NATIVITY AND PARENTAGE OF THE NEW JERSEY POPULATION

The composition of New Jersey's population is so complex and diversified that a variety of characteristics must be considered in making any analysis of the state or its parts. One of these factors is the nativity and parentage of New Jersey residents. Accordingly, statistics assembled from the 1960 U.S. Census of Population are presented in this booklet.

The category "Native" comprises persons born in the United States, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, or a possession of the United States. Also included in this category is the small number of persons who, although they were born in a foreign country or at sea, have at least one native American parent. Persons whose place of birth was not reported are assumed to be native. All others are classified as "foreign born."

In New Jersey, there are 3,958,017 people of native parentage, of whom 87.1% are white.

In turn, 65.2% of the total population of New Jersey were born of native parents. This is well below the national figure of 81.0% of the total population of native parentage. Part of this difference can be attributed to the fact that New Jersey is predominantly an urban area. The state ranks below the national urban level of 77.3% with native parentage.

However, the most important contributing factor for this wide difference is the fact that New Jersey is fourth in the nation in total number of foreign-born residents, with 606,384.

Only two of New Jersey's twenty-one counties were on or above the national average of native parentage; Gloucester County with 81.0%, and Salem County with 87.4%. Hudson County shows the lowest percentage of native parentage with 54.9%, while Passaic rates slightly higher at 55.2%. The two counties, Hudson and Passaic, lowest in percentage of native parentage, have the greatest percentage of foreign-born people in the State. New Jersey with a 10.1% of foreign born is high above the national figure of 5.4%.

New Jersey ranks fifth in the nation in percentage of foreign-born white stock with a rate of 6.3%, behind New York with 19.0%, California with 11.3%, Pennsylvania with 7.5%, and Illinois with 7.3%. New Jersey in this category increased 0.3% since the 1950 Census, the same rate as posted by New York.

Puerto Ricans are native American citizens and are not included in the counts of foreign born, and make up 0.9% of New Jersey's population. The concentration of Puerto Ricans centers around Hudson County. Although only 2.4% of Hudson County's population are Puerto Ricans, they make up 26.9% of the state's total Puerto Rican count. With 18.7% of the state's total Puerto Rican population, Essex County's population is 1.1% Puerto Rican. There are Puerto Ricans in all counties in New Jersey.

A tabulation is also given showing the countries of origin of the foreign stock in each county. "Foreign stock" is the foreign-born population combined with the native population of foreign or mixed parentage. Thus, all first and second generation Americans are included. Third and subsequent generations are considered as native of native parents.

These foreign stock totals for the state as a whole, are also tabulated for urban, rural-nonfarm, and rural populations, and corresponding percentage distributions are also shown. Natives of foreign parentage whose parents were born in different countries are classified according to the country of birth of the father.
