of this motion only these facts are accepted. They are accepted to determine only whether or not a cause of action is stated and accepted as true for that purpose and that purpose alone. In addition to these facts, a copy of the videotape was entered into evidence for the purpose of this motion only and marked RM-1. That also was considered and forms a part of the record in this case.

Legal Discussion

This matter arises in the posture of a motion for summary decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. The moving party in such case must demonstrate that there exists no genuine issue of material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law. Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co., 17 N.J. 67 (1954). It must be noted that summary decision should be granted only with extreme caution when underlying facts essential to the decision are not disputed and a determination can be made as a matter of law. In this case the facts are stipulated to only for the purposes of this motion with the respondent's position being that even if every fact alleged is true no cause of action lies within this forum nor would these actions vitiate this election as having thwarted the will of the people.

With respect to the first allegation dealing with the videotape, it was conceded by all that the tape was edited and displayed on cable TV. No allegation has been made either by way of the petition or during the course of this matter that this was done under the auspices of the school board itself or Mr. Crystal. In point of fact, the petition itself indicates that the superintendent gave information that the mayor's taped address had, unknown to the superintendent of schools and without his authorization, been broadcast and included with the tape of the candidate's night. In the same petition in this case it states that after the superintendent "ordered" the removal of the mayor's comments from the tape, "someone" then, without authorization, removed the candidate's night tape from further broadcast.

It is clear from the allegations in the petition that nothing, as a matter of law is alleged to be linked to the school district itself and to Mr. Crystal. The Commissioner of Education specifically is limited to jurisdiction in matters arising under the school laws pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. In this case we are talking about a school election but the actions alleged in the petition are beyond the scope with which either the school district and the board, nor its authorized representatives, have the authority to deal.

Additionally, there is no reference to the statutorily prescribed procedure about which is being complained. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12 the Commissioner of Education shall inquire into alleged violation of statutorily prescribed procedures for school elections. As a result the first allegation in the petition must hereby be dismissed as failing to state a cause of action cognizable in this forum and by the Commissioner of Education.

With respect to the second allegation the petitioner alleges that while lawfully acting as a challenger pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-15 and present at the polling place certain individuals who are alleged to be supporters of another candidate made statements audible to the public which were untrue, for the purposes as alleged, of discrediting the petitioner. These individuals were both named. Even though in the second paragraph of the petition it indicates that respondent Crystal arrived at the polling place when the police did, the last sentence shows clearly that the statements complained of, alleged to be "accusatory" regarding the petitioner, were made by Mr. Katz and Mr. White in the presence of other voters.

As with the first allegation in this petition, as a matter of law there has been no citation of a statutory violation nor has there been any allegation in the petition itself that these statements are attributable to the board or to those under its direct supervisory control nor by respondent Crystal.

No motion to amend the petition was ever made in this case and as a result the case cannot expand beyond the allegations in the petition. Any misconduct or fraud which is alleged and, for the purposes of this motion only, the facts are not disputed, must be on the part of election officers and must, in turn, thwart the free expression of the popular will. In re Wene, 26 N.J. Super. 363, 376 (Law Div. 1953), aff'd sub nom. Wene v. Meyner, 13 N.J. 185 (1953) at 196.

Taking this case in the broadest possible context as delineated in the petition it is impossible to conclude that, even proving all of the acts alleged, a cause of action exists for the reasons stated above.

It is unnecessary to reach the question of whether or not those actions had, were or might have reasonably had any effect on the outcome of the election due to the fact that no cause of action that is cognizable in this forum is cited. It should be pointed out that even in cases where irregularities are shown it is well established that elections are to be given effect whenever possible and are not to be set aside unless it can be shown that the will of the people was thwarted, was not properly expressed, or could not fully be determined. In the Matter of the Annual School Election held in the Township of Pitsgrove, Salem County, 1976 S.L.D. 585 at 589.

Conclusion

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the petition in this case does not allege actions which would give rise to a cause of action within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education and that the petition in this case must be dismissed.

Order

It is hereby ORDERED that the petition be and hereby is dismissed for the reasons expressed above as articulated in the oral decision.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 4705-95

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL	:
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE	:
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF RAMAPO	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
INDIAN HILLS REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL	:	DECISION
DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions were timely filed by petitioner, as was the reply thereto, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner initially argues that, contrary to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) statement, he never agreed or stipulated that, for the purposes of the Motion for Summary Judgment filed by the Board, "even if all of the allegations set forth in the petition are deemed to be material facts they do not state a cause of action." (Initial Decision at p. 2) Petitioner asserts this finding is "clearly erroneous." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 1)

Petitioner also challenges the ALJ's findings that petitioner made no allegation either in his petition or during the course of proceedings that the mayor's taped commentary was edited into the candidate's night broadcast tape under the auspices of the Board or Mr. Crystal (Initial Decision at p. 4), and that "nothing, as a matter of law is alleged to be linked to the school district itself and Mr. Crystal." (Id. at p. 5) Rather, petitioner contends that he submitted arguments which allege, inter alia, that access to the cable television station "is controlled by the Franklin Lakes Schools' Superintendent, Dr. Edward J. Sullivan," and that "Respondent

Crystal [publicly] admitted that the editing of the debate tape was done at his direction and with his approval, and that the edited tape was in fact produced by him." (Petitioner's Exceptions at pp. 2, 3)

Petitioner next contends that the ALJ erred in finding that his allegations concerning the incident at the polls were not attributed to Respondent Crystal. (Id. at p. 8) Petitioner challenges,

> It was Respondent Crystal himself who summoned the police. Respondent Crystal had to have been in contact with Katz and White and had to have known about their protestations. Petitioner specifically alleges that Respondent Crystal orchestrated these events for the purpose of discrediting Petitioner in the presence of a large gathering of voters. To find and conclude that Respondent Crystal was not involved in these incidents, particularly without the benefit of a plenary hearing was in error. (Id. at pp. 8, 9)

Petitioner maintains that he was unable to substantiate his allegations as to the videotape, the addition of the mayor's address on the videotape, and the incident at the polls by way of interrogatories to Respondent Crystal, since Crystal refused to answer such interrogatories. Thus, petitioner reasons, "It is clear that where critical facts are peculiarly within the moving party's knowledge a grant of summary judgment is improper. Velantzas v. Colgate-Palmolive Co., 109 N.J. 189, 193 (1988)." (Id. at p. 10) Similarly, petitioner asserts it was erroneous for the ALJ to deny his request to depose Mayor Donch. (Id. at p. 15)

Finally, petitioner reasserts his arguments as to the differential voting procedures employed in Districts 4, 5 and 6, as well as to his purported entitlement to a recount of the absentee ballots. (Id. at pp. 12-14)

The Board counters that "[petitioner's] exceptions are disingenuous in that they attempt to create factual disputes when, solely for purposes of the Motion for Summary Decision, none exists." (Board's Exceptions at p. 1) The Board urges the Commissioner to recognize that the ALJ's initial decision "was simply a summary of the factual background. It does not and was not intended to find facts different than the above stipulations." (Id.) Moreover, the Board affirms there is no showing that petitioner's allegations affected the outcome of the election, or thwarted the will of the electorate, as is required for petitioner to set aside the election results. The Board incorporates by reference its brief before the ALJ which "details the standards adopted and approved by the Commissioner of Education regarding jurisdictional issues and burdens of proof for anyone trying to overturn a school election result." (Id. at pp. 1, 2) Inasmuch as petitioner has failed to meet his burden of proof, the Board urges that the Commissioner adopt the initial decision of the ALJ dismissing the petition herein.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner first observes that the ALJ properly declined to address petitioner's allegations as to differential voting procedures and a recount of absentee ballots, inasmuch as said allegations were nowhere contained in the Petition of Appeal, and the petition was never amended to include those allegations. (Initial Decision at p. 6) The Commissioner further adds with respect to a recount of absentee ballots that he is without jurisdiction to authorize such a recount. N.J.S.A. 19:57-24.

However, the Commissioner finds and determines that, even if each of petitioner's allegations is accepted as true and correct, nowhere on record does petitioner proffer, or state his intent or ability to proffer, specific evidence which would demonstrate that the will of the electorate was thwarted by the casting of illegal votes which would not have been cast but for respondent's improper conduct, or by the influencing of a sufficient number of specific votes in a way that caused them to be cast differently from the way they would have been cast, had the conduct complained of not occurred.

> The rule in our State is firmly established that if any irregularity or any other deviation from the election law by the election officials is to be adjudged to have the effect of invalidating a vote or an election, where the statute does not so expressly provide, there must be a connection between such irregularity and the result of the election; that is, the irregularity must be the producing cause of illegal votes which would not have been cast or of defeating legal votes which would have been counted, had the irregularity not taken place, and to an extent to challenge or change the result of the election; or it must be shown that the irregularity in some other way influenced the election so as to have repressed a full and free expression of the popular will. In re Wene, 26 N.J. Super 363, 383 (Law Div. 1953), aff'd sub nom. Wene v. Meyer, 13 N.J. 185 (1953).

Thus, the Commissioner finds that, inasmuch as it is petitioner's burden to establish a direct nexus between the alleged improprieties and the specific outcome of the election, he has failed to meet his burden and the petition is properly dismissed.[1]

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision granting the Board's Motion for Summary Decision for the reasons expressed herein, and dismisses the within petition.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[1] While petitioner is correct that the Commissioner has historically considered matters relating to the conduct of elections which are not alleged to be in specific violation of school election statutes, this observation does not alter the outcome of this decision.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

These consolidated cases were transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law on December 1, 1994 and a motion by respondent for summary decision dismissing the petitions of appeal has been made on the ground that the petitions were not filed in a timely fashion under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. At the prehearing conference conducted by former Administrative Law Judge James A. Ospenson on June 9, 1995, the Board was directed to file such a motion in connection with its affirmative defense that the cited regulation applied and the petitioners were given twenty days within which to respond. See, Prehearing Order, June 9, 1995, Para. 13.

Respondent's letter brief and attachments in support of its motion were filed on December 20, 1995, and I am advised by counsel for the respondent that certified mail service was made upon counsel for petitioners on December 19, 1995. Accordingly, since more than twenty days have elapsed since service of the motion, and neither I nor counsel for respondent have received either reply papers or a request for an extension of time, the matter is ripe for summary determination.

DISCUSSION

The petitions in these consolidated cases alleged that the respondent Board of Education of the State Operated School District of Jersey City had violated certain transportation contracts entered into between each petitioner and the Board in September 1992 respecting their provision of pupil transportation services for the 1992-93 school year. In particular, it was alleged that in violation of those contracts, and without providing petitioners with notice or opportunity to be heard, the respondent imposed penalties by withholding certain payments due each petitioner under the contracts - $8,331 in the case of J.R. Transportation and $14,252 in A&A Charter Service's case.

However, according to undisputed information attached to respondent's letter brief, notice of the alleged infractions and the Board's intended action was provided to both companies and a meeting was held in September 1993 between representatives from A&A Charter Service and Board representatives to discuss the situation. See Exhibits R-4, R-6 and R-7 attached to respondent's brief.

Despite the adverse action taken by the Board in the Fall of 1993, neither company petitioned the Commissioner of Education for relief until more than one year later. In particular, both the J.R. Transportation and A&A Charter petitions were stamped as "filed" at the Department of Education on November 3, 1994, well beyond the ninety day period set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Thus, they clearly were untimely and unless extraordinary circumstances exist to explain or justify that delay, the petitions should be dismissed.

As noted by Board counsel in her letter brief, case law clearly suggests that the applicable regulation must be construed strictly. See, e.g., North Plainfield Education Association v. Bd. of Ed., 96 N.J. 587 (1984); Bernards Twp. Bd of Ed. v. Bernards Twp. Ed. Association, 79 N.J. 311 (1979); Riely v. Bd. of Ed. of Hunterdon Central High School District, 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980). In the circumstances of this case, of course, no explanation of any sort, justified or not, has been provided by the petitioners with respect to the delay. Thus, given what appears to be undisputed facts as to the untimely filing, the respondent's motion to dismiss will be granted. Plainly, the petitions were filed well beyond the ninety day time limit in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) and no facts have been provided to justify that I recommend either relaxation or waiver of the rule.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth herein, and based upon the absence of any disputed facts, respondent's motion for summary decision will be GRANTED and the consolidated petitions should be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Record Closed: February 13, 1996 Decided: February 14, 1996

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter was opened before the undersigned on an application for temporary emergent relief. R.B., on her own behalf and on behalf of her minor son, K.B. (hereinafter petitioner) filed a petition for a declaratory ruling with the Commissioner of Education on January 26, 1996, together with a motion for emergent relief seeking an order requiring respondent immediately to admit K.B. to regular classes at Absegami High School, and enjoining respondent from conducting any hearing concerning exclusion of K.B. from attending the public schools in respondent's district. On January 31, 1996, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case and for scheduling pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6. Respondent filed an answer to the petition and papers responding to the motion on February 6, 1996. The return date for oral argument on the motion for temporary emergent relief, originally scheduled for February 7, 1996, was adjourned at the request of respondent's attorney and was rescheduled for February 13, 1996 at the Trenton office of the Office of Administrative Law. On February 9, 1996, petitioner filed a supplemental letter memorandum and affidavit in reply to respondent's memorandum and affidavits in opposition to the motion for emergent relief. Oral argument took place as scheduled on February 13, 1996, whereupon the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The facts relevant to a determination of the motion for temporary emergent relief are not in dispute and I therefore FIND the following as uncontested facts.

K.B. is 16 years old and is domiciled in respondent's district. On December 21, 1995, K.B. was arrested at Holy Spirit High School, the private parochial school he was then attending, and was later charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute. Criminal charges concerning this incident are currently pending in the Superior Court Family Division. Disposition of the charges is anticipated to take place during the week of February 19, 1996. As the result of the arrest and pending criminal charges, K.B. was required to withdraw from Holy Spirit High School. On January 3, 1996 petitioner went with her son K.B. to enroll him in Absegami High School. School officials at Absegami had already been informed by Holy Spirit and/or the local police department about K.B.'s arrest for possession with intent to distribute, and, accordingly, when petitioner attempted to enroll him she and K.B. were referred to two vice principals in the high school, Raymond E. Dolton and John Gilly, for an interview. After petitioner declined, several times, to explain why K.B. left Holy Spirit High School, Mr. Dolton revealed that they were already in possession of the information and asked petitioner to explain. During the interview K.B. acknowledged that he had in fact possessed marijuana at school at Holy Spirit. Whether K.B. actually said anything else is in dispute. Petitioner then repeated to Mr. Dolton what she had heard about the facts of the incident. Mr. Dolton advised petitioner that he was not certain whether K.B. would be admitted to Absegami High School because there was a new superintendent in the district and he was not familiar with his attitude toward "these cases." Petitioner's request for home instruction was declined.

By letter dated January 5, 1996, Lynn Basner, Principal of Absegami High School, advised petitioner as follows:

> Please be advised that the Board of Education of the Greater Egg Harbor Regional High School District has scheduled a hearing for Wednesday evening, January 24, 1996 at 8:00 P.M. in the Multi Purpose Room of Oakcrest High School to determine if your son, K., should be excluded from attending school in this district. He is not to attend school in this district until after the Board of Education makes a decision in this matter.
>
> The charge against your son is as follows:
>
> 1. That on or about December 20, 1995, K.B., a student at Holy Spirit High School, was in possession and did intend to distribute a controlled dangerous substance.
>
> At the time of the hearing the Board will hear the witnesses and consider the anticipated testimony described below:
>
> 1. It is anticipated that David Phifer, administrator at Holy Spirit High School, will testify about the discipline record of K.B., a student, including the withdrawal from school on December 20, 1995 for possession and distribution of a controlled dangerous substance within the drug free school zone

2. It is anticipated that a Detective Ronald Faisst, Absecon Police Department, will testify that on December 20, 1995 at Holy Spirit High School, he observed K.B., a student, in possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute within the drug free school zone.

At the time of this hearing, the Board may also consider your son's academic and disciplinary record from Holy Spirit High School. If the charges against your son are sustained to the satisfaction of the Board, they may recommend that he not be admitted to school.

The hearing will be conducted in a closed session of the Board.

Thereafter, by letter dated January 23, 1996, petitioner's attorney wrote to respondent's attorney as follows:

This letter is to advise you that the Education Law Center is representing R.B. and her son, K.B., concerning the refusal of the Greater Egg Harbor School District to admit K.B. to Abegami High School. We intend to promptly file a Petition for Declaratory Ruling with the Commissioner of Education to challenge the School District's decision, and seek an emergency order directing that the District admit K.B. As a result, I request that the School District refrain from conducting the hearing, presently scheduled for January 24, concerning K.B.'s application for admission until such time as the Commissioner has had the opportunity to consider the Petition.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Accordingly, the January 24, 1996 hearing scheduled before the Board did not take place Counsel for respondent again wrote to counsel for petitioner on January 29, 1996, advising that respondent would provide K B with home instruction pending completion of litigation and offering to reschedule a hearing before the Board promptly upon request. Petitioner originally declined the home instruction offer, but reconsidered and later accepted. Home instruction had commenced prior to the date of the oral argument.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

Petitioner seeks an order requiring respondent immediately to enroll K.B. and to permit him to attend classes in the district. She also seeks an order enjoining respondent from conducting any hearing regarding K.B.'s alleged conduct at Holy Spirit High School on December 21, 1995. It is petitioner's position that respondent is without legal authority to discipline K.B. for conduct which occurred at a time when K.B. was not a public school pupil. Respondent takes the position that because K.B. is sixteen years old, beyond the age of compulsory attendance, that it may preclude him from enrolling in the district and attending classes in the district as long as it complies with the requirements of due process. It is respondent's position that the conversation which took place in the office of Mr. Dolton on January 3, 1996, provided petitioner with notice and an opportunity to be heard preliminarily. Respondent notes that the plenary hearing was scheduled within 21 days of January 3, 1996 and asserts that principal Basner's letter satisfied the remaining due process requirements.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 provides that the public schools shall be free to persons over five and under twenty years of age who are domiciled within the school district. K.B., who is sixteen years old and is domiciled in the district, is entitled to enroll in respondent's school district pursuant to this statutory provision.* Enrollment of someone who is clearly domiciled within the district is a

* Note that the Board's obligation to provide free education continues until the student turns 20 years old; the parents' obligation to send a child to school stops when the child turns 16, (N.J.S.A. 18A:38-25) but that does not relieve the Board of its obligations if a student over 16 wishes to continue to attend. In this regard see N.J.S.A. 18A:38-20 which provides:

> Such regular attendance shall be during all the days and hours that the public schools are in session in the district, unless it is shown to the satisfaction of the board of education of the district that the mental condition of the child is such that he cannot benefit from instruction in the school or that the bodily condition of the child is such as to prevent his attendance at school, but nothing herein shall be construed as permitting the temporary or permanent exclusion from school by the board of education of any district of any child between the ages of five and 20, except as explicitly otherwise provided by law ministerial act required to be done by the local board of education; where domicile is clear, the board is not called upon to make any determination concerning enrollment. Even where domicile is unclear, if the child is then currently enrolled in the district, he or she is not to be removed from school during the 21 day period in which a resident may contest the board's decision nor during the pendency of proceedings before the Commissioner. Where the board in its discretion determines to deny admission based upon its judgment concerning domicile, the child may not be denied admission during the pendency of the proceedings before the Commissioner. I CONCLUDE that pursuant to the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, respondent's administrators acted improperly when they refused on January 3, 1996 to enroll K.B. in the district.

Whether respondent may suspend K.B. from attending classes immediately upon enrollment, however, is a different issue. Once K.B. is listed as a pupil on respondent's roles, respondent is responsible for providing the thorough and efficient education required by the New Jersey Constitution. Petitioner argues that this means respondent has no alternative but to permit K.B. to attend classes in the high school and to provide whatever counseling services, etc., might be appropriate to ensure that K.B.'s behavior will not endanger other pupils or interfere with respondent's obligation to maintain order and discipline in the school. Petitioner takes the position that this would be the legal requirement regardless of what criminal charges might be pending against the youngster as a result of conduct which occurred prior to his enrollment in school. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2(c), however, identifies "conduct of such character as to constitute a continuing danger to the physical well being of other pupils" as conduct which shall constitute good cause for suspension or expulsion of a pupil from the public schools in New Jersey. The statute does not say that the conduct referred to in this section must have occurred during school time or on school property, or even when the student was enrolled as a pupil in the district; it requires only that the conduct have been of such character as to constitute a continuing danger to other pupils. In R.R. v. Bd of Ed., Shore Reg. Hs., 109 N.J. Super. 337, 344 (Ch. Div. 1970), Judge Lane explained that school authorities have a right to expel or suspend a pupil for conduct occurring away from school grounds where "such is reasonably necessary for the student's physical or emotional safety and well being, or for reasons relating to the safety and well being of other students, teachers or public school property." Although all of the facts related to the circumstances of K.B.'s arrest in this matter are not known, K.B. is currently facing criminal charges for possession of marijuana with intent to distribute. Depending upon the circumstances and upon all facts relevant to whether such behavior, if it occurred, would be likely to occur again, it could be reasonable to conclude that K.B.'s presence in the classroom and the school building would present a danger to the well being of others. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-4 and case law permit public school officials who have reasonable cause to believe that danger will be present if a student is permitted to remain on school grounds pending a decision following a full hearing to impose an interim suspension. R.R. v. Bd. of Ed., Shore Reg. Hs., supra at 347-348. Prior to the imposition of such a suspension, the student is entitled to a preliminary hearing which may be completely informal. All that is really required here is notice and an opportunity to be heard. "The student should be given the opportunity to persuade the authority that there is a case of mistaken identity or that there is some other compelling reason why he should not be suspended pending a full hearing." Id., at 348. A suspension imposed administratively may continue for a period not to exceed 21 days. A suspension beyond the 21-day period may be imposed only after a full blown due process hearing before the Board of Education. Tibbs v. Bd. of Ed. of Franklin Tp., 59 N.J. 506 (1971).

In the present matter, petitioner contends that the interview in the vice principal's office on January 3, 1996 did not comport with the requirements for a preliminary hearing. Petitioner's complaints in this regard are apparently based upon her sense that Mr. Dolton and Mr. Gilly were not being fair when they failed to disclose immediately that they were already aware of the criminal charges. Even accepting, for the purpose of this motion, all of petitioner's factual assertions concerning what transpired at that meeting as true, I CONCLUDE that respondent did not in any way violate petitioner's procedural due process rights. Petitioner had an opportunity to explain and either did so or chose not to do so, depending upon which version of the facts is accepted. Nothing which transpired on January 3, 1996 provides a basis for ordering that K.B. be immediately admitted to regular classes in respondent's district.

With respect to the notice of charges and scheduling of the plenary hearing as indicated in principal Basner's January 5, 1996 letter quoted hereinabove, petitioner's point that certain crucial information is missing from the letter is well taken. Respondent did schedule a full hearing to take place within 21 days. It did set forth the charges and proposed witnesses, but not the grounds which would justify expulsion or suspension. The notice should have been more explicit concerning the nature of the hearing, i.e., to determine whether K.B.'s December 21, 1995 conduct was of such character as to present a continuing danger to himself or to others such as to warrant suspension or expulsion from school. The notice should also have advised petitioner of her rights to be present, to be represented by counsel, to present evidence on her own and K.B.'s behalf, and to cross-examine Board witnesses. It should also have advised her of the Board's subpoena power to compel the attendance of any witnesses she might wish to call on K.B.'s behalf.

Based upon all of the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that respondent immediately enroll K.B. in its district if that ministerial function has not already be accomplished. It is also ORDERED that a full blown due process hearing before the Board of Education be conducted as soon as possible to determine whether K.B. should continue to be suspended from attending class because his presence would present a danger to himself or others either pending resolution of the criminal charges or some other specified period of time or whether he should be expelled. Until such a hearing takes place, there is nothing further for the Commissioner to review in this matter, since actions of local boards of education which lie within the area of their discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis, or induced by improper motives Quinlan v. Board of Ed. of North Bergen, 73 N.J. Super. 40 (App. Div. 1962); Thomas v. Morris Township Board of Education, 89 N.J. Super. 327 (App. Div. 1965), affirmed 46 N.J. 581 (1966); K.L. v. Matawan/Aberdeen High School Dist., 91 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 74; M.G. v. Monmouth Regional High School, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 38.

It is further ORDERED that respondent continue to provide home instruction to K.B. pending a determination following the full hearing on the merits before the Board of Education. and finally, it is ORDERED that respondent is hereby enjoined from precluding other students from enrolling in the district and from precluding their attendance except in accordance with the procedures set forth hereinabove. The parties will immediately advise the undersigned upon conclusion of proceedings before the Board of Education whether any issues remain for determination in the within matter and additional proceedings will then be scheduled herein or the matter will be withdrawn. Petitioner's application for temporary emergent relief is otherwise DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE GREATER EGG HARBOR REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, ATLANTIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter, including the audiotape of the emergent relief hearing, and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), again contending, inter alia, that petitioner is entitled to attend regular classes in the Board's School District pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and that the Board's action to suspend and initiate an expulsion hearing for K.B. for conduct which occurred prior to his enrollment in a public school is clearly erroneous and must be reversed. (Exceptions at p. 4) Petitioner further avers that there is no explicit provision in law allowing the Board to exclude K.B. from school on the stated grounds and that the Board's policy to admit K.B. and then immediately suspend him from school based on an interview of the type conducted herein is violative of his due process rights. (Exceptions at p. 8) In that petitioner raised these arguments before the ALJ at hearing and the Commissioner is satisfied that the ALJ addressed them sufficiently in the initial decision, they are not more fully set forth herein.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner adopts the ALJ's determination for the reasons expressed therein. Specifically, the Commissioner adopts the orders that K.B. be enrolled in the District and given home instruction pending a full Board hearing on the merits of his case and that emergent relief be denied in all other respects in that petitioner failed to meet the standards for such relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982).

The Commissioner further adopts the ALJ's order enjoining the Board from precluding other students from being enrolled in the School District under similar circumstances and from precluding their attendance at school except in accordance with the due process procedures set forth above. The Commissioner concurs that a board may not decline to enroll a student whom it believes to constitute a possible threat to student safety and welfare but may impose an interim suspension for a period not to exceed 21 days following a preliminary hearing. Once preliminary findings are made, however, the board must conduct a full due process hearing as soon as possible to determine whether the student should continue to be suspended from attending classes. (See N.J.S.A. 18A: 37-4 and Initial Decision at p. 7.)

In so ruling, the Commissioner is mindful that these findings reach to the merits of this matter, not merely to the application for emergent relief. However, in that the ALJ effectively addressed and analyzed the arguments concerning the validity of the Board's enrollment policy in her initial decision, the Commissioner construes the within proceedings as a ruling on the merits of petitioner's general contention regarding Board authority to discipline or otherwise remove a student from the regular education program based on conduct occurring prior to enrollment in the public school. Therefore, inherent in the Commissioner's adoption of the ALJ's conclusion is an express rejection of the Board's current policy as null and void. The Board is hereby directed to develop a new policy consistent with applicable law as set forth in this decision.

Accordingly, the ALJ's determination is adopted as clarified above and this matter shall duly proceed for a hearing on any remaining issues pursuant to the ALJ's recommendation.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE REVOCATION :

OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATES OF : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

MARY ANN BAUER. : DECISION

Decided by the State Board of Examiners, September 26, 1996

For the Petitioner-Respondent, William C. Brown, Deputy Attorney General
(Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey)

For the Respondent-Appellant, John C. Caufield, Esq.

On September 26, 1996, the State Board of Examiners issued a decision in which it revoked the teaching certificates of Mary Ann Bauer (hereinafter "appellant") for unbecoming conduct. That decision was mailed to the parties on October 23.

On November 22, 1996, counsel for appellant filed an unsigned notice of appeal with the State Board. On December 10, 1996, the counsel for the State Board advised appellant's counsel that he was required to file a substitution of attorney since he had not been the attorney of record below, along with a signed notice of appeal. On December 17, appellant's counsel filed a substitution of attorney and a signed notice of appeal. On December 23, the briefing schedule was placed in abeyance at the request of appellant's counsel in order to allow him the opportunity to obtain the record in this matter. On April 22, 1997, the counsel for the State Board notified appellant's counsel that since he had had sufficient time to secure the record, the briefing schedule was being reestablished and his appeal brief was due on May 14. At the request of appellant's counsel, the due date was extended to May 21.

Appellant, however, failed to file a brief by that date. By letter dated May 27, 1997, the counsel for the State Board notified appellant's counsel that no appeal brief had been filed and that this matter was therefore being referred to the Legal Committee of the State Board for consideration of his failure to perfect the appeal. Counsel for appellant has still failed to file a brief in support of the appeal, 1½ months after the extended deadline for such filing and more than five weeks after he was notified of such failure. Nor did counsel for appellant respond to that notice or provide any explanation for his failure to file a brief until late yesterday afternoon when he indicated in a certification addressed to the State Board of Examiners that he had recently married and purchased a home "which needed substantial improvement prior to occupancy." He explains that "but for the foregoing there could have been a satisfactory brief completed and filed."

An attorney who is "of counsel" to the firm representing appellant indicates in a certification that "the cases cited by the Attorney General's Office and the Administrative Law Judge were not readily available in the public law school libraries available to counsel....The precedent cases were not only difficult to locate–or even to locate libraries with sufficient professional longevity to be of assistance–as there is not only no index but several (at least three) different types of compilation series." He adds that he was "severely hobbled by the ongoing relocation of [his] office and dispatch of closed files for which there was no longer room to storage in transit and then to a more permanent site....If the foregoing were not bad enough, I was struck by two debilitating but separate viruses during February-March and March-April before finally being felled for five weeks by a severe (despite medication) series of out of season allergy problems."

We conclude that the belated explanation offered by counsel for the appellant does not in any way excuse or justify his failure to file an appeal brief for 1½ months after the filing deadline–which had been extended at his request–or to request a further extension for such filing. Consequently, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to perfect. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.12(a). See Paszamant v. Board of Education of the Borough of Highland Park, decided by the State Board of Education, April 1, 1992, aff'd, Docket #A-4812-91-3 (App. Div. 1993).

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL SCHOOL :
ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL DISTRICT : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF RAMAPO INDIAN HILLS REGIONAL HIGH : DECISION SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY. :

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 8, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Segreto & Segreto (John J. Segreto, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Allen Dzwilewski, Esq.

For the Respondent-Respondent, Steven B. Crystal, pro se

This matter was initiated by Joseph Medici (hereinafter "petitioner"), who had been an unsuccessful candidate in the 1995 annual school election for the Board of Education of the Ramapo Indian Hills Regional High School District (hereinafter "Board"). The election results indicated that petitioner had lost the election to respondent Crystal by a total of 38 votes. Petitioner then sought a recount of the election results and also instituted an inquiry into the conduct of the election. The Commissioner's representative conducted a recount which, as set forth in a decision by the Commissioner dated June 7, 1995, did not change the results.

In his petition to the Commissioner initiating the inquiry, petitioner alleged various conduct relating to the inclusion of remarks by the mayor in a tape that was broadcast on cable television, and to conduct at the polling place. The Board moved for summary decision, contending that even if the facts were as petitioner alleged, he had not stated a cause of action within the Commissioner's jurisdiction.

The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) recommended granting the Board's motion, finding that petitioner had not alleged any conduct for which the Board or the successful candidate would be held responsible and that petitioner had not indicated any violation of statutorily prescribed procedures for school elections. Concluding that the petition had not alleged conduct which presented a cause of action within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education, the ALJ found it unnecessary to consider whether the alleged conduct had any effect on the outcome of the election, and recommended that the petition be dismissed.

The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's recommendation and dismissed the petition on the grounds that petitioner had failed to offer any evidence that any of the alleged conduct, even if true, had affected any votes so as to influence the outcome of the election. Petitioner then appealed to the State Board, essentially restating the arguments he had made before the ALJ and Commissioner.

After reviewing the conduct as alleged by petitioner and considering all of the submissions in the record, we affirm the Commissioner's determination substantially for the reasons expressed by the ALJ and the Commissioner. Based on careful examination of the record, we find that the ALJ correctly concluded that petitioner failed to present facts which would constitute a violation of the statutorily prescribed procedures for school elections. Moreover, as the Commissioner concluded, petitioner has failed to offer or to provide any evidence to show that the alleged irregularities affected the results of the election. In re Wene, 26 N.J. Super. 363 (Law Div.), aff'd sub nom, Wene v. Meyner, 13 N.J. 185 (1953). Hence, summary disposition in the Board's favor was the proper disposition of this matter. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995); Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954).

SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION,	:
PETITIONER-RESPONDENT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
MICHAEL J. KILMURRAY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.	:

Decided by the School Ethics Commission, November 26, 1996

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Arlene G. Lutz, Deputy Attorney General
(Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Lawrence Silver, Esq.

This matter was initiated by an individual who filed a complaint with the School Ethics Commission alleging that Michael J. Kilmurray (hereinafter "respondent") had violated the School Ethics Act. The Ethics Commission determined that there was probable cause to credit certain of the allegations in the complaint and transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing. Respondent moved to dismiss, challenging the Ethics Commission's authority to prosecute the case. Although the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") did not grant dismissal, she agreed that the Commission did not have the authority to prosecute the underlying matter, finding that only the individual who filed the complaint could prosecute. Consequently, she directed his reinstatement as the complainant.

The Deputy Attorney General assigned to prosecute the matter on behalf of the Ethics Commission sought interlocutory review by the Commission. The Commission granted such review and rejected the ALJ's determination, finding that it had the implied power under the statutory framework to prosecute such matters following its investigation of the allegations set forth in the complaint and a probable cause determination. Respondent has now filed a motion with the State Board seeking leave to file an appeal from the Commission's interlocutory determination.

After reviewing respondent's arguments, the State Board of Education denies his motion for leave to appeal. The effect of our decision is that the Commission's determination will govern further proceedings in the matter. We stress, however, that the Commission's determination may be subject to review by the State Board in the event of an appeal from the final decision disposing of the merits of the case. R.B., individually and on behalf of her minor son, K.B.,

PETITIONER-APPELLANT,

V.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE GREATER EGG HARBOR REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, ATLANTIC COUNTY,

RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 11, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Education Law Center (David G. Sciarra, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Louis J. Greco, Esq.

This is an appeal from a decision of the Commissioner of Education holding that the Greater Egg Harbor Regional High School District's refusal to enroll petitioner's son K.B. in the school district was in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, but which denied to petitioner the emergency relief she was seeking.

Petitioner had attempted to enroll K.B. in Absegami High School after the parochial school he had been attending required that he withdraw following his arrest at that school for possession of marijuana. Following an interview with two of Absegami High School's vice-principals on January 3, 1996, the principal notified petitioner by letter of January 5 that the Board had scheduled a hearing for January 24 to determine whether K.B. should be excluded from school on the basis of the charge that he had possessed and intended to distribute a controlled dangerous substance while he was a student at the parochial school. The letter also notified petitioner that K.B. would not be permitted to attend school in the District until the Board had made a decision in the matter. By letter of January 23, counsel for petitioner requested that the Board refrain from conducting the hearing until the Commissioner had the opportunity to decide the petition which counsel intended to immediately file. Hence, the hearing was not held, although petitioner then accepted the Board's offer to provide K.B. with home instruction until the litigation was completed.

The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that the school's administrators had acted improperly when they refused to enroll K.B., but that under the circumstances, it would have been reasonable for them to have immediately placed him on short-term administrative suspension for up to twenty-one days pending a full hearing before the Board. Tibbs v. Bd. of Ed. of Tp. of Franklin, 59 N.J. 506 (1971); R.R. v. Bd. of Ed., Shore Reg. H.S., 109 N.J. Super. 337 (Ch. Div. 1970). The ALJ rejected petitioner's contention that the January 3 interview did not conform with due process requirements applicable to the informal preliminary hearing that must be afforded before a short-term interim suspension can be imposed. The ALJ concluded that nothing had transpired at the interview to provide a basis for granting emergency relief to petitioner in the form of directing K.B.'s immediate admission to regular classes in the District.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's determination, denying emergency relief and directing that K.B. be immediately enrolled in the District and given home instruction pending a full hearing before the Board on the merits of his case. The Commissioner also adopted the ALJ's conclusion that the Board should be enjoined from precluding other students in similar circumstances from enrolling in the District or from attending classes unless it had followed the applicable due process procedures. Based on this conclusion, the Commissioner rejected the Board's policy as null and void and directed it to develop a new policy that was consistent with applicable law. Commissioner's Decision, at 11.

Petitioner has appealed, seeking a determination by the State Board that the Board's policy is beyond the scope of the disciplinary statute and that the policy violates a school district's duty to prevent exclusions or expulsions whenever possible. Petitioner also seeks a determination that the January 3 interview violated "basic procedural due process" required in the case of a preliminary hearing prior to suspension.

We do not agree with petitioner. Initially, for the reasons expressed by the ALJ and Commissioner, we fully concur with the Commissioner's declaration that the Board's previous policy is null and void, and we are in accord with his directive that it must now develop a policy which conforms with applicable law. We find that this determination properly disposes of all the issues relating to the Board's past policy that are pertinent to the matter before us, and we reject petitioner's appeal to the extent that it would reopen those issues.

We find no merit to petitioner's claim that K.B.'s right to due process was violated because the school's administrators did not inform them at the outset of the January 3 interview as to the precise nature of the conduct that gave rise to the possibility of K.B.'s exclusion from school. Although it is not disputed that the school administrators did not initially confront petitioner with their knowledge of K.B.'s arrest when the interview commenced, they did reveal that they possessed this information during the course of the meeting, and K.B. acknowledged that he had in fact been in possession of marijuana at the parochial school. Even considering the events in the light most favorable to petitioner, it is clear that K.B. had the opportunity to explain his conduct at that point. Consequently, it is disingenuous for petitioner to now claim that K.B. is entitled to emergency relief because he did not do so. Moreover, the principal's letter of January 5 which notified petitioner that the Board was providing K.B. with a full hearing set forth in detail exactly what information the District had about the incident that had resulted in his arrest. Given these circumstances, we reject petitioner's contention that an interim suspension was in violation of due process requirements. Goss v. Lopez, 419 U.S. 565 (1975).

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF DANIEL POWERS,	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
TOWNSHIP OF WOODBRIDGE,	:	DECISION
MIDDLESEX COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and insubordination against respondent janitor.

ALJ found that respondent, a volunteer fireman, violated Board policy and regulation regarding employee response to fire calls, which violations constituted, collectively, insubordination. Moreover, ALJ found that respondent's serving as a volunteer fireman while on workers' compensation leave constituted unbecoming conduct.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ's conclusion that the charges were sufficient to warrant respondent's termination from employment as a tenured custodian as of the date of this decision.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 2869-95

AGENCY DKT. NO. 31-2/95

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF DANIEL POWERS, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WOODBRIDGE

Carl J. Palmisano, Esq., for petitioner (Palmisano & Goodman, attorneys)

Nancy I. Oxfeld, Esq., for respondent (Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: December 11, 1995 Decided: January 23, 1996

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

The Woodbridge Township Board of Education (petitioner) filed tenure charges against Daniel Powers, respondent, charging him with acting contrary to Board policy despite warnings. The matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13.

A prehearing conference was held by telephone on May 22, 1995. Among other things, it was settled that the issue to be decided in this case is whether the charges against Daniel Powers are true in fact, and, if true in fact, sufficient to support reduction in salary or termination of employment. In addition, the matter was set down for hearing on September 22, October 27 and November 1, 1995. Counsel filed a stipulation of facts and the matter was heard on November 1 and 13, 1995, in the North Brunswick Municipal Court. Counsel timely filed posthearing submissions and the record closed on December 11, 1995.

STATEMENT OF CHARGES

The Board charged the respondent with conduct unbecoming a tenured employee. Specifically, the Board alleges Powers, while on workers' compensation leave, reported for duty and served as a volunteer fireman. The Board also charged that Powers, while on duty as a janitor at Colonia High School, violated Board policy no. 952, regulation number 9520 and verbal direction regarding response to emergency fire calls.

The Board filed a Certificate of Determination and an affidavit of service of the written charges and statement of evidence with the Commissioner of Education on February 21, 1995. On March 1, 1995, the respondent filed an answer generally denying all charges.

STIPULATION OF FACTS

The following are stipulated by the parties and I adopt them as FACTS in this matter:

1. Respondent Daniel Powers was initially employed by the petitioner as a substitute custodian on September 1, 1987 and was employed as a full-time custodian on December 1, 1987.

2. Respondent having been employed continuously by the petitioner since December 1, 1987 acquired tenure in the position of janitor.

3. On February 8, 1994, respondent was injured on the job and filed a report with the building principal on February 10, 1994.

4. Respondent was on workers' compensation leave from February 8, 1994 until June 24, 1994.

5. Charges of conduct unbecoming a tenured employee were certified to the Commissioner [of Education] on January 27, 1995.

6. The [respondent] filed a timely response denying the charges.

7. Board policy no. 592 and regulation no. 9520 are duly adopted as official policy and regulation of the Board of Education.

PAROL AND DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE

The chairperson of the Board Safety Committee testified. He is an employee, not a Board member. The committee discussed Powers' case and reviewed the weekly workers' compensation list. On June 29, 1994, a committee member said to the witness, "If you really want to see abuse, come with me." The two proceeded to the intersection of Green Street and Saint Georges Avenue. At 8:15 and 8:16 a.m., respectively, the witness took photographs of Powers in full fire fighting gear and his automobile bearing a volunteer fireman placard at the fire scene (P-1, P-2).

The witness notified his own immediate supervisor, the Board secretary. He was directed to contact the Board's compensation insurance carrier, New Jersey Manufacturers Insurance Company. The witness did so and met with Anthony Manto, an investigator. They discussed the photographs and the circumstances. Powers was out on workers' compensation leave yet appearing in full gear at a fire scene. The investigator secured the firehouse log. The witness' only further involvement was telephone calls from the investigator. He received documentation from the investigator and passed it on to his superior.

Exhibit P-11 is a letter of January 10, 1995 to him from the supervisor of the insurer's special investigation unit. In pertinent part, the letter states:

> This letter is to inform you that in regard to the above stated claim our company has made a New Jersey Insurance Fraud referral. Based on the information received that Mr. Powers was actively fighting fires while receiving temporary disability benefits, a referral to the NJ IFD was made. It is our company's position that since the petitioner was actively fighting fires he was not eligible to receive the temporary disability benefits paid to him.
> A referral to the NJ IFD was made on 10/17/94. I have had contact with State Investigator Mark Cafone and have discussed the case with him. Mr. Cafone subsequently contacted me on 12/8/94 to inform me that Mr. Powers has signed a consent agreement. Please keep in mind that a consent agreement does not admit that a fraud was perpetrated and does not in any way reflect any guilt on the part of the signee. Mr. Powers had signed for a civil fine in the amount of $3,500.00 in addition to promising to pay $50.00 per month in the form of restitution to New Jersey Manufacturers Insurance Company until the entire amount of $8,280.00 has been satisfied. The figure is the total amount of temporary disability benefits paid to the petitioner.

The Board called a New Jersey Manufacturers Insurance Company Special Investigator. He had seven years' prior experience with the company as an adjuster. In or about January 1993, he was transferred to the Special Investigation Unit to deal with any suspected fraud. Specifically, he deals with insurance fraud as it relates to workers' compensation fraud. The New Jersey Department of Law and Public Safety, headed by the Attorney General, has an Insurance Fraud Division (IFD).

The witness identified exhibit P-3, a standard first report of accidental injury. The report states that Powers, while walking to his car, fell on ice and injured his back. Medical treatment reports must be filed periodically in follow-up of such a claim. Exhibits P-4, P-5, P-6, P-7, and P-8 were admitted into evidence by stipulation of counsel.

They are reports of treating physicians and summaries of treatment for the period February 23 - June 16, 1994. In exhibit P-8, the physician states he believes Powers capable of light work.

In this circumstance, the witness contacts the insured entity and determines if they have light duty available. If so, he would contact the employee and direct the employee to resume light work. The subject injury has some components of a soft tissue injury, but there could have been some disc involvement. The reports are all consistent with a compensation claim and all are based on subjective complaints. Because of the physicians' reports, there was no reason to question the validity of the claim.

Exhibit P-9 is a compensation claim payment card generated February 1, 1995. It shows a total of $10,070 paid. $1,840 was medical expenses and $8,230 was paid in lost wages. The latter figure represents 70 percent of gross earnings in the 26 weeks prior to injury.

The investigator met with the Board's safety committee chairperson. As a result, he began an investigation on or about July 1, 1994. He did not interview the respondent, but did interview some fire fighters. He reviewed the fire department log sheets. Exhibit P-13 is the Woodbridge Fire Company Number 1 roll call chart for the period February 8 - July 6, 1994. He received this information after a subpoena was issued to the Fire Department. The copies are certified true copies by a Commissioner of the Fire District. Each sheet covers one fire call. Powers is number 45 on each roll sheet. His name appears on every sheet.

Exhibit P-12 is a summary of the responses from Exhibit P-13. In the span February 8 - July 7, 1994, the time of Powers' temporary disability, there were 300 calls. The insurer paid Powers through at least May 18, 1994 and Powers was under medical care into June 1994.

The witness identified exhibit P-17, a termination notice of temporary compensation benefits. This is a record kept in the ordinary course of the insurer's business. It shows that the last payment to Powers was made on June 15, 1994, but does not determine when he returned to work. The witness did some surveillance of Powers and took some videotape on July 5, 1994. The investigation continued beyond the final payment to Powers.

There were thirteen fire calls after June 15, 1994, the date compensation benefits ceased. However, Powers responded to 150 calls while receiving compensation. The acceptance of compensation is inconsistent with certain other activities. Other activities would have to be consistent with a physician's orders. Powers could not, while receiving compensation benefits, function as a fireman. This is inconsistent with a compensation claim. The witness so reported to his supervisors.

Exhibit P-10 is a referral to the New Jersey IFD signed by Richard A. DiMaggio. The insurer sought to recover money. Exhibit P-11 is the disposition letter set forth above. Exhibit P-14 consists of photocopies of checks drawn by Powers to New Jersey Manufacturers Insurance Company.

The witness also stated that fire fighters check their own names upon reporting to the firehouse in response to an alarm. He received this information from a commissioner of the Fire District.

The board's assistant superintendent for personnel services testified. He has been with the district for 26 years. Powers' last assignment was at Colonia High School. He had janitorial responsibilities such as sweeping, dusting, wiping and moving student furniture. There are presently ten or eleven janitors at Colonia High School. There were probably twelve janitors at the school when Powers was assigned there. He would have a specific area to cover, but would not be alone.

Exhibit P-15, Board policy no. 952, is entitled Cooperation with Fire Departments/First Aid Squads. The policy was adopted on February 15, 1990 and revised on September 17, 1992. The policy sets forth that the district will allow non-certified personnel, whose absence would not hinder or impede the education process, to respond to emergency calls as members of volunteer fire departments or first aid squads should a major emergency arise during working hours. The policy goes on to explain that "major" means the emergency is so significant that the Supervising Fire Officer, the Captain and/or President of the First Aid squad classified the event as such an emergency. At no time would the only janitor in a building with a black seal boiler license or someone supervising students be permitted to leave a building. Further, the final arbiter of whether or not an individual non-certified employee could leave the building to respond to a call would be the principal of the building or the supervisor of the department where the employee works. It is clearly stated that any abuse of the policy by an emergency volunteer-employee shall be reviewed by the school administration and Board of Education with the intention of determining suspension of the privilege.

The witness also identified Board regulation no. 9520, adopted September 1992. Also entitled Cooperation with Fire Departments/First Aid Squads, the regulation states that non-certified personnel employed by the school district may be requested in emergency situations to participate in providing assistance at a fire or an accident. Employees of the district may only be permitted to participate in such an emergency if approved by the principal or the immediate supervisor. A janitor may not be permitted to participate in an emergency if he/she is the only individual with a black seal boiler license in the building. Anyone permitted to participate in an identified emergency must return to work immediately upon completion of the emergency. In the event of any deviation, an employee shall be reported to the Superintendent or his/her designee.

