Gov. Christie Whitman and Department of Human Services Commissioner Michele Guhl will participate in the 10th Anniversary Celebration of the School Based Youth Services tomorrow at Lakewood High School.

The New Jersey School Based Youth Services Program was implemented in 1988 to provide behavioral health and social services in or near secondary schools. The Governor and the Commissioner will participate in a small group discussion with current and past participants in the program at Lakewood High School. Gov. Whitman then will address the 9th and 10th grade students, encouraging them to demonstrate personal responsibility.
