TAIPEI, Taiwan — Mixed greens, chunks of chicken, a few Roma tomatoes and a nice balsamic dressing — on a bus trip in Seoul, South Korea. And all because there was a concern that the 60-or-so delegates she was overseeing on a nine-day tour through East Asia might need an afternoon snack. It’s hard to quantify the attention to detail ...

#Liberty and #Prosperity, a motto true for #NewJersey and #Taiwan, and the gist to Governor Phil Murphy's visit to Taiwan! #NewJersey Governor govmurphy and his delegation visited Taiwan last week as part of his 2023 New Jersey East Asia economic mission, met with Taiwan's president tsai_ingwen, mofa_taiwan's Minister Joseph Wu, and several leaders of the business, political, and academic sectors. As the final stop to Governor's #NJEastAsiaMission, Taiwan is an important stop as it was announced that CChoose New Jersey, Inc. an economic development agency for the state, will soon be opening its first office in the Asia-Pacific region in Taipei. This is not only a highlight of the delegation, but it also showcases the strong bilateral relationship between Taiwan and New Jersey. President Tsai welcomed the announcement and conveyed her hopes of collaborations on info technology, healthcare, biotechnology, and green energy as the Garden State is an important gateway to the US East Coast market and many Taiwanese businesses have made the state a focus for their investment and expansion. Governor Murphy echoed President Tsai's speech, stating that being the fourth-largest Taiwanese population of any American state, New Jersey and Taiwan share a lot of commonalities. The governor also committed to working with Taiwan in preserving a free and open Indo-

Pacific. MOFA's Minster Joseph Wu hosted a pleasant lunch along with the MOU signing ceremony that reinforced the education, trade, and finance cooperations between the Garden State and Taiwan. More exciting partnerships to come, and we can't wait to see them blossom!