The witness testified that he is familiar with the policy and the regulation. Both have officially been adopted by the Board. They permit non-certified staff members to assist fire departments and fire aid squads in dire emergencies. The intent is to address major emergencies when departments and squads are shorthanded. The policy and regulation were adopted in response to requests from local organizations. The service organization determines when an emergency is of an appropriate nature. The procedure is for the supervising fire officer to first classify the event as a major emergency. He would contact the building principal or the supervisor of buildings and grounds and advise of the emergency and the need for personnel.

The second tenure charge is a result of failure to comply with this policy. The witness met with Powers on January 5, 1994 to discuss the issue. Slightly before the winter recess, the witness had received a complaint about Powers from the supervisor of buildings and grounds. Powers carried a fire radio/scanner on his person. He was leaving the building to fight fires without going through the procedure described above.

The head janitor and the night foreman at the high school spoke to Powers. He became offensive. He used some mildly offensive language and stated, "I'll leave when I want to."

The assistant superintendent/board secretary and the witness met with Powers. Powers denied that his offensive language was directed to any person. The administrators advised Powers of the policy and the need for Powers' superiors to approve Powers' leaving the building during work hours. Powers' union representative was present. The policy was clearly discussed. Powers knew that the procedure had to be initiated by a fire supervisor. No discipline was invoked at the time.

In the witness' judgment, Powers needed to know and did know what the policy requires. The next day, January 6, 1994, Powers called the high school and said he would be late reporting to work because he was going to a fire. He arrived two hours late and his explanation was that he attended a fire. He was immediately reminded of the prior day's meeting. Powers stated that the fire department does not need notes and telephone calls. The head high school janitor and night foreman were both present and heard this exchange.

As to charge one, the witness stated that an employee reports to the district by telephone when free to return to work from compensation leave.

It is impossible to cover all janitorial absences. Powers was substituted for on occasion. If the treating physician said that Powers was released effective June 16, the witness would expect Powers to resume work the next day or the following Monday. However, Powers actually returned on July 7, 1994. The Board secretary advised the witness on or about July 2 that Powers was seeking pay for the week leading up to July 7. Under the union bargaining agreement, an employee is allowed to use compensatory time for overtime. This must be taken within sixty days of accrual. An employee cannot elect unilaterally to take compensatory time. The employee must request the time and, if the employer agrees, that is the building principal approves, then the employee can take the compensatory time. There was no such agreement in this case. Powers simply told the head high school janitor that he wanted to use compensatory time for the week leading up to July 7. The head high school janitor is not authorized to approve such an arrangement.

Powers successfully grieved the denial (P-18). He received pay for compensatory time accrued. As part of that outcome, the witness considered Powers on compensation leave until July 7, 1994.

A member of the Woodbridge Fire Company Number 1 testified. The department is a combination of paid and volunteer members. He served as chief for a period that covered the span February 8 through June 1994. He has known Powers approximately four years as a volunteer fire fighter. He also knows that Powers is a custodian for the Board of Education. The witness identified the roll call sheets taken at the end of each call (P-13). The on-duty captain in charge is responsible to see that each person is accounted for. On each sheet, Powers name is number 45.

These records are kept in the ordinary course of fire company business. A volunteer could receive credit for answering a call if he stayed at the fire house. The witness recalled that Powers attended some fires and stayed at the fire house at other times. District one includes industrial, residential and semi-rural areas. Each fire fighter answers each call prepared to fight a fire. He may be directed to pull hose, direct traffic, erect ladders or get and set up lights. He must wear a helmet, turnout coat and pants and bunker boots.

The witness identified Powers, fully dressed in exhibit P-1. The required equipment weighs approximately 24 pounds. A person "can't go in in regular clothes." In addition, a fire fighter might wear self-contained breathing apparatus weighing fourteen to eighteen pounds. Powers was a serious fire fighter. He was all business at fires and did not seem to observe any restrictions, such as handling ladders.

The former chief also testified about Board of Education policy (P-15). The witness is familiar with the policy and knows that the township allows employees to attend emergencies when needed. The district fire commissioners asked the Board of Education for this arrangement. The understanding is that the officer in charge must notify the principal or head custodian or other responsible person of a need. That person will approve or not. The request would usually be honored.

The witness also understands that there must be a black seal fireman on the premises of each school operating a low pressure boiler. An employee cannot release himself.

Fire fighters need physical ability. If someone is out sick from employment, it is an unwritten policy in the company that the person must say, "Don't mark me in. I'm out sick [from my job]."

The witness stated he at no time knew that Powers was on compensation leave from his Board job. He observed no physical disability and Powers never gave any indication of disability although the witness did not see Powers in strenuous circumstances.

The witness identified several specific sheets in exhibit P-13 showing Powers as attending. A mark showing attendance could mean that an individual was at the fire house while other fire fighters reported to the fire scene. However, on sheet 35-S, the witness knows Powers was at the scene. He testified similarly as to several other events. He had few specific recollections of Powers presence at fire scenes, but Powers was there for some. Fire company policy requires that, for the first seven years of membership, a fire fighter must attend sixty percent of calls to qualify for tax exemption. Powers had been a member for approximately four years. In addition, if a fire fighter does not make the required percentage of calls, he cannot qualify for the death benefit. The witness has never heard of any leniency as to these requirements. Each chief certifies attendance to the State of New Jersey Firemen's Exempt Association. The officer in charge has the discretion to decide to mark a person present or not if the person appears at the fire house in response to an alarm, but not at the fire scene.

The supervising janitor at Colonia Senior High School for thirteen years testified. Powers came to the school under the witness' supervision and the night foreman's supervision. As head janitor, he was responsible for assigning Powers' duties.

He remembers a Board-Township conference and the resulting policy for fireman and first aid squad members. The witness identified P-15. He also heard the former fire chief testify. He agrees that the policy requires a fire officer to call the supervisor at a given building. This would normally be the principal or, in the evening, the janitor foreman. That person would make the decision as to whether or not a janitor could be released.

The witness stated that Powers was handed a copy of the Board policy by him. Another employee who also is a fire fighter was given a copy of the policy at the same time. The witness advised Powers to read and abide by the policy. On "a couple of occasions" he reminded Powers to abide by the policy. Powers wore a scanner or pager. He asked to leave to go on calls. The witness and other supervisors explained to Powers the need to adhere to the policy.

On one occasion, a dispatcher called and Powers was released. However, each time Powers became aware of a fire, he asked to leave and expressed a desire to report to the fire scene.

In January 1995, Powers called in to a day janitor, not a supervisor, and said he was going to a fire. This was on a Friday. Powers reported to work approximately two hours late. On Monday, the witness asked Powers why he was late and Powers stated he had gone to a fire. The witness asked for some validation. Powers was upset and said he did not need to produce validation: "The fire department doesn't work that way." "Maybe the Board works that way." The witness also stated that no fire official had called any agent of the Board on the previous Friday asking that personnel be released under the policy.

The respondent testified. He began work as a custodian on December 1, 1987, assigned to the high school. The job includes cleaning, trash removal and the like. In February 1994 he was out of work because he had injured his back when falling on ice. He went to the Board's compensation physician. He was out of work from late February through early June.

He has been a member of the Woodbridge Volunteer Fire Department for approximately four years. While he was out of work on compensation leave, he reported to calls and got credit for reporting. He knows that in his first seven years of membership, he must report to sixty percent or more of calls in order to receive benefits.

The witness stated he did not fight fires. He either acted as fire police or just watched at the scene. He could also report to the fire house and get credit. He did nothing he remembers as physically difficult while he was on compensation leave. He agreed to pay a fine to the State in settlement of an insurance fraud charge, but insists that was a family decision made in fear of imprisonment.

The witness stated he knows the Board policy and knows that an officer of an emergency unit must call the Board. He heard the head custodian testify about the January 1995 incident. He explained that he went to a call before his shift began. He called the head of buildings and grounds, spoke to a secretary and advised that he would late. The secretary advised him to call his school. He did so and spoke to a day janitor. He and the high school head janitor spoke soon afterward. The head janitor wanted some kind of note. The witness stated that he told the head janitor the fire department "doesn't do that."

The witness acknowledged the fire call sheets (exhibit P-13). He appeared at many calls. He appeared in uniform at some calls. He never told the former chief that he was on compensation leave from his regular job. He appeared to protect his exemption and death benefit. The officer in charge at a particular call makes a decision concerning attendance.

A fire fighter can do other things than fight a fire and qualify. If he is in gear, he can direct traffic. The witness stated that if he had to move a hose, he would get on his hands and knees to do it. While on his school job, he could have asked another janitor for help in lifting.

The witness explained the circumstances of the accident that led to his disability and disability leave. It occurred late on the night of February 8, 1994. He fell on ice in the school parking lot and complained of low back and left leg pain. He landed on the left side of his lower back and left buttock. He felt pain radiating downward. From February 8, 1994, to the day on which he testified, Powers had "serious problems." He also reported to fire calls in this period.

He was injured but reporting beginning February 10, 1994. He answered several calls during the chronic period of his injury.

He was in acute pain with marked muscle spasms and limited motion. He could do heel and toe standing, but leg raises were painful. Physicians accepted his report of pain and authorized compensation.

Exhibit P-13 shows that the witness reported to a fire incident on February 14. Only five fire fighters appeared. The witness stated that if there were a fire, he would excuse himself and perform other duties. He then testified that he cannot brush a broom, erase chalkboards or empty trash.

Powers continued seeing physicians. Exhibit P-5 is a report approximately eight weeks post injury. It states, among other things, that the patient still complains of severe pain. Powers said he was doing nothing during the entire period from February 8 through June 16 at the fire house that would aggravate his condition. He testified that he acted only as fire police at fire scenes. He cannot recall doing anything to hurt himself, but he "probably did."

Exhibit P-14 is comprised of photocopies of checks his wife wrote to the New Jersey Manufacturers Insurance Company, the Commissioner of Insurance and the IFD. The witness stated he was not familiar with these checks until this hearing. He further stated he has no idea why the moneys were paid. The witness does recall entering into a consent agreement with the IFD in connection with workers' compensation benefits having to do with the period he was on compensation leave and receiving benefits (P-19). He recalls that he neither admitted nor denied fault.

Powers stated his wife writes all checks. They were paying a consent judgment. He viewed the consent judgment as "a fine for a attending fire calls" while he was on compensation leave.

When the witness returned to work, he was contacted by a person "from the state," whose name he cannot recall. He did not keep a copy of what he signed. He did not consult an attorney. He told the state representative he believed he did nothing wrong.

In connection with the present tenure charges, his union advised him that he had legal representation. There was no such promise made concerning the fraud investigation. Powers states he was promised secrecy if he signed the agreement. The money he paid was a civil penalty, not repayment of benefits received.

The witness also stated he does not recall an arrangement to repay New Jersey Manufacturers Insurance Company. His recollection is that one thing had nothing to do with the other.

When he was able to return to work, he had some accrued compensatory time. He wrote and asked for it. It is not his responsibility to notify the Personnel Department of such a request. He makes the request to his superior and it goes through channels.

The witness has had compensation leave before. He knows a physician's note is necessary prior to return to duty. In this case, he was released by the physician on or about June 16, and took that certificate to work. He put it on the head janitor's desk with a written request for vacation or sick leave. He kept no copies of any documents.

Powers did not return to work until July. He filed a grievance because the Board believed he was not entitled to his compensatory time. He did receive his compensatory time in the form of fifty-six hours of overtime pay.

Concerning the policy discussion with superiors, the witness stated he knew the policy. He wore a fire department pager. He states he never left work to go to a fire. The head janitor lied when he said so. The witness appeared late for work one time. The call began before his shift began. The incident concerned a propane leak. He stayed to secure the area. However, he could have been replaced and reported to work. Nevertheless, he believed he did the right thing. He called the head of buildings and grounds and spoke to a secretary. He did not call his school principal. When he was dismissed from the call at approximately 5:00 p.m., he returned to work. He decided it was more important to stay on the call than to report to work on time.

ARGUMENTS

The Board asserts, concerning charge one, that it has clearly shown Powers was present at one or more fire scenes during his period of alleged disability. The district's workers' compensation insurance carrier commenced an investigation. It was established that the respondent had been under medical treatment from February 23 - June 16, 1994 for alleged injuries that arose during the course of his employment (P-4, P-5, P-6, P-7 and P-8). The investigator met with Woodbridge Fire District No. 1 officials and ascertained that Powers during his disability leave attended calls as a volunteer fireman. The investigator testified that response to fire calls, regardless of the day or hour were inconsistent with the claimed disability and were, in his opinion, a fraud upon the workers' compensation system.

After conferring with his superiors, the investigator referred the case to the New Jersey Department of Law and Public Safety, IFD (P-10). The results of the fraud investigation by the IFD were forwarded by New Jersey Manufacturers Insurance Company to the petitioner by letter of January 10, 1995 (P-11). The investigator also testified that Powers entered into a Consent Order whereby he agreed to pay a civil fine and to reimburse New Jersey Manufacturers Insurance Company at a rate of $50 per month. Photocopies of pertinent checks were produced (P-14). A reference number on the checks was the reference number for the IFD file concerning Powers.

School personnel also testified regarding the required notification after compensation leave by a treating physician authorizing the employee to return to work. Powers' file did not contain notification. Therefore, when Powers returned to duty on July 7, 1995, he did so without formal notification although the Board did eventually receive notification.

The same witness also testified that the physical demands of the job could be defined as light work. He stated that because the respondent was one of several janitors on his shift, he would never be required to exert himself and was able to secure either relief from the work or assistance from other janitors.

A former fire chief testified and identified the roll call sheets as records maintained in the ordinary course by the volunteer fire company. It was his testimony that the sheets correctly identify the respondent and correctly identified him as appearing at fire scenes. The former chief could not testify that Powers actually worked at each of the fires, but he did state that he was present at some fires at which the respondent also was present.

In addition to the requirements for exemption, the former chief also testified that when one is called, one has no idea what the call will involve and must be prepared to respond to defend lives and property. Fire equipment alone weighs in excess of twenty pounds. There are strenuous activities for which a fireman must be prepared. The witness also testified that Powers was a dedicated, conscientious fire fighter who also responded to fire calls. Finally, the former chief testified that he had no knowledge that Powers was on compensation leave or otherwise injured or disabled because it is the rule and practice of the fire company for individuals on disability to be ineligible to report for fire calls. The roll call sheets in evidence reflect not only that the respondent signed in for fire calls, but in fact on several occasions was the fireman in charge (P-13) and therefore for responsible for completing the roll call sheets.

As to the second charge, Powers clearly violated the school district's policy permitting employee volunteer fireman to leave the job for emergencies in certain circumstances. The procedures established are clear and are in the record. The practice requires the fire chief to communicate with the building principal or a janitor supervisor in order to request that a fireman be present. Powers disregarded this policy and in fact attended fire calls at his own option. At a hearing conducted within the district, Powers was advised of the requirements of the policy and cautioned about not violating it in future or disciplinary action could flow. The assistant superintendent testified that, notwithstanding this caution, Powers choose to violate the policy the next day by indicating via a telephone call to a secretary that he would late for work because he was going to attend a fire. Powers insisted that his attendance at fires was needed and that he complied with the policy.

Powers' testimony concerning settlement of the IFD matter is inconsistent and not credible. His settlement of the matter was merely the result of his decision to get the matter over with. Similarly, his testimony that he wanted only to sign in to qualify for exemption and insurance benefits and that the decision to allow him to sign in was made by the officer in charge is self-serving at best and at worst is inadequate.

The respondent argues that there has been a rush to judgment here. The second charge, particularly, arises out of the fact that the Board developed a policy concerning fire calls which it adopted after Powers began employment. Yet, the Board expected Powers to know of that policy prior to its development.

Charge one alleges that Powers reported for duty and served as a volunteer fire fighter while on workers' compensation leave. This arises from conduct that occurred between February and June, 1994.

Powers was, indeed, on compensation leave due to his injury on the job. The Board complains that a fraud was committed by Powers against the school district and, presumably, that is because Powers reported to duty as a volunteer fire fighter. In the Board's view this constitutes misrepresenting his physical condition. All physician's reports support Powers' contention that he was unable to work. These physicians were the carrier's, not Powers'. Not a single physician claims Powers could not do the duties which he did as a volunteer fire fighter. Second, while Powers did report for duty and receive credit for duty, there is no evidence he actually did any work inconsistent with his physical disabilities.

The medical evidence is quite clear that Powers was in a severe state (P-4). He was not ready to return to work in April (P-5) or in early June (P-6). Only in mid-June was Powers capable of light work (P-8).

Two physicians found Powers unable to work during the time he was on compensation leave. If the Board claims he was able to work from February through June, this is negated by its own experts' reports.

Powers was able to report to work as a volunteer fire fighter and receive credit for working, even if he did no work which was physically inconsistent with the physicians' reports. The Board did not produce any witness who observed Powers act in a manner inconsistent with the medical reports during the period.

The Board's chief witness, a former fire chief, actually supported Powers' contentions. He explained that one did not have to physically fight a fire in order to receive credit. Powers could receive credit on the incident log sheet if he merely appeared for the call. Credit is given to a fire fighter if present at the call or even if the fire fighter does not leave the firehouse. The chief testified that even if one goes to a call, it is possible to be at the call doing only non-strenuous work such as directing traffic. To the best of the chief's recollection, during the subject period, there were many calls but no active calls requiring fire fighting. The Board's witness in fact confirmed Powers' contention that while he was out on disability, he did not actively fight a fire.

The insurance investigator was not assigned until July 1, 1994, after Powers had returned to work. At no time did he observe Powers so much as appear at the volunteer fire department. The Board's Safety Committee chairman testified that he took pictures of Powers in fire fighting gear on June 29, 1994. There is no dispute that at the time these pictures were taken, Powers had already returned to work from compensation leave (Stipulation No. 4). That testimony, therefore, cannot support the Board's allegations.

The assistant superintendent confirmed that Powers was returned to work by physicians on June 16, 1994. The assistant superintendent was not a witness to any fact concerning the time between February and June 1994.

The respondent's own testimony simply expanded upon and corroborated the fire chief's testimony. Powers testified that because he received credit for fighting fires if he showed up for a call, even if not physically active, he continued to respond to fire calls while he was on compensation leave. He wanted to preserve his exempt status and his insurance benefit. The Board is unable to point to any instance in which Powers, while on compensation leave, acted physically in a manner inconsistent with the findings of the physicians in the period February -

June 1994. The Board can show that Powers received credit for responding to fire calls. It cannot show a single instance in which Powers actually acted in a manner inconsistent with his compensation claim.

The settlement that Powers entered into, without advice of counsel, contained no admission of any type of liability on Powers'' part. No finding can be based on the settlement. Nothing can be read into the settlement except that Powers' explanation for entering into the settlement was to get the matter off his family's back and to give some peace of mind to his wife.

Charge two alleges that Powers violated Board policies and verbal directions concerning response to emergency fire calls while on duty at Colonia High School. This charge is based on the Board not issuing a policy which it wished it had written, and punishing Powers for that. The respondent does not dispute that the Board had an ongoing and clear policy as to how an employee on duty was to be summoned to a volunteer fire call. Volunteer fire fighters such as Powers could not be released from duty unless the school's supervisor was notified by the chief that a fire fighter's presence was needed. When such notification was given, it was up to the supervisor to determine whether or not to release the employee. Although there were vague allegations that Powers had some how violated this policy, none of the witnesses against him were able to give a single exact instance of this happening. The night supervisor did testify without specifics that there were occasions when Powers, who carried a fire department beeper wanted to leave. On those occasions, the supervisor directed Powers to follow the policy and there was no testimony to show that on any occasion Powers did in fact violate the policy.

The event that gave impetus to this charge involves the situation not contemplated by the Board policy. Powers was working from 3:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. Prior to shift starting time, Powers was called to a fire. At that time, there was no need for supervisors to be notified by the fire chief that it would appreciated if Powers could be released from work because Powers was on his own time. When it became clear to Powers that the call would not be over by 3:00 p.m., he telephoned the head of buildings and grounds. He spoke to a secretary. The secretary requested that Powers call his school. Powers called the school and spoke to the day janitor, the only individual in his department he was able to reach. Powers concededly arrived at work two hours late.

The existing policy refers to determining whether or not an individual should leave a building to respond to a call. It does not refer to a situation in which the individual is not yet on duty because the individual has many hours to go prior to his reporting time. The policy refers to emergencies arising during work hours, not emergencies before work hours. Unfortunately, Powers was viewed negatively by supervisors because he was interested in the fire department and wanted to provide help in fire emergencies. The fact that he wore a beeper was viewed negatively. Nevertheless, no witness could identify an instance in which Powers had responded to a call while at work without permission and without procedures being followed. No Board witness testified that any policy had ever been developed as to how to handle a situation in which an employee was already responding to a fire call at the time working hours began.

This charge has not been proven. The Board has shown only that it failed to develop a policy to apply to a situation where an individual volunteer fire fighter was already fighting a fire at the time working hours commenced.

DETERMINATION

The settlement Powers entered into is not appropriately under consideration in this matter.

In support of charge one, that Powers while on workers' compensation leave reported for duty and served as a volunteer fireman, the Board offers the fact that Powers reported to approximately 150 fire calls. This is not contested. The appropriate question is whether what Powers did while on compensation leave was inconsistent with the injuries described in related medical reports. The record is clear that Powers is more dedicated to fire fighting than to janitoring. That is not a basis for a tenure charge. The record also supports the inference that Powers has seized every opportunity to respond to a fire call. The sworn statement of the Colonia High School head janitor is that he had advised Powers on more than one occasion that the Board had a policy governing the release of janitors to report to fire calls. Powers was aware of the written policy because the head janitor had handed him a copy of the policy as soon as it was adopted by the Board.

The petitioner and respondent presented testimony tending to show that on January 6, 1995, Powers advised a day janitor that he would be late for work because he was reporting to a fire. Powers was scheduled to begin duty as 3:00 p.m. He arrived at 5:00 p.m. according to the night foreman. On Monday, January 9, the next work day, in the presence of the night foreman, the head janitor asked Powers for some sort of confirmation from the fire chief that the chief in fact called Mr. Powers to the fire. Powers stated that the fire department was not like the Board of Education and did not "need notes all the time. They [the fire department] don't operate like that." Powers also stated that all he had to do was call the head of buildings and grounds and he was free to respond to fire calls. This is not an exact quote. The parties agree that this was the substance of Powers' statement. The head janitor advised the supervisor of buildings and grounds of these facts on the following morning. He also advised the supervisor that he had to remind Powers of the Board policy on many occasions during the two years Powers worked at Colonia High School.

The respondent was warned and counseled several times concerning the policy governing leaving school during work hours. His response indicates a disregard for the procedure and constitutes insubordination. His statement, "All I have to do is call Anthony D'Orsi [supervisor of buildings and grounds] and I can go," simply does not square with the facts. The respondent is not unintelligent. He knew what the policy required, yet felt free to disregard it. This is the essence of insubordination.

Taken as a whole, the incident of January 6-9, 1995 constitutes intolerable behavior. The policy had been in place for more than two years, the respondent had been counseled and warned about the policy and its application, yet he still replied in a manner showing disregard for and deliberate misunderstanding of the policy. His statement that all he had to do was call the supervisor of buildings and grounds before leaving his duties is simply wrong.

Viewed as a whole, I FIND that these facts and circumstances warrant a FINDING that Daniel Powers while on duty at Colonia High School violated Board policy no. 952, regulation no. 9520 and verbal directions regarding response to fire calls. I further FIND that this constitutes insubordination. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that charge number two is true in fact having been demonstrated by a preponderance of the credible evidence in the record.

The charge that Powers reported for duty and served as a volunteer fireman while on workers' compensation leave also has been demonstrated by a preponderance of the credible evidence in the record. The respondent testified that, after his injury, he had and continues to have severe pain. He stated he could not push a broom, erase chalkboards or empty trash. Yet, he also testified that he could put on more than twenty pounds of fire gear and direct traffic at a fire scene. Common sense and common experience dictate that Powers' testimony and actions are inconsistent.

Powers' absence caused other janitors to cover his area or, on a few occasions, the Board to pay a substitute. It appearing that Powers was capable of performing most, if not all duties and it appearing that, with the help of other janitors could have performed all duties, the Board had to accept requiring those janitors who did report to work to cover additional areas or had to hire and pay substitutes. In this case, both happened, although not on the same days. This affronts the public good and constitutes unbecoming conduct.

The respondent's testimony was unconvincing. The party bearing the burden of proof in an administrative hearing must prove the case by a preponderance of the evidence. This tribunal must "decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to the reasonable probability of truth." Jackson v. D.L. and W.R.R., 111 N.J.L. 487, 490 (E.&A. 1933). One factor that must be considered in a determination as to which party's version of an incident has the "reasonable probability of truth" is that "the interest, motive, bias or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony." State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div. 1952), Certif. den. 10 N.J. 316 (1952).

In summary, this decision concludes that the Woodbridge Township Board of Education had proven both tenure charges against Daniel Powers by a preponderance of the credible evidence in the record. The charges being true in fact, it is ORDERED that Daniel Powers be terminated from his position with the Woodbridge Township Board of Education effective on the date of final decision in this matter.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF DANIEL POWERS,	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
TOWNSHIP OF WOODBRIDGE,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions and petitioner's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in post-hearing briefs, again contending, inter alia, that although respondent admittedly responded to fire calls while on disability, respondent did not take any action inconsistent with his physical disabilities. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 3) Further, he contends that the Board's policy and corresponding regulation which respondent was said to have violated were inapplicable to the fact pattern at issue. (Id. at p. 10)

Likewise, in its reply, the Board supports the conclusions of the ALJ by essentially recasting arguments previously considered by the ALJ in its post-hearing briefs. Accordingly, said arguments are not summarized herein.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that respondent violated Board Policy No. 952 and Regulation No. 9520 and verbal directions regarding employee response to fire calls, which violations constitute, collectively, insubordination. The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's finding that the Board has proven, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that respondent served as a volunteer fireman while on workers' compensation leave, thus, engaging in unbecoming conduct. In so ruling, the Commissioner finds no cause in the present record to disturb the ALJ's evidentiary rulings or credibility determinations in this matter.

Finally, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that these charges, as credited, are sufficient to warrant respondent's termination from employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and 11.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law and hereby orders that respondent be dismissed from his position as tenured custodian as of the date of this decision.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE DISQUALIFI- : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

CATION FROM SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT : DECISION

OF D.W. :

Decided by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, November 15, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Rusignola, Pugliese & Rusignola (Carmen Rusignola, Esq., of Counsel)

D.W. (hereinafter "petitioner") was disqualified by the Office of Criminal History Review of the Department of Education from continued employment as a substitute teacher in the State's schools when a fingerprint search conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 revealed four convictions arising from arrests for drug offenses between June 1989 and January 1992. Petitioner sought to overturn her disqualification on the basis of rehabilitation.

In a letter decision dated November 15, 1996, the Deputy Commissioner of Education upheld the disqualification,[1] finding that, while petitioner was progressing toward rehabilitation, she had failed to demonstrate clear and convincing evidence of her rehabilitation as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

[1] We note that N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 authorizes the Commissioner to "designate an assistant commissioner as deputy commissioner with full power to act in his place and stead during any absence or inability of the commissioner and at such other times as the commissioner may designate." Such authority expressly includes assignment by the Commissioner of the "hearing and determination of controversies and disputes which may arise under the school laws...." N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34.

3/5/97

Petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board.

After a through review of the record, we affirm the decision of the Deputy Commissioner. Although the record reveals that petitioner is making impressive progress towards rehabilitation, it also indicates that her convictions included charges of Distribution of Controlled Dangerous Substances and Possession with Intent to Distribute Controlled Dangerous Substances, and that the drugs at issue included cocaine and heroin. In view of the recent and extremely serious nature of petitioner's disqualifying offenses, see N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e)(2) and (4), we are unable to conclude at this time that petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. Moreover, as required by 18A:6-7.1(e)(1), we have considered the "nature and responsibility" of the position petitioner would hold in the public school system. In this respect, we stress that petitioner was disqualified from employment as a substitute teacher, a position which includes responsibility for the care, supervision and instruction of students. Given these circumstances, petitioner faces a heavy burden in attempting to demonstrate her rehabilitation. In the Matter of the Disqualification from School Employment of William R. Palumbo, decided by the State Board, February 7, 1996, aff'd, Docket #A-4065-95T3 (App. Div. 1996). See Application of Matthews, 94 N.J. 59 (1983).

Accordingly, we affirm the decision of the Deputy Commissioner disqualifying petitioner from service as a substitute teacher in the schools of New Jersey. We note in so doing, however, that nothing in our decision herein precludes petitioner from reapplying to the Office of Criminal History Review once additional time has passed and seeking a determination from the Commissioner that she is qualified for school employment on the basis of rehabilitation.

IN THE MATTER OF THE DISQUALIFI- : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

CATION FROM SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT : DECISION ON MOTION

OF D.W. :

Decided by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, November 15, 1996

Decided by the State Board of Education, March 5, 1997

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Rusignola, Pugliese & Rusignola (Carmen Rusignola, Esq., of Counsel)

D.W. (hereinafter "petitioner") was disqualified by the Office of Criminal History Review of the Department of Education from continued employment as a substitute teacher in the State's schools after a criminal history review conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 revealed four convictions for drug offenses following arrests between June 1989 and January 1992. Petitioner sought to overturn her disqualification on the basis of rehabilitation.

In a letter decision dated November 15, 1996, the Deputy Commissioner of Education upheld the disqualification, finding that while petitioner was progressing toward rehabilitation, she had failed to demonstrate clear and convincing evidence of her rehabilitation as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. On March 5, 1997, we affirmed the decision of the Deputy Commissioner. We found that petitioner was making impressive progress towards rehabilitation, but stressed that her convictions had included

Distribution of Controlled Dangerous Substances and Possession with Intent to Distribute Controlled Dangerous Substances, and that the drugs at issue had included heroin and cocaine. In view of the recent and extremely serious nature of petitioner's disqualifying offenses, and the fact that she had been disqualified from employment as a substitute teacher, a position which included responsibility for the care, supervision and instruction of students, we were unable to conclude at that time that petitioner had affirmatively demonstrated her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.

Petitioner has filed the instant motion seeking reconsideration of our decision. Petitioner contends that although her criminal record includes convictions for distribution and possession with intent to distribute, all controlled dangerous substances in her possession had been for her personal use. Petitioner alleges that she never had "more than 8 vials in [her] personal possession which was entirely consistent with an amount that [she] routinely consumed at that point and time." Petitioner has also submitted documents attesting to her academic achievements in recent years.

It is well settled that an administrative agency has the inherent power, in the absence of legislative restriction, to reopen or modify a previous determination. Duvin v. State, 76 N.J. 203, 207 (1978). Such power, however, must be exercised reasonably and invoked only for good cause shown. Id.

After a careful review of the record, we deny petitioner's motion. Although petitioner denies that she had been involved in the distribution of controlled dangerous substances, we cannot disregard the Judgment of Conviction entered following her March 1991 arrest, in which the Court expressly indicated that petitioner "was a dealer of drugs." We note, moreover, that in a letter dated October 9, 1996 to the manager of the Office of Criminal History Review, petitioner acknowledged that she had decided to try to sell drugs to support her habit.

Consequently, while it is evident that petitioner is making great strides towards rehabilitation, we find that she has failed to provide good cause for reconsidering our decision of March 5, 1997.

S. David Brandt abstained.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF JOAN NORRIS, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE ATLANTIC COUNTY VOCATIONAL TECHNICAL SCHOOL, ATLANTIC COUNTY.

James F. Ferguson, Esq. for petitioner (Roger C. Steedle, attorney)

Ned P. Rogovoy, Esq. for respondent (Waltman, Reilly & Rogovoy, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 22, 1996 Decided: January 23, 1996

BEFORE CAROL F. LASKIN, ALJ t/a:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on August 7, 1995, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, after petitioner filed tenure charges seeking to dismiss Ms. Joan Norris, herein respondent, from her position as a secretary based upon physical inability to perform in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:10-6.1 et seq.

The prehearing telephonic conference held on October 11, 1995, resulted, inter alia, in an order issued on October 17, 1995, setting the hearing for December 15 and 16, 1995.

Due to their good faith and in the best interest of the respective clients, the parties agreed to cooperate and prepare a job description to present to medical professionals evaluating respondent's ability to perform.

On December 12, 1995, petitioner informed the undersigned that upon receipt of the orthopedic examination, a resolution of the matter was forthcoming. Accordingly the hearing was postponed.

By letter received December 22, 1995, petitioner advised that it met on December 18, 1995, and approved Resolutions authorizing the withdrawal of the charges proffered against Ms. Norris and reinstating her to a secretarial position as of January 2, 1996. On January 22, 1996, respondent confirmed that she was indeed returned to work on January 2, 1996.

Based upon these representations, I CONCLUDE that the parties voluntarily resolved the matter and that petitioner's Resolutions of withdrawal and reinstatement of respondent fully disposes of all issues in controversy, consistent with the law. Accordingly, I ORDER that the tenure charges of physical incapacity are hereby WITHDRAWN.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RE: Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Joan Norris vs. Board of Education of the Atlantic County Vocational Technical School, Atlantic County
OAL Docket No.: EDUTH-08034-95S
Our File No.: M-2324-S2

Dear Judge Laskin:

As a result of Dr. Cavalier's report of his orthopedic examination of Joan Norris in which he concludes that she is capable of returning to her position as secretary to the alternative school, the Atlantic County Vocational Technical Board of Education met on December 18, 1995 and approved a Resolution authorizing the withdrawal of the charges that had been proffered against her before the Commissioner of Education.

Please allow this letter, therefore, to serve as our formal withdrawal of the pending charges. The Board also at that time adopted a Resolution reinstating the respondent to her position as secretary at the alternative school with a return to work date of January 2, 1996.

Thank you for Your Honor's attention and consideration in this matter.

Respectfully submitted,

JAMES F. FERGUSON

Re: Tenure Matter of Joan Norris
OAL DOCKET NO. EDU 8034-95

Dear Judge Laskin:

The issue as to whether Ms. Norris, an employee of the Atlantic County Vocational Technical School, was physically able to perform her function, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 10:6-1, et seq., has been resolved after an agreed upon orthopedic examination. I can advise the Court that Joan Norris reported to work on January 2, 1996 and that all issues at the present time are therefore satisfied.

Very truly yours,

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8584-95

AGENCY DKT. NO. DHP #465

ROGER E. MARSHALL,

Petitioner,

v.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

Respondent.

Roger E. Marshall, petitioner, pro se

State Department of Education, respondent, appearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.6(a)

Record Closed: December 13, 1995 Decided: January 26, 1996

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter concerns the appeal of Roger E. Marshall (hereinafter petitioner) from the determination of the New Jersey State Department of Education (hereinafter respondent) that he is disqualified from employment as the result of a criminal history record check conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. Petitioner was advised of respondent's determination by letter dated May 13, 1994. He responded by letter dated June 2, 1994 and certified on June 31, 1994, wherein he asserted that he was rehabilitated. On January 30, 1995 Richard A. Di Patri, Deputy Commissioner, issued a determination on the appeal which provided as follows:

> Having reviewed your appeal of disqualification from school employment which resulted from a Department of Education criminal history record check conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 et seq., Roger Marshall v. New Jersey State Department of Education, DHP #465, I determine you are not qualified for such employment.
>
> The record indicates that you were sentenced on December 14, 1970 to 90 days confinement and one year of probation for possession of narcotic equipment. On January 3, 1973, you received a suspended confinement of five years and three years probation for robbery. Again, on January 6, 1974, you were sentenced to 15 years confinement for Robbery/Intimidation. Additionally, you were sentenced on April 21, 1989 to serve 364 days in Atlantic City Jail and were ordered to pay a $1,080 fine for Possession of Heroin.
>
> Your appeal consists of statements from you and your wife attesting to your rehabilitation, together with a general statement about your good work performance. From what you have presented, I am unable to be persuaded, as I must by law, that your rehabilitation has been demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence. In making this determination, I have also considered the Statement of Reasons presented by the judge upon your sentencing in 1989, indicating that the aggravating factors outweighed the mitigating factors in imposing the recommended sentence.
> Accordingly, pursuant to applicable law, your disqualification from school employment is affirmed.

Petitioner filed an appeal from the determination by letter dated March 3, 1995, wherein he enclosed a number of letters of reference dated February and March 1995. Thereafter, the parties executed a Consent Order agreeing to a remand of the matter to the Commissioner of Education for a plenary hearing on the issue of rehabilitation. The Consent Order was received by the State Board of Education on May 11, 1995, and on July 7, 1995, the State Board issued a decision remanding the matter to the Commissioner for a plenary hearing. On September 20, 1995, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for a determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The plenary hearing was scheduled for November 29, 1995 and was conducted as scheduled. At the conclusion of testimony petitioner requested that the record remain open for two weeks for him to obtain and submit additional written recommendations. Nothing further having been received, however, the record closed on December 13, 1995.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Some of the facts relevant to a determination of this matter are not in dispute and I therefore FIND the following as uncontested facts.

Petitioner was employed as a school custodian by the Atlantic City Board of Education at Richmond Avenue School in Atlantic City from March 1994 until February 1995. His employment there was interrupted because of the initiation of the within proceedings. The criminal history record check which is required to be done for any employee of a board of education who has direct contact with students under the age of eighteen revealed convictions for the following offenses:

12/11/70	Possession of Narcotic Equipment Sentenced 12/14/70 to ninety days confinement, one year probation.
5/10/72	Robbery Sentenced 1/3/73 to five years State Prison suspended, one year probation.
2/24/83	Robbery/Intimidation Sentenced 1/6/84 to fifteen years confinement NJ State Prison, $50.00 fine.
10/12/88	Possession of Heroin Sentenced 4/21/89 to 364 days confinement Atlantic City Jail, $1,080.00 fine, six months loss of driver's license.

The letters of recommendation and character reference which petitioner had forwarded to the Commissioner of Education in March 1995 in support of his appeal in the within matter were marked as exhibits P-1 through P-7 in evidence. They provide as follows:

To Whom it May Concern: February 17, 1995

Mr. Roger Marshall was employed at Richmond Avenue School from March 1994 until February 1995 as a custodian. While here he performed his job very well and did his best to carry out any requests made by members of the staff.

Mr. Marshall's conduct was always that of a perfect gentlemen while interacting with students, teachers, parents and staff. His attendance was exceptional as well as his neat appearance and careful attention to duty.

Roger Marshall's tenure as a custodian was a very pleasant experience because of his good manner and attention to duty.

Sylvia A. Williams, Principal
(P-1 in evidence)

To Whom it May Concern: February 28, 1995

This letter is my personal appeal to you to please reconsider Mr. Roger Marshall for the custodian's position at Richmond Avenue School. Having been employed at Richmond Avenue School for eighteen years as a speech/language specialist, I have been subjected to working alongside numerous custodians. I have never felt so strongly about an issue regarding the staff at my school as I do about Mr. Marshall. You see, in my opinion, the custodians are the lifeline of a school. It is their productivity in keeping the school neat and clean each day that contributed to the morale of the teachers and the students. For the past year, the morale has been higher than we've been accustomed to. Mr. Marshall is one of the most trusting, efficient, friendly, respected, dependable, professional custodians this building has ever seen. To lose him is a travesty.

I ask you to please let this man get on with his life and allow him to keep his job where he was happy and sorely needed. He was truly an asset to our school and we miss him very much.

Barbara J. Kalter, M.A. CCC
Speech/Language Specialist
Richmond Avenue School
(P-2 in evidence)

Dear Hope Blackburn, February 24, 1995

Roger E. Marshall and I have been co-workers since he came to Richmond Avenue School in March of 1994. I teach children who are three to five years old and have various handicaps.

Mr. Marshall has, to my knowledge, not missed a single day of work since he started. Mr. Marshall is always neat, friendly, professional, and willing to do what is expected of him . . . plus. During the summer months he helps to keep the teenagers, that work in the school, on track and productive. Mr. Marshall does this in a manner that uses respect as the reward.

Mr. Marshall is an employee that can be counted on to stay with a task until that task is finished to the highest standard. I hope that Mr. Marshall's case will be reviewed so that a vital member of our school family can return to work.

Chuck Salomon-Lowden, Teacher

To Whom it May Concern: February 28, 1995

I'm writing this letter on behalf of Mr. Roger Marshall. My name is Christine McGaffney and I'm the fourth grade teacher at Richmond Avenue School. I've been teaching at Richmond for ten years now. We're a relatively small school, so everyone needs to work together to make our school a viable learning center. Mr. Marshall was a very positive addition to our team. He was someone I could trust and rely on when something needed to be done. He was such a pleasant part of our school. When I heard that Mr. Marshall was dismissed, I felt very sad and disappointed. He was a positive role-model for the students, and someone I felt very good about working with. I'm hoping that this situation will be reviewed and rectified, and Mr. Marshall will be back at Richmond where he is missed and very much needed.

Christine McGaffney,
4th Grade Teacher
(P-4 in evidence)

To Whom it May Concern: March 1, 1995

As secretary to the principal at Richmond Avenue School for twenty-two years, I have worked along with many custodians. I have seen many retire and a few pass away.

I would like to say a few words in regard to Roger Marshall. As far as Mr. Marshall is concerned, I have found him to be a very respectful person. He has always been very cooperative and cordial in anything I have asked him to do for me. If it was cleaning up a mess from a child who has gotten sick or giving me an extra shot of heat in the office to make it comfortable, Mr. Marshall always came through with a smile. There are many good things I can say in regard to Mr. Marshall's character but the letter would be too long.

I do hope that Roger will be able to return to his position as a Richmond Avenue School Custodian immediately.

Rose Giannantonio,
Educational Secretary
(P-5 in evidence)

To Whom it May Concern: March 1, 1995

I am a kindergarten teacher at Richmond Avenue School. I have worked in the Atlantic City, Public Schools for eleven years.

We have seen many custodial workers come and go. Most of them are quickly forgotten in the course of busy days. However, Roger Marshall is truly a different story. I am not aware of the circumstances that caused Roger to lose his job. I can only attest to the fact that he has been one of the best workers we have had at Richmond. He is very helpful, polite and wonderful to the children. I hope that his situation can be re-evaluated. We really miss him here at school.

Linda Jordan,
Kindergarten Teacher
(P-6 in evidence)

Dear Ms. Blackburn: February 27, 1995

I am writing to you in regard to Roger Marshall, who was employed at Richmond Avenue School.

My name is Theda Bradley. I am the Atlantic City Free Public Library Branch Manager assigned to Richmond Avenue School.

I have known Mr. Marshall since his employment at Richmond Avenue School in March 1994 until February 1995. He has been a helpful and courteous person to all that know him. Always willing to assist in anyway he can. He has been a faithful worker and always present on his job. It would be a grave injustice, for someone that is trying to improve his life, to be discharged. I hope that the Board will reconsider their decision.

Theda Bradley
(P-7 in evidence)

This concludes the recitation of uncontested facts.

Petitioner testified on his own behalf. He testified that his employment as custodian required him to keep the third floor of the building hallways clear, classrooms clean, chalk boards washed, trash emptied and minor repairs and maintenance done so that the building would at all times be safe and clean for children. Petitioner testified that he also opened the school building in the morning and closed it at night. He testified, "I loved everybody there and they loved me." In addressing the statutory factors for consideration in assessing rehabilitation, petitioner testified concerning the particulars of each offense. The December 1970 incident occurred when he was in a car with his cousin, he indicated, and his cousin had a needle. With respect to the May 1972 incident, petitioner testified that he had been with a group of guys and one of the guys had an argument with a gas station attendant. He said the argument could have been construed as attempted robbery. In February 1983, he was working at a casino in Atlantic City. He was on his way to work and stopped to use the bathroom at a service station in Pleasantville. Petitioner testified that after he got the key, someone shoved him into the bathroom and put a gun in his back. According to petitioner, he was the victim in the February 1983 incident, not the perpetrator. Nevertheless, he served 37 months of a 15 year sentence as a result of his convictions for armed robbery and terroristic threats. On October 12, 1988, petitioner was working as a bartender at a casino restaurant in Atlantic City. When he came out of the casino for a break he gave a beggar who had asked him for money, fifty cents. He was then picked up by the police who demanded to know about the drugs he had just purchased or sold. The police kept him for quite a while driving around in the police car and asking him for information about others who were allegedly involved in drugs; petitioner denied that he knew any of the alleged drug dealers. At the time of this incident petitioner was on parole for the February 1983 offense; he indicated that his public defender had told him if he pled guilty, it would not be a parole violation. This, petitioner concluded, was a trick since he did thereafter serve fifteen months for a parole violation.

After petitioner was released from jail in June 1990, he came home and got married to his girlfriend, he said. Since that time he has been a working, productive member of society. From June 1990 to December 1992 he worked in a local hardware store where he had gone to purchase paint upon his release. The owner had asked him about the bracelet he was wearing (related to his early release from jail) and their conversation resulted in petitioner's immediate employment. In December 1992, he was laid off. Petitioner concludes that this was as a result of negotiations to purchase the hardware store which had been concluded with a determination on petitioner's part that he did not wish to purchase the store. He collected unemployment insurance benefits for a while and in December 1993, according to petitioner's testimony, started employment with the Board of Education of Atlantic City as a school custodian. (Note that the letters of recommendation say March 1994). This employment continued until February 10, 1995, when it was interrupted by the commencement of the within proceedings. At that point petitioner was again unemployed for approximately one and a half months. Since that time he has been working as a manager trainee at Sylva's Department store, although he is anxious to return to his job with the Atlantic City Board of Education, he said.

Petitioner's date of birth is April 28, 1950. Accordingly, the criminal offenses described hereinabove occurred when he was twenty, twenty-two, thirty-two and thirty-eight, respectively. Petitioner attributes his past mistakes to hanging around with the wrong people. He indicates that since he has been released from jail in 1990, he has resided with his wife, her granddaughter and two great-grandchildren. When asked by the undersigned why he had no recommendation from his parole officer, he indicated that he thought his parole officer was probably annoyed that he stopped paying toward his one thousand dollar fine, when he got off parole in 1993. Up to that point he had paid $500, but he has not made any further payments. In response to my direct inquiry, he did say that he would finish paying.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, the statute relevant to a determination of the within matter, provides in pertinent part:

> An individual other than a school bus driver shall be disqualified from employment or service under this act if the individual's criminal history record check reveals a record of conviction of any of the following crimes and offenses:
>
> . . .
>
> b. A crime or offense involving the manufacture, transportation, sale, possession, or habitual use of a "controlled dangerous substance" as defined in the "New Jersey Controlled Dangerous Substances Act," P.L. c. 226 (C.24:21-1 et seq.); or

c. (1) A crime or offense involving the use of force or the threat of force to or upon a person or property including: armed robbery, aggravated assault, kidnapping, arson, manslaughter and murder;

e. Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, an individual shall not be disqualified from employment or service under this act on the basis of any conviction disclosed by a criminal record check performed pursuant to this act if the individual has affirmatively demonstrated to the Commissioner of Education clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. In determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation, the following factors shall be considered:

(1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

(4) The date of the offense;

(5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;

(6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.

The phrase "clear and convincing evidence" means more than a preponderance. State v. Cale, 19 N.J. Super. 397, 400 (App. Div. 1952). Under the standard the fact finder must be reasonably certain or have a firm belief or conviction that the contested factual assertion is true. Aiello v. Knoll Golf Club, 64 N.J. Super. 156, 161 (App. Div. 1960). What is clear in this matter is that petitioner was convicted of several offenses which are listed as disqualifying offenses under the statute: two drug-related offenses, one occurring in December 1970, the other occurring in October 1988, and two offenses involving robbery, the second of which occurred on February 24, 1983 and resulted in conviction after a jury trial. The specific charges on which the jury returned guilty verdicts were armed robbery, 2C:15-1 and terroristic threats, 2C:12-3.*

Although the convictions in 1973 and 1989 appear to have resulted from guilty pleas, petitioner's testimony in the within matter indicates that he does not accept responsibility or admit guilt for any of the offenses. His attitude in this regard concerns me, since it is unbelievable that all four offenses were the result of some sort of mistake. It also concerns me that petitioner has not felt it necessary to complete payment of the $1,080 fine imposed as part of the sentence for the 1988 conviction. Although petitioner was granted an additional two weeks following the close of the hearing in this matter to provide documentation from his parole officer, no such documentation was ever forthcoming. On the other hand, the recommendations and letters of support from his co-workers in the Atlantic City school system are nothing less than enthusiastic about petitioners' dedication and abilities. (Note, however, it appears that at least one writer was unaware of the circumstances which caused the termination of petitioner's employment). If the standard of proof of rehabilitation which petitioner is required to meet in these proceedings were a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence, I might be inclined to agree that petitioner is probably rehabilitated. The legal standard I must apply to the facts in this matter, however, is clear and convincing and because of the doubts and reservations I have expressed I am unable to find that petitioner has established his rehabilitation as required by the statute. The Legislature has made a policy determination that convictions for certain kinds of offenses disqualify persons from employment which involves direct contact with school children. That disqualification can only be lifted where the evidence makes it clear and reasonably certain that rehabilitation has occurred. The proofs in this case do not rise to that high standard.

* The July 5, 1995 State Board decision remanding this matter for a plenary hearing before the Commissioner specified that the Commissioner's review should include a determination of whether any criminal history record information pertaining to petitioner exists on file in the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The file transmitted to OAL as respondent's case pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.6(a) contains no such information, however.

For all of the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that petitioner is disqualified from employment in the public schools pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE	:
DISQUALIFICATION FROM	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT OF	:	DECISION
ROGER E. MARSHALL.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.* No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that Mr. Marshall has not met his burden of establishing rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and is, therefore, not qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws.

Accordingly, Mr. Marshall's disqualification from school employment is sustained for the reasons clearly articulated by the ALJ in her initial decision. This matter is hereby transmitted to the State Board of Education which has retained jurisdiction pursuant to its decision of July 5, 1995.

IT IS SO ORDERED

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* It is noted that the Federal Bureau of Investigation record on Mr. Marshall, submitted to the record of this matter on February 15, 1996, discloses no additional disqualifying convictions subsequent to those herein.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, November 25, 1996

For the Petitioner, Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak (Richard A. Friedman, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent Leo F. Klagholz, Nancy Kaplen, Deputy Attorney General (John J. Farmer, Jr., Attorney General of New Jersey)

For the Respondent Board of Education of the Township of New Hanover, Hulse & Germano (Dennis Germano, Esq., of Counsel)

Arlene Miller (hereinafter "petitioner") was employed as a school psychologist by the Board of Education of the Township of New Hanover (hereinafter "Board") and was a member of the Board's basic child study team. Petitioner had achieved tenure when the Board abolished her position effective June 30, 1996 pursuant to N.J.S.A.

MAY 3, 2000

18A:28-9.[1] She challenged that action by filing a petition to the Commissioner of Education, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law.[2]

Subsequent to that filing, the petitioner was advised by letter dated December 9, 1996 from the Board's counsel that the Board had applied for and been granted a waiver of N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1(f) and N.J.A.C. 6:28-5.1(c) so as to provide all basic child study team services by contracting with a private vendor.[3] The petitioner then appealed to the State Board of Education, challenging both the application and the grant of the waiver.

Petitioner contends that the waiver is invalid because basic child study team services required by N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 cannot be provided by a district solely through a contractual arrangement with a private vendor. Petitioner argues that the Commissioner and the Board are creatures of the Legislature and, therefore, possess only the authority delegated to them by that body. Petitioner maintains that the waiver

[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 provides in pertinent part that:

> Nothing in...any...law relating to tenure of service shall be held to limit the right of any board of education to reduce the number of teaching staff members, employed in the district whenever, in the judgment of the board, it is advisable to abolish any such positions for reasons of economy....

[2] We note that the matter is still pending before the Office of Administrative Law.

[3] N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1(f) provides that:

> Each district board of education, independently or through joint agreements, shall employ child study teams, speech correctionists or speech-language specialists and other school personnel in numbers sufficient to ensure provision of required programs and services pursuant to this chapter.

N.J.A.C. 6:28-5.1(c) provides that:

> Services which may be contracted shall be restricted to the following:
>
> 1. For public school pupils:
>
> i. Independent child study team evaluations and/or child study team diagnostic services to supplement existing local district services;
>
> ii. The related services of occupational and physical therapy; and
> iii. Home instruction.

in question exceeds that authority because it conflicts with the underlying statutory scheme set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:46-1 et seq. Petitioner claims that the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 requires boards of education to provide basic child study team services only through its own employees or by combining with other districts to provide such services through authorized public entities.

After careful review of the statutory framework and the underlying policy, we conclude that the petitioner's view is correct. Hence, the grant of the waiver in question was not a valid exercise of the authority which we delegated to the Commissioner in his capacity as the chief executive and administrative officer of the Department of Education, N.J.S.A. 18A:4-22, to grant administrative waivers pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3A-1.1 and N.J.A.C. 6:3A-1.5. Accordingly, for the reasons that follow, we declare that waiver to be invalid.

N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1, entitled "Basic child study team services; provision by boards of education and state operated programs," provides that:

> Each board of education and State operated program shall separately or jointly with one or more boards of education or State agencies provide for basic child study team services. The basic child study team shall consist of a school psychologist, a learning disability teacher consultant and a school social worker, and for the purposes of evaluation and classification shall include pertinent information from certified school personnel making the referral....

N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5 specifies the functions of child study teams. These include:

> a. identification and diagnosis of children needing special educational services, > b. development and approval of public school programs for handicapped pupils,

c. supervision and coordination of public school programs for handicapped pupils,
d. reporting and referral of children with handicaps,...
e. social case work and psychological evaluation,
f. remedial instruction,
g. cooperative action with other state and county departments and lay professional organizations, and
h. additional responsibilities as determined by the commissioner with the approval of the state board.

N.J.S.A. 18A:46-14 mandates that:

> The facilities and programs of education required under this chapter shall be provided by one or more of the following:
>
> a. A special class or classes in the district...;
> b. A special class in the public schools of another district...;
> c. Joint facilities...to be provided by agreement between one or more school districts;
> d. A jointure commission program;
> e. A State of New Jersey operated program;
> f. Instruction at school supplementary to the other programs in the school...;
> g. Sending children capable of benefiting from a day school instructional program to privately operated day classes...;
> h. Individual instruction at home....

It is axiomatic that, as creatures of the Legislature, both this agency and district boards of education must act within the authority delegated to them by that body. E.g., In re Jamesburg High School Closing, 83 N.J. 540, 549 (1980); Remedial Educ. & Diagnostic Servs. v. Essex Cty. Educ. Servs. Commn., 191 N.J. Super. 524, 527 (App. Div. 1983). This means that an administrative waiver cannot legitimize an outcome that is not authorized by the applicable statutory scheme and that a district board cannot rely upon such waiver to assume authority not granted to it by the statutes or properly delegated to it by this agency.

Quite simply, the clear and unambiguous language of the applicable statutes precludes a district from providing basic child study team services solely by contracting with a private vendor. In re Jamesburg High School Closing, supra. As set forth above, N.J.S.A. 16A:46-5.1 provides the authority under which district boards must provide basic child study team services, and the terms of that statute require that such services must be provided through its own employees, in combination with another board of education, or by another public entity. See Impey v Board of Educ of Borough of Shrewsbury, 142 N.J. 388 (1995); Vicenzino v. Bedminster Twp. Bd. Of Educ., 312 N.J. Super. 243 (App. Div. 1998). Since the Legislature did not authorize the provision of basic child study team services through a contract with a private vendor, we cannot contradict the terms of the statute by attempting to provide such authority by waiving the administrative regulations which purport to implement the statute.

We therefore declare the waiver in question to be invalid.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

Respondent, appearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.6(a)

Record Closed: January 19, 1996 Decided: January 31, 1996

BEFORE STEVEN C. REBACK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On November 15, 1995, the Department of Education transmitted to above appeal to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The basis of the transmission was a determination that the Commissioner of Education had before him a record which was insufficient to render a determination as to whether the petitioner, Mr. Marcelle, was rehabilitated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e), following his criminal conviction, which disqualified him from school employment. Mr. Marcelle had obtained employment with a private transit service which, among other contracts, would occasionally operate school buses. Following the transmission, the matter was heard at the Office of Administrative Law, Mercerville, New Jersey on January 19, 1996 at which time the record closed.

ISSUE AND BURDEN OF PROOF

The sole issue to be determined in these proceedings is whether pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18:6-7.1(e) the petitioner can demonstrate that he should not be disqualified from school employment on the basis of his criminal record in that he has been rehabilitated. In respect to this issue, the burden rests exclusively on the petitioner: Mr. Marcelle must affirmatively demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that he has been rehabilitated.

THE FACTS

The facts in this matter are not in dispute. I FIND:

On April 20, 1990, while serving in the military, Mr. Marcelle was convicted in a criminal court of wrongful use of cocaine. As a consequence of a finding of guilt, while Mr. Marcelle was not incarcerated, he was discharged from the Army on May 30, 1990. He was not dishonorably discharged; rather, he received a general discharge under honorable conditions. Marcelle is currently seeking to upgrade that discharge to honorable and he has submitted a variety of letters confirming that he has continued to make this effort. Those letters include a confirmation that he has received from his congressman and the Congressional Coordinator, Congressional Inquiry Division of the Department of the Army. As yet, no determination has been made which would upgrade his discharge.

The conviction of wrongful use of cocaine in 1990, was the only criminal conviction ever imposed upon Mr. Marcelle. He testified that it resulted from a random urinalysis taken while he was in the service immediately before he and his unit were sent to the Persian Gulf as part of the United States involvement in what has come to be known as the "Gulf War." He testified that he did indeed consume cocaine and that he did so because of the stress related to the impending military action and to ongoing domestic problems which resulted in a separation, but which has ended in reconciliation. Mr. Marcelle is currently employed by Laidlaw Transit, a private company, which on occasion transports handicapped individuals, including children. Laidlaw, accordingly to Mr. Marcelle, acquired Mayflower to contract services, the company under which he was originally employed in the capacity of a school bus driver, in June 1995. Laidlaw has been so satisfied with Mr. Marcelle's employment that once it received information that he was not qualified to operate a bus which transported school children, it transferred him and continues to employ him in an administrative capacity. Nevertheless, he has pursued this appeal for a variety of reasons, including his desire to operate a bus.

Marcelle had a good military career. He was decorated and served as mess sergeant at Fort Campbell Kentucky. He is 37 years of age, and has been married for 13 years. His wife is a teacher in the Trenton Public School system and has been teaching pre-school children in that system for 3 years. Mr. Marcelle is a college graduate, having received a bachelor of arts degree from the State University of New York at Old Westbury in 1981. He has a history of teaching in the City of New York and in "Head Start" and is licensed by the New York Board of Education and the National Teachers Association as a teacher for K through 6. It was explained to Mr. Marcelle that even were to be certified as teacher in New Jersey, the disposition in this matter, were it favorable to him, would only relate to his rehabilitation for purposes of being a school bus driver. Since 1990, when the incident occurred, Mr. Marcelle has had no problems of any kind, pursuant to his testimony, with using any unlawful substances and has had no involvement in the criminal justice system. He resides with his wife in a rented house in Trenton.

I was impressed with Mr. Marcelle's earnest and his sincere efforts to demonstrate his rehabilitation as well as his intelligence and his articulateness.

Several letters were submitted on his behalf which are part of the file transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education. A friend of 20 years wrote on November 8, 1995 about Marcelle's courtesy, dignity and leadership abilities. In addition, she notes that he is well liked and respected because of his ability to relate effectively with children and adults. She also observes his intelligence, conscientiousness and ability to function as a role model. A letter submitted by a representative of Laidlaw Transit in September 1995, indicates that Marcelle has demonstrated his willingness to "do what it takes to get a task completed." The director of regional operations affirms that Marcelle has a positive attitude, is punctual and has received no complaints from co-workers or passengers. The director of regional operations also indicates that once he was apprised of Marcelle's criminal history, he directed the manager of the Mercer County section to remove him from the position of bus driver and to have him do alternative work. In my judgment, that is a significant testament to the quality of Mr. Marcelle's work performance; in addition as an aside, it is also testament to the loyalty of an employer for its employees.

The Division Manager of Mayflower Services also has written a letter, dated September 8, 1995, indicating that during Marcelle's employment history the latter was professional with customers and employees. He was also dedicated to the company and demonstrated a very positive attitude. The manager concludes "if I had more drivers like Mr. Marcelle, my job would be much easier." Similar letters were submitted by other employers of Mr. Marcelle making it unequivocally clear that based upon his character as well as his military training and experience, Marcelle is fine employee.

In order for an individual to demonstrate that he has been rehabilitated he must meet the criteria set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

Subdivision (e) of that statue provides as follows:

> Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, an individual shall not be disqualified from employment or service under this act on the basis of any conviction disclosed by a criminal record check performed pursuant to this act if the individual has affirmatively demonstrated to the Commissioner of Education clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. In determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation, the following factors shall be considered:
> (1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
> (4) The date of the offense;

> (5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;
> (6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
> (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendations of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e)]

In my judgment, Mr. Marcelle has met the criteria set forth above. His only conviction was one occurring while he served with honor in the military some 5 years ago. Since then all of the testimony and evidence would point directly to an individual who may have made a mistake under highly stressful circumstances and who has, even before that and through to this day, led a productive, meaningful life. He is well educated, articulate, and married. He is by all accounts a fine worker. Little if any risks in my judgment are to be encountered by permitting this man to, when necessary, drive a school bus. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence and pursuant to the criteria set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 that he has been rehabilitated. It is therefore ORDERED that the petitioner's criminal history no longer disqualifies him from school employment as a school bus driver.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that Mr. Marcelle has demonstrated rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and is, therefore, qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning taxpayer sought determination, inter alia, that Board's contract procedures in awarding construction contracts were not in compliance with the Public Schools Contracts Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 et seq.

ALJ concluded that the Board properly followed the directives of the statute by achieving the lowest available price from responsible bidders and by giving the former bidders an opportunity to participate in the negotiations. Moreover, as required by statute, the modifications made to the specifications were placed in the resolution awarding the contract, which was adopted by 2/3 vote of the Board. ALJ concluded that the Board was not required to advertise the revised specifications for public bidding. Summary judgment was granted to the Board. ALJ noted statute does not provide for the recovery of fees and costs in an administrative proceeding.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own, emphasizing that he is without authority to award attorney fees.

Record Closed: November 14, 1995 Decided: January 30, 1996

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Jesse Rosenblum ("Rosenblum"), filed a verified petition and motion for a stay with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") which was received on December 29, 1994. The petitioner challenged the procedures under which the respondent, Closter Board of Education ("Board"), awarded construction contracts relating to proposed improvements at the town's Hillside Elementary School ("Hillside") and the Tenakill Middle School ("Tenakill"). An answer and separate defenses were filed by the Board on or about January 18, 1995. Petitioner responded to the Board's counterclaims alleged in the answer on or about January 23, 1995.

Thereafter having received no response from the Commissioner, petitioner filed a motion for leave to appeal in the Appellate Division on February 14, 1995. This motion was denied on April 4, 1995. On or about June 19, 1995 the Commissioner transmitted the matter Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On September 20, 1995, a prehearing conference was held before the undersigned wherein the issues were set and a procedural schedule was established. On September 26, 1995, a prehearing order was issued. Pursuant to said order a briefing schedule was entered. Also pursuant to the order petitioner amended his petition to dismiss the allegations of trespass and violation of the Wetlands Act as contained in Count VIII of the petition. Moreover certain issues with respect to discovery were resolved and therefore relief in Count V is no longer in dispute.

By fax transmission dated November 9, 1995, the Order of the Honorable Peter F. Boggia, J.S.C. dated May 4, 1995, was received by the undersigned. This order directs that the Office of Administrative Law is enjoined from accepting any complaints from the petitioner unless same is preapproved by the presiding assignment judge of Bergen County. On November 14, 1995, petitioner by letter to Administrative Law Judge Masin, then acting director, requested that this matter proceed since the instant petition was filed on December 24, 1994, prior to May 4, 1995 Order. The undersigned was directed by the Acting Director to decide this matter. A copy of this decision will be submitted to the presiding judge of Bergen County.

I FIND the following to be the undisputed facts and thus are adopted as the FACTS herein.

On or about February 25, 1993, the Board resolved to undertake construction projects at the Hillside and Tenakill schools within the Closter School District.[1] The Board hired the Vitetta Group ("Vitetta") an architectural consulting firm to prepare cost estimates, along with plans and specifications. (Dunn Affidavit ¶ 3; Boettcher Affidavit ¶ 3) On or about March 24, 1993, Vitetta submitted cost estimates reports for each school. The estimates totaled $8,910,000.00 (Hillside $2,744,500.00 + Tenakill $6,165,500.00), inclusive of construction contingency costs, with $8,100,000.00 earmarked for construction costs (Hillside $2,495,000.00 + Tenakill $5,605,000.00). (Tenakill Middle School Schematic Plan Submission, Exh. A, Dunn Aff. ¶ 3; Hillside Elementary School Schematic Plan Submission, Exh. A, Dunn Aff. ¶ 3) The total construction cost of the two projects, including architectural and attorneys fees, was estimated by Vitetta at $10,125,000.00 (Tenakill $7,006,250.00 + Hillside $3,118,750.00).

Using the cost estimates prepared by Vitetta, the Board held a special school election on May 18, 1993, seeking approval from the voters to issue bonds and for the acquisition of loans. (Special School Election Proposal, Exh. B, Dunn Aff. ¶ 4) The voters subsequently approved the bond referendum, thereby authorizing the Board to spend up to $10,125,000.00 for the project. Thereafter, Vitetta proceeded to prepare plans and specifications for the construction project, while also obtaining the requisite approval from the New Jersey State Department of Education, Bureau of Facilities Planning on June 29, 1994. (Final Approval Notice of Dep't of Ed., Exh. C, Dunn Aff. ¶ 4)

[1] The following affidavits were submitted by the Board as part of the record: Joan Dunn, Board Secretary/Business Administrator; Frances Boettcher, Project Manager from the Vitetta Group; David Tillou , Vincentsen Consulting, Inc.; M. Jockers Vincentsen, President of Vincentsen Consulting, Inc.; and Jeffrey P. Feifer,Superintendent of Schools for the Closter Board of Education.

In April 1994, the Board engaged Vincentsen Consulting, Inc. ("VCI") as a consultant on the school projects. (Agreement for Construction Consulting Services, Exh. D, Dunn Aff. ¶ 6) On or about May 16, 1994, the Board advertised for bids on the Tenakill and Hillside construction projects. (Dunn Aff. ¶ 7) Thereafter, the Board received sealed bids on July 5, 1994; however, the lowest responsible offer received was determined to be $9,827,000.00, which exceeded the cost estimates as projected by Vitetta.[2] ("Review of Bids" Spreadsheet from VCI, Exh. E, Dunn Aff. ¶ 7; Tillou Aff. ¶ 8) Thus, the Board rejected all bids by resolution dated July 7, 1994. (Exh. F, Dunn Aff. ¶ 8)

On July 7, 1994 and July 21, 1994, discussions were conducted with the Superintendent, Vitetta and VCI in order to formulate cost revisions to the original construction project. (Dunn Aff. ¶ 9; Boettcher Aff. ¶ 9; Tillou Aff. ¶ 9) Vitetta recommended that the bids be separated in order to attract additional bidders, along with a number of other modifications, all of which were designed to reduce the cost of the project. (Dunn Aff. ¶¶ 8, 9; Boettcher Aff. ¶¶ 11, 12; Vincentsen Aff. ¶ 15) These recommendations were shared with the Board and the proposed modifications were subsequently approved by them on July 21, 1994. (Vincentsen Aff. ¶ 16)

On or about August 1, 1994, the Board advertised the construction projects for bids, this time based upon the revised specifications recommended by Vitetta. (Dunn Aff. ¶ 10) Bids were received and opened on September 20, 1994, with the lowest being $9,468,000.00 for both schools. (Bid Spreadsheet, Exh. G, Dunn Aff. ¶ 10) On September 22, 1994, the Board rejected all bids on the basis that they were unreasonable as to price, since the lowest bid exceeded the original cost estimates by approximately $1,368,000.00. (Exh. H, Dunn Aff. ¶ 11; Boettcher Aff ¶ 13; Tillou Aff. ¶ 12)

[2] The lowest bid exceeded the construction cost estimate of Vitetta by $1,727,000.00.

After attempting to secure a bid for the construction plan on the two prior occasions, both times with unsatisfactory results, the Board again advertised for bids on or about September 26, 1994. (Dunn Aff. ¶ 12) The advertisements were based upon the identical plans and specifications that were previously bid on September 20, 1994. On October 6, 1994, the Board received sealed bids from a total of thirty four separate contractors, with the lowest base bid totaling $9,745,000.00, or approximately $1,645,000.00 more than provided in the original cost estimates prepared by Vitetta. (Exh. I, Dunn Aff. ¶ 12; Boettcher Aff. ¶ 15; Tillou Aff. ¶ 13) On the same date, the Board rejected all bids received, and pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5, resolved to negotiate with the responsible bidders in an effort to obtain contracts within the original cost estimates. (Exh. J, Dunn Aff. ¶ 13) The petitioner was then a member of the BOE and voted in favor of this action.[3]

Thereafter, David G. Tillou ("Tillou") of VCI notified all interested bidders that the Board intended to negotiate contracts for the construction project. (Exh. P, Tillou Aff. ¶ 15) Tillou also indicated that a negotiations meeting would be held on October 17, 1994, and he requested that each interested contractor register its intent to negotiate at the meeting. Furthermore, procedures for conducting the relevant contract negotiations were developed by the Board and distributed to the contractors involved. ("Exh. R, Tillou Aff. ¶ 16)

After contractors submitted their new price estimates and cost savings suggestions to Tillou on October 22, 1994, it became apparent that none of the proposals were reduced enough to fit within the original cost estimates of the project. (Tillou Aff. ¶ 16) As a result, the Board, at its October 24, 1994 meeting, directed VCI and Vitetta to formulate a suggested cost savings plan for the negotiating contractors when preparing their proposals. (Dunn Aff. ¶ 17) Following this meeting, Vitetta and VCI recommended a plan which involved the elimination of various features contained in the original drawings and specifications.[4] (Tillou Aff. ¶ 19) The revised cost savings plan was reviewed and approved by Frances H. Boettcher ("Boettcher"), the architect and project manager of the construction plan, and it was subsequently distributed to the negotiating contractors at individual meetings held with Tillou where the prospect of reducing each contractor's prices was discussed. (Tillou Aff. ¶ 20) Thereafter, the changes designed to eliminate costs were incorporated into Addendum No. 4 of the original specifications, and the Board proceeded to pursue negotiations in lieu of advertising the "revised" specifications for public bidding.[5] (Exh. K, Dunn Aff. ¶ 18 ; Tillou Aff. ¶ 19).

During the week of November 21, 1994, each negotiating contractor submitted its lowest price estimate. (Tillou Aff. ¶ 21) A special executive session was held by the Board on December 1, 1994, where M.J. Vincentsen ("Vincentsen") of VCI outlined a proposed budget consistent with the original cost parameters set forth by Vitetta. (Tillou Aff. ¶ 22) Vincentsen then informed the Board that the contractors' proposed modifications which were received would reduce the cost of the project to fit within the original outlined cost estimates. Nevertheless, the Board took no action, but instead waited for the next regularly scheduled public meeting to act on the recommendations. However, the Board informally accepted a recommendation to allocate additional contingency money, approximately $400,000.00, to the general construction budget, thereby raising the budget to approximately $8,500,000.00.

Prior to acting on the recommendations of Vitetta and VCI, the Board received an offer from Electro-Es, Inc., which allegedly offered to complete the electrical work on both schools for less than the two contractors to whom the electrical contracts were [4] The recommended alterations included, but were not limited to, changes to the interior and exterior wall finishes, along with modifications to the roof and HVAC controls at both schools. (Tillou Aff. ¶ 19).

[5] Prior to incorporating the recommended changes into the specifications, the Board apparently invited another construction manager to discuss the Board's dilemma, i.e. having twice received bids in excess of the cost estimates, at an open public meeting on November 2, 1994. (Feifer Aff., Exh V, ¶ 11). Apparently, the individual was a volunteer who essentially concurred with the recommended changes to the specifications.

ultimately awarded. (Exh. M; Dunn Aff. ¶ 25) However, Vincentsen recommended that the Board not consider this proposal, because he was unable to determine whether the offer complied with the specifications adopted by the Board. Moreover one could not ascertain whether the purported cost-savings would be realized. (Dunn Aff. ¶ 25) Furthermore, Vincentsen told the Board that Electro-Es' bid was submitted late. The Board rejected Electro-Es' offer by letter dated December 16, 1994. (Exh. N, Dunn Aff. ¶ 26)

On December 15, 1994, the Board acted upon the recommendations of Vitetta and VCI, and by a two-thirds majority vote of the full membership of the Board, awarded contracts to the contractors who had submitted the lowest negotiated offers. (Exh. L, Dunn Aff. ¶ 21) The combined total of the contracts awarded totaled $8,516,944.00, (Dunn Aff. ¶ 23), and the appropriate amendments to the specifications which were the subject of the competitive bidding were included in the resolution awarding the contracts. (Exh. L. Dunn Aff. ¶ 21) Petitioner then filed a nine count petition with the Commissioner of Education dated December 24, 1994, seeking to maintain the status quo pending a plenary hearing on the merits.

The Department of Education approved the modifications on the Tenakill School on or about January 20, 1995, and approval for the Hillside School was secured on January 30, 1995. (Exh. U, Feifer Aff. ¶ 3) Since site work revisions concerning the project affected the abutting county roads, the Board sought, and subsequently received, approval from the Bergen County Planning Board. (Feifer Aff. ¶ 4) Construction commenced during the week of May 15, 1995.

DISCUSSION

In a letter brief dated July 31, 1995, petitioner moved for summary decision with respect to Count I of the petition filed with the Commissioner of Education. Respondent opposed the motion and supported its own cross-motion for summary disposition with respect to the entire petition. In addition, the Board claimed that the petition filed in this matter is frivolous and seeks an award of attorneys fees on that basis.

When considering a motion for summary decision, this tribunal must determine whether the pleadings, answers to interrogatories, admissions, and affidavits demonstrate that no genuine issue of material fact exists, and that the moving party is entitled to an order as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b); R. 4:46-2. In addition, "[i]t is the movant's burden to exclude any reasonable doubt as to the existence of any genuine issue of material fact." Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954). "All inferences of doubt are drawn against the movant in favor of the opponent of the motion." Id. at 75. However, to prevail, the opposing party must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). Thus, an evidentiary hearing in a contested case is not necessary in the absence of disputed issues of fact. Frank v. Ivy Club, 120 N.J. 73 (1990), cert. denied, 498 U.S. 1073, 111 S. Ct. 799, 112 L. Ed. 2d 860 (1991). The parties do not disagree as to the facts. Indeed both seek summary decision. Thus the only issue in this respect is who is entitled to summary judgment.

Petitioner contends that the Board's award of construction contracts was arbitrary and capricious since it did not advertise the negotiated changes in the construction plan specifications. Thus, the award should be negated as being contrary to the plain meaning of the Public Schools Contract Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 to -59, as well as against the overall legislative intent. Petitioner complains that the Board should have proceeded with a fourth advertised competitive bid after it modified the specifications before negotiating with the ultimate contractors. The Board responds that it scrupulously adhered to the statutory directive outlined in the Public Schools Contract Law.

The issue, simply put, is whether the Board complied with the Public Schools Contract Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 to -59. (LAW)

The Public School Law (Law) requires that school contracts in the amount of $7,500.00 or higher be made and awarded through public bidding and advertising. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4. The Law was enacted to impose similar requirements on purchasing procedures utilized by local boards of education to those required by the Local Public Contracts Law[,] N.J.S.A. 40A:11-1 to -49. F.S.D. Industries, Inc. v. Board of Education of Paterson, 166 N.J. Super. 330, 334 (App. Div. 1979). N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4 requires that every contract which is to be paid from school funds, and is not included within the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-3,[6] "shall be made and awarded only by the board of education after public advertising for bids and bidding therefor, except as is provided otherwise in this chapter or specifically by any other law." (emphasis added). The exceptions eluded to in N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4, namely N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5 provides:

> Exceptions to requirement for advertising. Any purchase, contract or agreement of the character described in N.J.S. 18A:18A-4 may be made, negotiated or awarded by the board of education by resolution at a public meeting without public advertising for bids and bidding therefor if

The board of education has advertised for bids pursuant to N.J.S. 18A:18A-4 on two occasions and has rejected such bids on each occasion because the board of education has determined that they are not reasonable as to price on the basis of cost estimates prepared for the board of education prior to the advertising therefor or have not been independently arrived at in open competition, but no such contract or agreement may be entered into after such rejection of bids, unless:
> (1) Notification of the intention to negotiate and a reasonable opportunity shall have been given by the board of education to each responsible bidder;

[6] That section sets a bid threshold amount of $7,500.00, subject to adjustments made every two years according to the Consumer Price Index.

> [N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5d].

It is undisputed that the Board first advertised the initial specifications outlined by Vitetta on three separate occasions before resolving to negotiate with responsible bidders in an effort to obtain contracts within the original cost estimates. Thus it complied with the bidding procedures as contained in the statute. When the Board determined that the public bids were unreasonable and thus not in the public interest , the Law permits the Board to "abandon" public bidding requirements after having thrice advertised and received unreasonable bids. Thereafter, the Board invoked its right pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5d to negotiate with the responsible bidders. Once the negotiation exception was invoked, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Board properly followed the directives of the statute by achieving the lowest available price from responsible bidders and by giving the former bidders an opportunity to participate in the negotiations. As required by the statute, the modifications made to the specifications were placed in the resolution awarding the contract, which was adopted by a two-thirds vote of the Board.

Petitioner fails to recognize that once a school board invokes its right under N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5d, it no longer is subject to the rigid bidding procedures outlined by the Law. Instead, the negotiation provision is simply an alternative method which permits the board to employ procedures which are necessary to procure the lowest available contract price when the it is unable to obtain a reasonable price through competitive bidding. Interstate Waste Removal Co. v. Board of Commissioners of the City of Bordentown, 140 N.J. Super. 65, (App. Div. 1976). Interstate involved the interpretation of the Local Public Contract Law's negotiation exception, N.J.S.A. 40A:11-5(3), which essentially parallels the public bidding exception invoked by the Board in the present matter, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5d.[7] There the court observed > [w]here negotiation is permissible under the statute the municipality has great flexibility and may use any conceivable business method to accomplish the salutary goal of obtaining the lowest available price. There is no magic or uniform procedure which must be utilized. So long as it is structured to accomplish the purpose of the legislation, namely, to achieve the lowest available price from a responsible bidder, and the former bidders are given an opportunity to participate, the municipal officials have fully complied with their statutory duty.

> [Id. at 70 (emphasis added)].

Thus I FIND and CONCLUDE that there is no merit to petitioner's contention that the Board was required to advertise the revised specifications for public bidding.

[7] Again it is noted that the Public Schools Contract Law was enacted to impose similar requirements on the purchasing procedures utilized by local boards of education to those required by the Local Public Contracts Law. F.S.D. Industries, Inc. v. Board of Education of Paterson, 166 N.J. Super. 330, 334 (App. Div. 1979). Thus, although Interstate deals with a separate statute, it still bears relevance to the instant matter as the underlying principles with respect to the Public Schools Contract Law and the Local Public Contract Law are extremely similar.

Contrary to petitioner's assertions the procedures pursued by the Board here, namely modifying the original specifications after public bidding failed, did not offend the intent or spirit of the legislation. Interstate indicates that the Board is empowered to use any conceivable business method to accomplish the statutory goal of obtaining the lowest available price. Interstate, supra, 140 N.J. Super. at 70. The Board's business method essentially amounted to a change in the specifications; this procedure not only finds support in the general language of Interstate, but N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5d(3) also makes abundantly clear that a local board is empowered to modify the original specifications when entering into negotiations subsequent to public bidding which has failed.[8] Thus, the Board's contract awards was in compliance not only with the Public Schools Contract Law but complied with the spirit and intent of the law. As such, the Board is entitled to summary judgment as a matter of law with respect to Count I of the petition.

The Board moved, by way of cross-motion, for summary decision on the remaining issues raised in petition. Petitioner must set forth specific facts showing that genuine issues of material fact exist with respect to the claims made by the Board to defeat the motion.

Petitioner claims that the school construction projects must be submitted again to the public by referendum and re-opened to public bidding. Petitioner claims that many of the building fixtures which were removed from the original specifications will become items for inclusion in future school budgets. I FIND and CONCLUDE that this claim is grounded in sheer speculation as it calls for one to speculate about a future harm that has not yet materialized.

Petitioner further contends that the modified plan specifications upon which the contracts were awarded are not what the public authorized through the referendum.

[8] That section clearly contemplates that a school board may choose to modify the contract specifications that were at least twice the subject of competitive bidding.

The uncontroverted facts are that on May 18, 1993, the Board held a special school election pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-3 and presented a proposal to the voters. The proposal as set forth in Exh. B, of the Dunn affidavit sought a general authorization to modify the Hillside and Tenakill schools without reference to any particular plan. The proposal was very general in nature, as no representations were made to the public with respect to the quality or size of the project, or the types of materials which were to be utilized. (See Feifer Aff. ¶ 9) Indeed the only specific information set forth in the proposal was the amount of the requested expenditures and the purpose for the request.

The Law affords a school board wide latitude when reasonable contract prices cannot be obtained; therefore, a school board is empowered to alter specifications as a "business means" to obtain a contract price which is satisfactory, provided that the voters have approved the underlying project. As long as the changes made to the specifications brought the project within the authorized budget sanctioned by the voters, the Board cannot be deemed to have overstepped its authority. See Kearby v. Board of Education of the Borough of Watchung, 1963 S.L.D. 73 wherein the Commissioner stated:

> the legislative scheme in New Jersey is to give first to the voters the right to pass upon the general outline of a school building project and to set limits on the amount of money to be expended for it, and then, once approved by the electorate, to rely on the judgment of the board of education to decide and execute the specific details of the facilities, subject always to the standards for approval of the State Board of Education.
> [Id. at 75].

Here, the voters approved the general outline of the construction project and set the limits on the amount of money to be expended for it. The Board then used its judgment, as authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5d to execute the details of the program. The modified specifications were approved subsequently by the State Board of Education. (Exhs. C and U). Thus, so long as the construction project upon which the Board awarded contracts did not represent a "substantial change" from that which the voters approved, the plan need not be resubmitted to the public. Cf. "B*orough of Farmingdale v. Board of Education of the Borough of Farmingdale*, 1981 S.L.D. 130, 135.

Petitioner failed to set forth facts beyond mere naked allegations that the Board utilized any preliminary plans to induce the voters into voting for the project. Moreover petitioner failed to show that a substantial change was made. Petitioner does not allege nor does the record support that the actions of the Board constituted a breach of faith with the taxpayers. Indeed the Board procured a lower contract price than that which could have been obtained through public bidding. Thus on this count of the petition summary decision is entered in favor of the respondent.

Petitioner challenged the Board's decision to reject a proposal submitted by Electro-Es, Inc. to perform electrical work without first affording the contractor a hearing. Armitage v. Newark, 86 N.J.L. 5, 8 (Sup. Ct. 1914); Sellitto v. Cedar Grove, 132 N.J.L 29, 32 (Sup. Ct. 1944); Arthur Venneri Co. v. Paterson Housing Authority, 29 N.J. 392, 402 (1959). Petitioner presumes that Electro-Es submitted the lowest bid.

I FIND that Electro-Es did not have a right to be heard since the Board abandoned the public bidding procedures and proceeded to attempt to procure a contract through negotiations. Thus, Electro-Es was not a bidder, and therefore not entitled to a hearing. Once the negotiation exception to public bidding was invoked, the school board is entrusted with great flexibility in setting forth the procedures which will govern the negotiation process. See Interstate, supra. I further FIND that Electro-Es did not comply with the procedures promulgated by the Board, as its proposal did not conform to the specifications, nor was it submitted by November 28, 1994, the deadline for submissions during the negotiation process. (Tillou Aff.¶25) Furthermore, the Board determined that Electro-Es' proposal was not actually lower than the lowest negotiated price because Electro-Es apparently failed to include site electrical work.

Accordingly, petitioner has failed to raise facts which indicate the presence of a genuine issue of material fact with respect to the Board's failure to afford Electro-Es a hearing. Therefore, respondent is entitled to summary judgment on this count of the petition.

Count IV of the petition alleged that the Board violated the Open Public Meetings Act, (Act) N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to -21. Petitioner asserts that the Board invited an "unpaid advisor" at the November 2, 1994. Furthermore, petitioner avers that the Act was violated because the Board refused to invite the members of the former citizens' School Advisory Committee to a meeting for consultation. Respondent disputes any violation of the Act.

The Act, also referred to as the "Sunshine Law," embodies a legislative preference "that the right of the public to be present at all meetings of public bodies." N.J.S.A. 10:4-7. The "`Open Public Meetings Act' is in keeping with a strong tradition both in this State and in the nation favoring public involvement in almost every aspect of government." Polillo v. Deane, 74 N.J. 562, 569 (1977). An integral component of public involvement is the requirement that adequate notice regarding the meeting of a public body be afforded. The Open Public Meetings Act therefore provides:

> no public body shall hold a meeting unless adequate notice thereof has been provided to the public.
>
> [N.J.S.A. 10:4-9a (emphasis added)].

Since it is undisputed that the Board is a public body, see N.J.S.A. 10:4-8, we need only consider whether adequate notice was properly afforded.

The Act mandates that notice be "mailed, telephoned, telegrammed or hand delivered to at least two newspapers," and that this must be at least forty eight hours prior to the meeting. N.J.S.A. 10:4-8d. In addition, the notice shall be "prominently posted in at least one public place reserved for such or similar announcements."

The affidavit of the Superintendent of Schools, claims that the subject meeting was "properly advertised in accordance with the Open Public Meetings Act." (Feifer Aff. ¶ 11) The Board also provided a copy of the purported "Notice of Meetings" agenda. (Exh. V) The record is however devoid of any evidence with respect to whether this notice was "mailed, telephoned, telegrammed or hand delivered to at least two newspapers," as the Act mandates.

However pursuant to N.J.S.A. 10:4-18 where notice of a regularly scheduled meeting has been given no further notice to the newspapers or anyone else is required. Thus, if the November 2, 1994 meeting was a regularly scheduled meeting and previously noticed no further notice is required, unless the municipality has imposed such requirements through its own ordinances or bylaws. Based on the record herein, I am unable to determine whether the November 2, 1994 meeting was a previously noticed regularly scheduled meeting.

Assuming de arguendo, that the meeting was not noticed, what relief, if any, is the petitioner entitled to under the statute. N.J.S.A. 10:4-15 provides in its pertinent part that any action taken by a public body in violation of the Act shall be voidable in a proceeding in the Superior Court. However the action must be taken within forty-five days after the action sought to be voided has been made public. Petitioner did not file such a complaint in the Superior Court within the required forty-five days. Moreover, any request for relief at this time would be untimely. Since construction on the schools commenced in May 1995. Thus the action cannot be voided. N.J.S.A 10:4-15 further provides that any action taken by a public body which is voidable shall not be voidable solely for failure to conform with the notice requirements contained in the Act. Having concluded that the respondent has in all other respects complied with the Law, I hereby dismiss Count IV of the petition.

In Counts VI and VII, petitioner contends that the Board should be compelled to investigate whether a conflict of interest exists because a board member, Michael Bergman, is apparently engaged in the sale or distribution of materials used in the construction industry. Petitioner alleges that Bergman cast the pivotal vote on the Board's resolution for the Tenakill School project. Further it is alleged that the superintendent had a conflict of interest in the negotiations due to the fact that his wife teaches in a neighboring public school district.

This tribunal does not have jurisdiction at this juncture to hear allegations of improper ethical conduct. The Legislature has prescribed a code of ethics embodied in the School Ethics Act, and "and created a School Ethics Commission specifically for the purpose of enforcing those ethical standards." See N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.1(b). Thus, allegations of improper ethical conduct, such as, an improper conflict of interest are to be addressed to the Commission in the form of a complaint. N.J.A.C. 6.3-9.16. It is only after the Commission determines that probable cause exists will the matter be referred to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing. N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.18(f).

Thus Counts VI and VII are hereby DISMISSED for the aforesaid reasons.

Likewise Count IX of the petition is untimely and it too is DISMISSED. Petitioner seeks relief from the Board's resolution of October 21, 1993, that prohibited him from representing himself as a member of the Board. (Feifer Aff., Exh X, ¶ 16). N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) requires that a petition be filed no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a action by the district board of education. The petition in this matter was filed on December 24, 1994 after the 90-day deadline. Therefore, summary disposition is hereby granted to the respondent.

Respondent claims that the instant petition filed is frivolous without any reasonable basis in law and intended for the purpose of harassment. Thus respondent seeks reasonable attorneys fees, reimbursement for all costs and expenses related to this action.

The general rule is that attorney fees and costs should not ordinarily be awarded in the absence of a statutory grant to do so. Alyseka Pipeline Service Co. v. Wilderness Society, 421 U.S. 420, 95 S.Ct. 1612, 44 L.Ed. 2d 141 (1975); State Department of Environmental Protection v. Ventron Corp., 94 N.J. 473, 504 (1983). The New Jersey Administrative Code (N.J.A.C.) does not expressly provide for the award of attorney fees in the case of a frivolous lawsuit.

Rule 4:42-9(8) of the New Jersey Court Rules, permits the awarding of attorney fees in all cases where counsel fees are permitted by statute. N.J.S.A. 2A:15-59.1 expressly provides for the award of attorney fees and costs to the prevailing party in a civil action when the sitting judge determines that the complaint was frivolous. The statute does not provide for the recovery of fees and costs in an administrative proceeding. Balsley v. North Hunterdon Reg. High School, 225 N.J. Super. 221 (App. Div. 1988). Proceedings before the OAL are administrative actions and not civil actions. Thus this tribunal lacks jurisdiction to award fees and costs herein. This is indeed unfortunate because the I find that complaint in this action is frivolous.

CONCLUSION

For the aforementioned reasons, petitioner's request for summary decision with respect to Count I of the petition is hereby DENIED and summary decision is GRANTED in favor of the respondent. On the remaining counts of the petition I hereby GRANT respondent's cross-motion for summary decision.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

JESSE ROSENBLUM, PETITIONER, V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF CLOSTER, BERGEN COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the reply thereto were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner asserts that the Board's actions in this matter were not in compliance with the Public Schools Contracts Law. In this regard, petitioner cites Terminal Construction v. Atlantic City Sewerage, 67 N.J. 403, 409 (1975) for the proposition that contracts "of significant size" must be awarded to the lowest bidder subsequent to a public bidding, "in order to guard against corrupting influences, local discretionary acts, and secure the benefits of unfettered competition." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 2) Petitioner maintains, however, that the Board acted outside the statute and against the good of the public in that it "chose to effect impromptu private alterations through negotiations with  one or two interested contractors per trade." (Id. at p. 3) Petitioner warns, "the contract entered into must match the terms and specifications as set forth in the private advertisement." (Id. at p. 5, citations omitted) Citing

Palamar Construction v. Township of Pennsauken, 196 N.J. Super. 241, 252 (App. Div. 1983), petitioner adds that even post-bid negotiations "may be conducted in such a manner as to violate the principles of competitive bidding." (Id., citing Palamar at 252)

Petitioner further argues that the Board's reliance on Interstate, supra, is misplaced inasmuch as the ultimate contract price secured in Interstate, following a negotiation session conducted by the municipality after two unsuccessful attempts to obtain an acceptable price via competitive bidding, "resulted in a saving of public funds." (Id. at p. 4, citing Interstate at 70) In this matter, petitioner challenges, "the prices negotiated by the Board are NOT lower than the lowest rejected formal bid due to the extensive reduction in the size and specification of the school project." (emphasis in text) (Id.) Thus, petitioner urges that the initial decision be reversed.

The Board argues that it complied with both the letter and the spirit of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 et seq., as determined by the ALJ. The Board continues

> As reflected in petitioner's exceptions, it is abundantly clear that petitioner either selectively omits the fact that this project had been bid on three (3) separate occasions or he has selected this action as a means of voicing his disagreement with the Legislature's exception to competitive bidding, as outlined in N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5(d). (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 2)

The Board maintains that the ALJ was correct in determining that, once a board invokes its right under N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5(d), the board is no longer subject to the statutorily prescribed bidding procedures, (Board's Reply Exceptions at p. 2) and that the Board was, therefore, acting in accordance with the plain language of the statute. (Id. at p. 4) Petitioner's contention, therefore, as to the Board effectuating improper private alterations by way of negotiations "not only flies in the face of the uncontroverted facts but is entirely disingenuous." (Id. at p. 3)

The Board further asserts that its reliance upon Interstate, supra, is appropriate in that it is "the only decision which addresses the situation where the public entity had repetitively sought bids and was unsuccessful." (Id. at p. 2) Further, the Board contends >  the decisions cited by petitioner, in his exceptions, such as Palamar Constr. v. Tp. of Pennsauken  are entirely unavailing, as those decisions addressed improprieties which arose during or following the bidding process. In contrast, the instant action arose out of an exception to the bidding process as ordained by the Legislature." (Id. at p. 4)

The sole portion of the initial decision to which the Board takes exception is the ALJ's determination that the Commissioner is without jurisdiction to award attorney fees. (Initial Decision at p. 18) The Board argues, > in circumstances where, as here, the petition is frivolous  the salutary goal evinced by the Legislature in enacting N.J.S.A. 2A:15-59.1 will not only be furthered, but the public interest will be served in allowing the public entity to recoup its precious and limited resources. Moreover, the right of an individual to preserve the public interest must be tempered where, as here, that privilege has been abused. (Board's Reply Exceptions at pp. 4, 5)

Thus, the Board urges that the Commissioner affirm the initial decision with respect to the Board's compliance with the Public Schools Contracts Law, and "follow the Superior Court" by awarding the Board reasonable attorney fees, thereby "deterring repetitive and frivolous litigation." (Id. at p. 5)

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner finds petitioner's exceptions to be unpersuasive and, thus, concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ in her initial decision. As to the Board's request for attorney fees in this matter, the Commissioner underscores the ALJ's instruction that he is without authority to award such fees, notwithstanding that an appeal may be particularly vexatious and/or costly to defend.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative law is adopted for the reasons expressed therein

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: January 25, 1996 Decided: January 29, 1996

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, a health/physical education teacher and the holder of requisite teaching certificates, contends that the Board's actions on April 28, 1995, reducing her from a full-time to a part-time position effective December 18, 1995, amounted to a demotion and violates her tenure and seniority rights, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 20, 1995, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held on November 29, 1995, and a hearing was scheduled for January 24 and 25, 1996. After the commencement of the hearing, the parties agreed to settle this matter and set forth the following settlement terms on the record:

1. Petitioner agrees to withdraw the filed petition with prejudice.

2. Petitioner will be reinstated to a full-time position as a physical education teacher in the Pinelands Regional School District as of December 18, 1995.

3. Petitioner understands that her position will be abolished as of June 30, 1996. The petitioner agrees not to contest this abolishment of this position in any legal manner.

4. This settlement does not create any priority seniority rights for the petitioner.

5. The petitioner will be given a letter of recommendation commensurate with her evaluations, acknowledging that, to date, these evaluations have been good.

The attorneys for the respective parties stated that they have fully discussed the terms of this settlement agreement with their respective clients, and their clients have consented to the terms and conditions of the settlement. In addition, petitioner indicated on the record that she agrees to the terms of the settlement. Respondent's representative also indicated on the record his agreement to the settlement terms.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their agreement to the representations made by their counsel on the record.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded. I further note that the parties have agreed to waive their right to file exceptions and cross-exceptions in this matter

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Re: K.F., on behalf of minor child S.F. v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, Mercer County - OAL DKT. NO. EDU 799-96

Dear Counsel:

This is a ruling and order issued in response to the motion instituted by K.F., on behalf of her minor child, S.F., for emergent relief taking the form of compelling the respondent (Trenton) to undertake the responsibility to provide round-trip transportation of S.F. to attend the Marine Academy of Science and Technology (MAST) located in Sandy Hook, County of Monmouth, New Jersey. For the following reasons the petitioner's motion is GRANTED.

I

On or about February 27, 1996, the petitioner, through counsel, requested emergent relief by way of letter to the Commissioner of Education who on the following day, February 28, 1996, transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for disposition. Oral argument, testimony, and Trenton's brief were submitted on March 4, 1996, at which time the record closed. I advised the parties that I would render a decision on the emergent relief issue as soon as possible.

II

The facts upon which I have relied for purposes of this motion are contained in the certification submitted by K.F. and the various moving papers and exhibits submitted by the parties.

The Marine Academy of Science and Technology, located at the tip of Sandy Hook in Monmouth County, New Jersey, is a 4-year secondary school with a high school curriculum designed to accommodate the needs of students interested in marine science technology. For the 1995-96 school year it has an enrollment of 233 students from 39 school districts from throughout Monmouth County and other counties in New Jersey (of the 233 full-time students, 20 are out-of-county). MAST has stringent admission requirements and a rigorous curriculum. In its 1995-96 school profile MAST indicates that "the Marine Academy of Science and Technology is opened to male and female students throughout the State of New Jersey. Daily transportation is provided by the resident districts." (at page 8). S.F. has demonstrated high grades at MAST, scoring into the mid-high 90s in several of his courses, and receiving comments indicating "outstanding performance" in these as well as "doing well" in a variety of his other courses. The guidance counselor of MAST in a letter directed to respondent, dated February 13, 1996, describes S.F. as:

> a bright young man who went through an extremely competitive application process. . . He has flourished here as evidenced by his academic record. In spite of having to deal with difficult and trying family issues, [S.F.] is well adjusted, focused and diligent. S.F. is a dedicated student who wants very much to continue his education here. To the best of my knowledge, [MAST] is the only public school in New Jersey that can offer him the specialized curriculum and it would be sad to deny him this opportunity. [Letter, Ann Marie Klecak, Guidance Counselor, MAST, February 13, 1996.]

Last year, when S.F. was a freshman at MAST, he and presumably his mother and father, resided in the Freehold School District, located in Monmouth County, and presumably Freehold undertook all the obligations imposed upon it to pay for S.F.'s attendance at MAST. S.F.'s parents are divorced and have joint custody of S.F. S.F. continued to live with his father in Freehold until January 14, 1996, when he was compelled to leave that residence because of parental abuse. He currently resides with his mother in Trenton, New Jersey, where on January 18, 1996 he was enrolled in the school district.[1]

In spite of informal efforts to have Trenton undertake the responsibility of transporting S.F. to MAST and back to his home, the district maintains it has no obligation to do so. That decision was apparently arrived as of January 22, 1996. As a consequence, and since that date, K.F. has undertaken the obligation to transport her son to MAST. She has done so by personally taking time off from her employment and has driven him part-way and then has paid someone to drive him the rest of the distance and return him to a location near Trenton where K.F. returns him home. Her certification and testimony were that the cost of transporting her son in this fashion has been $200 per week. As of March 1, 1996, K.F. indicated that she was no longer able to afford to pay for transportation and that as a consequence, her son would no longer be able to attend MAST after that date. She also indicates that the Freehold Board of Education terminated S.F.'s transportation to MAST effective January 18, 1996.

Petitioner now seeks an emergent decision ordering Trenton to undertake the responsibility of transportation to and from MAST for S.F. as well as being reimbursed for the money expended by K.F. from January 22, 1996 until she no longer was able to pay for those costs. The January 22 date is based upon the date that the transfer should have been effective following Freehold's termination of its obligation to transport S.F. It should also be noted that S.F. was in attendance at the hearing in full uniform. It is clear that he would have much preferred to be at MAST.

[1] No issue was raised in this proceeding in respect to S.F.'s residency in the district.

III

The standards that must be met in order for an individual to qualify for emergent relief is not in dispute. Pursuant to well established case authority and rules governing emergent relief matters at OAL, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6, a moving party must establish the following in order to be granted emergent relief: (1) the applicant must demonstrate a reasonable probability of ultimately prevailing on the merits of the appeal; (2) the applicant must establish that irreparable and immediate harm will result should the motion be denied; (3) the applicant must demonstrate that the relief requested must be narrowly defined so as to not cause unreasonable expense and substantial inconvenience to the party opposing the motion.

Addressing the second prong of the emergent relief test, it is clear that the moving party has prevailed. K.F.'s testimony, affirmed by her son's presence in the courtroom, clearly demonstrates that she has exhausted her funds and effective March 1, 1996, S.F. has been deprived of the opportunity to continue to attend MAST and to continue to thrive and receive a thorough and efficient education. This is particularly disturbing given that he is performing so well, at a time when he is also suffering from the consequences of parental abuse. It is also clear that by Trenton's own admission, neither it nor presumably any other school district in the State of New Jersey can provide S.F. with the unique kind of educational experience offered at MAST and which S.F. so desperately wants. Clearly, he cannot make up the time that he has already missed in respect to attending class, everyday that goes by without his being in attendance, is a day lost. Accordingly, it is clear that the moving party has demonstrated that if the relief requested is denied, S.F. will continue to suffer immediate and irreparable harm.

In respect to the third issue, concerning the nature of the relief as being narrowly defined, in my judgment the movant simply has asked that Trenton undertake the obligation to transport S.F. to MAST and return him to his home in Trenton in as reasonably an efficient manner as possible. She is not in any way requesting anything special or anything more than other students deserve in respect to a right to be transported to a public school. Obviously, because of the unique circumstances of S.F., the cost of transporting him may very well be significantly higher than the cost borne for any other student.[2] In any event, it is Trenton that is the repository of any knowledge required to fashion the remedy as cost-efficient as possible. The only requirement sought by K.F., presumably, is that transportation be safe, clean and reliable. Beyond that K.F. simply wants her son to get to class on time and to be returned safely to her home. Thus, in my judgment, the moving party has satisfied the third prong of the emergent relief test.

The final prong, often the most difficult to establish, is the case in this matter as well. In my judgment, however, K.F. has demonstrated a reasonable probability of ultimately prevailing on the merits in this matter. A review of the relevant statutes and the Commissioner's decision in R.H. and E.H. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Freehold Reg. High Schl. Dist., 1985 S.L.D. 282, makes this apparent.

The legislation which established a Marine Academy of Science and Technology was enacted in 1982 and is codified at N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-1 to -7. The Act provides that > [u]pon the request by a board of education of a regional school district ..., the State Board of Education is authorized to establish a Marine Academy of Science and Technology under the local area vocational-technical school for the purpose of providing education to students throughout the State of New Jersey in the fields of marine sciences, marine trades, marine technologies and related courses, as well as academic courses.

> [N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-1.]

The State of New Jersey currently has only one MAST which is located in Sandy Hook, Monmouth county. It operates "under the auspices" of the Monmouth County Vocational-Technical School (MCVTS). N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-4. The board of education of the MCVTS determines the admission policies of the MAST. N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-6. Pupils who attend the MAST must be provided transportation "by the district in which the pupil resides." N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-7.

---

[2] A preliminary inquiry done by representatives of Trenton suggested to them that the cost of transporting S.F. could run as high as $27,000 annually. This is presumably based upon a bus or van hired exclusively to take him back-and-forth from MAST. The issue of course has not yet been carefully assessed.

Contrary to the Respondent's position in the present matter, it appears that the legislation requires all school districts to provide transportation for its students who attend a MAST. The plain language of N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-7, supra, makes no distinction between pupils who reside in the same county where a MAST has been established and those who live out-of-county.

The statewide nature of the MAST program was recognized by the Commissioner in R.H. and E.H., supra, in which he adopted the ALJ's conclusion that "the resident school board's authority over the attendance of a pupil accepted at MAST on a full-time basis has been preempted by statute and, thus, the residential board of education is without jurisdiction over the MAST program." R.H. and E.H., supra, 1985 S.L.D. at 295 (resident school board could not require its resident pupil to enroll in its local school program for the academic courses of study while also enrolled in and attending the MAST program for the marine sciences and technologies on a shared-time basis). The Commissioner emphasized the availability of the program to all New Jersey pupils in the reasons set forth for his adoption of the ALJ's decision.

> The enabling legislation enacted relative to the Marine Academy of Science and Technology (MAST) is clear and unambiguous in its intent to establish a full-time instructional program available to New Jersey pupils. Admission procedures and operation of the MAST program fall under the jurisdiction of the Monmouth County Vocational-Technical School. Hence, there is no statutory authorization in N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-1 et seq. granting local boards the power to establish their own admission/attendance policies for those pupils in their districts who desire to attend this unique educational program.
>
> A board policy which would serve to unilaterally restrict pupils' attendance merely to a shared-time program would contravene clear legislative intent to have a full-time program available to New Jersey's pupils. If such a policy were allowed to be enacted by the Freehold Regional High School Board of Education or other boards of education, it would unquestionably undermine the legislative intent and purpose for a full-time instructional program to be operated... A board policy which prevents access to the MAST program on a full-time basis would serve to deprive those pupils of a statutory entitlement created by N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-1 et seq. Therefore, it is determined that any policy of the Freehold Regional Board restricting a pupil's attendance in the MAST program to shared-time is hereby declared null and void.
>
> Petitioner's son was accepted for full-time attendance in the MAST program. Therefore, there can be no impediment raised by the Board which precludes his right to attend a full-time educational program established by > legislation, irrespective of how cost effective the rationale may be from the Board's perspective.

> [Id. at 297-98.]

The Commissioner ordered that the Board be permanently restrained from restricting the pupil's attendance at MAST and that it provide transportation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-7. Id. at 298. This decision was affirmed by the State Board of Education. Ibid.

Even though R.H. and E.H. involved a school district located within the same county as the MAST, like the language of the MAST legislation nothing in the Commisioner's decision can be read to limit its application to within county school districts. The language of the decision clearly speaks to all New Jersey pupils and school districts. Respondent's determination that it is not obligated to provide transportation for S.F. to attend the MAST has no other effect but to "preclude his right to attend" this educational program established by legislation. Accordingly, that determination must be declared null and void.

In support of its position, Trenton relies to a great extent upon the 1990 amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-4, *L.*1990, c. 52, which transferred the assets of a MAST to the county vocational school board it operates under and directed that the costs for operating the program "be paid in the same manner as the costs are paid for other county vocational school programs pursuant ot the provisions of chpter 54 to Title 18A." N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-4. Citing a section in the referenced title, N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1, the Respondent concludes that the "intertwining" of the MAST and county vocational school statutes exempts out-of-county local school districts from the obligation to provide transportation for its students who attend the MAST.

Respondent's interpretation is not supported. The impetus for changing the manner in which costs are paid for operating a MAST was the Quality Education Act of 1990 (QEA), N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-1 to -37. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-4; N.J.S.A. 18A:54-20.1; Committee statement to Senate, No. 272l, L.1990, c. 52, N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-1. The purpose of the QEA was to establish a new system for distributing state aid to the school districts. The 1990 amendment to the MAST legislation is more accurately characterized as housekeeping in that it was part of the Legislature's effort to fit the many funding statutes in Title 18A within the new system established by the QEA. The amendment does not reduce a school district's obligations to a student who is accepted and attends a MAST.

As the Commissioner stated in R.H. and E.H., the MAST is a unique educational program available to all New Jersey pupils. There is no language in that decision or the relevant statutes that would exempt a local school district from the requirements of the MAST legislation.

It is my view that the Legislature never anticipated the circumstances that are presented in this case, i.e., wherein a student seeks application to MAST who is located in a school district which is significantly off-shore and geographically far from MAST's location. Nevertheless, that the Legislature may have failed to anticipate such circumstance cannot and does not change the clear and express mandate of the statute. It is not the ALJ's job to rewrite the legislation; should the Legislature determine that the circumstances in this matter, which may very occur in other instances as well, were never intended to be embraced by the statute at issue, then it is left to it to amend the legislation to reflect its intentions.

It is also my judgment, as an aside, that it ostensibly seems to be an unfair burden to place upon a local school district, such as Trenton, to bear the costs of transporting a student to MAST - a school opened to those qualified and interested on a statewide basis - when the costs could reasonably be considered greater than tuition to a university for a full year. The consequence in my view, is an additional result of the Legislature failing to assume that a scenario such as the current one would occur. Perhaps those in authority should apprise the Legislature of these circumstance and perhaps the appropriate resolution would be to provide some additional or other sources of funding for transportation rather than placing the burden exclusively on a local school district which typically is already short of funds.

Nevertheless, it is clear that based upon the foregoing analysis, the moving party has demonstrated a reasonable likelihood of prevailing on the merits in these proceedings.

It is therefore ORDERED that the petitioner's application for emergent relief is GRANTED. Trenton shall forthwith provide an appropriate form of transportation for S.F from his home to MAST and back. It shall in addition reimburse K.F. for the cost borne by her in transporting S.F. from January 22, 1996 through to when she was no longer able to undertake that obligation. Counsel shall advise me when and if the emergent relief issue has been administratively finalized and I shall confer with them in respect to addressing these matters upon a full plenary basis.

This order may be reviewed by COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION either upon interlocutory review, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10, or at the end of the contested case, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 799-96

K.F. on behalf of her minor child, S.F.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION

The record of this matter and the initial decision on Motion for Emergent Relief of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Upon the Commissioner's receipt of the OAL decision, the parties were accorded until close of business Monday, March 11, 1996 to submit exceptions to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) Order and until close of business on Tuesday, March 12, 1996 for the submission of reply exceptions. The Board's exceptions and petitioner's reply thereto were timely filed.*

Initially, the Board's exceptions provide a detailed recitation of the findings and conclusions of the ALJ. The Board then argues that inherent in the ALJ's determination was "an assumption that S.F. has a legal right to attend MAST." (Board's Exceptions at p. 3). The Board

* It is noted that petitioner requested an extension of time, beyond the Department's official close of business (4:15 P.M.), within which to file reply exceptions. Such extension was granted, with the clear understanding that the reply must be received on March 12,1996.

proffers that S.F. has no such "legal right" to attend an out-of-county vocational program. It asserts that neither the relevant statutes nor the decision relied on by the ALJ mandate "that all students throughout the State of New Jersey have an absolute, unqualified right to participate in a MAST program" (Id. at p. 3), nor does N.J.S.A 18A:54C-1 require that all local school districts provide its students with a MAST program. The Board, therefore, argues that absent a specific mandate requiring all districts to provide a MAST program, "a student in a district without such a program has no legal right under the school laws to participate." (Id. at p. 5).

The Board further advances that the ALJ's reliance upon R.H. and E.H. v. Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District, et. al., Monmouth County, 1985 S.L.D. 282 in reaching his determination was erroneous, as the facts in that matter are clearly distinguishable from those existing herein. "In R.H., the local district in which the student was enrolled, is located in the same county as MAST. Since in R.H. the student resided in the same county as the MAST program, there was a clear obligation to send him to MAST." (Id. at p. 6). The Board advances that R.H. does not stand for the proposition that all students in the State have a right to participate in such a program where their local district does not provide one.

Lastly, the Board argues that if districts are required to accommodate every non-special education student who wishes to participate in an out-of-county special program, the resultant financial implications for the district would be considerable. As such, it asserts that absent a clear mandate from the Legislature, the Board cannot be obligated to provide transportation or tuition for S.F.

In reply, petitioner maintains that the Board's interpretation of the legislative intent in creating the MAST program is without merit. She avers that the language of the relevant statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-1, stating "the Marine Academy of Science & Technology is created under the local area vocational-technical school for the purpose of providing education to students throughout the state of New Jersey...(emphasis added), is clear on its face that upon acceptance to MAST a student from any county (has) a right to attend such program." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 2).

Petitioner further insists that, notwithstanding the Board's contentions to the contrary, the ALJ's decision does not stand for the proposition that all students who want to attend MAST have an "absolute" right to do so. Rather, it argues, a student must satisfy admissions standards and there must be an available place in the program for the student. "Therefore, only a student, like (S.F.), who has successfully competed for admission to MAST and is successfully meeting MAST's standards for continuing attendance, has the right to be transported there by his school district of residence, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-7." (Id. at p. 3). Petitioner additionally contends that the Board's argument with respect to the applicability of R.H. and E.H. v. Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District, supra., is specious in that the students' county of residence had no bearing whatsoever on the outcome of the case in R.H.

Finally, petitioner insists that arguments with respect to the cost of transporting S.F. are immaterial to this matter. She asserts that the relevant statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:54C-7, unambiguously requires that transportation for students attending MAST be provided by the district where the student resides, and is not conditioned by geographic distance or the cost of such transportation.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record and the arguments advanced by the parties, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ granting emergent relief in this matter in that he determines that petitioner has satisfied the standards qualifying her for such relief including, for purposes of this motion, a facial showing of prevailing on the merits.

Accordingly, the Motion for Emergent Relief is granted for the reasons expressed by the ALJ and this matter shall duly proceed to a hearing on its merits.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8574-95

AGENCY DKT. NO. DHP #60-95

DEBORAH S. KALAPOS,

Petitioner,

v.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

Respondent.

Michael T. Barrett, Esq., for the petitioner (Bergman and Barrett, attorneys)

New State Department of Education, the respondent, appearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 1:1-5.6(a)

Record Closed: December 20, 1995 Decided: February 5, 1996

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the appeal of the petitioner, Deborah S. Kalapos, from her disqualification from school employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 et seq., due to a criminal conviction for the possession of a controlled dangerous substance. The provisions of this statute are applicable to new employment after the effective date of the statute (1986).

By letter dated March 29, 1995, the Department of Education (Department) determined that the petitioner was disqualified from school employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 et seq. (R-1u). The petitioner filed an appeal (R-1h), and on September 20, 1995, the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The hearing took place on November 22, 1995, and after receipt of a brief from Michael T. Barrett, Esq., on behalf of the petitioner, the record closed on December 20, 1995.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND the facts in this matter are not in dispute.

The petitioner is a certified and tenured hearing disability consultant employed by the Trenton Board of Education for about 25 year, and in that capacity she works as a child study team member. The petitioner has regular contact with students and their parents. Bruce W. Gunther, the Supervisor of Special Pupil Services and Child Study Teams, testified that he has supervised the petitioner for two years and has worked with her on a child study team for 15 years. Mr. Gunther stated that the petitioner has had excellent evaluations for her work performance with the Trenton School District and that if she is terminated, it will be a serious loss for the Trenton school system. According to Mr. Gunther, the petitioner is a team leader and is assigned to the more difficult cases because of her knowledge and ability. Mr. Gunther was aware that the petitioner had a problem in 1993 which could affect her employment and stated that there was no problems with her job performance during the 1993-94 school year. Also, Mr. Gunther felt that the petitioner's recognition of her alcohol dependency problem and her efforts to overcome the problem have helped her grow as a person and that the experience will help her to be a better person and employee. In his letter, Mr. Gunther states that the petitioner has not consumed alcohol since 1993 (R-1e).

According to the petitioner, she applied in 1994 for a part-time consulting position with a private firm in Monmouth Junction. To the best of her knowledge, this firm does not get any state aid. The firm required a criminal record check and the petitioner agreed to the check. According to the petitioner, the Trenton Board of Education has never done a criminal check as to its current long-term employees.

The criminal check requested by the private firm showed that the petitioner had been arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol and the possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine) on February 18, 1993, and that she pled guilty to the offenses on June 23, 1993 (R-1x). She was ordered to pay fines and costs, sentenced to 30 days in jail and ordered to attend a 12-week Pennsylvania alcohol program. The jail sentence was converted to 15 weekends of home arrest and 30 days of community service, which the petitioner has completed. She also was required to meet with a probation officer once a month until August 1994. By letter dated April 12, 1995, Leo F. McDonald, Jr., a probation officer in Hunterdon County, whose office undertook the supervisor of the petitioner for Pennsylvania, states that the petitioner has completed her probationary period and that he saw no reason why "Ms. Kalapos should be barred from future employment." (R-1j). Robert D. Pollack, a Pennsylvania probation officer, by letter dated April 11, 1995, confirmed that the petitioner has completed her probationary period (R-1w). James S. Carpenter, by certified letter dated April 20, 1995, states that the petitioner competed the 30 days of community service (R-1l). Also, the petitioner attended a alcohol rehabilitation program at Princeton House. By letter dated April 11, 1995, Thomas W. Perrin, indicates that the petitioner had received treatment from him for alcohol abuse after she attended the Princeton House program (R-1d). She now regularly attends Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) meetings.

At the time of her arrest in 1993, the petitioner was 45 years old and she had an alcohol abuse problem, and the drunk driving offense was her second such violation. The petitioner stated that she no longer drinks any alcoholic beverages. As to the drug offense, the petitioner admitted she had an empty baggie which had contained an illegal drug in her possession at the time of the arrest. She denied being a drug user, and stated that she had gotten the baggie and used the drug to help keep her awake when she drove her daughter to college in Colorado.

According to the petitioner, this trip took place in 1992 and she forgot to throw away the baggie. The petitioner stated that the baggie only had a trace of drugs in it.

The petitioner thought she had only pled guilty to the drunk driving offense and that the drug charge was dismissed because there was only a drug residue in the baggie. She admitted that she was wrong since the documents clearly establish that she pled guilty to both charges.

By letter dated March 29, 1995, the Department notified the petitioner that its check had revealed a criminal record and it gave the petitioner thirty days in which to challenge the accuracy of the criminal record (drug offense conviction) or to establish rehabilitation. The Department also notified the Trenton School District about the drug offense conviction (R-1v). The petitioner did not dispute the accuracy of the criminal record but argued that she was rehabilitated. In addition, the petitioner requested the Trenton Board of Education to stay any action it might take pending a decision in this matter. The Board agreed to the stay.

The petitioner submitted a number of letters in support of her representation of rehabilitation. A certified letter from Nettie Robinson-Logan, dated April 11, 1995, stating that she works with the petitioner, is aware of her 1993 arrest and that the petitioner has not had any alcohol beverages since the arrest (R-1m). Certified letters from Evelyn J. Jackson-Allen and Nancy J. Knight, who are friends and co-workers, stating that the petitioner is an excellent employee of the Trenton School District (R-1n, R-1r). A certified letter from John T. Guadagno, dated April 19, 1995, stating that as a friend he is aware of the 1993 arrest and that the petitioner should not be punished by losing her job for making one mistake in 1993 (R-1o). Certified letters from Cheryl D. Whiting, June A. O'Hare and Bill Luciana, attesting to the petitioner's good character (R-1p, R-1q and R-1s).

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

On behalf of the petitioner, Mr. Barrett stated that the petitioner has an excellent employment record with the Trenton School District, that the 1993 incident was her only drug conviction, and that she has completed the sentence for the 1993 violation. Mr. Barrett argued that the petitioner is not a drug user but has admitted that she was an alcohol abuser, and that the petitioner continues to seek help for her alcohol problem.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e), a person with a criminal record will not be disqualified from school employment if said person shows clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. This section sets forth a number of factors to be considered in determining whether the person had affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation. These factors are:

(1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

(4) The date of the offense;

(5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;

(6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.

Having reviewed the testimony and the documents admitted into evidence, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation.

The petitioner was a mature person who was arrested for drug possession in 1993 and she admitted she used the drug the previous year while driving. According to the petitioner, it was the only time she used an illegal drug and there is no evidence to dispute her statement. The petitioner has completed the sentence imposed on her for the 1993 offense. Although a drug conviction is a serious violation, it was an isolated offense and it occurred a few years ago.

A substantial part of the record does not deal with the drug offense, which constitutes the statutory disqualification, but rather with the petitioner's recognition after her 1993 arrest that she had an alcohol abuse problem and with her ongoing efforts to stop drinking alcohol. The petitioner has competed a alcohol abuse program and she is attending AA meetings, and she no longer drinks alcohol.

The petitioner holds a position with the Trenton School District and applied for an additional position relating to education, and both of these positions would place her in regular contact with students and their parents. It is obviously important that a person in such positions not be involved with drugs. In this case, the petitioner's drug use occurred outside the school environment, was an isolated incident, and there is no indication that she used drugs or for that matter was under the influence of alcohol while working. Under these circumstances, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner should not be disqualified from any new school employment. As to her current position with the Trenton School District, the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 et seq. are not applicable; however, the District was notified of the petitioner's conviction and it will have to decide whether to initiate tenure or other disciplinary proceeding.

Therefore, I ORDER that the petitioner not be disqualified from school employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 et seq.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DEBORAH S. KALAPOS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the within petitioner has demonstrated rehabilitation, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, from the specific disqualifying offense of possession of a controlled dangerous substance and is, therefore, qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws.*

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons articulated therein, and petitioner is deemed qualified for school employment.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, teacher who was assaulted by 7th grade student, alleged Board acted improperly in not holding an expulsion hearing following the assault.

ALJ concluded the Board acted properly when it canceled the pending expulsion hearing. Board was following regulations, then in effect, that before an expulsion hearing could be held, the child study team had to conduct an evaluation of the noneducationally disabled pupil. (N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.8(g)) Since the pupil's behavior was determined to be caused by the pupil's educational disability, the District was prevented by regulation from disciplining the pupil. Petition was dismissed for failure to state a claim for which relief may be granted.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

IRVINGTON BOARD OF EDUCATION,

Respondents.

Janine Barna, pro se

Joseph R. Morano, Esq., for respondent
(Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso & Kessler, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 29, 1996 Decided: January 29, 1996

This is a transcript of the administrative law judge's oral decision rendered pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.2.

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is a claim by a teacher who challenges the failure of a local board of education to hold an expulsion proceeding for a student who assaulted her at an elementary school. The narrow issue is whether the Irvington School Board's failure to conduct an expulsion proceeding violated N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 or, in the alternative, whether the Board fully complied with the applicable procedures for a child study team evaluation of disruptive students prior to any expulsion proceeding. N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.8

Procedural History

Presently this matter comes before the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on respondent's motion to dismiss the petition on the following three grounds: (1) failure to state a claim on which relief can be granted; (2) mootness; or (3) lack of standing. On December 13, 1995, respondent filed a notice of motion for dismissal, together with a supporting certification and legal brief. Subsequently, on December 28, 1995, respondent submitted a certification by a school principal with personal knowledge of the facts. Petitioner has not filed any papers opposing the motion. The OAL held oral argument on January 29, 1996. For the reasons which follow, respondent's motion to dismiss must be granted.

Findings of Fact

All of the relevant facts are undisputed and set forth in the certification of James Washington, principal of Chancellor Avenue School. I FIND the following facts:

1. On or about November 30, 1994 A.M., a thirteen-year-old student attending the Chancellor Avenue School of the Irvington School District, was involved a physical assault against Ms. Barna, who is an art teacher employed by the Board at the Chancellor Avenue School.

2. As the result of that incident, on or about December 9, 1994 Mr. Washington immediately suspended A.M. from school.

3. Mr. Washington also recommended to the Board that A.M. be expelled or permanently removed from the Irvington School District in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1.

4. As a result of his recommendation, an expulsion hearing was scheduled for December 21, 1994.

5. Simultaneously, and in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.8, Mr. Washington referred the matter to the district child study team for an evaluation of A.M. to determine if her behavior was a manifestation of her disability.

6. Thereafter, on or about December 15, 1994, before the expulsion hearing was to be held, Mr. Washington was notified by the child study team that it had determined that A.M. should be classified as emotionally disturbed and that her behavior on November 30, 1994 was a manifestation of her handicap.

7. Accordingly, Mr. Washington was also advised that the Board through the superintendent had determined to terminate expulsion proceedings based on the fact that the Board was legally prohibited from expelling the pupil pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.8, et seq.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the Irvington Board of Education acted properly when it cancelled the pending expulsion hearing.

Petitioner relies on N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 which provides, in pertinent part:

> Any pupil who commit an assault . . . upon a teacher . . . acting in the performance of his duties and in a situation where his authority to so act is apparent . . . shall be immediately suspended from school consistent with procedural due process pending expulsion proceedings before the local board of education. Said proceedings shall take place no later than 21 calendar days following the day on which the pupil is suspended. (Emphasis added).

This statute must be read together with the procedural requirements set forth by federal law and state regulation. In particular, N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.8(g) provides, "Before a noneducationally disabled pupil can be considered for expulsion by a district board of education, the district board of education shall obtain consent from the parent or adult pupil for evaluation and the child study team shall conduct an initial evaluation according to N.J.A.C. 6;28-3.4 to determine eligibility."

Here the record clearly shows that before an expulsion hearing could be held, the principal referred the student to the child study team for an initial evaluation. At the time of the incident, the student was not classified as eligible for special education services. However, the child study team determined that A.M. should be classified as emotionally disturbed and issued an opinion that her behavior at the time of the incident "was primarily caused by her educational classification disability." N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.8(d) further mandates that "if the pupil's behavior is determined to be primarily caused by the pupil's educational disability, the district may not discipline the pupil." Of course this does not mean that the child is immune from consequences as a result of her misbehavior. The district may obtain the consent of the parent for a change of placement and, in the event that the parent refuses to consent, the district may request a due process hearing to change the child's placement. Such state regulations are consistent with the prevailing federal case law that a disruptive handicapped child may not be disciplined for conduct which is a manifestation of the child's handicapping condition. Honig v. Doe, 484 U.S. 305, 108 S.Ct. 592, 98 *L.Ed.*2d 686 (1988); S-1 v. Turlington, 635 F. 2d 342 (5th Cir. 1981), cert. den. 454 U.S. 1030 (1981). See also,

Sch. Bd. of Prince William Cty. v. Malone, 762 F. 2d. 1210 (4th Cir. 1985); Kaelin v. Grubbs, 682 F. 2d 595 (6th Cir. 1982); Doe v. Koger, 480 F. Supp. 225 (N.D.Ind. 1979).

It should be noted that the Commissioner of Education recently expressed concern about inflexibility in dealing with the disruptive conduct of pupils and has proposed amending the rules to eliminate the requirement of conducting a child study team evaluation of every nondisabled pupil prior to expulsion proceedings. 27 N.J.R. 3263 (Sept. 5, 1995). But this suggested revision is only a proposal and does not change the law as it existed at the time of the Board's action.[1] When the Board decided not to proceed with the expulsion proceeding, it was merely complying with the dictate of N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.8(g) that a child study team evaluation must occur "before a noneducationally disabled pupil can be considered for expulsion." Consequently, the Board had no choice in this matter but to follow the current binding regulations.

In light of this ruling, it is unnecessary to address the alternate grounds for dismissal raised by respondent, namely mootness and lack of standing.

Order

It is ORDERED that respondent's motion to dismiss the petition for failure to state a claim for which relief may be granted is hereby granted.

[1] After delivery of the oral decision, it was learned that the Commissioner had indeed adopted an amendment eliminating the requirement to evaluate every nonclassified pupil prior to initiating expulsion proceedings. However, the new rule only took effect on December 4, 1995 and, therefore, does not apply to a prior incident which occurred on November 30, 1994. 27 N.J.R. 4887(a) (Dec. 24, 1955).

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF IRVINGTON, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), again contending, inter alia, that the Board should have held an expulsion hearing following an assault by a student upon petitioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A: 37-2.1. Petitioner further excepts to the ALJ's decision in that she was denied discovery documents that would have demonstrated that the above-cited laws "and N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.8 were bent, side-stepped and interpreted in a way that would create the illusion of [the Board's] following the proper procedures." (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 1) Additionally, petitioner contends that she has stated a claim upon which relief should be granted in that she was seeking Board compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 3)

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that the Board acted pursuant to law and applicable regulation in effect at the time of its actions* in determining not to proceed with an expulsion proceeding after conducting a child study evaluation of the pupil in question and determining that she was emotionally disturbed and that her behavior at the time of the incident was primarily caused by her educational classification disability, thus, insulating her from discipline.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law recommending that the instant Petition of Appeal be dismissed.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :

HEARING OF JOSE JIMENEZ, COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL : DECISION

DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF

PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges of neglect of duty, insubordination and attendance-related incidents against respondent custodian.

In light of a series of incidents that established respondent's pattern of unsatisfactory job performance and inappropriate behavior, ALJ concluded that tenure charges were proven and warranted respondent's termination from employment.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own and directed respondent's dismissal from employment as of date of this decision.

March 18, 1996

Within a few short months of Jimenez's hiring, he started to receive oral warnings from Manuel Artero, the Chief Custodian. Chief Artero was Mr. Jimenez's supervisor and had been working at School No. 15 for approximately 15 years. On December 8, 1989, Chief Artero authored a memo to Jimenez in which he advised him that he would pursue further action if Jimenez continued to neglect his work. (See P-16). On March 23, 1990, another memo from Chief Artero to Jimenez once again pointed out that his job performance was unsatisfactory and in need of immediate improvement. (See P-18).

Jimenez was evaluated on January 23, 1991 by the principal of School No. 15, Glenn J. Lagatol. The evaluation was completely unsatisfactory and Principal Lagatol recommended that Jimenez be terminated. (See P-19). The next evaluation by Lagatol on March 23, 199l, reflected some improvement on the part of Jimenez but still only rated him as a "marginal employee. (See R-1).

On June 14, 1991, Chief Artero sent a memorandum to Louis Milone, Supervisor of Operational Maintenance, indicating that Jimenez's performance had shown no improvement and that complaints from administrators and teachers had been received concerning areas that had not been properly cleaned. Chief Artero recommended that Jimenez be transferred out of School No. 15. (See P-20).

A memo from Erving Ruiz, Supervisor of Custodians, authored on September 30, 1991 to Mr. Milone, concerning Jimenez, indicated that Mr. Ruiz spoke to Jimenez regarding the complaint emanating from School No. 15 and warned Jimenez that if performance did not improve "some form of corrective action would [sic] be taken." (See P-24).

Mr. Milone responded to Mr. Ruiz's memo by notifying Jimenez on October 1, 1991 that his job performance and lack of cooperation had resulted in Mr. Milone placing Jimenez on a 60-day notice, which meant that during that time his performance and attitude must improve. Jimenez had to be further advised that if no improvement occurred, termination would be sought. (See P-25).

STATEMENT OF CASE

This matter involves tenure charges filed against Jose Jimenez, custodian for the Paterson Public Schools. Jimenez is charged with neglect of duty, insubordination, and attendance related charges.

BACKGROUND

Jose Jimenez was hired by the Paterson Public Schools on May 10, 1989, and was assigned to be one of the custodians at Public School No. 15.

Despite these rather clear and ominous warnings, Jimenez once again was warned in writing on November 25, 1991 by Chief Artero concerning his failure to properly perform his duties. (See P-22).

On January 14, 1992 Chief Artero, upon receiving more complaints from administrators and teachers at School No. 15, sent a memo to Jimenez once again delineating the complaints of shortcomings and overtly warning Jimenez that the content of the memo required immediate improvement or Jimenez's termination would be requested.

One week later on January 21, 1992, Principal Lagatol wrote to Dr. Emmajean Stepherson, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, requesting Jimenez's termination. Lagatol's letter indicate "all efforts have been expended over the last two years to provide the resources and direction fro Jimenez's improvement with his job responsibilities. As of this date, his performance is seriously inadequate and termination is highly recommended". (See P-27). Principal Lagatol's request to Dr. Stepherson was quickly followed by a memo to Jimenez on January 22, 1992, advising him that his termination had been requested as a result of his inadequate performance. (See P-28).

Despite the serious warnings that Jimenez received from Artero, Lagatol and Milone, very little, if any, improvement was noted. Surprisingly, all of these rather seriously critical evaluations and memos did not result in Jimenez's termination, but rather his transfer out of School No. 15 to Rosa Parks High School. Clearly, this transfer was a last ditch effort to give Jimenez an opportunity to prove he could perform at an acceptable level.

Less than one month after the transfer, Jimenez was evaluated by the principal of Rosa Parks High School, T. K. Wells. The evaluation was less than satisfactory and indicates that Jimenez "has been counseled to carry his share of the workload . . ." and "has been encouraged to become a team player". (See P-2). Jimenez was evaluated again by Keith Andrews, Supervising Custodian at Rosa Parks High School on March 22, 1993. The face of the evaluation (see P-3) could not be construed as a satisfactory evaluation. Exhibits P-4 and P-5, Custodian Evaluation Forms, for March 1993 and School year 93-94, though acceptable for the most part, still depict areas of performance that are less than satisfactory.

Jimenez's job performance from the time of his hiring until September 1994 was established by a preponderance of the evidence to be less than satisfactory. There could well have been a very strong tenure case established against Jimenez prior to his transfer to Rosa Parks High School. Despite the thin ice on which Jimenez must have known he was traveling, his job performance at Rosa Parks High School did not improve and on September 23, 1994, an incident occurred at the school which resulted in Jiminez leaving the building unattended and failing to take rudimentary steps in response to what he perceived as an emergency situation.

On September 23, 1994, Jimenez and Ronald Bridges, a fellow custodian were working the 3 to 11 p.m. shift at the high school. While Bridges was on a break, Jimenez noticed a cracked or broken window in a door and became concerned that illicit activity may be taking place. He inexplicably left the building to drive to his supervisor's house to report the incident. He did not try to telephone his supervisors for he said he did not have their phone numbers. He did not try to call the police because he did not know that phone number either. When questioned as to why he did not simply dial "911" he responded that he had no knowledge of that number. Only two conclusions can be reached from the statement of Jimenez that he had no knowledge of the "911" number: the first is that he is so completely out of touch with the every day world that he could not possibly respond adequately to any situation which would require some common sense or secondly, that he is not telling the truth. I choose the latter, and find as a matter of fact, that Jimenez's testimony was incredible and not truthful.

Considering both Jimenez's long history of unsatisfactory, or at best, marginal performance, and, his complete and utter failure to respond appropriately to the situation that arose on September 23, 1994, termination based on insubordination, and, though not so characterized by the District, incompetence, is warranted

The last charge against Jimenez was that he failed to call in his intended absences from work on several occasions between July 1992 and October 1994.

The policy in the Paterson School District was for a custodian to call his chief custodian and/or the supervisor of custodians to report his intended absence. The call was required to be made 45 minutes prior to the start of the shift from which the absence was about to occur.

Joseph Vacca, Supervisor of Custodians for Rosa Parks High School testified that he had warned Jimenez several times about not calling in his intended absences. Mr. Vacca testified that on at least three occasions, Jimenez did not call in and he was warned.

Donna Doling, school secretary, maintained the records for the custodians and teachers. She would be notified by Chief Andrews whether or not an absent custodian called in. This notification usually took place at the end of the day. According to Ms. Doling's records, she personally made entries indicating that on September 20, 1993 and May 19, 1994, Jimenez failed to call in.

The critical aspect of the charge against Jimenez of failing to call in his absences revolve around the dates October 3, 5, 6, 7 of 1994. Principal Lyde testified that on October 3, 1994 when Jimenez failed to call in, she wrote him a letter quoting the custodial and maintenance association contract with the school district and indicating that Jimenez was to be suspended two days. On October 4, 1994, Principal Lyde handed the letter of October 3, 1994 (P-10) to Jimenez and asked why he did not call in. Ms. Lyde indicated that Jimenez admitted that he knew that he did not call in.

On October 5, 1994, only one day later, Jimenez was absent again and Principal Lyde once again wrote a letter dated October 5, 1994 suspending Jimenez for three days because he failed to follow established policy and procedures.

On October 7, Jimenez was absent again and this time the letter authored on that date from Principal Lyde indicated that his salary increment for the year was under consideration to be withheld.

On his return to work on October 11, 1994, Jimenez brought with him two doctor's notes indicating the reason for his absences.

Jimenez contended that his wife had made the required calls on his behalf because of his difficulty with speaking the English language. Though a call was made on October 3, I find as a matter of fact that there were no calls made for the other dates for which Jimenez was absent during the course of that week.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that Jose Jimenez's employment be terminated, as a custodian for Paterson Public Schools.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by THE COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JOSE JIMENEZ,		COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL	:	DECISION
DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF
PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in post-hearing briefs, again contending, inter alia, that the Board did not sufficiently prove tenure charges and that the charges, if credited, do not warrant termination in the instant case.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that the Board has proved its charges of insubordination, neglect of duty and attendance-related incidents against respondent.[1] Further, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the tenure charges, as proven, based on a series of incidents which establish respondent's pattern of unsatisfactory, or at best, marginal job performance, and inappropriate behavior, are sufficient to warrant his termination from employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and 11.

[1] The Commissioner finds that notwithstanding the ALJ's characterization that the Board made a showing of respondent's incompetence, the Commissioner does not so conclude in that the Board did not frame its charges in this manner.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL and hereby orders that respondent be dismissed from his position as tenured custodian as of the date of this decision.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Respondent, appearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.6(a)

Record Closed: January 19, 1996 Decided: January 30, 1996

BEFORE STEVEN C. REBACK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On November 21, 1995, the Department of Education transmitted to above appeal to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The Department concluded that the Commissioner of Education had an insufficient record to render a determination as to whether the petitioner, Roderick A. Pruden, was rehabilitated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e), following his conviction of crimes such that he would no longer be disqualified from school employment. The matter was heard at the Office of Administrative Law, Mercerville, New Jersey on January 19, 1996, at which time testimony was elicited and additional documents separate from the file which was transmitted to the OAL were presented by Mr. Pruden.

ISSUE AND BURDEN OF PROOF

The sole issue to be determined in these proceedings is whether pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18:6-7.1(e) the petitioner can demonstrate that he should not be disqualified from school employment on the basis of his criminal record in that he may demonstrate that he has been rehabilitated. In respect to this issue, the burden rests exclusively on the petitioner: Mr. Pruden must affirmatively demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that he has been rehabilitated.

THE FACTS

I FIND:

On August 29, 1995, Mr. Pruden completed an application for authorization and certification of his criminal record as an incident to his seeking employment as a custodian with the Atlantic City School system. Indeed, Mr. Pruden commenced employment with Atlantic City for approximately 1 month. Thereafter, the latter was constrained to terminate his employment as a result of a criminal investigation which determined Mr. Pruden's prior criminal record. Based upon the testimony of Mr. Pruden and a review of the case file, the following is a summary of the petitioner's criminal convictions.

On November 7, 1981, the petitioner was found guilty of possession of a controlled dangerous substance, marijuana, and sentenced to a conditional discharge. On August 3, 1985, Pruden was found guilty of criminal sale of marijuana as well as its possession and was sentenced to 30-days confinement. On June 1, 1990, Pruden was again found guilty of possession of marijuana, and was sentenced to 45-days confinement and 18-months probation. The most serious conviction, and presumably the one upon which the question of rehabilitation and qualification for school employment emanates, is the conviction of Mr. Pruden on October 2, 1992 for felony possession of cocaine. For this conviction he was sentenced to 3-years confinement, 12-months suspension of his drivers license and an $1100 fine. Pursuant to a letter submitted by his parole officer dated October 19, 1995, which was entirely consistent with Mr. Pruden's testimony, the latter was released on parole after serving approximately 8-months of the 3-year sentence. During his parole Pruden, accordingly to his senior parole officer, showed no signs of drug use or criminal activity and reached his adjusted maximum of November 18, 1994 without incident. Because however, Pruden was unable to satisfy the fine which was imposed upon him, which at the time of the writing of the letter had reached $1,850, his file remained open with the year of parole until the obligation was fulfilled. Significantly, the parole officer notes "it is the opinion of this writer that stable employment will not only insure fulfillment of Mr. Pruden's revenue obligation, but greatly enhances his changes [sic] for a complete reintegration." Letter Herman Rinaldi, Senior Parole Officer, to "To Whom It May Concern," October 19, 1995.

Various documents provided by the petitioner demonstrates that since his release from prison all of his actions and inter-action both on a social and on a work-related basis were positive and productive. Bernard Reynolds is the head coach for the Central Junior High School football team in Atlantic City. Reynolds, in an October 21, 1995 memorandum, indicates that Pruden has been a volunteer assistant basketball and football coach with the high school for the past 3 years. Reynolds describes Pruden as having excellent communicative skills and as possessing expertise as a coach. Further, he was described as being honest, dependable, and conscientious, earning the respect of players by showing concern for them and by demonstrating leadership abilities.

By letter of October 20, 1995, William C. Steele, the principal of Atlantic City High School also sends a recommendation letter on petitioner's behalf. The principal had consulted with the facility manager and the second shift supervisor of the schools, presumably those individuals for whom Mr. Pruden worked as a custodian for the brief period of time of his employment. Following those conversations, the principal indicates that he is "not in the least bit reluctant to recommend him for a position of employment with the Atlantic City Board of Education." The principal found Mr. Pruden to be a man of few words who goes about doing his work in a methodical manner. Steele apparently was fully aware of Pruden's criminal history and notes at the conclusion of his memorandum that these "incidents have in no way deterred his work ethics." Another letter is submitted by a Vincent Dozier, dated October 20, 1995. Dozier does not identify himself in the letter but he must be officially connected to Atlantic City High School. he indicates that he has known Pruden for about a year and that the latter has demonstrated exemplary character qualities such as responsibility and dependability. Dozier has found Pruden to be a concerned and helpful person who has been an asset to the high school. He also identifies his leadership and role model presence.

Charles Totoro is Director of facilities of the Atlantic City public schools. In a notarized statement, Mr. Totoro describes Pruden as having been a loyal and valued employee, noting that his attendance, his performance, and his attitude during his brief stint with Atlantic City were excellent. He indicates that he had received high praise by his supervisors and had created a very positive relationship with other custodians.

The head custodian of Atlantic City High School, Mr. Richard Johnson, also submitted a letter, dated October 19, 1995, which is equally as salutary as the previous documents. Johnson also notes that Mr. Pruden's past record should not be a factor in his future employment and that in his judgment, Pruden has been rehabilitated and is working hard to make a new, better life for himself and his family.

A teacher from Atlantic City High School, Ms. Sylvia Reynolds, also submitted a letter, dated October 20, 1995. She has known Pruden all her life and describes him as outgoing, caring and generous. She unequivocally indicates that in her judgment the petitioner has "been fully rehabilitated" and can face any obstacle with a positive outlook. It ends with a plea that her letter would help to permit Pruden to continue to maintain his employment as a custodian with the Atlantic City public school system.

At the hearing Mr. Pruden submitted 2 additional documents. On October 27, 1995, the vice-principal of Central Junior High School, Atlantic City, Mr. Charles D. Greg, submitted a letter on the petitioner's behalf. He indicates that he has known Mr. Pruden for 3 years and that the latter had "a tremendous positive effect on our students." The reference is to the fact that Pruden had volunteered his time after school hours to assist coaches at the junior high school.

Mr. Greg notes that he was very much impressed with Pruden's dedication and that he would be an asset to the school system.

The final document addressed is one which was executed by the Supervisor of Adult and Community Education for the Atlantic City Alternative School, Mr. Wilbert L. Royal. Mr. Royal notes that he has known Pruden for a decade and during that time he has worked for him in another venue and has his highest recommendations. Mr. Royal is fully aware of what he describes as Pruden's "past transgressions," but affirms that in his judgment Pruden has reformed.

Mr. Pruden testified on his own behalf at the hearing. He is an impressive, articulate and sincere man. Of course, as I noted to him on the record, a fact-finder can always be duped in assessing an individual's credibility and I am no different from any other fact-finder. However, Mr. Pruden's representations are consistent with the record that he was able to provide in respect to his behavior and conduct since his 1992 conviction, which reinforces his credibility and, in my view, diminishes the possibility of his credibility being in doubt.

Mr. Pruden is 35 years of age and left school after the eleventh grade. He has been unable to find employment since he was released from prison. His only source of income is general assistance and food stamps. He has had a 6-year relationship with a woman, Ms. Donna Smith, who was present at the hearing and who is described as his fiancée. He considers himself the stepfather to her children and 1 grandchild. Mr. Pruden owned up to his prior criminal record and also indicated that he had attended narcotics anonymous and alcoholics anonymous. He seemed earnest in respect to his efforts to get his life together, particularly to find gainful employment. Ms. Smith, who also testified on his behalf and who was a most impressive witness, noted his "dramatic" change since his release from prison, reiterating the volunteer work that he has done, which has already been documented, as well as other changes in his life such as his efforts to read.

ANALYSIS

In order to demonstrate that he has been rehabilitated for purposes of school employment, the petitioner must establish that he has met the applicable criteria set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

Subdivision (e) of that statue provides as follows:

> Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, an individual shall not be disqualified from employment or service under this act on the basis of any conviction disclosed by a criminal record check performed pursuant to this act if the individual has affirmatively demonstrated to the Commissioner of Education clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. In determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation, the following factors shall be considered:
> (1) The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
> (4) The date of the offense;
> (5) The age of the individual when the offense was committed;
> (6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
> (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendations of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e)]

In my judgment, based upon the evidential record as well as the testimony and demeanor of the petitioner, he has met the criteria set forth above. The position of custodian is one which has a tenuous relationship at best in respect to interacting with students. Ironically, of course, Mr. Pruden through his volunteer work has already interacted with students and based on his character and personality and perhaps as well upon his own prior criminal record that interaction has proved positive. The offense of which Mr. Pruden was found guilty, possession of cocaine is indeed a serious offense. However, that was the first offense involving felony possession of a controlled dangerous substance and as far as I can determine the only such offense of which he has been convicted. All of his other offenses, while not to demean their significance, involved either possession of or possible sale of cannabis.

Two aspects of the case are of some concern. The first is that the offense and conviction occurred 3 years ago. While some might argue that a 3-year period is not a sufficient one in which to conclude that an individual has been rehabilitated, in my view, the issue of the relationship between the time between when an offense is committed and when an individual is rehabilitated is subjective. On occasion, an individual may be rehabilitated immediately upon his release from prison. In other instances, an individual may never be rehabilitated. In this case, in my judgment, the 3 years since his release has demonstrated that Pruden is conducting his life in a manner inconsistent with criminal conduct and consistent with an individual who is making a concerted effort to find a job, earn a living, and make a life for himself, his fiancee and her family.

The other concern I have is that Mr. Pruden may still be frequenting places and making social contact with people with whom he should not. He indicated that on occasion he will see friends in bars (Pruden is not an alcoholic) and they will occasionally, smoke marijuana. Pruden indicated that "in respect" for him they will leave the facility and smoke elsewhere. He describes these individuals as "friends" and my response to him was to find new friends. I think on the whole, however, that Pruden's honesty in this regard and his uncontradicted testimony in respect to his being entirely clean since his release, diminishes the concern that I have for this aspect of his life.

The reality is that Pruden is a man who is making a concerted effort - merely by fighting in court for the position of custodian - to escape the cycle of drugs and criminality, which apparently has consumed much of his early life. I fear that were he denied that opportunity eventually and notwithstanding his efforts he might be sucked right back into that cycle and remain as a nonproductive member of our society. On the other side of the issue is the question of his impact on the student body of the school in which he is employed. In my view, his 3 years of drug free living, his wholesome relationship with Ms. Smith and her family, and the significant and productive volunteer work that he has done with students under the supervision of academics and professionals send a message that whatever risks exist in respect to the students when he is in the capacity of custodian, is either non-existent or minimal. Under any circumstances, in my view this case cries out for us as a society to give Pruden the opportunity that he is so desperately seeks and to take that risk.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence and pursuant to the criteria set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and consistent with the conclusion arrived at by the Board that he has been rehabilitated. It is therefore ORDERED that the petitioner's criminal history no longer disqualifies him from school employment as a custodian.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10834-95

IN THE MATTER OF THE	:
DISQUALIFICATION FROM	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT OF	:	DECISION
RODERICK PRUDEN.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner adopts the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the within petitioner has demonstrated rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and is, therefore, qualified for school employment within the intent of the criminal history record check laws. It is observed that in reaching this decision, the Commissioner had no cause to question the ALJ's assessment of petitioner's credibility, as such assessment is not belied by the record. Moreover, it was the ALJ who had the opportunity to hear petitioner's sworn testimony and observe his demeanor, so that he was in the optimum position to make such determination.

The Commissioner's conclusion herein was also significantly influenced by the large number of Atlantic City school personnel, e.g., high school principal, vice principal, teachers, director of facilities, head custodian, football team coach, and supervisor of adult and community education, who supplied written recommendations for Mr. Pruden attesting to his exemplary good character, praising him highly as a worker, and urging that he has been fully rehabilitated.

The Commissioner does find it necessary, however, to elaborate on and clarify a comment of the ALJ made on page 6 of the initial decision wherein he states "The position of custodian is one which has a tenuous relationship at best in respect to interacting with students." Notwithstanding the fact that the custodial position this petitioner seeks to occupy is not one where the incumbent has direct involvement with students in that he is responsible for their care, supervision or instruction, the Commissioner has been consistently mindful that such a position nevertheless affords an individual significant and otherwise unsupervised access to children, a consideration which must not be minimized when examining rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The within petitioner is deemed qualified for school employment as a custodian.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF SPRING LAKE HEIGHTS

Thomas Isherwood, Esq., for petitioner (Magee, Pagano and Isherwood, attorneys)

Francis J. Campbell, Esq., for respondent (Kalac, Newman, Lavender & Campbell, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 29, 1996 Decided: February 1, 1996

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

A defeated candidate for school board membership alleged improprieties and violations of law in an annual school board election.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on May 10, 1995 for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through-13.

The parties conferred at some length with the consent of the judge assigned.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached stipulation indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

3. The settlement will have a salutary effect on the school election process in the district.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings by concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

ANNUAL SCHOOL BOARD ELECTION	:	STATE OF NEW JERSEY OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW OAL DOCKET NO. EDUEL 04713-95S AGENCY REF. NO. 96-4/95
DIST./SPRING LAKE HEIGHTS	:
	:	STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

This matter having been commenced upon petition of Raoul C. Cordeaux pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18 A:14-63.12 alleging violations of statutorily prescribed procedures for school elections, and the parties having conducted discovery relative to the annual school election of the Borough of Spring Lake Heights held on April 18, 1995 and having agreed upon a resolution of the matters in controversy between them, it is hereby stipulated and agreed as follows:

1. During the election campaign of the Spring Lake Heights School Board, student information and mailing materials were utilized for distribution of partisan literature pertaining to the campaign.

2. The annual school election conducted on April 18, 1995, entailed significant problems and difficulties in permitting all voters wishing to vote to cast their ballots. Such problems were largely due to an unprecedented number of voters attempting to vote at the annual school election, resulting in crowded conditions at the polling place and long waits for persons wishing to cast their votes. The following conditions are noted as having contributed to the problems at the polling place or evidence the confusion which occurred:

(a) Although the election campaign was actively contested and a larger than customary voter turnout was expected, the polls were open only during the minimum permissible hours of 5:00 p.m. and 9:00 p.m.

(b) Only two voting machines at one polling place were provided for five (5) voting districts.

(c) The Board possesses no copies of Certificates of Qualification for the election officials serving in the April 18, 1995 School Board Election.

(d) The voting procedure utilized in the April 18, 1995 election had voters receive and sign their voting authorities first, then go to a table where there was maintained the Signature Copy Register and the Poll List for their voting district and thereafter sign the Poll List, whereas in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18 A:14-50,51, voters are required to enter their name and address on the Poll List, to be compared with the voter's signature in the Signature Copy Register and then receive the appropriate voting authority.

(c) Several elderly and disabled voters reported inconvenience and hardship relative to the ease of access to the polling place.

(f) Several irregularities appeared in the election documents, including poll lists and voting authorities and in the post election handling of such documents as described and set forth in the June 27, 1995 letter of the County School Business Administrator of the Department of Education. Same is annexed hereto as Exhibit "A" and is incorporated herein.

(g) The Poll List submitted to the County School Business Administrator after the election exhibits several instances where signatures were entered for two individuals in the same handwriting and at least two instances where the Poll List numbers do not correspond to the number of the signature authority issued to those voters.

(h) A recount of the votes cast in the election was conducted at the request of petitioner, and the result of that recount was reported in the Decision of the Commissioner of Education, dated August 14, 1995. A copy of said Decision is annexed hereto as Exhibit "B" and is incorporated herein.

WHEREAS, the parties acknowledge and agree that the diffculties encountered by many voters at the annual school election conducted on April 18, 1995 could erode the confidence of the public in the school election process, and

WHEREAS, the parties stipulate and agree that no official misconduct occurred at the annual school election and the parties are satisfied that there is no evidence that any election official improperly attempted to affect the outcome of the 1995 school election, the parties further stipulate as follows:

I. The petitioner hereby agrees to withdraw the petition filed in this matter, with prejudice, in consideration of the terms and conditions expressed herein.

II. The Board will consider the adoption of policies that address the following concerns in future elections:

(A) Limitation of access to any information or materials concerning past or present students in the district, to school personnel or parent support organizations/ groups for school purposes only;

(B) Avoidance of inconvenience and delays to voters by pre-election consideration of the number and location of polling places for each election and the appropriateness of providing additional voting machines;

(C) Avoidance of hardship and inconvenience to disabled and elderly voters by consideration in the selection of voting places and by procedures at such polling places for identification of elderly or disabled voters attempting to enter polling places and by assistance to such voters in registering their votes. The Board shall also consider difficulties which parents of young children have when attempting to vote. Finally the Board will consider appropriate procedures to alert voters of the availability of any aid or assistance in the voting process.

(D) The need that the election officials who will serve in elections shall have previously been trained and certified in the operation of the voting machines and in their duties at the election place in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:14-6.1, and the appropriateness of maintaining in Board's records copies of the Certificate of Qualification of each voting official.

III. The Board will further address proposed policies designed to help facilitate the school election process in the Borough of Spring Lake Heights and the concerns outlined in the memorandum from Special Counsel dated August 16, 1995 (Exhibit "C") and will adopt or amend appropriate policies to effect a reasonable accommodation of the voting public at future school elections in a fashion that is legal, efficient and appropriate. The consideration of appropriate policies to be adopted by the Board of Education shall not be limited to issues addressed in the memorandum of August 16, 1995.

Based on the terms and conditions stipulated by the parties as set forth herein, the petitioner voluntarily withdraws his petition filed in this matter challenging the annual school election conducted on April 18, 1995, and joins the respondent Board of Education in a request that the election results of the April 18, 1995 annual school election conducted in the School District of the Borough of Spring Lake Heights be ratified and confirmed by the Commissioner of Education.

DATED: 31 JANUARY 1996

Bruce R. Campbell
BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, A.L.J.

The undersigned counsel represent that the terms and conditions of the settlement stipulated herein are dispositive of all issues in controversy and they hereby consent to form and entry of the Stipulation of Settlement. The parties also request that judgment be issued in an initial decision incorporating the terms set forth in this Stipulation of Settlement and approving the same.

Dear Mr. Cordeaux:

As I advised you via our telephone conversation, the original sealed ackage received from the district after the election contained 376 of the stub part of the two-part voting authorities; none of the signature part were in that envelope.

Since it was apparent that my office did not receive all parts of all the voting authorities from this election, I spoke with Mrs. Amabile, the district's board secretary. She indicated to me that there may have been a package which had not been sent and that she would see that it was delivered to my office when it was located.

A package containing 368 of the stub part and 745 of the signature part of the used two-part voting authorities from this election was delivered two days later, June 8th; it was not sealed. Since the signature part of the voting authority verifies the poll list signatures, I must conclude that a total of 743 (745 less 2 voids) voted in this election.

The voting authority numbers of the two voting authorities which were voided were #365 and #736. Voting authority #365 displays a very different name and signature than is displayed on the poll list under that number; perhaps this is why it was voided. Voting authority #736 is not listed at all on the poll list.

Ex A

Although the signature part of the voting authorities indicates that 745 individuals voted in this election, there were only 739 clean signatures on the poll lists (740 if you include a signature which has a line drawn through it and is included in the signed voting authorities). The form A33 Regular/Combined Statement of Result of School Election signed and submitted by the election workers at the polls indicated that there were 742 ballots counted and 2 ballots voided.

These documents are part of the official record of this election and as such are available for inspection to anyone who has an interest in them. As official records, however, I cannot permit them to be removed from this office unless so ordered by the court. If, for any reason, you would be interested in reviewing them, please do not hesitate to contact my office to make an appointment at your convenience.

Very truly yours,

Barbara A. Pieszczynski

Exhibit "B"

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL SCHOOL :
ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL DISTRICT : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF SPRING LAKE : DECISION
HEIGHTS, MONMOUTH COUNTY. :

The announced results of the balloting for two (2) members of the Board of Education for full terms of three (3) years each at the annual school election held on April 18, 1995 in the School District of the Borough of Spring Lake Heights were as follows:

Three-Year Term

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Theresa Styslinger Casagrande	398	62	460
Susan Ciallella	338	56	392*
Raoul C. Cordeaux	341	49	390
Annette Kohler-Smith	320	51	371

*This tally is given as reported on the Combined Statement of Result, and may be attributed to either an error in recording the at-poll tally or an error in addition; in either case, the outcome of the election was not affected by the error.

The announced results of the balloting for one (1) member of the Board of Education for an unexpired term of two (2) years at the annual school election held on April 18, 1995 in the School District of the Borough of Spring Lake Heights were as follows:

Two-Year Term

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Colette Hayes-Labruto	276	53	329
Vernon L. Henderson	227	25	252
Eileen Eilenberger	169	34	203

Ex B

Pursuant to a letter request from Raoul C. Cordeaux dated April 19, 1995, the Commissioner directed his representative from the Office of the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools to conduct a recount of machine ballots cast for members of the Board for three-year terms pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.2. The machine recount was conducted on May 15, 1995 at the Monmouth County Voting Machine Warehouse in Freehold. A request for a recount of absentee ballots was made to Superior Court pursuant to N.J.S.A. 19:57-24, and the recount was eventually conducted on August 3, 1995.

On recount, the results of the election were as follows:

Three-Year Term

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Theresa Styslinger Casagrande	398	62	460
Susan Ciallella	336	56	392
Raoul C. Cordeaux	341	49	390
Annette Kohler-Smith	320	51	371

*Two-Year Term

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Colette Hayes-Labruto	276	53	329
Vernon L. Henderson	227	25	252
Eileen Eilenberger	169	34	203

*No separate request was made for a recount of ballots cast for the two-year seat. However, these ballots were recounted as part of the proceedings initiated by Mr. Cordeaux and are accordingly reported herein.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts as his own the findings and conclusions therein.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that, as originally announced, Theresa Styslinger Casagrande and Susan Ciallella were elected to full terms of three years each, and Colette Hayes-Labruto to an unexpired term of two years, on the Board of Education of the Borough of Spring Lake Heights.

The Commissioner further directs that a copy of this decision be forwarded to the Office of Administrative Law for inclusion in the record of the inquiry presently pending into the conduct of the above-captioned election.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

TO: Evelyn Condello, President

FROM: Francis J. Campbell, Special Counsel

RE: Recommendations to improve the school election process

DATE: August 16, 1995

* * * * *

You indicated to me that you would like the Board of Education to address a plan for improving the school election process. As you and Board Secretary Suzanne Amabile explained to me, there were some problems experienced during the school election that took place on April 18, 1995. As I understand it, these procedural problems were largely unanticipated because school elections in Spring Lake Heights had run rather smoothly in the past.

It seems that the election held in 1995 had unprecedented interest and participation on the part of the voters of the Borough because a majority of board seats were to be filled in this year's election.

As I recall, the most significant problems experienced at the annual school election were the following:

1. Because of the relatively large turn out, voters had to wait on line for relatively long periods of time before they could cast their votes.

2. Complaints were heard that poll workers were not as familiar with election procedures as they should be. This fact slowed up the voting process.

Ex C

3. Some voters complained that electioneering was actually taking place at the polls or in the immediate vicinity of the Spring Lake Heights School.

4. The actual time that the polls were open for the annual school election in Spring Lake Heights (from 5:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m.) was too short to accommodate the number of voters who came to vote.

5. Too few voting machines were provided for the number of votes cast in the four-hour election time.

Most of the answers to the questions raised in the problems cited above, are contained in the school elections statutes that appear in N.J.S.A. 18A:14-1 et seq. These statutes provide the School Board with authority to address these concerns.

Because you posed the question to me regarding the appropriate timing for the Board to address the concerns with the school election procedures, I want to assure you that I have no strategic objection to these concerns being addressed by the Board of Education, even though the school election challenge filed by an unsuccessful candidate for election to the School Board is still pending.

I have outlined below a list of recommended changes to the school election procedures which the Board should consider. Some of the listed changes are the same as those that you discussed with me. Others are new recommendations or variations on some of the ideas that you or the Board Secretary expressed to me.

Recommendations

1. Extending school election polling hours from 3:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. should go a long way to help accommodate the increased number of voters.

2. Holding school elections in two locations at the Spring Lake Heights Elementary School (e.g. two machines in the library and two machines in the gymnasium) may greatly accelerate the speed with which voters can be processed at the polling places.

3. The Board of Education has the authority pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-4.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:14-5 to establish polling places at a location other than at the Spring Lake Heights Elementary School. Another public building located on the other side of the Borough would be an optimum site for making voting more convenient to the electorate. It seems to me that at least two different polling places within the Borough should be established for every annual school election or any special school election.

4. N.J.S.A. 18A:14-4 specifically charges the Board of Education with considering polling places that are accessible to elderly and physically disabled persons. Any efforts that the Board of Education can implement in that regard would be helpful to encouraging greater participation by many voters.

5. N.J.S.A. 18A:14-6.1 specifically provides that election officials are to be instructed prior to the annual school election. I know that the Monmouth County Board of Elections conducts instructional classes for poll workers. There is no question that the instruction provided is quite helpful to having poll workers understand the election process and how things should run at the polling places on election day.

6. The Board should ensure that it is paying its poll workers enough money pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-8, so that the Board can recruit a sufficient number of qualified poll workers, especially if the Board decides to increase the number of machines and the number of polling places where the school election will be conducted in the future.

7. The Board should be able to obtain some paper or cardboard signs from the Monmouth County Clerk of Elections' office which will read that electioneering is prohibited within 100 feet of any polling place on election day. A number of those types of signs could be obtained from that office at the time of the general election in November. The Board could then have the signs posted around the parking lot of the school and in the school vicinity on the date of the annual school election. They could also be posted at any other designated polling place. In addition, N.J.S.A. 18A:14-46 prohibits electioneering in the building in which the election is being conducted and that statute specifically empowers poll workers to take action to prevent such electioneering from occurring at the polls.

8. On the annual school election day the signature copy registers containing the signatures of all registered voters are sent to the particular polling places. Those books are used for comparison of the signature of the person wishing to cast his or her vote with the signature that the voter makes on the polling list pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-48, or on the voting authority slip, which is signed by voters using voting machines pursuant to N.J.S.A. 19:52-2.1. That process ensures the integrity of the school election by providing verification that only registered voters are permitted to vote. Also, if any voter has obtained an absentee ballot, that fact is documented on the voter's signature page so that he cannot also cast a machine vote at the same school election.

It seems to me that by providing longer polling hours and additional locations for more voting machines, the Board of Education will be taking action that will greatly increase the accommodation of the voters of the Borough of Spring Lake Heights. The expense that any or all of the recommendations cited above would entail would be minimal, especially in consideration of the greater participation that would be encouraged on the part of the electorate.

If you have any questions about the recommendations contained in this memorandum or if you would like me to appear at the Board meeting where this issue may be discussed, in order to answer any questions or to participate in the Board's discussion of this proposed plan, please let me know and I will be more than happy to assist the Board in any way that I can.

HEIGHTS, MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

The record and initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

The Commissioner approves the settlement terms and adopts the settlement as the final decision in this matter. Such approval, however, is contingent upon Term II(A) being interpreted and applied in a manner which complies with the express provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.1 et. seq., regarding pupil records, and upon the understanding that nothing in the settlement agreement shall act to impede or contravene newly enacted law governing school elections, P.L. 1995, c. 278.

The matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement as clarified herein.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, nontenured teacher of mathematics, alleged he was arbitrarily and wrongfully denied a fourth-year employment contract and, therefore, denied tenure.

ALJ concluded that the Board's determination not to renew petitioner's employment did not exceed the reasonable use of the Board's broad discretionary authority and that petitioner failed to demonstrate any reason why this determination should be overturned. Moreover, the ALJ concluded that the Board discharged its responsibilities under N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2, and petitioner, by rejecting the two dates offered by the Board, effectively waived his right to an informal appearance before the Board.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Petition was dismissed.

BEFORE MARY ANN BURGESS, ALJ t/a

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

During the 1994-95 school year, John Getz was a third-year non-tenured teacher in the North Hunterdon-Voorhees regional school district. At its meeting of April 4, 1995, the Board of Education, based on the recommendation of its Superintendent, Charles J. Murphy, voted to deny John Getz a fourth year employment contract and tenure in the school district. In accordance with

New Jersey law, Mr. Getz was provided with a written Statement of Reasons for this decision. However, Mr. Getz's informal appearance before the Board of Education, originally scheduled for May 10, 1995, never occurred. In the present matter, John Getz challenges these actions taken by the North Hunterdon-Voorhees Board of Education.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 23, 1995, John Getz filed a Petition before the Commissioner of Education. At the same time, he moved for emergent relief seeking the vacation of the Board's decision not to grant him a fourth year employment contract. In the alternative, the petitioner sought: (a) to restrain the Board from hiring a teacher to replace him; (b) to order the Board to issue a written statement of reasons for its decision not to re-employ him and (c) to schedule an informal appearance during the week of June 5, 1995.

The Board of Education filed its Answer on May 30, 1995. At the same time, the Board opposed the motion for emergent relief while filing its own motion to dismiss the present petition. The Board filed an Amended Answer on June 5, 1995.

By letter dated June 6, 1995, Commissioner of Education Leo Klagholz denied the motion for emergent relief finding petitioner failed to establish the standards for emergent relief set forth in Crowe v. De Gioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). Commissioner Klagholz also denied the Board's motion to dismiss by transmitting the Getz matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case.

A prehearing conference, conducted herein on August 25, 1995, resulted in an Order dated September 8, 1995. Included therein as the issues to be resolved were:

1. Whether the Board of Education complied with the legal requirements of providing John Getz with (a) a written statement of reasons for non-reemployment and (b) with the opportunity for an informal appearance before it;

2. Whether John Getz effectively waived his entitlement to an informal appearance before the Board of Education.

A Substitution of Attorney, on behalf of petitioner was filed with the Office of Administrative Law on September 19, 1995. Telephone conferences were conducted herein on November 15 and December 4, 1995 concerning various discovery issues. A stipulation was reached during the December 4, 1995 conference amending the Statement of Issues contained in the Prehearing Order as follows:

1. Did the Board of Education act unreasonably, arbitrarily or capriciously in not granting John Getz a fourth year employment contract and therefore denying him tenure?

2. Did John Getz effectively waive his right to an appearance before the Board of Education?

The administrative hearing in this matter was conducted on December 14 and 15, 1995. Prior to the commencement of the hearing, counsel stipulated to a series of correspondence between petitioner's prior counsel and respondent's counsel concerning the issue of whether there was a waiver of petitioner's right to appear before the Board. Upon the conclusion of testimony, both counsel presented oral summations. The record in this matter was held open until December 22, 1995 to receive all exhibits including those stipulated to by counsel.

SUMMARY OF TESTIMONY

The first witness called on behalf of petitioner was his father, Edward Getz. The senior Mr. Getz testified that he is a Certified Public Accountant, a resident of Lebanon Township and was a member of the respondent Board of Education from 1966 through 1975.

At about 7:30, on the morning of April 5, 1995, as he was going out to open his garage door, Mr. Getz testified that he saw the car of Philip Evans. The witness stated that he knew Mr. Evans, then a member of the respondent Board of Education, for approximately eighteen years. Mr. Evans stopped his car and shouted to Mr. Getz, "What do you think?" Mr. Getz stated that he understood that Mr. Evans was referring to the previous night's Board meeting which resulted in the denial of tenure to his son, John. In response, Mr. Getz asked Mr. Evans why he had abstained from voting on John's contract. When Mr. Evans stated that he had a conflict of interest, Mr. Getz asked what it was. Mr. Evans explained that Mr. Getz had done his income tax returns for many years.

According to Mr. Getz, Mr. Evans then stated that since North Hunterdon-Voorhees had been considered a dysfunctional Board, the members decided to support the new Superintendent on this issue. When pressed to disclose what was really behind the decision, Mr. Getz recalled that Mr. Evans stated that the Board wanted to give notice to the union that it was going to play hardball. This witness further remembered Mr. Evans saying that if Nancy Dontzin, the head of the teachers union, had not been running the district for years, this would not have happened to John. It was Mr. Getz's understanding that his son was simply a pawn in the struggle between the union and the Board.

On cross-examination, Mr. Getz explained that he and Mr. Evans were neighbors and that he had acted as Mr. Evan's accountant until four years ago. Mr. Getz estimated that his conversation with Mr. Evans lasted approximately fifteen minutes. Following this conversation, Mr. Getz telephoned his son's attorney and then faxed him some notes. Although this witness did not have the faxed document with him, he testified that it is still in existence and that he would produce it before the conclusion of the hearing.

When questioned about interrogatories served upon the petitioner, Mr. Getz stated that he had no involvement in the preparation of the answers but had only looked at them briefly three weeks earlier. This witness further testified that he did not know there were interrogatories concerning his conversation with Mr. Evans. With regard to that conversation, Mr. Getz conceded that Mr. Evans did not admit that the Board was dysfunctional but only that it was accused of being so. Mr. Getz also acknowledged that Mr. Evans never said to him that the denial of John's contract "had nothing to do with John; was not personal . . .". Rather, that was how the senior Mr. Getz recalled and understood the conversation with Mr. Evans.

With regard to Dr. Murphy, Mr. Getz testified that he had never met the new superintendent nor communicated with him over the telephone. Mr. Getz stated he had heard that there were not many applicants for the position since most superintendents did not want to give up tenure for a contract. This witness also conceded that Mr. Evans had never said that Dr.

Murphy had been brought in to break the union. When showed the supplemental answers to interrogatories which set forth:

> Phil Evans stated to Ed. Getz on April 5, 1995 that Murphy was brought in to break the union. (R-1)

Mr. Getz admitted that he had not read the material carefully.

This witness was also questioned as to allegations in his son's Petition that Board member William Clark" . . . had a long standing feud with Mr. Getz's father arising from Mr. Getz's many years on the Board . . . which resulted in many conflicts." Petition, para 19. Mr. Getz acknowledged that he had never served on the Board at the same time as Mr. Clark; indeed, he had never met Mr. Clark. This witness testified that he had no knowledge of a feud with Mr. Clark and does not know how this information came to he included in his son's Petition which was filed before the Commissioner of Education. Mr. Getz also stated that although he may have glanced at the petition, he had never read it.

The senior Mr. Getz was later recalled to identify the handwritten notes which he faxed to his son's former attorney, Glenn Williams (R-15).[1]

The next witness called was petitioner, John Getz, who testified that he was first employed by the North Hunterdon-Voorhees regional school district in 1989 as a substitute teacher and coach. While working in this capacity, he finished his education as a mathematics major at Rutgers. Mr. Getz testified that he continued working at North Hunterdon-Voorhees through January 1992, when he left to fulfill his student teaching requirement in the Bridgewater school district. When he completed this requirement, he was appointed as a long term substitute in mathematics on May 6, 1982. Mr. Getz testified that he is certified as a teacher of mathematics.

Mr. Getz testified that he was hired full-time for the 1992-93 school year; his first contract year for the purpose of the present matter. During that year, he taught algebra, basic skills and coached football, wrestling and track/field at Voorhees High School. The petitioner was thereafter offered a contract for the 1993-94 school year as a part-time mathematics teacher. Mr. Getz explained that since he had the least seniority, he was given a partial load of three classes during the first semester. During the second semester of that school year, Mr. Getz returned to full-time status as a mathematics teacher in Voorhees High School. During this school year, he continued as coach of football, wrestling and track and field. During the summer of 1994, Mr. Getz worked in the Board sponsored summer fitness program and worked in the Voorhees weight room. Mr. Getz testified that he was offered his third employment contract for the 1994-95 school year as a full-time mathematics teacher and coach of football and track/field.

With regard to his evaluations, petitioner stated that during his three years at Voorhees High School, Jean Beavers was his supervisor in Mathematics while Ernest Kovacs was interim principal at Voorhees High during the 1994-95 school year. This witness identified the "Tenure Recommendation" made by Mr. Kovacs to Mary Majewski, the head of personnel for the school district (P-1). In this memorandum, Mr. Kovacs recommended that ". . . John Getz be granted tenure in the North Hunterdon-Voorhees High School District." (P-1). Mr. Getz thereafter identified the March 2, 1995 Evaluation Report Form prepared by Jean Beavers (P-2). Ms. Beavers concluded therein that the lesson presented by Mr. Getz ". . . meets the expectations of our third year non-tenured teachers." (P-2).

Despite Mr. Kovacs' positive recommendation and Ms. Beavers' positive evaluation, Mr. Getz learned that he was not being recommended for tenure. On March 23, 1995, the petitioner met with Dr. Murphy to discuss the evaluation form prepared by him (R-4). Mr. Getz testified that he did not agree with the evaluation because he did not believe it reflected what took place in his classroom. Following this initial evaluation by Dr. Murphy, the petitioner was evaluated by Dr. Murphy on April 11, 1995 and May 25, 1995. Following each, Mr. Getz met with Dr. Murphy to discuss his evaluations.

Upon learning that he would not be awarded tenure, petitioner requested a written Statement of Reasons. This request resulted in a memorandum from Dr. Murphy to Mr. Getz, dated April 27, 1995, which set forth the reasons why he was not recommended for tenure (P-3). Mr. Getz testified in great detail concerning his disagreement with each of the reasons articulated by Dr. Murphy. The first reason given by Dr. Murphy was that Mr. Getz failed to meet the district's standard of excellence in the area of planning. Responding to this reason, the petitioner pointed to the January 11, 1995 evaluation prepared by Jean Beavers in which she noted among Mr. Getz's strengths "Teacher preparation" (P-6). Mr. Getz further testified that he planned his lessons and complied with school instructions with regard to lesson plans.

The second reason given for not awarding Mr. Getz tenure was his failure to meet the district's standard of excellence in the area of organization. Once again petitioner pointed to the January 11, 1995 evaluation by Jean Beavers in which she noted among Mr. Getz's strengths 'Classroom organization" (P-6). This witness also noted that in his February 28, 1995 evaluation, Ernest Kovacs listed "Lesson Organization" as one of his strengths (P-8). Mr. Getz further testified that he did not recall ever being told he was lacking in organizational skills.

Addressing his next noted deficiency in the area of "Structuring" (P-3), Mr. Getz stated that he had never been criticized for failure to properly structure lessons by anyone but Dr. Murphy. With regard to his noted deficiency in the area of "Expectations for Students", Mr. Getz testified that in her June 10, 1994 evaluation, Jean Beavers observed that petitioner "Explores student expectations" (P-4). Mr. Getz further stated that he had a very good relationship with his students and that there were very positive student reactions in his classes. As to his noted failure in the area of "Student Involvement", Mr. Getz testified that Jean Beavers, in her June 10, 1994 evaluation, observed that the petitioner "Absolutely!" involved students in his lesson (P-4). Similarly, in her November 14, 1994 evaluation, Jean Beavers listed as one of Mr. Getz's strengths, "Student involvement" (P-5).

In his memorandum, Dr. Murphy also set forth Mr. Getz's failure in the area of "Use of material" (P-3). Responding to this criticism, Mr. Getz again pointed to Jean Beavers' June 10, 1994 evaluation in which she noted that petitioner "identifies and sets-up special resources for the lesson" and that he ". . . has made use of the computers (P-4). Mr. Getz also testified that, Ernest Kovacs, in his February 28, 1995 evaluation, stated that the "Level of material was appropriate for the students". In this same evaluation, Mr. Kovacs observed that Mr. Getz demonstrated "Strong classroom management skills" contrary to Dr. Murphy's observation that petitioner is deficient in the area of "Timing and Time Management" (P-7 and P-3).

Petitioner next addressed Dr. Murphy's statement that he failed to meet the district's standards in the area of "Techniques" (P-3). Mr. Getz testified that in her June 10, 1994 evaluation, Jean Beavers observed that petitioner "Includes a variety of instructional techniques in planning". Ms. Beavers also "commended" Mr. Getz "for his ability to do this daily" (P-4).

The final deficiency listed by Dr. Murphy was in the area of "Closure" (P-3). Mr. Getz testified that Dr. Murphy had discussed this comment with him. Dr. Murphy explained that at the end of the class, a summary should be given of what took place during the class. It was petitioner's understanding that his end-of-class summary of one minute was too short. It should have been between two and three minutes in duration. Mr. Getz stated that he did not recall previous criticism concerning closure of his classes.

Petitioner admitted that during his three years of employment in the North Hunterdon-Voorhees school district, he was given a number of suggestions for improvement as noted in Dr. Murphy's April 27, 1995 memorandum to him (P-3). However, Mr. Getz testified that there was never any follow-up with regard to his failure to comply with these suggestions. Petitioner stated that Dr. Murphy gave him no explanation of the categories of deficiencies listed in the Statement of Reasons (P-3).

Mr. Getz testified that he was generally aware of a series of correspondence between his previous attorney, Glenn Williams and Board counsel, David Rand (J-1 through J-15). Specifically, Mr. Getz knew that the Board had scheduled an informal appearance for him on May 10, 1995 and that his counsel had requested an adjournment. Petitioner confirmed that he has never had his informal appearance before the North Hunterdon-Voorhees Board of Education.

Upon cross examination, Mr. Getz testified that he continues to seek an informal appearance before the Board. The petitioner acknowledged that within a week of first requesting an appearance before the Board, he was offered one. Mr. Getz confirmed that he was notified by his principal and also by letter of the appearance scheduled for him on May 10, 1995. He also recalled that it was his former counsel, Glenn Williams, who requested an adjournment of that date. It was the petitioner's understanding that Mr. Williams had other obligations and that certain witnesses were not available on that date. Although Mr. Getz knew his counsel requested his appeareance not he scheduled before May 22, 1995, he did not know why that date was chosen (J-7). This witness further confirmed that the Board denied the request to adjourn the May 10, 1995 hearing and reschedule it for the last week in May. However, the Board did offer to reschedule the hearing for June 22, 1995 or any date thereafter. Mr. Getz stated that he would still he employed by the Board on June 22, since his contract with the Board would not expire until June 30, 1995. Therefore, petitioner conceded that he had the opportunity for an informal appearance on either May 10, 1995, or during the period immediately following June 22, and that he took advantage of neither opportunity. Mr. Getz denied that he wanted his appearance while school was in session so it could attract the largest crowd and the greatest public outcry. Mr. Getz did acknowledge that following his non-renewal, two student demonstrations took place at Voorhees high school. The first occurred on April 5, 1995 when the entire student body of approximately 700 students left their classrooms and congregated in the gym. On April 6, 1995, Mr. Getz estimated that between 200 and 300 students walked out and refused to go to class. The petitioner agreed that if his informal appearance were held in early June 1995, it could cause further student demonstrations and might interfere with the Voorhees high school graduation ceremonies.

With regard to his education, Mr. Getz testified that he completed his degree requirements at Rutgers University in five years, graduating in June 1992. Petitioner, therefore, worked for the North Hunterdon-Voorhees school district as both a coach and substitute teacher before receiving his degree. Mr. Getz testified that he did not specifically take courses at Rutgers in test and measurement but that the importance of developing appropriate devices to measure achievement was discussed in various courses.

Petitioner acknowledged that the secretaries at Voorhees high school told him that Dr. Murphy had pulled his schedule. Although it crossed his mind that Dr. Murphy would come to observe and evaluate him, he did not think it would happen. On March 22, 1995, Dr. Murphy did come to Mr. Getz's freshman Honors Geometry class, a forty minute period from 10:19 through 10:59. Mr. Getz was in his classroom when Dr. Murphy arrived before the start of class.

Mr. Getz was specifically questioned concerning the quiz which he gave on March 22, 1995 to his freshman Honors Geometry class, the class observed by Dr. Murphy. The students in this class are superior geometry students; they are better students attuned to geometric concepts. In developing the quiz, Mr. Getz looked to the curriculum and developed an instrument to determine whether his students had mastered the subject matter taught. Mr. Getz denied that if his quiz failed to give students information necessary to answer the questions, that it would he a bad quiz. Petitioner identified R-2 as a copy of the actual test, consisting of four questions, administered by him on March 22, 1995. The first question directed the students:

Find the area of a decagon with perimeter 80 cm.

Mr. Getz conceded he failed to include in this question the fact that the decagon was regular. Without that information, the students would be unable to answer this question. Petitioner acknowledged that his students were confused and asked questions about the first problem. Mr. Getz admitted his failure to include the fact of "regularity" was a mistake, an oversight, an error. He explained that the textbook allows students to assume regularity but that he tells his students not to do so. With regard to the third question, Mr. Getz testified that he omitted a dimension necessary to calculate the area of the segment which appeared on the quiz. The first student who reached this question realized that the radius had been omitted. At this point Mr. Getz provided the missing information. Once again, Mr. Getz conceded that he had not provided information sufficient to answer the third question on the quiz. However, although two of four questions were missing critical information, Mr. Getz contended that the quiz itself was not poor. Petitioner opined that the test was properly constructed since it quizzed students on material covered.

Mr. Getz admitted, however, that because of the problems with the two questions, the quiz took longer than the fifteen minutes allotted to it in his lesson plan. This witness explained that there was some discussion among the students and with him because of the confusion caused by the missing information in questions one and three. Mr. Getz estimated that the quiz took twenty-five minutes rather than the fifteen minutes he had scheduled. He also determined not to count the test because of the confusion surrounding questions one and three. In fact, Mr. Getz did not grade the test because he felt it did not fairly test the students on the material they had been taught.

Once the quiz was completed, Mr. Getz stated that he spent ten to fifteen minutes presenting new material. Petitioner admitted that he rushed the balance of his class and he did not bring closure to it; he did not sum up the newly presently material. In fact, when the bell rang, Mr. Getz was still going over homework with his students. With regard to closure, Mr. Getz acknowledged that Dr. Murphy's evaluation was correct: Petitioner did not properly summarize the newly presented material. Mr. Getz recognized that he has had a problem with lesson pacing and time management which occasionally prevents him from having proper closure of a class. This difficulty was observed by Jean Beavers in her October 28, 1992 evaluation of Mr. Getz wherein she noted:

> Twenty minutes were devoted to six review problems, while the new material was presented in the last four minutes. In the future:
> A) State the objective and activities of the lesson at the beginning of the period.
> B) Set up a timeline to aid in lesson preparation (R-5).

Mr. Getz explained that this evaluation took place during his first year of teaching and that with experience he had made progress in pacing his lessons thereby permitting proper introduction of new material as well as appropriate closure of lessons.

Following his observation, Dr. Murphy met with Mr. Getz to discuss his evaluation. He specifically addressed that portion of the class following the quiz. Dr. Murphy criticized Mr. Getz's presentation, pointing out that there was a lack of connection between the new material and old. Mr. Getz disagreed with Dr. Murphy's comments. Although he did not have a full introduction to the new material, he did have a brief "lead-in". Mr. Getz indicated that he submitted a written "Addendum" or response to Dr. Murphy's evaluation (R-3) and that Dr. Murphy provided him with an answering memorandum dated April 6, 1995 (R-6).

Mr. Getz testified that he was next evaluated by Dr. Murphy on April 11, 1995. As in his prior evaluation, Dr. Murphy was again concerned with the pacing of the class since the petitioner had to close after the bell. Mr. Getz disputed, however, that he taught to the bell. Rather, he stopped teaching before the bell and gave a proper closure after the bell rang. Mr. Getz identified his May 3, 1995 Addendum to Dr. Murphy's evaluation (R-8). Petitioner explained that although Mrs. Dontzin wrote this response, he provided her with the substance.

Dr. Murphy's final evaluation of Mr. Getz occurred on May 25, 1995. His written evaluation noted:

> The lesson observed was not as poor as the first session. I observed, but did not reach the performance of the second.
> Mr. Getz is still performing at the stage that I would expect of a first year teacher. The lessons are still not complete (R-9).

Mr. Getz was next cross-examined as to the substance of the Petition which was filed by him before the Commissioner of Education. Mr. Getz testified that he was involved in drafting this document and that he read the Petition before signing it. He conceded, however, that he had no personal knowledge of a secret meeting of the Board as alleged in Paragraph 14 of the Petition. This witness asserted that Paragraph 14 was based on a conversation between his father and Board member, Philip Evans. Mr. Getz admitted, however, that there was no mention of a secret meeting of the Board in his father's testimony before this tribunal nor in any discovery provided to respondent. Mr. Getz was next asked for the basis of the allegations contained in Paragraph 19 that Board member William Clark may have withheld unfavorable information concerning Dr. Murphy. Petitioner stated that the source of this allegation was a news article and opinion column relating to disciplinary charges filed against a tenured principal in Eastchester, New York in 1984 (R-11 and R-13). In that matter, the New York Commissioner of Education concluded that there was insufficient evidence to sustain the charges against the principal (R-12). Mr. Getz reluctantly conceded that none of the material submitted contained any assertion that Dr. Murphy was responsible for preparing "trumped up" charges against the principal as stated in Paragraph 19 of his Petition. Mr. Getz also acknowledged that Paragraph 19 erroneously attributes an uncomplimentary remark concerning Dr. Murphy to the president of the Board of Education in Glen Cove where Dr. Murphy was employed. Petitioner admits that the remark was made by the president of the Glen Cove Teachers Association. Petitioner also admitted that he had no knowledge that Dr. Murphy knew anything about him before his March 22, 1995 evaluation nor that Dr. Murphy was acting pursuant to any Board agenda.

On redirect, Mr. Getz confirmed that he did not give the Board permission to release information to the public from his personnel records. Petitioner further stated that he first learned of the Board's press release containing this information when he was contacted by a reporter. Mr. Getz further explained that as a result of the student protests, Dr. Murphy agreed to perform additional evaluations of his teaching. The last evaluation occurred on the same day that the Board of Education received a copy of the Petition filed with the Commissioner of Education. Mr. Getz also denied that Ms. Beavers told him that he was to be observed by the new Superintendent of Schools. The Petitioner also gave his view that the purpose of observation and evaluation was to critique a teacher's performance so that the teacher improves his performance.

On re-cross, Mr. Getz denied that by requesting the Board of Education "discuss matters pertaining to my employment in public session", he gave permission for the release of information from his personnel records (R-14).

The respondent commenced its case by calling Jean Beavers who testified that she has been teaching at Voorhees high school for nineteen years. The parties stipulated that during the term of Mr. Getz's employment at Voorhees, Ms. Beavers was his direct supervisor and that she was fully certificated to fulfill her responsibilities in this capacity.

Ms. Beavers testified that responding to Dr. Murphy's request, on Monday, March 20 1995, Mr. Kovacs faxed to the new Superintendent copies of the schedules for non-tenured teachers. This witness stated that she was told to let Mr. Getz know that Dr. Murphy had a copy of his schedule and he would be in to see him. Mr. Kovacs' words were to the effect that "John should dot all his i's."

Ms. Beavers testified that when she met Mr. Getz after the lesson he told her he thought it went well. However, his reaction was quite different when she discussed the lesson with Mr. Getz after his conference with Dr. Murphy. Ms. Beavers agreed with Dr. Murphy's assessment that it was not a good lesson. She told Mr. Getz that if she had seen the same things, she would have written up the evaluation the same way.

Ms. Beavers confirmed that during Mr. Getz's first year at Voorhees, she had a number of concerns about his teaching. Among those concerns were his lack of ability to control his classroom; to pace his lessons; to keep his students in task. She recalled that Mr. Getz was doing a great deal of work instead of involving his students in the process. Because she considered Mr. Getz to be a mediocre teacher, she asked that his position at Voorhees be opened to other candidates. Ms. Beavers related that Mr. Berry, then principal, refused. It was his view that so long as Mr. Getz is "workable" and improved, he would stay. Ms. Beavers also confirmed that Mr. Berry referred to John Getz as "my boy".

This witness testified that Mr. Getz had a good year during the 1993-94 school year, his second at Voorhees high. Ms. Beavers explained that she tried to help him work on his problem areas. To this end, she reviewed his lesson plans every Thursday to insure that he included more activities to keep his students in task. Ms. Beavers kept very close contact with him and with that support, he improved and did a good job.

In the spring of 1994, Ms. Beavers admitted she had a conversation with Mr. Berry during which she expressed her frustrations at efforts to improve the Math Department. It was her impression that although the district speaks of excellence, it does not support it. During this conversation, Ms. Beavers also expressed frustration with the association which, at times, seemed to resist efforts to improve the school.. These remarks, however, were not directed at Mr. Getz, who, at this time, was improving.

On cross-examination, Ms. Beavers could not recall whether she told Mr. Gets directly that he was to be observed by Dr. Murphy or whether she asked Nancy Hodgkins, one of the secretaries, to give him that message. She was certain, however, that he was informed that the new Superintendent would he in to observe him.

With regard to the press release issued by the Board concerning John Getz, Ms. Beavers testified that she saw it minutes after it had been faxed. This witness stated that she gave her information to Dr. Murphy and Board counsel. She acknowledged that she knew there would be a press release but never questioned anyone about the statements in it nor discussed the issue of confidentiality with anyone.

Ms. Beavers confirmed the accuracy of the "Tenure Teacher Annual Performance Report" which she prepared for John Getz in June 1995 (P-9). She further testified that she takes her responsibilities very seriously and never considered withdrawing her observations or evaluations of John Getz.

This witness explained that it was not a regular practice to review the lesson plans of teachers. She had done it during Mr. Getz's second year to assist him with his problems. Ms. Beavers stopped the weekly review during his third year in order to see how Mr. Getz would do on his own. This witness testified that without direct, ongoing supervision, Mr. Getz began to revert, during his third year, to some of his first year mistakes.

On redirect, Ms. Beavers confirmed that the Tenure Teacher Annual Performance Report contained a checklist of items. Her notations on this form merely indicated that Mr. Getz was fulfilling these tasks. The form in no way indicated Mr. Getz's level of competence. The form specifically indicated that he had to work on beginning and ending his class on time and in an orderly fashion and on directing learning activities which involved his students and kept them on task (P-9). Ms. Beavers confirmed that it was her habit to proof Mr. Getz's evaluation tools and suggest corrections to him which he would then incorporate in the test. This witness asserted that a third year teacher should not be in need of such ongoing supervision.

The respondent's next witness was Ernest Kovacs who testified that he was acting principal of Voorhees high school during the 1994-95 school year and, in that capacity, recommended John Getz for tenure. Considering Mr. Getz's overall ability, Mr. Kovacs characterized him as an "average" teacher; an individual who did what was necessary. This witness testified that at no time did he consider Mr. Getz's teaching ability and performance to he anything but average. The other teachers under consideration for tenure, were described by Mr. Kovacs as "above average."

On cross-examination, Mr. Kovacs testified that he did not make the decision lightly to recommend John Getz for tenure. This witness stated that he had discussed Dr. Murphy's observations with him and he was well aware that Dr. Murphy was not pleased with Mr. Getz's performance. With regard to the information contained in the press release, Mr. Kovacs confirmed Ms. Beavers account of their meeting with Dr. Murphy and Board counsel. This witness first knew of the issuance of the press release when shown a copy of it by Ms. Dontzin.

The respondent's third witness was Philip W. Evans who testified that he is a resident of Lebanon Township and has been a member of the North Hunterdon-Voorhees Board of Education for approximately seven years, with a brief interruption, and that he went off the Board in May 1995. This witness estimated that he knew the senior Mr. Getz and his three sons for twenty years. Mr. Evans would pass the Getz home on his way to work.

At the time John Getz was under consideration for tenure, Mr. Evans was a member of the Board. He indicated that since he had had business dealings with Mr. Getz over the years, he had discussed the possibility of a conflict of interest with the Board president and with Dr. Murphy. It was suggested that Mr. Evans abstain from voting on the Getz matter and he followed this advice.

This witness confirmed that the Board voted to deny John Getz tenure at its meeting on Tuesday, April 4, 1995 and that he encountered Edward Getz the following morning at approximately 7:30 a.m. Mr. Evans explained that as he was approaching the Getz house on his way to work, he noticed Edward Getz standing in front of the house staring at him. He decided to stop and speak to Mr. Getz, asking him how he was. M. Getz responded "Not well" and Mr. Evans understood that comment in light of the Board's vote of the previous evening. However, Mr. Evans did not feel at liberty to discuss with Mr. Getz certain aspects of the Board's action. This witness specifically denied that there was any Board meeting, either open or closed, to discuss John Getz before the April 4, meeting.

On cross-examination, Mr. Evans acknowledged that he has served on the Board for sometime with William Clark and that the two socialized occasionally and had discussed the Getz matter outside of Board meetings. This witness specifically recalled discussing the conduct of various members of the public during the April 4, 1995 Board meeting. Although he understood the rights of people to comment at public meetings, he was very surprised by the language used at the April 4 meeting. Mr. Evans described the meeting as tumultuous, that there seemed to be a lack of control. He was disturbed by the number of children present who appeared to he used by their parents at this proceeding. Mr. Evans reiterated that he abstained from voting on the Getz matter because the Board President and Dr. Murphy suggested he should since he might have a conflict of interest. He explained that he sought advice since he thought he might have a conflict. This witness conceded that he did not seek legal advice on this issue.

Mr. Evans was briefly recalled to identify a member of the public who had spoken at the April 4 meeting. This witness testified that he was 99% sure that the individual who held up a copy of John Getz's evaluation at the school Board meeting was William Mammen. When Mr. Mammen was asked whose permission he had to circulate these evaluations, he responded "John Getz."

The fourth and final witness called by respondent Board was its new Superintendent, Charles J. Murphy. This witness testified that he is a resident of West Nyack, New York and that until he assumed his post at North Hunterdon-Voorhees on March 20, 1995, he had been Superintendent of the Glen Cove, New York school system.

Prior to receiving his name from Acting Principal Kovacs, Dr. Murphy had never heard of John Getz and did not know that he was employed in the district. He simply had an idea how many teachers were up for tenure. Before beginning employment in North Hunterdon-Voorhees, he had met with the Board and the members were quite insistent that he personally evaluate each teacher under consideration for tenure. During these meetings, there was no discussion of breaking the union and no one suggested that he get rid of Nancy Dontzin. Dr. Murphy testified he did not recall when he first knew of her. The Board members did not discuss or make any recommendations as to any particular employee.

As soon as he, Dr. Murphy, came to the district, he asked for the names and schedules of the teachers up for tenure. He wanted to observe these teachers as soon as possible because decisions as to tenure had to be made. The "Class of '95", as they were called, was comprised of three teachers at North Hunterdon and two at Voorhees. Dr. Murphy did not direct that the teachers be alerted to his pending visits since he wanted to observe them without notice. Following his observations of this group, Dr. Murphy recommended that four be granted tenure and one, John Getz, not he awarded tenure.

Dr. Murphy testified that he observed Mr. Getz during the morning of March 22, 1995. He arrived before class and looked at the room; he thought it was nicely decorated for a high school classroom. When the students started to come in, they were loud and their teacher settled them down. Mr. Getz announced that they were going to have a quiz; he then gave it out and the children started to take the test. After the class started, Dr. Murphy asked for the planbook explaining that he did not want to be intrusive. In the planbook, Mr. Getz allotted fifteen minutes for the quiz. As the students began taking it, there was whispering and eye contact among them and some started asking questions about the first problem. Mr. Getz then realized that he had failed to include in the first question the fact that the decagon was "regular' and orally supplied that information. As the students progressed to the third problem, they again started asking questions. At that point, Mr. Getz saw that he had neglected to supply the radius and gave the students that information. Because of the confusion surrounding the first and third questions, the quiz consumed twenty-five minutes of a forty minute period rather than the fifteen minutes allotted for it. Dr. Murphy testified that he also had problems with the manner in which the test was administered. The students who turned in the papers first conversed among themselves even though others were still working on the quiz.

After all the papers were handed in, the students started asking Mr. Getz whether the quiz would count. Petitioner indicated that he would probably change the point structure since he didn't want "to kill." At that point, Mr. Getz started writing the aim for the day on the blackboard -- the formulas he planned to present to the class. He tried to get the children interested but there was no tie-in; they were not motivated. He continued writing on the board and lecturing; there was very little dialogue between the teacher and students. Mr. Getz gave the homework assignment and the bell rang. Dr. Murphy observed that there was no effort to pull the lesson together.

After the class, Dr. Murphy testified that he did not have a conversation with Mr. Getz but went downstairs to Mr. Kovacs' office. There he contacted the Board attorney to find out what New Jersey law was concerning the grant of tenure. This witness confirmed that he did have a face-to-face conversation with Mr. Kovacs and Ms. Beavers before meeting with Mr. Getz. He demanded to know how this kind of situation had developed. What he saw in Mr. Getz's classroom was the performance of a first year teacher. He was told that the district always dealt with "satisfactory." In Dr. Murphy's opinion "satisfactory" is a "C"; it is just getting by. A third year teacher should be an "A." "B," or "B-" depending on growth potential. Dr. Murphy was of the opinion that Mr. Getz did not meet that standard.

On March 23, 1995, Dr. Murphy met with Mr. Getz in his office. He began the conference by asking the petitioner how he thought the class went. Mr. Getz responded "O.K." Dr. Murphy then discussed each part of the class including the test. Dr. Murphy could not recall Mr. Getz's response to his criticism concerning the errors in two of the four questions on the quiz. Mr. Getz did not mention that the Superintendent's presence had disrupted his class. It was Dr. Murphy's opinion that it had not. Dr. Murphy testified that Mr. Getz returned a signed copy of his evaluation on March 28, 1995 (P-4).

On March 29, 1995, Mr. Getz was informed that his employment for the 1995-96 school year would be considered at the April 4, 1995, Board meeting. Mr. Getz requested that his employment be discussed in public session (R-10). Dr. Murphy testified that the were no prior meetings to discuss Mr. Getz's employment; that there were no discussions how the Board would act when discussing Mr. Getz; that he, Dr. Murphy, had made his decision concerning Mr. Getz on his own and that no Board member suggested it to him.

At the April 4, 1995 Board meeting Dr. Murphy made his recommendation that Mr. Getz not receive a fourth year contract and thus not be granted tenure. The Board voted in accordance with its Superintendent's recommendation. Dr. Murphy described this action as very controversial. There were a large number of speakers who addressed the Board in Mr. Getz's behalf some of whom appeared to have copies of his evaluations.

Dr. Murphy testified that he observed Mr. Getz for a second time later in April. Mr. Getz implemented some of the suggestions which the Superintendent had made during his March 23 conference. The petitioner wrote the aim on the blackboard, his lesson plan and materials were better and he moved around the classroom giving help. However, it was Dr. Murphy's opinion that he still had major problems. He did not make smooth transitions; his timing was poor; he did not get everything in and he was unable to give a summary or closure to the lesson before the bell rang. He did try to give a quick summary after the bell rang but by that time he had lost his students who were already packing up and moving on to the next class.

The third and final observation was conducted by Dr. Murphy on May 25, 1995. On that day, Mr. Getz had a better lesson plan, the aim of the class was on the board, as well as a "Do Now" assignment for the students to work on as they came in to the classroom and he developed his lesson from homework. However, Mr. Getz's problems remained. His timing was not satisfactory, there was insufficient follow-through and he did not involve his students in a variety of activities to keep their interest and to keep them on track.

Dr. Murphy, based on his own observations and evaluations and from his discussions with Mr. Kovacs and Ms. Beavers, gave his opinion that Mr. Getz did not meet the minimum requirements for tenure in the North Hunterdon-Voorhees school district. Dr. Murphy testified that he continues to maintain that opinion.

On cross-examination, Dr. Murphy explained that he made his tenure recommendation based on Mr. Getz's performance on May 22, 1995. He did not consider the performance of his students. Student performance is not entirely based on teacher instruction. Sometimes students will "act up" when a supervisor is in the room if they do not like the teacher or, conversely, be on good behavior to help a teacher they like.

Dr. Murphy acknowledged that after observing Mr. Getz he called Board counsel to find out what his options were under New Jersey law. He conceded that he was rather angry when he met with Mr. Kovacs and Ms. Beavers and communicated his displeasure to them. With regard to these two individuals, Dr. Murphy explained that it is his responsibility to evaluate Mr. Kovacs while Mr. Kovacs evaluates Ms. Beavers.

Finally, Dr. Murphy reiterated that at the April 4, 1995, Board meeting he had observed members of the public with copies of records from Mr. Getz's personnel file. Dr. Murphy explained that he knew this material was from Mr. Getz's file because some members of the public read from Mr. Getz's evaluations when addressing the Board. Since Dr. Murphy was new to the district, he was unable to identify, by name, the individuals who had copies of Mr. Getz's records. It was also Dr. Murphy's recollection that when the students walked out of class on April 5 or 6, 1995, some were holding copies of Mr. Getz's evaluations. Dr. Murphy did not know how the students came into possession of this material.

FINDINGS OF FACTS

Having carefully considered the testimony of the witnesses presented by both the petitioner and the respondent, and having had the opportunity to view the demeanor of those witnesses as they gave their testimony, and having fully reviewed the exhibits entered into evidence herein, I FIND the following:

1. John Getz was first employed in 1989 by the North Hunterdon-Voorhees Regional High School District as a substitute teacher and coach. He continued in this capacity until May 1992 when he received his degree from Rutgers - the State University. He thereafter received his certificate as a teacher of mathematics.

2. Mr. Getz was given a contract as a full-time teacher by the North Hunterdon-Voorhees school district for the 1992-93 school year. He was assigned to Voorhees high school and taught algebra and basic skills; he also coached football, wrestling and track/field.

3. During his first year at Voorhees high school, Mr. Getz was supervised by Ms. Jean Beavers who was properly certificated to discharge these supervisory functions. Ms. Beavers was concerned about Mr. Getz's teaching particularly his inability to control his classroom; to properly pace his lessons and to keep his students on task by providing a variety of activities. Because of those deficiencies, M. Beavers asked Principal Berry to open up Mr. Getz's position to other candidates. Mr. Berry refused indicating that Mr. Getz would stay so long as he was "workable" and improved.

4. Mr. Getz was offered a contract for the 1993-94 school year as a part-time mathematics teacher. He was given a partial load of three classes during the first semester because he had the least seniority in the mathematics department. He also coached football, wrestling and track/field. During the second semester, Mr. Getz returned to full-time status as a mathematics teacher.

5. During his second year at Voorhees high school, Ms. Beavers worked very closely with Mr. Getz to improve his problem areas. On a weekly basis, she would review his lesson plans to insure that he included more activities to keep his students on task. This weekly review of lesson plans was not a regular practice among supervisors in the school district. Ms. Beavers would also routinely proof Mr. Getz's evaluative tools to make certain that all necessary information was included in his tests and quizzes. When she discovered mistakes or omissions, she would return the test or quiz to Mr. Getz who would make the noted corrections. As a result of Ms. Beavers' close supervision and on-going support, as well as his lightened work-load during the first semester, Mr. Getz showed signs of improvement during his second year at Voorhees high school.

6. Mr. Getz was offered his third employment contract for the 1994-95 school year. During this year, Ms. Beavers stopped her weekly review of Mr. Getz's lesson plans in order to determine how he would do on his own. She also did not review and proof all of his evaluative tools since a third year teacher should not be in need of such direct on-going supervision.

7. During the 1994-95 school year, Mr. Getz was evaluated by Ernest Kovacs, the acting principal of Voorhees high school, who, in a memorandum dated March 2, 1995, recommended Mr. Getz for tenure. Mr. Kovacs made this recommendation despite his characterization of Mr. Getz as an average teacher, a teacher who did what was necessary. The four other teachers under consideration for tenure were described by Mr. Kovacs as above average in teaching ability and performance.

8. Mr. Getz recognized that during his three years in the North Hunterdon-Voorhees school district, he was given a number of suggestions for improvement. He believed he followed these suggestions and did make progress as a teacher.

9. During Mr. Getz's third year at Voorhees high school, the North Hunterdon-Voorhees school district was in the process of selecting a new Superintendent of Schools. Charles J. Murphy, then Superintendent of the Glen Cove, New York school district, was chosen and assumed his duties on March 20, 1995. Prior to coming to the district, Dr. Murphy met with the Board members who insisted that he personally evaluate those teachers in the district who were under consideration for tenure. Dr. Murphy was given no other direction concerning tenure decisions.

10. On March 20, 1995, his first day of employment in the district, Dr. Murphy called for the schedules of the five non-tenured teachers: three at North Hunterdon high school and two at Voorhees high. In response to this request, Mr. Kovacs provided Dr. Murphy with a copy of Mr. Getz's schedule. Until he received Mr. Getz's schedule, Dr. Murphy had not heard of John Getz and did not know that he was employed by the district. Mr. Kovacs directed Ms. Beavers to alert Mr. Getz to Dr. Murphy's impending visitation. This notice was given to Mr. Getz either by Ms. Beavers or by Nancy Hodgkins, a secretary at Voorhees high.

11. Dr. Murphy observed Mr. Getz's freshman honors geometry class on the morning of March 22, 1995. Mr. Getz began the class by administering a four problem quiz which, according to his class plan, should have taken fifteen minutes. As a result of Mr. Getz's oversight, two of the four questions were missing information necessary to their resolution. As a result of the confusion caused by these flawed questions, the quiz consumed twenty-five minutes of a forty minute period and was eventually not counted in determining the students' overall grade. During the remainder of the class period, Mr. Getz rushed to present new material but failed to make any transition, to involve or motivate his students, or, prior to the end of class, to provide any summary or closure to the lesson.

12. Following his observation of Mr. Getz's class, Dr. Murphy met with Acting Principal Kovacs and Ms. Beavers. He was told that under prior administrations, tenure would be given to a teacher if that teacher was satisfactory. Both Mr. Kovacs and Ms. Beavers described Mr. Getz as a satisfactory or average teacher. Dr. Murphy rated a satisfactory teacher as a "C". In Dr. Murphy's opinion, a third year teacher, to be eligible for tenure, should be an "A", "B+" or "B-." Based upon his evaluation, Dr. Murphy determined that Mr. Getz did not meet that standard; indeed, Mr. Getz's performance in the class observed was that of a first year teacher.

13. After completing his evaluations of the five non-tenured teachers in the district, Dr. Murphy recommended to the Board that four be granted tenure and one, John Getz, be denied tenure.

14. On March 23, 1995, Dr. Murphy met with Mr. Getz and discussed with him his evaluation. He provided Mr. Getz with a written copy of it which petitioner signed and returned on March 28, 1995. Ms. Beavers also met with Mr. Getz and told him if she had observed what Dr. Murphy had, she would have written the evaluation the same way.

15. Mr. Getz learned that he would not be recommended for tenure. He requested that the Board discuss the matters pertaining to his employment in public session at its meeting of April 4, 1995. This meeting was well attended by supporters of Mr. Getz many of whom addressed the Board on his behalf. Several members of the public read statements from earlier, favorable evaluations of Mr. Getz. These evaluations from Mr. Getz's personnel file were not released by the district. After hearing from the public, the Board voted to adopt its Superintendent's recommendations. It granted tenure to four teachers and denied it to one -- John Getz.

16. On the morning following the April 4, 1995 Board meeting, Board member Philip W. Evans was driving to work when he noticed Edward Getz, petitioner's father, standing in front of his garage. When Mr. Evans stopped, the senior Mr. Getz asked why he had not voted on his son's contract. Mr. Evans explained that because of their previous business dealings, it had been suggested that he abstain to avoid a conflict of interest. According to Mr. Evans, Mr. Getz pressed him for information concerning the Board's reasoning which he refused to supply. For his part, Mr. Getz recalls Mr. Evans stating that the Board wanted to support its new Superintendent and to send a message to the union. Recognizing , Mr. Getz's natural desire to advance his son's interest and his inclination to recall Mr. Evans' words in the light most favorable to those interests, I FIND unpersuasive Mr. Getz's account of the April 5, 1995 conversation with Mr. Evans.

17. The record is clear that John Getz was a popular teacher and that the Board's decision not to grant him tenure was highly controversial. On the day following this decision, the entire student body of approximately 700 students left their classrooms and congregated in the gym. On April 6, 1995, between 200 and 300 students walked out and refused to go to class. As a result of these protests, Dr. Murphy agreed to perform additional evaluations of John Getz. The next evaluation took place on April 11, 1995, at which time Dr. Murphy observed that Mr. Getz had implemented some of his suggestions but that he still had major problems in making transitions, pacing his lessons and in summing up or bringing closure to his class. Dr. Murphy evaluated Mr. Getz for a third and final time on May 25, 1995. Although Mr. Getz had improved in some areas, his problems remained particularly with regard to his timing, his follow through and his ability to keep his students' interest and to keep them on task.

18. On April 12, 1995 a press release was issued by the Board. This release was prepared by the Superintendent and Board Counsel with input from Acting Principal Ernest Kovacs and Ms. Beavers. It was issued after Mr. Getz requested that his employment be discussed in public session and after selective portions of his personnel file were released to his supporters. It is unclear from the record who was responsible for the release of this material from Mr. Getz's personnel file to his supporters. However, I FIND that the Board was in no way involved in the dissemination of this material. I FIND further that the preparation and issuance of the press release under these circumstances was not improper..

19. During the same period that Dr. Murphy was conducting his additional evaluations, he also provided Mr. Getz with a statement of "Reasons for Not Recommending Tenure" which had been requested by petitioner. This statement provided in pertinent part:

> . . . You certainly have not met the standard of excellence that the Board of Education has directed that the district must have.
>
> * * *
>
> Those areas where you have not met the standard of excellence are:
>
> 1) Planning
> 2) Organization
> 3) Structuring
> 4) Expectations for Students
> 5) Student Involvement
> 6) Use of material
> 7) Timing and Time Management
> 8) Techniques
> 9) Closure (P-3)

Mr. Getz disagreed with these reasons pointing to other evaluations particularly those of Ms. Beavers. However, Ms. Beavers candidly admitted that she asked the then principal Mr. Berry to open up Mr. Getz's position because she thought the Math Department could do better. Mr. Berry refused because Mr. Getz was "workable." It was also Ms. Beavers' view that petitioner improved during his second year because of intensive supervision and support. However, when left on his own during his third year, he reverted to many of his first year problems.

Indeed, even in his third year, Ms. Beavers found it necessary to proof his evaluative tools to prevent errors. The need for such review is underscored by the March 22, 1995 quiz which was not proofed and which contained two seriously flawed questions out of four. Consistent with Ms. Beavers' assessment is that of Mr. Kovacs, the Acting Principal. Mr. Kovacs characterized Mr. Getz as an average teacher. a teacher who did what he had to.

20. In addition to the Statement of Reasons, petitioner also requested an informal appearance before the Board in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2(a). This appearance was scheduled by the Board for May 10, 1995. By letter dated May 8, 1995, petitioner's former attorney requested that the matter be adjourned to a date no earlier than May 22, 1995 and no later than the first week in June 1995 (J-7). Mr. Getz knew of this request. The Board refused to adjourn the appearance to that time frame fearful that it might result in the disruption of graduation activities. The Board offered to have the appearance either on May 10, 1995 or schedule it after June 21, 1995 so that the administration could have additional time to evaluate Mr. Getz (J-9). Mr. Getz, through his former counsel, did not accept this offer. Instead, on May 23, 1995, the instant Petition was filed with the Commissioner of Education. Simultaneously, a motion for emergent relief was submitted seeking, in part, the scheduling of an appearance before the Board during the week of June 5, 1995. The Commissioner denied the motion for emergent relief in all respects. Thereafter, the parties discussed the possibility of settlement. The petitioner offered to withdraw his Petition "without prejudice" if an appearance would be conducted prior to July 30, 1995 (J-12). The Board would only agree to schedule the appearance at that time if the Petition of Appeal was dismissed "with prejudice (J-13). No settlement was reached and the present hearing went forward.

21. The Petition of Appeal filed herein contained a number of allegations extraneous to the teaching performance of John Getz. These allegations were intended to demonstrate the bad faith of the Board in denying Mr. Getz tenure in the North Hunterdon-Voorhees school district. The only evidence presented to substantiate these allegations were the recollections of petitioner's father of a conversation with Board member Philip W. Evans. This tribunal has already found that particular evidence unpersuasive. Finding of Fact No. 16. In addition, there were three items entered into evidence: (1) a news article, (2) an opinion column and (3) a decision from the Commissioner of the New York Education Department of Education, all relating to the filing of charges against a principal in the Eastchester, New York school district in 1984 (R-11, R-12 and R-13). At that time, Charles J. Murphy was the Superintendent of Schools. I FIND those items to have no relevance to the present proceeding.

22. All individuals involved in this case recognize the importance of the tenure decision not only to the teacher and the school district but ultimately to the children served by that district. In the present matter, the Superintendent of Schools Charles J. Murphy personally observed and evaluated John Getz; he also reviewed his records and spoke to his supervisors. It was his firm opinion that as a candidate for tenure he rated a "C", he was an average teacher and failed to attain that standard of excellence which the Board seeks among its tenured faculty. He, thereafter, recommended to the Board that John Getz not be granted tenure. The Board, after considering the comments from the public at its April 4, 1995, meeting, voted to accept the recommendation of its Superintendent and denied Mr. Getz tenure.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The Legislature, in a process commencing almost ninety years ago, has created and extended the protections of tenure for teachers.

> Moreover, the cases make it clear that the institution of tenure is much more than a mere labor relations device. Tenure laws were designed to protect teachers in their positions, Downs v. Board of Educ. of Hoboken, 13 N.J. Misc. 853 (Sup. Ct. 1935), and by virtue of the security they engender to promote a "competent and efficient" school system, Viemeister v. Board of Educ. of Prospect Park, 5 N.J. Super. 215 (App. Div. 1949). The fundamental and overriding purpose of tenure is to benefit children by furthering the constitutional and legislative goal of a thorough and efficient education. See, N.J. Const. (1947), Art. VIII, § IV, par. 1; N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-2, -5, -15. (Emphasis Added)
> In Re Jamesburg High School Closing, 83 N.J. 540, 557 (1980).

The system, as established by the Legislature, contemplates that local Board of Education shall have broad discretionary authority in the granting of tenure. Of course, that discretion, although broad, is not without limit. A Board's decision could be set aside if it were arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or otherwise improper. The burden, however, is on the teacher to establish the grounds for reversing the Board's action. The bare allegation of arbitrariness is insufficient to overturn the Board's decision. Further, the reviewing authority will generally not engage in a re-evaluation of the teacher's classroom performance and teaching competence but rather defer to the supervisor's professional judgment. Donaldson v. Bd. of Ed. of No. Wildwood, 65 N.J. 236, 247 (1974). Dore v. Bedminster Tp. Bd. of Ed., 185 N.J. Super. 447 (App. Div. 1982).

There is no statute or regulation which dictates the criteria to be used by Boards of Education when making tenure decisions. Recognizing that a Board has no obligation to renew the contracts of all non-tenured teachers who do a "good job," the Appellate Division found that tenure decisions based in the "ranking" of teachers is both logical and in accordance with the Board's commitment to provide a "thorough and efficient" education to the children of the district. Bd. of Ed., Tp. of Wyckoff v. Wyckoff Ed. Assoc., 168 N.J. Super. 497, 501 (App. Div. 1979).

In the present matter the burden is on the petitioner, John Getz, to demonstrate that the Board of Education of North Hunterdon-Voorhees Regional High School District acted improperly when it denied him tenure. The petitioner has made bare allegations that the Board acted in bad faith, that it had secret meetings and hidden agendas, but has offered no competent evidence to substantiate those allegations. The Board, for its part, demonstrated that it directed its newly appointed Superintendent, Charles J. Murphy, to personally evaluate each of the teachers in the district who were under consideration for tenure. Dr. Murphy, upon coming to the district on March 20, 1995, immediately complied with that direction. He found four of the five non-tenured teachers to be above-average, rating them either an A or B, and recommended them for tenure. Mr. Kovacs, Acting Principal of Voorhees High, concurred that the four teachers recommended for tenure were "above average." The fifth, John Getz, was found by Dr. Murphy to be deficient in many areas; at best, an average teacher; at times, reverting to first-year mistakes. Concerned, Dr. Murphy reviewed Mr. Getz's records and conferenced with his supervisor's who confirmed that petitioner was an average teacher who did what was necessary and who needed on-going supervision and support. Based on these evaluations, Dr. Murphy rated Mr. Getz a "C" or average teacher and did not consider his performance up to the level of excellence required of tenured teachers in the North Hunterdon-Voorhees school district. He, therefore, did not recommend that Mr. Getz be granted tenure and the Board accepted his recommendation. I CONCLUDE that this decision represents a sound educational judgment based on the Superintendent's professional expertise. It is a decision which seeks to assure that the tenured teachers in the North Hunterdon-Voorhees school district have a level of competence which will provide the students with a "thorough and efficient" education as is promised them under the New Jersey Constitution. I CONCLUDE further that petitioner has failed to demonstrate any reason why this decision should be overturned.

The final issue is to be addressed is whether petitioner, by his actions, waived his right to an informal appearance before the Board. This entitlement is found in N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2 which provides:

> (a) Whenever a nontenured teaching staff member has requested in writing and has received a written statement of reasons for nonemployment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2, he or she may request in writing an informal appearance before the district board of education. Such written request must be submitted to the board within 10 calendar days of receipt of the board's statement of reasons.
>
> (b) Such an informal appearance shall be scheduled within 30 calendar days from receipt of the board's statement of reasons.
> (c) Under the circumstances described in this section, a nontenured teaching staff member's appearance before the board shall not be an adversary proceeding. The purpose of such an appearance shall be to permit the staff member to convince the members of the board to offer reemployment.

It is fundamental that waiver involves the intentional relinguishment of a known right. It implies an election by a party to dispense with something of value or to forego some advantage that might otherwise be demanded. Petrillo v. Bachenberg, 263 N.J.Super. 472, 480 (App. Div. 1993). Our Supreme Court has emphasized that issues of waiver "are usually questions of intent, which are factual determinations." Shebar v. Sanyo Business Sys.. Corp.111 N.J.276, 291 (1988).

In the present matter, petitioner requested the informal appearance to which he was entitled udder N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2. The Board responded promptly by scheduling the appearance on May 10, 1995. Since the purpose of the appearance is "to convince the members of the Board to offer reemployment" N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2(c), it is generally scheduled as expeditiously as possible before the board engages in a search for, or must commit to, a replacement for the teacher not awarded tenure. Despite the benefits of an early appearance, petitioner, through his counsel, informed the Board that "we are unable to accommodate the Board on that date." Petitioner requested that the appearance be scheduled no earlier than May 22, 1995 and no later than the first week of June 1995.

The Board refused to reschedule the appearance during the time frame specified by petitioner. It had genuine concerns, whether they would have materialized is not the issue, that an appearance during that time frame would lead to student demonstrations, as had occurred on April 5 and April 6, 1995 and might disrupt the district's graduation activities. The Board, therefore, continued to offer May 10, 1995 for Mr. Getz's appearance. In the alternative, the Board offered to reschedule the appearance on June 22, 1995, while Mr. Getz was still in the employ of the Board and a reemployment decision was still viable. Petitioner refused both offers filing the instant Petition with the Commissioner of Education and seeking emergent relief. Mr. Getz specifically requested the Commissioner to order the Board to schedule an informal appearance during the week of June 5, 1995. The Commissioner, in a letter dated June 6, 1995, refused the emergent relief requested.

It is clear from the record developed herein, that the Board offered the petitioner two separate dates to appear before it and petitioner rejected both. Mr. Getz elected instead to seek a directive from the Commissioner, by way of emergent relief, for a date of his choice. The Commissioner refused and permitted the instant proceeding to go forward. These facts demonstrate that the petitioner knew his entitlement under N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2 and rejected the dates offered by the Board electing to seek relief before the Commissioner.

The remaining correspondence concerning the scheduling of an informal appearance before the Board was exchanged following the pendency of the present administrative matter. I CONCLUDE that such correspondence represented attempts to resolve the present controversy and are not relevant to the issue of whether petitioner's acts, during the 1995-96 school year, constituted a waiver of his right to an informal appearance before the Board. I CONCLUDE that the Board discharged its responsibilities under N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2 and petitioner by rejecting the two dates offered by the Board effectively waived his right to any further appearances before it.

It is, therefore, CONCLUDED that the decision of the North Hunterdon-Voorhees Regional High School district not to grant John Getz a fourth year employment contract and thus to deny him tenure, should be AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE NORTH HUNTERDON-VOORHEES REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT AND CHARLES J. MURPHY, HUNTERDON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the Respondent Board's actions not to renew petitioner's employment may not be upset unless it can be demonstrated to be patently arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ that the Board's determination not to renew petitioner's employment did not exceed the reasonable use of the Board's broad discretionary authority.

The ALJ is correct in that a local board has virtually unlimited discretion in hiring or renewing nontenured teachers and may only litigate that question if the facts he alleges, if true, would constitute a violation of constitutional or legislatively conferred rights. Guerriero v. Board of Education of the Borough of Glen Rock, decided by the State Board of Education February 5, 1996, aff'd DKT. NO. A3316-85T6 (App. Div. 1986). See, also, John Kufel, Jr. v. Board of Education of the Union County Vocational-Technical School District, Union County, decided by the Commissioner April 19, 1995, decided by the State Board of Education February 7, 1996. Petitioner has made no such claim, nor upon review of the record, which includes the ALJ's findings, is it revealed that petitioner has made such a showing.

Additionally, the Commissioner accepts the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner waived his entitlement to a hearing under N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2 in that petitioner rejected two hearing dates offered by the Board, electing instead to seek emergent relief before the Commissioner. In so ruling, the Commissioner finds that the ALJ effectively addressed and analyzed petitioner's actions and the regulatory requirements for a nonreemployment hearing.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law and finds that the within Petition of Appeal must be dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, 10 qualified voters, alleged that there were improprieties and violations of law in the conduct of the special school election for a bond referendum.

ALJ determined that no irregularity which could have changed the outcome of this election occurred in the within matter and that any directives which might otherwise have been placed upon the Board for prospective alteration of its election practices have been rendered moot by the enactment of P.L.1995, c. 278.

Commissioner concurred with findings and determination of the ALJ. Petition was dismissed.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10099-95

AGENCY DKT. NO. 404-10/95

IN THE MATTER OF THE SPECIAL ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF HILLSBOROUGH TOWNSHIP

Linda P. Snyder, petitioner, pro se

Stephen R. Fogarty, Esq., for respondent (Fogarty & Hara, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 30, 1996 Decided: February 6, 1996

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

On Tuesday, October 10, 1995, the Hillsborough Township Board of Education held a referendum on the issuance of bonds to fund a capital project, construction of a new high school .

On October 13, 1995, ten registered voters of the district filed a petition pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12 with the Commissioner of Education alleging violations of statutorily prescribed election procedures. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for inquiry and determination. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13.

An inquiry was scheduled for January 8, 1996. A winter storm caused cancellation of the inquiry and it was rescheduled for January 30, 1996. The matter was heard on that day in the Hillsborough Municipal Court. Six persons testified and nine exhibits were admitted in evidence.

Linda P. Snyder, an employee of the Board of Education and a registered voter testified. She is secretary to the Board Secretary and helped secure poll workers for the special election. On the basis of complaints and comments received from the public, the Board Secretary directed her to check the number of signatures in books and tallies on machine printouts. The numbers did not match. She and nine other registered voters filed the petition mentioned above.

Virginia R. Hutson testified that she worked at districts two and four during the election. She has a notarized statement of five registered voters who conducted a count of signatures and authorization slips on December 27, 1995, in the office of the county superintendent of schools. Each book was counted twice. A polling district and a voting district are not the same thing.

Workers at the October election had no training in the "new system." They were not aware that voters were required to sign the new registers supplied by the County Board of Elections.

There was a five vote discrepancy. Some voters came in early and did not sign the registers before casting their ballots. Others were not in the registration books but were approved to vote by the county board of elections via telephone. There was overcrowding, there was no crowd control and, after 6:00 p.m., there was no telephone available to the poll workers.

The voting machines were checked throughout the day. The public counter equaled the number of voting authority slips at all times. When a machine is opened, the protective counter reading is noted. The same counter is read when the machine is closed. The difference must equal the number of votes cast.

The witness emphasized that workers were not instructed to have voters sign in the new, computer-generated registers provided by the county board of elections. The witness could not recall having a polling list at a Board election. A county official set up the machine, explained its use and informed the witness that the workers had to have voters sign the registration book. As soon as workers were aware of the requirement, all subsequent voters were required to sign.

Overcrowding is a perennial problem at board elections. Poll workers have made the Board Secretary aware of the situation. All persons who chose to wait were allowed to vote; no one was turned away. All persons in line at 9:00 p.m., the stated closing hour, were allowed to vote. Despite the large crowd, there were no signs, designated aisles or other aids. The signatures on voting authority slips were not always clear. Late in the evening, the witness experienced difficulty when machine two malfunctioned. There was no telephone available to her with which to call the County Board of Elections. She and her husband went to Board offices and told of the problem. The Board secretary went to the school and could not rectify the problem. The witness knew how many votes were cast, however, because that number could be derived by reading the protective counter.

The witness has seven years' experience with the County Board of Elections and five years' experience working in school board elections. The Board Secretary met with judges before the election and went over procedures. The polls were opened at 7:00 a.m. at polling district two, which shared a room with polling district four. The witness became aware of unusually long lines, the worst of these from approximately 4:00 p.m. on. She and the judge were aware of the problem. At one point, the poll judge told workers from district two to assist workers at district four where lines were especially long. At approximately 6:30 p.m., a voter noted particular problems. She later memorialized her observations in a letter to the witness. Exhibit C.

The witness stated she has attended poll worker training classes every two years and, on a few occasions, has attended on the in between years. She carries two reference books and the County Board of Elections' telephone number. When the school office closed, polling places two and four had no telephone access because the public telephone outside the building was out of order.

Stephen Scannell testified. He is employed by the Somerset County Board of Elections. Mrs. Hutson contacted him several times since the election. This election used a new procedure.

The regular registration books were not used but computer-generated smaller books carrying four or five voters' names and information on each page were employed for the first time.

On the morning of October 10, he worked with the Board to assist the election process. Board members and the Board Secretary could not enter the polls except for the express purpose of casting ballots. He and his staff opened polls for the Board. In each case, a Board of Elections employee entered the building, opened the machines, retrieved what is known as the zero report, which verifies that there are no tallies on the machine before the first vote is cast and set up the machines to run. In each case, this was accomplished by 7:00 a.m. At the municipal complex, the witness himself opened machines and gave brief instructions on the procedures to employ. He mentioned the new register books and that voters must sign the books before voting. Workers appeared not to know this until he told them of the requirement.

He then went to the Hillsborough School on Route 206 where districts two and four were located. They had opened their machines. He noticed, however, that the poll workers were not requiring voters' signatures in the registration books. He instructed them and the workers agreed that they would get signatures from that point forward. He and a coworker went to Sunnymead School. Workers there had not required signatures. He instructed them to require signatures from that point forward. Some persons did vote without signing the register books. The witness' coworker opened the Amsterdam and Woods Road voting locations.

Election workers are certified by the County Board of Elections. The witness prepares a list of eligible workers and presents it to the Board conducting an election. He conducts classes for workers. The procedure in effect in November was a new procedure. There was no instruction to Board workers until they came to the polls on October 10, 1995 in the new procedure. The witness stated he went over the procedure at the municipal complex before the polls opened. He and his coworker were on call all day. A machine can be left in condition such that the next voter cannot use it. Thus, he and his coworker remained through the day.

The kinds of things Mrs. Hutson noted are common in all elections, especially board elections. Crowding is something that all polls deal with and workers can usually find a way to work through the problems.

Walter Pieleck was a judge at polling places two and four. The workers' instructions had a new cover sheet. Exhibit E. The Board Secretary announced that a new registration book would be used. The witness cannot recall the secretary saying that voters had to sign the new registration book. When the older large registration books were used, the were used for signature comparison only. Voters did not sign the books at school board elections.

The witness stated several persons were in line before polls opened. Polls closed at 9:00 p.m. and anyone in line by 9:00 p.m. was given the opportunity to vote. The witness has been an election worker for nine years and a judge for five or six years. He and six other judges met with the Board secretary the day before the election and were given instructions. They discussed voting hours and the new books.

The witness stated that as judge he declares the polls open and oversees paperwork at the close. He knew County Election Board people were available if there were machine problems.

At some time after 6:00 p.m., he asked a Mrs. Morgan to call the Board secretary because he believed help was needed with the numbers of persons crowding into the polls. He could not get to a telephone in the school and the telephone outside the school was not working. The polls began to become crowded at about 6:00 p.m. and stayed crowded until polls closed. Finally, the witness stated he could recall no telephone call from the Board Secretary about numbers not balancing.

Charles Hutson testified that he alone handled two machines. He left the polls only for approximately 45 minutes to take a late lunch. He checked voter authority slips throughout the day. There was a discrepancy of one; a voter who should have used another machine used his. The protective counter and the public counter are not the same thing. The public counter is sealed before you see the machine. Voting authority slips come in books, the voter signs and prints his or her name and address. A voting authority slip is handed to a poll worker and authorizes the voter to enter the booth.

The witness stated that voter authority slips equaled the public counter number minus one. He counted signatures in the register booklets and this number equaled the public counter number minus two.

Harold P. Brown testified that on October 10 he voted at the Hillsborough School at approximately 10:00 a.m. He signed the registration book, saw no long lines and saw nothing extraordinary. The election was run by the Board which hired trained workers. There were more "No" votes in October than in an earlier special election in March. There is much talk of length of lines and waiting is not unusual in life, including elections. The appeal was filed October 13, 1995 by ten registered voters. The signers said they saw long lines. This is disturbing to him. He saw only proponents of the referendum involved in the inquiry.

Thomas M. Venanzi, the Board Secretary/School Business Administrator for eight years testified. He plans elections. The Board designates polling districts (Exhibit D), appoints workers and sets hours. Seven districts were established for the October referendum. He prepares by meeting with the poll judges before the election. He did so on October 9, 1995. Each judge was given a copy of the poll workers' check list. Exhibit E. He reviewed procedures with the judges. He pointed out that for the first time the County Board of Elections would send a smaller, computerized voter registration book. He provided each judge a sample page. The actual new registers were locked inside the voting machines when the machines were delivered. The witness told the judges of the signature requirement. The voter had to sign both the register and the voting authorization slip.

Election workers were chosen from a list of persons certified by the County Board of Elections. His office sends out letters inviting persons to serve. Responses are received and workers are appointed on a first-come, first-served basis. All other training is provided by the County Board of Elections.

On October 10, 1995, the witness received a call from Mrs. Morgan at approximately 7:00 p.m. She reported long lines and he believes she told him at the municipal building. He called the County Board of Elections because he cannot go into the polls except to cast his own ballot.

While he was voting at approximately 3:30 p.m., he was third in line to vote in District four. He heard a poll worker in District four speak to a person in the District two line. Ms. Petrock, the worker, spoke to Mr. Mellenchuck, who was standing in line. She said, "What are you doing here again?" Mellenchuck did not respond. When the statement was made, Mr. Hutson stared at the Board Secretary. The witness voted and left. Mr. Mellenchuck also left the poll at that time.

Challengers are provided for in school election law, but no one filed to be a challenger at this election. The only persons who should be in a poll are the poll workers, the voters, whether voting or waiting to vote, challengers if any and County Board of Elections personnel.

There was a problem closing the machine used in District four. He was in his office at about 9:30 p.m. and received results from all locations accept District four. He called the County Board of Elections and received no answer. He went to District four and found the machine jammed. He could not correct the problem.

On the next morning, he had to combine results and prepare a statement. All materials were then signed and sent to the County Superintendent of Schools. Exhibit G. While compiling the combined statement, he had his secretary review signature registers for Districts two and four based on what he had seen on October 10. He was concerned, after hearing the poll worker's remark to Mr. Mellenchuck, with the integrity of the election. He asked Mrs. Snyder to compare the signature numbers on books with the numbers of voter authorization slips. The number of persons who signed registration books in Districts two and four numbered 55 fewer than those who signed authorization slips. He was shocked and disappointed at this fact and promptly informed the Superintendent and Board.

His secretary marked signatures that did not seem to match and, in addition to the 55 persons who had not signed the registration books, there were perhaps 60 signatures that appeared not to match.

The Superintendent and Board were concerned with the integrity of the election and expressed the need for an inquiry. He filed on behalf of the Board, but his appeal was rejected. He was advised by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes that a petition for inquiry had to bear the signatures of ten register voters. He gave the petition to his secretary and asked her if she would get the ten necessary signatures. She agreed to do so and did.

On October 10, he contacted the District two judge, Mrs. DeCanto, and the District four judge, Mr. Pieleck. Mrs. DeCanto said that some persons did not sign the registers at the outset and that that was a mistake. Mr. Pieleck was at a loss for words and stated he could not understand how it happened.

Concerning the Mellenchuck incident, the Secretary spoke to Mrs. Petrock by telephone. She asked if he knew Mr. Mellenchuck and she replied that she did. She stated she recalled seeing him at the polls once or twice during the day.

In other districts, signatures in the register books varied from voting authorization slips by from zero to four. The County Board of Elections stated that a variance of zero to four is not unusual, but that 25 to 30 is inexplicable.

The Board Secretary also testified that he received no calls from poll workers in Districts two and four on October 10. He had no conversation with Mrs. Hutson before the referendum. After the election, Mrs. Hutson stated through Mr. Pieleck that she wanted to speak with the secretary. He scheduled a meeting with her on October 16 at 10:00 a.m. At the meeting she stated that the reason for the discrepancy in numbers was that people did not sign registers at the beginning of the election at 7:00 a.m. She also expressed concern with long lines and thought that arrangements could be improved. She also mentioned the need for access to a telephone.

Perhaps three or four persons called the Board Secretary and said they could not vote because of long lines. In most cases, these were persons who had small children with them.

More persons voted in October than in March, but not in districts two and four. The witness tallied the ballots at each referendum. Exhibit H.

The witness was not aware why Mr. Mellenchuck was at the polls more than once. It is irrelevant why he was there more than once. The concern was why he was there at all.

DETERMINATION

Polls must be open between the hours of 5:00 and 9:00 p.m. and during such additional time as the Board may designate between the hours of 7:00 a.m. and 9:00 p.m., and as much longer as is necessary to permit those present to vote. N.J.S.A. 18A:14-45. In this case, the Board chose to have polling hours from 7:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. Despite the polls being open for fourteen hours, there were periods at which some or all of the polls were crowded. That is hardly an unusual event.

There clearly was come confusion at the polls. It is also clear that the confusion was in great part caused by a misunderstanding as to new requirements, specifically having the voters sign the new computerized registers in addition to voting authorization slips. Some persons cast ballots but did not sign the registers. I FIND that this is an irregularity. Even though it constitutes an irregularity, it would have had to be the producing cause of illegal votes which would not otherwise have been cast or the cause of defeating legal votes which would have been counted but for the irregularity, and to such an extent as to change the result of the election. Alternatively, the irregularity would have to be shown to have influenced the election in some other way so as to repress a full and free expression of the popular will. In re Wene, 26 N.J. Super. 363 (Law Div. 1953).

The referendum lost by 374 votes. The number of votes cast by persons who signed voter authorization slips, but not the registers does not even approach 100. Thus, the "full and free expression of the popular will" has not been thwarted. I so FIND.

This finding does not mean that there are no problems. To the extent possible, boardd of education have a responsibility to anticipate voter turnouts and to provide sufficient polling places, voting machines and poll workers to accommodate the anticipated numbers. In the past, it has often been directed that the Board Secretary consult the County Superintendent of Schools concerning voting procedures. It is also been directed that the Board insure that voting machines are adequately staffed and that sufficient space be provided so that voting machines may be physically separated. On December 15, 1995, Chapter 278 of the Laws of 1995 was approved. This places school elections under district boards of election. Thus, the traditional advice may be moot.

In consideration of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE as a result of this inquiry that no irregularity that could have changed the result of this election occurred. Accordingly, this inquiry is ADJOURNED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Petitioning grandparent contested Board's determination that her grandson, R.H., was not domiciled in the District and, thus, not entitled to a free public education in the District's schools.

ALJ found that petitioner, a domiciliary of Ocean Township, established that R.H. was kept in her home and was supported by her gratis as if he were her child and she assumed all personal obligations for him relative to school requirements. However, the ALJ found that petitioner failed to establish that the parents of R.H. were not capable of supporting or providing care for R.H. due to a family or economic hardship as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1). ALJ concluded that petitioner was not legally entitled to have R.H. admitted to respondent's schools. ALJ found that for the period of time that R.H. attended respondent's schools the District was entitled to payment of tuition calculated as set forth in statute. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner reversed the ultimate conclusion of the ALJ, finding that the unique and compelling circumstances present in this case constitute family hardship, sufficient to meet the standard of the pertinent statute. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1).

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE: ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner contests respondent's determination that her grandson, R.H., is not domiciled in the school district and is not entitled to a free public education in the district schools. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 28, 1995, for hearing as a contested case. The matter was scheduled for a hearing on November 15, 1995. On that date, a hearing was held and concluded. After the receipt of written submissions from the parties, the record closed on December 29, 1995.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The following is not intended to be a verbatim statement of the testimony in this matter. It is a summary of the testimony and evidence which was found by the undersigned to be relevant to the issues in this matter.

The first witness to testify was the petitioner, J.B., who is the grandmother of R.H., the student seeking a free public education in respondent's school district. J.B. testified that she resides in Ocean Township and has resided there for 16 years. Her home has five bedrooms, three baths and contains approximately 3,000 square feet. R.H. is her grandson. J.B. has three grown children, L.H., the mother of R.H., I.B., a son who lives in the area and J.J.B., a son age 28 who lives with her and is co-owner of the home.

J.B. testified that her daughter L.H. lives in Deal, New Jersey. Beside R.H., L.H. has three other children, age 12, 8 and 6. J.B. testified that she works part-time approximately 25 hours a week at a retailer of lady's swimwear and sportswear in Eatontown, New Jersey. She has income from investments and her son J.J.B. contributes to the household expenses.

J.B. explained why she applied to have R.H. enrolled in respondent's school district. R.H. first attended the Hillel Yeshiva and later the schools in Deal school district but was not happy at home. Hillel Yeshiva is a private school where the parents pay tuition, and R.H. attended there from first grade until fifth grade. While in attendance he was taught Hebrew in the mornings and English and other regular education subjects in the afternoon. However, she indicated that it was too much for R.H. to handle. R.H. then transferred from Hillel Yeshiva to the Deal school which he attended for the past three years. J.B. indicated that R.H. could not meet his father's expectations and that he felt pressured. He threatened to do various things, including running away from home and other, more serious things. As a result, J.B. suggested to his parents that R.H. move in with her in her own home. This was agreed to and R.H. has been given his own bedroom where he has taken down her photographs and decorations and placed his own pictures up. He is now doing very well in school.

J.B. testified that R.H. is classified as visually impaired. She indicated that she is supporting him free of charge and that no one is paying any money towards his keep and support. She has assumed all personal obligations and responsibilities for R.H. For example, she attended back to school night during which she spoke to R.H.'s teachers to determine his progress in school. She intends to assume all obligations and responsibilities for R.H. into the future.

J.B. testified that R.H. lives with her for the entire week, but that on Friday night they sometimes go to R.H.'s parents to observe the Sabbath. They would leave her home and travel to R.H.'s parent's home where R.H. would stay until Sunday. J.B. indicated that she is not overly religious and that on some occasions she would drive back home and stay there, and on other occasions she would stay at her daughter's home. Otherwise, R.H. lives with J.B. full-time and comes back to her home on Sunday.

With respect to providing clothing and other supplies for R.H., J.B. testified that her daughter, R.H.'s mother, recently bought him a new winter jacket. However, she supplies all other necessities for R.H. including food, school supplies and other similar necessities. However, she indicated that R.H. is still covered under his parent's health insurance.

J.B. testified that she is responsible for getting R.H. to school. She explained that it is difficult to wake him in the morning. Because she works she is not at home after school and he has a key to her house. He also has a moped which he sometimes drives to school or to visit his friends. She cooks his meals most of the time but, on occasion, he helps himself to food in the house.

J.B. testified that she and her grandson understand each other and they get along very well. There are occasions when R.H.'s mother takes him places, but most times it is her responsibility to drive R.H. to the places he needs to go.

J.B. testified that R.H. is doing very well in school. He is 15 years old and is in grade 9 and he is much happier than when he was at his parent's home. He is not feeling the pressure from his father. She indicated that he was thinking very nasty thoughts when he was at home, but since he has been living with her he is much happier. He has made a lot of friends and he simply wants to do well in school.

On cross-examination, J.B. testified that she is R.H.'s legal guardian. However, it was stipulated by counsel that there are no court papers appointing J.B. as R.H.'s legal guardian. J.B. admitted that during the summer of 1995, she rented her home for a total of two months from the end of June until September. During these two months she lived with her married son I.B. She spent most of her time at her son's home, but was at her daughter's home for part of the time.

J.B. admitted that when she filled out the affidavit on May 22, 1995 (J-1) seeking to have R.H. enrolled in the district schools, that R.H. was not living with her at that time because he was still in school in Deal and living with his parents. She also admitted that she did not move back into her home until mid-September, just before the commencement of school. She also admitted that if R.H. lived with his parents in Deal, he would be attending Asbury Park High School.

J.B. testified that her daughter and her husband have many arguments and fights and do not get along, and that there is pressure on R.H. from his father to do better in school. They go to R.H.'s parents on weekends because it is an opportunity to visit and to see R.H.'s brother and sister. Otherwise, R.H. does not visit his parents on his own. R.H.'s father does not often inquire as to his progress in school or his well-being. R.H.'s mother, her daughter, did not attend R.H.'s back to school night. However, R.H.'s mother is in daily contact with her about his well-being. She indicated that her daughter bought R.H.'s school clothes, but this consisted of just a jacket. J.B. bought him school supplies costing approximately $100 and she gives him about $2 each day for lunch. She indicated that she eventually intends to apply for legal guardianship of R.H. She also indicated that R.H. will be living with her in the summer.

J.B. testified that at R.H.'s parent's home, he had a bedroom and that he has removed some of his clothes and his personal belongings, but that the room remains his. She indicated that R.H. was unhappy at home while he attended Hillel School and that he has been very unhappy for the past two years. He was happier after transferring to the Deal School, but he was still unhappy because of his father's pressure and because his father compared him to his brother. She also indicated that her daughter has asked her husband to leave their home but subsequently asked him to stay, and that they are attempting to work out their marriage problems.

Respondent called L.H., R.H.'s mother, as a witness. L.H. testified that she has lived in Deal, New Jersey for 13 years. She has been married for 15 years. Her husband manages an import-export infant wear company. She recently obtained a part-time job. All of her three other children attend the Hillel Yeshiva. Hillel consists of an elementary school and a high school. R.H. left Hillel at the end of fifth grade.

L.H. testified that she has no concerns about sending R.H. to Asbury Park High School. She decided that it was best for him to move in with his grandmother when he said that he was going to run away from home. She also explained that R.H. was living with her mother in her brother's home during the summer. The majority of R.H.'s time is spent with his grandmother, although he does come home on Friday night through Saturday for the Sabbath. On Sunday he usually goes out with his friends.

L.H. testified that it was best for R.H.'s emotional growth for him to move out of the home. She indicated that whenever she and her husband fought, R.H. became very emotional and withdrawn. He threatened to kill himself and has threatened to run away. R.H. went to a psychologist for one year when he was in fifth or sixth grade. When her mother, R.H.'s grandmother, suggested that R.H. move in with her, R.H. was happy with the idea and they felt that it was in his best interest. She does not expect R.H. to come home for the summer. She is still trying to work things out with her husband. However, she does not intend to terminate her parental rights to R.H. and is hopeful that he will eventually be able to return home.

L.H. testified that R.H. took his clothes, radio, books and other personal belongings with him to his grandmother's, but that his bedroom is still furnished. During the summer, he would spend a weekend at home with her once and a while.

On cross-examination by petitioner's attorney, L.H. testified that R.H. lives with his grandmother on a full-time basis. She indicated that she pays nothing to her mother for R.H.'s support. She has bought him a winter coat, some jeans and shirts and some dress clothes for his Synagogue attendance. Otherwise R.H.'s grandmother is fully responsible for his upkeep and support.

Douglas A. Deicke, testified for respondent. He has been Superintendent of Schools since July 1, 1995. Robert J. Mahan was the prior superintendent. Mr. Deicke testified that he first heard about R.H. sometime in June 1995, while he was the assistant superintendent. He indicated that he received a letter from J.B. on July 18, 1995 (J-5) indicating that she is the legal guardian of R.H. and that he lives with her in Ocean, New Jersey. He also indicated that anytime he tried to contact J.B., he would call either her Ocean Township phone number or the phone number of her daughter's in Deal. He indicated that he has never received any formal guardianship papers for R.H. naming J.B. as his legal guardian. Mr. Deicke testified that the tuition for Ocean Township High School is calculated at $45.84 per day.

Mr. Deicke admitted on cross-examination that he has no present evidence to challenge the statements of J.B. and L.H. that R.H. resides with J.B. and is fully supported by her.

Rose Hlatky, Attendance Officer for the school district for the past 17 years, also testified. The former superintendent, Robert J. Mahan asked her to go to J.B.'s home to find out if R.H. was living there. She went there on approximately June 16, 1995. When she rang the doorbell a maid answered and indicated that she was employed by new people who had rented the home and were just moving into it that day. She indicated that J.B. was living at her daughter's home and the maid gave the daughter's Deal home as the place where J.B. could be reached. On cross-examination, Ms. Hlatky admitted that June 16, 1995, was during the 1994-95 school year. She also admitted that she did not visit J.B.'s home after June 16, 1995.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 provides that public school shall be free to: a. any person who is domiciled within the school district; (b)1. to any person who is kept in a home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he was such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so as to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time then merely through the school term. It does on to provide that upon filing by the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the residents of the district solely for the purpose over achieving a free public education within the district. It requires that these statements be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements, information from or about which shall be supplied only to the board and only to the extent that directly pertains to the support to nonsupport of the child.

If admission is still denied, on a hearing before the commissioner, the petitioner has the burden to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the resident, he shall assess the resident tuition for the student's attendance.

In his post-hearing submission, attorney for petitioner argues that nothing in the controlling statute requires that a formal legal guardianship arrangement be entered into between the student's natural parents and the individual who is supporting the child gratis. He also points out that in G.C. v. Board of Education of Union City, 1986 S.L.D. 2219, it was held that the grandmother of a minor child satisfied the applicable statutory requirements even though the child's father contributed money each week for care and clothing, the child was covered under the father's health insurance policy, an aunt also assisted the grandmother economically, and the child spent weekends, holidays and portions of the summer with his father. The stated reason for staying with the grandmother was that the grandmother's care and supervision were needed since the parents were divorced and the father worked during the day, although the child's two younger siblings lived with the father.

Attorney for the petitioner argues that petitioner intended to keep and support R.H. gratuitously beyond the school year because of the extremely hostile environment that R.H. was facing in his parent's home which had so adversely affected his self-esteem that he had threatened to run away as well as to harm himself. He argues that the purchase of school clothes and the retention of R.H. on the father's health insurance is not dispositive, and shows the truthfulness of petitioner and R.H.'s mother. He points out that the one visitation made by respondent to the petitioner's home was during the prior school year at which time it was determined that the petitioner's home would be rented for the summer.

Attorney for petitioner argues that the placement of R.H. with the petitioner was not intended solely to provide him with a free education, but was designed to positively affect a child who had undergone psychological counseling and who had been scarred by serious marital discord involving his parents and a contentious relationship with his father, who could not overlook his learning disabilities. The living arrangement has not only resulted in improvements in R.H.'s performance in school but may also have saved his life.

Attorney for respondent argues that petitioner admitted that she did not even reside within the school district when she applied to have R.H. attend school therein. She points out that if R.H. began to have problems in the sixth grade, why was it not until the commencement of high school that R.H. moved in with his grandmother. She points out that R.H.'s parents have all three of their other children living at home, and that R.H.'s mother stated that she has no intention of terminating her parental rights to R.H. L.H. also testified that R.H. comes home every weekend, that his bedroom has not changed, and that many of his personal items and clothing remain at home. R.H. is covered under his father's health insurance and L.H. has bought clothing for him.

Attorney for respondent argues that this situation is nothing but a facade to allow R.H. to attend Ocean Township High School rather that Asbury Park High School, for which Deal is a sending district. She also points out that the documentation required by the applicable statute was not provided by petitioner.

Based on the provisions of the applicable statute, the initial question is whether R.H. is domiciled within the Township of Ocean so as to be entitled to a free public education therein. It was not seriously contended at the hearing that R.H. is a domiciliary of the Township of Ocean. His parents reside in the Borough of Deal. As a minor child, he remains in the custody of his parents. His mother testified that she does not intend to terminate her parental rights and she indicated that she hopes that at some future time R.H. will be able to return to their parental home. It is clear from the testimony of both J.B., R.H.'s grandmother, and of L.H., R.H.'s mother, that the present situation in which R.H. is residing with his grandmother is a temporary situation which they declare was brought about because of pressures in the home, the inability of R.H. to get along with his father, marital discord and other related reasons. There was no indication in the record that R.H. intended to make his grandmother's home his permanent residence. in any event, as a minor child, his domicile is the same as his parents. Accordingly, I FIND that R.H. is not a domiciliary of the Township of Ocean so as to entitle him to a free public education in the schools of that district.

The next issue is whether R.H.'s situation entitles him to a free public education under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1). The testimony of J.B. is that R.H. is her grandson and he resides with her in her home. Despite the testimony provided by the respondent and J.B.'s own admission that she rented her home for three months during the summer of 1995, it is not disputed that J.B. is a domiciliary of the Township of Ocean. J.B. testified that she is keeping R.H. in her home as if he was her own child and that she supports R.H. gratis as her child. J.B. made it clear that she has assumed all personal obligations for R.H. relative to school requirements and that she intends to keep and support R.H. gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term. However, it was also established that R.H. is maintained on his parent's health insurance, that he visits his parent's home every weekend, and that a bedroom is maintained for him in his parent's home. In addition, R.H.'s mother, L.H., also made it clear that she does not intend to terminate her parental rights and she hopes that he will be able to return home.

An additional requirement specified by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1), which was added thereto and took effect on January 11, 1994, is the requirement that the child's parent or guardian file with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that the parent or guardian is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. It is also required that this statement be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements. It is with respect to this requirement that petitioner's case falls short. Petitioner has failed to establish in any way that R.H.'s parents are not capable of supporting or providing care for him because there is a family or economic hardship. Indeed, there is no question that the only reason enunciated by petitioner for R.H. not living with his parents is because of family discord and because R.H. is much happier living with his grandmother. This is not a legally sufficient reason for providing a free public education to a nonresident under the above statutory provisions.

Based upon the foregoing I FIND that petitioner, a domiciliary of the Township of Ocean, has established that R.H. is being kept in her home and is supported by her gratis as if he were her child and she has assumed all personal obligations for R.H. relative to school requirements. However, I FIND that petitioner has failed to establish that the parents of R.H. are not capable of supporting or providing care for R.H. due to a family or economic hardship as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1). Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner is not entitled to have R.H. admitted into the schools of the Township of Ocean. As a result, I further FIND that for that period of time that R.H. has attended the schools of the Township of Ocean that the school district is entitled to payment of tuition calculated as set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(2).

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's petition to have R.H. admitted into respondent's school district is hereby DENIED and petitioner's appeal is hereby DISMISSED. It is further ORDERED that petitioner shall pay to respondent tuition computed in accordance with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(2).

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF OCEAN, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner avers that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) failed to properly apply the relevant statute in this matter in that he found petitioner failed to establish that R.H.'s parents are not capable of supporting or providing care for R.H. due to a family or economic hardship. (Initial Decision at p. 10) Petitioner asserts that the ALJ's reading of the prescriptions of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1) was improperly restrictive inasmuch as he concluded that, since R.H.'s parents were financially capable of providing care for R.H., he was not entitled to a free education within respondent's District. (Petitioner's Exceptions at pp. 1, 2)

Rather, petitioner contends, the pertinent statute references a parent's inability to support or provide care for a child "due to a family ... hardship." (emphasis in text) (Id. at p. 3) Petitioner argues, > it was uncontroverted  that R.H. had expressed suicidal thoughts, had threatened to run away from home, and had been severely depressed in light of the marital discord involving his parents. ***

> Certainly it is averred that the record conclusively established that R.H.'s parents were not capable of providing adequate care for R.H. because of the existence of a family hardship; i.e., the disintegration of a marriage that had resulted in the emotional evisceration of R.H. (emphasis in text) (Id.)

Thus, petitioner reasons there is ample factual support for the ALJ to have concluded petitioner proffered a legally sufficient reason to permit R.H. to obtain a free public education in respondent's District. Petitioner urges the Commissioner, therefore, to reverse the initial decision of the ALJ.

In reply, the Board asserts "that there is no 'family' hardship which would require the taxpayers of Ocean Township to bear tuition costs for the Petitioner's grandson." (Board's Reply at p. 1) In support of its position, the Board incorporates by reference the brief it presented before the ALJ.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner determines to reverse the ultimate conclusion of the ALJ. Initially, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner, a domiciliary of the Township of Ocean, has established, by a preponderance of evidence, that R.H. is being kept in her home and is supported by her gratis, as if he were her child, and that petitioner has assumed all personal obligations for R.H. with respect to school requirements. (Initial decision at p. 10) Further, the Commissioner finds no evidence in the record that petitioner has entered into the present arrangement to fraudulently obtain a free public education for R.H. On the remaining issue of whether petitioner has shown that R.H.'s parents "are not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship" N.J.S.A. 38-1b(1), the Commissioner notes,

> In interpreting a statute, the Commissioner must look to the fundamental purpose for which the legislation was enacted, and where a literal reading will not accord with that purpose, the spirit of the law will control over its letter.  Moreover, the meaning of a statute is to be gathered from the mischief sought to be eliminated as well as the proposed remedy.  (Citations omitted)
>
> The amendments to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1  were intended to ease the burden on local boards of education attempting to remove illegally enrolled students, specifically those living with a parent or guardian who claims to be, but is not, domiciled within the district, and those living with a person other than the parent or guardian in order to obtain the benefit of a free public education in a district other than that of their entitlement by parental domicile. ***
>
> The intent of the "affidavit student" law is not now, and never has been, to deny an education to a child whose living arrangements may not be as contemplated by the statutory scheme. Gunderson v. Board of Education of the City of Brigantine, Atlantic County, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 39, 42.

The unique and compelling circumstances present in this matter, in the view of the Commissioner, rise to the level of constituting family hardship sufficient to meet the standard of the pertinent statute. "To hold otherwise harms a party the Legislature never meant to penalize  and overlooks the substantial State interest in ensuring the education of all its children." Gunderson, supra, at 42.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is reversed to the extent that the Commissioner finds petitioner has demonstrated that R.H.'s parents are not capable of providing care for him due to family hardship, thereby establishing R.H.'s entitlement to a free public education in the School District of the Township of Ocean.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Decision on motion by the State Board of Education, October 2, 1996

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Klausner & Hunter (Stephen B. Hunter, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Kramer, Kramer & Kilgallen (Honora O'Brien Kilgallen, Esq., of Counsel)

For the amicus curiae New Jersey School Boards Association, Donna M. Kaye, Esq.

J.B. (hereinafter "petitioner") filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education challenging the determination of the Board of Education of the Township of Ocean (hereinafter "Board") that her grandson, R.H., who was living with her within the District, was not entitled to a free public education in the District's schools.

On February 6, 1996, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") concluded that petitioner had failed to establish that R.H.'s parents were not capable of supporting or providing care for him due to a family or economic hardship, as required by N.J.S.A.

18A:38-1(b). The ALJ found that "the only reason enunciated by petitioner for R.H. not living with his parents is because of family discord and because R.H. is much happier living with his grandmother." Initial Decision, slip op. at 10. The ALJ concluded that "this is not a legally sufficient reason for providing a free public education to a nonresident under the...statutory provisions." Id. Accordingly, the ALJ recommended dismissing the petition and directing petitioner to pay tuition to the Board for R.H.'s attendance in the District's schools.

On March 25, 1996, the Commissioner rejected the ALJ's recommended decision. While agreeing with the ALJ that petitioner had established that R.H. was being kept in her home and supported by her gratis and that petitioner had assumed all personal obligations for R.H. with regard to school requirements, the Commissioner found that "[t]he unique and compelling circumstances present in this matter, in the view of the Commissioner, rise to the level of constituting family hardship sufficient to meet the standard of the pertinent statute." Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 15. Accordingly, he concluded that "petitioner has demonstrated that R.H.'s parents are not capable of providing care for him due to family hardship, thereby establishing R.H.'s entitlement to a free public education in the School District of the Township of Ocean." Id. at 15-16.

The Board filed the instant appeal to the State Board.

On October 2, 1996, we granted the motion of the New Jersey School Boards Association to appear as amicus curiae in this matter.

After a thorough review of the record, we remand this matter to the Commissioner for further proceedings consistent with our decision herein.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) provides that a child kept in the home of another person domiciled within the district is entitled to a free public education in that district if, inter alia, the parent or guardian of the child "is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship."

In this case, the ALJ found that petitioner had failed to establish that R.H.'s parents were not capable of providing care. In rejecting that recommended finding, the Commissioner indicated, without reference to the record, that the circumstances in this matter rose to the level of family hardship sufficient to satisfy the statutory standard. However, N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6(b) requires that:

> An order or final decision rejecting or modifying the findings of fact in the initial decision shall be based upon substantial evidence in the record. Any order or final decision rejecting or modifying the initial decision shall specify in clear and sufficient detail the nature of the rejection or modification, the reasons for it, the specific evidence of record at hearing and interpretation of law upon which it is based and the precise changes in result or disposition caused by the rejection or modification.

The Commissioner's failure to specify in clear and sufficient detail his reasons for rejecting the ALJ's recommendation creates an additional problem in this instance. The express language of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) requires more than simply a finding of family hardship in order for a child kept in the home of another person domiciled within the district to be entitled to a free public education in that district. Rather, the hardship must be of such nature that the parents or guardian are not capable of supporting the child or providing care as a result of that hardship. The Commissioner found that the circumstances herein "[rose] to the level of constituting family hardship sufficient to meet the standard of the pertinent statute," Commissioner's decision, slip op. at 15, but only indicated that R.H.'s parents were not capable of providing care to him as a result of that hardship in conclusory fashion in the last line of his decision. Consequently, it is unclear to us whether the Commissioner applied the proper standard in determining this matter.

As a result, we find it necessary to remand this matter to the Commissioner for a determination, under the specific standard set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b), of whether R.H. is entitled to a free public education in the schools of Ocean Township, as well as for an articulation of his reasons for any rejection or modification of the ALJ's recommendation in conformity with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6(b). Under these circumstances, we further direct that, in order to avoid any unnecessary disruption to R.H., he may continue to attend public school in Ocean Township free of charge pending a final determination on remand by the Commissioner.

We do not retain jurisdiction.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, nontenured full-time school bus driver, alleged that she was wrongfully terminated from her position for a criminal charge which did not result in a conviction.

ALJ found that petitioner as a nontenured employee was not entitled to continued employment with the Board. Citing Dore, the ALJ found that subject to constitutional constraints, a local board of education has an almost complete right to terminate an employee who is nontenured and whom the board regards as undesirable. Moreover, her criminal charge was a reasonable basis for the termination of her employment.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own, citing Gillison and Paladino.

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOMS RIVER SCHOOL DISTRICT,

Respondent.

Robert Gasser, Esq., for petitioner

Thomas Monahan, Esq., for respondent (Gilmore & Monahan, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 5, 1996 Decided: February 7, 1996

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Suzette Fagan, a former school bus driver employed by respondent Toms River Board of Education (BOE), possessed cocaine, a controlled dangerous substance (CDS), in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1), and possessed CDS paraphernalia, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:36-2. Criminal charges were brought against the petitioner; after learning of the charges, the BOE suspended her without pay; and, later, the BOE terminated her employment. The petitioner entered and successfully completed the Pre-Trial Intervention (PTI) program and the charges were dismissed. N.J.S.A. 2C:43-12; R. 3:28. Given the petitioner's misconduct, although she was not the subject of a judgment of conviction, the BOE refused to reinstate her.

The petitioner alleges that she was merely "holding" the CDS for her "boyfriend" and contends that the penalty imposed by the BOE is excessive. The petitioner also contends that she is situated similarly to another BOE school bus driver whom the BOE continued to employ after he was charged with a criminal offense and had successfully completed PTI. That is, the petitioner contends that the BOE's action was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable and that it is unlawfully discriminatory. The petitioner demands that the termination of her employment be vacated and that the BOE be ordered to reinstate her.

The BOE points out that, unlike the petitioner, the school bus driver to whom she has alluded always maintained his innocence of the charges, and it submits that given the nature of petitioner's misconduct, its actions were reasonable, justifiable and within its discretion and that it should not be ordered to reinstate her.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On April 6, 1995, the petition was filed with the Commissioner and, on April 28, 1995, the BOE's answer to petition was so filed. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The Department transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where, on May 19, 1995, it was received and filed as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). After a conference, on December 6, 1995, the parties' attorneys set forth stipulated facts on the record. At the parties' request, the record was left open until January 5, 1996, to allow the filing of written summations.

FINDINGS OF FACT

In 1984, the petitioner, whose date of birth is March 4, 1962, began employment as a part-time bus driver with the BOE. In December 1987, she became a full-time bus driver for the 1987-88 school year. Thereafter, she was employed as a full-time bus driver for the 1988-89, 1989-90, 1990-91, 1991-92, 1992-93 and 1993-94 school years.

On June 3, 1994, in Dover Township, law enforcement officers found the petitioner in possession of cocaine, a CDS, and in possession of CDS paraphernalia, and they charged her with violations of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1) and N.J.S.A. 2C:36-2. Based upon the charges, on June 28, 1994, the BOE suspended the petitioner without pay.

During the BOE's meeting of March 7, 1995, which was attended by the petitioner and her attorney, the BOE considered whether it would again employ her. The petitioner did not deny that she had violated N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1). The petitioner also did not deny the report that she had provided to law enforcement officials the names of persons she knew to be engaged in CDS activities in return for her November 10, 1994, admission into the PTI program. The petitioner's attorney addressed the BOE on her behalf. Then the BOE decided not to reinstate or re-employ the petitioner. There is no evidence of bad faith in the BOE's decision in this regard.

The petitioner successfully completed the PTI program and, on October 30, 1995, the charges against her were dismissed. P-1; P-2. The petitioner has no other criminal record.

During or about 1991, BOE bus driver Tony Raymond was the subject of criminal charges relating to an allegation of sexual assault upon a child; he entered and successfully completed PTI; and the charges against him were dismissed. Unlike the petitioner, Mr. Raymond consistently denied that he was guilty of the charges, including during a 1992 appearance before the BOE. Given these circumstances, the BOE reinstated Mr. Raymond.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The BOE has questioned whether the Commissioner of Education has jurisdiction of this case.

School laws govern a local board of education's powers and duties generally and govern employment of a local board of education's school bus drivers in particular. N.J.S.A. 18A:13-6; N.J.S.A. 18A:39-17, -18, -19.1.

The commissioner has "jurisdiction to hear and determine . . . all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws, excepting those governing higher education, or under the rules of the state board or of the commissioner" and, in this regard, the commissioner's jurisdiction may extend to a case wherein a local board of education is charged with invidious discrimination in employment. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9; N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 to -42; Balsley v. North Hunterdon Reg. High Sch. Bd. of Educ., 225 N.J. Super. 221, 227-28 (App. Div. 1988). Consequently, there appears to be jurisdiction under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.

Subject to constitutional constraints, a local board of education has an almost complete right to terminate an employee who is untenured and whom the board regards as undesirable. Dore v. Bedminster Tp. Bd. of Educ., 185 N.J. Super. 447, 453-56 (App. Div. 1982).

Relative to the petitioner's contention that the BOE has been arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, a determination of a public entity, such as a local board of education, is presumed to have been lawful, reasonable and made in good faith and should not be approached with suspicion. Van Itallie v. Franklin Lakes, 28 N.J. 258, 269 (1958); Fitzpatrick v. Civil Serv. Comm'n, 91 N.J. Super. 535, 539 (App. Div. 1966). Further, anyone interested in the welfare of society and, in particular, of children, knows of the harm that can result from the availability and use of controlled dangerous substances. A school system employee has opportunities for contact with school children and he or she should constitute a model for such children. Therefore, when a school system employee possesses a CDS, in violation of the law, as a way of demonstrating to school children the repercussions of such misconduct, it is not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable for a board of education to remove that employee. A school system employee, particularly a school bus driver, also has opportunities for control over school children, who are isolated from parents and others who might protect them and who are dependent upon his or her judgment. Therefore, when a school bus driver possesses a CDS, in violation of the law, it is not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable for a board of education to terminate that employee's employment as a way of insulating school children from the possibility of harm and as an example to others. That is to say, relative to a school system employee's, particularly a school bus driver's, involvement with a CDS, a local board of education may reasonably set a "zero tolerance" standard.

Relative to the petitioner's contention that the BOE has been unlawfully discriminatory, given the petitioner's admission of criminal CDS violations and, given the other employee's denial of guilt and the absence of a conviction of that other employee, the BOE's termination of her employment and its refusal to terminate the other employee's employment was not unreasonable, invidious or unlawful.

The petitioner alleges that she was merely "holding" the cocaine for her "boyfriend" and she points out that her conduct was not the subject of a criminal judgment. However, the petitioner's conduct was, in fact, criminal; it was inexcusable; and it presented a reasonable basis for the termination of her BOE employment.

ORDER

I ORDER the petitioner removed and her claims DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that petitioner, a nontenured employee, is not entitled to continued employment with the Board. It has been held that a board has wide discretion to discontinue the services of a nontenured employee absent a constitutional or statutory infirmity, neither of which was present herein. See Gillison v. Board of Education of the City of Newark, Essex County, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 157 (1993) and Paladino v. Lacey Township Board of Education, Ocean County, decided by the State Board of Education February 1, 1989.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the OAL and finds that the within Petition of Appeal must be dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

CASE NO. 151-4/95

ALI SALAAM, :

Petitioner, :

v. : SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

MONTCLAIR BOARD OF EDUCATION, :

Respondent. :
. . . . . :

WHEREAS, Petitioner Ali Salaam filed a Petition before the Commissioner of Education of the State of New Jersey dated April 21, 1995, alleging that his children Khiry Salaam and Iman Salaam are eligible to attend the public schools of the Town of Montclair without charge, and seeking a reversal of the decision of Respondent Montclair Board of Education ("Board") to exclude Khiry Salaam and Iman Salaam from attendance in the Montclair Public Schools for free; and

WHEREAS, the Board has denied Petitioner's allegations, and contends that its March 27, 1995 decision to exclude Khiry Salaam and Iman Salaam was made according to applicable law; and

WHEREAS, Khiry Salaam and Iman Salaam were enrolled in the Montclair public schools from September 1994 through June 1995, and Petitioner has not re-enrolled them in the Montclair public schools for the 1995-96 school year; and

WHEREAS, the parties desire to resolve this proceeding amicably;

NOW, THEREFORE, it is hereby agreed between the parties through their undersigned representatives, that this proceeding shall be settled in accordance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Petitioner Ali Salaam agrees to pay to the Montclair Board of Education a total of $4,200.00 representing tuition for the 1994-95 school year for Khiry Salaam and Iman Salaam, on the following payment schedule:

On or before October 15, 1995, Petitioner will pay to the Board $334.00;

On or before November 15, 1995, Petitioner will pay to the Board $333.00;

On or before December 15, 1995, Petitioner will pay to the Board $333.00;

On or before January 15, 1996, Petitioner will pay to the Board $125.00, and on the fifteenth day of each of the twenty-four (24) months thereafter, including January 15, 1998, Petitioner will pay to the Board $125.00;

On or before February 15, 1998, Petitioner will pay to the Board $75.00.

2. In the event that Petitioner fails to pay any installment by the deadlines specified in the preceding paragraph, the Board reserves the right to enforce its right to full payment under all applicable laws.

3. Neither this agreement nor any action taken by Petitioner shall constitute an admission by Petitioner that Khiry Salaam and Iman Salaam were not entitled to attend the public schools of the Town of Montclair for free.

4. Neither this agreement nor any action taken by the Board in this matter shall constitute an admission by the Board that Khiry Salaam and Iman Salaam were entitled to be educated for free in the public schools of the Town of Montclair.

5. Petitioner and the Board agree to exchange releases which will include, but not be limited to, any and all claims that have been or may have been asserted in connection with this proceeding.

6. The parties shall request a dismissal of this proceeding by the Office of Administrative Law in accordance with the terms of this agreement.

RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent sought emergent relief on behalf of her daughter, C.F., a tenth grade student who was suspended for alleged gang involvement. Petitioner contended C.F. was suspended without notice of charges and without a hearing on the matter. The Board contended C.F. was suspended and placed on homebound instruction indefinitely pending evaluation by the child study team and subsequent expulsion hearing.

ALJ found that if a suspension lasts for more than 10 days, the student is entitled to a full hearing within 21 days from the start of the suspension and that a full record should be kept of the hearing. ALJ ordered that the Board immediately reinstate C.F. and should the Board again suspend C.F., it would provide to C.F. 1) written notice of charge; 2) written statement of factual allegation on which charge was based; 3) the name and address of any person with knowledge of relevant facts; 4) copy of any relevant document; 5) notice of a Board hearing during which C.F. may confront any witness and evidence against her and she may call any witness and offer evidence in her defense; 6) a Board hearing during which she may call any witness and offer evidence in her defense, immediately after which, the Board would issue a decision on the charge and punishment and notify C.F. of that decision.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination of the ALJ, noting that the findings reach to the merits of the matter, not merely to the application for emergent relief. Petition was dismissed as moot in that petitioner's requests for relief, in their entirety, have been addressed through the application for emergent relief.

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

C.F., a tenth grade student in the public school system operated by the Board of Education of the City of Wildwood (BOE), charges that school administrators wrongfully suspended her from school, i.e., without notice of charges and without a hearing on the matter.

C.F. demands, inter alia, that the BOE immediately reinstate her; that the BOE hold a hearing on the matter; and that the BOE provide to her the name of any person with knowledge of any relevant fact and provide to her a copy of any document relative to the charges, so that she can prepare for such a hearing. The BOE denies that C.F. is suspended; it submits that it has not yet determined whether to undertake suspension proceedings; and it contends that C.F. is merely on "homebound instruction," pending evaluation by its Child Study Team (CST) to determine whether C.F. is in need of special education classification and an individual education plan (IEP), so that no BOE hearing is necessary. P-1; 20 U.S.C.A. §1400 et seq.; N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.5, -3.6; N.J.S.A. 18A:37-4.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 28, 1996 the verified petition was filed with the Department of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The Department transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where, on February 29, 1995, it was filed as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). On March 4, 1996, the motion for emergent relief was heard in the OAL Atlantic City. (Prior to the hearing, the BOE reiterated its position that it had not yet determined whether to undertake suspension proceedings and suggested that such proceedings might be avoided and that it would be in C.F.'s best interests if the CST evaluation was completed and an IEP was utilized to resolve the case. However, C.F. rejected this suggestion.)

FINDINGS OF FACT

C.F.'s date of birth is July 29, 1980. She is domiciled with her mother in the City of Wildwood and she is a tenth grade student in the public school system operated by the BOE.

During or about January 1996, a report reached administrators of the BOE's school system that a troublesome gang was being formed by some of the school system's students and that gang members were involved in an assault on a fellow student.

On January 31, 1996, school administrators accused C.F. of being a member of the above-described gang and accused her of "creating a dangerous situation;" on that basis, they suspended her from regular classes; and they "placed her on homebound instruction indefinitely immediately." P-1. The administrators provided to C.F. no written notice of the facts supporting the charge, no document detailing the charge, no name of any person with knowledge of any relevant fact; and no notice of the date for a hearing on the suspension. During the hearing of this motion, C.F. denied the accusations.

By letter dated February 1, 1996, Nancy Ramundo, the supervisor of the school system's CST notified C.F.'s mother that C.F. had been referred to the CST and requested that she (C.F.'s mother) telephone to "discuss the evaluation procedure and home bound instruction." BOE-1.

By letter dated February 7, 1996, the school administrators notified C.F.'s mother that, "[p]ending the evaluation process of the [CST], Wildwood High School will begin proceedings for an expulsion concerning your daughter, [C.F.] for creating a dangerous situation." P-2, emphasis added. (However, the letter provided no written notice of the facts supporting the charge, no document detailing the charge, no name of any person with knowledge of any relevant fact; and no notice of the date for a hearing on the suspension.)

On February 8, 1996, C.F.'s mother met with Ms. Ramundo, who explained the CST evaluation process, classification, the IEP, etc. Ms. Ramundo explained that, pending completion of the process and implementation of an IEP, homebound instruction would be made available for C.F. and, in order to continue some education for C.F., C.F.'s mother consented to the homebound instruction (which began soon thereafter). BOE-2.

The BOE's regular meeting was held on February 15, 1996 (and there was no hearing relative to C.F.)

By letter to the school administrators, received on February 20, 1996, C.F.'s attorney made the same demands as are made in this case. P-3.

By letter, dated February 23, 1996, the BOE's attorney responded to C.F.'s attorney as follows:

> . . . the School District has mandated that your client be evaluated by the [CST]. [C.S's] parents have consented to this evaluation. During the period of evaluation (which cannot exceed 45 days), [C.S.] has been and will continue to receive home bound instruction.
>
> As such time as the [CST] completes its evaluation, a determination will be made as to whether charges will be brought against [C.S.] seeking her expulsion. In the interim, it is the intention of the [BOE] to afford your client all rights to which she is entitled, including but not limited to appropriate due process.
>
> [P-4]

The BOE's next regular meeting is to be held on March 21, 1996.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

C.F. is entitled to and the BOE is required to offer to her a free and appropriate public education which may include special education and related services, such as classification and an IEP. U.S. Const. amend. XIV §1, par. 1; 20 U.S.C.A. §1400(c), §1400(a)5; N.J. Const. (1947), Art. VIII, §IV, par. 1; N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1 to -12.1.

A public school student's fellow students are also entitled to an education in a reasonably safe environment. Consequently, for good cause, including an assault upon another student, a student may be suspended and/or expelled from school, subject to due process requirements, including notice of the charge on which the demand for suspension or expulsion is based; a statement of the factual allegation on which a charge is based; discovery of the name of any person with knowledge of any relevant fact and discovery of any relevant document; and a hearing, during which the student may confront any witness against her. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-1 to -5; Tibbs v. Bd. of Ed. of Tp. of Franklin, 59 N.J. 506 (1971).

Where a school administrator has a reasonable basis for a belief that a student presents a danger t herself or to others or to school property, he may temporarily suspend the student, pending and conditioned upon notice and a hearing before the board of education. N.J.S.A.

18A:37-5. However, where a suspended student is not provided, e.g., a preliminary hearing and instruction to allow her to keep up with her class, she may be ordered readmitted to school. R.R. v. Bd. of Ed., Shore Reg. H. S., 109 N.J.Super. 337 (App. Div. 1970), where it is also held that the hearing before the board of education should be held not more than 21 days after the suspension.

Here, since January 31, 1996, i.e., for well over a month, school administrators have suspended C.F. from her regular classes and, while she has been provided with homebound instruction, contrary to the import of the administrators' February 7, 1996 letter and N.J.S.A. 18A:37-5, the school system has not provided C.F. with notice of the charge on which the suspension is based; a statement of the factual allegation on which a charge is based; the name of any person with knowledge of any relevant fact; a copy of any relevant document; and a hearing, during which she could confront any witness against her.

In deciding this motion for emergent relief, I make the following conclusions: (1) The school administrators did suspend C.F. The fact that the school system's CST may have also undertaken evaluation for possible special education services does not negate the suspension. C.F.'s mother's consent to the special education evaluation process did not waive C.F.'s rights to due process under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-1 to -5. The BOE has failed provide notice and a hearing, i.e., it has not complied with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-1 to -5. That is to say, C.F. is clearly entitled to the relief claimed. (2) As a matter of fact, the school administrators did suspend C.F. without compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-1 to -5, so that it is reasonably probable that C.F. will prevail on her claim for notice, discovery and a hearing. (3) The school administrators' placement of C.F. on "homebound instruction indefinitely" will cause her immediate and irreparable harm and she has no adequate remedy at law. (4) The continuation of "homebound instruction indefinitely" will cause C.F. hardship which outweighs any hardship the BOE may experience if the emergent relief is granted. P-1; N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6; R. 4:52-1; Crowe v. DeGoia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-134 (1982).

ORDERS

Consistent with the above, I ORDER the following: The BOE will immediately reinstate C.F. and, should the BOE again suspend C.F. it will (1) provide to C.F. written notice of any charge on which the suspension is based; (2) provide to C.F. a written statement of the factual allegation on which a charge is based; (3) provide to C.F. the name and address or means of contact) of any person with knowledge of relevant facts; (4) provide to C.F. a copy of any relevant document; (5) provide to C.F. notice of a BOE hearing, during which C.F. may confront any witness and evidence against her and call a witness and offer evidence in her defense; (6) provide to C.F. a BOE hearing, during which she may confront any witness and evidence against her and she may call any witness and offer evidence in her defense and, immediately after which, the BOE will issue a decision on the charge and punishment and notify C.F. of that decision.

On March 18, 1996, the attorneys and I will engage in a telephone conference to set any additional hearing days that may be necessary.

This order may be reviewed by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, either upon interlocutory review, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10, or at the end of the contested case, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF WILDWOOD, ATLANTIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions were timely filed by the parties in accordance with the established briefing schedule.

Respondent's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments expressed before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) at the emergent relief hearing, arguing that pursuant to applicable statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-4, the Board was not required to conduct an expulsion hearing prior to indefinitely placing C.F. on homebound instruction. The Board writes,

> [N.J.S.A.] 18A:37-2.1  deals with assaults upon teachers, administrators, board members, or other employees of the Board of Education. That statute expressly states that expulsion proceedings must take place no later than 21 days following the date upon which the pupil is suspended. No such restriction appears in [N.J.S.A.] 18A:37-4. (Board's Exceptions at p. 2)

The Board continues by arguing that the ALJ incorrectly based his determination on R.R. v. Bd. of Ed., Shore Regional High School, supra. The Board argues that R.R., which required a board to conduct an expulsion hearing following a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-4 no later than 21 calendar days following the day on which the pupil was suspended, was limited to its particular set of facts. (Board's Exceptions at p. 2)

Petitioner's reply exceptions further recast and reiterate arguments presented in the emergent relief hearing that C.F. was entitled to an expulsion hearing pursuant to law and further concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ. In that these arguments were reviewed and addressed before the ALJ, they are not summarized herein.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ for the reasons expressed therein, granting emergent relief and ordering that C.F. be admitted to school in that a hearing was neither timely scheduled nor conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-4.

In so ruling, the Commissioner determines that petitioner has met the criteria established in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) and is entitled to emergent relief. Petitioner has demonstrated irreparable harm in that C.F. was placed on homebound instruction indefinitely without a remedy at law. She has also demonstrated a sufficient likelihood of success on the merits based on the Board's failure to follow statute and controlling case law. Finally, upon a weighing of the equities, the Commissioner finds that, under the circumstances herein, where the Board has not provided petitioner with notice and a hearing, more harm would inure to the public than would to the Board if petitioner was not awarded emergent relief in that due process requirements apply to students enrolled in publicly funded schools and such students can have no confidence in the laws if statutory and constitutional procedures are not properly applied to them. See Goss v. Lopez, 419 U.S. 565 (1975). Moreover, if the Board believes C.F. to pose a continuing danger to school safety, there is nothing to prevent the Board from acting to suspend her consistent with applicable due process requirements.

The Commissioner reiterates that if a suspension is to last for more than 10 days, the pupil is entitled to a full hearing within 21 days from the start of the suspension, and that a full record shall be kept of the hearing. L.T., on behalf of her minor child, D.T. v. Board of Education of the City of Long Branch, Monmouth County, decided by the Commissioner of Education November 6, 1995.

In so ruling, the Commissioner is mindful that these findings reach to the merits of this matter, not merely to the application for emergent relief. However, in that the ALJ effectively addressed and analyzed the arguments concerning the validity of the Board's actions in his initial decision, the Commissioner construes the within proceedings as a ruling on the merits of petitioner's general contention that the Board may not indefinitely suspend a student without a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-4. Therefore, inherent in the Commissioner's adoption of the ALJ's decision is an express rejection of the Board's arguments concerning the application of the holding of R.R. v. Board of Education of the City of Shore Regional High School, supra. The Board is hereby directed to follow the six enumerated orders of the ALJ if in the future it seeks to again suspend C.F., or any other student, for a period beyond 10 days.

Accordingly, the ALJ's determination as clarified herein is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed as moot in that petitioner's requests for relief, in their entirety, have been addressed through the application for emergent relief.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

For Petitioner, Richard W. Hunt, Esq. (Almeida & Hunt)

For the Board, Charles R. Iannuzzi, Esq.

For USA Electrical Construction Contractors, Inc., Matthew A. Zabel, Esq. (Zabel & Associates)

This matter has come before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Motion for Emergent Relief and Clarification filed by petitioner on March 6, 1996. In this motion, petitioner seeks 1) a finding that the Commissioner's earlier decision on motion for clarification, dated February 8, 1996, acted, contrary to respondents' understanding and subsequent actions, to prohibit respondents from rebidding the contract that is the subject of their underlying dispute, and 2) a stay of work on the rebid contract pending the outcome of the merits of that dispute, presently pending before the Office of Administrative Law.

Previously, in a decision dated December 26, 1995, the Commissioner had affirmed the ALJ's order denying petitioner's original application for emergent relief "for the reasons expressed therein." In a motion for clarification, petitioner then sought an express affirmation of the ALJ's finding that the disputed contract between respondents, Board of Education and USA Electrical Construction Contractors, Inc. ("USA"), was null and void from the outset due to USA's lack of qualification under applicable bidding laws. The ALJ had, in his initial decision, made such a finding, but gone on to deny emergent relief on other grounds; this decision was adopted by the Commissioner. Seeing that work continued on the disputed contract notwithstanding the ALJ's (and Commissioner's, by affirmance) finding of contractual nullity, petitioner attempted to have the Commissioner's decision enforced in Superior Court. This attempt, however, was thwarted by the judge's unwillingness to infer from the Commissioner's decision an explicit intent to declare the contract null and void notwithstanding his denial of emergent relief. Hence petitioner's motion for clarification, and the Commissioner's decision on motion dated February 8, 1996.

In that decision, the Commissioner determined to reconsider his earlier determination because the ALJ's recommendation to deny emergent relief, which had been affirmed by the Commissioner, was clearly predicated on his belief that the Board would rebid the contract if emergent relief were denied. Indeed, having found the USA/Board contract a nullity, the ALJ expressly denied emergent relief because petitioner, which could not facially demonstrate an absolute entitlement to the contract at issue, was unable to show that it would be irreparably harmed by a rebid. However, the record on motion made it plain that, contrary to the Board's representations to the ALJ that it would rebid the project if emergent relief were denied, the Board did not rebid the project upon such denial but, instead, proceeded to pursue its contract with USA and allow it to begin electrical work at Delsea High School. Thus, the basis for both the ALJ's recommendation and the Commissioner's decision to affirm it had been so substantially altered that the Commissioner reconsidered petitioner's claim of irreparable harm, and found that petitioner had now succeeded in such a showing, thereby warranting emergent relief in the form of an express prohibition of further work on the disputed contract.

As a consequence of the Commissioner's February 8, 1996 decision, the Board rebid the disputed contract and again determined to award it to respondent USA Electrical Construction Contractors, Inc., rather than petitioner. Petitioner then applied for a Temporary Restraining Order in Superior Court, contending that the Commissioner's February 8 decision had prohibited a rebid. This request was denied. Petitioner then, through the present application, sought a "clarification" of the February 8 decision with respect to the Board's right to rebid, and a stay of any awarding and/or implementation of the contract resulting from the Board's proposed rebid. Responses to petitioner's motion were filed by both respondents.

Upon review of the record of this matter and the papers filed with the present application, it is clear that the sole basis for petitioner's motion attacking the validity of any rebid contract is the erroneous belief that the Commissioner's decision of February 8, 1996 acted to prohibit the Board from rebidding the originally disputed contract. Given the history of this matter, such an interpretation would make little sense. To the contrary, the entire basis for the Commissioner's reconsideration of his earlier denial of emergent relief was the fact that the Board had continued with work on the contract rather than rebidding, as it was represented to the ALJ that the Board would, thus undercutting the underlying basis for both the ALJ's initial decision denying emergent relief and the Commissioner's subsequent affirmance thereof. Rather, the Commissioner's decision of February 8, as correctly construed by respondents, acted to give the Board a choice between a stay of work altogether or rebidding, the latter possibility clearly contemplated, permitted and even expected by both the ALJ and the Commissioner. That the Board chose the option of rebidding was a matter entirely within its own lawful discretion.

Accordingly, there being no basis stated in the moving papers upon which to warrant stay of any rebid contract or resulting work, petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief is DENIED and the underlying matter shall continue to proceed on its merits at the Office of Administrative Law as directed in the Commissioner's prior decision.

Statement of the Case

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) August 29, 1995 for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached Agreement, indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their representatives' signatures and by petitioner's acceptance of the settlement terms at the hearing on February 13, 1996.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission has acted pursuant to the authority granted to it by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. to recommend removal of respondent from Board membership for failure to attend the Board member training sessions required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.4; and

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission sent ample notice to respondent for her failure to attend such training sessions; and

Whereas, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.3(i), on June 19, 1995, the Commission issued an Order to Show Cause why a penalty should not be imposed for such failure; and

Whereas, respondent's attorney contacted the School Ethics Commission office and was informed telephonically that the Commision would be meeting on January 26, 1996, wherein he expressed his intent to submit a filing for the Commission's consideration concerning this matter on that date; and

Whereas, the Commission instead met and voted on January 23, 1996, to recommend removal of respondent for failure to attend training sessions in violation of State statute, and forwarded this matter to the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29; and

Whereas, respondent contends she was not provided with notice of the January 23, 1996 meeting, nor was her Affidavit considered by the Commission in rendering its determination to remove her from her position; and

Whereas, on February 6, 1996, the above-named Board member was afforded an opportunity to submit to the Commissioner a response to the Commission's decision recommending removal; and

Whereas, respondent avers in such comments that her Affidavit was not considered by the Commission based on the Commission's failure to notify her that this matter would be considered on January 23, 1996; and

Whereas, the Commissioner of Education has carefully considered the record of this matter and finds that the Commission's not having considered respondent's Affidavit may have affected the determination of the Commission; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED that the matter be remanded to the School Ethics Commission so that the Commission may have an opportunity to reconsider its recommendation for penalty in light of respondent's Affidavit prior to the Commissioner's ruling on said recommendation.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning grandmother alleged minor student, R.G., was improperly denied admission to school due to residency dispute.

ALJ found that D.G., R.G.'s mother, was not capable of supporting or providing care for R.G. due to a family or economic hardship pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1). Thus, R.G. was not residing with petitioner solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education. ALJ determined that R.G. should be allowed to attend the Board's schools without payment of tuition.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own and ordered the Board to continue to admit R.G. into its public school system free of charge, as long as there were no change in petitioner's circumstances that would alter the entitlement.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

OF THE TOWNSHIP OF OCEAN,

Respondent.

Katie McLean, petitioner, pro se

Honora O'Brien Kilgallen, Esq., for respondent (Kramer, Kramer & Kilgallen, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 17, 1996 Decided: February 9, 1996

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, R.G.'s grandmother, alleges that, due to the economic hardship of her daughter, R.G.'s mother, since at least August 1993 R.G. has been domiciled in her (the petitioner's) residence in Ocean Township and she (the petitioner) has supported R.G. gratis; R.G. is not residing with her solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in the respondent Ocean Township Board of Education's (BOE's) schools; since the 1993-94 school year, when R.G. began to attend the BOE's schools, she (the petitioner) has assumed all personal obligations for R.G. relative to school requirements; and this domicile arrangement is expected to continue for the foreseeable future. Based upon these allegations, the petitioner claims that R.G. should continue in the BOE's school system. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

The BOE denies that R.G. has been domiciled in the petitioner's residence; claims that the petitioner should pay tuition for R.G.'s past attendance in its school system; and claims that R.G. should discontinue her attendance in its school system (and attend school in the Neptune system).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On April 17, 1995, the petitioner's petition was filed with the New Jersey Commissioner of Education. In the BOE's answer to the petition, filed with the Commissioner on June 14, 1995, the BOE stated, inter alia, that procedurally, the petition was late and should be dismissed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, and, substantively, the relief claimed in the petition should be denied and the petition dismissed. The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law where, on June 26, 1995, it was filed as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). On August 14, 1995, the case was assigned to me and I sent out a letter setting forth a schedule for discovery, a conference and a hearing. On January 17, 1996, the case was heard in the Freehold Township municipal building.

FINDINGS OF FACT

After a career in the United States Army, the petitioner's husband retired and he and the petitioner retired to their single-family residence located at 101 Bimbler Boulevard in Ocean Township, Monmouth County. The petitioner's husband also owns an apartment building, located at 101 Anelve Avenue in Neptune. The petitioner and her husband are the parents of a daughter, D.G. D.G. and her husband (from whom she is now separated) are the parents of a daughter, R.G., whose date of birth is June 4, 1982, and a younger son, O.G.

Prior to the 1993-94 school year, R.G. resided with D.G. and O.G. in a two-bedroom apartment in the 101 Anelve Avenue building. D.G. used one bedroom and R.G. and O.G. used the other bedroom. The family received welfare, and R.G. and O.G. attended the Neptune public schools.

By the summer of 1993, R.G. was becoming an adolescent and it was no longer appropriate for her to share a bedroom with her brother, who was only a couple of years younger than she. (Because of the layout of the apartment, it was not practical for R.G. and D.G. to share a bedroom.) D.G., who is unemployed and receiving a monthly Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) grant of $322, was financially unable to pay for a three-bedroom apartment. Consequently, since about August 1993 R.G. has been domiciled in the petitioner's residence in Ocean Township; the petitioner and her husband have supported and cared for R.G. gratis; R.G. has sent and received mail using the petitioner's address as her own; and in non-school-related matters, e.g., when the petitioner and R.G. were involved in a motor vehicle accident, the petitioner gave her Ocean Township residence as R.G.'s address. P-1e; P-2; P-4a. These living arrangements are expected to continue for the foreseeable future. Significantly, R.G. has been off of D.G.'s AFDC grant since she moved to her grandparents' home.

About August 1993, the petitioner submitted to the Ocean Township BOE a notarized statement wherein she stated that R.G. lived with her. BOE-1. The petitioner then registered R.G. in the Ocean Township school system, and in September 1993 R.G. entered the sixth grade in the Ocean Township Intermediate School. Since the 1993-94 school year, R.G. has attended school in the Ocean Township school system, where she has excelled, and the petitioner has "assume[d] all personal obligations for [R.G.] relative to school requirements." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1); P-3a; P-3b. (R.G.'s brother has continued to be domiciled with D.G. and continued to attend the Neptune schools.)

The petitioner's residence and D.G.'s apartment are only a few minutes' walking or driving distance from one another and, since August 1993, R.G. and D.G. have seen one another frequently. The petitioner's husband is ill and he has been placed in a nursing home. The petitioner is usually in her residence; however, she is active in her church and, when she is out for an evening or away overnight, e.g., at a church affair, because her husband can no longer be home with R.G., R.G. has stayed overnight with her mother in the Neptune apartment. When this has occurred, the next morning D.G. has driven R.G. to the petitioner's residence and then to the school bus stop (where R.G. gets on the bus for school).

Chester Morris is a friend of the petitioner's husband. He credibly testified that, after a career in the United States Army, he is now retired and residing in Asbury Park, a few blocks from the petitioner's home. When the petitioner's husband became ill, he requested that Mr. Morris regularly stop in at his residence to confirm that his family was all right. Mr. Morris has honored the petitioner's husband's request and he has stopped in at the petitioner's residence about three times a week. He said that during those visits he frequently observed R.G. in the house doing homework, eating, getting ready for bed, etc. That is to say, Mr. Morris has observed the living arrangement in the residence and, since August 1993, he has seen that R.G. is domiciled there, i.e., in Ocean Township.

Matthew Allen, a credible witness, is an elder in the Martin Luther King Presbyterian Church and, through the church, is active in organizing worthwhile activities for children, including R.G. For a number of years, Mr. Allen has regularly provided transportation for these children; he picks them up at their homes and, after activities, delivers them back to their homes. Since August 1993, Mr. Allen has picked up R.G. at the petitioner's residence and, only infrequently, when the petitioner has instructed him to do so, has he delivered R.G. to her mother at the Neptune apartment (because, e.g., the petitioner would not be home to receive her). During this same period, Mr. Allen picked up and dropped off O.G. (who was also involved in some of the church activities) at D.G.'s Neptune apartment. That is to say, Mr. Allen has observed the living arrangement in the petitioner's residence and, since August 1993, he has seen that R.G. is domiciled there, i.e., in Ocean Township.

Record Closed: January 17, 1996 Decided: February 9, 1996

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, R.G.'s grandmother, alleges that, due to the economic hardship of her daughter, R.G.'s mother, since at least August 1993 R.G. has been domiciled in her (the Ocean Township property-tax payers, like those of most municipalities, are concerned about rising education costs and taxes related thereto and the BOE regularly receives anonymous telephone tips that students attending the BOE's schools are not domiciled in the township.

After receipt of an anonymous tip alleging that R.G. was not domiciled in Ocean Township, at the Ocean Township school officials' request, Detective Sergeant Phillip Miller of the Ocean Township Police Department investigated the matter. BOE-3. He observed that at approximately 7:00 a.m. on March 2 and 3, 1995, D.G., R.G. and O.G. left D.G.'s Neptune apartment and, in D.G.'s motor vehicle, they drove to the petitioner's residence. After a short period, D.G. drove R.G. to her school bus stop, where she boarded the school bus for the BOE's school system. In a written report, Detective Sergeant Miller notified the Ocean Township school officials of his observations. BOE-4. However, as noted above, the petitioner has credibly explained that R.G.'s rare overnight stays with D.G. resulted from her (the petitioner's) occasional inability to be home with R.G.

In a letter to D.G. dated March 6, 1995, the Ocean Township superintendent of schools alleged that R.G. did not reside in the district and stated that she would no longer be allowed to attend school in the BOE's system. BOE-6. Thereafter, the superintendent explained to D.G. that he would need her affidavit attesting to R.G.'s domicile in Ocean Township; however, he also advised her that signing such an affidavit might affect a custody determination. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1). In a letter to D.G. dated March 16, 1995, the superintendent wrote that he understood D.G.'s reluctance to "have an affidavit submitted by [the petitioner]," and that, based upon the information the school system had, R.G. should be attending the Neptune Township schools, and could not attend school in the BOE's system after March 24, 1995. BOE-7.

On March 28, 1995, during the BOE's meeting, the BOE considered the issue of R.G.'s domicile and the petitioner and D.G. were given an opportunity to address the BOE. In a letter to the petitioner dated March 29, 1995, the superintendent notified her of the following:

> After careful consideration of the information which you presented last evening it is the decision of the [BOE] to deny your request to allow your [granddaughter, R.G.] to continue in the Ocean Township School District. The factors which led to this > decision are the [BOE's] belief that [R.G.'s] mother does not reside in Ocean Township and the absence of an appropriate affidavit on file. . . .

>
> I must advise you that the district is entitled to collect tuition for a pupil's period of ineligible attendance. The tuition rate for grades 6-8 is $43.42 per day.
>
> [BOE-5.]

As a result of the petitioner's appeal to the commissioner, R.G. continues to attend school in the BOE's system, where she continues to have academic success.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 states, in pertinent part:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under 20 years of age:
>
> a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district;
> b. (1) Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if [she] were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term, and a copy of his lease if a tenant, or a sworn statement by his landlord acknowledging his tenancy if residing as a tenant without a written lease, and upon filing by the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. The statement shall be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements, information from or about which shall be supplied only to the board and only to the extent that it directly pertains to the support or nonsupport of the child. If in the judgment of the board of education the evidence does not support the validity of the claim by the resident, the board may deny admission to the child. The resident may contest the board's decision to the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner on the validity of the claim and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. The board of education shall, at the time of its decision, notify the resident in writing of his right to contest the board's decision to the commissioner within 21 days. No child shall be denied admission during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. In the event the child is currently enrolled in the district, the student shall not be removed from school during the 21-day period in which the resident may contest the board's decision nor during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the resident, he shall assess the resident tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the school district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced. Nothing shall preclude a board from collecting tuition from the resident, parent or guardian for a student's period of ineligible attendance in the schools of the district where the issue is not appealed to the commissioner;

(2) If the superintendent . . . of a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district and the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. The parent or guardian shall be entitled to a hearing before the board and if in the judgment of the board the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the district or the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free > education under the criteria listed in this subsection. The board of education shall, at the time of its decision, notify the parent or guardian in writing of his right to contest the decision within 21 days. No child shall be removed from school during the 21-day period in which the parent may contest the board's decision or during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the parent or guardian, the commissioner shall assess the parent or guardian tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced. Nothing shall preclude a board from collecting tuition from the parent or guardian for a student's period of ineligible attendance in the schools of the district where the issue is not appealed to the commissioner.

> [Emphasis added.]

Procedurally, the BOE questions the timeliness of the petition. However, the BOE's March 29, 1995 letter notified the petitioner of the BOE's determination that R.G. should not be attending the BOE's school system, etc. (no record was made of the date of receipt of the letter), and the petition was filed on April 17, 1995, i.e., within the twenty-one-day filing period set by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. So the petition appears to be timely.

Substantively, D.G., "the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district [R.G.]," is "not domiciled within the district." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2) (emphasis added). However, consistent with the testimony of the petitioner and D.G., other credible evidence, and my findings of fact, D.G. is "not capable of supporting or providing care for [R.G.] due to a family or economic hardship"; R.G. is not residing with the petitioner "solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district"; R.G. has been and is "kept in the [petitioner's] home," i.e., within the district, and "supported by [the petitioner] gratis as if the child was the [petitioner's] own child"; and this domicile arrangement is expected to continue for the foreseeable future. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b). (The unique circumstances of this case, including D.G.'s fears relative to the effect on custody of the affidavit she was asked to provide, excuse her failure to submit a "sworn statement" as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1), and the above "Findings of Fact" may be considered to have substituted for and satisfied that requirement.)

Consistent with the above, the petitioner is not liable for tuition to the BOE, and R.G. may continue to attend school in the BOE's system.

ORDER

I ORDER the BOE's determination and claim for payment of tuition DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE and GRANT the petitioner's claim that R.G. should be allowed to attend the BOE's school without payment of tuition.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF OCEAN, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board filed timely exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board first challenges the ALJ's determination that R.G. is domiciled in Ocean Township. Here, the Board suggests that, since petitioner filed this action before the Commissioner of Education in April 1995, some ten months ago, "the child has spent most of her time at the Ocean Township residence in contemplation of the hearing which ultimately took place  on January 17, 1996." (Board's Exceptions at p. 2)

Additionally, the Board excepts to the ALJ's finding that petitioner has established that D.G., R.G.'s mother, is not capable of supporting or providing care for R.G. due to a family or economic hardship, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1). The Board asserts that D.G. never testified that she was on public assistance. Yet, D.G. did testify, the Board affirms, that the apartment in which she lived was owned by her father. The Board concludes, therefore, that

"[c]learly  there is no 'family or economic hardship'  which would require the child to reside with her grandmother ." (Id.)

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner finds the Board's exceptions to be unpersuasive and, instead, concurs with the findings and credibility determinations of the ALJ in the initial decision. The Commissioner further agrees that the ALJ's factual findings, under the unique circumstances of this case, may be considered to have satisfied the statutory purpose for requiring a sworn statement from R.G.'s mother. See Gunderson v. Board of Education of the City of Brigantine, Atlantic County, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 39, 42. Thus, the Commissioner accepts the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner, satisfying the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1), has established that R.G. is eligible to attend school in respondent's District.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons expressed therein, and the Board is hereby ordered to continue to admit R.G. into its public school system free of charge, as long as there is no change in petitioner's circumstances that would alter R.G.'s entitlement.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: January 18, 1996 Decided: February 14, 1996

BEFORE DIANA C. SUKOVICH, ALJ:

On August 29, 1995, Mona Iwaszko (petitioner) filed a petition with the Department of Education (DOE) contesting action by the Board of Education of the Morris Hills Regional School District (respondent) determining that petitioner would be serving as a replacement guidance counselor during the 1995-96 school year and therefore would not acquire tenure credit for her assignment during that school year.

Respondent filed an answer on September 21, 1995, and the DOE transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on October 2, 1995 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A telephone conference was conducted on December 11, 1995. Hearings scheduled for June 1996 were adjourned at petitioner's request, with respondent's consent. Subsequent to further communications, the parties filed an executed stipulation of dismissal on January 18, 1996, requesting that this judge issue an initial decision approving the stipulation. Attached herewith is a copy of the stipulation of dismissal. The record was closed on January 18, 1996.

The stipulation, noting that the parties have amicably adjusted their differences, states that the parties have agreed that petitioner's claims that she earned tenure status and possessed all related tenure rights on or about September 1, 1995, are dismissed without prejudice, that any other claims are dismissed with prejudice, and that costs not be assessed against either party.

I FIND that the matter is no longer a contested case and CONCLUDE that the stipulation of dismissal executed by the parties should be approved. It is ORDERED that petitioner's claims that she earned tenure status and possessed all related tenure rights on or about September 1, 1995, be and are hereby DISMISSED without prejudice, that all other claims raised by petitioner be DISMISSED with prejudice, and that costs not be assessed against either party.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BRIELLE, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, April 4, 1996

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Chamlin, Rosen, Cavanagh & Uliano
(Thomas W. Cavanagh, Jr., Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Wayne J. Oppito, Esq.

As stipulated by the parties, Angelo Velasquez (hereinafter "petitioner") commenced his employment as a teaching staff member for the Board of Education of the Borough of Brielle (hereinafter "Board" or "Brielle Board") in September 1992. On May 3, 1995, the Superintendent of Schools recommended to the Board that petitioner not be offered an employment contract for the 1995-96 school year. As a result of the Superintendent's recommendation, petitioner's name was excluded from the list of staff members the Board voted to reappoint for 1995-96. In a letter dated May 12, 1995, the Superintendent notified petitioner that the Board had determined not to offer him a contract for 1995-96. At petitioner's request, the Superintendent informed petitioner of the reasons for his nonrenewal by letter dated June 14, 1995. On July 5, 1995, petitioner was provided with an informal appearance before the Board. In a letter dated July 7, 1995, petitioner was notified by the Superintendent that the Board had determined not to reverse its earlier decision not to renew his contract for the 1995-96 school year. At no time did the Superintendent recommend to the Board that petitioner be offered a contract for 1995-96. Nor did the Board at any time take formal action on petitioner's renewal by a recorded roll call vote.

8/6/97

On July 31, 1995, petitioner filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education, challenging the Board's action under N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1.[1]

---

[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10, as amended, provides that:

> On or before May 15 in each year, each nontenured teaching staff member continuously employed by a board of education since the preceding September 30 shall receive either
>
> a. A written offer of a contract for employment from the board of education for the next succeeding year providing for at least the same terms and conditions of employment but with such increases in salary as may be required by law or policies of the board of education, or
> b. A written notice from the chief school administrator that such employment will not be offered.

N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, which became effective on June 19, 1995, provides, in pertinent part:

> 1. Notwithstanding the provisions of any law, rule or regulation to the contrary:
>
> a. A board of education shall appoint, transfer or remove a certificated or non-certificated officer or employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board. The board shall not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons.
> b. A board of education shall renew the employment contract of a certificated or non-certificated officer or employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board. The board shall not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons. A nontenured officer or employee who is not recommended for renewal by the chief school administrator shall be deemed nonrenewed. Prior to notifying the officer or employee of the nonrenewal, the chief school administrator shall notify the board of the recommendation not to renew the officer's or employee's contract and the reasons for the recommendation. An officer or employee whose employment contract is not renewed shall have the right to a written statement of reasons for nonrenewal...and to an informal appearance before the board. The purpose of the appearance shall be to permit the staff member to convince the members of the board to offer reemployment....

The parties subsequently filed cross-motions for partial summary decision with regard to Count One of the petition, in which petitioner had requested that this matter be remanded to the Brielle Board for a vote on his request for reemployment.

On March 7, 1997, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") recommended dismissing the petition. The ALJ noted that N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 was enacted by the Legislature in response to the Appellate Division decision in Rotondo v. Carlstadt-East Rutherford Reg'l High School Dist., 276 N.J. Super. 36 (App. Div. 1994), in which the Court held that regulations barring a local board from appointing a teaching staff member without the affirmative recommendation of the chief school administrator were invalid because they contravened N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1. The ALJ indicated that if the amendments to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 were intended to remove district board consideration of reemployment of an employee not recommended by the superintendent, the intent had not been realized since all the nonrenewed employee had to do was request an appearance before the district board. The ALJ found this inconsistent with the earlier statement in the statute that a nontenured employee who was not recommended for renewal by the chief school administrator was deemed to be nonrenewed.

The ALJ concluded that "the least absurd interpretation" of the statute was that a nontenured officer or employee who was not recommended for renewal by the chief school administrator was to be deemed nonrenewed unless the employee exercised his or her right to an informal appearance before the board. If the board then disagreed with the superintendent's recommendation, an employment contract would issue notwithstanding the superintendent's recommendation. The ALJ concluded that "[n]o matter how the present language is viewed, there is no way to harmonize the language and the apparent intent without torturing the plain meaning of the words used." Initial Decision, slip op. at 19.

Applying his interpretation of the statute to the instant case, the ALJ found that petitioner had received all the consideration he was entitled to receive. The ALJ observed that petitioner had had the opportunity to try to convince the Board to offer him reemployment, but that such attempt had been unsuccessful. Consequently, the ALJ recommended dismissing the petition.

On March 25, 1996, the Commissioner granted petitioner's request for interlocutory review of the ALJ's determination. Thereafter, in a decision dated April 4, 1996, the Commissioner agreed with the ALJ that petitioner had received all that he was entitled to receive from the Brielle Board and that there was no relief that could be granted to him with respect to Count One of the petition. However, the Commissioner disagreed with the ALJ's underlying interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, finding that the plain language of the statute did not force a result that was at odds with the overall legislative intent. The Commissioner reasoned:

> In the case of contract renewal for nontenured staff, the law specifically provides that contracts shall be renewed only upon the superintendent's recommendation and a majority vote of the full board. That the Legislature chose to amend the original bill to retain the employee's existing right to a statement of reasons and appearance before the board in the event of a nonrenewal was not intended to, and does not, alter this result. [Footnote omitted.] Rather, it simply provides a mechanism by which a staff member whose renewal has not been recommended by the superintendent can appeal to the board, on which the superintendent specifically sits as a nonvoting member pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20, in the hope of persuading district decision makers to take favorable action on his or her renewal. In the > case of the superintendent, that action would be a recommendation for reemployment, and in the case of the voting members of the board, an offer of reemployment based upon the superintendent's recommendation. To conclude from the statute's ultimate inclusion of this long-standing due process mechanism...that the Legislature intended, or that the statute permits, boards to offer reemployment to a staff member not recommended by the superintendent, ignores both the context of the specific language being relied upon and the overall scheme of the legislative enactment.

Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 25-26 (emphasis in original).

The Commissioner therefore dismissed Count One of the petition and directed that the remainder of the petition proceed to disposition in the Office of Administrative Law.[2]

Petitioner has filed a motion with the State Board for leave to appeal from the Commissioner's interlocutory decision. After a review of the papers submitted, we grant petitioner's motion for leave to appeal and, after a careful review of the record, affirm the ultimate determination of the Commissioner to dismiss Count One of the petition. However, we reject the Commissioner's analysis and dismiss Count One for the reasons expressed herein.

Giving the words used in the statute their "ordinary and well-understood meaning," Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co. v. Borough of Point Pleasant, 137 N.J. 136, 143-44 (1994); Levin v. Township of Parsippany-Troy Hills, 82 N.J. 174, 182 (1980), we agree with the ALJ that "there is no way to harmonize the language and the apparent intent [of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1] without torturing the plain meaning of the words used." Initial Decision, slip op. at 19. While the statute clearly indicates that a district board can renew an employment contract "only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator" (emphasis added), it also expressly permits an employee whose employment contract is not renewed to request an informal appearance before the district board for the purpose of "attempting to convince the members of the board to offer reemployment" (emphasis added).[3]

After careful review, we agree with the ALJ that the statute as enacted does not effectuate an intent to remove district board consideration of reemployment of an employee not recommended by the superintendent. As noted by the ALJ, all a nonrenewed employee has to do under the statute is to request an informal appearance before the board in an attempt to convince the members of the board to offer him or her reemployment. In that context, we are unable to accept the Commissioner's attempt to reconcile the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 as enacted with the apparent legislative intent. We find the Commissioner's explanation, which is predicated on the fact that the chief school administrator is a nonvoting member of the board, to be a strained interpretation of the plain language of the statute.

Nonetheless, like the Commissioner, we find nothing in the statute that would require a district board to vote on a staff member's renewal after his or her informal appearance before the board. Consequently, while we disagree with the [3] We note that the contradictory language in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 (L.1995, c. 125, § 1, eff. June 19, 1995) appears to have resulted from an amendment made to the bill by the Assembly Education Committee. The sponsor's intent was simply that an employee who was not recommended for renewal by the chief school administrator would be deemed nonrenewed. The bill required the recommendation of the chief school administrator and a simple majority vote of the board for a contract to be renewed. The provision providing an employee whose employment contract was not renewed with the opportunity to appear before the board to convince it to offer remployment was added by the Assembly Education Committee during its subsequent review of the bill. See Sponsor's Statement; Statement of Assembly Education Committee, 1994 Assembly No. 2410.

Commissioner's analysis, we reject petitioner's contention that he was entitled to a vote by the Brielle Board on his renewal.[4]

We therefore affirm the ultimate determination of the Commissioner to dismiss Count One of the petition, but do so for the reasons expressed herein.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

August 6, 1997

Date of mailing AUG 08 1997

[4] In his exceptions to our Legal Committee's report, petitioner notes that the parties had stipulated that the Brielle Board had not acted by a recorded roll call vote after petitioner's informal appearance before that Board in July 1995 "due to the understanding that the legislation...deemed petitioner nonrenewed unless the Superintendent changed his original recommendation." In view of our determination herein, petitioner requests that the Brielle Board now be provided with the opportunity to consider whether to alter the recommendation of the superintendent and to offer petitioner renewed employment. Under the circumstances, we decline to issue such a directive. It has been more than two years since petitioner's informal appearance before the Brielle Board, and there is nothing in the record that would indicate or suggest that the Board would have renewed petitioner's employment had it voted at that time.

ANGELO VELASQUEZ,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
PETITIONER,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
V.	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF BOROUGH OF BRIELLE, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning nonrenewed teaching staff member sought determination from Commissioner that Board had not acted in accord with controlling statute, in that it failed to take a vote following his appearance before the Board in order to persuade it to offer reemployment. Subsequent to the ALJ's ruling on cross motions for partial summary decision, petitioner sought interlocutory review pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10.

In his ruling, ALJ found that applicable law, P.L. 1995, c. 125, amended existing law to provide that where a superintendent does not recommend renewal of a nontenured teaching staff member's contract, a board need not actually vote unless it chooses to offer reemployment notwithstanding the superintendent's recommendation. ALJ indicated that such a reading did not appear to be in accord with overall legislative intent of requiring superintendent approval of all nontenured teaching staff contract renewals, but that plain language of actual statute compelled this result. ALJ dismissed Count One of petition.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ's ultimate determination that petitioner was not entitled to any further relief under Count One of his petition, but modified the ALJ's reading of the applicable statute. Commissioner held that plain language of statute could be harmonized with legislative intent by construing clause entitling nonrenewed staff member to an appearance before the board as a mechanism by which such staff member could attempt to persuade both the board and the superintendent, who sits on the board as a nonvoting member pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20, to recommend, or offer, as the case may be, reemployment. Where the superintendent does not alter his earlier recommendation, however, this clause does not confer upon the board the authority to offer reemployment in the absence of the required superintendent recommendation.

ANGELO VELASQUEZ,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BRIELLE,
Respondent.

Thomas W. Cavanaugh, Jr., Esq., for petitioner (Chamlin, Rosen, Cavanaugh & Uliano, attorneys)

Wayne J. Oppito, Esq., for respondent

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

This is a request for a declaratory judgment applying recent amendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 to a controversy that has developed between Angelo Velasquez and the Brielle Board of Education.

The matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. The matter is here on motions for partial summary judgment on Count I of the verified petition filed by Velasquez with the Commissioner on July 31, 1995. Upon receipt at the Office of Administrative Law, the matter was assigned to the Honorable M. Kathleen Duncan, ALJ. On January 9, 1996, Judge Duncan heard oral argument on the present motion. The record consists of the record of oral argument and the moving and responsive papers filed by the parties.

Prior to rendering her decision, Judge Duncan discovered a conflict of interest which she immediately reported to the Administrative Law Assignment Judge. Thereafter the matter was assigned to me.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The parties have stipulated the following facts:

1. Petitioner, Angelo Velasquez, was a non-tenured teaching staff member who was initially employed by respondent, Brielle Board of Education, for the 1992-93 school year on or about September 1, 1992.

2. Petitioner was reemployed by respondent for the 1993-94 and 1994-95 school years.

3. At its meeting on May 3, 1995, respondent discussed its staffing needs for the 1995-1996 school year.

4. At the aforesaid meeting, the Superintendent of Schools recommended to respondent that petitioner not be offered a contract of the 1995-96 school year.

5. At the aforesaid meeting, as a result of the Superintendent's recommendation, petitioner's name was excluded from the list of staff members respondent voted to reappoint for the 1995-96 school year.

6. In a letter, dated May 12, 1995, from the Superintendent of Schools, petitioner was notified that respondent had determined not to offer him a contract for the 1995-96 school year.

7. Subsequent to receiving the May 12, 1995 letter, petitioner requested a statement of reasons as to why he was not being offered a contract for the 1995-96 school year.

8. In a letter dated June 14, 1995, respondent by way of the Superintendent of Schools informed petitioner of the reasons why he was not offered a contract for the 1995-96 school year.

9. On June 19, 1995, the Governor signed into law P.L. 1995, ch. 125 supplementing chapter 27 of Title 18A and amending P.L. 1971 c. 436, also known as the "Rotondo" bill. Said bill took effect immediately.

10. Petitioner requested an informal appearance before respondent pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2 and such appearance occurred on July 5, 1995.

11. In a letter dated July 7, 1995, petitioner was notified that respondent had determined not to reverse its earlier decision not to rehire him for 1995-96 school year.

12. At no time did the Superintendent of Schools recommend to respondent that petitioner be offered a contract for the 1995-96 school year.

13. Respondent did not act by a recorded roll call vote not to offer to petitioner a contract for 1995-96. Since the Superintendent did not alter his original recommendation for non-renewal subsequent to the appearance on July 5, 1995, respondent did not act on the matter by recorded roll call vote, due to the understanding that the legislation referenced above deemed petitioner nonrenewed unless the Superintendent changed his original recommendation. The Board's decision not to renew the employment of the Petitioner was therefore not reflected in a vote subsequent to the appearance on July 5, 1995.

Prior to its most recent amendment, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 read:

> 1. On or before May 15 in each year, every board of education in this State shall give to each nontenured teaching staff member continuously employed by it since the preceding September 30 either > a. A written offer of a contract for employment for the next succeeding school year providing for at least the same terms and conditions of employment but with such increases in salary as may be required by law or policies of the board of education, or > b. A written notice that such employment will not be offered.
>

Chapter 125 of the laws of 1995 created a new section, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, and amended N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10. The new section reads:

> 1. On or before May 15 in each year, each nontenured teaching staff member continuously employed by a board of education since the preceding September 30 shall receive either
>
> a. A written offer of a contract for employment from the board of education for the next succeeding school year providing for at least the same terms and conditions of employment but with such increases in salary as may be required by law or policies of the board of education, or
>
> b. A written notice from the chief school administrator that such employment will not be offered.
> 3. This act shall take effect immediately.

N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2 provides that "Any teaching staff member receiving notice that a teaching contract for the succeeding school year will not be offered may, within 15 days thereafter, request in writing a statement of the reasons for such nonreemployment which will be given to the teaching staff member in writing within 30 days after the receipt of such request." N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.3 directs the State Board of Education to establish rules to carry out the provisions of the act. Implementing this legislation, the State Board of Education adopted N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2, a procedure for nontenured teaching staff members to appear before a district board of education upon receiving notice of nonreemployment. The rule provides:

> (a) Whenever a nontenured teaching staff member has requested in writing and has received a written statement of reasons for nonreemployment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2, he or she may request in writing an informal appearance before the district board of education. Such written request must be submitted to the board within 10 calendar days of receipt of the board's statement of reasons.
> (b) Such an informal appearance shall be scheduled within 30 calendar days from receipt of the board's statement of reasons.
>
> (c) Under the circumstances described in this section, a nontenured teaching staff member's appearance before the board shall not be an adversary proceeding. The purpose of such an appearance shall be to permit the staff member to convince the members of the board to offer reemployment.
>
> (d) Each district board shall exercise discretion in determining a reasonable length of time of the proceeding, depending upon the specific circumstances in each instance.
>
> (e) Each district Board shall provide adequate written notice to the employee regarding the date and time of the informal appearance.
>
> (f) The nontenured teaching staff member may be represented by counsel or one individual of his or her own choosing.
>
> (g) The staff member may present witnesses on his or her behalf. Such witnesses need not present testimony under oath and shall not be cross-examined by the board. Witnesses shall be called into the meeting to address the board one at a time and shall be excused from the meeting after making their statements.

(h) The proceeding of an informal appearance before the district board as described herein may be conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b)(8).

(i) Within three days following the informal appearance, the board shall notify the affected teaching staff member, in writing, of its final determination. such notification may be delegated by the board to its superintendent or board secretary.

THE ARGUMENTS

The petitioner

The facts in this matter are not controverted. The relief the petitioner seeks is a procedural direction requiring the Board of Education to undertake formal action subsequent to the appearance by a nontenured employee as set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2.

The Board assumes that when the recommendation of the chief school administrator, here a superintendent, is not to reemploy a nontenured employee, that ends the matter, even though N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2 guarantees the employee the right to appear before the Board. This is inconsistent with the long-standing concept of authority as delegated to local boards of education. And this portion is not required by the recent amendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10.

The amendment was a reaction to Rotondo v. Carlstadt- East Rutherford Reg'l High School Dist., 276 N.J. Super. 36 (App. Div. 1994). The Appellate Division reversed the Commissioner and State Board of Education holding that a local board of education could reverse the recommendation of the chief school administrator not to offer a nontenured employee a new contract. The Appellate Division concluded that there was insufficient statutory language within the references to support the conclusion that a chief school administrator could essentially veto teacher reappointments in an ordinary school district. The court reviewed the evolution of the statutory background and authority delegated to local school boards by the Legislature. The court determined that the statutory language in effect in 1994 was not adequate to justify a conclusion that the Legislature wished to empower a chief school administrator to control the reappointment of professional personnel by granting or withholding approval.

The law in 1994 required that the type of decision contested in this case was not subject to the control of the recommendation of the chief school administrator. The question in the current case is whether the legislation introduced last year is applicable to the present case, and, if so, if the amendment is sufficient to invalidate the reasoning of the Appellate Division in Rotondo.

The Legislature clearly attempted to address the role of the chief school administrator in school employment decisions in Assembly Bill No. 2410, which eventually became L. 1995, c. 125, amending N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 on June 19, 1995. The petitioner initially questions whether this legislation applies to his situation because of the timing of events in this matter. The recommendation not to renew his employment occurred well before adoption of the legislation, as did the original decision not to include his name on the list of employees to receive contracts for the following school year. The petitioner's request for a statement of reasons for his nonrenewal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.3, as well as the Board's response, also occurred before the amendment was adopted. The only thing that did not occur before adoption of the new amendment was his appearance before the Board pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2. That occurred on July 7, 1995. The petitioner questions whether the recent amendment, even if sufficient to justify the Board's position, can be applied in light of the fact that most of the process being challenged took place before the change in law.

In its original form, Assembly Bill No. 2410 provided that renewal of an employment contract would take place only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and would require a majority vote of the Board. The original bill also provided that the Board would provide an explanation of a disapproval of his recommendation to the chief school administrator if one were requested. The final version of the bill amended the original language requiring a simple majority vote to require a recorded roll call vote of the full membership of the Board. Also, the requirement for an explanation of disapproval of the chief school administrator's recommendation was deleted.

The legislation as enacted stipulates that an employee is entitled to and retains the right to a written statement of reasons under N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2. It also requires that the employee be provided an informal hearing before the Board, sometimes referred to as a Donaldson Hearing. The specific language is:

> Prior to notifying the officer or employee of the nonrenewal, the chief school administrator shall notify the Board of the recommendation not to renew the officer's or employee's contract and the reasons for the recommendation. An officer or employee whose employment contract is not renewed, shall have the right to a written statement of reasons for nonrenewal pursuant to Section 2 of P.L. 1975, c. 132 (C. 18A:3.2) and to an informal appearance before the board. The purpose of the appearance shall be to permit the staff member to convince the members of the board to offer reemployment.

In the petitioner's view, it is unpersuasive to argue that this language was not an express intent to preserve certain rights to nontenured employees. The question then is whether the original segment of the Bill relative to the increase of authority given to the chief school administrator alters the ultimate responsibility of the Board after the informal appearance by the employee. Logic seems to dictate against this conclusion.

The final segment of the language cited above indicates that the purpose of the appearance is to convince the members of the Board to offer reemployment. Did the Legislature intend to indicate through the amendment that the purpose of the appearance was to attempt to convince the members of the Board to offer reemployment when they were powerless to reach that decision if the chief school administrator was not similarly convinced and did not recommend reemployment? Because the recent amendment provides that the Board is not to withhold its approval of the recommendations for arbitrary and capricious reasons, does that language not imply that the Board still has the right to make the ultimate decision? Did not the Appellate Division in Rotondo say that only where the statutory language relied upon by the chief school administrator is clear will the Board be denied the ultimate right to reach a conclusion?

The petitioner urges that the impression and interpretation of the statute offered by the respondent appears at best to be in conflict with the spirit and intent of Donaldson v. Board of

Ed. of North Wildwood, 65 N.J. 236 (1974) and Hicks v. Board of Ed. of Tp. of Pemberton, 1975 S.L.D. 332, as well as N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2(c), the latter also making reference to convincing "the members of the board to offer reemployment." The Rotondo court makes clear that a local board's authority should not be abdicated by implication. Therefore, the matter must be remanded to the Board of Education for resolution before Count II is litigated.

The Respondent

This issue has arisen because of the enactment of P.L. 1995, ch. 125 which became effective June 19, 1995. The new law was a response to Rotondo, above. The facts in Rotondo were similar to those in this matter.

A nontenured teacher employed by the Carlstadt-East Rutherford Regional Board of Education was informed that the superintendent would not recommend her reemployment for the next school year. The Board did not offer her a new contract. After a public protest by families of students and a resulting reconsideration, the Board reversed its decision and offered the teacher a new contract over the superintendent's objection. Joyce Rotondo, a member of the Board who did not attend the meeting at which the new decision was made, filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education to set aside the decision as improper because it was contrary to the superintendent's recommendation. The administrative law judge determined that a local board was not bound to follow the superintendent's recommendation, but rather was obligated only to consider it. The Commissioner reversed the ALJ decision and relied upon the Department of Education regulations. The Commissioner determined that, while Boards of Education are specifically authorized ultimately to select the persons who are employed in the district, the flow of candidates from which they chose is controlled by the superintendent. The State Board affirmed.

The matter was taken to the Appellate Division of Superior Court which reversed the Commissioner's and State Board's decisions. The Appellate Division determined that it is necessary to consider the State Board regulations in the framework that the Legislature established. Both state and local boards have the authority to adopt and rules and regulations, but the rules must not be inconsistent with statute.

N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1 provides that no teaching staff member shall be appointed, except by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education appointing him/her.

The Appellate Court determined that there is nothing in this statute, or in any other statute, that affords the superintendent a veto or other controlling vote in the process of appointing teacher staff members, other than assistant superintendents. The court determined that the fundamental issue is whether regulations that bar a local board from appointing a teaching staff member without the affirmative recommendation of the superintendent are invalid because they contravene N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1. The court held that they are. The statute does not even suggest that the local board's authority to appoint is restricted to persons recommended by the chief school administrator. The court indicated that it was not evaluating educational policy but interpreting the meaning of the statute. It determined that if a new answer were to be reached, it was the Legislature that had to reach it.

As a result of the Appellate Division decision in Rotondo the Legislature amended the statute. The new law became effective immediately upon being signed by the Governor on June 19, 1995.

The amended statute provides that a board of education shall renew the employment contract of a certificated or noncertificated officer or employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board. As in the prior statute, the Board shall not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons. Additional new language provides that a nontenured officer or employee who is not recommended for removal by the chief school administrator shall be deemed nonrenewed.

Thus, the new law requires that the Board may act only upon the recommendation of the superintendent in these personnel decisions. The Board still has authority to accept or reject the superintendent's recommendation. The law requires a majority roll call vote of the full membership of the Board for the appointment or transfer of a staff member. The Board still appoints staff; however, the law requires a recommendation from the chief school administrator.

A person not recommended is deemed nonrenewed. The respondent insists that the superintendent's recommendation is not to be construed as the superintendent having appointing authority. The actual power to appoint still resides in the Board and still requires a majority vote of the full membership of the Board.

There appears to be contradictory language in the statute. The law specifically states that in the absence of a recommendation from the chief school administrator for the renewal of a staff member, that person shall be deemed not renewed. However, in other language, the statute indicates that a person not renewed is entitled upon request to appear before the Board. The purpose of the appearance is to convince the Board members to offer reemployment. The language in the statute that appears to be contradictory is the same as the language in N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2(c): "The purpose of such an appearance shall be to permit the staff member to convince members of the board to offer reemployment."

To require a Board to vote after the informal appearance would not be consistent with the Sponsor's statement. In accordance with Rotondo, a board of education did not need the chief school administrator's recommendation to hire and rehire teaching staff members. What was required was an affirmative majority vote of the full membership of the board. In light of Rotondo, the Legislature changed the statute so that the chief school administrator's recommendation is required. The Legislature would not have had to amend the statute if the contradictory language is interpreted to mean that the Board can act to renew a contract in the absence of an affirmative recommendation from the chief school administrator.

In the present case, the chief school administrator did not recommend that the petitioner's contract be renewed either before or after the July 5, 1995 appearance before the Board, which took place after the effective date of the new law. The petitioner is deemed nonrenewed. It would not have been necessary to amend the statute otherwise. In Rotondo, the Board acted to renew the contract of a teaching staff member in the absence of the superintendent's recommendation. The court ultimately determined that that action was within the Board's authority. The Legislature, in response to Rotondo, amended the law and required that a Board could use its power to appoint only when it had a recommendation from the chief school administrator. The Board is still authorized to reject the recommendation. However, now a person not recommended by the chief school administrator is deemed not renewed. In the absence of the chief school administrator's recommendation, there is nothing for the Board to vote on. Accordingly, in this case, because the petitioner was not recommended by the chief school administrator either before or after his July 5, 1995 appearance before the Board, he is deemed nonrenewed.

DETERMINATION

The basic objective in statutory interpretation is to ascertain the legislative intent. One must look at the full context of the legislation on the subject and must consider the object of the legislation and the problems sought to be remedied. In Re Suspension of Heller, 73 N.J. 292, 299 (1977). There are dozens of more or less formal rules of statutory interpretation. For example, "Statutes in derogation of the common law are to be strictly construed," and "Statutes in pari materia must be construed together." However, it is always necessary to bear in mind that the rules of interpretation cannot be applied mechanically. They are to be used with great caution. As the New Jersey Supreme Court has observed, "When all is said and done, the matter of statutory construction here will not turn on literalisms, technisms or the so-called formal rules of interpretation; it will justly turn on the breadth of the objectives of the legislation and the common sense of the situation." Jersey City Chapter, Property Owner's Ass'n v. City Council, 58 N.J. 86, 100 (1969).

Before amendment, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 provided that on or before May 15, every board of education shall give to each nontenured teaching staff member employed continuously since the preceding September 30 either (1) a written offer of a contract for the next year, or (2) a written notice that such employment will not be offered.

After amendment, the statute provides that on or before May 15, each nontenured teaching staff member continuously employed by a board of education since the preceding September 30 shall receive either (1) a written offer of a contract for employment from the Board of Education for the next succeeding school year, or (2) a written notice from the chief school administrator that employment will not be offered.

The legislation also created a new section, N.J.S.A. 27-4.1. The new section provides that, notwithstanding the provisions of any law, rule or regulation to the contrary, a board shall appoint, transfer or remove a certificated or noncertificated employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board. The board shall not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(a).

The new section goes on to provide that a board of education shall renew the employment contract of a certificated or noncertificated employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board. Again, the board shall not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons. A nontenured employee who is not recommended for renewal by the chief school administrator shall be deemed nonrenewed. Prior to notifying the employee of the nonrenewal, the chief school administrator shall notify the board of the recommendation not to renew the contract and the reasons for the recommendation. An employee whose employment contract is not renewed shall have the right to a written statement of reasons for nonrenewal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2 and further shall be entitled to an informal appearance before the Board. The purpose of the appearance shall be to permit the staff member to convince the board members to offer reemployment. The chief school administrator shall notify the employee of the nonrenewal pursuant, where applicable, to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10.

This may be graphically represented as follows:

Before Amendment	After Amendment
Superintendent recommendation YES	Superintendent recommendation YES
Board options YES or No	Board options YES or NO
Superintendent recommendation NO	Superintendent recommendation NO
Board options YES or NO	Board options Employee deemed nonrenewed BUT employee can appear before board to convince members to offer reemployment, in which circumstance the options are YES or NO

In criminal law, the constitutional prohibition against ex post facto laws flatly prohibits retroactive criminal statutes. There is no such sweeping constitutional prohibition on retroactive civil statutes, but a retroactive civil statute would be constitutionally infirm if it interfered with a vested property right or impaired an obligation of contracts. Aside from potential constitutional questions, a retroactive civil statute has a propensity to be unfair. Hence, legislatures do not usually adopt retroactive statutes and rule makers do not usually promulgate retroactive rules. There is a strong presumption against retroactivity. Note, however, that tax and fiscal statutes and rules are fairly frequently made effective as of the date of original proposal in order to discourage speculation during the adoption process.

Where retroactivity is intended, the Legislature clearly expresses its intent. Similarly, when the courts find retroactive application appropriate, the statement is clear. For example, in Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63 (1982), the Supreme Court addressed the effect of its decision in that case that compensatory education teachers could achieve tenure status, reversing earlier Appellate Division decisions. The Supreme Court decision clearly addressed the concern:

> The various schools boards involved in these suits urge that in the event that we overrule Point Pleasant, we grant only prospective relief. We have previously declined to apply a new legal rule retrospectively when it constitutes a "significant change in the law." Merenoff v. Merenoff, 76 N.J. 535, 560 (1978). This policy rests on a perceived unfairness to parties that have acted in reliance on the rules established in prior case law. See Ramirez v. Amsted Industries, Inc., 86 N.J. 332, 357 (1981). It is also intended to avoid any possible confusion in the administration of statutes and the execution of the law. Tomarchio v. Greenwich Tp., 75 N.J. 62, 78 (1977).
>
> It is apparent from the Appellate Division decisions below, as well as those in Biancardi, Capella, and Point Pleasant, that for some time the law on the tenurability of part-time, remedial and supplemental instructors has been in doubt. More importantly, we are overruling the decision in Point Pleasant. One can hardly imagine a clearer case of a clean break in the law than disapproval of a court decision that has been followed by state agencies. We therefore conclude that this decision should have only prospective application to those parties who are not before the Court.
> However, we believe that the teachers here have the right to application of this new rule developed as a result of the litigation they commenced. We have often allowed litigants to benefit from application of a rule that is applied prospectively as to all other persons. E.g., Ramirez v. Amsted Indus., 86 N.J. at 357; Merenoff v. Merenoff, 76 N.J. at 560; Pascucci v. Vagott, 71 N.J. 40, 50-51 (1976). The teachers in this case should not be denied the reward for their efforts and expense in challenging both the practice of their boards of education and the legal principles established by the various cases criticized here. See Ramirez v. Amsted Industries, 86 N.J. at 357.

> We therefore hold that the legal rule established by these cases shall be applied prospectively to all persons not before the Court as well as to the teachers before us.[2]

[2]Teachers not before the Court will therefore not be entitled to any back pay award. Similarly, teachers not involved in this case who were terminated prior to the date of this opinion are not entitled to be rehired. However, all currently employed supplemental and remedial teachers should have their tenure eligibility calculated on the basis of this opinion from the beginning of their employment.

As to the teachers involved in this litigation, they are all entitled not only to tenure but also to retroactive payment of any benefits that they would have received if they had been awarded tenure properly. Further, Anderson is to be reinstated to her tenured position and to receive all retroactive benefits.

The enactment of L. 1995, c. 125 was in response to the decision in Rotondo, above. Briefly, Rotondo held that a local board is not bound to follow the superintendent's hiring recommendation, but rather is obligated only to consider it. The Appellate Division decided that it is necessary to consider the state board regulations in that area in the framework that the Legislature established. Both state and local boards have the authority to adopt rules and regulations, but the rules must be consistent with statutory law.

The Appellate Division determined that there is nothing in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1 or any other statute that gives the superintendent a veto or other controlling role in the process of teaching staff member appointments. The court determined in that case that the fundamental issue was whether regulations barring a local board from appointing a teaching staff member without the affirmative recommendation of the superintendent were invalid because they contravened N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1. The statute says that no teaching staff member shall be appointed, except by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education appointing him [or her]. The court held the regulations invalid. The statute does not provide or hint that the local board's authority to appoint is restricted to persons recommended by the superintendent. The court indicated that it was not evaluating educational policy, but interpreting the meaning of the statue. It also concluded that, if a new answer were to be reached, it was the Legislature that had to reach it.

The Legislature did change the statute. The new law became effective on June 19, 1995. The present case demonstrates that the new law is less than clear.

If the purpose of the amendment is to remove board of education consideration of reemployment of an employee not recommended by the superintendent, the intent has not been realized. All the nonrenewed employee has to do is to request an appearance before the board. The act clearly states the purpose of the appearance shall be to permit the staff member to convince the members of the board to offer reemployment. Thus, by the simple expedient of the employee's request, the board of education is back in the decision making process. Yet, what violence does this do to the statement barely three sentences earlier that a nontenured employee who is not recommended for renewal by the chief school administrator shall be deemed nonrenewed? The two provisions are inconsistent.

A great array of legal maxims and case law instructs that the parts of a statute must be harmonized if possible. At the same time, the words used in the statute are to be given their ordinary and well understood meanings in the absence of an explicit indication to the contrary, and only if an ambiguity exists is it necessary to go beyond words of the statute itself. Ruehl Co. v. Bd. of Trustees for Education, 85 N.J. Super. 4 (Law Div. 1964). In construing Legislative intent, one must avoid a construction of a statute that will render any part of it inoperative. Shell Oil Co. v. Marinello, 120 N.J. Super. 357 (Law Div. 1972), certif. den. 62 N.J. 186 (1972), cert. den. 415 U.S. 920, 94 S. Ct. 1421, 39 L. Ed. 2d 475 (1973).
